

Woods bans pit bulls; amendment effective Monday

By John Minnis
Staff Writer
Pit bull owners in Grosse Pointe Woods have through Sunday to get rid of their dogs or face having the animals impounded, according to amendments adopted by the council Monday.

Reacting to concerns of some 30 residents who attended the meeting, the council unanimously amended its animal control ordinances to prohibit the "owning, harboring or keeping" any animals known by the various names of pit bull terrier or "any strains thereof."

The pit bull ban will be enforced five days after it has been properly posted, according to law. The city planned on posting the ordinance in 36 places throughout the city Tuesday. That means the five-day period would end Sunday.

In order to add some teeth to the pit bull ban, the council also amended an ordinance which allows the city to impound animals with rabies or animals who have bitten someone.

The amendment to the impoundment provisions will allow the city to immediately impound any dog it believes is a pit bull terrier or any strain thereof.

The grassroots movement to ban pit bulls in the Woods was headed by resident Donna Dunn, who gave a well-researched report to the council and received the applause of her backers at the meeting. She said she is satisfied with the council's ban on pit bulls.

"I'm proud of the city of Grosse Pointe Woods for taking a stand on something a lot of people are afraid to do," she said.

Dunn, who lives on Lancaster and is a registered nurse, came to the meeting prepared with a written speech and 200 petition signatures urging the council to ban pit bulls.

She pointed out to the council that the city's existing vicious animal ordinance only allows the city to do something about a dangerous dog after it has bitten someone.

"This 'one free bite' concept of dog control cannot continue," she said. "We are asking the city of Grosse Pointe Woods to set the example for other communities rather than donate one of our children to be the example."

Dunn referred to the pit bull attack on a 4-year-old Pontiac boy last month. She also referred to other pit bull attacks around the country. She said that of the eight human deaths caused by dogs in 1987, seven were caused by pit bulls. Three of the deaths were children, two of which were caused by the family pet.

She ended her speech to the council by quoting one of the signs carried by a woman when Waterford Township was considering its ban on pit bulls. She said, "Our children are not dog food."

Dunn and her neighbors became active in the fight to get pit bulls banned last week when a new family owning a pit bull moved into their Lancaster neighborhood. Dunn said the pit bull has already lunged at a little girl and has tried to dig underneath the 6-foot fence.

Dunn said that while it is commendable that the new neighbors built the fence, she doubted any fence can contain a pit bull all the time. She also said the neighbors let the pit bull loose in the front yard, posing a threat to the 24 children in the neighborhood.

The family owning the pit bull on Lancaster could not be reached for comment.

After hearing that a pit bull was running loose in the city, Mayor George Freeman ordered City Administrator-Clerk Chester Petersen to remind Public Safety Director Jack Patterson that all dog ordinances are to be strictly enforced, which includes the mandate that dogs are to be on a leash at all times when out Amendment would restrict Mack Avenue business-residence use

By John Minnis
Staff Writer

Tougher restrictions on combined residential and business uses in homes on Mack Avenue are being proposed by the Grosse Pointe Woods Planning Commission.

The ordinance amendment approved by the commission Sept. 27 would make a professional business allowed in a single-family home on Mack only if the business is owned and operated by the resident.

Voting 5 to 2 in favor of the amendment to the "mixed occupancy" ordinance, the commission sent the proposal to the city council for further discussion and approval or denial.

The existing mixed occupancy ordinance allows physician, dentist and real estate offices in single-family structures on Mack that are simultaneously used as residences.

The ordinance amendment, if approved by the council, would add a lawyer's office as an acceptable use. But while the amendment permits an additional office use, it also adds more restrictions to all the office uses.

The amendment will limit mixed occupancy on Mack to only one of accepted business uses. A Mack homeowner and resident, for example, couldn't have doctor, dentist, real estate and law offices in his home at one time. The amendment limits mixed occupancy to just one professional use, such as one lawyer, one real estate office or one doctor or dentist.

Furthermore, the professional using the office must also be the resident in the home. A resident on Mack, for example, couldn't lease office space to another person, such as a doctor or lawyer.

The city began looking at changing the mixed occupancy ordinance at the request of Thomas Handlos Real Estate.

Handlos wanted the lawyer profession added to acceptable uses so it would be easier to lease space at the Handlos office residence at Hollywood and Mack. While a law office use was added by the ordinance amendment, Thomas Handlos told the planning commission he objected to the amendment.

He said he was opposed to the amendment because it limits business use at the Mack address to just his real estate office. It would prevent him from leasing office space to others, he said, as a landlord he would be worse off than he is now.

The planners, however, were against loosening the restrictions on mixed occupancy.

Commissioner Robert Fraley said that if multiple businesses were allowed simultaneously, then the mixed occupancy home would simply become an office building. He believed the original intent of the ordinance was to allow a homeowner on Mack who would run the business at home.

Susan Stewart says the worst thing about television is that "it's mindless and numbing." The best thing about television, according to Stewart, is that "it's mindless and numbing."

She ought to know what's the best and worst about television. Stewart has been the television critic for the Detroit Free Press since January 1987, covering television from the debates to miniseries to comedies to dramas.

Not being a big television watcher when she was growing up, Stewart's view of television is not what one might normally expect from a critic.

For example, at the end of a review for a documentary which she said did not give as much information as it could have, she suggested that viewers fill in the holes by reading a book.

To answer some questions that might come immediately to the minds of many readers: No, she doesn't have a big screen television, nor a TV in every room of her house. No, she doesn't have a television remote control on a string around her neck. Yes, she is as funny and charming in person as she is in print.

Stewart grew up in Virginia, earning a bachelor's degree in journalism from the University of Georgia, and a master's in English from the University of Virginia.

She worked at newspapers in Atlanta and Dallas where she was a general columnist, which she says gave her license to "spout off three days a week."

She moved to Philadelphia where she was the celebrity gossip columnist. ("It was better than it sounds," she said.) She still marvels that she got paid for reading People Magazine.

During her time in Philadelphia, she had the terrible job of choosing the 10 sexiest men of the year as a freelance project for US magazine.

While in Philly she did some television reporting on celebrity comings and goings to help pay the bills during a six-week newspaper strike.

She calls it "the hardest thing I've ever done. I spent 12 hours feverishly preparing for two min-

Soccer program gets a boost

By John Minnis
Staff Writer

Two new soccer fields will be built at Barnes School, replacing the existing field which is flooded much of the time and unuseable.

After a public hearing Sept. 27, the Grosse Pointe Woods Planning Commission approved the soccer fields at the school at Morningside and Shoreham.

According to Grosse Pointe school officials, the one existing field at Barnes is unplayable for days or weeks at a time in the spring and fall due to poor drainage and flooding.

Also, the school district and local soccer associations need another field for their expanding programs. There are currently about 1,800 children involved in soccer programs in the Pointes.

Plans call for adding drainage and irrigation to the land at the school and building one large soccer field for matches and a smaller field for practice and emergency use if one of the other fields in the Pointes is unuseable.

The project is being planned and financed by the Grosse Pointe School System, the Neighborhood Club, the Girls Soccer Association and the Grosse Pointe Soccer Association.

One resident was opposed to the extra soccer field. She said the traffic on Morningside was already bad enough without adding more activities at Barnes.

School and soccer officials, however, believed the soccer activities would not add that much more traffic to the area.

Planning Commissioner Robert Fraley favored the soccer field renovation. He said it would clean up the area by removing brush, and it was consistent with the school's playground functions.

While he sympathized with the traffic on Morningside, he said the street is going to carry a lot of traffic because it is a thoroughfare and because of the number of schools in the area. He didn't believe an extra soccer field would noticeably add to the problem.

By a 6-2 vote the commission approved the new soccer fields. Since no other approvals were needed, the school and soccer officials can begin work at the Barnes School fields.

St. John-Bon Secours Senior Community dedicated

By John Minnis
Staff Writer

Dedication ceremonies for the $28 million St. John-Bon Secours Senior Community were held Friday, featuring such dignitaries as Bishop Patrick Cooney and state Sen. John Kelly.

The groundbreaking for the first phase of the project was April 27, and now the center at East Warren and Canyon has 38 residents and 12 patients.

The senior community is a joint venture between two local Catholic health-care systems: St. Clair Health Corp., parent company of St. John Hospital, and Bon Secours of Michigan.

According to officials speaking at the dedication, the most honored are the senior citizens now living at the center. In fact, the highlight of the ceremonies was the symbolic cutting of a ribbon on a Douglas blue spruce by the center's first resident: Vera Turner.

Turner cut the ribbon amid applause, clicking cameras and with the assistance of Dale Pelton, the center's chief executive officer/administrator.

Bishop Cooney, of the Archdiocese of Detroit, praised the two hospitals and the sisters of St. John and Bon Secours for their efforts in bringing about the senior community.

He said the individuals responsible for the center responded to a need in the community and then took the risk to fill the need.

Kelly said the senior community is "an effort to provide quality living for those in the twilight of life."

A tour of the facility reveals quality inside and out.

The senior community is on the former campus of Wayne County Community College. The completed first phase included the construction of a 150-bed facility for those requiring full-time nursing care and a complete renovation of the former Austin Catholic High School into a 100-bed assisted-care building.

The exterior of the senior community buildings is a cream color that looks pleasing among the rolling lawns of the campus. The interior is all in bright, cheerful colors. Each floor has a different dominant color scheme.

The center includes extra services, such as an ice cream parlor, gift shop, beauty salon/barber shop, large screen television, a chapel and a restaurant-type dining room as elegant as those in upscale hotels.

The second phase will include 150 one- and two-bedroom independent housing units. Construction of the second phase is expected to begin next year and be completed in mid-1990.

Costs for staying at the center as an assisted-care resident are $950 per month for a semi-private room and $1,500 for private. For nursing care, the costs are $68 per day for semi-private and $110 for a private room.

Commenting on the significance of the tree featured in the dedication of the senior community, Stephen Rallison, chief executive officer of Bon Secours of Michigan, said:

"The tree reminds us of the times and seasons of life and the changes of this building (Austin High School) and the community."

He also pointed out that the senior community provides 200 jobs and stability and new growth for the neighborhood.

The St. John-Bon Secours Senior Community is on the former campus of Wayne County Community College on East Warren. The part of the building to the right is the former Austin Catholic High School, now unrecognizable due to the complete renovation and facelift.

New group formed to promote recycling

Recycling in Grosse Pointe will enter an expanded phase this week with the organizational meeting of a new group, tentatively named Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling.

Scheduled for 7:30 p.m., Monday, Oct. 10, at the Brownell Middle School Library at 260 Chalfonte, Grosse Pointe Farms, the meeting is for all eastside residents who support conserving our resources and recycling solid wastes.

The new group will build on achievements of the Grosse Pointe Recycling Coalition, which has found high public interest in the field. Coalition members are the Grosse Pointe League of Women Voters, Council of Grosse Pointe Garden Clubs, American Association of University Women Grosse Pointe Branch, Grosse Pointe School System Department of Community Education, and Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church.

Accomplishments of the coalition and its members include the successful Community Newspaper Recycling Center at University Liggett School on Cook Road at Chalfonte, a municipal composting workshop, and a backyard composting seminar (tonight, Oct. 6) with Community Education. Thoughts for the future include a household hazardous waste seminar in the winter Community Education schedule, further composting efforts, a lending library of materials, and investigation of plastic recycling.

A committee has formulated proposed bylaws to present for adoption to the Oct. 10 meeting. Officers will be elected, and reports made on what has been accomplished so far. Plans for the future will be made.

Purposes of the new group will be to promote recycling as a means of reducing the volume of trash now burnt or landfilled; to educate the community to the benefits of recycling; and to persuade local authorities to include recycling as part of their waste management plans.

For further information, call 881-9588 or 886-3078.

The senior community's first resident, Vera Turner, cuts a ribbon on the symbolic spruce tree with the assistance of Dale Pelton, the center's administrator, during dedications ceremonies Friday.

Pre-employment drug tests rare in Grosse Pointes

By Margie Reins Smith
Staff Writer

Apparently, the majority of Grosse Pointe employers don't believe that substance abuse is a major problem among employees. A poll of three hospitals, one nursing home, the public school system and the five departments of public safety, found that only two of these employers had a pre-employment drug testing program.

Ronald Tonks, director of personnel for the Grosse Pointe schools, said the district has never considered a pre-employment drug test for any of its 800 employees — teachers, administrators, aides, plant employees or secretaries. "There's been no evidence that there's been a problem," he said. "Nobody has ever complained."

Spokesmen for the three Grosse Pointe hospitals said drug tests are not required for new employees. However, all said that individual employees may be asked to submit to tests if there was reason to suspect that drugs were interfering with their work.

Mike Kairis, spokesman for St. John Hospital, said the hospital has never thought drug testing was necessary. "We rely on other screening devices — reference checks and interviews, for example — and these have been effective."

David Mitchell, vice president of Human Resources at Cottage Hospital, said the hospital does not require drug tests now. "We're looking into it. More than likely it will be a future requirement. It's becoming more and more of a priority for us."

Tom Conley, director of Human Resources for Bon Secours, said the hospital has 1,500 employees. About 35 or 40 percent of these are nurses. "The only reason for a drug test," he said, "would be if there was a reasonable cause to suspect an employee is using something that is interfering with his work. We have a policy against narcotics and alcohol, but we don't get involved in people's personal lives."

"We encourage use of our employee assistance program," he said. "It's an option our employees have if they need it."

Pat Shannon, R.N., in-service director of Georgian East Nursing Home, said that they are not aware of any problem with drugs and employees. "Sometime we may consider (testing) but not now," she said.

Grosse Pointe Woods and Shores have a required drug test as part of their requirements for new public safety department employees. The other three Grosse Pointes do not.

Shores Director of Public Safety Daniel Healy said all new employees are tested for everything as part of a comprehensive initial physical exam.

One of the tough issues facing the Supreme Court this term is whether mandatory drug testing is an unreasonable invasion of personal privacy. Can an employer ask applicants to undergo drug testing as a requirement for employment?

"In lieu of a decision by the U.S. Supreme Court, we won't be doing anything otherwise," Healy said. "You can't grab people and say, 'I'm going to test you for drugs. We need some indication or probable cause. Most of us are awaiting guidelines for random testing.'"

Woods Public Safety Director Jack Patterson said his department tests for illegal drugs as part of its pre-employment requirements. "We also send people to a psychologist for screening," he said. "We've never seen the need for ongoing testing."

"These (pre-employment) tests are a necessary means to assure we have the proper employee for the job that a public safety officer has to do."

Robert Ferber, Farms public safety director, said the city has been considering testing for marijuana, LSD, heroin and cocaine as a pre-employment screen for the last three years. But so far, he said, they do no such tests.

Grosse Pointe Deputy Director Richard Clarke said new employees undergo a complete physical and blood samples are taken at that time, "but there's not an ongoing testing program at this time. We're thinking about it."

In the Park, Capt. William Furtaw said no drug tests are done on employees. "We see no need for it," he said. "We haven't seen any abuse. If we did, we'd do tests. It really comes down to the legality of testing."

Farms settles public safety contract

By John Minnis
Staff Writer

The first public safety contract for Grosse Pointe Farms was approved by the city council Monday night, after it was ratified by police and firefighters Sept. 28.

City Clerk Richard Solak said the agreement included some improvements in benefits for the officers and wages comparable to those paid in the other Grosse Pointes' public safety departments.

Public safety officers with 42 months with the department will receive an annual salary of $33,600 in July 1988, $34,800 in 1989 and $36,200 in 1990.

The 3 1/2-year contract is retroactive to Jan. 1, 1988, and runs through June 30, 1991.

The contract improvements included increased holiday pay, pension benefits, hospitalization insurance at retirement and more vacation time in the latter years of the contract.

"I think it was a fair and equitable contract," said Public Safety Director Robert Ferber. "Both sides gave and took a little."

He said his department became operational as a public safety contingent on Sept. 29. All of the police officers have completed the beginning firefighters training course, he said.

Firefighters will have option of receiving training as police officers or remaining fire specialists. One firefighter has volunteered for police training, Ferber said.

While not all firefighters will want to become cross-trained in police procedures and, therefore, become public safety officers, Solak said trained public safety officers will be hired to replace firefighters who retire or voluntarily quit.

In the meantime, Solak said the firefighter specialists will be a valuable asset for training police officers and public safety officers the more advanced techniques of fire control.

"We feel the continued fire specialist positions will be advantageous for the short term of training," Solak said.

Ferber said the officers will continue training in fire and police procedures. With the contract approved, he said the department will continue fine tuning the public safety organization. He said fire and police commanders are meeting to work out the details of operation.

"I'm really proud of them," Ferber said of his police and fire personnel. "Our folks are responding well to the training."

Woods man hurt while fending off break-in attempt

A Grosse Pointe Woods resident was injured in the early morning hours Saturday when he fought off a man and a woman who were attempting to break into his home.

The man was asleep at about 3:30 a.m. at his home in the 800 block of Sunningdale when his dog started barking while someone was trying to get in the front door.

When the resident asked who was at the door, a woman told him to call the police because she had just been molested. When the man opened the door to see if he could be of any assistance, the woman sprayed a Mace-like substance in the homeowner's face.

While the woman and a male accomplice tried to get in, the resident kicked the woman in the chest and was able to slam the door shut. The man and woman fled on foot.

The homeowner received a cut on a forearm from what police speculate to be a weapon used by the male suspect.

The Woods resident tried to pursue the suspects in his car but couldn't find them again. He called Woods police, but a search of the area failed to turn up the suspects.

The man and woman were both described as black, in their mid-20s and wearing blue jeans. The man wore a dark waist-length jacket and was unshaven and thought to be about 5 feet, 8 inches. The woman wore a dark-colored windbreaker and was about 5 feet, 3 inches tall.

Driver mired in Marter's fresh cement

A motorist found herself stuck — literally — last week in the middle of freshly poured cement on Marter Street in Grosse Pointe Woods, according to police reports.

At 4:05 p.m. the driver was traveling southbound on Marter when she approached road construction signs. She veered into what is normally the northbound lane in order to get around barricades.

At this point she saw headlights of a northbound vehicle traveling in what is normally the southbound lane. She assumed she was to continue in the north lane, and in the confusion, failed to notice the road closed sign intended to stop vehicles from continuing in the regular northbound lane.

Before she knew it, she was sitting in the middle of a stretch of newly poured roadway with cement up to the bottom of the car's doors. When Woods Public Safety officers arrived, the woman was sitting in the vehicle and wondering what to do next.

Construction workers, who had been smoothing out the cement when the driver interrupted their work, used a tractor and chains to pull the car out. They washed the cement from the car and its underside as best they could, and they advised the motorist that the car "needed quick and special attention to avoid severe damage to the vehicle when the cement dried." According to workers, the cement was "of a quick-drying variety."

The foreman of the road construction crew said the road closed barricade was out of place because it was moved when the cement truck had poured the cement, just minutes before the unfortunate motorist came along.

The foreman was advised by a public safety officer to get the barricades back in place and make sure they were properly lighted.

Sabbaday Falls in New Hampshire's White Mountains appears misty and dreamlike in this Monte Nagler photograph. His secret — six second time exposure on a steady tripod.

Photography

By Monte Nagler

Make your pictures 'flow'

LONG SHUTTER SPEEDS can produce striking photographs — a motion and give you special effects not obtainable with faster shutter speeds.

Shooting a waterfall, for example, at a fast speed to "freeze" the water in mid-air is fine. But imagine the dramatic effect you can achieve by using a very slow shutter speed. The water will appear a blur, with an almost misty, dreamy mood captured on your film.

Pictures using slow shutter speeds are easy to obtain. You'll need a sturdy tripod and cable release to do the job. Compose, focus, and adjust to the smallest aperture the lens will allow so that the meter will call for as long a shutter speed as possible. Water will begin to show the effects of motion at speeds of one-half second, although even slower shutter speeds are more desirable.

If your meter indicates too fast a shutter speed, try a slower ASA film or attach a polarizer or neutral density filter to the front of the lens. The density of these filters will reduce the amount of light reaching the film, necessitating a much slower speed to attain correct exposure. Most likely you'll have to set your shutter speed dial on "B" where the shutter remains open as long as you depress the cable release. Because your camera's meter may not function in the "B" setting, just determine an exposure combination with a wide aperture and extrapolate to the required shutter speed at the small lens opening. Add some extra time for reciprocity failure (the inability of film to respond to low levels of light), and a perfect exposure will be yours. How much extra exposure for reciprocity? Just double the pre-determined shutter speed.

Don't forget other exciting picture possibilities that will put motion in your photographs. Automobile headlights and taillights make fascinating patterns at night when your camera is left on "bulb." Just use as a medium lens opening and you'll get proper exposure.

Even try removing your camera from your tripod and hand-held, but using a long exposure to deliberately add motion to your picture. The results will surprise you!

Debate didn't change minds but why not?

Despite all the TV hoopla and promotion, perhaps the most surprising result of the first Bush-Dukakis debate was that it apparently changed few minds.

An ABC News-Washington Post public opinion poll taken on the Monday and Tuesday following the debate found that 50 percent of the respondents favored George Bush and 46 percent backed Michael Dukakis. Those percentages were the same as those reported by the same pollsters just before the debate.

The New York Times quoted Jeff Alderman, director of polling for ABC News, as saying "the debate was a big washout in terms of shifting voter opinions." He added that "90 percent of the people seemed to stay with the candidate they favored before the debate."

Such a reaction apparently reflected the bland nature of the debate and its failure to dig deeply into the basic issues. Each candidate seemed to be more interested in scoring debating points against the other than in setting forth specifically what his own presidential agenda would be.

Some experts had a different explanation.

It is that most people have their minds made up by Labor Day or shortly thereafter and therefore it takes a cataclysmic event to change their minds. In this view, the debate wasn't that important an event.

True, in the debate as on the campaign trail, both candidates seem to be moving toward the middle of the road. Bush appears to be making more of an effort to appeal to people's concerns and somewhat softening his view that in most non-military matters the government should adopt a laissez-faire attitude. Dukakis is emerging as a defender of middle-class values and a supporter of an adequate defense and not just as a competent manager.

Inconclusive as it may have been, the debate still is a worthwhile part of the presidential campaign. It gives the American viewer and listener an opportunity to see and hear each candidate in a different light than when he appears in a brief TV news clip or even briefer TV political advertisement.

Unfortunately, the political consultants and the TV advisers have drained the debate of much of its spontaneity and substance by supplying each of the candidates with a bag of one-liners and comments that do little to enlighten the audience about what the candidates would think or do in specific situations.

On the campaign trail, Bush has been more presidential and more aggressive than he was during the primaries, but even some Republicans think he has overdone his criticism of Dukakis for refusing to sign a Massachusetts bill requiring teachers to lead their students in the Pledge of Allegiance and his attacks on the Massachusetts governor for being "a card-carrying member of the ACLU."

That criticism seems to have been supported nationally and in Michigan by the claims by American Civil Liberties Union leaders that the organization has experienced a rise in memberships and contributions as a result of the new prominence Bush has given to it.

Dukakis has become more energetic since the polls began showing him trailing the vice president but he, too, has been under criticism for not responding more directly to Bush's assaults on his supposedly extreme liberalism and for his failure to spell out specifically how he would deal with the huge federal budget deficit which he deplores.

In Republican Grosse Pointe, Vice President Bush no doubt will win with a big majority in the general election just as he did in the GOP presidential primary in 1980 when he defeated Ronald Reagan here and statewide. Yet in Michigan it could be a different story this year.

Recent public opinion polls indicate the Michigan contest will be a close one, and if R.W. Apple, the New York Times top political reporter, is correct, Dukakis may be gaining in this state. Apple found on a visit to Michigan last week that Dukakis finally seems to have patched up his differences with Jesse Jackson's backers and is winning the black support that earlier had been cool to his campaign. If that is true, the 13 percent of the voting population that is black could be crucial in Michigan.

With all four of the presidential and vice presidential nominees criss-crossing the state as the election nears, perhaps in the remaining month of the campaign they will deal more directly with not only the major issues of peace and prosperity but the needs and concerns of all American citizens, whether they are in the underclass, the middle class or the upper class of our supposedly classless society.

But don't count on it.

Requiem for a class act

It was appropriate that Darrell Evans, a Grosse Pointe resident, hit the single that scored the Tigers' winning run in the 11th inning last Sunday and gave Detroit a clean sweep of the Yankees in the final series of 1988.

It was appropriate because Evans, at 41, probably made his last appearance at the plate in a Detroit uniform since it is unlikely he will be signed for another season by the Tigers. It was also appropriate that Evans in his final game made an important contribution to a Tiger victory, because he often has done so in his seasons here.

In his five years with the Tigers, Evans has become one of the most popular players with both the team and fans. Typical of the tributes paid to him were those in last Sunday's Detroit Free Press feature, "A class act," that referred to his role on the field and in the clubhouse.

"Evans has personified professionalism and will continue to do so if he isn't with the Tigers next season," Drew Sharp wrote in his Sunday feature. "That's evident when teammates describe Evans with just one word — class."

Batting coach Vada Pinson added his tribute, according to Sharp, in these words: "Darrell epitomizes what a professional is supposed to be all about. That's bound to leave a lasting impression on others."

Evans impressed even the Yankees. It was a Yankee outfielder, Joel Skinner, who recovered the ball that Evans hit for the game-winning run. He gave it to Sparky Anderson to deliver to Evans with the comment, "I think Darrell would like this."

Evans had to struggle this year to maintain a batting average above .200, finishing with .208 but he did get five home runs and 11 RBI to help revive the Tigers in the last weeks of the season. He went over 400 in career home runs, hitting another 22 this season and leading the Tigers in homers for the fourth consecutive year. He also was sixth in the league in walks, indicating opposing pitchers still feared his bat and that he still had a good eye, and he batted in 64 runs, which tied him for second, only five behind team leader Alan Trammell.

"I take a tremendous amount of pride in maintaining a certain level of performance in spite of being 41," Evans told his Free Press interviewer. "People ask how I can keep doing it. You've got to understand that I'm living a dream that few people can enjoy, and I won't leave until I'm forced out."

Whether Evans can continue as a player is problematic, but baseball ought to keep him in the game in some capacity. He's a great professional who has been an inspiration to his fellow players, a role model for youngsters aiming at a career in the game and a great favorite of the fans. He surely deserves the praise being heaped on him as the season ends and perhaps his career as well.

Library plans move ahead

Now that the location of a new library building has been recommended, the newly renamed Grosse Pointe Library and Finance Committee is beginning to refine its plans for future library services in the community.

A major consideration is the amount of money needed if and when a new structure is erected on the recommended site on land near the southwest corner of the Brownell Middle School at Chalfonte. Informally, the committee has talked of a cap of $6 million, but it also is considering a fundraising campaign to limit the amount of public funds required.

In fact, library Director Charles Hanson told us that the committee is already working with a Chicago firm to make a preliminary study of the feasibility of fundraising among private citizens, corporations and foundations. One of the aims of such a preliminary study would be to determine just how much money such a campaign could reasonably be expected to raise for the library.

The proposed $6 million cap would be substantially less than the $8.625 million bond issue that was defeated last November, but that included not only a major addition to the Central Library but substantial improvements at both of the branches.

Among other issues facing the committee is whether the library system will be enlarged from three to four buildings or whether to continue with three. Either way, the committee also will decide whether each library will provide distinct services or whether some programs will continue to be offered at all of the libraries.

For example, the committee might consider whether it will offer children's programs at all three or maintain the Central Library as the center of the children's programs. Or, in another example proposed by Hanson for discussion purposes, one branch might store all of the videocassettes and even provide a drive-in window to relieve parking and to speed service.

The Board of Education, which must approve the plans and any bond issue that is proposed because the library is under its jurisdiction, is working closely with the library committee and both are seeking to avoid any mistakes that might jeopardize a second proposed bond issue.

So far it appears to us that both groups are being careful to try to meet the library's needs with an investment consistent with the community's double concerns about the quality of service and the costs of expansion.

To recovering teens

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to extend an open invitation to the recovering teenagers of the Grosse Pointes and surrounding areas. On Friday, Oct. 21, we will be celebrating our 26th anniversary, 26 years of helping and loving each other. Twenty six years of knowing that our greatest support comes from each other and the sometimes seemingly small group of non-affected people who understand our illness and applaud our courage in combating it.

I have been following the ongoing story in the Grosse Pointe News of the problem you are having in finding a site for an out-patient counseling center to provide for you the professional services needed to maintain your sobriety and a place where you can know you will be welcome and cared for.

Please, don't think you are completely alone and unsupported in your community. There are many people who care deeply about you and your struggle. People who know that recovery from alcoholism and chemical dependency is a lifelong battle, needing love, support and acceptance.

I know that those people are there where you live. If it was not for those people, this place most probably would not be here now. For it was the generous, caring and concerned people of Grosse Pointe who have donated and supported us more than once in the past two years enabling us to keep our doors open.

We would like you to come to our celebration, would like you to be a part of our family and our party. We will pick you up and drive you home. Just please, come join us. You need to know that we are here for you, that you are not alone. We will share our sobriety and love, if you will share your youth, your energy... and your dance steps.

Yes on B

To the Editor:

Please urge your readers to vote "yes" on Proposal B. The Crime Victim's Rights Constitutional Amendment, sponsored by the Hon. William Van Regenmorter. This constitutional amendment will appear on the November ballot. This amendment is essential because it assures reasonable protection for victims of crimes, including those injured by drunk driving crashes.

What does it protect victims from? It gives them reasonable protection from the accused throughout the criminal justice process. It gives them the right to restitution, as well as the right to make an impact statement to the court at sentencing. My mind's flotsam & jetsam Feeling entirely uncreative these days, I was having a problem coming up with one single topic for this column, so what follows are some "things" ("thoughts" is too strong a word that popped into my head this week.

The Weather

The Ups and the Downs: The weather has been the news story all year, from the record lows last winter to the record highs this summer. The change from summer to fall is nice for a few reasons. Not only does it bring with it football weather, it brings with it football. And it's also nice to know that everyone who had the summer off while we were all working is getting up early now too. Go ahead, call me petty, it's true.

Election year

The Bad and the Ugly: You guess who's who. While watching the debates, I had some questions: Are these really grown men who want to run our country? Why can't Michael Dukakis hold his head up straight? And is it just me or was everyone else aware that George Bush knows simply everything, and he was just playing dumb all this time. By the way, if the Pledge of Allegiance is to be the major campaign issue, and a meaningful issue it is, candidates better learn how to say it. There is no pause between "nation" and "under" so the phrase should be "onenationunderGod," not "one nation" (pause) "under God." Once I threw off a whole city council by saying it correctly. I'm not bragging, I just wasn't sure how to end this paragraph.

Olympics

The Pride and the Pits: Watching the Olympics is always an experience. This year is no exception what with Greg Louganis boinking his head on the diving board and still winning the gold to Ben Johnson running faster than anyone ever and being stripped of his.

It's always more interesting to watch them on Channel 9 from Canada because you get a totally different view. Not to mention the fact that you actually get to watch some sporting events, and not just features on the athletes. Boy, those Canadians are innovative.

Ray Mercer, the boxer who grew up in an impoverished area and overcame a bad past, was not supposed to be at the Olympics. He won the gold medal. And that is what the Olympics are all about.

What never ceases to amaze me is the reactions to the games and their athletes. Otherwise enlightened, intelligent, well-bred and open-minded people cannot make it through watching track and field events without mentioning the hair under the European women's arms. Watch the Olympics in a bar, and there's a never-ending stream of remarks. Watch them at home and there's always a snicker from somebody. And when you go to work, people can't remember who won or what her time was, but they all remember her armpits. Hey, I warned you.

Weddings

The Tears and the Cheers: My sister was married two weeks ago amid much crying and celebrating. Years of planning, hoping and dreaming ended by a bunch of drunks bidding farewell to two people, tired and sweaty from too much dancing. Which reminds me of the saying, "If it were not for the presents, an elopement would be preferable."

Comics

The Zeros and Heros: Charlie Brown, the little boy who once described himself as "not a zero, but rather a .00001" turned 38 on Oct. 2. Isn't it about time he got The Little Redheaded Girl? I still laugh every time Marcie calls Peppermint Patty "Sir" and when Patty calls Charlie "Chuck." Don't ask me why.

There, my mind is free of clutter. Now maybe I can get back to work on something constructive.

Yesterday's Headlines

Oct. 4, 1979 — The New York Times reported that 19,000 teenagers gathered in Madison Square Garden to greet Pope John Paul II. They cheered and chanted and competed with school yells until, the paper said, "the pope's eyebrows danced and his broad face beamed." Then he began to coo, "woo, woo, woo," humming the Polish equivalent of "wow." The pontiff told the crowd that a city needs a soul to be a home. Earlier, he had warned a crowd in Philadelphia against sexual laxity. President Carter personally interceded to persuade prime minister Menachem Begin to see the Rev. Ask the experts Visitors to Detroit have been asking basically the same questions for the last 10 years — the Detroit Visitor Information Center says.

- The center celebrated its 10th anniversary last month. OK, smarties. How many answers do you know?
1. How deep is the Detroit River?
 2. What is the highest point in Michigan?
 3. Is Detroit at sea level?
 4. Where is the Renaissance Center?
 5. What is Greenwich Village?
- Answers are at the end of this column.

McWish McGranted

Rachel Fried, 6, of Grosse Pointe Woods, will miss a few days of school this week. She's going to Chicago to fulfill her wish to co-star in a commercial with Ronald McDonald. McDonald's Make a Wish Foundation (their business is granting wishes for very sick children) heard from Rachel that her fondest desire was to be in a McDonald's commercial. Wish granted. Rachel has kidney cancer.

She's undergoing chemotherapy and has a good prognosis. She also looks like a good McActress.

Cents-able sonnets

Financial planner Monte Korn was ready to talk about money at 7:30 p.m. last Thursday. It was the first of a series of three lectures about financial matters sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Public Library. A well-known weekly newspaper, however, printed the wrong starting time. Not to worry. "It wouldn't have been fair to start early," Korn said. "People arriving at 8 p.m. would have missed half the lecture." So Korn recited poetry for a half hour. From memory. Librarian Jacqueline Michaels said most of Korn's poetic choices had a financial flavor. — Like Wordsworth's, "The world is too much with us; late and soon, getting and spending, we lay waste our powers; little we see in Nature that is ours." "I recited poetry from Swinburne, Keats, Shelley, Tennyson," he said. At 8 p.m. or so, when 40 or 50 people had settled in, Korn got down to the real dollars and cents, as advertised.

Margie Reins Smith

"I was very impressed with the library," he said. "The ambiance; it's a wonderful library; the librarian is doing a wonderful job putting this together. It turned out to be a beautiful evening." Besides owning a financial planning firm, Korn also does an afternoon financial report on WWJ-AM (950) and a two-hour question-and-answer financial program on Saturdays on national radio, WLQV-AM (1500). He's — uh — well-versed in financial matters.  Answers to tough questions about Detroit: 1. The Detroit River is 24 feet deep, right in front of Hart Plaza. 2. The highest point in the state is Mount Curwood (1,980 feet) in the Upper Peninsula. 3. Detroit is 575 feet ABOVE sea level. 4. The RenCen is on East Jefferson between St. Antoine and Randolph Streets. 5. Greenwich Village is a neighborhood in New York City. Visitors probably are referring to Greenfield Village, the outdoor portion of the Americana museum created by Henry Ford I, which is located in Dearborn. public forums. Local judges and city officials were scheduled to speak. The proposal was made by state Sen. John Kelly, who had drafted legislation which he was sure would pass. Locally, the plan was getting mixed reviews, especially from officials who said they feared loss of local control. Kelly's bill was geared to avoid turf battles by establishing two courts with two judges each, so that all of the then-current judges could continue to serve. The Grosse Pointe incinerator received another extension on its permit. The facility was violating air pollution regulations. New, tightened, regulations had gone into effect three months earlier; the incinerator had twice been ordered to shut down and twice received a stay. The Park bought the Dump Bar on Kercheval and was considering a $7,000 bid for its demolition. Officials planned to use the property for a parking lot. Protests of residents stopped the Woods council from re-classifying Morningside to a major street. The change in classification would have prevented parking on both sides of the street. Forty residents showed up at council meetings to complain that a parking ban would lead to increased traffic speeds on the street. The Woods public safety department was facing a state deadline for a new emergency medical service and the director expressed serious concern about being ready in time. The city had already received several extensions and was operating on a temporary license. Time was running out on training the department staff.

the Middle East. Israeli officials were recommending that Begin not meet with Jackson, because they feared he lacked objectivity in Middle East issues. Meanwhile, Jackson had to postpone a meeting with Yassir Arafat when he was hospitalized with stomach pains in Beirut. Members of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission told a Senate hearing that they would have ordered evacuation of communities around Three Mile Island if they had known all the information their staff knew. The hearing was called to investigate the competency of the NRC's decision-making process during the nuclear disaster. "The University of Michigan "applied some political muscle" and got state approval for construction of the new university hospital. The approval of the $240 million hospital, called one of the most expensive ever built, demonstrated the difficulty of holding down medical costs, the Times said. When the university sent its first proposal, for $311 million, to the regional health planning council, the council told them to "go back and re-enter the realm of reality." A second, pared-down, proposal was also rejected, but U of M made an end run around the planning agency and went straight to the legislature, where it gained approval. The health planning council "roared its disapproval and charged it had been 'run over' by political forces."

The Grosse Pointe Community donated some 25,000 books to the fourth St. Clare of Montefalco book sale held the last weekend in September. Sales were up 33 percent from last year. The money goes primarily for enrichment activities within the school.

Patients sought for eating disorder program

The Pediatrics Department of Children's Hospital of Michigan and Wayne State University School of Medicine have recently received funds from the National Institute of Mental Health to treat 40 adolescent patients with an eating disorder defined by either anorexia nervosa or bulimia.

Anorexia nervosa is a life-threatening disease involving self-induced starvation, compulsive dieting, serious weight loss, unrealistic fear of eating and weight gain, and refusal to maintain a normal body weight.

Bulimia is an eating disorder characterized by out-of-control bingeing and eliminating unwanted food through vomiting, using laxatives, or fasting.

Some adolescents may experience both anorexia and bulimia.

Since many adolescents do not recognize when "dieting" may become anorexia or cannot overcome the repetitive binge/purge cycle of bulimia, it is extremely important for parents, physicians, teachers, school counselors, and others to watch for such symptoms as weight loss, refusal to eat, frequent vomiting and spending long periods of time in the bathroom, use of laxative or diuretics.

Participants are being recruited for this program, which requires a family commitment. Program participants will be assigned to either family or individual therapy, will complete a series of questionnaires and will attend weekly treatment sessions. Treatment with an additional year of follow-up care will be provided for approximately one year.

Adolescent females and young adult women ages 11 to 20 who live with both parents and meet the diagnostic requirements for anorexia nervosa or bulimia are eligible.

While the cost of this treatment is valued at $6,000, funding from the National Institute of Mental Health makes treatment available to each patient and family at a reduced rate of less than $1,000. The fees that are charged cover the costs of outpatient medical management. Psychological treatment and dietary consultation are provided at no cost to the family.

Should the patient require hospitalization due to severe medical distress or starvation, the patient, family and/or third party reimbursers will be responsible for these costs.

This is a clinical research study in which two viable alternative outpatient treatments are being compared: family therapy and individual therapy. The therapy sessions in either treatment are structured to assist the patient and her family in getting control of the symptoms of the eating disorder as well as to improve interpersonal functioning. The patient will also receive regular medical and dietary consultation.

The overall goal of each treatment is to improve the patient's physical condition through gradual weight gain for the patients with anorexia and cessation of bingeing and purging for the bulimic patients.

In addition, patients will gradually learn to identify cognitive distortions, recognize and eliminate feelings of inadequacy and depression, and engage in appropriate and constructive family interactions. Participants will restore their weight to healthy levels, learn new eating habits, and overcome fears and anxieties about weight gain, food and eating.

Interested families should be referred to Drs. Arthur Robin or Thomas Koepke, at 745-4878 to obtain further information and to schedule a screening appointment.

viction, sentencing, imprisonment and release of the accused.

One may ask whether these rights are not already assured by the Michigan Crime Victims Rights Act which was passed some time ago, thanks to state Rep. Van Regenmorter. The reason he is sponsoring a state constitutional amendment, in addition to the act, is to protect the law from weakening by the courts, as well as by future legislative action.

The amendment will also shift some of the financial burden for restitution from the taxpayers to the criminal. Currently, state-mandated victim assistance is financed by the state's general fund. Statute and court decisions prevent assessing convicted criminals for restitution to their victims. The amendment will allow modest assessments on convicted criminals, taking some burden from the taxpayers.

This amendment is supported by: The National Organization for Victim Assistance, the National Victim Advocacy Center, Save our Sons and Daughters, The Prosecuting Attorneys Association of Michigan, The Michigan Sheriffs' Association, and Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

Many of our news items have told of cases in which witnesses have been afraid, for good reason, to testify against drug dealers. Journalism abounds with stories of criminals who have gotten completely off the hook because of a minor technicality, or a bleeding-heart jury.

The juries, and the judges, need to hear about how the victims have suffered at the hands of these criminals! Let's shift the balance from sympathy for criminals to sympathy for victims. Let's end the reign of terror that criminals are enjoying in many of our neighborhoods. Please support this amendment and help make the lives of our many good law-abiding citizens more safe and secure.

Have courage

To the Editor:

This letter is written in hopes that it can touch a few people and help them have hope and courage. It is not written to tell my problems or troubles, but what stamina and faith will do.

A few months before I retired three years ago I developed cancer of the larynx (voice box). I had my option to have it operated on or in six months to a year meet my Maker.

I had it verified by a few other doctors and sure enough it was true. Now being a fun-loving guy, I loved being emcee, Santa Claus, telling jokes and doing impersonations. I had to decide, so I had it done, they got rid of the cancer. I was depressed, ashamed to use my speaker. But suddenly I said to myself "The devil with it" and instead of laying in bed feeling sorry for myself, got up and started doing things. After a few years I felt like a new man, then suddenly...

I couldn't swallow, my throat was sore. Sure enough I had gotten a tumor in my throat. Again I had my option to try chemotherapy or my time was limited.

That meant six treatments, four days a month for six months. I had dropped from 180 pounds to 152. Now after four treatments, I'm back to 175 pounds, eat like a horse and am full of pep.

Why? I didn't give up. I find all types of little jobs around the house, I help people who are handicapped around the neighborhood. I take no medication - I find a few bottles of beer is better than 90 percent of all their aspirin.

By the way, I'm past 65 years of age.

It's a real Homecoming for University Liggett

Katie Schervish munches on a hot dog while watching her brother Bill play junior varsity soccer.

University Liggett School hosted Homecoming '88 Saturday for more than 600 students, parents, past parents, alumni and friends.

The event, the school's first homecoming in more than 18 years, was the result of six months of planning by the ULS alumni Board of Governors, whose president is Janet Allen Fruehauf.

It was a perfect fall day to enjoy the six athletic events scheduled. Boys and girls teams from both the middle school and upper school levels played on the Cook Road campus.

The ULS Parents' Association did a booming business at its Logo Store, as did the sophomores with their bake sale.

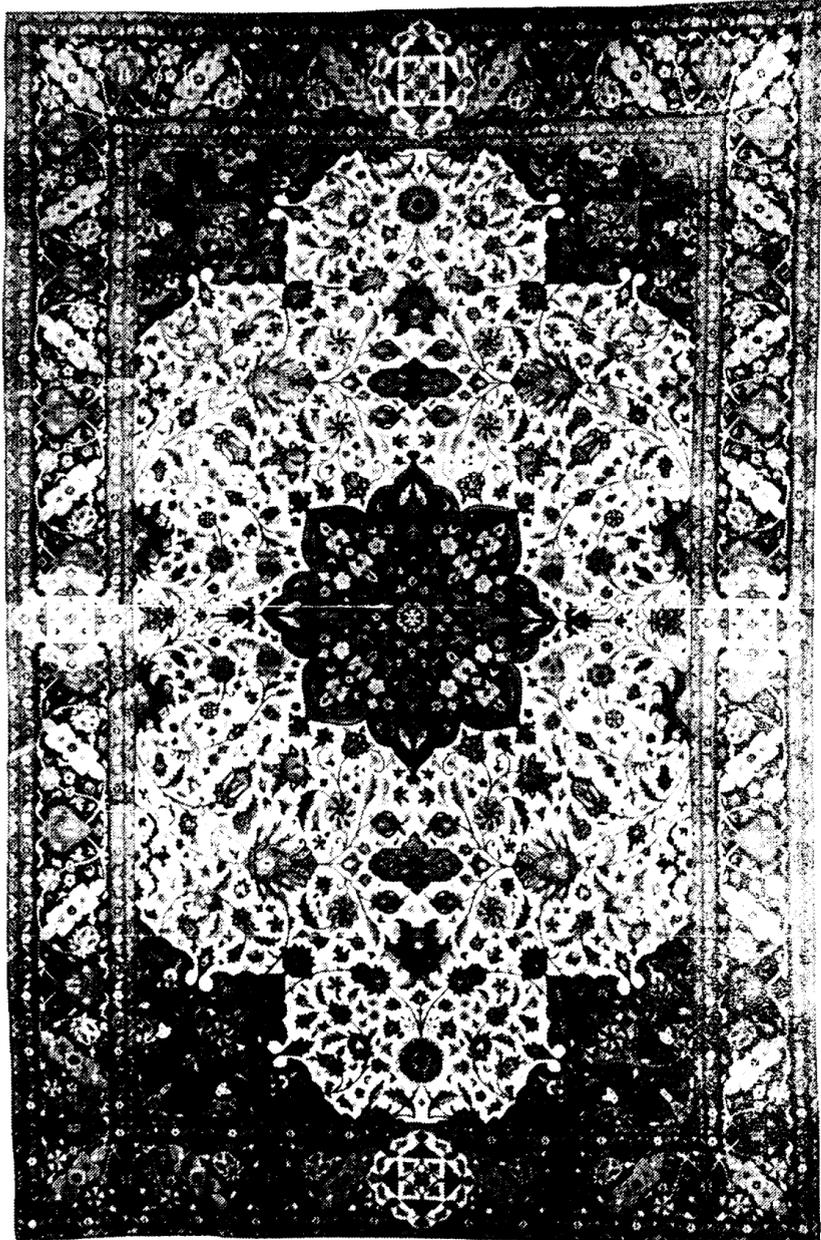

One of the focal points of the event was the Alumni Cook Tent. Hamburger-flipping alumni volunteers like Merritt Joans, board president, were joined by past parents, like Priscilla and John Kirlin.

North PSAT scheduled

The Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test (PSAT) will be given at Grosse Pointe North at 7:45 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 15.

The PSAT is the only test given that serves as the National Merit Scholarship qualifying test and it is given at North only once each year. The PSAT also helps to prepare students for taking the SAT.

The PSAT is primarily for juniors, however, sophomores may take it for extra practice.

Registration runs through Thursday, Oct. 13, in the Counseling Center. See Mrs. Schade. The test fee is $7.50. North High counselor, Mr. DuCoin, is the PSAT coordinator. Questions about it may be directed to him at 343-2207 or Schade at 343-2208.

Justice at Trombly

Michigan Supreme Court Justice Dennis Archer will be at Trombly Elementary School at 9:30 a.m. Monday, Oct. 10, to officiate at the swearing in ceremony for the safety and service squad.

The public is invited.

South parents invited

Parents of Grosse Pointe South High School students will go Back-To-School Thursday, Oct. 13, as part of a special program designed to provide parents with an opportunity to meet their student's teachers and become more familiar with the high school curriculum.

Parents will follow an abbreviated version of their students' schedule with the first period scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. with six minutes for passing time between classes. Each of the seven class periods will be 12 minutes in length with the seventh period ending at 9:03 p.m.

During each class period, teachers will define briefly the course of study, describe methods used to develop skills and how they are integrated into the course, list the organizational skills required to understand the content of the course, explain the nature and purpose of the study guides, assignments and tests and interpret the criteria used to evaluate student performance, according to Edward J. Shine, principal.

Refreshments will be served during the entire evening in Cleminson Hall.

Students launch balloons

Without benefit of NASA expertise, children at Richard Elementary School conducted a countdown on Thursday, Sept. 29. While the shuttle Discovery was hurtling through space, budding astronauts enthusiastically prepared their own launch.

Students released helium-filled balloons with notes of friendship and caring. The launch officially started a year of goodwill - a year when sharing and kindness will be emphasized.

Richard's motto this year is "Give a Little Bit." Cooperation and compromise - giving - is being encouraged, so that no child will be left out of the circle of friendship.

The youngsters have already started to demonstrate compassion in their balloon notes. Some examples of their messages:

"- Please have peace and please write back."

"- I like helping friends and sharing."

"- I like school. We are learning to share."

Parents and staff are working together to ensure a successful

South, North Homecoming is Oct. 15

South

The celebration of Homecoming at Grosse Pointe South High School will be Saturday, Oct. 15, with a festivity-filled week leading up to the big day.

Plans for Spirit Week are in high gear. The individual classes will decorate the halls and march, cheering through the school during the lunch period. Monday the juniors; Tuesday the sophomores; Wednesday the freshmen; and Thursday the seniors.

Friday, a pep assembly will be at 9:05 a.m. in the gym for the whole school.

Friday evening the finishing touches will be put on the four class floats with all students invited to participate in the building parties.

Homecoming day begins with a Community Pancake Breakfast in Cleminson Hall from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. The parade, which will include the class floats, cars carrying the class officers and student association representatives and the pep band, will start at 1 p.m. at the Neighborhood Club, travel through the Village, up Kercheval to Fisher Road to the football field.

The game, Grosse Pointe South Blue Devils vs. the Anchor Bay Tars, will begin at 2 p.m. The Homecoming court and queen will be introduced at half-time.

The Homecoming dance for students and alumni will be in the South gym from 8 to 11:30 p.m. Students and alumni are encouraged to attend the dance and all the festivities of the day.

Among those responsible for planning South's Homecoming are the student association officers: Ethan Dettmer, president; Jeff Joliet, vice president; Monica McDermott, secretary; and Stephanie Vittoe, treasurer. Those in charge of committees are Scott Adlehoch, band; Elizabeth Solaka, dance; Scott Adams, pancake breakfast; Meredith O'Connor, parade; Sasha Matish, pep assembly; Scott Adams, publicity; Meg Blondin, Spirit Week.

Assistant Principal Bernard LeMieux and Student Association adviser Rod Scott, along with Mothers Club Homecoming Chairwoman Diane Marston, are also involved with planning.

North

Grosse Pointe North will celebrate its 19th Homecoming on Saturday, Oct. 15 with a real homecoming for all of its graduates. For the first time, an alumni tent will be set up to welcome grads. They can enjoy free cider and donuts while catching up on gossip with their friends and the North staff.

"I really like the idea of the alumni tent for Homecoming, a great place for the alumni, past and present, staff members and friends to get together and review memories while enjoying the excitement and color of Homecoming," said Dr. Kathleen Herschelmann, assistant principal.

It is hoped that all alumni from the past 19 years will come to watch the parade, spend time in the tent, and watch the Norsemen trounce their opponents, the Lake Shore Shorians.

The theme for this year's Homecoming is Sesame Street and the Muppets. Classes are busy building floats and making pompons. Merrie Gay Ayrault, class adviser, said that students are working hard to complete their floats on time. "They're excited about the attention being given to the alumni this year. They know they will soon be coming home' themselves."

Because of the construction on Morningside, the parade route will be changed this year. It will begin at Monteith Elementary School, travel down Cook Road to Holiday, then move down Holiday to Morningside and the school.

The parade begins at 11:30 a.m. The alumni tent will be open from 12:30 p.m. until half time. The game begins at 1 p.m. Presentation of the queen and her court and awards for spirit week and floats will be given at halftime. The dance will be from 9 p.m. until midnight.

Free face-painting

Creative World art supply, 20507 Mack, will offer free face-painting on Saturdays from Oct. 8 through Oct. 29 between 11 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Get a pumpkin, witch on a broom or a scary ghost painted on your face. The staff will also give you tips on doing your own face for Halloween.

Fall on the farm

Celebrate fall on the farm with stories, jugband instruments, a corn-stalk fiddle and live Tom Turkey from Maple Woods Homestead Saturday, Oct. 8, at 2:30 p.m. at the Harper Woods Public Library, 19601 Harper. The program, 45 minutes, is for children in grades K-6.

Hunter education

A two-day course in hunter education will be presented at the Bon Secours Anchor Bay Family Practice and Specialty Center in New Baltimore Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 15-16. Registration deadline is Monday, Oct. 10.

The course, covering all aspects of hunting safety, will be taught by Michigan Department of Natural Resources instructors from 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday and from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday with a free lunch provided on Sunday. The center is located at 51180 Bedford Street in New Baltimore.

The course is free and completion certificates will be awarded to those attending both sessions. The course is mandatory for all first-time purchasers of Michigan hunting licenses born after Jan. 1, 1960.

To register call 725-1770 during business hours on weekdays and from 9:30 a.m. to noon on Saturday.

The names of people interviewed for this story have been changed and some minor details of their stories have been omitted or changed in order to protect the privacy of the mentally ill patients and their families.

Mental Illness Awareness Week is Oct. 2-8.

Jim, a successful Grosse Pointe businessman with several grown children, described the painful realities of coping with a daughter who was diagnosed as schizophrenic, one of the most serious of the major mental illnesses.

"My daughter became ill when she was 22," he said. "It wasn't sudden; it was a gradual progression. She had been doing well at college.

"But her brain became mixed up. She thought the Mafia was after her. She heard voices coming from the TV — telling her the outcome of sports events. She eventually became violent."

She was hospitalized. "Schizophrenia has its ups and downs. She held several jobs, but eventually ended up in Florida — a street person. As far as I know, drugs were not part of her problem."

Because of the availability of drugs in the Florida city where she lived, and because of their fears for her safety, Jim's family finally persuaded their daughter to come home.

She was hospitalized again. She improved, was able to live in a group home, then to get her own apartment and attend college.

According to a booklet published by the National Institute of Mental Health, schizophrenia is the most chronic and disabling of the major mental illnesses. Symptoms include distorted perceptions of the world, hallucinations (voices, objects, smells, touches), delusions (of persecution, of grandeur, of others' controlling one's behavior), disordered thinking, and inappropriate emotions.

"Right now, my daughter's not in school," Jim said. "She said she just can't concentrate any more. She's not a contributing member of society.

"There's probably a genetic factor involved in this illness. Certain stresses in a person's life may precipitate the onset. Maybe drugs. Who knows? I've found out there were some cases of mental illness in previous generations of my family."

Jim's other children — all successful, well-adjusted, healthy — are concerned about the genetic factor, because they're at the age where they're starting their own families.

Jim attends weekly meetings of the Alliance for the Mentally Ill Eastside Support Group. "It's a relief being able to talk," he said.

The group meets every Monday, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at Cottage-Belmont Nursing Center and draws about 15-20 relatives of mentally ill patients to a typical meeting. The group consists of children, spouses and siblings of the mentally ill, he said.

"Some patients come to meetings, but it's mostly relatives. We talk. We're struggling with issues such as what happens when (the caregivers) die? You're aware you're not alone. Did you know that one in four families has a member who suffers a mental illness sometime in his life?"

The Alliance for the Mentally Ill is a self-help organization of families and friends of mentally ill persons — and the mentally ill themselves. The alliance's goals are mutual support, education and advocacy for the victims of severe mental illness.

"Mental illness is something most people don't talk about," Jim said. "But talking and learning helps people. I'd like to see this organization grow — to lessen the stigma (of mental illness); to educate the public; to increase money for research; and to provide better services for the mentally ill."

He said that government funding for research for severe mental illnesses needs a boost — attention — understanding. According to statistics published by the National Alliance for Research on Schizophrenia and Depression (NARSAD), federal research dollars make a poor showing for mental disorders when compared to physical illnesses: $14 in research dollars for each schizophrenic patient; $10 for those with major depressive disorders; compared to $161 for multiple sclerosis; $1,000 for muscular dystrophy, $130 for heart disease; and $203 for cancer.

"Mental illness is a disease that's swept under the carpet," Jim said.

Jim is working to increase federal spending for research on severe mental illnesses such as schizophrenia, bipolar disorder and major depression. He's attempting to encourage private money for research. He's trying to increase public education about mental illness so that people will realize it's a physical illness and a chemical imbalance.

NARSAD is doing that, he said. According to NARSAD figures, schizophrenia and depression affect 14.5 million Americans. Forty percent of the homeless on city streets are schizophrenics. Fifteen percent of all Americans will suffer a major depressive episode during their lives.

Jim pointed out that the recent Jerry Lewis Telethon raised $41 million in less than 24 hours for research in muscular dystrophy and other muscle diseases. "That's more than was spent by our government in schizophrenia research in 1988 ($34 million). "They appealed for donations by showing what terrible things these diseases can do to children and adults," Jim wrote in a recent Support Group newsletter. "It's not easy to show the devastation of mental illness, so we must be willing to tell our stories of how our loved ones were struck down by mental illness. We must tell these stories to our state and national legislators, to church groups, to all of society.

Diane has a son who has been diagnosed as schizophrenic. He became ill while he was a teenager. "We thought it was drugs," she said. "But who knows which came first?"

"He's been in and out of hospitals for 18 years now. Basically, he acts like a 12-year-old. But he has brains and he's good mechanically.

"He talks. But doesn't make sense sometimes. He works part time now."

Diane's son lives with her, but she's worried about the social stigma of his disease and she's concerned about her neighbors — who don't understand. "They're frightened and concerned when he talks to himself.

"If my son was in an accident and was unconscious — he'd be taken to the hospital immediately and he'd be treated — because he needed treatment. But not the mentally ill person — (who is, in a sense, unconscious, and doesn't know he needs treatment.)"

She attends the Eastside Support Group's weekly meetings because she likes to talk about her problems. "Others are in the same boat. I'd like the public to learn more (about mental illness) so there's less stigma.

Janet's oldest son has also been diagnosed as schizophrenic.

"He was 30 years old. He was going to college — taking art classes. He was walking around campus telling people the CIA was after them," she said. He was finally hospitalized, but released four days later and sent home because he had no medical insurance.

"The diagnosis was schizophrenia, with paranoia," she said. "It was very difficult for the family to adjust to this. It's very difficult to accept schizophrenia. The patient feels isolated. The family feels isolated."

She said it's a devastating illness, emotionally and financially. "We figured he required over $30,000 a year for medication, hospitalization and psychiatric treatment," she said. "And we just didn't have the money."

Her son has since been hospitalized six times and often stops taking his medication. "He's now in an experimental program in Florida which is successfully managing the disease."

Janet said her son is aware — to a certain degree — of his disability, and seems slightly improved. "He's trying to become a productive person."

Janet said the support group is important to her. "It's good for people to talk; to share information; to learn more.

Anyone who wants to pledge money for research in serious mental illnesses (schizophrenia and manic/depression) and wishes to support NARSAD, may pledge money for each mile completed in the Detroit Free Press Marathon on Oct. 16, by one of the members of the Eastside Support Group. Donations may be sent to the Alliance for the Mentally Ill — Eastside, 19840 Harper, Harper Woods, Mich. 48225. One hundred percent of the donations will be forwarded to NARSAD.

For more information about the Alliance for the Mentally Ill Eastside Support Group, call 839-9826 or 884-9005.

City of Grosse Pointe Woods, Michigan

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the City Council, meeting as a Board of Appeals under the provisions of Section 5-14-1 of the 1975 City Code will meet in the Council-Court Room of the Municipal Building, 20025 Mack Plaza, on October 17, 1988, at 7:30 p.m. to hear the appeal of David A. Mazurek, 1756 Hollywood, who is appealing the denial of the Building Inspector to issue a permit for construction of a family room addition to the residence at 1756 Hollywood. The building permit was denied due to a deficiency in the required rear yard as set forth in Section 5-4-3, Schedule of Regulations, Item F, of the Zoning Ordinance of the City of Grosse Pointe Woods. A variance is therefore required. All interested parties are invited to attend.

Dogs, take a bow (wow)

Looking like Cousin It's Rastafarian relative, this Hungarian Puli, Gondor, is owned by Marge Wulf of Westland. The dreadlocks not only make Gondor a good floor mop, but they also serve as insulation, she said, keeping him cool in the summer and warm in the winter.

Benji, eat your heart out. The 40th annual Southern Michigan Obedience Training Club dog show brought participants from all over Michigan and Canada to Grosse Pointe North High School Sunday.

The club, which offers obedience training classes through Grosse Pointe Community Education, has held its show at the school for the past three years, but this year the school hosted 194 dogs, its highest turnout, according to one of the event's planners, Catherine Heffner.

The dogs — and their owners — are judged in a number of categories from Novice A to O.T.Ch., Obedience Trial Champion. Novices are required to do simple tasks like heeling, sitting, fast and slow figure eights and the like.

The older, more experienced dogs are set to tasks like broad jump, high jump, scent determination, retrieval, jumping of specific targets, and the most experienced must do the tricks without their owner uttering a word, using only hand signals.

These dogs and owners take the competition seriously, because the better trained the dog is, the more money it can make through its breeding. That may be the reason why one couple took their dogs to Colorado with them, so they wouldn't have to cut their vacation short by running back to Ohio to pick up their dogs.

Named for Lance Parrish, this Briard, a French herding dog, seemed a little bored with the goings-on. He came all the way from Bay City with his owner, Theresa Lee.

Skyler, left, and Beauty, ready themselves to compete in the harness competition. In that category, the two perform while chained together. Their owners are Gayle and Mike Smith of North Ridgeville, Ohio.

A slew of trophies made the dogs, and some owners, drool.

Geraldine Grinnell Parker

Private family services were held for Geraldine Grinnell Parker, 82, on Monday, Oct. 3, 1988, at Grosse Pointe Methodist Church. Mrs. Parker died Friday, Sept. 30, at her Grosse Pointe home, of cancer.

She was born Oct. 30, 1905. She was an alumna of Liggett School and Bennett College. She also attended Colorado College.

Mrs. Parker was a longtime volunteer for the Women's Guild of Hutzel Hospital.

She is survived by her husband, Fredrick W.; a son, Robert G. Edgar; three daughters, Gay Ahlgrim, Alden E. Gordon and Lauren E. Chapman; and seven grandchildren.

Interment was in Detroit's Woodlawn Cemetery.

Memorial remembrances may be made to the Michigan Humane Society, 7401 Chrysler, Detroit 48211 or the Women's Guild of Hutzel Hospital, 47407 St. Antoine, Detroit 48201.

Betty Jean Fryer Selden

Funeral services were held in Missouri on Friday, Sept. 30, 1988, for Betty Jean Fryer Selden, of Grosse Pointe Woods. Mrs. Selden, 82, died Sunday, Sept. 25, in Jefferson City, Mo.

She was born in Kansas City, Mo.

Survivors include her husband, Melvin F.; four sons, John, Thomas, Douglas and Gary; and four grandchildren.

The body was cremated. Memorial contributions may be made to the Michigan Cancer Foundation.

Charles C. Cain III

Funeral services for Charles C. Cain III, 73, were Saturday, Oct. 1, 1988, at A.H. Peters Funeral Home and St. Peter and Paul Catholic Church. Mr. Cain, of Grosse Pointe Park, died Sept. 27, after a lengthy illness.

Charles C. Cain III

A second generation newsman, Mr. Cain graduated from Brown University in Providence, R.I. in 1938. He was a member of Lambda Chi Alpha.

He began his career as a reporter at the Newark Star-Ledger in New Jersey. He joined the Boston AP Bureau in 1941, but enlisted in the Army a year later. He rejoined the Boston bureau after World War II, then transferred to AP's Detroit Bureau in 1945. He served variously as Michigan news editor, sports writer, night editor and as the AP auto writer.

According to a family member, Mr. Cain covered nearly every major Michigan story from 1945 until his retirement in 1979. The attempted assassinations of Walter and Victor Reuther, the General Motors strike of 1945, the murder of state Sen. Warren Hooper the night before he was to have testified before a grand jury about organized crime, the 1967 riots and Jimmy Hoffa's disappearance were just a few of the thousands of his Michigan stories that were carried worldwide.

He was a founding member of the Detroit Press Club in 1957 and served on its board for many years. He was a member of the Detroit chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists for more than 30 years.

Mr. Cain and his wife, Ruth (a fellow AP staffer when they met, now in media relations at the Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan), raised seven children: three sons, Charlie (he works in The Detroit News Lansing Bureau), Brad (he covers the Oregon legislature for the AP), and Chris (he's working on his doctorate in physics at Wayne State University); four daughters, Carol (she's a business reporter for The Detroit News and covers advertising and marketing industries), Nancy (she's a contributing editor at AAA Michigan Living Magazine), Laura (she's an account supervisor at PR Associates, Inc.) and Janice (she works as a public relations coordinator for the National Alzheimer's Association in Chicago); four grandchildren; and two sisters, Gert VanderPyl, of Greenwich, R.I., and Mary Cronin, of Attleboro, Maine.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Detroit Press Club or to the Detroit Chapter, Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association, 17251 W. Twelve Mile Road, Suite 103, Southfield, Mich. 48076.

Arrangements were handled by A.H. Peters Funeral Home.

She was born in Maldehem, Belgium and she was a homemaker.

Survivors are two daughters, Rose Marie Rabor and Mary Lou Bahr; two grandchildren; and six great-grandchildren. She was predeceased by her husband, Henri.

Interment was at Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Arrangements were handled by the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home.

Edith Victoria Snyder Dossin

Services were Wednesday, Oct. 5, 1988, for Edith Victoria Snyder Dossin, 108. Mrs. Dossin died Oct. 2, at her Grosse Pointe Farms home.

She was born in Michigan and was a homemaker.

She was a charter member of the Detroit Women's Council of the Navy League of the U.S.A. She was a member of the Detroit Boat Club, the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, Women's Crippled Children of Michigan, the Salvation Army and the Red Cross.

Survivors are a daughter, Marian Wardell Qualey; two stepdaughters, Sidonie Phillips and Lillian Burgam; a son, Otis Earl Bolin; 14 grandchildren; 39 great-grandchildren; and 34 great-great-grandchildren. She was predeceased by three stepsons, Walter J. Dossin, Russell A. Dossin and Roy L. Dossin.

Interment was at White Chapel Cemetery in Troy.

Arrangements were handled by the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home.

Alice Maes DeLeersnyder

Services for Alice Maes DeLeersnyder, 89, were held Wednesday, Sept. 28, 1988, at St. Matthew Church. Mrs. DeLeersnyder died Sept. 26 at her Grosse Pointe Woods home.

Ban

side a fenced-in yard.

Freeman questioned assistant city attorney John Des Rosiers, who was sitting in for regular city attorney George Catlin, whether the city could ban pit bulls.

Des Rosiers said the courts have found complete bans on certain species of dogs to be unconstitutional. He said if the city passed such a ban, it would most likely suffer the same fate of the Waterford Township ban that was recently adopted and is now entangled in court.

"I'd like to take emergency action tonight," Freeman said. "It could be tied up in courts, but meanwhile we're protected."

Councilman Paul Beaupre made the motion to amend the vicious animal ordinance to ban pit bulls. He said the city had the authority to do so as an emergency measure.

Commenting on the fact that the pit bull ban may be found unconstitutional, Beaupre warned the council not to get bogged down in "bureaucratic red tape when time is of the essence and danger is imminent."

Before the motion was voted on, however, it went through lengthy discussion and modifications.

In order to eliminate as much of the vagueness and possible loopholes in the ban, the council used a glossary of names for pit bulls in the amendment. Banned are "American (Pit) Bull Terrier, American Staffordshire Terrier, Pit Bull, Staffordshire Bull Terrier, Yonker Terrier and any strain thereof."

Beaupre was concerned that a ban on pit bulls wasn't enough because a dog owner cited for owning and harboring an illegal dog could keep the animal at his home while he fought the matter in court, thus continuing to pose a threat to the neighborhood.

To get the animals off the street and out of Woods homes and yards immediately, the council amended the city's impoundment ordinance and gave the city Public Safety Department authority to impound any animal it believes is among those banned.

If the ordinance amendments stand up in court, dog owners whose animals have been impounded are faced with the burden of proving their animals are exempt before they can get them back.

Throughout the discussion of the pit bull ban, Des Rosiers continually advised the council that he was not comfortable with the constitutionality of the ordinance amendments. Nevertheless, the council ordered him to draft the ordinance changes so that they could be posted Tuesday.

If the pit bull ban is struck down in court, Dunn has plenty of ideas that could be added to the existing animal control ordinances which would help to protect residents from vicious animals and make pit bull ownership difficult.

Her proposed requirements for pit bull ownership include:

- The dog must be in a secure enclosure at least 6 feet in height and that is child-proof on the outside and dog-proof from the inside.

- The dog is tattooed for identification.

- The dog is chained when out in the yard, even if behind a locked fence.

- The dog is kept indoors when the owners are not at home.

- The dog owner must show that he has a $100,000 insurance policy for liability.

- The owner must be required to display a sign that can be read from the street stating: Vicious dog on premises.

- The owner will be fined $100,000 and the dog destroyed if it attacks anyone.

- The owner post a bond of $25,000 for ownership of the dog.

- The city raise the fine for nuisances committed by dogs and for dogs running at large from $5 to a fine that is more painful to the owner's pocket-book.

The council scheduled a special meeting for Monday night, Oct. 10, for discussing the pit bull situation and possible legislation — or litigation — if the pit bull ban is challenged.

Cracker Jax invites residents, officials to open houseBy John Minnis
Staff Writer

Cracker Jax officials are having an open house Saturday, Oct. 8, at noon in an effort to clear the air and answer accusations of wrongdoing and misconduct associated with the nightclub.

"I invite the city council members, the police chief and anybody else" to come in and discuss the allegations, said Cracker Jax owner Mark DiMaso. "I believe they (residents and city and police officials) have painted a very, very distorted picture."

At a June council meeting, residents living near Cracker Jax on Mack Avenue alleged that patrons of the bar were parking on their streets, throwing debris on their lawns, and urinating in public. Some of the debris was said to include a condom and a hypodermic syringe.

In addition, Farms police conducted surveillance of the nightclub and cited Cracker Jax or its customers with several alleged violations, including minors in possession of alcoholic beverages, urinating in public and littering.

As a result of the allegations, the council ordered city prosecuting attorney Bob Ibric to prepare a case and set a hearing to revoke Cracker Jax's city-issued business license. The hearing is set for Monday, Oct. 10.

Cracker Jax attorney George Malis believes his client is being unfairly condemned for the alleged crude behavior of some of the customers.

"We don't condone that kind of activity," he said. "If it's happening out there, it's not because we want it to be happening."

He said the Cracker Jax management has done everything it can to work with local law enforcement officers and residents.

DiMaso said the city has yet to produce the alleged condom found in a resident's yard, and he said the reported syringe found was in a resident's garbage can and was used by a diabetic.

Malis said there is definitely a parking problem in the area. He pointed out that there are three restaurants or bars in the immediate vicinity — Mr. C's Deli, Irish Coffee and Cracker Jax — all contributing to the shortage of parking.

Malis said zoning laws mandate Cracker Jax have 26 parking spaces, which the nightclub has. In order to provide more off-street parking for its customers, Cracker Jax has an agreement for use of the nearby post office's parking lot.

Furthermore, he said Cracker Jax is offering free valet parking so that the establishment can have more control over where people park.

DiMaso said a private company runs the valet parking. He said Cracker Jax has to pay $90 a night, $360 a week to provide the free service.

Malis said Cracker Jax officials suggested the city put up no-parking signs on the residential streets to stop customers from parking there. He said the city has declined to implement the suggestion.

Much of the alleged misconduct of Cracker Jax customers outside the building may be while they are waiting in line to get into the popular night spot. Malis said that only so many people can be allowed into the building at a time. If the nightclub is at full capacity, then customers have to wait outside until someone leaves.

In order to control customers' activities, Cracker Jax has hired several security guards to patrol inside and outside the nightclub, Malis said. Farms Public Safety Director Robert Ferber said he has seen several guards at Cracker Jax.

Malis said the Cracker Jax management has even instituted a dress code in order to draw more upscale customers.

Since Cracker Jax allows those 18-, 19- and 20-year-old customers, which is permitted by law and Liquor Control Commission regulations, keeping alcoholic beverages away from minors is a problem, DiMaso said.

To prevent such unlawful liquor sales or possessions, Cracker Jax has a security guard at the entrance who checks identification. Those 21 years old and older are identified with a hand stamp. One must have a hand stamp to purchase an alcoholic beverage, and all such purchases must be made by the customer at the bar, DiMaso said.

He said he also has a security guard making sure no minors are drinking alcoholic beverages that have been bought by someone else.

"The law says we can let them (18-, 19- and 20-year-olds) in," DiMaso said. "It's up to us owners to regulate it, but it (stopping minors from sneaking alcoholic beverages) is not foolproof."

DiMaso is angered that throughout the controversy he has not been approached personally by residents or city officials with their complaints.

"Let me know of a problem, and we'll fix it," he said. "But nobody came to us."

Malis said Cracker Jax has been in the community for two years and hadn't been cited for a single liquor violation until this summer.

"We're concerned about our business," he said. "We're concerned about our name."

Cracker Jax, which holds its liquor license under the name United Syndicated Artists Inc., was scheduled to answer the alleged liquor violations Monday at an LCC hearing. DiMaso said his attorney had to seek a postponement of the hearing, however, so that he would have a chance to review documents recently obtained from the city through the Freedom of Information Act.

German-Americans celebrate their second annual day today

If you're among the estimated one in four Americans of German ancestry, today, Oct. 6, is your day, the nation's second German-American Day, designated by joint resolution of the U.S. Congress, and resolutions by state and local officials throughout Michigan. Among the cities that have issued resolutions is the city of Grosse Pointe Woods.

At the White House, plans are also being made for the dedication of the holiday again this year to symbolize the friendly relations between the United States and West Germany, the Federal Republic of Germany, and the contributions of this largest ethnic group in the nation and Michigan.

Locally, several hundred German-American community leaders and local government officials will gather the evening of German-American Day for a banquet tonight at northeast Detroit's New Bavarian Chateau to celebrate the holiday, which commemorates this date in 1683 when the first German immigrants arrived in this country. Consul General Dr. Klaus Schrammeyer of the Federal Republic of Germany will be the keynote speaker at the banquet.

The history of German-Americans in Michigan dates back to the early 18th century when Michael Yax became Michigan's first German resident, although not by his own choice.

Yax was captured by Indians in Kentucky and taken to Michigan in the late 1720's, where he was ransomed by sympathetic Detroit families. His family was granted land in what is now the Grosse Pointes, and his descendants remained in the area at least through the late 1960's.

German traditions are most evident in Michigan today in Frankenmuth, which was founded in 1845 by German missionaries to the Chippewa Indians. Frankenmuth has become the state's top tourist attraction because of its picturesque preservation of its German heritage by its heavily German-American population.

The first German immigrants to America landed at Philadelphia following a 75-day voyage on the vessel "Concorde." The original 13 Mennonite families, led by lawyer and theologian Franz Daniel Pasorius were attracted to America by Quaker William Penn and his "Holy Experiment" promise of religious freedom here. America's original German settlers cleared a tract of land six miles outside of Philadelphia and founded the settlement of Germantown.

More than 200,000 Germans followed during the next century, settling primarily in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Maryland and Virginia. Another five million Germans emigrated to the United States during the 19th century, followed by two million more this century.

German immigrants have left their marks on American culture from colonial times through to today.

German Peter Minnewit (nee Minuit) negotiated the best or worst land purchase in American history, depending upon one's perspective: the purchase of Manhattan Island from the Algonquin Indians for a reported 60 guilders worth of beads and fabrics.

John Peter Zenger established the American tradition of freedom of the press with his refusal to halt his newspaper's criticism of English colonial government abuses and his subsequent trial and acquittal.

Maria Ludwig Hays McCauley was nicknamed Molly Pitcher by American troops during the Revolutionary War because she carried pitchers of water to her artilleryman husband John Hays and other soldiers on the front lines. This German-born American heroine reportedly took over operation of her husband's cannon when he was overcome by the heat during battle.

German immigrants in the

waukee and Detroit's own Stroh's.

Among the many famous German immigrants to the United States during this century were Albert Einstein; Dr. Werner von Braun, father of the American space program; Henry Kissinger, the first German-born secretary of state and recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize; actors Marlene Dietrich, Peter Lorre and Elke Sommer.

Two vehicles taken in Park; one recovered

Two vehicles were reported stolen in Grosse Pointe Park last week, with one of the cars recovered by Detroit police.

According to Park police reports, a 1987 Chrysler was stolen overnight Sept. 26 while parked on the street in the 1000 block of Wayburn.

Detroit police later found the vehicle. Witnesses said the car was abandoned by a juvenile who fled on foot.

A 1979 Plymouth Horizon was taken from a home also in the 1000 block of Wayburn between 8:30 p.m. Sept. 28 and 11 a.m. the following day.

Armada Applefest

The Armada Applefest Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 8-9, will feature activities from a Fun Dog Show to an Apple Bake-Off and includes two parades, a ping-pong ball drop and a 10K Run.

There will be an Applefest Craft Show both days, a juried indoor event featuring local artisans, and the Applefest Car Show on Sunday only. Most events, like children's games, the Armada Times Yo-Yo Contest, performances by a puppeteer, the Rambling Naturalists and roving mime and musicians are free.

The Armada Civic and Trade Association invites everyone to come out to the country to celebrate fall in the scenic rural village in northern Macomb County, about 20 minutes north of Mount Clemens.

GMI archives rich with unpublished material

The 1903 Buick catalog is unusual for an automaker, according to Richard P. Scharchburg, professor of industrial history at GMI in Flint, because it has no automobiles in it.

Looking through old automotive catalogs is both fun and informative and if you enjoy it, you might want to visit the GMI Alumni Foundation Collection of Industrial History on the campus of GMI Engineering and Management Institute in Flint.

In the collection are catalogs of many automakers, including Buick catalogs going all the way back beyond creation of General Motors to 1903.

"In 1903, the Buick company, which had been recently moved from Detroit to Flint by J.H. Whiting, offered only stationary and marine engines," Scharchburg said. "No cars."

Scharchburg waxes enthusiastic when he discusses the collection, which was started at GMI in 1972 and which has grown into a rich but little known mine of historical information, not only about Flint's own Buick or General Motors, but American industry in general.

"From the beginning, we sought materials relating to all types of industrial efforts," he said. The collection is especially strong on materials relating to Buick and GM, but is also rich in other industrial resources, particularly in transportation.

"We have materials relating to early auto racing, for example," said Scharchburg. "Racing was the most important method of establishing a nameplate in the early days of the century.

Buick was very active in racing, it was very important in making Buick a success. And we have half a drawer full of materials related to those efforts."

Also in the collection are extensive files relating to an aerial torpedo developed by GM's inventive wizard Charles Ketter-ing, a primitive guided missile devised shortly before U.S. entry into World War I.

The collection includes "appraisals" (inventories) of Buick supplies and equipment dating back to 1908, when General Motors was created.

"These appraisals, signed by William C. Durant, listed what executives had company cars, what furniture the president had in his office — it is a treasure house of early automotive trivia," said Scharchburg.

Extensive specifications of GM cars were found by a GMI student who was cleaning out a room, Scharchburg said, a resource of great value to anyone restoring an old car.

Archives are not always the most exciting places, but the collection at GMI will stir the blood of any automotive buff, historian, author, researcher or trivia fan. It contains millions of items, including extensive files of former GM presidents Ed Cole, E.M. "Pete" Estes and Harlowe Curtice, last man to combine the chairman and president function at GM.

plete materials on "Boss" Kettering, the result of discovery of 96 file drawers of Kettering files during the cleaning out of a room at the GM Tech Center in Warren.

The collection is a rich lode of historical material relating to C.S. Mott, a well-known name around Flint and a GM executive whose influence was matched by few in the corporation's history.

"These documents reveal that Mott played a major role in the copper-cooled engine and other forward-looking, experimental car programs," Scharchburg said.

The copper-cooled engine to which Scharchburg referred was an early attempt to refine the air-cooled engine in an effort to compete with Ford's Model T. It seemed like a good idea, but resulted in one of Kettering's few failures, Pierre du Pont's retirement as GM chairman and Alfred P. Sloan's ascension to the top job at GM.

The ongoing push for technological advancement represented by Kettering and Mott has served GM well over the decades, however.

The collection is not limited to Buick, or GM, which is just as well because a number of Buick executives have gone on to fame and glory with other companies, including Charles Nash and Walter P. Chrysler.

Portraits of great names from GM's past are part of the collection, including oil paintings of Nash, Kettering, Durant and six Fisher brothers.

The collection was started in 1972 by a group of GMI alumni. At that time, "GMI" stood for "General Motors Institute" and was the corporation's technical and engineering school. It expanded into manufacturing management in the '60s and in 1982 was cut loose from General Motors and has since been operated by a private corporation. Scharchburg has been with GMI since 1964.

The collection contains unpublished photos, memos, letters, reports, sales literature and technical material relating to many industrial efforts. "We have very complete records on Frigidaire, Packard and on a number of banking and financial institutions," Scharchburg said.

"One of the most interesting files deals with the One-Wheel Truck Co., a firm which built a one-wheeled tractor-like vehicle which attached to the front of a horse-drawn wagon. It was kind of a bridge between the horse and the auto."

Park bids approved

The Park City Council recently approved bids for renovation needed at Windmill Pointe Park and to update the municipal building electrical system.

Paddock Pools was awarded its $215,970 bid to fix the pool, work that includes removal and replacement of parts of the deck, placement of a stainless steel gutter, balance tank improvements, a new pool filter system and light fixtures, placement of chemical automation system, replacement and repair of deck equipment and Marcliting of the pool.

The work is expected to begin later this fall and should be completed no later than May 1, 1989.

A major renovation to the activities building at the park was also awarded. The concession area will be converted to office use at a cost of $22,668. That work should begin later this year also.

The electrical work will be done by Colville Electric Co. for $7,100. The work to be done is to bring the electrical system in the municipal building up to city code.

It was discovered last fall that the city building had a number of electrical code violations. Funds were included into the current budget for this work.

City of Grosse Pointe Woods, Michigan

NOTICE OF ADOPTION: The City Council of Grosse Pointe Woods, has adopted the following ordinance at its regular meeting of October 3, 1988:

ORDINANCE # 566

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND TITLE VI CHAPTER 7, SECTION 6-7-8 OF THE CITY CODE OF THE CITY OF GROSSE POINTE WOODS OF 1975 ENTITLED "PROPERTY MAINTENANCE CODE".

THE CITY OF GROSSE POINTE WOODS ORDAINS:

Section 1: That Title VI, Chapter 7, Section 6-7-8 of the City Code of the City of Grosse Pointe Woods of 1975 be amended to read as follows:

6-7-8 CERTIFICATE OF OCCUPANCY REQUIRED: It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to here after occupy or continue to occupy, or for any owner or agent thereof, to permit the occupation or continued occupation of any dwelling or commercial building or structure or part thereof for any purpose which dwelling or building becomes vacant or undergoes a change of occupants unless a certificate of occupancy has been issued by the Division of Safety Inspections with respect to such dwelling or commercial building or structure and such certificate has not expired. A certificate of occupancy issued by the Division of Safety Inspections for a dwelling or structure or part thereof which is used for commercial purposes or is rented or leased for residential use shall remain in effect for a four year period from the date of issuance of such certificate. A certificate of occupancy issued by the Division of Safety Inspections for all other dwellings or structures or part thereof shall expire upon the first change in occupancy occurring more than two years after the date of issuance of the initial certificate of occupancy. The certificate of occupancy shall also bear this legend in capital letters or boldface type: "THIS CERTIFICATE DOES NOT CONSTITUTE ANY REPRESENTATION OR WARRANTY AS TO THE CONDITION OF THE PREMISES, BUILDING(S) OR STRUCTURE(S) DESCRIBED HEREIN (OF ANY ASPECT OF SUCH CONDITION); INTERESTED PERSONS ARE ADVISED AND ENCOURAGED TO MAKE THEIR OWN INSPECTION OF THE PREMISES IN ORDER TO DETERMINE THE CONDITION THEREOF".

Section 2: EFFECTIVE DATE: The Ordinance shall become effective twenty (20) days after the date of its enactment.

Comerica announces an Adjustable Rate Mortgage so adjustable, it can even become unadjustable.

If you can't decide whether to get an adjustable or fixed-rate mortgage, come to Comerica. We'll give you five years to decide.

Because with our new convertible Adjustable Rate Mortgage (ARM), you can enjoy the flexibility of adjustable rates with the ability to convert to a fixed rate in the future.

In fact, we'll even give you a choice when you want to convert. You can choose our popular One Year ARM and convert any month between your 13th and 60th payment.

Or, you may prefer our new 3/1 ARM where the loan rate is held constant for the first three years, then adjusts annually like our One Year ARM. Our 3/1 ARM may be converted on the loan's third, fourth, or fifth year anniversary.

You can even choose the term of your loan from 10 to 30 years in 5 year increments.

You'll also get the security of knowing that our ARMs have a 2% annual cap and a 6% life of loan cap. It's that simple. And it's just part of the lending spirit we've got at Comerica.

Call 1-800-292-1300 (in Metro Detroit 884-5774) for more information and the name of the Comerica Mortgage Representative near you. Or stop in soon to find out more about our convertible ARMs. It will be the easiest thing to adjust to in your new home.

utes of 'casual unrehearsed' conversation. Not to mention the fact that at 9:30 at night I'm blow-drying my hair trying to make it look like TV hair. And I don't have TV hair."

With that as her only real exposure to television, but up to a new challenge. Stewart, along with her husband Mike Smith (who is the Free Press' photo director), moved to Grosse Pointe in January 1987.

"I feel extremely lucky to be here in Grosse Pointe," she said. "Growing up where I did, I always wanted to live in the suburbs. And this place is beautiful. It's almost eerily peaceful."

Although her job is not as glamorous as many people might think ("Basically I sit in a dark room all by myself all day."), she has a lot of fun with it, and spares nobody. She once called an actor "the most wooden wimp who ever waltzed across the floor," and explains that "it's much harder to be thoughtful about television than it is to be nasty."

She said that because television is a business, it tends to be formulaic, making television as a whole predictable and mediocre.

Stewart says her sure-fire way to determine the merit of a program is if she falls asleep. "The better the program, the quicker I fall asleep. But I have been able to stay up longer for some PBS shows," she said.

But seriously — "If you don't expect too much from television, you won't be disappointed," she said. "Most TV is bad, but I don't think it will destroy us."

"I don't think television can ever replace — I don't want to say 'art' because that sounds so pompous — but that's what I mean. Television is nothing more than a harmless little drug that's somewhat addicting." To Stewart, there is no difference between being addicted to the NBA finals or to soap operas.

Stewart's own addiction to her soap opera was interrupted about six months ago when she gave birth to Anne Taylor, their first child. "I had to miss Eden and Cruz's wedding (on 'Santa Barbara'), but it was worth it."

She's a doting mother, but with a twist. "I never thought I would have a baby, and I certainly didn't think I would have a cute one," she said. "But I did." She worries that the baby will be exposed to too much television. "Even now she stops eating when Willard Scott comes on."

Stewart, her daughter Anne Taylor, and television set.

She also worries about herself. Staying at home more now and taking care of a baby, she says she is paying attention to the commercials which promise whitening and brightening of clothes. "It was weird, I leaned forward and was really interested."

Every now and then, there is something with substance on the tube — most recently, the Olympics. But even that is marred by self-important commentary, like the vignettes of Korean life titled "Seoul Searching," Stewart says.

"Look at that," she says, pointing at the set that was on quietly during the interview, "Seoul Searching." What the heck is that? And they also have these 'Moments in Time.' Have you ever heard of a 'Moment of Time?'"

Stewart doesn't limit her writing to television. She has a piece in the current issue of GQ in which she said she complains about her husband — a native Texan. "You can't get two people more different than a native Virginian and a native Texan," she says.

And this month she will be starting a column in the Free Press Sunday magazine called, appropriately enough, "Susan Stewart." Basically it will be a personality-based interview with some local interest, but Stewart said if it's a slow week she may just put in recipes.

"It's a way for me to look at a live human being for a while instead of a TV screen," she said.

For a while, Stewart and her husband discussed getting a television for the kitchen, but she put her foot down. "There has to be one room to escape from it."

Eastern plans annual reunion

The Detroit Eastern High Golden Years Reunion Committee will hold the 19th annual dinner dance Friday, Oct. 14 at the Polish Century Club. All classes through 1940 and guests are invited.

This sponsor's committee was organized in, and has been meeting since 1970. This year's chairman is Donald Lindow, former chairman of the Board of the Michigan Mutual companies.

The 1938 graduation classes will be honored on their 50th anniversary. Sparking this reunion is Mrs. Edward (Martha Ayadallott) Gendernalnik, Margaret Ginter Trix, Robert Weyhing and Sid Gerardin.

Those from the 1938 class planning to attend include Helen Thomas, Washington correspondent, Warren Smith, professor at the University of California, Berkeley; Art Dutton, a former professor at Princeton and Bryn Mawr who has had several books published; and Vincent Pirsante, known in state and local law enforcement. Also planning to attend will be Fred Foy, one-time Lone Ranger and announcer for the Dick Cavett show; and Dick Spitzley, vice-president of The Detroit News.

Music will be by the Art Quatro band.

Reservations are necessary because the seating capacity is limited to 300.

For further information call: Sid Girardin at 884-2206 or Bob Weyhing at 882-1930.

Mack

From 1A

Commissioner Robert Fraley agreed. "If it was made any more liberal, it would ruin the intent of the ordinance," he said. "I would be opposed to anything that would make this residential ordinance any closer to the restricted office zoning."

Planning Commission Chairman John Kennedy suggested a provision be added to the proposed amendment stating the professional in a mixed occupancy arrangement must also be the resident. Kennedy's suggestion was adopted along with the proposed amendment.

The amendment as sent to the council states:

In residential homes on lots abutting Mack Avenue a mixed occupancy shall be permitted involving use of the property as a residence and one of the following uses owned and operated by the resident: a physician's office, a dentist's office, a lawyer's office or a real estate office, provided that parking requirements for such mixed occupancy are possible.

Chicago is almost around the corner for day-trippers

By Elizabeth Carpenter
Special Writer

Chicago is now a suburb of Detroit.

For this we have the folks at Southwest Airlines to thank. However, they have spent their advertising dollar exhorting the company man to fill their sun-colored planes and have ignored us day-trippers and thrill-seekers.

It's a dirty job, but we did it. We went to Chicago for the day and have returned to tell the tale to our fellow Grosse Pointers.

It was easy. In the time it had taken to walk the dog down to Greatways Travel for tickets, we sped down I-94 to the Conner exit, took a right on Conner and were at Detroit City Airport.

We left the house as though we were going down to the Village for lunch. It took only 20 minutes, but it was a good thing that we allowed extra time, because the parking lot nearest the terminal was full and none of the other lots were well-marked.

We finally squeezed into Parking Lot B on the left side of Conner, hopped aboard the shuttle bus and within minutes, were in the terminal. Although we had purchased our tickets three weeks in advance to get the $24 fare, if we hadn't planned ahead, we could have reserved by phone and actually paid for our tickets with our trusty plastic from a machine at the airport — and earned a free drink coupon as well.

The plane left 15 minutes late, but the chipper crew, all of whom looked like your teenage nephew, soothed the passengers with hot coffee. By the time we drained the cup, we were descending into Midway Airport.

Within minutes a friendly cab starter whisked us into a metered cab and 20 minutes and $15 later, we were deposited at the feet of the lions who guard the entrance to the Art Institute of Chicago. We had come to see the masterpieces from Lenin-grad's Hermitage Museum.

In the next eight hours, we experienced the profoundest expression of Rembrandt's humanity in the eyes of the Portrait of an Old Jewish Man, we stood transfixed by the underwater acrobatics of a pair of frolicking otters in the Shedd Aquarium and we were taken back into time to stand before a fully dressed Sioux warrior at the Field Museum of Natural History.

All of these wonders are within a relatively short stroll through parks and along the edge of Lake Michigan.

Although we enjoyed the Dutch Masters show from Russia, a future traveler could catch the Paul Gauguin show, which will be there through the fall.

Due to the time difference, we were hungry one hour ahead of the crowds and we slipped into a very pleasant window seat in the LaPromenade Cafe, one of several places to eat at the art institute.

Then, fortified with a little pate and a Snickers bar, we visited some old favorites, including two Ward miniature rooms and the Medieval galleries. We delighted in the newly mounted collection of the Joseph Cornell box constructions.

Later, under the hot sun of the early afternoon, we strolled through the rose gardens of Grant Park on our way to the Shedd Aquarium. On our right rose the dynamic ever-changing skyline of Chicago, and on our

As we entered the aquarium, the diver was feeding the fish in the huge center coral reef tank, but we slipped by the packed spectators and in a few seconds, found ourselves alone in the dark, mesmerized by the rhythmically opening and closing mouth of a green moray eel whose thick, fleshy torso undulated sensuously from the petal-like opening of a rose-colored coral. The contrast between the suede acid green skin of the eel and the abrasive red rock gave a sinister beauty to this underwater tableau.

These softly lit windows on another dimension of life recalled the fantastic worlds which Cornell had created in his box sculptures.

We ogled fish as shockingly colored as an Ungaro gown or as subtle as a Greek vase, and edged quickly by a huge shark tank to the highlight of the day — an above- and below-water river otter exhibit.

Otters are among the few adult mammals observed to play, to engage in spontaneous free activity with no seeming purpose. These two slid down a falls, dove into the water, twisted their sleek bodies around a log, pushed off against the glass with a webbed foot and rocketed up on shore to begin all over again.

We were fascinated and grateful. The aquarium store had seal T-shirts (close enough) which we bought to remember them by.

The otters eventually knocked off for a nap, which is just what we felt like doing, but it was only teatime. We hiked over to the Field Museum of Natural History, which has a McDonald's in the basement, for a little snack.

The museum is a virtual encyclopedia of anthropology and the natural world, so we had to be selective. Peg joined the life of an Eskimo village and I reveled in the recreations of my childhood heroes, the Plains Indians. As we left, we waved to a stuffed Kodiak bear sporting a Chicago Bears jersey.

The Berghoff at 717 W. Adams, reputed to be the oldest restaurant in Chicago, had been recommended to us. As we trudged back to town, we looked forward to a good German dinner. There was a line at 5:45, but we were soon gobbling up plates of sauerbraten and steins of wonderful homemade beer, all for less than $30.

By now it was close to 7 p.m. and we had an 8:40 plane which left us enough time to window shop before hailing a cab back to the airport. Thus far, the day had been perfectly orchestrated. Now we had an hour and a half to kill before the flight which left a half hour late.

We landed at 11 p.m. Detroit time, retrieved the car for $5 and were home in time to catch the end of the news. That morning we heard a passenger coming off the plane from Chicago exclaim, "Wow, was that easy." And it was.

The writer's twin sister, Margaret a.k.a. Peg, contributed to the story.

City of Grosse Pointe Woods, Michigan

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the City Council, meeting as a Board of Appeals under the provisions of Section 5-14-1 of the 1975 City Code will meet in the Council-Court Room of the Municipal Building, 20025 Mack Plaza, on October 17, 1988, at 7:30 p.m. to hear the appeal of Boycho Manev, 20006 Holiday, who is appealing the denial of the Building Inspector to issue a permit to enclose a front vestibule of the residence at 20006 Holiday. The building permit was denied due to a deficiency in the required front yard as set forth in Section 5-4-3, Schedule of Regulations, Item F, of the Zoning Ordinance of the City of Grosse Pointe Woods. A variance is therefore required. All interested parties are invited to attend.

He skates to professional standing and new business

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

At 19, Bill Tocco is doing things to which people twice his age aspire.

He has toured nationally doing what he loves to do — skateboarding; he has his own line of products including a poster of himself; his fans constantly seek advice and autographs, and he just opened a store in St. Clair Shores, trading on his name and his fame.

Tocco, for those who don't keep up with the world of amateur and professional skateboarding, is the tops in his field. His manager, Jay Cavazos, of Cavazos Management Corp. in Las Vegas, compares Tocco's reign in amateur skateboarding to Mike Tyson's reign in boxing.

Skateboarding since he was 12, he perfected his craft and has been competing since 1982. He has won every competition he entered across the country. People came to see Bill Tocco, Cavazos said.

He turned professional in January and placed fourth in his first pro contest. Nursing an injury, he has not competed much this year.

The competitions are in three categories — freestyle, ramp and street. Tocco said he scores well in both street and ramp, but ramp is more challenging, so he likes it better.

His store, Bill Tocco Professional Skate Shop, opened last month, but according to Cavazos and to Tocco, the main impetus is not to make money, although, they admit, that would be nice.

Instead, it is a step forward, because the world of competitive skateboarding is tough.

"The world of skateboarding is so dangerous that as a professional skater if you are in the top ranking for five years, that's unheard of," Cavazos said.

"This is a business venture to secure my future and do a good service for the community," Tocco said. "Kids would much rather buy from someone who knows about skateboarding than from a store that just jumped on the bandwagon."

But Bill Tocco Professional Skate Shop is in the business of promoting more than skateboarding. It is in the business of promoting clean, drug and alcohol-free living.

"I don't smoke, I don't do drugs, and I don't drink," he said. Very conscious of his status as something of an idol to skateboarding aficionados across the country, he sets an example by his wholesome lifestyle, and additionally he has starred in public service spots urging students to stay sober and to end gang violence.

He wants to change the image people have of skateboarders. Tocco said many people see them as delinquents who are a nuisance to pedestrian traffic. He asks, "What would you rather have, kids riding skateboards or doing drugs?"

He is promoting, through his appearances, the ideas of skate parks to get the kids off the streets, and his drug-free lifestyle serves as an example to youngsters. He is also an advocate of positive self-talk, believing firmly that you become what you tell yourself you are. He maintains a totally health-conscious diet and works out six or seven days a week.

He also extends his high standards to those around him, those who work in his shop, his agent, his manager and his publicist are all extensions of him, he said, and therefore must remain clean, too.

Cavazos says, "Bill is the exception to the rule. He has very high standards. He's much more serious than most people at his age. That's what has made him so successful."

But Tocco credits something else.

"I know the accomplishments I've made as a 19-year old are great, but it's only the tip of the iceberg," he said. "I owe my successes mainly to God and to my parents, Anthony and Grace, who have always supported me."

He has a line of clothes marketed not only to skaters, but to the general public and he hopes to get into acting. Although he is not able to talk about it yet, he said he has just signed with a Hollywood agent and there are some deals in the works.

He urges those who don't understand skateboarding — both parents and younger kids — to visit the store and see what a wholesome activity it can be.

And for his peers and younger people, he says, "Go after what you want. Choose the positive, set goals and know what you want."

Businessman and professional skateboarder Bill Tocco of the Woods is with his parents, Anthony and Grace.

GMAC Mortgage Corp. announced the promotion of Woods resident Patrick J. Berns to branch manager for the Detroit office. In this position, he is responsible for the residential loan office as well as an employee loan center that specializes in mortgage loans for employees of GM. Berns joined GMAC Mortgage in 1986 as a loan officer in the Troy branch. Previously, he held positions with Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit and the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

Two Grosse Pointers have been elected to offices in the Metropolitan Detroit Advisory Board of the Salvation Army. Richard J. Strouger of Grosse Pointe Shores was elected first vice chairman. Strouger is a partner in Price Waterhouse of Detroit. Dale Austin of Grosse Pointe will serve as secretary. She is an active leader in community affairs.

Grosse Pointe Farms resident Randolph Agle was recently named as co-chair of Victory '88, a committee that will oversee voter registration, development of voter lists, fundraising and the promotion of Republican candidates throughout Michigan. Agle is chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Talon Inc., a privately owned holding company with interests in retailing, manufacturing and real estate.

The Metro East Chamber of Commerce has appointed Woods resident Donald R. Burke to the position of vice president for community development and human resources on the board of directors. In addition to overseeing the committee, Burke will chair the strategic planning committee in its task of putting in place a long-range plan and program of work for the chamber. The Metro East Chamber of Commerce serves the business communities of St. Clair Shores, Roseville, Fraser, Harper Woods and the Pointes.

Elliot

Pointer Willard E. Elliot was recently honored as being one of the charter enrollees in the Certified Tax Professional program. Elliot was awarded a special one-time-only certificate by the National Board for Tax Professionals commemorating those tax experts achieving certification in the first year of the program. Only 325 tax experts achieved certification and were eligible for the award.

Ann C. West of Grosse Pointe Park has become affiliated with the Grosse Pointe Center for Individual and Family Therapy as a psychologist. West will be doing individual therapy for adolescents and adults and couple therapy. She was formerly with the Shulman Clinic of Royal Oak.

Grosse Pointers Beverly Beltaire and Philip J. Meathe were recently awarded the President's Cabinet Award from the University of Detroit. The award is presented to individuals who demonstrate a commitment to excellence in education, to leadership, to assisting others, fostering high ideals and embodying U of D's excellence by their examples and achievements. Beltaire is president of PR Associates, Inc., a public relations firm in Detroit, and Meathe is chairman of Smith, Hinchman & Grylls Associates, a Detroit architectural firm.

National Computer Equipment Corp., a nationwide lessor/dealer of IBM and other computer equipment, recently announced the addition of two pointers in its Product Management Group. Kirsti Lucander is an assistant product manager responsible for such equipment as video display terminals and their controllers. Michael Wild, a dealer account representative will assist product managers in broadening their access to the market and better serving the dealer.

Carr

Comerica Inc. has appointed Grosse Pointe Farms resident Kevin F. Carr to vice president, corporate legal department. Carr joined the bank in 1986. He received his bachelor of arts degree in 1975 from State University of New York, New Paltz, New York, and his juris doctorate in 1980 from the University of Detroit School of Law. He is a member of the State Bar of Michigan and the American Bar Association.

Design innovations is topic

Dominic Pangborn, president of Pangborn Design, Ltd., will discuss "Innovations in Design" at the International Association of Business Communicators Detroit Chapter meeting Wednesday, Oct. 12, 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at the Southfield Hilton.

The IABC meeting is open to the public. Contact Kim Welch at 588-7800. Deadline for reservations is Oct. 7.

President of his own firm for the past 10 years and an eight-year resident of Grosse Pointe, Pangborn and his design team have won numerous national and local awards for projects ranging from annual reports to package design, corporate identity programs, posters and exhibits.

Headquartered in Detroit, the firm also has offices in Chicago and Tokyo.

Mama Pasta

The Italian restaurant of the '80s

By Pat Paholsky
Editor

An errant baseball got Joseph M. Lucido in the food business.

Lucido, an owner of Mama Pasta's at 20930 Mack in the Woods, said when he was about 12 or 13, he and his friends were playing baseball in a field near the Gourmet House in St. Clair Shores. A ball landed on Gourmet House owner Sam LaFata's car, damaging it. The boys ran, but the owner grabbed Lucido.

"We worked out a deal. He made me work to pay off the damage and I just fell in love with the business," Lucido said.

When he was a student at Lakeview High School in St. Clair Shores, he took all the cooking classes he could and that was followed up with three years in the culinary program at Macomb Community College.

He worked for a company that serviced institutional cafeterias and spent four years managing the dining room at the Hazel Park race track. He was food and beverage director for three years for the Holiday Inns.

So it was natural to begin his own business. He and his father Joseph started the Mama Pasta franchise and opened up the first restaurant on 19 Mile and Hayes near Lakeside Mall two years ago. They opened another Mama Pasta in Novi three months ago and will open their fourth business in Rochester next year.

The Grosse Pointe Woods restaurant, owned and operated by him and his brothers Al and Rob, opened six months ago after four months of renovation.

"We had been after this corner since it was Anton's," Lucido Brothers Al, Joe and Rob Lucido show some of the noodles made daily in the glassed-in pasta room that is visible from Mack Avenue.

said. Prior to Mama Pasta, it was Julio's.

Patrons familiar with the previous business will not recognize the interior except for the bar area. There are windows along the front and a lighter, brighter interior.

One of the showpieces of Mama Pasta is a glassed-in pasta room facing Mack. Every evening from about 5 to 9:30, an employee makes pasta.

"We gave up seating for the window, but it reinforces the freshness of our food," Lucido said. "We have a lot of fun with kids who are intrigued with the (pasta) machine."

Another showpiece of the business is the espresso maker that commands the center spot at the bar. It's a replica of the original espresso machine and was custom-made in Italy of hand-copied brass.

"We contracted it out of New York and we were notified when it was started and when it would be shipped."

The philosophy behind Mama Pasta is fresh food, he said. "We are trying to be the '80s Italian restaurant. We have a limited menu and we don't try to be everything to everyone. We only have one vegetable a day and all our veal is cut right off the leg and trimmed. Our pasta is fresh and our sauce is made here."

The menu lists two soups, six appetizers, pizza and three desserts. Luncheon specials that change daily may include a fresh fruit plate, pasta salad, club sandwich croissant, steak sandwich and smaller portions of the dinner pasta specials, like fettuccine Alfredo, chicken primavera and linguine and clam sauce, all for $4.95.

The dinner menu has nine pasta dishes, nine veal and chicken, four beef and four seafood dishes. Prices range from $6.95 to $11.95.

There is also a pasta special for $4.95 that includes salad and bread and offers diners a choice of six pastas and four sauces. The children's plate is $2.95.

There is full bar service and a choice of nine wines by the glass and 11 by the bottle.

The restaurant seats 140 people and employs about 45 workers. Hours are from 11 a.m. to midnight seven days a week. Reservations are not taken. Lucido said there will be a Sunday brunch introduced sometime this month.

"We are very family-oriented," he said. "Our thinking was that we didn't want to come into the area as a high-priced restaurant."

The main dining area has two rooms, with the one in the back reserved for people without children.

There is entertainment on the weekend. Bill Long, a guitarist and singer, is currently performing Fridays and Saturdays in the bar from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m.

The entire menu is available for carry out. To order, call 886-1190.

Along those lines, the brothers are in the process of beginning a deli counter in the front. Pasta by the pound — made with spinach, tomato or herbs — as well as grated parmesan cheese, sauces and cannolis will be available to take home.

Lucido said the restaurant serves about 500 dinners a day. His brother Rob runs the kitchen and he and his brother Al circulate among the diners.

"We are constantly on the floor, asking people about the food and we get a good feedback."

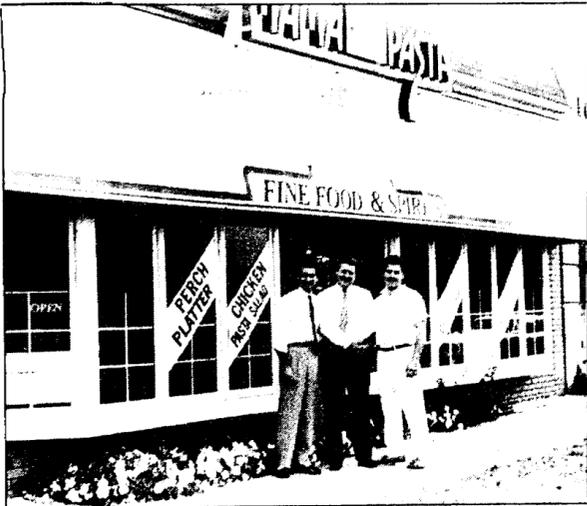

"I think that's the real success of our business — that we are out here facing the customers."

"This business — you marry it," he added.

He and his wife, who taught last year at Star of the Sea, have three children, all students at Star. The restaurant has hosted a number of fundraisers for the school.

Mama Pasta won a beautification award this year from Grosse Pointe Woods for the renovation of the building.

Trying times for teenagers

Center offers help, counseling for area's sexually active young people

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

The teen years can be a turbulent time. The days of "Father Knows Best," when all kids had to worry about was getting good grades and a date to the prom, have been replaced with the pressures of alcohol, drugs, early sex, fast cars — and good grades and a date to the prom.

Public campaigns urge teens to say "no" to a variety of temptations, but the fact is that many teens feel they are capable of making decisions themselves. For those who have decided to be sexually active or who are wrestling with the decision, Grosse Pointe's Family Life Education Council provides a forum for counseling, discussion, help and medical advice.

FLEC's Center Point medical clinic meets every Tuesday evening between 7 and 9 p.m. (first come, first served — come at 6:30 to be sure). The clinic is held in Cottage Hospital's former nurses' residence on Ridge Road and is staffed by resident doctors from St. John Hospital.

"We couldn't do this without the support of our local hospitals," said FLEC Director Patti Forster. The program has been operating since 1971 with the services of several local doctors.

"It's an educational opportunity for us if we choose to do it," said Dr. Thomas Hoffman, a St. John resident who, with the other six current participants, began volunteering at the clinic a couple of months ago. "It's a feeling of wanting to help in the community. Teens are a group of people who don't receive as much medical care as they should — I don't know if that's just part of a turbulent age or what."

A visit to the clinic begins with the usual background information-gathering. Then, "depending on why they came, counseling could take place right then," said Marilyn Becker, the program director of the Center Point Crisis Center. "For instance, if they think they're pregnant or have a venereal disease, they want to talk about that right now."

East-side teenagers learn about the clinic through FLEC flyers at local high schools and through word of mouth. They know they can get information and counseling on all kinds of sexual concerns, from birth control to disease treatment. The great majority are female, Becker said, and by law, they can be treated without their parents' knowledge.

"It's confidential," said Becker. "Parents don't have to know, but often they do. Once in a while, a parent comes along, and sometimes parents bring other people's kids."

Dr. Hoffman said the teenagers are emancipated. "Essentially we treat them as adults . . . If a person has serious medical problems, we tell them, and usually at that point, the parents become involved."

If teens are younger than 15, parental consent is required for treatment. That's a policy FLEC is reviewing, because the fastest increase in teen pregnancy statewide is among girls 14 and younger.

FLEC does not tell the teens what to do. "Many, if not all, of the kids who come here are already sexually active," Becker said. "We give them the information they need to look clearly at the issue."

That information includes birth control methods and alternatives, values clarification, medical side effects and use of the condom as a disease preventative.

"I'm impressed with the kids who come here," Becker said. "They take long, deep looks at what they're doing; they're easily able to verbalize their feelings — and they're looking at committed, monogamous relationships, not just having fun."

"By coming here, they're taking a great deal of responsibility for their own actions."

One thing that hasn't changed is that teens still don't want to tell their parents when they're pregnant.

"Often their first reaction is to get an abortion," Becker said. "We encourage them to take their time in deciding — and talk to their parents. Of course, they think their parents will kill them, but we encourage (the communication). If it's something they just can't do, then they should find another adult to talk to."

Counselors don't tell their young clients what to do about a pregnancy, but they do lay out the alternatives and emphasize that whatever choice is made, it will have a major, long-term impact on their lives. They also wait weeks before doing referrals for adoption or abortion, in hopes that further discussion will help the teen crystallize her thinking. But counselors are also well aware that the information is available elsewhere.

"If they want an abortion, all they have to do is look in the phone book," Becker said.

Most of the counseling is done by Center Point, but some inevitably takes place in the examination room. Again, "we don't tell them what to do," said Hoffman. "If a person is determined to be sexually active, we advise her to use the pill."

One of the problems Hoffman sees is that "TV shows adult sex, but nothing about consequences. There are romantic scenes, but they never show somebody getting genital warts or gonorrhea or AIDS."

"If a patient says she wants to be sexually active, I generically recommend that they buy condoms. That's the surgeon general's advice, and I agree with it."

Hoffman said he and the other doctors would also counsel about abortions and their long-term significance. "It's not like putting out the garbage," he said. "There are emotional and sometimes physical consequences." He said, however, that in his two months working with the clinic, he has not seen any patients wanting an abortion — and that the St. John doctors never perform abortions.

Becker agreed that neither abortion nor adoption is the most frequent choice of pregnant teens.

Cottage Gift Shop Guild puts finishing touches on Holiday Mart

The women of the Cottage Hospital Gift Shop Guild are adding the finishing touches to plans for their annual Holiday Mart, scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 15, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Assumption Greek Cultural Center, 21800 Marter Road.

Proceeds from this year's event will be used toward the purchase of a CT scanner.

Among the items in this year's Holiday Mart are festive wreaths, ornaments and decorations. Also featured are toys, small gifts, smocked children's dresses, lingerie, jewelry, day and evening bags, gloves, cards and stationery, attic treasures and baked goods.

Lucky ticket holders will win a $100 or $50 money tree. Local merchants have also donated special gifts. Raffle tickets are on sale at the Cottage Hospital Gift Shop and will be available at the Mart; tickets are $1 or six for $5.

Pointe trio inducted into CATCH Hall of Fame

By John Minnis
Staff Writer

Three Grosse Pointers were among the first ever to be named to Detroit Tigers' manager Sparky Anderson's CATCH Hall of Fame.

Honored at last week's black-tie gala at the Fairlane Manor in Dearborn were Pointers Charles T. Fisher III, William Clay Ford and Dr. Clarence S. Livingood. Also making the Hall of Fame was Tiger owner and Domino's Pizza founder Thomas S. Monaghan.

Some 160 Grosse Pointers, media and sports personalities and Tiger players were among the many who contributed $175 a plate to attend Anderson's CATCH Night of Champions fundraiser.

CATCH — Caring Athlete's Team for Children's and Henry Ford Hospitals — was formed by Anderson last summer to raise funds "for the kids," as the popular Tiger manager likes to say.

CATCH benefits children who have needs beyond hospitalization that are not met by insurance coverage and are beyond the financial means of the children's parents.

"It's so important what we're doing and what's happening here for the children of Detroit," Anderson told his guests. "It's just unbelievable what can happen when people get together like you people have done."

Robert Pilcowitz, CATCH executive vice president, said the non-profit organization has raised more than $450,000 in its short existence. As part of the Night of Champions celebration, Pilcowitz presented $80,000 checks to Dr. John Anderson of Henry Ford Hospital and Dr.

John Baker of Children's Hospital of Michigan.

Also at the gala was Cardinal Edmund Szoka, who delivered the invocation.

The outspoken Tiger manager said he decided to establish a CATCH Hall of Fame so that those who contributed so much for children could get the same type of recognition that great athletes receive.

"I know of no other way to do it," Anderson said of recognizing individuals through the CATCH Hall of Fame. "I consider these men giants."

Anderson said he would like to see the CATCH Hall of Fame program continue in years to come. Plaques honoring the inductees will be placed in the two hospitals "so people can see the names and realize what type of people are helping our children," Anderson said.

Mrs. William W. Cunningham was one of six vice chairpersons of the CATCH Night of Champions; co-chaired the gala's Grosse Pointe committee along with Mrs. W. Warren Sheldon.

The Grosse Pointe Symphony is saving a seat for you

The kickoff event for the Grosse Pointe Symphony — not to mention one of the big events of the social season — is the annual "Inner Circle of Musical Chairs," sponsored by the board of directors of the Grosse Pointe Symphony. It's set for Friday, Oct. 7, at the Country Club of Detroit.

The fourth annual party is also a benefit for the Grosse Pointe Symphony Orchestra. Subscribers to the gala are given a preference of designating a chair/instrument, and also to make a dedication or designation of their choice to be printed in the program. Also, all subscribers will be listed in concert programs for the coming year.

Honorees for the "Inner Circle" are Grosse Pointers Neal Shine, Dave Wagner and Bernard Whitley. Honored guests are Maestro and Mrs. Felix Resnick.

Shine is senior managing editor for the Detroit Free Press. A Detroit native, he has worked for the newspaper since 1950 and has also taught journalism for 20 years in area universities. He is adjunct professor of journalism at Oakland University.

Wagner is the program director and afternoon music host of classical music station WQRS-FM, where he mixes classical seriousness with wit and humor. He holds a doctorate in organ performance from the University of Michigan and has performed on the organ and harpsichord with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

Whitley is the only charter member of the Grosse Pointe Symphony still playing with the orchestra. Born in England, he was a music student there but had an award-winning career as a salesman with Higbie-Maxon. He returned to his early musical leanings when he learned that Grosse Pointe was forming a symphony orchestra.

Resnick is celebrating his 30th year as the symphony's conductor. Mrs. John E. Young Jr. is president of the Grosse Pointe Symphony board of directors.

Music for the evening will be provided by Mel Stander and "The Gentlemen of Swing." Complimentary portraits of attendees will be taken throughout the evenings.

For ticket information, call 886-6970 or 881-4655.

The Grosse Pointe Symphony Orchestra will open its 36th season on Sunday, Oct. 30.

Sweet 60th: After 60 years of marriage, Grosse Pointe's Raymond J. Lynch is looking forward, not back.

Lynch and his wife Celeste celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary Aug. 6 at a mass at Our Lady Star of the Sea Church. Family, friends and their North Oxford Road neighbors were invited to a reception at the Detroit Yacht Club. At the close of the day, Lynch invited everyone to the couple's 75th anniversary.

Feel like a million?

You can, if you show up at the Friends of MS "Millionaires Soiree," fundraiser for the Multiple Sclerosis Society set for Saturday, Oct. 15, at 7 p.m. at the Westin Hotel. The black-tie optional evening includes cocktails, music, dinner, a live and a silent auction, games and an afterglow.

Dinner tickets are $75; for the afterglow, cost is $20 or $25 at the door.

For more information, call the Multiple Sclerosis Society at 967-2211.

A nifty 50: Mr. and Mrs. Ben H. Cochell of Harper Woods celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Sept. 11 with family and friends at the Burning Tree Country Club. The Cochells were married Sept. 3, 1938, at St. Catherine's Chapel of St. Peter and Paul Church.

Son Donald Cochell and his family, former Grosse Pointe Woods residents who now live in Newberry, S.C., attended. Grandson John Cochell of Valrico, Fla., was present. Guests also included Thomas Eagling of tails, a buffet dinner, dancing and a silent auction. Tickets are $75 per person. For ticket information, call 881-0040.

Chairing the event are Linda and Gordon Ford, Susie and John Lambrecht, Nancy and Leonard Smith, and Joan and Mac Woodhouse.

Proceeds will go to benefit the Junior League's Sibley House Restoration Project. The JLD has already pledged $125,000 toward restoration of the home, at 976 East Jefferson Ave. It is the oldest intact residential structure in Detroit.

The 'Opera-Thon':

A cocktail party at Vanelli Detroit was the perfect start to the Michigan Opera Theatre's "Opera-Thon 88!" which ran from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Oct. 1 on WQRS-FM.

Lots of local folks were involved, including MOT staffer Sheila Ingwersen and her husband, Rick Ingwersen of Grosse Pointe Park.

The opera marathon was music to the ears of local opera fans, not to mention the MOT, which will benefit from pledges and the purchase of premiums by listeners.

Ben Cochell retired from Cochell Marine Co. and Mrs. Cochell from the American Red Cross.

Going for the 'Grand Slam': Members of the Junior League of Detroit and several community leaders have organized the first "Grand Slam Party" to kick-off the first Little Caesars Championship Tournament set for Nov. 14-20 at Cobo Hall.

The Grand Slam party will be held Friday, Oct. 28, at the International Center Building, 400 Monroe Street in Greektown. November's tennis match promises to be top notch and so does the Grand Slam party.

It begins at 7 p.m. with cock-

The Pastor's Corner

On honoring Jesus

By The Rev. Tom Schomaker
Jefferson Ave. United Methodist

Talk about jumping the season! Once again the Christmas promotions have begun. Colorful catalogs are arriving in the mail and soon twinkling lights will appear on the streets and malls will fill with shoppers.

And the newspapers will be filled with stories of local governments wanting to host a nativity display . . . with the courts hearing from those who find the display in violation of the Constitution.

For the Christian church, I find it offensive for the power of the nativity to be put up with other decorations which are, after all, intended to foster a different Christmas "spirit" and sponsored by those whose vested interests is more connected to market share than human values.

Further revealing of motives is evident by the propensity of expensive shopping centers to display what courts have said government should not. Protected from the law by the fact that these people-centers are private property, that which is most religious is garnished and garlanded, then set amidst that which is least religious.

A municipality that insists it wants to honor baby Jesus with a manger is as seductive to the church as Herod telling the Magi he wants to only pay homage to Jesus. Like Herod, established powers everywhere may be intent upon insuring that the Christ of faith never makes it past infancy. It is to their advantage to contain Christ and channel Christ's power through themselves.

The conscience of a people does not get expressed in a display on the courthouse lawn. The mature church instead expresses itself in lived-out compassion for those whose cry for justice and help is heard only by God. The mature church hears Jesus' adult plea: "Feed my sheep. Take care of my lambs."

A government that seeks to honor Jesus has other options besides creche exhibits. Locally, we could insure that substance aftercare treatment is available for youth without concern that some "people from the outside" may come for help.

Further, we could demand from our leaders that the elitism we perpetuate under the guise of traditional standards move aside to make way for the Godly human values that draw us together rather than drive us apart. Perhaps God even favors the presence of a theater that charges only a dollar per movie.

G.P. United Methodist Women's rummage sale

The Women of Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church will present their semiannual rummage sale Thursday, Oct. 6, from 8:30 to 11 a.m. at the church, 211 Moross Road in Grosse Pointe Farms.

General chairpersons are Lois Batten and Donna Batten. Carol Ann Maleitzke is in charge of serving lunch to workers during the week. Janet Cornwell is the sorting chairman; Vern McGiverin is security manager. Ginny Downs is chairman of cashiers. Bea Fraser and Deborah Murphy will coordinate baby sitting. Supervising other departments are: Kathy Hershey and Norma Lea Jackson, boutique and antiques; Bea Fraser, children's and infants; Bill Montgomery and Rudy Olila, electrical; Pat Deck and Dorothy Greer, furniture; Bill Clinton, jewelry and accessories; Lois Harding and Dolly Smedley, linens; Charlotte Grose and Vicki Smith, men's clothing; Elinor Kietus and Ruth Miller, shoes; Jane Spaulding, toys; Ethel Penno, white elephants and housewares; Betty Buffa, women's clothes; and Betty Reas, women's lingerie.

Medical missionaries will speak at Memorial

Paul Fuhrmeister, M.D., and his wife Laurie Fuhrmeister, R.N., missionaries to Embangwani, Malawi, during the past year, will give a presentation focused toward those who work in medicine on Thursday, Oct. 6, at 7:30 p.m. in the lounge at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

Fuhrmeister was the medical officer in charge of the hospital; he also served as hospital administrator. He saw between 50 and 60 patients three days per week and spent the remaining days dealing with out-patient referrals, minor surgery and whatever emergencies might arise.

Laurie Fuhrmeister was nurse in charge of 20 patients in the Children's Ward where pneumonia, malaria, anemia, typhoid fever, malnutrition and meningitis were common. Periodically, the children would be moved to a classroom while their ward was sprayed for bedbugs and cockroaches.

The hospital had two subordinate health centers, four outreach clinics, educational programs, construction projects, village health volunteers, tuberculosis and epilepsy clinics, food distribution programs, immunization programs and childbirth clinics.

The Fuhrmeisters will discuss their busy year and their plans for the upcoming year, which will be spent at Presbyterian Hospital in southwest Arizona.

Church hosts music therapist

Singer, composer, author, speaker and music therapist Deanna Edwards will present a lecture and demonstration of music in death and dying at St. John's Episcopal Church Tuesday, Oct. 11, at 1:30-4:30 p.m. and 7-9:30 p.m.

The cost is $20 for both sessions or $15 for one. For more information, call 962-7358.

Earth care

On Tuesday, Oct. 11, Deborah Bloomfield of the Downriver Recycling Center will present a slide show that leads beyond newspaper and tree-saving to new ideas for effective re-use of daily debris.

Bloomfield's talk will be given at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church at 10 a.m. as part of the meeting of Presbyterian Women. A noon lunch will be served.

Reservations for the lunch may be made by calling the church office at 882-5330. Child care is available.

Church Events

Rummage sale

The Grosse Pointe Christian Day school will hold its annual Fall rummage sale in the school basement on Thursday, Oct. 6, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The school is located at 1444 Maryland in Grosse Pointe Park. Proceeds from the sale benefit the school. For information or to donate items, call 823-2206.

Singing school

The Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church will offer a singing school for beginning adults. The six-week course will start Oct. 12 at 7 p.m. in the choir room. There is no charge.

The idea for the class grew out of an article about community singing schools in oldtime New England. Classes include note values, time signatures, pitches, and some terminology.

Helen McConachie is the instructor for the course. Call 886-4300 to register.

Crafters wanted

Bethany Christian Church, 5901 Cadieux in Detroit will hold its third annual arts and crafts show on Saturday, Nov. 12. Display tables are $20. There are only a few spaces left; call 791-4961 to reserve space.

Remember Camelot

This weekend the First Unitarian-Universalist Church, in Detroit's Cultural Center, will host a King Arthur Feast. Starting at 6:30 p.m. Oct. 8, dinner will feature leek soup, shepherd's pie, cucumbers in cream, apple pie, fruit and nuts, and apple cider. Following the dinner, guests will view a slide presentation of historic sites in England and Wales. A weekend at Stratford, Ont., will be raffled off.

Tickets are $7 per person, $3 for children. Advance purchase is requested. Call 833-9107 for reservations.

Bingo night at St. Margaret

St. Margaret of Scotland Church will sponsor a night of bingo with specials, bonus and more every Wednesday evening at Rosemack Bingo Hall, 20791 13 Mile Road in Roseville.

For more information, call 294-0278.

Villagers Dance Club

The Grosse Pointe Villagers Dance Club executive committee met recently at the Grosse Pointe home of Nancy and Carson Grunewald to plan another season of dining and dancing. Present at the meeting were, from left, (front) Carson and Nancy Grunewald, club presidents Jean Stewart and Don Stewart, and Connie Mills; (middle) Donn Kipka, Ralph Cooper, Margune Schmidt, Helen Kipka, Billie Clinton, Bill Clinton and Arnie Mills; (back) Klaus Schmidt.

The group has planned five dinner dances at local clubs, beginning with the opener Oct. 1 at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club. The season ends with a May dance at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

The Villagers Dance Club was founded in 1947 during the Big Band Era by four Grosse Pointe women whose husbands had returned from the service. The plan to "get things back to normal" started with an evening out at the Lochmoor Club. The 65 couples at the first dance started a social group that is still going strong. Membership is limited to 80 couples. Member-sponsored openings are currently available. Guests are always welcome.

For more information, call the Stewarts at 886-1139; the Kipkas at 882-2113; the Coopers at 885-5859; the Clintons at 885-2677; the Schmidts at 886-1292; or the Grunewalds at 885-3441.

Grosse Pointe Rose Society

The Grosse Pointe Rose Society will meet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 12, at the Grosse Pointe Neighborhood Club.

The program will feature consulting rosarians who will cover all areas of the rose-growing season — prevention and cure of diseases, insect control, fertilization, removing wild growth, winter protection, and transplanting. Anyone interested in having a better rose garden next year is invited to attend.

Grosse Pointe Newcomers Club

Leading the Grosse Pointe Newcomers Club for the 1988-89 year are presidents Mike and Trisha Nelson; vice presidents Jim and Ann Dorn; past presidents Jim and Daria Cooper; secretaries Bart and Pam Stone; treasurers Bryan and Kim Lane; social chairmen Larry and Donna Austin and Dave and Denise Long; membership chairmen Paul and Corinne LaBarge and Dick and Terri McClelland; and activities chairmen Darrell and Anne Frappier.

The club's next party is at 7 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 8, at the historic Trinity Lutheran Church in Detroit, where partygoers will experience an Oktoberfest with German food, drink and an oompah band.

Couples new to the Grosse Pointes within the past two years who would like more information about the Newcomers Club may call Paul and Corinne LaBarge at 884-9009 or Dick and Terri McClelland at 885-3574.

Women's Farm and Garden

The October meeting of the Grosse Pointe Shores branch of the Women's National Farm and Garden Association will be on Friday, Oct. 7, at 11 a.m. at the Lochmoor home of Mrs. Alfred Wilson. If you suffer from the pain and disability caused by blocked arteries to the leg and in the leg . . .

. . . our new treatment can brighten your prospects.

Peripheral vascular disease—blocked arteries to the leg and in the leg—can cause nearly crippling pain. And the traditional treatment can take hours of major surgery, a long hospital stay and weeks of recovery—when it can be performed at all.

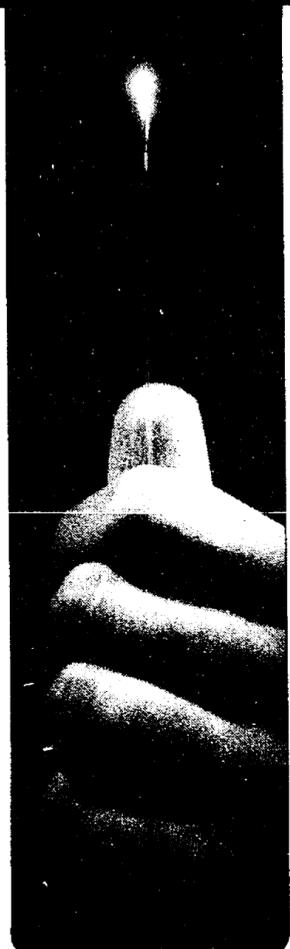

First in Macomb County With a Better Solution.
Now Mount Clemens General Hospital has a superior alternative. Laser vascular surgery.

Traditional treatment for blocked arteries involves a surgical bypass of the blockage with artificial grafts. But laser vascular surgery is performed with an advanced medical laser that actually melts plaque deposits that block the arteries to the leg and in the leg. With the artery cleared, circulation is restored. And pain is relieved.

The advantages of laser vascular surgery are significant. The procedure requires only a tiny incision. The surgery itself takes far less time than traditional vascular surgery. The patient's hospital stay is reduced to as little as one to two days. And recovery time is far shorter and less painful.

Call for a Referral. And Get Back on Your Feet.
If you suffer from the pain of blocked arteries to the leg and in the leg, we'd like to help you. Laser vascular surgery at Mount Clemens General could get you on your feet faster—and we can use laser surgery in many cases where a traditional surgical solution is ruled out.

Don't take the pain sitting down. Talk to your physician about laser vascular surgery at Mount Clemens General. Or call for a referral to one of our doctors, at 1-800-LASER98. And brighten your prospects of a full recovery.

First for your health

Mr. and Mrs. Mark A. Manquen
Stipek-Manquen

Grosse Pointe North High School alumna Diane Loretta Stipek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Stipek, former Harper Woods residents who now live in Clinton Township, married Mark Alan Manquen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Manquen, former Harper Woods residents who now live in Upland, Calif., on June 4, 1988, in St. Clare of Montefalco Church.

The Rev. John Molnar officiated at the 5:30 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at Thomas' Crystal Gardens.

The bride wore a sheath-style dress of white lace and satin with a detachable cathedral length train. The gown's satin sleeves were puffed at the shoulders and accented with sequins and pearls; lace adorned the gown's scalloped hemline, fitted bodice and sheer back. A headband held the bride's cathedral length veil of cascading seed pearls, sequins and white silk flowers, its three-layers dotted with pearls and sequins. The bride carried a bouquet of one dozen white roses, stephanotis, phalaenopsis orchids and greens.

The matron of honor was Beth Hess-Kiers of Clinton Township. Bridesmaids included the bride's sister-in-law, Susan Stipek of Sterling Heights; the bride's cousin, Susan Klein of Utica; two cousins of the groom, Donna Saules of West Bloomfield and Deborah Canale of Sterling Heights; and Linda Orth of Grosse Pointe Woods.

They wore formal length sheath-style dresses of rose lace, styled with deep V-backs and long, sheer lace sleeves. Each wore a headpiece of silk rose flowers and seed pearls and carried a bouquet of rubrum lilies and pink roses accented with babies'-breath and greens.

The best man was the bridegroom's brother, Louis J. Manquen of Detroit. Groomsmen included two more brothers, Jeffrey Manquen and Kevin Manquen of Upland; and James Kiers of Clinton Township, George Baker of Detroit and Patrick Howard of Harper Woods. Ushers were the bride's brothers, William Stipek of Canton and Robert Stipek of Sterling Heights.

Ringbearer was the bride's nephew, Robert T. Stipek of Sterling Heights.

The mother of the bride wore an ankle length gown of champagne chiffon, its lace bodice accented with pearls and sequins. She wore a headpiece of champagne silk flowers and seed pearls.

The bridegroom's mother wore

William and Robert Stipek read scripture at the ceremony. Cherie Weiss read the prayers of the faithful. Organist Richard Bryce accompanied soloist Mary Callahan-Lynch.

The bride's friend Scott Stagner created flower arrangements for the wedding. Table centerpieces for the reception were made by the bride and her aunt.

The bride graduated from North High in 1982. She earned a bachelor of business administration degree from the Walsh College of Accountancy and Business Administration in 1988. She is employed as an office assistant with Industrial Distributors, Inc.

The bridegroom graduated from Grosse Pointe North High School in 1981. He received a bachelor of business administration degree in accounting from the University of Michigan-Dearborn. He is employed as staff accountant for Folmer, Rudzewicz & Co.

The newlyweds honeymooned in Puerto Vallarta, Mexico. They live in Sterling Heights.

Mr. and Mrs. William J.
Sandberg

Tsai-Sandberg

Shang-Ling Jennifer Tsai, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ya-Sui Tsai of Taiwan, married William James Sandberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin J. Sandberg of Grosse Pointe Woods, on May 21, 1988, in St. Monica Catholic Church, Santa Monica, Calif.

The Rev. Charles Garr officiated at the noon ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Chen-Ling Garden.

The bride wore a gown of candlelight satin trimmed with appliques of Alencon lace and seed pearls. Sprays of silk orange blossoms held the bride's fingertip length veil of illusion net. She carried a bouquet of white carnations, stephanotis and baker fern.

The maid of honor, Francis Lee, and bridesmaid Elizabeth Dacany, both of Los Angeles, wore ankle length dresses of pink organza, styled with short puffed sleeves gathered by silk rousebuds. Each carried an old-fashioned bouquet of pink carnations, stephanotis and baker fern.

The best man was the bridegroom's brother, Stephen C. Sandberg of Santa Barbara. Ushers included Mario Calvelli, Allen Lin and Joe Lofti of Santa Monica.

Scripture readers were Patrick

J. O'Halloran of San Francisco and George Hsing of Los Angeles. The responsorial psalm was sung by the choir of the Chinese Baptist Church of Los Angeles, under the direction of Christopher Fong.

The bride's family was represented by Mr. and Mrs. Y. K. Ling of Los Angeles. Mrs. Ling wore an ankle length mandarin gown of pale lavender silk with a matching jacket. Her corsage was of pink tea roses.

The bridegroom's mother wore a cocktail length blue silk-screened print dress to which she pinned a corsage of white carnations.

The bride is employed as a clinical instructor in the Neonatal I. C. Unit at LAC/USC Medical Center.

The bridegroom is a registered representative for Prudential-Bache.

The newlyweds honeymooned in Maui, where they were entertained aboard the cruise ship Independence, by chef Thomas Wybo, a former Grosse Pointe. They will reside in the Los Angeles area.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald H.
Hasenbusch

Beyrle- Hasenbusch

Anne Marie Beyrle, daughter of Donald and Frances Bassett of Grosse Pointe and the late Richard F. Beyrle, married Ronald H. Hasenbusch, son of Harry and Mary Hasenbusch of Howell, on June 17, 1988, in St. Paul Catholic Church.

Monsignor Francis X. Canfield officiated at the 5 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception in the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

The bride wore a gown of ivory silk taffeta accented with appliqued lace and seed pearls and styled with a scalloped overskirt and a train which bustled under a large bow at the back waist. The bride's headpiece and three-tiered veil of tulle and lace were designed and made by the bride's aunt, Grace Buccellato. The bride carried a bouquet of ivory phalaenopsis orchids, stephanotis and ivy.

The maid of honor was Heidi Staub of Grosse Pointe. Bridesmaids included the bride's cousins, Trina Buccellato and Tricia Buccellato of Grosse Pointe Woods and Beth Buccellato of Union Lake; and junior bridesmaid Summer Hasenbusch of Howell, the bridegroom's niece.

The flowergirl was another niece, Holly Hasenbusch of Fowlerville.

The attendants wore tea length dresses of satin brocade in frosted aqua, styled with puffed sleeves and dropped waists. Each carried a bouquet of pale pink cymbidium orchids and white freesia and wore babies'-breath in her hair.

The best man was Todd Kelly of Howell. Groomsmen included the groom's brothers, Randall Hasenbusch of Fowlerville and Ryan Hasenbusch and Reginal Hasenbusch of Howell; and junior groomsmen Anthony Buccellato of Grosse Pointe Woods, the bride's nephew.

The mother of the bride wore a two-piece gown of pale pink lace over silk brocade. Her corsage was a cymbidium orchid.

The bridegroom's mother wore a gown of mauve crepe styled with a draped bodice. Her corsage was a cymbidium orchid.

Scripture reader was the bride's godmother, Grace Buccellato of Port Sanilac.

The bride is a graduate of Western Michigan University, where she received a bachelor of science degree in education.

The bridegroom attends Western Michigan University and will graduate in December 1988 with a degree in engineering metallurgy.

The newlyweds honeymooned in Jamaica. They live in Kalamazoo.

Older citizens have a right to a secure retirement

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

Older voters more than any other group are responsible for the ascension of the Republican Party. According to a recent survey poll linking voter preferences with age this shift is an outgrowth of older voters who switched allegiance from the Democratic Party.

Since older Americans represent a major chunk of the voting populace, this realignment in voting patterns is important. Thank-you notes are not expected, but thank-you legislation from the GOP would seem to be in order.

Such thank-you legislation will become increasingly welcome in view of what appears to be a trend toward a critical view of benefits received by older citizens. Never mind that many live at a poverty level, and even those with private pensions are finding it difficult to maintain themselves. There is beginning to rise from the ranks voices of dissenters who claim there is too much being done for the older population.

Elizabeth Ann Kutza argues in a book, "The Benefits of Old Age," (University of Chicago Press): "No problem occurs in old age that does not occur in other age groups whether it be poverty, mental or physical disability, isolation or malnutrition."

Be that as it may, young people have years ahead to better their lot. All that older citizens have is the here and now.

Implicit in such arguments against benefits for senior citizens is the rising rate of Social Security. It is true that the increasing number of older citizens and the decline in numbers of younger workers is creating problems but it is also true that older citizens are not the only beneficiaries. It includes other segments of the population. The support of dependent children is an example. This excellent benefit comes out of the Social Security benefit. Such a benefit is right and proper. The only question that might be asked is this: Should such benefits as this one come from Social Security or wouldn't it be better if it came from a tax-supported fund?

Social Security is, after all, a trust fund. Workers who have paid into it should expect to reap the benefits of those contributions at retirement age. When Social Security entitlements are shifted from one program to another, the fund is diffused making it difficult to honor the first obligation.

Another factor which critics of old-age benefits might consider is that if benefits are seriously cut then families might have to support them. This is not a happy proposition to ponder. Such a situation would be demeaning to older people and place a burden on the younger generation who may have a difficult time supporting themselves and their families even with both spouses working. Better for all to contribute to Social Security while working toward ways and means of creative funding and more efficient disbursements of funds.

Another area of dissension in funding which concerns the older citizens is funding for schools.

All of their working lives they have built and supported schools, shouldn't they have a tax break now in view of curtailed incomes?

Perhaps both schools and older citizens would get a better break return on investment in youth by older taxpayers. "All that many older people hear of youth is in connection with delinquency, crimes and drugs," said Denny Abbott, director of Child Advocacy Inc. a part of a national federally funded organization to help represent young people in legal matters.

Older citizens, many of them victims of crime, emphasized that they did not dislike young people but they cited cases in which teenagers who were arrested for violent crimes, were released immediately in the custody of their parents and were rearrested soon for similar crimes.

No one will argue that there are more responsible good young citizens than the delinquents who receive more public attention, thus downgrading the reputations of all young people. On the other hand, no one should blame older citizens for not wanting to vote for higher taxes unless stricter methods of dealing with young troublemakers are employed.

Respect for older citizens comes hard under any circumstances. The value placed on the wisdom of age has been replaced by the value placed on technology. Skills once passed on from one generation to another have become obsolete. Hand-made has been replaced by machine-made. Older persons are no longer the repositories of the know-how that once supported the household. Displaced in this vital area, they have lost what was once an all-important link with the young.

Problems, no matter how urgent, are never pleasant to face. Consideration of them makes one feel like the customer who enters a restaurant and says: "I need a bowl of soup and a few kind words." When the waitress brings the soup, she says: "Don't eat the soup."

It's not very cheering. However a few proposed solutions to the problems may fill the kind word request. You'll have to supply your own soup.

Social Security has been described as a disaster looking for a place to happen. Part of the problem lies in the effect the lengthening retirement period has on the cost of doing business. Retirees are living longer and collecting great numbers of benefit checks.

A solution mentioned is a separation of welfare programs paid by Social Security and the earned entitlement from welfare programs financed under general revenues. Social Security has evolved into a broad social — instead of retirement — program. Today's payroll tax is not just to support the elderly but also the disabled, sick and their dependent.

Clearly there is a need for improvements all along the line, not only in the Social Security system, but also in other areas to make retirement a more secure financial prospect.

Prime Time

Bond issues and millages for schools are being defeated regularly. The elder electorate has been blamed for these defeats by some officials and young adults. There is no doubt that schools do need additional support. But taxes for older people are becoming excessive and burdensome. When it comes to older taxpayers who vote against increases, shouldn't the question be asked:

if school taxes were tied to income rather than property values. There are older affluent citizens who could afford to contribute more to education but it seems unfair to make it difficult for those with less to keep their homes because of increased taxes. It's a touchy subject, but one that needs exploration, consideration and new solutions.

Another touchy area is that of Coping with aging parents

"Coping with Aging Parents," sponsored by Saratoga Community Hospital and Adult Well-Being Services meets for six sessions Tuesdays, Oct. 4 - Nov. 8, 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., at Saratoga Community Hospital.

The two-hour sessions utilize a small group approach with emphasis on discussion and expression of feelings. Psychological and informational/educational aspects are interwoven with a focus on the needs of the adult children.

This is a program designed to enable adult children to increase awareness of themselves and their relationship with their parents and to cope with the many demands of elderly parents.

The sessions address the needs, concerns, and feelings experienced by adult children who become the major support for their aging parents.

Registration is required for "Coping with Aging Parents." Enrollment is limited. The registration fee of $35 per person must be paid in advance. Call 245-1555 to register. Telephone registrations may be charged to VISA or MasterCard.

Fall planting, mum shows make fall a busy season

By Ellen Probert
Special Writer

There is a great deal of confusion in most people's minds as to whether tomatoes are fruits or vegetables. And it's all the fault of the United States Supreme Court. Botanically speaking, the tomato is a fruit but in 1893, after an importer claimed that tomatoes were fruits and therefore not subject to duty, the court, apparently realizing that the government was more interested in duty than in accuracy, ruled that it was a vegetable. People have been debating the point ever since.

Incidentally, did you know that one mature tomato plant gives off one gallon of water on a dry day? And in one growing season a single tomato plant requires 349 gallons of water, one corn plant 54 gallons, and one sunflower plant 130 gallons. No wonder the farmers were upset by the dry summer we've had this year!

Country people say that when the weather gets cold enough to silence the crickets it's time to pick all the green tomatoes and wrap them in paper to store in a cool spot to ripen.

It will also soon be time for the annual Chrysanthemum Show at the Ann Scripps Whitcomb Conservatory on Belle Isle, which is always a major attraction visited by thousands of people. But while you are anticipating that display, a visit to the outdoor gardens to see the exhibit of dahlias could be most rewarding. Exact dates for all the year's flower shows at the Conservatory are available from the office. Call 267-7133.

Chrysanthemums, incidentally, are traditionally the symbols of cheerfulness and optimism and, in the Chinese flower language, of rest and ease. They are the flower for October in the Chinese flower calendar and the badge of the old Chinese army.

In Japan, the chrysanthemum is the flower for September, the symbol for long life and happiness, and appears in the imperial crest of Japan.

Now is the time to think ahead to next spring. With a mental picture of brilliant tulips blooming in your mind's eye, you can plant tulip bulbs. The single and double early tulips are the first to bloom about mid-April and are followed by the Triumph tulips in late April; the Old English, Cottage, or May flowering ones that come in their turn.

Tulips are being planted about now in Balduck Park, at Chandler Park Drive and Canyon, by several Girl Scout groups in that leaf-raking and pumpkin carving or trips to the cider mill.

One beautiful perennial is the peony, named for "Paeon," mythological physician to the gods, who saved Pluto from death. In gratitude, the legend goes, Pluto rewarded Paeon with eternal life

In Europe in the 18th and 19th centuries the peony was often the subject of paintings by prominent artists, either by themselves, or as embellishments to portraits.

Peonies have always been a leading motif in Oriental art and poetry and as the traditional flower of China have been aristocratic additions to the imperial gardens since the seventh century. In Japan, the peony is the "flower of prosperity" prized for its symbolism as well as its beauty.

Peonies planted on the south side of the house will bloom first and will give beautiful color year after year. There is an old saying that the best way to grow peonies is to plant them and then leave them alone for 50 years.

This is a good time, too, to pot mint, chives, parsley, tarragon and basil for your kitchen windowsill. After about six weeks give them a plant food watering about once a month and you'll have fresh herbs to use all winter.

We started out talking about tomatoes being fruits or vegetables, but did you ever think about your roses as fruits? After all, apple trees have blossoms before they have apples and roses do the same thing. The fruits of the roses are rose hips. Rose hips have been used as a fruit and to make jams and jellies, soups and syrups, teas, and even wine in many countries for centuries, but in this country so much more attention has been focused on the flowers of the rose that we sometimes forget about the fruit on this double-duty plant.

As a provider of vitamins and minerals it is hard to match rose hips. One handful of rose hips yields as much vitamin C as 60 oranges. And many varieties of roses, especially Rosa Rugosa, contain amazingly large amounts of vitamin A as well.

Scientists of the U.S. Geological Survey Tree Ring laboratory have devised a brilliant scheme to keep vandals away from the expensive equipment set up in the woods in Virginia. They arranged to have beehives set up in the same area. Not only are there no more trespassers, but the clever scientists enjoy the honey as well.

The Gardener's Shed

area. Wonderful things have been happening all summer at Balduck Park with a new and varied rock garden, ornamental plantings around the picnic areas, and wildflowers and other treasures added to the nature center.

Many other things can be planted in the fall for spring and summer blooming. Many roses, varied perennials to be grown from seed, most lilies, and many shrubs and trees. Fall is a busy time, not entirely taken up with as a flower, the peony. Many Greek legends mention the peony and this plant has been deeply revered since ancient times all over the world.

In pre-Homeric times there was a nation called Paeonia, the only country ever known to bear the name of a flower.

Pliny gave a detailed account of the uses of the peony "herb" as a medicinal plant. Centuries later, in England and in Siberia, the peony was used as a seasoning and a spicy condiment.

705 PERRIEN PLACE

This disarmingly different ranch with one floor convenience makes life easier. Country kitchen, family room, a view of the living room with corner fireplace - all in a great location. This spotlessly clean ranch makes living easy with its sprinkler system, central air conditioning and floor plan.

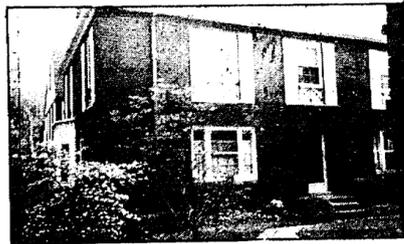

OUR "MINI" MANSE with dramatic details such as sliding beveled doors to formal dining room, music room off the spacious living room; and stained glass window just to mention a few of the special qualities. Located just a block from the water. While sitting on one of two terraces enjoy the sounds so familiar to the Great Lakes! Beautiful grounds and very close to parks and schools.

GROSSE POINTE FARMS Colonial situated in the heart of the "Farms" in a wonderful family neighborhood near schools, transportation, clubs and waterfront park. This charming home offers three bedrooms and two full baths to accommodate the busy family or working couple. Finished basement, central air, multiple fireplaces and exceptional gardens are only a few of many amenities.

AUTHENTIC FRENCH COUNTRY HOME offering you a plethora of entertainment ideas: sweeping halls and ample rooms for the larger guest list; cozy library and formal dining room with fireplace for the more intimate gatherings. Pool, guest/in-law apartment, garden house, plus a substantial price reduction should be sufficient reason to view this prestigious property.

RENT OR BUY: The simplicity of condominium living coupled with the sophistication of crown moldings, oak floors, vestibule, paneled fireplace wall and the bay window in a formal dining room make this an increasing popular style of life. The four bedrooms and two and one-half baths provide ample space. Join the select group at the small and charming condominium complex on quaint and quiet Cranford Lane.

LIKE A GOOD WINE this home needs to be aged! This brand new four bedroom has a dream kitchen and the most accommodating floor plan; expandable to family living but not the least bit overbearing for one or two people. Attached garage, central and private master bath pull this all together for a little bit more than two hundred thousand.

ST. CLAIR SHORES CONDOMINIUM IN WINDWOOD POINT - The miracle mile of Jefferson on Lake St. Clair! Soon to be the most sought after property in St. Clair Shores. Get a jump on the crowds, and the price, and look at this spacious two or three bedroom, two bath condo. The wonderful oak kitchen with bay window, natural fireplace, attached garage and laundry room are more than enough to tempt you at under two hundred thousand. Rent for a year and apply to purchase price.

EAST DETROIT IMMACULATE RANCH - This three bedroom, one and a half bath ranch features a beautiful large kitchen with dramatic skylight. Natural fireplace, patio, sprinkler system, two car garage with door opener. Ambitious sellers!

NEED QUICK POSSESSION? ... CALL TODAY!

Pride of the Pointers

Returning this week from a visit to Europe as a member of Blue Lake in Bavaria is Grosse Pointe South High School sophomore Joy Stuckey, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Paul Stuckey of Grosse Pointe Park. Stuckey is a flutist in the 90-member Symphonic Band, composed of 70 American and 20 European students, which spent time in Europe between July 19 and Aug. 16. While there, they had 10 days of intensive rehearsals at the Ammermuhle in Bavaria and toured Belgium for two weeks.

In addition to playing the flute and the piccolo, Stuckey plays the piano and the alto saxophone.

Grosse Pointe residents who were among those who received degrees at Denison University commencement ceremonies included Colin E. Barr, Mary G. Zitzsche and William B. Krag Jr.

Barr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Karl F. Barr of Grosse Pointe Park, is a graduate of University Liggett School. He majored in economics and political science at Denison, earning a bachelor of arts degree. A dean's list student, Barr received the Reader's Digest Foundation Scholarship, was a member of Pi Sigma Alpha and served as a political science department fellow.

Nitzsche, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Nitzsche of Grosse Pointe, is a graduate of Grosse Pointe South High School. She majored in history and minored in economics at Denison, graduating with a bachelor of arts degree. She served as a student advisor and as vice president of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority.

Krag, son of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Krag Sr. of Grosse Pointe Farms, is a graduate of University Liggett School. He majored in history at Denison and earned a bachelor of arts degree.

Among students who were named to the merit list at Kenyon College for the 1987-88 academic year are Grosse Pointers Christie A. Getto, Frederick P. Fordon, Meg L. DeRonghe, and Donald F. Berschback. Students so honored earned at least a 3.25 grade point average.

Maria Sagaert, daughter of Joseph and Barbara Sagaert of Grosse Pointe Woods, was inducted in Phi Beta Kappa at Michigan State University.

Michael Arndt and John Chisholm of Grosse Pointe Woods, have each been awarded a Presidential Scholarship by Alma College, where they are freshmen this fall. They are 1988 graduates of Grosse Pointe North High School.

Meg L. DeRonghe, a graduate of University Liggett School, will spend the first semester of her junior year in Kenya, Africa, with the School for International Training. She has been named to the merit list at Kenyon College, where she recently completed her sophomore year majoring in international studies.

Susan Kolodziejczyk of Grosse Pointe attended a week-long citizenship program in July sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary. The program, "Girls Nation," focuses on an in-depth study of the federal government in mock Senate sessions.

Kolodziejczyk attends Grosse Pointe South High School, where she is in her fourth year on the debate team. She participates in Junior Achievement, the Foreign Exchange Club, is a member of the South theater group, volunteers at St. John Hospital.

earned honors in national French and Latin exams, and was a member of the South choir, Tower Belles.

Maria Emilia Grodzinsky, daughter of Carlos and Susana Grodzinsky of Grosse Pointe Park, received a Doctor of Dental Surgery degree from Northwestern University June 18. Grodzinsky plans to practice in the Chicago area. She earned a bachelor's degree in biology from the University of Michigan in 1984.

Katherine L. Deuben of Grosse Pointe Park was named to the dean's list for the spring semester at John Carroll University.

Can you say no?

I was going to, believe it or not, write this column two weeks ago before the world even heard about Ben Johnson being stripped of his gold medal because of a detected use of an anabolic steroid.

I'm going to open my closet door and let you know a few of the temptations I turned away as an athlete in high school. I'm not going to try and patronize you, or come off sounding like I was an angel. I am just concerned about the issues that you, as a young adult, have before you.

I can't determine whether any substance is more pervasive now than when I was in school, but I will say that I had my opportunities to experiment with mostly marijuana and beer.

I was an athlete and I didn't touch the beer or drugs because I was afraid of being caught by the school administrators or worse yet, my parents. I was also intimidated by the thought of not being able to compete. Maybe I was a wimp, but at the same time I led a clean, healthy life — by choice.

I still feel I didn't miss much by drinking alcohol or inhaling a joint.

What you are faced with is a dilemma. You shouldn't have to be concerned with where the party is and who can get liquor for you. You should concentrate on your maturing body and the ramifications that go with it if you decide to dump junk into its system. But at the same time, you don't want to be a wimp, a sissy, or whatever adjective applies today. Don't worry about a reputation, worry about the risk.

You can throw the dice and play and get what you deserve. It's a short-term thought that fulfills a need of immediate gratification. You want to be faster? Fine. You want to forget about the real world for a few hours? Fine. But when it's all worn off, you have to face reality — on and off the fields.

Most of the time a steroid is taken to enhance a performance. People who do this don't realize that their body begins a quicker maturing process. It feels good now, but in 10 years from now, or less, it will all catch up to you.

As an athlete you have a privilege only a few can claim. You've been blessed with a God-given talent to shoot a basketball, tackle a runner, jump a hurdle, or hit a baseball. By abusing a substance, you are possibly throwing it all away for a few hours of an unnatural high.

If you want to enhance your body, you should do it with your ability, natural strength, and a fresh mind.

I could suggest you say NO when confronted with an illicit opportunity, but that cliché is being tossed around too loosely. However, saying no doesn't mean you are denying trying to be cool or in with the crowd. I believe it takes a strong young man or young woman to turn the other cheek and feel good about a tough decision.

Head East young team

By Rob Fulton

Sports Editor

Returning to the land where field hockey was mastered, the University Liggett School field hockey team found that the East is everything it's cracked up to be.

In only four days, the 16 girls toured four states and more than six colleges all thanks to the Memorial Tolleson Fund. The fund was created and is still maintained by donations from many who had a particular attachment with the Tolleson family. Roy, the husband of the late Joyce Tolleson, and his three daughters Betsy, Suzanne and Chrissie decided that doing something in memory of a former Liggett School student, trustee and parent, was appropriate.

"Her (Joyce's) love was the kids and the sport of field hockey," said Muriel Brock, ULS field hockey coach. "Mr. Tolleson and his three daughters decided they'd like to give this opportunity of travel for school as well as field hockey, instead of a piece of equipment."

"It's very unusual to have a fund dedicated for travel," Brock added.

Brock, who grew up in Connecticut, remains in contact with various friends and relatives. With that in mind, she embarked on the first field hockey trip.

"Because of my friends and family out there, we were able to arrange a trip desirable to the young people," Brock added. "And after we got back, it was something I'm sure the girls will not forget."

ULS combined its travel and sightseeing plans with three field hockey matches. In their matches, they were 1-1-1, but more importantly they viewed college campuses and acquired a taste for the East.

"In conjunction with being able to play field hockey, we tried to build on an area to become more familiar with the colleges," said Brock.

With visits to Wellesley College, Harvard, Boston College and Dartmouth before or after a match, the girls didn't seem to tire. Four days and three nights was enough to tempt them to stay, but Brock feels they got plenty out of it for such a short time.

"We moved around all the time," Brock, who counsels in the ULS upper school, said. "I think the greatest effect was being able to see the colleges we have talked about so often. I was trying to expose them to the city, the country and the ocean."

The girls were housed in bed and breakfast places throughout their 550-mile journey. They walked through Boston's Faneuil Hall and Quincy Market on their first night, and much to their disbelief, Brock graciously granted a loose curfew.

"I allowed the kids the freedom they should have," she said. "When we arrived and I told the girls to have fun and meet back at a certain point at 9 o'clock, they asked me if I was serious," Brock explained. "I firmly believe everyone needs their freedom, but if they were to take advantage of it, then I am quick to shut the door."

As it turned out, some of the girls could have locked Brock's door.

"Most of the girls were back before 9 o'clock and were waiting for me," Brock chuckled. "It was interesting to see them back and ready to go. I never once had to wait for the girls. They were quite responsible."

While it may have been easy to dress casually and sightsee, the girls did slip into their playing skirts and head to some of the finer fields. They battled the likes of Milton Academy, Andover Philips and St. Paul's.

"The girls can hold up their heads for how well they played against some of the finest schools in the East," Brock said. "We definitely played good teams."

As much as she liked the ambitious trip, Brock would not have gone if it was strictly field hockey related.

"If we were going to play just field hockey, I'd be disappointed," she said. "In fact, I would not have gone if we just played."

"Every one of the girls, I'm sure, have benefitted from this educational trip and we have many people to thank for it."

Kaiser surrenders US-1 rank

By Rob Fulton

Sports Editor

Bob Kaiser, Grosse Pointe, is now another living example of how difficult it is to repeat as a champion.

Kaiser, who all season long wore the US-1 emblem after capturing the national offshore boat racing title in 1987, relinquished his top billing after finishing the 1988 circuit as the No. 2 driver in the nation.

Kaiser was in third place entering the final run in Atlantic City, and the problem that has plagued him all year once again played the nemesis role. After leading for the majority of the race, Kaiser's Chevrolet Marine Power 38-foot catamaran blew a drive, pushing him into the middle of the pack. After recovering, Kaiser and throttleman Errol Lanier managed to salvage the race with a respected third-place finish.

"It's terribly disappointing to not be the champion again," Kaiser said. "Last year it was a dream year, but this year it was more of a nightmare."

Nightmare may be suitable. Kaiser finished first in three races, but in the other five races when he finished between third and fifth place, he held the lead and engine trouble doused his chances of taking the flag.

"We've had great success with our engines with the support of Chevrolet Marine Power," Kaiser said. "All year long its just been a problem with the drives."

Kaiser tallied more points than in his championship year, but it wasn't enough to retain the title as he reluctantly turned the reins over to Special Edition of Connecticut.

"I hate to lose," he said. "Nobody remembers the No. 2 guy. It'll be very difficult for me to see my numbers on another driver's boat."

"The US-1 ranking is the highest honor, but no longer will I have that honor," Kaiser said. "But that doesn't mean I won't be back next year to get it."

In the final race in Atlantic City, Kaiser led the race with 12 miles to go when his drive snapped. He avoided a collision, but what also eluded him, was the opportunity to stand on the top of the three-step podium.

"Any time you get knocked to the canvas, you have got to get back up," he said. "Nobody stands around and feels sorry for you. I raced my hardest all year long and I've always gone out to win. This year I just had a stroke of bad luck."

Kaiser's plans are left unmentioned, but he does foresee a shot at winning a world-class event come November.

"I want to win the Miami or Nassau, and Nassau to Miami race," said Kaiser, who last year set a world-record speed of 108.043 mph. "There are always

Sports medicine program at Cottage Hospital

If you or a friend are thinking about a career in sports medicine, you'll be interested in the free community program, Careers in Sports Medicine, sponsored by CHAMP (Cottage Hospital Athletic Medicine Program).

Students, parents, teachers, counselors and coaches all are encouraged to attend this special CHAMP program on Wednesday, Oct. 12 from 7 to 9 p.m. in the lower level boardrooms of the hospital.

The hospital is located at 159 Kercheval, between Moross and Cadieux.

At the program, CHAMP athletic trainers, physical therapists and physicians will guide you through the career possibilities in athletic medicine, outlining the roles and responsibilities of each member of the sports medicine team. They will also discuss the schooling each career requires and the job opportunities that await in the field.

"Trained professionals are needed in all aspects of sports medicine," says CHAMP trainer Marti VanEenaam. "This program shows the way to an exciting career opportunity."

Lady harriers continue on unbeaten path, kickers go 8-3

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

Since 1979, South's girls' cross country team has been the only team to collect the Eastern Michigan League title at the end of the dual-meet season.

This year it looks much the same, as Coach Steve Zaranek has led his troops to an overall record of 14-0, and 3-0 in the league.

"We've had a lot of success over the past 10 years in the league," said Coach Steve Zaranek, "and this year I'm once again very pleased that the dual-meet season is going very well. We're on line to win the league again."

With seniors Toni Tedesco, Julie Nichols and Elizabeth Kraft leading the way, South has won two invitationals this fall, including a recent win at the Center Line Classic, 30 points ahead of Warren Mott.

Nichols finished fourth (19:48) and Tedesco was sixth (19:56) in a race that held 130 runners.

"They ran great races," Zaranek said. "It is really a great race for them when they finish under 20 minutes."

Emily Burkett, Erica Mondro and Heather Cunningham led the freshmen crew by running "personal bests."

"I came into the season very optimistic, but we lost two runners (Ann Llewellyn and Vicki Groustra) and that caused some concern," Zaranek said. "But what's happened is that we've had some people fill in very nicely."

South will travel to intracity rival North on Oct. 6 for a 4 p.m. run.

"That, as usual, will be one heck of a race," Zaranek said. "Running against them is one of our best challenges."

Basketball

Katie Kolp tried to do it on her own against Edsel Ford as she poured in 10 points, but Ford was too much for the Devils, 49-25.

Lorrie Geist added nine rebounds, and Kolp had seven steals as well.

At Mount Clemens, the Devils couldn't muster much as they suffered their first league loss to the Bathers, 53-40. Kolp paced South with 14 points.

Boys' cross country

South kept its hopes alive to win the E.M.L. with a win over Port Huron Northern.

Mark Sonnenberg, Phil Orton and Paul Heymes went 1-2-3 for South, and Dave Kerfoot and Marty Kraft finished fifth and seventh, respectively. Billy Wilson helped the 3-0 Devils by finishing 10th.

South then traveled to the Carl Schoensee Memorial Classic and finished first in Division II.

"We knew we were dealt the right hand when powerful Monroe was assigned to Division 1," said South coach Tom Wise.

South beat 18 other teams, but a 1-point margin over Murray Wright was too close for comfort. South will meet Murray Wright in the regionals.

Mark Sonnenberg's 16:32 was good for seventh, followed by Orton's 12th-place time of 16:37. Heymes was 27th, Kerfoot finished 32nd, and Kraft was 42nd to round out the scoring. The total time for the five finishers was the lowest in South's history.

Soccer

South moved to 8-3 on the year with a resounding 8-2 win over Mount Clemens, and 2-1 margins over Anchor Bay and Notre Dame.

Mike Woodruff's four goals and one assist was enough to beat the Bathers, but Tony DeLuca booted two goals and Rick Reggio and Matt Smucker added one each. Matt Snyder, Chris Paul, Scott Adams, Gus Grodzinsky and Paul Wasinger added the assists.

John Drummy and Chad Schomaker provided the scoring against Anchor Bay, and Woodruff and Brink Cawley teamed up to give South the 2-1 victory against Notre Dame.

Swimming

Gerilyn Bocci recorded a first place in the 200 freestyle in South's 99-73 loss at Dearborn.

Denise Brown was first in diving, and Tina Higel touched first in the 100 backstroke. The 400 free relay team of Bocci, Higel, Anna Francis and Ashley Moran capture first place.

Tennis

After clobbering Dearborn, 6-1, South challenged Marian and won its eighth match, 4-3, to remain unbeaten.

Kathy Rajt (No. 1 singles), Cathy Wachter (No. 2 singles), Amy Hathaway and Cindy Herman (No. 1 doubles), and Julie Wheeler and Anne Tipp (No. 2 doubles) beat their opponents to earn the win.

Football

PUFAR. Seems like a foreign car name, but it's actually South's acronym for pick up the fumble and run.

South's defensive end Rapo Nazarko recovered a Big Red's fumble at the South 15-yard line with just over a minute to play last Friday and didn't have a chance to run with it, but he did preserve South's 21-14 win in Port Huron.

It was a night of big plays and big players. For the second straight week, South's running tandem of Mike Montagne and Steve Rice rushed for more than 120 yards each. Montagne carried 18 times for 146 yards, and Rice ran 120 yards on 16 carries. Montagne also added his fourth and fifth touchdowns of the year on runs of 1 and 49 yards, as South recorded its second straight win.

"The key for us has really been getting our offense going," said South coach Jon Rice. "We have gone to more of a T-set offense and the kids have adapted really well. What's also been key is that Steve and Mike have been running hard and doing the things they need to do."

Trailing 21-14 with seven minutes to play, Port Huron mounted an attack from its own 15. After two penalties they faced a third-and-15 but Big Red quarterback Brett Mullins eluded several tacklers and rambled 51 yards to the South 15.

"I called a time out because our defense just chased him for 51 yards," Rice said. "I just wanted the kids to collect themselves and remind them of what we have been doing to contain them (Port Huron)."

On the next play, Nazarko gathered the pigskin and South ran out the clock.

"The whole game, we were doing a fine job on our coverage in the defensive backfield," Rice said. "We worked hard on their three base passing patterns all week and I don't think their receivers were open for the ball."

South held the Big Reds to under 200 yards on offense and Mullins only completed one pass.

Although the first quarter ended in a 0-0 tie, South could have taken early command if it didn't fumble on Port Huron's 33-yard line.

"We had two big fumbles in the first half that certainly changed the complexion of the game," Rice said. "But we just tried to be poised and play over it."

Lance Harding, who caught three passes for 40 yards, snatched his first pass from Brian Letscher (4 of 6 for 74 yards) to give South possession at Huron's 30. Rice scooted 15 yards, and four plays later, Montagne gave South a 6-0 lead from 1-yard out. Jason Weissert added his first of three extra points to up the lead to 7-0.

On its next possession, South fumbled on its own 18, giving Port Huron a chance to tie it.

"You hate to see fumbles, but especially when you're controlling the ball and moving it," Rice said.

Mullins tied the score at 7-7 with a quarterback sneak with three minutes to play in the half, but South wouldn't settle for a tie.

Letscher mounted an attack of his own that saw him hook up with Rob Kohnle for 41 yards to the Port Huron 15. Harding then reeled in a ball at the Big Red 1-yard line and one play later Letscher ducked in to give South a 14-7 bulge.

"We went in at half and talked about just containing them," Rice said. "We were following the game plan and just wanted to make sure we would continue to do so in the second half."

Montagne followed more than the plans, he followed some fine offensive blocking to score from 49 yards out on the fourth play of the second half. Weissert closed out the scoring with his third extra point.

Offensively, South compiled 346 yards.

"We've been a much improved football team," Rice said. "Getting our offense going has been our key."

South, who trails Port Huron Northern by one game in the E.M.L., travels to Mount Clemens Oct. 6 for a 1 p.m. start.

Tennis team surges to 10-0 start, hoop team makes history

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

Under first-year head coach Karen Cooksey, the girls' tennis team at North is off and running to a 10-0 start.

North finished third in the North Fall Invitational as Barb Thomas and Cristina Bermudez won the No. 3 doubles, but once they got back into match play, things were relatively easy for all Norsemen.

The Lady Norsemen shelled Eisenhower, Warren Woods-Tower and Romeo, by identical 8-0 scores. Romeo, however, did prove to be stronger competition as Maggie Berger took North's Jennifer Freidline (No. 1 singles) three sets before bowing, 3-6, 6-3, 6-2. Jennifer Galvin, playing at No. 3 singles, battled Romeo's Susie Adelsperger and won, 7-6, 6-3.

Amy Austin and Alicia Lynch (No. 2 doubles) won the title at the North Invit., and consolation winners were Freidline, Nancy Giftos and Sarah Morrow (No. 1 doubles), and Becky Devine and Nikki Tassos at No. 4 doubles.

North will play at South on Oct. 6 beginning at 4 p.m. at the Elworthy Courts.

Football

For the first time since 1980 when Jim Krucki coached, the Norsemen varsity football team could finish the season with a losing record.

North lost its second straight game last Saturday, 14-13, at home against Romeo. The Norsemen, who have won five straight league titles, are currently 1-4 overall and 1-1 in the MAC's White Division behind Romeo (5-0, 2-0) with four games to play.

"We played real well," said North coach Frank Sumbera. "The kids were very physical. Except for one play in the first quarter, they (Romeo) had fits with us all day long."

The play Sumbera referred to was a 66-yard touchdown run on the third play of the game for the Bulldogs.

"One play," he said quietly. "We just broke down and didn't contain anybody and they took full advantage of it."

But North battled back. They took the ball, drove 62 yards in 10 plays, only to come up empty when Scott Schorer, who missed practice Friday because of a knee injury, missed a field goal.

"We really should have had a first down inside the 15 but an illegal procedure penalty brought us back," Sumbera said. "But we ended up getting the first down a few plays later, but we stalled and then missed the field goal."

North's defense, which held Romeo to 197 total yards, colored the Bulldogs and gave the offense the ball.

"Defensively we played well," Sumbera said. "We were out there sticking people and we just played a great defensive ball game."

When Scott Bernhardt's offense took control, it capped a 52-yard drive with a 37-yard touchdown pass from Bernhardt to Pete Begin.

Schorer made up for his earlier miss in the second quarter with a 31-yard field goal to give North a 10-7 lead with three minutes left in the half.

Kevin McCarron, who rushed for 87 yards on 12 carries, halted a Bulldog drive late in the half with his first interception of the year on the Norsemen three, and returned it to the Romeo 22.

"We were going to put more points on the board," Sumbera said, "but it just didn't work that way."

Bernhardt, who threw for 111 yards, tried to dump the ball out of bounds, but it hit Charlie Stumb's helmet, bounced straight up, and Romeo intercepted the ball to end the half.

"It wasn't supposed to work that way," Sumbera said. "But that's just the type of season I guess we're having."

"We were in control the whole way," Sumbera said. "We gave them everything we could and they couldn't stop us. We came ready to play and proved that we are a good football team."

At the start of the second half, neither team controlled the ball very long. Jason DeYonker intercepted a pass for North, but other than that the teams played to a stalemate until midway through the third quarter when Schorer booted a 27-yard field goal to keep North in command, 13-7.

With 3:30 to play, Romeo was on the attack. They managed to get the ball to the Norsemen 27, but they elected to punt the ball, much to Sumbera's delight.

"I was thinking they were going to go for it on fourth down because of the time left and the field position they had," Sumbera said. "If worse comes to worse, they could have downed it inside my 10, or the ball would have gone into the end zone."

The former "worse" thing happened as North set sail from its own 8-yard line.

"I wasn't going to air it out," Sumbera said. "I had a 13-7 lead and the ball so all we had to do was control it and run out the clock. But that didn't happen."

On third down, Chuck Schultz, who rushed for 71 yards in 10 carries, fumbled the ball to Romeo at his own 10, and the Bulldogs hit paydirt on the next play.

"That was a killer," Sumbera said. "But we still had time on the clock to get into position for a field goal."

With 2:50 remaining, DeYonker took the ensuing kickoff and ran 30 yards to the Norsemen 40.

"Our hopes weren't dashed although things didn't look good," Sumbera said. "We had to get about 30 to 35 yards and then put up the field goal."

Schultz ran to the Romeo 30 on a draw play, and then McCarron made the partizan crowd stand as he clawed to the 16.

"I thought, that they (Romeo) would be thinking pass, so I elected to run the ball," Sumbera said. "I called a draw on the first play and it worked for only a couple yards, but we stopped the clock with five seconds to play."

That's when they got Schorer on the field and prepared to tee it up. But, a Romeo timeout may have worked to perfection as Schorer's 33-yard attempt went wide right.

"It wasn't his fault," Sumbera said in reference to the loss.

"Scott kicked field goals earlier that put us in the lead. I had every confidence in him."

Sumbera, obviously dejected by the loss, wouldn't say whether the better team didn't win, but did say, "It was there for us. We hit and did the job. We played good defense and did everything we had to, except get the 'W.'"

North will play at Warren Woods-Tower Saturday, Oct. 8 at 1 p.m.

Special Writer

The Lady Norsemen have now filled another page in the history book.

With the 86-22 trouncing of Clintondale, the girls scored the most points ever, breaking the clip of 74 set in 1981.

Each girl contributed at least one hoop, but Heather Mergos' 23 points led all scorers. Mergos, the senior shooting-forward, also had 10 rebounds, six assists and five steals. Noelle Cormier chalked up 18 points to go with 10 rebounds and eight steals.

Stephanie Gore yanked down nine rebounds and banked in 10 points. Junior center Kim Reiter almost hit for a triple double as she had 10 points, 11 rebounds and eight steals.

Against Roseville Brablec, Mergos continued to lead North as she canned 16 points in a 59-44 win. Gore added a dozen points and dished out three assists, and Reiter had 11 points, 14 rebounds and three assists.

On their only Saturday game of the year, North shelled Utica Ford, 44-29 behind Melissa Champine's 12 points and five assists. Cormier also had 12 points and eight rebounds. Reiter and Gore combined for 21 rebounds to move North to 5-2 overall.

Cross country

In relatively easy fashion, the boys' cross country team cruised to a tri-meet win by beating Clintondale (15-50) and L'Anse Creuse (17-41).

Tom Gauerke took first in 18:

34 for North, while Tim Ballew (18:43) and John Peltz (19:33), finished second and third, respectively. Matt Beal finished fourth in a time of 19:47.

Overall, the boys are 6-1 on the season.

Liz Bolden and Laurin Schultz led a string of 10 straight places captured by the girls as they out-ran L'Anse Creuse (15-50) and Clintondale (15-50) last week.

As a team, North is unbeaten at 7-0, and faces undefeated South at home on Oct. 6 starting at 4 p.m.

Soccer

In two games, the Norsemen have scored an average of one-half a goal a game.

In two losses, 1-0 to Stevenson and 2-1 to Fraser, North suffered its first back-to-back defeats of the season.

Glen Nadeau put in North's only goal of the week.

Frosh football

Of noteworthy mention was Paul Straske's incredible performance of 235 yards, and three touchdowns in a 24-20 win over L'Anse Creuse.

It wasn't enough that Kaiser won three of eight races, but he won't let that keep his chin embedded in his chest.

"I've got to keep my chin up and think about the successful year I've had," he said. "I had great success and I can't dwell on what happened."

Kaiser has yet to lose a race after leading the entire way unless his boat breaks. That is not only known by him, but by the rest of the racing contingent.

"Nobody's ever beaten me in two years unless I've broke," he said, "and they know all about it. I have the best equipment in the business and I always run the boat to its limit.

"I'm not going to let this get to me because of the potential there is to win," he concluded.

Johnson lost a gold, others have lost their lives. Do you want to join an elite crowd of a few that has tainted the world of sports? Do you want to be another statistic? Or do you want to improve your physical stature through natural machines and hard work? Which way of training would give you more pride if you are fortunate enough to win a medal or a championship?

Things aren't always equal on a field or in a gym, but when you can have control over your body's performance, why not choose to be the best athlete you can without help from substances, other than water and a proper diet. It seems to me that athletes, as well as non-athletes, are under tremendous pressure dictated by society. But, when all the dust clears, your body will ache, your head will pound, and your maturing muscles will be further ahead than your actual process. You're only fooling yourself for the time being. As possibly your mother or dad said, "Always tell the truth because if you don't, it will always come back to you."

Athletes, or non-athletes are not immune to anything out there. We all have decisions to make each day, but it would be wise to steer clear of unnatural ways of enhancing a performance or body.

A twisted knee, a broken toe, or a sprained ligament can end an athlete's challenge, but those are injuries or ailments you can deal with. But ruining the chance to participate in athletics because of a substance you use may not only destroy that opportunity, but may also shatter your life.

Picking the winners

This week because of the intrastate rivalries, only three college games are being selected. Therefore, Frank Sumbera (North), Jon Rice (South), and Bob Newvine (ULS) will be picking from three collegiate games and seven professional games. The totals include picks since Oct. 2.

Oh, my aching back

Lumbago, sciatica, slipped disc, or sacroiliac problems... no matter what you call it, back pain is responsible for millions of days lost from work; multitudes of round of golf which never make it to the 19th hole; myriads of nights watching the minute hand slowly make its rounds, and just plain one heck of a lot of tears.

As common as back pain is (80 percent of us experience significant back pain at one time or another), knowing something about the prevention and treatment of it could be among the more valuable health information we can have.

A basic understanding of back pain, and the application of some common sense, can assist the back pain sufferer in deciding when to try to treat oneself and when to seek medical help.

The old saying, "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," may well have originated as an introduction to a "back pain" lecture. The kicker here is that the "ounce of prevention" needs to be heeded on a daily basis.

If we would all maintain our ideal body weight, if we would all maintain the fitness level that most of us had in our teens, and if we would observe the principles of proper lifting, the incidence of back problems would decline dramatically.

Proper weight may be the single most important factor in preventing problems with the lower back. Ten pounds of extra weight can result in many times as much force on the discs, joints, ligaments and muscles of the lower back. This added force, hour after hour, day after day weakens the back's ability to withstand normal stresses.

It's not just strength that matters

Optimum fitness also figures highly in protection of the lower back from harm. Fitness for the back means "flexibility" as well as "strength."

Many "ideal body weight" individuals still have low back problems, and more often than not, the reason is lack of flexibility and strength.

What you might try

An exercise program for the back should include not only exercises for the back muscles but also for the abdomen and leg muscles. Sit-ups for abdominal strength can result in great support for the spinal column. Slow, prolonged stretching of the back muscles, hamstrings, and quadriceps allows much improved low stress motion of the back.

Lifting with the knees and holding weights close to the body summarizes the most important basics of proper lifting. An object which can't be lifted with the back erect, with the object close to the body, shouldn't be lifted. Avoiding temptation to ignore these principles can save many a "broken back."

First it's rest

When back problems do occur, the observance of some basic guidelines can greatly assist in recovery. The most important initial treatment is "rest." In some cases "rest" means refraining from further strenuous activity. In others, complete bed rest is needed. We must appreciate the body's ability to "heal," by making sure that we are not reinjuring the affected structures.

Persistent pain not resolving like expected — normally three to five days — should be evaluated by a physician. X-rays, medications, physical therapy, exercise programs or further tests such as bone scan, EMG or CAT scan may be ordered.

It should be remembered that uncommon causes of back pain such as tumors, aneurysms and infections do occur and should be considered during evaluation. Surgery will be needed in a small number of cases, however, even in cases of actual disc rupture, conservative treatment is often successful.

Avoid the problem

Prevention is the key with regard to the back.

Proper weight, good flexibility of back and leg muscles, and strong abdominal musculature are the components of proper back fitness. But, if you do run into problems, conservative treatment consisting of rest, followed by physical therapy and re-establishment of proper low back mechanics can get you "back in action."

The road to good health

The quest for good health has been going on for centuries. As far back as 400 B.C. Hippocrates, the father of modern medicine stated, "A wise man should consider that health is the greatest of human blessings."

Because good health affects the overall quality of life, it seems people would strive harder to attain this valuable possession. However some people take better care of their cars than they do their health, assuming that good health is just a matter of "luck."

What is good health?

Many people would define good health simply meaning that you are not sick. However, the World Health Organization defines health as follows, "Health is the state of complete physical, mental and social well-being, not merely the absence of disease or infirmity."

Such a remark may easily be viewed as overwhelming. Yet, surprisingly, all three areas are intricately connected. If you are taking good care of yourself physically, you will feel good about yourself in all other aspects of your life.

The first step on the road to better health is to establish where you are.

Then you can make the necessary decisions concerning what you will have to do to improve your health status.

- Do you consume a wide variety of foods?
- Do you avoid overconsumption of processed and refined foods?
- Do you limit the amount of sodium and fat in your diet?
- Do you exercise a minimum of three times a week?
- Do you maintain your ideal weight?
- Do you take time to relax and rid yourself of daily tension?
- Do you get plenty of rest?
- Do you only have regular physical check-ups?

These are only a few of the areas which should be considered when reviewing your health status. Your doctor, along with other health professionals are good sources to consult for further in-depth suggestions. Don't hesitate to seek their counsel as you make plans to improve your health.

Incorporating good nutrition

When planning menus which will provide good nutrition, careful consideration should be made for various age groups. The appropriate diet for any stage of life is that which provides sufficient energy to the body, and includes all of the essential nutrients recommended for good health.

All infants are different in their needs and demands. Because each one is so different, many questions have been asked about their nutritional needs. Basically, the infant needs a high intake of iron, protein, carbohydrates, fats, and vitamins and minerals, and especially water to help its tiny body continue to grow and develop.

For children, calcium is one of the most important minerals needed for growth. It is needed to make bones strong and hard, to help bones grow longer and wider, and to help teeth develop properly. Their diet must also include appropriate amounts of vegetables, fruits, grains and proteins.

Teenagers are also growing rapidly and are usually active, so they need plenty of food for energy, as well as for growth. Although girls usually grow more rapidly, (beginning at about age 12) than boys (who begin their growth spurt about age 14 or 15) their recommended dietary allowances are quite similar.

Many teenagers, especially girls, drastically deprive their bodies of the nutrients that are essential for proper growth and development in an attempt to stay slim. As parents or other adults who are involved in the teenager's life, we can be a big help if we encourage our teenager to learn about the nutrients a food contains, instead of being obsessed with calorie counting. And that piece of advice would speak well for all of us adults who have, for too long, focused on the great calorie fixation instead of the nutrients a particular food contains.

The exercise connection

Whether or not you change the oil and tune your car's engine every 3,000 miles as recommended, or 7,000 miles, it will probably continue to run. But the car's performance will not be as good nor will it last as long as it could if you insist on more frequent care.

It is no different with an exercise program. Without being actively involved in a regular exercise program, people can experience relatively good health. But actively participating in an exercise regimen can enhance your overall physical and mental health.

Exercise also helps to maintain and improve the functioning of all systems of the body, such as: digestive, nervous, muscular and circulatory. Keeping a high level of wellness will help to fight the growth of viruses or infections, and will go a long way in keeping us fit, even as we reach our 60s, 70s and yes, on into our 80s and 90s!

Studies have shown that regular exercise can also reduce tension, fatigue, anxiety, and enhance vigor and the ability to deal with the negative aspects of stress. It may even help to reduce or prevent depression. Keep in mind that you can always buy a new car when the old one wears out, but this is the only body you have, so take the best care of it you can. By eating right, exercising on a regular basis, learning to relax, you and your family will live a healthier, happier and longer life.

What are you waiting for? Start today — it is the only day you have been given!

Soccer team remains ranked No. 4, golfers go to 4-3

By James Kim
Special Writer

The No. 4 ranked University Liggett School boys' soccer team completed a highly successful week with three wins.

ULS is 9-1-1. At Warren Bethesda Christian, ULS came away with an 8-1 win behind Mark Sullivan's hat trick. Derek Van De Graaf scored a pair, and Mike Coello, Lawrence Ayuyu and Paul Lanzon netted one apiece.

In their friendly confines, ULS canned Huron Valley Lutheran, 9-0. The ULS defense held its opponents at bay, allowing only three shots on net. ULS put 31 on goal.

Jesse Kasom led the scoring by tallying twice, and Sullivan, Bill Lucken, Lanzon, Doug Wood, Coello, Ayuyu and Mike Niccolini booted one each.

At ULS' homecoming on Oct. 1, Class A Royal Oak Kimball gave the Knights fits, but Coello broke a scoreless tie at the 19-minute mark. Jonathon Davis sealed the win with a goal for ULS in the second half.

The shutout marked the second straight for goalies Brian Schmidt and Kamran Jafri.

"This was a big game for us," said Coach David Backhurst. "It should help us in playing the larger schools coming up on the schedule and when tournament time comes around."

ULS plays at South on Oct. 6 at 4 p.m.

Golf

By Gene Gargaro
Special Writer

The linksters upped their record to 4-3 with two sizeable victories last week.

The Knights trounced West Bloomfield 199-216 as Andrew Stewart and Ross Kogel carded team-leading totals of 46 and 47, respectively.

On Sept. 29, ULS notched a 176-228 victory over Plymouth Christian Academy. Chris McCormick and Gene Gargaro led the onslaught with scores of 40 and 44. Stewart and Rob Petz followed with rounds of 45 and 47.

ULS competes in the Class C regionals Oct. 7.

Field hockey

By Sylvia Ristic
Special Writer

ULS' field hockey team had a strong week as they defeated Cranbrook Kingswood, 2-0, and Academy of the Sacred Heart, 4-2.

Wendy Ford, Meghan Brady, Dana Warnez and Sylvia Ristic tallied in the win over Sacred Heart, and Molly Shields and Brady scored at Kingswood.

On Oct. 1 in front of a Homecoming crowd, ULS and Columbus School for Girls played to a 0-0 tie.

ULS takes on Dearborn on Oct. 6.

Basketball

ULS split a pair of games a week ago, by upending Academy of the Sacred Heart, 46-18, and losing to Southfield Christian, 32-55.

Martina Jerant and Sarah Cleek led the scoring for the Lady Knights in both games.

ULS will host Huron Valley Lutheran today at 4:30 p.m.

Tennis

The ULS netters, ranked No. 1 in Class C-D and No. 3 in all classes, defeated No. 3 ranked Class A Birmingham Seaholm, 4-3.

Winners for ULS were Dawn Martin (No. 1 singles), Elena Hunt (No. 2), Lynn Sinkel (No. 4), and Ali Frederick and Shirley Kim (No. 1 doubles). The victory raised the Lady Knights' record to 6-1.

On Sept. 29, ULS led Detroit Country Day 3-2 when the match was called on account of darkness.

Football

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

After being shut out in three straight games to start the season, the Knights find themselves on the other end of the spectrum.

ULS' varsity football team drilled Wesleyan Academy, 44-0 on Oct. 1 to record a shutout for the second straight week.

ULS' 2-3 was led by senior quarterback Lex Smith's three touchdown passes in a 7-for-7 performance.

"Lex is really running the offense with great confidence," said ULS coach Bob Newvine.

Chris Carroll did his part as he chewed up 71 yards in six carries, including touchdown runs of 10 and 50 yards. Dike Ajiri, who added a two-point conversion, also scored on a "hook and ladder" pass from 35 yards out.

"We're coming together and are now facing teams more our size," Newvine said. "It was satisfying to win, but we also found kids who will be helpful in the future."

After building a 37-0 lead at the half on touchdowns by Carroll (2), Ajiri, a 7-yard toss to Michael Barnes and an 8-yard pass to Neil Weyhing, the ULS starters gave way to the second string.

"They came up with some big third down plays and showed the coaches some things we can work on in future years," New-vine said. "I was really pleased with the way freshman Andrew Van De Weghe played at linebacker."

Mike Whelan added four extra points and Kevin Whitfield, who rushed for 89 yards, scored on a 58-yard run after taking over for Smith.

ULS started the year 0-3, but after getting its first win, 29-0, over Lutheran Westland, things have definitely changed.

"You get down after being 0-3, but the last two games have been a shot in the arm for us," Newvine said.

ULS plays at South Lake Oct. 6 at 6:30 p.m.

'Patty Hearst' is a shocking, deeply personal film

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

The fragility of the mind and how a personality can be fragmented under pressure by fanatics forms the basis of the deeply personal and shocking film, "Patty Hearst," based on her book, "Every Secret Little Thing."

From the time she is abducted by the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA) to the forceful last scene when she is returned to her family, the viewer experiences her psychological torture.

Directed by Paul Schrader from the screenplay by Nicholas Kazan, the film never lets up on her harrowing experiences.

When we first meet Patty, she is a 19-year-old well-adjusted student at the University of California at Berkeley. Without warning, she is brutally kidnapped by the SLA and dragged off to a closet where she is thrown into a sack of old clothes and kept blindfolded for two months. It was two months of terror. She was bullied, screamed at and threatened with death if the police tried to free her.

She became a media event, not only because she was the daughter of William Randolph Hearst, but also her kidnappers forced her to send taped messages to her father. Many who see the film will remember her little girl voice on the radio telling her Mom and Dad that she was alive and asking them to follow the demands of her jailers.

she says in her book she was always aware of what she was doing, an admission that lost sympathy for her with the jury at her subsequent trial.

Brutally brainwashed, she was finally given the choice by the SLA of joining the revolutionists or being set free. She chose to stay with them, a choice that was governed by the person she had become as a result of her savage treatment.

Another factor in her decision was the makeup of the group. With the exception of the leader, the SLA members were similar to Patty in education and background.

Another consideration was the time and place of the incident. In the late '60s dissidents were rebellling against the establishment. For 18 months after her release, Patty joined in guerilla activities, among them the robbery at the Hibernia Bank where she was videotaped and another at Mel's Sporting Goods, where she was shown firing a machine gun to help two friends escape after being apprehended.

After this incident, the three went underground. Sitting in a room watching television, they witness a live telecast of the police storming the SLA hideout. Everyone in the house is shot to pieces. When it is over, Patty mourns as though she had been one of them. "They didn't even try to take us alive," she says.

Eventually the three are taken into custody. When asked about her occupation, Patty answers without hesitation, "Urban guerilla."

Tried and convicted, Patty is finally given a presidential pardon by Jimmy Carter.

The facts of the Patty Hearst story are well-known. They made newspaper headlines, were the basis of magazine articles and a subject of books. Shocking as they were, they didn't have the impact of this film, that so vividly reflects Patty's changing state of mind. It puts us inside her head.

The horror is accented with dark shadows where she hovers in fear. They become splintered with rays of light as each of the captors opens the door at intervals to scream at her or threaten her.

We wonder at her survival as she is helped, pale and weak from the cell, and try to understand her acceptance of those who murder in the name of social justice.

She emerges from her experience with a special knowledge. She is free but she knows she has not been vindicated. Resolved to attain vindication, she tells the audience she will use the media as the media has used her during her ordeal.

An excellent supporting cast is headed by Natasha Richardson who brings to the role a seamless performance, without a wasted word or gesture.

It may be that "Patty Hearst" is too grim to be a popular film, but it is worth seeing.

Detroit Film Society schedules classic film series

The Detroit Film Society announces its 1988-89 season with a series of classic American films from the '30s through the '50s.

All of the films were Academy Award winners for Best Actor, Best Actress or Best Picture for their respective year. In addition the series will highlight an evening with guest speakers.

On Jan. 13, local filmmakers will be featured. Sue Marks and Pamela Conn will discuss their 1987 Oscar-winning documentary "Young at Heart," and Ted Petock will talk about his Oscar for his two-minute hit, "Crunch Bird."

The schedule follows:

Oct. 14-15 - "Rebecca" with Joan Fontaine and "Gaslight" with Ingrid Bergman

Nov. 11-12 - "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" and "San Francisco"

Dec. 9-10 - "Roman Holiday" and "Citizen Kane"

Jan. 13 - Michigan Oscar winners described above

Feb. 10-11 - "Casablanca" and "It Happened One Night"

March 10-11 - "Bette Davis in 'Jezebel'" and Joan Crawford in "Mildred Pierce"

April 7-8 - "Broadway Melody" and "42nd Street"

May 12-13 - "The Grapes of Wrath" and "Gentleman's Agreement"

June 9-10 - "High Noon" and "The Quiet Man"

All screenings are shown on the second weekend of each month, with subscribers having a choice of attending either Friday or Saturday evening with the exception of the January event which will be held on Friday only.

The films are screened in the intimate Friends Auditorium at the Main Library and include refreshments served during intermission.

Artists in DIA photo exhibit

Painters, sculptors, poets, writers, dancers, actors and other photographers come before the camera in "The Artist Observed: Portrait Photographs from the Permanent Collection." The exhibition at the Detroit Institute of Arts continues through Dec. 4. Approximately 70 portraits — formal and informal — show the result of artists looking at other artists.

Picasso is one artist who frankly enjoyed being photographed and whose personality seemingly changed with each occasion. He is in portraits by Brassai, Lucien Clergue, Yousuf Karsh and Man Ray. Henri Matisse is regarded in photos by Brassai, Cartier-Bresson. Berenice Abbot photographed photographer Eugene Atget and painter Edward Hopper. Imogen Cunningham took her own "Self Portrait on Geary Street" and also represents "Edward Weston with His Cats."

Among dancers, Isadora Duncan is depicted by Arnold Genthe and by Edward Steichen, Sono Osato by Andre Kertesz, while Martha Graham is forever

Theater and film personalities emerge in portraits of Orson Welles, Jean Harlow, Gloria Swanson, as well as George Bernard Shaw, Yvette Guilbert, Edward Gordon Craig and Bertolt Brecht. French novelist Colette is the subject of Andre Kertesz, and Bill Brandt posed Great Britain's literary duo, Edith and Osbert Sitwell, beneath a family group painted by John Singer Sargent. Sargent, himself a master of the portrait, is photographed by Alvin Langdon Coburn.

Of special interest to Detroit area viewers are the photographs of Mexican muralist Diego Rivera and of his artist-wife, Frida Kahlo, a Robert Mapplethorpe portrait of the late Sam Wagstaff, former DIA curator and collector, and self-portraits by Detroiters Ann Katzen and the late Kelly Williams.

"The Artist Observed" is open to the public during regular museum hours: 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday in the DIA's De Salle Gallery of Photography.

Drama to premiere

The Detroit Center for the Performing Arts will present the world premiere of an original play, "The Golden Dawn" by award-winning playwrights Robert Schroeder and Jan Henson Dow. The drama opens Friday, Oct. 7 and runs through Nov. 12 with performances at 8 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays.

Step back in time to late Victorian England... a time filled with vibrant romance, political intrigue and seductive mysticism. Follow the famous story of Aleister Crowley, practitioner of black magic; William Butler Yeats, the young poet; Bram Stoker, author of "Dracula"; Maud Gonne, a beautiful Irish nationalist and the other members of the mysterious order of "The Golden Dawn".

Tickets are $10 general public; $7 seniors/students. Group rates, season tickets and dinner/theater packages are available. The theater is located at 8041 Harper, two blocks north of I-94 at the Van Dyke exit. For reservations, call 961-7925.

Scarab club exhibit

The Scarab Club will host the exhibit "Children of War-Belfast," by the figurative social realist artist Lin Baum. The exhibition will be on display between now and Oct. 30, at the Scarab Club, 217 Farnsworth (corner of John R, in the cultural center), in Detroit.

Gallery hours are Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Saturday and Sunday 2 to 5 p.m. Admission and parking are free.

'Sweet Charity' is energetic, irresistible

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

The Birmingham Theatre begins its tenth season with a song-and-dance-filled musical, "Sweet Charity." A Bob Fosse inspiration with book by Neil Simon and music by Cy Coleman, it has stood the test of time.

When it was first produced in 1966, it ran for 18 months on Broadway. Revived in 1986, it is just as irresistible today as it was more than 20 years ago. It still retains that energy and joie de vivre that sent audiences away feeling exhilarated and cheered.

In the Birmingham production, much of the feeling is generated by the performance of Georgia Engel who plays the part of Charity Hope Valentine, a dance-hall hostess who looks for love in the wrong places. Gwen Verdon originated the role and Debbie Allen starred in the Broadway revival.

Engel, best remembered as Georgette in the television series, "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," brings the role a sweetness and innocence. She speaks in a little girl voice and is almost pathetic in her vulnerability. She completely captures the heart of the audience.

Engel is appealing and winning but its the musical numbers that make the show. It begins with a gaudy, brassy show-stopper "Big Spender" against the backdrop of the Fan-Dango Ballroom. It is a provocative setting with the girls draping their gorgeous legs over a rail that stretches across the stage inviting the customers to come-on-in. The background is dim and one girl explains: "When the merchandise is shop-worn, you don't turn up the lights."

Disillusioned and used, the girls still cling to hopes of getting out. In "There's Gotta Be Something Better Than This," Charity, Nickie (Sharon Lawrence) and Helene (Amelia Marshall) pour out their feelings in song and again in the plaintive, "Baby, Dream Your Dream."

Some of the big production numbers include a scene at the Pompei Club where the ensemble perform a "Rich Man's Frug" a stylishly executed geometric dance, and "Rhythm of Life" with Daddy Brubeck (Fred Greene), a super-charged brassy number that gives the chorus a chance to let it all out.

"I'm a Brass Band" is another rousing presentation that features the ensemble as a marching band complete with flags, banners and high-stepping routines.

It expresses Charity's belief that at last she has found someone for looking both earnest and goofy as she hides in the closet drinking beer while he woos his blonde and beautiful girlfriend.

But her best song is one that really expresses the sadness of her life: "Where Am I Going?"

Mention should be made of Amelia Marshall and Sharon Lawrence who are superb in both the delivery of their songs and the hard-edged characters they play.

Patrick Hamilton turns in a good performance as the shy and fearful character who develops enough self-confidence under Charity's influence to reject her because of her background.

"Sweet Charity" is first of all a musical comedy, but under Neil Simon's influence it has, as in all his stories, plaintive touches that always end on an optimistic note.

"Sweet Charity" is a delightful show brimming with vitality.

It is being presented at the Birmingham Theatre through Oct. 16 with evening performances Tuesday through Saturday and matinees Sunday and Wednesday.

Theater

one to love her. The audience rejoices with her short-lived joy as they watch her leading the parade.

A song that has remained popular since it was first presented is "If My Friends Could See Me Now." It is sung by Charity after Patrick Jude picks her up and takes her to his apartment. He has quarreled with his girlfriend and wants someone to talk to. She is thrilled because he is a well-known Italian screen star.

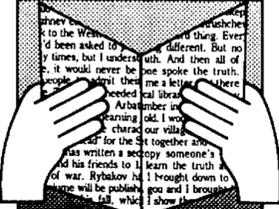

This scene showcases Engel's talents at her best; her nice sense of comic timing; her cute way with silly jokes; her knacks ALUMINUM SIDING AND ACCESSORIES are ideal whenever low maintenance, architectural interest and wide color choice are desired. This condominium received the American Architectural Manufacturers Association's "Aluminum Siding Achievement Award."

Aluminum siding sets the standard for performance, says association

Aluminum siding, time-proven in the United States for decades, is the most versatile siding material available, according to the American Architectural Manufacturers Association (AAMA).

"Aluminum siding has the warm, attractive appearance of wood clapboard, but it doesn't require painting or other bothersome and expensive upkeep," says Bill Anton, AAMA's executive director.

"The color spectrum includes almost any color a homeowner could want — from whites, neutral grays and browns to bright, rich blues and reds."

Distinctive details — "gingerbread" — can be formed readily with aluminum accessories, to enhance the home's archi-

To ensure quality, aluminum siding producers developed a uniform performance standard (AAMA 1402-86) — the only such standard in the siding industry.

Independent laboratories test the aluminum panels, soffit and fascia to ascertain their ability to stand up to harsh winds, temperature extremes and other elements. Manufacturers whose products meet the standard may place a "Side with Quality" seal on product cartons and literature.

For literature about siding, send a self-addressed, stamped #10 envelope to: Siding Brochure, AAMA, 2700 River Rd., Dept. RSPR, Des Plaines, IL 60018.

The future is bright for skylights, one of the most desirable home improvement features

Skylight sales in new and existing homes have gone through the roof, industry sources report.

Steve Bechtold, president of Ventarama Skylight Corporation, Hicksville, N.Y., says, "Skylights were once considered an oddity or the expression of an eccentric homeowner. Not any more. Industry-wide, installations have more than doubled in the past five years—and there's no sign of a slowdown in sight."

Harvey B. Oshins, president of National Realty & Development Corp. of Greenwich, Conn., agrees. "There's no question in our minds that skylights have become a highly desirable feature, no matter what kind of home you build today, be it traditional, colonial or highly contemporary," he says.

Product performance standards developed by the American Architectural Manufacturers Association (AAMA) have given consumers reason to feel more confident about the quality of today's skylights. Still, notes Bechtold, there are many differences between products.

Ventarama molded acrylic skylights, for example, have a durable copper flashing and a leakproof molded edge, double-dome design that sheds water—even

Besides the improved performance that has had an impact on the popularity of skylights, some manufacturers have concentrated on making the products more convenient to operate.

"One major breakthrough has been the introduction of the motorized skylight," says Bechtold. "We developed a very quiet, completely concealed motor over 20 years ago. It's operated from a wall switch, eliminating the need for a hand pole."

Skylight installations are almost as popular for existing homes as for new construction, according to AAMA statistics. Some simple installations can be handled by an accomplished do-it-yourselfer.

If an attic, crawlspace or overhang is above the room where a skylight is desired, a professional contractor is required to extend the roof opening down to the ceiling by building a light shaft or well.

Free skylight literature is available from Ventarama Skylight Corp., 140 Caniague Rock Rd., Dept. RSPR, Hicksville, NY 11801.

Remodeling: Price vs. Quality

Among material possessions, you probably regard your home as the most valuable. However, the home is much more than a valued asset; your home is where you spend the majority of your non-working life. Home is where you relax and where you entertain, and it is a reflection of your tastes and your lifestyle. For these reasons, when remodeling or adding on to your home, quality should not be compromised for price.

There are high and low quality materials, and the same can be said about design and workmanship. Let's examine these three items: materials, design, and workmanship.

Materials: The price difference between the lowest grade and the highest grade of almost any manufacturer product is easily double. This applies to windows, doors, insulation, floor covering, cabinetry, countertop materials, appliances, light fixtures, plumbing fixtures, etc.

In most cases, the price differential is readily visible in appearance. If it isn't, it certainly becomes apparent in function and serviceability. The cheapest windows don't operate as easily and don't seal as properly. Lower end cabinets do not have the appearance, construction, or finish of high-end cabinetry, nor do they have the same quality drawer glides, etc.

Top of the line plumbing fixtures, electrical fixtures, and appliances are designed and manufactured to offer the ultimate in appearance and function, and they are also easily maintained.

Design: A lot can be said about design. Good design, in addition to a pleasing appearance, should offer the utmost in function. Function means ease of accessibility and workability. A good design reflects adequate clearances for walking and sitting patterns as well as easy access to appliances and plumbing fixtures. Proper counterspace on kitchen countertops is extremely important. There are many attractive designs for kitchens, bathrooms, family rooms, etc., but if enough thought isn't devoted to function they just won't work!

Workmanship: Like anything else, there is high and low quality workmanship as well as something in between. Probably the most important point about workmanship is that you usually get what you pay for.

Naturally, a contractor that uses experienced and licensed journeymen in such trades as masonry, carpentry, plumbing, electrical, sheet metal, etc., cannot be competitive with the contractor who has one or two men (usually not licensed and lacking in experience) performing all of these various trades on a single job. Good journeymen have usually been working at their particular trade for all of their working life; they know the "ins" and "outs" and take pride in their work.

When considering your next remodeling project, choose your contractor wisely. A qualified and competent contractor will be more than willing to give you a reference list of complete jobs in your area or have you personally inspect completed jobs.

It should also be noted that many remodeling contractors use photographs in their ads that are pictures taken from brochures or magazines. These are not really reflections of their actual work.

Be sure to evaluate the proposed materials, the practicality of design, the quality of workmanship, and the opinions of the contractor's previous clients.

Avoid the high cost of cheap construction; you usually get what you pay for!

Rejuvenate the bath with fabrics and wallcoverings

AS NOSTALGIC INTERIORS make a comeback, more homeowners are taking advantage of vintage fixtures, basins and tubs, and are decorating to enhance them. This romantic bath uses Greeff fabrics and wallcoverings from its Winthrop Manor Collection to create the old-fashioned look of a Victorian bath.

The move toward nostalgic interiors, which has seen its way into country kitchens, Victorian bedrooms and traditional living rooms, now is moving into the bath.

More homeowners are foregoing the expense of a total bath remodeling, and instead are integrating the period fixtures into an overall redecorating scheme.

The charm of porcelain and brass fixtures, ball-and-claw foot bathtubs, marbletop basins and wide mouldings are complemented by decorative wallcoverings and fabrics.

To create a romantic bath of yesteryear, Greeff recommends choosing patterns from its Winthrop Manor Collection. The wallcoverings, fabrics and borders are coordinated right in the wallcovering

A gracious floral fabric, such as "Holcombe Brook," made into a balloon shade, a gathered shower curtain and a skirt for the basin immediately sets the tone for a more feminine look.

Using the coordinating wallcoverings, "Holcombe" and "Holcombe Lace," and the border to create an old-fashioned dado effect adds to the warmth of the room.

Greeff notes that it's often those "special touches" that convey a particular mood. In a romantically nostalgic bath, use fabric to create rosettes at the shower curtain hooks and around the mirror; use a fabric sash to hang the mirror, and add a lace undershirt to complement the basin skirt. A fabric-covered stool and flowers will complete the boudoir effect.

Lighten up your home interior with attractive hardwood floor finishes

Genuine hardwood flooring: The phrase evokes several images—elaborate parquet patterns beneath Oriental rugs, rustic wide-width planks against an old stone fireplace or popular strip flooring enhanced by contemporary furnishings.

Although the visual images vary, most hardwood floors always have had one thing in common—their color. Whether light or dark, shiny or matte, knotty or finely grained, wood floors traditionally have been stained in natural shades.

That is, until recently. Now, genuine hardwood planks and parquets are available in a wide range of colors to complement any decorating scheme, according to Vicki A. Dryden, director of marketing for Tarkett, Hardwood Division-North America, a major manufacturer of prefinished hardwood flooring products.

"Pastel and neutral colors are more popular than ever in fabrics, wallcoverings, even furniture," she says. "With the growing acceptance of hardwood flooring in all areas of the home, it was only natural to offer genuine wood floors prefinished in the pale colors that consumers prefer."

Dryden notes that ash, a naturally pale hardwood, is the ideal wood for today's light and pastel finishes. "Our stains are specially formulated to enhance the natural shading and grain for a subtle tint of color," she says.

Tarkett offers a wide range of prefinished ash floors for any room, decorating style and budget, says Dryden.

Ash White Longstrip is a prefinished laminated plank with the sleek look of strip flooring. Almost any subfloor is appropriate—plywood, concrete, even densely woven carpeting.

The product's ease of installation—the boards simply are glued and taped together over a foam underlayment—makes it ideal for the do-it-yourselfer.

True to its name, SpectraWood is available in a full spectrum of eight pastel and neutral shades including mauve, blue, green and white. The solid ash prefinished panels measure 4 7/8 inches by 19 inches, and feature a unique linear arrangement of parquet squares.

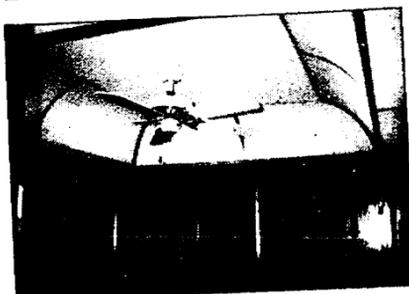

SpectraWood panels can be installed in a wide variety of traditional and not-so-traditional parquet patterns. Colors and patterns even can be combined within one installation for a unique checkerboard, patchwork or basket-weave floor, says Dryden.

Olympic Ash is a three-fourths inch thick solid ash plank with beveled edges. The product is available in Frost White, a pale ivory finish, or Pewter Grey, a contemporary neutral. Three, four and five-inch widths add design versatility.

Despite its delicate grain pattern, ash is an exceptionally durable hardwood, says Dryden. "A tough, no-wax finish ensures scratch-resistance and easy-care maintenance, essential with any type of light-colored floor," she adds.

For more information about Tarkett hardwood floors and Crystal Clear maintenance products, visit your nearest Tarkett hardwood flooring retailer or write to Tarkett, Hardwood Division-North America, P.O. Box 300, Johnson City, TN 37605-0300.

The end of the 'Ordinary' Whirlpool

DEVELOPED AND MANUFACTURED by ThermoSol Ltd., of Sylmar, California, Murlin 2001™ is the world's first patented self-cleaning whirlpool bathtub, shown above, in its self-cleaning and disinfecting cycle.

The product of years of research and testing, the Murlin 2001™, from ThermoSol Ltd., is no "ordinary" bathtub. It is, in fact, the world's first self-cleaning whirlpool bathtub. That's right...self-cleaning!

Imagine the luxury of taking a relaxing whirlpool bath, and then not having to worry about cleaning it afterwards...or ever again.

The Murlin truly provides consumers with a glimpse into what the bathroom of the future will look like. Despite its futuristic abilities, the Murlin 2001™ is surprisingly affordable, creating strong consumer interest in Kitchen & Bath Showrooms nationwide.

However, the Murlin 2001™ is more than just a whirlpool bathtub that self-cleans. It's also a masterpiece of design.

Available in standard and high-fashion colors, while measuring a roomy 74" x 44" x 25" deep, Murlin's sophisticated lines and elegant waterfall-fill system are the perfect complement for its state-of-the-art micro-processor "brain," which controls both the 8-jet hydro-massage as well as the self-cleaning cycle.

Within minutes after your bath, a rinse-wash-rinse process thoroughly cleans and disinfects the Murlin 2001™, leaving it fresh and ready for the next bather.

A simple touch on the control console as your bath begins activates Murlin's systems. Once sensors tell Murlin's "brain" the water has reached the proper height, the 8-jet "Channel-One"™ hydrotherapy system starts a 15-minute cycle. This cycle can be either increased or stopped at any time during your bath.

Once your bath is over, and Murlin's micro-processor "brain" senses the water has drained, the self-cleaning cycle begins automatically with a 30-second cold water rinse down the walls of the bathtub.

This rinsing action is performed by a series of tiny, but powerful solid brass spray nozzles located under the collar around the upper wall of the tub. The initial rinse effectively removes the soap residue left from the bath.

Murlin's wash cycle then activates immediately after the rinse, forcing a special solution of detergent, disinfectant and anti-spotting agents called Formula 2001 down the walls of the bathtub.

Formula 2001 is a specially developed cleaning solution which eliminates bath and body oils, kills staph germs, and allows the Murlin 2001™ to dry virtually spot-free. Once the wash cycle is finished, a final rinse completes the self-cleaning cycle.

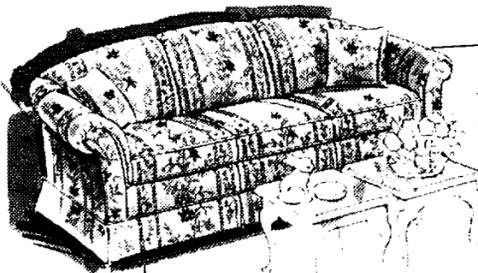

Look for the Murlin 2001™ now on display at selected Kitchen & Bath dealer and distributor showrooms nationwide.

An informative five-minute video presentation describing Murlin's exclusive features and its quality construction, as well as the self-cleaning cycle in action, will be shown at each showroom.

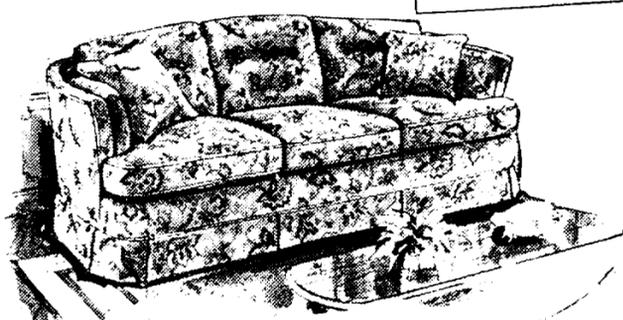

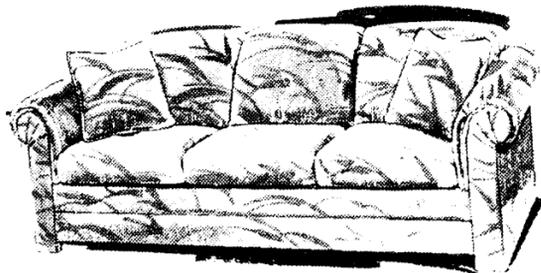

To find your nearest Murlin 2001™ authorized showroom dealer, call ThermoSol Toll-Free at 1-800-423-2477, nationwide or (818) 362-7788, inside California. See for yourself why the Murlin 2001™ has put an end to the "ordinary" whirlpool...and an end to cleaning the bathtub...forever!

Lower your home's energy bills the comfortable way

To save money in the winter, set the furnace to 65 degrees during the day, and 55 degrees at night. In the summer, set your thermostat to 78 degrees or higher. And make sure your home is properly insulated to help you stay comfortable at these thermostat settings.

If you have unoccupied rooms, close the duct vents and the doors. And when in the kitchen and bathroom, use the exhaust fans only when you need them. They're superb at eliminating steam and odors from the air, but they'll also put your heating and cooling efforts to waste.

Although romantic, your fireplace can draw heated room air up the chimney. Use a glass screen, or lower the thermostat when having a fire.

If your home's monthly energy costs seem higher than they should be, the Edison Electric Institute, the association of investor-owned electric utilities, has some ideas to help you stay comfortable and take the suspense out of opening your energy bill each month.

Since up to 60 percent of your monthly energy bill goes to keeping your family warm in the winter and cool in the summer, start by taking a good look at the condition of your furnace or air conditioner. If they need replacing, look for the federal "Energyguide" label when shopping for a new unit. The Energyguide label posts the unit's energy-efficiency rating (EER). The higher the EER rating, the less electricity you'll be using. And for even more savings, a heat pump offers energy-efficient heating and cooling from one unit.

Your home's fireplace may be charging a high price for the charm and romance it adds to your house. Every time you have a fire, the heated indoor air is drawn in, and sent up the chimney. To reduce your heating losses, close off the room it's in, or lower the thermostat to 55 degrees, and close the duct vents in that room. Glass fireplace screens will also help reduce the amount of heated indoor air going up the chimney, and hot-air blowers will blow some of the air back, after it has been heated by the fire.

Next to heating and cooling your house, your biggest energy expense is water heating. Wrap your water heater in an insulated jacket, and insulate the hot-water pipes if they're in unheated areas. And set the water heater's temperature to 140 degrees. Also consider buying a water-flow restrictor and a low-flow shower head. These inexpensive items can cut in half the amount of hot water you use.

For more information, call your local electric utility. You'll find that saving energy year-round is easy to live with, and comfortable too.

Fix up porches and decks for autumn enjoyment

With the boom in home-related leisure time activities, homeowners in record numbers are centering outdoor activities around their porches and decks.

With wonderful fall weather approaching, a quick fix-up of your outdoor living area is a smart project. The pay-back can come now, and again next spring, because your deck or porch will be reinforced to fight the ravages of winter.

Your first step is the inspection. Check all areas of a deck or porch for loose railings, steps and floor boards, and rotting or cracked wood. Then determine how much of the structure you should remove and replace with new wood.

In deciding upon the scope of the project, keep in mind that you might want to spruce up the look and design of your structure while repairing damage.

This season, there is a new system of "wood specialties" that lets you use your creativity in adding interest to decks and porches.

You'll find a wide array of specialty pressure treated wood products at many building materials dealers. The Weyerhaeuser LifeWood specialties form a system of components that easily fit together.

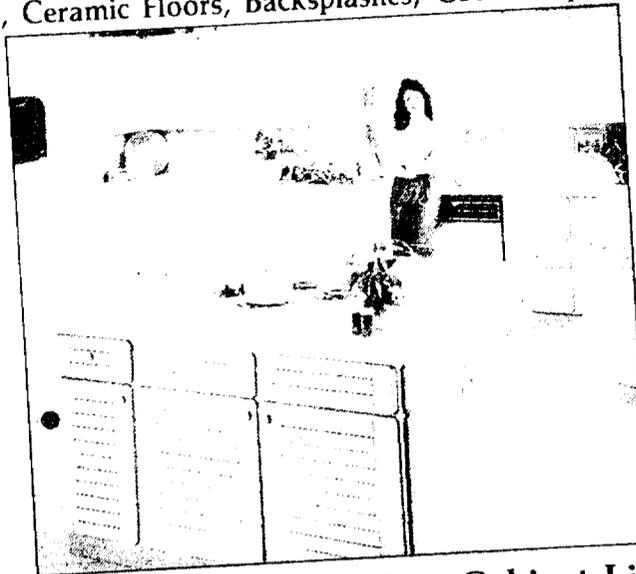

The specialties can both speed and ease construction of an outdoor project and spruce up your designs.

Specialties include lattice panels and lattice frames; different types of turned spindles with handrails notched to fit over the spindles; deck posts, stair steps and stringers, and decking boards that also fit together; several types of fence boards from plain to fancy; and more.

This year, the Weyerhaeuser LifeWood brand of dimensional treated lumber is available with a brand referring to the source of the wood and the level of chemical treatment. It comes with the industry's first limited lifetime guarantee, good for as long as you own the project.

When the leaves turn, homeowners turn to a whole new look

Fall is a season of change: and, traditionally, it's become a prime time to make dramatic changes inside the home. To Charles Rood, who has spent the past 47 autumns in the fine furniture business, today's homeowner has a lot more options when it comes to changing decor.

"Years ago, people used to put slipcovers on in the summer and take them back off in the fall to give the house a totally different look." Rood, General Manager for Pierson Interiors in Bloomfield Hills, recalls, "Many people do the same thing today with accessories - put some away, take some out - at the change of seasons. It gives them a completely different feeling."

"In the fall people tend to fix up their homes more than they do in the spring," Rood continues, "Because they're going into the winter, they're going into the holiday season and they want things to look different." Pierson Interiors caters to that type of customer, he says, by carrying more accessories than the average furniture store.

"The easiest way to get a new look is through accessories," says Kasey Pierson, a designer at Pierson Interiors. "You can change the whole feeling of a room, not only through accessories, but with paint color and wallpaper as

Pierson believes that the industry has a tendency to introduce colors that make one prepare for the seasons and cites as an example a recent resurgence in jeweltones and darker colors, along with "...a very gentle, but general departing of the pastels."

"Pastels, for about the past 18 months have been quite predominant in the home furnishings industry," Pierson contends, "But I think it's like any other industry, in the fall you're not as apt to go and buy articles of clothing that are light."

People's tastes, in general, have been turning more and more casual through the years, Rood says, with entertainment centers and leather furniture gaining dramatically. "Leather is still very big," he claims, "And there are lots of luscious, new color - fashion colors that buyers relate to this time of year especially."

"There are some very nice pieces of furniture out there today; and they're built better than they ever were," Rood concludes. "This business about things built better years ago is for the birds. Today's furniture is built with better glue, better frames and better springs ..." and, he insists, it affords buyers much more freedom in choosing a new fall look.

Seems like something is always going wrong with the door. Just when you've thrown your clubs in the trunk and are off for a well deserved 18 holes, Martha yells out through the window, 'Herbert, the knob came off again and I can't close the door.'

We get questions about doors every day. Some of those questions are ones that are asked over and over again. So, for the benefit of those who are holding a door knob in their hand, those who are considering a new door or those who would rather play golf than tug on a stuck door, we offer answers to some of those frequently asked questions as well as some thoughts on the subject of doors in general.

Questions - My wood door swells and gets too tight for the door opening. What should I do and why does this happen?

The door swells because moisture is getting into the wood. If this is happening to your door, the first thing you should check is the top and bottom of the door. Many times when a door is installed the door gets painted or varnished while it's hanging on its hinges so the bottom and sometimes the top get ignored. Those two places are critical because at those two spots the grain of the wood is open and it soaks up moisture from the ground. Even if the door was sealed at the time it was hung, a sagging door rubbing on the threshold or against the jamb will wear the paint off and leave the wood exposed to moisture.

Most of the time when the weather changes and the air becomes cooler and dryer, the door will shrink and once again close easier. There are instances when the door will warp or remain in a changed shape once it has swollen. Planing the door, adjusting the door stop, weatherstripping and strike plate adjustment may then be necessary. Once the door is planed, it must then immediately be resealed to prevent warping or swelling again.

There are many more unanswered questions about doors that perhaps in the future we will have time to discuss. In the meantime, if you have a door problem and if you have a kick plate on your door, kick it, then reread this article or call for help.

Fall heralds a touch of elegance in home design

In a season marked by a return to elegance, home furnishing fabrics are taking on a new richness of pattern, palette and texture. In addition to the introduction of some of the most extensive collections of romantic looks seen in years, there is a movement away from the stark contemporaries of the past to warmer interiors, even for the most committed modernists.

According to Jan Jessup, Head of Buying for Calico Corners, the nation's largest retailer of decorative fabrics, "This is a terrific time to be in the marketplace for fabrics. There is an enormous wealth of great design available at every price level."

Patterns run the gamut from traditional to contemporary; colors cover a wide palette, with an emphasis on richness and depth. Particularly strong are deeper pastels and vibrant jewel tones. In terms of textures, what's new includes masterful faux looks and intricate tapestries as well as extraordinary screen prints on high glaze chintzes.

STRIPES

Stripes are hot. A must for the fashion-forward. They emerge this season functioning much like solids and mixing with romantic chintzes. Whether taking center stage or moving to the background, this season's newest stripes range from demure tickings to bold brush-stroke widths. Color combinations are endless, ranging from duo-tones to multi-colors.

"Stripes are one of the most exciting stories this year," offers Ms. Jessup. "We are introducing a lot of casual upholstery stripes and dressier, more formal stripes. Our displays encourage our customers and sales associates to work together and creatively coordinate stripes, prints and solids in a variety of textures. Over time, the most interesting rooms combine fabrics in many textures so that they're not all very dressy or all informal."

DETAILING

Handsomely crafted detailing gives furniture a custom look that says elegance. Edging with braids... trims and tassels... ruffles and fringes... romantic touches such as ribbons and pinafores on dining room chairs... these are special looks that distinguish and personalize a home.

For the self-decorator inspired to refresh and refurbish this Fall, there's a welcoming assortment of looks from which to choose.

PERCENTAGE OF HEATING ENERGY YOU CAN SAVE

(BASED ON THE AVERAGE HOME)

* SAVINGS FOR A 5° HEATING SETBACK ARE AT LEAST 1/2 OF SAVINGS FOR A 10° SETBACK. ACTUAL SAVINGS DEPEND ON YOUR HOME, GEOGRAPHIC LOCATION, NUMBER OF SETBACKS AND AMOUNT OF SETBACK DEGREES.

You can stay cozy and warm this winter and still save 10 to 40 percent in heating energy.

How?
With a smart thermostat from Honeywell called Chronotherm III.

- It's smart because it automatically raises and lowers the home's temperature according to your schedule.

- It's smart because the thermostat maintains constant comfort, no matter what the weather is like outside.

- It's smart because "Adaptive Intelligent Recovery" maximizes energy savings by waiting until the last possible minute to begin the heating or cooling system. Then, it gradually returns your home to the comfort setting at the time you want it.

Check this energy-savings chart for the estimated savings in your area.

For more information on the benefits of smart thermostats, write: Honeywell, Inc., Honeywell Plaza, MN12-4164, Minneapolis, MN 55408.

Dramatic new shades for Old World glamour

In the days ahead, you'll be seeing more of a window treatment that brings to mind the nostalgia of yesterday, yet is totally modern, according to the experts at Levolor.

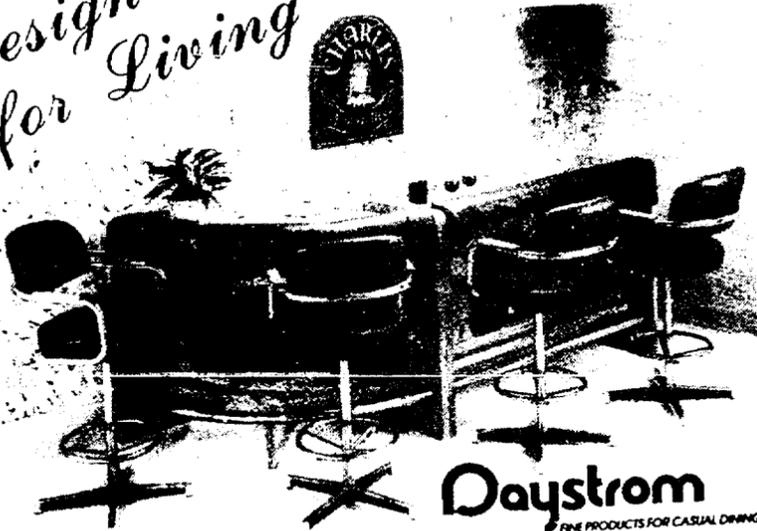

It is a pleated shade, versatile enough to work with elaborate draperies and stylish enough to be used completely on its own.

These shades come in a variety of fabrics, many of which are lined for privacy and increased energy efficiency. Especially favored is a collection of moire fabric colors.

These Z-Shades, as they are called, represent a stunning new age in textiles. Frankly opulent moires, a flourish of laces, simple sheers and silks are balanced by the uncomplicated look of the shade. Many are lined for privacy and increased energy efficiency. They add a regal lightness to any room and, because they are custom made, can be fabricated to fit any size window.

Practical theatrical - look strip lighting

THEATRICAL-LOOK STRIP LIGHTING provides excellent shadow-free light for applying makeup and/or shaving, states the American Home Lighting Institute.

Theatre people knew what they were about when they applied makeup at a vanity with strip lighting around a mirror. It provides excellent, shadow-free light for applying makeup and shaving.

It should be installed along the top and both sides of the mirror. Use 15 to 25-watt white, globe-shaped bulbs. In small rooms, it serves to illuminate the whole room. Larger rooms also should have a ceiling fixture positioned above the front edge of the sink.

Prefer fluorescent for its energy-saving quality? Install two 20-watt soft white fluorescents on each side of a small mirror and a 32 to 54-watt ceiling fixture.

Mirrors 36" wide or more require 36" or 48" diffused fluorescent fixtures along the top of the mirror and a ceiling fixture positioned the same as stated above.

Bathrooms with small vanity mirrors also can be effectively lit with two wall lights, or hanging lights, about 30" apart on each side, centered 60" above the floor.

In bathrooms with both mirror lighting and a ceiling fixture, it's a good idea to install separate switching for times when you want less brightness. Dimmers are another suggestion for softer light, or use as an all-night safety feature.

For information on effective lighting for bathrooms and all the rooms in a home, send a check for $1.00 to: American Home Lighting Institute, 435 N. Michigan Avenue, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy of "Lighting Your Life."

PELLA IMPROVEMENT WINDOWS AND DOORS: NOT JUST A REPLACEMENT.

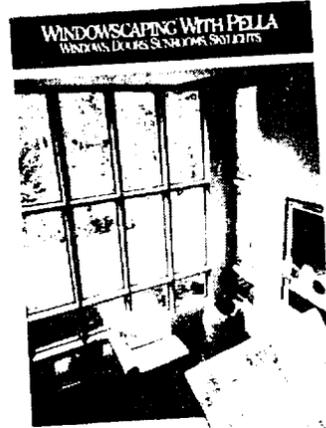

Beauty, energy savings, easy maintenance, smooth operation and exclusive features make Pella a vast improvement over ordinary replacement windows and doors for decades to come.

Pella's rich, all-wood construction is nature's insulator. Expertly crafted, Pella Improvement windows, skylights, and doors will keep your home warm and dry.

Come to the place where window and door ideas come to life. Life size. You'll see smart options nobody else offers, like the disappearing Rolscreen.® See how Pella's insulation system lets you tuck decorative grills, slimshades or the new pleated shade neatly, out of the way, between two panes of glass.

Whether your remodeling, renovating or building a home, you'll find the styles and sizes to make your home a better place to live. Pella is the brand other windows try to use for comparison, but nobody's just as good as Pella.

Twelve energy-saving tips for use throughout the house

Energy conservation, and the real cost savings it brings, begins with knowledge. Knowing how to save and where to save are the keys to an energy-efficient home this winter.

Here are 12 tips that involve little or no cost and can help you save money on your heating bills, while conserving energy and making your home more comfortable at the same time.

- During winter months, open your drapes, shades or curtains during the day. Allow the sun to come in to help warm your house. At night, or when it's cloudy, close the drapes to keep the heat in and the cold out.

- Add caulking and weather stripping around your doors and windows. Cold air can leak into your home through gaps in these areas. Sealing the gaps can stop air leaks for greater energy savings and comfort.

- Add insulation in your attic. Heat which escapes through an improperly insulated attic may be responsible for up to one half of your home's entire heat loss. Using a quality product, like CertainTeed Fiber Glass Insulation, can help you save energy dollars year after year.

- Install storm windows and doors. You also can use plastic sheeting on the inside to seal out the cold.

- Install an automatic thermostat. This will allow you automatically to set back the temperature in your house at night and when you're not at home.

- Don't block registers or radiators. By blocking the flow of warm air with rugs, furniture or drapes, your furnace will have to work harder to heat your home.

- Turn the temperature down on your water heater thermostat. For most families, 120 degrees is sufficient for normal use.

- Wrap the outside of the hot water heater with an extra layer of insulation. This will help keep heat from being lost through the walls of the tank.

- Install water flow restrictors in the shower and faucets. They reduce the flow of water. It costs money to heat water.

- Use a lower temperature setting on your washing machine. Change from hot to warm or cold washes with cold water rinses.

- Use fluorescent bulbs in kitchens, baths, laundry and work areas. Also, use warm white fluorescent adaptors for table lamps.

- Install three-way switches on lamps and dimmer controls to allow you to keep the lighting levels low when not needed.

For more facts and figures on energy efficiency, write to the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482 for "The CertainTeed Energy Trivia Booklet."

LET'S TALK ABOUT VALUE

Fine furniture and antiques in good condition are good investments.

Antiques have always been fun to admire and collect, but before you make a major investment, be aware that there are many fakes as well as drastically altered antiques in the marketplace. Shop a reputable antiques dealer - "caveat emptor" applies to antiques as well as to cars and homes.

Other sources for antiques would be antique shows, house sales, flea markets, and of course the newspaper. Exercise caution here too, as everything old is not necessarily of investment quality. Remember the basics; good construction, good proportions, good wood, and attention to details in the finer pieces. There were many furniture craftsmen, some very highly skilled and many who were of passable ability. If it was mediocre in 1880 it will still be mediocre in 1980. Learn to trust your eye. If a piece doesn't look quite right to you best to pass it by.

Once you have obtained your antique, insure its value by keeping it in good condition once you all means enjoy and use it.

If you are in the market for home furnishings you might consider buying previously owned. Dollar for dollar the best value definitely leans toward the older, well, constructed, wood furniture. The retail marketplace has furnishings in all price brackets, but to duplicate the quality of furniture prior to the 1940's you will have to pay top dollar. And you should buy the best you can afford.

Due to a glut in the market in recent years good wood is at a premium. Some furniture makers are cutting corners and have begun to use wood substitutes, such as masonite, formica, pressed wood, and plastics. They can make some very good looking pieces of furniture at bargain prices. But buying these "bargains" would be a temporary investment at best. We consider this furniture disposable because it cannot survive moderate to heavy use, and cannot be repaired or refinished. This applies to upholstered furniture as well, since some fillings, namely kapok, will disintegrate within three years. Fine furniture, on the other hand, can always be restored to its former elegance.

If you have an item that has had too much "love" or has been abused or neglected, bring it to Coach House Antiques, 20725 Mack Avenue, Grosse Pointe Woods. They specialize in repair, restoration, refinishing, reupholstering as well as complete brass polishing. The staff includes specialists in hand carving, fine oil painting restoration and gold leafing, duplicating parts and difficult repairs.

Bring your home to life! Decorate with houseplants

Almost everyone loves houseplants. They're a great way to decorate, and they let you bring a little of the great outdoors into your home.

And on those cold, bleak winter days when there's no green life to be seen outside, it's certainly refreshing to step into a room which is accented pleasantly with lush, healthy plants.

But, many people are frustrated by their experiences with houseplants. The big, beautiful plants they brought home so often quickly wilt and die.

To avoid disappointment, be sure that you choose the types of plants that are right for you—and the environment you can provide—and that you care for your plants properly.

The right kind of plant for you depends on several factors. The most important is the amount of light that the plant will be getting.

Different types of plants need different amounts of light. Some plants require bright, direct, sunlight, while others prefer to live in the shade. Inevitably, plants will suffer if they receive too much or too little light for their needs.

Free time factor

Another important factor is the amount of time that you are willing or able to spend caring for your plants. Some plants require quite a bit of care; you will spend much more time watering, misting, pruning and repotting these plants than you would spend on low-care plants.

Also, if you have pets or small children, make sure the plants you buy aren't poisonous, unless you can keep them well out of reach of curious or hungry little ones.

If you have a cat, you may have noticed that cats like to eat grass. Unfortunately, they also enjoy eating houseplants with long, thin leaves. If you buy a plant of this type, plan on keeping it out of kitty's reach.

Now, how do you find out which kinds of plants meet your specific requirements? Most plants are sold with a tag which tells you the plant's needs. You simply can compare the tags and select the plants which are best for you.

There are also many books available which describe the types of houseplants which are commonly available, so you can get a good idea of what you want before you shop.

Examine first

Only purchase plants which look healthy and don't show signs of infestation by insects or fungus. Once you get your healthy new plants home, be sure to keep them healthy.

One of the most common mistakes that people make with their plants is overwatering. Rather than sticking rigidly to a schedule of watering every day or every week, water your plants only when they need it. Wait till the soil dries out and the plant actually wilts a little, then drench it.

Overwatering will cause your plant's roots to rot, and this will lead to yellowing of the plant's leaves and, finally, the death of the plant. Unfortunately, when some people see the leaves yellowing, they assume that the plant must need more water. Don't make this mistake.

Light and water are the basics, of course, but your plant will probably also need to be fertilized, pruned and repotted occasionally. Consult a book about houseplants for specifics.

Select the right plants for your lifestyle, give them the care they need, and they will reward you.
