Leash your lambs . . .

Come on folks, let's keep those Christmas decorations in line. Besides the usual bunch of stray kittens, injured opossums, dead squirrels and lost dogs, lots of wayward lawn and porch decor was found wandering around in Grosse Pointe Woods last week. Locked up in the Woods' property room are:

- One white plastic molded lamb, approximately eight inches by 18 inches by six inches. He was found lying on Eastbourne, north of Prestwick.
- One 30-inch plastic snowman.
- One 36-inch plastic choir-boy.
- One 30-inch plastic street-light.

Still missing is one three-foot tall birchwood reindeer, wearing garlands around his neck.

Henry Feys, longtime hardware salesman who's helped many a resident over the years, will have his own day Saturday, Dec. 27. Everyone is invited to drop by at Damman Hardware in the Village between 1 and 5 p.m. to wish him well in his retirement and perhaps get some last-minute tips. There will be refreshments served.

These winners are colorful

We received about 200 entries in our recent coloring contest. They came from East Lansing, Rochester, St. Clair Shores, Detroit and Roseville as well as Grosse Pointe. Pictures of the winners and the names of all who entered the contest are on Page 12A.

Judges, who had a tough time selecting, were Lauren Chapman, Gay Ahlgrim, Diana Hages and JoAnne Burcar.

Happy Holidays

Schools observe holidays in many ways

By Nancy Parmenter

No one has ever sued the Grosse Pointe schools for presenting a Nativity pageant. But the schools have moved with the times, and today's holiday celebrations show a lot more diversity than they used to, officials say.

A series of court decisions have been fairly explicit: Government buildings can't display Nativity scenes or other Christian symbols at Christmas time — unless there are other symbols present as well. It has taken years for all of the governments to get the word — a suit was filed just this month in Georgia, where a government building lit up its windows in the shape of a cross.

Rulings handed down to schools at the local level haven't been as direct. In Grosse Pointe, no one has formally spelled out how much Christian display is appropriate or what to discard. It has come more subtly, through professional literature and general conversation in administration and teacher lounges. The administration relies on the good sense of classroom teachers and principals, rather than on a stated policy.

"The schools used to get all excited over Christmas," said Robert Welch, director of secondary curriculum. "There were Christmas pageants, Christmas concerts, Christmas teas. (Looking back a few decades), the '50s were a totally different world. I know there was more active fostering of religion in the '50s."

But it isn't all gone, Welch said. The high schools continue their tradition of the Christmas tea, the elementary schools all have a holiday program. Now, however, there is greater recognition that the community is more diverse than it was.

"Grosse Pointe has less diversity of religious beliefs than some communities," Welch said. "The preponderance of people are Christian. But if I were a principal, I would be cognizant of the increasing Asian and Arabic population."

Some of that population has asked that its children not participate in certain celebrations, according to Nancy Salamas, assistant principal at Pierce Middle School.

"We have different groups to accommodate," Salamas said. "We want to accommodate them without diluting what we had . . . so we have to be very careful how we celebrate. Students need to know there are lots of different ways to celebrate holidays."

One of the ways to do that is in the classroom. Pierce Principal Donald Bassett said the school has an annual ethnic dinner to celebrate its varied character. A class may do reports on holiday celebrations of other religions. And the Christmas program has evolved into a holiday program that is a bit more secular and sometimes features songs from other religions.

The Pierce Christmas pageant is remembered with some fondness by people who have been in the school system for a long time.

"It had a heavy religious emphasis," recalled Bill Mogk, now a counselor at Brownell. "Everybody was in church robes, like a choir . . . The auditorium was decorated with Bible verses and there was a tableau behind the choir. It was magnificent."

After the court rulings, Pierce tried to continue with the pageant, (Continued on Page 8A)

Increased enforcement clogs local court

By Peter A. Salinas

Increased enforcement on certain high traffic volume streets may have slowed some wheels in the Farms, but the wheels of justice in the city's municipal court are grinding slower, too.

A recent report to the city council by Municipal Judge Peter E. O'Rourke indicated that the backlog of cases for civil and misdemeanor offenses in the city now extends to September 1987.

Additionally, a visiting judge sent a letter to the Farms city council and Mayor Joseph Fromm, pointing to what he later called the "appalling" facilities and operations of the small court.

O'Rourke said there are a couple of reasons for the backlog of cases, the most significant being the increased number of tickets written by the Farms new traffic bureau.

The bureau was created as a result of numerous requests from residents on streets with high traffic volumes as a way to keep speeds within legal limits and thereby improve safety.

'At no time did the city manager, city council or the police department determine what kind of impact this would have on the court docket.'

— Municipal Judge Peter O'Rourke

The Farms' traffic bureau has been in operation with two new officers and two new patrol cars since Aug. 1. Since that time police have been averaging about 300 tickets a month more than the department had been issuing before the creation of the bureau.

"Since that time they (the officers) have also issued about 200 warnings per month," O'Rourke said.

"At no time did the city manager, city council or the police department determine what kind of impact this (increased enforcement) would have on the court docket," O'Rourke said.

O'Rourke said that the court already had an extremely heavy court operation, it is difficult to handle the additional case load.

O'Rourke was elected municipal judge in November 1984. He took over the office in January 1986. A resident of the Farms, he was the city's prosecutor for 10 years prior to his election as judge.

"Under the provisions the city makes for the court, we are unable to handle those volumes of tickets within the court dates which have been set by my predecessor, Judge Pytell."

Robert H. Pytell was the municipal judge in the Farms for 18 years. O'Rourke said that Pytell had issued guidelines for the number of cases which the court could reasonably be expected to handle during the two regular morning court sessions held each month.

O'Rourke sent a memo to police Chief Robert Ferber in July 1986 saying he would expand on Pytell's schedule, adding more cases to each day's docket.

Prior to O'Rourke's taking over the court, the Farms municipal court heard 3,008 cases in 1985. Those included felony arraignments, misdemeanors, traffic offenses and civil cases, according to the Michigan State Court Administrator's records.

Figures were not immediately available for 1986.

O'Rourke added that a serious problem is the lack of adequate space for court records and the three part-time employees who work in the court office.

"We have an office (located downstairs at the Farms city hall) that is about ten by ten," O'Rourke said. "This room handles three part-time secretaries, two typewriters, two desks, filing cabinets and only one phone line."

O'Rourke, who fumed over the lack of security of confidential court files, which are located in a doorless room adjacent to a long hallway, did say that conditions in the court are going to improve.

The city is moving the court office upstairs to the duplicating room, which is more than 50 percent larger than the current office.

"We definitely need that room," the judge said. "We can't handle the current volume and we don't have the facilities to handle the additional work load."

DeLorean juror believes verdict was correct

By Margie Reins Smith

By the time Richard Thams arrived home from his last day at U.S. District Court Wednesday night, Dec. 17, reporters had called from the Detroit Free Press, the Detroit News, Time Magazine, the National Law Journal, Cable News Network, all three local TV stations — and the Grosse Pointe News.

Thams, a resident of Grosse Pointe Shores, was one of the 12 jurors responsible for last week's acquittal of John Z. DeLorean on all 15 counts of embezzling $8.5 million from his now-bankrupt sports car company.

Since Sept. 24, when preliminary jury selection steps began, through 30 days of testimony and 5 1/2 days of jury deliberations, Thams has not been able to discuss the nationally publicized case, nor has he been able to listen to TV newscasts and radio reports, nor read daily newspaper accounts of the complicated testimony.

He now can talk about anything concerning the trial. It's all public record. And he is looking forward to watching nearly three months worth of TV news accounts of the trial which his wife, Joyce, has taped for him. She also clipped and saved all accounts of the trial from daily newspapers so that he could read them afterward.

"There was no evidence presented to say DeLorean was not innocent," Thams said. "In our legal system — and the judge kept telling us this — a person is innocent until proven guilty."

Thams had never served on a jury before and called the experience "a wonderful opportunity to participate in our legal system. To be a judge of the facts in such an important case in our U.S. Federal Court system was a learning experience and a privilege."

He emphasized the sheer volume of reading material that was involved in the trial. He has four thick legal pads covered with notes he took during testimony. The indictment itself was a 95-page document. Instructions to the jury covered 71 pages. The questionnaire given to prospective jurors was 50 pages or so.

Thams said, during the five-week trial, tension built as new evidence was presented. "All the attorneys did their best to present their arguments. It was up to the government to prove guilt. It was difficult to do because of the absence of concrete evidence and the presence of ambiguous documents and contentions. The whole deal was very complicated and involved, with many countries and different money exchanges."

He said he did not have an opinion about DeLorean's innocence or guilt before the trial. During the testimony, he said, "No proof was given to show that Colin Chapman did not give DeLorean the loan. The pivotal document, the 10-year stock option, was weak," he said. "It was not dated. It was only one piece of paper — only one piece of evidence out of nearly 4,000 pieces, but it represented a 10-year loan agreement with a payback. On the premise of 'innocent until proven guilty,' this supported the loan theory."

Asked if he believed the government had a vendetta against DeLorean after his 1984 acquittal of drug charges in California, Thams thought carefully, then said, "I could support that theory. Evidence by the FBI witness seemed to have a lot of holes in it. Defense attorneys made him (the FBI witness) look like a fool. They even forced out some new evidence."

Although the trial dragged on occasion, there were some light moments, he said — times when the gallery broke out in laughter. Laughter was probably deliberately provoked, he said, to break the tension.

He has gotten to know the other 11 jurors and four alternates very well, he said. They plan to get together sometime soon. Thams plans to have lunch with DeLorean soon too. He suggested it, and DeLorean agreed.

Thams is president of X-Ray Industries, a company devoted to the non-destructive testing industry, and he operates four testing laboratories, as well as a manufacturing and distribution company for non-destructive testing equipment.

DeLorean signed an autograph for him with these words: "From one small businessman to another. Merry Christmas. John Z. DeLorean."

Thams said he voted for acquittal from the beginning and refused to identify the three jurors who changed their votes from guilty to not guilty. "I could say who they were," he said, "but I think it's up to them to disclose this information if they want to."

Concerning a publicized misunderstanding by jurors who believed they had to vote unanimously in order to render a decision and to avoid a mistrial, Thams said, "We didn't have a thorough and complete understanding of the jurors' instructions."

"In time, however, I think the result would have been for acquittal anyway."

Four-alarm fire Sunday destroys house of local jeweler

By Peter A. Salinas

Christmas season cheer turned to tragedy shortly after 7 p.m. Sunday for a Grosse Pointe Shores family whose home was destroyed by fire.

Edmund and Bettyjean Ahee, owners of Edmund T. Ahee Jewelers on Mack Avenue, lost their two-story brick home on Ballantyne in a four-alarm blaze that took nearly two hours to bring under control.

According to Joseph Vitale, Grosse Pointe Shores director of public safety, the first call came in at 7:10 p.m., and when Shores firefighters arrived at the scene, a second alarm was requested immediately.

"We responded within a couple of minutes with both trucks," Vitale said. "When they arrived they called for a second alarm. Flames were already shooting a good distance out of the windows."

John Mills, of Woodland Shores, the home immediately south of the Ahees', said he was in his family room at about 7 p.m. when he heard a rumbling sound.

"I thought it was the garage door, but I noticed the glow in our backyard," Mills said. "I went outside and yelled 'fire' back to my wife Diane."

Mills said the flames were already shooting out of the windows on the south side of the home "about six feet," when his wife called the Shores department.

"My wife came out and saw Mr. and Mrs. Ahee on the roof," Mills said. "Greg (Mills' son) and I got a ladder from our garage and helped them down the ladder."

Vitale said he is calling in the Michigan State Police fire marshal to aid his department in the investigation.

"I understand that Mrs. Ahee was downstairs and her husband was upstairs napping," Vitale said. "She ran to get her husband, and they were trapped upstairs."

Mills said that Ahee was in his pajamas and had no shoes on. The Ahees went to the Mills' home and later an ambulance was called and both Ahees were transported to St. John Hospital. They were later released.

One Shores officer injured his back, but no other firefighters were injured, Vitale said.

"The power of that fire was just amazing," Mills said. "Just the roaring was amazing — windows were popping."

Vitale described the building as a total loss, but said he would not guess at the dollar estimate of the damage.

Grosse Pointe Farms, Woods and St. Clair Shores fire departments battled the blaze.

"I would like to take this opportunity to say that the mutual aid pact between the cities once again worked wonderfully," Vitale said. "The Farms aerial truck was used to spray water on the roof."

Vitale said the St. Clair Shores and Woods departments put up a water curtain and fought the fire from the rear of the dwelling. The Shores and the Farms fought the blaze from the front.

"I've never failed to be amazed at the team work of the various departments," Vitale said.

"We realized that there was no way possible to save the home," Vitale said. "Our main concern was to get up the water curtain and protect the homes to the rear and the sides."

Mills said Mrs. Ahee told him the Christmas tree started the fire. Mills said that she told him her hair was singed as she attempted to pull the electrical cord from the wall.

Fire destroyed the Ahee family home Sunday evening. Edmund and Bettyjean Ahee were the only two people in the house when the blaze broke out shortly after 7 p.m.

Farms creates beautification commission

By Peter A. Salinas

It has taken several years, but Grosse Pointe Farms now has a beautification commission. The council appropriated $2,000 in start-up money.

The Farms council heard a report from Councilwoman Gail Kaess Dec. 15, then spoke with Mary Page Hickey, the appointed temporary chairman of the commission.

Selections to the commission have not been completed, but Kaess said the appointments and acceptances are nearing completion.

"We tried to get a good cross-section of people from the community," she said. "We will have people from the Mack Avenue Business Association, the Hill Association, and the various garden clubs."

Kaess said the $2,000 from the council will get the commission started, but funding from other sources, including the Grosse Pointe Farms Foundation, fundraisers and donations is anticipated.

"Our goal is to improve what we have here in Grosse Pointe Farms," Hickey said. "We have less than a top-notch situation on the Hill and a serious problem at Mack/Moross."

Hickey said one of the most important things she hopes to accomplish is better communication between the merchants on the Hill and the city. She feels the beautification commission will aid in that area.

"I would like to see an exact delineation of responsibility between the merchants and the city as far as maintenance of the landscaping," Hickey said.

Preliminary efforts to beautify the Mack/Moross area have been conducted by the Farms Foundation, but physical work has not yet begun, Hickey said. With the formation of the commission, there will be an entity to oversee the development of the intersection.

Of the $2,000 appropriation from the city council, Hickey, who will likely be chairman of the commission when it is fully formed and operating, said she feels that the various citizen groups in the community will help in gathering more funds to make improvements possible.

Other improvements being constructed are the Lakeshore Road area where the divided highway begins at the south, and at the Farms Pier Park.

"We hope to plant flowers and landscape around the flag pole, and develop some memorial tribute areas at the park."

Hickey said though not absolutely sure who will be appointed, she is confident that people with strong backgrounds in landscaping and gardening will join the ranks of the commission.

"We are very excited," Hickey said. "We don't have that big a job to do. What we are attempting to accomplish in the near term is very viable. We do hope to develop an awards system, perhaps similar to what they have started in Grosse Pointe Woods."

Major Joseph Fromm said he felt that the beautification commission would be an ideal way to provide expertise and ideas to such groups as the Farms Foundation to further enhance the beauty of the city.

The motion to appropriate $2,000 to the commission was approved unanimously.

Farms grants Ford's request to add acreage to development

By Peter A. Salinas

The Grosse Pointe Farms City Council approved a request Dec. 15 by Henry Ford II to combine a 4.74-acre parcel of land with a cluster of development on his adjacent property.

The council listened to Ford, other partners in the development, the landscape architect and residents of the Windemere development discuss the request.

Ford originally requested and was granted in 1982 rezoning of 7.87 acres on his Lakeshore property to cluster development. Subsequently, Ford purchased a 5.88-acre site known as the Weber parcel located adjacent to his land, and had that rezoned for cluster development.

The city's zoning ordinance only allows such development on parcels five acres in size or greater. Ford later sold a 1.5-acre site of the Weber parcel to Grosse Pointe's Wendell Anderson for the development of a single home.

Because the city's ordinance would not allow construction of cluster development on the parcel without a variance, Ford proposed combining the two parcels into one development thus giving him a total acreage for one development of a little more than 12.5 acres.

The partnership that will develop the condominiums on the properties is called the 457 Lakeshore Limited Partnership. The builder is Russell Homes Inc. There will be a total of 31 units on the properties.

Residents residing in the condominiums already completed on the Windemere property told the council that they didn't mind if the additional acreage was added to the development as long as it was developed in the same high quality as their property. They encouraged the city council to take an active role in insuring the same standards to development on acreage.

Some residents who live nearby voiced opposition to the move, claiming that as long as contiguous land was available, there would be an impetus to have the development stretch beyond the current available acreage.

The motion to approve the joining of the two properties was approved unanimously.

Poor Pearl doll collection displayed at library

By Margie Reins Smith

Perhaps she was the forerunner of Cabbage Patch Kids. Poor Pitiful Pearl, a doll sold in the mid-'50s was marketed to be adopted — not sold.

The wide-eyed, sober-faced orphan came packaged wearing an oversized kerchief tied under her chin, a ragged patched dress, and unfashionable black socks and shoes. Included in the package was a pretty party dress and new shoes. The "adoptive" mother was supposed to clean her up and comb her hair and dress her in the new dress.

Onnellee Koenig collects Poor Pitiful Pearls. Fifteen dolls from her collection are on display at the Woods branch of the Grosse Pointe Public Library until the end of December. Koenig was born and raised in Grosse Pointe and was a member of the first graduating class of Grosse Pointe High School in 1928.

She is also a member of the Detroit Doll Collectors, a club that meets monthly at the Detroit Historical Museum, to discuss their collections and exchange information about their dolls. She began collecting in 1970, and at times has had more than 300 dolls. Most are antiques. She has a number of foreign dolls, German bisque dolls, Byelo Babies, and Kewpie Dolls, as well as a substantial collection of advertising and cartoon dolls, like Poor Pitiful Pearl.

Pearl was created by William Steig, a cartoonist whose work appeared regularly in The New Yorker during the '50s, starring Poor Pitiful Pearl and other sad-faced orphans.

Koenig became fascinated with Pearl "because she captures your imagination. She has an effect on people. You were supposed to buy one and teach your child how to fix her hair and wash her face and dress her up in a pretty dress."

Pearl was produced by Glad Toy Co. in the '50s and revived by Horsman Dolls in the mid-60s. It's no longer being manufactured, according to Koenig. She said Steig originally wanted the doll to be sold with messy, unkempt hair and dirt on her face, but the manufacturer thought he couldn't sell a dirty doll.

"Whenever I see one I buy it," she said. "Some were in terrible condition. They've had their hair cut off. One had been marked up with indelible felt pen-marks. I took her to the cleaners and they said they couldn't do anything with her. I finally cleaned her up by using bleach."

The display at the Parcels library features 15 Poor Pitiful Pearls, arranged to look like they're preparing for Christmas. They're cutting snowflakes, stringing popcorn, decorating tiny Christmas trees, making ornaments, ironing their party dresses, and setting the table for Christmas dinner.

Accessories in the display were provided and arranged by Marge

Linsdeau, a Grosse Pointe Woods resident whom Koenig met at a meeting of the Detroit Doll Collectors. Linsdeau contributed the tiny accessories from her collection — little Christmas trees, miniature toys, a small ironing board and iron, a little table set for Christmas dinner.

Koenig made angel costumes for two of the Pearl dolls, complete with halos and wings, and dressed them as if they're ready to perform in a Christmas play.

She said she occasionally finds a Pearl today. The most recent one she acquired is still in the original package. On the box, these words plead to kind-hearted little girls — and collectors: "Help! I need a Mommy. Change me from pitiful to pretty."

Editing the seat belt signs

To those of us who support mandatory seat belt laws, it is disappointing that two states — Massachusetts and Nebraska — opted out of the 26 member seat belt law club in November referendum. Even worse was the major reason for the repeal of the laws in those states. It was that same old bugaboo: popular resistance to a government regulation, even though it saves lives. It's a free country and those who oppose mandatory seat belt use have a perfect right to express their opinions, just as do those who favor such laws. But if the opponents are going to be consistent, then they should also oppose traffic regulations that are intended to preserve lives of motorists and pedestrians. But they don't, of course.

In Massachusetts, the law worked even though the people voted it down. In auto accidents in the first six months of the operation of the law in that state, a 23 percent reduction in serious injuries and an 8 percent decline in fatalities were reported. In the same period, seat-belt use increased from 15 percent to 35 percent.

As a result, Massachusetts highways officials are continuing their educational campaign for greater use of seat belts. They have even taken an editor's pencil to the old state signs which said: "Take the Law to Heart — Massachusetts Requires the Use of Seat Belts." Those signs now read: "Take Safety to Heart — Massachusetts Suggests the Use of Seat Belts."

It is true that in Massachusetts a contributing factor in the defeat of the seat belt law might have been the auto industry's strong support for its retention. According to the Massachusetts director of the highway safety bureau, some voters perceived the November referendum as a mismatch between the little guy and big business — and they voted for the little guy. That is known as biting off your nose to spite your face since the lives that motorists save by using seat belts may well be their own.

Yet it is also true that the auto industry had its own ax to grind. It backs state laws as not only a way to support safety but also to eliminate the federal requirement that unless more than two thirds of the country's population is covered by seat belt laws by April 1989, a rule compelling manufacturers to install costly airbags or other automatic restraints would come into force.

If the transportation department now goes ahead with its plan to extend the airbag deadline another four years, perhaps the auto industry should modify or change its advertising about the use of airbags. If industry ads concentrated on the additional costs that the airbags will impose on every car sold, the public might become more sympathetic to seat belts. It wouldn't be the first time that safety has taken a back seat to costs in auto sales strategies.

Leading the pay parade

A federal panel has just made the Wayne County Board of Commissioners and the State Officers Compensation Commission look like tightwads when it comes to recommending pay hikes for public officials.

In editorials in the last two weeks, we've taken exception to the size of the pay hikes proposed for county and state officials. We have pointed out that both the county and the state have had trouble balancing their books and that it seems to be a poor time to propose overly generous salary increases when belt-tightening appears to be in order.

Now, however, a presidential advisory commission has really shown some "leadership" on this issue. It has recommended increases of up to 80 percent for federal judges, members of Congress and executive branch officials. And, sure enough, the federal commission used the same excuses offered by those recommending healthy increases at the state and county levels. The higher pay is needed, the federal panel said, to attract highly qualified people and, it continued, to close the gap between public and private sector pay which "is so wide one might wonder why anyone would serve in government."

We still don't buy the proposals. For example, the salary of the vice president and speaker of the House would rise from $100,800 to $175,000 a year. The chief justice's pay would go up to the same level from the current $111,700. Salaries for members of Congress would escalate from $77,400 to $135,000 annually. Cabinet officers would move up from $88,000 to $160,000 a year. And proportional increases would be afforded to assorted lesser officials in the executive, legislative and judicial branches.

Increases would total $40.5 million a year for the executive branch, $31.6 million for the legislative branch and $77.6 million for the judicial branch. That adds up to more than $149 million a year in increases for the top 3,000 officials in the three branches of the federal government.

Yet the last time we looked, the federal government was still having the same trouble as the country and the state. Uncle Sam is running a huge deficit, despite Gramm-Rudman and other Band-aid efforts to stop the flow of red ink, and there's little or no hope of achieving a balanced budget in the foreseeable future.

But it's not just the initial cost of the increases that disturbs us. Many people who work in Washington — from journalists to lobbyists to managers of national business and industrial associations in the capital — relate their pay to that of federal officials. If these mammoth increases are granted, the action is likely to set off a new round of wage inflation in Washington — and in the rest of the country.

Fortunately, the recommendations can be revised by the president and Congress can even reject them with his assent. Some insiders expect the president to scale down by substantial amounts the proposed increases before he submits them to Congress in his budget message in January. The salary recommendations he makes then would take effect in 30 days unless both houses rejected them in a resolution that requires the president's signature.

Ralph Nader, the consumer activist, stoutly opposes the recommendations, saying that it's "basically the rich and powerful recommending huge increases to the powerful in government." The panel is headed by the chairman of General Foods. Nader also points out the commission held no public hearings, held no news conference to announce its recommendations and then recommended "an outlandish figure to the president so that he can cut it down to an outrageous figure."

That sounds too Machiavellian for us. Yet it is true that the president could regain some of the popularity he has lost over the Iranian arms deal if he rejected the panel's proposals, submitted modest pay increases for deserving top officials and omitted any hikes for federal officials involved in any way in the arms deal.

We serve all Farms residents

To the Editor:
Re: Mr. Paul D'Angelo's letter to the editor contained in your Dec. 18 issue.

I sincerely do not object and in fact support, Mr. D'Angelo's right to dissent and criticize. I can respect his apparent personal choice of a strong mayor form of government with a ward system representation in Grosse Pointe Farms. Additionally, I encourage and support his demonstrated political interest in Grosse Pointe Farms.

However, I cannot respect his use of out-of-context quotations, half truths and innuendos; in his fervor for "his plan," to barricade roads, without a plan for where the traffic will go. As to date, NO study has ever been undertaken by the city which called for the closing of any given roadway. Nor, can I respect his approach of attempting to silence me in speaking out for the silent residents who would be affected by the diversion of traffic on to their street.

Fisher Road, Moran Road, Kerby Road and Moross Road, have historically been designated by the city of Grosse Pointe Farms as major roads, or those roads specifically designated to carry large volumes of local and non-local traffic through the city between Mack Avenue and Lakeshore Drive. Therefore, many residents have knowingly purchased homes on other streets. Additionally, any Realtor will generally advise you that comparable homes sale prices, are generally lower for a home on a major road, than on a minor road. Hence, I feel that it is unconscionable to change a minor road into a major road, by formal or informal actions, without representation and input from those affected. This is but one of the reasons for existence of the Traffic Committee and the comments Mr. D'Angelo attributes to me, in representing the rights and interests of all residents of Grosse Pointe Farms.

Whereas, Fisher Road, Moran Road and Kerby Road have been specifically designated to carry large volumes of traffic, it does not take a traffic engineer to see that the roadways themselves are residential in character. As a result, on behalf of the city and the residents of those roadways, I have applied to the state and have received exemptions to permit parking, as a convenience to residents and as a means to reduce vehicular speed and traffic volumes; installed all lawfully permissible traffic control devices and targeted the area for heavy traffic enforcement since the inception of the Police Department's Traffic Bureau.

Furthermore, just because Fisher Road, Moran Road and Kerby Road, have historically been declared major roads, does not mean they have to stay that way. But professionally and ethically, I cannot recommend that they be changed until I know where the traffic will go, and the voices of those who will be affected are brought in to the decision-making process. Traffic volumes on local and major roads are continually being affected by internal and external influences, over which the city may or may not have control. For example, the city had control over the development of the Hill, and the city's traffic engineer's developed plans by which Kercheval Avenue would be the primary ingress and egress for traffic. Again, by way of example, with the closing of Austin High School, traffic on the Moran Road Link between Calonte Avenue and Mack Avenue decreased by 18 percent in the 22-year period between 1962 and 1984. As police chief, I must be aware of changing traffic patterns, but I also must be aware that I serve all residents of Grosse Pointe Farms, from its business community to its major and minor street residents.

Whereas, I alienate someone or some group, each time I make a decision, my decisions weigh all views and in the final analysis, are based upon the best interests of all the clientele I serve.

So I say to you, Mr. D'Angelo, challenge me on the facts, disagree with my conclusion, interpretations and opinions, but do not attack my competence for representing the best interests of all our residents, in the decision-making process. The facts in this matter indicate that some tough decisions must be made. For example, the Goodell-Grivas Traffic Engineering Study to which you referred, indicates that McMillan Road and McKinley Road, carry traffic volumes in excess of what can be anticipated for local roadways. Let's address this issue as a committee, let's look at our major road network as a committee, but please don't let this become a win or lose issue for any segment of our city; because if it does, the entire city loses. Please don't forget that by choice our local, state and national form of government is "pluralistic," and "pluralistic" is criticized most for slowness in action, while being praised most for representing all viewpoints in the decision-making process.

Be compassionate

To the Editor:
Concerning the article of Dec. 18 titled "6 charged with library vandalism," it was stated that "no names have been released pending arraignment." I would hope that this statement doesn't imply that when the names do become available, your paper will publish them. I can't imagine what useful purpose that would serve. It would only cause further embarrassment to the families involved.

As far as the six young men charged with the crime are concerned, they are already feeling the results of their misguided deeds with the just punishments handed down by the school administration, and, of course, face court action as well. In addition, they will have to deal with the flack that they will invariably suffer from students and faculty.

Perhaps there are those who would say that I know nothing of what newspaper reporting is all about, but it's my sincere wish that news reporters can also be compassionate enough to report that six male seniors from Grosse Pointe South are responsible, and leave it at that.

Park water dept. policy

To the Residents of Grosse Pointe Park:

Recently comments have arisen as to the city of Grosse Pointe Park's procedure in the estimation of water consumption for residents. In some instances, access to a resident's meter is unattainable. When this arises, the meter reader will leave for the convenience of the resident a meter reading card for their completion to avoid an estimated billing.

When this meter reading card is not returned and continued access to the meter is not available, the city charter allows the water service to be disconnected. This, we feel, would create an undue hardship upon our residents.

Therefore, to obtain an actual reading, a memo is forwarded to any such customer with a "meter reading card" enclosed so that the customer may forward the proper read to the city.

A suggestion is also made at this time that the installation of an outside remote reading device may help alleviate this type of problem in the future. When our inquiry remains unanswered, additional letters are forwarded requesting the resident to allow us access to the meter and again meter reading cards are forwarded for the customers' completion.

Finally, when no response is made after a period of six to eight months, rather than disconnecting service as the city charter allows, a higher-than-average estimate is forwarded to the customer on their next bill. Generally this final action allows service to be continued and obtains the desired response, an accurate read.

The accurate read is important to not only the city but also to the customer because it insures any previous estimates were accurate and in some cases may result in a credit due. The city feels this procedure is in the best interest of all its residents with the least amount of inconvenience, and, at the same time, is a fair and equitable solution to a reoccurring dilemma.

What shall we give the children?

Editor's note: The following poem was published in the Grosse Pointe News sometime in the 1950s. The author is unknown, the message is timeless.

In the long twilight of the year, the faces of the children grow luminous.
Rosy with cold, arabesqued with snowflakes, leaning into the wind, or drowsing before the fire, their eyes large, they look and listen, as if they glimpsed the peripheries of miracle or heard a soundless music in the air. From the innocent kingdom of implicit belief to that uncomfortable arena where the implacable mind battles the intractable heart, the faces of children at Christmas are lighted with visions of things to come.

What shall we give the children?

It seems certain that they will travel roads we never thought of, navigate strange seas, cross unimagined boundaries, and glimpse horizons beyond our power to visualize. What can we give them to take along? For the wild shores of Beyond, no toy or bauble will do. It must be something more, constructed of stouter fabric discovered among the cluttered aisles and tinsel bargain counters of experience, winnowed from what little we have learned. It must be devised out of responsibility and profound caring — a homemade present of selfless love. Everything changes but the landscape of the heart.

What shall we give the children?

Attention, for one day it will be too late.
A sense of value, the inalienable place of the individual in the scheme of things, will all that accrues to the individual — self-reliance, courage, conviction, self-respect, and respect for others.
A sense of humor. Laughter leavens life.
The meaning of discipline. If we falter at discipline, life will do it for us.
The will to work. Satisfying work is the lasting joy.
The talent for sharing, for it is not so much what we give as what we share.
The love of justice. Justice is the bulwark against violence and oppression and the repository of human dignity.
The passion for truth, founded on precept and example.
Truth is the beginning of every good thing.
The power of faith, engendered in mutual trust. Life without faith is a dismal dead-end street.
The beacon of hope, which lights all darkness.
The knowledge of being loved beyond demand or reciprocity, praise or blame, for those so loved are never lost.

What shall we give the children?

The open sky, the brown earth, the leafy tree, the golden sand, the blue water, the stars in their courses, and the awareness of these. Birdsong, butterflies, clouds, and rainbows. Sunlight, moonlight, firelight. A large hand reaching down for small hand, impromptu praise, an unexpected kiss, a straight answer. The glister of enthusiasm and a sense of wonder. Long days to be merry in and nights without fear.
The memory of a good home.

Prime time for senior citizens Christmas memories, customs, traditions

By Marian Trainor

Twice the night before Christmas...

As traditional as the day itself is this familiar, well-loved verse that epitomizes the delight and wonder of Christmas to young and old alike.

It conjures up visions of a tree freshly cut, filling the house with the fragrance of pine.

In our mind's eye we behold the wonder of myriad colored lights blinking through branches, ornaments collected from Christmases past and all of them with special significance, hanging from slightly bowed branches.

There are presents around the tree. Brightly wrapped, they create a kaleidoscope of memories. The picture changes from the self-indulgent small luxurious gifts for two to hoped-for-toys placed ever so strategically under tinsel tree limbs. Through the years toys become clothes and stereos and cameras and sports equipment and finally back to small luxurious gifts for two.

We remember Christmas breakfast with warm, fruited coffee cake, the flurry of gathering up Christmas wrappings and getting ready to meet guests for dinner.

It was a wonderful time. Everyone came — grandma and grandpa, cousins, aunts and uncles all gathered together, each one dressed in Christmas finery; everyone smiling and talking, excited over being together and appreciative of their Christmas remembrances.

It was a day we felt should never end, and yet, tired and happy we welcomed the peace and quiet that came with night's arrival and the guests' departure. Children, whom we thought were too excited to sleep, fell into their beds clutching the gift they treasured most.

This was a special time when we sat together with only the lights on the tree and the glow of the fireplace to lighten the darkness and soft Christmas music to break the sweet silence of another blessed Christmas.

As we sat our thoughts drifted beyond the wreathed door and the comfort and joy a family Christmas brings, to another scene, one that denotes the true meaning of Christmas.

We remember the beauty of solemnity of the Christmas Eve service. We hear the church chimes pealing and echoing in the cold winter air and see stars glittering and bright in the midnight sky. We feel the crunching of snow under our feet and thrill again to the wondrous sight that greeted our eyes when we opened the church door. The church was bathed in a golden light, the pillars decked in green, the altar brilliant with poinsettias and the manger scene the center of it all.

Our hearts thrilled with emotion with the glory of the "Halleluia Chorus" and the beauty of the most beloved hymn of all — "Silent Night."

We remember going out in the frosty twilight again, greeting neighbors, our voices echoing and cracking in the chilliness, and coming home to the exhausting and yet exhilarating task of getting ready for Christmas morning.

As we sit, we ponder on where it all began. Long ago and far away, was Christmas always so?

Historians say no. We associate the beginnings of Christmas with the birth of Christ who came two thousand years ago to bring new hope to mankind.

The familiar Christmas story has for its theme the message: "Glory to God in the highest and on earth, peace, goodwill toward men."

It is a message that pervades the deepest hopes of all who have and ever will celebrate Christmas.

But we are told that before the birth of Christ, the Romans had a feast called Saturnalia. It was a day set aside to give glory to Saturn. There was feasting and games and the people gave presents to the poor. They lit torches and candles. There was no fighting.

Even after the beginnings of Christianity, the birth of Christ was not celebrated in any special

I say

The flotsam and jetsam of Christmas are the odds and ends and debris from a successful holiday celebration that pop to the surface and float around after the season is over. This formidable volume of miscellaneous festive stuff must be cleaned, packed, stored or disposed of before we can get on with the new year.

My parents have the right approach to the problem. They have a small artificial Christmas tree decorated with a string of tiny white lights and some ornaments handmade by their grandchildren. A few days after Christmas, my mother pops a garbage bag over the whole thing and carries it up to the attic.

Next Christmas she'll bring it down, and whip off the bag. Voilà! instant Christmas tree.

I think there's just too many bits and pieces, crumbs, relics, residue, litter and refuse to dispose of and pack away after an enjoyable holiday season.

After opening gifts, there's ripped paper, squashed bows, broken ribbons, scattered and flattened box lids, wayward instruction sheets and warranties, and scraps of packing material — either those tiny static foam balls that refuse to leave your fingertips or those sheets of clear plastic bubbles that break with such a satisfying "pop."

After Christmas dinner there's leftover snippits and scraps of fancy foods, things that are prepared only once or twice a year — a dab of turkey stuffing, a dish of cranberry sauce, a dollop of dip, a carton of eggnog, and odd little samplings of sauces and condiments and salad dressings that appear on the table in their very own colorful cartons during the rest of the year.

The real cloth napkins and tablecloths need to be washed and ironed. The silver needs polish; crystal and dishes need special hand-wash care.

The after-tree debris is formidable. When it's finally time to take the tree down, wayward needles have been tramped from attic to basement. There's fancy ornaments, sticky candy canes that survived only because they were hidden on the back side of the tree, like brand new batteries. From craft projects, there's leftover gluey scraps of ribbon, blobs of glitter, bits of colored paper, dried-up magic markers. There's cookie dough, gritty colored sugar, bits of chocolate chips and colored frosting that stick to the floor and sift into the cracks and crevices of the kitchen. From older children, there's sticky dishes and dirty socks, lost marshmallows and splashes of hot chocolate, forgotten hairbrushes and make-up, odds and ends of sports equipment, tangled telephone cords, and laundry — laundry — laundry.

There's accumulations of forgotten items, left by the children's friends — ice-encrusted mittens, wet skates and snow pants, drippy boots and books, and toys, sleeping bags and stuffed animals.

It's too bad all this debris can't be recycled. Empty pop bottles and paper products and outgrown clothing — even soup labels — can all be saved and turned in for useable goods.

Why can't we bundle up all our leftover food from Christmas dinner and turn it in for a pizza on the day after Christmas?

Turn over the last dregs of candy and fruitcake for a weekend at a fat farm?

Carry the broken toy parts back to the store for credit toward a new toy?

Why can't we turn in all the bedraggled Christmas tree decor, ripped wrapping paper and old Christmas cards for a free magazine subscription?

Why not pile all the fallen tree needles and cookie crumbs and lost mittens and used batteries into a compost heap that will decompose into a mixture we can feed to our house plants for the next six months?

Or, like my mother, throw a plastic bag over the whole mess and stash it in the attic for another year.

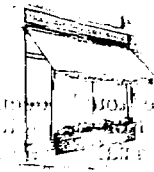

O Christmas debris

stripped of the robes and the heaviest religious overtones, "but it got into a PTO mixer, community sing kind of thing," Mogk said.
"We were disappointed, frankly. It was a lovely Christian non-denominational program — but if you weren't Christian, you'd have a problem."
The holidays are apparently celebrated differently at different schools. While some retain some traditional Christian Christmas character, others have gone toward the Santa Claus approach. At Brownell, for example, the sixth grade put on a play taking off on the television show, "Happy Days," Mogk said. In it, Santa worries that the world is disillusioned with his old-fashioned ways.

Changes at the school crept in gradually, says Alfreda Frost, director of elementary curriculum. "There are general guidelines that we've suggested. What they try to do is present a variety. They don't sing all Christmas songs. They see how Christmas is celebrated in other countries."

The professional education literature prints periodic reminders about the issue, Frost said, and Superintendent John Whritner reminded the staff of it when he came to the system two years ago.

"The reminders keep it from becoming an issue," Frost said. In reference to the court battle over the city of Birmingham's right to display a Nativity scene at city hall, she said the issue "isn't all that far from home."
In spite of the court ruling, some classes still use religion as one of the teaching tools. Foreign language classes have long used song as a way of practicing the sounds and of teaching some of the thought of the country. Many of the best-known Christmas carols originated in France and Germany and are sung at the holidays in those language classes.

"They are cultural manifestations," said Nancy Salamas. "World history teaches the great world religions," said Bob Welch. "Language classes have more emphasis on culture than they used to. Everybody knows that Catholicism was dominant in France. So classes learn about the great cathedrals. They look at the windows of Chartres. And they sing Christmas carols."

No matter how much the courts rule against government-sanctioned displays of religion, at least one small irony will remain, suggested Don Bassett.

"We're going to be out of school for three weeks, and it's not just because it's winter."

The changing scene

As a private school, University Liggett is not bound by the same legal restrictions that affect a tax-supported public school system, but Liggett has changed its celebrations to honor its diversity.
"We have so many religions," said Emily Baker, now assistant head of the middle school, who has been with the institution for 23 years. "You could almost say we have one of everything. There must be eight or 10 that aren't the standard Protestant denominations or Catholic."

Baker said ULS's Muslim population is probably the largest non-Christian group, perhaps followed by Jews. "Jews are one group that brought it to our attention that we were pushing Christianity too hard," she said.

The school used to do "spectacular" Nativity tableaux behind a scrim — a different artist's version each year. Even now, there is an annual Christmas service with music and scriptures at a local church.

The difference, according to Baker, is that now the service is optional. The whole school's approach is now geared more toward a general holiday than toward the traditional Christian Christmas. "We try to use it as a teaching aid for other beliefs."

At Liggett, as at the public schools, the change has been subtle and gradual rather than a formal policy.

"The school is proud of its diversity. The variety enhances our student population," Baker said. "We encourage people to be proud of their background and to share it with us."

South cable class airs original show

"Quiet on the set," and Lights, Action, Camera!" are but two of the director's calls that the 22 members of the South High Cable Television Club have learned to heed this fall when working on their most recent production, "Down South."

Taped for viewing on school Channel 19, the 40-minute show includes scenes from Grosse Pointe; interviews with students and administrators about the new smoking policy; a performance of the band and orchestra; and an in-depth interview on computer-aided design at The Slipped Disk, a local computer store. Interspersed throughout are students' tongue-in-cheek commercials.

While the purpose of the club is aimed toward providing extracurricular fun, the adviser sees additional benefits in club participation. Coordinator of Instructional Television Dr. Julie Corbett said the students are learning professional production skills.

While members of the club do not earn academic credit for participation, three students are considering applying for independent study next semester.

"Down South" is the second program the club has written and produced since it was formed in January. Each production has called for a director and an editor as well as several camera operators, sound technicians, interviewers and script writers.

An additional airing is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 24 on Channel 19.

way. It was much later that the churches began to celebrate the event.

Christmas first came to England at the end of the 16th century. After the Civil War in the 17th century, the Puritans tried very hard to do away with Christmas celebrations. They were not revived until early in the 19th century. One who did much to revive the spirit of Christmas was Charles Dickens. Prince Albert, husband of Queen Victoria, was also influential in reviving the Christmas holiday. He brought with him customs from his native Germany.

It is to him we owe the custom of setting up the Christmas tree and adorning it with lights and ornaments.

One of the oldest Christmas traditions is exchanging presents. That dates back to the Roman Saturnalia.

Christmas cards are a comparatively new custom. That custom came into being with the penny post in 1849.

Everyone knew of the 12 days of Christmas from Dec. 20 to Jan. 5. In England, these were days of celebration. We spend Christmas Eve hanging up Christmas stockings and setting out toys. Then, Christmas was celebrated with games and feasting.

It was on this night that the yule log was brought in. It had been saved from the year before and was rekindled to preserve the flame of life into the New Year. St. Nicholas, not Santa Claus, was the patron saint of children. In Europe he traveled on a donkey. It took the Americans to put him in an airborne sled drawn by reindeer.

Each century, each country, each generation, each family has its own tradition of celebrating Christmas. Each carries with it some of the old customs.

Even today Christmas customs are different in different countries. In some countries New Year's is as important as Christmas Day. In Scotland, Hogmanay (New Year) is a day of festivity.

In France, Noel is celebrated. Noel means the birthday of Christ and it is celebrated with deep religious devotion. But it is also a time for children. Children in France write letters to Pere Noel instead of Santa Claus. Like children all over the world, they hope they have been good enough to have their Christmas wishes granted.

As in France, Christmas in Italy is very much a religious holiday but it is not solely devoted to church-going. Presents are exchanged. Christmas Eve and Christmas Day are family affairs. New Years may be spent with any one, but Christmas is for family.

In Mexico, the pinata is part of the Christmas celebration. Children do not receive gifts on Dec. 25 — they have to wait until Jan. 6.

The time in between is spent in various celebrations. Christmas trees in Mexico come in many varieties.

There are those who say that in America we have over-commercialized Christmas. As we read the history of other countries and how Christmas is celebrated, we wonder what future generations will say about our priorities and what customs they will change.

We hope they note that while we put great emphasis on gift-giving, we also held close to our hearts the enduring and never-changing spirit of the day — love, family, peace and glory to God.

And so, Merry Christmas to all and God bless you, everyone.

2 injured when car hits tree

Two Grosse Pointe South students escaped serious injury Wednesday, Dec. 17, when the car they were in left the roadway while southbound on Hall Place and struck two trees.

Andrea M. Gill, 17, of the City, was driving a 1978 Firebird, when she said the car began to hydroplane and went into a spin.

The vehicle careened into a small tree near the east side of the road and spun again before slamming to a stop against a larger tree.

A fuel leak developed and the Farms Fire Department was called to the scene to hose down the area.

Gill and one of the passengers, Janice L. Brankovic, 18, were taken by Farms ambulance to Cottage Hospital where they were treated and released.

Gill was cited for failure to obey the basic speed law.

Give blood with a buddy

A special Red Cross blood drive will be held at Cottage Hospital on Monday, Dec. 29. Blood is urgently needed this time of year, and Cottage Hospital wants to double its usual contribution.

Stop smoking clinic set

The Patient and Community Education Center of St. John Hospital will hold its annual stop smoking clinic Monday through Friday, Jan. 19 to 23, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the hospital, located at 2101 Moross Road.

Registration is necessary. Cost is $40. To register or for more information, call Camille Klimecki at 343-3870.

Find someone who has never given blood before and offer to be their "blood buddy." For your help in showing someone else how easy and painless it is to give a gift of life, you and your blood buddy each will receive a fragrant heart gift. Those who haven't given before and come alone also will receive a heart — but it's better with a buddy.

This offer is extended to the first 150 employees, friends and neighbors of Cottage Hospital who donate blood. Call 884-8600, extension 2450, for details.

Break-ins in Park

Someone entered houses on Wayburn and Maryland last week, taking electronic equipment and jewelry, according to Grosse Pointe Park police.

During the day on Dec. 5, someone broke the glass in a rear basement window of a house on Maryland, then reached through to unlock the window. Police report a search of the first floor, with loss of an AM/FM cassette radio, tapes and a telephone.

Later in the same day, someone pried open the rear basement window of a house on Wayburn and crawled through. The thief conducted what police called "a neat search" of the first floors and took jewelry, a color television, a stereo and headphones.

That week, someone took snowblowers from garages on Barrington, Yorkshire and Harcourt. Police later recovered one of the machines.

Thief grabs clothes

A thief with two accomplices stole more than $1,000 worth of merchandise from the Willow Tree on Kercheval in the Village, according to Grosse Pointe police.

One man entered the store while two others waited outside in a large green older-model car. The man went to the rear of the store, where he looked at clothing and complained to the store manager that he couldn't get the hangers off the rack. When the manager went to assist him, he grabbed an armload of resort wear and ran out the back door, according to the report.

The suspect was described as a tall, thin black man with a full beard. He was wearing a dark wool cap and a blue quilted car coat.

'Then there was the year ...' Grosse Pointe's 'good sports' recall their favorite Christmases past

By Peggy O'Connor

Ask some of Grosse Pointe's "sporty" types to tell you their favorite Christmas gift or their most memorable Christmas and you might be surprised at the answers you get. Like the one from Bob Wood, University Liggett tennis coach and boys' athletic director.

"I guess it would have to have been when I was 17. We came downstairs on Christmas morning and my two sisters were opening gifts, but there weren't any for me. At the very end, my father handed me this ball of string from under the tree and told me to follow the string. Well, it went around the furniture and upstairs, all through the house and out into the garage.

"At the end of the string was this little Ford compact car tied with a big red bow. I guess you could say that was pretty memorable," Wood says.

South High coach Tim Zimmerman jokes that details of his favorite Christmas gift probably shouldn't be published in a newspaper. "No, really my favorite gift has to be the year I was 14. I got my first pair of goalie skates. And I had really wanted goalie skates." The skates took Zimmerman through his goaltending years; he, of course, has gone on to greater glory as the Blue Devils' hockey coach (and Metro League Coach of the Year for 1985-86).

It took Neighborhood Club Executive Director John Bruce approximately 24 hours to collect his thoughts on his favorite Christmas gift. His first choice was of a pogo stick he received long ago. Then he thought about it.

"The gift I really remember was the one my wife Maureen gave me our first Christmas together. I was teaching in a parochial school and not making much. We didn't have two dimes to rub together, so Maureen made all of the ornaments for our tree. She also spent hundreds of hours stripping this antique oak desk for me. It had belonged to her grandmother and she just worked so hard stripping it to give to me," Bruce recalls.

"Obviously, it wasn't the money spent that made the gift special. And when I think of all the gifts I've gotten, none are as special as that desk because it represents all the wonderful things that have happened in my life and how fortunate I was to have married a wonderful woman like Maureen.

"Even though I did have fun with that pogo stick."

Andrea Reeder, secretary to North High Athletic Administrator Tom Gaukerke, has been involved in sports for most of her life. She's been president of Little League, coached soccer, operated concession stands, scheduled games and officials and given rides to games to young athletes. So it isn't surprising that her favorite Christmas gift has a sports theme.

"I remember the year my sons were playing football. It was David's last year at South High and Gary's first year in Red Barons. They gave me the Norman Rockwell figurine called "Tackle" and it was special to me because they played lineman and tackle.

"And then I got a plate called "Football Brothers." It's got a sadfaced older player standing with his arm around a happy-looking younger player. I treasure those two gifts because they came from my sons, and the gifts reminded me so much of Gary and David," Reeder says.

University Liggett junior Gordie Maitland, an accomplished hockey player and cross country runner, recalls the year that his grandparents, Gordon and Freda Maitland of Grosse Pointe, gave his whole family a holiday to remember.

"It was eight years ago," Maitland, 16, says. "My grandparents gave us all a trip to Arizona during spring break. With my brother and sister away at college, the trip gave us all a chance to be together and that was really great."

Being together for the holidays is also high on South baseball coach Dan Griesbaum's list. Especially when it means watching son Danny, 6, and Kari, 3, open their gifts.

"I remember the Christmas when I was a senior in college because I was really feeling good and looking forward to the baseball season," Griesbaum says. "But the really special Christmases have been the ones after our kids were born. We had one born in September and one in October, and I think that since kids make Christmas so special, it was really neat to celebrate the holiday right after they were born," Griesbaum says.

Perhaps none of the Christmases celebrated by Our Lady Star of the Sea school teacher and coach Margaret Spindler have been as important as this one. Spindler, her parents, Art and Dorothy Spindler and their 21 grandchildren planned to gather at Margaret's sister's home on Christmas Eve.

"My mom suffered a stroke in April and although she's been improving, she had some problems at Thanksgiving. And I guess that even though Christmas is always special, this one is more so because back in April, we weren't sure my mom would be with us this year," Spindler says.

"The fact that she is and that my folks are able to enjoy this holiday is really the best gift of all."

... but how do you wrap it?

It's beginning to look a lot like you-know-what. And because it is Christmas and since Christmas is my favorite holiday (next to Abner Doubleday's birthday, what you don't get the day off? I've come up with a small gift of appreciation for my faithful reader.

Rather than writing this week about North vs. South or youth sports or winning streaks, or correcting mistakes from earlier issues, or even printing my Christmas wish list to Santa, I've decided to have a little fun and wrap up a little token of my esteem for all those who have read my undying prose this year and called, wrote or just refrained from tossing eggs at my car.

Here it is ... and Merry Christmas.

Three things I find difficult to believe:

1. That Doug Flutie $17 million, Mitch Kupchak who? $11 million, Hulk Hogan $5 million, Floyd Bannister $800,000 and World B. Free $875,000 make more money per year than Wayne Gretzky $625,000 U.S. dollars. All Gretzky did was win his seventh straight NHL Most Valuable Player award, and even as we speak, he leads the league in scoring with 75 points in 32 games.

Hey, Wayne, I guess the real backs are in acting like an idiot and tossing people on their heads - which would be pro wrestling or pro basketball, take your pick.

2. That Ronald Reagan, George Bush, Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, George Schultz - the Secretary of State, not the cartoonist, Donald Regan, Casper Weinberger, Edwin Meese and Sen. Robert Dole made less money - put together - than former N.Y. Met outfielder George Foster, who was released after batting .227 and taking home his $2 million per year paycheck anyway.

So that's what's wrong with the country.

3. And that they don't put marshmallows in packages of diet hot cocoa mix.

Three pleasant surprises:

1) Receiving nice cards and letters all year from Grosse Pointe athletes and coaches, and just plain folk.

2) Watching the North High girls' basketball team win more, play better and complete the most exciting season in North girls' basketball history.

3) Discovering that the competition - Detroit Free Press sportswriter whiz Terry Foster is really a quiet, shy kind of guy with a pretty good sense of humor.

(Hey Terry, when do I get mentioned in your column?)

One thing sportswriters do when they want to have fun:

Um, I can't write that in a family newspaper.

One thing sportswriters do when they want to have fun and write about it:

They make up nicknames. And when they do they get plenty of help from their friends.

Recently, I begged for a complete list of South High hockey team nicknames. Well, I'm pleased to say I got some response, thanks to "Ev-Dog's" mom (who is more commonly known as "Mrs. Ev-Dog," no doubt).

Big night Senior center Andrew Roy had a very big night last week for South, scoring four goals and setting up two others. See story on Page 18A.

Exercise facts and fallacies

Merry Christmas!

Is your belly shaking like a bowl full of jelly? It's almost time to begin thinking about New Year's resolutions and increasing physical activity might be a good one. But before you make any firm resolutions, it might be a good idea to read these facts and fallacies about exercise so you can set priorities intelligently. (The following is supplied by the University of Michigan Research Center).

False: To increase fitness, one must go for the burn.

True: Pain is an indicator of overstimulation. Working until you feel a "burn" makes you more susceptible to injury and soreness.

False: Lack of exercise will convert muscle to fat.

True: Muscle does not "turn" to fat; they are completely different tissues. Muscle may atrophy (shrink) with disuse and fat may take its place, but overall girl will probably remain the same.

False: Exercise increases appetite.

True: At a certain level of caloric intake, appetite seems to follow activity levels. Thus, the more you exercise, the greater your appetite, if you normally eat a lot of calories per day (around 2800 or more). However, if you exercise intensely immediately before you eat, appetite may be decreased. This is because of increased body temperature and hormone levels.

False: Never drink liquids during exercise.

True: As you sweat during exercise, you lose valuable fluids. You must replace them with water. One-half cup every 10-15 minutes during exercise helps replenish the fluids you lose.

False: It is more important to stretch before aerobic exercise than after.

True: The stretches performed before aerobic exercise are protective; often, a low-intensity, 5 to 10 minute aerobic warm-up that incorporates all of the major muscle groups is adequate to protect against injury. However, it is vitally important to stretch out after a workout, to promote flexibility and maintain full range of motion around the joints.

False: Women who lift weights will develop big, bulky muscles.

True: Women will not increase bulk to the same extent as men since they have lower levels of testosterone, a hormone that allows a muscle to hypertrophy. A woman who has very low body fat content, or who has a high proportion of fast twitch muscle fibers, will experience a greater increase in bulk.

False: Toning exercises will get rid of flabby arms, waist and thighs.

True: "Tone" is a state of partial contraction. We all have tone. To increase muscle tone will increase that state of contraction. Along with it, you may increase muscular endurance and/or definition. However, surrounding fat may disguise that definition.

False: You may rid yourself of fat deposits in specific areas of the body with spot reducing exercise (sit-ups, leg lifts, push-ups, etc.)

True: Numerous studies indicate that "spot reducing" is impossible. Aerobic exercise is necessary in order to use fat directly. And you can't selectively use fat from one area of the body or another.

False: Weight lifting and toning exercises burn fat.

True: Once again, only aerobic exercise "burns" fat directly.

False: Increasing sweating, by using rubber or plastic suits, will increase weight loss.

True: By increasing the amount that you sweat, you will lose weight in the form of water-weight that will return once that fluid is replaced. Furthermore, dehydration may result and can be extremely dangerous.

Health is wealth. We wish you the healthiest of all yeas in 1987.

Stay in shape to avoid winter injuries

By Peggy O'Connor

Common sense and a regular fitness program are keys to making sure that the upcoming winter sports season is a safe one, according to physical medicine experts at two local hospitals.

Although injuries cannot be completely prevented, the use of properly fitted equipment and clothing, and the correct physical conditioning may lessen the severity of injuries and prevent some others.

"Most of the injuries we see are those to the knee, shoulder and thumb... those are particular to skiing, but we see patients with similar injuries from hockey and sledding," said Tim Reilly, A.T.C., CHAMP (Cottage Hospital Athletic Medicine Program) trainer.

Winter sports injuries can occur in many ways, but commonly, the mishaps result from things like holding onto the ski pole and falling on the outstretched arm, which causes thumb injuries; dislocation or partial dislocation (subluxation) of a shoulder, which is caused by having one's arm jerked violently when falling after planting a ski pole; or direct falls.

Other injuries are caused by improperly-fitted equipment, or insufficient clothing against cold temperatures.

"Cross country skiing, for example, is a very good cardiovascular exercise. But if you are not in the habit of making sure that your heart is in good condition, it can put a strain on the heart muscle," said Dr. Frank Pollina, specialist in Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation at the St. Clair Health Corporation.

"The effects of cold weather compound that, too. The natural reaction of the body is to maintain the inner core temperature (usually 98.6). If you are out in the cold, the small blood vessels will constrict so that the blood flow to outer extremities lessens and is conserved for the inner body. After long periods of time when the vessels are constricted to the point where no warmth goes to the outer digits, that's when you see frost-bite occur," Pollina added.

Reilly and Pollina pointed out two interesting facts in relation to winter sports injuries.

According to Reilly, a study of ski resorts showed that the highest number of injuries were attributed to skiers who didn't own, but rented their equipment. "If you own your equipment, you are more likely to take the time and get properly fitted. And yes, usually if you own ski equipment, often you are more proficient at the sport and less likely to be injured," Reilly said.

"If you were to go into a physician's waiting room, you'd see that around 80 percent of the injuries (of this type) are occurring after 2 or 3 p.m. It seems that these injuries are more likely to occur in the second half of the outing or latter part of the day," Pollina added.

The best way to avoid injury, according to Pollina and Reilly, is to make sure you are in shape for the sport you pursue.

"It's most important that you maintain the components of fitness: flexibility, endurance and strength," Pollina explained. "Those who maintain fitness are able to switch from regular exercise to these demanding winter sports and have less chance of injury. Most of the injured people we see—other than the hot-shots who are going to live dangerously no matter what we do—are people who aren't in shape and go out and ski for eight hours when they haven't done 20 minutes of exercise in a year."

"Then they wonder why they got hurt," Pollina added.

Reilly cautioned winter sports enthusiasts not to make the mistake of attempting to get into shape by doing the sport. "Light jogging, cycling or a regular exercise program are best so that when you do get out there, your body doesn't react adversely to the sudden increase in activity."

Then there's just plain common sense. Dress warmly, preferably in light, layered clothing or even better, garments made from the new Thinsulate-type material. Dress for the weather conditions and wear well-fitting clothing and boots. Most importantly, the experts say, listen to your body.

"When the weather gets bad or you feel fatigued, call it a day. And when you are out having fun, remember to take frequent rests. Your body knows when its time to quit," Pollina said.

Common sense is the best way to avoid winter sports injuries.

A Season of Hope

So you have ho, ho, ho-ed or humbugged your way to yet another Christmas season. "Next year, I promise myself, I will not let the Christmas season sneak up on me as I have in the past. I will shop early, I will give more time to my family, I will avoid bingeing on all those heavy foods that made me feel like a whale, I will Fill in the blank; many answers are the right ones, and for many of us they will be very familiar.

One of the greatest gifts that celebrating this season brings to all of us is the gift of hope. As Little Orphan Annie sang, "The sun will come out tomorrow, bet your bottom dollar..." That's hope, pure and simple. But how do we transfer that hope and optimism into a reality? Many of us continue to make New Year's resolutions, even putting them to pen and paper, but then are unable to find the paper they were written on, or the motivation to apply them to our daily lives, they fall apart like leftover cookies.

Goal setting — Where to start?

One of the best pieces of advice I was ever given came from a dear and wise old friend of mine from North Carolina. During a difficult time I was experiencing, she advised me to "Start out like you can hold out." This literally meant that I was to make my decision by viewing the situation from the point of being able to carry on with this decision for a long time. Could I "hold out" for the duration, or would I have bitten off more than I could chew, and then end up disappointing myself and others affected by my decision?

Rule No. 1 of goal setting: keep it simple and within reach. Do you wish to lose weight, change career directions, get more exercise, buy a new house, improve family relations? The list goes on and on. But no matter what you wish for yourself and others, there are some basic guidelines that you can apply to any or all of them.

The prayer of St. Francis is a good beginning. Say every day: "Lord, grant me the courage to change that which I can change, grant me the patience to endure that which I cannot change, and grant me the wisdom to know the difference."

Reaching goals is like taking a trip. If we decided to drive from here to Florida, we know without question that we must plan the trip in increments. There is no way we will make it to Florida in two hours. It's the same for goal-setting. Establish an overall goal for yourself then break that goal down into reasonable

"short-term" goals. You will be able to monitor your progress just as if you were taking a long car trip. Each part, or short-term goal, will bring you one step further to reaching the end result.

Actions begin as thoughts and then become habits. It takes a minimum of 21 to 30 days to begin to establish a new habit. Your behavior requires repetition to become habit. Be patient with yourself. Everything we do becomes habit-forming if it is repeated often enough! Remember this routine in establishing goals:

- 1) Desire: I want _____ to change my life.
- 2) Information: Find out as much background information as you can that relates to your goal.
- 3) Assimilation: Put into practice whatever you have chosen for yourself. Experience it as if you are putting on a new set of clothes.
- 4) Evaluation: Is what I have chosen to pursue "right" for me? If your decision is the right one for you, you will know. It will begin to feel like a comfortable pair of shoes, a decision you feel comfortable in following.

Repetition: the more your newfound skills are applied to your daily routine, the more successful you will become. Day one is the hardest. Take one day at a time, make a promise to yourself one day at a time and then they will add up to weeks and months towards a new you!

(Next week: Part two: A Season of Hope — New Year's resolutions)

Style four and fourth in the compulsory division.

The skaters represented St. Clair Shores and learned to skate in the Shores School of Skating group lessons. For more information call the Civic Arena at 779-4300.

Century-21 East wins again

Century 21-East was forced to face Computer Horizons in an over 30 league hockey game last week without its No. 1 goalie. But coach Ian Gilroy—who hadn't started in goal for 10 years—stepped into the nets and helped the Grosse Pointe squad to take a 6-3 victory.

The team combined fine defensive play and Gilroy's clutch goaltending to take the victory. Goal scorers were Chris Walsh (back from a one-month injury layoff), Tony Morici, Jerry Rajter, Howie Hoban, Sam Clogg and Mark Goettling.

The next week, Century 21-East stormed back from a 2-0 deficit to post a dramatic win over J & D. The victory closed the gap between Century 21-East and first-place J & D to two points.

Goal scorers in the Dec. 11 contest were Sammy Clogg (two) and Robin Gilroy.

Safety tips for tobogganing and sledding

With the arrival of winter's snow at the Metroparks and throughout southeastern Michigan, winter sports enthusiasts should follow these safety tips concerning the use of toboggans and sleds, according to Chief Park Ranger Donald Ruedisueli, of Stony Creek Metropark near Utica/Rochester.

- Know the area you are using. Check for hidden hazards. Snow may hide logs, stumps, stones or fences; check snow condition before taking your first ride. Frozen snow and ice can cut like broken glass; do not go down any hill when you cannot see the entire length of the ride; do not use areas or hills where there are bumps or drop-off areas; read and obey posted rules and signs.
- Use proper equipment. Wear warm clothing and footwear; protect your face and hands with ear muffs, gloves and a scarf; have a good toboggan pad securely attached to the toboggan at all times; check your toboggan for broken or cracked boards after each run.

Do not use broken equipment.

- Use equipment properly. A toboggan is very hard to steer, especially on hard-packed snow; do not overload toboggans or sleds; be sure to keep your arms and legs inside the toboggan or sled. Hold tightly to side ropes and hold the legs of the person behind you under your arms and do not let go.
- Use area safely. Do not use sleds and toboggans on the same runs. Sleds cut ruts and make it difficult to keep toboggans running smoothly. Toboggans pack snow and make it difficult to steer sleds; in heavy use areas, allow the group ahead of you sufficient time to get out of the way before starting downhill. Remember, you don't have any method of stopping once you start your ride downhill. Use marked returns. Do not walk up the hill where others are sledding. Get out of the way as soon as you stop. Be alert for other groups coming down the hill after you.

Knight varsity cagers survive scare, win fifth straight

The University Liggett School varsity basketball team survived an early first quarter scare at Troy Zion Christian last week to post a 63-44 victory. It was the Knights' fifth victory without a loss and was much closer than the final score indicated.

Zion raced in front 8-0 and 12-2 before the Knights finally got on track. Using a pressure man-to-man defense, ULS outscored Zion, 19-10, in the second quarter to take a 30-24 lead. After a tight third quarter, ULS used a balanced attack to pull away. Kandia Milton's 26 points paced the Knights, while John Yancey collected 21.

"Naturally we're happy with a victory, but we didn't have the offensive balance we wanted. Zion did a good job defensively on us and we didn't make the necessary adjustments," Coach Chuck Wright said.

Assistant Coach Domenic Facioli added, "Our team needs more experience and it needs to play harder. But all of us are enjoying the victories."

The Knights are off on holiday break and will host Southfield Christian on Jan. 6, at 7:30 p.m.

The ULS junior varsity basketball team is off to a good start this season. After a close loss to Harper Woods in the season opener, the JV defeated Bethesda, 54-33. ULS then fell to Greenhills, 70-29. But in the next two games, the Knights got motivated.

On Friday, Dec. 12, ULS beat Lutheran Northwest, 39-38. Steve Carpenter, the Knights' starting center, got a rebound of a free throw and put the ball in the hoop, giving the Knights a one-point lead with eight seconds left.

Coach John Wienshienk said that strong defensive effort by Wade Brown and Mike Barnes and strong rebounding by Carpenter, Mike Niccolini, and West German exchange student Michael Trapp led the Knights to victory.

Wienshienk's team traveled to Troy Zion Christian on Tuesday, Dec. 16. Playing aggressively, the Knights destroyed a week Zion team, 54-11.

Anthony Abiragi leads ULS in scoring, averaging over 13 points per game. Next is Niccolini with 8.8 ppg, followed by Brown and Arne Knudson. Other team members include Barnes, the squad's point guard, John Ellis, a big forward, Mehul Patel, Sean Byrne and John Gordon.

ULS next game is at home against Southfield Christian on Jan. 6, at 6 p.m.

Knights blast Richard

The ULS varsity hockey team handed the highly-rated Gabriel Richard Pioneers a stunning 4-1 defeat on Dec. 17, pushing the Knights' record to 5-4-1 at the Christmas break.

The Knights took charge immediately on a shorthanded goal by junior center Gordie Maitland at the four minute mark of the first period. Maitland's hustle enabled him to steal the puck from a Gabriel Richard defenseman, and on a breakaway he put one past the flopping Richard goalie. The second ULS goal came two minutes later when senior co-captain Pahl Zinn picked up a loose puck in the Knights' zone, skated it up the boards and fed freshman winger Jonathon Davis with an excellent goal-mouth pass.

The Knights added to their lead with a power play goal by Blasko Ristic on a shot from the point into the upper corner; Zinn assisted, Junior Bill Jewett finished the first period barrage at the 3:59 mark, picking up a pass in the slot and tucking it past the goalie on the short side. Jewett's linemates Charlie Roby and Maitland assisted the goal.

Most commendable was the play of the defense, especially goaltender Steve Stoyka, who allowed just one goal on 29 Gabriel Richard shots. "Defense is the key to winning most hockey games," defensive coach Joe Hubbuch said in analyzing the Knights' victory.

"The play of every defenseman tonight was super," Gabriel Richard scored its only goal on a power play in the second period.

"It was important for us to play a strong first period," said Coach John Fowler. "The players really made the puck do all the work here tonight."

Reflecting on the Knights' victory, senior Andrew Galsterer said "The victory over Gabriel Richard was worth everything."

After a game with ULS alumni, the Knights will resume play in January at Allen Park Cabrini and at McCann against Lakeview on Jan. 10. — By Pahl Zinn and Greg Petrilli

Pee Wee

ULS Pee Wee Knights played another tremendous hockey game on Monday, Dec. 2, against the talented and tall St. Clair Shores Bulldogs.

After a scoreless first period in which the Knights outshot the Bulldogs 4-1, the game heated up with end-to-end hockey in the second period, with both teams taking nine shots. Vince Val Bael opened the scoring with the first goal of his ULS career, firing the puck in after a scramble in front of the net. The goal was set up by the tremendous pressure applied by the gold line of John Maycock, Jamie Goodyear and Van Bael. Four minutes later, St. Clair Shores tied the score on a 2-on-1 situation.

John Morreale scored four goals to give ULS a 5-2 win. Gary Corona and Billy O'Keefe drew assists; Tom Best played well in goal. Matt Moroun and Brian Blatt picked up points.

The Knights then lost to the Spartans, 5-3, despite a Morreale hat trick.

(With the exception of Bourke; I'm still working on him).

So the next time you see them you may call them Jeff (I've Got) Lefebvre, David (Down By The) Rivard, Andy (I've Gotta Catch A) Busse, Kevin Nesler (Makes the Very Best) and Ken (Show Me the Way To) Gronholm. And tell 'em I sent you (unless they're mad, then make something up).

Everyone, having a very happy — and safe — holiday season.

Blue Devil icers at .500

South's varsity hockey team ran up a three-game unbeaten streak going into the Christmas break, winding up with a 3-3-2 record after the first eight games of the 1986-87 season.

After playing extremely well in a losing cause to Trenton, the Blue Devils reeled off two wins and a tie, topping Ann Arbor Huron, 4-2, tying Gabriel Richard, 5-5, and trouncing St. Clair Shores Lakeview, 12-2.

South used what Coach Tim Zimmerman called a "very good first period" to beat Lakeview on Dec. 17. "We had a score to settle with Lakeview. They got their only Metro League point last season off of us," Zimmerman said.

Lakeview opened the scoring, but South stormed back with six unanswered goals. Andy Busse and Andrew Roy had two goals each; Bill Huntington and Tim Jerome added the other goals in that period. John Nicholson, Roy, Huntington, Jerry Bourke, David Rivard and Jeff Lefebvre (two) had assists.

Lakeview scored the first goal of the second period, but Roy (two), Huntington (two), Patrick Clavet and David Rivard put the game away with goals in that stanza. Jerome, Roy, Busse, Huntington and Evan Frakes were credited with assists.

Zimmerman said that overall, he was pleased with the Blue Devils' work through the first third of the season. "We're trying to work on consistency. Hopefully, when we get people back from injuries, we'll be able to do that." Kevin Bourke, Jim Ryszewski and Roger Romine are suffering from minor injuries, but are expected to return after the Christmas break.

The Devils' next action is on the road Jan. 2 and 3, when they take on Midland Dow and Saginaw Arthur Hill. South hosts rival North High at St. Clair Shores Civic Arena on Saturday, Jan 10.

CHIEFS-HAWKS

The Sequoia Chiefs finished the first half of the season with a 7-0 win over the Hawks on Dec. 18. Chris Coates and Joey Berger scored two each for the Chiefs; Chris Ford, Matt Lariscy and Gordie Todd had one goal apiece. Jason Popham collected two assists and played strong A-line defense. Tibbits, Justin Lariscy, and Balesky played well for the Chiefs. Brian Kasiborski earned a shutout in the Chiefs' goal. Platt, Aronson and French played a good game for the Hawks.

LEAFS-COUGARS

The Century 21-East Maple Leafs defeated Crain's Cougars, 4-0, on Dec. 15. Browe Merriweather was flawless in goal for the Leafs, who got two goals from Geoff Kimmel. Center Ryan Allard and Tony Baratta scored goals; Baratta, Brad Murg and Tim Kimmel drew assists. For the Cougars, Brett France did an excellent job in goal, turning away 18 of 22 shots. Tom Stroble did an exceptional job on the C-line. Ryan Robson and Mike Weyhing played well for the Cougars.

FLAMES-RAIDERS

After a week long lay-off the Flames faced the St. Clair Shores Raiders in a Metro East League Contest, winning 6-4. After spotting the Raiders one goal, Frank Lucido scored two quick first period goals to put the Flames into the lead using assists from Renato Roxas, Derek Smith and two by Blake Crawford. After the Raiders tied the score, Gabe Benvenuto put the Flames ahead before the first period ended on a beautiful combination pass from Smith and Jim Oswala. Benvenuto started the second period by scoring the only goal of the period assisted by Oswala for a 4-2 lead. Lucido capped a great game in the third period with his third goal of the game, assisted by Roxas and Smith's third assist of the game. Roxas took Andy Bond and Crawford's third assist to ice the Flames' victory.

FLAMES-PIZZA 1

The St. Clair Shores Pizza 1 team invaded McCann Rink to take on the high flying Flames from Grosse Pointe and almost put out the Flames' fire. Benvenuto took passes from Dan Strader and Osiwala to put the Flames ahead in the first period, only to have Pizza 1 storm back with two goals within one minute by Larry Joseph and Eddie Schocker to give the St. Clair Shores team at 2-1 lead. Derek field combined with Dan Grundman to even the score for the Flames before the first period was over. From then on the Flames defense of Crawford, Nick Black, Field and Grundman coupled with the staunch goaltending of Jim Bunn, shut down any further Pizza 1 scoring attempts. After a scoreless second period, Osiwala took a pass and rebound from Benvenuto and Strader to bury the puck behind the Pizza 1 goaltender and give the Flames a 3-2 lead and the win.

Increased enforcement clogs local court . . .

Roger La Rose, 32-A District Court judge, pointed out the space and security problems and added that he could not function as a judge in the facilities provided for the municipal courtroom.

There are only six municipal courts left in the state of Michigan, one in each of the five Grosse Pointes and one in East Detroit.

In each of the Grosse Pointes, court is held in the city council chambers. However, in the Shores and in the Farms, the judge is seated at the same table as the defendants and attorneys.

Judge La Rose found it appalling that a judge would be seated so low. He added that the sight lines between where the judge is seated and other court officials and jurors is obstructed by defendants and attorneys.

La Rose said he would remain the visiting judge in the case he is handling for the Farms, but he is going to do something not done before by a judge in the Farms' municipal court.

"I'll hear the case," La Rose said, "but I'm going to hear it in my court room in the 32-A District Court. I am going to have the jurors and everyone involved in the case come over here to Harper Woods.

"It is very difficult to hold a jury trial in the Farms."

La Rose lambasted the Farms facilities and operations. In his letter, he said he spoke as a visiting judge, and not as president-elect of the Michigan Judges Association. He pointed out the lack of space for records, the cramped quarters for the court clerks and the lack of security of confidential records.

In a later conversation, La Rose added that there is no way for a handicapped person to attend court since the upper floor is not accessible by an elevator.

Upon learning that a defendant pays fines to the clerk inside the courtroom in the Farms, La Rose became upset.

"If they are taking fines in the courtroom, well, that's just outrageous," La Rose said. "Talk about out in the sticks. This is Grosse Pointe Farms! I mean the chief justice of the Michigan Supreme Court lives in Grosse Pointe Farms."

La Rose said he was appalled by the conditions of the court generally, but mostly by the working conditions of the court clerk.

"I just know how hard a time I had in creating the atmosphere of a courtroom in the council chambers there" he added.

City officials, as O'Rourke indicated, do acknowledge that there are problems with the amount of space the court has to work in and have been making efforts to alleviate them.

City Manager Andrew Bremer Jr. said the city recognizes there is a shortage of space for the court, and there has been a committee appointed to look into the municipal court problems.

Mayor Fromm appointed three attorneys, from the Farms Foundation — John Lizza, Paul Marco, and Charles Kinnaird — to study the problems and report to the council. The committee has not yet completed its study.

"The court is not the only office in the building that is short of space," Bremer said. "You can look at the police department, accounting, and other offices and see there is a shortage of space."

Bremer said that there is an effort now to make not only more room for the court, but also for the other city offices with an addition to the city building.

"You have to make do with what you have," Bremer said. "We never had a complaint before from Pytell or any other visiting judge."

"Let's face it. The court has grown in the last five or six years, and we have been limited to the space we have."

Bremer said that though there has been a significant increase in the number of civil traffic violations, there has been a decrease in the number of misdemeanor offenses. He said the decrease in misdemeanors doesn't make up for the increase in traffic violations, but still doesn't fully explain the nine-month backlog of cases.

He said that O'Rourke's courtroom hours usually end around noon or 1 p.m., and that Judge Pytell generally held court into the afternoon hours.

Bremer said that the new room for the court clerk office should help alleviate the filing problems.

O'Rourke disagrees. He said there are state laws he can invoke which allow him to request a visiting judge to ease the backlog of cases. He said he hopes to work closely with the city and to make court operations smoother.

He said that Mayor Fromm has been taking steps to help ease the problems, and he sees that as a good sign.

"Mayor Fromm has become aware of the problems, and I believe he will do what he can to remedy the situation."

"So once we have the space and staff to handle the additional volume we can start to whittle away at the case load," O'Rourke said.

As municipal judge, O'Rourke is paid $7,000 a year, plus he is eligible for medical coverage. As an attorney in private practice, why take on a job that seemingly has so many headaches?

"The problems of this court have been in existence for a number of years," he said. "The facilities are poor, limited personnel, lack of space, no security for the files. We lack the ability to operate effectively because of inadequate funding."

"The main reason I ran for the position is because of my 10 years as prosecutor in the Farms. I became aware of the problems, and I am determined to make every reasonable effort to solve these problems."

Additional money must be spent on the court, O'Rourke added, to alleviate the problem.

"I think the city fathers of the various Grosse Pointes feel there are some advantages in retaining the municipal courts, such as the belief that it provides more personal contact with each community's citizens."

"However, unless they are willing to provide adequate funding to these municipal courts," he said, "they are performing a continuous disservice to their judicial system and the taxpayers."

The Pastor's Corner

The Christmas light

The Rev. Robert Rimbo
St. James Lutheran Church

Already last September I knew about this piece to be written for the Christmas edition. And since the invitation-assignment I have thought about it much. My first thoughts came again to the surface tonight at supper.

"I just have to get that article written for Elsa," I said to Lois.

"Yeah. You've only known about it for two months," was her less-than-comforting reply.

"The problem is I want to be creative, clear, clever, cute."

"Why?" she asked.

The message is ever the same, yet ever new. The story is retold in every generation, in every year. The celebration of the birth of Jesus the Christ comes around again, and for some reason I feel compelled to be creative, clever, cute.

It's a trap I often fall into. But, thanks to my wife, not this time.

One wouldn't guess it from the way we celebrate Christmas, but in the long sweep of Christian history the doctors and teachers of the church have again and again reminded us that his feast is not primarily a celebration of Christ as it is a celebration of the great love of God the Father revealed in Jesus the Son. That love is revealed in other ways, too. But chiefly, most fully, in Jesus.

The days are brief this time of year, the nights seem endless. The cold and damp are already becoming uncomfortable and we haven't even had a good snow. The winter has set in. We wince. At such a time the cycle of seasons pays homage to the birth of Christ. For soon our world, our universe, will once again begin — at least for us — to turn toward the sun. Soon the days will lengthen, the nights shorten. Soon the warmth of the sun will again be felt.

It is no accident that we now celebrate the birth of Christ as we celebrate the increasing presence of light. These two themes are wonderfully interwoven at Christmas.

The theme of our celebration is not the infancy or childhood of Jesus. It is rather the presence of the man Jesus as the presence of the Light of the World. Just as with the world's solstice, light is celebrated where light seems most threatened. Just as the pagan festivity at the solstice meant to encourage the return of the light, so the church's worship at solstice prays for The Light and celebrates his presence.

I suspect that the immense popularity of Christmas in our culture is probably due to a subconscious attachment to those ancient people who celebrated the solstice as an impressive and powerful event. For it still is. Most of our Christmas celebration can be interpreted as such: feasting and greetings and greens and the tree with lights and the candles burning against the darkness and the yule-log and our nostalgia for old memories and gift-giving and consumer over-spending. All are attempts to secure the return of light and summertime and wholeness. All of this could very well be a mid-winter protest against the darkness.

In the darkness of our fears this feast awakens hope.

It's time we do away with our campaigns against the world's Christmas and instead ask "Why do we keep it with such vigor?"

Look at your Christmas, friend. The "chestnuts roasting on the open fire," the dazzling trees, the ever-increasing light of the Advent wreath in home and church, the sparkle of a thousand little bulbs in trees, the houses welcoming porchlight, the bright shop windows, the "moon on the breast of the new-fallen snow," the glitter in the eyes of children. All point, whether consciously or not, willingly or not, to the fact that what we celebrate at this holy time of year is the living presence of the Light of the World. The living presence of he whom Luther called "God with a human face." The living presence of Jesus Christ.

Such a deep insight is expressed most beautifully by the poet, T.S. Eliot:

"... We thank Thee for the lights that we have kindled,
The light of altar and of sanctuary;
Small lights of those who meditate at midnight

And lights directed through the coloured panes of windows

And light reflected from the polished stone,
The gilded carven wood, the coloured fresco.

Our gaze is submarine, our eyes look upward

And see the light that fractures through unquiet water.

We see the light but see not whence it comes.

O Light Invisible, we glorify Thee!"

T.S. Eliot, "The Rock"

St. Augustine's invitation again, now, is extended: "Let us celebrate this day not because of the visible sun, but because of God who made this day."

This column is written on a rotating basis by members of the Grosse Pointe Memorial Association. The Rev. Rimbo is president of that association.

Smith graduates consider advantages of education at a women's college

By Elsa Frohman

In the '60s and '70s, feminists concentrated on breaking down barriers. The famous, male, Ivy League schools were infiltrated and fell to the coeds. Even the military academies admitted women cadets, and for a while, it looked as if the '80s would be the age of the unisex school.

Not quite. The Seven Sisters, Barnard, Radcliffe, Vassar, Mount Holyoke, Wellesley, Smith and Bryn Mawr, the prestigious eastern women's colleges, are no longer all women only. But in the "post-feminist" era, four of those schools, Mount Holyoke, Wellesley, Smith and Bryn Mawr have maintained their identities as women's colleges. A vestige of a discriminatory past? No, not at all, say members of the Detroit Smith Alumnae, an active organization with a strong representation of Grosse Pointers.

"Women's colleges are on the rebound," said Anne Roberts, treasurer of the Smith graduating class of 1960. Roberts was joined by Ann Williams, treasurer of the class of 1953; Nancy Nicholson, president of the class of 1960; and Audrey Platt, member of the class of 1955. All are Grosse Pointers today — two left to go to college from the Pointes. (A third is originally from Grosse Ile. One is from the East.)

"They're all alive, well and viable," Roberts said.

"But the competition for admissions is tough, today," Nicholson said. "Nowadays, if the mother went to Smith and the father went to Princeton, the daughter wants to go to Princeton. All the schools are getting more sophisticated in their marketing. Back in the '30s, the applications just came in. Now it's more competitive."

But why a women's school?

"What you're really buying is the seriousness of the curriculum," Nicholson said.

"It's the quality of the minds," said Platt. "Smith offers something that Yale, Princeton and Harvard do not."

One of Platt's classmates was Sylvia Plath, the poet. A year behind her in school was Gloria Steinem.

Gloria Steinem's presence on campus aside, the environment on the '50s campus of Smith College had not achieved feminism.

"Adlai Stevenson spoke at our commencement," Platt said. "He told us that we had been given the best possible education, so go out and support our husbands, as only you can. We thought we were the most liberal people in the world, and here the message was, go out and support your husband (morally, not financially)."

Today's women high school seniors and college freshmen have more specific career goals. But perhaps some are still looking for the "MRS" degree.

Temechulan Society plans fundraiser

The Temechulan Society, a youth oriented charitable organization will hold its fifth annual Christmas Gala Fund Raising party on Dec. 27, at the Detroit Athletic Club. All proceeds will go to the Leader Dogs for the Blind.

The Temechulan Society is an organization designed as a vehicle whereby young people with the means and desire to give their time and money to charity are able to organize and implement philanthropic activities. The group is governed by the executive board of Demies International, whose members include David W. Anderson of San Francisco, Calif.; Christopher J. Scott of Grosse Pointe Shores; John M. Conway of Grosse Pointe; Mark D. Simon of Palm Desert, Calif.; Robert P. Scierer of Los Angeles, Calif.; Earl D. Black III of Grosse Pointe Woods; David R. Townsend of Royal Oak; and Richard D. Holub of Newport Beach, Calif.

The group was founded in 1982 by a relatively small group of Pointe youths as a tool by which they could channel their resources to benefit those less fortunate than themselves. From these meager beginnings the group has grown into a full-fledged non-profit organization with a membership of more than 200. Since its inception, the Temechulan Society has raised more than $3,000 for such groups as Catholic Relief for Poland.

This year's Christmas Gala promises to be the best yet. The party will take place at the prestigious Detroit Athletic Club, and will feature the Motown Sounds of Jeannie & The Dreams. Committee chairpersons include several members of Demies International along with Pointers Clifford A. Godin, Randall Book, and Elizabeth Glendening.

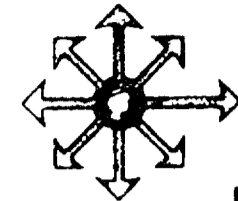

Anyone wishing to know more about the Temechulan Society, or about the Christmas Gala can contact Randall Book of Saturn Investments at 882-0800.

Smith alumnae consider women's education . . .

"But Mr. Wonderful may not be at Northwestern," Nicholson said.

Graduates of the prestigious women's colleges have distinguished themselves in many fields. Roberts was surprised to find what her college friends had been doing when she attended her 20th college reunion.

"A friend encouraged me to go," Roberts said. "You know, college is a little bit of a myth. But there is something that happens that is very positive. I was very impressed by my colleagues."

"Among women in medical schools, women from women's schools have been shown to perform better," Platt said.

All four alumnae agreed that women from women's colleges develop more self-confidence for dealing with men later in their careers.

"At a women's college, all the student government is women," Nicholson said. "Participation goes deeper. The top students will always be there, but for the average student, the experience helps. They didn't cut you down. They helped you get back up. In a coed classroom, the males tend to dominate discussion."

"To my way of thinking, it prepares you better," Platt said. "It's not quite so distracting. It's not a social atmosphere."

But that is not to say Smith students have no social life. Roberts explained that rather than dormitories, Smith uses a system of houses, each having residents from all the classes.

"It had social ramifications," Roberts said. "The older girls would fix you up with dates."

During the week, the women concentrated on classes, the alumnae said. There were no men on campus to dress up and show off for.

"On the weekend, you might wonder where all these beauties that were going off came from," Platt said.

According to the alumnae, Smith is not looking for the elitist student — more for the talented student. "When they look at the applications," Roberts said, "they don't even look at whether they can afford it. They can put together a financial package for anyone. Sixty-five percent of the students have some sort of financial aid. The student body is very homogenized, very multi-national."

Reasons for attending Smith College varied among the group.

"My brother went to Dartmouth," Williams said. "He said he wanted his sister to go to Smith."

Nicholson said she knew she wanted to go to a women's college when she was in the eighth grade.

"My parents talked me into going to Smith," Roberts said. "But they were so right."

Ring in the New Year with a festive meal

The following recipes come from the low-calorie, low-cholesterol, budgetwise kitchens of Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth.

Menu:

- Braised Pork Loin
- Brown Rice
- Spiced Prune and Apricot Compote
- Cranberry and Apple Salad
- Red Cabbage
- Savory Parsnips
- Easy Pumpkin Bread
- Chocolate Angel Food Cake
- Rum Raisin Ice Cream

Braised Gingered Pork Loin

1 tsp. ginger
2 1/2 pounds very lean, boned and rolled pork loin
1 Tbsp. margarine
1 clove, garlic
1 cup chicken broth or bouillon
1/4 cup dry sherry
1 Tbsp. soy sauce
4 green onions with tops, thinly sliced
1 tsp. cornstarch
2 Tbsp. cold water
Rub ginger over meat. In Dutch oven, brown on all sides with garlic in hot margarine over medium heat. Remove meat and set aside. Discard garlic and excess fat. Add broth, sherry and soy sauce to pan and bring to a boil, stirring to loosen browned bits. Add onions and meat. Insert meat thermometer in meat.
Cover and braise in 350-degree oven or over low heat until thermometer registers 170 degrees, about 1 1/2 hours. Remove meat to carving board and let rest. Meanwhile remove all possible fat from pan juices.
Slowly stir into pan juices the cornstarch which has been dissolved in the water and cook and stir until thickened. Strain if desired. Cut meat in thin slices and serve with brown or white rice. Spoon on gravy. Makes six servings.

Calories about 235 per serving. Cholesterol about 70 mgs.

Spiced Prune and Apricot Compote

1 1/2 cups water

1/2 cup dried apricots
1/4 cup vinegar
3 Tbsp. sugar
2 cinnamon sticks
1 tsp. whole cloves
Tie cinnamon and cloves in a cheesecloth bag. In medium saucepan, stir all ingredients to blend. Over medium heat, bring to a boil, then reduce heat. Cover and simmer three minutes. Chill covered at least 24 hours. Discard spice bag. Makes two cups.

Cranberry Apple Salad

2 can (16 ounces each) whole berry cranberry jelly (10-calorie)
1 cup boiling water
2 pkg. (3 ounces) strawberry gelatin
1 cup cranberry juice (10-calorie)
2 Tbsp. lemon juice
1/4 tsp. salt
1 cup salad dressing
2 cups diced apple
1/2 cup coarsely chopped English walnuts
Melt cranberry sauce over medium heat. Drain, reserving liquid and berries. Mix together cranberry liquid, boiling water and gelatin; add one cup cranberry juice that has been brought to a boil. Stir until gelatin is completely dissolved. Add lemon juice and salt.
Chill until mixture mounds slightly on a spoon. Add salad dressing and beat until smooth.

Fold in cranberries, apples and nuts. Pour into two-quart mold. Chill overnight. Makes 12 servings.

Savory Parsnips

6 parsnips (or 1 pound)

Paprika
Water
Peel parsnips with potato peeler and cut into slices. Place in casserole. Dot with margarine and sprinkle very liberally with paprika. Add about 1/4 to 1/3 cup of water. Cover casserole and bake for about 45 minutes, or until parsnips are tender in preheated 350-degree oven. Makes six servings.

Easy Pumpkin Bread

3 1/2 cups flour
2 cups sugar
2 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. nutmeg
1/2 tsp. salt
2 cups pumpkin
4 eggs
1 cup cooking oil
2/3 cup water
1 tsp. vanilla
3/4 cup chopped nuts
Mix all dry ingredients in large mixing bowl. Take out 1/4 cup of this mixture and pour over the nuts and set aside. Make a well in remaining dry ingredients and add the floured nuts and stir. Pour into two greased 9x5x3-inch loaf pans. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven for 1 hour and 15 minutes or until done. Serve hot or cold, plain or with a spread. Makes 36 slices.

Chocolate Angel Food Cake

1 box angel cake mix
1/4 cup plain cocoa
2 egg whites, stiffly beaten
There is a big secret to making a really gorgeous and extra fine angel food cake from an ordinary box mixture. Try Elegant Eating's recipe and your family and friends will think you made it from scratch according to great-aunt Emma's famous recipe.
Open the packet containing the flour and sugar mixture, add cocoa and sift on a sheet of wax paper at least three to six times. The more the flour is aerated the better, higher and finer grained your cake. Beat the egg whites until stiff but not dry.

Proceed with cake according to package directions until thoroughly mixed; then carefully fold in the beaten egg white. Bake according to package directions. Test cake at scheduled time. It may take about 5 to 10 minutes longer for your beauty to be done. Your cake should be an inch or more higher than the pan and very fine textured, devoid of coarse air holes. Makes 16 pieces.
Calories per piece about 101. Cholesterol 0.

On extremely hot days, the Cape ground squirrel of southern Africa raises its bushy tail and turns its back to the sun, creating a patch of shade, says National Geographic World.

JANE & BILL DANT
want to take this Holiday Season opportunity to wish all of the customers and friends a very Happy, Healthy, and Successful Holiday Season.

As you may know, the Kerry Kennel is under new ownership. We don't expect any interruption in the service to Grosse Pointe and trust that the transition will be an uneventful one.

Our cousin Nancy and her husband are starting a family and can no longer give the countless hours required to run a boarding kennel. We have always enjoyed our relationship and appreciated the opportunity to take care of your pets in your absence.

Sincerely,
Jane & Bill Dant

If you have recyclable items, no longer of use to you, Operation LINC knows who can and will use them. Please call LINC at 882-6100 with your donation. KEEP IT MOVING!
