Billiu, Steele honored

Two Grosse Pointe scoutmasters were honored recently for their services to the community.
 E. Carter Billiu of Grosse Pointe Park was presented with the Silver Beaver Award by the District Area Council, the highest honor bestowed locally. He has participated in scouting for more than 22 years.

He joined the Burt Elementary School Cub Pack in 1951 and followed it with five years as a Boy Scout, achieving the Star Scout rank and receiving the God and Country religious emblem.

As an adult, he has served in a variety of unit leadership positions as a troop committee member, assistant scoutmaster and scoutmaster of Troop 148 chartered to St. Matthew's Roman Cathedral Church. Service to the Lakeshore District since 1980 has included district sustaining membership chairman, district vice chairman, district commissioner, vice chairman of Council Leadership Training Committee and staff member of the National Scout Jamboree.

During this tenure, he received the Scouter's Training Award, Scouter's Key, Commissioner Arrowhead Award, Council President's and Area II President's Award and the District Award of Merit in 1982.

Billiu is an account agent with Allstate Insurance. Community Service includes former membership in the Grosse Pointe Jaycees, a current eight-year member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion, Grosse Pointe Power Squadron and the Grosse Pointe Park Civic Association. He is a lector at St. Matthew's and has been a member of the Men's Club for more than 10 years.

David Steele of Grosse Pointe was presented with the Lamb Award Nov. 9 by the Lutheran Council of the U.S.A. The award is presented to members of the Lutheran church for outstanding service to scouting as well as to the community.

Steele, scoutmaster for Troop 96 of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, has been involved with scouting for 32 years. His troop is the largest in the district and generally acknowledged to be one of the best.

He was recognized by the Detroit Area Council in 1983 with the Silver Beaver Award. In addition, he has received the Scouter's Training Key, Eagle Scout Award and the Order of the Arrow Honor Camper's Society.

A member of the Council Executive Board since 1980, Steele has served as Lakeshore District chairman for three years. He is currently chairman of the Council Religious Relationships Committee.

He has been on the board of directors of Grosse Pointe Little League for three years. Steele is an ordained Lutheran minister, and in addition to his regular employment, he preaches at Lutheran churches all over the state when the regular pastor is ill or absent. He has served as a Sunday school teacher and youth adviser.

Do our kids know enough science?

Schools ponder meaning of low science scores

By Nancy Parmenter

School officials are still trying to sort out the meaning of the low state science test scores for fourth, seventh and 10th graders. The results of the Michigan Education Assessment Test in math, reading and science were received in the local districts two weeks ago.

No statewide results will be available until January, but individual district results so far seem to show that most students scored poorly on the science test given this year for the first time. School officials are trying to figure out why.

The discussion centers on whether the new test is too hard or whether kids don't know much science. Both things are probably true, according to Roger McCaig, director of research and development for the Grosse Pointe schools.

"It's quite clear that it is much, much more difficult (than the math and reading tests)," he said. "It's not a basic survival skills test. It's more like a final exam."

On the other hand, "kids are weak in science. We believe that in Grosse Pointe or we wouldn't have added science consultants, increased the seventh grade requirement, increased the graduation requirement. We wouldn't be talking to high school students about taking more science."

In a move to improve science offerings at all grade levels, last year the schools added elementary school science consultants to assist classroom teachers, increased the seventh grade science class from one semester to two, and added a second year to the high school science requirement for graduation, starting with the class of 1988.

These changes were too recent to have an effect on test scores this year. But when students who rank in the 90s on math and reading come up with the scores in the 30s for science, concerns arise.

McCaig said discussion about the science curriculum has already started on an informal basis.

Discussions could — but won't necessarily — lead eventually to changed curriculum content or different textbooks. McCaig characterized the embryonic discussion as "healthy," and pointed out that last year's upgrade of the science requirements did not touch on curriculum content.

A curve ball in the test results is that fourth graders did better than 10th graders, a result that seems to be true in many districts. The test scores refer to percentages of students who correctly answer 75 percent of the test objectives. Therefore, Grosse Pointe results, which are usually in the 90s, mean that 90 percent of the students received at least 75 percent on the test.

'It's quite clear that it is much, much more difficult...'

But the science scores ran from 70 for the fourth grade, to 53 in the seventh grade, down to 33 in the 10th grade. "There are two probable truths," McCaig said. "One is that 10th graders know less science appropriate to what they ought to know. The other is that the 10th grade test is harder."

The 10th grade test is hard.

The math test, for example, includes questions about making change, converting fractions to decimals, finding cities on a map, doing long division. Students are expected to know the meaning of words like radius and diameter, but problems involving anything complex like finding the area of a circle include the formula for computing area.

One third of Grosse Pointe 10th graders achieved 100 percent on the math section. "Every district has some kids who have trouble learning, but if you're in accelerated math, (this test) is a joke," McCaig said. "There isn't a hard question in the batch."

The science section provides no formulas. The multiple-choice questions include: "Which of the following best illustrates the flow of energy in a natural system? A) niche, B) biome, C) arctic tundra, D) food pyramid." Students must know which among protons, neutrons and electrons are heavy and which are weightless. They have to know the difference between electrical, physical, chemical and nuclear changes.

Try this one: "Which of the following is a physical change? A) wood burning in air, B) iron rusting in water, C) silver tarnishing in air, D) sugar dissolving in water." That question triggered a two-day argument among several people with college chemistry under their belts.

McCaig agreed that adults, too, could find the test hard. "Then you have to ask yourself, 'is it because I don't know much science, or is the test too hard?' I'll bet you'll find that it's a little of both," he said.

Low as the scores were in Grosse Pointe, they were just as low — or lower — in several other districts. It was reported that one-third of Port Huron students in all three grades passed the test. In Anchor Bay, the results declined as they did in Grosse Pointe: 40 percent in fourth grade, 30 percent in seventh grade, 21 percent in 10th grade. L'Anse Creuse was reported at 55, 28 and 27 percent.

The state has been giving the assessment tests for 15 years and, in general, scores have been on an upward trend. The improvement has been less marked in suburban school districts that have traditionally supported strong education.

The tests were started, McCaig said, because "legislators and education professionals felt a number of Michigan schools weren't doing the job. Big-city districts have improved a lot. There haven't been major changes in scores of quality suburban districts because they were doing the job in the first place."

Testing takes a lot of time both in administering and grading, but McCaig said Grosse Pointe is committed to it to the point of giving its own yearly district-wide tests in reading, spelling, vocabulary, writing and math in grades 1-10.

The district does not test science or other "subject-matter" disciplines. "There's nothing wrong with it," McCaig said. "We happen not to do so."

He said the amount of testing any district does is largely affected by time. A test like the Michigan Assessment takes six hours, the equivalent of one school day.

Tribute to Tim

The family and friends of Tim Chouinard planted a tree at Pierce Middle School Nov. 5 in his honor. Tim, an eighth-grader at Pierce, died last summer of a rare blood disease. Family members included parents John and Sharon Chouinard, brothers Tom and Chris, a sister Pam, and Tim's grandfather. The tree, a candied apple weeping crab apple tree, was selected because it produces a fruit for animals, significant to the young student because he had a special fondness for animals.

Members reappointed

The following members were reappointed to the Beautification Commission by Park Mayor Palmer Heenan and confirmed by the city council Nov. 10:

Nancy Pilorget as chairman, Jerome Abbs as vice chairman, Lynn Crissman, Grace Harrison, Sylvia Landuyt, Al Mazur and Diamond Phillips.

They will serve two-year terms.

Morris appointed to fill unexpired term on council

M. Jackson Morris

The Grosse Pointe City Council voted unanimously Monday night to appoint M. Jackson Morris to a seat on the council. He will fill the remainder of the term expiring November 1989, which became vacant when James P. Curran resigned upon moving to East Lansing.

Morris, a certified public accountant, is a partner in the national accounting and consulting firm of Pannell, Kerr, Forster where he heads the audit department. He received his bachelor's and master's degrees in business from the University of Michigan.

Morris, 42, is a 12-year City resident. He resides on Lakeland with his wife and two children.

Correction

Last week's Grosse Pointe News should have quoted the Grosse Pointe schools' director of elementary curriculum Alfreida Frost as saying that the schools' latchkey program is more than just a babysitting service. Our apologies to those involved with the program.

City tables Charles Street issue again

Depending on which side of the street they live, residents say that Charles in the City is either a combat zone or a charming country road. Those who say the short unpaved stretch of roadway attracts high speed drivers and motorists petitioned the city in September to close the portion between Roosevelt and Washington.

The matter was tabled at the time. It appeared on the agenda Monday night and was tabled again.

"I'm getting old just coming to these meetings," one woman said. Another added, "We're going to be six feet under before it's decided."

The recommendation to close one end of the street was first made by the city in 1963. Charles, which has ingress and egress from Rivard, Roosevelt and Washington, would have two access points if it were closed at Washington.

Some residents who live on Charles feel their property values would decrease if the street were closed. They also expressed concern about a closure inhibiting emergency vehicles.

Charles is the only unpaved street in a city where even the alleys are paved, according to Brandon Rogers, city planner. Rogers said, "The time has come to vacate. I feel there's an even split (of residents for and against the closure). I feel relatively few homes would be affected by this closure."

If the city decided to vacate the stretch between Roosevelt and Washington, the property would be split between the two homeowners on either side — Tory Creech and John Kim. The property would go back on the tax rolls as unimproved property, like front lawns.

The council was not prepared when William McIntyre, an attorney said that the general rule of splitting property among the property owners whose lands abut the property in question did not apply in this situation.

"This is an unusual situation placed somewhere around the turn of the century and achieving its present form around 1910 or 1915," McIntyre said. "It means the property would rever to the heirs (of the original property owners) or the state of Michigan."

After considerable discussion, Mayor Lorenzo Browning said, "We feel it's worth the time and patience to go back and review it again and have our legal counsel advise us when we will bring it up again."

Tribute Tree to be erected

The War Memorial, for the second year, will erect a Tribute Tree for the Christmas season. Harriet Lafer, who launched the project last year, is chairperson.

The idea of the Tribute Tree is not only a vessel in which people may honor others, but it's a gift that continues to give. Proceeds are used to improve programming and services at the center, which in turn is given back to the community through the many educational, civic and cultural events that occur there throughout the year.

A light on the Tribute Tree may be donated in the name of someone living or deceased, and a gift card will be sent to a person of the donor's choosing.

To donate a light of tribute, send a $5 donation to the War Memorial. Gift cards will be sent in time for Christmas. Donations will be received until Christmas.

Forms are available at the center or send the name of the honoree and the card, along with the donor's name, address and phone number, to Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich. 48236. For a receipt, enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Donations are tax-deductible.

Who are they?

Grosse Pointe Historical Society Curator Jean Dodenhoff needs help identifying the people in three postcard-photographs recently acquired by the society. The photos were taken about 1908. One card is addressed to Miss S.G. Oberson, 322 Euclid East, Detroit, Mich. and is signed, Mirtle. The return address is Route #1, Box 122, Grosse Pointe Farms. Anyone who can identify any of the people in this photograph should contact the historical society's office Tuesdays or Wednesdays between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. at 884-7010.

Kroger lot transfer completed Nov. 12

By Nancy Parmenter
The Grosse Pointe schools went ahead and closed the deal on the Kroger parking lot Nov. 12 in spite of a show cause hearing that had been scheduled for Nov. 18.

"If the court held it to be improper, it could order it set aside," said school attorney Douglas West. "The board followed the bid specifications to the letter. Proceeding with the closing is just the final detail."

Meanwhile, the show cause hearing was delayed indefinitely. According to Carl Rashid, the attorney for purchasers Beverly Burns and Pamela Stanton, the delay was at the request of losing bidders Judith Goodnow Prus, the Kercheval Co. and Kabak & Mehr. Attorneys for the Prus group declined to confirm or deny it.

Stanton and Burns became the operators of the lot as of the closing, although they will not have legal title until the expiration of their four-year land contract.

Rashid said users of the lot should not expect any changes. "My clients have always said that they intend to use it as it is used now," he said. As for concerns that Kroger's would close in protest of possible high parking rates, "who wants to own a vacant piece of property if Kroger moved out?"

Skeptics have said that it is impossible to make money on the lot without increasing the rate or increasing the usage by building a parking structure.

Rashid said the buyers expected their investment to be profitable at current rates. "The city took in $15,000 without really enforcing parking (regulations)," he said, noting that people frequently park in the lot without paying. He said additional profit could be made just by enforcing parking fees until 9 p.m. when the supermarket closes.

"(Profitable operation) is not as mysterious as everyone seems to think," he said. He pointed out that $15,000 annually on a $126,000 investment is a reasonable return. "We all know that in the bank or a CD, you only get about eight percent," he said.

City treasurer-assessor Dennis Foran confirmed that the city does take in $15,000 a year from the Kroger lot. That amount is partially offset by $10,000 in expenses, he said. Expenses include snowplowing, insurance, lighting, maintenance on the asphalt and the meters, but not labor costs of items such as picking up the money in the meters.

Foran said the lots had been established as a convenience and service to residents and a help to local businesses. City parking rates were set high enough to cover expenses in all the city lots. "Our parking system is operating on a non-profit basis," he said.

Six appointed

Six additional appointments were made to the Tax Increment Finance Authority for the Northwest Sector by Park Mayor Palmer Heenan Nov. 10. All were confirmed by the council.

They are Lisa Brado of Bradenton, Margaret Breitenbacher of Kercheval, Ed Kiska, Charles Rupprecht of Beaconsfield, Jack Schenburn of Maryland and Robert Sharrow of Maryland.

They join eight residents appointed at the Oct. 27 meeting that followed a public hearing on the tax financing plan.

Children of war to speak Monday

Six young people, representing Guatemala, South Africa, Lebanon, the Philippines and the United States, will visit the Christ Church Monday, Nov. 24, at 7:30 p.m.

The public is invited and youth attendance is especially encouraged. The church is located at 61 Grosse Pointe Blvd. The Children of War Tour is a program of the Religious Task Force, an interfaith coalition of national groups working for peace.

For more information, call Marina Getz at 882-0976.

California trip

"Playground of the stars," "Golf capital of the world" and "Home of the famous" are all phrases associated with Palm Springs, Calif., and travelers from the War Memorial will have the opportunity to discover the truth when they visit the resort area March 11-18, 1987. An information night will be held at the center on Friday, Nov. 21, at 7 p.m.

Accommodations will be at the Spa Hotel and Mineral Springs, located in the heart of downtown Palm Springs. Optional day tours to various sites, including Disneyland, San Diego Wild Animal Park, Universal Studios/Hollywood, and more, will be available from the hotel.

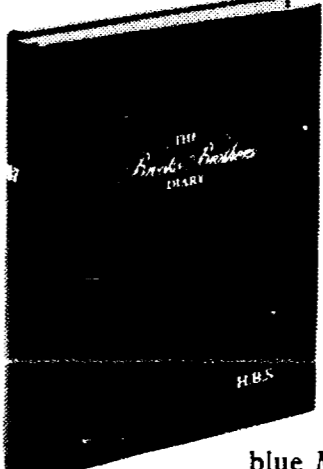

The information night will give complete details including cost and itinerary. For information or a flyer, call the center at 881-7511, Monday-Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Check-cashing tips for businesses offered

A crime prevention seminar for small business people was sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Hill Association through the Farms Police Department last month. The seminar is an effort to stave off the increase in shoplifting, bad check passing and credit card fraud, especially around the holiday season.

Hill Association President Robert Edgar praised the efforts of the Farms department, especially detectives Earl Field and Dan Jensen for putting on the seminar.

Robert Frost, National Bank of Detroit security department, and Homer Townsend, security director with Eastland's J.L. Hudson's spoke before the group at the Pier Park Recreation building.

Bad checks are a problem for business people throughout the year, but their frequency increases around the holidays. The speakers suggested business owners develop strict check-cashing policies and make sure employees stringently enforce them.

Thoroughly screening customers before issuing a check-cashing courtesy card is a good idea. Many businesses, however, don't issue check-cashing cards. Those stores should accept checks for purchase price only. Employees should closely match the check casher's identification signature with that on the check.

During the busy holiday sales period, it is a good idea to use a cashier's booth to cash all checks. This allows the store clerks to wait on customers and keep an eye open for shoplifters.

Police officials and speakers suggested cashing checks for local residents only and to follow the rules and guidelines closely.

An important tip to always require a second and third identification. A driver's license with a color picture and a social security card or credit card number helps in locating a person who has passed a bad check.

"Do not take a check from anyone unless you have three pieces of identification and can identify the person passing the check," Field said. "Any check cashed without sufficient funds over $50 is a felony. Under $50 is a misdemeanor."

Field said that making sure a person is prosecuted for passing bad checks is important. He said it sends a message to others considering the move.

His department is not a collection agency, he noted. Many people will bring in bad checks asking that the department try to collect on it. He said without the elements of a criminal case, the department will not investigate it.

Those elements include having a person who took the check initial it, because without a witness as to who passed the check, there is little anyone can do.

"Under no circumstances should a liquor store take a check for the sale of liquor alone," Field said. "That is a violation of liquor laws and the business owner could lose his license."

Eller to speak at conference

Macomb Community College and St. Joseph Hospital will sponsor a substance abuse awareness and prevention conference Sunday, Nov. 23, for students of all ages and their parents.

Guest speaker at the conference will be former National Football League great Carl Eller. A five-time all-pro defensive end and an integral part of the Minnesota Vikings' famed "Purple People Eaters," Eller fell victim to alcohol and drug abuse. The destructive effects of the addiction cost Eller his family, friends, health, career... and almost his life.

After reaching rock-bottom he was able to kick his habit and pull his life together. For the past several years he has worked to help others from becoming caught in this web, taking his presentation to schools, businesses and factories.

Eller currently serves as a consultant to the National Football League on matters of alcohol and drug abuse and as executive director of the United States Athletes Association, which provides counseling and information on prevention and treatment of chemical dependency for high school and college students.

Other presentations at the conference include "How to Identify and Help Someone with Chemical Dependency," "Crack Epidemic," "How to Survive with the Alcoholic Family," "How to be Happy Without Alcohol and Drugs," "Marijuana's Effect on the Body," "Medical Effects of Alcoholism and the Co-Dependent," "Where Does Drug Taking Begin and Where Is It Going," "Local and Federal Efforts," and "Substance Abuse Prevention Techniques for Children."

Presentations will be made by experts from the Drug Enforcement Administration, Detroit Police Department No Crack Task Force, St. Joseph Hospital, Macomb County Office of Substance Abuse, and BABES (Beginning Alcohol and Addictions Basic Education Studies).

The all-day conference, to be held in Macomb's South Campus Physical Education Center (P Building), 14500 Twelve Mile, in Warren, will begin with Eller's presentation at noon. The presentations will continue until 8 p.m.

There is no charge to attend and the public is invited. For more information, or to learn the times of specific presentations, call 445-7610.

I say

Marriage: The final frontier. This is the voyage of the Starship Matrimony. A lifelong mission to seek new lives, new china patterns, an addition or two. To boldly go where many have gone before. La, laa-la-laa-la-la-la.

By the time you Grosse Pointers read this, Marlene and I will be basking in the sun and semitropical breezes of Lake Ontario, celebrating our newly found marriedness.

I'm writing this with sweaty palms and electric socks on. A pile of half-smoked cigarettes fills the ashtray next to me. And the next person who asks me if I'm getting nervous is going to discover what it's like to eat three square meals a day through a straw.

Actually, I'm not very nervous at all. With 75 hours, 46 minutes and eight seconds left before I say, "I do," I'd say I'm fairly calm.

The ceremony is all set, the flowers are ordered, the restaurant expects us and my mother-in-law finally found a pair of black shoes to match her dress.

We decided on a small ceremony of about 25 people. I never realized how mad people can get at you for not inviting them to the wedding. Two of my aunts have threatened to attend without an invitation while reeking of Scotch, a friend said he was going to send a stripper to the ceremony and an old girlfriend plans to stand outside the city hall and throw hot fried rice.

Being in love is a fabulous feeling. It's like being up north, sitting in front of a quiet fire and sipping Chateau Montrachet. Intoxicating, but there's this inner knowledge you'll eventually run out of wine, and have to sweep up the ashes.

But really, I'm looking forward to all the fun and excitement that goes along with marriage. Mortgage payments, wallpapering the baby's room with Peanuts paper, eating at inexpensive Chinese restaurants and snuggling during Cuddle Alerts.

For years I badmouthed mar-

Part of the family now

riage as an institution. I yelped when friends would tell me they were going to get nuptial. My checkbook has notches on it for every friend who's gone over to the other side. I never cry at weddings. There's plenty of time for that later.

Peter A. Salinas

Marlene shopping for a wedding dress, and let Marlene drive the car. Is it possible my mother likes and trusts my wife-to-be more than me?

We thought about one of those pre-nuptial agreements. When we sat down and started thinking about what we would include in it, we both got scared and never brought the subject up again.

I like to reflect on the past. I stood up at two weddings. I remember renting tuxedos, standing up while everyone else sat down, eating good food and drinking champagne until I couldn't see. I don't want that stuff going on at my wedding. Well, nothing but the champagne part anyway.

Why is it that at every wedding, there is always some guy who gets too drunk and dances with someone else's wife. Always a fight ensues that is quickly broken up. The women always go to the bathroom and return with smeared mascara.

Marlene has two cocker spaniels at home, who will be anxiously awaiting our return from Toronto. The dogs have finally (after almost a year) started to accept my presence. For a while there, they wouldn't come into the room if I was around. Now the youngest one will jump up on my lap while I'm sitting on the couch. She licks my face, and demands that I scratch behind her ears.

Marlene scratches behind my ears every once in a while. Guess I am part of the family now.

When I asked Marlene if there was anything special she wanted said during the ceremony, she wondered aloud if there was something she could get in there about double standards. I always joke that I get to go out with the guys once a week and watch at least two football games per weekend.

She demanded that she be allowed to go out with the girls and watch Dynasty and Dallas.

I wouldn't be upset at all about her going out once a week with friends, but I draw the line at night-time soap operas.

It has been very hard on her, but she has weaned herself from those shows. Bringing back Bobby from the dead by making an entire season a dream is what turned the trick. Thank you, Hollywood!

My mother is just totally abuzz with excitement. She said she would take the entire day off work and would be there if she could find a ride.

Actually, Mom's been great. She bought a new car last month. I asked if I could take it for a spin and she said, "Hell, no!" She took

How to avoid credit card fraud

Credit cards have become a way of life for many in America. Unfortunately, so has credit card fraud. And it's of growing concern to the nation's bankers, who have issued more than 110 million plastic Visa and Master Cards.

Bank cards are accepted by so many retailers, travel and rental agencies, and mail order companies that chances for fraud are enormous. The loss to fraud could top $1 billion by 1987.

Credit card fraud occurs when somebody illegally obtains your card number and expiration date and uses them to order by phone, merchandise or a cash advance, which is then sent to his/her address, not yours.

If your card is lost or stolen and someone else uses it, there are ways to protect yourself. If you report the loss immediately, you owe nothing. Even if you fail to report the loss, the limit of your liability is $50 per card.

What you may not realize is that criminals can steal from your account even though the cards remain safely in your possession. If you've wondered why the new credit card receipts have the carbons attached to the customer copy, it's because some people were taking the carbons that separate copies of the transaction and using the information on them to make purchases illegally.

Another scam involves the telephone. An enthusiastic caller will announce that you have won free merchandise. All you have to do to claim it is identify yourself with your credit card number. Needless to say, you won't receive any merchandise and you won't know until your next statement comes that you've been cheated.

When you're using your card in a crowded retail store, it's even possible that the person behind you or next to you is memorizing your card number while you're signing your name.

Card companies are fighting back by increasing their investigative staffs. Many catalog companies compare the address the caller gives with the address the credit card company has. If there's a discrepancy, they may call the card owner to verify the purchase.

Companies are also looking into ways to prevent duplication of cards by counterfeiters. They are expanding the number of electronic authorization terminals so that stores can verify purchases at the point of sale.

ULS foreign students experience America

This year, three foreign students sponsored by ASSIST (American Secondary Schools for International Students and Teachers) are studying at University Liggett School and experiencing American culture for the first time.

Senior Jun Dai, who is staying in Grosse Pointe with Mr. and Mrs. G. Howard Willett III and their daughter, Wendy, comes to ULS from an independent boarding school attached to Fu Dan University in Shanghai, China.

Jun comments often on the freedom of American education. Although she is taking a typical ULS course load of five majors, she finds it easier than the Chinese regimen of 10 required subjects. American students seem less academically diligent than the Chinese, and participate more frequently in extracurricular activities, she says.

Jun, who is finding her American experiences relaxing and rewarding, also enjoys the advanced American technology, especially dishwashers.

Cristina Tarrus, who comes from the Institut de Batxillerat J. Vicens-Vivens, a public high school in Gerona, Spain, is also a senior at ULS. Her hosts are Mr. and Mrs. Leo E. Alexander and their daughter, Lydia, of Mount Clemens.

Although her school also requires 10 subjects each year, classes do not meet every day and the academic atmosphere is much more relaxed than at ULS. Cristina is also aware of the melting-pot aspect of American culture in contrast to the less divided ethnicity of her homeland.

She is struck by the large amount of milk and beef in the American diet, and by the open space in the United States. In her small town, people do not need to use an automobile to accomplish daily errands.

Michael Trapp, a junior at ULS, attends the Gymnasium Essen-Werden, a public high school in Essen, West Germany. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Chilingirian and their son, David, of Grosse Pointe, are his American hosts.

Michael is used to larger classes and a strictly academic atmosphere at school. He is not having much trouble carrying six subjects at ULS and maintaining a high average. In Germany, however, there is no such thing as "school spirit," and team sports are played at private clubs. Thus, Michael enjoyed the unique experience of playing for the ULS soccer team at the state championships in November.

Finally, with a laugh, Michael says his main sense of America is "wide" — "wide streets and wide cars!"

An educational and cultural exchange organization, ASSIST was founded in 1968 by Paul G. Sander-son Jr., former headmaster of Suffield Academy in Connecticut. Working primarily with independent schools worldwide, ASSIST arranges screening, selection and placement of students and teachers in one-year scholarship programs.

Flood committee to open meeting

The newly appointed flood plain committee in the Park decided to open its meetings to the public. The decision was made at its last meeting Nov. 11. The next meeting is Tuesday, Nov. 25, at 7:30 p.m. in the council chambers.

City Manager John Crawford said members were given assignment to look into specific areas, such as the history of the flood plain, recreational use of the two parks in the flood plain, etc.

Engineers Hubbell, Roth & Clark presented committee members with three alternatives to eliminate the flood plain designation, Crawford said. The firm has not been designated as engineers for the project and the committee will make a recommendation to the city council's next meeting Monday, Nov. 24.

Crawford added that representatives from Detroit's planning department will be invited to the next committee meeting, since the city hopes to work with Detroit on the problem.

Optimists sponsor essay contest

The Lakeshore Optimist Club of Grosse Pointe will sponsor an essay contest on the subject of "Freedom, Our Most Precious Heritage." All high school seniors, juniors and sophomores are eligible to participate.

The local club will select a first, second and third place winner and the first place entry will be automatically forwarded to the district competition where it will be judged against other entries from the district.

The author of the winning entry in the district contest will be awarded an expense paid four-day trip to the Freedom Foundation at Valley Forge for a special seminar on the subject of freedom and patriotism. Last year's entrant from the Lakeshore Club was Richard Noechel of Notre Dame High School, who finished second out of 22 entrants at the district level.

Original entries must be submitted by Dec. 14. For further information, contact Charles Harwood, 1860 Brys, Grosse Pointe Woods, 48236. Phone is 884-1059.

Sarkisian named entrepreneur of the year

Gayle Sarkisian, former Grosse Pointe resident and June 1960 graduate of Grosse Pointe High School, was honored as Female Entrepreneur of the Year by the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce Council of Small Enterprises recently.

The former Gayle Fortan is president of Green Plant Design, Inc. of Livonia, a company with 800 corporate and institutional customers who lease or pay the company to maintain their plants. The company, started in 1978, now has 39 full- and part-time employees.

Sarkisian says the idea of leasing plants was originally suggested by her mother in 1976 when Sarkisian and a partner, whom she has since bought out, were getting tired of hosting household plant parties.

"It seemed like a natural marketing thrust at the time," she said. "Interior environments were quite sterile."

She began her concept of lease plants and maintenance on a weekly basis by trained personnel from a 900 square foot warehouse on the corner of 8 Mile and Orchard Lake, with the office in her home. The company now has some 22,000 plants.

Some of the local businesses serviced by Green Plant Design are Empire of America in the Woods, National Bank of Detroit in the Farms and Bon Secours Nursing Center in St. Clair Shores.

Sarkisian and her husband Nick, who live in Farmington Hills, have four children.

Eleanor A. Hansen

Services were held for Eleanor A. Hansen, 75, on Nov. 8 at the A.H. Peters Funeral Home and St. Joan of Arc Catholic Church.

Mrs. Hansen died Nov. 5 at her Grosse Pointe Woods home after a long illness.

She was born in Cleveland, Ohio, moved to Detroit in 1923, and graduated from Eastern High School. She was a member of the U.S. Marine Corps Women's Reserve and worked in Washington, D.C. on the staff of the Leatherneck and the Marine Corps Gazette Magazine. ### Staff added

A 15-page report on staffing recommendations handed to school board members this month boils down to $46,000 in additional funds for a half-teacher here and .1 there. The board accepted the recommendation at the Nov. 10 meeting.

Although some elementary school classes are a little larger than hoped, none of the staff increases are targeted at the elementary level. "We have already made a significant commitment to class size," said school Superintendent John Whritner Nov. 3. "Even talking aides, it would mean a significant number of dollars (to increase the staff ratio to the desired level)."

In a memo to the board, Whritner said, "Given the fiscal commitment already made to reduce class size, I cannot recommend adding the staff necessary to bring these numbers below their current levels. These current numbers represent what has been a 'norm' for the system." He estimated that it could take another two years to reach the desired sizes.

Many of the teachers and clerical staff to be hired will be asked to work part time. For example, .1 advanced-math teacher will be hired for North and South high schools for the second semester. That will provide one additional class hour of advanced math at each school.

High ability enrollment is up, more so at Monteith than the other schools. "There's an increase across the board in high ability," Whritner said. "Why, all of a sudden, I just don't know."

High ability enrollment at Monteith increased from 71 to 106 students this year. Teacher hours were increased .2 last year and will be increased another .3 this year.

At no cost to the district, hours will also be increased for job placement and vocational training for the trainable mentally impaired. The funds will come from reallocation of federal funds, according to the memo.

Two schools will also receive additional office staff, although not as much as they requested. Parcels and Monteith both asked for an additional .5 and will receive .2.

A full-time secretary will be hired for cafeteria supervisor Ann Potteiger, who was left without assistance when her assistant retired last year. The secretary will relieve the supervisor of duties such as typing purchase orders.

Nancy Parmenter

Stamp fact

In 1916 a mailer sent 40,000 tons of bricks across Utah, because postage was cheaper than wagon freight! The post office promptly changed the regulations to prohibit the mailing of buildings.

After-school program open at GP Academy

The Grosse Pointe Academy library has become a central after-school gathering spot for youngsters who would otherwise spend time with a babysitter or go home to an empty house.

More than 30 preschool and elementary school children participate in the Academy's After Care program.

The program includes art, crafts, games, outdoor play, drama and stories. Kathleen Kelly, the new director of the program, strives to create a relaxed atmosphere where the children can unwind. She offers a variety of activities each day, giving the children choices. A nutritious snack is a highlight of the afternoon, often with the children helping to prepare the food.

Kelly hopes that the content and structure of the program can become a model for after-school care programs in other schools. She proach works well because Kelly has three assistants to supervise the activity centers. Carey Andrews, in her second year of liberal arts study at the University of Michigan-Dearborn, enjoys photography and has already snapped some candid shots of her charges.

Katherine Cacki Boomer, an academy alumna, spent last year at Regis College and is considering becoming a trained Montessori teacher.

Peter Hannert is a senior at South High School with plans to study art at the Rhode Island School of Design. Displayed in a corner of the library are examples of some of the art projects that After Care children have produced under Peter's guidance.

Academy After Care hours are from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. every school day. The cost is $2.50 per hour, plus a $30 registration fee. The program is intended for children aged 3 to 12, and is open to all students in the community.

To learn more about the program, call Kelly at 886-1221.

The retail merchants of Kercheval on the Hill will kick off the holiday shopping season Friday and Saturday, Nov. 21 and 22, from 10 a.m.-5:30 p.m., with a two-day promotion called Pre-Holly Days.

Gifts, including a $100 cash prize, a Waterford Crystal decanter and a 14-karat gold necklace, will be given away at 5 p.m. Saturday at the League Shop.

Entry blanks for the Santa's bag drawing will be available at participating stores during Pre-Holly Days. Entrants must be 18 years of age or older. No purchase is necessary.

Children are invited to visit with Santa as he strolls the sidewalks from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, dispensing candy canes and holiday cheer.

Kenard Lawrence

Wales film, dinner

The Grosse Pointe Adventure Series will travel to one of Europe's least known countries when Kenard Lawrence presents an armchair adventure to "Wales and the Lakes of England," on Tuesday, Nov. 25, at the War Memorial. The film will begin at 8 p.m. and an optional dinner with a Welsh flavor will be served at 6:30 p.m. for those who buy tickets for the complete evening.

In his film, Lawrence will offer a glimpse at many of the customs and traditions of Wales such as cockle collecting on the mud flats, shepherding, weaving, and "love-spoon" carving — specially carved spoons given in marriage.

Besides stops at the many castle ruins, the film will visit Laugharn, the home of poet Dylan Thomas, "Hilltop House" in Hawkshead; the home and workshop of Beatrix Potter who immortalized Peter Rabbit, and the intricately carved house of the Ladies of the Vale.

The menu for dinner will be roast rib of beef, tatws slaw (mashed potatoes with butter-milk), and grosmeere gingerbread with cream.

Tickets for the complete evening may be purchased at least three days in advance and they are $16.75 per person. Tickets for the film only are $4.15 each. For additional information, call 881-7511, 9 to 9 daily except Sunday.

Children's author visits schools

Marc Brown, author and illustrator of some of the best-known children's picture books on the market today, appeared at the Grosse Pointe Public Library and several schools Nov. 11 and 12.

Students and their teachers at Defer, Ferry, Poupard and St. Clare of Montefalco, as well as a full house of parents and children at the Central Library, sat enthralled as Brown told them about his work and his family. He showed the children how to draw his popular characters and create their own.

He offered a sneak preview of his newest "Arthur" book, "Arthur's Teacher Trouble."

Arthur is the young aardvark Brown invented to entertain his children 10 years ago. The result was a bedtime story "Arthur's Nose," a story of early identity crises, as Arthur, a first-grader, became embarrassed by his big nose and determined to change it.

Later books show Arthur dealing with glasses, fear, practical jokes, a secret admirer and a host of other problems common to the very young. Brown handles all with humor and good grace.

The popularity of the series has grown and there are plans for a television special and possible series, as well as Arthur dolls.

Other creations show Brown's versatility: "Your First Garden Book," "One, Two, Three: An Animal Counting Book," which shows his ability as a graphic artist, and two of the best fingerplay books ever published, "Finger Rhymes" and "Hand Rhymes."

With Stephen Krensky he produced "Dinosaurs Beware" and "Perfect Pigs," a practical book on manners for the very young.

With the help of his wife, Laurene Krasny Brown, a psychologist, he wrote and illustrated a book to help children understand and deal with divorce, "Dinosaurs Divorce."

Brown began by illustrating other authors including Verna Aardema, Isaac Asimov, Theodore Clymer and Diane Volkstein. Brown says the writing is the hardest part of his work. He rewrites his stories at least 20 to 30 times or more before he's satisfied.

Brown was brought to Grosse Pointe by Blaine Morrow, Dr. Charles Hanson and the staff and Friends of the Library, the Grosse Pointe public schools and the Foundation for Academic Enrichment.

Host families sought for exchange students

Host families are being sought for 25 high school students from Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Finland, Holland, Belgium, Austria, Switzerland, Germany, Spain, France, Italy, Ecuador, Australia and Japan for the School Year 1987-88 in a program sponsored by the American Inter-cultural Student Exchange (AISE).

The students, age 15 through 17, will arrive in the United States in August 1987, attend a local high school, and return to their home countries in June 1988. The students, all fluent in English, have been screened by their school representatives in their home countries and have spending money and medical insurance.

AISE is also seeking American high school students age 15 through 17, who would like to spend a high school year in Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Germany, Switzerland, France, Spain or Australia or participate in a five-week summer host family stay throughout Western Europe.

Families interested in this program should telephone toll free: 1-800-SIBLING.

Schools, library receive gifts

The Grosse Pointe school board accepted gifts from four school parent-teacher organizations and the Friends of the Library at the Nov. 10 meeting. Included was the gift from the Ferry School PTO that had been tabled in October.

The Ferry gift of $3,200 had included $800 to pay a person to maintain the school's nature center. Because the board three years ago had banned individual schools from directly hiring employees, the school has been processing the money for the nature center through the central business office, according to Deputy Superintendent Joseph Spagnoli.

Now, however, "we're not sure that's what the board wants to do," Spagnoli said. He said that processing the money through the school system leaves the district open to the same questions about liability, workers' compensation and fringe benefits that the old direct-pay arrangement did.

The nature center item was removed from the Ferry gift until the board can formulate a policy. Spagnoli said the PTO may reallocate the $800 if it wishes. The remaining $2,400 will be spent on assemblies, safety patrol, spelling bee prizes and a video cassette recorder.

Other gifts included $7,550 from the Mason PTO for assemblies, field trips, books and software, furniture for the teachers' lounge and a fifth grade trip to Toronto.

The Pierce PTO donated $4,230 for awards, computer supplies, books and special recognition ceremonies for the students. Poupard School received $4,900 from its PTO for a fifth grade outdoor educational experience, assemblies and field trips and computer printers and software.

The Friends of the Library donated $20,950 for computer accessories, children's programs, books on cassette and printing. Nearly half ($10,000) was allotted to the purchase of books.

Tax seminar set

The Financial Fitness group will conduct a tax seminar Saturday, Nov. 22, from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. at the Assumption Eastpointe Cultural Center, 21800 Marter Road.

Director John Poplawski of St. John and Associates, E. David Marande, registered securities representative, Mary G. Landau, tax attorney, and Peter R. Singler, business and personal accountant, will inform participants of what steps to take for the rest of this year to insure a tax advantage.

Stanhope Avenue to be resurfaced

Grosse Pointe Woods' city council voted to accept the offer of the contractor to reseal Stanhope Avenue at no cost to the city as soon as the weather permits next spring.

The contractor, Ward & Van Nouk, agreed to reseal the street with a 1/4-inch capping and a finer grade material; that, except for intersections, the entire street would have the same surface; that residents would be notified prior to the start of the construction; and that reduced speed limit signs would be posted during the construction process.

In addition, the council voted to send a letter to each Stanhope Avenue resident explaining the decision.

Residents had complained to the council at two October meetings because Stanhope was resurfaced with a chip and seal application, instead of asphalt. They complained that the chip and seal was inferior because of noise, safety and appearance.

School census shows limited changes

In the recently completed biennial census conducted by the Grosse Pointe Public School System, school officials noted limited population changes since the census was last taken in 1984. There was a three percent decline in the number of children through age 19 who live in Grosse Pointe, reflecting national trends.

The survey measures the number of residents in certain age groups and is used to project future needs of the system. Since that time in the early 1970s when school enrollment was at an all-time high with approximately 13,500 students, the school population has gradually fallen to its present level of almost 7,400 students. School officials expect the school population to experience a small decline for several more years until several more classes graduate. They say the growth in numbers in the younger children indicate that on the whole the population has stabilized.

Only two groups, those ages 0-4 and those ages 5-11, showed an increase since 1984. The younger group includes 2,551 preschool age children which is 106, or 4.3 percent, more than were counted in the 1984 census. The 5- to 11-year-old group had an additional 308 more children, a rise of 7.3 percent since the 1984 census when 4,210 children were counted.

The most marked decline was a 20.4 percent decrease in 12-, 13- and 14-year-old children which parallels national trends. Despite this drop-off in middle school-age children, King anticipates the growth of younger age groups to offset the lower enrollment in the middle grades.

The Grosse Pointe public school enrollment this year is 7,394 which is an increase of 48 students more than were enrolled at the same time last year. Of the 11,262 children between ages 5-19 in the Pointes, 1,354 attend parochial school and 905 attend private school. An additional 754 are in college and 646 attend no school.

The survey also served to measure the number of senior citizens who live within the boundaries of the school system. At present, 17.7 percent of the 56,895 residents in Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods, or 10,045 people, are over age 60.

In addition to enumerating various age groups, the census identified 1,048 bilingual families living within the district.

NOTICE OF HEARING ZONING BOARD OF APPEALS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Zoning Board of Appeals will meet in City Hall at 90 Kerby Road, Grosse Pointe Farms, Michigan on:

at 7:30 p.m. to hear the following:

- 1) The appeal of Mr. Edward Kleinert, owner of the premises located at 461 Belanger Road, from the denial of the Building Department to issue a Building Permit for a two (2) story addition to the rear of his existing dwelling located at the foregoing address. Such permit issuance was denied for reason that the residence located on the foregoing premises is non-conforming for reason that it is in violation of the side yard provisions of Article XIII, Section 1300 of the City's Zoning Ordinance, and in accordance with the provisions of Article XV, Section 1502, Item 4-A of the City's Zoning Ordinance, no such structure may be enlarged or structurally altered unless a variance is granted.
- 2) The appeal of Mr. & Mrs. Champine, owners of the premises located at 406 Kercheval, from the denial of the Building Department to issue a Building Permit for the construction of a garage in the side yard of their property located at the foregoing address. Such permit issuance was denied for reason that under Section 1503, Item 2 of the City's Zoning Ordinance, accessory buildings in Residential Districts shall not be erected in a side yard.
- 3) The appeal of Mr. W. James Mast, from the denial of the Building Department to issue a Permit for the construction of an office building located on lots 5 and 6 of Kerby's Subdivision at the corner of Kerby Road and Mack Avenue. Permit issuance was denied for reason that:
  - 1) Sufficient off-street parking would not be available on the property to meet the requirements of the City's Zoning Ordinance under Section 1504, Item 9. Sixty-three (63) parking spaces are required according to building use criteria under Section 1504, Item 9 of the City's Zoning Ordinance, whereas the plan of proposed construction provides fifty (55) parking spaces. Under the provisions of Section 1504, Item 9 the Board may grant exceptions to off-street parking requirements where it determines after a hearing that the requirements are excessive or unduly burdensome for any of several reasons specified.
  - 2) The proposed office structure has a building height of 31 feet, which is in excess of the maximum building height of 30 feet as specified for a B-1 Local Business District in Article XIII, Section 1300 of the City's Zoning Ordinance, thereby requiring that a variance be granted from such provisions.

The Hearings will be public. Interested property owners or residents of the City are invited to attend.

Virgin Islands cruise scheduled

The 100-passenger luxury yacht, Newport Clipper, will be the vessel that will retrace some of the centuries-old island routes on the Virgin Island cruise that the War Memorial will sponsor from Feb. 15-22, 1987. Reservations for the cruise can be made at the center with a $300 deposit by Nov. 30.

The dimensions of the yacht enables it to sail to many of the out-of-the-way harbors and beaches that large cruise ships are unable to navigate. The route will allow for visits to ports on the islands of St. Thomas, St. John, St. Croix and Virgin Gorda, as well as Tortola, Norman Island and Salt Island.

A variety of activities will be available to passengers throughout the trip, in water sports such as swimming, snorkeling, scuba diving and sailing, as well as opportunities for deep sea fishing, golf and shopping.

On board, travelers will find a quiet and restful atmosphere and elegant appointments that only a private yacht can offer, such as all outside staterooms and one seating at meals.

Package prices range from $1,773 to $2,473 per person. A full-color brochure with complete details and itinerary is available at the War Memorial. For information call 881-7511.

Cottage Hospice receives license

The Cottage Hospital Hospice recently underwent a three-day Medicare certification and state licensure survey and became the 28th provider in the state to legally call itself a hospice.

Under Medicare, hospice is primarily a comprehensive home care program which provides all the reasonable and necessary medical and support services for the management of a terminal illness, including pain control.

Covered services include physician services, nursing care, medical appliances and supplies (including outpatient drugs for symptom management and pain relief), home health aide and homemaker services, therapies, medical social services, and counseling. In addition to the broad range of outpatient services, short-term inpatient care also is covered.

When a patient receives these services from a Medicare certified hospice, Medicare hospital insurance pays almost the entire cost. There are no deductibles or co-payments, except for limited cost-sharing for outpatient drugs and inpatient respite care.

Annual state licensure now is required of all hospice programs in Michigan, unless they meet an exemption law. Licensure means that Cottage Hospital conforms to state guidelines for a hospice, including the services of a complete hospice team. The hospice team is made up of a physician, a nurse, a social worker and volunteers. Consultation services for occupational therapy, physical therapy, dietary needs, home care, spiritual care and bereavement counseling also are available.

CITY OF GROSSE POINTE PARK MICHIGAN TAX INCREMENT FINANCE AUTHORITY

The following resolution was adopted by the City Council for the City of Grosse Pointe Park at their regular Council Meeting held on October 27, 1986.

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, the City Council for the City of Grosse Pointe Park finds that a substantial number of residential and commercial properties in the northwest sector of the city have experienced a decline in property values;

WHEREAS, the City Council for the City of Grosse Pointe Park finds that the property tax base of the northwest sector of the City has been adversely affected by aging housing, vacant commercial properties, public infrastructure in need of repair, and urban decline in nearby neighborhoods in Detroit;

WHEREAS, the City Council for the City of Grosse Pointe Park finds that it is in the best interests of the public to eliminate the causes of the decline in property values and to promote growth in the northwest sector of the City;

WHEREAS, the City Council of the City of Grosse Pointe Park has determined that a comprehensive program of public and private improvement is required to halt a decline in property values, eliminate causes of that decline and to promote growth in the northwest sector of the City; and

WHEREAS, the City Council of the City of Grosse Pointe Park has held a public hearing and provided notice as required by law to all interested persons;

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED THAT:

1. The City Council of the City of Grosse Pointe Park hereby establishes a tax increment financing authority pursuant to Public Act No. 450, Michigan Public Acts of 1980, as amended.

Toughlove: A tough response to problems

Some related successes. "I'm getting better about not worrying about him as much," said Nancy. Her son had stolen money from her purse, yet denied it. He took his sister's bike and sold it. "I kicked him out. I don't know where he went. He came home at 7 a.m. and I let him in."
Pastoria served as a moderator and a summarizer. She worked to draw people into the conversation by sharing small successes, searching for helpful solutions for others, or just talking about their own Toughlove child.
All these Toughlove children are demanding control over their own lives, even though they're doing destructive things. They demand to relate to their parents in their own way, she said.
Critics of the Toughlove philosophy say that it is a symptomatic approach to the treatment of children with serious, often long-standing problems.
Judy Hogan, a social worker with the Grosse Pointe Individual and Family Therapy Center, has reservations about Toughlove. "It may be appropriate for kids with aggressive and anti-social behavior," she said, "but I worry that it tends to encourage and identify with an aggressive stance."
"I have respect for the people in the program. There is no doubt that most have been through tremendous suffering. Many of these families are desperate. But Toughlove appears to be more aggressive than caring. What's needed is a corrective experience, and that experience needs to be a loving, caring one. These children often have very complicated problems which need time to be solved," said Hogan.

"There are so many pressures on kids today. When you lock the door, you're cutting things off."
Pastoria emphasized that Toughlove philosophy does not patently advocate kicking kids out of the house. "The last thing I'd ever recommend is kicking a kid out," she said. "That's a last resort. Often the situation is so bad by the time a parent joins our group that the kid has left of his own accord or the parent has already kicked him out."
Other critics of the Toughlove philosophy say that it gives license to parents to abuse their children. Pastoria said in most cases, the parents are the abused — not the abusers.
Pediatric psychologist Michael McMillan, Ph.D. said, "I endorse Toughlove in certain situations. For instance, when the adolescent is out of control and he or she is physically intimidating or physically assaulting the parent. It's an approach, but not a panacea or a cure-all.

"Basically, support groups are wonderful," he said. "But people who get into programs like Toughlove have probably had problems with their children for years and years. It doesn't address the causes of these problems."
"It's like saying everyone who has a fever should take aspirin. The aspirin won't cure appendicitis or a serious infection."
Toughlove has helped Janet for 1½ years. Her 19-year-old son, Tony, the youngest of four children, was involved with marijuana, alcohol, stealing, failing in school and ignoring his parents' curfew. "I did all the usual things," she said. "I drove up and down streets at 4 a.m. when he hadn't come home. I called police. I grounded him. Searched his room. Took away his car privileges. I called other parents. Stayed home on weekends to keep him home. Policed his friends."
Then she went to a Toughlove meeting.
Toughlove is tough on parents, according to Janet. "Toughlove didn't solve my son's problems. It helped me. The misconception is that you'll cure or stop the problems in your life."

"These Toughlove children are always into some kind of a problem," she said. "You're always answering for them. It's very painful because society says the parent should be in control. You realize that you just can't control them. They control themselves. I finally allowed myself not to make excuses for him."
Janet's son finally graduated from high school. He's in his first year at a junior college and living away from home. Janet and her husband agreed to pay for his room and board if he worked during the summer to pay tuition. She's reasonably certain that he no longer uses marijuana.
"It's not over now," she said. "But he knows what our standards are. I hope people will use Toughlove. It's easier to struggle in a group than to struggle alone."
The Grosse Pointe parent support group using the Toughlove philosophy meets Mondays at 7:30 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church, 19950 Mack Ave., in the church library. For more information, call 884-2385.

residency check, as the growing crime problem in Detroit schools encourages people to send their children across the border.
The biggest problem in false residency cases is not people who lie about their address or drive their children in from outside the district. It is people sending their children to live with friends or relatives in the system, all the school officials agreed.

Schools . . .

"Our biggest problem is the 'live-ins,'" said Tatsak. "There's a real increase in giving custody to a friend or relative who lives in the district."
Parents cannot legally simply send their children to live with grandparents and expect them to be enrolled in the local district, King said. The key is whether the parents are or are not able to provide a suitable home.
"That could mean the kid is kicked out. It could mean financial problems. It could mean they're making it up," Tatsak said. "It's easier to believe when they come from Grand Rapids. If you assume everyone's telling the truth, there are people who will take advantage of that."
The problem does carry with it one ironic note, considering America's complaints about public education. Dearborn's Lomas put it into words.
"The public cries that schools aren't as good as they should be — but look at all the people who are trying to get in."

French group to meet

As of September 30, the end of the 1986 fiscal year, the Daily 3 again has proven to be the most popular of all Michigan Lottery games. And, even with wide support of the bureau's newer games, the Daily 3 is still increasing in popularity statewide. The following answers some of the most frequently asked questions about this game.

Q: Isn't the Daily 3 a lot like the illegal street game?
A: Yes. In fact, the Daily 3 was introduced in 1977 to compete with the illegal games. And, players in the Daily 3 know that it is honest, that all prizes will be paid and can easily be collected at any Daily Game retailer, and that net revenues help finance education in Michigan.

Q: How much was won in the Daily 3 last year?
A: More than $170 million was won in prizes ranging from $41-$500. During several bonus promotions, the top prize was raised to $600.

Q: How do these bonus payouts work?
A: At various times throughout the year, the Lottery will announce that on one night—we won't say which—during the next week, players will be surprised with a bonus payout. The bonus nights take the form of either drawing two sets of numbers and paying on both, or increasing the prize amount awarded on all winning straight bets. For a $1 wager, the payout would be $600 rather than the usual $500, and for a winning 50¢ bet, the payout would be $300 instead of $250.

Q: When is the next bonus night?
A: Three bonus nights will be held November 10-29 featuring the larger prizes for straight bet winners.

Q: Did I hear about a record Daily 3 payout this year?
A: Yes. On June 10, 1986, the number 123 was drawn. More than 32,000 players won a total of $4,965,980. This was the equivalent of 489 percent of the amount wagered in the game that day.

Q: How much did the Daily 3 contribute to school aid last year?
A: While the final figures are not tallied yet, the Daily 3 will provide about $142 million to the State School Aid Fund during fiscal 1986 to help support K-12 education in Michigan.

Q: How do I play the game?
A: Details of how to play the game, the odds and prize amounts are contained in a pamphlet, "The Daily 3 Made Simple," available free at Daily Game retailers. Because her question led to this column, Debbie Hanley of Garden City will receive 50 free "Holiday Cash" instant game tickets.
If you have a Lottery question not yet covered in these monthly columns, send it to: "Winners Circle," Michigan Lottery, P.O. Box 30077, Lansing, MI 48909.

Getting to the heart of the matter — literally

St. John Fontbonne Auxiliary's White Christmas Ball will benefit the hospital's cardiac catheterization laboratory on Dec. 13 at the Country Club of Detroit

By Elsa Frohman

When doctors, auxiliary members and supporters of St. John Hospital gather at the White Christmas Ball at the Country Club of Detroit on Dec. 13, they will be helping the hospital save lives through diagnosis and treatment of coronary artery disease (also known as atherosclerosis). Proceeds of the 33rd annual holiday ball will go to the cardiac catheterization lab at the hospital.

Dr. Vlado Kozul, Grosse Pointe and medical director of the lab, explained that the lab has expanded phenomenally in the last few years. He came to St. John in 1972 to originate the program.

"The cardiac catheterization laboratory has been in operation for 14 years," Kozul said. "Its primary function is diagnostic procedures. But in the last two years, we have expanded into intervention and treatment."

Cardiac catheterization is a method for taking a clear, detailed picture of the veins and arteries of the heart muscle. In a patient with cardiac artery disease, those vessels become partially or completely blocked by a deposit called plaque.

During catheterization, a thin, plastic tube is passed through the circulatory system, usually from the arm or groin, to the heart, where a dye that shows up on an X-ray is injected. With this technique, the exact location of a blockage can be determined.

Kozul explained that other measurements can be taken at the same time. The pressure of the blood in the heart chambers, and a direct sample of blood from the heart can be taken — helping the physician to make an accurate diagnosis of the problem.

A heart attack occurs when a cardiac artery becomes completely blocked, depriving a portion of the heart muscle of its blood flow.

"Now days, we are able to help those suffering an acute heart attack, if they come early," Kozul said. "We have the ability to salvage a great deal of the heart muscle."

A patient coming to the emergency room with the symptoms of a heart attack may be sent immediately to the cardiac catheterization lab. Patricia Ott, administrative director of the lab, emphasized the importance of getting to the hospital right away if you are experiencing chest pain.

"If we can act within the first three or four hours, we can salvage the pump without scar tissue," Ott said. "Many people come in several days later. They didn't even realize what was happening. We want people to be aware."

Treatment for coronary artery disease begins in the cardiac catheterization lab, Kozul explained.

"The lab is the beginning of a chain," he said. "It begins with diagnosis, then moves on to treatment and post-operative management. We work closely with the surgical team."

A patient entering the lab with suspected coronary artery disease begins with a catheterization. Kozul and his team will determine if there is a blockage, and if so, where it is and how serious it is.

Once the problem has been diagnosed, there are several avenues for treatment. Some patients may simply be given a regimen of diet, exercise and drugs. A patient with a serious blockage or multiple blockages may be sent directly to the operating room for open heart surgery — for a coronary bypass operation or a valve replacement. (A bypass involves taking a section of artery from another area of the body and constructing a new pathway for the blood flow).

However, for the patient whose problem falls between the two extremes of severity, the cardiac catheterization lab offers two exciting new treatments which can reduce and eliminate blockages without surgery.

"In order to do bypass surgery, we must make a large opening in the chest," Kozul said. "It's an extensive job. We hate to put a patient through such an extensive

First Thanksgiving was a three-day bash

Although turkey has become the traditional mainstay of Thanksgiving dinner, and wild turkeys abounded in the New England woods in 1621, it is interesting to know that turkey was not on the menu at the first Thanksgiving dinner. Wild ducks and geese, venison, fish and shellfish; all sorts of "sallet herbes"; cornbread and white bread, wild plums and dried berries, and wine made from wild red and white grapes comprised the menu.

Although William Bradford noted that they had planted turnips, parsnips and cabbages these were not included in the feast, and as yet no one knew what to do with the wild cranberries. But "pom-pions and squashes" were baked in ashes for that first Thanksgiving celebration.

The holiday lasted for three days and to entertain their Indian guests Captain Myles Standish and his men presented a military review. Games were played and, from all accounts, a very good time was had by all.

Another very good time is in store for those who will attend the Grosse Pointe Garden Center's annual Berry Memorial lecture tomorrow morning, Friday, at 11 a.m. in the Fries Auditorium at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, when David Smith, director of horticulture of White Flower Farm in Litchfield, Conn., will present a program on "Perennials Through the Season."

It is too late for reservations for the subscription luncheon which will follow the lecture, but there is also a Bonsai Show and Sale, and a sale of bulbs from the Trial Gardens to attend; and the Grosse Pointe Herb Society will be on hand to sell its two new cookbooks of hors d'oeuvres and soups, respectively.

The Gardener's Shed

Ellen Probert

Herbs were very important in the kitchens of early America. Not only were they used in every aspect of food preparation, but supplied dyes, preservatives, pot-pourris and scents, cosmetics and a very large part of the "materia medica" of the time.

From the time of the first English outpost at Jamestown and the cold, huddled beginning at New Plymouth — as long, in fact, as America remained a frontier country — medicine was a do-it-yourself project. It is not surprising that the yellowed journals and diaries which fascinate collectors today contain more recipes for medicinal products than for preparing food. Johnson's 18th century dictionary defined "recipe" as a medical formula.

The cures and formulas prescribed for ills and injuries were those which had been handed down for generations. For the vast majority of settlers, the woods and marshes, their doorstep gardens and hard-won orchards, served as their pharmaceutical supply houses. The kitchen hearth and table provided the laboratory in which the many remedies, teas, liniments, and potions were produced, as often by the colonial man as by his wife.

Many great brass and iron kettles listed in old inventories survive as mute reminders of Colonial love of color in household fabrics and wearing apparel. These huge kettles held 40 or more gallons and were used for the long boiling or simmering needed to manufacture dyes at the hearth or in the kitchen dooryard. The transformation of flower petals and stems, leaves and grasses, roots and barks, herbs, nuts and berries into dyes was a tedious process, and dyeing was work done of necessity by those who grew flax and spun and wove their own linen.

Herb teas have been popular for centuries and no more so than now when they adorn the shelves of supermarkets, specialty shops and health food stores alike and come in many flavors and blends. Young blackberry leaves possess the same taste as pure, good Chinese tea — without the caffeine, and hawthorne tea and parsley tea are said to be good for rheumatism and headaches. Sage tea is very versatile. It is said to be equally good as a gargle for sore throats, a good rinse for hair, a healing lotion, or, of course, a tea.

And don't forget that herbs are supposed to have magical properties and were used in "spells, philters and simples" in a less-enlightened day when witchcraft flourished and so-called "wise women" were consulted in past ages for everything from remedies to love-potions.

An event worth noting is the lecture to be held at the Central Library this Thursday evening when the Men's Garden Club of Grosse Pointe will sponsor Dr. William Carlson, professor of horticulture at Michigan State University, whose topic will be "The Greenhouse in the 21st Century." Dr. Carlson is an outstanding speaker on Horticultural subjects and is noted both in the United States and Europe. The public is invited to this meeting without charge.

Winter is really the best time to begin the study of birds because there are fewer of them around than at other times of the year, and it is amazing what a little research about a single species of bird will turn up. Take chickadees, for instance. An ornithologist in Massachusetts set out to make his orchard especially attractive to chickadees during the winter in order to find out what they ate. Various things were offered to them but they preferred to forage. It was found that the eggs of caterpillars and cankerworms and other enemies of trees were their favorites. A single bird would eat over 250 eggs at a meal.

It was also discovered that in spring when the cankerworm moths were hatching and preparing to lay eggs each chickadee ate more than 30 per day. When you think that each moth would have laid 180 eggs you realize that one bird had prevented the birth of 5,000 cankerworms in one day.

But the proof was in the fact that Forbush's apple trees had luxuriant foliage and a good crop of fruit that year while elsewhere in the area most of the apple trees were stripped of their leaves and produced almost no fruit. All this because the chickadees were protected and offered food during the winter when eggs and moths were not always available. Really makes you think doesn't it?

Festival of Trees is becoming a tradition

From Nov. 27 through Dec. 2, the Riverview Ballroom at Cobo Hall will be transformed into a holiday fantasyland — Festival of Trees, a benefit for Children's Hospital of Michigan. Attractions include:

- 100 holiday trees professionally decorated by area designers.

- Aisle of Wreaths handcrafted by local garden clubs.
- Gingerbread Village created by metropolitan Detroit chefs and culinary school students.
- Lionel model train display.
- Santaland with free photographs courtesy of Arbor Drugs.
- Continuous entertainment by local musical and dance ensembles.
- Festival Gift Shop with special Festival items, including sweat-shirts, mugs and glassware.

The Festival is intended to augment Detroit's other holiday traditions — the "Detroit Aglow" ceremony, Thanksgiving Day Parade, and carolling at Hart Plaza. Organizers hope to raise $150,000 for Children's Hospital. "A visit to the Festival of Trees is a delightful way for families to begin the holiday season. The youngsters will love Santaland and the adults will enjoy the beauty and spirit of the season. We are thrilled that the festival has become an annual event and an integral part of the city's holiday traditions," said Mary Beth Winkworth, general chairperson for the event.

The 100 festival trees, donated by Frank's Nursery & Crafts, have been sponsored by area businesses or individuals for donations of $300 and $2,000. The trees are decorated by area designers to a selected theme. The decorated trees are then sold at the Preview Party along with 12 special auction gifts, including a gingerbread playhouse, lifesize replica of an antique Coca-Cola truck, week with the Detroit Tigers at Spring Training Camp.

Proceeds from Festival of Trees will benefit the Evergreen Endowment Fund to support research into the causes and cures of childhood diseases. Children's Hospital of Michigan is a voluntary, non-profit, 290-bed hospital serving patients from all income levels.

The festival will be open daily from Nov. 27 through Dec. 2 at Cobo Hall. Admission is $2 for adults, $1 for children. For additional information, call 745-5373.

Grosse Pointe violinist is finalist in competition

Andrew Dahlke, an 18-year-old saxophonist from Plymouth, and 21-year-old violinist Kelly Leon from Grosse Pointe Farms won the ninth round in the Macca-bees/CKLW "Quest for the Best" young talent competition. Both Andrew and Kelly received a $108 honorarium and will now compete for $8,000 in scholarship prizes at the Grand Finals on Monday, Dec. 15, at Orchestra Hall.

A freshman at the University of Michigan, Dahlke studies classical saxophone with Don Sinta and jazz with George Benson. In addition he is a student of both classical and jazz piano. Among Andrew's many awards are several scholarships to attend the Interlochen Music Camp. In 1986 he was the recipient of the Plymouth Community Arts Council's Margaret E. Wilson Scholarship for the Performing Arts, the Plymouth Community Arts Council's Joanne Winkelman Hulce Award, the Plymouth Canton High School Band Honor Key and he also received an honorable mention from the Arts Recognition and Talent Search sponsored by the National Foundation for Advancement in the Arts.

Violinist Leon has been studying violin since she was 2 years old. A senior at the Juilliard School, she is a student of Dorothy DeLay and Masao Kowasaki and is concertmaster of the Juilliard Orchestra. Kelly began winning awards in 1977 in the Grosse Pointe Junior Symphony Concert Competition. In 1979 she won the Detroit Symphony Civic Orchestra Concerto Competition and went on to win the Thomas C. Nestor Award from the Grosse Pointe Symphony and the Oakway Symphony Concerto Competition. Kelly was also a semifinalist in the Seventeen Magazine/General Motors National Concerto Competition in 1982 and 1983. In 1984 she was awarded second prize in the Macca-bees "Quest" Grand Finals young talent competition.

The "Quest for the Best" is a talent competition for young artists ages 15-22 from the State of Michigan and the Province of Ontario. It is broadcast on Sundays at 2 p.m. before a studio audience at Wayne State University's Community Arts Auditorium. Admission to the "Quest for the Best" is free.

Complimentary tickets are now available for the Grand Finals on Monday, Dec. 15, at 8 p.m., at Orchestra Hall. Those wishing to receive tickets must send a self-addressed stamped envelope to "Quest for the Best," CKLW, P.O. Box 282, Southfield, MI 48037 or P.O. Box 480, Windsor, Ontario, N9A 6M6.

Cardiac catheterization gives a clear picture of the heart . . .

 procedure if there is just one vessel blocked."
 For the past two years, St. John has been offering angioplasty (PTCA) and thrombolytic treatments.

Angioplasty involves inserting a small balloon through the catheterization tube and inflating it at the site of the blockage, crushing the plaque and clearing the passage. The other treatment involves injecting a thrombolytic agent (sort of a cardiac Drano, according to Ott) at the site of the blockage. The thrombolytic agent dissolves the blockage, producing the same result.

Angioplasty has recently received some negative attention in the national press. A recent study cited a high number of patients who had heart attacks during the procedure, requiring immediate bypass surgery. Kozul said those reports were misleading and defended the safety of the procedure.

"It is a matter of the skill of the technicians at a particular hospital," Kozul said. "We started this lab with proficiency and we could not fail. There is no medical procedure with no possible complications. But our primary success rate is better than 95 percent, and cases where we are unsuccessful, there is always bypass surgery.

Angioplasty is always a complement to bypass surgery."
 Another criticism of the procedure centers on patients who experience a reclosure of the vessel, months or years later.

"We're trying to improve the quality of life," Ott said. "It's true, the disease process goes on. Some have reported a reclosure rate of 30 percent, but, we haven't seen that here."

Ott explained that the cause of coronary artery disease is still a mystery. Risk factors have been identified, including a sedentary lifestyle, a diet high in fat, smoking and a family history of heart disease. However, no conclusive answer for why one person suffers the disease and another doesn't has been found.

"We attempt to control the risk factors," Ott said.

The angioplasty program at St. John was started by Dr. K.S. Kim in 1984. To date, almost 350 angioplasties have been performed. The cardiac catheterization lab is available for emergency procedures 24 hours a day.

The theme of the White Christmas Ball is "A Dickens of a Christmas." Pat Young is general chairman. For reservations and information, call the Fontbonne office at 343-3675.

Last Saturday, members of the Junior League of Detroit were at the Pointe Pedlar on The Hill, with samples of excellent gift foods from the Junior League's "Clockwise Cuisine" cookbook. The cookbook is a major fundraising project of the league, which carries out volunteer social projects throughout the metropolitan Detroit area. From the left, are Terry Dietrich, in charge of office operations for the league; Karen Shaupeter, assistant chairman of the cookbook committee; Ann Hoag, president of the league; and Yucel Mikiel, committee member.

Junior League cookbook makes perfect gift

If anyone on your Christmas gift list has an interest in cooking, or even eating, then the Junior League of Detroit cookbook, "Clockwise Cuisine," is the gift of choice.

This year, the league is making it even easier to give the book as a gift. During the Holiday Dispatch period, Dec. 1 through 15, the league will giftwrap and mail a book to anyone on your Christmas list for just $15. The book, by itself, costs $13.95, so the gift package is a bargain — including postage.

ed with each book purchased in person through the holidays.

"We need the money from this project for our programs," said Ann Hoag, president of the group. "This is a good project for us. Once it's in place, it doesn't take the Herculean effort that something like the Showhouse does."

Hoag emphasizes the changing role of the Junior League.

"We want people to know that any woman can join," she said.

"Some 60 percent of our members are working women. It's exciting to see how the Junior League has changed. Our membership is very representative of women in general. We feel that the more representative our membership is, the better we can represent the community."

Junior League volunteer projects include social service programs addressing family life, health and cultural development.

"Clockwise Cuisine" features recipes with the busy cook in mind. Each recipe is coded with a time symbol to show how long it will take to prepare. All the recipes were triple-tested by the league before they were included in the book, which was first published two years ago.

The selection of recipes in "Clockwise Cuisine" includes nearly everything a beginning or advanced cook could ask for. Many of the recipes will make excellent gifts for the holiday season, and others will add sparkle to any party or gathering.

"These are tried and true recipes," said cookbook assistant chairman Karen Shaupeter. "Our cookbook goes from simple to complex. A new cook can learn along with the book. You can become confident in the simple recipes and then go on to the complex ones."

Shaupeter pointed out that there are 22 recipes for chicken alone in the book.

During the holidays, the league will be holding cookbook events at the Jacobson's Store for the Home. On Dec. 6 from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., members will be on hand at the store to sell the books. On Dec. 18 and 19, there will be coffee and desserts at the store from 5-8 p.m.

The cookbook is one of two major projects the league uses to raise funds. The other is the Showhouse, held once every two years.

Cookbooks can be purchased any weekday between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. at the Junior League headquarters in the Carriage House at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Orders are now being taken for the Holiday Dispatch books by mail or in person. The address to write to is: Junior League of Detroit, 32 Lakeshore Rd., Grosse Pointe Farms, 48236. Include a check for $15 per book, and if you want to include a message for the gift card, you may. Books will be shipped by UPS anywhere in the United States.

A free herb packet will be included.

MCF benefit to be held at Whitney

There is great excitement at the Michigan Cancer Foundation as the date draws closer for the Angels black tie benefit on Dec. 12. The Angels are a group of MCF supporters who contribute $2,000 annually to the foundation. Helen and Paul Zuckerman founded the group last year. The honorary committee for the evening read like a who's who of Detroit's leaders.

The benefit will be held in conjunction with the grand opening of the Whitney, an extraordinary restaurant which Richard Kughn, owner with Ron Fox and John McCarthy, has graciously offered for the evening. The restaurant is located in the David Whitney Jr. mansion built in 1894, undoubtedly the costliest home built in Detroit at that time. Renovations are underway to restore it to its former splendor.

This truly unusual evening will be far more than a typical dinner fundraiser. Guests will enjoy cocktails, hors d'oeuvres, a seven course meal with fine wines accompanied by chamber music, and afterwards an orchestra for dancing. The evening's events have been scheduled throughout the mansion, from the third floor Wintergarten with its potted palms and oak bar, to the meticulously restored individual dining rooms on the ground floor.

The response has been startling, indicating that the evening will have a much greater impact on the future of the foundation than had been expected.

The walk will be held from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Advance tickets are $7 and tickets at the door will be $8. For information on ticket purchases, call 885-4078 and speak to ticket chairman Ann Lawson. This year's homes include a contemporary residence on Lakeshore Road designed by Hough Keyes and built in 1951; a beautiful Colonial style home dating back to 1904 with extensive modern additions; a magnificent Georgian Colonial home opulently restored by its current owner; an English Tudor home built in 1917 featuring dark oak woodwork and leaded and stained glass windows; and a unique multi-level contemporary home with exciting views of Lake St. Clair.

On the westside, the homes include a turn of the century farmhouse that once included stables; a spacious country French home; a contemporary, multi-level, custom built French chateau with marble floors; an energy-conscious home featuring an atrium, and a contemporary condominium overlooking Wabek Golf Course. Proceeds of the Christmas Walks on both sides of town will support the projects of the Detroit Symphony League!

Ginny Berberian of Southfield is chairman of this year's event. Lynell Smith of Bloomfield Hills is in charge of publicity. Ann Hathaway of Grosse Pointe is eastside chair and Linda Webster of Grosse Pointe Farms is the assistant. Ann Lawson of Grosse Pointe Farms is the ticket chairman. Judy Bartell of Grosse Pointe Farms is the publicity assistant.

Some holiday kitchen hints for cooks suffering from arthritis

Cooking and baking are important parts of the holiday season, but for a person with arthritis, working in the kitchen can be a demanding chore, reports the Arthritis Foundation.

"Most kitchens are not designed for people with physical limitations," said Pamela Skene, R.N., program director of the Arthritis Foundation, Michigan Chapter. "However, with some simple rearrangements and special gadgets, people with arthritis keep the joy in cooking."

The Arthritis Foundation offers the following tips to make your kitchen and your holidays more enjoyable:

- Keep the things most often used within reach. Store extra sets of utensils, such as measuring cups and spoons, in several places throughout the kitchen.
- Wear an apron with pockets to place your small cooking utensils at your fingertips.

- Hang pots and pans from a wall rack at comfortable level to eliminate bending and reaching.

- Have lazy susans in your spice or food cabinets to help make items easily accessible.

- Take advantage of days when you are feeling good, to prepare meals that can be frozen, then you can simply thaw and reheat these dishes.

- Do as many jobs as possible sitting down, using a stool with rollers that is high enough to reach kitchen counters.

- Avoid purchasing heavy kitchenware, instead use lighter aluminum or plastic.

- Use a wire mesh basket in the boiling pot when boiling foods, when food is cooked then lift the basket out to drain.

- Remember to keep an eye out for features that will make your work simpler when selecting kitchen equipment. Appliances with levers or push buttons, non-stick easy-to-clean pans, and double-handled cookware are helpful in the kitchen.

- Equip your kitchen with as many labor-saving devices as possible; electric can openers, blenders and knives. A food processor could prove to be one of your best friends in the kitchen.

- Place the palm or heel of your hand flat on lids of jars, and twist to open them rather than grasping them with your fingers.

- Make utensils easier to grasp by building up the handles with foam rubber.

- Anchor bowls in the corner of your sink with a rubber sink mat or soap holder when stirring ingredients.

- Lift hot pots with both hands, protected by oven mitts.

- Line any hard-to-clean pans with aluminum foil before cooking; afterwards, the foil can be thrown away.

- Use sponges instead of dishcloths for cleaning. These can be pressed flat with your hand to remove excess water, instead of wringing.

For more information on living with arthritis, write the Arthritis Foundation, Michigan Chapter at 23999 Northwestern Highway, Suite 210, Southfield, Mich. 48075, or call (313) 350-3030.

November is turkey month

Turkey will be featured in supermarkets and on dinner tables this month. But the special pre-Thanksgiving prices consumers have come to expect may not materialize this year.

Admittedly, turkey production is up 12-14 percent, and carry-over stocks were up 15 percent as of Oct. 1. But turkey consumption has increased even more. Most retailers had to pay more to get turkeys this year. In an attempt to stay competitive but recoup some of their costs, some retailers may require a minimum purchase of other merchandise to get the featured turkey on special.

Increased marketing of chicken products seems to have bolstered chicken demand even though chicken as become more expensive. Prices are about 10 percent higher than a year ago, despite a 4 percent increase in production.

Demand for beef continues to lag in spite of attractive retail prices. Look for retail beef prices to increase during 1987. Retail pork prices are holding at or near summer levels. The smaller market hog inventory and delayed crop harvesting are helping to maintain hog prices.

Egg prices are up and moving higher, but eggs still are a good value. Prices are expected to peak in November so buy only for short-term needs. Medium eggs will likely offer the greatest value this month.

The great majority of fresh market cranberries will come to market this month. The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates the total 1986 U.S. cranberry crop at 3.59 million barrels.

The department's first production forecast for citrus fruits also looks favorable. Orange output for the 1986-87 season is 201 million boxes — 14 percent above that a year ago. Overall U.S. grapefruit production is forecast 9 percent higher. U.S. lemon production is also up this year.

Less acres of sweet potatoes planted coupled with drought in the southeast have resulted in a smaller crop and higher prices.

Peanuts as well as almost all tree nuts have reduced crops this year. The 1986 raisin crop is also significantly smaller.

There's about one chance in 15,000 that your novel, if any, ever will be published.

Tin can tourists and other American travelers blazed a trail for today's vacationers

By Ink Mendelsohn
Smithsonian News Service

It's easy to recognize an American tourist in his non-native habitat. Most visible in the summertime, he sports peacock-bright plumage and, commonly, a shading crown of straw or cotton. Glazed protective coverings of brown, gray or green shield his eyes. He moves determinedly from sight to sight, wearing about the neck a black appendage designed to capture encountered wonders. A tourist is the other guy.

Americans don't like to think of themselves as unsophisticated outsiders. "In the 19th century, the word tourist was identified with those educated and cultured individuals who took the Grand Tour of Europe," the Smithsonian's Roger White says. White, a transportation historian, observes that today many think of the tourist as a person "unfamiliar in his surroundings" who "never really sees a place as it is."

Nowadays, Americans may prefer to think of themselves as "travelers," "sightseers," "vacationers" or "visitors," but enthusiastic tourists have been part of the nation's landscape for more than a century. "Americans have always had an intense latent desire to see their own country," White says.

A new exhibition organized by White, "At Home on the Road: Autocamping, Motels and the Rediscovery of America," dynamically illustrates his view. The show, which will be at the National Museum of American History in Washington, D.C., until Jan. 11, 1987, traces the odyssey of a people who went in search of their land but never really wanted to leave the comforts of home. Their journey changed life in America.

A national institution today, the summer vacation once belonged only to an affluent few. Leisure-rich, the very wealthy could tune their lives to the unpredictable rhythms of stage and sailboat travel. For most Americans working a six-day week, the notion that adults as well as schoolchildren might vacation at all was not popular until the late-19th century when technology and enterprise came to their rescue.

An explosive expansion of steamship and railroad lines and new excursion fares brought the middle class to once-exclusive vacation places. At venerable health spas like Saratoga Springs, N.Y., one could now recover equilibrium at the mineral baths and lose one's starched shirtfront at the racetrack. By 1918, a visitor found Saratoga a place of "bankers" and "book-makers." Niagara Falls, which had plunged solely for the eyes of the privileged few, became the most popular tourist attraction in America. Shops sold painted plates, wild animal parts and other take-home memories.

As more and more tourists left home and began encountering people they had never known before, social friction and discrimination became ugly facts of life in such scenically beautiful resort areas as the Catskills in New York. Protective mammas, who brought offspring to the mountains for the summer to breathe the rarefied air while papa labored in the city inferno, harbored anxieties that their marriageable sons and daughters might meet the "wrong" people. To alleviate their fears, one Catskill hotel proprietor apologetically served notice that "the Loxhurst accommodates gentiles only."

Yellowstone National Park sounded a more democratic note. Established in 1872 as a "public park or pleasuring-ground for the benefit and enjoyment of the people," it would soon be host to a new form of wildlife — the tourist. The siren song of Nature and the promotion of Western railroads lured Victorian "dudes" and "dudettes" — that is, Eastern couples — to Yellowstone, Yosemite and other exotic Western destinations.

Hockey previews

Ice squads swear by their 'systems'

The hardest part, I think, will be the first few games. We want to show people that last season was not a fluke.

— South coach
Tim Zimmerman

Grosse Pointe South
Like Detroit Red Wings' coach Jacques Demers, Blue Devils' hockey coach Tim Zimmerman has a system he wants his team to use. And like Demers, Zimmerman knows that the system guarantees neither victories or happy hockey fans. But unlike Demers, Zimmerman and South have a winning tradition to back up the system.

coach."
"I like that kind of attitude."

Wanted: a good listener

I've been talking to myself again and you know what happens then . . .

So, the Norsemen didn't do so well in the playoffs . . . again. How come?

Hey, if I knew that, I'd be wearing a green and gold jacket, talking into headphones and drawing a coach's salary instead of talking to myself.

No, really, I want to know why the Norsemen self-destructed against Henry Ford. I thought they'd match up pretty evenly with the Trojans.

So did I. Who knows what happens in a case like this, when one mistake snowballs into a dozen and the other team is sharp enough — and yes, lucky enough — to cash in on every error.

Well, this will give all the North naysayers plenty of ammunition for their attack. They weren't too kind to North BEFORE last Saturday.

I know. Well, all I can say is that they should judge North on its excellent program, its fine record over two seasons, on its dedicate coaching staff and on its well-disciplined kids.

What do you mean?

Well, for example, in the third quarter when things started to get out of hand, score-wise, one of the Norsemen who had made a mistake came off the field in a rage, tossing his helmet in utter — and understandable — frustration. To a man, every North player who saw him jumped all over him for what they called a lack of composure. They grabbed the kid and told him never, never to do such a thing again. Now, I ask you, how many times have you seen kids who are disciplined enough to remember what their coaches have taught them, even at a moment like that?

Okay, so I'm impressed. What did you think about the fans leaving early?

Hey, they were frustrated, too. And it was cold. But if sure would have been nice to see them stay until the end, just for moral support. Although, I give the fans who put up the "Go, North!" sign up on the Moross overpass on I-94, and the "Way To Go Norsemen" sign in Ron's Barbershop on Mack, lots of credit. Nice touch.

Anything else strike your fancy about the game?

I liked the play of North's defense: specially Marc Demanigold, Jim Montgomery, Karl Schultz and David Van Dale. And hey, three of those guys are just juniors.

What did you think about Henry Ford?

Well, any time a team is able to convert so many mistakes into points, you've got to know they've got something. But I don't buy all that jazz about them being on a "mission," just because they couldn't win the PSL. And I'm not sure I like a team (or coach, for that matter) that passes — on first down, no less — with a 41-point lead in the third quarter.

Okay, one more question about football. If you could, to whom would you give the game ball?

I'd definitely give it to the aforementioned Montgomery. He's had a great season, playing especially well in key games like South and Chadsey. And last Saturday, I saw him walk off the field bruised and bloody after having to try to block 6-5, 325-pound "Boo" Pannell all day. Montgomery definitely deserves a game ball . . . and an ice pack.

Okay, enough about football, it's hockey season already. What else do you want to talk about?

One more thing. Folks who sit in the stands may want to know that yes, we really do hear the things you yell at us working stiff down on the field at a game like Saturday's. And yes, I did hear the guy who reminded me that Henry Ford beat South a few years back almost as badly as it beat North and that I'd better remember to put that in my article. I wanted to assure him I would, if he'd seek counseling.

Whoa, I think we'd better move on, before you start getting fan letters tied to bricks. What else is new?

Two things. One, folks should remember that because of Thanksgiving, our deadlines have changed. We need all copy by Friday at 3 p.m. And two, sports fans should be advised that just because football is over and hockey is gearing up, doesn't mean that girls' fall sports — basketball and swimming — are finished. North's basketball team is 16-2, playing great and in the districts at home this week. They deserve just as big an audience as the boys, you know.

Yeah, but none of them should sit near you. You talk to yourself.

The hardest part, I think, will be the first few games. We want to show people that last season was not a fluke.

— South coach
Tim Zimmerman

"The hardest part. I think, will be the first few games of the season. We want to show people that last season was not a fluke. But we also have to remember that we're not going to be as good this year as we were last year," Zimmerman says.

Last year, despite a sophomore-laden lineup, South won the tough Michigan Metro League and advanced to the regional finals. But South lost two key members of that squad — All-Staters Rob Wood and goaltender Bill Tecos — to graduation.

"When you lose a guy like Rob Wood, who figured in 67 percent of your scoring, you know that things aren't going to be the same. We're not going to depend on one guy to do all the scoring the way we did last season. We're going to have to get that offense from throughout the lineup," Zimmerman explains.

"We're working hard on our attitudes along those lines and so far, the guys are responding beautifully."

Junior Ilya Synder, senior Kenneth Gronholm, a Finnish exchange student, and freshman Kevin Nesler are fighting it out for the starting job in goal. On defense are senior captains Evan Frakes and Jeff LeFebvre, senior Jerry Bourke, juniors Kevin Bourke and Jim Smith, and junior Ben Bayko, a transfer student from University of Detroit High who won't be eligible to play until the second semester.

"You know, I took the captains out to dinner and I told them that we'd probably be a little weak on defense this year since we'd lost two senior defensemen — and their experience — from last year," Zimmerman says. "Well, two of the three captains are defensemen and when I said that, they said 'no way, several people came to the forefront for us last year and that's what's going to have to happen this year because we've got a very difficult schedule," Zimmerman says.

Add to that the fact that all the league teams will be shooting for the defending champs and you've got one tough season ahead for South. But that doesn't necessarily mean a "bad" season.

"Hey, we can lose four or five games early, but if I know that we are playing according to the system, I'll be happy because I know that eventually, that leads to bigger and better things. And this team can do it . . . there's no question about it," he adds.

Impatient fans should note that Zimmerman has never set a goal for his squads which refers to winning. Instead, South sets team goals like keeping track of time spent in its own zone, or penalty-killing percentages and lets the winning take care of itself.

"Ask any kid who plays high school hockey and they'll tell you that the sense of team camaraderie, of unity and having fun are much more important than a win-loss record. That's the way we've always approached it here and the way we always will," Zimmerman says.

South opens its home season against University Liggett School at 7:30 p.m., Friday, Nov. 21.

'Dream season' turns into nightmare for gridgers

By Josh Abbott
North High

The varsity football team's dream season ended in a nightmare in the second round of the Class A state playoffs last Saturday, as a swarming Detroit Henry Ford defense forced 11 turnovers and led the Trojans (10-1) to a 48-6 victory over North High.

The lopsided loss ended North's 10-game winning streak. The Norsemen finished the season at 10-1.

The Trojans scored three touchdowns off recovered fumbles, registered a safety, intercepted two passes to set up scores, and blocked a punt which they recovered at the Norsemen's 1 yard line. North trailed 19-0 at halftime and was still within striking distance, but the Norsemen fumbled the second half kickoff and that turnover gave Ford all the momentum it needed to coast to the victory.

"That really killed us," said coach Frank Sumner.

North got on the board in the fourth quarter when junior quarterback Bruno Giglio hit senior tight end Rob Olds for an 11-yard touchdown.

"I never dreamed this type of thing would happen. It's really unfortunate we played this way," Sumner said.

Overall, North's defense played well. All of Ford's points were set up by offensive miscues and turnovers. Defensive tackle Marc Demanigold blocked two point after attempts and linebacker Jay Tobias and defensive back Paul Al-tobelli each had interceptions. Tailback Bill Smith picked up some good yards on the rush.

Despite the disappointing finish, North is 27-4 over the last three seasons, 20-0 the last two years.

Tankers unbeaten

North's varsity swim team completed its first unbeaten season ever, by routing No. 9-ranked Ann Arbor Huron, 105-66, on Nov. 11. Heidi Mader set a school record in the 100 back (1:03.70) and Sandy Smith, Katie Young and Kathy Kish each won two events as North captured nine of 11 events overall to the way to running its season mark to 12-0.

Cagers impressive

The girls' varsity basketball team won the Bi-County League championship last week with impressive wins over Roseville Brablec, 49-35, and South Lake, 56-23.

Against Brablec, North built up a 20-point lead with good pressure defense. Brablec closed the gap to 14 with free throws, but the Lady Norsemen went to 16-2 overall by closing out the victory. Leslie Talos led with 15 points, eight rebounds and two steals. Heather Mergos had 12 points and eight rebounds and Barbie Loeher set a school mark for assists with 10.

Two days later, North clinched the league title with an easy win over South Lake, moving its league mark to 11-0. Talos led North with 16 points and four steals. Freshman Kim Reiter had 12 points and seven rebounds and Heather Mergos played all-around good basketball with seven rebounds and six steals.

The JV also had a productive week, taking runaway wins over Roseville Brablec and Star of the Sea. The girls ripped Brablec, 78-36, on Nov. 11, as every girl scored. Dory Unger led with 23 points. Chris Salide followed with 10 points and Cindy Szymanski and Melissa Champine added 10 points apiece.

On Nov. 13, the girls topped city rival Star, 46-28. The girls took a 26-10 halftime lead and went on to win their 15th game of the year. Salide led with nine points; Unger had seven and Mary Spiewak and Szymanski chipped in with six each.

The varsity and JV close out the regular season this week with Lake Shore; the varsity begins district play this Thursday, Nov. 20, at home.

North's freshman basketball team won a close one over Fraser last week to raise its record to 11-6. Jane Rice hit three free throws in the final 90 seconds to clinch the victory. (By John Laskarides)

Hockey squad begins year with split

The University Liggett School varsity ice hockey team opened its season last week with a 3-1 loss to Ohio Northview and a 14-2 trouncing of Dexter.

With a display of offensive fireworks and consistent forechecking, the Knights beat Dexter High School. Bill Reuther opened the scoring halfway through the first period on a nice pass from Andrew MacLeod. Gordie Maitland followed with the first of three goals, this one assisted by linemate Bill Jewett. Charlie Roby got his first goal of the season, as Maitland set him up at the left faceoff circle. MacLeod, Bob Jewett and Doug Wood closed out the scoring in the first period, with assists by Mike Coello and Andrew Galsterer.

The second period saw Maitland finish his hat trick on assists from Bob Jewett and Roby, respectively. Dexter got its only two goals of the game in this period. Wood got his second of three on a pass from co-captain Bob Jewett. Wood then set Jewett up for his second of two goals. It was 10-2 at the end of the second period. ULS added four more goals, as Wood finished his hat trick, assisted by Branden Pelok. Pahl Zinn, Ted Evans and Coello finished the scoring. Wood (three goals) and Bill Jewett each had three assists.

Steve Stoyka handled the netminding for the first and second periods, and Jeremy Belenky held Dexter scoreless in the third.

On Saturday night, Nov. 15, the Knights traveled to Sylvania, Ohio to challenge a tough Northview team, ranked No. 5 in the state of Ohio. It was a highly defensive game, as Stoyka stopped 37 of Northview's 40 shots on goal. The Northview Cats struck halfway through the opening period, as a forward bested two of the Knights' defensemen and found the twine on a slap-shot from the top of the left faceoff circle.

Stoyka kept ULS in the game for the second period, stopping 17 Northview shots. Stoyka's defense allowed the Knights to mount their only offensive attack when MacLeod tied the game on a pass from Zinn at 3:30 in the second period. The Northview attack continued unabated in the third period, ending in a 3-1 win for the Cats.

The Knights have their sights focused on their next road game, as they travel to Grosse Pointe Community Rink to challenge the South Blue Devils, Friday, Nov. 21, at 7 p.m. (By Pahl Zinn)

ARROWS-MAJOR MAGICS

The Arrows jumped out to a 3-0 lead over the Magics, but settled for a 3-3 tie when the Magics pulled their goalie and tied the game with 28 seconds left. Stephen Andris, John Staniszewski and Billy Crandall scored to give the Arrows the lead in this first game of the year between the two teams. Rocky Bryant and Chris Mitchell drew assists. The Magics narrowed the lead with goals by Sebastian Yofre and Brian Everham, from Ricky Carlson, John Bayko, Mike Paul and Danny Baskel. Matt Elich scored the tying goal when the goalie went to the bench in favor of an extra attacker.

ARROWS-BLACKHAWKS

The Arrows defeated the Blackhawks, 5-1, in an exciting contest highlighted by the superb goaltending of Peter Sullivan and the aggressive defense of Joseph Wernet, Bryant and Jeff Giffer. Andris and Staniszewski scored two goals apiece and Crandall added the fifth goal with 13 seconds to go in the game. The Hawks' Chris Gibson, Doug Semack, Drew Norton, Chris Amsden and Mark Aronson played well; Leo Salvaggio got the Blackhawks' only goal. The Arrows' Chris Mitchell, Walter Belenky, Patrick Pound, Nicholas Miotke and George Andary were instrumental in the victory.

MAJOR MAGICS-ARROWS

In this 3-3 tie with the Arrows (see above), goalie Kevin Baskel played well, turning aside several tough Arrows' shots. Most valuable players in this game for the Magics were Colin Darke, Jake Linder, Frank Zimmer, Nate Bayko and Nickel.

MAJOR MAGICS-CENTURY 21

A repeat performance by the Magics' defense held the score to 1-0 for two periods, before the Century 21 squad notched a third period goal for the 1-1 tie. Paul turned in another outstanding performance in goal. Brent Kuhar scored the Magics' goal from Carlson. "Mad Dog" Magdowski, Rani Sawaf, Andrew Warner and Yofre played well.

CHIEFS-COUGARS

The Cougars and the Sequoia Chiefs played to a 1-1 tie last Saturday. The game featured strong defensive play from each team and a stellar performance from Cougars' goalie Paul Huebner, who stopped 19 shots. Chris Smith scored on an assist from Justin Lariscy and Peter Birbauer's goal for the Cougars was unassisted. Behi Rabbani, Weyhing, Stroble, Crain and Baratta played well for the Cougars; A-liners Chris Ford and Jason Popham played well for the Chiefs.

CHIEFS-COUGARS

The Chiefs broke open a close game with third period goals, taking a 4-2 victory. The Chiefs' Chris Coates scored an unassisted goal and added another tally from Joey Berger; Lariscy scored twice and Kevin Kasiborski notched a goal to give goaltender Brian Kasiborski his fifth victory. Birbauer scored both of the Cougars' goals. The Chiefs' C-line of Tibbitts, Zayat, Oren, Meldrum and Balesky played well, as did the Cougars' goalie Matt Moran and Huebner, Robson, Lawrence and Kannik.

BRUINS-BLACKHAWKS

The Bruins won a hard-fought battle over the Blackhawks, 3-2. Goalies Cliff Czerwinski (Bruins) and James Custer (Hawks) played well, but in the second period, the Bruins exploded for three goals from Tim Miller, John McNaughton and Joe Lucido. McNaughton, Tim Brady, Mike Lahey, Miller and Steve Owens earned assists. The Blackhawks got a goal from Ann Platt; Danny Scott and Tim French assisted. When the Hawks pulled their goalie and with less than a minute to go, Gibson took a pass from Booth Platt, broke loose and scored. Jack Ryan, Matt Descamps, Pat Kerwin and Sarke Soloman played well for the Bruins.

LEAFS-TALONS

The Century 21 Maple Leafs topped the Talons, 3-2, Nov. 15. Jason Santo put on an awesome performance in goal, stopping 17 of 19 shots. Geoff Kimmer notched two goals for the Leafs. Mary Meade scored once and brothers Richie and Charlie Eldridge helped stop a tough Talons' C-line. Josh Prues and Wulfmeier each scored for the Talons; Morris and Ricci helped put pressure on the Leafs, who were held to just eight shots on goalie A. Ascencio.

MAJOR MAGICS-LEAFS

RAIDERS-DYNAMOS

The Monroe's Raiders came from behind twice to beat the Michigan Dynamos, 5-2. David Ferguson, David Pulis, Tony Rubino, Mike Anway and Patrick Brennan were goal scorers; Bobby Rahaim, Kevin O'Malley and Carl Rashid earned assists.

RAIDERS-PORT HURON

After two scoreless periods, Terry Brennan took a perfect pass from Ferguson and scored the winning goal past the sprawling Port Huron goalie. Anway followed with a shorthanded goal to cement the 2-0 victory. P. Brennan drew the assist. Jamie Bufalino turned in a sparkling performance in net to record his third shutout of the season.

RAIDERS-USA

Ferguson and P. Brennan led the way with two goals each as Monroe's Raiders beat the Birmingham club, 6-1. Also scoring were Anway and T. Brennan; assists went to Emet Baratta, George Christensen, Ricky Gokenbach and Rashid.

RAIDERS-SPEEDY

Monroe's again battled from behind to claim a 3-2 win over Speedy Printing. Anway tied the score when he connected on a beautiful drop pass from P. Brennan; Pulis got the other assist. Rubino evened things up again on passes from Ferguson and T. Brennan and with two minutes to go, Ferguson scored the winner after intercepting a pass at center ice. Bufalino was sharp in goal in the third period, holding the Speedy squad off the board the rest of the way. The Raiders remain unbeaten and atop the league standings.

Bantam Division

CHIEFS-ASTROS

Chiefs' netminder Matt Krieg earned his third shutout of the season in the team's 7-0 win over the Fraser Astros. Puck control was the key to the victory as the Chiefs struck early on Kevin Nugent's goal from Juan Ganum. Jack McSorley also scored in the first period, from Brendan Rohan and John McGlone. Brad Russell converted passes from Nugent and Pete Cueter for his goal and Ganum skated up from defense to score an unassisted goal. Eddie Barbieri, Scott Soule and McSorley scored in the third period, from Mike Watkins, Ganum (who earned playmaker honors), Rohan and Vince Palazzolo.

CHIEFS-FLAMES

The Flames edged the Chiefs in this battle of the Grosse Pointe rivals. Soule put the Chiefs in front with his goal from McGlone, but Gabe Benvenuto connected on a pass from Renato Roxas to tie the score at the end of the second period. In the third period, Benvenuto was credited with the winning goal when the puck went in off of a Chief's skate; Andy Vyletel drew an assist. Goalies Krieg (Chiefs) and Jim Bunn (Flames) played very well.

FLAMES-KINGS

In a Metro-East contest the Grosse Pointe Flames defeated the St. Clair Shores Kings, 4-3. Paul Cavazos got the Flames' first goal with a long slap shot that beat the Kings' goalie; Adam Tanielian and Benvenuto drew assists. Roxas scored less than a minute later, burying a pass from Frank Lucido and Derek Field, and 10 seconds later Vyletel scored assisted by Roxas and Tanielian. Scott Collins finished off the Flames' scoring using crisp passes from Vyletel and Tanielian as the Flames scored four goals in less than two minutes. Bunn played well in goal and was aided by the strong defensive play of Andy Bond and Nick Black.

FLAMES-PIZZA ONE

The Flames and Pizza One battled through a scoreless first period before Roxas took a pass from Dan Grundman and flipped the puck into the net for the first Flames' goal. After Pizza One tied the score, Tanielian scored two quick goals from Dan Strader, Benvenuto, Black and Collins to give the Flames a 3-1 lead after the second period. Each team played a close checking third period, trading goals. After Pizza One closed the game to 3-2, Cavazos took Lucido's centering pass and beat the goalie to ice it for the Flames. The goaltending of Bunn and the strong defense of Field, Black and Grundman preserved the win.

FLAMES-CHIEFS

The Flames and the Chiefs met for the third time this season after splitting the first two contests. The Chiefs got off to an early lead when Soule jammed home a rebound shot from McGlone to give the Chiefs a 1-0 advantage. In the second period, Benvenuto scored twice (the first on a pass from Roxas) to tie the score. On his next turn on the ice, Benvenuto took a pass from Vyletel and blasted the puck off of Krieg's pads into the net. The third period was a wide open skating session with both teams having excellent scoring opportunities, but the strong goaltending of Krieg and Bunn for the Flames thwarted any further scoring and the Flames skated off with a 2-1 victory.

Squirt Division

RED WINGS-SHARKS

The G.P. Red Wings and St. Clair Shores Sharks' 4-4 tie went down to the last six seconds of play. The Sharks scored twice in the first period, but the Red Wings came back with two goals by Kip Gotfredson, assisted by Chris Crain (two) and Kenny McIntyre. The Sharks went ahead by one goal in the second period but Chris Crain put the puck in the nets for the Red Wings in the third period to tie the score. Kip Gotfredson and Jeff Adams drew the assist. With 18 seconds left to play, the Sharks scored the go-ahead goal. Then on the faceoff, Crain took the puck in unassisted to tie the game 4-4. Jonathan Sweda was outstanding in the nets for the Red Wings. Amy Kendall, Andy Lee, Jay Ricci and David Collins played strong games.

TALONS

The Squirt A Talons started off the 1986-87 season with two tough losses, the first against the Port Huron Oilers, 3-1. Jim Andary scored for the Talons. The second loss was to the Warren Titans in a hard-played 4-2 game, with goals by Steve Solaka and Andy Baskel. The next six games showed a marked improvement with a record of 4-1-1. Game three was a 10-0 victory over the Flint GPHA team with two goals each from Andary, Baskel and Phil Descamps and one each from Mike Hendrie, Don Tocco, Scot Wieczorkowski and Rob Wieczorkowski. The Talons then took a 5-3 win over St. Clair Shores with two goals from Andary and one each from Baskel, Hendrie and R. Wieczorkowski. The Talons lost to Adray Dearborn, 4-0, but bounced back to take a 2-2 tie against the Southgate Stars, thanks to good goaltending from Andy Brewer and tight defense by Joe Pierce and Solaka. The Talons' goals came from Baskel and Hendrie.

Coach Rick Carlson's Talons skated to an exciting 2-1 victory in game seven over the Detroit Rockies, with goals from Tocco and Ken Doptis. Brian Jeffries played strong at left wing. A 3-2 victory in game eight against Woodhaven featured Brad Klein skating well and goals from Baskel, Andary and Pierce. The win brought the Talons' record to 4-3-1 in the very competitive Adray League.

Acting superb in "Odd Couple"

By Marian Trainor

Twenty years ago, a play by Neil Simon titled "The Odd Couple" opened on Broadway. It was an immediate success and it became an equally popular movie.

In 1984, Neil Simon wrote what he termed a "new" play. It kept the same title, "The Odd Couple," only this time it was a female version. The jokes were new and so also were the comic situations. It too became a success.

With Jo Anne Worley as the wise-cracking slob and Sandy Dennis as the fastidious neatnik, the presentation at the Birmingham Theatre becomes a fast-moving whirl of hilarious situations and raucous dialogue.

Humor is expected of Jo Anne Worley who is remembered from "Laugh-In" with her loud infectious laugh. When she appears on the stage in her flashy scarf and toreador pants, the audience is ready for a fun-filled evening.

Sandy Dennis is more laid back, but curiously enough, she comes across as even funnier than Worley. Seemingly unaware of what she is saying, she tosses off witticisms in a monotone with an innocent expression that makes them seem funnier than they are.

The play is about Florence whose husband left her and Olive, a divorcee, who apparently has no regrets about her situation. The result is disastrous. Olive is a born slob who isn't fazed when her friends refuse to eat her snacks because the bread is moldy.

Florence is the opposite. She can't bear to see a speck of dust or one thing out of place. "She even arranges the nuts in a bowl according to rows, one for walnuts, one for pistachios, etc.," complains Olive.

There are two single men on the scene who live upstairs. Olive has some designs on the young men. The two brothers are Spanish with very little command of the English language, a circumstance that again provides opportunities for some slanted repartee.

The play is actually a series of comic skits that winds down with a humorous and unexpected, but rather satisfying, ending.

"The Odd Couple" is a fun-filled play made better by two actresses who move into their parts with an expertise that gives the impression that no other two could give a better performance.

'Sid and Nancy' is highly stylized film

By Chris Dellas

"Sid and Nancy" is not an easy film to watch. It is not even a fun film to watch at times. It is, however, a film that commands attention in much the same way that the twisted lives of participants Sid Vicious and his girlfriend Nancy Spungen commanded attention in the late seventies.

The film chronicles the explosive and self-destructive career of Sid Vicious, bass player for the notorious British punk band, the Sex Pistols, and his love-hate relationship with a young groupie from America named Nancy Spungen.

As you may remember the headlines, their time together ended with Sid stabbing Nancy to death and then dying himself a few days later of a heroin overdose.

Sid and Nancy barely existed as human beings until the advent of the Sex Pistols when Sid came to epitomize the punk subculture. They both then became the only things they had ever aspired to — Sid a punk rock star and Nancy the girlfriend of a punk rock star.

The Pistols thrust themselves onto the then very bland British music scene in 1976 with the aid of one wily entrepreneur named Malcolm McLaren. McClaren's clever manipulation helped the band achieve headlines and thus notoriety and success.

The meteoric career of the Sex Pistols was an exercise in media hype, raw talent, brilliant posturing, and being in the right place at the right time.

It began when McLaren enlisted a Dickensian street urchin named John Lydon, whom he renamed Johnny Rotten, as the front-man for a group of marginally talented working-class London youths.

Recording such songs as "God Save the Queen," "Anarchy in the U.K.," and "Pretty Vacant," along with donning fashions that, in retrospect, seem more silly than threatening, the Pistols at once succeeded in offending more of the public while endearing themselves to many of Britain's restless youth.

With the addition of a gangly, completely untalented ruffian of 19 named John Ritchie (the moniker Vicious was given to Sid after he attacked a journalist in a club with a motorcycle chain), the line-up was complete.

The paradox of their career was that if the Pistols ever did become truly financially successful, they would have lost the outer-fringe element that was so essential for popularity with their fans. Thus the Sex Pistols self-destructed in the middle of their one-and-only U.S. tour and Sid and Nancy became the true victims of Punk's self-established kamikaze attitude.

It is this brutalization of themselves and each other that director Alex Cox (of "Repo Man" fame) chose to dissect for us on screen. We see Sid and Nancy shoot heroin together, physically abuse each other, and generally have a pretty bad time.

But in the midst of all this self-imposed suffering, we see an element shine through that is hard to imagine with such unsympathetic characters. We see that Sid and Nancy truly did love each other, for whatever that might have been worth.

When Sid's friends and band members warn him of the parasitic nature of Nancy, (it was she who got him addicted to heroin), he ignores them and answers simply, "Eh, she's all right."

The extent of their feelings for each other is conjured so vividly because of the superb acting of Gary Oldman as Sid and Chloe Webb as Nancy. These are the first leading film roles for both young actors.

Oldman captures every ounce of Sid's morose, sophomoric character with an anemic countenance and an intoxicated demeanor. Oldman lost so much weight in preparing for the role that he got sick. He studied such works as William Burroughs' "Junky" to get the feeling of how a junkie acts and the result is painfully convincing. The one area he should have researched more was Sid's unique snarling stage presence, which comes off in the film as more of a parody than an accurate representation.

Chloe Webb brings her extensive stage talents to the character of Nancy to illustrate her loud, obnoxious, yet extremely childlike and volatile nature. It seems at times that Webb should have toned down her delivery a bit. Her portrayal often seems better suited for the stage, where exaggerations are needed to convey a character to a large audience. The screen affords actors the chance at subtle nuances that can be a thousand times more effective. Then again, there was nothing subtle about Nancy Spungen.

There is a problem in watching the film that does not lie with either the director or the actors. The real problem is that Sid and Nancy were not particularly interesting people. They were junkies, pure and simple, and all junkies do is get high, get sick and sleep. A good portion of the performance in the latter part of the film occurs, in fact, in bed.

Cox might have had better fodder for a film in focusing on the career of the Sex Pistols instead, with the saga of Sid and Nancy as a subplot. The character of Malcolm McLaren, for instance, could have been extremely interesting to explore further. During one scene we see how great a manipulative genius McLaren (played superbly by David Hayman) was when he argues Sid's usefulness to the band members. They complain that Sid can't play and McLaren answers, "Sid doesn't have to play. He is a beautiful wreck, a symbol, a metaphor."

But Cox chose instead to concentrate on Sid and Nancy to achieve what he hoped would be a modern-day Romeo and Juliet. Sid and Nancy had a death pact supposedly. And like the Shakespearean characters, they were responsible for each other's deaths. They hoped to go out in a blaze of glory. We see instead that they went out in the depths of squalor.

Cox's abilities as a director are evident in the film, and he worked admirably with the subject matter he has to deal with. At times the film is very funny, for instance in one shot the whole frame consists solely of a bottle of Moet champagne and a plate of messy beans on the same table, suggesting a juxtaposition of the punk's ideals.

The attempts of the punks in the film to constantly hit people up for money is amusing. At one point Sid introduces himself to a member of a bona-fide rockstar's entourage with the line, "Hi, I'm Sid Vicious of the Sex Pistols. Have you got five quid?"

There are several attempts at surrealism made by Cox that work well on a Ken Russell-like level. In one, Sid and Nancy are walking arm-in-arm in slow motion amidst a scene of rioting punks and policemen. They walk through the crowd as if in a tunnel, suggesting that they are truly set apart and in their own world.

Another scene, where they kiss standing near a trash bin with garbage falling from above may seem corny to some, but is actually effective as a vision of their desperate existence and hopeless love affair.

All in all, "Sid and Nancy" is a highly stylized film with very credible acting concerning the lives of some very tragic people. The question is whether the content of the story, and the characters themselves, is something that will interest you or not.

Little to recommend in 'Streets'

By Michael Chapp

Though none of the sequels to the immensely popular "Rocky" have been prize packages, each of those Stallone vehicles looks like Oscar material when put up against "Streets of Gold," a poorly made film which lacks the grit, grandeur, and yes, even the fun of Stallone's "Rocky" sagas.

Starring Klaus Maria Brandauer in a role as far beneath him as Rambo would be beneath Sir Laurence Olivier, "Streets" is an endless hodgepodge of the underdog spirit and the us-versus-them mentality. And to make matters worse, it's all been done before.

Those who are easily taken in by gratuitous violence and hard-hitting boxing action are likely to find something to salvage from this film. For anyone who demands even a minimal intelligence in the story, however, disappointments will abound.

Alek Neuman (Brandauer) is an ex-boxer from Russia living in Brighton Beach, Brooklyn. Neuman, a national champion and Olympic hopeful in Russia, was banned from fighting there because of his religious beliefs. In America, he lives in relative poverty in a boarding house with other exiles, and works in the kitchen of a Russian restaurant. He laments his so-called "freedom," until he meets a couple of amateur boxers — boxers he feels can be good enough, with the proper training, to beat the Russian team coming to America.

Roland Jenkins (Wesley Snipes) is a tough-guy black boxer whose mind is as much on making it to the pros as beating the Russkies. Tim Boyle (Adrian Pasdar) is the more introspective, but arguably less intelligent white boxer, and long-time rival of Jenkins.

Neuman takes it upon himself to reconcile the two youngsters and prepare them to work on a united front against the Russian team. For every time either of the two proteges are successful in the ring, Neuman is vicariously successful too. And if by chance one — or both — of them can win against the Russians, Neuman would be rectified and the comeuppance would be a tasty dish of revenge indeed.

Basically, that's about as deep as this picture gets. All of the potential for a character study of Neuman and his troubles is barely given a second glance. Even all of the potential for a fun come-from-behind victorious feeling is squelched by the dark and needlessly oppressive texture of the piece.

The picture wallows in its heavy-handedness, almost to the point of laughter. "This is your last chance, Alek," Neuman is told by a companion. "This is America, not Russia. You cannot be the man you were there." With lines like these, it's difficult to take seriously the characters of the film. Each of them, in fact, serves their own respective purpose, then gets shoved to the background. Better three-dimensional characters have been seen on a deck of cards. Even Brandauer, who is certainly no slouch in the movies, having played in films like "Out of Africa" and "Colonel Red," is given nothing serious to work with.

As for symbolism, which seems to have been given a moderate priority by director Joe Roth, one can make the same remarks. The contrast of American and Soviet life is reduced to a radio blaring out Aretha Franklin's "Respect" while a Russian singer flexes her vocal cords in the next room. Not exactly challenging stuff, to be sure.

Reduced to its bare bones, "Streets of Gold" is a preachy, overly simplistic and oh-so-predictable ripoff of the "Rocky" series — the fourth installment in particular. Fans of Brandauer will find nothing within its frames to merit a viewing. Nor, for that matter, will fans of serious movies in general. Even those who enjoy boxing movies will have serious problems with the scenes highlighting their sport. Indeed, there is little to love about this picture.

These "Streets" are in a low-rent district.

Former resident succeeds with Lansing radio station

Editor's note: The following story was written by a journalism student at Michigan State University. The subject, Robert Ottaway, is a former Farms resident.

By Kenneth E. Godon

Lansing radio has been through many changes during the past four years, but none has had as much impact as WMMQ, 92.7 FM.

Former Grosse Pointe Farms resident Robert Ottaway, 39, bought the ailing station which aired with a soft rock format in September 1982.

After losing the ratings war, Ottaway looked to Fred Jacobs, owner of Media Strategies in Farmington Hills for alternate markets. Jacobs suggested the classic rock 'n' roll format.

In April 1985, WMMQ switched. Within eight weeks, the station went to first place with men 18-49.

"We were the first station around with this format," Ottaway said. "Now it's the hottest format in the U.S."

In his office, filled with stacks of promotional T-shirts, license plates and a WMMQ banner, Ottaway said, "Radio is different than other jobs because it never stops. There is always something to improve upon. You're never happy. "Radio and television only serve with what listeners and viewers want. We please the public," he added.

In 1985, WMMQ became an affiliate of NBC. With it, the station added special programming, such as "Ticket to Ride," "Sexually Speaking" with Dr. Ruth, and "The Jazz Show with David Sanborn."

Michigan State University has been highly receptive to the classic rock 'n' roll wave. Management was surprised that the 17-24 age group is so interested in the music of the 1955-1975 era. By spring 1986, Arbitron ratings show that WMMQ ranked first in almost every time slot with men 18 and over.

Before his acquisition of WMMQ, Ottaway attended the University of Virginia, where he received an economics degree. He earned a law degree at Wayne State University and worked for eight years at the National Bank of Detroit. His only prior radio experience was working for a Port Huron station sweeping floors and working on commercials.

Snow-touring is on the rise

Snow-touring — or long distance snowmobile travel — should hit a new high on the Lower Peninsula this winter when a 200-mile trail is completed between Traverse City and Tawas City, reports AAA Michigan.

Most of the trail already is linked and travels through Lake City, Houghton Lake and West Branch. When the final 20-mile stretch near St. Helen is completed this winter, it will be the first Lower Peninsula trail network. The route should take six to eight hours to travel and has sufficient food, lodging and other facilities to accommodate all users.

An existing Upper Peninsula trail network links St. Ignace, Saulte Ste. Marie and Wisconsin. It travels through woods and fields while skirting Lake Superior, with views of the big lake at several points.

Including the two trans-Michigan networks, there are 5,000 miles of groomed trails throughout the state. Registration fees from the 160,000 licensed snowmobilers — more than in any other state — will raise $700,000 for trail grooming.

Trail work is done by state workers, local governments and private groups.

Those funds will be used to maintain the 168 sites listed in AAA Michigan's 1986-87 guide to public snowmobile trails. They range from one mile in Petoskey State Park to 200 miles through the Huron and Ottawa National Forests in the Upper Peninsula. The guide includes 63 state parks, one southern game area, 100 state forests and four national forests.

Michigan's groomed trails will allow the average snowmobiler to ride 1,000 miles this season, which will result in $700 per person being spent on snowmobile outings. Michigan tourism cash registers will ring to the tune of more than $160 million as snowmobilers log 190 million miles on the trails, according to the Michigan Snowmobile Association.

Before snowmobilers head out on the trails, there must be at least four inches of snow on the ground to use the trails listed in the guide. That level usually is reached about Dec. 1 in the Upper Peninsula and a month later in the Lower Peninsula. Eighteen persons were killed in 17 snowmobile accidents in the 1984-85 season, the last year for which statistics are available. That is two more than the previous season.

Because safety should be a primary concern for all snowmobilers, AAA Michigan suggests the following rules:

- Dress warmly and avoid clothing which may become tangled in the equipment.
- Carry first aid and survival kits which include a compass, maps, waterproof matches, food and extra clothing.
- Do not stray off marked trails. Look for fences and wires concealed in snow. Respect private property.
- On lakes and rivers, make sure ice is at least six inches thick before crossing. Watch for fishing holes, stumps and pilings covered by snow. Avoid ice at river mouths.
- Avoid alcohol consumption.
