Psychiatrist helps to unlock secrets of physician suicide

Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

Because doctors must become good at blocking out the pain of their patients, they also tend to block out their own pain and suffering. And a doctor who blocks his or her own emotional pain may become a candidate for suicide.

After years of agitation and concern about physician suicide, the American Medical and the American Psychiatric associations agreed to do a joint study on the problem.

Douglas A. Sargent, M.D., J.D., a Grosse Pointe Farms psychiatrist, helped to head the study, which was recently reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Sargent said the purpose of the study of some 104 families of doctors who had killed themselves was two-fold. Researchers wanted to discover the risk factors connected with suicide and perhaps learn the clues that those close to the physician might recognize and use to detect the situation and diffuse it.

"The main hypothesis of the study was that suicide is detectable and preventable," the 61-year-old doctor and professor of law said. "The earlier the problem is diagnosed and treated, the more likely suicide is to be prevented."

Sargent said the group decided it didn't want to study suicide in the abstract from numbers. They wanted to learned about the problem first-hand from families, friends and colleagues of doctors who had committed suicide.

After a preliminary pilot study, the joint medical and psychiatric panel began a study based on interviews with the survivors of 142 suicides and 101 controls. The survey gathered information regarding the physicians' lives.

What the study found was that suicide-prone doctors often signal their intentions; are likely to be aware of emotional problems and may seek treatment; depression is a major risk factor; and that a difficult childhood and troubled family of origin were common.

Sargent said that while physicians are good at caring for others, they are not very good at taking care of themselves or taking care of each other. He added that often doctors are ashamed of being mentally impaired due to emotional problems, and may not seek professional help because they don't want to lose the esteem of their colleagues.

"At first doctors make very bad patients," Sargent said. "Once they get into treatment, they do very well as patients. Sometimes it takes a Mack truck to get them into treatment."

Sargent said the study found that suicide among male doctors is about the same as it is among white males over the age of 25. Female physicians, however, have about the same rate as male physicians, when in the

Students to canvass Woods for city-wide assessment

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Woods property owners will be asked to allow field representatives into their homes or to provide information about their homes as part of a city-wide reassessment program. Mark Christiansen, comptroller/assessor, said it has been 20 years or more since property has been reappraised and city records brought up to date.

"Our purpose is to bring equity among homeowners," said Christiansen. "We want fairness. We're not trying to generate additional taxes."

Some residents have questioned the city's right to enter their homes, to invade their private property, even to require return of a questionnaire concerning the value of their homes.

Several citizens have questioned the completeness and fairness of a letter that has been sent to Woods property owners advising them of the reassessment program and procedures. According to one Woods resident, the city's letter is misleading because it doesn't inform citizens about their right to refuse to allow the city representatives entry into their homes. The letter, he said, is worded so that it implies this is a routine, acceptable, legal procedure, and the home owner must comply.

Woods attorney George Catlin said the workers will ask permission to enter the home and ask permission to take measurements. "If these requests are denied," he said, "that's the end of it." Those residents who are either not at home or who refuse to admit the representatives will receive a questionnaire about improvements and additions to their homes.

If the city told citizens they did not have to let the representatives in, Catlin said, a percentage would not let them in. "In the long run, this would not be beneficial to the people of Grosse Pointe Woods," he said. The reassessment would have to be done on the basis of averages, a method that is not as fair or as accurate as first-hand observation.

Twenty-four young people have been hired by the city to collect data for the reassessment program. The young people — all college students and most of them Grosse Pointers — have begun the task of sending letters, visiting homes and updating field sheets for each home.

The purpose of the 10-week project, according to Christiansen, is to review and verify any changes, additions, improvements or deletions from homes and to update field sheets so that the property can be fairly assessed.

The field representatives will visit homes in pairs, Christiansen said, and will identify themselves with a photo ID.

Teams have already completed a test area bounded by Bournemouth, Mack Avenue, Littlestone and the western boundary of Grosse Pointe Woods. Gerard McNamara, administrative aide for the Woods and supervisor of the project, said cooperation by residents has been good so far.

Christiansen emphasized that the city's aim is a fair distribution of the tax burden, not additional tax money. "If reassessment figures show a 10 to 15 percent increase, for instance," he said, "we would have to reduce the millage rate by 10 to 15 percent so that we don't generate more taxes. That's the law.

"The city council has the right to go beyond this amount, but only after a public hearing."

Baby saved by Heimlich maneuver

A Grosse Pointe Woods public safety officer probably saved the life of a six-month-old boy.

A call of a baby choking came in shortly after 3:30 p.m. Thursday, June 11. Sgt. James C. Fowler was on patrol and arrived at the Van-Ryssghen residence before medical technicians arrived. Fowler, who is also a trained emergency medical technician, saw that the baby had already turned blue and found that the baby's airway was obstructed.

Fowler took the baby and performed the Heimlich manuever. The infant spit out a teething biscuit that had caught in his throat.

"If the baby had to wait the few extra minutes for the ambulance to arrive, he could have died," Public Safety Director Jack Patterson said.

City approves outdoor tables, ice cream sales on trial basis

Shoppers in the Village will soon be able to buy an ice cream bar from an outdoor stand at Kercheval and Notre Dame. And they'll be able to sit at tables next to the Cafe Le Chat on Notre Dame and watch the passing parade. They'll also be able to sit at tables outside of the Caffe Trevi on Fisher Road.

The Grosse Pointe City Council approved the requests by the three businesses on a temporary and indefinite basis until city officials develop a policy regarding such requests.

Following its action, Beverly Leinweber of the Grosse Pointe Village Association commended the council for "doing things to make the Village nicer, to make it a place where people can sit and read a paper."

The tables and chairs at the Cafe Le Chat and Caffe Trevi will not be used for serving food; they will be considered street furniture where anyone can sit.

The sale of packaged ice cream bars will be handled by Johan and Gina Grobbens, who operate the outdoor flower stand in the village plaza on the corner of Kercheval and Notre Dame. Grobbens showed the council pictures of the ice cream cart, a self-contained unit that costs about $2,000 and that he will customize to blend in with the surroundings.

Leinweber told the council that "the board of directors feels the more outside vendors, the better for the Village. We should have pretzels, roasted chestnuts in the winter, like Toronto. We're going to get cosmopolitan here."

If a problem develops at any of the locations, approval will be withdrawn, according to the council.

Pointer of Interest

Salvatore Favazza

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

Salvatore Favazza knows everybody.

It's his business and his pleasure.

"I go to every wedding, baptism, funeral in Detroit and Windsor," he said.

Actually, Favazza focuses his attention on a segment of the immigrant population. He is consular attache at the Italian consulate, a position that deals with social and cultural aspects of the Italian community.

The job oozes out of its business hours and takes up much of his free time too. And it's his favorite topic.

Salvatore Favazza

"He loves to talk about it," says Timoteo Nasso, a consular attache and Favazza's interpreter for the day. "He gets carried away with it."

Clutching a cigar butt and waving his hands, Favazza talks about Italy and Italians. He's gotten good at it and can recount the entire history of Sicily from the invasions by the Greeks and Arabs to the present during lunch.

Favazza and his family have lived in Grosse Pointe Woods for 10 years, long enough to see the children graduate from North High School. Soon after they arrived, Favazza began to work to have Italian taught in the Grosse Pointe schools. He and other activists gathered about 70 families of the Grosse Pointe Italian community together to make their case.

Now students may take as many as four years of the language, though school officials say the enrollment fluctuates and seems to be on a downward trend. Some students may take the classes more out of parental pressure than personal interest, officials say.

That is a problem Favazza sees frequently among the immigrant community. Older family members become alarmed as younger ones seem more at-

Henry T. Bodman

Memorial services will be held at noon Tuesday, June 23, 1987, at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church for Henry T. Bodman. Mr. Bodman died June 16 at Henry Ford Hospital.

Mr. Bodman received his bachelor of science in math, cum laude, from Princeton University in 1928.

He joined National Bank of Detroit in 1933. In 1941 he was granted leave to serve in Washington with the Office of Production Management and was commissioned in the Army. He left the service in 1945 with the rank of colonel. He was appointed by President Harry S Truman to the board of directors of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Mr. Bodman returned to Detroit in 1949, was elected to National Bank of Detroit's board of directors in 1953, named president in 1958, and elected chairman of the board and CEO in 1964.

Following his 1969 retirement, he served as a member of the board until 1974.

He was president of the Association of Reserve City Bankers in 1957-58 and also served as director of several corporations, including National Steel, S.S. Kresge, Burroughs, Michigan Bell Telephone, Wyandotte Chemical and Cunningham Drug Stores.

Mr. Bodman worked with the Earhart Foundation, the Matilda Wilson Fund, the American Enterprise Institute, the Hoover Institution at Stanford University, the Tax Foundation in New York and Henry Ford Hospital.

He is survived by his wife, Marie-Louise McMillan Bodman; a daughter, Thayer Bodman Cluett of Toronto; a son, Richard S. Bodman of Washington D.C.; a sister, Mrs. William K. Muir; and eight grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Clarence S. Livingood Education Fund at Henry Ford Hospital, 2799 West Grand Boulevard, Detroit 48202 or to Children's Hospital of Michigan, 3901 Beaubien, Detroit 48202.

Arrangements were handled by the David M. Hamilton Funeral Home in Birmingham.

Adam C. Cook

A memorial service for Adam C. Cook, 82, was held June 13, 1987 at Grosse Pointe United Church. Mr. Cook died May 20 at Georgian East Nursing Home.

He was born in Brooklyn, N.Y., graduated from Polytechnic Preparatory Country Day in Brooklyn and received a bachelor of philosophy from Wesleyan University in Middletown, Conn.

Cook moved to Grosse Pointe in 1943, the year he joined Beauty Counselors, Inc. as director of purchasing. When Cosmetic Laboratories, a subsidiary of Beauty Counselors, was incorporated in 1947, Mr. Cook was named president and he held that position until his retirement in 1967.

He was a member of Lochmoor Club, the Grosse Pointe Senior Men's Club, Michigan Senior's Golf Association, Grosse Pointe United Church and he was a life member of the St. John Hospital Guild.

Survivors include his wife, Beatrice; a daughter, Judith Friend; four grandchildren, David, William, Jennifer and Barbara; and a great-grandson, Matthew.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Grosse Pointe Public Library or to the charity of one's choice.

Arrangements were handled by the A.H. Peters Funeral Home.

Hattie F. Schultz Helm

Services were held Saturday, June 13, 1987 at the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home for Hattie F. Schultz Helm, 87, of Grosse Pointe Park. Mrs. Helm died June 11 at Bon Secours Hospital.

She was born in Detroit and was a homemaker.

She is survived by her husband, George H.; a daughter, Gwendolyn Bates; and two grandchildren.

Burial was at Elmwood Cemetery.

Arrangements were handled by the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home.

Grow

Robert John Grow

A memorial service for Robert John Grow, 77, of Grosse Pointe and Paradise Valley, Ariz., was held Friday, June 12, 1987 at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church. Mr. Grow died June 9.

He attended Dartmouth College and was a graduate of the University of Michigan. He was president of the Dartmouth Club of Detroit for two years. He served in the U.S. Army, achieving the rank of lieutenant colonel and receiving the Bronze Star and Legion of Merit for military service. He helped plan the D-Day invasion.

As member of a pioneer Detroit insurance family, Mr. Grow was the retired president of Grow, Keller & Freese, Inc., a Detroit agency he co-founded with his brother, J. Alfred "Skip" Grow, Jr. Mr. Grow was the agency's only president from 1955 until it was acquired by Fred S. James & Co., in 1971. Since 1978, Grow was a special consultant to the Frank B. Hall Company in Detroit.

He was president of the Detroit Association of Insurance Agents in 1963, president of the Michigan Association of Insurance Agents in 1969, and served as Michigan's national director to the Independent Insurance Agents of America from 1970 until 1984.

An avid golfer, Mr. Grow served as president of Lochmoor Club in 1969. As a senior member of Bayview Yacht Club, he supported the Canada's Cup efforts. He was a former ruling elder of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church and chairman of the Kenny Rehabilitation Foundation.

Survivors include a daughter, Eleanor "Tuppy" Grow; five nephews and three nieces. He was predeceased by his wife, Janet Bell Grow.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Robert J. Grow Memorial Scholarship Fund, c/o Independent Insurance Agents of Michigan, 721 North Waverly Road, Lansing, Mich. 48917 or to the Kenny Michigan Rehabilitation Foundation, 21700 Northwestern Highway, Suite 1190, Southfield, Mich. 48075.

Elizabeth L. Jacob, M.D.

Services for Elizabeth L. Jacob, M.D., were held Wednesday, June 10, 1987 at the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home. Dr. Jacob died June 5 at Bon Secours Hospital.

She was born in Detroit and was one of the first woman podiatrists in the state of Michigan. She practiced on Detroit's east side for more than 30 years.

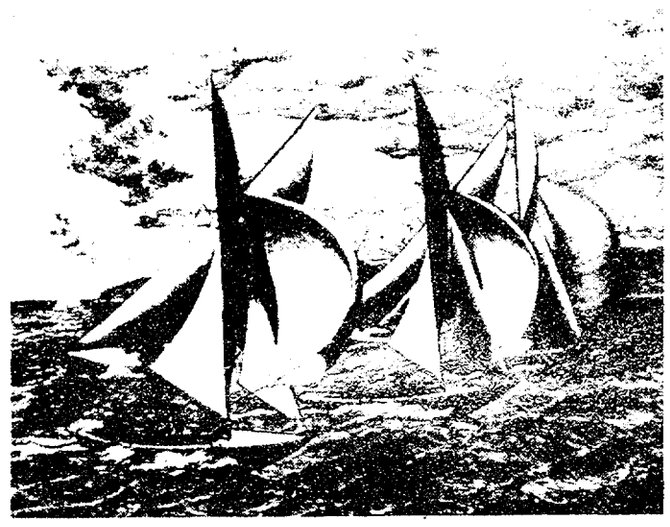

In recent years she divided her time between her homes in Florida and Mount Clemens. She was a member of the Altrusa Club, the Detroit Yacht Club and the Hibernian Club.

Survivors include two sisters, Ellennora Klein and Ilene Howard; two brothers, Stephen and Eugene; several nieces and nephews; 30 grandnieces and nephews; 23 great-grandnieces and nephews; and her dear friend, Aletha Flynn. She was preceded in death by a sister, Mary Hakenjos.

Burial was at Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Arrangements were handled by the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home.

Park to contract rubbish collection

By Pat Paholsky
News Editor

Grosse Pointe Park is getting out of the rubbish-collecting business. The service, handled by city DPW employees, will be taken over by a private contractor July 1.

The council awarded a one-year contract to Painter-Ruthenburg, Inc. of Inkster for $217,464. That includes residential and commercial pick-up.

The city will save from $50,000 to $75,000 the first year, depending on staffing, according to Comptroller Dale Krajniak. "Through attrition, we hope to reduce labor costs in the city," he said.

The current annual operating costs of rubbish collection, including full- and part-time labor plus overtime, fringe benefits, gas and oil, repairs and maintenance and vehicle replacement and insurance, is $340,929, according to a report submitted to council members.

No full-time DPW employees will be laid off, according to City Manager John Crawford. Those employees responsible for rubbish collection will be used to provide other services, such as sewer and catch basin cleaning, curb replacement, sidewalk repairs, street maintenance, buildings and grounds maintenance, city parking lot maintenance, street-sweeping, snow plowing leaf pick-up and tree trimming and tree spraying.

The workers are not happy with the changes, according to Tom Schenkel, DPW employee and chief steward. They switched unions earlier this year, voting to discontinue their association with AFSCME and join the Teamsters. Their current contract expires June 30 and the union and city are in negotiations now. There are 19 DPW employees plus four clerical staff who also voted to join the Teamsters.

Painter-Ruthenburg will offer employment to any Park worker, Ledyard Ruthenburg told the council June 8. All employees are put on a 90-day probation and the starting salary is $7 an hour, he said.

Along with the contract for services, Painter-Ruthenburg agreed to buy four rubbish vehicles from the city for $198,000. The city will retain one vehicle with a plow for snow removal.

If the service is not satisfactory, the city has the option in six months to one year to buy back its vehicles, Mayor Palmer Hennan said.

The company provides service for Harper Woods, Garden City, Wayne, Westland, Plymouth, Taylor, Allen Park and other communities, Crawford said. "I checked several communities and have favorable reports -- no complaints without exception."

The city has been trying to privatize its rubbish collection for about eight years, Crawford said, but there wasn't enough savings to warrant a change up to now. He said private contractors have been decreasing costs while municipal costs have continued to increase. "Because of the existing age level of the municipal employees and those eligible for retirement in three years, it was desirable once again to obtain bids from contractors."

The service will remain the same, according to the contractor.

Farms mayor says library parking controversy may be solved

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

Mayor Joseph Fromm told the Farms council that a subcommittee looking into the matter of a parking variance for Central Library may have reached a solution to the controversey that will meet with approval by the school board.

Fromm told the council at the beginning of its regular meeting Monday night that the subcommittee met last week and feels solutions to the parking problems may have been reached.

Fromm would not elaborate on the possible solutions, but requested that the council meet as the zoning board of appeals at a special meeting Monday, June 29, at the request of the school board.

School officials have been upset over the Farms' reluctance to approve a parking variance for a proposed expansion of the library. The Farms parking ordinance would require many more parking spaces if the library were to expand. School officials and proponents of the library expansion have argued that the expansion would be to give the library more space and wouldn't necessarily prompt more useage by library patrons, therefore, the need for more parking wouldn't be critical.

"I am convinced that the proposal will meet with approval by the school board," Fromm told the council. Two council members said that they would not be able to attend the June 29 special meeting, and Fromm said that copies of the proposal would be available within the next few days, so those council people could have input into the process prior to the meeting with the school board.

Following the meeting, Fromm said the subcommittee was given a report from the city's engineering firm that was contracted to look at the library parking problem. With those recommendations and discussion on the parking problems, the committee reached what he called a good agreement.

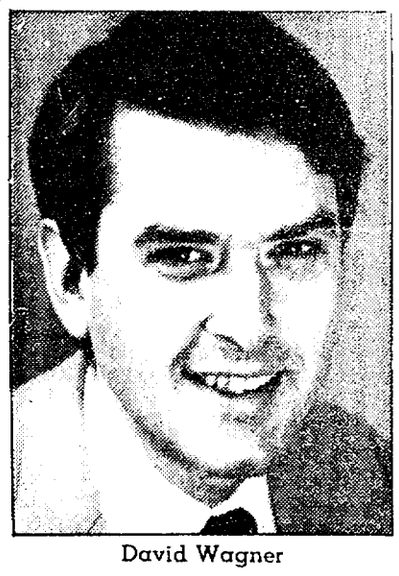

"I am confident that when we meet with the school board on June 29 we will have an agreement with the school board," Fromm said.

Fromm would not say what the proposal calls for in the way of a variance for the library, or whether a variance would be required for the proposed library expansion.

Dave Wagner to emcee fireworks event

David Wagner

The Mack Avenue USA committee has chosen WQRS-FM radio personality Dave Wagner as master of ceremonies for the annual Fourth of July celebration. This year's fireworks display and musical event will be Sunday, June 28, at Parcells field, Vernier and Mack Avenue.

Wagner, a concert organist and a resident of Grosse Pointe Farms, holds a doctor of musical arts from the University of Michigan. In addition to his solo concerts, Wagner has performed with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra as organist and harpsichordist. He is director of music at St. Paul Church and adjunct assistant professor of music at Madonna College.

Wagner is probably best known as the afternoon music host and program director of classical radio station WQRS-FM. He also serves as executive producer of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra radio broadcasts.

In 1985, he received the Palmer Christian Award from the U of M School of Music for post-doctoral achievement in the field of musical performance.

The musical portion of the Mack Avenue USA's Fourth of July celebration will feature the Austin Moro Band and the DA singers. In case of rain, the celebration will be held Tuesday, June 30.

Evaluation report presented to board

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

A decision whether to adopt a new model for teacher evaluation and supervision will be made by the school board sometime this summer. A proposal was reported out of committee June 9 after two years of work.

The board originally intended to study the report and vote next month on adopting it. But teacher union President Doris Cook warned them that teacher evaluations are a negotiable item.

"We will be discussing this at the bargaining table," she said at the end of the board meeting.

Committee members had believed that the model would not have to be negotiated. "We've worked two years on a committee with teachers and administrators," said co-chair Joan Kubista, principal at Monteith. "In effect, we negotiated it as we went along." Kubista said the new model does not change any contractual language.

Superintendent John Whritner said that since the teacher contract does contain references to evaluation, the subject will have to be decided at the table. But the content of the new model is not significantly different from the existing one, he said.

"This just gives some detail about it and spells it out," Whritner said.

Anybody who sees staff evaluation as nothing more than a way of weeding out the bad apples would be surprised at the proposal's thrust toward assistance. "The committee was charged with putting an emphasis on improvement of instruction," Whritner said. "They've done an excellent job. Of course, there's always a bottom line of keeping the best professionals in front of the students."

The committee looked at 30 evaluation models from around the country before developing its own plan, Kubista said. It wasn't an easy process.

"We argued," she said. "There were times when I picked up my marbles and went home angry, saying that's not the way I wanted it to go. But in the process, we solidified."

The committee views the plan as a cooperative one tied in to the new staff development plan. "We want to do the kinds of things that encourage people to grow," Kubista said.

The model is intended to be flexible and change according to needs of the district. It is ready to go, Kubista said, as soon as the board adopts it.

Supervisors will have to spend a lot of time in the classroom under the new system. They will not only observe teachers at work, but work with them to improve their skills. Supervisors may team-teach or teach as a demonstration or arrange time for a teacher to go to another class to watch certain areas being taught.

Kubista defended the amount of time required.

"Supervision should be time-consuming," she said. "Support for teachers should take the greatest proportion of a supervisor's time. Maybe what we really should say is that paperwork takes too much time.

"The frustrating thing as an administrator, if you're a people person, which you should be, is the time the paperwork requires. It's hard to be a people person and a paper person at the same time."

Kubista said the paperwork should be reduced under the new model.

Co-chair Linda Banovetz, an English teacher at South, said the model is flexible enough to adapt to the actual classroom situation, which often doesn't conform exactly to a textbook case. "There has to be a balance between what an expert writes and what actually happens in a classroom," she said. "We couldn't just take a model and use it — we need to adapt to the actual situation."

Banovetz described the model as an attempt to get to the heart of teaching: instructional responsibilities. "Who we are is defined to some degree by what we do each day," she said. "When we were looking at criteria, we looked at 'In Search of Excellence,' which makes the point that a healthy person works better.

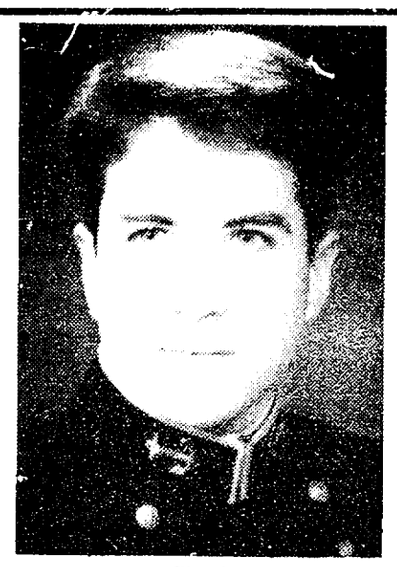

"We don't want to tell a staff member, 'gee, that lesson wasn't very effective,' without telling him why."

Any evaluation process includes a way of determining if people are unsuited for the work. This model provides for "counseling out" people who lack the talent or commitment to teach.

But teachers with teaching problems would stay in the "assessment mode" for an additional year in an attempt to upgrade their skills. "One thing that came up in the survey was that many teachers want an administrator in the classroom more often," Kubista said.

Banovetz estimated that there are not more than eight or 10 teachers in the entire system who may need the specialized assistance. She believes they will appreciate the opportunity.

"We've worked hard on a mutual climate of trust for the last couple of years and we hope it will continue," she said.

Commissioned

Thomas J. Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Clark of Grosse Pointe Farms, graduated from the United States Naval Academy May 20 and was commissioned an ensign in the United States Navy. He earned a bachelor of science degree with a major in physical science.

Students honored for perfect scores on assessment test

Three hundred forty-nine Grosse Pointe students were honored June 9 for perfect scores on the Michigan Educational Assessment Test. The controversial new science test given this year for the first time was not included in the scoring.

"They're regarding that as experimental," said Roger McCaig, director of research and development.

McCaig said that achieving a perfect score means that a student successfully passed each of 30 objectives on the test given last fall to fourth-, seventh- and 10th-graders. The test assessed reading and math skills.

McCaig said it is not unusual to get a perfect score on the test, but that Grosse Pointe tends to have a good record. "We're on the high end," he said. "Last year I looked at the results from 50 or 60 districts and we had the highest proportion in the 10th-grade. But we're not the highest."

Every school in the district had some perfect scorers. By grade, there were 107 in the fourth grade, 84 in the seventh grade and 158 in tenth. Letters of recognition were issued by the state to every student with a perfect score.

Police close case on drowning

Grosse Pointe public safety officials say they have closed the case of the 29-year-old Pontiac woman whose body was found floating in the city's municipal harbor June 3.

Detective Sgt. John Drummond said it is the department's contention that Geneva Keith committed suicide by jumping into Lake St. Clair.

He said that Keith was last seen by friends June 1, but police chased her for seven miles while she was driving the wrong way on the southbound Lodge at around 2 a.m. June 2. According to Drummond, Keith was fleeing police at speeds around 75 miles per hour with her lights out on the expressway, and slammed into police cars several times before being stopped and taken into custody.

Drummond added that Keith was combative in court later that day, and allegedly tried to jump out of a ninth floor window while in the custody of the 36th District Court.

"We believe there is strong evidence of suicide," Drummond said. "We have ruled out foul play." Drummond said the only thing that would prompt the department to reopen the case is if someone who saw Keith after she had gotten out of court comes forward.

Chamber music workshop to begin

Registration for a special Chamber Music Workshop will be tonight, 7 p.m. at the War Memorial.

The workshop is conducted by Anatoli Cheiniouk, a graduate of the State Music Institute of Gnessin in Moscow. It will begin Monday, June 22, and conclude Monday, July 27, with a recital in the Fries Auditorium.

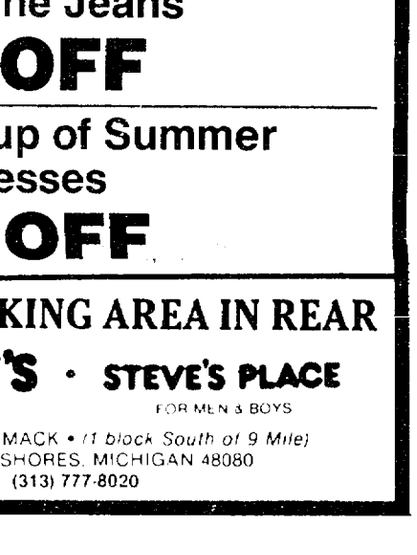

Individual sessions will be held twice weekly, for six weeks from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Class fee is $50 per person for six weeks. Chamber orchestra sessions will be held from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m. and are also $150 per person for six weeks.

Space is limited. Please bring instruments to registration. You may register as an individual or group. Call 881-9564 or 881-7511 for further information or if you are unable to attend registration and still wish to participate in the workshop.

Edison fact

On October 21, 1929, a host of dignitaries and celebrities — including President Hoover, Madame Curie, Orville Wright, Will Rogers, and John D. Rockefeller — arrived in Dearborn at the invitation of Henry Ford. They gathered to honor America's foremost inventor, Thomas Alva Edison, and to celebrate the 15th anniversary of his invention of electric light.

Grosse Pointe Shores Improvement Foundation, which numbers some 500 members, has selected its new board members for the next three years. They are, from left, Thomas E. Candler, president; Ron Lamparter, vice president of projects; Marianne Andicott, vice president of development; Mary Matuja, secretary; and seated, outgoing President Kurt O. Tech. Not shown is Paul Naz, treasurer.

Shores foundation elects new officers

Members of the Grosse Pointe Shores Improvement Foundation have selected Thomas E. Candler as president of the 500-member organization.

Candler fills the position vacated by outgoing president Kurt O. Tech. During the three years Tech was in office, membership increased. Some 300 trees were planted on the islands along Lake Shore Road in the Village.

Other newly elected officers include: Marianne Endicott, vice president of development; Ron Lamparter, vice president of projects; Mary Matuja, secretary; and Paul Naz, treasurer.

Leaving office after three years of service is George Bashara, secretary. Both Bashara and Tech will remain as trustees of the foundation.

Currently the foundation is planning for its annual party. This year the event will be held at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club on Sunday, July 12, at 5 p.m.

Funds raised by the foundation will be used for the completion of the sodding program on the islands south of Vernier Road and for other improvements in the Village.

Hosts needed in July for French, Spanish boys

Families are needed immediately to host 80 French and Spanish boys who will be in this country during July. The Nacel Cultural Exchange is bringing 6,300 French and Spanish students to live with American families this year, including more than 250 in Michigan.

Host families do not have to speak French or Spanish since the students have from four to eight years of English language study. They bring pocket money and their parents pay for transportation and insurances. Families without teens are asked to introduce their guest to other teens among their friends, relatives and neighbors.

The program organizers match host families with students according to general interests and specific activities they would like to share with their guests, such as sports, water activities, computers and music. Some American families take their guests on trips.

Nacel is the largest exchange program that exists between Europe and the United States. Its programs originated in France 30 years ago and have recently expanded into Spain. Nacel is a participant in the President's International Youth Exchange Initiative.

State speeders pay little heed to 55 mph limit

Gov. James Blanchard says it is highly unlikely that he will sign the bill to raise the state's speed limit on rural interstate freeways to 65 mph, but Michigan motorists already are driving as if the bill had been signed into law.

A trip north of Lansing over the weekend confirmed the writer's contention that the prevailing speed on rural interstate freeways is already about 65 mph without benefit of the bill passed by the Legislature last week. In fact, the prevailing speed on the urban sections of I-96 also appeared to be well in excess of 60 mph.

Yet we still think that the proposal to raise the speed limit on the rural sections of the interstate system is a bad idea for Michigan. It would encourage speeders to exceed the 65 mph limit by the 5 to 10 miles per hours that they have been exceeding the 55 mph limit. It would increase the incidence of fatalities and costly property damage in auto accidents. And it would increase gasoline consumption and contribute to possible shortages in the future, especially if the OPEC nations succeed in their renewed aim to limit supplies.

We also tend to agree with the governor that if the limit is raised, the fuzz busters should be banned. He has maintained all along that fuzz busters, which enable motorists to detect police radar, encourage speeding and lawlessness and thereby send the "wrong message" to Michigan motorists.

It is true that at least 31 states have acted to increase their speed limits since Congress gave the states authority to set their own limits on rural sections of interstate freeways. But many are western and southwestern states whose freeways do not carry the heavy traffic that burdens Michigan's highway system. Furthermore, 31 wrongs do not make a right. Michigan ought to choose a speed limit based on its own needs rather than running with the speeding pack.

Some of the governor's Democratic colleagues are hinting that he still might be persuaded to sign the bill authorizing the 65 mph limit even without the ban on fuzz busters that he requested. It is also possible that the Legislature might override a veto or that another bill might be pushed through the Legislature if the governor vetoes the present one. But the later alternative appears unlikely, at least before the Legislature breaks for its summer recess in a few weeks.

In our view, the fuzz buster ban ought to be included in any new speed legislation that becomes law in Michigan this year and for one reason above all others. It is needed to preserve the reputation of the House Democrats who have resisted the ban despite the nasty insinuations arising from the bribery charges placed against a fuzz buster lobbyist.

Whether the lobbyist is guilty or innocent of the charges, the subsequent passage of the bill increasing the speed limit to 65 mph raises the question as to whether the legislators were bowing to the pressures of a special interest or whether they were carrying out the wishes of their constituents. Passage of a fuzz buster ban would answer that question.

U-M a magnet for brains

It is easy to sympathize with Grosse Pointe and other Michigan high school graduates who have earned high grades and outstanding records only to discover that they still cannot qualify for entrance to the University of Michigan, the state's premier educational institution.

It is even easier to sympathize with such students when we learn that about a third of the entering freshman class at Michigan is made up of non-resident students.

When this information came to public attention last week, it probably was not surprising that the state Senate promptly passed a bill to require U-M and other state universities to give preference to Michigan applicants.

Yet there are some other aspects of the issue that ought to be considered.

First, U-M officials said last week that their admissions policy gives preference to residents over non-residents. A statement by retiring President Shapiro said in part:

"To be admitted to U-M, non-resident students must complete the most demanding academic curriculum at their high school, have a higher grade point average than resident students in a select academic program and place higher on standardized admissions tests."

True, in the College of Literature, Science and the Arts, the largest of the university's schools and colleges, U-M this year set a quota for out-of-state students of 38 percent. That meant that about 11,000 out-of-state students competed for about 1,000 places in the liberal arts college while 8,000 resident students competed for 2,000 slots.

A U-M spokesman said that two factors influence the quota: the desire to improve quality by recruiting students from all parts of the country and the desire to bring in the higher tuition paid by non-resident students.

In effect, U-M serves the best interests of all residents of the state by attracting the very best students not only from Michigan but also from the entire nation. That gives U-M a diverse student body but it also gives the state's businesses and professions a good opportunity to hire some of the top graduates in the country. Many of them become residents of Michigan and remain here to become state and national leaders in their fields.

It may be that the quota for out-of-state residents has been set too high on occasion but neither the Legislature nor dissatisfied parents should take action to limit U-M's ability to serve as a magnet for the best brains in the country as well as in the state.

In common with other Michigan educational institutions, U-M owes its first obligation to the state's residents. But in our opinion, Michigan residents ought to be proud of the national and international reputation of the university and defend it against those critics who call it "elitist" and charge it with "apparent manipulation of the balance between Michigan and out-of-state students for purely financial reasons."

We think the outstanding students U-M attracts help it keep its reputation. It also should be remembered that the non-residents pay substantially more in tuition and fees than do residents and thus aid state citizens in financing the high quality educational institution U-M has become.

New state primary in '92 ?

Now that it's obvious the Michigan GOP system for selecting the state's delegates to the 1988 National Republican Convention is not working out as hoped, GOP leaders in Lansing are considering restoration of the presidential primary system for use in 1992.

After abolition of the old presidential primary law in 1983, Michigan's two major political parties adopted different plans for picking Michigan's national convention delegates. But neither plan lived up to expectations.

The GOP started its 1988 selection process at the 1986 GOP primary when the party elected delegates who, through a series of county and district conventions, will determine the national convention delegation early next year.

At Democratic caucuses next March 26, voters who are publicly declared Democrats will name their choices for president. The number of national convention delegates each candidate gets will be roughly proportional to his share of the Democratic caucus votes.

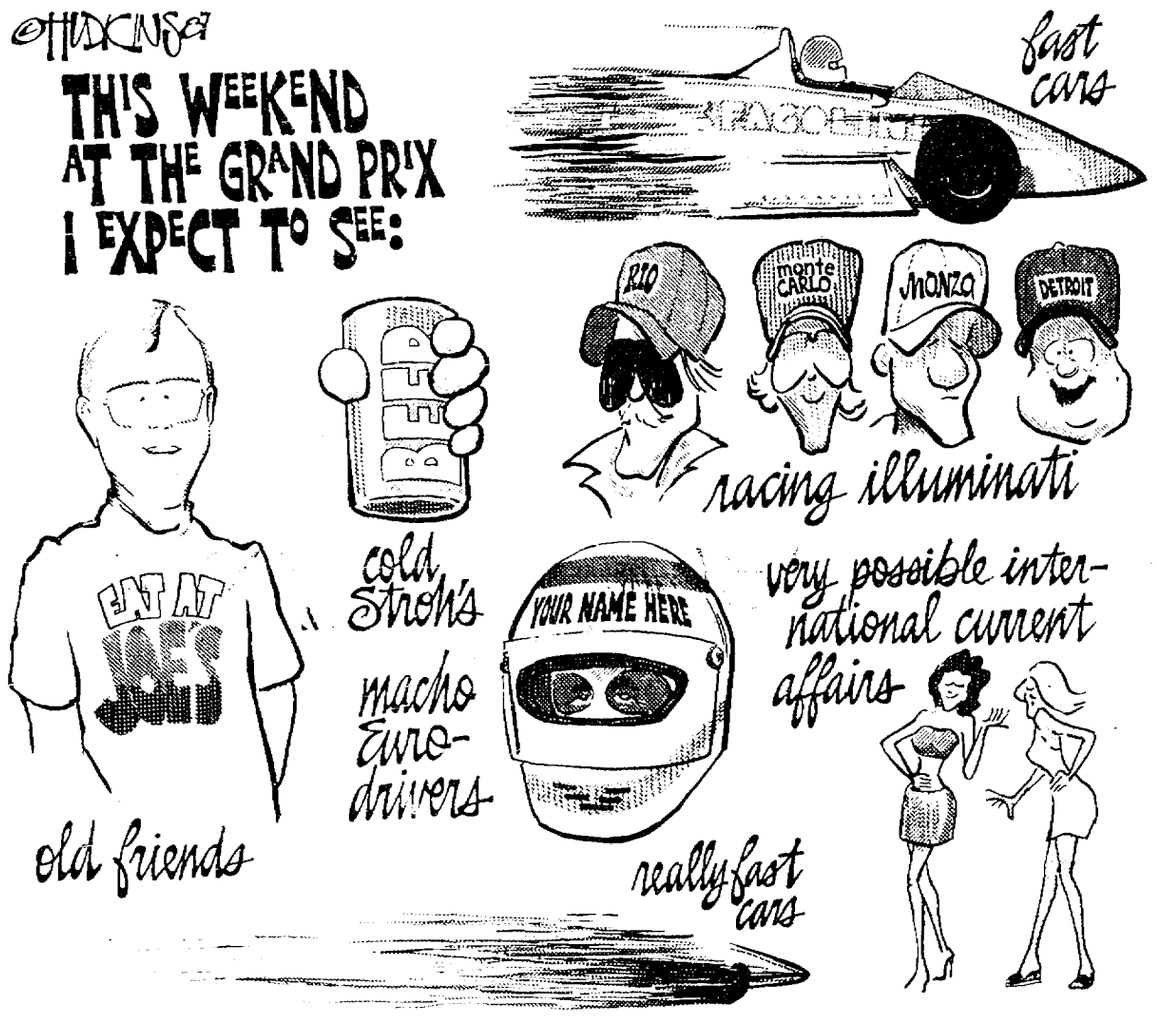

While the GOP plan was originally adopted to put Michigan on the map by making it the first state to select its 1988 presidential delegates, the delegate election process instead resulted in a victory for the Rev. Pat Robertson, the Virginia TV evangelist. In fact, his supporters and those of Rep. Jack Kemp of New York took control of the party's state central committee.

Kemp is, of course, a major candidate, but Robertson to date appears to be an outsider who has little chance of nomination, but who might become a power broker with Michigan and other state delegations he is expected to control. Since this was not kind of early publicity and result foreseen by Michigan GOP leaders, they are now seeking to return to the presidential primary system.

Nor did Michigan Democrats pick an effective substitute for the primary in 1984. They attracted only a light turnout of people to the party caucuses which strongly endorsed the leadership's favorite 1984 candidate, former Vice President Walter Mondale. But a number of participants complained about the closed caucuses on the grounds they limited participation and reflected only the leadership's wishes.

It is difficult to know just how much support the GOP has in the state Legislature for its proposed revival of an open presidential primary in Michigan in 1992, but surely such a primary does attract more attention and more backing from independents than the present exclusionary systems that limit participation chiefly to party members.

We would like to see the two parties agree to another experiment with a presidential primary in Michigan in 1992, assuming they can iron out the legal wrinkles that now bar Democratic participation. Such a method of selection of delegates could guarantee more public participation in the process and reduce the power of the political bosses.

Letters

Ice bag

To the Editor:

Thank you for the front page story in your edition of June 4, regarding the air conditioning problems at North High. I only wish you could have run photos of the heat-stricken staff being rushed from the building on stretchers, and a photo of the heroic Janice McCloud examining her strip thermometer.

Everyone knows that workers in all other occupations are instantly sent home when the temperature rises or the air conditioning breaks. I think we all owe a debt of gratitude to those teachers who consented to do their job despite the calamity of two hot days. Also, Ms. McCloud should be rewarded with a nice new ice bag to wear on her head.

Sincerely,
Andrew Brown

California has a better idea

To the Editor:

As a former inhabitant of Grosse Pointe Park now living in California, I always enjoy coming back to Grosse Pointe and taking note of the radical differences between the two areas. Seasons that change, 2,200 square foot homes with big lots that cost less than $275,000, and stoplights that make you wait for non-existent cross traffic!

Now we may not have seasons or affordable housing here, but at least the stoplights in the Santa Clara Valley (a.k.a. Silicon Valley) have sensors under the road that detect the traffic and change as needed, not because a timer decided that the light should change. These intersections also have buttons for pedestrians so that they can notify the stoplight that they wish to cross and the stoplight will keep the light red longer to accommodate them.

Just think, stoplights that adjust to traffic patterns, no more waiting at a light with no cross traffic in sight. What a concept!

Hi from Brazil

To the Editor:

Oi! That's hi in Portuguese. I used to live in Grosse Pointe City, but then I moved to Brasilia, the capital of Brazil. Some friends of ours have been sending us the Grosse Pointe News. I miss everyone in Grosse Pointe a lot! I hope I can visit soon.

Tchau (Portuguese). Bye (English).

Jenny Graetz
Age 12

Deplorable

To the Editor:

Once again the two main thoroughfares used by most Grosse Pointers are in deplorable condition. Lakeshore in Grosse Pointe Farms is extremely rough and full of potholes and westbound Mack Avenue between Moross and Cadieux is extremely rough and bumpy and in need of repair. All of us in the five Grosse Pointes pay a great amount of money in taxes and deserve something better than this.

If Wayne County (and this includes the city of Detroit too) can't help us out, then maybe we should stop helping them and boycott their projects.

Roger Stanton
Grosse Pointe City

Editor's note: About six weeks ago the Farms announced it had entered into an agreement with Wayne County to repave and recurb Lakeshore within the city limits. The project is to cost more than $1 million, and the Farms will be paying around $300,000 while the county pays the rest of the tab. Construction should begin this summer and be completed sometime this fall.

A fond farewell

I Say

Elsa Frohman

It's really hard to say goodbye.

It's especially hard when you're leaving your hometown, your good friends and a wonderful job.

For the past two years, I've had one of the most enviable jobs around. I've been feature editor of the Grosse Pointe News.

It's been an enviable job because I get to see, do and write about the best of everything. I get to meet and talk with the most interesting people. I get to cover the best parties.

Journalists are lucky people. We get to know what everyone wants to know first and we get to be the person who tells. We make a living out of story-telling. The fact that the stories are all true (or at least we try to keep them that way) doesn't make them any less fun to tell.

But my job is a notch better than that. You see, as feature editor (once upon a time I would have been called society editor) I am almost always involved in the up-side of human activity. I don't cover crime. I don't cover politics.

I get to cover the accomplishments, the triumphs and the joys of life.

If we've ever talked about it, you know that I'm fond of saying I love my work. I still say it. It's true.

So why am I saying goodbye?

This is the last column I will write in the Grosse Pointe News. At the beginning of this week, I started a new job with another newspaper group in another part of the metropolitan area.

I'm going because it's the right thing to do for me, now. I'll be facing new challenges in a new aspect of newspaper work.

But that doesn't mean I'm not going to miss Grosse Pointe and the Grosse Pointe News. This is my home. I grew up in the Woods and graduated from Grosse Pointe High School, before there was a North or South. My family still lives here, and I know that at least they are going to miss my writings in this paper.

I'm going to miss the annual Garden Tour and the various home tours and the friendships I've formed with many of the P.R. people from various organizations. I'm going to miss getting up at 8:15 and making it to work on time by 9 a.m. (including breakfast, a shower and watching some of the Today Show). My new job involves a commute of nearly an hour.

I'm going to miss running into people I knew when I was a kid and slipping across the street for an ice cream at Over the Rainbow in the middle of the afternoon (My hips probably won't miss that one).

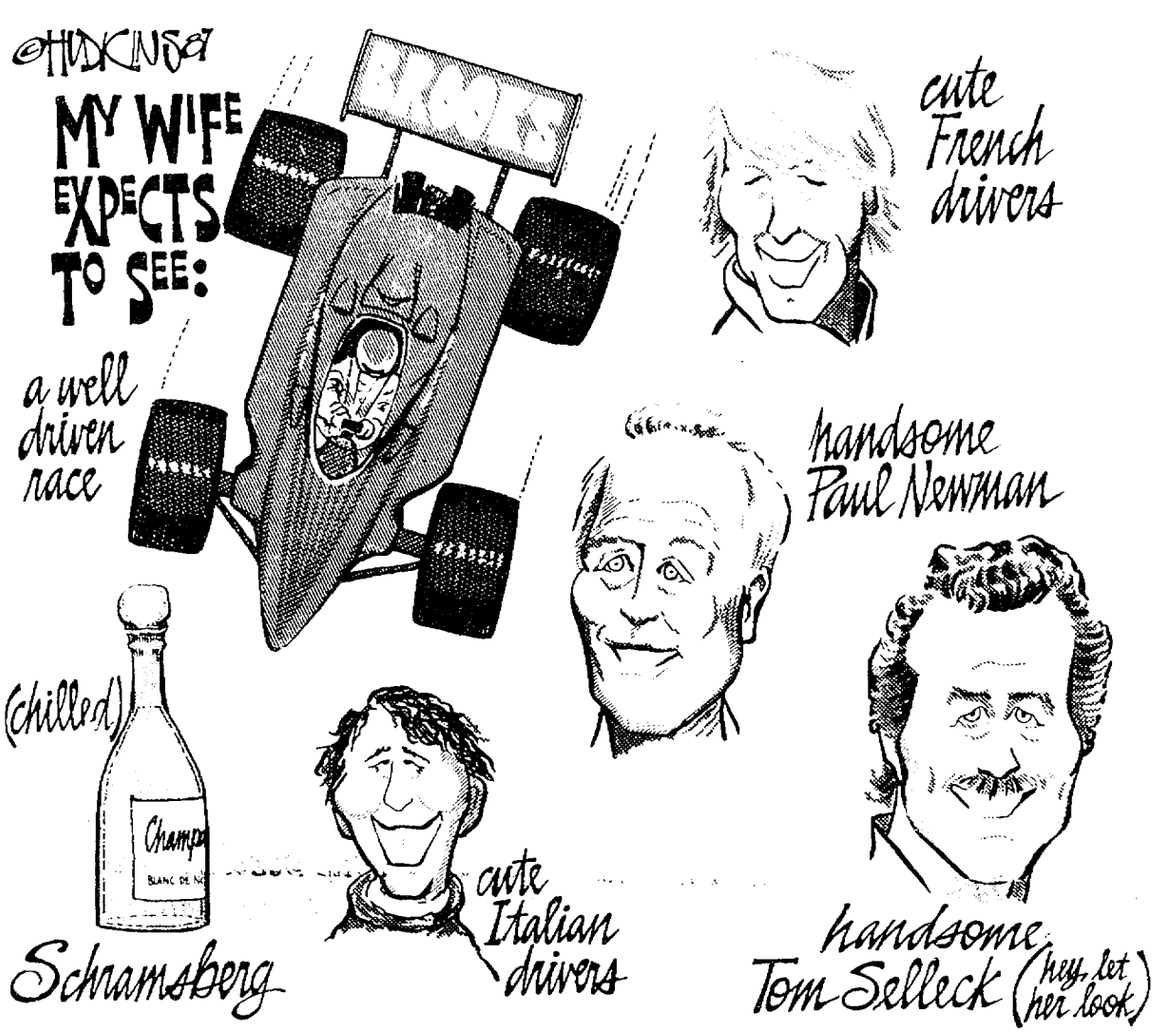

I'm going to miss working in a crazy office where people talk about their dogs as much as their children.

A lot of people in the Pointes have been very kind to me and have given me a lot of help with a story or an idea for a story. I'm going to miss all of them.

Probably most of all, I'm going to miss Grosse Pointe itself. There isn't another community in Michigan with the same combination of tree-lined streets, landscaped yards, Lake St. Clair and grand old houses. If I might be allowed a slightly political opinion here in my swan song, I believe the special ambiance of Grosse Pointe is worth preserving and I hope that the residents band together to save what ought to be saved. Grosse Pointe is surprisingly late in getting on the preservation bandwagon, but it's never too late as long as there is one historic house still standing.

Though I'll be going to work on the west side from now on, I'm still an eastsider born and bred. So don't believe I won't be around any more. So if you see me on the street sometime in the not-so-distant future, stop and say "Hi!"

I'm going to miss you all.

Yesterday's Headlines

June 12, 1958 —

The New York Times reported that the United Nations Security Council voted unanimously to send observers to Lebanon to investigate claims that the United Arab Republic had stirred up rebellion there.

Prime Minister Harold MacMillan and President Eisenhower reached agreement on plans for a conference to deal with East-West differences with other heads of state. MacMillan spoke to the National Press Club after concluding three days of conferences with U.S. officials. He then flew to Ottawa for two days of talks with Canadian officials. It seemed to be the time for visiting heads-of-state. Ambassador Mikhail A. Menshikov, of the Soviet Union was visiting Independence Hall in Philadelphia. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles announced he would fly to France in July for talks with Premier deGaulle.

The House passed a bill, by a large majority, to reduce tariff barriers to international trade. The bill was was essentially a five-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act, allowing the president to make agreements with countries for mutual reduction of tariffs.

The White House said that Sherman Adams, assistant to the president, would soon be found blameless in the scandal that was brewing concerning his friendship with Bernard Goldfine, a New England industrialist. Allegations were that Adams helped Goldfine gain preferred treatment from federal agencies. The House subcommittee earlier had subpoenaed hotel records showing that Goldfine had paid about $2,000 of Adams' hotel bills.

Goldfine issued a statement the day before saying that Mr. and Mrs. Adams had been good friends of Mr. and Mrs. Goldfine for more than 20 years and that the hospitality extended to Adams had no connection with governmental functions. A Times editorial said that Adams showed "extraordinarily poor judgment" when he allowed Goldfine to pay the hotel bill.

Helpful stranger

He's kind of embarrassed about all this, so don't kid Ken Van Dellen too much next time you see him.

Ken had to run a few errands last week, and with the weather so nice, he decided to ride his bike. The errands included taking two pay checks that belonged to his daughters to the bank.

Somewhere along his route, the two checks and four letters dropped onto the street unbeknownst to Ken, who kept riding. When he got to the post office and realized that his daughters were probably going to kill him for losing their hard-earned checks, he began to retrace his path.

Along the way he spotted a Park public safety officer and waved him down. As he was explaining his troubles to the officer, a man drove over to them and waved at Ken.

"He said he thought he found something that belonged to me and handed me the letters and the two checks," he said. "I didn't get a chance to ask for his name, but I'd like to publicly thank him for taking the time to try and find me. He was a fellow from Warren is all I know."

Good going "fellow from Warren." Ken thanks you, and no doubt, so do his daughters.

What'dwejustdo?

It was item 12 on the agenda.

The Farms city council Monday night had just heard four zoning board of appeal public hearings for additions to dwellings, three fence variance requests, a couple of complex lot split cases, and were more than a little frazzled after almost three hours of talking with citizens, hearing from proponents and critics of questions and now had to meet with War Memorial Director Mark Weber.

Weber was before the council to request a permit for a fireworks display on Monday, Aug. 10, following a Grosse Pointe Symphony concert at the War Memorial.

The proposal was quickly explained, a motion to approve the request was made and seconded in a blink, and the roll call vote met with unanimous approval.

As Weber left, Councilman Harry Echlin, looked up and tongue-in-cheek said, "Gee, I hope we didn't just approve a liquor license for the War Memorial."

Popular movies playing that week were "Cinerama," "South Pacific," and Alfred Hitchcock's "Vertigo." At the theater in New York — Judy Holliday was starring in "Bells are Ringing," Peter Ustinov in "Romanoff and Juliet," Robert Preston in "The Music Man," and Henry Fonda and Ann Bancroft in "Two for the Seesaw."

On TV that night: Groucho Marx's "You Bet Your Life," a Dragnet repeat, and the Jack Paar Show.

The Tigers were in seventh place, but had just beaten the Red Sox twice in Boston.

In Grosse Pointe, the Woods city council held a special meeting Monday to discuss placing a bond issue for a new city hall before the people. The council meeting began with a long debate about who called the meeting and whether it was, in fact, an official meeting. Finally, the city attorney said that the meeting could be called if Mayor Pro Tem Kenneth McLeod declared the session official. He did. But after much discussion, no action was taken on the matters under discussion.

The Grosse Pointe Kiwanis Club presented a bus to the city of Grosse Pointe Woods to be used to transport children to and from the lakefront park.

City police served notice to 11 Grosse Pointe High School boys and demanded their appearance in juvenile court. The students had been charged with littering and loitering and "defying their administrators and the law, and persisiting to molest the merchants on Fisher Road across from the high school."

Damage from the fire at Grosse Pointe High School's building annex in May was finally estimated at $20,000, and it was determined that all was covered by insurance. Repairs would be completed during the summer season.

Tip O'Neill to stump for Hertel

Former Speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill will be the special guest of honor at a fundraiser for 14th District Rep. Dennis Hertel. The event will be held at the home of Mr. & Mrs. Ted Gatzaros, 16706 E. Jefferson Ave., in Grosse Pointe Park from 5 to 6:30 p.m., Friday, June 26.

O'Neill recently retired from the U.S. House where he served for 34 years under seven presidents. He headed the House as speaker for 10 years.

Hertel, whose district includes 14 communities in three counties, was first elected to the U.S. House in 1980. He currently serves on the Armed Services Committee, Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee and the Select Committee on Aging.

Admission to the fundraiser is by ticket only ($150 per person). Information can be obtained by calling 882-9296.

Park holds public hearing concerning assessment

By Pat Paholsky
News Editor

A public hearing to consider a special assessment to remove part of Grosse Pointe Park from the flood plain brought a mixed response.

According to a show of hands requested by Mayor Palmer Heenan June 8, most — about 80 percent — of the 90 or so residents thought the issue ought to be addressed. Yet it appeared — from the public comments — that the majority felt the cost of the improvements should be borne by all Park residents rather than those who would be directly impacted. Most of the audience, however, were those who would be directly affected.

The hearing was the first of two held for the purpose of receiving public comment. No action was taken at the conclusion of the two-hour hearing. The second is scheduled for July 27 and will also be held at Pierce auditorium at 7 p.m.

The cost of eliminating the flood plain designation is set at $2.4 million. That includes erecting earthen berms at six low points along the shoreline for $400,000 and installing interlocking steel sheet piling on the eastern edge of Fox Creek at a cost of $2 million.

The city of Detroit has agreed to pay $200,000 toward the Fox Creek improvement. The canal, in Detroit, is a county drain.

About half of Grosse Pointe Park lies within the 100-year flood plain which consists of about 975 of the 4,138 properties in the city. The administration, upon the recommendation of a citizens committee that studied the problem, recommended that property owners within the 100-year flood plain pay 75 percent of the cost of improvements.

The average cost of the special assessment would come to $212 a year for 10 years.

With the designation lifted, property owners could build a house with a basement, something that is not allowed in a flood plain. Also flood insurance mandated by federal lending institutions would no longer be required. More important however, there is an immediate threat of flooding from Fox Creek, according to the Flood Plain Study Committee, which would affect all Park residents. The earthen berm now in place, built in the 1920s, is crumbling and water has been seeping through on the Park side. John Shoreck, who served on the flood committee, said every house in the Park would get about three feet of water if the water in Fox Creek broke through.

Along with the special assessment, improvements would be paid for through general operating taxes and the water and sewer fund. Since property owners within the flood plain pay about one-fourth of all water and sewer charges and about one-third of general operating taxes, the administration proposed that the special assessment be about 66 percent in order that their total share would not exceed 75 percent. The balance of the improvements would be paid for through the water and sewer fund and the general fund.

Mayor Heenan said the special assessment, in many cases, would represent a savings, since half of the homes in the flood plain now pay about $400 a year for flood insurance.

Big winners! Trio of Super Lotto winners to share more than $9 million

Three easy picks, and now it's easy street for three Grosse Pointe Woods residents who claimed a $9.4 million Super Lotto prize as a club.

Robert Barto, 46, an actor and businessman, his wife, JoAnn, 46, who is his business partner, and their neighbor, Mary Deraney, a retired Department of Defense secretary, claimed the May 20 prize last week, apparently waiting to talk to lawyers before contacting Lotto officials.

The Seven Million to One Club, (roughly the odds it takes to pick six of the 46 numbers in the weekly drawing) was likely formed for tax purposes, since there is a savings realized when the money is split rather than going to one winner.

Devin Mayatt, a state lottery official, said the story of how the three won the game and what happened afterward is interesting.

Robert Barto told his wife to get a ticket when he noticed that the prize winnings had reached $7 million. While JoAnn Barto was cutting Deraney's hair in Deraney's downstairs apartment, she mentioned to Deraney that her husband wanted a ticket, but didn't think she would have time to stop at the Merit-Woods Pharmacy where they usually get them.

Deraney said she would get the couple a ticket. She did. And also got a set of numbers for herself and an extra set for JoAnn for cutting her hair. All three sets of numbers were ordered on one ticket, which she placed on the Barto's kitchen table.

Upon hearing the numbers announced on television, Deraney thought they sounded familiar, but since the choices were all easy picks (when the machine picks the numbers), she really couldn't recall. In the meantime the ticket lay atop the table, until the day after the drawing when a friend was over visiting the Bartos and noticed it. The guest glanced down at the ticket and realized it was a $9 million winner. The guest asked Barto why he wasn't more excited, and then the celebrating began.

The ticket was unsigned, and the guest could have easily slipped the ticket into a pocket and signed it later, but didn't. Mayatt said the club is going to give some money to the guest for honesty. Since the three easy picks were on one ticket, there was no way to know whose number was the winner, so the three decided to collect the winnings as a club.

The winning numbers were: 3, 5, 10, 23, 27, 44. Those digits mean a first installment of $468,154 and 19 more installments over the next 20 years of $467,000. After taxes the club will keep about $375,000 each year.

Reportedly, the Bartos are considering buying a new house, and plans are to purchase a new car for both their mothers. Deraney, who would only say on the press release forms that she was "old enough," plans on buying a new house or a condominium, a new car and will take a planned trip to South America in the fall.

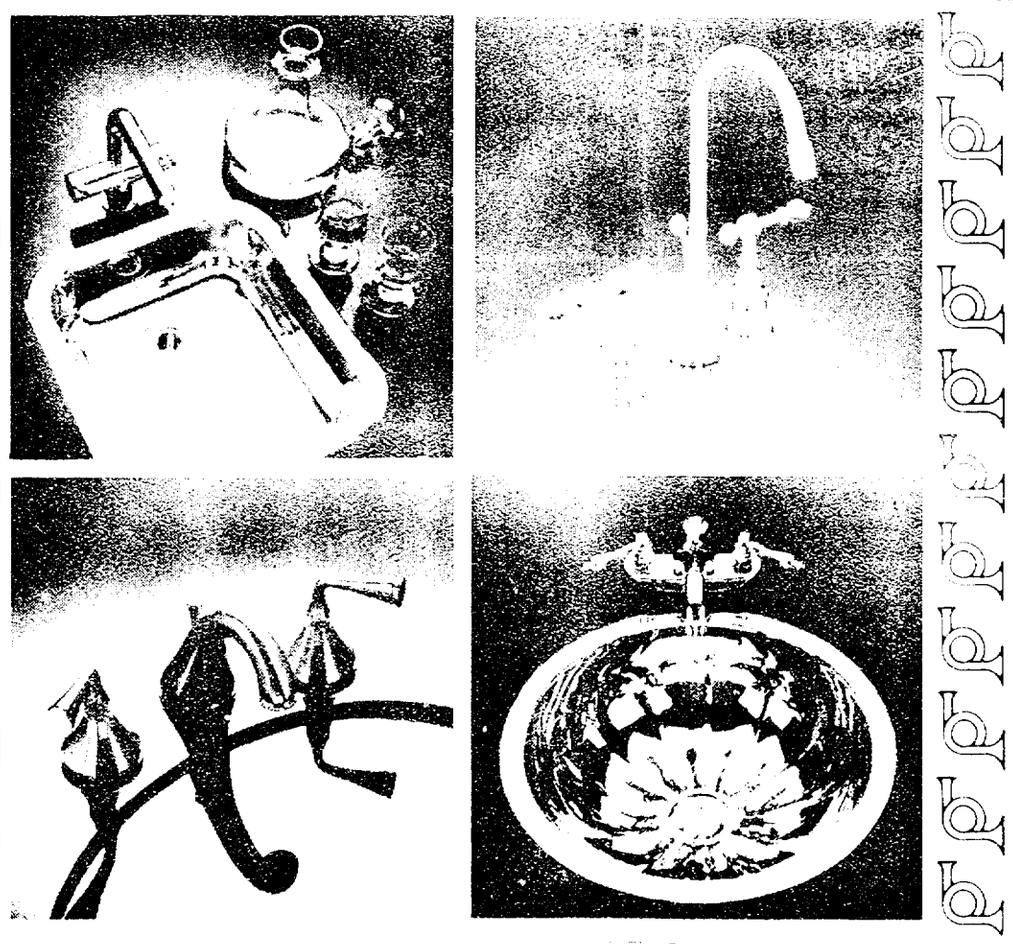

Mayatt said that Deraney says she will take all of her friends out to dinner at least five times a month.

Dog day afternoon

The winners of the Youngest Dog award, these six-week-old miniature dachshunds captured the judges' hearts.

The fourth annual My Dog's Better Than Your Dog contest was a huge success. The June 6 event at the War Memorial attracted more than 100 entries.

Under warm and sunny skies, dogs of nearly every kind, color and size competed in such fun-filled events as friendliest dog, best trick and dog/owner look-alike.

The judges this year included Farms Mayor Joseph L. Fromm; Farms Councilwoman Gail Kaess; Farms Police Chief Robert Ferber; War Memorial Executive Director Mark R. Weber; and War Memorial board members Charles W. Davis, John D. Durno, William B. Lafer and Barbara N. Weiss.

Dr. Lester Faremouth, a veterinarian, assisted in the activities.

Kemp fund raiser at GPYC is successful

The Kemp-for-President forces scored an important early victory with a successful fund-raiser June 8. Organizer Clark Durant said a reception at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club and a dinner cruise netted the campaign $321,000.

"It was a tremendous success," Durant said."Almost everyone met their quota." The goal for the day had been $250,000.

Congressman Jack Kemp came to town for the day, joining his supporters for lunch downtown, then for the reception, followed by a dinner cruise on the 120-foot Entrepreneur, owned by Grosse Pointers Randolph Agley and Vern Buchanan. Durant said there were 200 people at the reception and 117 on the cruise.

In a telephone interview, Kemp said he considers Michigan a competitive situation. He said he has no formal understanding with fellow candidate Pat Robertson.

"It's a de facto relationship between people of similar philosophy to make sure the process remains open," Kemp said. "I'd support any Republican for president. He thinks he'll win; I think I'll win." He said the relationship is not a first step toward running together for president and vice president.

Kemp called the race "wide open" and agreed with the national polls showing Bush in first place, followed by Dole and Kemp.

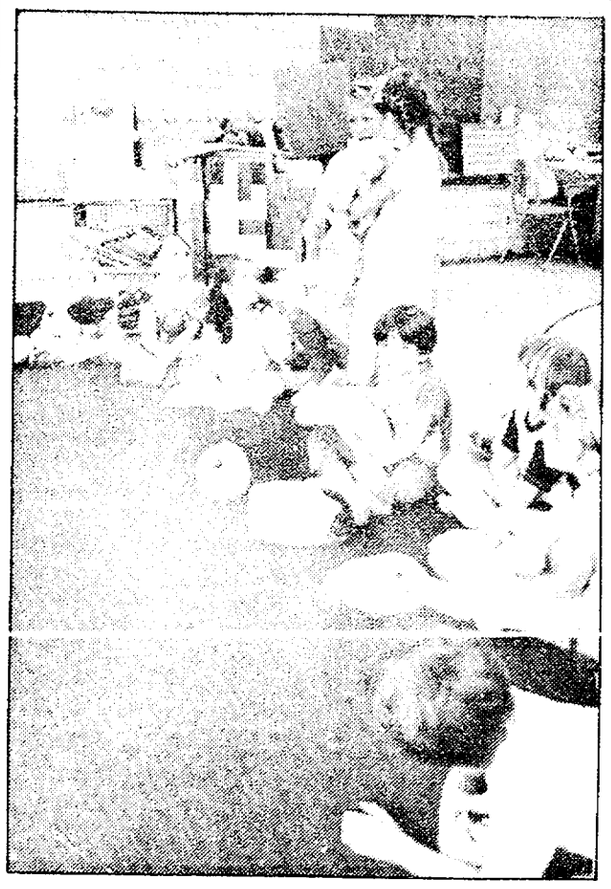

The fund-raiser was organized by Durant, Agley, Michael Timmis, Manuel Moroun, Jerry Luptak, Ken Meade, Brad Osgood and George Lees.

Berschback honored by Explorers

Anne Berschback received the Bronze Big Horn Award at the annual Recognition Dinner of the Detroit Area Council, Boy Scouts of America held April 30 at the War Memorial.

She was given the award for her efforts as parent coordinator of the Grosse Pointe Safe Rides program, an Explorer Post of the Boy Scouts. Operating on Friday and Saturday nights from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. from the War Memorial, this volunteer group, consisting of students with adult supervision, is designed to provide a free and confidential ride home (within certain boundaries) to any student who is not in a condition to drive safely due to drugs or alcohol, or to any student who wants to avoid being a passenger in such a situation.

Explorer Post 1850, Grosse Pointe War Memorial, was recognized with the Quality Unit Award.

Housebreak

A home on the 900 block of Harcourt in the Park was broken into sometime June 4 or 5, and a VCR was taken.

Park officials said the door to the house was unlocked.

Benefit to aid park parade

The Grosse Pointe Park Civic Association will again sponsor "The Very Home Town Fourth of July Parade" this year.

To raise money for the parade, the association will host a cocktail and hors d'oeuvres get together Saturday, June 20, in the evening at Gallerie 454, 15105 Kercheval, in the Park. Besides food and refreshments, there will be strolling violinists and art exhibitions.

Tickets are $10. For reservations or information, call Jane Buhl at 886-7488 or Pat McKeever at 885-7829.

Overeaters Anonymous to meet

The Tuesday morning Grosse Pointe group of Overeaters Anonymous will host a dinner of salad, protein and fruit on Friday, June 19, at 7 p.m. at St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran Church, 375 Lothrop, in the Farms

Two members will speak from 8 to 9 p.m. and information about the group will be available.

Suggested donation for the dinner is $3. All are welcome. Overeaters Anonymous is a fellowship of men and women who gather to share their experience, strength and hope in their recovery from compulsive overeating. It is a non-profit group, with principles patterned after Alcoholics Anonymous.

For more information, call Betty at 886-3137 or Ruthie at 881-3502.

Handicappers forum

The Michigan Commission on Handicappers Concerns will meet Friday, June 19 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The meeting will be held at Wayne State University in the McGregor Center, Room F, 495 W. Ferry Mall in Detroit.

A public forum will be held from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. to hear handicappers and others concerned with handicappers issues in the greater Detroit area. The entire meeting is open to the public.

Comments from local handicappers during the public forum help the 21 commissioners understand the concerns of the local handicapper community. The commission is charged with advocacy for handicapper issues in the development of state policy.

The meeting room is accessible and the meeting will be interpreted for hearing-impaired individuals.

For more information, call Michigan Commission on Handicapper Concerns Executive Director Myrtle Gregg-LaFay at (517) 373-8397.

Caring for elderly

Pat Gries, counselor-trainer with the Older Adult Project of the Oakland University Continuum Center, will address the support group of Calvary Day Care for Adults, 4950 Gateshead at Mack, on Wednesday, June 24, at 7:30 p.m.

She will speak on juggling roles: balancing the needs of elderly parents with the demands of family, home and workplace.

The support group meetings are open to the public. Call 881-3374 for further information.

Art winners

Congressman Dennis Hertel, center, congratulates Craig Vogt, left, of South High School, and Scott Smith, of North High, who took second and third place, respectively, in the 1987 Artistic Discovery competition for high school students. The contest was held at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House last month. First-place winner was Michael Lindow of East Detroit High School, whose drawing will be displayed in an exhibition in a corridor leading to the U.S. Capito. More than 80 entries were submitted by students from the 14th Congressional District.

Psychiatrist

regular population their rate is far lower.

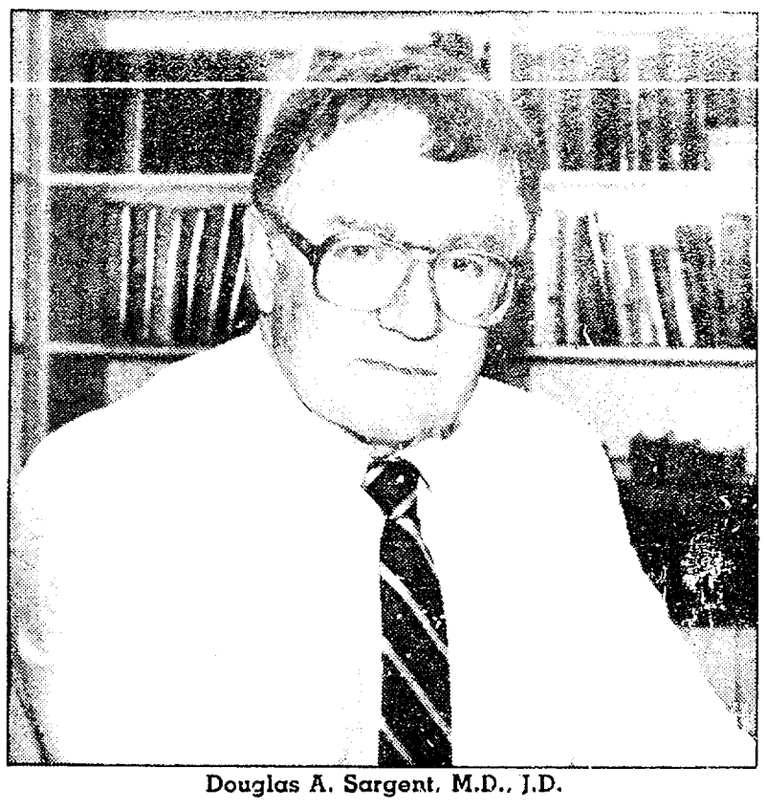

"That puts female doctors at much higher risk," Sargent said. That doctors, who are well-educated and have the knowlege of many kinds of emotional problems tend to kill themselves as often as others is paradoxical. One would expect that because of the education and knowlege of medical and psychiatric problems, that doctors would recognize their own problems sooner and therefore, avoid the fatal consequences.

Sargent said there is a denial of vulnerability among physicians.

"It is not as though they are merely kidding themselves," Sargent said. "Denial actually prevents some from being aware of their problems."

One common problem that can trigger suicide among physicians, according to the study, is the loss of money. Sargent said that was one of the most important factors that most strongly differentiated between the suicide and the control groups. Other factors that seemed to trigger suicide were psychiatric hospitalization, the use of psychoactive drugs such as Valium or Demerol and previous suicide attempts.

Sargent said some doctors have what is called the "M-Diety complex." "They have this feeling of God-like invulnerability," he said. "They feel they don't get sick or shouldn't get sick, and if they do, they think they can take care of it themselves."

Douglas A. Sargent, M.D., J.D.

Sargent said that many suicides may have been prevented had the support group (family, friends and colleagues) been aware of the warning signs. Sargent noted that even during psychiatric treatment doctors must be watched closely, since they are very good at disguising their suicidal intent and they are also very good at carrying it out the first time.

The most common method of suicide among doctors is with a gun. Sargent said that if any member of the support group happens to notice a weapon around a doctor whom they feel is emotionally distraught or depressed, the person should remove the weapon from the surroundings.

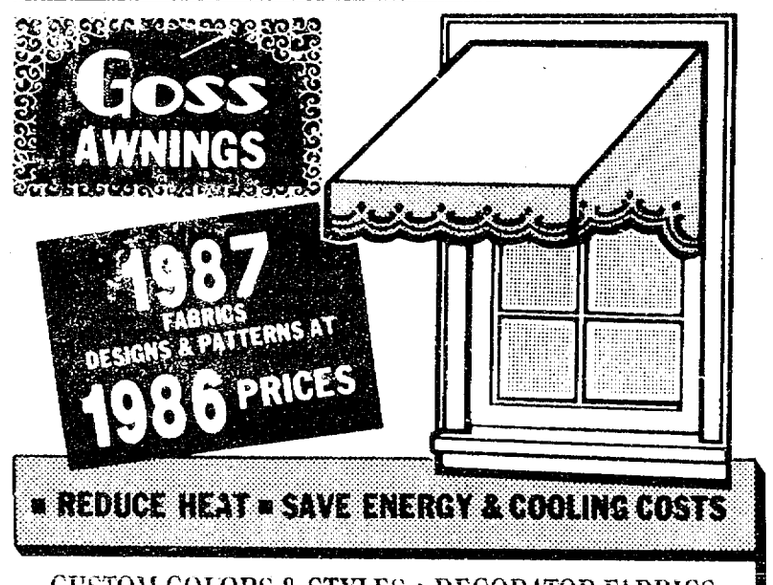

"This eliminates the chance for the spur-of-the-moment decision for someone to take their lives," Sargent said.

Psychiatrists, like all doctors, have a code to live by which prevents them from discussing the medical treatment of a patient with someone else — even family members.

"That doesn't mean we can't listen," Sargent said. "I may be treating someone and get a call from a friend or his family member. I may not even be able to tell them that I am treating the person, but I can listen. I can then use that information to aid in my treatment.

"Don't be shy about invading the privacy of someone you care about. It's better than going to a funeral."

NOTICE OF BOARD OF APPEALS HEARING: Notice is hereby given that the City Council, meeting as the Board of Appeals under the provisions of Section 5-14-1 of the 1975 City Code of the City of Grosse Pointe Woods will meet in the Council-Court Room of the Municipal Building, 20025 Mack Plaza, Grosse Pointe Woods, on MONDAY, July 6, 1987, at 7:30 p.m. to hear the appeal of George Koueiter, who is appealing the denial of the Building Inspector to construct a proposed addition to the building located at 21023 Mack Avenue, also known as Lot #91, Grosse Pointe Woods Assessor's Plat #3. The building occupancy permit was denied by reason of inadequate off-street parking as required in Section 5-3-17 of the 1975 City Code. A variance is therefore necessary from the Board of Appeals. All interested parties are invited to attend.

NOTICE OF BOARD OF APPEALS HEARING: Notice is hereby given that the City Council, meeting as a Board of Appeals under provisions of Section 5-14-1 of the 1975 City Code will meet in the Council-Court Room of the Municipal Building, 20025 Mack Plaza, on Monday, July 6, 1987, at 7:30 p.m., to hear the appeal of Michael Fried who is appealing the denial of the Building Inspector to issue a building permit for the proposed construction of a 16'x20' garage at 2037 Allard. The building permit was denied due to the fact that buildings on the site would occupy more than the 35% lot coverage allowed as set forth in Section 5-4-3, Schedule of Regulations, Item F, of the Zoning Ordinance of the City of Grosse Pointe Woods. A variance is therefore required. All interested parties are invited to attend.

tached to things American than to the memories of the old country. It's a problem he has tried to avoid in his own family.

"My children are pretty much American now," he said. "For them, Italy is a place to go on vacation. I understand that they are from another place from me.

"It's in my own best interests not to impose my ways on them... This way at least they absorb some traditions. Many people lose their children — they almost try to buy them."

On the opposite tack are some immigrants who want to put the old country behind them completely. Favazza said he was up against some of that in the push to add Italian to the Grosse Pointe curriculum.

"I had to make people understand the importance of their children being bilingual," he said. "One of the things we hear is 'you're in America, you should speak English.' But I'm an internationalist. People should be like a citizen of every country. Disagreements come up because of ignorance of other cultures — knowledge is transmitted through language."

Favazza has made it his hobby to keep up on the Italian community. Famous names flow — Frank Sinatra, Frank Capra, Frank Stella. He knows where all of their parents were born. Joe DiMaggio's mother was born in the same city as Favazza: Terrasini, Sicily.

In fact, a large portion of the Italian community in America came from southern Italy. Sicilians form the largest group and the first Italian immigrants to Detroit came from Terrasini — via Cleveland.

It's the older group of immigrants who need Favazza's help the most. They tend to be less educated, more impoverished, more tied to the homeland. "The people who immigrated (earlier) were the people who had to immigrate," he said. "People with no job or skill or education. Somebody with nothing hunting for something.

"There's still a small community feeling. Everybody knows everybody else... It's our job to talk about the Italy of today, but they don't want to hear that. They know the Italy they left — all they care about the United States is having money and a job. We have opera, but how many Italians go to the opera? None."

In contrast, however, are the new immigrants. "The new ones don't need us. They're high-tech executives. They don't really need our help. They're educated and sophisticated."

Favazza is working hard to promote exchanges between Italy and her immigrant children. Besides activities at the Italian Cultural Center, he is trying to set up discount travel to Sicily on Alitalia airlines.

"People go back to learn more about their roots," he said, "and it's a good deal for Sicily because they spend money. For Sicily, it's an investment; for Italians here, it's a cultural investment."

He's been working on the project for two years, recently bringing nine mayors representing 17 communities on the Golfo del Castelmare to Detroit to interest them in the idea. Favazza expects it to be a success.

"The immigrants here almost underwrote the Sicilian economy through the money they sent home to relatives."

Zoo party kick-off

Gail McEntee of Grosse Pointe recently met with three of the Four Tops, Obie Benson, Duke Fakir and Lawrence Payton. McEntee coordinated a news conference at the Detroit Zoo to kick off the 1987 Sunset at the Zoo party for June 23.

Sunset at the Zoo will visit the past this year for The Grand Old American Picnic. The Four Tops are honorary co-chairs of the event that is expected to draw more than 2,000 people. Tickets at $40 each or two for $75 are available by calling 541-5717.

Joe Walker, a Grosse Pointe resident and DuMouchelle auctioneer, will handle the auction at the event. Items include box seats for the Detroit Tigers and Pistons, an autographed hockey stick from the Red Wings, a private screening of a first-run movie for 50 people, two historic MGM posters of stars of yesteryear, a red bicycle built for two, an elegant picnic basket from Jacobson's, a Piston sweatshirt and autographed ball and other items.

Cabaret

The Rackham Symphony Choir with orchestra will present its annual Cabaret Under the Stars at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House.

The choir will perform selections from Lerner & Loewe musicals, such as "Paint Your Wagon," "Camelot," and "My Fair Lady." Performance is at 8 p.m. under the direction of Frederic DeHaven, Saturday, June 20.

Soloists are Jeanne Heller Ludwig, soprano; Rochelle Rosenthal, alto; Sylvia Reid, alto; Michael Pavilich, tenor; and David Ludwig, bass.

Tickets are $10, and can be purchased at Village Records and Tapes at 17116 Kercheval.

Park schedules free concerts

The Grosse Pointe Park Recreation Commission and city council will sponsor a combination of concerts for all Pointe citizens to be held at Patterson Park. Admission is free and all it requires is any Grosse Pointe community park pass.

The first concert is Sunday, June 28, at 7 p.m. and features the Renaissance Brass Quintet directed by Bill Beger. This will be the third summer that the group has played at the lakefront park.

Selections will range from Renaissance Brass classics to singalong show tunes.

A dedication of the gazebo recently constructed for the city from the Willeke estate will precede the concert.

The Surfside Six Dixieland band, led by Park resident Tom Saunders, will perform Sunday, July 26, at 7 p.m.

Take a balloon ride

The War Memorial announces that hot air balloon flights may be scheduled for any day, Monday through Thursday until mid-August. These dates are in addition to those published in the Center's May/June Calendar.

Tickets are $125 per person and must be purchased one week in advance. Call 881-7511.

Stratford overnight trip planned

The reservation deadline for the War Memorial's Stratford Festival overnight trip planned for Friday and Saturday, Sept. 11 and 12, is Wednesday, July 1.

The trip's itinerary calls for two full days of activities highlighted by the Friday evening performance of "Cabaret" and matinee production of Shakespeare's "Othello."

The trip also includes one night's lodging at The Festival Inn, lunch upon arrival at Rundle's and dinner at the Waterlot. On Saturday morning, travelers will visit the Farmers' Market and enjoy a guided tour through the Studio Kinkroft, where the works of regional artists and craftsmen are on display.

Proof of citizenship is required: valid passport or birth certificate with embossed seal. The trip is $180 per person, double occupancy; $40, single supplement. Call 881-7511, Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. for further information.

Nutrition hotline

If you have a question about healthy eating habits, you can call the St. John Hospital Nutrition Hotline. A registered dietitian will answer any nutrition-related question you have.

Call 343-3826, every Wednesday from 11 a.m. to noon, and leave your question with the office receptionist. A dietitian will return your call as soon as possible.

Two-thirds of all thefts occur at night.

WINNERS CIRCLE

BY LAURIE KIPP

We often get questions about how Michigan Lottery revenues support education. Details are provided below.

Q: How much has the Lottery contributed toward education since its start?

A: Lottery net revenues for education have totaled about $2.5 billion since the first ticket was sold in November of 1972.

Q: How is this money used?

A: The governor signed legislation in May of 1981 which specifically earmarks revenues from all Michigan Lottery games for the state School Aid Fund to help support kindergarten–12th grade education. Prior to that time, the money first went into the general fund, along with other revenues for schools.

Q: How is the money given to school districts?

A: Lottery revenues are disbursed to individual school districts by the Michigan Department of Education according to terms of the state School Aid Formula which was developed by the legislature.

Q: How much does the Lottery contribute?

A: During the 1985-86 fiscal year, the Lottery's contribution exceeded $415 million, or about 22 percent of money in that fund. Other fund money comes from various state taxes and is then supplemented by general fund revenue.

Q: Has the Lottery contribution been increasing?

A: Yes. In fact, it has more than doubled since the 1981-82 fiscal year. For the past two years, it has exceeded the amount provided by the federal government.

Q: Why haven't my school taxes gone down then?

A: The annual state budget for support of elementary and secondary education has also increased during the past few years. So, while your taxes may not have come down, maintaining the same level of educational funding without Lottery revenues would have cost the average Michigan household an additional $130 last year alone.

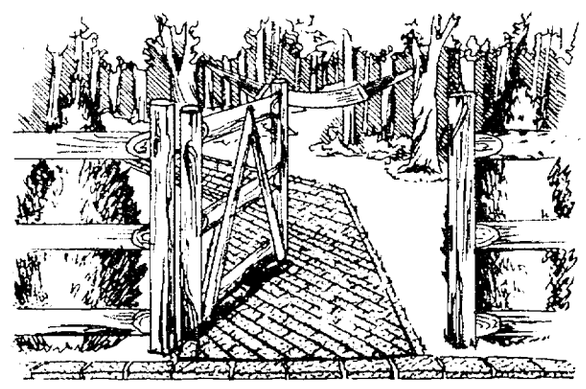

Q: How does this compare to previous years?

A: In the Lottery's first year, 1972-73, the equivalent figure would have been about $11 per household. This grew to about $64 in 1981-82, and came to approximately $113 in 1984-85.

For submitting the question leading to this column, 50 tickets to the current instant game, "Winning Numbers," have been sent to Donna Vanderwall of Ontonagon.

If you have a Lottery question not yet covered in these monthly columns, send it to: "Winners Circle," Michigan Lottery, P.O. Box 30077, Lansing, MI 48909.

City of Grosse Pointe Farms Michigan

NOTICE OF HEARING

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Zoning Board of Appeals will meet in City Hall, 90 Kerby Road, Grosse Pointe Farms on:

MONDAY, JUNE 29, 1987
at 7:30 p.m. to hear the following:

1) the appeal of the Grosse Pointe Public School System for the enlargement and renovation of the Grosse Pointe Central Library located at 10 Kercheval Avenue. Permit issuance was denied for reason that sufficient off-street parking would not be available on the property to meet the requirements of the city's Zoning Ordinance under Section 1504, Item 9. One-hundred twenty-seven (127) parking spaces are required according to building criteria under Section 1504, Item 9 of the City's Zoning Ordinance, whereas the plan of proposed construction provides forty-eight (48). Under the provisions of Section 1504 Item 9, the Board may grant exceptions to off-street parking requirements where it determines after a hearing that the requirements are excessive or unduly burdensome for any of several reasons specified.

2) The appeal of Mr. Gail Sidlek, owner of the premises located at 78 Lake Shore Drive, from the denial of the Building Department to issue a Building Permit for the construction of an addition to the side and rear of his existing dwelling located at the foregoing address. Such permit issuance was denied for reason that:

a. The residence located on the foregoing premises is non-conforming for reason that it is in violation of the side yard provisions of Article XIII, Section 1300 of the City's Zoning Ordinance, and in accordance with the provisions of Article XV, Section 1502, Item 4-A of the City's Zoning Ordinance, no such structure may be enlarged or structurally altered unless a variance is granted.

b. The proposed addition on the side and rear yard would further infringe upon the side yard requirements of 12.4 feet, leaving a side yard of approximately 9.9 feet thereby requiring a variance from the provisions of Article XIII, Section 1300 of the City's Zoning Ordinance.

The Hearings will be public. Interested property-owners or residents of the City are invited to attend.

Pierce students win 18 writing awards

Pierce Middle School students won 18 awards in the 1986-87 Free Press Writing Awards Competition. The contest is open to students in grades seven through 12 in nine counties, and is open to public and private school students.

Receiving an award of excellence in the short story category were Scott Cook, Stacey Eisenkraft, Amy Greenfield and Jennifer Schultz. Honorable mention short story awards were given to Molly McGrath and Eric Rentenbach.

In the sketch category, Kari Elsila and Jennifer Schultzman both received honorable mention, and Erica Mondro was given a commendation award.

Three students received awards of excellence in the poetry category. They were Scott McGarvey, Eric Rentenbach and Joshua Walter. Honorable mention went to John Itchon, Ashley Moran and Katie Page. Poetry commendation award was given to John Martin.

In the essay category, commendation awards went to Stacey Eisenkraft and Annika Mitchell.

Board appoints new Pierce principal

C. Suzanne Klein was appointed June 9 as the new principal of Pierce Middle School. She will replace Principal Donald Bassett who is retiring after a 33-year career in the Grosse Pointe public schools and with whom she worked as an administrative intern two years ago.

In recommending Klein, Superintendent John A. Whritner noted that she was the unanimous choice of the selection committee. Nearly 60 candidates applied for the position and 10 were interviewed by a parent, teacher and administrative team.

This past year, Klein has served as assistant principal of Parcells Middle School under the direction of Principal William Christofferson. Since joining the school system in 1970, Klein has been a classroom teacher, teacher consultant and administrative intern.

She has three degrees from the University of Michigan: a bachelor of arts in special education for the mentally impaired; master of science in special education administration and a doctorate in education administration.

Pierce Middle School is one of three middle schools in the district and has had only three principals in its nearly 50 years. (Klein will be the fourth.)

Located in the Park, Pierce was built as a WPA project in 1939 and currently holds more than 500 middle school students in grades six, seven and eight. Its facilities include a 900-seat auditorium and an indoor swimming pool which are used by many community organizations.

To tour Europe

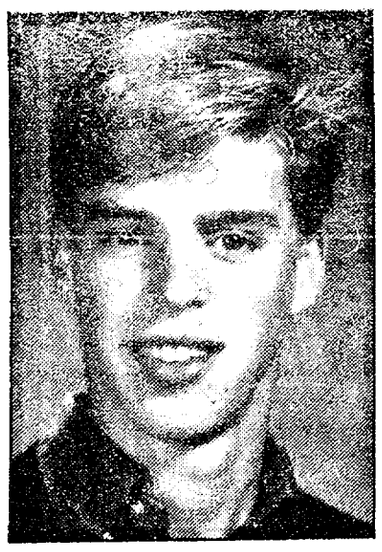

Kurt Linebaugh, a junior at North, and his sister, Lydia, a freshman, will visit Europe this summer as members of the Blue Lake International Orchestra and Symphony Band. Anna Taylor, a junior at South High, will also participate in the program.

The students will tour Belgium, the Netherlands, Austria and West Germany from June 17 through July 15. About 250 Blue Lake musicians will make the trip.

Kurt, who plays the violin, and Lydia, who plays the clarinet, are the children of Cathy and Mike Linebaugh of Grosse Pointe Woods. Anna's parents are Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor of Grosse Pointe Park.

ULS student wins national honor for Spanish

Michael Coello, a ninth-grade student at University Liggett School, has been named the number five student in the nation in Level I Spanish. Coello's honor is based on his performance in the National Spanish Exam.

Coello also won several ULS awards. At a recent year-end assembly, Coello received the Helen d'Avignon Award for the highest academic average in grade nine; and the Jeannette M. Liggett History Award for "strong and consistent interest and effort in history by a ninth or 10th grader." Coello was also named as the outstanding student in Latin I or II. As the outstanding student in Spanish I or II, Coello received an award given by the consul general of Spain and the National Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese.

In addition to his academic honors, Coello won a junior varsity letter in soccer, and a varsity letter in ice hockey. He was also a member of the ULS Chorale which won First Division ratings from all judges at the Michigan School Vocal Association's District 16 Choir Festival.

Wolves

In the unfruitful high arctic, a pack of wolves may cover 1,000 square miles of territory to find vulnerable prey, says National Geographic.

Two South students to study abroad

Catherine Johnston, a junior, and Christiana Greiling, a sophomore, both from South High School, have been selected to participate in the American Field Service's Summer Language Study program.

Johnston, who has studied Spanish for four years, will live with a family in Chile. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Johnston of the City.

Greiling, the daughter of Franzisk Greiling of Grosse Pointe and Dr. Fritz Greiling of Port Huron, will spend the first month of her stay in France on campus. She will then live with a French family for four weeks. She has studied French for three years.

Upon completion of their studies, both students will earn college credit from Concordia College.

Cubs beautify school

Cub Scout Pack 39 of Our Lady Star of the Sea planted more than 400 ground cover plants in the school's courtyard last month. The scouts are working on the world conservation badge and will help maintain the plants and the courtyard during the summer. The plants were donated by the Cornwall family of Grosse Pointe Park.

Benjamin Hein

South's two top students honored

Benjamin E. Hein, son of Dr. and Mrs. Gerhardt Hein, of Grosse Pointe Farms, was named valedictorian of the Class of 1987 at graduation ceremonies June 12 at Grosse Pointe South High School.

Hein was a National Merit Scholarship finalist, president of the National Honor Society and played first oboe in the symphonic Band. He also led South's debate team to the state finals this year.

An honorable mention selection to the Detroit Free Press' All-Academic Team, Hein will attend Columbia College in New York City as a John Jay National Scholar next fall.

Lucia McMullin Bridenstine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bridenstine Jr. of Grosse Pointe was named salutatorian.

Bridenstine was active in the National Honor Society, varsity gymnastics, varsity track, cross country, symphony orchestra, Foreign Exchange Club, Ski Club, Games Club, Varsity Club, Junior Achievement and the Computer Club.

She was vice president and historian of the Key Club, secretary of the Italian Club for two years, treasurer of the Foreign Exchange Club and first chair in the Symphony Orchestra.

An outstanding gymnast and the recipient of numerous awards in Italian and Spanish, Bridenstine will attend the University of Colorado next fall where she will study foreign languages and linguistics.

Back to school

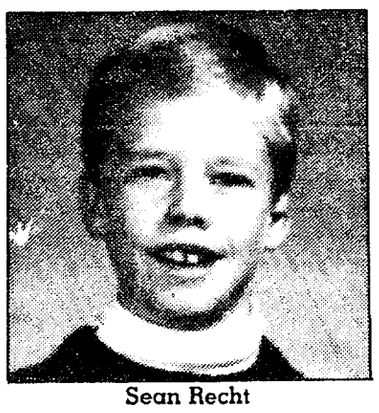

At the Grosse Pointe Academy, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore A. Callahan joined their granddaughter, Catherine Taylor, for Grandparents' Day May 29. Nearly 400 grandparents visited the Academy and enjoyed a box lunch on the Lakeshore lawn.

Sean Recht

Each week in this column, we will focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a woodworking project, a book review.

The following was written by 10-year-old Sean Recht, a fifth-grader at Trombly Elementary School. He is the son of Katherine and Thomas Recht of Grosse Pointe Park.

Royal Stadium

It's opening day,
And they're ready to play.
They have their bats and balls,
And in center field there are the falls.
George Brett is in the field,
His mitt is hard, like a shield.
The ball is hit,
And here comes George backhanding it!
He throws to second.
As he falls.
And over to first,
Goes the ball.
The call is a double play,
And off the field comes McRay.
Here come the Royals.
Up to bat.
And there in the dugout,
George Brett sat...

Students learn outdoors

Students from Kerby and Defer elementary schools made the outdoors their living classroom May 26-29, as they camped and learned together at YMCA's Camp Storer near Jackson.

Marcia Ferguson and her fifth-graders from Kerby in Grosse Pointe Farms,, and Judy Morlan and her fourth-graders from Defer in the Park, enjoyed their outdoor education experience.

Students had been preparing throughout the year for their Camp Storer trip. Fund-raisers enabled students to earn money to defray costs. Representatives from Camp Storer met with families during planned orientation sessions. The teachers, plus Storer's staff of naturalists, environmentalists and counselors supervised the students' stay at the camp.

Economic development expert optimistic

Government, business cooperation key to economy

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

Norton Berman, currently of Grosse Pointe Park, has spent a career working on ways to improve the business climate. He has worked for state and foreign governments and private business, as an economist and lawyer. He came to Detroit in January to serve as counsel to Dykema, Gossett, Spencer, Goodnow & Trigg in the firm's public finance and government policy practice group.

Berman sees hope in the U.S. economy, although many of its segments will continue to undergo adjustments. "There are tremendous changes as the economy moves from a manufacturing base to a service base," he said. "Japan is having some of the same problems. It's losing shipbuilding to Taiwan and Korea."

There are several factors that militate against a smooth transition, according to Berman. One is that the United States was settled, in general, according to geographic influences — rivers for transportation or power, ore or oil or coal for mining.

"The ideal for stable economic conditions is diversity," Berman said. "But this country has been built around the advantages of certain areas. . . . Knowledge-based industry doesn't move to the natural resources because its natural resource is people and telecommunications. It's attracted to research institutions."

A second factor causing a bump in the economic transition is the dislocation of people when industry changes. "Pittsburgh is a marvelous success story, (for example)" Berman said. "It's a true renaissance city. But the other side of the story is that the traditional wealth of Pittsburgh was in the steel towns in the valleys. They're all dead."

Michigan is on the way to a successful diversification, after what Berman called a "slow start." By now the state is in the forefront of cooperation between government and business, something that Berman believes in and helped to bring about.

Berman directed the state's office of economic development throughout the 1970s and was director of the Department of Commerce 1981-82. In those positions, he was instrumental in bringing together the state, utility companies, universities and industry to form an association dedicated to cooperative research on energy problems. He spearheaded the creation of the Strategic Fund to provide business loans based on future gas and oil revenues. Berman was also involved in the state's venture capital financing program using state pension funds.

"We went through several strategic planning exercises to see what government could do to promote business," he said. "In the last years of the Milliken administration some advanced legislation was passed."

One of the accomplishments of that era was state investment in technology at the two major universities. "The best scientists involved in robotics have been drawn here" as a result, Berman said. "Michigan is seen to be a leader in innovative ways of fostering cooperation between the state and industry."

Another was the creation of the tax abatement plan, the right idea at the right time, but one which may not be around much longer, Berman said.

"In the '70s, when most of the auto companies had obsolete plants, they needed the tax breaks as an encouragement to stay in Michigan," he said. "There were some communities that refused to grant them, but most of them relented. . . The abatement is probably reaching the end of its usefulness, but on balance, Michigan was the right place to try that sort of thing."

Berman is now practicing law, working with local governments and public agencies like economic development corporations to organize their financing. "It's esoteric, but absolutely critical," he said. "Every government is constantly borrowing money for streets, sewers — for instance, Grosse Pointe Park, with its canal work. They could finance it with a special assessment, but the city may well go out in the market.

"What lawyers and financial consultants do is advise officials on how best to borrow the money they need. The timing, the instrument, how it relates to federal tax laws."

The federal tax aspect is becoming more complex as governments get into new fields, Berman said. The federal government is prohibited from taxing government functions, but when local governments start building stadiums, for instance, the line between government and private ventures becomes unclear.

"Where does government activity stop and private activity begin?" Berman said. "It creates new questions. Governments are doing things now in their relationships with business that 15 years ago would have been called socialism — or worse."

Berman has served as the top economic development official for the state of Rhode Island, as counsel for the Agency for International Development's Latin American bureau, in Peace Corps directorial positions in Botswana and Liberia and as assistant secretary for trade and economic relations for Papua New Guinea. He has also served in industry as general counsel for the Aguirre Co., a multinational agro-industrial business, and as director of the American Craft Council, where he was responsible for opening the new American Craft Museum in New York.

Bell official speaks to senior men

Michigan Bell Vice President E. Daniel Grady, a Farms resident, addressed members of the Senior Men's Club at the War Memorial, June 9.

In southeast Michigan alone, Grady said, Michigan Bell's outside plant and central office investments total more than $2.3 billion — including $22 million in the Grosse Pointes.

Grady stressed that all businesses are becoming increasingly dependent on information services. Yet, he said, "one very capable potential supplier of that technology — Ameritech, along with its individual communications companies — is precluded from working to develop that much-needed technology.

"Our exclusion from that market is slowing progress within that market," Grady said. "And our ability to fully meet all our customers' needs is crippled."

He said allowing the Ameritech companies — including Michigan Bell and Bell operating companies in surrounding states — to enter manufacturing would create additional jobs in America, and possibly in Michigan. In addition, Grady said it would allow Michigan Bell to more fully and effectively serve its customer's needs.

Hospital school reaccredited

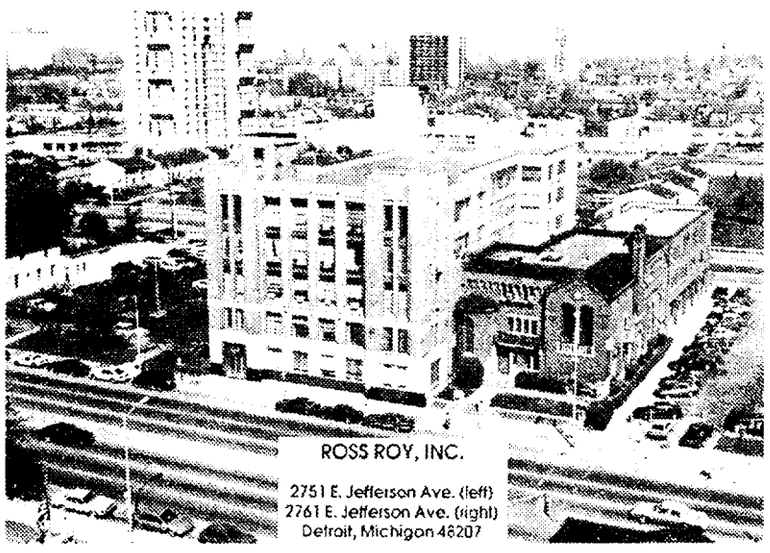

St. John Hospital's School of Medical Technology was awarded continuing accreditation of seven years by the Committee on Allied Health Education and Accreditation (CAHEA).

Seven years is the maximum time granted to any institution without any stipulations or recommendations to change or improve the program.

As a part of the review process, the school prepared a self-study report for the committee and a site inspection was conducted by members of CAHEA. According to Margaret Kluka, program director of the school, the review process took two years to complete. The 700-page study documents the program's activities, such as the various teaching methods, course content, identification and qualification of the course instructors and description of the Medical Technology School's overall purpose.

The program has room for an eight-student enrollment. Students in the school have their bachelor of science degree and spend the clinical year of their education at the hospital.

Dr. Herbert Krickstein, of Grosse Pointe Woods, medical director of the school, said the school's medical technologists are placed throughout the nation. "I'm pleased the program has been reaccredited for seven years. It proves that we are determined to provide the best education possible."

Ross Roy donates properties to University of Detroit

Ross Roy, Inc. and the University of Detroit announced a preliminary plan calling for a major donation of land and buildings owned by the advertising agency on East Jefferson to the University.

The property package, which lies between East Jefferson and Larned near Joseph Campau, includes a three-story, 30,000 square foot building, originally built in 1927, and a larger five-story, 80,000 square foot building, constructed in 1929. Also included are two adjacent paved parking lots, totaling 45,000 square feet.

Ross Roy will be consolidating many of its operations later this year in a new Ross Roy Group Headquarters facility, now under construction in Bloomfield Hills. One major Ross Roy division not affected by the move — Ross Roy Productions — has already established new permanent offices at 300 River Place in downtown Detroit. Additional expansion at the River Place is anticipated in the near future.

How to buy a used car

The Michigan Consumers Council has published a new brochure, "Buying a Used Car," that covers such purchasing considerations as warranties and service contracts and actual mileage.

A list of appropriate enforcement agencies that deal with purchasing problems is also included. All information is presented in a simple, straightforward manner for the first-time used car buyer as well as the experienced purchaser.

A major feature of "Buying a Used Car" is the Used Car Checklist which provides a handy listing of interior and exterior features for inspection as well as what to look for under the hood and during a test drive. The Consumers Council strongly advises that the checklist be completed with the assistance of a qualified independent mechanic.

Copies of "Buying a Used Car" are available free by writing or calling the Michigan Consumers Council, 106 W. Allegan St., 414 Hollister Building, Lansing, Mich. 48933; telephone (517) 373-0947.

The Michigan Consumers Council is a state legislative agency providing consumer information, referral and counseling services on a variety of consumer topics. The agency also acts as a consumer advocate on matters before the Michigan legislature.

Optimists honor science teacher

North High School science department Chairman Gordon Morlan received the 1987 Excellence in Education Award from the Lakeshore Optimists' Club of Grosse Pointe May 28.

A graduate of Ottawa University, Morlan joined the Grosse Pointe schools in 1966 and presently teaches advanced placement chemistry to students from both North and South high schools. Morlan also holds master's degrees from Western Michigan University, in science education, and from the University of New Hampshire, in chemistry.

In 1985 Morlan was chosen as a Michigan representative to participate in the U.S. Army Associates' Program in research development.

The presentation of this year's Excellence in Education Award was made by President Bill VanDerWeighe at the May breakfast meeting held at the War Memorial. Robert Bradon chaired the selection committee and Bob Keller made the arrangements.

Business Notes

An exhibition featuring the boat as a subject for the artist will open in the Gryphon Gallery Saturday, June 20. The show will focus on works on paper in the mediums of watercolor, pastels, lithographs and woodcuts. The pieces presented will range from traditional to contemporary treatments of nautical themes.

Also beginning June 20, the gallery will feature works by New York artist Wayne Ensrud. The pieces to be exhibited were commissioned by the Gryphon Gallery and include scenes of Detroit, the Grand Prix and the Grosse Pointes. Ensrud's use of primary colors and loose brushwork presents a lively, whimsical view of local scenes. Ensrud will be at the opening reception in the gallery from 4 to 7 p.m. Saturday, June 20. The public is invited.

The Gryphon Gallery is located at 99 Kercheval Ave.

St. James Lutheran Church began 47 years ago

This is the second in an occasional series on the churches of Grosse Pointe.

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

When Harold Knoll was 16 years old, he was a member of the first confirmation class of St. James Lutheran Church of Grosse Pointe. The church is a charming Georgian colonial design — red brick, arched windows, white pillars and a graceful, slender steeple topped by a cross. The building, at 170 McMillan Road near Kercheval, projects quaint New England village warmth and charm. At night, the facade of the church and the steeple are bathed in a spotlight.

Back in 1940, members of the brand new St. James mission church set up folding chairs in Grosse Pointe (South) High School's library for Sunday morning services. Harold Knoll remembers it well. Since that year, Knoll has been an usher, an elder, a deacon, treasurer of the Lutheran Layman's League and properties director for the church. He's currently one of the Monday Volunteers, a group of men who meet every Monday morning to do general maintenance chores, gardening, painting and repairs for the church.

"I remember playing in that field before the church was built," said Knoll, a lifelong Grosse Pointer who used to live on Mapleton. "I was one of the first kindergarteners at Richard School, too. And I was a safety patrol boy on the corner of Ridge Road."

Knoll recalled that, within the first few months, St. James' congregation began to overflow the high school library. They moved to the Punch and Judy Theater for Sunday worship services, and members took turns hosting other church-related activities in their homes.

George Schelter and Robert Rimbo are pastors of St. James today, and the membership has grown from 59 charter members to about 300 families. "We have approximately 600 confirmed members; 730 baptized members," said Schelter. The church building was completed in 1948, and the office wing and the educational wing were added in 1955.

Knoll remembers the groundbreaking ceremony for the new building. "It was a warm, summery day. We all marched from the Punch and Judy Theater over to McMillan and there was an ice cream social afterward." Georgian architecture was unusual for a Lutheran Church in those days, he said. Lutheran churches were more often built like large cathedrals. St. James' design was chosen to blend in with the other Georgian structures in Grosse Pointe like the high school and many private homes.

The first pastor, George Kurz, remained with the congregation from 1940 until his retirement in 1980. Pastor Schelter was installed in 1981 and Pastor Rimbo came to the church in 1982. "One of the most unique things about St. James Lutheran," said Schelter, "is the Munderloh Foundation. The foundation is named after a member who was a successful investment counselor from Grosse Pointe and always wanted to be a pastor. When he died he left money to set up an eight-member board of trustees to administer scholarships for men and women who want to attend seminaries. The foundation awards about 120 scholarships every year to students in seminaries all over the United States."

According to pastors Schelter and Rimbo, St. James provides the traditional Bible study, education and worship services. Some social activities are popular too — such as the group called First Friday. Members of all ages and their friends plan a variety of social activities for the first Friday of the month — everything from road rallies, square dances, theater trips, Tiger games, to concerts, cookouts at the park, and more.

Beyond the church membership, St. James is involved in a number of ventures that help other people, according to Schelter and Rimbo. The church has a strong mission outreach, Schelter said. They have three members on the board of FLEC and they also support FLEC with money. The church is active in the Grosse Pointe Ministerial Association, whose biggest fundraiser is the CROP walk. CROP walkers from St. James raised more than $3,000 this year. Members also support Crossroads East and a soup kitchen at Faith Lutheran Church in Detroit, with volunteers and funds.

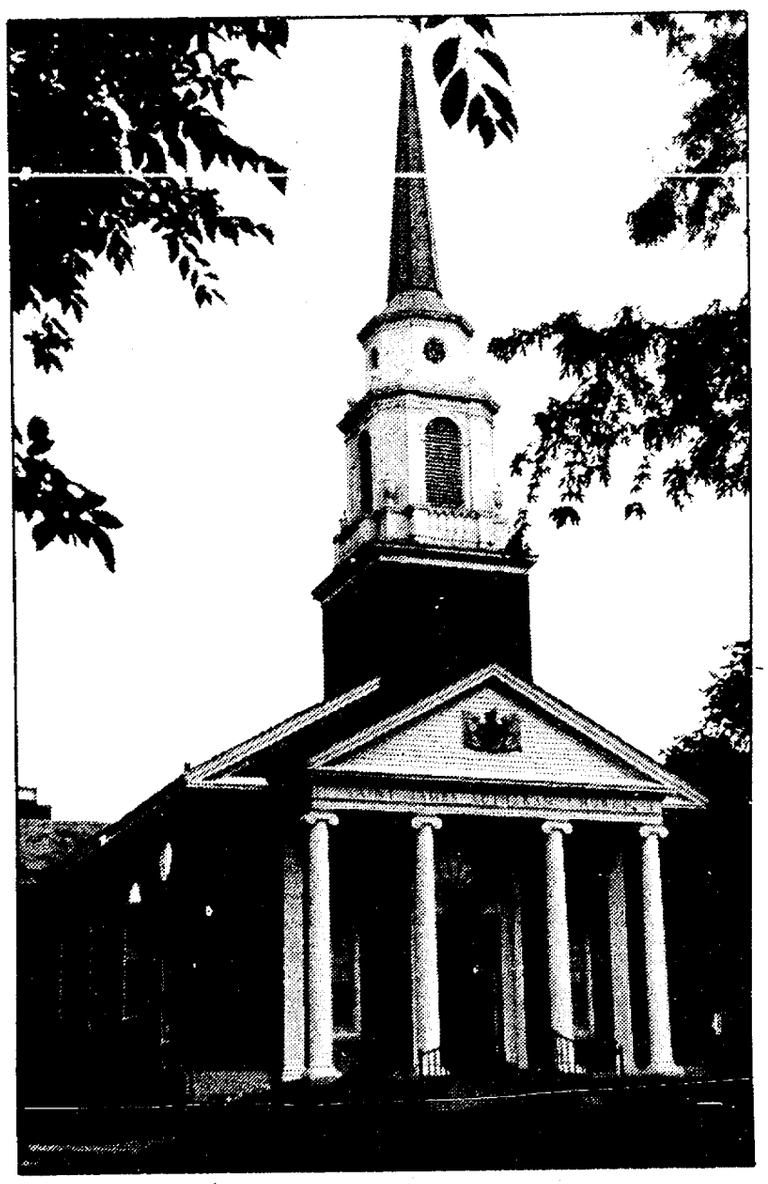

"Our members provide financial support and participate in exchange programs with a couple of Detroit Lutheran churches," Schelter said. "Also, these city churches recommend families each month that have specific needs. Our members respond with food, clothing, furniture — whatever is needed. They respond generously. It's our way of keeping the needs of the city and other people in the forefront," he said.

"We also provide volunteers and financial support for Calvary Senior Center," said Schelter. Calvary provides senior day care, a gathering place for seniors, minor home repairs, and meals on wheels for senior citizens in the area.

St. James will be serving the Grosse Pointe community again this summer, by holding its annual Vacation Bible School for children from ages 3 through fifth grade. The program generally attracts about 50 children each morning for a week of Bible study, art projects and activities at the church.

By the first of next year, St. James will be part of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, the name given to the final merger of three Lutheran churches that has just been negotiated. The Southeastern Michigan Synod, of which St. James is a part, includes territory from Ann Arbor to Detroit, from Flint to Ohio, and counts 5.3 million members.

St. James' 39-year-old steeple will undergo a facelift beginning in July. According to Schelter, the steeple needs some rotting wood replaced; some leaks repaired; and some general maintainance work. A scaffold will be built around the steeple and in front of the church while the month-long repairs are being completed.

St. James Lutheran Church, on McMillan Road, is an example of Georgian architecture. The style is unusual for Lutheran churches, according to Pastor George Schelter.

Pastors George Schelter and Robert Rimbo, of St. James Lutheran Church of Grosse Pointe, said the church currently has about 300 families as members. The church began in 1940 with 59 charter members.

Together, at last

The joining of Lutheran groups is the birth of a new church, not a merger — clergy say

By Elsa Frohman
Feature Editor

Alphabet soup is getting to be a thing of the past in the Lutheran church. The American Lutheran Church (ALC), the Lutheran Church in America (LCA) and the Association of Evangelical Lutheran Churches (ALEC) are in the process of joining to form a single Evangelical Lutheran Church in America.

Five Lutheran clergymen from the Grosse Pointe area met recently to talk about the implications of the new Lutheran church. They were the Rev. Robert Curry of St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran Church on Chalfonte in Grosse Pointe Farms; the Rev. Phillip Wahl of the same church; the Rev. Dr. Rodney Hill of Calvary Senior Center, an agency of Lutheran Social Services; the Rev. Robert Rimbo of St. James Lutheran Church on McMillan in Grosse Pointe Farms; and the Rev. Olaf Lidums of Salem Memorial Lutheran Church in Detroit on Moross near I-94.

The clergymen represented two of the three groups participating in the new body. St. James has been a member of the AELC, while the other two churches have been members of the ALC. Lutheran Social Services is a cooperative venture of the three churches that has in many ways foreshadowed the joining.

Wahl explained that the joining is a continuation of a long-standing trend in the Lutheran church.

"It has been a trend in the United States to bring Lutherans together," Wahl said. "Lutherans have been the only protestant group that didn't have English as its language (in the United States). At one time, there were 16 different language groups (of Lutheran congregations) in Detroit. They had different cultures. In 1905, there were 104 Lutheran groups. Today there are 18."

After the formation of the new ELCA, 98 percent of all Lutherans will belong to two of those 18 groups.

For the average Lutheran congregation member, the new church is not going to make a great deal of difference, the clergy agreed. The names and traditions of the individual churches will not change for the most part.

"We're not going to be changing our sign," Rimbo said. "We've never had a synod affiliation in our name."

The major differences will be in the hierarchy of the church. There there were once three synods serving the lower peninsula of Michigan, there will now be one serving 11 counties in lower Michigan.

"It makes for better geography," Wahl said.

Artists Market Garden Sale a success

Taking "Time Out," the title of the Jean Hudson-designed table tableau, is Sam Goodyear, son of hosts Connie and Dick Goodyear.

It was a perfect June afternoon for the Detroit Artists Market Garden Sale held June 3 in the Provencal road garden of Connie and Dick Goodyear. Sunshine streamed through the trees and illuminated the paintings, prints, photographs, sculptures, jewelry and works in glass, clay and fiber which had been provided by over 250 artists.

The event is one of three annual fund-raisers which benefit the Detroit Artists Market, an art gallery located in Detroit's Harmonie Park which features works of artists living in the southeastern Michigan area. Although the gallery frequently showcases the work of established artists, it's primary thrust is to encourage and exhibit the work of emerging artists.

As garden party patrons entered Provencal Road, they were greeted by last year's Garden Sale chair, John Warren, who gave parking information. Besides valet parking, Billy Chapin and Peter Kauffman were driving Chrysler mini-vans for those who wished to park their cars along the golf course.

Volunteers had been busy since early morning setting up the paintings, sculpture and tables displaying the smaller art works in the garden and around the pool.

A special feature this year were four table tableaux designed with objects d'art from the Artists Market. Jean Hudson entitled her rustic summer alfresco fete "Time Out" and included an Anita Flory goat eating a straw hat and Bernard Travnikar's rough hewn willow chairs and table.

Jack Tarpley, of William Denler, did his table tableau with a Grand Prix theme by utilizing car placemats and chunky glasswear, all shaded by a large umbrella.

Mary Kay Crain and Mary Stroble were in charge of hors d'oeuvres and filled two large tables with a summer array of pates, fruit, cheese and crackers.

Greeting visitors as they arrived were Carole Peabody and Dolly Taylor at the membership table. There is no admission charge to the Garden Sale and

An elegant menu for a buffet or family gathering

The following recipes come from the low-calorie, low-cholesterol, budgetwise kitchens of Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth.

Stuffed Flank Steak Two Ways
Romaine, Orange and Watercress Salad
Glazed Carrots and Onions
Cauliflower and Tomato Bake
Cranberry Whole Wheat Nut Bread
Frozen Lime Sherbet Cake
Three Egg Angel Cake

Stuffed Flank Steak Two Ways

1 flank steak (1-1/2 pounds)
Instant meat tenderizer (optional)
Stuffing (recipes below)
Oil
1 can (10 ounces) condensed beef broth undiluted
2 Tblsp. wine vinegar
2 tsp. mixed pickling spice
1 Tblsp. cornstarch blended with 2 Tblsp. water

Unroll the steak and trim off any fat. If desired, use tenderizer, following manufacturer's directions, or score in diamond pattern at one-inch intervals, making cuts about 1/4 inch deep. Spread steak with stuffing to about one inch from edge, pressing down slightly. Roll up from narrow end and fasten with skewer.

Tie firmly with string both lengthwise and crosswise and remove skewer. Heat a small amount of oil in a deep, heavy saucepan and brown meat on all sides, turning carefully. Add beef broth, vinegar and pickling spice. Bring to boil, lower heat, cover and simmer for 45 minutes, or until the meat is tender. Remove meat and strain gravy. Stir in cornstarch mixture and cook until thickened. Cut meat roll in thick slices and serve with gravy.

Makes four servings of meat and one cup of gravy.

VEGETABLE STUFFING:
1 Tblsp. prepared mustard
1/4 cup shredded peeled carrot
1/4 cup shredded zucchini
2 Tblsp. minced onion
1 Tblsp. oil
1/2 tsp. seasoned salt
1/8 tsp. seasoned pepper
1/2 cup soft bread crumbs (one slice)

Spread stuffing side of steak with mustard. Saute carrot, zucchini and onion in oil until onion is tender. Add salt, pepper and crumbs and mix well. Proceed as in main recipe.

APPLE STUFFING: 1/2 cup finely diced peeled tart apple
2 Tblsp. minced onion
1 Tblsp. raisins
2 Tblsp. margarine
1/4 tsp. each salt and poultry seasoning
1/8 tsp. pepper
3/4 cup soft bread crumbs (1-1/2 slices)

Saute apple, onion and raisins in the margarine until onion is tender. Add seasonings and crumbs and mix well. Proceed as in main recipe.

Romaine, Orange and Watercress Salad

3 or 4 navel oranges
2 small heads of romaine (outer leaves removed) washed and dried
1/2 cup green onions, chopped
1 bunch watercress, trimmed, washed and dried
2 Tblsp. orange juice

Remove the peel and pith from the oranges. Cut them in half lengthwise, then into crosswise slices. Place in a bowl, cover with plastic and chill until serving time. Tear romaine into bite sized pieces, stir with watercress and refrigerate covered until serving time.

At serving time, arrange the oranges on the greens and sprinkle onions over the top of them. Thin mustard dressing with two tablespoons of orange juice. Toss at the table or in the pantry. Makes eight servings.

Calories per serving, 66. Cholesterol, a trace.

Mustard-Cream Dressing

1-1/2 tsp. sharp prepared mustard
1 Tblsp. margarine melted, cooled
1/4 cup egg substitute, well beaten
1/3 cup evaporated skim milk
2-1/2 Tblsp. vinegar
1/8 tsp. salt and pepper

Combine ingredients in the top of a double boiler. Mix well with a whisk. Set over simmering water and stir the sauce constantly, until it thickens, about five minutes. Pour into a dish, cool, refrigerate for several hours or overnight. Makes about 3/4 cups.

About 25 calories. Cholesterol, a trace.

Glazed Carrots and Onions

12 carrots peeled
12 small white onions, peeled
2 cups chicken broth
3 Tblsp. margarine, melted
1/4 cup honey
1/2 tsp. tarragon
Dash of salt
Freshly ground pepper

Cut the carrots diagonally into 1/2-inch pieces. Parboil carrots and onions in broth to cover for 10 minutes. Remove vegetables (save liquid) and place in a greased shallow baking dish.

Combine margarine with honey and tarragon and pour over vegetables. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Bake at 350-degrees for 20 minutes or until tender. Remove and keep warm.

Place juices in saucepan and cook over high heat until reduced by half. Add vegetables and coat with glaze. Makes eight to 10 servings.

Calories per serving, about 95. Cholesterol, 0.

Cauliflower and Tomato Bake

2 cups water
1/2 tsp. salt
6 cups cauliflowerets
2 large tomatoes (fresh or canned)
1 cup (4 ounces) grated cholesterol-free cheese
3 Tblsp. margarine, melted
3/4 cups fine Italian seasoning
Salt and pepper to taste

Bring water and salt to a boil in a large saucepan. Add cauliflower; cover and return to boil. Reduce heat and cook about 10 minutes or until crisp-tender.

Cut tomatoes into eighths. Arrange tomatoes and cauliflower in a shallow baking dish. Sprinkle with grated cheese. Combine melted margarine and bread crumbs and Italian seasoning until well-blended. Sprinkle crumb mixture over casserole. Add salt and pepper if needed. Bake in a preheated, 375°-oven about 20 minutes or until done. Makes eight to 10 servings.

Calories, about 104 for each of 10 servings. Cholesterol, 0.

Cranberry Whole Wheat Nut Bread

3/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar
2 Tblsp. margarine
1 egg
1-1/2 cups skim milk
2 cups unsifted whole wheat flour
1 cup unsifted unbleached flour
3-1/2 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
1 can (8 ounces) jellied cranberry sauce
Grated rind of one orange
1/2 cup coarsely chopped English walnuts

In a bowl, mix brown sugar, margarine and egg. Beat until well blended. Stir in milk. Stir in dry ingredients and beat until smooth and well-blended. Cut jellied cranberry sauce into 1/2-inch cubes. Fold cranberry sauce, orange rind and nuts into dough. Spread dough in a greased 9 x 5 x 3-inch loaf pan. Let stand at room temperature for 20 minutes. Bake in a pre-heated oven for 350° for one hour and 10 minutes. Unmold loaf and cool thoroughly on a rack before cutting into thin slices. Makes one loaf, 27 slices.

Calories, about 112 per slice. Cholesterol 9 mgs.

Frozen Lime Sherbet Cake

1 Angel Food Cake
2 pints lime or other sherbet, very slightly softened, divided
Whipped topping
Mint sprigs (optional) Insert picks, midpoint, at several places around the outside of the cake. Using picks as guides, split the cake with a serrated knife or long thread. With narrow spatula, quickly spread one pint of sherbet on bottom layer. Then quickly spread remaining sherbet on top layer, swirling attractively. Carefully place on bottom layer. Freeze until surface is hardened. Cover airtightly and freeze until firm. Remove from freezer 10 to 15 minutes before serving. Garnish with rosettes or dollops of whipped topping and with mint sprigs.

Calories, 222 per 1/12 serving. Cholesterol, a trace.

Three Egg Angel Cake

2/3 cup skim milk
3/4 cup sugar
3 egg whites, stiffly beaten
1/8 tsp. salt
1 cup pastry flour
2 level tsp. Royal baking powder
1/2 tsp. cream of tartar
1/2 tsp. almond extract
1/2 tsp. vanilla extract

Heat milk and sugar in a small saucepan just to the boiling point, stirring to thoroughly dissolve sugar. Beat egg whites with salt until very stiff. Pour hot milk syrup slowly over egg whites, beating constantly. Let cool while measuring and sifting together flour, baking powder and cream of tartar, five times.

Fold dry ingredients into egg white mixture. Add extracts. Pour batter into small, ungreased angel food tin or in a large loaf pan. Bake in a preheated 350°-oven for about 30 minutes, or until cake tests done. Remove from oven and invert pan to cool. Cut into 10 servings.

Calories per serving, about 113. Cholesterol, a trace.

The 'S.O.S. Sail On to Summer Cruise' is planned for the Grosse Pointe Newcomers Club on June 20. The boat sails at 8 p.m., from Windsor for a four hour cruise on the Detroit River and Lake St. Clair. Members will enjoy an open bar, cold buffet and music and dancing during the evening. Party chairmen Jim and Daria Cooper and their committee: Bill and Kim Hubbard, Paul and Corinne LeBarge, Glenn and Elizabeth Peters, and Joe and Fran Princehouse have planned this fun party.

Couples new to the Grosse Pointes within the past two years and are interested in joining the Grosse Pointe Newcomers Club may call Jim and Ann at 884-5462 or Rob and Trish at 885-2459.

The Grosse Pointe League of Women Voters sent five delegates to the Michigan LWV convention in East Lansing, June 5 through 7. Delegates were President Janet Vanderpool, board members Carol Larson, Karen Opdyke, Rachel Webers, Kitty Walters and Margit Jackson, and one visitor, Leila Lynch. Margit Jackson was elected to the LWV State Board as Secretary/Treasurer.

Speakers included Representative David Hollister, chairperson, House Appropriations Subcommittee on Social Services; Robert Kleine, public sector consultant on Michigan Taxes; and Senator Vernon Ehlers, chairperson, Senate Committee on Natural Resources and Environment.

Delegates toured the capitol, attended a dinner reception at the new Michigan Women's Hall of Fame, recognized the many LWV members who serve in the Legislature and on state boards and commissions, and took part in workshops on program networking and organization management.

Macomb County Singles will sponsor a special Fourth of July celebration open dance, with other singles clubs, Sunday, July 5 at the Jefferson Yacht Club, 24504 Jefferson, near Brownie's on the Lake, St. Clair Shores, at 5 p.m.

All singles living in the area are invited to attend. Live music by Doug Di Maria. Hors d'oeuvres will be served.

For further information, call Club Hotline, 445-1286.

The Grosse Pointe Ski Club will hold its annual canoe trip and picnic on June 27, on the beautiful and historic Au Sable River at Mio, Mich. The group will meet at 7 a.m., at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial Center at 32 Lakeshore Road to share rides for the three hour trip. On the return trip, the group will stop at the famous Ole Sole Mio Restaurant in Bay City for dinner and arrive back in Grosse Pointe by 10 p.m.

The club will canoe from Gott's Landing in Mio and have a picnic lunch provided along the river bank. Cost is $10.50. For reservations and assistance in sharing rides, call Bob Meacham at 343-0562 after 6 p.m.

The club is open to all adult couples and singles. For membership information and news about our forthcoming ski season and year round activities, call president, Terri Stieber at 886-2487 after 6 p.m.

Star of the Sea (O.F.M.)Over age 50 members will sponsor a trip to Ann Arbor to tour the Rearview Mirror Museum, Tom and Marge Monaghan's Domino Classic Cars, have lunch at the Whiffle Tree and tour the World Headquarters to see Tom Monaghan's collection of artifacts made by the architect, Frank Lloyd Wright. Date is July 15. The group will leave from the Grosse Pointe Woods City Hall at 11 a.m. and return at 5 p.m. Cost is $18. If you would like to join us, call John Haas at 884-1037 for your reservation.

The Grosse Pointe chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America (S.P.E.B.S.Q.S.A.) meets Tuesday evenings at 8 p.m., year around, at the Neighborhood Club, 17150 Waterloo at St. Clair. The chapter invites men of all ages who love to sing, to an evening of entertainment, enlightenment, refreshment and fellowship on June 23, at 8 p.m.

The program will feature: the opportunity to actually learn barbershop songs; to hear chapter quartets and the Lakeshore Chorus, past district champions.

For additional information, call Joe Bichler at 884-6838.

The Trowel and Error Garden Club will be having its last gathering of the season on June 18, by departing from the Grosse Pointe Woods City Hall at 8 a.m. for a tour to the Dow Gardens in Midland, Mich., following a luncheon in Frankenmuth.

The General Josiah Harmar chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will meet June 20, at the home of Mildred Skaglin in Milford. She will serve lunch at noon with Mrs. Warren Mills assisting.

Newly-elected chapter Regent Donna Blom will open and preside at the meeting after lunch. The 1987 Resolutions adopted at the Continental Congress in Washington D.C. will be read and interpreted by Dorothy Keister of Harper Woods.

General Josiah Harmar chapter is to be a co-host at the Michigan Inn, to all Michigan's chapters at the State Convention in September. Plans will be discussed.

Colonial Dames complete house

On June 10, the Michigan Historical Commission met at Historic Fort Wayne in the recently opened Commanding Officer's House.

After a number of years of work and research, the Colonial Dames of America in the State of Michigan have been responsible for restoring the interior of the house to its original 1880 appearance.

Acting as docents, they showed the commission members through the home and later that day were hostesses at the luncheon.

Grosse Pointe docents were Virginia McMillan, Joan Dixon, Elizabeth Nicholson, and President Frances Moon of Birmingham.

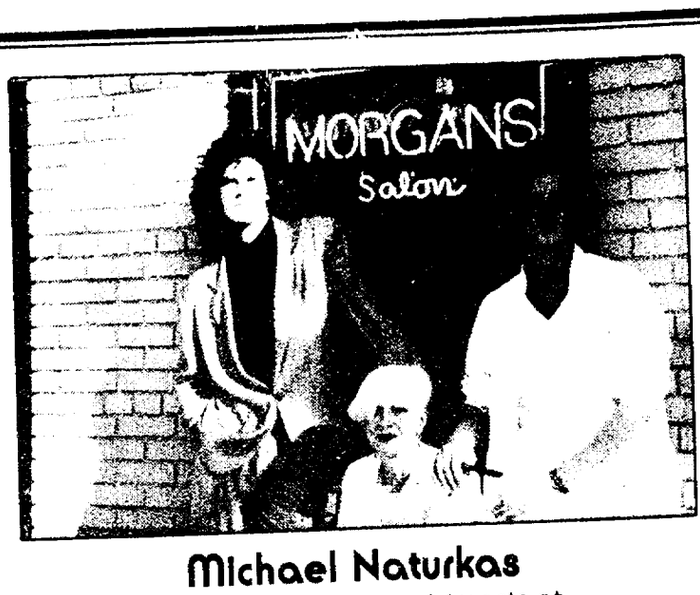

Curtains for the house were sewn by Jan Wright and her committee, Jane Dunn, Connie Tilly and Mary Graham. There were 22 pairs ranging from Nottingham lace and Thibout lace to calico for the maid's room.

A historically appropriate garden is being planned for the yard of the house by Scott Kuntz, a garden historian.

The furniture in the house was refinished by Clare Morrison, Lynn Morrison, Emily Turner, Dorothy McMillan, Joey Dixon, chairman; Isabel Donnelly, Thayer Laurie, Lib Nicholson, Betsy Bushnell, Ellen Watson, Caroline Russell, Ann Scott, Mary Galloway and Caroline Vogt.

Docents for the house are Lucy Hamilton, Ellen Watson, Joey Dixon, Caroline Vogt, Curly Ledyard, Betsy Bushnell, Ann Scott, Evie Hefferan, Kenny Moon, Emily Turner, Do Johnson, Libby Divine, Ginny McMillan.

The research committee consisted of Ginny McMillan, rugs and carpets, chairman; Sis Walton and Ethel Burwell, decorative arts and family research, co-chairmen; Sarah Cinelli, garden; Ann Berry, treasurer; Lucy Hamilton, secretary; Lib Nicholson, historian; Jean Dodenhoff, furniture; Sue Armstrong, lamps and lighting; Ellen Watson, fireplaces; Libby Divine, curtains.

Hickey-Klumpar

Mary Page Hickey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Stark Hickey of Grosse Pointe Farms, married David Ivan Klumpar, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan V. Klumpar of Lexington, Mass., on May 16, 1987, at the Grosse Pointe Academy Chapel.

The Rev. Michael A. Donovan officiated at the ceremony which was followed by a garden reception at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride wore an off-white silk dress with Alencon lace, embroidery and pearls. It featured a cathedral-length train, a sweetheart neckline and a dropped waistline. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley, freesia and Star of Bethelehem. She wore a veil of tulle and Alencon lace.

The maids of honor were Ellen Lea Hickey, sister of the bride, Washington, D.C.; and Pamela Hall Hickey, sister of the bride. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Allen R. Faber Jr., friend of the bride, Grosse Pointe Woods; Maria Gasparis, friend of the bride, New York City; Susan Klingbeil, friend of the bride, Harbor Springs, Mich.; Marsia A. Quill, friend of the bride, Philadelphia; Mrs. Robert C. Reynolds, friend of the bride, New York City; Virginia L. Wettmore, friend of the bride, New York City. The flower girl was Page Connolly, niece of the bride, Marblehead, Mass. The attendants wore fuchsia cotton jacquard dresses in tea-length and royal blue sashes.

The best man was Michael J. Harrison, friend of the groom, New York City. Ushers were William L. Allen, friend of the groom, Rhode Island; Nicholas Deutsch, friend of the groom, Ann Arbor, Mich.; Robert S. Hickey, brother of the bride, Grosse Pointe Farms; Robin Koeleveld, friend of the groom, Boston, Mass.; Gary Learner, friend of the groom, Connecticut; Ian Sheridan, friend of the groom, Colorado; Anthony Straceski, friend of the groom, New York City.

The mother of the bride wore a multi-colored floral silk, tea-length dress with a white hat and a royal blue chiffon band.

The mother of the groom wore a light blue and white silk dress.

The couple honeymooned in the South Pacific. They will live in Minot, N.Dak.

Dr. and Mrs. David Klumpar

The bride is a graduate of the University of Michigan and Columbia University. She is a maternity nurse.

The groom is a graduate of Brown University and Columbia University. He is a physician.

David Wagner was the organist. William Beger played the trumpet. Readers were Ellen Lea Hickey, Pamela Hall Hickey, Robert Stark Hickey and Michael J. Harrison.

Elizabeth Anne Moesta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rodman C. Moesta of Grosse Pointe Park, married James W. White of Grosse Pointe Farms on Feb. 6, 1987 at the Grosse Pointe Academy Chapel.

The Rev. James Carroll officiated at the 5:30 p.m. ceremony which was followed by a reception at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

The bride wore a tea-length dress of ivory satin with a deep, V-cut back. She carried a bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

The attendants were Anne Schultz and Maureen Bruce, sisters of the bride, Grosse Pointe Park. They wore royal blue, tea-length dresses and carried gardenia bouquets.

The groomsmen were Jeffery White and Jason White.

The mother of the bride wore a full-length dress of gray chiffon with a beaded top. She wore a dusty rose orchid corsage.

The couple will live in Boca Raton, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. James W. White

Launius-Brazier

Linda Diane Launius, daughter of Lewis and Jennette Launius of Warren, married Robert Daniel Brazier, son of Donald and Louanne Brazier of St. Clair Shores, on May 1, at St. Lucy's Church in St. Clair Shores. The bride is a former Grosse Pointer and a graduate of Our Lady Star of the Sea High School.

The Rev. Bohdan Kosicki officiated at the 5:30 p.m. ceremony which was followed by a reception at the Georgian Inn.

The bride wore a full-length, white dress with a five-foot train. The dress featured embroidered lace over satin with a high neck and long sleeves. The lace veil extended 15 feet. She carried a bouquet of miniature white roses and carnations with baby's breath.

The maid of honor was Karen Daniels, friend of the bride, East Detroit. Michelle Bemke, sister of the groom, East Detroit, was the bridesmaid. They wore mauve dresses with scalloped sleeves and necks of embroidered lace over taffeta. They carried miniature white and mauve carnations and baby's breath.

The best man was Donald J. Brazier, brother of the groom, St. Clair Shores. Thomas Brazier, brother of the groom, St. Clair Shores, was the usher.

Victorian garden party

The Detroit Historical Society held its second Victorian Garden Party at the Grosse Pointe home of John and Gwen Griffin on Sunday, June 7. More than 200 members and friends enjoyed the party. At the left, John and Gwen Griffin, and co-chairpersons Jo Kessler and Steven Horn greet guests. Below, Don and Peggy Thurber and Diane and Doug Dossin enjoy a carriage ride from the gate, up the lane, to the party.

Diversity is the best word to describe this year's Council of Grosse Pointe Garden Clubs Summer Garden Tour. The nine gardens on the itinerary range from lush green woodlands, to open lawns, to formal hedges to riots of annual and perennial color.

This year's tour will be held on June 26, 27 and 28, rain or shine, from 1 to 5 p.m. each day. Tickets are $6 before the tour, and $7.50 on the day of the tour. Refreshments and the Detroit Garden Center Boutique will be offered at the Eldridge Garden at 535 Lakeshore, all three days.

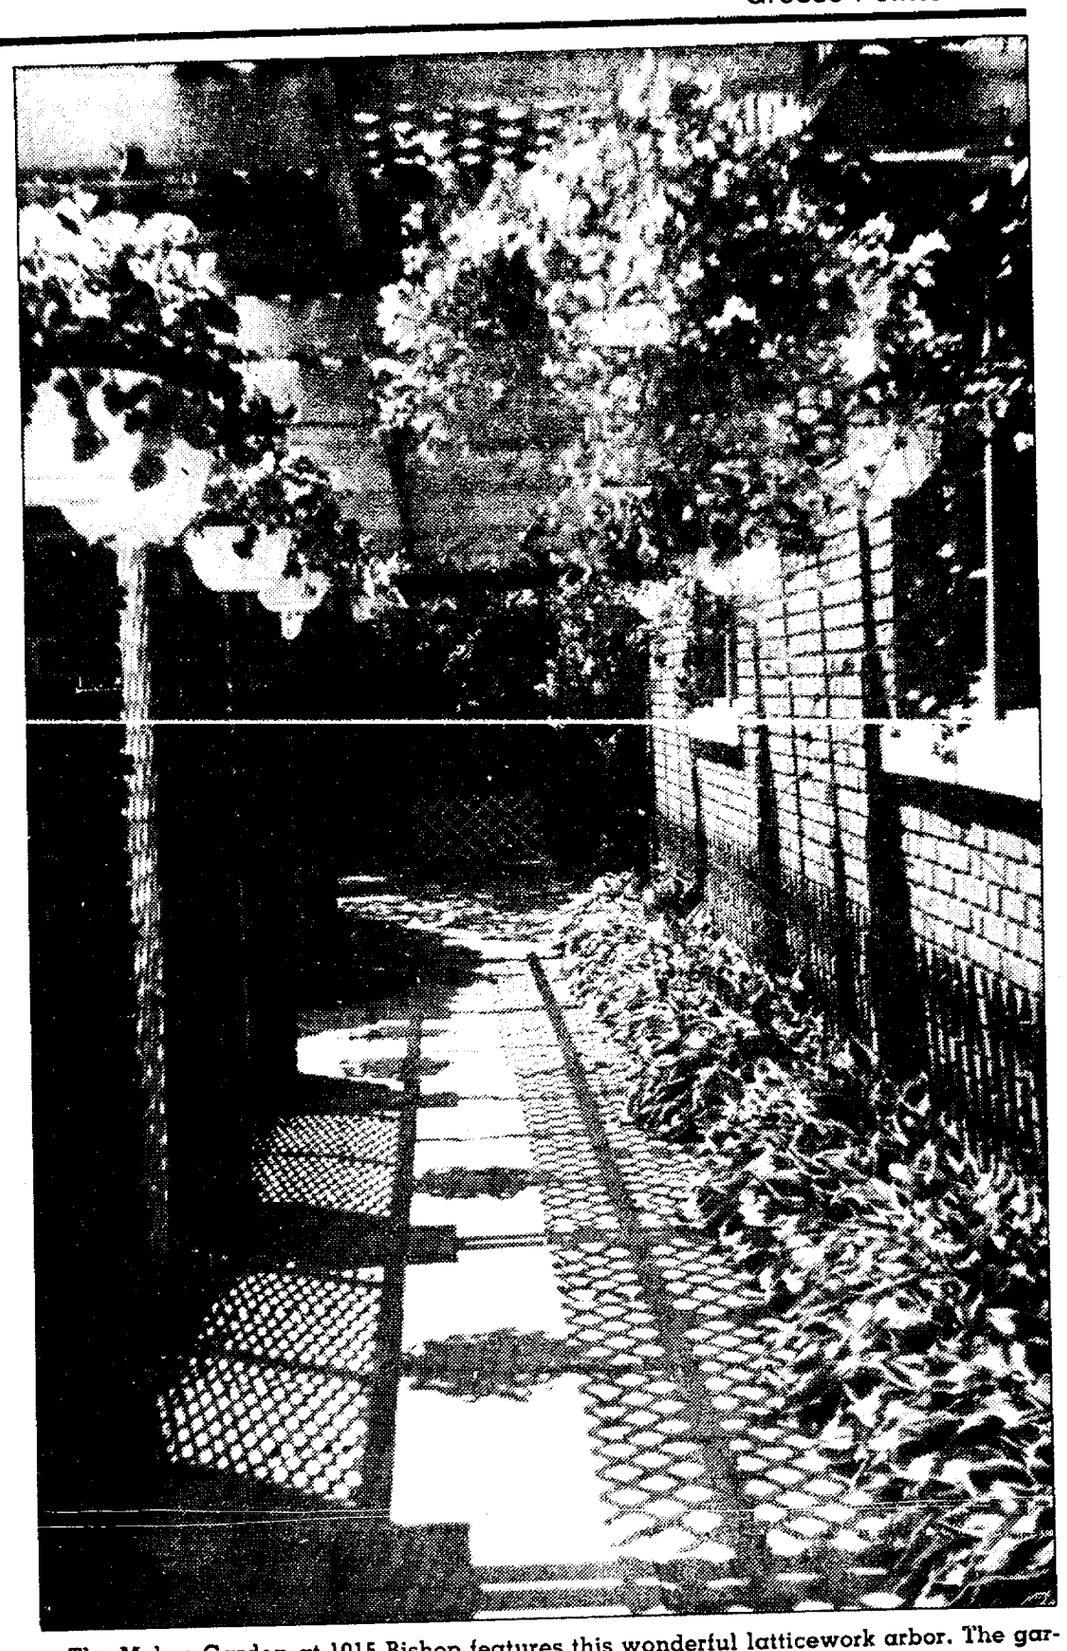

As always, the Trial Gardens at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial will be featured on the tour.

This year's tour is longer than last year's, featuring no less than nine locations. The tour stretches from Audubon to Belle Meade including two Lakeshore residences.

The best way to enjoy a garden tour? Take your time — and enjoy.

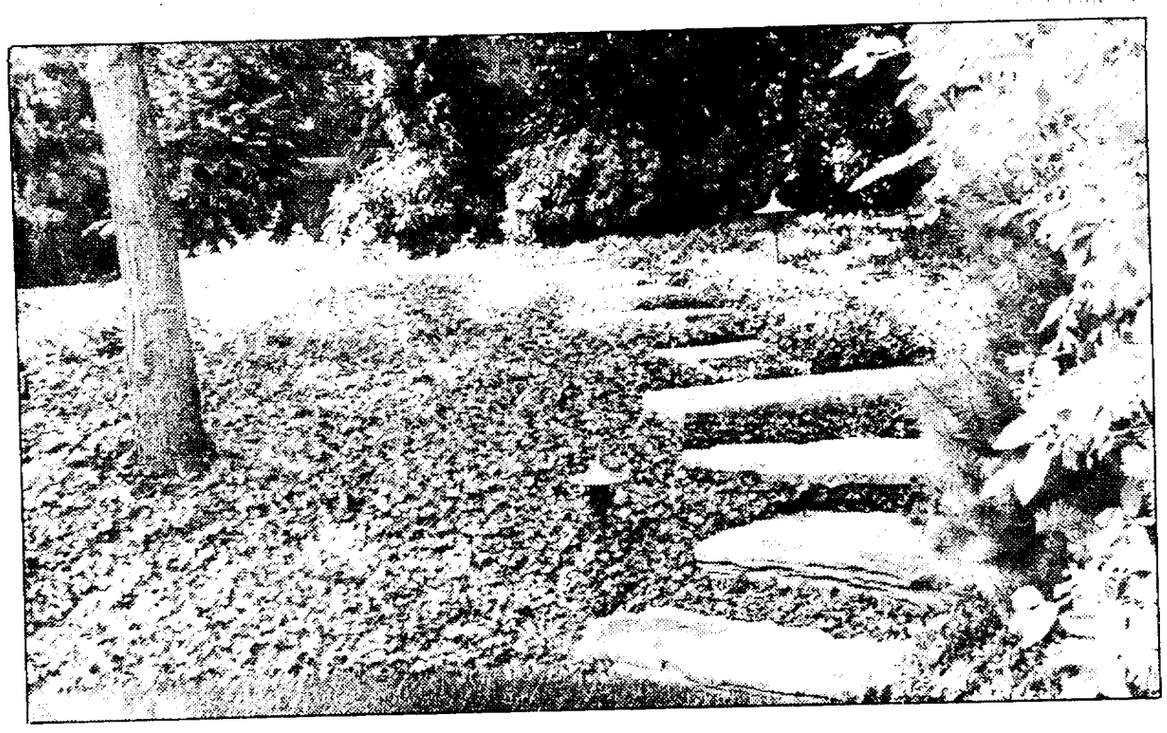

The Moser Garden at 1000 Yorkshire is set off by window boxes on the house which, by tour day, will be overflowing with colorful annuals. The garden was designed by Richard Lesczynski and will be accented by the carpentry work of Norman Johnson.

The Mebus Garden at 1015 Bishop features this wonderful latticework arbor. The garden was originally the work of Mercy Hayes, daughter of President Rutherford B. Hayes, who called the grounds, Garden Grange. The Mebus family has owned the home and gardens for 18 years and have done extensive work on the grounds.

Whatcha planting?

By Don Lichtenfelt
Redeemer United Methodist

Kids love a good story. So do most grown-ups. Most of us can remember the joy that came to us when we were read, or told, interesting stories during childhood. Jesus used the same methods with adults as he "spoke to them in parables." That's what gives his teachings much of their appeal, and sometimes makes difficult truth easier to swallow.

When I see beautiful trees in blossom, I'm reminded of the story of Johnny Appleseed. My grandmother used to tell me the reason we have so many apple trees in our area is because Johnny always carried a bag of apples seeds with him and planted them wherever he went.

I think Jesus would have liked that story. It's a beautiful model of how the Kingdom of God is extended. We are, each of us, in the business of planting seeds for our God. What are those seeds? They are "warm-fuzzies," deeds of love, kindness, caring, encouragement, appreciation, affirmation, sharing our skills, serving our brothers and sisters in their pain and in their (and our) sin, going about doing good, making friends for Christ and his church. That's what witnessing is all about. The warmest, friendliest, most servant-minded people are the best advertisements for Christianity. Perpetual critics and sourpusses are planting seeds too -- "cold pricklies," seeds of resentment, seeds of negativity and prejudice. They too can be very effective in turning people off, and making Christianity unattractive to others.

We all need to pay close attention to the sort of seeds we're planting because, as St. Paul reminds us ". . . you can't ignore God and get away with it: a man will always reap just the kind of crop he sows! . . . And let us not get tired of doing what is right, for after a while we will reap a harvest of blessing if we don't get discouraged and give up."

John Wesley had a lot in common with Johnny Appleseed. He took for a rule of living: "Do all the good you can; in all the ways you can; to all the people you can; as long as ever you can."

Most of the good things that have come into my life are because someone else was a "Johnny Appleseed for Jesus." That's a pretty special calling for all of us!

May you be blessed with a generous heart and a bountiful harvest!

One of the major questions that had to be answered in forming a new church was, who would lead? Would the ALC, AELC or the LCA bishop be in charge?

The answer has been to look to new leadership. The bishop of the Southeastern Synod (proposed name) will be the Rev. Milton Reisen of St. Clair Shores. A former member of the ALC, Reisen has been on the district staff for four years, though not as a bishop. He is a former pastor of Bethel Lutheran Church.

"After the convention, we found the problems to be quite minimal," said Rimbo, expressing some surprise at the ease at which the groups have come together. "This is going to open up many possibilities that we never had before."

The possibilities come in part from efficiency. Instead of three groups, there will now be one group handling mission work for the synod.

"We are now a homogenous political organization," said Lidums. "We are spiritually unified. There was a fragmentation of energy with three Lutheran synods in this area."

A synod is the level of organization above the individual congregation. The region is above the synod and the national organization is above the region.

"One advantage will be more flexibility and movement," Lidums said. He explained that a clergyman looking for a church will have nearly all the Lutheran churches in an area to look among, where as before, he might be limited to one of the three groups.

The new organization is being designed for efficiency, the clergy agreed.

"It's very skeletal, very lean and clean," Lidums said. "It's being done from the standpoint of this is basic and we will build onto it later."

The building process is still going on. While a constitution has been written, some synods are still holding conventions to ratify the document.

The process began in 1982 when the AELC invited the other two groups to join in a new Lutheran church. Voting was held in each of the three groups in great secrecy and transmitted by video to a central group. The vote was positive and a commission was formed of 70 clergy and lay people to develop a plan for joining. The constitutional convention was held on May 3 this year.

"This isn't a glomping together of the old," Lidums said. "It's truly a new church."

"We have to look again at our identity," said Curry. "We serve Christ and work in that direction together as a church. This is renewing that focus on what we should be about. It's healthy."

"There is a strong sense in the new Lutheran church of coming back to that term "evangelical," Hill said. "We are going to be more assertively evangelical. We want to reach out and bring people in. There has been a need for a revival."

A pleasant side effect of the new church has been a growing friendship between the pastors who are now part of the same group, they said. The clergy have been meeting on a monthly basis to discuss the new structure of the church and to learn about its implications. In coming months, the pastor's plan to extend that new unity to their congregation. They are planning joint events to bring their congregations together.

"We're doing this because it was commanded by Jesus," Rimbo said. "Christian unity is important."

Trinity to mark Freedom Festival

Historic Trinity Lutheran Church of Detroit and Gethsemane Lutheran Church of Windsor, Canada, will hold Freedom Festival Celebrations on Sunday, June 28 and July 5.

On June 28, the Rev. Louis Scholl and choir of Gethsemane Lutheran Church of Windsor will join with the parish of Historic Trinity Lutheran Church, 1345 Gratiot, in downtown Detroit, for at 10:45 a.m. celebration. The Rev. David Eberhard, pastor of Historic Trinity said, "This Annual Freedom Festival Celebration brings together the Lutheran religious community of Detroit and Windsor in Thanksgiving to God for the great freedom we share between our nations."

The Stroh's Highland Pipe Band will add to the joy of the celebration with more than 20 bag pipes and drums, courtesy of the Stroh Brewery Company.

Peter Paselk, organist, will lead a combined choir of Historic Trinity and Gethsemane in special national religious anthems.

Pastor celebrates 25 years

The Rev. Demetrios S. Kavadas celebrated his 25th year as pastor of Assumption Greek Orthodox Church in St. Clair Shores last weekend. Ordained in 1957, the Rev. Kavadas had served two parishes during his tenure as a priest. The first church he served for five years was St. George Greek Orthodox Cathedral of Manchester, N. H. The second is his present parish, the Assumption Greek Orthodox Church, St. Clair Shores, for the past 25 years. Assumption ranks among the top 10 parishes of the archdiocese in activities, membership and programs.

The Rev. Kavadas has held numerous national leadership positions and within his diocese in the ecumenical and civil dimensions of life in the Detroit metropolitan area.

The Rev. Kavadas was honored by his parish, Sunday, June 14, after the second liturgy, at the Assumption Cultural Center.

'Sonshine Patch' to start

Grosse Pointe Memorial's church program this summer will be the first week of August (Aug. 3-7) from 9 to 11:30 a.m. Monday through Friday. The program has a country theme and is for children entering kindergarten through grade six in the fall. The week will include games, skits, songs, Bible stories, crafts and recreation. The week's finale will be "Country Fair Day" on Friday.

The volunteer teaching staff will consist of: Alice Brown, Susan Buckler, Trisha Fishman, Regina Gersch, Julia Keim, Melanie Orbeck, Nancy Pilorget, Heather Rogers, Liz Schaefer and Jane Stoepker. The core time each morning will include use of booklets and related activities. The theme center around Galatians 5:22, 23 and deals with basic values such as love, patience, kindness and joy.

Preceding the core time each day there will be an opening assembly which will include singing, (led skillfully by Mary Garlough) skits by our middle school counselors and the introduction for the day's theme by Nancy Schulte.

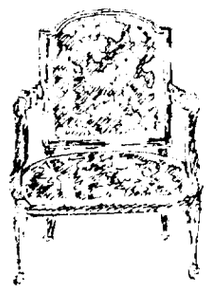

Crafts, refreshments, and recreation will also be a part of each day. Registration deadline is Monday, June 29. There is a participant limit, so don't delay. This deadline enables the organizers to order curriculum and craft materials accurately. There is a fee of $5 per child ($10 family maximum). Included in this fee is a "Sonshine Patch" T-shirt which the children will wear throughout the week.

Registration forms can be obtained at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church office or call 882-5330 for more information.

Protect jams the easy way

Consumers will be happy to know they can use a safe new technique to protect their homemade cooked jams and jellies in less time. The method is called "inversion."

In traditional jam-making, after the fruit and pectin preparation, a "water bath" is used in the final processing stage to seal and protect the jam in its jar. For jellies, a paraffin seal has been used for this purpose. Although safe and effective, the water bath is a time-consuming process that requires boiling the jam-filled jars in water for five minutes.

Now, consumers can use the easier technique of inversion to minimize the chances of jam and jelly spoilage. This is how it works: after you fill the jars with jam and cover them with two-piece lids, you simply turn over or invert the jars on their tops for five minutes. Then turn them upright.

Inversion is an effective alternative to the water bath for jam-making, and to the paraffin seal for jellies.

General Foods revised its directions for jam and jelly preparation after conducting extensive microbiological tests of the inversion process during a two-year period. With inversion, the still-hot jam exposes the inner surface of the lid to heat. This high temperature reduces the possibility of mold or growth on the lid, thus sealing the jam or jelly safely.

Inversion is a convenient alternative for jam and jelly makers who use the longer water bath method. Most important, because it's so easy, inversion also encourages those who don't use any final setting process to start protective measures.

Louis Sullivan: An architect's tragedy and triumph

By David M. Maxfield
Smithsonian News Service

Since 1899, children of all ages have delighted in the wavelike metal fantasy that swirls, churns and surges around the entrance and display windows of Chicago's Carson Pirie Scott Store. At one time, however, many architects could hardly bear the sight and tended to look the other way — upwards, approvingly, at the no-nonsense, functional white grid that frames the rest of this landmark building.

A decade or so ago, a funny thing happened. Critics of the cast-iron confection faded away, making way for those who enjoyed what children had all along. Where the street-level ornament had been dismissed as irrelevant and inconsistent with the upper floors, younger architects embraced both, relishing the novel contrast. Tastes had changed, and in current parlance, Carson's had it all.

The architect was Louis Sullivan (1856-1924). He died broken and penniless in 1924, and it is the name of his protege, Frank Lloyd Wright, that towers in the public mind. Yet in his day, Sullivan was considered the "dean of American architecture," and thus his career is being re-evaluated, although "a final assessment," Rochelle Elstein of Northwestern University says, "has proven to be elusive."

Until recently, it was pretty much his work in the "tall building" (as the skyscraper once was called) that focused attention on Sullivan. No doubt it was Wright who helped draft that reputation. Having looked on as Sullivan sketched a design for the Wainwright building in St. Louis, a seminal work, Wright later remembered, "I sensed what had happened. In his vision, here beyond a doubt, was the dawn of a new day in skyscraper architecture."

Perhaps, but nowadays Sullivan is viewed more as "the first to articulate a comprehensive theory of skyscraper expression" — the first truly American architect — than as the "father" of the genre. After all, elements that define a skyscraper were in place in other buildings. Some had risen on steel frames; elevators were running here and there, and still other structures just looked like office towers in their avant-garde sleekness. Combining these features in St. Louis in the 1890 Wainwright Building, Sullivan made good on his own proselytizing. The tall building, he asserted, "must be every inch a proud and soaring thing, rising in sheer exultation."

Sullivan was equally emphatic about a second part of his program, ornamentation. Once acclaimed by modernists for his views on structure, today the architect is touted by a generation skeptical of functional dogma and fascinated with ornamental design.

Sullivan, who managed through his building and writing to wring Victorian excesses out of architecture without journeying into the purest modern styles, is credited for brilliantly marrying architectural details based mainly on botanical forms to buildings then springing up in American cities. In his work, he cultivated such native American motifs as bursting corn husks, seed pods, berries and weeds — at first delicately, later exuberantly. Sullivan decried the "unnatural," the pretentious, the use of decoration foreign to regional traditions.

"Sullivan's work is vibrant with integrity, consistency, wholeness and harmony," observes St. Louis architect Gyo Obata, a participant in an exhibit project, "Louis Sullivan: The Function of Ornament" on view at the Smithsonian's Cooper-Hewitt Museum in New York City and later the St. Louis Art Museum. "His ornamentation," Obata adda, "never looked applied or like an afterthought. It is always part of the total design." Part of Sullivan's genius was that the decorative details also played very practical roles. Street-level flourishes on the Carson Pirie Scott Store, for example, acted as a frame for the window displays — a device to focus consumers on the newest goods.

The architect is given credit for other innovations. The Auditorium Building project of 1886, which put Sullivan and his partner Dankmar Adler on the Chicago map, also served as precursor for the mixed-used structure so popular today. There, in that age, was a block-square structure containing a 4,200-seat concert hall that could be adapted for dancing or softball, 136 shops and offices (including the firm of Adler & Sullivan) and a 400-room showpiece hotel. Sullivan also saw the need for the stepped-back office tower — a need forgotten in past decades but proposed again today as a way to assure adequate light in congested urban areas.

Sullivan, according to biographer and exhibit catalog contributor Robert Twombly, was an exceedingly complex, private and often difficult man. "Notoriously intense, compulsively serious," Sullivan read widely and eclectically. He avoided public situations in which anything but art or architecture was likely to be discussed. "He willingly gave interviews," Twombly notes, "but said nothing personal."

The architect's clients typically wanted a building that would be viewed as "something special." If a new client "agreed with him and his ideas, at least to some extent, or showed some sensitivity to art, he could open a relationship," according to Twombly. But if the clients did not, especially in Sullivan's later desperate years, "he could dismiss them quite abruptly," regardless of the fee involved.

Sullivan's independent streak was indelible as early as age 12. The precocious youth — determined in his heart's desire to become an architect — insisted on staying with his grandparents in the Boston area for its educational opportunities rather than moving to Chicago, where, unbelievably, his parents sought a better climate. But the break must have been difficult, for the youth shared a love of nature with his mother, an accomplished illustrator of natural life. Sullivan's fascination with botany (its anatomy and growth rather than visible surface) grew into a lifetime study.

Floral motifs began to show up in Sullivan's work during his first summer job and, later in his career, became the ground from which Sullivan waged war against "the fraudulent and surreptitious use" of European applique architectural details, whether Greek, Gothic, Romanesque or Renaissance. America would have a beautiful architecture, he insisted, only when the young rejected instruction that insulated them from nature.

Sullivan held the greatest admiration for teaching that urged students "to make buildings out of their heads" rather than copy forms of the past. For him, Twombly says, "style was not so much chosen, as arrived at spontaneously, by instinct." At the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he studied briefly, Sullivan was exposed to this creative method, and then at the Ecole des Beaux-Arts in Paris, the young architect was trained in the "equisse" or sketch method. Studio projects demanded that students first make a quick drawing for a building from instinct, then work out the details.

This instruction fit Sullivan to a T. Settling in Chicago where jobs were plentiful in the aftermath of the city's devastating 1871 fire, Sullivan free-lanced at first, then teamed with Adler, whose own career has been neglected by historians. Adler, it seems, brought a strong engineering background and diplomatic finesse to the partnership, which soared with the firm's 1890 Wainwright Building plan.

As the story is told, Sullivan was suffering a designer's block and decided to take a walk on Michigan Avenue. There an idea for Wainwright came to him. He ran back to the office and "tore off a preliminary sketch — a very sudden and volcanic design," he recalled. By drafting a plan of vertical piers rising seven stories, with windows in between, "Sullivan managed to express height the way no one else could at the time," says critic Paul Goldberger. "The Wainwright is not merely tall; it is about being tall."

In later years, Sullivan's famous expression that "form follows function" in buildings as successful as the Wainwright came to be associated with the European International Style's insistence that buildings should have no ornament and minimal detailing of any sort. That dogma is a "misunderstanding" of Sullivan's work, the exhibit's organizers say. What he actually said was that "the function created or organized form" . . . "what people are within, the buildings express without."

Let's talk hockey

By now everyone knows that the decision has been made: There will be high school hockey this fall, with two very big, very important conditions. First, the entire hockey program is on probation and second, the first game of the season between North and South will be played, but if behavior isn't what it should be, the second game will be forfeited.

What this all means is that hockey fans in Grosse Pointe are once again being put to the test. Some of them aren't too happy about that, judging from our editorial mail. They feel that any restrictions placed upon how they may behave at high school hockey games will interfere with their enjoyment of attending the games.

About all I can say to that is: Too bad. This is serious, guys. A lot more serious than whether your "right" to shout obscene things at opponents is being taken away. And a lot more serious than whether hockey games will or will not be fun anymore if you can't go and do what you want.

Doing what you wanted just about got the hockey program taken away, you know?

Let me tell you what people are saying. People outside Grosse Pointe are saying that Grosse Pointe kids (they don't differentiate between schools) don't know how to behave in public. That Grosse Pointe hockey fans are a disgrace to high school sports.

People who know better realize that that isn't true. That once again, a handful of kids with a terribly misguided sense of what is fun has nearly ruined things for everyone else.

School officials are saying that while they don't want to drop the hockey program, they also don't want any part of a program that embarrasses the schools or the community. And that goes for football, basketball, soccer and every other sport at the high school level, not just hockey.

And the scariest thing of all is that lots of people, many of whom have never really been in favor of the high school hockey program and who look for any excuse to call for its cancellation, are pointing to the fact that hockey, which is twice as costly per participant than other prep sports, isn't worth the trouble.

So what's next?

Hockey fans in Grosse Pointe are going to have to realize that they came very close to losing what has become an excellent, exciting program. Imagine not being able to stop in at the GPCR on a Saturday night to watch the Norsemen play. Or missing the Blue Devils' trip up to Midland Dow and Saginaw Arthur Hill in the dead of winter. No Christmas hockey tournaments. No Confederate flags. No state playoff finals.

Grosse Pointe School Superintendent John Whritner has said that one positive side-effect of the situation is that it has opened up some terrific dialogue between hockey fans, students and parents. It is believed that true hockey fans are just as tired of the interruptions and disturbances and poor behavior at games as the school administration is. They've stated their case and in fact, have made a real impact in this final decision.

Perhaps those few who caused problems last season have graduated, or at least gone on to other pursuits. Or maybe (and I have

Midland Dow walks past South

By Peggy O'Connor
Sports Editor

The South High baseball team isn't going to waste much time moping over its 11-3 loss to Midland Dow in last Friday's Class A state semifinal in Lansing. Most of the Blue Devils have already played one game this week in the summer Connie Mack League. And as tough as it may be for coach Dan Griesbaum to put South's exciting 29-6 season behind, he's doing just that. Still. . .

"It's difficult, I know, to just forget about the game and launch right into summer baseball. But that's what has made us for the last couple of years. That summer league is just invaluable to our program," Griesbaum said.

"We'll bounced back and get right into it, as tough as it may be."

Griesbaum said he thought Friday's contest with Dow would be a lot closer than the final score and indeed it was for a few innings. Dow took a 1-0 lead when Rich Juday homered over the centerfield fence, but South pitcher Marcus Wysocki pitched his way out of a jam. Griesbaum had thought that his Blue Devils would be able to run on Dow and they did just that, tying the score on a walk to Sean Bruce, a single by Marty Saad, a stolen base and a sacrifice by Dave Arnold.

Dow regained the lead in the second on a single, a walk, a wild pitch and a fly ball. An error placed runners at the corners and after a walk loaded the bases, an infield hit scored another Dow run.

South stayed with Dow, narrowing the margin to 3-2 when Mike Paull slammed a solo homer over the fence in right. But Midland Dow broke the game open in the fourth inning, scoring on two walks, an error, a steal and a grand slam by infielder Don Ripke. Four of those runs were unearned. South finished with an uncharacteristic eight walks and four errors. Midland Dow had just nine hits.

Senior Dave Arnold led off the sixth inning with a home run, but that was all South could muster against Dow, which went on to the finals against Catholic Central on Saturday. CC needed nine innings to top Dow, 4-3, for the state title.

"You can't give up walks like that and expect to win. The grand slam was obviously what won it for them, but I think the key was that we walked more people and had more errors than we normally do. And when Marc began to get the ball up, he just got burned," Griesbaum said. "I told the kids that they had nothing to be ashamed of. Of course, we wish it would have been closer and I think it would have been if we could have played as well as we did all year."

South did have an outstanding year, earning Eastern Michigan League, district and regional championships. Individually, juniors Marcus Wysocki, Marty Saad and Doug Lucas and senior Sean Bruce were named to the All-League team; Wysocki was

Out at home was the call this time, as catcher Mike Paull makes the tag, but Midland Dow did manage to put 11 runs — four of them unearned — across the plate against the Blue Devils.

Schools name South AD

"Jo" Lake has been appointed as the new Administrative Assistant — Athletics for South High School. She will replace Charles Hollosy who is retiring after 35 years of coaching and teaching.

Lake comes to the Grosse Pointe Schools from the Gibraltar School District where she is presently the assistant principal of O.A. Carlson High School in Rockwood. In addition to administrative duties, she has been responsible for directing the athletic program which includes a staff of 66 coaches. In addition, she designed the Carlson Athletic Parents Potential Scholarship (CAPPS) and an Athletic Code of Conduct.

Named the National High School Volleyball Coach of the Year by the National High School Athletic Coaches Association in 1979, Lake has had a distinguished career as a softball, basketball and volleyball coach. Her career win/loss record for the three sports during her 22 years of coaching is 653-65. Two of her teams hold national volleyball records.

Deadlines, deadlines

Just a reminder that deadlines for the sports section are as follows:

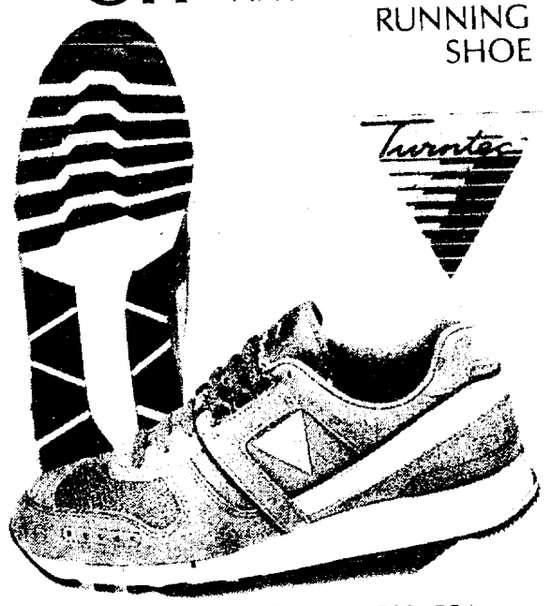

Little League and Babe Ruth League baseball copy must be submitted by 9 a.m. Monday for inclusion in that Thursday's paper.

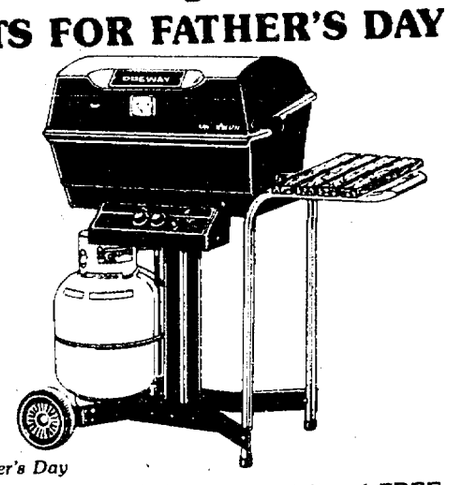

Soccer summaries from the Grosse Pointe Soccer Association and elsewhere must be turned into the sports desk by 9 a.m. Monday.

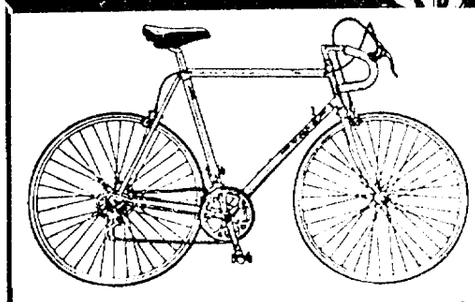

All other sports copy should be submitted by noon on Monday for publication that week.

Please remember to include the name and telephone number on top of the news release so we have someone to contact — during the day — in case of questions.

Further information may be obtained by calling 882-0294.

INDIANS-METS

The Indians defeated the Mets, 16-6. Pitching in the winning effort were Messacar and Ricci. Messacar, Brennan and Kolojeski went two-for-four and Stentz was three-for-four. Pitching for the Meters were Justin and Jamie Ronayne. Charles O'Loughlin went three-for-four and Justin Ronayne and David Cusmano had two hits apiece for the Mets.

ORIOLES-METS

The Orioles trounced the Mets, 19-6, behind the pitching of Matt Bentley. Tom Rajt, Don Leal, John Prom and John Brooks had three hits each. Pitching for the Mets were Crowley, Justin Ronayne, Otto and Kevin Fitzgerald. Justin Ronayne had two hits and O'Loughlin doubled for the Mets. Jamie Ronayne made a couple of excellent defensive plays behind the plate.

DODGERS-METS

The Dodgers edged the Mets, 6-5, as pitchers Rolka and Booher shared mound chores. For the Dodgers, Miller had two hits and Nugent got on base three times. Erickson made four nice catches in leftfield. Pitching for the Mets were Crowley and Justin Ronayne. Andy Crowley hit a two-run homer and Justin Ronayne and O'Loughlin hit triples. The Mets executed a double play: Ronayne to Otto to Ronayne.

Park Majors

CARDINALS-YANKEES

The Cards topped the Yankees, 14-6. Daniel Paull pitched the first three innings with relief help from Jason Kestor. Ed Dorda had a homer, Forster hit a two-run double, Halley doubled and Blair doubled for three runs. Mark Campbell pitched the first two innings for the Yankees: Kevin Schroeder came on in relief and pitched two scoreless innings. Melchior had a two-run double; Braun, Campbell, Novak, Campagna and Novak all scored.

DODGERS-YANKEES

The Dodgers earned their second win of the year, 13-8 over the Yanks. Erickson hit safely in each at-bat. Miller added a three-run homer in the first. Erickson doubled and scored twice. Recht pitched well for the Yankees and Rolka for the Dodgers. Urso scored three runs for the Yanks.

ORIOLES-INDIANS

The Orioles outscored the Indians, 9-7. Matt Bentley and Tom Rajt pitched for the Orioles; Ryan Messacar, Tom Kolojeski and Jay Ricci were on the mound for the Indians. For the Orioles, Rusty Woodruff had a single, double and two RBI and Scott Lupo went four-for-four. Prom, Rajt, Bentley, Joey Michael (two RBI), and Leal had the other O's hits; Charlie Severn and John Brooks scored runs. The Indians were led by Gary Campbell (two singles), Kevin Brennan (double, two RBI), Tiede and Pat Brennan (one single each). Matt Stentz, Ricci, Kolojeski and Messacar also contributed on offense.

ORIOLES-DODGERS

The Orioles doubled up the Dodgers, 16-8. Rajt and Prom pitched for the winners; Steve Booher, Fitz Ollison and Jason Rolka were on the mound for the Dodgers. Prom, Lupo, Rajt, Severn, Bentley, Michael, Brian Brenner and Andy Brewer had hits; Woodruff and Dan Wolking scored runs. For the Dodgers, Nugent had three singles and Tom Rhoades, Ollison, Billy Pallazzolo, Tim Cassell and Matt Spicer had hits. Chris Erickson, Billy Gehrke, Mike Miller and Rolka scored.

ORIOLES-WHITE SOX

The White Sox nipped the Orioles, 9-8. Paul and Fritz Coyro shared pitching chores for the Sox; Charlie Severn threw for the Orioles. Paul Coyro (double, single), Paul Hadad (two singles, two RBI), Bramlage, Scott McCain, Fritz Coyro and Brian Quinn led the Sox' offense. For the Orioles, Woodruff (two singles), Rajt (homer, single, three RBI), B. Brenner, Michael, Brooks, Prom and Lupo led the way.

PURDUE-ILLINOIS

Purdue defeated Illinois, 13-6. Doug Fairbanks (triple, homer, two RBI), Robbie Bacon (two-for-two, triple and single), Gideon (two-for-two), Jason Jodway (double, home run), and Joe Williamson (homer) led Purdue. Chris Wilde stopped an Illinois threat with a double play at first. For Illinois, David Caulfield, Patrick Kelly, Geoff Button, Chris Hyatt and Wesley Waterston had singles. Jon Van Hoek pitched three innings and didn't allow a run. Kelly Taylor and Jodway finished the pitching for Purdue and Cory Schroeder and Peter Feldman threw for Illinois.

PURDUE-WISCONSIN

Wisconsin outlasted Purdue, 14-12. Tim Addy pitched five great innings for Wisconsin; David Pulis came on in relief. Jodway and Van Hoek pitched for Purdue. For Wisconsin, Mike Marontate was four-for-four, with a double, two singles and a walk (three RBI). For Purdue, Jodway homered and doubled for three RBI, Wilde had an RBI-double, Gideon Jonees singled for two runs and Brian Everham had a sacrifice and a double for three RBI. Also playing well were Pat Niven, Brad Crowley, Taylor, Peter Lech, Ryan Parshall and Steve Smihal.

OHIO STATE-MICHIGAN

Ohio State defeated Michigan, 11-9. Geoff Kimmel and Jamie Whitehead contributed to the winning effort. Terry Holusha, Jeff Nyenhuis, Van Slyke and Sumner doubled; Jimmy Michael singled in the second and doubled in the fourth. Matt Edelstein made a spectacular tag in the top of the third. Michigan's Tom Franzinger pitched three innings with relief help from Mike Gallegos. Franzinger had a single and a home run, Rondini doubled, Gallegos singled and Brendan Haslam doubled in the fourth and tripled in the fifth for Michigan.

OHIO STATE-INDIANA

Ohio State edged Indiana, 8-7. Kimmel pitched two innings, Jamie Whitehead came on in the third and allowed no hits in the fifth. Mike Verlinden pitched the last three innings and stole home in the seventh on an overthrow. Valaire Van Slyke, Michael, Matt Edelstein and Jeff Nyenhuis doubled for Ohio State. Tom Chouinard, Chris Milliken and Tim O'Laughlin pitched for Indiana. Mike DeFauw doubled and O'Laughlin tripled. Chris Carpenter made a great catch in the seventh. Milliken allowed no hits in the third.

WISCONSIN-OHIO STATE

Wisconsin defeated Ohio State, 10-8, behind the pitching of Pulis. Kevin Addy and Tim Addy each homered for Wisconsin. Alex Bieri homered and doubled and Tony Bondy doubled. Kimmel, Verlinden and Whitehead pitched for Ohio State. Kimmel also singled twice; Holusha tripled and Shawn Fleming doubled.

NAVY-MARINES

Navy extended its record to 7-3, beating the Marines, 16-2. This game was characterized by good defense on Navy's part.

Farms Majors

PIRATES-INDIANS

Geoff Prysak's second hit, a long single with two outs in the bottom of the sixth, scored Chris Fox with the winning run, enabling the Pirates to edge the Indians, 2-1. Fox had led off the inning with a perfect bunt single. The Pirates' Colm Moore and the Indians' Kevin Brennan repeated their brilliant pitching duel of earlier this season. Moore gave up two hits and struck out 10; Brennan yielded five hits and struck out 12. Jay Ricci knocked in Gary Campbell with the Indians' only run on an infield grounder. Paul Gentile doubled Moore home to tie the game in the second. Rightfielder Rich Reynolds of the Pirates and second baseman Pat Brennan of the Indians each excelled on defense.

PIRATES-INDIANS

The Pirates edged the Indians, 2-1. Gentile doubled, Fox bunted and scored and Prysak singled and batted in the winning run. Kevin Brennan went all the way for the Indians, allowing five hits. Ricci had an RBI and Campbell played well behind the plate.

INDIANS-ORIOLES

The Orioles edged the Indians, 8-7. Bentley pitched for the Orioles; Michael singled and had two RBI. Rajt was two-for-three and Lupo, four-for-four. Stentz was three-for-four, Pat Brennan played well in the field and Messacar, Kolojeski and Ricci pitched for the Indians.

INDIANS-WHITE SOX

The Indians defeated the Sox, 7-1. Hadad singled and scored for the Sox. Bramlage stole a base. For the Indians, Campbell singled and had two RBI, Kevin Brennan tripled, Messacar pitched well and singled and Stentz singled and scored a run.

Farms-City AAA

CUBS-A'S

The Cubs took their first loss of the season, 9-6, to the A's. Robby Franzino's superb pitching carried the game for the A's. Matt Kramer was the big hitter; Brian Whelan batted in a pair of runs. Browe Merriweather homered for the Cubs. Galen Dossin pitched a fine game and Brian Law made a spectacular catch in outfield for the Cubs.

GIANTS-EXPOS

The Giants defeated the Expos in a tight battle that featured good defensive play by both teams. Corry Geer was the winning pitcher for the Giants; he also went two-for-three at the plate. Teddy Hill and Jeff Smythe were also two-for-three and M.J. Morris and Andy Smith had a great day in the outfield. The Expos were led by Brian Rebain, who was two-for-two with two RBI. Matt Lariscy was also two-for-three with three RBI. Pete Flanigan, Andy Drescher, David Drescher, Cliff Magreta and John Cugliari hit well for the Expos.

EXPOS-PADRES

The Padres topped the Expos, 19-1. Damon Smith belted two home runs and a single for four RBI, Peter Mertz was three-for-three with three RBI and three runs and Dave Tipple and Alex Toledo were two-for-two with a walk for the victors. Tipple had a double and a triple for three RBI. The Expos had some good swings, but Padre fielding kept them off the bases. Flanigan and Magreta lined out to first and Cugliari lined out to short. In the sixth, Rebain led off with a single. Padre pitchers James Robinson (three innings of no-hit ball) and Matt Malicki (10 batters in three innings of relief for the save) were outstanding.

CUBS-PADRES

The undefeated Cubs continued to dominate the AAA with a 12-2 win over the Padres. Damon Smith, Allan Leitch and Matthew Dakho each went two-for-two, but couldn't unnerve Cub pitcher Dossin. Nate Smith threw for the Padres, striking out eight. He walked eight and gave up nine hits. The Cubs' Tom Veda slammed an inside-the-park homer and Merriweather tripled to right and scored on an overthrow.

CARDINALS-PADRES

The Cardinals trounced the Padres, 23-2. Cardinal batters put together 11 singles and 19 walks. Allard pitched for three innings, striking out six and holding the Padres to two runs on six hits. The Cards' Capponi went three-for-three and Leitch

Boating

By Cristina Staats

Ask a boater to tell a story and . . .

Everyone has a boating story to tell. Some are more harrowing than others and some are just plain fun. But there probably isn't a boater around who doesn't have a tale or two to share when the subject comes up.

Paul and Corinne Franks, owners of a red J-24 which they keep at the Grosse Pointe Farms Pier, were having a good laugh over this story:

It seems that there was a young father out walking with his daughter after the family Memorial Day picnic. They ventured down by the boats as so many picnickers do, and began looking at the array of boats. The youngster was perched on her father's shoulders and asking questions a mile a minute, as little ones do.

"What is that rope for, Daddy? Why is it in there backwards? What makes it go, Daddy? How come that one has a blue side and the other one is white? These are too big for the bathtub, huh? Are we going to get one?

Dad was evidently not a sailor and didn't offer answers to any of his daughter's questions. The last query, however, apparently stimulated his interest, because he asked his daughter which boat she liked. As they passed the Franks' boat the little girl replied, "If I could get any boat in this place, I would pick the little red one."

Overhearing this, Corinne and Paul smiled at the little girl and her father. They thought their boat was pretty nice, too. "I'd get that boat because it has that pretty pink flag on it. None of the other boats have a pretty pink flag on them."

As father was continuing his stroll down the dock, the little girl stretched her neck and wiggled around on his shoulders, checking to make certain that, indeed, none of the other boats had pink flags. "Yes," she said, "that's the one I would pick."

Corinne and Paul Franks had that pink flag streaming from their boat's backstay because they had participated in the Great Lakes Yacht Club's doublehanded event held over the Memorial Day weekend. They had a great race and took a first place award home with them.

Oh, and they also left that pink flag up until a great gust of wind took it down.

Do you have a boating story to share. If so, I'd love to hear from you. Please keep the stories to between 100 and 250 words and send them to me, Cristina Staats, in care of the Grosse Pointe News, 96 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich., 48236.

Sports space precious, committee says

By Peggy O'Connor
Sports Editor

Even John Bruce was astounded by what he saw when he began to add up statistics in his Grosse Pointe Field Use Committee's 1987 report. Some 5,000 athletes pound the turf at city- and school-owned athletic sites at least once per week, Bruce says. Add to that the fact that the athletic organizations which use private sites for their games weren't even included in the study and the outlook for the community's athletic program is quite rosy.

A more somber note is sounded by the Field Use Committee, however. The committee, formed in 1982 by leaders of various sports organizations in Grosse Pointe to study the most efficient use of area fields, is currently concerned about the possible loss of athletic space.

Grosse Pointe Public Library parking improvements may include expansion of current parking facilities into the softball field at South High.

A minor extension into the field of approximately 25 or 30 feet, would only eliminate the use of the field by adult men. "But once they encroach any further into the field, it will really have an effect," Bruce explained.

"If we lose that site or are forced to drop to Little League size only, the bumping that will occur at the adult and high school softball leagues will have great impact."

According to Field Use Committee studies, every available site is already used nearly to capacity. In fact, there are limits on every sports program in Grosse Pointe in term of expansion because each facility currently handles a multiplicity of events, according to Bruce.

The quality of the available fields is also a consideration, he adds. "As a committee, we are concerned about the disproportionate number of fields in terms of geographic area. You start out in the Woods and you have very fine facilities like Ferry, Mason and Ghesquiere, then you travel farther down into the area of the Park and you find the fields decrease in quality. South-end sites are so far under standard that every foot you take away from they makes a drastic change in terms of how the fields can be used."

Part of the Field Use Committee's concern is that it has had a lack of input in the decision-making process. The committee was asked for its input last fall — at which time it acknowledged that the removal of 25-30 feet of the softball field would not create a great problem — and has not been consulted since, Bruce says.

Members of the Field Use Committee told Bruce that if space is lost without the committee's input, that the problem could become "an issue." Bruce admitted that he was hopeful that the entire matter could be resolved without making it into an issue.

"As affluent, intelligent and creative a community as we have, can't we do something that doesn't involve paving over a piece of already too-precious field?"

the league's Most Valuable Player. The same four were named to the All-District squad. Wysocki and Bruce also received All-Region honors and both were named to the Class A All-State second team.

Bruce, who is being courted by several Michigan universities, will also play in the Michigan All-Star game at Tiger Stadium this Thursday, June 18, at 11 a.m.

"All in all, it's been a fun year," Griesbaum said. "The players and coaches appreciated the fine support the South fans gave us, driving up to Lansing and cheering us on. And I'd also like to thank my assistant coaches Matt Reno, Mike Johnson and Paul Pellerito. I think sometimes the head coach gets all the credit for a good team and I don't think it's fair.

"This was a total team effort all season long."

Mike Paull's home run in the second inning brought congratulations from his coach and his team to within one run.

Fish to coach Tuna cagers

Former Our Lady Star of the Sea student Debbie Allor Fish has been named head varsity basketball coach at Star, effective this fall.

Fish, 28, was Star's Athlete of the Year in 1977 and went on to play women's varsity basketball for the University of Michigan from 1977 through 1980. Fish, a Grosse Pointe Woods resident, is an attorney with the firm of Spector, McCarron and Allard.

"She's coached at a number of different levels in girls' basketball and we're happy to have her back," said Star athletic director Julie Uryasz.

Get ready for the Park's fishing rodeo

Grosse Pointe Park's annual fishing rodeo is set for Saturday, June 27, from 8:30 to noon. Park residents 15 and under are invited to register for the event, held at the main pier in Windmill Pointe Park. Fishing begins at 8:45 and concludes at 11:30.

Awards will be given for the largest fish, most fish, first, last and smallest fish. A prize will also be given for the craziest catch. Prizes range from fishing rods and reels to tackle boxes, nets and various equipment. Following the rodeo, refreshments will be served to all participants.

Registration forms will be available at the main gate of Windmill Pointe Park. Deadline for all entries is Friday, June 26, at 5 p.m. Further information may be obtained by calling Brigid Roarty at the recreation department at 822-2812.

Senior hockey final Sunday showdown

Grosse Pointe's Senior Open Spring Hockey League has come down to one last game — and this one's for all the marbles.

Active Tool beat the contingent from Marge's Bar, 2-1, in overtime last Sunday to set up a showdown for the championship this Sunday.

Pete Guzzardo scored two goals and Chris LaMilza was outstanding in the nets in Active's victory Sunday. Guzzardo's second goal 40 seconds into overtime was the game-winner for Active, which was the regular season champ.

The same two teams will face off at 8 p.m. this Sunday for the playoff crown. The game will be played at the Grosse Pointe Community Rink.

a feeling that this is probably the most accurate assumption) hockey fans have finally realized that push has come to shove and if they mess up this time, there isn't going to be a third chance.

It's hard, I know. You get all fired up and into the game and forget where you are and what you're doing. And when you get together with your friends and everyone gets to laughing about how funny it would be to do this or that, it's somehow easy to forget what's expected of you.

And, maybe it's not fair that more is expected of you just because you live in Grosse Pointe. But that's the way it is. And what's more, you're going to have to meet and exceed those high standards this time, or lose one of the benefits this community offers: part of an excellent athletic program.

I don't think that's going to happen. I think that the Grosse Pointe sports fans I know — those who gave a standing ovation to South's hockey team when it stood up against a tough Trenton team in South's very first year of existence, those who showed up and were on their best behavior in last year's second game of the North-South series, those who follow their Blue Devils and Norsemen to chilly, distant arenas year in and year out — are the ones who are going to make the most of this opportunity. They're the ones who are going to make Grosse Pointe high school hockey the class act it should be.

It's up to you, now.

Feeling Fit

By Deanna Hawthorne

The ideal exercise

Have you ever wondered just what the "ideal" exercise is? My Vital Options business partner, John Thornton, contributes the following information on her choice: Rowing.

First, consider what the ideal sport and exercise of the 1990s would be. It would have to be a complete body workout that would exercise all of the major muscle groups. Secondly, it would require optimum aerobics, flexibility and skill. And, it should fit into a wide variety of lifestyles, bodytypes, age and athletic ability.

According to Fredrick Hagerman, Ph.D., who studies 2,000 oarsman, rowing ranks among the most physiologically demanding of any aerobic sport. Because rowing utilizes muscles in the arms, legs, abdomen and torso and is executed in a sitting position, fewer injuries are incurred.

Physiologically, oarsmen consume vast amounts of oxygen and convert it to equally large amounts of energy. For example, baseball and basketball players process three or four liters of oxygen per minute during start/stop action of an average game. Rowers, on the other hand, consume nearly seven liters, a value even greater than that amount consumed by long-distance runners and cross-country skiers.

Energy output is equally lofty (36 kilocalories per minute as compared with 30 for cross-country skiers). Their cardiovascular system is very impressive. At rest, the average heart pumps approximately five liters of blood per minute, but during an intense rowing effort, nearly eight times that amount will surge through the veins and arteries of the oarsman.

Rowing is very beneficial for the injured runner as there is no stress on the joints and the alternative workout is a comparable activity. The swimmer or cross-country skier has the opportunity to use this method for cross training.

The beginner in fitness or the overweight person also has an opportunity, through rowing, to begin a fitness program that will reduce the risk of injury and improve the quality of life.

There is one drawback to rowing: Cost. But a viable alternative is a rowing machine. Sales have skyrocketed in the last few years and on the whole, rowing machines provide a superior workout at a nominal price.

Rowing will not take the place of the more conventional sports, but it will help add interest and dimension to the fitness world, as walking has done in the 80s.

"Row, row, row your boat . . ." What you have done for your fitness today. Maybe it's not too late.

Water safety class

The Coast Guard Auxiliary will teach water safety classes for school-aged children beginning Saturday, June 20, at the Grosse Pointe Public Library, at 10:30 a.m. at the Woods branch, at 2 p.m. at the Central Library, on Thursday, June 25 at 7 p.m. at the Park branch.

For more information, call 343-2074.

Goin' national

Grosse Pointe Woods' own Julie and David DeGutis will play in the U.S. National Junior Racquetball Championships in the 8 and under division at the Sawmill Athletic Club, Columbus, Ohio, June 20 through 24. Over 800 players are expected to participate. David, 8, and Julie, 7, qualified for the nationals by playing in a regional racquetball tournament held at the Back-Wall Courts in Madison Heights May 15 through 17. Julie finished second and David was third.

David has already won two "Super Seven" tournaments this season. He also was runner-up in the Michigan State Tournament held at Rose Shores. The brother-sister combination is active in other sports. Both play soccer in the Grosse Pointe Soccer Association; Julie is a member of the Warriors, coached by Richard Hall and David plays for the Gators, coached by Steve Miller. Julie and David attend Mason Elementary School. They are the children of John and Jill DeGutis.

Action-packed events highlight Sesquicentennial

Canoeists, balloonists, bicyclists, sailors and walkers will find a variety of action-packed attractions to visit during Michigan's Sesquicentennial celebration, reports AAA Michigan.

From watching race cars roar through Detroit's downtown streets to competing in canoe races or hiking an old trail, travelers can set their own pace at events across the state.

Professional and amateur canoeists will join other paddlers in a river race June 13 and 14 at Alpena's Thunder Bay River Festival. Old-fashioned log drives and hay rides will also highlight this weekend.

For a slower pace, a steam-powered paddle boat can take travelers on a quiet lake ride. The Clifford Lake Clipper, a replica of an 1881 steamer, is docked in Stanton and operates Friday through Sunday until Labor Day.

Lake Michigan sailors can drop anchor in Grand Haven on June 27 to watch the sailboats race the final lap of the Queen's Cup Regatta. A spectacular Parade of Sail converges on Grand Traverse Bay at dusk on July 25 as 200 impressive ships — including several over 100 feet long — should delight landlubbers and sailors alike. Two original ocean-going tall ships, the "Gazela" and the "Alexandria," will join the parade.

Aviation fans can view aerobatic stunts performed by the Snow Birds, Golden Knights and other fliers in Kalamazoo June 13-14. Precision flying and parachute jumping will fill the skies June 20 and 21 at the Central Michigan Air Show. A rare $2 million British World War II Spitfire will fly over spectators.

Canton Township's Mayflower Hot Air Balloon race July 3-5 will send up the first batch of balloons. In Battle Creek, the International Balloon Championship will attract more than one million spectators from July 11-18; in Jackson, balloon launches take place July 24-26.

Antique gas and steam engines will be displayed in Hastings July 11-12 and Flint's Crossroad Village will offer a view of antique coaches under restoration Aug. 15-16.

Steering towards fast-paced action, the Detroit Grand Prix VI will thrill nearly 260,000 spectators June 19-21. The 2 1/2 mile downtown race course will feature Formula 1 drivers from all over the world. For a slower pace, Battle Creek's Pro Kart Grand Prix will host 500 national competitors for specially-designed sprint races Aug. 8-9.

Athletes who are ready for a fun challenge can meet in Tawas City for the Sept. 12 Indian Summer Triathlon, which includes swimming, biking and running. If bikers are prepared for an across-the-state challenge, the Sept. 16 ODRAM (One Day Ride Across Michigan) beginning in Muskegon and finishing in Bay City, will test their stamina.

In Charlevoix, walkers can cultivate botanical interests from June through August by strolling through the lakeside city's gardens. With a self-guided tour map, walkers can follow various flower routes and at day's end, view the sunset from the Father Charlevoix Garden.

Traverse City will hold a Summer Garden Walk July 16 through some of northwest Lower Michigan's most beautiful gardens. Serious striders can participate in Montague's La Riviera De Blanc Trek Fer Fun. Trail enthusiasts will carry hiking gear and follow a marked route with challenging survival activities.

The Sept. 25-27 weekend will highlight 1840's activities and provide canoe rides at White River campgrounds.

AAA advises travelers to confirm dates and activities before visiting any of these Sesquicentennial events.

What's Shaping Up in Grosse Pointe?

Fitness vacation

Camp Cavell of the Metropolitan Detroit YWCA and American Health and Fitness are cosponsoring a summer fitness week for women July 12-17 at Camp Cavell, 4 1/2 miles north of Lexington on Lake Huron. A special fitness weekend is also planned for July 17-19.

The week-long program will feature such health- and fitness-oriented workshops as morning jogging or walking, low-impact aerobics, body toning or stretch and tone, horseback riding, swimming, yoga and volleyball.

Camp facilities include horse stables, sports fields, tennis courts and a fitness trail. The week's menus will feature nutritional meals and snacks and focus on healthy eating habits.

For more information, call the Camp Cavell administrative office at 961-9220.

A different kind of summer camp

The Michigan Wilderness Preservation Environmental Education Youth Camp offers an alternative to the yearly summer camp routine. Campers have the opportunity to learn about nature firsthand at the camp, located in Glennie, in the heart of the Huron National Forest.

Camp sessions include classes such as forestry, wildlife management, fisheries, bird study and more. Camp sessions begin June 13 and are open to children 8 through 17.

For more information, contact the camp at 1700 Adams Rd., Glennie, Mich., 48737, or phone 517-735-4542.

Stay slim, cool

Aerobic Slimnastics by Kathy White will convene for summer classes at the air-conditioned Neighborhood Club, 17150 Waterloo, on Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7 to 8 p.m. Classes begin the week of June 22. Cost is $35 per person, $60 per couple for six weeks.

For registration information, call 885-4600.

Aerobic mini-session

The "Sunny Days" mini-session of Jackie Sorensen's Aerobic Dancing began Monday, June 15. Class meets from 8:45 to 9:45 a.m. on Mondays and Thursdays for four weeks. Instructor is Suzanne Zielinski.

Fees are $22.50 for four weeks (eight sessions), $18 for senior citizens. The cost of an additional four sessions (July 13, 16, 20 and 23) is $11.25.

For more information, call 881-7511, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Golf outing benefits

The eighth annual Lysczarz Brothers Golf Outing for Muscular Dystrophy will take place Monday, June 29, at Burning Tree Golf and Country Club, 22871 21 Mile, west of North Avenue in Mount Clemens. The event includes unlimited golf, an open driving range, continental breakfast, barbecue luncheon, steak dinner, door prizes, refreshments and games on the courts.

Cost is $115 per person. Dinner and drinks for non-golfers are available for $40. Monies go to support Muscular Dystrophy Association research and patient services.

For more information, call 939-6578, 979-4472 or 268-2415. Or register by mailing a check payable to the MDA, to 11571 Villa Court, Warren, Mich., 48093.

Eat Smart

By Mary Busse

Nutrition and young people

Young people want to develop their bodies, minds and personalities. Middle-aged and elderly people concentrate on maintaining good physical and mental health. Each of these objectives can be achieved through proper nutrition.

The teen years mark the transition from a time when children eat from choices they are offered to a time when they become responsible for their own food selections. Nutrition education becomes important as a means of helping teenagers make informed, healthy food choices while instilling sound nutritional habits.

Some things you should know about nutrition and young people:

With a multitude of extra-curricular activities, teenagers almost inevitably fall into irregular:

a.) Sleeping habits; b.) Eating patterns; c.) Emotional anxieties; d.) All of the above.

D.) Adolescence is a time of great change in many areas of life. With over 50 percent of the women in the work force, coupled with erratic after-school activity schedules, teenagers often eat on the run or skip meals. Also, when teenagers' minds are on other things, proper eating habits may not receive the thought necessary to establish lifelong practices. As a parent, take the time to help teenagers with all aspects of their lives – especially nutrition.

To "enforce" good nutrition, parents must make every effort to allow teenagers:

a.) Independence; b.) No choice, set nutritional rules they must follow; c.) Allow them to make drastic mistakes in order to learn their lessons.

A.) Adults can't nag, scold or pressure teenagers into eating properly because they typically turn a deaf ear to coercion and sometimes, even to persuasion. However, if nutritionally-sound meals are consistently offered, teenagers will usually eat them. This doesn't mean that complaints will never accompany a meal, but as parents of teenagers, we must learn when to let some of their comments pass without responding.

Because of teenagers' hectic schedules, fast foods seem to "solve" the problem of what to eat. Yet, many fast foods contain:

a.) Inadequate amounts of fiber and bulk; b.) Excessive amounts of sodium; c.) High concentrations of fat; d.) All of the above.

D.) Most fast foods are low in fiber and bulk, high in fat and can be extremely high in sodium. Hamburgers, fries, pizzas and even shakes contain sodium.

Many times during adolescence, poor eating habits result:

a.) From a lack of money; b.) As a form of rebellion; c.) From a lack of information.

B.) Rebellion may bring with it any action that the teenager feels will be highly disapproved of by parents. If proper nutrition has been taught in the home, this may be the time and one of the methods of rebellion the teenager chooses. But don't worry, most teenagers soon will outgrow this phase and return to the sound nutritional habits previously instilled.

One U.S. study of teenagers revealed that 59 percent of the young men wanted to gain weight, although _____ percent actually needed to.

a.) 50 percent; b.) 25 percent; c.) 15 percent.

B.) Young men want larger biceps, broader shoulders, chests and forearms. One of the most important aspects of their image is their physical appearance. However, these young men should be made aware that without proper exercise combined with nutritious meals, additional calories will add unwanted fat, not build muscles.

Girls are extremely "figure conscious" during their teenage years. When surveyed, 70 percent of the girls said they wanted to lose weight, but no more than _____ percent were actually overweight.

a.) 50 percent; b.) 25 percent; c.) 15 percent.

C.) Being thin is a powerful acceptance factor within all age groups, however, it is usually the teenage girl who is the most self-conscious. Often this is taken to the point of giving up good health. Helping the teenage girl to differentiate between "fattening foods" and those high in nutrients will be beneficial when she is making choices.

What can you do to promote accurate nutritional knowledge and adequate eating behaviors without making teenagers feel pressured to conform to your standards?

a.) Completely avoid the issue of nutrition; b.) Place nutritional tips on the refrigerator; c.) Openly discuss the issue with teenagers.

C.) Be aware that nutrition is becoming a required subject in many of the schools, so your child is exposed to it to some degree. Explain that you are not totally restricting everything they eat. Most teenagers are not ready to give up all junk foods. Invite them to share with you what they have learned about good food habits. Encourage them to suggest meals that follow some of the guidelines they are now learning about.

Teenagers will never learn to make correct food choices and develop healthy eating habits unless they are allowed the freedom to do so. As parents, one of the most effective ways to teach nutrition is by example. If they see us eating nutritious meals and incorporating exercise into our daily routine, a great impact can be made that will stay with them through the years. Take heart, today's rebellious teenager may be tomorrow's 20-year-old instructing mom and dad to "shape up" before it's too late.

Detroit Piston John Salley shows "Detroit Person" Rochelle Rosenthal how to palm a ball, as the ladies gear up for the next Attic production, "A...My Name is Alice" opening June 26 at the Attic Theatre. The all-women's musical revue has more than 20 sketches and numbers, including one called "Detroit Persons" about an all-women's basketball team. From left are, Delores Render (understudy,) Anita Barone, Detroit Piston, Salley (not in the cast), Rosenthal, Miche Braden and Leah Bass. Not shown is cast member Beverly Hainault.

All-female musical revue next at Attic

The Attic Theatre's summer offering, the award-winning musical revue, "A...My Name is Alice," opens Friday, June 26, at 8 p.m. Preview performances will take place Wednesday and Thursday, June 24 and 25, at 8 p.m.

"A...My Name is Alice," a witty catalogue of the female experience, was conceived in 1984 by Joan Micklin Silver and Julianne Boyd for the Women's Project of the American Place Theatre in Manhattan. This, lively, bouncy series of sketches and musical numbers was the cooperative effort of more than 20 writers, including Anne Meara, Lucy Simon and Oscar award-winning Steve Tesich. Alice received the Outer Critics' Circle Award for Best Musical Revue of 1984.

The cast includes Anita Barone, who is remembered for her award-winning role as Helen Keller in the Attic's production of "Monday After the Miracle;" Leah Bass, who comes to this production from an international tour of "Carmen Jones;" Detroit favorite, Miche Braden, who when she isn't doing musical direction for the Attic, composes, teaches, and performs at various clubs throughout the area; Beverly Hainault, a founding company member of the Attic, who is returning to her native Michigan after working in Chicago; and Rochelle Rosenthal, veteran of several Michigan Opera Theatre productions. Jim Corti, director and choreographer, recently directed "Alice" at the Cleveland Playhouse, and comes to Detroit from Chicago where he has been directing at the Victory Gardens.

Co-sponsored by the UNISYS Corporation, the revue runs through July 26 with performances on Thursdays and Fridays at 8 p.m.; Saturdays at 5:30 and 9 p.m.; and Sundays at 2:30 and 6:30 p.m. For reservations call the Attic Theatre Box Office at 875-8284.

Jack Nicholson charms in 'Witches of Eastwick'

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

"The Witches of Eastwick" opens on a quiet note before it erupts into a combination horror-comic adaptions of John Updike's novel of the same name. Three divorcees, Alexandra (Cher), Jane (Susan Sarandon), and Suki (Michelle Pfeiffer), are lamenting their wasted past, the dullness of their present life and what they would like the future to bring. What all three want most is to have a prince come into their lives and rescue them from the boredom of the staid little town and the loneliness of their loveless lives.

Film

For all its coziness, the scene takes on an eerie aspect. Huddled around the table, their wine glasses cupped in their hands and seen only in the light of the fireplace, they take on the appearance of sorceresses. What they don't know is what will appear to be the answer to their prayers is about to happen.

Daryl Van Horne (Jack Nicholson), is arriving in town to take up residence in a historical mansion there. Charismic as sin — an apt description since Daryl is a devil — it doesn't take long before he has seduced each of the girls.

In the process his demonic identity is reinforced by strange happenings on the tennis court, the swimming pool and games that defy gravity in the mansion.

As they participate in these goings on, the girls absorb some of the tricks of his trade and then they realize the price they are paying for their fun, and they conspire to drive him out of town.

"The Witches of Eastwick" is an extravagant parody of the battle of the sexes, heightened by writer Michael Christofer's adaptation of Updike's novel, director George Miller's classical flamboyance and Nicholson's enormous energy.

It is Nicholson's film all the way. He is magnetic as he charms each of his victims.

Nicholson plays himself in a big way. Sometimes he even parodies his past performances.

Cher turns in a good performance as the most resistant feminist and Pfeiffer is quietly alluring, but Sarandon stands out as the plain music teacher who is transformed into an alluring sex symbol.

There is a surprising ironic twist to the film's last scene. For all it's strangeness, "The Witches of Eastwick" has a lurid charm.

Attic to offer class

The Attic Theatre Conservatory will hold and Advanced Scene Study class, meeting July 7-31 on Tuesday and Thursday, 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. The deadline for registration is June 26. Interested students should call 875-8285 for more information.

The class, scheduled in response to requests from many actors in the area, will be taught by Glen Allen Pruett, winner of this year's Detroit Free Press award for Best Supporting Actor and a regular member of the Attic Theatre acting ensemble.

The Attic Theatre Conservatory will offer a full range of courses for professionals and non-professionals in the fall. For a fall brochure, call 875-8285 or write to the Attic Theatre Conservatory, P.O. Box 02457, Detroit, Mich. 48202.

'River's Edge' remains long after viewing

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

A cross between "Stand by Me" and "Blue Velvet," "River's Edge" has neither the humanistic interest of the former nor the downright horror of the latter. Still, it manages to take some of the best elements of each, and the result is a worthwhile — if not extremely credible — piece of work.

The film opens, appropriately enough, on the bank of a river, where an apathetic juvenile has just strangled his girlfriend. That river bank is revisited frequently throughout the picture, as is the macabre sense of priority which permeates the movie. Indeed, the shocking opening is just a teaser of things to come. By the end of the picture, viewers will have seen a story like nothing they've ever witnessed before. And that's putting it delicately.

"River" explores a two-tiered world of juvenile delinquency and psychological imbalance. It explores a perveted relationship between power and sex, between friendship and displaced psychosis, and ultimately between right and wrong. In establishing its themes, the picture takes a trip through a world where nothing is as it seems, and everything is less-than-perfect.

This is a world where a young man murders his girlfriend "because she was talking s---," and then sits there next to her naked body until the morning, when he heads to school to brag to his friends about what he's done. It's a world in which his friends, who were also friends of the dead girl, do nothing about the corpse except talk among themselves — and wish they had the guts to do something else. It's a world where the ruling logic is that the murderer should be protected, because it's no use losing two friends just because of the strangling.

It's the world of the punk.

Film

Lane (Crispin Glover) is the leader of his high school clique. What he says, goes. The rest of the group is a motley crew of losers, only a few of which show any real potential for anything in the future. After viewing the body, only Lane wants to do anything about it; and slowly he becomes obsessed with protecting his murderous friend. The more obsessed he becomes, the more he begins to alienate himself from the rest of the group. More than anything else, the picture is a character study of Lane's reactions to the bizarre events taking place.

But in exploring Lane's psyche, the picture studies the rest of the group as well. It draws a contrast between the killer, who murdered the girl because he loved the feeling of power it gave him, and a middle-aged recluse living nearby (Dennis Hopper) who once murdered a girl because he truly loved her. It studies the reactions of the remaining girls in the clique, and their seemingly nonchalant attitudes toward the death of their best friend. And it makes queries to the future, introducing and following a 10-year-old punk who appears to be on the road to no good just like the older kids.

All of the different paths the picture takes lead to the same place by the climax though — the assertion that there is a horrifyingly close link between sex and power. To have one, the picture says in some places, is to have the other. At a different time though, the picture makes a strong case for an argument to this. Whichever is ultimately the message the piece wants to convey, it does a remarkable job in leaving viewers with something to think about.

With its warped system of values and its ironically skewed sense of humor and satire, "River's Edge" is not the lightest piece of movie fare on the current marquees. But it is without a doubt one of those movies that will stand out in your memory long after the viewing experience has ended.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT

Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything and who shows me the way to reach my ideal. You who give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and you who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in t his short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual glory. Amen.
Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Pray this prayer 3 consecutive days without asking your wish, after third day your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this prayer as soon as your favor has been granted. Thank you for favors received. M.A.R.

The Missing LINC
Linking Individuals to Needs in the Community

Linking individuals to Needs in the Community is a non-profit organization whose purpose is to coordinate needs with resources. This is accomplished by placing goods no longer needed by individuals and businesses into the hands of Metropolitan Detroit charitable agencies. Operating since 1971, LINC is proud of the accomplishments it has made and strives to increase its resource base. If you have recyclable items, no longer of use to you, Operation LINC knows who can and will use them. Please call LINC at 882-6100 with your donation. KEEP IT MOVING!

500 ANIMALS ADOPT A PET

LOVEABLE adult dogs and cats, 1 year and up (need good homes). For adoption information call Northern Suburbs Animal Welfare League Volunteer at 777-5110 or 773-0954.

PLEASE consider adopting my two cats. I love them with all my heart, but moving forces me to find them a new home. Casey is a large, grey Tabby, a shy, aloof, four year old male. Emmy is a zesty, affectionate, Siamese female, 17 months old. They love each other so it would be best not to separate them. A home without other cats would be best. Both are neutered and declawed, have shots. If you can ease my breaking heart by adopting them, please call 779-0314 after 9p.m.

BLACK Labrador to good home, A.K.C., female, 6 months, housebroken, very affectionate. 885-2576 or 962-8745.

KITTENS, many colors, free to good home, call Karen. 881-9638.

WE Have 2 adorable male Tabby kittens. We have raised them since they were 1 1/2 weeks old. They're healthy now and are adorable, now they need a home. Please come and take 1 home. Call us, 882-8660. THE ANIMAL HOSPITAL.

HOW would you like a cute, adorable, fluffy little kitten? Call 521-0727.

Babe Ruth

Hitters dominate Babe Ruth League play

The Yankees beat the Pirates , 16-3. Scott Van Almen was the winning pitcher, striking out eight and holding the Pirates hitless until the sixth inning. Kevin Barnes, Jay Berschback, Dan Minadeo and Van Almen had RBI. Kevin Rauch, Charlie Lickfold and John Herman combined to strike out eight Yankee hitters.

The Yankees continued their winning ways by edging the Rangers,8-6. It was their 11th straight victory. Berschback pitched seven innings, striking out six. Van Almen, Barnes, Keating and Bednarchik were the hitting heroes. The teams traded double plays; for the Yanks it was Barnes to Keating and for the Rangers, Oliver to Jungwirth. The Rangers' Chris Oliver reached base four times on two hits and two errors. He also scored one run.

In the Farms-City-Park's American League West, the Angels beat the A's, 7-5. Mike Bell and Jason Steffes pitched for the Angels. Peter Griem and Billy Staats doubled, Dan Wimsatt had two singles and scored two runs and John Bednarchik singled and scored. For the A's, Matt DeBets had two singles and scored two runs and Darren Havern singled twice. Brandon Farmer and Tim Nolan split the pitching duties.

On June 13, the first place Tigers and second place Blue Jays faced off, with the Tigers emerging victorious, 12-5. Mike Oliver was the winning pitcher; Tom Moellering pitched two innings and got the save. Brian Letscher, Moellering and Oliver each had two hits for the Tigers. Rob Khoenle and Ed Suzor had triples. The Tiger pitchers held the Jays to four hits.

The Orioles opened the second half of the season with a 6-1 win over the Tigers. Starting pitcher Jim Bunn pitched well and got help from reliever Kevin Nugent; they allowed just one run on six hits. The Orioles collected six runs on seven hits and ran the bases aggressively, stealing six times. Marty Wayman and Matt Wysocki each collected two singles; Andy Hoag doubled and singled. Duncan Miller tripled. Brian Letcher pitched six fine innings for the Tigers; Moellering threw in relief.

The Orioles pulled out a 10-9 win in this see-saw affair with the Red Sox. Dave Reed, Marty Gulewicz, Matt Wysocki and Duncan McMillan played well. Wayman and Gulewicz collected two hits each; Hoag, Wysocki, Nugent and McMillan added one apiece. Hoag's hit was a double.

The Sox kept coming back with hits by Bellanca, Wisnewski, Asker, Vier and Downs. McMillan pitched well, but the Orioles suffered from defensive lapses.

Little League

was two-for-two for the Padres.

CARDINALS-GIANTS

The Giants topped the Cardinals, 7-4. For the Giants, Christine Galnor went two-for-three, Brian Beck batted in two runs and played well on defense, Geer pitched well and went two-for-three and stole home, Jeff Smythe pitched well in relief. Gehrke, Morgan Matthews, Teddy Hill and Rob Joslyn also played well. For the Cards, Ryan Allard walked and stole two bases, Cris Jeffries, Ben Harwood, Stash Capponi, Eric Dahlstrom, Jonathan Solaka, Jamie Walker, Robert Hasletter and Allard each contributed hits and excellent play.

"The best sedan in the world."
CAR Magazine, November 1986

EVOLUTION OF THE SPECIES
The New Breed Jaguar XJ6
Introducing the 1988 Jaguar XJ6. Like its forebears, its sleek form is taut and well-muscled. Yet it faces the wind with greater aerodynamic efficiency.
True to Jaguar tradition, its new aluminum alloy, fuel injected six cylinder engine has double overhead cams. However, the added sophistication of 24 valves further enhances power and high-speed response.
To the classic interior splendor of supple leather and fine wood, the new XJ6 adds advanced computer-age technology—in everything from its climate control system to its Vehicle Condition Monitor, which continually checks 27 critical functions.
The 1988 Jaguar XJ6. It is totally new, yet it reflects the finest traits of its forebears. It marks the evolution of a legendary species. It's little wonder that upon previewing it in Europe, CAR magazine called it "the best sedan in the world."
