

Current, future municipal incinerators face new regulations

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

Under new guidelines now being formulated by the federal Environmental Protection Agency, existing municipal incinerators could be required to install the most advanced anti-pollution equipment, including dry acid gas scrubbers and filter baghouses. Incinerators covered by the rules are likely to include not only the Detroit facility now under construction, but also the Grosse Pointes-Clinton facility in Clinton Township.

A draft of the guidelines is expected in two years, with the final form a year after that. They will be implemented in much the same way as automobile emissions tests: Each state will draw up its own regulations subject to EPA approval.

No one can predict now what shape the EPA guidelines will take or what specific regulations the state of Michigan will propose. "The guidelines are fairly compelling," says the EPA's Jim DeMocker, "but I can't say whether these guidelines will actually lead to any changes at these particular plants."

There could be a certain amount of leeway as the state works out the rules. Each state may propose that the regulations not apply to a particular facility — but the EPA retains the authority to allow or disallow the exemptions.

DeMocker said there is a possibility that the guidelines could allow graduated standards. "We could allow for size or remaining useful life or we could have different rules for refuse-derived fuel facilities like Detroit's and for mass-burn facilities, where they just dump it all in the hopper."

The Pointes-Clinton incinerator is a small mass-burn facility about 15 years old. It installed a higher stack and electrostatic precipitators in the 1970s to comply with clean air standards.

The guidelines are the latest in a series of threats to Detroit incinerator plans. Through an oversight, the state Department of Natural Resources approved the construction without requiring the latest technology. Since that time, the EPA, several environmental groups and the government of Ontario have mounted legal attempts to force the city to add a baghouse and dry acid gas scrubbers. So far, the city has resisted and construction at the I-75 and I-94 intersection continues.

Last month the EPA issued a guidance — which does not have the force of law — calling for filters and scrubbers and combustion controls on new incinerators. The guidance was unprecedented for the EPA. "We would tend to argue that they do apply to Detroit," DeMocker said.

Last week, the UAW released a letter to Mayor Coleman Young urging that the anti-pollution devices be added to the $438 million incinerator. The union has been a strong supporter of the Young administration and its position came as a surprise to some observers. The UAW request that the state and the EPA pay for installation of the scrubbers and baghouse on the Detroit incinerator has been turned down by both agencies.

Whatever practical effects the new rules may have, the EPA clearly expects some changes. DeMocker said incinerator chiefs are no doubt monitoring the progress of the regulations. "They may want to sit up and take notice," he said, "but they don't have to stand up and take notice — yet."

Ken Werenski, 20, and Liz Rohan, 19, both spend their time working outdoors. Werenski, in the law enforcement program at Macomb Community College, works for the village of Grosse Pointe Shores and calls himself a sanitation engineer. "The pay is pretty good," he said, "and it's not difficult work." Rohan, who will be a sophomore at University of Michigan, is spending her fourth summer as a lifeguard. "I'm a park rat," she said. Schools slowly fixing North's air problems

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

Improvements in the North High School ventilation system have been plagued with delays, but are still on track, school officials say. But the job which was supposed to be done this summer may now stretch till Christmas.

"Honestly, I doubt we'll have it resolved by the time school starts," maintenance supervisor Larry Yankauskas told the school board July 6. "It's possible that the project could go into December."

Bid specifications on changes to the ventilation system were rushed into print in May in order to be ready for the board's July meeting, according to director of support services David King, but only one bid came in. The specifications have now been clarified and re-advertised.

In the meantime, the district went ahead and had one prototype air exchange unit built. It will be installed and operated on a trial basis before further units are ordered.

"We didn't want to spend a ton of money and then find out it didn't work," King said. "I know the board is in a hurry, but the problem has been there for many years. If it takes another month or so to get it right, it'll be worth it."

The project is complicated because it attempts to cure a problem in an existing building — requiring modified equipment to fit special circumstances. "We can't just buy it off the shelf," King said.

There have not been any complaints about the air in the building this summer. Summer school classes are largely confined to the first floor, classes are smaller and teachers and most students are there only a few hours a day.

There was some discussion about moving summer school classes to a different building, but King said the director, Kathleen Herschelmann, an assistant principal at North during the regular school year, was confident the classes could work around the ventilation project. Summer school has traditionally been held at North because it is the only building with air conditioning.

Ventilation has improved since Easter time when the building fans were put on a full-time operation during school hours. Reports from several health agencies have urged the school district to continue the full-time operation.

The fans were put on "duty cycle," or part-time operation, as an economy move during the 1970s energy crisis. King said the plan for next year is to operate them full time during school hours, then turn them off until a few hours before school begins the next day.

In May, the building was studied by an environmental scientist from Henry Ford Hospital, by an environmental engineering company and by the state Occupational Safety and Health Agency. No one found dangerous conditions in the building; all three suggested ways to improve the comfort level.

Dr. Howard Sawyer, of Henry Ford's occupational and environmental division, found that correctable ventilation problems caused the headaches and dry noses, eyes and throats of some students and faculty. He said they are "not manifestations of a serious illness." He toured the building and interviewed students and teachers, both with and without symptoms.

Sawyer indicated in his report that some of the concerns may have been related to publicized air problems at Roseville Brablec High School, but he emphasized that the concerns raised are legitimate.

Kemron Environmental Services of Farmington Hills surveyed the building on May 6. "The conclusion I have reached regarding the air quality at North High School is that the adverse effects experienced by personnel and students are related to the balancing of the building's ventilation system," Kemron's industrial hygiene manager Thomas Martin wrote in his report.

Margheritta S. Allardice

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

It's hard to tell what she's devoted more of herself to — helping older citizens or enriching the Grosse Pointe art world.

Margheritta S. Allardice recently completed 21 years of service, most of them as director, to what is now known as Adult Well-Being Services. When it was started as a pilot project of the Junior League of Detroit in 1953, it was the first senior citizens center in Michigan.

At 64, Mickey, as she is known to friends, has returned to her first love, her passion — her art.

Allardice, who has been working for the last year in preparation, will have an opening of the paper she makes at the CADE Gallery on 6th Street in Royal Oak beginning Aug. 15. The paper, that she makes from scratch, is a work of art by itself.

Allardice graduated from Sarah Lawrence College in New York, then studied at George Washington University in Washington, D.C., earning a degree in fine arts.

She moved to Grosse Pointe with her first husband in 1945.

She is married to Edward M. Allardice now, whom she met early on while working for what was then called Adult Service Centers. Edward Allardice was the director for Well-Being Services for the Aging, a group that had a similar function of providing services to the aging.

Allardice always had a flair for art. She won several contests while in high school, and majored in fine arts while in college.

When she moved to Grosse Pointe, she quickly became involved in numerous artistic programs.

"I was an art teacher," she said. "I started the children's art classes at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial and also taught adult art classes for the board of education."

In 1959 she won first place in both the watercolor and oil categories of the Grosse Pointe Artists annual exhibit. More recently Allardice took the best design awards at the Grosse Pointe Artists Association annual exhibits in 1986 and 1987 with her work in paper.

Economics was the driving force behind her getting a job with the Adult Service Centers, going to Wayne State University

A student at University Liggett School became the 20th person under 16 to die from gunshot in Detroit.

Ti Juan Kidd, who was known for his friendly and outgoing manner, was shot Saturday, July 18, on the sidewalk of a west-side Detroit street. Witnesses say Kidd was apparently trying to investigate an attempt to crash a birthday party he was attending. Moments later he was shot in the head.

A Detroit teen was arrested Monday in connection with the shooting.

Ti, as he was commonly called, was going into his sophomore year at ULS this fall where he would have been the starting quarterback for the Knights varsity football squad. He was also a track star and a basketball point guard who was named the junior varsity most valuable player in 1986.

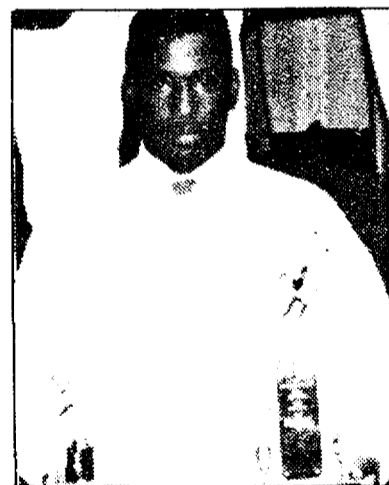

Carla Walker, ULS Human Resources director, said, "He enjoyed his friends and they enjoyed him. He was always so positive."

A multi-faceted individual, he also played the drums in the band and in his spare time, would help other students who needed tutoring.

Although he attended Liggett for only one year, it didn't take long for him to endear himself to students as well as administrators.

"This was a child who had a lot of success at this institution," said Cathy Schmidt, publications director.

"I respected him for how he lived his life," said Bob Newvine, varsity football coach. "He always had a smile on his face."

Bob Wood, athletic director, described Kidd as "a dedicated athlete, a hard-worker on and off the field, fun-loving and a fierce competitor."

Kim Buffington, a fellow student, said she had "the greatest amount of respect for him."

Vanessa Selim remembers Kidd exactly how most described him.

"Ti Juan was always there with a smile on his face ready to make you feel better. He was one of the best people I knew."

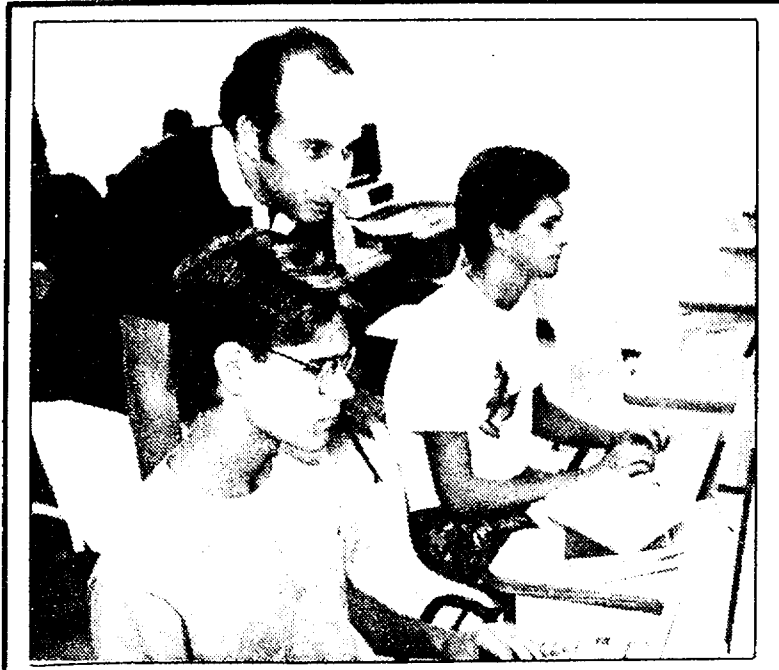

Doug Goodman, director of admissions, said, "What I was most impressed by was the non-student-school relationship we all had."

Walker, referring to his mother, Rhonda Kidd-Love, said, "Not only was she his number-one fan, but his best friend. She put in a lot of time at this school to help Ti. He fit right in with everyone and that is a credit to his mom. The support she gave him was incredible."

Kidd was recruited from St. Cecilia's for his athletic ability.

Jeffrey Hunsinger, foreground, receives instructions about Assembler 8088 computer programming during a summer program at Rose-Hulman Institute of Technology in Terre Haute, Ind. He is the son of Roy and Kathy Hunsinger, of the Park. A senior at South High School, Hunsinger was one of 24 outstanding high school students from across the nation selected to participate in the college's two-week summer computer program. Cary Laxer, standing, a member of the computer science faculty, taught students new ways to improve their computer skills. Upon completion of the program, each student receives two quarter-hours of college credit.

Garage doors pose hazard to children

Citing 31 deaths since 1982 to children under 12 years of age caused by automatic garage doors, safety experts are again warning parents to prohibit children from playing games with garage door openers.

Reconstructing the accident scenario, the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission said children activate the garage door opener, then run out of the garage in an effort to beat the door before it closes. Deaths occur when the descending door strikes the child and pins him or her to the ground. Even garage doors equipped with automatic reverse mechanisms have been involved in fatalities.

The commission urges parents to keep remote control devices locked in the accessory compartment of the car to prevent access by children. Wall-mounted switches which activate garage doors should be moved far out of reach by young children.

Homeowners should also check the owner's manual for instructions on checking the automatic reverse feature on the doors. The commission said homeowners may want to adjust the opener's sensitivity switch so that the door reverses under the least possible pressure.

Graduates honored by congressman

Congressman Dennis Hertel recently awarded the Congressman's Medal of Merit to graduating seniors from high schools in the 14th District.

Local students who were honored were Sue Quinlan, Star of the Sea; Athina Pappas, North High; Linda Gaglio, South High; Paul Kesman, Bishop Gallagher; Joseph Cella, Notre Dame High; Raymond Gogolin, Harper Woods

High; and Alan Johnson, Lutheran East High School.

The award, consisting of an engraved bronze medal and a certificate, is presented to one member of each graduating class who has a record of achievement in social studies and has demonstrated a commitment to school and community service.

Students were nominated by the social studies faculty of their schools.

Friends to provide scholarship

The Friends of Polish Art will provide an annual full tuition scholarship for study at the Institute of Music and Dance. The scholarship will provide a student of Polish descent with a year of private instruction in the area of voice, violin, cello or piano.

The Friends of Polish Art supports artists through publications, scholarships and direct financial support of the fine arts. Through the years, the non-profit organization has donated numerous works to museums and educational institutions.

The organization was founded in 1937 to provide a source of information on the important contributions of Polish artists. The group now has some 375 members locally, and is celebrating its 50th anniversary by initiating several major ongoing projects like the Institute of Music and Dance scholarship.

Auditions for the scholarship will be held at the Institute of Music and Dance in September. Auditionees will be judged by a panel chaired by Deborah Berman, dean of IMD's School of Music. Applications are available at the Institute's Cultural Center location, which is on the corner of John R. and Kirby. Information may be obtained by calling 831-2870.

Computer dating matches people with similar likes and dislikes based upon personality profiles. Travel agents perform much the same function by matching our clients with the destination best suited to their life style, personal preferences and budget.

Our clients rely upon our knowledge and expertise to find them exactly the right vacation spot. We're professionals who know that a certain place has the ample sightseeing Mrs. Jones seeks while another spot, even though very popular at the moment, just isn't right for this particular client.

We travel widely ourselves and make our recommendations based upon first hand knowledge. If, perhaps, we haven't been to a specific place, we've usually booked others who have given us a full report. We receive constant fare updates and trade magazines keep us informed about changing entry requirements, new hotels, special packages and just about anything else we need to know in order to serve you better. We attend seminars hosted by tourist boards, tour operators, airlines and cruise lines, all designed to further our education.

What other professional do you know who will give you the benefit of his/her expertise at no additional charge? We earn our living from commissions so you don't pay a penny more by letting us do all the work. (Making an airline reservation doesn't count if we don't issue the ticket.) In addition, we often save you money because we know all the angles. We might recommend leaving a day earlier or staying a day longer if it will save you money, so put yourself in our capable hands.

Candidates for Park municipal judge profiled

By Pat Paholsky
News Editor

Park voters will select from among six candidates for municipal judge in the primary Aug. 4. From this field, four will be eliminated and the top two vote-getters will compete against each other in the general election Nov. 3.

The candidate who is elected will serve the unexpired term of Beverly Grobbel who resigned in June. Her term was until December 1989.

Following, in alphabetical order, are profiles of the candidates.

Daniel E. Castner

Daniel E. Castner

Daniel E. Castner, 60, said he is a candidate for municipal judge because of "a desire to change the direction and expand my work within the field of law while using my varied experience and knowledge for the benefit of the community."

Castner, who is semi-retired from Markle and Markle law firm, has been a practicing attorney for 15 years. His trial experience includes auto injury and property damage, product liability, medical and legal malpractice, divorce and child custody. His criminal experience ranges from traffic violations to drug offenses to murder.

He earned a juris doctor in 1972 from Detroit College of Law. He received a bachelor of science in business from Lehigh University in Bethlehem, Pa. in 1951 and worked in the insurance field for 15 years.

He is a member of the Michigan Bar Association and a past member of the Detroit Bar Association, Michigan Trial Lawyers Association, American Trial Lawyers Association and the American Bar Association.

He has no previous political experience. Castner, who lives on Lakepointe, was a founding member of the Grosse Pointe Park Civic Association. He has four children — Daniel, Pamela, Nancy and Gregory.

Alan R. Devine Jr.

Alan R. Devine Jr., 58, said he is a candidate because "after 25 years in the Park, I believe that I owe this city for these most enjoyable years. With more than 30 years as a practicing attorney, I believe that I can, in some small measure, attempt to repay that debt. We have been fortunate in the past to have had excellent judges in our city and I certainly hope that that tradition can be continued."

His firm, Devine, Kent & Devine, is in the Renaissance Center.

He earned a bachelor of science in business administration from Holy Cross College and an LL.B. from the University of Detroit. Between college and law school, he served in the U.S. Marine Corps.

Devine is a member of the Detroit Bar Association, Michigan State Bar Association, Grosse Pointe Crisis Club and the Knights of Columbus.

He has no previous political experience.

He and his wife, Mary Verbiest Devine, live on Bedford. They have five children.

Alan R. Devine Jr.

Kirsten Frank

Kirsten Frank, 30, said she is a candidate for the following reasons: "Under Judge Beverly Grobbel during the last 9 1/2 years, our court has dealt consistently and forcefully with the problems of crime, blight and drunk driving. With her resignation, our city has a void of judicial leadership. I have the experience and dedication to fill that void. I am committed to preservation of property values, with the vigorous enforcement of building codes. I believe in tough sentences for convicted drunk drivers. As the municipal public defender appointed by Judge Grobbel, I have seen the success with which the imposition of swift sentences discourages repeat offenses by criminal offenders. I do not believe that our city can afford a judge who will not continue to quickly confront these problems."

Frank has been with Durant and Durant law firm since 1979. She became a partner this year. Prior to that, she worked for a year at the Michigan Commission of Courts.

Kirsten Frank

She received a bachelor of arts degree from Michigan State University and a juris doctor from the University of Detroit.

Her previous political experience includes being a Republican precinct delegate, a delegate to state Republican conventions, Republican youth chair for the 6th District, chairman of College Republicans and a member of the Republican Supreme Court Selection Committee.

Frank is a member of the Michigan Bar Association, Michigan Trial Lawyers Association, Women Lawyers Association, supervising attorney for Legal Alternatives for Women, Barrister Mentor Program, chairman of the Grosse Pointe Park Downtown Development Authority, and Detroit Bar Association Alternative Dispute Resolution Committee.

She and her husband, William B. Kelly, live on Somerset.

Muriel Hughes

Muriel Hughes

Muriel Hughes, 29, said she filed for the position because "to serve my community as judge has been a goal which I have worked toward for the past 11 years. The combination of my experience, sense of fairness and commitment to being available is what this position calls for. I intend on maintaining justice with fairness yet firmness in an efficient manner. I want to make a difference."

She is a partner in the law office of Hughes & Hughes, a general practice covering a wide range of law. She is also a licensed real estate broker.

She earned degrees from St. Mary's, Notre Dame, and the University of Detroit Law School.

Hughes is a member of the Michigan State Bar Association and the Junior League of Detroit.

She and her husband, Robert Schneider, live on Harcourt.

J. Thomas McGovern

J. Thomas McGovern, 43, said, "The Grosse Pointe Park Municipal Court serves an important function in our community in that it is the only court that considers the enforcement of our Motor Vehicle Code, our zoning regulations and other municipal laws. Considering my 15 years experience as a trial attorney, five years as a municipal counsel and circuit court mediator, I am uniquely qualified for this position and will be a fair and effective municipal judge."

J. Thomas McGovern

"I believe the municipal judge should be more than just legally qualified, but, as well, should be involved in the community. As a resident for more than 13 years, I have been actively involved in programs which have worked to improve the political, educational and social well-being of the Park. I view the position as one more opportunity to serve the community."

He has practiced law in St. Clair since 1973 and is general counsel for St. Clair Township and China Township and special counsel for the city of Marine City. He is permanent neutral panelist for the 31st Judicial Circuit Court Mediation Panel.

McGovern earned a bachelor of science in business administration/accounting at Western Michigan University and a juris doctor at University of Detroit Law School. He also has eight credits toward a master's degree in tax law at Wayne State University Law School. McGovern served in the U.S. Air Force from 1961-65.

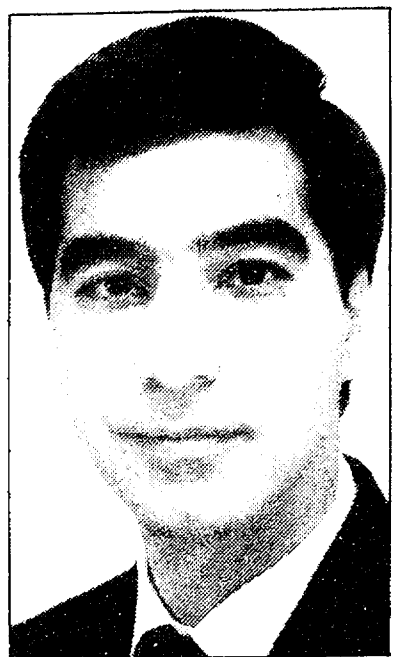

He is on the board of directors for the St. Clair County Bar Association and a member of the Mediation Committee, 31st Judicial Circuit Court.

McGovern served as a member of the selection committee for appointment of a Pierce Middle School principal; as president and secretary of Pierce Middle School PTO; as advisor for South High School's Freshman Homecoming Committee; as president and vice president of the Grosse Pointe Park Little League; and as a board member of the Grosse Pointe Inter-Faith Center for Racial Justice.

He and his wife Kathleen have three children — Emily, Sarah and James. They live on Balfour.

Dean Metry

Dean Metry, 32, said, "I am a third generation attorney and a lifelong resident of Grosse Pointe Park. I have extensive courtroom and trial experience, personally involved in more than 150 courts-martial and I have a minimum of 10 in-court appearances per week (more than all the other candidates). I am the only judicial candidate with prior judicial experience as I have acted as summary courts-martial officer on numerous occasions (military judge) and have acted as both prosecutor and defense counsel. I am committed to my community and my long residency has made me intimately familiar with all aspects of Grosse Pointe Park.

"As municipal judge, I will maintain the community standards in the tradition of the past judges, judging each case fairly, impartially and always balancing the needs of the community with the individual case in front of me. My prior judicial experience, my past and present in-court experience, my ability to remain as municipal judge for many years, my long residency in the Park, my commitment to the Park, and my desire to serve the residents of Grosse Pointe Park as municipal judge are the reasons that I am the qualified candidate for municipal judge."

He is an associate with Metry, Metry and Sanom, where he has worked since 1980. Prior to that, he served in the U.S. Navy Judge Advocate General Corps.

Metry received degrees from Central Michigan University and Wayne State University Law School. He is a 1980 graduate of Naval Justice School.

He is a member of the Michigan Bar Association, American Trial Lawyers Association, American Bar Association and the Detroit Bar Association.

He has no previous political experience.

Metry lives on Bedford.

Break-ins

One attempted and two successful break-ins were reported in the Park last week, resulting in the loss of about $200 in cash and some power tools.

A Buckingham residence was entered sometime between midnight and 8 a.m. Sunday, July 12. Entry to the home was gained through an unlocked rear porch, and by breaking a pane of glass in a door.

Park officials said a search was made of the first floor, and three purses containing a total of $200 were taken.

A Barrington Road residence was broken into Wednesday, July 15. Entry was made through a rear window by breaking a pane of glass. The thief or thieves exited through a rear door. A deadbolt lock was removed.

The house was not occupied. Numerous power tools were reportedly taken. Some of those power tools were located in the driveway of an Alter Road home, apparently dropped by the thief as he jumped a fence.

A screen was found slashed on a Beaconsfield Road residence in an apparent unsuccessful attempt to enter the dwelling.

Tom Saunders

Surf Side Six to perform at Patterson Park Sun.

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

Tom Saunders, jazz cornetist, and his dixieland jazz band, the Surf Side Six, will perform at a free concert at Patterson Park Sunday, July 26 from 5 to 6:30 p.m.

Saunders grew up in Grosse Pointe, attended Defer Elementary School, Pierce Junior High School and Grosse Pointe High School, graduating in 1956. He's been playing the cornet since his grade school days, and was a popular entertainer at teenage dances during his junior high and high school years. His group was known as the Six Saints of Dixieland. The Surf Side Six has been in existence for 25 years.

Saunders estimated he's made more than 25 recordings on several labels, including his own — Lorelet. He's played with Bobby Hackett, Eddie Condon, Barrett Deems and Pete Fountain and he toured last year with Wild Bill Davison and drummer Butch Miles. He's played at Carnegie Hall and he was one of the original members of the Detroit-based New McKinney's Cotton Pickers.

Saunders said the Surf Side

Six performs at Dixieland festivals and jazz clubs all over the country.

Saunders completed a European tour last October with an all-star band, performing in Germany, Switzerland, Ireland and England. "We've broadened the scope of our performance area the last few years," he said. "Europeans are very into jazz now. It's the only purely American art form."

Saunders said the nightclub scene for jazz took an abrupt nosedive a few years ago because of liquor liability insurance premiums and the heightened awareness of the dangers of combining drinking and driving. "Today, people rent a movie, buy a bottle of Chivas Regal and stay home," he said.

"We cater to people between 30 and 60 years old and these people are not likely to drink and drive."

Patterson Park is at the foot of Three Mile Drive in Grosse Pointe Park. A valid park pass is required for admission to the free concert.

For more information about recordings by Tom Saunders or the Surf Side Six, call 824-3602.

Juvenile arrested following chase

A 13-year-old Detroit boy was arrested around 4:30 a.m. Monday, July 13, after officers spotted the vehicle the youth was driving traveling the wrong way on Whittier, a one-way street.

The vehicle, a 1987 Oldsmobile, was reported as stolen in Detroit earlier in the morning.

The driver did not stop at a stop sign at Whittier and Vernor, while traveling at a high rate of speed.

A chase ensued and ended in Detroit at Jefferson and Gray when the vehicle slammed into a curb and received several flat tires.

There were no injuries.

Farms to consider proposed historic preservation ordinance

Grosse Pointe Farms was presented with a proposed historical designation ordinance Monday, July 20, and received an offer of $5,000 for the establishment of a city historical commission from the Grosse Pointe Historical Society.

Patricia Colett told the Farms council any kind of ordinance that would finally be adopted would affect a small percentage of homeowners.

Colett said that the historical society would offer the $5,000 to the city commission that would have to be created if the proposed ordinance were passed. The commission would be the arm of city government that would investigate and propose which homes would receive the historical designation. Colett added that all the resources of the historical society would be made available to the commission if it were formed.

Mayor Joseph Fromm said the council shouldn't consider whether to adopt such an ordinance without lengthy and in-depth investigations into what other communities have done, what the specific needs of the Farms would be and what the impact would be on the rights of individual homeowners.

Colett said historical designation ordinances vary from community to community, and that the proposed ordinance should be considered as a jumping-off point, and not the only way the ordinance could be considered.

Councilman Emil Berg thanked Colett for the report. He said he received numerous calls and letters from members of the historical society.

"I received about 20 calls and 18 letters" Berg said. "That's good. If you are going to support something, you might as well get behind it."

Many questions were asked about specifics of the proposal, but Colett and historical society member Jon Gandelot said that specifics of the proposal wouldn't be pertinent since the ordinance is only in the early discussion stages.

Colett said that a historical preservation ordinance would specify that homes the city commission designated as historical would be required to be maintained in their original state. Other home amenities such as gates, gardens and walls could also fall under the ordinance.

Colett noted that in Birmingham a historical preservation ordinance has brought more prestige to some homes, and therefore has increased their value. She added that it is the duty of local government to protect its history.

Colett stressed no two ordinances are the same. If there were proposals brought to other Grosse Pointe cities, she said that no two would be the same.

"I think the real crux of the issue is an educational one," Gandelot said. "If we help educate the community to the real treasures in the community and suggest to the homeowner, that in the opinion of the commission, their home is of historical significance, then they might consider a rehab rather than demolishing."

Fromm suggested that the proposal be sent to the Mayor's Advisory Committee, a group of citizens and council representation which looks into many facets of long-range planning for the city, for consideration before coming back to the council.

Colett pointed out that 30 of the major estates along Lakeshore have been demolished in the last 30 years, and while a preservation act wouldn't bring them back, it would help to keep what the Farms has.

A subcommittee made up of council members Gail Kaess, Bruce Rockwell and John Crowley was appointed to work with the advisory committee. Fromm suggested that the two groups visit other cities and see how their historical preservation ordinance works.

Robert Chope, chairman of the Mayor's Advisory Committee, said he would call a meeting of his committee to discuss the issue.

Judicial forum

The League of Women Voters of Grosse Pointe will sponsor a judicial forum for Park municipal judge candidates Tuesday, July 28, at 7:30 p.m. The forum will be held in the Park city council chambers, 15115 Jefferson.

The six candidates for the seat are Daniel E. Castner, Alan R. Devine Jr., Kirsten Frank, Muriel Hughes, J. Thomas MGOVERN and Dean Metry.

Strike apparent cause of assault

Twenty-five picketers were outside of the Oxford Beverage Store on Mack Wednesday, July 15, around 11:30 a.m. when an altercation between the picketers and a beer truck driver erupted in front of the store.

According to Grosse Pointe Woods police, a driver for East Town Co., was exiting the store with a dolly load of empty beer cases when the incident occurred.

Jeffrey Janisse, 32, said he was tripped while exiting the Mack Avenue store. Michael G. Kapuscinski, 31, is alleged to have tripped Janisse, but he filed charges alleging Janisse tried to trip him.

Officers arrived on the scene, but the picketers had dispersed.

Woods officials said that picketers, protesting beer deliveries by non-union members, have been at several Grosse Pointe stores, but no other incidents have been reported.

The truck driver strike of several metro Detroit beer distributors has been in effect for several weeks. There have been a number of reports of truck windows smashed by rocks and other incidents.

News endorses six in Park primary

Once again the primary election in Grosse Pointe Park is arousing wide public interest, with seven candidates seeking nomination for the three positions on the city council to be filled this year. The top six candidates in the Aug. 4 primary will compete in the November election.

The issues this year are, however, different from those in the past. Now that the public safety department has been in effect for a year, the consolidation of the police and firefighters into a single unit no longer appears to be an issue. All the council candidates appear to be satisfied with the merger and several said its success has exceeded expectations. Several others, however, are still worried about crime problems.

Two other issues are arousing some concern, however, and neither one appears likely to be settled by the primary. One is the pending proposal to eliminate the flood plain designation from part of the Park. The other is the recent controversy over a renovation project for the municipal court and council chambers.

Most of the candidates favor action to eliminate the Park from the flood plain designation, but the problem of financing the flood control improvements has not yet been settled. It has two aspects: the burden that will be borne by Detroit and the financing of the Park's share of the cost. Under the current proposal, property owners in the flood plain would pay 75 percent of the Park's share and those outside would pay 25 percent.

Important as this project is to the Park, the candidates now appear to be staking out general positions rather than specific ones, principally because at least one more public hearing will be held on the subject and negotiations over costs and the cost-benefit ratio are still going on.

In addition, several candidates reflect the opinion of some flood plain residents that the worries about flooding from Fox Creek have been exaggerated and they are not anxious to assume more tax liabilities for the proposed flood control improvements. Other residents, and especially those now required to carry flood insurance because their mortgages are held by federally financed institutions, see the improvements as one way of relieving themselves of such insurance payments.

The controversy over the renovation project reflects the split on the council between those who support Mayor Palmer Heenan, who is running unopposed for a third term, and those who disagree with him on several important issues. Heenan and his most outspoken backer on the council, Vern Ausherman, have been critical of the performance of City Manager John Crawford on the renovation project.

A free but responsible press

Because of the continuing controversy of the role of the press in covering the Iran-contra hearings in Washington as well as other public issues, the Grosse Pointe News is publishing excerpts from a 1986 speech given by John B. Oakes, retired editorial page editor for the New York Times.

My own professional newspaper career extends back through the administrations of nine presidents. I do not know of one who did not attempt, in greater or lesser degree, usually greater, to manipulate the press.

But at the same time, I do not think I have seen any administration, except possibly President Johnson's in the early Vietnam years and the Nixon-Agnew administration in the Watergate era, to have demonstrated such contempt as the present administration shows for the proper function of the press in a democracy.

That contempt reveals itself not merely in lying to the American people on matters of fact and of policy, as in Central America, for example, but in attempting to control and distort public information to serve political and partisan purposes on virtually every issue from economics to environment, from the space program to Star Wars.

This administration's efforts to promote an official secrets act, to mandate the use of lie detectors, to prosecute leakers and clearly to threaten the press for publishing leaks, to turn the immigration laws into statutes for political persecution, even to tell the electronic media what they should and shouldn't broadcast from Soviet Russia — all these are symptoms of relentless pressures on the part of this administration to constrict and restrict the free flow of news here at home.

This is why it's so vitally important for us in the newspaper profession to rededicate ourselves to the fight for truth, for clarification, for illumination on behalf of the public and the public's right to know. This is not a matter of Democratic or Republican politics; it is not a matter of conservative or liberal predilections; it is a question of protecting the bedrock on which our kind of government must be based if it is not to atrophy altogether.

And yet, along with the necessity for freedom goes the burden of responsibility. At the most elementary level, we have a responsibility not to publish material that will directly endanger the security of our country or the lives of its armed forces in a military situation. This is a long way from saying that we should accede to every demand by the CIA to withhold information that it claims to affect national security, even though the Soviets and a few thousand other people may know all about it.

The problem of press responsibility becomes even more complicated when we consider such questions as fairness to individuals and accountability to the public.

I think the words of Alexander Hamilton should be engraved on the walls of every journalism school and of every newspaper office in the country. In the last but one of "The Federalist" papers, while the people of the state of New York were debating acceptance of a constitution that at that time did not contain a Bill of Rights, Hamilton wrote of the press:

"... Its security, whatever fine declarations may be inserted in any constitution respecting it, must altogether depend on public opinion and on the general spirit of the people and of the government."

I think this is something that the embattled press ought to have very much in mind today as it defends itself on First Amendment grounds against perceived attempts of courts or legislatures and particularly this administration to erode its freedom. We need to remember that it is the "general spirit of the people" on which, as Hamilton pointed out, the basic guarantees must ultimately depend.

We cannot expect to retain public confidence, the ultimate bastion of our liberty, if we are perceived to be arrogant and insincere.

There is overwhelming public support, fully demonstrated in a recent Gallup Poll, for the kind of libel actions that we all know can have a crippling effect on investigative journalism. The rapidly growing misuse of libel is a very real danger to a press trying to uncover the truth; but I also believe that libel suits would have far less success than they do, the climate would be far less receptive, if the general public were not so convinced of the potential irresponsibility of the American press.

A great deal has been heard in recent years about the right of newspapers' access to the records, documents and files of the government. Although we newspapermen are generally highly articulate on the public's right of access to government, as we should be, we are not usually quite so strong on the public's right of access to ourselves.

Governmentally enforced access to the press is not the answer. Far from it. To force a newspaper to publish an item is no less an infringement on its freedom than to forbid it from publishing one, as the Supreme Court has pointed out.

Nevertheless, the public demand for greater accessibility to the press is not to be laughed off, and I believe that in one form or another, the threat to governmentally enforced access will remain, just as long as there is a public perception that newspapers tend to operate less in the public interest than in their own interest. We need to open ourselves much more than has been the custom in the past to accessibility by the public as well as accountability to it.

Last week, however, the council majority by a 4 to 3 margin gave Crawford a vote of confidence by accepting the city attorney's report indicating there had been no violation of the city charter. It became clear that didn't really settle the matter when Ausherman told the council he intends to make an issue out of the subject, adding: "We'll see this November if it's acceptable to the voters."

In the Grosse Pointe News interviews with the candidates, all said they are running independently and not as part of a slate. However, several challengers said they are backing the mayor on the renovation controversy. If so, they would be opposing two incumbent candidates. John Prost and David Gaskin, who voted for the acceptance of the city attorney's report on the issue. That assumes the challengers did not change their positions after hearing the council discussions which occurred after the News' interviews.

Despite their differences on the renovation project and other issues, however, the News endorses incumbents Prost, Gaskin and Ausherman for re-election and believes they are the best of the seven candidates in the field. Prost is a leader in one council faction, Ausherman in the other, and Gaskin is often the "swing" vote between the two factions.

We endorse them because of their records in office, because they give the Park a variety of experience and backgrounds that have been helpful to the people and the city administration, and because, despite their differences, they help get things done in the Park.

Prost, the senior member of the council who is seeking his third term, is an insurance representative. Gaskin is a practicing lawyer with experience in personnel work and labor relations. And Ausherman is a retired General Motors staff member who served in its legal-economic section and is now practicing law on a part-time basis.

Among the challengers, we think the best qualified are Richard H. Case, a nuclear security officer for Detroit Edison at its Fermi II plant; Donald Clark, a Social Security operations supervisor, and Christopher Cotzias, sales manager and senior vice president of a realty firm. Their backgrounds and experience, and their concerns for improving the quality of life and meeting other problems in the community, indicate that they, too, would be worthy members of the council.

Elsewhere in today's issue of the News appears an account of the interviews with each of the seven candidates. In arriving at its endorsements, the News evaluated the background and experience of the candidates and reviewed their individual interviews. This newspaper believes it has a responsibility to offer its opinion because it covers the Park council sessions and other news in the Park more closely than any other publication. But it also knows that some candidates and their friends will disagree with the recommendations the News has made. We respect such dissent and hope we can disagree without being disagreeable.

The Sanders tradition

To the Editor:

I cannot believe Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Agley intend to shut Sanders down. They could not have done their research on what is needed in our town.

The traditions and emotional issues are overwhelming, but the reality is, now that the lunch counter at Kresge's is gone, Sanders is the only place in town for hundreds of office and shop workers to go for a fast and reasonable lunch.

It is also the only place where our senior citizens and handicapped can walk in easily and sit down for a bite to eat and friendly conversation.

The counter, with its view of outdoors, is the only place for ice cream or coffee for those waiting for a friend shopping or for their bus or cab after shopping.

As to the tradition of Sanders, there are hundreds, perhaps thousands, of us with wonderful memories. I first went to Sanders with my grandmother and now take my grandchildren. I can hand down many personal tales to them there, in these years of the impersonal machines.

I'd be willing to sign any petition and help in any way, but I'm not sure how.

Real loss

To the Editor:

I just want to say that I agree wholeheartedly with the manager of the Sanders store in the Village, Mary David: There ARE a lot of dress shops in the Village and on the Hill, but not nearly enough places where the residents in our community can go for a light lunch or ice cream dessert. With 31 Flavors gone to make room for Talbots, and Kresge's no longer there either, there is a big void in casual dining in the area.

From the day I moved here almost five years ago, I was surprised that Grosse Pointers don't demand more in the way of delis, bakeries, etc. Instead of seeing any added, to actually have the few that were here taken away, is a real loss to the community. It seems to me there is mighty poor planning going on both in the Village and the Hill, not to consider this very real need.

I've been wanting to voice this opinion in your paper for some time now. Thanks for the opportunity.

Life's a puzzle

The day started like any other. I got up and showered and ate breakfast just like normal. I went to work and came home and ran my errands just like normal. Little did I suspect, as I engaged in the course of human events, that soon I would experience a Philosophical Moment.

You know what I'm talking about. Those moments that just creep up on you. You're in your car during rush hour and suddenly you decide to slow down the pace of your life. You're in an important business meeting and suddenly you decide you need to spend more time with your family. You're driving into the sunset and you suddenly reaffirm the existence of God. We've all had those moments. They hit quicker and harder than a tropical storm, and the effects are longer-lasting.

One needn't be an intellectual snob to have a Philosophical Moment.

Take Yogi Berra. Yogi once reached down deep inside himself and came up with this gem: "It ain't over 'til it's over."

And Steve Martin asked whether it's OK to yell "movie" in a crowded firehouse. And Hamlet questioned the lucidity of continuing his earthly endeavors just because he was having some funny dreams. "To be or not to be," he said. "That is the question."

So you see, I'm in good company when I say that I had a Philosophical Moment. And thought I may not be as insightful as Yogi, as ethically conscious as Steve or as articulate as Hamlet, I can still subject my Moment to public consideration.

There I was, sitting on the couch in the living room, eating a sandwich and watching "Three's Company." Certainly you would agree that this is not the typical setting for a psychically moving experience.

Suddenly, my mom pulls out her cassette tapes. Her really old cassette tapes. She starts to is-

I Say

ten to them, and I get caught up in the feelings of nostalgia they elicit. Here's Elvis Presley singing "Heartbreak Hotel." Here's Buddy Holly singing "That'll be the Day."

Then she pulls out a tape marked: "Mike, Sept. '72."

Before I knew what was happening, she had the tape going and I was listening to a squeaky-voiced 6-year-old singing his A-B-C's into a microphone that was quite obviously too close to his mouth. "A-B-Ceeeee-D-Eeeeee-eff-Geee," the voice screamed, putting special emphasis on certain letters for impact, "Aitch-I-Jay-K-elemnoo-Pee. Doub-U-xxx-Y and Zee."

Everybody in the family had walked into the room by this time, and tears had filled their eyes. Not because the experience was particularly moving for them, but because they were embarrassed that their first-born son didn't even have the common sense to get the A-B-C's right for posterity. As the tears welled up in their eyes, I began to think about how far I had come in 15 years. I graduated from grade school in 1980; right on schedule. I graduated from high school in 1984; still on schedule. Since then I have learned my A-B-C's and I can even put them in clever configurations to communicate ideas. I have gained well over a hundred pounds, and I know how to operate a VCR. Not bad for 15 years, eh?

Then my Philosophical Moment hit. Like a baseball bat upside the head. Where will I be in another 15 years? The thought is mind-boggling.

Fifteen years ago, Richard Nixon was campaigning for president and was about to be re-elected by huge majority. Fifteen years ago, the American space program was at a pinnacle of its success. Fifteen years ago, the popular television programs were "McMillan and Wife," "Adam 12" and "The Brady Bunch." Fifteen years ago, "The Godfather" was the year's best picture.

Fifteen years from now? Well, there are a couple scenarios.

Scenario number one: I'm married with three kids, two cars, a dog and a mortgage. As a 35-year-old man, I have no interest in the A-B-C's anymore. The alphabet is for children. But I do take special joy in holding a microphone too close to my son's face as he squeals the alphabet into the future, missing Q through V just like his old man did.

Scenario number two: As a bachelor, I use my money on important things like ivory carvings of giraffes for the knick-knack shelf and cases of beer for the top three shelves of the refrigerator. The year is, of course, 2002, and I am a programming executive for... yes, ABC.

As I see it, those are the options. One or the other. Nothing in between. You see, my Philosophical Moment didn't last for too long. The tape recorder broke down, and I went back to watching "Three's Company."

Life's a puzzle, isn't it?

GI style

If a week of Lt. Col. Oliver North wasn't enough for you, his memory can live on — on your head.

The Woods Men's Styling barber shop in Dante's Coiffures on Mack in the Woods is offering Ollie North haircuts for $8.

Stylists Gasper Landa and Rudy Gasser started giving special Ollie North haircuts after putting up a sign Tuesday morning.

"I saw an article in the Free Press about a shop in Dallas, Texas which was giving the Ollie North cuts for $75," Landa said. "I figured I could give the same cuts for much less."

Landa said an "Ollie" is a short GI cut, which is tight around the ears and parted on one side. Probably on the north.

"I gave those haircuts when I was in the army," Landa said. "It's almost like the old fashioned Princeton."

Landa said Ollie North was on the air for six days straight, and his cut should be very popular.

"I think Ollie North is very well-liked around here," Landa said. "I think he's a nice fellow — a great guy."

We had an offer for a free Ollie, but we think we'll keep our heads. Soon enough we'll be wearing an Admiral Poindexter.

Prayers on hold

Reports are still coming in about the damage done by the wicked lightning storm which hit Grosse Pointe July 10.

We heard that the Grosse Pointe Memorial Church was also hit by lightning. The electrical blast knocked out the church's phone system and elevator. Both have been fixed, but the one thing that was fried beyond repair was the Dial-A-Prayer system.

Seems it took a direct hit, and couldn't be made to work again.

Church officials said that callers should be able to get their daily dose of inspiration late this week when Dial-A-Prayer is back on line. That number is 882-8770.

Donations sought

Mike Maher Chevrolet in Grosse Pointe Park is one of 27 metro Detroit Chevy dealers which will act as a drop-off point for donations for the families of the three slain Inkster police officers Dan Dubiel, Clay Hoover, and Sgt. Ira Parker. In addition to serving as centers for donations, the dealers will match donated funds up to a total of $10,000, brought to the dealerships through July 24.

The donations will be turned over to the Inkster Police Flower Fund which is set up to pool funds for families of the officers.

John Medved president, Metro Detroit Chevy Dealers, said his association shares the grief over the loss of the officers and the offer is its expression of sympathy.

Maher Chevrolet is located at 15175 E. Jefferson.

The New York Times reported that President Eisenhower asserted that he could conceive of no greater tragedy than for the United States to become involved in an all-out war in Indochina. Eisenhower spoke with emphasis in enunciating the policy of non-intervention by U.S. combat forces.

The Soviet Union proposed a pan-European security system that would displace the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) and exclude the United States from the defense of Europe. The Soviet proposal called for a 50-year general European security treaty that in essence would scrap NATO and preclude the establishment of the proposed European defense community.

The U.S. government announced a policy of forbidding sales of government-owned surplus agricultural products to the Soviet Union or its satellites for cash.

The Egyptian government disclosed that it was negotiating with the Soviet Union for a large program of Soviet-backed industrial and agricultural projects designed to expand their economy.

Toronto began operation of its subway on March 30, 1954, Canada's first subway. The 4.6 miles of track was planned to serve Toronto's main north-south artery, running beneath Yonge Street. The subway took six years to build and cost nearly $60 million.

Improvement in the condition of Pope Pius XII had been so steady that Vatican officials expressed hope for his eventual recovery. The 77-year-old pontiff had been ill for three weeks with gastritis.

In Grosse Pointe, the Farms council approved adoption of a new agreement with Highland Park whereby the two communities would share the existing and proposed new water intake station located on the Pier Park property. The new pumping station, which was to be built at a cost of $125,000, would boost the Farms' water system capacity from 2,500,000 to 10,000,000 gallons a day. Magic!

The theme of the sixth annual Capuchin Souper Summer Celebration at the Premier Center Friday night was "I Believe in Magic," and whether it was magic or hard work, the goal of $100,000 was surpassed. John Ahee said the money for tickets is still coming in and the total amount raised for the Capuchin Soup Kitchen won't be known for a couple of weeks. More than 2,000 people were entertained by the People's Choice band, the Red Garter band, magician Ron Aldrich, mentalist Craig Karges and mime Rob Reider. The event, sponsored by jewelers Edmund Ahee, his son Lowell Ahee and the Premier Center, featured $18,000 in prizes.

Man wanted for fraud believed working the Pointes

Last winter a man allegedly conned numerous Oakland County residents out of hundreds of dollars in connection with a scam in which he promised customers snow plowing services. Park officials now believe the same man is soliciting Park residents for tree-trimming services that he has failed to complete.

The man, described as a white male, 30, about 5 feet, 11 inches, and 180 pounds with straight black hair, brown eyes and a dark complexion, is wanted on four fraud warrants in Oakland County.

He is apparently asking for payment in advance, often saying he needs the money to fix a chainsaw.

"He looks for people who have had some tree work, then goes next door and tells the resident that work is needed on their trees," Park Lt. William Furtaw said. "We have no firm charges on him yet."

Furtaw said the Park's detective bureau believes this is the same man wanted in Oakland County. He drives a shabby-looking blue pickup truck with a white tool box on the bed. Since July 1 he has solicited several Park homes, resulting in a minimal monetary loss to residents.

"We are telling residents, if they feel this person is in the area, to call police," Furtaw said. "Secondly, there might be legitimate tree trimmers coming to the door. The minute that anyone asks for cash up front or that they need money to fix equipment or repair tools, they should be on notice that something is seriously wrong."

Park larceny suspect caught

Numerous wallets, purses and cash have been reported stolen at Windmill Pointe Park during the first half of the summer, and Park police feel they have arrested the man responsible for many of those thefts.

Lt. William Furtaw said that lifeguards at the park's pool felt they had an idea who was perpetrating the numerous larcenies, and were placed on alert to look-out for him.

He was spotted Monday, July 13, near the pool, and apparently

Lake level

Lake St. Clair's water level at the end of June was about 12 inches below what it was one year ago and about one inch below one month ago. At the end of June, the lake elevation was at 575.60 feet above the mean water level at Father Point, Quebec.

The June monthly mean level was about 20 inches above the long-term average. This level was about 10 inches below the all-time June monthly mean high, which was set in 1986, and about 47 inches above the all-time June monthly mean low, which was set in 1934.

For mariners, the end of June level was 47 inches above chart datum.

The six-month forecast of levels for Lake St. Clair shows that the lake is expected to be above its long-term average level during the next six months. The forecast shows that at the end of July, Lake St. Clair will be about one inch below what it was at the end of June.

The lake is expected to continue its seasonal decline into December. At the end of December 1987, levels are expected to be about 22 inches below what they were at the same time in 1986. The December mean would be above the long-term average level for that month but 22 inches below the all-time high mean for December, which was set in 1986.

for a master's degree and eventually becoming executive director of the center.

"I had to earn a living," she said. "You starve a little less slowly in social work than in art."

She had worked as a volunteer at the service center, starting an arts and crafts program for the seniors. She became president of the board which controlled a small staff and relatively tiny organization from 1956 to 1958, then served two years as president of the Junior League of Detroit from 1958 to 1960.

Taking three years off to get a master's from Wayne's School of Social Work, she put all her efforts into furthering her education.

"At the time I got the degree (1964), the former director was leaving and I was hired as the new director," she said.

She said she is proud of the growth of the center, especially for its advances in services in the area of mental health.

"I'd been trained in gerontology, not mental health," she said. "It was a lot of work at first to provide integrated services of gerontology and mental health."

Under Allardice the center has grown from a staff of three to 50-60 paid staff and two senior centers.

The two centers, Adult Service Centers and Well-Being Services for the Aging, were combined recently into one organization. Both she and her husband, who headed the two agencies, called for the consolidation with the further suggestion that neither of the two be considered for executive director.

Allardice was recently named the first recipient of the Geneva Mathiason Award sponsored by

Margherita S. Allardice has devoted more than 20 years of her life to serving older Americans. Now she has returned to her first love — art. She is in the garden of her home with one of her paper projects.

the National Council of the Aging. The award was created for those who had significantly contributed to solving the problems of senior citizens.

And Allardice has. She is currently a member of the Michigan Commission for Services to the Aging. She was first appointed to the commission by Gov. William Milliken and then by Gov. James Blanchard. She was also chairman of the local chapter of the National Council on Aging, Life Enrichment Committee. She also served as chairman of two national council on aging conferences held in Detroit.

"It took a year of getting ready for the conference of over 5,000 people," she said.

Senior citizen centers are very successful, she said. The centers are a way to replace roles, friendships, to learn new skills and enjoy old skills and to socialize.

"They provide more than just a way to socialize," she said. "It's more than that really. When you've lost your job through forced retirement, you lost a status. We help with involvement and advocacy."

She said her husband helped to start Michigan's Senior Power Day held annually in Lansing. "Last year they were mobbed with 6,000 people and people had to fight to get tickets," she said.

Over the 20 years of her involvement with senior advocacy, she said there has been a great deal of change. She notes that the national Older Americans Act was passed during that time, and that Michigan now has one of the highest monetary contributions that augments the Older Americans Act.

"I think awareness of the problems was one of the major accomplishments during that time," she said. "Social Security has certainly helped pull a number of people out of poverty. At the federal level, however, there is still much to do for older Americans in the way of housing, income and health care."

She said that medicine has come a long way in that time to help the problems of the aging, but that the chronic diseases still plague seniors, such as heart disease, cancer and arthritis.

Allardice said that the image of the senior citizen still has much room for improvement in this country. She said that a 1981 Harris poll found that most people think of senior citizens as crochety, cranky and in poor health. Most older people viewed senior citizens the same way, but considered themselves the exception to the rule.

"Nothing could be further from the truth," she said. "Most-older people are outgoing, active and healthy. People still have a poor, unrealistic image of older people, but that certainly has improved in 20 years."

Every wall in the Allardice home is home to a work of art. Many are by the artist-in-residence, others are by well-known contemporary artists.

Travel (the Allardices have been to China recently) and gourmet cooking are among her interests. She loves French cooking and French wines. She and her husband dine in a small but beautiful Japanese-style garden in the rear of their home during the summer months. The constant splash of a water fountain in the garden echoes on polished wooden floors.

"I've always enjoyed my art," she said. "I am very glad to be back doing my art primarily. I had been doing it on weekends and nights and catch as catch can, but it always took a back seat. It's in the front seat now."

She rides her stationary bike daily, and her face and physique would never give away her 64 years.

Where does the grandmother of two see herself in 20 years?

"Still doing my art," she said, "and still having some impact. I'll still be crochety, and making as much noise as when I was young, hopefully."

monoxide, carbon dioxide, temperature, humidity, pressure differentials between the hallways and the rooms, and operation of the ventilation system.

"No sources of chemical or microbial contamination were observed in any areas except the chemistry area, where a mild chemical odor was observed," the report stated. The only carbon monoxide found was in the teachers' smoking lounge. The worst problem rooms were found to have lower air pressure than the halls, indicating that the ventilation system was not working well.

Kemron compiled a list of suggestions for improving the comfort, some of which the district had already planned:

- Continue constant operation of the fans
- Balance the system
- Change filters and check controls on a regular basis
- Make sure the humidifier is working

MIOSHA made surprise visits to the building at the end of April and the end of May. Their findings bore out the conclusions of the other studies.

The detailed report deals with increasing the outside venting of the copier and the science labs, cleaning the darkroom equipment and venting the art room, which "reportedly lacks enough ventilation to allow teachers to instruct students in certain art techniques." It also praises the school for its "sensible" policy banning the use of aerosols in the locker rooms.

"We did not determine any violations of the ... health standards with respect to air contaminants or ventilation," the report stated. "However, it was apparent there were a number of problem areas, which, if addressed, could significantly improve the overall comfort level ... and reduce the number of employee complaints." It went on to say that it is "important (for a school) to maintain a comfort level far above what MIOSHA standards dictate for industrial settings."

King said the work can be done without badly disrupting classes if it does stretch into fall. "We might have to move kids out of a room for half a day," he said. "If this were an office, we'd just go ahead."

"We might get it done faster than we think."

Saint John Hospital Pediatrics: It's the people behind the care

A Special Calling for a Special Nurse

Alison Checkley sat alone in Saint John's Emergency Room that cold January night. The day had been like any other for Alison in her role as a homemaker. Make breakfast. Run errands. Wash the dishes . . . then, Alison discovered blood in her 17-month-old daughter's diaper.

She was alarmed enough to take Sarah to the Eastside Pediatric Clinic at Saint John Hospital. Her husband was bowling that night and she didn't consider the problem severe enough to take the time to let him know. Then came the diagnosis: a tumor. Sarah had cancer. "My heart sank as the words pierced my ears," Alison recalls. Within two days, Sarah had surgery that removed the cancerous kidney. Recovery, if at all, could take months. Even years. "The Saint John Pediatrics became our second home," explains Alison. "We got to be very close with so many of the staff members."

During the next year and a half, Sarah returned every six weeks for chemotherapy.

Treatment was administered in the Pediatric Hematology / Oncology Clinic by Hadi Sawaf, MD, and his staff at Saint John. Eventually, Sarah was pronounced cured of her cancer. Alison gives much of the credit for her daughter's recovery to the doctors and nursing staff. "I really grew to appreciate the entire medical profession," says Alison. "I was so impressed by the nurses at Saint John, I decided to become one."

HER DAUGHTER'S RECOVERY led Alison to a new career. She enrolled in the College of Nursing at Wayne State University and five years later, this mother of three graduated with honors. Today, Alison is a fully licensed registered nurse in the same pediatric department that saved her daughter's life.

"My experience with the Saint John Hospital nurses, both as a parent and a colleague, justifies my saying how dedicated we are to the care of children," says Alison Checkley, RN, Saint John Pediatrics Department. When her 17-month-old daughter was cured of cancer at Saint John, Alison went on to become a nurse and now works in the same department that saved her daughter's life.

"I wanted to give some of that caring back," explains Alison. And each day at Saint John, that's exactly what she does.

With help from certified teacher Sandy Macciomei, students hospitalized at Saint John keep up with their studies.

Sandy makes arrangements with the patient's teachers to have schoolwork brought to the hospital.

"We try to make sure our patients keep up with their homework," says Sandy. "It's good therapy."

"And we're not just here for the kids, either," adds Lori. "Moms and dads need a friendly shoulder, too. You'd be surprised how often parents call us, sometimes even at home, but that's okay. It's all part of our job."

Play Therapy Eases Hospital Stay

"We keep the kids' minds off their injuries or illnesses," says Sandy. "If a child needs someone to play with for a couple of their big sisters."

"We're very non-threatening," agrees Sandy. "No shots or examinations are given in our activities room. It's a place where the kids feel really comfortable."

The activity area is truly a child's delight with toys, games, dolls, a sandbox, a chalkboard, even a piano and video cassette recorder. "The kids really love it here," says Lori. "The biggest problem we have is trying to get them back in their rooms!"

For adolescent patients, the teen lounge is a popular meeting spot with its stereo equipment and video games in constant use.

"It's not all fun and games though," says Sandy. "Keeping the kids involved with school is a very important part of my job, too." A certified teacher,

Foster Grandparents Offer a Hug and a Smile

Singing a newborn to sleep, reading stories, playing PacMan, hugging . . . these are the basic duties of Ethel McKnight, Foster Grandmother at Saint John Hospital. "We do the little things that the doctors and nurses don't always have the time to do," says Ethel, rocking two-month-old Charles.

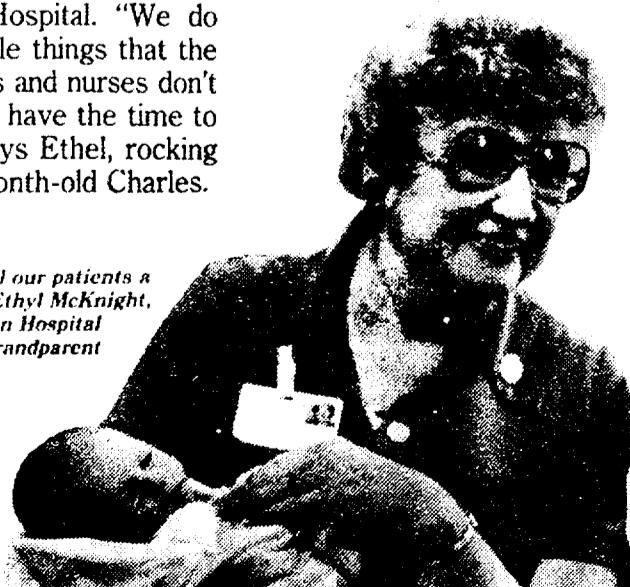

Ethel is one of 12 foster grandparents in the Saint John Hospital Foster Grandparent Program, coordinated by Catholic Social Services. Foster grandparents are trained by pediatric nurses and attend monthly in-service training sessions to stay up-to-date.

No matter how much parents want to be with their children during a hospital stay, they can't be there 24 hours-a-day. The foster grandparent helps fill a parental role for the children when they are alone.

"When you see these little guys, you've just got to do something for them," says Ethel, proud grandmother of 11 and great-grandmother of two.

"Maybe we spoil them a little," she confesses, "but that's what grandparents are supposed to do."

Cathy Alfonsi, 19, attends Central Michigan University and will be a junior in the fall. Her major is sports medicine. She works as a waitress at Little Tony's Lounge in the Woods four or five nights a week. She also volunteers her time in the emergency room at Cottage Hospital twice a week. "I serve as a liaison between the family and the patient. I run back and forth telling the family what's happening. I'm learning what doctors do, some medical terms, hospital procedures."

Mark Moore, 18, at the left, a June graduate of North, will enter engineering school at the University of Michigan this fall. He began his own lawn care company, Econo-Mow, four years ago. He distributed fliers door-to-door last spring, advertising his lawn services with a wry sense of humor: "Econo-Mow. We'll cut your lawn dirt cheap. A few measly $ will get your lawn cut, edged and trimmed. . . efficiency and quality are our middle names. Ask for Mark Efficiency and Quality Moore." This year he employs one full-time and one part-time helper and cuts 30 lawns a week. "This is good business experience," he said. Here Dan Spitz, 17, at the right, a June North graduate, helps cut a lawn. Dan is going to Albion College in September and is interested in pre-med or biology.

Maggie Mason, 17, will be a senior at Regina High School. This is her first year as a lifeguard at the Grosse Pointe Woods park, but she has been a lifeguard at other pools. She plans to go to University of Michigan to study sports medicine or physical therapy.

Kim Wood, 18, a recent Grosse Pointe South graduate, is undecided about what she'll do in the fall. This summer she's enjoying her third year as a camp counselor for fourth-grade girls at University Liggett. She's considering a career working with children.

Amy Gordon, 18, graduated from University Liggett and will enter Trinity College in Hartford, Conn. in September. This is her fourth year as a camp counselor at University Liggett's day camp. She's in charge of a group of second-grade girls.

Summer jobs

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe teenagers are, for the most part, welcoming the change of pace that summertime brings.

School's out. Textbooks are stashed aside. Scholastic pursuits are placed on hold. Most young people like the idea of shifting gears and revving up for a summer job that involves outdoor physical activity while earning some spending money or a portion of their college tuition.

Most of Grosse Pointe's teens, it seems, are holding down some sort of gainful employment — either part time or full time; some have two jobs; some are involved in sports or volunteer work as well.

Most teens like working outside, since a tan is one of the important prerequisites for a super summer. Most say they are adequately compensated. They say they like their work, but view these summer interims as side roads in the quest for a satisfying career. Summer jobs, they say, are valuable experiences that will look good on a resume and provide some spending money. The teenagers who volunteer at hospitals expressed interest in a medical career and say they're sampling the medical profession via volunteer work.

Students interviewed for this article represented a variety of summer employment opportunities: three lifeguards; a lawn service business; a sanitation engineer; two hospital volunteers; a waitress; a harbor boy; and two camp counselors.

Michael Henry, 16, a senior at University of Detroit High School, wants to be a doctor, a lawyer or to pursue a career in sports medicine. He volunteers his time at Cottage Hospital twice a week for about four hours a day in the physical therapy department. "I get patients and bring them down for treatments. I clean whirlpools. I clean up. I get to watch therapy sessions." He also plays baseball for a Mickey Mantle team in Warren.

Adrian Weyhing, 18, will be entering Kalamazoo College in September to study chemistry or physics. He graduated from Grosse Pointe North in June. This is his second year as a harbor boy at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club. He works 40 hours a week, tying up boats, pumping fuel, carrying trash, delivering supplies to boat owners, and helping to keep the harbor running smoothly.

Lisa Ficarra, 18, graduated from Grosse Pointe North in June and will enter the University of Michigan to study art. She is serving her second year as one of approximately 70 teens who are working at the Woods park. Lisa said she puts in more than 25 hours a week lifeguarding, doing light maintenance and cleaning the pool deck. She likes working outside.

Seven in Park file for three city council seats

By Pat Paholsky
News Editor

Park voters who go to the polls Aug. 4 will find seven candidates for city council on the ballot. One candidate will be eliminated and six will compete for three seats in the general election Nov. 3.

The candidates were interviewed at the Grosse Pointe News office by a reporter and editorial writer Wilbur Elston. Endorsements are on page 6A.

Following are the candidates' comments and responses to questions.

from the flood plain designation, Ausherman said his suggestion to the mayor will be to submit it to a vote by residents. It will be necessary to educate the public, he said, on the obvious benefits.

Ausherman is retired from General Motors; he practices law part time. He earned degrees from Drury College in Missouri, the Harvard Business School and Wayne State University Law School. He served in the U.S. Marine Corps in World War II and Korea.

He and his wife Connie live on Lakepointe. They have four children.

homes." Cherghezan, who owns a bar on Kercheval and Alter, said she is impressed with the upgrading on Kercheval and Mack. "If these businesses are going to continue to thrive, these residential areas should be improved."

She said she doesn't think the proposal to eliminate the flood plain designation in the Park is a major issue. "People want to know why (this is being proposed) when they never had flooding."

Cherghezan has five children, ages 31 to 23. She and her husband live on Maryland.

and the garbage pickup on Wayburn. Clark said he believes public safety is working. "There is greater visibility now and more police protection."

Regarding the flood plain issue, he said, "The question is whether we have firmed up both the costs and the benefits, so we can be assured of the cost-benefit ratio. The second issue is to determine with greater precision who benefits. The community faces an imminent danger in that our sewer system would be rendered inoperable."

Clark, who has not run for public office before, said he is a supporter of Mayor Palmer Heenan and adds that he supports the candidacies of Vern Ausherman and Chris Cotzias.

Clark is operations supervisor with Social Security.

He has completed course work for a master's degree in public administration from the University of Virginia, has a master of arts in philosophy from Michigan State University, and a bachelor of science in political science and philosophy from Western Michigan University.

He and his wife Susan have four children, Daniel, 7, David,

Daniel E. Clark

Vern Ausherman

Vern Ausherman, 66, is seeking his second four-year term on the council. He is a candidate because of unfinished business, he says. "I think the council has accomplished certain things. There is a natural tendency to point to public safety. Part of my unfinished business is a district court."

Ausherman, who says he supports the candidacies of Daniel Clark, Richard Case and Chris Cotzias "in a general sense," credits Mayor Palmer Heenan, who is running unopposed, for his efforts toward a public safety department and the privatization of rubbish.

On public safety, Ausherman said, "The rate at which we have proceeded has exceeded my expectations. Others have tried to move too fast, but we have two people who are training-oriented (Public Safety Director Richard Caretti and Deputy Director Philip Costa). The proof of our public safety will be in training."

Ausherman added that the 12-hour work period lends itself to training.

On the current proposal to eliminate Grosse Pointe Park

Richard Case

Richard Case, 41, in his first bid for political office, said he is a candidate for two primary reasons: "I feel that the area I live in needs to be pulled back into the Pointes. I abhor the derogatory use of the term 'cabbage patch,' but I feel all the Pointes have to survive. Second, I would like to end the endless procession of speeders and hotrodders on the street, especially since they closed Nottingham."

Case said he would also like to see an end to slumlords in the area.

He said he thinks the merger of the police and fire departments into a single public safety unit is an "effective means of getting more officers on the street."

Case said he is not opposed to the proposal to eliminate the Park from the flood plain. "The only problem is the possible destruction of wildlife and the aesthetics," he said. Financing for the project should be done, he feels, with the residents directly involved.

Case is a nuclear security officer for Detroit Edison in Monroe. He has a bachelor of arts in

Barbara Cherghezan

Barbara Cherghezan, 53, has been a Park resident for 28 years. She is making her first bid for office, she said, at the request of her neighbors. "They felt I was capable and knowledgeable to the needs of the city."

Cherghezan said the issues are constant. "The present issue has been over our garbage pickup," she said, referring to the change from city-operated to a private firm. "They (neighbors) felt they should have been more informed."

Cherghezan said she would like to work with the council to upgrade property. "I feel that by enforcing the ordinances we now have, we would alleviate our off-street parking problem. I feel there should be stronger safety measures for our streets and

Daniel E. Clark, 37, who chairs the city's subcommittee on pedestrian lighting, said he is a candidate because of his concern for the community. "I have experienced a growing pressure that crime and blight are placing on our residences and businesses. Encroachment of these urban problems and the threat they pose to our quality of life is one of the most serious issues in our community."

Other key issues, he said, are:

- enforcement of codes and city ordinances;
- the acute parking shortage in the northwest sector;
- the serious traffic safety problem in the northwest sector;

5, Kathleen, 3, and John, 2. They have been Park residents for nine years and they live on Wayburn.

Christopher Cotzias

Christopher Cotzias

Christopher Cotzias, 31, said he is a candidate for a seat on the council, because he is able to deal with people well. In his position as sales manager for the Jim Saros Agency, he said he knows the concerns of the residents.

As a lifelong Grosse Pointer, he said he would like to give something back to the community.

He advocates going to the people and learning their concerns. "We need more individual commitment and more people getting involved instead of reacting when it's too late."

Cotzias said his lack of experience would be made up for by his dedication and commitment. "Given the chance, you stand on your own merits and you can bring new ideas."

He said public safety is an excellent idea. "Dollar- and cent-wise, it made a lot of sense. I think you're doubling your force without the expense."

Removing the Park from the flood plain designation is a good idea, Cotzias said. "I can relate to that because we handle home sales for a lot of people. Flood insurance is not a cheap thing."

He feels the earthen berms along the lakeshore and the seawall along Fox Creek will improve both areas.

Cotzias has been with the Saros firm since 1979, where he's also a senior vice president.

He is a South High graduate and he has a bachelor of science degree in political science and public administration from Western Michigan University.

He and his wife Kathryn live on Westchester. They have two children, Christopher, 5, and Marianne, 2, and twins on the way.

David Gaskin

David Gaskin

David Gaskin, 46, is seeking his second four-year term, because, he said, "I've enjoyed it. I think we have made a lot of progress in the last four years. Some major issues have been addressed and I think we have good, responsible government."

Some of the major accomplishments have been the appointment of Richard Caretti as public safety director, Gaskin said. He served on the committee that recommended Caretti. The creation of a public safety department was another accomplishment, he said. "We have gotten more police and fire protection and we have done a good service for the community in having a more active total department."

He added, "So much depends on training that is still ongoing that all the results are not in."

In the matter of the flood plain, Gaskin said the only issue is financing. "In the long haul, we will be well-served to have the improvements done to take us out of the flood plain."

Gaskin has been with Dahlberg, Mallender & Gawne, a law firm in Birmingham, since he earned his juris doctor from Wayne State University in 1966. He has a bachelor of arts degree in pre-legal studies from the University of Michigan.

He and his wife Carol live on Bishop. They have a daughter, Amy, 21, who is a senior at Northwestern University, and a son, Stephen, 19, a sophomore at DePauw University.

John Prost

John Prost

John Prost, 50, is seeking his third four-year term on the council because, he said, "it's my way of making a difference. My perception is that a lot of people shall have lived without making a difference. This is one way and I think I have."

One of his achievements as a councilman is his promotion of the use of Wayne County Community Block Grant funds and the subsequent upgrading of Kercheval and Mack. "I'm particularly proud that I was able to be a leader in the use of those funds. Kercheval has become the "in" place and Mack Avenue is looking much nicer."

He is a supporter of the public safety concept. "What seems to make it work in our community is Chief (Richard) Caretti. Had it not been for him, we would not be as far along as we are."

As a member of the committee that studied the flood plain, Prost supports the proposal to place earthen berms along the lakeshore and put a seawall along Fox Creek. "The issue that remains unresolved is how it is to be financed."

Prost is regional sales manager for Manufacturers Financial Group, part of Manufacturers Life Insurance Co. He is a trustee of National Life Underwriters, the largest trade association in the world.

He has a bachelor of arts degree in social science from Michigan State University.

He and his wife Lucy, who have been Park residents for nearly 20 years, live on Pember-ton. They have two daughters, Kathryn, a group ticket sales manager at Michigan Opera Theatre, and Elizabeth, a senior at University of Michigan.

Children's movies at the library

Children's movies next week at the Grosse Pointe library will be "The Puppy Who Wanted a Boy" and "The Cat and the Collector." The grade school film will be "The Incredible Book Escape."

Preschool showings are Tuesday, July 28, at the Woods Branch at 1:30 p.m.; Wednesday, July 29, at the Park Branch at 1:30 p.m.; and Thursday, July 30, at Central Library at 10:30 a.m.

The grade school movie schedule is Tuesday at the Woods, Wednesday at the Park and Thursday at Central, all at 2:30 p.m.

Stove fire guts kitchen

A stove burner inadvertently left on at a residence on Hampton in the Woods Tuesday, July 14, caused a fire and an estimated $7,000 in damage.

Woods officials said two officers received minor injuries in putting out the blaze, which was confined to the kitchen area. A neighbor apparently saw smoke coming from the home around 12:20 p.m. and called the public safety department.

A patrol officer was the first on the scene, and with information that someone was inside, he entered the dwelling and determined no one was home.

Firefighters arrived on the scene minutes later and extinguished the blaze.

Apparently a stove burner was left on which ignited a pot holder that caused the blaze, officials believe.

One officer was treated for smoke inhalation at St. John Hospital. Another officer suffered minor injuries, but did not seek immediate medical attention.

Cottage Hospital nurses will test blood pressure, free of charge, on Tuesday, July 28, 1 to 3 p.m. The blood pressure screening clinic will be held in the lower level Boardroom A. Cottage Hospital is located at 159 Kercheval.

Shores foundation's goal is $100,000

The Grosse Pointe Shores Improvement Foundation hopes to raise $100,000 during the coming year to grade and sod the islands along Lakeshore south of Vernier to the village's border with the Farms.

John Boll, chairman of the foundation's "Tremendous Celebration," told some 200 foundation members and guests at the annual party at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club that that would be the goal for the organization for 1988.

During the celebration, the foundation's founding president, Kurt O. Tech, and members who had underwritten the 1986 campaign, were recognized for their successful efforts in planting more than 300 trees along Lakeshore in the village.

Tech was presented with a plaque by the current foundation president, Thomas E. Candler. He cited Tech's guidance over the last three years. Shores Village President Gerald C. Schroeder presented Tech with a copy of a resolution adopted by the village council.

Ronald Lamparter, vice president of projects, said that about $50,000 had been raised for the 1988 project through gifts from about 100 members. Village trustees are hopeful that, with Wayne County's help, curb work around the islands will be completed in time for the sodding and grading next spring.

Latin Counts to appear

Fans of the Detroit sound -- from '50s rhythm and blues dog-wop to '60s soul -- will want to be at the War Memorial for the Latin Counts Thursday, July 30, at 7:30 p.m.

They have recently received acclaim as the opening act for The Temptations' Meadow Brook appearance and have also opened for The Four Tops, Martha Reeves, and The Spinners.

Besides the hits of the '50s and '60s, their repertoire includes the more modern harmonies of the '70s and '80s. The group has a free and easy style, highlighted by choreography and stage comedy.

Tickets are $6 lawn admission, in advance; $7 the day of the event. Grounds open at 6:30 p.m. Bring a picnic to enjoy and your favorite lawn chair or blanket. Complimentary ice available. In case of rain, the concert will be held in the ballroom. Call 881-7511.

Schneider to seek re-election

Woods Judge Patricia Schneider announced she will seek a second term as municipal judge.

At a meeting of her supporters, Schneider said, "My efforts during the past five years as municipal judge have focused primarily in two areas. I have enforced the laws of our community to help insure the safety and well being of Grosse Pointe Woods residents. I also have helped educate residents of all ages about the law. I look forward to continuing my commitment to the community."

Schneider supporters gathered to organize the collection of signatures on petitions to be filed with the city clerk to formally enter the November election.

Schneider has spoken to students and civic groups on a variety of topics, including understanding the law and the drunk driving laws.

Originally appointed to the municipal judgeship in 1982, Schneider was elected to a four-year term in 1983. Prior to assuming the bench, she was a trial attorney with the Wayne

Eviction

Items from a home on the 200 block of Stephens in the Farms were put out at the curb after the eviction of a friend of a woman who owned the home was committed to a nursing home. Farms police were called into the case after an order to evict the woman was issued by 41-B District Court in Mount Clemens, because the 63-year-old was said to have a shotgun and had threatened to use it. Police found the woman, hiding in a bedroom, but later learned there was no ammunition for the gun. Farms police guarded the woman's belongings for two days. City officials said the goods would remain on the curb of the street until July 23, after which they would be carted off with the trash. The evicted woman was staying with relatives, according to police.

Planner's study calls for larger lots in Farms premier Lakeshore district

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

Larger lot sizes, deeper setbacks, more room on the sides of houses were three of the points that the Farms city planner called for after a several month long study of the city's lakeshore district.

The planning firm of Brandon Rogers and Associates studied the Lakeshore area bordered by Fisher Road, Grosse Pointe Boulevard, Lakeshore and the city boundary with the Shores, at the city's request. A report on the findings with proposals was presented to the city council Monday night.

The council issued a moratorium on new permits for rezoning or construction in the area.

The move came after the splitting up of several large estates in the area over the past several years for cluster housing developments.

Brandon Rogers gave the report of his firm's findings. He noted he has been a Farms resident for more than 25 years.

He called the area a premier location, and said that he found there are many big homes being constructed on small lots.

"The area is about one-half subdivided today," Rogers said. "There are only one or two remaining estates."

Rogers proposed creating a new zoning designation for the area - R1AAA. The area is currently designated R1AA. The new designation would require an increase of the minimum lot size from 11,000 square feet to 15,000 square feet. It would also increase front setbacks from 25 feet to 30 feet, and minimum side yard setbacks would be a minimum of 15 feet. Rear yard setbacks would be increased from 30 to 40 feet.

Rogers said the real estate market would bear the burden of the larger lot sizes, because of the prime location and high demand.

Any changes in the ordinance now would mean there would be many properties that would now be non-conforming under the new designation. He said many would have smaller lot sizes than required under the new ordinance restrictions, but he said the benefits from new subdivi-

Correction

There was an error in a story July 9 about the East-side Emergency Center in the amount of funding it receives from the Department of Social Services. The amount is $5,000 to $6,000 a month, according to the Rev. Ann Johnson, director, not $65,000 as reported.

Exposure arrest

A man, currently residing with a family in the Park, was arrested Sunday, July 12, in connection with an indecent exposure incident that occurred July 11.

The man allegedly exposed himself to a 27-year-old woman. A follow-up led police to the man, who reportedly admitted to the incident.

An "ace" in early baseball lingo was a run.

DuMouchelles deals with art, antiques, eclectic treasures

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

DuMouchelles Art Galleries — a Detroit landmark — has been a downtown Detroit anchor on Jefferson Avenue in a vintage six-story building for 50 years. The company, the building and the DuMouchelle family are immutable — durable, stable constants in an fluctuating downtown Detroit cityscape. The contents of the 80-year-old building, however, are ephemeral. The treasures of DuMouchelles change monthly. Weekly. Daily.

"I never know what's coming in from week to week," said Larry DuMouchelle, president of the company. "We get consistently fine collections. But what's here in May is gone by June 1st. There's a constant turnover. Surprises every day. New things all the time."

DuMouchelles Galleries is actually four businesses, DuMouchelle said. "We do appraisals. We have a retail business on the first floor. We have our auction business on the second floor. And we have house sales on the premises."

Larry DuMouchelle counts his competition on one hand, and none are in Detroit. He named the Frank H. Boos Gallery in Birmingham, Schmidt's in Ypsilanti, Christie's in London and New York, and Sotheby, Parke, Bernet Inc. in London and New York.

DuMouchelle's father, Joseph, came to Detroit from Canada in the '20s and started working for an auctioneer. He opened his own business in 1927, calling it Art Salon Auction Galleries. He moved to 409 East Jefferson in 1937 and changed the name to DuMouchelles Art Galleries in the late '40s. Larry DuMouchelle began working part time for the company when he was 13 years old. He abandoned plans for becoming an attorney and left college to work full time when his father became ill. Besides Larry, owners of DuMouchelles are brothers Ernest and Norman, and sisters Rosemary and Joan Walker. Six grandchildren also are involved — some part time, some full time. DuMouchelles with problems," said DuMouchelle. He definitely sees a renaissance in downtown Detroit. "There's no doubt Detroit intricately carved side chairs, a leopard skin rug, trophies, and urns — lots of urns: big urns, small urns, Chinese urns, stone

Larry DuMouchelle, one of the owners of DuMouchelles Art Galleries, stands in the midst of some of the treasures that will be offered at auction within the next month. The business includes appraisals, retail sales, auctions and house sales. Larry's father, Joseph, began the business in 1927 and moved to the present location at 409 East Jefferson 50 years ago.

Art Galleries employs about 30 people — up to 40 for an auction sale.

Larry DuMouchelle said that about 20 years ago, the business nearly moved out of downtown Detroit. "We bought property in Troy in 1969. At that time, we were having difficulty getting people to work at night auctions. Then we changed to daytime hours on Saturdays and Sundays, and saw a 500 percent increase in attendance. We changed our minds (about moving to Troy.) We spent a lot of time agonizing over this decision, but the solution was simple.

"Detroit is not the only city is going to come back. I thought the renaissance would be quicker, but now I realize it takes time. The renaissance won't be tomorrow or five years from now. It will probably take 20 years — or as many years as it took to destroy this city," he said. "The Stroh and Rivertown projects are very positive; so is the ANR project; the development in Greektown and Bricktown are tremendous; Orchestra Hall is fabulous.

"I hear many negative things about Detroit. I wish people could see what they're missing in downtown Detroit. Good positive things."

Larry DuMouchelle said he's on the road every day, following leads for collections of art, furniture, antiques, jewelry. He gets 10 or 20 calls every day, concerning new collections and estates.

On a recent Thursday morning, the auction floor was jam-packed, stacked with an interesting, eclectic mix of items: grand pianos, RCA Victor 78 rpm records, carved armoires, silver tea services, china, crystal, jewelry, oriental rugs, patchwork quilts, urns, carved wood urns, plain urns, pottery urns with elaborate painted designs.

A recent estate auction featured an interesting mix of items in the catalog. The sublime: a pear-shaped diamond ring with two side baguettes (estimated sales price between $28,000 and $35,000; dozens of 18th and 19th century tapestries; a Steinway grand piano made of mahogany with ivory keys, built in 1927; a left-hand boxing glove that belonged to Joe Louis and was used in his first title defense in Detroit (between $2,500 and $3,500); a white 1967 Mercedes with a burgundy interior (very low mileage); several Norman Rockwell paintings and pencil sketches (one of Arthur Godfrey, one of a jovial Santa Claus). The ordinary: a porcelain Dalmatian dog for $10-$20; a wooden fireplace bucket; two Canadian silver dollars dated 1935 and 1965; a yellow gold wedding band ($40-$60); a pair of needlepoint pillows (sales estimate $75-$125; unmatched glass salt and pepper shakers.

According to Larry Du-

New York firm was bidding on the collection, but we convinced the family to sell it here." He recalls a major jewelry auction in 1974; in 1978, an estate sale at the Matilda Dodge Wilson home.

DuMouchelle said he no longer buys things for himself. "I can't compete with my own customers. I buy things for myself on my own, when I travel."

He said he hates to see the destruction of some of Grosse Pointe's mansions. "Somebody should have done something to stop that 20 years ago. At first nobody paid attention to what was happening. I love Grosse Pointe and I'd like to see things stay the way they were.

"But it's the cost...like this building." He swept his hand in a wide arc to include DuMouchelles' 80-year-old six-story structure with its 20-foot ceilings and its huge heating bill. "This — and those old mansions — are not cost-efficient buildings.

Red hot

A 1987 Ford 8000 fire truck conversion was purchased last month by the Grosse Pointe Park Department of Public Safety. The 1,000-gallon-a-minute pumper has been fully outfitted and was put into service this week. The last pumper the department bought was in 1959. A ladder truck was purchased in 1974. The $89,000 pumper could have cost almost twice as much, but city officials decided to forego additional chrome and other frills, and buy only the necessary options. Showing off the new vehicle are, from left, Lt. William Furtaw, Deputy Director of Public Safety Philip Costa, Director Richard Caretti and Park Mayor Palmer Heenan.

Sinatra

Join War Memorial travelers Aug. 26-27 as they journey to Cincinnati for an activity-packed overnight that features a concert performance by the legendary Frank Sinatra.

Spend the night at the Omni Netherlands Plaza where a recent $30 million renovation has restored the French art-deco design hotel to its original 1930's grandeur.

Enjoy a deluxe prime rib dinner cruise to the Riverbend Music Center where there will be seating at Sinatra's performance and enjoy a guided tour of the city before the return home. Two lunches, one at the Old Barn Out Back Restaurant, are also included.

The trip is $195 per person (nonrefundable) based on double occupancy; $35, single supplement. Call 881-7511.

Lessons in Art

Eleven local artists moved their studios into the Defer Elementary School gym in Grosse Pointe Park last month to take part in the school's first Artists in Action art fair. The artists brought the tools of their trades and samples of their finished wares to exhibit and sell. They demonstrated their crafts to the delight of a steady stream of students.

The fair was an entertaining way to expose the children to a wide variety of artistic media, according to Principal Robert Shover. The whimsical balloon creations by Becky Santora and caricatures sketched on the spot by Ruth Jones were popular with the students as were James Weber's tiny pottery pigs.

The students appreciated the displays and demonstrations of traditional crafts by quilt maker Elaine Hartman and lace maker Trenna Ruffner.

Other artists included basket weaver Myra Mosick, doll maker Marian Hunt, water colorist Elena Ackeman, sculptor Marion Spitzley, oil painter Nancy Proffit and silver jewelry craftsman Jerry Seaton.

Council amends Woods ordinances

The Woods council adopted two ordinances at the regular meeting Monday night.

An amendment to Title VI, Chapter 7, section 6-7-10 of the city code of 1975 allows an additional five days (formerly five; now 10) for the city to make building safety inspections.

An amendment to Title III, Chapter 3, Section 3-3-2 of the city code of 1975 prohibits the installation of and the use of incinerators designed to burn garbage and wastes within the city of Grosse Pointe Woods.

Both ordinances become effective Aug. 10.

30-Year ARM

Before you buy or refinance your home, consider the advantages of our Adjustable Rate Mortgage (ARM).

Many of our ARM loan customers have saved a lot of money in mortgage interest costs over the past few years. And, at present interest rates, borrowers are finding our ARM loans to be an even better bargain. The first-year interest rate on our 15-year ARM is now only 7.25% compared to much higher rates on fixed-rate loans. What's more, with the 2% annual and 6% lifetime interest rate caps that we have placed on our ARM loans, you'll pay less interest and have greater principal reduction over at least the first four years of your loan.

The lower initial interest rates on our ARM loans result in lower initial monthly payments. And, the lower monthly payments mean that it will be easier for you to qualify for the loan that you need to buy or refinance your home.

So, come to any Standard Federal branch office and learn more about our ARM loans. We'll help you find the loan that is just right for you.

*All annual percentage rates are calculated based on a 2% loan discount fee, a loan amount of $50,000.00, a 20% down payment, and monthly principal and interest payments of $456.43 for the 15-year loan and $349.61 for the 30-year loan. These estimated annual percentage rates are subject to increase or decrease on an annual basis after the loan is closed based on the formula set forth in the loan contract.

An experience in hope and trust

Support group offers help to those suffering loss through divorce, death, separation

By Peggy O'Connor
Feature Editor

Helena Muer's most vivid memory of her first encounter with Detroit Beginning Experience is how surprised she'd been with what she discovered — about herself and about the organization.

"I was given a brochure about Beginning Experience and for some reason, decided at the last minute to take a chance on a weekend. I found out that it wasn't a party weekend, or a work weekend or an exercise weekend. I found out that it was a place where participants — where I — could discover what my feelings were," Muer recalls.

She found out that she was angry about her divorce. "It was an honest feeling, but it had never come out until that weekend. All that time, I thought that I was doing a pretty good job of handling it."

"I was really surprised to find out that I was that angry. I had just tucked it away."

Muer, a Grosse Pointe mother of three who is now engaged to be married, wound up attending two Beginning Experience weekends and making new discoveries each time. The best discovery of all, she said, was the final one. "Forgiveness. After I discovered my anger and learned to deal with it, I was able to find forgiveness . . . for myself and for my former spouse. When my former husband remarried, I was able to congratulate him and mean it. I don't think I could have done that without B.E.," Muer says.

Beginning Experience is an international organization which has its roots in Texas. Two Texas women started B.E. after helping coordinate encounter weekends for engaged persons and married couples and realizing the need for a similar experience for newly widowed, divorced and separated people.

Detroit B.E. is four years old and has more than 300 people on its mailing list, says Muer, who is communications chairman for the organization. There are many facets to the growing group, including the new Level One, a nine-week support group intended for those in the early stages of the termination of their marriage or loss of their spouse.

At Level One, facilitators share their personal experiences and help lead small discussion groups, helping participants work through the trauma and pain of the loss of a spouse and toward a new start.

One year after the end of the marriage or death of the spouse, participants are eligible to attend a Beginning Experience weekend. There are four such weekends scheduled for 1987-88, including the next one, set for Sept. 25-27 at St. Mary's in Monroe.

Muer stresses that the B.E. weekends are strictly voluntary and that even when a person makes a commitment to attend, he or she is not forced to participate. Team leaders (those who have attended at least one weekend and gone through B.E.'s training program) are instructed to help participants understand that if they are open to the process, they'll benefit more from the weekend; the leaders also realize that not everyone is able to do that.

"Sure, there is resistance. Some people are more devastated by their loss than others. It takes a lot of trust to open up to others. And when you suffer a loss, particularly in divorce or separation, one of the first things to go is trust," Muer explains.

A typical B.E. weekend includes talks by team leaders, small group discussions in which the participant may or may not wish to take part. There is also time for personal reflection.

"Team leaders are trained to have sensitivity and compassion, to listen to and encourage participants. We're not therapists or MDs and not trained to be. Even if someone on the team was a trained therapist, that's not what B.E. is about," Muer says.

"What Beginning Experience is about is helping people close the door on the past and open the door on the future."

B.E. IS CATHOLIC in origin, but non-sectarian in practice. The organization receives no outside funding and will partially-subsidize a weekend for those who cannot afford the cost of $75 per weekend. "We want people to be able to afford to come, so we try not to make it too costly. We also try to make the locations central to everyone, but we've found that people will drive great distances to participate," Muer says.

B.E. will continue to expand, she adds, and hopes to set up several levels for those who have suffered any sort of loss. "It's my understanding that B.E. is prepared to help people through any loss, not just divorce or death," Muer says. Continued Beginnings is a follow-up program to the weekend and is designed to begin two weeks after the weekend reunion and will meet for one night per week for six weeks.

It allows participants to delve deeper into the concepts learned on the weekend and provides participants the opportunity to further develop their newfound skills.

In its very early stages is the planned Children's Beginning Experience, which is designed to help children 8 through 17 work through the emotions they experience from the loss of a parent through death or the separation of a parent through divorce.

"This organization just has so much potential, so many opportunities to help people through the grief process, and through all the things which go with a loss. I just can't say enough about it," Muer says.

"I think the process is an enabler. We help people to recognize their feelings and after that, to take the necessary steps toward a new beginning. For me, that meant recognizing my anger and dealing with it. I was able to learn to overcome my anger about my divorce, then to overcome my depression about my anger. Finally, I was able to move on to where I am peaceful and filled with joy about myself and my life," she adds.

Not all who go through the weekends and stay on as team leaders continue on with B.E. as Muer has. "Some discover that it's time to move on to something else. Invariably, when they reach that point, they are enthusiastic about themselves and their future. They've had a wonderful experience."

"And it is a wonderful feeling to watch those people come into the weekend on Friday night frightened, scared and lonely and — almost to a person — walk out on Sunday with a big smile and a warm feeling because they were able to discover what their feelings were and to move on from there," Muer says.

"That's the neat thing about B.E."

Archeologists unearth Michigan's prehistoric legacy

By Ellen Probert
Special Writer

Archeology is a science that provides us with fascinating facts about our past. Did you know that Michigan, long known as a state replete with gardeners, comes by this heritage naturally? In ages past, a prehistoric race inhabited this area long before the Indians were here and the only record we have of their unusual ability and great intelligence is the so-called "garden beds."

When white people arrived in Michigan in the late 18th and early 19th centuries, they were astonished to find these symmetrical plots in southeastern and western Michigan. Henry Schoolcraft, an early historian, has left us some information about these mysterious gardens.

"The garden beds are raised patches of ground separated by sunken paths and are generally in the shape of a wheel with spokes running out to a circular ridge from a circle within. (The Trial Gardens supported by the Grosse Pointe Garden Center and maintained by the Garden Clubs of Grosse Pointe at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial are in this pattern.)

"Sometimes the ancient gardens were rectangles arranged in blocks. The gardens resemble the work of the ancient Mound Builders who have left their creations scattered through the midwest, but are quite definitely for agricultural purposes." Mr. Schoolcraft wrote in 1827. "The Garden Beds and not the Indian Mounds are the Antiquarian monuments of this state."

Some of the ancient Garden Beds are in the valley of the Grand River and the St. Joseph River and through the counties of Kalamazoo, Cass, and St. Joseph and a few in Macomb and Wayne Counties.

Schoolcraft relates seeing these gardens as early as 1827, and says that at that time one of the trees nearby was cut down and had 335 cortex layers, or rings, dating it to 1492. The garden was much, much older.

Unfortunately, the march of progress and the growth of cities in Michigan has obliterated many of these prehistoric gardens, but now archeologists are working to save the remaining ones as part of our state heritage.

An early horticulturalist, Liberty Hyde Bailey was born in Michigan in 1858 and lived in this state until his death in 1954. During his long life he, more than anyone else, transformed horticulture from a craft to an applied science. At Michigan State University in 1884 he set up the first college department of Horticulture and Landscape Architecture in the United States. At Cornell, as Professor and Dean of Agriculture, he made botanists understand the practical problems of horticulture ture and helped horticulturalists to overcome their prejudice against scientific classification. Most important, he got both groups to do their research in the field rather than in the classroom. The first president of the American Society of Horticulture Science, he was a prolific writer and editor, and much of the work he started, especially in Michigan, is being continued today.

The dahlias are beautiful right now in all our gardens. It's intriguing to know that somewhere back in the 17th century an experiment was under way to introduce the Mexican plant as a food source similar to potatoes. The plant had been developed by a student of Linnaeus named Dr. Dahl, for whom it was named. As an edible it got nowhere, but the lovely big blossoms are now a worldwide favorite.

Potatoes did better even though they got off to a slow start. French royalty really promoted them. Louis XVI wore the flowers in his buttonhole and Marie Antoinette wore them in her hair at a grand ball, but it wasn't until the potatoes were planted in a plot with a 24-hour guard that people felt they must be worth stealing. It was really the Irish who made them famous, although they are Peruvian by origin.

If you are an ardent vegetable gardener and beginning now to enjoy your first harvests, here's a word of warning: If a University of Minnesota scientist is correct, some of our common vegetables contain toxins which can be harmful.

He claims that uncooked green beans can cause illness and dried beans can be harmful unless boiled for 20 minutes. Soybeans, unless cooked, contain a substance that inhibits digestion, and lima beans unless cooked in an uncovered vessel, contain cyanide.

The function of the thyroid gland can be altered by substances in raw cabbage, cauliflower, turnips and rutabagas.

Take heart, all is not lost. This earnest biochemist also says that one would have to eat 10 pounds of raw cabbage in a day to experience any ill effect and it is hard to imagine even the most avid coleslaw devotee eating that much in a day. His chief recommendation to dairy farmers is not feed these vegetables to cows who might pass along harmful substances in milk. So we can relax and enjoy our home-grown produce.

The idea that flowers originate from the spilling of blood is a very ancient one and a frequent theme in mythology. An old story from Buddhism tells of the origin of the Cannas, that favorite blossom of public parks and municipal gardens.

It seems that Buddha was to go on a journey and his treacherous and diabolical cousin, Devadatta, heard this and decided to kill him on the way. He climbed to a high ledge and watched for Buddha to come along and rolled a huge boulder down on him. But the boulder missed its mark and fell! At Buddha's feet where it shattered into a thousand pieces.

Buddha was unharmed except for a small cut on one foot. As his blood fell on the earth a red flower, the Cannas, arose. At the same time, the earth on the ledge where Devadatta was standing opened up and swallowed him.

Now there is an example of how crime does not pay!

Operation LINC: Matching needs with resources is ongoing effort

Operation LINC was honored at a luncheon held recently at the Recess Club and hosted by CareGivers. LINC's new president, Carole Selmo, was presented with the CareGivers' Testimonial Resolution Award by Robert Tompkins, CareGivers' first vice president. The award was presented to LINC for it "has generously contributed to the effective operation of CareGivers by promptly responding to requests for clothing and furniture to meet the needs of persons..."

CareGivers is a professional, in-home social services agency serving Macomb, Oakland and Wayne Counties since 1965. Approved by the National Home-Caring Council, the staff provides assessment, case management and in-home services to help people remain at home and to achieve their maximum level of independence.

Operation LINC received CareGivers' community participation award for 1987 for its ongoing contribution to CareGivers and the families and adults it serves. Previous recipients of the honor include the American Red Cross, Home Nursing department, the Michigan Cancer Foundation and the St. Vincent DePaul Society.

Such recognition, which LINC has also received from the over 350 human service organizations it has touched in more than 16 years of operation, help put Operation LINC's purpose in perspective.

That purpose is to coordinate needs with resources. By placing goods no longer needed by individuals and businesses into the hands of metropolitan Detroit charitable agencies, LINC provides a unique service to the community. LINC also routinely strives to expand and improve its capacity to help those in need. This is only accomplished through the generous contributions Operation LINC receives from the community.

Since the new tax laws have come into effect, Operation LINC has experienced (along with other community service organizations) a decline in the number of donations made by the community. Capuchin Community Center has noted a drastic decrease in the usage of its transportation services. The pick-up and delivery trucks are idle.

There is much discussion that these incidences have a direct correlation to the implementation of the new 1987 tax structure. Many individuals are hesitant to donate in-kind goods and monetary contributions, uncertain of the effect on their 1987 taxable income.

After much discussion with Margit Jackson, a CPA from Grosse Pointe Farms, LINC hopes to help put some of the doubts to rest.

"The changes in the tax law would not discourage me from donating nor discourage me from advising my clients to do so," Jackson said.

The main issue at hand is that tax rates have changed allowable charitable deductions from 50 percent to a maximum of 33 percent. The following information may prove helpful:

If your filing status is single and your taxable income falls into the $16,800-$27,000 range, the allowable deductions change from 1986's 28 percent

(of each dollar given to charity) to 1987's 23-30 percent.

If your filing status is Head of Household and your taxable income falls in the $23,000-$38,000 range, the allowable deduction changes from 1986's 28 percent to 1987's 24-35 percent.

If your filing status is married and your taxable income is in the $28,000-$45,000 range, the allowable deduction changes from 1986's 28 percent to 1987's 25-33 percent.

As you can see by the comparison, the deductible percentage has not changed that drastically.

See LINC, page 4B

Carole Selmo, president of Operation LINC, recently attended an appreciation luncheon hosted by CareGivers in Detroit. Selmo accepted LINC's Community Participation Award presented by Robert Tompkins, first vice president of the CareGivers. LINC treasurer Barb Earl (not pictured) also attended the luncheon held in the Fisher Building's Recess Club.

Sister Celeste Rabaut celebrates golden jubilee

Sister Celeste Rabaut, I.H.M.

Grosse Pointe native Sister Celeste Rabaut, I.H.M., has celebrated 50 years of service to the community as a sister servant of the Immaculate Heart of Mary. A mass of thanksgiving was offered Sunday, July 19, at Marygrove College. It was followed by a reception hosted by Sister Celeste's eight brothers and sisters.

Sister Celeste is the daughter of the late Honorable Louis C. Rabaut and Stella Petz Rabaut. She entered religious life in 1937. She attended St. Paul School, which was then administered by the Madames of the Sacred Heart. She earned a bachelor of arts degree from Marygrove College and a master of science degree in library science from Catholic University in Washington, D.C.

Sister Celeste taught classes at St. Matthew and Annunciation schools and was librarian at Marygrove College. She is presently general secretary and archivist for the Immaculate Heart of Mary congregation headquartered in Monroe.

Family assistance fund established

National Bank of Detroit and the Community Foundation for Southeastern Michigan have established a fund to assist Detroit area churches' efforts to provide human services to their communities.

The Family Assistance Service Fund, conceived by the Clergy Steering Committee of NBD, is a project of the Community Foundation. The Fund's intent is to augment churches' non-proselytizing human service programs for families and individuals in low-income troubled neighborhoods of the city and surrounding areas. Typical grants will range from $500 to $1,500, with a maximum grant of $5,000 available.

"Detroit, like a number of large urban areas, has neighborhoods that are home to large proportions of low-income families, unemployed heads of households, troubled youth and helplessly elderly," said Daniel S. Voydanoff, vice president of Civic and Urban Affairs for NBD.

"In many neighborhoods, local church congregations are the only truly visible source of assistance. These congregations have facilities, volunteers and caring leadership, but the local church is only as fiscally strong as its supporting community. Further, many foundations and corporations exclude religious organizations from grant opportunities. The intent of the fund is to address these situations."

The Community Foundation for Southeastern Michigan is a permanent endowment built by gifts from hundreds of local citizens and organizations committed to the future of Southeastern Michigan. It is governed by a 40-member board of civic leaders who seek to identify and assist innovative and effective approaches to community problems.

For specific application and eligibility information, contact C. David Campbell, program officer, Community Foundation for Southeastern Michigan, 333 West Fort Street, Detroit, Mich. 48226, (313) 961-6675.

Jackson's advice is that each individual and business needs to consult a personal CPA or accountant regarding their own specific circumstances relating to future contributions. LINC asks the community to remember that it is not just the tax advantage which stimulates donations, but the self-satisfaction it breeds from knowing that donors put a little of themselves into the community to make it that much better for everyone.

LINC asks that the community helps by continuing its generous giving. Each week, courtesy of the Grosse Pointe News, Operation LINC features the Missing LINC column in the classified section of the News. Please look for it to help understand the importance of giving and how many are helped by that giving.

We'll treat you like a million bucks, even when you only borrow half.

Presenting the Comerica Jumbo Mortgage.

At some financial institutions you have to borrow a million dollars before they'll go out of their way to make your life a little easier.

Well, at Comerica, we think that while you might not need that kind of money you're still entitled to that kind of service.

So we offer our Jumbo Mortgage.

Not only can you borrow any amount up to half a million dollars, but we'll even bend over backwards to make it as easy as possible for you.

For starters, we won't make you run all over town to meet with the right person, the way some lenders do. Instead, we've got mortgage representatives at almost every branch who'll meet with you at your convenience.

Then to make it even easier, we make our mortgages affordable, with competitive financing options. Like 15 and 30 year fixed mortgage rates, adjustable rates, and balloon payments.

Finally, if you're too busy to come on in and see us, just call us at 1-800-292-1300 (in Detroit 222-5585), and we'll come to you.

Grosse Pointe A Unique Community

A Romantic Past As a Grosse Pointe resident, you'll walk upon grounds that were once the swamp, marsh and meadow haunts of deer, buffalo and beaver. It was this profusion of wildlife—plus fish from the 460-square-mile Lake St. Clair—that attracted the French farmers who first settled the area in 1701.

During the century that they fished, farmed and traded with the local Indians, many legends began. And many infamous locations were indelibly named: Fox Creek, graveyard of the Fox Indian nation; Bloody Run, where a company of British soldiers from Fort Detroit were ambushed and killed.

From Pristine to Prosperous After a brief period under British rule, the area began its history as an American settlement. Its beauty and bounty made it an ideal resort area for families from the growing city of Detroit. Between 1875 and 1925, Grosse Pointe became the elegant summer residence—and then permanent home—of families who had amassed fortunes in lumber and automobiles. In the midst of the lavish mansions, farm cottages and resort ambiance, there gradually grew a year-round community of quality homes for families from all walks of life.

They got the best of me

Summer time is a great time to get out and recreate. However, some games go untested and others are always a battle.

How many times did you consider the sport of badminton?

Is it a sport, or is it a recreational activity? I surely don't consider it a sport, but those who play the game consistently may have quite an argument for me.

Just the other day I picked up a racquet and got into playing a doubles game of badminton. Now, before I detail what happened, I must clear up one possible misconception.

I like animals. I don't like all makes of the little critters, but one of the most elusive is the bird. But, for this game the main object is referred to as a "birdie."

After seeing how many times my car has been marred by birds, I figured it was time for some revenge. I wasn't going to rip the wings off it, but I was going to cause some havoc.

My partner and I had our warmups out of the way so we set up to smash the first service. As the birdie sailed over the net, I swore I could almost hear it whine. The other team returned the little bugger and it was headed for my racquet. I awaited eagerly, kept my weight on my back foot, and then unleashed a resounding shot that only saw my racquet fly through the air and the birdie flutter to the ground.

Birdie 1, Fulton 0!

I couldn't let a small winged character get the best of me when I knew I could club it with the racquet. I guess I was comparing it to a fly and a fly swatter.

I took the back row and prepared to return a serve. The birdie was lofted over the net and the round tip was descending quickly. I kept my eye on it and snapped the racquet forward hoping to send this baby into the neighbor's pool. However, a sudden gust of wind changed my plans and the winged character went past my racquet.

Birdie 2, Fulton 0!

After that awesome display of racquet wizardry, I thought I had it all figured out why I was being subtly defeated by this small monster. I was in the back row and not in the front where I would be more comfortable.

Putting it in its place

Before the next serve, I swiftly darted toward the net and took my position. After about four volleys, and me not hitting the birdie once, I became a bit frustrated and anxious. I was going after the next shot.

Here was my opportunity. I back-pedaled to get under it, snapped the racquet backward, and sent the thing in the opposite direction. I thought I made a winning shot, but my partner's loud laugh told me otherwise. The birdie was stuck in the tree.

This was a moral victory as well as a stalemate. I put the birdie where it belonged and it also seemed content to be there because it wouldn't come down.

Birdie 2, Fulton 0. Ties 1!

By now I didn't know which end was up.

My partner suggested we stand side-by-side and play the next point, so I was willing to try anything to salvage some pride.

The serve was on its way and my partner didn't move for it. I raced back to intercept the flight of the birdie and drilled it over the net. The other team returned it and it was the start of a three-minute volley. As the exchange continued, I grew more confident as my shots were getting over the net and things were going just fine.

The rivalry grew more intense with each swat.

I knew my touch with success was too good to be true. My forehand shots were moving swiftly, but how long would it last? I had no idea, but all I had to worry about was them making the mistake.

One of the opponents lofted a high-arching shot that was headed for the end line. Figuring I was at the peak of my game, I took off to get it. As I turned my back to the net and headed to score a big shot, something hit me in the head. It was that darn birdie from the perch in the tree. I never did get a shot off.

Birdie 3, Fulton 0. Ties 1!

Valkyrie crew dresses for success

By Rob Fulton
 Sports Editor

After 24 years of competing in the Bayview Yacht Club Port Huron to Mackinac Sailboat Race, Valkyrie skipper, Bob Thoreson may be able to route his course blindfolded, but one sight he may want to unmask for is the sporty new look his crew dons.

Thoreson, who will be competing in his 25th Mackinac race, recently became one of the first skippers to ever pilot a crew dressed in light-blue formal wear.

"It's interesting," said the 54-year-old skipper when asked what he thought about the new look of his crew. "I'm sure that people at the starting line will talk." Thoreson, president of Thoreson and McCosh of Troy, is pretty intrigued with the tuxedos, but he is taking it all with a grain of salt.

"To me it's just another sailboat race with a lot of hoopla and I don't know why," he said. "It (the tuxedos) probably hypes them (the crew) up to a certain degree and that's all well and good. It's another race with a new twist."

While Thoreson is mild-mannered about his crew's new approach, crew member Bill Harrington of Grosse Pointe Park is pleased with the apparel.

"We wanted to come up with something completely different," Harrington, who is the brain trust behind the tuxedos, said. "It will be very appropriate to wear them because it is Bob's 25th race."

In previous races, Harrington came up with several "twists," but nothing of this nature.

"This should really be a great idea," he said. "Two years ago we had red suspenders, and last year we wore top hats. I guess you could say we are trying to dress for success."

Harrington also wanted to do away with, but not entirely, the original crew outfit of white pants, a blue shirt, and red belt. Although the formal wear is a main attraction on the Valkyrie this year, the original outfit has not been replaced. "We will still wear our white pants and blue shirt, but we wanted the tuxedos for at least the start of the race."

Harrington may not always come up with the most compatible outfits, but they have combined with Thoreson's nautical skills to ring in the success.

"Bob has a great track record," Harrington said about the skipper he's been with through 17 Port Huron to Mackinac races.

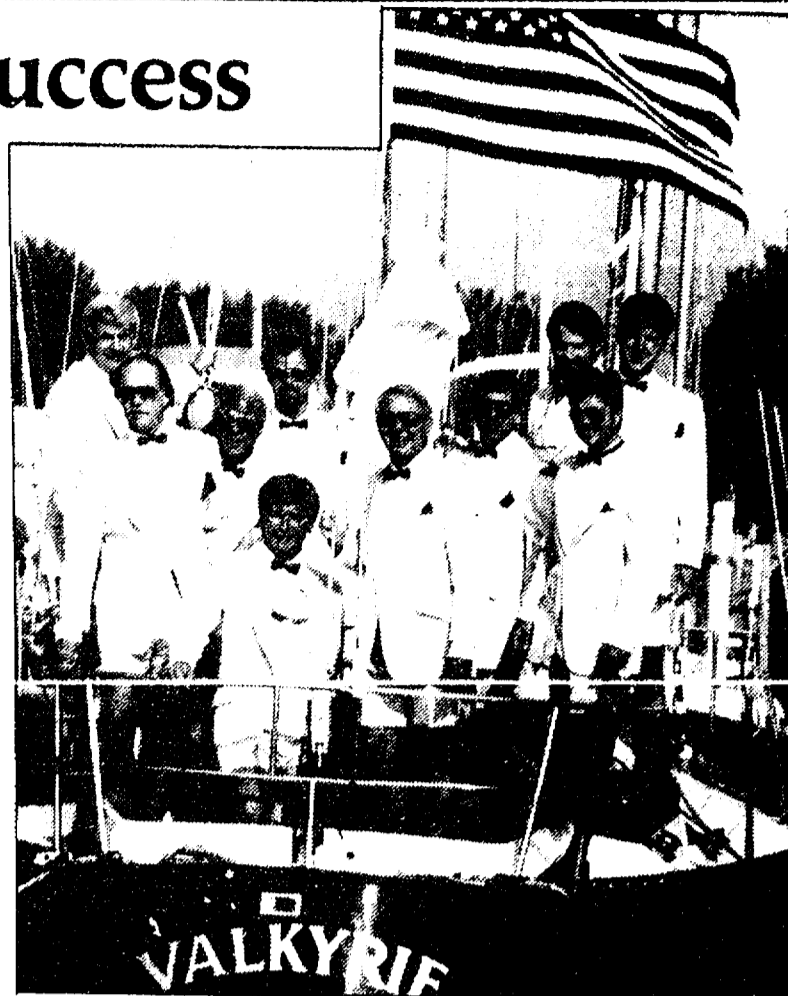

Thoreson's boats have placed in the top three of their class eight times, but the highlight came in 1980 when he won the Mackinac, taking both division and class honors.

The crew attire consists of cut-off pants, a red tie and a scarf to match the boat's water line stripe. On the back of the jacket, the words "Valkyrie Detroit" are emblazoned in bright red letters.

"We may not win our class, but we may look the classiest," Harrington chuckled.

According to Harrington, the crowd at the race will be looking for something different during the race, and what they'll see is a $24 outfit on each of Thoreson's crew members for the first time, but maybe not the last.

Woods-Shores

An oft repeated proverb states that 'lightning never strikes twice in the same spot.' Another states that 'history never repeats itself.' Amidst the gathering clouds and flashing lightning, the Grosse Pointe Woods-Shores major National League Reds rendered these time honored proverbs meaningless by capturing their second consecutive World Series championship in convincing fashion.

Once again the American League opposition was provided by the Yankees. Unlike 1986, however, when the Yankees pushed the Reds to three games, the National League champions swept both games, 2-0 and 17-6. The victory increased Jim Rini's world series championship wins to a record of five, and brought to a conclusion the two most successful seasons (45 wins, 2 losses) in league history.

The 1987 Reds, who were once again coached by Mike McCann and Ted Kirles, consisted of a strong nucleus of eight veterans from the 23-1 1986 squad supplemented by four talented newcomers. The team is comprised of: Chris Coates, William Duell, Brian Duignan, Mike Haskell, Scott Holcomb, Kevin Kasiborski, Geoff Kirles, Matt Masek, Shawn McCann, Aaron Michael, Jay Radloff, and Ryan Rouls.

Once again numerous team and individual records were established. Team batting leader Michael, came within two hits of tying the record for most hits in a season, but did eclipse the single season record by one (61) for the most combined hits and walks (45 hits, 16 walks). The team records included most runs in a season (287) and largest average run differential (12.3) per game.

The most notable team record, however, was that set against the Braves in the 14th game of the season, as the Reds won their 35th regular season game without a defeat. The streak, which surpassed that of another Reds edition in the mid 70's, ultimately reached an incredible 40 games before it came to an end in the 20th game of the season against the Cardinals by the score of 6-1.

As impressive as the 40-game regular-season win streak was, it was almost overshadowed by the highly controversial circumstances surrounding its demise. Concerned by what he felt was growing inattentiveness at team practices, Rini juggled both his fielding and batting orders, benched regulars for parts of the game, and withheld his two top pitchers from the contest. The combination of the disciplinary action, and an exceptional pitching performance by Jason Jaworski (13 strikeouts, 2 hits) proved too much to overcome. The quest for unprecedented back to back perfect seasons had ended two games early.

With the pressures of 'the streak' removed, attention focused squarely on mounting a successful defense of their world series championship. The opening game, which matched the Red's Mike Haskell and the Yankee's Sam Sanom for the fourth time of the season, promised to be a low-scoring affair. The last regular season meeting between the two teams had gone into the sixth inning tied 1-1 before a Matt Masek double chased home the winning runs for a 3-1 Reds victory.

The Yankees opened their half of the inning in threatening fashion with two consecutive singles by Kevin Magee and Steve Guest off the hard throwing Haskell. After an infield out resulting in an opening at first, the dangerous Sanom was given an intentional pass to load the bases. The inning ended without a run, however, as Magee was thrown out by Rouls on a close play at the plate trying to score on a passed ball, and Haskell got Bob Becker on strikes. It was the last time the Yankees were to seriously threaten as Haskell would yield only three harmless walks the rest of the way.

In the home half of the first, the Reds got all of the runs they would need on the second pitch of the inning as Haskell laced a home run over the fence in straight away left field. Haskell duplicated his feat and provided an insurance run, by leading off with a solo shot in the third; this time to left center.

Game 2 provided several contrasts to the well-played opener. Gone were the sunny conditions of game one, replaced by intermittent rain which at times threatened to make conditions unplayable. Gone too was the tightly played defensive style of the first game.

The game began uneventfully with both the Reds' Michael and the Yankees' Kevin Rae setting down the side in order. But with two on and two out in the top half of the second, the Reds' Brian Duignan ignited the offensive fuse by rifling a shot off the fence in left center, chasing home Kirles and Rouls with the games first two runs. The Reds' lead grew to 4-0 on doubles by Haskell, Michael, and Duell in the top of the third. In the top of the fourth, successive singles by Radloff, Duignan, and Masek, followed by Haskell's double and Michael's triple opened the lead to 9-0, and brought in Danny Devlin to replace Yankee starter Rae. Poor weather conditions continued and only one-half inning more was needed to make the game official and it appeared that game officials would be forced to end the game. The Yankees refused to succumb, however.

Aided by uncharacteristically poor fielding (four Reds errors in the inning), the Yankees began to make contact. Followed by two infield misplays, Sanom sent the first Yankee run across the plate with a sharp single to center. Followed by a dropped fly, Becker sent a towering fly into the right field corner for a double and two more runs scored. The score was now 9-4 and there were expressions of concern on the faces of the damp, red and white clad supporters of the Reds.

Michael, who remained composed throughout the inning, got the next two batters on strikes. Leadoff hitter Magee continued to rally, however, with a single which brought in the final two runs of the inning. Michael got the final out on a grounder back to the mound. Play was immediately halted by the umpires, but there would be no premature end to this game; the Yankees had made it a contest.

After play resumed, the Reds went quietly in their half of the fifth as Yankee catcher Todd Schorer cut down Rouls trying to steal third. With the momentum of the fourth inning still very much in evidence, the Yankees threatened once again in the bottom of the fifth. Sanom led off with a sharp double to right center. A dropped pop-up put runners on first and second with no outs. Another infield pop up resulted in the first out of the inning. With Yankee fans shouting 'rally!rally!', Mark Levine sent a fly to deep right for what appeared to be a certain double and two more Yankee runs. Instead, right fielder Radloff made the defensive play of the series and perhaps the year as he raced, full speed, into the corner to make a remarkable one-handed grab for the second out of the inning. The inning, and the Yankees final scoring threat, ended on a force at second.

The Reds closed out the scoring in the sixth with eight insurance runs on walks to Haskell and Michael sandwiched between singles by Radloff, Masek, and Kirles, and a double by McCann. The game ended appropriately enough on a grounder back to Michael.

COAST GUARD-MARINES
Coast Guard came out on top, 28-19. Aaron Wudyka doubled in the first, Wolking tripled in the second and McKenzie and Jack Ryan doubled in the third. McKenzie tripled with bases loaded in the fourth. CG broke the game open in the sixth with doubles by Matt Julian, John Lawrence, Mike Rubino and an Aaron Fraser homer. Wudyka caught a pop fly. Ryan started a double play. The Marines' Jason Adzigian and John Kalmink doubled in the first inning. Tommy Smith and Gino D'Agostino doubled in the fourth.

Tigers-Red Sox

On Monday, July 6, the Tigers became the league champs of the 14-15 Babe Ruth Major Division.

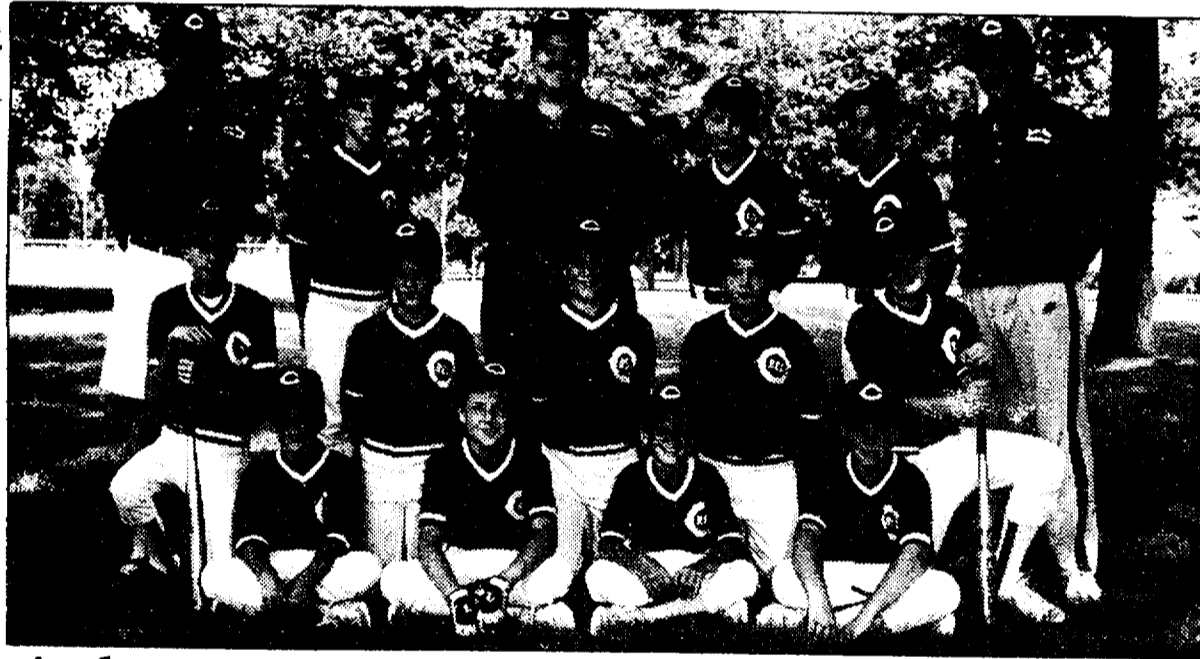

They took the championship with a resounding 12-1 win over the Red Sox in the third and final game of the playoffs.

Winning pitcher, Mike Montagne limited the Red Sox to two hits, including a long triple by Sox Nick Johnston and a single to Jeff Joliet. Montagne struck out nine while walking only three.

Eddie Suzor's two hits knocked in four runs while Montagne added two singles himself. Montagne received additional doubles from Rob Reynolds and Mike Oliver. Kevin Nesler and Brian Letscher added singles.

Other members of the championship team are Rob Khoenle, Billy Leins, Tom Moellering, Brendan Henry and Tim Molloy.

The win brought the Tigers' overall record for 1987 to 15-4. The Tigers were coached by Rich Moellering and Mark Nowinski and the manager was John Hoben.

D.B.C. youth grab rowing honors

The Men's Rowing Nationals in Indianapolis, Ind., June 24-28, saw the Detroit Boat Club team capture several honored placings.

The D.B.C. Youth (made up of North and South students) worked hard all year for the race and medaled in their respective events, but the biggest thrill of the Regatta came when Brian Benz and Tim Ohara won the "United States Men's Elite Double" which is said to be one of the toughest and most prestigious races of the year.

A fishy tale

By Cristina Staats

It seems there once was a veteran sailor who enjoyed afternoon sails with his wife.

She was new to sailing so the veteran was teaching her the rudimentary skills required to safely sail the boat. As the weeks passed she became more and more proficient, but still found the vernacular of sailing a bit confusing.

She often confused "port" from "starboard" as well as other sailing terms.

The veteran began to feel he could relax a bit, and even indulge in a little fishing while his wife was at the helm; even if his wife wasn't quite sure which words meant what.

One afternoon he cast his line in while his wife practiced at the helm. He never had good luck trolling while sailing, but continued to try because he found it relaxing. This day was no exception. He played with the trolling line and watched as the sun danced about on the water. To his amazement, he hooked something. He thought it was some underwater debris, but was pleasantly surprised to discover a large fish had actually taken the bait and was firmly hooked. It was bigger than that — it was huge!

He immediately began to yell to his wife to jibe, but thought better of it because of her uncertainty with nautical terms. Instead, he yelled to her to "turn around." She turned her head to see what he wanted, and got no response so she continued to sail on. He yelled again, more excited this time, to "turn around!" She turned her head around again and saw him fidgeting with something off the back of the boat. She tried to get his attention, but could not leave the helm as he was concentrating on whatever he was doing and did not hear her when she spoke to him.

When he finally did turn around, he came up next to her at the helm and was irate. He was really angry. He told her that it was her fault that he lost the biggest fish he had ever hooked in his life.

"Why didn't you turn around when I told you to?" he asked.

Having been nearly reduced to tears, she responded with a somber "I did." She then went on to explain.

"I turned around twice and you never said a word so I just kept on sailing the boat. What did you want?"

"I wanted you to turn the boat around so I could land the fish. Why didn't you just do that?"

"Because you never told me to," was her response. "You just said to turn around! You never said to 'come about' or 'jibe'. I would have done that if I had known what you wanted — and you didn't tell me. Next time be more precise!"

The veteran sailor slipped back to the afterdeck and began to reset his fishing line — just a bit wiser!

Sliders win

The Select Care Sliders finished the Neighborhood Club's Midi (sixth grade) softball league season undefeated, then capped that by defeating the East Side Sporting Goods Sluggers in the championship game. The Slider pounded out 23 hits in the title contest, including home runs by Chrissy Angell, Laura Cartwright, Meredith Dahl and Lynn Rader. Kim Chrysler, Angell and Dahl had three hits each and Kim Higel, Cartwright, Melissa Chamberlin and Lisa Ritter had one apiece. Pitchers Cartwright and Molly Wright held the Sluggers to three runs on nine hits. Also playing well in the championship game and during the season were Kelly Sanders, Angela Roxas, Andrea Sawaya, Amy O'Loughlin, Jennifer Berube and Christy Reed.

The Bargainers are the Neighborhood Club's Middle League softball champs for the second straight year. The team was undefeated in the playoffs and scored 10 runs in the fifth inning of the championship game to take a come-from-behind win over the Cavanaugh's Challengers. The champs include, left to right, (front) Alexa Olzark, Maryanne Marantette, Lisa Hagermoser, Kelly Warfield, Dawn Frontera and Amanda Lawrence; (back) Tori Buckner, Anne Maliszewski, Hope Durant, manager Jim Alle, Jill Garvey, coach Maril Leith, Jamie Alle and Sarah Leith. Stacey Evans, Sarah Grunow and coaches Barbara Alle, Joan Garvey and Larry Marantette were not pictured.

Harrington stated the crew will wear the tuxedos at the start of the race, but doesn't know when or wear they will slip into something a little more comfortable.

"We are going to wear them from Sarina (where they stay the night before the race) and through the start of the race."

Will this be the only time the Valkyrie crew wears the formal attire?

"Gosh, I really don't think so. We may wear them somewhere on the way, but if not, maybe we'll have reason to celebrate and wear them when we arrive at Mackinac."

The crew consists of five Grosse Pointers. They are: Rob Young (Park); Greg Wheeler (Farms); Bill Harrington (Park); Bob Rossbach (Park); Jim Gates (Park).

EVOLUTION OF THE SPECIES

The New Breed Jaguar XJ6

The 1988 Jaguar XJ6. Like its forebears, its sleek form is taut and well-muscled. Yet it faces the wind with still greater aerodynamic efficiency.

True to Jaguar tradition, its new fuel injected six cylinder engine has double overhead cams. However, the added sophistication of 24 valves further enhances power and response. Inside, the new XJ6 artfully blends the classic splendor of supple leather and fine wood, with the most advanced computer-age engineering.

The 1988 Jaguar XJ6. It is totally new, yet it reflects the finest traits of its forebears. It marks the evolution of a legendary species. It's little wonder that upon previewing it in Europe, CAR magazine called it "the best sedan in the world."

Sunny days bring sunny dispositions

Diet, behavior, mood and health all appear to be profoundly affected by the weather.

If you have productivity slumps, the answer may be found by looking out your window.

Doctors, especially in Europe, Japan, and the Soviet Union, have been keeping close watch on weather and health for years. In both East and West Germany, scientists take the study so seriously that the weather services are required to issue not only weather reports, but regular briefs on the possible human repercussions.

One day we, too, may listen to the 11 o'clock news weather report and hear, "barometric pressure will be falling which may produce irritability or depression. Be on the alert."

Cloudy weather, rain, and snow storms tend to bring on spells of depression; for biological reasons.

When barometric pressure falls, the body takes up more water from the intestinal tract, causing swelling which could add as much as one inch to a person's legs or waistline, according to Dr. Maria Simonson, a professor emerita at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore.

"The retained water also squeezes tissue in the brain causing depression, irritability, and despondency in many people. On the other hand, high pressure systems (usually bringing fair weather) fosters sunny dispositions," she said.

Biometeorologists trace the correlations between such things as heat waves and crime waves. By looking at the environment's influence on people, scientists hope to use weather predictions to anticipate mass behavioral trends.

I find it very gratifying to learn that there is some truth to one of my beliefs that, in general, overall group personalities vary geographically based upon basic weather conditions. For instance, people in southern and warm climate states seem to be much more open and friendly than northerners — who are usually hurrying and scurrying to get inside away from the cold.

Michigan is a beautiful, wonderful state, but one of which has the least amount of sunlit days per year.

Now that we're armed with some additional information about how weather can affect us, we can be more attuned with our bodies and can compensate in other ways for those oppressive days. Don't forget that walking and jogging are natural mood elevators!

Meanwhile, enjoy the sunshine!

Fitness Fun Walk Aug. 9

The A.C.T. Walking Club, in cooperation with the St. Clair Shores Recreation Department, has organized a Fitness Fun Walk at Bays Park on Sunday, August 9 at 9 a.m.

There will be a one mile and three mile walk with raffle prizes and free refreshments. A donation of $5 to A.C.T. would greatly enhance the ability of the club to organize further fun walks.

For further information, call the Recreation Department at 445-5350.

On a nice sunny day, many of us are tempted to go out and ride our bikes, play baseball, or go for a healthy jog.

Although there's certainly no reason why these activities should not be done, Carl Reichert, MD of Grosse Pointe Farms, orthopedic surgeon at Saint John Hospital in Detroit, says, to be on the safe side, always get in the habit of stretching out, warming up and cooling down.

"There are many weekend warriors around, who sit behind a desk all week. They then get motivated on the weekend and participate in a variety of strenuous sports without warming up the muscles. These people tend to get many injuries especially to the knees," said Dr. Reichert.

According to Dr. Reichert, sports enthusiasts tend to injure the knees more than any other body part.

"The knee is very susceptible to injuries because it's a hinged joint which is not very stable. The knee gets its stability from muscles and ligaments and unfortunately this does not provide enough protection from the abnormal wear and tear that may result from a sports activity," he said.

According to Dr. Reichert, the most common type of knee injury is a strain.

"We see all sorts of knee injuries in all sorts of sports," he said. "The most common type we see is what is called a medial ligament strain."

A knee injury occurs, most frequently, when the foot is fixed and the player is hit from the side, causing the knee to twist and putting a strain on the knee, according to Dr. Reichert. Sports injuries are rarely life threatening, yet many serious complications do occur in younger people who participate in contact sports such as football, basketball and hockey.

Older adults do not tend to get as many serious injuries as younger people, but are prone to the wear and tear of ligaments and muscles that can arise from playing tennis, going jogging or participating in any other non-contact sport. Dr. Reichert suggested that if an individual suffers a sprain or a pulled muscle and in a couple of days the pain does not go away, the injury should be attended to so that he or she can get back to a normal lifestyle.

So what happens when an individual does warm up, stretches out and cools down after participating in a sport, but still suffers an injury?

Dr. Reichert said after seeking medical attention and getting treatment, most people want to go back to the sport or exercise they were participating in, but it's not always an easy process to get back into shape.

"After being hurt from a particular sport, rehabilitation can be more difficult to deal with than the actual injury. People want to be able to perform just as well as before the accident, but it may take months or years before the individual is back to normal," said Dr. Reichert.

"Many of the exercises that are taught by health care professionals to get the individuals back in shape are boring and tedious, but necessary if they want to participate in the particular sport again."

According to Dr. Reichert, if the knee is strained, a short healing time is usually 4-6 weeks as far as treatment, but may vary depending on severity and the individual.

Smart

A fishy story

Improving your diet, health and appearance comes, it seems, one step at a time. Or perhaps, more appropriately, one choice at a time.

For instance, when choosing a source of protein, some choices are considered more healthy than others. One of the healthiest choices you can make is fish.

Once for ounce, fish is one of the leanest and lowest in calories of any meat or protein source. A 3 1/2 ounce cooked portion of just about any whitefish offers a full third of an adult's Recommended Dietary Allowance for protein, yet it contains only a small amount of fat and fewer than 100 calories. This includes sole, flounder, haddock, halibut, and other white-fin fish

Generally speaking, the darker the color of the flesh, the higher the fat content of the fish. But, even the darker fish are lower in fat and calories than many cuts of meat or poultry with the skin.

Fish is not only good for your waistline, it's good for your health. Eating more fish offers an ideal means of cutting back on heart-threatening cholesterol and saturated fat. The American Heart Association recommends increasing your intake of fish or poultry (without the skin) and decreasing your intake of fattier cuts of red meat.

The relationship between a high consumption of fish and a very low heart disease rate was first observed in a 20-year study of Eskimos in Greenland. They ate large quantities of fish, these people were most likely not eating fatty, high-calorie, cholesterol-laden foods like beef and pork. However, that was not the total explanation.

Since that time, it has been discovered that fish is rich in special polyunsaturated oils that may help prevent heart attacks. These oils are called omega-3 fatty acids, EPA, and DHA. They are not found in vegetable oils, land animals, or dairy products.

All fish, including shell fish, contain these fatty acids and the oilier and fatter the fish, the more acids they contain. Salmon and mackerel contain the most. Several studies have shown that these fatty acids reduce the possibility of blood clotting, thus decreasing the likelihood of heart attacks caused from a restricted blood flow to the heart.

Furthermore, omega-3 fatty acids seem to reduce blood levels of cholesterol and fatty triglycerides — both of which cause heart disease.

There is as much EPA in two teaspoons of cod liver oil as there are in three ounces of salmon. But taking large doses of such supplement is not recommended.

Research in this area is still new, and taking extreme measures could cause problems. A high intake of cod liver oil, for example, could result in toxic level of vitamin A and D.

Although researchers have begun to consider the possibility that a diet enriched with EPA might guard people against heart attacks, it is premature to advocate adding large amounts of EPA-rich fish to the diets of either healthy people or heart patients. However, people concerned about diet and heart disease can eat fish two or three times a week with probable benefits.

Researchers concluded that even low habitual intake of fish, equivalent to one or two fish dishes a week, may be of value in the prevention of coronary heart disease.

Even if you have not used fish very often as a quality protein food, now is as good a time as any to begin to introduce it into a weekly food plan.

Here are some guidelines that may be helpful as you discover the wonders of fish in your taste buds and health.

- When buying fresh fish, select fish that have bright, clear eyes. Stale fish will have clouded, sunken eyes, a strong odor and darkened gills. Fresh fish have a mild, clean smell and bright red or pink gills. Elastic-flesh that springs back when touched, and shiny bright skin also indicates freshness.

- Start your introduction to fish with the fillet-types or steaks. Halibut, swordfish steaks, perch, orange roughy, are all good choices as they are mild selections, boneless, and can be prepared in many different ways.

- The most common error in cooking fish is over cooking. This results in a dry, tough fish. Fish should be cooked on a hot grill or baked in an oven until the flesh is opaque and flakey. Allow about 10 minutes cooking time per one-inch thickness of fish. For your health, try a "fish-dish" this week. You will be glad you did!

'Revenge of the Nerds II': same gags, different film

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

O.K. We all remember back to 1984 when a few lovable nerds from Lambda Lambda Lambda fraternity struck a major blow for have-nots around the world by one-upping the beautiful people at Adams College in "Revenge of the Nerds."

Well, it seems the lesson was short-lived. Now the nerds are back; this time at a fraternity convention in Fort Lauderdale. And they're up against a whole city whose one consuming passion is to eliminate nerds from the face of the earth. What this scenario sets up, predictably enough, is a situation exactly like the one in the first film. Indeed, "Revenge of the Nerds II: Nerds in Paradise" is a classic example of an all-too-familiar malady in this age of multiple sequels: same gags, different film.

Remember the bit about setting the cruise control at 35-miles-per-hour on the freeway? It's here. Remember the sight gag with the pocket pencil case? The relentless nerd laughing? The clothes that don't match? It's all here again.

But this time it's not funny. Only redundant. The nerds arrive in Florida to find their hotel room has been given to another fraternity and their spot at the convention is nothing but a cleared space in the corner of the hall. Everybody has it in for them. This means, of course, that our heroes will have to face more than a few obstacles en route to issuing a due comeuppance. Most of the old cast is back in their roles, including Robert Carradine as the leader of this pack of poor souls. Interestingly, Anthony Edwards, who in the first film had a part equal to Carradine, is seen only briefly in this film. Supposedly suffering back at home with a broken leg, his presence is nothing more than a cameo appearance. Perhaps his yearn for revenge is not as strong as his friends'.

Whatever the case, it seems apparent that he had the sense to distance himself from this movie. Viewers would do well to

'The Squeeze' has a good cast, disjointed story

By Marlan Trainor
Special Writer

The original title for this chaotic bit of nonsense, "The Squeeze," was "The Skiptracer." It's not likely that title would have made this film, which aspires to be a comedy-suspense entertainment, into a box office success.

It's too bad, because it boasts a good cast. Michael Keaton as Harry Berg, the deadbeat underground artist, tries hard to be cute and attractive. Rae Dawn Chong as Rachel Dobs, the bill collector, struggles to appear enthusiastic. Meat Loaf as Titus, a ing a bad hand, jockeys for time by throwing out some bad jokes. The goons are not amused. Pushed to the wall, Harry throws a set of car keys on the table, points to a car parked outside and plays his hand. He loses.

His situation really gets perilous when the real owner of the car comes out of a nearby store and drives off. What follows is the first of several run-for-your-life sprints that Harry makes with Meat Loaf close on his heels before the film ends. Amendment: Some of them are swim-for-your-life chases.

Harry's next problem is a legal one. His ex-wife wants her back alimony. She hires skiptracer Rachel to hunt him down. Harry likes what he sees when the attractive Rachel comes to his door, but not enough to get close enough for her to slap a summons on him.

The two meet again under different circumstances when Harry's seductive ex-wife cajoles him into retrieving a mysterious box from her apartment. When he arrives there he finds the package. He also finds a cat playing with a severed thumb and a dead body missing a thumb.

There's much more. Harry and Rachel's relationship changes from hunted and hunter to collaborators trying to retrieve the package and also to find out what it contains that is so valuable.

Keaton's background as a stand-up comedian serves him well as Harry, the quick-witted loser. He has the makings of a good actor and deserves better than a film, that for some reason, was apparently held back for a while. In one shot of "The Squeeze," a first-run theater marquee with "Running Scared" from last summer is seen. The bonanza jokes he tells were first heard in "Tin Men."

gargantuan half-witted hit man, lumbers along doing what he does best, and John Davidson dances and prances in a down-to-the-wire segment showing him as a hyperkinetic host of a Lotto Raffle. The problem is the whole is just too disjointed to add up to anything.

Viewers are introduced to Harry as he sits playing poker in a third-rate bar with a couple of no-nonsense tough guys who collect their winnings in money or mayhem. Harry, who is obviously out of money and hold-

Rae Dawn Chong and Michael Keaton star in "The Squeeze," a comedy about murder and a multi-million dollar scam.

Bonstelle Theatre getting another face lift

The Bonstelle Theatre, Wayne State University's historic playhouse at 3424 Woodward, is currently getting a face-lifting. This will be the third time the facade of the building has been altered.

Originally the Temple Beth El, this building was designed by renowned Detroit architect Albert Kahn and construction was completed in 1902. At that time, prior to the widening of Woodward Avenue, the building was set well back from the street and recalled the domed and porticoed Pantheon in Rome.

In 1924 the building was purchased by the Bonstelle Playhouse, under the direction of actress-manager Jessie Bonstelle, and redesigned as a theater by C. Howard Crane, designer of the New York Theatre Guild Playhouse. Although the interior had to be completely rebuilt, the exterior remained much the same, but was altered by the addition of an entrance pavilion which reached to the street. This, of course, had to go when Woodward was widened in 1932.

In 1933 the Depression forced the Bonstelle to close, and the next occupant of the building was the Mayfair, a motion picture theater. The Mayfair quickly made the second and most drastic exterior change. A marquee was installed and the original facade was completely covered with a new facade that totally disguised the original Kahn design.

In 1951, the Wayne State University Theatre took over the building and later restored the Bonstelle name. Internal improvements have been made but, until now, the university has done no external renovation beyond painting and maintenance.

Now the external surface of the Mayfair facade is being removed and the surface refinished. The marquee is being removed and replaced with a modern canopy similar to that of Orchestra Hall. New doors and display windows will complete the renewal.

Other improvements, to be completed before the 1987-88 season opens with "The Music Man" in October, include repainting the interior and installation of a new $100,000 light control system.

The Bonstelle project is the most recent of several renovations along Woodward Avenue, including the Red Cross parking lot next to the theater and available to Bonstelle patrons, the Orchestra Hall renovation, and the Whitney mansion, which has been remodeled into an elegant restaurant.

The dream is still to completely restore the original Albert Kahn facade of the Bonstelle, but this will have to wait until some future time.

Hot times at Greenfield Village

Red suspenders and Dalmatian spots are the proper attire at the Greenfield Village Fire Engine Muster Saturday and Sunday, July 25 and 26.

The muster is a national meet of antique firefighting apparatus and enthusiasts. Every kind of fire engine imaginable, from hand-pulled rigs to horse-drawn pumpers to the gleaming chrome-clad engines of the 1950s, is on display and in competition. Actual firefighting skills will be put to the test in hose cart races, driving contests, first-water events and a response contest - where visitors can time participants as they answer simulated fire calls.

Surrounding this red-hot event are a variety of family activities that recall the fun of community picnics once organized by small-town fire departments. Bucket brigades, tug-of-wars and sack races will keep the excitement level high. Visitors can also try on the helmets, boots and coats worn by firefighters of the past.

The Greenfield Village Dancers will be on hand to dance to the tunes of the 1890s provided by the Detroit Brass Society.

The Fire Engine Muster, like all special events, requires no extra charge beyond regular admission.

The Missing LINC
Linking individuals to Needs in the Community

Linking individuals to Needs in the Community is a non-profit organization whose purpose is to coordinate needs with resources. This is accomplished by placing goods no longer needed by individuals and businesses into the hands of Metropolitan Detroit charitable agencies. Operating since 1971, LINC is proud of the accomplishments it has made and strives to increase its resource base. If you have recyclable items, no longer of use to you, Operation LINC knows who can and will use them. Please call LINC at 882-6100 with your donation. KEEP IT MOVING!

DETROIT AMERICAN INDIAN HEALTH CENTER is seeking office equipment and furniture; VCR; STACKING CHAIRS, conference table, BOOKCASES, TV and filing cabinets. This would greatly enhance their office and counseling center where they provide assistance in dental and medical services, substance abuse.

ARTS & CRAFT ITEMS, Board GAMES, and outdoor PLAY EQUIPMENT sought by UNITED SISTERS OF CHARITY. These and more items would be used in their summer program for ages four to twelve and in the latch key program during school year. Any EDUCATIONAL MATERIALS such as story books, tapes, records and materials for math and reading can also be put to good use here.

CYSTIC FIBROSIS FOUNDATION is desperately in need of a "heavy work load" COPIER. Operating budgets are cut and most funds generated go to research in finding a cure. An ELECTRIC TYPEWRITER and inexpensive office space in being sought.

CEILING FANS, large wall MIRRORS (4x6) and latex flat wall PAINT would be put to good use at the PARADIGM DANCE THEATRE where teaching the arts of dance and performances are held regularly.

PEOPLE IN FAITH UNITED, a housing cooperative, is searching for any items to update homes for their Beautification Project. PANELING, HOT WATER TANKS AND LUMBER are especially important to the program's success.

BASEBALL BATS, SOFTBALLS, GLOVES, CROQUET SETS, WATER TOYS, BOARD GAMES for all ages and CRAFT SUPPLIES desperately sought by CHILDREN'S HOME OF DETROIT. CURTAIN for a theatre stage would also be greatly appreciated.

Go ahead sell your own home, you riverboat gambler, you.

You might get lucky and save a buck or two. A lot of folks have tried to sell their own homes and succeeded. A lot more have just tried.

Most people realize that selling your own home can be a costly, time-consuming, even risky affair. And unless you're just naturally lucky, you need the help of a professional Realtor. He can save you a lot of time and headaches. For a lot of reasons.

If you're thinking about selling your own home, maybe you should consider some of them.

What's your price? The first thing a Realtor can do for you is recommend a fair and reasonable asking price.

Do it yourself and you will probably ask too much or too little. Either way, you lose.

And don't be fooled by the belief you know pretty well what your home is worth. Market demand, seasonality of sales, location and many other variables often alter your home's value.

A skilled Realtor knows all about these things. Most important, he knows people.

Don't Talk To Strangers. If you love talking to strange people at strange hours, by all means sell your own home yourself. That "For Sale by Owner" sign in your front yard means you're fair game for everyone — even those passerby who "Just kinda wanted to see what your place looked like."

That sign may not get all the prospects you want, either. You may have to advertise. And that means phone calls all day long.

A Realtor can solve these problems. First of all, he will screen the prospects. He'll know their needs, desires and financial situation. And he'll know who is seriously looking for a new home and who is just looking.

That Beautiful Art. Okay, tiger. You're selling your own home. You know the needs and desires of your prospective buyers. And you know what to say, how to present your home to convince them. Right?

Wrong.

Realtors are trained in the art of salesmanship. (And believe us, it is an art.) His study of sales techniques have shown him how to get the indecisive buyer to make up his mind; how to close the sale. In fact, he's gone to school to find out.

After all, selling is what it's all about.

Formal Negotiations. What happens when a prospective buyer makes you an offer — one that's well below your asking price?

You're going to argue. And that's the worst thing you could do.

As a principal, you'll discover it's pretty hard to bargain with a buyer — to negotiate about such things as price, terms and possessions. Misunderstandings crop up. And those small disagreements can spoil a sale.

When a Realtor helps sell your home, he takes on the difficult task of negotiation. He's sort of a go-between and advisor. And he's objective. He'll tell you when the buyer is right. And he'll tell you when to stick to your guns.

He's usually a heck of a nice guy, too. He knows how to smooth over, or completely avoid, those sale-killing misunderstandings.

How To Shop For Money. Many prospective buyers don't know much about financing — how or where to get a mortgage.

Sell your home yourself, and there's not much you can do to help him.

A Realtor knows just about all there is to know about financing. He works very closely with all kinds of financial institutions. He knows their methods and requirements.

Very simply, he can help your buyer find the money he needs to buy your house.

Red Tape. Selling a house involves many details. Paperwork, title searches, finance arrangements. There are a hundred little things to be done.

Unless you have a mind like a computer, you'll need a Realtor to get everything done and keep it straight. He and your attorney will guide you through the tangle of details as painlessly and safely as possible.

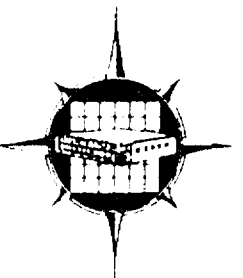

Be Ever So Humble. Crowded closets may make a home look lived in, but it doesn't do much for the prospective buyer. Neither does a dripping faucet, unkept lawn or loose doorknobs.

There are dozens of little things you can do to make your home saleable. A Realtor can show them to you. (Some of them would never have occurred to you.)

Showmanship is all it's cracked up to be.

In Conclusion. You may be wondering why THE PHILIP F. GRECO TITLE COMPANY cares about how you sell your home. After all, we're in the business of insuring titles to real estate, not selling it. It's just that after serving titles for many years, WE'VE COME TO KNOW HOW IMPORTANT REALTORS ARE AND HOW MUCH THEY CAN HELP YOU.

We wanted you to know, too.

Woods-Shores wins All-Star tournament

A two-game Babe Ruth Minor League All-Star Tournament was won by the Woods-Shores ball club. They defeated the team from Farms-City-Park.

The first game was played at Elworthy Field on Saturday, July 11 and the Farms-City-Park team took that contest 3-2 with some seventh inning heroics. Mark Bonnani, who took over for Alex Turner in the sixth inning, recorded the victory by striking out three. Turner started for the Farms-City-Park squad and pitched five scoreless innings and struck out 11.

For the Woods-Shores team, Theodore Loumanis started and went on to strike out 10 batters in four innings. Matt Burchart, who took over for Loumanis in the fifth, struck out three in two innings. Eric D'Hondt tossed the final inning, fanning two.

For Woods-Shores, D'Hondt, Burchart, and Tim Sacka had singles. Alex Turner and Darren Havern both singled for Farms-City-Park.

The second and deciding game of the tourney saw the Woods-Shores team grab a 9-1 win which gave them the tourney win. Despite splitting games with Farms-City-Park, Woods-Shores won the tourney based on overall run production.

D'Hondt took the slab at Ghesquire Park on July 12 for the Shores-Woods team and went on to record the win and 10 strike outs.

For Farms-City-Park, Mark Bonnani was the starting pitcher and struck out six in three and one-third innings. Ed Kinnaird and Alex Turner were relief pitchers and they combined for three strike outs.

For Woods-Shores, Jason Gaca had a two-bagger while Dave Iacobell punched two singles. Brian Michalak, Mark Heaphy, Loumanis, and Burchart also added singles for the Woods-Shores team.

Peter Bourke and Marc Palombo each added singles to the Farms-City-Park offense.

The stolen-base leaders for the tournament were Tim Sacka (5) of Woods-Shores, and Marc Palombo had three for Farms-City-Park.

The Woods-Shores All-Star Team consisted of: Dave Iacobell and Steve Lelli of the Rangers; Matt Burchart, Jason Gaca, Mark Heaphy, Kevin Raymond, and Tim Sacka of the White Sox; Eric D'Hondt, Dave Litchfield, Theodore Loumanis, Brian Michalak, and Mike Shehab of the Orioles. The team was managed by Roy T. Shehab and was coached by Don Gaca and Les Roddis.

The Farms-City-Park All-Stars were: John Bednarchik, Mike Bell, Marc Palombo, Jason Steffes, and Dan Wimsatt of the Angels; Keith Baer, Matt DeBets, Darren Havern, Ed Kinnaird, and Tim Nolan of the Athletics; Mark Bonnani, Peter Bourke, Dan Grundman, Alex Turner, and Fred Turner of the Indians. The manager was Don Grundman and Hal Bate.

WE'LL BET 36,000 MILES IT WON'T BREAK.

Acura automobiles are so reliable that we warranty them against defective material and assembly for three years or 36,000 miles. If something should fail during that time, we'll fix it for free. And we're determined to fix it right. The first time. What's more, Acura warranties* cover everything. But the tires. And those are covered by the tire manufacturer. Headlights. Light bulbs. Fuses. All the little things. And, of course, the big things too. The engine. Drive train. Suspension. The brakes. And more. All covered.

Even the sheet metal is warranted against rust-through for 36 months. Unlimited miles. So, if you don't like gambling on a new car, play it safe. Put your money on an Acura. And win big.

"We create Harden,

What separates Harden from most furniture is the extraordinary amount of hand work that goes into each piece. Granted, modern manufacturing techniques are used in some operations, but only when they result in a product that is of the same or superior quality as totally hand-made custom furniture. Since 1865, Harden has found that it still takes the hands of the skilled craftsman to produce furniture that will truly be handed down from generation to generation.

Day care homes in conflict with local ordinances

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

This is a story about a conflict between different levels of government, between different visions of what a neighborhood ought to be — and what happens to the folks who get caught in the middle.

The main characters are a mother who wanted to earn money while staying at home with her children, the working moms and dads who leave their children with her during the day, and a city that wants to provide the kind of neighborhood its residents want: a neighborhood without businesses in it.

Sheila Temkow of Grosse Pointe Woods has operated a state-licensed family day care home in her house for 10 years. Her license, conferred by the state Department of Social Services, allows her to take care of a maximum of seven children. Most of the time, she has about four kids, with others who come and go part time. All of her young charges are from Grosse Pointe.

The city of Grosse Pointe Woods has a rule against operating a business in a residential area. The rule was made to protect neighbors from the noise and traffic congestion usually caused by a business. Like most city ordinances, it gets enforced only when someone complains, because, as a Shores ordinance enforcer pointed out, unless you hang out a neon sign, who's going to know you have a business?

"We're not a day care center," says Richard Temkow. "The kids eat in our kitchen and nap in our beds. It's not an institution; it's a home."

The state has a great deal of say in deciding whether you may have a license to take care of kids. They want to make sure you have enough space and the right kind of equipment and no dangerous things in your house. They try to be sure you don't have a criminal record. But they have no say at all if a city makes an ordinance against day care homes.

"The state can't intervene with the city," said the DSS' Carol Liechty. "There's nothing we can do."

Liechty said that in most cities, a would-be day care operator can take care of the problem by obtaining a variance through an appeal to the local board of zoning appeals. That process is under way in the Woods case.

But the question could be larger than that. The need for reliable day care located close to home is well documented. Many parents want to leave their children nearby in a home atmosphere similar to their own.

But many city ordinances specifically prohibit it. Ordinances in all five Pointes forbid engaging in any home occupation — although ordinance enforcers agree that many home workers slip by. In fact, by DSS count, there are 12 licensed day care homes in the five Pointes.

"If I have a dozen homes licensed, there are probably another two dozen operating without a license," said William Puumala of the DSS.

"It's whatever you're getting away with," admitted Dennis Foran, Grosse Pointe treasurer-assessor. "The only thing you're actually allowed to do is have an office in your home" — the kind you bring work home to, not the kind that generates client visits and cars.

There are plenty of people who teach a few music lessons or babysit for a few kids or paint in a home studio. Nobody stops them, but technically, Foran says, they're in violation of the ordinance. The Woods isn't the only local city where day care is an issue. In Grosse Pointe Park, the building department has ordered a family day care home to stop operating.

"We sent them a letter advising them that it is considered a business and isn't allowed by the ordinance," said Assessor James Ellison. "Of course, they always have the right of appeal, but the only ground for granting a variance is hardship." Ellison said the city has never granted a variance for a day care home.

Although Ellison said the Park would take the operators to court if they fail to cooperate, not all local cities play the same

Compute-A-Care

It works like alarm

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

Imagine being an invalid, falling over and bumping your head. You are unable to call out, perhaps no one will check on you for hours and you can't answer the phone.

That last part, not being able to answer the phone, was a blessing for a 70-year-old Farms resident Sunday who is part of the Grosse Pointe Woods Compute-A-Care system.

The system is a resident safety program initiated last year by the city. It uses a personal computer to make daily telephone calls to eligible seniors at no cost and to send help if needed.

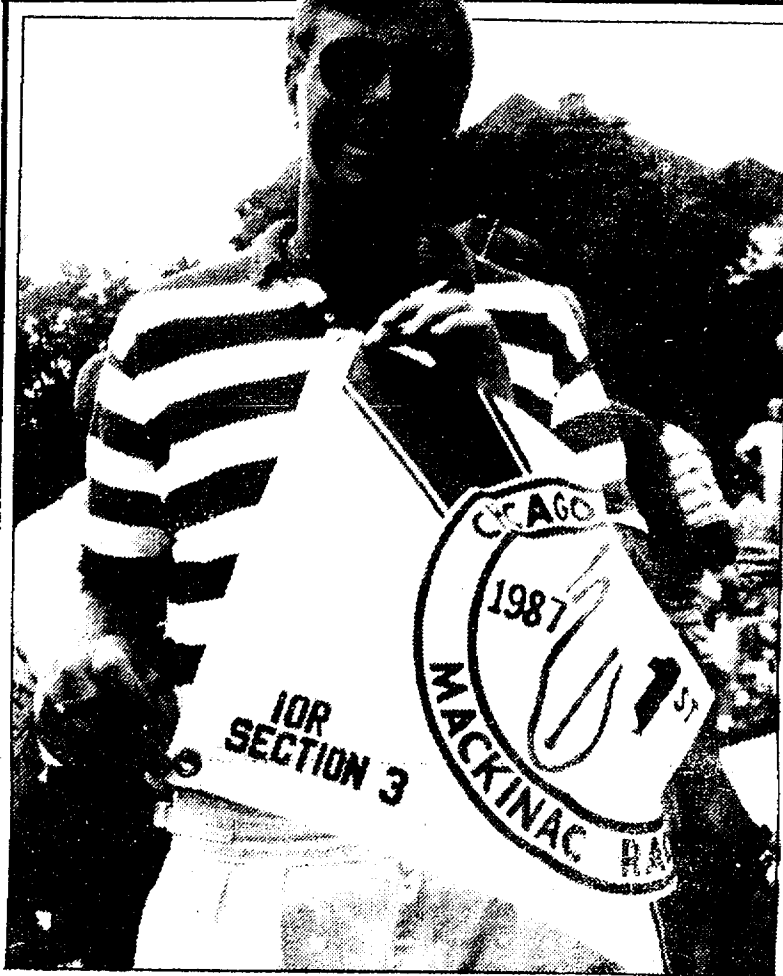

Calls are made by the computer at a pre-arranged time. If no one answers, a car is dispatched to check on the resident.

In this case, the man had fallen about one hour before the call came. If he had been out or was simply indisposed, the computer is designed to call back. It did, there was no answer, and the patrol car was dispatched.

The man was taken to St. John Hospital where he was treated and released.

"This is the second time it has worked for us," Public Safety Director Jack Patterson said. "One time the computer had broken down, and the dispatchers were physically making the

Farms gets proposal to subdivide estate on Lakeshore

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

A proposal submitted to the city of Grosse Pointe Farms by Higbie Maxon Real Estate calls for the subdivision of the Harley G. Higbie estate, an 8.5-acre parcel with a mansion, located at Moran and Lakeshore, one of the highest locations in the Grosse Pointes.

Director of Public Works John Defoe said the proposal was submitted July 13, but the city has not approved the plan.

"This is just something we have received," Defoe said. "As far as we are concerned, the moratorium (on new housing developments) is still on."

Defoe's reference was to a moratorium the city issued on new housing developments early this year. Officials felt the impact of the new subdivisions in the area and potential new subdivision of estate land should be studied.

On July 20 the council heard a report from Brandon Rogers, of Brandon Rogers and Associates, the planning firm hired to study the current ordinances governing prime property between Grosse Pointe Boulevard and Lakeshore from Fisher Road to the border with Grosse Pointe Shores.

Rogers proposed several changes in the existing ordinance, notably the creation of a new zoning category for almost the entire area, which would require, among other things, a substantial increase in the minimum lot size for new housing developments, from 11,000 to 15,000 square feet.

Also at that meeting, the Grosse Pointe Historical Society submitted a proposed historic preservation ordinance, which, if approved, would prevent homes that have a historical designation from being demolished to make way for a subdivision. The matter was turned over to the Farms Mayor's Advisory Planning Committee for further study.

Farms pilot goes down in Lake Erie

Body not recovered

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

"If she had to die, she wanted to be buckled in the left seat in the cockpit of an airplane," a saddened Richard T. Allor said of his daughter.

Baseball fans at Tiger Stadium oohed and ahhed during the late innings Monday, July 21, as the sky filled with bright flashes of lightning. Weather forecasters were working overtime as several tornado sightings were reported in the metropolitan area, and once again driving rain flooded streets in the Grosse Pointes.

Pamela Allor, 24, was flying well south of her intended flight path from Montreal to City Airport in a twin-engine Cessna 310, owned by Jetstream Inc., a Detroit air freight firm. She was flying alone, returning with an empty plane after having dropped off a load of automobile parts.

Allor, a Grosse Pointe Farms resident, told the Cleveland Control Center that she was running into heavy weather and asked for assistance in maneuvering her plane south around a thunderstorm. Cleveland was monitoring her on radar. She called in around 10 p.m., saying she had lost control of the aircraft. Within seconds, radar detected a drop in altitude from 5,000 to 3,100 feet. She then reported again. This time she radioed she had regained control of the plane, was fine and would be able to make it home. At about 10:35 p.m. at around 3,000 feet, the plane disappeared from radar about 10 miles southeast of Wheatley, Ontario.

Allor had her pilot's license before she graduated from high school at Calvary Christian School in Roseville. She had taken classes at City Airport, and after completing further training at Northwestern Michigan College in Traverse City and landing several pilot jobs at the airport, she was an instructor for a while.

"She had her first plane ride at 10," Richard Allor said. "It was all over after that. She studied her fanny off. She loved flying and that is all she ever wanted to do."

"I used to take her out to the golf club and try and get her to learn, but her mind was in the sky."

Canadian Coast Guard rescuers were sent out early Tuesday morning, and found small portions of the plane and reportedly her log book, which showed almost 3,000 hours of flying time. Divers performed a grid search in extremely cold, 70-foot waters of Lake Erie near where the debris was located near Point Pelee, Ontario, but did not turn up the fuselage of the aircraft.

The case was turned over to the Ontario Provincial Police. More diving was done, but the search was called off Thursday, July 23.

Superintendent H.C. Murray of District No. 1 Provincial Police said Allor has officially been listed as a missing person. He said that because of the altitude of the aircraft when it disappeared from radar, it is difficult to pinpoint the area where the plane crashed. Even though debris was located near Point Pelee, it may have been washed up there after the plane hit the water.

Judy Ray, a corporate secretary with Jetstream, said that the weather is being blamed for the crash.

"She was trying to work her way out of the storm and around the weather," Ray said of Allor's flight path. "The speculation is that high winds or perhaps a funnel cloud caused her to crash. It could have been a lightning strike. There are so many possibilities we may never know for sure."

Ray said Allor had worked for Jetstream for almost seven months, but that she had been around the Detroit airport for years. She said she was a competent pilot and that she loved to fly.

"We had just been out Friday night," Ray said. "She was a very happy person. Very thrilled with flying and thrilled with life."

Allor's father said that his daughter had begun training to fly corporate jets, and that about two months ago, she had begun flying as co-pilot in jet aircraft.

"Her (aspiration) was to be a commercial airline pilot," Richard Allor said. "She thought about joining the Air Force, but they wanted to take too long. She wanted to be a flier. That's all she ever wanted to do."

A memorial service was held at Grosse Pointe United Church Sunday, July 26.

Pointer of Interest

Nickie McWhirter

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

Scoop: Nickie McWhirter is looking for a black dress to wear to her son Frick's wedding in October. Yep. Black.

And yes, she likes her daughter-in-law to be very much. And no, she doesn't want to look like she's attending a funeral.

"It's going to be hard to find a black dress that won't make me look like I'm in mourning or like I'm the town naughty lady," she said. "The bride will be wearing traditional ivory satin. The men will be wearing black dinner clothes, which is nice. The bridesmaids will be wearing black cocktail dresses with shiny gold bows or something."

McWhirter shook her head and laughed. "This is a trend in California. They're usually about three years ahead of us. But I firmly believe that it's her wedding and every bride deserves to have a wedding that's exactly what she wants."

McWhirter, Detroit Free Press columnist, has been writing her thoughts on everything from working mothers — to suicide — to the flings and foibles of her twin sons, Frick and Frack, and her daughter, the Princess Suzanne — to abortion — to the stresses of shopping for a mother-of-the-bride dress — to the JOA — to male chauvinism to — . . . turtles — since February 1977. She said she likes being able to voice her opinions, she likes the artistic freedom the column affords, and she especially likes getting feedback from her readers. "When it doesn't present a challenge any more, I'll move on. I don't quite have it hacked yet."

McWhirter did not start out to be a journalist, nor was she trained for it. She grew up in
