Arkie Doodle Dandy

If you enjoy a good joke as much as the next guy, tune into HBO this month, and, with any luck at all you might see one.

Arkie Hudkins, Grosse Pointe News editorial cartoonist, attended the Humor and the Presidency symposium held in Grand Rapids this past summer. Highlights of the symposium will be shown in a made-for-television show to be featured on the pay cable channel.

"When I saw that they were filming," Hudkins said, "I went back to my hotel room and put on my red, white and blue sport coat."

He said he was sitting two rows from the front in the center of the auditorium.

President Gerald Ford, Chevy Chase, Pat Paulsen and numerous cartoonists and comedians were on hand for the convocation, which poked fun at the office of the presidency and its buck-stopping bosses over the years.

The first show will be Saturday, Jan. 10 at 10 p.m. See your listings for other dates and times.

Gone: Blue

Some scoundrel heartlessly stole a City man's U of M flag from its proud post by the front door last week. What puzzles us is that it was taken Jan. 2. Even the most hardened criminal should know the banner was worth a lot more the day before the Rose Bowl.

Joey Johnston update

When we wrote about Joey Johnston in 1985, she had declined her appointment to West Point because she had injured her knee in a soccer match and would have been unable to withstand the physical training. At the time, the disappointed and determined young woman said she would attend the University of Michigan for a year while her knee healed. She then hoped to get to West Point the following year.

And Johnston, true to her word, spent a year at U of M and this past summer entered West Point. She said the first year as a plebe is "definitely the roughest, but it trains you and disciplines you so well that now when they yell at us, it doesn't do anything. It's hard, but I like it a lot."

Johnston, who said her knee is "100 percent recovered," was home for Christmas "relaxing, going to Greentown and the movies. It seems like everything is a real treat, even picking out my own clothes."

The 1985 South High grad is back at West Point. She'll be home again in May for 20 days and then it's out to the field for training, including learning how to drive a tank.

Trail blazer

Two Grosse Pointe women made history in December when they were admitted to the Detroit Athletic Club — the first females in the 71-year-old male club. Although one called it "no big deal," the media thought so, and the pair were featured on the front page of both metropolitan dailies.

But lost in the shuffle was another Grosse Pointer making simultaneous history. Lee Carrick of the Park, a Ph.D. employed by the Wayne State University Medical School, must be the first male DAC spousal member in history — with the club's acceptance of wife Katherine's application. The club hasn't said — it never does — but we think it's about time.

Two Park women are first to join DAC

By Nancy Parmenter

One more barrier to women in business fell last month when the Detroit Athletic Club opened its membership rolls to women. The first two known beneficiaries of the new policy are women from Grosse Pointe Park.

"It's great," agreed Marie Vanerian, vice president at Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner & Smith, and Katherine Carrick, assistant vice president at Michigan Bell Telephone.

Both women are anxious to use the club for business meetings and entertainment, but neither has had time to go because of the holiday rush. And, while both see the new policy as "terrific" for women, neither one joined to prove a point.

Vanerian was already a spousal member by virtue of her husband

Dana Locniskar's membership. "Nobody could understand why I would want to join when I was already a spousal member," she joked. "... I have the same rights (now) — the only difference is now I pay dues."

Actually, Vanerian said, a membership in her own right allows her to vote and propose other new members, although not to use facilities like the pool during certain hours.

"I'm not interested in going inside the locker room," she said. "... I'm an individual in the business world — it's important for me to be a member on my own."

Carrick echoed that point. "It's comfortable to have it clear who's hosting the meeting," she said.

Carrick was invited to join the club by her company president, William Vititoe, she said. During the first wave of negative publicity about the club's refusal to admit women, several corporations dropped their membership. Not so Michigan Bell.

"Our company took the position to retain corporate membership to work from within to change the rule," Carrick said.

As a private club, the DAC has never revealed its thinking processes, but one way or another, the policy was changed. It has been reported that two women in addition to Carrick and Vanerian have applied for membership, but the club will not reveal how many others have been admitted.

Admitting women was a good move both for the club and for women, Carrick said.

Vanerian agreed, and added that she was glad that the club came to the decision by itself — admittedly with plenty of pressure — and not through coercion by the city. "Deep down inside, when the city tried to put pressure on the club to make it mandatory to accept women, I wasn't in favor of that," she said. "The DAC is a private organization. (An ordinance) takes away the freedom of a private group."

Now that the club has come to the decision, she added, "we're carrying on what the club has always stood for: having good citizens as members — and not just good men citizens."

The admission of women is historic: For 71 years the Athletic Club operated as a men-only organization. More than a year ago, civil rights organizations started applying pressure to abandon the tradition.

Opinions differ on new tax law

By Peter A. Salinas

In the last several weeks, there have been a number of grim economic news stories.

Christmas sales were not nearly what was anticipated by major retailers, there were announcements of layoffs at General Motors, AT&T and IBM, oil prices have risen sharply, estimates are that new car sales will slump and some economic indicators point to recession.

Do all of these stories point to a downward cycle in the U.S. and Michigan economy, or do brighter stories like weak but continued growth in the gross national product and the weaker U.S. dollar in foreign markets with the possibility for increases in exports forecast an upturn in the economy?

To the average person, the layoffs and rise in oil prices may be the most significant, but for investors and corporations, the recent news and economic predictions for 1987 are important.

Jim Leonard, director of research, First of Michigan Corporation, said that there are a number of economic factors which all point to a downward trend in overall economy.

Consumer spending, government spending, the balance of trade and interest rates all have a direct effect on the strength of the economy, and Leonard said he is not optimistic about favorable advances in any of these areas.

"The consumer is at a very, very low level of savings," Leonard said. "At the same time consumers are at an all-time high with their debt."

Leonard said that consumer savings is at only two percent of disposable income, and figures show that consumer debt as a percentage of income is very high.

"Given those figures, I wouldn't look for consumer spending to spur the economy," he said.

If recent headlines are any indication of what's going to happen with government spending, the economy shouldn't expect too much from Uncle Sam either.

Leonard said that increases in U.S. defense spending should be just two percent this year — the lowest increase in many years. Spending cuts in veteran health benefits, farm programs and other areas of government will all mean little growth from the public sector.

The government is damned if it does and damned if it doesn't as far as spurring the economy, according to Leonard.

If the government holds back on spending, it could slow the economy. If the government increases taxes to cut the federal deficit, the economy could be hurt as well. If the government increases spending, thereby increasing its demand for money with deficit spending, inflation could speed up and interest rates could go higher — and the economy would suffer. "It is definitely a Catch 22," Leonard said. "Closing the loopholes with the new tax law should help a lot."

Leonard said that the investment tax credit and the use of tax shelters by many corporations and individuals was abused.

"The new law should cut a lot of that abuse out and should give a dramatic increase in revenues to the treasury," Leonard said.

Oil prices have risen to $18 a barrel. In comparison to the prices of the early 1970s, the price is low, but compared to the $10 per barrel price of mid-1986, it is a big increase.

"There is still a glut of oil worldwide," Leonard said. "It still remains to be seen what OPEC will do. If OPEC gets its act together, oil prices could go even higher."

Leonard said that there was both a direct and indirect effect of lower oil prices on the U.S. economy in 1986.

He said that lower oil prices and spin-off benefits raised the level of disposable income, thus adding fuel to the economic engines. Also, he said, the lower prices gave the consumer an image of greater wealth and indirectly encouraged him to spend more.

Inflation has been running at very low levels worldwide, and the U.S. inflation rate is among the lowest of the developed nations.

"If the inflation rate remains subdued," Leonard said, "it could help the economy, but if inflation escalates and the consumer's real income drops, we could face a recession."

Vann W. Fleming, branch manager of Roney & Co.'s Grosse Pointe Farms office, said that there is a lot of bad news on the horizon, but that there are a number of indicators which show all is not gloom and doom.

Fleming did point to one indicator which has foretold tumbling stock prices in the recent past.

Since 1982 when 90-day treasury bill yields dipped below the federal reserve's discount rate to banks, stock prices have tended to rise. During the third week of December the T-bill yields moved above the discount rate, which is a bad sign for stock prices.

Williams retires; plans new career

50 years of public service

By Pat Paholsky

Retirement. Some people look forward to it and others don't want anything to do with it.

G. Mennen Williams clearly belongs in the latter category even though he retired as chief justice of the Michigan Supreme Court last week. The retirement was mandatory: The state constitution prohibits judges from running for election after 70.

And at 75, with a full 50 years of public service to his credit, the chief justice says he would have run for another term. "I think I would have won, too."

But his agenda is already so full that his wife Nancy said he figures they can get away for a week in March during spring break. He'll be teaching a law course at the University of Detroit, adding another dimension to his long list of credentials. He also plans to teach a course in leadership at Oakland University, probably this fall.

"I'm convinced the good health of democracy depends on good leadership," he said. It will be a multi-discipline approach involving a number of departments, he added.

He'll also continue working with the supreme court in a consulting role on two current matters — reviewing procedures in the Bronson case in which the appeals court judge was arrested for bribery and subsequently committed suicide and reviewing recommendations by a citizens commission to improve the state's courts.

Williams also plans to write. "When I was governor, I wrote a very informal booklet on a governor's notes that was published by the University of Michigan. It's a philosophy of operating the governor's office," he said.

He is now writing a chief justice's notes and says he wants to write a book about his 1948 campaign when he was first elected governor.

"I have sort of a mystic feeling about that," he said. "It was a coming together of people"

Snow business

Johnny Kalogerakos, 6, and Emily Kalogerakos, 4, work together to do the adult-sized job of shoveling the snow in front of their parents' home on Mapleton in Grosse Pointe Farms last Friday morning. The snow that fell Thursday night and through the day Friday was the first major snowfall of the season, as well as 1987. The wet snow stuck to trees, bushes and Christmas decorations, turning Grosse Pointe into a winter wonderland. For more pictures of the season's first snowfall, see Page 1B.

construction of the Capital City Airport. Notably, there was never any scandal connected with his administration.

Williams, who has lived in his current home in Grosse Pointe Farms since 1963, was born in a house in Detroit that later became part of the Wayne State University campus. His grandfather was the founder of the Mennen shaving lotion company, hence the nickname "Soapy."

He attended the Liggett School, the Detroit University School and the Salisbury School in Connecticut before going to Princeton. He received his law degree from the University of Michigan.

He said he was motivated to serve the public from his reading of English history while he was at Princeton. It was there he decided to run for governor one day, a goal that became a reality 15 years later.

He said that his family, staunch Republicans, accepted his embracing the Democratic Party because "they were from America."

They believed in the right of self-determination."

The fact that he lives in Grosse Pointe, a Republican enclave, doesn't bother him, he said. Growing up in a Republican household, "I was early conditioned."

During his 50-year career, Williams served as an attorney for the Social Security Board in Washington, as assistant attorney general in Michigan, executive assistant and later special assistant to the U.S. attorney general. He served four years in the U.S. Navy, from 1942 to 1946, earning 10 battle stars and advancing to lieutenant commander.

After his military service, he became deputy director of the Michigan Office of Price Administration. He was then appointed to the Liquor Control Commission by the Republican governor he later defeated.

In 1960, after his 12 years as governor, he was appointed by President John F. Kennedy as assistant secretary of state for African affairs. In 1966, he ran for the U.S. Senate. It was his only defeat and if he had won the election, he would have served in all three branches of government.

Williams was then appointed ambassador to the Philippines by President Lyndon B. Johnson. In 1971, he was elected to the Michigan Supreme Court. In 1983, he was elected chief justice, a post he held until Dec. 31.

The years have passed quickly, he said.

"Looking back, I can't believe I finished 16 years on the court. We were in the Philippines and Africa and it seems like yesterday. Everyday I run into my friends who were my associates when I was governor, so the whole time period collapses all the time."

After years of serving high-profile positions and with plans for the future that include teaching, writing and consulting, is there anything else? Williams said he wants to play golf with his wife every Friday and "I would like to go fishing with my grandson."

Donald Rumsfeld to speak here

With a resume that reads like the top 20 jobs in Washington D.C., Donald H. Rumsfeld will discuss U.S. foreign policy and other aspects of his public life at a special program, "Foreign Policy Update," Monday, Jan. 19, at 7:30 p.m. at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

Rumsfeld, 54, a graduate of Princeton University, served four terms as an Illinois congressman and one term as U.S. ambassador to NATO. He chaired the Gerald Ford transition team, then became Ford's chief of staff.

Rumsfeld was appointed the 13th secretary of defense in 1975, and held that position for three years before pursuing a business career with G.D. Searle and Co., a multinational pharmaceutical company.

According to national columnist George F. Will, Rumsfeld, as chief executive officer of Searle, divested 30 of the firm's least productive subsidiaries, cutting employment from 20,000 to 11,000 and sending the stock price from $12 to $65.

Will said that Rumsfeld has been planning his 1988 presidential race since 1984. Last year he gave more than 185 speeches, conducted more than 130 meetings with editorial boards and other civic groups, made 146 city visits and 109 state visits. He raised more than $700,000 for his political action committee.

Rumsfeld was named special envoy to the Middle East by President Reagan in 1983. He continues to serve on the President's General Advisory Committee on Arms Control.

Will said that Rumsfeld helped decrease other nation's arms shipments to Iran.

Tickets for the program are $5 and are available through the War Memorial. For more information, call 881-7511.

The program is arranged by the War Memorial's Council of Sponsors. Jane Kay is chairperson of the event.

More windows shot

Three more reports of car windows being shattered by a pellet or BB gun were made Dec. 31 to Farms police.

Two of the windows were shot out on Handy and the other on Charlevoix near Moran.

Farms Detective Supervisor George Van Tiem said his department has no leads on suspects who were involved in the year-end rash of window shootings in the Grosse Pointes.

Some 44 reports of car windows being shattered were made to four of the five Grosse Pointe police departments during the last week of 1986.

Van Tiem said that unless a person happens to actually see the vehicle or the person involved with the vandalism, it is difficult to make an arrest.

The investigation continues, he said.

Parents, police work together

By Nancy Parmenter

Two months ago the South High Mothers' Club drew up a petition to show police that parents support legal efforts to contain adolescent drug and alcohol use. In December, at a meeting between parents and police, the petitions were presented.

The meeting was a bigger success than even the organizers expected.

"It was great," said parent Dee Szmrecsanyi. "The police answered our questions — there was nothing they couldn't answer. What came through most was their concern for our adolescents."

Four of the five Grosse Pointe police departments sent representatives to the meeting. The Shores did not participate, Szmrecsanyi said.

The session resulted in greater understanding of police procedures and limitations.

"Some of the parents possibly thought we could put a fence around a party and arrest every child there," said Woods Detective Lt. Peter Thomas. "The law says you can't do that. You have to actually see the person drinking or in possession."

Szmrecsanyi said the parents were glad to have had that type of legal limitation explained to them.

"Now we understand that they do all they can," she said.

Szmrecsanyi said police told the group that alcohol is the prime drug of choice among teenagers. "We didn't know they felt that way," she said. South parents also have statistics indicating that 90 percent of adolescents drink at some time.

She said the officers gave parents several recommendations for cutting down on their children's drinking:

- Keep alcohol locked up.
- Wake up when children arrive home in order to be aware of their condition.
- Start anti-alcohol and -drug education at the elementary school level.

- Check up on children even though they don't like it.
- Find more activities for teenagers.
- Stop drinking yourself.

"The police told us that many parents who come to the police station to pick up an intoxicated youngster are intoxicated themselves," Szmrecsanyi said.

As for crack — the drug currently most feared by parents — it exists, it is nearby, and it could be in Grosse Pointe.

"We don't know of any houses in the Grosse Pointes, but that isn't to say there aren't any," said Farms police Chief Robert Ferber later.

But police are aware of crack houses near Grosse Pointe, and they have seen Grosse Pointe cars there, they told the parents' group. "A wood-grained station wagon is a dead give-away," Szmrecsanyi said.

Police also recommended that schools have youth officers. Currently, South has no youth officer; North has a full-time person, and there are youth-officer hours at Parcels.

Until 1979, the five Pointes and the schools funded a youth bureau with four officers and a secretary and offices in both high schools. Szmrecsanyi said school officials have told her that youth officers are less necessary now than then because the school population is smaller and drugs are less prevalent.

But the Woods continued to fund a full-time officer, to the tune of about $55,000 a year, according to Public Safety Director Jack Patterson.

"We're a large, affluent community," he said. "The kids have lots of money and time on their hands. We can't afford not to spend this kind of money."

When the program was discontinued, the Woods youth officer went back to operating out of the police station, but a year ago, he moved back into North High

"The problem is as great now as it ever was," Patterson said. "Ninety percent of the kids are just great — 3 percent are a problem. We want to reach the kids who screw up once or twice in their life."

Patterson said youth officer Daniel Koerber not only prepares specific programs, but is also available during the school day for students to come in and chat.

"They often want to talk about things like family problems that really aren't police matters, but we have resources," he said. "I'm a big proponent of prevention. School is where our population is most of the day — let's put a policeman up there with these youngsters who can gain their confidence."

"We're not kicking seats of pants any more — we're doing something better. We've got a man in there who is genuinely interested in the kids."

Chief Ferber of the Farms said he is equally interested in a school youth officer program, but the Farms department has only a person who must divide his attention between youth and other responsibilities.

"I wish it were otherwise," Ferber said, "but that's the way we're staffed. I wholeheartedly support it."

Ferber said a youth program could be initiated by either the schools or the city, but currently neither is asking for it.

Szmrecsanyi said the parents have more than achieved their objective in meeting with the police. Originally, the group intended to ask for an on-going series of meetings, but has reconsidered, since this meeting was so successful.

"This was a good way to start out the Christmas season for me," she said. "We parents really feel like something's happening... Through that discussion, we set up a relationship with the police so that we feel we can call them anytime."

House fire may have electrical cause

By Peter A. Salinas

Shores police estimate that the fire at the Ahee family home Dec. 21 caused about $580,000 damage to the dwelling and contents, and believe it was started in the basement.

Detective Sgt. Daniel Healy said the preliminary indication from the Michigan State Police fire marshal is that the fire was burning for some time before it was discovered by owner Bettejean Ahee.

"They had an electrical engineer look at the house," Healy said. "There has been no official written report, but it is believed the fire started in the basement and burned through the walls."

A neighbor said earlier that Bettejean Ahee believed the Christmas tree caught fire.

Healy said she was lying on the couch in the living room and woke up because the room was getting very warm.

"She said she saw sparks near the Christmas tree and ran to pull out the plug," Healy said. "She said that when she did that, the tree burst into flames. We believe the fire was in the walls and chose just that time to burst through."

She then ran upstairs to awaken her husband, Grosse Pointe jeweler, Edmund T. Ahee.

Healy said there are several indications that the fire started in the basement.

"Most significantly, when we arrived the basement was already burning," Healy said. "The tree was on the first floor. Fires burn up, not down, unless they are pushed down."

Firefighters from four departments fought the blaze for several hours, but the house was described as a total loss.

Healy said the fire marshal's office believes it was started by some kind of electrical short or malfunctioning electrical appliance, but because of the major damage, it is difficult to pinpoint the cause. Officially, the electrical cause is only a theory at this time.

Healy stressed that arson has definitely been ruled out.

Residents warned against phone solicitors

By Peter A. Salinas

Police are advising residents to beware of callers from the Michigan Association of Police who request contributions that they say will be used for safety programs.

Farms Police Chief Robert Ferber said the union does represent some police, but that it uses "boiler shop" solicitation techniques.

The caller will say that he represents the Grosse Pointe Farms police department and indicate that the person had given a donation in the past, according to Ferber.

Ferber said that the union can get around the law by saying they represent the local police department, when, in fact, no member of the Farms police department is a member of that union.

In a letter to Carl Parsell, president of the Michigan Association of Police, Ferber stated that his department does not recognize nor is it affiliated with the organization.

The letter went on to say that the activities by the union border on fraud and the complaints received by the department would be forwarded to the Wayne County prosecutor for review for criminal prosecution.

Ferber said that some people who received calls never gave to the union, even though the caller said they did. He added that there had been similar reports of the same activity in Sterling Heights.

If contacted, ask the caller if he is a member of the Farms police department and ask what the money is for, Ferber said. He added that requesting the name and phone number of the caller will help.

"If you are contacted and told that you have made a contribution to this organization in the past," Ferber said, "ask how much you gave, when you gave and what the funds were used for."

Ferber said he hopes more residents call with complaints of this activity, because if there are enough calls, it will aid with prosecution.

Officials of the Michigan Association of Police said it is possible that "an overly enthusiastic" salesperson may have exceeded what the organization outlines as rules for soliciting funds.

Fred Timpner, a director of the Michigan Association of Police, said that there is also the possibility that his organization may not be the one in question.

"Unfortunately, we have taken the rap for another organization, and there are court records in Oakland County which show that," Timpner said.

Timpner named the other groups as the Police Officers Association of Michigan. He said the specific instance cited by Ferber was not necessarily the POAM that was at fault.

"If we have a salesperson who is getting overly enthusiastic, such as portraying themselves as police officers, they will be fired," Timpner said.

He added that his organization currently has an injunction against the Police Officers Association of Michigan from using the name Association of Michigan Police Officers while soliciting funds.

"I am sorry the chief (Ferber) has taken this tack," Timpner said. He added that the letter the Farms police department sent to Carl Parsell, president of the Michigan Association of Police, had not been received by the organization. The letter was dated Dec. 30, 1986.

Timpner said the money raised through the organization's phone solicitations goes toward police awareness programs with Wayne, Oakland and Macomb county area. He cited television advertisements and programs in the schools as some of the programs the organization sponsors.

"We have 2,000 members in the Wayne, Oakland and Macomb county area," Timpner said. "The chief is right though, we have no members from Grosse Pointe Farms."

Liquor license approved in Woods

By Marie Reins Smith

The Grosse Pointe Woods City Council unanimously approved the issuance of a Class C liquor license for Da Edoardo's Restaurant, 19767 Mack at Monday's meeting. The approval upgrades Da Edoardo's existing Traven License.

Class C liquor licenses allow the sale and consumption of alcoholic beverages on the premises. Tavern licenses permit only beer and wine service. On Nov. 2, Woods' voters approved a local referendum permitting either the addition of one Class C license or the upgrading of one existing Traven License to Class C.

Da Edoardo's has been open since 1978. In January, 1980, the Woods council approved the granting of a Tavern License by the Michigan Liquor Control Commission. Sale of wine and beer by the glass began in May 1980.

The council received no other application for the Class C license. Ed Barbieri Jr., owner of the restaurant, said, "Once the petition was done and the voters favored it — I was confident we'd get it. It was quick and unanimous. I'm glad it's over."

Barbieri said he estimates Da Edoardo's will be serving alcohol within six or eight weeks.

Class prepares kids for new babies

By Margie Reins Smith

Jayne Zdrowski, L.P.N., spoke individually with each child about the new baby brother or sister he or she was expecting. She referred to the new baby as "your baby."

"Your baby won't have a belly button like yours. When the doctor cuts your baby's umbilical cord, he'll put a clamp and some purple dye on it," she said. "It will look funny. Don't worry about your baby's belly button because it looks strange. In a few weeks it will look just like yours."

Zdrowski, a labor, delivery and nursery nurse at Bon Secours Hospital, was speaking to six children between 2½ and 8 years old — and their parents — on a recent Sunday afternoon at the hospital's sibling class.

The class is for youngsters whose mothers are preparing to have babies at Bon Secours, and is part of an ongoing series of educational offerings on pregnancy, prepared childbirth and infant care offered by the hospital.

Lisa Avery, 4, alternately sat on Mom's and Dad's lap and watched a short slide presentation about families who are expecting new babies. She saw pictures of the labor room and the hospital room where her mother would go when it was time for her baby to be born. She learned that she could bring her new baby sister or brother a present and could come to her mother's hospital room to meet the new baby after he's born.

Peter and Joey Carter, 8 and 5, and the other prospective siblings, put on hospital masks and gowns and went upstairs to see a real newborn baby behind the glass wall of the nursery.

Later, Charles Dykstra, 2½, held a lifesized doll on his lap and learned he should ask a grown-up for help before he picks up his baby. Charles practiced holding his hands under the doll's head and neck.

Elizabeth Brady, 4, got to hear her baby's heartbeat by holding a small stethoscope-like instrument, a doppler, against her mother's abdomen.

"The class is designed to help kids welcome the new baby," said Liz Krass, coordinator of marketing and communications for Bon Secours. "We try to get across the idea that they're not being replaced or rejected, but included as a family member." The class also helps parents prepare for and deal with the normal rivalry that older children feel toward their new siblings, she said.

Zdrowski and her assistant, Louise Helou, a nursery nurse at Bon Secours, have been teaching the class for about two years. "A new child coming into the home is a big happening," said Zdrowski. "An older child feels left out. This class helps make him feel special — feel a part of things."

After the one-hour session, parents sipped coffee and children had cookies and milk while drawing pictures of what they thought their new babies would look like.

Lisa Winningham, 6, proudly displayed her certificate and her "I'm a big sister" button that she got to take home after the class.

For more information about the sibling class, which meets on Saturdays or Sundays every week, call 343-1691 between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. weekdays.

Lisa Winningham, 6, is expecting a little brother or sister soon. She and her parents, Michael and Mary Lynn Winningham, attended Bon Secours Hospital's sibling class. Lisa proudly displays her "I'm a big sister" button.

Louise Helou, nursery nurse, holds Lauren Laczek, who is only a few hours old. Members of Bon Secours' sibling class, dressed in hospital hats and masks, get an up-front look at a brand new baby.

Catholic league plans reunion

Former athletes of the Eastside Catholic High School League will renew old acquaintances and rekindle past rivalries at a reunion dinner dance Saturday, Jan. 31.

Joined by their spouses, friends and coaches, the former players will gather at the Imperial House on Groesbeck Highway in Fraser. Joe Vitale's orchestra will provide dance music.

Only a handful of Eastside Catholic high schools remain open today, but of the more than 30 that once fielded athletic teams from the 1920s through the mid-1970s, unbounded school spirit has kept alive many friendships of former teammates and classmates.

Joe Griffin, 821-2499, is the ticket chairman for former St. Ambrose High School students. Graduates of other Eastside Catholic High Schools can obtain ticket information from Charlie Kane, 885-7062, who is coordinating all of the planning.

Learn first aid

John L. Stephenson, M.D., chief emergency physician at Cottage Hospital, will present "First Rate First Aid" Wednesday, Jan. 14, at 7 p.m. in the lower level boardrooms of Cottage Hospital.

The program is free but reservations are requested. Call 881-1800.

Peterson to be CEO of service agency

Mark A. Peterson of Grosse Pointe Farms will move to Minnesota to serve as president and chief executive officer of the statewide Lutheran Social Service agency. He will leave his post as vice president of Lutheran Social Services of Michigan to take over an agency with a $20 million budget and 70 programs serving 200 Minnesota communities. In Michigan, Peterson oversaw services for the aging, the developmentally disabled, the handicapped and developmentally disabled children. He was founder and first president of the Lutheran Association of Housing Ministries.

Announcing... Robert Nugent of the City will start as the University of Detroit's first executive in residence in January. Nugent is a retired executive from Detroit Edison and will counsel students exploring possible careers. He has an engineering degree from Cornell University and an MBA from the University of Michigan... Dean Richardson of the Farms was re-elected vice chairman of AAA Michigan last month. Richardson is board chairman and president of Manufacturers National Corp. and chairman of its largest subsidiary, Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit. He is a graduate of Michigan State University and the University of Michigan Law School...

James Duff of the Park was elected president of the Self-Insurance Institute of America. Duff is president and CEO of his own third-party administration firm for property casualty workers' compensation and employee benefit self-insured plans. He was also the author of the Michigan legislation for workers' compensation group self-insurance... Former Grosse Pointer Margene Seyler Johnston is executive director of the Madison Heights Chamber of Commerce. She has operated a photography business in Madison Heights for five years... David Allison, formerly of the Farms, is chief of surgical oncology at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore. He has a medical degree from the University of Michigan and a Ph.D. in microbiology from the University of Chicago... Former Grosse Pointer Roger Powers is executive vice president of International Thomson Industrial Press, parent company of Ward's Communications, where he remains as president and chief executive officer... Davie Bryce of Grosse Pointe has been promoted to the Anderson, Ind., office of GM Fisher Guide, where he will work as a simultaneous engineer in reaction injection molding. Bryce is a logistics major from Michigan State University and working on degrees in engineering at Lawrence Institute of Technology and in finance at Wayne State University.

No last hurrah for 'Soapy'

Anyone who has served the public for more than a half century obviously has earned retirement. But G. Mennen (Soapy) Williams who has just stepped down as chief justice of the Michigan Supreme Court doesn't believe in retirement so long as a person's physical and mental abilities are unimpaired. So it is consistent for Williams to make plans to go on serving the public as a teacher at two Michigan universities now that he has left the bench. That means it's too early for any last hurrah for Soapy.

Not that he retired as a justice voluntarily. He was required to do so by the law that prohibits judges from running for re-election after they have reached their 70th birthday. Williams, who will be 76 on Feb. 23, says that if the law had not been in effect, he would have run for re-election last November — and, he adds, "I would have won, too." Few would disagree with that opinion in view of his record six elections to the governorship and three more to the court, with only a single defeat in his race for the U.S. Senate to mar his record.

Ironically, the man who defeated him in 1966 just last week succeeded him on the state's high court. It is Justice Robert Griffin who was U.S. Senator Robert Griffin in 1966 and retained his title in that election.

In recent weeks, the Michigan news media and Williams' old friends have kept him busy with interviews, luncheons and other special occasions marking his long career. The result was that he was hoarse and a bit tired when he was interviewed last week by the Grosse Pointe News. But he was still the old Soapy, amiable, agreeable and unflappable.

Asked whether as a career-long Democrat he was ever bothered by his residence in a Republican enclave, the Grosse Pointes, in a Democratic Wayne county, he laughed and said he had been "brought up in a Republican household" but that his family had "believed in the right of self-determination." He added he found the Pointes a congenial place in which to live and that Democrats and Republicans have learned to live together in "peace and amity."

Soapy is an example of a man who achieved an ambition he first voiced while in college. Motivated by his reading of English history at Princeton, he decided to go into public service and aimed at the governorship. And in 1948 he achieved his ambition and then was re-elected five times before he retired to become assistant secretary of state for African affairs in the Kennedy administration.

The 1948 election still rates high in Williams' memory. He said he was "not the chosen instrument of the then-Democratic Party," and adds that he was elected by a "people's movement." It is obvious that the GOP charge that he was "a tool of the United Auto Workers" still rankles. He responds that the UAW members by themselves "couldn't have elected anyone" and that he had the support of farmers, veterans, conservationists and even some disaffected Republicans when he was elected.

Soapy admits he's still "a New Deal Democrat" who adheres to the general philosophy that government should "help people who need it." But he is bothered by the "shrinkage of the middle class" which would, if continued, in time, "change the character of the country." And while he says he is not familiar enough with the national scene to express support for a specific candidate for president, he feels the country "needs someone with a definite program to attack the new set of problems" the country faces today.

Williams says the law requiring retirement of judges is "not a sensible rule" because many of the judiciary still are able to serve. He is also critical of the aspect of the Michigan judicial selection process that last fall permitted 24 candidates to file for the supreme court. He said that created a "ridiculous" situation and called on the Legislature to revise it.

However, he does defend the nominating process for the Supreme Court which is often criticized because it requires the justices to be nominated by political parties and then elected on a nonpartisan ticket. He thinks perhaps 75 percent of the nominees under the present system would have been elected had they run on the partisan ticket in the general election. And he is definitely "adverse" to any version of the Missouri plan that enables governors to pick appointees from a panel recommended to him.

He strongly favors the direct election of the judiciary and contends there "is nothing wrong but the perception" of the current system. He says the parties usually are careful about their first nomination but admits they sometimes do not exercise as much care in making their second nomination. He favors appointment by the governor to fill judicial vacancies and praises former GOP Gov. William Milliken for making "quality appointments, by and large" and Gov. James Blanchard for his "outstanding appointments to the bench."

It is appropriate that Williams will continue to teach and write for it is obvious he has something to say to all of us. For example, in a course on leadership he plans to teach at Oakland University, he will stress the point that "the good health of democracy depends on leadership in depth." He plans to call together a group of interested people from a variety of disciplines to help him design the course.

He also will teach a law course at the University of Detroit and write a book about his services as chief justice. That will be similar to a 1961 review of his observations published by the University of Michigan under the title, "A Governor's Notes." He hopes to review the 1948 election in still another book.

He hopes to find time to play a bit more golf with his wife, Nancy, and cut down his 24 handicap. He also plans to go fishing with his grandson, but doubts he'll engage in much travel because it takes too much time. It is clear that the man who is only the second in Michigan history to serve both as governor and chief justice still feels he has much to do. And that should be welcome news to the public he has served so well for so long.

A truce in Lansing?

With the Democrats still controlling the governor's office and the state House and the Republicans retaining their direction of the state Senate, Michigan once again will be faced with a politically divided state government in 1987.

That may lead to a continuation of the sharp confrontations that marred the Legislature's record for the past two years. But there are signs that both parties may be seeking ways to conciliate their differences and seek agreements in the interest of better serving the state and its people. If not peace, perhaps we'll at least get a truce in Lansing.

One hopeful sign came from Senate Majority Leader John Engler's interview with state capitol correspondents on the "Off the Record" program on Channel 56. Engler sounded conciliatory and said he thought the Democrats would be, too, now that they have apparently decided the Republicans will control the Senate at least until 1988.

His point was that the Democrats, after they lost control of the Senate through the recall of two of their members in 1983, had regarded the Republicans as usurpers who would be promptly bounced out of office in the 1986 general election. When that didn't happen, according to Engler's version of political history, Democratic leaders decided they might as well cooperate with their foes rather than continuing their running fight with them.

In the post-election session, the Republican Senate also went along, albeit reluctantly and belatedly, with the governor's prepaid tuition program for higher education. That, too, tended to lower the tension between the two parties.

In addition, the governor himself sounded conciliatory — as indeed he should be after his victory by a record margin in November — when he talked about the 1987 outlook. For example, he reiterated his support for a further modest reduction in the state income tax, a proposal that Republicans like to hear although they would prefer a larger cut than the reduction from 4.6 percent to 4.4 percent that the governor supports.

The size of the cutback still will depend upon new estimates of the size of the windfall the state will experience as a result of the enactment of the federal tax reforms that start taking effect in January. The current estimate by State Treasurer Robert Bowman is that state revenues will rise $150 million through elimination of the preferential treatment of capital gains, personal deductions for contributions to individual retirement accounts and other tax breaks.

But sharp differences with the Republicans are still expected to continue over the governor's plan for reducing the state property tax burden by closing certain tax loopholes for insurance companies and financial institutions. The Republicans favor more tax relief for personal property — but argue the state should use its surplus funds for that purpose.

Blanchard told the Detroit News recently he will propose few spending increases and a "pretty tight budget," without any significant increases. Yet some people feel an increase in the state gasoline tax is warranted to improve the state's highways and transportation system. And it was noted that Majority Leader Engler did not rule out such a tax hike in his "Off the Record" interview.

Other GOP proposals, such as an increase in the cigarette tax to finance specific improvements in the state's support for K-12 educational programs, may bring about new differences with the Democrats. But the conciliatory statements on both sides offer hope that the 1987 legislative year will result in more accomplishments and fewer confrontations between the two parties than occurred in 1985 and 1986.

Our readers say

Name those who destroy our resources

To the Editor:

"Don't hide your light under a bushel" is an old adage that was handed to us verbally many times. In other words, if you can do something well, let it be known.

Since we have six seniors from South High School who are experts in destruction of books and knowledge, by all means let us know their names. Then I, at least, will know who to avoid.

It really burns me when I read a letter for the rest of us taxpayers to have compassion for the poor misguided souls who had no control over the action of their arms and legs and how they used them. There were many graduates of South High who gave their lives in World War II, the Korean War and in Vietnam so we could have a chance to read the books that are in our library.

Reading is one of the greatest sharing experiences a person can have. When you read, you can listen to a person who lived over a thousand years ago. What frustration for a person with a curious mind to see a book written 5,000 years ago in Chinese, and you can't read it because you don't know Chinese. How much was lost to us when the library in Alexandria, Egypt was burned 2,000 years ago.

Those seniors were not guided at all in the direction of acceptance of the fact that their ignorance on many things could be eliminated by a visit with a knowledgeable mind in print on pages in a book.

As a person born and raised in Grosse Pointe, I cannot accept the concept of Miss Smith that these seniors did not know their destruction of public property was unlawful.

As a Detroit schools kindergarten teacher, I pointed out to my five-year-old students, "You tell your fingers, hands and feet what to do. You are responsible for what they do." If that idea can get through to five-year-olds in Detroit, then 17-year-old high school seniors in Grosse Pointe must be very absent in mental ability if they cannot accept responsibility for their behavior.

The news media has a responsibility to inform us of people who do good or bad things. Please fulfill your duty to our community by printing the names of those who destroy our community resources and by doing so, limit our freedom to learn.

Marion Lancaster Gale
Grosse Pointe Woods

Doing wrong in a right way

To the Editor:

I applaud the board of education's decision to ban the smoking area in our high schools. It took courage to admit that the original smoking "privilege" was a mistake.

Now we find ourselves in a similar "if you can't fight 'em, join 'em" situation. By including birth control information in the human sexuality class, the students will be taught how to do what is wrong in the right way. According to Richard Doerflinger of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops: "They're saying there's no way to educate kids to live better. They're proposing a counsel of despair." (Time — Dec. 22, 1986)

I do believe in parent-approved sex education in school. I also believe that our children should be made aware of the moral, emotional and very real life consequence of premarital sex. I urge the board to give this matter more thought.

Jim VandeWyngearde

Do not withhold news

To the Editor:

This is in response to a letter to the editor appearing in the Dec. 25 edition of the Grosse Pointe News suggesting "compassion" in not publishing the names of the six seniors involved in the break-in at Grosse Pointe South.

It appears that by making this appeal, reporting of the news should be stifled in the interest of so-called compassion. If this principle of news filtering were followed, who makes the determination and where does it stop?

It is the obligation and responsibility of the news media to accurately report the news without bias and on a timely basis. (The only possible exceptions being legality and issues of national defense.) To suggest otherwise by censoring or withholding news contradicts one of the founding principles of this republic — freedom of the press.

It is not the obligation nor responsibility of the news media to exercise compassion or not — that is the choice and action of an informed society after all the facts have been made known.

In this case, six seniors have broken the law and caused considerable damage to public property. Names of individuals involved should not be withheld. If the maximum amount of embarrassment and shame are felt, not only by the students but the parents as well, perhaps that would act as a deterrent against further vandalism, etc. in the community.

Name withheld by request

Retain the park's name

To the Editor:

I do not favor the proposal to rename our Grosse Pointe Farms Pier Park. Its present name tells us where it is located and where we are located. It enhances the image of our fair city.

Our late Mayor Dingeman was a fine man and a fine mayor. He was what a mayor is supposed to be. I understand that he himself did not wish or sanction the name change of our park to "Dingeman Park."

Let us give this matter serious thought. Let us be certain our action is in accordance with the will of the majority. Let us avoid the distasteful impression that a name change of our park is conceivable before we, the people, are fully informed.

I do not concur in the quote of one of the proponents, "Justice delayed is justice denied." How can such a statement apply in this important matter? Our community is and has been blessed with citizens equally worthy of praise, honor and distinction. In fairness and justice to all, let us retain the present name of our park, the Grosse Pointe Farms Pier Park.

These are my reasons for my position.

Prime time for senior citizens Building a good mental outlook

By Marian Trainor

The power to discount the negative and accent the positive is one that could serve us well anytime. Experts say that a cheerful spirit makes for healthier, happier living. Researchers have found one of the key factors in the prospect for a good long life is a good attitude.

If gloom hangs heavy, it might be that moving out into the world could help. It has been found that it is much easier to maintain a general outlook on life in a social setting. Sharing good times with others is an important factor in a happy well-adjusted life at any age. For older people, it is a vital ingredient to ward off loneliness which studies have shown is an aging factor.

It is true that some individuals find it more difficult than others to make friends. Part of that difficulty could be their personalities. They are not fun to be around. It is not very cheering to be with people who recite long litanies of physical ailments, money problems and neglect by relatives.

People have problems and have a need to share them — but not all the time. It is good to remember that everyone has peaks and valleys. Often those who have been down the most are those who retain an optimistic view.

One of the most insensitive remarks I have heard was made by a woman who rationalized her endless complaints by proclaiming she believed in letting everyone know how she felt. She went on to say she couldn't stand people who said nothing bothered them. The person to whom she was directing her remarks had experienced many setbacks but was still managing to be pleasant and supportive. She wasn't without feelings. She felt her losses deeply — and privately. She didn't dramatize herself at the expense of loved ones in order to win sympathy and attention.

Then there are those who are programmed worriers. They live in a constant state of fear, always anticipating the worst and never enjoying the good. The sad fact of such a bleak outlook is that it often results in such health problems as headaches, colds, indigestion and other psychosomatic ailments. It is not easy for worriers to change their thinking, but they can by associating with people who enjoy life.

Laughter, a healthy beginning, can help people forget their worries for a short time.

The chronic worrier frets about problems, real and imagined. Some problems are real and impossible to laugh away. Often these are related to money, usually the lack of it. Inflation is a real threat to the peace of mind and genial outlook for older people. Younger people have grown up with present prices. Their arithmetic is different from their elders. They count by 10s. We're still counting by ones. High prices threaten both our financial and psychological sense of security.

General Douglas MacArthur, in a postwar speech, said, "There is no security, only opportunity." To keep from being buried in gloom over high prices and the shrinking value of the dollar, we can accept the situation as a challenge. Trading down big cars for gas-saving compacts, large houses with big utility bills for a condominium and careful shopping are some means of beating the system. Less can be more if one works at it.

Another barrier to a happy outlook, and one that can result in boredom and depression, is the attitude that retirement from work is retirement from activity. Life is meant to be lived. People who sit back and do nothing because they have worked hard and deserve that privilege soon tire of inactivity. Their thoughts turn inward. The universe narrows and small things become distorted and enlarged out of proportion. Activity doesn't necessarily mean work. It can be doing the many things that there was never time to enjoy. Indulging in pleasurable activities keeps people young, interesting and often results in making new friends.

Sometimes women who have built their entire social life around their husbands' circle of friends find when they are widowed they are left out of gatherings. While togetherness in marriage is desirable, women who neglect to make friends of their own, find that if they are widowed they are socially bankrupt. Making outside friends doesn't mean neglecting either the family or the husband. Relationships are often enriched by differences in experiences. Personal relationships established by the wife will help to sustain her in widowhood.

Maintaining and keeping a cheerful attitude is difficult. For some it is impossible without help. For those who are so depressed they can't work themselves out of it, group therapy may be the answer. Group therapy is not a pleasant experience and more unpleasant for an older person than for a younger one. Older persons have gone through life making decisions and solving problems without any special help. Not only is it frightening to have arrived at a point where those problems are insurmountable but it is embarrassing to reveal them to strangers.

Yet such a sharing lets the person who is upset with traumatic life changes discover he or she is not alone, that there are others who are facing difficulties. Often just talking the problem out enables the individual to make the adjustments necessary for a happier outlook.

A happier life, according to experts, can be achieved by building a better mental outlook. Working at being happy may seem incongruous but it is worth the effort. It can pay off in better health, longer life and more enjoyment of those bonus years.

'Tis the season to begin!

I say

My grandmother's bed

It's over, but the memory lingers. Christmas, I mean. Every once in awhile, maybe every four or five years or so, I'll receive a super-special gift, something that brings pleasure for a long time. This was the year.

My mother gave me and my husband a down-filled quilt she had someone make for us. This is not an ordinary quilt. It's memories. When I get into bed and pull that high, puffy blanket up to my chin, I'm back in my grandmother's bed.

She had one of those wonderful old houses in Detroit that had stained glass windows, French doors and leaded glass bookcase doors. And she had a unique bedroom. It was almost square and by day, there was not one piece of furniture in it. One wall was floor-to-ceiling mirrored doors. It was a magical place for a young girl to pose and dance and dream.

At night, when she opened those doors, down came the Murphy bed, a huge monster that except for a little walking space on three sides, took up the whole room. The mattress was for sinking in and the pillows were so large, my grandma had to make her own pillowcases to fit. Topping off this feather bed was a high, white, puffy quilt.

The top third of the bed was inside the closet, so when a person crawled in, it was like crawling into a cave. Talk about security. When I was in my grandma's bed, I was safe.

To supplement her income when my grandfather died, my grandmother converted her home into a boarding house. There were three bedrooms upstairs, and over the years, there was a variety of male boarders, some more memorable than others.

There was Frank, a small, trim man with black hair and a perfect mustache. He epitomized what the word dapper stands for. He was also a gentleman and a gentle man.

I would sit in the living room near the window looking out the front for what seemed like hours on Friday nights. I would wait for Frank to come home so we could play cards. He taught me a few games.

Looking back now, I realize the poor guy probably couldn't wait to get home from work, clean up and go out. But he always sat and played a few games with a shy and awkward kid who adored him. His mother raised him right.

I don't know what happened to Alex, but he was a different sort. He was a 300-pound loner who rarely talked. He did a lot of reading though. I know because he had quite a pornography collection. He also collected guns. To this day, I equate the two.

I know all this because I used to help my grandmother clean house on Saturdays. She was a small woman, a hard worker, who didn't stand on ceremony with anybody. Saturday mornings, she got out the broom and pounded the ceiling with the handle to get them out of bed and out of the house. That was the rule. It didn't matter what time they came in Friday night or more accurately, Saturday morning. They had to be gone on cleaning day.

She taught me to open the top drawer of their dresser and shove everything that was on top into it. So I could dust properly. She didn't care about invading their privacy; it was her house and everything was thoroughly dusted, not moved around and dabbed at here and there.

That's how I came upon Alex's pornographic material. I couldn't wait for the doorbell to ring so my grandmother would go downstairs for a while. I would sit in the corner and read as fast as I could — there were no pictures.

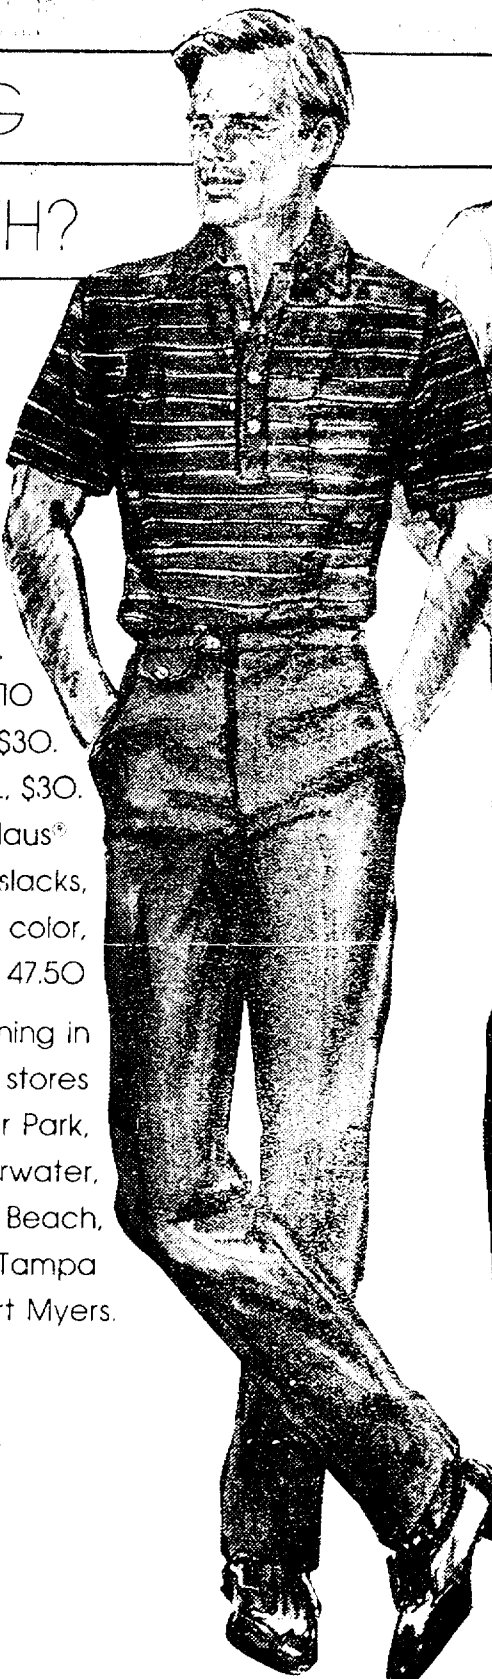

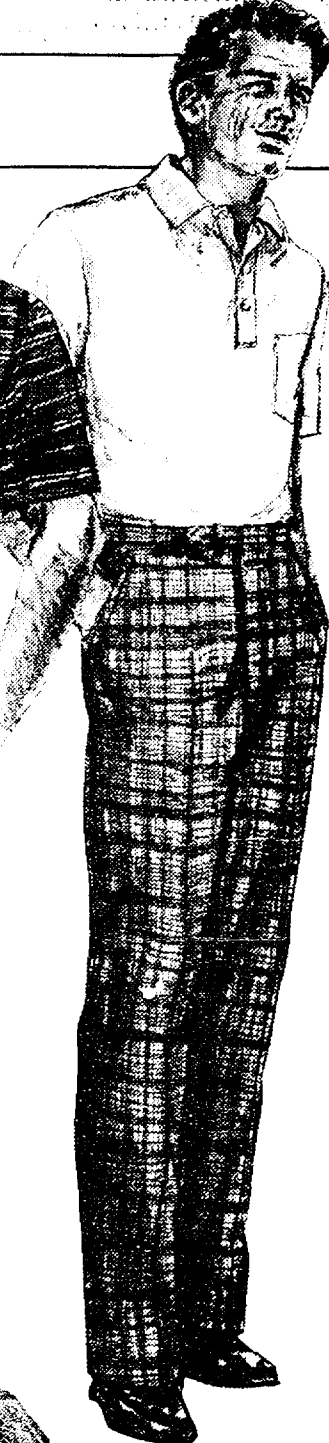

Of course, if my grandma ever knew of this, Alex would have been out the door. She didn't speak English, so she never knew what kind of books he kept.

I was a voracious reader in those days, knocking off a book a day during summer vacations. Back then, children were not allowed to borrow books from the adult section of the library and it was frustrating to an adolescent who was past Flicka and into Pearl Buck. So I worked my way through my mother's bookcase. I remember she would be concerned about some of the books, that they might be too explicit for me. And all along, I was reading Alex's latest on Saturday mornings. Oh, well.

That's why I am opposed to any form of censorship. I read some of the worst garbage written and it helped me to appreciate and recognize good literature.

Strange that these memories and many others come back when I get under that feather quilt. Strange, too, that I feel safer under it than I ever felt under an electric blanket. Some things you never outgrow.

Harold Hunter Emmons Jr.

A memorial service was held Saturday, Dec. 27, at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church for Harold Hunter Emmons Jr. of Grosse Pointe Farms. He died Dec. 23 in Bon Secours Hospital of lung cancer.

Mr. Emmons was born in Detroit, graduated from the University of Michigan in 1933, and from U of M law school in 1935.

He served as an Army lawyer in the Philippines during World War II. After the war, he helped set up governments in liberated territory. He was also one of two attorneys selected to defend 300 Japanese commandants and camp guards accused of atrocities against U.S. prisoners of war. One of his three sons, Charles, said, "He wrote . . . that it was very hard to defend the commandants and guards when he had known people in the Philippines and knew how they had been treated. But he did the job." Mr. Emmons finished his army career as a major with three medals, including the Bronze Star.

After the war, he was an assistant Wayne County prosecutor for two years before starting a private law practice.

He had a longtime interest in antique cars and was a member of the Lincoln Owners Club, the Classic Car Club of America, the Society of Automotive Historians, the Antique Automobile Club of America, the Model A Restorers Club and a former director of the Great Lakes Region's Veteran Motor Car Club of America.

He was also a member of Alliance Francaise, the Society of Colonial Wars, the Grosse Pointe Historical Society, and he was an usher at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church for 10 years.

THE DETROIT AUTO SHOW

COBO HALL JANUARY 10-18, 1987

The 1987 Detroit Auto Show

The 1987 Detroit Auto Show begins its nine-day run January 10 at Cobo Hall. More than 500 new cars and trucks will be displayed including several vehicles on display for the first time ever. The show is open weekends from noon to 10:30 p.m. and weekdays from 2:00 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. Tickets are $4.75. Children under 12 accompanied by an adult are admitted free. Senior citizens are also admitted free.

Auto Show Highlights

The 71st Detroit Auto Show begins its annual nine-day run Saturday, January 10 at Cobo Hall.

More than 500 new cars and trucks will be exhibited in Cobo's four halls. Show-goers will see the debut of several vehicles and concept cars, new high-tech displays and new musical and video productions.

Seen for the first time anywhere will be Chrysler Corporation's Dodge Daytona concept car for the 1990's, the Dodge Terminator pickup, GMC's Sierra pickup, Oldsmobile's Aerotech high-performance test car and Pontiac's new concept vehicle, the Pursuit.

Also debuting in Detroit (and simultaneously in Los Angeles) are the 1988 Renault Medallion sedan and station wagon, the 1988 Renault Alpine sports car and the luxury version of the Jeep Cherokee, all from AMC, plus Chevrolet's Corsica sedan, Beretta two-door coupe and 1988 pickup, the 1988 Lincoln Mark VII, 1988 Lincoln Town car, Merkur Scorpio and, from the imports, the Nissan mini-van.

Tickets are $4.75. Children 12 and under accompanied by an adult are admitted free. Senior citizens are also admitted free. The show is open from noon to 10:30 p.m. on weekends; 2:00 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. weekdays.

A rundown by exhibitor reveals the following:

AMERICAN MOTORS CORPORATION:

- Special showing of "America's Fastest Pickup Truck" — the 1987 Jeep Comanche. Capable of exceeding 141 mph, the Jeep Comanche set world speed records last September.

CHEVROLET TODAY'S CHEVROLET

Year has more peaks than valleys for schools

By Nancy Parmenter

Last year brought a lot of good times and a few bad ones to the Grosse Pointe schools. "It's been a year of many more positives than negatives," said Superintendent John Whritner last month.

Even some of the negatives worked to bring the community closer together.

"We were forced to face up to the issue of suicide," Whritner said. "We had to gain as much expertise as we could in a short time. To the credit of the community, there was a wide response. It wasn't seen as a school problem alone. We responded as well as any community could — as well as I've seen any community respond."

An incident with Intermediate School District special education students brought the schools some unwelcome publicity in a metropolitan daily last month. Although the severely handicapped students are outside the Grosse Pointe program and are just using space provided by the school system, the discrimination that is supposed to have occurred "could just as easily have happened with our own students," Whritner acknowledged.

The incident, which involved required notes of parental permission before "normal" students could attend the special education class open house, focused attention on the potentially rocky relationships with any community's retarded citizens. Whritner suggested that the attention might cause increased awareness of the problem.

"We haven't achieved perfection," he wrote to the newspaper at the time, "but we are striving to deal with this group as we do with all — with compassion and concern."

Several acts of vandalism have occurred at the school this year. Whritner said he cannot discern any pattern to the property damage, but that in all cases except for the recent wrecking of the North High School library, the perpetrators have been caught.

"In one case, it was alcohol-related," he said. "The most recent one (at the South library) was a misguided sense of what a prank is all about. It's hard to sort out, when you're growing up, what is seen as a heroic act and what is seen as a dumb act by your peers."

The area that has Whritner most enthusiastic this year is curriculum. Last spring, the school district undertook a curriculum revision that will involve input from teachers and administrators. The committees started work in earnest in September and have already reported some recommendations.

Recent adoptions of changes and additions to the health, math and computer programs represent part of the first wave of revisions. The changes in themselves are not unusual, being modifications rather than significant departures. But the process is new.

"The nature of the business is that you know that every five years or so, you'll take a look at, say, the reading program," Whritner said. What is new is the teacher involvement. "We're all in the teaching business together."

One of the changes Whritner said he planned when he came to the district was to involve teachers more. He said he dislikes a "top down" management style in which the administration imposes rules.

"Of course the board and the administration still have the final say," he said. "But (under new procedures) it's purposely difficult for me to question those who have expertise."

At the same time, the role of the administrators has shifted emphasis. They are now resource people or "head teachers," rather than bosses. Whritner says he hopes the new relationships will ease the way in teacher negotiations coming up next spring.

"Negotiations are by nature adversarial," he said. "The two sides present wish lists, they shake their fists and pound the table — but we all know about where we'll end up. A pattern emerges statewide. Maybe we can short-circuit that."

The teachers have made it clear that they have complicated procedures to go through before they can agree to bargain early. Some observers have said Whritner may be overly optimistic.

"I understand what the association has to go through," Whritner said. "They're dealing with their own and Local One procedures, with history and tradition. But so far they've been willing to listen. I'm optimistic that the majority of the membership is interested."

Dropping enrollment, the bugbear of metropolitan-area school systems, seems to have leveled off. "You're never quite sure whether you're seeing year-to-year changes or trends," Whritner said, "but it seems to have plateaued... So much of the energy of the system in the past went to dealing with those (enrollment-caused) problems."

The problem hasn't quite vanished at the two high schools, which will continue to deal with it for the next several years. The system is looking at creative ways to keep up the level of service in the face of fewer students. Sharing services between the two schools, the possible use of a shuttle bus, letting one school focus on certain aspects of the curriculum and the other on different aspects are some ways to avoid out-and-out dropping of classes.

Challenges in the upcoming year are already arraying themselves on the horizon. The big issue will be the use of space.

"There's just nothing left," Whritner said. "I bless those who back in the '20s set aside some land for schools."

Library expansion is top-most on the list of needs of space. A committee to select an architect for the remodeling and expansion project at Central Library and two branches has already met and Whritner said he expects an architect to be picked by February.

"The question is where and how you'll use your space," he said.

A committee has already argued the merits of expanding the Central Library into the South High School athletic field — a controversial and by-no-means-settled option — or moving it to Barnes School or starting over somewhere else. No decision has yet been made.

Because there are so few facilities, school services play musical chairs in every brainstorming session. Some have suggested that the library move to Barnes, leaving the library building empty so the school administration can move in. Others have promoted the idea of moving the administration to Barnes and community education back to the administration building.

Nobody has met as an official committee on the administration building yet, but it is "starting to surface as a serious discussion item," Whritner said. "It's clear we must either renovate or move out."

The old building leaks heat through the walls and water through the basement — where the school system's computer equipment is housed. Offices are not crowded, Whritner said, but the space is substandard. The district has just entered the "information-gathering" phase.

Other challenges include beefing up the substance-abuse program and making plans for improving teachers' skills.

The substance abuse program was started a year ago with a qualified counselor, but efforts to hire a second counselor have not panned out. "The state hasn't helped us on that, frankly," Whritner said.

The state requires a background that includes teacher certification. The combination of expertise in substance abuse counseling and teaching has proved difficult to find, according to Whritner. The school district spent several months trying to convince the state to change its standards, but to no avail.

Teaching skills are currently being addressed in committee, with reports expected sometime during the second semester. A committee on supervision is working out means toward a more cooperative and supportive relationship between teachers and administrators, while staff development committee works on ways for teachers to get additional training in their subject area.

"All of these things are leading away from a 'we-they' and toward an 'us,'" Whritner said. "We're making some tremendous progress."

The wonder, mystery

... of chemistry is reflected in the faces of Heather Van Toll, Valaire Van Slyck, Rory Sullivan and Dan Minadeo of Pierce Middle School during its second science assembly. Mark Spalding of Mobil Ed provided the ingredients.

Cinema League

The Grosse Pointe Cinema League will meet at the War Memorial at 8 p.m. Monday, Jan. 12. Helen Kosy, a member of the Camera Club who has traveled extensively, will show 35mm slides of her Baltic Countries Tour.

The travelogue will visit places not frequented by the average tourist: Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia.

The tour of Lithuania will feature medieval fortresses, baroque cathedrals, a visit to a school plus street scenes of Vilna, its capital. In Latvia there will be a walking tour of the capital, Riga, and a visit to a Nazi concentration camp.

Estonia's picturesque capital Tallinn, was at one time the home of the Teutonic knights. Some evidence of this and the remains of 15th century towers will be encountered during a walking tour of that city. There will be views of street scenes, coffee houses, Protestant churches, a Russian Orthodox cathedral and an outdoor museum.

In Leningrad, there will be a visit to an upper middle class Russian family in their apartment on the Neva River, the White Palace and the Catherina Palace in Pushkin, built for the daughter of Peter the Great.

Lastly, there will be a boat ride on the Moscow River, going past Gorky Park and the sports stadium in Moscow, plus a visit to the convent where Peter the Great exiled his half sister, Sophia. Here is a rare glimpse of the areas frequented by Peter the Great and which are closest to the western world, with brief close-ups of the people encountered, food served, and places visited presented with levity and humor.

The public is invited. There is a charge of $1.50 for non-members.

Brownell fun night

A Family Fun Night is scheduled at Brownell Middle School Friday, Jan. 16, from 7 to 9 p.m. Shoot baskets, play volleyball or ping pong, swim, practice some tumbling, make an arts and crafts project, watch a movie. Admission is $1 per person.

Guest

Julie Gallimore, president of the Michigan Association for Children and Adults With Learning Disabilities, stands with Jack Lambka, counselor at Pierce Middle School, who will be the guest speaker at the association's Jan. 20 meeting. His topic will be "Characteristics Most Important to Children's Development."

DSO lecture

John Guinn, music critic for the Detroit Free Press, will lecture on the future Detroit Symphony program, Monday, Jan. 12, at 8 p.m. at Village Record and Tapes. The program will include Debussy, Nocturnes; Ellen Taaffe Zwilich, Concerto for Piano and Orchestra; and Dvorak, Symphony No. 8.

Guinn holds bachelor and master of music degrees from the University of Notre Dame. While an undergraduate, he was appointed assistant to the conductor of the Notre Dame Glee Club, and as a graduate student he held a teaching fellowship in music theory and piano.

In addition, DSO librarian Elkhono Yoffe, who has written a book on Tchaikovsky, will autograph his book for those interested in purchasing one.

A question-and-answer period will follow. The lecture is presented free as a community service by the Detroit Symphony League.

Winter concert

Grosse Pointe South High School's Instrumental Music Department will present its annual winter concert Thursday, Jan. 15, at 8 p.m. in the Parcels Middle School auditorium.

The Symphony Orchestra will begin the program with Mozart's "Overture to the Marriage of Figaro," followed by Albinoni's "Sinfonia" and Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony." The Symphonic Band will perform "Marche Militaire Francaise" by Saint-Saens, "Festive Overture" by Shostakovich, "El Camino Real" by Reed, and "The Klaxon March" by Fillmore.

Admission is free.

Scandinavian trip

The War Memorial will conduct a free information night on a July trip to Scandinavia, at 7 p.m., Wednesday, Jan. 14.

DePauw concert

The DePauw Chamber Symphony will perform a concert at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Jan. 12, at the Grosse Pointe Academy Chapel, part of a 12-concert, two-week tour of the United States.

The all-undergraduate chamber orchestra, under the direction of Orcenith Smith, is the elite core of the DePauw Symphony Orchestra. This ensemble has previously taken six national tours, and a tour of Austria. The chamber tours every other year during DePauw's winter term. It has performed in New York City's Carnegie Hall, in Canada and on Austrian national radio.

Featured during this performance will be the overture to the opera "Abu Hassan" by Carl Maria von Weber. Le Tombeau de Couperin by Maurice Ravel, Stravinsky's Suite No. 1 for Small Orchestra, Short Symphony by David Ott (DePauw's composer-in-residence) and a work commissioned for the DePauw Sesquicentennial.

The concert is free and open to the general public. The Grosse Pointe Academy is located at 171 Lakeshore Road.

Symphony lecture

Pat Junker, music appreciation instructor, will present the season's first Grosse Pointe Symphony preview lecture Wednesday, Jan. 14 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Biographical notes and recorded music of Dvorak, Mendelssohn, Wagner and von Weber will be presented. Time will be devoted to the actual works to be performed Sunday, Jan. 18, at 3 p.m. in the auditorium of Parcels Middle School.

Subsequent lectures will be on Monday, Feb. 9, in conjunction with the Sunday, Feb. 15, concert; and again on Wednesday, March 11, prior to the Sunday, March 15 concert.

All lectures will be held at the Barnes Center, 20090 Morningside Drive, Room 101. For information, call 343-2178. The fee is $4.50 per lecture. Advance registration is suggested.

Smoke won't get in your eyes

By Margie Reins Smith

Grosse Pointe's smokers will be placed on the defensive as soon as local officials begin implementing Michigan's Clean Indoor Air Act, which went into effect Jan. 1.

Non-smokers must receive priority treatment, according to the new law. Government buildings, public universities, museums, auditoriums — any places where groups of people meet — must be designated as no smoking areas. In work areas such as both smokers and non-smokers, a separate section must be designated for those who smoke. Non-smokers must have space closest to a supply of fresh air.

Before 9 a.m. Friday, Jan. 2, Grosse Pointe Woods Department of Public Safety personnel were busy moving ashtrays to lobbies and posting no smoking signs at entrances to the building.

Smoking had been allowed during some city council meetings — the Woods, Farms, Park and the City — but it will be prohibited from now on.

Smoking was never allowed during Shores council meetings, although it was permitted in the rest of the building. It will not be restricted to the outer lobby on the first floor and in private offices of smokers.

The Farms has ordered no smoking signs and is still implementing the new policy, according to John DeFoe, director of public services, but smoking will not be allowed in future council meetings, he said.

Grosse Pointe Park Director of Public Service Jim Ellison said of the law, "This is a happy change." He has ordered signs and expects the law to be enforced at the next council meeting Jan. 12.

The City, which had some non-smoking areas, will now restrict smoking to a lounge in the city office and to the dispatch area in the public safety department.

Grosse Pointe school board meetings have never had a policy because nobody smokes and the subject has never come up. They're working on a policy, however, to cover school employees who smoke. The board banned student smoking at both high schools in December.

Tricia Barber, community health education coordinator for Cottage Hospital, said, "I think most smokers want to quit."

"This law will bring more pressure on smokers, especially those in an office situation where they'll have to find a new place to smoke. It might be just the impetus they need."

Barber is promoting Cottage Hospital's Smokeless class, which is designed to help people who want to quit.

Free introductory sessions will be held Jan. 12 and 14, at 7:30 p.m. in the Nurses' Residence she said. The Smokeless program was developed by Dr. Don Powell, of the American Institute for Preventive Medicine. The program is available nationwide, and has been offered by Cottage Hospital for about four years.

"It's a behavioral modification program," Barber said. "There is a fee ($155) after the introductory session for those who decide to join. During the treatment phase, the class meets four days in a row for 1½ hours each day.

"Smoking is considered a physical and a psychological addiction," she said. "We teach people how to deal with the problems of quitting." During the following two weeks, class meets for once-a-week maintenance sessions.

"I suppose the class most closely resembles some local weight loss programs," she said. "It's more than a support group, however, because we have a trained instructor. People team up with a buddy. They exchange information and we teach skills such as stress management, weight control and behavioral modification techniques."

Other public meeting places in Grosse Pointe are preparing to enforce the new law. Mark Weber, director of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, said that smoking is not allowed in the Fries Auditorium, but as for the rest of the building, "There is no policy now because there have never been any complaints. We will look at the new law," he said.

Woods Councilman Robert Novitke, the only smoker on the council, said, the Clean Indoor Air law will make it harder for him to smoke, but it hasn't made him consider quitting.

Journalists to discuss China

The information that comes out of China and how to interpret it will be the topic of "Bridging the Communication Gap," at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial on Thursday, Jan. 15, at 7:30 p.m.

Journalist and photographer Jeanne Moore will team with former "China Daily" editor Jing Jun to share their insights on the language, culture and political environment that affects the news coverage in China. Moore will exhibit her photographs taken in China, as will D.E. Cox, who leads photographic tours through China. Tickets cost $10 per person.

Moore, who grew up in the South Pacific and East Asia, has a B.A. in government from Smith College and advanced degrees in Chinese studies and journalism from University of Michigan. During the 1984-85 year, she was English-language editor for the Translation Bureau of the Chinese Communist Party's Central Committee and wrote about her experiences when she returned to this country.

Jun is a native in Beijing (formerly Peking) who attended the Beijing Foreign Languages Institute and was a fellow of the East-West Center for the University of Hawaii. He has written scripts for China Central Television's education channel and was the editor of the magazine, International Forum. Currently he is a graduate student at Harvard University.

"Bridging the Communication Gap" will be the first of several programs on China that the War Memorial's Council of Sponsors will present through March 4. In February, scholars from the U of M Chinese Studies Department will present a mini-course on China. A photographic exhibit works by Robert Stewart will be displayed on Feb. 25, and Chinese tea breaks will be offered at each lecture.

Foundation receives $1 million

Textron Corporation announced a $1 million gift to the Community Foundation for Southeastern Michigan, which will support philanthropic activities in the seven-county area.

In announcing the gift, Textron Vice Chairman E. Paul Casey, a Grosse Pointe resident, said that it represents a continuing commitment to the community — a continuation of the community support that was sponsored over the years by Ex-Cell-O Corporation through its Ex-Cell-O Foundation.

Texttron acquired Ex-Cell-O in September with a direct stock buy-out. Casey was Ex-Cell-O's chairman and chief executive officer.

Formed in the spring of 1984, the Community Foundation is chaired by Joseph L. Hudson Jr., also of Grosse Pointe. It follows a concept first originated over 70 years ago. The basic idea is a permanent community endowment built by gifts from hundreds of community citizens and organizations who are committed to the future of southeastern Michigan.

Park larcenies

Snowblowers and automobile dashboard accessories remain popular targets for thieves in Grosse Pointe Park.

On Dec. 28, a snowblower was taken from a garage in Yorkshire. The same night, an AM/FM cassette player and a radar detector were taken from a 1981 Datsun parked on Nottingham.

Also on Dec. 28, an AM/FM radio and cassette player were taken from a 1979 Porsche on Whittier.

The same night, a floodlight and extension cord from a Christmas display on Lakepointe and a dumpster on Lakeview Court were taken, according to police reports.

Learn French, Japanese

In cooperation with the University of Detroit, the War Memorial will offer courses in beginning, as well as continuing, classes in French and Japanese, using the acclaimed Dartmouth-Rassias method. This unique method of instruction will be demonstrated free Monday, Jan. 12, at 7:30 p.m., at the War Memorial.

Designed for professionals who plan to work or travel abroad and their families, the program offers a condensed session of intensive study equal to one year of college level instruction. Within the course students will receive an extensive cultural orientation as well.

The Dartmouth-Rassias method incorporates speaking, listening, reading and writing, with an emphasis on speaking. Drills enable each student to respond up to 100 times each evening.

Periodic evaluations will be given, using the U.S. State Department's Foreign Service Institute Criteria. The course fee is $375 for 24 sessions, plus $15 to $30 for textbooks.

The classes that will meet on Mondays and Thursdays from 6 to 9 p.m., beginning Jan. 19, are the introductory course, French 115, and the advance study classes, French 116 and Japanese 116. Japanese 115, the introductory course, will meet on Mondays and Wednesdays.

For complete details on the course and how to register, attend the demonstration Monday evening, or call U of D at 927-1025.

For widows, widowers

Mary E. Herta Jamerino, M.S.W., will conduct a workshop at Cottage Hospital called "Your First Year Alone" for widows and widowers.

The session is Tuesday, Jan. 13, 7 to 8:30 p.m., in the nurses' residence at the rear of the main parking lot. The hospital is located at 159 Kercheval, between Moross and Cadieux roads.

Participants will learn techniques to help them cope and adapt to their new situation.

Recent and not-so-recent widows and widowers, as well as their family members and friends, are invited to attend this free workshop. Reservations are requested. Call the Cottage Hospital Social Work department at 884-8600, ext. 2165.

Joseph L. Hudson, Jr. (left), chairman of the Community Foundation for Southeastern Michigan, accepts a $1 million check from E. Paul Casey, vice chairman of Textron Corporation.

Jazz dancing for kids starts today

Registration for Jazz Dancing will be held today at the War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore. Youngsters new to Kara Kennedy's class may sign up between 3:30 and 4 p.m.

before the class begins at 4 p.m. Kennedy will be on hand to demonstrate and discuss her method of teaching.

Classes will be established based on the student's age, ability and previous dance or gymnastic experience and will meet weekly, for 45-minute sessions. The course fee is $54 per student.

New life for a landmark

The graceful interior arches and vaulted ceiling along the McKinley side of the Punch and Judy building will be retained. The new main entrance is on the right, along McKinley Road.

The old theater seating was to the left. Martin Duggan, job superintendent, inspects some renovation work.

The former second floor lounge once featured a working fireplace where patrons of the movie theater could relax and chat between feature films. A third floor will be added above.

The Punch and Judy building, home of Grosse Pointe's 57-year-old movie house — a local landmark — is undergoing a complete transformation. The building was designed by architect Robert O. Derrick, who also designed the Henry Ford Museum and many private homes in Grosse Pointe and Detroit.

The theater opened Jan. 29, 1930, with much fanfare and publicity. Its first feature film, "Disraeli," was billed as "the finest talking picture to date." Also on the program for opening night: a sound newsreel and a tinted color subject, "Dance of the Dolls."

The focal point of the renovated interior will be a central atrium with glass skylight and a glass elevator to the second and third floors.

A third floor is being created, with former windows added to the Kercheval side of the building to match those on the McKinley side. The main entrance will be on McKinley.

There was more to the project than meets the eye, according to Jack Monahan, chairman of the board of Edward V. Monahan, Inc., contractor. The sloping floor of the former theater had to be leveled, and new foundations were set down to the basement. A pair of stairways leading to the second floor were removed, and the balcony, or loge seating area, was demolished.

Exterior renovations will keep the design of the building close to that of the original Derrick plans, with use of old brick, dormers and gables.

Architects for the renovation are Schervish Vogel and Merz. General contractor is Edward V. Monahan, Inc.

Completion of the project is scheduled for March or April 1987.

The old Punch and Judy theater lobby, above, has been completely gutted, and is undergoing renovation into office and commercial space. At the right, the roof on the Kercheval side of the building will be renovated to make room for the third floor, and dormer windows will bring natural light into the added space. The new main entrance will be on the right, under the three windows.

Steel beams have been placed for support of the new second floor area. The atrium will be in the left corner open area. Old hollow tile walls, right, were typical of '20s construction.

Opinions differ . . .

Fleming said his company believes a number of year-end demands on the money supply by institutions pushed up the T-bill yields, but that they will fall below the discount rate after the new year begins.

"It is an indicator which has proven true in the past, and we will be keeping an eye on it," Fleming said.

Roney's monthly research report indicates the firm is optimistic about the economy in the long run, but has some reservations about the next several months.

The report said the reasons for the long-term optimism centers around the implementation of the new tax reform bill.

Roney sees the tax reform bill as being a positive force for three reasons. The bill rewards income generation for the vast majority of individuals and a large majority of corporations. Income, says the report, is generated by investment and there should be more of both as a result of the tax bill. Roney sees the tax bill as more neutral. The old tax code in essence subsidized favored industries, and now the neutral structure allows economic decision-making to be a function of market forces—a positive result of the tax bill, according to the report.

Interest rates are likely to decline as a result of the bill, the report said. That will result from encouraging income and savings and dramatically reducing the tax incentives for incurring debt.

There may be a bright spot on the national economic horizon as far as the new tax bill goes, but Leonard said that locally, the auto industry could be hit hard by the reduction in tax incentives for borrowing.

Sales tax deductions on federal income tax, along with the gradual elimination of deductions on interest paid could hit the automobile companies like a runaway truck.

Michigan relies heavily on the health of the auto industry. With the consumer savings rate already so low, and the consumer debt level so high, consumers will not be in a spending mood in 1987.

Couple that with the loss of sales tax and interest deductions on taxes, and the auto industry may be facing a serious sales slump.

"Some people are saying that the new tax laws won't hurt car sales," Leonard said. "I very much disagree. Consumers have counted on the tax breaks of purchasing cars, and they won't be there now."

"There are a lot of reasons to expect a poor year from the auto industry," Leonard continued. "There will be a lot of ripple effects. The housing market in Michigan could cool off."

Leonard said that the recent lay-off announcement by General Motors shows that the industry is aware of future problems and that it is doing what it can to cushion the fall.

Roney's report was headlined, "Outlook remains cautious!" Leonard, much less optimistic.

"If the predictions hold true," Leonard said, "there will be little chance for growth in 1987."

Cars stolen

Car thieves were busy during the days after Christmas in Grosse Pointe Park. Between Dec. 26-29, five cars were stolen and an additional attempt was made. Three were recovered later.

On Dec. 26, a 1983 Camaro was taken from a Lakepointe house. It was recovered later at Charlevoix and St. Clair.

Two days later, a 1977 Oldsmobile was taken from Barrington. It was recovered the next day on Kitchener in Detroit.

Also on Dec. 28, a 1978 Oldsmobile was stolen from a Nottingham driveway; a 1974 Chevrolet was taken from Beaconsfield; a 1979 Chevrolet parked on Lakepointe had the steering column damaged in an attempt to steal it; and a 1973 Pontiac was stolen from Nottingham. That car was recovered in the Farms. Two Grosse Pointe men are suspects in the case.

Pharmacy broken in

A Mack Avenue pharmacy in Grosse Pointe Woods was broken into early in the morning Jan. 1. According to police reports, the burglars entered the building after throwing a rock through the glass door. About $100 was missing from two cash drawers.

Witnesses passing the pharmacy at about 3:15 a.m. noticed a vehicle backed into a metered parking slot near the entrance, saw the broken glass door, and observed three men, one carrying a white canvas bag. The witnesses stopped a Woods police car and reported their suspicions to officers.

Police found two pieces of evidence at the scene, apparently dropped by the burglars.

Investigation is continuing, according to Detective Cpl. Thomas Podaszewicz of the Woods Department of Public Safety.

Park break-ins

Thieves broke into a business and a house in Grosse Pointe Park last week.

According to police reports, on Dec. 29, someone entered a house on Three Mile Drive through an unlocked rear door. The person made off with a bow and arrows, a television remote control, a chess board and liquor.

A Kercheval business was broken into Dec. 27. A thief took the cash box with $345 and miscellaneous checks.

Man to be arraigned for carrying weapon

A Redford Township man, 23, is expected to be arraigned Jan. 13 on charges of carrying a gun in an automobile. He was arrested Jan. 2 in Grosse Pointe.

The man was a passenger in a car driven by his twin brother, of Westland, and was accompanied by another brother and a friend from Farmington Hills and Warren. Public Safety Officer David Teolis of the City stopped their 1986 Ford for speeding on Jefferson at about 3:15 a.m. on New Year's night.

Teolis reported that when he stopped the car, a passenger in the back seat handed him a gun, which he claimed to have picked up in a fight a few minutes before. The gun was a .38 caliber blue steel revolver, loaded with two rounds of live ammunition. The gun was later discovered to belong to a Detroit man, father of one of the youths the man was fighting with.

The four young men told police they had been assaulted by two black men in Detroit as a result of a traffic altercation. They had cuts and bruises on their faces, according to the report.

Teolis checked with Detroit police, who had just made a conflicting report on the same fight. Two black youths, about 18 or 19, had come into the Detroit First Precinct to tell police that they had been assaulted by four white men who had stolen their gun.

According to Detroit police, the two men, who had cuts and bruises and facial swelling when they walked into the station, had been driving along Jefferson when a car with four white men yelling racial slurs pulled alongside, then cut them off.

Both cars stopped and everybody got out. One of the Detroit men told police he had been carrying a gun in his pocket, but took it out and left it on the front seat. The six men fought; under cover of the confusion, one of the white men reached into the car and took the gun.

Both cars took off again, this time with the Detroit men in pursuit, possibly hoping to retrieve the gun. They stopped again and fought, then drove to an area near the Roostertail, where they argued and the driver of the suburban car allegedly drove his car into the passenger door of the Detroit car. The four white men then headed back out Jefferson toward Grosse Pointe.

According to City Detective Sgt. John Drummond, when a series of illegal acts has been committed, charges are usually brought against the most serious one, in this case, the possession of a gun in a car.

Windows smashed at North High

Four windows were broken at Grosse Pointe North High School Monday, Dec. 29, according to Woods police reports. A 2-foot by 4-foot window in the center door of the entrance to building B was apparently smashed with a wooden parking sign which was found inside the door.

Three more broken windows were discovered on the east and west side of building C.

Tools stolen

Farms police are investigating the larceny of a tool box and tools valued at $1,000 from a garage on Lothrop.

The breaking and entering was reported to police at 1 a.m. Jan. 1.

Juveniles caught

Two juveniles were arrested Dec. 30 when it was reported that someone was trying to break in at Richard School in the Farms at about 11:50 p.m.

Police located one of the juveniles, a boy, near the school grounds. The juvenile later gave police the name and address of his male accomplice.

The juveniles were taken into custody and later released to their parents.

Court action is pending.

Snowblowers taken

Three snowblowers were stolen in the City in five days last week. According to police reports, one was taken from a garage on Lincoln on Dec. 30, a second from a garage on Washington on New Year's Day, and a third from another garage on Lincoln on Jan. 3.

Schools

Parcells essay winners say no to drugs

There were nine winners in Parcells Middle School's annual essay contest: three from each grade. Students were asked to respond to the question, "How Do I Say No to Drugs," in 300 words or less.

They were judged according to content, legibility and grammar by a three-member panel that included William Christofferson, principal; Suzanne Klein, assistant principal; and Sally Giacobbe, Parcells SAC chairperson.

The contest was a total school effort sponsored by the Parcells SAC Committee and included the Parcells staff, the PTO, the students and their parents. Essays were identified only by code so that they could be judged impartially.

The first-place winners received $25 in cash and are Kristen Ferrari, sixth grade, daughter of Gary and Mary Ferrari; Maura Winkworth, seventh grade, daughter of Paul and Susan Winkworth; (Maura was also a first place winner in the 1985 essay contest); and Nikki Tassos, eighth grade, daughter of Alexander and Ida Tassos.

Second-place winners, who received $10 in cash, are Kenneth Priebe, sixth grade, son of Bob and Liz Priebe; Jennifer Channel, seventh grade, daughter of Nelson and Rose Channel; and David Codd, eighth grade, son of John and Virginia Codd.

Third-place winners received $5 in cash and include Alanna Morrison, sixth grade, daughter of Andrew and Kathleen Morrison;

Steve Fontana, seventh grade, son of Frank and Carolyn Fontana; and Elizabeth Bakunovich, eighth grade, daughter of Luda Bakunovich.

Jennifer Connell, eighth grade, received an honorable mention.

Following are the first place essays:

Saying no to drugs is the most important decision we will have to make in the next few years. So far, our parents and teachers have been the biggest influence in our lives. They have taught us a value system and the dos and don'ts of everyday life. They have helped form us into the people we are today. Now that we aren't little children any longer, our parents and teachers will not be with us every minute of every day.

In middle school a lot of things are changing in our lives. We're going to dances, parties and sports games and meeting new people and new ideas which are coming into our life every day. We have to know who our friends are, and who is going to try to talk us into bad situations.

If our friends tell us it's real cool to take drugs and it won't harm us, I know they're lying. All we have to do is say no. It's that simple. Just say no and walk away.

When we go to parties and new places, people are going to try to tell us that drugs are O.K., but they're wrong. Drugs can kill you, and drugs can change your whole life for the worse.

We must be able to say no by being strong; by being the kind of people our parents and teachers have taught us to be. We must love ourselves and care enough about ourselves to say, "No, it's not for me. I like who I am, and I enjoy life the way it is."

— Kristen Ferrari

Now the government is really cracking down on the use, or a better word would be abuse of drugs, and hundreds of commercials are on the air condemning the use of them. Learning about the dangers of drugs and seeing movies showing the outcomes of addicts is making it much easier for me to say NO to drugs. But people who are less fortunate than I may see drugs or alcohol as a primary solution to solving their problems.

What do you need drugs for? They'll cost you your life.

Peer pressure and problems at home are the main reasons why adolescents turn to drugs. When I have a problem at home, I talk to my parents about it, and when there is pressure among peers at school, my advice is to only do something if you feel it is right for you. Don't let anybody, even if it's your best friend, force you into drugs or convince you that they are harmless.

I say NO to drugs by thinking about my goals in life and how I will never be able to achieve them if I use drugs. I remember photographs of drug addicts and their lives which have been destroyed because of drug abuse.

Wouldn't you rather decide on your life and your future than have drugs do it for you?

— Maura Winkworth

"Say No to Drugs" is a slogan being strongly stressed to adolescents and adults in the United States.

A drug is a chemical substance that affects the functions of living things. Drugs can be used properly in treating, diagnosing and preventing diseases. Drugs can be harmful, poisonous or even fatal, however, if used incorrectly.

The average age for experimenting with drugs and alcohol is surveyed to be at age 12. From the first drink, an adolescent can become an alcoholic in six to 18 months.

Drugs and alcohol only lead to unpleasant things. Alcohol is the leading cause of birth defects. Alcohol-related car accidents are the number one cause of deaths for high school students. Heavy and prolonged use of drugs may result in physical dependence and severe withdrawal symptoms, such as insomnia, tremors, hallucinations and convulsions.

Marijuana, heroin and cocaine are some of the leading abused drugs in the United States which affect judgment, memory, coordination and motor skills. These drugs are illegal.

There are 25,000 different drugs in use today. Some of the groups of drugs are barbiturates, which re-

If you use drugs incorrectly, for the wrong reason and illegally, you are only hurting yourself, your peers, family and others around you. You experience many tormenting emotions and are foolish to put yourself through these difficulties. "Say No to Drugs" in the beginning and enjoy a healthier mind and body.

University Liggett School Holiday Festival volunteers prepare to deliver a basket to a church for a donation to a needy family. The group also delivered more than 200 pounds of ham to Crossroads. The funds are raised from a traditional Christmas party held at the War Memorial. From left are, Cindy Paul, festival prop chairman; Pedro Arango, head of the Upper School; Elizabeth Renick, festival chairman; and Susie Davis, co-chair.

ULS students follow tradition

University Liggett School students contributed more than 200 pounds of ham to a local charity following a tradition established years ago. Proceeds from the annual Holiday Festival will be given to Crossroads, a Detroit-based soup kitchen, pantry and counseling center.

The chairman of the gala festival attended by students, faculty and staff, Elizabeth Renick, explained that the evening is steeped in tradition. Each year students elect an 11th-grade girl to act as co-chairman of the event. Her mother serves as chairman.

The students attend a service at Christ Church and then proceed to the War Memorial for a dinner served by ULS parents. Preceding the dinner, a bear's head carried by the father of the chairperson, is paraded among the celebrants.

Musical entertainment this year was provided by the Box Populars, male students, the Copycats, female students, and the Cool Movers, a group of faculty and staff, all under the direction of music teacher Jim Hohmeyer.

After dinner, the group was treated to a Christmas play written this year by John Hammond. Each year the play includes a chorus of junior girls as sugar plum fairies, senior girls as snowflakes and senior boys as reindeer. The arrival of a secret Santa who distributes mock gifts concludes the evening's events.

Dressed in authentic Peruvian Indian costumes, Margarita Brinker and son Tony Vasquez were the grand prize winners for the best costumes at the University Liggett School International Dinner.

ULS celebrates heritage

They came from Germany, India, Peru, Greece, Italy, France, England, Scotland, Ireland, Japan, Poland and Dutch Indonesia. The variety of ethnic backgrounds was celebrated Nov. 20 by seventh-grade students at University Liggett School.

Students and parents wore costumes to represent their ethnic nationalities and prepared special recipes from their countries of origin. The evening was sponsored by the members of the foreign language department, including foreign language coordinator and French teacher Janel Harris and Latin teacher Susan Bernstein. The meal was coordinated by ULS parent Marjorie FitzSimons, of Grosse Pointe, and the seventh-grade room mothers.

Special guests at the dinner were the ULS foreign students. Each student spoke briefly about his or her family and said a few words in his or her native tongue.

The entertainment portion of the evening included an authentic Irish dance by Cara Stackpole, of Grosse Pointe, a piano selection by Alex Crenshaw, of Grosse Pointe, "Solfeggietto" by C.P.E. Bach, and a flute and piano duet presented by ULS music teacher Barb Ogar, of Sterling Heights, and Crenshaw. They performed "Min hat den har tie buler" by J.S. Bach.

Several parents also participated in the evening's program by showing items from their ethnic heritage: Mado Lie, of Grosse Pointe, Dutch Indonesia; Margarita Brinker, of Mount Clemens, Peru; Dr. Mohini Mishra, of Grosse Pointe, India; MaryAnn Skroeki, of Grosse Pointe, Poland; Viola Papas, of Grosse Pointe, Greece. Dr. Bert Weyhing, of Grosse Pointe, with the assistance of his seventh-grade daughter Beth, recited a poem in German.

The grand prize for best costume was awarded to Margarita Brinker and son Tony Vasquez, dressed in authentic Peruvian Indian costumes. Honorable mention was awarded to the following families for their outstanding costumes: Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wehmeier and son Wilson, of Grosse Pointe, attired in Scottish outfits; Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Knechtel and son Geoffrey, of Detroit, in African garb; and Drs. Shyam and Mohini Mishra and daughter Kiran, of Grosse Pointe, wearing authentic Indian attire. Student costume prizes were awarded to Tamara Lie, of Grosse Pointe, dressed in Dutch attire and Arthur Sandel, of Mount Clemens, wearing an authentic Polish costume.

The International Dinner was a highlight of the ULS Foreign Language Week at Middle School, which emphasized student awareness of other languages. The foreign students presented an assembly to describe their native lands and each day a different cuisine was available in the dining room, complete with menu written in the appropriate language.

Seventh-grade homerooms competed to create the best bulletin board in the halls to depict the ethnic background of each homeroom.

Winter white world

Snowstorm transforms familiar sights

Grosse Pointe's white Christmas was delivered about a week late, but last Friday's snow lived up to all expectations of beauty. To the left, an ornamental tree takes on the look of a frozen fountain in front of a house on Mapleton. At the upper right, a pine tree wears a fluffy white coat. Below at the right, the trees overhead form a lacy network of branches and snow. Below, the Nativity at St. Paul on the Lake Church wears a blanket of white.

Victorian homes were alive with houseplants

In early Victorian New England, Christmas Eve and Christmas Day were given over to church-going and convivial feasting in about equal proportions, but New Year's Day was the time for gift-giving.

In many books of the time devoted to housekeeping, there are whole chapters devoted to the decorating of rooms with plants and many suggestions about making plant stands, window boxes and terrariums to be given as gifts to special friends. Hanging baskets, then as now, were popular, and in a wonderful book of the time called "The American Woman's Home," some surprising suggestions for hanging baskets and other room decorations are made.

How about a sponge, filled with flax seed and kept wet, suspended by a cord, which is guaranteed to produce verdure and flowers in a short time? Or a large carrot scooped out and filled with water and hung in a window, which, it is promised, will send out graceful shoots in rich profusion?

Ivy was very popular as a room decoration in the 19th century and it was used in many different ways. Some of them sound a little alarming, like training ivy to grow all around the window frames and picture moldings of an entire room, or putting bottles of water behind pictures on the wall and rooting ivy in them to hang down over or around the picture. Or filling an ox-muzzle with moss and ivy and hanging it on the wall. (Where would one buy an ox-muzzle in Grosse Pointe?)

Terrariums were very popular and some of the suggestions for making them are just as practical today as they were in 1850 or earlier. A glass anything can be used — fish tank, punch or salad bowl, large glass jar or a glass cheese dome in a wide glass bowl — but it must have a glass plate or a piece of window glass to cover the top, except for the cheese dome, of course.

You will need some small pebbles and some charcoal (smash up some briquettes) in layers in the bottom. Then a layer two or three inches deep of potting soil. And if you arrange the soil in small hills and valleys your terrarium garden will be more visually interesting.

Plants that do well in terrariums include miniature ivy, miniature roses, strawberry begonias, miniature African violets, orchids, and periwinkles, ferns and mosses. Many wildflowers also thrive in terrariums.

The Gardener's Shed

Ellen Probert

The shape of your container will determine which plants will look best and do well in it. An interesting rock, shells from the beach, a small green china frog or other object adds attractiveness.

When you have your terrarium assembled moisten it (not too much) and put the top on and set it in a shady spot for a few days before you put it into place. It should have plenty of light — natural or artificial but not direct sunlight.

Be careful about too much. Don't have too much moisture; too much growth; too much fertilizer or too much light, and your terrarium will be, as "Godeys Lady's Book" puts it, "a fragment of the green woods brought indoors and silently growing; an untold treasure with which to enjoy the beautiful miracles of nature."

Here is a way to keep the lovely scent of Christmas trees and roping available all the year. When you dismantle the Christmas decorations and put all the beautiful, fragile ornaments back in their boxes for another year, don't just drag the tree itself out to the curb right away. First, take a scissors and snip off all the needles into a large container. Sweep up the ones that have fallen to the floor and add them too. Then let the container stand in a dry, warm place for a few days, giving it a stir from time to time. Then make or buy a small pillow case and stuff it very full of the fragrant needles. Tuck your small pine pillow in a corner of a couch or chair and the pine scent will linger to remind you of Christmas on the Fourth of July and beyond. In fact, for years to come.

While Christmas was a family occasion in the 19th century, New Year's Day was a time for Open House. Hostesses would send out invitations a week or more in advance and would receive callers dressed in their most elaborate bustled gowns. The house would be elegant with the Christmas decorations to which had been added flowers and ferns. Punchbowls would be set in holly wreaths on the table which was covered with the best damask and lit with candles. Mistletoe was wound around the chandeliers. An elaborate buffet table and eggnog and punch were available all day long and many guests went from house to house in a whole day of partying.

In the Chinese Flower Calendar the flower for January and winter is the plum blossom, which is the symbol of beauty and longevity; and in the Japanese Flower Calendar the pine is the flower, or plant, for January. And in ancient tradition the mistletoe is the symbol for affection and love. It was the magic plant of the druids, and was a good-luck gift to a woman. And in the Victorian language of flowers the mistletoe says "I shall surmount all difficulties!" A most worthy thought for the beginning of a new year.

Westminster Abbey organist to play in GP

An English organist will give a recital in Grosse Pointe at Christ Church on Friday evening, Jan. 16, at 8 p.m.

Simon Preston, organist of Westminster Abbey, London, will give his only Michigan recital on his 1987 tour in Grosse Pointe.

Having played for royal occasions at the abbey, directed the music for Prince Andrew this past summer, given many recital tours throughout the world, produced many recordings and played for films including the keyboard music for "Amadeus," it is indeed a rare privilege to have Preston give a recital on the Christ Church Holtkamp organ as part of the concert series.

Preston began his musical training as a chorister in the choir of Kings College, Cambridge. After studying organ at the Royal Academy of Music in London with C.H. Trevor, he returned to King's College as Organ Scholar.

In 1962, he was appointed sub-organist of Westminster Abbey and embarked on a career as a concert and recording artist. He made his first tour of the United States in 1965 and won the Edison Award for outstanding recordings of works by Messaien and Hindemith in 1971.

His latest film work was as assistant to Neville Marriner for the movie "Amadeus," in which he composed most of the Salieri keyboard music and did the actual forte-piano playing for Salieri and Mozart throughout most of the film.

In 1970, Preston was appointed organist and tutor in music at Christ Church, Oxford, where he concentrated on lecturing and teaching and on training the Cathedral Choir.

In 1980, Preston was appointed organist and master of the choristers of Westminster Abbey and now records exclusively for the Archive label. The recording of the "Coronation Anthems," by Handel with the Westminster Abbey Choir has been internationally well received, winning a 1984 Grand Prix du Disque (France). Among his current recordings is a disc of Widor's "Fifth Symphony" on the newly renovated organ in Westminster Abbey.

His recital on Jan. 16 at Christ Church will consist of music by Bach, Vivaldi, Handel, Dupre, Liszt and Widor. Recently, the

Simon Preston

New York Times reviewed "Preston is as stylish and sensitive as one could wish for." And the Washington Star said, "He is quite evidently a polished master of the King of instruments, and a superbly sensitive musician to boot." Tickets are $8 and should be reserved early by calling the church office at 885-4841.

GP Symphony welcomes violinist

Violinist Kathryn Votapek will make her professional orchestral debut with the Grosse Pointe Symphony on Sunday, Jan. 18, at 3 p.m., in Parcels Auditorium, Mack at Vernier, Grosse Pointe Woods. She will play Dvorak's Violin Concerto in A Minor, under the direction of conductor Felix Resnick.

Votapek, who was raised in East Lansing, is now completing her undergraduate studies at Indiana University's School of Music, to which she received a four-year scholarship. Her other awards include a fellowship for two summers of study at Tanglewood and the first runner-up prize in the Lansing Symphony Orchestra's National Young Artists Competition.

The violinist has appeared as soloist with the World Youth Symphony at Interlochen as well as with the Lansing Symphony.

Votapek is a member of a musical family. Her father, pianist Ralph Votapek, has appeared with major U.S. orchestras, including Chicago and the Boston Pops, makes sell-out biennial tours of Latin America, and has performed in Russia and Europe. He, too, has soloed with the Grosse Pointe Symphony and is scheduled to perform with Pro Musica in March. Kathryn's elder brother is a clarinetist and her younger brother, who plays cello, recently placed second in the "Quest for the Best" competition at Orchestra Hall.

The Jan. 18 program will also feature compositions by Weber, Mendelssohn and Wagner.

The concert will be immediately followed by a meet-the-artist reception, to which the audience is invited. Admission: $6 for adults,

Kathryn Votapek

$3 for students. Tickets at door or phone 886-6244.

Artists Market exhibition set

From Jan. 9 through Feb. 6, the Detroit Artists Market will feature recent work of six local artists coordinated by Caryn Shaye and Ann Youngren. The exhibition in the Lower Gallery will present works on paper and in metals by Philip Fike of the fine arts faculty at Wayne State University and reselection photographs by Bill Rauhauser, photography professor at the Center for Creative Studies. A catalog of the Fike and Rauhauser work will be available during the period of the exhibition.

The Detroit Artists Market is located at 1452 Randolph Street in Detroit's Harmonie Park. Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily Tuesday through Saturday. For further information about the current exhibition and the catalog, call 962-0337.

Optimists honor youth

The Lakeshore Optimist Club of Grosse Pointe honored local youth at its annual Youth Appreciation Dinner of Jan. 6, at the Harper Woods Community Center. Sister Mary Celeste Lynch, O.P., moderator of the Octagon Club of Bishop Gallagher High School, has announced the names of the five club members receiving the award.

This award was given to Kerri Hurford, daughter of Kathryn Arseneau of Detroit; Kristin Gorny, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Gorny of Roseville; Laura Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lee of Detroit; Paul Kesman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Kesman of Grosse Pointe Woods; and Joseph DiCresce, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene DeCresce of St. Clair Shores.

Each of these students, in addition to demonstrated leadership in the Octagon Club of Bishop Gallagher High School, has distinguished records of service to his/her school and community. Through dedication to the needs of the less fortunate, through their involvement in programs of academic, athletic and cultural development, and through far-reaching leadership in their community, these young men and women represent well the ideals of Bishop Gallagher High School and the Octagon Club, the youth extension of Optimist International.

Monsignor Francis X. Canfield
St. Paul on the Lake Church

Paul E. Brophy, a 49-year-old Boston firefighter, suffered profound brain damage in 1983. He never regained consciousness, never emerged from a deep coma. Long before the accident that resulted in his grave condition, he had told his wife that he wished never to be kept alive through artificial means in a hopeless state. His wife had to resort to legal action in 1986 to fulfill his wishes, going to the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court and even to the U. S. Supreme Court. Eight days after the artificial life-support systems were withdrawn, including feeding, Paul Brophy died. Brophy represents an ever growing number of patients of all ages whose fate is affected by extraordinary developments in medical science and technology. In contrast to only a few years ago when grave illness or injury would bring death in a relatively short time, today a person like Paul Brophy can be kept alive almost indefinitely in what has been called somewhat inexactly, but descriptively, a "vegetable" state.

In any medical treatment or procedure, the patient has the primary right to choose or reject what physicians propose, with the understanding that the patient has received enough information to make a reasonable judgment.

A problem results when a patient, like Paul Brophy, is unable to make such a decision because of his unconscious or comatose condition.

Who makes the judgment for the patient? Normally one expects the nearest relative, like Paul Brophy's wife, to exercise that right.

However, health service personnel, including administrators of hospitals and nursing homes, have become so vulnerable to the alarming increase in malpractice actions that they understandably tend to urge every possible means to keep a patient alive, even a Paul Brophy in an irreversible coma.

Laws vary from state to state. Some states have even allowed criminal action to be taken against withholding or withdrawing artificial life support.

To this writer's knowledge no such action of civil or criminal nature has occurred in Michigan.

Still, for everyone's advantage it is good to have in hand some document that enables a relative or friend to make a decision in the event of a situation like Paul Brophy's.

Durable power of attorney enables one to give a trusted relative or friend the legal right to make such a decision.

Another instrument is the "Living Will" that can give the relative or friend the moral right to make the necessary decisions as the patient would presumably have done if conscious and aware of his predicament. Specific instructions can be spelled out.

The President's Commission for the Study of Ethical Problems in Medicine (1983) stated that the judicial process is not the best way to make an informed and sound decision in these delicate, personal matters. This report favors the more intimate and sensitive setting of physicians and family and friends making the decisions that, in balance, are for the greater good of the patient, as that patient would wish it.

Additional information about the "Living Will" can be obtained by writing to the Catholic Health Association, 4455 Woodson Rd., St. Louis, Mo., 63134.

This column is written by members of the Grosse Pointe Ministerial Association on a rotating basis.

St. Ephrem plans Handicap Awareness Workshop

On Jan. 30 and Feb. 6, St. Ephrem Parish, Sterling Heights, presents its eighth annual Handicap Awareness Workshop. Sessions run from 7 to 9 p.m. each evening and will be held in the parish hall located at 38900 Dodge Park Road, corner of 17 Mile Road, one mile east of Van Dyke.

This year's presentation will be somewhat of a departure from the usual offering as it looks at the field of entertainment. Christopher Hunter is a young deaf man who does not speak but is a stand-up comic in and around Lansing. He and his interpreter, John Ray, will team up to present a comic routine different than any most have seen or heard before. They will also offer some insight into translating sign language into spoken English and back again and why sign or English might lose something in the translation.

That same evening you will meet Amy Somerville, a 16-year old blind and paralyzed girl who, with just the use of her left hand, can make a piano sound like it was meant to sound. She and her mother will also tell something about the Far Academy for Therapeutic and Performing Arts, the school that has opened the world of music to Amy. The evening will end with several selections by the St. Cyril Manor Group Home Band. The group consists of six blind and retarded men who play and sing rock and roll and have a ball doing it.

On Feb. 6 the workshop reverts to its usual format with a presentation concerning epilepsy. Tom Caughlin of the Epilepsy Center will speak about the misconceptions the public has about this disease and bring up-to-date information on its treatment.

The workshop will end with a presentation by Robert Massering, speech therapist at Glen Peters School, showing the latest in communication aides for non-verbal persons. He will speak of the wide variety of such aides that a few short years ago were only dreams.

All sessions will be signed for the hearing impaired by John Ray. The hall is completely accessible to all. Fee per session is $2, payable at the door. For further information, contact Terry Cloyd at 264-2777.

What's happening at local churches

Elizabeth Ketchum Group

The Elizabeth Ketchum Group of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church will meet tomorrow, Friday, Jan. 9, at 1 p.m., in the Grosse Pointe Farms home of Elaine Ross. Devotions will be led by Doris Jahnke. The newly elected slate of officers of the Elizabeth Ketchum Group for 1987 are: chairman, Audrey Ruby; co-chairman, Martha Nyboer; secretary, Edna Lowry; and treasurer, Margaret Young.

Grosse Pointe Congregational/American Baptist

The Women's Association of the Grosse Pointe Congregational/American Baptist Church will meet on Tuesday, Jan. 13, at 11 a.m. The speakers for the program will be the Rev. Dr. Jack Richards, associate conference minister of the Eastern Area Office of the United Church of Christ and the Rev. Joseph Maylanga, minister of St. James Church in Port Huron.

Maylanga spent the month of August in the Philippines. The topic will be missions in general, and the Philippines specifically.

Salvation Army Auxiliary

The Auxiliary to the Salvation Army will meet on Jan. 13, at 10:45 a.m., at the Salvation Army Citadel, 3015 N. Main St., Royal Oak. Bring a sandwich for lunch. Coffee, tea and dessert are provided. Call Enid Gee at 642-5145 to make a reservation.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Garman Shalar-Garman

Kristen Keri Shalar, daughter of Bob and Wendy Shalar of San Francisco, Calif., and Patrick Shawn Garman, son of Patrick and Claudia Garman of Grosse Pointe Woods, were married on Aug. 9, 1986, in San Francisco.

The Rev. Andrew Walmsley of St. Mary the Virgin Church officiated at the 4:30 p.m. ceremony which was followed by a reception at the Corinthian Yacht Club in Tiburon, Calif.

The bride wore an off-the-shoulder dress in ivory satin with short, puff sleeves and a bodice of Alencon lace and pearls. The dress featured a cathedral-length train and veil. She carried a bouquet of gardenias and stephanotis with ferns.

The matron of honor was Janet Ugarte, sister of the bride, Celiu, Philippines. Bridesmaids were Tracy Schoenbrun, friend of the bride, Belvedere Island; Joyce Watkins, friend of the bride, San Francisco; Eva Pesino, friend of the bride, San Francisco; Natasha Shalar, junior bridesmaid, sister of the bride, San Francisco. The flower girl was Erin Jewell, niece of the groom, Grosse Pointe Park. The bridesmaids wore cottillion blue taffeta and carried blush roses, lilies and ferns.

The best man was Geoffrey Garman, brother of the groom, Grosse Pointe. Groomsmen were Matthew Paige, San Mateo, Calif.; Philip Rush, Kevin Snider and Yatsih Rosiki, all of San Francisco. Ushers were Frank Lange, Paul Clarke and Marc Ohara, all of Marin County, Calif.

The mother of the bride wore a floor-length dress in fawn satin with a brocade jacket. She wore a corsage of white orchids.

The mother of the groom wore a tea-length dress of ice blue silk and a similar corsage.

The couple honeymooned in southern California. They will live in San Francisco.

The bride will graduate from San Francisco State College with a degree in political science in May.

The groom will graduate with a master's degree in international relations.

Joyce Watkins was the soloist for the ceremony.

Mourad-Drummond

Mary Beth Mourad, daughter of Roger and Kathleen Mourad of Grosse Pointe Shores, and Eric James Drummond, son of Harold Drummond of Lake Orion, and Adele Drummond of Troy, were married on Aug. 31, 1986, at St. Cecilia Church in Detroit.

The Rev. Thomas Finnigan officiated at the 6 p.m. ceremony which was followed by a reception at the bride's home.

The bride wore white silk with a white, felt, broad-brimmed hat and veil. She carried a bouquet of white spider mums, statice and ribbons.

The maid of honor was Christine Mourad, sister of the bride, Grosse Pointe Shores. The bridesmaid was Michelle DeFour, sister of the bride, Palm Harbor, Fla. They wore street-length silk dresses in royal blue and turquoise and carried bouquets of orange lilies, statice and ribbons.

The best man was William Drummond, brother of the groom, East Lansing, Mich. Groomsmen were Roger Mourad Jr., brother of the bride, Grosse Pointe Shores. Ushers were Brian Mourad, brother of the bride, Washington, D.C.; Matthew Mourad, brother of the bride, Grosse Pointe Shores; and Christopher Mourad, brother of the bride, Grosse Pointe Shores.

The mother of the bride wore a rose and blue silk print dress with a corsage of white carnations. The mother of the groom wore pale rose silk and a similar corsage.

The couple will live in Laurens, S.C.

The bride is a graduate of Michigan State University with a bachelor of arts. She is a freelance artist and illustrator.

The groom holds a bachelor of science and master's degree in labor management from Michigan State University. He is in labor management with Ingersoll-Rand Corporation.

Alliance to present French film

Alliance Francaise de Grosse Pointe will present the French film comedy of the year, "Three Men and a Cradle," (Trois Hommes et un Couffin) on Friday, Jan. 23, 7:30 p.m., in the University Liggett Auditorium, 1045 Cook Road.

This humorous film from France ran to full houses at the Maple Theatre in Birmingham last year. Those who missed it there will have another opportunity to view it. Those who did not miss it will want to see it again.

The French word "couffin" may be translated as "hamper" or "basket." Neither gives the full meaning for the play. So the free interpretation, "cradle," prepares for a hilarious story about a baby left on the apartment doorstep of three bachelors living there in blissful elegance.

Though in the French language, there will be an introduction to the film in English, so those struggling with French can understand the plot.

This popular film will be open to the public. Seats will not be reserved. Admission will be $3 for adults, with a special youth price of $1.

Mail orders: Send a check to Alliance Francaise de Grosse Pointe, 32 Lakeshore Rd., Grosse Pointe, MI 48236. Please enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope, or request tickets held in your name at door. For further ticket information, call 886-4339.

Grosse Pointe Questers

Quester member Myrtle Palmer will present a program on "The History of Playing Cards," at the home of Barbara Crane of Berkshire Road on Friday, Jan. 9, at 10 a.m.

After the presentation, Patricia Martin will show slides of the Grosse Pointe Questers' 25th anniversary tea which took place in the undercroft of Christ Church last May 9.

Members filled tables with their favorite antiques and collectibles. An 1870 Russian samovar, 1886 Statue of Liberty shelf clock, 18th century Japanese Tansu chest, a 1792 singing Society Songbook and a Victorian hair picture were some of the items on display. Continuous music on an antique dulcimer and Celtic Harp called the "Tara" used before battles in Ireland was played by Cecelia Webster.

Louise Couger and Mable Van Dagens will co-host the luncheon.

Louisa St. Clair DAR

The Louisa St. Clair chapter, NSDAR, will be celebrating its 94th birthday anniversary at a noon luncheon on Saturday, Jan. 17, at the Detroit Golf Club. Barbara W. Clark is the hostess.

Regent Patricia Sawyer will dispense with chapter business and introduce the State Regent Betty Jane Weaver, and regents of neighboring chapters.

In commemoration of the Michigan Sesquicentennial, the Girl Scouts of Metropolitan Detroit, Sr. Troop 327 and their leader, Betsy Martin, have been invited to present a ceremony of flags from the nine countries representing Michigan settlers in 1837.

Honored guests will include American History teacher, Mary Remillet of University Liggett School, who was selected 1986 Outstanding History Teacher by the Louisa St. Clair Chapter and Marcia Neering, Eloise O. Goddard University of Michigan Architectural Scholarship winner.

Aletha Smith, Delphine Andrews and Ardis Wisner will be presented with 50-year membership certificates for "loyalty and devotion to God, Home and Country."

The Note Worthies, a singing group under the direction of Anne Roberts will provide selection for listening entertainment.

Barbara Clark, Harriette Wheeler and Laura Marchessault are accepting luncheon reservations.

Grosse Pointe Crafts Guild

The regular meeting of the Grosse Pointe Crafts Guild will be held Wednesday, Jan. 14, at 7:30 p.m., in the upstairs meeting room of the Grosse Pointe Central Library. Following the business meeting, which will include the election of officers of the guild for the 1987 year, the featured speaker will be Joyce Buckley, owner of The Gathering Thread, who will discuss English smocking.

The guild meetings are held the second Wednesday of each month, and anyone who is interested in crafts is invited to attend.

Peggy O'Connor

"NEA denounces exploitation of student athletes," the news release began. It went on to detail steps taken by the National Education Association (NEA) to take a stand against the exploitation of young athletes at the collegiate, secondary and even elementary school level.

The news release, I'm ashamed to say, came in the mail last July. I really couldn't think of much of a reason to delve into the issue until recently, when a couple of incidents led me to believe that young student/athletes in America may not be getting what's best for them.

I'd heard the story about a local high school athlete who had an outstanding game in his very first varsity appearance just this past fall. He played better than anyone had hoped he would, even set a record or two in that first game. And in the next few days after his performance, word of his accomplishments got around and pretty soon, one of those radio sports talk show hosts was calling the kid's school, trying to arrange to have the young man on his program.

Luckily, the athletic director told the guy to slow down, back off and remember that the player in question was all of 16½ years old and that the performance in question was his very first in a varsity capacity. The guy did, amid grumblings and grouches. It was a good thing he did because the kid — although playing excellently for the remainder of his team's playoff-bound season — didn't put up the figures he had in that first game and was under enough pressure as it was.

I still didn't connect that incident to the situation described in that news release until last weekend, while watching the pro football playoffs. The networks showed an interview with a prominent member of the NFL's Cleveland Browns. He was sitting there in the Florida sunshine telling the listening audience that Browns' quarterback Bernie Kosar "has done everything a quarterback could" for his team.

I winced at first and then I laughed. And then I started to think. Here was a wealthy, successful, professional football player using excruciatingly poor grammar on national television. And remember, despite the stereotypical impression that all pro athletes are dumb, they are, after all, supposed to be college graduates . . . or at least have completed four years of college before they were drafted into the pros.

And I started to think about the hundreds of other athletes I'd seen on television and spoken to in person. Many of them weren't any more articulate than that Cleveland Browns' running back. And that bothers me a lot.

Fortunately, I don't often see things like this in Grosse Pointe. To a man, coaches I deal with insist that their high school athletes put schoolwork before sports. They point with pride to high team grade point averages and the necessity of bright, intelligent players in key spots on their teams.

Take North's Mike Miller, for example. Miller set school rushing records for the football Norsemen and spent much of the past two seasons in the spotlight. He's got trophies and medals and plaques and his name in the record books to show for it. Mike Miller is also shy, pleasant, articulate, polite and very intelligent. He'll go on to bigger and better things — not necessarily in football, perhaps — and I'm 100 percent sure that he'll be successful even he's out of the football limelight.

That's because the Millers of the world know that sports aren't always their ticket to success. They're aware that talented high school football players don't always make top-notch college football players, never mind reach the professional level.

I guess we all tend to forget that sometimes, parents and fans, big newspapers and small ones, and over-zealous radio talk show hosts. We get a little caught up in watching young athletes perform and forget that their grade school and prep years, and even their college years, are supposed to be enjoyed and not exploited.

I guess that the importance of remembering that didn't really hit me until last weekend while I watched the Fiesta Bowl game between Penn State and Miami. As the clock wound down and Penn State celebrated its victory, the camera focused on the losing quarterback, Heisman Trophy-winner Vinny Testaverde.

Testaverde was downcast, to be sure. But from the look on his face it was obvious that he was well aware that his career was only just beginning. Then the camera panned over to a unidentified member of the Miami defensive line who was sitting on the sidelines in tears. He was a senior and this was definitely his last game and he was spending the last few seconds of it with a TV camera poking into his face.

In the scheme of things, it was not exploitation at its worst. But it was certainly not a nice moment and all I could think of was that that I hoped that that lineman had enjoyed his four years on the team, had gotten a decent education and that years from now, well-ensconced in another career, he could look back on his athletic experience fondly. It's something that I wish for the 98 percent of those who participate in secondary school and university athletic programs in this country who will never go on to the pros.

But sometimes I wonder.

Who was that masked bulldog?

Five years of anonymity has ended for Ferris State College senior Paul Surmont, of Grosse Pointe Woods. Surmont (left) was officially "unmasked" on Dec. 12 as the college's "Bulldog Mascot" (top) before a sell-out crowd at FSC's home hockey battle against Michigan State. Surmont, 23, is a graduate of Warren DeLaSalle High and majors in automotive and heavy equipment management at FSC. He has contributed many hours to the college and to the local community of Big Rapids in promoting banquets, fashion shows, fundraisers, the United Way drive and in the "Bulldog Run," a jog-a-thon sponsored by the college's athletic department which has raised money for a special scholarship fund for a handicapped student at FSC.

Wallace Gamber, in his golf pro days at Ridgemont Golf Course, June of 1925.

Gamber dead at 82

Humor was his calling card

Wallace Gamber was known for many things back in his Grosse Pointe days. He was a golf pro at Ridgemont Golf Club, he boxed, he ran foot races and he challenged all comers to just about any athletic feat. Gamber even claimed the unofficial record for holding the most golf balls in his mouth at one time: five.

But Gamber, who died Dec. 12 in Largo, Fla., at the age of 82, will most likely be remembered for his sense of humor.

"My, he had a sense of humor. He got into a lot of crazy stunts because of it," said his son, Wallace Jr., of Darien, Conn. "One time at the Michigan Theater he won a bet from the old comedian Joe E. Brown over who had the larger mouth. Dad did . . . he could hold those five golf balls in his mouth at once.

"Another time, he drove a golf ball off the Penobscot Building. He was a pro boxer — he fought the night of the opening of the old Neighborhood Club. He taught golf for many years and he knew the golfing greats and many of Grosse Pointe's citizens, like police chief Andy Teetaert," Gamber said.

"My dad was really quite a guy."

Gamber was also a serious student of golf, however, teaching the sport to men and women for more than 30 years at Ridgemont and at Detroit's Chandler Park public course. He was a good friend of the late golf pro Walter Hagen, who was in the gallery when Gamber won an automobile on a golfing drive at Land-O-Lakes Course in Wisconsin in 1936.

Wallace Gamber, who was born in Chesterfield, Mich., and moved to Grosse Pointe in 1911, is survived by his wife, Emily, and a brother Charles, in addition to his son.

Fencing competition Sunday

The Condottiere Fencing Club, located at the Neighborhood Club of Grosse Pointe, will host the Junior Olympic Fencing Qualifiers this Sunday, Jan. 11.

The state-wide competition is a four-weapon event, including men's foil, epee and sabre, and women's foil. Eligible fencers can compete in one of two divisions, Under-19 and Under-16. First and second place finishers in each event will qualify for the Junior Olympics to be held in Orlando, Fla., in February.

Grosse Pointe South senior Melissa Adams will compete in the women's foil division. Adams began fencing with the Condottiere Fencing Club last July recently placed fifth in a C and under tournament at the University of Detroit.

Al Lombardini, a senior at Grosse Pointe North, will compete in the men's epee. Lombardini qualified for the divisional championships last spring.

Registration for this Sunday's competition begins at 9:30 a.m. The entrance fee is $5 per weapon.

For further information, please contact Cindy Wilds at 881-9788, or the Neighborhood Club at 885-4600.

Remember . . .

. . . that this Saturday's Michigan Metro League hockey match-up between crosstown rivals North and South won't be at the Grosse Pointe Community Rink, site of the six previous meetings between the teams. The Norsemen and Blue Devils will face off at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 10 at the St. Clair Shores Arena.

Feeling fit
By Deanna Hawthorne

If you are one of the 75 million people in the United States who suffer from back problems, you know how miserable and helpless you can feel when experiencing back pain.

Fortunately, there are techniques you can practice to alleviate some of that discomfort, and perhaps prevent it in the first place.

- When doing anything that requires standing, place one foot on a stool or a step and shift from one foot to another.
- When sitting, keep one or both knees higher than the hips. Cross the legs or place the feet on a stool, keeping the knees bent. Select a chair with arms to prevent neck strains.
- When lying down, keep knees and hips bent. This means that you cannot lie on your abdomen; when on your back, a lift must be under the knees.
- To prevent neck strain, avoid forward thrust "spectator's attitude" positions of the head and the neck. This rules out reading in bed or sleeping on a high pillow, and it means that when playing cards or sewing you should sit in a chair with arms. Television must not be viewed when you are lying down or when you are slumped.
- As a measure to improve the sway in the back, exercises to strengthen the abdominal muscles are helpful. These exercises also stretch the contracted back muscles.
- Follow your physician's instructions, which are designed to correct disorders of the bones and the supporting muscles.
- Do not get too tired to rest or sleep. Strains result not only from what you do, but from persisting in doing what you are doing after you are tired. Avoid losing sleep.
- General exercise such as walking is important because it prevents weakness from lack of use of body parts. Avoid "standing around" and "sitting around."

Instructor works out with folks on the go

By Peggy O'Connor

At 24, David Putrycus thinks he's found his niche in life. But it wasn't easy.

The St. Clair Shores native spent three and a half years and many miles away from his family attempting to build a career in broadcasting. When that didn't pan out, he decided that he'd like to combine his interest in physical fitness with his school coursework in biology and anatomy into a job where he could do what he enjoyed and get paid for it. He's found it.

"Even when I'd decided to quit radio and TV and had gone about finding out everything I could about physical fitness, it still didn't connect that I could pursue it as a career," the trim, muscular Putrycus said. Then in January of 1985, he got a job at the Vic Tanny Health Club on Old Eight Mile and moved up quickly in the organization.

"I liked the health club atmosphere and I liked working with people. And even though I started at the bottom, I passed my certification test the first time. . . . I was second in my class and almost every one of them had studied exercise physiology or had a degree in exercise physiology," he said.

He was promoted to management level at the club, but after about a year decided to leave, he said, when he saw that he was being asked to switch his emphasis from personal attention to selling memberships.

Putrycus answered an ad from Fitness Elite, a local company which brings personal fitness trainers into client's homes.

"I have nothing but positive things to say about Fitness Elite. They made sure I was trained properly, using the coursework from the University of Michigan exercise physiology program. We were tested monthly on our knowledge of exercise physiology and I'm certain I could go right into a classroom at UM and do very well," Putrycus said.

Fitness Elite employed Putrycus as a personal trainer at Detroit's Riverfront Towers. He trained between eight and 10 clients three times per week and quickly moved up to the position of Riverfront's director of fitness.

Putrycus said he enjoyed his work there, but in September, decided to strike out on his own. He started his own personal fitness business: Fitness To Go. The company has done "amazingly well," since its inception in September, with Putrycus busy with four Grosse Pointe clients and two outside the area.

Best of all, Putrycus said, he thinks he's found something he wants to do for a long time.

"I knew that the east side is full of people who are interested in good health and fitness. I don't believe that the only two places for personal fitness trainers are New York and California. Listen, 99 percent of people hate to exercise. It's my job to convince them that it can be fun," he added.

Putrycus' Fitness To Go offers at home or in office plans. The first session is free and sessions are $25 each. Putrycus said that to get the ultimate benefit from the home workouts, a schedule of three times per week should be followed, but that he will conduct a two-session schedule if the client is in good shape. He brings the equipment — a rower, a stationary bike and free weights.

"I think that this is a beneficial service because I bring the equipment to them. I get right down there with them and do their abs (abdominal curls). I come to their home or office.

"Most importantly, I sit down with them before we ever have a session and I talk with them to find out what's kept them from exercising in the past, and what they'd like to accomplish in terms of fitness. I also find out if they like to bike or to play racquetball. If they like, I can incorporate that sport into our routine."

But Putrycus cautioned clients to remember that he is not a high-priced exercise partner. "I want to keep people motivated, keep things interesting. Because if I don't, then they won't want to stay fit. It's hard work to make yourself exercise. I know that. But you won't accomplish anything if you don't put that work in . . . and you won't work if it's not interesting."

Putrycus stressed the importance of checking with a doctor before starting any exercise program. And he advocates clients getting as much information on fitness and exercise as they can; he himself reads and studies whenever possible. He's also written articles for local publications on exercise and fitness.

"Fitness isn't just a fad anymore. People want to feel good and look good and I think I can help them. I'm looking for people who are serious about it, who are motivated to change their lifestyle. The typical client is one who leads a fairly sedentary job, but a fast-paced lifestyle.

"What I like about this job is that I can give people the personal attention they need and I like to give. I've always liked that aspect of it," Putrycus said.

Clients are monitored closely, he added. If he sees a client go automatically to a machine, he knows he needs to vary the routine. He gives nine written tests to test a client's fitness aptitude and constantly monitors the cardiovascular ability (for example, how long it takes for the client to get to the heartrate most beneficial for maximum effectiveness. Clients are reevaluated every 10 sessions, Putrycus said.

He'll schedule those sessions at the client's convenience and that makes for a hectic schedule for himself, Putrycus said. But he also feels it's worth it.

"I enjoy it. I've never been happier in my life."

David Putrycus offers in-home fitness training.

Personal fitness training: pros and cons

Personal fitness training is a growing business, with at least two local companies providing the in-home or office fitness workouts at prices ranging around $25 to $35 per session.

There are advantages and disadvantages to the program, according to certified athletic trainer Beth Deutsch, program coordinator for CHAMP, the Cottage Hospital Athletic Medicine Program.

"On the pro side, I see advantages in convenience and in motivation. You're often more likely to exercise if someone is coming into your home and 'holding your hand' while you're exercising. And certainly the motivation would be there.

"However, one of the cons might be that the qualifications of the personal trainer might not be what they should. That's a tough question for me," Deutsch says. "I'm a certified athletic trainer. I have a five-year degree and I took and passed a national test and I would want someone with similar qualifications.

"Another thing might be the expense. And, ethically, does the trainer know when to discontinue the workouts . . . when his client is fit?"

"These are all questions I'd ask before I would pay for a personal trainer," Deutsch says.

Plateaus — pathways to success

Perhaps nothing provides a more fertile bed for discouragement than an unsuccessful attempt at dieting. Discouragement is a powerful force that can wipe out goals, cause regression and create feelings of failure. Diets become vulnerable under the influence of discouragement. Most likely, anyone who has ever dieted can identify with the following scenario:

Finally, after many weeks of indecision you are psychologically ready to diet. You are committed and anxious to get started. Hopefully you have chosen an eating plan or diet program that will provide good health as well as success.

The first week or two you are pleased with your efforts and reap the rewards. You have stayed with your program and have lost weight consistently. You like the changes your mirror is beginning to reflect, and your clothes are even feeling looser.

Then comes the morning after your most severe struggle. The previous night you defied all odds. As you sipped a glass of water you watched all your family or friends enjoying some of your favorite desserts or snacks. You were victorious! You had taken charge and captured success. And you are proud that you made it through the evening without giving in. Now you are anxious to face the scale. You step on the scale, expecting your success to be recorded in pounds. What a disappointment when you discover what you thought would be a great loss, turns out to be no loss at all. You feel deflated and defeated. You are ready to give up dieting forever. It becomes even more discouraging, when, no matter how faithful you continue to be, those pounds refuse to budge over the next several days or even weeks.

It is important to remember that these plateaus in weight loss are normal to most dieters. You have not been singled out as a victim of sabotage by an unseen stroke of sadistic fate.

Reasons for Plateaus

- Plateaus are your body's defense against losing weight too quickly.

Schools offer fitness fun

The Department of Community Education of the Grosse Pointe Public School System will offer 26 classes in sports, dance and exercise for adults during the term which began Jan. 5.

New for winter classes are "Walking for Fitness" and "Self-Defense for Women." Among the classes are three levels of "Ballroom Dancing," — basic, intermediate and intermediate II.

In addition to the class in "Golf," the department will again offer a series of popular single-session clinics devoted to specific skills: "Pitch, Chipping, Sand Shots," "Putting, Selecting Equipment and Rules," "Swing — The Irons" and "Swing — The Woods."

Introduced last fall, horseback riding classes, co-sponsored with Sugarbush Farms, will continue.

Call 343-2178 for more information.

Yoga offered

The War Memorial will hold an eight-week session in Yoga with instructor Betty Locke. The class will meet from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Wednesdays, Jan. 14 to March 4.

Yoga postures are intended to release tension and stress through the Golden Lotus method, while keeping to develop stamina, flexibility and body-mind feedback.

Students should bring an exercise mat to the class, which costs $30 per person. For information call 881-7511, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily except Sunday.

Power of 'Platoon' will send movie viewers reeling

By Michael Chapp

"Platoon" is not an entertaining film; it is not fun to watch. More than once, viewers will be tempted to close their eyes and minds to the images being presented.

But "Platoon" is the most important film to storm onto movie screens in at least two years, and is sure to be remembered as one of the finest dramatizations in the history of the movies of the American involvement in the Vietnam conflict.

Its themes are that unsettling and its punch is that powerful. Taking place in late 1967 and early 1968, "Platoon" is a visual diary of — specifically — the Bravo Company of the 25th Infantry, fighting near the Cambodian border. But more generically, it is a chronicle of the day-to-day lives of everyone in the war. For the viewer, it is nothing less than a total sensory experience into the horror and devastation of war.

The point of departure for this experience is Chris Taylor (Charlie Sheen), a wealthy young college dropout who volunteered for the service because he felt it was his patriotic duty; his grandfather had fought in World War I and his father in World War II. The film opens as Taylor arrives in Vietnam and it concludes when he leaves. His experiences there become the experiences of viewers.

When Taylor is sent out on guard duty in the pouring rain, for example, one can almost feel the icy water pounding on Taylor's war-torn body. When a native villager gets beaten to death, one shares Taylor's disgust as blood squirts on his face. When the enemy is sneaking around the campsite in the dead of night, one experiences the paralyzing terror Taylor does. And when bombs and guns are exploding into action around Taylor, one feels the death and destruction he's feeling.

Indeed, no other film in recent memory has dealt with the life and death dynamics of war as effectively as "Platoon" does. Only "The Killing Fields" comes close, and even that movie doesn't capture the gritty reality that "Platoon" does. And "The Deer Hunter" and "Apocalypse Now," both acceptable pictures, veer into the intangible realm of philosophical speculation. "Platoon" doesn't concern itself with anything but the matter at hand — the war. And in doing so, it has a potent focus that predecessors do not touch. That means more than just the battle scenes though.

The Viet Cong is only one enemy. The American troops, the film points out, are their own worst enemies. "Platoon" demonstrates that the troops face as much inner turmoil as outer aggression. Even in the few moments that the troops are away from combat, they can never escape the torment in their own minds. This torment, the film reminds us, will always be with them.

Albeit the occasional insights it makes into the psyches of the young troops though, "Platoon" is not a preachy film. It does not take a political stance or beg the viewer to take action. It makes a statement only to the extent that war itself makes a statement. And the only response it asks of viewers is a response to war.

Writer and director Oliver Stone's experience in the war is obvious throughout the film. Whether or not the character of Taylor is supposed to be Stone is not particularly relevant. Stone's visions transfer well to film, and he has made the war more immediate for a mass audience in "Platoon." At the end of the picture, Taylor says, "Those who did make it (home alive from the war) have an obligation to tell others what we know."

Kudos to Stone for telling the story so forthrightly and so effectively. War movies, it seems, are always very powerful. Perhaps that's because war is one of the most powerful experiences of the human condition.

"Platoon" makes a strong case for those who feel that such an experience should never again be a part of the human condition.

'No Mercy' has no redeeming value

By Michael Chapp

It's not so bad that the producers of "No Mercy" have taken two relatively talented performers and simply wasted them. That's forgivable. It's also not so bad that the plot of "No Mercy" has more holes than your average golf course. That too is forgivable. The really bad thing about this movie, the thing that simply cannot be forgiven, is that there is absolutely nothing new or unique within its 105 long and drawn out minutes.

Nothing. And because the film had so much potential, that fact is especially hard to swallow. The stars, Richard Gere and Kim Basinger, are two of Hollywood's hottest sex symbols and finest genre actors.

This picture shows little of their talent. And the director, Richard Pearce, has nothing less than the spectacular "Country" to his credit. This piece shows little of his filmic creativity.

Maybe the fault doesn't lie completely in the hands of these three people. How much can realistically be done, after all, with material as lame as the material in this film? There's a maverick Chicago cop named Eddie Jillette (Gere), whose partner gets killed by Losado, a New Orleans gangster (Jeroen Krabbe). Jillette wants two things: revenge for his partner and a relationship with Losado's girl, Michel (Basinger). From the beginning, the film makes it quite clear that he'll get both.

Michel, Jillette finds out in the course of his investigations, is the property of Losado. When the maverick cop kidnaps Michel to take her to prison for having a part in the murder of his partner, Losado comes after him. That, of course, is what Jillette wanted in the first place, so that he can get his revenge.

The plot of "No Mercy" is more contrived than a prison break, and astute viewers will have no problem staying two steps ahead of the action throughout. When Michel and Jillette somehow drift from an industrial river in the heart of New Orleans to deserted Louisiana swamp land, their fate is not only unsuspenseful; it's downright laughable. Any viewer worth his

"R" rating knows that this can't be the end of the duo, since they haven't even had their bedroom scene yet.

Though the cynicism of that statement is glaring, it's not unfounded. Less than a half hour later, the two of them are in each other's arms, though exactly why is beyond comprehension. The sex scene is nothing but an obligatory piece of sleaze, with no real passion or motivation at its origin. And when Gere and Basinger can't even play a sex scene with conviction, that's a sure sign there's problems. Lots of problems.

There are no motivations explained for any of the main characters, the reasons for the coming together of the lead couple are not made clear, and one scene leads to another with little logical progression. It's as if the director knows that everyone in the audience has seen many similar films before, and on that basis assumes that they will not question anything.

That's a poor mistake to make. One that certainly becomes a major faux pas when coupled with the other substantial blunders the film commits.

"No Mercy" deserves none.

Some members of the cast of "I Ought to be in Pictures," are from left, Maureen Bruce of Grosse Pointe, Dennis Wickline and Olivia Wickline, both of St. Clair Shores.

'Morning After' is a gripping drama

By Marian Trainor

"The Morning After" is aptly titled. It opens with Alex Sternberger (Jane Fonda) waking up to a monumental hangover. Bad as she feels, her condition worsens when she discovers she is sharing a bed with a bloody corpse with a butcher knife sticking out of his chest.

It is a situation that would send most people screaming for help. Not Alex. She is tough enough to react coolly. First she goes through the ritual of the morning-after cure, a quick drink and a few pills. Then she considers her options and decides the best plan of action is to leave town. She doesn't know the victim. She doesn't know how she came to be in his bed. In fact she can't remember one incident from the night before.

She is certain she is not guilty of the crime, but she knows she will have a hard time proving it because she has had other incidents of blackouts brought on by too much drinking.

Once a successful actress, Alex now clings to dreams of former glory and the career she lost to alcoholism.

Her escape plan doesn't work. She never gets farther than the airport but she does find a friend, Turner Kendall (Jeff Bridges). Turner is a rough-and-tumble guy, divorced, an ex-cop, a died-in-the-wool bigot, a sharp contrast to Alex and her urbane, liberal free-wheeling life-style.

Having found someone who believes in her, Alex decides to stay in town to vindicate herself.

Raul Julia as Joaquin Manero adds another dimension to a far-fetched but intriguing mystery. He operates a beauty salon that caters to the rich and famous. Genial and affable on the outside, he sees the inside because he has never been accepted social by his clients because of his ethnic background.

Briefly seen but memorable is James Haake, Alex's gay friend to whom she turns to borrow some clothes. When she complains that the clothes are too flashy, he replies, "Well, I'm not a transvestite. I'm a drag queen."

As Alex, or as Viveca the glamorous ex-star, Fonda is at her best. Having two names is appropriate for the part she plays. As the bleached blond sexy Viveca she is tough, brittle, given to temper tantrums and sharp retorts. As Alex with her hair restored to its natural color, she is vulnerable, witty and even girlish.

"The Morning After," is a gripping, strong-minded film. You don't go out for popcorn during this one.

'Ma Rainey' opens at Attic Jan. 9

"Ma Rainey's Black Bottom" by August Wilson, will open at the Attic Theatre Jan. 9. The Attic has dedicated the production to Sippie Wallace, the famed blues singer who died in November.

Set in Chicago in 1927, "Ma Rainey's" is, in Wilson's words, concerned with the values, the attitudes and particularly the music of the people who inhabit the city's Black Bottom.

Loosely based upon an actual recording session of Ma Rainey, the play offers a perceptive observation of the exploitation of black artists. The Attic's production stars noted gospel singer LaVerna Mason as Ma, and features Detroit area jazz greats Rayse Biggs, Thomas "Dr. Beans" Bowles, Don Mayberry and Earl Van Dyke. Singer-composer Miche Braden provides the musical direction.

"Ma Rainey's Black Bottom" was first produced in 1983 at the Yale Repertory Theatre, where it was directed by Lloyd Richards, Yale Rep's artistic director and a Detroit native. The Broadway production, which opened the following season, received the 1985 New York Drama Critics Circle Award as well as a Tony Award nomination for best play.

It will open at the Attic Friday, Jan. 9 and run Thursdays through Sundays through Feb. 8.

The Attic is located in the heart of the New Center Theatre District, Third at West Grand Boulevard. For reservations and ticket information, call 875-8284.

Gershwin concert

The Tuesday Musicals of Detroit invites the public to a free concert "On the Lighter Side," in the Recital Hall at the Detroit Institute of Arts on Tuesday, Jan. 13 at 10:30 a.m.

"Celebrating George and Ira" will be presented by jazz pianist Bess Bonnier, who will include Gershwin's "C Minor Prelude which she recently recorded on her new Notebooks album "Bess Bonnier — Duet to Quartet." She will also play the little-known Gershwin song "A Little Jazz Bird," from her album "Bess Bonnier and Jazz Birds."

In addition, the program will feature a medley of George Gershwin songs performed by Grosse Pointe Woods resident Doris Pagel, soprano, accompanied by pianist Betty Barnes. Both Pagel and Barnes teach at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Pianist

... Roger Williams, best known for his signature tune "Autumn Leaves," will appear in concert at the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts at 7 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 11. Tickets at $14 for adults and $12 for students and senior citizens may be obtained at the box office or reserved on credit card by calling 286-2222, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. The center is located on the Center Campus of Macomb Community College at Hall (M-59) and Garfield roads in Clinton Township.

The 'Lady' is back

By Marion Trainor

"The Lady and the Tramp" is back and a welcome event it is. The film oozes charm, has a cute story and an irresistible cast. It's a cinematic treat.

Produced in 1955 by Walt Disney Productions, "Lady" was the first CinemaScope animated feature. One of the best full-length cartoons, it became one of the "must-see" kid films of the era.

Without being heavy-handed, "Lady," from the opening scene, draws you into the spirit of Christmas. A wide-screen panorama takes you down a snow-covered street. Christmas trees lit with flickering candles can be seen through windows of Victorian-style homes. Quiet as the snow-laden trees and star-studded sky. It is a lovely Christmas card scene.

The camera pauses and we go inside a home where a young couple are celebrating their first Christmas together. She is opening a box. The top moves. Nestled in tissue is an adorable cocker spaniel puppy, all eyes and wagging tail, cute but with a certain aplomb that marks her as a lady. Anyone who has ever lived with a puppy will smile as Lady resists her appointed bed and makes her way up into her owner's bedroom, who gets tired of putting her back again and lets her stay "just this once."

Lady has two good friends who are neighbors, a Scatly who speaks in a delightful brogue and a sad-eyed droopy hound dog who doesn't know he's lost his sense of smell and tells stories of his past life in a Southern drawl. The three are up-scale privileged pets.

Two things happen to upset their well-ordered life. First, Lady is relegated to second place in the household when a baby arrives. She is distressed and her two good friends share her frustration.

The songs in the film are more than catchy intervals. They advance the story in a very real way. The cartoon characters are so realistic that they take on a human aspect. It is possible to match each one of them with someone you have met. Part of this is due to the voices which are typical of the character they represent.

Like the season itself, this film is made to enjoy. It's a real Christmas joy.

Poster exhibit

An exhibition of original movie and theater posters will open at the Gryphon Gallery, 99 Kercheval, Saturday, Jan. 10.

Collector's items — posters of Josephine Baker, Buffalo Bill, Yvette Guilbert and those promoting the works of Charlie Chaplin, Cary Grant, Marilyn Monroe — included in the show provide a nostalgic trip through the late 19th and first half of the 20th century.

The second part of exhibition features the work of contemporary New York artist Charles Hewitt.

Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday and Thursday 11 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Antique bottle show

A free mini-show and sale of antique bottles and related items, as well as assorted other antiques, will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 15, at the Hazel Park Recreation Center.

Hobbyists will give short talks, answer questions and give free appraisals, while exhibiting items from their collections. The displays will include tri-county medicines, beers and soda bottles, mostly from the 1830s to 1900. Also included will be lightning rod balls, insulators, fruit jars and other collectibles.

The show is sponsored by the Metropolitan Detroit Antique Bottle Club. The Hazel Park Center is located on Woodward Heights Boulevard (9½ Mile Road), one block west of I-75.

The Missing LINC
Linking Individuals to Needs in the Community is a non-profit organization whose purpose is to coordinate needs with resources. This is accomplished by placing goods no longer needed by individuals and businesses into the hands of Metropolitan Detroit charitable agencies. Operating since 1971, LINC is proud of the accomplishments it has made and strives to increase its resource base. If you have recyclable items, no longer of use to you, Operation LINC knows who can and will use them. Please call LINC at 882-6100 with your donation. KEEP IT MOVING!

AMERICAN RED CROSS is desperately in need of LINENS for burn-out victims. This type of family disaster is so devastating and unfortunately happens more often in the winter months.

SNOW BLOWER being sought by Phoenix Job Development. This equipment would be used in their job training programs.

GRATEFUL HOME seeking BEAUTY-AID PRODUCTS AND EQUIPMENT. Combs, scissors, sprays, shampoo, rollers and blow dryer are just a few of the items needed. Resident of home (for recovering alcoholics) would visit seniors in nursing homes and do their hair.

SHOE RACKS are needed by CROSSROADS.

HOUSEHOLD PAINTS are a constant request by several of LINC's human service organizations. These paints would be used to freshen up an office where funds are not available for decorating or for homes being refurbished for family housing or half-way homes for several residents.

PHOENIX JOB DEVELOPMENT is developing a library. They are looking for a CURRENT set of encyclopedias and reference books of any kind.

How to keep your child away from drugs.

Arming them in a suit of steel might help. But once they leave your home, they're really on their own. What can you do? Learn to recognize the symptoms of drug abuse. Look for failing grades in school. And irrational behavior. But most importantly, keep your lines of communication open with your children. Encourage them to tell you if they get offers of drugs. Show them you understand about peer pressure and how tough it is to walk away. Teach your children to resist offers of drugs with a simple no. For the booklet, "Parents: What You Can Do About Drug Abuse," write: Get Involved, P.O. Box 1706, Rockville, Maryland 20850.

Help your kids to just say no.

A public service of this publication and the National Institute on Drug Abuse.

There was a time when people only shot pictures.

Over the past three decades, use of our nation's forests has surged dramatically. But so has vandalism. Signs blasted apart. Trees, rocks and campsites defaced. Public facilities destroyed. What will it take to turn the tide against vandalism? Simple determination. A commitment to ourselves. And to our young people to help them appreciate he forest for what it really is. A priceless and unparalleled gift. Vandalism. It's time to draw the line.

Give a hoot. Don't pollute. Forest Service, U.S.D.A.

Center Ice in the GPHA

Mite Division

The first half of the Mite season ended with the Arrow Linen team in first place and winning the first-half championship. The second half of the 1986-87 season begins the weekend of Jan. 3, with all eight teams vying for second half championship trophies. Mite Division director Ed O'Malley has done a commendable job, helping instill excitement throughout the league, according to Grosse Pointe Hockey Association officials.

The final first half standings:

TEAM	W	L	T
Arrow Linen	11	1	2
Sequoia Chiefs	8	3	3
Century 21	7	3	4
Ricci AMC Talons	6	6	2
Proform Hawks	5	6	3
Major Magics	4	6	4
Monthly Detroit	4	9	1
Autumn Cooling/Heating	2	12	0

TALONS-HAWKS

The Talons skated to a 3-2 victory over the Hawks in pre-Christmas action. Joshua Prues had three unassisted goals for the Talons; that was his first hat trick of the season. Gibson scored both goals for the Hawks from Ridder and Salvagio. Platt, Semack and Solaka played well for the Hawks. Tocco, Morris and Ricci each played a strong game. Talon A-liner John Graffius was impressive on defense.

SQUIRT AA

The Squirt AA Grosse Pointe Talons have been busy lately, playing league games and participating in the Silverstick and the Compuware Christmas Classic. In league play, the Talons regained first place in the Adray division standings by beating the Midland Police Athletics, 10-2. The Talons took an early lead on a goal by Mike Owens on a pass from Scott Blair. The Talons' attack was led by four goals from Joey Sucher, one apiece from Chris Fox, Blair and T.J. Grunwald. Assists went to Blair, Taylor, Sucher, Grunwald, Tony Migliaccio, Chris Grabowski and J.J. Lewandowski.

TALONS-WARREN

The Warren Cobras handed the Talons their second loss of the regular season, 3-2. Talons' goals were scored by Blair and Lewandowski with assists credited to Blair, Scott Feraru and Joey Sucher. The loss brought the Cobras to within one point of the first place Talons, the Talons having lost two games and the Cobras, three.

TALONS-MIDLAND

The front-running Talons decided to combine business with pleasure last week. After playing Midland on its home ice, the team and families converged on Valley Plaza for a weekend of fun. The Talons beat Midland 7-0, giving goalie Chris Eldridge his fifth shutout of the season. Migliaccio and Blair paced the Talons with two goals apiece, with single goals coming from Grunwald, Fox and Taylor. Taylor and Fox also had three assists each; Sucher (two), Blair, Grunwald and Migliaccio also assisted.

TALONS-FRASER

Fraser scored in the last minute for a 3-3 tie. That ran the Talons' record to 9-2-2. The Talons opened up the scoring on a goal by Grunwald. After Fraser tied it and took the lead, halfway through the third period Grabowski tied up the score after taking a pass from Feraru. With a little more than four minutes left, the Talons took the lead on a wrist shot from Taylor. The Talons fought off several last minute rushes and it looked like they would be able to finish with a win but with just less than a minute to go, Fraser pulled its goalie in favor of an extra attacker and scored the tying goal from a mad scramble in front of the net.

In the first round of the Silversticks tournament, the Talons were paired with the Warren Cobras in a game at the St. Clair Shores ice arena. The first two periods of play ended with a scoreless tie. In the third period, the Talons scored with three unanswered goals to take a 3-0 win. The first goal was scored by Blair from Migliaccio, the second goal by Sucher, assisted by Blair and the third by Owens, assisted by Grunwald and Migliaccio. Six penalties were handed out, five of them to the Cobras. Strong play by the Talon defense kept the shots on goal by the Cobras to 16 while the Talons' defense kept the shots on with 34 shots. Especially strong play by Ben Harris and Grabowski kept the Cobras bottled up in their end most of the third period, allowing only one shot on goal.

TALONS-BIRMINGHAM

The Talons' second game was with Birmingham in the Ice Box Arena. Sucher opened up the scoring with an unassisted goal in the first minute of play. Lewandowski took a pass from Blair for the second Talon goal midway through the first period; he scored again on a pass from Sucher to end the period. Blair added a second period goal for the Talons on a pass from Sucher and Fox scored the final goal with only seconds left to make the final score 5-1.

TALONS-ROYAL OAK

Advancing to the third game in the tournament, the Talons took on and were narrowly defeated by the Royal Oak Bruins, 2-1. The first period ended without either team scoring. Midway through the second period, Royal Oak beat Talon goalie Chris Eldridge in the first score of the game. Early in the period Owens lifted a long shot from the blue line past the Bruin netminder to tie the score 1-1. But the Bruins took the lead and held on. The Talons' record of 2-1 was not enough to advance to the semifinal round.

In the first game of the Compuware Christmas Classic tournament in Oak Park, the Talons took on and defeated the team from Ann Arbor, 5-3. Fox opened the scoring for the Talons by slamming a hard shot into the net in the first minute. Lewandowski and Feraru were credited with assists. Midway through the first period, Sucher scored on a pass across the goalmouth from Blair. A minute later Grabowski shot from the blue line and scored after taking a pass from Sucher who was deep in his corner. Ann Arbor's Shayne Ahrens got the hat trick, but goals by Blair from Feraru and Sucher and by Taylor from Migliaccio and Sucher, iced the game.

TALONS-RIVERSIDE

The Talons beat the Riverside Ontario team in the second game of the tournament, 5-1. With just 17 seconds gone in the first period, Sucher scored on a pass from Blair and two minutes later he took another pass from Blair and scored the Talons' second goal. Just into the second period Sucher scored his third goal of the game after lifting a pass from Blair over the outstretched Riverside goalie. The Talons added two more goals in the second period, one from Taylor, (Feraru assisting) and one from Blair who snapped in a centering pass from Taylor. This victory set up the evening game between the two undefeated teams, the Talons and the Michigan Nationals.

TALONS-NATIONALS

Although both teams were assured spots in the semifinal, this game would determine the pairings with teams from the other divisions. Play was pretty even for the first half of the first period when Sucher drove a shot past the Nationals' goalie. Two minutes later the Nats tied up the game, then took the lead early in the second period. The Talons roared right back to tie on a goal by Migliaccio. Neither team was able to break the deadlock and the game ended at 2-2. Both Talon goals were assisted by Blair with Lewandowski also assisting. The Nats outshot the Talons 26-20, but the Talon defense did an outstanding job of bottling up the Nat's offense, forcing them into taking long, outside shots.

TALONS-TOLEDO

By taking first place in division B of the tournament, Toledo was matched with the Talons in the second semifinal game. In the first semifinal game, the Michigan Nationals played and beat the second place team from division B, the Michigan Travelers.

The game scoring opened up quickly when just after a minute of play Sucher took a pass in the slot from Lewandowski and hit the corner just inches from the outstretched leg of the Toledo goalie. Two minutes later Toledo drilled one past Talons' goalie Eldridge. Taylor broke the tie when he skated in on Toledo goalie Andrew Kruppa and beat him on the short side. He scored again in the second period to give the Talons a slight cushion, 3-1. Strong backchecking and heads-up play by the defense kept Toledo in its end or between the blue lines for most of the second period. Early in the third period Toledo closed to within one goal, but with seven minutes to go the Talon defense played outstanding hockey with Grabowski and Feraru turning back or stopping the rush time after time. Assisting on Taylor's goals were Migliaccio, shorthanded, Sucher broke away to score an unassisted goal giving the Talons a three-goal lead with

TALONS-NATIONALS

Both teams looked ready after playing tough semifinal games earlier in the day and both teams were known for their fast skating forward lines... and lived up to their reputation. Player shifts were quick as good passing moved play quickly from one end of the ice to the other. With two minutes gone, the Nationals scored. Two minutes later Sucher shot one in, scoring a shorthanded goal on a perfect pass from linemate Blair. Near the end of the first period Blair slammed in a shot from the slot on a centering pass from Sucher to make the score 2-1. Just a minute into the second period Blair scored again. Assisting on the Talons' third goal were Lewandowski and Sucher. Four minutes into the third period and playing shorthanded, Sucher broke away to score an unassisted goal giving the Talons a three-goal lead with eight minutes to go. Several plays later Owens centered a perfect pass to Grunwald who flipped the puck in to run the score to 5-1. At the eight minute mark Sucher, tripped up as he broke in on goal, managed to slide the puck in and nullify the upcoming penalty. Assisting Sucher were Taylor and Fox. Nearing the 10-minute mark, the Talons slacked off a bit and let a Nats player skate in alone and on the faceoff and let go a blistering shot that just missed the top of the net, crashed against the glass and rebounded midair back to the blue line. This set up the final goal of the game scored by Blair at 11:07. Assisting on the play were Grabowski and Fox.

Outstanding defensive plays by Grabowski and Feraru repeatedly turned back rushes at the blue line. Fox, moving from center to defense, teamed up with Harris to also provide a solid defensive wall and Eldridge turned back 24 of the 26 shots he faced. Hat tricks were scored by Blair and Sucher; Joey's second of the tournament. The final score of the championship game was 7-2.

Cagers at 2-2, ready for Bi-County foes

By Josh Abbott
North High

North's varsity cagers returned from the Christmas break this week, sporting a 2-2 record (pending the outcome of the Jan. 6 game with Warren Woods Tower, after press time). The week before Christmas, the Norsemen split a pair of games, nipping South High and falling to Port Huron.

On Dec. 16, the Norsemen traveled to Blue Devil country to take on Sean Bruce and South. It was a close struggle for the entire game, but a three-point play by senior guard Dave Justice with six seconds left in the second overtime gave North its second win of the season, 50-49.

Senior forward Scott Reiter paced North with 13 points; Justice checked in with 10 points. Two nights later, the Norsemen went on the road to face a bigger, stronger Port Huron team, losing, 63-48, to the Big Reds.

The North JV and freshman squads had trouble with South, with the JV team falling 50-47, and the frosh dropping a 49-28 game to South's freshmen. Freshmen forward Charlie Stumb had 11 points for the JV. Kevin Endres and Chris Meathe had 10 and 6 points, respectively, for the frosh.

The teams host Roseville Brablec, Friday, Jan. 9, at 6 p.m.

Tankers split

North's varsity swim team was also busy before the holiday break, placing second in a quad meet and dropping one to Utica Ford.

On Dec. 12, the tankers amassed 78 points and captured second place in the four-team meet with South (88 points), Brother Rice (73), and Brighton (69). Taking firsts were junior Greg Cooksey in the 200 IM, senior Andy Young in the 50 free and senior Brad Cooksey in the 100 breast. Finishing second were Young in the 100 free, Jeff Williams in the 500 free, and the 500 medley relay team of Greg and Brad Cooksey, Young and Ian MacNeil.

On Dec. 18, the Norsemen lost to Utica Ford, 101-70. Greg Cooksey won the 200 IM and the 100 back and Williams touched first in the 200 and 500 freestyle.

The boys' next action is tonight, Jan. 8, at Dearborn.

Icers win tourney

North High's varsity hockey team raised its overall record to 7-2 with a Gabriel Richard Tournament victory before the Christmas break. The Norsemen beat Gabriel Richard, 8-2, and topped Livonia Churchill, 5-3, to capture the tour-namment title.

John Andary notched a hat trick in the win over Richard. John Quinlan, Rob Koehler, Dan Spitz, Rob Marshall and Brian Nettle got the other goals for the Norsemen. Link Bessert earned playmaker honors with his three assists.

In the championship victory over Churchill, Nettle led the scoring with two goals; Andary, Brian Schweitzer, Marshall and Bessert scored the other goals. Bessert had two assists.

Nettle, Koehler, Andary and Dave Johnston were named to the All-Tournament team for North.

The Norsemen hosted Country Day on Jan. 7 (after press time) and will face off against South High at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 10, at St. Clair Shores Civic Arena. North is currently in first place in the Michigan Metro League's East Division with a 4-1 record.

Icers sweep winter trip, face Norsemen

The varsity hockey team at South High sports a 6-3-2 mark going into action against North this Saturday, Jan. 10 at St. Clair Shores Civic Arena. The Blue Devils beat Allen Park Cabrini before the Christmas break, 7-0, and swept a pair of games from Midland Dow, 4-3, and Saginaw Arthur Hill, 9-6, last weekend.

Tim Jerome scored two goals and assisted on another as the Devils shut out Cabrini on Dec. 20. "That may have been our best game of the season," said coach Tim Zimmerman.

Andrew Roy scored three goals and Jeff Lefebvre and Rodney Goin added the other goals. Lefebvre, Roy, Busse and Bill Huntington (two) were credited with assists.

In Midland on Jan. 2, freshman Kevin Nesler was outstanding in goal as South came back from a one-goal deficit in the final four minutes of the game to win 4-3. "Nesler's playing real well... he's so quick," Zimmerman said.

Dow took a 1-0 lead in the first period before Roy's shorthanded goal from Andy Busse tied things up. Patrick Clavet's goal from Kevin Bourke and Mike Irwin gave South a 2-1 lead going into the third period. But Dow scored a pair of goals in eight seconds and it took Jim Ryszewski's goal with 3:40 remaining to tie it up. John Nicholson and Lefebvre assisted on the tying score.

With 1:05 left, Roy converted passes from Nicholson and Lefebvre to give South the win. South outshot Midland Dow, 30-23.

The Devils also outshot Saginaw Arthur Hill, 41-18, the next evening, but had to rely on the offense for a 9-6 victory. Goal scorers were Evan Frakes, Jerome (two), Jerry Bourke, Roy (two), Goin and David Rivard (two). Goaltender Ilya Snyder, Jim Smith, Roy (three), Huntington (three), Jerome (two), Clavet, Frakes, Ryszewski and Lefebvre earned assists.

South is 3-3-2 in Michigan Metro League play and takes on North (4-1 and in first place in the MML) this Saturday at 7:30 p.m. The teams were 1-1 in league play last year, with South winning the first game, 7-3, and North taking the second contest, 5-4.

Eat Smart

your body and skin toned and conditioned.

- Exercise. If you have not included exercise from the beginning of your diet, start now. If you have been exercising, change your routine around. The body will often respond to a different type of exercise. For instance, on your "off" days from the aerobics class, get out and walk for 15 minutes.

- Give yourself credit. Plateaus are times for pausing to pat yourself on the back. So enjoy how far you have come instead of lamenting over the distance you have yet to go.

- Visualize your success. Take time to sit back, close your eyes and envision yourself slender, feeling healthy and in control. When you practice being optimistic it feeds optimism; you will find determination and strength from within yourself to reach your goal.

With a little patience, good can be derived from plateaus. Once you have moved beyond each plateau, you will discover it was as-much a part of the dieting process as dramatic weight loss. You will gain strength and insight, two key elements necessary for you to succeed in maintaining a permanent weight loss. For every plateau you ride out, the indication that you are in control of your eating habits and your life becomes a reality.
