Grosse Pointe Academy receives national honor

The Grosse Pointe Academy was one of 287 elementary schools honored for excellence at a recognition ceremony last Thursday in Washington, D.C.

President Ronald Reagan greeted Academy representatives Dr. Sidney I. DuPont, headmaster, and eighth grade students William Gehrke Jr. and Alex Toledo before the afternoon presentation.

U.S. Secretary of Education William J. Bennett gave DuPont a specially designed flag honoring the school as an exemplary elementary school in the Department of Education's 1987-88 Elementary School Recognition Program.

There are more than 81,000 elementary schools in the nation and the Academy was one of only 13 in Michigan to be selected for the honor. The schools are located in 48 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and a U.S. Air Force Base school in West Germany.

Other festivities in the two-day affair included performances by the Marine Corps Band and school music groups from around the country.

The award is the result, DuPont said, of the combined efforts of teachers, volunteers, parents and students.

"It's the Academy's team effort that won us this award and we will fly our flag with a great deal of pride," he said.

As a parting gesture, the school gave education secretary Bennett a sun visor with the school's crest on it to go mountain climbing as he leaves office.

"It didn't outdo a Pilgrim's hat by the Plymouth, Mass. elementary school, but he did wear it for a few pictures and he did thank us," DuPont said.

Bennett will be succeeded by Lauro F. Cavazos as secretary of education.

'Tattletape' security approved for library

By Nancy Parmenter

Staff Writer The new library book security system approved by the school board Sept. 13 won't eliminate theft, but it sure will help. In the most popular categories, like auto mechanics, literary criticism, cookbooks and the occult, losses could be reduced by two-

"Even with a security system, we're quite aware that if somebody really wants a book, they'll find a way to take it," said library Director Charles Hanson. He said that in the most popular categories, losses without a secu rity system range around 50 percent; installation of a system cuts that to about 15 percent.

The library first requested the so-called "tattletapes," metallic strips that set off an electronic signal when the book is carried past a sensor, in August. The request was tabled at that time, pending further information.

Last week, Hanson told the board that funds have been budgeted this year to buy the system, which costs $42,200. He said both high school libraries are equipped with the same system. The 3M Co., developer of the system, has no plans to develop a new technology that would make the system obsolete, according to Hanson.

The library hasn't done a complete physical inventory since 1978, so no one really knows how many books are missing.

The number is estimated at more than 5,000.

"To actually do a whole physical inventory with 150,000 books is impractical," Hanson said Thursday. "You just don't have the staff time to do that.'

He said some sections have been inventoried as part of the collection-building process. The library keeps track of the books on computer, but it is an imperfect process at this point.

"There's no easy answer until they come up with a bar code reader and you can just zip up and down the aisle without carrying a heavy card file drawer," Hanson said.

Patrons of clothing stores and university libraries are already accustomed to the electronic security system. Hanson said he doesn't expect many complaints.

"We do get complaints when the book isn't there, but the computer says it is," he said. "It's embarrassing for the librarian.

The system could save both money and irreplaceable books. The average cost of a library book is now nearly $20, plus the cost of staff time to process it, Hanson said. And publishers are now printing shorter runs of a title, so that books go out of print more quickly.

At this time, the library will buy 150,000 tattletapes for $12,750 — and spend the next year installing them. The sensor equipment will not be bought until library building plans are completed.

School officials dismayed over after-care rejection

Grosse Pointe public school of ficials are expressing disappointment this week over the Woods city council's recent decision preventing the Children's Home of Detreit from establishing an outpatient clinic for youth substance abuse counseling at its Cook Street complex.

The Children's Home is on property zoned community facilities, a zoning that includes hospitals, schools, churches and some non-profit institutions.

Even if out-patient counseling had been approved as an accepted special land use, the Children's Home and other institutions under the community facilities zoning would have had to go through public hearings and get planning commission and council approval before being allowed to offer the counseling.

Teen group begins fourth year in area

With the new school year under way, FOCUS-Grosse Pointe, a Christian ministry to secondary school students, is launching its fourth year of service to teens in the Grosse Pointe community.

FOCUS, an acronym for Fellowship of Christians in Universities and Schools, came to Grosse Pointe in 1984 with a nucleus of 20 teens and today has grown to an organization providing fellowship and leadership opportunites through a variety of activities to more than 100 teens in the com-

FOCUS begins its organizational year under the new leadership of Bryce and Melissa Gray. Recently married, both are graduates of Northwestern University and bring a wide range of vonth related experiences to their new duties as co-directors of the FOCUS program.

As new residents of Grosse Pointe Park, both expressed their impressions of the greater Grosse Pointe community as well as the kinds of goals they see ahead to help FOCUS continue its growth and its contributions to the community.

"We're very excited to be in Grosse Pointe," Bryce Gray said. "We anticipate an exciting fall program and we are grateful for the warm acceptance we've received from the students we've met, their parents and the FO-CUS sponsoring committee.

Melissa Gray added "I look forward to not only being a resource to help students grow in their relationship with God, but also to being a friend they can come to at any time for guidance or a sympathetic ear. Since Bryce and I are both 23, we can still clearly remember and relate to the difficulties teens are facing today."

Beginning with a handful of students from University Liggett School and expanding to Grossse Pointe South High School and other high schools throughout the community, FOCUS seeks to continue to relay a relevant FOCUS receives no outside funds to support its programs. The organization is funded solely by more than 90 residents of the Grosse Pointe communities.

The principal purpose of the organization is to provide guidance and direction to secondary students in the pursuit of their faith in Christ.

FOCUS program activities include: Friday morning meetings. These meetings are conducted from 7 to 8 a.m. in a local home with generally 60-80 teens in attendance. Diner critical of food, threatens the president

By John Minnis Staff Writer

A disgruntled diner at the Ram's Horn restaurant on Mack verbally abused the food, the menu and ended his tirade Sunday by allegedly threatening to execute the president of the United States.

Grosse Pointe City Public Safety reported a man eating at the restaurant at 3:30 a.m. complained openly about the food and menu. After he left, political leaflets and letters written by the man were found on a newsrack outside the restaurant. The letters contained confused references to political figures and parties, including presidential candidate Vice President George Bush and the Communist Party.

A short time after he left, a man called the restaurant and complained about the its food and menu and ended his verbal barrage by threatening to "execute the president." A restaurant employee who spoke to the man on the phone believes the caller is the same complainer who had visited the restaurant earlier.

City police turned the political documents that were found over to a special agent with the Secret Service.

Since the man has not been arrested or charged, the police would not release the man's name. City detectives will continue to look into the case for possible violations of local law.

Officials with the Secret Service office in Detroit could not be reached for comment.

Arthritis care

The course is designed to give people with arthritis the knowledge and skills needed to take a more active part in their arthritis care. It provides education about arthritis, treatments, exercise, relaxation, medication, and joint protection.

Registration is required; call 350-3030. Saratoga Community Hospital is located at 15000 Gratiot between 7 Mile and 8 Mile

Library survey

Oct. 2 will be the last day for residents to respond to a short user survey being conducted at each of the Grosse Pointe public libraries.

Sponsored by the Library Building Advisory Committee, the questionnaire seeks user responses in areas including public service hours, parking, seating and resource materials. Users can make known how they perceive their needs are currently being met by the libraries.

Survey responses will provide valuable input to the committee, a group of 37 community members and staff, chaired by Doris Brucker. Residents are encouraged to participate by filling out the questionnaire at Central, Park and Woods libraries.

LCC to hold hearing re: Cracker Jax

By John Minnis

Staff Writer A state Liquor Control Commission hearing has been scheduled Oct. 3 to consider alleged violations filed against the Cracker Jax nightclub by the Grosse Pointe Farms Public Safety Department.

The LCC hearing is just seven days before the Farms council is scheduled to hold a public hearing Oct. 10 concerning the revocation of Cracker Jax's city-issued business license.

At a June council meeting, city attorney Bob Ihrie was ordered to prepare a case for revoking the nightclub's business license in response to residents' complaints and Farms Public Safety Department reports that cited Cracker Jax with several alleged violations of liquor laws.

According to Public Safety

Director Robert Ferber's report, several citations were issued against the nightclub and patrons for various alleged offenses, including urinating in public. littering, fights and minors in possession of alcoholic bever-

Cracker Jax management disagrees with the charges and said it has done everything it can to prevent minors from being served alcohol. Owner Mark DiMaso said his establishment has complied with requests made by police.

The liquor license involving Cracker Jax is listed with the LCC under the name of United Syndicated Artists Inc., according to a LCC spokeswoman in the hearings and appeals division in Lansing.

She said the LCC is notified by law enforcement officials any time a licensed establishment is cited for liquor violations. In this case, Farms public safety notified the LCC when it cited Cracker Jax for violations during the summer.

The LCC spokeswoman said licensees who are cited are given 20 days to sign a waiver. If they choose to sign a waiver, they are fined. If they don't sign a waiver, a hearing is scheduled.

She would not say whether Cracker Jax stood a chance to lose its license as a result of the scheduled hearing, which will be at the LCC's Lincoln Park office at 2251 Dix Highway at 9:30

She also would not reveal if the Cracker Jax licensee has ever received any other liquor

Lights discourage crime, increase neighborliness

Staff Writer

A four-street area in Grosse Pointe Park has been able to take a bite out of crime by shedding a little light on the subject.

Lights were installed in the front yards of homes on Wayburn and Maryland streets last summer and in front of homes on Lakepointe and Beaconsfield this summer.

The lights have had positive effects in the neighborhoods, according to Jeff Mueller, administrative assistant.

"I can't give you any numbers because crime is an up and down thing," he said, "but the lights have definitely added a deterrent and have improved the neighborhoods.

He said that before the lights, neighbors were seldom seen outdoors after 10 p.m. Now residents along the four streets are sitting on their porches and walking at that time of night. "People say they've actually gotten to know their neighbors since the lights were put up,'

Funding for the lights was provided through the Tax Increment Finance Authority (TIFA).

Mueller explained that TIFA allowed communities to set up residential districts and target them for improvements. Funds are derived by capturing additional tax revenues resulting from rising property values in the TIFA district.

The Park council created a four-year TIFA district composed of Wayburn, Maryland, Lakepointe and Beaconsfield streets.

During the district's first year, $88,369 were captured in windfall taxes for the district. The city estimates getting $191,000 this year and some $283,800 during the program's fourth and final year.

New library plan requires further study

he recommendation for a new building to house the main library was well received by the Grosse Pointe Board of Education last week, but it is clear that many questions still remain about the cost of the proposed structure, the use to be made of the three existing library buildings and the extent of the expansion required to meet community needs.

The Library Building Advisory Committee, headed by Doris Brucker and including 36 other members representing the library, the schools and community leadership, obviously has done a thorough study that provides answers to most questions - but not all - likely to be raised about the project.

The most promising location for the new library, the committee said, is available land near the southwest corner of Brownell Middle School at Chalfonte. The proposed building would provide from 30,000 to 45,000 square feet as contrasted with the 18,000 square feet in the Central Library; 4,400 square feet in the Park branch, and 4,900 square feet in the Woods branch. If all three are retained for library purposes and the new building is erected, the Pointes would have the 60,000 square feet of space recommended earlier by consultants to the library.

If they are to be retained, the committee recommended that they should be improved and brought up to code since they would continue to operate while a new building is under construction. Whether all three would be retained as branches or other uses found for at least one is still

Two matters of great interest to taxpayers, the proposed cost and financing, are yet to be determined. The committee simply recommended that a new budget be drawn up for the construction of the new main library and repair of the three existing facilities, if they are to be retained.

Mrs. Brucker said she is hopeful that the cost could be held to less than the $8.625 million sought for library expansion in the unsuccessful bond issue vote last November, but added that a program for private funding should be developed to reduce the amount of public financing necessary.

On the cost point, it is clear that maintaining the three present structures for library purposes and adding a fourth would substantially increase both operating and maintenance costs. Such a move probably would also require additional millage. The committee did not address these issues in its report but will continue its studies on costs and other matters.

It is clear that one of the touchiest issues was the committee's decision to recommend against expansion of the Breuer-designed Central building which was a gift to the Grosse Pointe community by the Ferry family. That decision came because of the feeling that there simply was not room at the present Central building location for the expansion of services required, especially if the use of part of the South high athletic field is ruled out. Parking, traffic, commercial development and other factors also recommended against expansion at the present site.

In the coming months, there will be community discussions about the committee's proposal and various aspects of its plans for expansion of library services. Pointe residents ought to study the committee's report, ask questions about matters they don't understand and offer suggestions for changes if they have them. Since the plan is not yet fully developed, now is the time to discuss it and raise questions about what it means to the taxpayers and users of the library.

The News is sympathetic to library expansion, as it has been in the past, and hopes questions about the cost, extent of the expansion required, the use to be made of the three existing structures and other matters can be answered to the community's satisfaction. If so, approval of a bond issue at an election in March or June of 1990 should be no major problem.

New chapter in Shine saga

ne of the criticisms we've made of chain journalism is that it often shifts editors and other news personnel from paper to paper without giving them time to become acquainted with the communities they serve.

Like other chain papers, the Detroit Free Press has sometimes been guilty of this practice but, fortunately for the paper and the Detroit metropolitan area, it kept Neal Shine at home to serve the Detroit community. But Shine, a native Detroiter who is now a Pointer, has announced that after 38 years he has decided to step down from active daily newspapering shortly after Jan. 1, 1989.

He will, however, continue his column in the Freep, but only twice a week instead of three times a week. And he will also continue with his journalism classes at Oakland University where he has been teaching part time since 1979.

In a column explaining his semi-retirement, Shine said he would have more time to spend with his wife, children and grandchildren; to learn French and German and maybe even Spanish and Italian; to have time in the summers to repair the roof of his cottage which has leaked for 30 years, and to plan longer vacations, especially abroad.

He didn't say whether he would continue to preside as a witty toastmaster at innumerable civic functions; to moderate the Channel 56 TV program, "Detroit in Review," every Friday night; or to serve some of the other worthy causes he has reader of the Economist of London has taken the British news weekly 1 to task for the way it counts the presidents of the United States. The reader reminded the magazine that there really have been only 39 presidents, meaning that whoever wins in November will be the 40th, not the 41st as the Economist had said.

The reader is both right and wrong. It is true that only 39 individuals have served as president. But some years ago the U.S. State Department ruled that Grover Cleveland should be counted twice - both as No. 22 and No. 24 - because his two terms were not consecutive. In fact, he is the only president to be elected to nonconsecutive terms.

But Cleveland has another distinction we discovered in checking his record in the World Almanac. He is the only president to have received the largest number of popular votes in three consecutive presidential elections without serving three consecutive terms. In fact, the only president to have served more than two elective terms is Franklin Delano Roosevelt who was elected four times but served only a few months into his fourth term.

Why didn't Cleveland serve three terms? It was, of course, the fault of the electoral college. In his second try for the presidency in 1888, just 100 years ago, Cleveland received 5,540,050 popular votes to 5,444,337 for Benjamin Harrison. But Harrison won in the electoral college, 233 to 168.

This year, if George Bush is elected president, he would become the 14th vice presisupported as the Freep's "outside man." But we don't really expect him to call a halt to many of these activities. He enjoys them too much.

Yet he also loves his colleagues at the Free Press, to whom he bid a fond farewell and whom he described as "idealists who would just as soon be mistaken for cynics." That's not a bad definition of the newsgathering and editing profession in general although few members might admit it pub-

Shine said if he will miss anything from not being in the Free Press office on a daily basis - and he confessed he will miss it all - he knew it is the people he has worked with he will miss the most. We suspect his long-time colleagues will miss him in the same way.

We don't know whether Shine's decision to take early retirement was prompted in part by the paper's application for a joint operating agreement with The Detroit News, although it was clear that was a jolt to most of the news staff. But surely he can't be blamed if he has decided that two and a half years of uneasy waiting for a decision is enough, and especially since the end is not yet in sight.

We suspect that even in semi-retirement Shine will continue to regale his friends with his stories, his special brand of Irish humor and his ability to poke fun at himself and his friends not only in his column but in some of his other haunts. In fact, his move is not really a semi-retirement. It's just another chapter in the Shine saga.

dent to succeed to the presidency, but he would be the first since Martin Van Buren in 1836, more than 150 years ago, to move directly from the No. 2 job to the top spot in our government by a vote of the people.

The Economist reminds us that only 34 men have been elected president. Four others who had moved up to the presidency on the death of a president never won the office on their own and a fifth, Michigan's own Gerald R. Ford, became president when Richard M. Nixon resigned in 1974. But Ford was defeated in his effort to win the presidency in 1976. The other four who never won a presidential election were John Tyler, Millard Fillmore, Andrew Johnson and Chester Arthur. According to this reckoning, the next president will be the 35th to be elected.

In its discussion, the Economist proposed still another way of counting presidents: by oaths of office. On that basis, on Jan. 20, 1989, The weekly says, "Mr. Bushakis will take the 60th oath of office.

Well, as the Economist says, it is "quality, not quantity" that really counts in the presidency. Unfortunately, for the average citizen it is more difficult than usual to make a choice this year. In the television age, we're being fed brief TV news reports and even briefer TV political commercials which give us little substance on which to form judgments about the quality of the two candidates.

Perhaps the print media and the debates will offer us more than the usual TV froth in the closing weeks of the campaign. We can at least hope that will be true.

An Inn in the Park?

To the Editor:

'We have to save the best of the past for future generations," was a quote from the Pointer of Interest column, Sept. 8. I read Margie Smith's profile of Tish Colett with great interest, because I, too, feel that the remainder of this vast Grosse Pointe heritage should be nurtured for our children and the generations to fol-

Rather than the public outcry after destruction-inthe-name-of-progress has taken place - such as the Kanzler, Highee, Dodge, Seyburn, Stonehurst, and Rose Terrace properties - steps should be taken to preserve these gems, where possible. We should be aware of these devastating changes before they become faits accomplis. As my husband and I walk in the evening through the neighborhood, it appears that along Jefferson we are becoming a community of subdivisions. Doesn't this despoil the uniqueness of our community?

One estate that I fear will meet a sad end is the Morrison property at 16500 East Jefferson, Mrs. Morrison died recently and her heirs do not live in the area. People who care about this large parcel and its graceful old manse (a portion of which dates to the last century) should be aware of a possible change in its future.

It seems that there are three basic possibilities; 1) a single family could move in and maintain and restore the residence, the most palatable but highly unlikely option because of cost; 2) the existing home could be razed and be replaced by a subdivision of small houses on small lots, as we have seen so frequently of late; or 3) an alternative use could be found to maintain and renovate the structure for modern use, other than a single family dwelling. The $\bar{l}ake$ setting of this wonderful property, and its generous size, would make it a fabulous luxury inn. Its 16 bedrooms and luxurious dining room would provide a delightful alternative to lodging out-of-town guests at the local motel or a downtown hotel. What a refreshing change of pace for a quiet small business conference, a small wedding or rehearsal dinner. Landscaping could be enhanced to maintain its quiet, private nature, both from the standpoint of guests seeking solitude, and good neighborliness within the surrounding community. This Inn in the Park could be a point of pride and a jewel to be enjoyed. Its unique character and luxurious ambiance in a private setting on the lake, would be quite a legacy for future generations.

It's only a preservationist's dream, but "yes, Tish Colett, 'we need to save the best of the past'.

Home day care is asset

To the Editor:

I am a working mother who is lucky enough to have found and afford a sitter to come to my home to watch my child. I realize, however, that not everyone can afford this privilege. As such, I became very irate after reading the article in the Grosse Pointe News a few weeks ago, on the city closing down child care in the homes in Grosse Pointe Woods.

I see the individuals who provide child care in their homes as an asset to this community. From my standpoint as a mother, I would rather quit my job than subject my nine-month-old to an institutional day care center, located in a "business" district.

More letters on page 8A

To me, it is either sheer stupidity or social neglect to consider these "businesses' according to the city ordinances.

Our society has changed considerably over the past 15-20 years. There are far more single parents and dual income families and the need for child care has increased as a result. As a community, the city of Grosse Pointe Woods must address this is-

Laws are important to keep order in the community, but when the order changes, the laws must change so that they, in effect, don't become an encumbrance to that order. As I understand it, the purpose of the law that prohibits operating businesses out of the home, is to ensure that our neighborhoods remain just that -- Neighborhoods! Where families can live and children are safe to play.

Now really! How disruptive to this environment can it be to add a few more children to these neighbor-

Please, let's take another look at this law. Maybe it's time to amend it.

Greetings, apologies and so on

Since this is my first column with the Grosse Pointe News, I thought I might introduce myself and tell you a little bit about

Before I get into all the won-I must first apologize to the Grosse Pointe Farms Public Safety Department and, particularly, Fire Chief Sam Candela.

I'll be the first to admit I'm have built-in background knowledge of what's going on here. We keep a clipping file of all stories published in the paper, but even these can be confusing to a newcomer.

Last week I wrote a story about the Farms firefighters having reached a tentative contract under arbitration. The problem with the story, however, is that the contract I mentioned was settled long ago. Most embarrassing.

In actuality, the contract that is close to being settled at this time is the first contract for officers in the Farms' newly formed derful personal details, however, Public Safety Department, of which Robert Ferber is director. I called Chief Ferber to apologize. He took it well. After all, he didn't screw up; I did.

Again, I apologize to Fire new to the Pointes and don't Chief Sam Candela, who I quoted in the story, and to the Farms public safety officers, administrators and all you con-talking about.

Now that I've removed my foot - or rather, typewriter from my mouth, I'd like to introduce myself properly.

The company had 29 weekly newspapers in spent the last couple of years in and surrounding the city of At-Atlanta. My wife and I own a lanta. The circulation of all the weeklies combined was about half a million. Not a bad setup. I'm sure the publisher made a lot of money on the chain, but I don't think he ever heard of the trickle-down theory.

At the Neighbors, I was editor in charge of two of the weeklies. It was a lot of responsiblity, especially for the pay, but I enjoy newspaper work more than anything else, so I tried not to think about wages.

Before traveling south, I was a reporter at the Source Newspapers in Utica. I began there after graduating from Wayne State University's excellent journalism program. The Source had a good program for new reporters: Sink or swim. It was a learning experience, I'll give it

OK. So there you have it. You know all about me, including the only two mistakes I've ever made during my journalism career. I'd like to promise there won't be any others, but sometimes errors, or just plain misunderstandings, occur. I can promise you this, though, I will do my best to bring you news about your community in a timely basis and as accurately as I can.

Silver lining

News from the ox-gallstone world market:

There is a use for those pesky ox gallstones. Now you, too, can make a profit on an item you thought you had to throw away. The gallstone people in Hong Kong are offering upwards of $1,000 per hundred gallstones. For research.

Anyone with access to cattle carcasses (that must be all you Grosse Pointe farmers, heh, heh!) can make extra money selling gallstones. It's true that only a small percentage of ox gall bladders actually have stones in them, but a little effort will uncover the little guys.

I am not making any of this

All you have to do is dry them (thoroughly - the international market is not interested in moldy gallstones) and airmail them to Hong Kong. Wrap them carefully, as they are fragile. They are also so valuable that Mr. K.K. Poon of Hong Kong promises, "Of course I will take the broken ones and the powder too.'

While the best-quality gallstones are unfortunately produced in South African cattle, America is not far behind, and increasing demand is driving the price up. Mr. Poon's second press release offered $1,500.

Recycle

While you're saving gallstones, set aside another container for leftover orange peels. Scientists have discovered that their citrus oil is poison to houseflies, fleas and fire ants.

Smells good, too.

Orange peels may prove particularly useful if you don't have an armadillo.

The wife of a Brooklyn jeweler was caught smuggling jewelry concealed in her clothing and that of her 9-year-old daughter. Customs agents seized $66,000 worth of jewelry as the pair disembarked from the ocean liner Queen Elizabeth.

n Grosse Pointe, the head of the area's Civil Defense threatened to resign if his position wasn't clarified. The Pointes had banded together to form a Civil Defense unit, but first the Park, then the Shores pulled out of the arrangement. The federal government had been urging that municipalities get back into the Civil Defense business; the Pointes unit had spent half of its budget on an elaborate medical kit when organizational chaos erupted.

The last of the City's Cabbage Patch and Shangri-La neighborhoods were leveled to make room for an apartment building, although residents protested that the building would make a bad parking situation worse.

Dexter M. Ferry took the first shovelful of earth at the groundbreaking ceremony for the Grosse Pointe Central Library.

A relay race using the main thoroughfares of the Pointes as the spokes running back to the hub at Fisher and Kercheval signaled the kick-off of the annual Torch Drive. Runners were selected to represent each school in carrying lighted torches to the big Pointe torch.

The cotton and peanuts flourishing on South Oxford Road were harvested as summer drew to a close. The Southern crops were planted by a family employee whose brother sent the seeds from his Georgia farm. Grosse Pointers enjoyed the pink, white and purple cotton blossoms and were probably planning to share in the results of the Spanish peanut roast.

Stop building walls

To the Editor:

Though our opinion is probably unpopular and in the political minority within the Grosse Pointes, we feel compelled to express our total disappointment with the rejection of a drug counseling facility at the Children's Home of Detroit. This is the most recent in a long list of negative set-backs concerning socially progressive issues within this community.

The first is the in-home child care controversy: Single parents and two-parent provider families need good day care for their children. Times change - when will the Grosse Pointes ammend old laws in order to provide much needed services of to-

The second is the denial of group homes for the physically and mentally impaired: Disabilities are a fact of life; something we all must face, learn about and to which we must become actively compassionate. Again, when will the Grosse Pointes amend old laws in order to provide much needed services of today? The third is the Esquire Theatre controversy: This neighborhood movie house offers an affordable admission price to all individuals but, no doubt, will forcibly be closed because of certain "incidents of vandalism." When will the Grosse Pointe Park City Council stop trying to be a business and simply take care of business?

The fourth brings us back to the current rejection of a drug counseling facility: The Pointes dragged their feet long ago in acknowledging that a drug problem existed within this community. Education, programs and facilites are now available, due to the concerted effort on the part of local groups, hospitals, mental health agencies and concerned individuals; but because of legal and political obstacles, ongoing treatment and aftercare is being denied to those who seek to overcome this serious problem. When will the Grosse Pointes stop building walls and start opening doors for the broader community of humankind?

Our family moved to this community because the strong tax base provides a great school system, outstanding services and facilities and involvement. However, we have found that there is a feeling of apathy toward certain issues. Couldn't and shouldn't this prosperous, intelligent and fortunate community include a more tolerant and compassionate attitude toward necesary social progress with regard to the institution of new ideas, legal changes, programs and services (which will ultimately touch us all).

To the Editor:

I recently accompanied my mother to Jacobson's in the Village, where she bought a very expensive winter coat. A charge of $25 was added to the price of the garment for shortening alterations.

After doing some investigating, I learned that men's alterations on regular priced merchandise are free at Jacobson's, but women must pay for this service.

1 contacted Mr. Rickerbey. Jacobson's senior vice president of stores, for an explanation of this apparent ineq-

He claims that Jacobson's is competitive with other major retailers in this policy and that in retailing, men's alterations have always been free, while women were forced to pay. He also claims that the prices of menswear at Jacobson's have been adjusted to accommodate the alterations, but of course, women's clothes do not contain this "built-in" to their prices. I told Mr. Rickerbey I did not believe the prices of women's clothes at Jacobson's, or anywhere else, seemed like any bargain. He assured me, they are!

When I suggested men should receive a discount if an alteration is not necessary, he explained this is not possible since the store is losing money on alterations, anyway. Mr. Rickerbey also explained that women's clothing cannot contain this "built-in" accommodation because they require much more complicated alterations and that the incidence of women's alterations being necessary was much greater than with men's clothing.

To be fair, I should mention I also called Hudsons and received a similarly lame excuse from Koleen Cook, Eastland Hudsons merchandise manager. Hudsons has the same pricing policy as Jacobson's on men's and women's altera-

I realize the price of alterations is quite insignificant when compared to the other problems occurring in the world today. However, I do believe this policy is unfair, and the reasons for it, halfbaked, to say the least. Retailers should join the 1980s and quit making excuses for ancient policy mistakes that are blatantly inequitable.

Cracker Jax

To the Editor:

We have all read, in recent months, articles regarding the Cracker Jax's Saloon. Cracker Jax co-owner Mark DiMaso has in past articles (Grosse Pointe News 7/ 21) stated that he had recently changed the bar's format from allowing 18-yearolds in, to allowing only 19 and above.

The Grosse Pointe News (Sept. 1) carried an article of an 18-year-old male who had been asked to leave (not for being under age), but for being disorderly. This same 18-year-old was subsequently arrested by authorities with a loaded gun and threatening to shoot up the bar.

Again the Sept. 15 article in the Grosse Pointe News reiterated almost word for word the violations and overtime money spent by the city of Grosse Pointe Farms. The violations have continued to mount since July 9.

The residents in this area have endured for months the disturbances, fights, drinking in cars, loud vulgar language, urinating in public by both males and females, littering of wine bottles, beer cans, broken glass, girls' underwear, condons and hypodermic syringes.

Mr. DiMaso states that he has added security and reduced problems in the area. I find it ironic that the Cracker Jax's Saloon is the only business in any of the Pointes, or near eastside, that employs security guards to "watch over" the antics of its patrons. Club 500, Mallard Pub, and the Cadieux Cafe have employed security to reduce the number of stolen vehicles. I know of no other business that must employ "babysitting" service for its patrons.

The residents of this area commend Chief Ferber, members of his department, the mayor and his council for the swift response into the complaints regarding the Cracker Jax's Saloon. The residents are confident that appropriate action will be taken regarding this business license.

The violations issued by the police department and the Liquor Control Commission speak for themselves. We the residents can understand why the Cracker Jax's management asked for a postponement of the public hearing from Sept. 13 until Oct. 10. The voluminous paper work simply could not be reviewed in a few days.

The neighbors whose lives have been affected by this business look forward to the public hearing Oct. 10 at 7

Art exhibit

An exhibit of the work of sculptor John Post and printmaker Debora Klimkiewicz will be staged at University Liggett School in the Arts Wing Gallery now through Oct. 12. The gallery will be open 8:30 a.m. to 4: 30 p.m. weekdays, Call 884-4444 for more information.

Historical exhibit

Historic architectural plans and renderings, photographs, maps, and paintings -- including many that have never been on public display - will be featured in "Detroit Visions: Make No Little Plans. . .," an exhibit highlighting the influence of architects and urban planners in the development of Detroit from its founding as a French settlement through present day and beyond. The exhibit at the Detroit Historical Museum will continue through the end of the year.

The exhibit is being presented and sponsored by Schervish Vogel Merz, P.C., in cooperation with the Detroit Historical Department, in celebration of the firm's tenth anniversary as architects, landscape architects and urban designers in Detroit.

Beginning with the 1701 founding of Fort Pontchartrain d'etroit by Antoine de la Mothe Cadillac, the exhibit will trace Detroit's early architectural history by using maps and early plans to show how Indian trails and French settler's ribbon farms became the basis for many of Detroit's major streets. The rarely displayed, original 1807 Woodward Plan developed by Judge Augustus Woodward and Governor William Hull will be featured in the exhibit as well.

Other exhibit items will include a 1929 rendering of a grand plan for Washington Boulevard which was interrupted by the Depression and was eventually withdrawn - as well as plans for Lafayette Park, Detroit's first urban renewal project. More recent projects featured in the exhibit include the Linked Riverfront Parks, the Museum of African-American History, and the Detroit Zoological Park's chimpanzee exhibit.

The Detroit Historical Museum is located at 5401 Woodward at Kirby and is open Wednesday through Sunday, 9: 30 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Ambassador to speak on INF

French Ambassador Jean Beliard is returning to Grosse Pointe - his home during the '50 s - to be the honored speaker at the French-American Chamber of Commerce's first meeting of the season.

Beliard, who is currently serving as secretary general of the Atlantic Treaty Association, will speak on the subject of "Survival of the West in the Light of the Intermediate-Range Nuclear Forces Reduction Treaty." The INF treaty was signed last December in Washington by Ronald Reagan and Mikhail Gorbachev.

The treaty requires the two superpowers to destroy a total of 5,200 nuclear weapons and related items by 1991. The Pentagon must destroy 859 nucleararmed missiles, 283 missile launchers and support equipment. Moscow, in turn, will eliminate 1.752 Soviet groundlaunched missiles.

Considering the importance and timeliness of the subject and the knowledge and experience of Beliard, the French-American Chamber has opened the meeting to all who are interested. Capacity is limited, however, and reservations are necessary.

The meeting will be held at The Detroit Club. Wednesday. Sept. 28, at 11:45 a.m. Reception at noon. Champagne compliments of Veuve Clicquot Ponsardin of Reims, France, and The Wine Warehouse of Troy.

For reservations, send a note to The French American Chamber of Commerce, 600 W. Lafayette Blyd., Detroit, 48226.

Proposed Woods community center prompts discussion by seniors group

By John Minnis

Staff Writer After Grosse Pointe Woods completes its proposed $500,000plus community center adjacent to City Hall, not everyone will be satisfied.

While discussing a floor plan developed by architect Michael McCleer Monday night, the Woods council fielded questions from residents about the needs of the community center. Many of the questions came from senior citizens, who will be the primary users of the center.

According to McCleer, the nearly 5,000-square-foot community center as currently proposed will cost $546,000. It will be attached to the north end of the existing City Hall on Mack Avenue, and an additional 70 parking spaces will be included this?" she asked the seniors. in the project. Seniors Commission member James Masten told the council 150 seats for dining wouldn't even accommodate the seniors' annual party.

Mayor George Freeman said the amount of space is limited for the center due to financial limitations. Two years ago voters approved a bond issue for parks improvements, and some of these funds will be used to build the center.

"If you're going to do it, why not do it right the first time?" asked Helen Masten, also of the Woods seniors.

Councilwoman Jean Rice said doing it right may cost twice or three times as much. "Do you want to wait three years for "There are some places where we're going to have to make do."

The community center, as it is McCleer said his floor plan now designed, will have three will provide for a total of 150 activity rooms. All three rooms people for sit-down dining, such will be divided by the accordianas in a catering hall, or seating type walls that can be opened to

The kitchen will be on the extreme north end and will open directly into the largest activity room. The third activity room is about half the size of the larger rooms and at the south side of the center. It will be a distance from the kitchen, and would require food and dirty dishes to be transported through the public corridor.

Rice said she didn't like the idea of having guests in the other activity rooms and members of the public in the corridor having to watch another party's dirty dishes and food going by.

McCleer said the only alternatives were to have the kitchen open up to each of the activity rooms or to have a service corridor. Both solutions, however, would cost the city a lot more money, he said.

"I don't like to compromise, but we might have to," Rice said. "In my mind it (the kitchen location) really throws a monkey waters low just about everywhere. St. John's Hospital's

These bottles aren't for spinning

Richard Roosen's mother took him to a flea market in Detroit when he was 14. Like many 14-year-olds with some spare change surrounded by a lot of neat old things, he was just itching to buy something.

What he found was a bunch of old bottles. Twenty-five cents each. Today, Roosen is president of the Metropolitan Detroit Antique Bottle Club, and those "old bottles" are referred to as "pre-Prohibition beer bottles," and they are just part of his collection which he has worked on for the last 20 years.

Not one for clutter, Roosen keeps only about three dozen antique bottles in his Farms home.

Roosen is as much a historian as he is a bottle collector. Each bottle has a story about how it was made, and another more interesting story about the contents. Most of his bottles are medicine bottles that were packaged and sold dating from around the post-Civil War era.

When they said medicine, they actually meant something a little different. Tonics with names like The Great Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root Kidney Liver and Bladder Cure and Goff's Herb Bitters, which promised to not only cure headaches, irritability of the bowel, dizziness and loss of appetite, but also helped prevent loss of flesh and malaria.

And they had a lot of alcohol in them. Some had at least 46 percent, but they needed alcohol, the manufacturers said, to prevent them from freezing. What they really needed was to call the alcohol a medicine to avoid being taxed by the government, Roosen said.

Then there were the potions to cure the opium addiction one received after prolonged use of another medicine. Which led to an addiction that could be cured by yet another medicine.

Most of these were administered with the prescription: "Take one wine glass full once a day." And they stated specifically that the medicine must be taken with water or not, and after dinner or before, depending on what needed to be cured.

Until the early 1900s, all bottles were handmade, and many, including one in Roosen's collection from a Del Ray beermaker, have stretch marks and hand-finished lips.

Antique bottles range anywhere from $1 for a Depression-era beer bottle to $40,000, recently paid at an auction for a whisky flask. The price depends on the color of the bottle, the quality of the specimen, the scarcity of what was in it and a number of other factors.

Bottles were sold and relabeled by rivals too cheap to manufacture their own bot-

They are found everywhere — in backyards, in urban development sites, in attics and barns, and by divers in shipwrecks. Roosen has some specimens with the medicines thick and colored, still in them.

"If you think people are litterbugs now, they were much worse then," he said. And they are found, Roosen knows very well, in old outhouses.

"It's not as bad as it sounds," said
Roosen, who has taken a lot of ribbing from friends for digging up outhouses in his spare time. "After 50 years (everything) in there turns to dirt and there's no smell. But if I find a newspaper in there from 1947, I get the heck out of there

It's amazing what you can find out about a person from examining his outhouse, Roosen said.

One recent outhouse excursion was in Oxford at the summer cottage of a Civil War era Michigan judge. Near the top, meaning more recent years, there was a bottle of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure (20 proof), and near the bottom, (the earlier years) were bottles and bottles of sour mash corn whiskey — all, of course, empty.

Lest you think bottle collecting is only for the few, Roosen said there are four bottle collecting clubs in Michigan, a national organization for bottle collectors and a national bottle museum.

His club, which meets every third Thursday of the month in Madison Heights, has lawyers, doctors, a museum curator, construction workers and divers, to name a

"This is not a rich man's hobby," Roosen said.

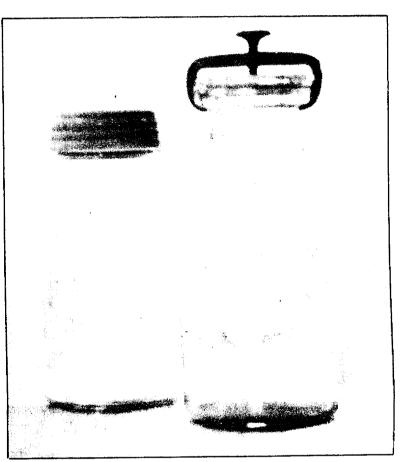

Actually it has become less like a hobby and more like a business. In fact, he said he sold bottles throughout college and law school because it was good pocket money.

Roosen gives lectures to groups on the value of bottles, how and what to collect and the like. He also estimates the prices for many people who call wondering how much a bottle they found is worth.

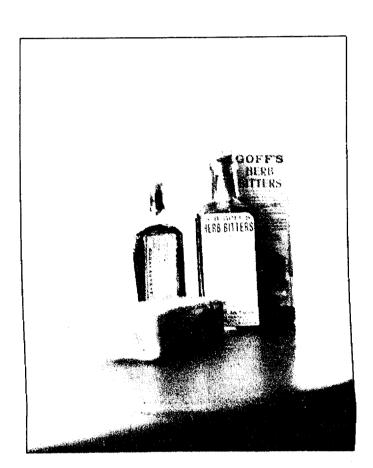

For more information on the Metropolitan Detroit Antique Bottle Club, call 885-0912.

Canning jars are also collectibles, and their prices vary according to the type of closure they have. At left is an original Mason jar, the first to use a screw-type cap.

tran and Douglas Merkle, student assistance program coordinator, supported the Children's Home program. Merkle's counterpart at South High School, Susan Pearce, agreed with the need for the substance-abuse program, along with South Principal Edward Shine.

Pearce said the Children's Home program would have been a great aid to the school system because it would have been a specialized program for youths and run by trained professionals.

She acknowledged that there are private counselors out there. but she said they do not generally provide the kind of on-going after-care treatment adolescents need. She said one of the best things about the Children's Home program is that it would include the youth's family, something most private clinics don't

The Children's Home aftercare substance abuse program was to be in addition to its current function of housing mentally disturbed children who have been referred to the home by mental health boards and hospitals. The Children's Home has been in existence for 150 years and at its Woods location since 1950.

The Woods council denied the ordinance admendment necessary to allow the Children's Home to proceed with plans for its out-patient counseling because it feared the home could not legally restrict its clientele to Grosse Pointe youths only. The council also feared that there may be strings attached to any state or federal funds received by the Children's Home, allowing the higher governments to dictate what the home can and cannot do.

Prior to the Woods council's denial of the ordinance, two residents spoke out against the proposed Children's Home program. One resident feared traffic would be a problem on Cook Street. The other resident believed there were other facilities available similar to what the home was offering.

Woods plans to dredge Milk River

By John Minnis Staff Writer

In anticipation of even lower Lake St. Clair water levels, Grosse Pointe Woods is making plans to dredge the mouth of the Milk River at Lakefront Park.

The dredging, however, may depend on whether St. Clair Shores homeowners on canals accessing the Milk River chip in on the cost of the dredging.

Council members expressed opposition Monday night to footing the entire cost of the dredging when private homeowners from another city will also bene-

The cost of dredging a trench 240 feet long, 50 feet wide, 3 feet deep is expected to be at least $50,000, according to D.J. Hallmann, director of Woods Parks and Recreation.

Councilman Thomas Fahrner, who is a boater, said he sees all those homeowners on canals in St. Clair Shores who will benefit from the Milk River dredging and he believes they should help pay for it.

"St. Clair Shores homeowners have to share the costs or forget it," he said.

The council, however, would like to get the dredging done in time for next year's boating season. In order to expedite the process, the council ordered Hallmann and the city engineer to begin drawing up specifications and cost estimates for the dredging. The council has not authorized soliciting bids or set a date for the work to begin.

The council also ordered City

Store robbed

The Radio Shack store on Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods was broken into and robbed of $1,739 worth of merchandise early Saturday morning.

The safety glass of the store's front door was smashed with a cinder block by unknown perpetrators at 4:53 a.m. An inspection by the store's manager and Woods public safety officers revealed several pieces of electronic equipment taken:

• A portable Realistic compact disc player with dual cassettes, valued at $270.

• Two Realistic AM/FM stereo cassette players, valued at $140

• An AM/FM Realistic stereo cassette player with equalizer, valued at $230.

• A Tandy 1000HX personal computer, worth $699.

• A Radio Shack 200 memory speaker phone with LCD display, valued at $120. Woods detectives are investigating the case. — John Minnis

Administrator/Clerk Chester Petersen to contact the city of St. Clair Shores to discuss plans for getting St. Clair Shores homeowners benefitting from the dredging to pay some of the Petersen suggested the cost for dredging be prorated by the number of docks on the Milk River and on canals accessing the river. He said the total number of docks would be divided into the cost of the dredging, with each dock owner paying the same amount per dock.

The council seemed favorable to the per-dock payment for the dredging, but took no action to sanction the plan.

Other suggestions were made to cover the dredging costs, such as increasing dock fees, which were raised in January.

Mayor Pro Tem Richard Novitke said there was money in the Boat Dock Enterprise Fund to pay for the dredging, but the council generally agreed it want. the affected St. Clair Shores homeowners to help foot the Councilman Paul Beaupre said the city has already spent nearly $750,000 on Lakefront Park, in cluding improvements for dock : and other boaters' amenities. and he insisted the city cannot let the city's boaters suffer be cause of low water.

Monte Nagler had "making a photograph" in mind in this recent picture in Indian Harbor, Nova Scotia. Using available depth-of-field and including the old fishing boats in the foreground gives his photograph strength and impact.

Make photographs, don't take pictures

We all know that a champion athlete has to mentally prepare himself for the challenge of what will hopefully be a peak perfor-

In photography, this same theory applies. We have to emotionally prepare ourselves, too. And a large part of this is getting into the state of mind that you are no longer going to be taking snapshots; rather, from now on you will be MAKING PHOTO-GRAPHS!

How can you go about making this shift and obtaining this new attitude? Here are

First slow down. Don't rush into snapping your shutter. Leave your camera in its case as you begin to study your subject. Ask yourself how best you can portray the subject. Should you move in tight or keep your distance? Is one camera angle better than another or perhaps late afternoon light will best enhance your image. Maybe a different focal length lens will add greater impact.

Are you beginning to see what is happening? You are beginning to go through a conscious, planned-out thought process to produce a photograph that says it all about the subject. You see, you're starting to make photographs, not take snapshots.

Let's go on further. How about utilizing all the depth-of-field that is generally available to you? Did you know that your normal 50mm lens will give you a depth-of-field of seven feet to infinity? So next time you're shooting scenery, take advantage of this. Rather than snap just the mountain in the distance, carefully study the scene for foreground objects such as that pile of boulders that will give a "foundation" to your image or those tree branches that act as a perfect "frame." Or how about the stream or fence that "lead" you into the scene?

You'll often want to place the subject offcenter to add a dynamic dimension to your photograph and consider the use of filters to enhance a blue sky, add some color to a dramatic sunset or add a "starburst" of excite-

Once again, the planned-out, well-executed thought process is at work - you are making a photograph, not taking a picture. See how

Boy, two girls fight to keep their bicycles

Two Grosse Pointe Park girls faced a pulled knife and a boy took a fist beating in the face in their successful attempts to prevent their bicycles from being stolen out from under them in separate incidences last week.

Park police reported two 10year-old girls were approached by a group of four males while the girls were riding their bikes in the 15400 block of Kercheval at 5:56 p.m. Sept. 12. The ages and names of the males in the group were not known to the

One of the males allegedly pulled a knife and demanded the girls give them the bicycles. The girls refused and rode home. The group was last seen on Kercheval.

The group consisted of four black males. One is described as nearly 5 feet, weighing 90 pounds. He had a short Afro hair style parted in the middle. He wore a bright-red, V-neck shirt and white trousers.

In a similar incident at 8:15 Sept. 9 in the 15000 block of Jefferson, an 11-year-old Park boy was approached by a 16-year-old male, who demanded the boy turn over his bicycle. When the boy refused, he was allegedly beaten by the older youth with fists. The boy fought back and got away.

The 16-year-old ran west through a vacant lot toward Alter. He is described as a thin, dark-complected black youth, 5 feet, 6 inches tall. He wore a Nike jacket and blue jeans.

The odd dreamscape of parking crime control

It was enough to fill the lawabiding citizen with righteous indignation. Well, anyway, those of us who knew a law was being broken.

A late model car was parked on a street in Grosse Pointe with a "for sale" sign brazenly stuck in the windshield. Gasp! What's that? You didn't know that parking a car on the street in Grosse Pointe is an offense? How did I know? Well, I got a ticket for just such an offense about a year

I decided not to pay the ticket, lic street. I should have parked but to go to court. Armed with precedent in the form of a United States Supreme Court decision which said a community cannot forbid "for sale" signs by people wanting to sell their homes because it violated their First Amendment right to freedom of speech — and ignoring the fact that this involved signs on private property, not on public streets — I went to court to assert my constitutional free-

The judge read the charge as expressed on the ticket - parking a vehicle on the street with a "for sale" sign on it — and before asking me how I would plead, he turned to the officer who had written the ticket. "Is this against the law?

"Yes, your honor."

The judge seemed incredulous, conveying to me the erroneous message that my cause was just and righteousness would prevail because this judge was a kindred spirit. He was probably wondering, I surmised, why the police had violated the constitutional rights of this obviously cultured gentleman (me).

While the judge sat in bemused reverie, the officer explained that the city does not want owners from other communities (presumably Detroit) parking their old for sale junk cars in Grosse Pointe.

"This was not just a used car," I offered. "This was a '65 Corvair, a classic, a collector car. And I didn't bring it in from Detroit, I brought it in from Grosse Pointe Park. I was just visiting Grosse Pointe.'

The judge seemed to be rap-

Do I understand that you are raising a constitutional defense to a traffic ticket?" the judge asked icily. "I hope you are not." "It was not a defense, just a thought," I said lamely, casting about for some straw to grasp. "I mean, I didn't know it was against the law, what I did. There was no premeditation." That seemed like a good argument, better than insanity anyway, since the judge didn't seem to know about the parking prohibition either. I was half right.

The judge found me guilty, but reduced the fine by half. And the ticketing officer, pleased that his court appearance had turned out to be more interesting than he had expected, said he meant no insult to my car, in fact he thought it looked pretty good. So I guess my court appearance wasn't a total loss.

But my expedition into the odd dreamscape of parking crime control did not end there. On Beaconsfield in Grosse Pointe Park, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Wednesdays, the usual parking rule (only on the west side of the street) is reversed and you may park only on the east side north of Jefferson. As you might guess, most of the cars parked in this peculiarly blessed area on Wednesday have tickets on

Ground is broken for Park office center

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

At 8:30 a.m. last Thursday, members of the Park city council, developers of a new office center, members of the Downtown Development Authority and neighbors gathered on the corner of Jefferson and Westchester to break ground on another phase in upgrading Jefferson Avenue near the city's southwest border.

"The future is here," Mayor Palmer Heenan said. "We've been looking forward to what is going in here for a long time."

The city has been trying to complete a development for that corner for more than a year, and last November, the council rezoned the property along Jefferson between Westchester and Nottingham to allow professional offices and light retail businesses. And in April the council approved a proposal by David G. Miles and Beachum & Roeser for the development, named the Pointes Office Centre.

The $1 million project will consist of two buildings of approximately 3,000 square feet and 7.700 square feet, both in the traditional Williamsburg style. All the parking will be on-

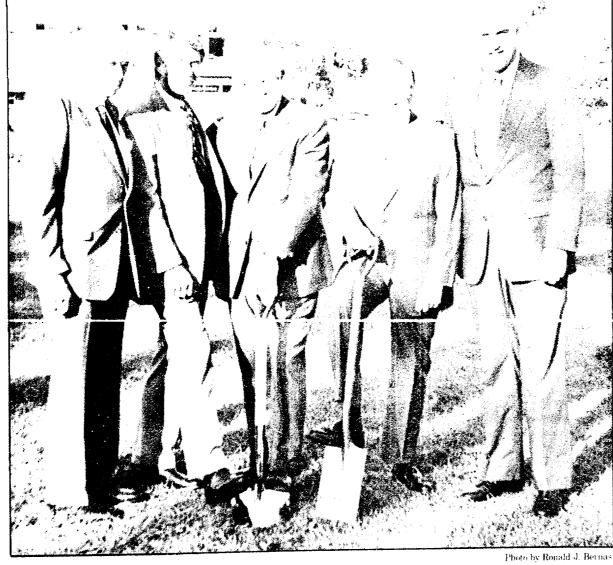

It is also the first project which the Downtown Development Authority began under the New Master Plan for East Jefferson Avenue in the Park.

With the groundbreaking completed, work is expected to finish in early 1989, according to David Miles.

He also said that leasing activity was strong and he plans to make an announcement soon who the tenants are.

The project hit a slight snag when, at the Sept. 12 council meeting, Miles asked the council to give credit to him for a portion of the land that still contained city-owned parking.

Miles said they had to reduce the size of the building and re-

Jazz dancing

The War Memorial welcomes a new instructor, Teresa Gianetti, who will teach jazz dancing to students ages 6-teens.

Jazz dancing is offered Thursdays through Dec. 15 and encourages the development of rhythm, timing and coordination as students exercise and have fun learning creative movement.

Beginning class meets from 4 to 4:45 p.m.; advanced, 4:45 to 5: 30 p.m.; and intermediate students from 5:30 to 5:15 p.m.

Groups are based on age, ability and previous gynmastic or dance experience. Class placement will be determined by instructor.

Gianetti, a St. Clair Shores resident, has been dancing since 5, studying classical ballet, toe. tap and jazz. She has had experience in choreography and has worked as an assistant to War Memorial ballet instructor Mary Ellen Cooper for three years. She is currently working for her first professional examination in bal-

Library events

The classic French film, "White Mane," (originally: "Crin Blanc"), the poignant story of a boy and a wild white stallion, filmed in the tradition of "Le Ballon Rouge," is a special event for grade-schoolers at Central Library.

The Alliance Française will show the videotape at 1 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 24. Registration is not required, but since refreshments will be served, call Central Library at 343-2074 to let the children's department know if you intend to come.

In a lighter vein, grade schoolers who are tired of speaking in English, will want to attend the library special: "How to Talk Like a Martian (and make other silly sounds with your mouth).'

Helen Gregory, head of Children's Services, will teach the sounds, tell some stories using them and sing some songs at 4 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 27, at the Woods Branch; Wednesday, Sept. 28, at Central Library, and Thursday, Sept. 29, at the Park Branch. No registration is neces-

North semifinalists

Four Grosse Pointe North High School seniors have been named semifinalists in the 1988 National Merit Scholarship competition. They are, from left, Paul Attar, Megan Abbott, Principal John Kastran, John Babel and David Wolfe. Actual scholarship winners will be chosen from the group of about 14,000 semifinalists who become finalists. Decisions will be based on an evaluation of high school course load, grades and difficulty level, two sets of test scores and student leadership.

Audubon to offer bird seed sale

Bird lovers who want to at- and more. tract a wider variety of birds to their feeders this winter will have an opportunity to buy nine kinds of specialized bird foods from the Detroit Audubon Soci-

Ranging from the premium blend with lots of sunflower and high-quality seeds to attract the largest possible variety of birds, the society offers niger seed, popular with goldfinches, siskins and redpolls; peanut pieces, loved by chickadees and woodpeckers; oil sunflower, suet cakes

Proceeds from the seed sale will benefit the Audubon sanctuary and building funds.

Orders must be placed by Sept. 30, with pick-up Oct. 22 at Royal Oak Memorial Park, Novi Feed and Grain or Grosse Pointe Farms Pier Park

For prices, a complete listing of seed, and order information, call the Detroit Audubon Society office at 545-2929.

School board authorizes window replacements Chances are the public won't notice the difference in the new windows at Trombly and Richard schools. But teachers will.

They won't have to strain their backs to open the new windows, a point that was amply illustrated when support services Director David King demonstrated the test windows at Trombly last week. He invited a reporter to open an old window and all three styles of test window. They looked similar to the eye, but there the resemblance

"It's an important factor," King said. "Most of the windows in our elementary schools have a wide ledge or shelves in front of them. You have to lean over to reach them."

Back strain was only one of the factors considered by the committee at each school that evaluated windows. Architectural integrity and energy efficiency were also taken into account. Committee members staff, administration, parents and a representative from the jiggled windows up and down.

Window replacements were originally proposed nearly two years ago as a way to conserve energy. High cost dictated that the projects be phased in. The current projects will cost about $530,000 ($225,500 at Richard. $307,800 at Trombly), which will be paid by low-interest borrowing from a state energy-conservation fund.

Mason and Parcells schools were also slated to replace win-historical society - met with dows. But the high cost of the manufacturers, took surveys and metal windows in those schools caused the board to defer the purchase.

King recommended that the board rebid the projects during the winter. "We believe that this additional time will give us an opportunity to look at a window alternative at Mason, gain a more favorable market for metals prices, and obtain additional bidders for both projects," he told them.

Saratoga seeks seniors for housing survey

Saratoga Community Hospital is planning to co-develop a retirement apartment complex with Summit properties of Ann Arbor in the northeast Detroit community. Saratoga has previously been involved in building senior facilities in St. Clair Shores and Sterling Heights.

Seniors in the community who are interested in the retirement living development are asked to obtain a survey from one of the locations listed below, complete it, and return it by Sept. 30. The questionnaire will give Saratoga insight into the needs and wants of seniors before final plans are made.

Pick up surveys at the following locations, or call for more information:

Farms reports vehicle stolen, break-in attempt

The theft of an automobile and an attempted break-in of a home were reported by the Grosse Pointe Farms Public Safety Department last week.

A 1984 Pontiac was stolen from the Moross/Mack parking lot Sept. 9 between 12:30 and 1: 15 p.m. The vehicle was locked.

The attempted break-in occurred at a home in the 400 block of Belanger Sept. 7. The perpetrator attempted to pry open a side door with a screwdriver-type instrument, but was unsuccessful due to a deadbolt installed in the door.

In other police business, an automobile parked in the 50 block of Moran was reported entered and articles taken, including a passport and a radar detec-

He started his In fact, Ruppe is somewhat of own invention laboratory in 1950. He now has 26 patents to his name.

The problem with consumer products, he says, is that almost all inventors are trying to invent a better coffee-maker or mouse ment into new or better con- trap. In industrial applications there is less competition and great profit potential.

"If you solve a problem for a workbench. "Once you've General Motors, then Ford will made seven figures, what's want it too," he said, indicating

Can inventors achieve huge success today? Ruppe says emphatically "yes."

"If someone comes in with a really good product, within in so many years I could make him a millionaire. But it takes lots of hard work. It could take years of investigation.

The single biggest reason inventors fail, Ruppe says, is because they won't put in the long hours and hard work necessary. "Some people think you get

Patrick Dougherty is half-Irish, half-Polish and he spends at least three hours every day in his kitchen at the Pirate's Cove making noodles by hand for Italian dishes. Only in America.

There's Cappiletti soup, a meat-filled dumpling in a chicken broth; tortelaci, egg noodles filled with ricotta cheese and spinach and topped with a meat sauce; gnocchi, potato dumplings topped with a meat sauce; and all the other Italian dishes, like spaghetti, mostaccioli, ravioli and fettucini.

Add to that pizza made with regular dough or whole wheat dough and you have a neighborhood restaurant that serves up a lot of pride along with its meals.

Dougherty got into the business through the back door. He was driving a Brink's armored truck when his wife Shirley went to work for the original Buddy's Pizza on 6 Mile Road in Detroit.

He would drive her to work and they kept getting busier and busier, he said. The owners asked him to work as a bartender part time. Then he became a manager part time and finally quit driving and began managing full time.

"I learned a lot and I was happy there," he said. "I like people and I didn't think I was the outgoing type."

After eight years, he and an Italian co-worker, from whom he learned how to make pasta, opened their own business, a small restaurant in Detroit named after her - Savina's.

They then opened another restaurant in Center Line, a little larger, called Savina's Other Place.

When his partner retired, Dougherty began looking for a smaller restaurant. He bought the Pirate's Cove, 17201 Mack, at the corner of Notre Dame, five years ago, and introduced his homemade pastas and pizza to the area.

The restaurant has six booths and six tables and holds 47 people. There are five employees. The Pirate's Cove is open from

Ethics in workplace

The Detroit Chapter of Professional Secretaries International will hold its regular monthly meeting on Wednesday, Sept. 28, at Mercy Center, 28600 Eleven Mile road in Farmington Hills. buffet dinner featuring chicken, scrod, pasta, salads, and vegetables will be served promptly at 6:15 p.m.

S. Mary Justine Sabourin, R.S.M., a chronologist at Mercy Health Services, will speak on "Ethics in the Workplace."

This meeting will be the first opportunity to meet the new executive board of the Detroit Chapter of the PSI in action: Sandra L. Ruczynski CPS, president; Mary Stuaan Anderson, president-elect; Barbara S. Mullins, first vice president; Vera I. Boyd, second vice president; Sara G. Garnette, corresponding secretary; Eva J. Meharry, Recording secretary; and Mattie P. Hunter, treasurer.

Cost for dinner and speaker is $20. For speaker only is $3 (at 7. 30 p.m.). For reservations or more information, call Ann Dickinson at 549-8558 evenings.

Management course for small business owners

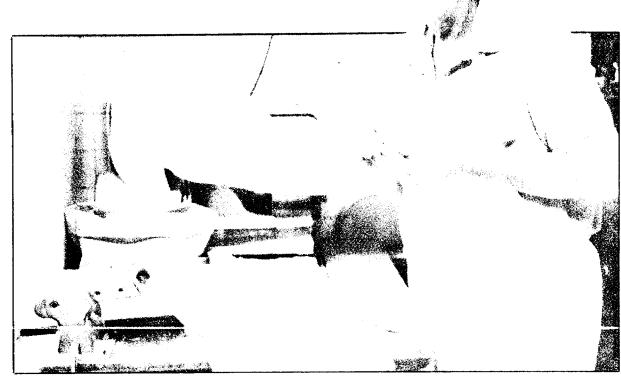

Owning and operating a small business isn't easy, but knowing the potential pitfalls and using your business skills to their best advantage can often mean the difference between success and failure.

Beginning Sept. 28, Macomb Community Collge will offer "Net Pro," designed especially to help current small business owners and those thinking of starting a business.

Net Pro is a comprehensive training program that uses integrated audiovisual and print materials to train potential business owners about the realities and principles of business ownership. It is also designed to help business people develop better management skills and to realize sustained profits.

The six-week course meets Wednesdays, Sept. 28-Nov. 2, 6: 30 to 9 p.m., at Macomb's Fraser Campus, 32101 Caroline Road, north of Masonic, in Fraser. The fee is $135.

For more information call 445-7346.

Patrick Dougherty spends three hours every day making noodles by hand with the machine at the left.

11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 11 a.m. to midnight on Friday and Saturday. On Sunday, the restaurant is open from 4 to 10 p.m. and the special is a prime rib dinner, complete with potato, salad, soup and bread for $8.95. The Pirate's Cove is a full service bar. Carry-out is available.

Other items on the extensive menu include antipasto and Greek salads; a different homemade soup every day besides chili, French onion and the Cappiletti; steak, pork chops, fish, shrimp and a choice of five hoagies. There's also several hamburgers, seven sandwiches, side dishes and desserts.

Prices range from 90 cents for a cup of soup to $4.50 for a Greek salad to $10.95 for a 12ounce strip steak. The pasta dishes range from $4.45 to $7.95 and can also be covered with cheese and baked.

Pizza, with cheese and sauce. is $5.25 for small and $7.75 for large. A super pizza with cheese, pepperoni, ham, mushrooms, green pepper and onions is $7.50 for small and $11.25 for large.

Dougherty is in the midst of renovating the exterior of the building. The Pirate's Cove belongs to Pointes East, an organization of 19 restaurants in the area. Dougherty is treasurer of the group.

He and his wife Shirley have been married 24 years. They enjoy traveling and have been to Egypt, Israel, Greece and "all of the islands.

Most of all, Dougherty said, "I enjoy what I'm doing." He calls the Pirate's Cove "Mack Avenue's best-kept secret."

books are then packed into boxes according to their categories and shipped to the church. One day last week, a quartet of busy AAUW book-sorters was busy well before 9 a.m. A four-foot pile of books had taken up most of the space in the two-car garage. The rest of the area was devoted to categories marked by huge white

September 22, 1988 Grosse Pointe News Faces & places MOT, WQRS team up Oct. 1 for 'Opera-Thon '88!'

Live from "Studio D" high atop the Detroit Masonic Temple in the offices of classical radio station WQRS, FM-105, the glorious sounds of opera arias, duets, trios, quartets, quintets and even orchestral intermezzos will ring forth over the radio when Michigan Opera Theatre launches "Opera-Thon '88!" Saturday, Oct. 1.

The company's fifth annual marathon will feature nine hours of outstanding opera programming, including the work of MOT veterans Luciano Pavarotti, Dame Joan Sutherland, Kathleen Battle, Leona Mitchell, Martina Arroyo, Wilhelmenia Fernandez and Broadway's Judy Listeners can enjoy a wonderful day of their opera favorites and help MOT at the same time by phoning in their financial pledge to the Opera-Thon '88! hotline: 832-5000.

This year's goal is $36,000, which will be applied toward the not-for-profit company's $5 million operating budget. To assist with pledging, there's a catalog full of premium items for operalovers to bid on. The catalog features such wonderful items as a British holiday abroad, the gold chair which tenor Pavarotti used during his recent visit to Detroit, tapes, records and CDs, a ride in the MOT hot air balloon, Tshirts and much more.

Folks involved in planning the Opera-Thon '88! — which runs from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. - enjoyed a cocktail soiree Monday night at Vanelli Detroit. Among those present were premium chairmen Diana Greenwood, Bill Chapin and Pointers Barbara Weiss and Rick Ingwersen. For an advance copy of the Opera-Thon '88! catalog, call the MOT volunteer activites office at 874-7850. And remember to tune in to WQRS, FM-105 on Saturday, and to call 832-5000 with a pledge.

Churches

The Pastor's Corner

Oh, that Holy Spirit

By The Rev. Jack L. Mannschreck Associate Pastor, G.P. United Methodist Church

Pastor Norman Wimple stood and smiled. He pressed the tips of his fingers together and calmly proclaimed, "This is just the point, friends. Because God created all that exists and because God breathes life into us 168 hours a week, we can occasionally go over the time when we worship Sunday mornings.'

Norman looked around the fellowship hall for approval, but received little. Few people smiled in his direction.

"Thank you, Mrs. Cluck and Rev. Wimple" Paul Gor man, chairman of the church council, stood and perused the hall full of concerned congregants. In a voice that was not quite impartial he said, "I am sure that we have heard all the arguments concerning the length of our worship services. Are there any last comments?"

Mrs. Cluck raised her hand and was acknowledged. She stood and turned toward the members of First Church. Her voice was sympathetic.

"I'm sure that The Rev. Wimple means well when he tries to conduct a Spirit-filled worship service, however, we must be practical when we worship. I am sure Jesus was very prompt as he . . . ah . . . wandered about during his ministry.

"With all this talk about the Holy Spirit and worship. well, we would never finish in an hour. The sermon's longer, the choir sings more and prayer requests never end! It is in the best interest of First Church that I must make a motion that we not have Spirit-filled worship and that all services should be no longer than one hour.

Seconds to the motion came from several directions. Mur murs filled the hall as a light breeze, chilling everyone, came from the back of the room. People turned to see a well-dressed man with a familiar face taking a seat in the back row of chairs. Pastor Wimple also noticed the latecomer but couldn't remember his name. He made a note to himself to check the pictorial directory later.

Ballots were prepared, cast and counted. Norman Wimple sighed and thought that it might be best that this issue be put to rest, even if Mrs. Cluck got her way. She would never rest until she did. The great hall grew silent as the ballot counters returned and handed the result of the vote to the chairman. Gorman stared at the piece of paper in his hand and choked on his words.

St. Ambrose welcomes home one of its own

Shortly after Pope John Paul 1215 Alter Road. II's visit to Detroit last September, The Rev. Timothy R. Pelc, pastor of St. Ambrose Church in Grosse Pointe Park, received a letter from an old friend.

It came from Bishop Joseph Imesch, head of the Diocese of Joliet, and formerly, Pelc's supervisor during an internship at Our Lady of Sorrows Church in Farmington.

In the letter, Bishop Imesch mentioned that he'd like to see a copy of his baptismal certificate, since he had been baptized at St. Ambrose in the summer of 1931.

This was a revelation to me. I had known that Joe's dad had been the groundskeeper at the Sacred Heart Academy and that they had lived in the Pointes, but I did not realize that his formative years were spent right here at St. Ambrose," Pelc said.

In subsequent letters, Imesch

Bishop Joseph Imesch

"Now, 1215 Alter Road is an address well known to all people on our staff as the local crack cocaine house. After months of work by Sister Helen Edwards and the block club, the 'business' was finally terminated at 1215," Pelc wrote in a recent column in the St. Ambrose church paper.

"It was sobering to think that 1215 had another life besides the one it had now. Once it nurtured an immigrant family whose faith was so strong that it produced a bishop of the church. Now, it had become a den of iniquity. nurturing only misery and crime," Pelc wrote.

return to his boyhood parish this Sunday, Sept. 25, where he will serve as main celebrant and guest preacher at the 8:30 a.m.

It has been tough trying to arrange a date for Imesch to visit his old parish, friends and family; he has been deeply involved with his duties as chairman of the U.S. committee on women in the church and in society and the bishops' writing committee of the pastoral, "Partners in the Mystery of Redemption."

Among the highlights of the women's pastoral, the first draft

That bishop of the church will of which was approved this year by the National Council of Catholic Bishops Administrative Committee, are that "sexism depersonalizes women and is a sin against human dignity"; that "discrimination against women

. cannot be condoned"; and that "while the church considers iteself unable to ordain women as priests, it should study the possibility of women deacons and should open all lay ministries to full participation by women."

The Rev. Pelc says that all in the community are welcome to hear Bishop Imesch speak this Sunday.

money, you don't have the time. If you have the time, you don't have the money. Then, of course, there are those who have neither the time nor the money.

Here's a suggestion for those "I wish I could ..." travelers: Why not just do that - wish?

Gardeners have done it for years. With just enough space for tomatoes, beans and cucumbers, they read seed catalogs all during the long winter months, wishing they had room for any number of the new, untried varieties of flowers and vegetables. Never mind that growing space is limited and the time and expense of caring for hybrids is beyond their reach. They enjoy playing the botanical "Walter Mitty" role.

Besides the vicarious fun they are cheaper and hotel rates are old Catch-22. If you have the have choosing, rejecting, plotting and transplanting their current dream garden, they become more knowledgeable about choosing what variety is best for the growing conditions of their particular locations and more adept at plotting out space. So much for horticulture. It's only mentioned as an example for would-> be travelers. Why not read about those faraway places with strange-sounding names, as well as the nearby sites with familiar names? You may never make the trip to see them but you certainly will end up having a broader base to choose from when it comes time to plan your real trip. You will know the best time, the best and most reasonable accomodations and whether or not the area offers the diversions and recreation you are seeking.

You might even begin reading up on a journey you would never think of making. Think of the relief when you finish your make believe expedition and you can say: "Thank goodness, I'll never get caught going there." At the same time, you have to admit that for some, it would be a fun trip.

For instance, there are those who would be less than thrilled with the prospect of traveling in an 18-foot inflated raft on the Tatshenshini River in the Yukon Territory, a river that runs down a mountain slope through northwestern British Columbia and Alaska's Glacier Bay National monument to the Pacific. But there are those hardy adventurers who enjoy doing just that.

Can't beat the comforts of home

I searched for reasons why I could arrive in Seoul for the Olympics and couldn't come up with anything, so I had to settle for a comfortable chair in the privacy of my own living room.

Like many Americans now, I am unable to attend the Olympics because of two reasons: 1) not enough money, and 2) no more vacation time. Also, like many Americans, I stocked up on chips, pop, frozen food dishes and many excuses for why I can't do anything outside the home - the Olympics are on.

It's difficult for me to think of Sunday being Monday in Seoul, but Wednesday is really Tuesday in the States. It's confusing, but if you go to sleep on Wednesday, then you should wake up on Thursday morning, but it's really Thursday night - in Seoul.

Eh, buddy, I've got nice seats, don't have to stand in line at bathrooms, and don't have to worry about what is really in my doggy bag when I leave a restaurant.

My meals are fully cooked, I leave home without travelers checks, and I can leave my VCR in charge of taping the Games if I go to a Tiger game. It's only once every four years that you have to ignore the other sports for 17 days and pay full attention to amateur athletes vying for gold medals and pride.

The Olympics are something that we all seem to get involved in. Even if we don't have an affiliation with an athlete or a team, we can feel good about what the American athletes are doing. When a gold medal is won, I get fired up and then get a chill when the American athlete listens to the National Anthem being played in his/ her honor. But, it's for our honor as well.

It's difficult to see everything. The networks try to present it all, but it's impossible. You get minimal footage of a run, a walk, a shot, or a play, but you get enough to give you the feeling of being there. One could argue that it's media overkill, but don't complain, in another nine days you'll forget all about it until 1992.

Before North's 21-20 win over Cousino last week, it looked like a long season was in the making for the Norsemen.

They've played three games and have won once. After two losses in the first two games, things looked bleak. Coach Frank Sumbera didn't have the athletes turning out to play, his jerseys were late and when they arrived the silk-screening was not up to snuff, and the numbers were not centered. Sumbera was going to send the jerseys back, but maybe after breaking out of his worst start ever, the bad jerseys are actually a good omen.

Administration goes to class

North High teaches more than class

'We want them to feel that they don't only go to North, but that they are North.' - Dr. Iohn Kastran

Sports Editor Administrators at North High School are entering the classroom this fall. They aren't taking classes, but they are trying to inform students about the need for sportsmanship.

For the second consecutive year, the administrative team of Dr. John Kastran (principal), Tom Teetaert, Dr. Kathy Herschelmann and Thomas Gauerke, has made rounds to each homeroom class at North High. The purpose of the visit to the classrooms last week was to give the students proper guidelines on what is expected of them outside the classroom at school events.

Sports is a major part of extracurricular activities in high set aside for a talk on sportsschool, and without proper fan manship, but at North the adbehavior the programs could be marred by incidents.

This year, North was cited by the Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA) as a model school which devotes time to brief students on sportsman-

According to John Johnson, communications director for the MHSAA, North is the only high school that administers its thrust for sportsmanship through the classroom.

"North is one example that I've seen taking the program right into the classroom," Johnson said after the team addressed the student body.

'Teachers don't have much time with the students in particular classes and their time is valuable. Some teachers may not like the idea of 20 minutes being ministration has that important cooperation from the teachers.

work together on this because period of one year. sportsmanship is a full-time part-time thing. It goes well bevond the athletic fields for students and fans alike."

At the start of the school year, the student handbook outlines certain behavioral expectations, pleased with the student reacbut sometimes those books go unnoticed.

"People don't always know what's expected of them at high school events," Johnson said. "By making them aware and telling them the consequences ahead of time, then they are informed."

Tom Gauerke, the athletic director for North, agrees that outlining the consequences now -- could halt any chance of improper cheering.

"We're putting the ball in their court," Gauerke said.
"We're telling them the expectations up front and giving them the consequences in advance. If they don't heed our advice, that's their choice.

Gauerke stated that since the program began two years ago, there has been no report of poor fan behavior.

"The kids really responded to it," Gauerke said. "The kids know that if they behave poorly, throw things on the field or ice, or disrespect officials or players, that a particular program could be forfeited by their behavior.

"We haven't had a problem, and I hope it stays that way," Gauerke added. "I'm very pleased with the way the kids have turned out at games and cheered," he continued. "They have shown true sportsmanship.

Two years ago after a hockey game, North and South's programs were criticized for intolerant fan behavior by the MHSAA and the programs were put on probation by the Grosse Pointe School Board. Since then, the fans have proved they can cheer positively and the hockey programs, which will begin their sixth season this winter, have

"It's important for them to been lifted from the probationary

"The consequences could be thing," added Johnson, "not a more than just disciplining a student," Gauerke said. "We don't want to have to cancel one of our successful sports because of improper behavior.

Kastran, who said he was tion to the team's talks, was not sure how the kids would react to him, but admitted he wants the kids to know him as more than a principal.

"I feel very comfortable doing it," Kastran said when asked if he was uncomfortable.

"I hope my impression on new students isn't too harsh. The new kids don't know me. I don't want a harsh impression. I want all the kids to know that I am a human, a husband and a father. Not just a principal."

Kastran is pleased that the school he heads has been recognized as a model, but he's also keeping it in perspective.

"I'm very proud of these kids and this school," he said, "but at the same time we're on the spot to maintain the high standards.

"We modeled on paper, but now we have to model off the paper. We have a standard to live up to and we'll take that and do what we can with it."

Kastran believes that telling students what is expected of them at events, will also aid them in the classroom.

"It all carries over into the classroom," he said. "It's a sense of commitment not only to events outside of the class, but inside as well. When kids attend games, they are representing themselves, their families, their school and their community.

"We care about the kids." Kastran added. "When they leave class for the day, we don't stop being concerned. We want them to feel that they don't only go to North, but that they are North. We simply want them to enjoy the games while cheering positively for everyone involved.'

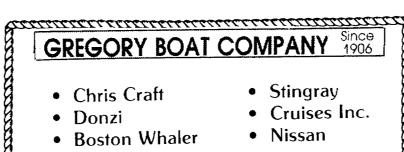

Assistant Principal of North, Dr. Kathleen Herschelmann, addresses a class of freshmen during a week of talks covering expectations of sportsmanship at North.

CHAMP puts on Runners' Clinic

In the midst of the autumn marathons and fun runs, there is a place for runners to go and learn what they should know before stepping into the race.

CHAMP (Cottage Hospital Athletic Medicine Program) will be holding a Runners' Clinic on Wednesday, Sept. 28 from 7 to 9 p.m. in the hospital boardrooms.

Exercise physiologist Dwight Gall will focus on training techniques for the beginner as well as the accomplished runner. Through demonstration and printed materials, participants will learn how to prepare for a race. Alternate workouts or "cross-training," tips for increasing mileage, speed and endurance, warm-up, stretching and strengthening exercises, correct running form, and proper footwear are included in the discus-

CHAMP trainer Marti Van-Eenenaam will talk about how to recognize and what to do for common running injuries such as shin splints, athlete's tendonitis and plantar fasciitis. Learn how to stay active while nursing an injury, and better yet, by preventing one.

Before you head for the starting line, call 884-1177 for your free reservations to the clinic.

Head south?

The kids are back to school and life has settled back into the work-a-day routine. It is time to plan this winter's boating vacation.

When our lakes are frozen solid and the hard water sailors are skimming along the ice on thin razor-sharp blades, nothing is as releasing as much as the opportunity to slip away from the cold of Michigan's winter to a lovely warm- weather destination. Imagine the sun shining through cloudless skies, and the clear, blue water beckoning. Just imagining it is relaxing.

Now is the time reservations need to be made for points south. The Caribbean is becoming an increasingly popular spot to take a boating vacation. The American Virgin Islands mounted a marketing and advertising campaign recently to make Northerners aware of the territory and its rich vacation amenities, not the least of which is the ease of travel. No passport is required, and direct flights are available at reasonable rates. Bare-boat chartering is the most popular boating recreation for vacationers with at least a week away from the job. Chartering a boat for less than a week is difficult. Charterers should be prepared to fill out a boating resume. Charter companies are interested in how well one can handle a boat. They are not as interested in where the chartered has sailed, whether it be the waters of Newfoundland, or Lake Michigan, it is of little consequence. Your boating skill is what is of interest. Some companies take out charterers on a check-out sail before turning over the boat to them.

Finding a reliable charter can be difficult. Because you are dealing with a company far from home, the only assurance of its integrity is word of mouth. Most people tend to charter from a company that has been referred to them by a friend or someone they trust, who has dealt with the company before. Charter companies realize this and work hard at maintaining a good reputation.

Upheavals in the industry cost the companies dearly, and they guard against it.

Be prepared to spend more money than you originally budgeted. The little things add up fast. Costs in the American Virgins are high because everything must come in by air or sea.

Unless you are an experienced boat provisioner (planning and buying food and beverages), you might want to let the charter company help you with this, at least for your first visit. After you have sailed the area once, you will know where to go and what to do. You will also become familiar with what is available in the islands.

One thing advised against, is eating your local catch, especially the bigger fish. Some carry ciguatera. The local people know which fish are safe and which are not, but even they are not immune. Ciguatera is a poison that builds up in fish, and is harmful to humans. The fish don't mind it but the people who eat them do. The local paper ran a story about tourists who caught a big predator fish, a baraccuda. Because it was so large, they gave half to another boat. Cooked, barracuda is quite tasty, but, in this case, potentially deadly. Eventually everyone turned up at the hospital on St. Thomas, at different times during the evening, all very ill. The medicos finally figured out that all the people had eaten from the same fish. They were treated. The local lobster, on the other hand, is very safe to eat. They are often found for sale by

Clothing is never a problem in the Virgins. Life is very casual. The local people do not like to see tourists too uncovered, so a beach cover-up is well advised, especially for casual soirees ashore. Otherwise boaters live in their bathing suits, shorts and T-shirts. It is too hot for heavy jeans, but light weight slacks are wonderful for evening, and dining out. A winter trip can be a wonderful pick-me-up for the mid-winter blues that set in here during the coldest months. Make arrangements now, though, because there are many out there who want to wiggle their toes in the sand on a Caribbean island, and rekindle the romance of

If you have never chartered, and don't know anybody well enough to ask, then consult the charter section of any boating magazine. Often magazines run articles about chartering, as well as sell advertising space to charter companies. Maybe Santa may leave a giftwrapped ticket under the tree. Christmas in the Caribbean might be very pleasant indeed.

North's Stephanie Gore (42) creates a little havoc with her tough defense in a game against Eisenhower.

The win gave North a 1-2 overall record, but more importantly, it gave them a 1-0 clip in the MAC's White Division.

"We've turned the corner," said Frank Sumbera, head coach. "This is a great feeling to get that first win. It is exceptionally nice because it came in the conference."

Besides passing for a school record in yards, Bernhardt now owns the record for passes thrown (36) and completions (20). Charlie Stumb, who pulled in eight passes for 125 yards, is also a record holder in yardage for a single game.

"Those two had excellent games," said Sumbera. "Anytime you complete 20 passes, that's a good day's work."

Brady was also on the receiving end of six passes for 119 yards.

"We had Mr. Inside with Charlie, and Mr. Deep with Matt," Sumbera said talking about how they attacked the Patriots' defense. "They both were such a threat that we used them effectively and Scott got them the ball."

In a relentless initial drive, Bernhardt hit Stumb four times to convert on third downs.

"I told the kids the whole key to the game was our ability to convert on third down plays," Sumbera said. "We've been struggling to convert on third down, but this time we did a nice job."

North capped an 87-yard drive to hit paydirt when Brady gathered in Bernhardt's 14-yard strike. Scott Schorer booted his first of three extra points, and North enjoyed a 7-0 lead.

At half, Sumbera later stated that it was gut-check time.

"We went in and talked manto-man," he said. "We didn't even X and O until the last three minutes because I was talking and they were listening. It was like E.F. Hutton.'

Especially sophomore tackle Leo Salvaggio, who had eight tackles.

"I put the big guy in and he shut them down," Sumbera said. "Leo stopped everything they ran at him inside.'

After a scoreless third quarter, the Norsemen started out on their own 10 yard line with 10: 58 to play. After one first down on a catch by Stumb, the Norsemen began to falter, but on a second-and-one play, Bernhardt went to Mr. Deep (Brady) for a 40-yard gain. Stumb then clutched out with a fingertip catch on fourth-and six, and two plays later, Brady pranced into the end zone from 10 yards out, capping a 90-yard drive in 15 plays, forcing overtime.

"The momentum was on our side," Sumbera said. "The kids felt it and played to it."

Sept. 13 was a day for exciting tri-meet action for the boys' and girls' teams.

At home against Lakeview and South Lake, the Norsemen clinched two victories, 20-42 over South Lake, and 17-46 over Lakeview. John Petz was the top finisher (17:36), and Ken Ferguson (17:59), and Tim Ballew (18:02) finished second and third.

Meanwhile at the Hill, the girls ran to three wins. North beat Regina 17-43, Mott, 23-32, and Lakeview, 18-45; bringing its record to 4-0. Liz Bolden and Nikki VanOppens ran a 1-2 race.

At the Holly Invitational, the boys placed 13th behind Ken Ferguson's fifth-place run of 17: 58. The girls ran very well and placed fifth out of 17 teams. Bolden took sixth and VanOppens was ninth.

University Liggett School's football team ventured through 280 yards of St. Agatha's football field last Saturday, but the end zone was uncharted territory in the Knights' 21-0 loss.

ULS (0-3) has moved the ball at will in its first three games, but has yet to score a point.

'Moon Over Parador' scores high all-around serious situation that sets this could provide for the Communist Mitch in "A Streetcar Named

By Michael Chapp Special Writer

"Moon Over Parador" is one of those rare instances at the movies when everything is clicking. The screenplay is timely and insightful and the acting is crisp and inspired. The picture is visually stimulating, while its visceral impact is nothing less than brilliant.

Those are no small words of praise, to be sure. But "Parador" is no small achievement. Director Paul Mazursky has united each of the diverse elements of cinema into a very satisfying

In short, where Norman Jewison's "Moon" last year merely Struck us, Mazursky's "Moon" washes us in its light of joviality.

There's no doubt this is meant to be a comedy, despite its setting in the fictional South American country of Parador, a country teetering on the verge of revolution. There are many mini-dramas within the narration of the film, but at no time does Mazursky miss his opportunity to provide a laugh.

It's Mazursky's ability to provide laughs in such a seemingly picture apart. That, and Richard Dreyfuss, who's as good here as he's ever been.

Having just finished shooting a generic action-adventure Bgrade movie in Parador, actor Jack Noah (Dreyfuss) agrees to stick around for the annual carnival, knowing that his acting career can't suffer too much if he's away from the Big Apple for just one extra week.

That assumption, as it turns out, is the understatement of a

On the first night of the carnival. Parador's dictatorial president, who looks an awful lot like Noah, suffers a fatal heart attack. His right-hand man (Raul Julia), knowing the problems this could cause in the upcoming election and the opportunity this revolutionaries in the country (don't all South American countries have them?) enlists the help of Noah.

And what this Noah is asked to pull off makes the biblical Noah's task look like a day at the beach. With the help of makeup on the face and a pillow in the paunch, he's supposed to impersonate the president and help get the country through a few days of difficulty. And since the powers-that-be threaten to kill him if he doesn't play along, he agrees to take the role.

Things go better than expected. So well, in fact, that Noah stays in power for a year, begins to affect some social change in the country, falls for the dead dictator's girl (Sonia Braga), and even has an attempt made on his life.

And in a country like this, where politics are little more than an excuse to fire a bullet with every verbal salvo, you know you're successful if someone is trying to kill you. Problem is, Noah misses home. And he misses the opportunities he'd He wants to read for the part of equaling what's been given.

Desire." He wants to wake up each morning to the New York

More important to Noah than getting back to his career though, is getting back to reality. And as he observes himself, there's a fine line between the two. In one of the movie's best moments, he pauses and takes cinematic inventory: "What a moment," he yells. "Right out of 'Casablanca.'

Indeed, Noah has learned how important his vocation is to him. He's learned about the power of personality, and about the folly of being a fake.

That's the literal heart of this picture. And Dreyfuss handles the pathos and humor of every scene with the delicacy of a glassblower. Meanwhile, Mazursky has handled the rest. He's taken a snappy musical score and dubbed it under a visually enticing filmatic canvas. He's taken a truly funny script and coupled it with a collection of wonderful performances, led by Dreyfuss.

In this case, everything that's have there to further his career. been taken comes nowhere near

Life in Berlin featured in Wim Wenders' 'Wings of Desire'

By Marian Trainor

Special Writer German director Wim Wenders' award-winning "Wings of Desire," now showing at the Woods Theatre, is above all else an original. Mingling past and present, documentary and fiction, the ethereal and the worldly, Wenders takes the viewer on a journey of contemporary Berlin. The guides are two angels, Daniel played by Bruno Gans, and Cassiel, by Otto Sander.

Outwardly they are grave men in long overcoats, invisible to all but children.

Auditions

The Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford Playhouse is holding auditions Sunday, Sept. 25, from 2 to 7:30 p.m. and Monday, Sept. 26, at 7:30 p.m. for "Olympus on my Mind," a musical comedy about what happens when Jupiter comes to Earth in human form to seduce the beautiful Alcmene, wife of Amphitryon.

Male and female actors from 20s through middle-age are needed.

For more information, call 427-3428 to leave a message or call after 5:30 p.m.

They travel the city, eavesdropping on the secret thoughts of the citizens and giving comfort to the needy. They record and discuss their findings. As they read them over, they mourn the history they can neither change nor influence. They are in fact spiritual historians, and as historians, they spend much of their time in libraries peering over the shoulders of those at work, inspiring them to search for truth as they research and write of the past and present.

Although they are celestial companions, the two are different in nature. Daniel is more interested in people and their human reactions, while Cassiel broods over what mankind has done and will do to himself and his fellow man.

Daniel is also the more poetic of the two. As he travels the streets, he extols the simple delights of ordinary sights and sounds in language reminiscent

He is thrilled by a high wire act performed by a beautiful trapeze artist. It is a daring series of stunts performed high against the rooftop without a net. Unsure, frightened, she perseveres, but when it is over, she is seen in her room wondering whether she will be able to perform for an audience.

Unseen, Daniel transmits comforting messages that give her courage, and she is left to wonder at the sudden change in her attitude.

Because of her, Daniel longs to become more than a guardian angel. He becomes restless with the spiritual life and yearns to become part of the world.

A fragmented narrative up to now, "Wings of Desire" develops a story line: that of an angel who gives up his powers for earthly love.

Through the power of that love he is reborn as a numan on the site of the Berlin wall.

iel watches Marion perform on the trapeze, the monochrome bursts into color - the hue of human desire.

The first half of "Wings of Desire," which Wenders wrote with novelist Peter Handke, is freeform, swooping down on the vignettes of the city with the freedom of our angelic host.

What Wenders seems to be saying is that this is Berlin in which everyone is searching for a story that will make them whole again.

From the first frames when we see the two angels on top of a spire looking down on a troubled city to the closing episodes, the viewer is captivated by 79-yearold Henry Alekan Cocteau's stunning black and white images, and Wenders' eloquent camera that takes us to places we've never been. This is a film that offers both the despair and delight of everyday life and the spirituality needed to cope. Creative dance for children

Creative Dance Lab classes will be offered to local youngsters by Wayne State University's Department of Dance, beginning Sept. 24 on main campus in the Cultural Center.

The classes stress the creative development of individuals and focus on movement skills, artistic self-expression, self and group awareness, and aesthetic sensitivity.

Through movement children can express ideas and emotions which they may not yet be prepared to express orally or cursively. Props, music and poetry are used to stimulate movement, and the ideas of time, space and energy are used in creative exploration.

In addition, children can exercise their minds as well as their bodies through creative dance experiences according to Melissa

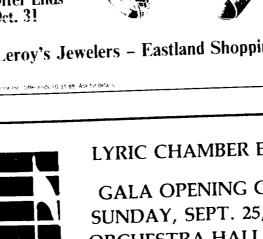

Miller, instructor. She explains that students learn social skills by working in groups or with partners. Also, their coordination and problem-solving skills become practiced and further developed.

Classes meet on Saturdays in Old Main located at the corner of Cass and Warren. The schedule is as follows: 10-10:50 a.m. for children aged 3-4 and adults 18 and older; 11-11:50 a.m. for children aged 5-6 and 10-13; 12-12:50 p.m. for students aged 7-9 and 14-17.

The fee for the 11-week session is $44. Family discounts are available as well as discounts to WSU alumni, faculty and all WSU students.

For additional information, call the WSU Department of Dance at 577-4273, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Missing LINC

Linking individuals to Needs in the Community is a non-profit organization whose purpose is to coordinate needs with resources. This is accomplished by placing goods no longer needed by individuals and businesses into the hands of Metropolitan Detroit charitable agencies. Operating since 1971, LINC is proud of the accomplishments it has made and strives to increase its resource base. If you have recyclable items, no longer of use to you, Operation LINC knows who can use them. Please call LINC at 882-6100 with your donation. KEEP IT MOVING!

The DOWNTOWN SENIOR CITIZENS have requested an air purifier and a pool table.

Adult CRAFT KITS (boats, planes and cars) for twentyfive to thirty men are needed by the DETROIT RESCUE MISSION.

Many agencies have requested fans/and or air conditioner units. It has been hot! If you have a spare unit please pass it on. LINC has an ongoing need for infant items. If you have a crib, high chair, infant seats, please call us.

CAREGIVERS is currently developing a new program with the Youth Services of Wayne County for children who must be removed from their families for abuse and neglect. Often there is a period of several hours before foster care piacement is secured. Currently they are kept at the precinct. The new program would assure quality care for the children in transit. Caregivers is looking for carpeting, childrens picture, plants, a television, child size table and chairs. This is a traumatic time for these children, help us help them.

PROJECT UPLIFT has requested cans of fruit juice, coffee creamer, a simple map of the United States, a Scruples game and 35 mm film (print).

Senior David Allen led the Knights with a score of 47, while junior Chris McCormick and Gene Gargaro carded scores of 52 and 53, respectively. Andrew Stewart, Wes Simms and Ross Kogel racked up scores of 55, 63, and 65.

Coach Josh Schmidt commented on the team's play as well as host Kingswood, "They treated us very well at the match and proved to be a solid team," he said. "We definitely learned from our mistakes . . .

ULS hosts Country Day this afternoon.

The No. 1 ranked team in the state's Class C-D polls continued to roll with a 5-2 win over Cranbrook Kingswood last week.

Dawn Martin (No. 1 singles), Elena Hunt (No. 2 singles), Shirley Kim (No. 4 singles), Ali Frederick and Lexie Crain (No. 1 doubles), and Liz Thomas and Natasha Levy (No. 3 doubles) all recorded wins.

The Lady Knights will travel to Dearborn today, and then head for the East Grand Rapids Invitational on Sept. 24. EGR is currently ranked No. 10 in the Class B polls.

By James Kim Special Writer

Unbeaten after six matches. the ULS Knights are currently ranked No. 4 in the C-D polls.

ULS dominated Inter-City Baptist, 4-0, as Mark Sullivan, Jonathon Davis, Derek Van De Graaf and Doug Wood tallied.

7 ranked Immaculate Conception and blew open a rather close game to win, 5-1.

Jan Butt-Kurzer netted the Knights' first goal at the 10minute mark and then saw Davis score two straight to up the lead to 3-1. ULS gave up a goal 20 minutes into the second half, but Davis and Butt-Kurzer scored again to seal the win.

Thanks to strong defense by Mike Niccolini, Bill Lucken, Larry Ayuyu and James Kim, Conception managed only 12 shots on net. Goalkeepers Brian Schmidt and Kamran Jafri played exceptionally well.

Davis collected a hat trick in a 9-0 romping of Plymouth Christian. Paul Lanzon and Wood each scored twice, and Lucken and Butt-Kurzer added the other two goals.

Two days later, ULS faced No.

Christine Jamerino was honored as the runner-up in the 10-and-under girls' 1988 U.S.S.M. Long Course State Swimming Championships at the Civic Center in Southfield.

Jamerino currently ranks in the nation's top 16 swimmers for her age group in the 50 and 100-meter breaststroke. She is also in that top 16 in the 50 and 100 freestyle, and the 200 individual medley.
