Safety is foremost in training of Grosse Pointe firefighters

By Peter A. Salinas Staff Writer

Training fire personnel by creating an actual structural fire in the Grosse Pointes is not done, although one department said it occasionally uses a controlled fire in an abandoned home to get firefighters accustomed to using air packs in a smoke-filled building.

The controlled fire is usually burned inside an empty oil drum or other such fireproof container, according to Park Deputy Public Safety Director Phillip Costa.

Costa said accelerants such as gasoline or kerosene are never used.

"We use paper, wood or rags," he said. "What we want is to fill the structure with smoke and create some heat so the firefighters can get used to actual fire conditions.'

Tragically, three volunteer firefighters perished and four were injured last month in a training exercise in an abandoned house in Milford. The incident is being investigated by state and local officials to determine if there was negligence on the part of the Milford Fire Department. Apparently, accelerants were used to get a blaze started in the 100-year-old farm house.

Costa, and other fire officials around the Pointes, expressed their sadness over the incident, and added that that type of training accident would not occur here

The Park was the only department that currently says it uses fire to create smoke and heat for training purposes. Other department officials said there is continuing training on the use of equipment, firefighting and lifesaving techniques almost every day.

"We try to get our people used to that dirty smoke," Costa said. "We also have a machine that creates non-toxic smoke which is very thick and dense, but it is not the same as the real thing. We have to be especially careful what we do in that area. (Since the incident in Milford) we are now in the process of debating whether to use indoor fire in containers. We have to keep the danger minimized."

Woods Public Safety Director Jack Patterson said the Woods did use container fires inside buildings about eight years ago, but discontinued the practice for two reasons.

'We stopped when the Wayne County pollution controls were implemented," Patterson said. "There is nothing wrong with using fire for training so long as it is contained. The other reason we stopped was that we had good structures we could use like the old Wayne County pump station, which are now gone."

Patterson said his officers try to complete a full fire training cycle every year. The average is about two hours of fire training a week for each officer. They do everything including hose lays, air training.

Clarke said that his department has never used fire for training purposes.

Clarke and the other officials all noted that, as part of becoming a certified firefighter, trainees must fight fires. Specially constructed houses of cement and steel are used as "hot houses" where items are placed within the structure and set ablaze. Trainees, under the careful supervision of instructors, then set about using air packs and fighting the fires. Of course, there is no chance that the structure will catch fire. Such training facilities are located at the University of Michigan. Macomb pack use and other equipment Community College has a Fire Training Academy. Trainees get City Deputy Director Richard to fight actual blazes at specially designed facilities at Selfridge Air Force Base.

Recently, police officers who have cross-trained to be public safety officers in the Park spent about four weeks with the busy Detroit Fire Department, living and working in a fire house, regularly fighting blazes.

Clarke noted that when the Dodge house was in the process of being demolished, City firemen got a chance to use firefighting techniques on one of the buildings on the estate. The firefighters used varied equipment to tear through ceilings, cut holes through roofs and get lad-See HOT, page 4A

Local groups begin AIDS education

By Nancy Parmenter Staff Writer

Grosse Pointers cannot afford to feel complacent about the spread of AIDS. Statistics show that there have already been three AIDS-related deaths in the community.

"Since the number doubles every 11 months, we can expect three more by the end of next year," said Dr. Lawrence Crane, associate professor of medicine at Wayne State University. He also runs an AIDS clinic at Harper Hospital.

Crane was one of two Grosse Pointe doctors who spoke at the AIDS forum sponsored last week by the Family Life Education Council and the Grosse Pointe Ministerial Association. Dr. Chandra Sekar of Detroit Receiving Hospital also spoke.

Concrete information on the spread of AIDS is available through the Centers for Disease Control. One of the pieces of data collected is the ZIP code of tims, he said a number of people have come to various ministers for counseling.

"It's usually a case of the 'onenight-stand guilties,'" Mannschreck said. People tend to give more thought to fleeting relationships after the fact - and then worry about it.

Education about AIDS is a moot question now, since the state legislature has mandated teaching about it in the schools, Crane said. But the state has not specified when schools should teach it.

"You start teaching about AIDS when you teach sex educa-tion," said Crane. But the honic fact is that studies have shown that more parents want their children to know about AIDS than about sex.

"How you're gonna teach one without the other is a mystery of life," said Mannschreck. He was involved in formulating the ministerial association's statement on AIDS a few months ago.

"It's true that Detroit has been hardest hit because of the drug problem," Crane said in a later interview. "This disease isn't confined to certain socioeconomic groups. People are at risk if they have sex with other people."

The only people who can consider themselves safe are those who have been in a sexual relationship with only one other person for a period of years - and know that that other person has also been faithful, Crane said.

The forum was a direct result of the statement. "One of the ministers said we owe it to the community to sponsor (such programs)," Mannschreck said.

About 40 people attended the forum - and asked so many questions that the meeting went beyond its time limit. "Those who came, went away well-informed," Mannschreck said. "I was very, very pleased with both doctors. Chandra Sekar is a very effective speaker with real charisma. They were both excellent."

Chakar, who treats drug addicts, told the group how the AIDS virus attacks the body and how to avoid contracting the disease. He explained that the only known ways of spreading the disease are through sex, through contaminated needles and at birth to an infected mother. Many of the questions dealt with AIDS in the workplace - especially with health care workers, according to FLEC Director Patricia Forster.

Mannschreck, whose wife is a dentist, and who is, himself, trained as a medical technician, said there is a great deal of misinformation about AIDS among the public. He said that stories of health workers who contract the disease usually show that the workers had cuts on their hands and were careless about wearing gloves. "Health care professionals who contract AIDS today are sloppy," he said.

A major concern expressed at the meeting was that as more is learned about the disease, we may find there are additional ways to catch it, Forster said. Questions reflected the fear that "nobody knows about the disease. Today we don't think you can get it from kissing, but what will we know a year from now." Sekar told the audience that the AIDS virus loses its strength when it is airborne, she said.

Mannschreck said there are no current plans to sponsor a simi-

When Jack Grifo retired some half-dozen years ago, he said he was going to do the things he always wanted to do, but never had time for. And he is. Only what he's doing is miles and worlds apart from what he envisioned.

After a lifetime of working in the food industry, Grifo is using the contacts and knowledge he acquired over the years to feed the hungry. From an office in the Gleaners Community Food Bank in Detroit, he solicits staples from the people he knows in the industry throughout the country.

The result is truckloads upon truckloads of food products that would have been discarded because cans were dented or mislabeled, boxes crushed, or the manufacturer came out with a new line. A recent example is the rows of Pampers stacked high in the large warehouse - donated when the manufacturer developed a newer product and didn't want any of the previous line on market shelves.

And Grifo doesn't just sit at a desk either. When a friendly farmer calls and says he has a field full of cabbage that is going to rot because it will cost him more to pick than he can get for it in the market, Grifo joins other volunteers in the harvest. Historical group hosts preservation forum

By Margie Reins Smith Staff Writer

'The heritage of Grosse Pointe is threatened every day," said Kathryn Eckert, Deputy State Historic Preservation coordinator. "Each loss renders Grosse Pointe less and less distinguishable from other places."

Eckert was one of four speakers at a community forum sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Historical Society Oct. 28 at South High School's auditorium. The "Why Preservation and topic: How.'

Cartooning

Professional cartoon artist and illustrator Bogdan Baynert returns to the War Memorial Wednesday, Nov. 11 to offer a six-week class in cartooning.

No prior experience is necessary, just a sense of humor, drawing pad and soft pencil. Baynert will give basic and advanced instruction in action and balance, the comic strip, spot or gag cartoons and caricature.

Students ages 8-14, meet from 4 to 6 p.m.; teens and adults meet from 6 to 8 p.m. Class fee is $40 for six weeks. Call 881-7511.

Grosse Pointe Historical Society, and Patricia Colett, vice president of preservation for the group, gave a brief history of the society, then introduced the speakers to an audience of about 40 people.

Janet Kreger, State Historic Preservation coordinator, outlined a variety of ways a community can promote preservation. Michigan Public Act 169, she said, allows for the establishment of local historic districts and historic district commissions. "About 50 communities in the state have local protective ordinances," she said. "About onethird of these were established in the last five years. There is recent interest in preservation in this state."

In addition to the state's enabling legislation, she mentioned three more ways to promote preservation: advisory ordinances, education and zoning.

Jon Gandelot, an attorney with Gandelot, Stoepker & Dickson, spoke about the financial and tax advantages of preservation. "I was just a normal lawyer," he said, "who fell in love with the Charles Trowbridge Nancy Griffin, president of the House on East Jefferson in 1980. The cost of rehabilitating an 1826 house for office use, while maintaining historical integrity, was a difficult project," he said. "The Economic Recovery Tax Act, which took effect Jan. 1, 1982, allowed historic preservation to take off."

> Gandelot gave an overview of how buildings may qualify for tax credits and what the restrictions are. He also discussed conservation, or facade easements, which are charitable contributions of historic properties.

Holly Fiala, assistant director, midwest region, of the national trust for historic preservation, talked about constituency-building. She praised the survey process. "It's difficult to save a historic environment if you don't first know what you have," she said. Fiala concluded the evening's forum with slides of two communities — Evanston, Ill., and Perrysburg, Ohio - that have successfully preserved large estates and historically significant property.

"Historic resources are our bridge to the past and our bridge to the future," she said.

Peacemakers address violence

Community support and influence affecting problems of domestic violence will be addressed in a series being offered on three November Sundays by the Pea-

Peace: Mission Possible begins Nov. 8 with a presentation by Virginia Catanese, executive director of the new Detroit-based program for domestic abusers, RESPOND, Inc. Catanese, a Grosse Pointe resident and first director of the two-year-old agency, will familiarize her Middle Hour adult education audience with the counseling and job training offered by her agency to individuals referred to it by the Circuit Court and local social work agencies.

Second in the three-part series is Wesley Pelling, president of the board of the Coalition on Temporary Shelter, a program for the homeless in southeastern Michigan. COTS is currently renovating a high-rise residential building on Peterboro in Detroit where it houses men, women and children who for a variety of reasons find themselves without shelter. Pelling speaks at 10:45 a.m. in the church's Barbour Chapel on Nov. 15.

Detroit Councilwoman Maryann Mahaffey will address issues of handgun control on Sunday, Nov. 22, also in Barbour Chapel, between the morning services. A longtime advocate of tighter restrictions on personal possession of firearms, Mahaffey is the final speaker in Peace: Mission Possible.

The Middle Hour education programming at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church is under the direction of the volunteer Christian Education council, which has just completed a five-week series on the renaissance of Detroit.

The public is invited. There is parking behind the church and next door in the War Memorial

Elmore Leonard to speak at library

The Friends of the Grosse Pointe Library will sponsor an evening with Elmore Leonard at Central Library, 10 Kercheval, Thursday, Nov. 12, at 7:30 p.m. Leonard will kick off the evening series to be held at Central Library during the winter months.

Leonard has become one of America's premier writers. He began writing westerns during the '50s. "Hombre" put him on the list of Twenty-Five Best Western Novels of all time.

During the '60s, mysteries, crime and suspense stories became hot and Leonard moved on to them. In this area he found his true metier. His books are not detective stories or mysteries. They contain elements of both, but they are novels. They deal with real criminals in the real world.

His economy of language and his incomparable ear for dialogue have brought comparisons with Hemingway and Philip Roth. Reading Hemingway's books had a profound influence on how Leonard tells a story.

He came into real prominence in 1985 with the publication of "Glitz." It was a book that gave him entry into every major reviewing periodical in the country

Business can help improve quality of life

From our interviews with 19 council candidates in the four Pointe municipalities that went to the polls Tuesday, as well as from other developments, we have been reminded that one of the major concerns in the Pointes is the maintenance of the unique quality of life in this community.

It is clear, however, that the phrase, "quality of life," means different things to different people.

True, most of us agree that the term envisions a residential community with an adequate supply of well-built and wellmaintained homes, a superior educational system, high quality municipal services, good control of crime, traffic and parking, and excellent property values without excessive local taxes.

Yet something is missing from that picture. It is the commercial contribution that offers the shopping opportunities and professional services that the residents of the Pointes require and prefer to obtain close to home.

True, some residents see commercial developments as producing more traffic and parking problems and occasionally attracting unwelcome types of businesses. Yet others see commercial developments, especially those along Jefferson, Kercheval and Mack, as barriers to the intrusion of crime, blight and deterioration as well as tax-revenue producers that can help improve municipal services and protect private property.

With major commercial developments now being completed and others planned in the Pointes, the city councils are being subjected to conflicting pressures over whether commercial developments will help preserve or damage the quality of life in the Pointes.

The liveliest exchange of opinions on the subject erupted during the election campaign in the Park where the recent loss of a $3 to $4 million business development proposed by Fred Ruffner on a city-owned parcel of land between Nottingham and Westchester resulted in a lot of fingerpointing at council members who were accused of having killed the project.

The finger-pointing came not only from Mayor Palmer Heenan but also from the Grosse Pointe Park Downtown Development Council and the Grosse Pointe Park Business and Professional Association. Leaders of both organizations expressed concern that several Park council members had not been supportive of Ruffner's proposed development nor of other proposals for improvements at the Esquire Theater and the boarded-up Unocal station, both on Jefferson.

Yet council member John Prost, one of those named in the DDA attack, said he had reacted to the fears expressed by residents on Westchester and nearby streets that the development would increase the commercialization of their residential area. And Councilman David Gaskin pointed out the council had no information about the Esquire or Unocal proposals at the time they voted on the Ruffner project. Whatever the background, the project currently appears to be dead.

While lacking the pyrotechnics of the Park, councils in the Farms, Woods and City also have been wrestling with traffic and parking problems arising from developments being planned or under way in their communities. In addition, council members have acted to prevent deterioration of the aging homes and buildings in the area. They have required inspections of property when it changes hands to make sure it meets building and safety codes. And several councils are considering regular inspections to force owners to maintain their properties at acceptable standards.

The Pointes need both well-maintained residential areas and well-developed commercial sections. Pointe residents require many services and ought to be able to obtain them without excessive parking or traffic problems. But expanding and prospering business areas can not only serve residents better but through their taxes they also can help finance the municipal services that contribute to the unique quality of life in the Pointes.

Tuesday's election results are not available as this is written. But regardless of the outcome, the councils will have the responsibility of working out plans to satisfy the owners of commercial properties as well as the homeowners because both seek to maintain and improve the Pointes' unique quality of life.

More traffic deaths ahead?

Not on that the governor and the Legislature have ended their sevenmonth battle over raising the speed limit on rural freeways to 65 mph, we can hope for an improvement in enforcement and a reduction in traffic deaths. But don't count on either development occurring immediately.

It will take months for the state to hire and train the 120 state police who will be added to the force as a result of the $5 surcharge on tickets issued for moving vehicle violations. So'Inotorists can continue to exceed both the 55 mph limit on urban freeways and the 65 mph limit on rural freeways with little worry of being ticketed in the near future.

Furthermore, it still is questionable whether a higher limit on rural freeways really will save lives, or increase the number of traffic deaths, even after more state police are patrolling the freeways and enforcement is presumably improved. In signing the compromise into law last week, Gov. James Blanchard took a beating from his Democratic colleagues in the House. After vetoing the first bill to raise the speed limit to 65 mph because it did not contain a ban on fuzzbusters, he accepted a bill that still doesn't ban fuzzbusters. He also had asked for tougher enforcement, but all he got was the $5 surcharge to help hire additional troopers. In fact, under the compromise, penalties will be eased for speeding in 55 mph zones on more than 1,000 miles of urban freeways while penalties will be maintained for speeding on 720 miles of rural freeways zoned for the 65 mph limit. That was a small concession to the urban legislators critical of the bill.

Under the circumstances, however, we agree the compromise legislation is better than nothing. Michigan had been the odd man out in the Great Lakes region with respect to the 55 mph speed limit on rural freeways. Now at least Michigan will be in tune with its neighbors with respect to legal limits on highway speeds.

Perhaps a more important reason to approve the conclusion of the Lansing speed limit controversy is that the Legislature and the governor now can address some of the state's more pressing problems. One of the most serious, obviously, is the condition of the state's finances now that the economy appears to be taking a new downward dip.

The economic slump already has prompted the governor to take two actions: one, to trim the budget by $160 million, and, two, to freeze state hiring, except for the corrections department, already in the midst of a major prison expansion, and the state police, which will add the 120 troopers for traffic enforcement. Also involved in the state financial picture is whether the governor and the Legislature now will agree to return to state taxpayers the estimated $170 million in increased income tax receipts expected this year as a result of changes in the federal income tax law. Passage of the highway speed bill now may enable the Democratic House and the Republican Senate to get together with the Democratic governor to enact the other legislation the state needs. As a result of the stock market crash and its threat to the economy, there ought to be a sense of urgency in governmental fiscal actions in Lansing as well as in Washington.

Reagan's news conferences

President Reagan's recent news conference was only the 42nd he has held in more than six and one-half years in office. That means he is holding full-fledged press conferences at the rate of about one every two months, the second lowest rate of all presidents since press conferences have been televised.

In contrast, President Dwight Eisenhower, the last two-term president, held 193 press conferences during his eight years in office. Richard Nixon with only 37 in his 67 months in office had the lowest rate while his successor, Gerald R. Ford, held 39 in the 29 months he served as president.

True, President Reagan has hosted a few sessions for foreign reporters, regional editors and generally sympathetic columnists, such as Hugh Sidey of Time Magazine and Fred Barnes of the New Republic. But the infrequency of his regular conferences in Washington has led to shouted questions to the president whenever he appears to be in shouting distance of White House reporters.

While the president's answers often become the news of the day from the White House, the shouted questions have led to critical comments from people who have seen the incidents on televised news shows. The press' answer to such criticism is that if the president held more regular press conferences, the press corps would leave him alone when he is within shouting distance.

Reagan's reluctance to hold televised presss conferences has led the National Press Foundation, a Washington-based non-profit group, to try to find out what the next president will do about such meetings with the press corps. At latest count, nine of the current candidates, including most in both parties, had pledged to hold them as frequently as needed but at least more often than the incumbent.

Our favorite response came from Sen. Robert Dole, Kansas Republican. He said: "Keeping open lines to the nation's media should be an essential component of any administration." He might well have added that presidential press conferences serve the public's interest as well as the interest of the press.

As columnist David S. Broder remarked: "The presidential news conference serves a vital function that can be abandoned only at risk to our democracy. The election of a new president offers a golden opportunity to ensure its revival, and the press has a special obligation to see that the opportunity is not missed."

Our time is spent on music To the Editor:

I am a proud, three-year member of Grosse Pointe South's Symphonic Band. I don't want to march and I am sick of reading your distasteful articles about no marching bands at our schools. In every article the writer forgets to mention the finer points of our high school instrumental music program. We take pride in our music program.

Every year the band and orchestra department at South give a concert at Orchestra Hall, one of the finest music houses in the world. And because this concert is of great importance to us, we feel that our attention should be on symphonic band music, not marching.

Another fact that should be mentioned is the schools that do have marching bands have benefits that South and North do not. Most schools in Michigan offer class credits for marching, they go to band camp for a week in the summer, and they devote the firstquarter of school to only marching.

Our instrumental music program has an annual Cabaret concert in November that we must practice for. We don't have time to spend marching and being ridiculed.

So please listen to our side of the story. Why don't those upset about no marching band come to our Cabaret concert on Nov. 13 and see and hear that our time is being well spent on band music rather than marching in the rain.

Correcting an omission To the Editor:

The press and other media did a praiseworthy job of publicizing the civic and charitable contributions of Henry Ford II, his father and grandfather. However, we Sisters of St. Joseph, Nazareth, Mich., noticed one omission — the important role that Henry Ford I played in St. Francis Home for Boys.

From 1889-1907, St. Francis Home housed 110 orphan boys in a former Presbyterian school building in Monroe, Mich.

In 1908, the late Bishop Foley, on the occasion of his golden jubilee, asked that any money in the form of a personal gift be used to provide permanent housing for Catholic boys in Detroit. Property adjacent to the Highland Park Ford plant became the site of the new residence.

This site lasted only eight years because of Ford's success. May 17, 1916, Henry Ford I purchased St. Francis Home in Highland park for use as his trade school. In return, he built a new St. Francis Home on a 32-acre site at 2701 Fenkell. Thanks to Henry Ford, the sisters and 240 boys moved into this building Oct. 3, 1917. This building later held as many as 300 boys and 25 sisters.

For decades a bronze plaque on the wall of St. Francis Home main entrance has stated for all to see: "In grateful adknowledgment of the benefactions conferred on St. Francis Home for Boys by Henry Ford and the Ford Motor Company."

I said, "I do"

It will be one year this coming Sunday, that I said those two words which changed my life - I do.

I haven't used those words at home since. I use different words now. "I will," or "I'll do it tomorrow," or "I'll get it later," and "I didn't do it yet."

It's hard to think back to what it was like when I wasn't married. Not that it seems so long ago, it's more a feeling that a part of me was lost. I can't imagine what it was like to not call home if I was going to be at work late. Going to the grocery store was easier. I used to get what I wanted, but now I look around for something we both like.

Probably my fondest memory from our year-long marriage was Someone, a long time ago, built our trip up north this summer. For four summers when I was in my late teens, I lived and worked on Mackinac Island. We spent two days there this August.

More than anything, I wanted to visit one of my all-time favorite spots. It's called Brown's Brook. It really isn't much, but I've always loved it.

You take your bike around the island, and about halfway you come to a small stream exiting the woods and gurgling into the straits

If you follow the stream back into the woods, you come to the source. The trek back is no easy chore. You have to fight fallen trees, spider webs, mud and muck, but the smell of cedar and the rustling of leaves pushes you on.

After about a mile walk, you arrive at a small pool of water.

a round rock wall around the source, which is perfect for sitting.

Marlene and I had filled a small cooler with ice and orange juice, and had a backpack, which contained nearly a full liter of rum. No, we didn't forget the limes, but we did forget a knife.

It was an extremely hot day. We had just ridden about six miles on the bikes, walked a mile through the woods and we were hot, dirty and a bit tired.

event was how we laughed after finishing the rum and trying to walk back out. That was bad, but not nearly as bad as riding the bikes through the Fudgie traffic around the island. The wind had picked up and was against us the whole way. I got a flat tire just outside of town, and we stopped at the water treatment plant, called a cab and had the horse-drawn vehicle take us back to bike rental.

But marriage isn't Wednesday afternoon on Mackinac Island. It's Tuesday nights, when I work late and Wednesday nights, when she works late. It's only having Sunday mornings to have breakfast together, and trying to find a time when we can go out to a movie. It's her clipping out coupons for food, so I can spend $20 on medicine to make the fish in the 60-gallon aquarium well again.

Last week when I was talking to a well-known businessman, and asked him about the problems in Detroit, he told me something I hope to remember for a long time.

"A city is like a household," he said. "Have you ever seen a household without its share of problems? If you look for faults, you are going to find them. Be positive and look for the positive things, and you will find them."

That's a wise man. Any marriage will have its share of problems, but if you work at making things better and concentrating on the positive, you can get through anything.

I love being married to my wife, and I am very happy.

A small box filled with vials of "low-level" radioactive uranium were found in an alley behind a house on the 1000 block of Beaconsfield on Friday, Oct. 30.

Park Public Safety Director Richard Caretti said a resident found the small wooden box and called police. The vials were marked uranium. Officers brought the department's Geiger counter, determined the stuff was mildly hot and brought it to the department.

The material was placed in the property room, awaiting pick-up by the Wayne County Board of Health. Officials said they didn't know how the material got where it was, but will see to it that it is disposed of properly.

Home for alcoholic women in danger of closing doors

I came from the "Dark Side." The Dark Side is growing up in an alcoholic home, being subjected to all forms of abuse — physical, emotional, mental and sexual. It is living with parents who don't provide security, financial or social. It is growing up in the darkness of fear, pain and loneliness. It is believing you are bad, it is being locked out of the house, it is growing up being taught that "love' means pain. The Dark Side blocks out the light which allows self-esteem, self-image, and self-confidence to grow.

To kill the pain induced by living on the Dark Side, I turned to alcohol. I had watched my parents and they sometimes laughed when they drank. I hoped it would make me laugh too. But for me, alcohol plunged me into deeper darkness, and within that intoxicated void lived my anger, my fear and my overwhelming sadness. The longer I drank, the deeper into the Dark Side I fell, until the only time I could be seen was during periods of violent anger directed at the world in explosions, but more often directed at myself in suicidal implosions.

Thirteen years ago I began a journey out of the Dark Side and into the Light of Hope, Peace and Dreams. A 325pound, drunken dishwasher began a metamorphosis marked by joy and struggle. I began to see that commitment required hard work and determination, that peace and serenity meant exorcising the demons of abuse through exploration, that who "I" was was whoever I chose to be and had little to do with what I was told by twisted people. I learned that I was not bad, or dumb, or ugly, but capable of great goodness, great wisdom and great beauty. To learn these things about myself, I needed the love, support and faith of others, and I was fortunate to have the right special people in my life. Alone I would have perished and would today be locked forever in insanity or violence or death. I was lucky.

When you live for too long in the Dark, the Light is painful and frightening. You need someone and someplace to lead you and protect you until the light becomes a friend. For 24 years, Grateful Home has been a safe place for women; it was here 13 years ago for me, and is here today for others like me.

But three weeks from now this haven may be gone. We have stretched our resources and have done without many things trying to hold until December when the state of Michigan begins to help this program to stabilize and grow. But December is five weeks away and we have no resources left. Nine women who came from the Dark Side of alcoholism and absent opportunity will be without a home. Their hopes will fade, their support will be gone, their chance to build a dream may die. They will be left alone again in the darkness of solitary struggle.

The Alcoholics Anonymous program teaches that God has a purpose for each person who recovers from alcoholism. That for each one of us who make it, 10 will die. I believe God's purpose for my recovery was to show other women they could leave the Dark Side behind. But whatever our lives are or can become, we cannot do it alone.

Today, we need your support. We need your financial help desperately. We have done as much as we can on our own. Please help us. Help us keep the chance for dreams alive.

Best of all, "you can continue to eat all of your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits. You will start losing fat from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight and figure you desire."

There has never been anything like it before. It is a totally new major medical breakthrough for weight loss (worldwide patent pending).

Flushes Fat Out of Body

The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in fat particles. Then, all that trapped fat is naturally "flushed" right out of your body because it cannot be digested.

Within 2 days you will notice a change in the color of your stool as the fat particles are being eliminated.

"Pills Do All the Work"

According to the doctors, the fatmagnet pills do all the work while you quickly lose fat with no starvation diet menus to follow, no calorie counting, no exercising, and no hunger pangs. It is 100% safe. You simply take the pills with a glass of water before meals.

The fat-magnet pills have just been offered to the American public and are already sweeping the country with record sales and reports of dramatic weight loss. It's the "lazy way" to lose weight for people who enjoy cating.

Now Available to Public If you need to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these new highly successful fatmagnet pills (now available from the doctor's exclusive manufacturer by mail or phone order only) by sending $20 for a 90 pill supply (+$2 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+$3 handling), cash, check or money order to: Fat-Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. November 5, 1987 Grosse Pointe News Schools Student Spotlight Bridget Kaiser

Each week in this column, we will focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a woodworking project, a book review.

The following story was written by Bridget Kaiser, a thirdgrader at Richard School. She is the daughter of Christine and Jay Kaiser of Grosse Pointe.

The Halloween Shadow

Ring! "Hello," I said, "Hi! May I speak to Bridget?" "Mia? Hi, how are you?" "Fine, want to go trick-or-treating with me?" "Okay, but I'm not going to tell you what I am, bye." It was Halloween. I was going to be a witch.

At 8:00 I started out to meet Mia. I waited by the elm tree, then Mia came. "BOO!" "Don't scare me like that!" "How come you took so long?" "I put on some scary make-up," I said. Well, let's go! An hour passed and the wind picked up.

Suddenly Mia and I were grabbed by something! A GOB-LIN! Ah! Ah! It had long brown fingers. Then the goblin let go of us. We heard leaves crunching, Mia and I saw a huge shadow, the thing got closer...and closer.

Suddenly, we saw a big ghost! It glowed in the dark. It chased us into the graveyard. "BOO!

Ha! Ha! Ha! It's me, Mark.' "You brat, I'm going to get you," I cried. I chased him all the way home with Mia right behind me.

"Mark," I said the next day "What was the goblin?" "Old man Berry's crabapple tree. Boy, were you scared." I sure was scared. Mia came over at noon. I think I'll never go trick-or-treating again.

This space is open to any student in the Grosse Pointe public or private school system from grades 1 through 12.

The number one cause of death among 15- to 24-year-olds is drinking and driving, but Grosse Pointe teenagers are working to change the odds. More than 70 students from North and South high schools attended a training session for the Safe Rides program recently. Last year more than 450 calls were received from students attending a party, on a date or babysitting – requesting a confi-dential safe ride home.

South offers special program on securing financial aid

A special program on financial aid for college planning for parents of juniors and seniors will be held Wednesday, Nov. 11, at 8:15 p.m. in the auditorium of Grosse Pointe South High School.

The featured speaker for the one-hour session will be Glen O'Kray, financial aid officer at Henry Ford Community College and a recognized expert in the field. South's Counseling and Guidance Department has planned the program to provide the latest available information about applying for financial aid using the Financial Aid Form (FAF) or the Family Financial Statement (FFS). Parents of juniors will meet with their student's counselors in small group meetings at 7:30 p.m. These small group meetings have been designed to provide up-to-date information for family discussions about the future plans of South's juniors.

The Grosse Pointe Safe rides program began at South in 1984 and North in 1985. More than 200 students and 60 parents have volunteered for the program this year. Safe Rides volunteers do not condone teenage drinking and make every effort rather be out in the gleaning fields," he said. "It's hard work, but it's so nice.

Grifo had, in fact, been in the fields the day before at the Oliver farm on 23 Mile and Gratiot. "We gleaned over 200 bushels of butternut (squash). You've got to realize the bountiful earth," he fairly shouts with enthusiasm, "and it's going to somebody who's going to appreciate getting it.'

Generally when the farmers call, the vegetables have to be picked within a day or two, and Grifo said the food bank loses out on a lot of harvest because there aren't enough volunteers who can pick during a weekday. So he says he has a deal for the senior citizens of Grosse Pointe for next year's harvest season. He'd like to develop a list of volunteers whom he can call at the last minute, and if they have other plans, that's all right, too. A day of gleaning is about five hours of work and volunteers set their own pace. It's not easy work, picking apples or cabbages or beans, he said, but he guarantees them a lot of camaraderie and most important, a gratifying day.

Grifo, who was president of Superior Potato Chips, said, "This is the most gratifying thing I've ever done.

"I've found more comfort in the Gleaners than any place else. I never knew there was so much hunger around."

of the committees at the Gleaners, there are 673,000 people in the tri-country area who are hungry.

"I'd like to make people aware of the real serious problems, because there are cynics in Grosse Pointe, like myself - I was one of them — that there just aren't jobs for these people and there won't be any. If a person is 55 and laid off, where does he get a job?"

Grifo said one possible answer is to create jobs for the older unskilled worker, like fixing roads,

According to research by one highways and bridges. "It's sad to see a man who wants to work and can't. I always thought that anybody who didn't have a job didn't want to work and that's not true. People who are unemployed are hurting.'

Grifo volunteers three or four days a week at the Gleaners, but he doesn't stop there. He recently gained approval from the Warren city council to build senior citizen subsidized housing on land donated by the Italian American Cultural and Community Center, an organization of which he was president for five years.

He was turned down for federal funds three years in a row and finally secured a grant the fourth time around. Tivoli Manor, an 80-unit complex, should be ready for occupancy next year.

During his spare time, Grifo enjoys working around the large house on Lakeland he bought in 1971. He works inside and out and is currently redoing the landscaping. "I like to end the day so tired, I can't walk up to the shower," he said. "When I quit working, I bought a sailboat and I got tired of that real fast. Then I played golf and I don't play as much any more."

Now Grifo is likely to stop at the Belle Isle driving range after a day at the Gleaners and whack away at a basket of balls.

Grifo was born in Pennsylvania and he attended college there and in Chicago. After serving in the infantry in World War II, he married and settled in Montclair, N.J.

He was vice president in charge of worldwide marketing services for Ward Foods in New York when he decided to pull out of the fast lane. He said he chose to come to Detroit and manage some of his organization's companies. It was 1971 when he, his wife Eleanor, and their six children moved to Grosse Pointe.

Dealing with truck drivers who refused to work in Detroit because of crime was the impetus to establish the Michigan Business and Labor Task Force Against Crime. Grifo said the group helped get legislation passed and also instituted better safety procedures.

Grifo was honored as Man of the Year by the 3,000-member Michigan Food Dealers Association. \overline{He} is also involved with the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce and he represents the chamber on the Federal Emergency Management Agency board.

Even though he's as busy in retirement as he was before, Grifo says one of the many good things about it is "I don't have to meet the bottom line anymore, except for those quotas I set for myself."

... Not Too Good To Be Trac Just Too Good To Ignore

The Gleaners: Background

Since opening its doors in 1977, the Gleaners Community Food Bank has distributed more than 31 million pounds of food to about 175 agencies in the area, including the Capuchins, Fort Street Presbyterian, Shar House, Volunteers of America and the Salvation Army.

It was set up as a central warehouse with freezers and enough space to store massive quantities of food, something the individual agencies could not provide.

There are 46,000 square feet of space on three floors of the warehouse on Beaufait. and besides a number of industrial freezers inside the building, there are three 40foot refrigerated trailers parked outside.

To become a member of the food bank, an agency must meet certain criteria, such as having a non-profit status with the IRS and a system of feeding at least six needy people. The agency must meet local, state and national health requirements for handling and storing food and must have adequate refrigeration and storage space. The member agency pays a fee for the food it receives, which helps in the maintenance of the food bank. The fee is 12 cents a pound for everything, including meat, canned goods and other staples. Fresh vegetables are 6 cents a pound, volunteer Jack Grifo said, because it's necessary to move the produce fast.

Between 15 and 40 member agencies a day pick up food orders which have been placed by phone several days before. The entire operation is computerized and member agencies receive a print-out of what is available.

There are more than 200 contributors, from large food corporations to individual farmers. Financial supporters number around 40, including General Motors, Chrysler Corp., Michigan Bell, Kmart, food at Christmas and other times to people who are unemployed or otherwise having a hard time making ends meet.

The Pantry Pac costs $15.75 and consists of 30 items, including soups, juice, vegetables, tuna, peanut butter, rice, macaroni and cheese, oatmeal and powdered milk.

The Gleaners needs volunteers to pack boxes. Grifo said it would be a good service project for a boy scout troop or any other club or organization that would like to volunteer time on a Saturday.

The Gleaners makes up about 75,000 boxes a year which are used throughout the state. Last year, the state Department of Social Services ordered 24,000 Pantry Pacs for the people in central Michigan who were victims of the fall 1986 floods. Grifo said the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce, and locally, Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

A separate service begun in 1983 is the Pantry Pac, a prepackaged box consisting of 47 meals of canned and dried foods that need no refrigeration. The Pantry Pac is available to churches and other organizations that distribute that any group, firefighters, for example, that collects money for food baskets for the needy can get more food for their money with a Pantry Pac than buying retail. For more information on any of the programs or to volunteer, call Grifo at the Gleaners at 923-3535.

To the Editor:

As a former Grosse Pointe South band member, I am appalled at the many misconceptions that the community has about the no marching band situation. After reading the Oct. 22 letters, it seems that many people do not understand the viewpoint of the music student.

Students join band to express themselves through the music — not through marching. The non-mandatory code makes it possible to have quality groups year after year and allow the band students freedom to participate in other school activities.

Many band members are involved with sports teams: tennis cross-country, soccor, swimming and even football to mention a few. These teams usually have meets and games on Saturday, which is the same time that the band is expected to perform. If marching were mandatory, all of these people would be excluded from their sports or they wouldn't play in the band. For example, one of the tuba players is also the captain of the football team. He is an integral part of both. Several other people also show this duality. Force the kids to march and the quality of the symphonic band will go down because they must choose between the two.

Unfortunately, this very thing happened at Grosse Pointe North. March was mandatory for all band students and the enrollment dropped severely. 1986-87 Symphony Band at North had approximately 30 students. The policy has since been dropped, but who knows if the program will recover after this devastating fall. A rejuvenating process may occur due to the non-mandatory marching code.

I am still amazed that the Grosse Pointe community fails to realize that their school system has one of the finest music departments in the state, if not the country. For more than 30 years, both the Symphonic Band and Symphony Orchestra have received first division ratings (superior) at the Michigan Band District Festival. These achievements only come from hard work and discipline on the part of the students and director, so do not ask "Where is the dis-cipline?" Every day more than 100 students work together in cooperation, striving to reach a goal of excellence.

As a result of this work, every year South's music department holds its spring concert at Orchestra Hall. That's where the Detroit Symphony plays. Yes, a high school group performs in a major concert hall. How many of you "supporters" attend this concert or any throughout the year? Maybe if people in this community take a look at what your school music departments have to offer - high quality music performance - instead of what they have not, judgments of apathy, undiscipline, and deterioration would not be made without examining all the facts and the viewpoints.

To the community — your high school students do care about the music department. Why don't you all go to their concerts and see for yourself. That includes you too, Dick Purtan and Nickie Mc-Whirter.

Shores police a fine group To the Editor:

On Aug. 18, while visiting us, my husband's aunt fell at our home and broke her hip. I telephoned the Grosse Pointe Shores police for an ambulance, and as I turned on the light on the house, a policeman was already coming up to the door. The ambulance arrived within minutes, and the officers were kind, caring and knowledgeable. They put on a temporary splint, because she could not straighten her leg, and transferred her to the ambulance.

The service we received that night was outstanding in every way, and I want to take this opportunity to say "thank you" to a fine group of men. We are very fortunate to live in Grosse Pointe Shores and have this wonderful service.

Police ask for help

To the Editor: Grosse Pointe Lodge No. 102, Fraternal Order of Police, with a membership composed entirely of officers of the five Grosse Pointe communities and Harper Woods, is presently conducting its annual Widows', Orphans' and Benevolent Fund Drive.

The fund was established for the express purpose of providing supplementary financial assistance to the families of retired members, to permanently disabled members, and to the widows and minor children of deceased members.

The fund also maintains an Educational Assistance Program through which children of deceased or disabled members may, upon evidence of superior scholastic potential and specific need, receive financial aid to further their education.

The lodge's growing commitment in these and other areas has created conditions which force it to seek financial help. The avenues open to members of law enforcement agencies in this regard are definitely limited and quite properly subject to public review.

Therefore, our only approach to the problem is to simply state that we are in need of assistance and would appreciate any financial aid you may wish to extend. This is the only fund drive benefitting all of the police officers of the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods. Should there be by any question regarding any police fund-raising, please call your local police station for information regarding the solicitation.

Grosse Pointe

To the Editor: Judging by the number of off-school hotel/motel parties that took place on homecoming night, Oct. 9, the parents of many our teenagers are living up their reputation of GPW, Grosse Pointe Wimps!

Why don't you parents control your children? Wake up! Since when should these youngsters be allowed to go somewhere to drink, do drugs and who knows what else, under the cop-out excuse of "they are going to do it anyway." You know you could make them stay home if they don't behave according to your expectations. They are not adults and we should stop treating them like they are. They need structure and discipline.

Let's step up to our responsibility before prom time rolls around and the same nonsense starts again. Name withheld by request

The right stuff To the Editor:

I cannot ignore the recurrent theme of Nickie Mc-Whirter's recent article titled "Immaturity, lack of spirit have stopped the music." (Detroit Free Press) Once again, the mindless behavior of the few has affected the general population of Grosse Pointe. Thanks for silencing the marching bands this year. If it is not defacing public property, Devil's Night pranks, or end of school year rowdyism, it is something else -- the punks strike again.

I second Ms. McWhirter – the culprits are of a small cadre of students with too much time on their hands. Not one is an athlete, a scholar, a musician or a school politician. Each is just a simple punk on a tangent going nowhere.

My message to you macho punks is: Hey losers, why not cut the nonsense, use the tools available in Grosse Pointe and make something of your lives... Too much of a challenge?

For the majority of the students, those like Jim Hardwick, you have "the right stuff." Go for the gold and don't let the bastards get you down. Operas need music.

There is hope To the Editor:

I read with interest your beautiful article on depression and the newly formed support group which meets at Cottage Hospital. Only one who has availed themselves of such a group can fully appreciate the dynamics of the group and the love and fellowship which flow

Fire destroys Park roof

Fire destroyed a roof of a house on Wayburn Wednesday night, Oct. 28, after firefighters believed they had extinguished a blaze earlier in the night.

Deputy Director of Public Safety Phillip Costa said officers arrived on the scene around 8 p.m. and put out a fire that had started on a gas stove and vented an exhaust pipe that led out the side of the house. Officers had the small blaze under control quickly and returned to the station around 9:20 p.m.

Costa said that a second call from the house came in at 11:13 p.m. The fire had apparently worked its way through the walls of the "balloon-type con-from it.

I have known depression but it was secondary to alcoholism. I must take exception with one sentence in the article that indicates that help for depression can make the alcoholism "go away."

Never. Only death will remove my alcoholism. I am recovering and pray that I will be a recovering (as opposed to practicing) alcoholic for the rest of my life. I strive daily to rebuild my life, my self-esteem and the lives of others by living what I an learning through my close association with AA. I do know:

Alcohol is itself a depressant. It will magnify depression.

There are many cross-addicted alcoholics — cross-addicted not only to street drugs, but frequently to prescription medication instead (eg. Betty Ford). Drugs and alcohol frequently don't mix.

Alcoholism never, never goes away, but people can and do become recovering alcoholics and live lives that are "happy, joyful and free" and sober and productive and happy.

AA offers hope and help to those who desire to stop drinking. This is the only requirement for membership. Name withheld by request Grosse Pointe opened up a cornice, but the wooden shingles under the asphalt had apparently held the fire.

"We wouldn't have been able to find it unless we had taken off all of the shingles, which we ended up having to do when we went back the second time. We had gone back feeling we had accomplished a good job, but had to go back an hour later."

When firefighters arrived on the scene the second time, the roof and attic area were extensively involved, and flames were shooting out the roof.

Chest pain: Heartburn or heart attack?

If you feel a burning pain just behind your breastbone, it's only natural for your thoughts to leap to "I'm having a heart attack." Actually, the discomfort may only be heartburn, the symptom of a common and easily treatable digestive disorder called gastroesophageal reflux disease. Although reflux can be serious and lead to a number of complications, it is not deadly.

Heartburn occurs when acid from partially digested food washes back into your esophagus the tube that connects your mouth with your stomach. This acid irritates the acid-sensitive receptors in the esophagus, producing the intense pain that so perfectly mimics the radiating discomfort of a heart attack. About 10 percent of the patients with reflux go to their doctors complaining about recurring

A complete cardiac work-up is what Dr. Richter calls "an irrita-Tensilon that prompts the esophagus to contract and reproduces the chest pain. This proves it's coming from the esophagus.

Missant also chaired Maire's millage campaign.

Rasmussen's volunteer activities have taken many forms. She has been active in the Grosse Pointe South Mother's Club, served as recording secretary for two years, president-elect and years, organizing and assisting with projects such as Green Circle, K.E.N.N.Y., Parenting Program and Brunch with Santa. She is now serving her second year as president of the PTO/ PTA Council. Under her leadership, the council reorganized and sponsored an orientation meeting for new parents in the fall.

The city council originally asked the commission to look at possible ways to regulate day care through an ordinance.

Planning Commissioner Robert Frederick cast the lone vote against holding a public hearing without an ordinance to consider. He believes the council would have more solid information to work with if presented with an ordinance - even if the noise from the the children she planning commission members don't agree with it.

"The council would be better served if we say we don't think there should be any (day care), city to rewrite the ordinance or but if you think there should be, here's how you can regulate it," he said Thursday.

commissioners have an opinion. He hasn't said how he feels about day care, either.

"To disclose your opinion before getting any input (from the community through the public hearing), would be to have a closed mind," he said. "We're a fact-finding body."

The daycare issue came up in July when neighbors of Sheila Temkow complained about the cares for at her home. The city issued a cease-and-desist order, the Temkows went to court for a 90-day injunction and asked the to interpret the current one as allowing daycare homes.

At the time, it was learned Nobody wants to come right that Temkow had allowed her since renewed it. She has another court date in December,

Young artist competition planned

Oakway Symphony of Wayne and Oakland counties is setting plans for its 1988 Young Artist Competition for the 10th annual vear.

The Arts Foundation of Michigan has awarded a $1,000 prize for the competition which also will include a $300 Nelda Di-Blasi Vocal Award plus additional awards by the Oakway Symphony.

Auditions will be held at Madonna College, Livonia, Jan. 16 and 17, 1988. Winners will ap-that home day care is a use compatible with residential.

According to city attorney Catlin, even if the city changes its ordinance, many of the subdivisions have restrictions against any business use of the homes and the city has no power over the restrictions.

"Restrictions is exactly what the Beverly Island case was about," said Belanger. In the 1982 Beverly Island vs. Zinger case, "the Michigan Court of Appeals declared that home care within certain restrictions is consistent with residential use. We're using that case.'

Belanger said he is disappointed that the public hearing will not feature an ordinance amendment. "An ordinance provides a framework for discussion." he said. "This could turn into just a gripe session.'

Frederick said he hopes it doesn't do that. "There shouldn't be any winners or any losers," he said. "Situations with strong feelings on both sides beg for compromise." What's more, "my suspicion is that the ordinance is going to come into play at that meeting anyway, if only because the proponents are aware of similar ordinances in other communities.

The ordinance prepared by Catlin has been temporarily put aside, but is expected to be resurrected if the public hearing warrants it. It proposes to regulate daycare homes by limiting ger, hopes to convince the court them to five children, including the children of the operator; prohibiting them from staving at the home overnight; and keeping them on the property while they are in care. Operators would be required to have a state license; to apply to the city for permission; to first undergo a public hearing. No daycare home could be located within 1,000 feet of another one.

> Several planning commissioners said the regulations may be too strict. "These encrustations are a turning of the screw to make it more difficult (to operate a home)," Frederick said at the meeting.

> "I have a problem with some of the limitations in the proposal," Fraley said. "It would restrict day care in some ways that wouldn't be beneficial to the community,

Commissioner John Kennedy disagreed: "The rules are to protect children. It's a controlling effort rather than an effort to (make it harder)."

Amid concerns that presenting the ordinance for public discussion would make it appear that the commission favors day care, Chairman Peter Gilezan took a stand. "I'm opposed to a public hearing to consider this ordi-nance," he said. "It's been four months, I've talked to a multitude of people and read tomes and my mind is made up on this ordinance."

Free diabetes screening test offered

Cottage Hospital will hold a diabetes screening clinic Monday through Friday, Nov. 9 to 13. Free blood tests are offered from 9 a.m. to noon, in the hospital laboratory, to anyone 18 years old or over who is not a known diabetic.

Diabetes Detection Week is an annual effort to identify the estimated 240,000 people in the state of Michigan who have undiagnosed diabetes and, consequently, are not being treated.

Tests are given on an informal, drop-in basis at the hospital, 159 Kercheval, between Moross and Cadieux, in Grosse Pointe Farms. The test should be done two hours after eating.

Third generation guides Woodbridge Tavern to new life

By Pat Paholsky News Editor

22A

Like her mother before her and her mother's mother before that, Marcia Cron runs a tavern. Same location, same building only the name has changed over the years.

It started out as Van's grocery store, became Van's Cafeteria, then Dick's Bar, and now in its 82nd year of business at 289 St. Aubin and Woodbridge, it's known as the Woodbridge Tavern.

Cron, a slender woman who laughs easily and often, says, "It's not just a business. It's a part of me. I have so many memories. I remember sitting at these tables with my family and I remember sleeping on the back porch on summer nights."

When her grandmother, who started it all, came to this country from Belgium, she settled in the St. Aubin-Woodbridge area where many Belgians lived.

She opened a grocery store in 1905 in what is now the bar or front part. Her husband died shortly after coming to this country and she and her three children lived in what is now the middle or dining area and rented the rooms upstairs to boarders. There were seven rooms and one bathroom up.

The area was a bustling port, and Euphrasie Brunelle, whose second husband was Dick Van deWalle, sold staples to the sailors. She soon discovered it was more profitable to sell them spirits which she did illegally. It was Prohibition.

When one of her daughters, Julia, was 13, she was given a car with no seats. It was her mother's job, Cron said, to go to the stills, pick up the liquor, cover it with a blanket and then bring it back to the business.

The illegal part of the business had since moved to the basement, a move that was made after several raids and after Euphrasie's new husband was caught going over a fence and spent 30 days in jail.

The blind pig flourished and its clientele included members of the Purple Gang. And Cron, who has been involved in the women's movement, said, "My grandmother wouldn't allow women in, only men."

Julia married Marcellus Cron in 1930 and they both became involved in running the busi- professional jobs. ness. They had four children - a daughter, Marcia, and three sons.

Marcia, who had an accounting degree from Wayne State University, worked for FTD (Florist Transworld Delivery), traveling throughout the United States and Europe. After that, she had her own company, New Options, which placed women in Marcia Cron stands in one corner of Dick's Duck Walk, an outdoor area under a grape arbor that is part of the Woodbridge property that she recently opened for eating and imbibing. The area is long and narrow, and according to its part-serious, part-fun history, ducks during the bitter winter of 1927 that normally wintered on the banks of the Detroit River fled inland where they were drawn to the warm back walls of the busy - and illegal - blind pig that flourished there.

British exhibit to open new gallery

The prints and drawings of "Two British Artists: Lucian Freud and David Hockney" will be shown in the inaugural exhibition of the Joy Emery Gallery, opening at 131 Kercheval Ave., Grosse Pointe farms, on Thursday, Nov. 12.

Both artists are an important part of the contemporary art world of Great Britain. Freud, interested in the relationship bewhose work is currently on display in a major exhibition at the Hirshhorn Museum in Washington, D.C., is considered Britain's prints, like his paintings, reflect Grimm" and a selection of prints his concern with the human condition and with the realistic presentation of both human and natural forms.

David Hockney's work combines a unique decorative and illustrative approach. Also a realist, Hockney is particularly tween the figure and the space it occupies. Included in the prints exhibited in this show will be 39 etchings he produced after "Six strongest figurative painter. His Fairy Tales from the Brothers

The family business was "something I was going to do one of these days," Cron said. When her mother died in 1975, her father told her she could buy it or he would sell it and that's when Cron decided that "one of these days" had arrived.

"It was so natural to me because my grandmother lived upstairs when she stopped taking boarders in the '40s and I was down here all the time," Cron said. "There were homes all around, shotgun homes with potbelly stoves."

The business stopped serving food after World War II and was a neighborhood business. Cron said when she first took over, she envisioned a small luncheon place. "There just didn't seem to be any place nearby where the white collar worker could go."

She adds, "It just sort of snowballed. Initally we were not even open at night.'

Today there's a lunch menu, dinner menu, a recently added brunch on Sunday and a new ca-tering business. "We just did a party for 500 and gave a quote for an event for 1,500 people.'

On premise, the tavern can host a private party of up to 350 in the summer and 200 in the winter. "Off premise, we will deliver or we'll send service people out and set everything up.³

In the summer, there are 50 to 60 employees, most of them part time, and the number drops to between 30 and 40 in the winter.

One of the biggest problems Cron said she encountered when she first opened was sexism. Contrary to what is written in the media about women not supporting women, Cron says her female friends got their friends to come in. "They came and they supported me.'

Cron said her immediate goals are to recreate the blind pig in the basement as it was - the wall murals are barely visible -and open it with costumed waitpersons, keeping the speakeasy flavor. She'd also like to renovate the upstairs for a banquet room.

Cron has a 16-year-old son, Michael, who is a sophomore at Notre Dame. She also has an adopted daughter, My Lang, who is now an adult.

She moved to the Farms in 1970, and in 1978, bought a large house in Grosse Pointe Park. It had to be big, she said, because her father was living with her, and the three generations needed room. "My dad would forget how old I was and he'd say, 'Do you know what time you got in last night?"" ness, she requested that the funeral procession pass by for the last time. Her father drank Budweiser, Cron said, and when the cortege passed, every employee stood out front with a can of Bud upraised in a salute.

People from the old days still come in, Cron said, and tell her, "I used to come here when you were a little girl."

Cron introduced roof-top dining to the area. When she was in Boston years ago, she saw a restaurant that put tables on its flat roof. "There was candlelight and I thought it was marvelous. People laughed and said, 'Why, to look at factories?" The idea has now spread to other bars and restaurants in the area.

She also opened the back area underneath a grape arbor. It's called Dick's Duck Walk and it has a special duck-dominated menu of items "to quack about." The Woodbridge attracts a cross-section of people from 21 to 80, Cron said, including people in formal wear, stopping afterward. Once a bridal party, with the bride and groom still in their finery, and their wedding party came in after the reception.

There's entertainment almost every night with no cover charge. And then there's Judy, a sassy, saucy waitress who reminds her customers to leave her a tip. "Judy's a trip," Cron said. She'll get a party of glum people who will end up laughing and enjoying themselves after Judy gets them going.

Cron, who spends most of her time at the tavern, gets away by boating, skiing and perhaps one day, flying. "I'm taking flying lessons and I'm supposed to solo, but I keep chickening out. It's scary.'

Cron is on the boards of Rivertown Business Association and the Michigan Restaurant Association, She's also on the board of the March of Dimes.

t's a natural. After 39 years of providing quality an-tiques for sale at Detroit's most popular and longest running antique show, the Goodwill Antiques Show and Sale will celebrate its 40th anniversary by providing some helpful hints on collecting and displaying antiques.

The Goodwill Antiques Show and Sale, sponsored by the Junior Group of Goodwill Industries, opens tonight with its benefactor patron and honorary chairman reception and its patron opening party; show days begin in ear-and continue through Sunday, Nov. 8.

And on Saturday, Nov. 7, from 4 to 5:30 p.m., Antiques Show and Sale visitors can take the "Champagne Decorators Tour," a tour of the show with local decorators who will help with ideas on collecting and using antiques. Cost is $10 for a patron tour ticket, $15 for a regular tour ticket which includes general admission to the show.

"We thought it would be a kind of neat idea. It's a fun thing, and it may also help people who are avid collectors or new to collecting find creative tions," said Mary Schroeder of Grosse Pointe, co-chairman of the Antiques Show and Sale.

Robert Edgar Lee, ASID, of Grosse Pointe is one of the four metro area interior designers who will lead the tours. Lee is owner of Interior Designers Inc. He has been active in ASID (American Society of Interior Designers) for 25 years, worked in the design department at J.L. Hudson for 17 years and also spent time with such prominent studios as Maurice Wood, Austin Interiors and Pierson's Interiors.

the first year of the tour, I'm not quite sure what to expect but I think it will be fun for me and informative for those who participate," Lee said.

Lee noted that one of the greatest problems he encounters in working with clients is helping them make their purchases "fit" the design of their homes. "It's one thing to buy an antique and quite another to display it well in the home. I think that the introduction of this feature will enlighten people who are collectors - and even beginners - on how to collect, what to collect and what not to collect," he added.

Lee said that as a designer, his approach is decorate a room or an area with things of a similar nature. "There shouldn't be a conflict in period, style and substance. And one should never put a price on a piece. That's not the point of collecting," he said.

Among the "hints" Lee may impart during his tour:

• "Collect things appropriate to your lifestyle."

• "Remember that there is a place in every interior for bronzes, porcelains, country and classics.'

• "Accessories are only one facet of an interior. But they are the jewelry of an interior and as such should be well thought out. A room doesn't say much if they aren't."

• "A room should invite one in. Filling a room up with 'things' is a violation of the principals of design."

Antique collectors in this area are generally pretty knowledgeable, Lee said. Some people, however, buy pieces and then don't know what to do with them. "Antique shows are wonderful places to learn. Antique shows, particularly ones of quality and

November 5, 1987 Grosse Pointe News Faces É places Swedish smorgasbord a smash

Members of the Detroit-Swedish Council were busy for weeks cooking and baking in preparation for the 11th annual benefit smorgasbord enjoyed by local members and guests on Sunday, Oct. 25, at the Cross & Trecker headquarters in Bloomfield Hills.

Richard T. Lindgren, president of the Cross & Trecker Corporation, and his wife, Lois were co-chairmen of the event. Hosts and hostesses included Grosse Pointe residents Kathryn and Gordon Buehrig, Verna and Carlton Lindell, Jane and Walter Wood and Ingrid Koebel.

Other hosts and hostesses were Julie and Roy Dahlberg, Pat and Jan Hartmann, Bev and Bill Hoglund, and president Signe Karlstrom.

Tables were set with gingerbread houses as centerpieces and flowers and candles which added a festive touch. The evening began with a "sillbord" (herring table) offering a variety of fish, and in the Swedish tradition, guests sang as they tasted the "snaps." Preparing the food were Karin and Lennart Johansson, with the help of their son Staffan and Margareta and Olaf Lundblad.

Among those who enjoyed the evening - and the crowd was the largest since the smorgasbord began - were Grosse Pointers Jean and Ozzie Olson, Doris and Wesley Johnson, Mary Lundell Brown (who handled reservations) and Pat and Erick Erickson.

There's no place like Homecoming:

'Tis the season for homecoming and no less than three local folks had roles in their college's homecoming festivities.

Timothy F. Sheridan of Grosse Pointe Woods was crowned king of the 1987 homecoming court at Michigan State University, where he is a student in MSU's James Madison College. Sheridan, son of Dan and Sue Sheridan, was picked from the 10-member court to reign as this year's homecoming king during MSU's homecoming Oct. 20-24. He was sponsored by MSU's senior class council, of which he is an active member.

Fellow Grosse Pointe Woods residents and Northwood Institute students Paul Mattes and Dora Friedel, were members of Northwood's homecoming court. Doug, son of Paul and Barbara Mattes, is a Grosse Pointe North High graduate and a marketing and management major at Northwood. Dora, daughter of Doug and Diane Friedel, is a graduate of Our Lady Star of the Sea High School. She is a fashion merchandising and marketing major.

All about dinner at lunch:

The name of the Michigan Cancer Foundation's annual black-tie fundraising affair set for next May is "Who's Coming to Dinner?" And what better way to find out about just who is coming to the dinner than at lunch?

Guests who attended the special patron committee kick-off luncheon Oct. 26 at the Grosse Pointe Shores home of Ron and Mary Lamparter enjoyed a "sneak preview" of the entertainers slated to appear at the event. Those celebrities include Dionne Warwick, Isabel Sanford, Bruce Weitz, Tim Reid and Norman Fell. Honorary chairpersons for the dinner are Don and Jody Petersen; Gene and Marcia Applebaum are dinner chairmen.

For more information on the event, call Liz Mitchell at 833-0710.

Benefit for Carolyn:

Nov. 8

Pi Beta Phi

The Pi Beta Phi Alumnae Club of Grosse Pointe will have an Arrowcraft arts and crafts sale on Sunday, Nov. 8, from 1 to 5 p.m. at 23 Beverly Road in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Arrowcraft refers to the traditional handcrafted items made by the people of the Appalachian region and sold through the Arrowcraft shop since 1926. The sale of crafts through the shop and to Pi Beta Phi alumnae clubs provides an income for the otherwise impoverished mountain craftspeople.

Some of the items for sale include hand-woven tablecloths, napkins, placemats, towels, tote bags, purses, pot holders, stoles, scarves and belts, wooden Christmas items, old-fashioned toys, kitchen items such as cutting boards, buckles, candleholders, fireplace brooms, pinecone wreaths, beeswax candles, wind chimes and pottery.

Arrowcraft is one of the largest cottage weaving industries in the U.S. It is also one of the oldest, having begun in 1915 when a weaving department opened at the Pi Beta Phi Settlement School in Gatlinburg, Tenn. A permanent display of the craft has been in the Smithsonian since 1962 — the first time a national women's fraternity has been so honored.

Pi Beta Phi

The Pi Beta Phi Alumnae Club of Grosse Pointe will have an Arrowcraft arts and crafts sale on Sunday, Nov. 8, from 1 to 5 p.m. at 23 Beverly Road in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Arrowcraft refers to the traditional handcrafted items made by the people of the Appalachian region and sold through the Arrowcraft shop since 1926. The sale of crafts through the shop and to Pi Beta Phi alumnae clubs provides an income for the otherwise impoverished mountain craftspeople.

Some of the items for sale include hand-woven tablecloths, napkins, placemats, towels, tote bags, purses, pot holders, stoles, scarves and belts, wooden Christmas items, old-fashioned toys, kitchen items such as cutting boards, buckles, candleholders, fireplace brooms, pinecone wreaths, beeswax candles, wind chimes and pottery.

Arrowcraft is one of the largest cottage weaving industries in the U.S. It is also one of the oldest, having begun in 1915 when a weaving department opened at the Pi Beta Phi Settlement School in Gatlinburg, Tenn. A permanent display of the craft has been in the Smithsonian since 1962 -the first time a national women's fraternity has been so honored.

A Romantic Past As a Grosse Pointe resident, you'll walk upon grounds that were once the swamp, marsh and meadow haunts of deer, buffalo and beaver. It was this profusion of wildlife-plus fish from the 460-square-mile Lake St. Clair-that attracted the French farmers who first settled the area in 1701.

During the century that they fished, farmed and traded with the local Indians, many legands began. And many infamous locations were indelibly named: Fox Creek, graveyard of the Fox Indian nation; Bloody Run, where a company of British soldiers from Fort Detroit were ambushed and killed.

From Pristine to Prosperous After a brief period under British rule, the area began its history as an American settlement. Its beauty and bounty made it an ideal resort area for families from the growing city of Detroit. Between 1875 and 1925, Grosse Pointe became the elegant summer residence-and then permanent home-of families who had amassed fortunes in lumber and automobiles. In the midst of the lavish mansions, farm cottages and resort ambiance, there gradually grew a year-round community of quality homes for families from all walks of life.

In fair weather, where are the fans?

In front of some 1,800 people, most of them Grosse Pointers, an awesome game of football was played Saturday. The teams showed respect for one another and the game went off without a hitch as did the game in the stands.

When North and South get together for a football game each year, all the stops are pulled out and the fans come out in droves. It's really too bad these fans didn't support their respective schools throughout the season as they trampled opponents and earned winning records. North, who got beat 14-3 by South, finished 6-3 on the year with a tri-championship to its credit in the White Division of the Macomb Area Conference. South, 8-1 overall and 7-0 in the Eastern Michigan League, won the league outright for the first time since 1984 and that in itself says a lot. They play in the Big Ten of high school football and came out of it with a bowl of roses and a playoff berth against Warren Lincoln this Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

North entered a new league this year and won the inaugural division championship. Losers they are not.

The only twist of fate during the entire season was the fact that both teams had to perform in front of dismal crowds where the empty seats stood out like sore thumbs.

Everyone talks about the success of the schools' football programs, but with one loss or more, the cynicism starts. North, who had a 26 regular-season winning streak snapped by Utica Eisenhower, finished three games over .500. How many teams across the Great Lake state can claim that? At South, first-year head-coach Jon Rice improved his team from 5-4 a year ago to go 8-1 overall.

It's pretty sad when two quality football teams play in the Pointes on various Saturday afternoons and approximately 550 people show on home games at South and 819 at North; that's both team's fans and including season passes. In most cases this is true. The die-hard fans are always present, but the game that seems to bring the "bandwagon jumpers" out of the woodwork is the North/South game.

South takes city championship Blue Devils win battle, head for playoffs

By Rob Fulton Sports Editor

The Confederate flag is waving ever so proudly this week atop the flagpole at Grosse Pointe South High School after a commanding 14-3 win over the Union, Grosse Pointe North.

The win gives South, winners of the Eastern Michigan League (E.M.L.) an overall record of 8-1 and closed out North's season at 6-3. North also shared the White Division title of the Macomb Area Conference with a 3-1 clip.

"It was fun winning that one." said South coach Jon Rice. "I really like this game from the standpoint of the rivalry. It was an exciting game that we'll add to the book of many.'

It was the 19th meeting between these powers and entering the game North had won three straight over South. However, with a playoff possibility at stake, the Blue Devils were not going to fall victim once again.

"We considered this our firstround playoff game." said Rice.

South guarterback Bryan Jones gets great protection from Dale Wilson, 75, as he hangs up a pass against North Saturday. Jones completed six of 14 passes for 99 yards as he and his Blue Devil teammates beat city-rival, Grosse Pointe North, 14-3.

"We approached it that way because if we wanted to get in we had to beat North. It was a good test for us."

South preserved the victory over North to catapult themselves into the state playoffs where they'll play at Warren Lincoln on Nov. 7 at 1:30 p.m. South got outside help from Chadsey, who upended Cass Tech, in order to make the playoffs. South last attended the post-season tournament in 1983, but lasted only one game as they were defeated by Henry Ford.

South extended its season for the fourth time in its history, but they had to get around the Norsemen first. Scott Schorer put the Norsemen up 3-0 on their opening drive with a 41yard field goal. But South took their first possession, overcame two 15-yard penalties, and got a 1-yard run out of Steve Rice, who rushed for 50 yards on nine carries, to take a 7-3 lead.

"It was very early in the game, but it was important for us to take the next drive and score," said Rice.

Both defensive teams took over the ball game to end the quite well as he learned Cass Tech was getting beat.

"We were told (at the half) that Cass Tech was losing, but I just kept hitting the kids with the fact that we still had two quarters of football left with North," said Rice.

In a game where the big play, or a turnover could play key, the latter of the two turned the worm for the Blue Devils. Trailing 7-3 early in the second half, North's Bruno Giglio, who completed 13 of 26 passes for 88 yards, tossed an errant pass that was ruled a lateral and South's Pete Astfalk recovered.

With North stunned over the fumble, South went to the air as Bryan Jones, who completed six of 14 passes for 99 yards, found strike

"What a turning point," said North coach Frank Sumbera. "They went up by two scores and that took the air out of us a bit. After that everyone just kind of dropped down.'

Sumbera's potent offense was limited to 198 total yards and South only had 216. It was a game of defense, but a poor outing from North's secondary didn't please Sumbera.

"We got good games out of Marc deManigold (8 tackles), Dave VanDale, (8 tackles) and Chuck Schultz (7 tackles), but I don't think our defensive backs played very well. They weren't coming up to the line. They seemed timid to hit somebody, said Sumbera.

Before the showdown, North averaged 17 points a game and South 26, but the defensive struggles made it impossible to pop for that many points. Sumbera thinks the difference came in the big play department.

"It's pretty simple," he said. "We didn't make the big play when we had to and they did. We lost to a good football team, but I don't think we played all that well either. I know we're half, 7-3, and Rice knew that the capable of playing better ball, playoff picture was shaping up but South capitalized on our mistakes and inability to make the tackle."

"Our defense did an excellent job of shutting down Tobias (Jay)," said Rice. Tobias only had 28 yards in 10 carries as the Blue Devils stymied him, but Kevin McCarron picked up the slack and ran for 72 yards on 13 carries.

"They seemed to be so Jay Tobias oriented that we used him as a diversion and Kevin did the job," said Sumbera. "He definitely had a good ball game for us.'

Baseball is a game of inches, but football is based on field position. Such was the case Saturday when South held good position all afternoon.

"Field position was key," said Ted Mills for a 35-yard scoring Sumbera. "They had good posi-See BATTLE, page 3C

Last Saturday, the Knights won a regional championship by defeating Inter-City Baptist School, 3-1. With the win, ULS advanced to the state semifinals.

In the first half, ULS missed several opportunities, but 15 minutes into the game, Frank Karabetsos made no mistake as he dished out an assist to Jonathon Davis who promptly headed it past the Chargers' goalie for a 1-0 ULS lead. With 10 minutes left in the half, the Chargers tied it on a tough shot that beat Brian Schmidt.

Midway through the second half, the Knights got a tip in goal from Anthony Abiragi to take a 2-1 lead. The goal, which proved to be the game winner, was Abiragi's seventh of the season. The insurance goal for ULS came from Karabetsos, his 19th of the year, on a pass from Doug Wood. The win lifted the Knights, ranked No. 3 in Class C-D, to 13-6-2 on the year.

During the same week, ULS captured its ninth straight Michigan Independent Athletic Conference championship by defeating Huron Valley Lutheran, 7-1. Bill Jewett, Mark Sullivan, Wood, Davis (2) and Karabetsos (2) scored for ULS.

When league standings were announced, so were some individual honors. For ULS, Petzold and Kim Owens were selected for the All-League Team I. Birgbauer and Warnez were recognized with All-League Team II awards.

On the road at Birmingham Academy of the Sacred Heart, the Lady Knights collected a 48-22 win. Martina Jerant led ULS with a season-high 20 points and snatched 20 rebounds. Diann Imbriaco contributed 12 points and seven assists, while Sarah Cleek tallied six points and grabbed 14 rebounds. Angela Mitchell and Rachel Kneeshaw chipped in with two each.

But then, the points were piled on as they squirted out to a commanding 22-6 lead at the intermission. They obtained the lead on an Ajiri 42-yard toucdown run after picking off a pass and Lex Smith got in from 3 yards. It's a shame that loyal support- understand why students do not ers, from August until the end of the season, are buried under the onslaught of "would-be fans" at the season's final game. Where have you been all season long?

Hooray for loyalty

The fans who loyally support their teams are undoubtedly troopers. They deserve a pat on the back, or better yet, recognition. Without them cheering and jeering week after week, the crowds would be silent. Many people claim the Blue Devils, or the Norsemen are "their" team, but that's a bit much. The team belongs to the school and I don't support their fellow classmates or friends until "The Big Game." I enjoy crowds at football games. They can generate excitement and enthusiasm. Football players relish the chance to play in front of large crowds. But here in the Pointes, playing in front of large crowds is obsolete; unless it's the North/South football game.

It's a perplexing situation. Many people contend that athletics in the Pointes are incomparable yet, refuse to attend a game. Why? Good question.

The reasoning behind it can't be compared to the lack of crowds at Tiger games, because the ticket prices are low ($2) and the area is far from rundown. I understand that Saturday afternoons are spent collecting the week's thoughts, or filled with other distractions, but for two to three hours supporting the football teams once a week would make for a nicer football environment.

To those of you who attend, support and fill the stadium for weeks, I tip my hat. For those of you who show up for the final game because it's North or South week, I lend a suggestion: Don't jump the bandwagon. Follow your team right now. Through thick and thin, it's your team.

Girl harriers win regional title

By Rob Fulton Sports Editor

For the eighth consecutive year, the girls' cross country team at South finished in the top three spots in the regional meet.

This year was a banner year in which they capped an Eastern Michigan League championship (their ninth straight since joining the E.M.L.) with a first-place finish in the regionals with 38 points. North was second with 92 points and Pershing took third at 99.

"We really did a nice job at the regionals," said Coach Steve Zaranek. "We've never had five girls earn all-region honors before, but that just sums up the year we've had."

Elizabeth Kraft, Micha Song, Vicki Groustra, Debbie Solterisch, Anna Dinverno, Toni Tedesco and Megen Smucker were the top seven finishers for the Blue Devils and Kraft, Song, Dinverno, Groustra and Solterisch collected regional honors.

"We have a tremendous amount of talent on this team," said Zaranek. "We were 15-0 in dual meets because we have a large group of talented runners who have produced all season and winning the state title does long."

South is a team of depth and senior leadership. Zaranek feels that without the depth and leadership, the Blue Devils might just be a run-of-the-mill team.

"Our seniors have stuck together so well and have provided great leadership," he said. "I've never had a group so dedicated before. It's the finest group of young ladies to come through South.

"Our style all year has been a team effort," Zaranek continued. We never have to rely on two top runners because we have such depth. The key to the success we've had with our talent is because of the kind of depth we have. We can generally field two teams at meets and with that many talented girls it makes our team strong.'

The regional crown was just another iron tossed into the fire for Zaranek and his Blue Devils.

"This has been a very satisfying year because we accomplished everything we wanted to," said Zaranek. "We just went out to do a job and did it."

South's work, however, isn't complete. They will travel to the state meet Nov. 7 in Lansing not seem to take precedence.

"We always want to win the E.M.L., but one other goal we have is just to get to the state meet," Zaranek said. "We have qualified every year since 1980 and that is quite impressive. We really pride ourselves on that. We are excited just to get to the states."

Boys' cross

With a 24-33 dual-meet win over Anchor Bay, the Blue Devils finished the season with an impressive 5-2 league record. Mark Sonnenberg and Phil Orton led the way over Anchor Bay. The South tandem also finished second and third, respectively against Mount Clemens, but the Bathers washed out the Blue Devils, 24-32 in a battle for the league title.

In the E.M.L. meet, South took third as Sonnenberg finished third overall to win allleague honors. Orton was eighth. Mount Clemens won the meet and Port Huron Northern was second.

In regional competition last weekend, the Blue Devils took fourth and impressively qualified three runners for the state meet. Sonnenberg, Orton and David Kerfoot will represent South Nov. 7 at the state race. Chris Sherwood and Jeff Kerfoot also ran well for the Devils.

Basketball

A total-team effort, which saw the Blue Devils combine to hit 20 of 25 free throws, gained South a 50-36 win over Mount Clemens. Lisa Fromm continued to tear up the league as she dumped in 20 points and pulled down 10 rebounds. Point guard Carmina Amezcua added 10 points and five assists and Patty Pentecost laced six points, dished out four assists and had six steals.

At home against Anchor Bay, the Blue Devils battled from behind most of the game, but put on a last-minute surge to submerge Anchor Bay, 57-49.

tion all day and we didn't." If Rice and company would have been stuffed into their own end, Rice's collar wouldn't have tightened because the Blue Devils sport one of high school's finest punters. "If things would have mellowed out a bit and we would have had poor field position, I wasn't too worried because we've got Mike Paull punting us out of it," said Rice. Paull, who averaged 45 yards a kick against North, carries a 42-yard average through nine games. "He has a very strong leg," Rice added.

As for South, the uniforms remain out of the closet. But for North, they are tainted and stashed.

"The kids will get over it quicker than I will, but we had a good season," said Sumbera. 'We just didn't do the things we needed to do in order to have a better year. I really think losing to both Eisenhower and Cousino was pivotal. If we could have at least split those two games, I think it would have been a different story."

With the playoffs ahead, Rice looks to play beyond Thanksgiving.

"We have a shot at continuing for four more games," he said. "We are thrilled to be in the playoffs and now we want to win four more games, but to do it we have to get sharper. You have to get sharper in order to play at this level.'

South, which hasn't won a first-round playoff game in its four visits, is hoping to break the spell against a quality Lincoln football team.

'We will have to contain Cal Ludeman (running back) and Dave Siwicki (quarterback),' said Rice. "That is pretty much the whole show. If we can stop them then maybe we'll play again."

Game time is 1:30 Nov. 7. The winner will advance to the Region 3 championship to face the winner of the Brother Rice/ Ferndale clash.

Perceived exertion

Maximum-heart rate. Target-heart rate. These are terms you'll see in any exercise magazine or publication today. Your exercise instructor continually talks about heart rates and their importance.

The target-heart rate should be looked at as the goal for a safe exercise intensity to produce aerobic fitness. A true target-heart rate, however, should be based on the individual's resting-heart rate. The problem with this is that people just won't take the time to take a restingheart rate in the morning.

The target-heart rate for a trained 40-year-old versus the target-heart rate for an untrained 40-year-old vary greatly. This is because a progressive training effect will lead to a progressive fall in the morning resting pulse.

There is another method of monitoring your workout. It is called perceived exertion and is a technique where an individual relies on his body senses and reactions to determine work intensity rather than actual measurements. It's simple and is based on a scale of numbers from six to 20. Assume that you are sitting down, your perceived exertion would register at six. The rest looks like this:

Seven would be very, very light. Nine (9) would be very light when walking and 11 would be fairly light during warmup and cooldown. At 13, exertion would be somewhat hard and at 15 it would be hard (both numbers are under aerobic conditioning). At 17, exertion is very hard and 19 is very, very hard.

There's a certain twist to this athletic trainer

By Rob Fulton Sports Editor

It's first and 10 from the 18yard line and suddenly a new team player must be called in. However, this player is not dressed to take a hit, but is prepared to fix a hit.

Marti VanEenenaam, Athletic Trainer, Certified at Cottage Hospital, is the athletic trainer for Grosse Pointe South High School. For two years Van-Eenenaam has been a member of the Cottage Hospital Athletic swore I'd never work in a high Medicine Program (CHAMP) and school because they don't have this is her first year as the trainer for the Blue Devils. But years ago this dream of practicing, professionally, as a trainer, was almost bandaged. However, some reconciliating thoughts brought Grosse Pointe one of the more personable trainers around.

"I swore up and down that there were three things I would never do," recalled Van-Eenenaam. "I would never go to Central Michigan University. I

Well, never say never came back to haunt the 25-year-old trainer as she graduated from C.M.U. in 1985, works in a high school setting and is only miles from Detroit.

"I guess it goes to show you that you never know what can happen," she said. "It's funny how things work out. I can sit back and laugh at it all now.'

Marti VanEenenaam sits at her desk in the CHAMP office at Cottage Hospital. Van-Eenenaam spends approximately 40-50 hours a week between her office and the high school training rooms.

Her job is no laughing matter though. Injuries and pain are two things she has had to deal with repeatedly. A quick ankle wrap here and a major therapeutic manuever there, are things that make up VanEenenaam's credibility.

"My job is to assess injuries and make home care suggestions such as how to ice an injury," said VanEenenaam. "If the injury is significant enough to be assessed by a physician, then I recommend one. I really have to be careful when assessing an injury."

The thrust of VanEenenaam's duties lie within CHAMP as well as making rounds to local high schools. Besides visiting South once a day, VanEenenaam visits Star of the Sea and Regina. She also heads the educational programs organized through CHAMP.

"I guess you could say I'm pretty busy, but I love it," she said. "I really enjoy my work and what goes along with it."

What goes along with it is approximately 45-50 hours a week. Is she spreading herself too thin?

"No. I have time for myself," said VanEenenaam. "I enjoy crafts, riding bikes and swimming.

In her job, VanEenenaam has plenty of contact with the varisty football team; her primary high school responsibility. Although she is surrounded by blood, sweat and pain each day, VanEenenaam wouldn't have it any other way.

VanEenenaam finds many pleasures in her job, but the one that sticks out the most is the mingling with athletes.

"I like the kids," she said. "They are so much fun because we get along so well. I don't know if it's because I'm considered one of the guys, or because I'm so close in age to all of them."

Whichever the case, Van-Eenenaam has a special rapport with each of them.

"It's pretty nice because they seem to confide in me," she said. "I don't run a very strict program so I think that has a lot to do with it. It's a variety of people with a variety of thoughts. I guess it makes you old, but young at the same time."

From growing up in Traverse City and changing childhood dreams for a professional career, VanEenenaam has come a long way. She has learned her lesson about three "nevers" and has happily settled into Grosse Pointe.

"I am very happy with the choices I have made," she said. "I don't think I'd change a thing that has happened in my career or my life. I like the decisions I've made.'

There may be a lot of truth in this diagnosis, but there does remain a difference in being a "doormat" or a "steamroller"! We must realize that liking ourselves and feeling that we are a super person does not mean that we are egotistical. Self-esteem, more than any other quality, opens the door to high achievement and personal happiness. When we feel good about ourselves we are more apt to feel kindly towards others. If we do not feel a positive self-esteem, there are some specific methods we can apply to our lives to help us achieve the self-love we need to be successful.

1) Always dress and look like a winner. Clothes may not "make the man," but they do reflect your inner-self. Your appearance is a projection on the outside, of how you feel about yourself on the inside.

2) Always introduce yourself first to a new aquaint-

5) Set your own standards. In other words, don't try to "keep up with the Jones'." Always be willing to upgrade your own personal standards in the way you live and the way you behave.

Eleanor Roosevelt once stated: "No one can make you feel inferior without your consent." To gain self-esteem we must know ourselves intimately. We must learn to see ourselves as one with nature and the universe so we literally become part of all that is life. Most importantly, we must not make impossible demands on ourselves, but rather be aware of time - we can learn from the past, plan

Changes in our lives do not come easy, nor do they come quickly. Life is not a custom wrapped half-hour sitcom. Here are some specific things you may try, (I'm sure you are familiar with all of them, but it never hurts to be reminded).

'Suspect' is highly entertaining courtroom drama

By Michael Chapp Special Writer

In the opening scene of "Suspect," a justice of a United States District Court commits suicide. That scene is indicative meaning juror (Dennis Quaid) in of the theme of this film.

The death of justice.

Indeed, the thesis of "Suspect" is a classic one: following the dictates of one's conscience vs. following the law. Whether or not it's true that these types of problems come up in everyday life is irrelevant. It sure does make for an enjoyable time at the movies. And it seems like the law always gets sideswiped.

Still, "Suspect" finds an interesting way to work through that issue and the others it presents. The result is an intriguing piece that rivets viewers to their seats.

Cher turns in a sterling performance as the Washington public defender torn between doing what she knows is right in the film's early narration, it most entertaining.

solving the mystery is both unfair and unethical. But she's still torn.

In her estimation, the only way to guarantee her client a fair trial is to accept the help of the juror. Meanwhile, the judge hearing the case is beginning to suspect that something less than legal is going on.

The film is a potpourri of political maneuvering. Parallel to the main trial story is a subplot about the higher aspirations of the Washington elite. Though this may cause some bafflement and what her superiors tell her also adds impact to the film's climactic punch.

Make no mistake, "Suspect" is first and foremost a courtroom drama, but there is plenty of suspense and character development here to round things out. Cher isn't just a public defender; she's a public defender who's tired and disillusioned with life. Quaid isn't just a juror; he's a Capitol Hill lobbyist who demonstrates his willingness to look the other way when faced with questions of an ethical nature.

Together, they make an interesting couple. This is no love story, though hints are made to that effect. Indeed, the friction between them is every bit as engaging to watch as love sparks would be.

Between the courtroom theatrics and the suspenseful, downright scary conclusion, "Suspect" will rate high among discriminating moviegoers. It's not the most intellectual courtroom drama around, but it's one of the

'Someone to Watch Over Me' is stylish, suspensful, delightful drama

By Marian Trainor Special Writer

For the discriminating taste, "Someone to Watch Over me" is a visual delight. Ridley Scott earned a reputation as a stylish director whose visual and aural decorations are integral to the meaning of his work in "Alien" and "Blade Runner.'

In this, his first contemporary film, which is set in present-day Manhattan and Queens, much of the action takes place in an apartment that is an Architectural Digest dream.

It is luxury living with lots of glass and crystal lit from below to set it off.

As for the city, highrise buildings reach into a darkened sky, their yellow patches of lighted windows casting reflections on the streets below.

All this gloss and glitter is in sharp contrast with the Queens' neighborhood where Mike Keegan (Tom Berenger) lives with his wife Ellie (Lorraine Bracco) and their young son, T.J.

By presenting these two different worlds, Scott makes a subtle social comment that wealth and the things money can buy doesn't necessarily make for happiness; that it is possible to have fun, enjoy a wonderful family relationship on a low budget and enjoy a good life.

Film

All of this is just background. What counts is the suspense and the chemistry that cannot be denied between Mike and Claire Gregory (Mimi Rogers), the socialite whom he is assigned to guard after she witnesses a particularly grizzly murder.

At first, it is a situation that is tolerated by both parties. Claire is not pleased by having her privacy invaded, but she tries to be gracious. Her stuffy boyfriend is furious at Mike's presence.

Slowly their relationship begins to change. Claire is drawn to the strong, handsome policeman and Mike begins to realize that Claire is not just a spoiled rich girl.

Meanwhile back in Queens, Mike's wife senses a change in him. At this point the plot's web becomes tangled and events create a tension that is not broken until the final scene that grows in suspense and explodes in violence.

Besides being a film with sevfair to wear out.

Rogers is all glamour and silk, yet vulnerable in her need for a relationship that is honest and sincere rather than superficial.

Tony De Benedetto as T.J. is an impish boy who adds to the film. Like his mother, he is quick on the uptake without being obnoxious. He is the focus of a happy family life and when it is disrupted, he is puzzled but quietly waits it out.

Besides striking visuals that create place and atmosphere, Scott uses sounds to indicate the difference between Fifth Avenue and Queens. Full orchestra classical music is heard in the scenes in Claire's apartment while the loud beat of rock 'n' roll is featured at the Queens' gatherings. Romantic interludes feature the Ira Gershwin title song sung on the soundtrack by Sting, Roberta Flack and Gene Ammons.
