Sen. Kelly on JOA: 'Monopolies are never compassionate'

Public hearing scheduled on Barnes soccer field plan

By Peter A. Salinas Staff Writer

With at least $50,000 in place to develop two new soccer fields at the Barnes Center in the Woods, school and soccer association officials learned recently that the city will require a public hearing on the proposed pro-

Officials thought that with the recent approval from the school board for $25,000 toward the project, work could begin immediately. With a Woods Planning Commission meeting Aug. 23 to schedule the matter, no hearing will be held until Sept. 27 at the earliest, Woods officials said.

Dave King, director of support services for the schools, presented the school board with a tentative site plan for developing two fields at its Aug. 15 meet-

He said that the memorandum of understanding between the district and the associations should clearly state that the association provide its funding for this project up front before any work could begin. A signed written agreement was a prerequisite required by the school board before its money would be spent.

King, who met with association officials last week, said orignally the associations had planned to spend about $70,000 two develop two new fields at Barnes complete with sloping seeding, drainage tiles and irrigation.

John Bruce, director of the Neighborhood Club, said that was the original plan, but when the board of education did not act on the matter, the associations decided to develop Ford Field in the Shores.

"We will be talking to neighbors around the Barnes area," King said. "What we will likely do is have members of the soccer association from the Woods talk with their neighbors. The school's funds for this project will not be released until the details are settled."

Bruce expressed concerns over the Woods decision to hold a public hearing.

"There is no question that the timing to get this project under way is critical," Bruce said. "The fields will need two growing seasons — a spring and fall or a fall and spring — before they can be used. A delay will reduce the critical maintenance time. Our biggest concern is that by waiting until ofter the public hearing (Sept. 27), we may not have enough time this fall.

Bruce pointed out that Barnes is already a multiple-use site.

Dan Milleville's Tree Service arrived at 942 Sunningdale Friday. Aug. 16, to cut down what is probably the oldest elm tree in Michigan.

Tom Neych, who took the day off to videotape the dismemberment of the 70-foot high elm, said that previous owners of the house had a boring done on the tree about 15 years ago and determined the tree was 345 years. old then, making it at least 360 years old now

"Joggers stop while they're running and hug the tree," Lorraine Neych said, "People will stop their cars and get out and have their picture taken next to it rain or shine.'

Almost three years ago, the tree was struck by lightning. A huge two-foot wide section of the tree was brought down by the thunderbolt.

Over the past five years, the Neychs have spent almost $4,000 to save the impressive

But Woods city officials didn't agree. They had tagged the tree for removal three years ago, but let the Neyches try to save it. When the disease spread this year, fueled by the added stress of the severe drought, the tree died rapidly.

"All I can do is moan," Neych said as large branches of the tree met the tree surgeon's chainsaw. "I don't know what to imagine what the house will look like. The neighbors have said they can't imagine what the neighborhood will be like without the

The Neyches said that Daniel Altland had owned the house. He had the house built around two large elms - the rear yard elm succumbed to disease several years ago.

Nevch said he is really distressed by the loss of the tree.

"The tragedy is that it is a thing of beauty and you have to pay to get rid of it," Neych said. "Then you wind up with less than what you originally had. It's like paying a lot of money for a funeral.'

Kennedy says he'll keep an eye on Ficano

By Peter A. Salinas Staff Writer

Though Grosse Pointe Public Safety Director Bruce Kennedy lost his bid for Wayne County sheriff by a 2 to 1 margin, he said he accomplished what he set out to do - get the attention of the department and the county's residents. Kennedy secured enough votes in the Pointes to win the election against the incumbent, but Sheriff Robert Ficano clearly won everywhere else.

"It was this little old police chief from a small suburb taking on the entire Democratic machine," Kennedy said. "It was a no-lose situation for me. I found out that I had a lot of great friends out there, and I made many new friends. I think I grew philosophically, and I did what we intended to do - to get our law enforcement message

Kennedy's main criticism of Ficano, who has held the job for five years and will begin his second term as sheriff next year, is that Ficano, 35, is not a professional law enforcement officer.

Kennedy noted in his campaign literature and talks that Ficano had never made an arrest when he was appointed to the job five years ago.

"I don't feel that the sheriff's position should be used to embellish one's political career," Kennedy said.

Kennedy, who is 55 and has more than 30 years of law enforcement experience, said he sent a telegram to Ficano on the night of the election congratulating him on his victory personally and on behalf of the Wayne County Association of Chiefs of Police as its president.

"We don't want to be at odds with another law enforcement agency," Kennedy said. "Our goal is to have total cooperation between the agencies. We're elated that the jail millage passed. I still feel that the privatization issue should have been more thoroughly explored."

Kennedy said there will be many people watching the sheriff's department and its leader

"If he continues to use the office to help his political career, then I'll be there to take another run at it (the job)," he said. "I hope we don't have to."

After being elected to the office four years ago, Ficano ran Wayne County executive against Edward McNamara, who

"If he runs for another office again while he's sheriff, he should be recalled," Kennedy

Kennedy, who had the support of the Detroit Police Department's Command Officer's Association and endorsements from the Detroit Free Press, Grosse Pointe News and the Michigan Chronicle, said there was no way he could win against the powerful Democratic machine in Wayne County.

"I'm not a politician," Kennedy said, "but if there's a cause out there that needs defending and my support, then I'm going to be there.

He said he hopes the various agencies can work together now that the jail millage is passed and "get that jail built, and get the criminals off the street.

"We should take care of our local law enforcement needs before we lease space to the federal government in our county jail," Kennedy said.

He said that McNamara has asked the Wayne County Association of Chiefs of Police to form a committee to look at the creation of a new Wayne County Department of Corrections. Ken-

Juvenile court committee receives national award

The Citizens Advisory Committee to the Wayne County Juvenile Court recently received the "Outstanding Advisory Council to a Juvenile Court" award from the National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges at its 51st annual conference in Fort Lauderdale last week.

The overall goal of this committee is to improve services to neglected, abused and delinquent children involved with the juvenile justice system.

Among specific goals are to increase communication between the Probate Court and Wayne County citizens, assist the court in developing community based programs for children and families, develop voluntary and other resources to assist the court, advocate in behalf of neglect, abused and delinquent children, assist the court to effectively and county

Lead in drinking water - a public health threat - is not a problem in Michigan or in Grosse Pointe, according to Grosse Pointe City Manager Thomas Kressbach.

"I can't recall any problem," he said. "To the best of our knowledge, there's no lead in our water, based on tests taken when it comes out of Lake St.

The city recently published information, however, about the possibility of lead in residents' drinking water.

According to Kressbach, the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1986 requires publication of information about the adverse effects of lead in the public's supply of drinking water as a preliminary for its implementation.

'The choice was to publish this three times or to include it in a flyer with city water bills," Kressbach said.

The Farms, which supplies water for itself and the City, published the information in a newsletter. The city of Detroit, which supplies water to the other three Grosse Pointes, published the information in the Detroit dailies.

Basically, the notice tells consumers that lead is a toxic metal that is harmful to human health. It can accumulate in the body and cause damage to the brain, kidneys, nervous system and red blood cells. Children and pregnant women are at greatest risk to damages resulting from lead.

Lead may be acquired from food, airborne pollutants and drinking water.

The current standard set by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency sets drinking water standards of 0.050 parts per million, and this may soon be lowered.

Even though City water is lead-free, lead may still leach into individual homeowners' water supplies through contamination by home plumbing systems. Homes built before the 1900s may contain lead plumbing. Galvanized and copper pipes were used after the turn of the century, but they were often joined with lead solder.

will prosecute.' Kennedy said that if people comply with the ordinance, they will have to find another means of removing paint from their dwelling other than a paint torch or heat gun.

"We just won't issue the permit," Kennedy said.

Farms Fire Chief Sam Candella said after the Kenwood Court fire, he began putting together some statistics for the city council. He turned over those figures to the council, and it will be considering a stricter local ordinance perhaps banning the use of paint torches and heat guns in the city.

"I would say we have two or three such fires a year," Candella said. "The fire on Harbor Hill last year was started with a heat gun, and they are supposed to be safe. Just remember that propane torches or heat guns removes paint at about 1,000 degrees, and that wood burns at 500 degrees. There is plenty of dust and cobwebs in an attic that catch fire easily. Before you know it, a fire has gotten a real good start."

Park Deputy Director of Public Safety Phillip Costa said his city has adopted the BOCA code as its local ordinance, and residents there are also bound to get a permit.

'I wouldn't issue one," Costa "The liability is just too great. We would have to go to the house and make sure there was a fire extinguisher on site or a hose and then make sure that the painter or homeowner was there for one hour after use.'

Costa added than an hour simply isn't enough time. He said that in an attic, where most of types kinds of fires occur, there are numerous kinds of flammable materials which may smolder for hours before igniting.

"Since I was made fire chief in 1972." Costa noted, "I would say there have been at least 15 fires where the department had to respond to put out a fire caused by paint torches.'

Woods Building Inspector and Fire Marshal Earl Wakely said

"I have driven through the city and seen people removing paint with a torch," Wakely said. "I stop them and tell them they have to come into the office to acquire a permit."

Wakely said that he feels the majority of house fires which start as a result of paint torches occur in the City, Park and Farms because many of the houses there are older wooden frame structures.

"Many of our homes here are relatively newer and of brick construction," Wakely said. "I only recall one fire caused as a result of paint removal last year.'

That structure was a garage, and while the homeowner technically needed a permit to remove the paint, there was no prosecution in the case.

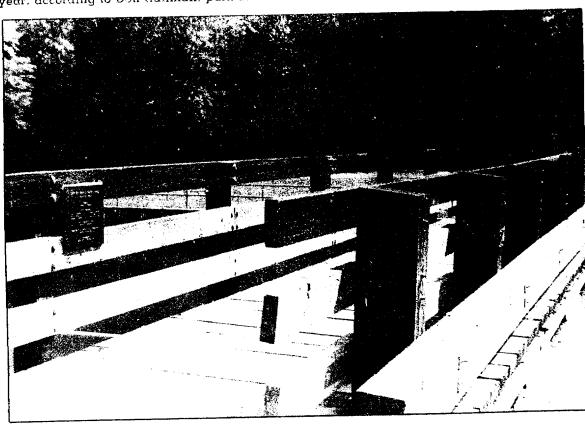

Kennedy was firm in his commitment to wipe out paint torch and heat gun use in his city.

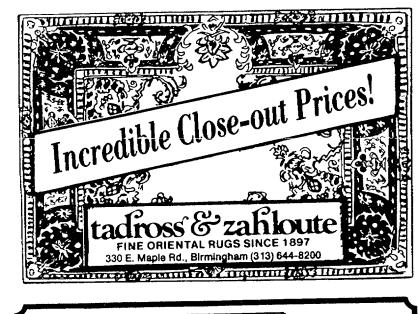

"We may not be able to stop someone from using a paint torch," Kennedy said, "but we can prosecute if they do start a fire with one. I think after a couple of people are prosecuted, other people will get the mes-

Danny who? Bush bows to the GOP right ice President George Bush wound down the Republican National Convention last week with an acceptance speech that reiterated the conservative credos of the Reagan administration but also called for a better, kinder, gentler America.

The vice president spoke with a new confidence, as if to emphasize that he is now the man in charge of the Republican Party's destiny, but after promising to reject the temptation to engage in personal references, he did get off a series of negative one-liners at the expense of Gov. Michael Dukakis and the Democrats.

Bush's address appeared to consist of equal parts of praise for the accomplishments of the Reagan-Bush administration, criticism of the Democrats and perhaps an excessive number of references to his own record in war, government and business

It was, however, the thoughtful speech of a new party leader who appeared ready and eager to take on the Democrats from the very night the convention closed. Yet there lingered the possibility that the 1988 Opinion

Republican standard bearer had failed in his first major mission: the choice of Sen. Dan Quayle of Indiana as his running

True, Quayle was quickly accepted by most of the right-wing conservatives who controlled the convention even though in their hearts their first choice was Rep. Jack Kemp of New York. Yet in taking the little-known Quayle, Bush was making sure that he, and not his vice presidential choice, would be the leader of the Bush band in the fall election campaign.

In selecting Quayle, Bush also bowed to the GOP far right and that could prove to be a disadvantage. Michael Dukakis and the Democrats sought the middle of the road in their platform and their vice presidential choice, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, and thus may be able to make a stronger appeal to moderates, whether they're Republicans, Democrats or independents.

While most of the questions about Quayle's qualifications came from the media, they were of sufficient seriousness to require the attention of the Bush team.

The major questions boiled down to whether Quayle had used the influence of his family and friends to get into the National Guard and thus escape military service in Vietnam, and whether he had been entirely responsive when Bush's interrogation team had questioned him about his military record.

Even though the Bush camp accepted Quayle's explanations and sought to put most of the blame for the controversy on the media, the flap did throw a little sand into the Bush team's well-oiled machinery for getting the GOP campaign started on a positive note.

Whether the controversy will have any lasting effect on the campaign is doubtful. But it did serve to point up several facts that make Quayle a less than ideal candidate: His name is not exactly a household word in Republican circles; there are many other Republicans in Congress and in state capitols with qualifications that would seem to be much better than the Indiana senator's, and the prospect that in the event of a GOP victory the unknown and untried Quayle would be only a heartbeat away from the presidency does not reassure all Republicans and potential GOP

True, Bush and his backers sought to emphasize the positive attributes that had led them to choose Quayle for the vice presidential nomination: He is a good campaigner. He is a youthful, attractive figure who should appeal to voters across the boards and especially to the baby boom generation he represents. And he has a reputation for following a tough conservative line on defense and other issues that attracts the support of the GOP right

Whether he also will appeal to women voters, as claimed, and thus close the gender gap that George Bush has been experiencing in the national polls is at least questionable. Most women are more interested in a candidate's political performance than in his appearance and some women were angered that the Bush team thought they would sell out their feminist agenda for a handsome face.

Even though Bush seemed to become his own man in his address, and was acclaimed by the delegates, the party did not emerge from its convention with an easy victory in sight in November. The GOP still may win, with the help of President Ronald Reagan and a thriving economy, but the Democratic chances substantially improved as a result of the Quayle nomination and the squabbles over it in the aftermath of the Republican convention.

Another delay for the JOA temporary restraining order now has delayed the implementation of the joint operating agreement between The Detroit News and Detroit Free Press at least until Sept. 8 and probably for a longer period. It is even possible the JOA could be overturned and Detroit could become a one-daily city as a result of the prolongation of the litigation.

Whatever one thinks of the JOA and the last-minute federal order that stopped it, one has to be concerned about the trauma and the stress imposed on all employees of the two papers, to say nothing of the confusion caused in the executive ranks of both papers. Many of the executives and employees are Pointe residents and so we are talking about friends and neighbors who are affected by the JOA.

Nor is the end necessarily in sight. Whatever the decision of U.S. Federal Judge George H. Revercomb, who is scheduled to hear the case Sept. 8 in Washington, the loser still would have the right to appeal. And nobody knows how long it would take to settle that action. The JOA already has been pending for more than two years.

In granting the temporary reprieve, Judge Green ruled that the opposition group had made a sufficient showing that Attorney General Edwin Meese's Aug. 8 decision to approve the JOA was "arbitrary and capricious and is contrary to law." She rejected the newspapers' contention the group had no standing in law to request the order as well as the Free Press' argument it cannot survive in continued competition with the News.

State Sen. John F. Kelly, whose 1st District includes the Pointes, is one of the leaders in the Michigan Citizens for an Independent Press. Kelly, sometimes described as a "loose cannon" by his Lansing colleagues, tends to thrive on publicity. But nobody questions his right to take part in the anti-JOA action, except, perhaps, the newspapers' lawyers.

In their suit, he and his colleagues contend that neither paper qualifies for a JOA because neither can legitimately be considered a failing newspaper and the merger would "remove the beneficial effects of competition on the quality" and is likely to cause an increase in Detroit newspaper prices. In fact, such increases already had been announced before the court action be-

As we've said before, we, too, dislike the JOA proposal but we prefer it to having Detroit become a one-daily city. Knight-Ridder has said it would close down the Free Press if it didn't get the JOA. The Kelly group did not address that alternative so far as we know.

One way to cut jail costs

ounty Executive Edward Mc-Namara's bid to wrest control of the county's jail system from Sheriff Robert Ficano has aroused strong objections from the sheriff, as might be expected.

Ficano, just assured of re-election by winning the Democratic nomination in the Aug. 2 primary, called McNamara's move "nothing more than a blatant power grab." Whether that is an accurate description or not, Ficano should know all about power grabs since he was the beneficiary of one when he was first appointed sheriff.

Ficano, who flew back from a Florida vacation to defend his department, called McNamara's proposal "foolish" and "an incredibly irresponsible move with no merit, that risks the financial future of the county." He said he wished the executive were more interested in cooperation than confrontation and added that the plan was "not supported by the state Constitution or the county charter."

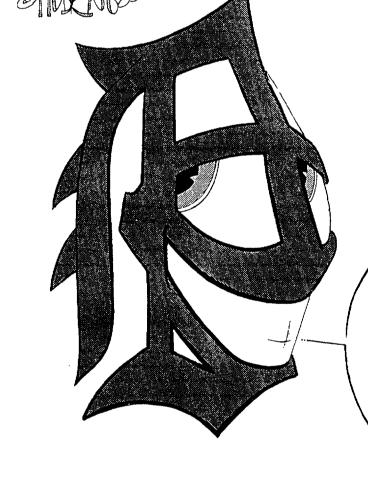

McNamara has asked, in a 16-page legal brief filed with Chief Administrative Judge Richard Kaufman of Wayne County Circuit Court, that the jail be placed under county administration, "thereby transferring jail-related duties and responsibilities from the sheriff for a one-year period." The petition went to Judge Kaufman because he oversees jail conditions as a result of a prisoners' rights lawsuit years ago.

The county executive has long favored establishing a department of corrections to run the jail and control the amount of overtime put in by deputies serving at the jail. In at least five cases documented by The Detroit News, deputies made more money than the county executive in the first half of 1988. It is primarily because of overtime that the sheriff's department is about $750,000 over its budget.

During the recent primary campaign, McNamara made no secret of his dissatisfaction with Ficano's administration of the sheriff's department and his failure to keep expenses within his budget. But Mc-Namara still endorsed Ficano for re-election, chiefly because a poll showed Ficano would win renomination easily over his two opponents.

We have no idea whether McNamara can win this battle but it is to his credit that he is trying to cut county costs, including those for servicing the jails. With the voters having just approved a one-mill hike in the jail levy to finance new jail facilities, McNamara may fear that Ficano would figure out a way to waste some of these funds on overtime for his deputies rather than trying to provide more accommodations for more prisoners.

The sheriff no doubt is concerned over the possible loss of almost half of his total staff if McNamara's plan should be adopted, but since he has obviously been unable to control costs, he should be willing to be relieved of that responsibility. And most people, we think, would be willing to let Judge Kaufman decide whether a one-year trial for McNamara's plan is in violation of the state Constitution or the county charter.

As an elderly citizen of Grosse Pointe City and a resident for 50 years, I was impressed with the article in our Grosse Pointe News this week - "Taxes exceed inflation growth." (Grosse Pointe Woods).

I will be watching. Ethel Engerson Grosse Pointe

Different experience

To the Editor:

I hope the comments of the Grosse Pointe teenagers who described their experiences in the Soviet Union in last week's paper won't discourage others from traveling as tourists to that country. In these times, the more we learn about each other, the safer and better the world will be. My family and I had a different kind of experience there in July, spending a week in Leningrad and Moscow on a commercial tour from Finland that was arranged by a Grosse Pointe travel agency. It was a fascinating visit, and while we saw some of the same problems that the students described, we also found things that pleasantly surprised us.

We didn't stick with the guide - but wandered off on our own, walking the streets, riding the subways, poking our heads into shops, visiting the farmers' markets, and more. I was surprised to read one student's comment about the "grim" atmosphere where people don't laugh. To the contrary, at the outdoor rock concerts we saw in Gorky Park, along the Arbat in Moscow where guitar-players and painters gather, and in the restaurants, we saw friendly, animated people out for a good time. Families watching the circus laughed and cheered just like they would here.

Indeed, people were mostly friendly. In one of the big outdoor farmers' markets in Moscow, a flower seller smiled and gave us a rose. Others offered fruit to sample. Many stopped to talk.

This is not to say there aren't problems. Trying to buy a book or records in Leningrad's largest bookshop or in music shops is a chore: You can't just go up to shelves and browse everything is behind counters and you have to ask the salesclerk to pull the book or record off the shelves to look at it.

Shopping for food is the same way in most places. I saw only one self-service food store - and invariably, they're poorly stocked with few choices.

We hear complaints both about the lack of goods and especially about not being able to travel. One middle-aged college English teacher who we met by chance in the Summer Gardens in Leningrad, said, "I don't want to leave the So-

Brother, can you spare a calorie?

Armed with a headache that wouldn't go away (not to mention a nagging feeling that I hadn't spent $40 at the doctor's lately), I traveled one recent Saturday morning to my favorite physician's office.

One hour, a complete examination, two prescriptions for sinus problems and a stern talking-to later, I hit the street. Mike sat waiting for the verdict.

"Well, I'm not having a stroke like I thought I was. And my sugar and cholesterol and thyroid and triglycerides - whatever the hell they are - are great. And she loved hearing about all the water I drink and how I take a vitamin every . . . " "OK, what was the bad

"The bad news is that I've gained mmmumblemmm pounds since my physical last year and she wants me to go on a diet. And my blood pressure was just the teensiest bit over normal for a Type A my age. Other than that, I'm great.

"Oh, and I blamed it all on you. Told her what a good cook you are and what delicious things you bake and how you'd be bringing her a batch of your chocolate chip-peanutty-nut cookies next time we came in."

"Uh-unh, no way. No more Mr. Nice Cook. We're going on a diet. Today. Pronto. It'll be fun, you'll see. We can work together on making really nice, colorful, tasty dishes that are on your diet. It'll be great," Mike said, getting that look on his face that I've come to recognize as his "I'll Change My Mind On This the Moment Ronald Reagan Wins An Oscar'' look.

I was doomed. Like all comdemned souls, I asked for and received a last request. On the way to the store to buy diet food and paraphernalia (calorie counter book, diet scale, measuring cup, muzzle) my husband-turned-Marquis de Weight Watcher allowed me to look in the window of the ice cream

"That's enough. I can hear our arteries hardening just smelling this stuff. Come on, we're off to buy some really delicious diet food," Mean Mike said, gently pulling my nose away from the store window and guiding me to

And so we began my diet. We stocked up on loads of fruit and whole wheat, low-salt, low-calorie bread, soda pop, crackers, etc. We picked scads of fresh vegetables from our garden, packaged them and popped them into the freezer. And we sat down and

I closed my eyes, savoring the meticulously planned menus for every meal I would eat for the next 46 years.

"Gee, Peggy, look at all the great stuff you can eat," Mike said, scanning my diet plan. "Pasta and beef, potatoes, cheese, all kinds of veggies. Bread and even salad dressing. Look at all the calories you can eat in a day. Wow, you'll never be hungry and you'll lose weight, too," my husband exclaimed in a tone that was beginning to border on giddy.

"Sure, flat-belly," I thought to myself. "You're the guy who can eat six slices of pizza and still manage to lose weight.'

Two weeks later, I have to admit that Mike was right. I have lost weight. Thirteen cripesake.

pounds, at last check. I did it without depriving myself of any nutrients. I have eaten three full, healthy meals a day. I feel better and I am very proud of myself.

But, damn, I'm hungry.

Sure, I can choose from a wide variety of food. And I can even eat some of it, as long as I remain under my daily calorie allotment - which, by the way, corresponds to that of a sick hummingbird.

I can have pasta. A whole half-cup. With tomato sauce, no meat. Mmmmmmm. And I can have cheese, but it counts as a meat serving and a dairy product. So I can't have it say, on a taco, if I want meat, too.

Yes, I can have a taco. Two, in fact, for my dinner meal. I can fill them with all the tomatoes, lettuce, onions, green pepper, hot pepper and taco sauce my heart desires. Oh, I can put meat on them, too, if I don't have cheese. How much meat can I use per taco, you ask? An ounce. Really. And do you know how much meat is in an ounce? One whole teaspoon. No kidding.

I've picked more than that out of my teeth at one sitting, for

Then there's the free food list. As any serious dieter can tell you, there's always one of those "free foods" list on every diet plan. My eyes found that first, naturally, in search of the words "hot fudge topping" or "carrot cake" or "Hollandaise." I was sure that at least one of those would be on the free foods list.

Nope. But mustard is. So's catsup. And cocoa (unsweetened). And celery. And radishes, not to mention vinegar. And there's even - hold on to your hats kohlrabi. So when I get really hungry and ready to cheat on my diet, I just scan my free food list and then chow down on all the kohlrabi I can hold.

So now I know why they call it free food. Who the heck would pay for it?

Anyway, like it or not, I'm on the diet to stay. I'll be glad to discuss my weight loss tips with anyone who will listen (the only catch is that you eat a doublefudge brownie just before we talk, and then let me smell your

Parent-Infant Beginnings (PIB) matches volunteer perinatal coaches with first-time parents to provide support and information from the seventh month of preg nancy through labor and delivery and through the first year of the baby's life. The program was developed to help prevent communication breakdown and minimize the risk of parent-child problems. Interaction and bonding at birth can help begin a positive relationship between the child and parent. Following an 18-hour training program, community volunteers are matched with prospective families in the last trimester of pregnancy so they have an opportunity to develop a personal relationship with the family and can pass on information and assurances related to pregnancy, labor, delivery and the postpartum period. The coach is also the family's link to needed community resources and services.

The program has served more than 100 families in its two-anda-half years and more than 120 volunteers have been trained. A current volunteer training class is under way and additional classes for volunteers will be scheduled in the fall as needed.

The program is available to Wayne County families who are expecting their first child. The term "family" is broadly defined and the service is particularly helpful in situations where role models and family support are

August 25, 1988 News Are your children ready?

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

With the beginning of school just around the corner, many parents are wondering if their children are ready to take the first big step into kindergarten, and into a brand new world of early mornings and homework.

The Grosse Pointe school system tests 4-year-old students in October, a full 11 months prior to their entering into school to at 6. see if their speech and language skills are at a comparable level with other 4-year-olds, according to Dr. Alfrieda Frost, director of elementary curricula at the schools.

If speech and language skills are not developed enough, the school may have the child work with someone in a special educational program, she added.

All children who are 5 by Dec. 1 are taken into the schools in September, and Frost said conferences are scheduled early in the fall for parents to discuss with the teacher the student's progress and the school's curricula. If there is a problem with the student and his or her readiness for school, it is apparent and a decision is made as to whether to keep the child in school.

"But that is very rare," Frost added.

The schools do not do more extensive testing because Frost said the tests available for 5year-olds have a 50 percent chance of being inaccurate, and they really don't have the validity of tests on older children.

"There's a real danger of mislabeling a child at an early age," she said.

The decision to place a child in school is generally up to a professional educator (i.e. a preschool teacher) and the parents.

Because of the high percentage of children who go through day care and preschool in the Pointes - Frost estimates 80 to 90 percent of all children — most are ready for school at 5. But some are not.

If a student is determined not ready to begin school at the traditional age, Giles said there should be no stigma attached, and parents should make sure

Both suggest that there are things that can be done to prepare children for school. Topping the list is talking and reading to the children.

Giles said many fun things can be done, such as giving the child the grocery bill and having him or her circle all the 4s, for example. If a child is having trouble recognizing shapes, have him or her point out shapes seen while driving in a car.

"The only caveat is that it's got to be fun, or don't do it," she added.

Frost said Grosse Pointe parents are doing an excellent job getting their children prepared for school.

Once a child is ready to go to school, some things can be done a few weeks in advance of the Sept. 7 starting date (parents will be receiving a schedule in the mail with the times) to make the child emotionally prepared. Practicing the route to school, and the route to the room once in the school, if the child is to walk and memorizing their name and address.

"If they come with those kinds of things, they will be more ready," Frost said.

Nancy Salamas, assistant principal at Pierce, said before the children start school, they should have plenty of rest and be well nourished in the morning. It's important to give them a good attitude and tell them it will be a good year.

The parents must also be ready to listen and understand the new students, and take the time to ask them how things are

"The whole year is important, but the first week is very important," Salamas said.

With proper preparation for both students and parents, Frost said the first day should be a happy one for everyone.

Symphony auditions

The Detroit Symphony Civic Orchestra will hold auditions for all positions from Sept. 11 through 25 at Ford Auditorium. The civic orchestra is a training orchestra for career-oriented young musicians with an emphasis on recruiting and developing minority talent. Players of all instruments are encouraged to try-out.

The orchestra rehearses every Saturday afternoon, October through April, and performs three concerts during the season.

Plan fall travel

When autumn leaves begin to drift by your window, just remember: You'll see a greater variety of them in Michigan than anywhere else you can think of.

Michigan's nearly 19 million acres of forest includes 65 species of decidous trees - more than any other state and more than all of Europe.

Autumn begins early and lingers only long as it travels down the 60-mile length of the state and works its way outward from the depths of the forests to the shores of the Great Lakes with their milder temperatures.

The peak of the color season starts at the tip of the Keweenaw Peninsula -- Michigan's 'Lands End," the peninsula that iuts nearly 100 miles into Lake Superior — about mid-September (although the show begins earlier, with some species starting their displays not much after Labor Day.) The peak of the U.P. season lasts until early October.

Color reaches its peak in the northern third of the lower peninsula by late September and lasts there until about mid-October. In the central lower peninsula, peak season is early to mid-October, and in the southern third, peak season lasts from the middle of October until about Halloween.

You can practically taste the colors of the autumn in Michigan: the crunchy reds and golds of Michigan apples, the soft reds and yellows of peaches and nectarines, the yellows and greens of pears, the purple of plums, or the blue of blueberries at any one of hundreds of "you-pick" fruit farms and farmers' roadside stands, and the subtle shadings of Michigan wines at any one of nearly a score of wineries or tasting rooms.

Hiking trails, uncrowded beaches, confetti-dappled golf courses (more public courses than any other state in the nation) add color to any tour of Michigan - even the 25 color tours listed in the 1988 Fall Travel Planner published by the Michigan Travel Bureau.

the News have been waging a campaign to eliminate opposition to the JOA that is technically outside the law. "There's supposed to be no extraneous influences on the attorney general," he said. "But what you have is an attorney general who is the object of a campaign by two newspapers."

Meese's opinion was issued on Aug. 8, Kelly said, and a 10-day period must be observed for appeals. "Instead, the two papers started rewiring phones, laying off people, and firing people."

Lawrence disagreed with critics who said the JOA arrangements should not have been implemented before the 10-day appeal period had elapsed. "No. We didn't rush. These people (Free Press employees) have lived in uncertainty for 28 months. They want to know if they have jobs or not. The humane and compassionate thing to do is to tell folks as soon as you know.

"It's most important," Lawrence said, "to know that the Free Press and Knight-Ridder are determined and committed to see this to a successful conclusion. Kelly said the newspapers are using their power to convince people that his group of opponents came out of nowhere. "They also say we're responsible for all the disruption. This is false.

"Meese's opinion was so poorly written. It didn't provide support for the conclusion. It was shoddy work. He could have made it bullet-proof.'

Kelly said that Lawrence's arguments for the JOA are unbelievable. "Garbage. (He is attempting) to bolster a 100 percent monopoly and to ax hundreds of people for the advantage of profits. Now he's using a smokescreen of compassion because they were caught with their pants down.

"Monopolies are never compassionate," Kelly said. "I want to protect the First Amendment."

Wendover said he opposes the JOA because "it's harmful to readers/consumers in Michigan, and it's unnecessary."

Attorney General Meese's approval of the JOA on Aug. 8 was to become effective Aug. 18. Meese rejected recommendations of Administrative Law Judge Morton Needleman and the Antitrust Division of the Department of Justice against the JOA.

Meese said, "The continuing and persistent losses suffered by the Free Press over the course of nearly a decade ... describes a newspaper in danger of financial failure," and therefore meets the requirements of the Newspaper Preservation Act.

Free medical care booklet available

In an effort to strengthen the doctor-patient relationship, the Michigan State Medical Society has developed a patient guide called "You and Your Doctor; Working Together for Quality Medical Care.'

The 10-page booklet lists how to find and evaluate a physician and way to form an effective health care partnership. It also outlines what to do if the relationship does not work.

The ultimate consideration in a doctor-patient relationship, the guide states, is the patient's personal satisfaction that his or her doctor is providing high quality medical care. The booklet suggests that patients write down specific questions for their physicians prior to the visit; that patients make sure they understand and follow treatment programs; and that they maintain a healthy lifestyle and practice preventive melicine by not smoking, drinking alcohol only in moderation, wearing seatbelts, eating sensibly, exercising and learning to cope with stress. If problems develop in the relationship, the booklet lists what to look for in a new physician including his or her professional qualifications, accessibility, ease of communication and practice environment. For a free copy of "You and Your Doctor, Working Together for Quality Medical Care," write to David Fox, Department of Communications, Michigan State Medical Society, P.O. Box 950, East Lansing, Mich. 48826.

"If the Free Press was sold to someone willing to compete, the employees and the community would benefit," Wendover said.

The resulting Detroit Newspaper Association would have been the largest newspaper monopoly ever — and would have been permitted under the 1970 Newspaper Preservation Act, allowing exceptions to antitrust laws. The Preservation Act was designed to allow failing newspapers a chance at survival by merging non-news operations with their competitors and sharing the profits.

The JOA would have meant the loss of about 500 jobs, as opposed to about 2,200 losses if the Free Press had failed.

The JOA, effective for 100 years, would have placed the DNA (with three Gannett board seats and two Knight-Ridder board seats) in charge of publication of both papers. Advertising, production and administrative operations would have combined. News staffs were to remain separate, independent and competitive. The Free Press would continue to be Detroit's morning paper; the News would be the afternoon paper. On weekends, the two editorial departments would jointly publish single editions.

Twenty-one other cities have newspapers operating under JOAs, but Detroit would have been the largest population area served by such an agreement.

criticism that the Michigan Citizens for an Independent Press were seeking publicity: "Why go through all this grief? We're seeking an alternative to the JOA. It may seem that we're tilting at windmills. But we believe that readers and consumers and employees are going to get screwed (by the JOA.)"

Kelly responded to the charge of publicity seeking by saying, "If I wanted publicity, wouldn't bility for this."

Wendover responded to the it be for positive things, rather than incurring the wrath of two big newspapers in Detroit?

"There's lots of other ways to get publicity," he said.

Kelly said he's also upset because newspaper executives are not dealing with the issue, but with personalities.

"I didn't fire anybody. I didn't issue pink slips. I didn't withhold anybody's bonus. Davis Lawrence should take responsi-

Photographers honored

High ability

High-ability students in the Grosse Pointe Public Schools have the opportunity to participate in PACE (Program for Academic and Creative Education), a special program designed to provide them with opportunities for independent study. As part of that program, second-grade PACE students at Richard Elementary School participated in the 'Invent America' contest. Top left are Caitlin Shapiro. who invented a ribbon holder; teacher Kathy Heitman: Mathew Shirilla, who produced a better letter opener, Tim Lindow and his sock sorter; Thomas Pozios and his back nitter; and ha tie Szelc, who invented a klip kalandar.

Heitman's fifth-grade PACE students at Maire Elementary School developed independent studies on water, architecture, space colonies, weapons, ants, and ventriloquism. Achievement test scheduled for new South students

A new special one-day Achievement Testing session has been scheduled for selected Grosse Pointe South High School students on Friday, Sept. 2, according to Russell P. Luttinen, assistant principal-student ser-

Only South students who are new to the Grosse Pointe Public Schools or those who missed one or more of the Achievement Tests previously are required to take the district-mandated tests.

Students new to the school system must take the whole battery of tests scheduled for them.

Students who have missed one or more of the tests at previous take students out of class for administrations, must take only the tests that were missed.

Ninth graders will be tested in Parol takes part school ability, writing, reading, vocabulary, mathematics concepts and applications and mathematics computation.

Testing of ninth graders will be conducted from 8 to 11:30 a.m. and from 1 to 2 p.m. in rooms 164-166. Students are on their own for lunch.

Tenth and 11th graders will be tested in school ability, writing, reading and vocabulary. Testing of these students will be conducted in rooms 184-186 from 8 to 11:30 a.m.

The test results will be used by counselors and administrators for career guidance and for placement purposes.

"This new pre-school testing session for South students is designed to eliminate the pull-out of students from classes during the school year for achievement testing purposes" Luttinen said.

"We are trying to minimize classroom disruptions in every way possible. By scheduling these tests before the school year starts, we will avoid having to achievement testing."

School faculty members may request Orbiter-Naming Program Entry Packets by calling (202) 783-5109 or (202) 783-5113, or by writing: NASA Orbiter-Naming Program, Council of Chief State School Officers, 400 North Capitol Street, N.W. -Suite 379, Washington, D.C.

Faculty members must provide their name, the name of their school and the address to which they would like the packet sent.

To enter, elementary and secondary school students will form teams and research a name for member who will serve as team 1991.

Students in kindergarten coordinator, will prepare a classroom project to support and justify the name selected. The name proposed must be the name of a sea vessel used in research or exploration.

> There will be two entry divisions: Division I will include kindergarten through 6th grade and Division II, 7th through 12th grades. Orbiter-naming projects must be completed during the fall semester, and entries must be postmarked by Dec. 31, 1988. Students in public and nonpublic schools are eligible.

Winners from each division will be named at the state level in March 1989. NASA will announce the national winners in each division and the orbiter's name in May 1989.

Representatives of the national winning teams will receive an expense-paid trip to a NASA-related event, and a School Involvement Program will be conducted at the two schools.

The new orbiter, currently designated OV 105, is being built to the orbiter. Each team, under replace the Challenger and is the guidance of a school faculty scheduled to be completed in

ACT tests

As the new fall term opens, more than one million high school juniors and seniors across the nation will move one step closer to college and other postsecondary plans by registering to take the ACT Assessment.

The ACT Assessment, which consists of four academic tests that measure educational development and a detailed questionnaire that collects information relevant to educational and career planning, is recommended or required by more than 3,000 postsecondary institutions and scholarship programs.

Most students take the ACT Assessment during junior year or early in senior year, so their results will be available in time for use in planning for postsecondary education and careers.

High school guidance offices have the information and forms students need to register for the ACT Assessment. ACT also provides free copies of the booklet, "Preparing for the ACT Assessment," which contains information about getting ready for the examination, plus a complete practice test.

The basic registration fee for the assessment is $11.50. Late registration will be accepted for an additional $12 late handling fee. For 1988-89. ACT has established this test date schedule:

Test Date, October 22, 1988; Registration Deadline, September 23, 1988; Late Registration Deadline, October 11, 1988.

Test Date, December 10, 1988; Registration Deadline, November 11, 1988; Late Registration Deadline, November 29, 1988.

Test Date, February 11, 1989; Registration Deadline, January 13, 1989; Late Registration Deadline, January 31, 1989.

Test Date, April 15, 1989; Registration Deadline, March 17, 1989; Late Registration Deadlines, April 4, 1989.

Test Date, June 10, 1989; Registration Deadline, May 12, 1989; Late Registration Deadline, May 30, 1989.

It takes about three hours to complete the four ACT examinations in English, math, social studies, and natural sciences. The assessment also includes a two-part questionnaire that students complete at home when they register. It focuses on interests, academic and non-academic accomplishments, and vocationa and educational plans and needs.

Colleges use information from the ACT Assessment for academic advising, admissions counseling, course sectioning and placement, student services, and institutional research. ACT Assessment reports are sent to students, their high school counselors, and the institutions and agencies students specify.

The ACT Assessment is a major service of The American College Testing Program, which has national headquarters in Iowa City, Iowa.

Student Spotlight Paige Phillips

Each week in this column, we will focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a woodworking project, a book review.

The following was written by Paige Phillips who will enter the 7th grade at Parcells Middle School. She is the daughter of Kathleen and Douglas Phillips of the Woods.

Summer is Here

I can feel it on the beach in my hair and all around me. I can see it through my sunglasses when I see the pretty flowers popping up by and by.

I can smell the fresh, crisp air and the people's wet, wavy hair. I can hear the sounds of children playing, laughing, singing, having a gay old time by the bay as they swim away. I don't like to hear my mom say go pull the weeds that grow by our trees.

I can taste it through the marshmallows that we roast by our open fire.

Summer is the best time of the year because of the things you hear, feel, see, smell and taste. I'm so glad summer is

Residents of the 1000 block of Bedford Road in Grosse

The street was closed off, there were games for the children and about 35 people enjoyed a potluck dinner.

The Grosse Pointe Park Public Safety Department sent a fire truck and an officer opened a hydrant for a few minutes, a tradition from past years.

Scholarship time, and the givin' ain't easy — but it's fun

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

"It wasn't any big idea at first. I just went around to a few of the local schools and asked them if they had any students who they could suggest were in need of scholarships," said Ted Ewald, president of the H.T. Ewald Foundation. There were eight applicants and two scholarships were given out. That was in 1957.

This year, more than 350 students from the area applied for a Ted Ewald Scholarship, and 14 were given out at a luncheon recently.

The scholarship, awarded every year since 1957, is sought after by many local residents who wish to further their educa tion. The scholarships are for four years, and have been given to students who attend schools all over the country.

After a few years of giving out the scholarships, the application form was embellished and guidelines were set up to pare down the applicants. Today there is an application form similar to a college entrance form, that requires SAT and ACT scores, high school transcript and letters of recommendation from three adults.

But the answers on the application form and the 500-word autobiography are not nearly as important as the interview, which usually lasts an hour and one-half. "The interview is very important," Ewald said. "It's very informal, and in depth. It's usually pretty easy — people like talking about themselves and I have their biography in front of me, so I know how to ask the right questions."

Ewald said he looks for financial need, as evidenced by the completed application and brought out in the interview; overall scholarship record, school grades, ACT and SAT scores, and activities and awards; character of the applicant as discovered in the interview.

Ewald is a big sports fan and his memoribilia of the Detroit Express (which he owned), the Detroit Pistons (of which he is a part-owner), and the Tigers, which he just likes to watch, fills his office — as do boxes, and boxes of applications from students interested in a Ted Ewald Scholar-

"You don't just start a scholarship up and get good people," he said. "It's like building a football team. We had to wait for the word to spread."

Now, out of the 350 applications, 60 or so came too late, another group didn't satisfy the residency requirement, and the rest were reviewed. Ewald granted some 165 interviews, from which he chose the recipi-

There is no set number of scholarships, either, but Ewald said he likes to stay in the vicinity of $80,000 to $90,000 a year. He estimates the foundation has given away somewhere between $800,000 and $900,000 so far.

Most of the scholarships are given to graduating high school seniors, although some have been given to graduate students, he said.

But Ewald doesn't just hand over a check and walk away.

electronic keyboards that led to the first-ever Techno-Pep Band, created to fill a void at North

Being an active marching band member, playing his horn, he was sorely disappointed when the band was discontinued. So when a few members wanted to form a pep band, he showed up at the first practice, along with just three other people.

As they were waiting for more people to show up — which they never did - Roberts made a suggestion that they use their electronic instruments to form a band. The idea hit, and for a while, the pep band played for the school.

"We had to convince a bunch

It was his expertise with these other instruments, that it was a good idea," Roberts said.

At the end of the year, some of the band members graduated, and others went their own ways. Then two weeks prior to homecoming, he got a call and was asked if he could work up something for the parade. He got a few people together, and they "marched" in the parade. Well, actually they were pulled on a flat-bed.

They played a variety of music, including Roberts' own version of North's fight song. The reaction was mixed, at best, and the Techno-Pep Band was doomed.

"We called it Techno-flop," Roberts said. "It was a great idea, but we never really got it

His "great idea" got him a mention in the February 1988 issue of Keyboard magazine, a publication dedicated to the art of electronic keyboards and synthesizers.

He works with a few other musicians creating all forms of music, but is not currently with a band, as such. He writes in the progressive fusion style which he says is "somewhere between jazz and rock," and some punk and new wave music "just for fun and to get loud.'

How does his mother feel about his new wave music? "She likes it, I guess," Roberts said. "She's kind of a rock 'n' roller. I've never heard her say "Turn that radio down." As one of the editors of mental in putting a sound page in the book, the first of its kind in the state.

It looks like a record one tears out of a magazine and contains a year's worth of North's memories and music, including his version of the fight song.

"So many people liked it, there's talk about doing it next year," he said.

His experience with North's yearbook has sparked a flame in him to start one at Berklee, because there isn't one at present.

He figures there would be a few hundred sound pages because of the number of different ensembles. "It would be worth it, though."

In addition to his Techno-Pep Band, he has played his horn in the North-South Jazz Band (for which he also wrote music), the Concert Band, the Symphonic Band, Marching Band, the Orchestra, the Stage Band, and the Acoustic-Pep Band.

He researched and designed a complete computer music system for sound tracks for animated film, a specially designed music system which will lock music into the action on the screen. without the hit and miss of conducting the music to the action.

"It wasn't as complicated as it sounds," he said, adding that it was an extra credit project for his advanced computer class.

At Berklee, he will study music production and engineering, which is basically the behindthe-scenes work of mixing and creating the sound of a final product.

"Basically, what I want to do is to be a producer," Roberts said. "Then when I'm established, to perform my own stuff." "I want to get to the top."

SECTION 1. The Zoning Ordinance, Code No. 12-03, enacted as Ordinance No. 192 on July 16, 1973, is hereby amended as follows:

1. Section 1502, Paragraph 10 is hereby amended by deleting said Paragraph 10 in its entirety and inserting the following in substitution thereof:

"10. Change of Nonconforming Structure.

A nonconforming building may be structurally altered or extended without the approval of the Board of Zoning Appeals only under the following conditions:

(a) The use of said building is permitted in the district in which it is located.

(b) Any accessory building located on the lot conforms to all requirements of this ordinance and the building code.

(c) The total area occupied by the building, after the proposed erection, conversion, or structural alteration and the area occupied by all other buildings on the lot does not exceed the maximum percentage of lot coverage permitted by Article XIII.

(d) Either (1) no part of the existing nonconforming building encroaches or projects into more than one required open space, and such projection conforms with one of the following:

(i) the existing nonconforming building does not encroach upon more than twenty-five percent (25%) of the required side yard, or

(ii) the existing nonconforming building does not encroach upon more than ten percent (10%) of the required front yard or more than twenty percent (20%) of the required rear yard;

or (2) with respect to nonconforming structures existing in an R-1-AAA Residential District as of September 6, 1987, no part of the existing nonconforming building encroaches or projects into any required open space for a structure located in an R-1-AA Residential District.

(e) The proposed erection, conversion, or structural alteration will conform to all other ordinance provisions and either (1) will not extend over that portion of an existing nonconformity which projects into a required yard or (2) with respect to nonconforming structures existing in an R-1-AAA Residential District as of September 6, 1987, will not extend beyond that portion of an existing nonconformity which projects in a required

If the preceding conditions are not met, the building may not be enlarged or altered unless a variance is granted.

2. Section 1504, Paragraph 9 is hereby amended to change the required parking for hospitals from "two (2) parking spaces for each one (1) bed" to "two and two-tenths (2.2) parking spaces for each

SECTION 2. Except as hereby amended, Ordinance No. 192, as heretofore amended, shall remain in full force and effect

SECTION 3. This Ordinance shall take effect twenty (20) days after its enactment, or upon its publication, whichever is later.

Pointe News News Photography

By Monte Nagler

Moving in close and isolating just a small section of this cycad plant gave Monte Nagler an impact-filled nature photograph with geometric interest.

Isolate detail

Oftentimes a small area of a building, such as an ornate doorknob or ivy-colored window ledge, will create a photographic composition much stronger than the whole. The intimacy of a flower petal or the patterns of a breaking wave on the beach are often missed in our desire to concentrate on the totality of the subject.

Details of pattern, form, and texture can tell us much about our subjects without the need to show its entirety. Isolating detail will give a new perspective and impact to your pictures not obtained by shooting the whole.

Any environment contains an inexhaustible supply of fascinating detail waiting for your camera. For example, in nature photography, try moving in close to isolate the texture of bark instead of shooting the whole cluster of trees. Photographing the lake in its entirety will give you a nice scenic picture, but don't overlook the delicate reeds and lilies at water's edge. Overall winter scenes are dramatic, but isolating that one unique icicle will give you that special shot not obtainable in the whole.

In architecture, the supply of detail is endless. Isolate a pattern of unusual brickwork or look for colorful window shutters. Move in close on a selection of peeling paint. Churches offer details in statues as well as the many colors and patterns of stained

Can you isolate parts of people? Of course! The hands of the elderly or the foot of an infant will produce photographs of special, personal impact.

Other than a keen eye, no elaborate equipment is needed to isolate detail although a viewing mask will prove invaluable as an aid in composing your shot. At times, close-up filters will help you to move in close and a tripod should be used to maximize sharpness and depth-of-field.

But the important ingredients in isolating detail are your vision and insight. Your aim in photographing detail should be to obtain a complete picture in itself while at the same time maintaining the flavor and essence of the whole.

Monte Nagler's beginning photography class starts Thursday, Sept. 8, at the War Memorial. The four-week course will cover many aspects of how to improve your photography. Call 881-7511 for registration information.

Labor Day travel should increase

Michigan's tourism industry seems certain to set records during the Labor Day holiday, with a 6 percent boost in spending and traffic expected over last year, AAA Michigan reports.

Transportation officials anticipate that travelers will drive 885 million miles on state roads during the 78-hour period between 6 p.m. Friday, Sept. 2 and midnight Monday, Sept. 5.

Mackinac Bridge officials report vehicle crossings are up 8.7 percent compared to last year, with this July's count of 546,795 making it the busiest month since the bridge opened in 1957, he said.

Some 60,000 pedestrians -almost 10 percent over 1987's turnout - are expected to stroll the five-mile span linking Michigan's two peninsulas in the traditional Labor Day Bridge Walk. It begins at 7 a.m. in St. Ignace and moves south to Mackinaw

The Detroit Tigers host Milwaukee on Friday, Saturday and Sunday (Sept. 24), then meet Toronto on Monday, probably before sell-out crowds at each game. And the 140th annual Michigan State Fair, America's oldest, offers 11 days of entertainment in Detroit through its Labor Day finale.

These events and more, such as the Montreaux Jazz Festival in Hart Plaza, should attract large throngs of visitors to Metropolitan Detroit. Outstate, county fairs and local festivals are planned in scores of communities.

To cope with holiday traffic, Michigan State Police have been assigned 1,500 hours of overtime duty in the 11th annual "Operation CARE" (Combined Accident Reduction Effort). Sgt. John Shotwell warned that some troopers will go aloft in unmarked aircraft to spot speeders and alert patrol cars.
Robert V. Cullen, AAA Michigan Safety and Traffic manager. said 32 persons died on state roads during the Labor Day weekend last year. Of those, 19 victims were involved in alcoholrelated accidents, and 10 of the 20 killed in cars or trucks did not wear seatbelts, he added.

Grand Prix does it just right

Despite a recent purchase of a pair of tassled loafers, I've never been a trendy guy. I have never dressed for success, which should give John Malloy great comfort, because I seem to have proved his thesis.

But it's fun now and then to be in, to be seen with the right stuff. And when I slipped into the almost infinitely adjustable driver's seat behind the fashionably thick padded steering wheel of the latest incarnation of the Pontiac Grand Prix. I knew this was major league trendy, a statement of up-to-date automotive art at the current cutting-edge division at General Motors.

If the General is nothing else,. it is trendy. When the style was long and low, GM cars were among the longest and lowest. When tailfins were in, GM's soared with the best of them, and in the muscle car era, GM was there with the most cubic Pontiac has been up and down in trendiness through the years, a car for the uncool in the '50s, transformed by Bunkie Knudsen, Pete Estes, John Z. De-Lorean et al into the hottest of the hot in the muscle-car '60s, sliding back into yawn city in the late '70s, but now building excitement again.

The '88 Grand Prix was such a break with the '87 that Motor Trend magazine named it car of the year before it was even introduced to the public. It has been a sales winner since its debut at the Detroit Auto Show last win-

Library series

The Grosse Pointe Public Library is offering a series, "The Constitution: That Delicate Balance," on six Monday afternoons this fall.

The program will consist of readings on important issues resting on the Constitution together with video tapes of legal experts discussing both sides. Grosse Pointe Woods Municipal Judge Patricia Schneider will act as discussion leader.

The first program is Monday, Sept. 19 at 3 p.m. in the Exhibi tion Room of Central Library. Succeeding dates are Oct. 3, Oct. 17, Nov. 7, Nov. 21 and Dec. 5.

Program materials have been provided by AARP and the time of the program is designed to make it attractive to retired adults. However, a select group of senior high school students of government are being invited to add an opportunity for intergenerational exchange.

There is no charge for the program or materials. Interested persons should register by calling 343-2074 after 10 a.m.

The library is also sponsoring a Shakespearean series on video for discussion at the Neighborhood Club on Fridays at 11:30 n.m. The plays to be covered are: "Macbeth," "Midsummer Night's Dream" and "King Lear." Supplemental reading with be available through the Library. No registration is necessary. The program will begin on Sept. 16 and will continue on Fridays through Dec. 16.

ter and much of the reason is its center console is a trip computer resolute trendiness.

The Grand Prix offers a much different glimpse into GM's future than Pontiac's Fiero, a small, affordable sports car of imaginative design. Discontinuance of the beautiful Fiero seemed to say that numbers are still more important than automotive innovation at GM. But that's not what the Grand Prix says: It says GM is still in tune, still keen to automotive trends.

Everyone is going to sleek, steamlined styling right out of the wind tunnel, but the Pontiac Grand Prix does it just right, is just a little unique, a little more with it than the others, including its own sister cars, the Buick Regal and the Oldsmobile Cutlass Supreme.

It has the low nose, high rear deck and steeply raked windshield of the currently popular aero look, but the details of styling make people take a second look, usually approving. Its split grille below the bumper belt, its smooth nose flanked by flush plastic headlights immediately mark it both as a Pontiac and as a sharp break with GM's cookie cutter look of the mid-'80s.

It is one of the few cars that looks as good from behind as it does from the front or side. Its flush wraparound taillights are finished with a modern graphlike look and the wraparound bumper line ties the whole thing together.

The trendiness inside is rebining digital and analog gauges and it was fun. and what must be the most elabever installed in a car. In the nerd go trendy.

with a screen with an outline of the car positioned on a landscape with compass lines which change with the direction of travel.

The Grand Prix is so nimble that it is easy to think of it as a small car, despite its smooth luxury ride. So it is a little surprising to realize that it is Pontiac's second largest offering, just inches short of the Bonneville. The Grand Prix is 194.1 inches long with a wheelbase of 107.6 inches.

Unlike many of the great Pontiacs of the '60s which looked conventional but were hot performers, the '88 Grand Prix looks great and is an adequate performer. The 2.8-liter V-6 does not move the car with the verve to match its flashy styling, but don't worry, it will for '89 as a turbocharged version will be available.

A four-speed automatic transmission is standard and a fivespeed manual is available. The Grand Prix rides very nicely on MacPherson struts in front and a new tri-link independent suspension system in the rear.

If it is no Goat, it is not a dog either and it doesn't drink fuel at an eight-mpg GTO rate. The Grand Prix easily keeps up with traffic, even on Michigan's freeways, and does it at about 20 mpg.

One of the few times I went really trendy in buying a car was in 1964, when I bought a 327 V-8 Pontiac Tempest. It was flected in a very attractive and a hot number, especially with readable instrument cluster com- the Ace Wilson Bobcat package,

Suspects sought

Park police are searching for three teens who were seen removing items from a house on the 800 block of Nottingham around 11 a.m. Thursday, Aug.

Police said the suspects, all white males in their mid-to-late teens, pulled an early 1980s Camaro-type vehicle to the house and loaded stereo equipment, musical keyboards and a phone into the car.

Entry was gained through a window on a second floor porch.

Television stolen

Park police said that a screen on a bedroom window was cut to gain entry to the home.

"We started from scratch," Fiscus said. "I was quite a collector of coins and stamps and needed an outlet for the things I really didn't want, so I opened up this store.'

The store deals primarily in numismatic items - coins and bullion coins such as Canadian or South African gold pieces.

Fiscus said that all the people holding onto Susan B. Anthony dollar coins likely will never get more than face value for them.

"People pleaded with the government not to make those things," Fiscus said. "There was no way that they could make a dollar the size of a quarter and not put any silver in it and make it useable. It would take just one time of confusing a dollar for a quarter and that would be it."

Bar B-Q House of Grosse Pointe

Like a phoenix, restaurant rises from the ashes

By Pat Paholsky

A person walking into the Bar B-Q House of Grosse Pointe on Mack for the first time might be surprised. It's bright and airy with carpeting on the floor and chintz on the windows. And there are photos of old Grosse Pointe on the walls — about two dozen of them - beautifully framed with identifications and explanations in calligraphy.

Owner Jim Champion said first-timers to his restaurant are almost always surprised by the decor - sun-washed during the day and candlelit by night.

The landscaping, done by Champion, is carefully tended with bushes and colorful flowers. In recognition of Champion's efforts, the Grosse Pointe Woods Beautification Advisory Commission awarded him the Mayor's Trophy for outstanding beautification last year.

Champion got into the business by accident.

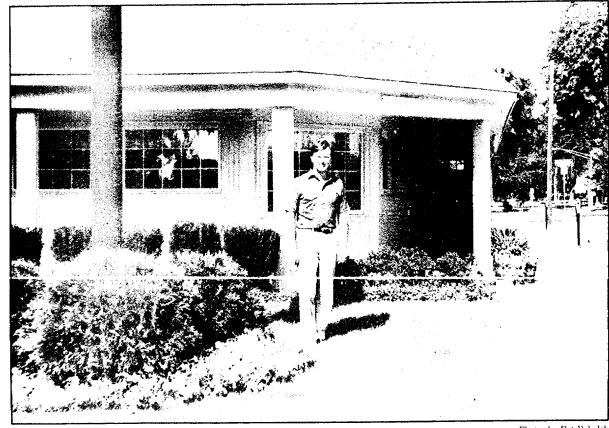

A native of Cass City, he earned a business degree from Olivet College and went to work for Detroit Bank & Trust (now Comerica) for three years.

Then his love for golf took him to Florida where he spent seven years working at a savings and loan. There was a four-year stint in Atlanta and then he went back to school.

After earning a degree in turf grass or agronomy from Michigan State University, he worked at a golf course in West Bloom-

"Then this presented itself and it looked like a good opportunity," he said.

Shortly after he bought it, however, the restaurant was completely destroyed by a fire. Over a period of 1 1/2 years, he rebuilt, assisted by Kris Karan, the previous owner's son. It reopened Feb. 13, 1986, which was a Friday. That didn't bother Champion, who said he didn't care what day it was, he had to start making money.

It's a rough business, he said. He was working 85 hours a for one of the 18 tables on the Champion makes his own barbecue sauce and said 80 percent of his orders are for chicken or ribs. Other items on the menu include cod, shrimp, New York strip sirloin and ham. The cod is deep-fried in peanut oil, he said, which makes everything lighter.

The soups are homemade and may include cream of broccoli, cream of mushroom, chicken noodle, beef vegetable and clam chowder.

Dinners range from $5.95 for cod to $10.95 for steak. Ribs are $9.45 and chicken is $6.95 and there are variations. Dinners include a relish tray, salad or cole slaw, hot garlic loaf and cottage fries.

There are salads available: antipasto, Greek and tossed, and hamburgers and ham sandwiches.

Hours are 4 p.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday; 4 to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday; and 3 to 10 p.m. on Sunday. The restaurant, located at 20515 Mack, will reopen for lunch Oct. 5, Tuesday through Saturday, at 11:30 a.m.

The clientele ranges from the very young to the elderly and attracts families.

"Everybody once in awhile has a taste for barbecue ribs and chicken," Champion said. "The previous owner always said, 'Give people flavor and they'll

Champion got into the business by accident.

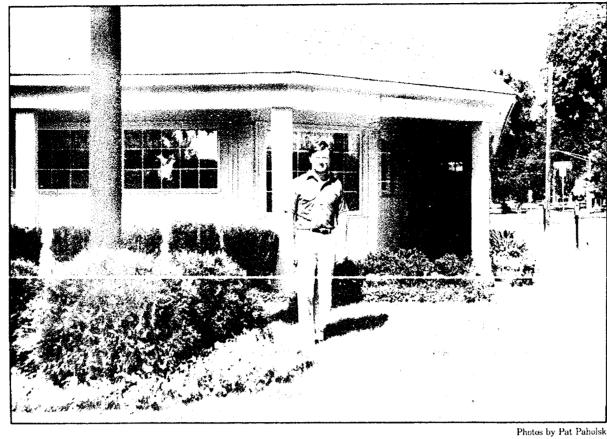

A native of Cass City, he earned a business degree from Olivet College and went to work for Detroit Bank & Trust (now Comerica) for three years.

Then his love for golf took him to Florida where he spent seven years working at a savings and loan. There was a four-year stint in Atlanta and then he went back to school.

After earning a degree in turf grass or agronomy from Michigan State University, he worked at a golf course in West Bloom-

"Then this presented itself and it looked like a good opportunity," he said.

The restaurant had been in business about 25 years and had

Shortly after he bought it, however, the restaurant was completely destroyed by a fire. Over a period of 1 1/2 years, he rebuilt, assisted by Kris Karan, the previous owner's son. It reopened Feb. 13, 1986, which was a Friday. That didn't bother Champion, who said he didn't care what day it was, he had to start making money.

it down to about 70 hours.

"When you have your own business, you don't think about the hours," he said. "You just get the job done."

Champion does a lot of preparation for the day's business. The ribs and chicken are cooked on a large rotisserie ahead of time and then finished off on the broiler.

"There's no microwave in my kitchen," he said.

There's usually a short wait for one of the 18 tables on the week the first year and now has weekend, Champion said. The restaurant seats about 64 people.

> It also does a large carry-out business, he said. He employs 14 full- and part-time people.

Champion makes his own barbecue sauce and said 80 percent of his orders are for chicken or ribs. Other items on the menu include cod, shrimp, New York strip sirloin and ham. The cod is deep-fried in peanut oil, he said, which makes everything lighter.

The soups are homemade and may include cream of broccoli. cream of mushroom, chicken noodle, beef vegetable and clam chowder.

Dinners range from $5.95 for cod to $10.95 for steak. Ribs are $9.45 and chicken is $6.95 and there are variations. Dinners include a relish tray, salad or cole slaw, hot garlic loaf and cottage fries.

There are salads available: antipasto, Greek and tossed, and hamburgers and ham sand-

Hours are 4 p.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday; 4 to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday; and 3 to 10 p.m. on Sunday. The rectaurant located at 20515 Mack, will reopen for lunch Oct. 5. Tuesday through Saturday, at 11:30 a.m.

The clientele ranges from the very young to the elderly and attracts families.

"Everybody once in awhile has a taste for barbecue ribs and chicken," Champion said. "The previous owner always said, 'Give people flavor and they'll come back.'

The interior is light, bright and airy, with windows spanning the front.

Ninth annual Michigan Renaissance Festival brings out a little bit of the 16th century in a pair of Grosse Pointe performers

By Peter A. Salinas Staff Writer

'ou'd expect a character named "Mary Queen of Scotch" to be loud and rude and maybe sport an obnoxious laugh. And she does. But obnoxious she isn't the normally quiet and somewhat shy Mary McCarthy, a 30year-old Park resident who is participating in her third Michigan Renaissance Festivai.

McCarthy and Joseph Ferris, a ieweler and sculptor, are the only two Grosse Pointers taking part in the ninth annual throwback to the 16th century, Ferris. 27, a modern mustached Leonardo DaVinci, resides in the City. This is his third festival.

Festival is a recreation of the revelry typical of a 16th century English village. Back then, the local King and Queen came together at this time of year to celebrate the harvest

The modern day festival features food, arts and crafts and other items for sale and continuous entertainment both on stage and along wooded paths.

Although she's doing temporary work for an agency specializing in the travel industry, McCarthy likes to act. She's delivered singing telegrams for Eastern Onion and is currently involved with an improvisational group scheduled to do a benefit they gave me some situations and had me act them out," Mc-Carthy said. "I sang for them too and they hired me.'

The job doesn't pay a whole lot, but where else could you meet up with so many street actors, artists and crafts people and joke and laugh and sing and get paid for it?

Ferris does about 40 to 45 fine arts shows a year and said with 125,000 people or more expected to attend this year's festival, it is well worth selling one's wares at the Michigan Renaissance Festi-

"You dress up in costume, and you get to hawk at people to get

Artists leasing space at the festival pay a $300 fee for the season and must also construct a booth with a 16th century theme - rough hewn lumber usually fits the bill.

Ferris designs and makes metal jewelry and large metal sculptors.

"Some buildings cost $20,000." he said. "Sales are pretty good, but my location is not the best. I'm in one of the inner circles and some people never make it

McCarthy chose her character name as a play on words, of course, of Mary Queen of Scots. Her character isn't a drunk. She's more a female Don Rickels who says "Mi lord looks like a horse's patoot," rather than "Hey, hockey puck."

What Mary Queen of Scotch is known for is her laugh. It sounds like an Eddie Murphy guffaw with the resonance of Mr. Ed's "Hello, Willlburr." You can hear it several hundred feet from where ever she is startling some-

She has a partner "Chari Tart," (Misha Dionne, who sings with the Michigan Opera Theater) and together they do various impromptu skits and other types of street theater.

"One time Chari and I put colored dots on our faces and hawked social diseases for 50 cents," McCarthy said. "Another time we froze like statues and stood motionless and another guy hawked tips from people to get us to laugh. I did pretty well until one guy brought his baby close to my face and said, 'Remember how you like to play with Daddy's glasses.'

Entertainment and fun is the scholars will be learning both from and because of books this fall - they are women who will study under grants and fellowships made possible by fundraisers such as the Grosse Pointe Branch of the American Association of University Women's 26th annual Used Book Sale Sept. 27 through Oct. 2.

Book sale profits are the main source of funds with which the Grosse Pointe AAUW supports its national AAUW Education Foundation and also scholarships for area colleges. This year, grants will go to women at the University of Detroit, Wayne State University, Marygrove College, the Center for Creative Studies and Madonna College.

Good used books of all varieties will be available at the sale at Salem Memorial Lutheran Church on Moross Road. Residents have until Sept. 6 to donate books by dropping them off at AAUW collection centers at Damman's Hardware in the Village, Kroger on Marter Road or Farmer Jack stores in Grosse Pointe, St. Clair Shores or at I-94 and Harper Ave. Pick-ups may also be arranged by calling 884.0936.

An endowment grant also was presented to Karen O'Connor for use in setting up an adult literacy program through the Waterford AAUW branch.

Grosse Pointe AAUW joins sister branches throughout the United States this year in celebrating the 100th anniversary of its national fellowship program, the largest and oldest program

Two former AAUW fellows who live in Grosse Pointe are Dr. Anne Zimmer, former American History professor at Wayne State University; and Dr. Betsy Johnson, currently a vice president at General Motors. Anyone who knows of other AAUW fellows should call 886-4597.

Michigan Renaissance Festival's main theme. "People will laugh at just about anything," McCarthy said. "I just walk up to them and start laughing and they start laughing.'

McCarthy and Ferris know one another, as do most of the festival's characters, jousters, jesters, royalty and artisans.

"We have a lot of fun after the place closes down for the night," McCarthy said. "We usually get together and play music and have a few beers.'

She said she really likes doing her character, but she may only have an opportunity to work on Sundays this year rather than through the weekend.

"It is a lot of fun and I get to use all of my talents," she said. "I like to make people laugh, and it sure beats being behind a desk typing and filing."

McCarthy could be anywhere on the grounds at any given time, but this year, a newly constructed area offers a watering hole called Watney's Pub, so named for the English brew served there. Musicians stop in, set out a hat and start playing. You might find McCarthy there helping to sing old Irish tunes or dancing to a gypsy band.

Ferris' booth is located next to the May Pole and the Test of Strength.

The Michigan Renaissance Festival runs weekends and Labor Day through Sept. 25. Festival grounds are located north of Mt. Holly on Dixie Highway. For easy access, take I-75 north to Exit 106 Old Dixie Highway and then go two miles south.

Classes offered for new/expectant parents

Mount Clemens General Hospital will offer a pair of classes for new or expectant parents next month. One course deals with infant apnea; the other is for women in the early stages of pregnancy.

Parents of apneic infants will meet at the hospital at 7 p.m., Thursday, Sept. 1. The meeting will be devoted to discussion and support for parents whose infants suffer from the breathing disorder. The meeting will be held in the Day Room of MCGH's Maternity Unit on the hensive Health Educational Syssecond floor.

Parent Support for Infant Apnea (PSIA) meets monthly so parents can share concerns and offer each other encouragement. Infants with apnea stop breathing for more than 20 seconds at a time or less than 20 seconds if accompanied with a slow heart rate, pale or bluish skin color or limpness.

Call 466-8290 for more information.

Expectant mothers are invited to take part in a Early Pregnancy Class offered by Compretems (CHES, a division of MCG Care, Inc.). It will meet at 7 to 9 p.m., Sept. 12 and 19, at Mount Clemens General Hospital.

The class includes information on how the baby grows and develops, nutritional needs during pregnancy, feeding alternatives for the newborn, tests commonly administered during pregnancy and how to alleviate the discomforts of pregnancy.

Fathers and mothers are welcome. Phone CHES at 466-8025 for free information and to register.

Celebrate: Rose and Phillip B. Zoufal Sr. of Grosse Pointe Woods celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at a private family dinner party held at the Country Club of Detroit Aug. 19.

The celebration was given by their children: William F. Zoufal and Chrissie Zoufal of Grosse Pointe Farms; Rose Zoufal Seyler and Chris Seyler of Winterpark, Fla.; Robert J. Zoufal and Sally Zoufal of Roswell, Ga. Also present were five of the Zoufal grandchildren.

Happy Birthday,

Meade: One of the busiest people in Grosse Pointe recently had to have been Jane Meade of the Farms. Among other things. Meade lent a well-needed hand to a pair of addressing parties for charity events.

She hosted the patron committee meeting for the 1988 Festival of Trees benefit for Children's Hospital of Michigan. Chairing the meeting - which featured an addressing session amidst holiday decorations and breaks for refreshments and Christmas cookies - was Stephanie Germack of Grosse Pointe Farms. Alice Raisig and Karen Eisenbrey were also in attendance.

Meade was also in attendance at the Aug. 15 addressing party for the third annual "Cabaret for the Friends of Michigan Parkinson Foundation." The Pastor's Corner

'Take It or Leave It'

By William C. DeVries Pastor, First Christian Reformed Church

There is an unsettling quality about Jesus' words. The writers of the gospels record repeatedly that those who heard Jesus speak were stunned by the authority with which he spoke. I am sure that it was not his tone and delivery which gave them pause. It was the content. It was the argument itself which made people wonder. Wonder at the kind of shake-up such a message would cause.

Through the years we have tried to find a way to be comfortable with the son of God. We make him so friendly that he is no threat to anyone or anything. We make him so weak that for him to die seems only natural, tragic maybe, but natural. The Jesus of the record causes crowds to wonder, to be amazed, to tremble and yes, inevitably to resist.

Matthew tells us of his own call to follow Jesus. (Presumably an event with which he was more than remotely acquainted). Following the call, Jesus is accused by the upstanding citizens of his community. You see Matthew was a real low-life, a traitor, a known cheat who extracted usurer's rates in the name of tax laws. And Jesus was working with this scumball.

Now, Christians are fond - very fond - of quoting part of Jesus' reply to the good people who pointed out the possible bad effects of Jesus action. Jesus began by saying, "It is not the healthy who need a doctor, but the sick." And he finished with "For I have not come to call the righteous, but sinners.'

Good people today point to the love and tenderness which sent Jesus to touch hurting lives with healing. And sermons enjoin us to recognize our own sins so we can be forgiven. Certainly a warm, loving, even true word. But not filled with much wonder to react to.

But, did you hear the middle of Jesus' reply to the good citizens? "But go and learn what this means: 'I desire mercy, not sacrifice." Jesus points to what he has done as the true pattern for what God wants from people.

Not living the self-satisfying lifestyle of personal serenity. ("Sacrifice" is a reference to the religious ritual by which people could feel self-righteous and personally "right-with-God-and-the-world" without really changing anything.) But living the lifestyle of mercy: the effort to give richly to assist the "sick" in life.

Here is wonder. What if Jesus' followers are not only forgiven and healed, but remade to live his character in the world? What if Jesus' followers sought out those who need mercy? What if Jesus' followers didn't come away from the sickness of society?

What if they, if we, worked to include, to help, to live, to heal? There is a new authority in Jesus' words. There is an unsettling quality about Jesus' words. Jesus is not all light and sweetness. Nor even all hell fire and repent-or-else. He is also all authority on earth and in heaven. He is the first of many lives poured out to help others.

You can't make Jesus any way you'd like him. With him it is "all or nothing." You can only take him at his word. Or leave him.

The Detroit Review Club will open the 1988-89 season on Tuesday, Sept. 13, at the Village Club in Bloomfield Hills.

New president Mary Lee Balmer of Troy will be the official hostess. She will also introduce the speaker following the luncheon. Guest speaker will be Auleen Jarrett, a full time professional speaker for Citizens Against Crime, a national safety organization.

Jarrett will discuss "Personal Assault Crime - Avoidance and Survival." Her program will cover areas of protection in the home, on the street or car, weapons, what to do if attacked and how to prevent crime.

Many members from Grosse Pointe and St. Clair Shores will be in attendance for the DRC's first meeting of the season. Members are asked to call Mary Fitzpatrick of Hidden Lane in Grosse Pointe Woods for ticket information. Cost of the luncheon is $15.

Serions Self-care is the latest medical trend for seniors and others

By Marian Trainor Special Writer

Would you believe that in this day of highly specialized medicine that there is a movement towards self-care?

This has nothing to do with diagnosis which rightly belongs in the realm of sophisticated medical care under the surveillance of highly trained doctors in well-equipped sterile offices and hospitals.

Rather, it is a return to a common sense health care routine that an individual can perform alone. Part of this re-evaluation of highly specialized technical care is a result of impersonal approach and cost. Another factor is that infectious diseases smallpox, pneumonia and polio - have been controlled by better living conditions, vaccines, better medicines and medical care. What we have left are chronic diseases like arthritis and heart conditions which represent 80 percent of all illnesses today. These chronic diseases lend themselves to the concept of

"self-care" and "self-help." It is not an entirely new idea. Most people practice self-care activities as a matter of routine.

Good nutrition, hygiene, dental cabinet. care and basic first aid, such as cleaning up cuts and cooling off burns, are all a form of self-care.

When we read an article on health or watch a medical show on television or send for a health pamphlet and pick up tips on the benefits of eating more fresh fruits, limiting our intake of fatty foods or the benefits of regular exercise, we are practicing your ideal weight; self-care.

However, in the strictest sense, self-care involves taking over tasks usually performed by a professional caregiver such as taking blood pressure, performing irrigations for earwax or measuring heart rate. We think of these tasks as being performed by a doctor or nurse, but studies indicate that non-professionals can do them.

have been administering to themselves for years. Diabetics test their urine and give themselves medical injections. Angina patients medicate themselves. Patients attend classes that teach self-care skills. Blood pressure cuffs are becoming as common as thermometers as stan-

Patients with chronic disease

A widely quoted study of 7,000 Californians documented how closely life-span is linked to life style. The study examined seven healthful practices:

- · Get seven to eight hours of sleep a night;
- Eat breakfast regularly;
- Don't eat between meals; · Keep within a few pounds of
- Engage in some form of ex-Drink moderately or not at
- Don't smoke.

In every age group, people who observed all seven of these rules had on the average better health than those who observed six. Moreover, people over 75 who followed all of these practices were generally as healthy as persons 30 to 40 years dard equipment in the medicine younger who followed fewer than Another form of self-care is self-treatment in emergencies. Guidelines for emergency selfcare can be found in first-aid manuals. The American Red Cross offers first aid classes on what to do in emergencies.

Recent books are encouraging readers to take on a wider range of medical responsibilities. Stepby-step checklists are presented that guide the reader through appropriate self-treatment and signal at what point professional help is needed.

A more comprehensive program involving self-care is the 'activated patient" course. An activated patient is a person who becomes involved in his or her own care. The person accepts responsibility for his or her own health and enters into a working partnership with the physician.

Another aspect of self-care is that practiced in groups. Selfhelp groups are people who share a common condition and who come together to offer one another the benefit of mutual experiences, support and counsel.

Self-help groups have sprung up to answer almost every need. There are groups for stutterers, smokers, patients with ulcers, persons who have had openheart surgery, arthritis, diabetics, neurotics, the spouses of heart-attack victims and the widowed.

Typically self-help health groups focus on behavior modification. A good example of this type is Alcoholics Anonymous. Others are weight control groups and those which help people to stop smoking.

Stressful situations have also become the focus of some selfhelp groups. The members offer one another mutual support by sharing coping strategies and advice. One such group is Make Today Count, organized by and for persons with terminal illnesses.

Other groups target self-fulfillment and self-improvement. One of these is the Senior Actualization and Growth Exploration.

SAGE was founded by a psychiatrist in 1974. It is based on the premise that old age should be rich and creative.

Weekly meetings incorporate deep breathing, massage, limber ing exercises to music, biofeed back and counseling. SAGE participants report that the techniques they have learned helped them to control headaches, reduce blood pressure, life depression, cure insomnia and limit the number of medications they need to take.

Conscientiously observing healthful practices can significantly enhance a sense of wellbeing as well as the ability to lead an active life.

Looking outside in

For the past several weeks, football squads, basketball teams, cross country runners, tennis teams and golf teams have been working out to open that fresh can of worms when the season starts in two

The fall slate will open with high aspirations. And in months, some will end with disgust, embarrassment and laughter. Some will thank their lucky stars the season will come to a quick halt, while others will want to prolong it. Either way, they have to have their helmets on, their shoes tied and their soccer balls inflated.

- I'm looking forward to the day lights can be erected at North, South and University Liggett School, permitting football games to be played at home sites on Friday
- I'd love to look forward to the Detroit Symphony Orchestra play to a halftime crowd at a football game in Grosse Pointe. Wouldn't that be a treat to see?
- I'd like to see Scott Bernhardt earn his stripes and lead North to at least a 7-2 season from his quarterback slot.
- I'd like to see North's girls' hoop team win another district title and advance to the regionals, but they've definitely got their work cut out for them. They lost some horses, but others are ready to jump the starting gate.
- University Liggett School is looking to win its ninth straight girls' tennis title at the state level, and with their schedule, they should be quite prepared for any competition at the end of the season. Prince All-American Dawn Martin returns to lead the Lady Knights, and barring injury, they should repeat.
- I can't wait to attend the Oct. 1 football game at ULS. They will be celebrating a Homecoming for the first time in more than 18 years. They're going to paint the campus red, not literally, and welcome alumni. A soccer game will be played that day, as will field hockey and a cross country match. The football team will bang with Wesleyan Academy at 1 p.m. Should be quite a show under the big top.
- I'm looking forward to the hot dogs and popcorn at football games. Don't forget about the hot chocolate and the rope licorice. And I thought I was going to lose weight this fall. See FULTON, page 2C field only once in approximately

Quarterbacks are a commodity this year at North, South and University Liggett School. Normally, several quarterbacks are hard to round up, but this season there's not enough room at the top for all the quarterbacks quarterback. listed in camp. The Norsemen field general job will probably go to Scott Bernhardt, with Ed Barbieri and Kevin McCarron waiting in the wings. Chris Stebbins looks like he's going to call the shots for South, but Bill Leonard and junior Brian Letscher are on the verge of taking over. Lex Smith, who quarterbacked for ULS last season, is back at the helm again this season, but Kevin Whitfield is willing and able to do the job.

It's obvious that wholesome battles are going on in the second full season as head coach. "Sometimes you're lucky to have one quarterback. This year we have a luxury most coaches don't have.'

Stebbins, a senior, picked up some experience last season after stepping in for the injured Bryan Jones. Jones went down in the second round of the state playoffs after getting hit by a Warrior from Brother Rice. Stebbins made a quick entrance and proved he could handle the job in the two quarters he worked.

"Chris has the inside track simply because of the experience he got in 1987," Rice said about last year's No. 2 quarterback, "but that's the only criteria. All three are doing very well and we feel confident that all of them can do the job."

The competition in practice can only help the situation. Pushing one another to be the best, and not forgiving the imperfections, is what most will tell you makes them strive to be the

"In our situation, it makes everyone work harder," said Bill Leonard. "You can't afford any mistakes because you know there's at least two guys waiting to take control."

As eager as beavers, the quarterbacks work on being one step better than their challengers. As much as they want the starting job, they want to help one another.

"Being the younger quarterback I know they're (Leonard and Stebbins) going to get the first look," said Letscher. "I know it's going to be even the whole way. I'm still learning a lot and they are always helping Stebbins, a senior, entered the wasn't alone. He threw nearly every day and worked on his game.

"The experience of the Brother Rice playoff game gave me a true advantage," he said. "The experience of getting more playing time helps. It's obviously easier if you know you've got the job when you come into practice, but then I don't think I'd work as hard. I'm benefitting from it."

Stebbins may have had the direct route, but Letscher and Leonard didn't let the summer pass, either.

"I know Chris had the inside track because of his playing time and playoff experience, but I came in ready to fight it out and I'll still fight it out," said Leon-

Meanwhile, Letscher tried to analyze the crystal ball.

"The whole summer I thought of how hard Chris and Bill were working," said Letscher, who started for the jayvee team one year ago. "I worked hard all summer to come in here and beat them out."

Stay tuned. At North, Coach Frank Sumbera, who enters his eighth season, will look to junior Scott Bernhardt, but wouldn't have a problem turning the job over to Barbieri or McCarron. However, the situation is a bit different. Barbieri will start in the defensive backfield and Mc-Carron will start at tailback. Therefore, the job is Bernhardt's.

"I have some experience, but I've got a lot to prove this year," said Bernhardt, who played No. 2 last year behind Bruno Giglio. "I'm out to prove I can do the job. It's a big responsibility, but I'm ready to do it.'

According to Barbieri, Sumanyone before camp, but he knew Bernhardt had the best

"Coach said the starting spot was open," said Barbieri, "but Scott had the upper hand going

But that won't stop Barbieri from competing for the spot.

Tve got to be as prepared as possible," he said. "I don't throw as well as Scott, but I'm working on it. Right now I go after him (to get the job), but I know I can't throw as well.'

He may not get the nod to start, but Barbieri's role in camp is paying high dividends, as far as Bernhardt's concerned.

"If I didn't have that competition, than I wouldn't be playing as well as I am," said Bernhardt. "Ed and Kevin push me in practice and I know they're there. That's what makes me work harder to get better."

McCarron doesn't foresee getting time behind the center, but if the horn sounds and he has to report, then look no further.

"I'll do whatever I have to do to win games," McCarron said. "If it means giving up my position at tailback, I would. I'll do what Coach thinks is best for Bernhardt looks for his first starting role against Fraser on Sept. 3 and the pressure seems to be building.

"I like the pressure," Bernhardt said. "It's a part of playing quarterback that you can't avoid. You've got to know what everyone is doing. The team looks to me to get us going and that's the pressure I feel. But, I know I can handle it.'

Move it or sell it

Upwardly mobile people move many times through the course of their career. Upwardly mobile boaters find this particularly cumbersome because it usually means selling the boat.

Some are reluctant to let their boats go when the job transfer comes about. However, some of those people who relocate continue to use their boat as a vacation home, with visits coming on weekends or holidays.

One couple, now retired, moved to North Carolina and couldn't take the boat. The expenses of relocating were bad enough, let alone trying to find a new berth for the boat. Their solution was to keep their yacht club membership in Grosse Pointe, and use the boat during the summer instead of vacationing at a cottage. They now feel they have the best of both worlds.

People whose companies move them around the country don't have the luxury of time. Often, relocation necessitates relinquishing the vessel because the new work is removed from the water. Kansas, for instance, is not ideal for a 45-foot boat. What if you are relocating to a place where you can take your boat? Boat moving costs are expensive. Who should pay, you or the company? In a recent ruling in tax court, reported in the July/ Augus issue of Boat Reports, published by Boat U.S., a boat owner won the right to deduct the moving expenses for his boat by proving the boat was part of his personal

The owner was a Marine Corps officer and subject to frequent moves. The military would not cover the moving costs of his boat. He deducted the costs from his income taxes and it was disallowed.

The officer established that the move was job related. He further established the boat was a personal item and an allowable, deductible moving expense. The sailboat had been owned for four years and was used by the family as a cottage. They lived aboard for long periods of time.

The court found the boat was "clearly a personal effect because of the amount of time the family spent sailing, its use as living quarters, and the numerous items kept on board.

The IRS has not modified their regulations on deductible moving expenses, and the regulations do not specifically speak to the issue of boats as personal effects. It can be expected, however, that this tax court ruling will be cited in future cases when a boater refuses to give up a boat simply because he/she is being relocated. It can further be expected that corporations who move their people around will have to deal with this issue.

As boats become more expensive, and a significant portion of the family's resources are devoted to boating, it can reasonably be expected that the relocated family will not give up their ship without a fight.

Start school with a nutritional bang

Surprise! Surprise! In spite of our long, hot summer, that may well go on into the golden days of September, it is once again time to prepare for the school year. As we begin the countdown to opening day and start the mad dash for school clothes, and all of the other accoutrements of this special time in our children's lives, let's take a few minutes to evaluate one of the most important aspects of starting our kids off on the right foot - healthy eating habits.

With a little bit of planning and forethought, we can help our children establish sound eating patterns, instead of the typical "hit or miss" approach we have taken in the past. For many of us, the beginning of the school year signifies a "new year," much more than January 1. This is a perfect time to make some nutritional "school year resolutions."

All of the latest research studies prove that nutritionally sound eating habits (especially breakfast) can help give a child an academic edge. So, if we are willing to go that "extra mile" for the right pair of Reeboks, or those designer ieans, why not a little extra effort for the body that will wear those jeans?

The most important

Grandma was right! The most important meal of the day is breakfast. It gives a good start because it helps raise the blood sugar level and helps you prepare for the day. All parts of our body, especially our brains, require "revving up" in the morning. After all, it has been quite a few hours since the body has received any type of nourish-

One of the best breakfasts includes a bowl of cooked cereal, such as oatmeal or oat bran cereal. Purchase the type that you cook, not the instant. If you positively cannot get your children to eat cooked cereal, then choose one of the cold cereals that are whole-grain, natural cereals with no sugar added. Many on today's market fit into this category. Before you purchase any of them, read the ingredients list. Be careful of the other names they use for sugar. It is often referred to as corn syrup, dextrose or glucose. Avoid buying foods listing these sweeteners as one of their first three ingredients.

There is a wide variety of healthful, nutritious breakfast foods. Natural fruit juices and fresh fruits can be prepared and refrigerated the night before for a refreshing addition to your breakfast. Fresh fruit. cut up and served over cereal is a flavorful, natural sweetener for whole-grain cereals. Scrambled eggs and whole wheat toast add additional variety and nutrition to the breakfast meal. Waffles and pancakes are another big hit with the kids. Try making them with part white flour, part whole-wheat flour in the beginning. It is a painless way to introduce your children to the nuttier and more flavorful taste of whole wheat flour. With time at a premium in the mornings, make up waffles ahead of time, freeze in packs of two or three in freezer bags. Your children can then help by preparing their own breakfast, using a microwave or toaster oven.

Instead of the usual sugary syrups as a topping, try using 100 percent maple syrup, or another healthy and "quickfix" is cooking up a cup of frozen strawberries, blueberries, etc. (the no-sugar types, just frozen berries). These can easily be heated and cooked with a little water, a pinch of sugar, then spooned over the waffles or pancakes.

Good scouts are prepared

For many of us, our two-career households, or single parent homes can cause absolute havoc with our well-meaning resolution to eating healthy. Fast food restaurants, TV dinners and high calorie snacking are terribly tempting when we are in a rush. But with a little planning and preparation we can eliminate our dependence on these foods. Plan for the entire week, and recruit your kids to help prepare ahead of time whenever possible. Keep plenty of fresh fruits, such as apples, oranges and bananas available for a quick pick meup. Concentrate on foods that are high in fiber and low in sugars such as whole-wheat crackers, fresh vegetables and fruits, and low-fat, high-pro-

Snacking is important for growing children. Caloric and nutritive demands may not be met with just three basic meals. In fact, it has been estimated that 25 percent of daily caloric intake for most children comes from snacking. Healthful snacking can be even more appealing when it is "fun." Have your children design "veggie faces" using celery sticks, radishes, cauliflower and green pepper strips. Create "fruit kabobs'

from slices of oranges, apples, melon balls and strawberries. Combine these with wholegrain crackers, a few slices of cheese or a low-calorie dip.

A meeting of the minds

Before the school year starts, why not have a family meeting? You could set an agenda that, besides discussing parent and children expectations and hopes for the coming year, includes your concerns for their nutritional well-being. Take your children shopping and let them select fruits and vegetables they would like included in their lunches or would eat for snacks. Let them be in on the decision-making for items they would like for sandwiches. Keep in mind, that if you and your children follow a basic and healthful eating program, you don't have to worry about a few junk food items now and then. It's like building a house; if you start with a solid, strong structure, a few curlicues here and there aren't going to make a big difference.

And children learn best by example. It is important to show them through your own behavior, that nutrition and wise eating habits get an "A' every time!

Workouts in water help beat the heat

This cardiorespiratory, "aerobic," form of exercise is one of the most popular activities in the United States. Whether you choose to swim laps, take an "aqua dynamics" class, or design your own series of water exercises, you'll find working out in water to be a safe, effective and enjoyable way to maintain your fitness levels through the coming months.

In order to achieve and maintain the benefits of exercise, you must do more than just jump in the water, wade around and get back out. Your water workout must follow the main principles of a workout - warm-up, 20-30 minutes of vigorous "aerobic" activity, and a cooldown. Supplement this with muscle strengthening and stretching exercises and you'll have a well-rounded program to improve your heart/strength and endurance, flexibil- ous movements similar to those ity and help you keep your done in a regular aerobic class. weight under control.

Swimming laps is one of the most popular ways of exercising in the water. Large pools, lakes and even the ocean, are great as long as the lap distance you choose is easily marked and free of such "traffic" as boats, buoys and people who are not swimming laps with you. The continuous movement back and forth, combining a variety of strokes or stroke, will keep your heart rate elevated and give you a good aerobic workout.

Many people who do not enjoy lap swimming are enrolling in "aqua aerobic" classes. With music in the background, these classes are often led by an instructor who stays poolside to ead the class through continu-

For those who cannot withstand the impact of aerobics, running and other activities, lap swimming or water aerobics can minimize their chance of injury while providing a vigorous workout.

Lastly, there are many different exercises you can do in the water on your own to get a good workout, and you need not venture into deep water. Holding on to the side of the pool and kicking your legs, treading water, maintaining one steady pace jumping in place, and running or walking laps in the waist-deep water are just a few of the many creative ways to work out in water. The resistive nature of the water itself against your muscular toning benefits of water exercise, and the movement itself helps increase flexibility.

Before starting your summer swimming program, here are a few tips you should consider:

· Check with your doctor if you're just starting an exercise program, are overweight, or if you have any medical problems you feel need attention. Start slowly and gradually increase the intensity and duration of your workout.

· Never swim alone. Even the most experienced swimmer should swim in the presence of a life guard, friends or other adult.

· Avoid swimming directly after eating. Give your body at least two hours to digest your food. When exercise and digestion compete for oxygen, muscle cramps may result.

With a little knowledge, a positive outlook and a safe place to work out, exercising in the water can be a great way to keep cool and stay in shape this summer.

Boccis walk away with top national honors

Jerry and Jeanne Bocci, the 56 seconds. Jeanne was the top husband-wife walking tandem, recently returned to their Grosse Pointe Park home with national recognition in race walking.

The Boccis competed in the 1988 TAC/USA Masters National Track and Field Championships in Orlando, Fla.

In the 5K walk, Jerry Bocci won the Masters 50-and-over division in a time of 26 minutes, finisher in 30:05 in the 45-andover women's division.

In the women's masters category, Bocci paced her way to a 20K overall-winning time of 2: 05:33. Jerry tried to make it a clean sweep by taking the men's 50-and-over masters title, but still fared very well as he finished second in 1:57:25.

Jeanne competes for the Wolverine Pacers.

'Last Temptation' holds rich reward for viewers

By Michael Chapp Special Writer

There are two ways to approach "The Last Temptation of Christ," Martin Scorsese's highly humanistic account of the life and times of Jesus of Nazareth - morally and artistically. Once viewers have the opportunity to experience the picture and reflect on its themes, however, it hardly seems necessary to make such distinctions.

The uproar of protesters who believe there is something blasphemous about the film is understandable, but not altogether valid, since the picture's premise, plot and conclusions are not the stuff of heresy that many people fear.

Rather, "Temptation" is a highly personal and reflective piece that explores the nature of Jesus as no other film has. It's a different type of work, yes. And it does devote more time and focus more attention on his humanity than on his divinity.

But for viewers willing to spend the time and intellectual energy necessary to completely explore "Temptation's" thesis, there is a rich reward. Scorsese's focus actually creates a better understanding and acceptance of Christ's duality. It asserts boldly that Jesus' crucifixion was a resounding victory not only for him, but for us as well.

The big difference here is that every effort is made to document the pain that comes before the gain. There is no hesitancy in the picture's early going to characterize Jesus as confused and, at times, hurting. He does not understand the scope and meaning of his mission. He is tempted often. His conflicts manifest themselves in hallucinations and fainting spells.

And even as he begins his life's work - preaching and healing - he expresses doubt to himself and to his closest friends. As crowds follow close behind, he wonders what would happen if he says the wrong thing. Then, more importantly, he wonders what would happen if he says the right thing.

A sharp contrast to the Hollywood Jesuses of the past, this one shows the signs of human in his deepest doubts that he the persona of Christ.

makes his greatest strides. As he fasts in the desert - and temptation takes its different forms -Jesus begins to assert his inner strength and character. It's that character which carries him through the more difficult times that follow.

As the film progresses, so does Jesus' inner conviction. He becomes increasingly comfortable with and accepting of his role as God's son and Earth's salvation. When he throws coins and breaks tables at the money changer's booths in the temple, there is no doubt in his mind he's doing the right thing. When Jesus urges Judas to betray him since that's the only way to bring his message to fruition there's no doubt in his mind about that either.

Throughout the film, Jesus is presented in increasingly frequent and insistent close-ups. Scorsese constantly moves in tight with his camera and allows viewers to see in strikingly vivid and descriptive detail the feafrailty that affect everyone. He tures of the main character. Wilappears dazed and befuddled. He lem Defoe, in the lead role, offers often admits as much. But it is a great amount of credibility to

By the time he is beaten, crowned with the thorns and nailed to a cross, Jesus has become as real to viewers as any character has ever been in the movies. And, in notable contrast to the increasing intimacy, a slow-motion long shot documents his journey to Golgotha, where he is to die.

His last temptation, as he hangs on the cross, is valid within the film's unique context and is essential to viewer comprehension of everything that has preceded it. Through action and inference - and also through extensive metaphor and stylistic leitmotives - we have been forced to expect the final conflict. It is in the darkest hour of his life — at the moment he feels foresaken by God - that Jesus hallucinates about a different course of events.

He imagines marrying Mary Magdalene - with whom he had his life - and making love to trouble accepting that. her. He imagines having a family and working as a carpenter. He imagines growing old and witnessing what would be if he did not die on the cross. In his anguish, he realizes just how important his mission is.

And back in reality, as he again becomes cognizant of his crucifixion, he is able to smile heartily, and whisper in profound and almost transcendental contentment: "It is accomplished."

The film is filled with thought provoking material, to be sure. Scorsese is slow and deliberate. often becoming weighed down with the sheer magnitude of what has been undertaken. Other times, characters and time are juxtaposed, further complicating the proceedings. Still, an approach of this type guarantees that viewers will work hard and are challenged.

is the assumption that just because we have difficulty under that, 2000 years later, there is standing Jesus' dualistic nature, an infinite knowledge to be had he, too, had the same difficulty. Scorsese's work demands that found we project our own ignorance on Christ.

a close relationship throughout. Jesus, Perhaps some will have

But this point, above all others, drives home Scorsese's hypothesis. If Jesus is to be explored in a fictional way, it is entirely appropriate to theorize about his human foibles.

The film's raison d'etre is not to make Jesus appear to be a blithering idiot overwhelmed by his own ineptitude. Quite the contrary, it documents the struggle he almost certainly would have faced before fully accepting his divinity. If there is something controversial about that, it is a chance worth taking.

Ultimately, Scorsese's work makes clear that Jesus was a man - a divine man - killed because he rocked the boat and made the leaders of the time uncomfortable. Beyond that though, it also presents viewers with the same challenges faced by Jesus himself. For all its focus on Jesus' humanity, its bottom-line message is a proclama-If there is fault in the film, it tion and celebration of his divinity. It provocatively asserts -- and an infinite reward to be - in knowing Jesus

Keaton shines in first dramatic role in 'Clean and Sober'

By Marian Trainor

Special Writer

The message in "Clean and Sober" is that recreational use of drugs and alcohol can lead to dependence and dependence can wreck lives.

For an industry that has often portraved alcoholics as likable. funny fellows, such as in the "Arthur" films, this is a new angle. It also avoids another dramatic device, that of subjecting the viewer to the dreadful withdrawal scenes such as those in

"The Lost Weekend."

At the same time it presents the hard fact that being dried out is only part of the cure. It shows that there is the need to admit alcoholism and to map out when a phone rings. A co-worker a strategy against becoming a victim.

For some people, admitting addiction is the toughest battle of all. "Clean and Sober" gets this important message across without turning this film into a sermon. This is accomplished by selective emphasis on gritty details and superb handling of the material by Michael Keaton.

The Missing LIN

Linking individuals to Needs in the Community is a non-profit organization whose purpose is to coordinate needs with resources. This is accomplished by placing goods no longer needed by individuals and businesses into the hands of Metropolitan Detroit charitable agencies. Operating since 1971, LINC is proud of the accomplishments it has made and strives to increase its resource base. If you have recyclable items, no longer of use to you, Operation LINC knows who can use them. Please call LINC at 882-6100 with your donation. KEEP IT MOVING!

The DOWNTOWN SENIOR CITIZENS have requested an air purifier and a pool table.

Adult CRAFT KITS (boats, planes and cars) for twentyfive to thirty men are needed by the DETROIT RESCUE MISSION.

Many agencies have requested fans/and or air conditioner units. It has been hot! If you have a spare unit please pass it on. LINC has an ongoing need for infant items. If you have a crib, high chair, infant seats, please call us.

CAREGIVERS is currently developing a new program with the Youth Services of Wayne County for children who must be removed from their families for abuse and neglect. Often there is a period of several hours before foster care piacement is secured. Currently they are kept at the precinct. The new program would assure quality care for the children in transit. Caregivers is looking for carpeting, childrens picture, plants, a television, child size table and chairs. This is a traumatic time for these children, help us help them.

PROJECT UPLIFT has requested cans of fruit juice, coffee creamer, a simple map of the United States, a Scruples game and 35 mm film (print).

ate of North, will be wrestling on the mats at the University of Chicago this fall. Lewis, who captained the Norsemen last year, was a regional champion at 145 pounds for two straight years. He advanced to the state Class A finals each year and fared quite well. The region he competed in covered schools in Eastern Wayne County, Eastern Oakland County, Macomb County, Lapeer County, Sanilac and St. Clair County.

During his career at North, Lewis won more than 100 times. He finished first in many tournaments, including the Lutheran Park Invit., Fordson, West Kocher.

After his final year at North, Lewis spent his summer grappling in the AAU Michigan Freestyle Championships, where he won the state championship at 165 pounds.

Picking a university was a tough task for Lewis. He was accepted to the University of Michigan, the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Chicago. After pondering for weeks, Lewis collected his thoughts and threw his hat into the Chicago ring.

Lewis was coached by Don East Invitational two consecutive Maskill at North, but will now years, as well as the Highland be under the wings of Coach Lee

Norbs swimmers finish dual meet season in fourth place

The 1988 swim season for the Grosse Pointe City Norbs swim team was challenging and rewarding. As a team, they finished fourth in the dual-meet standings and third in the championship meet held at the Farms on July 27.

Everyone performed well for the Norbs team, coached by Ryndy Ditmars and Ann Rice. The 8-and-under high point trophy went to Julie Krease and Patrick Howe. The 10-and-under ter and Chuckie Ruifrok received the high-point trophies for the 12-and-under group. Susan Emery and Jim Bellanca were the winners in the 14-and-under. and Courtney Champion and Chris Clarke took the 17-andunder trophy.

The Most Improved Trophy was awarded to Lauren Beckenhauer. The swimmer with the most points over the season was awarded the Most Valuable winners were Elizabeth Cugliari Swimmer Trophy. That piece of and Brian Leroy. Rebecca Wal- hardware went to Jim Bellanca.

Boat Show USA comes to Metro Beach Metropark

Mount Clemens will host "Boat Show USA" starting Saturday, Sept. 24 through Sunday, October 2, with show hours from noon to 8 p.m. daily.

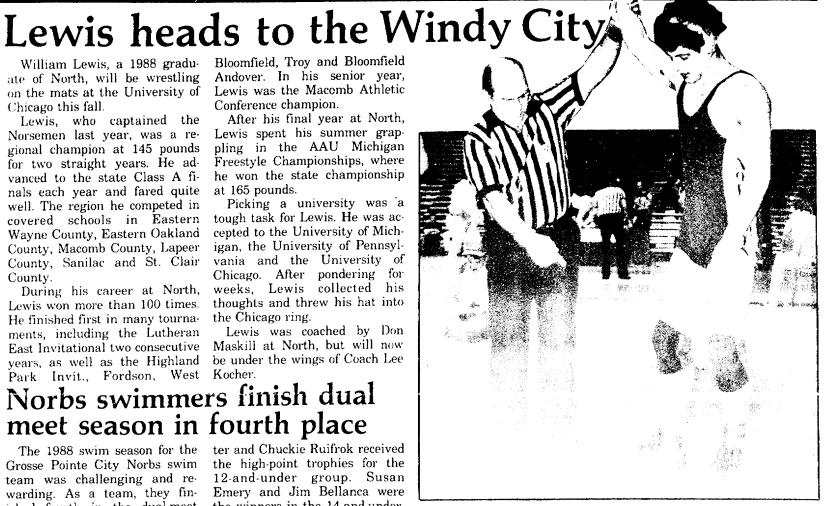

Over 1,200 boats are expected to be on display at the annual event, according to James Bresciami, park superintendent at the 770-acre regional Metropark.

"Many new boats are introduced to the public each year at this show" stated Jack Leverenz, Metro Beach Metropark near manager of the show and of Recreational Promotions, Inc.

> Boat Show admission is adults - $5 and children under 12 - $1, and a 1988 Metropark vehicle entry permit is required (Annual: regular - $10, or senior citizen -$5 or daily - $2).

For additional information contact Recreational Promotions. Inc., of Grosse Pointe - Phone (313) 886-7887 or Metro Beach Metropark (313) 463-4581 or 1-800-24-PARKS (toll-free in Michigan).

William Lewis is hoping many officials will raise his hand in victory as he wrestles for the University of Chicago this fall.

Pointe Aquatics Swim Club registering fall swimmers

Pointe Aquatics, formed in the both United States Swimming recent merger of the Grosse Pointe Swim Club and the All Pointes Swim Club, is currently holding a registration for its fall swim program.

The program is co-sponsored by the Department of Community Education of the Grosse

Hemlines inch down in response to uproar against the micro-mini

The hemline question is still at the forefront of fashion news this fall, and the long and short of it is this. Take your choice

Skirts were getting shorter and shorter over the past few seasons, but last year's a icro man seemed to be the last straw for most women. Enough is enough, they said, and designers had to listen. The thigh high heinlines had to come down. And mey have, but not that far. Short skirts are still the rage, with the heinline of choice tailing just to the knee

This season, however, there are other options. Starts also just cover the kneed hid some actually drop to midealt.

For the most part, the couphasis is on needs consciousness, no matter what the a night. Those sleek, form fitting styles be here to stay, at least for the moment.

In what seems to be an attempt to most the hemline controversy altogether. designers are putting a lot of energy intoouts for fall forming out a wide variety a class from classic trousers to slightly orbeat cropped pants with wide legs, but thessing up, took for romantic, billows. control partits

Shirts and pants also are being paired with a mamber of maket shapes to create. conderfully pulled together and inter-

Suits are decided style staples for the geometric season. Cropped, fitted picks conclon of slim skirts, create what and be dw look for fall, but certainly

Other jacket shapes include tailored blazers, slightly over-sized blazers, boleros, tunic style and military inspired.

Also prominent are swing jackets and coats that are cut quite full to 'swing' out in the back, producing a silhouette that's 50s inspired but definitely 180s chie.

White swing coats are 'fun' fashion, this fall there seems to be less flounce than there has been recently. The overall feel is quite sophisticated. What whimsy there is comes from the use of polka dors, foud checks and plads, and brightly colored faux fur for coats and jackets. As for evening, sexy and streamlined shapes will be the most prevalent. It's going to be so easy to be glamorous this

And it's going to be so easy to be welldressed, because it's not a season of extremes. It is a season for classic lines with contemporary twists, beautiful lothes that are a definite tribute to the cintraine John.

Evening elegance

THE ROMANTIC ALLURE of scalloped edges and luxurious fabrics returns for fall, 1988. Here, Perry Ellis creates fantasy when he pairs a scalloped, moire evening coat with a panné velvet strapless siren dress.

Pearls remain a fashion favorite for fall

A TIMELESSLY ELEGANT FLAVOR is captured in this solid gold choker inset with large south sea cultured pearls and diamonds by David Webb. Black velvet cocktail

As shown in the fall collections of many Seventh Avenue designers, a subtle chic has stepped onto the scene. Gone are the fancy flourishes of fabrics that characterized last season's collections, only to be replaced by sleeker, more refined and functional styles.

It is this simple, yet elegant direction that fashion is taking which will lend it-self to a host of different and exciting cultured pearl accents for fall '88.

For daywear, pants and smart suits are back in force for the women of America. Neatly tailored silhouettes and clean lines are characteristic of the new fall

Cultured pearls, timelessly elegant and never frivolous, seem to complement perfectly the new styles. The trend toward monochromatic dressing in fall colors such as tobacco, royal purple and tea green will serve as an excellent backdrop for the clean lustre of pearls.

Whether a woman spends her day networking in the business arena or lunching at the local ladies club, pearl jewelry definitely will add that needed splash of

Long opera length neeklaces in two or more strands definitely will enhance the slimming effect created by the redefined man-tailored pant and blouse ensemble, as well as reaffirm a woman's feminine

A black turtleneck under a smart hip length or bolero jacket calls for a simple 20" matinee necklace of creamy white pearls to soften the look.

Simple yet uniquely shaped pearl pins enhance the impact of any jacket and can be placed on the lapel or off the shoulder. Pearl brooches on coats can be an interesting way to warm the icy bite of winter.

Evening wear for the fall has seen the end of poufs and fringes. Sleek, slinky and surprisingly clean fashions abound. Black velvet, chenille and delicate dark silk lace are back. Unpretentious off-theshoulder and strapped evening dresses will pave the way for luxurious flashes of

While long and flowing multiple strands of cultured pearls fit fall's early Chanel-inspired motif, short and ornate pearl chokers will be an excellent way to offset the still prevalent bustier dress.

Big pearl bracelets and hanging mabe pearl earrings set in gold will make ap-

Indeed, what experts have seen most recently on Seventh Avenue is not simply a turn away from frivolity, but a return to a delicately classic feeling in sportswear

Fall '88 probably will mark a turning point in the use of costume jewelry. The more serious and sophisticated fashions of the season will inspire women indirectly to seek comfort in fine jewelry. And cultured pearls, always in good taste, extremely versatile and feminine, will be able to fit the bill.

Perhaps that is why fashion designers such as Ralph Lauren, Oscar de la Rentaand Carolina Herrera have shown pearls recently as their choice for the jewelry of

Little details that make big fashion news

FIT YOUR FRAME TO YOUR FACE

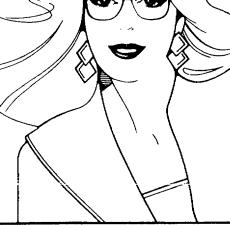

With such a tremendous variety of frame styles currently on the market, choosing the one that's just right for you can be bewildering. Here are three important elements to notice when you shop for frames:

1. SHAPES. Quite simply, pick a frame that's the opposite of your face shape. If your face is round, try oval or rectangular frames. If your face is squarish, try rounded frames.

2. SIZES. Most frame styles come in several different sizes. Try larger and smaller versions of a style you like. If your face is fairly small, avoid largesized frames that overpower your face and make it look even smaller. A good rule of thumb -- if your glasses move up and down when you talk, they're too big!

Grosse Pointe Woods

3. contours. Check to see that the tops of the frames follow the shape of your eyebrows. It's usually a plus if the frames extend a little bit above the eyebrows. And remember that the widest part of the frames should not exceed the widest part of your face.

In the fall, the country leisure set demands clothing that will allow them to participate comfortably and fashionably in their favorite pastimes.

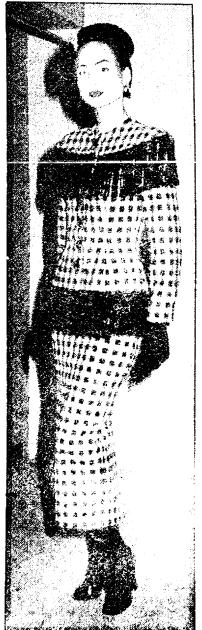

For centuries, British oiled-cotton jackets have kept these sportsmen and women, spectators and evening dog walkers protected and warm.

In Britain, the legendary reputation for tough, weatherproof oiled cotton jackets has more to do with fact than legend. It's a fact that the best British oiledcotton jackets are made from Egyptian long-stapled cotton, not regular cotton or "super" fabrics such as Gore-Tex or Thintech.

It is also a fact that these jackets have been oiled with a special formula, similar to petroleum jelly, to provide maximum weatherproofing with minimum condensation. This probably goes a long way to explain why the "Barbour Look" is pre-

The secret to these jackets' abrasion-resistant, weatherproof properties is the dressing applied to the surface. Similar to the oil found on a waterfowl's feathers, the oil dressing, applied to the surface of the long stapled cotton garment, doesn't soak into the pores of the fabric.

Fashion Hints For The Petite Woman

If you are a petite woman (5'4" or under), high style does not have to be out of your reach. By following three basic principles of fashion, you can create longitude in your wardrobe and always look your best.

No matter what the "in" styles may be, the principles of line, proportion and balance will never change.

When choosing clothes, the petite woman always should remember that the eyes will follow the dominant line of an outfit, whether the line is in the fabric, print or cut of the clothing.

For the smaller woman, therefore, it is best to make sure the dominant line in an outfit is vertical Proportion can be achieved by wearing clothes that are scaled to your body size and shape. Smaller prints, plaids with dominant vertical lines, fabrics that hang softly or drape, and smooth, lightweight natural fabrics all will look much better on the petite woman than heavy, stiff fabrics and large scale prints.

By pairing loose and form fitting garments, long and short pieces, subdued and bright colors, and smooth and textured fabries, you can achieve balance in your look and increase the impression of length.

So, if you're a petite woman, hold your chin high, follow these simple fashion principles and dress with flair easily.

STREAMLINED SHAPES characterize designs by Bill Robinson for fall '88, as does the use of such details as zippers, as in the black leather stadium coat, left, which is worn over a black sweater with deep V-neck, black and apple green striped mock turtleneck, and black waffle-weave wool pants. Re-engineered double-breasted trench coat, eight, boasts button-out lining. V white pique jersey mock turtleneck peeks out from beneath.

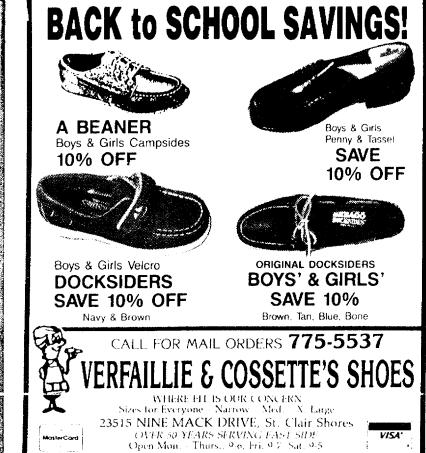

A touch of class

IMPECCABLY ELEGANT, this double-breasted suit from Christian Dior Monsieur is generously draped for style and comfort, Jacket boasts peak lapels, and six button front; trousers are pleated; the fabric is hydrious gray striped wool.

THE NUANCES of dressing well—and unostentationsly—have long been part of the English gentleman's sartorial education. Today, American men can indulge themselves in the same elegantly discreet attire, thanks to Savile Row clothiers, Gieves & Hawkes, who are bringing their clothing to America, in partnership with Hickey-Freeman, Here, a worsted wool double-breasted suit with peak lapel in classic Prince of Wales plaid is worn with shirt, tie, pocket square and watch, all by Gieves & March.

Cashmere and camel hair: Fashion classics

Fall, 1988, brings a return to classic styles for menswear crafted of cashmere and camel hair. This year's fashion focus is on quality and long-term appeal.

Shoppers will find a selection of traditional styles on retail shelves, this fall, including luxurious cashmere sweaters. vests and scarves as well as camel hair suits and coats.

Cashmere and camel hair both will be used in a range of new fashion applications including sports jackets, outerwear, robes, jogging suits, hats, accessories and even polo shirts.

More care and attention will be placed on workmanship, buttons and fixtures to assure quality products.

Cashmere especially has become a premium item due to tight supply and price increases of the raw fiber

"As cashmere becomes more precious, fashions will need to be more long term and styles more enduring and less temporal," says James Undg koffler.

President of Jacques de Loux, Sellersville, Penn.

According to Underkoffler, "Today's styles need to be classic and of good quality to provide real value to consum-
