A good guy

Twelve-year-old Erik Mathews, a seventh-grader at Brownell Middle School, almost caused the whole family to miss the opening kickoff at the Michigan-Michigan State game Oct. 11 in Ann Arbor. It seems Erik was hurrying to finish deliver-ing The Detroit News to the 35 or so people on his route, when he noticed newspapers were piling up on the front porch of a Ridge Road customer.

He took the time to find out why.

With the help of a neighbor and some tight maneuvering through a milk chute, 81-yearold Isabel Roney was rescued after spending two days alone, unable to get up from the floor after a fall.

"Erik is a very intelligent and thoughtful little boy," she said. "I appreciate what he did."

Erik saw the kickoff in Ann Arbor — and had time to spare. He is the son of Chuck and Judy Mathews, of Hillcrest Lane.

Stanhope Road residents complain of road — again Council to meet Nov. 10

By Margie Reins Smith

More than 60 Stanhope Road residents returned for the second time to attend Monday evening's Grosse Pointe Woods city council meeting.

Residents are dissatisfied with ne recent chip and s tion used to resurface Stanhope between Mack and Harper.

ministrator Chester E. Petersen. Petersen reported on Monday. "Streets are not financed by prop-erty tax money," he said. "All street capital improvements are financed from the city's share of Michigan tax on gasoline and other state revenue-sharing monies."

Stanhope's existing asphalt surrepaired ling irregularities and filling pot holes. cracks and joints. Then the total surface was sealed with a chip and seal application, he said. "The de-cision to use a specific type of repair is made by a team of city engineers, myself and the director of public works," Petersen said.

maintenance after two to three years.

The cost of chip and seal is approximately $2.10 per square yard, compared to $6.12 per square yard for asphalt, Petersen said.

Grosse Pointe Woods has been using chip and seal applications since 1980, with only minor complaints about dust and loose aggregate. Petersen presented a list of local streets that have received chip and seal applications since 1980. About a dozen residents spoke concerning their continued dis-satisfaction with the Stanhope surface. One resident pressed the council for a decision.

Recycling in Pointes feasible, study says

By Nancy Parmenter The five Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods are ideal for a recycling project. Glass, tin and newspaper could be convenient and profitable enough to be collected for recycling in the six communities, according to a new study con-tracted by the Wayne County Planning Department. The study was conducted last spring and summer and issued last week. Officials from the six municipalities and other communities included in the study have not yet received their copies, although some were briefed at a presentation two weeks ago.

The study, which was paid for through a grant from the Clean Michigan Fund, recommends that the county move ahead on recycling glass, tin and newspaper, as well as office paper in two county buildings. The county solid waste committee is to meet Thursday to begin formulating a strategy to implement the program, according to Maury Roach, county planning director.

There is no requirement that local communities wait for the county plan, Roach said. "Communities can run with it themselves,' he said. "I think we would en-courage that. The more local communities are involved with their own solid waste disposal, the better. Ideally, (self-determination) is what we'd hope would happen." Roach said he expects planning to move right ahead at the county level, with implementation strategy in place before the holidays. It would take longer than that to actually get a program functioning.

The Pointes and Harper Woods are uniquely suited for a recycling project, according to the report. From a practical standpoint, they are joined in a municipal incinerator authority, which could be used to handle the project. The incinerator authority could also be a problem in that the member communities are bound by contract to send their entire waste stream to the Pointes-Clinton facility in Clinton Township. It is probably only if the recycling could be seen as easing the looming capacity crunch that the project could move ahead in the recommended form. It would likely mean renegotiating the current contract between the municipalities and the authority. It currently costs the six communities from $47 (Harper Woods) to $136 (Grosse Pointe City) per ton to collect and dispose of municipal residential waste. The report estimates the cost of recycling at $55 to $99 per ton for the city of Dearborn Heights, one of three target communities studied in depth.

geted communities, which include Allen Park, Livonia, Plymouth, Romulus, Brownstown and Canton, as well as the cities already mentioned, have the characteristics of communities elsewhere in the nation where recycling has proven workable.

"They have sufficient population and population density to make a program cost-effective," the re-port states. "Their citizenries tend to be on the higher end of the socioeconomic scale, which, ex-perience suggests, is conducive to high participation.'

A suggested program would schedule recycling curbside pick-up on the same day as garbage col-lection. Residents would bag or tie newspapers, rinse and flatten tin cans and rinse and remove the caps from glass containers.

Local governments would or-ganize pickup times, storage sites, public education programs and administration. The project could be done in conjunction with the incinerator authority or — with proper contractual agreement separately. The report recommends that the state provide technical assistance and, possibly, funding and that the county offer organizational help.

The report sees "no serious compatibility problems" with current waste management systems. On the legal side, contracts can be renegotiated. On the technical side, "recent research indicates that a multi-material curbeide recycling program will not nega-tively affect the energy value of solid waste, as such a program extracts non-combustibles alone, with paper fiber, thereby often not lowering the heat value of the remaining waste. The critical issue, then, is plant sizing, whereby recyclables are needed to fulfill the contractual waste flow needs of an incinerator.' The six east side communities were selected for participation in the study on the basis of a letter sent out by the county planning department. Those communities that responded to the letter were included.

Daughter Leona Kolb, with whom she lives in the Woods when she's not in Florida, said her mother is very active. She still drives and she'll play any game of cards - you name it -bridge, pinochle, rummy, poker.

In lieu of gifts, each family member was asked to make a commitment to the honoree, such as taking her to lunch or visiting or writing her a letter.

At the Oct. 6 council meeting, they complained about the noise, the safety, the appearance, the loose stones and the standing water on their street. -A 12-member committee that includes the city manager and a council representative has been appointed by Mayor Palmer Heenan to study the flood plain issue.

The committee had been re-quested by City Manager John Crawford to look into ways to eliminate the flood plain designation for some 600 homes in the Park. One proposal to build a five-foot dike along Fox Creek was widely criticized.

The committee will meet for the first time Wednesday, Oct. 29, at 7:30 p.m. at city hall. Chairman Fred Olds said the first order of business will be to ask the mayor to explain to the committee its charge. Crawford will then be asked to review the entire matter.

"I think anything we do will be in consideration of what Detroit will do," Olds said. "Then we'll ask Hubbel, Roth and Clark (city engineers) for their proposal. The charge of the committee is to remove the Park from the flood plain.'

Missing: one parking offer

The City of Grosse Pointe is still hoping that its last offer to buy the Kroger parking lot in the Village shopping area is alive, but City Manager Thomas Kressbach said Monday that he hadn't heard anything.

Neither has anybody else. The offer was made after the bids were opened and before they were awarded. "It was separate and apart from the bid process to, I assume, show that we could make more on it and that the bids were too low," said school Super-intendent John Whritner last week. 'Once the bid was awarded, then all bets were off."

Whritner confirmed that the offer was higher than any of the bids, 'but we decided it wasn't appropriate to accept it after the other bids were received.'

Bid winner Pamela Stanton hasn't heard anything either. She and her partner, Beverly Hall Burns, are looking into the possibility of having a private compa-ny operate the lot and haven't had any conversation with the city since before the bids were awarded. Flatly, "no." Judith Goodnow Prus, whose consortium is backing the city offer, has heard nothing of negotia-tions. "When I read it (in last week's Grosse Pointe News), that was the first I knew of it," she said. "I'm not negotiating with anybody.

But, "I hope everybody will continue to talk on the matter." Kressbach said. "There's interest on the part of the city and the Prus group in keeping it in affordable public parking.

If anybody knows what's going on, they're not saying. "All my contacts have been

second-hand," said Kressbach. - Nancy Parmenter

Bryant, Resowski in 13th District

William R. Bryant

State Rep. William R. Bryant will be the senior Republican in Lansing if he gains re-election -and he hinted that he would take a hard look at running for Speaker of the House. Bryant is running for his eighth term.

As vice chairman of the House Taxation Committee, Bryant was the author of the bill that brought the state income tax rate down to 4.6 percent for the whole year. To do it, he came up with the idea of the tax amnesty, which netted the state $100 million - twice as much as needed to get the rate down. Now, with the federal income tax picture so changed, Bryant has staffers studying the possibility of bringing the state rate down to four percent. He expects a battle with Democrats.

'The task will be to see that the new rate yields no more dollars than the old formula," he said. "But easy times to gain revenue don't come along very often and the Democrats might not want to cut." It is possible that the legislature could agree to a wait-andsee period to assess the effects of the federal program and "in effect, let the revenue set the rate.'

The state may be at an historic point in the war on crime, Bryant said. "The neighborhoods in Detroit seem really ready to do some-thing. If we blow the opportunity to show these people that when they're ready, we're ready to help them, we may never have another opportunity. We have to do everything we can.'

"Everything" includes technical assistance and possibly hardware, Bryant said — "anything to help any non-vigilante group. Even Coleman Young now says it's necessary for neighbor to report neighbor.'

The situation has become so bad that people - especially poor peofear everybody in authority, my career significantly. Some don't get the advantage of working on a special, major project - and they never blossom. I discovered a talent for creative problemsolving.

The most significant legislation he has sponsored would have to include the wetlands bill and the mortgage redlining bill as well as the tax measures, he said

Being a legislator is still his fa-vorite job. "I still love it," Bryant said. "If you go in brittle and radi-cal, you're not gonna survive. But if you recognize the incredible complexity of human society, you can feel deep satisfaction.'

Nancy Resowski Nancy Resowski has been politically active since she was a student at Grosse Pointe North High School. Now it seems like a "natural progression" to become a candidate.

Resowski, 33, picked a tough challenge when she decided to go up against dean of the Republican House, William Bryant, in an attempt to become one of the rare Democrats elected in Grosse Pointe. But Resowski doesn't view it as Mission Impossible.

"I'm not sure the incumbent has adequately represented the in-terests of Harper Woods and Detroit," she said. As part of her walking campaign, she has asked people who their representative is, 'and they think it's one of the Hertels.

Grosse Pointe itself is not as Republican as everybody thinks, Resowski says. "Many of the younger people are social liberals and fiscal conservatives," she said. "The attitude isn't overall as conservative.'

The Democratic party has told Resowski that she can expect a 33 percent Democratic base vote in the Pointes, not enough to convince the powers-that-be to finance her campaign. "My war chest isn't huge," she said. "People ask me if I'm on a Kamikaze mission. But a district shouldn't be written off by a party. No Democrat has waged an active campaign here. I don't think any seat anywhere should be written off. No seat belongs to a party or an individual - it has to be earned.

Resowski's personal interests are in the field of social services:

Nancy Resowski

services and issues dealing with the elderly, transportation, health care. She wants to find new ways of looking at state services.

"We'll always need a safety net," she said, "but why not edu-cate and train them while they're on assistance to enable them to become independent? One way to do that, she said, would be for the state to invest in needed businesses (for example, inner city grocery stores). "The state could literally set up the store and train the employees. Eventually, the employees could buy it out. It's a way to provide service to the community while training the unemployed. People have to learn to expect less from the government and accept more responsibility for themselves."

As a political activist, Resowski has been surprised at the lack of interest in politics she has encountered, she said. "There's a lot of apathy out there which I found quite disappointing," she said. "People are more interested in roads than in crime or education.'

People are no longer interested in the income tax issue, Resowski has found, although they still gripe about their property taxes. Resowski herself believes the state should not rush into an income tax cut in response to the new federal program.

"The ramifications of the federal tax law have yet to be seen," she said. "They'll be tinkering for some time.

A pro-choice candidate, Resowski says she would support Medicaid-funded abortions. She is also opposed to Republican talk about a voucher system for private schools.

"Vouchers would destroy the public education system," she said.

She favors drug education at an early age - preferably first grade - and favors state-allocated funds for general health services for school students, including birth control information, but not devices.

Resowski coordinated Gary Hart's presidential campaign in metropolitan Detroit — at the same time she worked locally for the re-election of Carl Levin to the U.S. Senate.

"I've spent a lot of time carry-ing petitions," she said. "It seems like a natural progression to be-come a candidate. If you're politically active and dealing with issues, you certainly take a keen interest in what affects you. Government affects everybody. One person does make a difference.

Resowski works as communications services coordinator at Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. She attended Eastern Michigan University.

Berg appointed to Farms seat

The Farms City Council voted unanimously Monday night to appoint Emil Berg, an attorney, to fill he vacancy on the government body.

Berg, a 25-year resident of the Farms, fills the spot on the council left after the death of Mayor James H. Dingeman. Interim Mayor Joseph Fromm was absent from the council's proceedings.

The appointment is to fill out the remainder of the vacant term, until 1987.

Berg lives on Kenwood Court. He is married and has one child. He is a graduate of Notre Dame University, 1954. He received his law degree from the University of Detroit School of Law in 1957.

He is a partner of the firm, Lizza, Mulcahy, Berg and Casey, P.C., in Detroit.

He was chairman of the Mayor's Advisory Planning Commission in the Farms for six years, and had been a member of that commission for 10 years.

He was a clerk for Federal District Judge Raymond Kelly from 1959 to 1960.

Mayor Pro-Tem Harry Eckland said there had been several others interested in the position, including local real estate broker George "Skip" Baer.

Resigns

James P. Curran, Grosse Pointe councilman, resigned his post Monday. He and his family have moved to Lansing. He had been appointed deputy director of the Michigan Department of Corrections last year and had been commuting. Curran served as councilman since November 1981. The city council adopted a resolution of appreciation thanking him for his community service.

Bryant said.

'It's easy for them to believe that the Establishment is against them. It's the people against The Man - and that includes anybody in authority - police, social workers - the people who could help.

"The situation has become so untenably violent, it isn't safe for a cop to walk the beat, yet that was the way the police knew the neighborhood best.

Bryant said he believes the state has not done enough about organized crime and the career criminal. "Organized crime doesn't look the way it used to," he said. "It's not always Mafiarelated. It's harder to go after because it doesn't have the hierarchical structure. But you have to keep incredible pressure on these people.

The state could keep the pressure on through longer prison sentences and increased prosecution, he said. "We need some incentive to the counties for better prosecution rates. Getting the career criminal is the only way to really affect the crime rate.

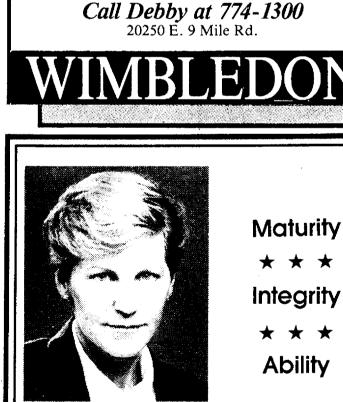

The funding of abortions through Medicaid is an issue that crops up in Lansing every year. Bryant said his thinking on the subject has evolved.

In the early 1970s, he supported it on the grounds that it is discriminatory not to allow the poor the same services as the rich. In 1975, the only year with statistics, he said, the Department of Social Services showed a large number of repeat abortions (approximately 700 women with two or more) and he began to vote against it, although he never voted to override the governor's veto. Bryant said he worked with other moderate legislators to find a compromise, but was never successful. In 1980, further statistics showed continuing repeat abortions and he began to think "maybe we were actually discriminating against blacks by making it so easy for them." Now he supports the override of the veto as well.

Bryant says he is fortunate in getting off on the right foot as a freshman legislator 16 years ago, when he was assigned as a oneman subcommittee to write the mandatory special education bill.

"I was the legislator to write that bill," he said. "It probably affected

Two Safe Rides groups begin operation

The Grosse Pointe North Side Safe Rides program will begin operation for the school year Friday, Oct. 24. Every Friday and Saturday night from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m., students from Grosse Pointe North, University Liggett and Star of the Sea will meet at ULS to take calls from local teenagers and provide safe and confidential rides home.

The North Side Program was started last spring. A similar group from South High School is in its third successful year of operation at the War Memorial.

Operating out of the War Memorial for South and out of University Liggett for the north side, the two Grosse Pointe Safe Rides programs are Explorer Posts of the Boy Scouts of America. Every student and adult participant must join the Boy Scouts, because this organization provides the insurance for the program. This student-run group is designed to provide a free and confidential ride home (within the Grosse Pointe school district boundaries) to any student who is not in condition to drive safely or to any student who wants to avoid being a passenger in such a situation.

On a typical Safe Rides night, volunteer student workers and Endorsed by M.A.D.D. and adult supervisors meet to take calls and give rides. One student is the dispatcher, handling all incoming calls as well as maintaining contact via radio with each team out on a call. The other students are paired into co-ed driving teams. The adult is on duty strictly for consultation if help is needed. In no instance does the adult give a ride.

The Boy Scouts of America/Safe Rides Program does not condone teenage drinking and makes every effort to make young adults aware of the danger of alcohol and other drug use. Its primary purpose is to prevent needless deaths.

Safe Rides also has the potential to increase young people's awareness about drinking or using other drugs while operating an automobile. Concern for each other's safety should lead to a greater appreciation of the risks and responsibilities associated with this critical issue.

Although there is adult guidance, the program's basic premise is that responsible young people can have a positive and meaningful impact on the problems of alcohol and other drug abuse, particularly as they relate to the inevitable risks of driving while under the influence.

choice between Pointers

Two young and attractive Grosse Pointers who have never before run for public office will face each other Nov. 4 in the race for county commissioner from the First District which includes the Grosse Pointes.

With the post being vacated by Commissioner John Hertel, who lost the Democratic nomination for county executive in the primary, the two youthful candidates are on the campaign trail with traditional Republican and Democratic arguments - plus some special ones of their own.

David P. Cavanagh, who observed his 31st birthday just last Sunday, is a Grosse Pointe Woods Democrat who is seeking to follow in the political footsteps of his late father, Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh of Detroit, and his uncle, Michael F. Cavanagh, an associate justice of the Michigan Supreme Court.

Yet he is not yet certain that he will make politics a full-time career. He says public service is a "proud tradition" in his family and expresses the hope of continuing in that tradition. But if elected he will continue as a stockbroker in Detroit unless he finds that the commissioner's job takes so much time he won't be able to do justice to either one. If that occurs, he'd resign his job in private enterprise, he says.

Philip M. Andrews II, 27, is a Grosse Pointe Park Republican who first seriously got interested in party politics in 1982 when he opposed Gov. James Blanchard in his first bid for governor. Andrews said he had been impressed by Richard Headlee, the 1982 GOP nominee, and the Republican philosophy of less govern-ment control, and had been unimpressed with Blanchard's record as a Michigan congressman.

Andrews, like his opponent, regards service on the county board as a part-time job that will enable him to continue with his real estate work. That is consistent with his belief that government is too large. He says he'd like to reduce or eliminate the unrealistic expectations placed on government that, when realized, often place a burden on society. He wants government to create the environment to encourage and enable people to achieve success on their own

He goes so far as to recommend that Social Security, unemployment insurance, health insurance and even retirement programs should be put on a voluntary basis because taxes for such programs reduce the individual's income and the employer's profit. He supports more privatization of government services, which, he claims, are counterproductive by present standards

Andrews is running, he says, to see whether

he can make a contribution to solving current problems and to try to hold county government more accountable to the people. He finds a good deal of apathy among the electorate but feels that despite the lack of specific issues, he has a realistic chance to win in a district that has been Democratic since the most recent reapportionment.

Cavanagh says he wants the district's constituents to identify more with Wayne County government and claims that people now often feel out of touch with what's going on. He himself would seek increased road improvement, close assessment of the budget to see that the public pays no more than necessary for its services, greater attention to public safety and elimination of the office of the drain commis-sioner, which citizens will have the opportunity to vote out of existence on Nov. 4.

He also thinks that salaries of Wayne County officials should be increased if they are not in line with others doing similar work, but emphasizes that the county board chose a poor time to recommend pay increases in view of the current county deficit. Once the budget is resolved, he thinks, pay scales for Wayne County should be competitive.

Andrews agrees that Wayne County roads need more attention, and also favors elimination of the drain commissioner. But he takes a much harder line against the proposed wage increases for Wayne County officials. He said he can't imagine what the county board does to deserve higher pay and believes that the fair market value of people in county offices ought to determine their pay. He simply doubts that their value is as high as set in the new pay schedule.

Cavanagh, while not just running on his name, does emphasize that he could be more effective than a Republican "downtown," and that the ties he made through his father and uncle would be beneficial in helping him get things done if he is elected. He also feels he could be effective in helping pull the "fragmented" commissioners together and make them more effective. His experience in budgeting and his training in public law and government also would be beneficial, in his view.

Both young men appear to be seriously dedicated to public service, one perhaps more be-cause of family tradition and the other perhaps more because of his personal philosophy. Yet either one would well serve the district's interests. Since, however, there currently is only one Republican on thesio-member board, the Grosse Pointe News recommends election of Philip Andrews to provide at least a second voice from the minority party on the Wayne County Commission.

13th District confrontation

An eight-term Grosse Pointe legislator, Rep. William R. Bryant Jr., who would become the senior member of the state House of Representatives if re-elected Nov. 4, is being challenged this year by another Pointer, Nancy Resowski, who is making her first run at public office. That confrontation adds to the interest in the 13th District race.

Miss Resowski says that running for office is a "natural progression" from her continuing interest in political issues since her school days at Parcells Junior High and North High School in the Pointes. She admits she is facing an uphill battle since even her Democratic colleagues have advised her the district is only about 33 percent Democratic.

But, she says, she is trying to be the first Democrat in recent years to wage a meaningful campaign against Bryant. She says she is encouraged by the support she is getting from former Grosse Pointe classmates and Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths' attendance at her fundraiser, although she admits the Democratic Party has not provided much help.

Republican Bryant, on the other hand, is running for the ninth time. While he is doing as much campaigning as ever before in a general election, he recognizes that his district, which comprises the Pointes, Harper Woods and a small area of Detroit, still is a GOP island in the Democratic sea of Wayne County. A former minority leader of the House and currently vice chairman of the House Taxation Committee, Bryant might consider making a bid for the post of speaker if he is re-elected and the GOP regains control of the House. The current 57 to 53 division does give the Republicans a legitimate chance at victory, in Bryant's view. During his years of service, Bryant has won a reputation as a creative problem-solver. For example, he originated in the House Taxation Committee the tax amnesty idea that was adopted by the Legislature and the Blanchard administration and put into effect last spring. He also was responsible for working out the complex formula that tied the income tax rate to the state's revenues from the amnesty. When the revenues from the amnesty more than doubled the original $50 million estimate, the rate dropped back to 4.6 percent for the full year. Bryant says that crime is a high-priority issue in Michigan. He wants the state to provide technical assistance, training and equipment to help Detroit and other crime-ridden communities, especially now that the people themselves have become aroused about the issue. Gov. James Blanchard now has taken action himself to halt the early release of criminals, a move Bryant had sought through legislation. He also feels the state must put the most violent criminals in prison and supports the building of more prisons to serve that purpose. Miss Resowski claims that Bryant has not represented his district well on constituent services. She says a poll showed that many district residents think either John Hertel, the retiring county commissioner, or John Kelly, who is seeking re-election as state senator, is the state representative, or say they don't know who is. She claims Bryant is out of touch with the people and that accounts for his low name recognition as well as the apathy she finds in the district.

As for state issues, she says that services and issues affecting the elderly require more atten-tion. That includes not only nursing home care but transportation and other problems of the elderly. While she says the government can't solve every problem and people must take more responsibility for their own actions, she believes the schools could do more to help alert children to the dangers of drugs, even as early as the first grade. And she favors the aim of a pending bill to provide funds from lottery receipts for general health services, including birth control information, for young people who can't afford health services.

The two candidates, who were interviewed separately, differ somewhat on further cuts in the income tax rate. Bryant says a 4 percent rate might be possible, but says it might be necessary to let the revenues dictate the rate for 1987 because the new federal tax law is exate revenues if the rate is left cted to boost s at 4.6 percent. Miss Resowski, on the other hand, wants to wait to see the full ramification and impact of the federal tax law revisions on Michigan's revenues before making any further cuts in state rates. They do differ sharply on Medicaid-funded abortions. Bryant supported the program in earlier years but when he learned that more than 700 women in one year had two or more Medicaid-funded abortions, he voted to stop further state support. Earlier, he had also tried to restrict the use of Medicaid-funded abortions, but now he votes to override the governor's veto of legislation banning Medicaid-supported abortions. Miss Resowski, on the other hand, says she is pro-choice on abortion and would not vote to override the governor's veto of legislation banning Medicaid funding.

control engineer for General Motors is a kind of Republican Don Quixote. He has waged unsuccessful campaigns in recent years for county commissioner, state Senate, U.S. Congress and, briefly, governor of Michigan, all in the interest of what he views as more economical government and lower taxes.

Now Lauve is on the political prowl again. This time he is making his second race against state Sen. John Kelly of Detroit. And while once more he is an underdog in view of the Democratic coloration of the district, his purpose is understandable. He wants to join the state Senate GOP majority that he claims he helped create in 1983 through his support for the recall of two state senators in Macomb County.

In backing the Macomb County recall campaigns, Lauve was fighting on the same battlefield issue he used against Gov. James Blanchard. In both cases, the issue was the 38 percent state income tax increase voted in 1983 by the Democratic Legislature at the request of the governor. When the Macomb recalls succeeded and Republicans replaced the two ousted Democrats, the Republicans took control of the Senate. Lauve's own attempted recall of Blanchard foundered, however, when the courts upheld the law limiting the period for obtaining signatures on petitions supporting the recall.

Kelly is the target of Lauve's slings and arrows on the same tax issue. Kelly cast the 20th and deciding Senate vote for the income tax increase, switching to support it after having opposed it in the Finance Committee. Kelly's explanation is that he recommended an increase in the state sales tax as an alternative to the income tax hike. He says he would have used the additional revenues to retire the $1.7 billion state debt piled up, he says, during former GOP Gov. William Milliken's reign. After the retirement of the debt, Kelly says he would have used the funds for property tax relief. But, Kelly says, when the Senate Republicans scuttled his sales tax proposal, he went along with the income tax boost at the governor's request.

There are other targets of Lauve's wrath. One is Mayor Coleman Young of Detroit for his failure to battle crime and his inability to provide the basic security that people expect of government. A Vietnam veteran who served as an Army helicopter pilot, Lauve says he has been assaulted more often in Detroit than he was in Vietnam. If the Republicans retain Senate control, he'd seek to hold up the $34 million in state aid to Detroit until the people are protected. If something isn't done in Detroit, its crime and blight will march across the street into Grosse Pointe, Lauve warns.

Despite the bitter controversy over the state income tax, however, it is something of a dead issue in the election campaign. The rate is back down to 4.6 percent and both candidates for governor are talking about a further cut to 4 percent.

John Lauve of Grosse Pointe Woods, a quality Lauve and other Republicans contend that not enough of the additional revenues were devoted to debt retirement but the debt has been reduced and Michigan's economy has turned upward.

> As a strong supporter of public education, Kelly opposes the voucher plan revived by GOP gubernatorial nominee William Lucas that would enable parents to get tax credits and other aid to send their children to private and other schools of their choice if their local districts failed to meet certain standards. In Kelly's view, such legislation would harm public education and leave the public schools as "a last resort" for parents unable to get their children into private schools.

> The senator opposes corporate tax breaks and undue emphasis on tax abatements because such moves cut into local tax revenues. He says corporations should pay their fair share of the local costs of schools. Yet he supports businesses seeking to increase their exports and would expand the state's efforts to promote Michigan products in Europe and Asia.

> Kelly says the state needs a system to protect senior citizens and working class people with respect to housing which he says can't be provided by bigger homstead exemptions. He favors funding of Medicaid abortions, feels that the majority supports the right to choice and says the right-to-life movement has lost some of its credibility.

> Revisions of the criminal code, rehabilitation programs for violent criminals, restitution for victims of property crimes and juvenile code revision were among reforms of the criminal justice system that Kelly sought in 1986. Additional juvenile code revision is needed to send a warning to youthful offenders they will be jailed, prosecuted and tried as adults as early as age 14, he contends

> Kelly is often viewed as a Democratic maverick. And he often is, especially when he indulges his flair for dramatic speech and action. But he has been attentive to the problems of interest to Pointers, including such local matters as resurfacing streets and improving Mack Avenue's business districts.

> As he seeks a third term, he gets the support not only of educational organizations but of the Small Business Association of Michigan whose Small Biz Pac has endorsed him along with Republican Rep. William Bryant Jr. A 1983 Michigan State study found Kelly to be the third most conservative spender in the Senate, a fact he cites to those critical of his support for the income tax increase he claims restored fiscal solvency

> It is not easy for the Grosse Pointe News to endorse an "outsider" against a Grosse Pointer. But Kelly's record of service to the Pointes and to the people of the state and his support for social programs as well as public education recommend his re-election despite the appeal of Grosse Pointe's own Don Quixote, John Lauve.

Both candidates oppose the education voucher plan revived recently by William Lucas, the GOP nominee for governor. Miss Resowski believes the plan, which would grant tax credits or vouchers to parents sending children to private or parochial schools, would destroy the public education system in many areas. Bryant dismisses the proposal as unworkable.

Miss Resowski is obviously a competent and hard-working candidate who is trying to make a serious challenge to the veteran Bryant. But in the opinion of the Grosse Pointe News, Bryant deserves re-election on the basis of his long record of service to his district and the people of the state. We believe that, contrary to his opponent's claims, he has kept in close touch with the thinking of the people of the Pointes and reflects majority opinion on most legislative issues.

City limits should remain a doorway

To the Editor:

When it comes to high water, we're all in the same boat.

As a flood plain resident of Detroit's Jefferson-Chalmers neighborhood who finds many occasiosn to travel through, spend money in, jog around, and otherwise enjoy Grosse Pointe Park, I, like many of my neighbors, was pleased and relieved to see a Fox Creek plan (Grosse Pointe News Oct. 16) which keeps high water, but not people, from crossing our cities' limits.

The appearance of Mayor Young's representative, City Engineering Department Director Clyde Hopkins, at Grosse Pointe Park's Oct. 13 city council meeting was a meaningful and timely sharing of information. What was news to many in Grosse Pointe Park, however, was simply "ongoing work" to many Detroiters. Detroit's $440,00 worth of temporary canal repairs, its emergency preparedness plans, and the $40,000 engineering study were all cranked up last winter. In the sum-

Ban smoking at schools

To the Editor:

Smoke is damaging to people's health. At South High School, smoking should be prohibited.

Although smoking by minors has been treated as if it were legal, laws have existed against it for many years. In the past few years, the surgeon general has found dangerous new effects of smoking on innocent bystanders. The bystanders inhale the same smoke that was inhaled by the smoker. This very costly, highly addictive, truly disgusting habit causes many secondary diseases also.

Smoking should be banned at South High School. School should be a place for learning and growing, not becoming ill.

mer, Detroit City Council contacted Secretary of State George Schultz to urge him to authorize the International Joint Commission to study new intra-basin Great Lakes water diversions so that, years from now, future flood threats don't take such a toll. Schultz did it.

To the Editor:

Quoting from last week's Grosse Pointe News on the editorial on the increasing enrollment in the Grosse Pointe schools, "as more of the older families retire and move elsewhere after their children have grown up, more larger homes will be occupied by younger couples with school-age children.'

Why are those with larger homes

some cooperation from Mother Nature should keep the flood plain a lot safer place in which to invest and raise our families.

The Korte bridge over Fox Creek sees plenty of Detroiters heading over to the Fairfax Market or Park Pharmacy or to the Esquire and plenty of Park residents coming back to Jefferson-Chalmers for church or to take out their boat or to visit friends or tenants. Please, let's remember that city limits should remain a doorway, not a barrier. It's better for business and neighborliness that way.

Hoping for united solution

To the Editor:

The debate over a possible floodwall at the Grosse Pointe Park-Detroit border from Jefferson Avenue to the river has found more focus on its racist/elitist implications than on its need or merits as a floodwall. That should not be surprising.

While most of us would like to think otherwise, racism thrives here, as it does in many other communities. Today, at the Windmill Pointe pier, the comments among three fishermen were: "I think the

Do you feel isolated and alone? Does your family ignore you, staring blankly off into space as if you didn't exist? Is it difficult to remember the last time you had an adult conversation?

If you suffer from these symptoms, it can mean only one thing. No, you're not going paranoid. You're simply a non-baseball fan stranded in World Series week.

It's happening to me. The television refuses to play anything except baseball. My family doesn't even try to talk to me - I'm nothing but a hopeless idiot who doesn't understand the importance of a double play.

I don't understand. Just what is the fascination with watching two teams of marginally human beings chase a leather-covered ball and run around a geometric figure painted on grass inside a stadium. If you think I'm being a bit harsh when I say marginally human, remember, those guys chew tobacco. It really turns me off to see the close-up of the pitcher and notice that his cheek is bulged out with a wad of tobacco the size of his fist. Not only that, I fail to understand how anybody could stay awake listening to the play-by-play commentary that goes along with baseball. Actually, it's not so much the play-by-play, it's the color.

Series is the length. Why can't they just play one game and call it a championship? I mean, who needs seven games? Better yet, let's just flip a coin and go home for the winter

In baseball, there's a statistic for every conceivable situation. If the ball bounces off the pitcher's head, flies into center field and is scooped up by the shortstop who trips over his shoelaces and sprains an ankle, the color man will be Johnny-on-the-spot with the number of times a shortstop has been injured while fielding a ball that bounced off the pitcher's noggin. If anyone out there knows that statistic - keep it to yourself.

We who have avoided the sirensong of the baseball stadium must band together to protect ourselves.

only conversation we can hear concerns bases on balls. We have to assert our right to watch ridiculous monster movies on television on Saturday afternoon, rather than a baseball game. Here are some steps you can take to get the better of any baseball zombies in your home:

We have to fight back when the

- Whichever team the fan is for, be for the other team. When he looks at you with indignation and demands to know why, say "Because their uniforms are cleaner.'

- Observe your zombie and see which players he takes a particular shine to. Wait until that player is on the screen and say something like, "Gee, how does he get that much tobacco in his mouth without any brown stuff running down his chin?"

- Seem to be interested in the game, then, at a crucial moment, ask for a statistic that no one could possibly know, like, "How many second basemen are known to wash their socks tied together to prevent uneven pairs?" (This seems a particularly appropriate question to ask about the Red Sox. )

 Try the If-You-Can't-Beat-Them-Join-Them method. Place wagers, like, "I bet the pitcher will scratch a part of his anatomy he's not supposed to touch on television before he strikes this fellow out,' or "I bet you'll fall asleep before the end of the seventh inning." (Particularly good for night games.)

 The ultimate solution — read a book, not about baseball.

The only good thing about the World Series is that it marks the end of baseball for the year. Now, if we could just do something about the proliferation of football games on television . . .

I read a letter a couple of weeks ago which really bothered me. This letter pertained to the Grosse Pointe Red Barons football program. This letter criticized the program terribly, and as a former four-year player, I can't understand why anyone would write such things.

Playing for the Red Barons were some of the best years of my life. Not only did I get a chance to play such a great sport, I also had a chance to make many new friends. I learned the meaning of discipline, respect and sportsmanship.

The coaching staff sacrificed hours of their time to teach us the game of football. This experience helped my friends and me to more easily adapt to high school football. I feel that the Red Barons is a great place for any young kid who is interested in learning football and in simply having a good time. The benefits of this program are far greater than any sacrifice one has to put into it. I feel that the author of that critical letter should have first taken a look at the Red

To the Editor:

In response to the letter from JoAnn Missant, Oct. 2, in which she criticized the current Grosse Pointe Park police force: The world is not what it was 10 years ago, and at 9:00 on a Saturday night, the force may have more pressing concerns than a resident who has locked her keys in her car! What time do you think the crime rate escalates? 10:00? Midnight?

After living in Grosse Pointe Park for 36 years, how can you possibly compare this to Detroit?

Zwickey exhibit at Pewabic

Pewabic Pottery will host an exhibition, "Heads and Tales" by 84year-old Grosse Pointe folk artist Lynn Zwickey from now through Nov. 8.

A selection of figures and animals covering 40 years of playful study will be displayed in the upper gallery. Reminiscent of decorative art from the 1940s and '50s, Zwickey's sculpture has provided him and his audience years of enjoyment.

"My debt to clay is enormous. It's manipulation has bridged innumerable hours, whether of escape or of joy. It has taught me much. There were little lessons of control and of restraint, and sometimes of unrestraint. There were numerous instances of disaster: explosions and overfires resulting in the deaths of some of my little friends...From these I think my character emerged the stronger.

... They are truly my friends. Not less than toys or pets to a (younger) child, they have shared with me their assorted moods and characters. Their natures are as various as their stances and facial expressions."

Ĝallery hours are Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Woods man aids in arrest

A Grosse Pointe citizen aided in the arrest of a man suspected of attempting to break into a Mack Avenue business Thursday, Oct. 16.

While working in his office near Mack Avenue and Hampton, Brian Malloy heard someone trying to pry open the door.

According to police reports, Malloy confronted the man and asked what he was doing. "I'm gone," the man answered — and fled. Malloy followed, flagging down a Woods police officer during the chase. The suspect reportedly turned to Malloy and said, "Why don't you give me a break?"

A Word About Our New Crusty Bread

For your pleasure these traditional crusty breads are baked fresh in our ovens throughout the day. As with most home baked goods, these breads are best eaten fresh from the oven the very day they were baked. The special packaging we use has tiny holes designed to let the bread "breathe" naturally which helps protect the delicate crust.

If you plan to keep your bread to serve later, we reccommend you wrap it tightly in foil or film and freeze to protect the flavor. Then, before serving, allow the bread to thaw at room temperature and restore the delicious crustiness by heating for just a minute or so in a very hot oven.

Cavanagh for commissioner ndrews,

Philip M. Andrews II

People have to take responsibility for themselves and quit looking to the government to solve their problems, the Republican candidate for 1st District county com-missioner, Philip Andrews II, believes.

"The government is not responsible for the happiness of people," he said. "Rather government should create an environment to enable people to find their own success through their own efforts.

"I feel people have a lot of ability to develop, but we have to start in the early stages," Andrews ad-ded. "It's government's job to encourage them.'

Andrews, 27, is making his first bid for public office. He currently serves on a citizens advisory board for Wayne County block grants in Grosse Pointe Park, a position he was appointed to by Mayor Palmer Heenan.

Philip M. Andrews II

His first experience in politics was during the 1980 gubernatorial race when he worked for the Headlee campaign.

Andrews said he decided to run for the county seat when John Hertel announced his decision to make a bid for county executive, leaving the position wide open.

"I thought this was a realistic opportunity and I have some things to say."

In particular, he says he is dissatisfied with 48 percent of the county's budget going toward the sheriff's department. The department, he says, doesn't have any visibility in the 1st District. He sees a trend in the country toward a socialistic state. He believes, therefore, that health and unemployment insurance and Social Security should be voluntary. That money should be in my own pocket for my own retirement.

'If you're going to receive money from government, let's see you make some kind of contribution," he added.

Andrews, who is a Realtor with Johnstone & Johnstone, has lived in the Park for three years. He grew up in Madison Heights where he graduated from Lamphere High School in 1977. He attended Wayne State University. "I get to be out a lot among the citizens and I get their views," he said. The biggest complaint, he said, is that government is too large. "The more responsibility you put on government, the more freedom you are taking away.'

One of the things he says he would do if he's elected is to attend block club meetings to learn the problems and needs of the neighborhoods. "It's not what government can do for us, but how can we help each other.

Andrews said he likes the efforts of the Park in the 1400 block of Wayburn, specifically the pedestrian lighting in front of each house. "A lot of people have fear about the Pointes. We have to re-build the city of Detroit around Andrews said he believes the position of drain commissioner should be eliminated. And he is opposed to any pay increases for county officials.

He likes a quote, the origin of which he is not sure: "Happiness requires problems plus a mental attitude ready to meet distress with actions toward solutions."

He says, "I'm ready to meet these actions. Maybe I don't have a lot of proper experience. I think attitude is more important than knowledge.

Andrews is single. — Pat Paholsky

It was an agonizing decision for awhile, he said, due to the birth of his daughter and the death of his mother-in-law. "But the support

If I'm elected," he continued, "I would initiate a complete assessment of the Milk River drain." While he feels the propsed salary increases for county officials is not appropriate at this time when the county is running a deficit and employees are facing payless pay-days, he says that they should be raised later if they are not in line with the market. "To attract good people, salaries have to be competitive.

Cavanagh earned a bachelor of science degree from Eastern Michigan University where he majored in political science and public administration. His training, background and experience, he says, are suited for the commissioner's job.

"I have an extensive financial background which will be an asset in budgetary matters," he said.

"More specifically, line by line, everything needs to be examined and once you do that, you have to set priorities. In the meantime, public service, public safety and health care need to be top priorities

He is employed as a stockbroker at Kidder, Peabody & Co. Prior to that, he served for four years as planner for the city of Detroit. Cavanagh comes from a political family. Besides his late father, his uncle, Michael F. Cavanagh, is an associate justice of the Michigan Supreme Court, and his cousin, James Cavanagh, is a commissioner in Ingham County.

He, his wife Katherine and daughter live in the Woods.

Star of Sea students have sense of family unity

By Margie Reins Smith On an October afternoon, six weeks into the school semester, Our Lady Star of the Sea's elementary school classrooms were headlong into educational pursuits.

Windows were decorated with Halloween fare: orange paper pumpkins and witches wearing black pointed hats. Eighth grade science room shelves were lined with student-created 'environments' — miniature ecosystems built inside glass aquariums: a salt water environment, a desert, a swamp, a bog.

The reading lab and the computer lab buzzed with clusters of busy students. Some wore earphones, some were discussing stories they'd read, some were punching away at Commodore and Apple IIe computers, while a parent volunteer checked their progress.

Kindergarteners practiced jumping rope in the gym. Preschoolers eagerly waited for a mother to arrive with some apples so they could make applesauce.

Al Hopp, elementary school principal.

A chemist carried out an experiment — complete with test tubes full of mysterious-looking colored liquids — for a second grade class. Fourth-graders practiced a song for the Christmas concert. A parent volunteer checked books in and out of the ### library.

Star of the Sea high school girls were pursuing their own activities in 11 classrooms, along locker-lined hallways, in the library, the bookstore and the junior/senior lounge.

Elementary school Principal Al Hopp and high school Principal Don Sloan are proud of their respective schools. The two schools adjoin Our Lady Star of the Sea Catholic Church, on the corner of Morningside Drive and Fairford in Grosse Pointe Woods. Hopp and Sloan are proud of the friendly, caring, close-knit family atmosphere that pervades the halls, the classrooms and the athletic fields.

"Academics are important," said Sloan, "but we are concerned about our students too — not just about academics." Sloan has been high school principal for the last 17 years. He oversees 239 high school girls and 20 staff members. More than 95 percent of the girls in his all-girl college preparatory high school are college-bound.

"These students are our responsibility," he said. "We're involved with the personal problems and the moral problems they may have. We're involved with the individual growth of each one."

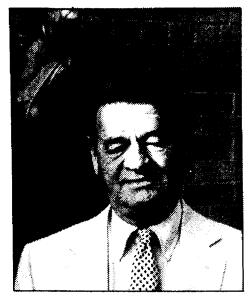

On a tour of the elementary school with Hopp, dozens of children stopped to speak to him or to flash him a broad smile and a wave — or to relate a personal triumph of the day. Hopp spoke to each child by name and listened carefully to each child's anecdote.

"These students have a great sense of belonging," he said. "It's a family they belong to here. Students care about each other. Teachers care about students. I try to interact with each child every day."

Hopp has been principal of the 450-student co-ed K-8 elementary school for the last five years. He has a staff of 25 teachers. A preschool program for 3- and 4year-olds was added this year.

"There's a great rapport between students and teachers here," he said.

Sixth grade teacher Patricia Stumb put it another way. "There's a lot of hugging here," she said.

Don Sloan, high school principal. In many classrooms, parents are active volunteers, physically involved with the day's lessons. "We have the advantage of the wholehearted support and cooperation of parents," said Sloan. "We have an ideal relationship among parents, children and teachers."

Parents not only pay tuition, they assist in fundraising, they help out in the classrooms, on the athletic fields and in the library. Hopp estimated that about 50 percent of the elementary school parents are actively involved in some project — an open house, a dinner, an athletic event, or helping out in the classroom, the library or the school office. "It's all part of the 'family' philosophy," he said.

Tuition for high school girls within the parish runs $1,500 per year. The cost of educating a student, Sloan pointed out, runs more toward $2,500. The rest of the expense is subsidized by the parish and by parents, through fundraisers.

Elementary school tuition is $1,050 for the first child, and it decreases for each additional child in the family.

Hopp said the elementary school does not intend to grow beyond the size it is now. "We want two classes per grade." The recent building addition, completed in September, added four classrooms and a combination art/music room that can also be used for meetings and for adult education classes. Until this year, art classes were held in the church basement and music groups met in the church chapel. "There was a waiting list for kindergarten and first grade this year," said Hopp.

"If we grew any bigger," he said, "it might destroy the small family atmosphere which is so crucial to our philosophy."

Hopp pointed out that teachers are committed to the 'family' philosophy, just as parents are. "It's demonstrated in many ways — by their time, their effort, their energy. Our teachers make less than public school teachers," he said, "but we have almost no staff turnover. It's their commitment. For our teachers, this is not just a job."

Sloan agreed. He has five daughters. All attended school at Star of the Sea. They're all grown up and out of school now. "A small, single-sex school for girls is good because the girls are uninhibited," he said. "They have great opportunities to exercise leadership qualities."

Meanwhile, on a bright autumn day, T-shirts were selling briskly at the high school bookstore. For freshman, red shirts with the message: Fired Up Freshmen; For sophomores: pink shirts with Sweet Sophomores; For juniors: green shirts with Jungle Juniors; For seniors: white shirts with Senior Citizens.

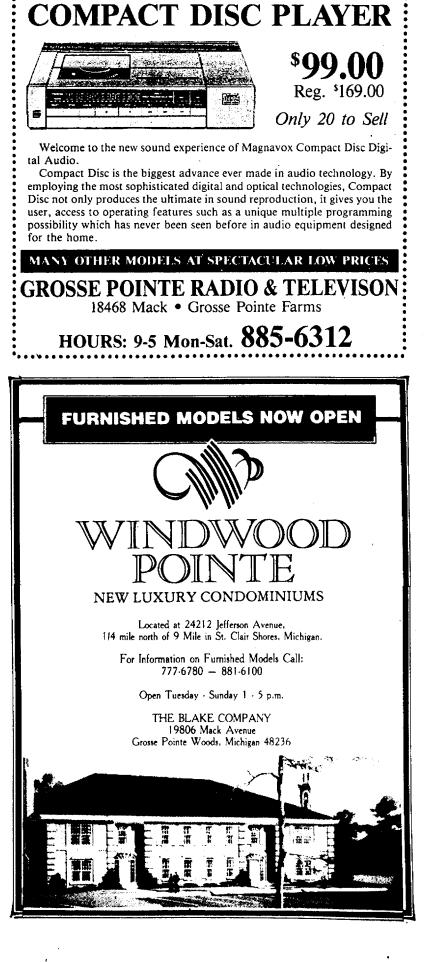

And especially for teachers: purple shirts emblazoned with Purple Pupil Eaters.

Seven-year-old Michael Curis tries the onehanded approach above, while students below receive instructions from teacher Jacqueline Curtin in St. Paul School's first-grade computer class.

Conquering computers

By Nancy Parmenter Learning to read is a challenge at the best of times. First-graders at St. Paul have an extra tool to help them learn: the computer. All students from first grade through eighth have a crack at the computers once a week. By now, with the program in its fourth year, the older students are getting pretty sophisticated about the high-tech equipment, says computer coordinator Jackie Curtin. But the little kids are new to the machines.

machines. "Some of them don't want to do anything until they're sure they're right," Curtin said. To encourage them to manipulate the keyboards, she has a rule that she won't help students until they have done at least one thing, "even if it's wrong." But most of them are ready to leap in with both feet. Although they have only been in school a month, they have already learned to load programs into the computers and do simple programming. Because the school has four different brands of equipment, each student has the opportunity to work on varying machines and discover elements common to all computers. "They've found the graphics key and they can already do a simple loop," Curtin said. "They go out of here happier than any other class."

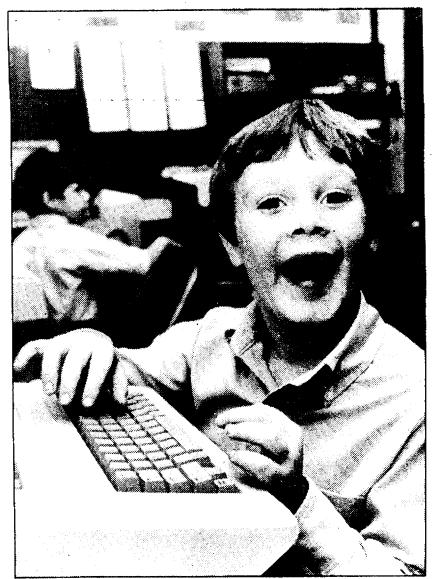

class.

The computer work goes hand-in-hand with classroom work. One reinforces the other.

"When they're on the computers, they don't have to wait to give the answer as they sometimes do in the classroom," Curtin said.

Children that young do not experience computer anxiety the way adults do. They are more willing to experiment and are open to new ways to do things.

"They love any success you let them experience," Curtin said. "They can say, 'Gee, I know more than I did when I came in."

Prime time for senior citizens Here's how to seek professional advice

By Marian Trainor Most people have a list of professionals that they call upon for help in special needs. In times of illnesses they have a doctor whom they know and trust to diagnose and treat their ailment. If they are puzzled on investing money, they have the name of a stockbroker who will give them good advice. The list more than likely includes an optometrist and dentists. Women may even have a favorite hairdresser who does their hair just the way they like it.

But there is one profession peo-ple only think of when they are in trouble and then they choose one without really knowing who the person is or if they will feel comfortable with him or her. We are referring to a family lawyer.

For some reason, it is assumed that it is possible to go through life and never need legal advice. That assumption can cause needless worry and sometimes costly mistakes, particularly as we grow older. As a young working person we could recoup our losses if mistakes were made. Now there may not be time enough to do so.

To make it more personal, if you are still working but are close to retirement, it is wise to make plans for the adjustments of retirement in advance while you still have time for full consideration. Family and friends can be helpful. Those with special training, such as peo-ple from the business world or someone in a social agency who specializes in counseling older people can advise but when it comes to the legal aspects of important decisions you need a lawyer.

A family lawyer can give you a legal checkup much as your family doctor can let you know if there are any health problems developing which need attention.

Laws and circumstances change as the years go by which warrant periodic consultation. A death in the family, a birth, a marriage, a divorce or a change in your financial condition are examples of time when legal advice can prevent problems arising.

If you move from one state to another, you need counsel. The laws of each state differ. An inheritance law may differ for example. It is the law of the state where you make your home which determines the validity of your will. Perhaps you have a lawyer in mind to whom you can turn for review, update and a advice on your affairs.

But if you do not, the U.S. Office of Human Development Administration on Aging has this to offer on a wise procedure to follow when you are choosing a family lawyer.

'One suggestion is to find a satisfied client. Another is to call the local bar association. Someone there will give you the name of a reliable attorney and you can have a first interview with him for a modest fee. If you are not impressed, you are under no obligation to continue with his services.

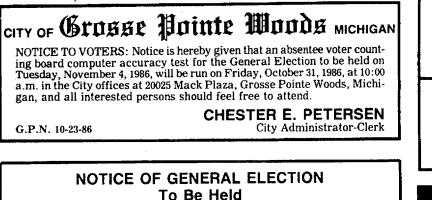

If you cannot afford to pay a fee, you can call the Legal Aid Society or write to the National Legal Aid and Defender Association, 1155 E. 60th St. Chicago, Ill. 60627 and they will tell you whom to call for free advice.

What services can a lawyer perform for you? His primary purpose, of course, is to advise you about the legal aspects of your affairs, and, if indicated to use legal procedures for handling them. He may draw up a will, a deed or a contract or look over a document of this sort that has been prepared by someone else to see that your interests are adequately protected.

Because of his general knowledge of people and business, he may advise you about various aspects of your affairs which are not entirely matters of law, or he may call on experts from other fields. When it comes to legal fees, there is no exact answer to that question, but there are guidelines.

Because in most cases, a lawyer charges on the basis of the amount of time he spends with you, you can save yourself time and money by discussing your affairs clearly and precisely. Sometimes attorneys set a flat fee for certain types of work, such as drawing a will, probating a descendant estate or handling a real estate transaction.

In your first consultation with a lawyer, or in consulting him about a new matter, you should ask on what basis he will set his fee. If it is on a hourly basis, ask what the rate per hour is. The attorney may be able to give you a rough estimate of the total cost even though he does charge on an hourly basis. For certain kinds of legal work, a lawyer's fee is subject to approval by a court or by a state or federal agency. For example, the lawyer's fee is controlled in cases involving guardianship and estates of deceased persons, and in proceedings concerning certain types of retirement benefits, such as Social Security. In most cases, all you have to do to get Social Security benefits is to apply for them. But if you are not satisfied and wish to have your benefits re-examined within the agency or by the courts, it is advisable to be represented by an attorney if you get to the stage of going to court.

Many older people add to their retirement income by earning extra money. They babysit, make jewelry or build furniture or other activities for which they are particularly adept.

There are legal implications, however, that must be considered when you earn extra money. There may be zoning ordinances which prohibit your right to carry on cer-tain activities. There may be state or local regulations covering the kind of work you want to do and your earnings might affect your right to basic retirement funds.

If you decide to go into a small business, you should talk over your plans with a lawyer before you start. You should also use him as a consultant before you start. If you close out your enterprise, have a lawyer supervise your procedures. Proper procedures in closing out a business, for example, define the extent of your rights and liabilities in relation to others.

Sometimes even a leisure-time activity can require the services of an attorney, such as when you sign a contract for membership in a club, a course of instructions or buy equipment to use in pursuing your activity.

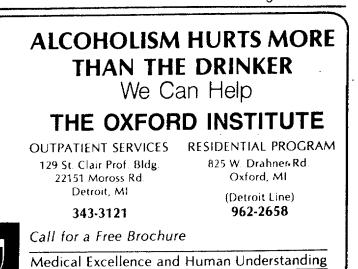

Even choosing a place to live may have legal implications. If you decide to stay in the old homestead, more than likely you will have maintenance problems. If the repair work involves substantial cost, you should see a lawyer. He will look over the contract to protect your interests.

Don't sign anything involving an important decision or a substantial sum of money until you have legal advice. If you decide to move to a cooperative or a condominium, your lawyer can determine the extent of your rights and liabilities. It is also important to find out whether the enterprise as a whole is financially sound.

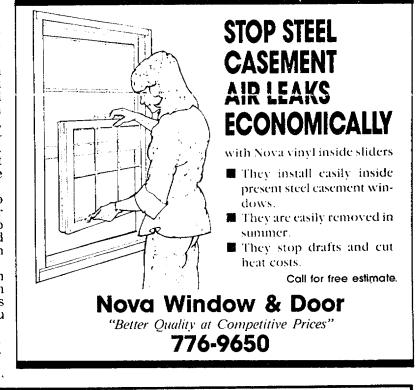

No one wishes to think ahead to a time when Illness or general poor health might make it difficult to look after one's affairs, but it could happen and it is best to make an arrangement ahead of time. There are different ways in which you can give another person legal authority to look after things for you. Your lawyer can help you decide which to choose.

The law can provide the method for you, but it is up to you to choose the right person.

Kelly, Lauve vie for state senate seat

John Kelly

Incumbent State Sen. John Kelly, candidate for the senate seat in the 1st District, said crime and reform of the criminal justice system are the important issues in the 1986 campaign.

Kelly said criminal justice reform has been high on his agenda since he took office in 1978, and he feels part of the answer to crime lies in education.

He has introduced bills in the state legislature three times which would have called for sweeping changes in the criminal justice system, including restitution by criminals for victims of property crimes, psychological rehabiliation of criminals and segregation of violent and non-violent prisoners in jail.

"We can't send someone off to jail and let him live in that hellish society and expect this kicked dog to become amiable," Kelly said.

Kelly said he is opposed to the death penalty, and believes many favor its reinstitution because they don't see the system working. Major revisions are needed in the Major revisions are needed in the juvenile area of criminal justice, Kelly said, adding that punks on the streets know that they will not be tried as adults.

"These young offenders kill, rob and rape with impunity," he said. He noted that in many cases juveniles are taken off the street, but will have their record expunged on their seventeenth birthday.

He favors waiving juvenile offenders to circuit court for violent crimes at age 15. He envisions sentencing the juveniles as though they were adults, but holding off on sentencing while the child remains a juvenile. In the meantime, the department of mental health could counsel the juvenile and his family, as well as develop a vocational education program for the young offenders.

"But if these students didn't change their ways, they would be transferred to Jackson," Kelly said. "At least that way, they would know that the system works."

He said his opponents argue that the system would be throwing away young people.

"Let's face it, a punk is a punk and a murderer is a murderer," he said.

Kelly noted that Grosse Pointe's public schools are among the finest in the state. He said that more equitable levels of education must be brought to other regions of the state, notably Detroit.

Kelly, who has been endorsed by the Michigan Federation of Teachers and the Michigan Education Association, said that there are serious problems with education in the Detroit school system.

He said less than 40 percent of the money spent on education in Detroit is in the form of teachers' salaries. He cites the recent publicity regarding limousines used by school board officials as an insensitivity to the real problems in the school district.

"Priorities need to be redirected there," he noted. "There are 30 to 40 kids in the classroom and they are not from a learning, nurturing culture. Detroit has the highest number of children per classroom in the state."

Kelly sees the situation in Detroit as dangerous. He cited the massive egress of upper class and upper middle class to the suburbs as a prime example.

"What that leaves you with in the city is the underemployed, amoral with no legal or criminal justice system," Kelly said. "That leaves them with no leadership and no way to articulate their frustrations."

What Kelly would like to see done with the Detroit schools is to set up a number of smaller community schools.

"These would be mini-school houses," he said. "Mothers of preschoolers would have to participate in their children's education. We would rebuilt the basic structure of education in the community."

Kelly pointed to the proposed Detroit incinerator project as an issue in the election. He feels his district will be the only one in the state that will be directly affected by the particulates emitted by the plant.

He feels that technology is available to trap the particulates though it is costly. He said he would work legislatively to see those scrubbers are used with the project.

Kelly said that keeping down property taxes is an important concern of his constituents. He said that the state sales tax could be increased by one percent to hold the line on property taxes.

Holding the line on state spending is also an important issue with him. He said a study performed by Michigan State University showed he was the third most conservative spender of the Democrats in the legislature.

Kelly said he was the deciding vote on Gov. James Blanchard's proposal for a 38 percent increase in the state income tax in 1981. Kelly said he was opposed and wanted to see an increase of the sales tax to reduce the state debt. In the end, however, the Republicans defeated the sales tax increase, and the cuts into the state programs would be made by the appropriations committee—not the Democratic conference.

John Lauve

He has run for county commissioner, state senator, the U.S. Congress and considered running for governor. None of his past political attempts have proved successful, but that hasn't stopped John Lauve from saying what is on his mind, finding fault with government or running as a Republican candidate for state senator in the 1st District in 1986.

Lauve, a Grosse Pointe Woods resident, has been deeply involved with a recall effort of Gov. James Blanchard ever since Blanchard raised the state income tax by 38 percent shortly after taking office. The recall effort was unsuccessful, but two Michigan legislators were recalled in the state senate — a move for which Lauve said he is partly responsible.

Lauve said under the Blanchard administration the size of state government has increased even though the state population has decreased. His campaign literature points out that the state budget has increased every year since Blanchard took office — and he sees no more services provided by Lansing.

"Temporary taxes end up being permanent," Lauve said. "Now that it is re-election time there is , a tax cut. My experience has been that whenever someone says there is going to be a tax cut to cover both pockets real quick."

Lauve said crime in Michigan is one of the most important issues. "I think Detroit is a disgrace to the state and to its leaders," he said. Lauve said he has been attacked more in Detroit than the three years he spent in Vietnam. He said he has had a knife pulled on him and has had his car broken into in the city.

"Newspapers have a responsibility to inform people about these crimes," he said. "There is no pressure being put on Coleman Young." He blames Blanchard and Young both for Detroit's problems.

He noted that $34 million was sent to Detroit in the form of state aid, and the taxpayers see nothing in return for this money.

"It is the basic responsibility of government to provide safety and security to its citizens," he noted. "I have been going door to door. I talked with a Detroit couple who were robbed in their own home at 3 p.m."

3 p.m." He proposed a performance requirement for Detroit police officers, and educational programs for students and teachers. He said that the work ethic has been lost by those on welfare, and that all able-bodied recipients should be required to work.

He is concerned that Detroit's problems could become Grosse Pointe's.

"If you don't do something to fix Detroit, it will come right across the street into the Pointes. The Park has already been affected by this to some extent. As the blight moves outward, it will affect Grosse Pointe."

Lauve contends his opponent, Sen. John Kelly, voted in favor of the redistricting of Grosse Pointe, which separated the five communities into two Congressional districts.

"This was a very divisive thing," Lauve said. "Power is his interest, not the people."

Lauve said he battled the move in Federal District Court, but the bid was unsuccessful.

Fire damages City house

A fire broke out in a condominium on Charles Street in Grosse Pointe Oct. 16 when an electric blanket malfunctioned. No one was home at the time:

A second and third alarm were issued because of the possible danger to the adjoining apartments. public safety officials said.

By the time fire trucks arrived, flames were visible in the second floor and smoke was coming out under the eaves. The fire started under the bed, burned through the floor into the dining room ceiling and into the wall.

Firefighters cut a hole in the roof to ventilate the house. The fire was under control within an hour.

There was smoke damage throughout the house, according to the report, but water damage was confined to the immediate area of the fire.

Tips for women

Women on the go need to be streetwise when traveling to and from work and other activities to avoid becoming the victim of crime.

A violent crime is committed somewhere in the United States every 24 seconds — the time it takes to watch a television commercial. These horrifying crimes are not confined to metropolitan areas: they happen everywhere.

While nothing is foolproof, the National Safety Council says there are measures women can take to be safer on the streets and when using public transportation. In conjunction with National Safety on the Streets Week, to be observed Oct. 26-Nov. 1, the council offers active women the following safety tips:

• Try not to travel into unfamiliar areas, especially at night.

• When on trains, buses, platforms or in taxis, do not sleep or become overly involved in reading materials. Sit close to the driver when using public transportation, and avoid sitting by exits where a purse snatcher can make a quick getaway.

• Whether driving or using pub-lic transportation, it is a good idea to let family or friends know what time you plan to arrive and what route you will use.

• Keep your car in good mechanical condition, and keep plenty of gas in the tank. When out at night, park your car in a well-lighted lot or garage. Scout the lot for strangers before heading to your

• If your car does break down in a neighborhood where you feel uncomfortable, stay in the car. If someone offers to help, give him or her a quarter to call a friend of yours. If the people offering help seem threatening, tell them that help is already on the way.

Man arrested A St. Clair Shores man was arrested and charged with interfering with a police officer in the performance of his duty Saturday, Oct. 18, following a traffic stop. According to Grosse Pointe Shores police, the man, Ernest Muzzin, 55, was pulled over after a brief chase. Shores police had spotted Muzzin allegedly speeding in his vehicle on Lakeshore Drive. The man did not stop his vehicle until he was very near to his St. Clair Shores residence. Once he got out of his car, he was verbally abusive to the officer and pushed the officer out of his way twice, according to the report.

After being advised that he would be arrested for interfering with a police officer, the man allegedly continued to be uncooperative.

After being forcibly handcuffed, Muzzin allegedly became more abusive and refused to get into the squad car. The man had to be forced into the vehicle.

He was brought to the station, and later released on $100 bond.

McNamara, Murphy compete for county executive seat

McNamara

Edward H. McNamara, Democratic candidate for Wayne County executive, said, if he is elected, top priority items are economic development and a variety of house-keeping chores to increase the efficiency of county operations.

Wayne County is not in competition with the city of Detroit, he said, but he'd like to create more jobs and a better tax base within the county by attracting manufacturing, new hotels and motels even enticing Japanese firms into the area.

County operations would be improved with a personnel review committee, and by placing total responsibility for department budgets in the hands of the department heads. "I call this 'bottomline budgeting," " he said. "It makes professionals into responsible managers as well

McNamara would also correct some out-of-line salaries. "The inequities are not all overpayment," he said. "Some people are grossly underpaid." Current Wayne County Executive William Lucas began some reorganization that made sense, he admitted, but these plans were put on hold when Lucas decided to run for governor. "The power void allowed the old ways to creep back in and things have slipped back again." McNamara said he holds an ideal job as mayor of Livonia -$72,000 a year working for a pleasant, supportive community with a lot of growth and potential. He's had no opponent in the last three mayoral elections, he said. "But it's time to move on. I'm running for Wayne County executive because it's a challenge.

'My campaign is passive. I have no allegiance to anyone - not to the unions or to the Democrats, although I am committed to work hard in Wayne County for the governor's re-election and I do need the governor and the legislature to help bail Wayne County out. "I'm not going to be a renegade and fight the party, but they don't own me and they don't direct me."

Wayne County, he pointed out, is the third largest county in the nation, with 43 communities, 2.3 million people, 620 square miles of land, community leadership and a tremendous potential - even with its inner city crime problems. Wayne County has underdeveloped areas, land that hasn't been properly utilized, he said.

McNamara has been mayor of Livonia for 161/2 years. He ran for state senator in 1965, for lieutenant governor (with Sander Levin) in 1970, and for Wayne County executive in 1982, losing in the primary to Lucas, who was then a Democrat.

McNamara has been a member and chairman of a variety of state and local boards, including chairman of the Tri-County Mayors' Association, president of the Michigan Municipal League, president of the Michigan Conference of Mayors. He was appointed to the SEMTA board in 1977, and served on the advisory council of the Metropolitan Affairs Corporation in 1981. He received the Detroit News Michiganian of the Year award in 1979.

Murphy

Robert Murphy, Republican candidate for Wayne County executive, said the most pressing issues facing Wayne County are moral and social, not economic.

"Économic disorder follows the social and moral chaos," he said in a prepared statement. "The principal problems are rooted in a breakdown in the foundation of family life and in the home.

"The county is in a mess," he said.

He said that, contrary to popular belief, the government has an important role in reversing this process, since the government also played a part in getting into the mess.

If he is elected, he would work to improve communications between the Wayne County executive and the commission. He'd temporarily freeze hiring of new Wayne County employees. He'd find out where every Wayne County dollar is going.

Murphy is an engineering consultant. He also works on various housing development projects for low income and medium income families, such as the Clement Kern Garden Townhouse development in Detroit's Corktown.

He describes himself as a lifelong conservative Republican. He's a veteran of the U.S. Navy and served in World War II. He received a civil engineering degree from the University of Maryland and a B.A. in American history

Maire schedules week of festivities

The week will culminate with a reception at The Grosse Pointe Hunt Club honoring staff, former from Parsons College. He also attended the University of Chicago and the Armed Forces Institute.

Murphy was a precinct delegate for 18 years, a member of the White House Commission on Aging, the White House Conference on Housing, and the White House Commission for a balanced budget.

He was elected to the 18-member Downtown Citizens District Council (now defunct) and served from 1980-1984.

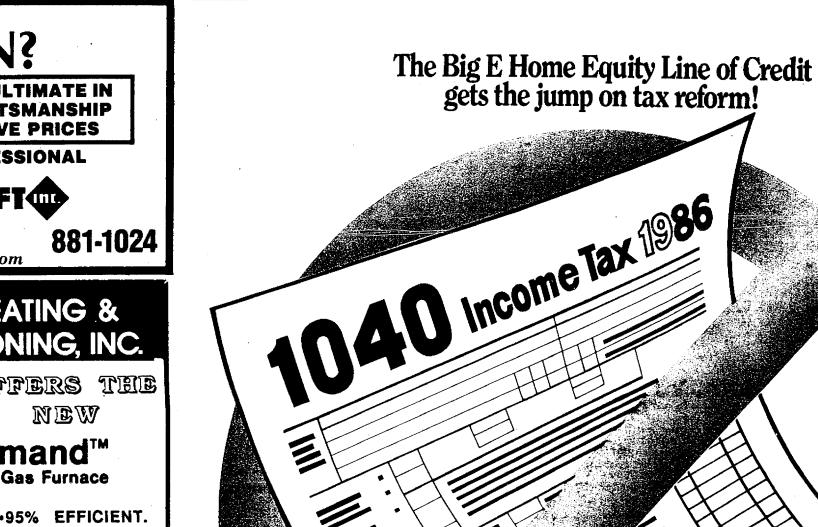

He commended current Wayne County Executive William Lucas for raising some important issues, but he added that most Wayne County employees are overpaid for the amount of work they do. The commissioners' positions should not be a full-time job, he said.

Murphy said he would accept no salary if he is elected. "I'd consider it a civic duty," he said. — Margie Reins Smith

When a simple diet becomes an obsession

By Elsa Frohman

It is known as the upper middle class disease. A young woman who seems to have everything going for her starves herself to death. Nothing her parents or friends can say to her will convince her that she is not fat. She may weigh only 70 pounds, but when she looks in the mirror, she sees ugly fat. Even if she recognizes her problem, she may be incapable of resuming a normal eating pattern without extensive therapy. In a society that says you can't be too rich or too thin, anorexia nervosa is on the rise and researchers and therapists have been looking for an answer to the mystery of why young women starve themselves beyond any reasonable goal for a healthy diet.

It's currently on the rise. It has been esculating for the past 25 years. Currently the emphasis is on being thin. More young girls are dieting to the extreme, then the addiction kicks in.

> -Dr. Mary Ann Marrazzi

Dr. Mary Ann Marrazzi, a Grosse Pointer and pharmacologist at the Wayne State University Medical School, and Dr. Elliot Luby, head of psychiatry at Harper Hospital, believe they may have found an answer.

"I want people to know that this isn't a magical cure," Marazzi said. "We're only in the preliminary stages of research.

Marrazzi and Luby are investigating the effects of endogenous opioids, compounds similar to those responsible for the "runner's high" syndrome, on anorexic patients.

Opioids are naturally occuring compounds with action similar to morphine or heroin, Marrazzi explained. Many long-distance runners report experiencing a eupho-ria associated with heavy exer-

sion. The high is attributed to en-dorphines, which are a type of en-dogenous opioid. (Endogenous improvement. simply means naturally occuring.) Luby and Marrazzi theroize that in certain individuals with a pre-disposition, the opioids released by the weight-loss process may cause a kind of addiction.

"They get high on dieting," Marrazzi said.

Marrazzi explained that opioids seem to be released by the brain in response to a reduction in food intake, however, the same opioids may be released in response to an increase in food intake as well.

"Overweight may be opioid mediated as well," Marrazzi said. The role of the opioids seems to be to regulate the metabolic response to eating, she explained. "We think they have a dual role," she said. In response to starvation, the opioids reduce the metabolism, allowing the organism to survive longer without eating. They also may increase the desire to eat, to correct for starvation. When a normal person doesn't eat, opioids are released to make him hungry, as well as slow down his metabolism for survival.

In the abnormal system, the opi-oids effect becomes "uncoupled," Marrazzi said. The anorexic gets a good feeling from the opioids and continues dieting, to continue the "high.

Certain types of overeating dis-orders may have the same cause. For example, the bulimic (binge eater) may be eating to get the same natural high.

Working from the assumption that anorexia is an addiction to the opioids released by dieting, Mar-razzi and Luby ran a small case study using a drug that blocks the action of opioids, along with psy-chotherapy. The results were encouraging.

The drug, naltrexone has been used successfully in the treatment of drug addicts. In the Luby-

We are not talking about a radical cure," Marrazzi said. "This is an adjuct to therapy. It's like alco-holism or heroin addiction. You must get off the drug before addressing the psychological problem."

Luby and Marrazzi are working together on the problem from dif-ferent angles. Marrazzi, as a pharmacologist is doing the basic "science" research. She is doing animal studies and hormone as-says, looking for the mechanism of the opioids. Luby is working with patients, following the clinical aspects of the research.

The only problem is, they don't have any funding for the research project. "The actual work is going very slowly," Marrazzi said. "It's being done without funding.'

Marrazzi and Luby are facing the "Catch-22" of research fund-ing. Without results, it is difficult to get a grant. Without a grant, it is difficult to get results.

"NIH (National Institute of Health, the federal funding agency for health research) is not funding anything very innovative or speculative right now," Marrazzi said. "We hope we can get funding through private sources.

Marrazzi and Luby came together to work on the anorexia project through having known one-another for many years.

'It's a good example of how things evolve through clinical and basic science," she said. "This project wouldn't have come from either branch of science alone. It's the interaction that brings progress.

Marrazzi said she sees a real need for research on anorexia.

"It's on the rise," she said. "It has been escalating for the past 25 years. Currently the emphasis is

Jack-o-lanterns have a long tradition attached

How many Cucurbita Pepos will be adorning your front porch this year on Halloween? Popularly called pumpkins, these golden globes are members of the gourd family, as are squashes.

Called pompions by the earliest settlers in this country, they were among the chief food sources of the Indians, second only to corn as a staple item, and were considered to be under the dominion of the moon

The use of pumpkins as jack-olanterns is an American idea, adapted from the lanterns which had been made of hollowed out turnips in England since medieval times, and even earlier than that in Scotland and Ireland.

Halloween evolved from a Scotch-Irish festival which dates to pre-Christian times. The Festival of Samhain, the god of the dead, was held on Nov. 1, the first day of the Celtic year. Later, this was combined with the Christian feasts of All Saints Day on Nov. 1 and All Souls Day on Nov. 2.

In medieval Britain, elves, fairies and ghosts were believed to haunt the earth at this time and it was customary to build huge bonfires to ward them off. The early jack-o-lanterns were small con-tained "bonfires" to protect the house

Pumpkins come in all sizes from the newly-developed miniatures, so popular for holiday centerpieces, to the county-fair-winning giants. Pumpkin pie is only one of many ways they can be used as food. The Indian method of cooking them was to slice off the top, scoop out the seeds, pour maple syrup or honey into the cavity, replace the top and bake the whole thing. Adding butter and salt and then scooping out individual serv-ings with a big spoon is the final step

Incidentally, Halloween pump-kins keep best if they are picked with a  $\frac{1}{2}$  inch stem.

Pumpkins have separate male and female flowers. If you have a pumpkin patch you probably were perturbed when all the first flowers fell off. You needn't have been, since these were all male flowers. The female pumpkinproducing flowers came later and, as you now know, all was well.

The Gardener's Shed Ellen Probert

Pumpkins sales abound in October. Two notable ones recently were presented by Grosse Pointe Memorial Church and St. Paul's School with great success.

Cool, crisp fall days seem to inspire a new surge of gardening enthusiasm. This seems to be the time to boast about the biggest tomatoes, the most succulent zucchinis and the most exuberant marigolds.

Fall is one of the best times of the year for planting trees, shrubs and ground covers. Ground covers such as ivy, pachysandra and myrtle and euonymous are all very hardy in this area and are basically maintenance-free needing only occasional feeding and watering. Many people prefer to transplant trees and perennials at this time of the year but it is well to remember that October's end usually sees the planting season. Your house plants should by now have ended their summer sojourn outside and be safely back in their winter places indoors. If you have an enclosed porch it is a good idea to let them make the transition gradually from outdoors in indoors by spending a day or two in the porch midway.

With the increased light and air circulation outdoors, summering house plants use abundant moisture and need frequent watering. When they come indoors again in the fall their growth rate slows and, correspondingly, so should the watering.

Grosse Pointe's many tree-lined streets are beautiful in any season, but fall is when the trees make their presence felt in a very active way. The falling leaves sometimes seem a mixed blessing when leaf raking becomes a major project. Leaves should be raked often. If they are allowed to settle on the lawn they will mat and smother the grass plants.

Now is the ideal time to start a compost pile using fall leaves. Mix soil, fertilizer and lime with the leaves to increase the rate of decomposition. Avoid using leaves from any diseased trees if you can. Composted leaves are not as acid as it was formerly thought, the average PH being around 6.5, or slightly on the acid side of neutral.

When you cut the grass for the last time this year keep the lawn height at about two inches. Short, erect grass blades resist flopping which can lead to snow mold and other fungus problems which will cause trouble in the spring. Many perennials may still be divided and transplanted, and now is the time to plant pansies and primrose for early spring color.

Hayrides and cider mills are popular in this transitional season of the year. The Lakeville Riding Stable is a popular starting point for hayrides and the many cider mills in the countryside surround-

Another thing that's fun to do and that fits right in with the harvest season of fall is apple picking. Stoney Creek orchards, among others, has acres of beaufiful apple trees all but bowed down with fruit. Pick your own from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on any Saturday or Sunday. Bring your own baskets and try not to eat as many as you put in the baskets.

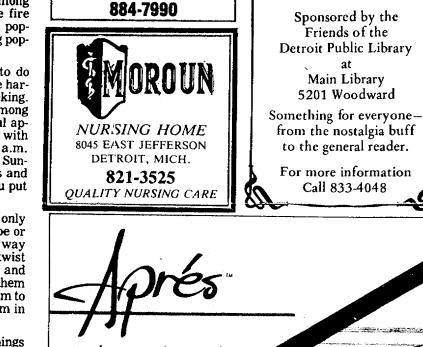

Gourds should be picked only when they are completely ripe or they will spoil. The simplest way to know if they are ripe is to twist the stem slightly. If it is ripe and frost is predicted you can cut them leaving a two or three inch stem to prevent rotting and store them in a warm, dry place.

Gourds are such versatile things that every gardener really should grow them. They can be made into birdhouses, dippers, vases and wall or table decorations. They can be painted any color and used in centerpieces and dried flower arrangements.

But they have to be completely dry before you can do any of these things and the way to be sure of this is to hang them in a dry, very airy place such as a stair well, until they are very brittle. The skin should be so dry it is hard and you can't dent it with a fingernail. If the gourd is completely dry it will not only be hard but will be lightweight and hollow. If any mold forms while the gourds are drying wipe it off with rubbing alcohol.

The Pastor's Corner

What is your favorite?

The Rev. Robert Curry St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran Church

What is your favorite portion of Bible Scripture? Is it one of your well kept secrets which you don't share? Or perhaps you have never thought of having a favorite scripture, or maybe you're not acquainted enough yet to have that delight.

I was sharing a portion of scripture while visiting a parishioner in the hospital, when a lady in the next bed joined our conversation. She said that her favorite scripture was Psalm 139. Because she said it was her favorite one I was drawn to it, and from that 'new look' I found an understanding of God who always knows where I am and is always there to support me. My favorite psalm is Psalm 19. It speaks to me in three ways.

First, it shares the majesty of God which speaks from the heavens without words. Perhaps you have viewed a sunset, gazed into a clear night bright with stars, or have been renewed by the sunshine, and have been drawn closer to God. A second way the Psalmist speaks to me is his desire to follow God. The revelation of God's will in the Mosaic Law is lifted up as precious-"More to be desired are they than Gold." How precious are God's laws and promises to you? It helps me look at what I value in life, and I also feel the psalmist has shared his soul with me. The final portion of the psalm speaks a concern about what comes out of his mouth and the attitude of his heart. We can all use a little help in this area.

- 'Let the words of my mouth and the
- meditation of my heart be acceptable in thy sight,
- O Lord, my rock and my redeemer.

Sharing a favorite scripture is a way of sharing your faith. All of us are more attentive to friends and family when we share the 'what' and 'why' of our favorites. So along with favorite colors, movies, songs and favorite foods, share a favorite scripture with your loved ones. You will find most people receptive and appreciative of how God has touched your life through His word

Three general guidelines to remember:

(1) You don't have to be a pastor to enjoy hearing and sharing scriptures

(2) You don't have to give three reasons why you like it best, and (3) you don't have to share first, if you ask the question of someone else.

One thing is for sure, the fact that you have a favorite scripture will bless someone.

Vatican library gets boost from donations

By Elsa Frohman

What does the Vatican Apostolic Library in Rome have in common with the Grosse Pointe Public Library? Both have active "Friends" groups which raise money for the preservation and expansion of their collections.

In fact, the American Friends of the Vatican Library was modeled on the Friends of the Grosse Pointe Library. The American Friends was founded by Monsignor Francis X. Canfield, who is now president of the group. Canfield, rector of St. Paul-on-the-Lake Church in Grosse Pointe, says he patterned the or-ganization after the Grosse Pointe Friends group. Last Friday evening, the American Friends of the Vatican Library presented the Rev. Leonard Boyle, prefect of the Vatican Library, with a check for $20,000, for new lighting in the reading room of the library. The presentation was made at a dinner held at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House. In attendance were major donors from the Grosse Pointe area and surrounding areas, who are initiating a week-long campaign to find $1,000 donors for the library.

"The Vatican Library goes back to 1450," Canfield said. "It has one of the richest collections of manuscripts in the world, including the "Virgil Vaticanus," and the "Codex Vaticanus," one of the three oldest complete Bibles in Greek. The library also has the love letters of Henry VIII to Anne Boleyn and many other priceless original documents. "The collection is superb," Canfield said. "Not as large as some others, but it is a very precious collection.'

Canfield said the idea for the American Friends occurred to him in 1968 when he visited Rome and was introduced to the Rev. Alfons Stickler, who was then prefect of the library.

Anne Browning, Lorenzo Browning, mayor of Grosse Pointe City, and Sister Therese Tighe, chaplain at Bon Secours Hospital, were among the guests at the dinner given for the Rev. Leonard Boyle, prefect of the Vatican Library on Oct. 17. The American Friends of the Vatican Library presented Boyle with a check for $20,000 for the library at the dinner.

"He told me about the severe limitations on funds," Canfield said. Canfield actually got the organization started six years ago. Since then, the American Friends have solicited funds through mail appeals that have gone out nationwide. "We have about 500 members nationally now," Canfield said.

Though the Catholic Church has a reputation of wealth, money is nier. For further information, call desperately needed for the library.

"The Catholic Church is land-rich and cash-poor," Canfield said. "It's an enormous problem to keep up all those buildings. The cash flow is really thin. Inflation has really hit the Vatican harder than a lot of other organizations." Attendees at last Friday's dinner included Walter and Sandy Fisher, Anne and Red Browning, Joan and Bruce Forrest, Mary Jane and Jim O'Donnell, Anne and Leo Marx, Fay Buhl, Marilyn Lundy, Anne and Jim Lemhagen, Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Eagen and Canfield. The Board of Directors of the Friends of the Vatican Library includes Cardinal John Dearden, honorary chairman; the Most Rev. Edmund Szoka, archbishop of Detroit, honorary president; the Rev. Alfons Stickler, former prefect of the library; Canfield, president; Sister M. Claudia Carlen, vice president; Sister Elizabeth J. Flaherty, treasurer; Anne Lemhagen, executive secretary; and others.

For information on donating to the Vatican Library, contact Canfield at St. Paul-on-the-Lake, 885-8855.

LINC swings into fall with a full schedule

Back from a cruise on the Detroit River, members are gearing up for the future events involving LINC. The successful September fundraiser behind us helps to light the fire of enthusiasm. A big thank you is in order to all who participated in their own special way to make the cruise an event to remember

Talk about busy as a beaver, LINC has a bear who's been pretty busy too. Currently, the VERY large brown bear is sporting the Maire School's T-shirt, a representative of the children's mascot choice for their anniversary celebration this month. Soon he will be coming home to LINC and off again to work in the Santa Parade sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Village Association. Look for Mr. Bear on the LINC float along with future notices about our Toy Chest and Foster Care programs for Christmas.

Every day is like Christmas at Operation LINC. For example, according to office coordinator, Fran Mumma, LINC has donors who accumulate and mail donations to us. Boxes of serving notions, yarn, books, toys for children and adults come to our office. It is nice to know our friends even come from as far away as Midland and Clare, Michigan regions. It's always exciting to open the packages and see what we've received and coordinate its distribution where it is needed.

Not only does LINC have donors who give but we have human service organizations who have needs they make aware to us in the hopes that we can fulfill those needs.

One in particular, Pathways, is a mental health service for the elderly. Although younger adults had previously been served at Pathways, this past year the program began to focus exclusively on the older adults. Program director is Seymour Feiner. He oversees

St. Isaac Jogues to sponsor craft show

For the eighth year, St. Isaac Jogues Women's Club will sponsor a craft show. Show hours are: Friday, Oct. 24, from noon until 8 p.m. and Saturday, Oct. 25 from 10 a.m. til 6 p.m. The church hall is located at 10 Mile Road just west of Harper in St. Clair Shores.

Painted sweat shirts, dolls, stained glass items, handmade baskets, many country type arti-the two facets of Pathways, the Day Activity and Out Reach programs. The day activity project consists of education classes, art therapy of music, dance exercise, crafts and other group activities. The elderly relearn social skills, and develop new interests with these activities. In the Out Reach program, a social worker and psychiatrist go into the home of an elderly client to assess his mental status. Referrals, for example, come from neighbors, post office, relatives and social services. After the initial assessment has been made, the elder is encouraged to visit the center for activities that meet his specific needs. In extreme cases hospitalization may be necessary. Pathways has many resources available to elderly individuals who need help in coping perhaps with the loss of a spouse or just daily living due to their mental health status. Pathways' help line is 921-6238.

Like many human service or-ganizations, Pathways has funds to operate but not for those little extras that make a big difference.

Items such as musical instruments for their music therapy programs, or gifts at Christmas for their clients are items funds are not provided for. Those may be the only gifts the elderly client receives at Christmas.

LINC has helped in providing some gifts to Pathways in the past. A current request we are trying to fill is a sewing machine in good working order. Again, an item funds aren't provided for but a necessary tool for their day activity project of making a quilt. In doing so the clients build socialization skills and experience a great sense of accomplishment. The sewing machine would continue after the quilt is complete, to be a valuable asset to Pathways efforts with the elderly.

cles are just a few items in the wide variety of beautiful gift ideas to begin your holiday shopping. Refreshments, special raffles and a bake sale will also be offered for your added pleasure. Admission is 50 cents with proceeds for the benefit of Right-To-Lifespan

School of Government

The second meeting of the 1986-87 season of the School of Government, Inc., a non-partisan club founded in 1940 by the late Clara Brucker, was held on Wednesday, Oct. 22, at the Plum Hollow Country Club, 21631 Lahser Rd., Southfield.

Social Hour at 11:30 a.m., lunch at 12:30 p.m., meeting at 1:30 p.m. The club was happy to honor Mado Lie, as special guest. Mado opened her home on Windmill Pointe Dr. for the club's last two new membership fund raising events.

Wanda Sepanski, the club's current present, presided. She introduced Linda Zimmerman, Program Chairman, who presented her speaker, Colleen Engler, Re-publican candidate for Lt. Governor of Michigan.

The club has a membership of about 250, representing the entire metropolitan area, Detroit, the Grosse Pointe's, Bloomfield Hills, Birmingham, Farmington Hills, Dearborn and Grosse Ile.

that attendance at the event next month will be at an all-time high.

Mary Jane Watkins said that advance ticket sales indicate that attendance for the show will be "at least" 5,500, about 10 percent above a year ago. The show will be held Nov. 7-9 at the State Fairgrounds, Eight Mile Road and Woodward Avenue. There will be a charity preview Nov. 6.

Speaking at a press tea at the Bloomfield Hills home of Barbara Smith, Watkins noted that the show was held at the Fairgrounds in 1985 "on a trial basis" after more that a decade in Dearborn. "Very frankly, we had some concerns about trying the fairgrounds last year, but we simply had outgrown Fairlane Manor and there aren't many places around that can meet all our requirements,' Watkins said. "Department of Natural Resources staffers were extremely helpful and professional and they made our show so pleasant and trouble-free that we knew that coming back home to Detroit was exactly the right thing to do.

Out-of-state antique dealers who had heard unfavorable stories about Detroit were apprehensive about the move, but they too have become enthusiastic boosters of the new location, according to Watkins. She invariably refers questioners to a lengthy article in the prestigious "Maine Antique Digest" that sums up the results of the 1985 show this way:

"No, a show in Detroit is not going to work, many people predicted. But many people were wrong. It worked.

The secret of the sucess is the new Michigan Merchandise Mart, site of the show. It is a large, modern and immaculately maintained structure with fenced. lighted and guarded parking adjacent. Junior Group members transform the steel exhibit building into a showcase for antiques with carpeting, flowers and special effects.

Not only have out-of-town dealers changed their minds about the Detroit location, the show this year will have a record number of exhibitors from outside Michigan.

"Thirty-two of the 45 dealers are coming from outside Michigan," Watkins said. "In fact, they are coming from 16 states - from Connecticut to California."

There's no place like homecoming

Back in high school, I wasn't exactly what you'd call your typical fun-loving, high-spirited, mainstream teenager. I was rather serious and studious; not really the kind of person who leaned into school functions.

So it's not surprising that in four years at De-troit Servite High School (1971-75 for those who like to count) I attended exactly one-half of a homecoming game. That was in my senior year and I only went — arriving exactly at halftime — because I was editor of the school's yearbook and newspaper and the moderator had convinced me that it was my duty to attend the game no matter how silly I thought it was.

I remember poking fun at the seniors' float (which, of course, I hadn't even thought of helping to construct), watching the football game for a while (Servite lost by at least a dozen) and chuckling at the absurdity of a female class-mate of mine whose boyfriend was a defensive lineman. She actually wept over the loss and wondered aloud what she would say to said boyfriend after the loss ("nice game, honey" probably wasn't tops on her list).

Although I left the stadium that night convinced that I hadn't missed anything, years later, as I covered countless homecomings for this newspaper, I'd look up into the stands at all the fun the kids seemed to be having and wonder whether I had.

So, last Saturday, I went back to check. It all started a few weeks back, when I overheard my sister (Servite, '77) discussing the school's 1986 homecoming with a former classmate. Most of the class of 1977 would be there for the Oct. 18 game, and members of the 1976 and 1978 classes were thinking of showing up, she said. I was convinced that people from my class wouldn't be caught dead at Servite Homecoming Revisited (assuming they're still alive; although the U.S. was not at war in 1975, many of my classmates may have perished in the course of their duties as test pilots for pharmaceutical companies) . . . I decided to tag along anyway.

The game was at Roseville High's Field. You see, Servite doesn't have its own football field. It didn't then and it doesn't now. In fact, there's a lot that Servite doesn't have. Years ago, it was a parish school, an anchor in a blossoming neighborhood of mostly middle-class whites. Today, it's a regional high school in predominantly black, working-class surroundings. Some people might call them poor surroundings.

but seems to be working its way back up again. Some observers say that's because of the successful sports program in recent years. From what I saw Saturday night, that may be true.

When we first arrived, we felt a bit out of place. The vast numbers of alumni I'd been told who usually attend these games were nowhere to be found. A few hardy souls had traveled down from Marine City to cheer on Servite's op-ponent, Holy Cross. And on the Servite side were about 100 Panther fans. Mostly parents and a few students out of the 150 enrolled at Servite. To put it bluntly, 15 Yuppie-type suburbanites didn't exactly blend in.

And I was a little disappointed at first. All the things I'd become accustomed to seeing at the North and South homecomings - the huge crowds, bands, the floats, the players jumping through banners and cheerleaders performing elaborate routines - just weren't there.

See, at a small, struggling school like Servite, the cheerleaders double as the homecoming court. The players are their escorts. There are no bands and they aren't allowed to have floats. It was sort of disheartening for me, a person who had come expecting to find something she'd missed in her past

Then as the game got going, Servite began to play like the No. 6-ranked Class D team it is and the crowd got a little bigger and a little noisier. I began to see that Servite did have a lot of what North and South had and yes, even the Servite of the 70s had.

The kids had fun. They rang bells and cheered every time the Panthers had the ball. They booed the referee. Most of the kids were excited and dressed up for the game. There were a lot of parents - and little kids - in attendance. The homecoming court marched out on to the field and each member of the court got a flower, just like at the big schools.

And when the game was over and Servite had won, there was a lot of talk of going to the Silverdome for the Catholic League championship. And of partying in celebration of a Servite victory.

The bottom line, I thought as I walked back to the car, is that homecoming and everything that's associated with it is supposed to be fun. That's it, plain and simple. Some people do it a little more elaborately than others, and some people have to wait 11 years to get their fun. Perhaps that's because they think that it's just. what you wear and who you go with that makes the event fun. It isn't.

It's really just sitting with a friend or two, enjoying what's going on around you, and realizing that we really are pretty lucky to have what we've got. And that's everybody, from innercity kids cheering for a 7-0 team to suburbanites suffering through the ups and downs of a .500 season to slightly out-of-shape alumni getting together to relive old memories in new surroundings.

I'm glad that I had a chance to do it. Because, although Thomas Wolfe was probably right when he said, "You can't go home again," he never said you couldn't go "homecoming" again, did he?

It's getting so that fans of girls' high school tennis are better off asking who didn't win the Class A and Class C-D championships. Because every year - at least for the last 11 and seven, respectively we know exactly who did.

Coach Stephanie Prychitko's South High tennis team captured its 11th consecutive state Class A title in Midland last week, racking up 25 points en route to beating out a very competitive eight-team field. And coach Bob Hartwick culminated a season in which his University Liggett School squad was ranked at or near the No. 1 overall spot most of the time, with the Lady Knights' seventh straight C-D championship in Holland.

"It's an unbelievable feeling," Prychitko said Monday. "These kids are motivated. They go out and get together and talk about what they have to do. I don't know what they say to one another, but it has to be good. It sure worked for us this year," she added. South, which didn't win one of its singles finals, managed a strong enough showing throughout the other rounds and in the doubles finals to rack up 25 points. Bloomfield Hills Lahser was second with 24.

"The girls did the best they could in every match. Everyone had three points after the first day . . . yes, that really helps going into the semifinals with that kind of balance.

South's No. 1 singles seed, sen-ior Mary Wachter, lost in the quarterfinals to the eventual state champ Meredith McGrath, 3-6, 6-4, 2-6. Cathy Wachter made it to the semifinals, where she was beaten by Lahser's Kristin Ashare, 6-3, 6-2. Katy Turner fell to Nicole Ashare, 6-3, 6-0. Sarah Mayer played one of the most exciting matches in the singles rounds, tak-

6-0, 6-2.

Senior Anne Nicholson and sophomore Kathy Rajt teamed up at No. 1 doubles to pull off what Prychitko called South's "most exciting" match. The duo beat East Lansing's Jayne Ward and Kim Oleson - the tournament's No. 1 seed - 6-2, 6-1 to win the state ti-tle. At No. 2 doubles, Meg Petersen and Ellen Mayer lost to Ann Arbor Pioneer's Karen Irwin and Amy Van Appledorn, 6-7, 4-6. The No. 3 doubles team, Lisa Disser and Michelle Nault, took Portage Northern to three sets in the finals, losing 2-6, 6-2, 3-6. South finished the season with an 11-1 record, a regional championship and another Eastern Michi-gan League title. The girls' only loss was to Marian. And that may have been a blessing in disguise, Prychitko said.

<sup>4</sup>Maybe it was the best thing that could have happened to us, losing to Marian. It seemed to wake the girls up a bit," she said. The result was that South finished with a flourish, recapturing its No. 1 ranking in Michigan by beating ULS, 4-3, and gaining ground toward setting a national record for most consecutive tennis titles. ULS's boys' team had 13 consecutive titles. "But we're in Class A, Liggett plays in Class C-D," Prychitko added.

South will lose five seniors -Mary Wachter, Katy Turner, Sarah Mayer, Anne Nicholson and Lisa Disser — to graduation.

AT ULS, it took two days, but the Lady Knights compiled 26 points to win the Class C-D championship in Holland, Mich. Actually it wasn't even close, with Detroit Country Day School's (DCDS) 17 points garnering it the runner-up spot in

Truly amazing?

South's "Punahou High School in Honolulu won 14 in a row from 1959 to 1972. But Hawaii, with six or seven schools playing tennis, compared to South playing the number of talented schools it does in Class A, just doesn't measure up," Wood says. "I think that Stephanie (Prychitko) and the South girls should be congratulated. To do what they've done . . . without a girl winning a No. 1 singles title and Emily Medema of Kalamazoo Christian, -3, 6-7, 7-5. Laura Rizzo and Lesley MacLeod of ULS fell to DCDS's Suzanne Sellers and Heather Weyand at No. 2 doubles, in memory, well, it's really amazing. Not to mention the considerable pressure that a team goes through in a streak like this."

Wood estimates that even his ULS boy's team, as successful as they were, would only have netted five or six championships in that 13-year span if they'd had to play in Class A.

If South continues the streak. it would break Punahou High's record in 1990. - Peggy O'Connor

Kalamazoo Christian's Beth VanderKooi and Jennifer Meyering, 6-4, 4-6, 6-0.

ULS coach Bob Hartwick called the Lady Knights' championship "great." He added that it was the culmination of a very competitive season.

"The match with South (a fourhour marathon which ended in a 4-3 win for Class A South) was the pinnacle of the season, even though the outcome was sort of depressing. But then every one of our matches was exciting because we play such a rigorous schedule,' Hartwick added.

"The states, though, are our No. 1 priority. And we're very determined to keep winning them every vear.'

is crazy. But this unidentified — and hardy — soul seems to think it's just g-g-g-g-g-great. Barons finish season on high note

Some people might think that racing a jet ski on Lake St. Clair on a chilly October afternoon

The Red Barons football teams finished their schedules with two wins and one loss against the Northeast Detroit Shamrock squads.

The freshmen ended their season with a 30-0 loss to the stronger, more experienced Shamrocks. Despite the lopsided score, the Barons made a game of it with several long drives, but weren't able to put points on the board. On offense, backs Paul Gentile, Andy Swikowski, Derek Ottewaere, Ryan Rouls, Kris Erickson, Brian Law and Tim Miller carried the ball for gains. They got good blocking from linemen David Pierno, Mike Tipple, Andy McCrosky and Jay Harrington.

Defensively, David Tipple, Tim Morgan, Tom Morgan, Dan Strobl, Brian Avigone, Eric Faust, Ryan Locke, Chris Thome and Joe Thomas played well. The freshmen ended the year with an 0-2-4 (record and a dripped no nwop

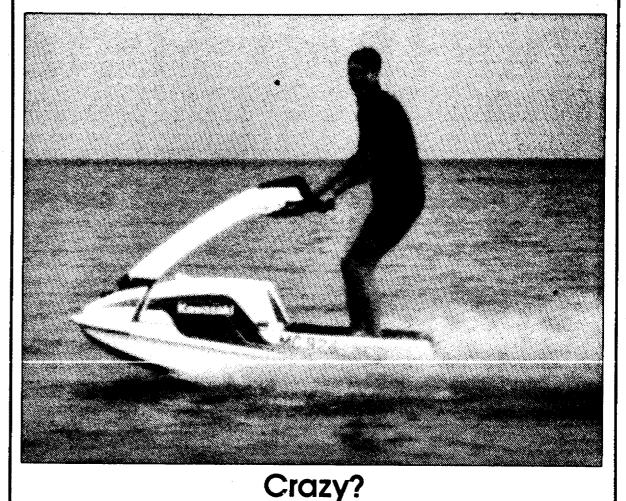

The JV squad completed an undefeated season with a 12-7-victory, bringing its record to 5-0-1. The Shamrocks took an early 7-0 lead in this game when they cashed in on a drive after a Barons' punt. The Barons came back in the second quarter when they put together a 53-yard drive behind the running of Mike Haskell and Drew Woodruff. Haskell scored from the 6, running off-tackle; the extra point was no good and the score stood at 7-6.

The Barons' defense, led by Alex Brinker, Tom Kolojeski, Eric Coddens, Adam Conlan, David Applegate, Haskell and Woodruff, played a good game. In the second half, the Barons mounted another long drive as Woodruff and Haskell ran well behind the blocking of fullback Mike Miller and linemen Tony DiLaura, Tom Paquin, Tony Morgan, Rob Gillis and Kolojeski. The key to the drive was a long pass from Scott Spada to Haskell, which left the ball on the 2. On the new play, Woodruff took the ball in to give the Barons a 12-7 lead. The Barons'' defense' took over, stopping the Shamrocks by recovering a fumble. The offense got the ball and drove 65 yards to the Shamrocks' 3 as time ran out. The Red Barons' varsity ran its record to 6-0 with a 20-18 victory. Northeast Detroit took an early lead when it scored on a long pass reception. The Barons answered with a 57-yard drive which saw the offensive line of Paul Straske, Brian Nottoli, Brian Czarczynski, Jed Maliszewski, Jim Kutscher, Dan Watkins, Matt Fowler and Scott Van Almen dominate the Shamrock defense. Brad Cromar, Tim Meinig and Steve Herbst were able to pick up yardage running behind the line.

Herbst scored on an option play and Cromar added the point after to make the score 7-6. The Shamrocks scored again on a long pass to lead 12-7, but the Barons came right back when Herbst scored again on the option. The point after attempt failed and the varsity had a 13-12 at halftime.

In the second half, the Shamrocks scored on a breakaway, but the Barons got a touchdown of their own when Meinig took the ball inside and broke loose for the score. Cromar connected on the point after to give the Barons their margin of victory, 20-18.

Skiers will find new condominiums and improved snowmaking capabilities highlighting improvements this winter at Michigan's downhill ski areas which have spent at least $20 million to upgrade facilities, according to AAA Michigan.

About 40 percent of the state's 49 downhill skiing facilities have made improvements since last winter, with at least eight lodges taking major steps to upgrade snowmaking.

Most of the condominium development will be found in northwest lower Michigan. The Homestead Resort at Glen Arbor has built 53 slope-side condominiums as the centerpiece of its $8 million building boom.

Thirty-six one- and two-bedroom suites have been added in a $5 million expansion at Boyne Highlands in Harbor Springs. Boyne Mountain at Boyne Falls spent $4 million to remodel 38 hotel suites and to boost snowmaking capacity 20 percent.

At Crystal Mountain near Thompsonville, six new condominiums have been added and meeting facilities have been expanded. A 30 percent increase in snowmaking is set for Otsego's Bittersweet, which also widened and lighted two ski hills.

Near Buchanan, Ski World (known as Royal Valley last season) has increased snowmaking capabilities 65 percent, built a new expert racing slope and added 1,200 sets of rental equipment. Near Gobles, Timber Ridge's lodge has been tripled and snowmaking has increased 10 percent. Charlevoix's Mount McSauba has doubled its snowmaking capacity.

In southeast Michigan, three new advanced intermediate slopes, a 20 percent jump in snowmaking and a new ticket office highlight $1.2 million in improvements at Milford's Alpine Valley. Mount Brighton has invested $500,000 to double its lodge to 50,000 square feet and added 800 sets of rental equipment. Riverview Highlands has erected a new ski lift at its Gangplank slope which was widened as part of a $100,000 project. A 1,400-foot run with a 290-foot drop is new at Mount Holly.

Skiers who prefer northeast lower Michigan will find that 52 hotel rooms should be complete by Dec. 1 at Sylvan Resort near Gaylord where a new expert slope has been added in a $500,000 expansion. The cross-country lodge at Hanson Hills near Grayling has been expanded and skiers will find redecoration at Snowsnake near Harrison.

The Upper Peninsula's Big Powderhorn, near Bessemer, has replaced a lift terminal and added a slope side sun deck at the Alpen Inn. Improved grooming and 30 percent more snowmaking will be available at Iron Mountain's Pine Mountain.

Two snow guns and advanced and intermediate ski runs highlight $200,000 worth of upgrading at Marquette Mountain. A new lift on the bunny run and expanded cross-

South sports Blue Devil kickers take district championship title

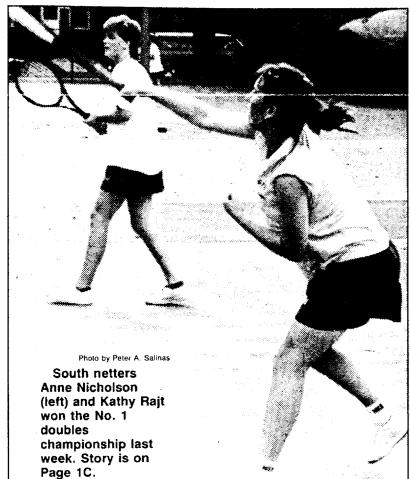

There are only 16 soccer teams left in state high school playoff competition . . . and South High's Blue Devils are one of them.

South beat rival North, 1-0, and topped Notre Dame, 2-1, to win the district championship last week. The Blue Devils played Ann Arbor Pioneer in the regional semi-finals Oct. 22 (after press time). The winner advances to the regional finals at Northville on Saturday, Oct. 25.

'I'm pleased. Anytime you are in the last 16 in the state, you have to be happy," said coach John Case.

Tim Witt and Rudy Cruz scored the goals against Notre Dame; Steve Trowern and Mike Finch got the assists. Against North, the Norsemen goaltender stopped a quick shot from Cruz, but Sam Steinhebel was there to put in the rebound.

"It was a very good, very tough game," Case said. "Both Guido and I knew it would come down to a 1-0 game. The goalies (Eric #### Restum and Brian Grieve) were very much in evidence in this one," he added.

Earlier in the week, South beat East Detroit, 2-0, and Mount Cle-mens, 8-1. Cruz and Jim Ryszewski scored against East Detroit; Cruz (four), Restum, Geoff Van Geeste, Brendan Keating and Witt scored against the Bathers. Van Geeste (two), Bill Thompson, Mike Finch, Ryszewski, David Morinelli, George Sparrow and Witt assisted on the goals.

South entered play this week with a 13-0-2 record.

The Blue Devil freshmen kickers were successful last week, beating DeLaSalle, 2-1, and tying University of Detroit High, 0-0, and the University Liggett JV, 0-0. Anthony DeLuca got both goals against the Pilots.

South's offense rushed for 191 yards and completed two passes for 32 yards. The offensive line has continued to block consistently. Despite giving up two TDs in the first half, the Devil defense got fired up to shut out the Bathers in the second half.

South's record is 4-3 overall and 4-2 in the EML.

Despite the loss to Mount Clemens, 22-0, on Oct. 16, South's JV football team is continuing to improve.

"Due to a combination of good pass protection and concentration on the part of the receivers, our passing game has improved considerably since the last game. We were able to complete about 70 percent of our passes," noted sophomore Matt Janke. As a result of the pass protection, QB Bill Leonard was able to complete a 34-yard pass to Josh Winquist. The Devils will travel north today, Oct. 23, to play Anchor Bay.

South's freshman gridders lost their second game of the season to East Detroit Oakwood, 34-6, on Oct. 15.

South's only score came on a 52yard pass from Brian Letscher to Jim West. Mike Montagne racked up 12 tackles in the game to help the Devils' defense.

'Round Midnight' is filmmaking at its very best

By Michael Chapp

Beautifully textured and deli-cately layered, "Round Midnight" is as sensually complex as the great jazz music at its center. And it's as soulfully eloquent as it is aesthetically pleasing.

These are more than just ordinary words of praise to be sure, but "Midnight" is more than just an ordinary film. Much more. There's a world of difference between "Midnight" and day-to-day pic-tures. It's a difference of quality.

Loosely based on the real-life relationship of Bud Powell and Francis Paudras, "Midnight" stars Dexter Gordon as Dale Turner and Francois Cluzet as Francis Borier, a venerable jazz musician and a starving artist respectively. Through music as well as plot, the film enters not only their personal and professional lives, but their hearts and minds as well. It documents the fall and rise of a great man, and the powers of belief and friendship - supplied by a man lesser in social position but greater in benevolence — that kindle the rise

When first Turner appears, he is a tiring saxaphone great who still takes every opportunity possible to toot his own horn. Living in 1950s Paris and in the glory of his past, Turner now is content to push his weary self through nightly gigs and then let his wife take the money while he retires to his bedroom for solitude. There's not whole lot left to live for, he figures, so why not let well enough alone and be content talking about and thinking of past accomplishments.

Dale Turner (Dexter Gordon) is a brilliant American saxophonist who comes to Paris for his last chance at success in "Round Midnight," the story of a black jazz musician's struggle to create the be-bop sound in 1950s Paris.

When first Borier appears, he is a down-on-his-luck artist who lives and dies for the sounds of the great jazz man Turner. Divorced and custodian of a young daughter, Borier has barely enough money to put food on the dinner table. But one night when Turner asks Borier to buy him a drink, the young admirer complies. And that, at least for awhile, is emblematic of the entire relationship the two of them will eventually share. Turner asks, Borier gives. And gives. And then gives some more.

The two of them become great friends; Borier giving and asking for little else than Turner's reciprocated friendship and heavenly music. Both of those things are free, so Turner is happy to oblige. Eventually, Turner begins to feel the vitality of long ago surging through his bones and flowing through his lungs once again. His music becomes more vivid and the blues he had been playing begin to take the transformed sound of be-bop. Indeed, soon Turner has the bounce in his step of a rabbit, and he hops all the way back to New York where he dreams of making a comeback. Borier, of course, goes with him, but soon returns to the Paris he loves and is so comfortable with. It's a sad and unexpected split between two men, who have become completely dependent on each other - though for different reasons – and at the same time have grown entirely apart

The film paints well the relationship between the two, but like a fine piece of music with its many movements or a classic painting with its numerous interpretations, 'Midnight'' is about a great deal more than simply the relationship the two men had with each other. It's also about the inner relationship they had with themselves.

Sight and sound work in constant harmony in the picture to remind viewers of this duality. Every opportunity is taken to slowly pan through dark, smoke-filled rooms, music gently playing in the background, and to focus intently on an instrument or on the man playing it. When the going is at its worst for Turner, the rooms are dark and filled with smoke, the music noticeably slower paced. When things begin to get better, the light comes on and the music moves uptempo. Likewise, much of Borier's life is spent in rainy Paris; the outside weather an echo of his saddening disposition.

Cluzet's reading of Borier is reminiscent of a young Dustin Hoffman, not only because of the physical resemblance they share, but also because of Borier's sincerity in line delivery and the movement of his body.

Good as Cluzet is though, the film still belongs to Gordon, who perfectly personifies Turner. Everything down to his smile and gently endearing eyes meet and surpass expectations of dramatic and comedic excellence. "Midnight" is an example of filmmaking at its very best. It's nothing if not a visual cornucopia for the eyes. It's nothing if not a sonic gold mine for the ears. It's nothing if not intellectual paydirt for the mind. It's all of these.

It's something.

'Peggy Sue Got Married' is a treasure

By Marian Trainor

In "Peggy Sue Got Married," Frank Coppola presents an endearing, well-crafted film that speaks to the mind and heart of human experience. It speaks to everyone who remembers youthful dreams, has seen them fade and wonders if he or she would make the same choices if it were possible to relive those years.

Peggy Sue gets that opportunity and discovers that, given a second chance, the choices would not have been easier: they might have been twide as hard ....

When the film begins, Peggy Sue (Kathleen Turner) a 43-year-old mother of two is getting ready to #### attend the 25th anniversary reunion of her 1960 graduation class. She is wearing the same silver bouffant dress she wore back then, when she was crowned prom queen and she looks great.

But still she has mixed feelings about going. She is separated from her husband, Charlie (Nicholas Cage), whom she married right out of high school. She is still hurting and is not sure she is up to seeing Charlie at the reunion with his new-found love.

As Peggy Sue enters the gym, round her. There is a life-size photo blowup of herself as prom queen and one of Charlie as prom king. As she looks around at her old classmates, and realizes what opportunities she might have had, she muses, "I'd do a lot of things differently.

Crowned reunion queen, she sudtime," they explain. She confides her secret to the class nerd who has earned that reputation because he is more interested in science than clowning around. He also has an explanation: "Time travel is like a burrito. It can fold over and touch you.'

Shades of another era are brought back as Peggy Sue breaks, into laughter at the sight of her father's new Edsel, shrieks to the music of Dick Clarks' American Bandstand and revels in her angora sweaters and Rice Krispie cookies.

It is such touches as these that add to the charm of the film as do the portrayals of her close family life and her parents' love and concern for her

"Guys and Dolls" opens at the Bonstelle

"Guys and Dolls," the musical comedy classic by Loesser, Swerling and Burrows, is the opening production of the 1986-87 Bonstelle Theatre season. It opens Friday, Oct. 24, at 8 p.m. and continues for two weekends. The other performances are Saturday, Oct. 25, Friday, Oct. 31, and Saturday, Nov. 1, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, Oct. 26 and Nov. 2, at 2 p.m.

Damon Runyon's short stories are the center of "Guys and Dolls," whose plot revolves around a New York City group of hoods and gamblors bearing such names as Nicely-wicely, Harry the Horse, Nathan Detroit and Sky Masterson

Among the catchy Frank Loesser tunes in this show are "Sit Down, You're Rocking the Boat," "If I Were a Bell," "Luck Be a Lady," and "A Bushel and a Peck."

"Guys and Dolls" has a cast of more than 30 students including son, north of Nine Mile Road. John McFarland as Nathan Detroit, the executive officer of the oldest floating crap game in town;

Victoria Schmitt as Miss Adelaide, Nathan's long suffering 'doll'; Hal Adams as the dashing Sky Masterson, and Nicole Hakim as the lovely Sarah Brown.

The production is directed by Russell Smith, with musical direction by Dennis Tini and choreography by Nira Pullin. The scenic design is by Victor McQuiston, costume design by S.Q. Campbell and lighting design by Mark Highland.

This production of "Guys and Dolls" marks the first collaborative effort of the new School of Fine and Performing Arts departments of theatre, music and dance.

For tickets and schedule information, call the Wayne State University theatre box office, Cass and Hancock, Detroit. The phone number is 577-2960. For group sales information, call 577-3010.

Parisian theatre company to perform

Inter-Europe Spectacles of Paris, Claude Beauclair's company of French theater artists, will present Moliere's classical comedy, "Le Misanthrope," in French Tuesday, Oct. 28, at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the Detroit Institute of Arts. Gathered around here are old friends, only now they are young friends. Charlie is the nice, attentive kid he was and Peggy Sue is once again a 17-year-old girl, but with a difference. She has seen her future and she now has a chance to change it.

In the meantime she enjoys her sojourn in the past. Her friends have a little difficulty understanding this different Peggy Sue who is so free-spirited. She rides off into the night on a motorcycle and smokes pot with the class beatnik. when she tries to seduce him.

The play will be presented in period costumes and the performance time, including one intermission, will be two hours and 15 minutes. The company consists of the following: Claude Beauclair, Julian Combey, Jacques Arney, Clarisse Gardet and Francoise Mojeret.

Kathleen Turner as both a highspirited teenager and the disilusioned wife displays an uncanny ability to play two characters and moods at once. True, she cannot pass for a teenager, but then the young Peggy Sue is not herself, and before the film's end will be wiser.

Cage shows surprising depth as Charlie. He seems younger than Peggy Sue but that is understandable. He has not yet experienced a life ahead.

Barry Miller turns in an excellent performance as the scorned studious boy who achieves success but is still angry and defensive at his class reunion. Kevin O'Connor is impressive as the sensitive beatnik

"Peggy Sue Got Married" is a treasure of a film. One that entertains and delights as it subtly explores marriage, compromise and coming to terms with the past. From it we learn that the past is never lost but is to be treasured and what counts most is how we come to terms with the present.
