Center recycles newspapers: Saves trees, environment

How many trees owe their existence to University Liggett School's Community Newspaper Recycling Center? About 3,100.

The recycling center opened a year ago, in mid-October 1987. Since then, 182 tons of newspapers have been collected and sold.

According to Charlotte Blair, former ULS librarian, creator and coordinator of the recycling project, one ton of newspaper saves 17 average-sized trees.

"The project started as a part of my master's project," she said, "which was 'The Library as a Catalyst for Schoolwide Environmental Projects."

Fran Schonenberg, of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) and the Grosse Pointe League of Women Voters, said that recycling efforts save more than trees.

"Newspapers are a significant part of the waste stream," she said. "The Community Newspaper Recycling Center helps by reducing waste in the Grosse Pointes-Clinton Refuse Disposal Authority's incinerator in Mount trucks. It reduces the heat and ash produced by the incinerator. It helps economically.'

University Liggett School provided the space for the center, Schonenberg said, but a loose coalition of five groups also helped with volunteers, organization and sponsorship. Besides the AAUW and the league, she credited the Council of Grosse Pointe Garden Clubs, the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church and Grosse Pointe Community Education for their help.

"We were turned down by the Clemens. It saves space in the Woods council at first," she said. "They wanted more information. They were worried that it would be an eyesore.'

The center is located on the north side of Cook Road, across from ULS Lower School, at the west end of the school parking lot.

She said that ULS went back to the Woods council with a plan for planting trees to shield the 8 foot x 20 foot bin and a wooden gate to hide it from the street. The bin holds 12 tons of paper.

Residents can pull up their cars, unload and stack their Blair said that the price per ton for the paper varies. It's $20 a ton now, but it has gotten as low as $13 in the last year. She said the money is being used to pay for the trees and the gate. "Once they're paid for, the school has pledged 15 percent of the proceeds of the paper sales to the Woods Beautification fund," she said.

"It's a small effort in a big sea of environmental problems that we've got," Blair said. "It was

Residents who want to participate should collect newspapers only (no magazines or old phone books). Either tie them with biodegradable string or stack them in brown paper grocery bags and drop them off at the Center.

Hours are Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. until 6 p.m. Saturday, 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. Closed Sunday.

the strategic planning committee for the 1990-91 year.

Christian Fenton, director of business affairs, said the trend is to allow more decision-making for individual schools at the building level. On-site budgeting will give each school the money to implement these decisions.

On-site budgeting involves a committee of staff members. teachers, parents and the building principal providing input into decisions as to how each school will utilize its portion of the budget. Each school will be able to determine priorities for staffing, number of school aides, lunchroom supervisors, supplies and such.

"They can determine, at the building level, whether they want aides, or more teachers, or computers, or whatever," he

"This is participatory management," said Fenton, "and it's happening in businesses, too."

Fenton said, as far as he knows, no other school in Michigan is using on-site budgeting methods.

He said the pilot program will begin in the 1989-90 budget at the library, at Brownell Middle School and two or three elementary schools to be determined later.

The advantages, according to Fenton: More people will be involved in the school budgeting process. More people will become aware of costs. It gives more people input into school decisions.

"The disadvantage," he said. "is that it takes more time."

The next step is to implement the test program by presenting individual school budget requests to the school board in April.

"It's an exciting new program," Fenton said. "It will have a few bumps and curves at first, but once the board sees how it all fits together, they'll like it."

A Warren couple were enjoy ing a romantic date while relaxing along the lake in the Farms recently when he became ill and went back to the car. He never returned.

The woman became concerned after a few minutes, and when she went to where the car was parked, it was gone. She later called her date's home and was told to start walking up Lakeshore toward Vernier and he would pick her up. He never showed.

She contacted the Grosse Pointe Farms Public Safety Department at 5 p.m. Sept. 18 to file a stolen car report. Her date apparently had the keys to her car because he was driving it when they went to the lake.

She again contacted the Farms police at 3 a.m. the next day. Her car was found by her date's father, who discovered it parked at his place of employment. The car was unoccupied and there was no sign of the estranged date.

After recovering her car, the woman said she will press charges.

Weekend retreat helps cancer patients, families cope cation-based weekend led by said it is designed as a weekend emotional and social aspects of

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

Cancer is the second leading cause of death in the United States. Approximately one person every minute is diagnosed as having the disease.

Major medical breakthroughs are discovered every day to help with the physical aspects, but coping with the disease means more than just treating the symptoms.

To that end, Harper Grace Hospital created the "We Can Weekend." This year, the sixth annual weekend is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 8-9.

It is a weekend dedicated to helping patients and families get a clearer understanding of cancer and its effects on the family. It is a well-structured, communi-

Kirk Risk, acting on a hunch, man went southbound on Mack. successfully recovered a stolen car and its driver, but not before a high-speed pursuit and a lungwrenching foot race.

At 10:47 a.m. Saturday, Risk was in his scout car on Brys Drive, west of Mack, when he spotted a yellow Corvette pull a U-turn and park directly behind field. When the driver spotted him. The driver got out of the sports car and approached Risk in his police vehicle.

The man asked Risk if he would get a ticket if he didn't put money in the meter. Risk said he would if the meter maid came by. The man then asked Risk for change. The officer refused. The man went on to tell Risk that he was just going into Harrison Paint store for a few minutes. He said the Corvette belongs to his uncle, and he would be really mad if he got a ticket.

Officer Risk was suspicious, so when the man went into the paint store, he got the license plate number and proceeded to have a check made. The man left the store before the Woods dispatcher had a chance to complete the license plate check.

Before leaving, however, the man asked Risk to move the scout car ahead because the transmission was bad in the Corvette and he couldn't use re-

The officer found the car heading west on Vernier at Beacons-Risk's scout car, he accelerated and it was evident he was trying to flee, according to Risk's police report.

Risk put on his emergency flashers and siren and a highspeed chase began westbound on Eight Mile. Risk said the driver in the Corvette was recklessly weaving in and out of lanes and disregarding all traffic signals.

The driver went through a turnaround west of Schoenherr and continued westbound at a high rate of speed using the eastbound lanes of Eight Mile. He then turned south on Waltham and then west on Seven Mile and pulled into a parking lot.

When Risk caught up to the Corvette, it still rolling but the door was open and the man was fleeing on foot in the Waltham alley. Risk followed the man up the alley in his scout car, but when the fugitive jumped a fence into the backyard of a Waltham home, the officer was forced to follow on foot.

The man jumped several fences with Risk following. The fugitive was getting ahead. Risk saw the man trying to climb a 6foot stockade fence, and fearing the man might get over before he could reach him, Risk fired one shot. The man did make it over the fence, but not before three Detroit police officers had responded.

Risk and the Detroit officers cornered the man, and Risk put him in handcuffs and read him his rights. The suspect was taken to the Woods Public Safety Department for processing. Pontiac police officials were notified. It was learned the owner of the Corvette had been seriously injured while trying to stop the theft of his car. The suspect said he was on parole from a previous car theft incident.

One woman's story

Woods resident Judy Miller has been fighting her breast cancer since it was first discovered in June 1985.

She said her doctor did not feel there was validity in mammography, and Miller did not have one for a number of years.

When she noticed a discharge, she called a doctor who told her to immediately see a surgeon, which she did. She underwent a mastectomy and nine months of chemotherapy. Following the chemo, she was in remission until December 1986, when it was discovered the cancer had spread. She has undergone varying treatments since then, none of which have helped.

Miller and her husband Tom attended the We Can Weekend last year, and she said it helped her face her disease.

"It helped a lot," she said. "I wish there were more things like (the weekend). It's nice to be with a whole group skills, openly discuss her faith, learn fitness tips and how to cook more healthfully. But the most important aspect of the retreat was meeting others who are living with cancer. "It's kind of lonesome, having cancer," she said. "Other cancer patients are the only people who understand." She said she worried about not becoming a grandparent, until she met people there who will never be parents. And she used to dread the thought of turning 50, now at 46 she sees that as a goal. Some of the friends she made there have died in the past year, but while at the retreat, the understanding and camaraderie made a bad thing a little easier.

Her husband, Tom, thought it was a nice, informative, interesting weekend. "I would recommend it," he said. "A weekend away is always good for a husband and wife." Miller, who still teaches sective way.

"The programs have evolved over the years," Dundon said, to meet the evolving needs of the patients. "But the main purpose is to increase the patients' knowledge of what is happening to them, and to help them communicate."

Workshops on cancer-related topics are offered, sometimes to whole families, others are geared to just the patients, or just spouses, or just the children.

A staff member is assigned to each family, and helps that group with the communications exercises.

Another important aspect of the weekend is meeting other people who are in the same predicament, expressing feelings only others with the disease can truly understand.

"A lot of people are very worried about coming, but when they get there, they are pleasantly surprised, because they see it is an upbeat weekend," Dundon said. "That is our main goal, to keep it upbeat.

"Many patients with cancer and their families try to hide their feelings and keep a stiff upper lip, but one of the things they learn is that they can help each other face their fears," she added.

"There can be some positive things that come out of cancer," Dundon said. "Sometimes families get a lot closer.'

The weekend costs $45 per family, no matter how many people are in the family. The rest of the program is subsidized by the C. Charlotte Ruppel Fund.

The retreat is held at the Butzel Conference Center in Ortonville. All meals and lodging for families and staff are provided.

The woman was shopping when a man with a heavy accent approached her and said he needed help in finding a place to stay. He said he was African and that a taxicab driver drove him to the area and dropped him, according to Grosse Pointe Farms police reports.

He told the woman he needed to get back to the airport to get some money he left there in a locker. While talking to the woman, another man came down the aisle at the store and entered into the conversation. The first man showed the woman and the other man a large roll of money and said he needed someone to keep it safe for him while he went to the airport.

The woman and the two men then went out to the parking lot near the woman's car. The con man put the fat roll of bills into a white handkerchief and told the woman to put her money and jewelry in the handkerchief as an act of good faith. She put $30, a white-gold mother's ring with diamond chips and a thin gold wedding ring in the handkerchief.

Composting: Desirable, necessary, unavoidable

It's only an idea right now. but its an idea whose time has come

Composting

It comes in all shapes and sizes high and low technology. It isn't only something for gardening nuts and eco-freaks. Composting is becoming a necessity and official Grosse Pointe spent a whole morning last week discussing it

Nothing is concrete yet, but the cities in the refuse authority are weighing the pros and cons of centralized composting in order to take some of the load off the incinerator

There was a time when the Grosse Pointes-Clinton Refuse Authority took all the grass and leaves in its eight communities. It was considered part of the municipal waste stream and therefore legally committed to the plant.

Not so any longer. Several of the cities pile their leaves up for hauling to the country. Fewer leaves make the direct trip from home to inciner-

As awareness of solid waste disposal problems increases, the state of Michigan is getting into the act, encouraging communities to make plans that incorporate recycling and incineration along with the traditional landfilling. The state and federal governments are also getting more careful about clean air and water.

"Burving solid waste will shortly come to an end if the state has its way." said Wayne Koser of the Department of Natural Resources, who led the Tuesday seminar. "We'd like to try it on a cooperative basis, but if that doesn't succeed, we'll be just like New Jersey, with man datory recycling. The state but legislators are convinced we can't go on this way."

Lest Grosse Pointers think they have nothing to worry about, they do. Although the incinerator currently meets standards for older facilities, there are some potential problems:

• The EPA has said it will tighten air quality requirements. • Legislation is expected to tighten standards on incinerator ash being buried in landfills.

• The Grosse Pointe incinerator is burning at capacity. The authority is studying the possibility of increasing its size -acostly proposition.

• The large volume of wet grass in the incinerator waste stream prevents a complete burn. That means the authority has to pay to have the leftovers hauled to a landfill.

• Population in the northern authority communities of Mount Clemens and Clinton Township doesn't want to go that route, is still increasing, putting addi-

being restrained in their waste production.

"We're stable in population, but we're far from stable in generation," said incinerator authority chairman Robert Nugent of the City. "We're up 80 percent in 12 years. The alternatives are to decrease generation or increase capacity.

Asked if diverting grass from the waste stream would be good for the incinerator, Nugent said, "Oh, yes.

Koser agreed. "Most incinera tor managers will tell you right up front that there are three things they'd like to divert: grass, leaves and glass bottles. The bottles get like a sandhlaster on a refractory; it's just incredible how they can eat holes in it.

Reducing the waste stream isn't an unheard-of idea. Kent County deliberately designed its incinerator for less than the total tonnage generated by the county, according to Koser. That will force some recycling.

There are about 100 Michigan communities engaged in some kind of composting project, Koser said. A number have Christmas tree-shredding programs. Huntington Woods captured three Clean Michigan grants for composting.

Some are making a profit at it, actually selling the end product instead of paying to take grass and leaves to a landfill or incinerator. Others, like Midland, use the compost in municipal tree-planting projects, on city-owned cemeteries, parks and golf courses, or hand it out free to residents.

The five Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods take the question seriously enough to have sent at least two representatives each to the meeting, sponsored by the League of Women Voters.

• And Grosse Pointers aren't the grass disposal question by state action within the next few years. According to Koser, legislation is pending to ban leaf burning statewide and to ban the landfilling of yard waste.

That one could be tough on Grosse Pointe. If the bill is enacted, Nugent pointed out, any time the Grosse Pointe incinerator goes down temporarily and needs to landfill, it would not be able to bury any of its waste because it is mixed with yard waste.

Further, Koser told the cities that haul their leaves to the country that they won't be able to do that much longer, either tion register themselves as a

Teeth are likely to be put into composting site and comply with regulations.

Koser thinks the passage of the state environmental bond proposals will take the sting out of developing the inevitable program. "There will be absolutely no excuse for municipalities not to go into it, because the money will be there," he said.

Woods Councilwoman Jean Rice said she too believes a program is inevitable. "It's coming at us," she said, "and the sooner we start working on it out of intelligence, instead of waiting to panic, the better it will be."

The League is also sponsoring a seminar on composting at home. It will meet from 7 to 9 not unless the farmers in ques- p.m. at Barnes School on Thurs--day, Oct. 6.

Landscapers question composting feasibility Russell said commercial com- mand for the fertilizer in order

By John Minnis

Staff Writer Facing a possible ban of grass clippings and leaves from landfills and incinerators, landscape companies serving the Pointes find themselves holding the bag - literally.

With landfills becoming filled and new sites limited, the state is considering prohibiting grass. leaves and other yard wastes from landfills. Eventually the state is looking at eliminating burying of all solid wastes.

Furthermore, operators of the Grosse Pointes-Clinton Refuse Authority would like very much to eliminate the problems caused by trying to burn wet grass.

But if grass and leaves can't be burned or buried, how do you get rid of them? Landscapers are wondering the same thing.

"I hope they don't do that, or I'll be in big trouble," said landscaper Dave Russell, of D. Russell Inc., a small company which conducts 80 percent of its business in the Pointes.

On a bigger scale, Greater Detroit Landscape Service Co. is one of the largest landscape companies serving the Pointes, but President Bill Whetstone echoes the same concerns as Russell. "The city would be a total disaster" if grass and leaves were banned from landfills, he said. "What a mess it could be." Whetstone said his company hauls two to three truck loads of wastes to a landfill every day. He said Grosse Pointe is a city of trees, and a ban on leaves at landfills would quickly pile up into a big problem. He said Grosse Pointe would end up with either huge manmade mountains of leaves or dead, unsightly, leaf-choked lawns. While proponents of banning grass and leaves from landfills are proclaiming building homemade compost piles as a simple remedy, Russell is not convinced. He said in the spring and fall he removes some 200 garbage bags of refuse from just one the larger Grosse Pointe estates he maintains post companies aren't new. He said he used to use such a company to dispose of yard wastes. While the dumping fee charged by the compost company was only $3 a yard, he said the clippings had to be clean and free of twigs and other debris. Russell can't use the compost company anymore, however, since it was forced to shut down due to neighbors' complaints of the odors created by composting, he said. Home owners with homemade compost piles may run afoul of their neighbors as well.

Whetstone also looks skeptically at the idea of commercial compost companies.

The area necessary for commercial composting would be quite large. The company, like a winery, would have to wait a period of time before the decomposing process is complete and ready for sale as fertilizer. And, there would have to be a de-

and and and to stay in business.

Whetstone does acknowledge, however, that waste disposal is a problem in the Detroit area as well as nationwide. He understands landfills are getting filled rapidly and locations for more landfills are running out. But like most everyone else, he is at a loss to come up with any permanent solutions.

Russell believes the city and local government should take on the task of disposing of grass clippings and leaves. He said the cities could decompose the yard wastes and use the resulting fertilizer around city shrubs and trees and in city parks.

With the extinction of solidwaste landfills inevitable and a ban on yard wastes from landfills and incinerators expected even sooner, Pointe landscapers are in agreement about one thing: Maintaining a beautiful lawn will cost home owners a lot more.

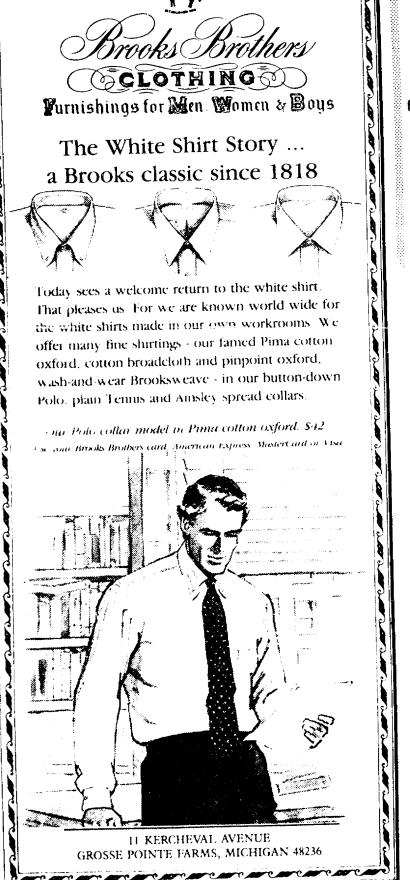

Rockport DresSports. Lightweight comfort that

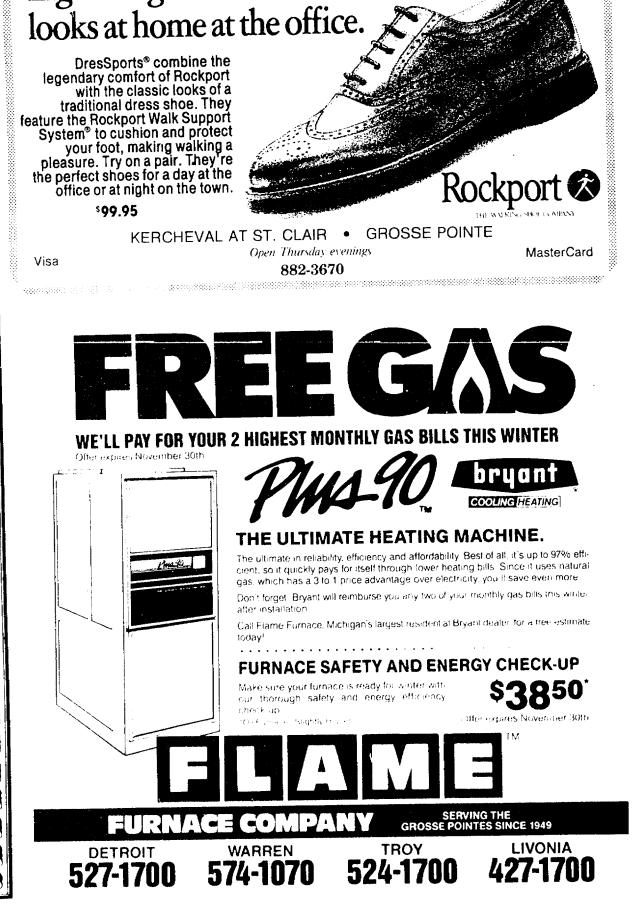

"The compost pile would be so big you can't imagine." he said. "I cannot see how they can do that

He points out that most of his clients wouldn't want a smelly compost heap in their yards, and he certainly doesn't have the land, money or manpower to decompose the wastes himself in compost piles.

Whetstone said many people don't have enough room in their backyards to build a compost pile of the size required. Furthermore, he said, most people don't use the compost created so they merely end up with trash bins in their backyards. Sometimes Russell is able to bag up yard wastes and leave them at the curb for municipal garbage collectors, but in many cases he has to haul the wastes to landfills. He said the landfills charge him a dumping fee of anywhere from $40 to $60 a dumptruck load.

Greater Detroit hauls wastes on a much larger scale. Whetstone pays $210 to dispose of a 30-yard truck load of light yard wastes.

School reform not acceptable in the Pointes new Michigan Department of Education report showing a widening gap between the amounts the richest and poorest public school districts spend on their students has prompted a new demand for school financing reform in the state.

The demand came from Edgar Harden, former Michigan State University president, who chaired a special commission that urged major revisions in the ways Michigan funds public education. He told The Detroit News, "We're approaching a crisis situation where we finally have to do something to eliminate the growing financial inequities" in the school system.

According to The Detroit News, the least generous district in 1986-87, the Kingsley district near Traverse City, spent $2,028 on each of its 1,338 pupils, while the most generous, Whitefish Township school in the Upper Peninsula village of Paradise, spent $6,946 on each of its 61 students. That $4,918 gap between the two districts compared with a $4,100 difference a year earlier.

Few people will quarrel with proposals to increase state aid for impoverished districts, but one of the disagreements in the proposed funding plan has been over the question of whether it is necessary to put a cap on spending by wealthier districts, such as in Grosse Pointe, in order to increase school aid for poorer districts.

In a recent appearance before the Grosse Pointe school board, Rep. William Bryant explained he is opposed to the latest funding reform proposal "because it doesn't allow the continuation of a community's right to pursue its own version of excellence and to use its own property tax to pursue that level of excellence.'

The tax cap, set at 28 mills in the current proposal, is part of the new funding plan that also would hike the sales tax from 4 percent to 6 percent to replace the revenues lost from the property tax, and provide greater amounts of state aid to the state's poorer districts.

Bryant told the school people, however, that a revised version of the funding proposal would allow the state to pay districts for mills they cannot levy, which would be the difference between the present authorization and the new cap. If that proposal is accepted, Bryant said he would recommend that Grosse Pointe levy as many mills as they possibly can in order to set a high base and obtain more state aid.

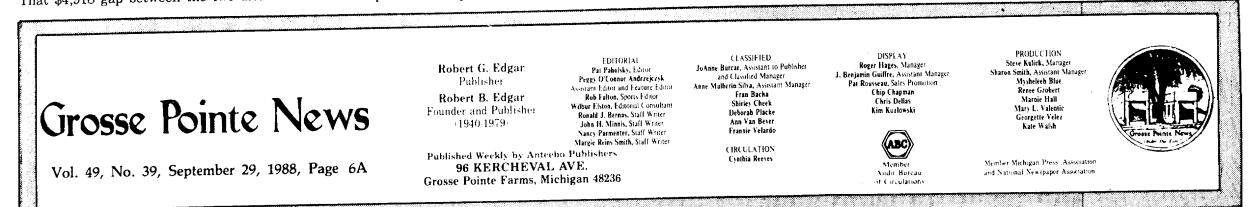

Originally, it had been hoped that the school reform proposal could be put on the Nov. 8 general election ballot but agreement could not be reached in Lansing in time to achieve that goal. Now the talk is that a special election will be held in March, assuming both houses and Democrats and Republicans can get together on an acceptable compromise.

Bryant also said that state aid proposals to date have not dealt with another problem in districts like Grosse Pointe in which the school board also runs the public libraries. But that means if the district is limited to a 28-mill levy for the schools, it ought to separate library and school money in order to obtain as much state school aid as possible.

We have earlier made the point that lighthouse districts such as Grosse Pointe's often perform an important function for public education as a whole. Because the schools are well-funded, they can try experiments and innovative ideas which, when they work out, can be of benefit to all districts. Putting a cap on the school levy here, however, would tend to limit spending to the basics and eliminate innovative programs which would require additional financing.

Nobody can yet predict the final outcome of the negotiations in the Legislature to work out differences over the the funding reform. Unfortunately, however, Bryant said he found "little sympathy for the Grosse Pointes of the world."

That obviously means that Grosse Pointe school leaders and Bryant face an uphill fight to preserve the local district's right to continue to levy the millage needed to maintain the excellence that has become a tradition in the Pointes.

After-care clinic still needed or many Pointe families, and, in fact, for people in general, a home represents a major investment and sometimes even the major investment. That being so, home owners are naturally concerned about any change in the status quo that might affect the value of that investment.

That worry, we are told, is one of the reasons the Woods City Council rejected a proposed ordinance amendment that would have allowed the establishment of an outpatient clinic for youth substance abuse counseling at the Children's Home of Detroit, located on Cook Avenue in Grosse Pointe Woods.

What apparently disturbed some residents, and the council members representing them, was the possibility that the home could not legally limit its proposed out-patient counseling to Grosse Pointe youths. They feared trouble and traffic from young people from outside the Pointes who might be treated at the clinic. And some feared that outsiders might create incidents that eventually might lead to damage to property values. At the recent council hearing, fears also were expressed that the state or federal government might be able to dictate what the home could or could not do with its after-care program by attaching strings to any grants they might make to support the counseling program. Whether these fears are justified or not, they obviously are real and must be satisfied if the program is to have any hope of revival at the Children's Home or somewhere else in the Pointes in the future. These are among the matters that the Children's Home Board of Trustees will address at their Oct. 13 meeting.

Grosse Pointe youths. Without it, those needing treatment will have no place to go in the immediate area for the after-care required following their in-patient treatment. Most of the Grosse Pointe cases involve alcoholism but some also involve hard drugs.

Whether the Children's Home could legally prevent non-residents from using the proposed out-patient clinic has not yet been determined. The Woods city attorney, George Catlin, said at a hearing earlier this month that he did not think any such ban would be legal but others feel the point ought to be tested in the courts. Surely if such a limit could be imposed, it would lessen the fears of both the objecting residents and their councilmen.

Whether such a ban could be legally imposed or not, we hope the Children's Home board will continue to seek ways to provide the service that Pointe youths obviously need. From letters to the editor received by the Grosse Pointe News, it appears there is support in the Woods for the counseling service whether at the Children's Home or somewhere else. In addition, the proposal had strong support in the Grosse Pointe school system, not only from Superintendent John A. Whritner and the principals and counselors at both high schools, but also from several school board members as well. As board member Carl Anderson said after the rejection of the proposal, "I think it is unfortunate our parents have to drive to Birmingham, Bloomfield or Toledo for treatment of their children." Unfortunately, that apparently will continue to be the case unless the Children's Home board can come up with an alternative or revised proposal that could meet the objections of the protesting property owners and their council representatives.

To the Editor: Your Sept. 15 article featuring Mollie Fletcher as the winner of the Christ Church competion was very much appreciated but it should be supplemented.

Although I was chairman of the committee, its work could not have been accomplished without Heather Jones, co-chairman, who was active in all phases of the project.

I would also like the judges recognized. Ed Giacomo and Robert Wilbert from the Michigan Art Community and Mary Hagman Colly Barrett and Gail Phillips from Christ Church's congregation. It also should be stated that without the support and enthusiasm of Ted Cobden, our rector, the Pentecostal Vestment Project would never have been accomplished.

I ask your readers to write to Mayor Freeman, and council persons Rice, Novitke and Fahrner asking that they reconsider their negative votes. The motions made in favor of the facility by Councilman Beaupre should be adopted. After all, what CHD is advocating is a therapeutic setting in which Mom and Dad can discuss in confidence with a professional therapist some strategies for helping Chip or Muffy to stay clean and sober. They have not proposed some kind of methadone clinic, half-way house or hospital satellite center. Grosse Pointe Park

Head in the sand To the Editor

The problem, of course, is that the home was proposing a program that is needed by

County parks need aid, too

Tow that the state has put a bond issue on the November ballot to raise money to improve state and local parks, Wayne County is making an appeal that it, too, needs funds to restore and improve its park system.

Unfortunately, Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara made it clear last week that any millage proposal to benefit the parks would have to wait until after the county seeks renewal by voters of a onemill levy that would otherwise expire in August 1990.

What McNamara and Parks Director R. Eric Reichel have in mind is a half-mill property tax to raise funds to replace the park equipment lost to vandalism, theft and breakage; and to make repairs such as fixing rest rooms, resurfacing tennis courts and replacing softball backstops.

The appeal for help went out as Mc-Namara and Reickel unveiled a new plan outlining the parks' specific needs. Over a five-year period, officials estimate that the repairs will require an investment of $3.2 million, but the county currently lacks that kind of money. Hence, the proposal for a half-mill property levy to raise the funds.

We wonder, however, whether the county might follow the practice of the Pointe communities in raising some funds from private sources to benefit the parks. There must be public-spirited citizens and companies that would make the same kinds of contributions to the county park system that quite a few Pointers make to the foundations in each of the Pointes to supplement public funds spent on parks and other services to the public.

The parks' loss of 3,450 of their 4,000 picnic tables, 1,800 of their 2,000 trash barrels and all of their 1,600 charcoal grills makes one wonder, however, whether the county is going to keep a closer eye on its park equipment or whether the replacements for this equipment also will disappear.

In other words, has the county begun planning how to retain and maintain this equipment or are vandals and thieves simply going to continue trashing park equipment? Unless supervision is improved, we suspect it wouldn't take long for the new equipment to disappear, too

Pointes lose

To the Editor:

The five Pointes are the loser because the Woods council voted 4-3 against the proposed chemical dependency out-patient treatment facility for students in the Grosse Pointe school system. The council should reconsider because our Grosse Pointe children really need such treatment, because the administration of the Children's Home is sensitive to the values of Grosse Pointe families, because the site of that therapeutic community cloaks their potential clientele with more anonymity than other sites in the Pointes and because the entire community would benefit directly and indirectly.

Somehow, I believe the stigma associated with alcoholism was not greatly dissipated by the efforts of Betty Ford and others. Somehow I believe that irrational stigma has triggered other "specters" in the minds of otherwise well-meaning and responsible city officials. One fear they have expressed is that of possible treatment of non-residents at the facility. Anyone who is knowledgeable of the magnitude of our substance abuse problem in our school system would attest to the fact that our residents could keep this facility too busy to serve non-residents. However, as a voter and taxpayer, I am not concerned if some non-residents

Mainstream Republicans have spoken To the Editor:

Regarding your editorial comment Sept. 15 on the issue of the litmus test for candidates, regarding abortion and homosexual rights etc., and the reference that the votes at the Republican State Convention on the ban on Medicaid funding was not representative of mainstream Republicans is misrepresentation and untrue.

Mainstream Republicans have spoken on the national and the state level. They do not want to pay for abortions and the state convention revealed this by a 5 1/2 to 1 ratio. How more mainstream can that vote be? A vote by 1,732 delegates with 1,464 or 85 percent saying "yes" to a ban on tax funding of abortions is a clear message.

Secondly, your article pushes to paint the people who stand up and ask candidates about their position regarding abortion and homosexuality as troublemakers.

I say thank you to those people. They have every right to ask and to know where trustees or other candidates stand on these issues.

Every parent/taxpayer should have the right to know where an individual

Once again, the administration of Grosse Pointe Woods has turned a cold shoulder and demonstrated utter disregard to its most precious natural resource --no, not elm trees, but children.

In the wake of the great home-based child care issue, where the needs of working parents and their children were so flagrantly ignored, this austere group of city council members has pompously rejected the request for a drug counseling center for vouths, to be developed on the CHD campus.

From these actions, one can only assume that their misguided thought patterns must be that the community holds no responsibility for preschool child care arrangements nor any responsibility for youths who may develop drug dependency. In fact, that covers two issues affecting children from birth through age 18. One cannot help but wonder exactly what amount of responsibility the Grosse Pointe Woods' Council is willing to assume for its children. Quality child care and drug abuse are undoubtedly THE two major issues facing parents in the 1980's.

For our city council to bury its collective head in the sand and adopt the Pollyanna attitude of "not in our city" demonstrates a pathetic, narrow-minded outlook, that is not only disappointing, but downright frightening.

I, for one, will be cognizant of these issues, and the city council's stance at election time, Mr. Freeman, Mr. Novitke, Ms. Rice and Mr. Fahrner.

One morning our search for breakfast and anything that was open in the wee hours took us tar off the main road and we ended up at a place called the Longhorn Cafe. There was a set of monstrously wide horns over the counter and pictures of Longhorn cattle on the walls.

We found out that the owners - he cooked and she waited on tables - owned a spread and raised Longhorns. They only look mean, she assured us, they're really great big old babies. She talked at length about her babies and the drought and anything else she could think of. We ordered bacon and eggs, and as a bonus, got a couple of huge homemade bisquits and a generous bowl of gravy each. It was one of those places where you would offend the cook if you didn't eat everything, so we did. Then we waddled out, our ears as full as our stomaches. I would go back.

Early one morning driving in the desert, we watched a van coming in the opposite direction go off the road, become airborne and then roll over in the sandy median strip. The driver had ap parently fallen asleep.

By the time we pulled over to the side and started running back to the scene, three truckers on the other side had stopped their rigs and were already there. I don't know where they came from - I swear the road was empty - but I was glad to see them.

Truck drivers lately have not had the best image, but we encountered some good ones on the road who would signal us when it was OK to pass and signal us to get back in the right lane. Just like the old days.

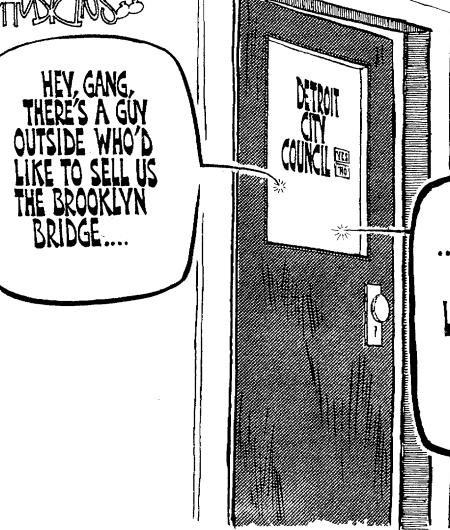

The only thing I didn't miss on the trip was the old motels, those basic, no-nonsense, onestory buildings. I like all the luxury I can get nowadays.

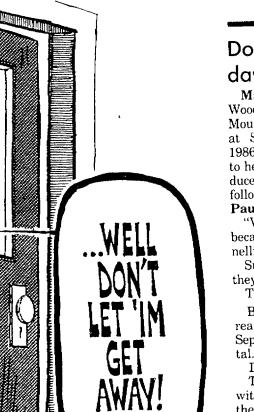

It was a great trip. We had forgotten the lure of the open road and that half the fun in arriving someplace is the getting there. And our luggage didn't get lost once.

The New York Times reported oppression in the South African judicial system. An ex-convict was put on trial for complaining about prison conditions. He was charged with giving a false impression when he said he had been tortured with electric shocks.

The man, an illiterate tribesman from Mozambique, who had come to South Africa to work in the gold mines, changed his testimony when he got on the stand. Over the objections of defense counsel, the defendant said he had lied about the torture. Other prisoners were brought in to state that they had never heard of anyone being tortured in Cinderella Prison.

Renovations of the Fox are nearing completion

The renovations of the Fox Theatre will cost some $7 million before the job is completed.

> Photos by Rob Fulton Text by Ronald J. Bernas

The Fox is back, and with a vengeance. The mammoth theater, a Detroit landmark since its construction began in 1927, through the hard days of the Depression and World War II, and the '50s and the '60s when Elvis rocked the rafters. Even in the '70s and '80s when exploitation movies and new wave rock played the fading splendor of the theater, there was never a time when Detroiters didn't know about the Fox.

Today, after $7 million worth of renovations paid for by Olympia Arenas, Inc., a facility management company headed by Michael Ilitch which currently operates the Joe Louis Arena and Cobo Arena, the Fox begins life anew Nov. 19 with its grandeur restored to original form.

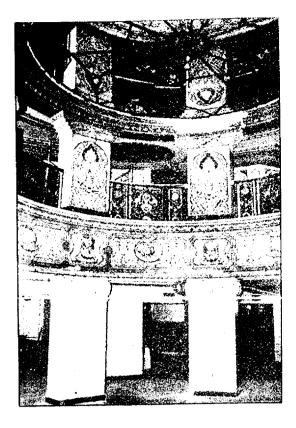

Opening that night will be a film on the history and renovation of the theater by Detroit's own Oscar winners Sue Marx and Pamela Conn. All proceeds will be donated to "Light Up Detroit," a program designed for the permanent illumination of historic and public sites in the downtown area.

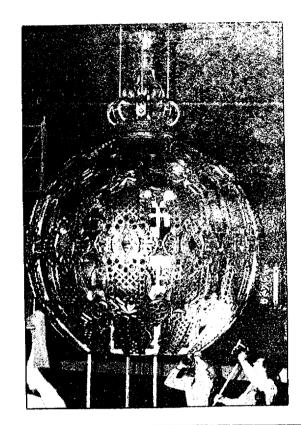

After the opening, the Fox will attract the great talent for which it is known. The trio of Frank, Liza and Sammy - last names aren't necessary - Stevie Wonder (who started his career by winning a talent contest at the Fox), John Denver and Kenny Rogers, to name a few.

A theater series is also being developed, headlined by the recent Tony winner "Into the Woods."

The Fox is back, this time to stay.

Painstakingly redone, the elegantly carved interior will evoke the original grandeur, upper right. At right, the two-ton chandelier, 13 feet in diameter, is made of gilded pot metal and art glass, and holds 210 lightbulbs and more than 2,000 pieces of stained glass.

Schools PSAT scheduled

The Preliminary Scholasic Ap titude Test (PSAT) will be administered at Grosse Pointe South High School at 8:15 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 15, according to Russell P. Luttinen, assistant principal for student services.

The 100 minute test also serves as the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying test and is offered at South only once each year. The test should end by 10:45 a.m.

All South juniors who are considering attending college are urged to take the test which serves to prepare students for the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) and is usually taken by college-bound juniors in the spring of the year.

"South sophomores with a 3.25 or higher grade point average, and who are considering the highly selective colleges, are also encouraged to take the PSAT for extra practice," said Luttinen.

Registration will begin Monday, Oct. 3. The test fee is $7.50 per student. South students may register for the test in the Counseling Center Records Room before school, during lunch and after school from Oct. 3 through Oct. 13.

Richard Alexander, Grosse Pointe South counselor, is the PSAT test coordinator at South. Questions about the PSAT may be directed to Alexander at 343-2130.

Comerica announces an Adjustable Rate Mortgage so adjustable, it can even become unadjustable.

If you can't decide whether to get an adjustable or fixed-rate mortgage, come to Comerica. We'll give you five years to decide.

Because with our new convertible Adjustable Rate Mortgage (ARM), you can enjoy the flexibility of adjustable rates with the ability to convert to a fixed rate in the future.

In fact, we'll even give you a choice when you want to convert. You can choose our popular One Year ARM and convert any month between your 13th and 60th payment. Or, you may prefer our new 3/1 ARM where the loan rate is held constant for the first three years, then adjusts annually like our One Year ARM.

Our 3, 1 ARM may be converted on the loan's third, fourth, or fifth year anniversary.

You can even choose the term of your loan from 10 to 30 years in 5 year increments.

You'll also get the security of knowing that our ARMs have a 2% annual cap and a 6% life of loan cap. It's that simple. And it's just part of the lending spirit we've got at Comerica.

Call 884-5774 for more information and the name of the Comerica Mortgage Repre sentative near you. Or stop in soon to find out more about our convertible ARMs. It will be the easiest thing to adjust to in your new home.

September 29, 1988 Grosse Pointe News News Kindertalk: 'Genuine little miracle' helps kids Image: she said.

Staff Writer

Seven pairs of young ears cock zled faces ponder the strange sounds. Then hands fly up.

"I hear a pig," a child announces, with a little help from the teacher.

- "I hear a toilet."
- "Flushing," she prompts.
- "I hear a toilet flushing."

The kids don't have any trouble hearing; the difficulty comes in articulating their understand-their speech.

The Kindertalk program in toward the tape recorder. Puz- the Grosse Pointe schools is one of those elegantly simple solutions that people wonder why they didn't think of sooner.

It was instituted three years ago to serve children with language deficits. Other school systems don't have it; research and development director Roger Mc-Caig calls it "a genuine little miracle.'

Sometimes the first weeks of school can be stressful. Anne Speicher-Basco comforts a momentarily unhappy child.

Students, both named Billy, concentrate on the lesson.

ready for kindergarten," he said. Schools have come up with Prekindergarten and Begindergarten and Head Start, but not everyone was satisfied.

"The reason it continues to be controversial is that there's a high misplacement ratio," said McCaig. "Even if the tests were totally accurate - which they're not - they can't predict where a student will be (in a couple of years). We can't tell the difference between true slow learners and slow starters.

The risk isn't that a special ed child will be placed too high; the disaster is placing someone too low. That's damaging.'

As the schools belabored the problem, a new approach dawned on them. They decided to take all the five-year-olds with language problems and put them together in a class with standard kindergarten content and special emphasis on language development.

Under the old approach, such a child would have been in a regular class and been pulled out for two half-hour sessions weekly with a speech therapist. Now, a language therapist with an early childhood development background is the main teacher.

It seems to be working.

All four-year-olds entering the Grosse Pointe schools take a screening test. It isn't mandatory, but McCaig said 99 percent of parents avail themselves of the service. The test identifies half between those who were slow starters and those who need extra attention. Forty to 45 percent have gone directly into first grade. Thirty to 35 percent move to regular kindergarten with sessions of speech therapy. About 20-25 percent need special education classes.

"It's a whole constellation of 'each case is different,'" McCaig said. "It's kind of like three rooms in one, but you don't know who's who."

The point is that the extra year of attention to speech problems enables school officials to sort them out more accurately.

A typical day in Anne Speicher-Basco's classes will find students listening to her read --articulating v-e-r-y c-l-e-a-r-l-y. They will listen to tapes and explain what they've heard. The children are introduced to a letter, which they work on for several days in a variety of ways.

Last week they built little airplanes as they studied 'A'. With 'B', they will blow up balloons, make butter, bake biscuits and talk about it.

"When anybody has trouble saying anything, we stop and the whole class practices it," Speicher-Basco said.

The seven who are in the class now will most likely be joined by others as the school year wears on, she said. Most will come from regular kindergarten classes. "As the dust settles, the teachers begin to see students' problems." she said. And now they have a way to deal with them.

12A News Grosse Woods puts historical documents in order

By John Minnis Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe Woods Historical Commission is working hard to get the city's roots documented.

The city has some 700 photographs of various scenes of the past, as well as other documents, and the commission decided it was time to get the materials organized and protected for the benefit of future generations.

To assist in the time-consuming, neck-aching chore of cataloging all the pictures and documents, the commission sought the excellent assistance of archivist Jean Dodenhoff, curator for the Grosse Pointe Historical Society

Dodenhoff has a string of accomplishments and experience. She has a master's degree in art history from Wayne State University, and she recently obtained her archival certificate from Wayne State. She is well known in the community through her work with the historical society.

In order to protect the Woods Historical Commission's colleccorrect archival procedures to use. Her guidelines include:

shine, fluorescent lights, moisture, heat, fumes/air pollution, insects and foods and beverages. • Handle items carefully with clean, dry hands. Never touch the photograph image itself.

 Keep items protected at all times either by Mylar or acidfree folders. Brown paper and cardboard are not acceptable wrapping materials.

 Always keep items on a clean, flat surface. Store items on steel shelving, never wood.

 Never mark photos in any way. Tape, glue, paper clips and other fasteners must never be used.

• Do not attempt to clean, dust, mend, retouch or otherwise alter an item.

Dodenhoff also made forms for the proper documentation of donated items and proving the commission's ownership. She said failure to get proper title for items could lead to a lawsuit over ownership in the future.

She suggested the commission establish rules for researchers who are using the files and to document the researchers' activition, Dodenhoff spelled out the ties. She also said all requests for publication of the commission's materials should be sub-• Keep items away from sun- ject to approval by the commission.

Some of the more interesting items in the Woods' collection are several photographs taken of storefronts along Mack Avenue in 1956-57. Dodenhoff said she wasn't sure why the photographs were take or by whom.

In January 1927 the Village of Lochmoor was incorporated. The village's first president was Edmund C. Vernier. In 1939 the Village of Lochmoor became the Village of Grosse Pointe Woods. Alois A. Ghesquiere was elected president, and he held that office until the Woods became a city in 1950

A chronology of Woods history can be obtained at City Hall free of charge. The chronology was written in 1987 as a sesquicentennial project. The chief writer of the chronology was John Hammel, current commission secretary.

Dodenhoff, however, said the entire commission deserves credit for bringing the city's collection together and putting in hours of volunteer work. She said commission members get little recognition for what they do.

Future residents and Woods historians, however, will definitely appreciate all the hard work.

Woods man deals in wheels

Woods resident Ron Marlow is proud of his collection of wagons and buggies, which includes 22 in all.

This McCormick wagon was used in Indiana around the turn of the century and weighed a ton.

Grosse Pointe Woods resident Ron Marlow has a well-rounded hobby: collecting anything with wheels.

He and his wife, Shirley, began collecting antique wagons and buggies in 1980, and they now have an assortment of rolling stock numbering 22 pieces set out as show pieces on the spacious grounds of their Vernier Road home.

Why wagons?

"I'm fascinated with wheels," he says. "Anything with wheels fascinates me."

His fascination with good wheels, which he calls "running gear," has nothing to do with his employment as purchasing agent for an electrical company. He merely does it for fun and, he hopes, an investment.

His oldest piece is an 1887 Studebaker one-horse buggy. He even has a horse harnessed to the buggy. While the horse is made of wood, it does look real enough for motorists on Vernier to do a double take. The wooden horse was once used by a harness manufacturer the same way a dressmaker uses a form.

Another buggy is the original article advertised in the 1897 Sears catalog for $29.95.

Other wagons in his collection include an International Harvester wagon with old Vernor's barrels inside; a 1909 fire-hose cart; a hand-pulled fruit cart; a seedbroadcasting wagon; an old Amish buggy; a 1920 three-seat surrey; an oak bobsled weighing one ton; a McCormick irrigation wagon with a single-piston, cast iron engine; and a wind generator used in remote areas to keep electric fences charged.

Having raised five children, the Marlows have one daughter still at home, Gail, who is sophomore at Grosse Pointe North High School.

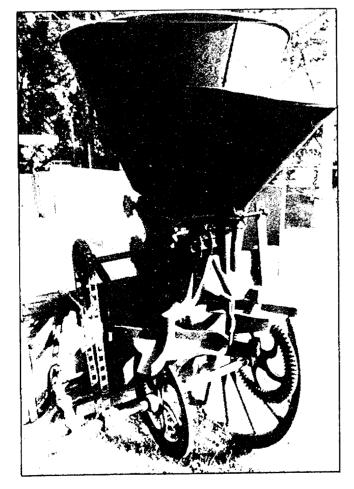

The Marlow family has been very active in North activities for years. At this time of year, the family's Vernier home is the after-school home for many North students as they work on their homecoming float.

Last year, Gail and her classmates built the freshman float at her home. Her father said all of his children were involved with float-building and his youngest daughter is keeping the tradition.

Mr. and Mrs. Marlow are also active in antique collecting of all kinds, such as china and silverware, and they regularly attend shows throughout the Midwest.

Many times, however, they can be seen heading out in their motor home pulling a custom-made trailer built for safely trans-

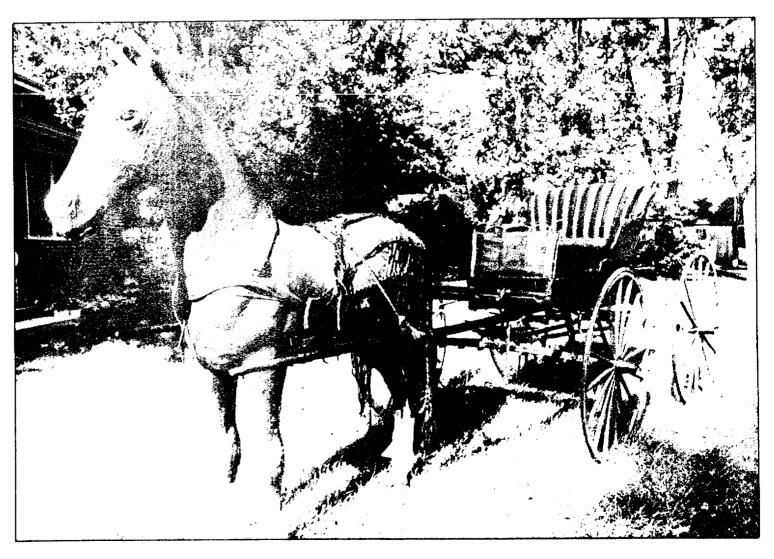

Some unknown wagon builder made this miniature milk wagon for a child's toy.

Seeding hay and grains was performed by a mechanism on the back of a wagon called a broadcaster. Seed was dumped into the funnel-shaped hoppers and was thrown or "broadcast" several feet. The entire setup was wheeldriven.

This is an actual Amish buggy made of wood. It has sliding doors and a convertible top. Notice the lights that were added to accommodate modern transportation regulations. porting antique wagons. Once again they're in search of a wheels deal.

Do you remember

Do you remember when taking a sip of beer or wine made you an outlaw? When Prohibition agents were smashing kegs of liquor on the streets? When many citizens of this neighborhood were earning pocket money smuggling liquor across the border from Canada? Bootlegging was an everyday fact of life for many ordinary Americans.

The American Constitution prohibited all alcohol from 1920 to 1933, and a team of PBS filmmakers will soon be coming to this area to talk to men and women who remember the Prohibition era first-hand.

"Daily-life in Michigan was turned upside down," said Tom Lennon, producer. "There was probably no part of America affected as deeply as the strip of Michigan towns bordering on Canada.⁴

"We went to talk to people whose lives were affected, in whatever way," his collaborator, Steve Ruggi, said. "Whether they were policemen, or working in the smuggling trade, or workers whose drinking habits were investigated. Everybody has some story to tell.'

Amazing as it may sound, the trade in drink became Detroit's second largest enterprise after the automobile industry. Thousands were employed in the brewing, distilling, smuggling and retailing of illegal booze. And that's not counting those embattled agents who were charged with the difficult task of preventing all of the above activities.

"We've already stumbled across amazing stories, with some eerie echoes of the present day." Lennon said. "Did you know that parents back then mobilized a public campaign to reach schoolchildren, to persuade them not to drink. It was the version of a 'Just Say No' campaign. The problem is, how do you find the senior citizens today, those who remember such campaigns as they happened?

To facilitate their search, the PBS team has set up a toll-free number (1-800-447-1255) where anyone with interesting personal stories about Michigan in the Prohibition era can call them.

Park residents, businessmen grab suspects

Grosse Pointe Park businessmen and residents captured suspects in the act of committing crimes in two separate incidents and held them for police, Park Public Safety reported Monday.

One incident occurred Sept. 21 at 10:22 p.m. when a man parked his car on Wayburn north of Kercheval to patronize a local business. When he returned a few minutes later, he found a would-be thief taking the AM/ FM cassette player from the dashboard of his car.

With the help of the business owner and friends, the car's owner was able to detain the suspect until police arrived.

The other incident occurred Sept. 17 at 5:49 p.m. in the 15300 block of Kercheval when a 14-year-old girl was approached by a suspect who grabbed her bicycle and tried to take it away.

The girl hung on and the suspect pounded her in the face and shoulder with a fist. Businessmen and residents saw the altercation and went to the girl's assistance. They held the suspect until police arrived.

at Grosse Pointe South High School. He also has a 9-year-old daughter, Emily, who attends Defer Elementary School. His wife, Peggy, works at Yorkshire Food Market.

He participates as a father in youth hockey with his son, and his daughter is in the youth theater.

Hoglund says he is "very enthused" with the Grosse Pointe school system, which is one of the reasons he sought to live in the Pointes when he was sent to Detroit.

Concerning the Park, he says, "I enjoy it. I like the character of Grosse Pointe Park. It's a comfortable. at-ease community."

Hoglund says he'd like to stay in Detroit with the Customs Service. "Detroit's a major league city," he says, and there's nothing else he'd rather do for a living.

Incidentally, he pointed out, the Customs Service is preparing to celebrate its 200th anniversary in 1989. In preparation of the anniversary, Hoglund said the Customs Service is rededicating the historic customs house in Port Huron, and ceremonies will be at Port Huron's McMorran Place Oct. 6.

The Port Huron festivities will be attended by many of Michigan's top political and law enforcement leaders. Also, the Customs Service's "Blue Thunder" pursuit boat will be on display at McMorran auditorium.

Hoglund understands many people for no good reason are nervous when crossing the border into Canada. His advice: "Declare everything" and don't worry, the uniformed customs officers are just trying to politely do their jobs.

Park's new city manager discusses challenges

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

Dale Krajniak, former Park comptroller and acting city manager, was appointed city manager by the council on Sept. 12. Krajniak, 30, said he is looking forward to the challenges the new position offers, and he anticipates good things for the city.

A graduate of Walsh College of Business Administration, he spent five years as a public accountant. He started his career in public service in Harbor Springs as city clerk/comptroller. In 1986 he accepted the position of comptroller for the Park. After City Manager John Crawford resigned in March, Krajniak served as acting city manager.

He was appointed unanimously by council members, who praised him roundly for his initiative and dedication during his time as acting city manager, and they said they had received advice from many residents suggesting they appoint Krajniak.

"I'm really pleased," Krajniak said. "I appreciate the council's confidence in me."

At the meeting during which he was appointed, he told the council he believed together they could meet the challenges facing (TIFA) will be aimed at those the Park.

"Much of this job is to recognize both the short-term and the long-term goals of the city and making sure the human and the financial resources are available to reach those goals," Krajniak said.

The short-term goals are those defined by the city council during the budgeting process, Krajniak said. This year they include the usual street resurfacing, ministration and council, are based on the Master Plan for the "Typically the main theme is to protect the residential nature of the city," he said.

The city's principal concern is to keep the quality of housing

"The residents have a lot of pride in their community,' Krajniak said, and it is up to the city to keep that pride high by encouraging, and at times requiring, property owners to keep their buildings maintained.

Krajniak sees the current city council as a cohesive unit, each individual working toward the best interests of the city. "When they act as a group, we can all accomplish a lot more. The number of activities we're undertaking shows that (dedication)," he said.

The future holds good things for the Park, Krajniak said, much of which includes the rejuvenation of the downtown Jefferson Avenue business district, and dealing with the lack of parking in the area. The work of the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) and the Tax Increment Financing Authority problems.

'We should be looking farther ahead and planning to make sure we have the resources," he said.

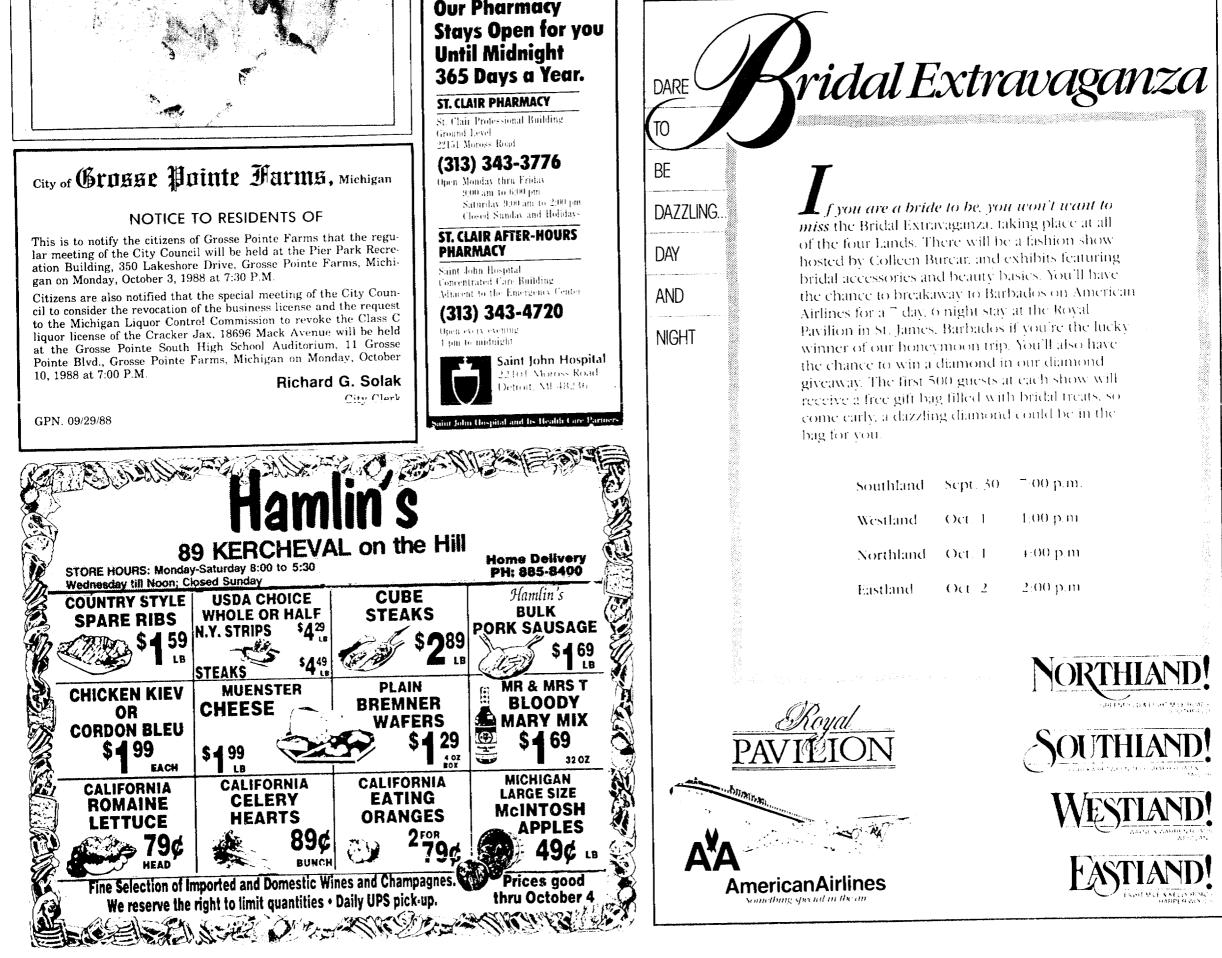

"This job is so diverse," Krajniak said. He has his hand in union negotiations, construction projects, resurfacing, citizen complaints and any other concern within the confines of the city.

"But that's what's nice about it." he said. "I'm a people-ori-

And, of course, to argue about them.

Let's try a list of the 10 most important cars ever put into production, the cars that have had the most influence on the industry and represented important new developments. Here is my list. If you disagree or have other nominees, let me know and we'll give you equal time.

1. 1886 Benz – This was the car that started it all, the first to go into commercial production. Karl Benz beat out fellow German Gottlieb Daimler by just a few months. Their firms merged in 1926 to form Daimler-Benz, which builds the Mercedes-Benz.

Where did the Mercedes name come from? Emil Jellinek was a businessman and Austro-Hungarian vice-consul in Nice, France, when he joined the Daimler board of directors in 1900. He urged that the firm build a car that was longer, lower and faster. He said he would buy the first 36 produced and sell them in France if Daimler would name the car after Jel-

2. 1904 Buick – William Durnoisy and smelly, he said, and they frightened animals - until be drove a car built in 1904 by David Dunbar Buick.

The car's overhead-valve engine was very advanced and Durant liked it so much, he took over the Buick Motor Co. and used it as a basis to build General Motors.

3. 1908 Ford Model T - Thissimple, sturdy indestructible machine was Henry Ford's masterpiece that put America and the world on wheels. Priced at $850, the beloved "Tin Lizzie" made Henry Ford the world's leading industrialist and a folk hero.

More than 15 million Model Ts were built during its 19-year production run with only minor changes. In some years, the Model T accounted for more than half the cars built in the United States. Ford cut the price of the Model T to as low as $265 in mid-1923.

4. 1912 Cadillac – After a friend died in 1910 after he was injured when a car backfired while he was cranking it, Henry Leland, head of Cadillac Division of General Motors, ordered his engineers to come up with a selfstarter.

Richard Wright

Charles F. Kettering adapted a high-torque electric motor he had designed to open cash register drawers to start an automobile engine. He integrated it with a completely new ignition and electrical system using a battery and generator to recharge it and incorporating electric headlamps to replace the acetylene lamps then in use. The self-starter opened motoring to a vastly wider public.

5. 1924 Chrysler - In his efforts to save Maxwell from financial collapse, Walter P. Chrysler built a car powered by a highercompression engine than was then common and incorporating a number of other advanced features, such as four-wheel contracting hydraulic brakes.

He took the car, on which he had put his own name, to the New York Auto Show but was it was not in production yet. But he interested some investigators, got the financing he needed and Chrysler Corp. was born just a couple years after this automotive genius had left GM where he had headed Buick.

6. 1927 Cadillac LaSalle -This car is important not for its technical innovations, but because it was styled by Harley Earl, the first car to be designed as an integrated whole by a stylist.

The flamboyant Earl had been a custom car stylist in Hollywood when GM President Alfred P. Sloan brought him to Detroit. jodhpurs and all, to make the corporation's cars look better.

7. 1932 Ford Henry Ford broke more new ground in 1932 when he replaced the Model T with the first low-priced car to be powered by a V-8 engine. His engineers told him he could not cast the V-8 blocks the way he wanted, but he said they could and they finally did. More than 20 years would pass before Plymouth and Chevrolet, the rest of the "low-priced three" would get V-8 engines.

8. 1934 Chrysler - The revolutionary Chrysler Airflow featured unitized body construction, headlights flush-mounted in the fenders and optional automatic overdrive. The aerodynamic body was not a sales success, however, and car makers consciously avoided that shape for a couple decades, most of all Chrysler, which went to very conservative styling.

9. 1938 Volkswagen - In 1934, Nazi Dictator Adolph Hitler ordered the brilliant auto designer Ferdinand Porsche to develop a "people's car," or "Volkswagen." The first prototypes were completed in 1936, about 30 more were built in 1937 and when production began in 1938, the car that emerged would be immediately recognized as what became affectionately known in the United States as the "Beetle."

The Beetle became the most popular car ever built, with more than 20 million sales.

10. 1960 Austin Mini - Designed by Alec Issigonis, the Austin Mini and its sister, the Morris Mini-Minor, defined the modern econobox: transversely mounted four cylinder engine in front, front-wheel drive, fourspeed transmission and independent suspension on all four wheels.

20A Buind Brosse Po Youthful partners find their business entertaining

By Pat Paholsky Editor

The name of their business is STC and their business is entertainment. In less than a year, these three Grosse Pointe South seniors have managed to pay off some $3,500 worth of equipment by playing music at local dances and other events.

names - Steve Gmeiner, Tim blending, fading or substituting Golobic and Chris Marshall. It also stands for Sonic Technology Concert.

And, one of the young entrepreneurs said, the sound of STC 'flows together like ecstasy.'

They are disc jockeys, a form of entertainment that evolved in answer to the higher cost of a live band. And they are clearly on a roll, with bookings through next summer.

The seeds of their business were planted at Star of the Sea dances where Golobic and Marshall said they "heard some of the lamest DJs and we said we could do this and we could do it better."

Then the two went to a dance at St. Paul's in November 1986 which was a flop due to a low turnout. The evening was not a wasted, however, since Golobic and Marshall said they spent most of the night talking to the seeds germinated.

Gmeiner, a third lifelong friend whose father is in the electrical supply business, said he went to Radio Shack and bought a mixing board "where all the components come into one. That's the whole key behind the DJ's continuous music." A STC is taken from their first mixer is an electronic device for sounds from various sources.

"From there, things started to roll," Gmeiner said.

They experimented with different things, like a junk radio and a stereo, and they added and replaced parts. Most of the equipment was custom made by Gmeiner, who built the entire lighting system.

'We would try things until we got the system we got now," Gmeiner said.

Through the classifieds of the Grosse Pointe News, they bought a receiver, speakers, a tape deck and turntable. The speakers had to be rebuilt and in time, they replaced the receiver with a new amplifier.

Now their equipment includes a professional mixer, two 15-inch JBL speakers that handle 250 watts each, automated lights, 16 colored floodlights, a mirror ball, two DJs who were brothers. The revolving lights, a strobe light and an eight-channel Yamaha power board.

They also have 55 compact discs - about $850 worth - and about 120 45s.

The one thing they would like to add to their inventory are "real police lights. We're looking for something unique," Gmeiner said.

Their first paying job was in August 1987 when they were hired to play at a dance at St. Paul's.

"Six or seven people showed up and it was a big flop," Golobic said.

Then friends of Gmeiner's parents heard they were in the business and hired them to play at a house wedding.

"That was our first big success," Gmeiner said. That was September 1987.

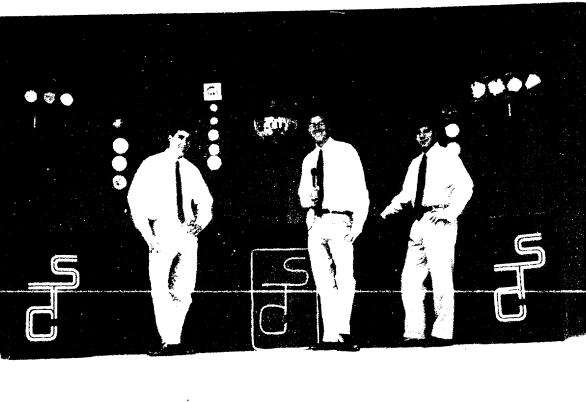

Since then they've played at Notre Dame High School, University of Detroit High School, the War Memorial, at swim meet dances at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, at Lochmoor, at a 30th birthday party, University Liggett School, the Detroit Yacht Club, Bayview and Grosse Pointe South High.

At one of their recent bookings at the War Memorial, Gmeiner controlled the lights, Golobic was on the microphone working the audience and Marshall played the music. The three rotate jobs. Gmeiner said it's possible for one or two people to do everything, "but it's nice to have a third person."

The longest they ever played was a six-hour party for Wolverine Rubber Co. They play what the crowd wants and generally play a lot of '50s, '60s and top '80s music, Golobic said.

Their fee ranges from $200 to $300 for three hours and up to now, most of the money has been put back into the business.

It takes them about an hour to set up and about 30 minutes to tear down. The equipment fills a they're reasonably supportive van and the other two partners have to drive a car to their gig.

Golobic said their biggest drawback is their youth. "The misconception is we're a couple of guys with a jam box popping tapes.'

That has worked to their advantage, however. Gmeiner aid, "We get up on the stage and they see high school kids and they're not expecting a performance. And when the night is over, they're really surprised."

floor. Most of their referrals are by word of mouth.

"We have never disappointed anybody," Gmeiner said. Golobic added, "One nun said we were the best she's seen and a nun can't lie." Gmeiner's parents, Skip and Linda, supported him from the beginning. "My dad is really supportive and he just got us another job."

Golobic's parents, Richard and Mariann, "weren't too crazy about it at the beginning, but now," he said.

Jane and Roger Marshall were also skeptical. "In the beginning my mom thought I was putting a lot of money. into equipment, and now when I see more equipment, she says to go for it."

All three have known each other since they were infants. The future gives them pause. "It's difficult," Gmeiner said. "We're really just starting to roll and people are interested in us." They all plan to go to college, The trio works hard to please however. Marshall said he will the audience and pack the dance study the production end of radio and TV broadcasting.

Gmeiner said he too will study TV production. He has just been hired to do taping for the TV production teacher at South.

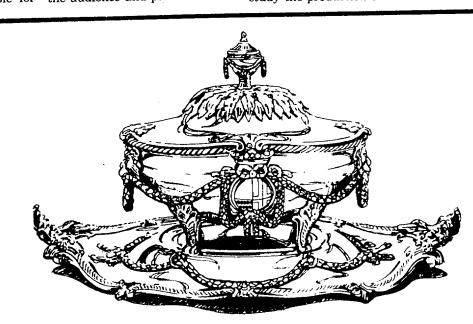

Golobic said he plans to study business management. The future of the business depends, he said, "on where we go to school."

Marnie Hall: Co-op student expands skills

By Pat Paholsky Editor

Seventeen-year-old Marnie Hall is small and slight, and looks like she'd get swept away by a strong gust of wind, but in her case, appearances are deceiving. She's a determined, hardworking co-op student who's been with the Grosse Pointe News since March.

Hall, a senior at Grosse Pointe South, hops in her green Ford Escort after classes and puts in 20 hours a week at the newspaper. Over the summer, she held a second job working at a restaurant. Before that, she worked at a fast food restaurant.

It's no wonder she answers. when asked, that she doesn't have much time for anything else.

Hall and her family moved to Grosse Pointe Park from the west side of Detroit a week before she entered the ninth grade. She's an only child, but not for long – her mother is expecting and Hall said she hopes it's a girl

New director looks forward to leading NEGC into future

By Peggy O'Connor Andrzejczyk Assistant Editor/Feature Editor

fter two months on the job, Northeast Guidance Center executive director David N. Walker, Ph.D., is pretty well settled in his new surroundings. He's also still brimming with first-day enthusiasm about the challenges which lie ahead.

"I love it here. I've always been involved in the human services field and I like to work with helping people. I've always worked in places where I've felt good about the organization, the staff, the community. I feel that here," Walker said in an interview last week.

"I have a particularly good feeling about this job. I've always said to myself that I knew what I would do if I was in a director's position, where I could make a difference. I have that chance here."

Walker brings to the position a strong background in administration and clinical services. His undergraduate degree is from Albion College, where he majored in psychology and history and earned Phi Beta Kappa. He received a Ph.D. in clinical psychology from the University of Connecticut in 1970.

His duties as executive director include the ultimate responsibility for the services NEGC provides. Monitoring the agency's fiscal health, its staffing, and serving as a spokesman for the organization are other major tasks Walker will assume as head of the 25-year-old community mental health organization. NEGC serves the mental health needs of northeastern Detroit, Harper Woods and the Grosse Pointes.

It is a community with widely divergent social and economic conditions. Just as varied are the emotional, physical and psychological problems of the area's residents.

"That was one reason I was interested in coming to the area: the unique population and the challenges it poses."

Assessing the needs of that community is Walker's primary concern as he heads the NEGC into its next 25 years.

"I think that that is the one thing I have accomplished so far. That we have a clear articulation of our expectations. That we know how to evaluate where we want to go, how to assess whether the community is or isn't getting what it needs from a mental health agency and how we can measure if we are meeting those needs," Walker explained.

His immediate challenge lies in assessing what NEGC does best and what the community needs — and how to make them match. "We have to see what the community needs now and try to assess what it will need in five years. Then we have to see if we can begin to approach meeting those needs now and in five years. Then we have to look at how to fund that effort.

"It's not a typical approach, but it is an ideal one. We haven't really been doing that here. It's been a more year-to-year effort. We can't be effective as a service provider if we look at the funding first. Here the community's needs must come first," Walker said. Pressing needs in the economically-depressed area which is part of the NEGC community include a high rate of infant mortality; a higher rate of substance abuse and its fallout; the issues of children born with AIDS and of state hospital residents leaving those facilities and returning to the community.

Then there's the family and how it has changed in the 1980s.

"Families have changed dramatically and not just in this community but throughout the country. Well less than one-half of American families fit the mold of the socalled traditional family. In human services, we have struggled with the changes in how we must treat these new families," Walker said.

"One thing we've done is to improve our outreach and work within the family struc-

He comes to the agency after three years as assistance director of the Northwestern Guidance Center in Garden City and six years as deputy director of programs at Children's Center in Detroit. ture rather than in a traditional office setting. Another is to work on permanency, getting away from laying blame and instead finding a way to help the family stay together. And for us to help provide the resources to help them do that."

One approach Walker wants the NEGC to take is to work in tandem with other community service organizations. He said he sees that as a more viable answer to the multiple problems facing today's communities. "We need to see who — if anyone — is working on these problems. Our role then is to help, or to see how we can fit in with the resource already at work."

He praised what he called a capable NEGC staff and fundraising network, particularly, the Assistance League to the Northeast Guidance Center.

"It's always hard to get the appropriate amount of funding. But it is possible, if you take a look at resources like the Department of Social Services, the corrections systems, etc., as well as third party private funding and the monies from private and corporate interests and fundraising.

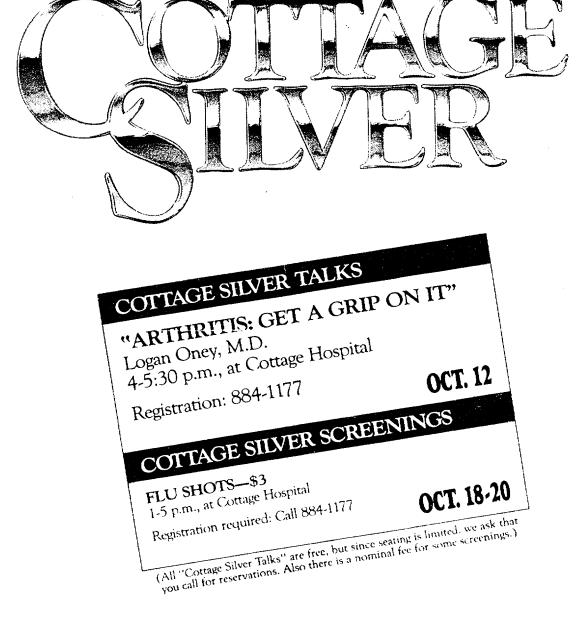

"I remember how covetous a colleague of mine at Children's Services was of the Assistance League to the NEGC. It's a wonderful resource and a terrific way to provide funding and volunteers and of course, visibility for the human services of our agency," Walker said.

Walker characterizes himself as a positive person, eager to get to know members of the community as a way for him to tune into their needs.

"I also have a real strong commitment to prevention and helping people to avoid problems. All of us have those periods when things don't go as we like. So we need to develop skills to work through those periods, or to learn to develop the kind of environment where we are less exposed to those kinds of problems," Walker said. To that end, NEGC emphasizes the im-

To that end, NEGC emphasizes the importance of improving self-esteem and of helping people learn to expose themselves to things which assist them in that effort.

FALL OPEN HOUSE

Friday, September 30

3:00-7:00 p.m.

'Tis the season for PPHoliday Mart Halloween is still a month of place, really. We've got 10 or away, but the Planned Parent- 11 tables all set up - with hood League's annual Holiday Mart is just around the corner. The 1988 Holiday Mart is a special one, too, because it marks the 30th birthday of the Planned Parenthood League.

This year's mart is scheduled for Friday through Sunday, Oct. 14 through 16, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

There's also a preview party for patrons planned for Thursday, Oct. 13, from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m., when guests can wander through the holiday-decked halls of the War Memorial, dining on oysters and champagne as they do some early shopping.

The Holiday Mart will be open to the public on Oct 14 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; on Oct. 15 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Oct. 16 from noon to 5 p.m. General admission is $3.50 at the door, or $2.50 in advance. Lunch will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. daily.

The Holiday Mart is a gathering of 30 specialty shops from across the nation which offer a variety of distinctive items for purchase by mart visitors. Handmade clothing, handcrafted toys, jewelry and unusual holiday ornaments and decorations are just a few examples of the merchandise which will be for sale.

Shop Committee co-chairmen are Daryl Weil and Sheila Damm. Weil says that many of the shops are new to the Holiday Mart this year, which should make for an exciting mix of merchandise.

One of the new additions is The Dining Room Shop of La Jolla, Calif., owned by former Grosse Pointers Joan Fisher and Judy Smith. The pair started their unusual business about a year ago, after deciding that they wanted to do something which would combine a love for decorating and entertaining with a retail business.

"Judy is well-known in Grosse Pointe for her artistry in setting a beautiful table. And we love to shop," Fisher says.

"So we set up The Dining Room Shop. It's a different kind everything from china to glassware to linens - just as you'd have them at home."

The two have made buying trips to Europe, South America, Mexico, the Far East and India in search of unusual and one-ofa-kind pieces.

"We're excited about being part of the mart," Fisher says. 'We all worked there as Grosse Pointers and can remember the mart 'back when.' It'll be lots of fun."

The range of merchandise at the Holiday Mart includes elegant linens and lingerie from Kassatly's to custom stationery from The Paper Peddler, to the custom-designed hats of throughly modern milliner Tracey Tooker of New York.

According to co-chairman Weil, there's a unique one-stop shopping service available at the Holiday Mart.

"Guests may select gifts, have them wrapped, packaged and shipped with a 'Do Not Open 'Til Christmas' label right there at the War Memorial done by Mail Boxes of Grosse Pointe.

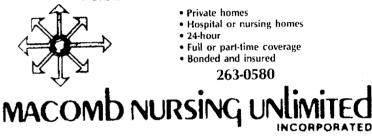

Rounding out the merchandise offerings are traditional holiday fare such as personalized decorations, toys from The Rocking Horse Company, a classical collection of calfskin bags from Toscanna, and antique pine furniture and accessories from the Irish countryside.

Chairing the 1988 Holiday Mart are Georgiann Henritzy and Helen McKnight.

If you suffer from the pain and disability caused by blocked arteries to the leg and in the leg . . .

. . . our new treatment can brighten your prospects.

Peripheral vascular disease—blocked arteries to the leg and in the leg—can cause nearly crippling pain. And the traditional treatment can take hours of major surgery, a long hospital stay and weeks of recovery-when it can be performed at all.

First in Macomb County With a Better Solution. Now Mount Clemens General Hospital has a superior alternative. Laser vascular surgery

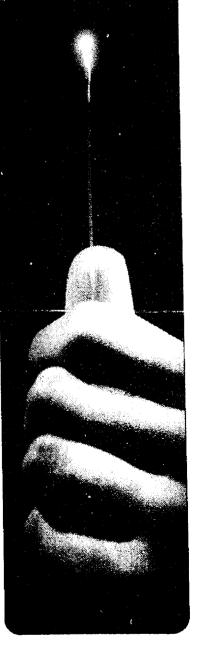

Traditional treatment for blocked arteries involves a surgical bypass of the blockage with artificial grafts. But laser vascular surgery is performed with an advanced medical laser that actually melts plaque deposits that block the arteries to the leg and in the leg. With the artery cleared, circulation is restored. And pain is relieved.

The advantages of laser vascular surgery are significant. The procedure requires only a tiny incision. The surgery itself takes far less time than traditional vascular surgery. The patient's hospital stay is reduced to as little as one to two days. And recovery time is far shorter and less painful

Call for a Referral. And Get Back on Your Feet.

If you suffer from the pain of blocked arteries to the leg and in the leg, we'd like to help you. Laser vascular surgery at Mount Clemens General could get you on your feet faster- and we can use laser surgery in many cases where a traditional surgical solution is ruled out

Don't take the pain sitting down. Talk to your physician about laser vascular surgery at Mount Clemens General. Or call for a referral to one of our doctors. at 1-800-LASER98 And brighten your prospects of a full recovery

Churches The Pastor's Corner Have a nice

By The Rev. Robert A. Rimbo Pastor, St. James Lutheran

It happened again today. A cashier whose eyes were fixed on the cash register pleasantly said, "Have a nice day!" I wish she would have looked at me when she said it. It would have made the sentiment more appreciable.

Fact is, it's not always possible to have a nice day or to keep your chin up or to wear the grin of contentment. Life gets rough and burdens often seem heavier than usual. The pressures of competition, our over-involvement in the rush of living, that anxious questioning we all do from time to time - these things get us down and make our days less than nice. Losses and reversals, plans upset, dreams crumbled, sickness and sorrow. "Have a nice day!" will not cure these

The Christian Faith is not a "have a nice day!" creed. Our Lord never promised an insurance policy against depression. Jesus never wrote prescriptions for happiness. He said he had come to give us life abundant (John 10) but the abundance he promised is an abundance of surprises some of which are not very pleasant.

But even though the surface of life's ocean may be churning in the turmoil of the storm, the child of God lives with a great assurance and conviction. "We are afflicted in every way but not crushed; perplexed but not driven to despair: persecuted but not forsaken: struck down but not destroyed" (1 Corinthians 4).

This does not say that behind every cloud there is a silver lining so we can ignore the clouds as though they never formed.

What it does say is that in the cloud and in the storm and in the crushing perplexities of life we are never alone. History has a goal and that goal will be reached. Life has a purpose and that purpose will be fulfilled. Why? Because the Christ whose goal and purpose in life and history serve - that Christ is Lord. We are not always sure which pathway God will choose for us, but we are sure that he has chosen it.

We may sometimes be confused in our directions, but we know that Christ's compass points a steady course. We know very well the absence of contentment's smile, the many times when chins are down and long days which are by no means nice.

But we also know that each day belongs to the Lord. And that He lives it with us.

Quester goes to Lansing

Grand Marais Chapter of The Questers and East Area coordinator for The Questers, traveled to Lansing Sept. 15 to attend a meeting with other area coordinators from Michigan and the state board of Questers.

The East Area is comprised of seven chapters, namely: Fox Creek No. 216, Grand Marais No. 215, Grosse Pointe No. 147, Pear Tree No. 193, Pettipoint No. 243, Ribbon Farms, No. 323 and Windmill Pointe, No. 385.

The Questers, a national organization, was formed in April 1944 to stimulate the appreciation of antiques and to encourage the preservation of historical landmarks. Chapters are formed by eight or more people who share an interest in the aims of The Questers. With the assistance of the national and/or state its programs according to individual interests. Field trips to local sites, know-

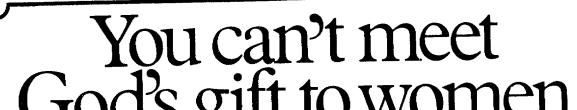

Marie Draper, member of the ledgeable speakers, research papers by members, and "Show and Tell" sessions provide chapters with an ever-changing agenda, Draper explains.

National conventions are held annually and hosted by Quester members in different states each year, with sites selected for historical interest. The Questers interest in historical preservation is evidenced by contributions to many national landmarks.

To further stimulate and sup port interest in the preservation of national heritage, local chapter restoration projects have been eligible to receive financial support from The Questers national organization. In 1973, The Questers awarded its first scholarship to an architectural stu dent accepted in the graduate School of Architecture and Planning at Columbia University. organizations, each chapter plans New York. how hard you work your wrist ticket. can upset your day.

Topping them all in the department of maddening packaging are the caps designed to keep children and people with headaches from getting at their contents. However, relief from this ordeal is in the offing.

Hugh Lockhart, Ph.D., professor of the Michigan State University School of Packaging after considerable research in cooperation with Western Michigan University - has come up with a bottle design which utilizes a "self-seeking" tab inside a double cap. The tab slips down into a slot allowing the top to be turned.

But for some consumers, the inconvenience of wrestling with products is secondary to the chore of shopping for them. For them shopping is a tedious task that takes up valuable time better spent in more pleasurable pastimes. The true "I-hate-toalmost anything else – even household chores.

They dislike pushing their way down aisles that are often impassable because someone has abandoned a cart blocking both entrance and exit. Or because two friends haven't seen each other since yesterday are exchanging gossip in the aisle. Or because boxes waiting to be unpacked defy passage, or some conscientious shopper blocks three shelves with herself and a cart while she makes a choice.

Then there are the ankle bumpers, some of them more treacherous than others. The real menaces are the speeders who go whirling through the store, zipping around corners, crashing into all obstacles, including shinbones. If you escape this traffic hazard, consider yourself lucky.

All good things come to an end. So also do the frustrating ones. The groceries are checked out, packed precariously in the cart and breathing a sigh of relief, you push the wobbly pile to the car. Leg muscles bulge, shoulders strain with effort but vou make it. It was an ordeal but thankfully you won't have to face it for another week. A sense

So ends the saga of a disconsolate shopper. Then there are those who love the challenge. They never seem to encounter the travails of the reluctant supermarket visitor. It could be because of their positive attitude towards the chore. Their adrenalin begins to flow the moment the door swings open. They come armed with lists of specials and neatly clipped coupons.

For them it is exciting to beat the system and come out with $6 worth of merchandise for every $5 spent. They go from store to store in a euphoric state, making pennies do the work of dollars and loving every minute of it.

This separation of kind is not limited to supermarkets. That area of shopping is just a prelude to the big-time pursuit of taking on the shopping malls. Here the perils are more marked.

To begin with, it is important shop" individual would rather do to remember where the car is parked. Unless the lane number is duly noted, hours could be lost searching for the car you drove that suddenly looks like any one of the 50 cars parked in the location where you are sure you left vours.

The next problem is figuring out where the shop that advertised all merchandise at 50 percent off is located. Usually it is at the opposite end of the building from where you parked. Then there are those uncanny

ON DEDUCTING POINTS

When you take out a new real estate loan for the purchase or refinancing of a home, there will usually be points to be paid. One point equals one percent of the amount of the loan. Can you deduct this amount from your current taxable income? It all depends. If the loan is for the purchase of a new home, the dollar amount of the points is fully deductible in the year you paid it. However, if the loan is for the refinancing of a present mortgage, the points are. not currently deductible. Instead, they must be written off over the life of the mortgage.

For example, if you refinance a mortgage for $100,000 for 15 years and pay two points ($2,000), you can deduct 1/15th of the amount paid for points each year - $133.33.

There is one condition where you can refinance your home and deduct the amount paid for points in the current year; that is if the mortgage proceeds are to be used for home improvements.

BB Community Grosse Pr Officials try to clarify Social Security misunderstandings

More than 38 million people — for today's beneficiaries. or about one out of every six persons in this country – currently receive Social Security, yet many Americans still believe that Social Security benefits only a select group of retirees. In fact, Social Security provides more than just retirement insurance. The Michigan Association of CPAs recommends that you take the time to learn not only how Social Security works, but also how it can work for you.

Let's start with your paycheck stub. That mysterious FICA deduction represents your contribution to the Social Security system. This year, your dollars will help swell the Social Security trust fund by approximately $259 billion. But don't assume those funds will wait around for you to claim them. Most of this year's revenues will be immediately transformed into payments up to a maximum of our credits.

ing, "So what do I get for my Social Security tax dollars?" Plenty. With every dollar you earn, and every tax dollar you pay, you buy into an insurance program designed to protect you and your family from the possible loss of income if you should retire, die or become severely disabled.

However, eligibility for Social Security is neither automatic nor immediate. In order to become fully insured, you have to accumulate calendar quarters, "credits," by working for a certain amount of time at any job covered by the Social Security law. Almost every kind of job, as well as self-employment, meets this requirement. In 1988, you earn one credit for each $470 of earnings you receive during the year,

About now, you may be ask to keep pace with average that you postpone retirement, wages.

Each credit brings you closer to the amount needed in order to qualify for Social Security's comprehensive package of retirement, life and disability benefits. Generally, once you earn 40 work credits, you are fully insured and can count on collecting full retirement benefits at age 65. If you decide to retire early, say at age 62, you will have to accept partially reduced benefits.

On the other hand, for every year that you postpone retirement, you can increase your monthly benefit. For instance, if you reach age 65 between 1982 and 1989 and delay retirement by just two years, the benefit increases by six percent. If you turn 65 in 1990 or later, the increased benefit may go as high

This amount increases annually as eight percent for each year depending on how long after 1924 you were born.

After retirees, the second largest group of Social Security recipients is the survivors of deceased workers. In 1988, this group will receive 20 percent of all Social Security benefits.

How do you know if you are qualified for survivors' benefits? The rules are somewhat cumbersome, but clear. To be eligible, you must be a widow or widower who is age 60 or older; age 50 and disabled; or any age and caring for a child who is under 16 or permanently disabled. Even if you are divorced, you may still be eligible for survivors' benefits, providing that your marriage to the deceased lasted ten years or longer. The children of a qualified worker who retires, becomes severely disabled or dies may also receive benefits, depending on their age at the time only of these events occurred.

Age is also a factor in determining eligibility for disability benefits. In general, the older you are when the disability occurs, the more work credits you need in order to qualify for Social Security benefits. For example, if you become disabled before age 24, you need at least one and a half years of work credit earned within the three years before your disability begins. But if the disability occurs at ages 30 through 43, you need five years of work credit out of the 10 years prior to the time you become disabled.

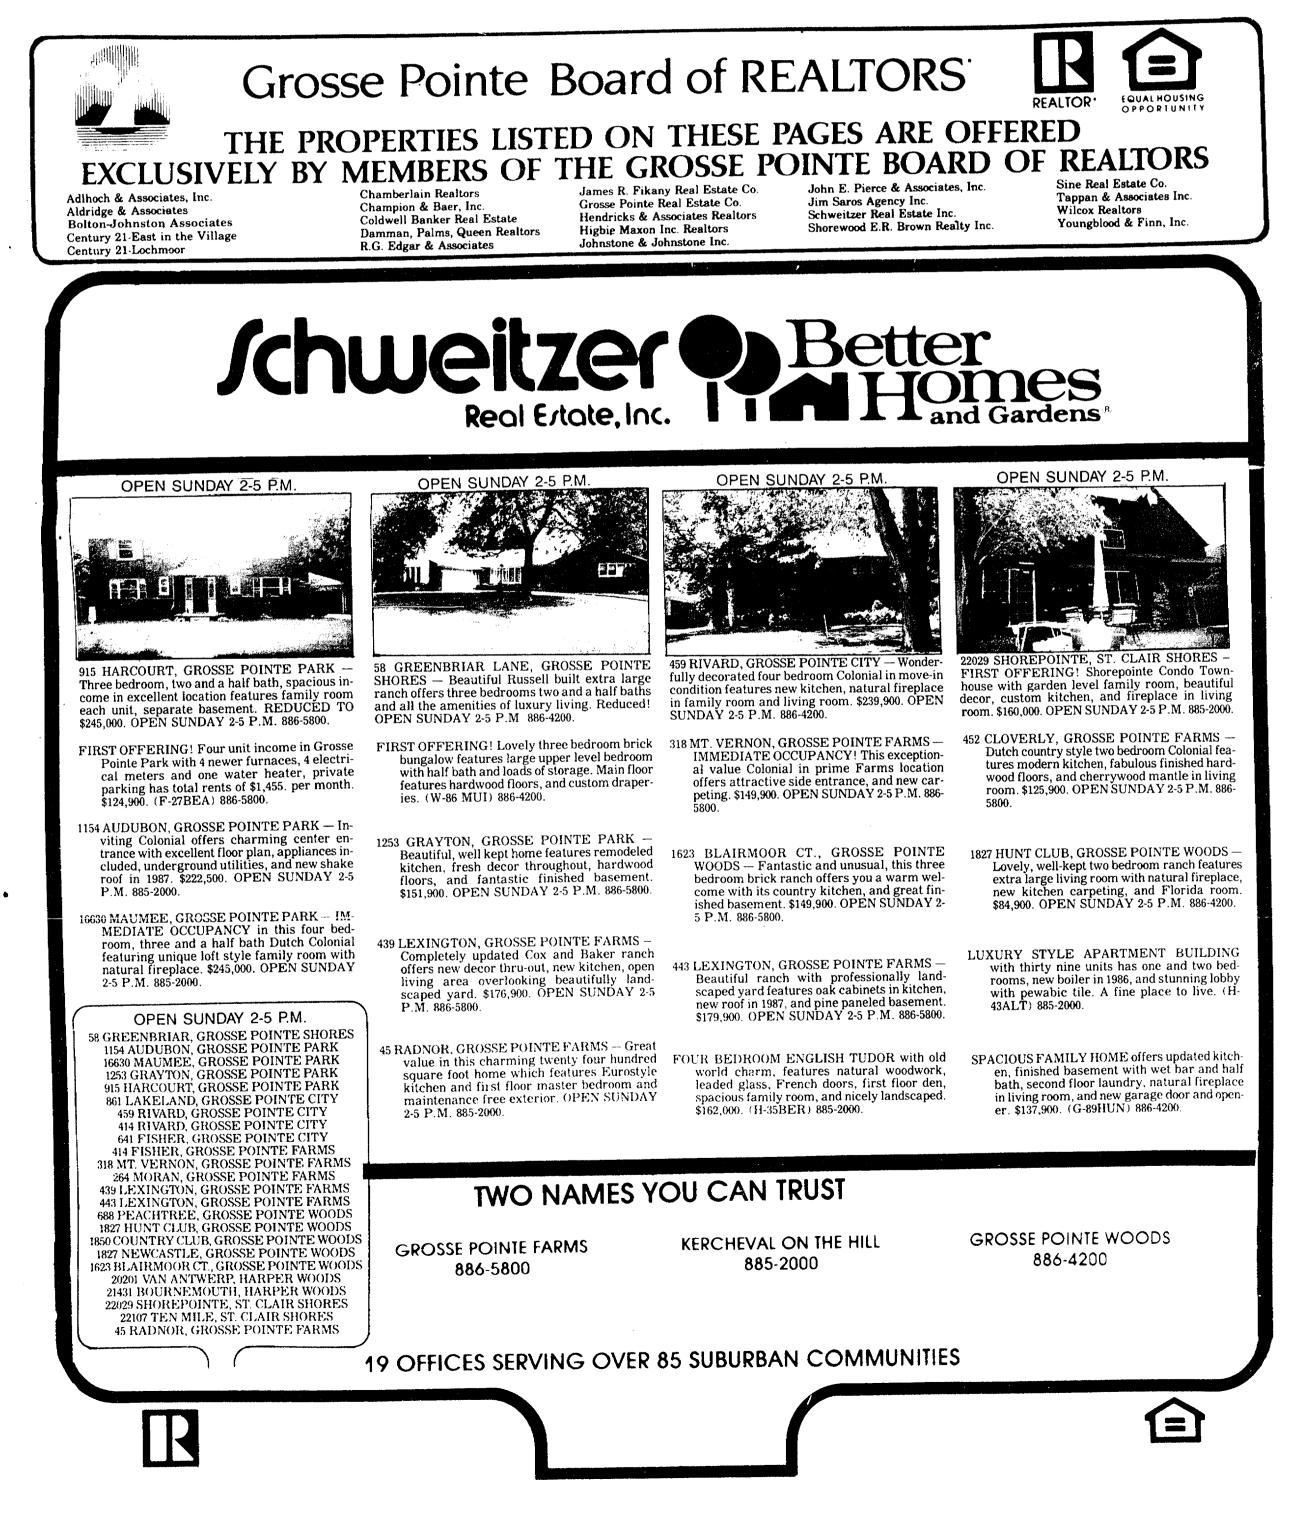

One of the most common misconceptions people have is that the number of work credits they have determined the amount of the monthly Social Security check they receive. In actuality, having enough credits to be insured means only that you are eligible to receive Social Security benefits - it does not affect the numbers written on the check in your mailbox.

The amount of benefits due to your family ultimately depends on your average earnings during your working lifetime. In figuring your average earnings, the lowest five years of annual earning are not counted. Your earnings are also adjusted to reflect changes in wage levels over your lifetime.

To receive a pamphlet which answers many questions about Social Security, write to the Michigan Association of CPAs at P.O. Box 9054, Farmington Hills, MI 48333.

you've got it bad

Officials are people you love to hate sometimes -- but last week at a jayvee bas ketball game between South and Fraser you simply couldn't hate the official.

For four quarters this lonely man had full jurisdiction of the court. From baseline to baseline, free throw line to free throw line, he was it. Nobody to work with because a partner failed to show up.

You'd think that he wouldn't do it, but the game must go on. So, he tossed the ball to start the game, ran full lengths of the court, whistled when he saw a foul, and gasped for breaths of oxygen when a timeout was called.

For anybody who doesn't referee, basketball is not a one-official sport. But in this case, the man in black and white was the lone ruler of the game.

You had to empathize with the guy because of the running the game entailed, but he received double pay for double the work. However, his two eyes didn't only belong to the girls on the floor, but to two girls in the stands, on the floor, and in the balcony.

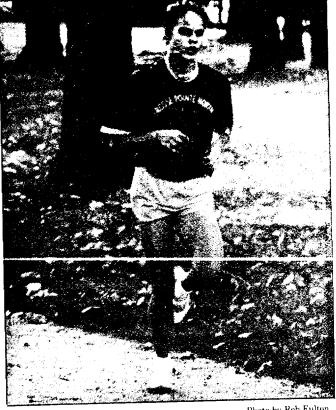

Before he even arrived at the game, his baby sitter backed out on him so he had to bring his two daughters to the game and babysit – during the game. Could it be that he woke up on the wrong side of the bed? Or better yet, maybe the baby sitter and the absent referee conspired to make life a living hell for this guy.

Midway through the first quarter, I joked with the ref about only having three quarters to go. He glanced back at me and took a big gulp of oxygen, smiled a bit, and then went back to work. He didn't complain, but you had to realize the agony he was going through knowing that fouls were being administered by the girls that he couldn't see. But, he did an admirable job despite rolling his eyes every so often.

Why me? You could see him asking himself that as the game progressed. At the start of the second half, one varsity official arrived for the 7:30 p.m. game and offered to help this guy out, but he refused, as he should have. He was already half done with the game and if he could do one half, another half wouldn't kill him. Sorry, don't mean it that way.

When free throws were shot, he gave the shooter the ball, waited for her to loft it toward the basket, and then ran under the

Grosse Pointe North's tennis team, after beating University Liggett School 5-2 last week, has moved into the No. 2 slot of the state's Class A rank-

ULS, recently winning the East Grand Rapids tournament, stays at No. 1 in Class C-D, and is third in the overall poll. South is No. 4 overall and North is No. 2. All schools in Class A, or listed in the Sports Editor Liz Bolden never thought cross country and track would suit her, but after three years of running hilly courses and great distances, the North senior wouldn't have it any other way.

Bolden's jump into the Norsemen's track and cross country programs came after no previous running experience. She competed in both sports as a freshman, but sat out her sophomore year and rejoined the teams for her final two years.

In 1987, only her second full year of competition, Bolden became an all-state sprinter and distance runner. According to Bolden, running was not a top priority - at first.

"I never ran before I went to high school," she said. "I didn't even think about running track or cross, but then I decided to try it."

Much to the delight of Coach Charles Buhagiar.

"Lizzy is the most versatile runner I've ever coached," Buhagiar said. "There are very few athletes who can run in the 200meter run, jump 17 feet in the long jump and run 5,000 meters. 'There just aren't that many people around who can make it as an all-state sprinter and dis-tance runner," Buhagiar said.

Bolden is one of the best runners in the state, but a rocky start almost stunted the growth of a rather successful prep career

"Lizzy had a slow start when she was a freshman," Buhagiar said. "She wasn't sure if cross and track were for her, but she has grown up and worked hard. She took her lumps early on, but as a senior she is now garnish ing the fruits of her hard work."

After sitting out a year, Bolden returned and hoped for a prosperous year. She worked on her foot speed and conditioning, and by the end of the year, her persistence paid off.

"The turning point for her was making all-state," Buhagiar said. "When she did that, she proved that Liz Bolden is a good runner."

Currently in the middle of the cross country season, Bolden leads the team in almost every race. She prides herself on her own strength, and looks no further than herself when it's time to be critiqued.

"I really like running because I enjoy going out and seeing how good I can be," she said. "I work hard because I don't like to lose or be in second place. I am always working to be a better runner. Sometimes I'm too hard on myself, but then again it's better that way."

Admittedly, Bolden has thought of chucking it all. However each time she considers it, she recalls the invested time and energy

Sometimes it's difficult to remain competitive," she said. "But then I think about all the hard work I've put in and I don't want to give up on that. If I were to give up on that, it would be like giving up on myself."

Bolden is probably eligible for the frequent flyer discounts, but See BOLDEN, page 3C hoop to make calls. He then darted up court watching the dribbler, the play under the basket and the three-point line. And I thought I had a long day.

At jayvee games, it's hard enough to contain some of the players by calling illegal play, but to top it off and act as baby sitter, too is not my idea of a night at the gymnasium. Most referees try to supplement their income by officiating, and some do it because they enjoy it as well. Today, this guy is probably second-guessing his decision.

Learn to harness stress

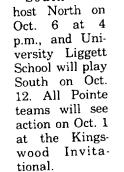

Stress isn't all bad. When channeled effectively, stress energizes, stimulates and promotes personal growth. It can provide the extra energy and incentive needed to meet the challenges of life.

But left unmanaged, stress can wear on the body, and can contribute to mental and physical exhaustion and disease. The key is to find the amount of stress that is manageable for you, and then use it to enhance and invigorate your world.

You can learn to harness the stress in your life at a three-day You Can Control Stress Workshop at Cottage Hospital. The sessions will be held on Wednesday, Oct. 5, 12, and 19 from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the Nurses' Residence behind the hospital.

Lecture, discussion, and small group sessions will be used in the workshop. Participants will explore the signs and symptoms of stress, relaxation techniques, effects of lifestyle on stress management, and burnout at the workplace. Individuals will assess their personal levels of stress and learn skills to assist them in combating stress-induced behavior.

The fee is $35 and enrollment is limited. Call 884-1177 for more information and to reserve your spot in the program.

Three second-half touchdowns and an inspired offensive line combined to give the South Blue Devils' football team a 32-13 win over L'Anse Creuse North last Saturday.

South (2-2, 2-1) still trails league leaders Port Huron and Port Huron Northern by one game, but with the resurgence of the offensive line, repeating as league champs looks more possible.

The ULS golf team dropped two matches last week, bringing its record to 2-3.

On Sept. 20, ULS lost 194-179 to Oakland Christian. Chris McCormick led the Knights with a 46, followed by Gene Gargaro's and Wes Sims' 48.

We played fairly well in spite of bad weather conditions," said Coach Josh Schmidt. "However, I'm sure we can improve."

On Sept. 22, ULS fell to DCDS, 213-170. Freshman Katie Tompkins made ULS history by becoming the first girl to play in a varsity match. Gargaro carded the lowest score, 44, while Andrew Stewart and Sims scored 53, and 54.

The No. 4 ranked Knights faced No. 1 Detroit Country Day and led DCDS 1.0 on a goal by Johnathon Davis in the first half, and the outstanding goalkeeping of Brian Schmidt.

However, DCDS struck for three unanswered goals in the second half to steal a 3-1 win. ULS put 10 goals on net.

ULS stands at 6-1-1 overall and plays Royal Oak Kimball at 10:30 a.m. on Oct. 1 in front of a homecoming day crowd.

Field Hockey

Go east young ladies. That's exactly what Coach Muriel Brock's Knights did last week as they wrapped field hockey and college visits into the same trip.

ULS trounced Milton Academv (Massachusetts), 5-1, tied Andover Phillips (Massachusetts), 3-3, but lost to St. Paul's (New Hampshire), 4-0.

In the Milton game, Sylvia Ristic, Monica Paul (2), Sarah Haggarty and Dana Warnez knotted goals. The three goals against Andover were notched by Ristic, Paul and Warnez.

Most importantly, the girls were enthused about the college visits. Brock took them to Wellesley College, Harvard, Boston University, MIT, Babson College, Boston College, Pine Manor and Dartmouth.

"It was great," said Carrie Carpenter. "It helped make up my mind about some of my college plans. Miss Brock insists that we start planning for college early and she helps us every step of the way. .

By Rob Fulton Sports Editor

No longer can one say the end zone is uncharted territory for the Knights.

ULS beat up on Lutheran Westland, 29-0, to end a threegame skid. ULS (1-3) was in control from the start with a relentless ball control offense.

"Our offensive line just blew them off the ball," said Coach Bob Newvine. "The interior line of Joe Erich, John Dodds, James Dobrzechowski, Matt Janke, John Ellis and Abimbola Afari ogun played a strong game."

Sophomore Chris Carroll, who along with Ryan Molitor had an interception, proved his offensive abilities with 94 yards rushing and two touchdowns, including one of 53 yards. Dike Ajiri, an All-State candidate, scored on a 33-yard run and added two twopoint conversions.

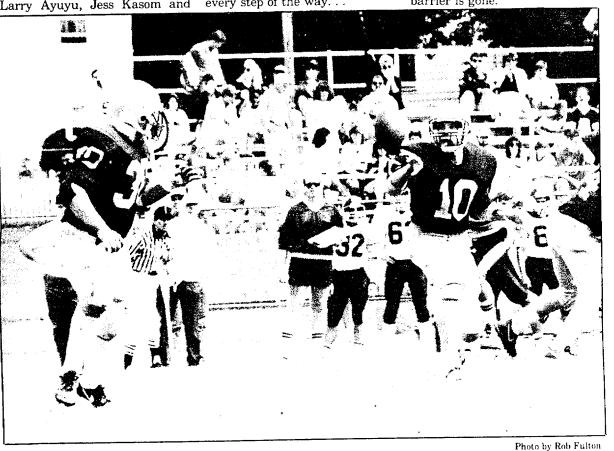

Lex Smith connected with Mike Barnes for a 30-yard scoring strike and getting that first touchdown surely lifted a heavy burden that has plagued the Knights.

"A lot of the pressure is now gone," Newvine said. "We talked about the barrier at the goal line and not scoring in our first three games, but now hopefully the barrier is gone."

After suffering three straight losses to start the season, the Lady Devils ran up two consecutive wins over Warren, 34-23, and Fraser, 39-33. In both games, Katie Kolp was high scorer with 12 and 15 points, respectively. In the win over Fraser, Kolp was 3-of-3 from three-point range, to go with seven rebounds and four steals. Lorrie Geist and Darcy Jones each had eight points in the win over Warren.

Geist yanked down 11 boards some people up," said Coach Jon Rice. "We needed some consistency from our offense and we got it. We needed it to prove to ourselves we could move the football."

All week, the Devils concentrated on an offensive scheme and may not have put in enough time defensively.

"We felt we may have neglected our defense a bit in practice," Rice admitted. "We let them (L'Anse Creuse) do more than we wanted to."

Rob Crane didn't allow much as he made 10 tackles and assisted four times from his linebacker spot.

In the first half, South negated some of its own scoring opportunities with penalties, but Mike Montagne's 43-yard run to open the scoring seemed to wash the distress away - for some.

"We thought we could have scored a few more times, but we had some things hold us up," Rice said. "We had some mental mistakes, but we had to play over them.'

Montagne, who rushed for 149 yards on 20 carries and three touchdowns, received plenty of help from the front line, as did Steve Rice, who carried the ball 22 times for 146 yards and one touchdown for South's offensive total of 350 yards.

"That's not too bad when you can get almost 300 yards from two guys," Rice said. "You can survive on that a long time."

South also got 44 yards on three completions from quarterback Brian Letscher.

"Brian's passes were on the money and he ran the offense very well," Rice said about the junior signal-caller. "His mechanics are getting much better.

South survived on the ground in the second half after being knotted 7.7 at the intermission.

"At halftime, we just went in and made some defensive adjustments and tried to maintain some of our offensive scheme," Rice said.

In the second half it was all Blue Devils.

Montagne then plunged in and South enjoyed a comfortable 21-7 lead - but not for long.

The Crusaders returned the ensuing kickoff, but missed the extra point to cut the South cushion to 21-13.

"There was still 10:58 to play and North was still in it," Rice said. "Our defense really shut them down in the second half. They didn't allow any points and they executed what we went over at halftime, but it was far from over."

Weissert was put into position for a 39-yard field goal on South's next possession and split the uprights to give South a 24-13 lead. Then the fireworks went off again.

On the kick off, Kyle Schomaker, who had two interceptions, undeliberately booted the ball off the chest of a Crusader and South recovered. Some eight plays later, Rice shot in from a yard out and an unplanned twopoint conversion iced the game.

"The kids were really excited in the lockerroom after the game," said Coach Rice. "It's the most emotion they've shown as a team since we started the season eight weeks ago. The key was moving the ball offensively and emotionally coming together. Now we have to sustain that for five more weeks."

South travels to Port Huron Sept. 30 for a 7:30 p.m. start.

Boys' cross country

South extended its league record to 2.0 with a 15-50 win over hapless Roseville.

Junior Dave Kerfoot led an eight-man entourage for South. Tim MacGillis, Josh Christian and Rob Bruce recorded personal bests.

Then it was off to the Fenville Invitational where the Devils placed fourth.

Mark Sonnenberg was ninth overall and Phil Orton placed 13th. Paul Heymes was 24th, Dave Kerfoot was 35th, and Marty Kraft just missed the ninth grad record when he finished 37th.

and had four assists and five steals in the win at home against the Ramblers.

Soccer

South is vying for another league title and with a current 4-1 record, they may just do it.

Anthony DeLuca tallied twice, while Mike Woodruff and Matt Smucker scored one each to lift the Devils to a 4-0 win over Fitzgerald. Tristian Guevara, Scott Adams and John Drummy drew assists.

South beat Clawson, 2-1, with goals from Chad Schomaker and DeLuca, before battering Bishop Foley, 4-0. Scoring for South were Woodruff, Dave Birnbryer, Rick Reggio and Paul Wasinger. Overall South is 5-3.

Swimming

Edsel Ford was not very kind to South in the Devils' opener, as they were drilled 86-82.

Tina Higel was first in the 200 individual medley and Terry Semple was first in the 100 backstroke.

Tennis

After shelling Mount Clemens, 7.0 with wins coming in every flight, South finished fourth at the North Fall Invitational with 19 points. Birmingham Seaholm was first with 30 points, followed by Ann Arbor Huron (26) and North (20).

Cathy Wachter, a strong lefthander, served herself up a win at No. 2 singles by beating Stacey Bowman of Seaholm, 6-1, 6-

Julie Wheeler and Ann Tipp were consolation winners at No. 2 doubles, and Cynthia Herman and Ann Hathaway lost 6-3, 6-2 in the finals at No. 1 doubles.

Macaire McNamee and Gabby Bruno teamed up at No. 4 doubles and advanced to the finals where they were nipped by Pioneer.

Brian Letscher (10) and Mike Montagne (30) worked the pitch to perfection Saturday as Montagne rushed for 149 yards.

Girls' cross country

The girls took 22 of the top 25 spots in defeating Roseville, 17-45 to improve their league record to 2-0 and 13-0 overall. Running personal bests were Heather Cunningham, Hadley Creech, Sarah Bardeen, Joy

Stuckey and Kate Keough.

On Sept. 24, both the jayvee and varsity teams defended their titles at the North Fall Sports Invitational.

South's first six runners were all medalists and include, Julie Nichols (2nd), Elizabeth Kraft (3rd), Debbie Solterisch (7th), Toni Tedesco (8th), Jenny Barber (13th), and Susannah McAndrew (18th). Jenny Williams, Erica Mondro, Cristy Guleserian, Claudine DuPont, Katie Taylor and Elizabeth Johnston ran personal bests.

To whom it may concern: quarter to get things going, Remove the stop sign from the corner and put it at the end of the Norsemen football schedule.

After beating Cousino 21-20 two weeks ago, North football coach Frank Sumbera thought his troops had turned the corner. But, around the corner was a tough Chippewa Valley team who impeded the progress of the Norsemen, 147, last Friday.

"We stood next to the stop sign and didn't turn the corner," said Sumbera, after his team suffered its third loss in four games. "As a coach, you always like to see your team improve from week to week, but we didn't."

North (1-3, 1-0) played its best game of the year to knock off White-Division rival Cousino, but Sumbera feels the kids didn't come prepared to play the Big Reds. Instead, maybe they were still reeling from the overtime win.

"I don't know if the kids were thinking about Cousino, or looking forward to Romeo (this Saturday)," Sumbera said. "Maybe it's difficult to play a non-league game between two league games.

"We can't win the non-league games, so we have to win the league games," Sumbera added. "We played as inspired as a frog on a lily pad."

"We were moving the ball the whole game, but we had two turnovers," Sumbera said about an offense that chewed up 247 yards. "We surely weren't out of it. We battled back to beat Cousino in the fourth quarter, so we knew we could do it.'

Scott Bernhardt, who one week earlier exhibited a recordsetting performance by passing for 306 yards, struggled to complete 8-of-18 passes. One, however, went to Matt Brady from 30 yards out in the fourth quarter to cut the Reds' lead to 14.7.

"Scott wasn't on his toes," Sumbera said. "He was throwing from his heels and he didn't have one of his better games."

Sumbera admitted he should have gone to the air more, namely to No. 84 Charlie Stumb, who last week collected a school record 125 yards.

"We probably should have thrown to Charlie more because he was open on his deep patterns," Sumbera said, despite Stumb's four catches for 62 yards. "There aren't many peo-

North is tied with Romeo for the White Division lead and both teams will put it on the line Oct. 1 at North.

"It's Dawg week," Sumbera said in reference to the Romeo Bulldogs. "We've got to put the spit back in the bull because we've got three straight league games and we have to win them if we want to win the White again.'

At Woods-Tower, the girls took the first seven spots, including a top finish from Liz Bolden. Allison Liebold, Hope Peters, Nikki VanOppens, Tricia Dugan, Lisa Bauer and Mariann Testa rounded out the list of winners. The Lady Norsemen stand at 5-

Ken Ferguson, Tim Ballew and John Petz finished second, third and fourth, respectively to lift North past WWT. Tom Gauerke was sixth for the 4-1 Norsemen.

Swimming

The state meet is months away, but some members of the swim team have assured themselves of a trip.

Against Dearborn, the girls lost by one point, but Heidi Mader made the state meet time in the 200 individual medley and the 100 backstroke. Wendy Mader (200 and 500 free), Karen Dundon (100 free and 200 IM) and Katie Young (100 fly and 50 free) also qualified for the state meet.

Later in the week, Fraser fell 118-53 to the powerful Norsemen. The 200 medley relay team of Mader, Dundon, Young and Wendy Mader, broke a pool record to qualify for the states. Dundon is also a record holder in the 100 free.

The third week of the schedule was not very good to the Norsemen as they lost 3-1 at Chippewa Valley, and 2-1 to Fraser.

The Norsemen were determined to give the Big Reds a rough game as the first half was played evenly. Trailing 1-0, Bob Beltz scored the equalizer for the Norsemen, but in the second half, Chippewa Valley scored twice on two headed goals. Paul Walker played well, as did Kurt Prisbe for North.

North tried to bounce back, but a Ramblers' goal in the final minutes of the game gave North a second straight loss.

Continuing excellence is the mark of a champion, and the Boat Show U.S.A.

The shorter, cooler days and changing color signal fall, and fall means boat show time. Boat Show U.S.A. is now in progress at Metropolitan Beach in Mount Clemens. It is touted as being the largest boat show in the country. Indeed, this show displays so many boats that it takes a full day just to wander the docks. Serious buyers return for in-depth conversation.

If you are looking for the boat of your dreams, take a paper and pencil and take notes. Be discriminating and be critical. Don't rely on your memory. You will look at so many boats that, in spite of your best intentions and excellent recall, you will not remember everything you have seen.

If you are new to sailing and looking for your first boat, here are some ideas for you to think about.

How big a boat are you interested in? How much money are you willing to spend? This is a big decision. The bigger the boat, the more it costs, usually.

Below decks needs consideration. After all, you will spend a great deal of time below.

What do you plan to do with the boat? Do you plan to live aboard for long periods of time and cruise, or will you use the boat to entertain, or as a dockside cottage with lots of daysailing? You will consider the accommodations differently depending on how you plan to use the boat.

Is there enough headroom? Are the berths long enough? Are there enough berths in enough cabins to accommodate your needs? Are the head facilities adequate or do you require a shower and hot water? Is the galley useable under way or only while in port? What kind of refrigeration? How much insulation does the refrigerator have? Where is the galley located relative to traffic from above decks to below? Can the person responsible for the galley reach everything? Is there enough stowage on the boat for food, clothes and personal items as well as tools and sails and the myriad other things that find a way onto the boat? Is there a navigator's station? Is the seat comfortable and easy to get into and out of? Is there adequate chart stowage? How is the below-decks area ventilated? Are there opening portholes? How many hatches?

How many gallons of water does the boat carry? Is there a pressure water system?

What kind of engine does the boat have? Is it easily accessible? How much, and what kind of fuel does the vessel carry? What kind of maintenance is it likely to require? Can you do the work?

What is the deck and cockpit like? Can you move about freely? Is the cockpit size appropriate for what you want? Are the seats comfortable? Are the leads for the halyards and sheets appropriate and easily maneuvered?

In the days and weeks to come you can go back over your notes time and time again. They will come in very handy at decision-making time.

Have a happy boat show.

her miles have been earned on the ground. Each week, she churns out 25 to 30 miles, including regular team workouts.

"It gets you excited to work hard," she said. "You think the practice might be hard, but you have to think about what it will do for you."

Stamina and conditioning are key elements in the survival of track and cross country, but Bolden also says it's mind over matter.

"Before and during the race, you have to always be thinking about how you're going to run,' said Bolden, a 1987 regional champion in track. "All the time I think of what's ahead of me. If for one second I don't concentrate, then that could cost me the race.'

Bolden hasn't had many poor races, but for the times she has or will have, she practices a different approach.

'You have to forget about a bad race," she said. "You set your goals before the race, but that's not always going to work if you can't get your last race out of your mind.'

Bolden has a large following, including her parents Wayne and Dolores, and without them and a good pasta meal before a race her success may be mini--mal.

"I usually have spaghetti or some other pasta dish before a race," she said. "I'm not very superstitious, but I am lucky to have a lot of people who cheer for me.

"When people like my teammates, my parents and friends cheer for me. I get motivated," Bolden added. "I can't let them down and while I'm running I think of that.

Bolden's fluid form and natural foot speed makes her another state contender, but her ability to listen and heed advice makes her that much better.

"If you ask her to run a workout in a certain way or time, she does it," Buhagiar said. "That type of athlete is easy to work with. Liz is constantly striving to be better because she wants to be the best.

"She never asks why," Buhagiar added. "She just does it because she knows the benefits."

Bolden is leaning toward attending Hillsdale College or Central Michigan University next fall, but first things first.

"I always set goals," she said, "and then I go out and try to do the best I can. I'd like to be allstate again, but I'd also like to see the team finish in the top 10 at the state meet."

On the brighter side of things I guess you could say he saved a few bucks and made more, but I wouldn't want his two legs the day after.

During one timeout, he had to walk away from the court and plead with his kids to get off the floor. The youngest of the two was resting in the corner of the court, and the older girl was in charge of removing her sister. The official didn't want to make a scene and he didn't. But, you could tell that he had his hands full with 10 players, and two girls that were originally going to stay home and watch the Cosby Show.

Club. Bob Hetchler, Tony Giumetti, Matt Ciaravino and Paige Pelok carded scores of 80, 82, 83, and 86, respectively. But, it was the day of the "Wizard," Jason Ziomek.

Ziomek took medalist honors after beating out Brad Martin of Lakeview. Both shot rounds of 77, but Ziomek turned Martin back on the second hole of the playoff with a birdie.

"He played great, but I'm still glad I won," said Ziomek.

North has gone on to beat Stevenson, and Sterling Heights, 153-164.

I guess a lesson could be learned. If anything we could look at it and say this was not a typical day, don't worry and be happy. If you are pessimistic, you could say I'll never officiate alone again, but optimistically the money was too good. Or, you could get a reliable baby sitter, make sure your partner will show to officiate, and then turn the tables and go out with the wife.

'Kansas' is a major dud

By Michael Chapp Special Writer

4C

The fatal flaw in "Kansas" is not that it relies on two characters with absolutely no screen charisma whatsoever to carry the weight of its narration.

And the thing that finally does it in is not the fact that it's filled with enough plot holes to lose a fleet of trucks.

Both of those things are contributing factors, mind you, to the atter disarray and complete Exactly why Carey accepts, we meptitude of the picture. But the never do know. main thing that buries it - the it's forgettable.

Very forgettable.

ture that the actors involved make because it helps to pay the bills until something better comes along. And it's the kind of film viewers usually wait to see on cable television. And then turn the channel when it finally does show up on their local system.

In a sequence of events that munity. could only happen at the movies, apparent good guy Wade Carey (Andrew McCarthy) hooks up with loser Doyle Kennedy (Matt Dillon). They meet while Carey core of a very good conflict. The is hopping trains on the way to his best friend's wedding somewhere on the other side of the country. Kennedy convinces Carey to take a side trip with him to his home town in Kansas.

Perhaps it's for the excitebiggest thing that makes it a dement. And Carey ends up with testable dud of a dog - is that plenty of that. He gets duped into helping renegade Kennedy rob a bank, for which neither "Kansas" is the kind of pic- gets caught. Then he rescues the governor's daughter from a certain drowning death at the bot tom of a local lake.

So under normal circumstances, Carey would be a hero. Except he doesn't want to be a hero, since somebody might find out about the robbery. So he tries to lose himself in the com-

That much of the plot - if one can excuse the questionable and almost cartoonish simplicity of the sequence of events - has the picture gets bogged down, however, with the increasingly antagonistic relationship between Carey and Kennedy, and with the increasingly amicable relationship between Carey and the daughter of a local farmer at whose ranch he works.

By the time all of the pieces are in order for the actual meat of the story, most viewers will have lost interest in the characters. Not that there was much interest in the characters to begin with. These guys are about as interesting to watch as foot fungus and they're also about as charming.

Carey never does show up for his best friend's wedding. That's the way it goes, apparently, when you're traipsing around the country trying to decide whether you want to be a hero or an outlaw.

The moral here is that, given the chance, good will always win over evil.

But not in time to get a piece of wedding cake.

Rail day trips

The 1988 official "Yes, Michigan Train" season of rail excursions ends with two unusual trips.

On Saturday, Oct. 1, the "Air Force Flyer" travels from Allen Park on a 450-mile one-day round trip to the U.S. Air Force Museum at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base near Dayton over the freight-only Grand Trunk Western Railroad.

On Saturday, Oct. 15, the "Fall Harvest Jubilee Special" operates from Livonia to Flint with bus connections to the Genesee Parks and Recreation Commission's Crossroads Village with its Huckleberry Railroad vintage steam trains. Flint and Saginaw area residents may ride a side trip, "The Saginaw Valley Limited," on the excursion train over CSX Transportation Company's former Chesapeake & Ohio line, while Livonia passengers visit Crossroads Village.

'Eight Men Out' depicts baseball's glory, shame

By Marian Trainor

Special Writer They were the greatest team in the history of baseball back in 1919. They were the Chicago White Sox, a sure bet to win the World Series.

Instead they went down to disgrace in what became known as eight of the players agreed to throw the series to Cincinnati in return for mob money.

In Eight Men Out," director and writer John Sayles presents a dramatic and highly personal account of how and why these men, so talented, so close to the glory and adulation that comes with winning baseball's highest accolade, threw it away.

It is an unforgettable, dramatic story.

It begins on a soaring note as the viewer watches a baseball fly high into the sky on a bright summer day. We follow victorious, exultant players off the field down the narrow corridors to the locker room where bottles of champagne are waiting as a prelude to a hoped-for bonus. We see the disappointment in their faces when they learn that there is to be no bonus and the champagne turns out to be flat.

Trapped by skinflint owner Charles Comiskey (Clifton James) in a contract that forces them to play for him only and

The Italian Cultural and Community Center is located at 28111 Imperial Drive, east of Hoover, off of 12 Mile Road in Warren.

The exhibit is a collection of video recordings and photographs which will run through Sunday, Oct. 30. Daily hours will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and weekends will be from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m.

This exhibition is free. For earn on another team, they become fair game for bigtime gamblers.

One by one they fall: first, the shortstop who arranges the fix; then the center fielder, the star pitcher and on through an eighth man who knows about the Black Sox scandal when the deal but never takes any money.

The stage is set, the action begins and the camera never falters. We see close up the pitcher wind up, the catcher give the signals; we hear the crack of the bat; we follow the ball and watch the fielder fall on it, fumble - and a base hit becomes a home run.

We see the fury and frustration on the faces of the other players, who can't understand what's happening. We see the players involved in a struggle within themselves, trying to decide whether to play their best or go with the money.

We go to the stands and watch the gamblers keeping their eyes on the plays to insure their investment. Watching from the press box also are sportswriters Ring Lardner (played by Sayles himself) and Hugh Fullerton (played by Studs Terkel). We see them circling the suspect plays. gathering evidence that results in a grand jury indictment.

Comiskey's lawyers, supposedly to save the good name of baseball, fix the trial by stealing the players' confessions. Legally exonerated, the players neverthepaid half of what they could less are given the strictest sen tence possible. They are exiled from the game forever by Kennesaw Mountain Landist, hastily recruited to serve as baseball commissioner for life.

Based on Elliot Asinoff's book of the same name, "Eight Men Out" is more than a sports story. It is a trip back in time to white starched collars, big hats and small urchins in oversized Jackie Coogan caps. It is a film with a carefully worked out look of time and place

It is one of these urchins who so appealingly expresses the dis illusionment of the fans as he grabs the sleeve of Shoeless Joe Weaver as be comes out of the courthouse, with the plea, "Say it ain't so. Joe, say it ain't so." It's a plea that has been repeated in many contexts since then.

Care has also been given to the selection of the cast. Each one of the members is perfectly suited in appearance and attitude to his part.

Poignant sidebars enrich the narrative, such as one where we see the pitcher make a decision on the mound to play the game and forego the money. We see the relief and pride as he follows through on that decision and the joy and exultation of his teammates and the fans as they win a crucial game.

Another is when Weaver sitdown with his urchin friend Joey and tells him how much baseball means to him and how he never wanted to do anything else.

To say Sayles has hit a home run with "Eight Men Out" would be too flippant. He has created a classic.

proud of "our teams' showings, as it was only the second time G.P.S.A. teams have placed in this annual fall soccer event.'

U-8 House Rockets, 4-0, 3-0

16C

The Rockets have won both of their games to start the season.

Peter Clark scored two goals and Drew Franklin provided one in both games. Garrett Heffner added the additional goal in the first game.

Randy Jimison recorded both shut outs with help from Pat Moultrie and Donald Kosmas.

Hawks 4, Lightning 3

The Hawks battled back to win after trailing 3.0. Kenneth Ferguson, John Hammer and Jim Kruse (2), scored for the Hawks. Nicole Meyer saved the game with a block on a breakaway.

Trevor Szymanski tallied twice for the Lightning.

In another game, the Lightning squad won, 8-0. Trevor Szymanski snapped in five goals, and Kevin Massacar, Nathan Steiner and Nick Kuhl added the other goals.

U-10 House

Thunderbolts 4, Cadillacs 3 Steve Champine scored four times and Jess Thibodeau booted one goal to overcome a 2-0 deficit. John Clark and J.R. Hiller combined for the win in net.

Thunderbolts 2, Hurricanes 1

Fritz Schippert scored on an assist from Champine, and then Schippert assisted Champine's goal. John Cloidke and Jason Thomsen were strong defensively.

Patrick Howe scored the lone Cane goal.

Eagles 3, Hurricanes 2 Emil Ditrapani scored twice and Brandon Euashka tallied once for the Eagles. John Staniszewski and Howe scored for the Hurricanes, on assists from Brad Cenko and Tom Pozios.

Panthers 2, Stingers 1

Our Lady Queen of Peace Panthers' goals were scored by Dennaro DiMaso. Don Sigler booted one in for the Stingers. Charlie Westropp and Luke Patrick played well on defense for the Stingers.

Panthers 2, Green

Machine 1

DiMaso and Gianluigi teamed up to provide the margin of victory for the Panthers.

Greg Peppler score for the Green Machine, while Brian Lorey, Mario Viviani and Joe Choma played well.

Green Machine 3, Raiders 0 Ian Watt, Greg Peppler and T.J. Lennon scored the hat trick. Brian Lorey teamed up on defense.

Playing well for the Raiders were Francis Rodriquez and Matt Kenney.

Strikers 2, Nightmares 1 On a cross assist from Mike Pattyn, Mark Zurschmiede scored for the Nightmares. Steve Davis was tough in net.

U-12 House

Express 3, Demons 2 Netting two goals for the Express was Brian Brown, Evan Tanner added the margin of victory. Bill Drummy turned in a strong game offensively. The Demons' goals were scored by Jim Malinowski and Stephen Lentine. Red Vipers 2,

Les Viperes' Rouges kept their win alive with strong defense. Ben Gerds and Dan Strable scored for the winners. Rocky Bryant scored for the Roadrunners on assists from Berc Backhurst and Adam Bramlage. Paul

Yellow Jackets, 5-2

Tim Frendo and Jack Lorey scored twice, and Peter Birgbauer tallied once to zip the win for the Jackets. Chris Georgandellis anchored the defense and goalie Doug Marschke played well.

U-12 Premier

Although they lost to the Thunderbolts, the G.P. Falcons played well. Tim Reynaert

U-12 Major

Nick Rutan and Matt Agnone scored twice each to give the G.P. Rebels a 5-2 win over the SUSA Bullets.

Rutan scored once and a fluke goal gave the Rebels a 2-2 tie. In the next game, Brendan Thomas scored twice and Aaron Zurschmeide scored in a 4-3 loss to Fraser's Red Barons.
