

Barber clips his way through 36 years of haircuts

By Peter A. Sallnas
Staff Writer

Thirty-six years ago haircuts cost a dollar, coffee was a dime a cup and Jim Langford finished barber school and began working in Grosse Pointe.

After spending his entire career in the same shop, he retired last Saturday.

"It's the best job in town," said the tall, 61-year-old father of two. "Some of the nicest people in the world have walked through my doors."

Langford began working for Sam Barker in 1952. He bought the shop from him in 1957.

"Sam originally had his shop on the second floor of what is now the NBD building on Mack and Rivard since 1927," he said. "He later moved to this location."

His shop, Jim's Haircutting and Styling Shop, at 359 Fisher, is directly across from South's football field. Langford has sold the business to Dave Brown, who's been with him for 21 years.

There are dozens of families in Grosse Pointe that have, for three generations, gone to Langford, and several families that have had their hair tended to for four generations.

"Jim was the first barber I came to 36 years ago," said Dick Speer of the Farms, as he had his hair trimmed. I've never gone to anyone else and I still have most of my hair."

Langford is well-known and well-liked throughout the area. John Jensen brought in his son, Mike, 16 months, for his first haircut, making the Jensens a three-generation family of customers. The baby's grandparents were on hand for the event.

Jensen's mother recalled her son's first cut and laughed about the trauma that ensued. Langford has envelopes on hand for collecting the hair of first-timers.

"We're known for our cuckoo clocks around here," Langford said about the wooden clock on the wall that has become an important part of the shop. "It keeps the young ones entertained. We're on our third one."

Langford will remain active. He'll be filling in on vacations for the three barbers at the shop, and will be devoting more time to the Church of Christ in East Detroit.

"I do a lot of preaching," he said. "I'm not a minister, but I preach in the absence of the minister."

Langford and his wife Kathryn have two children, Barbara and Timothy. He likes boating (he owns a wooden 18-foot Lyman Clinker Built), hunting and other outdoor activities. He especially likes to hunt birds and has owned an English pointer and Brittany spaniel.

"I go down south and I also like to hunt up near Lincoln, Clare and near Mio," he said.

He related a story about a prominent Pointer whom he wouldn't identify.

"It was a beautiful day and warm," Langford said. "He was in the chair and really relaxed with his eyes closed. His wife walked up to the door and put her finger to her lips for me to keep quiet. She then leaned over and kissed him. I jumped back, because I was the only one in the shop and I didn't want to get punched."

His recipe for a good, healthy head of hair?

Demonstrating his knock-'em-dead technique for throwing a giant snowball, 6-year-old Jesse Craig scoops up an armload, while Charlie Braun, 7, in the back displays his form. But before he could fashion his monster snowball, someone else took aim, and Jesse, alas, forgot to duck. The action took place in the Park last week when school was cancelled due to snow. Citizen volunteers help juvenile court

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

Volunteers are at the core of a new attempt to improve the success rate of the Wayne County Juvenile Court. Plagued by the difficulty of dealing with the large numbers of abused and delinquent children on an inadequate budget, the court in the last two years has turned to a committee.

Volunteers from a variety of backgrounds serve as advocates for the court and as conduits between the court and the community. Getting the word out is their specialty.

Some of the members were surprised at what they found. "I was appalled at the lack of funds to do the job," said one. "Juvenile court is not even in the computer age."

The court is an arm of probate court, both of which are funded by the county. Given Wayne County's austere budget, the Citizens' Advisory Committee and the juvenile courts need to come up with some new ways to solve old problems.

As former Presiding Judge Y. Gladys Barsamian said to the Detroit Free Press, "We can no longer do more of the same."

Some of the alternative programs include intensive probation, work/restitution, literacy programs and youth assistance, all efforts to give some structure and control to a young person's life while allowing him or her to stay with the family. They are, Barsamian said, "in a nutshell, alternatives which would allow us to keep non-violent offenders successfully at home. We have to get real control into the youngster's life. This means imposing limits and reinforcing parental authority."

The committee is co-chaired by Grosse Pointe George Bashara and includes local residents S. Gary Spicer, Georgia Mandich, Richard Huegli (who died last week), Stephanie Germack, Joan Gehrke and Daniel S. Voydanoff.

"The court is understaffed and under some attack," Bashara said. "It's in danger of losing the level of revenue from both Detroit and the state."

Advisory committee members went through an orientation period, sitting in court to monitor existing conditions, Bashara said. The required orientation gave them some background for putting forth suggestions for improvements.

"The court does a pretty good job with what they have," he said. "The committee has felt frustrations just as the court has."

The committee is getting together a package of alternative and preventive treatments and looking for other sources of funding. Last year it established a tax-exempt Wayne County Juvenile Court Foundation to funnel donations to programs that prove workable.

"We feel there needs to be a better system," Bashara said. "It takes money — and generally the needs of the state and the county outweigh (the needs of Juvenile Court). The message we

The question: What kind of car does Richard A. Wright, who writes about them for a living, drive?

"I always kind of liked Nashes," he said. "They're also a good buy."

As auto writer for The Detroit News, Wright gets to test drive,

"I like all cars," he says. But when pressed, he admits: "If I could have any car in the world, I'd probably have a Ford Mustang. What I really got stuck on was American muscle cars."

"As I get older, I like a little bit of luxury," he adds.

Wright, who has spent nearly 30 years as a writer, didn't intend to go into journalism. After high school, he went to work for a printer.

"I had no particular goal and I decided to go into the army. I wound up in language school."

He spent a year in Monterey, Calif., studying Russian. The army sent him to Germany where he worked with an intelligence gathering team developing programs for keeping track of Russian tank units.

"I thought seriously of staying in the army and being a Russian specialist," he said.

Student rescued

A 12-year-old seventh-grader was pulled from the bottom of the Pierce Middle School pool Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 10, and was resuscitated by the physical education instructor.

According to Principal Suzanne Klein, the student was in the pool as part of her physical education class.

The student, who was unconscious when she was brought to the surface, was breathing on her own and had a good pulse when the Park's ambulance attendants arrived.

The student was taken to Bon Secours Hospital, where she was treated. Klein said the student will be back to school this week.

Opera guild to sponsor weekend estate sale

The Michigan Opera Theatre Guild will hold its monthly estate sale at The Second Act for three days, Thursday through Saturday, Feb. 18-20, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Located at 39 Milwaukee, one half block west of Woodward in Detroit's New Center Area, The Second Act estate sale is open to the general public, and all proceeds from sales to benefit Michigan Opera Theatre.

Under the leadership of Michigan Opera Theatre Guild board members and Aggie Usedly and Ron Switzer, The Second Act serves as a fund-raising arm of the company's volunteer Guild. Items featured for sale have been collected from Metropolitan Detroit's finest estate sale auctions and include a variety of quality home furnishings, original artwork, fine estate jewelry, clothing and one-of-a-kind gift items.

Highlights of the February sale include a Victorian walnut wood dresser, lounging couch, furs and ball gowns, assorted tableware and collectibles.

The doors of The Second Act open for three days during the third week of every month. Future estate sales are scheduled from Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 17-19.

To donate items in good condition or for further information about the Michigan Opera Theatre Guild Estate Sale at The Second Act, call the Volunteer Activities Department at 874-7850.

Young Dems to meet Feb. 25

The first organization meeting of the 14th District Young Democrats will be held Thursday, Feb. 25, at 7 p.m. at the UAW Region One Office at 12000 E. 12 Mile Road, east of Hoover, in Warren. Sen. Paul Simon, a Democratic presidential candidate, will be the guest speaker.

Any 14th District resident, which includes Grosse Pointe Farms, Woods and Shores, age 16 to 21 years old, is eligible to join the Young Democrats.

For further information, call 979-0064 after 7:30 p.m.

Assumption to offer parenting speaker

"Playing to Learn and Learning to Play" will be the topic of a presentation Wednesday, Feb. 24, at 7:30 p.m. at Assumption Nursery School and Toddler Center, 22150 Marter Road.

The speaker at the meeting, open to the public, will be Anne Cairns Federlein, Ph.D. in curriculum and instruction.

Federlein, an associate professor of early childhood education at Oakland University, will be addressing how play affects the whole realm of the child. The discussion will show how the four areas of development interrelate with the five important levels of play; free, guided, directed, work-disguise and drill practice.

The presentation will allow for a question/answer period. There will be a $2 charge at the door and babysitting will be available for $1 per child. Refreshments will be served. For more information, call 772-4477.

COTS plans open house

The Coalition On Temporary Shelter, or COTS, will hold its annual open house at its shelter for the homeless, 26 Peterboro in Detroit, from 1 to 4 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 21.

The purpose of the annual event is: (1) to show the completed remaining floors of the shelter building — once known as the Imperial Motor Inn — for single-room occupancy, (2) to provide an update concerning the changing needs of the homeless, (3) to show plans for the remodeling of the second floor, and (4) to honor Jarrie Tent, COTS' executive director from 1983 to 1987.

Since its reopening in July 1982, COTS has provided more than 125,000 nights of shelter to approximately 16,500 homeless persons, 3,500 of whom were children with parents.

Mattie Majors from WJBK-TV 2, and Grosse Pointer Neal Shine from the Detroit Free Press will co-host. A brief program will include discussion of the increasing need for shelter beds in southeastern Michigan, and the increasing number of families with children that require specialized care.

For more information, call Peggy Posa at 831-0621.

Auditions

The Judelairens, an eastside show chorus, will hold open auditions for the annual spring show. Auditions are Monday, Feb. 22, and Monday, Feb. 29 for all voice ranges.

Parents respond to hall parties, teen drinking

By Peter A. Salinas
Staff Writer

It's not as though parents haven't been trying.

There are dozens of parents throughout the Grosse Pointes who have volunteered their time, given money and done whatever they could to help the schools and non-profit agencies deal with teen substance abuse. But still the young people drink.

The problem of teenage drinking is not new. For decades young people have found a way to drink illegally. Whether they take alcohol from their family liquor cabinet or hold hall parties where minors are allowed to drink, teens find a way to imbibe.

Three weeks ago, North Principal John Kastran issued a warning to parents about the recent hall party trend and asked them to take a more active role in knowing where their children are on weekends.

Philip Abbott, president of the North Parent Teacher Organization, said the group has prepared a resolution in support of Kastran's letter that urges parents to speak to their children about the problem.

Abbott noted that a substance abuse leadership program currently under way at North polled students about their alcohol consumption.

"The thing I found disturbing is that of those students who said they drank, most of them said they drank five or more drinks at one sitting," he said.

"This is not one or two beer social drinking. They drink until they are out of liquor or they get sick. They have no concept of moderation."

One of the students who says he held several of the hall parties said that the use of alcohol by high school students is a means of preparing for college. By practicing to handle alcohol consumption now, students will be better able to handle drinking in college, he said.

"That's simply not true," Abbott said. "I think they're learning bad habits now that will remain bad habits in college."

Abbott did respond to the claims made by several high school students that kids need more places locally where they can socialize without supervision.

Abbott said that some parents tend to look the other way while teens drink at private homes, pool parties or other events.

"Perhaps there are some kids who are going to these parties who don't want to drink," he said. "Maybe we should find a place for them to meet informally. It is natural to want to be alone with members of your peer group at that age. They are literally locked in at certain points, such as proms and parties."

"What we need to do is focus more attention on substance abuse," he said. "The schools can be helpful but we need the support of the parents, otherwise it won't work."

Edward Deeb, former president of the Grosse Pointe PTA/PTO Council and current vice president of the North PTA, is also president of the Michigan Food and Beverage Association.

Deeb said that dances at the high schools have not been very popular among students. He believes it's because there are chaperones and drinking is strictly forbidden.

"What we need is someplace for the kids to meet," he said. "If they like parties in halls, perhaps we could get one together with a live band, but no drinking."

Pointing out that some 82 percent of Grosse Pointe students went on to college last year, Deeb said, "These kids are intellectually motivated and want to be on the go, go, go all the time. They are trying to fulfill this motivation. During the week, they aren't that bad. They study. They know they have classes the next day. It's mostly on weekends.

"If we can convince kids to utilize peer pressure in other ways, we may stop drinking," he said. "We have got to find a way for them to socialize in a setting without alcohol."

Recently, parents met with administrators and officials with the substance abuse leadership program. Deeb said a number of parents added their names to an already long list of parents who signed the Substance Abuse Community Council (SAC²) pledge.

The pledge by parents states that they will not allow any parties in their homes where there will be alcohol and drugs. It also states that all parties will be formally supervised.

Deeb said perhaps the hall parties are the students' way of circumventing their parents' pledges. "We've got the finest school system in the state," Deeb said. "We must realize that we are dealing with super-sensitive, highly motivated students. We have to give them an outlet for that energy."

Lucy Smith, vice president of SAC², said that the policy of the organization is that any use of alcohol by an adolescent is abuse.

Smith said she was surprised about the recent reports of hall parties and not surprised at the same time.

Deeb said he feels peer pressure is the single most important element in substance abuse.

One parent's view

Geez, I wish I had the answer.

I wish I could say, "This is how to keep our teenagers away from the temptations of alcohol, drugs, sex, cigarettes, drinking and driving, and other assorted illegal and ill-advised pastimes. This is how to keep them from experimenting with so-called grown-up pleasures and/or dangerous pursuits."

"This is how to prevent drunk driving tragedies; addictions to alcohol, cigarettes and hard drugs; teenage pregnancies; wasted opportunities; dangerous pursuits of any ilk. This is how to keep them from ruining their lives!"

For my older daughters — now in college — I used to have a speech that I repeated, ad nauseum, every time I dropped them off at a school function or handed them the car keys. "No drinking; no drugs; no smoking; no sex; no pot; no pills."

They used to roll their eyes up and sigh. "Aw, Mom. No fun?"

It was a response tinged with sarcasm. And truth.

Grosse Pointe teenagers — indeed, teenagers in communities all over the country — are convinced, it seems, that there is no fun without alcohol. No fun without risk. Without danger. Without the forbidden. It's part of the teenage condition.

When my children were very young, I stumbled upon a way to make the forbidden work for me — and them. They wouldn't eat their vegetables. So I used to cut up raw carrots, broccoli, celery, green peppers, mushrooms, tomatoes, cauliflower, and such. I'd arrange these little delectibles on a plate, place it prominently on the kitchen counter and say, with a stern look and the shake of a finger: "These are for Daddy and me. DON'T TOUCH."

It wasn't long before the little stinkers were sneaking up behind my back and snitching bits of celery and green pepper.

Unfortunately, this ploy doesn't work very well beyond the category of nutritious snacks or past the age of 8 or so.

With each age group, the forbidden looms larger — just out of reach — enticing — exciting — with longer-lasting, farther reaching, perhaps scarier consequences.

I sometimes suspect, after hearing teenagers talk about their experiences at drinking parties, that they aren't so keen on the actual alcohol itself. They're looking for a sociable group of peers, a party, a reason to get together and talk. Some kids I've talked to said the drinking wasn't as important as the party and that very often they refused the drinks or drank only one beer.

I wish we parents were not such collective wimps who refuse to stand up to our kids — who are smaller, less experienced, younger, and less stable than we are — who don't know yet what's good for them. Why don't we just say "No" to our own kids?

"No. You may not drink. I will not allow alcohol to be served in my home. You may not attend parties where there is alcohol being served. I will check up on you. And if you disobey, you'll be grounded."

And then stick to it. Kids will test us with every argument in the book; and then a few.

"Everybody does it." "There's nothing else to do."

"We can drink responsibly." "Adults drink."

"Adults should be glad we're not doing something worse, like drugs."

"Bull. You're grounded." Boy, is this hard to do!

Most of the kids who are pushing this line — are basically good kids. We love them very much. We understand their wish to sample grown-up activities. We were teenagers ourselves, for Pete's sake. We want to keep communicating with these kids. They ARE generally good kids who study hard, get decent grades, hold part-time or summertime jobs; they're polite; kind to animals and little kids; fairly responsible. We don't want them to stomp off in a huff and refuse to speak to us about their problems. We ARE grateful they're not into hard drugs. We want them to learn to drink responsibly, because after all, this is a society in which alcohol plays a major role.

They just want to have a few drinks while they socialize with their peers on weekends — they say.

For this issue, however, we'd be doing our kids a favor by ignoring our tender parental feelings and taking the hard line, the difficult stand, the unpopular position and saying, "No. You may not drink. It's illegal. It's not good for you. If you disobey, you're grounded. And that's that."

And sticking to it.

It's hard to do. Parents need a united front that is just as strong — or stronger — than the united front our children have put up. We need to network. We need to join hands and hang on. We need more Safe Homes. We need to get on the phone and call each other, check up on our kids, our kids' friends, our kids' friends' friends. We parents need to help each other.

I suspect a good percentage of our teenagers would be secretly relieved.

Teen arrested on drug charge

One 17-year-old Park resident was arrested and three of his friends taken into custody early Monday morning, Feb. 8, after a Park police car stopped them for speeding.

Police observed marijuana, and after a search, discovered several packets of suspected cocaine.

Capt. William Furtaw said de-

TECTIVES are investigating the matter. Charges against the 17-year-old driver have not yet been made, pending the results of the crime lab on the suspected cocaine.

Furtaw said the occupants of the car included a 15-year-old Park boy, and two 17-year-olds, one from the Park and the other from the Farms.

Watercolorists sought

The Michigan Water Color Society is accepting entries for its 42nd annual exhibition to be held at Wayne State University Community Arts Gallery from May 11 through June 3. Slide entries are due by March 4.

The juror will be Jan van der Marck, curator of 20th century art at the Detroit Institute of Arts. Awards totaling $5,000 will be given.

For entry forms and further details, call 465-2768 in Mount Clemens or 352-3973 in Southfield, or write to Michigan Water Color Society, 20666 Old Homestead, Harper Woods, Mich. 48225.

"Young people have always made a great deal of money by holding keg parties," Smith said, adding that the scope of the hall parties and how much money some kids were making surprised her.

One of the things that upset her about the recent reports in the media about the hall parties is that some of the kids said the SafeRides program would get them home in the event that they got drunk and couldn't drive.

"These parties are being held in Detroit and surrounding areas," Smith said. "SafeRides will not go outside Grosse Pointe to pick someone up."

Another item that bothered her was that there was a perceived difference by students between drugs and alcohol.

"Alcohol is a drug," she said. "Our society has taught young people to drink through parent roles and advertising."

"We as a society have not been able to convince people that alcohol abuse is a health issue."

Smith said that people in the community are taking a stand.

"I am grateful to John Kastran and the Grosse Pointe Woods police for the work they are doing in the schools," Smith said. "We are also getting a lot of attention from the judges and the court system, but what is sorely missing is the parent link."

She said what the polls and evidence show is that more young people are drinking today than in past years, and that kids are drinking differently.

"You can tell this by the number of deaths on the highway and the number of people who are at treatment facilities," she said. "Many of these kids are 14 and 15 years of age."

Smith noted that adolescents have a greater disposition to alcohol addiction.

"The idea that it is possible for kids to drink responsibly is just ludicrous," Lucy Smith said.

Debbie Smith, chairperson for the South School Team, said she has a daughter who is a senior and a son who graduated from North last year.

"I'm not surprised that these hall parties have started," she said. "With the local ordinances against house parties, it is logical that they would try and have parties elsewhere."

She said it is her perception that parents have made several attempts to have places for young people to gather.

"We've tried the Neighborhood Club, and Cracker Jax was open to young people one day a week."

Smith said the Cracker Jax idea was a good one, but that of ten middle school students would attend, and the older students weren't comfortable with that.

"Kids were allowed to smoke inside and many of the students complained the building was just too smoky to have a good time," she said.

She said that there have been recent attempts to address the substance abuse problem, such as the Teen Leadership Conference, for a number of high schools last November at South and the Substance Abuse Leadership Training held recently at North.

She believes there are a lot of kids who would rather not drink, but do so because they want to be accepted.

"Peer pressure is a big problem in the middle schools," she said, "but not so direct in the high schools. The pressure is there to drink, but it is mostly left unsaid. No one says, 'If you don't drink a beer, I am not going to be friends with you.'"

Both Debbie Smith and Lucy Smith agreed that having substance abuse counselors at the high schools is a tremendous help. Both said if they were to find out that their children were drinking at a hall party or anywhere, aside from what would happen at home, they would call the substance abuse counselor and have them talk to their child.

"You can go to them as a resource person and they can advise you," Debbie Smith said. "If there is a substance abuse problem related to school, the counselors are informed and the student must see him."

Doug Merkle, North substance abuse counselor, said that he estimates between 60 to 80 percent of high school students are using alcohol on weekends.

"During the first half of the school year, I saw over 70 kids and their parents. At least half of them were in because of substance abuse," Merkle said.

He said by definition, any student who has one drink is an abuser, because what the teen is doing is illegal. He noted recent surveys which showed that kids are drinking five or more drinks at one sitting and would be considered legally intoxicated.

"It's not social drinking — it's drinking to get drunk," he said.

What can parents do? They have already done a lot with the various programs they are sponsoring, but most admit there is still much to do.

Debbie Smith said parents must form networks. By calling one another and verifying where their children will be on a weekend night, everyone will feel better.

Lucy Smith said that parents must clearly and firmly state what is expected of their children. They must specify the rules and the consequences for breaking those rules.

"The bottom line is that someone is going to be raped, beaten or end up dead," she said. "You just know it — feel it is going to happen."

"It is really tough being a parent today," Debbie Smith, 39, said. "When we were raised, our parents were in charge. It seems today that the kids are in charge. Parents have a lot more power than they think they do."

Hall parties a new worry in the Pointes

A letter from North High Principal John Kastran has aroused new concern in the Pointes about hall parties in Detroit at which hundreds of Grosse Pointe students congregate to socialize and drink alcoholic beverages.

The hall parties apparently serve two purposes: They are money-makers for the sponsors and they provide participating students with something to do in their spare time. Unfortunately, the parties often turn out to be drinking bouts.

Whatever the reason for the parties, the fact remains that most of the participants who drink alcoholic beverages are breaking the law. Only those 21 and over can legally drink in Michigan. That point cannot be too strongly emphasized.

But the parties can have other serious consequences. Teen-agers who drink too much are more likely to be involved in auto accidents. Because alcohol is a drug, youngsters who imbibe regularly can become alcoholics. Excessive use of alcohol can lead to sex. And sex can lead to pregnancies, even though that isn't often mentioned in the Pointes.

Most adults, and especially parents, deplore hall parties. So do the police, administrators and the school board which last week sternly expressed its opposition to the use of alcohol or drugs by students in a school environment and encouraged parents to oppose such usage by their children in non-school-related activities.

Among the students, opinions appear to be divided. Some simply say they do not take part in hall parties, and, in fact, they may represent the majority. But others contend that there's little else to do in the Pointes, kids like to drink and so they go to hall parties with their friends. And many of the participants drink until they get drunk.

One student explained to the Grosse Pointe News that at least half of the guests come with a designated driver. He added that the students realize what they are doing is dangerous, but "they're torn with trying to be responsible and going out and having a good time." Yet even those who act responsibly by attending a hall party with a designated driver who presumably doesn't drink are breaking the law when they themselves drink.

An editor of one of the Grosse Pointe student newspapers said she thinks the reaction to the hall parties has been overblown by the media. We agree that the Detroit newspapers and TV stations often sensa-tionalize occurrences in the Pointes and fail to point out such events occur elsewhere, too. But must we agree with her that nothing can stop the hall parties?

In fact, Grosse Pointe law enforcement officers already are trying to stop the parties by forcing the hall owners to obey the law or be subjected to arrest. Some hall owners apparently have not been checking identity cards and thus have been guilty of serving liquor to minors. A crackdown on the owners and renters of the halls surely appears to be in order. But to formally charge the hall owners, the police need a parent to sign a complaint. And some parents are reluctant to do so for fear of having their children singled out for attention.

Yet parents do have a responsibility for their children. In fact, several families have been brought into court under the Farms ordinance that makes the parents responsible for their children's illegal actions. But Grosse Pointe police can do little about hall parties that take place in Detroit or some suburban community outside of Grosse Pointe unless parents cooperate.

Woods Municipal Judge Patricia Schneider agrees that parents could play an important role in discouraging their children from attending these parties. She contends that parents could ground their children, revoke driving privileges and cut allowances in order to enforce their control when youngsters fail to obey parents' warnings.

We tend to agree with the judge. The parents have the chief responsibility. But the law enforcement officers also have responsibilities. And so do the schools which already have assumed some responsibility by sending Principal Kastran's letter to parents and by the school board's resolution endorsing Kastran's efforts and opposing any use of alcohol or drugs by students.

Many parents are obviously concerned. Some parents already are "networking" with other parents to check on their children's stories and what they are doing. But more remains to be done.

Certainly the Substance Abuse Leadership Training programs ought to be expanded. More parents ought to cooperate with school and law enforcement officials when their children get in trouble. And the advice of student leaders ought to be sought to get their input and recommendations about the kind of acceptable activities that might result in more constructive use of students' leisure time.

If parents have the major responsibility, and we think they do, the hall parties remain a problem for the entire Grosse Pointe community. The least all of us can do, whether parents or not, is to support people and programs that are concerned about the hall party problem and are seeking ways of alleviating its impact on the young people of Grosse Pointe.

Critics vow fight on casinos

Mayor Coleman Young of Detroit, in appointing his long-delayed casino gambling commission, pledged an objective study of the issue, but strong criticism has already arisen from several sources.

One of the critics was the Detroit Free Press, which turned down an offer for a place on the commission and then greeted the appointment of the 68-member group with an editorial reiterating its opposition to casino gambling in the Detroit area.

The second source of criticism was a coalition of Detroit Protestant pastors who announced their opposition to casino gambling even though a former leader, the Rev. Nicholas Hood, who also serves on Detroit's city council, said he wants to wait for the commission's recommendations before deciding whether casinos should be allowed in Detroit.

Several Pointers were named to the commission along with representatives of business, government, politics, labor and residents of other suburban communities. Suburban members were named not only to represent downtown business interests but also, in our view, in an effort to lessen opposition from suburbs fearing that casino gambling would bring more crime and gambling into their communities.

This newspaper long has opposed the introduction of casino gambling in Detroit or anywhere else in the metropolitan area. So we will need much stronger evidence than any yet presented to prove that it would help solve the problems of the Detroit area rather than increase them. We'll await the commission's recommendations with interest and some skepticism.

An end to state school aid?

Grosse Pointe's school board acted responsibly and quickly in response to the warning by Rep. William R. Bryant Jr. that the district "must assume" it will get "no state aid whatever" for the 1988-89 year and beyond.

In its action last week, the board passed a resolution opposing any proposal to "limit the number of mills that can be submitted to the voters of the school district" and also opposing any proposal that "places the burden of paying the employer's portion of the FICA tax upon the school system."

Bryant's alarmist letter was based on his reading of Gov. James Blanchard's proposal for financing his recommended "Educational Excellence" program, which includes a proposed pre-school program for 4-year-olds.

Bryant said he is "fearful" that to finance the pre-school program the governor would seek to eliminate three types of aid now received by the so-called out-of-formula districts, one of which is the Grosse Pointe system. The three are the remaining categorical aid for such districts, reimbursement for the employer's share of Social Security (FICA) taxes on employees and contributions to the district's pension funding.

Even if those possibilities do not occur, Bryant warned that one of two other alternatives might be included in school legislation now being considered by the Legislature: either a comprehensive school aid revision to stop such aid to "wealthy" districts or a ballot proposal to remove the ability of Grosse Pointe (and similar districts) to fund themselves.

Removal of all state aid could cost the Grosse Pointe district as much as $4.1 million a year, a loss which Superintendent John Whritner said would be devastating to a district such as the local one that has a budget of approximately $42 million.

As a result, Whritner has put into effect a modified job freeze which would leave open positions unfilled unless they are absolutely required by the school system. Spending from two capital accounts for equipment purchases will also be halted at least temporarily and Business Director Christian Fenton will make an item-by-item review of the budget to seek other savings.

Rep. Bryant and the Grosse Pointe News have been warning for months that the proposed school financing reforms being considered by the Legislature might put a cap on spending by Grosse Pointe and similar districts. We have opposed any such proposal on the grounds that it would tend to put a cap on the millage that finances the excellence that Grosse Pointe voters always have sought for their school system.

From the tone of Bryant's latest warning, it appears that our fears might be realized in one way or another if the governor's proposals are approved by the Legislature.

In his desire to raise the floor of support for public education, the governor appears to have adopted the egalitarian view that all districts should get sufficient state aid to enable them to spend the same amount per pupil, regardless of their ability to pay.

If additional funding is required to raise standards in districts now unable to finance a better level of education, it should be supplied by the state with everyone sharing the tax burden. But surely any plan to provide one level of funding for all public schools would end the excellence, innovation and experimental programs that now can be financed by districts such as ours in Grosse Pointe.

It would, in effect, exchange opportunities for excellence in education for an egalitarianism which would, in turn, guarantee mediocrity in education throughout the state.

Michigan pride

To the Editor:
On behalf of the Michigan Sesquicentennial Commission, I want to congratulate the millions of Michiganders who joined together last year in celebrating Michigan's 150th year of statehood.

The success of the celebration was made possible only by the thousands and thousands of volunteers who lent their time, their expertise and their financial assistance to assure that this milestone in Michigan history was marked with dignity, with fun and with appreciation for all that is Michigan.

Certainly, the grassroot effort by local historical agencies, travel groups, museums, libraries, schools, churches, governmental entities and hundreds of other groups was the single largest volunteer effort this state has ever seen. But probably the most noteworthy aspect of the celebration was the genuine pride that Michigan residents displayed across this great state.

That pride will continue long after the last memory of the Sesquicentennial celebration fades. That pride will always remind us of our great past and we will build on it for an even brighter future. For all of us who are fortunate enough to have lived, worked and played in Michigan, it's enough to say "the feeling is forever."

You care

To the Editor:
(Regarding the Jan. 28 article, "We create a mountain of trash every day")

Thank you! Now I know what community cares.

I recently wrote a letter to the governor about trash disposal and water pollution, suggesting incinerators and collection barrels at grocery stores for glass and plastic to be recycled. Thank you for the additional information that burning plastic gives off toxic fumes. Perhaps the grocery stores can eliminate plastic bags.

My daughter goes to college in Albion and the water is polluted so we have some first-hand experience. I don't know why the governor permits this. There seems to be no solution to this problem but to transfer.

Thank you for being a community that cares. There must be a way to prevent water table pollution for us and for our children. Thanks for taking a step in the right direction.

Opinion

save Tiger Stadium?By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

Like most people from these parts, I have an opinion about the fate of Tiger Stadium. But that's about as far as the similarity goes.

I hate the idea of seeing the park razed; it's a special place. But, excuse me please, I'm not going to join any fan clubs or write any letters to prevent it. I've got more important things to worry about.

Over the past few weeks, the "Save Tiger Stadium" movement has been gaining momentum: to the point where local radio stations are rallying their listeners, people are signing petitions and the mayor is being pressed to re-evaluate his position on the stadium's future.

My question is this: Why do so many people put so much time and effort into a cause like the future of Tiger Stadium while they virtually ignore the future of the city's children?

The irony of the situation didn't become obvious to me until I heard someone on the radio say that Tiger fans should organize a demonstration and place their bodies between the wrecking ball and their beloved playground. This was followed by a quote from somebody who said he grew up watching games at the stadium and wants his son to have the same opportunity.

I guess when the people of this city feel strongly about something — when their history and aspirations are threatened — they really are willing to do some drastic things to make their point. More power to them.

But it seems to me that the priority of citizens full of this much energy and zeal should be to do something about the fact that kids are being shot at the rate of one or more a day on the city's streets. After all, a kid who's shot in an alley or a vacant apartment has significantly lower odds of being able to see a Tiger game anywhere again. Whether that be in an open air stadium on real grass or a domed stadium on Astroturf.

But, of course, an epidemic of senseless bloodshed and brutality on the streets and in the schools doesn't directly affect the same people who are fighting gallantly for their ballpark. They'll tell you it's easier to fight for the crack of a bat under the sun than it is to fight against the crack people buy with their lives in a rat-infested hole somewhere. They'll be right.

They'll also be copping out. I love the nostalgia and beauty of Tiger Stadium as much as anybody, and I'll be sorry to see it out of our lives. But I'm a hell of a lot sorer to see hundreds of kids out of our lives because nobody has the energy or ideas — or the concern — to solve the problem.

A few radio stations have joined the crusade, and virtually overnight, people are organized and full of ideas to save some bricks and steel. What does it take to organize people and get them motivated enough to save some flesh and blood?

It may be true that the stadium represents our past. But the children represent our future.

What's more important?

North choir to get free bus ride

Through the efforts of school board trustee Carl Anderson, the Grosse Pointe North choir will be getting bus transportation to and from Detroit Metro Airport for the trip to New York in mid-April.

A request from the parents' committee asking the school board to pay for the $1,320 round trip for the bus ride met with opposition at the board's Feb. 1 conference meeting. The parents' committee is trying to raise $70,000 to send 112 North choir members to participate in a nationally televised performance at the Lincoln Center in New York.

Tower Bus Transportation Systems Inc., a Mount Clemens firm, agreed to furnish the bus ride to the airport at no charge to the district or the committee, after a call from Anderson.

"After the meeting, I got the feeling that the request would be denied," Anderson said. "With the concerns we have right now about spending and the freezes in place, I thought I would call Tower."

After a call to the firm's manager, the company agreed to furnish the transportation.

"I just explained that the students have been given a tremendous tribute and will be performing before a national audience," Anderson said, "and asked if they would be willing to pick up the cost. They did it out of the goodness of their heart."

Judge to speak to voters' group

Kirsten Frank, newly elected municipal judge of Grosse Pointe Park, will be the speaker at the League of Women Voters meeting Tuesday, Feb. 23 at 7:45 p.m. She will discuss the difference between municipal and district courts.

In addition, there will be Chinese dinner at 6:30 p.m. Reservations can be made by contacting Kathleen Walters at 884-8695. The cost is $5. The annual event will be held at the home of Babbie Lynton, 175 Vendome, Grosse Pointe Farms.

Membership in the League of Women Voters of Grosse Pointe is open to men and women of all voting age. If interested, call Barbara Foreman at 882-6655 for membership information.

Jung center offerings

The Center for Jung Studies of Detroit will offer the following seminars and workshops:

Saturday, Feb. 20, from 1 to 5 p.m. — "The Once and Future Dromenon, the Dream, the Drama and the Dance" taught by Bernadette Meier, at the Birmingham Unitarian Church, 651 Woodward, Bloomfield Hills. Cost for members is $25 and $35 for non-members.

Friday, Feb. 26, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. — "The Inner Healer, Evoking the Archetypal Image" with Beverly Daniel, R.N., C.S.W. at Miller Hall, Christ Church, Grosse Pointe Farms. Cost is $3 for members and $6 for non-members.

Sunday, Feb. 28, from 2 to 4 p.m. — "The I Ching, Exploring China's Ancient Way of Knowing" with Nancy Pilzner-Daugherty at Miller Hall, Christ Church, Grosse Pointe Farms. Free to members, $3.50 for non-members.

For more information, call Naomi Bowerman, registrar, at 885-8792 or 881-7970.

Kids and Drugs: What parents should know

Parents are invited to attend Trombly Elementary's PTO general meeting tonight, Thursday, Feb. 18, at 7:30 in the school library.

The program will deal with what parents can do now to build up an effective communication system with children to help prevent their future drug abuse.

Sgt. Jim Smith of the Grosse Pointe Park police department will bring a drug kit to help parents identify commonly abused legal and illegal drugs and paraphernalia.

Sue Pierce, substance abuse counselor for the south end of the school district, and Maura Corrigan, assistant U.S. attorney for the Federal Narcotics Task Force, will be there to discuss warning signs and the legal implications of drug abuse.

At 1 p.m. today, Trombly will celebrate the bicentennial of the Constitution with an all-school assembly. The highlight of the assembly will be a mini-musical: "United We Stand," lyrics and music by Jill and Michael Gallina.

Under the musical direction of Judith Baily, the celebration will feature Lillian Kachadourian's second-graders and Janet Davidson's fourth-graders. Trombly invites the community to join in the celebration.

Prime Time for Senior Citizens A legacy to older Americans

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

He was loved by some and hated by others, but he will be forever remembered by those who lived during the years of his presidency. He is especially revered by those who are now benefitting from one of the most important programs implemented during his administration — Social Security. He was Franklin Delano Roosevelt, whose birthday was celebrated Jan. 30.

No one who lived during that time will ever forget under what desperate conditions he took office. We were in the depths of a depression, the likes of which we had never seen and hopefully will never see again.

Michigan was one of the hardest-hit states. Unemployed auto workers could not pay their rent. Landlords could not pay taxes. Banks went under.

There were no benefits available for the elderly, no unemployment compensation, no food stamps. Homeless men stuffed their shirts and trousers with newspapers to ward off the cold in their communal bedrooms — the city parks.

That was the state of our country when FDR became the 32nd president in 1933, a position he held for 12 years, longer than any president in history. Before his death in April 1945, he led the country through two grave crises — the Great Depression and World War II.

With his first words as president, he rekindled hope for the future when he said, "The only thing we have to fear is fear itself." The people clung to his promise of a "New Deal for America."

There was more than the usual credence placed in the promises of this president who had so courageously overcome obstacles in his own life.

Just 11 years before, Roosevelt, a strong, healthy man with a promising political future ahead of him, was struck with polio. His back, arms and hands were partially paralyzed, his legs withered. Refusing to give up, he fought back. Gradually he regained the use of his hands and the paralysis left his back. Contrary to advice against it, he reentered politics and was elected governor of New York.

He established an excellent record as governor of New York. Based on his accomplishments, the feeling pervaded that he could do much for a country in need.

The people's confidence was not misplaced. On March 9, 1933, five days after taking office, Roosevelt called a special session of Congress and submitted recovery and reform laws for approval. Thus began what came to be known as the "Hundred Days," when the Agricultural Adjustment Act (AAA), the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) and the National Industrial Recovery Act (NIRA) laws were enacted.

But none of these or other programs instituted later are as important to older citizens today as the birth of Social Security, a measure that insures some guarantee of security for the elderly.

For or against FDR, those who lived through the years of his presidency have now reached that point in time when they must gratefully remember him for instituting Social Security. While it doesn't provide all of the answers to a worry-free old age, it does provide a cushion against the indignity of welfare.

With the confidence and courage of a president who overcame personal and political obstacles in his life, older Americans should battle whatever forces that seek to undermine the legacy of freedom from poverty that Social Security provides. They should remain forever on guard and ready to muster forces against any and all measures that would deprive them of those benefits they have earned through years of labor. Their constant vigilance would be a fitting tribute to FDR.

Ford House has another record-setting year

The Edsel & Eleanor Ford House has announced record-setting tour attendance figures for 1987, including an increase of more than 33 percent over 1986. The figures were announced by Paul D. Alandt, executive director of the Ford House.

According to Alandt, total attendance from pre-scheduled groups tours and individual walk-in tours during public hours in 1987 was 38,680, up from last year's total of 29,030. In addition, attendance figures in December, the busiest month of the year, were up more than 45 percent from 1986 with 6,775 guests touring the decorated mansion which exhibited antique toys during the month.

Alandt noted that an additional 11,000 guests visited the Ford House for the Thyssen-Bornemisza gold and Silver Treasures Collection that was on display from May 21 to Sept. 13. The Ford House also hosted numerous concerts, student recitals, meetings for non-profit groups and special events that brought more than 8,000 visitors.

Alandt attributed the significant increase in attendance to several factors including positive word-of-mouth, the traditional holiday decorations, the unique exhibits and a more aggressive marketing approach that is positioning the Ford House as a House Museum.

"There is so much history associated with this home that visitors are spending more time, asking more questions and returning for additional visits," said Alandt. "We feel the exhibits we have had this year have given guests additional reasons to visit the home. We are finalizing details for future exhibits, and will be releasing information and dates in the near future."

The Edsel & Eleanor Ford House was built between 1926 and 1929 for the family of art-lovers Edsel and Eleanor Ford. The house was designed by architect Albert Kahn and contains many works by master artists. The Ford House is located on Lakeshore Drive on Lake St. Clair and was left by Eleanor Clay Ford upon her death in 1976 to be used for the benefit of the public.

Hourly tours are available Wednesday through Sunday, from 1 to 5 p.m. More information is available by calling 884-4222 or 884-3400.

These are the accused.

Since August of 1987 Grosse Pointe Auto Works (formerly Grosse Pointe Auto Service) has been under new ownership. Located in Grosse Pointe Park on Kercheval between Gallerie 454 and the former speakeasy of the 1920's - Sparky Herberts.

The new owner, as of yet unidentified, eliminated the former occupant, and seized control of the operation. Those now in power have coerced the public at large by offering special incentives which can't be refused. Area businesses are concerned about the new element and its business tactics.

Incriminating evidence is being gathered. Area resident, Jim Moore, who recently had his car worked over, is quoted as saying, "Damn, them Boys are good." As more residents come forward with similar accusations, civic leaders hope that the following accused will be justly dealt with!

Jon (No Ride) Allen

General Manager/Technician

Accused of knowing what it's like to be without a ride. When part suppliers mess up on that "rare occasion", he's been seen working after hours to keep a promise. His wife might want to clip this photo to remind her of what he looks like.

Jeff (Fingers) McKendrick

Service Manager (ASE)/Master Technician

Accused of fast and accurate diagnosing on Mercedes, BMW, Porches and Jaguars. His pattern is to do the job right or not at all. Fingers' hobbies include correcting Foreign Car Manuals and exposing flaws in lifetime guaranteed consumer products.

Pat (Moose) Kenny

Technician

Accused of explaining to customers the what, where and why of each job. Those willing to testify admit that the "Big Guy" is the informant. In light of Moose's information and relentless effort to re-establish "jitter bugging" at the Falcon Lounge, The Justice Department is considering a pardon.

Wayne (The Weasel)

Technician

Rarely seen and photographed for the first time. Accused of quick and thorough wrenching (auto repair). The Weasel moves in and out, and he's gone. Even under close surveillance, often the only sign of his presence is the hum of a finely tuned machine.

Dennis (The Heavy) Mazure

Technician

Accused of getting down & dirty. They call him in only on big heavy jobs. These are jobs even his cohorts can't stomach; transmission repair, engine swaps and yes, even dropping your rear end.

Scott (Baby Face) Kozaruk

Technician

Accused of selling and expertly installing communication devices (car phones) as well as auto alarms. His activities rose to the surface after months of quick AET Emmission Tests and his unmistakable fetish of oiling all door and latch hinges with every oil change.

William

Wheel Man and Special Projects Engineer.

Accused of taking customers for a one way ride. Believed to be the link in their pick-up and delivery service to all Pointes. Great conversationalist.

(To The Penny) Kelly

Cashier/Receptionist

Accused of luring customers back with her friendly smile. She has also been known, on occasion, to distinguish two bits from a slug.

The new boss knows this town's too small for some skim operation. "Customers will be taken care of but good. We want them coming back."

Correction

Information contained in last week's article about the reduction in hours at the two post office branches serving the Grosse Pointes was incorrect.

There will be no window service on Saturdays at the Mack Avenue and Fox Creek branches, however, the lobby will be open for access to post office boxes and vending machines.

No clerks will be available on Saturdays for package pick-up or to receive packages.

Concert rescheduled

Grosse Pointe South's Band and Orchestra Winter Concert has been rescheduled for tonight, Feb. 18, at 8 p.m. in the Parcels Middle School auditorium. The Feb. 11 concert was cancelled due to snow. Tonight's concert is free and open to the public.

All-schools concert

The Grosse Pointe Public School System invites residents to a free performance of "Choirs in Review" on Thursday, Feb. 25, at 8 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center at North High.

The theme for this year's concert is "We the People," in celebration of the 200th anniversary of the signing of the U.S. Constitution. The program will feature the music of Irving Berlin, George M. Cohen and Aaron Copland. Selections will be sung by choirs representing every school in the district.

The fifth-grade Honors Choir, composed of students from all nine elementary schools, will be directed by Linda Holcombe. The Sixth Grade Honors Choir will be under the direction of Margaret Steele. Barbara Dourjalian, Anne Maters and Dan Evola will direct the combined Middle School Choirs of Pierce, Brownell and Parcels. The South High Choir will be directed by Ellen Bowen; the North High Choir by Ben Walker.

Both high school choirs were chosen recently to participate in special musical events in different parts of the country. The North Choir will appear at Avery Fisher Hall, Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts, in New York City in April; the South Choir will sing at the Opryland American Music Festival in Nashville, Tenn. that same month.

The program for this year's "Choirs in Review" includes "Wakin' Up America," "Puttin On the Ritz," "Fifty, Nifty, United States," "Give Me Your Tired, Your Poor," and "One," from "A Chorus Line." The finale will be "We The People."

Cinema League to meet Feb. 22

The Grosse Pointe Cinema League will meet Monday, Feb. 22 at 8 p.m. at the War Memorial.

"China" is an all-new 16mm movie by Leo Tallieu that visits Guillin, Guangou, Chengdu, Shanghai, Beijing and Xian. The film shows the historic China of yesteryear as well as the giant strides the nation is taking as it emerges into the 21st century.

The public is invited. There is a charge of $2 for non-members plus 50 cents for the social hour that follows.

Jazz lecture

Musician and jazz historian Harold McKinney will present a lecture-demonstration tracing the roots and development of jazz Sunday, Feb. 21, at 2 p.m. at the Detroit Historical Museum, 5401 Woodward.

Admission is $5; $3 for Detroit Historical Society members. For more information, call 833-9720 or 833-7937.

Ferry to present sports and chili

A free sports film festival, featuring highlights of the Detroit Tigers, Red Wings and Lions seasons as well as a humorous NFL ("Follies") movie and the full-length feature, ("The Detroit Tigers Story") will be sponsored by the Ferry School PTO on Friday, Feb. 26.

Also scheduled in conjunction with the series of films, which will be shown in rooms adjoining the school's east centrum from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m., is a pot luck food sale and chili cookoff. Celebrity judges for the chili contest, in which several school parents have entered their favorite concoctions, will include Superintendent John Whritner.

There is no charge for the films. Hot dogs, chili and other foods and light refreshments will be on sale.

Mementos from various pro teams, sports and recreation items as well as tickets to sporting events will be awarded as prizes in two drawings that evening. Winners will have to be present to collect, said Ferry PTO President Linda Lloyd.

For cookoff information, call 884-4449.

DeLaSalle has Las Vegas Night

DeLaSalle High School will be the site of a Las Vegas Night Saturday, Feb. 20, from 7:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. The school is located at 14600 Common Road in Warren.

Admission is free and there will be food and refreshments available.

For more information, call 778-2207.

Harry Lynn Pierson Jr.

Memorial services were held at Christ Church Grosse Pointe Monday, Feb. 15, 1988, for former Grosse Pointe Farms resident Harry Lynn Pierson Jr., 93. Mr. Pierson died Feb. 11 at Cottage Hospital.

He was born in Detroit.

He attended Detroit University School, Detroit Central High School and Williams College. He served in the U.S. Army Infantry during World War I.

Mr. Pierson began his business career with the Packard Motor Car Co., then became the treasurer of the Detroit Harvester Co. His interests led him into manufacturing, banking and government service.

He served on the boards of the Eaton Manufacturing Co., the Standard Accident Insurance Co. (now Reliance Insurance of Philadelphia), Northwestern Mutual Insurance Co., Parke, Davis & Co., Aerovox Company of New Bedford, Mass. and First Bankers of Pompano Beach, Fla. He was currently serving as secretary of D&F Corporation in Sterling Heights. He was a director of the Grosse Pointe Bank, the Detroit Bank (now Comerica), and on the advisory council of Investment Company of America.

He was past president of the Detroit Board of Commerce, was appointed by Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry Hopkins as Michigan administrator for the WPA, and was former commissioner, later commissioner emeritus of Detroit Zoological Park. He was instrumental in the revival of the Detroit Zoological Society.

Mr. Pierson was a childhood friend of Edsel Ford and later served on the Henry Ford Hospital's board of trustees. He was appointed honorary trustee in 1978 and an honorary trustee of Henry Ford Health Care Corp., the parent company of Ford Hospital, in 1987.

He organized a group to save the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club after the Depression, in the early '40s, and he served as GPYC's commodore in 1942. He was also past commodore of the Old Club, past president of the Detroit Athletic Club and the Detroit Club. In addition, he was a member of the Country Club of Detroit, the Grosse Pointe Club and the Royal Palm Yacht and Country Club in Boca Raton, Fla.

Survivors include a son, Davison; and a daughter, Nancy Gard. He was predeceased by his wife, Elizabeth, in 1984.

Memorial tributes may be sent to the Detroit Zoological Society or Henry Ford Hospital.

Arrangements were handled by the Wm. R. Hamilton Funeral Home.

John J. Patterson

Funeral services were Thursday, Feb. 4, 1988 at St. Paul's Church for Grosse Pointe Farms resident John J. Patterson, 76. Mr. Patterson died Feb. 1 at Bon Secours Hospital.

He was born in Detroit and was an engineer for an auto parts company.

Survivors include his wife, Julia; a son, Thomas; and a sister, Marion Clark.

Interment was at Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Arrangements were handled by the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home.

Correction

Last week's paper listed the incorrect date for a public forum concerning the open/closed campus question for North and South high schools.

The forum will be Wednesday, March 2, at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium at Grosse Pointe North's Performing Arts Center.

Ralph William Erickson

Services were Tuesday, Feb. 16, 1988 at the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home, for Ralph William Erickson, of Grosse Pointe Woods. Mr. Erickson died Saturday, Feb. 13 at Bon Secours Hospital.

He was a lifelong resident of the Detroit area.

He was an electrical engineer and account executive for the Conti Electric Co., and was formerly employed by Motor City Electric and Hyden Brand Co. for a number of years.

He was a member of the Michigan National Guard.

Mr. Erickson was a member of the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club and Travis Pointe Country Club in Ann Arbor, Mich.

Survivors include his wife, Lois; his parents, Emma and Carl Erickson; a brother, Carl; and a sister, Gloria Weber.

Arrangements were handled by the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home.

Theodore R. Shamie

Services and burial were held in Florida for Theodore R. Shamie, a former Grosse Pointer. Mr. Shamie, 62, died Feb. 5, 1988, in his Boynton Beach, Fla. home.

He graduated from the Detroit Institute of Technology and served in the U.S. Navy in the South Pacific during World War II.

He was a grocery trade journal executive until his retirement in 1985. The Detroit-based Shamie Publishing Co., published the Grocers Spotlight in Michigan, Grocers Beacon in Ohio, the Yankee Grocer in New England and the Grocers Graphic in New York. In 1968, he purchased the Grocers Graphic from the company founded by his father, and moved to New York City until 1970, when he sold the publication.

When he returned to Michigan, he was a marketing executive with a tool and die company, then rejoined the family publishing business.

Survivors include his wife, Ida; two sons, Eric and Michael; his mother, Meda; a brother, George; and a sister, Lorraine Sheridan.

Anne Seeley

A memorial service will be held March 12, 1988 at 1 p.m. at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church for former Grosse Pointe resident Anne Seeley, 84. Miss Seeley died Feb. 8 at Glacier Hills Nursing Center, Ann Arbor.

She was born in Caro, Mich. and graduated from the University of Michigan.

She was the secretary to one of the founding partners of what is now the accounting firm, Touche Ross & Co., beginning in 1947. She retired from Touche Ross in 1969.

After retirement, Miss Seeley was a volunteer at Children's Hospital of Michigan and a member and active volunteer for the Grosse Pointe Memorial Church. She was also a member of Church Women United in Detroit, and the Detroit and Grosse Pointe chapters of Delta Gamma. She also volunteered for a variety of projects to aid the blind. She served as recording secretary for the Women's City Club, which merged with the Detroit Boat Club in 1975.

Survivors include two sisters, Margaret S. Gee, of Caro, and Lucy, of Ann Arbor; and a brother, Ralph K., of East Lansing.

The body was donated to the University of Michigan Medical School.

Memorial tributes may be made to Grosse Pointe Memorial Church or to Children's Hospital of Michigan.

Donald Kavan Pokorny, D.D.S., M.S.

Donald Kavan Pokorny, D.D.S., M.S.

A memorial mass will be held for Donald Kavan Pokorny, D.D.S., M.S., at St. Paul's Catholic Church today, Feb. 18, at 1 p.m. Dr. Pokorny, 62, of Grosse Pointe Shores, died Saturday, Feb. 13, at his Naples, Fla. winter home.

He was born in Detroit.

He graduated from the University of Detroit with a D.D.S. and earned a master's degree in periodontology.

He served in the U.S. Navy during World War II.

Dr. Pokorny had a private dental practice in Grosse Pointe for more than 25 years. He was a professor at the University of Detroit Dental School, and he was affiliated with numerous professional dental organizations.

"He established a course in dental occlusion — one of the first programs of its kind introduced in dental schools nationwide," said Francis P. Blake, D.D.S., a colleague and a friend for more than 30 years. "He ran the crown and bridge department at U of D's Dental School that became nationally recognized. He taught there more than 25 years."

He was an avid sailor and raced in many Port Huron-to-Mackinac races. He also cruised Georgian Bay and the North Channel many times, according to Blake.

Dr. Pokorny was a member of the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club and Bayview Yacht Club. He served as port captain of the Great Lakes Sailing Club. He also loved music and was the drummer for the Grosse Pointe Senior Men's Club band, The Music Makers.

Survivors include his wife, Patricia; two daughters, Valerie McHugh and Patrice DuFour; a son, Paul Pokorny, D.D.S.; four grandsons; his mother Libbie; and a sister, Rosemarie Erdmann.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Kidney Foundation, Friends of Vision (Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology) or the charity of one's choice.

Robert A. Zeleznik

Services for Grosse Pointer Robert A. Zeleznik, 69, were held at the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home Tuesday, Feb. 9, 1988. Mr. Zeleznik died Feb. 6 at Henry Ford Hospital.

He was born in Pointe City, Va. and lived in Grosse Pointe since 1927.

Mr. Zeleznik was a graduate of Grosse Pointe High School and the Detroit College of Law. He was an attorney for the State Judicial Council since 1960.

He was secretary of the Marine Historical Society of Detroit for 35 years and secretary of the International Tugboat Racing Association in the 1950s. He was also a judge of the association since 1977.

Mr. Zeleznik also worked on Grosse Pointe city elections since 1950 and was chairman of elections since 1959. He was an avid boat photographer, primarily of Great Lakes boats. According to his wife, he had about 20,000 boat photographs in his personal collection. He made as many as 40 trips each season to Boblo and Put-In-Bay. He also had a collection of boating items — playing cards, coasters, plates and marine literature.

Survivors include his wife, Wilma; a daughter, Virginia McCoy; and a brother, Carter. Arrangements were handled by the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home.

Anna Kubik

Services for Anna Kubik, 89, were held Sunday, Feb. 14, 1988 at St. James Lutheran Church. Miss Kubik, a Grosse Pointe resident since 1944, died Feb. 11 at her home.

She was born in Czechoslovakia and came to the United States as a refugee in 1913.

She was a housekeeper for the Langs family for more than 70 years. "My grandmother hired her. She hadn't learned English yet," said Ed Langs, of Grosse Pointe.

"Anna Kubik was the adopted grandmother and mother for the families of Mary Langs Holekamp, John W. Langs, Patricia Langs Fitzgerald, Edward F. Langs and the late H.R. Stark Langs, all of Grosse Pointe," he said. "To us, she was very special. She loved children and children loved her."

Except to visit, Miss Kubik had never been in a hospital until last August, Langs said. She was anxious to leave the hospital during her last illness. "She died peacefully, shortly after coming home and soon after receiving a card with a picture of her village in Czechoslovakia."

She was an active participant in the activities of St. James Lutheran Church, and helped care for children during church services.

Survivors, in addition to the Langs family, are two nephews, Peter Paul Meze and Ed Haco; a niece, Margaret Trift; and other nieces and nephews.

Arrangements were handled by the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home.

Edith Ebel Horn

A memorial service will be held at a later date for Edith Ebel Horn, 87, a former Grosse Pointer. Mrs. Horn died Sunday, Feb. 14, 1988 at Georgian East Nursing Home.

She was born in Detroit and was a homemaker.

Survivors include a daughter, Sara Jean Dobbertien; a son, Stephen A.; five grandchildren; and one great-grandchild.

The body was cremated at White Chapel Cemetery.

Memorial contributions may be made to Children's Hospital of Michigan or to the Michigan Cancer Foundation.

Arrangements were handled by the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home.

Betty Hacking Palmisano

A memorial service at Christ Church Grosse Pointe was held Monday, Feb. 8, 1988, for Betty Hacking Palmisano, 57, of Grosse Pointe Park. Mrs. Palmisano died Feb. 5 in St. John Hospital.

She was born in Burns, Ore.

She was employed as a counselor.

Survivors include her husband, Anthony; two daughters, Andrea Hall and Susan Babula; and two sons, Stephen and Michael. She was predeceased by another daughter, Linda.

The body was cremated at Forest Lawn Cemetery.

Arrangements were handled by the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home.

North students return to Oz

By John Monaghan
Special Writer

For about a month now, the scene in North High School's C-Building after school is controlled pandemonium. A group of "munchkins" perform "Ding Dong, the Witch is Dead" in the choir room, while Dorothy and The Scarecrow practice a dance on the auditorium stage. Fifty years after the film was originally produced, the magic of the "Wizard of Oz" still lives on.

More than 60 North High students have come together for this ambitious musical, which runs this weekend, Feb. 19 and 20 at 8 p.m., and Feb. 20 at 2 p.m. The cast includes Beth Kreuter as Dorothy, Jim Clor as The Cowardly Lion, Jeff Witzke as The Scarecrow, Jim DeYonker as The Tin Man, Louisa Heinrich as The Wicked Witch and Katie Devlin as Glenda the Good Witch.

The musical is a collaboration between North's award-winning theater and choir departments, and some dynamic personalities. For Theatre North director Gael Barr, "The Wizard of Oz" holds far-from-ordinary childhood memories. A former Hollywood child star in the '30s and early '40s, Barr remembers working at MGM when the film was being made.

"I was working on a Western and there were a number of children," he said. "They let us visit the Wizard of Oz set. They let us get Toto's autograph. Everyone had an Oz book and Toto put his footprint in it."

Barr decided to stage "The Wizard of Oz" after the enormous success of another children's musical, "Peter Pan," last season. General admission tickets are available at the door for evening performances for $4.

Though Barr points out that the characters remain the same, he has taken certain liberties with the text. "Because of the particular actors, we've created our own kinds of sight gags and interactions that stay close to who the characters are while not being exactly the way it was in the film."

"Being in this play is so much fun because it's different every day," adds veteran Theatre North actor Jim Clor. "A joke will be made in rehearsal and then it will go in the script. I think it really adds for us and the audience. If we do it exactly the same way as the film, then people are going to say it's one big copy."

Ben Walker, North's choir director, is especially excited about his additions to the musical score. He has included "Evening Star" (a tune deleted from the final Oz film), an extended version of "Somewhere Over the Rainbow," and "Home" from the 1970s Broadway musical, "The Wiz."

A major part of the show is pianist Bob Foster, who, according to Walker, "literally rescored the entire show for synthesizer. He has an amazing electrical approach and provides some unforgettable cyclones and entrances of the witches. I think it gives "The Wizard of Oz" a fresh sound and makes it appealing to today's audience."

In the dough

The smell of baking bread filled the air at Maire school recently as 85-year-old Johnny Adams helped first-grade students in Jane Pattinson's class make their own loaves of bread. Students kneaded and shaped the dough, which was baked in individual loaf pans. They also churned their own butter, which they enjoyed with the bread.

Adams is one of 50 grandperson volunteers in the Grosse Pointe Public School system. A resident of Grosse Pointe for 52 years, all six of her children attended Maire School, where she now volunteers. She also has 13 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

North student Jennifer LaFatta receives her cap and pin during graduation ceremonies for the dental assistant program held at Lochmoor last May from Dr. George Goodis, dental adviser for the program. LaFatta, who will graduate this year, plans to go on to dental school.

Dental aide class to be offered again

The dental aide class at the two Grosse Pointe high schools was not scheduled this year because not enough students expressed interest in the class, however, instructor Jeanne Bocci hopes that the program can be resumed next year.

Bocci, a health teacher, said students interested in learning about careers in dentistry, like dental assisting, hygiene, becoming a laboratory technician or dentistry itself, can benefit from the program.

The class prepares students to work in an office or laboratory and can be taken as an advance placement class. Students who successfully complete the program may earn up to 12 college credits.

"This is an excellent class where the student can make career decisions if they want to go into the medical field or not," Bocci said. "It also gives them excellent job skills for life."

Local dentists express an interest in students who have completed the course and request interviews, Bocci said.

Bocci suggests that students who have an interest in dentistry see their high school counselor.

What could be more uplifting than to take a stroll on skis along Lakeshore on a sunny day after a heavy snow? Frank Moran of Grosse Pointe Shores enjoys the scenery.

First you make a mountain, then you dig a tunnel and then you dive in. Paul Tylenda and Paul Kowalski, both of the Farms, go to it.

The white stuff

Working up an appetite are Billy Crawford, 7, Jesse Craig, 6, and Charlie Braun, 7, all of the Park.

Clearing their sidewalks are Dr. Tom Molitor of the Farms, using the snow blower, and Al De-fever of the Woods, using manpower.

If dogs could talk, this one might be saying, "I know there's a fire hydrant out here somewhere." Helping his four-legged friend search is Robert Hanson of the Woods.

The snow on Fisher Road nearly dwarfed Jane Ulbrich of the Farms, navigating past the pile-up.

Shaheen wins national coloring contest

Anna Rose Shaheen of Grosse Pointe Woods won first prize in the Crayola National Coloring Contest. She received a 5-foot plastic Crayola crayon in recognition of her achievement. Thousands of entries representing every state in the country were submitted and judged on the criterion of creativity, according to Dean Rodenbough, spokesperson for Binney &

Smith, maker of Crayola products. "The entries reflected each child's interpretation of the contest theme, 'My Vision of the Future,'" Rodenbough said. "Some children depicted the future as mankind living underwater while others predicted the return of dinosaurs, or hoped for a future free of violence and drugs."

Winners of the contest remain eligible to participate in the 1988 Crayola National Coloring Event which will award two $50,000 scholarships to grand prize winners. Details of the event will be available at participating locations in July.

ULS plans college admissions program

The public is invited to University Liggett School Thursday, Feb. 25, to hear Jane Reynolds, associate director of admissions at Tufts University in Massachusetts, speak on "The Importance of College Visits and Interviews." She will speak at 7:30 p.m. in the main auditorium at 1045 Cook Road, Grosse Pointe Woods. Admission to the program is free.

Reynolds will stress the significance of visiting the campuses of colleges the student is considering. She will also share information about what happens in a college admissions office during the decision-making process.

Previously an admissions representative at Trinity College in Connecticut, Reynolds is an entertaining, much-in-demand speaker at national conferences and workshops of college admissions counselors.

For additional information, call Kim DeMeulemeester, college guidance counselor at ULS, 884-4444.

Student Spotlight

Michele McShea

Each week in this column, we will focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a wood-working project, a book review.

The following poem was written by Michele McShea, a fifth-grader at St. Paul School. The 11-year-old is the daughter of Michael and Corlette McShea of Grosse Pointe Farms.

Frost

The wind bites my face.
Through the blizzard I wander
Confused and lost.
The snow tumbling down
As an avalanche,
Only harder
Though the snow is light,
It feels heavy, chilling, and you
Can tell you're not alone
Out in the bitter cold.
Another body is wandering, too
And lost!

This space is open to any student in the Grosse Pointe public or private school system from grades 1 through 12.

Send your entry along with a picture to Student Spotlight, Grosse Pointe News, 96 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Farms 48236 or drop it off at the office. If you would like the photo returned, enclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Latin students reach semis

Six University Liggett School students of Latin joined hundreds of others from the metropolitan area at Sacred Heart Seminary, Feb. 6, to participate in the annual Ludi Detroitenses (Detroit Games).

A quiz bowl team composed of Nita Kulkarni, Kim Ownes, Dana Warnez and Mary Fildew reached the semi-final round. Cheering them on were fellow student Eric Sensenbrenner and Manisha Kulkarni, and Latin teachers Susan Bernstein and Helen Fildew. Bernstein was one of the principal organizers of the annual event, sponsored by the Detroit Classical Association.

Court

have to get across is that the child is our number one asset. (Without help) these kids continue to be a drain on our resources for decades." Many of the children seen in the Juvenile Court have gotten a bad start in life. Joseph Avore, director of the court's Clinic for Child Study, said in an October panel discussion, "You can explain a lot of aggression by watching how kids learn. They will model on what they see."

"If they see people striking, hitting, ignoring each other, that's the kind of behavior they will start exhibiting. They will enforce their rule or act out their frustrations by hitting other youngsters, their siblings."

"In some very simple ways, we learn by watching others. And who can be more significant to us than our parents?"

Advisory committee member Georgia Mandich agrees. "The most important job in the world is parenting," she said. "Our society must recognize that juvenile delinquency and crime have their roots in early, early childhood."

"Many families love their children, but they don't know how to communicate that love. They do the physical feeding, but they don't know how to do the emotional feeding."

Right now, Mandich believes, the system isn't responding fast enough to juvenile problems. "Unless we decide to intervene early, we pay for it in crime and fear and taxpayers' money. We need to cut the red tape to the juvenile system."

Attorney Gary Spicer, singer Martha Reeves and Detroit Tiger Darrell Evans gather at Spicer's office to talk about their plans for a work and restitution program for delinquent juveniles.

Giving kids a second chance at life

Say you're a kid. Say you're a kid who can draw.

But you haven't had any breaks, not much training. Can't find a decent job. Maybe you dropped out of school because you were always drawing on the margins of the tests instead of filling in the blanks. So you failed.

You have to eat. You want to have wheels, nice clothes. You can't buy them, so maybe you take them.

Do something bad enough, and you could end up in Maxey — or Jackson, if you're old enough. Do something minor, you're on a treadmill at Juvenile Court, one of the huge overload on your probation officer's calendar.

When he's done with you, you go off and get into trouble again, because you still don't have a job, an education or a marketable skill, or any way of finding one.

Creative approaches are needed for problems like this. A pilot program this summer, the brainchild of Grosse Pointe attorney Gary Spicer, will tackle the task.

"We'll pick 15 or 20 young men, put them through a rigorous program," Spicer said. "We'll identify their skills, get them back in school, back in the mainstream. We want to reverse that 40 percent dropout rate. We'll identify their skills and match them with the corporate sector."

For inspiration: celebrities. Several Detroit sports and entertainment figures have offered their help in the project. Detroit Tiger Darrell Evans and singer Martha Reeves joined Spicer in his Renaissance Center office three weeks ago to talk about their involvement.

"I've been trying to line up people for this committee — once Martha and Darrell joined, lots of people signed up," said Spicer with a laugh. Reeves and Evans have high hopes for the pilot project.

"People helped me along the way," Reeves said. "This is a good way to help somebody."

Sometimes teenagers just don't know what's expected of them, Evans said. "I didn't know how to act for a long time. People helped me. Having people interested in you until you get confidence in yourself — we've all gone through that. We can all identify."

Successful now, all three of them grew up in much poorer circumstances — and that's what makes them relate so easily to the kids they expect to see. "We're all from the same kind of background," said Spicer, who grew up in Delray. "We were all blessed with some kind of talent" that gave them the boost out of the neighborhood.

"Unless we can reverse the dropout rate, most of these kids are in a hopeless situation," Spicer continued. "Unless you have the ability to get out and go to college, there are limited ways to get out of that environment."

The work/restitution program would "yank" them out of that environment, he said. It would serve the multiple purposes of satisfying the court, giving the offender some useful employment and offering some restitution to the victim. It is based on a program now under way in Kent County and has been under study here since fall.

Not every kid is going to qualify for this kind of treatment. But our young shoplifter with artistic talent could now find himself working for a commercial artist or an advertising agency or a printer, instead of poking at paper with a sharp stick in a community park. The program offers a future.

"It will also teach them they have a responsibility to make up for what they did," said Charles Rooney, the staff director of the advisory committee, who gave Spicer the credit for dreaming up the idea and sweating out many of the details — as well as recruiting Reeves and Evans.

All three stressed the need for the teenagers' parents to become involved in their children's future — and stay involved. "They need support and control," Evans said. "They need somebody to stop them from screwing up."

The problem is not unique to Detroit; the same kinds of delinquency and lack of family support can be found anywhere. "We should take this act on the road," said Martha Reeves.

Career opportunities for adults

Macomb Community College's Single Parent/Homemaker Program is offering a free Career Awareness Workshop Tuesday, Feb. 23 for students interested in educational and employment opportunities.

Changing the roles of men and women, jobs of the future, a panel discussion, and presentations by selected Macomb faculty, staff and students will be offered.

The workshop will be held from noon to 4 p.m. in the John Lewis Student Community Center, K-Building, Room 324, South Campus, 14500 Twelve Mile, in Warren. Refreshments will be served.

For more information, contact Kathy McInerney at 445-7003.

Eastside support group to meet

The Eastside Family Support Group, an affiliate of the Michigan and National Alliances for the Mentally Ill, will meet Monday, Feb. 22, at 7:30 p.m. at Cottage-Belmont Nursing Center, 19840 Harper, Harper Woods.

Richard C. Preisman, M.D., psychiatrist, Henry Ford Hospital, will discuss "Biological and environmental factors which may set the stage for serious mental illness."

Relatives and friends of the mentally ill are invited to attend. For information, call 839-9826 or 884-9005.

Cream adds new wrinkle to cosmetic surgery

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

You spent years out in the sun tanning yourself a deep, rich brown, and now they tell you it can cause damage to your skin. If it's too late to start doing something about how you tan, don't despair. Retinoic acid — a chemical substance related to vitamin A — has become the latest hope in the quest for eternal youth.

The evidence and the studies are conclusive, and the cream — which until now has been used to treat severe acne — is quickly becoming the hope for many who wish to get back the rosy glow of youth.

Dr. John Harrison of Grosse Pointe Farms has been studying the effects of topically applying retinoic acid, which is also referred to as vitamin A acid, for almost a year-and-a-half and has seen what he calls "dramatic results" in all of the approximately 25 cases in the study which he is conducting from his Mount Clemens office in conjunction with a Wayne State University researcher.

The wrinkle-removing effects of retinoic acid were discovered several years ago by chance. Subsequent studies have demonstrated conclusively that the effect of aging can be stopped and even reversed by applying it to wrinkled and sun-damaged skin. Retinoic acid has even been found to remove brown age spots and has the potential to prevent certain types of skin cancer, Harrison said.

"It is not clearly known how it works," Harrison said, "but it works on everybody and it is definitely a new wrinkle (pun intended) in the world of cosmetic surgery."

What is known is that the treatment works in two ways. Initially, it causes a slight peeling and removal of the outer, or "horny layer" of the skin. It then increases and enhances the production of collagen, and stimulates the growth of blood vessels, which brings a rosy glow to the skin.

According to Harrison, the acid is applied in cream form in small concentrations. The dosage usually ranges from 0.05 percent to 0.1 percent. Those using the cream are instructed on how to clean the area extremely well before applying it. The cream is applied at night, just before going to bed, because retinoic acid is destroyed by light. In the morning, the cream is washed off and a moisturizer is applied.

This regimen is followed for eight to 12 months, until the treatments have literally stopped the aging process, then the cream needs only be applied twice a week. Harrison said patients start noticing a difference after four months.

While the cream will work on all wrinkles, Harrison notes it works best on wrinkles caused by too much exposure to the sun.

"There are a few things it won't work on," Harrison said. "It won't work on deep furrows, like on your forehead, and it will not work on sagging skin, like bags under your eyes." Those under treatment must also be sure to use a strong sun screen when out in the sun.

Those interested in trying the retinoic acid treatments should do so only under the supervision of a physician, preferably one who has worked with and understands the effects of retinoic acid. "This is not necessarily a substitute for cosmetic surgery, but it is definitely an important adjunct to it," he said.

Retinoic acid is not a miracle cure, said Harrison, a plastic surgeon, but all the people who use it are extremely excited about it, including himself. "I've noticed some dramatic results on myself," he said. His crows feet, fine wrinkles and the crepe paper-like skin under his eyes have disappeared, and with continued use, will not be seen again, he hopes.

Vanity is not the only reason people would want to undergo this treatment. For some people, it's a matter of making a living. "We've always looked for that fountain of youth. And with people living longer, there's more competition for jobs, and usually people are more willing to hire the younger, better-looking if you will, person," he said.

There are some drawbacks to the treatments, Harrison said. No one seems to know how long the effects last, and the minor peeling and scaling that occurs early in the treatment can last for a few months, but for most, the benefits far outweigh the negatives.

"If you look better, you feel better," Harrison said, summing up the fervor for retinoic acid.

Woods council to vote on court/council improvement

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

In an effort to make the Woods courtroom and council chambers more accessible to the public, the council is expected to approve a plan Monday that will change the face of city hall.

"We've been reviewing it for about a year," Mayor George Freeman said. "We need more room for the courtroom."

The plan, if approved, would flip the courtroom so the entrance would be from the main parking lot instead of the back lot. There would be new office space added, new restrooms and small meeting rooms so attorneys can meet in privacy with clients.

The new facilities would, in effect, separate the courtroom from the business office. The current arrangements tend to disrupt office operations when court is in session, Freeman said.

People who have to appear in court as well as their lawyers walk through the business office, meet in the halls, use the secretaries' phones and the employees' bathrooms, Freeman added.

The funds for the project, expected to cost in excess of $100,000, would come from the city's capital improvements fund, he said.

The project would be Phase I of a two-phase improvement program. Phase II would be a reconstruction of the front of the building to make it more useful for residents and to create better working conditions for employees.

Last month, a Super Lotto Jackpot reached nearly $29 million and the drawing produced a record number of winners sharing Second and Third place awards. With many new players participating, questions came up on how to collect Lottery prizes. The following addresses such happy occasions.

Q: How does a Lottery winner collect prizes from the various Lottery games?

A: The process is easy, but varies by game and prize amount. Prizes of $600 or under from the instant games (the rub off ones) can be claimed from ANY LOTTERY AGENT by presenting a signed, winning ticket. Prizes of $600 or under from the Daily 3, Daily 4 or Super Lotto can be collected from ANY AGENT SELLING THOSE GAMES.

Q: What if the prize is more than $600?

A: If a prize is over $600 but not a Super Lotto Jackpot winner, it can be claimed two ways. A winner can go to any Lottery agent who sells the game and fill out a claim form. The retailer forwards it to the Lansing Lottery office and a check is mailed to the winner in about 3-4 weeks.

Q: What's the second way?

A: To get the prize check faster, a winner of more than $600 can go to any of seven Lottery offices located in Bridgeport, Detroit, Graying, Lansing, Marquette, Southfield and Wyoming. The claim is usually processed immediately and a check is given on the spot.

Q: What if I'm a Jackpot winner?

A: Should you win a Jackpot prize, contact Lottery headquarters in Lansing to make arrangements to claim your prize. The phone number is (517) 887-6840. Jackpot winners generally receive their first payments within a day or so, with many check presentations made at the retailer's store where the winning ticket was purchased.

Q: How long do I have to claim my prize?

A: All winners have up to one year to claim their prizes. After that, the money reverts back to the Lottery's state School Aid Fund contributions, which aid K-12 education.

Q: Are taxes taken out of winnings?

A: There are no state or local taxes on Michigan Lottery prizes. For prizes over $5,000, the Internal Revenue Service requires a 20 percent Federal income tax withholding.

For asking the question leading to this column, Dorothy Erickson of Manistee will receive 50 free tickets for the Lottery's current instant game, "3 Cards Up."

If you have a question not yet covered in these columns, send it to "Winners Circle," Michigan Lottery, P.O. Box 30077, Lansing, MI 48909.

We Educate Your Children To The Best Degree Possible.

What degree of success will your children achieve? Intellectually, morally, physically, emotionally?

The answer will depend on the degree to which you are willing to help them.

If you are truly concerned, an important way to help is to ensure they attend a school dedicated to developing their full potential, a school like one of the independent Michigan schools listed below.

Why an independent school rather than a public or parochial school? It's simply a matter of degree.

• The degree of attention. A low student/teacher ratio ensures individualized instruction, careful guidance and monitoring of a child's progress.

• The degree of care and concern.

Independent schools are committed to education in the broadest sense, cultivating not only academic achievement but also nurturing students' moral, physical and emotional well-being in a secure academic environment. Individual attention also allows teachers to recognize problems quickly and provide the care and support needed.

• The degree of freedom. At an independent school students are not regimented, not impeded by the system. They are allowed to build upon their own strengths, and are encouraged to work to the best of their abilities.

• The college degree. Preparation for higher education is stressed at each stage of student development.

A firm foundation in the fundamentals—including science, history, literature, foreign languages and computer science—paves the way for success in college and career.

How to choose a school.

Parents are cordially invited to visit individual schools where they can compare programs and absorb the different atmospheres. We're sure that with 20 diverse schools, you'll find one ideally suited to your family's needs. For more information about the Independent Schools of Michigan as well as information about financial aid programs, write for a free brochure to AIMS, 31201 Dorchester, Madison Heights, MI 48071 or call 1-313-585-9151.

Barber

"Cut it regularly, shampoo and keep it clean and that will promote growth," Langford said. Three balding gentlemen awaiting a haircut while Langford talked, looked up from their newspapers.

"I chose barbering because I like people," he said. "I prefer to be working with people than on things like a technician."

Some of the noted Grosse Pointers whose hair Langford has cut include John Stroh, Soupy Sales, Bill Kennedy, Dan Petry and hundreds of other not-as-well-known, but no less important customers.

"I'm deeply grateful and indebted to them for their loyalty," he said. "I can't say enough good about the people of this neighborhood."

"There's no question that after 36 years in a neighborhood like this, that I'm going to miss it. I get some empty feelings in my stomach.

"I feel like I've been very fortunate to be able to get my start here. I got good training from Sam Barker and the people have been fantastic."

Young Mike Jensen gets his first haircut from Jim Langford who retired Saturday after 36 years of barbering. That's Mike's father, John, holding on to his son.

Diet Pills Sweeping U.S.

Doctors Invent 'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight

New 'Fat Magnet' Diet Pill Guarantees Fast Weight Loss

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special)—An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" that you will easily lose fat by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.

No Dieting—Eat Normally

Best of all, "you can continue to eat all of your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits. You will start losing fat from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight and figure you desire."

There has never been anything like it before. It is a totally new major medical breakthrough for weight loss (worldwide patent pending).

Flushes Fat Out of Body

The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in fat particles. Then, all that trapped fat is naturally "flushed" right out of your body because it cannot be digested.

Within 2 days you will notice a change in the color of your stool as the fat particles are being eliminated.

"Pills Do All the Work"

According to the doctors, the fat-magnet pills do all the work while you quickly lose fat with no starvation diet menus to follow, no calorie counting, no exercising, and no hunger pangs. It is 100% safe. You simply take the pills with a glass of water before meals.

The fat-magnet pills have just been offered to the American public and are already sweeping the country with record sales and reports of dramatic weight loss. It's the "lazy way" to lose weight for people who enjoy eating.

Now Available to Public

If you need to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these new highly successful fat-magnet pills (now available from the doctor's exclusive manufacturer by mail or phone order only) by sending $20 for a 90 pill supply (+$2 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+$3 handling), cash, check or money order to: Fat-Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. W24, Beverly Hills, CA 90211. (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not 100% satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard and American Express OK. (Send card number, expire date, and signature.) For fastest service for credit card orders ONLY call anytime 24 hours, toll free 1(800)527-9700, ext. W24.

IF YOU'RE LOOKING FOR A CAR TO GET YOU THROUGH THE WINTER, LOOK AT THE CAR THAT GETS THE ASPEN POLICE THROUGH IT.

For roughly six months a year in Aspen, Colorado, the ground is covered with snow. Which is euphoria if you're a skier, but somewhat less than that if you're a driver.

That's why the only cars you'll find on Aspen's Police Force are front-wheel drive Saabs.

"We drive our Saabs pretty hard up here in Aspen. Often 24 hours a day, for quite a few days in a row," says Chief Rich Rianoshok.

"Our results are excellent, driving in the snow. They corner well, stop well, and it's just a good feeling."

Now should you need a second opinion on Saab's cold-weather abilities, we suggest you talk to another Saab customer, Ken Hughes.

He's Chief of Police for Vail, Colorado.

Old estate to be subdivided; house to be torn down

By Ronald J. Bemis
Staff Writer

With the recent variance granted to The Blake Co., the way was paved for the construction of a residential development on the old Higbie estate.

The 8.5 acres of land, which runs along Moran Road and is bordered by Lake Shore and Grosse Pointe Boulevard, will be divided into 16 lots, ranging in size from 17,902 square feet to 41,860 square feet — well above the 15,000-foot minimum lot size recently voted into ordinance by the Farms council.

Christopher Blake, president, said by ordinance the land can be made into 24 lots, but because he wants Scherbrook Subdivision to be the finest development around, he has increased the lot sizes. There will be two lots on either end with entrances from Lake Shore and Grosse Pointe Boulevard, and three cul-de-sacs off Moran Road with four houses clustered around each. The variance granted to the company allows the smaller front footage necessary to houses on cul-de-sacs.

The 19-room house on the Higbie estate will be torn down, however, because there is no feasible way to convert it to apartments or condominiums, Blake said.

"We analyzed and looked at whether it could be saved, but neither the layout of the structure nor the practical aspects (the wiring and the plumbing) made it feasible." Blake said he will use parts of the old house in the new structures, including the hardwood floors and two marble fireplaces. The floors will be spread among the subdivision, to give the homes something extra. Most of the houses will be custom made, but Blake hasn't ruled out building models for sale.

The house/lot package will go for a base price of $550,000 and up, and Blake said he already has three deposits. Lots will go on sale March 1 with Higbie Maxon Inc. Realtors, Inc. as the exclusive agent.

"The assets that we are purchasing here are the beauty of the land. We designed the subdivision) that way because we're trying to create a development that puts to use the beauty of the land, especially the trees," Blake said.

Blake points to the Dodge estate project as a ruler to measure his responsibility. "I think we've shown people with our Dodge project that we're responsible," he said. "This is a great project," Blake said. "It's a great opportunity to develop it in a way that we feel is responsible. I look at it as a contribution. "It would certainly be wonderful if the land could be used as a park, but it's not realistic."

Blake said he expects to begin doing the land improvements, including sewers, and demolition of the house this spring, with construction of the first house scheduled for early summer. He expects it will take three years to complete the project.

Historical society regrets loss of Higbie House

Tish Colett, vice president for historic preservation for the Grosse Pointe Historical Society, said she had hoped the Higbie House could have been saved from destruction. She's concerned about carving Grosse Pointe up into more small pieces.

"We've let another one slip away," she said.

The Higbie House was built in 1927. Hugo Higbie, of Grosse Pointe Farms, president of Higbie Maxon Inc. Realtors, grew up in the house. He said his parents moved into the newly completed home just 10 days before he was born.

"The house was built to be moved," he said. "My mother and father built it as a temporary house and were going to move it back, beyond Grosse Pointe Boulevard, between Moran and Merriweather. They were going to build a stone house nearer to the water. This was an era when houses were moved."

Plans for moving the house and building a new one were scrapped because of the Depression. The three-story stucco-on-lath house is approximately 7,000 square feet, Higbie said. He counted six rooms on the main floor, four bedrooms and four bathrooms on the second floor, and servants' quarters on the third floor. A nine-car garage, a greenhouse and a gardener's cottage are also on the 8.5-acre parcel of land. The garage has two apartments above and an inside squash court.

Chris Blake, president of The Blake Co., prospective developers of the property, said, "It's a large house — but it's not a mansion."

Higbie isn't mourning the demise of his family home. "There are three criteria to justify historic preservation," he said. "This house doesn't meet any of them. It wasn't designed by a distinguished architect. It's not a distinguished design. And a historic person didn't reside there."

Colett said she's disappointed anyway. "We made every effort to encourage Mr. Higbie to save it. We offered to do a feasibility study, but he didn't want the society to go to the expense. We also showed him information about what other areas had done with similar houses."

Higbie said that his family thinks the property will be more beautiful when it has been developed with a Georgian Colonial theme. Blake said that his development plans include the preservation of as many trees as possible. "There are many big hardwood trees on the property."

Blake said other uses for the house have been considered. "It's too far off Lake Shore. The layout is not suitable for today. It's too formal. People today are looking for more comfortable layouts and the kitchen is the most important room."

Blake said from a structural viewpoint, the electrical, plumbing and heating systems are antiquated and it would not be practical to convert these. "It's not big enough for condominiums. And nobody has demonstrated to me a reason to save the house."

"The land is too valuable. That's it in a nutshell," said Higbie. Blake agreed, but added, "I'd be more than happy to sell it to someone who would like to preserve it."

"There are not many (Grosse Pointe houses) left worth saving. The true treasures are still standing — the Alger House (now the Grosse Pointe War Memorial) and the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House."

Former resident returns as morning radio host for WWWW

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

Joe Wade Formicola, FM WWWW's new morning host, is not new to Detroit. He jumped into the coveted drive-time slot Jan. 11 — coming from Raleigh, N.C., and 15 years in management. He's glad to be back on the air.

Formicola grew up in Grosse Pointe — attended St. Paul's grade school, graduated from Grosse Pointe High School (South) in 1966.

"I can say stuff like 'the foot of Alter Road' and 'seven sisters and two brothers' and 'Ford's Cove' and people will not only know what I mean, they'll say 'Hey, I haven't heard that in years.'"

"I remember when people used to pronounce Sanders — Sawnders."

Formicola claims he's one of a rare breed of radio personalities in the city who also grew up in Detroit — who remembers the old neighborhoods, the old Downtown Detroit, the old regional jokes, local buzzwords and hometown personalities. "J.P. is another one," he said.

After growing up in the Woods and graduating from Grosse Pointe High School before it was called Grosse Pointe South, he attended Ferris and Macomb Community College, worked for his dad, worked at some small town radio stations, then at stations in Houston and Raleigh. Now he's back where he started — and where he wants to be — in the Detroit area.

"Grosse Pointe was a great place to grow up. It still looks pretty good. The lawns are still perfect. You can sure spot a Grosse Pointer. They're not Yuppies, but they have a distinct style.

"I went over to South High School for the first time in 20 years and walked straight to my locker."

According to Formicola, a lot of folks went over to country music around 1979 or so. They couldn't relate to the new music and they had burned out on Barry Manilow, he said.

He presides over the microphone from 5 a.m. to 9 a.m. at WWWW-FM (106.7) five days a week. "It's a great business. It beats working for a living." In between the gut-bucket thump behind Willie Nelson's "Let It Be Me," some twangy git-tars in a soul-rending version of "I'm a Midnight Girl in a Sunset Town" and the ever-loved "Your Cheatin' Heart," Formicola does some wacky phone calls, a few requests, "some crazy stuff," he calls it.

"Purtan and I are performers within a format," he said. "W4 is a modern country music station. We play songs. We perform within guidelines and take calls. Most of the talk is less than two minutes."

He's only been on W4 for a month, and he says they're still working on the show. They're defining what works. Most of the topical stuff is from the front page of the daily newspaper. "What's happening now is my show. I prepare every morning at 4:30 a.m."

"We stay away from anything too serious. We're nicely sarcastic. We also have some music. And some talk."

Would he call what he does... winging it?

"Highly skilled, prepared winging," he said.

Dina Harding works with Formicola, doing traffic updates, birthdays, entertainment and features. Ken Warner is his producer.

After 9 a.m., he said they stay at the station and listen to the tape of the show. Then the producer pulls some promos, which are preceded by: "Did You hear what Joe Formicola said this morning?" and the sound of a pop bottle popping — a play on the 'cola' of his name.

Formicola said he didn't consciously set out to find a career in broadcasting. "I had a radio and TV class at South — it was a speech class with Mrs. Bertovick. I remember going out into the hall with a microphone and reading the news. Some girl said I sounded good. It must have been 10th- or 11th-grade."

Formicola got serious about broadcasting after a conversation with an old friend who was in radio. "He told me to go to broadcast school."

Joe Wade Formicola, a 1966 graduate of South High School, is delighted to be back home. Here he visits his alma mater — wearing a Grosse Pointe sweatshirt that his mother sent him. Formicola has returned to the Detroit area as WWWW-FM's new morning host.

He did. He went to the Specs Howard School of Broadcast Arts. "It's difficult to break into radio though," he said. "Young kids in small towns can knock on the door of a radio station and get in. But Detroit is a big competitive town. I started by driving 80 miles to Sandusky every Sunday morning to do a show for free."

Then he got a part-time job at a Port Huron station, which became full time. He was in Flint for seven years in management and as program director. Then he went to Houston and finally to Raleigh. He's also been producing freelance documentaries for public TV in North Carolina with his wife, Ellen.

"But one of my goals was to come back to do a morning show in Detroit — like J.P. and Dick Purtan."

Formicola said he doesn't compete with Purtan and McCarthy.

"Everyone has a slice of the pie. It's an honor for me to be on at the same time." He said W4 is about fifth overall in city ratings.

Formicola has advice for young people seeking careers in broadcasting. "I learned how to put a show together by doing it and working at it. By osmosis. I would say to young folks: 'Get in while you're young. If you're doing good, fine. Otherwise get out. Don't wait until you're 40 and have a wife and children to support.'"

"It's a tough business," he said. "Mentally, being on the air is tough. You're a product. You're on the shelf, like in a supermarket. You get fired a lot. I've been fired three times for no reason. It's personality or a change of station ownership."

"My goal is to own my own radio station."

cars than in school." While he was in Germany, Wright said he got interested in German cars and also bought a '39 Triumph motorcycle.

After his stint in the army was up, he enrolled at Wayne State University with the thought of majoring in Russian or Eastern European studies, "just because I had so much background."

He began to write for the student newspaper, The Daily Collegiate, and said, "One thing led to another and I wound up in the newspaper business."

Wright's father was a newspaperman who worked at the Detroit Times, and after that folded, went to work for the Melius papers downriver, from where he retired.

"I knew my father loved it, but he didn't encourage any of us," Wright said. Nor did it discourage him or his brother Larry, cartoonist for the The Detroit News. The only one in the family to "go straight," Wright said, was his sister, who is a teacher.

He began working at the Detroit Free Press as a copy boy and continued with his studies until he earned a bachelor's degree in journalism. He entered law school "mainly because I saw no hope of working days."

Wright then got a job - working days - at Automotive News and said he decided, since he had already started school, to finish. He earned a juris doctor from Wayne State, but said he never considered going into the practice of law. "I like writing for a living."

Most of his career was with Automotive News, a weekly trade paper that is the bible for car manufacturers.

He began teaching journalism classes at Wayne State in 1976. He was offered a full-time teaching position, which he accepted after arranging to freelance for The Detroit News on a regular basis.

Today Wright teaches Law of the Press and other journalism classes full time and writes a weekly column plus other automotive stories for the News and says he has the best of both worlds. "It's perfect. It's great."

One of the major benefits, he said, of speaking Russian was the opportunity to visit that country with a group of auto writers to tour the Lada plant. One of Wright's dreams is to return to the Soviet Union and motor from Moscow to Crimea.

"I did a story once on motor- ing through the United States and I hadn't realized how much fun it was to just drive around.

"I love driving," he said.

His first car, which he bought from his grandfather, was a "big and ugly" '42 Hudson, "one of the ugliest cars ever made."

Then came an old Nash and a parade of other cars.

Wright, who is a history buff, wrote "Love and Revolution: The First 101 Years of the Automobile." The just-released book is an immensely readable history of the car that covers 101 years in 101 pages. It's available at the Grosse Pointe Book Village on Kercheval and from Thirty-Three Publishing, P.O. Box 3333-W, Farmington Hills, Mich. 48333. It costs $9.95.

Besides cars, Wright is into computers - he has four at home. "It's one of my manias."

He said his spare time and his professional life are intermingled. "My hobby is playing with computers and writing and trying to keep a car on the road. A lot of things I do are fun, but are related to my work," such as going to car meets, "where you really meet some interesting people."

Wright, who lives in Grosse Pointe Park, has three children: Douglas, an accountant at Touche Ross, Judith, a computer consultant at Wayne State University, and Deborah, a freshman at Madonna College.

Fact: In Michigan four out of every five businesses are started by women.

Fact: Michigan ranks in the top five states for women-owned businesses (156,000). In 1970 women owned only 4.5 percent of the state's businesses compared to 36 percent in 1985. Women will own 50 percent of all Michigan businesses by 2000, according to projections.

Fact: Women-owned businesses have an above-average success rate. Only 21 percent of women-owned enterprises fail in their first five years compared to a 37 percent failure rate by small businesses in general.

These facts are based on data from the Bureau of Census, Internal Revenue Service, Bureau of Labor Statistics and the Michigan Department of Commerce.

There are numerous success stories of women in Grosse Pointe who, through their talent and determination, have guided their fledgling businesses to strong, healthy companies. One such business — McGovern & Urso Interiors Ltd. — was begun seven years ago by Gail M. Urso and Kathleen E. McGovern, both of Grosse Pointe Park.

The women, who have been friends for 20 years, met when they were teaching together in St. Clair Shores. Their interest in interior design became known through their numerous community activities, and people would ask them to consult on various decorating projects, which they did.

"When we decided to begin a business, it was really to be of service to people and do what we could do well and help them out," she added.

They opened for business in 1981 in a studio over the Urso garage.

"As soon as we put out the word, we were swamped immediately," Urso said. "It was not a business that started slowly."

Shortly after, it became apparent that they would have to add to their staff. And when one of their residential customers hired them to design some offices, they decided they would need an office in a business setting.

In 1984, they moved to the Globe Building downtown, becoming the historic building's first tenants. Their new offices became the model offices for the building.

"We worked with people moving in and it was a wonderful opportunity to work closely with the architect and all of the different subcontractors," Urso said.

The Globe won an award from the Construction Association of Michigan as one of the 10 best buildings in 1987.

The branching out into commercial design involved a lot of reading, research and consulting with different specialists, they said.

"We do everything," Urso said. "We have done car showrooms, lobbies for businesses and a lot of homes. One of the things we like is the variety."

The showroom they designed for Dick Seymour Cadillac Saab Volvo Olds was a challenge, McGovern said — a challenge that paid off.

There was interest in making the showroom at 3182 E. Jefferson the flagship showroom across the country. Their approach to the old building was to find out from the dealer what image he wanted to show the world and the function.

Another one of their unusual projects was an entertainment suite in the Joe Louis Arena owned by the Becker Group. Since it was being used while they were giving it a new life, they would have to clean up and cover up signs of renovation at the end of the day. They talked about hanging Christmas wreaths over unfinished walls and laying an oriental rug over a subfloor.

"There's a lot of physical nitty-gritty work, whether it's carting things or moving furniture or sometimes cleaning things," Urso said.

About a year ago, they designed two study areas for students in an unused corridor space on the second floor of one of the middle schools in Grosse Pointe.

"It was the principal and assistant principal's idea to give the kids a space to be comfortable in," Urso said. The project was financed by the PTO, she added.

The women believe their liberal arts degrees bring a wide range of disciplines to the job, like music appreciation, art appreciation and psychology. Of seven people now on staff, there is a diverse range of backgrounds — an art consultant, one with an interior design degree

Except for the two youngest employees, everyone on staff is a mother.

"We have a lot of understanding of the kinds of things a mother has to do," Urso said. "Nobody has to apologize.

"It doesn't dilute the effectiveness of the business," she added.

One project they are excited about is their invitation to design a suite of rooms for the Junior League of Detroit's designer show house.

"It's a first for us and we're very excited about it and very pleased to be selected to be part of the project," Urso said.

Their interest in interior design goes back to their early years.

"By the time I was 12, I was going to Hudson's to see the model rooms," Urso said.

"Just ask my mother how many times I rearranged my bedroom," McGovern said with a laugh.

Urso attributes the success of the business to their relationship. "We have a unique kind of situation," she said. "We're on the same wave lengths most of the time."

And she adds: "We couldn't do what we do without our staff."

Wayne education alumni plan annual event

The Wayne State University annual College of Education Alumni Recess Night will be held Saturday, March 5, at 8 p.m. at the Fairlane Holiday Inn, 5801 Southfield service drive.

Music, provided by Bridgette

Orchestra, will feature a three-piece orchestra and a vocalist. Dinner will be a choice of meat or fish. Cost is $24 each.

ton Hotel Columbus Ballroom.

Ticket cost is $15 for members and $17 for guests. Call 963-5088.

New women's group formed

The National Association of Career Women - Metro Detroit Chapter was formed in January to provide women with an opportunity to work toward promotion and career development. The new chapter will provide a forum for the exchange of ideas and experiences, support recognition of women, address and support women's issues and educate members and the public about opportunities available to women.

The chapter will hold a monthly luncheon and feature a woman speaker. Joy Messick, presenter, lecturer, author and intuitive consultant, will speak on "How to Become a Better Communicator" at the first meeting Monday, Feb. 22, from 11:30 to 1 p.m. at the Ramada Inn in Southfield. Charge for the luncheon is $15.

Officers of the new association are: President Judy Valenti, owner, Micro Services, Livonia; Vice-President Joan Cummins-Walsh, consultant, Novi; Treasurer Christine Joudain, executive director, Michigan Ophthalmological Association, Harper Woods; Secretary Helen Willis, executive director, Michigan Society of Planning Officials, Rochester.

The workshop, "Legal Considerations for Business," will feature speaker Dennis Loy, an attorney with Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone.

The workshop is free to members and $25 for non-members which includes free membership.

For more information, call 772-7888.

Leaders to address problems of aging workforce

Robert C. Stempel, president of General Motors Corp., will address a luncheon gathering of national leaders on the problems presented by an aging workforce in Detroit's Westin Hotel Thursday, March 10.

His comments will be one of the numerous presentations on the challenge presented by an older American population during the two-day conference March 10-11. Business, government, labor and educational leaders will take part in the conference "An Aging Workforce: Agenda for Action," sponsored by the U.S. Department of Labor and Wayne State University.

Nearly half of all workers in the United States will be 40 or older by the year 2000. The implication of these demographics on production and social costs will be discussed in panel discussions and presentations of potential solutions during the conference.

Other speakers include Owen F. Bieber, president of the United Auto Workers; Michigan Lieutenant Governor Martha W. Griffiths; John R. Stepp, acting deputy under secretary of the U.S. Department of Labor; and Lynn Williams, president of the United Steel Workers.

Representatives of foundations will be invited to hear scholars present proposals for studying the problems with the expectation that they will provide grants to support research.

Cost of the conference is $100 and registration is limited. For more information, contact the conference coordinator, Institute of Gerontology, Wayne State University, 710 E. Ferry, Detroit, Mich. 48202, or call 577-0278.

Michigan Women Business Owners Conference set

The fifth annual Michigan Women Business Owners Conference will be held in Flint this year March 4 and 5.

The conference, which features 35 workshops, is open to all women owning a majority interest in Michigan businesses, as well as women considering opening a business in the state. This year business trends and predictions for the 1990s will be analyzed for their impact on women business owners in the decade ahead.

In addition to workshops, the conference will feature individual appointments with purchasing agents, free consulting sessions, business skill videos and an exhibit area.

New this year are special workshops for attorneys and accountants in private practice, as well as travel/tourism firms. Also new is The Oasis, featuring health and relaxation activities.

Michigan's Woman Entrepreneur of the Year will be honored at a reception co-hosted by Touche Ross and Michigan Woman magazine.

Registration is $125 through Feb. 19, $150 through March 3, and $160 on-site. For more information, call 1-800-831-9090.

Bon Secours 'delivers' new maternity service

By Peggy O'Connor Andrzejczyk
Feature Editor

When the dust and dirt of construction clears this summer, Bon Secours Hospital will have completed work on a unique service with an aspect health care skeptics may find difficult to believe: it focuses on consumer comfort.

Bon Secours' single-room maternity service is the first in the Detroit area and one of only a handful in the state. Under the concept, women will labor, deliver, recover and receive post-partum care all in the same room, instead of being moved from room to room.

The first new room will enter service in March; a total of 12 rooms are scheduled for completion by this summer. Each of the private rooms will feature a special delivery/recovery bed. Eight private and eight semi-private conventional maternity rooms will remain on the hospital's fourth-floor unit.

According to Judy Lafata, R.N., director of women's health nursing at Bon Secours, the new rooms — nicknamed LDRPs (labor, delivery, recovery, post-partum) — satisfy a growing demand from both consumers and the nursing staff which cares for them.

"This new, single-room approach to birthing is becoming more popular throughout the United States," Lafata said. "It makes the experience more enjoyable and personalized for mother, baby and the entire family. It's also a more efficient way for the hospital staff to provide care.

"You can do anything in these rooms you can do in a regular delivery room."

More than two years ago, Bon Secours had a consultant study the feasibility of such a service. The hospital also surveyed community groups, physicians, hospital staff and patients. "The results of those studies and the fact that this is the trend the rest of the country is taking, told us we were on the right track," Lafata said.

The next step was planning the construction. The renovation is expected to cost around $1 million, Lafata explains, and includes a major rebuilding of one end of the unit into a lounge/classroom area. "Much of the rest of the renovation is technical, behind-the-scenes stuff that the average person wouldn't notice," she adds. "Like the duct work we had to have done. A delivery room is required to have so many air exchanges per hour, more than a regular room, so we had to get that up to code. We also had to take the carpet out from around the beds and replace it with tile, but leave the rest of the carpet in those rooms intact. And we had to find ways to have all the equipment we need in each room available, yet out of sight.

"So far, we're pretty pleased with how things are going. But we've been quite busy getting it rolling."

Every room on the unit will feature new decor, including fresh wallpaper and a new lounge chair for the father or other family members. Traditional delivery rooms will stay in service for Cesarean deliveries and the nursery will still care for ill babies and for all babies at times the mothers require rest.

One of the motivating factors for the decision to create the new service was the decreased length of stay for childbirth as dictated by health insurance carriers. "We had to do this to remain cost-effective. With the length of stay down to two days, we found ourselves spending most of the time moving patients and helping them readjust from one group to another," Lafata explained.

In order to prepare both the nursing staff and the public for the single-room service, Bon Secours introduced "couplet care" last October. With couplet care, a single nurse cares for both mother and baby. In the past, post-partum nurses cared for mothers while the nursery staff cared for infants.

"When we implemented couplet care, it was a major change for the nursing staff, much the same as the LDRPs will be a major change. This is going to be a big adjustment, especially for the older nurses. When you've dealt with babies all your career and suddenly you're caring for an adult as well, it's a challenge," Lafata admitted.

Bon Secours ob/gyn nurses participated in an educational program, were given exams on the competency of their teaching in different areas and are currently working in "crossover" programs with nurses in the different areas (nursery nurses with post-partum staff, etc.)

"They've come through it beautifully," Lafata said. "It's made them feel better about themselves and their careers. They're more marketable, too, which they can appreciate. But most importantly, the continuity of care is improved with one nurse taking care of both the mother and the baby."

Among the benefits the new service will bring about is a decrease in the number of post-partum infections suffered by the patient. "The patient is exposed to fewer possibilities of infection because of fewer transfers."

The cost-efficiency inherent in the new system stretches into

And Jeannie makes seven

Forget the jokes. Jim Taylor has heard them all. And yes, he knows that he now has a complete five-girl basketball team plus two reserves . . . the basketball net set up in the driveway is proof of that.

The latest addition to the Taylor team is Jeannie, the seventh daughter of Taylor and his wife, Brenda. That's baby Jeannie on mom's lap, with sisters Jennie, 12, Julie, 11, Jeannine, 10, Jaime, 9, Jeannette, 7, and Jackie, 5, gathered around. (Actually, Jim Taylor shares his Grosse Pointe Woods home with nine girls, including dog Charlie, who wore a pink bow in her hair for the photo session, but wouldn't stand still for the picture).

Alcohol and pregnancy — a dangerous mix

By George W. Morley, M.D.
President, American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists

Many experts call alcohol a drug because it hurts the functions of the brain, nervous system and heart. Generally, when people drink, their behavior changes, their speech slurs and their coordination fails. This means that the alcohol has entered their blood system.

During pregnancy, your baby receives all its oxygen and nourishment from your blood system. So, if you drink alcohol, that's the same as handing your baby a cocktail. The alcohol readily crosses the placenta to the baby, reaching its bloodstream in the same concentration as in yours.

If you get drunk, so does your baby.

Doctors know that pregnant women who drink heavily risk miscarriages and stillbirth. They also know that heavy drinking can cause harm to unborn babies who will have "fetal alcohol syndrome" (FAS), a series of alcohol related abnormalities and birth defects. These babies have small bodies and heads and never catch up to normal growth. Many have some mental retardation, are jittery and poorly coordinated, and have behavioral problems. Many have facial abnormalities and heart defects. Sadly, no amount of care after birth can correct the damage.

Even if you think you drink moderately, you may be more likely to have a miscarriage or stillbirth. You may also cause problems for your baby, such as low birth weight, hyperactivity, a lower IQ, learning difficulties, and emotional problems. And, your baby will never catch up to normal.

Scientists have been able to estimate at what stages alcohol causes specific damage. During the first trimester, alcohol can seriously damage developing organs resulting in birth defects. During the second trimester, alcohol can stunt your baby's growth and also cause you to miscarry. During the final three months, when your baby's brain is developing, alcohol can affect brain growth.

Even after birth, alcohol can harm your baby if you nurse and drink. Alcohol passes to your baby in your milk, and can cause developmental problems.

Remember, no form of alcohol is any safer than another. Beer and wine are as damaging as hard liquor.

If you plan to become pregnant, or are pregnant already, you will want to cut down and the amount you drink, and if you are unsure of how much you should drink, don't drink at all. If you have problems with your drinking, talk honestly to your doctor about your drinking habits. After all, if you don't drink, neither can your baby.

other hospital departments, she adds. "Before, every time you moved a patient you had to call housekeeping to clean each bed and room. Now, the patient comes in and undergoes every facet of delivery and the room has to be cleaned for the next patient only once."

Bon Secours, which handles around 1,900 births per year now, will also be able to increase volume without increasing staff and space. "There will not be a reduction in the nursing staff (of approximately 70), but we will be able to use our nurses more efficiently," Lafata explained.

A long-time Bon Secours employee, Lafata is thrilled about the possibilities the new system possesses. "It's great. This is like a dream come true. It allows you to be creative . . . there isn't a nurse in the city who wouldn't want to work in a system like this.

"The doctors have been very supportive. When we were working with them to find out what they'd need, one told me, 'All I need is the mother,'" Lafata said with a chuckle.

"So it's about time, I think, that a maternity service be designed with the patient and the nurse-advocate in mind. We think that this is it."

The new labor, delivery, recovery, post-partum rooms — LDRPs — will resemble the existing birthing room at Bon Secours (above), but will be larger.

Pavarotti plans in full swing

The Feb. 3 Michigan Opera Theatre's Opera Ball Committee luncheon was expected to be a fun event — taking care of business-time included — but it also turned out to be filled with surprises for the committee members and guests who attended the affair at the Ford Motor Company's World Headquarters.

First, it was announced that the Opera Ball and Luciano Pavarotti's Joe Louis Arena concert has been rescheduled to June 11 to accommodate Pavarotti's European opera contract. The Opera Ball will still take place immediately after the concert performance.

The luncheon was also the site of the unveiling of special "Pavarotti in Detroit" poster and the scheduling of a "Pavarotti Look-Alike Contest," which will take place in March.

But the best surprise was saved until last: the great tenor himself spoke directly to the assembly via a telephone hook-up, followed by an informal question and answer session for members of the press who were present.

Among those present at the event were committee members Linda Allen, Marion Bartush, Noel D'Orazio, Stephanie Ger-mack, Ruth Glancy, Melodie Scherer, Karen Schultes, Lady Jane Easton, Chrissie Zoufal, Dottie Doerer, Liz DuMouchelle, Henrietta Fridholm, Lola Graves, Harriet Herman, Mado Lie and Diane Schoenith, all of Grosse Pointe.

The board's special events advisors are Dale Austin and Sue Vititoe of Grosse Pointe. Mrs. Fridholm is an Opera Ball advisor. On the invitation/souvenir program committee are Marianne Endicott, Jan Harness and Mary Lamparter. Anne-Berit Power and MaryBeth Jagger are members of the marketing committee.

For more information on the Pavarotti performance and the Opera Ball, call the MOT at 874-7850.

A 'love-ly' day:

Longtime Grosse Pointe Farms residents Mr. and Mrs. William Schervish celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on Valentine's Day with a commemorative mass and renewal of vows at St. Paul Church in Grosse Pointe Farms.

William and Marie Schervish were honored at a reception immediately following the ceremony at Lochmoor Country Club. About 150 family members and friends attended.

The Schervishes have lived in Grosse Pointe Farms for 34 years. Mr. Schervish owned the Wm. Schervish Agency in Grosse Pointe Park for 20 years. The firm represented the Old Line Life Insurance Co. He is a founding member of the Grosse Pointe Park Business Association. His firm has been located on the Hill for the last decade.

The Schervishes are the parents of four sons, who hosted the celebration. They are: Herbert Schervish of Grosse Pointe Shores, owner and operator of Burger King outlets in the Renaissance Center and Fairlane shopping center; Thomas Schervish of Canton, Ohio, owner and operator of Burger Kings in Ohio; David Schervish of Detroit, a founding partner in the award-winning architectural firm of Schervish Vogel Merz; and Dr. Edward Schervish of Detroit, completing his residency in urologic surgery at Henry Ford Hospital.

Big chance in the 'Big Apple':

Grosse Pointe South High School and University of Michigan graduate Leigh Morris Merinoff is one excited woman these days. Merinoff opened her own show, "Sculptures," by Leigh Merinoff, Feb. 16, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Gowanus Arts Exchange in New York City.

Merinoff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Morris of Grosse Pointe Farms, did post-graduate studies at the Kansas City Art Institute and the School of Visual Arts in New York. Her sculptures have been represented in the New York Art Review and the International Sculpture Center.

Merinoff, now a resident of Tenafly, N.J., has participated in juried shows in Massachusetts, Illinois and in Michigan, including the Detroit Artists Market. She received a bachelor of fine arts degree, cum laude, from the University of Michigan in 1981.

While we're on the subject: "Midwest Landscape — Part I" will be on exhibition at the Joy Emery Gallery in Grosse Pointe Farms Feb. 25 through April 2, representing paintings by artists who live and work in Middle America. Those whose

'Bal de l'Elegance':

Beautiful 1988 ball gowns worn by women in a magnificent setting will help preserve Meadow Brook Hall historic treasures, including fashions from early days: the Matilda R. Wilson Collection.

The occasion is "Bal de l'Elegance," a black tie dinner dance scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 27, in the 100-room Tudor mansion at Oakland University, Rochester. Reservations are $200 per person and may be made by calling 370-3140. Proceeds will be used to build a $2 million permanent preservation fund to provide care and maintenance of the architectural masterpiece.

The Pastor's Corner Just another Lent

By The Rev. Jack L. Mannschreck
Associate Pastor, G.P. United Methodist Church

One particularly lazy Thursday afternoon not long ago, I sat in my office hoping to get an early start on the Lenten program. There was much to do: sermon topics and titles to compile, special speakers to contact and devotional communion services to plan. I was going to get a head start on the entire season when the intercom buzzed.

"Hello?" I answered, picking up the handpiece.
"Jack, there's a Mr. Atan here to see you," said Dorothy, our church secretary.

"Who is he?" I asked, not recognizing the name.
"A Mr. S. Atan," Dorothy answered, her voice shaking noticeably.

"Oh!" I could feel my body tense. "What's he want?"
"He wants to see YOU!" Dorothy said, her voice more demanding.

"Send him in," I surrendered and then attempted to maintain my composure. The knock at my door came much too soon and I pulled it open to find an older gentleman wearing a rather tattered suit. He was a short fellow, his thin hair combed back, his stomach protruding over his belt.

"Mr. Atan?" I asked.
"Mr. S. Atan," he corrected, then walked past, ignoring my extended hand. He slumped into a chair and rested his feet on the corner of my desk. After a pause, he spoke. "Lent is coming soon."

"I know," I replied. "I was just getting ready to..."
"I supposed you're going to have sermons about self-examination, sin and going the way of the righteous. I suppose you're going to bring heavy hitters in to speak about topics of spirituality and mortality."

"Well, we're going to have a few potluck dinners and..."
"I suppose," interrupted Mr. S. Atan, "that you're going to have special devotional communion services, an Ash Wednesday Service, a Maundy Thursday Service and Good Friday Services."

"Not to mention Easter morning," I added. I was beginning to see Mr. Atan's point.

"Don't say that word!"
"What?" I smirked. "Morning?"

"No, Easter!" Mr. S. Atan covered his mouth as though he had spoken the most vile profanity.

"I suppose you really took a beating that first Easter morning, huh?" I was grinning as my guest grunted and covered his ears.

"Look," he said, "I think you're making a bit much of this self-examination thing and besides, who has the time to go to all of those additional programs? What do you say to maybe just letting this entire season of Lent slip right by without mentioning it to anyone? What do you say we just let things roll along as normal?"

Sweat was beginning to bead on Mr. S. Atan's brow and he was looking quite pale.

"No, I would hate to disappoint our congregation," I chuckled. "They really look forward to the annual process of examining their spiritual condition. It's quite a task, but we've got to do it sometime. Say, you're not looking so good. Are you feeling all right?"

"This is not the best time of the year for me," S. Atan exclaimed.

Hancock will play at Christ Church

New York virtuoso Judith Hancock will give an organ recital at Christ Church, 61 Grosse Pointe Boulevard, next Friday, Feb. 26, at 8 p.m. An associate organist at St. Thomas Church in New York City, Hancock assists in conducting the choir, plays for various services and special events and appears as organ soloist in recital and with orchestra.

Tickets are $8 and may be obtained by calling 885-4841. A wine and cheese reception will follow the recital.

Hancock's recital will feature an array of music from various composers. The program will begin and end with works composed by French organist Marcel Dupre (Dupre was in Detroit in 1960 playing the dedication recital with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra for the installation of the Ford Auditorium organ). Music by the American composer

Leo Sowerby will be included, as well as works of Franz Liszt and J.S. Bach.

Hancock has played throughout the United States, including appearances at regional conventions of the American Guild of Organists, as well as the 1982 National Convention of the A.G.O. At the Third International Congress of Organists in Philadelphia, Hancock directed the St. Thomas Choir in concert and performed as organ soloist. She frequently appears in duo organ concerts with her husband, Gerre Hancock.

In 1983, Hancock established an ongoing series of solo recitals at St. Thomas Church in which she has played the works of Dupre, Durufle, Reger and Liszt. In 1984-85, she played four all-Bach recitals to mark the 300th anniversary of the composer's birth.

Former astronaut has a 'new mission'

A former Apollo 16 astronaut who walked on the moon more than 15 years ago will share his current walk with Jesus Christ at a three-day teaching mission Feb. 21-23 at Christ Church Grosse Pointe.

Retired Air Force General Charles Duke and his wife Doty say they believe that Christ offers "the right stuff" for living with vision, trust, hope and power in a troubled world. One of 19 astronauts selected by NASA in 1966, Duke was lunar module pilot of the Apollo 16 mission in April, 1972 and with his two colleagues, spent 71 hours on the surface of the moon. He retired from NASA in 1975 to enter private business.

Doty Duke, a native of Atlanta and mother of two grown children, acknowledged the Lord during a parish renewal in 1975. She says her life was transformed and her husband committed himself to Jesus Christ 2 1/2 years later.

Duke will make sermons at regular Sunday services at 9:15 and 11:15 a.m. Feb. 21. The Dukes will introduce themselves at the Adult Forum at 10:20 a.m. That afternoon, they will share their faith under the theme "Outerspace/Innerspace," at a 12:30 p.m. brunch in the church Undercroft. There will be a separate program for children.

That evening, Duke will show footage of the moonwalks and answer questions from local students hosted by the parish youth group in his program, "The Cosmic Question." Refreshments will be served at the 6 to 7:30 p.m. gathering.

On Monday, Feb. 22, Duke will present "Downrange Launch," a speech to a downtown business group at noon at the University Club. Doty Duke will speak at a noon "Grosse Pointe Launch" at Christ Church.

Church officers

The Women's Association of the Grosse Pointe Memorial Church installed the 1988 executive board officers, circle leaders and committee members on Jan. 19 in the Barbour Chapel. Memorial's associate pastor Dr. Stanton Wilson, presided. The executive board of the Women's Association includes, left to right, (front) Helen Meyering, Joyce Edwards and Mary Berg; (top) Hassie Secord, Caryl Kerber, Anne Bleich and Eleanor O'Brien.

Women's Association leaders are Edwards, president; Meyering, first vice president; Bleich, second vice president; Berg, recording secretary; Virginia Gajewski, corresponding secretary; Kerber, treasurer; Secord, assistant treasurer; and O'Brien, registrar. Circle co-chairs are Virginia Pehrson and Norma McCarroll. Fifty-eight women will be involved in Women's Association committees.

First English Lutheran Church installs its new officers

First English Lutheran Church installed its new officers at the Feb. 7 worship service. The officers — elected by the congregation in December — include James Miller, president; William Wessering, vice president; Jeanette Jobbitt, recording secretary; Al Bertelsen, financial secretary; Deanne Buono, treasurer; Sylvia Russell, director of the board of parish education; James Jobbitt, director of the board of social activities; Dr. Peter Passamani, director of the board of stewardship; Steven Stopin, director of the board of worship and music; Marvin Larivee, assistant director of the board of church property; Harriet Reed, assistant director of the board of women's activities; David Thomas, assistant director of the board of evangelism; Thomas Liebold, assistant director of the board of publicity; and Robert Weideman, assistant director of the board of lay ministry.

Others continuing to serve the congregation in various offices are John Mortson, Carolyn Ulmer, Shirley Headapohl, Don Ortenburger, Ronald Gay, Mary Mathison, Albert Lieder, Richard Landgraf, Roger Ulmer and Nathan Judson.

Lenten potluck

First-Bethany United Church of Christ will host a Lenten potluck dinner Friday, Feb. 26, at 6:30 p.m. at the church, 22707 Harmon in St. Clair Shores. Participants are asked to bring tableware and a dish to pass.

Following dinner, there will be a program which includes a 25-minute, narrated slide show "United in Love, Struggling for Justice," which describes the unique ministry of the Pentecostal Church of Chile.

For more information, call 779-2101.

Lenten worship at 1st English

First English Lutheran Church will conduct Lenten services on Wednesdays at 10:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. The theme for the mid-week services will be "Jesus As I Saw Him," a study of John the Apostle. Subjects of the service will be "Unselfish," Feb. 17; "Trusting," Feb. 24; "Prayerful," March 2; "Gentle," March 9; "Honest," March 16; and "Patient," March 23.

Good Friday services will be held from 1 to 2:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. on April 1.

Paul F. Keppler and Bruce E. Quatman are pastors of First English Lutheran Church, 800 Vernier Road.

plained. "This Lent thing really gets me down. Everyone tries to rid themselves of sin and evil, my two best products. You people in church really make it hard. There's always a slump in business during Lent."

"You've got nothing to be ashamed about, Mr. S. Atan," I assured him, "I mean with human rights being violated everywhere, world hunger making a comeback and now that racism is back in vogue, you're going to be a busy guy. Unfortunately, we're here to put you out of business all together."

Mr. S. Atan sat still for a moment, heaved a sigh, slowly stood and walked toward the door. I moved toward the door and opened it for him to exit. He paused and muttered, "Sure you won't reconsider?"

"Thanks, but I don't think so." He let go of another deep sigh and slowly walked toward the door.

I sat behind my desk and looked over the plans made for Lent. Same old devotional services, same sermon ideas, same potluck dinners with speakers, same pleas for self-examination and repentance. Yeah, looks like just another Lent.

Art auction

Lakeshore Optimist Club of Grosse Pointe president John Turcotte (left) and Greg Miller are getting set for the club's Art Exhibit & Auction, Friday, March 11, at the Detroit Athletic Club, 241 Madison Avenue in Detroit. Chairing the event — which includes wine, punch, and hot and cold hors d'oeuvres — is John Koski (not pictured). A preview will be held from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m., followed by the auction. There will be door prizes. Free valet parking is available.

Donation is $20 per person, $40 per couple. Proceeds will be used to benefit community organizations and activities which help the youth and needy.

AARP No. 2151

The Grosse Pointe Chapter No. 2151 of the American Association of Retired Persons held its Jan. 25 meeting at the Grosse Pointe Memorial Church. Speaker for the day was Paul Garvey, who presented information on filing 1987 income taxes, including special emphasis on recent changes regarding senior citizens.

The meeting closed with a slide presentation by representatives of Bianco Travel Agency, which will conduct a trip to the American southwest for chapter members in March. For more information, call Wilbur Baetz at 885-0625.

Five O'Clock Forum

The Five O'Clock Forum, an organization of people who meet monthly to hear interesting and thought-provoking speakers, will host an anniversary dinner dance Friday, March 4, at the Detroit Athletic Club. All proceeds will be donated to the Project Hope League, which provides medical and educational services to underdeveloped countries.

Cash bar begins at 6:30 p.m., dinner at 8 p.m. and dancing at 9. After-five attire is requested. Donation is $35 per person. Entertainment will be provided by the Twelfth Night Singers, a madrigal group with music for dancing by The Stylers.

Reservations may be made by mail to John McCormack, 327 Merriweather, Grosse Pointe Farms, 48236, or by calling "Forum," at 547-2032 before Feb. 24.

NAIM

The Macomb Chapter of NAIM (Widows and Widowers) will meet Thursday, Feb. 25, at 7:30 p.m. at the St. Dorothy Activity Building, 12255 Frazho Road, in Warren. This month's meeting features a Valentine's party with live music. Admission is $2.

For more information, call Josephine at 754-9382 or Jim at 646-2993.

Tri Delta Alumnae

All area Tri Deltas are invited to join the Detroit/Grosse Pointe alumnae at a family brunch Sunday, Feb. 28, at noon at the Lochmoor Club in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Cost is $15 for adults, $7.50 for children. A cash bar will be available. Reservations must be made by Friday, Feb. 26, to vice president Sue Hartemayer at 881-3655.

G.P. Camera Club

The Grosse Pointe Camera Club will meet Tuesday, Feb. 23, at 7:30 p.m. at Brownell Middle School, 260 Chalfonte. Bill Lorenz will present a travelogue on "America Coast to Coast." Light refreshments will be served. Visitors are welcome. Call 881-8034 for more information.

School of Government

The next meeting of The School of Government, Inc. — founded in 1940 by the late Clara Brucker of Grosse Pointe Farms — is Wednesday, Feb. 24, at noon at the University Club of Detroit. A 12:30 p.m. luncheon will be followed by a meeting at 1:30 p.m.

Featured speaker will be Diane Edgecomb, president of the Central Business District Association of Detroit. Edgecomb has been CBDA president for 10 years. Her topic will be "Ask What You Want to Know About Detroit."

The club's current president, Esther Craley, will preside. Past president and program coordinator (pro-tem) Cecelia Mason will introduce program chairman of the day Wanda Sepanski, who will present the speaker.

For reservations, call Wanda Sepanski at 822-1474 or Sally Kinnetz at 399-1698.

G.P. Tennis Singles

The Grosse Pointe Tennis Singles will meet Saturday, Feb. 20, at 7:30 p.m. for an evening of tennis and racquetball. Cost is $12 (pre-registered), $15 at the door and $6 for non-players who want to socialize. For more information, call Fritz at 646-1558.

Senior Men's Club

The Senior Men's Club of Grosse Pointe will meet Tuesday, Feb. 23, at 11 a.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. Speaker will be E. Kinney Smith, vice chairman and general counsel of the Consumers Power Company. His topic will be "CMS Energy/Consumers Power: Powering Michigan's Progress."

Senior men of the Grosse Pointe area are welcome to attend. They — and club members who have not yet made reservations for the meeting — may reserve a spot by calling Ed Boss at 886-0231 or Pete Corsiglietta at 773-0519.

Women's Economic Club

U.S. Senator and presidential candidate Paul Simon will be luncheon speaker at the Thursday, Feb. 25 meeting of the Women's Economic Club. An 11:15 a.m. press conference will be held in the Greco Room on the fourth level of the Westin Hotel in Detroit, followed by noon luncheon in the Columbus Ballroom.

Tickets are $15 for members, $17 for guests. For ticket information, call the Women's Economic Club at 963-5088.

G.P.F. sets Commodore's Ball

The Grosse Pointe Farms Boat Club will present its annual Commodore's Ball this Saturday, Feb. 20, at the Lakeland Manor. Tickets for the club's premier social event of the year are $32.50 per person.

The club will honor the 1988 bridge and board of directors at the ball. Corinne Franks is the club's first female commodore. Members are looking forward to an evening of fun, food and dancing to a variety of music.

For more information, call past commodore Gary Vasher at 885-5066.

There is something so fascinating about having summer flowers in the winter and enjoying fruits and vegetables out of season, that, since ancient times, forcing plants and building greenhouses has been developed into a quite sophisticated art.

Various methods of forcing plants have been tried over the centuries. Since the beginnings of gardening, man has been trying to outwit nature. The Romans seem to have been the first. It has been written that the Emperor Tiberius was able to have cucumbers on his table every month in the year. In the 16th century, cherries were ripened many weeks early by the interesting procedure of covering the ground around the trees with heated stones and watering the trees with hot water.

Madame de Maintenon, a century later, records that early peas were obtained by growing them in boxes which could be set outside in the daytime and brought indoors at night.

In 1619, Solomon de Caus devised a portable greenhouse made of shutters which could be set up over the fruit orchard at Michaelmas and removed at Easter, thus producing late-summer fruits in early spring.

The chief object of protection from winter weather in England in the 17th century was the tropical orange, the reigning fad among gardeners of the time, and the orangery which many gardeners added to their homes was described by John Evelyn as "a wooden tabernacle with stoves."

Some orangeries were just high rooms with big windows on the south side of the house and with extra heating devices. Insulation was created with hay or straw and double glass in the windows.

Pineapples were also very popular and the first examples of what we might consider the modern greenhouse were built to grow this exotic fruit. The 18th century was the age of Linnaeus and of a greatly increased interest in botany. Botanical gardens and greenhouses were constructed all over Europe, and to a lesser extent, in America.

One of the most spectacular of these was built by Czar Alexander of Russia. It was three parallel greenhouses each 700 feet long and connected across the ends by two more of the same length. The whole thing was heated during the long, dark Russian winter by furnaces burning mostly birch wood. Anyone who has ever tried to keep even a small building at a constant temperature for any length of time with a wood-burning furnace, will wonder why the Russian people did not have a revolution then and there.

In America by the beginning plants in ornamental jardinières. Books on interior decoration of this period recommended such tasteful ideas as training ivy to grow around picture moldings and mantels, or gave directions on the construction of a "wardian case," a sort of terrarium for growing ferns. Ferns of all kinds were very popular in the over-furnished rooms.

Even the architecture of the houses was influenced to a great degree by this enthusiasm. Bay windows were thrust out from many rooms and sun porches and many-windowed cupolas were invariably fitted with plant stands, wide sills and fancy shelves for plants.

The Victorians had an astounding repertory of plants. In fact, most of our modern house plant favorites have their roots, so to speak, in the Victorian era, when plant exploration was at its height and nurseries carried voluminous listings to satisfy their enthusiastic clients. Scented plants of any kind were popular, with jasmine and heliotrope high on the list of favorites. And of course, it is hard to imagine a Victorian parlor without its feather ferns.

The Boston fern, still a favorite house plant and one which can grow to vast proportions, was developed in the 1890s as a mutant of the sword fern. It was universally popular as was the aspidistra, an almost indestructible plant made popular by the fact that it required almost no care and almost never died.

Now is the time to bring forsythia and lilac branches into the house for forcing. What you are trying to do, of course, is to fool the plant material into thinking that it is spring. Choose branches that have fat buds and that are about the thickness of your little finger.

It is helpful to peel back a little of the bark at the base of the stem. Give the branches a good swish in cool water in the laundry tub. They will think there is a nice spring rain washing off their winter accumulation of dirt. Set the stems in several inches of water in a warm place with plenty of light and watch them develop. Never let the stems dry out and remember that the more sunlight they get, the stronger the color of the blossoms. Incidentally, some of your branches may even develop roots.

The Gardener's Shed

of the 19th century, many great estates in Boston, Philadelphia, Charleston and other places had greenhouses much like the ones we have today. By the time the Victorian era was in full swing, house plants, especially ferns and palms, had spread from the confines of the greenhouse to virtually take over the entire house.

The Victorians loved house plants. The high-ceilinged, spacious rooms of Victorian houses were much enhanced by large growing in parlors and dining rooms, drawing rooms and bedrooms, overflowing onto porches and terraces.

The craze for house plants in great profusion was reflected in many ways in Victorian life. Still life paintings featuring fruits and flowers, extravagantly flowered wallpapers and borders, display pieces of flowers made of feathers, wax or shells exhibited under glass domes, and flowered carpets, hangings, chintzes and embroideries all had their places

Cosmetic surgery is Women's Connection topic Feb. 25

Fanny A. de la Cruz, M.D., who specializes in plastic, reconstructive and hand surgery in her private practice in West Bloomfield, will discuss "Aspects of Cosmetic Surgery," at the next meeting of the Women's Connection of Grosse Pointe, Thursday, Feb. 25, at a private Grosse Pointe Club.

Born in the Philippines, de la Cruz completed her medical education at the College of Medicine in 1967. From 1967 to 1975, she remained in the Philippines to complete her residency training in general surgery at the Philippine General Hospital Medical Center. de la Cruz came to the United States, where she completed her residency training at Grace Hospital and Harper Hospital in Detroit. She completed one year of research in hand surgery with Dr. Joseph Posch and a year of fellowship in cosmetic surgery at Straith Memorial Hospital and Straith Clinic.

All are welcome to attend the event. The Women's Connection of Grosse Pointe is a woman's support and networking group composed of both professional women and those working toward entering the work force.

Reservation deadline is Monday, Feb. 22. For information or reservations, call Jean Porter at 885-8338 (evenings) or 961-5040 (days) or Carole Hinand at 884-7100 (days) or 882-9553 (evenings).

'Wayward' auditions set

Grosse Pointe Theatre will hold open auditions for its next production, "A Company of Wayward Saints" this Saturday, Feb. 20, from 2 to 5 p.m. and Sunday, Feb. 21, from 6 to 9 p.m. at GPT's rehearsal studio, 315 Fisher Road.

Exotic orchids on display

The Detroit Garden Center will present its second annual Orchid Display, Sale and Workshop this Saturday, Feb. 20, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. and Sunday, Feb. 21, from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. in the Center, located in the historic Moross House, 1460 East Jefferson, one-half mile east of the Renaissance Center.

Visitors can view an exotic collection of orchids, then listen to Ron Ciesinski of Taylor Orchids, who will give workshops on growing orchids in the home. Many varieties of orchids all in bloom -- will be for sale, and a plant will be raffled off both days.

Admission is $1. For more information, call the Garden Center at 259-6363.

ULS Alumni Association is planning a 'Night to Remember'

It'll be a time to reminisce, to help identify alumni photos or assist in finding "lost" alumni or perhaps just to sample some tidbits of University Liggett School's unique history. The occasion is Heritage Day, Monday, Feb. 29, from 7 to 9 p.m. at University Liggett School. The evening will be hosted by the ULS Alumni Association.

The school will be decorated with a photographic display highlighting events in ULS's history. All alumni, parents of current and past students, students and friends of the school are invited to enjoy the evening in the school's Cook Road dining room. Refreshments will be served and student music groups will entertain.

Participants will view a photo and memorabilia display organized by the Archives Committee of the Alumni Association. Former faculty will be on hand to reminisce. Alumni are asked to bring yearbooks, uniforms, diplomas, awards or other mementos to loan or donate to the school's archives.

ULS has a unique history because it was created from mergers of several Detroit and Grosse Pointe schools. In 1878, Detroit Home and Day School, later to be called The Liggett School, was founded by The Rev. James D. Liggett to educate the young women of Detroit. The move to its Grosse Pointe campus on Briarcliff Drive came in 1965.

Detroit University School began to educate the young men of Detroit in 1899. They occupied the Cook Road campus in Grosse Pointe in 1929.

The Grosse Pointe School, later to become the Grosse Pointe Country Day School, opened its door to both girls and boys in 1915 in a house on Roosevelt Place in Grosse Pointe. The school soon moved into more spacious accommodations on Grosse Pointe Boulevard at the current site of Grosse Pointe South High School.

Detroit University School

signed a joint operating agreement with Grosse Pointe Country Day School in 1941. Their 1954 merger resulted in the formation of a Grosse Pointe University School, with a consolidated campus at the Cook Road location.

University Liggett School was formed from a 1969 merger of The Liggett School and Grosse Pointe University School. Both campuses were retained. Today, the ULS middle school occupies the Briarcliff Drive location; the pre-kindergarten, lower and upper schools are at 1045 Cook Road.

For more information on the Feb. 29 Heritage Day, call 884-4444.

Me first

It's true that there's a first for everything because we carefully live by the precedents that have been set. We don't like history to repeat itself, so let's try and steer from diving into the history books. Let's think of being trend setters and being the leader of the pack as opposed to the follower.

It's easy to let things go on the way they are and be quite liberal, but the radical side of me would like to come out once in a while. For men it's called having fun and for women it's a lot like letting your hair down, but just for a few minutes think about these things.

- As Tom Watson is up by a stroke on the 18th hole with a 10-foot putt staring him in the face, the gallery is silenced as Watson eyes the angles and plays the shot over in his mind. As he steps to the ball and takes his practice swing the crowd is asked to remain silent. Watson then shuffles his feet closer to the ball and pulls back to release a shot. The tension builds, so just to let Watson know I'm cheering for him, I want to be the first one to yell, "Make that shot, Tom!" Think he needs that kind of support?

- I want to be the first sports editor to have a candy bar named after him.

Reggie Jackson had "Reggie" so why can't I have one? We tossed around a few names, such as FigFultons, or Fnickers, and I even thought of Babe Fulton, but that's not "first." So after several blatant attempts, it's been decided that it would be "Edi-sports," packed with plenty of adjectives, surrounded in deep rich newsprint, with a crisp coating of the chewed up baseball hat I lost in the lawn mower last summer.

- I want to be the first sports editor to be able to throw out Kirk Gibson rounding third and headed for home. Only problem is, I don't think I could crank the old arm up to fire a strike from 365 feet and our salary caps don't match.

- I want to be the first person under 250 pounds to Sumo Wrestle. I think I could tug on some other guy's belt and push him out of the ring — provided I am equipped with a tow bar attached to a four-wheeler and sturdy chain.

- I want to be the first one to tear down the flagpole at Tiger Stadium after the pennant clinching game. If they can remove goalposts from an end zone, then why can't they snap the 140-foot tall post?

- I want to be the first one to throw the first pitch in the new Tiger Stadium while JoAnne Burcar (Assistant to the Publisher at the Grosse Pointe News) is the final one to leave the old Tiger Stadium. She loves that historic structure.

- I want to be the first sports editor to have a baseball card with a pink stick of bubble gum stuck to the wrapper and an ERA of 1.09. Think that would get me an arbitration for a $1,000,000 a year?

Also on the back of that would be RBI (Really bad information), ERA (every right answer), OBP (old ball player), 2B (or not to be), AVE. (to be placed at the end of Fulton upon retirement).

- I want to be the first person to invent the perfect sport fan's package. Complete with binoculars, a flask, sunglasses, pennant, popcorn, beer, a ball, a mitt, an umbrella, and a boxing glove to shut the guy next to you up if he's rooting for the other team. This package would fit right into your pocket or wallet and with the push of a button, it is at your disposal. The only thing it wouldn't come with is tickets, but it will have Bob Uecker's phone number in it to get those nice seats for you, eh buddy.

- I want to be the first person to sink a shot from half court of the Palace for a nominal fee of $50.

- I want to be the first guy in line when Arena Football tickets go on sale.

- I want to be the first guy to see the Lions clinch the world championship before I collect on my Social Security.

- I want to be the first one to stand on the crossbar of the goal post and block the extra point attempt.

- I want to be the first one to score a touchdown without the ball — and have it count.

- I want to be the first writer in line for Billy Martin's job on July 4th. Peggy O'Connor (our previous sports editor, now as assistant editor) says that Martin will be canned on July 3.

- I want to be the first race car driver to brave the Daytona 500 course against the flow of traffic.

- I want to be the first guy to get his ballot in for the naming of the new Tiger Stadium — Folly Grounds.

Where do I sign?

Three Norsemen sort out their choices to sign on the bottom line of a football scholarship

"These kids have worked hard..." — Frank Sumbera.

By Rob Fulton
 Sports Editor

Irish eyes are definitely smiling and this time the wide-eyed grin belongs to North's Marc deManigold.

DeManigold joined two other Norsemen in signing a binding

National Letter of Intent to play collegiate football. DeManigold will be playing for Notre Dame, Dave Van Dale is headed to Western Michigan University, and Karl Schultz will take his talent to the campus of Holy Cross. All three seniors signed their full scholarships on Feb. 10 — the first day any high school player could sign according to National Collegiate Athletic Association rules.

The months of being recruited by phone calls and letters have finally ceased and now that the decisions have been made, they can begin to concentrate on what the schools have to offer.

"It's good that the recruiting is over, but I feel even better knowing I made a good decision," said Schultz. "It's relaxing, moreso than having all the phone calls stop."

Although he couldn't sign with the Irish until Feb. 10, deManigold knew that Notre Dame was the place for him as soon as the mail came over a year ago.

"I had a long term goal to play for Notre Dame," he said. I never thought they would consider me, but I wanted to go there ever since I got my first letter from them."

being able to attend school where several of his friends will go helped sway him.

"The people already there and my friends that will go there sure helped me make up my mind," he said. "Western wasn't pushy like some of the other colleges and that also made me feel comfortable. I'm really pleased that I've got a chance to go to school with some of my friends."

During the recruiting wars, they all heard promises but claimed they tried to evaluate them and establish a firm footing to stand by. DeManigold was "mesmerized" by Coach Lou Holtz's lectures and that reassured the 6-6 defensive end that Notre Dame would be home for the next four years.

"When he (Holtz) talks he backs it up," said deManigold. "When he tells you something you know you can believe it. He's a very honest and well respected man."

"It's good that the recruiting is over, but I feel even better knowing I made a good decision."

— Karl Schultz

North's Karl Schultz (sitting) is flanked by his parents Fred and Michelle as he signs his National Letter of Intent to play football at Holy Cross.

Dave Van Dale has his father Dennis look over the papers that state Dave will play football at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo this fall. Van Dale, along with Schultz and deManigold, signed on Feb. 10 — the first date any high school senior could sign a scholarship to play NCAA football.

While Holy Cross and Notre Dame are out of state, Western Michigan is in Kalamazoo and that had an influence on Van Dale's decision to play for the Broncos.

"Western is the place to be," he said. "Everybody treats everybody else the same. It's a home away from home. It's very close to home and that will give my family many opportunities to see me play."

Although there were several conditions on which the three Norsemen based their decisions, each of them was attracted for different reasons. For Schultz, Holy Cross is going to give him a personal touch among the 2,500 people on campus.

"At Purdue (one of two schools he visited) the football team was separated from the students," he said. "I didn't like that very much. At Holy Cross, everyone is mixed in together. The people there get along very well."

Being able to play football and get a quality education could be rated as the best of two worlds, but for deManigold, a third and fourth criteria helped sway him to South Bend.

"I chose Notre Dame because I wanted to grow spiritually, academically, athletically and socially," he said. "Notre Dame is the only school I know of where you can grow in all of these areas."

Van Dale, who was recruited as a defensive lineman, likes the friendly atmosphere that comes out of Western. He stated that

At Holy Cross, a division I-AA school, Schultz will play a lineman's position on the field, and off the field he will be preparing for a career in medicine.

"I want to study pre-med because I've always had an interest in the sciences," said Schultz, a 6-4, 235-pounder. "I want to fulfill all the requirements to get into medical school, but if I find something else, then maybe I'll change."

For Schultz, whose father is a detective in the City, following in similar tracks may be the way to go.

"I'd like to study criminal justice or law," said the 6-5 lineman. "I've always been interested in them both, so I'll just wait and see what happens."

DeManigold, who runs a 4.7, 40-yard dash, is interested in exploring what Notre Dame offers, but his first impression is that mechanical engineering will be the proper route to pursue.

"I like engineering," he said. "I want to get my feet on the ground and study mechanical engineering because it's a great challenge."

It's not often that a local player goes on to play collegiate football, and it's also unlikely that three players come from the same school, but it's simply a reflection of the grooming the kids have gotten on and off the field.

"These kids have worked hard for years," said North coach Frank Sumbera in an interview at the end of the season. "I'm sure they'll go on to play football at some great schools."

How right he was.

A basketball benefit!

Grosse Pointe residents John McCandless, Ben Burns and Joe Weaver took active roles in the recent benefit at the Detroit Athletic Club for Aurora Hospital, a Detroit children's psychiatric hospital.

Former Detroit Piston stars played members of the media in a basketball game. McCandless coached the media team. Burns played on the media team and Weaver was the master of ceremonies.

The event was sponsored by the Friends of Aurora, a new community-based organization dedicated to helping the hospital's young patients. This first fund-raising event raised more than $18,000 to purchase a 12 passenger van for patient transportation and patient's clothing.

North breaks South's heart

North uses 7-3 win to sweep South

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

They didn't go to the St. Clair Shores Civic Arena on Feb. 14 to exchange Valentine cards, but for one team a sugar-coated victory resulted while the other tried to pick up the pieces of a broken-heart defeat.

North (12-6-1) peppered South (10-8) 7-3 to sweep the two-game series. North beat South in their first match, 5-1.

Entering the game, North was riding a three-game winning streak and South faced a possible fourth straight loss. According to North coach Mike Manzella, the North/South rivalry means a lot, but in this case it was just another necessary clash.

"This was just another game for us," he said. "Sure we're very happy to beat South, but we're looking past this now. We want to go into the regionals with a winning streak."

While North broke open a 3-3 deadlock toward the end of the second period and into the third, South coach Tim Zimmerman watched as his team buckled.

"I think we really played well except for the final eight minutes of the third period," he said. "We played a decent game, but everything we touch lately turns to mush."

In the first matchup on Jan. 12, North's Link Bessert tucked a goal away with only 16 seconds off the clock, but this time it was South's turn to start the oil pumping. Rodney Goin laced an unassisted goal at the 12:20 mark of the first period for the Blue Devils.

"It was a big lift for the kids," said Zimmerman, who had a tough time motivating his team for the contest in January. "We were ready to play. We had no problems preparing for that at all, but we just never put them away."

At the 11:23 mark, North's Tim Young beat South's Ilya Snyder to tie the score. Bessert and Bob Poulos drew the assists as the first period ended in a 1-1 stalemate.

The small Sunday crowd saw fireworks in the middle frame as five goals were stuffed in the webbing. North went up 2-1 on Ed Barbieri's goal (Frank Lucido and Wayne Houle), but South's Bill Huntington countered, from Tim Jerome and David Hall, to tie it at 2-2 just over a minute later.

Lucido then tried to push North ahead for good with a goal from Houle, but once again, the Blue Devils wouldn't concede as Tim Jerome drilled a Rodney Goin shot past Kris Kubalak. North kept trying to pull away, and finally did in the final period, but with three minutes left in the second, Tim Young snapped the tie to leave the Norsemen a 4-3 lead at the second intermission.

"We knew we were in it still," said Zimmerman. "We were playing well, but the thing that really hurt us was our special teams."

Against the powerplay, the Blue Devils were 3-for-6 killing the penalty and only 1-for-5 when they played with a man advantage.

"Our special teams hurt us and the lack of capitalizing on scoring opportunities didn't help us any either," said Zimmerman. "With about eight minutes to go, everything went astray."

Schweitzer who gave North a 5-3 lead.

"Even though we had a two-goal lead, I told the guys that championship teams don't let up now," said Manzella, "and they didn't. They kept taking it to them."

South goaltenders Snyder and Kevin Nesler, who split time between the pipes, faced 30 shots and Kubalak faced 25.

South was still in the hunt to make a move at the 8:41 mark, but the Norsemen's Bob Beltz sent home some of South's followers with North's sixth goal. Bessert and Poulos assisted.

With the game well in hand with under 30 seconds to play, Wayne Houle lofted a shot from the blueline that grazed Snyder's glove, but trickled into the net.

"I'm happy that we got the win because it puts us in a better position to at least tie for the Metro League title," said Manzella, "but we didn't have all five guys doing the same thing. We had two or three guys going the same way, but not all of

While Manzella looks to ride a winning streak into the playoffs, Zimmerman has got to get his team back on the ice.

"The kids are very down right now," said Zimmerman. "I know it's tough to lose, but we've never lost four in a row. I don't know if they can come back."

North has a big challenge on Feb. 20 as they face league-leader Southgate Anderson on the road.

"We've got a shot to knock Anderson off and get within two points of them," said Manzella. "If we can do that, then we need a little help from the outside to tie for the championship, but we've got to beat them first."

"We weren't expected to finish any higher than third in the league, but now we've got a shot at the title," Manzella added. "We just have to get all five guys doing the same thing and hope for the best."

South plays at home Feb. 20 against Gabriel Richard.

Schweitzer accepts golf post

Michael K. Helmer, director for the Van Patrick Memorial Invitational, has announced that the post of Corporate Marketing Chair has been accepted for the second year by Grosse Pointe resident Peter Schweitzer, executive vice president manager of J. Walter Thompson/USA Detroit.

The charity golf tournament, one of the largest in the country and now in its 12th year, is the principal fund-raiser for the VPMI Cancer/Clinical Research facility at Henry Ford Hospital.

William Clay Ford will serve as honorary chairman of the event with United Technologies Automotive acting as the major sponsor, supported by Textron, Inc. and Orschein Industries as major segment sponsors.

Schweitzer, also a member of the VPMI Executive Committee, commented, "J. Walter Detroit is privileged to continue its association with the annual cancer fighting fund-raiser for Henry Ford Hospital.

"The tournament established an all time high in VPMI fund raising of $110,000 last year and our collective task is to raise the fund to an even higher total at the 1988 tournament scheduled August 1 at the Dearborn Country Club. A special invitation is being issued to the Detroit communications industry to join in support of this activity through participation in the many volunteer committees and by participation in the annual program book."

Community members wishing to provide early support for this cancer event are invited to call the Tournament Office at 876-1031.

Jayvee Norsemen win tourney

It was the first time North's junior varsity volleyball team held a tournament and it was also the first time they won it.

North defeated East Detroit, 15-2, 16-14 in the finals of the tournament that hosted six area teams.

Lisa Fleming led North with 27 service points throughout the tournament. Laurin Schultz added 21 points and Pam Thomas had 18. Fleming and Schultz also led the Lady Norsemen with 22 and 18 hits, respectively. The tandem also teamed up or 12 kills.

Jane Rice contributed heavily in the setting department with 55 sets.

Century 21 slips past K & D

In a crucial game for third place, the Century 21 Sabres managed to come from behind twice to beat K & D Construction, 5-4.

Trailing 3-1, Ian Gilroy scored on a rebound — his first since returning from a four-month lay-off — to cut the lead to 3-2. One goal later the score was knotted at 3-3, but the Sabres fell behind, 4-3.

With less than five minutes left, Mark Rajtek scored twice in a 30-second span to give the Sabres sole possession of third place.

Tony Morici and Chris Walsh added the other goals for the Sabres.

Golf show comes to Detroit

Golfers looking for the latest in golf equipment, new golf vacation ideas and answers to questions on how to improve their golf game will find it all at the 1988 Metro-Detroit Golf Show.

Golfers will be treated to a free "Golf Analysis by Sony," a revolutionary technic that will analyze your swing. While attending, you will see the latest ideas in golf equipment and fashions, you'll meet and get answers from top PGA golf professionals representing major resorts from around the nation. Hundreds of prizes, including several golf resort vacation packages, will be given away over the two-day period.

The 1988 Metro-Detroit Golf Show is sponsored by RSG Publishing, Inc. of Detroit, publishers of the Michigan Golfers Map & Guide for the past eight years, and Great Lakes Golfers Travel Guide and the Tee Times Report.

Regardless of skill level, every golfer will come away with information and ideas on how to get more enjoyment from the upcoming 1988 golf season.

The golf show will take place on Saturday and Sunday, March 19-20 at the Novi Hilton on Haggerty Road and 8 Mile.

The show will run from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and a $4 admission fee is required. For more information, call 582-8860.

Center Ice in the GPHA

Bantam Division

Pro Chiefs-Raiders

Chief netminders Brian Dennis and Greg Semack combined for a 6-0 shutout over the Raiders of St. Clair Shores.

Dan Burau gained a hat trick on assists from Jason Bucko (2), Blake Crawford (2), and Brad Hea. Crawford tallied once himself and set up Ray Roxas' goal. Paul Cavazos closed the scoring for the Chiefs.

Dale Ihrie played a strong left wing by delivering timely checks and working the corners.

Capitals

The G.P. Bantam Capitals earned a bid in the District Championship (Tuesday night) by avenging an earlier loss to the Warren team.

The Capitals opened the playoffs with a disappointing 5-0 loss to Warren.

The Caps rebounded and eliminated the St. Clair Shores Raiders with a 4-1 score. Juan Ganum led the way with a hat trick and Gabe Benvenuto tallied the fourth goal. Assists went to Derek Smith and Bob Chae.

The next game was a defensive struggle between the Caps and USA Blackhawks in which the Caps' Brian Michalak snapped a scoreless tie with three minutes left in the game to give the Caps the 1-0 win.

Chris Paul performed well in net to earn the win. Assisting on the goal were Brian Connellan and Dan LeFebvre.

The Caps then took on the Royal Oak Entry and took a 1-0 overtime win. The defensive crew of Dan Grundman, Jeff Giacobbe, Bill Wilson and Juan Ganum played another outstanding game. Juan Ganum tucked away the winning goal on a carom from Dino Ricci. Paul was superb in net.

In their second meeting with the Warren team, the Caps skated to a 3-2 win. This victory assured the Caps of playing in the championship game against Warren. The Caps got goals from Brian Michalak, Derek Smith and Kevin McCracken. Dino Ricci, Brian Connellan and Smith earned assists.

In the opening round of the Little Caesars playoffs, the Capitals met the G.P. Chiefs. After falling behind 2-0, the Caps mounted a comeback to win, 5-3.

Juan Ganum got the Caps started by scoring the first of his three goals. Michalak and Smith chipped in with a goal each, and Grundman, Ricci, Michalak and LeFebvre assisted.

Pee Wee

USA-Lions

The British Lions lost to USA, 7-1. Erik Lindsay scored for the Lions on a pass from Scott Cook.

British Lions-SCS Rebels

Geoff Everham opened the scoring for the Lions with Cook assisting as the Lions went on to beat the Rebels, 5-3.

On goals from Mormino and Allen, the Rebels took the lead, but Erich Ross countered for the Lions with the assist going to Beau Dossin. Mormino scored again for the Rebels to take a 3-2 lead, but Jesse Davis knotted the score on a pass from Teddy Hanawalt. Erik Lindsay put the Lions ahead and Matt Smith sealed the win with a late goal. Hanawalt and Dossin drew the assists.

Scott Wiczorkowski and Jon-Paul Sweda shared the net duties. Ryan McCartney, John Ricci, Brian Connellan and Smith earned assists.

Lions-Red Wings

Davis, Lindsay (2) and Everham scored for the Lions as they rolled up a 4-1 win. Wiczorkowski and Lindsay drew assists.

Chris Gain, from Brad Marshall, was the only goal the Wings could get past the goal-tending combination of Wiczorkowski and Sweda. Kenny McIntyre played well in goal for the Wings. Gary Olson and Wise skated well for the Lions, as did T.R. Youngblood and Garrett Ryan for the Wings.

Playoffs

The Lions fell 3-2 to Royal Oak in the first game of the district playoffs.

Geoff Everham tied the score at 1-1 in the second period and then Matt Smith put the Lions up 2-1 with help from Everham and Hanawalt. Wiczorkowski and Sweda once again shared time between the pipes.

The Lions bounced right back against Fraser with a 6-1 win.

Red Wings-Rebels

Jay Berger's goal, assisted by Alex Olmstead, was all the Red Wings needed to top the Rebels, 1-0. Kenny McIntyre earned the shutout in goal. Matt Swikowski, Brad Marshall, Kip Gotfredson and Jeff Adams played well for the Wings.

Mite Division

With goalie Sarke Solomon making acrobatic saves, the Detroit Monthly Cougars silenced the Top Guns, 2-1 in playoff action.

Solomon was helped by Joey Baratta and Reed Creedon's goals. Solomon also assisted on Creedon's goal. Mark Kujawski and David Kerwin drew assists. Other Cougars turning in strong performances were John Lawrence, Nicky Allen, Angelo Lapan and R.J. Wolney.

Brian Fehling scored for the Top Guns and Joseph Wernet assisted.

Maple Leafs-Rebels

The Maple Leafs tied the Fraser Rebels, 1-1. Geoff Kimmel put the lone goal in the net on a pass from Mike Lahey. Chuck Schervish was tough in net and Colin Darke, Mike Shepard and Tom Waldron played well.

Leafs-Shammies

Schervish earned another shutout as the Leafs beat the Shammies, 4-0. Greg Ryan, assisted by Jay Ricci, and Paul Megler tallied once each. Joey Lucido finished the scoring with two goals assisted by Mike Shepard and captain David Collins. Frank Zimmer, Kevin Kasiborski and Geoff Kimmel played well.

Blades-Blazers

L. Hudson and J. Napierkowski scored to beat the Blades, 2-1. Assisting for the Blades were Allard and Merriweather.

Blades-Bulldogs

Kit Meade's Proform Blades skated to a 5-1 win over the Bulldogs.

Leo Salvaggio came out of his scoring slump by scoring twice; once unassisted and the other assisted by Rocky Bryant. Salvaggio also assisted Browe Merriweather. Ev Meade scored on a pass from Rabbani, while Gibson scored on an assist from Hudson.

Blades-Rebels

Despite the outstanding goal-tending of Behi Rabbani, the Blades salvaged a 3-3 tie with the Fraser Rebels.

Hudson and Platt assisted Allard, while Merriweather scored unassisted. Brad Klein scored on a nice pass from Mat Westley.

Blades-Blazers

Called upon to fill in for the absent Rabbani, Ev Meade played his first game in net and did a fine job to earn the 2-0 win over the Blazers.

Hudson scored unassisted as did Merriweather.

Blades-Shammies

Allard and Hudson scored as the Blades won, 2-0. Bryant, Gibson and Allard were tough on defense and Scott and Westley again skated well.

Basketball team romps, 103-34

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

With another lopsided victory, the University Liggett School Knights have got to be wondering why they are in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference.

After pummeling Plymouth Christian 103-34 in a short week's work, the Knights moved to 12-1 overall and remained atop the MIAC at 8-0.

"A couple times a year isn't bad," said ULS coach Chuck Wright about winning by such landslide margins, "but in nine of our first 13 games that's been the case."

ULS led 41-4 at the end of eight minutes, but Plymouth Christian didn't try to stall as they continued to push the Knights. Wright went to the bench after his starters played only 11 minutes and got two good performances from Dike Ajiri and Anthony Abiragi. Abiragi hit for 11 and Ajiri poured in 10.

"They (Plymouth Christian) kept pressing us and shooting three-pointers," said Wright. "They didn't let up so we didn't either. It seemed like they didn't care if we scored 100 points because they kept shooting and pressing us. They didn't try to slow things down."

Kevin Crociata, a sophomore guard, banked in 14 points in his 11 minutes of playing time for the Knights.

ULS has been trying to escape the weak MIAC for a few years now, and they will get the opportunity to test some independent waters in 1988-89.

"It looks like we will not be in the league next year," said Wright. "We'll probably be going independent. Doing that, we should meet some stiffer competition."

ULS will travel to Greenhills Friday, Feb. 19.

Hockey

Down at Joe Louis Arena, the ULS ice hockey team handed Alen Park Cabrini a 6-2 defeat on the Detroit Red Wings' home ice.

ULS (13-6-3) got two goals each from Doug Wood and Shannon Nowowiecki, and Greg Petrilli and Ted Evans tallied once each. Wood, Nowowiecki (2), Gordie Maitland and Charlie Roby drew assists. Steve Stoyka, who turned back 19 shots on goal, also assisted on one of Nowowiecki's goals.

"It was a lot of fun for the guys to play at Joe Louis," said ULS coach John Fowler. "We were able to go through the lockers and everything, so it was really a nice opportunity. It was a lot of fun for them to play on that surface."

ULS trailed 1-0 early, but three unanswered goals gave them the lead.

"The kids were really fired up to play there and it carried over onto the ice," said Fowler.

On the road one day later at Detroit Country Day School, the Knights were dumped, 5-2.

"We played them pretty evenly except for the score," said Fowler.

ULS faced a reachable 1-0 deficit at the end of one period, but two quick Country Day goals pushed that possibility aside.

"Those two goals really hurt us," said Fowler. "We just didn't recover."

Jon Davis, from Bill Jewett and Nowowiecki, and Mike Coello, from Ross Kogel and Wood, provided the Knights' scoring threat and Stoyka played well by misdirecting 28 of 33 shots.

ULS will travel to Wisconsin for a two-day tournament this weekend.

Everything is going well for the Lady Knights as they enjoy a five-game winning streak in one week.

Coach Shelly Owens' squad knocked off The Academy of the Sacred Heart, 15-8, 15-3. Two days later they took two games from Warren Bethesda Christian, 16-14, 15-6 and 15-11, 15-11.

In the first game, Ali Frederick led the team with five kill-spikes, followed by Sylvia Ristic, Diann Imbriaco and Brooke Hohmeyer with three each.

During the second game, Imbriaco led the kills, while setter Sara Khelokian did an excellent job at the net. Frederick and Shirley Kim had no missed serves.

Earlier in the week, ULS took two straight over Huron Valley Lutheran, 15-4, 15-6 and 15-8, 15-1 as Imbriaco had seven kills. Katrina Linthorst Homan led the team in intensity and spirit.

ULS will host Oakland Christian in a MIAC game today and will travel to Cranbrook Kingswood on Feb. 23.

Three wrestlers qualify for regionals

By John Guibord
Special Writer

Dave Van Dale, John Shefferly and William Lewis will all represent the North Norsemen wrestling team in the individual regionals on Feb. 20.

At Notre Dame on Feb. 13, Lewis lost to Dan Caverly of Royal Oak Kimball on an overtime decision by the referee in the 145-pound division. The second place finish may have disheartened Lewis somewhat, but he will still travel to the regionals because the top four finishers from each weight class qualify.

Van Dale, wrestling at the heavyweight slot, finished first in the pre-districts, but took a third in the districts. John Shefferly will wrestle in the regional tournament at 126 pounds after finishing third at Notre Dame.

Swimming

Victor Perez took first place for the tankers in the 500 freestyle, while Greg Cooksey took second in the 100 backstroke. Jeff Williams, Greg Cooksey, Loumanis and Perez teamed up for a second place in the 400 freestyle relay.

In other fine performances, Bob Jara finished third in the diving competition and Williams finished third in the 100 butterfly. Perez was strong in the 200 freestyle as he touched third and Peter Ellison was fifth in the 100 backstroke.

John Schmaltz was first in the 500 freestyle and Drew Dungan was first in the 100 freestyle.

Volleyball

In split sets, the Lady Norsemen were defeated by the Warren Woods-Tower Titans, 11-15, 15-7, 16-19.

In the words of Coach Judy Richards, "It was a tough loss, but North played very well in a great team effort."

Basketball

Romeo waltzed into North with an undefeated White Division record of 4-0, but the Norsemen (now 3-2 in the league) romped to a 69-50 win.

Steve Szymanski led the way for Coach George Olman's squad with 15 points. Brian Peltz and Russell Rice each popped for 11 points and Kirk Lowry laced 10 points through the netting.

North will travel to Woods-Tower on Feb. 19 and Lake Shore on Feb. 23.

Blue Devils continue to be carried by a sturdy defense

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

For the first time in just under two months, Coach George Petrouleas had 10 guys in uniform for a basketball game and it paid off as the Blue Devils routed Port Huron Northern, 62-46.

With Andy Ament back from a two-month layoff due to an emergency appendectomy operation, Petrouleas' squad got a big lift to advance to 10-5 overall and 7-2 in the Eastern Michigan League with five games remaining on the schedule.

"We really played well defensively," said Petrouleas. "I think everyone felt a lot more at ease knowing we are getting some of our injured players back."

South has overcome plenty of injuries to compile an impressive record, and according to Petrouleas, the one thing that has kept them above water has been the defense.

"We were pretty dominant again defensively," he said. "We have stressed defense all season long and that's what has kept us alive. We have kept our opponents to under 50 points a game and if you can do that to the opponent on the high school level, you're going to win many games."

Chris Gramling, filling in for the injured Joe Caldwell (knee) continued to find the bottom of the well as he hit for 13 points. Ament contributed 10 points to go with seven rebounds and Lance Harding hit for 10.

"We were pretty dominant defensively and that frustrated them a bit," said Petrouleas. "We did a lot of things right."

South shot 61 percent (19-31) from the free throw line and 43 percent (21-49) from the field.

South will make up the cancelled game with Roseville on Feb. 23 on the road at 7:30 p.m. They will host East Detroit on Feb. 19.

Swimming

Ten straight and counting. Fred Michalik's swim team is now 10-0 after thrashing Ann Arbor Pioneer, 105-66. The 200 medley relay team of T. Stedem, Smith, Mello and Wilson took first as did B. Thompson in the 200 freestyle. B. Thompson also took a first in the 100 freestyle and P. Wilson was first in the 100 backstroke. C. Nevison was first in the 100 breaststroke and Ken McLean was first in the diving competition.

Volleyball

A 5-4 start in the E.M.L. is not what Coach Cindy Sharpe anticipated, but now she's faced with the task of trying to salvage what may be left.

South was defeated by Port Huron Northern, 10-15, 11-15 and according to Sharpe it shouldn't have happened.

"We totally self-destructed," she said. "Out of their 30 points, they earned eight of them. I'm upset, not angry. We're having a lot of problems on working as a team right now and we've got to clear that up before we can move on."

Chris Schulte led the Lady Devils with 8 kills and Traci Lee notched three, but it obviously wasn't enough.

"When someone makes a mistake, they seem to shrivel up," said Sharpe. "They act like they're the only one out there and they're not. We have got to get back to team play and dedication."

South is on the road at East Detroit Feb. 19.

Effects of excesses

There is a myriad of vitamins and minerals being sold on the market today.

It's rumored that we can cure colds, increase virility, eliminate depression and get rid of acne by megadosing with vitamins. With these offered hopes, it's no wonder that many people believe the more vitamins and minerals they get, the healthier they will be.

Unfortunately, this is not always the case. Incidences of vitamins and mineral toxicity have been reported.

The following paragraphs list nutrients, vitamins and minerals, followed by the effects of excesses:

NUTRIENTS

Carbohydrate — weight gain and obesity.

Fat — increased levels of triglycerides and cholesterol in the blood, accumulation of adipose tissue, weight gain and obesity.

VITAMINS

Vitamin D — poor growth, weight loss, vomiting, poor appetite, calcium deposition in soft tissues.

Vitamin E — None reported.

Ascorbic Acid — increased requirement for Vitamin C, kidney stones, interference with anticoagulant therapy and glycosuric tests.

Niacin — flushing, burning and tingling around neck and hands.

Riboflavin, Thiamin, Folicin — none reported.

B6 — abnormal neurobehavioral effects.

B12 — none reported.

MINERALS

Calcium — heart irregularities.

Phosphorous — erosion of jaw.

Iodine — depressed thyroid activity.

Iron — cirrhosis of liver, iron deposited in tissue, may interfere with immune system.

Magnesium — diarrhea.

Zinc — fever, nausea, vomiting, diarrhea.

Selenium — discolored teeth.

It is up to you, as the consumer, to know the role of vitamins and minerals, their recommended levels of intake, and the possibility of vitamin and mineral toxicity.

It is the hope of health professionals that in the future, the public will become aware of problems associated with excessive vitamin-mineral intake and not look to those chemicals as means of achieving super health. Life should not be a matter of excesses, but rather moderation.

Skiing across, not down

Cross-country skiing is more than an adventure

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

Many people enjoy the ventures of downhill skiing, but for those who don't, cross country skiing seems to be the answer.

We are led to believe that only good, healthy things are related to cross-country skiing, but according to Dr. Raymond Christensen, chief of cardiology at St. John Hospital, the strains it puts on the heart can be harmful.

"Cross country skiing is very strenuous on the cardiovascular system," said Christensen. "It is healthy, but it shouldn't be performed by people with chronic, or even a relative heart problem before being checked by a physician."

In a two-fold explanation about the possible harm rendered to cross-country skiers, Christensen cited the exertion of energy as being the most damaging.

"It takes a great amount of energy to ski," he said. "People don't realize how much energy the body must build up in order to perform cross country skiing. A lot of strain is applied to the heart, and for people who are not in shape, it is not advisable to ski."

Because skiing is done under certain winter conditions, the inclement weather that brutally hits Michigan is the number two reason when considering whether or not you do ski.

"Doing it (cross country skiing) in inclement weather causes vasoconstriction," he said. "In other words, it causes the blood vessels to constrict, therefore the blood does not pass through the body as efficiently."

Because cross country skiers must generate their own speed, many muscles are put to use. An amateur is not aware of the flexing and motion of the body and may be stricken with some serious damage.

"If you haven't cross country skied and go out and try to do it, you have to be aware of the muscles it takes to ski," said Christensen. "If you are not educated on the proper technique, you may cause some serious strains to the muscles it takes. Keep in mind, that the heart is a muscle also."

For every reason to avoid cross country skiing, there is a beneficial one as well.

"Cross country skiing is extremely good exercise for the entire body," said Christensen. "It keeps the muscles well toned, plus you get out and enjoy the snow and some scenic courses in the woodlands."

Enjoying some of the more scenic routes is nice, but trying to keep warm and avoid over-dressing is essential also. It is recommended that a skier wear only thin layers of clothing, close to the body because an excessive amount is not necessary.

"It's not a good idea to wear a lot of layers of clothing because it's not necessary," said Christensen. "You only need something that will break the wind. You only need a thin layer that will allow the body heat to stay close to the body."

Cross country skiing is a popular winter sport that increases fitness for skiers as well as gives them the opportunity to enjoy the outdoors. It puts a lot of strain on the cardiovascular system, but gradually getting fit to cross country ski could prevent any possible injuries or strains.

"Cross country skiing is a fabulous recreational sport," said Christensen. "If people are careful and take precautions, it can be healthy. If not, then there are many things that could happen. If done correctly, it's one of the greatest winter activities."

Lifelines to the heart

"The preservation of health is a duty. Few seem conscious that there is such a thing as physical morality," said Herbert Spencer, as quoted in "Education."

Heavy words by Mr. Spencer! How many of us have thought of our health as a moral obligation? For many of us, good health seems more like a random given gift — some are blessed with it, while others suffer illness for no apparent reason. There are illnesses that we do not have control over, but many of today's health problems are a direct result of how we have been treating ourselves, and can be successfully minimized if not completely avoided.

February, dreary February, has been enlivened with the celebration of Valentine's Day, a day we set aside to say how much we love those important people in our lives, but often forget to tell them. February has also been designated as National Heart Month; a time to evaluate how we are treating our own hearts, and how we can improve that care.

The heart triangle

No, this is not a soap opera about how Mary loves John but John loves Martha, and Martha doesn't even know John exists. Rather, it is the story of how well-balanced the three major parts of our being must be balanced in order to enjoy a healthy heart. All three influence the quality of our lives.

The Physical Heart

The heart is a hollow, muscular organ that lies between the lungs and is about the size of a fist. The heart consists of two pumps and is separated into four chambers by walls known as septums. The upper two chambers, the right and left atria, are connected to the lower right and left ventricles by narrow openings controlled by one-way valves that allow blood to pass from atrium to ventricle. The atria receive blood and the ventricles pump blood away from the heart.

According to the American Medical Association, the average heart beats 70 to 80 times per minute, while pumping 2 to 2 1/2 ounces of blood with each beat. During a typical day when the heart is not overtaxed from prolonged work or severe stress, it pumps about 2,000 gallons of blood at six quarts per minute. When unusual demands are made, it can dramatically increase its output in a matter of seconds, pumping as much as 36 quarts per minute!

With such demands on the heart and because of the integral part it plays in the life of man, keeping it in optimum condition should have top priority. We now know, that what we eat, high blood pressure, smoking and a sedentary lifestyle all play a vital role in the health of our hearts.

Limiting our saturated fat consumption and inherent cholesterol intake, maintaining a healthy weight for our particular height and bone structure, not smoking, and incorporating an exercise program into our daily life patterns, will help insure a healthier heart.

The emotional heart

as divorce or death of a loved one, as taking the greatest stress toll, a University of Berkley study suggests otherwise. Research conducted by Richard Lazarus indicates that it may be the small everyday stresses, like being stuck in traffic or breaking a shoelace, that produce undue stress and have the greatest impact on our health. It was observed that people develop coping mechanisms to deal with the major crisis, while the day-to-day hassles continually build up and have a direct impact on emotions and health.

The good news is that unlike major life changes that can't be avoided, action can be taken to reduce the daily wear and tear. Situations can be avoided or outlets found, such as dealing with angering events instead of letting them get out of control. And maybe, most importantly, taking time to relax and "center ourselves back down."

It is interesting to note that when we are faced with a major crisis in our lives, we often have no qualms about seeking outside help to enable us to cope. All of us have an abundance of inner strength and creativity in helping us get through the minor vexations as well. By setting aside 15 minutes each day to relax and daydream, we can momentarily escape from the daily pressures, and then return to better cope with those stress causing situations.

The spiritual heart

The intricate design of the heart, its constant activity and the important role it plays in the life of man are indicative of its miraculous nature. Artificial reproduction of the heart continues to fascinate and challenge science's capabilities, attempts to duplicate it have fallen far short of perfection.

The miracle of the heart is overwhelming, considering the abuse and neglect we heap upon it. It is important to remember, that along with improving our physical and emotional well-being, we must also give time and attention to our spiritual heart as well. The times we live in can be difficult, to say the least. We are bombarded with global problems, and can often feel hopeless and despairing. We need to make time for periods of solitude and contemplation.

If we experience a constant nagging in ourselves, it may be a time to reflect on what we can do to change that in our lives that is destructive or no longer meaningful.

We are responsible for the care and keeping of our hearts — to eat wisely, maintain a healthy body weight, to exercise, and to provide the heart with a spiritual environment that nurtures.

St. Patrick's Day starts with run

Detroit's first major run of 1988, a four-mile sprint through Detroit, has been scheduled as a kickoff to the annual St. Patrick's Day Parade, Sunday, March 13.

Sanctioned by the Athletic Congress, the run will be conducted by the Motor City Striders. Sponsors are DBD (Miller Lite Distributors) and the Fraternal Order of United Irishmen.

Proceeds from the run will be donated to the St. Patrick Senior Citizen Food Program, an ongoing benefit that serves thousands of meals each year to senior citizens in the Cass Corridor.

Pre-entry fee, payable by March 7, is $7. Entries will also be accepted at the starting line at Tiger Stadium from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. before the race. The fee is then $10.

The run begins at 1 p.m. and the parade follows at 2 p.m. and all entrants will receive a commemorative St. Patrick's Parade Run T-shirt.

Awards will be presented immediately after the last runner finishes. Lite mirror plaques will be given to the top five male and female runner and medals will be given to the first 150 men and 100 women finishers. All finishers will receive certificates.

The race starts at Tiger Stadium, will wind through downtown Detroit and finish up along the parade route down Michigan Avenue.

The St. Patrick's Parade is a traditional event enjoyed by Detroit's Irish families for over 25 years. Parade highlights include floats, marching bands, bagpipes and drum corps, clowns, horses and appearances by local prominent Irish politicians and celebrities.

"For over a quarter of a century the Irish community has enthusiastically planned and attended the St. Patrick's Parade as a sort of welcome to spring and precelebration for St. Patrick's Day," said Ed Neubacher, president of the United Irish Societies, which organizes the parade. "This year, with our sixth annual run, we hope to attract more of our non-Irish neighbors and get them to come downtown to share the fun. It's really a great day for the whole family."

Official entry blanks for the run may be obtained from most Irish pubs in the metropolitan area or by contacting the race director at 10144 Lincoln, Huntington Woods, Mich. 48070. You may also call 544-9099 for more information.

Great performances by Nicholson, Streep in 'Ironweed'

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

Jack Nicholson and Meryl Streep together on film is like chocolate and caramel together in a candy bar — a sweet combination you can't help but enjoy. It's no wonder then that these two stars of celestial Hollywood are pooling their talents for the second time in three years.

Film

In 1986, they co-starred in "Heartburn," a contemporary drama about marital infidelity. In "Ironweed," the subject matter is a little more philosophical, the themes a little darker. And while Streep was the anchor of "Heartburn," there is no doubt that Nicholson carries the weight of "Ironweed."

Based on William Kennedy's

Pulitzer Prize-winning best-seller, "Ironweed" deals with affairs of the head more than affairs of the heart. It probes the past to answer questions about a man who has fallen upon hard times. And all the while, it gives an identity to the subculture of the street — those nameless faces huddled in the poverty of mediocrity.

At once a social commentary and a character study, the film tracks the life of Francis Phelan (Nicholson) through flashback. It also documents the banality of his day-to-day life, including his friendship with Helen Archer (Streep), an ex-pianist. These two portraits ultimately merge to give the whole picture of a deeply thoughtful, if not slightly disturbed, person.

Our first physical impression of Phelan is not much different from our last — ragged clothes, dirty hair, stubby beard, two pieces of worn leather he calls

bany, there is little for an ex-major league baseball player to do. Jobs are scarce. So is money.

Helen Archer (Meryl Streep) and Francis Phelan (Jack Nicholson) in a scene from "Ironweed."

And in such a hostile environment, you either confront yourself or you go crazy.

Phelan is somewhere in between.

He's running away from the future and running into his past, which is filled with memories of those he's loved, those he's hated, even those he's killed. Phelan is not evil though, just confused. A lifetime ago, he accidentally killed his 13-day-old son by dropping him on the floor. Unable to bear the guilt of his alcohol-induced mistake, Phelan ran away, leaving his wife and two children to fend for themselves.

Now, 22 years later, his past is haunting him. The ghosts of his mistakes follow him like a shadow, destroying any hope he has of salvaging anything worthwhile from life. Not that he doesn't have chances; one day when he visits home to explain things, his wife extends an invitation to stay permanently. He declines.

It's not that he doesn't have the heart to be a loveable person, either; every time he gets money, he uses it to buy things for his beloved Helen. He may be gruff with Helen at times, but it's obvious he'd be nothing without her.

At 2 1/2 hours, the movie is often slow and deliberate. The running time and visceral elements of the piece completely bury viewers in the world of its characters. We feel a strong sense of pathos when Helen wanders from place to place, here trying to stay warm, there trying to force down some food, everywhere trying to find diversion from her sorrows and pains. At times, the intensity of the suffering becomes almost unbearable. That's fitting, since that's what the characters are feeling too.

Still, "Ironweed" is more than just the filmic equivalent of a barbiturate. Life may be unkind to Phelan and his cohorts, but their dreams and aspirations never disappear. A particularly poignant sequence at a nightclub admirably demonstrates this.

"Ironweed" is a movie for those who love great performances. In addition to the expected brilliant readings from Streep and Nicholson, film newcomer Tom Waits holds his own with the stars. As a dying friend of Phelan, Waits provides credible balance to his scenes — a balance of humor and of character insight.

At first glance, you'd say Nicholson and Streep are about as far out of character as they can be, playing a bum and an alcoholic, respectively. But then you remember what fine character actors these two are, and that little work on either of their resumes has been of the glitter and glamour variety. For the sake of serious moviegoers everywhere, let's hope they keep it that way.

John Hughes captures new audience with baby movie

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

John Hughes captured an audience with "Sixteen Candles," "The Breakfast Club," "Pretty In Pink" and "Ferris Bueller's Day Off." He brought to those films an understanding of young people's problems and a liberal dose of humor that made them fun to watch.

Nor was interest in those films confined to a young audience. Older viewers enjoyed them too because they contained bits and parts that sent them back to their own youth.

The years pass and the young people in those movies, in the logical progression of time, are now young adults.

And so in "She's Having a Baby" we meet Jake Briggs (Kevin Bacon) sitting outside a church with his pal, Russ (William Windom), pondering whether he should show up for his wedding. Love wins out and Jake decides to go through with his marriage to Kristy (Elizabeth McGovern), his childhood sweetheart.

Reality is a challenge. Neither one of them is ready for the adjustment.

Jake has a difficult time making the adjustment from carefree youth to responsible adulthood. He is frustrated at every turn. He wants to write a novel but can't. He would like to have an affair with a model at the agency, but is not sure he could handle the situation.

Bonstelle to premiere play

"The Broken Calabash," the American premiere of a new play by a Nigerian playwright Tess Osonye Akaeke Onwueme, opens at Wayne State University's Bonstelle Theatre Friday, March 4, at 8 p.m. Performances continue for two weekends, Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. and Sundays at 2 p.m., closing March 13.

Set against the backdrop of a colorful native festival, this contemporary drama reflects the tensions that exist between modern Western culture and native African tradition. Festival turns into tragedy when a free-spirited young woman, Ona, rebels against a decadent and dying custom and the wishes of her family.

"The Broken Calabash" is directed by Von. H. Washington, who recently directed "The Dresser" at the Hillberry Theatre and "Tamer of Horses" at the Attic Theatre.

The cast is headed by Gloria Henry as Ona, Augustus Williamson as her father, Michelle D. Royston and Brent Davin Vance.

Costume design is by S.Q. Campbell, scene design by Sharon Yesh, lighting by Mark Dean, choreography by Regina Bel-Dalley, and musical direction by Calvin Andre McClinton.

For information and tickets, call 477-2960. Door sale at the Bonstelle Theatre, 3424 Woodward, begins one hour before curtain. For group rates and reservations, call 577-3010.

To add insult to injury Kristy decides to go off the pill and Jake's ego gets another jolt when the report comes back that it is his fault that she can't get pregnant.

With help from modern medical technology, however, Jake becomes a father.

The story could be any young couple's story of beginning life together. It could well have been Hughes' life. Like the characters in the film, he married his high school girlfriend when he was 20 and she was 19. He dropped out of the University of Arizona's grad school to move into a Chicago suburb and worked in an ad agency there. It is likely that this strong identification with the story gives the film an immediacy of real life experience.

Film

Bacon is truly believable as Jake. His youthful appearance makes it easy to accept his juvenile behavior. He looks about 16.

McGovern doesn't have much input in the film beyond playing the role of a happy, well-organized wife until the last segment when she takes over in a climactic childbirth scene.

The film is not without humor and much of it comes from satire.

Borrowing from Woody Allen, Hughes sends his boy off into fantasyland whenever things get out of control.

In one segment, we see Jake fumbling over a lawn mower. The scene shifts into a full-blown Hollywood extravaganza starring Jake's neighbors in costume and featuring lawn mowers in a choreography of dance and song.

Offbeat TV show to premiere Saturday

Ever wonder what's inside the big tire near the I-94 expressway? What well-known Detroiters harbors a secret fantasy to be a stand-up comedian? And can it possibly be true that Detroit was once the "vacuum cleaner chinch-balancing" capital of the nation?

These and other offbeat questions will be answered on the premiere episode of "Chuck Gaidica's Show" Saturday, Feb. 20, at 7:30 p.m. on WDIV-TV Channel 4. Gaidica is a Grosse Pointe resident.

From local trivia to off-the-wall jugglers, the show is a half-

Meet eight of Detroit's most eligible bachelors.

Single, clean-cut male. Looking for lifelong friend to play frisbee with.

Good natured male. Family man. Great with kids.

Energetic mischief maker. Has lots of love to give, but no one to give it to.

Fine, upstanding individual. Tired of singles scene. Wants long-term relationship.

Single, independent male. Likes seafood, birdwatching. Desperately needs someone to share it all with.

They're handsome, faithful, and fun to be with. But this Valentine's Day, they're lonely. These are just eight of the hundreds of perfectly healthy animals waiting at the Michigan Humane Society (MHS) for that certain special someone to go home with. Someone, you hope, just like you.

Because you can provide what we can't: a permanent home. One that will be filled with all the love and attention they deserve.

But if you're already spoken for this Valentine's Day, there is another way you can help. Your donation to the MHS, no matter how big or small, will help us give these animals the best care possible and the chance for us to find them a proper home.

So this Valentine's Day, share your love with those who need it most: the bachelors and bachelorettes at the Michigan Humane Society.

Jake the snake!

South's Jake Rowan rides his opponent to the ground at the pre-district tournament last week. Rowan and his teammates did well at pre-districts, but failed to qualify for the regionals.

One inch away!

North's Bryan Fleming (top) twists his Lincoln opponent as the referee gives an indication that Fleming needs only an inch to record a pin. North will send three wrestlers to the regional meet on Feb. 20.

WINNING DEEDIT OVER SINCE 1984

CAR Magazine, November 1986

EVOLUTION OF THE SPECIES

The New Breed Jaguar XJ6

Introducing the 1988 Jaguar XJ6. Like its forebears, its sleek form is taut and well-muscled. Yet it faces the wind with greater aerodynamic efficiency. True to Jaguar tradition, its new aluminum alloy, fuel injected six cylinder engine has double overhead cams. However, the added sophistication of 24 valves further enhances power and high-speed response.

To the classic interior splendor of supple leather and fine wood, the new XJ6 adds advanced computer-age technology—in everything from its climate control system to its Vehicle Condition Monitor, which continually checks 27 critical functions.

The 1988 Jaguar XJ6. It is totally new, yet it reflects the finest traits of its forebears. It marks the evolution of a legendary species. It's little wonder that upon previewing it in Europe, CAR magazine called it "the best sedan in the world."
