Odyssey of the mind: Maire, Defer to compete at top level

Four teams will compete in the third-fifth grade division at the world-level Odyssey of the Mind next month - and two of them will be from Grosse Pointe.

Five groups file lawsuits against incinerator project

By Nancy Parmenter

Staff Writer Environmentalists who filed lawsuits against the Detroit incinerator last week don't consider their move a last-ditch effort. They have been united in their opposition to the project, approved a year ago, but say they have needed the time to research the issue and raise money for the legal effort.

"This is an enormous undertaking," said Sierra Club spokesman Dennis Piper. "We wanted to make sure we did a good job. The longer a plant has been under construction, the harder it is to stop."

The city of Detroit has two more weeks to respond to the suits, filed separately by the Sierra Club, the Detroit Audubon Society, the New York-based Environmental Defense Fund, the North Cass Community Union and the province of Ontario.

There are several possible outcomes of the suits, Audubon spokesman John Makris speculated, but being thrown out isn't likely to be one of them. "The city already admits that certain pollutants will be emitted in vast quantities," Makris, an attorney, said. "I don't think there's any question that the judge will hear the case.'

What is most likely is that the judge will either find that the incinerator is operating under the tinue with certain modifications, that mandatory recycling could be or order construction stopped until the plant meets the requirements, Makris said.

"Of course, I'd like to see the judge order the city to recycle," he said. "but it's easier for the court to stop an activity than to order an activity." In recent Detroit history, courts ordered busing for integration and improvements to the sewage plant and found themselves supervising the projects.

The suits ask that construction be halted while the court considers the options. "We don't think the incinerator is the answer the city seeks (to its trash disposal problems)," Makris said. "We can't solve all the world's problems or all of Detroit's problems, but we can try to stop this incinerator. . . The city hasn't considered all the alternatives.'

Piper said he is hopeful that the alternatives may still be considered. "The best thing that could happen is for the judge to say 'let's take another look at this," he said. "We want public participation - we need to look at this for

The groups have been looking at recycling information in the hopes they may present an alternative proposal. Several states, including New Jersey, have mandatory recycling already in place.

"The government is the one that has to be convinced," Piper said. "The people will do it." He law, allow construction to con-said preliminary data indicated employing more people.

This is not the first challenge to the incinerator. A year ago, Department of Natural Resources personnel decided - at the eleventh hour — to raise new concerns about pollution controls it had already approved. The Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission allowed the project to proceed without requiring additional controls, on the grounds that the approvals were in place and it would be too expensive to change the plans. A challenge by the federal Environmental Protection Agency was refused on a similar basis.

Environmentalists understand the need for consistent ground rules. "It has been argued that governments should be able to proceed with some certainty," Makris said. "We would agree with that. But it isn't morally or ethically right to visit our mistakes on future generations. If we can fix something, we have an obligation to do so.'

City officials have not argued that the acid scrubbers and bag house filters requested by the DNR are unnecessary. They have stated that the extra equipment is too expensive, that changes in the plan could endanger financing and that cancer rates from the plant as proposed are at statistically acceptable levels. It is reported that last year the city sold $438 million in tax-exempt bonds to finance the project.

Detroit says OK to Fox Creek project

By Pat Paholsky News Editor

Park officials are cautiously optimistic regarding the resolution of possible flooding from Fox Creek following their meeting last week with Detroit department heads. Detroit agreed to allow Grosse Pointe Park to install steel interlocking sheets along the eastern edge of the creek, thereby removing the threat of flooding to some 1,000 homes in the Park. Unresolved, however, is who will pay

"What Detroit is saying is there is a distinction between Fox

Creek as a drain problem and Fox Creek as a flood plain problem,' said City Manager John Crawford, who attended the three-andone-half hour meeting Thursday in the City-County building.

A 1928 agreement between Grosse Pointe Park and Detroit deals with drainage, Crawford said, and Detroit's position is this is not a drainage problem.

City attorney Herold McC. Deason explained that Detroit feels that if Fox Creek were unable to drain the storm water of Grosse Pointe Park, it would be Detroit's responsibility. 'They say the agreement did not contemplate flooding, but rather the utilization of Fox Creek for storm water drainage," Deason said.

"We are approaching it from the standpoint that they are one or two of the same thing," Deason said, adding that he believed the meeting resulted in good dia-

If the Park did construct a new -cawall in Detroit, there are laws that govern intergovernmental agreements, Deason said.

The other alternative is to build a four-foot high wall on Barrington from Jefferson to Windmill Pointe Park. The cement wall would cost $2.15 million and would close off five streets. The Fox Creek project would cost $1.4 million.

When the wall was proposed last year, the suggestion brought charges of racism against Grosse Pointe Park and officials are sensitive to the suggestion. Mayor Palmer Heenan said, "Detroit and Grosse Pointe Park have had many areas of cooperation between them (over the years).'

April 23, 1987 Grosse Pointe News District makes a start on budget decisions

By Nancy Parmenter Staff Writer

The school board began its annual wrestling match with the possibilities and realities of budgeting last week. The process was started a month earlier than usual to give the board and the public a longer period to mull over the decisions.

There are more major unresolved issues than usual. Window replacement projects that once looked like they might get started with extra money left over from teacher cost-of-living payments, now look like question marks. Teacher contract negotiations are going on now, with the final settlement amount still unknown. Details of the proposed library oxpansion are not settled. Whether to improve the administration building at 389 St. Clair or move out of it is still up for grabs.

These projects all cost money.

One of the decisions the board must make is the size of the fund equity. At the rate the fund is going now, it won't exist at all in three years, according to Business Manager Christian Fenton. So the board must decide how large it should be and budget accord-

The fund equity is not a cash fund, Fenton said. It represents the difference between assets and liabilities. When times are tight, some school districts spend the fund in order to avoid raising

'You can use the fund equity to save raising taxes," Fenton said, "but you'd be borrowing from Peter to pay Paul." Fenton described himself as a budgeting conservative; he has established a target fund equity of $2.2 million for the next school year.

The Grosse Pointe schools currently do not levy the entire tax authorized by the voters. The approved level is 25.3 mills; the district levied 22.7 this year. Setting the tax levy is a matching gesture with deciding how large the fund equity should be - and how many expensive projects to approve.

Some of the budget requests made this year never even found their way into the preliminary document. The Grosse Pointe Soccer Association, for example, requested money to improve the drainage at Barnes Field — and a commitment that the teams would be able to use the field for a period of years. But the board declined to make any commitment school figures potentially in any replacement of the pool - a relocation of the administrative $500,000 project — is now listed offices.

called for an increase in spending of 9.2 percent. But the board, after hashing it over at some length, asked the administration to make some cuts, with a new target of a 6.8 percent increase. That matches this year's increase in the state equalized value of all the property in the district.

The administration came back the next night with a list of cuts totalling $886,000, to meet the new target. Board members appear unwilling, however, to accept the list in entirety. They went over the details for a couple of hours, then adjourned until further meetings after the spring va-

Among the items under debate: A request to establish a staff development program. A committee has recommended paying one full-time and one part-time teacher to run a program of college courses and seminars to enhance staff professionally and personally. Those who favor the idea say it will give employees "ownership" of the program and will result in more interested and enthusiastic and better-trained teachers. Those expressing concerns feel the program is too expensive, at $54,000 for the two teachers, and favor starting up at a slower rate, with a part-timer

· A request to create a new position to coordinate library services at the schools. Library Director Charles Hanson says the position calls for a professional with a master's degree in library science to carry out the cataloguing, library automation and coordinating tasks associated with making all the school libraries work together. The position would pay $36,000; under consideration is the possibility of hiring someone to start at mid-year to save half of the first year's salary. Critics have suggested that the position could be filled by a parapro-

Myriad building and site requests. The administration divided the needs into three priorities; first priority totals $750,000, while all three together come to about $5 million.

North High School renovations claim the lion's share of the money, causing board Secretary Carl Anderson to charge that the district hasn't gotten its money worth out of the school. Finding appropriate places to cut the budget is not only hard — sometimes it's nearly impossible. The school board has met twice to talk over the hard decisions. It hasn't reached a consensus yet, but it has bitten the bullet and refused to do things the easy

There won't be any acrossthe-board cuts.

When school administrators came back to the second meeting with a proposal for cutting supplies by 7 percent across the board, Secretary Carl Anderson erupted.

"I'm not going to sit here and support a 7 percent decrease in supplies." Anderson said. "Out of a $41 million budget, I don't want to have calls complaining that kids don't have any paper. We're in the kid business - if we need supplies, we need sup-

Anderson said he had received several calls this year about paper shortages. Administrators said that under the new system of increased building autonomy, building principals have much more flexibility in planning their own budgets. Accordingly, they can choose to spend less money on something else in order to have more money for supplies.

Anderson said he would prefer that the board make the decision to budget enough money for supplies. Trustee Carol Marr agreed that a decrease in the supply budget makes her "uneasy."

No decision on the supplies was reached, but Anderson warned that any across-the board cut would be a red flag for him. "I'll tell you one thing, he said. "If I get any calls on paper shortages, I'm going to ask some hard questions.

John D. is in big trouble.

Five months ago, the Grosse Pointer was caught in Georgia, running 80 ounces of cocaine from Florida to Michigan. Now he is looking at a minimum of three years in a southern labor camp, unless he can convince the judge to lighten the sentence

With 57 days in jail under his belt already, John has had plenty of time to consider his mistakes. Now he wants to talk about them, so other people can avoid making the same ones.

"If people will listen, I'm willing to talk," he said. "But I'm telling you it's not pretty.'

Seat belts gain in popularity mericans' use of seat belts has increased sharply, and especially in Michigan and the 22 other states that have adopted legislation requiring their use in the last two years.

That is the encouraging word coming from a nationwide survey conducted last November and just made public by the Louis Harris & Associates polling firm which conducted the study for Prevention magazine.

Overall, the survey discovered that 55 percent of the people questioned said they used seat belts all the time, an increase from the 41 percent compliance found in a 1985 survey and a 27 percent rate reported in 1984.

In Michigan, which adopted the safety-belt-use law effective July 1, 1985, the Michigan Coalition for Safety Belt Use says that nearly 100 lives were saved within the first year of the passage of the law. The national survey reported that in the first year it was typical for usage in states with new laws to rise by 25 to 35 percentage points over states in which compliance was still voluntary.

Unfortunately, there still are doubters in Michigan and elsewhere who contend that seat belts don't really save lives and/or should not be required because the action amounts to an unwarranted use of state authority.

It's a free country and we don't expect that everyone will agree, but the evidence ap pears to be overwhelmingly in support of the life-saving effects of mandatory seat belt laws. Most people accept such laws just as they do traffic regulations that are adopted and enforced in order to promote safety.

If the Harris survey is accurate, more than half of Americans are now using seat belts. A spokesman for the New York State Department of Motor Vehicles points out that before seat belt laws started going into effect, only 12 to 16 percent of people around the country were using seat belts.

Yet it is true that once states have the laws in effect, there is some fall-off in usage. Thus, New York, which enacted the first seat-belt law in January 1985, reported a decline in seat belt usage from 70 percent in the first year to 52 percent in the second. The decline in usage was cited as one factor in the state's increase in traffic fatalities in

In this state, the Michigan Coalition for Safety Belt Use is stepping up its promotion of the law by circulating pamphlets and other material to urge Michigan motorists to buckle up. It centends that when worn properly, seat belts will:

•Help occupants "ride down" the crash by containing body motion as the vehicle is stoping.

•Prevent occupants from hitting structures of the vehicle or lessen the force of that •Spread the forces of impact across the hips and shoulders, which are the parts of the body that best tolerate these forces. •Help occupants avoid striking each other.

Prevent ejection from the vehicle.

•Help the driver maintain control of the vehicle.

As the coalition points out, none of us is immune from auto accidents but there is a prescription for preventing death and disabling injuries in traffic accidents. It is simply the use of safety belts. It is encouraging that nationally more than half of all Americans now say they use seat belts all the time.

State buy out a poor idea hile state funds apparently could be used to help finance a buy out of the Detroit Free Press, as proposed by state Sen. John Kelly, it sounds like a poor idea to us.

Kelly was quoted as saying that since the state supports other Michigan businesses with loans, grants and equity investment, "there's no reason we shouldn't be interested in maintaining a competitive and viable newspaper market in Michigan.'

Kelly's proposal was made after the Detroit Newspaper Guild had said it was considering a buy-out plan to prevent the Free Press from entering into a joint operating agreement (JOA) with the Detroit News which might cost as many as 1,000 jobs at the two newspapers.

The senator expressed concern about the loss of jobs under the proposed JOA and said he thought the state's role in terms of structuring financial deals would be paramount in the project.

But newspapers are not just like other private businesses. While they must make a profit just as other businesses must do, part of their purpose is to keep an eye on government at all levels. That purpose explains why the press is protected by the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution and by similar amendments in the constitutions of most states, including Michigan.

To us that protection means that if the state of Michigan exercised any control at all over the Free Press as a result of having an investment in it, the newspaper's freedom, including its freedom to criticize state officials, would be jeopardized.

Fortunately, at least in our opinion, the first official reactions to Kelly's proposal were negative. State Treasurer Robert Bowman commented: "I would say on the surface this sounds pretty unlikely." A spokesman for John Engler, the Senate majority leader, used even stronger words: "This proposal is something the senator would not consider."

There are other practical difficulties in the way of a significant state participation in a Free Press buy out. The money would come from the state strategic fund and the venture capital fund which usually limit their direct involvement with private businesses to no more than $1 million. Yet the current value of the Free Press is estimated at from $50 million to $150 million.

Furthermore, the Free Press has been designated as a "failing newspaper" under terms of the JOA law that enables newspapers to combine their advertising, circulation and management functions. As a consequence, state Treasurer Bowman said that supporting a Free Press buy out did not look like a prime investment.

From the state's viewpoint that is true, because the money in the two state funds comes from state employee pension dollars and the state wants to make money for retirees rather than invest in risky enterprises.

Even Donald Kummer, administrative officer of the Detroit Newspaper Guild, which with other unions has contended that the Free Press could be profitable if operated differently, did not fully endorse Kelly's proposal. He said a buy out has not been proposed by the unions and may not be proposed and added that the unions have got to do more investigating before they look at anything Kelly has to add.

In fact, we hope that the union buy-out plan comes to naught, with or without state participation. We think it would be difficult for a mass circulation newspaper to be operated in the public interest by unions that have their own public agenda. Even if the unions found management in their own ranks that would seek to produce an objective news product, they would have difficulty in selling advertisers and the public on their independence and their own adherence to the First Amendment.

However, reporters and editors who are union members now contend that they are able to maintain their objectivity and independence with no difficulty. They also contend that their unions could respect the public interest as well as many of today's current commercial publishers who often have their own political or economic agendas which may not always serve the public interest.

With the Detroit newspapers themselves apparently taking a dim view of any buy-out proposal, the plan seemed to have little support even before Kelly tossed his idea into the hopper. At any rate, we think that a proposal to invest state funds in a union buy out of the Free Press is a poor idea, even to serve the well-intentioned purpose of saving newspaper jobs in Detroit.

Traffic light is useless

To the Editor:

The most useless traffic light in Grosse Pointe City is at the corner of Jefferson and Lakeland. This light is rarely used as a pedestrian crossing, except in the summertime when people are going to the city park. There is very little traffic on Lakeland Street coming onto East Jefferson, certainly not enough to warrant a traffic light which operates from 6 a.m. in the morning until 12 midnight.

A sensible solution would be to have the light activated by a push-button by schoolchildren and other pedestrians wanting to cross East Jefferson. Otherwise, the light can remain green and not annoy motorists 18 hours a day.

If a traffic study were done, I would estimate that up to 2,000 cars a day stop at a needless traffic light which serves no purpose for most of the time that it is in operation. The situation could definitely be cured by changing this light to be used as needed.

Roger Stanton Grosse Pointe

Rejected

To the Editor:

I was recently rejected for a position as a coach for a young girl's softball team sponsored by the Neighborhood Club of Grosse Pointe.

The circumstances surrounding this rejection are quite peculiar.

Let me say first that I was going to coach this team in association with my husband. Both my husband and I were raised in Grosse Pointe and we both participated in Neighborhood Club softball as well as the Grosse Pointe Woods/Shores Little League. Furthermore, I am currently a college student and my husband is employed.

Through correspondence by mail, my husband and I attended a coaches' meeting at the Neighborhood Club. Upon arrival I was informed that I would have to assist another coach with his team. I refused to do this for I contacted the Neighborhood Club months before and was informed there were teams available. The most peculiar part of this situation is that after informing me I would not be assigned a team, the representative for the Neighborhood Club turned to look at my husband and said, "Why doesn't he coach with you?" When I informed the representative that that had been the plan from the start, she said that possibly a team would become available. In other words, she insinuated that if my husband were to coach the team there would be no problem with obtaining a team. We have not had any contact with the Neighborhood Club since that time.

In short, without making any accusations, I believe I was treated unjustly. I volunteered for this position because of my enthusiastic interest in both children and softball and was rejected for reasons other than my enthusiasm and capability.

We, the students at Grosse Pointe South High School, wish to express our gratitude to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Schoenith and the Roostertail staff for the wonderful Bahama-Mama Dance on Saturday, April 4th. It gave us the opportunity to see, visit and meet students from all the Grosse Pointe high schools, and although it was cold and rainy outside, the atmosphere at the dance took us far away from the terrible weather. From The Capitol Expense fund abuse must be stopped

By William R. Bryant Jr. State Representative

Officeholder Expense Funds, legalized slush funds for elected officials, continue to be allowed and to be abused.

Michigan is one of the few states to legalize and formalize such funds. There has been severe criticism of their use in the press, but the Legislature has use of payment for services of the never acted to repeal or restrict their use.

I have introduced two bills on O.E.F.s since the 1981-82 session, and have never ever been able to get a hearing on either bill. There may be some minor justification for the funds, but there is none for their abuse.

My bill to amend the O.E.F. statute would stop corporate contributions, prohibit their use for other than ordinary and necessary business expenses, prohibit official or for foreign travel or for most tickets to events.

One of the worst abuses is legis lative leadership collecting funds one to repeal and one to amend, in their O.E.F.s then passing the money out to other candidate committees. This would be prohibited under my legislation.

Increased reporting and a requirement for the officeholder to pay back disaflowed expenditures are also in the bill.

The Democrats have put a bill in to close down somewhat on a few of the abuses. I think the bill may well be for show only. I think they will be fearful of reporting a bill out of committee where we can offer amendments during floor debate. Those votes could embarrass Democrat members.

I said I'd say 'I do' . . . and I did

It's official: I am now married. I write this for the benefit of the women in the bank, the ice cream parlor and the drugstore on the Hill, not to mention the teachers, coaches and students at the high schools I visit on my daily sports rounds. They've all asked me - in one manner or another - if I really did take the plunge, how it went, was I nervous, did I feel any different, etc., etc., etc.

Back when I accepted the question popped by my (for want of a better word) new roommate, I vowed not to go overboard writing about my nuptials. I kept that promise, sort of, holding my wedding musings down to one column about planning a wedding and one mention of my honeymoon in the (what else?) sports column.

But I've been a Mrs. for about three weeks now and in light of the dozens of questions I've been asked in that time - not to mention the fact that writing about weddings can be fun — I thought I'd use this space to answer some of those burning questions.

First of all, realize that weddings are learning experiences. One discovers a motherlode of information about things one never cared about previously. Like etiquette, for example. How to properly address wedding invitations, when to send thank you cards for shower and wedding gifts, and how to get out of explaining why you didn't invite your Great Aunt Lulu's son Bruce.

One also discovers how much stamps cost. There aren't any nice little bride-to-be books written about that, though. It just comes to you out of nowhere . . . usually when you are standing in line at the post office and you realize just how much it's going to cost to purchase 350 first-class stamps.

I also discovered that people like to approach a potential bride (or groom, for that matter) and ask Peggy O'Connor that person, "Are you nervous?". If one says no, they almost invariably follow with the query, "Are you excited?" Since a happy bride should never tell well-meaning folks, "Heck, no, I'm not excited," because it will lead them to believe that she doesn't give a hoot about the whole thing, I just smiled and told them, yes, I was both nervous and excited. Actually, I was just getting kind of nervous wondering when the next person was going to come up to me and ask if I was nervous.

Another question I've been asked a lot since I came back from my honeymoon is "How did everythat everything went perfectly, they seem a little disappointed. They pause a moment, then regale me with stories about newlyweds whose florist delivered the wrong flowers, or no flowers at all, or about brides they knew who had to walk up the aisle suffering from 104-degree fevers, or about young couples whose reception was ruined because the two families got into a brawl after dinner. The best one yet was the person who told me about a wedding reception they'd attended where a guest suffered a fatal heart attack while doing the Hokey-Pokey. Nice, huh?

Just to be safe, we didn't do the thing go?" When I tell people Hokey-Pokey at our wedding. I picked up all the flowers and they were beautiful. I broke my blown glass cake top, but the folks at the hall glued it back together for me. We had 250 guests, most of whom behaved themselves. It didn't rain or snow on my wedding day. The groom was on time and even though the bridesmaids walked a little too fast, it was a pretty nice wedding, if I do say so myself.

Oh we had our little gaffes here and there. I pulled a Princess Diana and mixed up my vows a little (but what can you expect from a nervous, excited bride?). And our post-ceremony picturetaking session was a bit abbreviated because the ceremony ran a little long . . . right into the 7:30 Friday night Stations of the Cross at Our Lady Queen of Peace. The photos turned out nice anyway (aside from the strange people wearing babushkas and holding prayer books standing in the background).

We didn't go into debt to put on a nice party and both sides of the family are still speaking to one another - true measure of a successful wedding, I'd say. The food at the hall was excellent and the service was fantastic. Everyone had so much fun, we had to kick them out of the hall at 1:15 a.m. Heck, people even got a kick out of my tap-dancing Aunt Loretta.

I'm glad it's over, although I'd do it again in a minute. And I don't feel any different (another thing people keep asking me). I'm still not used to signing my name "Peggy Andrzejczyk" (who would be?), and we're still trying to adjust to the changes marriage has brought.

And to tell the truth, I don't really mind all the questions. It kind of makes the fun and excitement of this once-in-a-lifetime experience last just a little bit

All in all, this marriage stuff wasn't a bad move on my part. Mike's mom tells me he has a 90day warranty and I can exchange him if he doesn't work out.

In the meantime, I'll just keep smiling and answering questions posed by well-meaning people. Right now, they're up to 'How's married life?" I suppose the next one will be "So when are you going to start a family?

But then, that's another col-

Super master

If he can bounce around criminals as well as he can bounce a handball, the bad guys had better watch out for City Public Safety Director Bruce Kennedy.

Late last month Kennedy successfully defended his Michigan Handball Association state singles title by defeating four opponents. The tournament, which draws handball players from across the state, was held at the Dearborn Racquet Club March

Kennedy said there are three classes of players — the Masters, Golden Masters and Super Masters — he is in the latter category.

He has been playing the sport for 35 years, and while knee problems have slowed his game down a bit, he was still sharp enough to defeat several younger players decisively.

Kennedy downed each of his opponents in two games in the best of three contests.

T plan on participating in the U.S. Handball Association National Four-Wall Tournament in Baltimore, Md. in June," Kennedy said.

The director, who is planning to run for the Wayne County Sheriff's office in November 1988, said he plays handball four or five times each week. He said he loves the exercise and regularly takes on all comers.

Good luck at the nationals, Chief!

Cool, clear water

There were only four participants in the contest, but Grosse Pointe Farms notched a public relations victory last week when its water was selected as the best among the rest at an American Waterworks Association, Michigan section, meeting held at the War Memorial.

The Farms hosted the meeting for the metro Detroit communities, one of six regional meetings to be held throughout the state.

Farms Water Department Superintendent Darrel Schurrman, who hosted the meeting. said the other three competitors were from Ann Arbor, Highland Park and Wyandotte. As winner, the Farms water will compete again at a state taste-off to be held in Grand Rapids in September.

If the water wins again, then it will be off to the national competition to be held later in the year. We'll be waiting for the bated breath for the results.

Cool, brown water

There were only several complaints, but some brown water was coursing through the arteries of the Grosse Pointe City water supply system Tuesday morning.

Peter A. Salinas

Unbeknownst to city officials, workers from a public utility began pumping out a service pit using city fire hydrants. According to officials, the workers had a permit to perform this work in Grosse Pointe Farms, and thought that was where they were working.

City officials noted they may have been able to warn residents in advance had they known the work was going to be performed, and added there should be no health hazard as a result of the sediments being stirred up and run through the system. They added that residents who experience the brown water can usually rid themselves of the problem by letting the water run for a while until it clears.

Have an old Samurai sword around?

A Japanese sword expert from Japan and a member of the Society for the Preservation of Japanese Swords have been traveling around the Michigan area since April 20 in search of Samurai swords, the chief weapon of the Japanese warrior.

Hiroshi Sato, the sword expert, says that the Japanese consider the swords as national treasures, and that there may be as many as 600,000 of the swords in the United States. Sato says they may be worth a lot of money.

If you are interested in contacting Sato while he is in Michigan, call toll free 1-800-443-1351 or write: The Japanese Sword registry, P.O. Box 12, Chicago Ridge, Ill. 60415.

The group toured Washington D.C. landmarks. They met lots of senators. They helped out with some senate office work. Birgbauer said that she made a lot of friends. She's corresponding with four students that she met in Washington that week.

Her parents, Anne and Bruce Birgbauer, were impressed by Beth's participation in the program too. "The quality of students that were there was impressive," said Anne. "They were involved, bright, articulate, straight, interested in so many things. Beth said it was the best experience she's ever had."

The application process was begun when Birgbauer's high school principal, Pedro Arango, asked her to apply for the program. According to her mother, the application was long, detailed, full of provocative questions — like a college application.

One of the questions, Anne Birgbauer said, asked the student to describe an experience that has cultural, social or economic milieu. Beth was able to talk about her involvement with Casa Maria, a volunteer day care center in Detroit. She said she only gets five or six hours sleep a night.

'Beth is very time-efficient,' said her mother. "She uses her time really well. She's developed good study habits.

But she's a typical teenager just the same. She talks on the phone all the time. She got her driver's license recently. She has a boyfriend. She's very determined, very motivated in all areas of her life. Always has been.

"Her room is an absolute disaster." her mother said, with a laugh.

Even though Beth has not decided on a career, she knows she'd like to go to Harvard. "My second choice would be Princeton. My third choice is Williams.

"I'm interested in being an ambassador," she said, "and I'm fascinated by traveling abroad. I hope to be going to Colombia this summer to live with a family there. I want to tour the country and possibly work as a volunteer.

No charges filed in ID case

Charges will not be filed against three Grosse Pointe North High School students who reportedly admitted to Woods public safety officials that they had altered more than 30 drivers' licenses

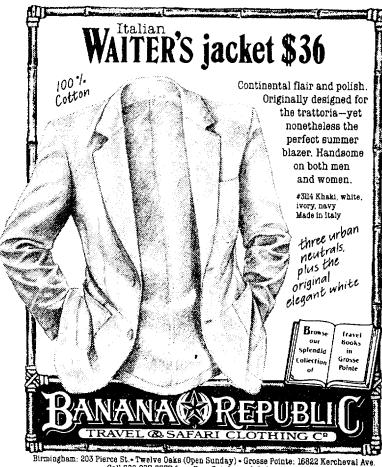

Woods Lt. Peter Thomas said the youths involved in the investigation cooperated with the department, and provided the names of all of the students whose licenses they had altered.

'Rather than prosecute we went to the parents, and had them destroy the fake IDs," Thomas said. He added that the school had been notified of the students' involvement in forging the documents.

Woods officials were informed of an incident where a Woods girl was arrested for operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor in the Shores. The 16-yearold had an altered license which said she was 21. That incident led to an investigation that resulted in the admission from the three North male seniors.

Students from North and Notre Dame High School were involved in getting the forged licenses, although there were students from South, University Liggett and De La Salle also involved.

Telling a Few Delightful Lies

I wish I were not such a perfectionist. My ability to master anything to its limit causes people to hang their heads in shame, Embarrassed at their own faults,

I've organized the President's notes. Alphabetically,

I've memorized and edited Dickens' poetry, I've counted the stars,

And trees of course, Who else would do it but me? I've seen all the ships, The grass,

And the seas, The birds, The sands, And all the bees.

Pointes East: A good idea that's good for everybody

Staff Writer

Three years ago Darrell Finken and John Kelly were kicking around a few ideas and came up with a winner. They decided to start up a cooperative association among east side restaurants.

Finken, the owner of Sparky Herbert's, and state Sen. Kelly figured the east side could use a boost and Pointes East could be just the vehicle they needed.

"I was getting frustrated," Finken said. "The organization I was in wasn't as active in promoting the area as I thought it should be.

"We've been fighting a negative image of the east side of Detroit - but there's a large number of interesting places to visit and see and within this area, there are certainly the restaurants to go along with it.'

Kelly was interested in organizing fragments into coalitions to find strength in numbers. "I was interested in getting the neigh-"None of these people had ever charity to raise funds for. Over

The group approach is the key. Pointes East does a little group advertising along with the individual ads the 19 members place on their own. But the real point to the group approach is the joint activities.

The executive committee is now making plans for the fourth limo tour, an idea that has grown in popularity with each tour.

"Eastsiders don't even know what's here," said Jay Tanghe, the owner of Jay's Paper Station and member of the executive board of Pointes East. "That's why the limo tour is such a suc-

Kitchen has become their favorite charity.

"The fund-raisers give us some visibility and let us do something for the community," Finken said. "By doing something to help the community, we're not just taking from it - we're doing something to give back."

The concept seems to be working; in three years, the funds raised have tripled and the event had to be moved to accommodate the crowds.

The group approach has also generated press coverage, Vice President Glen Carmichael, manager of Tom's Oyster Bar, pointed

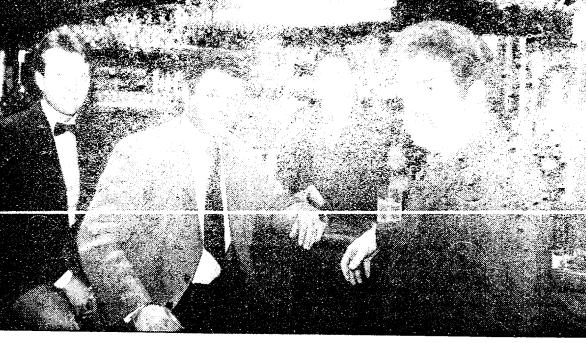

"It makes it easier to get no ticed," he said. "It raises awareness. It's why we're talking on the phone right now - isn't it?

Pointes East is a member of the Detroit Visitors and Convention Bureau so it can introduce its members to out-of-towners. "The east side has a negative image to westsiders - which is why we started up - but it has no image at all to people who come into town," said Tanghe. "We want to wake people up to the great places that are over here.'

"We're getting more recognition through the convention bureau," Finken said. One way of measuring that is that "we're getting more mentions in the listings of the city magazines.'

In 1985, Kelly helped Pointes East get a $10,000 grant from the state Department of Commerce to publish a brochure. It was part of the Say Yes to Michigan campaign. Kelly sees government encouragement as playing a valuable role in vitalizing not just individual businesses, but entire

One of the things that makes the Pointes East restaurants attractive to conventioneers, Kelly thinks, is their atmosphere. 'Whenever you travel, you want to find the places the locals hang out," he said. "The east-side ethnic ambience is the perfect set-

City marinas prepare to launch boating season

By Margie Reins Smith

Most Grosse Pointe boat owners have eagerly begun their springtime fitting-out activities. They're painting bottoms, waxing hulls, polishing chrome, cleaning teak, renewing varnish, scrubbing, scraping, recommissioning and restocking their craft.

As launch day approaches, the five Grosse Pointe lakefront parks are readying their marinas for boaters.

Grosse Pointe Farms Director of Parks and Recreation Dick Huhn said all 289 docks in the Farms harbor will be useable this season. One dock has been raised eight to 10 inches by placing wood planks on sieel frames above the concrete. Some ice damage occurred to the electrical lines during the winter, according to Huhn, but repairs will be finished by opening day - May 15. "All wells, water lines and electrical facilities should be available by then," he said.

In the city of Grosse Pointe, harbor opening day is May 1, and all 152 wells will be useable. Wells, which range in size from 20 to 38 feet are equipped with electricity. The electrical outlets were raised last summer, according to Jeanne Darlington at the City office. The city erected a new seawall last year at the foot of Lakeland and sandbags are in place in front of the breakwall.

John Crawford, Grosse Pointe Park city manager, said that the Park's marina is in excellent shape. "We've extended some tieoff pilings for about 50 or 60 wells to bring them above the water level. All 270 wells will be useable." Crawford said that one-third of the harbor was bubbled during the winter to prevent damage to the existing docks. The successful bubbling program will be expanded next winter, he said.

Grosse Pointe Woods Lake Front Park will be ready for boaters May 1, with 236 wells. Karen Colby, assistant to the director of parks and recreation in the Woods, said that all wells are in excellent condition. "We have a berm near the seawall that needs a bit more grading and seeding. We have sandbags ready and waiting in case they're needed to keep the water back," she said. City engineer Larry Pate said that electrical wiring for use by boat owners is being inspected and will be ready in time for the harbor opening.

Shores Village Manager Michael Kenyon said that the Shores harbor opened April 15 and the 144 existing wells are in fine shape. "After the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club installs the docks that they've agreed to do, we'll have 170 wells," he said "It looks like the new ones will be finished by the end of April or mid-May." The Shores raised electrical and water connections last year, he said. This year they raised some docks by building wood platforms on top of the concrete.

No vacant wells are available in any of the Grosse Pointe marinas and all five Pointes have long waiting lists for existing wells. Park City Manager Crawford estimated a two to five year wait for dock space. The Woods has about 300 people on a waiting list for boat wells. The Farms has 223 people waiting for docking facili-

Leonard B. Smith, conductor and founder of the Detroit Concert Band, has been taking his show on the road for 41 successful years. He has played concerts at well-known concert halls, city parks, small town pavilions and auditoriums, including Carnegie Hall. He has recorded music for television programs, TV documentaries, commercials and films. He has recorded 25 albums of concert band music, including all 116 known Sousa marches.

A few years ago, he was playing a concert at a remote high school in Beresford, S. D., when a youngster from the high school band asked, "What's the most important concert you've ever played?"

Smith's answer: "The next

Smith said the Detroit Concert Band is carrying on the classic concert band tradition — a la John Philip Sousa and Edwin Franko Goldman. "The institution of the concert band in this country goes back to the 1860s," he said. "Concert bands play to entertain. They're not restricted to one type of music, but can draw on music from ballet, opera, traditional band marches, Broadway show tunes, symphonic excerpts - almost anything. A concert band enjoys a unique relationship with the audience because they're usually performing in a relaxed setting, not a stuffy atmosphere. Often they're outdoors. The audiunderpaid, the underprivileged, children, old folks - a truly heterogeneous group. No other form of music strikes so deeply at the emotions of such a cross-section of people," he said, "or cuts so delightfully across the social lines of income, education, occupation or

Smith's office in Grosse Pointe Woods is filled with music, photographs, memorabilia, recordings, tapes, band uniforms, and two walls full of signed photographs of famous musicians, conductors and composers, as well as dozens of honorary plaques and awards.

Yet, with the help of only a few volunteers, a computer and his wife, Smith takes care of most of the business of the Detroit Concert Band - the bookings, selection of programs, arranging, transporting, rehearsing and performing, fund-raising, publicity, even filling orders for recordings.

"We're a business band," he said, "in the business of doing concerts." Band membership varies from 52 to 65 members, depending on the location of the concert and the cost. He said he pays top scale to his musicians. They're all full-time professionals. "Good musicians like to play with other good musicians. So they like to play for us."

Smith's musical career began when he was 8 years old. He received a cornet from his father for Christmas. Smith's parents were musicians - his father, a pianist,

Leonard Smith

In 1936, after completing his schooling, Smith joined the Goldman Band in New York City, as a cornet soloist.

He came to Detroit in 1937 to take a job as a cornet soloist with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and to play on the Ford Sunday Evening Hour, a weekly radio program. "For a few years I played with the Detroit Symphony in the winter and back with the Goldman Band in the summer. I had the best of two worlds," he said.

He joined the Navy in 1942, played with the Navy band in Washington, D.C., then returned to the DSO after World War II.

Smith started the Detroit Concert Band in 1946. "I had been purchasing a music library all along. My theory was: Given good music, good arrangements, good musicians, good rehearsals and a good conductor — you've got to come up with good perfor-

John Philip Sousa is Smith's idol. Sousa died in 1932. Smith never met Sousa. "I heard the Sousa band play," he said. "My father took me out of school to attend an afternoon concert in Poughkeepsie. I was really impressed, I guess, but I don't remember what they played. Later I knew Sousa's widow. And John Philip Sousa III (Sousa's grandson) is a good friend of mine. He's on the advisory board of the Detroit Concert Band, Inc.'

During the '50s and '60s, the Detroit Concert Band performed regularly in the Detroit area at Belle Isle and the Fairgrounds, doing about 40 or 50 concerts a season. Recently, the band was chosen to provide the music for a BBC documentary on the life of John Philip Sousa. The producers of the TV documentary traveled all over the world, Smith said, looking for a band with just the right sound. "Every place they went, someone mentioned our name, so they came to Detroit and we were eventually chosen to do the sound track.' The Detroit Concert Band also provided the music for a recent ABC documentary, "The Indomitable Teddy Roosevelt." They've done a commercial for Rockwell International, and Smith wrote and performed some of the music for "An American Adventure," the story of the space shuttle Col-

They've also played at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, at North High School, and at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club on the Fourth of July a few years ago. "We play under many different roofs," Smith said. "Outdoors, at pavilions, in auditoriums. At the Yacht Club we played on the pool

Asked about his evaluation of the acoustics of Detroit's Orchestra Hall and Ford Auditorium, Smith said Orchestra Hall's acoustics are superb, but Ford Auditorium's aren't so had. "I'm not so concerned about how an audience evaluates acoustics," he said. "I want it balanced as it leaves the stage. I use a different type of seating arrangement than many concert bands do. Some instruments have directional sound like cornets and trombones. Others have a non-directional sound - flutes, clarinets, saxaphones. I want the directional sound facing the audience.

Smith recently completed a series of recordings of every known march composed by Sousa — 116 in all. "I'm concerned with the fleeting aspect of live performances," he said. "That's why I wanted to document these marches for all time."

Then, he said, just in case the Detroit Concert Band would become stereotyped as a Sousa march band, they recorded an album, "Gems of the Concert Band," which featured some of his own compositions, and selections from Tschaikovsky, Goldman, Rimsky-Korsakov's "Flight of the Bumblebee," and other concert band music.

Salary increase tabled

A recommendation to increase Park City Manager John Crawford's salary at the city council meeting April 13 was tabled until the next meeting.

The recommendation to increase Crawford's salary from $50,562 to $52,585 was made by Mayor Pro Tem David Gaskin, chairman of the Personnel Committee. Gaskin also recommended that the four percent increase be retroactive to Jan. 1, 1987.

The motion, made at the end of the council meeting, prompted Councilman James Robson to ask why the matter was not on the agenda. Gaskin said the committee met Saturday to discuss the matter, too late for inclusion on

20th academy auction is a classic -offering classic cars, classic vacations, classic jewels and a classic good time

Churches Grosse Pointe

Board of Realtors 9-13B

By Elsa Frohman Feature Editor

f, by any chance, you happen to be on the verge of buying a thoroughbred horse with a pedigree that includes an Argentinian triple crown winner, or perhaps this afternoon you were going to book a passage on the QEII with a return trip on the Concorde, or if you were just about to put down your money for a DeLorean sportscar - wait! If you can hold off for just a couple of weeks, the Grosse Pointe Academy has got such a deal for you.

It's nearly time for the Action Auction, the one-stop shopping spot for classic cars, classic vacations, classic jewels, classic furs and even classic pets.

However, that is not to say that if you aren't in the market for a sportscar or a stay in the Presidential Suite at The Drake Hotel, there won't be anything for you at the auction — au contraire! You might find a painting by a local artist, a sweatshirt or a puppy.

"We have many items that go for $80 to $1,500," said Ardis Gardella, who with her husband, Raymond, is chairing the auction this year. "There is something for everyone.

This will be the 20th Action Auction and the Gardellas and their staff of more than 150 volunteers are working to make it the most spectacular auction yet, no mean task, since the auction is nationally recognized and raises in the neighborhood of $500,000 a year.

'We are thrilled that the auction has gained the kind of reputation it has," Ardis said. "Someone may bid on a week in a villa, and when they take it, they are spreading the word of our community throughout the world."

Proceeds from the auction are earmarked for the renovation of the 102-year-old Lakeshore building on the academy campus. The work is already under way on the first floor. By the end of the year, community groups using the building will enjoy the newly finished front parlors and main dining room.

'We're trying to do more than run a few schools," Ardis said. "We've been listed as a historic landmark and the grounds are now open to the public. The chapel is open for weddings and other beautiful ceremonies, for only the most minimal charge. I feel the academy is becoming open more and more to the community. We're trying to preserve something meaningful to us all."

Ardis is a member of the board of trustees of the academy. Her daughter is a graduate of the academy and her son is currently a student.

"Our children have been at the academy for 11 years," she said. "For me, we've stayed with the school because of the family atmosphere we found here. They don't just develop the academic portion of the student. They develop the whole child."

The auction has grown steadily over the years. Each year there are more items for both the main auction and the preview auction, to be held this year on May 6. The preview is offered, at no extra charge, for everyone with a reservation for the main auction. The preview features a separate auction of items received after the bill for the main auction was set.

In the beginning, just a few items were offered on preview night. This year, there will be about 200 items - in addition to

Operation LINC applauds its volunteers during Volunteerism Week

written by Trisha Fishman, second vice president of Operation LINC to honor the many volunteers of the organization.

Volunteering is any unpaid helping activity undertaken by one's own free will. It is safe to say that everyone of us, at some point in life, has been a volunteer.

In salute to the volunteers efforts the Volunteer Network is sponsoring National Volunteerism Week, April 26-May 2.

A volunteer has chosen to give up some of his or her personal time and energy for the benefit of others and for the improvement of their communities. From raising money, serving on boards of directors, to creating organizations that reach out and involve others who share their values and beliefs, these are the things the volunteers at Operation LINC and other organizations do.

Past, present and future volunaddress their current involvements as volunteers and their comments about volunteerism.

In 1971 when Operation LINC was still under the wing of the Junior League of Detroit, Louise Bryant, was one of LINC's found-

> "Fantastic, we've come a long way in five years when we first hand tied 2,000 red, white and blue ribbons for the volunteers in the Detroit area to wear as participants in recognition of volunteerism," she said.

> The Kick-Off Breakfast for National Volunteerism is April 27 aboard the Landsdown. James Blanchard will sponsor a Volunteer Honor Roll which will be signed by the nominees chosen by organizations for their outstanding volunteering efforts.

> The breakfast is already sold

The notion of volunteering for community service has also spread to the work place. Volunteer: The National Center for Citizen Involvement has identified teers of LINC were contacted to more than 700 major corporations and 350 labor affiliates that in someway encouraged and assisted workers to volunteer.

Business leaders have recognized that participation in fundraising is not enough. To fill social responsibility, companies resources. Examples of corporate involvement are sponsoring a wide range of group projects, released time and loaned personnel to projects.

A local example of this is Jacobson's designing three showcases on St. Clair in recognition of Volunteerism Week starting April 20. The Central branch of the Grosse Pointe Library is allowing LINC the use of its showcase May 1 for a volunteerism display.

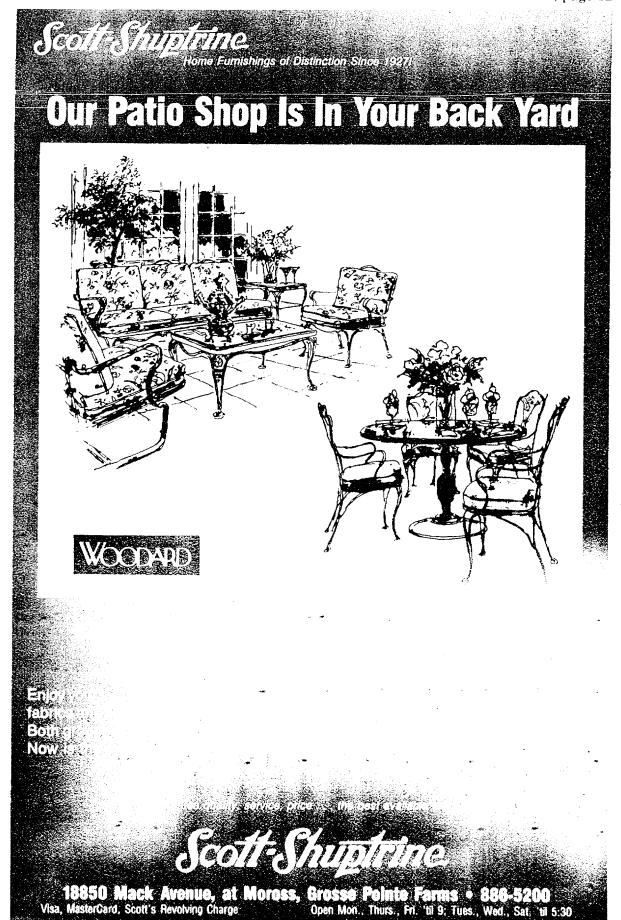

Barbara Willett, the first woman president of the Greater Detroit Society for the Blind and Past President of Operation LINC in 1978-79, is still donating goods to LINC and keeping abreast of its progress. When asked if there was one word to describe LINC, Willett chose "vital, to those who receive and those who give." Willett feels volunteer recognition is important because, "volunteers are like diamonds, we can't afford to lose one."

Volunteering for Operation LINC for more than five years, Dottie Lang, present director of WJR Call for Action, stated she learned so much through volunteering and used her talents along the way. Through volunteer work at LINC Lang found it a rewarding, informative and heart warming experience.

"Society does appreciate volunteers and they are paid - with something much more valuable than money," she said.

Beverly Lineweber, a previous LINC volunteer and presently a business woman and member of the Village Association, thinks Operation LINC is a good concept. Lineweber said she believes the experiences gained through volunteering are invaluable. A good stepping stone in life, many skills can be applied to relationships with friends, family and at

Bartkiewicz appearance honors Pointer

Grosse Pointe resident Hixie Boykin Sanford will be honored at the Grosse Pointe Symphony Orchestra's May 3 afternoon concert when guest artist Leszek Bartkiewicz plays the seldom heard Scriabin Piano Concerto in F-sharp minor as a tribute to her life-long dedication to classical music. The program will begin at 3 p.m. in Parcells Auditorium, Mack at Vernier, Grosse Pointe Woods, under the direction of Felix Resnick. The program will also feature works by Verdi and Dvorak.

Through the years Sanford has worked in many capacities on behalf of the Grosse Pointe Symphony. She was for many years a member of the Grosse Pointe Symphony Society board of directors, which handles orchestra business, and she has served as secretary, been editor and advertising chair for the printed concert programs and headed up the soloist selection committee. She is also a charter member of the Grosse Pointe Symphony Women's Association and was its second president.

"I believe thoroughly in the community orchestra concept,' she said. "It gives a chance for good non-professionals to make music together and gives young musicians a chance to perform before an audience with an orchestra, a chance they might not otherwise have.'

The church in China

The Rev. Robert Boley Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church

For years I have wondered whatever happened to the Christian church in China during the communist regime.

Articles have recently come out about what's happening today. The Upper Room devotional editor interviewed the 72-yearold leader of the Christian church in China who spoke of the church "dying" in 1966 and being "resurrected" in 1979.

All churches were closed and pastors and leaders sent to work

For 13 years it was unlawful for Christians to participate in any form of public worship. But the church was not dead, but alive, in small, clandestine home churches.

We sought and found the faith and hope for the living of each day, always trusting that the future was in God's hands," he Churches were reopened, and the first services were held on Easter, 1979. It was a great day for Christianity in China. Before the revolution there were about one million members.

Today, the report is that there are three million. Bishop K. H. Ting of Nanjing Theological Seminary is optimistic as he writes about the new life in the Christian church in China.

"The Lord has shown us that, in order for Christians to build up the Body of Christ in China, we must model ourselves after the church of the Apostolic age." It seems that the Church there is prospering, perhaps more than ever, in spite of the terrible problems of recent years.

Last Sunday's Easter message is that Jesus who was dead, is now alive. The church in China was apparently dead, but is now alive - very much so.

God is always bringing new life out of deadly situations. "For in everything God is working together for good with those who love Him," writes St. Paul.

The Easter Event brings new life to anyone who will accept its good news. Yes, we thank God for this absolutely fantastic concerts each school year. The New Life Singers began in the spring of 1970 and since then have been "presenting Christ through song" in churches, schools, nursing homes, and prisons in Michigan, Ontario, and many other parts of the United

Art Deco is a symbol of America

By David M. Maxfield Smithsonian News Service

Winning historic landmark status for a streamlined Greyhound bus station or collecting a 1937 Electrolux vacuum cleaner might seem curious indeed to preservationists who years ago saved the fine old homes and furnishings once owned by George Washington and Thomas Jefferson.

But the rush now to protect a dwindling stock of architecturally significant early 20th century buildings and to collect and exhibit scarce consumer goods from the 1920s and '30s is considered an equally compelling task by a number of Americans. As one architect recently said of the Grey-hound station located in Wash-ington, D.C., "There aren't many buildings from this period left, partly because there wasn't much construction being done as the country was coming out of the Depression. If we save it now, 25 or 50 years from now we will be glad we did.

Today, a variety of items from the "Deco" decades, things like chromium cocktail shakers and jazzy Bakelite jewelry, have taken on popular roles of "kitsch" or "camp." However, the aggregate outpouring from the nation's factories in the earlier era was anything but superficial. The new goods changed - and enlivened — the face of American life, making their preservation especially meaningful.

Fueling that change was the machine. In the years between the world wars, "America's artists, designers and public strug-gled to acknowledge, understand, accept and finally control the machine-driven world," Brooklyn Museum Director Robert T. Buch noted during the museum's re-cent exhibit, "The Machine Age." "These goals," he said, "prepared the way for America's political, economic and artistic leadership in the 1940s and 1950s."

The machine presence was felt everywhere after World War I — from the jangle of the bedside alarm to the late night sign-off on the new console radio. In some circles, houses were thought of as "machines for living," and hu-mans themselves were viewed as mechanisms with the dawn of "time-motion" studies that clocked worker efficiency. Busby Berkeley choreographed his showgirls in forms resembling aircraft engines. Carl Sandburg wrote "Smoke and Steel." Vogue magazine in 1934 dictated that to be fashionable a woman's "profile will have the windswept fleet lines of oplane." a speedboat or Machinery, of course, had been heavily relied upon since the early decades of the 19th century, but Americans tended to keep their distance, trusting in rural values, in historical and Biblical traditions. "The machine was just seen as a way of getting something done." historian Richard Guy Wilson, a contributor to the Brooklyn show, told a Smithsonian Resident Associates class on

Art Deco.

According to Wilson, that perception changed with World War I because the victory of the allies was in a sense a machine victory, the force that tipped the balance this way. Despite the war's destruction, "people were impressed by the new machine, and it brought a consciousness that we were in a new age," Wilson ex-plained. Soon after the war, the machine felt right at home for the first time, moving into the kit-chen, the laundry and the bath but leaving, for the moment, the rest of the house "traditional. The reputation of these engines of change was refined even more by artists who saw in them a glow of romance. The photographer Margaret Bourke-White, for one, made many look twice when she saw that "dynamos were more beautiful than pearls." Yet the overarching question in the '20s was whether it was possible to make a genuine culture out of industrialization. Could there be, as one designer wrote, "a new style as right and satisfying and as true to our time as Gothic was to the Middle Ages?" The answer was Art Deco, the name given the jazzy, angular, flamboyant designs of the '20s. N, "One of the most wonderful things about working on this is the people," Ardis said. "We have past parents, people whose children aren't here anymore and haven't been for several years, working on committees. We have some 150 volunteers.'

"This year's donations have been splendid, Ardis said. While some non-profit groups have been encountering problems with donations because of changes in the tax laws, donations to the Action Auction have been up this year.

'We have more contracts now than last year," she said. "People have been approaching us (offering donations). We have encountered no hesitation.

If everyone needed the same kind of mortgage, they wouldn't need one from Comerica.

When it comes to getting a home mortgage, some banks give you the feeling that everybody is buying the same house.

They sit you down. They show you the same mortgage they show everybody else. They have you fill out the same forms. And then they let you leave.

Well, that's not the way we work. Because at Comerica, we understand that everyone has different financial needs.

And that's why we give you a choice.

For instance, if you're looking for a simple, convenient way to pay for your home, we might show you our popular 15 and 30 year fixed rate mortgages.

If you need a lower rate to start, we might show you our 1 year adjustable rate mortgage. Or our 5 year balloon mortgage.

There's even a jumbo-sized loan for those of you who are planning on buying a jumbo-sized house. With it, you can borrow up to $500,000. That's $150,000 more than most other places offer.

And no matter which type of mortgage you choose, you'll have a Comerica representative helping you all the way, offering advice, and making sure you choose the best mortgage for your needs.

So call 1-800-292-1300 for the name of your nearest Comerica Mortgage representative, or stop in at any Comerica branch office.

Unless, of course, you really do want the same house everyone else has.

Breast-screening project planned hospitals have joined forces with the American Cancer Society to create Breast Screening '87, a community service project that offers women low-dose mammograms at a variety of locations throughout southeastern Michigan.

The mammograms will be offered at 41 hospitals and their affiliates including Bon Secours, Cottage, Saratoga, and St. John hospitals. The program is the first of its kind offered in Detroit or the state and will run from April 27 through May 30.

The mammograms will cost $50 - less than half the typical charge. The tests will be administered by the radiology departments at each of the facili- for example, a study of 280,000 ties, and a written report of the results will be furnished to the participant and her physician course, about half were only dewithin a week of the exam.

Most women have avoided mammograms because they and their physicians don't realize the benefits outweigh the costs. A recent survey cited the American Cancer Society points out that only about 10 percent of the women who should be tested actually get the procedure. As a result, breast cancer - which is the most prevalent cancer among women - continues to increase.

Although mammograms cannot detect all breast cancers, they are considered the best screening tool available, since they can literally "see" breast cancer before there's a lump. In the late 1970s women found that mammograms detected 90 percent of cancers. Of tectable by mammograms.

Sports

Brightest idea I've heard in a long time is the one conceived recently by my alma mater, the University of Detroit. It's a new program called Center for the Study of Sport at the University of Detroit. The center will assist professional and selected other athletes in completing their college educations. It's unique to Michigan and in my opinion, the second best thing out of U of D in years.

All kidding aside. I think I like the idea The university is opening the center because of the large number of athletes who have not completed their education. Only around 33 percent of pro football players and just 20 percent of pro basketball players active today have degrees.

Beginning with the next full pro season, a one-credit course stressing written and oral skills will be offered on the team site providing enough players are interested, according to U of D president Robert A. Mitchell, S.J Members of pro teams like the Detroit Tigers, Pistons, Lions and Red Wings will at tend regular degree classes at the university following completion of the intro course.

It is ironic that the innovative program is being offered at U of D. Back in my days there (1975-1979), I can remember taking a sociology course with several members of the Titan basketball team, none of whom ever bothered to purchase a textbook, much less open one up and study from it. In fact, one of those Titans (who, coincidentally, went on to semi-stardom in the NBA) used to come into the class every day, sit down in the desk behind me and ask if he could use my book. Upon receiving a negative answer, he would usually retaliate by propping his size 13s up on the back of my chair, then falling asleep (which is a lot similar to some of his NBA performances, come to think of it).

Things are different in Titan Territory these days, however. There has been an increased emphasis on academics at U of D and, I think, throughout the country. I'd say that it comes not a moment too soon.

Only one in 12,000 high school athletes makes it to the pros. Only one in 50 — one in 50! — even gets a scholarship to play in college. I think that the advent of the NCAA's Rule 48 (requiring that college freshmen at Division I schools compile at least a "C" average in high school and score at least a 700 on their SAT tests) shows that there is concern about the education athletes are receiving in America.

That same concern really hasn't been shown to those athletes who DO receive scholarship, attend colleges and make it as pros. And that's probably because not too many people really give a fig whether highly-paid, much-pampered athletes get an education or not. After all, what's an athlete supposed to do with math, other than figure out how much of his bonus he needs to set aside to cover the down payment on a Lamborghini? And courses in public speaking? Isn't that what an agent is for?

Perhaps what U of D is doing by instituting this course is forcing athletes (and perhaps more importantly, potential athletes) to realize that there is life after baseball . . . or football...or basketball.

Southern breeze

Stevens' championship is first by Detroit-area skipper

By Peggy O'Connor Sports Editor

Veteran Bayview Yacht Club sailor Henry Burkard knows how

Sprint, in the water during an difficult it is for a Great Lakes fourth in class. sailor to win the Southern Ocean Racing Conference championship. He tried to do it 25 times.

"We came pretty close a couple of times, but there was always some hot-shot boat ahead of us," Burkard recalls. The winner of six Mackinac races and 14 D.R.Y.A. championships has retired to Florida and confined his boating to power craft, but he and other Great Lakes sailors sat up and took notice last month when one of their own, the City's John Stevens, won the six-race SORC over-

As it was for Burkard, Stevens' road to the championship of the most prestigious U.S. offshore sailing series, was bumpy. His new 42-foot Joubert/Nivelt design "Sprint" won the first event, then stayed near the front of the fleet for the remainder of the series. It wash t a breeze, to be sure. Sprint crossed the line too early in the fourth race of the series, the 135mile Ocean Triangle Race. She trailed substantially after returning for the restart, then later in that race, suffered a power failure. Sprint wound up finishing seventh in the fleet in that event. Prior to that, in the Lipton Cup race, fluky winds sent Sprint from first place to last in the span of one-half hour. She wound up

"I'm thrilled, naturally," Stevens said about being the first Detroit area boat in the 46-year history of the SORC to win the title. "The only thing that surprised me was that the boat handled so well despite being so new. We were concerned about that because Sprint had yet to prove that it was worthy of handling high seas."

Sprint did that and more, handling a mixture of light and heavy air and behaving well in all conditions; Stevens said. And Stevens and crew - Lowell North, Larry Klein, Jay Hansen, Brendan Dobroth, Ron Sherry, Greg Stevens, Jamie Stewart, Dave LaMere. Mark Szymanski and Larry Mahieu, David Dow and Chris Clark - were able to avoid any major problems along the way. "What makes the championship so special is that we had some very good competition. That's really so important in an event like this," Stevens said. Stevens and Sprint faced such competition as Olympic medalists Steve Erickson, of San Diego, and Steve Benjamin of Oyster Bay; as well as two-time world champ Dave Ullman, Stars & Stripes designer Bruce Nelson and Peter Isler, who served as navigator aboard Stars & Stripes in the recent America's Cup victory

"We saw all of those big boats in our class and we were humbled," Stevens said. "We were smaller, but we were able to prevail because the big boats had to save their time and they didn't.

"They just couldn't shake us loose.'

Looking back, Stevens added, he and the crew just tried to take the grueling six races one at a time. "Then all of a sudden, they we were: champions. You know, the funny thing is, it's really more of a technical thing with me," said Stevens, a prominent Detroit architect. "There were some top competitors there, top crews. But one wound up with a broken spar and the other lost a rudder. You try to foresee all of this in the design, making sure you have all of the requirements. But the bottom line really, is just survival."

Among the awards presented to Stevens and crew for their SORC achievements were the Florida Governor's Trophy (SORC overall IOR Division), the Great Lakes Trophy (Most successful in the Great Lakes), First in Class Trophy (Class 3), Governor's Cup (Perpetual trophy), The Gurnow Trophy (to the foredeck crew of the winning yacht), Nassau Cup (Third in class award), Miami to Nassau Trophy (Second in class

Insurance — part II

Last week we discussed boat insurance for boats under 26 feet in length. This week we will focus on boats 26 feet long and larger. Just as with their "younger siblings," bigger boats need to carry liability insurance. For these larger boats it is called Protection and Indemnity coverage and is not covered under homeowners insurance "There are complicated laws covering the personal injury liability of boat owners," says attorney Ken Wilson. "Briefly, these are the basic common laws and state statutes which are generally applicable to all injuries caused by negligence. Next, there is admiralty or maritime law which applies to shipping and navigation. Third there is the Jones Act, applicable to employees of a vessel. Which one applies depends on who is being sued as a result. Generally speaking, common law negligence applies to boat passengers, guests and business invitees; maritime law applies to seamen; the Jones Act applies to seamen who are employees.' On the yacht policy, covering hoats 26 feet and larger liability in surance is called Protection and Indemnity coverage. It is different than standard liability insurance because it will offer coverage should one become involved with these complicated personal injury liability laws. Furthermore, Protection and Indemnity will cover towing the vessel and the marking of a wreck.

Just as with the small boats, larger boats need Hull Insurance. As with the smaller boats, there is Replacement Coverage and Actual Cash Value. Both of these were discussed last week. However on yacht policies (boats 26 feet and larger), within the Replacement Coverage provision, the policy is expanded from the small boat formula to include "Agreed Amount.

In the event of a total loss, the agreed amount that you insured for will be paid. Often this is the amount paid for the boat. Boat owners need to take into consideration the amount they paid for the boat, as well as the equipment they have installed and improvements they have made, when determining the Agreed Amount of the yacht policy. Often owners neglect to inform their insurance agents of additional equipment, changes, alterations and improvements that make the boat more valuable. If the boat becomes a total loss, they are, sadly, Increasing the Agreed Amount will increase the premium, but it will also protect an investment. The whole point of carrying insurance is to cover the worst possible situation for full value.

Make sure yacht policies are "All Risk." This means owners are covered for everything except ... (specific exceptions are listed, as opposed to any wording that would list what your coverage includes). All Risk is preferred.

Yacht policies generally require a lay-up period, a period of time when the boat is out of commission. In our area this lay-up period is generally the four months from Dec. 1 through March 31. Many decommission their boats and take equipment home for storage. Yacht policies usually cover such equipment stored ashore during lay-up.

Insurance companies are often asked about leaving boats in the water during the four month lay-up period and how that affects the insurance. Insurance companies do not specify how the boat must be decommissioned. They do, however, exclude ice and freeze damage from the policy. One can purchase an endorsement, for an extra premium, that covers bubbling.

Yacht policies frequently require surveys, even on newer yachts The insurance company's rationale for this expense is the need to know the condition of the vessel, what might need to be done to the vessel, and to get an indication of the value. Often repairs to the yacht require a survey before the insurance company will authorize pay ment. This is a safeguard for both the owner and the insurance com

There are some boats that are difficult to insure, with or without a survey. Older wooden boats are difficult to insure because of the life expectancy of the wood. Newer "grand prix" type racing sailboats are difficult to insure because of expensive repairs and replacements.

Older boats are insureable under an "old boat formula." The insurance company takes the market value and compares it to the replacement value via a formula and establishes a rate. You may pay a very high premium for your older yacht.

Just as with the small boat, the yacht policy limits the navigational area available to the boater. If you take your boat from one area to another you must change insurance.

Should you decide that you will not be using your boat for one rea son or another, you can purchase "Port Risk Only" coverage. This covers the "liveaboard" who never moves the boat as well as the boat that was never launched. Before the yacht is navigated again the Port Risk coverage must be changed to a Navigation Policy.

Insurance companies are interested in limiting losses, and the bet ter risk you make yourself and your boat the more likely you are to be insured. Companies are interested in your boating experience. previous insurance claims, and boating courses you have taken such as the ones offered by Power Squadron and Coast Guard Auxiliary. They are interested in knowing if you have put in automatic fire ex tinguishers or improved the safety features in other ways.

There are few governmental regulations in the marine insurance industry and the boat owner needs to remember that not all insur ance companies think alike. One needs to shop around and ask lots of questions, then negotiate the yacht policy that is right for them

Remember to insure for the worst, insure for the full value of your vessel including equipment, insure for repairs at present prices, with out depreciation, and be able to collect the amount insured for. Keep your agent informed. One agent said, "We are not mindreaders. If you make changes, tell us.'

When you make changes - change your policy. It is to your advan tage. (Technical information for this series was provided by the Leonard Gerow agency.)

South girls shine at Husky Relays

Grosse Pointe South's girls' varsity track team set three new school records and established one meet record in taking first place honors at the prestigious Port Huron Northern Husky Relays on April 18. South topped the field of Class A schools by placing in 15 of the 17 relay events at the meet.

The 8000 meter relay team of Micha Song, Megen Smucker, took 15 seconds off the meet record (set by South in 1986) on the way to a first place finish. The sprint medley relay team of Traci Lee, Julie Burke, Nicole Tocco and Reba Uthappa ran to a first place finish at record pace, bettering the old mark by eight seconds.

South tracksters eye records

South's boys' varsity track season is under way and with two outstanding seniors leading the way, it could be an exciting season for the Blue Devils.

By season's end, Brian Stratton could be called South's "fastest runner ever." Stratton already holds six class sprint records and has a goal of breaking 50 seconds in the 400 meters this season. He recently scored 19 points in a quadrangular meet winning the 100 meters (11.50), the 200 meters (22.7) and the 400 meters (51.2). He also anchored the 1600 meter relay team to a second place fin-

Senior Kevin English is aiming for the 800 and 1600 meter records.

South's 1987 edition is a very young team, with a freshman or sophomore in each of the 17 varsity-level events. Sophomore Pat Bruce will lead the high jumpers this spring; his classmates Kyle Schomaker and Andy Cox are already veterans, running sprint relays and hurdles. Freshman Dane Lupo has demonstrated varsity skills in the long jump and 400 meters. And freshmen David Kerfoot and Mark Sonnenberg and sophomore Phil Orton will be ac-

Newcomers Scott Kaminski (junior) and Jeremy Dixon (sophomore) will provide added strength in the varsity lineup. Seniors Chris Gross and Tony Murdock should score point for the varsity and Coach Tom Wise looks to 10th graders Ethan Dettmer and Jeff Maccagnone to contribute.

Soccer shoot benefits CFF

The Sterling Heights American Youth Soccer Organization (AYSO) will sponsor a "Soccer Shoot" Saturday, April 25, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Wanda Park, on Clinton River Road (between Schoenherr and Saal).

Kids between 5 and 18 will take shots against a goalkeeper in an attempt to score as many goals as possible with a maximum of 10. AYSO team players will canvass local neighborhoods to collect pledges for the total amount of goals they score. All proceeds will go to aid research of cystic fibrosis - the No. 1 genetic killer of children and young adults in America.

South sprinters (left to right) Traci Lee, Julie Burke and Reba Uthappa teamed up with Nicole Tocco to set a new track record for South last Saturday at the seventh annual Port Huron Northern Husky Relays. It was one of three new marks set by South's girls enroute to a first place finish.

The buoys of summer get set for the sailing season

The U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Bristol Bay will be attached to the barge at its bow for at least the next week. It is being utilized to replace navigational buoys on the Detroit River and Lake St. Clair.

By Peter A. Salinas Staff Writer

For most, the boating season begins later this month, or even after Memorial Day, but for dozens of Group Detroit U.S. Coast Guard seamen who spent the winter breaking up ice, the boating season began on March 23, just two days after ice was cleared from the St. Clair River.

The 140-foot coast guard cutter Bristol Bay, which is both a tug and ice breaker, removes and replaces aids to navigation (buoys nuns, cans and lighted) with the aid of a huge barge equipped with Group Detroit Commander Theodore "Ted" P. Brandsma, 48, of the Park, said there are over 800 buoys in the area he oversees. The Aids to Navigation team will replace some 165 buoys this season, repair them if needed, paint them and either put them back in the water or store them for next winter.

The ice takes a toll on the hollow metal structures, chipping away paint, denting the metal and possibly moving the 2,000 to 12,000 pound cement sinker from where it should be on the Detroit River or lake bottom.

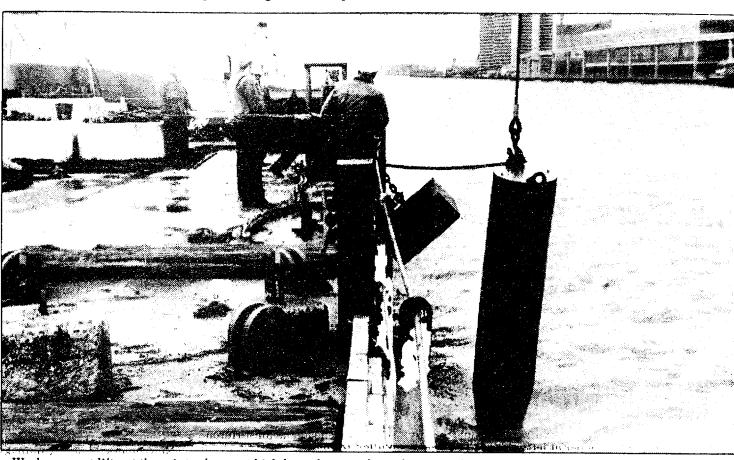

Using landmarks like the west chimney at the Ford plant in Windsor and the tall radio tower on Belle Isle, seamen use sextants to triangulate a position on the river. Then with care and precision, other coast guard workers on the barge drop a new buoy into place. The Coast Guard has an eight-yard diameter available in which to place the buoy, and it prides itself on accuracy.

It must be accurate, because boaters depend on buoy placement to avoid running aground. Harbor entrances are marked by buoys - they are the road markers of the waterways. Lt. Bob Hayden, 32, Commander of the Bristol Bay, said the ship carries about 26 crew when it is attached to the barge, but for normal operation there are 17 aboard.

The ship is clean and well cared for. Apologies were made for a barely noticeable roughness to the ride. The Bristol Bay lost a portion of its prop this winter — not uncommon after a winter of coming so close to channel's edge while breaking through tons of

The Bristol Bay should complete its aid to navigation work this week, depending on the weather. Then it is off to Lake Michigan where it will be doing some lighthouse servicing. If all goes well, that prop will be replaced sometime in August dur-

Workers must lift out the winter buoys which have become heavily scraped from winter ice and replace them with fresh buoys. Note the block in the center of the photo. That sinker probably weighs about 1,000 pounds.

Fat is nothing more than stored energy and the only way to use that energy is to move. We hear so much about various types of diets, but the simple fact is that you cannot consume more calories than you burn. If you're overweight and you want to shed some pounds, you have but one choice: eat less and exercise more.

Statistics show that a combination of eating less and adding exercise is the most efficient and healthy way to lose weight. It is the combination of the two that is important.

Give yourself a challenge and decide to join other during National Physical Fitness Month to become more health conscious and follow a planned fitness schedule. You have to include aerobic activity in order to develop and maintain a significant level of cardiovascular fitness and to burn calories.

You also have to consider three important factors: "how often," "how long," and "how hard." How often means no less than three times per week. How long is from 20 to 30 minutes for beginners. How hard, specifically, means at an intensity of from 60 to 80 percent of your heart rate training range.

The simple formula is 220 minus your age multiplied by 60/70 or 80 percent. Significant improvement will not be seen at an intensity below 60 percent of your functional heart rate range.

Listen to your body. Are you perspiring? Can you carry on a conversation? If not, slow down, the intensity is too high. Can you sing? Then speed up you aren't exercising with enough intensity. Are you feeling pain? Stop - DO NOT exercise through pain — there is no gain in pain.

How are you feeling? Keep up a commentary with your body. It's your responsibility to monitor yourself by being aware of how you're feeling. Contrary to popular opinion, it's okay to stop jogging and walk for awhile; just keep moving so you can burn those calo-

Picking a team or partner is an effective way to lose weight. By getting a group of people to participate against other groups, you will add motivation to your own personal reasons for losing weight. If organizing teams is not a possibility, try to get a partner who will be able to support you.

Maintain a diet diary by using a calorie guide to figure out how many calories you are consuming. One pound roughly equals 3,500 calories so to lose one pound per week you will need to eat 500 calories less per day.

Analyze the diet diary by looking at the time of day you usually eat. If you eat three main meals at about the same time each day a good weight reduction plan is being followed. If you find that you are snacking at any time of the day try to refuse food offered if it is not time for a normal meal.

Leave the table immediately after eating. If you sit at the table after a meal and socialize, you may be tempted to eat more than you really want.

Don't read, watch television or do anything else when you eat. Concentrate on the food or you might lose track of how much you're eating.

In many of the preceeding articles, there often was a recurring theme: visualizing to help reach goals.

The creative mind is a powerful resource and when its powers are explored and put into practice, we can acheive successes born in our fondest imaginings. Thaddeus Golas, author of "The Lazy Man's Guide to Enlightment," stated, "What you cannot think about, you cannot control. What you cannot conceive of in your awareness, you will stumble over in your path."

Visualization helps define desires and goals. But before it can work for you, you must realize and accept that you are in charge of the possibilities within you. You must believe in your power to change and to be successful.

Deep relaxation is another essential ingredient to the total visualization experience. The purpose of relaxation is to slow down the brain wave cycles to the alpha state of consciousness. It is at this level that reprogramming can occur.

The alpha level is the subconscious mind, the creative center of the brain. It can be reached only in a state of deep relaxation. Once that stage has been reached, concepts and beliefs can be reprogrammed for success. A goldmine of new experiences and potential awaits as you learn to relax and visualize. When this technique is effectively mastered vou will be able to:

 Strengthen your feelings of love and self-worth.

 Recognize your own special strengths and those of others.

 Change those areas of your life that are unsatisfactory, such as being overweight or having negative behaviors.

There are many different pictures and places you can create in your mind to use as a visualization aid to reach your goals. Remember some of the steps in the Relaxation and Visualization Technique. a) Find a quiet spot; b) Breathe deeply, close your eyes; c) Tighten, then relax your body; start with the toes, work up.

Now you notice a clown walking directly towards you, his hands are filled with magical balloons, brilliantly colored; stretching and straining at their strings. The clown hands you a felt-tip marker and asks you to choose your favorite balloon. What color is it? The clown tells you to write something which has been troubling you on the balloon. Write the first thought that comes to mind ... take your time ... that's it.

Now release and let go of the worry balloon. Watch it rise faster and faster as it seeks the freedom of the wind. What a precious gift you have given yourself today. It is time to return home and as you are walking back you realize you are successful, you have met a challenge and you have become stronger.

Whenever you are troubled, worried or anxious, recall in your mind's eye the balloon rising higher and higher, taking your concern with it.

The list is virtually endless. Nothing is too insignificant or too ambitious to visualize. It is important to remember that visualization and daydreaming are two different processes. They both are associated with the creation of positive mind images, but visualization takes this process one step further, accompanying those images with goal-setting and commitment to attain those goals.

Visualization is stressed more than ever before as a prerequisite to success. Doctors advocate its use in treating such conditions as insomnia, shyness and alcoholism. Business people use visualization to increase their business and to enhance relationships with employees and others. Athletes use it extensively, especially in individual competition, such as skiing or track.

When our desire is to lose weight or change our eating habits, we must change our negative self-image in order for the change to become permanent. If you begin a diet believing you will lose weight only to gain it back, you can be quite sure you will. If you continue to see yourself as a failure, you most likely will remain one.

Through visualization, however, that perception can be altered to a positive, productive image. I believe there is some of Cervantes' "Don Quixote" in all of us. To "Dream the Impossible Dream" and make it a reality. You have the power to release your own personal energy and to expand your mind and capabilities. Believe it. Be it. Then do it!

April 23, 1987 Grosse Pointe News Entertainment Fringe Dwellers' delivers an emotional punch

By Michael Chapp Special Writer

Given the fact that the pages of newpapers are filled almost daily with stories of apartheid-related problems in South Africa, it seems like the last thing one would be looking for in entertainment is a film about racial unrest in Australia. It's precisely that parallel in reality, however, that makes "The Fringe Dwellers" as powerful as it is. Sure, the picture slips into preachy melodrama at times, but in sum, this is one of the most socially and artistically significant pictures of the year.

"Dwellers" is the story of Trilby
(Kristina Nehm), a young Australian aborigine, and her attempts to break away from the constraints of a cruel birthright. She was born into a poor, uneducated family and lives in a shack surrounded by countless others just like it. But Trilby is different. She has gumption, an education and the common sense to take her away from poverty. Her struggle is to find the heart to leave.

At first it looks like everything will be all right. Her family finds a way to afford a small frame house in a white urban area. Trilby is beside herself with joy. Maybe now, she dreams. Maybe now she will be treated like a white person. Maybe now she can go to the malt shop or the local swimming hole or to school without being badgered because she's black. Maybe now she has a chance to get away from the rest of those in her old neighborhood desolation.

Maybe not. For as quick as things make that 180-degree turn in Trilby's life, the circle com-who are doomed to a life of quiet where she began. Her father the same routine life that everygambles away the rent money, her mother knows nothing of social graces and, worst of all, Trilby is pregnant. Before long, it one around her is living.

"Dwellers," co-written and directed by Bruce Beresford, and adapted from the novel by Nene Gare, is unabashed in its plea for the aborigines. Whether or not there is a concerted effort to make a political statement relative to South Africa is for him to answer. But it will be hard for audiences not to see it that way. Through everything the picture does, both visually and aurally, we are made to empathize with Trilby's quandary. A leitmotif of buzzing mosquitos adds to the total feeling of decay by which she's surrounded. Frequent close-ups of old, worn faces intensify our understanding of the difficulty of these characters' lives. And the sheer drabness of the piece filmed with a distinct lack of color - reaffirms the pessimistic atmosphere of the whole.

None of this is to say, however, that the picture doesn't have its joyous moments, too. Indeed, there is a significant subtext in the film which asserts that the poor blacks may be happier than the white establishment that shuns them. As much as the picture speaks to Trilby's restlessness, it also pays heed to the joy of belonging to a close family. Trilby's family, symbolically named Comeaway, isn't without its problems. But there is a very detectable love in the midst of all the gloom. And it's that love which puts a nice - albeit somewhat contrived - accent on the

If there's a problem with "The Fringe Dwellers," it's the sweeping generalizations made about white people. Throughout the picture, with few exceptions, the whites are either incredibly abusive or sickeningly condescending. That's a bit hard to swallow, and it adds a fictional feeling to parts of the picture rather than a realistic one.

THE LADIES OF MISSALONGHI by Colleen McCullough

When the mysterious John Smith arrives on the scene he sets in motion ideas in Missy's mind so contrary to her upbringing and the mores of Byron's circumscribed life, that she shocks not only her family but John Smith himself.

And there's no real surprise in that, since Susan Seidelman is behind the wheel. Seidelman, known to audiences as the creative force behind "Smithereens" and "Desperately Seeking Susan" is not a filmmaker who frequently opts for the routine. Her movies ooze a playful, almost slaphappy aura; "Mr. Right" is associated with three- and four-wheeled all-terrain vehicles (ATV's).

Consumer Product SAFETY ALERT

FROM THE U.S. CONSUMER PRODUCT SAFETY COMMISSION, WASHINGTON, D.C. 20207 June, 1986

> CPSC Urges Caution for Three- and Four-Wheeled All-Terrain Vehicles

Users of ATVs should always wear a helmet, never carry passengers, and keep speeds low enough to permit safe traveling for the terrain. The majority of accidents occur when the ATV collides with an object and overturns sideways, backwards, or forward.

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission and the Specialty Vehicle Institute of America issue this updated safety alert to warn consumers of the potential operator risks associated with three- and fourwheeled all-terrain vehicles. CPSC's injury statistics have indicated a dramatic increase in injuries and deaths associated with all-terrain vehicles during the 1982-84 period and a continued rise in injuries and deaths in

Alf-terrain vehicles, often called ATVs, are small motorized recreational cycles with three or four large, soft tires and are designed for off-road use on a variety of terrains. In recent years, their popularity and sales have soared. Most units are sold for recreational use, Information from the Commission's National Electronic Injury Surveillance System (NEISS) indicates that the estimated number of ATVrelated injuries treated in hospital emergency rooms jumped from 8,800 in 1982 to 26,900 in 1983; and to 63,900 in 1984; and to 85,900 in 1985. Since January 1, 1982, 415 deaths involving all-terrain vehicles have been reported to the Commission. A recent CPSC survey (between May and July 1985) of all-terrain vehicle related injuries showed that 18 percent of the persons treated at emergency rooms were hospitalized. The majority of accidents occurred when the ATV collided with an object and overturned sideways, backwards, or forward. Almost half of the injured people were children under 18 years of age.

Many children injured were without adults nearby, were passengers, or were riding ATVs that were too large for them.

The information in the CPSC survey of injuries is preliminary and may change after on-site investigations of ATV related injuries. After the on-site investigations, CPSC will prepare a more detailed evaluation of the injured people, of the sequence of events in the ATV related accidents, and of possible causal factors.

Renewing home's appearance is a timehonored rite of spring

Spring is a time of renewal. Since ancient days, when the reality of the seasons was explained by the myth of Demeter, the goddess of the crops, mourning for the absence of her daughter Persephone who was constrained to spend three months of every year in the Underworld (corresponding, in calendar terms, to the winter), results have regioned when reg people have rejoiced when spring returns.

The first pointed crocus buds are an indication that it's time, once again, to make the house sparkle.

Closets are cleaned out, spring clothes pulled out of mothballs and, from attic to cellar, the work of refurbishing proceeds.

Outdoors, siding is washed down or the dirt and grime which have b installed, painting proceeds, roofs are cleaned and repaired, decks are built, while, within, a lively wallcovering is hung to reflect the joyous mood of spring, and a fresh coat of paint revivifies a tired corner.

Large or small, each project adds to the sense of anticipation, and the feeling of a job well done.

If you can't afford, this year, to have a new kitchen installed, you may want to consider new countertops or cabinets—those with ingenious storage systems are next in the consider the countertops.

now curtains can work wonders for virtually every room in the house; in your cleaning forays you may discover, tucked away, ones which didn't look quite right several years ago, but which suddayly can attractive accept.

suddenly seem attractive again.
Failing that, it's a cinch to run café curtains up on a sewing machine, using bright new fabric which captures the spirit of the season.

New sheets and towels, too, can do wonders, and a bunch of fresh flowers in a favorite vase are a small touch which has big impact, wherever it's placed. And, it's a great reward for tackling all the dirt and grime which have built up over the course of the winter.

Some of the refurbishing is purely practical. In spring, as well as fall, for example, smart homeowners check to make sure their insulation is adequate; after all, keeping cool air in during the summer months is as important as keeping it out during the winter.

New windows can give a house a whole new look; they can also add energy-efficiency and, depending on the material of which they're made, serve to reduce maintenance time in future years.
Then, there's cleaning out the garage, sorting through the eccentric accumulation of months or — in some cases — years. Do you really need the first rake you ever owned — sentimental value aside (and who can really get attached to a rake?), is it functional with half its teeth broken of? broken off?

What about the old, muscle-powered awn mower? If it's been replaced by an easy-to-use electric model (or if such a replacement is on your list of priorities for spring '87), now may be the time to do the honorable thing by the old stand-by.

If you can't bear to throw it out, consider donating it to a charitable organization (you may be able to take a tax deduction), or putting it up for sale — along with a myriad of other useless-to-you items — at a yard sale, which can yield extra revenue for some things you really can use.

If you're really assiduous during your spring cleaning marathon — and strict with yourself, in addition — you may be able to collect quite a number of objects which you can turn into capital in this

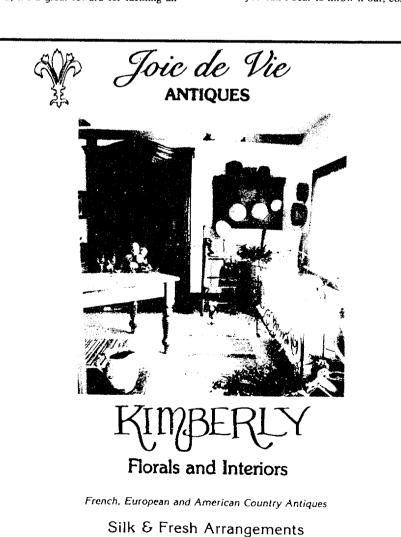

And, undoubtedly, in the process, you'll find things you've forgotten all about, and which have been put away for so long they seem new again!

Whether the projects you tackle are large or small, done on weekends, or a little every day, you'll derive a certain satisfaction from the whole process of readying your home for the summer to

In the process of beautifying it, you will be part of a continuum that stretches all the way back to the dawn of recorded history, participating in the spirit of re-newal which has been a springtime ritual ever since man has been able to define the difference between winter and

Now, doesn't that thought make all those hours spent working on a ladder — or with sleeves rolled up, and hands in a bucket of soapy water — worth every minute of it!

Solar Screens: The solution to keeping cooling bills down this summer

There's a quick and easy way to help keep down your cooling bills this summer. The solution is SunScreen® solar

When used in place of regular insect screens, these unique fiberglass screens keep up to 70 percent of the sun's heat and glare from hitting your windows and entering your home. This means less work for your air conditioner and lower cooling costs.

The concept of these screens is relatively simple. They have a unique and patented ribbed-weave construction (U.S. Pat. No. 4,002,188) when compared to the more uniform and open mesh of regular insect screens

This mesh is just enough to stop most of the sun's heat, while still allowing daylight to come in. It's a lot like sitting under a shade tree on a hot summer day

The SunScreen works exactly like the tree's leaves, except that with the screens in a fixed position on the outside of your windows you are protected all day long. regardless of the sun's angle.

SunScreen solar screens are not really that new. They were selected by energy experts for use on The Energy Saving House at both the 1982 and the 1984 World's Fairs.

Solar screens have been popular for years in such hot climates as Arizona. Southern California and Texas. In fact, some state and local building ordinances in these states are now requiring some type of shading on the west, east and south-facing windows on all new home construction.

SunScreen solar screens are also recommended and endorsed by many utility companies in the South and West.

There are lots of additional benefits to having SunScreen solar screens, too... for example, improved daytime privacy.

Homeowners report they can leave shades or drapes open during the day and still enjoy a large measure of privacy. They can see out but outsiders cannot easily see in.

Since most of the sun's ultraviolet rays are stopped, fading of carpets, drapes and furnishings is also greatly reduced when SunScreen solar screens are in-

Unlike films or other types of sun control products, solar screens work with the windows open or closed, a nice feature during those times of the year when you want windows open for ventilation. Gentle breezes enter through the open mesh.

Plus, SunScreen solar screens make interiors more comfortable by reducing glare from water, pavement, adjacent buildings or other shiny objects. The SunScreen fabric comes in a choice of several colors to blend with any type of building exterior.

If your home has storm windows, you are already benefiting from the winter savings storm windows provide. By adding SunScreen to your home, you can protect your home from solar heat gain year-round.

Also, the payback period will be considerably less for storm windows equipped with full-length solar screens.

One important thing to remember ... to be really effective, solar screens should cover the entire window. If you have half-screens, you will need a new frame or an installation method that will allow you to cover both the top and bottom

Many homeowners prefer to have Sun-Screen solar screens installed by a lo-cal dealer installer. To find one in your area look in the telephone book under Screens Door and Window" or "Storm Windows and Doors

Chances are your local screen shop is already familiar with SunScreen solar screens. If you have full screens, ask them about reusing your existing screen frames.

The SunScreen solar screen material is available at many leading hardware and home centers, and replacing the screens is not a difficult do-it-yourself task. Some stores now also offer the materials needed to make new screen frames, if you have half-screens or no screens at all.

SunScreen solar screens work great over windows that don't open, too, such as large picture windows, skylights or even greenhouse areas.

The payback period for SunScreen so-lar screens should be three years or less. and that's based on utility rates that are probably going to rise

The modest cost of SunScreen solar screens might fit your budget better than other window treatments available, and SunScreen solar screens can offer you year-round comfort and energy savings.

Installing, maintaining a yard pond can be easy

If you really enjoy being in your yard and would like to give your yard that extra dimension to make it even more enjoyable, as well as the envy of your neigh-borhood, here's a great suggestion — put in your own yard pond! Too difficult? To much worry? Don't know how to do it? Through new technology, all these worries are needless.

Installing your own garden pond is simple, maintaining your own yard pond is easy and, best of all, your yard pond can provide year after year of trouble

European gardens, particularly in Great Britain, Southern France, Northern Italy, Holland and West Germany, are almost always pictured with a yard

Six years ago, a German company, the Tetra Werke, known best in the United States for its products for home aquariums, developed a bonded two-piece, heavy-duty (32 Mil thick), flexible rubber pond liner. This liner allows home owners to free-form a yard pond efficiently and immediately.

The liner can withstand the warmest summers and the coldest winters, and is available in sizes big enough to create ponds almost 10 feet in diameter.

Through Tetra Werke's U.S. distributor. Tetra Sales, U.S.A., all the products and complete information on constructing a yard pond is now available.

In summary, you should select a location on your property where the ground is fairly even although, because of the flexibility of the liner, some leveling can be achieved when digging your pond. The pond should be placed where it will get approximately six hours of sunlight

While you can place your pond anywhere, it is not recommended to place it directly under trees since falling leaves can foul the water and tree roots will make digging difficult.

Using a heavy garden hose or a rope, free-form your pond design to conform to your landscaping scheme.

When constructing your pond, you should dig both a shallow area and a deep area. Fish benefit from the shallow area to feed on insects and the shallow area can also be used to place potted plants such as lilies.

The deep area will provide security for your fish and protect them from birds and small animals. Depending on your climate, the deep area of your pond should be anywhere from 24" to 40", and the shallow area from 4" to 12".

When constructing your pond, you should line the ground with sand, carpet padding or even old newspapers before laying the liner. This will protect your pond liner against sharp protruding objects as the process or realize jects such as roots or rocks

To create that professional look, build a rock border around your pond, allowing the rocks to overlap the edge of the pond by 1" or 2". You can landscape back around the pond and even build a patio if you so desire

Maintaining your pond is very easy.

Tetra has an economical, permanent pond filter and a complete line of water chemicals and foods to ensure that your fish will prosper.

What kind of fish should you put in your pond? The hardiest are large Common or Comet goldfish. Depending on the size of your pond, these hardy fish will grow rapidly and can withstand the worst weather. As long as the water in your pond does not freeze to its lowest depth, these fish can survive the cruelest

If you live in a warmer climate, you fish: The beautiful and exotic Koi from Japan. These are increasingly available throughout the U.S. and, although they are not quite as hardy as the common goldfish, they are a treasured pond fish.

What should you do in the winter? Nothing! After the first frost, remove your filter and leave your pond alone until the onset of spring (as soon as the water temperature reaches 50°F).

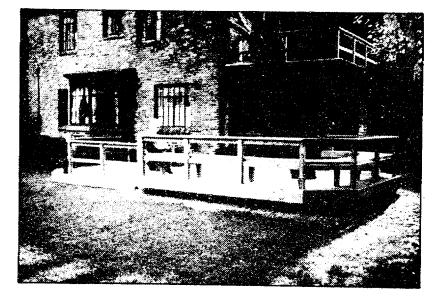

Never feed your fish during the winter as their metabolism directly relates to the water temperature, and when the water temperature drops below 50°F they will not eat. In the spring, simply reinstall your filter and begin feeding your fish.

Your yard pond can provide years of enjoyment and truly make you the envy of your neighborhood.

For further information, write Tetra Sales, 201 Tabor Rd., Morris Plains, NJ 07950, or contact your local pet store or your lawn and garden center.

A raised floor creates visual excitement to enhance this basement "make-over"

Little things can often add a lot of pizzazz to basement make-overs.

Something as simple as elevating a section of flooring can create visual excitement which sets the tone of the entire project.

Genie and Will Crane had just that thought in mind when they decided to finish the basement in their Atlanta, Ga., home.

They envisioned the raised floor area as a centerpiece that would serve as the dramatic setting for a family pool table, with bookcases lining one wall.

But the same area also could serve a variety of other functions — a cozy nook for informal entertaining or watching television, a library, a computer room or a workout room.

The raised floor is easy to build, requiring only basic woodworking skills. Construction is straight forward — random lengths of 2"x 6" pine lumber nailed to a platform of pressure-treated wood risers.

Once the pine lumber is sanded smooth, it's treated with wood scaler stain. Several coats of clear polyurethane are brushed on for protection and durability after the stain is thoroughly dry.

Exposed risers along the sides and front of the raised floor are finished with small pieces of wood paneling, matching the paneling used on the basement walls.

The front edge of the floor assembly is extended slightly outward and capped with triangular moulding to give the raised portion of the floor added dimension and a finished appearance.

Railing adds dramatic impact

A handsome railing adds impact to the raised floor section, setting it apart from the rest of the room and demanding the eye's attention.

The triangular-shaped railing is constructed of 30-inch balusters, spaced 4½" apart. Newel posts at both ends of the railing form a dramatic entrance to the pool table area.

For extra impact, railings and posts are painted white — in sharp contrast to the dark wood flooring.

A wood panel wainscot trimmed with decorative moulding surrounds the raised floor section. Walls above the wainscot are finished with panels from Georgia-Pacific's The Paper Works* Collection.

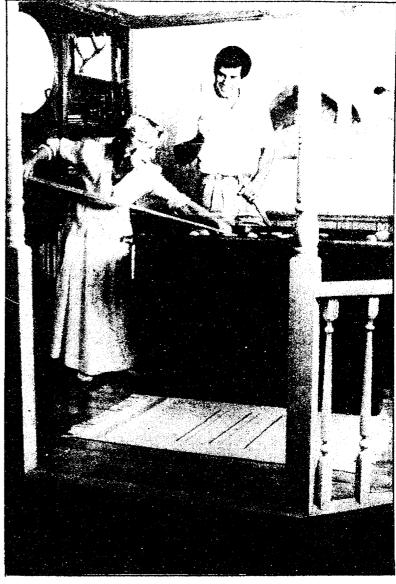

These conventionally-installed panels have the appearance of fine wallpaper, but eliminate the messiness associated with hanging wallpaper.

Plans outlined in booklet

This project — as well as other exciting basement make-over ideas and suggestions for finishing basement walls, floors and ceilings — are detailed in a new booklet and plans from Georgia-Pacific Corp. entitled "Beautiful Basements."

To obtain this 20-page, colorfully illustrated booklet and a $3 rebate coupon for G-P building materials, send $3 to Georgia-Pacific Corporation, "Beautiful Basements," Dept. MT09, P.O. Box 2808, Norcross, GA 30071.

Installing your own hardwood floor is now quick and easy

SAVE A BUNDLE OF MONEY by installing your own hardwood plank floor. It's fun and easy! And today's new generation of hardwoods are easy to care for once

People used to think that to get a hardwood floor, your home had to come with one, but that isn't true today. Now you can install an elegant wood plank floor over almost any subfloor — old hardwood, vinyl, even concrete. It's quick and easy with the new do-it-yourself glue-down plank hardwood floors.

Bruce Hardwood Floors, manufacturres of hardwood floors for over 100 years, recently introduced "Hampton Plank" with the Bruce 13-Step Penetrating Stain and Wax Finish, called "Dura-Satins" in a special size of 3"x 48" (equal to 1 square foot) and very easy to install

They feature a milled tongue and groove on the sides and ends of the planks that lock the planks together for a tight, durable and professional looking installation.

The experts at Bruce have this advice for do-it-yourselfers: Prior to starting, always read the detailed instructions in the

Then simply follow these four easy steps

- 1. Remove the moldings from around the floor. Then, to insure a square instal-lation, measure 3' out from the longest wall at 2 different points and mark point Land point 2
- 2. Snap a chalkline the length of the room across points 1 and 2.

- 3. Spread the adhesive in the largest section of the room, working back to the chalkline. Do not cover the chalkline. Be sure you read the instructions on the adhesive label.
- 4. Install a row of planks, tongue side on the chalkline. Continue adding rows of planks working towards the far wall. Walk in or roll the floor to seat the planks in the adhesive. Now repeat steps and 4 on the remaining area. Replace the moldings.

Glue-down installation is easy, and so is the floor care on this new generation of hardwood floors, once the floor is Bruce's "Hampton Plank" has a pene trating seal and wax finish, and is so durable that just vacuuming or sweeping regularly is all that is needed.

Then, once or twice a year, wax with either Lite 'n' Brite for the Desert color, or Dark 'n' Rich for the Chestnut color. The Dura-Satin finish can be enhanced between waxings by simply buffing

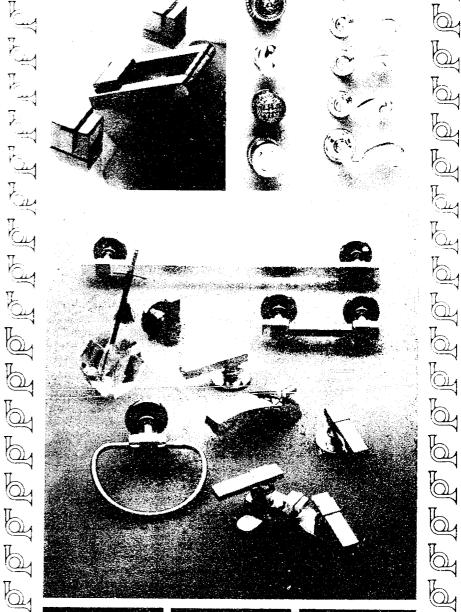

Wood warms a room twice—once with insulation and again with style; bring both to your home with a plank hardwood floor.

Use a "multi-level" approach to solve a deck-design problem, experts advise

It a sloping yard has slanted your thinking about adding the "five-ability" of an outdoor deck to your home, maybe you should take a multi-level approach to the problem

For years, architects have designed dramatic buildings on irregular properties. The answer lies in using several different levels to allow the space to "flow" up or down with the property grade.

Levels increase versatility

According to the experts at Georgia-Pacific Corp., the nation's leading manufacturer and distributor of building materials, decks especially lend themselves to multiple levels, with steps and different deck sizes and shapes that define spaces for specific purposes.

For example, if you have a large deck space on one level, you might want to "step-up" to a smaller, more intimate space.

If your property slopes down, a smaller, lower deck area might be perfect for your barbecue grill — allowing the "chef" to do the cooking without really leaving the party.

The concept of multiple level decks might sound complicated, but they often are no more difficult to build than single-level decks. And the results can be even more appealing.

All you need is a little imagination, some professional assistance on any grading that might be necessary, and helpful, "how-to" ideas and directions.

Start by stepping back

Start by stepping back from your home and looking at the slope of your property. (Hint: Use a stepladder to give you the proper perspective.)

Look at the floor level of your home to determine where your property slopes up or down. Remember that you need at least one level of the deck at the same level as your access door.

It your property slopes across the house, you might want to consider a three-level deck, following the grade, with the main deck at the same level as your door.

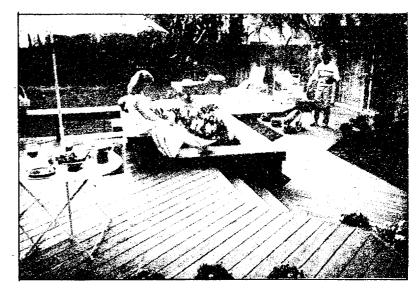

A yard that slopes down and away is a natural for a two-level deck, with the access door level being smaller and the lower deck a little larger.

Once you've determined the levels, it's time to consider how you will use the deck. Do you want a large area for dining and entertaining, or a series of smaller spaces for relaxing, talking or napping?

Placement of such popular deck amenities as a hot tub and barbecue grill also should be considered. Their use often determines the size (square footage) you want for each level.

Re-grading may be necessary

If there is not a sufficient level area of the property to hold the deck size you want, you may have to call in a professional contractor to re-grade the property. Explain and diagram your plan, and ask for his suggestions.

When you are ready to build, resist the temptation to start digging post holes right away. Instead, use stakes and twine to outline the deck spaces on each level.

This is important because you need to consider the location of such things as steps, planters and benches before you start.

These are the little extras that will make a big difference in your finished deck. For example, you can turn a corner of one level into an intimate conversation nook by adding a corner bench and planters for shrubbery. Steps, too, can add drama or be simply functional.

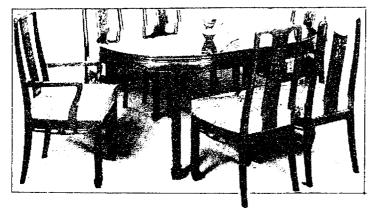

Ideas and plans available

Ideas, plans and step-by-step building directions to help make your deck go from simple to super are contained in "Decks and Outdoor Projects" — a 36-page, full-color booklet published by Georgia-Pacific, the nation's largest manufacturer of building products.

10 Things to Think About Before Hiring a Contractor

Spring brings more than flowers and sunshine. It allows us to get outside and assess what the ravages of winter have done to the house. It also may mean hiring a contractor or repair company to help protect our investment. When hiring a person or company to work on your property, make sure you are getting what you are paying for. Make sure of these points:

That your contractor or repair company is licensed with the state and recognized by the city as reputable. That he is fully insured.

That he can provide an accurate quote for work to be performed at your

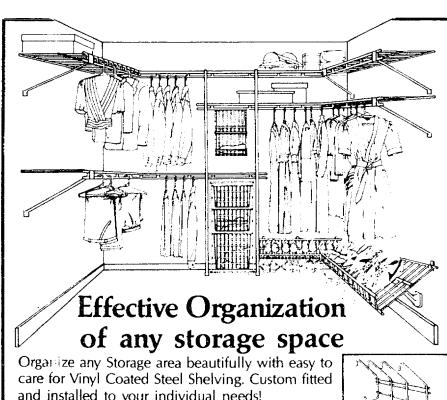

That he can provide a list of current references pertaining to the type of work he will do for you.

With this information you should be able to make an intelligent decision regarding a competent contractor that you can have reasonable faith

If you need more to think about and are still unsure of your prospective contractor you might consider the following:

- Can I really feel comfortable with a company that uses a phone machine answered by the voice of Yosemite Sam?
- 2 Do I feel confident in hiring a contractor who has a manicure and wears clear nail gloss?
- Should I have second thoughts if the contractor suggests a deposit of 95% made out to cash?
- Do I really want to do business with a person wearing a green lei-
- 5 Should I think twice if I get my quote on the back of a used chicken nugget container?
- 6 Is it too late to reconsider if the men show up to work, stop for brunch and drink it out of a brown paper bag?
- Can I really have confidence in a company whose liability insurance is issued by Ed's Life and Company ance is issued by Ed's Life and Casualty?
- 8 Should I be weary if the contractor wears a diamond larger than my door knob?
- 9 Have I really hired a professional if they borrow my ladder and then ask me to hold it?
- ${f 10}$ Should I be alarmed if the estimator is wearing a mask?
- A word to the wise, ask questions, consider carefully. You get what you pay for.

Dye-able door designs for spring decorating

Welcome the freshness of the new spring season with attractive door decorations that echo the warmth of your hospitality with inexpensive materials and your favorite colors of Rit® Dye.

Give your guests a warm country greeting as they enter your home with a "welcome" sign easily made from a round wooden cheese box lid and soft subtle colors of Rose Pink or Kelly Green Rit Dye. (The bottom of an apple bushel bas-ket can be substituted for a cheese box

Begin with a clean, unfinished wooden lid and brush on Rose Pink (lighter color) Rit Liquid Dye using ½ cup liquid to 1 pint hot water. (If you're using Rit Dye in the package, dissolve it in one pint boiling water.) Let dry.

To make stencil dye solution (darker color), mix ½ cup liquid dye in I pint hot water or 1 package powder in 1 pint hot

Position and tape stencils of letters W-E-L-C-O-M-E and your favorite country motif (cow, duck, pineapple) inside the lid.

Sponge on darker dye solution (Kelly Green Rit Dye) inside cut-out areas. Dry and remove stencil. Spray with protective clear finish.

To decorate, glue a ribbon around inside rim of lid, add a bunch of baby's breath at bottom (also dyed in springtime colors), and finish with a decorative bow.

This season, you'll tip your hat to pretty door designs made of natural straw hats that bring the warmth of your house to the outside with soft inviting colors of Evening Blue and Light Blue Rit Dye.

Simply dip unfinished hat in a hot concentrated dve solution (dissolving one package powder or ½ cup of liquid Rit Dye in Light Blue to 2 quarts hot tap water). Rinse in cool water. Let hat dry completely.

For an added touch of color, accent the hat with a 100 percent cotton handker-chief that has been dip-dyed in one package powder or 1/2 bottle Evening Blue Rit Dye following package directions. Rinse and let dry.

Place handkerchief diagonatty over crown and cut circle in handkerchief so it slides directly over hat. Secure with decorative ribbon wrapped around crown where it meets the brim. Accent with bow at bottom leaving ends of ribbon hanging freely below hat.

It's the perfect door decoration that also makes a great gift for any occasion, an attractive wall hanging or a lovely doll accessory.

Wreaths, part of the festive Christmas tradition, are showing up everywhere regardless of the season. And what better way to make the spirit of the new season come alive than with colorful wreaths made with basket reed found at craft stores and Rit Dye!

To make design, soak reed in warm water for 10 minutes. When wet, hold yard strands together to form circle. Holding the ends together with one hand, wrap two other strands around the circle, turning as you go, to make a wreath. Tuck in ends.

Prepare your favorite color of Rit Dye, mixing 1 package or ½ cup liquid dye to every 2 quarts hot water. The hotter the dye-bath, the stronger the color will be. Experiment with scraps of reed to get the desired color.

Wearing rubber gloves, dip wreath into the dye. Leave until it reaches the desired color. Remove; place on newspapers to dry. Spray with clear plastic-finish to keep colors bright. Decorate wreath with ribbon and attach dried flowers (also dyeable) along the bottom.

You can make unique shapes such as a heart by simply bending round reed into a design while it's drying.

Springtime ... anytime ... colorful door designs made with Rit Dye will always bring delight to all who enter your home! For more craft and decorating ideas, send a postcard to: Rit/7SP, P.O. Box 307, Coventry, CT 06238.

Poison Ivy: Handle with care

While many plants thrive only in rarified climates, the hardy poison ivy, oak and sumac exist in almost every state of the U.S.

Exposure to these plants results in an estimated 18 million annual cases of severe plant dermatitis — an extremely annoying, painful and persistent skin rash caused by contact with poison ivy, oak or sumae.

Proper attention important

For gardeners and others who are exposed to poison ivy or other strains of the pesky allergy-causing plant, proper and immediate attention can alleviate much of the discomfort, according to Charles Zugerman, M.D., assistant professor of clinical dermatology, Northwestern University Medical School, and consultant to Blistex Inc., makers of Ivarest: The Poison Ivy Expert.

Poison ivy and poison oak rashes consist of varying amounts of redness, weeping and blistering. All or one symptom may be present. Itching is always intense and unbearable. The classic lesion is a linear stripe of rash due to brushing against the leaf.

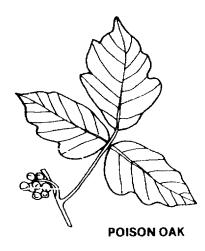

Dr. Zugerman advises gently washing the affected area with plain soap and water immediately following exposure to remove plant oil, applying a medicated cream or lotion, and washing all exposed clothing as soon as possible. Use separate and thorough cleaning methods for clothing.

Long-lasting relief

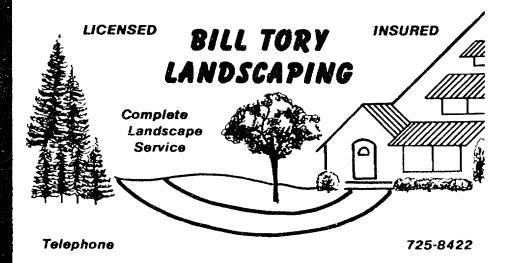

A non-prescription medication such as Ivarest provides long-lasting relief of itching and inflammation, reduces the rash and helps prevent secondary infection.

TO AVOID being counted among an estimated 18 million annual cases of severe poison ivy dermatitis, it is wise for gardeners to learn to identify the allergy-causing plants: Poison ivy grows as a bush or climbing vine. Each leaf has three leaflets with ragged edges. Small greenish flowers grow in bunches attached. Poison oak is more of a low, branching shrub. Each leaflet is shaped somewhat like an oak leaf. Poison sunacis a long stalk with six or seven spadeshaped leaves attached to either side. (Illustrations courtesy of lvarest.)

Adding a new living area to your home need not be expensive or complicated

Imagine adding a new, spacious living area to your home without the high price, mess and delay associated with conventional construction

With an insulated patio enclosure, you can have a high quality room addition in a few days instead of a few months and for approximately two thirds of the cost of a stick-built addition.

Your new living area can become the exercise room you have always wanted, or the room for the kids and their toys. You can design the space to become a den, a sun room or an expansion of your living and storage space.

If you are a home gardener, use your

If you are a home gardener, use your new room as a greenhouse to extend the growing season, or install a spa for relaxing comfort and privacy. With an insulated patio enclosure, you don't have to sacrifice quality for affordability.

Insulated wall panels conform to color scheme

According to Alumax Building Specialties, maker of the Solérats patio enclosure. American homeowners will add approximately 2.3 million patio enclosures each year

As conventional construction costs rise, the insulated patio enclosure is becoming an attractive alternative to a room addition.

The unique Soléra' integrates several inches of insulation and aluminum extrusions, to form a highly energy-efficient enclosure system. You can choose from a wide variety of interior finishes and surfaces which will conform to most any color scheme or design you create. In addition, these wall panels require no painting or maintenance.

Let the sunshine in by adding a variety of energy-efficient windows which are sized and placed to your specifications. Each window can be removed for cleaning, and an energy-efficient solar screen can be added.

Durable energy-efficient roofing system

The Weather/Breaker¹⁸ roofing system is a one piece envelope panel containing the roof, insulation and interior ceiling, all in one piece.

With an "R" value of 24, this steel or aluminum clad roof is impervious to hail or heavy rain, and is sturdy enough to walk on Each joint is literally locked in place and permanently sealed. Built-in drains prevent leakage and control water runoff, and optional exterior trim and perimeter guttering can be easily snapped into place. The three-inch energy-efficient rigid foam insulation helps maintain the desired temperature.

As with a conventional ceiling, you can add light to dark areas by installing an economical skylight or any other form of lighting, including track lighting and ceiling fans.

Add another entrance with a high quality door

Your Soléra's comes with a factory weather-stripped door, paneled to match your choice of interior and exterior colors.

Available in eight to 10-foot heights, the door has an adjustable bottom sweep for carpeting and a fully weather-stripped threshold.

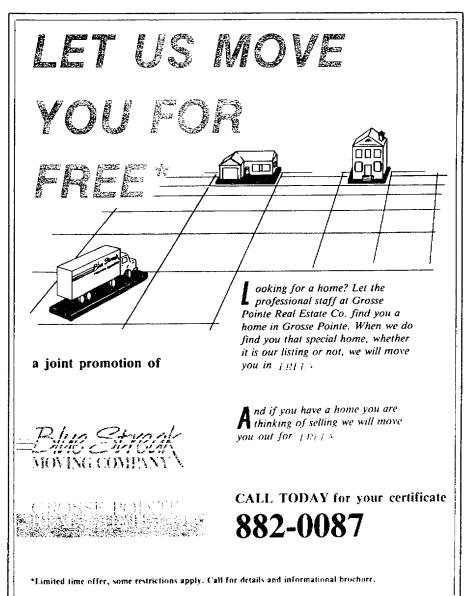

For added strength and security, there are three hinges and a reliable deadbolt locking system.

Backed by the Good Housekeeping Seat

Unlike a conventional room addition, the Alumax Soléra's patio enclosure is backed by the Good Housekeeping Seal and an exclusive 10-year warranty.

Alumax has manufactured high quality products for American homes for over four decades, so you can be confident that the Soléra™ is a permanent addition designed to last the lifetime of your home.

Designer glass: A new look for any home's interior or exterior

As building costs soar, many homeowners are opting to renovate rather than relocate, and are looking for new ways to update their present decor.

Stained Glass Overlay, with more than 300 franchises worldwide, offers two solutions to brighten up any decorating scheme and enhance a home's value.

Twelve years ago, the company intro-duced Designer Glass, and it has become one of the most popular alternatives to curtains or shutters.

Designer Glass can be created on any glass or plexiglass surface in a home or business by a trained Stained Glass Overlay craftsman. Unlike draperies or shutters which close in a room, this patented overlay process opens it up...add-ing color and light while still providing

A vast variety of design options

Hundreds of standard designs are available, but if the homeowner prefers something truly unique it's possible with Overlay. Designs to suit any style or taste range from florals to animal motifs, family crests to cityscapes.

Pick up a design from a favorite fabric or wallcovering, or create a focal point that can stand alone.

This overlay process can be applied to tempered, safety or dual-paned glass, and actually strengthens the original surface. It keeps windows airtight and waterproof, and meets building code require-

Handcrafted Entries are available in 11 styles and can be accented with a customdesigned colorful overlay panel or any of 30 beveled glass patterns which reflect light with a jewel-like quality. Solid brass hardware is available to complete the customized look.

"The Art of Living"

The kitchen area of a home is not an inanimate space, it is an area of creativity and energy. This creativity should not shun the art of cooking, it should compliment it.

This kitchen is an example of creative living, its stunning practicality is in part brought about by the ability to let it blend and melt into the surrounding living area. Where as this is a more contemporary oriented kitchen the same philosophy applies to a traditional design. After all the true tradition often imposed vast open family gathering rooms, more commonly referred to today as "GREAT ROOMS."

Simplicity and practicality achieves this. All that is required to break away from the normal execution of food preparation and eating is simplicity and vision in design.

COX & BAKER, INC., who over the past fifty years has built over 1,000 homes in the Grosse Pointe area, has created a new division . . . Baker Concepts.

Baker concepts has interpreted living trends in a way which opens up new design possibilities both in the kitchen and adjacent areas. Their concepts are based on the principle of discriminating designs combined with the highest quality.

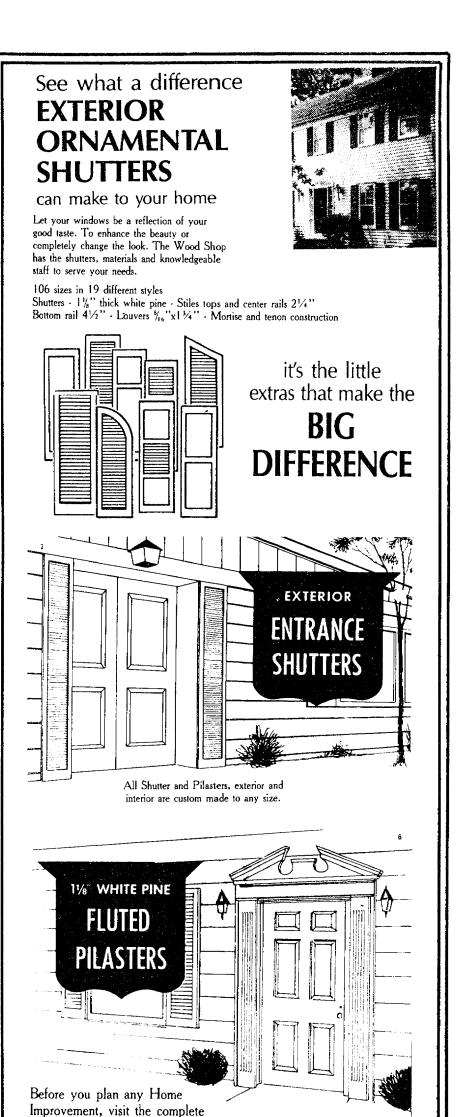

Baker Concepts' designers believe that "... the structure of the home is unlikely to change in the near future. One of the challenges in open space planning is to utilize the existing space to the fullest. Additional storage space is not the only criterion. Our major objective in open space planning is the optimal integration of previously unused space into our overall concept."

The great room and kitchen pictured above illustrates their concept of open planning. Open planning increases the visual impact of adjacent areas without increasing actual interior space. Included in this project were custom cabinetry, wall units, panel systems, and furniture, all by Allmilmo.

Skylight magic creates illusion of space

If you're feeling cramped, you can learn a trick or two from new-home builders who have found ways of making smaller, reasonably priced houses seem more spacious.

To create the illusion of space, builders are working design magic with raised and vaulted ceilings, floor-to-ceiling windows, strategically placed mirrors, and skylights that splash natural light through the house. Skylights are being use to turn dark, stuffy attics into livable space

space.

Skylights are one of the most dramatic and simplest ways of making your present home feel larger. No matter whether you have a sloped or flat roof, thick roofing tiles or asphalt shingles, there's a skylight for you. The number of skylight designs and features have been going through the roof, along with skylight sales.

The Origin of Pattern Names in Oriental Rugs

By Ed Maliszewski

There are two types of patterns in Oriental rugs. Carpets with repeating patterns can be any size, the borders simply mark the transition from the carpet to the floor. Patterns designed within the border are a later development and the relationship of the pattern to the space within the border is important. In repeating patterns, the repeating design element can be as small as one to two inches to as large as one to two feet. The repeating patterns extends infinitely in all directions according to the old design traditions, and the border merely defines the size of the particular space it will fill.

In designs within a border, the most common example has a center medallion as the focus of design. Although there are a number of designs that run throughout the ground without a medallion, they still do contain a focus.

The problem for most people in learning pattern names is that they look for some structure to the patterns themselves. There are as many exceptions as there are rules. For the most part, the pattern names in Persia come from the village where the goods were originally woven.

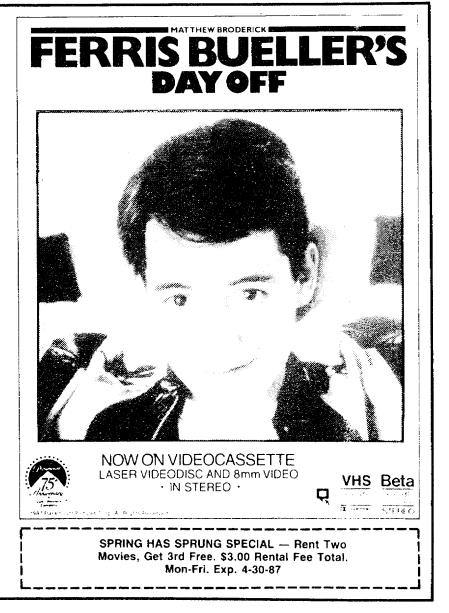

A Hamaden rug is a good example of the disparity seen among rugs. Some people can associate 2,500 different design variations with the 1,500 villages in which they were woven. Today, pattern names are more a convenience to classifying the tradition of the design, than of the design itself.

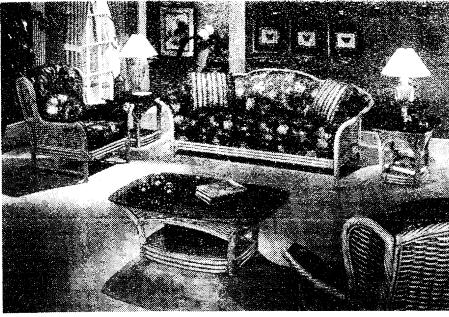

Successful patterns tend to be copied. If it sold well in the Bazaar, the surrounding villages would copy or adapt that pattern. Thus, patterns evolve as market conditions determine the popularity of the piece.

Because there are so many different weavers in many different countries, weaving similar designs, and many importers, each with their own approach to a particular pattern, the range of selection is limitless.

At Ed Maliszewski Carpeting, we have the best selection possible. Visit us and see all that is available in the world today.

It's spring again, and time to clean carpets, upholstery

PROLONG THE LIFE OF YOUR CARPET — Spots and stains can rain your expensive carpeting. Learn how to remove them with Stanley Steemer's popular booklet "The Complete Guide to Carpet and I pholstery Care," available from Stanley Steemer, Dublin, Ohio.

As spring cleaning time approaches. don't forget about your carpeting and up-

After all, they represent two of the most expensive investments you've made in your home. And dull, dingy carpets and upholstery can ruin the appearance of an otherwise lovely house.

Even so, many homeowners go about traditional spring cleaning chores like washing their windows and walls without considering a thorough cleaning of their carpets and upholstery.

According to officials at Stanley Steemer Carpet Cleaner, that's a mis-take. Winter, they say, takes a heavy toll on carpets and upholstery.

Dirt, mud and in some climates snow and salt, have been tracked in. Woodburning stoves and heating units leave a heavy residue of dirt.

In addition, homes are closed tight

Resurface cabinets with laminate to give tired kitchens a great facelift

By LIS KING

If your kitchen looks a bit tired and you are not ready for a complete over haul, think of resurfacing the cabinets with one of today's great decorative laning designs or colors.

inate designs or colors
You will be rewarded with a fresh new look at roughly one-third to one-half of what it would cost to rip out and replace those over-the-hill cabinets.

those over-the-hili cabinets.

A few years back, cabinet resurfacing was often considered a rather tacky process, admits the Lanunate Council of America. But all that has changed, first because of the stylish Eurostyle look, which has popularized laminate as the finishing material of choice, and secondly because of the new fashion consciousness of the laminate industry.

"Today, high pressure decorative laminate no longer has to pretend to be some other material." notes David Embry of Witsonart, one of the Council's member companies.

"It has become a design element in its own right, and the new styles prove the point. There are all those wonderful solid colors — hundreds of them — ranging from crisp whites and pretty pastels to smart dark neutrals and rich jewel tones. They add infinite fashion to kitchen cabinets, whether used alone or with wood trim."

Andy Ziegler of Nevamar, Dan Cannady of Westinghouse Micarta and Pioneer's Kenn Smith all like "fantasy finishes" for cabinetry.

They talk about exotic wood grains and leather looks in such deliberately unreal colors as mauve and teal. Such designs can be counted on to provide great glamour, particularly when they are combined with luxurious metal accents.

Choosing a burl design in mauve, for example, is a sure-fire way to create an Art Deco look to transport you right back to the Hollywood of the '30s and '40s.

Formica Corporation has added many new beiges, greiges and grays as well as blue-greens and red-purples that will add high style to cabinets, while Sterling's DuraBeauty line features many grays, a color group that can go both contemporary and traditional.

And if your are an incurable traditionalist, you can, of course, go with a woodlook laminate. Today's manufacturers have rounded up so many of them, from oak and weathered barnwood to cherry and mahogany, that you can go anywhere from rustic to traditional formality, and still enjoy the easy care and affordability of laminate.

So, as you can see, there are lots of options to consider before calling in somebody to do plastic surgery on your kitchen. Besides laminate colors and designs, there are door styles and hardware to choose.

Inexpensive project

When cabinetry is resurfaced, the old cabinet doors and drawer fronts are removed and replaced with new ones. Simultaneously, the cabinet box is sanded down and recovered to match the new doors and drawer fronts.

doors and drawer fronts.

Moldings around the soffit, decorative valunces, etc., are also resurfaced, and this is also the time to upgrade the insides with roll-out shelves. Lazy Susans and other convenience features.

While you have a laminate expert at the house, you might as well replace the counters, too. This way you will truly have a "new" kitchen.

Resurfacing can be done over wood, paint, laminate and even metal, but it stands to reason that your existing cabinets should be solid and sturdy.

Most resurfacing companies charge "per opening" or "per door," with 20 cabinet openings considered an average-sized kitchen. The typical resurfacing job in the average kitchen is quoted in the area of $3000.

Eurostyle popular

According to the Laminate Council, the popularity of the Eurostyle cabinet is going nowhere but UP, and it is a look that is particularly well-suited for resurfacing projects.

facing projects.

The fundamental difference between American and European-style cabinets is that the former are built with a front frame, to which cabinet doors are attached. The frame is exposed between cabinets, online the doors a raised effect.

cabinets, giving the doors a raised effect.
European cabinets don't have the front frame, so the doors, which are hinged inside the cabinets, butt one another, creating a clean and trim look.

Conventional cabinets can easily be converted to Euro-styling. "And why not?" asks Charles Jackson, head of the Laminate Council. "If you are resurfacing, you might as well get a whole new look and the no-fuss attitude of laminate. And laminate does look particularly great on this type of cabinet."

If all-laminate cabinetry in a solid color seems a mite too slick for you, Jackson suggests combining it with wood trim. Oak trim looks especially good with most solid-color laminates.

In general, study magazines for the kitchen looks you like, he advises. And visit kitchen showrooms.

Pay special attention to the way trim, hardware and special storage is handled in those Eurostyle cabinets. But whatever look you decide on, you can duplicate it via the resurfacing process.

The tomato: A favorite of the country's gardeners

The nation's number one vegetable is ripening on the vine from coast to coast.
According to the National Gardening
Survey, 33 million American households or nine out of 10 gardeners are growing home-grown vegetable.

As harvest time approaches, those 33 million gardening households are looking for creative uses and ways to preserve what amounts to over four billion pounds

"This 36-page book on tomatoes covers helpful information on harvesting, fall tomatoes and step-by-step tips for preserving by canning and freezing methods," Scott says.

Spending Money For Hi-Efficiency

By Mark S. Provenzano V.P. for Operations Supreme Heating & Supply Co., Inc.

So you need a new heating or cooling system and you're faced with many major decisions, and piles of equipment and informational brochures to read. With the advent of hi-efficiency models by most major heating and cooling equipment makers, the problem of deciding which one is right for you has just increased.

Most homeowners replace their heating and cooling equipment for three reasons: (1) defective compressor or heat exchanger, (2) major lome renovation or expansion, or (3) inefficiency of the present equipment. Over 80% of the homeowners that purchase heating and cooling equipment each year do so because of defective or unsafe equipment.

Once it has been decided that old equipment is in need of replacing, then its a matter of deciding between the standard models and the hiefficiency models. Without getting into a debate over E.E.R.'s and A.F.U.E. ratings, the most important factors to decide when making the decision is: (1) How long are you going to live in the home, (2) What is the reliability of the hi-efficiency model you are choosing, (3) Does the product actually generate the savings in the area that you live.

If you intend on living in your home for a period of more than seven years, then in most instances a hi-efficiency model would give you a practical payback, making up the difference in the original price. Less than seven years, and you may not receive the most benefit out of a hi-efficiency model. In selective real estate markets like Grosse Pointe, or north Macomb County, you could receive the balance of your payback in the increased value that the equipment lends to the home.

Hi-efficiency heating and cooling equipment being more complicated and in most cases requiring more maintenance to keep it running at peak efficiencies, is another factor to consider. The contractor who installs the equipment should be licensed and apply for all permits for the job. Make sure that the contractor is a "stocking dealer" for the product he is proposing to install. If not, he may not be able to get parts to honor the war-

Choosing between different hi-efficiency models can be very confusing. Salespersons may in some instances overstate what the product can actually do. Ask for brochures from the manufacturer to ensure the reliability of the salesperson's claim. Saving on energy consumption vary by climate, and actual cost of natural gas or electricity. It is always good if you can get a product referral from a customer that has had the equipment installed for more than one year, to see what the actual saving would be for your area.

So, don't be strayed by hi-tech solutions to your home heating and cooling needs without weighing the value of spending the additional money.

An important question: Which home improvements are best?

INDOORS AND OUT, home improvement and repair projects will account for more than $80 billion this year, according to figures recently released by the U.S. Department of Commerce.

Residential remodeling and repair work are booming. In fact, figures recently released by the U.S. Department of Commerce showed that more than $80 billion will be spent this year on home improvements and repairs.

A big factor in the remodeling surge is that many homeowners are staying in their present homes longer and are there-fore fixing and improving them more than in the past. With the interest in home improvements, come question from concerned homeowners as to which rom concerned nomeowhers as to which projects offer the most value.

The following is a listing of four different project types — additions, minor remodeling, outdoor, and energy saving which are expected to give the most re-turn at resale. Figures were compiled by the CertainTeed Home Institute from Remodeling Contractor magazine.

Additions

Additions are the most popular type of remodeling projects homeowners engage in today and they also offer the most value. The best additions are fireplaces.

full baths, greenhouses and skylights.
Fireplaces average $3,000 to install, and offer an average value at resale of $4,000, a 133 percent return on your investment.

The average cost to add a full bath-room today is $7,500, but it offers a re-sale value of $8,000. If your home doesn't have two bathrooms and you find you always wish it did, now's the time to add one

Greenhouse and skylight additions are also quite popular and provide good resale values. Installing a skylight costs about $3,000, but offers a return when selling of $2,000.

Greenhouse additions, which offer

extra living space and year-round out-door atmosphere, cost approximately $13,500 to add on, but provide a $12,000 rounds rolling resale value

QUICKIE REPAIRS WITH CAULK ON A ROLL

Try caulk on a roll to stop air leaks by bridging the gaps made when an air conditioner is mounted through a wall. It can also be run down the back of the risers on a flight of stairs, to keep dust from drifting down on objects stored beneath

Select the 1/2" or 34" width of Elmer's Place and Seal, depending on the width of your gap. Run it along the gap and press it firmly into place. It can be used inside or outside, and is ready immediately for painting

Minor remodeling projects

Other home improvements besides additions that have gained popularity are minor kitchen and bath oriented projects. Improving cabinets, counters, wallcoverings or paint and installing an energy efficient range may cost you about $7,000, but the return at resale is

In the bathroom, consider such items as a new bath or whirlpool tub and new fixtures. The average cost of a project like this is $6,000, but its value at resale is $4,500.

Outdoor projects

More and more homeowners are engaging in outdoor home improvement projects as well. The best of these by far, for comfort purposes, is the building of a deck. Decks are a good way of adding living space and are popular with prospective home buyers. They run approximately $5,000, but offer a return on investment at resale of $3,500.

Energy-saving projects

Adding extra insulation to a home to bring it up to today's energy standards is a very easy task and it also provides a good return on your investment. The average cost of adding insulation to your home is $1,200 but the average return at resale is $1,000.

Upgrading your insulation with Certain-Teed Fiber Glass Insulation is also important because, according to a recent survey by Professional Builder magazine. energy efficiency is still a top priority among new home buyers.

Therefore, prospective buyers may ask about insulation levels, heating costs and the overall energy efficiency of your bone.

For more information on energy saving home improvements write for the "Energy Facts" brochure, CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482.

A myriad of helpful hints for planning a smooth move

Moving can be a frustrating and hectic experience, no matter how many times you've done it. If you're planning a move soon, here are some helpful hints to make your move easier.

When is the best time to move?

If you plan far enough in advance, any time is fine. However, if possible, you should try to avoid the busiest times in the moving business — the end of each month and the summer months.

The end of the month is busy because many people prefer to avoid mortgage pro-rating or paying an additional month's

The summer period - May 1 through September 1 — is especially busy because school is out and moving a family is less disruptive.

During this time, many days are "sold out" — so make arrangements with a reputable van line as early as possible to reserve time in the summer.

Should I plan to be home on moving

Yes. There is no substitute for having one of the owners available for the loading and unloading of household goods: sometimes questions arise that only they can answer.

However, if you absolutely cannot be there, you must give to your van line a written authorization of the person you will be putting in charge.

This representative must be there on moving day to sign the transit documents and give instructions to the moving crew. How soon should I expect delivery at my destination?

Delivery dates should be determined for you by your agent before you move. They take into consideration the size of your shipment and its destination. Given enough notice, your van line should be flexible and willing to meet your sched-

Do all moving companies charge the same prices?

No. In the age of deregulation, pricing has become varied and often severely discounted. Check around before you sign with a company.

However, be sure to consider a compa ny's service reputation as well as price. When you're entrusting all your household goods to a mover, it makes sense to hire the best

How do you determine the cost of a move?

Charges are based upon mileage, weight and additional services requested such as packing, appliance service, insurance, etc.

ance, etc.

There are two types of estimates available: NON-BINDING is a rough estimate of the cost based upon a visual inspection; BINDING gives you the guaranteed exact cost of the move based on the articles and convices listed on the hinding cles and services listed on the binding estimate.

How can I reduce the cost of my move?

The easiest way is to cut back on the amount that you move. There are two ways to do this. First, determine what items can be discarded or sold - if you haven't used it in three years or more. it's a likely candidate.

Second, calculate the cost of moving an article (based on weight) and decide if it might be less costly to buy the article new when you reach your destination. This is particularly important with heavy items like weights and books.

When do I pay for the move and what form of payment is acceptable?

Payment is due at the time of delivery (C.O.D.), unless arrangements have been made to have the move paid for by a company which has established credit with the van line

You can usually pay by cash, certified check, money order, VISA or Master-Card. Personal checks may not be ac-

The move is being paid for by my employer. How do I arrange the billing?

Prior to the move, have your employer send either a purchase order or letter of authorization directly to your agent or the company headquarters

This letter should authorize the van line to move your household goods and bill the company for the expenses. Make sure this is done in advance of your actual moving date, so there are no interruptions in the servicing of your shipment

Learn how basic care can help make your rose garden flourish

A ROSE'S BEAUTY will endure longer if it is protected from aphids and mites. An effective, natural pesticide such as Aphid-Mite Attack^{ix} will control pest problems and will not harm beneficial insects, children, pets or the environment.

Roses are delicate, beautiful flowers that look like they can be grown only by professional gardeners.

But, by becoming knowledgeable of the five basic steps to rose care - planting, watering, fertilizing, pruning and pest control — you can grow your own vibrant rose garden.

Planting

The ideal location for a rose garden is a spot with an eastern exposure that provides at least six hours of sun a day

However, the absence of an ideal spot shouldn't discourage anyone - roses are hardy flowers and can thrive almost any

One of the most important steps toward ensuring a healthy rose is the planting hole. A hole approximately 2 feet wide and 1½ feet deep will provide the rose with plenty of room to grow.

Watering

Roses are thirsty plants that require a lot of water. As a general rule, roses should be watered once a week throughout the growing season.

During the hottest part of the summer when the roses are in flower, you may want to water everyday. Be sure the sur rounding ground is thoroughly soaked.

Morning is the best time to water roses because leaves dry quickly — preventing diseases from developing.

Fertilizing

Most garden roses require regular feeding. Nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium are the primary nutrients roses need for proper growth.

Whether organic or inorganic, fertilizers help grow sturdy plants with green leaves and vibrant flowers. It is best to fertilize once a month throughout the growing season.

as the buds are beginning to swell. The first step when pruning any rose is to cut the dead canes to the crown. Remove all of the weak, spindly growth that tends to crowd the center of the bush.

A rose's most feared enemies are aphids and mites. If your roses are left unprotected, these two pests may drain the life from the rose bush.

Aphids are easily recognized as tiny insects which primarily cluster on soft, new growth. Mites are almost invisible: however, their presence is made evident by the fine webs they make on the undersides of leaves.

Two of the most popular methods of pest protection are spraying and dusting. Most spray and dust products available contain toxic chemicals which not only kill the most harmful pests but also kill the rose's natural protectors such as lady bugs and honeybees.

Reuter Laboratories, a manufacturer of natural pesticides, has developed Aphid-Mite Attack⁷⁸, a natural pesticide which protects roses from aphids and mites without affecting beneficial insects

Aphid-Mite Attack is an insecticidal soap sprayed directly on the insects, killing them instantly. In addition to its quick-killing capabilities, the product is biodegradable.

No harmful residue

The natural spray can be applied up to harvest time because it does not leave behind a harmful residue.

It is not difficult to grow a prosperous rose garden if you follow the few simple steps discussed (planting, watering, fer-tilizing, pruning and pest control).

Realizing it takes a little time and The best time to prune is in spring just garden that looks like it was taken care of by professionals.

Stop weeds before they start

Love to garden? Hate to weed? Here's a hint from commercial growers and landscapers: Mulch film, a type of poly-ethylene plastic sheeting, will keep any size garden weed-free safely and eco-

Simply lay the mulch film down on the soil, anchor the sides and ends with a bit of dirt, and punch holes with a scissors where seeds or plants will grow.

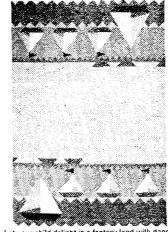

Mulch film will keep weeds from reaching the surface for the easiest gardening ever. It is unaffected by most garden chemicals, so there's no need to change your gardening practices

Look for mulch film in hardware stores, home centers or wherever garden supplies are sold. The mulch film should be I to 1.5 mil thick and black in color, according to Poly-Tech, makers of number-one selling Film-Gard* mulch

Black mulch film blocks the light, so weeds don't have a chance to grow Black also retains more moisture than white or clear plastic sheeting, and blends in with the soil better.

Some gardeners toss a bit of dirt over their mulch film to conceal the film; others leave their weed-free garden as is.
