Kids are faced with a multitude of choices every day. Should they go out after school and not do their homework? Should they go to a party where there might be beer? But some of the choices are not so difficult.

'Should I have broccoli and carrot sticks for lunch, or should I have a Twinkie?"

If students would select the Twinkie at home, there is every chance they'll pick a Twinkie at school.

Recently, school board member Jon Gandelot expressed concern over certain foods that are available to students in the district's middle and high schools. Students can buy chips, packaged desserts, such as Ho-Hos or Twinkies, and other assorted sweets and snacks in the school cafeterias, which Gandelot feels would be better left out of sight, and eventually, out of mind. Anne Potteiger, cafeteria coordinator, is proud of the operation. Her office near the North kitchens, which provide hot lunches to the elementary and middle schools, is loaded with a wealth of information about ordering, current hot lunch requests and personnel. North cafeteria workers stop a reporter to tell him to try one of the various entrees or fresh baked goods. It's like a family rather than a team of institutional personnel.

Hot lunches for elementary students must be provided under state law. Elementary students are not required to take the lunch, but some students get the meals at reduced prices due to family income levels, and usually take it.

Students begin to make their own choices for lunch in the middle school. Parents often provide bag lunches for students who can supplement their fare with offerings in the school cafeteria. Milk and soft

Farms judge says court understaffed

By Nancy Parmenter Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe Farms council allocated an additional $3,000 for a visiting judge at the municipal court a few weeks ago, but it has not ended the dissension over the court.

Judge Peter O'Rourke said the extra 10 visits (at $300 a day) by visiting Judge Frank Jeanette will help significantly with the court's backlog, but won't address the long-term staffing prob-

"It's a Band-aid here and a Band-aid there, instead of adjusting to the needs of the court," he said.

O'Rourke said the caseload of the Farms court has increased because there are more civil cases, more second- and third-offenders in drunk driving cases who tend to demand a jury trial - and more traffic tickets stemming from the hiring of two additional police officers for a speeding crackdown.

"The other end of the judicial system is the court," he said. We need additional staffing to handle these things."

The Farms municipal court has traditionally met two Wednesdays a month. Now O'-Rourke says he is working at least five days a month in addition to those Wednesdays, and Jeanette is sitting the other two Wednesdays. But O'Rourke says the city refuses to recognize the problem.

"They tend to feel that I have no complaint because I knew what the court was like and I still ran for judge," he said. "The reason I ran for the job is that I have a great deal of respect for the judicial system and I was dissatisfied. I wanted to go in there and effect some changes." O'Rourke served as Farms prosecutor before he ran for judge.

O'Rourke did succeed in getting more space for his staff, but he said the new office is not really adequate either. The new addition to the city hall may contain more space for the court, but O'Rourke said he has not seen any plans.

O'Rourke said the council has become so fed up with his complaining about the court's inadequacies that it cancelled his proposed raise. He currently earns $7,000 a year.

City officials don't have much to say about the court. A committee has been appointed to deal with the problems, but has See JUDGE, page 4A

Applying for a teaching job, Sillars landed one at Mott Community College in Flint in the mid-1960s.

Concern over environmental issues was prominent during that time, and Sillars became very involved.

"As a scientist, I was very concerned with air and water pollution," Sillars said. "Academic issues came up, so I had a natural interest."

He became involved with Flint's Air Pollution Appeal board, which was similar to a zoning appeals board, but for air quality. He was chairman for one year during the early '70s.

"Meteorology is a large part of air quality and the physics of the atmosphere," he said. So in 1968 and again in 1971, Sillars began to commute to the University of Michigan to take four semesters in meteorology. He completed four semesters, but didn't quite finish all the course work neces-

Park, union reach accord

By Margie Reins Smith Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Park public safety officers reached a contract agreement with the city after more than a year of negotiations. The three-year contract was settled in part by arbitration and labor attorney for the city. "Negotiations were protracted because of the complications brought about by the change to public safety," said Walsh. "Much of what we were negotiating was virgin territory, bewill be retroactive to July 1.

1986, according to James Walsh, cause we had no experience with public safety. The agreement included a wage increase of roughly 5 to 5 1/2 percent for former police officers and an average of 5 12 percent for former firelighters for the first year. The second year wage increase is about 3 13 per cent. The third year is approximately 3 percent, according to Dale Krajniak, city compliables. The designation of a 12 hour workday represents roughly a 5 percent increase in the work week, according to Walsh, Police had been working eight hour days and firefighters had been working 24-hour days. The new contract specifies seven workdays every two weeks for all public safety officers. The health care issue was resolved by allowing officers to choose either a 10 percent contribution to the health care premium for continuation of traditional Blue Cross care or an option of going to an alternative plan at a lower price. A co-pay provision for prescription drugs was gained through arbitration. Public safety officers were given two personal leave days per year as a trade-off for the longer hours.

Pensions were enhanced from 2 percent per year to 2.25 per-

For the first time, the contract has specified the length of time (one year) an officer will be carried on the payroll if he is injured in the line of duty.

Another first is health care coverage for spouses and dependent children of officers killed in the line of duty.

The cost of living-allowance payment was increased by 25 percent, but with a cap of $200 every six months.

Officers trained as emergency medical technicians will receive a bonus of 3 percent of the wages of firefighters who are not cross trained.

"The negotiations took a long time." Walsh said, "but it didn't interfere with the smooth consolidation of the department. The credit goes to Public Safety Director Dick Caretti for this."

Confidential public safety bulletins will be included in Grosse Pointe Park council members' pre-meeting packets, beginning at the Oct. 12 meeting.

A motion by Councilman. James E. Robson Jr. passed unanimously at the Sept. 28 council meeting. said the information is confidential and is to aid councilmen in their law-making capacity.

The information will be a synopsis of the previous two weeks' criminal activity with dates, specific crimes, general locations and arrests. Names of suspects and specific addresses will be omitted for reasons of privacy.

Director of Public Safety Richard Caretti said the information is in the form of a newsletter and is compiled for Park police officers. As far as he knows, he said, "We're the only city that has a (newsletter) like this."

Previously, the council only had monthly statistics concerning crime in the Park.

Drug identification kit available for use

By Peter A. Salinas Staff Writer

Knowing what drug someone has ingested for whatever reason can mean saving a life, if that person has overdosed or become unconscious.

Sgt. James M. Smith, of the Park public safety department, has prepared a drug identification display case to help people learn about commonly abused drugs, both legal and illegal.

These types of kits were very popular during the late-1960s and '70s," Smith said. "Many departments have them, and we felt it was time to update ours and make it available as a resource tool."

The display case contains a variety of legal, illegal and prescription drugs. It also contains paraphernalia associated with the use of illegal drugs, such as crack cocaine, marijuana and "I went to the local hospitals and asked what kind of overdoses they were getting in the emergency rooms," Smith said. "I found that it wasn't always one specific drug, but was often anything found in the medicine cabinet.

With that information, Smith was able to secure prescriptions for many controlled drugs, such as Valium, codeine and percadan. All the prescription drugs in the display case are actual

"We have included a beer bottle, small liquor bottle and a wine cooler label in the kit," Smith said. "We find that alcohol is the most commonly abused drug in the Grosse Pointes, and we want to drive home the point that alcohol is a drug, and included it in the case.'

The case is portable so it can be used for parents, PTA groups, teachers, students and anyone who has a need to be able to identify drugs and related paraphernalia.

Smith said there is no one particular drug that is especially prevalent in the Pointes, nor is the drug problem extremely serious, but that knowlege of these things is a key to prevention.

Certain hallucinogenic drugs such as psilocybe or so-called magic mushrooms are on the rise. Smith said he finds this disconcerting, since the use of such drugs had dropped significantly from the mid-1970s. The mushrooms are included in the dis-often used for smoking crack cocaine, may bring the pipe to the Park department for identification. Smith said Park officials will discuss various alternatives with the parent, and may not have to approach the matter criminally. Park officials may provide referral information to the school district's substance abuse counselor. In any event, parents may feel more comfortable knowing exactly what kind of drug their child may be abus-ing, and what its effects are. Any resident interested in further information may contact Sgt. Smith at 822-7400.

Woods to ask for temporary halt to St. John Hospital's helicopter

By Nancy Parmenter

The Woods is going to court this week to ask for a temporary halt to helicopter flights carrying patients into St. John Hospital. Council members voted unanimously Oct. 5 to back up Raymond Street residents who have been complaining about the noise, dirt and potential safety problems.

City attorney George Catlin had held discussions with hospital officials during the last two weeks in an attempt to resolve the issue without a court injunction. He reported to the council that progress was being made, but council members were not satisfied.

What seemed to tip the balance was the discovery that the helicopter ambulance landings are not governed by the Federal Aviation Administration. David Silwester, the hospital official in charge of the flights, told the council that the hospital is not required to have a license or ask FAA approval of flight patterns.

Council members reacted strongly.

"That you don't need licensure or approval of flight plans, that you can just go ahead and fly right over our residents' houses, to me that's appalling," said Councilman Paul Beaupre.

Councilman Robert Novitke weighed in with the same opinion. "It's appalling that this could exist without anyone overseeing it," he said. "It's putting our residents in a life-threatening situation."

Raymond Street residents have been complaining since last winter about the problem which is actually two problems. The hospital helipad is located next to the building, on Detroit property, but within 100 feet of the houses at the end of Raymond. But the pad is small and too close to the building, so that wind conditions often call for landing farther out in the park. ing lot - in Grosse Pointe Woods and within 100 feet of the houses in the middle of the Ray. mond block. Residents at both locations have complained about helicopters flying low over their homes.

In the discussions between Catlin and Silwester, the hospital offered to alleviate the problem by moving the helipad and enlarging it from 20 feet by 20 feet to 60 feet by 60 feet. The flight plan would also be altered to bring the craft in over the shopping center at the corner of Mack and Moross.

But council, residents and hospital debated the merits of the plan for nearly an hour Monday. Landing alternatives were put forth, focusing on the hospital roof, but also considering the parking lot, the Moross median and the front yard of the hospi-Silwester told the council that St. John Hospital had already considered all the alternatives and rejected them for reasons of practicality, safety or cost. He said the hospital would rather consider giving up the ambulance service than giving up parking spaces in the lot.

"It's important to land in an area that can be reasonably sealed off for the safety of the public," Silwester said. "We don't want to put it in the middle of the parking lot. Given the critical parking problem, we would have to consider giving up the service."

He said the hospital only receives about four patients in a year, but that the service remains important because St. John Hospital offers certain types of care not available in every hospital. For example, he said, the coronary care unit provides early intervention in heart attacks.

"It's an essential service. You want, in today's modern medicine, to get the patient to a hospital that can intervene...and you really want everything to go like clockwork when the helicopter lands," he said. "Otherwise you lose the advantage of coming by helicopter in the first place.'

He said the hospital would be willing to place navigational lights on poles and wires in the area as an additional safety mea-

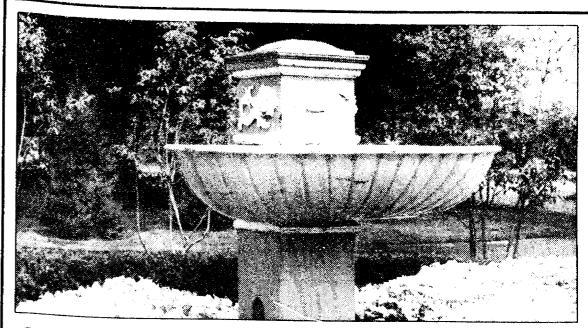

The council decided on a twopronged approach. Catlin is to go to court this week to ask that the flights be temporarily halted. The city will also file a formal complaint with the FAA in the expectation that the agency will order the hospital to prepare detailed plans of the landing area and flight patterns for agency approval.

City Administrator Chester Petersen was confident that that approach would work. "I can guarantee that if we make an official complaint, the FAA will take action," he said.

But council members wouldn't promise to be satisfied with FAA

"I'd like to see what the FAA has to say, but I'm not sure I'd agree with their findings," said Councilman Ted Bidigare, a former Vietnam pilot who flew small observation helicopters similar in size to the ambulance choppers. He said he agreed with resident Mark Rupersburg's description of the landing area as a "box canyon."

"I'm familiar with situations like that and I don't know if I would go in there," he said Tuesday. "It's dangerous and should be relocated.

Teacher's aides may be hired to compensate for large classes in elementary schools

By Peter A. Salinas Staff Writer

Though average classes in Grosse Pointe elementary schools remain just below 22, the administration is requesting the hiring of at least two and possibly as many five teacher's aides for several schools where classes have high enrollment.

Joseph Spagnoli, deputy superintendent, gave charts to the school board showing the need for the additional aides at the elementary level at Monday's meeting.

Full-time aides would be hired for a third-grade section at Ferry School, and an aide has already been hired at Defer School because of large class sizes. Defer already had the addition of a in the aide in its two kindergarten sections.

A fulltime aide may be necessary at Richard for large firstand second-grade sections. And but those were in the higher aides may also be needed for kindergarten sections at Poupard School and for first-grade sections at Mason.

Those additions would bring the number of additional fulltime aides to five. Currently, the district's budget allows for hiring three-and-one-half full-time aides. Spagnoli told the board that at this time the administration could hire them without board approval, but that the administration could make a recommendation to alter the budget to allow for the hiring of oneand-one-half additional teacher's

When class size reaches 25 in kindergarten, policy dictates the hiring of an aide to help out in class. Decisions on the higher grades are reached on a case-bycase basis.

Spagnoli noted that there are some large class enrollments in other classes at several schools, grades, and the situations there could be manageable.

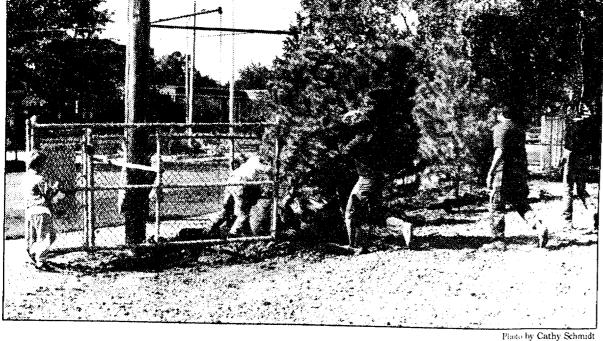

"Currently we are within the budget and are not requesting board action," Spagnoli said. "We may have to ask for more than the budget will handle, and we could need as many as 4.5 aides to handle all the situations."

Cafeteria

drinks are available as well.

Potteiger is quick to point out that the federal government has what is often called the Junk Food Law. This prohibits schools from selling items, such as gum and pop in the school cafeterias. Apparently, interest groups such as the soft drink lobby, regularly try to change the legislators' minds. Currently, schools can sell sugared soft drinks, such as Coke or Pepsi, in the school, but not in the cafeteria.

"What we sell in the schools is fortified soft drinks," Potteiger said. "They have vitamins or juice added to them and must be non-carbonated."

She said that two percent milk is all that is made available to elementary students, and chocolate milk isn't a choice for students until they are in middle school.

"People in this district are very health-conscious," Potteiger said. "There are no snacks in the elementary schools.'

Though many are health-conscious, the most popular items among those with a choice are the non-carbonated drinks, (pop probably would be if it were available) and french fries.

Last year the personnel department's wellness committee asked that a salad bar be made available in the cafeteria. The committee had organized a stopsmoking and weight watchers campaign, and figured if they were going to do this, the school could cooperate by providing a nutritious salad.

The salad bar was an instant hit - among teachers. Although the salad bar — comparable to any restaurant - is available to everyone, teachers are the biggest takers of the green leafy and other luncheon vegetables.

A piece of whole grain bread or muffin accompanies the $1.75 salad and for a little more you can enjoy a cup of soup with the meal.

"The salad bar is going just wonderfully," Potteiger said. "It seems that the females are odering it more often than men, and teachers are the biggest users of the salad bar."

The school system stopped using canned soups because many of them had a high salt content. All soups are now prepared in the cafeteria kitchens, and made with fresh ingredients.

Though salt is a concern, one of the higgest sellers is nacho chips and cheese. Salt City, but loved by both students and teachers.

The regular fare is also available. Yogurt, sandwiches, hamburgers, apples, oranges and anything you've ever seen in a school cafeteria.

High school students can also eat the lunches offered to elementary and middle school students. These lunches can include sandwiches, hot dogs, pizza, chicken pies. All come with bread, vegetable, and a dessert, usually a fruit or fruit-based des-

Business Director Christian Fenton said the school board has emphasized that the district operate its lunch programs on a break-even basis. Fenton said the cafeterias have been at a break-even point, and the intent is to keep it there.

Gandelot doesn't feel that operating a break-even cost basis necessarily means that junk food items, such as Twinkies or Ho-Hos, have to be served. Fenton doesn't either, and stressed that breaking even is a result of sound management practices, good personnel and providing quality service.

Kids have preferences that don't always match up with what is good for them. They have a 30-minute lunch period, and most of the juniors and seniors who have access to a car use it to get to a McDonald's, Hardees, or other fast food restaurant in the area. Some of the kids go home if it is close enough. Most of the students who eat in the high school cafeterias are freshman and sopho-

"It's up to the students to decide what they will eat," Potteiger said. "They can buy five bags of chips if they want and eat them. It's up to them."

Fenton said students are treated like adults when it

Dan Strader, a ninth-grader at North, munches on a bag of chips. His lunch last week consisted of the chips, a pack of HoHos and a grape non-carbonated soft drink. He said he didn't like what was on the menu, and settled for this. He would have rather had a burger or piece of pizza, but neither were available. He said he didn't consider what he ate nutritious.

comes to making lunch select for dessert."

"We are preparing them to go on to college, and no one there is going to tell them what to eat."

Potteiger said that having a one-ounce bag of chips with a sandwich and bowl of soup isn't bad at all. It's having just the chips and pop that isn't good.

Dan Stader, a ninth-grader, was dining on a bag of chips, some Ho-Hos and a non-carbonated grape drink when he was asked if he felt his lunch was nutritious.

"No," he said. "I didn't like what they had today and settled for this. I would usually get pizza or a hamburger.' Linda Stahl and Cristina Ber-muez, both freshmen, said they regularly share a salad and roll for lunch. Would they dine on Strader's fare?

"Wouldn't consider it," said. "Maybe a Ho-Ho, but high

Pointers hail the comeback of the Tigers

t was appropriate that the Tigers staged a team victory party at the home of Darrell Evans in the Pointes Sunday night after they had won the Eastern Division championship by sweeping the Toronto Blue Jays. It was appropriate because the Tigers had generated so much support from the Pointes and because several of the Tigers, in addition to Evans, live in the Pointes.

More important, however, the victory was another reflection of the comeback attitude of the entire metropolitan area and the state of Michigan. We can say that, regardless of what happens in the battle for the American League championship and in the World Series, if the Tigers should qualify for it, because of the team's comeback qualities in capturing the division title.

Opinion

Gov. James Blanchard in his re-election campaign last year termed Michigan the "comeback" state. Economically that is what it has become, even though Michigan Republicans may contend with some justification that more of the credit for the economic comeback belongs to the national GOP administration than to the state Democratic leadership.

Yet it is not really important whether the GOP national administration or the Democratic state administration was responsible. What is important is that local people believe the economic outlook still is bright despite some adverse reports about the future of the domestic auto industry.

At any rate, after the comeback of the Tigers, who swept the Blue Jays in their final three-game match-up and won four out of seven from Toronto in the "little world series," there should be no doubt that Detroit and Michigan deserve the "comeback" title, whether we're talking about baseball or the state's economy.

We should remember, too, that Evans himself was something of a "comeback kid." Evans hit 34 homers during the season in which he reached the age of 40 and thus became the first over-40 player to record 30 or more home runs in a season.

There was more comeback news, too, over the weekend, in the report of the continued drop in the state unemployment figures, even though they are still higher than the national average. That report adds additional evidence of the state's economic comeback.

CIRCULATION

Those of us who live in the suburbs are often reminded that we are all part of one major metropolitan area as well as residents of the same state. In times of trouble, that is sometimes an unpleasant reminder. In such times, some people have even talked of a "Grosse Pointe wall" to seal off the Pointes from the city of Detroit. Fortunately, such talk is not taken very seriously by the majority of Pointe residents who know we all live together in one area, in good times and bad.

So in good times, such as when the Tigers show us the way to come back from the brink of defeat, it is indeed a welcome reminder that we are part of one metropolitan community and we can thus join in celebrating the Tigers' victory. As the Tigers start their series with the Minnesota Twins to determine the American League championship, we say, "Thanks, Tigers, for showing the comeback spirit and reminding the rest of us that we need the same spirit in our own endeavors. And good luck the rest of the way."

Man needs culture, too

he Scriptures say that man should not live by bread alone, but it is a message that the city of Detroit does not hear consistently.

We refer to the fact that the city, by reducing its appropriation for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra from $850,000 to $250,000, contributed to the deficit that silenced the orchestra for its first scheduled fall concerts and led to cancellation of its New York tour.

True, Mayor Coleman Young has promised that the city would do what it could, other than contribute financially, to preserve one of its important cultural assets. But the mayor seems to be more concerned about the planned expansion and renovation of Orchestra Hall as part of the downtown development than he is about the retention of the orchestra.

Yet it is also true that the city has many other financial problems. At the moment the Detroit school board does not seem to know where it is going to find the money to pay the wage increases the teachers won in their recent strike. Many other Detroit city services are suffering from underfunding.

But the $600,000 reduction in the city's support for the orchestra contributed heavily to a projected deficit of more than $1 million from the 1986-87 season. That led the symphony management to recommend an 11-percent cut in symphony salaries, a proposal that was rejected by the musicians who then began a work stoppage.

The orchestra earns most of its income from its subscribers and patrons who contribute heavily to its support. It also got for the 1986-87 season $2.549 million from as much as the city does.

The symphony is a statewide cultural asset and we think it appropriate that the state helps support it, just as it helps finance cultural assets such as the Detroit Institute of Arts and other museums used and appreciated by all Michigan residents. Subscribers and patrons obviously will have to do more, but it is difficult to believe that the city cannot raise more than out of this year's budget.

the Michigan Council for the Arts and $220,000 from the National Endowment for the Arts. That means the state contributes substantially more than does the city and the National Endowment adds almost $250,000 to support an orchestra that is a Detroit as well as a state asset. It may be significant that the mayor calls the city's contribution a "donation" and insists that the city's own deficit situation makes it impossible to match its earlier financial support. "Donations" are always easier to cut than "appropriations" for established city departments that employ hundreds of employees and hundreds

Yet if Detroit hopes to improve its attractiveness as a national convention center and a shopping area for southeastern Michigan, it must improve its cultural assets as well as its downtown facilities. Surely the city administration ought to regard its support for the orchestra as a continuing obligation rather than a "donation," and make every effort to restore at least some of the funds that were trimmed

Yes to cameras To the Editor:

In regarding the article "Cameras in Courtrooms" on Sept. 10, with which I agree. I feel that Chief Justice Dorothy Comstock Riley is right — the public has the right to know the rights of witnesses and the participants in the proceedings.

The two problems, misleading reports and acting for the cameras, are not really a problem. How does the public know the news reports are not misleading. and there's no better way to find out if "acting" is a problem. I feel that most people, especially myself, would want to know the facts by listening to the proceedings live or taped.

Save a life

To the Editor:

I have enclosed a list of the clues to suicide to remind our community that suicides can be preventable.

It's the time of year when our children return to school. It's the time of year when teenagers want to look sharp and be accepted by their peers. It's the time of year when teachers want students to sit down and be quiet. It's the time of year when parents want good grades, respect, dedication and maturity from their children.

It's also the time of year to try to save a life.

Good news

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to an article entitled "Young Volunteers Help Build Eleven Houses for Needy' by Peter A. Salinas which appeared in the Sept. 9 edition of the Grosse Pointe News.

I have good news! I would like Mr. Wienshienk, Focus, you and your readers to know that there is a Habitat for Humanity project in Metro Detroit. We have received publicity in both the Detroit News and The Detroit Free Press as well as on television and radio. I am surprised that you have not heard of our existence.

We operate under the same principles as the Habitat for Humanity project in Boston as well as all other Habitat for Humanity projects around the world. Houses are sold to economically poor families living in substandard housing on a no-profit, no-interest loan basis. Almost all of the work is done by volunteers and with donated tools and materials. Habitat for Humanity -Metro Detroit is currently working on three houses on Detroit's east side. The families who will be buying these houses are volunteers themselves. They are required to put a minimum of 400 hours of work on their own house as well as on other Habitat houses.

I invite Mr. Wienshienk, Focus, you and your readers to learn more about this exciting work going on in their own backyard! If anyone would like more information or would like to volunteer, please call our office at 445. 8987. Come help a neighbor and help rebuild Detroit in the process.

A strange political campaign

s the 1988 presidential campaign continues to unfold, evidence mounts that it is one of the strangest on record. That conclusion applies especially to the Democratic Party, but some odd developments also have occurred among Republican contenders.

One of the quirks of the campaign is that people get more attention when they withdraw from the race than they do when they enter it. True, the 1988 campaign by Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado had been highly publicized because of his 1984 bid, but Sen. Joe Biden of Delaware had received little national publicity until the controversy arose over his practice of stealing quotes from other politicians without attribution.

Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts was singed by the Biden controversy when it was discovered that two of his aides had produced a video publicizing Biden's use, again without attribution in all cases, of an excerpt of a campaign speech by Neil Kinnock, British Labor Party leader. Dukakis promptly fired the two aides, one of whom formerly had worked for Hart, but it isn't yet clear how much, or whether, the public will blame Dukakis for what is regarded as a dirty political tactic.

When Rep. Pat Schroeder of Colorado finally decided against making the race, she got as much publicity about her withdrawal as she did about earlier public comments indicating she might run. Her tears as she pulled out then became a new source of controversy, both among feminists who claimed the action helped perpetuate the stereotype of women's weakness under stress and among macho media commentators who said, in effect, that's what you would expect from a woman.

The controversies over the withdrawals or the non-candidacies of some leading Democrats have created major problems for the party, however. Some Democrats have expressed the fear that the party's lack of a popular candidate, or at least one who can win a lot of support, will cost them any chance they had to win in 1988. Most Democrats had expected earlier that 1988 would become the year for their "turn."

The Democratic troubles have created new problems for the news media, too. In the past, they often have been criticized. especially by right-wing Republicans, for favoritism to Democratic candidates and issues. Now the media are catching it from the Democrats. They claim the media are not imposing the same tough standards on the Republican candidates as they are on the Democrats.

Specifically, the Democrats also object to the description of the early Democratic contenders as "Snow White and the seven dwarfs," even though that term no longer fits. In addition, Peter Hart, a Democratic pollster, says the news media are in danger of going too far by assuming the role not only of the old party bosses but of voters in the primaries as well.

Yet it seems to us that the media's standing with the political parties depends on whether it is a Democratic donkey or a Republican elephant that is being gored.

Twinkle, twinkle, little bat

Which would you rather have: a yard full of mosquitoes or some bats?

A compelling question, and one that my colleague required that I answer before he would let me concentrate on my morning mail.

Okay. Bats. That's an easy one for me. Except for Dracula, which terrified me when I read it at the age of 31, bats don't scare me.

There are people who will leave the house if a bat flies in. Others who will devote an evening to trying to trap the thing between two tennis racquets. I know someone who shot up the house trying to hit a bat on the wing.

Hint: A bat that has flown into your house is at least as anxious as you are that it get outside quickly. Open a door.

Within a couple of minutes, the bat will find it and fly out. They have sonar, remember?

All this discussion of bats was prompted by a brochure that came into the office from some bat conservation group. I didn't see the brochure, but would be willing to bet the group is based in England, where they get the warm fuzzies over things like bats and toads. And snakes.

But I don't knock it, because I've known a few. Familiarity breeds fondness. Sort of.

Since you're twisting my arm, I'll tell you the story about Bob and the bat, if you promise not to repeat it. It goes better with gestures and bat imitations, but this will have to do.

One summer afternoon, Bob was up on the balcony repairing shingles. He noticed a barely perceptible little fuzzy brown fungus on the red-brown cedar shake and flicked it off. The "fungus" flung itself on the floor, wings outspread in the classic Dracula pose (I admit), tiny fangs bared. Bob nearly flung himself off the balcony, he was so startled.

Nancy Parmenter

But the little bat didn't fly away. Hours later, it still hadn't flown, and we began to worry about it. I mean, it looked like a baby, and where was its mother?

Bob scooped it into a shoebox and we wondered how to feed it. But the man is a genius and he soon figured a way. Not wanting to come into close contact with our new little friend, he got a long piece of string, dipped it in milk, and dangled it into the shoebox.

The little guy was a quick learner. It sucked away on the string which only occasionally became entangled in its fangs.

The next day we called the Detroit Zoo, where the curator in charge of bats was highly skeptical. "What makes you think it's a baby?" he scoffed.

So we learned about bats. What we had was a small brown bat adult and the reason it couldn't fly is that it was either hurt or sick. The curator thought we should let it go. He didn't say so, but he also thought we were

Well, we did decide to release it, but we were too late. Rigor mortis had already set in.

The bat episode was kind of private. You don't usually invite the neighbors in to see your new bat. But everybody found out about the snake.

When I was in seventh grade, my social studies teacher told the class that a nature center he was somehow connected with had forgotten to release its snakes in time for them to hibernate. Now they needed a warm place to stay for the winter.

My mother, a charming eccentric, agreed with me that our basement would be a perfect place. We put the snakes, by now nearly frozen into circles, in a big rabbit cage. That was our first mistake.

It didn't take long for the warm basement air to thaw the two four-foot snakes (a milksnake and a blacksnake, for you herpetologists out there), and they immediately discovered that a rabbit cage is full of holes. I went down to check on them and found them both hanging three-quarters out, weaving in the air and testing the new surroundings with their forked tongues.

I spent the afternoon stuffing them back in and trying to plug the holes. That evening, my parents went out. So did the snakes, when I wasn't looking.

My evening as a couch potato was rudely interrupted when the blacksnake popped its head out from under the television set. That baby was a lot more intimidating out of the cage. I called my friend Jeanne.

All I wanted was a little moral support, but Jeanne's dad wasn't letting anybody touch no snakes. He came over too, wringing his hands and fussing. He also called the police.

This was getting pretty embarrassing. I wasn't really all that scared of the snake, but all the grownups were. The police parked their squad car in the driveway, flashers flashing and radio squawking, and demanded a forked stick. We sawed a fork in a piece of kindling and one of the patrolmen scooped the snake into a burlap bag.

The next day we took it to the zoo (Cleveland, this time). The milksnake, a cleverer sort, stayed on the lam inside the walls all winter long. We didn't have any mice.

I'll save the story of the squirrel till another time.

Going to bat for bats

If you built a bat house in your backyard, would your neighbors think you had gone batty, or would they be more likely to come after you with torches at night?

Dr. Merlin D. Tuttle not only would think you are doing a service to your neighbors, he would likely argue you are doing a service to humanity as a whole.

Tuttle is founder of Bat Conservation International, an Austin, Texas group devoted to increasing the populations of the "one of nature's gentlest and most beneficial creatures."

Literature sent to us last week from the group said that bats are the most important predators of night-flying insects, including mosquitoes and other garden pests. One of those cute little brown bats can easily catch 600 mosquitoes in a single hour. (Now that is an accomplishment.) Bats also handle such chores as pollination and seeddispersal. Bats, says Tuttle, are vital to the survival of rain forests important to climates worldwide.

Bat Conservation International, a non-profit group, has begun marketing bat houses in the hope that nature lovers will spot them around the yard just as they do birdhouses.

Bats are probably the world's most maligned creatures, says Tuttle. He said they are actually more closely related to humans than to rodents, are gentle, very clean and intelligent animals. He adds they are no more susceptible to rabies than many other animals, and rarely be-

Donations

The Grosse Pointe library got an unexpected bonus last week when their information hotline prompted a donation.

Library Director Charles Hanson said that a woman sent a letter to the Friends of the Library, noting that she heard the recorded message on the hotline which prompted her Grosse Pointe High School 50th-year class to make a donation.

Hanson said that those who call the hotline (343-2077) hear a different message from the director each week. The message keeps callers up-to-date on the progress of the proposed expansion's preliminary designs.

Patrol playgrounds

To the Editor:

Recently I took my two children, a five and threeyear-old, to the park behind Defer school, to play on the playground. Before gaining entrance to the park yard, I noticed a group of six or seven teenage boys in the field area who were playing around and jostling with one another. I believe these youths were not Grosse Pointe Park residents. Living so close to Detroit, many of the children from that area will use the Grosse Pointe Park parks because the ones available for them to play in are not as well taken care of and safe as the GPP ones.

For that reason I was not totally opposed to sharing our Park with Detroit residents. However, on this particular Sunday, as I walked my children to the swings, two of the boys began to fight. One of them began to brutally kick, beat and attack the other, yelling obscenities to the one being attacked.

I feared bodily harm to my children and myself. I quickly gathered up my children to me and exited the park as quickly as I could. I looked around for patrolling police cars or concerned neighbors. No one was around this late Sunday afternoon. Several times since then I have seen a group of youths coming from the Detroit area toward our Park. There is a sign posted at the Park that reads "For Grosse Pointe Park Residents Only." I would like to see this sign enforced.

Park passes issued for summer use of the parks should be extended to the playground parks, also. Persons using the Park should be required to bring their passes to the playground parks. We need more patrolling of our playgrounds and parks so that residents are not prevented from using their own parks because of fear of harm from non-resi-

The impact of this experience has caused us not to use the playground anymore. It appears that this playground park will be taken over by non-residents if stricter enforcement of residents only rule is not applied.

I would like to see the police assign the same importance to the safety of our children in playing in the parks as is assigned to speed control in the Park. Enforcement is lacking. Help save our parks for residents' use.

TV coverage and "acting for the cameras."

The American public is entitled to know what goes on in its courtrooms. One of the concerns that you raised in your article was that people only get to see a small part of the trial and this might exaggerate or even provide a misleading report of what happened. So what! It's a start in improving the judicial system (courts). As to your comment about judges and lawyers "acting for the cameras," I think that they will make the effort to be as professional as possible, since many more people will be watching their actions.

Some other benefits of having cameras in courtrooms, which you failed to mention, are the excellent opportunity this practice will provide to educate the American public. The public can learn a great deal about the court's work from watching the trials. It might also be used to deter petty criminals who would not like to be on public display.

I believe that the Supreme Court should appoint a committee to review and regulate this new practice. This committee can watch over the courts and see how effectively the cameras in courtrooms are working. Once that is done over a period of time, courts will improve and do an even better job than they have in the past

From The Capitol Michigan economy needs help

By Rep. William R. Bryant State Representative

The governor vetoed a number of items in the new budget for the state fiscal year which began Oct. 1. What was strange was that most of what he had vetoed he had asked for.

To veto budget items because he now admits that his campaign talk about the supposedly great recovery of the Michigan economy was grossly overstated, would be appropriate. He could admit he engaged in hyperbole or even that he stretched the truth or that the economy is softening, which it is in Michigan.

But, to say, as the governor did, that he had to veto appropriations by the legislature to keep them from spending like a bunch of drunken sailors, now that is a bit much.

The governor seems to have a problem with being a leader. He tried it once in 1983 on the income tax increase and got burned. He seems to have overlearned a lesson. He has carefully avoided any semblance of leadership ever since.

Unfortunately, governors, Blanchard among one of them, have gone to school on recent presidents and have learned to control the media, and learned to operate the governorship on the basis of image rather than sub-

Blanchard is the head of the ship of state. For him to be calling the legislature a bunch of drunken sailors is a bit like Caine Mutiny's crazy Captain Queeg attacking his crew.

That is all we need, Captain Queeg and the drunken sailors in charge of the ship of state.

The Michigan economy needs help. Job providers still have a definite bottom-line problem operating in the business climate of Michigan. As we move, as it seems we eventually must, into the next economic slump, sooner or later, it will take intimate cooperation between all parts of state government and between state government and the private sector to keep our economy as healthy as possible and get it growing as soon and as strongly as possible.

In the period of uncertainty we are now in, when the recovery we have seen is of such unusually extended duration, we all need to be working together to make the better times last as long as they can and to do what we can to make Michigan a better place in which to do business.

Cooperation with a governor who starts name calling, who is more interested in image rather than substance, and who is afraid to lead make it a whole lot tougher to do the things we need to do.

The governor needs to take a vacation from campaigning. He has been campaigning since

Friends of Library president Chalat discusses expansion plans

By Peter A. Salinas Staff Writer

"When I am reading a good book, I wish that life were 3,000 years long."

Ned I. Chalat, M.D., likes to quote Ralph Waldo Emerson when it comes to discussions about libraries, and he likes books even more.

Chalat, 62, has been president of the Grosse Pointe Friends of the Library for the past three years, and he's been a member of the active organization for six

The ears, nose and throat specialist is especially excited about the upcoming proposals that could result in expansion at the three Grosse Pointe libraries.

Despite his busy schedule, he spends his free time with the Friends because "I like books. I read them, collect them. I love yond the regular budget. Purchases of books is just one of the things that the group does, however. The organization also provides funds for educational trips for employees, decorates the interiors of libraries, sponsors lectures and has funded various children's programs.

"We have taken a very positive attitude toward the library expansion program," Chalat said. "We have established various committees and are urging the community to vote positively on the ballot proposals.'

The Friends also funded half the cost of two studies, which honed in on the community's need for libraries and the facilities themselves. The school district picked up the other 50 per-

Current plans are to double the amount of floor space at Central Library in the Farms. That 28,000-square-foot expansion, coupled with the addition of a major renovation will cost more than $6 million. Expansion and renovation at the Woods and Park branches added to the bond issue costs will result in a total expenditure of $8.625 million.

That cost would be paid for with a bond issue, which must be voted on by the people in the school district. An increase of one mill, to the existing mill already being levied for library operations, is also being requested. A homeowner with a $100,000 home and a $50,000 state equalized valuation, would pay an estimated increase of about $85 for the library operations and proposed expansions. That homeowner already pays about $65 for library operations, which would bring the total to Chalat said the studies conducted by the district and the Friends show a definite need for the expansions, and also for upgrading the facilities. He added million and $625,000 for bonding costs seems like a lot of money, the expenditures are warranted.

"This is something we need, we use and is part of our life-style," he said. "I am very impressed with the efforts that have been made in behalf of this proposed project. There are many intelligent people here. It has been a very happy experience to be a part of it."

Chalat said that the other day he checked out a book from the library and noted he was the 45th person this year to have checked it out. He said that when the library gets a new book, it must take one off the shelves to make room for it. Given the frequency with which people check books out of the library, the situation is totally unacceptable, he said.

"Our studies show that instead of 120,000 books, we should have twice that many on hand," Chalat said. "The studies indicate we need four books for every person in Grosse Pointe. We need to double the space we have to fit those books in.'

More information on the library expansion will be presented in a continuing forum being presented by the Friends of the Library at various loca-

Friends to start phone campaign for library bond proposal

By Peter A. Salinas

If approved by voters, supporters feel the additions and renovations to the three public libraries will be sufficient for the next 25 years, but the construction period will last into 1990.

School board members were given a detailed report on activities by the Friends of the Library on efforts to secure passage of a $8.625 million bond proposal and an increase in the library's operational millage.

Donald Sweeny III and Frank Sladen Jr., co-chairs of the Steering Committee for the passage of the Nov. 3 ballot proposals, donned T-shirts to give the report. The T-shirts read, "The cup of learning is running dry" on the front, "and Vote Yes Tuesday, Nov. 3," on the back.

Sweeny said there has been a tentative construction schedule for the three libraries if the millage and bond issue is approved by voters. Every effort to keep the libraries operational during the construction and renovation period will be made, Sweeny

Noting that the planned expansion at the Woods and Cenof the bond issue is critical.

"Every time we buy a book right now, we have to take a book off the shelf," he said. He added that it is important for people to know that Central Library was a donation from the Ferry Foundation, and that taxpayers did not fund the building's construction.

The construction phase at the Park branch library would begin after school lets out in June and run through the summer, probably not much longer than when school returns in the fall. Exterior construction at the Woods branch would begin at the same time. Workers would then be able to work indoors there for the next nine months which would mean the library would be closed for some time. Library Director Charles Hanson said it is not clear at this time just how long the Woods library would be closed to the public.

Every effort will be made to insure that Central Library will be open to the public during the full construction phase. Work at Central would run through the fall of 1990.

Hanson stressed that this initial construction phase schedule could change, and more would be tral libraries will double the known if the bond proposal is book shelf capacity at both, approved by voters and the sec-Sweeny said he feels the passage ond phase of the architectural work begins.

Sweeny said that to date, the Friends have met with three PTO groups, one new parents meeting, held a small press conference, had speakers discuss the library projects with various local groups, printed and distributed two informational brochures, had bumper stickers printed and distributed and is now selling the T-shirts.

The shirts, available at the library, cost $4 for children's sizes and $5 for adults. The shirts are being sold at cost.

With the millage and bond issue questions now approaching the Nov. 3 decision date, the Friends will implement its final phase of campaigning to get the questions approved.

Campaigning by the Friends has become a concern. Sladen told the audience that a new committee has been formed, the Library Expansion Action Committee, (LEAC). Sladen said that the Friends could have lost its tax-exempt status because it was engaging in political activities by encouraging people to vote in favor of the ballot proposal.

LEAC was formed to be the political action arm of the Friends, although the two groups are separate, according to

Jeffrey Lenz, co-chair of the bond issue committee, told the board the Friends will get a phone campaign under way this

"We will continue to provide speakers to groups and provide information to the newspapers," Lenz said. "We have also got a number of volunteers to send out postcards to the 3,000 Friends members."

Lenz said the organization's next major task is to identify supports and contact them by phone, encouraging them to get out and vote. Volunteers will call known supporters and also people they feel are undecided.

Sladen said he feels the combination of all of the public relations efforts will result in a successful campaign, but did give a word of caution.

"So far there has been no vocal opposition to the library expansion plan," Sladen said. "We know those people are out there, and will probably get more vocal when we near the election. We want to be ready to respond to the opposition with the facts.'

Eileen Blunt Winter

Memorial services will be held Friday, Oct. 9, 1987 at Christ Church Grosse Pointe at 10:30 a.m. for Eileen Blunt Winter, a former Grosse Pointer. Mrs. Winter died in Morristown, N.J. after a lengthy illness.

She was born in Altrincham, Cheshire, England. She lived in Michigan since she was 13 years old and in Grosse Pointe during much of her adult life. She is an alumna of the University of Michigan, class of 1933.

In 1935, she married Frederick C. Stevens of Battle Creek. He died in 1954. She later married Detroit attorney Robert C. Winter.

Mrs. Winter was active in the Detroit and Grosse Pointe communities. She was past president of the Williams House Board of Trustees, past president of the Grosse Pointe Garden Club, a member and former officer of the Colonial Dames (Detroit) and a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. She was also an avid tennis and bridge player and a member of the Indian Village Tennis Club.

She is survived by a son, William F. Stevens, of Denver; a daughter, Ann S. Nash, of Morristown, N.J.; a stepdaughter, Marilyn W. Roginson, of Houston, Texas; a stepson, Robert M. Winter, of Chicago; a brother, Charles W. Blunt, of Tryon, N.C.; and 11 grandchildren. She was predeceased by her husband.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests contributions to the American Cancer Society.

William J. Marshall

Grosse Pointe Farms resident William J. Marshall, 86, died Sept. 28, 1987 at Bon Secours Hospital.

He was born in Cornwall, England, and lived in Grosse Pointe for 40 years. He was a chauffeur.

Mr. Marshall was a member of the Grosse Pointe Senior Men's Survivors are his wife, Kathleen; a daughter, Thelma J.; a son, Cyril K.; and two grandchildren.

The body was donated to Wayne State University's School of Medicine.

Memorial contributions may be made to the cardiac care unit at Bon Secours Hospital.

Anne Riordan Connolly

Services for Anne Riordan Connolly, 70, of Grosse Pointe Farms, were held Tuesday, Oct. 6, 1987 at St. Paul's Catholic Church. Mrs. Connolly died Oct. 3 at Bon Secours Hospital.

She was born in Rochester, N.Y., graduated from Sacred Heart in Nuroton, Conn. and Trinity College, Washington D.C.

She was a homemaker.

Mrs. Connolly was a member of the Junior League of Detroit and the League of Catholic Women.

Survivors include her husband, Walter B.; a daughter, Geraldine Conway; four sons, Walter B. Jr., William R., Michael J. and Richard P.; six grandchildren; three sisters; two brothers; and her mother, Geraldine Riordan.

The body was cremated. Interment was in St. Paul's columbarium.

Aaron A. Farbman, M.D.

Services for Aaron A. Farbman, M.D., were on Sunday, Sept. 27, 1987 in the Ira Kaufman Chapel, Southfield. Dr. Farbman, 85, a Grosse Pointer for the last 27 years, died Sept. 24 at Cottage Hospital.

Dr. Farbman was born in Odessa, Russia and came to the United States in 1904. He earned bachelor's, master's and medical degrees at Columbia University.

He began private practice as a general surgeon in 1930 and was on the staffs of the North End Clinic, Sinai, Detroit Memorial and Cottage hospitals. During his 59 years of medical practice, he often served three generations of the same families. He retired in June 1987.

Dr. Farbman was a diplomate of the American Board of Abdominal Surgery and was included in "Who's Who in America" since 1940. He was a member of the Wayne County Medical Society, the Michigan State Medical Society, and the American Medical Association. He published 34 scientific papers in national journals. He was the team doctor for the Detroit Lions in 1940. According to his wife, Marie, he was an unpopular team doctor because of his policy of keeping injured players off the field. He was named East Sider of the Year in honor of his 25 years of work with the Hannan YMCA health education programs.

He was also an active amateur chamber music player and worked for 10 years promoting Interlochen's post-season week. He was on the board of Detroit Music Settlement School, which gave free music lessons to children who couldn't afford to pay. He was president and co-founder of the Chamber Music Players of Grosse Pointe.

He was known as a surgeon, a research scientist, an author and a fiddler, according to his wife.

Theatre North actors take their friendship on stage

By John Monaghan

A friendship can last a lifetime, but few get the chance to take a friendship on the stage. Jim Clor and Jeff Witzke, seniors at North High School and longtime best friends, have done just that as they prepare for their roles in "The Odd Couple."

Theatre North's first production of the season hits the boards Oct. 16-18 in the Performing Arts Center at North High.

The team performed previously in North's productions of "Berkley Square," "Peter Pan," "Oliver" and "Cyrano DeBergerac." As sophomores, they presented a scene from "The Odd Couple" for their final exam in Gael Barr's acting class.

"Jeff and Jim worked up the scene themselves and did such a great job that I thought they should star in a full-length production," says Barr, who has not only directed the play before at North, but has played Felix in at least 75 performances.

Witzke and Clor first met in sixth grade at Ferry Elementary. "This kid, he used to follow me," says Clor, using this (and every) opportunity to bounce a joke. "I was very popular. He used to keep following me - so I took him under my wing and look what he is today.'

Witzke dismisses him with a playful smirk of irritation and relates the true story. They first collaborated on a videotape movie about a field trip to Florida, with each student in class taking a role. It was previewed for parents at a special "movie night" at the school.

Weekends, summer vacations, Christmas breaks - each saw a new project - from homemade comedy cassettes, stop-motion slasher films involving Barbie dolls to video overdubs of "Dynasty," where the very refined characters say very silly things.

"It's funny when these people who are always eating caviar ask for a peanut butter and jelly sandwich," says Clor. "The same with 'Star Trek.' They don't usually order Domino's Pizza or say, 'I want to watch 'The Brady Bunch."

Other students, some they didn't even know, began asking them if they could borrow the tapes to watch at home and to share with their parents. Their reputation spread. Today, they are firmly established as characters — both on and off the stage.

Witzke considers himself the technical half of the team, Clor the creative end. Sure, there are some differences - mostly involving little quirks in personality. Clor feels Witzke is a little too picky about everything from grades to scratchlines on a videotape. Clor, according to Witzke, is too laid back.

This adds spice to their roles in "The Odd Couple," Neil Simon's play about a slob and a neatnik barely surviving as roommates. After the popular stage and film hit, Tony Randall and Jack Klugman immortalized Felix and Oscar on television.

"It's difficult," says Witzke, "when you have a show involving such well-known characters. People are going to be coming to the play looking for the TV characters, but we're trying to be different — put a little of ourselves in the role yet keep it the way Neil Simon intended it.'

Recently, they had the opportunity of meeting and talking to Tony Randall, in town at Waldenbooks promoting a new word game. He gave them numerous insights into the way Felix and Oscar have been played.

"He put his arms around us for the picture and said, 'My boys,' remembers Witzke. "Then these other people in the audience must have thought we were somebody important, because they started looking at us and pointing.'

As rehearsals continue, Barr is pleased with the growing rapport that includes the four poker players and two Pigeon sisters, who have wonderfully comic interaction with Oscar and Felix.

"One of the most difficult things for amateur performers is to forget their friends are in the play and to relate to them as characters," Barr says of his starring performers. "Jim and Jeff are remarkable because they relate to each other as Oscar and Felix - not as Jim and Jeff."

After "The Odd Couple," they dream of launching a local cable show focusing on the students and faculty at North High.

Will they still be friends in 10 years? Twenty? "Yeah," says Witzke, mimicking Clor. "He'll probably still be following me around and I'll still be showing him the right way to do things."

"The Odd Couple" will be preets are $3 at the door.

North's "Odd Couple," Jim Clor (Oscar) and Jeff Witzke (Felix) met Tony Randall recently, star sented Friday and Saturday at 8 of the TV version of the Neil Simon comedy, and received a little encouragement regarding their p.m. and Sunday at 2 p.m. Tick- roles in Theatre North's production. Others in the cast are Peter Miriani. Charlie Halat. Roger Fong, Jason Kahn, Autumn Labadie and Jennifer Wardowski.

ibraries: On-line with the latest high tech

Staff Writer

Libraries are fast abandoning that cozy, musty-book, old leather smell for the odor of computer disks? Patrons are finding out that the good old days of gray-haired librarians with pince-nez glasses and an opinion on what they should be reading have turned into a brave new world of computer screens. Some love it; others aren't so

"There's a lot of sophisticated electronic wizardry," Grosse Pointe library Director Charles Hanson agreed. "But we still feel like a user-friendly library." He laughed to hear himself using the computer term. "And we're not getting rid of the librarian, thank goodness."

There are plenty of patrons already who don't need to rely on the librarian because they have glommed onto the new technology and love figuring it out. It's especially true of students and young professionals. Their parents may lag a step behind.

You don't have to be very old to remember a time when librarians seemed to specialize in shushing noisy kids and fixing adults with a soul-piercing stare when they asked for the copy of "Tropic of Cancer" from behind the counter. They were the same librarians who had read every book in the place and who ordered new books based on their own personal likes.

Marian the Librarian really did exist -- and Hanson says she still does. But now she's computer-literate. And she might be a he.

Librarians still do book talks and they "can still figure out what you want to read even when you don't know yourself." They're still there for you when you want to read that famous book by an American author whose name you forget, but he lived in Cuba and the book is about a guy who caught a big fish. Computers can't do that.

things faster than a person can, so libraries have been heading in the electronic direction for a dec-

Publishers have put reference works like dictionaries and thesauruses on computer disks. Grolier's Encyclopedia is on-line with both index and text. It's part of Grosse Pointe's long-term plan to invest in electronic data of that sort.

Grosse Pointe patrons already have access to more than 200 databases in fields like law, finance and medicine. They dial into the service through a microcomputer and modem. A search is done on-line and information is down-loaded immediately onto the library's printer. If a document is long, it can be sent by mail. Patrons are charged for such services, either by the page or by the minute.

It isn't a popular service yet. "The fact is, people are sometimes reluctant to pay $5 or $10 or $20 for a search," Hanson said. "As (the systems) get more sophisticated, the price should go down. We're faced with the horns of a dilemma: We have to be aware that this (service) exists, but we can't create the awareness without having the service. Which comes first, the chicken or the egg?

"This isn't the most important service we offer, but it is the direction libraries are going."

No one is more aware than the library director that some patrons are intimidated by the computers. And he recognizes. that there may be some passive resistance to the coming computerization of the card catalogue. But he thinks we'll be pleasantly surprised.

lines tied up by the guy who technology will not replace the doesn't know how to work the computer won't hold water. ment. "There will probably be quick more lengthy search," Hanson will remain.' said. "They'll be able to tell you

But computers can do a lot of how many copies the library has and whether they're in.

> "People are used to the card catalogue, but it isn't as fast as we think. For instance, if you only know a fragment of the title, the computer will present a menu of titles with those words.

> "The card catalogue is often a bottleneck, with people writing all this information down. The computer will print it out if you want it."

> But with that said, there are still people who don't feel comfortable around the electronic gadgets. "No one is going to say that this is an easy transition,' Hanson said. "It is threatening. People worry: 'If I push the wrong button, will I destroy the system?"

> That's why Marian the Librarian has been taking computer classes herself. Hanson spouts computer lingo like a computer scientist, yet he trained as an English teacher and writes poetry. But he reads the library professional journals and attends the conferences, both of which are increasingly dominated by computers.

> "We used to spend conference time looking at books," he said, "but now we look at computers and equipment."

> One of the responsibilities of Blaine Morrow, coordinator of automated services, is to train librarians and to help them put themselves in the patrons' shoes. And the kids are helping, too, by bringing in their parents and showing them how to work the machines.

"Information retrieval does not equal knowledge," Hanson said. "We teach people to access He says the image of long and deal with information. But book - we see it as an enhance-

The electronic information retrieval system takes the place of bulky Readers' Guides, although the books are still available for those who like the hands-on approach. Moehring, who was helping his little brother gather information for a paper, likes the speed of the computer. "It's easy," he said.

Dispatcher prevents possible suicide

A call from a despondent man threatening suicide came into the Park police department, and after keeping the man on the line for more than an hour, dispatcher Dawn Roach finally convinced the man to give his ad-

Roach was alone in the office when the call came in around 10:15 p.m. Sept. 28. She was able to get an officer to come in off the road, all the while keeping the man talking.

Michigan Bell was contacted, but because the Park's equipment was not AT & T, Bell could not trace the call. Roach continued her vigil with the man, who lives in Detroit, but was a former resident of the Park.

When Roach got the man to divulge his address, Detroit police were notified and officers responded. The officers found the man still on the phone, with a loaded shotgun pointed at his

The man was not injured, and police took him to a crisis center.

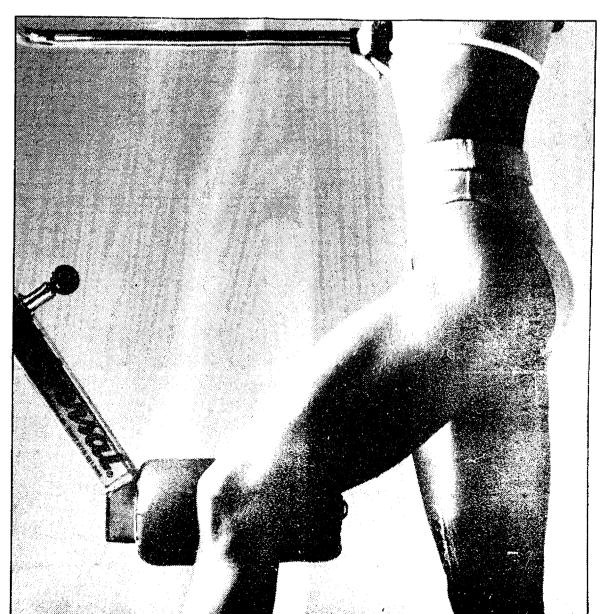

"She did an excellent job," Capt. William Furtaw said. "Not only did she analyze the initial call, she understood its importance. She developed a rapport with the man and kept him on the phone for an hour.

Furtaw said the shift command sergeant has submitted a recommendation for a commendation for Roach.

"Powerball" Parental Warning "Powerballs" Packed in General Mills' Cheerios

Please be advised that if you have purchased packages of Cheerios containing a free rubber "powerball," this toy should be kept away from children approximately three years of age or under, or should be discarded.

The ball, which is similar to other balls sold in retail outlets, is non-toxic and comes sealed in heavy plastic that cannot easily be opened by children. The ball meets all federal safety standards and exceeds the minimum size standard for toys for children under three.

However, General Mills has learned that the ball, if placed in the month. represents a choking hazard for infants and toddlers.

General Mills has voluntarily halted shipments and has taken steps to remove Cheerios packages containing the "powerball" from grocery store shelves. Cheerios cereal continues to be available in packages not containing the "powerball."

On the actual Bicentennial Day, all of South's students and faculty members were presented with a blue and gold Grosse Pointe South Bicentennial pin that said, "We, the People" and a copy of the Preamble of the U.S. Constitution. The buttons were purchased by South's Student Association.

Near the end of the third period announcements, Edward J. Shine, South Principal, made a few remarks about the historical event and then led the entire school in a restatement of the Preamble and the Pledge of Allegiance.

A third activity was a classroom exercise carried out by Donald Zysk in his four American Government classes. Zysk used room sets of supplementary materials on the U.S. Constitution that were published by the Center for Civic Education.

The 31 lessons were incorporated into two weeks of classroom work by Zysk. U.S. Congressman Dennis M. Hertel assisted by providing the materials for us in the classroom.

Elaine Christensen, South Social Studies teacher, participated in the celebration by attending a special conference on the Constitution at Wayne State University on Sept. 17.

All of these activities were planned and arranged by Gene Matecun, chairperson of the Social Studies Department.

It's substance abuse month

To reinforce the regular substance abuse prevention program in the Grosse Pointe public schools, Brownell, Parcells and Pierce middle schools are participating in a co-operative project with the U.S. Attorney General's office, Wayne Couty Prosecuting Attorney's office and law enforcement departments.

The program involves classroom visits by a two-person team comprised of a police officer or federal agent and a prosecutor to describe the real life consequences of illegal drugs.

According to Gail Erickson, assistant principal at Brownell, the program is designed to help students.

"It is intended to give small groups of students the opportunity to question veteran law enforcement officers about their experience with drug-related crimes," Erickson said. "This is not a scare tactics program and we welcome the expertise of these departments into our schools this month.

Edison helps business make the Detroit connection

By Nancy Parmenter

Staff Writer Seven years ago, an economic development group formed to try to attract business to southeastern Michigan. Partners in the venture were traditional business boosters (the Detroit Chamber of Commerce and the Michigan Department of Commerce), a quasi-governmental agency (the Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments) and a public utility - Detroit Edison. The group's efforts have paid off: Business has increased dramatically since those dark days of the early 1980s, and the number of Edison customers - one gauge of economic activity - stands at a record 1.83 million.

Obviously, Edison has a vested interest in getting new customers. But the thrust toward economic development of this corner of the state is more than narrow self-interest, according to Burkhard Schneider, group vice president in charge of divisional operations.

"Our interests and theirs are common because we're not going to move out," Schneider said. "As a business permanently located in southeastern Michigan, the company's success depends on the economic success of the communities it serves.'

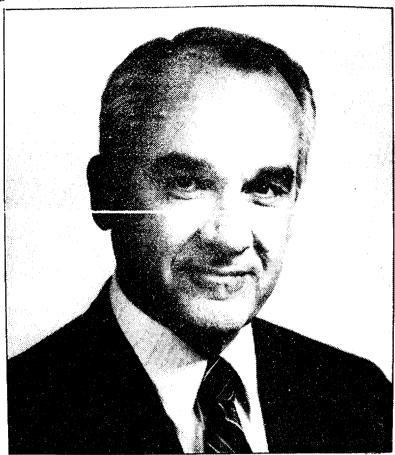

But they aren't going after just any old business. The emcompanies that stimulate other ing the next few years.

business. Edison marketers target firms with something to offer over the long haul.

"We want to see development occur here rather than somewhere else," said James Lagowski, assistant manager for go to other states to lure their business away. Everybody knows how to play that game.'

Edison is probably the most

Edison Vice President Burkhard Schneider, a Grosse Pointe phasis is on economic base - Woods resident, forecasts good economic news for Michigan durmarketing, whose field is eco-nomic development policy. "We ment seeker in the state, Schneider believes. In fact, the company has played a significant role in stimulating the start of economic development planning at the county level. Ten years ago, only Wayne County and the cities of Port Huron and Detroit even had Economic Development Corporations.

> 'What we're seeing now is the fruit of all that work, with businesses moving in," Schneider said.

In an effort to round out Michigan's economy, Edison and others are targeting non-automotive businesses, companies as diverse as engineering plastics and food processing. The economic development staff looks for new opportunities - at the same time they encourage current customers to stay and grow.

The staff offers information on site selection, demographics, tax abatements, financing, job training — all at no charge. "We don't do it all ourselves," Lagowski said. Much of their role lies in coordinating and referring.

"We know who all the actors

"The key point is that it's a confidential service," Lagowski added. "Many companies don't want their competitors to know what they're planning."

The economic development staff shows no partiality to any of the communities in the De- rates to new customers in certroit Edison service area, which extends south almost to Ohio and north to include the Thumb. "Each community benefits as part of the network," Lagowski

Schneider, a Grosse Pointer, said that Grosse Pointe is a good case in point. It has no industry and no industrial parks to attract commerce, but its residents all work in businesses in southeastern Michigan. "Grosse Pointe, like (Edison), rises and falls depending on how the rest of the area is doing," he said.

Edison is part of a network of electrical lines stretching over the eastern United States and part of Ontario. The individual power companies buy and sell electricity according to need. Schneider said that increasing commerce in southeastern Michigan is not a step toward widening the grid, however.

'The reason for the marketing program is to make the most efficient use of the grid we already have," he said. "That's our goal over the next 10 years. There are no new power plants on the books right now.'

He said Edison's grid has room for expansion. It is built to handle peak loads and actually has room for a 10-20 percent greater load.

The company also uses its rate structure to encourage economic development. It offers incentive tain kinds of loads and has an economic development rate for large customers. Such an advantageous rate led to the addition of 300-400 new employees at one downriver steel plant, Lagowski

The companies that benefit from such a rate structure are diverse. Edison currently offers incentive rates on metal melting and heat treating, processes that might otherwise be too expensive to do. "It encourages companies to do something they weren't otherwise doing," Lagowski said.

At the other end of the spectrum, Edison offers an incentive rate to the area's 300 greenhouses to help them compete with other countries growing cut flowers. The lower rate applies to special lighting used during off-peak hours. It offsets the high cost of installation.

"We do it to compete with other energy sources," Schneider said. "It's not commonly understood that we're in competition with gas. We're fighting for market share. People do have a choice - in heating and cooking, for instance."

Keeping a finger on economic data puts Edison in a position to do a little forecasting. Schneider sees only good news.

"From our point of view, the economy is very active and very good," he said. "Michigan is still

News Christ Church looks old; addresses current topics

By Margle Reins Smlth

This is the fifth in an occasional series on the churches of Grosse Pointe.

Christ Church Grosse Pointe faces Grosse Pointe Boulevard down a long barrel-like stretch of plush green lawn. The 15th century Gothic structure of weathered brown sandstone is actually the 400-seat chapel of what was to be a huge cathedral. The larger building was to have been closer to Grosse Pointe Boulevard, and would have seated 1,000 people.

The first Episcopal parish in Detroit was established in 1824. Ninety-nine years later, the seeds of a mission church began to sprout in the rapidly growing Grosse Pointe community.

The new church put down firm roots between 1923 and 1928. Sunday school classes were held in several local homes and in nearby Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

In December 1930, Christ Church's new chapel was dedicated. The church owned most of the land that is now Meadow Lane, but the Great Depression cast an ominous shadow over any subsequent plans for church expansion. The land was sold and plans for the grand cathedral were never seriously revived.

Instead, in later decades, the congregation added a rectory. Miller Hall (a meeting place for parish social occasions) and the Christian Education building. All are located behind the church. The Virginia Brush Ford Memorial Rose Garden and the columbarium were added in front of the church in 1967 and the columbarium has been enlarged twice since then.

The Rev. Edward A.M. Cobden Jr., rector of Christ Church since May 1982, said, "The architecture was made to look old - to speak of the rich tradition of the Episcopal Church. We're very conscious of having a beautiful plant here. We're anxious to conserve the superb architecture, the tracery work, the stained glass windows, the memorial garden, the beautiful property.

The first of the church's unique series of stained glass windows was installed on its fifth anniversary in 1935, and more windows were added as the years went by. Some were donated as memorials to church members, as gifts from Sunday school children or to commemorate church anniversaries.

Despite its 500-year-old appearance, the church clearly has at least one foot planted squarely in the computer age. Cobden cited several programs that are unique to Christ Church Grosse Pointe. Last year the church presented a series of educational lectures centered around C.S. Lewis books. "This year we'll be putting on a production of T.S. Eliot's 'Murder in the Cathedral," he said, "and some lectures about church and state which are raised in the play."

The church is inaugurating a lecture series in January in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Donald Sweeny, he said. The lectures will concern ethics.

"Over the years," he said, excellent men and boys choir. We've developed an international reputation under Fred DeHaven's leadership for the last eight to 10 years. We've now paired men and high school girls. During the summer, the choirs travel. Two years ago the boys went to Italy and sang in the Sistine Chapel and sang in an audience with the pope.'

He said the choir's program is supported by an annual antique show. "We raise at least $20,000 a year. Of the $27,500 raised this year, $7,500 went to the church's outreach program.

Christ Church's outreach program, Cobden said, actively supports Crossroads East, a counseling agency on Detroit's east side. "We're particularly interested in the job placement aspect of Crossroads East," he said. Cobden is president of PIFU, People In Faith United, which has been formed to care for the people in an area bounded by Alter Road, Kercheval, Jefferson and Chalmers. "Other churches are active too. We're concerned about housing, counseling, welfare and food

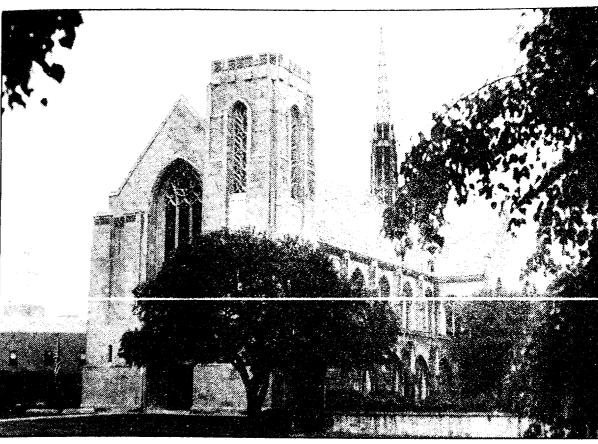

"we've been fortunate to have an programs. We're also politically active. We helped get funding for neighborhood improvements and housing.

"It's unbelievably frustrating to be poor, beaten down, and not to know how to get resources. People need child care, day care, latchkey programs."

Christ Church's members recently decided to raise some money especially for conservation of the church building. "We decided we needed $250,000," Cobden said. "People got excited. One thing led to another and we raised $3 million. So, $1.5 million is being used for education - and outreach programs - and music. The other $1.5 million is for conservation.'

The church is also supporting a missionary in Liberia.

As for church membership, Cobden said Christ Church's numbers are steady. Church school membership is up, he said. "I think we're seeing more younger families moving to Grosse Pointe. Older people are moving away. We're seeing the same trend in the schools." He said Christ Church counts about Christ Church Grosse Pointe's 15th century Gothic building was dedicated in December 1930. It was originally designed as a small chapel for a larger church. Christ Church once owned the land where Meadow Lane is now.

1,200 members - about 600 pledging households. "About 800 households look to us for support."

Christ Church has always been interested in serving the special needs of the community. According to David Russell, church historian, the school for exceptional children was founded in the building in the '60s. The building was designated a community fallout shelter in 1963.

Russell has been reading old vestry minutes. He noted some interesting findings from his research. In 1967, Alice Buttrick became the first female vestryperson. Russell quoted from the minutes: "Mrs. Theodore R. Buttrick, befitting her status as the first female vestryman of Christ Church, was attired in striped trousers, a swallow-tail coat and ascot tie, and carried grey gloves and an opera hat."

In February 1983, he said the vestry adjourned early to watch the last episode of M*A*S*H.

Since 1983, the church has counted a clergy couple as two of its three associate clergymen. Cobden said this is a new category in the Episcopal church. The Rev. Bryant W. Dennison and the Rev. Gregory Sammons serve as full-time associate clergymen for the congregation. The Rev. Margaret Sammons is a part-time associate. Both Sammons are priests and they have two young children.

"Christ Church is always looking for ways to try to help members reflect on and address problems in our community and in the Detroit community - problems such as race relations, gunrelated violence, and all parenting issues," Margaret Sammons said. "We have a series of classes on parent-teenage communication beginning in October,' she said. "Last year we had a series of lectures — an adult forum about gun-related violence in Detroit.'

She said she believes Grosse Pointe is a transient community. People move in, stay for a short time, then move away. "I see our parish as a welcoming parish. We make an effort to incorporate people — to provide a safe harbor. That's an important ministry here.

Ready for blast-off: The blast-off was a blast, according to the more than 100 Music Hall fans in attendance at the Sept. 16 blast-off pre-party for the Music Hall Fan Club's "Ancient Space at River Place" party on Oct. 16 at the Stroh River Place atrium.

Co-chairmen for the benefit party, John Bloom and Irene

Cole, also hosted the pre-party. Guests wandered through a wash of pink and blue lights, gauze-wrapped "mummies" in upright coffins and space pods and satellites constructed from objects found by graduates and students of the Center for Creative Studies.

The pre-party provided a glittering taste of the imaginative decor and buffets that will transform the River Place atrium and terrace from 6 to 10 p.m. next Friday. That's when "Ancient Space at River Place" blasts off for an evening of fundraising and fun.

The celebration will be the first annual meeting of the Fan Club, which includes all who buy the $30 tickets ($40 at the door) for the event. Food will be provided by the chefs of, among others, the Whitney, the Money Tree, Chez Rafael and the London Chop House. There will be an open bar.

Also in attendance at the preparty was Rose Marie Mebus of Grosse Pointe.

A golden day: Dan and Catherine Bracci of Grosse Pointe Park celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on Sept. 13, 1987. The Braccis' anniversary party was hosted by a daughter and son-in-law, Don and Doreen Overbey of Grosse Pointe. Another daughter, Sandra McFawn of Yorba Linda, Calif., was unable to attend the party, but sent her parents a videotaped congratulations message featuring her family.

The Pastor's Corner

The essence of the message

By The Rev. Paul Panaretos astor, Our Lady Star of the Sea

Religion in America appears to have scored points in its favor recently. Pope John Paul has come to the United States and gone. He left both Catholics and non-Catholics impressed and awed; he disgruntled some by holding fast to Catholic church teachings in the face of protest; and in Detroit, he sounded a clarion call for a "new worldwide solidarity" in the face of protest; and in Detroit, he sounded a clarion call for a "new worldwide solidarity" in the face of dissension and division.

After the recent scandal of the television churches in our country, Pope John Paul's pastoral visit to the United States has bolstered religion in Detroit and other cities he visited. John Paul sees the U.S. on the cutting edge of matters ethical and spiritual, placing them on a par with our nation's political prominence.

That balancing of the ethical and spiritual together with the so cial and political was, in my view, the essence of the Pope's message. My summer vacation helped me hear it more clearly.

I spent part of my vacation in Turkey. Over 2,000 years ago, this land between Europe and Asia was a sophisticated melting pot of peoples, cultures, politics, religions and societies. Turkey has a wealth of ruins of cities to prove that and more. The remnants of these ancient cities, some in the process of reconstruction and repair, quickly dispel the notion that "primitive" means crude or ignorant. "Primitive" means the "first of its kind."

For example, most of the cities had excellent plumbing. In ancient Miletos (in southwest Turkey), the grid pattern of streets was invented. Pergamum's (in northwest Turkey) library of 200,000 volumes rivaled the world's largest library in Alexandria, Egypt. Egypt perceived the Pergamum library as a threat to its own prestige and cut off the supply of papyrus from the Nile. Pergamum's scientists invented pergamen (Latin for "parchment"), a writing surface made from animal hides instead of papyrus reeds.

With a Bible in one hand and an archaeology book in the other exploring the cities of the seven churches in the Book of Revelation as well as cities and islands mentioned in the Acts of the Apostles, impressed upon me that real people touched by both the benefits and the dilemmas of ethics, religion, society and politics are the main characters of the New Testament.

The Christian scriptures narrate the experiences of real persons, citizens in some of the world's great cities. They struggled to choose lasting values, meaningful ways of self-expression and solidarity in the face of opposition and misunderstanding. They struggled to balance the social and political dimensions with the ethical and spiritual dimensions.

Pope John Paul has called the United States to lead the world in building a new worldwide solidarity. In that solidarity, politics and religion do not compete with each other, they assist one another. That may upset some red-blooded American hearts, but that has been the Pope's message to us.

George Bush heard the message while here. And early last week the vice president joined Lech Walesa, the father of Solidarity, and paid tribute to Jerzy Popieluszko, recognizing that this priest was a patriot as well. The challenge remains for Americans to integrate religion within the fabric of our daily work and life. Is that really all that scandalous?

Calories per serving, about

1 1/2 cups navy beans 1 medium-sized onion 1/2 tsp. salt

1/4 tsp. garlic salt

2 Tblsp. vegetable oil 3 Tblsp. flour

1 1/2 cups skim milk cup canned tomatoes, drained 1/4 tsp. basil

1/2 cup bread crumbs

1 Tblsp. margarine 1 Tblsp. minced parsley

In a medium-sized kettle, soak the beans in cold water to cover for 3 or 4 hours. Add the onion, salt and garlic salt and cover. Bring slowly to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer slowly until the beans are tender (about 50 to 60 minutes). Drain, reserving 1/4 cup of the liquid.

In another saucepan, heat the oil and blend in the flour. Add the milk slowly, stirring with a wire whisk until the sauce becomes thickened and smooth.

Combine the beans with 1/4 cup liquid and the tomato pulp. Stir in the cream sauce and mix well. Taste and correct the seasoning. Turn into an oiled 1 1/2 quart baking dish. Cover with bread crumbs which have been slightly browned in the margarine and sprinkle over the top the minced parsley. Bake in preheated 3750 oven for 30 minutes. Serves 6.

Sandwich Bean Spread A bean sandwich may sound a little strange at first, but this delicious spread is nutritious and low in fat. Its mild flavor goes well with tomatoes in a sand-

- I cup pinto beans (uncooked)
- 1 dry red pepper 1 clove garlic, minced 1 small onion, chopped
- 4 cups water 1/4 cup celery, chopped 2 Tblsp. taco sauce (or chili
- sauce) 2 Tblsp. ketchup Dash Worchestershire sauce Hot pepper sauce to taste

Rinse beans and remove any stones or foreign matter. Place the beans, red pepper, garlic and onion in the water and bring to a boil. Remove from heat, cover and let sit for one hour. Then return to the stove and simmer for 1 to 2 hours, until the beans are

THE HOME FOR THE YEARS OF YOUR FREEDOM

"Quiet residential area just one block from Lake St. Clair

"A beautiful landscaped courtyard"

A big dream we carry through the early years of our life is to be able to retire with good health. Retirement should spell out FREEDOM.

FREEDOM from big job responsibilities, and from big family responsibilities. FREEDOM from paying for the utilities, rent or mortgage, entertainment costs and transportation expenses.

FREEDOM from cooking meals, from cleaning house, from changing beds and doing laundry and ironing.

BEECHWOOD MANOR is your opportunity to enjoy a more fulfilling and care-free retirement. Instead of a lonely living, you will have mature men and women for company and shared entertainment. Instead of putting the best part of your day in daily chores, you will do exactly what you like to do. We also offer an attitude of friendship, respect and care to our residents.

BEECHWOOD MANOR is a home for mature men and women 60 years or older offering the following services, facilities and features:

Grosse Pointe A Unique Community

A Romantic Past As a Grosse Pointe resident, you'll walk upon grounds that were once the swamp, marsh and meadow haunts of deer, buffalo and beaver. It was this profusion of wildlife-plus fish from the 460-square-mile Lake St. Clair—that attracted the French farmers who first settled the area in 1701.

During the century that they fished, farmed and traded with the local Indians, many legands began. And many infamous locations were indelibly named: Fox Creek, graveyard of the Fox Indian nation; Bloody Run, where a company of British soldiers from Fort Detroit were ambushed and killed.

From Pristine to Prosperous After a brief period under British rule, the area began its history as an American settlement. Its beauty and bounty made it an ideal resort area for families from the growing city of Detroit. Between 1875 and 1925. Grosse Pointe became the elegant summer residence—and then permanent home—of famil's who had amassed fortunes in lumber and automobiles. In the midst of the lavish mansions, farm cottages and resort ambiance, there gradually grew a year-round community of quality homes for families from all walks of life.

When you list your home with CENTU-RY 21 LOCHMOOR we place a picture of your residence in the Macomb M.L.S. book and in the Grosse Pointe Board of Realtors book. You can double your home's exposure by listing with us!

IT COSTS A LOT TO SAY YES TO THE FORGOTTEN.

BUT WE CAN'T AFFORD TO SAY NO.

Many of the elderly have carned a unique status in today's society. They're ignored. Less capable of independence, they have it forced upon them. To help them live with dignity, the United Foundation Torch Drive supports 24 agencies that provide services to the elderly.

Last year, you helped fund these agencies with $H.5 million. This year, the need has grown. Your contributions must reach more of the elderly in need of home health care, social activity and food.

So please give more to the Torch Drive and help fund 153 health and human service agencies in the triscounty area. Agencies that not only help the elderly, but also help in the fight against heart disease, stroke, kidney disease, cancer, crime and much more. It costs a lot to say yes. But, when it comes to

Crossing the picket line to say hi to mom

No sooner did the National Football League players decide to head for the picket lines, then the phones began to ring throughout the country. Team administrators were in desperate need of players who were slated to be SCABS. You know, the guys who cross the picket line to play foot-

From a pot-bellied armchair quarterback to an NFL scab became a reality. Players were flocking to the stadiums to dress for success in would-be superstar uniforms and were gearing for the chance of a lifetime.

Well, if a guy, who is supposedly an athlete, can try to bring a childhood dream out of a comic strip and into reality, then so can I turn something abstract to concrete.

I had always wanted to be a major league baseball player, but with that avenue slammed shut, I can now peruse the football showcase. With good intentions, I dusted off my football cleats, pumped air into the football and slipped on a football jersey that found its way to the bottom of my dresser drawer.

A speedy, fleet-footed receiver with good hands, I dodged traffic to get across the street to the playing field. As I stretched the old muscles and jogged up and down a few yard markers, I painted a picture of a stadium jammed with 60,000 screaming fans. A couple friends had gathered on a perfect fall afternoon to grab some part of the NFL highlight film as our pickup game soon became a battle of the SCABS. We felt like we were scabs because we had crossed the proverbial picket line and whirled the football on a Sunday afternoon when we should have been in front of the television set second guessing the coaches' decisions.

Giving way to the NFL for a vacant Sunday was an amateur's day for work. Thoughts of scoring a touchdown, doing a victory dance and jumping three feet in the air to deliver a high-five in front of professional football fans was a dream. I've had a week or so to work on my game, and sooner than expected, the moment of truth was upon me.

Tandem shoots for world title

Kaiser roars to national championship

"We got a poor start and after that we knew what we had to do." — Bob Kaiser

The 1987 World Championships will be held in Key West on Nov. 10-12-14.

By Rob Fulton Sports Editor

Many platforms have been erected for various "celebrities" to perform on, but one self-made pedestal still being created - on water - belongs to the tandem of Bob Kaiser and Errol Lanier.

Kaiser, the 1986 world champion of offshore racing, along with throttleman Lanier, recently teamed up to guide the ACR Systems 38-foot aluminum catamaran to the National Offshore High Points Championship Title in Port Huron.

With the title, Kaiser, who owns and operates the boat, can add another fine trophy to his already packed showcase. To his credit, Kaiser is the reigning 1986 world champion, the 1987 Pro Circuit champion and now the national champion.

'This is a great honor for me,' he said. "I've been setting my sights on this national championship for two years now and now that it's here the feeling is incredible."

Kaiser, originally from Grosse Pointe Farms, and Lanier, of Fort Lauderdale, are the two fastest humans to tread the world's waters.

"Errol and I are pretty proud of the fact that we hold a world's Kaiser. In one of eight races on the 1987 circuit, Kaiser and Lanier paced themselves to an average speed of 108.043; five mph better than the old record.

At the start of the season, Kaiser and Lanier took seventh and eighth in two races and things looked bleak. However, three straight wins put them back at the top of the national points scale and ultimately led them to the national crown.

"We get a poor start and after that we knew what we had to do," said Kaiser. "We just put the hammer down and took what came.'

What came was a highly successful year. It wasn't something planned, but the dreams did come true.

"We had one of those years you dream about," said Kaiser, who has been racing nationally for two years now. "I can't put my finger on exactly how I feel, but both of us are very excited."

Lanier, who is coined as the world's top throttleman, was thankful for the opportunity to be in the hunt for the crown, and recalls one of life's truest last race, it doesn't matter how gle, but the pressure that goes record for average time," said you do it, as long as you win. We may have lost the battle (the early struggle), but we won the war.

In the final race, Kaiser and Lanier finished fifth after suffering some mechanical problems, but a fourth-place finish from John Antonelli's Spirit of America, who was the closest competition in points and finished second in the national point standings, gave way to the ACR Systems team.

"It's been a long year." said Kaiser. "We've worked awfully hard to bring the US-1 title back to Michigan and it feels great."

With the US-1 title, Kaiser becomes the only boat owner to display the US-1 logo on his boat. It signifies that he is the United State's top offshore boat racer and to him that is what it's all about.

"By being national champion it means no one else in the world can put the US-1 on their boat," Kaiser said. "It's the top honor in my racing class (Open Class) and that's a big thrill. Again, it's incredible. Isn't that what it's all about? To be number one?"

The climb to number one "When it comes down to the hasn't been a tremendous strugwith it forces Kaiser to look over his shoulder.

"I've got a lot on my shoulders," said the driver who has become known as "Top Gun." "Everyone is shooting for me. That's what happens when you're on top. I have to run my race at the World Championships and everyone else has to keep up with me. Being on top makes you look at who is behind you, and there are a lot of guys who can knock me off, but they are going to have to come after

The World Championships will be highlighted by boats from around the world as they vie for one of offshore's most prestigious titles. But, it will have to be done in "always threatening wa-

"The waters at Key West are "acid Kaiser." always a threat," said Kaiser. "We are going to have to adjust our boat to the water conditions and take it from there.'

"Take it from there" has almost become the tandem's motto. They try to beat the competition as well as the water.

"We push our boat to the limits," said Kaiser. "We go through two motors and two drives every race because we go all out. We have an aggressive attitude and that's why I think we've been successful."

In two years, Kaiser and Lanier have gained respect and credibility. They obviously want another world title and if they get it, what would be next?

"If we were to win another world title, there wouldn't be much left for us to win," Kaiser said. "If we win it we may possibly start running the boat for charity. If we don't win it, then we try to shoot for it again next year.

"Hopefully we won't have to think about trying to get it next

Winterizing the boat

Fall has descended upon us full force. The days are shorter and snow has already been reported in our state. The Boat Show is now history and another boating season is coming to an end.

It is now time to think about the annual haul out and winter storage of our boats. For most of us, haul out and winterizing can be accomplished in a single day.

We need to look at some of the boat's systems and decide what needs to be done for the winter season.

The easiest job to accomplish is cleaning the hull. Most boatyards thoroughly scrub the bottom of the boat with a high-pressure hose while it is still in the slings of the hoist. If your yard does not do this, then you do it yourself. It is much easier to do when the boat first comes out of the water; before the algae has time to dry and harden. A high-pressure water system makes the job go much quicker, but it is not necessary. A hose, scrub brush and elbow grease will accomplish the same thing. You may decide to sand the bottom now, preparing it for a new coat of bottom paint, while you have time and are not under pressure to ready the boat for the new sailing season. Your spring fitting-out will be much easier with the preparation already done.

Fall haul out is also an excellent time to check the hull for blisters from osmosis. Each blister needs to be gouged out and permit ted to thoroughly dry before it can be filled in. This is not a one day job, but the inspection can be accomplished quickly. You may want professional advice on how to make repairs.

Inboard engines need to be winterized. For most engines this means filling the fuel tank to prevent condensation. You may decide to add a fuel stabilizer, which retards oxidation. You will need to either drain the engine water jacket, water pumps and exhaust system, or fill them with antifreeze. You need to keep rust from forming in the cylinders by coating the cylinder walls with a light oil. Disconnect the batteries as well. This prevents them from discharging during the winter. Spraying a coat of light oil over the outside of the engine helps prevent rusting of the external engine parts. Consult the owner's manual, it may contain valuable tips on winterizing your specific marine engine.

Water tanks also need attention. Until recently, this meant draining the tank. Now there are non-toxic antifreeze products that can be added to water tanks and pumped out in the spring. Make sure to run the antifreeze through the hose system to displace any water that could freeze and cause a problem as the weather warms.

Electronic gear should be stored at home. This keeps the equipment safe from thieves and from the severity of extreme tempera-

You should open all through-hull fittings. This permits any water caught in the system to drain out. It also allows for air circu-

Air needs to circulate throughout the cabin as well to retard mildew from forming. Yet in spite of our best efforts, mildew seems to thrive no matter what the season. A thorough scrubbing at the close of one season, and the beginning of the next, seems to be the only way to keep this nasty fungus at bay. Store cushions on their sides presenting the large surface area of the top and bottom to the circulating air in the cabin. Towels, linens and clothes are best stored at home. Food should not be left over the winter. You only have to forget once and return in the spring to find a burst pop can or other food scattered around the cabin filled with mold and mildew, to cause you to remember to clean out the food Tools and other items left on board that will rest should be oiled or otherwise protected. Things that might tempt a thief should be taken home.

Last, but not least, the winter cover needs to be secured. The cover needs to be tight enough to keep out the snow and ice, yet allow for the circulation of air. Most covers fit over a frame that allows the ice and snow to slide off and not collect into depressions in the canvas.

The annual haul out may not be the most glamorous side of boating, yet it provides a time for us to make yearly inspections of our boats. We have time now to carefully look at the boat and make decisions about maintenance and repairs. We also have spring to look forward to.

Giglio sneaks Norsemen into tie

By Rob Fulton Sports Editor

Senior quarterback Bruno Giglio squeezed through the offensive line for the only touchdown of the game as North turned back the Romeo Bulldogs, 7-0.

The win puts North right back into the thick of things in the White Division of the Macomb Area Conference with a 1-1 league record and 3-2 overall with two league games left on the schedule. North, tied for first place with Cousino, Romeo and Warren Woods Tower, will entertain Woods Tower Oct. 10 in their homecoming game.

Giglio tucked the ball away with less than a minute remaining in the first half and capped a 39-yard drive that took nine plays with a quarterback sneak. Scott Schorer, who combined with the North defense to keep Romeo on its own side of the field, also gave North the "boot" they needed.

"I think the kicking game was the decisive factor in the game." said Norsemen coach Frank Sumbera. "Scott punted really well and forced Romeo into poor field position and then our defense took over."

A defensive struggle from the start, the game saw the Norsemen dominate. Just as the automobile industry is headed by the big three, so are the Norsemen.

"Dave Van Dale, Karl Schultz and Marc deManigold is how we did it," said Sumbera. "Those three guys played a great defensive game." deManigold recorded 10 tackles, three behind the line, while VanDale and Schultz each had nine solo tackles. Each of "The Big Three" also recovered a fumble.

"I knew it was going to be a defensive game from the start," said Sumbera. But, little did he know his defensive crew would only give up four first downs and not allow Romeo inside the 30yard line. "At the half I knew our defense could hold them and I was droping our offense could just get the ball and grind out the clock in the second half. We did just that."

Offensively all the Norsemen needed was Jay Tobias. He provided 103 yards of the 171 rushing yards compiled by North and Sumbera explains the offensive surge in two words: "Jay Tobias."

It wasn't as easy earlier in the week as North slipped past Roseville Brablec 36-33 on an offensive show by Robin Wheatley. Wheatley netted 11 of North's 15, fourth-quarter points en route to a game-high 16 points. Melissa Champine hit a free throw with three seconds left to give North the three-point edge. Adding insult to injury would be easy to do, but the Knights are simply adding injury to youth and inexperience.

The Knights, a team loaded with underclassmen, traveled to Wesleyan Academy and walked away with their fifth straight loss of the year, 19-0 in a game that saw injuries play the key.

"We had the momentum early on, but we suffered some key injuries that set us back a bit," said Coach Bob Newvine. "It hurts any team to be plagued by injuries and ours is no different." The Knights struggled after carrying momentum early, but penalities and bad breaks led to yet another defeat.

"We had a lot of penalties, but you expect that from a young and inexperienced team," said Newvine. "It gets frustrating for these kids to lose again, but we are so young that it's difficult to compete with more experienced teams. Our heads are up. They have to be. South, after hosting Mount Clemens, travels to Anchor Bay on Oct. 17 and then rounds out the E.M.L. agenda at home Oct. 24 against East Detroit.

At home against the Big Reds of Port Huron, the Blue Devils repeatedly moved the ball in the first half, but settled for a scoreless tie at the intermission, but the damage could have been

"Our offense really moved the ball well in the first half," Rice said. "But, at the half we faced the 0-0 game with reality because the only reason it was 0-0 was because we put the ball on the ground three times."

Despite losing all three fumbles, the Blue Devils offense managed to combine for over 300 yards of total offense for the fourth straight game.

"The offensive line did a great job," Rice said. "They blocked well and allowed the running backs and quarterback a lot of time to pick a hole or throw the ball." Senior quarterback Bryan Jones and receiver Ian Thompson could be the best combination since Abbott and Costello. Jones, who connected on six of 11 passes for 171 yards, hooked up with Thompson for a 42-yard strike that eventually led to the opening touchdown by Matt Aldrich on a 9-vard scamper. Doug-Lucas added the point after, one of three on the day, and South led 7-0 early in the second half.

On their next possession, the Blue Devils were forced to punt and within seconds found themselves knotted at 7-7 after a 69yard punt return by the Big Reds. But, Jones and Thompson went back to work and connected on a 50-yard scoring play to tuck the game away, 14-7. Roger Hunwick squirted in from a yard out to cap the scoring for South late in the fourth quarter.

"It was a second down and short yardage play and all we were looking for was to get the first down," Rice said about the Jones to Thompson scoring strike. Thompson grabbed three

> "We've also gotten a lot of consistent running from everyone involved in our offensive backfield.'

The Blue Devil defense gave up only 139 total yards, but Rice was slightly disappointed.

"I thought we could have played better defense," said the first-year coach. "We didn't wrap up on tackles like we should have. We weren't as crisp as we have been."

Girls' Cross

Country

Weeks ago the cross country team kicked up its heels, and they have yet to let them down.

They raised their dual-meet record to 10-0 with a 17-46 win over Port Huron Northern and over the weekend took first place at the Center Line Classic Invitational. Seventeen South runners ran personal-best times at Center Line to help South outdistance the 33 teams. A second South team finished fifth and Grosse Pointe North took second.

Leading the way for South was Micha Song who took a third overall in a field of 185 runners. Her time was 19:52. In fifth place for the Blue Devils was Elizabeth Kraft at 20:02. Rounding out the scoring for South were Debbie Solterisch, Vicki Groustra, Megen Smucker, Wendy Berger and Letty Gra-

Against Port Huron Northern, the Blue Devils took nine of the top 10 spots including a 1-2-3 finish from Song, Kraft and Anna Dinverno to keep their eightyear E.M.L. win streak alive.

South will host North in an exciting city rivalry at Patterson Park this afternoon at 4 p.m.

Port Huron Northern handed the Blue Devils their first league loss, 27-31 last Tuesday.

South's Mark Sonnenberg, Paul Heynes and Jeff Kerfoot all ran well, but Northern was equal to the task. South is now 2-2 overall and 2-1 in the E.M.L.

Basketball

Carmina Amezcua and Lisa Fromm are a hot, one-two punch in the world of basketball. The South tandem led the Blue Devils to two straight wins the past week as they moved to 4-2 overall and 1-0 in the league.

Amezcua set a new school record against Edsel Ford as she pumped in 28 points en route to a 54-49 win. Fromm provided 19 points and yanked down 14 rebounds.

In a 61-44 win over Mount Clemens, Fromm scored 15 points and Amezcua hit for a dozen. Chris Schulte and Megan Keller controlled duty on the boards with 12 and 10 rebounds, respectively. Stephanie Dinka and Patty Pentecost each had four steals.

Tennis

Two consecutive 5-2 wins and a third place finish at the Kingswood Invitational rounded out a pretty successful week for the Blue Devils.

Against Grosse Pointe North, Cathy Wachter (No. 2 singles), Ellen Mayer (No. 3 singles) and Stephanie Vititoe (No. 4 singles) scored wins to pace the Blue Devils. Michele Nault and Theresa Molloy (No. 1 doubles) and Amy Hathaway and Cindy Herman (No. 2 doubles) took home the deciding matches.

At the Kingswood Invitational, Michelle Rajt (No. 1 singles), Mayer and the number three doubles team were the only winners for South.

Against Port Huron Northern. South got wins from Rajt, Wachter, No. 3 singles and the doubles teams of Nault/ Molloy and Hathaway/ Herman.

Relaxation is elusive

In today's hectic world, one often has to schedule a time for relaxation. Relaxing muscle tension may come fairly easy for some, but most find it more difficult to unwind mentally.

It is often hard to banish unwanted worries and thoughts from the mind, so at first, relaxing may not be an easy task. Just as most things rewarding must be practiced, so must the art of relaxing.

First, one must find a select spot, a special quiet place away from noise pollution and bright light. Let this spot be your key to unwinding and releasing unwanted thoughts. Choose a warm, quiet area away from bright lights and the telephone. Select a favorite rug or mat, or perhaps a thick, soft adult "blankey." Spread it on the floor, lie down on your back, bend your knees and place your feet flat on the floor. Allow your waist to drop toward the floor while relaxing the muscles of your pelvis. Make certain you are dressed in something terrifically comfortable with no restricting undergarments.

Close your eyes. Turn your palms upward with the fingers relaxed. Relax your throat and your chin. Release the muscles in your face while thinking of the most pleasant thought you can. If you begin to feel that you want to extend your legs and totally relax them, slowly slide one leg out and then another. Allow your body to feel "heavy" on the floor. If your mind continues to run in the rat race, don't despair. Remember, one must "practice' relaxation. Spending this short time on yourself is an investment with no equal.

Think of your body sinking into the floor and releasing the tension in your joints and muscles. You have worked hard and deserve this feeling wholeness flooding your body; refreshing and relaxing you. Continue to think of your body evenly supported.

Without tensing your muscles, you want to relax your throat and deeply inhale as you energize each cell of your body with renewed energy. If you continue to have tension in a specific body part, concentrate on that area, contract the muscles, for instance, in the shoulder area by shrugging your shoulders to your ears and then totally releasing that area. Continue inhaling and exhaling completely.

Now, continue to breathe gently, allowing the quiet to surround you. This takes time, so be patient. Your face may continue to feel tension for some time. Concentrate on this area. Let your muscles relax and allow your jaw to relax and especially your forehead. Let your tongue rest behind your lower teeth. Relax your mouth as you continue to breathe naturally. Let the gentle rhythm of breathing bring about deep relaxation for you.

You may do this gentle, rewarding exercise in just five or 10 minutes each day. It is a small amount of time to pay for such large rewards.

As summer has silently slipped away and fall is upon us, the winter is right around the corner. Prepare, by relaxing and refreshing your mind, body and spirit by fortifying yourself against the ensuing hectic schedule. Thanksgiving and Christmas are rewarding, but they are also stressful times.

Try it now. Close your eyes and unclench your fists. Take a deep breath by inhaling slowly, now exhale completely; releasing all tension as you exhale. Try it again. You should feel the beginnings of a relaxed, refreshed

Think Trim suggests mind-over-matter techniques

By Rob Fulton

Sports Editor Diets. Diets, and more diets. What to believe and what not to believe. What to do and what not to do?

What can you do? Another remedy to the never-ending battle with weight loss is hitting its peak after beginning approximately seven years ago.

In 1980, an overweight woman realized she was not happy with her body and started a mindover-matter scheme that eventually led her to lose 50 pounds. Her reputation has followed her throughout the metro-Detroit area and she will now bring her expertise to the War Memorial on Oct. 10 for an all day pro-

Lorraine Stefano, the creator of Think Trim, an educational program to help students identify the barriers to successful weight control, has been demonstrating her weight loss techniques for five years and has had approximately 2,500 individuals pass through her programs.

"My program is a think-be-fore-you-eat process," said Stefano, who will conduct her clinic at the War Memorial from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. "I had a weight problem myself. I could lose the weight, but I couldn't keep it off. I became very frustrated,' Frustration was only half the battle. Stefano overcame the physical battle by placing emphasis on the psychological part of weight loss as opposed to the 'going without food" approach.

"It has to do with cognitive psychology," she said. "If one changes their thinking about food, then their eating habits will change. So much of what we do is from thinking, not action

Through her program, people learn that it is not lack of will nower, self control or motivation causing those unwanted pounds, but the relationship one has with food.

Whether hungry or not, the American way seems to be dictated by food. Stefano, who has degrees in psychology and social work from the University of Michigan, believes that food is consumed for a variety of rea-

"People eat when they are bored, feel stress, are depressed or even angry," she said. "Food seems to play on our emotions. We learn, from childhood, to take care of ourselves with food.

child goes to the doctor for a shot and then receives a sucker when he or she leaves. We learn that food makes the pain go away."

Stefano, who helps individuals change their relationship with food by learning proper techniques to deal with it, looks to combat eating "because I'm depressed" by using a two-step method.

"In order for people to deal with proper weight loss, I recommend they eat only when physically hungry and eat until satisfied," she said. "Those are the two simplest ideas I try to get across.'

Stefano does not try to eliminate foods for dieting, she only suggests people eat what they want, but not in large doses.

"I try to tell people we eat for a lot of reasons," she said. "People eat because they don't know what else to do and they aren't even hungry. If people were to eat only when hungry and eat until they are satisfied, I truly believe they wouldn't have a weight problem.

"When you buy food, you are not only buying the food but all the fun that goes with it," she said. "I want people to eat what

A perfect example is when a they like and taste what they want to taste. I also suggest they have fun eating, but in small amounts.'

> In her program, Stefano tries to help people grasp an understanding of how food affects their lives. Once the person understands the food/life relationship, Stefano steps into another area of her Think Trim concept.

"I try to help people realize the place for food in their lives,' she said. "My job is to help a person develop other ways to take care of themselves. How many times have you sat in front of a television and snacked on something just because there was nothing else to do? That is a very common problem."

Stefano wants the individual to understand why they are eat-

"People shouldn't eat just to relieve a problem," she said. "It's not the proper way to deal with your problem. If you eat for that reason, you are going to possibly gain unwanted pounds."

Asserting one's self is the most important thing when talking about trying to cut back on over-consumption of food. Stefano, in her program, looks at many ways to deal with life's adversities with several suggestions. Each solution varies from person to person, but each student is asked the same questions and are responsible for drawing their own conclusions.

"We work on how to be com-fortably assertive," she said. "We try to ask, what to do with stress, how do you take care of boredom and several other questions. In many instances people alleviate their problems through eating when not hungry."

Stefano does not want individuals to stop enjoying the great tastes in life, only to limit the amounts. She wants people, who want to lose weight, to ask themselves a couple of questions, understand their relationship to food, and then deal with it.

"The bottom line is are you hungry?" she said. "In order for people to lose weight and keep it off, they have got to eat only when physically hungry and eat only until satisfied. This program doesn't eliminate foods, it only suggests you reduce your intake.'

By Mary Busse Smart Family nutrition:

You asked for it The following inquiries are an accumulation of those I received concerning nutrition are of special interest as we get in to the full swing of another school year. Q) As I was growing up, there was very little talk about nutrition. Now, more discussion is devoted to nutrients. Exactly what are

and your family's health, and

A) Nutrients, like gas in a car, keep your body running in good condition. Your body can adapt to a poor diet, but it will not be as healthy and can be more susceptible to illness. Although the word nutrient may sound unfamiliar, fats, carbohydrates, vitamins. minerals, and water (all nutrients) are terms that are widely used. Your nutritional requirements will vary according to age, sex, weight and physical activity. If you are skipping meals, you can become undernourished. Many people believe they are eating well, but are actually deficient in one or more nujust happen. It requires awareness of what you are eating, knowledge about your food choices as to the best sources in each food group and planning out your meals to achieve this goal.

Q) With the children back in school, I want to prepare lunches they will eat, yet I also want them to be nutritious. How can I prepare lunches that will not be thrown out?

 A) Your family needs to understand the importance of natural foods for health and energy. You can save both time and money by finding out their likes and dislikes. Take your children shopping and let them select fruits and vegetables they would like to have included in their lunches. Don't overlook the possibilities of boiled eggs, broiled chicken for sandwiches, celery and carrot sticks, and fresh fruits. (Apples are Mother Nature's best "lunchbag" take alongs). It is also very important to show your children, through your own behavior, the importance of nutrition and wise eating habits. Q) My family loves the jams and jellies Í make everv year. I am concerned about the amount of sugar that goes into my recipe and wonder if the sugar is really so harmful to their health or is this another myth?

A) The end of summer brings with it an abundance of delicious fruits and berries just waiting to be made into jams and jellies. These preserves can be loaded with refined sugars. This sugar lacks nutritional value. It contains no vitamins and minerals and is a contributing factor to obesity, dental care, and other health problems. This year, why not use your home cooking to help control your family's consumption of sugar.

Q) My children always come home from school hungry. I don't like them to fill up on less-than-nutritious snacks. What can I do?

A) Snacking is important for growing children. Caloric and nutritive demands may not be met with three basic meals. In fact, it has been estimated that 25 percent of daily caloric intake for most children comes from snacking. Fresh, crisp apples, oranges, bananas, fresh vegetables, yogurts, (buy the plain and add your own fresh fruits), wholewheat crackers (low or no sodium), naturally-aged cheeses are all good after-school snacks. Children will eat what you have available for them. If you do not keep the "junk" foods in the house, they can't eat them! Healthful snacks can be even more appealing when they are fun. Let your children design "veggie faces" from celery sticks, radishes, cauliflower or green pepper strips. Create "fruit kabobs" from slices of apples, oranges, berries, melon balls.

Q) I am a working mother with an active family. My evenings are so hectic that I seldom have time to prepare nutritious meals that involve a lot of cooking. How can I decrease the amount of convenience foods we consume?

A) Few people realize how detrimental our hectic lifestyles can be to a well-balanced diet. A little planning and preparation, however, can eliminate a dependency upon fast-foods, TV dinners, and high-calorie snacking. Plan for the entire week, making sure you have included foods from the four food groups. Prepare ahead of time whenever possible. Concentrate on foods high in fiber and low in refined sugars, such as wholegrain breads and cereals, fresh fruits and vegetables, and low-fat, high-protein meats. Chicken breasts, off the bone and the skin removed, can be cooked ahead of time in individual foil packets. These can then serve as a base for a delicious stir-fry with fresh vegetables, ready to eat in 10 minutes. Spaghetti sauces, beef and vegetable stews, casseroles can all be made ahead of time. By choosing lean meats and fresh ingredients they also will meet your family's nutritional needs, without the added preservatives, colorings, etc., that are in many of the processed

Q) My children love cold cereal. What should I look for when purchasing these cereals?

A) Some breakfast cereals, expecially sugar-coated, are high in sugar content. It is suggested you serve your family whole grain, natural cereals and breads with no sugar added. Some cold cereals do fit into this category. To find out, always check the label. Be careful of the other names for sugar; they are often referred to as corn syrup, dextrose or glucose. Avoid buying foods listing these sweetners as one of the first three ingredients. Remember, food labels must list food content in order of quantity. There are a number of cold cereals now on the market that are healthy and nutritious. Avoid cereals with the fruit already in the box. Instead, keep fresh fruit on hand to add as desired. Encourage your children to share the responsibility for breakfast. Pancake and waffle mixtures can be made the night before. Use whole-wheat flour for a delicious and more nutritious change. If your family is not used to this more robust flavor, start by combining the whole wheat flour with white, gradually decreasing the white flour to none at all. By Michael Chapp Special Writer

The fatal blow for "Near Dark" is not its obsessive violence. It's not the thin plotline either. What really hurts this picture more than anything else is its pace. "Near Dark" is slow. Very slow. If it moved any slower, it would be going in reverse.

This is not to say that the extremely long and drawn-out scenes of violence are not a detriment to the movie. Same for the plotline. It's just that these two aspects could possibly be overlooked if things generally moved along at a faster clip. As it stands, viewers have too much time to sit and contemplate just how bad this movie really is.

He joins Mae's renegade group of vampirish friends, cruising around the country and killing people. For their blood, of course. Deep down, though, Caleb doesn't really have what it takes to murder. He is attracted to Mae, but he also yearns for the serenity of life on the farm with dad and little sister.

The big question in the picture is whether or not Caleb will find a way to break loose from his captors, become a mortal again, and still hang on to Mac.

'Big Town' lacks that ring of truth

By Marian Trainor Special Writer

"The Big Town" is the story of a small-town Indiana boy, J.C. Cullen (Matt Dillon), who goes to Chicago and beats the big-town goons at their own games.

Dillon, however, never comes across as a small-town product. He's too slick, too savvy, too sure of himself. He takes on the city with all the confidence of a native. Nothing fazes him; not the sleazy joints where he shoots craps; not the intimidating proprietors; not the menacing thug who runs the games. He couldn't be more at ease.

We know that Dillon is adept with the dice. He has earned the designation as "Cully the Arm" in the back of the local garage where he regularly wiped out the local players who gathered to try to beat the odds. He has an uncanny ability to figure the odds and play the percentages. On the advice of a friend, he decides to test his skill against the pros in Chicago. Once there, he joins with a stable headed by a former arm who lost his sight when an irate loser threw acid in his eyes. They are hard-asnails operators. They spell out the rules in no uncertain terms to Dillon, as they outline the percentage that is his and theirs.

No big deal as far as Dillon is concerned. He is confident that no matter how the winnings are cut, his share will be considera-

Woodworking show

The Metro-Detroit Woodworking Show, Oct. 30-Nov. 1, will feature machinery, power and hand tools, supplies, demonstrations, seminars, free workshops and more, for the woodworking enthusiast, homebuilder/remodeler or carver at all levels of expertise - beginner, advanced or professional. The show is at the fairgrounds, Community Arts Build-

His first time out, he comes up against George Cole, (Tommy Lee Jones), a big-time operator, who looks on Dillon as easy pickings. Jones is somewhat amazed and not a little disconcerted when Dillon walks off with all of the money.

Does success spoil Dillon? It does. He buys an expensive wardrobe, takes up with Jones' wife and keeps a running romance going with an unmarried mother who is studying to be a disc jockey.

It's all fun and games until Dillon gets framed and roughed

Like the country mouse who visited the city and decided that maybe country life is better,, Dillon decides that while life in Indiana may have been dull, at least it was not lethal.

This is Director Ben Bolt's first film, although he has directed many television shows in England and the United States. The technique of moving quickly from one scene to another to tell a story in a half-hour is used frequently in "Big Town," abruptly interrupting the film's continuity. The viewer is switched without reason from a love scene to one showing Dillon alone in a bedroom answering a phone call.

Dillon, who displayed charm and flair in "The Flamingo Kid," is a brooding, insensitive and self-centered character here. He wins at the crap game, but he loses when it comes to establishing a rapport with the viewer. The involvement present in another film with a gambling theme, "The Color of Money," is missing here.

Diane Lane, who hangs out in the game room in her gaping kimono, is lush and beautiful. Tommy Lee Jones, in his silk suit and silver dollar tie clip, glowers menacingly as he rakes in the loot daring the players to

Don't look for any humor in the film. There isn't any. It is relentlessly on-line. But it does have great atmosphere. It recreates the '50s in spirit and in every detail.

The Missing LUNC

Linking individuals to Needs in the Community is a non-profit organization whose purpose is to coordinate needs with resources. This is accomplished by placing goods no longer needed by individuals and businesses into the hands of Metropolitan Detroit charitable agencies. Operating since 1971, LINC is proud of the accomplishments it has made and strives to increase its resource base. If you have recyclable items, no longer of use to you, Operation LINC knows who can and will use them. Please call LINC at 882-6100 with your donation. KEEP IT

HAND TOOLS, ELECTRIC SANDER, wood-working tools of all kinds are desperately needed by the MARINERS INN. Due to a robbery the 85 residents of this residential center for homeless men are out of work. Hammers, screwdrivers, plyers ALL TOOLS are needed.

LIKE TO SEW? HAVE EXTRA FABRIC? YMCA CAMP COVELL needs curtains for 24 cabins made from lightweight wash and wear fabric. The camp also needs sofas, chairs, tables and lamps. CAREGIVERS, a home services organization work ing with the Department of Social Services needs MATERNITY AND BABY CLOTHES, sheets, towels, and cloth diapers. These items are needed by foster families.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE BOOKS, MURAL TYPE WORLD MAP, 35 MM camera, bamboo rakes are needed by SHELTERING ARMS, an adult day care center specializing in elderly respite care Also needed is a 16 MM projector to aid in craft projects and for entertainment.

JEFFERSON HOUSE, a residential center of men recovering from substance abuse is in need of a paper shredder to insure the confidentiality of their residents.

BALL, BATS, TENNIS RACQUETS, fishing equipment, board games for all ages, craft supplies and computer game discs would be put to good use at CHILDRENS HOME. These and more items would be used for recreation in this home for emotionally handicapped children.

BASEBALL BATS, SOFTBALLS, GLOVES, CRO QUET SETS, WATER TOYS, BOARD GAMES for all ages and CRAFT SUPPLIES desperately sought by CHILDREN'S HOME OF DETROIT, CURTAIN for a theatre stage would also be greatly appreciated.

At one time, peregrine falcons nested by the thousands throughout the United States. But with the widespread use of the insecticide DDT in the 1940s and 1950s, the species suffered greatly. In the eastern U.S., the peregrine falcon disappeared entirely. Now peregrine falcons have made a comeback, thanks to efforts by conservationists. Since 1975 when recovery programs were established, 752 peregrines have been released in the eastern U.S., and there has been a steady increase in the nesting population. With wise conservation policies, other once rare species such as the American alligator and the bald eagle have also made comebacks. Help save our endangered species. Join the National

Too often, a handicap affects more than a persons body—it affects his job future as well. To help handicapped men and women achieve their true potential, the United Foundation Torch Drive supports ten agencies in the tri-county area that offer job retraining programs.

Last year, you helped fund these agencies with $4.8 million. This year, the need is far greater. Your contributions must help more of the handicapped in need of job retraining, therapy and counseling. So please give more to the Torch Drive and help fund 153 health and human service agencies in the tri-county area. Agencies that deal not only with job retraining, but also with stress, crime, infant mortality, mental retardation and much more. It costs a lot to say yes. But to prevent someone's future from tality, mental retardation and much more. It costs a lot to say yes. But, to prevent someone's future from becoming handicapped, we can't afford to say no.

The best sedan in the world

EVOLUTION OF THE SPECIES

The New Breed Jaguar XJ6

Introducing the 1988 Jaguar XJ6. Like its forebears, its sleek form is taut and well-muscled. Yet it faces the wind with greater aerodynamic efficiency.

True to Jaguar tradition, its new aluminum alloy, fuel injected six cylinder engine has double overhead cams. However, the added sophistication of 24 valves further enhances power and high-speed response. To the classic interior splendor of supple leather and fine wood, the new XJ6 adds advanced computer-age technology—in everything from its climate control system to its Vehicle Condition Monitor, which continually checks 27 critical functions.

The 1988 Jaguar XJ6. It is totally new, yet it reflects the finest traits of its forebears. It marks the evolution of a legendary species. It's little wonder that upon previewing it in Europe. CAR magazine called it "the best sedan in the world."

FOR ONCE THE CRITICS AND THE PUBLIC AGREE

MAHER

It happens once in a great while. A performance so stunning, it galvanizes the critics and public alike.

MAHER

It happened this year. And it happened to a newcomer named Acura.

Witness the accolades. First from the critics: The Acura Legend Coupe was named the 1987 Motor Trend Import Car of the Year. And from the public: Acura was ranked number one in customer satisfaction as reported by the independent

*UD Power and Associates 1987 Customer Satisfaction little insurvey for product quality and dealer service and influential J.D. Power and Associates Customer Satisfaction Index.

Was it the advanced technology? The exhilarating performance? The precision craftsmanship? The bold and ergonomically correct design?

The reviews say it was all of the above. Why read the reviews? When you own an Acura automobile, you can experience the performance.
