zoning board decision

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

A Wayne County Circuit Court judge overturned a decision by the Farms Zoning Board of Appeals, and told the city it allow a house to be placed on a lot on Mapleton Avenue.

According to attorneys for both sides, however, Judge Helene White's decision does not say the city must allow the house to be moved.

The ruling on May 13 told the zoning board it did not have enough evidence to deny the variances asked for by the owner of the lot, Joyce Grecco, and the proposed purchaser of the lot, Brad Elvidge.

The lot in question is Lot 13, and is owned by Grecco. She and Elvidge asked the zoning board to allow the cottage from the former Higbie estate to be moved from its present location on Moran Road to the lot. A number of variances were needed to allow the cottage to be moved.

the lot split would in effect form two non-conforming lots.

Numerous residents of Mapleton appeared at the council meeting to speak against granting the variances because they must grant several variances to felt the lot was too small, and said developing the land would not be in the best interest of the community.

The judge said that the variances, which were substantial, should be looked at in relationship to the surrounding areas. All lots on Mapleton are nonconforming to the current zoning laws and most have insufficient front setbacks.

But in the ruling, White added some restrictions in regard to the development, Chuck Hammond, Farms city attorney said.

The driveway must be on the Grecco side of the lot; the house must be increased in size by 120 square feet; the foundation must be dug so the first floor is two or three feet above the ground, like most of the surrounding houses; grading must be done and a

The square was dedicated to Cooper for his continued effort to provide the students with photographs of themselves, their parents and their peers. It was estimated that in more than 15 years, Cooper has taken 60,000 pictures.

The variances requested were to split the lot from Grecco's lot next door, variances for front and side setback, and a variance to allow the cottage, which is 1,080 square feet, onto the lot that requires a house of 1,200 square feet. In addition, granting

Repair projects planned for 14 schools

By Peter A. Salinas Staff Writer

More than $600,000 will be spent by the Grosse Pointe School System in coming months to roof, paint, brick, repair and carry on with the regular maintenance projects for the district's 14 buildings. Support Services Director side the two high schools, will be David King said that roofing projects will account for about over one-third of the expenditures.

About $243,000 will be paid to two companies - Detroit Cornice when you talk about bleachers," & Slate and Milbrand - for roof King said. "So many people use repairs to South, Pierce, Mon- them at one time, and you have teith and Parcells. "This is regular roofing re-pairs we are doing," King said. Recently, two companies were awarded painting contracts to paint rooms and hallways in every school building except the central administration building.

Painting contracts were awarded to Forest Painting and Interstate Painting for a total of $65,000.

Forest got the lion's share of the bids with a $54,000 contract, while Interstate got a contract to paint both North and Ferry schools at $11,000.

"This is regular maintenance as well," King said. "We always do this after the kids are out of school, because it is much easier to complete a job, and no one is bothered by the paint fumes."

Masonry work at South, Pierce, Parcells and Monteith will be a sizeable project. Bids have not been let for these projects, but King estimates the jobs will cost the district about $80,000.

"It's a tough job taking care of older schools," King said, "but the community has a big investment in these buildings and we must keep up on them."

Another big job, this one inrepairs of bleachers. Boards will be replaced and mechanical parts will be repaired. Cost of this job will be about $50,000.

South will also have the circulation system for the pool replaced this year at a cost of about $20,000. The locker rooms at South will also be remodeled at a cost of about $13,000.

Two asphalting projects at the Mason and Richard playgrounds will also be completed this year. The Richard project will cost about $15,000 and the Mason lot about $6,000.

Construction at the Cottage Hospital parking deck and demolition of the old Bronze Door led to a parking nightmare in the Farms Municipal Lot on Friday, May 13. A flat bed truck delivering steel to the parking deck construction site and a wrecking crane that started demolition on the Bronze Door effectively blocked the only exit to the parking lot for about 20 minutes, and free flow of traffic was hampered for about 40 minutes.

According to contractor Peter Bologna, his subcontractor mistakenly believed that the the alley was still a two-way street. Farms police arrived on the scene and directed traffic. Police Chief Robert Ferber ordered the demolition stopped. He said that the actions "took place without prior notification and approval from the city, and were enacted with no thought for traffic diversion, flow control barricading or flagmen."

In some cases, cars attempting to exit were waved into the parking lot, but having nowhere else to exit, this quickly caused a gridlock. Crews commenced demolition of the Bronze Door at 6 a.m., Sunday, May 15, without incident. Demolition will now be able to proceed without blocking traffic.

Farms approves $6.8 million budget

By Ronald J. Bernas

Staff Writer The Farms council approved a

$6.8 million budget for the fiscal year Monday night.

The new budget is up some $303,000 from the previous year's budget of $6.526 million due to a number of reasons, according to City Manager Andrew Bremer Jr.

"We're accelerating our street repair program and that is one reason," he said.

Included in that street repair will be the repaying of a number of streets between Chalfonte and Mack, north of Moross.

"Our concept here has always

On sale are garage sale items, arts, crafts, collectibles, and food. Exhibitor space is still available at $60 plus $10 security deposit. (Additional charge for electrical outlets.)

Admission is 50 cents; children under 12 will be admitted free. Arkie Hudkins, area cartoonist, will be on the premises to sign autographs. The Lake Shore Chorus of the Grosse Pointe Barbershoppers will be performing on Monday at 11 a.m.

All proceeds will go the the Grosse Pointe Village Association's annual Christmas Parade held the day after Thanksgiving.

Cash for kids

Cash for Kids 1988 will be the fourth cooperative effort for the Greater Detroit Food Industry and Variety Club of Detroit. Its purpose is to raise money for Michigan's special children. The drive will run from May 25 through July 6.

A portion of the purchase price from Cash for Kids grocery items will be donated to the Variety Club Cardiology Center at Children's Hospital of Michigan, the Myoelectric Center, affiliated with Oakwood Hospital and to other children's charities.

Supporting retailers include Farmer Jack, Kroger, A&P, Great Scott!, Affiliated Foodland and Metro Grocery Affiliates.

Improvements with the infrastructure at Pier Park and the soon-to-be-started expansion of city hall are also included in this year's budget.

Bremer cited contract negotiations and an 11 percent increase in Blue Cross/Blue Shield premiums as further reasons for the increase in the budget.

Although there is an increase, the number of levied mills was actually decreased from 12.60 to the job," Lock added.

Heading JWT's largest account is not seen as a burden to Schweitzer — it's a challenge.

"I think it's a big responsibility," he said. "We approach it as we do with any account. It takes more people, more attention, more time, but we have the same attitude as we do with a small account. We use the same disciplines, only magnified.'

He said he is not worried about pressure from top management.

"It's a healthy attitude," he said. "We do our job, and we're fine. My boss is a resource to us. I'm not going around looking over my shoulder. The client (Ford) is not bashful. We know where we stand."

Will Reagan's campaign help elect Bush?

Now that President Ronald Reagan has given his endorsement to Vice-President George Bush, the stage is all but set for a rousing 1988 campaign with the president playing an active role on behalf of his candidate.

The president's announcement was regarded as the end of "one of Washington's longest-running and least suspenseful political dramas," to use the words of the New York Times, but it was treated so casually by the news media that the president reissued his endorsement in stronger language the next day.

Even so, the endorsement doesn't guarantee that the vice president will inherit his boss' popularity or constituency, The Detroit News' Richard Ryan reported from Washington. To support that opinion, Ryan quoted Edward Rollins, former White House political director and manager of Reagan's 1984 presidential campaign:

"Bush has got to win this thing on his own. Reagan can't hand it off. He couldn't Opinion hand off the governorship of California after two terms and he can't hand off the presidency."

Perhaps more important, Reagan already has shown that his popularity does not easily rub off on other candidates. In the 1986 campaign for the U.S. Senate, the president campaigned vigorously for his GOP colleagues but despite his efforts the Republicans lost eight seats and control of the Senate for the president's last two years in office.

So, yes, we'd agree with Rollins that Bush will have to win it on his own. Yet his difficulty is that he must run on the Reagan record, without being able to show how much he was responsible for the Reagan administration's accomplishments or even how little he had to do with its mistakes. That, unfortunately, is always the plight of a vice presidency seeking to succeed to the presidency and it helps explain why it has been more than 150 years since an incumbent vice president has won.

Even Bush's experience in foreign affairs, obviously much greater than that of Gov. Michael Dukakis, is not an unmixed blessing. For example, the Iran-contra affair and the problems with Panama have led to criticism of the Reagan administration's handling of those foreign policies and so Bush must defend them, even if he didn't agree with them or have much to do with implementing them.

The News' Ryan quoted Robert Teeter, the pollster from Detroit who now is a senior adviser to the vice president, as saying that the two issues that historically shape presidential elections, peace and prosperity, are currently in "good shape" from Bush's point of view. Teeter thinks the vice president will benefit if he campaigns on those issues.

Presumably an appeal to continue the good times with Bush should have a strong appeal to many workers who in normal times vote Democratic but did support Rea gan. And the economy does appear to be expanding, although there are also signs of incipient inflation.

Yet ABC exit polls taken during the primaries in New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio showed that Democratic voters who supported Reagan in 1984 favored Dukakis over Bush by margins of up to 4 to 1. In addition, polls indicate that many women favor Dukakis over Bush and even some Bush backers concede Bush suffers from a "gender gap."

Another factor may increase Bush's difficulties. After eight years of Republican rule from the White House, many Americans believe it is time for a change. So even if Bush can convince some Americans he is a logical successor to Reagan, that fact alone may not convince those same Americans to vote for Bush. The "sleaze" factor in the administration and mistakes both at home and abroad help convince some people it really is time for a change.

So the closer we get to the national Republican and Democratic conventions this summer, the more it appears the nation is girding for a tough campaign, and prohably a close election, despite the president's strong endorsement of Bush and his pledge to campaign for him in the fall campaign.

Prom time is here again

Now that the school year is winding down, prom time is here again with the inevitable worries by students, teachers and parents alike that everything will go all right in the traditional events that mark the end of the school year and, for seniors, the close of their high school years.

In recent years, the schools, the homes and the students themselves have helped work out plans that have reduced prom problems to a minimum. They have done so by organizing lock-in proms and other forms of regulated activity that have helped restrain the natural exuberance of the celebrating students. Both Grosse Pointe public high schools are following that practice in the coming days and weeks.

It isn't just that parents and teachers will know where the kids are on prom night, as South Assistant Principal Bernard Lemieux told the Grosse Pointe News. It also gives seniors, for example, the opportunity to enjoy their last formal activity together without the risk that a minority might spoil it for everyone by obnoxious behavior. Most of the parents and grandparents of this year's prom-goers, for example, recall with pleasure the proms they attended years ago. Some of the memories may be tinged with regret about behavior that got out of hand even in a more strait-laced era. But for the most part proms are events that prompt happy recollections at reunions and get-togethers in later years.

though they don't always get it. The Detroit Free Press reported one parental lapse the other day, for example, in a story about the rush to rent hotel rooms for postprom festivities that is already under way in the Detroit metropolitan area.

What the story said was that some parents have been persuaded to rent rooms on behalf of their offspring to avoid the understandable restrictions some hotels have put on renting rooms to people under 21. Surely parental cooperation in the evasion of such controls, whatever the reason, hardly serves the cause of student self-restraint.

Fortunately, students themselves are growing more mature and taking a more serious view of the future as they approach graduation. Most of those we know anything about can be relied upon to accept the new responsibilities of adulthood that they are about to face. Those responsibilities include the exercise of self-restraint even at an enjoyable high school prom. If they act responsibly, they will have no reason for regret in future years when they recall with fellow graduates what happened at the 1988 high school prom. We've often commented that any community's most valuable resource is its young people. That is especially true in the Pointes where everyone has a high regard for the quality of our public schools and its products. As this year's graduates march out into the world, they know that they carry the hopes of their parents and relatives. More than that, however, we're sure they also are aware of the pride and confidence that their teachers and the entire community have in them.

Yet the schools can do only so much planning to structure prom activities. They also need the active help of parents even

River a major Detroit asset

I recent years, Detroit finally has come to regard its frontage on the Detroit River as a major asset. As a result, housing, shopping facilities and parks have begun to replace the old industrial sites along the river.

Now a new development is on the horizon. Porterfield Wilson, a Detroit auto dealer, has won the right, in stiff competition, to go ahead with a $60 million riverfront development that will include a huge boat marina; 600 housing units, including a high-rise apartment building and condominiums; a 15,000-square-foot seafood restaurant; a public boat launch; a riverfront park, and retail shopping facilities. The complex would be located on the riverfront across from Belle Isle on the Detroit River.

In the early days, rivers were the nation's highways, serving frontier settlements as well as the big cities. Now rivers once again are being regarded as national assets, serving not only the demands of transportation, commerce and leisure-time activities but also as the sites for attractive housing and parks that can help meet the needs of metropolitan area residents.

Unfortunately, those promoting casino gambling in the metropolitan area also have had their eyes on the riverfront. First, one promoter proposed that Belle Isle be the location for the casino development. After that idea was shot down by critical reaction, a panel from the Detroit Gaming Study Commission reportedly recommended that the casinos be placed along the riverfront just west of downtown.

That is largely an industrial area of decaying industrial buildings and vacant lots, which surely would be a better location for a casino development than Belle Isle, if casinos are to be built anywhere in the area. The mayor's commission is still regarded as likely to recommend casinos in Detroit although the proposal still faces such hurdles as an Aug. 2 referendum on a ban on casinos in Detroit and approval by the state Legislature, which is far from assured.

Over the years, the Pointes, by and large, have made excellent use of their frontage on Lake St. Clair with well-maintained municipal parks, beautiful homes and attractive institutions such as the Grosse Pointe War Memorial right on the water. It is encouraging that Detroit's renewed interest in the riverfront is causing the replacement of the old industrial sites on the Detroit River with marinas, parks, housing developments and retail shopping areas that should improve the quality of life in the area. Improve drinking water quality To the Editor:

This first celebration of National Drinking Water Week, May 2-8, is a milestone in the recognition of drinking water as an environmental issue of national importance. Most of us hardly give a thought to the water that flows from the tap, for our success in controlling waterborne diseases caused by bacteria and viruses has given us some of the highest quality drinking water in the world.

Today, however, we face a far reaching problem: the contamination of drinking water supplies by toxic chemicals from landfills, agricultural runoff, leaking underground oil, gas and chemical tanks, and even the pipes that carry water from the reservoir to our homes, schools and offices.

In 1986. Congress responded to these issues by enacting important amendments to the 1974 Safe Drinking Water Act. Why then, has the League of Women Voters initiated a three-year public education campaign on the subject? Because we believe that the additional safeguards and substantive changes called for in the amendments will fail without the active support of informed citizens. We have the knowledge and technology to protect our water supplies. The barriers to protection are political and economic - additional expenses for improved treatment are sensitive, and adequate protection of supplies often is an afterthought to development. An additional barrier is a result of past successes. But the contamination of U.S. drinking water is not a theoretical potential problem or something that rarely occurs. The problem is here, now.

A commitment is urgently needed from the members of each community - citizen, industry, environmental and governmental groups - to identify specific needs and chart a course of action. In your community, this may include a commitment to pay now so that you won't have to pay later. In the case of lead contamination of drinking water, for example, action now would reduce the health impacts of lead to the one out of every five Americans currently exposed to dangerous lead levels.

The League of Women Voters urges you to celebrate National Drinking Water Week by initiating or supporting efforts in your community to protect and improve drinking water quality. We urge you to take a role, by judging the quality of your water based on facts rather than assumptions, and by working locally to ensure the quality of your community's priceless resource — its drinking water.

My three friends

I've lost three friends this year. Each was special in his own way Each was different from the other but representative of the different facets of my life. One was related to me, the others I knew through my work.

had something in common: Each touched my heart in an unforgettable way.

My cousin, Jim Schroeder, was 18 when he died in a car accident in January. The shock I felt when I heard the news of Jim's amazement and even joy I experienced at Jim's funeral.

I remember fighting with my cousin Martha over who would hold Jim; Martha claimed that it wasn't fair for me to hold him all the time since I had a 4-month-old baby sister at home. I won and wound up holding Jimmy all afternoon.

A few years later, I spent the weekend with Jim and his brothers and sisters while their parents were away. Jim was around 9 then and was given the job of directing me to the local church And, while none of them was for Sunday mass. We drove acquainted with the others, they around for what seemed like hours, going in circles and winding up not at church but at the local doughnut shop. After much discussion - and more of Jim's giggling - we wound up at church . . . which was only about two blocks from home. I had to death has diminished; not so the admit it was pretty funny and Jim got his box of doughnuts anyway.

It was on the night of his final high school hockey game. I interviewed him for the last time and after 1 finished, he shook my hand, gave me a peck on the cheek and thanked me for my coverage of him and his team.

About a year later, he was home from college on a visit. Had to stop and see me, he said. Wouldn't have felt right if he hadn't dropped by to say bello, he told me.

Writing sports for seven years was a hectic, sometimes tedious, often thankless job. John Russell somehow made it worthwhile. And he gave me a reason to look for his kind of attitude in other young people.

My other friend, Bob Porta, was an older man who worked at the shop where we print this paper. The brief obituaries writ ten about Bob couldn't begin to tell his story. He could be gruff and tough and hot-tempered. He often was opinionated and some people were even afraid of him. Not me.

Bob would answer the dumbest of questions without laughing. He would take the time to explain why certain things were done, so you'd know the next -time.

Bob told funny stories and played pranks on people who took the time to get to know him. People who could see past the gruff exterior and find his gentle nature and his great sense of humor.

I guess you had to see Bob the way I did: That he was the kind of guy who could throw a piece of hot lead at an ad salesman who attempted to remake an ad at midnight on production day, then turn around and be the fatherly type who would worry about me if I didn't show up at the print shop at the regular time with Grosse Pointe News copy

A terrible number

To the Editor:

The City of Detroit and the surrounding Wayne County annually report more than 15,000 abortions performed each year. In the tricounty greater metropolitan Detroit area there are over 20,000. The state of Michigan reports over 40,000, America over 1.5 million, and the world toll is usually estimated at 55 million.

In many cities there are more abortions than births. In order to comprehend the full impact of these numbers it might help to compare them to populations of similar size. For example, the number of abortions in Wayne County is roughly equal to the number of people living in the Detroit suburb of Grosse Pointe Park. The tri-county total is approximately equal to the small city of Hamtramck. Michigan's abortions approximate the population of Jackson, Michigan. America's aborted far surpass the entire city of Detroit, and the world's abortions are roughly equivalent to the annihilation each year of France, a Great Britain, or an Italy.

The number of American abortions in one year exceeds by nearly a half mil lion the total number of Americans killed in 200 years in all the American wars. The deaths resulting from dropping an atomic bomb pale in comparison to the world's abortions. World War III might not kill such numbers. And all the accidents, calamities and natural disasters in history don't even come close to abortion's destruction of life.

The terrible irony is that while all this carnage is being carried out throughout the world, there are countless married couples out there who are desperately waiting and wanting to adopt a baby since they cannot have a child of their own. And the terrible danger is, as seen in our lifetime, that what begins with the fetus can end with us.

The world's attitude toward the unborn is soon reflected in its attitude toward the young, the old, the "imperfect," and the "unproductive." Who among us is not too young, not too old, productive by anyone's standards, and perfect in every way? If no one, then no one is secure when the abortion mentality rules the day.

And now it seems, as the result of recent legislation, that Canada is about to open the floodgates, as we did in 1973. Watch where you tread, O, Canada, for it's a slippery slope from abortion to infanticide to euthanasia, and it's all downhill from here.

If life is to survive on this planet, life must learn to respect life. It must abort abortion, despise death, and adapt a way of living that reflects the spirit, "Long Live Life!"

Abraham Lincoln once said something to the effect that if any man's freedom is lost, every man's freedom is endangered. What is true of freedom is even more profoundly true of life. If the unborn are not safe, then neither are the born.

There's a line somewhere that says. "We are careful to preserve that life which God has given us, for it was no idle gift.

No idle gift, indeed. Gerard Killoran St. Clair Shores

Don't let Detroit go down To the Editor:

Officens awake! Awake to the consequences of casino gambling before the "blue ribbon comission" read "Coleman Young's cronies' presents its report.

Our community will gain nothing but further degradation and rampant crime for the already beleagured city of Detroit.

A few will get marginal jobs - the big jobs will be handed out by the controllers of the casinos and other nefarious groups.

Crime will increase. We now fear going downtown day or night. What would it be like with gambling casinos going full blast?

Where are the voices that should be added to mine? The police know the score, but if we are to believe our daily newspapers, are there too many of them "on the take" for them to protest? Where are the churches? Surely they know how gambling affects poor families. Where are all of Detroit's decent citizens who should be fighting this war? I beg of you for the sake of generations to come, don't let Detroit go down the tubes.

Court decision reverses efforts To the Editor:

The recent Supreme Court decision that alcoholism or alcohol problems are considered "willful misconduct" reverses five decades of substance abuse efforts. Since the late 1950s, the substance abuse field has defined substance abuse (alcoholism) as a disease, with that definition developed into the foundation of our treatment and prevention enterprises.

Substance abuse is a complex disorder which incorporates aspects of substance abuse interventions with families of substance abusers, substance abuse problems prevalent in individuals with stress, mental disorders, significant losses, etc.

This industry's struggle to have substance abuse accepted as a health problem has resulted in reimbursement by insurance companies for treatment; the development of a highly sophisticated treatment network; the creation of employers' and schools' policies to assist those with substance abuse problems; and agendas developed by health care providers and policy makers which include substance abuse. The limited definition of "willful misconduct" dismisses much that our field has struggled to achieve.

"Willful misconduct" defined by Blackstone's legal dictionary "means more than mere negligence and contemplates the intentional doing of something with knowledge that it is likely to result in serious injuries or with reckless disregard of its probable consequences." Initially, we wonder if disorders such as mental illness, diabetes, and epilepsy are defined (even by the law) as willful (deliberate) or misconduct (nonconfirming behavior). Perhaps the most disturbing aspect of this ruling (and there are many) is the concept of substance abuse being "willful" or deliberate. The core principle of this disorder is its addiction. Although the nature of the addiction may vary with the heterogeneous nature of this substance-abusing population (genetic predisposition), addiction is the essence of the disorder of substance abuse (alcoholism).

In addition to concerns regarding the ruling's disregard of our history and scientific discoveries in substance abuse (alcoholism), the potential implications of this ruling are disturbing. Some of these may be:

• Drunk driving offenses approached from a criminal perspective only, rather than inclusive of the treatment needs of offenders;

• Employers and schools more inclined to approach substance abuse problems punitively rather than as a health care addiction problem; and

• A reduction in financial support by governmental entities because of the Court's opinion that deliberate choices are made by addicted persons.

These three potential problems certainly create concern within the substance community of policy makers, clinicians and volunteer firms.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES

The Village Council of the Village of Grosse Pointe Shores will hold a public hearing at 8:30 A.M. on Tuesday, May 24, 1988 in the Council Chambers of the Village Hall, 795 Lake Shore Road, Grosse Pointe Shores, to receive comments and discuss a proposed additional 1988 Village operating millage rate.

In 1987 the Village levied 15.22 mills ($15.22 per $1,000 State Equalized Valuation) for Village operating purposes. Because of an estimated increase in State Equalized Valuation of existing property within the Village, State Law, Act 5 of 1982, provides that the base tax rate for 1988 Village operating taxes be reduced to 13.83 mills ($13.83 per $1,000 SEV). This is 1.39 mills ($1.39 per $1,000 SEV) lower than the 1987 operating rate.

tion is to encourage a regional presidential primary such as "Super Tuesday" which was held in the South this year. The bill would also require that the legislature appropriate money from the general fund to pay for the election. I believe some changes need to be made in this bill. If we enact this legislation, full provision should be made to reimburse local units for the added costs of partisan registration and for interest payments in case of a delay in payment by the state for the cost of the election.

Turning from presidential politics to local politics, legislation has been signed into law which changes the filing requirements for precinct delegate. Previously, 15-20 signatures were needed to file a precinct delegate petition. Now, under the new law, a minimum of three signatures is needed. In addition, the notarization requirement has been eliminated. Please remember, if you wish to file a petition for precinct delegate, it must be filed by May 24, 1988 by 4 p.m. in man at 494-2876. your county clerk's office.

City reviews 1988-89 budget

By Margie Reins Smith

Staff Writer The Grosse Pointe City Council, at a public hearing Monday night, reviewed the proposed budget and proposed property tax rate for the 1988-89 fiscal year. The council will vote on the budget and the tax rate Monday, May 23.

According to City Manager Thomas Kressbach, the proposed budget is balanced and is based on existing levels of service and programs. It represents an increase of $142,255, or 4 percent for the general fund, which totals $3,682,260.

The proposed 1988-89 general debt fund totals $64,885.

The property tax rate is proposed at 15.38 mills for both operating (15.13) and debt (0.25) purposes. This represets a reduction from the current rate of 16.32 mills.

In his budget proposal, Kressbach estimated an increase of 8.8 percent in state equalized valuation for the city.

"The decrease in the property tax rate - combined with the will generate $113,145 in new operating revenues," he said

Estimated requirements for the 1988-89 general fund, according to the proposal, are:

• $1,629,595 for public safety, police and fire and court activi-

• $909.645 for public works.

• $280,795 for administration, city clerk and elections.

• $241,590 for accounting and auditing, board of review.

• $188,165 for public improve-

• $184,955 for parks and recreation. $161,820 for highway fund contribution. • $66,695 for sewage disposal.

• $19,000 for contingencies.

Of the 26 listed discretionary capital improvement projects listed in the proposed budget, Kressbach noted some that might be undertaken in 1988-89: roof repairs on the public works garage, Neff Park parking lot repairs and resurfacing, the Neff Park pool heater replacement, and replacement of rubbish receptacles in the village shopping area.

"We're continuing to struggle with increasing costs for health insurance and refuse disposal, as are our neighboring cities," Kressbach said.

In order to fund the Village's proposed 1988/89 budget and maintain essential services, and to make necessary repairs to its infrastructure system, roads and recreational facilities, the Village finds it necessary to increase its operating levy for fiscal year 1988/89 by 1.93 mills ($1.93 per $1,000 SEV) above the 1988 base tax rate (13.83). This will provide an estimated 13.96% increase in Village operating tax revenues and would result in a 1988 operating tax rate of 15.76 mills ($15.76 per $1,000 SEV). Under its Charter and State law, the Village has complete authority to establish the number of mills to be levied within its fully authorized millage rate.

Public comments on the proposed increase, oral or written, are welcome.

Farms to appeal court ruling

By Peter A. Salinas Staff Writer

The Farms council decided, by a 5-2 vote, to appeal a Wayne County Circuit Court decision that found the city's zoning ordinance unconstitutional as it related to the Richard Mancini property on Lakeshore.

The action continues more than 15 years of legal battles over several acres of land at 269 Lakeshore, located just north of Carmel Lane, that belong to Mancini, Dr. Aeneas and Roberta Guiney.

Last month Judge Paul Teranes ordered the Farms to grant a building permit to Mancini. The Farms would not recognize a lot split of the two parcels.

Mancini has been seeking a building permit to build a house on the lot which he purchased from Richard Borland in 1986.

A 1984 lawsuit resulted in Borland becoming the owner of the parcel, located east of the Guiney property. Until that time, ownership of the property was in question.

Mancini could not build on the lot, because while a court ruled that Borland owned the land, the two lots had not been split for purposes of the city's zoning ordinance. Since the Guiney parcel was non-conforming under the local ordinance, the request for a building permit by Mancini was denied.

Teranes sided with Mancini in the most recent court decision, and issued an order requiring the city to issue Mancini a building permit.

Because of the city's move to appeal the Teranes ruling, a stay of proceeding was issued, halting any plans Mancini had to build Mancini's attorney, Jay Siefman, said he felt that the Teranes decision, which declared that the city's zoning ordinance amounted to an illegal confiscation of Mancini's property, would put an end to the legal battles.

"I feel very confident we will win the appeal," Siefman said. Both Mayor Joseph Fromm and councilman Emil Berg voted against appealing, but lost out when the rest of board voted in favor of pursing the case.

He said it is important to chal-

Siefman said that he doesn't see how the city council can justify the expense to the residents, especially since Mancini plans to sue the city for damages.

Siefman said he and the city had come to an agreement that if the city didn't appeal, Mancini would drop any damages suit.

"I think this will result in significant damages to my client," Siefman said. "We are talking about a considerable sum of money from the city. There has been a delay in my client being able to use his property, attorney fees, court costs."

Couple returns with tales of adventure after world tour

By Peter A. Salinas Staff Writer

They found this place in southern Thailand that many honeymoon couples dream about. They had a bungalow near the ocean, complete with shower, electricity and a fan to ward off the tropical sun — all for $10 a day.

Surrounded by white sand beaches, crystal clear water alive with coral and other aquatic life, ideal for snorkeling, the island was home for 18 days. They bartered with local fishermen for dinner. For about $4 they would get a large fish caught earlier in the day, cooked to their specifications.

He put up his hammock and enjoyed the warm, tropical breezes, while she paid $4 for an hour-and-a-half traditional Thai massage. Coconuts provided snacks and drinks, and sunsets gave them their evenings' entertainment.

Wendy and Joseph LaPla, who spent almost 11 months traveling around the world, voted Thailand as their favorite country.

The LaPlas gained international attention last year when local stories about their plans to take an extended honeymoon trip backpacking around the world were picked up by the wire services.

Having toted their packs on the streets of Grosse Pointe for several months prior to the trip, the couple married May 16, 1987. The following day they were winging their way to California to meet with friends and begin their first of a dozen long treks.

Joe LaPla was part-owner in JL Communications Ltd., a public relations firm in St. Clair Shores, and Wendy was a computer analyst. LaPla sold his house and with money the two had saved, they followed a lifelong dream to find adventure.

Shortly after trekking into the mountains in Sequoia National Park in California, however, the couple met with their first misadventure. At about 10,000 feet, it hailed and then snowed. The steepness of the trails had already tired them, even though they had only hiked six or seven miles. Within a few hours, the storm developed into a full-blown blizzard, forcing them off the mountain.

"We were more than a little worried," LaPla said. "We were very tired from the hiking we had done, and after a brief rest, we made our way down the mountain."

They went to Sequoia and Yosemite national parks, San Francisco, Seattle, Mount Rainier National Park, Fairbanks, Alaska, and Gates of the Arctic National Park before leaving this continent.

From there it was on to spend six weeks in Kauai, Hawaii. From Hawaii they went to New Zealand, Australia, Bali and Java in Indonesia, Thailand, Katmandu, Nepal, and then to India.

If it sounds like romantic fun and nonstop adventure — it was. They netted fish and traded them for beer with a native in Kauai. They were on Heron Island along Australia's Great Barrier Reef when Jacques Cousteau was there filming. They came face-to-face with a platoon of opium soldiers in Thailand's Golden Triangle. They climbed up the Langtang Valley in Nepal near the border of Tibet to a height of 13,000 feet. And while on a camel safari in the Thar Desert in India, Wendy was poisoned by her camel driver.

"Now don't lead with that," she said. "We had a great time. The entire trip was wonderful."

The problem was that the Indian camel drivers they hired for $9 a day had no respect for women. While they treated Joe well, they started to pick on Wendy as soon as they were out into the desert. They threw things at her, never allowed her camel in front and tried to strike her several times.

LaPla spoke with the one camel driver who could speak English, and asked him to treat his wife with respect. Later that day, after the two guides prepared dinner for the LaPlas, Wendy became violently ill.

It cut their camel safari short, and they left India for London as soon as possible. Doctors in England could find no parasite, that might cause salmonella or dysentery. One physician was certain she had been poisoned with an herb or root. There were no lasting effects from the poison, but she will remember that illness for a long time.

They had planned to go to Africa after traveling in India, but after 10 1/2 months of being on the road, they decided to cut the trip short and surprise everyone at home.

"Hawaii was beautiful," Wendy said. "After all the hard hiking in Alaska and the Arctic, Hawaii was great. We camped on beaches for six weeks for free. We ate free avocados, coconuts, passion fruit and papaya."

There they met Mr. Wong, a retired fisherman, who continued to throw out nets to make ends meet. The LaPlas helped him collect fish, and they would take their share to a local bar, sell them and buy beer.

Of all the countries they visited, they said New Zealand was the most expensive.

In order to defray costs there, they took a job picking tangelos for about two and a-half months.

"It was one of the best parts of the trip," LaPla said. "We saw an ad on a bulletin board in a hostel, and hitched our way up there. It was a room, food and entertainment."

In most of the tropical places they visited, they snorkeled. The best snorkeling was on Koh Pee Pee Island in southern Thailand.

"These islands are just beautiful," he said. "It was also very, very cheap. The only problem you had was watching out for falling coconuts. The trees were everywhere, and it really was a problem."

They said that there was huge brain coral in places, some as big around as a small building.

"If you went into the water at a different spot on the island, there would be a different kind of coral there," Wendy said.

At one point when he was snorkeling, LaPla said there were 12 reef sharks circling him.

"They were all six or seven feet long and I was more than a little worried," he said.

One side effect of all the hiking was that they both lost weight — Wendy weighed 137 when the trip started and 111 pounds when the adventure ended and Joe went from 237 pounds to 181 when the couple returned home.

LaPla says he plans to sell his interest in the public relations company. They were going to live in Seattle, but Wendy has landed a good job in Minneapolis, Minn. and they will be moving there.

The Michigan Lottery receives a lot of inquiries about its various games. The following addresses questions on instant games

Q: Why do they offer mostly small prizes now?

A: Research found instant game players prefer lower odds and many smaller prizes. Players seeking large prizes tend to play other Lottery games

Q: Are all instant games the same?

A: No. Players like variety, so the six games offered each year have different names, ticket designs, prize structures and other distinct features.

Q: Will there be more wheel spin games?

A: Yes, this is a feature of our newest instant game, "Spin to Win," which begins May 17.

Q: What prizes will the next game have?

A: Equalling the highest payout of any game yet offered by the Michigan Lottery, it will provide more than $15 million in prizes. In addition to millions of $2, $5, $10 and $50 awards, there will also be 50 chances to spin a money wheel for prizes ranging from $5,000 to $25,000.

Q: How do you get the chance to spin?

A: A player becomes eligible to try the money wheel with three "SPIN" symbols on a single ticket. Wheel spins will be conducted at various locations around the state and the public will be invited

Q: What will the odds be in the next game?

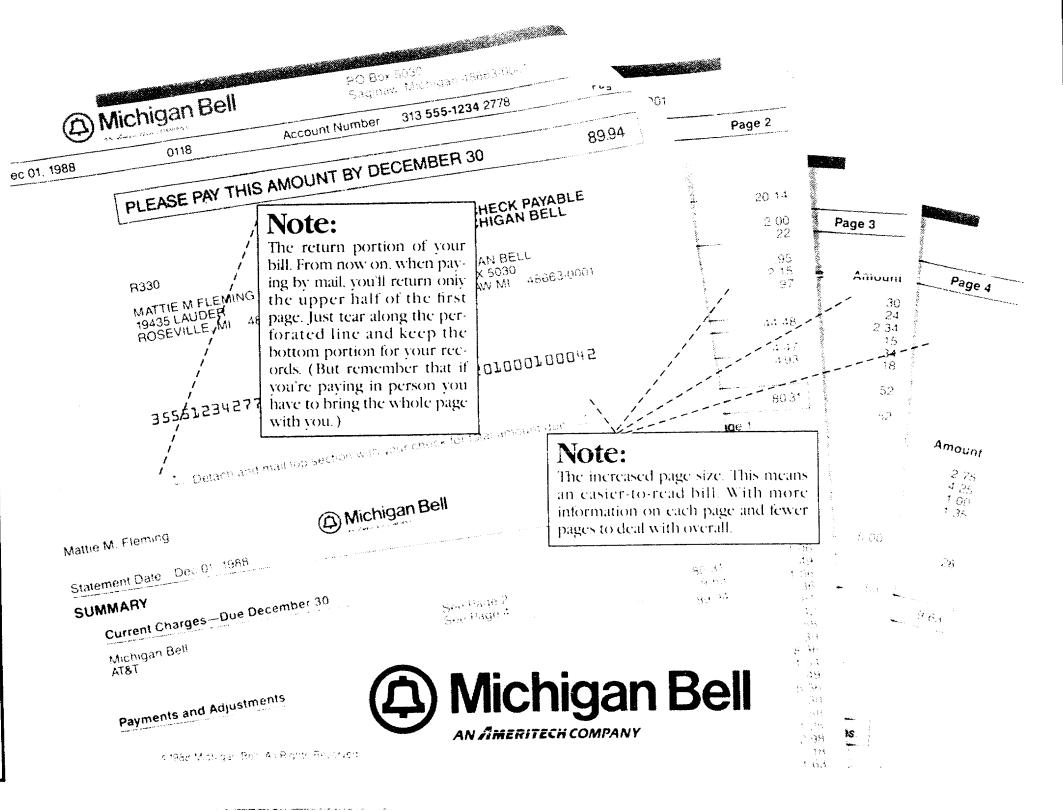

A: The best in any Michigan Lottery game yet, odds in "Spin to Win" are almost one in three that any ticket will be a cash prize or free ticket winner This does not necessarily mean that, if you hav three tickets at the same time one will be a winner. It means that nearly one third of tickets printed are winners. Winning tickets are randomly scattered during the printing process So even the Lottery has no idea where they are located until the winners claim their prozes

Q: How can I collect instant game prizes?

A: Any instant came prize up to $600 can be collected immediately at nearly 5000 Lottery retailers throughout the state. Wheel spin winners can file a claim through any Lottery retailer or at any of seven Lottery regional offices For asking the question leading to this column Ross Fulton of Brohman, ML will receive 59 free tickets in the "Spin 6 Win' instant game made May 2 in a special presentation during the school board meeting.

Only 83 awards were given out in the United States and Canada, and Grosse Pointe was honored by having four, board President Fred Adams told the audience.

Honored were Daniel Koerber. Woods detective assigned to North High School; Linda Schneider, president, PTO Council; Ben Walker, director, North High School Choirs; and Jack Frey, volunteer tutor, Parcells Middle School.

Koerber came to the school system when there was no official youth officer and he developed a relationship with the North students, teachers and school administrators.

He has an open door policy for students seeking advice and information about law-related problems, and he has been found often talking with high school or middle school students on subjects like drug and substance abuse and juvenile law.

Koerber has done an effective job in establishing lines of communication between the schools and local law enforcement personnel, wrote the top North officials who recommended Koerber for the award. "His caring and concern," they

Each week in this column, we will focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a woodworking project, a book review.

The following was written by Tim Getz, a fifth-grader at Our Lady Star of the Sea Elementary School. He is the son of Tom and Kathy Getz of Grosse Pointe Woods.

Am I Going Mad??

It is June 16, 2010. I am sitting in my treehouse outside of town. My name is Mike. As I read a Mad magazine my friend, (oh, hee hee) sorry, I meant best friend, Tim, thought he heard something. So I looked out the window. There I spied a little man sitting in a bush. The little man was taking a small box out of his jacket. He pressed a button and turned a dial on the box and all of a sudden it turned into a massive door! The little man walked through it and closed it. Tim and I got out of our treehouse and followed him. We pulled on the door with all of our might but it would not open. Then I remembered that Tim had a retainer. "Say, do you have your retainer on?" I inquired. "Sure do," replied Tim.

we walked through. There I saw one of the smallest castles I've every seen. The little man was walking into it. Just as the drawbridge was opening Tim and I snuck in. When we got in, Tim sat on a chair in the hall.

"Boy, am I tired," moaned Tim. Then Tim, along with the chair, sunk into the floor faster than you can say "Zorkobafata." "What the heck! I've got to get him out!" I looked down the hall. There I saw the little man. There was something shining in his pocket. I ran as fast as I could. Of course the man could not outrun me, but he took a thing out of his pocket. It looked like some sort of laser. Then he turned around and shot it at me! I quickly dodged it. Then I saw a little shield on the wall. So I grabbed it. It was just in time. One of the rays bounced off my shield. He shot again. This time it hit my shield and broke it! But that was enough because it bounced off and hit the man. He then turned into a kid like me! The kid then explained that his name was best friend Tim had been captured. Andy picked up the thing out," suggested Andy. I tied up the leprechaun with ease as Andy helped Tim escape. Andy walked over to me with

"He's Andy," I announced proudly. "It's a long story and I'll tell you about it when we get home.

Then I remembered ...

"Yes, there is," said Andy. "Well, leprechaun, I wish that Brennan was impressed by the enthusiasm of the students and the caliber of their questions. She feels this speaker program captures what Law Day is all about.

"The purpose of Law Day is to educate," she said, "and to bring to the attention of the community the important part the law plays in our everyday life."

Regina debaters shine

Regina High School's Forensics team won the Detroit Catholic League Championship at the grand tournament held on May 1 at Regina and Notre Dame High Schools in Harper Woods.

Regina competed against approximately 100 students from 12 Detroit area private and public schools. The Regina team took first place trophies in six out of 14 categories.

First-place winners from Regina included senior Ondria Rodgers for dramatic interpretation; junior Natalie Ngiala for storytelling; freshman Naomi Khalil for declamation; freshman Lori Wolff, Kelley Randall, Kelly VanSlambrouck, Teal Biernat, Gina Fracassa, Cori Minton, and Jeanne Haberer for multiple reading; freshman Catherine DeFauw for informative; and senior Elizabeth Sadlowski for original oratory.

Third-place trophy winners were junior Susan Sullivan and Melissa Bouchard for duo interpretation; freshman Becky Kostera for storytelling; freshman Cindy Saponaro for declamation; and freshman Linda Nurra, Laura Graham, and Rachel Bagnasco for multiple reading.

Other team awards this season include first place in the Brighton Invitational, DCFL Sweepstakes and Accumulative Trophies for sequence III. Nine students also received individual awards at district competition.

ULS debaters finish second

After earning his way through the District and Regional qualifiers, Nishu Sood, a University Liggett School junior from Grosse Pointe, finished second in the State Champion Forensics Tournament in the category of impromptu speaking. The tournament, held on the University of Michigan campus in Ann Arbor on Saturday, May 7, brought together the "best of the best" public speakers from high schools across the state to perform in 14 different categories.

An old-fashioned business story: 'Experience is the best teacher'

By Margle Reins Smith Staff Writer

When Henry Ziff graduated from Detroit's Central High School in the mid-20s, he wanted to become an electrical engineer. Ziff's father, Joseph, owner of a local business that manufactured suspenders and belts, said Henry could go to college, but must return to take his place in the family business.

Ziff skipped college.

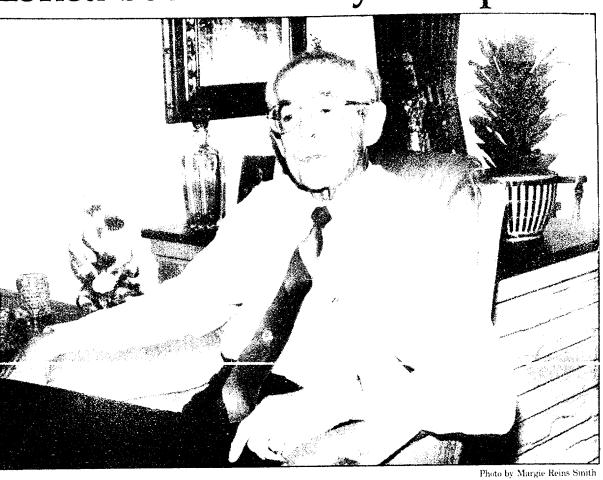

"I never regretted my decision," he said recently.

Joseph Ziff came to Detroit in 1916 from Toronto, and began a small manufacturing business, the Detroit Suspender and Belt Company, in a rented building on the corner of Cass and West Jefferson. Joseph had emigrated to Toronto from Rumania. He moved to Detroit because he'd heard it was the city of opportunity — the automotive capital.

The two-man manufacturing firm eventually grew to employ more than 200 people and occupy 16,000 square feet of a fourstory building. They moved to the Krohlik Building, on the corner of East Jefferson and Randolph, and occupied 22,000 square feet. Both locations are part of the Renaissance Center today.

The Detroit Suspender and Belt Company was part of a riverfront area in downtown Detroit in the early part of this century - today's RenCen and warehouse district. In the '20s and '30s and '40s, Ziff said, the area was mainly small manufacturers and distributers of wholesale softgoods businesses, such as belts, suspenders, neckwear, shirts, aprons, and such.

The Detroit Suspender and Belt Co. moved again during World War II to a six-story, 72,000 square foot steel and concrete building on Woodbridge and Jefferson. "We had six shipping docks and two freight elevators," Ziff recalled.

During World War II the company did government work three shifts a day, seven days a week. They manufactured leather chin straps, fiber helmet liners, gun covers and tarpaulins.

Ziff learned everything about the manufacture, distribution and sales of suspenders and belts the old fashioned way — by doing it. "In business, there's nothing to replace experience.

"I ran the sewing machines, cut leather, made deliveries. We made deliveries in a Ford Model A touring car," Ziff said. "In those days, delivery cars had removeable side flaps with the company's name. You lowered the flaps while making deliveries and you brought the flaps in when you used the car for some-

NOTICE OF BOARD OF APPEALS HEARING: Notice is hereby given that the City Council, meeting as a Board of Appeals under the provisions of Section 5-14-1 of the 1975 City Code of the City of Grosse Pointe Woods will meet in the Council-Court Room of the Municipal Building, 20025 Mack Avenue, Grosse Pointe Woods, on Monday, June 6, 1988 at 7:30 p.m. to hear the appeal of J. Dennis Andrus, who is appealing the denial of the Building Inspector to issue an occupancy permit for the building located at 19613 Mack. Mr. Andrus proposes to open two archways located between the buildings located at 19613-19615 Mack and the permit was denied by reason of inadequate off-street parking for the buildings as required in Section 5-3-16(4) of the 1975 City Code. A variance is therefore necessary from the Board of Appeals. All interested parties are invited to attend. CHESTER E. PETERSEN Henry Ziff thing else." Ziff eventually was sent out on the road to learn how to be a salesman. His father bought him a hat and a big car and gave him a map of Ohio. "Back then salesmen wore derby hats," Ziff said. "They didn't make appointments for their calls, they just walked in with their sample cases. I drove to Cleveland and made my calls, but didn't make a single sale that first day. "I was so discouraged. I called my father, long distance. He said I couldn't come home without an order. He told me to go on to Youngstown."

Ziff got the order. Along the way he learned how to be a topnotch salesman.

"I realized — through experience — that pressure isn't what you need in sales," he said. "You sell yourself. You're an individual. Your product is good. When (the buyer) is ready, he'll buy." After World War II, when vinyl became available, the company, now named Apollo, went into manufacturing other products — belts, and handbags for S.S. Kresge Co. They eventually settled on a diaper bag, a tote bag that was marketed to keep baby's formula hot or cold and carry the rest of the paraphernalia needed when traveling with an infant.

The business was eventually sold to a Grand Rapids firm, then was repurchased by Ziff and sold again.

Henry Ziff is 78 and said he's now semiretired. He works about 20 hours a week as a manufacturers rep for a line of baby furniture and clothing. He gets up every morning at 5:30 a.m. and dresses in a business suit, shirt and tie — even when he's just conducting business on the phone.

Those early experiences in sales technique still hold true, he said. His advice to young salesmen:

"Quality is paramount. Price is secondary.

"People will forget what they paid soon enough. What they'll remember is 'Did it last — or didn't it."

He still has no regrets about college.

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

There aren't many stores that cater to people of all levels of skill and to all budgets. Those that do, are usually very successful. And an example of that is seen in Creative World, one of the nation's hottest new franchises, and it started in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Grosse Pointe artists and craftspeople will remember the Rainy Day Company, a crafts shop which operated in the Pointes under the ownership of the Snows until a fire destroyed it in 1983.

The current Creative World store was started after the fire, with the Rainy Day Company name, under the direction of The Snow Company, which helped Leverett and the new owners with what stock to carry, when to reorder, warned of possible pitfalls and what worked, Leverett said. "They helped a lot," she said.

From there, the store opened again and in 1987 changed its name to Creative World.

"We still kept the concept of the Rainy Day Company - family oriented, and catering to everybody, from the Sunday art- franchise, he said. Inventory lev-ett said.

Now, under the name Creative World, it is the first store of what is becoming a hot new franchise opportunity for everybody with some money to invest, an interest in art and some dedication.

According to Steve Lionas, vice president of Creative World Management Services, Inc., Creative World is "not a low-cost franchise, but it is for everyone. You do not have to have an art degree to own (a Creative World). All you need is a desire to work hard."

For a price ranging anywhere from $110,000 to $225,000 one can get a tranchise, he said. Most of that money goes for the inventory, but also included are things like a franchise fee, signs, negotiation of the lease, fixtures, and an extensive training program.

There are now more than 15 Creative World franchises in three states. Lionas believes there are a number of reasons for the good response for the franchises.

Much of the guesswork has been taken out of starting the stock rotation have been studied. and are custom fit to each store in various locations, he said.

An innovative inventory system sets highs and lows for each stock item, and as items are purchased it is recorded in a computer. When the low level is reached, the computer automatically orders more, eliminating much of the guesswork.

On the subject of inventory, there are more art items carried than can be thought of by the casual artist. Everything from magic markers and poster board, to wax and clay, to origami paper and gold leaf, to paints and watercolor sets, to instructional books and videocassettes of PBS painting favorites can be found inside the doors of a Creative World store. Kits with supplies to be used in conjunction with PBS painters are also on sale.

Students of all ages come into the shop for all supplies for school projects, and for beginning-of-the-year school-required supplies, Leverett said.

Custom framing is also available and accounts for some 40 percent of their business, she added.

May 19, 1988 Grosse Pointe News Business Mackinac Island prepares for the tourist season

By Pat Paholsky Editor

Winter is officially over now on Mackinac Island and another season has begun.

It became official on Friday the 13th at 10:30 in the morning under sunny skies and cool temperatures when they moved the pool table out of the Mustang Lounge.

Just before the ceremony, about a dozen bar patrons - pool cues in hand — emerged from the Mustang and split into two almost-even lines facing each other. Then as a band played some New Orleans jazz, the regulars hefted the table through the door under an arch of crossed pool cues.

There were no reported hernias nor did anyone's eye get poked by a wayward cue. It was impressive.

Then John C. McCabe, author and poet in residence, read his ode to a pool table. With flourishes. It was most impressive.

The band played a rousing number and by then, the pro-passersby who wanted to know which participants try to solve what was going on.

The annual event heralds the arrival of spring and the tourist season. The pool table, brought in at the close of every season for the year-round residents, is removed to make room for tables -and tourists.

It's still a couple of weeks before Memorial Day, which many consider the start of the vacation season, but activity abounds everywhere on the island. Many of the stores are open. Those that aren't have people on ladders hammering or painting the exterior while others inside work hurriedly to open for business.

There's a traffic jam of bicycles as a large group of youngsters prepare to pedal away. And the horses of Mackinac fill the senses - the clip-clopping and the familiar smell in particular.

Up at the Grand Hotel, the nearly 500 employees begin the season in grand fashion: the venerable centenarian is full. There are several large groups. One of the groups is ceedings had drawn a number of there for a mystery weekend in

This year the Grand will begin something new when it opens a housing complex for employees in June. Woodville, located in Harrisonville on the island, consists of two-story buildings of two-room apartments, an activity center and housing for married employees, something that was not available before.

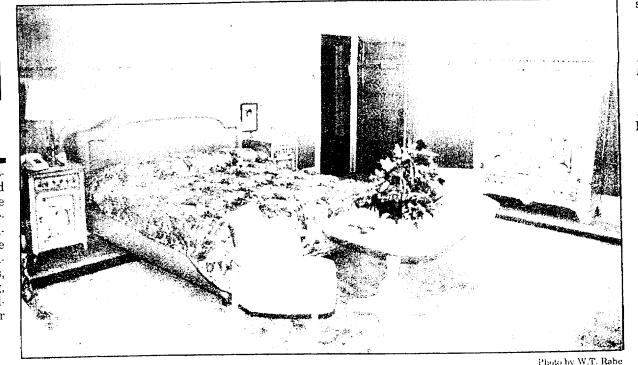

The hotel is its own city. The maintenance is constant. A painter revives a wall mural near the dining room. He's there during the breakfast hours, Employees work all year long preparing or maintaining the grande dame for visitors. Even when there are no tourists, it's alive with workmen and yesterday's memories.

Over at Ste. Anne Catholic Church, the new yearlong pastor, Father Bill Richards, says the church will be celebrating its 300th anniversary in a few years and he's looking for ideas and information appropriate to such an estimable observance.

of the name Harry Bertoia means anything to you, it's probably because of June Kompass Nelson. Nelson, of Grosse Pointe Farms, is the author of two books on sculptor Harry Bertoia. The first, "Harry Bertoia, Sculptor," was published in 1970. The latest, "Harry Bertoia, Printmaker," was published this year and unveils a seldom-seen side of an artist who was most widely known for his furniture designs and architectural sculpture.

Nelson met Harry Bertoia for the first time when both were aboard ship enroute to Europe. She had just quit her job after 10 years as an executive secretary and was searching for that "something more" beyond life in an office. "I'd taken an aptitude test which showed that I had some aptitude for art. I'd been to Europe on vacation before, so I decided to quit and go back there to see and do all I could with art, Nelson says.'

She spent 16 months in Europe, studying art and art history at the Accadenua di Belle Arti and the Universita degli Studi, Facolta di Lettere e Filosofia in Florence, Italy.

"When I got back here I enrolled at Wayne State, taking art history courses. I'd realized by then that I wasn't going to be any great talent as an artist but I did like art and wanted to pursue my master's degree," she says.

The late Wayne Andrews instructed Nelson in her master's studies. At one point, Harry Bertoia's name came up and Nelson decided to do her 12-credit master's thesis on Bertoia. "My husband was being transferred to New Jersey and the area in which we were to live was about 90 minutes from Bertoia's home in Allentown, Pa. Andrews checked it out and gave me the go-ahead to work on Bertoia for my thesis.'

After Nelson got her master's degree, WSU's Andrews suggested that she submit the work to a publisher. Two top publishers turned Nelson down, but Wayne State University Press agreed to publish a greatly enlarged thesis as her first book. It was printed in 1970.

"Bertoia liked it very much. It was good for him, since it allowed his clients to see what sculptures he had done. He liked it so much, in fact, that he gave me one of his pieces. It came one day in a big crate with no notice. I was floored. It was a lovely thing for him to do," Nelson recalls.

Around that time, Nelson says, she suggested to Bertoia that a book on his monotypes one-of-a-kind graphic prints fashioned with a method which Bertoia developed himself — would be a natural sequel to the book on his sculpture.

"He told me, 'No, not yet.' The next thing I knew, he had died," Nelson says.

That was 1978. After a time, Nelson suggested her idea for a book on Bertoia's monotypes to his widow, Brigitta Bertoia. She, too, declined at first but by 1980, told Nelson that if she was still interested the family would cooperate. Soon after, Nelson began her eight-year writing process which entailed culling through thousands of Bertoia monotypes, writing and rewriting passages, waiting for grants and finally, for WSU to finish the complicated process of printing the book.

IT WAS RELEASED this spring, in time for the opening of an exhibit of Bertoia's graphic prints which began at the Detroit Institute of Arts' Schwartz Graphic Arts Gallery April 26. The exhibit runs through June 26 and features several of Bertoia's sculptures, as well.

"It has been quite a hectic spring. We got home from China on April 23, Brigitta Bertoia arrived at our home on the 26th and the dinner celebrating the opening was on April 27.

"Brigitta's daughter and her

husband came in for the opening and Harry's sister from Calgary was here, too. The family seems to be pleased with the book," Nelson says.

Nelson is also happy with how the book turned out, especially after her years of long and sometimes frustrating work. "I'd finished the rough draft in 1985. but had to send the book in for a critique, then make the changes they suggested, send it back again and wait for yet another critique. Then, the second critic made suggestions which were exactly opposite from those made by the first critic. I got so disgusted at one point I just put the entire project aside for six months.

"Things finally worked out, although I had wanted to call the book 'Inner Vision,' because that was the way Harry felt about the prints. The publishers felt that it would be difficult to sell that title to libraries and such because it is more indicative of a book on psychotherapy or something," Nelson says, smiling.

Nelson and WSU Press settled on "Harry Bertoia, Printmaker," and it is, by all accounts, an attractive book of approximately 80 of the thousands of unique prints Bertoia made from 1939 to his death.

"The way he did monotypes was so unusual from the way other artists work. They were so intuitive; he used them in his sculptures, too. Another unusual aspect about them is that Harry usually did them in the evenings after he finished sculpting for the day. It was a way for him to relax.'

A monotype is made by taking a print from an ink-covered glass plate. Because a glass plate cannot be put through a press to make multiple copies, usually only one print may be made, hence the name "mono"-type. Bertoia developed a method in which he inked the glass plate, placed the paper on the ink and used a stylus to make different designs ... on the back of the paper.

"It was a sort of blind method in that Bertoia really wasn't guite sure what he had until he was done and picked the paper up. But it really produced some unusual designs," Nelson says. "I was astonished at the effects he achieved. I had three print experts come to look at Bertoia's prints while I had them here and even they couldn't tell me how they were done."

Experimenting with new techniques was part of Bertoia's nature, Nelson says. He did quite a bit of it throughout his career, especially when he was in residence at Cranbrook. It eventually led to Bertoia's death, she adds.

He worked with a type of copper which came from the manufacturer with a warning that fumes resulting from heat application were highly toxic. "He never used a mask when welding, probably because he smoked a pipe and wanted to be free to do that. He died of cancer of the bronchial tubes which I am sure was related to welding the copper," Nelson says.

BERTOIA'S WORKS CAN be found in museums in Europe, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Denver and New York City. He made a very good living with his work, Nelson says, although he was not as well known as other artists of his time.

"He was of the era of abstract impressionists but he was certainly not one of them. I do feel that he was one of the most talented of American artists of his time, as unrecognized as he was. He was not well known or doing spectacular things as were the abstract impressionists, but I feel he made his mark."

Nelson has probably written her last book on Bertoia, but doesn't rule out books on other artists. "There's a young sculptor friend of mine in Chicago I may write about one day. Right

BORDEN COURT

We are a Caretel^{1M} ... combining the very best in senior healthcare with the comforts of a fine, residential hotel. Just as you expect in a fine hotel, there is an emphasis on hospitality, courtesy and privacy. An emphasis we think makes for a very nice life at Peachwood Inn and Borden Court.

A Caretel looks different than other healthcare facilities from the moment you drive through the entrance. The landscaping, the architecture, and the layout of the building are all designed to enhance the residents' quality of life.

Inside Peachwood Inn and Borden Court, the individual rooms, restaurants, ice cream parlor, gift shop, and movie theatre encourage residents to interact with one another and their families.

We are the next place for Grandma and Grandpa to live happily and comfortably. A home they can entertain family and triends in; a home they can be proud of.

And there's no place like a fun place where family and friends. are always welcome to visit ... and become involved in special dinners, birthday parties, comedy hours, Saturday matinee's, brunches, wine and cheese parties, celebrations and dances.

Perhaps it's time to take a look at new possibilities. The kind you'll find in our special approach to senior care.

Farms, wife of the late Governor and Supreme Court Justice G. Mennan Williams, will receive the 1988 "Matilda R. Wilson Award of Honor" Wednesday, May 25, at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club. The occasion is the spring luncheon meeting of the Women's Association of the Boys & Girls Clubs of Southeastern Michigan.

The award, presented annually to a woman who has demonstrated exemplary efforts in service to others, is named for Matilda R. Wilson, widow of auto pioneer John Dodge. It was established to perpetuate Mrs. Wilson's humanitarian principles and high philanthropic standards. Each year, the Boys and Girls Clubs recognize a person who exhibits similar regard for the welfare of others, particularly young people.

Nancy Williams joined the American Red Cross during World War II, serving with the Canteen Corps and later as a Red Cross nurse's aide. She has served on the Board of Director of Women's Hospital (now Hutzel), as a member of the Junior Auxiliary of Sparrow Hospital, on the board of the Michigan League of Nursing and as advisor to the Michigan State Student Nurses Association.

Nancy Quick Williams of the Mother Seton Auxiliary of St. Joseph's Hospital, has served as a member of the District of Columbia League of Nursing for the United States Department of Health, Education and Welfare, was a member of the National Association of Social Workers and acted as Michigan State Chairperson for the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Mrs. Williams has served on the board of the YWCA and as a member of the Y-Teen Committee. At one time, she was a Cub Scout and Brownie Leader and functioned as honorary vice chairperson of the Girl Scout Council. She has also served as a board member with the Boys & Girls Clubs of Southeastern Michigan - Women's Association and is presently a member of that association.

St. John's Spectacular

Splash: More than 1,000 guests attended the St. John Hospital Fontbonne Auxiliary's 23rd annual Fashion Show and Luncheon at the Westin Hotel April 14, making the "Spring Spectacular Splash," a spectacular splash indeed.

Proceeds from the event will go to the St. John Hospital Occupational Therapy Department. Mary Audia-Vallier, OT department manager, thanked fashion show co-chairs Joanne

Marcil and Sandy Fulgenzi along with their committee members. "The occupational therapists of St. John Hospital help handicapped patients maintain their independence by teaching them new ways of doing simple tasks in a home environment setting," Audia-Vallier told the group. After lunch, models from Saks

Churches

The Pastor's Corner Using our gifts

By The Rev. Bryant Dennison Christ Church, Grosse Pointe

4B

There are varieties of gifts, but the same Spirit; and there are varieties of service, but the same Lord; and there are varieties of working, but it is the same God who inspires them all in every one. To each person is given the manifestation of the Spirit for the common good. (I Corinthians 12: 4-7)

This Sunday, Christians will celebrate the Day of Pentecost: the commemoration of God's gift of the Holy Spirit to the church. The passage quoted above is one which will be read in many churches on Pentecost. In it, Paul is trying to tell the Corinthians something about how the Holy Spirit operates in their life together.

In the verses which follow this passage, Paul identifies some of the specific gifts of the Spirit which are present in the life of the church. But his primary concern is the purpose for which these gifts have been given. "To each person is given the manifestation of the Spirit for the common good."

For the common good.

Our gifts, our abilities, our talents, may be impressive and wonderful. But they need to be used for something more than our own interests and concerns. They need to be used for the good of the community. They need to be used to build up the community. They need to be used to insure the health and strength of the community.

Paul's message is particularly directed to churches, but what he says is also true for the other communities in which we live: our families, our city, state and nation. We need to ask ourselves how our gifts can be used to strengthen and support the communities we are a part of.

How can my gifts be used to help Grosse Pointe be a better place to live? Can my abilities contribute to the public discussion on casino gambling in Detroit or the issue of continuing Medicaid funding for abortions for poor women?

Pentecost invites us to consider the extent to which we are using our gifts for the purposes intended by God: "... for the common good."

The Garden Cellar tea room in the Junior League of Detroit's 1988 Designers' Show House is light, airy and decorated with an English country garden theme. Salads, pastries, beverages, breads and cookles are available for purchase from 11 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday and 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Tuesday through Friday.

House 1988 can give even the butter-chocolate and lemon popmost veteran house tourist an appetite. Which is exactly what organizers were hoping for when they transformed an old billiards room into an English country "Garden Cellar" tea room.

Lunch is served in the tea room Tuesday through Sunday from 11 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. The menu includes tomato and basil pasta salad for $3.25 and garden vegetable pasta salad for $3.50; salads are catered by Pasta Fresca. An evening menu, served from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, consists of pastries from the Merry Mouse/Cafe Le Chat, and beverages.

Also available are cookies baked right in the tea room: chocolate chip, double chocolate, peanut butter and oatmeal. Ridley and Ross Specialty Breads Junior League Designers' Show chocolate, chocolate chip, peanut pyseed.

To create the warm, English country garden setting, Interiors by Design replaced dark green ceiling tile with drywall and new crown moulding. Two white ceiling fans were added to cool this busy area. Window-wells were lighted with track lighting and lattice, ivy and silk flowers were used for a garden look. Drapery treatments at entrances and all windows were kept in an 18th century swag and jabots style, playing up sunny yellow and "Country Life" chintz fabrics and wallcoverings.

Interiors by Design installed a white chintz canopy to cover the coved paneling and help reflect light and brighten the room. An antique Shaker bench and 18th century gateleg table (reproduction) were used to add warmth to this large room.

A butler's pantry was painted and wallpapered and its window frosted - all for peeking at, since the size of the tiny but lovely room doesn't allow for Show House traffic.

Garden Cellar tea room chairmen are Jackie Gray and Barbara Wagner.

The Show House, at 315 Washington Road in Grosse Pointe, is open now through May 30, Tuesday through Sunday from 11 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. and Tuesday through Friday evenings from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Garden Center's membership event June 10

Members, guests and prospective members of the Grosse Pointe Garden Center are looking forward to the organization's annual June Membership Event, to be held this year on June 10 at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, from 10:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Marilyn Hempstead, of Fox Hill Farms in Parma, will present a lecture on herb growing and usage, which will be followed by a gourmet picnic-basket lunch. There will be ample opportunity to browse thorugh a mini-fair of booths offering fresh herbs, herbal creations and garden accessories. Catalogs from Fox Hill Farms will be available with forms for ordering herbal products, topiary, special seeds, vinegars, potpourris, pomanders and much more.

Fox Hill Farms is a small, family-owned farm located in a setting of gently rolling hills, and is renowned for the variety and high quality of its many exotic herbal products.

Reservations for the event, which must be accompanied by payment, may be made through June 1. Make checks out to the Grosse Pointe Garden Center. The cost is $6 for members, $10 for guests. The Center is located

Optimists reward educational excellence

Photos by Peggy O'Connor Andrzejczyk

The Lakeshore Optimist Club of Grosse Pointe presented its annual Excellence in Education Awards at a breakfast meeting May 11 at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. At left, Optimist Phil Van Tiem presents an award to Janice Kay as Grosse Pointe Schools' Director of Special Education Claire Hunt looks on. Kay and two other special education teachers, Dick Markel and Karla Corio. (above) were honored.

Kay is a teacher-consultant for hearing-impaired students in the Grosse Pointe system. Markel and Corio are teachers in the system's Barnard Center on the campus of the Children's Home of Detroit.

Superintendent John Whritner told the Optimist Club that he was "delighted to see such a special group of people honored for their efforts." Dr. Hunt referred to the trio as "medal of honor caliber" teachers.

By Peggy O'Connor Andrzejczyk Assistant Editor/Feature Editor The way Dulcis Schenk sees it, her husband Frank worked hard for General Motors for 20 years and deserved the retirement benefits he earned as a member of GM management.

Unfortunately, Frank Schenk died before he could enjoy the fruits of his labor. And now it looks like his wife won't be able to collect them, either.

On March 1, GM dropped hearing aid and vision coverage to 84,000 salaried retirees. $\overline{B}y$ July 1, the automaker will restructure co-payments and deductibles on those with traditional coverage such as Blue Cross Blue Shield. That move could mean that some retirees and their survivors will pay up to \$750 for medical coverage currently provided free of charge.

The cutbacks are part of a number of benefit changes which include increased pension payments. For many, the increase in retirement pay is nominal compared to the out-of-pocket costs they now face for medical coverage.

Dulcis Schenk is one of a handful of retirees/retiree survivors who gathered at Whiting Auditorium in Flint last month to protest the cuts in benefits. Protest organizers have asked retirees across the country to write to GM Chairman Roger B. Smith in protest of the cuts.

'There are 84,000 of us who are very angry over what GM is doing," said Schenk, who lives on Bedford Road just over the Detroit border. "We're starting to organize and we figure if each of us would chip in about $100. we'd be able to hire an attorney who could fight this for us.

But for a retiree like Schenk. 3100 is a lot of money. Schenk's monthly benefits are around $540. She has not been able to obtain Social Security benefits. To her — and others in similar straits - the benefit cuts result in realities like this:

• $100 out-of-pocket cost for the therapist she sees twice monthly in an effort to deal with her husband's death.

• Under the PPO (Preferred Provider Organization) option she will switch to from the HMO (Health Maintenance Organization) plan she currently uses, Schenk will pay $3 per prescription rather than $1.

tion eyeglasses.

• A $750 co-pay for surgery • No payment for ambulance service except for between hospital transfers or approved CAT scan facilities. · No coverage outside Michigan.

• Only 70 percent coverage for routine office visits.

Schenk has a letter which GM mailed to salaried retirees stating that while no PPO and HMO contributions would be required in 1988, that such contributions are a "very real possibility for the future.

"We're getting shafted here. GM told us that they would take care of us, that we would not have to worry in our old age And here they are not living ap to their promise." Schenk said.

In a letter responding to queries from the office of Sen. Donald W. Riegle, Lewis Dale, director of General Motors' Washington office of industry-government relations, defended the benefit cuts of health care provisions: more than $2.9 billion in 1987. Dale's letter noted that GM's formal is based on programs as they exist at that time and that health benefits are subject to charge

Schenk and her daughter say that they only feel let down by GM "My dad sometimes worked 16 to 20 hours a day for 20 years If there was a problem on the line, he handled it. A trust was built in that time and that's gone now," said Schenk's daughter, Patty Lewandoski

Schenk admitted that she is luckier than many fellow GM retirees or their survivors. "I live with my daughter and her husband and I thank God every day for that. Without them, I don't know where I'd be," said Schenk, who suffers from several disabilities.

She fell down in front of Whiting Auditorium on her way into last month's meeting, but says she'll be among the protesters who will attend a GM stockholders' meeting at the Fisher Building Friday, May 20. Schenk said by pointing out the rising costs that the group hopes to get as many GM retirees as possible to join their fight.

"I'm a shy person. It took a lot formation relevant to those plans. I think that through unity and Grosse Pointes who want more strength, we can win this fight. information on the group may We're sure going to try." Schenk said that those GM

Craft council offers national craft guide

(ACC) - the nation's nonprofit advocacy organization for the contemporary craft movement has announced the publication of "American Craft 1988-89 Guide to Craft Galleries & Shops USA," an extensive listing of sources for the purchase of contemporary crafts.

The 56-page directory provides the address, telephone number, owner and director names, the year founded, types of crafts offered and the names of artists whose work is regularly presented for each of the 614 geographically-arranged entries.

The guide was distributed as a supplement to the April/May issue of American Craft magazine, ACC's bimonthly publication,

The American Craft Council which is received by the 35,000 members of the council.

The council's marketing arm, American Craft Enterprises, Inc. (ACE), initiated the supplement as part of a long-range program to connect craftspeople with retail outlets and the public. Carol Sedestrom Ross, President of ACE, noted, "Sales at the ACC fair in Baltimore this February increased from eight to 12 million, a testimony to the burgeoning interest of both consumers and the trade in unique, individualized products.

"The guide will serve all aspects of the craft community," continued Sedestrom Ross. "Craftspeople will be armed with a nationwide listing of potential showcases for their work. Shops N.Y., 10019.

and galleries will be more read ilty identified to the growing audience for hand crafted objects. And the public, particularly travelers, will have a unique data source."

Galleries and shops wishing to be included in the next edition should contact American Craft magazine at 45 West 45th Street, New York, New York, 10036, 212/869-9422.

Grosse Pointe A Unique Community

Architectural Diversity As the great variety of home sizes and styles suggests, growth has continued slowly over many years. It continues even today. Old estates are subdivided for building contemporary homes making the mansions that still survive (and many do) all the more treasured by their owners and tradition-minded residents. At the same time, the area includes homes of just about every style and size- from townhouses, twofamily units and other small homes to gracious English Tudors, colonials, executive mansions, contemporary ranch styles and a variety of modern designs, including condominiums.

This diversity has helped make Grosse Pointe attractive to all who value well-maintained quality which tar exceeds its price.

Grosse Pointe News

A dedication

The name Dick Cooper didn't mean much to me before I came to the Grosse Pointe News, but I quickly found how much the name and person meant to the community. I have also grown quite fond of the man.

Dick Cooper, a man who devotes endless hours to Grosse Pointe North High School. was recently honored in a 20-minute ceremony at North. Most people are remembered only after dying, but it was only fit ting that this man be around to see the dedication of "Cooper Square" while he is able to enojoy it.

Cooper Square is a section of land in the middle of North that many students enjoy while eating lunch, or reading books. It's a parcel of land that isn't large, but it will now signify the work, dedication and love that Dick Cooper gave - and continues to give — to that school.

Cooper's kids went through the Grosse Pointe school system. He watched them as well as others grow and never missed a camera assignment. When I first met Cooper, his best friend seemed to be a camera. Everywhere he went, his camera went. Everywhere a flash went off, Cooper was behind it. He is a man devoted to the kids, and finally he was honored in a ceremony that saw this relatively shy man shed a little tear. He even choked on a few of his words; something I've never seen him do before.

It was quite a moment. An unselfish man who still keeps his ties to the school even though his children have come and gone. He stood at a podium in the middle of 1,200 students and casually thanked everyone under the sun for the support he has received. And his thankfulness was reciprocated as the people turned out to thank him for his undivided attention to taking pictures for the clubs, sports teams, choirs, students, teachers and cheerleaders. This was his thank you. His time to get on the other side of the camera and be photographed.

Dedicating a plaque, a showcase or a square to a person still living doesn't happen often, but the administration felt that doing this now would mean so much more. I was touched by the reception he was given. The kids, who have come to appreciate this man for what he has done, clapped, cheered and even yelled "Coop" as he was introduced. He blushed and smiled a bit, but he is a humble man. A man of few words who has never once put himself

It's not an easy task, but somehow the South girls' track team found another way to beat the Lady Norsemen track team. This time South took the meet, 66-62.

Both teams were undefeated entering the meet, but someone had to come out with the first blemish of the season.

"I had already layed my cards out and didn't save them," Buhagiar said in relation to having used many of his top runners in earlier events. "But that's nothing the girls did. I guess I could have shuffled them around in a different way.'

Despite losing the meet, Buhagiar was still pleased with the effort his crew put forth.

"We ran our fastest times in every running event except the 800 relay,' he said. "Unfortunately they call this sport track and field."

Buhagiar was referring to the commanding lead South took (25-11) after the field events were over.

"We out ran them and out hurdled them," said Buhagiar, 'but they put us in a hole early with the field events.'

South's Dunrie Greiling tossed the discus 112-feet, six-inches to lift South in the field, while Sara Liliensiek, Vicki Groustra and Jenny Williams swept the high jump event.

"We had a really strong meet," said Zaranek. "On paper, they were a few points better than we were, but we came away with the win. The girls did what was really nice to see was that everything in this meet a 17.2 in the 100 hurdles, and a came from the heart," he said. "That's true about both teams."

North's Liz Bolden was a quadruple winner as she took the long jump, the 100, 200 and Kristen Gast, Tina Strader and Noelle Cormier teamed up to win the 400 relay. Shannon Andrewes won the half-mile and Nikki Van Oppens was first in the 1600 and 3200 runs; winning by over 10 seconds in both events. Samantha Henson was third in the shot and discus for North. South's 3200-meter relay team of Jenny Barber, Berger, Kraft and Toni Tedesco, who came from behind to win the race, ran a season-best 10:02.6.

"The winning was nice, but Kellie Buchanan landed the shot at 29-9 and Karen Ehreman ran 48.5 in the 300 hurdles. Cristy Gulesarian ran well for South in the 400, and Debbie Solterach was strong in the 3200 race.

"In four meets, they've won 400-meter runs. Amy Brennan, two at their place and we've won the two at our place," said Buhagiar. "Someday maybe the streaks will end."

> Although they've split the series over the last four years, Zaranek sees more of the same.

"It may well be this way for a long time," he said. "The tradition and rivalry throughout this decade has been a big thrill."

Especially when you win. South will host the regionals on May 21 at 9 a.m.

From the opening gun, both first.

Getting to know Dick Cooper was easy. His heart just opens up and you're allowed to enter with all your faults and blemishes. He gets to know the kids. He doesn't just know them through a smile or a snap shot; he knows them personally - with a genuine concern.

Dick Cooper and I have bumped into one another more than once while out shooting pictures. I have a job to do and that's the main reason I am in attendance, but this man doesn't have to take pictures. He has a heart that doesn't let him cheat the kids he has served for more than a decade. Sometimes he doesn't carry his camera, but he still goes to the games, the club meetings, and anything else he wants to. That's the minute portion of this man that makes him so big in everyone's heart — he doesn't have to go to any of the school functions he wants to; not for himself, but for you.

At the ceremony, North Athletic Director and confidante Tom Gauerke praised Cooper for his undying love for the kids and the school in front of a very attentive audience. Cooper, with his wife and children, sat perched on the hierarchy's chair of the day. All the superlatives that were tagged to this man are fitting, but it's an endless attempt to give him all the accolades he deserves.

In the course of being recognized, it was mentioned that Cooper has produced over 60,000 pictures since he started shooting in 1974. Sixty-thousand pictures of kids, parents, players and teachers - all for them, not for himself.

So, on that overcast day the sun didn't need to shine, because the glow from Dick Cooper's face was bright enough. Cooper Square will be around for an eternity. The garden, which lies in the middle of the square, was planted with bright flowers and a tree after the Varsity Club and Student Association raised the funds. At the front of the garden is a bronze plaque with the definition of why the garden is in place. Shortly before Cooper was asked to say a few words, he received a varsity letter jacket; the only adult to don a Norsemen letter jacket in the history of the school. As he told the kids, his family and friends that he loved them, the proud look on his face told the story: He is in love with the school, the community, and everyone that goes with it. He has given his life to North, and now they simply gave back a small piece of history to a man who captures history through a viewfinder.

It was a battle to the end as North's Shannon Andrewes (left) and South's Jenny Barber dash their way in the low hurdle event. Barber beat Andrewes by a fraction of a second.

Grosse Pointe North and Grosse Pointe South were back at it again this week on baseball the field.

North and South played a pre-district qualifying baseball game Tuesday afternoon at North High. The winner of that game will face Lakeshore at a later date. Going into the game, South held a 2-1 advantage in a three-game series this year.

Neiman leads Norsemen past Romeo

By John Guibord Special Writer

The North baseball team remained one game out of first place in the White Division of the Macomb Area Conference after sweeping a twinbill from Romeo, 13-11, 10-4.

Steve Neiman, the senior catcher, paced the Norsemen with six hits, two home runs and seven RBI. Also hitting solo home runs were, Scott Schorer, Chuck Thomas and Russell Rice.

North is 12-10 overall and 3-2 in the league.

Mike Rancilio, who according to coach Frank Sumbera pitched a "whale of a ball game," picked up the win after going the distance.

"We played well the first game by putting pressure on them," said Sumbera. "But in the second game we made too many errors and gave up too many walks.

Rick Regalado's two-run single in the fifth was the big blow for North in the opener as they cracked open a 2-2 lie.

Dino Vento lasted only 1/3 of an inning after his teammates gave him a four-run cushion at the end of one-half inning in the nightcap and after that the Devils' bats took over.

"Mike Rancilio did a nice job of keeping them off balance," Sumbera said about the right-hander. "He got a few big strike outs and got himself out of a few jams, with the help of our defense.'

Guiding the way

Now that we have dusted off our charts and replaced those that were outdated, we are now ready to look at the guidebooks.

Guidebooks are not intended to be used for navigation. Frequently they only have sketches of waterways, but they do offer good orientation information on approaches to harbors; often with aerial photographs, and frequently have names of key people offering services in the harbor that can be of assistance to the yachtsman.

The Waterway Guides are well known. There is a Great Lakes edition that gives specific navigational and facility information about the waterways and ports along the way. The guide makes some recommendations about anchorages and attractions that may be of interest. The Great Lakes edition includes the Hudson River, Erie Canal and the U.S. and Canadian shores of the Great Lakes. Cost, $18.95 to $21.95.

The Captain's Guide chart books focus on the Great Lakes. They are available for lakes Michigan and Huron as well as North Channel. They are especially helpful for making proper approaches to anchorages.

The Cruising Guide to the Great Lakes and Their Connecting Waters, is organized by lake. The book jacket indicates that "each chapter includes three categories of information essential to planning successful cruises: conditions encountered on the water, such as weather and sea patterns, navigational aids, radio and rescue services and navigational hazards; marinas and yacht clubs for every port with a summary of services, as well as anchorages in remote areas; tourist attractions, sights to see, recreational activities and commercial services in each port.'

Also, there are two books dealing with the northern portions of Lake Huron: The Sweet Water Sea, A Guide to Lake Huron's Georgian Bay, and Well Flavored Passage, a Guide to Lake Huron's North Channel. Both books are put out only by Huron books in Manchester, Mich. These well written volumes describe the idiosyncrasies of their respective bodies of water, as well as sights to see along the way. Well Flavored Passage has been reprinted many times attesting to its popularity. Both books will offer many hours of pleasure to the reader, and are a MUST for cruising yachtsmen heading into either Georgian Bay or the North Channel.

In addition to guidebooks, the skipper of the cruising yacht might find several government publications helpful.

The Notice of Mariners is published by the Coast Guard and is available free. Write to the District Commander, Ninth Coast Guard District, 1240 E. Ninth Street, Cleveland, Ohio 44199-2060, and ask to be put on the mailing list. Recipients are notified of all special notices, temporary changes, as well as permanent changes made on the Great Lakes since the last charts were printed.

The Coast Pilot, published by the National Ocean Service, is another useful guide to have. It gives specific information about the coastal areas, such as entrances to harbors, bridges, marina facilities, and services available. There are nine Coast Pilots available depending on which area of the country you need. Cost, $16.50.

The Canadian counterpart to the U.S. Coast Pilot is the Canadian Sailing Directions. This guide gives much the same information as the United States Coast Pilot for Canadian Waters. Also, there are many Sailing Directions published for the various coastal regions of Canada. The cost varies.

Our own State of Michigan publishes an excellent Michigan Harbors Guide, updated each year. It is published by the Department of Natural Resources and the Michigan State Waterways Commission. It lists all recreational harbors in the state. The guide indicates available services and gives pertinent phone numbers. Best of all it is free. Most boating stores ha supplies to give away to customers, and they are available at the marinas as well. According to the guide, "Michigan is plan ning more harbors, so that no boater is ever more than 15 miles from a safe harbor.' The armchair yachtsman can now recline with any number of good Great Lakes guidebooks, and enjoy boating about the Lakes without ever leaving the comfort of the couch. Those more adventurous souls will be well prepared for the upcoming travel season.

Devils win E.M.L. tennis trophy

By Rob Fullon Sports Editor

It's becoming old hat to state that South won another Eastern Michigan League championship in tennis, but this one had a different twist to it.

Don Zysk, who is retiring from South at the end of the school year, picked up his final coaching trophy as South won five championship flights and one consolation final.

"This one was very nice," said Zysk. "The kids really had a great tournament and yes it was nice to win the league again."

Zysk, who in previous years has gone into the league matches as the heavy favorite, didn't know what would happen this season.

"This was one we absolutely didn't have in the bag when we started," said Zysk. "The kids responded very well to the challenges, and believe me, we had plenty of them during the championships.'

League winners included, Lee Lorenzini (No. 1 singles), Jeff Giraldo (No. 2 singles), John Lamb and Ben Bayko (No. 1 doubles), Bill Huntington and Ray Tumader (No. 2 doubles), and Craig Kostecke and Bill Wundram (No. 3 doubles). Mike Disser went to the finals at No. 3 singles, and Matt Smucker won two matches to take the consolation bracket at No. 4 singles.

"The team is really playing Softball well right now, and all we can look for now is to do well in the regional tournament," Zysk said. The regionals will be held May 20-21 at Chippewa Valley.

Boys' track

Phil Orton and Paul Heymes finished one and two in the 3200-meter run to edge Anchor Bay, 69-68, in track action last week.

South, 4-2 in the E.M.L., was victorious in the 1600 relay, as Durman Ransom, Mike Curc, Jamie Nevison and Scott Schaupeter teamed up to take the event. Other first-place winners were, Joe Reynolds (discus), Jeff Maccagnone (pole vault), and Pat Bruce (high jump). Kyle Schomaker won the high hurdles (15.41).

In the battle for city pride, South was shelled by North, 93-44, dropping South to 6-4 overall "North won all the relay events," said South coach Tom Wise. "If we could have had half those points, we would have made it a lot closer."

Mark Sonnenberg won the 1600 (4:33.35) and the 3200 (1: 15.62) events, and Bruce broke the junior high jump record. Schomaker won the high hurdles (15.59) and Steve Rice was third in the long jump.

The long season continued to linger for the softballers, as they picked up a split-decision in two matches last week.

Darcy Jones took the 5-4 loss to Port Huron Northern, but bounced back to yield only seven hits to beat L'Anse Creuse North, 8-5.

Lori Vantassell was 2-for-2 against Northern, and Holly Asmus and Laurel Wolfe each had two hits.

South scored three times in the top of the seventh, but lost it on a single in the bottom of that frame.

Jones received plenty of offensive support against North as Becky Wysocki had three hits, and Meg Nelson, Leigh Leonard, Jenny Kalmink and Wolfe each had one hit. Jones aided her own cause with two hits, including a triple.

South used a five-run fifth to take a commanding 7-3 lead.

South is 5-6 in the league, and 9-15 overall with the district playoffs left on the schedule.

Baseball

Marcus Wysocki picked up his eighth win of the season on a 5-1 victory over Port Huron Northern. With the win, South took over sole possession of first place in the league; one percentage point ahead of L'Anse Creuse North (7-3).

Wysocki tossed a two-hitter and fanned seven. Mike Paull laced a solo homer and Dale Wilson and Bryan Jones had two hits apiece. Marty Van Almen had a sacrifice fly.

In a twinbill against Grosse Pointe North, Dan Monahan took the 8-3 loss for South in the opener, but South took the nightcap 24-5 to up its overall record to 17-6.

Nick Saros carried the heavy lumber in the nightcap as he nailed two home runs. Dale Wilson cleared the fence as well, and Wysocki set a school record with his 10th homer of the year.

South had 20 hits in the second game, but five errors gave North the win in the opener.

"Poor defense," said South coach Dan Griesbaum. "You can't make five errors against a strong team and expect to come out of it with the win.

"We just made too many mistakes," Griesbaum added.

South (8-3 in E.M.L.) could clinch at least a tie (having played Roseville last night), for the league championship with one win in two of its last games. South rounds out the league schedule at Port Huron on May 23

Two victories pushed the girls' lacrosse team to one game over .500.

ULS (6-5) beat Hathaway Brown (12-9) and Laurel Shool (11-9).

ULS goals against Hathaway were scored by Cathy Petzold (4). Shirley Kim (1). Holly Waggoner (3), and Molly Shields, Sarah Stackpoole, Wendy Ford and Allison FitzSimons.

After leading 6-3 at halftime of the Laurel game, ULS gave up five goals and trailed 8-6 with only 10 minutes left. After a quick timeout, ULS returned the favor by scoring five goals and allowing one. Dana Warnez saved 13 shots in goal, and Petzold scored five goals. Waggoner had three goals. Shields, Lesley MacLeod and Ford had one goal each.

On May 20-21, ULS travels to the Midwest Championships in Ohio where teams from Michigan, New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio compete for the crown.

Allison FitzSimons and Mac-Leod have been selected to the All-Midwest team and will go to West Chester, Penn. to play in the National Tournament over the Memorial Day weekend.

Trying to control weight gain

Charlie Kuntzleman, exercise Physiologist, author of Activetics has some important information for you regarding weight control. Try to remember that "there is no easy way" to "weigh" less. Machines won't do it. Aerobic activity will. If it's too easy, it won't work!

Overeating is the basic cause of obesity.

False. The main cause of obesity is underdoing, not overeating. As a general rule we have all become too sedentary. Over the years there have been some drastic changes in our society. We have more labor saving devices than ever before.

With all our appliances, gadgets and gizmos, our power this and authomatic that, we can do with the flick of a switch or the push of button what once would have taken body power - and lots of it - to accomplish. While one device would not be a problem - all of them are.

People do not eat anymore than they did 60 years ago, they simply exercise less.

If you are out of balance by 250 calories a day, you will gain 10 pounds in a year.

False. If you are out of balance by only 100 calories a day you will be 10 pounds heavier by the end of the year. Most overweight problems are the result of being just a few calories a day out of balance. Just switching from the manual to the electric typewriter will cause you to burn off seven or eight fewer calories per hour. These calories can make a six pound difference by the end of the vear.

If you exercise, your appetite will increase.

False. There's conclusive cientific evidence that for a discipline, and self-motivation all start with word "self?" That is because to accomplish your goals you must begin

Self-control is rooted in the idea that life is a "do-it-yourself" project - that each of us, as individuals, must assume 100 percent responsibility for our actions. We each have choices to make. By learning to make substitutions, choosing to replace a habit that is detrimental to us with one that is life-giving instead will help modify our behavior.

Self-discipline is putting those goals into actions. We can begin with baby steps; working our way closer and closer to our dream. By realizing that changes do not come overnight, we will be better prepared to pace ourselves as we travel towards our goal. If we were planning to drive together to Florida from Michigan, and I said we should be there in four hours, you would think I was crazy and probably not get in the car with me! The same goes when we chart out new territory for changes in our lives. We must be realistic and incorporate short-term goals. Then you have formed a method to see where you have come from, and where you are still going. Self-motivation is simply giving yourself "pep-talks" along the way. It is the spark that kindles the flame of action; it is the burst of desire and determination that will help you rekindle your dream when you are up against obtacles that are getting in your way. Remember the "Little Engine That Could?" It is a most appropriate story, whether you are eight or 80!

Another "self" concept that is important is the self-fulfilling prophecy. Change an old phrase slightly and then consider it. "You will see it, when you can believe it." Once you have committed to a goal, you must firmly convince your mind that it is already a reality. This can be effectively accomplished through a combination of relaxation and visualization. This process takes a mere 15 to 20 minutes of your day, but will reward you with success throughout the rest of your life.

Following is the 10 step program of relaxation and visualization applied at Diet Center. Give yourself a chance and try it for at least 10 consecutive days. You will be glad you did!

1) Sit in a comfortable chair, wiggle your toes and adjust your feet, arms back to be perfectly comfortable.

2) Take three deep breaths

5) Know that with every breath you take you go deeper and deeper into this beautiful state of looseness, agelessness, and complete relaxation.

6) Quiet your mind. Let thoughts drift through it until they are gone and your mind is like a clean slate.

7) Imagine yourself strolling through a large park ... the sunlight twinkles through the trees and dances in patterns along your path ... the air is fresh and clean this morning ... you can hear birds chirping ... you enjoy this day, because it is special and was made just for you . . . you come upon a turn in the path . . . following it, you see it winds along the edge of a beautiful sparkling pond you decide to sit down in the dappled shade to watch the ducks . . . as you are walking back you realize you are successful ... you have met another challenge and you are stronger because of it ... whenever you are troubled, worried or anxious, you will sedentary person an increase in exercise does not lead to an increase in appetite except, possibly, for the first few days. The myth increased activity leads to eating dies hard. It has been demonstrated by Dr. Jean Maver. Professor of Nutrition at Harvard, and others, that the more sedentary a person, the greater the appetite. Furthermore, there is a tendency to reduce caloric consumption upon engaging in increased activity.

Only fat is lost when you diet.

False. As mentioned earlier, a certain amount of vour weight is fat and a certain amount is lean body tissue. When you use diet as the sole means of losing weight you may lose some fat, but you will also lose the lean body tissue. Even if your protein intake is inadequate. Hence, many dieters look gaunt and drawn after losing their weight. When you exercise to lose pounds you will find that practically all the weight lost is fat. Hence, the exerciser looks and feels a whole lot better after weight loss than the dieter.

You can massage fat off your body.

False. You cannot remove the fat from fat cells either by massage or high pressure. Relaxation and deep breathing have nothing to do with fat removal. Working the kidneys overtime only reduces water stores in the body which are refilled after taking in more liquids. The only way to get rid of fat is through exercise ... burning off more calories than you consume. cellulite, or so-called orange peel fat, is nothing more than plain fat. Massage all you want, the fat will remain unless you increase your activity and start burning off calories.

evaluate what went wrong and why we got off the track once more, it may help to really look at the true reason things began to fall apart instead of blaming our demise on "outside" influences.

For many of us that have a weight problem, the major reason we may not be able to maintain healthy eating habits is that we continue to think with a "fat" head. Our head may still operate on all of the old systems. We are proud of the 10 pounds we lost. It was a lot of hard work and effort, so we reward oursleves with a big chocolate you do. In order to change your life you must be willing to change your mind first.

The first step in behavior modification is the acceptance of responsibility for yourself and for your actions. To reinforce your commitment to your goal, go one step further and put your commitment down on paper. Written goals will become more real to you, and they are there in black and white for you to review. They now have form and substance, rather than staying an idle thought.

Have you ever noticed that the words self-control, selfto release the tension. Take it easy, breathe in through the nose, let it out gently through the mouth.

3) Tense your left foot, hold for the count of three, release. Do the same with the right foot. Let go and feel what "limp" really means. Do the same with your leg muscles, working your way up your entire body.

4) Enjoy the feeling of limp, relaxed heaviness as it creeps up your entire body, until you are so quieted that you are aware of your breathing.

recall in your mind's eye that when you take time to relax, you are in control again.

8) You now take three deep cleansing breaths, remember, breath easy, in through the nose, out through the mouth.

9) Now tell yourself that at the count of three you will emerge from this quiet time and feel relaxed, renewed and wonderful.

10) ONE, TWO THREE. I feel great, and I not only think I can, I know I can!

Cottage Hospital hosts sports medicine, trainer symposium

CHAMP, the Cottage Hospital Athletic Medicine Program, is sponsoring a two-day symposium, Tuesday and Wednesday, June 21-22. The program is designed to prepare students to function as student trainers for their schools and to provide coaches with a better working knowledge of athletic injury care.

The series of lectures and practical lab sessions will begin at 8:30 a.m. and run until 5:30 p.m. - both days. Presenters include, Nathan Gross, M.D., a specialist in physical medicine, Beth Ayn Deutsch, M.Ed., A.T.,C., camp director Marti Van Eenenaam, A.T.,C., along with Bill Sparks, R.P.T., and Meda Harrison, R.D., an expert in athletic nutrition at Henry Ford Hospital.

'Babette's Feast': A nourishing, sensual, spiritual film

ble of the need in life for both sensual and spiritual nourishin Denmark.

In this time and place, in 1885, the world stands still. Thatched-roofed dwellings cluster together to form a Lutheran community where two elderly Danish sisters, Martina (Brigitte Federspiel) and Phillipa (Bodie Kjer) carry on the stern tradition of their late vicar father.

Their life is sparse and rigid, yet for them fulfilling. They share meager rations with those who have less, conduct prayer meetings in their home and lead the little congregation in hymns of praise and thanks to God.

They live at peace with themwere young, had turned down an opportunity to marry and leave turn she works as a maid pre-

Martina was wooed by a handsome "Babette's Feast," a gentle fa- cavalry officer (Gridmar Wivesson), and Philippa by a famous Parisian opera singer (Jeanment, unfolds against the soft Phippe Lafont). They chose inand muted landscape of a island stead to remain with their father and live a life of asceticism, prayer and good works. A link with a world beyond their shores, however, had been forged. Thirty years later, Babette (Stephane Audran), a French woman fleeing a bloody civil war, is dropped on their Jutland coast. She arrives at the sisters' door bearing a letter selves and without regret al- from the opera singer. In it he paring spartan meals (stale bread soaked in beer, boiled and mashed through a strainer). For 14 years with little variations she prepares such food, and then word comes that Babette has 10,000 francs in the French lotto.

She pleads with the sisters to allow her to prepare a real French dinner, Reluctantly, they agree.

But they don't know that Babette was once the greatest chef in Paris. A true artist, she expressed herself by creating succulent dishes. What they are about to experience is a feast, a dinner that becomes the star attraction of the movie.

Martina's cavalry officer, older and disillusioned with what he thought would be a life of excitement and glitter, returns to escort his elderly aunt to the dinner. He is the only guest who dares to praise the food. The though each of them, when they asks the sisters to give the refu- others, believing that it is gee a home. They do, and in re- wicked to indulge the appetite, have vowed that they will eat to enjoy it.

The highlight of the film comes as the camera lingers lovingly on their faces and the expressions of delight and joy they experience as they eat the food and drink the wine. In that segment, sensuousness and spirituality come togther.

More than the narrator, the camera carries the story. The elderly characters become Rembrandt portraits. Subtly it catches the glances between Martina and her officer and we know that their love still lives. It goes into the kitchen to show Babette turning each succulent dish into a work of art and it captures the rugged, lonely beauty of the Jutland coast.

In another segment there are no words needed to know the passion that exists between Phillipa and her opera singer as their voices mingle and soar in an intensely seductive scene.

'Dead Heat' easily 1 of year's 10 worst

By Michael Chapp Special Writer

Easily one of the year's worst films, "Dead Heat" lacks originality, style, wit and substance. Add to this the fact that viewers had every reason to expect more from the piece, and you're left with a sure-fire disappointment.

Joe Piscopo and Treat Williams, respected actors both, do nothing to save "Heat" from its built-in faults. Take the plot, for instance: An evil company resur-

Later, when Vincent Price makes a cameo appearance as the evil company's wealthy benefactor, he explains his rationale for building the resurrection machine: "Life and death are both expressions of the same eternal spirit," he says ominously.

Indeed. The picture is good evidence of that. It is rare so many ostensibly living persons can be repsonsible for such a dead film.

There is one thing that can be said for "Dead Heat." If you're a fan of gross-out pictures — if you can't get enough of "The Exorcist" and "Dawn of the Dead" --this may be a worthwhile experience for you. There are more shots here of decomposing bodies and bloody extremeties than you're likely to find in a host of other pictures. Better pictures.

"Dead Heat" is a certifiable dog. Reserve space on your year's "10 Worst" list; it's guaranteed to end up there eventually. And stay home and watch Piscopo's Miller Light commercials instead. They're free. And they're a heck of a lot more amusing.

'Highway as Habitat' at Henry Ford Museum

Going for a drive on a Sunday afternoon 40 years ago promised more excitement and adventure than it might today. Just riding in a car was still a novelty to some.

Back then, you might easily discover down a dirt road a secluded lake to picnic by, or a roadside stand with fresh produce to take home, or a cider mill nestled amidst fall colors -even a diner, promising the best french fries in the world.

"The Highway as Habitat: A Roy Stryker Documentation, 1943-1955," at Henry Ford Museum, March 19 to June 12, is a photographic exhibit of 136 black and white images capturing that bygone era.

Executed under the direction of sociologist Roy Stryker for Standard Oil of New Jersey, the documentary project, from which the exhibit was drawn, produced more than images that have become a narrative of their time the time when the automobile had revolutionized American culture, but not yet overwhelmed the landscape.
