

Water main breaks abound in Pointes, tax personnel

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

Cold compounds the problems.

When a water main breaks, generally in the early hours, workers roll out of bed and head to the site. The break was probably caused by cold temperatures, and when the workers arrive, they are greeted by slick roads, ponds of ice or freezing slush.

They must dig into the frozen earth, and because the sand and dirt would freeze in the street, it must be hauled away in a dump truck. And that has to be done quickly, because just as it would freeze in the street, it'll freeze in the truck and probably stay that way until the first thaw.

Since the beginning of the year, the Grosse Pointes have suffered through 16 water main breaks, and with cold temperatures predicted again for this week, officials expect more. The breaks range from small cracks in service lines on private property to major blowouts in 12-inch pipes under main roads like Mack and Jefferson.

Maire School on Cadieux in the City was closed Wednesday after a service line on school property cracked and flooded the school's playfield. Since it was a line to the school, the building was without water.

"We discovered the break about 9 p.m. Tuesday," Dave King, director of support services for the school district, said. "There was a lot of moisture in the ground, and the sudden freeze probably caused the ground to shift."

King said under normal conditions a break such as this would usually be fixed overnight and not cause a school closing. Unfortunately, the break in the water line was not the only one, and private crews that normally fix such problems were busy elsewhere.

The break was repaired Wednesday afternoon, and school was back in session Thursday.

King said that school workers usually work with the contracted crews, and depending on the problem, repair costs can range from $500 to $1,500 or more.

"We've had no other problems so far," King said, "but we are keeping a close watch. We must be vigilant, because a water line break can cause serious damage."

Tom Kressbach, Grosse Pointe city manager, said there were two major breaks in the city since the cold wave hit last week. The biggest project was a main under Jefferson at St. Clair. Workers were called to the scene around noon on Tuesday, Jan. 5, and didn't leave until around 2 a.m. the next morning.

"In terms of difficulty," Kressbach said, "it was one of the coldest repairs we have made in years. It was an abandoned main that wasn't on the maps. We also ran into an old telephone pole going down into the ground. When it's dark and you run into situations like that, it makes things tough."

Often minor breaks can be repaired when the pipe is still under pressure, therefore residents are not subjected to hours without water. Kressbach said in simple breaks, stainless steel sleeves act as a permanent tourniquet. If there are major problems, sections of pipes may have to be replaced and can get very costly.

"We had six people, two from the city and four from the con-

Shot fired point-blank; misses victim

A 70-year-old Woods man narrowly escaped injury when he was shot at during a hold-up in his garage Thursday, Jan. 7.

Arrested about an hour later that evening was a 25-year-old Detroit man who is in Wayne County Jail awaiting arraignment on armed robbery and attempted murder.

Woods police said the suspect fired a shotgun at the man at point blank range, missing him entirely, but blowing a large hole in the man's overcoat.

The Woods resident was returning home from work around 10 p.m. when he was surprised by the thief in the garage. The suspect demanded the man's wallet, then reportedly without provocation, fired the sawed-off shotgun once. The suspect then fled.

Police said the victim was the same man who was beaten and robbed, along with his wife, in September 1986. Two men were charged with the assault and robbery in that incident and one was sent to prison on the charges.

Neighbors told police they heard the shot fired Wednesday night, and one neighbor witnessed the man running from the victim's yard.

The wallet, which had contained about $100 in cash, was found at Newcastle and Mack

Woods day care ordinance upheld

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

The battle over home day care in Grosse Pointe Woods could be all over but the shouting. Richard and Sheila Temkow, who were challenging the ordinance against home businesses, had their day in court last month. The judge found for the Woods.

The case did not take the shape many expected it to. The Temkows had hoped to argue that day care is basically baby-sitting and is not subject to the ordinance. They said in a suit filed Sept. 1 that the ordinance is vague and selectively enforced.

But Dec. 15, Wayne County Circuit Judge Lucille Watts decided that the Woods ordinance can stand and that it applies to the Temkows.

"She had to decide, number one, whether (the day care) was a business and, number two, whether there was an exception for it," said David Belanger, who represented the Temkows for Kazul, Houston & Ferriby. "She answered the first question 'yes' and the second one 'no.'"

"We thought the purpose of the hearing was to address the injunction," he said, "but she just said, 'you're operating a business, the hearing is over, goodbye.'"

Watts had granted the Temkows a 90-day injunction so that the city couldn't stop them from offering day care. Now, however, the city is free to issue a new cease-and-desist order to them and to three other state-licensed home daycare operators.

Woods attorney George Catlin said he would not issue any orders until after Feb. 12, when the Temkows will have an opportunity to ask the judge to reconsider her decision.

But Sheila Temkow isn't holding on to much hope. She said she wasn't expecting this verdict. "We were devastated," she said. "We felt we had such a wonderful case. The case was supposed to rise above that petty squabbling, but the court was a rehash of all that and we weren't prepared for that."

'Fighting city hall is what they say it is.'

—Sheila Temkow

The original complaint against the Temkows resulted in several minor squabbles before the Woods planning commission, in spite of efforts by Chairman Peter Gilezan to keep the discussion on the subject of whether or not the city would be benefited by allowing home day care.

Catlin agreed that the court did not address itself to the wider issues in the case. One of the arguments used by supporters of day care has been that since the state licenses daycare homes, cities should have to allow them.

"I'm sure the state is aware that a number of cities zone out home businesses," Catlin said. He added that if the state were interested in pursuing that line of thinking, it could require cities to allow day care in residential areas, just as it has done with adult foster care homes.

Avenues remaining to daycare supporters are an appeal of the Temkow case, a request to the city council to change the ordinance, or even a petition to put the question to the voters. But city officials have indicated informally that they see no compelling reason to change the ordinance, and Sheila Temkow said they have not decided to appeal.

"We've kind of been in limbo and shock," she said. "Fighting city hall is what they say it is."

Pointer of Interest

Lili Kaufmann

News Editor

If you met Lili Kaufmann, you'd probably think that you know her, but might be unable to place when or where. And you'd be right.

That's because Kaufmann is a woman of many faces and voices

Lili Kaufmann

— a character actress who began developing her skills as a young child and who says she's fortunate to have the type of career she can continue developing until she's 105.

When she played Golde in "Fiddler on the Roof" this past summer in Illinois, a theater critic wrote that the play lacked Jewishness except for Kaufmann, "who looked Jewish and sounded Jewish." The comment delighted Kaufmann who worked hard on her Yiddish dialect and is not a Jew.

What she is is versatile.

She's the nurse on the Michigan HMO commercial currently running on TV who, with pince-nez perched on her nose, asks: "Who's got the chicken pox on the small fry?" She has done commercials for Clinique, Pan American, Free Press Gold Ads and others. And she just completed a commercial for Diet-Line that will be aired soon.

Her versatility extends beyond

Carson making NHL mark

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe Woods' own Jimmy Carson, 19, is in his second full season as a hockey player for the Los Angeles Kings, and his accomplishments have already surpassed that of some Hall-of-Famers.

A year ago, Carson finished second in the Rookie-of-the-Year balloting to teammate Luc Robitaille. Carson's 79 points (37 goals) were impressive, but Robitaille's 84 earned him the National Hockey League's top rookie award.

"I didn't feel badly about finishing second," said Carson, who was the No. 1 Kings' selection and second overall in the 1986 draft. "Luc is a good player and working with him is a big help. We respect one another's abilities a great deal."

Before last week's game with the Detroit Red Wings, Carson was on another tear, and this one looks like it will exceed last season's output. Carson, who has nine points in four games against the Wings, has 25 goals and 28 assists for 53 points thus far.

"This year is a lot different," he said. "I'm one year older and I know more about each city and how to play in each of them. I haven't prepared for this year any differently than in the past, but I tried to improve on last year as opposed to sitting around on my butt and accepting last year's numbers."

Carson, who was reached at his home in the Woods, is seeing the nation via the NHL, but it's not always as bright as some believe.

"It's a good life, but it becomes more difficult when you are losing," he said. "The early morning flights tend to take a lot out of you, but you've got to rest whenever you get the chance to and it's important to eat well."

During the season, Carson lives in south Pasadena, near Los Angeles, but it's always nice to come back for a visit.

"My parents have been out to L.A. to see me skate, but I always enjoy coming home and playing at Joe Louis," said Carson. "But you better believe it's nice coming home, because you get some good home cookin'. Mom's a great cook."

At age 19, some athletes are motivated by an idol, but for Carson, self-pride and working hard is the winning formula.

"I admire a lot of players, but no particular one," he said. "Whenever I play a great player, I try to watch and pick up some things, but I pride myself on my own work and dedication. I'm not heavy into weights, but I work hard on my game."

Carson is off-handed about his offensive production, but skating on NHL ice has been an experience.

"I have been very successful so far, but it's rather disappointing when you lose so much," he said in reference to the Kings' 14-25-5 record. "However, it humbles you a little bit and definitely builds character."

Fun Night

The Department of Community Education has scheduled the third Family Fun Night of the school year. Come Friday, Jan. 22, to shoot baskets, play volleyball, swim, make a craft project, watch a movie, practice tumbling or play ping pong. Admission is $1 and refreshments are available at a small charge.

Fun Night will be at Brownell School from 7 to 9 p.m. Use the rear entrance.

Cinema League features Pribilofs

The Grosse Pointe Cinema League will meet Monday, Jan. 18, at the War Memorial for a 35mm slide presentation, "Seals, Seabirds, and Wildflowers: The Pribilof Islands," by Herbert A. Brail of 2x2 Productions.

Located approximately 800 miles west of Anchorage in the Bering Sea, these remote islands inhabited by Aleut Indians are the haven for 80 percent of the world's northern fur seals.

The program, prepared from a July 1987 visit to St. Paul Island, shows tens of thousands of seals in their rookeries at the peak of the breeding season. Puffins, auklets, cormorants and kittiwakes are just a few of the species of seabirds that nest in the island's cliffs. Yellow arctic poppies, blue and white lupines, and monkshood thrive in the humid mist that enshrouds the island.

The public is invited. For non-members there is a charge of $2 plus 50 cents for the coffee hour that follows. Memberships are available.

Photographer to be featured

The Michigan Photographic Historical Society will meet at 2 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 16, at the College of Art & Design, Center for the Creative Studies 245 E. Kirby, in Detroit's Cultural Center.

Warren G. (Bill) Rauhauser, photographer and professor of photographic history, will speak on the life and work of Henri Cartier-Bresson, whose career as a photo-journalist set professional standards for the world. Rauhauser will also give a tour of the facilities of the CCS photographic department. Members and friends are urged to visit the Cartier-Bresson exhibition now in the Detroit Institute of Arts photography galleries, before or after the meeting. The exhibition, in Detroit through Feb. 7, comes from the Museum of Modern Art in New York with wide critical acclaim.

Some members plan to gather for lunch about 12:30 in the DIA cafeteria, just one long block from Saturday's meeting place, and welcome others to join them.

French music

...for two pianos will be presented Sunday, Jan. 17, at 3:30 p.m. at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House. Fedorà Horowitz, left, and Joseph Gurt will perform works by Bizet, Beethoven, Poulenc, Ravel and Milhaud. The event is sponsored by the Lyric Chamber Ensemble. Tickets are $10; $8 for students and senior citizens. For information, call 357-1111.

Day care program set to begin at Barnes

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

School officials are awaiting licensing from the state, but say everything is go for the first day care program offered by the Grosse Pointe school system.

Director and head teacher for the Community Education Day Care Program is Barbara Ulmer, a Michigan State University graduate with degrees in child development and education.

Ulmer said the day care program is designed especially for working families who reside within the school district.

The program, approved by the board of education, will be self-supporting through fees paid by the families of 24 4- and 5-year-olds who will participate.

"The program will be held five days a week, 52 weeks a year, except for legal holidays," Ulmer said. "We will be accepting applications for enrollment very soon."

Parents may enroll their children in the program only if they plan to participate full time, at least six and no more than 10 hours each day.

The day care program, under consideration by the district for the past 12 to 14 months, is designed for working parents. It is designed to promote the physical, social, emotional and intellectual development of each child.

A classroom at Barnes School in the Woods has already been outfitted with tables, furniture and even 24 small cots for the children to use to take a nap during the day.

"We are looking for a start early in February," Ulmer said. "We would like people to know, because many have already arranged day care for their children."

Fees will be $100 a week, and are due monthly. Ulmer said that since the program will be self-supporting, parents will be required to give one month notice before withdrawing their children from the program.

Ulmer said she is in the process of looking for two assistant director/teachers and several teachers' aides, all to work part time.

Students must be 4 years old by Dec. 1 of the year they enroll.

"This program is for children who will be entering kindergarten the following year," Ulmer said.

Emphasis is given to providing the children with a firm educational foundation.

"This is a play-oriented program," Ulmer said, "but a lot of structure is given to a large number of activities."

The children will be taught such things as colors, numbers and shapes, but they won't be drilled on the subjects or taught by rote.

"We will use the concepts over and over and they are integrated into every part of the program," Ulmer said. "They will eventually become second nature to the children."

Ulmer said there will be every attempt made to keep the class to 12 boys and 12 girls. Interested parents may submit their names now, but to get their children into the class they will have to enroll on a first-come, first-served basis.

The program will be multifaceted. Children will have instructional time, outdoor recess periods, time in the gymnasium and play periods.

Parents will be asked to send lunches with the children, but two snacks will be provided through the program.

George Eddington, director of community education, said he is happy to be part of this service to the community.

"We are very pleased with the progress Barbara Ulmer has made in developing the curriculum, philosophy and in setting up the program," Eddington said. "We look forward to a highly successful program."

Some $5,000 was given to the program as start-up money from the school system, and Eddington said those funds were expended very quickly. The 24 cots cost about $700, and small chairs designed to take abuse from a 5-year-old cost $40 each.

Ulmer said that an advisory council has been established.

"The members are people from the community who have involvement in child development or education," she said. "They have had a lot of input into the program so far, and we hope they will have even more."

Those interested in the program should call Ulmer or Eddington at Barnes School at 343-2178 for further information, or to get their names on a preliminary sign-up sheet.

And still growing. . .

This spectacular free-form ice sculpture will continue to grow - as long as the weather holds. This is the third year that Bob Harmount in the 800 block of Lakepointe has experimented with the icy art that last week was about 15 to 20 feet at the base and about 35 feet tall. The pyramid is lit from inside at night with a 400 watt mercury vapor light that can be seen from Jefferson. He built a pyramid frame and lined the inside with viscine. A spigot from the house drips water constantly on the sculpture. The meltdown, too, should be spectacular. . .

Committee to study Bronze Door proposal

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

The prospective owners of the old Bronze Door went to the Farms council Monday night for approval of their development plans, but found themselves sidetracked for at least a month. The council sent the proposal to the Mayor's Advisory Committee with orders to think about the overall parking and traffic implications.

The new Door will be half again as big as the old Door, but architect Bert Koseck of Newman Smith said it is likely to require only about 20 additional parking spaces and that the peak period of use will be the dinner hour, when most stores and offices on the Hill will be closed.

"I would hope this will not make or break this project," he said.

Mayor Joseph Fromm said he would like the advisory committee to look at the project in the light of other Hill considerations. The city is once again thinking about converting the metered lot into an attended lot, a move that was studied 10 years ago and rejected.

"Part of the site plan review will involve deciding whether to require the restaurant to lease part of the parking deck (still to be built)," Fromm said. "We're also thinking about some beautification of that lot and where to dump trash instead of behind the stores."

Councilman Bruce Rockwell urged that the issue not be bottled up in committee, as the Bronze Door deal is dependent upon city approvals. Fromm said he hoped that the committee could report back at the Feb. 8 council meeting.

Plans for the site are not yet firm, but involve demolishing the building and rebuilding on the current basement. Architect Koseck spoke of brick, slate roofs and glass to tie in with the motifs of the neighboring 131 Kercheval Center, but prospective owner Stanley Day declined to be specific or to release a drawing.

"We're still living down the chrome and glass from the last article," he said.

As presented to the council, however, the building would be two stories high (requiring a height variance) with a sloped slate roof. The architect's stated intent is that the roofline would tie in visually with the taller Bologna building, while the eaves would relate to the lower level of the building housing The Apothecary Shop on the other side. A gable would echo the pediments of the Bologna building.

Inside, a kitchen is planned for the basement level, with dining on the first floor and a second-level mezzanine or balcony. A menu has not yet been selected, but Day said he plans some carry-out service.

"It's premature to say what type of restaurant it will be," he said. "We have retained a team of architects and designers to determine that. We won't be McDonald's and we won't be the London Chop House; we'll be something in between, so we can all afford to eat there."

Skater likely fell through ice

Farms police received a report from a motorist Sunday, Jan. 10, around 2:20 p.m. that a several skaters had gone through the ice on Lake St. Clair near Crescent Sail Yacht Club.

Farms police immediately notified the U.S. Coast Guard who arrived on the scene around 2:30 p.m., according to Officer Mike McCarthy.

McCarthy said investigating officers could not find any of the four skaters spotted by the motorist. Investigation by the Coast Guard helicopter and rescuers turned up evidence that a skater had indeed fallen into the water, but had likely been rescued by fellow skaters.

The chopper and rescuers stayed on the scene to look for any signs that someone was below the water, but couldn't find any.

Farms officials warned residents last week not to skate near the Lakeshore breakwall because of dangerously thin ice and the possibility that shifts in wind direction could move thicker ice out into the lake quickly.

Farms officials are urging skaters and fishermen to heed these warnings, and to obey a direct order to leave the ice from an officer.

Projects, awards highlight '87 in Shores

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

Bulldozers, tractors and dust were the key words in the Shores this past summer, but in the end the village was rewarded for its efforts.

Two of the major projects tackled in 1987 included a sewer separation at Renaud Road, which cost $270,000. The village also continued its five-year plan for recurfing and resurfacing Lakeshore north of Vernier Road. The price tag last year for capping curbs on the center islands was $80,000.

"We still have several more years before we will have separate storm and sanitary sewers throughout the village," said Michael Kenyon, village manager. "The curb capping north of Vernier was completed in conjunction with the Shores Improvement Foundation which completed its sodding and recrowning project north of Vernier. The foundation had anticipated doing this over several years and it completed the $100,000 project, along with the tree planting in 1986, in just two years."

For its efforts to beautify public areas, including the Village building and grounds, the Shores was one of several communities in the state to win a Keep Michigan Beautiful Award.

The village is responsible for taking care of Lakeshore north of Vernier. With the center islands completed, the next step is to cap the outside curbs. Finally, in 1989 the village will resurface the road in both directions.

Also next year, the village plans to recurb the west side of Lakeshore and the center traffic islands south of Vernier. Kenyon said the cost will be shared with Wayne County. The village will have to pay about $85,000.

This past year saw a major change in the Public Safety Department with the retirement of Joseph Vitale after 32 years of service. Daniel Healy, who has been with the department 22 years, was named public safety director.

"We are very happy with the way the transition has gone," Healy said. "Our success this year is due to our fine council. We have had terrific cooperation from our village manager and our residents. The patrol officers are doing a fine job."

A major addition to the public safety department this year was a $93,000 1987 FMC pumper. After being fully outfitted specifically for the needs of the village and with financing, the final cost will approach $120,000. The vehicle was put into operation in December.

Another retirement which the village saw last year was that of its attorney, William Killebrew, who had been with the community for 20 years.

There was also a change in the court. Judge Beverly Grobbel resigned her position at the beginning of the summer. Former Michigan Appellate Court Judge Vincent Brennan has been filling in as interim judge, and according to Kenyon, he will likely remain as the village judge. New court rules require that the Shores judge be reappointed every 90 days. Kenyon said the council will decide in January if it wants to reappoint Brennan for the duration of 1988.

The negotiated agreement between the Shores and the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club was reached at the end of the winter. The yacht club agreed to construct some 60 wells for the village in exchange for use rights to a portion of the municipal harbor. The first phase of the project — construction of 26 20- to 25-foot wells — was completed before the beginning of the boating season. The second phase will be completed this spring, and the third in 1989.

"This was an important agreement," Kenyon said. "It should work out well for the village and the yacht club."

The village has its work cut out for it in 1988. All three labor unions in the village have contracts that expire. The department of public works, represented by AFSCME, and the Shores public safety officers and command officers associations will negotiate with the village.

"We will reach a settlement," Kenyon said. "Negotiations have always been conducted professionally here."

He said that the village hopes to maintain the same tax rate, 16.35 mills, that it had in 1987. He sees an increase in the state equalized valuation of about five percent, but noted that is only a preliminary indication. An increase in the SEV could result in slightly higher revenues for the village.

Preservation begins at home

The Grosse Pointe Historical Society is sponsoring a lecture by J. Michael Kirk, A.I.A., of Kirk & Koskela Architects, Wednesday, Jan. 20, for anyone interested in the purchase, improvement or renovation of an older home. "Preservation Starts at Home" will begin at 7:30 p.m. at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore.

Kirk will discuss how to evaluate a home's condition, how to organize renovation projects, how to estimate costs, what tools are needed for renovation work, and how to keep renovations compatible with the original architectural design of the structure.

There is no admission charge. For more information, call the Grosse Pointe Historical Society Tuesday or Wednesday at 884-7010.

1987 marked start of projects in Farms

By Tim Tipton
Staff Writer

Farms Mayor Joseph Fromm says 1987 was a good year for starting things. He said eight projects close to his heart have taken shape during the past year and added that 1988 promises growth and added services for the community.

"I think the council did a fantastic job this past year," he said. "Each member participated on two or three subcommittees as well as their normal duties and they all worked very hard to help our city."

He said that through the efforts of councilman John Crowley, the city rezoned the area between Lakeshore and Grosse Pointe Boulevard and Fisher and Provencal to R-1 AAA.

The action came following a study by planner Brandon Rogers recommending the change. The rezoning increased lot size restrictions by almost one-third as a means of preserving the character of the residential area.

City Clerk Richard Solak said that construction this past year has been far in excess of previous years. He cited the 131 Kercheval Center building, the Punch and Judy building, and the Kerby Place construction projects. Solak said residential construction was also active with the approval of the Windwood and Scherbrook subdivisions as well as the construction of the Windmere II subdivision.

The resurfacing of Lakeshore is one of the projects Fromm anticipates will be completed in 1988. "In a joint agreement with Wayne County, the city is spending approximately $340,000 to assure the repavement of Lakeshore," said Fromm. "I'm sure I don't have to tell our residents what it will mean to them when the project is finally completed next spring."

Another project has been the decision to consolidate the fire and police departments into a public safety department. Fromm said a director should be appointed in January and consolidation should proceed shortly after that.

Residents will also notice significant improvements to Pier Park when they visit in the spring. The $225,000 project includes an enhancement of the harbor and beach area as well as refurbishing the swimming pool.

"We will be looking forward to the pool opening in the late spring after Memorial Day," Solak said. "The bond issue floated $150,000 of the work and the rest will be taken care of by city funds."

The council also approved plans for the construction of wrought iron fencing for the perimeter of Pier Park, additional landscaping and the erection of a memorial plaque in honor of the late Mayor James Dingeman. This will be accomplished with $100,000 in private money from the Grosse Pointe Farms Foundation, Solak said.

During the year, officials worked on plans and specifications for the new addition to city hall. The $750,000 project seeks to address a need for larger court facilities, additional administrative needs for accounting and recordkeeping, and the installation of elevator equipment to make the second floor of city offices accessible to the handicapped. The police department side of the building will also be made handicapped-accessible and the construction of additional administrative offices will provide for easier accessibility to the police chief and lieutenant's offices.

Fromm said citizen participation has increased dramatically during the year and has paved the way for the formation of several committees, including parks and harbor, ordinance, preservation, and beautification.

The Parks and Harbor Committee is currently reviewing ways to increase the number of boat spaces that can be made available at the harbor. And the Preservation Committee is working to have portions of the city designated as a Historical Preservation District. The group has already applied for state funding for a study to be done regarding the historical buildings.

Fromm also gave high priority toward developing a plan of action for the Mack/Moross business district. "Although I'd give it first priority, I think this is more of a long-range program which needs to be developed. We have done such a good job of things up on the Hill area and it would be important to address this business district also."

Solak echoed Fromm's concerns and said that only a few years ago, there were six or seven vacant buildings on the Hill which are now occupied by businesses.

Officials said attention will be placed on improving the main entrance to the Farms at Mack/Moross, and a new city sign will be erected early this spring. "The new sign coupled with the median improvements already being made by the Farms Foundation will make for the type of city entrance we can all be proud of," Fromm said.

Register for chorus

The Grosse Pointe Community Chorus will begin rehearsals for its spring concert Tuesday, Jan. 19, at North High School's music room. Registration will be held the first three Tuesdays starting at 7:30 p.m.

The chorus is looking for new voices, especially male, preferably with some musical experience. Applicants must be 16 or older and willing to commit to a Tuesday schedule until the May 1 concert. No auditions are required. Conducting for this concert will be Kathy Rudgers with Alex Momeyer as accompanist.

From 30 to 75 you're only as old as you act

Opinion

We may not be any wiser than younger people. We may not hear or see or move as well as they do. But when unusual situations arise, we often find we've been there before. Some of us have learned from experience what not to do in such cases, even though we still don't always know what to do.

Each of us, of course, is a part of living history, whatever our age. Seniors like to recall Santayana's comment: "Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it." But we have to admit that among the things we seniors often forget are the lessons of the past, meaning we sometimes lose the value of experience.

We seniors do tend to look backward more often than we look ahead. One reason is that at our age, there is so much more to see in hindsight than in foresight. Our memories of the past are brighter than our ambitions for the future. The mortality tables tell us how little time is left to each of us and the obituary columns daily remind us by reporting the names of contemporaries who have fallen by the wayside.

Yet many seniors pursue second careers, even third careers. Others center their attentions on their families or on volunteer service. Still others concentrate on travel or hobbies or interests that enable them to keep busy and enjoy themselves. Each of them can say, with Darrell Evans and even younger people: "I still have things I want to do."

As we grow older, our perspectives about the future inevitably change. What is important at an early age often loses its importance in older life.

Consider, for example, the different perspectives offered by a young man on turning 30, another man of 40, a woman at 50 and a senior citizen approaching 75.

In a recent Op-Ed column, Grosse Pointe News Reporter Peter Salinas expressed regret that on turning 30 he hadn't become a millionaire, hadn't written the books he'd hoped to write and hadn't become successful enough to "float into the sunset with a wooden deck under my feet." However, he acknowledged there still is time to make those dreams come true.

He also noted warnings from an older brother about the pain associated with becoming 30: "Joints hurt that didn't hurt before. Muscles that would lift heavy objects with ease and grace dissolve into oblivion. The hearing goes. The eyesight fails" and so on. Peter was having some fun, of course, in mourning his lost 20s but he was still dreaming of his sails on the eastern Caribbean.

Peter obviously isn't the only person concerned about age these days. Grosse Pointe Darrell Evans is another. In an interview with Jerry Green in the Detroit News, the Detroit Tiger star discussed the problem of a baseball player who is 40 and facing another birthday May 26. He's not yet defeated by age or birthdays and, instead, told Green:

"I don't think of 40 as a plateau or a point where you suddenly stop. I've never been on the disabled list. As long as the body performs, I still think I can improve." And then he added: "I still have things I want to do." One of those things obviously is to play for the Tigers again in 1988.

The day after Green's interview appeared, Karen DeCrow, the former president of the National Organization for Women, commented in the New York Times on the significance of becoming 50. So what has she learned on arriving at that fateful age?

"At 50 one knows what was vague at 30: You will not have time to do everything, so you do what is important. . . . At 50 you know that if everything did not turn out as you had planned, it is not the fault of your parents. There are market forces at work. . . ." At 50, she claimed, you know that envy is ridiculous, anger is overrated and lust is underrated.

Well, what about those of us who have reached the twilight years of senior citizenship?

We have learned long ago that age prevents us from doing a good many things. We no longer can play baseball, not even a game of catch with a grandchild, although we can play a bit of golf or even tennis. We avoid mowing the yard or shoveling the snow from the sidewalks. We do not look very far ahead. Instead, we count one day at a time. We follow the advice of an old editor whose slogan was: "Keep going, you never can tell."

We seniors do have one advantage over our younger colleagues. It is in experience.

Courts to rule state GOP?

It now appears likely that the courts rather than Michigan Republicans will play the major role in determining just how the state party this week will start the process of naming its delegates to the 1988 Republican National Convention.

Presumably as many as 9,000 precinct delegates will gather in county and district conventions today to pick 1,805 delegates to the state GOP convention in Grand Rapids on Jan. 29 and 30. That convention will elect 77 delegates to the GOP national convention starting Aug. 15 in New Orleans.

But with at least three court actions threatened this week, and perhaps resulting in rulings even before these words appear in print, all sides in the controversy seem agreed that there will be more chaos ahead. That will merely confirm the predictions observers have been making for months.

The chaotic situation results from the system the party is following in its delegate selection process. It all began in May 1986 when candidates for precinct committeemen began filing petitions for the elections that were held in August 1986 at the state primary.

In those elections, the forces of Pat Robertson, the former TV evangelist from Virginia, claimed they had won as many delegates as did the backers of Vice President George Bush. But the Robertson people then formed a coalition with supporters of Rep. Jack Kemp of New York to capture control of the Michigan state party apparatus and deny any major party positions to the Bush backers.

The new leaders of the state GOP promptly revised the rules to benefit themselves and make things even more difficult for Bush. But the Bush people went to court and won two Kent County Circuit Court decisions requiring the GOP to follow state law in selecting national convention delegates.

However, the Robertson-Kemp coalition fought back by asking the Michigan Court of Appeals to reverse the Kent County orders. The coalition also asked the U.S. District Court in Detroit to order that state committee rules prevail over state law in the delegate-selection process. In effect, the coalition asked that the state law governing the situation be declared unconstitutional. Rulings in all three of these cases were still pending as these words were written.

So it is even possible that the two courts might issue two sets of rules for the GOP to follow in their delegate-selection process. In fact, there may be two county conventions in some counties today and two sets of delegates elected from each with both attending the late January convention in Grand Rapids. If that occurs, the disputes are unlikely to be settled until the national convention meets in August.

So a Michigan plan that was expected to give Michigan Republicans the chance to be the first in their party to select national convention delegates and thus the first to express their opinions about the GOP presidential hopefuls may well become one of the last to have their choices made official.

From the GOP viewpoint, the worst of all this wrangling is that it raises a serious question: If the party cannot manage its own presidential nominating process any better than it has done in Michigan, why should voters believe it will be able to do a better job of managing the nation for the next four years than the opposition promises to do?

Even in Republican Grosse Pointe, that is a legitimate question to pose.

State equity grants a joke

Now that we have seen, through the courtesy of the Detroit News, a partial list of the $40 million worth of "equity" grants the state will make this year, we don't like it any better than when it was being discussed in the Legislature.

When the idea of making equity grants to the city of Detroit originated in 1976 during the reign of former Gov. William Milliken, it made some sense. The rationale was that such cultural and educational resources as the Detroit Institute of Arts, the Detroit Library and even the Detroit Zoo were Michigan assets that were appreciated and made use of by many Michigan residents outside Detroit. And thus they merited state help in view of Detroit's precarious financial situation.

But a few years later out-state legislators began to lobby to include in the equity grants pet projects in their own communities. So, lo and behold, the 1988 list of out-state projects to receive "equity" funds include such items as $5 million for a lighted float on Lansing's Grand River, $280,375 to assist in developing an International Village to showcase Warren's various ethnic groups, $25,000 to restore the Vista Theatre in Negaunee in the Upper Peninsula and $40,000 for a lighthouse catwalk renovation in St. Joseph.

Well, you get the idea. The equity fund has become another statewide pork barrel. And, to be sure, Detroit no longer is satisfied with state help just for its cultural assets. This year it is also getting $350,000 to subsidize running the city's eight antique trolleys, $5 million to operate the Cobo Hall convention and exhibition facility, and $3.97 million to help finance the Detroit police special events division. So much for culture and education.

It is clear that the original idea now has been expanded far beyond the conditions agreed to in the early days of the equity grants. Too much of the money allocated now is going for projects which have little relation to culture or education, but which do have a close relation to pork and politics.

Letters

Appalling To the Editor:

You have done a great disservice to Grosse Pointe teenagers by printing Jennifer Witzke's letter in your Jan. 7 newspaper.

It is appalling that you would print her letter without having facts to support her statement, "that most of the teenagers in this community either have or are using drugs." She states that "one of the more popular drugs is crack."

As a sophomore at the "other" Grosse Pointe high school, never have I seen crack nor do I know of any students who have ever used it. A survey taken of the student body at South last year, which was published in the Tower, South's student newspaper, indicated that .05 percent of the students at South had ever used crack — a far cry from "most of the teenagers."

While it is true that alcohol use is widespread among teens, to brand the youth of this community as junkies is either an inexcusable exercise in creative writing or an indication that Jennifer

Help prevent child abuse

To the Editor:

This tax season, we at the Children's Trust Fund are inviting Michigan residents to "Make Your Mark for Child Abuse Prevention."

Last year, more than 45,000 cases of child abuse and neglect were reported in our state. It is a problem which affects all of us.

Unlike other organizations that deal with the aftermath of abuse, the Children's Trust Fund (CTF) works to prevent child abuse before it happens.

We do that by using the donations collected to fund local community programs. Many of the parent education classes, latchkey and after-school activities and sexual abuse prevention programs in your city are as a result of partial or total funding from CTF.

Most of the money we distribute comes from a single source: private donations from Michigan taxpayers. Through special legislation, CTF appears on line 34 of the Michigan income tax return form.

Those eligible for a refund can "Make Your Mark for Child Abuse Prevention" simply by checking the CTF box for $5, $10 or more. The money will automatically be deducted from the total refund and go directly to the Children's Trust Fund where we will distribute it to community programs throughout Michigan.

The tragedy of child abuse and neglect is one that touches every neighborhood. Please help us as we continue to provide the means to prevent the problem from happening.

For more information on the Children's Trust Fund, please call me at (517) 373-4320.

The little things cause the most havoc

In a day and age where many complex problems are solved by a computer or other high-tech apparatus, why do the little things in life remain virtually unsolved?

Every day I work on a computer. The work load is lightened with the push of a button, but the one question that still bothers me is: "Why is butter hard?"

I can't believe that when you try to coat the bun, roll or bread with butter or margarine, the roll ends up on the floor, the butter knife almost hits your neighbor, and the butter itself is wiped on the cuff of your shirt.

Hard butter is worse than finding a bone in the fish, or biting into the core of an apple. I will never understand why a solid slice of butter causes so much havoc in the world of fine dining.

Now you may wonder why I am expending so much thought on this, but don't you think the matter deserves further study? I realize butter is kept hard to preserve it, but I'd almost rather take a chance of eating some decayed butter than I would try to pick up another loose roll from under the table at Joe Muer's.

Speaking of eating, why does it never fail that waiters waitresses ask you how your meal is when your mouth is packed with steak, noodles or salad? Do they expect you to spit some of it at them to give your answer?

There has got to be a conspiracy. The waiters probably peek through the doors of the kitchen, watch you take a large bite of food, swiftly make their way to your table and then spring the question: "Is everything fine?"

What if it's not? You can't tell them anyway because your

I Say

take a bite of your Slim Jim before they practically force-feed you the bill.

If you have ever eaten at Big Boy, you may relate to this statement. If you haven't, let me enlighten you. Once you've ordered your meal, it takes time to receive it, but when the meal settles before your eyes, so does the bill. You kind of bounce that off your chest, but then you don't see the waitress and don't get asked how your meal is, or was, until you pay the piper on your way out. I don't even get the chance to look at the waitress with my mouth full and try to voice my opinion. Maybe next time.

When I go to eat, I like to take my time and enjoy each course.

I generally order a meal that either serves me soup, salad or both. The only problem I have with that they bring me the salad and six bites later, I'm looking down the rim of the soup bowl. Once again, I bounce it off the chest, but then as I push the salad aside and start slurping the chowder, my entree is getting cold.

And one more thing. When I choose the non-smoking section, nine times out of 10, the only thing that separates the smoking from the non-smoking section is a sign. The smoke seems to filter through the restaurant and a slight fog settles in my vicinity. The next time I go out to eat, I'm going to ask for the smoking section. There's got to be less smoke in those sections than there is in the non-smoking sector.

When all is said and done and your meal has either been tasteless, the service poor or the bill tagged to your meal, there is a way to show your appreciation — through the tip.

Yesterday's Headlines

April 11, 1946—

The New York Times' front page was dominated by news of the United Nations. Andrei A. Gromyko was released from his post as Russian ambassador to the United States so that he could devote his full attention to the U.N. Security Council. The United States was pleased.

The U.N. Security Council business the day before concerned complaints by Poland that the Franco regime in Spain was endangering world peace by harboring war criminals. There were reports about quarrels between Russia and Iran.

The United Nations failed to establish a temporary headquarters for the upcoming few years. They were meeting temporarily at Hunter College, in the Bronx, but had considered moving to the Sperry Gyroscope Company's plant at Lake Success, Nassau County or to a midtown Manhattan location, like Rockefeller Center Theater. They needed a large auditorium, but with space also for press, radio, documentary and other facilities.

Japanese women went to the polls to vote for the first time ever — and turned out in unexpectedly large numbers. The voting was closely supervised by Allied Forces.

President Harry S. Truman cancelled the Easter Egg rolling on the White House lawn. The event had not been held during the war years. "The waste of so valuable a food product as eggs would not be consistent with the effort to feed starving millions," said a White House spokesman. "and the nation's capital should set the rest of the country a good example in food conservation." Chocolate bunnies were advertised for Easter purchase at a Manhattan candy shop for the first time in four years. The demand for Easter ham exceeded the supply.

Four senators introduced a resolution in the Senate recommending world control of atomic energy by a U.N. agency. Meanwhile, scientists were continuing to search for new, practical, peaceful uses for atomic energy, such as production of heat and power on a large scale for industrial uses.

Albert Camus' "The Stranger" was released and a review called it "an outstanding brilliantly told story of controlled despair." Broadway plays included "I Remember Mama," "Born Yesterday" and "The Glass Menagerie." Jane Froman and comedian Jan Murray were featured at the Copacabana and Milton Berle was playing at a New York hotel.

In Grosse Pointe, employees of the Public Works and Pier Departments of the Village of Grosse Pointe Farms went on strike to protest the amount of their wage increases. Farms residents were asked to burn or bury their garbage or to dump it in a large hole near the intersection of Kerby and Chalfonte. Village trustees had approved increases of 10 percent for mechanics, foremen and truck drivers, which would have brought their earnings to $1.33, $1.33 and $1.23 respectively. Class B laborers were to receive a 13 percent increase, or $1.13 per hour. Class C laborers were granted a 10 percent increase, or $1 per hour.

An essay contest was in progress to determine what form a new Grosse Pointe War Memorial should take. Entries were to be no more than 1,500 words concerning ideas for the desirability, feasibility, appropriateness, cost and maintenance of a permanent war memorial for the Pointes. Prizes of $100 victory bonds were offered in three categories.

The Park Village planning commission presented recommendations to the Village commissioners for more physical and social recreational facilities for the Park's young people. Requests included dancing classes, a teen center with a jukebox, ice skating rinks, a ski jump and more playground facilities for children.

Tennis experts Don Budge and Bobby Riggs visited Grosse Pointe (South) High School to offer tips to the school's boys tennis team. Riggs and Budge were in town to play a match at Olympia.

An advertisement for Lake Shore Lane, in the Shores, told of the newly developed subdivision's 80-foot lots, expressly designed for ranch style homes with attached garages.

The Nightengale Market advertised roasting chickens for 45 cents a pound, Hills Brothers coffee for 33 cents a pound, and five pounds of sugar for 34 cents.

The Esquire Theater offered a double feature: Eddie Bracken and Veronica Lake in "Hold That Blonde" and Warner Baxter in "The Crime Doctor's Warning."

There was one page of classified ads. One read: "Woman wants work for Mondays and Thursdays. $6 and carfare."

Doggone good luck

A Grosse Pointer and her golden retriever are reunited this week through good luck and a soft-hearted anti-cruelty staff.

The pooch was found near Balduck Park by Detroitier Elaine Baker, who practically makes a career of helping stray dogs at the park. She finds so many that she has anti-cruelty's home number.

But Debbie Thurman of the Anti-Cruelty Association is using the case as an object lesson. The dog had no license or other identification and it's only because Thurman "fell in love with it" that it wasn't put to sleep on schedule.

State law only requires a shelter to keep an unidentified dog for four days before it is put up for adoption or — more likely — put to sleep. If your dog has some form of ID, the shelter has to warn you with a registered letter and keep your pet for 10 days.

We didn't know that either. "We were swamped with animals, literally frozen animals, during that cold weather," Thurman said. "We really didn't have room for more. One woman found a dog actually frozen to the ground.

"We're limited on space — and we can't refuse animals. As cold as it sounds, if we don't have room, we have to put some to sleep."

Many owners wait for several days after a pet is lost, figuring it will find its way back home. But in winter, maybe it can't.

"People don't realize that in this cold weather, animals can't smell their way back home," Thurman said. "They crawl away somewhere and freeze to death."

But thanks to Thurman's soft heart, our golden retriever was kept for seven days. "The most rewarding part of our job is getting animals back with their owners," she said.

If you lose a pet, call the Anti-Cruelty Association at 891-7188 and ask for Marlene. She'll tell you how to go about finding it again.

Now we all feel better.

He shoots, he scores!

Who cares about baseball when the Wings are doing so well?

Definitely not David Hall, a South senior, who won $1,000 Sunday night in the Detroit Red Wings "Score-O" contest.

Grosse Pointe fans who participate in the game between the second and third periods of the hockey contest usually get a few catcalls and boos from the audience (though not nearly as many as a Canadian Score-O player gets), but Hall prevailed.

He sent the puck through the small hole in the large board that covers the net twice to win the thousand bucks, bringing the crowd to its feet.

David is the son of John and Joan Hall of Grosse Pointe Woods.

Pierce prepares for 50th year

On April 9, 1939, the cornerstone of what was to be the new John D. Pierce Junior High School was put in place. September 1989 will mark the 50th year that students have attended the school named for the man who was the first state superintendent of public instruction, John D. Pierce.

During the next year and a half, the Pierce Historical Committee, headed by Dr. William Brownscombe, will be seeking and searching for people who have been a part of Pierce School. The committee is interested in students who have attended the school, teachers who have taught at Pierce and citizens who might have had some experience that would help in telling the Pierce School story.

"The need for memorabilia — pictures, names, events and things related to the history of Pierce — are what the committee is looking for," Brownscombe said.

The committee is also looking for people who will help plan the celebration scheduled for September 1989. Former students, relatives, and staff, past and present in the system are being asked to contact Brownscombe at 773-1050 during the day or 885-3551 in the evening.

Taste the grape

A four-week wine seminar, "Taste the Grape," will examine the four most noble grape varieties and what effects the soil, climate, fermentation and wine-maker skills have on the finished product.

The seminar, conducted by wine consultant Bonnie Delseiner, will be held at the War Memorial, Wednesday, Jan. 20, Feb. 10, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The first class will take an in-depth look at Chardonnay. A tasting of at least five wines from various wineries and countries is included to compare similarities and differences. This will be followed by similar programs on Cabernet Sauvignon, Jan. 27; Riesling, Feb. 3; and Pinot Noir, Feb. 10.

Class fee is $52 for series of four sessions; $15, single session. Advance enrollment is required. Call 881-7511.

Former resident finds political ad agency; Fortune finds him

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

Michael Murphy: hometown boy, home-grown Grosse Pointer, fresh-faced 1980 graduate of Grosse Pointe South. Murphy set out seven years ago to seek his fortune. He intended to find it by way of Georgetown University through the usual scholastic channels — political science courses, Russian studies and the university's foreign service school.

But alas, he dropped out of Georgetown to pursue some favorite activities: Republican politics, TV commercials, filmmaking and traveling. "Leave of absence," he said. "I prefer to call it a leave of absence from Georgetown."

Meanwhile, Fortune magazine found him.

An article in the Dec. 21 issue about the expanding roles of political media consultants cites Murphy's two-year old suburban Washington, D.C. firm and tells how videos are bringing a new dimension to the campaign trail.

Murphy's sidetrack has proved fortunate. After some volunteer work, an internship, and some interesting educational summer jobs, he has parlayed his accumulated knowledge into the creation of his own political media consulting firm, Murphy & Castellanos Advertising. The fledgling agency, one of a new breed of advertising specialists, is playing a major part in Sen. Robert J. Dole's presidential campaign and is making waves with a new tool in the campaign game — videos.

Videos, Murphy said, are a trend in presidential campaigns. They're less expensive than TV commercials. Videos can be longer; more in-depth. While they're not as effective as TV ads, they are more cost-effective if they get to the right people.

Typically, videos are used at local fund-raisers. The Dole video is working well, he said. There are probably several thousand copies in Iowa and 6,000 or 7,000 in the nation. "This year," Murphy said, "people seem to be more interested in the substance of presidential candidates. A video allows time to tell more about the candidate. VCRs are now in 55 percent of households, so we can use the video as a new way to get the message out. Also, it's a good way to do it when it's still too early for TV ads."

Murphy discovered his passion for filmmaking and politics after a string of challenging summer jobs. In the early '80s, he worked on marketing studies for a Detroit firm. He spent the next summer in Georgetown at a recording studio producing 30-minute talk shows for congressmen to send home to their districts. "I learned by volunteering and as an intern," said Murphy. "Then I was hired by the National Conservative Political Action Committee (NCPAC) to do some TV commercials for an Oklahoma congressman. They were terrible, but I didn't get fired. I made more, which were a bit better," he said. "I learned TV production the hard way. It turned into a full-time job while I was still going to school."

The next step, he said, was to form his own political ad agency, Tory Television, which he ran from his Georgetown dormitory room, while attending school. Within a short time he had an office, two assistants, and gross billings of a half-million dollars over two years. Tory Television was involved in the successful re-election campaigns of Rep. Bill Carney of New York and Rep. John Grotberg of Illinois.

Murphy then linked up with another freelance producer. "We learned together and now we're in business together. In 1983, I finally took a leave of absence from Georgetown to play in politics."

Murphy & Castellanos Advertising is one of about 100 political media consulting firms in the nation. Only about 10 of these firms do presidential campaigns, Murphy said, adding that his is one of the six most prominent.

"We work only on the Republican side. There's no cross-over. I'm not comfortable working for Democrats. It's ideological."

"Candidates who spend more than a half-million or so dollars generally hire consultants," Murphy said. "These consultants come in three flavors — pollsters, media consultants and general consultants. Pollsters can serve 30 or 40 candidates at once, with consultations every few weeks.

General consultants can handle three or four campaigns at a time and are in charge of managing the day-to-day activities of a campaign. Media consultants, like our agency, are in charge of the message — the creation of commercials, flyers, direct mailings, and such. We serve as debate coaches; we help with speeches; we advise candidates on how to dress. We consult every other day or so with the candidate and we can handle about six or eight campaigns at a time."

Murphy said about 80 percent of the firm's business is political candidates. "They're the most fun." But the firm also works with government and special interest groups, such as The American Security Council, the National Automobile Dealers Association, and Citizens for America.

Before forming his own company, Murphy and his partner, Alejandro Castellano, worked together as freelancers on the campaigns of Sens. Strom Thurmond and Sen. Jesse Helms. Both senators were underdogs who emerged on top when the final votes were tallied.

After several '84 success stories like this, he said, "The phone started ringing like crazy. I decided to stay on my leave of absence. In 1985 I merged into Murphy & Castellanos. We worked on Sen. Mack Mattingly's campaign and he lost. This was the first big one we lost — but only by 20,000 votes out of 1.3 million votes in the state."

"We worked on Sen. Steve Symms campaign and he won, even though he was behind in the polls. The same with Rep. George Wortley. Then we did some volunteer work for the Dole campaign."

Murphy's volunteer work for Dole — and his reputation for so many successful underdog campaigns — put him in a good position for becoming part of the team of consultants for Dole in 1987. Murphy's firm shot footage for the first advertisement for Dole, and produced a home video that is being used in Dole's camaign. "We spent six weeks during the summer of '87 following Dole around the country, filming," Murphy said. "During 1984 videos were used a little for campaigns. This year, because more people have VCRs, we're going to really use videos. It's working well. Dole is really one of the first to use them."

Murphy's political media consulting firm is now two years old. He said the company deals in several million dollars worth of advertising yearly, has six full-time and four part-time employees; more during an election year.

Not bad for a college drop-out.

Murphy has put college plans on the back burner. Right now he loves what he's doing. "I get to work on Republican campaigns. I get to do TV commercials. I get to make films. I get to travel a lot," he said. "And I get paid for it!"

"I'm having a good time."

THE DETROIT AUTO SHOW

AUTO SHOW HIGHLIGHTS

The 72nd Detroit Auto Show begins its annual nine-day run at noon Saturday, January 16 at Cobo Hall.

Cobo Hall will house over 500 new cars and trucks, many of which are making their Detroit and U.S. debuts. In addition, show-goers will see many concept and specialty vehicles, new high-tech displays, video productions, a 3-D movie theater and music and dance performances.

The show is open weekdays from 2-10:30 p.m. Tickets are $4.75; children under 12 with a parent are free. Senior citizens are also admitted free.

BUICK

- * U.S. DEBUT of the REATTA and REATTA CONVERTIBLE.
- * New Regal convertible and many other exciting 1988 Buicks.
- * Engine display and trim display for the Reatta and Regal.

OLDSMOBILE

- * Aerotech, a high performance vehicle equipped with the special Quad-4 engine and holder of several speed records.
- * DETROIT INTRO of the CUTLASS SUPREME INTERNATIONAL SERIES.
- * Cutlass Calais and Cutlass Ciera — both in Oldsmobile's International Series, plus Toronado Trofeo and 98 Touring Sedan.
- * 1988 Aerotech Indy Pace Car.

CADILLAC

- * U.S. DEBUT of the concept vehicle VOYAGE, a four-door ultra-luxury touring sedan.

ADVANCE SHOWING OF THE MOST ADVANCED CUTLASS EVER.

THE ALL-NEW CUTLASS SUPREME.*

It is almost a paradox that a car so sleek and elegantly styled is also tough as nails. But that's Cutlass Supreme. So sleek it could give aerodynamics lessons to a teardrop. Yet with its extensive glass areas and specially crowned body panels, it is one of the most rigid Oldsmobiles ever engineered. Also one of the most corrosion-resistant. Exterior body metal is two-sided galvanized steel. The exhaust system, stainless steel.

Take the wheel and enjoy a great new Cutlass Supreme ride, with 2.8-liter multiport fuel-injected V6, 4-speed automatic overdrive transmission, power rack-and-pinion steering, 4-wheel disc brakes and independent rear suspension.

It's no wonder that a specially equipped version of the Cutlass Supreme International Series was selected to be the 1988 Indy Pace Car.

Also on display are outstanding Oldsmobiles that are available and for sale right now. Remarkable cars like the uncompromising 1988 Oldsmobile Cutlass Calais International Series with GM's revolutionary twin-cam, 4-cylinder, 16-valve Quad 4 engine.

Remarkable cars...outstanding quality...from the engineers at Oldsmobile. Stop in and see them today!

THE TALK OF THE TOWN!

JANUARY 16th-24th

SHOW-GOERS

ARE CAR BUYERS

Visitors to the Detroit Auto Show are serious car buyers according to studies done by the Detroit Auto Dealers Association, the show's sponsor.

During the 1986 and 1987 auto shows the research firm of John Gilmore and Associates surveyed nearly 2,500 show-goers to determine if auto show audiences were a special market for auto dealers and manufacturers and what trends this group might establish.

Interviewers armed with an extensive questionnaire asked auto show viewers their attitudes about automobiles, the auto industry, dealers and the show.

One part of the interview asked whether the respondent intended to purchase a car within the next year. The 1987 survey revealed that nearly 55 percent of those attending the show said they were planning a car purchase within that time period. (This was down from 62 percent at the 1986 show, a trend which closely parallels 1987 national sales figures.)

In October the dealer association commissioned a follow-up survey to the original January effort. The research firm re-contacted nearly 500 of the January show-goers, both those who said they intended to purchase a car and those who said they did not intend to buy.

The results were intriguing to the dealer association. Of the "intenders", 61 percent said a member of their household had purchased a car since the auto show. Among the "non-intenders" a surprising 46 percent had bought a car.

Because the figures represented behavior for only nine months, the research firm added a figure of one-third to establish a projection of 12 months from show to show. Thus, the "intender" figure becomes 81 percent and the "non-intender" figure is 61 percent.

"We were startled", says Daniel Hayes, the show's manager and executive vice-president of the dealer organization.

Hayes, who has run the show for 12 years, says that he always thought auto show visitors were serious prospects but until now had no real way to prove it.

You don't need a crystal ball to see the future, just a ticket to the Auto Show.

Visit the Chevy display and you'll catch a glimpse of the future that's sure to make your heart beat faster: Sunracer, GM's solar-powered race car that beat 24 competitors in a 1,950-mile endurance test across Australia. Using the combined technologies of the GM universe, the same technologies available to the people who design and build Chevrolet cars and trucks, we took on the best of Europe, Japan, Australia and North America. And won.

In fact, Sunracer, powered only by the sun's energy and GM know-how, finished nearly two days ahead of its nearest competitor.

GM knows what it takes to compete in today's world. You can see it in all the Chevrolet cars and trucks on display at Chevy's Exhibit. We have cars more aerodynamic than the legendary Porsche 928. Others that perform well enough to make BMW blush. And even one that can go 58 miles on a gallon of gas*.

If it's trucks you like, take a look at the new full-size Chevy C/K pickup. The first all-new pickup introduced in this decade and so advanced, it makes the others look as old as the hills they're trying to climb.

Buick puts the show on the road.

The 1988 Buick Regal. It's a showstopper.

This year, you'll see something that's truly new at the Auto Show.

But it's not a concept car or a one-of-a-kind custom creation. It's everything you'd imagine in a car of the future . . . available in a Buick you can drive today.

It's the all-new 1988 Buick Regal. And there's nothing like it on the American road.

Beautiful to behold. Sculpted in the wind tunnel, the new Regal's .305 coefficient of drag is the lowest in Buick's 85-year history. It's a sleek design that is also exclusively Buick, shared with no other car in the world.

Regal is the world's first coupe with 6-passenger room, 4-wheel independent suspension and 4-wheel power disc brakes, all standard. Beneath the graceful hood: a 2.8-litre V-6 engine with multi-port fuel injection, and the security of front-wheel-drive engineering.

Beautiful to be in. Inside, Regal is also beautifully new and richly Buick, with room for 6 adults and a generous 15.5-cubic-foot trunk. There is an impressive list of comfort, convenience and luxury features. Even an electronic digital speedometer is standard.

Come see all the exciting 1988 Buicks at the Auto Show. Then, buckle up and visit your Buick dealer. And put the premium American motorcar on the road yourself.

There's nothing like it at the Auto Show. Or on any road, anywhere.

Task force working to find answers for poor test scores

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe teachers and administration officials have been seeking the last two months to find out why there was a decline in the number of students who passed the Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP) tests.

Last November parents throughout the school district were sent a letter by the school administration informing them that there had been serious declines in the number of students who performed satisfactorily on the MEAP tests.

"The results of the MEAP tests administered this fall in grades 4, 7 and 10 show that about 12 percent of our students failed to attain a satisfactory score," the letter from Superintendent John Whritner read.

"This is an increase of three percent over last year's students. Our scores are still well above most Michigan school districts, but unfortunately, not as high as we have come to expect."

In fact, there were declines in the number of students who performed satisfactorily in both reading and math at all three grade levels tested.

"We alerted parents with the letter to make sure that they knew we were working to rectify the situation," Whritner said. "Dr. (Roger) McCaig (director of research and development) has been working diligently for the past two months mostly on this. There are several areas we have identified that we need to work on."

"The main point here is this is not something we are ignoring.

Maybe there were signs on the horizon that we should have noticed, but when something like this happens across the board, it certainly grabs our attention."

McCaig said that for at least the last 10 years, the Grosse Pointe school system has been one of the top five districts in the state with its MEAP scores and in 1986, the district fell to seventh.

"We won't know just where we fell to in comparison to the other districts until later in the year," McCaig said. "What these figures mean is that 12 percent of the students in grades 4, 7 and 10 failed this test. And it is a very basic test."

The state-mandated test is a minimal skills test. It is not designed to test how much the students have learned beyond the basics, only if they have attained the minimal level of basic skills required by the state.

"Twenty to 30 percent of our kids get 100 on this test," McCaig said. "It is really very basic."

The ease of this test is what has teachers and administration officials concerned. If 12 percent of the students failed to learn the minimal requirements, the district must go back and make sure those students master the fundamentals, and try to insure that the number of students who fail the test in the future is decreased.

McCaig is faced with a number of problems, most notably that the overwhelming majority of students performed very well on the MEAP test. Obviously, there is no one answer as to why more students failed, and McCaig has the job of determining just where the problems lie and how to work with the faculty and administration to fix those problems.

"The district did very well on the Comprehensive Test of Basic Skills," McCaig said of another test students are required to take every year. "This one tests both the minimal and maximum amount of knowledge. Students did very well on this test, and in fact, showed a little improvement at every grade. This makes the decline on the MEAP tests harder to understand."

Part of the explanation for the poor scores at the fourth- and seventh-grade levels, says McCaig, is that there are a greater number of slower learners in those two grades. He notes that there are also a greater number of exceptionally talented students in those two grades as well. This means that statistically, the overall average is virtually the same as that attained by students in other grades.

"The number of slower learners in those grades may be part of the explanation," McCaig said, "but it still unacceptable, and we must find a way to deal with it to bring those students up to acceptable levels."

Why the increase in the number of test failures? McCaig said officials are still examining the problem, but there are some preliminary indications.

"Part of the problem the increase in the number of students coming to the system from outside the district," he said. "We know that if you came to the district this year and took the test, you are 70 percent more likely to fail the test than those students who were here the previous year. So turnover is part of the cause."

Other students who performed poorly included students who are learning disabled or emotionally impaired.

"The world has changed," McCaig said. "We have to work harder to keep things stable. We are seeing an increase in family stress such as abuse or impairments. We should not be surprised that there is an increase in the number of students who are not doing well in school. We need to figure out a new plan to address the difficulties more effectively."

The district could possibly have been alerted to declining test scores before the students had taken the tests, if officials would have paid closer attention to the "tip-offs."

"If we would have listened more closely to the things the counselors and the teachers and administrators say to one another each day, we may have avoided this," McCaig said.

"Many students have difficulty paying attention because they are more concerned about personal problems at home. Other students don't do their homework because there is no supervision at home, or are frequently absent. Or students are in and out of schools all over the country with parents who have to move because of their business. All of these are warning signs we should have paid more attention to."

Part of the problem may be at the teaching level. Perhaps different teaching techniques and more emphasis on the basics are needed, McCaig said.

"Some of the teachers feel the curriculum is crowded," he said. "Teachers need to distinguish between essential skills for mastery and review and other areas of learning for coverage."

He added that special education teachers must make certain that the objectives they are trying to reach for their students are met, just as the objectives must be met by general education teachers.

McCaig reiterated that 90 percent of the students in the school are doing fine, but, he noted, it is not an accident that the district had a decline at all three grade levels on both tests. He said it is the little slips that signal a warning about the disasters ahead.

"I would go so far as to say that I am glad this has happened," McCaig said. "It has focused the attention of the entire faculty on the problems we already knew existed, and are now finally showing up on the test scores."

Future meetings of a task force that has been formed to look at the problems have been set for the coming months.

Nursery school open house

Parents are invited to observe a typical session at the Grosse Pointe Cooperative Nursery School Inc., located downstairs in the Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church at 211 Moross. The open house will be held between 9:30 and 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, Jan. 19.

A co-op nursery's philosophy is that young children need a positive group experience and that it makes good sense for their parents to share in that experience. At Grosse Pointe Co-op, teacher Judi Zimmer is assisted by parents who rotate working days.

The children participate in large and small group activities and free-time play to promote positive social experiences. They are given opportunities to do craft projects and paint at easels, to use dress-up clothes, riding toys, indoor gym equipment, puppets, puzzles and blocks.

Grosse Pointe Co-op's facilities include a housekeeping area, workbench, water and sand tables. A number of field trips are scheduled throughout the year.

The nursery is now accepting Fall 1988 registration for 3-, 4- and 5-year-olds.

For further information, call Jennie Woods at 882-1347.

Report eagle sightings to DNR

Michigan residents are invited to play a role in the comeback of bald eagles this winter by reporting their sightings during the January-March period to the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Nongame Wildlife Program.

Reports zeroing in on the Jan. 1-15 time frame are particularly important. They will be tied into a cooperative effort with the National Wildlife Federation as part of a nationwide winter eagle survey.

Observations of eagles extending throughout the winter will help guide a management recovery plan for the birds.

Due to citizen participation and reports, a record 145 bald eagles were counted in Michigan last winter.

Anyone sighting an adult bald eagle (distinguished by white head and tail) from now through March should send a postcard with the date, specific location, and number of eagles seen to: Eagle Alert, DNR Nongame Wildlife, Box 30180, Lansing, Mich. 48909.

Their hobby becomes a magnificent obsession

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

John and Julie Dyle are deeply into the restoration of an 82-year old Grosse Pointe building that was originally designed as an office for the first telephone exchange in the area.

Renovation is nothing new for the Dyles. This is their twelfth restoration project in less than 12 years. This one, they said, is their most ambitious undertaking so far. It's also the oldest, most historic structure they've tackled yet.

"What started as a hobby has ended up an obsession," John said, "— a magnificent obsession."

He works in the business office of The Detroit News and she is a sales representative for a computer company and a medical supply company. They also work at breathing life back into old, neglected houses, then managing the properties they have resuscitated.

"Most are apartment units in Grosse Pointe: some are in Birmingham and Harbor Springs," Julie said.

They're both enthusiastic about the pects of their projects, do landscaping, minor plumbing and electrical repairs, plastering and cleaning.

They both make quilts and restore antique quilts. Julie has made needlepoint seats for chairs — even a good-sized needlepoint rug for their living room. "We don't own a TV set," she said. "That's how we manage to do so many things."

"The process is the exciting thing," she said. "The challenge, the creativity, the laughs — they're more fun than the finished product."

To be sure, they've picked up a variety of skills, a storehouse of do-it-yourself experience, a historical perspective, an appreciation for antiques and historic preservation, and they've become adept at solving dozens of unusual problems.

"The beauty of this community," Julie said, "is that you can learn just about anything you want to learn in community education classes. We've learned needlepoint, quilting, wood-working and more."

The Dyles are just warming up to the task of renovating the Fisher Road house. They said they're serving as their own architects, but will consult with engineers on this particular house because of the uniqueness of the building.

So far, they've knocked down walls, chipped away old plaster, chopped down trees, removed a rusty wire fence, and persuaded a lively multi-generational family of raccoons to move out of the attic.

The Dyles have lived in the house for a year now, as they're gradually proceeding with their renovations. "We like to live in houses first, before we start work," Julie said. "We get a feel of how the house is put together, how the light comes in, the arrangements of the rooms, the flow, our way of living in the house."

All the floors are poured cement. They plan to install hardwood floors on the first floor, to add a new, modern kitchen, brand new bathrooms — complete with a Jacuzzi — onto the back of the house.

"We can see the house in its finished state," she said, "but my aunt calls it San Andreas — because it has a few faults."

It needs electrical work, new plumbing, heat and wiring for the phones, John said. They're looking into a new type of in-floor heating that uses hot water to heat the floors.

"The challenge," John said, "is to make a new use for an old thing. We want to keep the heritage of the building."

Julie said they would like to help the Grosse Pointe Historical Society by John and Julie Dyle stand before the house they're renovating. It was built more than 80 years ago as the first telephone exchange for the Grosse Pointe area. It held the switchboard and the offices for the local phone company until the late 1930s.

starting a homeowners group to share their problems, successes and solutions in working with historic homes. "There should be a group to share ideas, information, tools and books about projects like ours," she said.

During their exploration of the building and the demolition of walls and floors, the Dyles have found some interesting artifacts: four old pennies, dated 1891, 1892, 1910 and 1930, and a Mercury dime dated 1923. In a crawl space, John found an antique bottle, a tomato soup can with a label dated 1906, a Pet Milk can dated 1906 and an old-fashioned lard bucket. "We think that the house was built in 1906 and the workmen discarded these items while working on the house," he said.

"Also, we did some research with county records and the historical society and found that the value of the property went up dramatically in 1906, so we think it was because the building was erected in that year," said Julie.

The Dyles also found a toy gun, some old Beech Nut gum wrappers, a bottle of flavoring extract with the cork still in it, some old postcards, marbles and ping pong balls.

In the carriage house at the rear of the property, they found a pedal-powered addressograph machine and a photo album of the Harmsworth Trophy Boat Races in 1933, with pictures of Gar Wood and of the race boats that competed that year.

The Dyles would like to have the building designated with a historic marker and would like to encourage others to do the type of renovating they enjoy. "We hope to inspire others and give them courage to try things they haven't had the courage to try. We'd like people to keep up old homes."

"The challenge for historic homes," John said, "is to find different uses for them. With enough thought, we can find modern alternative uses for historic buildings. Unfortunately, developers often have their way at the expense of the Pointe's heritage."

Julie Dyle works on a two-piece cabinet that was part of the building when they moved in. They believe it was used for recordkeeping when the building was an office for the telephone exchange.

The Dyles found an antique toy during the renovation of their house. The toy pop gun still has a cork in the barrel.

unusual structure they've chosen as their home — and their current renovation project. "We can visualize the finished product," said Julie.

Their plans include gutting the second floor to make three or four bedrooms, adding bathrooms and a modern kitchen, putting in hardwood floors. They'll keep the best of the old: the solid oak staircase with its perfectly intact spindles, the old oak woodwork, the original hardware on the windows and doors.

"Hardware is like the jewelry of a house," John said. "We're fortunate to have all the original hardware."

The Dyles have also been researching the house's history through county records, the Burton collection at the Detroit Public Library and the historical society.

The Fisher Road house was constructed before World War I as an office and telephone exchange for a private phone company. For more than 30 years, it was headquarters for Home Telephone Company. The Dyles' dining room held the switchboard. Grosse Pointe residents paid their bills through an arched window in what is now the tiled foyer.

Their lavatory was the cashier's office. The living room was two business offices and a storage area for the phone company's files and records. The kitchen was the battery room for the banks of six-volt batteries needed for the switchboard.

Vents for the little pot-bellied stoves, the offices' only source of heat during winter, are still visible. The upstairs bedrooms were individual offices for the employees who handled details of the telephone business.

According to John's research, the property was owned and developed by John B. Dyar, who had an interest in the Home Telephone Company. Later the building was sold to the Michigan State Telephone Company. During the Depression, when rotary dial phones were introduced, the phone company moved out and the building was converted to a two-family flat. In 1986, when the Dyles bought it, they lived upstairs for a while until the downstairs tenants moved out.

The Dyles have always been interested in history. They also make their own furniture, do 90 percent of the restoration and renovation work themselves, do research on the historic as-

Some objects the Dyles found under the building, which was built about 1906: a flavoring extract bottle, three dated cans, an old screw-top bottle and a lard bucket. They think these items were probably discarded by workmen.

John Dyle chips away at some plaster in the living room of his 82-year-old house. The walls are three bricks thick — an old fashioned method of fireproofing a building.

The radiators in the Fisher Road home are decorated with a variety of different designs. This one features lions' heads.

John and Julie Dyle made the pencil post canopy bed and the candlestand in the master bedroom from kits. Julie made the quilt. They've worked together on restoring other antique quilts.

Local observers see serious trouble ahead for Haiti

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

Once the widespread November street violence died down, Haiti dropped out of front-page news and into the international news briefs columns, but a second controversial election is scheduled for this Sunday. No one knows what will happen then, say two people operating missions there.

Things are quieter now, according to the Rev. Patricia Gruits, a former Grosse Pointer who heads health clinics and a school in Port au Prince and several other Haitian towns.

"Our school was closed after the election massacre Nov. 29 and it has just reopened," Gruits said. "Right now, things have calmed down."

There is no expectation that the situation will remain calm. Gruits said rumors are afloat in Florida's Little Haiti that there will be guerilla action if the government holds its disputed election. The Haitian headmaster of her school predicts revolution.

"Things were better under Baby Doc, if you can believe that," Gruits said. "At least there was law and order. Now everything is helter-skelter. Crime is on the increase. We hear gunshots at night."

Gruits said she was never afraid to walk alone at night in the poor neighborhoods, but that she wouldn't do it now.

Pending Sunday's election, "we wait day by day. It's very evident that Duvalier is still ruling. The Tontons (Macoutes, the old Duvalier secret police) are still active — everybody's scared to death."

Elsewhere in the Caribbean, people don't seem too concerned about Haiti's plight. Only seven of the 13 nations sent representatives to a meeting last week in Barbados, which issued a weak statement regretting the Haitian government's undemocratic stance.

There is no feeling of being in the problem together, according to Ferdinand Mahfood, head of Food for the Poor. He had just returned from Jamaica and said that in spite of the fact that the Jamaican prime minister had headed the Caribbean meeting, no one was talking about Haiti's difficulties.

"People haven't come to the conclusion that we're a human family," Mahfood said. "It is my regret that the United States government hasn't taken a more active role. . . We should have put a presence there to help the transition from a dictatorship to democracy."

Mahfood said the political situation in Haiti is so volatile that he hasn't been there in six months. He has had to post additional security at his food warehouses in Port au Prince.

Food for the Poor has been able to continue its food distribution, but only under difficult circumstances.

"Under Duvalier, some things were getting through to the poor," he said. "There were abuses, but some of it was getting through. Since he left, the whole system has stopped functioning. The majority of people are worse off. The customs bureaucracy is inefficient. Importation has slowed down. Goods are getting stuck on the docks in customs."

Mahfood said he finds it particularly discouraging because the Haitians are such "beautiful people."

"I have walked through the slums there and never felt any animosity," he said. "The poor there are not angry like poor in other countries. But you can't believe it — the people live in mud huts and raw sewage floats through their houses when it rains."

Even docile people have a breaking point, and Mahfood indicated it might not be far off. "On Jan. 17, nobody's going to vote for anybody," he predicted. "I don't think the Haitian people are going to accept this election."

Committee formed to study school budget for reductions

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

A committee has been formed to look at all areas of the school system budget to find possible alternatives to cutting staff in an effort to decrease the district's expenditures by some $500,000.

At the end of 1987, the district announced that it would be necessary to cut expenditures to raise the fund equity level to a reasonable level. The fund equity is the amount of money left over on paper after the district has made its expenditures for the fiscal year.

A solid fund equity is necessary for the district to get a good interest rate on bond sales, and to make fast, large cash payments in the event of a disaster.

Officials proposed to make the cuts by reducing staff at the two high schools by 10 to 12 teachers. Whritner said that with a budget that is approximately 80 percent salaries and fringe benefits, there are few other areas to cut.

At the Monday, Jan. 4 meeting, Doris Cook, president of the Grosse Pointe Education Association, said there are alternatives to cutting staff.

Cook said that in many cases the extracurricular activities funded by the district could reduce costs significantly.

"I would cut out the extra pay for extra duty paid to teachers for such things as the music club, drama club and journalism," she said. "That could save French III and IV."

Cook said she made it clear that she wasn't offering the board her specific plan to make the cuts, but wanted it understood that there are alternatives to cutting staff and increasing class size at the high school level.

Noting that she recently saw a posting of a position for a new lacrosse coach, Cook said this is not the time to start a new sport, even if it is funded mostly by the participants.

"Everyone has their pet area," Cook said, "but education is our major business, and it should have priority over such things."

Sports are costly. Ice time for hockey, for instance, costs the district thousands of dollars each year.

"Ice hockey is probably more expensive than football," Cook said. "And it has fewer participants."

Cook said she realizes that calling for reductions in sports, especially ice hockey, will be highly controversial, but she said she felt she must speak out.

"I don't know the costs exactly, but I would estimate that the advance placement program at both high schools would cost less than the two ice hockey programs," she said. "What is more important? And there have been recommendations that advanced placement classes should not exceed 20 people. If we have to increase the size of the advanced placement classes to 25 people, it would defeat the purpose."

Whritner said that he will be making all final recommendations to the board, but said he is seeking the counsel of a group of administrators, school administrators and central administration staff in making those decisions. He still sees cutting staff at the high school level as an important way of reducing the budget, but notes that if there are alternatives, he will consider them. "High school enrollment has been going down," he said. "So we can make cuts (in staff) without seriously affecting class size." She (Cook) is on the committee and will help study alternatives. The problem is everybody has their own hit list and their own direction they would like to see the cuts take."

"It is much more fun to be a part of the growth times," Whritner said, "but here we are. You have to look at it as a balancing act, do the things that affect the students least."

Whritner said he called for the formation of this committee in a memo issued Monday morning, Jan. 4, and Cook's comments came at the meeting Monday night.

"Her comments just reinforce the need to go in this direction," Whritner said.

Cook said that if the high school faculty must be cut, she would like to see serious thought given to cuts at the administrative level as well.

"Perhaps we could eliminate some of the expensive personnel at the central office," Cook said. "Not only do you eliminate a more expensive person, but you also eliminate such things as a secretary, expense accounts and private offices."

Farms to try again to fix traffic congestion

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

After a three-month hiatus, the Farms traffic committee will try to finalize 10 recommendations to help solve traffic problems around the Hill shopping district. The Jan. 18 meeting will sideline another five items for future consideration.

The items have been on the table since last spring. Traffic consultants Goodell-Grivas proposed them as part of a package of possible ways to alleviate congestion. They consist of several no-left-turns, some street closings and some one-way designations.

The committee will decide whether to close McMillan at Ridge, to make the Kercheval alleyways one-way, add parking spaces on McMillan and block through traffic on the Moran-Canyon route to the expressway. Other possibilities could also be considered, according to committee chairwoman Gail Kaess.

Hill merchants were upset last May when the traffic committee discussed several of the same ideas, plus one that would have removed some of the Kercheval parking spaces. Kaess said she doesn't think there will be concerns this time around.

"No one from the Hill has contacted me to say they were unhappy," she said. "Their biggest concern was taking parking off the street, but that's been put on the back burner. We don't want to do anything to upset anybody on the Hill — or the residents." She acknowledged that it is almost impossible to take any action without making someone unhappy.

Moving traffic off any street simply puts traffic on another street, Kaess said. The traffic committee's goal has been to keep most of the traffic on the streets that have been designated as major thoroughfares, yet spreading the problem around as evenly as possible.

"You can't please everyone," she said. "We're just trying to equalize it."

Some members of the traffic committee have complained that nothing was being done about the problems on Moran and McMillan. The light at Mack and Moran was shifted to a blinking mode for 90 days about two years ago, then shifted back.

"A certain group of people felt they weren't being listened to, but everybody's had equal opportunity," Kaess said. "That committee includes people from all the main streets."

Kaess said she expects the committee to take action at Monday's meeting. "We've been niffling for such a long time," she said. "If we're going to try something, we might as well go ahead and try it."

The specifics of the recommendations could change by Monday, but currently they include:

- temporarily barricading McMillan at Ridge and allowing parking in the block between Ridge and Kercheval.
- making both alleys behind Kercheval businesses one way.
- barricading Hall Road at the alley.
- barricading the Mack island at Moran.
- preventing certain turns

Student aid info

A program on obtaining student financial aid will be broadcast on Grosse Pointe Cable Channel 19 on Thursday, Jan. 21, at 7:30 p.m.

"Student Financial Aid: Putting It To Work For You" is hosted by 54 colleges and universities as a community service to assist students. The program is especially designed for high school juniors and seniors and others planning to go to college.

Look for information on career selection, college selection, college costs, financial aid application procedures and state and federal student aid programs. Families watching the program may call the counseling center at their high school during regular office hours. If there are questions during or immediately after the broadcast, D'Ette University of Grosse Pointe has arranged for trained financial aid counselors to man telephones at 882-5522 and 371-8750.

MACLD to meet

Michigan Association for Children and Adults with Learning Disabilities will present a program on "Choices for L.D. Students after High School," Tuesday, Jan. 19, at 7:30 p.m. at Grosse Pointe Central Library. Speakers will be Debbie Hubbell, counselor at North High School, and Linda Lloyd from the Career Resource Center at North.

Hubbell and Lloyd will discuss the options and opportunities open to learning disabled high school graduates, whether they choose to pursue a college education or a vocation. They will also share information and insights acquired through career counseling and follow-up of former students' post-high school activities. There will be a discussion period.

MACLD programs are open to the public. There is no admission charge and refreshments will be served.

Demolition at Pointe Plaza began last week. The first building to come down was the old A & P building, later used by St. John Hospital as a warehouse. Schostak Brothers & Co. are the leasing agent and developer for the large project planned for the Mack and Moross site.

Demolition begins at 7, Mack

Demolition, scheduled to start last summer, began Jan. 6 to make way for a large office and retail development at the Moross and Mack Pointe Plaza Shopping Center.

According to St. John Hospital officials, the process for developing the demolition plan was more complicated than anticipated. The demolition had to be completed without disrupting services to the adjacent facilities that will remain.

Schostak Brothers & Co. is developer, leasing agent and manager of the property whose plans call for construction of a five-story, 1,600-car parking structure, 96,000-square foot building on Moross just east of the hospital to house doctors' offices and administrative personnel from the hospital and a five-story, 96,000-square foot building on Mack to be leased to attorneys, accountants and other non-medical professionals. At the ground level of the project will be room for retail shops (some 63,000 square feet) and an atrium with 20-foot wide walkways.

St. John Hospital, whose parent company, St. Clair Health Corp., owns the 10-acre site, is leasing the land to Schostak Brothers. St. Clair is not involved in the actual development.

Officials said they were not in

Learn chair seat weaving

Working with cane, paper rush and wicker are a few skills to be offered in Chair Seat Weaving, at the War Memorial, Saturdays, Jan. 23-Feb. 6.

Pre-woven cane and flat splints will also be covered in the three-week workshop, taught by Mary Herbert.

Students are asked to bring a position to discuss potential tenants for the facility at this time.

Much of the 1950's vintage Pointe Plaza shopping center will be razed as a prelude to the development. Demolition should continue throughout the winter with groundbreaking on the development to begin this spring. The development will open on a phased basis beginning with the parking deck in late 1989.

Woods dockage rates increase

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

The cost of keeping a boat at the Woods Lakefront Park will go up this spring, as the Woods became the first city in the Pointes to raise mooring rates. Several other Pointe cities may be considering a similar move, according to Woods City Manager Chester Petersen.

At its Jan. 4 meeting, the council amended the ordinance to allow the fee increase of $40 across the board. The boost will help finance improvements to the marina.

The park improvement bond is expected to finance about $450,000 of the work, with the boat dock reserve fund contributing another $235,000. The city is redoing the boat wells and electric service and dredging the Milk River.

The cost of the project was underestimated, however. Reluctant to do the project halfway, the council decided to raise rates to cover the remainder.

"We'll spend the extra money — you have to," Petersen said. "The boaters are not going to like the increase, but it's still less than they'd have to pay at a private marina."

Petersen said the Woods dockage rates were comparable to the rest of the Pointes before the increase — and that the Park, City and Farms are all considering raising their rates as well.

The engineer is now preparing plans and specifications for the work on the boat wells. Petersen said the project is supposed to be completed by May 1.

What to do in an emergency involving a senior

Christine Pastoor, emergency medical technician and American Red Cross instructor, will address the support group of Calvary Day Care for Adults, 4950 Gateshead at Mack Avenue, on Wednesday, Jan. 20, at 7:30 p.m. She will demonstrate emergency procedures essential for caregivers of the aging followed by a question and answer session. There will be registration for a CPR class to be offered in February.

Calvary Day Care for Adults, a unit of Lutheran Social Services of Michigan, hosts these monthly support group meetings to share common concerns of aging and to familiarize residents with the program.

The support group meetings are open to the public. Call 881-3374 for further information.

Watercolor class

Intermediate Watercolor will be offered Wednesdays, Jan. 27-Feb. 24, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the War Memorial.

The class will be taught by Carol Lachiusa, who also offers Watercolor Techniques and Watercolor For Everyone at the center.

The class is intended for students who have taken a beginning watercolor class or have worked in the medium independently.

Early registration is recommended. Fee is $32 for four weeks.

tractor, working a total of about 14 hours on the Jefferson break," Kressbach said. "This one may cost between $2,000 and $3,000."

Thomas Whitcher, assistant director of public works in the Woods, said four water main breaks were reported during the recent cold wave. The most serious break occurred on Mack in front of the Woods Theater.

Whitcher said a six-foot section of pipe had to be replaced. Other breaks in the Woods occurred in the 2000 block of Brys Drive, Mack and Manchester, and on private property on the University Liggett School campus.

"We're the largest Pointe of the bunch," Whitcher said. "We're pretty much more equipped than the rest, and we do everything ourselves, unless there is an extreme disaster."

The Woods has its own backhoe equipment, unlike many of the Pointes, and the public works employees do the water line repair work themselves.

The main break in front of the Woods theater was discovered Wednesday, and it eventually became a major problem. An attempt was made to fix the 12-inch pipe under pressure, but water to about four streets had to be cut for several hours while repairs were made.

"We try to inform people in advance if we are going to shut off their water," Whitcher said, "but in an emergency, such as the one we had Wednesday, we can't always warn them."

Water nearly covered the street at one point, and with the extremely cold temperatures, ice began forming quickly.

"We scrape up the ice as soon as we can," Whitcher said. "We pick it up with the loader and send out a salt truck so the roads and sidewalks will not be slippery."

Jim Ellison, public works director, said the Park has been lucky since the cold weather hit, with only two water main breaks.

"We have had one private service line on the 800 block of Barrington and a break opposite St. Ambrose Church on Hampton," Ellison said. "There was no loss of service or inconvenience to anyone."

Chet Marrs, foreman at the Farm's water department, said there has been a "bumper crop" of water line breaks and blowouts since last summer. There have been four since Jan. 1 on Provencal, Touraine, Williams and Stevens.

"We have a contractor who comes in with a backhoe and we use our own personnel to do the work," Marrs said.

Marrs said there are two basic types of water line breaks — blowouts and breaks. A blowout is usually caused when the walls of the pipe, for whatever reason, weaken. Eventually the pressure pushes through the weak point and the water rises to the surface. A break is usually caused by the shifting of the ground. This can be caused by frost moving into the ground or simply by the earth settling. These problems usually occur more frequently, he said, when the pipe infrastructure begins to age.

According to Shores officials, there have been three water main breaks since the onset of the cold snap. The breaks occurred on Ballantyne, Blairmoor and Lakeshore roads. No one was without water during the repair periods, and all the work was handled with village employees.

Officials throughout the Pointes anticipate more water main breaks, but the problem will likely abate once the frost has fully moved into the ground.

and returned to the victim by a citizen.

Warren police spotted a vehicle running red lights and exceeding the speed limit while westbound on Eight Mile Road around 10:12 p.m., but were not aware of the bulletin from the Woods.

Warren officers gave chase, at speeds in excess of 70 miles per hour, according to public information officer Lt. Don Anderson.

The suspect abandoned his vehicle at Seven Mile at Concord and began running through alleys. He took two shots at the Warren police helicopter with a sawed-off 410 shotgun, apparently the same weapon used to fire at the Woods victim.

The suspect later surrendered to Warren police without incident. Anderson said there was no damage to the helicopter. Charges pending in Warren include assault with intent to commit murder, possession of a sawed-off shotgun, fleeing and eluding and reckless driving.

Information on the arraignment, scheduled for yesterday, was not available at presstime.

Student Spotlight Dayna Santora

Each week in this column, we will focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a wood-working project, a book review.

The following was written by Dayna Santora, a first-grader at Maire Elementary. She is the daughter of Philip and Maureen Santora of Grosse Pointe.

The Very Strange Thing

I heard a telephone go ring, ring, ring. Then I saw a dog go rough, rough, rough. As the dog went rough and the telephone went ring, then the cow joined in and he went moo. Then the hen heard all about the big party and he also joined in and he went cockle-doodle-doo. Then the farmer heard all the commotion and he went, "Quiet."

This space is open to any student in the Grosse Pointe public or private school system from grades 1 through 12.

Send your entry along with a

Saturnalia celebrated

To learn, they went back in time. On Dec. 9, upper and middle school Latin students at University Liggett donned togas and laurel wreaths to celebrate the harvest feast of Saturnalia.

The students dined on typical Roman fare: chicken, green beans, hard-boiled eggs, bread, grapes and cheesecake. After dinner, the group watched a play produced by advanced Latin students who appropriately spoke only in Latin.

The evening was coordinated by ULS Latin teachers Helen Fieldew (also head of the foreign language department), Susan Bernstein and Billy Fowler.

Mock trial tournament set

The sixth annual Michigan High School Mock Trial Tournament involving students, lawyers and teachers will be held April 16 at Detroit's City County Building. It is open to teams of students from any Michigan High School.

High school students will play the roles of the prosecutors and defense attorneys, as well as the witnesses and the defendant. Each school will enter a team of up to eight members, with two lawyers and two witnesses from each school participating in each round of trials.

In this year's case, Dannie McGrew (who can be played by either a male or female) will be tried for the murder of Barney Quill at the Thunder Bay Inn. The defense is self-defense. The case will be tried in the circuit court of Sesquicentennial County.

Registration is open until Feb. 1. The tournament is sponsored by the University of Detroit, Wayne County Neighborhood Legal Services and the Michigan Law-Related Educations Project. It is also supported by the Detroit Bar Association Barristers Club, Michigan Lawyer's Auxiliary, and Phi Alpha Delta legal fraternity.

A judge or attorney will serve as the trial judge, presiding over a trial run according to Michigan law. The performances of the students in their roles as lawyers and witnesses will be scored by a panel of attorneys and judges. Every school will try the case at least twice, once as the prosecution and once as defense. Half the schools will compete in two more rounds in the afternoon.

North to host eighth-graders, parents

This year's annual orientation for parents and their eighth-graders on Wednesday, Jan. 20, at 7:30 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center at 707 Vernier Road will include a new dimension — awareness of North's programs for anyone interested in coming to North.

The activities will begin with presentations by each of the department chairpersons on the program of studies in their specific departments. The principal, assistant principals and staff will also make remarks on items of interest to parents.

Tours of the school will be given during the second hour of the two-hour program. Teachers and students will be available to discuss curriculum and answer questions. Refreshments will be served by the Commercial Foods Club in the cafeteria.

Registration for the 1988-89 school year will begin in February, and Wednesday evening's program is designed to assist families in carefully selecting programs from the more than 250 courses offered.

Programs of Study brochures have been sent to families of all incoming eighth-graders from Parcels and Brownell. Others wishing a copy may get one in the main office at North or in the private or parochial schools in the Grosse Pointe area.

Beach party is theme for dance

It may be below zero outside, but for Grosse Pointe's middle school students, Saturday, Jan. 16, will bring the tropics as close to home as the War Memorial.

The first youth dance of 1988 is the annual Beach Party. From 7:30 to 10:30 p.m., students in grades 6-8, who reside in or attend school in Grosse Pointe, can dance to music by J.R. Entertainment. Dress for the evening is beach or Hawaiian attire and there will be prizes for the best dressed.

Students to sponsor benefit dance

Bishop Gallagher High School will sponsor the seventh annual dance for the Muscular Dystrophy Association Thursday, Feb. 25, at the high school, 19360 Harper in Harper Woods.

Last year the students raised

$5,386 for summer camp, wheelchairs and clinic visits. The event will start at 7:30 p.m. and end at midnight. Admission is $5 at door.

For more information, call Irene Baird at 779-7860.

Debaters take second

University Liggett School came away with a second place finish in the Michigan Interscholastics Forensics Association Novice Tournament held in December in Mount Pleasant.

Nita Kulkarni, Alex Stine, Minisha Kulkarni and Alex Misal debated this year's topic "Resolved — that the United States government should adopt a policy to increase political stability in Latin America."

Seventy Michigan high schools entered the competition. ULS was one of the three Class-D schools that advanced to the finals. Besides ULS, Birmingham Seaholm took first; Portage Northern, third; Muskegon Mona Shores, fourth, and Grosse Pointe South, fifth.

Radiator firm owner vents a little steam of his own

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

Sometimes he boils over, but his radiators are as cool as can be.

Twenty-four years ago, Robert Duquet was a clerk for Detroit Radiator Co. He had been an administrative clerk in the U.S. Army for a general in Germany, and when he returned home, he was ready to go to work. Jobs were somewhat scarce, and the Michigan Employment Security Commission directed him to the automotive radiator company.

It was lucky he took the $55-a-week job, because today he is owner and president of the corporation that has 12 stores, 120 employees, manufactures 50,000 radiators, 60,000 radiator cores and grossed $6 million in sales last year.

Duquet lives on Lakeshore in an Italian villa with his wife Frances. They have five children.

It was a long way from a $55-a-week job maintaining journals, handling cash receipts and doing various accounting chores to a Grosse Pointe Shores home on the lake, and Duquet says he owes his success to a lot of hard work.

His wife Frances handles the payroll and accounts receivable on a computer, and his office is just above hers on the second floor of a small building on Hoover in Warren.

The building, 16,500 square feet, is home to a radiator core manufacturing plant. Radiator cores are the part of the car or truck cooling system that allows heat to escape into the atmosphere through rows of copper fins.

Up until 10 years ago, Duquet had a partner — Conrad Wojciechowski. The pair bought the company after the death of the business' founder, Walter Komyk.

The firm was started after World War II in Hamtramck and was called Wally's Radiator Hospital.

The Eight Mile Road store, which opened later, is still the company's anchor location. Now with the purchase of a 40,000-square-foot building in River Rouge, the 25,000-square-foot anchor store will no longer be the largest.

"We actually manufacture the radiator cores for automobiles, trucks and off-road generators," he said. "We fabricate metals, and make the side mounting brackets and the tanks that go on the radiator cores."

"All custom radiators come from Detroit Radiator. Nine out of 10 times if you need a custom-built radiator, you come to us."

Radiators are the company's mainstay, but Duquet said his company is the largest distributor of car heaters and the largest supplier of air conditioning condensers, compressors and hoses, and is just getting into the restoration of used gas tanks.

His business is tied directly to the metals markets. He said the price of copper, one of the main metals used in building a radiator core, has jumped from 67 cents a pound nine months ago, to $1.47 a pound.

He said the volatility of the metals market is tied directly to the economic condition of the country. Metals, he said, are historically attractive to investors when the stock market takes a nosedive, and as a result of Black Monday in October, it is likely the stock market has played an integral part in the rise of certain metal prices.

Duquet said his radiators are known for their quality and keeping engines cool, but he gets a little hot under the collar when he starts talking about the government's intervention into such things as new car warranties.

New car warranties, such as the 5-year and 50,000 mile offered by some manufacturers, are implied anyway when it comes to the drive train, and for the most part such things as the radiator or other parts usually aren't covered, he says.

"Our congressmen want to send us back to the dealer every time we have a problem and destroy the aftermarket," he said. "If you think that that warranty cost isn't built into the price of the car, you're wrong."

"The extended warranties that Congress is proposing for new cars are already implied," Duquet said. "If you buy a car and the drive train goes at 50,000 miles, you will get a lawyer and sue the dealer under the implied warranty."

If new legislation is passed, the consumer will be extremely limited as to where he may take the vehicle for service.

Duquet said that to protect a radiator, keep it clean and make sure the vehicle has the proper mix of anti-freeze and water. He said a 50-50 mix is good except under extreme conditions. For temperatures below 15 degrees, keep the mix at 70 percent glycol (anti-freeze) and 30 percent water. This reduces the chance for freezing the block. If you are driving from northern Canada to Florida, however, you will have to change that mix along the way to get the best cooling efficiency from the radiator.

During the summer months, when the company does the lion's share of the year's business, it is best to add slightly more water than glycol.

"You'll have to add water any-

Robert Duquet started at Detroit Radiator Company 24 years ago. The firm now has 12 stores and is in the process of expanding a large new building in River Rouge.

Business People

Beltaire

Beverly Beltaire of Grosse Pointe Park has been appointed a director of the Detroit Federal Reserve. She is the president and founder of PR Associates and was the first woman to serve as chair of the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce. Beltaire is also an executive board member of the Economic Club. The Seventh Federal Reserve District includes parts of Michigan and four other states.

Richard L. Kozlowski of Grosse Pointe Farms has been named vice chairman of the board of regents of the Orchard Lake Schools, which includes SS. Cyril & Methodius Seminary, St. Mary's College and St. Mary's Preparatory. Kozlowski is first vice president and officer in charge of trust administration division of the National Bank of Detroit. He received his bachelor of arts degree from Michigan State University and his law and master's in business administration from the University of Michigan.

Cushman L. Andrews of Grosse Pointe has been promoted to head of the central region of Marsh & McLennan Inc. Andrews, who is managing director, retains his position as head of the Detroit office. He joined Marsh and McLennan in 1967 as a junior account executive in the Richmond, Va., office. Andrews is a graduate of Boston University with a degree in business administration. He is also a 1981 graduate of the Advance Management Program at Harvard's business school.

Andrews

David Lawrence of Grosse Pointe Park was the commencement speaker at Northern Michigan University in December. Lawrence joined the Detroit Free Press in 1978 as executive editor and advanced to publisher and chairman two years ago.

Harry Echlin of Grosse Pointe Farms has been appointed chairman of the governmental affairs committee of the Michigan Manufacturers Association. Echlin has been with the Ford Motor Co. for 27 years, serving most recently as regional government affairs manager. MMA represents the legislative interests of its members in Lansing and Washington.

William Vitoe of Grosse Pointe Farms has been reappointed to a term on the board of directors of the Michigan Strategic Fund.

More tax reform: rates, brackets to change

If you know the tax brackets and understand the provisions of tax reform, congratulations. Now forget some of them. According to the Michigan Association of CPAs, tax brackets will change dramatically in 1988. In addition, several other provisions will change.

The most dramatic change will be in the tax rate structure. For income earned in 1987, there are five brackets ranging from 11 percent to 38.5 percent. In 1988, the brackets are reduced to three: 15, 28 and 33 percent. For many people, the new tax brackets are good news because they will result in lower taxes. For example, a married couple with a combined taxable income of $32,000 will pay $107 less in taxes under the new brackets compared to 1987.

It's not all good news, however. The couple with a taxable income of $32,000 will be in the same bracket as a couple with a taxable income of $70,000 — a marked difference from the highly progressive tax rate of just two years ago.

The new tax rates also mean higher taxes for some people with low incomes. For a single person, tax on a taxable income of $15,000 will be $2,178 for 1987, but for 1988, taxes on the way, because the glycol will boil off at the high temperatures," he said. "The radiator is probably one of the most ignored parts on a car. People check their oil all the time, but they rarely check the level or percent mix of their coolant. The radiator is very important. You don't have to go very far without one to destroy the engine."

Opening

In its grand opening last month, Standard Federal Bank displayed its new quarters at 131 Kercheval on the Hill. From left are Carol Nicholas, branch manager; Gail Kaess, Farms councilwoman; Thomas R. Ricketts, bank president; and Peter Bologna, whose firm constructed the new facility. Standard Federal Bank operates 68 offices in Michigan and 17 offices in Indiana. A publicly held corporation listed on the New York Exchange, Standard Federal is one of the nation's largest federal savings banks with assets of more than $8 billion.

Duquet is president of the National Automotive Radiator Service Association. Last year, as president, he was instrumental in securing a relationship with a European radiator association, which he says will aid the North American association through the freer exchange of ideas, technology and enable American radiator firms to better service foreign cars.

"The Europeans have long had the aluminum/plastic radiators," he said. "This technology is now just coming to us."

He is interested in boating, charitable functions, (he was president of the Warren Rotary Club for several years) and politics.

He has strong opinions concerning the federal and state governments and said he would be far too blunt to ever run for office.

Tax info seminar

The Harper Woods Public Library will have a representative from the IRS talk about the new tax law and changes. The program is Thursday, Jan. 21, at 2 p.m.

Call 343-2575 for more information.

Pottery workshop

Virginia Cartwright, a studio potter from Pasadena, will present a two-day workshop at Pewabic Pottery, Jan. 15-16, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day. A slide lecture, free to the public, will take place Friday, Jan. 15, at 7 p.m.

The workshop is offered in conjunction with an exhibition of the works of Cartwright, mark Pharis and Jeff Oestrich. The opening will be Jan. 15 in the main gallery at the pottery. Cost of the two-day workshop is $40 for Pewabic Society members and students and $55 for the general public. A potluck lunch is scheduled both days.

In the workshop, Cartwright will demonstrate how to make and use colored clays. Her work is functional, constructed by using a variety of handbuilding techniques that she will incorporate into the workshop. Cartwright encourages audience participation and on-going discussion during the workshop. For further information, call the pottery at 822-0954.

Pewabic Pottery, an 80-year-old nationally recognized ceramic learning center, museum and gallery, is owned and operated by the non-profit Pewabic Society. Pewabic is funded in part by grants from the National Endowment for the Arts and the Michigan Council for the Arts.

Tax

same taxable income jump to $2,250. And the taxes in 1987 were no bargain to begin with. A single person with a taxable income of $15,000 in 1986 paid $1,922 in taxes. That's a 17 percent increase over two years.

The deduction for consumer interest also changes in 1988. For 1987, interest on consumer credit other than qualified home mortgage interest is only 65 percent deductible. For 1988 that drops to 40 percent. That means you lose 25 cents in deductions for every dollar of interest you pay on car loans, credit cards and other consumer loans. In addition, since your tax bracket could be lower, the tax benefits will also be worth less.

The same 65 and 40 percent figures apply to passive losses in 1987 and 1988 generated from activities entered into on or before Oct. 22, 1986. Losses for interests in activities acquired after Oct. 22, 1986 are not eligible for the limited deduction, but they are fully subject to the passive loss rules. Losses from a passive activity are deductible only against income from passive activities. Unused or suspended losses can be carried forward indefinitely and be used to offset passive income realized in subsequent years.

Special rules apply to rental real estate activities. The passive loss disallowance rule will not apply to the first $25,000 of net losses from rental real estate activities in which the individual "actively participates." The $25,000 allowance will be phased out at the rate of one dollar for every two dollars of income as a taxpayer's adjusted gross income increases from $100,000 to $150,000.

The deduction for a qualified investment interest costs — such as interest on loans used to buy stock — that exceed investment income, also falls to the 40 percent level in 1988 from 65 percent this year. Any disallowed investment interest expense may be carried forward indefinitely.

Long-term capital gains for high income people also face a tax change in 1988. The maximum rate on long-term capital gains was limited to 28 percent in 1987. For next year, the 28 percent cap has been lifted. As a result, taxpayers in the 33 percent bracket face an increase of five percent in their taxes on long-term capital gains.

However, change in the tax code for 1988 is not all bad news. Taxpayers are getting a bigger standard deduction and personal exemption. For single taxpayers, the standard deduction increases to $3,000 from $2,540. For those married and filing jointly, the deduction increases to $5,000 from $3,760. Married but filing separately jump to $2,500 from $1,880. And heads of households get an increase to $4,400 from $2,540.

The personal exemption also rises to $1,950 from $1,900. For those 65 or over or who are blind, there is an extra standard deduction of $600 if married or $750 if single. These extra standard deductions replace the extra personal exemptions which have been repealed. For those both elderly and blind, two extra standard deductions are allowed.

The changes don't take effect until 1988, but they may have a bearing on your tax planning now. Whether it does or doesn't, many experts recommend you don't get too used to the 1988 changes. Those experts are beginning to feel that Congress might make additional changes for the 1989 tax year.

the stage and TV. Kaufmann can sing — pop, jazz, classical, country and folk.

She sang the Thai national anthem for the queen of Thailand in which she had 24 hours to memorize the words. Kaufmann was performing in "Three-penny Opera" in early 1970 where her army husband was stationed and the queen sponsored a benefit performance.

A few years later, she performed for the shah and empress of Iran when her husband was stationed there. The occasion was the birthday of the empress and the festivities were held in a museum of contemporary art in Tehran.

In keeping with the contemporary theme, Kaufmann, along with a chamber orchestra from Tehran and a group of Australian dancers, created what she described as "musical moments. I would sing whatever came out of my mouth and they would move and we would improvise." Then the dancers took the lead and she and the musicians followed. That type of performance had never been done before, Kaufmann said, and it was an exciting experience.

She also sang the national anthem a cappella at Cobo before the Detroit Lightnings soccer games which were broadcast on national cable TV. After her first appearance, she was asked back five more times.

Kaufmann, whose father was an army chaplain, said she and her two sisters and brother were raised singing together. "We were a military singing family." And later when she married, she and her two sons and daughter sang and performed together in churches, schools and community theater wherever they traveled.

Her children are adults now — her daughter is married and living in California — but she and her son Rennie, who is the assistant music director at Faith Lutheran Church in Troy, continue to perform locally under the name "Friends."

Her experiences over the years in different parts of the world form a rich tapestry. While she had been performing she was a child, she began her radio and TV career in Thailand. "A lot of things just opened up there."

An American woman who owned a business in Thailand proposed to sponsor a radio series in which Kaufmann would read fairy tales in different voices and accents. "It was the first huge project I was involved in," Kaufmann said.

She did 156 10- to 12-minute shows in three months. The shows were aired three times a week for a year.

In Iran, where the family lived for four years, Kaufmann taught English as a foreign language, produced a regularly broadcast talent show for the U.S. Armed Forces radio and TV network and did an American show for national Iranian radio and TV.

During that period, Kaufmann worked as a freelance agent with El Al, the Israeli airline, in which she designed musical Holyland tours from Iran to Israel.

She and a group of American musicians who were living and working in Iran accompanied the tourists to various sites. After the guide explained the history, she and the musicians would perform a number appropriate to the site; for instance, she would sing "Ave Maria" at the place where Mary spent her childhood.

Over a two-year period, more than 300 people went on the tours.

One Christmas, a small group of travelers represented seven religions. "On one bus. It was a scream. Somebody needs to write this into a play. The Catholics wanted to go to one place and the Protestants wanted to go somewhere else and the Zoroastrians wanted to go to the Wailing Wall."

The musical tours offered Kaufmann an "unusual experience," she said, adding "It was one of my favorite things to happen."

The family returned to the United States a year before the fall of the shah and her husband, Lt. Col. Rey Kaufmann, became inspector general for the Tank Automotive Command in Warren. He retired five years ago and the couple recently moved to Grosse Pointe Woods. The 10 years they have been in Michigan is the longest they have lived in one place.

Kaufmann will present an 18- to 22-hour weekend seminar at South High beginning tomorrow at the behest of Mary Martin, the head of the drama department. The intensive seminar, which Kaufmann has taught twice a year for five years elsewhere, will instruct students on various aspects of acting, including how to audition and the business end of the profession.

Kaufmann is serving her third year on the board of directors of AFTRA, which counts about 1,000 members in this area.

"We are trying to organize our jingle singers here," she said. "We have lost a lot of good background singers here to other markets."

Kaufmann is chairwoman of Singers for AFTRA and SAG and said the unions sponsored a workshop last year led by Dennis Timi of Wayne State University. "We will have another workshop hopefully coming up in February." Anyone who is interested can call the AFTRA office at 254-1774 and ask to be put on the singers' mailing list, she said.

Kaufmann is in the midst of putting together her voice-over tapes, which will feature her many dialects and she is "updating everything else."

Her husband of 28 years told her that she traveled all over the world with him, and it's now her turn to go where there are jobs.

"He's terrific. He runs my camera." She plans to be busy. Besides acting in summer stock in Illinois this past summer, she was Dolly in "Hello Dolly" at the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts. Other recent productions include playing Fran and Rose in "Working" at the Attic Theatre and the Mother Abbess in "Sound of Music." "Musical theater is my forte. I prefer it over anything else," she said. "There are a lot of parts for my age."

Kaufmann said her secret dreams include doing Shakespeare and "maybe auditioning for Broadway."

Got the post-holiday blues?

What to do when ho, ho, ho becomes ho, ho-hum

By Peggy O'Connor Andrzejczyk
Feature Editor

Yes, Virginia, there really is such a thing as the "post-holiday blues." And right about now, there are lots of people walking around with a good case of them.

How do you know when you've got the post-holiday blues? And how can you tell the difference between the good, old blues and a more serious depression? Once you know the difference, where do you go from there?

"It's interesting when people talk about the "Christmas blues" because we really see them manifest themselves after the holidays, like in January, February and March. In fact those are our busiest months of the year," says Kenneth Schoof, M.D., chief of psychiatry at St. John Hospital.

Post-holiday blues often result from the notion that the Christmas season is supposed to be happy and joyous and loving. "For many people, that's not true. And for others who normally feel good about the holidays but didn't this year for one reason or another, they can wind up feeling down," Schoof says.

"It's important to realize the difference between a 'reactive depression' — like the post-holiday blues — and a more serious depression. There is a whole series of symptoms which discriminate between serious depression and something like the holiday blues.

"Someone who is severely depressed may have weight loss or gain, sleep disturbances such as insomnia, crying spells and bouts of suicidal feelings. A person experiencing a reactive depression feels low and down, but doesn't have those vegetative signs I described," Schoof says.

The less-serious post-holiday depression occurs for a number of reasons. Men and women seem to be equally effected by it.

And for each individual, the cause and severity differ.

David Monhallen, project director at Harper Woods' Lakepointe Center, an affiliate of the Northeast Guidance Center, says that his facility sees an increase in clients immediately after the holiday season.

"It's a common phenomenon. For some, the holidays have been traumatic because of family problems, drinking, etc. For others, the holidays were not as good as they expected them to be. And some people find out that when they return to work after being off for Christmas and New Year's, they are not ready to face the same, old routine. And that can cause a lot of stress," Monhallen explains.

Monhallen says that he also sees a number of people who feel depressed or anxious because they overspent.

This year, the normal post-holiday blues may have been compounded by the blast of arctic air and the snowstorm which hit a few days after Christmas. "As a casual observation, I'd say that the post-holiday blues were a little worse this year because of the 'cabin-fever' type feeling generated by the cold and snow we had right after Christmas," Monhallen says.

"People have a feeling of isolation which makes the depression worse. They feel trapped with people they may not want to be with. And the elderly, especially, have a tremendously difficult time during the holidays. They may be alone and feel lonely and that's compounded if cold keeps them indoors," he adds.

If the double-whammy of Christmas and cold weather didn't bring on the blues, maybe the dawning of a brand new year did.

"The new year is supposed to be a time to review where you've been and where you're going.

For some people, that accentuates the feeling of depression," explains St. John's Schoof. "And this past year, we've had a lot of economic stresses that may have caused some job pressures."

When all of those stresses, pressures and unfulfilled expectations come to a head and cause a depression, both Schoof and Monhallen say that it's best to take steps before things get worse.

"In a reactive depression, the person is more responsive to treating himself. We buy something or we begin to exercise. Exercise, as we know, is a good form of anti-depressant," Schoof says. "But we also see a significant number of people who aren't able to take care of the problem themselves. They wind up in doctor's offices with a variety of somatic complaints which turn out to be masked depression."

Generally, Schoof says, it is best to see a family physician and assess what's going on. There are a variety of physiological ailments which can cause depression. "But if there are indications of deep depression or if the person has experienced a recent loss of job or another person, if this is clearly a serious depression, then a direct referral to a psychiatrist would be the best way to go," he adds.

There are also some constructive ways to beat the simple post-holiday blahs, according to Monhallen.

"The key is not to let the depression go on. If you are really getting bogged down in that low feeling and can't get out, then it's time to see a professional who will help you work through it or help you find some insight into the problem.

"There are ways to work through a 'blue funk' type of situation. You can take a stress management course or just practice some simple, stress reduction techniques like closing your eyes and picturing yourself in a quiet, tranquil setting," Monhallen explains.

And when cabin fever compounds the situation, you have to try to make yourself get out and interact with people — despite the weather — if it is possible.

"People need to get out. If you are with other people, enjoying their company and interacting with others, you can feel better about yourself because you are not dwelling on yourself. Isolation is the worst thing to do when you're in that blue funk type of thing," Monhallen says.

"I even encourage elderly people, for whom getting around in the winter is difficult, to get out and volunteer if they can. Even if there are three or four other elderly people in the building or neighborhood, get together with them and have fun."

Monhallen also has a hint for those who find themselves getting into the post-holiday blues rut time after time: Resolve not to do it next year. And mean it.

"They should resolve right now that they'll have realistic expectations for next year's holidays. If they sit down and resolve — write it down if they must — that next year they will not set up unrealistic expectations for the holidays or themselves, they'll probably have a better holiday next year.

"And skip the blues, too."

Humanitarians

March of Dimes will honor Williams, three others

The March of Dimes will again honor four prominent metropolitan area citizens at the 1988 Sweetheart Ball. The 16th annual Sweetheart Ball will be held Saturday, Feb. 13, in the Renaissance Ballroom of the Westin Hotel. This year's honorees are former governor G. Mennen Williams of Grosse Pointe, educator Beverley B. Geltner, cancer researcher Dr. Clarence Vaughn and Brother Rice High School football coach Al Fracassa.

Tickets for the Sweetheart Ball can be reserved now for a tax deductible donation of $150. Tables of 10 are also available. For reservations, call Georgia Olsen at 423-3207. Honoree G. Mennen Williams was governor of Michigan for 11 years and served on the state Supreme Court for 16 years, four of them as chief justice. He has been a U.S. ambassador to the Philippines and assistant secretary of state for African affairs. Williams also spent time in the Justice Department's criminal division.

He currently teaches at both Oakland University and the University of Detroit. He has been honored by numerous civic and charitable organizations and decorated by several foreign countries, including the Philippines, Greece, Liberia and Latvia. Dr. Beverley B. Geltner has spent her entire career educating students in Michigan and around the world. She has taught in Toronto, Canada and Grenoble, France and is presently an administrator in the Southfield public school system. Geltner is responsible for designing and implementing a program aimed at reducing the system's dropout rate; in 1986, less than 4 percent of Southfield's students dropped out. She has also set up programs for gifted students at both the high school and elementary school level and was instrumental in the development of a comprehensive drug education program for teachers, students and parents.

Geltner is a member of Phi Delta Kappa and has been honored with a Fulbright Fellowship and a Kettering Foundation Fellowship.

A third humanitarian to be honored is Dr. Clarence Vaughn, who has been nationally recognized for his work in the field of cancer research. He currently serves as the medical director of oncology at Providence Hospital in Southfield and at Samaritan Health Center in Detroit.

Vaughn is affiliated with several local hospitals and also works with the National Cancer Institute and the Health, Education and Welfare Public Advisory Committee in Washington, D.C. Currently president of the Michigan Division of the American Cancer Society, he is listed in Who's Who in Cancer Medicine and Who's Who in America. Vaughn was cited for distinguished leadership by the National Association for Equal Opportunity in Higher Education.

Honoree Albert "Al" Fracassa has compiled a record of 150-30-2 in 19 years as head football coach at Birmingham Brother Rice High School. He had a nine-year coaching record of 44-19-5 at Shrine High School. Fracassa has been named coach of the year several times and has been inducted into the Michigan High School Coaches Hall of Fame. In addition to his many coaching honors, Fracassa has been named Man of the Year by St. Rode's Men's Club, Italian American of the Year by the Study Group and Sportsman of the Year for 1978 by the March of Dimes.

Proceeds from the Sweetheart Ball at which these four will be honored will help support research into the causes and prevention of birth defects, America's number one child health problem. March of Dimes funding supports research at many institutions, including the University of Michigan, Hutzel Hospital and Henry Ford Hospital.

Make plans for 'Preludes East'

The Women's Association for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra will present the first of a series of mini-musicales - "Preludes East - Friday, Jan. 22, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. The program begins at 11 a.m. and is followed by a luncheon at 12:15 p.m.

French horn player Mark Abbott will be the performing artist. Abbott joined the Detroit Symphony Orchestra in 1982. He was offered principal horn position in the Israel Philharmonic, but chose to come to Detroit instead. He studied at Indiana University with professor of music Philip Faskas. Abbott has appeared as a soloist with the New York Philharmonic, the Indianapolis Symphony, the Columbus Symphony, the Colorado Philharmonic and with a number of community orchestras including the Grosse Pointe Symphony.

Tickets for the program and luncheon are $15 per person and may be obtained by contacting Dorothea Vermeulen at 886-9102 or by mailing a check to 693 Lakeshore Road, Grosse Pointe, Mich., 48236.

Garden Center program Jan. 21

The Detroit Garden Center invites the public to its annual program and luncheon Thursday, Jan. 21 at 11:30 a.m. at the Whittier Towers, 415 Burns Drive off East Jefferson in Detroit. Cost for the program and luncheon is $11.

Betty Simek, photographer and active member of the Detroit Audubon Society, will present her slide show, "Enjoying Birds and Other Wildlife in Michigan and the Windsor Area." Luncheon will follow the program.

Paid reservations should be sent to the Detroit Garden Center, 1460 E. Jefferson, Detroit, 48207, or call 259-6363 by Tuesday, Jan. 19. Annual meeting for members will follow the luncheon.

MCF Fellows, friends and Detroit Pistons celebrate in style

Jan. 9 and will continue through Feb. 20 at the Joy Emery Gallery, 131 Kercheval Avenue.

Among American artists to be shown are Nicholas Africano, Charles Arnoldi, Richard Bosman, Betty Brownlee, Carl De-meulenaere, Jim Dine, Eric Fischl and Mary Frank. All were chosen, according to Joy Emery, because of the strength of their individual work. No single element is common to all artists included in the show.

Hail, emeritus!

Fred W. Adams of Grosse Pointe began his relationship with Western Michigan University 72 years ago, when the institution was just 12 years old. He attended the Campus Training School, grades K-8, the Campus State High School from 1924-28 and received his bachelor's degree in 1932.

And on Dec. 18, Adams, one of WMU's longest-serving trustees, was honored with emeritus status in appreciation of his outstanding public service to Michigan and to his alma mater. Adams, who is also a recipient of WMU's Distinguished Alumni Award, retired from the WMU board this fall.

During his tenure as a trustee, Adams attended an estimated 210 regular monthly board meetings, more than 260 committee meetings and special programs and some 60 commencement exercises. While busily engaged in his professional career as an American Motors Corp executive and a U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development staff member, Adams frequently used vacation days to attend university functions.

He is still active in education as president of the Grosse Pointe Board of Education.

Presidential sounds:

Glenn Le Clair, a pianist and teacher who is familiar to many Grosse Pointe students, has been elected president of the Detroit Musicians League for 1988.

The Detroit Musicians League, a music teachers organization, is affiliated with the Michigan Music Teachers Association. Le Clair received his bachelor's and master's degrees in piano performance from the University of Michigan, where he was a student of Charles Fisher and Gyorgy Sandor. Before entering the university, Le Clair was a student of Ruth Burczyk of Grosse Pointe.

On April 24, Le Clair and his duo-piano partner Christopher Carlson will present a benefit concert for the Detroit Musicians League Scholarship Fund. The concert will take place at the Metropolitan United Methodist Church, 8000 Woodward Avenue. Donation is $5.

Glenn Le Clair

A holiday celebration at the Bloomfield Hills home of Robert and Pat Schmalzried on Dec. 19 was attended by some of Detroit's biggest names, including Isiah Thomas of the Detroit Pistons and jazz vocalist Ortheia Barnes.

But it was a night for "funds" as well as fun, as the black-tie affair raised over $20,000 for the Michigan Cancer Foundation's (MCF) research and patient programs. The benefit was staged for MCF's Circle of Fellows — couples who support the institute with annual contributions of $500. Over 20 new couples who joined the group were identified during the evening's program.

Joining in the fun — with several of Thomas' Detroit Piston teammates — were Grosse Pointe residents Sharon DiGiulio, Margaret and Carl Lamparter and Marlene Boll.

A joyful noise:

Last Sunday, Jan. 10, Ruth and Jeannette Szulec opened their Grosse Pointe Shores home for a harpsichord recital by Polish artist Urszula Bartkiewicz, sister of concert pianist Leszek Bartkiewicz.

Ms. Bartkiewicz, who in her brief first visit to the United States has drawn favorable reviews, performed early 17th century music on a virgin harpsichord. She also interpreted 18th century and later works on a dual manual instrument; both harpsichords were hand-built by Thomas Ciul of Smith's Creek.

The Pastor's Corner

God and galoshes

By Pastor William DeVries
First Christian Reformed Church of Detroit

Do you remember galoshes? Not vinyl boots in eye-dazzling chartreuse or day-glow yellow. Not half leather, half tire-tread imports from Maine, either. But real galoshes. Black rubber slouching over in the corner of the closet on a nest of dried salt and mud. Not those stretchy things that masquerade as second skin for shoes and promptly spring a leak exactly at the point where ice water is most likely to seek a rendezvous with your feet.

No, real galoshes rarely wanted to stretch at all. You had to jam your foot down in and desperately tug on the heel until it moved a half inch or so, then jam the toe end again. Then pull again. Jam. Pull. And hopefully, you got the heel down to the bottom.

What a struggle they were! A 10-round match, no holds barred, just to get them on. And even in the tag event, when your friend attacked while you lay on the floor holding a table leg for leverage, they still came off only after challenging your whole team. And they were certainly no fashion item, either. Ugly as . . . well, you fill in the blank.

I wonder what happened to them. I still have a pair, maybe two, somewhere. I guess I just became ashamed of them. Too old-fashioned. Not exactly the latest thing. Too busy to bother with wrestling them on. I treat so many things that way.

It is so easy to set aside the faithful and reliable because of some change in fashion, because it's just too much trouble. God is not an old shoe, or an old galosh. Yet we treat God that way, sometimes. God is a bit out of fashion these days. You know, the Judeo-Christian God who hates evil and wants people to learn about God and love each other.

That God is a bit "old-fashioned" and "ugly." We look for something else to guide our life: Something flashy and new or stretchy to shape to our plans.

Or maybe we left God because it's such a wrestling match to live with God. "So Jacob . . . wrestled with him until daybreak." (Genesis 32:34) It's such a nuisance to try to understand God, to live in God's character and love, to walk through life in God's purposes. We try something else, almost anything else, just to be away from that wrestling God.

I guess my kids won't suffer much by missing the joy of black rubber galoshes. Those vinyl or stretchy or leather-topped things do look nice and seem to work okay. But faith in God is not quite so unimportant. The decision about what religion to follow is one that will shape the central course of our lives. It is not something to be decided by fashion or by the effort necessary to make it real. It is something to be decided by questions of reliability, truthfulness and the effects it can have on life and destiny.

It's been a long time since I tried on my galoshes. I'm not at all sure I could find them. Has it been a long time since you looked for God? I'll bet you know where to find God or certainly a few places where you could start looking.

Don't worry. If you really want to find God, you can't miss. You see, God will find you.

Renew marriage vows Feb. 14

Calvin East Presbyterian Church, 6125 Cadieux in Detroit, will provide the opportunity to renew marriage vows at an ecumenical worship service at 11 a.m. Sunday, Feb. 14 at the church.

Calvin's pastor, Dr. Sharpless, plans to lead three seminars on marriage in order to make the vow renewal a more enriching experience for those who participate. (However, it is not necessary to attend the seminars in order to participate in the Feb. 14 ceremony).

Each seminar will be 60-75 minutes long. Free babysitting will be provided.

The seminars include: "I Promised To - What?" on Wednesday, Jan. 20, at 7:15 p.m.

This will be an examination of the content of the marriage vows.

"Straight Talk," a discussion on learning new ways to communicate, will be held at 7:15 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 27.

"Superglue for a Healthy Marriage," with a formula to be given during the session, is set for 7:15 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 10.

Registration is necessary for the seminar and may be obtained by sending name, address and phone number to: Calvin East Presbyterian Church, 6125 Cadieux, Detroit, Mich., 48224.

Dave Wagner

'Dr. Dave' in concert

St. Columba Episcopal Church will host "Dr." Dave Wagner of Grosse Pointe in concert Sunday, Jan. 17 at 3 p.m. on the church's 26-rank, unmodified E.M. Skinner Organ.

Wagner is the afternoon music host and program director of classical radio station WQRS-FM in Detroit, where he mixes classical seriousness with wit and humor. A student of organists Ray Ferguson and Marilyn Mason, he holds a Doctor of Musical Arts degree in organ performance from the University of Michigan.

Besides work as a solo performer, Wagner has also been organist and harpsichordist with the Detroit Symphony. He performed the Poulenc organ concerto with the Symphony in 1983, in a special concerto to celebrate the 150th anniversary of the Archdiocese of Detroit.

In 1985 Wagner received the Palmer Christian Award from the University of Michigan for postdoctoral achievement in the field of music performance.

There is no admission charge; a free will offering will be accepted. A reception follows the concert.

The church is located at 1021 Manistique at East Jefferson, two blocks west of Alter Road.

St. Paul topic: A question of life

Cynthia Wilbering, M.D., Ph.D., and Monsignor Francis X. Canfield, Ph.D., pastor at St. Paul Catholic Church, will lead a discussion on the increasingly important question of withholding and withdrawing artificial life support for gravely ill patients tonight, Jan. 14, at 7:30 p.m. in Room 210 at St. Paul School.

Among the ideas discussed will be the moral dilemma that is distressing for more and more families as medical technology and science makes possible a physical life that poses the questions: What does God want? Physical life at any cost?

Monsignor Francis X. Canfield

G.P. Baptist dinner

The Grosse Pointe Baptist Church's annual "Men's Buck Dinner" will be held at the church, 21336 Mack Avenue, at 6:30 p.m. Friday, Jan. 15. Tickets are $6.50 for men and $3.50 for boys 12 and under.

Guest speaker will be former jet stunt pilot Jerry Mercer (above) who has set six FAI world class records flying the world's smallest jet, the "Budweiser Microjet." Mercer, who was awarded the Louis Bleriot Medal, is now owner of PDQ Air Service, a company he started with $50 which has grown into a multi-million dollar corporation. Mercer is a motivational speaker who will discuss what success means and where it comes from.

For ticket information, call the church at 881-3343.

Grosse Pointe Theatre will present 'Streetcar' this month

"A Streetcar Named Desire" is the next show to be presented by the Grosse Pointe Theatre. Staged at Fries Auditorium of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, the Pulitzer Prize-winning drama will run Jan. 20-24 and 26-30.

Written by Tennessee Williams, "Streetcar" is one of the most talked about plays of our time and has thrilled audiences around the world since opening on Broadway 40 years ago.

The play follows the story of Blanche DuBois, a southern belle who invents a genteel artificial world to mask the hideousness of her real world. During Blanche's visit with her sister and brother-in-law, Stella and Stanley Kowalski, the audience sees the sharp contrast between Blanche's delusions and the reality of life of the Kowalskis. "Streetcar" presents human people in recognizable, although somber and shocking, circumstances.

Grosse Pointe's Carol Purdon will portray Blanche, the lady who buries herself in gaudy dreams against the heartless badgering of her roughneck brother-in-law Stanley Kowalski, played by Tony Amato of Grosse Pointe Park. Marianne Gelsavage portrays Blanche's sister Stella and Harold "Mitch" Mitchell will be played by the Park's Wally Maher.

Completing the cast are Nancy Sortor and Sal DeMercurio as Eunice and Steve Hubbell, along with Emmajeane Evans, Michael Mattia, Frank Greenia, Margaret Gesell and Harry Burkey.

tion. John Guadagnoli is producer and Barbara Roney is stage manager, with Tony Zoia as technical director and Dean Erskine as set designer.

Tickets for the production are $7 each and may be obtained by calling the GPT Ticket Hotline at 881-4004. The Tuesday-Saturday performances are at 8 p.m.; Sunday performances are at 7 p.m. Group rates are available for Tuesday, Jan. 26.

MOT's '88 tour premieres Hartway work

The Detroit-based Michigan Opera Theatre launches its 14th annual state-wide residency tour for a minimum of nine weeks beginning Jan. 25. Traversing the state from Detroit metropolitan communities to the Upper Peninsula, the 1988 Michigan Opera Theatre-In-Residence troupe will present a new full-length production of Giacomo Puccini's grand opera "La Boheme," plus the world premiere of a one-act opera by composer James Hartway of Grosse Pointe.

Cited as "... a youthful exuberant company of singing actors who not only entertained, but educated as well" (South Haven Daily Tribune), the MOT residency troupe annually performs in Michigan communities before young audiences and their families. In addition to public performances of "La Boheme," the 1988 tour, entitled "Opera Through the Ages," features a new Great Lakes Indian opera, "Ke-Nu and the Magic Coals" by James Hartway of Wayne State University. School performances for students K-6 will be highlighted by a musical journey through operatic history, "The Opera Time Machine."

Michigan Opera Theatre's residency tour offers communities a week-long menu of one-act operas, musical revues, master classes, recitals and commissioned works, all of which are designed to entertain as well as educate students in every facet of opera production. The residency week culminates in the presentation of a full-length opera production. While Michigan Opera Theatre artists assume principal roles, the community provides a volunteer chorus and assistants in the area of stage management, lighting, costumes, make-up and props. Through active involvement, the Michigan Opera Theatre residency week serves as a hands-on experience for students and community residents alike.

This year's residency tour is funded in part by generous grants from the National Endowment for the Arts, the state of Michigan through the Michigan Council for the Arts, the Detroit-based Skillman Foundation, the Kellogg Foundation, and the Young Woman's Home Association.

Some of the tour stops include:

The week of Jan. 25: Windsor Symphony. Public performance of "La Boheme" on Saturday, Jan. 30 at 8 p.m. in Cleary Auditorium. For ticket information, dial 519-973-1239.

The week of Feb. 8: St. Clair Shores. In-school and community performances; public performances of "La Boheme" with the St. Clair Shores Symphony on Saturday, Feb. 13 at 7 p.m. in South Lake High School. For tickets, call 445-4200/

MOT's 1988 touring production of "La Boheme" will feature tenor Joseph DeLeon, a native of Guam now residing in Los Angeles, as "Rodolfo;" soprano Lisa Lutter of Chicago, in the role of

Brighten dark days with an elegant, innovative meal

Here's a colorful, delicious — and elegant — way to brighten a dark winter day.
The following recipes come from the low-calorie, low-cholesterol, budgetwise kitchens of Thyra Grey Howard and Helena DeWitt Roth.

Cover with aluminum foil. Bake in preheated 350° oven for 40 minutes. Uncover and pour sherry wine over chicken. Continue baking 20 minutes or until tender and nicely browned. Baste chicken occasionally with pan juice.

2 Tbsp. margarine
1 bay leaf
1-1/2 Lbs. Brussels sprouts, fresh
1/4 cup bouillon
1/8 tsp. salt (optional)
1/8 tsp. pepper

Paprika
Combine corn, pimentos, onion, egg, pepper and 1/2 cup of the cracker crumbs in bowl; mix well. Spread mixture evenly in greased 8-inch glass baking dish. Melt margarine in small saucepan, about 1 minute, stir in remaining 1/4 cup cracker crumbs, toss slightly. Sprinkle crumb mixture over corn mixture. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake in 325° preheated oven 20 minutes or until mixture is set in the center. Makes 4 servings.
Calories about 222 per serving. Cholesterol about 60 mgs.

inserted in center comes out clean. Cool in pan on rack for 10 minutes. Turn out on rack; cool thoroughly before slicing. Makes one loaf of 27 slices.
Calories per slice about 105. Cholesterol - trace.

PAELLA A LA MADRID

4 chicken breasts, split
2 Tbsp. margarine
Paprika
1/3 cup dry sherry wine
2 cloves, garlic, minced
1 medium onion, chopped
1-1/2 cups regular rice
1/4 cup olive oil
1 green pepper, chopped
1/4 tsp. oregano
1 tsp. saffron
2 tsp. clam broth powder
2 cups water
1 cup chicken broth
1 can stewed tomatoes
1 tsp. sugar
1 Lb. frozen shrimp, shelled and deveined
1/8 tsp. red pepper
3/4 cup pimento-stuffed green olives, halved
Salt and pepper to taste
If a paellero is not among your cooking utensils, a generous lidded casserole will do nicely... preferably one that is 13x9x2.
Remove skin from chicken; place bone side down in well-oiled baking dish. Season very lightly with salt and pepper, brush with melted margarine. Sprinkle heavily with paprika.

Elegant Eating

Saute garlic, onion and rice in hot oil in large skillet until golden, stirring constantly. Add the hot stock into which has been dissolved the saffron, green pepper, tomatoes, oregano, and sugar. Cover, simmer gently for 20 minutes until the rice is tender. Stir occasionally.

Stir in the shrimp, red peppers and olives. Cover and continue to cook for about 5 minutes until shrimp is cooked and liquid is absorbed.

Spoon rice into large casserole or onto large platter. Arrange chicken on top of rice with shrimp in between. Serves 8.

BRUSSELS SPROUTS AND SWEET RED PEPPERS

2 red bell peppers
1/4 onion, chopped

Clean and trim Brussels sprouts. Cut peppers in 1/2-inch pieces. Saute onion in margarine and bay leaf until slightly brown. Add peppers and stir in well. Add Brussels sprouts (if extra large - cut in half), and stir again. Add bouillon and stir, steam until just fork-tender. Could be 5 to 8 minutes depending on age of sprouts. Serve immediately. Makes 6 to 8 servings.
Calories per serving about 97. Cholesterol 0.

COUNTRY-STYLE SCALLOPED CORN

1 can (16 oz.) creamed style corn
2 Tbsp. finely chopped pimentos
1 tsp. grated onion
1 egg, beaten
1/8 tsp. pepper
3/4 cup saltine cracker crumbs

CHERRY NUT BREAD

2-1/2 cups flour
1 cup sugar
4 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 cup chopped English walnuts
1 cup diced sweet cherries
1/4 cup Egg Beaters, well beaten
1-1/4 cups skim milk
2 Tbsp. vegetable oil
In a large bowl mix well flour, sugar, baking powder, salt, walnuts and cherries. In small bowl beat "Egg" until light and thick, beat in milk and oil until thoroughly blended. Pour over flour mixture; stir just enough that all ingredients are well moistened. Turn into greased 9x5x3-inch loaf pan.
Bake in preheated 350° oven 60 to 70 minutes or until tester

Mr. and Mrs. Steven G. Googasian

Amluxen-Googasian

Mary Elizabeth Amluxen, daughter of Richard and Sharon Amluxen of Grosse Pointe Woods, married Steven George Googasian, son of George and Phyllis Googasian of Rochester, on July 11, 1987, in St. Michael's Episcopal Church, Grosse Pointe Woods.

The Rev. Robert E. Neily officiated at the 5 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at The Gourmet House.

The bride wore a high-collared gown of white organza and Alencon lace styled with puff sleeves and a cathedral length train. Her headpiece was a fingertip length veil with blusher. She carried a bouquet of cymbidium orchids and white roses with ivy and white statice.

Maid of honor was Sue Dickinson of Grosse Pointe Woods. Bridesmaids included the bride's sister-in-law, Sue Amluxen of St. Clair Shores; the sister of the bridegroom, Karen Shive of Hattiesburg, Miss.; and four of the bride's sorority sisters, Jamie Jalving of Chicago, Ill., Betsy Edmonds of Battle Creek, Chris Martin of Chicago, and Caroline Henrich of Pittsburgh, Pa.

They wore floor length, off-the-shoulder dresses of pale aqua taffeta styled with puff sleeves. Each carried a bouquet of daisies and babies'-breath.

Best man was the bridegroom's brother, Dean Googasian of Rochester. Ushers included the bride's brothers, Rob Amluxen of St. Clair Shores and Jim Amluxen of Mountainview, Calif.; the groom's brother-in-law, Rob Shive of Hattiesburg; the groom's cousin, Jeff Brondige of Pontiac; fraternity brother Tom Gallop of St. Louis, Mo.; and Mark Michael of Columbus, Ohio.

The mother of the bride wore a floor length gown of pink chiffon styled with a beaded waistline and cuffs. Her corsage was double cymbidium orchids and babies'-breath.

The mother of the bridegroom wore a floor length gown of peach chiffon which featured a pleated skirt and lace waistline. Her corsage was double cymbidium orchids and babies'-breath.

Pianist for the ceremony, Fred Vipond, was accompanied by the Royal Brass Quintet. Scripture readers were Andrea Wine and the bride's brother, Jim Amluxen.

The bride holds a degree in communications from the University of Michigan. She is employed as an advertising writer in Minneapolis.

The bridegroom holds a degree in English from the University of Michigan. He attends the Hamline University Law School.

The newlyweds took a three-week honeymoon trip to Maui, Oahu and San Francisco. They live in Minneapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Bodendistel

Kirk-Bodendistel

Jennifer Ann Kirk, daughter of Thomas and Mary Lou Kirk of Avon Lake, Ohio, married Timothy Gerald Bodendistel, son of Gerald and Mary Ann Bodendistel of Grosse Pointe Woods, on Oct. 24, 1987, in Avon Lake United Church of Christ.

The Rev. H. Richard Bucey and The Rev. F. Norman Riley, pastor of St. Joseph Catholic Church in Avon Lake, officiated at the 6:30 p.m., candlelight ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Fountain Bleu in Avon Lake.

The bride wore a taffeta gown styled with a chapel length train, fitted bodice, high beaded collar and full, gathered sleeves fitted above the elbows. The dress featured a full, overlaid chiffon skirt with two tiers of lace ruffles at the hemline. The bride's fingertip length veil and pearl headband were joined by a silk rose and cascading lily-of-the-valley. She carried a bouquet of pink roses, white spider mums, purple and white carnations and greens.

Maid of honor was the bride's sister, Carrie Kirk of Avon Lake. Bridesmaids included the groom's sister, Monica Taubitz of St. Clair Shores; Renee Sneddon of Toledo, Ohio; and Lisa Kinsner of Avon Lake.

The attendants wore tea length dresses of teal taffeta styled with sweetheart necklines, drop waists, full skirts, gathered puff sleeves ending at the elbow and flat bows crossing the deep, V-backs. Each carried a bouquet of carnations, spider mums and stephanotis in pink, blue and white.

Best man was Robert Swaney of Grosse Pointe Woods. Ushers included Todd Pollino of Cincinnati, Ohio; and the bride's brothers, Thomas Kirk of Columbus, Ohio, and David Kirk of Avon Lake.

The mother of the bride wore a street length gown of patterned mauve styled with a blouson top, pointed, lace collar and satin cummerbund. Her wrist corsage was pink Sweetheart roses and miniature carnations.

The bridegroom's mother wore a jacketed, tea length dress of hyacinth blue with a fluted pleated skirt and sleeves. The clasp on the jacket was decorated with sequins, pearls and bugle beads; the groom's mother wore a matching hair ornament. Her wrist corsage was of white Sweetheart roses and miniature carnations.

Scripture reader for the ceremony was John Monaghan of Royal Oak. La Galleria String Quartet played classical selections.

Out-of-town guests from Michigan, Florida and Canada attended the ceremony.

The bride is a graduate of Avon Lake High School and the Columbus College of Art & Design in Columbus, Ohio. She is employed at Beacon Pointe Pharmacy in Grosse Pointe Park.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Grosse Pointe North High School and the Columbus College of Art & Design. He is employed at McNamara Associates Inc. in Troy.

The newlyweds honeymooned with a motor trip through the New England states and Quebec City and Montreal, Canada. They live in Grosse Pointe Park.

Creative minds have great ideas

By David M. Maxfield

Smithsonian News Service

Why do some people have one good idea after another? Are they more intelligent and talented than others? Can creativity be taught? Can it be hurried along a little as a deadline approaches? Does inspired thinking vary in different work? Does creativity diminish as one gets older?

Creativity, as a recent Smithsonian Institution symposium of scientists and artists revealed, is a difficult concept to pin down. Even the most innovative individuals seem intrigued about how their own breakthrough ideas came about.

Rosalyn Turek, the famed concert pianist, recalls playing a Bach fugue shortly before her 17th birthday and experiencing "A total loss of self-awareness, a state I can only describe as the non-being, for I have no memory whatever of my existence in that state." She next remembers "coming to" and having "a profound experience of insight" about the structure of Bach's music, which would require an entirely new way of performing.

The idea was so conceptually and technically new that Turek could learn only four lines of the fugue within the four days that preceded her regular lesson. "Well, my image of the result of this insight was that I had gone through a small door into an immense, living, green universe and the impossibility for me lay in returning through that door to the world I had known."

Creative acts can unfold in far less dramatic ways, although innovation should not be confused with novelty and routine things like remembering a phone number or a name, said Dr. David N. Perkins, co-director of Harvard University's Project Zero study of cognitive skills in the sciences and humanities. He recalls a story a friend tells of traveling with his family in France and stopping one day for a picnic in the French countryside. All the ingredients were on hand — cheese, bread, wine, but one item was missing, a knife to cut the cheese. "So my friend thought for a moment, then took out his credit card and cut the cheese with the card ... Don't leave home without it."

This "is a beautiful example of what you might call everyday creativity," Perkins continued. "A small, nice thing, not a Shakespearean sonnet, not the Parthenon. There is a danger of conceptualizing creativity as a kind of elitist ivory tower enterprise."

There is also a danger in equating creativity with intelligence, talent and expertise, Perkins told the symposium. These traits are simply the horsepower that fuels the creative process, he said. What does seem to drive creative people are at least six shared traits that Perkins and other theorists have identified. The more of these you have, they say, the more creative you tend to be.

One is a deep concern for aesthetics — hidden truths — perhaps best demonstrated by Albert Einstein's restlessness with the asymmetries and inelegancies of classical physics. Cellist Janos Starker spoke at the symposium of his own "obsessive desire for reducing chaos and for finding beauty," while National Academy of Sciences President Frank Press reminded his colleagues of the elegant periodic table that replaced a messy, tortured chart of chemical elements almost useless for predicting the properties of missing elements.

Creative people also seem to be motivated as much by problem finding as by problem solving. Former Librarian of Congress Daniel Boorstin spoke of the "race to the patent office" by inventors like Alexander Graham Bell, Henry Ford and

Thomas Edison. "They were trying to satisfy a need that others had recognized. Creators don't quite know what they're seeking — they're exploring the unknown."

Challenging assumptions is territory that creative scientists and artists regularly share. Esin Atil, head of Sackler Gallery special programs, recalled the work of Sinan, the most renowned architect in Islamic history and the designer of hundreds of Ottoman buildings in the 16th century. His materials and methods — vaulting systems and progression of space, for instance — had all been used before. But Sinan created majestic domes and vast interiors that reflected the grandeur of the sultans. Artists of Sinan's success, Atil said, have to devise "approaches and expressions that differ from those commonly practiced."

Still another trait is the testing of ideas. Perkins believes that some type of "objectivity" is needed in creative work to "clear away the blindness, the self-deception." Chemist Linus Pauling, who won a Nobel Prize for his work on the chemical bond, as well as the Nobel Prize for Peace, once told a student that the trick to having good ideas is to come up with "a lot of ideas and then throw the bad ones out."

Original thinkers also tend to work at the edge of their competence, Perkins said, although "it makes them nervous, it makes them feel even sick." Turek recalled the reaction of her teacher to her leap in imagination — "wonderful but impossible to do." Yet she pressed on with her ideas, which required "a great deal of concentrated work for a good number of years." As Pauling said, "It's not enough to have a good idea. You need to take action."

Still, as the symposium panelists agreed, the gifted creative act is not simply a matter of following six steps on the way to achievement. "Not one of those traits is an unchangeable trait, a rigid, fixed given," Perkins said. Segal describes "the total goulash" that somehow nourished his creativity, which he insisted rises from a churning of "confusion, disorder and impurity" in his thinking. In Segal's mind were family pressures to "be respectable, get a job," the teaching in New York of abstract expressionists then challenging European art, the dream of utopianism cut short by Stalin's brutality, brand new realist Italian films and their connection to James Joyce and Picasso's cubism, the image of Jackson Pollock wearing a pair of work pants, stripped to the waist, splashing paint onto a canvas on the floor. "I couldn't understand how anything connected ... So my history is really myself trying to punch a way out of the dilemma," Segal said.

All religions, arts and sciences are branches of the same tree, Einstein once said. Politics, too, depends on creativity for visionary leadership. But it differs from the other disciplines, Arthur Schlesinger Jr., suggested at a 1980 Library of Congress symposium, also on creativity. "While artists and scientists reject compromise, march ahead on their own and bet on the consent of the future," he said, "statesmen require consent now if they are to achieve anything at all."

Can creativity be nudged along? Psychologist Perkins thinks so. "You can certainly do things to encourage question asking, searching for problems," he said. He urged that the development of creativity be integrated into regular school work — not as some separate course over in the corner but as part of history, as part of science, as part of literature, as part of grammar, even as part of spelling.

Grosse Pointe A Unique Community

A Cultural Cornucopia Appreciation of the arts begins at an early age for Grosse Pointe children. The public library, a division of the Grosse Pointe Public School System, offers, at no cost, a variety of children's reading programs at its three locations.

For adults, the library programs range from travel films to informative presentations on subjects of current interest. These, too, are free to residents of all the Grosse Pointes.

Another great source of local culture is the beautiful War Memorial Center, the former mansion of the Russell A. Alger family. With its subsequently added ballroom and theater overlooking Lake St. Clair, the center is a community attraction that rivals the many private clubs in the area. Here - open to all residents - are offered art classes and exhibits, lectures, concerts, plays, ballet and social dancing instruction, and children's theater, as well as membership in a long list of special interest clubs whose focus is either cultural, informative or just plain fun.

A more recent addition to public property is the Edsel and Eleanor Ford House. Designed by architect Albert Kahn and supported by a $15 million endowment, this gracious replica of an English manor house is now open for tours and is used for meetings, fund raising events and several series of "house" concerts.

Grosse Pointe A Unique Community

A Romantic Past As a Grosse Pointe resident, you'll walk upon grounds that were once the swamp, marsh and meadow haunts of deer, buffalo and beaver. It was this profusion of wildlife—plus fish from the 460-square-mile Lake St. Clair—that attracted the French farmers who first settled the area in 1701.

During the century that they fished, farmed and traded with the local Indians, many legends began. And many infamous locations were indelibly named: Fox Creek, graveyard of the Fox Indian nation; Bloody Run, where a company of British soldiers from Fort Detroit were ambushed and killed.

From Pristine to Prosperous After a brief period under British rule, the area began its history as an American settlement. Its beauty and bounty made it an ideal resort area for families from the growing city of Detroit. Between 1875 and 1925, Grosse Pointe became the elegant summer residence—and then permanent home—of families who had amassed fortunes in lumber and automobiles. In the midst of the lavish mansions, farm cottages and resort ambience, there gradually grew a year-round community of quality homes for families from all walks of life.

A human snowball

The last time I can recall ever needing a bib was when my soup spoon couldn't find my mouth and my food definitely used my shirt as a target. But, in this wonderful winter wonderland I discovered another use for a bib. However, this one came with room for legs and two shoulder straps, a zipper for my loose change and a little padding in the derriere.

Downhill skiing was an unexplored sport for me. The only other time I had been yanked by a rope, or moved through the air on a chair was when I played tug-o-war or screamed on a rollercoaster ride.

I wanted to be amused in my inaugural attempt at skiing, but when I looked up at the mountain people called a hill, I knew I was not at the park. Nobody in the place knew I was an amateur. I had the ski bibs, the ski coat, ear muffs, gloves and a "great" pair of boots and skis that I borrowed. I was told the skis would get everyone's attention, but... in the back of my mind, the only way someone was going to notice my skis was when they had to pull them out from under their feet and give them back to me as I dug myself out of a snow pile.

Skiing for the first time with five people who knew the ropes didn't make me look good, but it didn't take long for me to figure out why they invited me: I was going to make them look that much better. As we put on the boots and slipped into the bindings, grabbed the poles and embarked on the first hill, I became assertive, aggressive and downright, well — intimidated. I wanted to show my competitive athletic ability, but as time would tell, I defied those odds. Letting the rope tug me to the top of what I thought was Mount St. Helens, I familiarized myself with the skis and instantly got acquainted with the top of the hill.

I was given a few short-term instructions, but before I could spell "mogul" I found one. Down I went with laughter and pain. Trying to get my feet underneath me to pick myself up was as easy as walking with my shoestrings tied together. I got back up, but nobody told me to stand parallel to the hill, so full steam ahead I rode the hill. As I got closer to the wall at the end of the hill, I remembered to "plow snow," but nobody gave me a snow blower. All I had was two poles and two awkward legs. Off went the skis, and down I went. But, I felt good — I still had the boots on.

Lady Devils volley ball past North

By Rob Fulton
 Sports Editor

Both teams took center stage for the season-opening volleyball match, but only South was around to take the curtain call at North.

The Lady Blue Devils squandered an early lead in game one, but used back-to-back wins in games two and three to take the match, 2-1 over the Lady Norsemen volleyball team.

South (1-0) and North (0-1) renewed their annual battle, but now they won't have to look through the net at one another until the district matches in March, and nobody could be happier about that than North coach Judy Richards.

"In a way it has to be a let down for the girls to lose to their cross-town rival," said Richards, "but in a sense its not too bad because we won't see them again until the districts."

North was ignited from the beginning as it roared to a four-point advantage and then finished up with a strong 15-11 win. The victory in game one surprised South coach Cindy Sharpe, but Richards saw it coming.

"We expected to do that," said Richards in relation to the first match. "The surprise, however, came afterwards when we couldn't put a point on the board in the second game."

South retaliated in act two as they caused the Lady Norsemen to lay an egg en route to the 15-0 win that evened the match play at 1-1.

"It sure was a nice win," said Sharpe. "We did what we wanted to in the first game, but we missed a few serves and hit a few too many balls out of bounds."

"We got off to a slow start, but overall I believe we played pretty darn good."

With the win in game two, South stole the momentum and left North a bit flat. In both cases, the attitude and energy spilled into the final game and didn't bother Sharpe at all.

"In game two our offense was really rolling and it all just clicked," she said. "I didn't mind losing the first game because the second game is most important. If you split and win the second game, the momentum is with you and it carries over to at least the first part of the third game."

South kept pace in game three as they blew out to an 11-3 lead. However, North countered with six unanswered points to slice the lead to 11-9, but South prevailed, 15-9.

Chris Schulte, who had 13 kills on the night for South, carried the majority of play for the Blue Devils, but without the 77 sets by senior Patty Pentecost and the clutch play of Meg Boldin, Sharpe thinks the momentum may have swayed to the other side of the net.

"Chris played an outstanding game," said Sharpe. "She's our big hitter. But I really think that Meg did a good job passing in the final game. She also kept the communication going as she made several clutch plays."

Megan Keller and Traci Lee added eight and six kills, respectively for South.

Down 11-3, North suffered from the lack of execution and straying from the game plan almost caused a second straight white-wash.

"At that point the girls realized they had to get back into the basics," said Richards. "We were getting beat up in the back row and we discovered we had to go back to running a more structured offense."

Leading the way for the Lady Norsemen was senior co-captain Shannon Andrews who smacked eight service points. Heidi Cartwright chipped in with five points in the final game for North.

"Yeah it's frustrating to lose, but at least we now know what we have got to work on," said Richards. "The negatives definitely outweighed the positives. We have got to communicate and try to establish and maintain control throughout the match. We have a lot more to offer than we showed."

The North win in game one startled Sharpe, but that's not the only thing that put the coach on edge.

"It's really scary to play them because they are scrappy," she said about North. "They are scrappy and always seem to return every ball we hit. It was a good way to start the season."

Richards agrees that the precedent to work harder is now set, but keeping the loss to South out of the minds of her squad will be difficult.

"The girls don't like to lose to South, but the only thing we can try to do is go back to face them in the districts and try to turn that loss into a win. It'll be worth more then, than it would have been now."

South's Traci Lee winds up her arm and delivers a "kill" that was defended well by North's Mary Spiewak. North and South split the first two matches, but South prevailed with a win in the final match.

Lady Blue Devils slip in match with Anchor Bay

After beating North in its season opener, South's volleyball team suffered its first loss of the year, 12-15, 15-6, 11-15 to Anchor Bay.

"Our girls were really flat," said South coach Cindy Sharpe. "Anchor Bay is a much improved team and I think our girls were very surprised by it."

After opening the Eastern Michigan League schedule with the loss at home against Anchor Bay, the Lady Blue Devils were very stubborn in their attempt to win the always difficult Bishop Foley Tournament.

"We really bounced back and played well," said Sharpe.

South lost its first match 13-15, 13-15, to Wayne Memorial, but then rallied to beat Fenton and Ferndale. Needing a split to reach the semi-finals, the Blue Devils beat Bishop Foley 15-10, but then lost 9-15. Against Edsel Ford, South blew out to a 10-0 lead to win 15-10 in the first match, but then dropped two straight sets, 3-15 and 5-15 to finish third in the tournament.

Patty Pentecost and Chris Schulte led the Devils as they were placed on the All-Tournament team.

Shefferly, Van Dale win

John Shefferly and Dave Van Dale are All-County wrestlers at North.

Shefferly used a 7-4 win over Lincoln's Donald Amspacker to win the 126-pound division at the Macomb County Invitational.

Van Dale, wrestling at heavyweight, drilled Antoine Stevens of Clintondale 5-3 to become the county's top heavyweight grappler.

Cottage Hospital offers workshops

HealthyLife for Seniors, Weight No More and a Smokeless Program are just a few of the latest programs offered to the public at Cottage Hospital, located at 159 Kercheval, between Moross and Cadieux.

An apple a day isn't enough to keep a person healthy into older age. In fact, people over 60 years of age account for more than 30 percent of all health care bills paid. Yet, 80 percent of degenerative diseases and accidents common to older adults could be prevented if healthy lifestyle habits were better understood and followed.

Cottage Hospital's HealthLife for Seniors workshop proves that growing old doesn't have to mean growing ill. It's a program designed especially for older adults, marking the way to a more vigorous life and overall well-being.

HealthLife for Seniors consists of three, 2 1/2-hour sessions, Tuesdays, Jan. 26, Feb. 2 and 9, from 2:30 to 5 p.m. It will be held in the Conference Center.

The program will offer a positive, upbeat approach to aging. It is geared to motivate participants to take action based on clear instructions and valuable information. There will be plenty of time for questions and interaction in the group.

In the program, Ellen Champagne, R.N., will encourage participants to alter poor health practices while building upon the good health behaviors that already exist. Seniors and retirees will explore health topics that are of particular concern to older adults. Discussions involve common medical problems, medications, health insurance, dental care and home safety. The negative effects of stress and the benefits of physical fitness, good nutrition and weight control also are covered.

There is a $10 fee for the program which includes the workbook. Reservations are required and can be made by calling 884-8600, ext. 2390.

Cottage Hospital is going to try and make your New Year's resolution of shedding unwanted pounds, or trying to quit smoking come true.

Free introductory sessions of Weight No More, a medically safe and effective plan for permanent weight loss, will be offered on Monday and Wednesday, Jan. 25 and 27, from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the Conference Room.

You can also learn how the Smokeless System works to help you kick a habit at one of two free introductory sessions on Monday and Wednesday, Feb. 1 of 3, from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the Nurses' Residence at the far end of the hospital's main parking lot.

At the free introductory session for Weight No More, you will learn how this system can help you lose weight and keep it off without sacrificing your physical or mental well-being. Those who enroll in the 10-session program lose from two to three pounds per week — the amount of weight loss that can be expected from a nutritionally sound plan. But more importantly, participants keep this weight off and continue to lose additional weight after the program has ended.

In the program, a registered dietician teaches the participants the skills necessary to control their eating habits and achieve permanent weight control. The Weight No More system is designed to build on the individual's success. As the many small successes add up, both self-confidence and self-esteem grow, and the commitment to eat sensibly is reinforced.

If you've tried to quit smoking, over and over without success, it is time you looked into the Smokeless System. The system was developed to satisfy your need for a program which would minimize the pain or quitting and end the smoking habit forever.

Smoking is a complex behavior which is learned as you smoke and must be unlearned when you quit. The program will stress management, positive rewards and reinforcements, attitudinal transformation, food management, motivational tools, and patented negative smoking techniques in an intensive program which will have you off cigarettes in only five days.

The "Smokeless" instructors are certified professionals who help you cut out the roots of your smoking habit with minimal irritability, weight gain, or withdrawal discomfort.

Make 1988 the year you succeed in breaking your unhealthy habits. Attend the free introductory classes of your choice!

Center Ice in the GPHA

Arrows-Cougars

The Talon Arrows extended their record to 10-0-2 by defeating the Detroit Monthly Cougars, 7-1. Stephen Andres and Josh Prues led the way with three and two goals, respectively. Brad Balesky and Matt Kenney chipped in with the other two goals. Ryan Durant played another great game in net for the Arrows.

Chris Smith and Rami Sawaf played well defensively.

Pro-Chiefs-Manhandlers

The St. Clair Shores Manhandlers lost to the Chiefs, 3-2.

Greg Semack was called on repeatedly by the Chiefs as he turned away numerous shots by the Manhandlers. Dan Burau tied the score for the Chiefs to open the second period on assists from Jason Bucko and Ray Rozas. In the final period, Brad Hea scored off assists from Bucko and Rozas. Bucko also added an unassisted goal.

Leafs-Blades

Two goals by Geoff Kimmel, assisted by Mike Lahey, led the Leafs to a 2-1 win over the Proform Blades.

Ryan Allard scored for the Blades.

Chuck Shervish (Leafs) and Behi Rabbini (Blades) were outstanding in the nets while Bill Shepard and Kevin Kasiborski played well for the Leafs. Chris Gibson and Booth Platt skated well for the Blades.

Leafs-Blades

Assistant captain David Collins and Kimmel scored two goals each to pace the Leafs to their second straight win over the Blades, 4-1.

Jay Ricci assisted on Collins' second goal, as did Shepard on Kimmel's goal. Chris Gibson put the Blades on the scoreboard on an assist from Ev Meade.

Frank Zimmer and Greg Ryan played well for the Leafs as did the Blades' Mat Westley and Lucien Hudson.

Leafs-Sharks

Mike Lahey got the only goal to lift the Leafs to a 1-0 win over the Sharks. Ricci and Collins assisted.

Chuck Schervish earned his seventh shutout of the season for the Leafs. Colin Darke, Paul Megler and Joe Lucido played well for the Leafs.

Leafs-Blazers

The Leafs held on to a second period lead to beat the Blazers, 3-2.

Goals by David Collins (unassisted) and Geoff Kimmel, assisted by Lahey and Zimmer, gave the Leafs some breathing room. The Blazers used a strong third period to tie it, but Colin Darke's tip-in won it for the Leafs. Once again, Schervish picked up the win in net.

Top Guns-Flames

The Proform Top Guns edged the Flames 5-4 on Brian Pehling's last-minute goal; one of two on the day.

C.T. Terry also had two goals for the Top Guns, and Devon Allard added the other tally; his first career goal. Anne Platt, Jake Wardwell and Eli Wulfmeier gave solid performances.

Nicholas Miotke's hat trick led the Flames and Patrick Pound added the fourth goal. Eric Przepiora, Michael Getz, Walter Belenky and Aaron Ascencio played well for the Flames.

Flyers-Major Magics

On goals from David Legwand and Charlie Eldridge, the Flyers slipped past Major Magics, 2-1. Jonathon Solaka handled the net for the Flyers while K.C. Anderson and Peter Pone backed him with some fine offense.

Andrew Warner scored for Major Magics on an assist from Kate Calandro. Christian Auty was in net. Britt France, Aaron Wudyka and Billy Gmeiner played well.

Flyers-Blues

Joe Ricci's Flyers were three goals better (4-1) than the PKF Blues.

Charlie Eldridge minded the net as K.C. Anderson netted his first goal of the season. Andrew Ricci brought in two second-period goals and Daniel Gilin scored once. Daniel Gilin, Tony Bommarito, Jonathon Solak and Doug Semack drew assists.

James Robinson played a great first game in net for the Blues as Annie Morris scored on a pass from Allison Quinn. Whitney Gage and Ralph Harik played well offensively.

Lions-Southfield

The Grosse Pointe British Lions played in the Christmas Tournament held at the GPCR and tied the Southfield team, 3-3.

Teddy Hanawalt opened the scoring in the first period with assists going to Jesse Davis and Eric Lindsay. Southfield responded quickly with three goals to take the lead, but Gary Olsen and Hanawalt netted goals to tie it. Scott Cook picked up an assist on the way.

Scott Wiczorkowski played a strong game in the net. Steve Solaka and Eric Ross also skated well.

In the second game, Wiczorkowski earned the shutout as the Lions roared to a 6-0 win over Riverside. Lindsay scored on assist from Cook, and Teddy Hanawalt scored as Jesse Davis fed him with a pass. Olsen and Geoff Everham popped to open the gap to 4-0, and then Hanawalt and Matt Smith closed the scoring. Assists went to Wiczorkowski, Lindsay Olsen, Bo Dossin and Cook.

Major Magics-Bruins

Matt Moran and John Staniszwski scored to beat the Bruins, 2-0. Clint Carpenter was outstanding in net for Major Magics. Matt Descamps, Chris Amsden, David Linn and Matt Weaver applied the Bruins' pressure.

As I became a little more schooled, through the help of my fiancée's father, I felt ready to give up my amateur status as I learned how to "sway" down the hill. I have to admit, skipping the bunny hill was a delight, but heading for the Himalayas was not looking good as we rode the chair lift.

Here I was, face-to-face with nature's course. Man against mountain. Novice versus wimpy snow. For the good of all men, I was going to stay on the skis and finish the course. I wasn't going to fall, nor was I ready to concede to a snow-covered hill...I fell, but so did the little girl in front of me — that's because she fell on top of me after I roll blocked her from behind. It wasn't the cold making my face red, it was the embarrassment rushing to the edge of my skin.

The ironic part of it all is that I was comfortable with the progress I was making. I was no longer grooming the hill with my bottom half, and I wasn't eating snowballs any longer. I was gradually becoming a better skier as I dipped in and out of other skiers, kept my balance and began looking a bit more athletic. I knew falling was a part of the sport, but I just couldn't accept it at first, but after learning how to ski, the falls were eliminated and the stopping became polished. Emergency stops, like sliding to avoid the clubhouse or another skier, were a thing of the past.

After about 35 runs down the King Kong hill, I felt I was ready to hit the slalom course, but I didn't want to show anybody up. After careful consideration, I realized that trying to tackle hills that are too large, too soon, was just not feasible. I then decided my next ski trip would be to the heart of Michigan in a place, and on a place, called Mount Pleasant.

Feeling Fit

By Deanna Hawthorne

Fitness is more than a word

"Fitness" has become a word we throw around as casually as our sweat socks, but what does it really mean? When do we know when we've achieved it?

That's really difficult to say because everybody's different. Physiologically speaking, for a gifted young man in his twenties, it might be a sub-three hour marathon. For those in their twilight years, it might be following "Fido" on a long jaunt around the block.

The definition of fitness changes over the course of one's life, but two words remain constant: Vitality and energy.

As a youngster, energy exudes and vitality abounds in a healthy child, allowing an unlimited exploration of life. An overweight and unfit child drags through school and playtime, as well, with little energy that possibly may cause them to inactively engage in life.

A teenager without energy is like a fish out of water. Budding adulthood, exploration of self and that all important self-esteem can't be realized without the energy needed to fulfill all of the mental and physical demands today's teenagers must face. Energy and vitality provide strength to meet the demands of today's world.

Young adulthood brings marriage, family, children and jobs. It is the "I want to do it all and have it all" generation. Lack of oxygen and untrained muscles mean lack of fitness. The energy required to live in the "yuppie" era, and the vitality required to maintain the lifestyle is enormous. If these are your priorities and you want it all, fitness will have to be one of your top priorities.

Our middle years can bring creeping obesity. Just one pound a year will do it. Thirty years brings thirty extra pounds, and so on. Extra pounds are an added physical burden and tend to deplete one's energy level as well as vitality. Remember, aerobic (with oxygen) activity burns fat as fuel. It's that simple. Walking briskly is sufficient.

As the years progress, research indicates that older individuals benefit at least as much from exercise as younger people. This is from the National Institute of Aging: "The heart of a normal 80-year-old can pump blood as effectively under stress as that of a normal 30-year-old."

Isn't that encouraging? You can't stop moving because you're getting old. Also, weight bearing exercise helps to reduce the bone loss that leaves older people susceptible to fractures of the hip, spine and wrist.

Fitness is life and fitness is movement. The law of life is also movement. Keep moving. Being fit is being able to perform up to your potential in life.

Cold? You better take cover

It's too easy to get bitten by the frost

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

With the cold winds howling and the frigid air circulating, going outside to battle the poor conditions can have more of an affect than many believe.

An individual's health has nothing to do with contracting frost bite; the possible fatal condition that everyone is susceptible to.

Frost bite is a winter-weather condition that is uncontrollable. However, trying to impede its progress is not impossible.

Frost bite is a prolonged exposure of any part of the body (involving skin, but including muscles as well) to low temperatures. Frost doesn't actually settle onto the skin, but the cold temperatures cause the constriction of blood vessels and the death of the tissue exposed to the low temperatures, according to Dr. Ronald Laskowski, director of Emergency Services at Bon Secours.

"Frost bite can happen to anyone who is exposed to low temperatures," said Laskowski. "People are susceptible to it if they are in the cold a long period of time without covering the areas exposed to the cold (such as the nose, face and hands), but it doesn't necessarily have to be extremely cold for a person to be a candidate for frost bite. People get frost bite when they are exposed, for a prolonged period of time, to a mild temperature."

A person does not automatically become frost bitten. The early warning stages are labeled as "frost nip."

"Individuals begin to feel a tingling sensation and/or a numbness in the effected area," said Laskowski. "Generally, if it continues, the person could develop a pain in the exposed area, or even a loss of sensation." The loss of sensation would be comparable to an arm falling asleep.

With the "frost nip" symptoms in perspective, one who suffers from the early stages of frost bite will notice that the skin will blanch out and turn white. As the stages of frost bite further, the skin will become a dark blue, or even black and eventually fall off.

"The person will start suffering from eschar," said Laskowski. "Which is the medical term for the loss of skin. The dead tissue overlying the area will no longer adhere to the body."

Exposing particular portions of the body to the cold temperatures can cause frost bite, but one further problem encountered with cold weather conditions is the possibility of suffering from hypothermia.

Hypothermia is when the actual core-body temperature of a person begins to drop.

In its simplest form, hypothermia is caused by the over-exposure to low temperatures, but a possible chronic case occurs when the body can't hold the normal temperature of 36 degrees Celsius.

"Hypothermia is dangerous," said Laskowski. "The body's temperature decreases, therefore it is unable to regulate the normal body temperature. A perfect example of how it can come about is when the air around the body is of low heat. Such as a very low temperature in the house. If the air around the body is at a lower level, then the body is susceptible to hypothermia."

When the body becomes too cold, the shivering feature of the body begins operating to aid the cause. It attempts to generate enough body heat by "shaking" the muscles. If the body temperature dips below 32 degrees Celsius (89.6 Fahrenheit), then the body's shivering system does not function properly, causing a decrease in blood pressure, breathing and doesn't allow enough blood flow to the vital organs such as the heart, kidneys and brain.

Alcohol in the blood actually causes the body to "cool" quicker, therefore drinking outdoors in sub-zero temperatures is not advisable.

"Taking all this into account, the conditions make the heart irritable," said Laskowski. "In turn, it can cause an arrhythmia in the heart."

If any of the hypothermia or frost bite conditions are apparent, Laskowski recommends you get out of the cold and warm the areas that have been exposed with warm, not hot water.

"People have to re-warm the area only if they are not going to expose it to the cold temperatures again before being medically looked at," he said. "If they try to expose it again to the cold, then they are producing more tissue damage."

If a person does not heed the recommendation, and is suffering from frost bite, the skin will become a dark, thickened-black, leather-like tissue and according to Laskowski, there will be no way to save it.

Frost bite and hypothermia are two winter conditions that can prove fatal. In order to protect yourself from either one, or both, it is recommend you cover the areas most easily hit with frost bite (face, hands and ears) while either exercising or traveling through the frigid weather. You should also keep in mind the temperature around your body and the environment you subject yourself to.

"People have got to realize how dangerous frost bite and hypothermia can be," said Laskowski. "As long as they know they are going to be in cold temperatures they should dress accordingly. A little prevention can go a long way."

Smart Excess weight Is it worth the risks?

January, what a month! We in Michigan greet this month with mixed feelings. We know for a fact that the temperate winter through most of December did not last. The new year began with a howl, freezing temperatures, blowing winds and records were set for the coldest days in many years. Couple the weather conditions along with the unpaid Christmas bills, and the tax man waiting in the wings, and January could be bleak indeed! But we also find January a month of renewal, for it is the perfect time for the New Year resolutions; a clean, fresh start, a time to get serious about our health, and shape up. The great American pastime of January gets off to a roaring start — the diet.

We may have faithfully started our diet resolution, (for most, Monday, Jan. 4 was the big day), so now we are into the second week of dieting and we may be losing our resolution. It may be just too much of an effort, especially during these cold, blustery days. You may decide to wait. It is really no big deal. So what difference does a few pounds make anyway?

An American epidemic

There are well over 80 million men, women and children in the United States who are overweight — one out of every three people. Not only is the problem of overweight extensive, but it is expensive. We Americans spend over an estimated 40 billion dollars in an attempt to burn, sweat, or diet off those extra pounds, and rightly so. Being overweight is detrimental to our health, work and life. Statistically, overweight executives are paid less and receive fewer raises or promotions than their co-workers of normal weight. It also costs all of us in terms of the far-reaching health risks associated with being overweight. The economic costs show up through lost wages, productivity and medical expenses.

The Human Body — magnificent!

Your body can be compared to a supremely complex and magnificent machine. Like any complicated machine, it requires careful attention, proper fuel and constant maintenance. For either your body or a machine, neglect in any one of these areas will have destructive results. A machine, however, can be replaced — your body can't!

Improper eating habits, stress or inactivity can result in excess weight. While these pounds may first become apparent only by a "widening of the waistline" or "mysterious shrinking clothes," the impact on your body begins immediately.

Your skeletal system compensates for extra weight by putting pressure on joints — arthritis may appear, especially in knees, hips and lower spine. Muscles supporting the stomach may lose elasticity and give way to abdominal hernias. Fat begins to accumulate along the leg muscles, preventing proper circulation. Blood collects in the leg veins, swells and hardens; varicose veins may develop. More fat collects in the chest area. Breathing becomes more difficult — resulting in respiratory problems. A person who is 20 percent overweight is more than twice as likely to develop diabetes as a person of normal weight. Additional digestive problems can produce gout, causing painful swelling in the feet and hands. Menstrual abnormalities, gallbladder disease and gallstones have also been linked to obesity.

Your heart

Being overweight taxes your cardiovascular system dangerously. Each day, your heart is required to pump over 2,100 gallons of blood through over 70,000 miles of arteries, veins and capillaries.

Every extra pound adds 200 to 1,000 extra miles of blood vessels through which your heart must pump the needed blood supply. Even worse, fatty tissue requires more blood than lean tissue. Consequently, your heart must pump faster as well as harder.

The age at which you become overweight or obese has a direct affect on the severity of the consequences. Obesity in young children and teenagers is potentially more dangerous than obesity in middle-aged or elderly adults. However, regardless of age at the onset, the longer someone is obese the more serious the physical effects.

With increased awareness of the dangers of overweight and obesity, more and more people are struggling to lose extra weight and improve their general health. However, unbalanced diets low in necessary nutrients often produce additional health problems instead of successful weight loss. For this reason, many dieters can become malnourished.

Check it out

Unfortunately, the solution to overweight or obesity cannot be found in "quick fix" diets or the "fad of the week." Do some background work and compare the choices available to you. Before beginning any diet, consult your personal physician. You will be glad you took some extra care in the very beginning.

Control of your weight problem is possible, through two main steps — awareness and action. Awareness of the problem should be apparent both by the way you look and feel, and by the statistics presented in this article. Action comes through dedicating yourself to freedom from excess weight forever — through diet, behavior modification and altering your lifestyle.

Don't let the "January shivers" get you down. Your New Year resolution to lose weight is an excellent idea!

War Memorial's Ski Hi season is in full swing

The 1988 ski season has just started and there's still plenty of time for students in grades six-12, who reside in or attend school in Grosse Pointe, to hit the slopes as members of the War Memorial Ski Hi Club.

Five Friday twi-night trips to Pine Knob remain on the schedule. Those dates are Jan. 15, 22, and Feb. 5, 12, and 26. Also planned are day trips on public school holidays to Alpine Valley on Friday, Jan. 29, and Mount Holly, Monday, Feb. 22. Day trips are open to all senior members (grades 9-12) and junior members (grades 6-8) who have written parental permission and are experienced skiers with a 1988 Pine Knob "E" patch.

On Friday afternoons, students and chaperones are transported to Pine Knob aboard deluxe motorcoaches. Once there, they may take lessons from qualified instructors and be tested on their abilities. Students work together earning patches, lettered "A" through "F", which designate their level of expertise and determine which areas they may ski.

Beginner through intermediate lessons are offered throughout the evening until 8 p.m.; advanced lessons are from 6 to 7 p.m. Buses leave the area for the return to Grosse Pointe promptly at 10:30 p.m.

The War Memorial invites all interested 6-12 graders to join Ski Hi. Stop at the Center, 32 Lakeshore Road, daily until 9 p.m.

Also at the War Memorial will be a system of exercise for the whole body and mind, originated in China 700 years ago, called Tai chi. The classes will meet from Jan. 21-Feb. 25, from 10 to 11:30 a.m.

Instructor Carol Yamasaki, who trained in New York City, is trained and has taught the art at Yale University. Tai chi consists of slow, graceful movements that relax the body by bringing it into proper alignment and balance.

Tai chi is designed to exercise the internal organs and improve the circulation of air, blood and energy. It is unique as a physical art in that one can continue to improve as one ages because proficiency depends on consciousness and internal energy, not strength and speed.

The course fee is $30 for six weeks. Students are asked to wear loose, comfortable clothing and flat-soled shoes.

Health, fitness cruise planned

St. John Hospital's Cardiac Rehabilitation Program is sponsoring a seven-day Caribbean cruise aboard Royal Caribbean's new super ship — Sovereign of the Seas.

The program is geared for people who have a history of heart problems or who simply want to reduce their risks of having future health problems.

The cruise will be Feb. 13-20 and will include three stops in the Eastern Caribbean. Total fare, including air fare from Detroit to Miami and an inside cabin is $1,590 per person; based on double occupancy.

Approximately five people have already signed up and in order to fill the classes, there must be approximately 16 people.

For more information call 423-4330.

Phone orders (minimum of $20) will be taken between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Advance registration is recommended. Call 881-7511.

A GREAT WAY TO SERVE

Fragility of relationships explored in 'Moonstruck'

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

Despite all the time Director Norman Jewison spends monkeyshining in "Moonstruck," it is not merely a comedy. Instead, it is a provocative and poignant look at all that is absurd and endearing about human relationships.

We make these observations through the eyes of a slightly eccentric Italian family living in Brooklyn. We watch as, over the course of a couple moonlit nights, their destinies are routed and re-routed through the dominion of happenstance. Or is it fate?

It's difficult to know for sure. What we do know is that this is exactly the type of family one would expect to be affected by a force from out-of-this-world. Here's Loretta Castorini (Cher), a 37-year-old accountant living with her parents because her first husband was hit by a bus less than two years into their marriage.

Here are the parents, Cosmo and Rose (Vincent Gardenia and Olympia Dukakis). He's a well-to-do plumber who's working on an extra-marital side job and she's an otherwise happy housewife who knows it. She just doesn't understand why. Mom's advice to her daughter, who's about to be remarried: It's better if you don't love him, because he can't hurt you so much.

The family is close-knit, even if they do have some problems. And you get the impression there's nothing so earth-shattering that a good meal and a discussion around the dinner table can't resolve.

Film

So when the pragmatic Loretta decides to accept the proposal of her wimpish boyfriend, and the hardheaded Cosmo refuses to pay for the wedding, well, all it takes is a few carefully chosen words from Cosmo's old man (Feodor Chaliapin) over the morning oatmeal to clear things up. And when Rose confronts Cosmo on his affair, demanding that he break it off, Cosmo may hit the table once in protest, but you know he'll obey. Ah, but the man-in-the-moon is surely in cahoots with the Joker in this card game of life. When, under a full moon, Loretta attempts to put an end to the bad blood between her fiancé and his brother Ronny (Nicholas Cage), you get the feeling right away that the deck is stacked against her. The two of them wind up in a lover's clinch. And Ronny ends up in love.

Loretta, of course, is willing to write off their moonlight serenade as a mistake. After all, this guy is her future brother-in-law. And things would just be too complicated.

Still, it's hard not to be swayed by Ronny's existential assessment of the situation. "We are here to ruin ourselves and break our hearts and then die," he says in a variation of the slang expression that links female dogs with eternal sleep. "Life's not a storybook."

Indeed. That is easily the film's strongest and most convincing point, even if its lighthearted nature would have you believe otherwise. The humor in "Moonstruck" won't jump off the screen and slap you in the face, but like the Big Dipper on a slightly overcast night, it's there if you know where to look for it.

The humor here is dark. How else could we laugh at Ronny when he bemoans the fact that, five years ago, his brother caused him to lose his humor and his girlfriend? The scene in which Ronny explains this as the reason for the animosity between the brothers is simultaneously the film's funniest and most insightful.

Cher continues to be a strong presence on the screen, playing the comic and dramatic sides of her character for all they're worth. Her strong characterization of Loretta provides a nice complement to her already substantial repertoire. And Cage, who is quickly becoming a force to be reckoned with on the big screen, delivers a performance that smacks of pathos and humor.

There are countless films every year about the fragility of human relationships; some are better than others. Here in the third week of 1988, "Moonstruck" becomes the benchmark that other films in this genre must beat.

'Funny Girl'

Three performances of "Funny Girl," the award-winning Broadway musical about the life, career, trials and tribulations of comedienne Fanny Brice, will be presented by a touring professional theater troupe at the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Jan. 18-20, at 8 p.m.

Capturing the show biz atmosphere of New York in the 1910s and 1920s, the musical centers around Brice's rise from seedy dance halls to the glamour of the Great White Way. On the personal side, the story line includes her tragic marriage to notorious gambler Nick Arnstein, who picked up and left her after spending 18 months in prison.

"Funny Girl" is part of the Macomb Center's current Broadway Series. Coming up are three touring performances of "The King and I" in April and three of Jerome Kern's "Show Boat" in May.

Tickets are $19 for adults and $17 for students and senior citizens. They may be obtained at the Center's box office or reserved on credit card by calling 286-2222, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Tim Rhoze, left, as Ty Fletcher. Fran Washington as his wife Georgianne and Wayne David Parker as Hector are featured in the Attic Theatre's production of "Tamer of Horses," opening Jan. 22 and running through Feb. 14.

Auditions

The Marygrove College Music Department will hold a series of auditions for three music scholarships leading to a music degree beginning in the 1988 academic year.

Selected students in voice, organ, piano or guitar will be awarded either one $1,000 scholarship renewable for a four-year period, or one of two $500 scholarships, also renewable over four years.

For more information, call Sue Vanderbeck at 862-8000, ext. 316, or Elaine Grover at ext. 354.

Lettermen concert

The Lettermen will appear in concert at 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 22, at the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts.

Tickets are $14 for adults and $12.50 for students and senior citizens. They may be obtained at the center's box office or reserved on credit card by calling 286-2222, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. The center is located on the Center Campus of Macomb Community College at Hall (M-59) and Garfield roads in Clinton Township.

'Tamer of Horses' next at Attic

William Mastrosimone's powerful drama, "Tamer of Horses," opens at the Attic Theatre on Jan. 22 and runs through Feb. 14. This drama conveys the passionate domestic conflicts that occur when a couple, both teachers, take a troubled teenaged youth into their home.

The role of Ty Fletcher, the classics teacher will be played by Tim Rhoze. Fran Washington 30 and 9 p.m.; Sundays at 2:30 and 7 p.m.

Ticket prices range from $8 to $18. For reservations and ticket information, call the Attic Theatre box office at 875-8284.

DSO schedules extra performances

The Detroit Symphony has announced the scheduling of 13 additional performances to compensate for concerts lost during the 12-week work stoppage last fall.

Among the rescheduled performances will be seven concerts conducted by Music Director Gunther Herbig and an appearance by cellist Matt Haimovitz.

The schedule includes replacement concerts for those lost by subscribers to the Thursday, Saturday, ANR Pipeline Orchestra Hall, NBD Coffee Concert, Young People's and Merrill Lynch Weekender Pops series.

Subscribers to those series may exchange their tickets for these concerts or for any other concerts remaining on the Detroit Symphony schedule. They may also donate the value of their tickets to the Detroit Symphony for a tax-deductible contribution or exchange their tickets for a gift certificate which could be used toward the purchase of future Detroit Symphony concert tickets, or obtain a refund for the tickets at the point of purchase.

For more information, subscribers should call 567-1400.

Bonstelle to present 'Wild Oats'

John O'Keefe's swift-moving comedy of love and intrigue, "Wild Oats," opens Friday, Jan. 29 at 8 p.m. at Wayne State University's Bonstelle Theatre. This 18th century farce runs two weekends, Jan. 29-30 and Feb. 5-6 at 8 p.m., and Jan. 31 and Feb. 7 at 2 p.m.

"Wild Oats" falls into a tradition of English comedy," wrote O'Keefe's contemporary William Hazlitt, "and like most comedies, 'Wild Oats' is also a love story in which weddings and reconciliations follow after much confusion."

For schedule information and tickets, call the Wayne State University Theatre box office, Cass and Hancock, at 577-2960. Door sale at the Bonstelle Theatre, 3424 Woodward, begins one hour before curtain.

Contemporary art exhibit opens

An exhibition of international contemporary artists will open in LaGalleria della Belle Arti in the Italian Cultural and Community Center on Sunday, Jan. 17, at a reception to be held from 4 to 8 p.m.

The public is invited and admission is free. The center is located in Warren at 28111 Imperial Drive, east of Hoover, off 12 Mile Road. Call 751-2855 Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. for more information and directions.

The show which continues through March, includes works by eight internationally exhibited artists from Brazil, Italy and the United States. The works are in various media, combining impressionistic, abstract and expressionistic elements.

The Missing LINC
Linking individuals to Needs in the Community is a non-profit organization whose purpose is to coordinate needs with resources. This is accomplished by placing goods no longer needed by individuals and businesses into the hands of Metropolitan Detroit charitable agencies. Operating since 1971, LINC is proud of the accomplishments it has made and strives to increase its resource base. If you have recyclable items, no longer of use to you, Operation LINC knows who can and will use them. Please call LINC at 882-6100 with your donation. KEEP IT MOVING!
The Detroit Area PRE-COLLEGE ENGINEERING PROGRAM INC. is in need of MODULAR PARTITIONS for creating office units in classroom settings and LABORATORY EQUIPMENT. This program identifies and works with minority students with the intellectual and personal ambition to succeed.
CRIBS and CRIB MATTRESSES and infant clothing have been requested by the Crisis Pregnancy Center.
BOARD GAMES for ages 12 thru adult are needed for the NORTHEAST DROP-IN Center.
Homeless and runaway youths are helped at the SACTUARY. This organization is in need of a MACINTOSH COMPUTER with printer. Also required are Macintosh one sided floppy discs #QM-D3440 size and computer printer paper.
NATIVITY 4-H has requested several HIGH CHAIRS and INFANT SEATS in good condition, to be used in parenting classes. This program targets prevention of child abuse and teaches parenting skills.

Rambit's Gramling...That's South's Chris Gramling (30) traveling the enemy territories, via air. Gramling had a big night against Utica Ford when he scored 13 points.

Administration gives South permission to start lacrosse

The Grosse Pointe administration recently announced the inception of a Lacrosse Club at South.

The club has a 12-game schedule with area varsity teams this spring. Thirty-five individuals have already signed up for the club, but a coach is needed to mentor the club. If you are interested in coaching the South Lacrosse Club, contact Jo Lake, South athletic director, at 343-2181.

You must provide your own equipment, including sticks, pads and helmet. The club will provide the shirts and the club dues will be established as soon as enough interest is generated. Players should purchase the equipment through the club to maintain uniformity.

"This will give our kids the opportunity to learn the sport and get involved in one of the fastest sports on two feet," said Peter O'Rourke Sr., who is assisting in getting the club going.

The season will begin in early spring, but currently no venue has been established for the playing field.

Hockey team gets back on track

"This week was good," said Blue Devil varsity hockey coach Tim Zimmerman. "They're actually taking what they've learned in practice and doing it in the games. They've had trouble doing that until now."

After two straight wins, the Devils are now 8-3 overall and 5-2 in the Michigan Metro League.

South skated to a narrow 2-1 win over Brother Rice on goals from Rodney Goin and Tim Jerome. Jim Smith and Bill Huntington assisted on Goin's goal, and Dave Hall and Huntington teamed up to assist on Jerome's tally.

In a Saturday evening contest, David Rivard, on a pass from Ben Bayko, snapped a 3-3 tie with under one minute left to beat Ann Arbor Huron, 5-3. Kevin Bourke added a late empty-net goal to seal the win.

Andy Busse, from Bob Osborne and Pat Clavet, opened the scoring, while Clavet and Jerome added goals as well; Goin and Smith drew assists.

Basketball

With their leading scorer and rebounder on the bench after an emergency appendectomy, the Blue Devils didn't suffer as they waltzed to a couple of wins, including their first league and road victory.

South was winless on the road in three tries, but knocking off Anchor Bay 68-54 to open the Eastern Michigan League snapped the road woes for Coach George Petrouleas, and moved the Devils to 4-3 overall and 1-0 in the league.

"I think the kids had something to prove because they had to play under adversity," Petrouleas said in relation to Andy Ament being out of the lineup.

"We definitely lost a good player, but it was nice to see some other guys come forward and do the job."

Ament, who could be back as early as next week, was leading the team with an average of 15 points a game and eight rebounds when he went out of the lineup. South dropped Utica Ford 58-44 to go even at 3-3 overall, as Andy Ayrault collected 17 points, grabbed 10 boards and slapped away three shots. Chris Gramling had 13 points, Chris Rowan had a dozen to go with 15 rebounds, and Joe Caldwell hit for 10 points and dished out five assists.

Winless on the road, South traveled to Anchor Bay for the opening league game, and with some heady defense and high intensity, they delivered a 68-54 win.

"When you go into league play, you don't want to look ahead, but you can't afford any let downs either," said Petrouleas. "You've got to play every game as if it were the championship."

Playing as if it were the title game, Rowan burned the nets for 29 points, a season high for any Blue Devil, and pulled down 10 rebounds to pace South to a 55 percent shooting night.

"Chris is deceptive," Petrouleas said about the 6-footer. "He does a good job around the basket and jumps better than people expect."

Joe Caldwell, the field general, hit for 18 points and Ayrault banked in 10 points to go with 11 rebounds and four blocked shots.

South will host Roseville at 6 and 7:30 p.m. on Jan. 15.

Swimming

After three meets and a top 10 state-ranking, the Blue Devil tankers are off and running.

South dumped Catholic Central (101-71), Huron (91-81), and Seaholm (96-76) to open the season. Against Catholic Central, P. Wilson, T. Stedem, I. Thompson and C. Nevison won the 200 medley relay, Bill Thompson was first in the 200 freestyle and Paul Wilson took the flag in the 200 individual medley.

Ken MacLean was the top diver for South, and in the water P. Wilson kept pace in the 100 back, while A. Smith, I. Thompson, B. Thompson and J. Mello teamed up for first in the 400 free relay.

In the same meet, Bill Thompson's two finishes earned him a state cut, as did Paul Wilson's in the 200 medley and 100 backstroke.

At Huron, Wilson, Nevison, Thompson and Stedem made the state cut in the medley relay and Bill Thompson also will attend the state for winning the 100 freestyle and 100 backstroke.

Wrestling

Coach Larry Carr has got to be wondering why his team can't snap a six-game losing streak to start the season.

The South wrestlers were hit with two more losses as they watched the loss column grow despite some fine performances.

Jake Rowan and Travis Perry were victorious in the 66-9 defeat to Port Huron Northern. In a 43-25 loss to Roseville, Carr got wins from Tom Murphy, Travis Perry, Joe Fitzsimmons, Barry Brookes and Dale Wilson.

Milton leads Knights' attack

Everything about the new year was pleasant for the Knights' varsity basketball team as they thumped Plymouth Christian Academy, 76-38. The win lifted the Knights record to 4-1, and 3-0 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference.

The game was never much of a contest as ULS opened up a devastating 23-2 lead in the first quarter. Kandia Milton led the onslaught with 16 points, as John Yancey and Bill Lucken added 14 and 12 points, respectively.

Everyone on the team scored at least two points as Coach Chuck Wright played the reserves the entire second half.

The Knights face a tougher challenge this week as they travel to Bethesda Christian Academy on Thursday, Jan. 14 for another MIAC contest.

Boys' hockey

For the first time this season, Coach John Fowler's hockey team dropped two straight contests.

On Jan. 9, the Knights fell to Chicago Young Americans, 7-4, and in a Sunday matinee game, ULS lost to Jackson Lumen Christi, 7-3. The Knights are now 7-4.

Bill Jewett cut the Young Americans' lead to 2-1 with his seventh goal of the season and Doug Wood tied it at 2-2 with a shot from the circle, but then it was all Chicago. Jonathon Davis drilled a goal at the end of the second period to cut the lead to 5-3, and late in the final period, Jewett snapped his second goal of the game.

Facing Class B-C-D rival, Lumen Christi was a challenging game, but the Knights could only muster 22 shots on goal.

"Lumen Christi came ready to play," said Fowler. ULS co-captain Gordie Maitland scored on an unassisted breakaway and Davis scored the other two goals.

Kids in Trouble Linked with Caring Adults

by Andrea Rasmussen

Fed up with shoplifters, a local store decided to prosecute. Janice, thirteen, was the next shoplifter.

It was not the first time she had stolen, but she had never been caught.

Usually when she stole, she was angry. This time, she was angry that her parents wouldn't increase her allowance. There were no sales people close by. Janice slipped a pair of earrings into her pocket and blamed everyone else for her actions — the store for not hiring enough sales personnel, her parents for not giving her enough money, and her friend who rushed ahead of her into another department.

But this day was different. As the girls left the store, the floor manager took Janice's arm and said, "Come with me."

When he phoned the police, Janice's initial outrage turned to embarrassment and then to fear. What would her parents and friends think? What would happen to her?

Several years ago, Janice would have had to go through Wayne County's Juvenile Court system where processing is notoriously slow. The long wait and probable dismissal might have dissipated Janice's shame.

Fortunately, in Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods, there is now an alternative: Youth Assistance.

With 50% funding from the Skillman Foundation for the first two years, FLECs Y.A. Program has helped first offenders whose crimes include shoplifting, burglary, vandalism and felonious assaults. Referrals come from police, courts, schools and occasionally from the youth themselves.

Therefore, instead of a long delay, the day after her apprehension, Janice and her family met with a Youth Assistance counselor. It was a meeting that helped channel the family's fears and frustrations and defuse their tensions, while offering solutions.

The Y.A. Program was intensive. The intake session lasted two hours. Janice's counselor discussed the reasons for her referral and explained the program. When the staff determined that both Janice and her family were receptive to counseling, they were accepted.

The preliminary steps were taken to complete several forms and tests.

Shortly afterwards, they kept a second appointment, met the volunteer counselor assigned to Janice's case, talked of goals, and wrote and signed a "contract" to follow her specific goals.

Next the counselor visited the home to get to know them and help them change their patterns of relating.

After this, Janice began her individual program. She met with her counselor (her "big sister") at least one hour a week for eight weeks. Sometimes they met at a restaurant.

In good weather, they took walks along the pier. Always they talked about life and of the changes she would need to achieve her goals. One thread weaved itself through every session: building Janice's self-confidence.

It was determined that her self-esteem was so damaged that she needed the help of a health professional (such as a child psychologist), the program would have provided her family with references. Fortunately, this was not the case with Janice.

Her mother and father were also involved in the program, choosing to participate in STEP TEEN classes (Systematic Training for Effective Parenting of Teens) two hours a week for 12 weeks.

By the end of Janice's first eight weeks, her progress was assessed. She had met her contract goals and was enrolled in the second half of the Youth Assistance Program: Project Impact. If she had not met her goals, she and her counselor would have met for additional weeks before she could have entered this course. Letters explaining her progress went to her parents and her referral source, in this case, the police.

In Project Impact, Janice met confidentially with 10 other teenagers from the community who'd also had their first brush with the law. They met with a counselor for an hour and a half each week to discuss substance abuse, communication, self-esteem and values clarification. Each had to keep a journal about the experience. They also toured the Wayne County Youth Home as part of the program. Finally, Janice had completed all the requirements of her contract, her work service and her Project Impact classes. Her counselor and the intake worker were pleased with her progress and recommended she be discharged from the program. Letters explaining the recommendations went to her parents and the police.

But that wasn't the end of it. Janice's counselor still keeps in touch with her by phone.

The Youth Assistance Program is based on a program successfully pioneered by Livonia. After watching police and court documents, Livonia has found that 82 percent of the youngsters who had completed the

Our Unsung Heroes - FLEC's Volunteers

by Jennifer Miller

Volunteers are the unsung heroes and backbone of the Family Life Education Council (FLEC). Their responsibilities and qualifications are various. They staff the help phone lines, staff the medical and legal clinics, teach parenting classes and offer short term counseling and guidance.

They're flexible and their skills diverse enough to assist in different programs offered by FLEC Among

FLEC Trains for AIDS Education

Counselors at both FLEC's Medical Clinic and Center Point have already seen clients concerned about AIDS. The numbers of those anxious about whether they have contracted the disease or who are interested in prevention is rising.

There have already been several AIDS deaths in the Grosse Pointe-Harper Woods area, warns Dr. Cal Worrell, first president of FLEC.

Another local physician, Dr. Lawrence Crane, head of the Infectious Diseases Department at Harper Hospital, added that the greatest incidence of AIDS in the state lies within a 30-mile radius. Crane, one of the state's experts on the disease, predicts that by the year 2000, every family will have one member with AIDS.

To serve a growing need for AIDS education in the community, FLEC sent staff members to the State of Michigan's CDC (Center for Disease Control) training program this summer to learn how to help those with questions and concerns about AIDS.

At present, FLEC counselors can share more up-to-date information about AIDS than the general public can find most anywhere else," said Franziska L. Greiling, chairperson of FLEC's AIDS education committee.

FLEC counselors are also available to talk to groups in the community.

But FLEC is considering other ways of serving, Greiling said.

FLEC is exploring sources of fi-

Dr. Larry Crane addresses a community forum on AIDS co-sponsored by FLEC and the Grosse Pointe Ministerial Association. Crane, who has served as a volunteer physician in Center Point Medical Clinic is one of Michigan's experts on AIDS and is concerned about the spread of the epidemic. Educational programs, especially blood testing and counseling, have controlled the epidemic in other communities, he says.

Teens Susceptible to AIDS - Report

AIDS will take a terrible toll on this country's children and teenagers if the epidemic is not quickly checked, reports the study "A Generation in Jeopardy: Children and AIDS." The report was written by the House Select Committee on Children, Youth and Families and released in December, 1987.

The report said, "If we fail to act now to limit the widening spread of AIDS, the public health threat of the 80s will become the public health and economic disaster of the 90s. Thousands of children will be lost their families devastated. And the nation will be left reeling from the staggering cost in lives and money."

Currently, there are 195 teens known to have AIDS in the country, but the report said that "adolescence is... a period characterized by a sense of invulnerability" that often leads to experimentation with sex and drugs. Some 70% of the girls and 80% of the boys will have sexual intercourse at least once before they are 20 years old. Many will also experiment with drugs.

The number of AIDS victims in the 20-29 age range is higher, 9,377, but since the incubation period for AIDS can be up to seven years, many in this group may have contracted the disease in their teens.

At present, "community education isn't happening," said Donna Pressman, head of the Child Welfare League Task Force on Children with AIDS. "We are not reaching those young people before they start risky sexual behavior."

Kids in Trouble Get Alternative to Probation - Youth Assistance

program did not get into trouble again. After two years, 82 percent had clean records. The local success rate looks like it may turn out equally as well, but the program has been operating since 1986, not long enough to build an adequate data base.

Janice, a composite example representing many youngsters in the program, demonstrates its success. Luckily for youngsters like her, Youth Assistance was there when they needed it to help them turn themselves around. The program helps young people recognize the seriousness of their crimes and change their attitudes about obeying the law and dealing with anger. The program also helps the family get along together.

Said one parent whose son was in the program, "I can really see the difference in my son after his participation in Youth Assistance. His grades are much better and he gets into fewer fights at school. I'm glad there was Youth Assistance to turn to."

Volunteer Counselors have top backgrounds.

Youth Assistance has been in effect since 1986. But by fall, 1987, a total of 71 youths were referred to the program and 67 were enrolled. Referrals came mostly from the police for such offenses as breaking and entering, malicious destruction of property, larceny and shoplifting.

Currently, there are 21 volunteer counselors who donate two to four hours per week to work with young people. Each volunteer has a minimum of a bachelor's degree in social work, criminal justice or a related field. Volunteers are carefully screened and interviewed before becoming a counselor trainee. FLEC gives them a 20 hour training course before matching each counselor with a young person. They also receive ongoing training throughout the year.

Oswald, along with Center Point Director Marilyn Becker and other FLEC staff conduct the volunteer training which includes such topics as substance abuse identification, communication skills, empathy training,

Trainees also learn from Juvenile Court officers, local police and a panel of Youth Assistance volunteers.

In addition to volunteers from the community, six Wayne State University students are doing field placements in the program. Of these students, one is a doctoral candidate in guidance and counseling, two are masters candidates in education psychology, two are undergraduate psychology majors and one is an undergraduate majoring in guidance and counseling.

Detective Daniel Koerber, Grosse Pointe Woods Police Department's Youth Officer, said, "Youth Assistance gives me an alternative in dealing with the first-time offender in our community who has committed a non-serious crime."

It's an alternative that is working for local young people in Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods. It provides service close to home and the anonymity that only an independent, community based organization can provide. It is also court-approved and statistically effective throughout the 12 Youth Assistance Programs in Wayne County. The Advisory Committee is made up of 20 people representing a cross section of the community including program staff members, police officers and a representative from Wayne County Juvenile Court. The acting chairman is FLEC Board of Directors President, John Urso.

"Youth Assistance provides a necessary service not offered anywhere else in the community," said Oswald, program manager of the Grosse Pointe-Harper Woods Youth Assistance.

But despite its success in helping would-be juvenile delinquents in the community, the program's continued existence depends on adequate funding. The Skillman Foundation grant was to be used for 1986-87. As of this date, all the Grosse Pointes have pledged 50 percent funding for 1988. FLEC must find matching funding elsewhere.

It is hoped that the concern of this community for its youth and the strong community focus of FLEC will encourage donations to FLEC's fundraising efforts so that this much needed program may continue.

Meet A Youth Assistance Counselor

By Andrea Rasmussen

Jacqueline Rentenbach answered an ad in the Grosse Pointe News. That's how she got involved as a volunteer Youth Assistance counselor — a job that she feels utilizes her education, work experience and volunteer service in the community.

Her roots in Grosse Pointe are deep. She grew up here and attended the Grosse Pointe public schools. She even taught in Grosse Pointe — six years in the middle and elementary level — as well as in Boston.

Now, she's a dedicated volunteer and applies her educational experience to helping Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods youth. Her background includes a bachelor's degree from the University of Michigan, a masters in education, plus another degree in guidance and counseling from Wayne State University.

She's been a presenter and trainer with the Green Circle, a program that works with children to develop their self-esteem, help them understand their own feelings and to accept differences in others.

Rentenbach has also served as a volunteer for BABES, a drug and alcohol abuse prevention program designed for young children in elementary schools. In addition, she has been active in SAC2 in both Pierce and Trombley Schools.

Her high quality volunteer work in the schools earned her the Outstanding Volunteer of the Year Award in 1985 from the Grosse Pointe Board of Education.

Rentenbach's work with young people is not limited to just the public schools. She also teaches Sunday school at Christ Church-Grosse Pointe and has been a telephone counselor at F.L.E.C.'s Center Point Crisis Center. Since January, 1987, she has been a Grosse Pointe-Harper Woods Youth Assistance Program counselor. She finds this a very rewarding experience.

"One person can make a difference in someone's life especially when that person provides a non-judgmental atmosphere," said Rentenbach. "The benefit of this program lies in the fact that the client is provided with a supportive, caring person. Seeing the rise in alcohol and drug abuse, and in teen suicides, one realizes the need for prevention programs. Youth Assistance volunteers are making a positive impact."

Rentenbach and her husband have been married for 25 years and have three children, ages 14, 10 and six.

Agency Reflects the Times

Reprinted from
GP News article
By Pat Paholsky
News Editor

In business now for more than 22 years, FLEC, the Family Life Education Council, is like a chameleon. It keeps changing in response to the environment and so becomes a mirror of society.

As a result, it has its detractors who would rather kill the messenger than face the problem.

"We don't create the problems, we just try to deal with them," said Patricia Moran Forster, executive director. "People get angry with agencies such as ours and all we're trying to do is deal with the cards dealt us."

Founded in 1966 by local professionals to address the local drug problem, FLEC has developed new programs over the years wherever there was a need, and now includes a medical clinic, legal services, a youth program aimed at preventing delinquency, crisis intervention, counseling and referral services. FLEC, along with the Grosse Pointe Ministerial Association, offered a community forum on AIDS. FLEC also has counselors trained in AIDS counseling.

"It's a real value for our community to have such an agency as ours," Forster said.

There are currently about 50 people who have undergone 40 hours of training so they can volunteer their time helping local youth. Another training program will begin shortly, Forster said, and people who are interested can call Pam Oswald of the Youth Assistance Program or Marilyn Becker of Center Point at FLEC for more information. The number is 885-3510.

Along with its 28- to 30-member board of directors and law enforcement officers and others, there are nearly 100 people who volunteer their time to the agency.

"That's a lot of commitment," Forster said. "As a grassroots agency, we're always struggling. We charge no fees for any of our services, but we accept donations."

Patricia Moran Forster became FLEC's director last summer.

FLEC does not receive any federal, state, local or Torch Drive funds. The board of directors solicits donations from individuals ("They're a real working board," Forster said) and the agency is preparing to embark on a fund-raising campaign this month.

One of its newest programs, the Youth Assistance Program, was established more than two years ago as a neighborhood-based delinquency prevention effort that involves the police, juvenile court, families and schools.

"If a kid gets in trouble, the police refer him to us rather than putting him through the Wayne County court system," Forster said, adding that the youngster must be a first-time offender and the crime must be one deemed by the police to be unsuitable for Wayne County.

The youngsters, between 12 and 16, remain in the program for six to 12 weeks, working with a counselor on a one-to-one basis.

Last year 69 youngsters participated in the program.

The medical clinic offers testing for sexually transmitted diseases and pregnancy as well as counseling on Tuesdays from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. The clinic is staffed by a doctor and nurse on a contractual basis and is open to walk-ins.

"The problem," Forster said, "is we are so confidential, a lot of people don't know about us."

Legal Services, another FLEC offering, is staffed by lawyers from Grosse Pointe who volunteer their time on Wednesdays from 7 to 9 p.m. "It's open to anyone, but it really appeals to senior citizens on a fixed income," Forster said. Appointments are requested, she said.

One of the invaluable services, however, is referral. Anyone who needs information about medical care, mental health, substance abuse, temporary housing, transportation, clothing, education or other concerns can call FLEC to find out where to get help.

School psychologist Jim Pagel earned FLEC's Volunteer-of-the-Year Award in 1987 for his fine work in crisis intervention counseling at Center Point.

Volunteers Are the Backbone of FLEC

the volunteers are doctors, lawyers, nurses, social workers, teachers and students working on Bachelors or Masters degrees in social work, criminal justice and related fields. FLEC also welcomes volunteers with caring attitudes who will be effective counselors.

Nearly 100 volunteers work in four FLEC programs and there is always need for new volunteers staff. Here, in greater detail, are the job descriptions:

Center Point Volunteers

Volunteers for Center Point Crisis Intervention take 40 hours of FLEC training to better prepare them to answer phones, offer short term counseling and refer people in crisis to appropriate agencies.

Volunteers commit to working four hours/week for a year. The center is open 1-9 p.m., Monday through Thursday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Friday. The training includes work in the following:

- empathy
- assessment
- crisis intervention
- values clarification
- problem solving skills
- substance abuse
- suicide
- abuse
- patient advocacy

Medical Clinic Volunteers

Paid physicians and nurses along with counselors operate FLEC's Medical Clinic every Tuesday, 7-8:30 p.m. Medical clinic counselors are experienced Center Point counselors selected for their ability to deal sensitively with the ethical and personal side of sexual problems. The volunteers receive additional FLEC training that includes sex education, dealing with unplanned pregnancies and prevention of sexually transmitted diseases including AIDS. Counselors meet with Medical Clinic patients before they see the doctor and offer one-on-one counseling.

Counselors also lead mandatory group discussion for first time clients requesting birth control. These sessions stress values, contraceptives, and protection against venereal disease.

Youth Assistance Volunteers

Volunteers for Youth Assistance (Y.A.) must have a Bachelors degree in human service or related fields. FLEC gives candidates 20 hours of training in effective techniques for dealing with young people who have had a first brush with the law. Hours for counseling are flexible. Volunteers meet with their client at least one hour a week for eight to 13 weeks. Counselors work closely with the Youth Assistance Program Director.

Pam Oswald. Please turn to the front page story on Youth Assistance for more information.

Legal Clinic Volunteers

"When should my husband and I prepare our first will? My landlord refuses to repair broken windows. Do I have to incur this expense? These are only a sample of the type of questions asked of the volunteer at torneys at FLEC on Wednesday nights between 7:30 and 9:00 p.m.

Since 1978, attorneys from the community have generously donated their legal expertise to individuals utilizing the Legal Center at FLEC. Attorneys are available for consultation by telephone or on a scheduled walk-in basis.

FLEC's attorneys are adept at responding to questions regarding employment, real estate, traffic violations, landlord/tenant concerns, domestic problems, or other areas needing legal counsel. They offer general information and assistance to clients, often clarifying the need for individuals to seek further help from their own private attorney, legal aid or assistance other than the legal sector.

Intern Stays On

Mary Peters came to work as a telephone crisis counselor two years ago to complete a requirement for a Wayne State University psychology course. She completed the course and finished her degree but continues to work at FLEC's Center Point.

Currently, she works Tuesday nights as a counselor in the medical clinic where she helps young people seeking information about sexually transmitted diseases and birth control. If counseling is required for those wanting to see a doctor at the clinic, Her job is a delicate one that requires finesse and special training beyond the 40 hours.

The job is challenging, but Peters likes it because she sees immediate results. Those who come to the clinic come because they're worried, scared or need information. It is a prime moment to educate.

Peters' concern for young people is part of her vocation, a child care worker at the Children's Home of Detroit, a residential treatment center on Cook Road. She works there with teenage girls, many of whom have been abused or come from shattered homes. She is continuing her education, working on a masters degree in social work because "There is so much to be done."

Save the evening of April 13 for cocktails and courtier at Jacobson's. Friends of FLEC will take over Jacobson's second floor dress department after hours to see modeling of the summer International Collection. Co-chairpersons Jane Marshall and Judy Sieber are planning the event with Barbara Denler, head of promotions at Jacobson's.

"Meeting friends for fashion and cocktails is a delightful way to help FLEC fund the essential services it offers to the area," Sieber said. Time, ticket cost and honorary chairpersons will be announced. For information, call Jane Marshall, 885-3259 or Judy Sieber, 886-9835.

nancing for local, private AIDS blood testing and counseling," Greiling said. "Physicians and public health officials consider the counseling that goes with blood testing to be powerful educationally. People who want the testing are deeply concerned and are ready to listen."

At present, Wayne County residents must wait three to four months to get their first appointment at the AIDS testing and counseling program at Herman Kietter. The wait is almost as long as public clinics in Oakland and Macomb Counties.

"That's a distressingly long time to wait for answers from a clinic that is also far from our own neighborhood," she said.

Greiling said there is strong sentiment on FLEC's board for a local testing program.

"FLEC could provide such a program more reasonably than any other local institution because it already has an excellent staff of paid and volunteer counselors plus an established Medical Clinic with volunteer physicians," Greiling said.

"All FLEC needs is the money to put such a program in place."

Director Evaluates FLEC

by Amy Rowe

Six months ago, Patty Forster became director of Family Life Education Council (FLEC). She did it because she said she believed in FLEC's programs and its contribution to the community. As a native Grosse Pointe, Forster has watched the organization grow and change since its inception 20 years ago.

Now, a half-year after she rolled up her sleeves and delved into the tasks at FLEC, Forster can evaluate the job from the inside and begin to put her mark on FLEC's evolution.

She observes that: • Programs already in place are good, but some should be expanded. • Good volunteer counselors with solid education backgrounds in counseling or related fields are always needed. • Better public understanding of the quality and availability of FLEC's programs is necessary, and, • Flec has a constant and very real need for financial support.

FLEC's Medical Clinic is the only one of its kind on this side of town," she said. "Those who come to us worried or afraid are assured of confidentiality and short-term counseling to clarify their thinking."

Forster said she would like to see the clinic expand since the medical and counseling staff could provide a sound foundation for AIDS prevention education.

She also praises the crisis counselors who work the phones and do short-term one-on-one counseling for Center Point.

Center Point is there when people need us, and the phones are handled by a caring, well-trained volunteer staff with excellent backgrounds in social work or related fields. The volunteers also have FLEC training in handling crisis calls."

Forster is particularly pleased with the Youth Assistance program FLEC operates. "This program is developing a history of helping young people who've been picked up for a first offense," she said. FLEC's preliminary data shows that there are few repeat offenses.

The kinds of things done by Center Point and Youth Assistance should be expanded, said Forster.

"Preventative mental health programs and support groups for family issues and adolescent concerns are important tasks for FLEC, and I would like to see us doing more in those areas," said Forster.

I've Got a Friend Who . . .

Perhaps you have a friend who needs our services, or it may be that you need to be your own best friend and avail yourself of the many programs Family Life Educational Council offers. The following is a list of programs and numbers to call:

• Parenting Workshops — A ten part program called Systematic Training for Effective Parenting of Teens or STEP TEEN. Parents who attend will learn and practice effective communication and problem solving. At the same time, they gain insight into adolescent behavior. The program is popular and the classes till quickly. Call 885-3510 for more information and the next class schedule.

• Youth Assistance — For pre-delinquent or delinquent youths, FLEC offers one-on-one counseling. Recommendations for counseling come through the police, the schools and parents. Counseling is generally once a week and arranged individually. Call 885-3510 for information.

• Center Point — Phone 885-5222, or drop in at 158 Ridge Road, Grosse Pointe Farms. Center Point offers individual counseling, a crises hot line and referral services from Mon. - Thurs., 1 to 9 p.m., and Fridays 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

• Legal Center — Attorneys will answer questions and make referrals, if necessary, on Wednesdays, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. at 158 Ridge Road, Grosse Pointe Farms.

• Medical Clinic — A doctor, a nurse, plus a counselor are at the clinic from 9:30 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays, at 158 Ridge Road, Grosse Pointe Farms, to deal confidentially with health problems of teenagers and to discuss problem pregnancies.

Forster, who earned a bachelor's degree from Wayne State University in April and began working for FLEC last June, said she would like to see more prevention and support work done. "Take divorce. Many times, kids struggle without help and we would like to set up programs where they would come together with their peers and talk and understand they're not alone."

Along that line, 109 high school students underwent extensive training regarding the pharmacology, physiology and psychology of alcohol use, information about other drugs, drinking and driving, media and peer group pressure and leadership and presentation techniques. In turn they presented the information to fifth-, sixth- and seventh-graders.

Perhaps some of the people who come to the legal clinic could afford a half-hour or hour consultation with a lawyer, but many are in pretty deep poverty. The benefits of the clinic are two-fold: people can get some legal advice at no cost, and they can get a second opinion after consulting with another attorney.

The young people on the east side use FLEC. The numbers prove it. "FLEC is a needed community agency. People in the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods should take more time to learn about FLEC's programs."

By the year 2000, every American family will have at least one member infected by AIDS or ARC. Our neighborhood is not immune. Within a 25-30 mile radius of our homes are 50% of the AIDS cases in Michigan Detroit, per capita, has the second highest drug use after New York City. It's drug abuse that begins most of the AIDS infection in the general population.

FLEC is one of the institutions in our community that deals with our most valuable resource — our children, and it gives them a safe harbor — a place to get expert guidance, referrals and other resources. Some kids are plain uncomfortable going home with problems, and the parents themselves aren't all-knowing.

The Youth Assistance Program is an excellent alternative to sending a young person to Wayne County Probate. Probate deals with whether the crime was committed and what happens next. But Youth Assistance gives them more personal attention, up to six months of individual and group counseling. In addition, the counselors are mainly from the Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods area and are tuned into the special problems.

For 22 years FLEC has been a pioneer, adding programs to help youth and the family as times change. Today as at the beginning it continues to offer a confidential crisis counseling center to young people afraid to go to their family, school or local physician.
