Cracker Jax 'trial' may drag on for months, years

County Circuit Court, if the council rules against Cracker Jax.

The hearing is also similar to a trial in that the city as the prosecution has its own table, while the defendant and its attorneys have their table. Farms prosecuting attorney Bob Ihrie is presenting the city's case. The attorneys for Cracker Jax and the nightclub's owner and manager, Mark DiMaso, are William Bufalino II and George Malis.

Ihrie said the public hearing is "rudimentary due process," meaning the testimony is necessary so that the council cannot be accused of making a "whimsical decision" concerning the fate of Cracker Jax. He said the hearing is not intended to prove whether the allegations against Cracker Jax are true beyond the shadow of doubt, as would be the case in a court of law.

2 suits filed against Woods in response to pit bull ban

By Margie Reins Smith Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Woods residents got a chance to speak for - and banning pit bulls Monday eve-tee of the Whole, heard comments from about a dozen residents, and unanimously recommended that the matter beplaced on the agenda for the Monday, Oct. 17.

Mayor Pro Tem Robert Novreport Monday on the legal definition of pit bulls and to present a written legal opinion of the emergency amendment.

About 50 people attended the public hearing.

According to Woods attorney George Catlin, two lawsuits have been filed against the city of Grosse Pointe Woods. Molly and Terry Shook, owners of the pit bull that precipitated the amendment, have claimed that the banis unconstitutional and have asked the courts to restrain the city from enforcing it.

The second suit, filed by against - the Woods council's Friends of the Downtrodden, esrecent emergency amendment sentially asks for the same restraints, Catlin said. It will be heard in court on Friday. Catlin The council sat as a Commit-said he has asked that the two suits be combined.

John Ross, a Woods resident, spoke in support of the ban. Some people say their dogs will be harmed by being caged, "but council's regular meeting next our children have been caged ever since this dog moved in." Ross said neighbors are afraid to itke asked the city attorney to allow children to play near houses of pit bull owners.

Councilman Ted Bidigare said, "The ordinance is in effect and is appropriate." He said the ban is necessary before a child is harmed, not after.

Councilman Paul Beaupre agreed. "We have two goals here," he said. "To prevent an attack -- not react to one. And to maintain a peaceful neighborhood for all. We don't want to react to an attack."

Attorney Catlin outlined the sequence of events that might have taken place at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 11.

• If an animal control officer has information that a resident has a pit bull, he may go to the door and ask the owner to surrender the dog.

 The animal will be impounded at Harvey Animal Hospital in Grosse Pointe Farms and the owner will receive a ticket with an early court date. • The court will order the dog to be removed from the city lim-

• If the owner refuses, the dog will be destroyed.

'There is an appeal process through Wayne County Circuit Court," he said.

Also, as usual, any dog at large will be picked up, he said. If the dog is on a leash and the owner refuses to surrender the dog, Catlin said this would be interference with a public safety officer and could result in arrest. However, Catlin said, "There

Woods pit bull owner saddened by ban

Staff Writer

The new residents on Lancaster who own the pit bull that led to the neighborhood's successful efforts to get the breed banned in Grosse Pointe Woods are hurt by the actions of their neighbors.

Terry and Molly Shook, who own an 18-month-old American Staffordshire Terrier, moved into the house on Lancaster just last week only to find 200 of their new neighbors had already signed petitions demanding pit bulls be banned.

Reacting to the neighbors' fears, the Woods City Council at its Oct. 3 meeting banned all breeds of pit bulls, and owners of the banned animals had until Monday, Oct. 10 to get rid of them.

"We've been here three days, and already we have to get rid of our dog," Terry Shook said last week. "This isn't Russia. They can't pass laws and tell us what kind of dog we can and cannot have. I think it's very unconstitutional.'

While the constitutionality of laws banning a specific breed of animals has been challenged throughout the country, including a challenge to a pit bull ban recently adopted in Waterford Township, Shook said he can't afford the expenses of taking on the city in a legal battle.

Donna Dunn, a neighbor the Shooks on Lancaster, led the efforts to get pit bulls banned in the Woods. After delivering a researched and convincing report to the council concerning the national history of pit bull attacks, the council unanimously adopted two amendments to the city's animal control ordinances.

The amendments banned virtually all breeds of pit bulls and gave the city authority to impound any animal believed to be a pit bull until a court decides if the dog is of the type banned. If the dog is found to be a pit bull, the court would order the animal removed from the city.

"I'd like to invite Donna (Dunn) over to meet my dog,' Shook said. "That way she can make a fair opinion."

He said that not a single neighbor has bothered to come over and meet the dog to determine if he is dangerous or not.

"We're very attached to the dog," Shook said of his pit bull Buster. "What really makes me mad is he really is the nicest dog I've ever known.'

Felon arrested after traffic stop in Park

A suspect stopped for a traffic violation by Grosse Pointe Park Public Safety officers Sept. 30 led to the arrest of a felon wanted on a weapons charge.

Park police reported the man was driving a vehicle stolen during a breaking and entering incident in Ecorse. The man was reported to have an extensive criminal history, including homicide.

In fact, Buster is very well-be- that have been trained to fight haved. He graduated third in his class in obedience school.

Shook said people are always saying pit bulls can't get along with other animals, but his home is an example that the stereotype of pit bulls is not true.

The Shooks also own a 4month-old English setter named Rocky. The two dogs play together continuously, and the pit bull never bullies the younger

To demonstrate the pit bull's gentle nature, Shook reached into the dog's mouth and pulled out the bone he was chewing on. He didn't even growl while his owner took the prized possession away. The English setter puppy even took the bone out of the pit bull's mouth.

Shook said his pit bull has never bitten, nipped, lunged or in anyway threatened anyone.

One of Shook's neighbors had told the City Council that the pit bull had "lunged" at the daughter of the previous owners of Shook's Lancaster home. Shook said the girl played with the dog all day before the alleged incident occurred, and the so-called lunge was just a playful act. He said the girl was never threatened or in danger, and she wasn't knocked down.

The Shooks, who have been married just three months, adopted the pit bull while they were students at Michigan State University. Shook said they took in the dog when they learned the dog's owner was thinking about getting Buster into fight-

The Shooks took Buster to obedience school and made sure he had all his shots. Shook said he has spent a good deal of money for the routine veterinary care.

"It would be a shame to put the dog to sleep after all we've put into him," he said. "We're very attached to the dog." Shook said he doesn't know any friends that he could give the dog to, and he can't give him to a relative because most of his family lives in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Shook, 24, has lived in the Woods all of his life. He graduated from Grosse Pointe North High School, and his parents live on Oxford. Shook said he invited a neighbor over to meet the dog, but the neighbor refused the invitation. He said he asked a neighbor why he signed the petition to ban pit bulls, and the neighbor said it was because "pit bulls are killers." "I can see where they're coming from, what with all the bad publicity about pit bulls," Shook said of his neighbors' fears. "If I did not own and know pit bulls, I'd have signed the pit bull petitions myself.' Shook agrees that pit bulls are mean, but he said that doesn't mean all pit bulls are killers. He said any dog trained to fight is dangerous. He doesn't believe breeding has made pit bulls indiscriminate, uncontrollable killers, as many pit bull opponents suggest.

"It's not a dog problem," Shook said. "It's the owners who are making them mean."

David Wills, executive director of the Michigan Humane Society in Detroit, has the same opinion about pit bulls.

"I can take you to meet pit bulls, and I can't force them to bite you," Wills said last week. He said some pit bulls are mean because someone has taught them to be that way. He said the meanness is taught by felons who use the dogs for fighting.

Wills pointed out that while Michigan is progressive enough to make dog fighting a felony, the state doesn't have the resources or manpower to enforce the law.

How can you enforce a ban on a certain breed of dog when you can't even enforce the dog-fighting law, Wills said. He called the Woods pit bull ban a "knee-jerk reaction" by politicians "pandering" to public fears.

He said banning pit bulls is a destructive answer to a complex problem. Stating that man trains pit bulls and other four-legged animals to be mean, Wills said, "We're going to have the problem until you ban the two-legged animals.

Wills said pit bulls have long been a cherished family pet. The dog on the old television program "Little Rascals" was a pit bull, and so was the dog listening to his master's voice in the old Victrola logo. The Buster Brown shoes dog was a pit bull.

Shook said Tuesday he was giving Buster to a friend in Lan-

Suspected poisoned meat thrown in pit bull's yard

After attending an emotional meeting concerning the pit bull ban in Grosse Pointe Woods Monday night, the owner of the pit bull on Lancaster Road woke up Tuesday to find one of his neighbors had thrown a piece of meat into his backyard.

Terry Shook believes someone is trying to poison his American Staffordshire Terrier, and he is sending the meat to a lab in Lansing for testing. He also owns a 4month-old English setter that runs in the backyard.

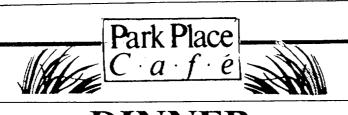

"I just want the people to know that we're not getting rid of the dog for their sake,' he said. "It's for the dog's

He said that after witnessing the close-minded hysteria displayed at the Monday night meeting, he expected something like the suspected poisoning attempt to happen.

Shook and his wife, Molly, moved into their Lancaster home last week, but found neighbors already organized against his pit bull terrier. The residents, armed with 200 petition signatures, convinced the City Council Oct. 3 to ban pit bulls from the city. The ban went into effect Tuesday.

Shook said Tuesday morning he was immediately taking the dog to live with a friend in Lansing.

Quayle called one of keys to the election

7 ith President Reagan himself campaigning for George Bush in Michigan, it is increasingly clear that this state is one of the important battlefields in the presidential race.

But even though the president in his Michigan appearances last week strongly endorsed Sen. Dan Quayle, the choice of the Indiana senator as Bush's running mate remains one of the key issues in the campaign nationally and in this state.

Before the debate between the vice presidential candidates, a New York Times/CBS News Poll found that only 33 percent of the respondents believed Quayle would be qualified to serve as president if something happened to Bush after his election.

After the debate, 50 percent of the debate-watchers in a CBS News Poll said Sen. Lloyd Bentsen had won or had done Opinion better than his opponent while only 27 percent said that Quayle had won. Even among people who supported Bush before the debate, only 44 percent rated Quayle the winner.

Quayle did improve his standing in responses to other poll questions asked after the debate, such as whether he was qualified and understood the problems of the presidency, but Bentsen still rated well ahead of the GOP vice presidential nominee on most of these questions.

So even though Quayle survived the debate without seriously embarrassing himself, Bush or his party, he obviously did not put an end to the questions about his qualifications for the presidency.

Editorials in both Detroit newspapers agreed with the polls showing that Bentsen won the debate. The Detroit Free Press, which often supports Democrats, said that Quayle remained, "after the debate, what he was beforehand: a significant liability for the Republican ticket." The Detroit News, which usually backs the Republican line, said: "On the issues, Dan Quayle more than held his own, but Democratic candidate Lloyd Bentsen came off looking more relaxed and adept." And then the News editorial added: "We scored it for Bentsen, but barely.'

In one way or another, both editorials also raised the issue of Bush's choice of Quayle as his running mate. The News directly raised the most perplexing question: "We can't help wondering if there weren't a number of better choices available to Bush, such as Rep. Jack Kemp of New York or Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas." It then added: "It's fair to say that the Quayle selection reflects questionable judgment on Bush's part."

In the national public opinion polls after the debate of the vice presidential candidates, Bush still is leading although the race appears to have narrowed a notch or two since the Quayle-Bentsen confrontation. That tends to support the view that the choice of Quayle still may be a key issue as the voters weigh their election day judgments.

Yet Bush does enjoy many advantages: his own incumbency as vice president, his national and international experience, the strong support of a retiring but still popular president, a thriving economy with unemployment again on the decline, the improving prospects for peace in the Persian Gulf and even the current upbeat relations between the USSR and the United States.

Yet Dan Quayle would be only a heartbeat from the presidency if the GOP ticket wins. That is the fact that worries many people and makes it a close contest with less than a month left in the campaign.

In the end, however, American voters probably will do as they have usually done in the past. When they go to the polls Nov. 8 they will put most of their attention on the top of the ticket, which means they will probably ignore the questions about Quayle and elect Bush.

At any rate, that is the way it looks in this corner on Oct. 10.

The Woods' ban on pit bulls hat ban on pit bulls voted by the Woods council last week is no doubt understandable in view of the publicity given to incidents in which the animals have bitten or mauled youngsters elsewhere in the Detroit metro area, but the action does appear to have been hasty.

The amendments to the city ordinance that banned pit bulls in the Woods became effective Monday after being posted throughout the city the day after the adoption of the amendments. The council also amended the impoundment ordinance and gave the Public Safety Department authority to impound any animals it identifies as among those banned.

The campaign for the ordinance change apparently started after a new family owning a pit bull moved into the Lancaster Road area. A neighbor quickly rounded up 200 people to sign a petition urging the council to ban pit bulls.

The evidence against the specific pit bull was hardly conclusive, however. It was reported that the animal had lunged at a little girl and had tried to dig underneath the fence in which it was enclosed. The owner told the Grosse Pointe News that the girl involved had played with the dog all day and that the so-called lunge was just a playful act.

Whatever the facts in this single incident, however, David Wills, the executive director of the Michigan Humane Society in Detroit, agreed with the dog's owner that any dog trained to fight is dangerous and that most of the trouble with dogs stems from owners who make them mean by training them to fight.

In this case, the owner said his dog had never been trained to fight but instead had passed an obedience school class, had never threatened anyone and had played in friendly fashion with the owners' young English setter.

However, we think that Wills himself over-reacted when he called the Woods pit bull ban a "knee-jerk reaction" by politicians "pandering" to public fears. The reports about the Woods' pit bull may have been exaggerated, but the council obviously was reacting to concerns expressed by the community. In view of what has happened elsewhere, the council's action could hardly be called "pandering."

The Woods council ought, however, to make sure its amendments to its animal control ordinances aim at animals that are threats to public safety and not just those that are stereotyped as vicious because of incidents reported elsewhere.

A JOA or one newspaper?

erhaps it is not surprising that the Detroit newspapers' application for a joint operating agreement (JOA) has become deeply immersed in the courts. The United States, after all, has become a litigious society in recent years and people seem to sue on the flimsiest excuses, as well as over major differences.

So it is understandable that the attempt by the Detroit News and the Free Press and their respective owners, Gannett and Knight-Ridder, to partially merge their Detroit operations into a JOA is being disputed at every turn in the courts.

True, this is a matter of substance to the entire Detroit area as well as the state as a whole. It is of special importance to the readers and advertisers of the two papers.

Under the JOA, the newspapers would merge their production, advertising and circulation departments but retain separate news and editorial departments which would produce separate newspapers on weekdays but joint editions on weekends. It is a foregone conclusion that both papers would increase advertising and circulation prices if a JOA is approved.

Opposing the JOA are the Michigan Citizens for an Independent Press, which claims to represent more than 500 readers, advertisers and newspaper employees, and Public Citizen Litigation Group, a Washington-based consumer organization that is one of consumer activist Ralph Nader's offspring.

The JOA battle now is in the federal appeals court in Washington. The opponents already have directed their latest briefs to that court to seek revocation of the approval of the JOA granted by former Attorney General Edwin Meese and upheld by U.S. District Judge George H. Revercomb. That filing was the first of three to be submitted to a three-judge panel before Oct. 28 when the panel will hear oral arguments and then decide whether to affirm or revoke the approval of the JOA. The newspapers and the Justice Department had until Oct. 11 to respond to the opponents and the opponents will have until Oct. 17 to reply.

Nor is that likely to be the end of the matter. It is expected the decision by the appellate panel will be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court regardless of which way the panel decides.

The newspapers contend the Free Press qualifies for a JOA under the Newspaper Preservation Act because it lost more than $90 million in the 1980s. The opposition relies heavily on Administrative Law Judge Morton Needelman's reasons for recommending that the JOA be denied.

In the end, however, the alternative to a JOA seems likely to be a single newspaper in Detroit. That would be worse, in our opinion, than having less competitive but two distinct newspapers published in Detroit under a JOA. We tend to believe the Knight-Ridder chain when it says it was unable to find a buyer for the Free Press and that it would close the paper if it didn't get the JOA.

Opting for the JOA is not a pleasant choice to make because it means readers and advertisers would pay more for less. But in our opinion a JOA is still preferable to having the community and state depend on a single daily newspaper to cover the news and provide an advertising outlet in a major market like Detroit.

Share benefits, share cost

To the Editor:

I read the article written about the Woods plans to dredge the Milk River. I agree totally with Councilman Thomas Fahrner: I think St. Clair Shores home owners should have to share the cost since it is partly to their benefit.

I think the idea of charging so much per dock is a good one because, not only will Grosse Pointe Woods boat owners share the expenses, but also those affected canal lots in St. Clair Shores along the mouth of the Milk River. Hopefully, St. Clair Shores will agree. It's a good way for our city to raise the money.

In my view, the Woods idea to dredge the Milk River is a good one. We can't allow the boaters to be grounded. On the other hand, we don't want to pay the total cost.

I sincerely hope the Woods will follow through with the dredging.

Auto-surfing: A bad idea

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to your "auto-surfing" editorial cartoon which appeared in the Sept. 15 issue of the Grosse Pointe News. This cartoon was brought to my attention by my mother, who resides in the Grosse Pointe area.

As a member of a Speech-Language Pathology Department involved in head trauma rehabilitation, we have seen two devastating injuries as a result of "autosurfing." This activity seems to have arisen from the Michael J. Fox film "Teenwolf," in which the star is shown "auto-surfing." The results of this activity are devastating to the survivors, their families and friends. Most survivors suffer head and other serious injuries, and while many physical difficulties are resolved through years of rehabilitation, other emotional, psychological and language deficits remain for life.

These persons often are unable to effectively return to school, work or community life. Some specific difficulties may arise from loss of memory, attention/concentration, problem-solving, planning and various language skill. Also these patients can become agitated and harm themselves and/or

Thank you for printing the cartoon and helping to increase awareness and perhaps prevent more head injuries as a result of "autosurfing" and other related motor vehicle incidents.

Recycle

To the Editor:

I was impressed with your front-page article about how many clubs have banded together in helping to save our beautiful environment. I especially liked how our community is getting involved and every person can contribute. It is one thing to donate money to environmental groups and another to be able to personally help cut down on wasted trees. Recycling paper is a necessity; thank you, Charlotte Blair, for realizing that and working so hard to educate our public.

Wake up, America! Our country is turning into a big trash dump and it's killing our air and our trees. More communities should get together and do this type of thing - every little bit helps. Won't you try to help? Just think: If everyone in Grosse Pointe donated 10 newspapers next week, there would be more saved trees than all of last year combined — about 3,500 trees.

Get out there and help. Our country and our trees need you.

Rebecca L. Devine Grosse Pointe Woods

Split the cost

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter concerning the article in your Sept. 22 issue about the Woods' plans to dredge the Milk River. In your article, you raised the question about whether the St. Clair Shores residents who have docks on the river should split the cost with the Grosse Pointe Woods residents.

You said that probably the best solution would be to just divide the cost of the dredging by the number of docks in the affected area, whether or not they happen to be in St. Clair Shores or Grosse Pointe Woods. I feel that this would be the best solution to the question of who should

It really wouldn't be fair if the SCS residents didn't have to pay for their share of the dredging because they do use the facilities as much as the Woods residents. If they agree to pay for their share of the dredging, hopefully the project could be completed by next year's boating season.

Nadeem Elian Grosse Pointe Woods

Save our heritage

To the Editor: I read with interest the letter from Kathleen Forster in the Sept. 22 issue of the Grosse Pointe News. I, too, have been distressed by the demolition of so many of the old Grosse Pointe mansions and applaud Ms. Forster's foresight for a project such as an "Inn in the Park" as a possible alternative for at least this one large parcel of land and wonderful old home. I hope that many other residents of the Grosse Pointe community feel the same way and, perhaps, if we all care enough, those mansions that do yet stand can be saved for future generations to appreciate and enjoy. I certainly want

Grosse Pointe to continue to be the unique community that it has always been. Maureen Christian Grosse Pointe

You boat. you pay

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter regarding an article in your Sept. 22 paper entitled, "Woods plans to dredge Milk River." I'm in favor of this plan and hope that the St. Clair Shores home owners on canals accessing the Milk River will help pay for this

I think the per-dock system of cost will work well. That way, if the Shores help out on the costs, the price per dock will be lower and better for everyone.

Boating is a favorite pastime for many people, and is the income of many people. If the water level continues to decrease and no dredging is done, many boat owners won't be able to get their boats out of the river.

My family just bought a boat and we are applying for a boat well at the Woods park. I hope the dredging of the river is carried out and finished by the time our boat is in the water.

That four-letter word

Like other four-letter words, it means different things to different people. To me, it always meant another four-letter word: YUCK.

It started the summer I was 10, when I was shipped off to a gulag known as CYO Summer weeks in the sun and sand of Lexington, Mich., for poor city kids who wouldn't be visiting Grandmama in Cape Cod. For me, it turned out to be a halfmonth in hell.

We slept on cots with quarterinch mattresses, stood in line for a shot at a shower in an ancient stall from which rusty water flowed and ate nothing but stew the car and set out to camp at filled with unidentifiable meat. And that was just the first day.

The counselors all looked like Ernest Borgnine on steroids and some of them suspiciously resemdefendants' block at Nuremberg.

burn, sandy shoes and stinging insect bites that my siblings went out of their way for.

Then I got married.

In most things, Mike and I are as compatible as college co-eds and Clearasil. But when it comes to camping, it's like Joan Collins married Grizzly Adams.

Last summer, we packed up Tahquamenon Falls in the Up per Peninsula. For me, it was the first time I'd seen a camp site since I Carl Lewised out of CYO camp back in 1967. We bled people who'd been in the cruised past the picturesque falls and into the sunny campground, driving around until Mike found the perfect site. I stepped out of the car, surveyed the scene and did what any good camper would do. I

I mean, I sobbed. The thought of sleeping on the cold, hard ground, albeit with an 8-by-8 piece of canvas draped precariously over my head, was too much to bear, I can't do it, I wailed. No bed, no TV, no phone, no bathtub?

Forty-degree temperatures at night? Eating - yikes - stew cooked on a camp stove and having to walk 150 feet to the nearest buthroom? And those bathrooms! They made CYO camp facilities look like a powder room in the designers' show house.

Being a newlywed husband, Mike was still susceptible to the waves of guilt caused by a weeping wife. Chastising himself severely for even thinking of subjecting his beautiful bride to that mean, old, horrible, dirty campground. Mike repacked the car and we sped to the nearest nice motel as he apologized all the

But that was then and this is now. As a veteran with 18 months service in the army of married guys, Mike knew that he could schedule a camping trip this summer without fear of tears. His or mine.

He talked about it for weeks. We'd leave early Monday morning, drive straight through to Tahquamenon and set up camp for a week. I could bring all the luxuries of home, he said. Like toilet paper. Soap, Bottled water. Band-Aids, A rosary.

Knowing full well that I had shot my wad of wifely wiles last year and that nothing short of me out of it, I agreed to go along on what sounded less like fun and more like a week as a survivalist after the Big One dropped.

But looking back at it, I'd have to say that it wasn't too bad. I made it through this camping experience in one piece. It was 40 degrees but I didn't get cold. I stopped drinking fluids 12 hours before bedtime so I wouldn't have to walk through the woods to the restrooms. There were no bug bites, no bee stings and not even very much sand in my shoes.

And frankly, I enjoyed sleeping under the stars, eating good, solid camp food cooked outdoors and hiking six or seven miles a day in the fresh air.

OK, so we only spent one night camping. It rained another day and one day we were too tired to put the tent up. We met Mike's parents the other two days so the guys could fish. And Mike decided that we just couldn't let his folks stay alone in that nasty, old motel while we were having so much fun campfaking a broken leg would get into the tent at night, just in case any rabid chipmunks tried to get in.

But it's a start. I know how to put the tent away (my favorite part of the trip) and to light the camp stove. I'm even beginning to sound like a camper, griping about how people in huge, plush RVs drive bejillions of miles to the campground, only to remain in their trailers and watch Hogan's Heroes reruns on portable

In fact, I'm already looking forward to next summer's canin ing trip. Only I'm trying to convince Mike to visit a different campground. The people where we usually go are a little, welli. too much into camping and the outdoors for my taste.

I'm looking for somewhere they don't pile beer cans into a replica of the Great Wall. Some place where a man catching a 20-pound salmon isn't the buggest event of the month. Someplace where tobacco-chewing men wearing dirty baseball caps don't crowd around and tell other men to "ask the little lady if we can use her pantyhose for spawn bags."

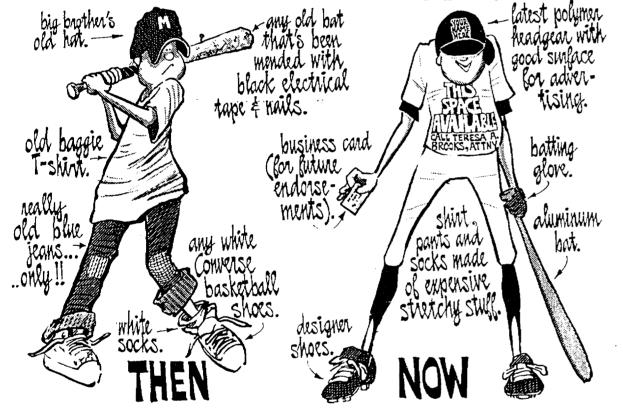

Someplace where they don't even know what spawn bags are. I wonder if they have campgrounds in Palm Springs.

Ouick action gets owner's stolen car back

A Grosse Pointe Park resident upon discovering his car was in the process of being stolen in the early morning hours Oct. 6 immediately called the Park Public Safety Department, whose officers arrived in time to catch the thief.

The resident in the 1400 block of Bedford reported the car being stolen, and Park officers recovered the vehicle and the suspect in the Mack-Three Mile Road area at 1:27 a.m.

In other police action, the following vehicles were reported stolen last week:

- A 1988 Chevrolet IROC was taken from the 700 block of Bedford between 3:30 a.m. and 8 a.m. Oct. 2.
- A 1988 Pontiac Grand Am was stolen between 9 p.m. Oct. 4 and 1:45 a.m. Oct. 5 from a parking lot in the 15300 block of Mack.
- A 1987 Oldsmobile was taken from the rear yard of home in the 900 block of Barrington between 11:30 a.m. Oct. 4 and 8 a.m. Oct. 5.

Suspects caught walking away with stolen goods

Suspects sought in connection with the breaking and entering of a Grosse Pointe Park home were arrested last week after residents reported them walking down the street with the loot.

Park residents reported seeing the suspects walking down the street with stereo equipment and called Park police at 12:35 a.m. Oct. 2. Park officers stopped the suspects and learned the equipment came from a home in the 1000 block of Balfour, which had been earlier broken into.

One of the suspects was wanted on a previous warrant.

In addition to two floors of permanent exhibits, a 5,000-squarefoot temporary display titled "Michigan Dresses Up" will open in January. The display features clothing worn by famous and private Michiganians since pioneer days, including formal dress, ethnic clothing, military uniforms, work clothes and everyday wear.

Playing a significant role in the creation of the new museum is the Michigan Historical Commission, which celebrated the 75th anniversary of its existence this year. The next day, the market lost 508.32 points, some 22 percent of its value, sending shock waves to financial centers around the world and touching off an international panic.

"When the stock market takes a precipitous drop like that, it is giving really heavy-duty signals that something bad is coming," said James Bedsworth, a registered investment adviser and certified financial planner for Bedford International Corp., where he is the president.

But what did the crash mean. why did it happen, and what are its effects today? Two Grosse Pointe financial analysts recently discussed the impact of the Crash of 1987.

Frances Twiddy, a certified financial planner, said that the crash - and that is what Bed-factors that were all present in ble far-reaching consequences.

1982 when the market started its upward trend, the record trade and budget deficits, the instability of the banking system, a relatively unorganized yet highly volatile world market and the gradual decline of the dollar.

Twiddy believes remarks made by then-head of the treasury department Jim Baker who said the United States was going to "let the dollar go" and find it's own level without support from the government created a sudden loss of confidence in the dol-

Bedsworth said if it hadn't happened that day, it would have happened soon afterward.

"There were a lot of doomsayers who said it was going to propel us into a great recession, if not a depression," Twiddy said.

The predictors were saying the buying public would lose confidence and stop buying homes, cars, and larger appliances, but they turned out to be wrong.

The panic was fed by a lot of people who got out of the stock market immediately instead of waiting out the storm. Those who stayed in are doing fine, Twiddy added.

Another factor in the panic, according to Twiddy, was that newspapers all over were assigning crash impact stories to reporters who had no experience writing business articles. That, combined with the fact that financial advisers and analysts were busy at that time and didn't have time to spend with in depth explanations, led to much misinformation, Twiddy

But now, after good sales years in major investments like real estate and automobiles, the economy is still going strong, according to the two.

"Usually things happen sooner than later," Bedsworth said, explaining that if something were to happen, it most likely would have happened by now. "It's been 12 months from the crash and we have a year where corporate earnings have continued to show improvement. Not dra matic improvement, but still. improvement.

Along with the corporate earnings improving, the trade deficit has also improved. Bedsworth said. And some facets of the economy have become stronger, most notably the American auto industry abroad.

"There are still a number of things no one knows," Bedsworth said. "You can analyze and come up with a very bleak picture, or a very bright picture of the future. No one really knows."

Many people learned an ex pensive, yet old, lesson about in vesting, according to Twiddy. "It is smart to diversify," she said. Or, to put it in layman's terms: "Don't put all your eggs in one basket.

Today the long-reaching effects are more on the psychology of the investors than on the market and the economy itself.

Twiddy said that investors are much more cautious today. Investing for longer terms is the smarter thing to do.

Twiddy advises her customers to stay in the market for a long time, keep sight of long-term goals, and in the long run investors will come out ahead.

Police Department, Fire Department, Ambulance Service, too! If you live or work in the Grosse Pointes, one number does it all: 9-1-1.

Man sought for accosting children

Public safety officers throughout the Pointes are on the lookout for a man who allegedly tried to coerce children in Grosse Pointe Park and Grosse Pointe Woods to go for a ride in his shiny, red pick-up truck last week.

The first reported incident occurred on the morning of Oct. 6 near Monteith Elementary School in Grosse Pointe Woods. Another incident occurred the same day in Grosse Pointe Park. In both cases, children were offered rides by a white male, in his 20s or 30s and driving a red pick-up truck.

Police throughout the Pointes advised local schools to be on the lookout for the red truck. Since the alert went out, the police have received several reports, including many that do not fit the pattern of the first incidents.

Capt. William Furtaw of the Park Public Safety Department said all the Pointes police departments are closely watching schools for the pick-up truck. "If he comes back, we'll get him," he said.

Police are quick to point out that the man in the pick-up truck has not as of 5 p.m. Monday molested or abducted anyone. They point out that the reports are of alleged attempts by someone to accost children for reasons unknown. Police were continuting the investigation Monday.

Committee seeks private fundraising for new main library

By Margle Reins Smith Staff Writer

The construction of a new main library in Grosse Pointe is a little bit closer to reality after last week's school board meet-

Doris Brucker, chairman of the Library Building Advisory Committee, proposed a working list of steps designed to advance the progress of the library proposal. Superintendent John Whritner recommended full approval of the committee's recommendations.

"This community has been wanting (an improved library) for a long time," Brucker stated, - almost since right after the Breuer building was finished.

"We deserve a better library," she said. "If our children don't have an opportunity to use a library like they're going to find p.m. at their colleges, they'll be be-

Brucker said that the Board of Directors of the Friends of the Library approved $5,000 toward hiring a fundraising consultant, Ketchum, Inc., to begin studying methods of private fundraising. She said she hoped the school board would approve another $5,000 for the study.

She said the new Library Building and Finance Committee has scheduled its first meeting for Thursday, Oct. 27 at 7:30

Board President Jon Gandelot said that he and the entire board will get involved in the library project. "We need to take a proactive stance and get the message out," he said.

Superintendent Whritner said, "We have three things on our side. We have time to build private funding. We have the committee itself. And historically, we've tried this before and we know what works."

Woods assists Detroit, recovers car, 3 suspects

The Grosse Pointe Woods Public Safety Department assisted Detroit police in recovering a stolen station wagon and three suspects Oct. 4.

Woods officers monitoring Detroit police broadcasts responded to intercept a chase in progress involving three men in a red station wagon. The station wagon was heading east on Lancaster from Harper.

The suspects were easy to track since they left a trail of two hit-and-run incidents. At the first hit-and-run at Mack and Lochmoor, one of the suspects left the scene on foot, running south toward Kenmore. He was arrested in the 1800 block of Norwood.

The other two suspects fled on foot at the scene of the other hitand-run on Hunt Club, west of Mack. The two men were arrested, however, when they were spotted walking by the Woods police station on Mack.

News Donald Petersen: A customer-friendly 'car guy'

By Richard A. Wright

Special Writer "Who's the most influential figure in the auto industry today?" asked a national magazine editor, a former Detroiter who spent most of his adult life covering politics and international affairs. "And don't tell me Iacocca. I want someone different."

"Don Petersen," I said.

"Who's he?"

"He's chairman and chief executive officer of Ford Motor aero look or the Mustang or any Co.," I said. "You've heard of them?"

He ignored my irony. "How do you spell that?'

'With an 'e." In the corridors of power on the 12th floor of Ford's World Headquarters in Dearborn, the "Glass House," a friendly man opens the door of the office once inhabited by Henry Ford II. "Hi, I'm Don Petersen. Come on in."

This brief, straightforward greeting from the chairman of the world's second largest auto maker speaks volumes about the kind of approach that has made Ford Motor Co. the most successful automobile firm in the world.

If you bought an American car in the late '70's, there's a fairly good chance you don't own one now. A lot of people were not pleased and they switched. There were more stylish, higher-quality cars at the same prices to be had, most of them Japanese.

What went wrong? A bad "corporate culture," some observers are now saying, a culture in which production quotas and the next quarter's financial report took precedence over quality and customer satisfaction, in which management perks were valued over the more esoteric joys of building and marketing fine, quality automobiles.

The shift to a new corporate culture seems most advanced at Ford Motor Co. Buyers of one of Ford's new "aero" models acquired quite a different sort of beast. The new Ford lines constituted one of the most drastic breaks with the past any auto maker has ever made. And much of the reason is Donald E. Petersen.

It takes a lot more than fresh styling to effect the change that has occurred at Ford Motor Co. in the past few years. It requires a shift in mindset, a change in "corporate culture." And the corporate culture at Ford Motor Co. is changing, changing rapidly

"What would you like to talk about?" Petersen asked.

I decided to open with a serious political question. "What is your astrological sign?'

Petersen laughed and without pause answered: "Well, it's either Taurus or Scorpio." In fact, he was born in Pipestone, Minn., on Sept. 4, 1926, which makes him a Virgo. Henry Ford II was also a Virgo, also born on Sept. 4, 1917.

Petersen's family moved to the West Coast when he was 2 years old and as a youth in Portland, Ore., during the Great Depression he developed a strong work ethic and determination to succeed. He even set a goal of someday having a job that earned him $200 a month.

He served as officer in the Marine Corps in World War II and in the Korean War, graduated with highest honors from the University of Washington in 1946 with a degree in mechanical engineering, married Jo Anne (Jody) Leonard in 1948, received an MBA from Stanford University in 1949 and joined Ford Motor Co. that same year, expressing an interest in product planning, a function that had not yet been established in the auto industry. Petersen helped establish it.

Petersen has been boss at Ford Motor Co. since Feb. 1, 1985, when he became chairman and chief executive officer to succeed Philip Caldwell, the only other chief executive of Ford who was not a Ford. Caldwell took over after Henry Ford II retired on Oct. 1, 1979. On March 13, 1980, the board of directors named Caldwell the first non-Ford to run the company and Petersen advanced to president.

Petersen's ascension to chairman was the first in the company's history which went the way General Motors does it the heir apparent taking over on schedule, no surprises, no battles, no rancor, no hurt feelings. Harold A. (Red) Poling became president.

Petersen is known as a "car guy" in Detroit, which is in some circles the highest praise one can bestow. He is quick to disclaim the title of the "father of the Taurus/Sable" or of the "jellybean Thunderbird," or the chuckled. "Maybe I should have, but I did not. I went home at the end of each day and slept like a other car. Cars are created by teams of creative specialists, not one man, he says.

"I was known as the 'jellybean man' for a while," Petersen said, after introduction of the European-inspired "aero" Thunder-bird in 1983. The rounded, slippery T-Bird was called "jellybean" and "flying potato" by some critics, but it turned out to be a stylesetter, redefining once more what the American car should look like.

baby at night."

Petersen's "car guy" credentials are impeccable. As car product planning manager for Ford Division and the product development group in the early '60's, he was one of the top design people involved in creation of the original Ford Mustang. As executive vice president-Ford International Automotive Operations from 1977 to 1980, he supervised development of the Escort, Sierra and Scorpio in Europe, whence came the American aero

Maybe Petersen didn't feel any risk with the Thunderbird, but that's a specialty car. What about the Taurus and Sable, bread-and-butter lines? They were pretty unusual-looking family cars. Failure here could be financial disaster.

"There were still a few sweaty palms when we introduced the Taurus and Sable. But the cars had an integrity of design that we were pretty sure the public would like. They're driverfriendly. By that time, we were pretty sure Taurus and Sable would succeed.

"I have an empathy with our products. I love automobiles. I love cars and trucks. One thing I didn't feel I was good at was in comparing one product to another, finding out just what each was capable of. So I went to the Bondurant School of High Performance Driving to learn to better evaluate vehicles."

Petersen said he felt he got so much out of it that he encouraged other Ford people to attend the school, run in California by Bob Bondurant, retired champion driver. He said he believes the training has made Ford executives more sensitive to the driving satisfaction of Ford's prod-

Petersen is proud of his company's products and is pleased by its success, but is not cocky. In this age of "imperial" management, the words used most often by co-workers to describe Petersen are "sensitive," "considerate" and "down-to-earth."

And "brilliant."

Go Blue and/or Go Green

More than 106,000 football fans stacked themselves hip-tohip in the University of Michigan's football stadium last Saturday in Ann Arbor. They came to witness the annual gridiron contest, a friendly rivalry between Michigan's two largest universities: Michigan State University and the University of Michigan.

For many Grosse Pointers, the annual ritual includes a tailgate picnic before the game.

Saturday's weather — partly sunny, mild, brisk, pleasant — added to the enjoyment of the traditional football Saturday.

A good proportion of the crowd was pleased with the outcome of the game: Michigan 17; State 3.

Nearly everybody enjoyed the tailgate picnics.

Just to prove mixed marriages DO work. Lynne and Bill Mogk, above, advertised their school loyalties on their clothing. Lynne teaches life skills at Brownell Middle School and is a graduate of Michigan State. Bill is a counselor at Brownell, and is a graduate of the University of Michigan.

Most tailgaters aren't satisfied with a brown-bag sandwich and an apple. Portable grills, simmering soup, whole shrimp, grilled hot dogs and hamburgers and steaks, below, are common luncheon-fare for tailga-

South to sponsor retreat for parents, teens

School's Student Assistance Program, Teen Leadership Conference students and the School Team are sponsoring a communication weekend for parents and students Oct. 28-30 at Camp Tamarack in Ortonville.

The weekend will be called "Lifeline," and will provide a chance for parents and students to learn how to talk to - and listen to - each other.

According to Susan Pearce, student assistance coordinator, Lifeline will be a chance to answer questions such as:

- What is the difference between love and trust?
- How can you disagree without being disagreeable?
- How can you discuss rights, responsibilities, privileges and punishments without "losers" or affect honest communication in your home?

• How can a teenager grow up without "growing out" of his or her family?

The cost will be $40 for one student and one parent. Each additional parent or student from the same family will be charged $10.

The fee includes a Friday evening snack, three meals Saturday and a Sunday morning brunch, a cot, showers, and a chance to have fun while learning about yourself and your family, according to Pearce.

The goal, she said, is to bring parents and teenagers together in a different setting. Parents and teens will meet together for large group presentations on subjects of mutual concern, such as peer pressure, self-esteem and • What are your unspoken communication skills. Small dis-

News Former Farms mayor honored at park dedication help the community through pri-

By John Minnis

Staff Writer The memory of former Grosse Pointe Farms Mayor James Dingeman was honored Sunday at the dedication of the completion of the $100,000-plus renovation of Pier Park.

The highlight of the ceremonies was the unveiling of a plaque in tribute to Dingeman, who died in 1986. His widow attended the ceremony and took part in the festivities with Mayor Joseph Fromm.

Fromm said the success of Pier Park at the foot of Moross is due the far-sightedness of past Farms government leaders, as well as the current administration, and members of the City Council and Beautification Commission.

He also said that without the volunteers of the Farms Foundation, a non-profit fundraising group, the renovation of the park wouldn't have been possible.

Paul Marco, vice chairman of the foundation, said the project was the result of the "generosity of many, many residents," and that the project was a "classic example of where citizens are working with government."

The renovation included the wall with the memorial plaque, new wrought iron to replace the unsightly chain-link fencing, shrubs, extensive landscaping designed by architect John Grissim, and evergreen screens to block off the parking area and provide a more pleasing view for travelers and residents along Lakeshore Drive.

Marco said the costs of the project exceeded the projected $100,000 due to last-minute additions, such as putting a new brick facade and roof and the gate house and continuing the wrought iron fence and shrubbery along the southern boundary of the park.

He said the additions were suggested by the Beautification Commission, and the foundation agreed the extra work should be completed along with the planned improvements.

Marco said the total cost for the project came to $136,000. He said the foundation has raised $120,000, leaving $16,000 yet to be contributed.

The Farms Foundation was started by Dingeman. Another leader in the foundation is Ralph McElvenney, the foundation's president.

McElvenney is overcoming an illness, and Marco has had to take over much of the foundation's business. While Mc-Elvenney attended the dedication ceremonies, his illness prevented him from speaking, Marco said.

The foundation's purpose is to Grosse Pointe, Mich., 48236.

Hospital offers intervention lecture

Brighton Hospital's series of programs on substance abuse prevention and treatment continues on Tuesday, Oct. 18 with a discussion on how family members, friends, and employers can confront and help a chemically dependent person.

The title of the program is: "Intervention: The Direct Approach to Treatment & Recovery." Brian Duguay, an intervention specialist at the hospital, is the featured speaker. The program begins at 7 p.m in the Brighton Hospital chapel. Reservations are not required.

According to Duguay, the family and friends of someone who is abusing alcohol and other drugs realize that they need to take some action but are not sure how to begin. In an intervention the group confronts the individual with the reality of his or her drinking or drug use in a factual, concerned, and nonjudgmental manner.

In most cases, the person intervened upon will seek treatment, said Duguay. Another important result is that the individual's family and friends have begun to help themselves by taking some action toward resolving the problem.

For additional information, contact Brighton Hospital's Community Relations Department weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at (313) 227-1211, ext. 276.

October 13, 1988 Grosse Pointe News Woods lawyer fights for crime victims

By John Minnis

Staff Writer Woods resident and lawyer Gary R. Dettloff wants crime victims to have a voice in the sentencing of the perpetrators against them.

As a member of Justice Fellowship, a criminal justice reform organization affiliated with Prison Fellowship Ministries, Dettloff was one of 15 volunteers from throughout the country to recently attend a national leadership conference on criminal justice reform.

Justice Fellowship is seeking "restorative justice" for victims of crime throughout the United States. The fellowship would like to see victims get not only monetary or societal restitution from non-violent offenders, but also restitution through service by the offender to the victim or community.

Dettloff, a former Wayne County assistant prosecutor, said he wants non-violent criminals to perform an act of service as well as pay monetary restitution to the victim.

He cites an example: If a motorist deliberately drives through a farmer's fence and is charged

Shores officer seeks donations to feed families

Grosse Pointe Shores Public Safety Officer Steve Poloni is organizing efforts in the Pointes to raise funds to feed needy families at Christmas. Poloni, a former firefighter in River Rouge, is teaming up with his old co-workers to raise the funds. The food will be distributed by local churches and civic organizations. As a Christian, Poloni said he wanted to find a way to feed families that would otherwise go without during the most popular religious holiday. He began his efforts in a small way last year, and this year he hopes to do more through a non-profit organization he founded, called Feed a Family. He is seeking contributions in the amount of $12, since that is how much he figures it costs to provide a family with a good holiday meal. He is quick to add, however, that he will accept donations of any size, larger or smaller than the $12 suggested amount. "We not only want to help the homeless, but also the regular guys who just can't provide their families with a holiday meal," Poloni said. "If we can make a dent and give some hope for a holiday season, (that's what we're trying to do.)"

His goal is to feed 1,000 families this holiday season.

He said other officers in the Pointes are chipping in, and fellow workers at the Shores village hall are helping out. His wife, Kathy, does a great deal of the work of putting the operation together.

Those who would like to donate can call Poloni at 886-1282. Check or money order donations can be made out to "Feed a Family" and mailed to P.O. Box 36818, Grosse Pointe 48236.

and convicted of the offense, he is normally fined and ordered to pay property damages. Dettloff and his associates in Justice Fellowship want the motorist to not only pay for the fence, but also to have to rebuild the fence with his own labor.

As a deacon at Ebenezer Baptist Church, Dettloff believes restitution to the victim through service is a Christian model of justice. He also adds that sentencing non-violent offenders to terms of community or individual service instead of incarceration would free up jail space for violent criminals.

In Michigan, Dettloff and the Justice Fellowship task force are working for passage of House Bill 4164, the Community Corrections Act. The state House unanimously passed the bill. The Senate's version of the bill contains differences, and the two bills will be merged in a joint conference committee. Dettloff doesn't expect any difficulties in the bill's final passage.

The act would create a state community corrections advisory board and would provide for the creation of similar boards at the local level. The state board would set guidelines for sentencing of non-violent offenders and provide guidance for local boards. The Justice Fellowship has task forces in eight states and active members in 20 other states, according to Pam Walsh, a spokeswoman at the fellowship's headquarters in Washington, D.C.

She said the group would also like to see the victim become involved in the judicial process by recommending sentencing for non-violent offenders.

Offenders would be less likely to repeat a crime if they knew they would not only have to pay a fine but would also have to face and serve the victim, she said.

The Prison Fellowship Ministries associated with the Justice Fellowship was founded by Charles Colson, who was counsel former President Richard Nixon and served time in prison for his activities in the Watergate scandal.

Man arrested in parking meter theft

A man in a beige Cadillac was arrested after he allegedly used a homemade key to remove a coin box from a Grosse Pointe Woods parking meter during the early morning hours Sunday.

According to Woods Public Safety Department reports, the suspect appeared to be slouching in the front seat of the car on Beaufait at Mack in an attempt to escape detection. A Woods officer stopped to investigate, and upon requesting the man to get out of the car, the officer discovered a parking meter coin box sitting on the front seat.

An investigation of the area found a homemade key stuck in a meter on Beaufait, and the coin box was removed. The man was arrested and charged with attempted breaking and entering of a parking meter.

Fuel expert marks 100 years

Thomas A. (Tab) Boyd, a pi oneer in the study of automotive fuel composition and engine combustion for General Motors Corp., celebrated his 100th birth day Monday, Oct. 10 at Bon Se cours Nursing Home.

The Grosse Pointe Park resident served as head of the Fuels Section of the General Motors Research Laboratories from 1923 to 1947. He is best known for his early research to improve the efficiency of gasoline utilization in internal combustion engines.

During World War I, Boyd was instrumental in the development of aviation gasolines that permitted higher power output from Liberty engines without destructive detonation. In the 1920s, together with early automotive innovators Charles F. Kettering and Thomas Midgely Jr., he played a significant role in the discovery and development of anti-knock compounds, including tetraethyl lead, which gained widespread commercial use in both automotive and aviation fuels.

Boyd is especially noted for his work leading to the discovery of the effects of molecular structure on the knocking characteristics of hydrocarbon fuels. He also was recognized for his role in the development of a standard method for measuring the knock-

Latchkey program gets new name

By Margie Reins Smith Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Public School System's Latchkey program has a new name and some brand new plans for the summer of 1989.

The School Age Child Care Program (SACC) provides supervised activities for school-age children before and after regular school hours in their own elementary school buildings.

"Latchkey has a negative connotation," said Cheryl Dorman, one of the coordinators of the program. The term, "latchkey child," usually refers to a child who wears his house key around his neck and must go home after school to an empty house and remain there, unsupervised, until his parents come home from work.

She said the name change is meant to reflect the idea that the children in the program are not alone and are well cared-for.

Dorman and her co-coordinator, Ethel Toepel, supervise approximately 30 caregivers for 403 children at nine elementary schools in Grosse Pointe.

SACC has more caregivers this year. Dorman said, and has purchased more equipment. Fees have also gone up to $1.90 per hour per child.

"This year our caregivers are better educated. We have in-service training every month for 1-1/2 hours," she said. "This is

The PRO gong show was in August 1987. Since that breakthrough debut, which she enjoyed, Slezak has performed at several more charity events: three French songs in Alliance Francaise's Cabaret Night; a song at Bon Secours Hospital's Christmas show; and a concert with the rest of the students in Pagel's voice class.

She also did this year's gong show fundraiser for PRO. She and a friend performed in a routine that Slezak wrote. "I was a bag lady. I wore my mother-inlaw's clothes from the 1930s: a black slip, a ratty fur, purple shoes and warm-up socks, old junky jewelry, a hat with a ripped veil hanging below one ear. My friend was dressed in velvet and white, with a tiara. She was gorgeous. She sang 'Pretty Baby,' while I came through the audience in my bag lady outfit, picking up trash along the way."

After the hearing was adjourned, Ihrie explained that council's only responsibility is to decide if Cracker Jax's continued operation in the city is in the best interests of the "health, safety and morals of the community.'

In order to prove its case, the city is calling police and resident witnesses.

Monday night's three hours of testimony consisted of opening statements by attorneys on both sides and the calling of the first police witness, Detective Daniel Jensen was put in charge of the investigation of Cracker Jax. He said he was directed by Public Safety Director Robert Ferber to determine if the nightclub was serving minors alcohol and if any drug sales or use were conducted at bar.

Cracker Jax attorney Bufalino objected to Jensen's use of police reports since they contained information already of the officer's opinion and allegations that have not been proven in court. Thayer agreed with Bufalino, reports to refreshen his memory.

After a couple of hours of meticulous testimony, the city was only able to establish 17 alleged cases of minors in possession of ceeding, Bufalino continually to Dec. 19. jumped up with courtroom-like objections. Eileen Liska, director of research and legislation for the Michigan Humane Society, presented the organization's recommendations for vicious animal control ordinances.

"The Michigan Humane Society has a problem with banning a specific breed," she said, "because the good will be penalized with the bad."

The recommendations, she said, are a better method of dealing with vicious animals. Among the recommendations:

• Creation of a Vicious Animal Control Board, in order to make speedy determinations about the vicious temperment of specific animals. • Require mandatory tatooing of American Pit Bull Terriers, American Staffordshire Terriers, Staffordshire Bull Terriers and Bull Terriers with Michigan Department of Agriculture tatoo numbers. • Restrict ownership of the above breeds to those over 18 years old. Only those 18 and older may be on public premises with the dogs.

• Use differential licensing fees: $5 for sterilized pets; $20 for unsterilized pets.

• Require mandatory tattooing of any dog or cat being redeemed after having roamed at large Enforce stiff penalties against irresponsible pet owners. See related story on page 3A.

Hertel, Crockett differ on drug legislation

By Ronald J. Bernas

Staff Writer The United States House of Representatives recently approved landmark drug legislation which will increase funding for many drug treatment programs and proposes heavy penalties for those who deal and those who use drugs.

The bill passed by an overwhelming majority of 375 to 30. The two Grosse Pointe representatives, Dennis Hertel for the 14th District and George Crockett Jr. for the 13th District, were on opposite sides of the fence, with Hertel voting for the bill and Crockett voting against.

After weeks of debate and changes and additions, the House voted Sept. 22 to send the bill to the Senate.

Known as the Omnibus Drug Initiative Act, the bill would provide some $6.1 billion next year for education, prevention, treatment and rehabilitation, and drug law enforcement.

The bill also provides for increased civil fines of up to $10,000 for possession of small amounts of marijuana, cocaine and heroin, and would impose a mandatory five-year prison term to those in possession of crack cocaine; allow police to perform searches without first obtaining a warrant, if they believe drugs may be involved; deny certain benefits for those convicted of drug offenses; create an office of Drug Enforcement Coordination at the White House level; and establish uniform standards nationally for drug-testing laborato-

The law also makes it a federal crime to launder money made through illegal drug traffic, and provides funds for the Coast Guard to use in stemming the tide of drug flow.

Both Democrats, the pair agree on the need for legislation to help fight the war on drugs, but Crockett's no vote stemmed from various floor amendments he felt were unconstitutional.

"I voted for the bill as it came out of the Foreign Affairs Committee," said Crockett, who chairs the Western Hemisphere subcommittee of that committee.

But floor amendments which take away civil rights caused his negative vote - the death penalty for drug-related killings involving federal offenses, and the removal of an amendment that would have created a mandatory seven-day waiting period for buying firearms. Crockett said he felt the amendments, especially the mandatory death penalty and the search warrant, were blatantly unconstitutional and would not stand up as independent legislation. He said he also believed enforcement of the death penalty might be leaned more toward black defendents than white de-

Aside from the amendments, Crockett said the bill is necessary, because without it, the drug use in the country may never cease.

Hertel said, "This bill is very much needed. It gives the states money to use it in the schools to expand their counseling and information programs."

Crockett said, "As of now, we are losing the war against drugs. And I have supported this bill from the beginning up to the time it got to the floor when they began to burden it down with these unacceptable amend-

Both say one of the more important points of the bill is that it will create ways to work with foreign governments, especially those of Latin America which manufacture drugs and ship them to the United States.

The bill is now before the Senate for approval.

Woods drugstore thief suspected

Bob's Drugs on Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods was robbed of $50 in coins and a carton of cigarettes Oct. 5, and police say the theft is similar to several others in St. Clair Shores.

Two cash register drawers had been pried open and the contents taken. The store's owner said there was $25 in coins in each of the drawers. The only other thing missing was the one carton of Newport Light cigarettes.

St. Clair Shores police reported the Woods theft was similar to several breaking-and-entering cases that have occurred there in the past few weeks. In the St. Clair Shores cases, only patrolling the area on the night of the break-in stopped to examine a suspicious parked vehicle that may have been the suspect's. Woods detectives are in-

Newspapers and the endorsement process

Wednesday, Oct. 19 at 8 p.m., the War Memorial welcomes Thomas Bray, editorial page editor of the Detroit News and Detroit Free Press editor, Joe Stroud, who will discuss how and why a newspaper chooses to endorse a particular issue or candidate.

The evening's program is presented by the War Memorial Council of Sponsors. It will be moderated by Andrea Roumell Dickson and offers the community an outstanding opportunity to gain insight into the philosophies of the two metro dailies and how they work through the endorsement process.

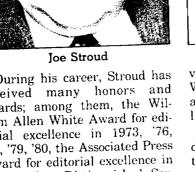

Both editors are highly respected members of their profession. Bray has been editorial page editor of The News since 1983, coming to Detroit from The Wall Street Journal where he served as associate editor of the paper's editorial page.

Married and the father of two, he is a graduate of Princeton University. He serves on the boards of several organizations including the Earhart Foundation in Ann Arbor. In 1987 and '88, he was a juror on the Pulitzer Prize awards committee.

Stroud was appointed editor of the Free Press in 1973. Before joining the Free Press in 1968, he was editorial page editor of the Winston-Salem, North Carolina Journal and Sentinel.

During his career, Stroud has received many honors and awards; among them, the William Allen White Award for editorial excellence in 1973, '76, 77, '79, '80, the Associated Press Award for editorial excellence in 1984 and a Distinguished Service Award from the Michigan Women's Commission. He was also a finalist in the 1982 Pulitzer Prize Competition.

Tips for saving gasoline

The U.S. Department of Energy offers these tips for drivers to increase fuel economy . . . and, incidentally, to save money.

• Turn off your engine rather than letting it idle for more than a minute.

• Change spark plugs, air filters and fuel filters regularly. Get regular tune-ups.

• Keep tires inflated at the manufacturer's recommended maximum pressure.

 Avoid sudden stops and starts. • Be aware that fuel economy drops when speed exceeds 55 miles per hour. • Don't carry unnecessary weight. • Avoid revving the engine before shutting it off. This isn't necessary for today's cars. • Keep front wheels in alignment.

October 13, 1988 Grosse Pointe News Build Ben Guiffre: Selling runs in the family

Editor

One of the highlights of the Christmas season at the Grosse Pointe News is the annual party at Ben Guiffre's house. All employees and their spouses or friends are invited. It's a warm, friendly, family-type event and Guiffre has a strong sense of family.

Not only did he grow up with a couple of sisters, a brother, mother and father, he grew up with both parents' families living on the same block.

It was a very close-knit neighborhood, he said, and his family's influence is apparent in his choice of career. With his parents and his brother in sales, Guiffre said, "I knew I wanted to be in sales.

After graduating from St. Anthony High School, he earned a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Detroit and went to work for an insurance company. He then applied, and was hired, for a sales position at the Michigan Catholic, a statewide weekly paper.

Guiffre was there for five years. "During that time, I learned the whole process of selling advertising, doing layouts and collecting accounts.

"My mother always told me to treat people the way you would treat a friend or the way you'd want to be treated."

Grosse Pointe Park during this every week, go every other week period, worked as a bartender part time at Sparky Herbert's and he learned, through one of the customers, about a job opening at the Grosse Pointe News. He applied and began working in the Advertising Department in February 1983. He was remanager.

"This is a good market to sell," Guiffre said. "It's a very we're getting known to the national advertisers.

J. Benjamin Guiffre, advertising representative and assistant manager, has been with the Grosse Pointe News for six years.

Guiffre said he always works closely with a client on his advertising budget. "They sometimes tend to go over (budget) and I tell them that consistency Guiffre, who was living in is important. If you can't go even if it's only $40 an ad."

He has taken some graduate classes in advertising at Michigan State University's Birmingham extension program. He hopes to earn a master's degree there.

The advertising representacently promoted to assistant tives at the Grosse Pointe News don't have a territory and Guiffre's area extends from Windsor to Birmingham, Troy well-read community paper and and Port Huron. Since he spends considerable time in his car driving, he said he is now trying to Guiffre said he got hooked on international travel when he worked at the Michigan Catholic where he and a priest friend set up tours to Europe. He has been to Italy, Israel, Egypt, Germany, Sweden, Denmark, Holland and London.

OCTOBER BIRTHSTONE

OPAL

A Special Clasp in this mounting allows the ring to be removed and a chain added, for use as a pendant. 6.4C CT. OPAL: .5CT. Total Weight Diamonds: 14K White Gold Mounting $5200.00

Opal is the traditional birthstone for the month of October. Opal comes in many different varieties, the two most popular being white opal and black opal. White opal has a white or light body color with flashes of other colors. Black opal has a black, dark blue, green,or grey body color with flashes of other colors. The color flashes in opals is called "play of color" and is one factor in determining an opals value. Some believe that opals bring bad luck. This superstition started in the 19th century when Sir Walter Scott wrote the novel "Anne of Geierstein" in which the character owned an opal which would change color as her mood changed. Upon her death the opal turned grey and was believed to have caused her death. The author never intended for the opal to be associated with death, but as more people read the novel the superstition spread. Before this novel was written, opals were thought to bring good luck and protection. When thinking of opals, remember these points:

opals are like people, no two are exactly the same. -an opal is never boring, the colors are always changing. opals can be worn with every color.

Opal is one of the softer gemstones, but with care can be worn for many years. When they become scratched and worn, they can be polished to look like new. Opal jewelry should be cleaned with warm soapy water and a soft bristle brush. Have your jewelry checked at least every six months by a professional jeweler, (an alternate birthstone for October is the pink tourmaline).

Churches 4B Seniors 5B Grosse Pointe News 41st Goodwill Antiques Show and Sale goes Victorian

Victorian doll house is just one of show's many stars

Detroit's longest running antiques show is back.

And while the show didn't start back in the era known as England's most prosperous and genteel, show organizers are borrowing a bit of the Victorian Era for the fundraiser's theme.

The 41st Goodwill Antiques Show and Sale sponsored by the Junior Group of Goodwill Industries is set for Friday, Nov. 11, through Sunday, Nov. 13, at the Michigan State Fairgrounds on Woodward Ave. at Eight Mile

Forty-five of the country's top dealers will exhibit 18th and 19th century American and English furniture, primitives, toys, jewelry, oil paintings, maps, prints, quilts, clocks, dolls, pewter, tin, silver, glass, crystal, spatterware, Staffordshire, Shaker furniture, snuff boxes, nautical accessories and much Kicking off the popular fundraiser for Goodwill Industries will be a preview party Thursday, Nov. 10, beginning at 6 p.m. Donation for that event is $50 for sponsors, $30 for patrons, or $100 for benefactors.

Show hours are $11\ a.m.$ to 9p.m. Nov. 11; 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Nov. 12; and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Nov. 13. Donation is $5 at the door.

Junior Group members on both sides of the city have been busy for months, participating in workshops to create items for the show's popular country store.

The store will feature such items as handmade Christmas gifts, candies, pecans, dilly beans, jams and jellies, pickles and home baked goods.

There will also be a Goodwill booth of collectibles and items of quality such as furs, furniture and paintings, and a silent auction of these items.

In keeping with the theme, one of the items up for bid is a Victorian doll house and all its furnishings, donated by Nancy Keenan Whitehead. The miniature doll house is electrified. It took approximately two years to construct, paint and electrify the house. It features four bedrooms, formal living and dining rooms, a bath, kitchen, sewing room and laundry room.

It is approximately 40 inches high and 36 inches wide, decorated with carpeting, inlaid vinyl flooring, assorted wallpaper and stained glass windows. Furnishings include a complete kitchen with all major appliances, hanging iron potracks with copper utensils, a working toaster and a chopping block and kitchen ta-

There's also a baby grand piano in the living room, handcarved French provincial furniiture in the bedroom and a fullyequipped bathroom.

The estimated value of the house is $5,000.

The doll house made its eastside debut on Sept. 30 at the Grosse Pointe Farms home of

This Victorian Doll House will be auctioned at the sale.

Mary Ruffner. Ruffner and cohostess Barbara Smith hosted a press party for the upcoming show. The party had a decidedly Victorian theme, right down to the foods served at tea: cucumber sandwiches, hot scones, Victorian sponge cake and poppyseed cake.

There was also a tasting table for those who wanted a preview of the items for sale in the boutique at the show.

The Antiques Show and Sale is chaired by Mrs. John Batherson, Mrs. Ross S. Campbell Jr. and Mrs. Gregory Stefani. Honorary chairmen include Admiral David M. Cooney, chairman of the Goodwill Industries of America; John Feikens, chairman of the Goodwill Industries of Greater Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Roger K. The winds of change strike

By Marian Trainor Special Writer

The winds of change sometimes blow so gently the difference is barely felt. And sometimes they strike with a hurricane force sweeping away the familiar and leaving behind devestation and heartbreak.

Last week, Detroit Catholics felt the eye of the storm when an announcement was made that 42 parish churches were to be

Forty-two churches, not buildings, but consecrated places of worship, centers of lives, centers of neighborhoods, centers that represented sacrifices by the people who had worshipped in them.

All things important in their lives were bound up in them: births, growing up, marriage and death.

The churches were where they came to pray for guidance when choices were difficult. They came to pray for strength to go on when life became fraught with problems. They came just to sit for a while in quiet meditation, and they came seeking peace of mind in turbulent times.

A parish church is so personal. A different church will not have the same memories, the same ties that bind.

Putting all these considerations aside, we might ask why the churches cannot be left standing. Countries have drawn tourists from all over the world to visit old churches. Perhaps our local churches are not the works of art that those churches are, but they are examples of workmanship and materials that cannot be duplicated.

churches, hearts

Why couldn't a commission be designated to save these symbols of Detroit history?

Older residents of Detroit have lived through so much change. They have gone from gas lights to electrical everything; from horse-drawn carriages to automobiles and jet planes; from quiet peaceful neighborhoods to the disruption of freeways.

They have even assimilated changes in the church services. Mass once sung in sonorous latin is now conducted in English. These are folk masses and changes in ritual. Sparing the churches would leave them some part of a life they have lived.

Forty-two churches; forty-two symbols of faith, of lives lived, of sacrifices made. Forty-two churches, each with a story to tell. Forty-two churches, many of them about to be turned into rubble under a wrecking ball.

May the saints preserve us!

OUALITY NURSING CARE

UP, UP AND AWAY If you think that the continue you usually use other per ing rise in real estate values is a recent phenomenon, think again. Since 1850, the fair market value of real estate, land and improvements has been increasing at a compounded rate of about five percent. To illustrate this point more vividly, if Abe Lincoln's cousin bought some property in 1850 for $1,000, that same property would be worth one million dollars today.

In current times, real estate has appreciated in forty-eight of the last fifty years.

Appreciation is even more dramatic when you realize it is tied to leverage in real estate. That means when you buy property, you usually use other people's money to do so. If you put 20 percent down ($20,000) on a $100,000 home and it appreciates at 5 percent, the increase in one year is $5,000. This actually represents an increase of 25 percent on the cash invested. As these returns are compounded over the years of ownership, the significant financial rewards of home ownership are apparent.

North, South split on cross country hill

E.M.L. to fold?

The profits are saying that the Eastern Michigan League, in which Grosse Pointe South participates, could go belly up at the end of the 1988-89 school year.

Five charter members formed the Eastern Michigan League for formal competition which began with baseball in 1945. Hazel Park, Ferndale, Birmingham, Mount Clemens and Port Huron are the original teams of the E.M.L.; Mount Clemens and Port Huron are the only remaining schools of the original five.

South, which entered the league and dominated it since 1972, became the seventh member, followed by L'Anse Creuse North in 1975, and New Baltimore Anchor Bay in 1981 to join the E.M.L. Sterling Heights Stevenson, now a member of the Macomb Area Conference, dropped out in 1966 so now only eight teams are in the league. Facts indicate that South should get out. For one, no formal championships are recognized in girls' soccer or both boys' and girls' swimming, both of which South would rule. Two, Roseville (an E.M.L. member) and Roseville Brablec (MAC) have consolidated their student body for the 1989-90 school year. This move will disrupt the league because it is unknown which league Roseville would participate in.

Would Brablec/Roseville join the E.M.L., or would they remain in the MAC? It's a question that is being researched at this time. However, one school's departure may not have much impact, but if the consolidation of the Roseville schools forces them into the MAC, and South leaves, then the E.M.L. may not survive.

Mount Clemens has expreseed some interest in dropping out of the league, as has East Detroit. If they, along with South, look for better competion with Roseville/ Brablec's decision pending, that would leave only four teams in the E.M.L.; not to mention the unstable position it would be in. Four teams are not enough for a league. What now, though?

South has been intrigued by the thought of joining the MAC, along with current member Grosse Pointe North. In the MAC, better competition is bred and only a few oormat teams would be around. Travel time would be less, and taking kids out of class just to make a game would be limited to only a handful of times each year. There would be more equity in competition as stronger E.M.L. teams would be matched up better. Weaker teams would be integrated into a division where they wouldn't get pushed around, and more contests for freshmen teams would be scheduled.

Under the current E.M.L. scheduling system, many vacancies occur when scheduled contests need to be cancelled because of lack of student/athlete participation.

In the annals of cross country, one would find North and South mentioned frequently. Within the pages of this year's book, one would also find that the girls' teams continued on course, while the boys' swapped positions.

A reversal of sorts took place last week, as the boys' team at South beat North, 22-34, for only the second time in five years. On the girls' course, North defeated South, 27-29, for the second time since 1986.

For years North's boys' team has dominated the Blue Devils, and the Lady Norsemen have won only on even-numbered years. This year, however, South's boys will own the city bragging rights, as will the Lady Norsemen.

"Getting by North for only the second time in five years proved that we can do what we want to this year," said South coach Tom Wise, "We have faced, and will face, tough teams. North is a tough team, but the kids did exactly what they had to do to win.

Wise's game plan, to allow North to reach a quick start, worked to perfection. As his top runners swiftly stayed on the Norsemen heels, North's runners jumped to an early lead that they regrettingly relinquished.

"We talked about letting them (North) get away and then picking them off one at a time," Wise said. "We started out slow and then got into our rhythm."

North, with an injury list much like that of an outpatient facility, has been running hobbled. Bob Straske, who finished third overall (17:04), saw his first action of the year; Ken Ferguson stress fracture in his foot; and John Petts, who finished sixth

(17:35), ran with a sore knee. "We've had out share of problems this year," said North coach Bob Collins, "Some years you have a down year, and I guess this is just our turn."

Tom Gauerke, who according to Collins has filled in nicely during Straske's four-week absence, was third overall (17:34).

"Tom has helped us out a great deal," Collins said, "He's had to actually pull most of the weight and he has responded quite well to it."

Tim Ballew's ninth-place time of 18:11 was the final count to the Norsemen total.

"I was very pleased with the way we ran because our times are coming down," Collins said. 'Although we lost, and we lost very soundly, the kids ran as well as I could ask.

Wise, on the other hand, saw his two top runners finish first and second, respectively. Mark Sonnenberg (16:38) and Phil Orton (16:52) gave the Devils an early bulge that Paul Heymes (17:12), Marty Kraft (17:38), and Dave Kerfoot (18:07) only added

"We have worked hard all season," Wise said. "The kids have always done what's expected of them and they are seeing some results.

South, 5-1 overall, was led by Sonnenberg and Orton, but Kraft, in his first year, now owns the freshman record.

"Marty is an excellent runner," Wise said. "I'm glad he'll be around for a few more years."

In the girls' race, the difference wasn't at the top of the list, but yet was a result of three Allison Liebold (21:02), Laurin Schultz (21:04) and Hope Peters (21:34) finished sixth, seventh and eighth for North, and that was one combination the previously unbeaten Lady Devils couldn't break.

"That was it," said North coach Charles Buhagiar, "In the last quarter mile I looked at Steve (South coach Steve Zaranek) and he looked at me and pointed at the girls and we both knew that would be the differ-

"They knew what they had to do," Zaranek said of the North group. "His (Buhagiar's) girls ran the best race I've seen them run all year. They really did a Liz Bolden, an all-state runner at North, finished first overall in a time of 19:40. After Bolden took the flag, South's Toni Tedesco (18:48), Julie Nichols (19: 56), and Elizabeth Kraft (20:13) added.

North's Nikki VanOppens (20: 39) took fifth overall.

"Allison led the charge, and Laurin and Hope went with her," recalled Buhagiar. "When they did that, it was the meet."

The last time South lost to North was in 1986. In 1987, however, North retaliated with a win, and that has been the tone ever since.

"We really just keep going back and forth," Zaranek said. "It always seems to be that the underdog coming in to the meet usually squeaks it out. It amazes me how close and competitive the girls are year after year."

Buhagiar shares those thoughts.

"Maybe the underdog wants it more," he chuckled. "I have a lot of respect for Steve and the program he runs at South. When we beat them, it's like beating one of the state's best teams.

"It's never easy when North and South compete," Buhagiar

It was bound to happen.

One of the state's top-rated tennis teams was going to lose when the South girls hosted the North girls Oct 6.

North entered the contest rated No. 2 in the Class A polls, and South was one step behind at No. 3. The margin of victory for South came when the No. 2 doubles team of Ann Tipp and Julie Wheeler beat North's Amy Austin and Alicia Lynch, 6-3,2-6.6-1, giving the Blue Devils a 4-3 win.

"It's nice to beat anyone," said South coach Stephanie Prybeen ranked ahead of us.'

Nobody felt more pressure than South's Stephanie Vititoe and North's Jennifer Galvin. After a marathon match of three hours and 45 minutes, Galvin managed to win the third set tie breaker, 7-5, to win the match at No. 3 singles.

The first set went to Vititoe, 6-3, but Galvin won the middle set 7-6 after winning the breaker, 7-

"Obviously that match could have gone either way," said Karen Cooksey, North's firstyear head coach. "I knew South would be strong going into the match, and I believe they just outplayed us.'

South oarsmen row well

After many years of Grosse Pointe South students rowing at the Detroit Boat Club, rowing officially became a club sport at South this fall.

The oarsmen celebrated their timely recognition with several victories over the past few weeks.

The crew traveled to London, Ont., on Sept 25 for the Head of the Thames and won a bronze medal in the Open Eight division. Oarsmen on that bronze ride were Jack McSorley, Ethan Dettmer, Steve Long, Brad Mc-Millan, Jamie Osborne, Aaron Pruss, Keith Wolter, Dave Tanay and Josh Flowers. Singlesculler Geoff Hannert performed admirably in the Open Single

On Oct. 1, the boys headed to Grand Rapids and competed in the Head of the Grand Regatta. The "eight" took on two challengers from St. John's of Toledo and Grand Valley State University to win the Junior Men's eight by 27 seconds. Singlescullers Hannert and Dettmer, finished first and second, respectively among a field of 15.

The crew has been preparing for the Head of the Charles in Boston, on Oct. 23.

However, after wins by Cathy Wachter (No. 2 singles) and the No. 1 doubles team of Amy Hathaway and Cindy Herman, Prychitko had reason to smile after leading 3-0.

"I was concerned about the last couple of matches," she said. "The first few matches went fast, but with four scores not reported yet, I was still very concerned.

North's Michelle Francis and Jennifer Schutzman of South drew a crowd with their match play on the No. 4 singles court. Francis took the match, 7-5, 7-5 to slice the Devils' lead to 3-2.

North's final win came from the No. 3 doubles team of Barb Thomas and Christine Bermudez. Bermudez and Thomas beat but they also have to remember South's Beth Bonanni and Holly Walker, 6-4, 7-6.

"Many of the matches could have gone either way," Cooksey said. "But South deserved to win because they simply beat us. We didn't play badly, but we didn't play our best."

"We're pleased we won, but we have to keep in mind that we will face them again in the regionals," Prychitko added.

North, which has yet to beat South since the two started formal competition in the early 1970s, will challenge South in the regionals Oct. 14-15, and maybe they can snap that streak of misfortune.

"This loss was not a big blow," Cooksey said. "Sure the girls would have liked to beat South because they've never done it before, but I think the girls played well.

"We didn't play well enough to win, but we will never say die after a loss," Cooksey said.

"Maybe, just maybe we can beat them at the regionals."

Before either team prepared for the regionals, they had to play in the league championships. South headed into those matches as the top seed and was looking for its 15th straight Eastern Michigan League title, and got it by tallying 48 points.

Lady Devils retain E.M.L. championship; gridders win, 13-6

A simple equation adding talented players and years of experience equaled a 15th straight Eastern Michigan League tennis title for the South girls' tennis team last week.

Again, as in the previous 14 wins, South took this one walking away. They totaled 48 points out of a possible 49 and had wins in six of the seven flights.

Port Huron Northern was second with 43 points, and Mount Clemens took a respectable

"It's been a very good season," Prychitko said. "I just hope we can do well at the regionals.'

The regionals will be held Oct. 14. South is the defending regional champion.

South (4-2, 4-1) remains one game back of league-leader Port as he capped a 65-yard drive Huron Northern with two league with his five-yard sprint. Weisgames left, but if they can con- sert topped it with an extra tain Anchor Bay and East Detroit the way they stopped the Bathers' Shawn Blanchett, there is a glimmer of hope they may repeat as Eastern Michigan League champs.

"We have really emphasized that after we lost to Port Huron Northern, that someone else would have to knock them off for us to at least tie," said Blue Devils coach Jon Rice. "We have to win the rest of our games (2) in the league and look for Northern to lose."

During the week of practice, South was concerned about blanketing premier runners Blanchett and Richard Palmer. While the defense may have worked overtime in the drills, the reward was pay enough.

"We balanced our practice between our offense and our defense," Rice said. "Sure we may have emphasized defense more at times, but when you're going up against two quality runners, you have to be prepared.

"We concentrated on keeping our people outside, to keep them (Blanchett and Palmer) inside," Rice added.

While the defense, which gave up 250 yards, was working on Blanchett, Jason Weissert booted two 32-yard field goals in the first quarter to give South a 6-0 lead after 12 minutes.

Neither Blanchett or Palmer scored on the day, but they continually remained a threat. However, linebackers Gil Waitkus and Marty Wayman were more than equal to the task.

"Gil and Marty were responsible for corralling them," Rice said. "We were fortunate enough that when they did get outside, somebody was able to bring them down."

The Bathers tied it in the second quarter after recovering a Devil football at South's 30-yard line. Lance Harding, who along with Rob Crane led the defense with 10 tackles, blocked the extra point and both teams entered the locker room tied at 6-6.

But in that second quarter South suffered another drastic blow when Montagne was knocked out of the game after rushing for 45 yards. He also had one touchdown that was called back. Scott Adlhoch filled in for Montagne and ran for 37

"At half time I made a decision that if we got into a jam we would put Steve (Rice) at fullback and put Jim West at halfback," Rice said, "and that's what it came down to.'

After a scoreless third quarter, South took over from its own 35 with eight minutes to play. Brian Letscher, who completed two passes to Rob Khoenle for 57 yards, mounted an attack led by Rice.

"I looked at Steve when we started that drive and told him it was going to be all him," Rice said, "and he more than responded.'

Rice, an elusive runner who for more than 100 yards, was on a mission to score. He owned the football and couldn't be stopped point.

"During the fourth quarter, we felt we were wearing them down," Rice said about the Bathers, "so we just told the kids to keep going after them and they

But, the Bathers weren't done as they drove looking for a tying score. Letscher, who replaced an injured Chris Stebbins in the defensive backfield, dashed the Bathers' hopes when he picked off a Lewis Pace pass at the South 15.

"We couldn't relax until it was all over," Rice said. "The kids really shut them down in the second half and our offense got rolling for us.

"When you face such a threatening attack with Blanchett and Palmer, you can't think you've won until the final horn.'

Offensively, South recorded 14 first downs en route to a total production of 271 yards.

"The offensive line is getting tougher all the time," Rice said. 'Mount Clemens played a hardnosed defense, but we moved the ball when we had to.'

South will host Anchor Bay on Oct. 15 in a 2 p.m. Homecoming contest. On Oct. 22, they will finish the E.M.L. portion of the schedule at East Detroit.

Soccer

A week of nail-biting games has left South coach John Case without an emery board.

Case's Devils nipped Notre Dame, 2-1, to start the week, and then lost 1-0 to North, slid past Roseville, 2-1, and then salvaged a 2-2 tie with University Liggett School.

"It has been a tough week," Case said.

Brink Cawley and Mike Woodruff provided the scoring punch in the win at Notre Dame, and Dave Birnbryer and Adam Prokop gave South the win against Roseville.

At home against ULS, South led 1-0 on an Anthony DeLuca tally, but ULS scored two unanswered goals, before Cawley's goal on an assist from Schomaker gave South the 2-2 tie.

South is 9-4-2.

Girls' cross country

After suffering its first dual meet loss of the year to North, South bounced back to take second place at the Heritage Invitational in Saginaw. South finished behind highly ranked Mount Pleasant.

In the jayvee race, South took nine of the top 15 positions. Medalists in that race were Cristy Gulesarian, Amy Keenan, Larisa Lindsay, Jeannie Schrage, Jenny Harmount, Lisa Manardo, Katie Taylor, Kim Zielke and Elizabeth Johnston.

South (15-1, 4-0) will wrap up the dual-meet season at home against Anchor Bay on Oct. 20.

Hetchler leads Norsemen to state golf match

Bob Hetchler, the senior golfer who has paced the Norsemen all season, will lead North to the state championship golf tourney Oct. 14 in East Lansing.

Hetchler, who played on last year's team which finished No. 10 in the state, shot a 78 which earned him a medal for second lowest total. Tony Giumetti carded an 82, and Paige Pelok drilled an 83 to add to North's 330 shot total at the regionals. As a team, North tied for second.

A few days before the regionals, Hetchler and Giumetti made the all-league team for rounds of 82 and 85 respectively, as North won the American League title of the Macomb Area Conference.

Jason Ziomek shot an 85 to help North to the title. Overall at the MAC championships, North finished third.

Coach Karen Cooksey's team rebounded from a 4-3 loss at South last week to win the Macomb Area Conference championship on Oct. 8 with 22 points.

Entering the tourney, all North girls, except for No. 2 singles player Christine Biretta who lost one match, were undefeated in league competition. Things didn't change much, as North won every flight except No. 1 singles.

"I was pretty confident the girls would do very well," said Cooksev.

Biretta took her title, while Jennifer Galvin (No. 3 singles) and Michelle Francis (No. 4 singles) celebrated wins as well.

Nancy Giftos and Sarah Morrow (No. 1 doubles) set the tone in doubles play with a win, while Amy Austin and Alicia Lynch (No. 2 doubles), and Barb Thomas and Christina Bermudez followed suit. The No. 4 doubles team of Nikki Tassos and Becky Devine are also league champi-

A patchwork defense and the continued punch of Charlie Stumb and Matt Brady combined to give the Norsemen a 16-7 win over host Warren Woods-Tower last Saturday.

Coach Frank Sumbera is suffering through what could be his worst season since 1981, and injury wise matters aren't any better for the 2-4 Norsemen.

Chuck Schultz, linebacker and running back, was out with a twisted ankle. Scott Schorer had to play inside linebacker, tackle Mark Azar is still out, and Kevin McCarron, who is still hampered by a sore ankle, hurt his back in the second half, but returned.

Still, North's defense limited the Titans to 179 total yards and six first downs.

"I thought we played very well defensively," Sumbern said.

"I don't think they (Woodsfrom us. We stunted inside and stuffed them, and when they ran outside we stopped them.'

Simon Kissonergis, Brad Bartos, who recovered a key fumble, and Ed Barbieri, who intercepted a pass, were inserted as defensive replacements who may now see more time.

"These kids just did the job," Sumbera said, "They haven't played much defense, but you wouldn't have known that by the way they performed."

Stumb and Brady, who are wide receivers on offense and have combined for 763 yards and seven touchdowns thus far, led the defense with 17 and 15 tackles, respectively.

"They are two good kids to have at the wide receiver spots," Sumbera said. "They not only play well offensively, but they turn around and play well on de fense. For them to do what they do shows their athletic abilities.

Bryan Ford, who according to Sumbera didn't have many tackles, was still the main cog in the defensive machine.

"Bryan had a big game on defense," Sumbera said. "He was the key for us because he created a lot of havoc in their (Woods-Tower) blocking scheme."

Bernhardt's 1,052 yards this year is the second highest total in North history. He trails Craig Como's record of 1,531, with three games left.

WWT tied the score in the second quarter and on the ensuing kickoff, a queer bounce went in favor of the Titans as they picked the football out of the air at the Norsemen 35.

"That was a big momentum change," Sumbera said. "We got our defense back on the field and they went for a big play and got it down to our 12.'

But then North buckled up and forced the Titans to go for a field goal. Jason DeYonker, who had 10 solo tackles, busted through the line and blocked the attempt.

"After that block we took over and moved the ball. Their touchdown didn't make me feel uneasy, because we were in control. We were moving the ball so I wasn't too concerned. North went 39 yards before being stopped by Woods-Tower with less than a minute to play in the first half, but Schorer gave North a 10-7 lead at the intermission by booting a 42-yard field goal.

'That was a big boost for our football team," Sumbera said. "It wasn't like they were stuffing us and we couldn't move the ball, so at halftime I didn't change a whole lot.

To start the third quarter, Tower) knew what to expect Woods Tower drove to the Norsemen 39. After forcing a fourthand one for the Titans, North's Brad Bartos pounced on a fumble after the entire defensive line forced the fumble.

"What a big play," Sumbera said. "Even if they wouldn't have fumbled, we would have stopped them because of our penetration [

After a scoreless third quarter, Bernhardt went up top to Brady for a 35-yard scoring strike, Brady's sixth of the season. Schorer's extra point was blocked, but North enjoyed a 16-7 lead.

"We had two chances to kick field goals, but I wasn't going to go into the final few minutes with a 13-7 lead," Sumbera said, 'so I went for it and unfortunately we got stopped. I gambled a bit because of how well our defense was playing.

Woods Tower's final attempt to get back in it ended when Barbieri intercepted a pass at his own 25.

"We made the big plays and our defense played the way it should have been playing," Sumbera said. "We totally dominated in the second half. We played strong and got the job done."

Feel good about Elvis in 'Heartbreak Hotel'

By Michael Chapp Special Writer

The first thing to keep in mind is that this could never, never ever have happened.

That said, the important thing about "Heartbreak Hotel" is that it's a warm, funny and exciting fairy tale about the late, great Elvis Presley.

It's clear from the beginning that director Chris Columbus doesn't intend viewers to accept the proceedings as a true chapter of the King's life. What Columbus does intend is that viewers have a good time.

And he most surely succeeds.

Of course, it's necessary for viewers to suspend their disbelief a little bit. We're asked to accept the fact that a few teenagers would have the chutzpah and ingenuity to lure Elvis outside his hotel room in the middle of the night. And that they'd have the guts to kidnap him, haul him back to Taylor, Ohio, and convince him to hang around long enough to cheer up a woman who doesn't have a whole lot left to live for.

Now OK. Elvis (played very convincingly by David Keith) wouldn't have had a free week to do whatever he wanted to do, especially not in Taylor, Ohio, and especially not in 1972, when this story takes place.

time out of his busy touring schedule. And away from whatever other things were occupying his time.

Film

Once he agrees to stick around and spend a bit of time in the quintessential American small town, with the quintessential American family (one parent, two kids), he starts to teach and learn — some lessons.

He teaches the youngster who kidnapped him about what it takes to be a man. He teaches a little girl what it takes to beat the nighttime jitters of childhood. And he teaches a woman how to live again. And how to enjoy life.

Meanwhile, he learns what it's like to be "Elvis the Pelvis" again; to be a rebel. He goes back to his rock and roll roots and re-discovers the joy of a musical tradition that lives in the guitars and drums of a young generation.

By the time the closing credits roll, everyone in the film has changed in some way. Everyone has learned a lesson or two. And despite the bittersweet flavor of But just for the fun of it, as- its conclusion, everyone is going
