

High school valedictorians tend to repeat successes

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

Do you know where your class valedictorian is?

Predictably, high school valedictorians and salutatorians have turned out to be high achievers for the rest of their lives. An informal survey of Grosse Pointe South's and North's highest ranking students from the past has turned up a variety of success stories.

Of 13 valedictorians who were contacted, all of them graduated from a college or university, eight or more with high honors. Nine have advanced degrees — or are working on an advanced degree. Three are — or are about to be — physicians.

The survey included nine representatives from Grosse Pointe South and four from Grosse Pointe North. Their years of graduation ranged from January 1949 to June 1983. Most had graduated in the '70s.

The occupations represented were varied. Besides three physicians (or future physicians) and several graduate students, there was a banker, two computer engineers, an assistant treasurer for an automotive manufacturer, an accountant, an associate actuary, an archeologist/diver, a business consultant and an associate editor.

Every single person interviewed said that Grosse Pointe schools provided an excellent background for college work. Most said they felt better prepared than students from other high schools. Seven of the interviewees brought up the subject of advanced placement courses, and spoke with glowing praise for the value of these courses in Grosse Pointe's curriculum.

(An interesting sidelight: three of the six women interviewed who were married had chosen to retain their maiden names.)

Joseph Fromm, valedictorian of South's January class of 1949, is currently mayor of Grosse Pointe Farms and has been assistant treasurer of American Motors since 1970. Fromm graduated cum laude from Princeton, then went to Harvard Business School. He said he wished Grosse Pointe had offered advanced placement courses when he was a student. "College was more difficult because the challenge wasn't there in high school," said Fromm. "My adjustment to Princeton was difficult for a few years, until I got to know the system. I found that prep school kids had the advantage of advanced placement courses."

Two of Fromm's sons have been valedictorians of their classes at South. Laurence Fromm, class of '81, went to the University of Michigan's engineering school and graduated summa cum laude. He is working in Santa Clara, Calif. as a computer engineer. He plans to go to graduate school.

Kenneth Fromm, class of '83, also went to the University of Michigan, graduating Phi Beta Kappa with a bachelor's degree in computer science. He will join the same firm that his brother works for in California. He also plans to attend graduate school soon.

John Rosculec, North's salutatorian in 1980, went to Wayne State University on a full four-year Merit scholarship and graduated with a bachelor of science in chemistry in 1984. He's currently at U of M's medical school and has one year ahead of him. He will specialize in ophthalmology. "I have five or six more years of school," he said. "Grosse Pointe North prepared me in."

Voters elect frontrunners in light turnout

Campaign leaders L. Jane Nutter and Vincent LoCicero swept the school board election Monday, each tallying more than 700 votes more than their nearest competitor. Fewer than 2,000 of the district's 45,000 voters turned out for an election with few apparent issues.

LoCicero, the current school board president, was the leading vote-getter, with 1,171. The total number of ballots cast was 1,794; voters were allowed to vote for two candidates.

Nutter was second, with 1,066. This was her first run for public office, but she has been active in school affairs at the volunteer level.

The remainder of the seven candidates split one-third of the votes among them. Margaret Monaghan received 274 votes; Marie Wayman, 243; George Hawkins, 231; Alfred Fox, 186; and Joel Hickey, 132.

Only LoCicero and Nutter conducted full-fledged campaigns, with mailings, endorsements and advertising. The others carried on word-of-mouth campaigns.

Nutter and LoCicero will take office in July for four-year terms.

Latchkey program due for overhaul

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

School officials say they will do whatever they have to do to whip the district's latchkey program into shape. Tuesday the board was expected to approve a wide-ranging set of recommendations by the program's two coordinators.

The study conducted by coordinators Cheryl Dorman and Beth Gross laid bare the failings of the after-school childcare program and urged the board to give the coordinators the authority to run things consistently. Gross and Dorman were hired last fall as part of an effort to bring the program into compliance with state guidelines; compiling the report was part of their mandate. Gross has since left the system.

"They brought needed perspective," said Superintendent John Whritner. "We needed to have somebody tell us where the emperor had no clothes."

The main problem with the program, critics and proponents agree, is that it had no consistency. Each building operated independently, with the result that classes had varying amounts of space and equipment, snacks, access to a telephone and even ratio of caregivers to children. The program still is not licensed by the state Department of Social Services.

One of the changes that Whritner is proud of having brought to Grosse Pointe is the autonomy of the building principals and the end of "top-down" management. This time the approach wasn't successful.

"It was one of the things we hoped would work out; it didn't," Whritner said. The experience has not shaken his confidence in the approach. "Cooperative people working together can accomplish things," he said.

Whritner is still loath to take the authoritative tack. Although he considers himself "the court of last resort," he said he doesn't intend to start issuing pronouncements on how to fix the program. But he said he wants the program to be state-licensed by September and will give the coordinators the space they need to accomplish that.

The list of problems with latchkey is long.

Each elementary school has one latchkey class, but not every school has a room of its own. In some cases, students shuttle from one room to another; in a couple of extreme cases, there was no room available and the students had to play outside.

Untrained caregivers were hired. Until the coordinators came in October, the caregivers received no training in handling children, refereeing games, working with crafts or complying with numerous state regulations.

There has been no policy on snacks. Some programs provided

He lived on a boat in the New York harbor and he lived in Portland, Oregon. He also lived in St. Clair for five years, during which time he completely renovated a Greek Revival house.

Of the places where he's lived, however, he says, "It just wasn't home." And so Grosse Pointe Park born and bred Brian McDonald is back in the Park, where he and his wife Suzanne are raising their two children, Lauren, 10, and Christopher, 8.

The owner of the Soup Kitchen Saloon and Restaurant, McDonald said the Park is ideally located to get to and from work and he likes the diversity of the student body at Trobriid, where his children attend school.

Most of his time is spent at the business he and his wife started in 1974. They first opened the Soup Kitchen in a building on Joseph Campeau and Franklin. In 1976 they moved to their current location on Franklin at Orleans in what is now known as Rivertown.

"Being off the track has really helped," McDonald said. "The business has adapted to this place to what I wanted it to become."

What his urban saloon, as he calls it, has become is a place with a "nice, peaceful atmosphere. I have tried to have an atmosphere where everybody has a right to be left alone."

It's also known as Detroit's home of the blues in which all of the different forms of the genre are featured, including an occasional bluegrass entertainer. Some 300 to 400 photographs of entertainers who have performed at the Soup Kitchen line the walls.

"We started originally with jazz and the blues and switched more to the blues. It's what I have a personal interest in."

McDonald says the only thing he plays is the radio. "I'm strictly a listener."

The building itself has a colorful history. Built in 1840, it has been used as a blind pig and a bordello. During Prohibition, it was used by various bootleggers as a base for their operations along the riverfront.

"The building is a hodgepodge of additions that go way back," McDonald said. "Part of the building was never used and I

Park judge selection postponed

By Pat Paholsky
News Editor

Charges of political chicanery were hurled left and right at the Park council meeting Monday night regarding the appointment of an interim municipal judge. They were prompted by the removal of the matter from the agenda late Monday afternoon.

According to the agenda, councilman James Robson, chairman of the Judicial Search Committee, was to submit the committee's recommendation for an interim judge. It was expected that the council would then make an appointment.

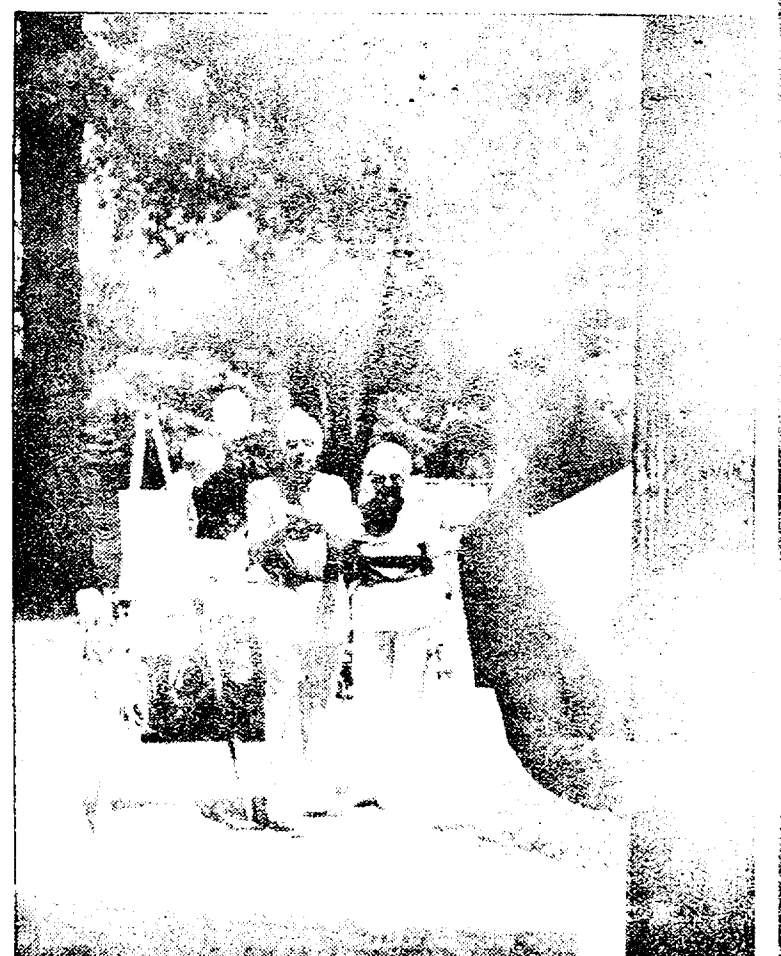

The appointee would replace Judge Beverly Grobbel who submitted her resignation effective June 30. The appointee would serve until the November general election when a judge will be elected.

Resident Sheila Joyce began the hour-long exchange by asking why the judicial appointment was removed from the agenda late during the day.

Robson said it was at his best because he believed there would be "legal difficulty" if Judge Grobbel withdrew her resignation. He recommended waiting until the July meeting to make the appointment.

Councilman John Prost, who served on the search committee, took exception. "We told every candidate we would make the appointment tonight," he said.

City attorney Harold McC. Denson said the appointment was postponed upon his advice. See JUDGE, page 2A

Body discovered in harbor

Grosse Pointe police have identified the body that washed in to the city's municipal harbor as that of a 29-year-old Pontiac woman.

The dead woman, Geneva Keith, was found floating in the harbor at about 3:30 p.m. Friday, June 5, by a local resident, according to Public Safety Director Bruce Kennedy.

Kennedy said the woman was last seen early Tuesday, June 2, when she was stopped by police on the northbound Lodge freeway at Eight Mile Road. She was taken into custody on reckless driving charges and her vehicle was impounded at that time. She was released June 2.

"We still don't know where she went into the water," Kennedy said.

She was discovered wearing only a pair of blue jeans. There was no identification on the body, and police learned her identity only after the Wayne County Coroner's office lifted fingerprints from her hand. The coroner's report indicated that the body had been in the water for three to seven days. Cause of death was listed as drowning.

"Three days would fit with the time at which she was last seen," Kennedy said. "This could be an apparent suicide. There is no evidence of foul play, but we are not excluding any possibilities at this time."

Kennedy added that the shoreline of Lake St. Clair is very slippery, and an accidental death has not been ruled out. A search of the shoreline in the area turned up nothing.

The woman was employed in a housekeeping capacity at a Pontiac hospital, according to Kennedy.

City detectives are continuing the investigation.

He said it was during a phone discussion with Mayor Palmer Heenan that morning that he became concerned about the legality of appointing a judge before the position was actually vacant. Grobbel's resignation takes effect June 30.

"It struck me that there was a serious question about whether a vacancy exists and a serious question of whether or not an appointment can be made until a vacancy exists," Deason said.

"It's my opinion that for an unchallengeable appointment that the appointment be made when the vacancy occurs."

Deason also suggested that the June 16 filing date for candidates who want to get on the ballot could be extended because of a precedent that was set.

Mayor Pro Tem David Gaskin asked if the city, in all cases therefore, had to wait until a person physically left a position before filling it.

"I do not think it's a foregone conclusion that a judge who has resigned and it was accepted by the council, that she can come back and withdraw her resignation," he said. "I do not accept the advice of the counsel on this point."

Councilman Vern Ausherman

said the "political overtones" were obvious and he added, "The recommendation (by the search committee) has been made as far as I'm concerned and there's no reason to believe they'll be changed. Our current judge suggested it's premature and untimely to appoint someone now."

When pressed, Deason admitted that his opinion was an "open question."

Resident Joseph Grano, who teaches law at Wayne State University, advised the council to proceed with the appointment since the city attorney did not say "you cannot, he said you should not."

He added, "I don't know why when it comes to picking a judge in this community, it becomes political. What he (Deason) has told you, to me, is bad legal advice. It's a contingent appointment. There's no danger of being sued."

The committee interviewed 10 of the 17 applicants for the position. Its recommendation will be made in the form of a minority and majority report.

The lively exchange came after a 3-1/2 hour meeting, during the segment open to public comment. It lasted for almost an hour. No action was taken.

Man beaten at local club

A 24-year-old St. Clair Shores man sustained numerous injuries early Saturday, May 30, when he was allegedly assaulted at Cracker Jax in the Farms.

According to Farms police, an altercation between the man and a woman occurred, and an employee asked him to leave.

When the man reportedly did not leave soon enough, he was pushed by the employee. Several others joined in and a melee ensued. The man was pushed into the bar's lobby and kicked and punched several times, according to the report.

He sustained injuries to his lower lip and his elbow and later checked into Cottage Hospital with a mild concussion. The man's girlfriend reportedly suffered a black eye when she tried to break up the fight.

Police said numerous witnesses saw the alleged assault and statements will be forthcoming.

No charges have as yet been filed by the injured man.

Art fair to support community mental health services

By Elsa Frohman
Feature Editor

At the Northeast Guidance Center, they realize that not everybody feels good all the time. You don't have to be chronically mentally ill to need their services. Therefore, one of the center's major programs is designed to help people who are temporarily depressed because of the loss of a loved one or any kind of stress in their lives.

This weekend, the Art on the Pointe Art Fair at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House grounds will raise funds for the Northeast Guidance Center. The art fair is put on annually by the Assistance League to the Northeast Guidance Center to support the programs of the private, non-profit, community-based mental health agency.

The center has been around for 24 years. It began as an agency for children only, but in 1974, the center expanded its services to include adults under a federal grant. The grant expired in 1981, but the center decided to continue offering adult services at its four locations (including one in Grosse Pointe).

Fees at the center are figured on a sliding scale, and while some government funds are used, without the efforts of the Assistance League (an organization heavily supported by Grosse Pointers), the center would have to cut back services drastically.

"Government funding just doesn't cover the cost of services," said Mary Meyer Neff, director of clinical services at the center. "The Assistance League gives us a flexibility we wouldn't have otherwise. It helps make this organization a high quality caregiver."

The Northeast Guidance Center offers programs in three main areas: outpatient services, adult day treatment and consultation and education services.

Outpatient treatment is offered to both children and adults who are mentally or emotionally disturbed.

Services may be short term. Neff calls the program crisis intervention.

"Everyone experiences stress at some time," Neff said. "We try to help resolve the difficulty in as short a time as possible." This may mean explaining alternatives to a person experiencing family or job stress. It may only mean providing an objective listener for a depressed individual. The center has a staff of trained social workers and psychologists to help individuals with problems from grief at the loss of a family member, to anger at the break-up of a marriage.

Clients come to the center at their own volition. No one is referred by the courts or the state hospital system.

"We ask that they call us themselves," Neff said. "Nobody is required to come here. If they make that call, they are investing in helping themselves."

The adult day treatment program is for the more seriously mentally ill client. The individual comes in for a full day of therapy, two or three times a week. The day program is staffed by a psychiatric nurse and an occupational therapist.

The center's consultation and education programs are designed to prevent mental illness in the community.

"We offer classes to help parents become better parents," Neff said. "We have worked with middle school students on the loss of a classmate. We have done programs for school-age children on sexual abuse."

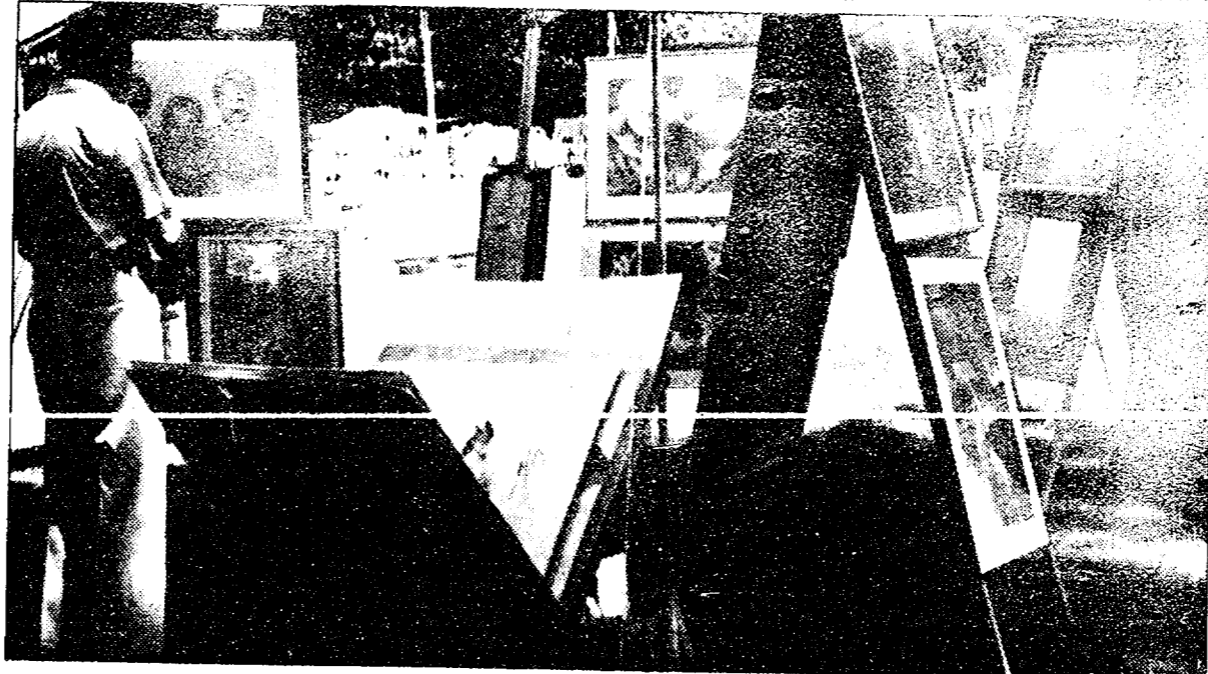

In another program, the center works with schools to identify the potential dropout early on so measures can be taken to keep the child in school. The center has also worked with nursing home staffs on how to care for the elderly.

Recently, the center was consulted by the Grosse Pointe Schools on the subject of teen suicide.

The center offers lecturers on a variety of mental health subjects to schools and community groups.

Last year, the Assistance League contributed more than $60,000 to the programs of the center. Additionally, members of the Assistance League donated many hours of volunteer time to the center.

Art on the Pointe is the Assistance League's largest annual fund-raiser, though events are held throughout the year. The art fair will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday, June 13, and Sunday, June 14. Admission is a donation of $1 to the Northeast Guidance Center. More than 150 artists and artisans will be displaying their work for sale. Free parking will be offered outside the gates.

A visitor at last year's Art on the Pointe art fair examines Grosse Pointe artist Bette Prudden's paintings. Many local artists will display their work at the fair, alongside artists from all over Michigan and out of state.

State tax proposals are controversial, Kelly says

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

Proposals now before the legislature to change education funding are probably too controversial to pass, but should be taken seriously, state Sen. John Kelly told the school board June 1.

"They're likely to be controversial and depend on a handful of votes," Kelly said. "Grosse Pointe will have an opportunity to have its say."

As one way to have its say, the district re-joined the association of out-of-formula districts a few months ago. The out-of-formula districts, for various reasons, do not receive any per-pupil state funding. They are considered to be most vulnerable to the currently proposed changes in state funding, as most of the proposals aim to equalize funding by both bringing up the bottom and bringing down the top. An end to the ability of individual districts to fund their programs by taxing themselves has also been proposed. The out-of-formula association is already lobbying against such changes in Lansing.

Kelly said the educational funding is getting a lot of attention because there are no other major issues facing the legislature and because the state Chamber of Commerce has made reform of property tax an issue.

There is a lot of support around the state for property tax reform, he said. In a period of plant closings, General Motors has challenged the assessment of a number of its plants, threatening that the tax is the straw that will break the back of business in Michigan.

There is also a loss of tax base as outstate farmers go out of business, according to Kelly. During the last decade, 15,000 family farms have disappeared.

As a result, he said, "there's a lot of interest outstate in doing something about taxes."

One proposal is to increase the state sales tax by two cents, something Kelly said he favors. "Contrary to popular opinion, it's an equitable tax," he said. "It's a tax on disposable income." Michigan's is the lowest sales tax in the Midwest, he said.

But Kelly said he is opposed to the other portion of the tax package. Proposals to increase the state aid formula don't fly anywhere in his district. Grosse Pointe doesn't get any state aid, and Detroiters tend to send their children to private schools out of disappointment in the performance of the Detroit schools.

Kelly's figures show that 85 percent of the white families and 66 percent of the black families in his district send their children to private schools.

"These proposals are thin gruel for my constituency," he said.

Of all of our five senses, sight and hearing have got to be the most precious. Our fondest memories are fashioned of sight and sounds experienced through our eyes and ears.

A loved one's face, a baby's smile, the glory of a sunset spilling its golden glow over a deepening sky, a cool white moon floating in a field of sparkling stars, faraway places we have visited and best loved places where we have lived — all are etched forever in our minds and hearts through the miracle of sight.

Close behind is the blessing of hearing. We have all experienced moments of absolute silence. There is a strangeness and something ominous about a world without sound. We wish urgently for the sound of movement, the vibrancy of voices, the trill of a bird to make our world real.

In tune again, we search our past for memories of sounds we can never forget — the voice of someone dear, a lilting laugh, the majestic swell of a symphony.

All of our lives, we look and listen and record as we enrich ourselves with nature's beauties, man's achievements in art, music and literature and most precious of all, close ties with neighbors, friends and those whom we hold most dear, our family.

These precious possessions of sight and sound are bestowed on us with the gift of life. For most of our lives, we take them for granted by as the years go on, along with the rest of our bodily changes, the acuity of sight and hearing dims. However if we immediately seek professional help at the first sign of impending impairment, we can live our lives enjoying the pleasures that come to us through our eyes and ears.

For instance, in reference to hearing, there are few more frustrating experiences than tinnitus.

But help can be found, if one is persistent.

Tinnitus is a clinical name for "noise in the ear." For some it can be relatively mild. For others it may be a buzzing, hissing, crackling, ringing noise severe enough to disrupt their everyday routine.

Sometimes only one ear is affected; other times both ears are affected. Not only that, a person could hear different sounds in each ear. Sounds may appear to come from different locations inside the head or outside the head. They may even come and go.

One of the causes of tinnitus could be continual exposure to loud noises. Another might be a viral infection or head injury. Emotional stress, excessive use of alcohol, tobacco or aspirin could be factors.

Sometimes it can be alleviated by removal of ear wax, or treatment of ear infection or high blood pressure if these are the causes.

A form of relief is a tinnitus masker developed at the Tinnitus Clinic at the University of Oregon in Portland. It is about the size of a hearing aid. Unlike a hearing aid, it does not magnify sound, but rather it produces its own sound like the hum of an air conditioner, a sound more acceptable than tinnitus.

One of the aspects of tinnitus is that patients aware of the noises in their ear are unaware of diminished hearing acuity. When this is true, a carefully selected hearing aid affording better reception of external sounds blocks out the tinnitus.

There are roughly 4.5 million people in the United States who have serious hearing impairment. More people are handicapped by hearing loss than the combined total of those with heart disease, cancer, tuberculosis, diabetes, multiple sclerosis and blindness.

Hearing losses usually occur gradually and most of the hearing acuity can be lost before the person acknowledges any loss.

Equally distressful as hearing loss is diminished vision. Hearing problems can be, but are not always, the result of aging. But as we grow older, there is a gradual weakening of the ability to focus on nearby objects. Usually this condition occurs around age 45 and can be overcome with the aid of corrective lenses.

The best known problem that increases with age is that of cataracts. A cataract is a cloudy condition in the lens.

While there is no way to prevent cataract formation, not all people require correction of the condition. Only about 5 percent of those over 65 require surgery. Removal of cataracts is only advised when problems interfere with daily activities or when the cataract becomes opaque. When surgery is called for, 90 percent of those who undergo it have improved vision. Cataract surgery is one of the most successful operations done today.

A more serious eye condition that progresses slowly without warning is glaucoma. Glaucoma causes higher than normal pressure in the eyeball with the result that fluids within the eye do not drain properly, causing damage to the optic nerve and loss of vision.

Persons over 35 should be checked periodically for glaucoma.

Taking precautionary measures to preserve both sight and hearing is a good investment in making later years of life more enjoyable.

Sculpture classes for children

A three-part mini-lesson in sculpture will be offered at the War Memorial to children 6 to 13 years beginning Monday, June 22.

Taught by Ruth Skurda, the classes encourage the student to become an investigator of his own world and the worlds of art and nature through the process of observation. The student will gain an understanding of the elements and principles of design through exploration of a variety of materials and techniques.

Clown Corps

The Grosse Pointe Clown Corps will meet Thursday, June 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the conference room at the Woods city hall.

For more information, call Arthur J. Kuehnel at 881-8186.

Each mini-lesson will consist of preliminary exercises emphasizing line, repetition, balance and color. Students will then develop the ideas explored towards the completion of one art project per lesson.

Part 1 deals with plaster reliefs and meets from June 22-July 1. The focus of Part 2, which meets from July 6-15, is clay construction. Plaster gauze construction will be the subject of Part 3, meeting July 20-29.

Classes meet Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday from 9 to 10 a.m. for six to nine year olds and 11 a.m. to noon for 10 to 13 year olds.

Advance enrollment is required. Class fee is $20 per six-hour session and includes supplies. Call the War Memorial at 881-7511 for further information.

Satisfaction, not apathy, explains low school vote

In a Newsweek column, George Will once took issue with the popular view that a light turnout in an election reflects public apathy. Instead, Will argued, a small vote might simply reflect public satisfaction with the status quo. Satisfied citizens tend to stay home on election day.

Will's reasoning helps explain the low vote on Monday's Grosse Pointe school election that returned Vincent LoCicero to the board for a second term and named L. Jane Nutter to the other post filled this year.

In fact, LoCicero and Ms. Nutter ran away with the election. LoCicero, the current board chairman, received 1,171 votes and Ms. Nutter 1,066, according to the unofficial tallies. With only 3,303 votes cast, each of the winners received about one-third of the total, and the other five candidates shared the final third of the votes. Only 1,794 of the 45,000 registered voters went to the polls.

Opinion

Prior to the election, the News commented that all seven candidates had abilities and backgrounds that qualified them to serve on the board but it supported the election of Mr. LoCicero and Ms. Nutter on the grounds they had superior credentials. The voters apparently agreed with that assessment. The majority seemed to be satisfied with LoCicero and Ms. Nutter and to regard them as the best candidates to help continue the Pointes' record of excellence in public education.

Yet the low turnout at the polls was not unexpected. No major issues had arisen during the campaign. In their interviews with the Grosse Pointe News, the League of Women Voters and other newspapers, none of the candidates had raised serious challenges to school board policy or to Superintendent John Whritner.

All seven, however, had shown interest in board policies, especially with respect to the proposed expansion of library facilities, renewal of the teachers' union contract now under negotiation, planning for future enrollment shifts and, in general, the necessity for the best use of the tax money invested in the system.

In addition to the negotiations over the teachers' contract, which always create some controversy, the proposal for the expansion of the three libraries appears to raise many questions in people's minds. The $8 million estimate of the overall cost surprised some people, including school board members. Yet there is little question about the need for expansion in view of the high percent usage of the library facilities. The question is whether the community needs to invest as much money as informally suggested, or whether the costs could be revised downward without materially damaging the proposed expansion.

Off on the horizon is another, potential problem for the Grosse Pointe schools. It is the talk of Lansing about imposing a statewide school property tax and an education funding plan that would reduce overall property taxes — but also reduce local control over school financing.

It is true that local school taxes often are inadequate in districts with low or declining property values and that current state aid fails to bring the dollar support up to an acceptable standard. But the plan being proposed in Lansing would also put a cap on local millage. Such a cap might limit the amount of money the Pointes could raise to support their schools, even if they wished to exceed the cap.

Fortunately, the Lansing proposal is only a proposal to date but it does indicate the kind of problem the current school board may have to deal with in the near future. The Pointes are fortunate in the background and experience of the two school board members chosen in Monday's voting and the five hold-over members.

A limited fuzz buster ban

It now appears that the Michigan Legislature will approve the proposed 65 mph speed limit on rural Michigan freeways as well as a limited ban on radar detectors.

The compromise worked out by a joint House-Senate committee was approved only after a lobbyist for the so-called fuzz busters was arrested and charged with attempting to bribe one member of the joint committee. Even backers of the fuzz busters said it would be difficult to halt the ban after that bribery incident.

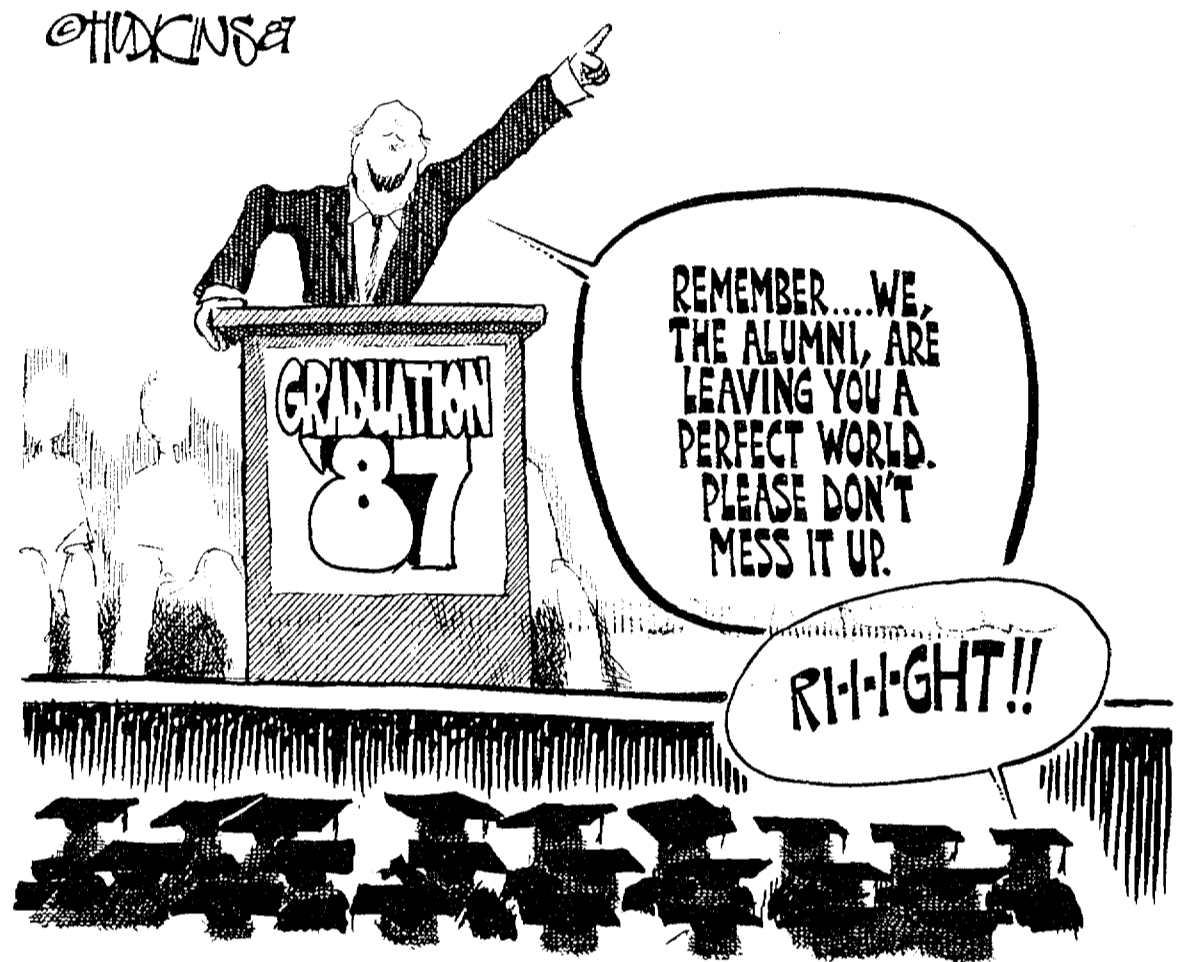

Raising the speed limit to 65 mph on rural freeways apparently is a popular move, even though there is strong evidence that the 55 mph limit has saved lives and reduced costs of automobile accidents in the state. The argument for raising the limit is that few people are observing the 55 mph speed anyway, but that view ignores the likelihood that speeders who exceed the current limit will exceed the new one as well.

Even under the compromise proposal that is expected to become law, the Legislature still will be sending the wrong signal to the people of Michigan. In effect, the legislation says that radar detectors are illegal but their users will not be cited for a violation unless they are stopped for other traffic offenses. That is the same rationale used against violators of the mandatory seat-belt law, but that act at least encourages safety, not speeding and law violation.

Our view is that it is a mistake for the states to take any actions that will increase highway speeds. It is a mistake because there is evidence that lower speeds save lives and reduce accident costs. But it is also a mistake because motorists will be encouraged to use more gasoline and thus run the risk, at least over a long period, of higher gasoline prices and even shortages if the OPEC nations keep their act together.

Gov. James Blanchard still might veto the compromise, assuming it passes both houses in its present form, but he may feel that the compromise is as much as he can get in the way of a ban on the fuzz busters even from his own party members in the Legislature. That would be too bad because we think he could get a tougher ban.

City needs 'Business Day'

Metro Detroit recently was reported to be dead last among 30 cities rated by top business executives as a good place in which to locate a business. But three other reports have given the metro region high marks for its retailing opportunities, its economic growth rate in 1986 and its general business climate.

The first, a survey of top business executives by pollster Louis Harris, was commissioned by a New York real estate firm which markets office and industrial space on a national basis. It measured metro areas on the quality of life, future economic health, cost of labor, access to markets and other specific factors.

In this poll, Detroit came in last in quality of life for employees, that conclusion apparently being based on such problems as crime, the quality of schools and affordable housing. It also had the poorest "government climate," defined in terms of tax policies and the extent of regulation. And it trailed only Cleveland in the cost of labor. All in all, Detroit came in at the bottom of the poll along with Cleveland and Miami.

One positive note came from an Ohio retail consultant who found there are few places left in the country that are extremely good, profitable areas to go into. He urged that retailers "should seriously look at Detroit."

A second positive note came from the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce which found that the economic growth rate in southeast Michigan outpaced the national economy by 25 percent in 1986 over 1985. The chamber's 1987 progress report indicated considerable economic activity and increases in population, employment and the number of new businesses. It also said the state Legislature has demonstrated an increased desire to welcome business input and address business concerns.

A third positive note came from early results of a Chamber of Commerce poll that found that about half of area business executives who had responded said the business climate in Detroit was "good" or "excellent" with the other half saying it could be better. The executives also showed a new interest in developing better relationships with labor unions, the chamber said.

Finally, an analysis of the Harris poll by the Detroit News found that office rentals are booming in the Detroit metro area and, in fact, are running at a higher rate of occupancy than in Atlanta, the best place in which to locate a business, if the poll is to be believed.

One explanation for Detroit's low standing in the poll is the executives' lack of familiarity with the area. Only 25 percent of the respondents said they were "very familiar" with Detroit and yet the area's rating was based on their responses.

So perhaps the Chamber of Commerce should promote a "Business Day" similar to the "Media Day" that Mayor Young has been sponsoring for several years to help inform outstate news media about Detroit's good points as well as its problems.

Such a day could try to bring non-resident business people up to speed on what really is happening in Detroit and Michigan with respect to quality of life as well as business opportunities. Facts that bear on regional ratings obviously need to be updated on a regular basis. So do popular impressions, which often reflect outmoded views based on past events.

The Detroit metro area is not yet out of the woods, with more GM plant closings in the offing and criticism of the Young administration for doing too much for downtown development at the expense of the city's neighborhoods. But there is increasing evidence that community leaders are learning how to cope with the region's problems. Evidence of the area's new spirit and its economic improvement ought to be disseminated as widely as possible.

Letters

Don't deprive the athletes

Editor's note: The following letter was sent to school Superintendent John Whritner and the board of education:

After participating in the Grosse Pointe North Hockey program for three years, I have come to understand its importance. This outstanding program has become a state power in just four short years.

There is an incredible sense of pride that goes along with playing hockey for your school; a special pride that I've found in no other sport. Younger players cherish the idea of playing for their respective high schools and many times during the year I am asked, "Do you think I can make the hockey team?" by the younger players. I believe, if allowed, the hockey program will continue to grow even greater.

It seems evident that the fan behavior at select games has been improper. The hockey players have caused no reason to be punished, yet the suspension of the North/South hockey game(s) is a direct punishment to these players.

I am not writing to make a proposal, I simply wish to stress the importance that all the North/South games do be played, whether there be spectators or not; whether they take place in Grosse Pointe or not.

The North/South hockey games are clearly one of the high points of the season. Many grueling hours of practice and mental hype go into these contests. The athletes should not be deprived of this excitement due to the actions of a few outsiders. The suspension of the North/South hockey games is an act that won't be readily justified.

For recycling

To the Editor:

The League of Women Voters of Grosse Pointe wishes to commend the Grosse Pointe News for Nancy Parmenter's article on recycling. The League of Women Voters and the Grosse Pointe branch of the American Association of University Women are jointly studying the recycling issue in our communities and working toward municipal recycling. The wandering trash barge from Islip, New York, keeps reminding us that disposal problems will only increase.

Along this line, the League of Women Voters would like to bring to your attention the efforts of University Liggett Lower School and its librarian, Charlotte Blair, in the area of environmental awareness. We applaud University Liggett for its proposal to sponsor a newspaper recycling drop-off station on its property for community use. The school has committed itself to landscape and maintain the site. This is an excellent opportunity for student participation and for public awareness of this most important issue.

The recycling station is currently being studied by the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council. We hope that our community will support this station as a first step toward a more comprehensive recycling program which will postpone the need for increased incineration capacity.

That, of course, is the motto of our great New York Times. But it's a sly old journal and knows how to protect its heroes.

In the Sunday, May 24 issue, deep in the heart of Section A, an article bore a curious title: "24 Percent Believe Reagan on Contras." It went on to say that "only one American in four says President Reagan is telling the truth when he denies knowing that money from arms sales to Iran went to help the Nicaraguan rebels." Four

Questions to peruse and ponder

Life is littered with imponderables.

Imponderables are unanswerable questions. They're the if-they-can-send-a-man-to-the-moon-why-can't-they... kinds of things that one won't call EMS for, or charge into a newsroom and yell "stop the presses!" because of, or rewrite history books about.

They're the small puzzlements that make one stop in one's tracks momentarily, scratch one's head quizzically, and well...ponder.

There are philosophical and celestial imponderables, global imponderables, national imponderables, local imponderables and — by far the most numerous: domestic imponderables.

Where are dogs' belly buttons, for instance?

Why does a box of flavored quick-cooking rice contain two separate sealed packages of ingredients and then instruct one to simultaneously add both packages to the boiling water, for another instance?

If a left-handed person is called a southpaw, why isn't a right-handed person called a northpaw?

Why do I defrost meat in the microwave and then slow-cook it all day in the crock pot?

What does one do with the fluff cycle on one's dryer?

Is there anything more useless than the red strings on band-aid wrappers?

Some local imponderables: Where does the doctor go after he says, "I'll be right back," and leaves you shivering in your underwear on the examining room table? A theory: He calls the Diagnosis Hotline and describes your symptoms. Another theory:

I Say

Margie Reins Smith

He rushes to the back room to consult his medical dictionary.

Is there a dog anywhere named Fido? Or Rover?

What are those tall, painted pipe-like things with little pointed tops that stand here and there on city sidewalks, usually in matching pairs? There's two at the northwest corner of Fisher and Grosse Pointe Boulevard, on the lawn of Grosse Pointe South.

There are a pair of these mysterious metal posts in front of the central library and one across Fisher Road, on the east side of Kercheval. There's one at the Vernier Road/ Marter Road intersection; another one on Vernier across from the Shores City Hall.

Do cats or birds ever trip or stumble? Or — are humans unique not only because they are the only animals that blush, but also the only animals that get tangled up in their own feet.

Some national imponderables: Why don't they make airplanes out of the material they use for the black boxes?

What does the Cling Peach Advisory Board do? Advise peaches? Do they snub free-stones?

How about the National Bath,

Bed and Linen Association — the Gold Information Center — the National Hot Dog and Sausage Council. Why does the Light Pollution Committee of the Astronomical League exist? Do they employ people to patrol neighborhoods, asking homeowners to douse the lights as they leave each room? Who does the Peanut Advisory Board answer to? And how do they feel about peanut butter? (These are real organizations, folks.)

Is there a woman's club anywhere with a "gentleman's auxiliary"?

How can packers of fresh spinach get away with wrapping up a product that is only one-third useable?

Stains. I have a theory about these. I think stains behave like insects. Once a pesticide has been invented to zap a certain insect species, the little bugs mutate into new pesticide-resistant varieties. So do some bacteria. Once a stain remover becomes powerful enough to remove a stain, I think the stain mutates into a more potent one.

Why would an ordinary person need a paper shredder? I saw an ad for one recently in a slick magazine. This fantastic item, the ad boasted, could "destroy confidential papers in your own home, under your own supervision! Mutilated beyond recognition — forever!"

Some global imponderables: Where do storms go? They come to Michigan from northern and western Canada, sweep across the Midwest, and press headlong for the East Coast. Sure, they bluster out into the Atlantic, but do they finally peter out or do they come around again and again? Are we, in fact, experiencing the same storm over and over?

If underdeveloped nations are called Third World nations, which nations comprise the First and Second World?

Finally, a celestial imponderable: If God is omnipotent, why did She take six days to create the world? And why did She have to rest?

The New York Times reported that Junior Lt. Valentina Tereshkova, the first woman astronaut, and Lt. Col. Valery Bykovsky landed safely after a twin space flight. The 26-year-old Russian woman said only her nose was bruised after the landing.

Lt. Tereshkova orbited the earth more than 48 times in 70 hours aboard her spacecraft Vostok VI.

Eighty cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church entered into conclave to elect a successor to Pope John XXIII. The election of the 262nd man to occupy the traditional chair of St. Peter is considered to be one of the most momentous in modern times.

The American Civil Liberties Union sued to eliminate the phrase "under God" from the pledge of allegiance. The suit asserted that the phrase, added to the pledge by Congress in 1954, violated constitutional guarantees of freedom of religion.

His spectacular return to competition after a month's layoff made Arnold Palmer the favored choice to regain the crown he held in 1960 when he won the U.S. Open. The Open was to be played in Brookline, Mass., at The Country Club.

In Grosse Pointe, trustees of the Neighborhood Club voted to close the facility after a study by consulting engineers showed the building was unsafe to use. The report showed that an expanding and contracting substratum of clay on which the club was built was causing the front wall of the 35-year-old building to move.

Stork being stalked

It was a gift for Motria Fedirko of the Farms, from her sister on the birth of her daughter Natalie May 30.

Jerry and Motria brought Natalie home from the hospital late June 5, and there in the front yard was a 7-foot wooden stork with a large bundle in its mouth. There for the world to see were the words, "It's a girl!"

It was late when the Fedirkos arrived home, and in the morning Motria wanted to get some photos with the stork and the baby, but alas, when they went outside, the stork had flown the coop.

The Fedirkos live just several houses down Kerby from the Farms police department, so Jerry walked over to report the larceny.

The stork was on lease from a

Southfield business, and the company, after filing a police report replaced the stork with another — this time a little more close to the house.

Police are on the wing looking for the wayward bird, and believe it may be a graduation prank of some sort. In any event, we don't doubt that the deliverer of good news will show up in some strange place.

Ask and you shall receive

Last week an article about a Grosse Pointe Park group home mentioned that the residents were in need of a few items which would make life at the home a little easier.

Grosse Pointers, being the giving people that they are, answered the request within hours after the newspapers hit the stands.

Among the donations to the home were two 10-speed bikes, a set of dishes with place settings for seven, and three other bikes.

The donations came from Mary Bohn, Jim Monnig, Chris Andrews, Susan Lauppe, Ruth Hatcher, Robin Smith and Angeline Speck.

The donations are appreciated since there is little money for extras. Thank you for your outstanding community support.

Sorry, Bob!

Last week we ran a cute classified submitted by Woods resident, Robert Frania. Bob's classified offered some black-over-white house kittens, in good condition with no rust and a purrfect exhaust system.

Bob called to thank us for the extra publicity, but said we transposed a couple of digits in the phone number. We apologize to both Bob and whomever got all the calls. The correct number of 886-0529.

Developing young people

Stephen Glenn, Ph.D., will present "Developing Capable Young People" at a day-long workshop at the St. John Hospital auditorium, 22101 Moross Road, Tuesday, June 16, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Registration fee is $40. Sponsored by The Oxford Institute, the program will focus on positive ways adults can guide adolescents to functional adulthood: the point at which a young person becomes responsible for his or her own behavior, well-being and, in necessary, support. Glenn, author of "Raising Children for Success," not only zeros in on the root of many adolescent problems, but also offers practical, achievable methods for guiding youngsters to improved perception, judgment, and decision making skills. His positive approach applies regardless of socioeconomic, cultural, or racial considerations.

Advance registration is required. For further information, call Virginia Biegun at 628-0500.

TVs, bike stolen

Park public safety officials feel that two break-ins and a larceny on Barrington and Pemberton overnight Thursday, June 4, are connected.

A 21-inch television was stolen from the rear porch of a Barrington Road home, and the same night a 19-inch television was taken from the rear porch of a Pemberton Road dwelling.

A girl's bike was taken from the rear yard of a Barrington Road home the same night.

Officials believe the three incidents are tied together, and are the work of one or more thieves.

Introduce bill to ban marine paint

By William H. Bryant Jr.
State Representative

A substance which the Department of Natural Resources calls the most toxic substance man has ever purposefully introduced into an aquatic environment is the subject of a bill I have introduced.

The substance is tributyltin

(TBT) and is used to kill anything touching the bottom of a boat. Well, not "anything" — it is used to anti-fouling marine paints for boats. Anti-fouling bottom paint is primarily needed in salt water but is used here by most boat owners.

The problem is that the TBT gets into the water and, in Lake

St. Clair marina areas, especially, it exists in concentrations sufficient to kill invertebrates and to kill or maim young game fish.

The laboratory evidence has mounted to the point where we really can't wait any longer, and there are decent alternative bottom paints, for fiberglass and wooden boats, at least, with copper rather than tin compounds providing the anti-fouling attribute.

Manufacturers of the tin-based paint are not pleased to lose the a market, but seem to accept the fact that their other marine paints will pick up the sales lost of this severely toxic paint.

My bill bans, as of Aug. 1, any sale or use. It does not require however, that any boat owner scrape off or paint over any paint which was applied while it was legal. Wholesale sale for use on steel and aluminum boats will not be banned until the end of the year.

Michigan has a particular responsibility to safeguard the water quality of the Great Lakes, its connecting waters and the waters flowing into the Great Lakes. We are contacting Ontario and the other Great lakes bordering states to urge their action to stop use of tributyltin marine paints on boats or docks.

The answer is (for crossword-puzzle fans) a seven-letter word. First letter is I; last is H.

(Addendum for those who might be interested: a good antidote for The New York and other papers who are "protecting the president" is Alexander Cockburn (pronounced COE-Burn) who writes every two weeks ("Ashes and Diamonds") for both The Nation ("Beat the Devil") and, locally, The Metro Times. Both are available at the Grosse Pointe Central Library. The Metro Times can also be picked up free late Wednesday afternoon at numerous name restaurants both in Grosse Pointe and downtown. Alexander C. rides herd on "the press of business" and is the brilliant son of a brilliant father, Claud Cockburn. See the latter's recent Summing Up, an autobiography.)

paragraphs later we learn that "59 percent said he was lying." But that adds up to only 83 percent. What of the other 17 percent? One thing is sure: They certainly were not among the 24 percent who were the hard-core true believers. I'd put them at least leaning toward the 59 percent who said he was lying. How come The Times didn't identify their position?

Wouldn't a more accurate heading have read "76 Percent Think Reagan is Lying"? Or, at the very least, "Fewer than one American in four Believe President Reagan is Telling the Truth"? To phrase it as it appeared is to do what the press and TV have been doing for the last several months: trying to rescue the bumbling, fumbling, tumbling Reagan. Too many people are swallowing this line. Don't buy this goo. Your instincts are telling you the truth!

Acting President Baker is running the show. Reagan is now a ceremonial figure only, merely reading the script. Can we limp along for almost two years with a lame-duck president in whom more than three-quarters of the electorate have lost confidence? Is he to remain in office merely because he is, as satirist Mark Russell would say, "a nice guy"?

family of the former board of education president joined board members in the ceremony.

Officials of the Farms and the schools faced off as the Farms tried to get the schools to build a 400-car parking lot on the high school grounds. Farms city officials intended to tie the lot into the requested approval of a permit to build a library on the school grounds. The school had agreed five years earlier to build a 340-car lot when it constructed the high school gym and auditorium.

general, better in natural science, chemistry and math."

Abigail Van Slyck, who was South's valedictorian in 1977, went to Smith College, graduating magna cum laude with a major in art history, according to her father. She achieved Phi Beta Kappa in her junior year and is now going for a Ph.D. in architectural history at the University of California at Berkley. He said she is working on her thesis which is a study of the different architectural styles of Carnegie libraries. She expects to earn her doctorate in 1988; then she'll teach at the university level, he said.

Sheryl Kurze, one of three valedictorians in 1977 at North, went to Kalamazoo College, graduating second in her class (close to a 4.0 g.p.a.) with a bachelor of arts in biology.

She's currently pursuing her medical degree at Michigan State University and is planning to specialize in pediatrics. "Grosse Pointe provided excellent preparation for college. Absolutely. Much better," she said. "I placed out of calculus and breezed through many courses. I got a prize in biology for excellence, and I didn't even realize I knew so much," she said. Kurze is now first in her medical school class, and she said it's not that difficult to maintain because of the good foundation she received in high school. She praised Grosse Pointe's science programs and honors courses.

Kathy Fulgenzi, South's class of '71, is already a medical doctor. She graduated from Univer-of arts degree from Alma, a master of arts in business from the University of Michigan, and now works for Comerica. She too, placed out of her first semester of college math, and said AP classes were part of the reason for her successful college career.

Dame with a degree in anthropology, then went to Yale for a master's in archeology. She spent her sophomore year in Rome. She worked with Mel Fisher's treasure salvaging crew in Florida, and is now with Pacific Sea Resources Inc., working as an archeologist and diver. She's currently on an island in the Pacific collecting artifacts from a Spanish ship that sank in the 16th century. She'll be back in Grosse Pointe in July, her mother said.

Diane Dupuis, one of three valedictorians in 1976 at South, went to Kalamazoo College and earned a degree with a double major in French and English. She's currently associate editor for contemporary authors at Gale Research Co., a publisher of reference books in Detroit. She said AP courses enabled her to be credited with a semester's worth of college classes. "Because I had these credits in English, French and history," she said, "I was able to carry a lighter load other semesters. I could hold down two jobs. I was also able to have a double major." Dupuis also had high praise for the music program in Grosse Pointe. She was not as enthusiastic about the science curriculum 11 years ago, and was one of those who pressed strongly for a second year of biology to be added to course offerings.

Mary Huetteman Stone, one of three valedictorians at North in '77, received bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees from the University of Michigan, graduating Phi Beta Kappa. She now works for an insurance company in Hartford, Conn. as an associate actuary. Stone said she felt well-prepared for U of M, but found some competition in the science classes. "I was not prepared for term paper writing and critical reading," she said, "because English was not my forte. If I had it to do over again, I would take more English courses." She said Grosse Pointe allowed too many substitutions for the basic English courses that she felt were necessary. She was allowed to substitute creative writing and mythology, for instance, for some fundamental writing and literature courses.

Gas meter conversion to begin in Park

Beginning the week of June 15, MichCon will begin converting indoor gas meters in Grosse Pointe Park to an outdoor, computerized meter reading system. Approximately 18,000 natural gas meters in the five Grosse Pointe communities will be changed to the new system by next winter.

"For our customers, the new system will eliminate estimated bills and the inconvenience of a meter reader entering the home to obtain an actual read from an indoor meter," said Robert Sirkle, MichCon director, Field Service and Metering Operations. "The system also will improve meter reading and billing accuracy."

MichCon has contracted Central Installation Company of Detroit to install the computerized meter reading system. The work takes about 20 minutes and is free of charge to customers.

The company does not have to turn off gas service. If the meter is an older model, however, it may need to be replaced before installing the new system. In these cases, service will be turned off temporarily.

To install an outdoor meter reading system requires a small, electronic sensor to be attached to the front of an indoor meter. A wire, connected to the sensor, is fed through the building wall and attached to a transmitting disc. The disc is then placed on the outside of the house.

Once the work is completed, a MichCon meter reader simply touches an electronic device to the transmitting disc and obtains an actual read without entering a customer's home. Following completion of the meter reader's route, the information is sent to the company's main computer for bill processing.

"As a precautionary measure against utility imposters, MichCon customers are encouraged to request photo-identification of all representatives claiming to be from MichCon or Central Installation before allowing the person into the home," Sirkle said.

Customers can confirm a MichCon employee's identification by calling the phone number listed on the monthly gas bill. To check identification of a Central Installation employee, call the company at 898-9785.

Cottage gets state approval for 500-space parking deck

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

State officials waited until the last day, but Cottage Hospital has been given its certificate of need for a proposed parking deck to be located behind the new Bologna building at Kercheval and Muir.

Cottage Vice President Greg Vasse said the hospital can now pursue the implementation of the site plan as it was approved by the Farms city council in February.

Hospital officials were certain of success and felt the proposal submitted to the state would be approved. Officials learned of the approval late last week.

"We knew we had a solid proposal," Vasse said. "It was just a lengthy process, and the state officials took the maximum amount of time allowable — to the day."

The news pleased Farms city officials. Controversy over parking on the Hill for has been around for years. The city is currently embroiled in further controversy over a request from the Grosse Pointe Board of Education to grant a variance of its parking ordinance to allow for an expansion of Central Library at Fisher and Kercheval.

"It's the best news we have heard about parking in this area for some time," said Farms City Clerk Richard Solak, upon learning of the state's approval. "We have been waiting for six years for this, and it's welcome news."

Vasse said that immediately after learning of the approval, Cottage officials met with Louis G. Redstone and Associates Inc., a Livonia architectural firm.

"They have been hired to begin the process of preparing the final drawings," Vasse said. Although Cottage had been given site plan approval by the city, hospital officials could not proceed any further on the project until after the state granted the certificate of need. If it had proceeded, those costs would not have been allowable under the certificate of need process.

There is now going to be about a 20 to 26 week period in which final plans will be drawn up, bids for construction let and final studies performed before actual groundbreaking, which is tentatively set for early December. Vasse said he anticipates the parking deck will be open for business in early July 1988.

"We are going to be working closely with the Farms city council on traffic patterns and making the structure look as pleasant as possible," Vasse said of the two-story, pre-cast concrete structure.

The facility, which will hold between 504 and 522 parking spaces, depending on final plans, will be used primarily for hospital visitors, out-patients and business visitors and leased spaces to Bologna building tenants and the Standard Federal Bank employees who will also be located in the Bologna building, according to Vasse.

"The parking deck will accommodate some hospital employees," Vasse said, "but we will encourage the majority of our employees to use surface parking whenever possible."

During the construction period, there will be some congestion. Cottage will lose a number of spaces now reserved for its employees behind the Bologna building just south of Muir. The hospital is looking at several alternatives. It now owns the lease lot which it purchased from the Grosse Pointe schools, and is currently leasing the lot to the city, which makes spaces available to the public. Cottage currently leases about 25 percent of the 80 spaces for its employees. Under a tentative agreement with the Farms, additional spaces in the lease lot may go to Cottage employees.

Vasse said that officials are considering a shuttle system where hospital employees would park in local church lots and then take buses to the hospital during the construction period.

"The program that I am tending to favor is a total valet system for the hospital," Vasse said.

"The hospital will suffer a great deal during the construction of the deck," he said. "We will not be the only party to suffer during this period. A lot will depend on the alternative parking systems we choose. We have a lot of time, 20 to 26 weeks. That is enough time to make some good arrangements to maximize the spaces that can be made available."

Volunteer help needed for recuperating patients

Volunteers are needed to help patients who are healing after a hospital stay, through a program offered by the Home Health Care Services Division of St. Clair Ambulatory Care Corporation, a health care partner of St. John Hospital.

Volunteers in the Loving Is Finding Time (LIFT) program, serve as companions to patients age 60 and older who live alone and are recuperating at home after leaving the hospital.

On a typical day, volunteers may go grocery shopping, pick up prescriptions, drive to the movies, or simply lend an open ear when there isn't anyone else around to listen.

To become a LIFT volunteer, the individual should devote a minimum of four hours per week per patient and make a three-month commitment to the program.

Before beginning the home visits, the volunteer completes a seven-hour training session. Volunteers and patients in the LIFT program are matched by the social workers in Home Health Care Services according to geographic location, volunteer abilities, patient needs and compatibility of both parties.

Patients in the program range from age 62 to 89, with the average age being 85. Many of the volunteers are themselves older adults.

A few backward glances

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

When they started working for the Grosse Pointe schools, the district was the largest rural agricultural district in the state.

"Everybody knew everybody," said Bob Townsend, who, with Jim Ireton and Carl Lord, got together to talk about the district they are getting ready to leave. All three men have worked here for at least 25 years — Ireton for 35.

Those were the days when student parking lots were small and schools were bulging at the seams. There was no teacher union to speak of, the principals did the recruiting and the superintendent negotiated the contracts for the staff.

Parcels had 1,000 students and had to ship some of them over to South to relieve the congestion. Brownell didn't exist yet — it was still a Nike site. Ferry School's grounds were filled with temporary portable classrooms to take the overflow of the baby boom.

When the district got around to building Brownell, a fancy swimming pool was included in the plans. "Overnight, South went from having the only pool to having the poorest pool," Ireton said.

Things have changed. "Grosse Pointe is a melting pot now," said Ireton. "It was less diverse then."

"You notice it most in the Park," Lord said.

Lord, the chair of the social studies department at South, is retiring after 27 years in Grosse Pointe. Townsend got a head start, leaving work at the end of the first semester after 34 years. He was a custodian at North. Ireton completed 35 years, serving last as a counselor at Pierce.

Things have also not changed.

There's still a "healthy involvement" of parents. "I call them teachers' team teachers," Lord said. "I'd like to put in a plug for the South Mothers' Club. They're pure gold."

"People value education," he said. "I remember how up in arms Grosse Pointe was over the state act to equalize spending."

Lord was among the many who testified against that proposal in Lansing. He said he came to know Rep. Lucille McCullough, who used to greet him, waving handfuls of paper (presumably from Grosse Pointe): "Look at all the letters I got, Carl."

The men remembered less happily the stress when the school closing issue divided the community. Although school staff was not affected directly, people worried about the divisions in the community. Some of those working in the schools under discussion were upset about moving to other schools. "A lot of them didn't want to do that," Townsend said.

Some of his co-workers were unhappy about the much more recent readjustment of the custodial staff. "I was lucky — I had enough time in to retire," Townsend said.

The men couldn't say enough good things about the school system. Lord said he moved here so his children could attend good schools. All three agreed that the schools have higher standards than many other districts — and that they should probably stay that way.

"This is like college compared to some schools," Townsend said.

"We should not lower our standards," Lord added. "Parents worry that colleges don't (recognize our standards). We should just do a better job telling our story."

Ireton demurred slightly. "As a counselor, I see some adjustment problems," he said. "... All kids are hurried today."

Lord agreed with that, but interpreted it differently. "They're overstructured, but pressures might be opportunities."

One thing that hasn't changed is what kids and grownups like to do. They still like volleyball and basketball and ping-pong — and they love challenging the staff to a game. Ireton just played in his last teachers-vs-students basketball game last week.

He coached basketball in the system at a time when coaches didn't get paid. "They gave me a new pair of shoes," Ireton remembered.

His prowess on the court is apparently legendary. When asked what they planned to do when they retired, Lord said emphatically, "I'm not going to play any more one-on-one basketball with Jim. He always kills me. I don't think any of us wants to really retire. I want to fish and ski and travel and maybe I'll get into politics. I've been asked to run for township supervisor (in northern Michigan where he has a cabin)."

Townsend agreed that he has been busier than ever since he retired. He still bowls on a teachers' league and treasures the extra time he can devote to his grandchildren.

Ireton got started on leisure-time activities a couple of years ago when he built a cabin by hand. He said he expects to spend some time there and wants to do "something physical. That's one thing about teaching that's not so good," he said. "This time of year you always get out of shape."

One thing he hopes to squeeze into his schedule is a cruise on the aircraft carrier Saratoga. His son serves there and had promised him a voyage when the ship was diverted to Libya a year ago. All three are leaving with a good taste.

"No matter what your job — superintendent, teachers, custodians, they're all friends," Townsend said.

"I'd like to thank Grosse Pointe for the opportunities," Lord said. "I know dang well I wouldn't have had these opportunities somewhere else."

Townsend nodded. "It had to be enjoyable to stay this many years."

Michigan's adjutant general, Major General Vern Andrews, congratulates Rebecca Forton on receiving the George Marshall award.

ROTC honors Park woman

Rebecca Forton of Grosse Pointe Park has been honored for her outstanding service to the ROTC several times this spring. Three times she has received a saber as an award for her achievements.

Last year, Forton and two other Grosse Pointers, Wolfgang Petermann and Frederick Spencer, were featured in the Grosse Pointe News for their participation in the Reserve Officers Training Corps. Since then, Forton and Spencer have decided to get married.

Forton graduated from South High School. She studied psychology at Wayne State University and entered the ROTC corps at the University of Detroit. In 1986, she was chosen Cadet Corps commander, based on grades, evaluation and ROTC performance.

Witnesses, police chase suspect, get stolen merchandise back

A display of Ray Ban sunglasses valued at about $1,250, was stolen from Notre Dame Pharmacy in the City around 9 a.m. Tuesday, June 2, but with the aid of witnesses chasing the suspect and an extensive search by police, the merchandise was recovered. As commander, she was responsible for planning training, scheduling, field training exercises and social events.

The same year, she was U of D's George Marshall award winner, attending a Virginia Military Institute seminar to hear about national security from experts.

In March, Forton received her first saber, representing the university's annual President's Award. She received the saber again at the ROTC annual awards banquet.

Forton then went to Lansing, where she received the saber a third time because she was the first National Guard person at her school to receive the Marshall award.

Forton has been named the Distinguished Military Graduate for being the top cadet in her class.

Latchkey

them free, some at a charge. Some provide none at all.

At one point, some of the classes had no access to telephones in case of emergency. That problem has been taken care of, according to Alfrida Frost, director of elementary curriculum.

"The report is a fine one — it's excellent," said Carol Marr. "I give the coordinators credit for that." Marr said the report answers her concerns about lack of centralized responsibility. "I have no doubt that Cheryl (Dorman) communicates well enough (to make her opinions heard)," she said. "She's doing a great job."

Joan Hanpeter agreed that the report addresses her concerns, but she said she is still unhappy that the problems arose in the first place. "I'm embarrassed administratively," she said. "Our policies and fees were all over the map."

Hanpeter said she is counting on a big improvement in the program. "Very honestly, it's been operating like a babysitting service," she said. "We're stretching for a higher level now."

Carol Marr has kept an eye on the program since she has been on the board. "Our program has never been in compliance," she said. "That makes me uncomfortable."

The program just evolved, Marr said, with the result that it became riddled with inconsistencies. The current awareness of its deficiencies may be the key to its improvement — that, and parental involvement.

"Most parents don't want to be critical because it's all they have," Marr said. "Our program will be as good as parents want it to be. . . To me, the latchkey parents should have the opportunity to evaluate the program. They've never been asked — I think I know why."

Marr said she is worried that even though the board has accepted the report, there may not be a commitment to providing the space, supplies and caregiver training the program requires.

"What is too bad is that we established the program before we had authorization for it," she said. "Now we're scrambling. . . I would be very hesitant to continue the program without compliance. I have concerns about liability. All you need is one child getting injured. The report is excellent — the bottom line is implementing it."

Coordinator Cheryl Dorman said she is optimistic now that the program is on the right track. She has formed a parents' group, which met for the first time last week, and is working on granting college credit for caregivers' in-service training. She is also working on upgrading the hiring practices.

This year, there was little required of caregivers beyond age (minimum of 17) and ability to work a split morning-afternoon shift. The result in some cases was inexperienced caregivers who felt they had been thrown to the wolves.

"They recognized they needed help," Dorman said. "They were open about the problems they were having." She said she and Gross and Ginny McCaig, a child development professor at the University of Michigan-Dearborn, collaborated on providing monthly in-service training.

"The school system needs to decide either to get out of the business or have a quality program that would reflect Grosse Pointe's whole philosophy of education," McCaig said earlier this spring. "That is not where this program is now and it's not where it's headed."

Dorman hopes to attract people studying education and early childhood development to fill the six or seven caregiver positions currently open. She will post job openings at local colleges and take the hiring responsibility — in consultation with building principals. Her report also recommends the development of a job description for the caregivers and continuation of the training program.

"The caregivers are caring, giving people, but they're untrained," McCaig said. "Anybody who has elementary-age kids come home after school knows what they're like. They're jumping jacks. They've been in a structured situation all day — they want to move around and play."

McCaig said that, given the demands on the caregivers, she would have asked that they have completed two years of college with 12 hours of child psychology. "The caregivers have the opportunity to see parents and children interact," she said. "They have the opportunity to see abuse — but they don't know what to do about it." McCaig said she has provided all caregivers with copies of applicable state laws.

A little more than 10 percent of Grosse Pointe's total enrollment takes part in latchkey. The number fluctuates and tends to drop off sharply in the spring, but it was hovering around 350 in the nine schools, Frost said. Most of them are boys.

"There can't be only boys in this community," said McCaig, "but 80 percent of latchkey enrollment is boys. We think we've solved the problem in this community of leaving kids home alone, but we haven't — the girls are still home.

"There's no way to find out how many kids are home, but leaving a kid under 12 at home alone is a clear case of child neglect."

School officials have not found a way to measure the number of unattended children, but national statistics from the Census Bureau show that 7 percent of children between the ages of five and 12 are left alone after school. The majority of them are in white, upper-income households.

"I know there are some parents who think it's too expensive," said Marr, "but I think it's a good deal — to know where your children are and to know that we're improving the program."

Under the new recommendations, the fee will be uniform at all locations. Children spending four hours a day five days a week will be charged $120 per month paid in advance. A child spending one afternoon, from school dismissal to 6:15 p.m., will be charged $5.

recovered. A male, about 20 years old and about 6 feet tall, walked into the store and grabbed the rack of sunglasses. He ran out the front door of the store closely pursued by witnesses from the store.

Police joined the search, but the witnesses lost sight of the suspect. Another person spotted the man jumping into the back seat of a blue Honda. The driver of the vehicle sped away.

Officers could not locate the car, but conducted an extensive search of the thief's escape route and eventually found the sunglasses display rack.

Pointer

gradually opened up different areas. I built a new office section and I'm now finally at the point of opening a second floor dining room."

But every time he changes something, McDonald says, "I get all kinds of flack from the patrons."

The current renovation, which began last month, will be completed by the end of the summer. The bar will remain downstairs where lighter food will be served. McDonald said he has found that mixing bar patrons with diners doesn't work.

His ties to the downtown area run deep. His grandfather owned a bakery in what is now Greektown and had several others in downtown Detroit. His father, who recently retired, was an attorney in the Buhl Building.

Besides getting entertainers for his own establishment, McDonald is working on a program for Chene Park which currently has 4,000 seats and is expanding its capacity to hold 10,000.

He recently completed a sale on the old Broadway Market building behind Hudson's. He had hoped to develop the property, which he said is a good investment, but found he didn't have the time to devote to it.

He's a member of the board of the Rivertown Association. He's also president of Rivertown Security Services, a private, non-profit group he started three years ago. Now 55 businesses from Stroh's to ANR to small businesses belong to the organization.

"We run a mobile patrol unit and provide guard service to members, if they so desire, pretty much at our cost," he said. "We have received a lot of cooperation from the police, and crime has been cut by 50 percent over the last three years."

The service is unique in the country, McDonald said, with the public and private sector working together. It has been studied by other areas. "Deterrence is what we're looking at."

He belongs to the Metropolitan Detroit Convention Bureau and the Central Business District Association.

The week before, he had taken a group of people for a tour through the Stroh complex. And a class of 40 students from Defer came to the Soup Kitchen for lunch recently.

"I try to introduce or re-introduce people to the area," McDonald said. "I believe strongly in the city. I would like to see Detroit grow up and be a big city."

"You have to keep working at it. It's a struggle. I think more and more people are discovering downtown is an OK place."

He also worries about the loss of Grosse Pointe's fine old homes to developers. He said Windmill Pointe is a future "condo city" if something isn't done. "It has to start with zoning," he said.

Another thing he has a passion for is boats — wooden boats. He has had "quite a few," he said, and his newest is a 1959 Chris Craft. "People say they're so much work, but to me, riding is a whole different feeling. I think they ride better and there's something classic about them."

McDonald said he makes time to do the work they require because "it's relaxing." The boat he lived on was a 1940 44-foot Chris Craft which he took to New York. "I was on my way to Florida when the gas crunch hit," he said. Nobody was selling gas for boats, so he tied up in the New York harbor and lived on the boat for a few years.

At one time, he captained the 90-foot Maradon out of the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

Women workers

Women are expected to account for two-thirds of the growth of the labor force at least through 1999. In that year, a third of the total labor force will be women ages 25 to 54, according to the fact sheet on working women published by the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Schools to ask for parking variance

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe school board decided June 2 to formally request a parking variance for the proposed library addition. They will present their case to the city of Grosse Pointe Farms June 29.

The planning firm of Vilican-Leman is currently studying the parking situation, but the conclusions are not yet available. School officials said they hope to have the results in mid-June, before the Farms meeting.

Getting approval of a parking plan is crucial to the expansion. "If it isn't done June 29, we're not on the ballot in November," said board President Vincent LoCicero. "We could be back to square one, with more studies and higher interest rates."

The board will not go to the meeting entirely naked. A study commissioned by the Friends of the Library and conducted during the third week in May showed that enough parking is available most of the time, even in the library's current small lot.

The Friends hired a man to count empty and occupied parking spaces every hour. He counted parking along Fisher and Kercheval roads and in the Richard lot, as well as the on-site library lot. The count was done during library hours.

One thing it showed is that library use fluctuates a lot. On Monday and Tuesday mornings at 10 a.m., for example, there were no vacant spaces in the library lot. On Wednesday there were 21; on Thursday, 14. On Monday, there was one vacant space allotted to the library in the Fisher Road parking bay. Tuesday, that was filled as well, but there were 26 spaces on Fisher Road.

During the week of the survey, there were several athletic events at South high school and meetings, story hours and class visits at the library. But library officials insist that there is not a direct relationship between the number of patrons and the number of cars.

"Story hours and class visits had an impact on patron traffic, though not necessarily on parking," library Director Charles Hanson wrote in a cover letter. "... Some people walk, some utilize bicycles, some are dropped off and picked up later, some use skateboards to arrive at the door."

Board discussion focused last week on the probable loss of some of the athletic field at South. Principal Edward Shine said the impact on some of the areas would be more crucial than on others.

"We can live with the loss of the areas around the library," he said, referring to the shotput area and the refreshment stand (both of which would likely be moved). "But parking along Kercheval becomes a dramatic loss. Even using a mushball, the boys can hit it over the fence (onto the track)." Shine said some events would probably be scheduled at another location if parking is installed along Kercheval.

"I wanted the library (expansion) as much as anyone," said board Vice President Fred Adams, "but I could never subscribe to putting a parking lot along Kercheval from the gas station to the library. We've got a terrific problem."

Charles Bethell

Trombly School fourth-grader Charles Bethell heard about the declining population of bluebirds and decided to build a nesting box to help them out. He is a regular helper of Trombly custodian Dennis Harrigan, who has worked with Charles to make several craft items out of wood. The two went to work and planned and built a nesting box, which hangs in a tree outside the second-story window of Charles' classroom. Here he saws a board in Harrigan's boiler room workshop. Charles is the son of Carol Bethell of the Park.

Each week in this column, we focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a woodworking project, a book review.

This space is open to any student in the Grosse Pointe public or private school system from grades 1 through 12.

Send your entry along with a picture to Student Spotlight, Grosse Pointe News, 96 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Farms 48236, or drop it off at the office. If you would like everything returned, enclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

3 South students win major awards

Three South High School art students won five major awards in the National Scholastic Art Awards competition held in New York City.

Craig Vogt, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Vogt, of the Farms, was South's big winner. The South senior won two major awards — one for his art portfolio, which featured commercial art designs, and one in black and white photography. Vogt was one of only five in the nation who won a $500 Strathmore Paper Company Scholarship Award for his art portfolio and was one of 200 national award winners in black and white photography for which he will receive a $30 cash award.

Senior Rosh Sillars, son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Sillars, of the Farms, also won two awards, both in photography. He was awarded a $30 cash prize in the Category of Honor in Black and White Photography, and he also received one of 15 honorable mentions for his portfolio of 10 prints. More than 400 portfolios were submitted nationwide. For having one of the top 19 photography portfolios, Sillars will receive a cash award of $100.

Junior Wayne Besler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Besler, of the Farms, was awarded one of only four national awards in Excellence in Color Experimental Photography. He will receive a $100 cash award for his efforts.

All three of these students are enrolled in the advanced photography program at South High School and are students of Jack Summers, photography instructor. Vogt is also a student of Barbara Bruenwald, commercial design teacher, and the late Robert Rathbun, drawing and painting instructor.

The work of these three students was submitted for judging in the national competition after having been selected in the Southeastern Michigan Scholastic Art Competition held in February.

Developer sets standard for mobile home industry

By Pat Paholsky
News Editor

Twenty years ago when John A. Boll and his partner built their first mobile home community, the banks refused to loan them money to finance the project. They were told the development was too extravagant, that it was a monument to themselves.

"We had confidence and went ahead with the project," Boll said. "Fortunately we had enough to get it going and it worked out."

It more than worked out. The company's assets total more than $100 million, he said. The company Chateau Estates, recently changed its name to Chateau Land Development Co. to reflect its growth and diversity.

It has established more than 7,000 mobile home sites in Michigan and Florida. The company owns 15 communities and has developed another 13. An expansion of about 400 units is under construction at existing sites.

In addition, Chateau has developed more than 2,000 single-family residential lots in Michigan and California; a 20-acre industrial park in Mount Clemens with 80,000 square feet of office space, an additional 115,000 square feet of space under construction and another 100,000 square feet available; and apartments numbering 160 units.

Boll, a Grosse Pointe Shores resident, is chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the company — "at that point in my life," he says, "where I can involve myself in other things, like serving on boards." He is on the boards of the First Macomb Bank, Michigan Parkinson's Foundation, St. John Hospital, United Foundation, Christian Businessmen's Committee of Detroit and the Grosse Pointe Shores Improvement Foundation. He is also a member of the Selfridge Air National Guard Community Council. His partner, Joe Ministrelli, is retired and living in California.

In the 20 years since they developed their first mobile home community, they have seen radical changes in the industry. The trailer camp image is one they have constantly fought to improve.

They began by developing five-star communities. Boll said at one time a firm in Chicago, Woodall Industries, rated mobile home communities throughout the country. The highest rated community in Michigan at the time was a three-star community in Flint.

"We decided we would like to build a five-star community and every community since has been a five-star," Boll said. "The design of the community, the amenities and the management have to all be in place to get a five-star."

That includes swimming pools, putting greens, a laundromat, a clubhouse. It also means no visible antennas, no air conditioning units hanging out of windows, no car repairs in the driveways, no rubbish set out until the day of pick-up.

Prospective residents must meet with the manager who explains the rules and regulations. They then sign an agreement.

"We have a system whereby they can get evicted if they don't comply," Boll said. "If you don't cut your lawn, you get a notice. Within 48 hours, we will cut it and bill you." After seven notices, a person can be evicted.

"We try to develop a community spirit," he said. "We get card clubs going and various other associations. The Red Cross will visit our facilities. We have some Bible study groups. The end result is the people become part of the community."

The company does not sell mobile homes. It develops the community and leases the space. It approves the homes before they are brought in and also inspects them before they are sold. There are about 30 items which the seller must meet before he is allowed to sell. Otherwise he must remove the home from the grounds to sell it.

"That way over the years, we can maintain the community," Boll said. "If you live in a Chateau community, because we do have a reputation, people will list their home for sale and will say it's a Chateau community, because they know it will attract people."

The company employs 120 people directly. "Indirectly we sub out all of our construction."

Chateau's growth in the past five years has been dramatic. In 1982 there were housing sites for 5,000 families at a gross dollar value of $8 million. By 1986, an additional 2,600 units were added, representing a 400 percent increase in gross dollar value, or $29 million.

Boll attributes the company's growth to the cost of housing, which he said is prohibitive for a young couple starting out. Twenty years ago, retirees comprised 80 percent of the mobile home population. Today the figure is reversed, he said, with 80 percent families and 20 percent retirees.

Today the banks look at a mobile home in the same way as a conventional house, he said. "There used to be a time when you lost money on a mobile home, like cars. We have gone from depreciated value to appreciated value."

Another change in the industry is the standards. Every home that is manufactured must have a seal of approval by HUD.

Former Gov. William Milliken established a mobile home commission and appointed Boll who served as chairman for four years. The commission was given the authority to establish standards.

"We established licensing for dealers, licensing for repair companies and licensing for the mobile home communities, so that every year, you have to apply for a license."

"It's done a lot to clean up the industry," Boll said. "It has brought us to a place where anyone can buy a mobile home and have protection."

As a result, Michigan is ahead of other states in setting standards for the industry, Boll said.

He takes pride in the company's accomplishments.

"We start out with a raw piece of land and try to determine something unique about it — a piece of river, a rolling terrain. We try to develop a concept, a feeling. It's almost a form of art."

The company employs an architect who designs the entrance and carries the theme throughout, including the street signs and mailboxes to the community center.

Every year in June, Boll and a team conduct the annual inspection of all the properties. They award plaques in different categories and the managers are eligible for bonuses of up to $1,000.

Of his years as a developer, Boll says, "It's been a challenge and I enjoyed it. We have to be concerned with the numbers as any businessman does and at the same time, while we have to show a reasonable profit, we want to show we have something we can be proud of. We're not interested in how large a profit at the expense of our properties."

He and his wife Marlene have three children ranging from 28 years to 21. He is an elder of the Knox Presbyterian Church. He was commodore of the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club last year and is a past commodore of the Clinton River Boat Club.

There is a reverent quiet throughout the company's professionally decorated, spacious offices on Hall Road in Mount Clemens. The table in the reception room holds a book about Billy Graham and there are magazine article reprints on the power of positive thinking. A sign says: Bless you for not smoking.

Mack businesses sweep up

It was called Mack Avenue Clean Sweep. Businesses along Mack Avenue between Balfour and Alter roads participated in a four-hour project Saturday, May 2, sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Business & Professional Association.

Many businesses joined in the activities — washing windows, sodding front easements, sweeping sidewalks and streets, planting spring flowers and cleaning up trash.

Taking part in the project were: Denise Montgomery, James Rucker, Jack and Pam Case of Eastside Cab Co.; Sam Pace and his employees of the Colony Shoe Repair; Curtis Anderson, Julium Pearson and Irving Stone of Shamrock Realty; Sam Husaynue and Calvin Stewart of Maryland Beverage; the James Rhodes Landscaping Co.; Pointe East Variety Shop; Litos Accounting; George Bertages Alarm Co.; many workers from the Grosse Pointe Park Baptist Church, including Pastor Steven Husava, Lynn Jones, Huey Adkins and Brian Thornton; Bill Lauppe and Patrick Selby of Detroit Automotive Parts; and Dr. Winson Zouzal.

Bob Mowbray, of Village Locksmith, chairman of the project, manned the weed-killer, Dr. Mike Lahey swept sidewalks, Karen Warren of First of America Bank picked up trash, and Helen Geisbuhler and Gail Kaess passed out supplies. Pop and pizza was provided for all workers by Maryland Beverage and Little Caesar's Pizza.

The company is expanding Chateau Anchor Bay by more home sites, a day care center, a marina and a launching ramp. About 60 slips will be open this fall for residents of the community.

When the expansion is completed in about three years, there will also be three clubhouses and two swimming pools for about 1,200 families.

Brooks Brothers to come to Farms

Developer Robert Edgar confirmed Monday that Brooks Brothers will open a men's clothing store in his refurbished Punch and Judy Building. The store is expected to open in late October, in time for the Christmas season.

Brooks Brothers, a New York based clothing chain, is the sixth national chain to come to Grosse Pointe in less than three years. It follows Benetton, The Gap (which will open soon in the Village), Banana Republic, Waldenbooks and Talbot's.

The advent of Brooks Brothers to the Hill represents what Edgar called a "whole new concept in retailing," in which chains use a larger number of smaller stores to achieve a greater presence. "Customers are more comfortable on Main Street," Edgar said.

"There's been a shift in buying patterns," said George Hanley, vice president of marketing for Brooks Brothers. "There is a marked preference toward Saturday shopping. It reflects a trend toward family shopping in the suburbs, close to home."

Brooks Brothers will close their downtown store to move to where the majority of their customers are. The chain also has a store at Somerset Mall in Troy. The company has 46 stores, including one in Tokyo.

Edgar said he is also negotiating with several other national retailers. He has commitments for much of the second floor of office space from Capital Markets, Inc., a financial firm now located on the upper Hill.

Brooks Brothers is expected to occupy all of the space once used by Maria Dinon and DeGrimme's. All that will remain of the former tenants on the lower Hill is Wild Wings and First Federal of Michigan, Edgar said.

Getting the show on the road

South's Ellen Bowen puts the show in show choir

By Elsa Frohman
Feature Editor

Ellen Skinner Bowen likes to "leave 'em screaming," or possibly with tears in their eyes but never bored or snoozing.

Bowen is the choir director at Grosse Pointe South High School and Brownell Middle School. She came to the Grosse Pointe schools this year from Macomb Community College where she was director of the Macombers Show Choir as well as the Chamber Choir and Concert Choir. She was also in charge of the college's musical theater program.

Bowen has brought a flair for showmanship to her students at South and Brownell. One of the first things she did when she got to South was to have a set of full-length mirrors installed in the choir room. Her students aren't just expected to sound good, they have to look good as well.

Bowen leads a chorus line of her students in front of the full-length mirrors in the choir room at South.

"A show choir combines music and movement," Bowen said. "It's really movement, not dance. Sixth grade boys would have a problem with dance."

That's right, sixth grade boys. Bowen gets 11-year-old boys to wave their arms and move in time to the music.

"If you watch junior high school students, you see how uncoordinated they are," Bowen said. "This is good for them. It helps develop their smaller motor skills."

For the younger students, the movement may mean singing "Somewhere Over the Rainbow," and doing it in sign language at the same time. At the high school level, Bowen's show choir students do kick lines and wear costumes and anything else that enhances the presentation of the music.

"You have to be creative," Bowen said.

Bowen's choirs have done well in competition. Her students received a superior rating at this year's state festival. If competing at an activity like singing a song seems strange, Bowen explains that the competition is not really a competition.

"None of us really go to compete," she said. "It's not like coming in first, second and third. The purpose of the festival is to set a standard of excellence. We go to hear the other singers and see what other choirs are doing. We could probably accomplish the same thing by bringing in a clinician."

"Grosse Pointe students like to do well. I was incredibly impressed with their discipline at the festivals."

The real point of participating in a festival is to have the students' work judged by impartial experts, so their weak points can be strengthened and their strong points emphasized.

"It's like in sports. You go to see the other players," she said. "Parents will applaud for anything. We need to know if our standards are up to par."

At South, the Pointe Singers are Bowen's main show choir. She also directs the Tower Bells, a girls' group, and is in the process of bringing back the Crazy Eights, a men's comedy group patterned after the Friars at the University of Michigan. All three groups are volunteer, extra-curricular activities.

The Pointe Singers do regular shows out in the community. The girls wear three-quarter length dresses and the boys wear tails.

"We like to keep it traditional and conservative for the Grosse Pointes," Bowen said. "We don't put the girls in long dresses because they are hard to move in."

The Pointe Singers performances have a dual purpose, Bowen said.

"We do a lot of work out in the community," she said. "Part of it is music education, part of it is public relations. It's good for the kids to do something for the community."

Bowen attributes her success in competition with her show choirs to the type of sound she insists on.

"I use a full, choral sound," she said. "It's not breathy at all."

Producing the right kind of sound takes working with her classes on voice production. However, that's not enough, according to Bowen.

"I encourage my students to study voice privately," she said. "It has the same benefit as studying instrumental music privately. I can get the sound I want out of my choir, but it's still a choral sound. If a child wants a big solo voice, he should study privately."

Bowen says that a singing voice is not something you are born with, it's something you learn.

"If you can talk, you can sing," she said. "Some people have better singing voices than others, but anyone can be a choral singer."

Bowen says programming a show choir is an art. The right songs to sing depend on the audience.

"It's basically a review," she said. "I study old movies."

Some songs are perennial favorites, Bowen said.

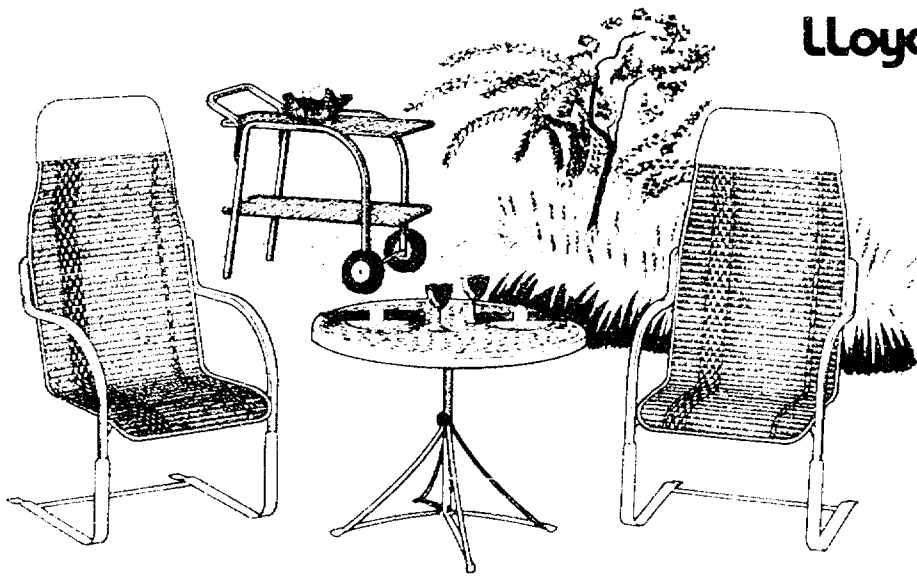

"Irving Berlin is always popular. We do 'Stout Hearted Men' and they come marching over the risers. It's good to end with something patriotic — seniors love that, but junior high school kids won't like it. You might end with a sobber, like 'When You Walk Through a Storm,' or 'Climb Every Mountain.' You may end with something exciting and leave 'em screaming."

"You have to go into a show and look at the audience. How old are they, and are they a party hardy bunch? You try to be sensitive to the audience. You have to be flexible. The key to being a good director is getting the feel for your audience."

Garden events highlight the June calendar in Michigan

By Ellen Probert
Special Writer

Gardens and flowers are among the great attractions of the month of June. Perhaps it's because we are still not so far away from winter that the lavish color and scent of summer bloom seems a precious gift and we look forward to a long summer replete with blossoms.

There are gardens to visit and enjoy rain or shine. The Council of Grosse Pointe Garden Clubs will present its annual Garden Tour on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, June 26, 27, 28, from 1 to 5 p.m. for a start.

Nine magnificent gardens will be on view running the gamut from quiet, forest-like glades to formal, European-style expanses. Some are set against the backdrop of the sparkling lake and some are secluded behind ivy-covered walls. New gardens bright with sunlight and old, timeless gardens deep in the shade of towering, venerable trees are on the list as well as the Trial Gardens of the Grosse Pointe Garden Center beside the lake at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

The Garden Center, located on the second floor of the War Memorial and open Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. has tickets for this lovely event. Each ticket is accompanied by a folder describing the gardens and containing a map to help you find your way from one to another. Tickets are $6 pre-sale or $7.50 on tour days.

On June 1 the Anna Scripps Whitcomb Conservatory on Belle Isle opened its summer show which will remain on view through October. During the summer months the Show House is shaded and cool to provide a moist, glen-like setting for a display of many varieties of fuchsias, caladiums, gloxinias, coleus and many foliage plants.

And in the outdoor gardens near the conservatory, a magnificent array of many varieties of dahlias are there for you to enjoy until early fall.

The beautiful gardens surrounding historic Greenmead mansion museum in Livonia are always beautiful in June and the herb gardens are of special interest. The gardens are maintained in part by the garden clubs of the Livonia area.

According to famed author and lecturer on horticultural subjects, Jerry Baker, you should exercise your house plants. At first glance this seems a downright hilarious statement leading to all sorts of extravagant flights of imagination. (Are there running shoes for wandering Jew, or aerobics for orchids?)

But on serious second thought perhaps there is something there. Look at the trees and shrubs and flowering plants outdoors. They certainly are exercising strenuously when there is a strong wind or a pelting rain, and squirrels running along tree branches or rabbits darting through a flower bed certainly jar the plants out of immobility.

It seems there were some experiments made and house plants which were jostled once a day flourished ahead of another group which were let alone. It's worth a try.

In the English flower calendar the flower for the month of June is honeysuckle; in the Chinese flower calendar it is the pomegranate; symbol of prosperity and progeny; and in the Japanese flower calendar June is represented by the peony.

Considering the almost universal interest in gardening which seems to exist it may not be so surprising that so many people have names pertaining to the growing of plants. Have you noticed how many people are named Gardener (or Gardner or Gardiner)?

Then there are those who answer to the name Farmer, or Planter, or Grower, or Trimmer, or Potter. And don't forget those who have the same names as gardening equipment; Mower, Spade, Barrow, Thresher.

There are families whose names are Flower, Bush, Tree, LaVine, Berry, Hay, Apple, Pear, Root, Oaks, Birch and Beech.

Garden locations are also names for people. What about Meadows, Field, Woods, Plain, Hill or Lane?

Think of all the girls you know with flower names like Rose, Lily, Jasmin, Violet, Poppy, Laurel or Ivy, or all the boys named Timothy or Bud. Maybe you can add some more to the list.

It is a good idea to stake peonies to prevent the heavy blossoms from drooping. When you cut the flowers leave at least two leaves on each stalk. When the blooming period is finished, cut back the flower stalks, since the formation of seed pods saps the strength of the plant. Fertilize the plants at this time to strengthen the growing for next year.

Oriental poppies are blooming now in all their lovely colors such as white, pale and salmon pink, and deep red, which really blend far better with other garden flowers than does the orange shade so often seen.

When you use them in arrangements cut them in the early morning and singe the ends of the stems with a match before plunging them into cold water to harden.

Don't forget that summer rainfall is not usually adequate for your house plants which have been taken outdoors. Being confined in pots, the roots are unable to range in search of moisture and therefore require extra watering.

And, speaking of rain, don't forget that just after a rain is a good time to thin seedlings of both flowers and vegetables when the roots can be pulled out without disturbing nearby plants.

Did you know that at Fort Ticonderoga, N.Y., is what is thought to be the oldest flower garden in America? It was planted during Montcalm's time, on ground which the Indians had used for growing corn.

The garden is still flourishing and many of the plants to be enjoyed in it today are the duplicates, if not the descendants, of the original ones. Gardens are one means we have to experience a living link with those who share our love of growing things centuries ago.

Produce running about 10 days early this year

June will be the start of a big fresh fruit and vegetable season here in Michigan.

For openers, the season is running about 10 days ahead of a normal year. Usually this results in some fruit crops getting zapped by a spring frost or two. Mother Nature didn't throw that curve this year, so crop outlooks for all fruits and vegetables are large.

A big crop of strawberries awaits consumers now. Acreage is about equal to that of a year ago, but weather conditions have been more favorable. The first berries should be good-sized since the crop largely escaped frost. Irrigation of commercially grown strawberries has also increased berry size.

Look for strawberry supplies to be around until about June 20, but don't wait until then to go "berrying" for big amounts. The supply peak will occur earlier; check now with local growers.

Red and black raspberries and blackberries will ripen in June this year. These labor-intensive crops are rarely available at supermarkets; instead look for them at farm-site markets or farmer's markets.

Michigan sweet and tart cherries will also begin to come to market by late June this year. The sweet cherries found in supermarkets will most likely be from California or Washington. Look for fresh Michigan sweet and tart cherries at farmsite markets or farmers' markets. Some farm markets will even pit the cherries you buy there; ask about this free service if you are buying a larger volume.

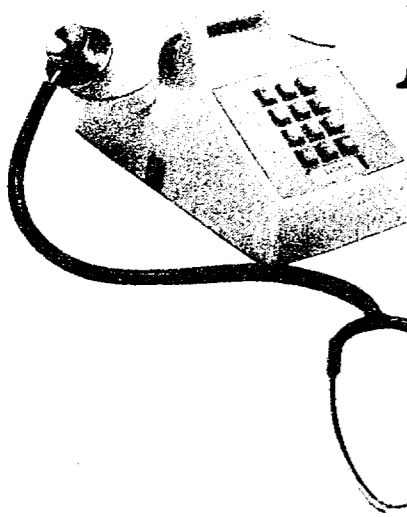

Cantalope and honeydew melons will be coming through in heavy volume this month; prices are moderate. That's not the case for watermelon; supplies are tight and prices are about double those of a year ago.

A shorter supply of green peppers has pushed prices up for this salad item. Good prices on lettuce, greens and other salad ingredients will keep salad prices moderate.

Chicken and turkey will likely be your most economical meat choices this month. Eggs are also a good value.

Donation

This past May 18, the Bon Secours Assistance League presented a $287,000 check to Bon Secours Hospital. Pictured is Henry DeVries, chief operating officer, Bon Secours Hospital, accepting the check from Mickey Schaefer, past president, Bon Secours Assistance League, at its annual meeting in the hospital's Science hall. The Assistance League's donation will support the hospital's meals for the homebound program, Sr. Rosaria Buesching, O.P., Fund for Hospice, the addition of cardiac catheterization capabilities and monitoring equipment for the special procedures area in radiology and ambulatory surgery department renovations.

The donations were raised through the Assistance League's annual fundraising activities which include managing the hospital's gift shop, the 1986-87 Celebrity Series, individual group activities, and a bequest from long-standing Assistance League member Margaret Bradford and her sister Florence Bradford.

New Assistance League officers were also elected at the annual meeting. They are Patricia Shea, president; Peggy Burke, vice president; Mary Jo Clark, second vice president; Margaret Guertler, recording secretary; and Caroline Wagner, corresponding secretary.

Party benefits Rehabilitation Institute

The Rehabilitation Institute Auxiliary's annual Spring Gala will be held at the lakeside home of Margaret Borden on June 14, from 5 to 7 p.m. There will be audio-visuals and demonstrations of some of the latest in physical therapy equipment and methods.

The Rehabilitation Institute is the largest non-profit adult rehabilitation facility in the mid-west. As a member of the Detroit Medical Center, the 175-bed hospital maintains specialty units or programs for spinal cord injury, stroke, rheumatology, musculoskeletal disorders, geriatric rehabilitation, pain management and closed head injury. Each year, 2,000 in-patients and 5,000 out-patients and their families average spending almost a month in therapy at the Institute.

Besides raising funds for the Spring Gala to assist with ongoing renovation projects, the Auxiliary volunteers manage and operate a gift shop. They recently helped develop a Patient Education Library and a Model Training apartment. Through their work they help make the Institute a "home" for patients during their stay.

A guide for sexual debate

By the Rev. Edward A. M. Cobden Jr.

Christ Church-Grosse Pointe

A lot of us were brought up to keep our thoughts about sex private — and with good reason. They can be explosive. That is why norms for polite conversation ruled out subjects such as politics, religion and sex.

Those tidy seawalls of polite convention, however, are being swept by a turbulent tide of questions and issues of sexuality. My mail is flooded with journals, papers, magazines, resolutions and letters putting forth perspectives on various aspects of sexual debate: the pros and cons of pre-marital or post-marital sex, sanctioning homosexual relationships, AIDS, safe sex, contraception, abortion and the proper forum for sex education for youth.

A critical question for me is, with what tone of voice will the religious person speak? Diffidently and without resolution, as if the ground on which he stood was uncertain? Or stridently and with condemnation, as if one stood on Mount Olympus and knew nothing of the moral ambiguity shared by all mortals?

A motto to guide debate

During the Puritan era, faith and morals were being debated heatedly. At one point, the contentious spirit swirling around the debate led to war: the civil war in England when Cromwell's forces overthrew the monarchy. Living through this period of anguished controversy was an irenic and conciliating clergyman, Richard Baxter, whose motto was:

*In necessary things, unity;
In doubtful things, liberty;
In all things, charity.*

I commend this motto as a guide for our conversations on this important yet volatile subject of sexual ethics.

In essential things, unity

In all of the controversy, we need not overlook the common values we share. For example, we affirm monogamous marriage as sacred. Our common view is that God made man and woman in the image of the source of all being so that in pairs bonded together as in one flesh they would mirror the divine nature as one who establishes community and generates life. Universally we recognize that marriage is based on trust and that trust depends on fidelity and chastity.

In doubtful things, liberty

When our son and daughter went to the same college from which I had graduated, the residences had become co-ed. I was doubtful, skeptical and frankly anxious. I remember how predatory we were in our college days. How was this going to work? Particularly where bathrooms were concerned.

Over the course of a few years, I observed how it worked. For the most part, the coeds treated each other as brother and sister — so much so, that at times I wondered if the new generation had lost their libido.

Times change. Old issues are phrased in new terms. There are new options and new challenges. For some, ideal decisions may not be possible. But, in the interval between the ideal and the immoral, there will be best proximate choices.

Let's trust one another and trust the process of public discussion that the truth we all need will be recognized and affirmed. We will all be losers if we give into fear and repression which put people down and cut off debate.

In all things, charity

Our goal is that all will be heard, respected and cared for. All will grow to bear the privileges and responsibilities of truth and justice in sexual attitudes and behaviour. In that sense, all will become winners.

For example, many believe that the best decision regarding sexual intercourse is to reserve it for the marriage relationship. At the same time, many are painfully aware of how this leaves out the single heterosexual and the homosexual.

They are concerned about the justice of this and how the sexuality of those people can be expressed in appropriate ways. I know there are no easy answers to this dilemma. I do pledge to search with all concerned for the best-considered solutions.

'Trial' to offer some humorous entertainment

"Trial by Jury" continues the comic opera tradition of concerts in the Rose Garden at Christ Church. Gilbert and Sullivan, those master spoofers of Victorian manners, will share the program with PDQ Bach's "Missa Hilarious." Both are works that affectionately reflect society's foibles and foolishness in a way that is possible only from a position of knowledge and talent.

Sir Arthur Sullivan sets his light and tuneful melodies to the tricky rhymes and patter songs of Sir William Gilbert. The partnership established a new and distinctive national form of operetta in England in the late 19th century. Those operettas that are still enjoyed today.

Gilbert trained as a lawyer, an experience that probably explains the fun he pokes at court room occupants and procedures in "Jury." In the jury box's a "ruffianly defendant," dealing with the plaintiff, a "broken-hearted bride." The learned judge presides over the proceedings that will settle a breach-of-promise case, and characters in consideration includes bridesmaids and barristers as well as witnesses, jury and a court usher.

"Missa Hilarious" is only one of the long lost works of PDQ Bach still being discovered by Peter Schickele, fictitious Professor of the Department of Music Pathology from the fictitious University of South M. Dakota at Hoople.

A deadpan clown and user of shameless puns and visual jokes in the slapstick style of Victor Borge, Anna Russell and Spike Jones, this Bach is a travesty of stuffy musicologists pretending to produce baroque music.

Schickele was born in 1934 and he boasts credentials from Swarthmore and Juilliard. His work includes not only satire, but also films and such Broadway successes as "Oh, Calcutta." Recent P.D.Q. Bach finds such as "Unbegun Symphony" and "The Seasonings" continue to be discovered.

Choirs and soloists take the garden stage under the direction of Frederic DeHaven, and will follow the paths of recent years established by "The Gondoliers," "The Mikado," "HMS Pinafore" and "Pirates of Penzance." Well known are such cast members as David and Jeanne Ludwig, Kathy Prost, Michael Pavolich, Raymond Jordan and James Gray. Earnest Richardson is Foreman of the Jury, David Bryant, Philip Gibbs, Keith Geyer and Glen Battjes are called to the jury box.

Among witnesses and bridesmaids are Helen Santiz, Miranda Ferrara, Ann DeHaven, Mary Lyle, Paula Short, Kathy Thivierge, Cindy Davis and Martha Gregory.

This Rose Garden concert is the final event in the 1986-1987 Christ Church music series June 14 at 7 p.m., rain or shine. Tickets are $8 each or $20 per family, and information is available from the church office (885-4841) 61 Grosse Pointe Boulevard.

Local brother is national president

Brother of Christian Instruction Joseph Martin, a native of Detroit, will be installed as president of the National Assembly of Religious Brothers at the 16th annual assembly in St. Louis, Mo., from June 18-21. He will serve a two-year term as president of the Chicago based organization.

A 1962 graduate of the now closed Austin Catholic Prep, he attended Our Lady Queen of Peace grade school in Harper Woods. He is the son of Joseph W. and the late Genevieve T. Martin of St. Martin de Porres Parish in Warren.

Brother Martin has recently completed a master of arts degree in culture and spirituality at Holy Names College in Oakland, Calif. He holds a bachelor of arts in English from Walsh College in Canton, Ohio, and an master of education from St. Michael's College in Winooski, Vt. In the fall he expects to have a campus ministry position at a college or university.

During the past five years Brother Martin has been involved in clown ministry as a member of the Holy Fools. He has conducted 15 training workshops and trainer over 400 people in clowning as a ministry to people in hospitals, nursing homes, orphanages, prisons and other institutions. In July he will attend the clown, mime, puppetry and storytelling convention sponsored by the Phoenix Power and Light Company at the University of Windsor.

He replaces Brother William Early, GHM, who completes his term of office. Brother Martin had previously been vice-president of the organization.

FACTS YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT PLASTIC SURGERY.

FACT 1: FREE CONSULTATION WITH A SURGEON IS IMPORTANT.
When it comes to cosmetic surgery, we operate a little differently at Cottage Hospital. For example, our physicians offer a free consultation. A time to discuss your private questions in a private setting. Call 881-1800 for details.

FACT 2: EXPERIENCE AND TRAINING MAKE A DIFFERENCE.
In Michigan, any licensed physician can put "cosmetic surgeon" on a business card. But at Cottage Hospital, your doctor has completed extensive post-graduate training, including a residency in plastic surgery or ophthalmology (ENT). All cosmetic surgeons don't meet these strict standards.

FACT 3: COSMETIC SURGERY HAS MANY FACES.
That's why besides face lifts (rhinoplasty, blepharoplasty, etc.) we perform breast contouring, liposuction, tummy tucks, and more. Often without an overnight hospital stay.

FACT 4: A HOSPITAL ENVIRONMENT IS REASSURING.
Whether or not your surgery requires a hospital stay, it's important to know the number one source of safety.

FACT 5: THE LUXURY OF A HOTEL IS YOURS.
At Cottage, you'll stay in a hospital that's actually hospitable. Our optional "Five Pointe Service" includes a special suite for cosmetic surgery patients and a VIP menu. You can even invite a guest to dinner.

Cosmetic surgery at Cottage Hospital is a service that repairs, restores, and improves your appearance. Call us at 881-1800.

An apple dessert a day keeps the munchies away

Elegant Eating

Apples shine as light desserts, snacks and garnishes. For a special treat, try a delicious apple bread that is good anytime, from breakfast to that midnight snack.

The following recipes come from the low-calorie, low-cholesterol, budgetwise kitchens of Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth.

Apple Pastries

So easy to pack in a lunch box or brown bag, these pastries are ideal for lunch at work or school.

DOUGH:

- 1-3/4 cups unbleached flour
- 3/4 cup whole-wheat flour
- 1 tsp. baking powder
- 1/4 tsp. salt

- 1/3 cup brown sugar
- 3/4 cup margarine
- Grated rind of 1 lemon
- Juice of 1/2 lemon

FILLING:

- 3 apples, coarsely grated
- 1/2 cup raisins
- Juice of 1/2 lemon
- 1/2 cup chopped walnuts
- 1 Tbsp. margarine
- 1/2 tsp. cinnamon
- 1/8 tsp. powdered cloves

Sift flours, baking powder, salt and sugar into a mixing bowl. With a pastry blender or mixer, cut in margarine until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Using a fork, beat egg with lemon rind and juice. Stir into mixture until it forms a ball. Turn out on a lightly floured board and knead a few times, until the dough is smooth and the mixture holds together. Divide into halves and chill.

Combine filling ingredients and stir briefly over heat. Chill.

Between sheets of waxed paper, roll out pastry ball into a 9-inch square. Place one square in a 9-inch square cake pan, pushing to fill out corners and pressing edges against pan. Spoon filling onto dough. Place top portion of dough over the filling and press edges to the bottom dough. Cut lines into dough to make 36 squares, 1-1/2 x 1-1/2 inches. Bake in a 375°-oven for 35 minutes until crust is browned. Cool, then cut at indentations and remove from pan. Cool before wrapping separately in waxed paper. They freeze well. Makes 36 squares.

Calories, about 290 per square. Cholesterol 0.

Raw Applesauce

- 1 pound tart apples, cored and cubed (about 3 cups) divided

- 1 thin slice of lemon with peel
- Plain low-fat yogurt for topping (optional)

In a blender or food processor, whirl one cup of apples with juice and lemon until smooth. Gradually add remaining two cups of apples and process until well blended and smooth. Serve topped with yogurt sprinkled with either a dash of nutmeg or cinnamon, if desired. Makes two cups.

Calories, about 84 per 1/2 cup serving. Cholesterol 0.

Broiled Cinnamon Apple Treats

- 1 medium-sized eating apple
- 1 teaspoon margarine
- 1 tsp. ground cinnamon
- 1 tsp. brown sugar, packed down

Heat broiler or use a toaster-oven. Cut apple in half, lengthwise. Scoop out core and fill each hole with 1/2 teaspoon margarine. Sprinkle cut surface with brown sugar and cinnamon which has been mixed together. Put apples, cut-side up, on a baking pan or dish. Broil five to seven inches from the heat, for five to seven minutes, until margarine melts and bubbles. Makes two servings.

Fried Apple Rings

- 6 medium apples
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup flour
- 2 Tbsp. margarine

Calories, about 25 per ring. Cholesterol 0.

Spiced Apple Rings

- 6 medium apples
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 Tbsp. red cinnamon candies

Core, pare and cut six apples in thick slices crosswise. Boil sugar and 1-1/2 cups water for five minutes, adding the red hots or cinnamon candies. Place the apples in a covered baking dish and pour the syrup over them.

Cover apples and bake in a 350°-preheated oven until apples are pink and tender. Serve as a border around meats. Makes about 30 slices.

Golden Apple Quick Bread

Legal assistants

"The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics continues to project the legal assistant career to be one of the fastest growing paraprofessions through the 1990s," according to Priscilla Hildum, director of Oakland University's Legal Assistant Program, now starting its summer term, June 22, on campus.

Individuals needing a headstart before fall toward a new paralegal career may enroll now by contacting OU's Division of Continuing Education, 370-3120, between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m., weekdays. A detailed brochure is available.

Approved by the American Bar Association, OU's evening program has provided training for more than 12 years for those seeking career changes, re-entry into the workplace, or marketable skills to supplement a college degree. The program trains paraprofessionals to function in the legal setting between the level of an attorney and secretary.

In conjunction with the program, a job referral service is operated for graduates. Although job placement cannot be guaranteed, hiring runs high with new positions potentially opening in private law offices, corporations and government agencies.

Training in the paralegal career may be completed in 18 months through OU's program. Exrollees receive on-the-job experience, serving an 80-hour internship.

Law Day celebrated

May 1, Law Day, was commemorated this year by the Grosse Pointe Law Auxiliary with special activities aimed at the young people in local schools. More than 20 attorneys volunteered their time to address social studies classes on the rights and responsibilities of young adults under the law and to give them career information.

In honor of Law Day, the auxiliary also presented its brass "Apple for Teacher" award to Dominican High School's Susan DeNardis for her exceptional achievements in the education field.

The group, dedicated to service and education in the area of law, has always had special emphasis on youth. This past year, under the leadership of Karen Winger, the group raised funds that were donated to the community's Safe Ride program, and to the Wayne County Juvenile Court special probation program.

The chairpeople for this year's Law Day activities were Amy Rowe and Toni Kelly. The following attorneys donated their time for the activities: Roger Mourad, David Barbour, Anthony Kenny, Gerald Gattorn, Dayna Milbrand, Gordon Gold, John Dwaihy, Sean Cueny, Kenneth MacLean, Pamela Reinke and Kelly Thompson of Grosse Pointe South were among the students listening to attorney Eugene Casazza's remarks in their social studies classes on Law Day.

Norm Rice, Patricia Schneider, Bruckner, Eugene Casazza, Alan Devine, Raymond Andary, George Cotichio, Herold Deason, Charles Berschback, Patrick and Peter O'Rourke. Social Studies department heads, including Conrad Behler of Grosse Pointe North and Carl Lord of Grosse Pointe South, helped in the scheduling of speakers.

Go ahead
sell your own home,
you riverboat gambler, you.

You might get lucky and save a buck or two. A lot of folks have tried to sell their own homes and succeeded. A lot more have just tried.

Most people realize that selling your own home can be a costly, time-consuming, even risky affair. And unless you're just naturally lucky, you need the help of a professional Realtor. He can save you a lot of time and headaches. For a lot of reasons.

If you're thinking about selling your own home, maybe you should consider some of them.

What's your price? The first thing a Realtor can do for you is recommend a fair and reasonable asking price.

Do it yourself and you will probably ask too much or too little. Either way, you lose.

And don't be fooled by the belief you know pretty well what your home is worth. Market demand, seasonality of sales, location and many other variables often alter your home's value.

A skilled Realtor knows all about these things. Most important, he knows people.

Don't Talk To Strangers. If you love talking to strange people at strange hours, by all means sell your home yourself. That "For Sale by Owner" sign in your front yard means you're fair game for everyone—even those passerbys who "Just kinda wanted to see what your place looked like."

That sign may not get all the prospects you want, either. You may have to advertise. And that means phone calls at all hours.

A Realtor can solve these problems. First of all, he will screen the prospects. He'll know their needs, desires and financial situation. And he'll know who is seriously looking for a new home and who is just looking.

That Beautiful Art. Okay, tiger. You're selling your own home. You know the needs and desires of your prospective buyers. And you know what to say, how to present your home to convince them. Right?

Wrong. Realtors are trained in the art of salesmanship. (And believe us, it is an art.) His study of sales techniques have shown him how to get the indecisive buyer to make up his mind; how to close the sale. In fact, he's gone to school to find out.

After all, selling is what it's all about. Formal Negotiations. What happens when a prospective buyer makes you an offer—one that's well below your asking price?

You're going to argue. And that's the worst thing you could do.

As a principal, you'll discover it's pretty hard to bargain with a buyer—to negotiate about such things as price, terms and possessions. Misunderstandings crop up. And those small disagreements can spoil a sale.

When a Realtor helps sell your home, he takes on the difficult task of negotiation. He's sort of a go-between and advisor. And he's objective. He'll tell you when the buyer is right. And he'll tell you when to stick to your guns.

He's usually a heck of a nice guy, too. He knows how to smooth over, or completely avoid, those sale-killing misunderstandings.

How To Shop For Money. Many prospective buyers don't know much about financing—how or where to get a mortgage.

Sell your home yourself, and there's not much you can do to help him.

A Realtor knows just about all there is to know about financing. He works very closely with all kinds of financial institutions. He knows their methods and requirements.

Very simply, he can help your buyer find the money he needs to buy your house.

Red Tape. Selling a house involves many details. Paperwork, title searches, finance arrangements. There are a hundred little things to be done.

Unless you have a mind like a computer, you'll need a Realtor to get everything done and keep it straight. He and your attorney will guide you through the tangle of details as painlessly and safely as possible.

Be It Ever So Humble. Crowded closets may make a home look lived in, but it doesn't do much for the prospective buyer. Neither does a dripping faucet, unkept lawn or loose doorknobs.

There are dozens of little things you can do to make your home saleable. A Realtor can show them to you (Some of them would never have occurred to you.)

Showmanship is all it's cracked up to be.

In Conclusion. You may be wondering why THE PHILIP F. GRECO TITLE COMPANY cares about how you sell your home. After all, we're in the business of insuring titles to real estate, not selling it. It's just that after serving title needs for many years WE'VE COME TO KNOW HOW IMPORTANT REALTORS ARE AND HOW MUCH THEY CAN HELP YOU.

We wanted you to know, too.

Competitiveness:
 Whose cup of tea?

We got into a discussion about sports, as two sports writers who are married to one another do, on occasion. The topic was competition; more specifically: Are boys more competitive than girls?

The fact that each of us was prepared to discuss this one to the bitter end proved that boy sports writers and girl sports writers are at least as competitive as each other, or as argumentative, anyway. But that's beside the point.

He brought the whole thing up when he expressed some surprise over a coach's observation that girls, on the whole, weren't as competitive as boys. And, that girls, as a rule, were a lot easier to teach, coach and be around. The coach in question is a man — if that matters — and he'd switched from coaching boys' baseball to girls' softball.

On the field, the coach said, the girls would almost naturally do what was expected of them once it was explained. The boys, however, would often resist grasping the notion of a particular play or set of skills, preferring to do it their own way, to the coach's great consternation. And off the field after the games or practices, the girls were perfectly content to return to "normal" (read that non-competitive) life, while the boys seemed to find it difficult to switch easily into non-competitive mode.

I'd seen that before, I told my sports-writing roomie. In fact, we two were perfect examples of just that sort of behavior. While both of us are extremely competitive by nature (I throw Monopoly boards up into the air, mid-game, when exasperated; he becomes a zombie trying to keep his concentration on bowling nights), I am usually the first one to back down in a competitive situation that gets out of control.

"Look, both of us are pretty competitive, right? But when things get hot, you know that I'd be the first to say: 'Hey, it's only a game.' You, being the sensible guy you are, would probably back down before most men, but you'd still hang in there longer than I would," I told him.

He agreed, pretty much. And then we tried to figure out why this occurs.

We wondered if young girls get involved in competitive sports simply because they enjoy them. It seems so, except in cases where the girl gets older and is able to hold her own with extremely skilled competition.

Do boys get involved in sports because it is more or less expected of males, we wondered?

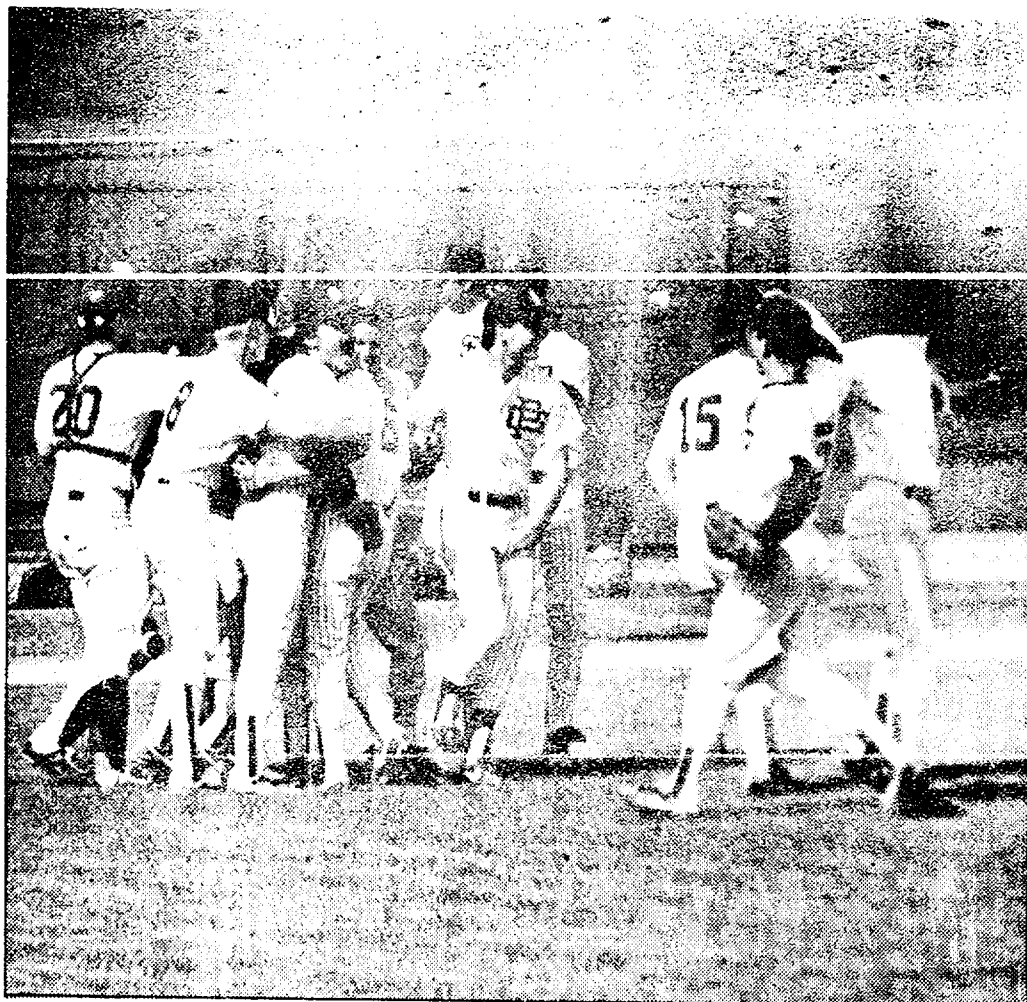

It seems that girls who get involved in competitive sports use a lot of that extra competitive energy up proving something to people who doubt they should get involved. Athletic girls seem to have to do a lot of reassuring to others about their femininity, even in this day and age. Boys, who are expected to be athletes, don't have to prove anything to anyone, it seems, except that they are macho enough to be involved in sports in the first place.

We weren't too sure we agreed about any of this. The thing that bothered us the most was that these were some pretty sweeping generalizations we were making. And if you don't know what happens when you make generalizations, ask Dennis Rodman or Isiah Thomas.

'An unbelievable feeling'

South High's Blue Devils make state baseball's
final four for the first time ever

A jubilant South High baseball team jumps for joy after Friday's 4-1 victory over Sterling Heights in the first game of the regionals.

By Peggy O'Connor
 Sports Editor

Let's put it this way: The South High Blue Devils are happy — but not satisfied — with their first-ever regional Class A baseball championship.

They're pleased that they beat Sterling Heights, 4-1, and Berkeley, 11-6, to win a berth in Friday's state semifinal ... but they'd be ecstatic with a victory over No. 1-ranked Midland Dow (42-3) and a spot in Saturday's finals.

"It's an unbelievable feeling. Everybody should be able to go through it at least once," said South coach Dan Griesbaum. "But it's like I told the kids: 'Be really happy with what you've already accomplished this season, but don't be satisfied yet.'" Griesbaum watched Midland Dow win its regional over Chippewa Valley last weekend, 9-2. He was impressed with Dow's offense. "They can really hit the ball and they'll score on you. I think that it will boil down to whether Marc (Marcus Wysocki) can hold their hitters. He can do it, if he bears down and pitches as well as he has all year. He's really only had one poor game this season," Griesbaum said.

"But he's got to keep the ball down and get it over the plate. We can't give up any walks or they'll kill us."

Dow's pitching is pretty fair, he added, but said that he thinks that South's potent offense should be able to put runs on the board. "They don't look unbeatable. And also, the pressure is on Dow. They're 42-3 and they've been ranked No. 1 all year long. People expect them to win it all and that puts a lot of pressure on a team," he added.

Not so with South. After losing all but two pitching wins from last season and having to face the 1987 schedule with just two starters with varsity experi-

Let the racing bug bite you this summer

"I had a great time! I never realized how much fun sailboat racing is," Barbara said after she had participated in her first race ever. "I was really glad the skipper kept me in the cockpit, tending the mainsail, instead of doing something else. I was really interested in everything that was going on. I was watching everybody work and wondering how all the commotion before the start was going to be resolved... when the gun went off and one of the crew said 'We're racing!' and I really felt a thrill run up my spine."

Barbara noted her thanks to skipper Bill Srigley for his patience and his gentle reminders of what to do and when to do it. "I really did the best I could, but I see that there is a lot for me to learn. It was a great first experience, a great introduction to sailboat racing."

Barbara admired the work of her fellow sailors. "We flew the spinnaker and those foredeck people worked hard. They really have to know what they are doing. They didn't make any mistakes that I could see. That chute looked just great to me. It was exciting seeing it fill with air."

"I have a much better understanding of what crewing aboard a race-boat means now. I think I could really get hooked on this racing business. I really did have a very good time and I learned a lot."

Barbara's inauguration into the sail racing circuit came in a Grosse Pointe Farms Boat Club series, which is run in June and August. "It's a great way for novice racers like me to be introduced to racing and offers skippers like Bill a training ground for new crew," Barbara explained.

"Bill was a great skipper. There was no yelling and all of us on the boat were there to do the best we could, yet learn what to do better next time. I really want to thank him for asking me to come along. This was my first racing experience and it really whet my appetite for more. I am looking forward to my next race."

The Farms Boat Club offers low-cost racing every Thursday during the months of June and August. The starting line is just off the Grosse Pointe Farms breakwall. The GPFBC offers jib and main classes as well as PHRF handicapping. For more information, call Paul Franks at 886-6368.

A good scout's work is never done

By Peggy O'Connor
Sports Editor

Last year at this time, Grosse Pointe's Neil Smith was preparing for one of his major duties as director of scouting-player procurement for the Detroit Red Wings: The National Hockey League draft.

Smith and his staff knew just how they were going to use the No. 1 pick overall, the silver-lining in that dark cloud which had been the Wings' worst season ever in 1985. They were going to pick Michigan State University forward Joe Murphy, and they did, despite many who wondered if they might have made a mistake by passing up hometown hero Jimmy Carson, last year's No. 2 pick.

Just a few days before the 1987 draft, some are still wondering. After all, didn't Carson finish among the leaders in rookie scoring? And didn't Murphy earn a quick, season-long banishment to the minors for his lack of maturity both on and off the ice?

"When you talk about Joe Murphy, you're talking about a player who three years ago was in midgets, two years ago was a Tier II junior and the next year, made a great leap to starting for the best in college hockey. To expect an 18-year-old to then make the transition to the NHL — which takes tremendous mental and physical capacity — is a bit much," Smith says.

"With Joe Murphy, there's no question that his game is up to NHL standards. He just has to bring his attitude around."

Critics often ignore the fact that these days, few draft picks make it to the NHL in their first season. They tend to look at how a No. 1 pick is spent and to gauge the success of that pick by whether the player winds up in the big leagues that season. It just doesn't work that way, Smith says.

"Look at Shawn Burr, for example. When we drafted him, the big problem was his skating. But then he also turned out to be a very young, very immature 18. It's hard to improve your skills, contribute to a hockey team and work well with others when you are that immature. It took Shawn two years of junior hockey to grow mentally and physically... now he's one of the most important figures on our team," Smith said.

What Smith and his staff look for when scouting and eventually drafting a player is a) overall talent; and b) how well that player is going to fit into the scheme of things on the hockey team. "We're not looking for the quick fix. We've scouted players in the past whom we've watched and said 'he'll play (in the NHL)', but we don't want him."

"In our situation with Jacques Demers, I could draft a guy who scored 60 goals, but didn't pick up his defensive assignment, or go into the corners, or was lazy... but I know he'll never play. Is it fair for me to ask Jacques to teach the kid to check his man or not to be lazy?"

"We have to be on the lookout for a talented player who fits our system."

That's what Smith and his staff will be searching for in this Saturday's draft, which will be held for the first time outside Canada and in the Joe Louis Arena. "We're looking for the best player available. There are six or seven in the group who stand above the rest and since we have the No. 11 pick, we'll have to hope that one of the seven isn't picked before our turn. If he is, we'll have to rely on our best judgement and take the best player available," Smith said.

That judgement is something Smith says he developed as he moved up hockey's organizational ladder. Toronto-born, Smith found himself looking for work when his minor-league hockey career ended in 1980. He took a sales position in New York City, but found himself missing hockey.

"Hockey was just bubbling inside me. I'd been drafted by the Islanders when Jimmy Devellano (now Detroit's general manager) was there and I asked him if he needed someone to go to Rangers' games and scope out NHL teams. I did it for free, but my work was evidently good enough for Al Arbour (then Islanders coach) to ask me to travel around as a scout," Smith recalled.

It got to the point where he did so much scouting, he didn't have time for his sales job. In 1981, the Islanders hired him as a full time scout and in the 1982-83 season, he followed Devellano to Detroit. He watched NHL and American Hockey League teams for Detroit and when Devellano's duties grew, Detroit began to phase Smith into running the scouting end of the job.

"It's a fabulous challenge for me professionally. Personally, I don't get much time for myself. You have to sacrifice that personal time for professional success sometimes."

"I came to Detroit because I felt that there was more potential for me here with Jimmy D trying to rebuild the Red Wings' organization. At that time, they envisioned that to get that done, it would take an eight-year plan, and that was done because eight years is what it had taken to build the Islanders."

"For the first two or three years it looked like we were making the right strides. Then last season was a disaster for a million different reasons. There were some mistakes made, but it was also a combination of misfortunes like good players all having awful years and injuries to key players."

And even though Smith was somewhat removed from the situation since players he scouted and drafted weren't on that 1985-86 team, he felt the pressure that was on the organization.

"If you are part of an organization, you feel a little self-doubt and shame when things go that wrong, no matter how far you are removed. Conversely, you feel proud when things go right."

And when things do go right like they did for the Wings this season, and when part of the reason is players that Smith scouted and drafted — like Burr, Joe Kocur and Bob Probert — a scout can enjoy a little inner feeling of success. It usually doesn't last long, though, Smith says.

"With this kind of job, you are always looking to see how you're going to be doing three or four years down the road. The team may be going well, but it's my job to see that it keeps going well by drafting good players. It's a challenge and if you're looking for recognition, this isn't the kind of job to take."

"There's frustration when you take criticism for something like drafting Joe (Murphy) or Shawn and they don't work out right away. You have to say to yourself 'Just wait.' But when they do come around, you're miles away in some little town looking for the next good player."

And that may be anywhere from southern Ontario to Norway. Smith's work is never done and his schedule is always hectic. He may be in Europe two or three times a year, watching players who may take years to develop and decide to make the move to North America, but are worth the wait, Smith says, because even those Europeans drafted in late rounds are often better than North American players who are chosen early.

Smith says he doesn't mind the pace, even as harried as it gets in mid-season. He relaxes in the off-season, after the June draft, by doing what a lot of people might find boring: Sitting at home in quiet, unassuming

Grosse Pointe and just letting the time go by without worrying about catching planes or finding tiny, out-of-the-way hockey rinks where the next Gretzky is reported to be playing. And gearing up for another run at finding the best players possible for the Red Wings.

"Of course, our main goal is a Stanley Cup for Detroit. And to be able to sit back and be proud because the Wings did it with the majority of players we've drafted. Then I could say to myself: 'You really did do it!'"

After all, hadn't we seen both boys and girls in this community throw competitiveness to the winds and miss big games while vacationing in Florida or Europe during school vacations? And hadn't we seen both boys and girls "fraternizing" with their crosstown foes after a North-South game?

Then there are the images of girls who are able to sit on the sidelines doing homework during a game, content and ready to participate when called upon and do their own thing the rest of the time: while boys seem to have to be "into" every game, even when they're not.

There are the images of hundreds of people in attendance at boys' games and only handfuls of devotees at important girls' meets.

And does the fact that the number of college scholarships available to women doesn't come close to matching the number offered to men say something about competition among the sexes?

We started wondering if competitiveness had nothing to do with sex and everything to do with the individual.

We never did come to a conclusion, but we did answer one question: Boy sports writers are just as competitive as girl sports writers. As least when they live in the same house.

What happens when we sweat?

The volume of sweat secreted through the skin increases dramatically during exercise to help dissipate heat that builds up in the muscles from the energy-producing metabolic reactions. When the sweat comes in contact with the skin, a cooling effect occurs ONLY as the sweat evaporates. The cooled skin then serves to cool the blood which has been shunted from the interior of the body to the surface.

But, when the humidity is high, it means that the water content of the air is high. For instance, during condition of 100 percent humidity, the air is completely saturated with water vapor and evaporation of fluid from the skin to the air is impossible. Thus, this important avenue for body cooling is closed. On the other hand, on a dry day the air can hold considerable moisture and the evaporation of fluid from the skin is quite rapid and body temperature is more easily controlled.

It is extremely important to control body temperature and to replace fluids lost through exercise. Years ago coaches would not allow players to drink water during a game or practice. It's a wonder there weren't more injuries or deaths. Today's coach encourages his athletes to drink extra water prior to exercise to provide some protection because it increases sweating during exercise and brings about a significant decrease in body temperature.

How much and what kind of fluid replacement?

Plain, cool water. Forget the fluids containing sugars as a replacement liquid. It is important to know that gastric emptying is retarded when the fluid ingested contains sugar, whether in the form of glucose, fructose, sucrose or any other form of sugar ending with "OSE."

According to Katch and McArdle in "Nutrition, Weight Control and Exercise," with intense exercise, even a small amount of carbohydrate (sugar) blocks fluid movement from the stomach into the intestinal tract. Glucose hinders water replenishment. It would be wise to consume 13 to 20 ounces of plain water 10 to 20 minutes before exercising in the heat and to continue to replace fluid (water) during the exercise.

Why is water so important?

It makes up about 80 percent of the liquid substance of all cells and from 40 to 60 percent of a person's body weight. Water makes up about 72 percent of the weight of muscle tissue and only 20 to 25 percent of the weight of fat. You can see how important proper water balance in the body is and how important it is to replenish the water lost through the skin when we sweat while exercising.

So, raise your glasses high and replenish those cells. Here's to your health!

GPSC starts summer season

The Grosse Pointe Swim Club has begun another summer season and swim club officials are hoping that the 1987 club will be as successful as those in the past.

Swim team members have won several local and national titles. Among them are Cammie Puidokas, 12, the 1987 state champion in the 50 and 100 short course breaststroke. Puidokas broke the GPSC's 11-12 record in those events; it had been held by Sandy Smith, 17, Michigan's fastest breaststroker in her age group.

Smith is the high school state champ in the 100 and the mid-west senior titlist in the 100 and 200 breast, according to GPSC coach Scott Teeters. Another GPSC product, 18-year-old Dickie Clarke, is a Miami of Ohio University freshman who was a finalist and Olympic trials qualifier in the 200 butterfly (1:47.70). Clarke has been in the GPSC's long course program since he was 12. And swimming to the fastest backstroke times ever by a Grosse Pointer in the U.S.S. event this year was Heidi Mader, who finished the 100 back in 1:00.40 and the 200 in 2:11.20. Mader is 1987's 15-16 state champion in the 100 back. She also qualified for the National Junior Olympics.

Swimmers interested in training with a highly-motivated group can get more information on the GPSC by calling 343-2178.

Support vs. sabotage

All the tell-tale signs are there. It is time you went on a diet. You avoid the scale like the plague and can't zip up your favorite pair of jeans, even if you are lying down. Worst of all, it's bathing suit time, and summer is too beautiful a season to stay wrapped up in your heavy sweats waiting for the first signs of fall.

When you do decide to diet, it is your choice alone and it is up to you whom you will entrust with the information. Dieting is a very personal undertaking because it is a venture which involves a change in you. Choose your supporters wisely.

When establishing a support system, make sure you know exactly what type of support you want. Is it just occasional compliments on your success, or do you want someone to exercise with you? Should they criticize when you pick up an "illegal" food or should they leave it to your discretion? People, no matter how much they care about you, cannot be intuitive to your every need. Therefore, to ensure you are receiving the best possible support, be specific regarding your individual needs.

The well-meaning friend

Friends bring so much joy to our lives, but when it comes to dieting, they can become either supporters or saboteurs. A slightly overweight friend can become jealous of your efforts and success. It may be that much of your friendship centers around food (e.g. going out for calorie-laden lunches, exchanging "heavenly recipes.") Your decision to diet changes those times together.

Explain that you would like to continue to spend time with your friend, but with a new and different emphasis. Suggest that you would like to set up a regular schedule of walking or biking together, any activity that does not focus on food or eating. These new activities will be better for both of you, and you will in turn be an incentive for your overweight friend.

There's the flip side of the coin — the tall, trim friend who's never had to diet. Take a good look at your friend. It may be that he is naturally thin, but it may also be that your friend has developed a lifestyle that includes a regular exercise program and healthful eating habits. If so, it can be advantageous to spend time with this friend to reinforce your own commitment.

The loving spouse

As with friends, spouses can be a great support or a horrendous saboteur. The best sabotage line on the market is probably, "You don't need to lose weight. I love you just the way you are." It is imperative that you convey how important this weight loss is to you, and that while you are doing it mainly for yourself, you also want to look good for your spouse.

It may be that it's entirely your spouse's idea that you go on a diet. You may feel pressured to lose those pounds. This "incentive" will get you about as far as the first temptation. Your own, personal motivation must act as a base for losing weight. Without that, your diet will fall apart like a house of cards with the first winds of criticism from your spouse. Communication is the key. Make it clear that you need support, not criticism.

The adoring mother

Who loves you more than your mother? In the past, that love may have been demon-

Cynthia Davila (right) of Grosse Pointe and Victoria Curley of East Detroit passed a written examination on physiology, anatomy, kinesiology, sports medicine and nutrition, as well as an examination of exercise technique. As a result, the pair of Super Shape, Inc. instructors has been certified through the Aerobics and Fitness Association of America. AFAA certification has become the hallmark of the professional exercise instructor; over 5,000 instructors in 34 countries have been certified. Davila and Curley, by the way, are also finalists in the 1987 Women's Aerobic Competition at Streamers in Sterling Heights.

The professional counselor

You may decide to participate in a formal program to help you lose weight. Be sure to check out the background of the different programs available before you sign up. A good program will have counselors who possess solid background and knowledge to help you lose weight and learn how to maintain that goal when you have reached it. A good counselor can offer the assistance and dedication you may need in support system.

Yourself

When it comes down to the wire, no one else can be responsible for your weight loss.

Recognition of achievements through goal-setting is the best way to build your support reserve. Set short term and realistic goals. Write them down so you can measure your success. You will be surprised how much it will help when you compare your weekly weight loss to your projected weekly goals.

Food for thought: If the body is the temple for the soul, how about sheltering it in a chapel, not a cathedral?

"That's not on the menu"

Many people deprive themselves of eating out when they are on a diet because it is such a hassle. The menu contains too many wonderful dishes, or you hesitate because you don't like to draw attention to the fact you are on a diet. Well, there's no reason to avoid restaurants. With today's emphasis on lighter and natural foods, you can have a lovely evening away from the stove and still stay on your diet.

Most important to your success is not allowing the waiter or waitress to intimidate you. Order it the way you want it. That doesn't require you to be

North sports

North baseball season ends; Miller to play for East All-Stars

Mike Miller

The baseball season ended on May 30 for the varsity squad at North High when they fell to Grosse Pointe South, 4-1, at the districts. But the baseball year isn't quite over for Norseman shortstop Mike Miller.

Miller has been selected to participate in the Michigan High School Baseball Coaches Association All-Star game at Tiger Stadium on Thursday, June 18, at 11 a.m. He will play for the East All-Stars.

It was a banner season for Miller, who was named to the All-Bi-County first team, the All-District first team and wound up as the Bi-County's Most Valuable Player.

"Mike is one of the greatest kids to play athletics at Grosse Pointe North," said Miller's coach, Frank Sumner. "The 'Kid' has done everything and more, of whatever had been asked of him. Grosse Pointe North will truly miss Mike Miller," Sumner added.

Miller's team had an outstanding campaign this year. North finished with a 24-9 record and its eighth Bi-County championship in nine years. The Norsemen also won the prestigious Alpena Tournament for the third straight year.

Leading hitters for North included Miller, junior outfielder Chuck Thomas, senior infielders Pat and Pete Kilcline, and junior catcher Steve Neiman.

Thomas led North in at-bats (124), runs (38), hits (53) and tied in homers with Miller and Dave Kopitzke (three). He also led the team in batting with a .427 average. Miller batted .400 and led North with 37 RBI.

Pat Kilcline hit .385 with 31 RBI and had 20 stolen bases. Neiman finished with a .341 average, 35 RBI and a team-leading 12 doubles, 29 walks and 202 put-outs. Pete Kilcline batted .366 with 27 RBI.

Pacing the North pitching staff was junior lefthander Rick Regalado. Regalado won nine of 10 decisions, posting a 1.89 ERA. He struck out 85 batters in only 70 1/3 innings. Senior Rob Marshall (5-4, 3.77 ERA), junior Ed Wood (4-1, 2.78 ERA) and junior Russell Rice (5-2, 2.81) were the workhorses of the North staff.

Feeling

ence, South was not an early favorite to make the final four.

"I really felt we'd be better than we looked on paper, but to have said we'd be in the final four would have been a rash statement," Griesbaum said. "These kids have performed beyond expectations. And the big difference going into the semis is that I don't think they feel any pressure. They weren't expected to do a lot so there's no pressure. They're very relaxed and confident."

Griesbaum credits last summer's Connie Mack League and Mickey Mantle League play for giving the current South players the jump on the varsity season. It has helped players like Marty Saad and Doug Lucas improve that much more. Griesbaum says. And they, like the rest of South's team seem to be peaking at just the right time.

"Anything can happen in a state playoff game. That's just the way baseball is. We're going to go up there and give it our best shot," Griesbaum added.

Game time Friday is at 5:30 p.m. at Lansing's Municipal Field. The final is set for 5:30 p.m. at Michigan State University.

Leading the hitting attack on Friday will be junior third baseman Doug Lucas (.421), junior second baseman Marty Saad (.397) and senior shortstop Sean Bruce (.369). Between them, they have accounted for 124 of South's 302 hits and have scored or driven in 213 of the Devils' 282 runs.

Lucas also leads South in doubles (15), home runs (four), RBI (41) and on-base percentage (.523). Saad has the most hits (46) and has scored 37 times and had 36 RBI. Bruce has scored 49 times and has 27 steals.

Wysocki, a junior, leads the pitching staff with 119 strikeouts in 74 innings. He has given up 35 hits and 43 walks in that span, while amassing a 10.1 record and a 1.04 ERA. Senior Scott Tucker is second for South with an 8-1 mark and a 2.18 ERA.

Wysocki earned the win in the regional opener against Sterling Heights. He limited the Stallions to two hits, struck out 10 and walked seven. Sterling Heights left eight men on base. Lucas drove in two runs on two doubles and Bruce added a run on a sacrifice fly; he also doubled. Dan Cimini and Mark Carl notched the winners' other hits.

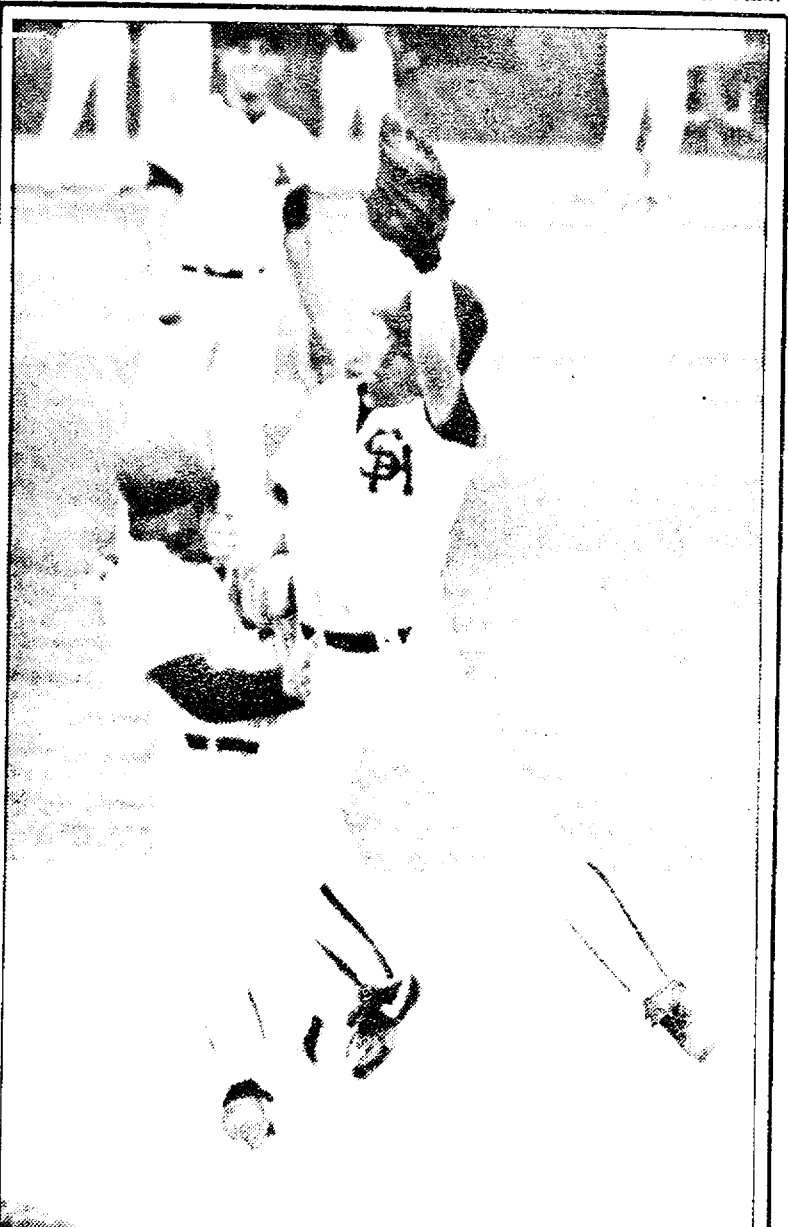

The Devils racked up 13 hits enroute to that 11-6 championship victory over Berkley. Berkley also committed seven errors. Bruce and Saad had three hits and two RBI apiece, including Bruce's lead-off homer in the first innings. Cimini and Dave Arnold contributed doubles. Tim Nugent, Mike Pauli, Bryan Jones and Lucas added hits.

Tucker was credited with the victory; John Joliet came on in relief in the fifth. Joliet registered five strikeouts in his three-inning stint on the mound.

Tigers first half champs

With the completion of the first half of play in the Farms-City Babe Ruth League, the Tigers continued their winning streak of six games, running their overall record to 7-1. Following the Tigers were the Blue Jays (5-3), the Red Sox (3-5) and the Orioles (2-7).

The Tigers opened last week with a 12-1 victory over the Cardinals. Brian Letscher was the winning pitcher with relief help from Mike Oliver. Tiger bats were hot, led by Khoenle's three hits and two each from Letscher, Suzor and Leins. Robert Reynolds had a hit and scored two. Dudeck's triple was the Cards' only hit.

The Tigers continued inter-league play by beating the Woods Cubs, 6-1, on a two-hitter by Tom Moellering and Mike Montagne. Moellering helped his own cause with three hits; Montagne had two hits, including a long double. Brett Riccinto also had a hit. Scott Schorer and Kevin Endres shared pitching chores for the Cubs.

The Tigers shut out the Plymouth-Canton Traveling All-Stars, 7-0. Oliver got the win as he and Montagne gave up just one hit. Ed Suzor and Rob Khoenle each had two-run doubles. Khoenle, Suzor and Letscher had two hits each.

The Athletics topped the Woods-Shores Rangers, 13-11. Darren Havern struck out one and got the win for the Athletics. Ed Kinnaird struck out four in relief. Tim Nolan doubled, Keith Baer had three singles and Matt DeBets added two singles. For the Rangers, Fleming was three-for-five, including a double.

The Indians trounced the Angels, 19-1. Alex Turner and Mark Bonnani pitched the Indians to the win, giving up only an RBI-single to Mike Bell. Bill Staats and Bell shared the Angels' pitching chores. Dan Grundman led the Indians with a two-for-four day, including a triple and six RBI. Fred Turner was two-for-four, Chris Harwick had an RBI double, Bonnani had two RBI and a stolen base and Turner had three steals.

The Indians downed the White Sox, 12-4. Harwick went two-for-three with a triple and three RBI, Turner and Grundman each had two hits and an RBI and Bonnani was two-for-four. Pat Labadie played well on defense. For the Sox, Tim Sacka and Ted Bidigare each had an RBI single; Jason Gaca also had a hit. Jeff Heisner and Gaca pitched for the Sox.

The Indians defeated the Angels, 8-6. Grundman had an RBI double and Harwick also collected an RBI double. Turner and Jeff Jogan had Indians' hits. The Angels' Mike Bell had an RBI double and John Bednarcek also had a hit. Pitchers Alex Turner, Bonnani and Fred Turner held the Angels to two hits. The Angels' Mike Stevens, Staats and Bell gave up five hits.

In the Prep League, the Yankees topped the Expos, 13-8. Scott Van Almen and Jay Berschback limited the Expos to four hits. Berschback pitched 4 1/2 innings of relief and got the win. Van Almen had two hits and scored three for the Yanks. Hoye, Minadeo and Keating also had hits for the Yankees; Hoye scored four and Minadeo added three steals. Pierce, Adams and Korzekiewski pitched for the Expos.

'The Untouchables:' A riveting, violent film

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

Fifty years ago in Chicago, government agent Elliot Ness vowed to drive out gangster Al Capone. In the movie based on those times, "The Untouchables," Ness is played by Kevin Costner and Capone by Robert DeNiro.

Prohibition was the law of the land. For people like Capone, it was an opportunity to create an empire built in corruption and violence.

He grew rich and powerful as he filled trucks and warehouses with forbidden booze to be distributed to speakeasies. He was in full control and those who tried to set up rival operations soon felt the wrath of his displeasure.

Out of the story of Elliott Ness and Al Capone, Director Brian De Palma and prize-winning playwright and screenwriter David Mamet have constructed a movie that is epic in scope and perfect in technique.

The characters and episodes are larger than life and there are no wasted words or gestures. It is a sweeping narrative that gains strength from its mythic treatment and the message that a fulfilled destiny involves death and loss of innocence.

Along with the violence there is elegance. The film opens with an overhead shot of an opulent room where DeNiro is getting ready to go out. He gives orders to his minions who hover around him. The scene sets the tone for his royal manner of life. His every appearance on the screen shows him impeccably attired and always in rich surroundings.

Ness' reception at the police station is not cordial and when he issues an ultimatum to the force that they obey the law and not drink in private, it becomes less cordial.

His first raid is a disaster that is featured on the front page of the newspaper. Disillusioned, Ness assembles his own task force — Jim Malone (Sean Connery) a street-wise beat cop, George Stone (Andy Garcia), a rookie, quick of temper and quick on the draw, and Oscar Wallace dressed in white. He is truly the Angel of Death.

The cast of "The Untouchables" is superb. There is not one character that does not stand out. Costner went into the film practically unknown. He comes out a new star. His good looks, endearing gawkiness, and his screen presence assure his promising future.

Sean Connery is nothing less than wonderful. His down-to-earth methods, his blunt but valuable advice and the humor he injects into the film make him a standout.

DeNiro moves into his bad-guy role with glee and professional polish. He is a memorable Al Capone. He is as sleek and elegant as a leopard and just as dangerous.

"The Untouchables" rivets your attention from the first scene and holds it to the last segment.

Film

Wallace carries a ledger around trying to convince Ness that the expedient way to nail Capone is on income tax evasion. When he is ignored, he shoulders a shotgun and joins the group on their forays.

Violence abounds.

If there is anyone more dangerous than Capone, it is Frank Nitti. Cunningly De Palma has him

'Harry' will capture your heart

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

"Harry and the Hendersons" is one of the most shrewdly calculated movies that will hit a screen this summer. Every chuckle and every tear was no doubt planned in a board room somewhere for ultimate impact. But "Harry" is also one of the most pleasing experiences you'll likely have at the movies during the long summer season.

In other words, all those emotional calculations paid off.

Given the formula, it would be hard not to make a movie which captures the hearts of moviegoers of all ages. Harry is actually just a friendly name for Bigfoot, the legendary Sasquatch monster who lives in the Great Northwest. The Hendersons are a typical family who fall into an atypical situation: Harry shows up in their kitchen. The circumstances — a potentially hostile visitor turning out to be cute and lovable — is classic. It was used effectively in Steven Spielberg's "E.T." No wonder then, that Spielberg's production company, Amblin Entertainment, is behind this piece.

Before long, the voiceless Harry is communicating philosophical lessons to the family — like respect for all life and the impact of truly important relationships on the human condition.

Don't get the wrong idea though. "Harry and the Hendersons" is not a deep film aimed at the intellect of its audience. On the contrary, the piece almost completely concerned with reaching the audience on an emotional level. Viewers will find themselves laughing constantly, such as when Harry learns how to sit, makes some head room for himself in the family car, and gets the family through a traffic jam by using his generic yelp to simulate a police siren. Indeed, this is the type of comedy that will appeal to defenses will be dropped. It's that simple. Harry catches your funnybone — and then your heart.

The cast is good, especially since most of the actors have never tried such mainstream comedy before. John Lithgow is the father of the family. It's obvious he had a good time with this project. And Melinda Dillon, best known as Barry Guiler's distraught mother in "Close Encounters of the Third Kind," is also quite obviously up to the matters at hand.

There's little more to say about this cut-and-dried picture. It follows an old formula to the letter. It hits movie theaters at a time when people are yearning for syrupy emotion and light humor. And it achieves every goal it set for itself. There's not much more to ask for from a movie. "Harry and the Hendersons" leaves the audience with nothing but joy and a warm feeling.

Hollywood, take note. If a formula picture is to be made, this is how it's done.

Film

everybody. Little ones appreciate the simplicity of the situations as much as adults do.

On the other side of the coin, the movie is unabashed in its quest for tears. So much so, in fact, that there are two pseudo-climaxes in the picture, both of which will prompt more than a few handkerchiefs to be pulled in the audience. Harry has cuter eyes than a two-week-old puppy, and he has brains to back them up. The first time he looks directly into the camera and raises his eyebrows in a pleading way, all

Book Of The Week AT GROSE POINTE Book Village

We would like to share our most recent reading with you

FIRST BORN by Doris Mortman

In the prologue of FIRST BORN, a mother dies of cancer at the age of 40 in 1939. Her bereaved husband asks that each of their five children name their first born girl Frances Rebecca after their mother. FIRST BORN is about these daughters and their parents, beginning in 1968:

"Jimmy" discovers who her real father is, and strives to be recognized as his daughter. "Cissie" is a top notch fashion designer, successful, wealthy, and married to a man whose life is politics. "Frankie" is the most beautiful teen model in the world with a mother who rules her life and dictates her every move. "Becca" is unattractive, power hungry, and angry.

The characters weave in and out of each others' lives. There are triumph, disaster, trust, betrayal, and mystery. For saga lovers, FIRST BORN will be marvelous summer reading.
