So that's what it looks like . . .

Last week Farms police received a call from a neighbor of a Kerby Road resident about some plants growing in his neighbor's garden.

Police went to the caller's home, and spotted five four-foot high marijuana plants growing in a carefully manicured flower garden next door.

The daughter of the homeowner came outside and asked police why they were removing the plants from the garden — roots and all.

Police informed the woman that the plants were pot. She said that the family had just recently moved into the house, and were taking care of all the plants in the garden with equal kindness.

No prosecution was made in the case and the plants were taken to the city highway garage for disposal.

Good thing they didn't bring the cops a bouquet of flowers with the "greens" for an accent.

All better

Two Guatemalan boys brought to Grosse Pointe hospitals in July through Heal the Children are ready to go home now, coordinator Pam Linsdeau reports. Both boys leave in better shape than they were in when they came.

Juan Solano, an eye patient under care coordinated by Dr. Patrick Verb, has his glaucoma problem under control. Juan's eye was injured two years ago when he was hit with a stone from a slingshot. Operations in Guatemala could not restore his sight — treatment here suffered the same outcome. But the glaucoma, a simultaneous problem, was treatable.

Rigoberto Veliz, who has had an open ulcer on his leg for 13 years following a car accident, went home healed. He still has a game leg, but his doctor, Steven Tsangalias, says he can walk on it. Doctors in Guatemala had wanted to amputate — a particularly awkward solution for a person who lives in mountainous terrain.

Juan and Rigoberto weren't the first kids brought here under the international program, and it isn't likely that they'll be the last.

Kudos to the Rotary Club, who contributed time, organization, skills, knowledge and money to make it all happen.

Lovebirds

Lucien and Susie Vandenvale, of Grosse Pointe Park until six months ago, have the secret of making love last. They celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary on Sept. 29, at the Father Taillieu Residence, where they now live.

Lucien and Susie were married on Sept. 26, 1926 at St. John Berchman's church. They lived on Maryland in Grosse Pointe Park for many years.

The couple celebrated their anniversary with a renewal of vows, officiated by Monsignor Ferdinand Decneudt and the Rev. Italo Tucci, both retired and residents of the home. Lucien's brother and cousin were on hand for the party, which lasted from the noon meal until 3 p.m., according to the residence's administration. There was entertainment, and as a highlight, Lucien and Susie, 81 and 80 respectively, got up and danced together.

We can only wish Lucien and Susie many happy returns.

Beginning this week the Grosse Pointe News will focus on local churches. See the all-new Churches page on 4B

Proposal to build dike in Park is criticized

By Pat Paholsky

Stinging from a barrage of criticism for his proposal to build a five-foot high dike along the Detroit border, Park City Manager John Crawford defended the idea as one solution to the constant threat of flooding for some 600 families in a flood plain.

"We have to confront the problem and do something," he said. "We can't allow this to continue."

Crawford was referring to seepage from the earthen berm on the east side of Fox Creek along Alter Road.

"There are 21 spots of seepage on our side and if that dike goes, we are going to have serious flooding."

He said he will ask the city council on Monday, Oct. 13, to appoint a committee to work with him in seeking solutions to the problem. "Who knows — they can come up with much better ideas," Crawford said.

The idea of seeking a permanent solution to the ever-present potential for flooding was raised in 1979, he said, following the severe floods of 1977. The Park, along with St. Clair Shores, Detroit, Algonac and other cities along the lakefront, was involved in a reconnaissance study of Lake St. Clair by the Army Corps of Engineers.

At the time, the engineers recommended that the Park spend $600,000 to brace its shoreline. The study also recommended that Detroit dredge Fox Creek and erect a seawall on both sides. The Park council approved the $600,000 expenditure contingent upon Detroit deepening and shoring up Fox Creek.

According to Crawford, the Detroit officials said, in effect, that they weren't going to spend $1.2 million — the price tag then — to eliminate the flood plain in Grosse Pointe Park. "That shelved the plan," Crawford said.

The concern this year over flooding prompted the Park to place 2,000 to 3,000 sandbags on the berm along Fox Creek. There has been much erosion since spring, Crawford said, and the streets are breaking up from the seepage and the recent rains.

"How can you drive down Alter Road and not see a situation that will be extremely dangerous if we don't take action? Something has to be done," he said. "There's some leverage here in working with the city of Detroit in finding a common solution."

Crawford said he would like a committee to look at some options, including building a dike from the lake to Jefferson in the backyards of the homes on Barrington; putting in a seawall where there is none or repairing the existing walls along the lakefront; and putting a dike from the lake about halfway to Jefferson on the border of the city of Grosse Pointe.

The seawall installation and repair would encompass about 40 percent of the shoreline, he estimated. The remaining shoreline has been braced by homeowners. The dikes along the Detroit border and Grosse Pointe border would be anywhere from 42 inches to 60 inches in the ground and about five feet high. In-ground depth would vary, he said, depending on soil conditions.

Crawford said he has spoken individually to all the council members. "They are all receptive to doing something," he said. "The question is how are we going to pay for it."

With the approximately 600 houses in the flood plain paying an average of $450 a year for flood insurance, he said that with a special assessment, they would pay the same amount for five years. The result would be the elimination of the flood plain designation.

It would enhance the value of the property and create more buildable property, he said, since houses now in a flood plain cannot, by law, have a basement.

The five-foot dike would be masonry in-ground with a facade of brick above ground for aesthetic purposes, he said.

The idea of a five-foot high structure has prompted criticism from both Detroit and Park residents who feel the real purpose is to keep blacks out of Grosse Pointe Park. Crawford said the calls coming to city hall have been running about 60 percent in favor of the idea and 40 percent against.

Such a structure would likely increase flooding for Detroit residents near Fox Creek because of the water that would be trapped between the creek and the dike.

The city has a responsibility, Crawford said, to protect the health and welfare of its residents even if the action impacts another community negatively.

Grosse Pointe News receives awards

The Grosse Pointe News received two awards in the Michigan Press Association 1986 Newspaper Contest.

In the category of Editorial Page or Pages, the paper was given an honorable mention in the Class A division for weeklies with more than 15,000 subscribers. Bill Elston is the editorial writer.

The Second Section was awarded third place in the Lifestyle/Family category. Elsa Frohman, the features editor, is responsible for the section.

Members of the Kansas Press Association judged the contest and awarded more than 300 certificates of excellence to both daily and weekly newspapers throughout the state. The judges worked with 1,562 entries, from 81 weekly newspapers and 44 daily newspapers.

The announcement is made in conjunction with National Newspaper Week, Oct. 5-11, with the theme: "A Free Press Serves a Free People." National Newspaper Week is a time when a concentrated effort is made to stress the community service role of newspapers and the relationship between personal freedom and a free press.

Grosse Pointers love their library to death

By Nancy Parmenter

A study released last week shows that Grosse Pointers want more of everything at their libraries. More books, more computers, more space, more parking. Restrooms at the branches.

The survey, carried out by the Friends of the Library, showed that Grosse Pointers love the library. Ninety-one percent of the adult population uses it; 42 percent use it at least once a month. Nationwide figures are much lower: 10 percent frequent usage and 28 percent occasional use.

"Your library is not only used, it is heavily used," said Jose-Marie Griffiths, vice president of King Research, which designed the survey. Heavy usage is typical of more affluent and educated communities, she said.

A full 65 percent of the respondents favor doing something to expand the library, whether it be building programs at Central or the branches, remodeling, consolidation, or starting over from scratch with a new library. Only 20 percent felt nothing should be done. This is a surprise, according to Griffiths.

"I didn't think people would be aware of problems," she said. "The public is usually shielded from them. The accommodations that are made (to lack of space) tend to be on the staff side."

The library does have space problems, says Director Charles Hanson, and some of them are obvious to the public, who sometimes have to sit on the floor.

But the space shortage has more serious ramifications in terms of the collection. There just isn't enough room to enlarge the collection. Every time the library orders new books, staff must go through complex decisions and cull out part of the existing collection to make space on the shelves.

"I realized when I came here that we were working with a policy of containment rather than development," Hanson said. "We don't like the situation, but we're living with it the best we can."

"The best we can" means keeping new books on tables by the windows instead of on shelves. It means getting rid of books the library would prefer to keep.

Grosse Pointers have come to expect a high standard of service from the library. As soon as three requests for a book appear on the reserve list, the book is bought. Books that are expected to be popular are bought in multiple copies so that no one will have to wait a long time to read them.

Robert Lacey's "Ford: The Men and the Machine," for example, is circulating in 20 copies right now. Within about a year, the demand will be down and the library staff

Retired executive has little time for leisure

By Nancy Parmenter
Retired executives have a wealth of experience and sometimes nowhere to offer it. Such is not the case with Gene Turnbull of Grosse Pointe. Before he even retired, he had latched onto the International Executive Service Corps and made plans to share his knowledge with struggling industries in Third World countries. Actually, hooking up with the corps was serendipity. A letter from the corps came to Turnbull's office. "They were looking for someone else and I answered it," he said. They must have liked his letter, because Turnbull retired from his job as director of engineering at the Stroh Brewery in April and went with wife Dena to Jamaica on a consulting job for the service corps in May. The organization, founded by David Rockefeller in the internationalist '60s, depends upon donations from foundations, business and governments, both foreign and domestic. But the governments don't get any say for their money. "They want to keep the government out of it," Turnbull said. "It's too easy to get involved in politics." The client companies are responsible for paying the expenses of the American consultants, "so they have a stake in it," Turnbull said. In return, they get advice from some of the best. One of the key points about the program is that retired executives give help only within their area of expertise. Turnbull does breweries. He spent parts of May and June in Kingston, Jamaica — "not a tourist town, by any manner of speaking" — advising the owners of Red Stripe Brewery on operations, scheduling and the best use of machinery and personnel. "All I do is study and make recommendations," he said. "I can't do it for them." Red Stripe had a mix of old and modern equipment and some well-entrenched ways of doing things. "One thing you have to have is a lot of patience," Turnbull said. "They've been doing things like this for a long time. You have to realize that you're not going to change them." Jamaica is a struggling country. The land is scarred with abandoned bauxite mines. The educated class goes to other countries for an education, then stays there. People are skeptical of the intentions of the United States.

"One of the objectives of the program is to make them look with favor on the United States," Turnbull said. "In many areas of the world, American businessmen are either not known or unfavorably looked on. We're trying to counteract the negative U.S. image in the Caribbean." Two months after his return from Jamaica, Turnbull was tapped again — this time for Haiti. There he says he found a real culture shock in a world still reeling from the major political change when the Duvalier regime suddenly ended. "Illiteracy is very high," he said. "There are no records of anything since the coup. Everything is disorganized. They're the poorest people in the western hemisphere." Nevertheless, Haitians have "great pride in their country. They seem to have a wonderful attitude. There are patriotic signs all over." Although the National Brewery was more backward than Jamaica's Red Stripe, both bottled, in addition to their own brands, several American brands, plus Pepsi and other soft drinks and Malta, a high-protein, high-nutrition drink for children. And even though some of the management practices needed improvement, the beer was good. "It would sell here," he said. The Service Corps provides its executive volunteers with comprehensive packets of information on the countries they visit, but do not otherwise carry on training programs. "They bank on your experience," Turnbull said. Executives are given some advice on dealing with people from a different culture. "They tell you not to be pushy. Don't take over. Be patient. And it's very, very important not to sound like an agency of the U.S. government," Turnbull said. "It's an entirely different world. There isn't the urgency about things that there is here. They warn you you'll be frustrated." Having always been too busy to do any volunteer work, Turnbull says he is enjoying the experience. "It gives you a good feeling," he said. "They need a lot of help."

School board considers ban on smoking

There won't be any more smoking on Grosse Pointe high school campuses if a committee studying the subject has its way. In a report to the school board Monday night, committee spokeswoman Bonnie Levitan recommended a complete ban on smoking by January. Board members, who will vote on a smoking policy at their regular meeting Oct. 13, agreed in principle that students should not smoke, but were not unanimously satisfied with specifics of the recommended program. The committee has recommended that the schools immediately ban smoking on campus except during lunch hour. After the semester break in January, the ban would be total. The report requests $17,000 for enforcement of the ban through hall monitors and $10,000 for anti-smoking education. Discussion centered on enforcement, education, and — for a few minutes — the possible advantages of a closed campus. "Those students who choose to smoke do so in spite of warnings about cancer," said trustee Jon Gandelot. "Do you really think (anti-smoking classes) will do any good?" Vice president Fred Adams expressed similar doubts about breaking long-standing smoking habits. "I'd like to think it could happen, but it's just not human nature," he said. The schools currently have designated smoking areas. State law, however, bans smoking on high school campuses by people younger than 18. A poll of neighboring school districts turned up only a few with designated smoking areas, Levitan said. "They were shocked that we allow it," she said. Levitan charged that the school district is hypocritical in teaching students the dangers of smoking, then allowing them to do it. "When they get to the high school, we say, 'kids, we told you not to do it, but if you want to do it, here's the designated area.' The tail's been wagging the dog for too long. We have to take charge of this and do what's best for our children." There is no hard data on the number of students who smoke. North Principal John Kastran estimated it at 15 to 20 percent. Students have guessed that smokers may number as high as 80 percent. South student Anne Connell told the board she started smoking when she started high school. "It's there, so I do it," she said. Connell is a member of the committee and favors the smoking ban.

The closed campus issue was apparently disposed of. Trustee Joan Hanpeter said she has always favored open campus. "Let's try it," she said, referring to the argument that the open campus will allow smoking students to step across the street and smoke whenever they want to. "Let's see if our young people can be mature enough." Connell also urged the board to leave the open campus policy afloat. "I love open campus," she said. "I go out to lunch every single day."

Farms reaches compromise with Blue Cross

An amendment was approved to the contract between Grosse Pointe Farms and Blue Cross Monday night, which will have the effect of raising the city's health care costs by about 20 percent. Earlier this year, Blue Cross had charged the city with an increase of more than 30 percent for its coverage, based on the actual loss record within the city and within the group to which it belongs. According to Comptroller Carrol Lock, when faced with the huge increase, the city began negotiations with Blue Cross. "What has been worked out is they agreed to let us pay 120 percent of what we were paying, but if the actual losses show that we owed what they say we owed, we will be responsible for those costs," Lock said. Once the negotiations were completed, Lock recommended the amendment to the city's contract with the Blues to the city council. There are not too many viable options open to the council," Lock said. "We have provided medical coverage and have to pay the costs to provide it." Last year the Farms paid more than $200,000 for medical coverage of its active and retired employees. The retiree rate for two persons increased from $182.50 per month to $252.77, under the first Blue Cross proposed rate increase. The city expects to pay about $40,000 more in insurance premiums this year over last, unless there are actual losses greater than anticipated, in which case the city may owe as much as an additional $25,000.

Fiery fall color show may fall flat

By Peter A. Salinas

If April showers bring May flowers, what the heck will all this rain in September and October bring about?

According to a Michigan State University professor of forestry, it could herald the end of autumn as we know it — or better put, as we would like to know it.

Those bright blue skies with huge, puffy white clouds have been conspicuously absent this autumn. Crisp, clear nights with millions of stars twinkling about, have been replaced with steamy humidity and the sound of tornado sirens.

Mel Koelling, a physiologist, said southeastern lower Michigan doesn't see full color until about Oct. 15 to Oct. 20. Warm temperatures both day and night and lots of rain, however, may mean that normal full color foliage displays may be delayed or disrupted entirely.

Color changes are triggered by shorter autumn days which cause a decrease in the production of chlorophyll.

"Warm weather has kept things growing and the trees are not losing their chlorophyll," Koelling said. "Warm, wet weather is not conducive to full, fall color. It disrupts the normal ripening process."

"If we get cold freezing temperatures fast, a lot of foliage may freeze and go from green to dirty brown."

Leaves have a natural pigment in them throughout the growing season, but these red, orange and yellow pigments cannot be seen, because the green chlorophyll is predominant.

Koelling likened the process of leaves changing color to keeping a house plant in an area where it does not get enough light.

"If the house plant does not get enough light, the leaves turn yellow."

Trees whose leaves turn yellow in the fall undergo a different process than those which turn orange or red.

Sugars in a tree are produced by bright sunshine in the fall. These sugars become trapped in the leaves of a tree, due to a special process which occurs only in the fall. Sugars turn into a chemical compound called, anthocyanin, which gives the leaves — apples too — their bright red color. This color is seen only after the chlorophyll production has terminated.

Koelling said a colorful autumn could still be in the future if normal autumn weather returns with sunny days and cool, but not freezing nights. The color peak would be pushed back by a few days.

If the rainy, warm weather persists, or if freezing weather replaces the unseasonable warm weather, then fall color in southeastern Michigan will be drab.

"The impact of weather will have more impact on the red and bright colored leaves," he said. "Even in the off-colors years we always get the yellows."

Scoliosis workshop trains volunteers

In preparation for the screening of local middle school students, the Health Education Council of Grosse Pointe presented a scolio-sis screening workshop at Parcels School Oct. 1.

The workshop is designed to instruct and train Health Council delegates and volunteers to screen middle school students during the coming school year. Scoliosis (a structural spinal curvature) is a growth disorder that presents itself most often during the middle school years. The Health Council's program is in its fifth year and is being co-sponsored by the Easter Seals Society and the Grosse Pointe Public School System.

The Easter Seal Society is conducting research of children who have been referred to physicians after a school screening program. If you are in this category and would like to help in this study, call Bettye Kemp-Wright at Henry Ford Hospital, 876-2202.

A request, not an order

A minor flap arose last week in the Farms when property owners on Lakeshore and Provincial Roads were asked to adopt a uniform location for their house numbers.

In a letter to all property owners on those streets, Fire Chief Samuel Candela said that because of the various locations of street numbers on private property, the Farms Fire Department would have "extreme difficulty" in locating homes in case of fire or ambulance calls during the winter months.

What Candela was "requesting" was a "uniform address system" with the "address shown on a four-foot or five-foot post located on the sidewalk next to the driveway."

When property owners called Candela, however, they discovered that his letter was "merely a request, not an order," and that he had not talked with any residents, or the members of the Farms City Council, or officials of any other Pointes about the idea. He was, he said, responding to the complaints of firemen about the difficulty of locating homes lacking easily visible numbers, especially in the winter time.

Asked why he had singled out the properties on just two streets for the letter, he said that it was usually more difficult to locate the house numbers on those two streets than on streets in the rest of the Farms.

Candela's letter also called attention to the Farms ordinance: "Numbers shall be placed on the front of every house and building, or in the front of the house or building premises, so as to be visible from the adjacent street or way. The numbers shall be of such size and color, and in such contrast with their backgrounds, as to be easily readable from the adjacent street or way."

Candela said most of the people who called had reacted favorably. He emphasized that many house numbers already are easily visible and that he was "just requesting," not ordering compliance even by owners whose numbers are difficult to read.

The flap, it seems, is over.

Bashing the suburbs again

Once again Mayor Coleman Young of Detroit is up to one of his old tricks, something Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson calls "suburb bashing." Whatever it is called, it apparently helps solidify Young's standing among his constituents even though it raises the blood pressure of many suburban residents.

What set off the new controversy were Young's comments on Canadian television last week that he is "opposed to a unilateral disarmament of Detroiters," meaning asking them to give up their firearms, "while we're surrounded by hostile suburbs, the whole rest of the state who have guns, and when you have vigilantes practicing Ku Klux Klan in the wilderness with automatic weapons."

At a later press conference, Young refused to back down and cited evidence he claimed supported his contention. Here is what he said in part, as reported by the Detroit daily newspapers:

"I don't know how you interpret a situation where Dearborn is talking about an ordinance to keep Detroiters — black people — out of the parks on the west side of the city and on the east side of the city Grosse Pointe Park will be discussing a wall between Detroit and Grosse Pointe. If these are not both acts of hostility, I don't know what hostility means."

"We are surrounded by hostile suburbs," the mayor went on. "The fact that Brooks Patterson said what he did, and he is the prosecuting attorney of Oakland County, would certainly connote a certain amount of hostility, wouldn't you say?"

Young was referring to Patterson's angry rebuttal to the mayor's earlier remarks. The prosecutor had said he was "insulted and outraged," and added, "I'm sick and tired of the suburb bashing, when it's the people from Detroit who are the marauders. I think it's irresponsible. I think he's a phony and a hypocrite."

If Young were saying, in expressing his opposition to "unilateral disarmament," that he favored a statewide gun control law rather than a city ordinance to control weapons, he has the support of some suburban officials as well as some residents of the Pointes. For such a law to be effective, it would have to be statewide, Dearborn Heights Mayor Lyle VanHouton told the press. Some of us would even prefer a federal gun control law, which Young also indicated he would support.

But if that's all that Young meant to say, his lip carried him a good deal further. And that's unfortunate for both Detroit and the suburbs. Many Grosse Pointers work in the city. Many also own property and businesses there and have as much a stake in its future as the mayor does. All those who work in Detroit also pay Detroit city income taxes and new taxes as well to support the expansion of Cobo Hall. Many more contribute to and otherwise support such Detroit institutions as the Institute of Arts, the Detroit Symphony and the Detroit Public Library. Those people obviously are not "hostile" to Detroit.

In his quieter moments, Young recognizes the many contributions made to Detroit by the people who live in the suburbs. True, there is still evidence of racism in the suburbs, as the mayor claims. But when he goes in for one of his bouts of "suburb bashing," he's adopting a form of reverse racism that arouses new antagonisms between the city and the suburbs that both sides can do without.

Woods pool is well-managed

To the Editor:
In the letter to the Editor on 9/25/86 entitled "Get to heart of Problem," three issues were addressed: 1) The Grosse Pointe Woods Pool is "mismanaged"; 2) The lifeguards have "absolutely no control" of the pool area, no means of communication and consequently are not heard or listened to; 3) Advocating (in effect) the use of flotation devices in the pool.
We are pool supervisors and have been employed by the Grosse Pointe Woods Parks and Recreation Department for several years. We feel that the pool (and park) is managed properly and with safety as the main concern.

Donald J. Hallmann, Director of Parks and Recreation (and pool manager) is meticulous regarding safety at the pool. We believe that Mr. Hallmann's concern for safety and methods of pool management are above reproach.

There are approximately 100 No Diving signs on the pool deck. Lifeguard chairs are elevated to afford a better view of the pool. Every chair is equipped with an emergency transmission device, providing excellent communication with the office and first aid room. The guard chairs are situated so that no swimmer is more than 50 feet from a lifeguard. We feel that voice commands are the most effective means of communicating with swimmers at this distance. Battery powered megaphones are within easy reach of the pool supervisor at all times. A head guard, not positioned on a chair, is stationed on the pool deck to assist the lifeguards.
Our lifeguards are well qualified and well trained. They must be certified in both Advanced Lifesaving and Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation techniques. In addition, our guards must pass a series of aquatic rescue and first aid tests recommended by the American Red Cross. People don't always recognize lifeguards as authority figures. We don't believe this to be the lifeguards' fault.

It is our opinion that flotation devices are, for the most part, dangerous. They encourage guardians to be less vigilant, and weak or non-swimmers to become overconfident, tempting them to stray into water over their heads. The devices can deflate or capsize, putting children into peril. In addition, many devices such as rafts and inflatable boats can obscure a lifeguard's view. The American Red Cross does not advocate their use during open swimming.

Sports taught cooperation

To the Editor:
It appears to be a proven fact that life is not always what we want it to be. This is something we as adults have learned and our children are experiencing every day.
This community has given us various means of aiding our children in making adjustments to life's little problems. One such organization is the Red Barons. Throughout the past nine years the Red Barons have taught my boys to prepare for the future. They have learned that to be a team member they must cooperate with each other, be on time, be prepared to play, and respect the authority of the coaches.

to train and be instructed in the proper techniques of football. The coaches are on the field for practice four to five days a week and their Sunday afternoons are devoted to our boys. Numerous hours are also spent on fundraisers, equipment checks and organizational meetings. Some parents don't spend this much time with their boys in one week. I am sure that these men could be doing something for themselves, instead they are giving their time to our boys. These are men who enjoyed a sport as boys. They know it takes discipline, a desire to win and the cooperation on the part of everyone to make a winning team.
As parents we should make sure our boys are on time for practice, have their equipment, and listen to what the coach has to say. If our child does not play as much as we feel he should, maybe we should think about the whys. Perhaps we as parents want the child to play and they themselves do not enjoy the game. Perhaps the coach sees that the boy is afraid to be hit and might be hurt if he is played against a first string team. Maybe the boy has been late for practice and has not had his equipment. Before we criticize the coaches we should, as adults, look for the reasons and then find mature solutions.

The men who run this organization have not only given our children the opportunity to play an organized sport, they have done it with considerable effort to make it safe. Children are grouped and played according to their capabilities. They are given ample time

I would publicly like to thank all of the coaches and administrators of the Grosse Pointe Red Barons Football Organization for doing such a fine job.

You're a great lady, Lil

To the Editor:
Who would think one could get emotional over the demise of the local bar? What memories... I remember my first legal martini in March of '61 with Bob Crowther of the City. I remember Hank Phillips, Dave Burgess and Bridgit Booth and me asking Peggy Haynes if we could bring in our guitars and sing some songs... we subsequently became the first entertainment at Lil's for $15 a night.

I remember our own personal mugs with our names on them.
I remember telling my mother I was off to 12 o'clock mass and heading to Lil's for the football game on TV.
Most of all I remember meeting my wife of 21 years at Diamond Lil's in September of 1964.
You're a great lady, Lil.
Thanks for the memories.

Judicial selection a 'jungle'

Whether former U.S. Sen. Robert P. Griffin is elected to the Michigan Supreme Court in November or not, he ought to be given credit for his efforts to achieve fundamental reform in the state's process for selecting high court justices.

Griffin says the system has broken down and cites the fact that voters on Nov. 4 will be faced with the prospect of picking two candidates out of a list of 24 on a bedsheet ballot. None of the candidates is identified by party or in any other way except for incumbent Dennis W. Archer, who is designated as "Justice of the Supreme Court."

Michigan's ridiculous process calls for the nomination of candidates by political parties with the nominees then running on a nonpartisan ticket. That practice was bad enough because it tended to spur the political parties to nominate people who often were better known in politics than in law. But this year the situation became even worse.

A series of federal court opinions had struck down as unconstitutional Michigan restrictions that kept independents off the ballot unless they set up and were nominated by independent political parties. Despite these decisions, the Legislature failed to pass legislation to set up reasonable standards to permit independent candidates to qualify. So Secretary of State Richard H. Austin decided this year to permit any member of the State Bar under 70 to run if the filing were accompanied by an affidavit of one voter saying he wishes to vote for the candidate. The new process produced five candidates nominated by parties and 19 more by affidavits.

Thus, instead of just making it easier for independents to get on the ballot, the court decisions and the legislative inaction have given Michigan an oversupply of candidates. Griffin says that as a result the voters will face "a jungle of confusion," on Nov. 4 and he proposes an immediate remedy as well as a long-term solution.

The former senator wants the Legislature to pass a bill establishing reasonable minimum standards for access to the ballot by independent candidates. Such a bill has been passed by the House but has been bogged down in the Senate, and even if now enacted would not affect the election this year.

As a long-term solution, Griffin proposes adoption of the "Missouri plan" for appointment of Supreme Court justices and their subsequent election. Under such a system, the governor would appoint from a list of nominees selected by a judicial commission representing the State Bar, the judiciary and the general public. Such appointments would be subject to confirmation by the state Senate and those named would be subject to non-competitive approval or rejection at the polls after reasonable intervals of service on the bench.

Griffin isn't the first Michigan candidate for the high court to urge reform of the nominating process. Others have made somewhat similar proposals. But by his tough attack on the present system and his sensible proposals for solution, Griffin had pointed up the problem. Whether he wins his own campaign or not, he deserves credit for a contribution to possible improvement in the elective process.

It is difficult enough for voters to get sound information on Supreme Court candidates under normal circumstances. This year with 24 candidates in the running — and few of them really qualified — it really will be a "jungle of confusion" as Griffin said. But perhaps the situation will be so bad that the Legislature finally will do something to solve the problem. Griffin has offered a sensible future course of action.

THE BORN LOSER

Shine is a winner

To the Editor:

Hurray for Mr. G. Sommerville in calling our attention to the outstanding qualities of leadership, professionalism and dedication that Mr. Shine, South High's Principal, brings to our school system and our community.

Like Mr. Sommerville, I too want to urge South parents to personally meet Mr. Shine. In doing so, I know they will recognize his many abilities. Parents will have opportunities throughout the school year to meet Mr. Shine in a small neighborhood group setting if they will attend the Mother's Club Parent/Principal Coffees that are being developed this year.

I urge parents to attend these "neighborhood coffees."

Rained out!

To the Editor:

I send this editorial cartoon in apprehension of what might happen if the current weather situation continues. As I write this letter, I look out of my bedroom window and see the fine drizzle and hear the distant rumble of thunder and I think, "Here we go again." It is about 5:00 in the afternoon and I'm rather tired, because last night I was dragged out of bed at 2:00 by my mother to take shelter in the basement during a tornado warning. I hope the madness stops soon!

My name is Billy Rands, I am a seventh grade student at Grosse Pointe Academy and I'm 12 years old. I wish that you would publish my editorial cartoon in the paper. I hope you think it is worthy of that honor.

Stamp fact

Legend contends the donut was invented by a Pony Express rider's sweetheart. She put the hole in the middle so he could catch the treats on his gun barrel. Fact or fancy, stamps abound with history.

I say

My most embarrassing moment as a journalist came when I reported that the sheriff's department, in the county where I was a reporter, was under investigation for larcenies from the county building complex.

It was my fault, all right. I had to take full responsibility for the error.

What had happened was the sheriff came into the county board of commissioners meeting and requested a closed session. The board immediately called for the session. I hung around as long as I could and asked as many questions as possible. For the life of me, I heard the sheriff say his department was investigated for larcenies from the county buildings.

Well... it weren't so. The sheriff's department was investigating larcenies from the county all right — but there was another county department being investigated.

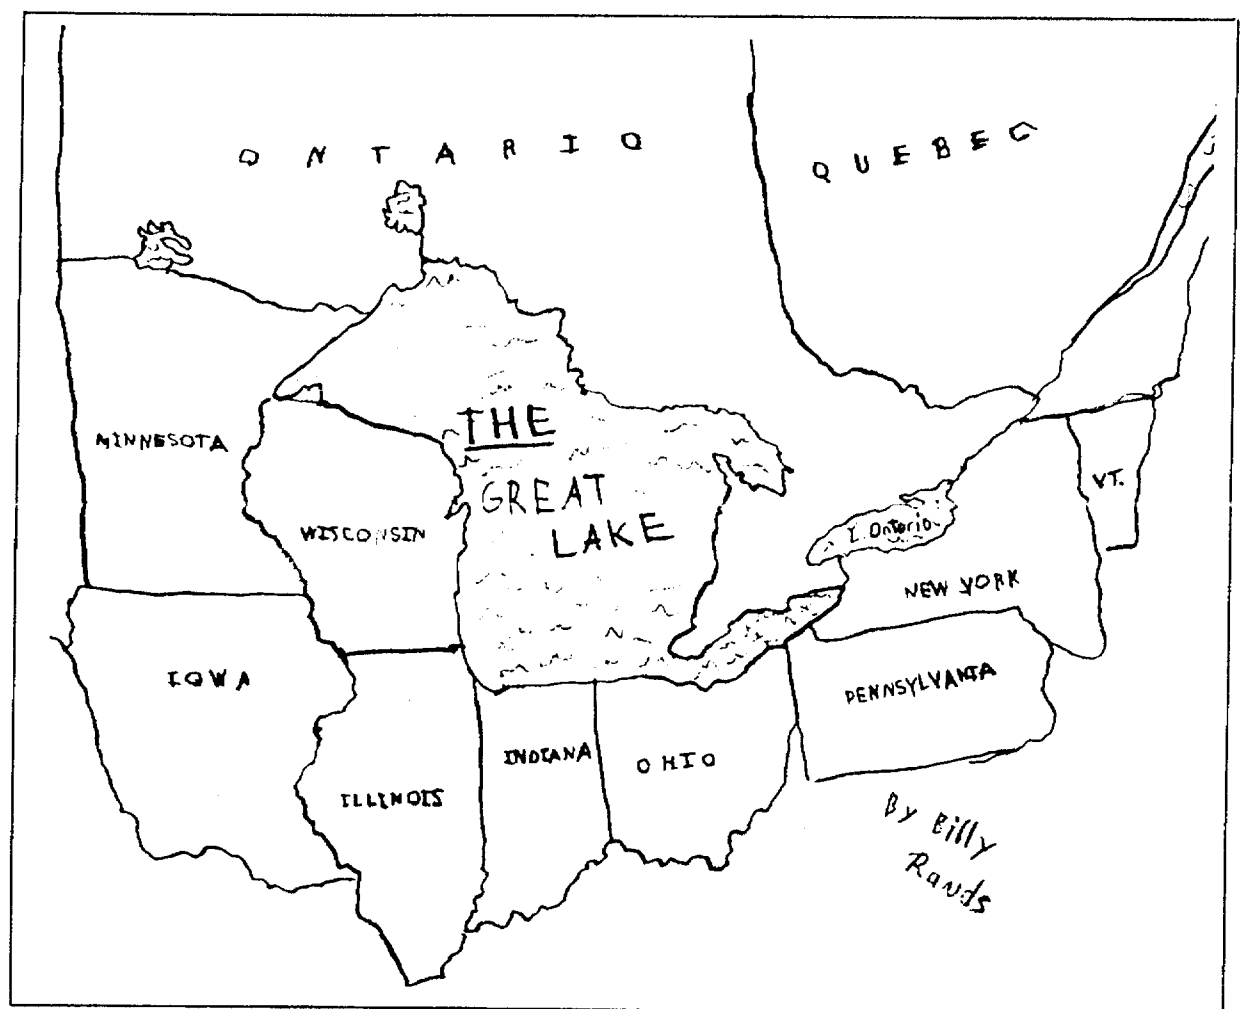

Our paper had contended the closed session was illegal under the terms of the Michigan Open Meetings Act — but it still didn't excuse my error.

The parade of sheriff's department deputies through my office became more than a little frightening. I had visions of being pulled over on those rural county roads for any of the numerous minor driving infractions everyone is guilty of on a given day. I was sorry for my action.

We printed a correction the following week. I sent a letter to the sheriff's department apologizing for my error, and tried to mend whatever damage was done. I sent flowers to my secretary whose husband was a deputy (smooth, eh?)

As an addendum to this story, I later learned that the sheriff's department was investigating a particular individual who had a key to the county gasoline pumps.

The sheriff had discussed the matter with the building supervisor to see if there was a way to check readings. The supervisor said the pump gauges were inoperable and they had been relying on the gasoline company to keep records of the amount of gas delivered and used. The sheriff wanted the closed session to discuss the matter with the board. To catch the guy red-handed, the sheriff's department had set up a stakeout in the house across the street from the pump. Sure enough, the culprit arrived at the pump at about 6 a.m. on a Sunday morning. The deputies must have had their juices flowing, but alas, it was all for naught.

Ideally, we are a mirror

Peter A. Salinas

The building supervisor didn't like the idea that someone was taking his gasoline, and he had the locks changed — without telling the sheriff's department.

Oh well... It is National Newspaper Week, so I thought rather than talk how we won this award or that award, or some big story I broke first, I will talk about how we are human.

There are so many people responsible for bringing to you what you are reading right now that it is hard to comprehend.

There is, of course, you. The newsmakers. The people who send us press releases, are elected or appointed officials, corporate managers, judges, hobbyists, are advertisers or are getting married.

Then there's me — just a small (so to speak) cog in this great circle of people. There are advertising people, typesetters, keyliners, stat camera operators, strippers, press operators, stuffers, delivery people and in the case of the Grosse Pointe News, postal workers.

It is truly amazing that when we get the finished product delivered to our office, it's all there — paper and ink that informs. Some of the folks involved in the process wonder how it is we do it from week to week. It is a monumental accomplishment every time.

I feel we are the custodians for you the reader, advertiser and newsmaker. We clean up, straighten and make clear what it is you want in the newspaper. Whether it is a wedding or obituary, sale on chicken or a three-car pile-up on Jefferson — we gather the information, assimilate it and send it back for the community to ingest and digest.

Ideally, we are a mirror that is held up before the community each week. This mirror then reflects what it sees, we hope, with no distortion.

Often, there are things that are held away, out of view of this mirror. It is our job to bring it to light. It is not easy.

While newpeople are supposed to be objective — it is not possible. It is a goal we are constantly striving toward — but can never achieve. Every time we place a story on a page, decide which quote to use, choose who to interview and who to photograph — we are making a subjective decision. It is not to say that we are biased — we simply make subjective decisions regarding news.

I have been working for newspapers since 1979. During that time I have learned one important thing. It is not my job to make everyone happy. Someone will disagree with the content of a story or with whom you have interviewed. It is my job to inform accurately.

As my story at the outset showed, I am human. Being human means mistakes are made. Luckily, I am surrounded with talented people who watch out for my mistakes — and their's. Together we bring you news and advertising and I hope, enjoyment.

As you read this week's paper, keep in mind the people who brought it to you are just like you. There is no giant ogre who decides this is what you'll get and no more. It is a group of people who work in concert — if not harmony — to bring you a product.

October is learning disabilities month

What does Bruce Jenner, Cher, Jackie Stewart and Albert Einstein have in common? Learning disabilities, a permanent disorder which interferes with the ability of normally intelligent people to learn and to perform in the world around them. It is estimated eight million Americans have learning disabilities.

People with learning disabilities have problems with one or more of the basic academic subjects such as reading, writing, mathematics and spelling. They often have poor organization and time management skills. Sometimes they are unable to follow oral or written instructions and cannot remember what is taught from day-to-day, hour-to-hour.

With early diagnosis, an appropriate educational program, support from parents or the primary caretaker, and a structured daily living environment, the learning disabled can be successful.

Governor Blanchard has declared October as Learning Disabilities Month in Michigan. He urges all Michigan citizens to assist children and adults with learning disabilities and to recognize the efforts of Michigan ACLD, Inc., an association for children and adults with learning disabilities.

Michigan ACLD has 24 statewide chapters which give support and information to parents, professionals and the learning disabled. For information about local chapters and the fall conference Oct. 23-24, write to Michigan ACLD, 20777 Randall, Farmington, Mich. 48024 or call 471-0790.

Celebration of U.S. Constitution begins

By Pat Paholsky

With lights flashing, bells clanging, cymbals sounding and all the fanfare only Disney could muster, the entertainment complex kicked off its 15th birthday celebration in Orlando this past weekend and the 200th anniversary of the U.S. Constitution. What a show.

The organization added laser-phonics, a type of concert with light rays bouncing around to music, a million-dollar extravaganza with planes swooping down and boats that looked like dragons speeding hither and yon and fireworks everywhere.

There was plenty more, everything a little bit more stupendous than the last. And it was all taped for a special Disney production that will be aired Sunday, Nov. 2, from 7 to 9 p.m. on ABC-TV.

To an American public already introduced to the concept of corporate sponsorship in the Statue of Liberty celebration, this event — the linking of the birthdays of Disney World and the U.S. Constitution — may or may not be considered blasphemous.

The president of Walt Disney World, Frank Wells, in a speech before thousands of media representatives, said that two warships were brought in on wagons and 17,000 people formed a parade when the Constitution was ratified in Philadelphia in 1787. He said that in an era when few could read, the festival served to tell the story.

"In an era when many can read, the festival still serves," he added.

"We need a revival, so we can reclaim our legacy as a people," Wells said. "We need a national Chautauqua. One-fourth of our high school seniors feel it's illegal to start a new political party."

Chief Justice Warren Burger, who resigned from the U.S. Supreme Court to chair the Bicentennial Commission of the U.S. Constitution, said that the Declaration of Independence, which marked its 200th anniversary 10 years ago was a promise.

"The Constitution is what we do with our independence," he said.

For the 10,000 media people in Orlando, however, the biggest news of the opening ceremony Friday morning was the appearance of journalist Nicholas Daniloff, who was just released by the Soviets who had accused him of spying. It was the biggest news and also the most emotional.

Daniloff appeared on stage at the Orange County Convention Center and his image was magnified on a screen so his slightest expression was noted. He told the audience that Chief Justice Burger had just given him a copy of the Constitution on which he had written: "You have seen and felt the difference."

Daniloff said he thought about the Constitution while he was in prison. "I tried to wrack my brains to remember what the debates were about and how the Constitution came to be written and how the Bill of Rights was later appended to the Constitution."

His thoughts were prompted by his arrest, he said, which was totally silent. There was no warrant, no explanation, no right to legal counsel. "The investigation is really the beginning of the trial," he said.

He concluded his short speech by saying, "My intellect is here to praise the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, but today I have got to tell you that my heart goes out to my brother, my brother journalist, Terry Anderson of the Associated Press, who is held as a hostage in Lebanon. I want to say to him, to other hostages, to his sister, Peggy Say, and I want to say to you: We shall not forget you."

It was fitting that Daniloff chose to make his first speech since his release to the large gathering of media representatives. They gave him two long standing ovations and when he finished, many of his peers were choked with emotion.

The three days were filled with contrasts of alternating commercialism, patriotism and journalism, both honest and tainted.

The news in the Orlando area last weekend was the newsmakers. Their activities were well covered by all of the media across the nation. With some 200 buses contracted for the event solely to shuttle the journalists around, they were highly visible to residents.

The Disney corporation sent 14,000 invitations to print, radio and TV journalists in the United States, Canada and western Europe. About 5,200 accepted and brought a guest. About half of them elected to pay for some or all of the trip and the other half accepted the free trip.

The acceptance of the freebie by so many journalists was a source of dismay for some of their peers. The debate in this case, which one journalist described as "the junket to end all junkets," will continue.

Contributing to the cost, besides the Disney organization, were the Orange and Osceola convention bureaus, the state of Florida and about 25 hotels that provided free rooms and breakfasts. The total tab is estimated to be around $8 million dollars, according to a newspaper report.

Skyleidoscope, a water and air extravaganza at Epcot Center in Orlando, combines dragon boats, rainbow-making flying machines and daylight fireworks in the lagoon around which the buildings of 10 countries are represented. The United States building is in the background.

Hunt Club horsefeed safe

The feed additive that apparently killed 11 horses in Macomb County last week is not a problem at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club, stablesman Tommy Smith says. The Hunt Club buys its supplies from a different dealer, Rochester Elevator.

"That feed wasn't exactly poisoned," Smith said. "It was an overdose of an additive. But our feed doesn't have any additives." Smith said he didn't have to check. "I've always known it."

The additive is a medication for cows that is lethal to horses, according to newspaper reports. It was apparently mixed accidentally.

The deaths have caused quite a stir in the horse world, Smith said. It is believed that the problem has been halted with the identification of the source, a feed dealer in Romeo.

Rochester Elevator has been swamped with calls from people switching their business or asking about the additive, manager Lawrence Smith said.

"People are concerned about their animals," he said. "We mix no additives or drugs, so I know we're safe."

Business Women plan dinner

The American Business Women's Association, Silver Oaks Charter Chapter, will sponsor a fundraiser pasta dinner for the scholarship fund, which helps young women in financial need to further their education.

It will be held at Ridgepointe Hall, 9189 Cadieux, on Sunday, Oct.

St. John honors volunteers

At the 16th Annual Recognition Night, St. John Hospital's volunteers were commended for the 108,356 hours they collectively gave in helping the staffs and patients of the hospital. In 1971, when the first awards banquet was held, the volunteers donated 33,565 hours.

During this year's banquet, 93 adult and 23 junior volunteers were recognized with caps, stars, pins and prizes.

The dinner will be held at 12, from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. This will be a buffet with pasta, meatballs, rolls, cold salads, fresh fruit, and assorted Italian pastries for dessert.

For information, call Barbara Ann Chopp at 886-5553. Donation is $7 per adult, and $4 for children 3 to 12 years old.

Ann Gutowski of Harper Woods and Mary McDonald of Detroit received special recognition for their three decades of service.

Terrence Banks and Sherry Nolan, both of Detroit, each received awards for the most hours given by a junior volunteer during the year.

Sister Verence McQuade, SSJ, vice president for Patient and Community Service, expressed the hospital's appreciation. "Years ago I said it would be difficult to envision St. John Hospital without its volunteers. Today, that statement is even more true. They have woven their time, caring and love for their fellow man so deeply into our foundation that it would be difficult to function without them."

Blow torch ignites garage

A resident attempting some home improvement set his garage on fire Sunday afternoon, Grosse Pointe police report. The homeowner was trying to remove old paint with a blow torch.

The fire burned into the wall and ceiling of the Lakeland Court garage and family room and required firefighters from the Farms and the City to extinguish it.

"You should never use a torch," said Lt. Jerry Mehl. "You just can't take enough precautions. An open flame is almost an automatic fire."

Mehl said the flame gets into cracks in the wall and smolders in dust accumulated there — making the use of a torch on an older house even more dangerous. Electric heat guns can be dangerous as well, he said, but are preferred to a blow torch.

Brownell School will replace dangerous boilers

The Grosse Pointe school board made a quick decision Monday night to replace two faulty boilers at Brownell Middle School. The 30-year-old boilers are subject to flaring and could be dangerous to employees working with them.

The faulty boilers were studied during an energy audit by Tomblinson Harburn Associates during the summer. The audit report estimated a cost of $44,000 to replace the boilers.

The district will pay less than half that amount, however. A frequent school supplier, Comb & Groves, will provide and install two boilers for $19,740. Under the district's "sole source" policy, emergency items may be purchased without going through the usual bidding procedure.

"I wouldn't want people to think this is a danger to the students," said David King, assistant director for support services. "This is a potential hazard. It's one of those things that can't be put off, but if we act in an expeditious way, there won't be any problem."

The boilers are expected to be installed by the end of next week.

The purchase is considered to be part of the district's energy conservation program and may be included under the project fundable under an energy conservation loan, King said.

Ducks Unlimited

... raised $30,000 last Wednesday at the annual sportsman's dinner held at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club. The money goes for wetland and habitat preservation. The event, held for the ninth year by the Grosse Pointe Chapter, was attended by 240 people. There were about 120 prizes, according to Kevin Rinke, chairman. Looking over some of the gifts, above, are John H. Graffius of the City, Hermina and Brad C. Merkel of the Farms. At the right are Fred Hingst of Clio, regional director of Ducks Unlimited, and Joe Perry of the Farms.

Drug issue addressed in new cable series

By Nancy Parmenter

It's not too late to catch the first show in the Grosse Pointe cable television series on drug abuse that began airing this week. For viewer convenience, every show will be broadcast seven times.

"Pulling Together — Alternatives to Addiction" grew like Topsoy. "We started with the idea of doing three, but it kept growing," said David Lankford, father of the idea. Lankford is a psychotherapist and co-producer, host and moderator of the show. From three, the series has already progressed to five and the producers have enough ideas for another two dozen.

In the first segment, Grosse Pointe Judge Beverly Grobbel tells Lankford that drug use is so widespread and socially acceptable that she has been invited to "do" cocaine with friends. "When it becomes socially acceptable to be drug-free, we'll have greater success," she says.

The series sprang from Lankford's perception that the media do a bad job of covering drug issues. "They come up short," he said. "They spend a lot of time telling you how bad everything is. These programs start at the point where most shows say 'for help, call...'"

The shows will deal with everything from definitions to resources and discuss issues like drug testing, peer pressure and how advertising affects attitude. A highlight is expected to be a show featuring professional athletes from Detroit teams. The linchpin is a section for answering anonymous questions sent in by phone or mail.

"In a conservative area like Grosse Pointe, any kind of substance abuse is a closet issue," Lankford said. "An anonymous post office box lets everybody participate. It takes away the excuse for not doing anything, but it protects privacy. We're expecting to get a lot of cards saying things like 'my best friend has this problem.'"

Street surface irks residents

By Margie Reins Smith

The Grosse Pointe Woods council meeting Monday night drew about 60 angry Stanhope Road residents who complained about the chip and seal application used to resurface Stanhope between Mack and Harper.

The chip and seal surface is inferior to asphalt, according to residents, and causes passing cars to throw loose rocks and dust onto their lawns. The new surface causes cars to slide and skid at intersections, it's noisy, it's dirty, and it looks terrible, they said.

A petition with 141 signatures was presented to city attorney George Catlin, requesting a new surface for Stanhope.

One resident complained that the street looked like a country road, not like a street in Grosse Pointe Woods. Another demanded to know why Stanhope hadn't received the same surface as nearby Allard Road, since residents of both streets pay the same taxes.

In addition, some complained that the new drains installed on Stanhope are not as good as the old ones. Director of Public Works Sam Calimera said the new drains were designed to prevent water from entering residents' basements, and that his department periodically sends a man to clean leaves and debris from the openings.

James Patton, a Stanhope resident, said, "It's like driving through a swamp (on Stanhope) after it rains. There's no water standing on Allard."

Councilman Robert E. Novitke, presiding in Mayor George S. Freeman's absence, listened to citizens' complaints and called for reports at the Oct. 20 council meeting from Director of Public Safety Jack Patterson and City Engineer John F. DeBusscher.

"We, the council, are concerned," he said. "We will address this issue at the next council meeting, with these reports."

According to a memo from City Administrator-Clerk Chester E. Petersen, who was also absent from the meeting, the chip and seal application costs 60 percent less than 2½-inch asphalt resurfacing and lasts almost as long.

Women's health conference scheduled

Medical physicist John J. Kim, Ph.D., of Grosse Pointe will discuss "Knowing Your Environment" at the third annual Women's Health Day Conference, co-sponsored by Oakwood Health Services Corp., Dearborn, and Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan.

It will be held Thursday, Oct. 16, at the Dearborn Hyatt Regency, Fairlane Town Center, from 2 to 8 p.m.

Kim will discuss how to avoid toxins such as pesticides, household chemicals and heavy metal contaminants, as well as how to recognize everyday exposure to radiation risks.

He will be joined by other health authorities, including psychologist Georgia Witkin-Lanoil, Ph.D., author of "The Female Stress Syndrome." They will speak throughout the day on medical and psychological issues affecting women of all ages and lifestyles.

The registration fee of $28 includes two workshops, health information materials and lists of resources, refreshments and dinner. For more information and to register, call 593-7205.

Special ed workshop scheduled

Parents of handicapped children (learning disabilities, physical handicaps) are invited to attend a free workshop on Activating Parents In The Special Education Process on Thursday, Oct. 16, from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Schwartzkoff Elementary School Learning Research Room, 8401 Constitution, Sterling Heights.

The workshop will help parents participate effectively in the planning, development and decision-making for their handicapped child's education.

To register, call Diana Hallfield at 263-9713 by Friday, Oct. 10. This workshop is co-sponsored by the Utica Community Schools, Department of Special Education, and "Hear For You" Parent Group and CAUSE (Citizens Alliance to Uphold Special Education).

It's National Newspaper Week

He's been a printer for 51 years

By Peter A. Salinas

The hands may not be as steady, but the eyes are still strong.

Tom Brockett, composing room supervisor at TAS Graphic Communications Inc., has been in the business of newspapering since 1935.

At 66, he's been a journeyman printer most of his life.

TAS Graphic, located in Detroit near Seven Mile Road and Hoover, is where the Grosse Pointe News is composed and printed. Dozens of people are responsible for its production, and Brockett oversees a number of them as well as working production as a keyliner.

Among the 15 people who work in the Composition Department at TAS Graphics are Bill Lutsch, Lenny Nowak, Tony Schipani and Robert Porta.

All of these men worked at Detroit Post Printing and are journeymen printers. The combined centuries of experience in the world of newspaper printing makes the job of getting the Grosse Pointe News out that much easier.

Brockett said that the staff of typesetters which includes Sue Clark, Annette Roushoulp, Marion Koerber, Sally Roberts and Sharon Smith, are quick and efficient.

Others with the composition staff and art department are Kathy Walters, Cindy Porta, Linda Grammatico and Dan Buczko.

The person who acts as a go-between the Detroit printing plant and the Grosse Pointe News office is Mark Stroia.

"It's 13 times a week between the two offices," Stroia said. "It can get to be boring, and you have to go no matter what the weather. I like the people in both places, but I really don't want to get any more parking tickets behind the News office."

Brockett now a gray-haired veteran, started his career as a printer at the Wyandotte Daily News. He was an apprentice printer for seven years before being issued his journeyman's card.

"All that meant was that I was a qualified craftsman," Brockett said.

And it meant having a strong back.

In those days, hot metal was used to print the pages of a newspaper. Linotype operators set the letters into the hot metal. Wood type was used for headlines.

"The photographs were sent to an engraver who burned the photo onto a zinc plate overnight,"

Brockett said. "Once all the metal was placed into a form and locked up, the page was pretty heavy."

Brockett said there were more people involved in getting a newspaper out in those days than there are now, but the jobs have become somewhat more specialized.

After serving in the U.S. Army, he took a job as a printer with Detroit Post Printing. That company was contracted by the Grosse Pointe News to handle its production and printing.

"We worked with (the late) Bob Edgar," Brockett said. "He okayed the pages every Tuesday. Those pages were reversed of course, and had to be read backwards. He'd be working over the pages, with a long cigarette holder in his mouth. He looked like Franklin D. Roosevelt. He was a great guy."

Brockett said the biggest change he has seen over the years is the move from hot type to cold type. "I would say is a lot easier and better than hot type," Brockett said. "The old method was harder."

He noted that a lot of skills that were once absolutely essential to putting out a paper are no longer necessary. With the advent of computer-generated news and advertising copy, less technically skilled people could to the work of the linotype operators.

"Each week people walk around here amazed," Brockett said with a smile. "We just can't figure out how we do it."

With all the work, the aggravations and deadlines to meet, Brockett said he wouldn't have changed anything about the career he chose.

"It is very enjoyable work," he said. "You have to like what you're doing, right? It is very rewarding, and it's a different challenge every week."

Webbs of newsprint soon to become the Grosse Pointe News Second Section fly through a press.

Once printed and folded, the section comes off the press.

Group effort gets the paper out

The words being read at this moment have gone through a multitude of steps to get where they are.

Offset printing requires more than a dozen people to handle copy before it appears as printed words in a newspaper.

News or advertising copy is gathered by a reporter or advertising salesperson. In the case of news copy, that information is written by the reporter and an editor goes over it.

That edited copy is then sent to a typesetter. New computerized typesetting equipment has made the process of setting the copy into stories much more simplified than with older equipment.

If a reporter is working with a computerized word processor, the step of having a typesetter set copy is eliminated.

The typesetting computer shines light through a filmstrip on to light sensitive paper. The filmstrip has all the characters which are on the computer keyboard, and the computer can perform other functions. Once the story has been typeset on to the paper, it is then developed. Each story appears on one long strip.

The editor has made up dummy pages for each page of the paper. These dummies show where the advertisements and news copy are to be placed on the page.

Keyliners follow the instructions from these dummies, and physically cut the strips of copy and paste them on a page.

Keyliners have a difficult task. Often stories may not fit into the amount of space allotted, and corrections must be made. Each page is a large puzzle, and all the pieces must fit together correctly.

Once an entire page has been put together, it is sent to the camera room. Here the pages are photographed, but only a life size negative is made.

This negative may undergo several other steps if colored ink is used. Strippers would have to use special materials to block areas to receive color.

Once the negative is ready it is sent to the plate department. Here large light-sensitive sheet metal plates are readied. Light is then shone through the negative on to the plate. The plate is treated with chemicals after the exposure and a negative image appears on the metal.

Once every page has gone through these steps, the plates are taken to the press room.

Each plate is then crimped to fit on a curved cylinder on a large press. There are two sets of rollers which the newsprint passes over - one has ink the other water. The plate accepts ink into the areas exposed to light, but water passes over the areas that are not, keeping those areas free of ink.

The paper is then collated and folded by the huge machine. The press which prints the Grosse Pointe News can print about 14,000 sections an hour.

The sections are then taken to a group of people who physically stuff them into one another. These finished papers are then placed on a pallet and trucked to the post office or newsstand.

This is, of course, a thumbnail sketch of the entire process. Some of these steps require a number of different steps within themselves. Some require hours, while others require just a few minutes. Each step depends entirely on the step before it. Any problems, such as a late-breaking story or a mechanical failure, will throw a monkey-wrench into the entire system.

What is being read is the result of the work of many people, not just the person whose by-line appears at the top of a story.

Typesetters, like Marion Koerber, convert typewritten pages into newspaper columns.

When all the steps have been completed, each section of the newspaper is combined by hand into the one paper.

Homecoming queen

Even a downpour Saturday couldn't dampen the spirits of Myreya Amezcua, who was named homecoming queen at South High School during half-time ceremonies. Her stepfather, Dr. Alan D'Augustine, is holding the umbrella.

Much ado about nothing — thankfully

Farms police officers had a scare last week.

The department was called Monday, Sept. 29, around 2:30 p.m. with a report that two witnesses had seen a woman toss a baby into the lake.

Witnesses said they observed a woman park her car in the St. Paul Catholic Church lot and carry a white car seat containing an infant across Lakeshore Drive to the breakwall.

She was then observed walking back across Lakeshore without the car seat or the child.

Grace Hospital nursing reunion

The Grace Hospital School of Nursing, Class of 1976, will hold a 10-year reunion Saturday, Nov. 15, at Hoffman House/Midway Motor Lodge.

For information, call Karen Smith Lantz at 779-8471 or Sandy Thoma Kolis at 772-6104.

To alleviate any fears, it was later learned that the baby had not been tossed into the water, but what took place following the reported incident is indicative of how police must sometimes respond to a situation.

Police issued a description of the woman and her vehicle over the radio.

A Farms ambulance and civilian diver Leon Sehoyan were called to the scene. Five officers from the Farms and a Shores police unit were also at the scene.

The Detroit Police Department helicopter was called to the scene and a Farms officer took to the air for a bird's-eye view.

The Farms marine unit also arrived at the scene.

For about 90 minutes the divers combed the lake bottom, the area was checked from the air and the water's surface was patrolled by boat.

At about 4 p.m. a passerby stopped at the scene and asked police what was happening. After being advised of the situation, the man told police that, he too, had seen the woman cross the road.

However, he had seen the woman give both the infant and the car seat to a man who was seated near the lakeshore, and would have been out of sight of the church.

The search was called off at that time.

Farms Police Chief Robert Ferber said that had the city had to pay for all the services that were provided in the search, the cost could have run as high as $5,000.

Ferber noted that because many of the services provided to the city are donated, actual costs were much less.

He noted that the department must respond in such a manner, any and every time such information is reported.

School enrollment up

The Grosse Pointe schools picked up a few more students this year, according to the official fourth Friday count taken Sept. 26. This year there were 7,406 students enrolled on the fourth Friday in September. Last year there were 7,346.

The gain of 60 students doesn't presage a boom in population, however.

"Last year we were one of the few systems that grew a little bit," said David King, assistant director of support services. "What it means is that the downward trend that was predicted a couple of years ago has stopped. You could say the population has stabilized."

The Grosse Pointe schools hit their low point, population-wise, in the fall of 1984, when the number of students dropped to 7,309. Prior to that, the schools had lost population for about 10 years, fueling calls in some quarters to close schools.

"The projections were that we'd be down to 6,000," King said. "The projection that the closing of Barnes was based on seems to be pretty accurate," but it is no longer expected that the district will lose another 1,000 students.

The higher numbers aren't unexpected. They reflect a slight increase in the numbers of children in the primary grades — enough of an increase to offset the declining numbers of high school students. King said. Those numbers are expected to continue dropping by 100-150 students each year.

King said the district does not expect the high school population to drop so low as to require the closing of a high school, however. "We're doing our planning based on keeping both schools open," he said.

Let's face it

If your pantry and refrigerator contain mayonnaise, honey, vegetable oil, beer, yogurt, milk, sugar, eggs and plastic wrap, you have many of the ingredients needed in recipes for substitute cosmetics and healthy skin care, says Paul Azar, who will conduct an informative and fun-filled seminar, "Mothers and Daughters: Let's Face It!", on Saturday Oct. 11 at the War Memorial from 10 a.m. to noon.

Designed for teens and women of all ages, the class will offer some basic beauty tips and alternatives to expensive creams and cosmetics, using natural household products. Techniques for natural skin care, make-up and hair treatments will be demonstrated and Azar will dispel many of the myths and misconceptions in the field of beauty care.

Brushing your teeth with mashed-up strawberries can remove teeth stains and chewing that sprig of parsley that's always served on your plate in a restaurant can freshen your mouth, according to Azar's "odds and ends" tips list. These and other mysteries will be unraveled in the seminar, which costs $7 per person or $10 for a mother/daughter combination.

Tickets can be purchased in advance or at the time of the program at the War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore Dr., Grosse Pointe Farms. For additional information call the center at 881-7511.

His Sigma Xi lecture is entitled Evolution.

Luncheon at 12:30 p.m. is $10 and checks should be made payable to the Michigan Sigma Xi Centennial. Walter S. Sullivan, science editor of The New York Times will speak after the luncheon on Science and the Media.

Free lecture tickets are available by writing to: Sigma Xi, Box 662, Ann Arbor, Mich. 48105. Enclose to self-addressed, stamped envelope. Seating by ticket only. Remaining tickets will be available at the door. For further information, call 662-9531.

Four Detroit-area volunteer book experts will be on hand for the appraisal session: bookseller Robert C. Maday, of the Weekend Bookman, Ypsilanti; bookseller Tom Nicely of Leaves of Grass, Ann Arbor, bookseller Barbara Parks of Books, Royal Oak; and bookseller Mary Taylor of Grub Street—A Bookery, Detroit.

Sponsored by the Rare Book Council of the Friends of the Detroit Public Library, these appraisal sessions are free and open to the public and currently unique in the metropolitan Detroit Area. Appointments are not needed; service will be given on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Sen. Kelly argues petition time limits should be eased

By Senator John Kelly

Who should decide whether we should have the death penalty or limit the items that can be included in your utility rates?

The recent decision by the Michigan Supreme Court and the Board of State Canvassers in blocking these two proposals from appearing on the November ballot has created considerable controversy. The high court's decision upheld a lower court ruling and stated that a 1973 state statute gives petitioners only 180 days to gather signatures for ballot proposals. As a supporter of the progressive ideal of "initiative," I believe that the 180-day limit is unreasonable for statewide petition drives and needs to be eased.

In order to flesh out the Constitutional intent, I have introduced legislation that would extend from 180 days to one year the time limit for collecting petition signatures. This proposal is a more realistic approach in view of the extraordinary measures citizens must undertake to advance a statewide issue. The current system only serves to disenfranchise voters by making the time period extremely short for them to obtain the signatures necessary to gain access to the ballot.

The concept of recall, initiative and referendum were added to the 1963 Constitution of Michigan in order to make the law-making process more accessible -- not less. If reluctant public officials would fail to react quickly to pressing needs of the citizenry, regular folks could get together and do it themselves through the "initiative." If the legislature acted too hastily, the people could slow them down through the "referendum." And if legislators failed to act responsibly, they could individually be removed from their positions through "recall."

In the case of the death penalty question, that has been introduced by supportive legislators in both houses of our elected assembly and has been soundly defeated. The utility proposal on the other hand has been an organizational device for the sponsoring organization and has not been requested by that group to be introduced. Both contained signatures collected past the time limits.

From a practical point of view, the law limiting petition drives to 180 days has never been enforced because Attorney General Frank Kelley ruled in 1974 that it was unconstitutional. The attorney general's position is that the law unduly restricts the citizens' right to petition their government and that citizens should be allowed to collect signatures throughout the four years between gubernatorial elections, since these efforts would be coterminous with that of a governor's administration.

As public officials, we have a civic obligation to encourage people to participate and become involved in the political process. Yet the action by a legislature of twenty-plus years ago is in fact producing the opposite effect. The statute in question ends up telling voters that despite their efforts in collecting more than 341,000 signatures for the capital punishment proposal and 371,000 for the utility rate question, we will not allow them a chance to pass judgment on the merits of either. These types of frustrations indicate to the public that government is not to be trusted, that it is opposed to their interests, and that it will react only to radical proposals.

The legislation I am proposing would at least give the public a reasonable opportunity to collect signatures and let them still be "fresh" enough to pass verification. The only reason to have any time limit is the problem of persons moving, dying or becoming inactive voters. Without a time limit of a reasonable length if signatures were invalidated for those three reasons, people would raise the impossible administrative questions of tracing persons who moved, counting the intent of dead persons and questioning the reasons behind someone's non-participation in the electoral process. Obviously reasonable minds may differ as to whether a year, 18 months or two years is an accessible period, an issue to be determined by legislators in both houses during discussions over the next legislative session.

Regardless of one's position on the question of utility rate increases or the death penalty, shouldn't direct democracy through the initiative process be allowed on momentous issues of importance? I am sympathetic to the long hours that so many volunteers put forth in an effort to have these proposals placed on the ballot. These individuals worked in good faith for a cause they believed in, only to watch their energy go for naught. It is our obligation in the legislature to make sure the councils of government are open to all of our citizens. To deny access through procedural devices like arbitrary time limits is to make government available to the few, for their own objectives, to serve the elite rather than by, for and of the people!

Only 10 percent of the energy in that lightbulb actually converts to light.

Adult program at library to study children's books

"Not for Children Only" will be the theme of this year's adult lecture and discussion program at Central Library. Funded with a grant from the Michigan Council for the Humanities and the Library of Michigan, the program is designed to bring out-of-school adults into the library to hear a scholar speak on one of the theme books, followed by small group discussion and a general wrap-up.

Helen Leonard, coordinator of the series, says, "Books written for children know no age limit. We want to give adults the opportunity to read again books they loved as children or ones they may have missed and to learn about good, contemporary children's books so they can encourage today's youth to read."

Professor James Blake of Wayne State University will begin the series on Thursday, Oct. 16, at 7:30 p.m. in the Exhibition Room at Central Library with Kenneth Graham's "The Wind in the Willows." Other programs will be: Nov. 13, "Classic Fairy Tales;" Jan. 22, "Bridge to Terabithia;" Feb. 26, "I Am the Cheese;" and March 26, "Charlotte's Webb."

Registration can be made at any of the libraries. Reading the book before the session is recommended and the Friends of the Library have donated extra copies of the five books which will be available at registration. There is no charge for the series.

"The format was developed in Vermont and has been followed by a number of states," Leonard said. "Michigan has been especially enthusiastic about the program, to the point that we are working on a 'Let's Talk About It - Michigan' program for the sesquicentennial. Librarians Jacqueline Michaels and Helen Gregory are working on the selections and will serve as discussion leaders.

Probation department needs volunteer workers

Judge Roger J. LaRose of District Court 32A in the City of Harper Woods needs interested citizens willing to volunteer their services to the Volunteer Probation Department. The necessary requirement for joining this program is a willingness to assist persons who have come in contact with the District Court.

The Volunteer Probation Department was established in 1969 and provides an alternative to jail for first time offenders with minor convictions such as marijuana use, petty larceny, or drunk driving. These volunteers interview, counsel and provide reports to the court on the progress of those on probation. Judge LaRose stated that the court would soon be overloaded with unresolved cases if it weren't for the assistance given by these citizens. The Probation Department is operated by volunteers who receive no payment and has become so successful that other communities have started similar programs.

The program's volunteer counselors come into the District Court not only from Harper Woods, but also from the northeast section of Detroit and surrounding suburbs such as the Grosse Pointes, St. Clair Shores, and East Detroit.

If you are interested in volunteering, or would like further information, please contact Denise Creger, Probation Officer, at 343-2599.

Schools

Not the real thing

These Bishop Gallagher High School students did have the opportunity to see and hear President Reagan during his visit to Detroit recently, however, they didn't get to pose with him as it appears. That's a life-size cut-out of the president that is the next best thing to the real thing. The students who were selected to go to Cobo Hall for the political rally were from the senior government classes.

Notre Dame High has awards night

More than 300 Notre Dame students received awards Sept. 23 in recognition of outstanding achievement in academics, school leadership, service to the Notre Dame community, and for displaying the spirit of "The Fightin' Irish."

The ceremony honoring the accomplishments of the previous year is held early to inspire the students to accept new challenges and to strive for even greater excellence.

The honors address was given by Principal William E. Raymond whose topic was "School is a Risk." The theme emphasized the fact that the benefits received are proportional to the risk taken. More than 750 parents, faculty and students attended.

School schedules parents' meeting

"Get to Know Us Better" will be the theme of a new parents' meeting for those whose children are new to the Grosse Pointe Public School System this year. The meeting will be held at Monteith Elementary School on Wednesday, Oct. 15 at 7:30 p.m. and offers parents an opportunity to learn more about curriculum, special education, community education and the library system. In addition, a representative from the volunteer coordinator's office will tell parents about the opportunities to work with children in our schools.

The evening is being co-sponsored by the PTA/PTO Council, of which Linda Schneider is president. She has helped Dr. John Whritner, superintendent of schools, coordinate the presentation of school information with Dr. George Eddington, director of community education and master of ceremonies for the evening.

Vincent LoCicero, president of the Board of Education, will present the Board's greetings followed by Dr. Whritner who will present a brief overview of the school program. Hank Galnor, vice-president of the PTA/PTO Council, will summarize sports activities in the schools and community.

Following the group presentation, building principals of each of the 14 schools and school administrators will join the PTA/PTO presidents and delegates in answering questions.

For further information, please call the Office of the Superintendent at 343-2010.

ISD honors student creativity

For the first time, the Wayne County Intermediate School District is showcasing its student writing competition winners, along with childhood dancers, artists, singers, musicians and dramatists, 3:30-5 p.m. Oct. 14 during its 25th anniversary celebration week at the Education Center Annex on 33500 Van Born in Wayne.

In June, the first-place writers won trophies and cash awards for themselves and plaques for their schools. The essays, short stories and poetry are printed in the 1986 Journal of Student Writing Anniversary Edition, which will be given to all who attend.

Among the first-place winners who will present their writing is Kamina Bandon from University Liggett.

McCaig talks to parents about college

On Monday, Oct. 20, at 7:30 p.m. at the North High Parent Club meeting scheduled in the Commons (Cafeteria) Dr. Roger McCaig, Director of Research and Development at the central office of our school system will speak to interested parents and students about important background information needed to make wise decisions about college entrance testing, including the following topics:

- What is the difference between the ACT and the SAT?
- Which test should students take?
- What is a good score? How important is a good score?
- How can students prepare for these tests?

- Should a student consider re-testing?
- How can stress be minimized?

A question-answer session will follow the presentation.

Dr. McCaig has worked for our school system for more than 30 years as a teacher, as a curriculum planner, and in his present position. In addition to his chief responsibility of supervising the testing program for the school district, he has conducted extensive research into several matters of importance such as the relationship between high school grades and admission into college, high school grades and entrance test scores, courses taken and test scores, and the results of repeat testing.

ULS team attends student congress

Four members of the University Liggett School forensics team attended the Student Congress in East Lansing Sept. 18-20. The students are Pamela Colby, Kavita Sood, Nishu Sood and Prasad Rao.

Sponsored by the Michigan Interscholastic Forensic Association, the Student Congress is a simulation of the workings of the actual Congress in Washington, D.C. It involves students from throughout Michigan who act as senators, representatives, lobbyists and members of the press.

After passing a test on parliamentary procedure and campaigning, Colby, with the help of her campaign manager and fellow senator Sood, received the honor of being elected president pro tempore of the Senate. Rao and Kavita Sood served as members of the House of Representatives.

Study to follow South grads

Grosse Pointe South High School Mothers' Club volunteers will be calling the homes of South's 1986 graduates during the 13-day period, Oct. 15 through Oct. 27.

The calls are part of the Alumni Coordinating Committee's efforts to initiate a five-year follow-up study of South's graduates. Data collected will be used to provide helpful information for annual reports to the Board of Education, publications, reports to colleges, career counseling, curriculum planning, and reports to parents.

Each graduate's home will be contacted once each year for five consecutive years by the Mothers' Club volunteers to determine the former student's educational and occupational status.

Amy Rowe is serving as the Alumni Coordinator for the Mothers' Club. Also serving on the committee are Liz Hardwick, Ann Rousek, Cynthia Warner and Joy Williams. More than 30 volunteers have been recruited to make the calls during the Oct. 15-Oct. 27 period.

Food is comfort as well as nourishment

By Marian Trainor

The subject is comfort, a treatise that should pique the interest of everyone. Comfort is not one of the big achievements of life. Sometimes it comes unexpectedly like walking into a room after being out on a damp, cold day and finding a fire in a fireplace. Sometimes it is planned for, like setting the thermostat on an electric blanket before you get into bed and sliding into the coziness of the welcome warmth of pre-heated sheets. Sometimes comfort comes from the words of a friend spoken at just the right time when disappointment or loss turns the world into dismal tones of black and gray. These are sure-fire methods of soothing the troubled mind and pampering a tired, dejected body.

However, they are sometimes not the first measure that comes to mind when it is imperative that a quick fix is needed to fight off the gloom and despair that threatens our very being. Sometimes we throw all caution to the winds, ignore all dietary restrictions we have placed on ourselves for one reason or another, and deliberately choose the most fattening, cholesterol-laden, sinfully rich food we can find and gorge ourselves on its delightfully, delicious relaxing goodness. As we eat, our blue mood fades away, the stress that made us so uptight releases its hold and we enjoy the peace and comfort that comes from deliberately pampering our poor beat-up body and soul.

Food has always been as much a source of comfort as it has been of nourishment. A cup of tea is not just a beverage, but a drink to be slowly sipped in times of stress or fatigue. Milk toast made sleep come easier to someone who was ailing while it soothed and warmed the stomach. Chicken soup has no medical value but somehow it has become associated with the healing process and the power of suggestion works.

Everyone has his favorite pick-er-upper when it comes from turning to food for comfort.

For some it is something soft and warm and soothing. Such foods as a mealy, baked potato with butter to enhance its goodness, infuses the body with renewed spirit as each mouthful makes its warming way down the digestive system. For others a plate of steaming macaroni, nestled in a rich creamy sauce and topped with golden crusty melted cheese works the same magic. It is probably that these foods have strong association with a time when mothers spent long hours in the kitchen preparing foods. No convenience foods, no frozen dinners, no quick microwaving. Preparing dinner was one of the major tasks of the day. It began early with baking that filled the house with delightful aromas of cakes or pies or cookies.

In late afternoon, the serious preparation began. Vegetables were peeled and sliced to be put in a stew that had been simmering since noon, or dumplings were made for a stewing chicken gently cooked until the gravy turned yellow as butter or perhaps a meatloaf made up of secret aromatic ingredients that made it rich and flavorful was prepared.

Somehow these memories of food lovingly prepared became associated with a time when life was made simple by those who took care of us.

Adulthood, independence, responsibility for one's self is part of the growing process, but there are times when one would like to return to that time.

That time is past and will never come again, except in moments when we consciously try to call them back with rituals that spelled comfort and security in the long past annals of childhood.

Food can do this. As we prepare and consume our favorite comfort food, we know it's but a brief reprieve from the never-ending struggle to maintain our place in society as a worthwhile, caring person, but it is a respite that never fails to provide the needed fortitude to do what has to be done and take joy in doing it.

This theory is backed up by Dr. Perry Ortenberg, a Philadelphia psychiatrist.

He contends that eating is deeply rooted in the nurturing warmth and security we feel in childhood. "When sick, feeling defeated, helpless or overwhelmed," he says, "it's almost natural that one would turn to past symbols of security. Food takes on the symbolic meaning that good care once had."

"The comfort food gives is not all in your mind," says Susan Schiffman, a Duke University psychologist. "A growing body of research suggests that certain foods chemically affect the way we feel and function."

One study suggests that the chemical serotonin, known to produce a calming hypnotic effect in humans, is indirectly affected by the intake of carbohydrates. At the annual meeting of the American Psychological Association in Washington, these findings were substantiated. They agreed that for carbohydrate cravers, people with an overwhelming preference for sweet or starchy food, carbohydrates act as an antidepressant and make them feel more energetic.

Comfort foods are often turned to when people stop smoking. One researcher conducted an experiment to ascertain whether a high carbohydrate diet would help smokers kick the habit. Preliminary results showed that more than twice as many people in the high carbohydrate group quit smoking as in the low carbohydrate group.

Findings also showed that people who try to diet at the same time reduce their chances of succeeding at either effort.

When carbohydrates - comfort foods - are eaten to ease the stress of nicotine withdrawal, it appears that the trick is to retain the beneficial effects on mood while minimizing the adverse effects of weight gain.

There are also findings that substantiate the theory that there are individuals who need extra carbohydrates to maintain a normal balance of serotonin. These findings have a bearing on weight-loss diets, which if they are to succeed, should include a reasonable amount of sweets along with a diet that controls the craving for high-calorie foods.

However, for most people, an occasional binge on carbohydrates is all that is needed to make them bright and bushy-tailed. And everyone has his favorite. A computer programmer brews up his favorite comfort food - homemade soup. When he was young there was always a big pot of soup around. He says, "I guess part of the appeal is just remembering that time."

Another votes for stew because "stew makes me feel warm and protected from the raging elements. The comfort is not just in eating but the smell."

For some, that magic lift of comfort can come with no effort at all. A chocolate bar will do or a luscious, double chocolate hot fudge sundae with whipped cream, topped with cherries and nuts fills the bill and sends the soul soaring.

Whatever. When times are tough, the tough do not necessarily get tougher. They withdraw temporarily from the fray and come back fortified and renewed from a passionate involvement with their own special "comfort" food.

Ford pool variance granted by Grosse Pointe Farms council

Armed with an attorney and architect, Edsel Ford II appeared before the Grosse Pointe Farms City Council Sept. 22, and was granted a variance allowing him to construct a pool in front of his Lakeshore Road home.

The city has an ordinance against construction of pools in front of a residence, but after lengthy discussion and review of the site plan, the council voted unanimously to approve Ford's request. Councilman Mary Ann Ghesquiere was absent.

The pool will have an extensive four-foot high earthen landscaped berm around its Lakeshore side and will be set back about 400 feet from the road.

"We had no idea when we bought the home that we would run into this problem," he said. "The key issue is that we want to keep the residence looking beautiful. We are willing to spend the kind of money needed to keep it looking pretty."

Ford said no one will be able to see the pool from the road once it is constructed.

"Obviously, we respect the privacy of others and we want ours," he said.

As part of the variance-seeking process, a resident must send registered letters to neighbors in the vicinity.

Ford said 18 people responded to his letter and welcomed him to the neighborhood. They were all glad he had moved into the home, he said, and saw no problem with the construction of the pool.

Because of the extensive landscaping and wooded area around the residence, Ford said the front of the home was the only area where the pool would receive afternoon sun. Moving the pool to another area would mean tearing up a formal garden.

After extensive questioning of Ford and his architect, the board opened up the public hearing to questions and concerns from the audience.

Philip Leon, also of Lakeshore, said he was opposed to the construction of the pool. He said that the house was architecturally attractive, and he felt its beauty would be hidden by the berming and the pool.

"It is nice to have such noble and gracious old buildings in the city," he said. "The towering mass of dirt will almost totally obscure the building from view."

Leon argued that the move would be precedent-setting, and it would become difficult for the council to deny other such requests since it had approved a similar request.

Ford's attorney noted that Leon lived four blocks away from the Ford residence, and that the move, if approved, would not be precedent-setting.

"This situation is a bit unusual," he said. "There will not be a whole lot of people with similar circumstances." — Peter A. Salinas Library . . .

125,000 volumes is in circulation at any given time.

"If everybody brought it back all at once, we wouldn't have room for it," Hanson said.

A library needs committee was appointed in September to weigh the problem and possible solutions. The consultant's report is to be presented at the Oct. 13 school board meeting at Pierce Middle School, but no one is taking bets on what decisions will be made.

"It isn't a foregone conclusion," Hanson said.

For one thing, building additions are expensive. The existing library was donated by the Ferry family and no public funds were used.

"It was a wonderful gift to the community," Hanson said. "If the board decides to go ahead with a building program, it wouldn't be private funds again."

Even if the money were already available, finding a place to build a library addition would be a problem. Most of Grosse Pointe's empty land is in recreational use — and the amount of recreational land doesn't come up to national park standards, either.

Hanson is loath to "slap" an addition on the central library. "This is a Marcel Breuer building, you know," he said. "Even now, architects kind of bow down to it. It's a showcase — people are proud of it."

Part of the reason the libraries don't seem big enough any more is that people's expectations have increased. The amount of information published doubles every 10-15 years. Demands on the library as a research facility have become more sophisticated.

As a result, "library staffing demands more professionalism," researcher Griffiths said. "Librarians do complex queries (on computers). Automation allows the library to cope with growth and reorganize the staff. Otherwise it would need to increase staff. And this is the ideal population for automation because people are so sophisticated."

Griffiths is working with the library needs committee. "We could do a few things with facilities as they are," she said. "But the real problem is that after a while you start to make adjustments and work around limitations. You become less efficient. Eventually you have to get to the bigger questions."

U of D to dedicate mall

The University of Detroit will officially dedicate its multi-acre pedestrian mall during ceremonies at the University's McNichols Campus Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 15 and 16.

Wednesday's evening ceremonies, beginning at 5 p.m., will be marked by the presence of civic, community and corporate leaders. Mayor Coleman Young is expected to take an important role in the celebration.

Earlier at noon, faculty, students and staff will stage their own celebration with a ribbon-tying symbolizing the joining of the two sides of the campus, and a luncheon featuring giant submarine sandwiches.

On the following evening alumni and university donors will gather on the mall to see it blessed by the Most Rev. Moses B. Anderson, auxiliary bishop of the Detroit Archdiocese. On Oct. 21 the celebration will conclude with a gathering of University neighbors.

Formerly a block of Florence Avenue, the 8.5-acre pedestrian mall is a park-like area that unifies the north and south sections of the campus. The pedestrian mall is the most visible portion of an $8.5 million campus renovation that also includes modernization of campus buildings, a state-of-the-art energy management system, a new lighting and security system, cosmetic and other structural repairs as well as the design and construction of the mall itself.

In addition to the McNichols Campus improvements, approximately seven percent of the $8.5 million renovation funds will be used to make needed improvements at the School of Dentistry on the east side and the University's downtown Renaissance Campus, which houses the law school and evening business program.

The renovation program has been funded through the Partners in Progress Capital Campaign.

Test your news sense during newspaper week

By Andy Seamans

1. Which Amendment to the U.S. Constitution protects "freedom of the press"?

2. Can you name the nation's oldest newspaper?

3. In 1948 this well-respected newspaper suffered the embarrassment that haunts editors. It's post-election day headline read: "Dewey Defeats Truman." Can you name this paper?

4. Which of the following was not involved in some aspect of newspaper work: a) Mark Twain; b) Bat Masterson; c) Benjamin Franklin; d) Thomas Edison; or e) Lew Wallace?

5. Which presidents of the United States were in the news business at one point in their careers?

6. Who was John Peter Zenger?

7. For what newspaper was H.L. Mencken the editor?

8. What does "-30-" denote in the news industry?

9. Who said: "... were it left to me to decide whether we should have a government without newspapers, or newspapers without a government, I should not hesitate a moment to prefer the latter."?

10. When proofreaders are marking news copy, what does "stet" mean?

terprise; William Barclay "Bat" Masterson, though famed as a frontier lawman, closed out his years as a sportswriter for the Morning Telegraph in New York; Franklin was much-involved in printing and once owned the Pennsylvania Gazette; and Edison, at age 12, was a newsboy on the Grand Trunk Railway. At 15, he published the weekly Grand Trunk Herald.

5. It's almost easier to say which were not. John Quincy Adams wrote several noteworthy newspaper articles though these were not necessarily journalistic. Warren Harding worked for the Democratic Mirror in Marion, Ohio, and was later editor of the Marion Star. John Kennedy was a correspondent for the Hearst papers. Ronald Reagan was a sportscaster on Iowa radio before moving on to Hollywood. And some future presidents were involved in campus news work. Franklin Roosevelt was editor of the Harvard Crimson. Lyndon Johnson edited the Southwest Texas State Teachers College paper. And let's not forget: Herbert Hoover was a newspaper delivery boy, and Harry Truman working in a newspaper mailroom as a clerk.

Answers

1. The First Amendment reads: "Congress shall make no law ... abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press ..."

2. The oldest newspaper still being published, according to The 1986 Information Please Almanac, is the Hartford (Conn.) Courant. It began publication in 1764. Wonder if George Burns remembers when it began printing?

3. Chicago Daily Tribune.

4. e. Lew Wallace, author of "Ben Hur," was primarily a military man who wrote on the side. Twain wrote for his brother's Hannibal (Mo.) Journal and later the Virginia City, Nev., Territorial En-

6. In 1734, Zenger published articles in his New York Weekly Journal that were critical of the colonial governor of New York. Arrested for libel, the jury found him innocent. The case is considered a landmark case in the history of freedom of the press.

7. Henry Louis Mencken's biting commentary appeared in the Baltimore Evening Sun. Typically, it's said that Mencken advised people not to mourn him when he died, but rather remember him by winking at an ugly woman.

8. Coming at the end of the typed manuscript, it means the end of the article. While there have been many attempts to explain its origin no explanation has been accepted as (pardon the pun) the last word on the subject. Another mark used to close a manuscript is ##.

9. Thomas Jefferson, who must have been quite tolerant, considering the salacious and false stories attacking that appeared in the press of his day.

10. The phrase basically means: ignore any changes the proofreader has made. In other words: let it stand as it was originally. Sometimes the word stet is encircled.

The Second Section

The tour begins at the Edgemont Park home of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Bruetsch.

You're welcome...

at the homes of the Grosse Pointe Garden Center Tour

Photos by Elsa Frohman

Owners of the six beautiful houses to be featured on this year's Garden Center Tour of Homes will be feted at a cocktail party at the Lakecrest Lane home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A.O. Schmidt on Tuesday, Oct. 14, from 6 to 8:30 p.m. assisted by Mrs. Nancy Edwards. Also hosting the party will be the Grosse Pointe Garden Center board members and the committee for the tour.

This will be the 34th house tour presented by the Garden Center and this year's slate of homes beautifully continues a long established Grosse Pointe tradition. Tour dates are Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 18 and 19.

Rain or shine, visitors will see rooms in traditional or contemporary style with new decor created by top interior designers. Architecturally impressive, the houses are set in elegantly landscaped grounds. Some are brand new and some are vintage houses restored and updated to be gracious homes for 1986.

The classic Country English home of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Bruetsch on Edgemont Park, in the Park, and the two new houses of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Uznis and Mr. and Mrs. C. Thompson Wells Jr., on Sycamore Lane in the City are equally impressive as are the Kenwood Road home of notable designer D.J. Kennedy in the Farms and the two Grosse Pointe Shores homes of Dr. and Mrs. Richard C. Rappa on Renaud Road and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Thams on Hampton Road.

Chairman for this year's House Tour is Jeanne Lowe. Assisting her is Ellen Probert. Other Committee members include Florence Lafer, Sally Schueler, Jane Mertz, Frances Mead and Shirley Donovan.

More committee members are Frances Schmitz, Aletha Smith, Gail Weber and Mim Langs. Still more are Peggy Cole, Cindy Carson, Karen Hostetter, Rose Marie Mebus Jr.

George Vincent created the map used to guide visitors to the houses and the tickets and brochures were donated by Verheydens, Inc.

Tickets for the house tour may be purchased in advance for $6 or at the houses on tour days for $7.50.

They may be obtained at the Garden Center, Vintage Pointe, Hollywood Drugs or the Grosse Pointe Florist. For more information call 881-4594, 881-7709 or 886-2096.

Two homes are featured on Sycamore Lane, the next stop on the tour. Mr. and Mrs. C. Thompson Wells Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. John C. Uznis have opened their residences for visitors.

The tour ends on Hampton Road at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Thams.

Wildflowers to bloom along state highways

Have you heard about "Operation Wildflower?" This is an enormous project to plant wildflowers along all the country roadsides in Michigan as a celebration of the state's 150th birthday in 1987.

The Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan have organized this endeavor and member clubs all across the state will be participating. Working in co-operation with the Michigan Road Commission, member clubs will be reclaiming endangered species of flowers to make Michigan roadsides bloom hopefully, for years to come.

Michigan's temperate climate, abundant water and large wooded areas have always made it a natural habitat for thousands of forms of plant life. In every county many species of wildflowers may be found. But with ever increasing population and urban sprawl, and more and more traffic on the highways many of these lovely and fragile plants have been disappearing from the scene. This has sparked the project of "Operation Wildflower."

The new wildflower garden at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, adjacent to the Trial Gardens has attracted much attention this summer. It was planted and is maintained by Trowell and Error Garden Club and will be the first part of the garden to bloom next spring.

In addition to herbs, among them basil, thyme and sage, the wild flower garden has Jack-n-the-Pulpit, Solomon's Seal, wild ginger and geraniums, rue, bleeding hearts, buttercups, red and white trilliums and astilbe.

The library at the Grosse Pointe Garden Center has many books about wildflowers, especially those native to Michigan, and the Garden Center Speaker's File lists several informative and delightful programs on this most fascinating subject.

The Grosse Pointe Association plans a program on developing indoor bonsai and winterizing outdoor bonsai for Oct. 23 from 9 a.m. to noon in the Veteran's Room at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. Plans will also be discussed for a Bonsai Show to be held in mid-November by the Garden Center.

The ancient living art of Bonsai was developed centuries ago in Japan and is still very popular there. In recent years a great interest in bonsai has developed in the United States and Canada and there are many people, amateur and professional, who have become fascinated by this form of gardening. While basing their methods on the original Japanese methods, American devotees of this art have tended to simplify procedures in order to produce faster results.

In Japan the bonsai gardener often will start young bonsai that will be cultivated and treasured by his grandchildren.

According to the news media our new national flower is the rose. After years of debate on behalf of marigolds, dogwoods, columbines, and other blossoms, Congress recently designated the rose as the winner. President Reagan signed the bill that make it official last week. The rose is already the official flower of the District of Columbia, and the states of Georgia, Iowa, North Carolina, North Dakota and New York.

A single red rose means "I love you." Yellow roses used to signify jealousy, now they mean "Welcome Home." White roses signify purity and are often carried by brides. Rose Attar, or essential oil, is used in many perfumes. It takes about 50,000 roses to yield one ounce of attar and, in 1928, an earthquake in Bulgaria plunged the economy into chaos when 12,000 acres of damask roses, from which the essential oil was made for the perfume industry, were ruined.

Flowers have always been used to symbolize ideas and emotions. Not only the rose, but many others as well. In the Chinese calendar each month has its significant flower. The chrysanthemum is the flower of October and autumn and is the symbol of harvest, rest and ease.

In the Japanese calendar the maple is the significant plant for October, the month in which it turns from green to glowing red. In the Victorian Calendar of Flowers the blossom typifying October was the hop, and many 18th century prints of plants symbolizing seasons of the year use grapes and grape leaves with Chrysanthemums to illustrate October, and symbolize the time of harvest.

Now is a good time to harvest and dry herbs from your garden. The main thing is to be sure all dampness is removed or the herbs will mold after bottling. Wash the herb, stem and all, and drain well. Tie the stems together in a bunch and hang upside down to dry in a well-ventilated room. You can enclose them in a large brown paper bag with a few holes punched in it to keep the herbs dust-free. Let them hang for a couple of weeks until they are very dry and crumble easily.

This method works beautifully for sage and mint but for chives and parsley a different method works better. Spread a thin layer of non-iodized salt on a cookie sheet and spread the herbs on it. Sprinkle a little more salt on top and dry the parsley in 200-degree oven for about 15 minutes. When dry and stiff shake off the salt, crumble and put in jars.

Did you know mint was named for Menthe, a nymph who was loved by Pluto, the god of the underworld? When Pluto's wife found out about Menthe she turned her into a plant who would spend eternity seeking underground water looking for her lost god.

Did you know, too that mint comes in many flavors? There is orange mint, peppermint, pineapple mint, spearmint, apple mint, pennyroyal and Corsican mint, and maybe a few more.

In ancient Greece the winners of the Olympic games were given wreaths of parsley, and in the year 164 A.D. the Greek physician, Galen, claimed that parsley was a valuable aid to digestion. In the 16th century parsley was said to "comfort the stomach" and in the 17th century it was agreed that parsley was useful as a digestive aid to both children and "upgrown people."

Gardening melds with history

"Landscaping Yesterday's and Today's Gardens" is the topic of the joint Sesquicentennial Program cosponsored by the Detroit Garden Center and the Detroit Historical Society Sunday, Oct. 19, at 2 p.m. to be held at the Detroit Historical Museum, 5401 Woodward Ave.

Marguerite N. Decker, practicing landscape designer in the United States and Europe for the past 11 years will speak on such topics as garden design, plant materials, and ground preparation with an overall historical perspective, using slides to illustrate her points.

Decker received her training in the Netherlands and at Radcliffe College. In addition to serving on the boards of the Grosse Pointe Garden Center, the Grosse Pointe Garden Club Council, and the Garden Society, Decker holds memberships in the Michigan Association of Nurserymen, the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association, and the Detroit Garden Center. She is a fellow of the Royal Horticultural Society and currently practices in Grosse Pointe, specializing in perennials and flowering shrubs.

The Pastor's Corner

The science fiction solution

The Rev. David Wick
Grosse Pointe Baptist Church

In his satirical science fiction work, "Life, the Universe, and Everything," Douglas Adams describes a device which makes things invisible. Instead of actually making things disappear, which Adams says would require extremely complex technology and enormous energy forces, this clever device envelops objects in an SEP field.

SEP stands for "Somebody Else's Problem." The device causes the brain to see the enveloped object as "Somebody Else's Problem," which is the same thing as not seeing it at all. Due to the strong natural tendency of the brain not to see "Somebody Else's Problem," the SEP device can run for centuries on the power of a small flashlight battery.

SEP devices are of course imaginary. Somebody Else's Problems are very real. We see them — or should I say, don't see them — almost every day. SEP's are not a new phenomenon.

In the parable of the Good Samaritan (Luke 10:30-37) the priest and the Levite viewed the man who fell among robbers as Somebody Else's Problem, and "passed by on other side."

Did they feel any guilt because they passed by that injured man? Probably not: the marvelous thing about Somebody Else's Problem is that you never have to feel guilty for not taking care of it. Somebody Else will take care of it. After all, it's their problem, isn't it?

Not every situation can be viewed as Somebody Else's Problem. It seems to me that some people achieve a hollow happiness by looking at life in this way: anything that isn't Somebody Else's Problem is Just Absolutely Wonderful. If something is Just Absolutely Wonderful, you don't have to do anything about it. You just enjoy it.

Belief that things are Just Absolutely Wonderful can only be maintained if you don't examine them too closely. If you subject them to close scrutiny, problems begin to appear. Of course, at that point, they become invisible — they turn into Somebody Else's Problem!

You might think that people who approach life in this way would see less and less of reality, and that's true. But our modern world has the perfect answer for this: it's called television.

When Jesus told the parable of the Good Samaritan, He was teaching how His disciples were to look at the world and its problems. He does not give us the option of looking at things either as Somebody Else's Problem or as Just Absolutely Wonderful.

We are to see things as He did: as they really are. Jesus was not saying that we are individually responsible for all of the problems in the world. That would be a crushing weight of responsibility. But we are responsible to see and to do something about the problem that crosses our path. Jesus asks us to see with His eyes — to see the broken victim lying by the roadside, for example, and to say "That man is My Problem," and to act accordingly.

Sanctuary

Local nuns respond to a conflict in Central America

By Elsa Frohman

One side sees them as illegal aliens, and the people who shelter them as law breakers. The other side sees them as political refugees, and calls the actions of the government which refuses them asylum violations of the law.

The Sanctuary Movement exists in a swirl of political and emotional rhetoric. However, Sister Cathey DeSantis and Sister Martha Goode of Our Lady Star of the Sea High School see the problem in smaller, more human terms.

"I was convinced by two human beings," Sister Cathey said. She spoke of Raul and Valeria, two refugees from the conflict in El Salvador who are sheltered by St. Rita's Parish in Detroit, the only designated sanctuary in the Detroit area.

Sister Cathey explained that Raul and his wife were professionals in their native country. They were member of the upper middle class, but have given up everything to seek refuge in a church in the United States. If Raul was to seek work, he would be immediately deported. So he lives entirely off the charity of Sanctuary supporters in the Detroit area.

"They are not peasants," Sister Cathey said. "That's why they are dangerous (to the ruling party in El Salvador). He says he was a threat because he was thinking."

According to Sisters Cathey and Martha, Raul fled El Salvador after spending months in prison and enduring torture.

"If Raul is deported, it's curtains for him, there's no question," Sister Cathey said.

"He was working to change the situation," Sister Martha said. "He was working to get food, medicine and literacy for the people."

But the Sanctuary Movement isn't easily characterized in simple terms of black and white and right and wrong. The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service views the movement as politically motivated.

"There are no provisions for sanctuary within the laws of the United States," said James Montgomery, director of the local district office of the INS. "It is an illegal act. For these so-called refugees, there are legal ways to make claim to asylum. No one is removed from this country without his day in court."

Sister Martha explained that the Sanctuary supporters believe that it is the government which is violating the law.

They are planning a group trip to Central America next spring to investigate the situation.

"Our interpretation of the Refugee Act of 1980 is that people fleeing persecution should be welcomed," she said. "The government is violating the Refugee Act by refusing to accept people from El Salvador and Guatemala. It is difficult for the government to support their claims without admitting that our Central American policy is causing the conflict."

Canada accepts refugees from El Salvador and Guatemala, and much of the effort of Detroit area Sanctuary supporters is to help refugees reach Canada.

Sister Martha maintains that a formal application for asylum would be an automatic deportation for Raul and Valeria.

"Less than 4 percent of the people who apply are actually granted political asylum," Sister Martha said. "If they apply, they are deported."

Montgomery disputes that claim.

"It's a five-step process," he said. "Five separate authorities make an extensive review of each case. Most people (seek asylum because they) simply don't like the conditions in their country. They can apply to enter the country legally, but unfortunately, 100,000 other people apply and there are limits."

Yet, the local INS office is not working to deport Raul and Valeria, though they are being sheltered quite openly.

"We're not cooperating with their desire to be martyrs," Montgomery said.

"INS knows where they are," said Sister Cathey. "INS doesn't want to give credibility to the movement." She pointed to a series of arrests and indictments against Sanctuary supporters about a year and a half ago in Tucson, Ariz.

"It brought more public attention and made the movement stronger," she said.

Montgomery attributes political motives to the movement.

"Sanctuary is overblown," he said. "It's a political idea and they're using to get media attention. They are opposed to United States involvement in El Salvador and think this is the best way to get attention. They know that if they apply legally and we grant asylum, they will lose."

Montgomery justifies his non-action against the refugees by saying that he has not direct knowledge of the couple at St. Rita's.

"I've been told there is a family at St. Rita's" he said. "I suppose they have not chosen to avail themselves of the law. But they have not been encountered by us. There is no law violated by having a person in your house. There has to be an attempt by us to locate the person and you have to take steps to prevent us from removing them."

Sister Martha doesn't see the question in political terms.

"The religious community has a mandate to feed the hungry," she said. Sister Martha and Sister Cathey are members of the Sisters of St. Joseph of Nazareth, Mich. Their order has embraced the Star of the Sea sisters support Sanctuary Movement . . .

Sanctuary Movement, as have many individual churches, religious orders and even cities. However, acceptance of the principles of the Sanctuary Movement is far from unanimous even in the religious community.

According to literature published by the Jesuits, "Sanctuary" is a formal process by which a congregation educates itself to the plight of Central Americans and decides, at the end of the process, to make a public statement on the course of action it will follow with regard to those Central Americans who seek its help."

At the end of 1985 there were 270 congregations who had made such a statement. However, many churches have studied the problem and rejected Sanctuary.

Sanctuary does have its political component. While the Sanctuary supporters claim only humanitarian motives, only refugees from El Salvador and Guatemala are accepted. Refugees from communist regimes, such as Nicaragua, are not taken.

Sister Cathey and Sister Martha plan to learn more about the situation in Central America. Next spring, they will travel with a group they are organizing to El Salvador to observe the situation, first hand.

The sisters have spread the word of Sanctuary among their students at Our Lady Star of the Sea (Sister Martha teaches religion and psychology, Sister Cathey is director of student activities). However, they say they don't pressure their students to accept their beliefs.

"We don't use our position to pursue private political persuasions," Sister Martha said. "We do share the message of Jesus. It isn't like an all out effort to convert. But our people don't argue with the Christian message."

Sister Martha and Sister Cathey do disagree with U.S. Central American policy. They take exception to military aid being sent to quell rebellion against a regime that they characterize as repressive.

"We should be asking why we are willing to pour millions into military aid," Sister Cathey said. "We are responsible for a lot of deaths — in my name."

Sister Martha urges people not to accept Sanctuary, or the government policy at face value.

"First, it's most important that they read and find the truth for themselves," she said. "Then they should connect themselves with other people in dialog. Then, third, they should organize to make changes."

"Don't believe us," Sister Cathey said. "Investigate. There is no question in my mind about what you will find."

For more information on the Sanctuary Movement, contact the Detroit Sanctuary Coalition, 4835 Michigan Ave., Detroit, 48220. Sanctuary is supported by churches that range from the Friends, through Catholic, Lutheran, Brethren, Baptist, Presbyterian, Jewish and Unitarian, to name a few. Cities declaring sanctuary include Berkeley, Calif., St. Paul, Minn., and Ithaca, N.Y. Numerous universities and religious communities have declared Sanctuary.

Bible class under way at GP Baptist

A 10-week series of classes entitled "God's Formula for Peace" is underway, and will continue through Nov. 19. The class is a study of the fourth chapter of Philippians, and is taught by noted Bible teacher Jacqueline Edmonds.

Edmonds had a large Bible teaching ministry in California before recently moving to the Detroit area. She conducted seminars and retreats throughout the state, as well as teaching weekly Bible classes with several hundred people in attendance. Edmonds is known for her careful, detailed examination of the scriptures, and seeks to teach her listeners how to apply scriptural truths to everyday life.

"God's Formula for Peace" is a non-denominational class, and is attended by people representing numerous churches in the area. The structure of the class is such that persons can begin to attend at any time during the 10-week series. The format of the class includes a short songtime, the lecture by Edmonds, and an opportunity for questions to be discussed.

The class presently meets at Grosse Pointe Baptist Church, 21336 Mack Ave. in Grosse Pointe Woods. The church is located at the intersection of Eight Mile and Mack, eight streets north of Vernier. There is no charge for the class, but a free will offering is taken to pay for nursery care.

A nursery is provided for all preschool age children. For further information, or if there is a need for transportation, please call 881-3343.

Kappa Kappa Gamma

Kappa Kappa Gamma Founders Day will be celebrated by a dinner meeting at the home of Diane Marston on Oct. 14. A prior meeting of the Kappas was held at the home of Kathryn Artner, who hosted a luncheon and program featuring Melinda Calahan, director of community relations for the Rehabilitation Institute of Detroit. Calahan spoke on new directions and needs for volunteerism at the Institute and included a demonstration of a program called "Kids on the Block," a puppet show about the problems of disabled children. Continuing support of the Detroit Rehabilitation Institute, a long time Kappa philanthropy, members travel to the institute four times each year as they give birthday parties for the patients. On Nov. 11, Emily Moellering will host a workshop, at which birthday favors will be made for rehabilitation patients.

An early fall outing to the St. Clair, Michigan House Tour, and an Oct. 21 meeting at Talbots to learn "How to Build a Basic Wardrobe" are two of the interesting events planned by program chair Margy Penirian.

President Lee Miller will host the traditional Kappa Christmas Brunch on Dec. 9 and will be joined by officers Betsy Boynton, executive vice president; Marcia Winzer, recording secretary; Emily Moellering, corresponding secretary, and Doty Smith, treasurer. "There's nothing wrong with him that a good swift kick in the pants wouldn't fix."

How many times have we thought this about a friend or a loved one who just isn't performing up to our expectations.

We see their depression as a bad attitude. Misread their self-centeredness as a personality problem. Believe that their inability to cope with daily activities is mere laziness.

But when extreme or inappropriate behavior persists or worsens, it might be the warning sign of something more serious. A mental illness.

Mental illness is a medical illness that has nothing to do with personal weakness or willpower. And learning to recognize its warning signs can be the first step to healing the sickness. Today, mental illness can be treated.

Messages

I read with interest the other day the news item about the Detroit Red Wings' No. 1 draft choice — and the NHL's No. 1 pick overall — Joe Murphy, being disciplined for missing a team plane. And the team bus. And the team curfew. And now that Murphy has been assigned the task of playing minor league hockey in the Adirondacks instead of justifying his No. 1 status and starting the season with the pro Wings in Detroit, I just hope he doesn't miss the point.

The point is, of course, that despite being the most sought-after amateur hockey player in North America last spring — and being well-paid for it, too — Murphy still has to do what's expected of him: play hockey and follow the rules set down by the organization which employs him. Or take the consequences when he doesn't.

Why? Well, funny as it may seem, discipline has an awful lot to do with performance. We learn that as kids in school, the very first time we discover that one's test grades correspond directly with the amount of time one spends studying. We find it out as adults, when we realize that getting to work on time and doing what the boss asks us to do is one sure way to ensure that we continue to eat.

Murphy got catapulted into that adult world in June when he was drafted. Then, when he signed a contract for some very big bucks in September, it may have sent the 18-year-old rookie the message that hey, he really didn't have to do much more than lace on the skates and play.

But from all reports, new Red Wing coach Jacques Demers is trying to create what Detroit hasn't seen in quite a while: a winning atmosphere. And Demers — who took the St. Louis Blues to the Stanley Cup semifinals in his tenure there — seems to think that discipline goes hand-in-hand with winning. So when Murphy broke the rules — for whatever reason — not once, but three times, push came to shove and the high-priced rookie found himself demoted.

How long that will last is anyone's guess. Murphy could be back when he demonstrates that he's mature enough to remember what time planes and buses depart and when he should be in his hotel room. Or he could be back when Red Wing management decides he's been punished enough. Or he could catch a quick flight back to major league hockey when the Wings find themselves in the middle of a long losing streak.

I hope the latter isn't so. Because a point has been made and a message sent. And I think that these days, when college athletes are killing themselves with drugs, and getting beaten up or shot because they are where they aren't supposed to be, messages like the ones the Wings sent Murphy are important. And not just to Murphy but to kids who follow — and very often look up to — pro athletes.

I recall back a few seasons ago when a local high school hockey team was picked to finish rather high in the state rankings. But I remember that despite the team's obvious talent, the coach wasn't as positive as the pre-season prognosticators were and sure enough, the team didn't do nearly as well as expected.

I found out later that it had come down to a matter of discipline; the kids started to believe their own press clippings and forgot the discipline of playing team hockey. What could have been a great season wound up a pretty mediocre one, all because they didn't want to do what the coach asked.

Another time a Pointe tennis coach removed his team from play because of a disciplinary indiscretion. That one indiscretion had been enough for the coach; as far as he was concerned, the boys had forfeited their privilege to play.

And it is a privilege to play sports — at any level. Joe Murphy is a lot luckier than thousands of other guys who want to play pro hockey. And maybe, just maybe, Red Wing management — in trying to set down some rules in order that the team might play better — also is trying to let Joe Murphy know just how lucky he is.

And perhaps he'll get the point. That despite the fact he's making big bucks, he still has to be responsible for his actions. Just like anybody who is hired by any company and paid for their work.

We all have to be responsible for our actions. I guess that's why I applauded the decision by two Michigan high schools to demand that their student/athletes sign a drug pledge in order to participate in sports. And to require that the kids' parents sign, too.

There's a whole bunch of messages here. That kids have to be responsible for their actions if they want to participate. That parents have to be responsible for their kids. And that schools have to be responsible for taking a stand against drug and alcohol abuse.

Probably none of this is very important to Joe Murphy. And Murphy's actual error in judgement isn't really crucial to your average hockey fan. But I'll bet that Murphy never misses another plane or bus. And that message probably got across to more than a few young fans.

And that IS important.

Close

Close is a good word, both for this play — a narrow miss of catch by South end Ian Thompson — and for last Saturday's 7-6 Homecoming Game victory by the Blue Devils. South scored with less than 12 minutes to go in the game to make it a happy — but wet and soggy — Homecoming Day for South fans. (Story and photo on Page 3C)

Pointe athletes say 'no' to drugs

Parent participation key to success

By Peggy O'Connor

The anti-drug pledges required of student/athletes at Ferndale and Traverse City high schools are similar to programs instituted this fall at North and South high schools, according to athletic administrators.

Ferndale and Traverse City schools made news this fall for demanding that their athletes sign contracts saying that they will not use drugs, alcohol or tobacco, before they are permitted to participate in sports. A few dozen Traverse City students were forced to miss action because they had not signed, according to published reports.

In Grosse Pointe, a committee of parents, coaches, athletes and administrators worked for nearly a year on developing the "Grosse Pointe Standards for Athletes" program — cards which students and parents must sign before the athlete can play. North's program began with the fall sports season; South's cards weren't printed in time so its program begins with the winter athletic session.

"We knew that the kids had training rules on their various teams, but we weren't sure that they were taking them as seriously as they should. We also weren't sure that the parents were taking the rules seriously . . . or were even aware of the rules," said North athletic administrator Thomas Gauerke.

The difference between Grosse Pointe's program and that of the Ferndale and Traverse City schools (which are part of the Hazelden-Cork Chemical Health Program, a four-year educational approach that stresses help from coaches and parents), is that North and South students and their parents will be required to sign cards pledging to abide by all school rules, not just the ones regarding substance abuse.

"See, the kids have known about the school rules for 15 or 16 years. These are the same rules we've had since the school opened. It's not like we're putting in a whole new batch of rules," Gauerke added.

The difference, he says, is that parents are now asked to sign the cards, saying not only that they have received, read and understood the schools' rules, but that they will support the schools and help enforce the rules.

"That wording came from parents' recommendations and I'm pleased with that," Gauerke said.

This year, the committee will work on developing rehabilitation programs for those who break the rules, he added. "I'm still not totally convinced we've made an impact on modifying the behavior of kids. And, although we've had the rules and we've had the cooperation of coaches and parents and students, I don't think that the substance abuse problem is any less than in previous years. I think that's where a rehabilitation program will help."

One big problem in the past has Fans should take the I-94 exit at Saline Road, which is one way in-bound before games and one way out-bound afterward. More than 105,000 persons are expected at the stadium, which is within easy walking distance of some 7,500 parking spaces.

Pointe athletes, parents say 'no' to substance abuse been that many parents either don't know of such rules against drug abuse and rule violations, or don't know how to help. "This will certainly help make parents aware," said South athletic administrator Charles Hollosy. Neither he nor Gauerke reports any resistance to the program by parents or students.

Ferndale athletic director Donna Giltrow says that the anti-drug pledge has been well-received. "We've had excellent response from parents. I'm not naive enough to think that we're going to get 100 percent of the kids to stop substance abuse," Giltrow said. "We're banking on telling the kid that his word means something. We're trying to appeal to that middle group of kids who go into peer pressure situations undecided as to whether or not to drink.

"We want to give them another reason to say 'no'."

University Liggett School athletic director Bob Wood thinks that that is one word that some parents must begin to use more. "I feel that in Grosse Pointe, the alcohol problem is more severe than the drug problem... which is not to say that drugs aren't a problem. But we need more help from parents. I can't believe the parents I know of who either serve alcohol or knowingly allow their children to use alcohol either at home or elsewhere.

"If we don't have the cooperation from parents, it makes our job almost impossible."

ULS does not require athletes to sign any sort of anti-substance abuse pledge or card, preferring to rely on coaches to make sure that the school's strict stand against substance abuse be enforced. "The combination of the individual coach keeping tabs on the kids along with the fact that the students and their parents read and understand the student/parent handbook has worked for us. We're a long way from perfect, but we think we have a program that works," Wood said.

Although he added that he doesn't see the necessity for students to sign pledge cards, he admitted that he will look hard at the results of the program at North and South. "I'm in favor of doing anything to help resolve this problem."

At Our Lady Star of the Sea High School, students are also not required to sign pledges. "But our policy informs students that if they use drugs and alcohol they will be removed from the athletic program," said Julie Uryasz, Star's athletic director.

"So far, I'm pleased with our students' behavior. It (drug abuse) doesn't seem to be a problem." Uryasz said that high schools and colleges must take a stand against substance abuse. "But I don't think that athletes should be singled out. I think that involvement with drugs and alcohol hampers one's performance at any level, not just athletics. We have to make that clear to all kids, not just athletes."

That's one goal of the Hazeldon-Cork program, Giltrow said. "As of Oct. 23, the entire K to 12 system will be involved in what's called the Student Assistance Program, where we will get at all kinds of things — not just substance abuse — that can interfere with education."

Martin T. Wittmer, of Grosse Pointe Woods, has returned for his fourth year on the men's varsity soccer team at Lake Forest College, Lake Forest, Ill. Wittmer, son of Everett and Mary Wittmer, of Hawthorne Road, is also co-captain of the squad this year. The University Liggett School graduate is a senior majoring in education and American studies.

A number of Grosse Pointe residents are playing interscholastic sports for Kalamazoo College this fall. They are sophomores Lori Greiner, of Grosse Pointe and Kerry Bruce, of Grosse Pointe Park, volleyball; senior Valerie Stone, of Grosse Pointe, cross country; sophomore Stephanie Smith, of Grosse Pointe Farms, women's soccer; sophomore Richard Soltis, of Grosse Pointe Park, football; and senior Paul Regelbrugge, of Grosse Pointe Woods, men's soccer.

Meghan McMahon, 21, of Grosse Pointe Park, placed third in the S.U.-N.I.T.Y. Eastern Collegiate Conference tennis championships Sept. 27 at Syracuse University. McMahon lost 6-2, 6-4 in the semifinals, but avenged a loss from last year by topping Hilary Shane, of Princeton, 6-3, 6-4, in the third-fourth playoff. Last month, McMahon, a Yale University senior, was named All-Ivy for the third straight year after returning from a serious ankle injury to post a 6-0 record. McMahon was ranked No. 23 nationally in 1985 by the Intercollegiate Tennis Coaches Association for Division I. She is an English major and this year, serves as freshman counselor on campus. McMahon, who accompanied her brother Cullen McMahon, 12, to the USTA 12 and under boys' nationals in San Diego in August, says she will keep up with tennis next year, while studying for her masters degree in Shakespearean literature.

Peter Bolos, of Grosse Pointe Park, won a trophy in the 10K Dearborn Fun Run on Oct. 4. Bolos has been informed that his time of 50:42 places him as the second best runner in international competition at the 70 and over category. He also won a gold medal in the 60 and over group in Dearborn for finishing faster than the runners in that division. Bolos reports that he's feeling good and training hard in anticipation of the Free Press International Marathon Oct. 19.

Grosse Pointe South graduate Karen Brokaw made her collegiate soccer debut last week in Ohio Wesleyan's women's soccer team's 8-0 loss to Division I Michigan State. Brokaw, a freshman, came into the game in relief of the starting goaltender. She allowed four goals and made four saves.

Two local athletes whose names are familiar to Pointe sports fans are on the University of Detroit men's and women's basketball rosters this fall. One is freshman Pat Brennan, of Grosse Pointe, a 6-8, 222-pound center-forward out of U-D High who is expected to see some playing time for the Titan men. The other is freshman Gina Menta, a 6-0 forward who bedeviled South High's basketball and softball teams for four years as she starred for Eastern Michigan League rival East Detroit.

By now, followers of Calvin College women's field hockey are well aware of Grosse Pointe's fine field hockey tradition, part of which is the "Van Dellen connection" — sisters and University Liggett School graduates who now start for the Calvin varsity. Both made the varsity as freshmen; Lisa Van Dellen is a junior right wing and Kara Van Dellen is a freshman center-forward. The girls are doing well; last week, reigning MIAA champ Calvin's 15-member team held the 48-strong Wittenberg University squad to one goal. In the first game of the season, Lisa scored four goals. She and Kara are the daughters of Kenneth and Pearl Van Dellen, of Nottingham Road.

Kalamazoo College senior Valerie Stone, of Grosse Pointe, has been named Kalamazoo College athlete of the week, Stone, who is captain of the women's cross country team, was honored for her performance in two recent meets. On Sept. 16, Stone finished third (19:05) in the Hope College Invitational and on Sept. 20, she won the Great Lakes Colleges Association meet at Albion with a personal best time of 18:27. Stone, a 1983 South High graduate, majors in biology. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brad Stone.

The Park's Peter Bolos was at it again Sept. 27 — competing in the Grosse Pointe Fun Run. He got caught in the rain during the course of the 10K event, but managed to finish first in his division (over 70) with a time of 52:28.

That's coach Domenic Facciola demonstrating the proper leg position for shooting to camper Jeff Basta. At the end of each session director David Backhurst presented trophies for spirit and skill. Spirit award-winners included Adam Gilreath, Stephen Andris, Tom Simmonds, Nicholas Rutan, Pat Moltane, Glenn Nadeau, Elizabeth Tymrak, R.J. Wolney, Peter DeVries, Jeff Barlow, Frankie Tymrak, Beth Bloisnick, Vassilis Jacobs, Mac Nutter, Aaron Zurschmiede, Jake Howlett, Danny Wright and Christian Dowe. Taking home skill awards were Gilreath, Joseph Portera, Jeff Geromette, Jay Disser, Matt Smucker, Brad Cenko, Joel Pouliot, Mike Shepard, John Long, Whit Spencer, Steve Davis, Chris Tiede, Peter Birgbauer, Tim Reynaert, Jason Danforth and Kevin Von Grabe.

East Detroit no match for Barons

The Red Barons enjoyed their second straight unbeaten weekend taking two wins and a tie from the East Detroit Tiger Cats on Oct. 5. The freshmen played to a 0-0 tie with East Detroit, thanks to a defense — led by Mike and David Tipple — which stopped the Tiger Cats repeatedly throughout the game. One highlight of the first half came when the defense stopped East Detroit on four consecutive plays inside the 10-yard line.

Also playing well on defense were Paul Gentile, Corey Greer, Wayne Ford, Robert Berger and Joe Thomas. As the fourth quarter wound down, the Barons marched to the Tiger Cat 4, behind the blocking of Wayne Ford and Andy McCroskey and the running of Brian Law and Derek Ottawaere and Gentile, but couldn't put the ball over the line.

The junior varsity recorded its third win, downing the Tiger Cats, 20-6. The Barons took an early lead when Drew Woodruff intercepted a pass and ran it back 30 yards for the score. Scott Spada kicked the two-point conversion, but the Tiger Cats answered with a long scoring drive and cut the lead to 8-6. The Barons were driving as time ran out in the first half, thanks to the blocking of linemen Tony Morgan, Tom Paquin, Chuck Heaphy and fullback Mike Miller and the running of Woodruff and Mike Haskell.

In the second half, the Red Barons defense held the Tiger Cats in check as Alex Brinker, Eric Coddens, Len Cugliari, Paul Misiewicz, David Applegate, Sam Sanom and Woodruff led the way. The offense took control and Haskell scored on runs of 1 and 39 yards to put the game away. Haskell totaled 120 yards and Woodruff, 84.

The Red Barons' varsity squad also beat the Tigers, 14-6, to run its record to 4-0. Brad Cromar scored on a 49-yard run around right end and after a failed extra point try, led 6-0. Cromar also excelled on defense, intercepting two Tiger Cat passes. Early in the second half, Cromar again broke free, running off tackle for a 40-yard touchdown behind the blocking of Josh Henry, Doug Brown, Matt Fowler and Adam Korzenewski. Steve Herbst kicked the extra point to put the Barons up, 14-0.

After the kickoff, the teams traded punts, but the Tiger Cats thwarted Grosse Pointe's attempt to get out of trouble by blocking the punt and taking possession inside the 10. They took four plays to get over the goal line and cut the margin to 14-6.

The Barons got the ball back and ate up a lot of time on the clock behind the running of Steve Craparotta, Tim Meinig and Herbst, drove to the Tiger Cat 6. East Detroit held them off and took the ball down with just two minutes left, but the Barons used the defensive prowess of Mark Adams, Gene Robinson, Jim Kutcher, Danny Watkins and Tom Dinverno to shut the Tiger Cats down and remain unbeaten in 1986.

Grosse Pointe Farms' John Welchli, 56, earned a victory in the Masters' Eightman.

The DBC's youth entry, comprised of North and South students Ian Vandervent, Scott Adams, Dave Glancy, Pete Macey, John Skupien, Mike Irwin, Pete Hannert, Tom Goodrich and Jeff Dossin — the youngest athletes at the regatta — humbled five university boats, including the University of Western Ontario and the London Boat Club. No place like home for South

It may not have been a picture-perfect setting for Homecoming Day, but Duff Berschback's 27-yard scoring run with 11:52 left in Saturday's game was a thing of beauty. It gave South's varsity football team a come-from-behind 7-6 victory over Eastern Michigan League rival L'Anse Creuse North.

Berschback was the Blue Devils' workhorse in the wet and windy homecoming game. He carried the ball 17 times for 92 yards; South had 116 yards overall including 32 yards passing. South's defense — in addition to limiting L'Anse Creuse North to one touchdown — held it to 173 yards rushing.

"We had three fumbles, but we recovered all three, so we were pretty lucky," said assistant coach Al Moebus.

South coaches praised the work of Mike Paull, who kept the Devils in the game with some long points, including a 68-yarder in the first half. Doug Lucas, Joe Reynolds, and Lance Harding played well on defense, Moebus said. Paull and Jamie Pangborn did an excellent job keeping the running game open with their blocking, he added.

"Dave Fannon did a great job at center. He blocked well, but more importantly, he had great snaps every time despite the weather," Moebus said.

The win improved South's overall mark to 2-3 and leveled its EML record to 2-2, good for third place in the league. The Devils visit Port Huron this Friday, Oct. 10 at 7:30 p.m.

"Port Huron has lost some tough ones . . . 6-0 and 13-7. For one of the best teams in the league, really, to be 1-3 in the EML, you know they've really been in some close ones," Moebus said.

"But if we can keep doing what we're doing and come right back and win these next three games, we'll be in business."

Girls are 10-0

South's girls' cross country team leads the EML in dual meets with a 5-0 record and with three meets remaining, is 10-0 overall. Last Saturday, the girls competed in the annual 35-team Center Line Classic and came away with a second place finish in the Class A division. South finished only behind Sterling Heights Stevenson — the defending state champion and the No. 2-ranked team in the state.

South's depth was evidenced by the second place finish by a second South varsity squad entered in the competition. A total of 10 South girls came away with medal honors — the highest number awarded any school at the meet.

Medal winners, in order of finish, included Toni Tedesco, Micha Song, Wendy Berger, Vicki Groustra, Reba Uthappa, Traci Lee, Michelle Brasseur, Rebecca Wasinger, Alexandra Anglewicz and Megan Smucker.

The girls' next action is today, Thursday, Oct. 9, at 4 p.m. at Vernier Hill against rival North High.

Kickers 9-1-0

South's varsity soccer team beat East Detroit, 6-0, last week, to run its season record to 9-1-0 heading into the district playoffs and a showdown with North this week.

Goal scorers for South were Rudy Cruz (three), Sam Steinhelb, Mike Disser and Tom Witt. Geoff Van Geeste, Kal Attie, Disser, George Sparrow and Witt were credited with assists.

South travels to North today, Oct. 9, at 5:30 p.m., and hosts East Detroit in district playoffs Oct. 13 at Elworth Field.

Harriers win

South's boys' cross country squad raised its record to 5-3 with a 17-44 victory over East Detroit last week. Senior Tony Murdock led the way for South; juniors Dave Nicholson and David Sultzman were second and third. At the Center Line Classic last Saturday, the entire team turned in season's best time. Sophomore Lew Echlin (17:22) and Phil Orton (17:30) had personal bests and freshman David Kerfoot became South's best freshman 5K runner in history with a 17:47. Junior Chris Sherwood and Murdock also had fine times as South finished 11th in a field of 31. The Devils meet North at Vernier Hill today, Oct. 9 at 4 p.m.

Gridders have a three-game shutout streak going

By Jamie Wheatley
North High

North High's varsity football team battled a driving rain and a muddy, slippery field last Saturday, to beat Lake Shore, 29-0, and extend its regular season winning streak to an astounding 21 games. North's defense continued its fine play, posting its third straight shutout. The Norsemen have not permitted a touchdown in 16 quarters of play.

North scored twice in the first quarter, on a 58-yard touchdown pass from junior quarterback Bruno Giglio to senior tight end Rob Olds, and a 6-yard jaunt by senior fullback Mike Miller. Giglio rambled 36 yards for a score to send North out to a 20-0 lead. In the second half, senior tailback Bill Smith ran it 11 yards for a score and senior kicker Bob Belser booted a 38-yard field goal to finish the scoring.

Miller again led North's offense with 151 yards in 16 carries. He now has seven touchdowns, four consecutive 100-yard games and 598 total yards rushing this season. North's JV squad kept pace, defeating Lake Shore on Oct. 2, 22-0. The JV is now at 5-0.

Both teams face the Lakeview Huskies this week. Game time is 1 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 11. In the following two weeks, the varsity Norsemen battle other Bi-County League frontrunners, South Lake (4-1, 2-1 in the league) on Oct. 18 and Clintondale (4-1, 4-0 in the league) Oct. 25.

Cagers 6-1

North's varsity basketball squad opened league play on Oct. 2 with a 68-28 victory over Clintondale. North was never challenged in the game, pulling in front early and never looking back. Missy Preston led the Lady Norsemen with 15 points; Mary Lex and Kim Reiter each had 11. Barbie Loeher continued her outstanding senior season with 10 points and 6 steals; Leslie Talos added 6 steals and 4 assists.

The JV basketball team continued to excel last week with wins over Romeo and Clintondale. On Sept. 30, the Lady Norsemen survived a late scare to beat Romeo, 46-44. North took a four-point half-time lead, but needed a last second shot by Dory Unger to win its fifth game in seven contests. Unger led North with 10 points, followed by Chris Salide with 8 and Heather Mergos, with 7. Amy Brennan and Melissa Champagne were outstanding defensively.

The cagers opened the league season with a 83-12 win over Clintondale. North forged to a 17-0 first quarter lead and went on to a record-breaking performance with 27 points in the final quarter to extend its record to 6-2 overall, 1-0 in the league. Brennan led North with 17 points, Unger and Salide had 16 each. Champagne hit double figures with 12.

The freshman basketball team was beaten by East Detroit, 37-36. Hope Peters led North with 12 points and 5 rebounds; Krissy Mack had 11 points, 5 assists and 7 steals.

Tankers unbeaten

North's girls' swim team stayed undefeated by cruising past South High on Sept. 30, 107-64. Heidi Mader set a North record for the backstroke with her time of 1:03.09. Making the state cutoff time in the 400 freestyle relay was the team of Katie Young, Kelen Mikulich, Kathy Kish and Sandy Smith. Young also qualified in the 500 free; North already has eight swimmers set to participate in the state finals in December. Also contributing to North's win over South were Cammy Mader in the 200 and 500 free; Laura Verona in the 200 IM and 100 fly; Smith in the 100 breast.

Soccer showdown

North prepared for its varsity showdown with rival South High (5:30 p.m. today, Oct. 9, at home) by combining a strong offense and defense to overpower Roseville, 7-0, in the only game last week. Dan Spitz and Lorenzo Cavaliere each scored twice and John Cartwright, Dan Regelbrugge, Ben Black and John Andary added one goal apiece.

With the win, North is 10-1-1. The Norsemen play Warren Woods Tower at 4 p.m. Oct. 13, at home in state tournament playoffs.

Golf victory

North's varsity golfers got back on track with an impressive win over Detroit Country Day School on Oct. 2 at Oakland Hills. Co-captain Ian MacNeil led the way with a 37; Jay Messner shot a 40. (By John Laskarides)

Harriers first

North's boys' and girls' cross country captured the Marysville Invitational last week. The boys racked up 60 points and the girls finished with 54 points. Senior John Van Syckle was seventh (17:23); seniors Adrian Weyhing and Tom Rice were 12th and 14th, respectively (17:37 and 17:53). Pete Kihn and Tim Billow finished one-two in the JV race.

For the girls, North placed five in the top 20 at Marysville, including Christy Drummy, fifth; Sandi Smith, sixth; Shannon Andrews, ninth; Teresa Donahue, 15th; Katie Beal, 20th. The girls upped their mark to 7-0 with a 19-40 win over Warren Cousino on Sept. 30.

Netters shine

North's girls' varsity tennis team managed to dodge the rain long enough to lose to Marian, 1-7, and to South High, 8-0, but to beat Kingswood, 6-2, in recent action.

Against Marian, the No. 2 doubles team of Andrea Thomas and Lynda Rayaos won, 6-0, 6-2. Winners against Kingswood included No. 2 singles player Jennifer Freidline, 1-6, 6-2, 6-4; No. 2 singles Christine Baretta, 6-4, 6-2; No. 1 doubles, Nicole Lehman and Beth Keys, 6-3, 6-4; and No. 2, 3 and 4 doubles, Thomas and Rayos, Heather McDonald and Nancy Giftos, and Kathy Sanom and Jennifer Orr.

"I'm proud of the girls and their win over Kingswood. They were a good and tough team, but the girls were able to come out on top in the end," said coach Trisha Gaskins.

North plays in the regionals at Mount Clemens on Oct. 10 and must finish in the top two to make the state finals.

Defense takes Knights to first varsity football victory

By Bill Listman
ULS

The University Liggett School varsity football team notched its first win on Saturday, Oct. 4 over Wesleyan Academy, 14-0.

Coach Bob Newvine said the key to the Knights' victory was their tenacious defense which held Wesleyan to 100 yards total offense. The Knights' defense was led by Agu Nwosu, Dike Ajiri, Greg Davis and Pahl Zinn. Mike Barnes had a key interception.

Bill Reuther's punting for ULS put Wesleyan inside its 5-yard line twice during the muddy, wet contest. Ajiri scored six points for the Knights on a 32-yard touchdown run. Tijuana Kidd scored the other touchdown by recovering a fumble and running it 27 yards into the end zone.

The Knights' next game is Friday, Oct. 10, at home against Detroit Country Day School.

Kickers win

Those who thought soccer could not be played last week amid the relentless showers were correct. Soccer, as we know it, was not possible on fields surfaced with more water than grass.

Nevertheless, the University Liggett School varsity soccer team traveled to Bethesda Christian High School on Oct. 3, battled for 80 minutes and emerged with a 1-0 win. Defender Blasko Ristic scored the lone goal on a corner kick. Goalkeeper Brian Curtiss was particularly sharp handling slippery soccer balls in the mud.

After the game, coach David Backhurst commented, "The conditions took away our passing game, but I am very pleased by the gritty performance of our solid defenders: co-captain Steve Schmidt, Bob Jewett, Mike Fozo, Ristic and Curtiss."

On Oct. 9, ULS takes on Huron Valley Lutheran School in a Michigan Independent Athletic Conference game at 4:30 p.m. The first district game for the Knights is scheduled for Oct. 15 at 4 p.m. vs.

Harper Woods at ULS. (By Mike Fozo)

Netters No. 1

Last week, the ULS varsity tennis team preserved its undefeated status in dual matches and emerged ranked No. 1 in the state of Michigan.

On Thursday, Oct. 2, coach Bob Hartwick's Lady Knights traveled to Ann Arbor to take on top-ranked Class A Huron High School. ULS toppled Huron 5-2, knocking them into the No. 2 position in the state rankings.

ULS, now 7-0, hosts Greenhills today, Oct. 9, at 4:15 p.m.

Athletes make news

Two University Liggett School students have been named as members of the 1986 Prince All-American tennis team. Junior John Yancey was named to the boys' All-American first team. Sophomore Dawn Martin was honored as an Honorable Mention All-American.

In August, Yancey advanced to the doubles finals in the boys' 16's division of the National Championships, held annually in Kalamazoo. Yancey was also awarded Academic All-American status, for his 4.0 sophomore year average. Martin played No. 1 singles for the Lady Knights.

Both the ULS girls' team, coached by Bob Hartwick, and the boys' team, coached by Bob Wood, won the Class C-D state championships last year.

David Schilling, a 17-year-old senior at University Liggett School took first place in the free dance competition of the Wyandotte Ice Dancing Invitational Sept. 27, with his partner, Mary Beck, a senior at Bishop Foley High School.

The pair also took third place in the compulsory dance competition, an event which features six required dances: foxtrot, European waltz, American waltz, blues, Killian and Argentine tango.

Last winter, Schilling and Beck won the novice division of the 22-state Midwestern Ice Dancing Championships. This year, the duo is competing in the junior division. Their next stop is the regionals.

ULMS kickers win again

On Thursday, Oct. 2, the University Liggett Middle School varsity soccer team sloshed to a hard-fought 1-0 victory against Jefferson Middle School.

Good goaltending by both keepers highlighted the contest, but Bill Wundram's perfect cross found Jason Shannon's foot in front of the Jefferson goal midway through the first period. From that point on,

'Children of a Lesser God' is about love

By Michael Chapp

There's a strong indication that autumn has arrived, and it has nothing to do with falling leaves, weekend football games or that chilly nip in the air. Autumn is here because summer is gone. Or, more specifically, the summer movie season has ceased, and gone with it are all of the movies made for people whose IQs are lower than the outdoor temperature.

In their place are intelligent movies made for a more sophisticated, demanding audience. First and foremost among this new slew of pictures is "Children of a Lesser God," a remarkably thoughtful and sublimely brilliant piece based on the stage play of the same name by Mark Medoff.

William Hurt, in his first role since grabbing the 1985 Oscar for Best Oscar, stars opposite newcomer Marlee Matlin in this story of a teacher and his experiences at a school for the deaf. Notwithstanding the story's location and the handicapped condition of one of the main characters, "Children" is not about the trials and tribulations of being deaf. And it's not about the challenges of being a teacher for the deaf either.

It's about love. In the picture's early moments, it's easy to be fooled into thinking otherwise. James Leeds (Hurt) accepts a job at a New Brunswick school for the deaf. Leeds, whose methods for teaching are somewhat out of step with those of his colleagues, quickly becomes very popular at the school, winning over his 11th-grade speech class with relative ease.

There is another deaf person at the school, however, who resists Leeds' electric personality. She's not a student at all, but a 25-year-old janitor who carries a chip on her shoulder the size of a small boulder. Her name is Sarah (Matlin), and she's been at the school since she was a student there. According to the school's superintendent, "She's a pain in the ass, and always has been."

Such unconcern on the part of the other staff members is what first draws Leeds to Sarah. After all, he always has followed the tune of a slightly different drummer. But, Sarah's chip-bearing shoulder is also very cold, and at the beginning, she turns it toward Leeds in no uncertain terms. Indeed, during the encounter in which Leeds tries to explain to her the benefits of learning to talk, she walks out of the room in the middle of one of his sentences. He knows from the beginning it won't be easy.

Before long, however, Leeds is no longer interested in being teacher to Sarah. His interests are of the romantic variety. And slowly, as their relationship develops, the teacher-student relationship takes on an entirely different set of dynamics.

Leeds and Sarah move in together, and he promises that he will never ask her to do anything she does not feel comfortable doing. The closer they get, the less interested he is in teaching her, but the more interested he is in helping her reach her full potential. He pushes her, but only in the hope that she will push herself.

For quite awhile, the two of them live happily together. But as Sarah becomes more comfortable with who she is as a person, she becomes less willing to accept as gospel what Leeds tells her. In a particularly explosive confrontation, Sarah tells Leeds that she will never again let anybody communicate for her. Never again will she be intimidated from doing something because of her condition. And never again will she be a pawn for someone else to satisfy some misdirected altruistic urgings.

Such words force Leeds to completely re-evaluate not only the way he has been treating Sarah, but who he is inside, and what his true motivations really are. He also must examine his notion of love, and what being in love means for the parties involved. In short, he learns, it means finding a place where two individuals can come together as one. It means opening up the heart.

All of these themes are examined closely and pointedly in "Children," without slipping slipping into a melodramatic trap. Given the premise, melodrama would have been an easy thing to do. But the direction of Randa Haines is so sharp and the performances by Hurt and Matlin so exquisite that the picture is as real and human as anything seen on the screen this year.

Hurt, on the heels of last year's "Kiss of the Spider Woman," further demonstrates his chutzpah in choosing projects. Not for him are the quickie jobs for easy money. In "Kiss," he was a homosexual trapped in a prison of both physical and emotional bars. In "Children," he is an ordinary man in extraordinary circumstances. This performance is at least as good as the one that earned him his Oscar.

Matlin, for her part, comes close to stealing the picture from Hurt. As the deaf janitor, she expounds more eloquently on love and sharing than a host of other voiced characters have. Here is a case of an actress doing more with only one line of dialogue than the majority do with an entire script.

It's impossible not to walk away from "Children" not changed in some way, even if it's only a willingness to examine one's motivations and desires. Sure, the film takes place at a school for the deaf.

Yes, it has the opportunity to elicit pathos for its characters. But it does not work exclusively on such a pointblank level. It is instead a spiritual piece — one that demands more than just emotion from the viewer.

It's about love. And, indeed, love is what it's all about. The movie is loud and clear on that.

Dancers celebrate in Fosse's 'Dancin'

By Marian Trainor
"Dancin'" is a joy-filled musical that dazzles as it entertains. It has no plot, no boy-meet-girl situations, no villains, no orphans.

It presents a series of Broadway production numbers expertly choreographed and directed by Bob Fosse who has no peer in that department. Among the musicals he has choreographed are such successes as "Pajama Game," "Damn Yankee," "Pippin" and "Sweet Charity." "Dancin'," which opened on Broadway in 1978, was his eleventh Broadway hit in a row.

The musical has made the rounds, including the Fisher in 1981 and 1982 when it was hailed as a glittering showcase of choreographic genius.

It has lost nothing of its freshness or power to entertain. The presentation at the Birmingham Theatre, through Oct. 28, is not the full-scale production that was seen at the Fisher. But with the team of professional dancers assembled, it is a rousing exhibition of the Broadway musical style. Much of its appeal comes from the performers' ability to inspire in the audience an enthusiasm and appreciation of the dancers' talents and abilities.

Featuring the music of 25 composers ranging from Bach to Romberg to Sousa to Neil Diamond, the show runs the gamut of the dancers' repertoire, from soft-shoe to disco. Along the way, the performers dance their hearts out and, one has to think their feet off as well, as they interpret the music on their own style.

Fosse is known for putting sex appeal into body movements. All through the production the audience is made aware of this provocative touch as hips, pelvises and shoulders move to the beat of the music.

How well this works is the enthusiastic response to a show-stopping big-band number, "Big Noise From Winnetka," in which three jitterbugs become one with three heads and six arms and set a throbbing tempo that is later amplified into "Sing, Sing, Sing" for the entire company.

In contrast is "Recollections of an Old Dancer, Mr. Bojangles," a softshoe number in which an aging black hooper is shadowed by an incarnation of himself as a young man.

A number that brings back another era is "Dancing Man," a tribute to Fred Astaire. Presented with a company in white tuxedos, straw skimmers and gloves and silk ties for belts, it creates a dreamy atmosphere as the dancers tap their toes and glide across the stage.

Then, there's the modern "Fourteen Feet," in which black-lighted dancers turn into be-bopping cartoon characters made of orange and chartreuse, glow-in-the-dark strips.

It is not often that audiences are treated to an evening of seeing professional dancers showcased by a choreographer who is devoted to celebrating their talents. "Dancin'" gives audiences that opportunity.

Seven out of 10 spectacles wearers keep their glasses on almost all the time they're awake.

"I'm sick of her ruining our lives."

When confronted with a mental illness, many families experience a wide range of confusing and upsetting emotions. From outrage to despair, shame and denial. They often blame victims for causing worry, embarrassment, family strife. And they can often blame themselves. "Was it my fault?" "Where did I go wrong?" But, mental illness is no one's fault. Least of all those afflicted. It's a serious medical illness that affects one in four families—afflicting 35 million Americans from all walks of life. Recognizing the warning signs and seeking professional treatment for your loved one can be the first steps to reducing family fears and confusion. And to actually healing the sickness. Today, mental illness need not be hopeless. Due to recent progress in research and treatment, two out of three victims can get better and lead productive lives. But they can't do it alone. They need your compassion, support, and understanding. Learn more. For an informative booklet, write: The American Mental Health Fund, P.O. Box 17700, Washington, D.C. 20041. Good fall salmon runs expected

Salmon fishing — which netted Michigan's economy approximately $190 million in 1985 — should provide anglers with a strong, although not record-setting season, reports AAA Michigan.

Biologists at 14 state Department of Natural Resources fisheries across Michigan predict 1986 salmon catches will be as good as 1985, but will not equal the record 1984 season. Salmon were first planted in the Great Lakes in 1967.

Great Lakes salmon runs — both chinook and coho — should peak through mid-September as the fish begin to school before moving into spawning streams. From now through mid-October, the best action should be in the 40 streams listed in AAA Michigan's 1986 Salmon Fishing Guide.

Approximately 8.5 million salmon are planted annually in the Great Lakes and about 20 percent, or 1.7 million fish, survive for spawning runs. Nearly 50 percent of those plants are in Lake Michigan, with 41 percent in Lake Huron, 8 percent in Lake Superior and about 1 percent in the Huron River near Detroit.

Chinook will generally run from 5 to 25 pounds but can reach 35 pounds. Coho average 6 to 8 pounds.

All salmon and trout anglers now are required to purchase a general fishing license, a major change since last fall's runs. Spouse permits no longer are issued free.

The annual resident license and the trout/salmon stamp cost $7.25 each. The non-resident general license is $20.25. For senior citizens, a husband and wife can still fish for $1 annually.

According to the Travel, Tourism and Recreation Resource Center at Michigan State University, nearly 30 percent of all non-resident anglers who come to Michigan fish for salmon. The average salmon angler will spend $258 per trip including travel and preparation. The average salmon trip lasts five days.

Lake salmon action reaches its peak when fish begin schooling near parent streams. Salmon start schooling when the water temperature reaches 60 degrees, but chinook and coho feed at 54 degrees where alewives and other forage fish are found.

Many anglers, including charter captains, use a graph or depth finder to locate schools of fish. The graph also can help spot the thermocline, the oxygen-rich strata of water between a warm water upper layer and a cold water lower area which is a good place to find salmon.

Trollers will find chinook by running bait 10 to 15 feet off the lake bottom. Coho success is best in the upper 30 feet within 10 miles of shore. Both chinook and coho will go deeper as the water temperature rises and they will scatter in inclement weather.

Best trolling baits are Northport Nailers, Huron Herrings, J-Plugs, Canadian Plugs, Squids, Sparkle Flies, Dodgers, Flutter Chucks and Zippers. For stream fishing, Mepps Spinners, Little Cleos, salmon flies and spawn work well.

Great Lakes charter fishing is becoming increasingly popular for salmon fishermen and the number of registered charter boats has swelled more than 500 percent since 1978. Some 239,000 persons took charter fishing trips for all types of fish in 1985 and paid approximately $13.8 million in charter fees.

Salmon snagging with artificial baits or unweighted hooks is legal on parts of four West Michigan rivers from Sept. 10 through Oct. 25. They are the Big Manistee, Pere Marquette, Muskegon and Sable rivers. Snagging is not permitted this year on the Au Sable River in East Michigan. The DNR's 1986 fishing guide lists the liberalized areas for each stream. From Sept. 10 through Oct. 31, the Ocqueoc River is closed to fishermen from Lake Huron to US-23.

The Michigan Department of Public Health advises children and pregnant or nursing mothers to not consume salmon. Others should avoid more than 26 pounds per year.

Senior icers open play

The Grosse Pointe Senior 30 and over league began play Sept. 26 at the Grosse Pointe Community Rink. The local team is sponsored by Mrs. Elizabeth Eldridge, of Century 21 East.

The Pointe squad opened the season with a 3-0 victory over Computer Horizons. Goal scorers were Jerry Rajter, Dennis Galli and Ian Gilroy.

It's Homecoming — the Safe driving Season

It's Homecoming Season in Michigan! A great time to celebrate past victories and rekindle old friendships. Or to just visit the folks and sit by an open fire on a cool autumn day. It also means extra miles on the family car when the weather is changing and road conditions are unpredictable. All excellent reasons to drive safely and buckle up. After all, the nicest part of Homecoming is — Coming Home . . . Safe.
