

Christmas spirit thrives in Grosse Pointe schools

By John Minnis
Staff Writer

Santa Claus may live at the North Pole, but the Christmas spirit most certainly resides in the schools throughout Grosse Pointe.

All 14 of the schools in the district are involved in activities that will in some way bring Christmas joy to others, many of whom would not have had a holiday without the generosity of the students, teachers, administrators and parents of Grosse Pointe schools.

For nearly a decade, Grosse Pointe North High School has been providing a Christmas for 50 needy families a year, and this holiday season is no exception.

"This is a tradition at Grosse Pointe North," said student activities adviser Don Dungan. "It brings the students together. This is a total school effort and it's beautiful. It represents the real spirit of Christmas."

Dungan said the list of needy families is provided by the various schools in the district. St. Ambrose and St. Bernard churches and Goodale Elementary School is Detroit.

Each of the homerooms adopts a family from the list. The names, ages, clothing sizes of the children and any special needs of each family are given to the students. Each morning the students bring gifts for their respective families. The gifts include food, clothing and toys.

On Dec. 20 four students from each homeroom and a parent distributed the food to the families or the schools and churches that nominated the families.

At South High School the sophomore, junior and senior classes have each adopted their

Christmas around the world

"Joyeux Noel," "Feliz Navidad" and "Bon Natale" were greetings practiced by fourth-graders in Carol Bartos' class at Richard School all month in preparation for their trip to the Whittier Tower Retirement Home. On Monday 24 students went to the home to entertain the residents with holiday songs and carols from other countries. The students prepared short talks on traditions in 13 countries, and several children wore costumes of the country they represented. The students show off the Christmas ornaments they made, and the bags of food they brought for the residents. Many of the ornaments were made in the Polish tradition by tying a piece of wheat to them. Wheat signifies life. This was the class' second trip to the home. In October they brought Halloween to the residents.

... its service project for the season. Grosse Pointe South's sophomore class collected blankets and sheets for the homeless in the area. "We were surprised with the big response," said one of the members of the council who organized the blanket drive. In total, some 150 blankets were donated by the sophomore class, neighbors and staff members. They were taken to the Coalition on Temporary Shelter (COTS) in Detroit and various inner city churches by the students above. Pointer of Interest Helen Iveson

By Margie Reins Smith

On Christmas Day, Helen Iveson visited her grandparents at their farmhouse near Lakeshore and Kerby roads. She traveled there in a horse-drawn open sleigh.

Before the Ivesons left home, Helen and her sister and brother were tenderly bundled and snuggled beneath a huge brown buffalo-skin blanket. It was usually bitterly cold, snowy and windy and the ride was a slow-paced mile or two. She was about 9 years old.

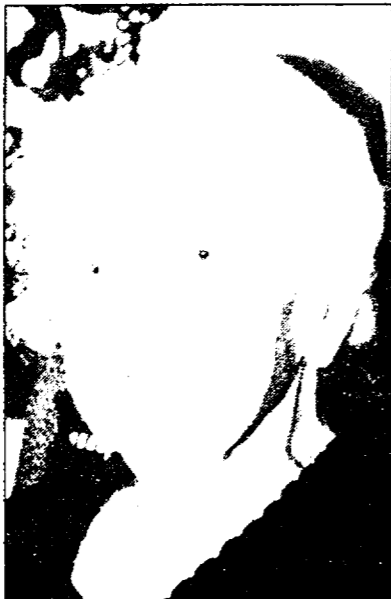

"My grandparents had a beautiful Christmas tree, decorated with strings of popcorn, and lighted candles. We lit the candles for just a little while -- then put them out," she said. "That was before electricity."

"Everyone had gifts to play with or to wear. I remember a string of beads that I thought was just beautiful."

Iveson will be 29 years old in April. The Christmas Day in Grosse Pointe that she recalled with such fondness was probably around 1908.

Iveson's father, Alfred Auck, had, as an Englishman who settled in Grosse Pointe. Her mother, Martha McLean, grew up on the McMillan farm, which ran from the shores of Lake St. Clair far back into what is now Grosse Pointe Woods.

The farmhouse she remembers was the McLeans'. "The whole family always got together on Christmas. My mother played the organ at church and so my grandparents had bought an organ, which was in the living room. My mother played Christmas songs and hymns."

She said the house was warmed by coal stoves -- one in the sitting room -- another in the dining room. "The stove had a singlass in front of it and it looked really pretty. We hung our Christmas stockings on door-knobs or around the room because there was no fireplace."

"The children liked to go to grandfather's," she said, "because we played hide-and-seek upstairs. I have happy memories of childhood Christmases."

This Christmas season Iveson and her family celebrated a week early. It was her turn to host the gathering, so last Sunday she departed from the tradi-

Police security cameras approved for Woods parks

By John Minnis
Staff Writer

Visitors to Ghesquiere Park in Grosse Pointe Woods will be monitored and taped by police, according to action taken by the City Council Monday night.

The approval for installation of surveillance cameras came in response to vandalism and intimidating groups of young people at the park. Councilwoman Jean Rice said the city plans on installing cameras at Lakefront Park in the future as well.

"I am very much in support of this," Rice said of the camera surveillance. "There's a lot of vandalism. We need to discourage that sort of thing."

She said the new gazebo at Ghesquiere Park has been repeatedly vandalized. The gazebo has also been taken over by teenagers for boxing matches and gatherings, she said.

Once several teenagers were sitting in a circle in the gazebo, Rice said, and others were lying down around the circle. She said she didn't know what the young people were up to. On another occasion a resident reported seeing children riding bicycles on top of the gazebo, Rice said.

The congregations of rowdy children and teenagers have an intimidating effect on others who want to use the park, she said.

Rice also said there have been reports of strangers watching and approaching children who were playing at the park.

While the surveillance cameras were not instigated by police requests, Public Safety Director Jack Patterson said he is in favor of the security measures.

"It gives us extra eyes in the park," he said. "It will certainly provide more coverage." Patterson said the cameras will also have a deterring effect on vandalism and other inappropriate behavior.

Two cameras with zoom lenses will be installed at Ghesquiere Park. They will be placed north-east of the gazebo and northeast of the tot lot, Patterson said, which will provide total coverage of the park.

The cameras will be connected to individual monitors in the public safety dispatcher's area in the police station at City Hall on Mack. Ghesquiere Park is behind City Hall.

The equipment is being installed and leased from J&K Alarm Co. of Sterling Heights. The installation will cost $5,885. The lease will run the city $198.50 a month for three years, after which time the city can extend the lease, purchase the equipment or return it.

Patterson recommended leasing the equipment since the lease price was the same as a maintenance agreement if the city were to purchase the equipment. He said the cost of leasing included all maintenance and upgrading of the equipment.

J&K Alarm has provided several alarm services for the city over the past five years and has more than fulfilled its agreements with the city, Patterson said.

The council approved Patterson's recommendation, but added a few provisions of its own.

At the urging of Rice, Patterson will make sure the surveillance equipment can be connected to a 24-hour videotaping machine similar to those used in banks. She said the dispatcher cannot continuously watch the park monitors, and a tape could identify vandals, if the dispatcher misses them.

Councilman William Wilson requested that signs be put up at the entrances to the park warning visitors that they will be monitored by closed-circuit television. His fellow council members agreed.

While the council approved the installation and leasing of the cameras the contract has yet to be worked out by the city attorney.

A holiday treat

In keeping with the gift-giving season, the Grosse Pointe News is happy to present a special holiday treat to its readers this year.

"Santa's Double Shift," a holiday story in the tradition of yesterday updated to today, was written by staff writer Ronald J. Bernas. Turn to page 12A for the tale of a Santa who has lost the Christmas spirit.

We hope it will bring a smile to your face and a little bit of holiday cheer to a cold winter's night.

Happy holidays from all of us at the Grosse Pointe News

Shores home burglarized; safe taken

A house on South Edgewood in Grosse Pointe Shores was broken into and a safe containing about $34,000 in cash, checks and personal papers was taken Dec. 9.

According to Shores Public Safety Department reports, the resident left the home at 6:30 p.m. and returned at 8:30 p.m. to find someone had broken in.

Police discovered the thief had gained entry into the home through a bathroom window. The burglar pushed a lawn chair under the window, cut the screen out and pushed the window up.

Personal papers in an office were gone through, but nothing was taken.

A Grambil safe was taken from a hallway closet. According to the police report, the safe contained cash, coins, checks, stock certificates and personal papers. The value of the contents of the safe was estimated at $34,000.

Shores police were given the names of two possible suspects.

We've been good, Santa

With Christmas quickly approaching, Santa has been busy hearing the wishes of all the boys and girls — big and small. Seated with Santa in the Kresge Court at the Detroit Institute of Arts are Doris Affeldt (Grandma), Patricia Kelly (Mom), and Caitlin Kelly, who is a student in Grosse Pointe pre-kindergarten. The DIA is the official Detroit home of Santa after the Thanksgiving Parade and before he sets out on his rounds Christmas Eve. Children like Caitlin can have Breakfast with Santa Tuesday through Saturday at 9:45 a.m. Or they can have a Snack with Santa on Saturday and Sunday. Reservations are required for Breakfast with Santa and tickets cost $5 per person. For information, call 832-2730.

own Christmastime project.

The sophomores are collecting blankets for the needy and the homeless, and with the extreme cold temperatures already experienced this year, the blankets are needed and appreciated.

The juniors are having a clothing drive to provide clothing for four families. The clothes were delivered to the families Wednesday.

The seniors are providing the gift of music by caroling. Earlier this month 12 seniors went to the Children's Home of Detroit to put up a Christmas tree, have a party and distribute gifts.

The seniors are also selling Christmas cards made by students in the Latchkey program, and the Latin Club at South is collecting and wrapping books for the Gift of Reading program.

And if anyone can do it, the Grosse Pointe middle schools can.

Parcells added an interesting twist to canned food drives. The junior high school held a dance Dec. 9, and the admission price was a can of food. The food will be distributed through the Operation Can Do program.

Pierce Middle School collected canned goods for Crossroads, a social service unit of the Cathedral Church of St. Paul that provides emergency assistance and service for needy people.

The middle school is also collecting money for the Gift of Reading program. The funds raised were taken to Waldenbooks, and the gifts were wrapped and delivered Tuesday.

Brownell Middle School put up its annual Mitten Tree, and students bring in mittens for needy children and adults. The Student Council also had a band made up of students entertain their classmates. Admission to the performance was a canned good to be distributed to the needy.

All nine of the Grosse Pointe elementary schools chipped in to provide a Christmas for the less fortunate.

Eight of the nine schools are collecting for LINC, which stands for Linking Individuals to Needs in the Community. LINC distributes donated merchandise to individuals and organizations. Some of the items distributed by LINC include clothes, books, blankets and toys.

The schools collecting for LINC are Defer, Ferry, Kerby, Maire, Monteith, Mason, Poupard and Richard.

The Defer Student Council and Library Club are coordinating book purchases for the Gift of Reading program.

Henry Pichla's first-grade class at Ferry Elementary School is giving one-year subscriptions of the large-print Reader's Digest to the visually impaired. Kindergartners at the school went caroling.

First-graders at Poupard went caroling at Cottage-Belmont Nursing home on Dec. 16 and 20.

Trombly Elementary School collected toys and clothing for Crossroads.

While each school is doing its own small part to help the lives of the less fortunate at Christmas, the combined effort of all the schools in the district is formidable and helps a great number of people.

Executive secretary Kathleen Check in Superintendent John Whritner's office said the school district has never compiled data on just how food, clothing and other assistance the schools in the district have provided at Christmas.

The total dollar value of all the students' efforts would be substantial, not to mention the social value when it is needed most — at Christmas.

Winter survival camp offered

The Living Science Foundation will conduct a winter survival camp for students next week at Barnes School. Campers will investigate the mysteries of migration, hibernation and adaptations for staying in the cold.

The camp, to run Tuesday through Thursday, Dec. 27-29, will have a different theme each day:

- Dec. 27 — Winter Skies — experience the winter sky in the comfort of Skylab, a transportable planetarium.

- Dec. 28 — Ice and Snow — explore world weather patterns, the sunniest place on earth and the least sunny place.

- Dec. 29 — Animal Survival — discover how a chinchilla's hair is different and how birds stay warm in the coldest environments. Make a bird feeder.

Campers should wear comfortable indoor and outdoor clothing. Children will be working with live animals and science equipment daily. Snacks and drinks will be provided, but bring a sack lunch.

The Living Science Foundation is a non-profit education organization recognized for its efforts in bringing science to life by introducing hands-on learning to elementary schoolchildren.

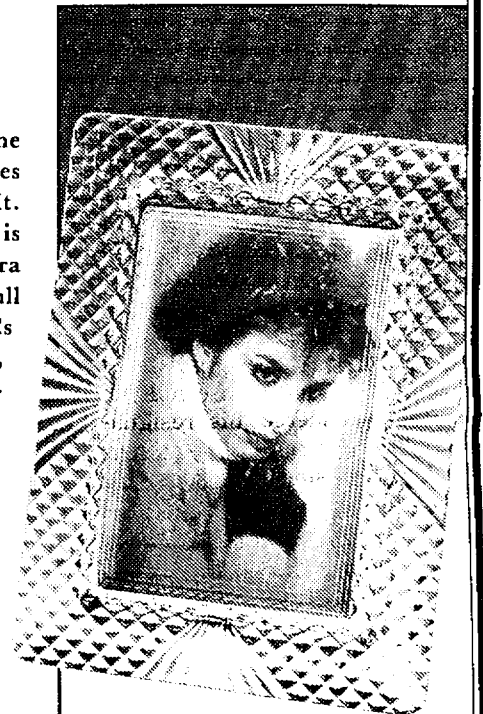

Camps are staffed and supervised by Living Science interpreters, professionals with classroom experience. The camper/staff ratio of 8 to 1 ensures individual attention.

The cost is $40 a day or $100 for the three days. For more information, call Community Education at 343-2178.

Soundings indicate Milk River dredging is required

By John Minnis
Staff Writer

Water-depth soundings conducted by the Grosse Pointe Woods city engineer last month indicate dredging at the mouth of the Milk River is necessary to accommodate a significant number of the boats at Lakefront Park.

The Woods City Council has been trying since September to determine how much dredging at the harbor needs to be done due to lower lake levels. There was some question at a Recreation Committee meeting last month as to whether dredging was needed for most boaters or for just a few owners of sailboats with fixed keels.

Last month the council ordered city engineer Laurence Pate, of Pate, Hirn and Bogue, to conduct soundings at the harbor to determine the need for dredging and the best possible route for a channel.

Pate's soundings along his proposed dredging route show that on a direct line eastward from the tip of Lakefront Park to the end of the Shore Club Apartments peninsula, the water depths vary from 1.7 feet to 3.8 feet below the low-water datum.

The Lake St. Clair low-water datum, often referred to by boaters as the chart datum, is 571.7 feet above the mean water level at Father Pointe, Quebec. According to the Army Corps of Engineers' monthly water-level report, Lake St. Clair's elevation at the end of November was 573.35 feet, or 1.7 feet (20 inches) above the low-water datum.

Adding the 1.7 feet to Pate's soundings shows that actual water depth along Pate's proposed channel ranges from 3.4 to 5.5 feet as of the end of November.

Based on city records, 93 of the 224 boats moored at Lakefront Park last week have drafts of 3 feet or more. Forty-nine of the boats registered at Lakefront Park are sailboats.

Mayor Pro Tem Robert Novitke said the soundings and the draft requirements indicate that dredging is needed for a majority of the boaters.

Novitke said, however, that the actual location of the dredging hasn't been approved by the council yet. He said the council at its Dec. 12 meeting directed Pate to get a core sample from his proposed dredging route to determine the soil makeup and whether there are any contaminants present.

The type of soil to be dredged — hard clay vs. sand, for example — will have an effect on how much the dredging will cost, Novitke said, and if any contaminants such as mercury are present then the soil will have to be taken to a special landfill, adding to the cost.

Pate proposes dredging a channel 120 feet wide and 1,200 feet long through the bay area at Lakefront Park. He said the depth of the channel will be about the same as the depth of the natural channel of the Milk River.

According to Pate's figures and the Army Corps of Engineers' lake-level report, the actual depth of water in the Milk River channel was about 6 feet as of the end of November. Pate's proposed dredging would be to a depth of 4.2 feet below the low-water datum, which if completed at the end of November would have provided an actual water depth of 5.8 feet. Pate's dredging route would require the removal of some 8,000 cubic yards of soil at an estimated cost of $184,000. The city of Grosse Pointe Woods would like to have property owners along canals in St. Clair Shores who would benefit from the dredging to help foot the bill at a prorated per-dock basis.

To expedite the process, Pate has sent an application to the Corps of Engineers for a permit to do the dredging. Novitke said the application was sent in to save time if the council approves the city engineer's dredging route.

According to the application, the dredging would be started in May and be completed by November.

Novitke said the council has yet to meet with Pate to discuss the merits of his dredging plan.

Shores president resigns; trustee follows suit

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe Shores Village Council received resignations from two of its members Tuesday morning and appointed a third as interim president.

Village President Gerald C. Schroeder tendered his resignation effective Dec. 31 due to personal and business reasons. He had announced his intentions to resign in October.

Edmund M. Brady Jr. and Daniel R. Beck were then nominated to fill the final months of Schroeder's term until the election in May. Brady was subsequently elected by a 4-2 vote.

Beck said he felt the process was improper and he resigned.

Both Beck and Trustee Patricia Galvin, who nominated Beck, said Schroeder hand-picked his successor and maneuvered other trustees into voting for Brady. They said Schroeder told trusttees that Beck's career responsibilities and the amount of travel he does for his company would keep him from filling the position adequately, and that Beck had said he did not want the position of president.

Schroeder denied the charges and would not comment on their allegations.

"I don't want any friction," Schroeder said.

In a letter of resignation Beck presented to the board, written in anticipation of the vote, he wrote, "because I decry the activities of the past six weeks following the announcement of President Schroeder's retirement effective Dec. 31, 1988, I hereby submit my resignation as a member of the Board of Trustees of the Village of Grosse Pointe Shores. This community deserves more than a fractious governing body."

"I regret Mr. Beck's resigning," said Schroeder, who has served the council for 34 years, the last 17 as president. He added, "the council has not accepted it yet. The meeting was adjourned before voting on Beck's resignation. 'What they (Beck and Galvin) suggest is not true. I made a suggestion to the board and she took it as me pressuring them. I did not pressure anyone," he said.

Galvin called Schroeder "manipulative" and said he was guilty of "backroom dealings and sleazy politics" in hand-picking Brady.

"I am not for Beck or against Brady. What I am for is the process and letting the trustees choose, and not being pressured into a decision," Galvin said. "That's what we are — trustees. We should be trusted to make a decision that is best for the residents of the city."

After the meeting, Beck said, "You can't be critical of a process and be a part of it. The board will heal and go on. I just didn't want this to be perpetuated."

Galvin said, "Dan Beck has had a distinguished career, and it's a shame he has to end it this way. His attendance record is exemplary in his 20 years on the board."

Brady said he was "disappointed" with Beck's resignation and will miss him on the board; "He's a valuable asset for the village."

He also said that any allegations of manipulation on Schroeder's part are "ridiculous. I knew Schroeder was in support of my candidacy, but I am confident all the trustees voted their own minds. I feel very strongly about that."

He said Schroeder's shoes will be tough to fill, but that he is looking forward to the challenge.

Stroh official to speak on historic restoration

Gary Krause, Stroh River Place Properties vice president of administration and planning, will speak on "Stroh River Place: An Historic Restoration" at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 19, at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore. The talk will be held in the Women's Lounge.

Gary Krause

Krause will discuss the Stroh restoration of the former Parke-Davis Pharmaceutical complex, which dates from the 1870s to its new use as North America's largest multi-building mixed-use historic preservation project.

A Michigan native, Krause is a graduate of Michigan State University, holding both bachelor's and master's degrees in urban planning. Prior to joining the Stroh River Place organization in 1984, he worked with the Southeastern Michigan Transportation Authority (SEMTA) for seven years.

There is a $3 admission fee for non-members to attend the talk; Grosse Pointe Historical Society members will be admitted free. For additional information, call 884-7010.

The Grosse Pointe Historical Society was founded in 1945, reorganized in 1979 and now has more than 500 members. The society's goal is to preserve Grosse Pointe's rich heritage by increasing awareness of the area's history and by educating residents through lectures, workshops and field trips.

Purse snatched

Three men in a car grabbed a woman's purse as she was exiting her automobile in the 1400 block of Lakepointe Dec. 16 at 4 a.m.

According to a Park police report, one of the suspects grabbed the 31-year-old woman's purse and when she resisted, two other men helped the first man wrestle the purse away from her.

The suspects fled south in their vehicle.

Last week Park police reported a Dec. 8 purse snatching in which a 76-year-old woman's purse was taken after she was approached by two men in a van. Police would not speculate as to whether the two snatchings may have been related.

Wrapping crew

Defer students, responding to the Detroit Free Press-sponsored Gift of Reading book drive, bought 160 new books for children under 7. Gathering for a wrap party in the Defer library Dec. 14 were 45 students and 15 parents. Fueled by four gallons of apple juice and six batches of party mix, the crew inserted bookplates and wrapped and tagged the books in one hour. They used 800 square feet of wrapping paper. Book plates and gift tags were provided by the Free Press. Refreshments and wrapping paper were donated by the Defer PTO.

At the top, Lisa Dozier and Emily Richard are engrossed in their tasks, as is Jack Brunner, right. Below, Lynn Miller helps Elena Callas and Emily Buckler wrap some books.

122 trees planted through annual Woods program

The Grosse Pointe Woods Advisory Commission recently completed the planting of 122 trees in the city through its annual fall program.

The plantings take place each November on the public easements between the sidewalk and curb in front of residents' homes.

The trees chosen by the commission included sweetgum, red oak, Japanese pagoda, hornbeam, little leaf linden and the aristocrat pear.

These trees were selected because of their hardness in a city environment and their resistance to salt, smog, other pollutants and disease. The trees must also add to the diversity of tree species within the city.

Homeowners receiving this year's trees were given a letter from the commission describing the species of the trees planted in front of their homes and an outline for the care of the trees.

The Tree Advisory Commission has been in existence since 1978 and has been involved with the annual tree plantings for most of those years, said commission member Russell DuRoss. The city pays for the trees and the cost of planting them.

The locations for the new trees are provided by residents requesting a tree or by the commission members who drive around the city looking for good tree locations.

Information about next year's tree plantings can be obtained by calling the Grosse Pointe Woods Public Works Department at 343-2460.

State records losses along with victories

It is the nature of politicians to accent the positive, to say that the cup is half-full rather than half-empty and, in general, to feature their achievements and play down their defeats.

In those respects, the "Highlights of 1988 Accomplishments" just released by Gov. James Blanchard's office is a traditional publication that seeks to put as high a gloss as possible on Michigan's record for the past year.

Thus the administration's document says that 130,000 new jobs were created, unemployment was reduced, the number of Michigan men and women at work reached an all-time high and welfare rolls dropped to their lowest levels in a decade. It adds that the unemployment rate dropped to 7.4 percent, more than 1.5 points lower than experts predicted.

What the report does not say, however, is that the Michigan unemployment rate is still well above the national rate of 5.4 percent and that it is the highest of the large-est industrial states. Such figures also belong in any objective view of the state's progress, although they don't show up in the administration's public relations document.

With respect to school finance reform, the document repeats the governor's own contention that he "broke a month-long legislative logjam by unveiling a plan to cut and constitutionally limit school property taxes" and "to improve schools while making financing local schools more equitable." The report concedes that while the governor's plan did not receive final legislative approval, "it has provided a framework for future action."

Despite the governor's claims, legislative leaders in both parties were furious with the governor for announcing his own plan while they were near final agreement on their own program. In addition, while his own plan was similar to the one which the Legislature was considering, he torpedoed any hope for adequate funding by advocating a single cent increase in the sales tax rather than the 2-cent boost that the Legislature was all but agreed upon.

With respect to human services, the governor's report brags that welfare rolls dropped to their lowest levels in a decade, declining by 54,000 people during the year. Yet it is also true that welfare and other human services programs are being asked to take further cuts in the budget for the coming year, some as deep as 17 percent, although the governor himself terms proposed reductions "modest."

The governor's report lauds the new Transportation Economic Development Fund for spurring state and local road construction projects, but does not mention the terrible condition of many state highways and bridges. Nor does he mention that he himself stopped any legislation to improve the state's transportation arteries by publicly opposing any state gasoline tax increase.

At the same time, in an interview with Detroit reporters, he suggested that a federal gas tax increase might be a way to reduce the federal deficit, as has been proposed in Washington. He said that would give President-elect George Bush "a little wriggle room" to deal with the deficit problem.

Yet state highways officials, including his own, have stoutly opposed using the gasoline tax for federal debt reduction, on the grounds that such a move would violate the tradition that the revenues from the use tax on gasoline should be used to benefit the nation's transportation system.

From these examples, readers can conclude that there are at least two sides to the story of Michigan's accomplishments in 1988 and that, despite the governor's efforts to burnish the state's image, there still are many problems ahead in financing and in meeting the state's needs in such areas as education, welfare and highways.

As we said at the outset, it is the nature of politicians to be optimistic about their own performance, but we think it is also realistic to review some of the downsides of an administration that has many blind spots when it pretends to address the state's problems.

A Christmas hope for peace

In what may have been his final presidential press conference, Ronald Reagan expressed the hope of the world for peace as he praised President Mikhail Gorbachev's "happy and historic visit to the United States."

"It was in this spirit," the president went on, "that yesterday I presented Mr. Gorbachev a memento of our first meeting: an inscribed photo of the walk we took together in Geneva in 1985. The inscription read simply: 'We have walked a long way together to clear a path for peace.'"

"And so we have. It was exactly one year ago today that an event here in this room spoke to the epoch-making nature of what had been achieved: the signing of the first treaty to eliminate an entire class of U.S. and Soviet nuclear missiles. Even in the short year since then, we've had the Moscow summit and Mr. Gorbachev's visit here.

"In our negotiating agenda of regional conflicts, human rights, bilateral exchanges and arms reduction, we've seen a serious movement and even some breakthroughs. And yesterday's address to the United Nations by President Gorbachev was not only a part of this process, it was the result of this process and I congratulate him on it. . . .

"As I said yesterday, this means our responsibilities have grown not less but more serious. We must remain resolute and without illusion. We must speak candidly about fundamental points of difference. We must especially maintain our military strength, but we must also continue our course of vigorous diplomatic engagement.

"I cannot tonight attempt to put all these events in perspective, or still less to claim credit for any person or administration. Let it be enough to say this, that since 1985, extraordinary things have happened, and nothing more extraordinary than the sight yesterday of a president of the United States and a future president of the Soviet Union standing together in New York Harbor under the protective gaze of the Statue of Liberty.

"Our hope, our prayer, remains the same as that heard on the lips of so many millions who looked up once, as we did yesterday, to see the outstretched lamp of Liberty and who felt for the first time its warmth and glow: a prayer that someday freedom will light the world and become the blessing and birthright of every people, everywhere."

In those few words, the Great Communicator expressed a hope shared by most people in the world: that peace, one of the promised gifts of Christmas down through the centuries, finally could be delivered as a result of the progress made during his White House years.

It was, we think, one of the finest moments of the Reagan presidency.

Letters

For a brighter tomorrow

The following was written to Barbara Bush and is reprinted here by request of the writer.

I am writing to urge you to lend your support during your husband's term of office to support research and treatment of the severely mentally ill.

I am a mother of three children, actually three adults, one of whom has severe mental illness. My oldest son Mike, age 35, is currently in an experimental program for schizophrenia and dialysis. He and I both read a book, "Welcome Silence" by Carol North. It was her account of dealing with schizophrenia and finally trying dialysis. She was able to turn to school — she became a doctor and a psychiatrist. Mike was hopeful that the dialysis would help him achieve even some very minor goals, one of which was to support himself through a job. Even after talking to Carol North who indicated that the prognosis for men was only 20 percent as opposed to 60 percent for women, he was eager to try. He said, "But, Mom, for an incurable disease, those are fantastic odds!"

Returning from a visit with Mike and the doctor and I can tell you there are tears in my heart and eyes. I helped him clean his apartment which showed a disastrous disease at work — cereal on the table that was encrusted in the dish and on the table, peanut butter and jelly, probably fairly recent vintage, spilled egg yolks of a bygone era, five pans blackened and filled with left-over food dried up, an onion blooming in the refrigerator — the list could go on and the debris is now cleaned for another couple of months.

I encouraged him to tackle these things as they happen and he assured me he would.

I talked to the manager of the apartment and she asked me to stop in her office. She said Mike's personal hygiene was bothering some of the tenants.

Mike comes from a professional family who has none of the above problems. His problem stems from a biochemical disease and a disease that has not received anything but "bad press" and little money.

I belong to a local Alliance for the Mentally Ill and hear the sad stories of families that are affected by the disease. It takes its financial and emotional toll.

Mental illness accounts for one-fourth of the hospital beds in use and it only receives a pittance in looking for a cure or management of the disease.

I am enclosing a prayer my son Mike wrote and I again urge you to use your influence to help those who have the disease and also help to eradicate the stigma attached to a disease they did not create.

For a brighter tomorrow, I look to a time when my grandchildren can be assured they can grow to be productive individuals with good health.

Half a loaf better than none

Apparently on the theory that half a loaf is better than none, Michigan news media representatives have welcomed a new libel protection law introduced by Rep. William R. Bryant Jr. of Grosse Pointe and approved by the Legislature in its closing hours.

The new law restored part of the protection that the media lost in a 1986 Supreme Court decision that held that persons who believed they had been libeled by a published or broadcast report needed to show only negligence on the part of the news organization involved in the case.

Under Bryant's proposal, public figures suing print or broadcast media for libel are required to prove malice, meaning deliberate falsehood or reckless disregard of the truth, but the requirement that they needed to prove only negligence has been dropped. However, private citizens who believe they have been libeled still need to

Yule thanks

As the Yule season approaches its climax, we suggest that Pointers express their thanks to city employees and others who served us so well during the year with a modest gift, a Christmas card or just a cheery word.

We refer to the people who police our streets, protect us from fires, maintain our parks and streets and water supplies, collect our trash, deliver our mail, toss the daily papers at our doors, read the meters and perform the many other services that contribute to the high quality of life in the Grosse Pointes.

show only negligence on the part of the media in publishing false information.

"The legislation is fair to people who really may be damaged by a bad mistake or intentional action of the media, but it also provides the protections that are necessary to encourage the media to provide information to the public which the public needs and has as right to know," Bryant told The Detroit News.

The new statute also limits awards for libel to actual economic damages, removing the possibility of compensation for emotional or punitive damages.

Representatives of the Detroit News and Free Press welcomed the legislation. Herschel Fink, an attorney for the Free Press as well as WXYZ in Detroit, said the bill is helpful because it limits damages strictly to economic ones. But he also indicated the public would have been better served by restoring the malice standard for private persons as well public figures.

The bill's importance rests on the fact that in stories about public figures, a phrase which includes public officials and most politicians, the media are protected against libel suits when they make simple errors that could be regarded as evidence of negligence, even though they still are liable for damages if malice can be shown.

The news media regard themselves, and with some justification, as watchdogs of government and public affairs but they need some protection against public figures who resent the actions of prying reporters who are simply doing what they regard as their duty to keep the public informed.

The Christmas gift

Weeks before Christmas, I would drag a kitchen chair over to the closet off the front room, stand on it and pull down a songbook of Christmas carols that was on the top shelf.

Then night after night, I would sit on the sofa, singing Christmas carols. It was my way of preparing for the season when I was a child.

With the years came responsibilities — a husband, children, an extended family — and preparing for the holiday became more frenzied and frantic.

The days before Christmas that were so agonizingly long when I was a child were now too short. A month is no longer enough time to get everything done — shopping, wrapping, writing cards, cooking and baking — all in addition to the regular things, like cleaning and washing clothes and ironing and making dinner and putting in a full day at work.

Christmases have become a blur of running here and there, and when it's over, feeling exhausted and sometimes depressed.

But something happened this year that derailed me.

Christmas was the last thing on my mind as I watched my husband wheeled into an operating room for emergency heart surgery a couple of weeks ago. I didn't think of Christmas once when he was hooked up to space-age machines that were constantly giving digital readings and the mass of tubes leading to his body looked like a pile of spaghetti.

The first time I thought of Christmas was when he was being transferred from intensive care to a room. The anaesthesiologist who was part of the operating team stopped to chat with us a few minutes. He told me that I was given the best Christmas present I will ever get.

I Say

I have been struck since then by the number of people who have told me the same thing. They're right. This will be the best Christmas I ever had.

If I thought I was behind in Christmas preparations before, now I'm doubly behind. So the cookies will be store-bought. So what. So the gifts won't get any ribbon to finish them off. So what. I decorated a tree and very little else this year. Most of the decorations will stay in their boxes for another year. Who cares.

I've been so focused on getting everything done that I lost sight of the meaning of Christmas, which is to share the spirit of the season with those you love best. The meaning of Christmas is also recognizing that the people dearest to you are gifts and not one of them comes with a guarantee. And it's true that our most precious gifts cannot be wrapped and put under a tree.

It's less than a week before Christmas and the cards I bought to send are still in their boxes. The stamps I got a month ago are on top of the boxes. In fact, I have never been so unprepared for Christmas before, but it doesn't really matter. I plan to enjoy it all.

The upside of all of this is if I don't get to the cards, I may not have to buy another stamp all year long. And when it comes time to take down the decorations, I will be through in record time.

To the team of doctors affiliated with the Detroit Heart Institute at Detroit Osteopathic Hospital, thank you for the best Christmas I will have.

To Dr. Gordon, the anaesthesiologist who refused to take any credit for his part in the surgery but said the credit belongs instead to a higher power, thank you for helping me to understand the real meaning of Christmas.

And to you, I wish you a Christmas surrounded by the people who mean the most to you. And if you've lost someone very close, then I wish you peace.

Yesterday's Headlines

Dec. 24, 1959 —

The New York Times reported that peace on earth was Pope John XXIII's Christmas message. He asked Catholics the world over to work together to remove all causes of war.

The Earl of Halifax, Britain's foreign secretary at the time of the Munich Agreement and ambassador to Washington during the second world war, died. He was 78.

The state department disclosed it was using its influence in Baghdad and Tehran to persuade both sides in the Iran-Iraq war to negotiate an amicable settlement of their border dispute.

Union Local 2272 of the United Steel Workers of America in Pittsburg won a court battle as a federal district judge ordered the United States Steel Corp. to give its employees the day off on Christmas.

The Singer Manufacturing Co. vowed it would fight an anti-trust suit which accused it of attempting to block the importation of Japanese automatic sewing machines which could zig-zag stitching.

A six-year study of Greenwich, Conn. teens ended and led police there to conclude "teen-aged drivers are better drivers than most people think."

Rock Hudson was voted the top box office star of the year, thanks in part to his great success in "Pillow Talk." He was followed by Cary Grant, James Stewart, Doris Day, Debbie Reynolds, Glenn Ford, Frank Sinatra, John Wayne, Jerry Lewis and Susan Hayward.

Yul Brynner (with hair) and Gina Lollobrigida starred in "The Mightiest Motion Picture Ever Created." It was "Solomon and Sheba." The trade journals reported that the Christmas party scene in the Billy Wilder movie, "The Apartment," starring Jack Lemmon and Shirley Maclaine took nine days to film at a cost of $175,000, making it one of the most expensive scenes in movies to date.

In Grosse Pointe, three young boys carried on a holiday tradition by chopping their own Christmas tree. The only problem was that they didn't cut it down at a farm, but rather from the backyard of a house on Hunt Club Drive.

Prominent civic leader, statesman and philanthropist Dexter M. Ferry's will was filed in probate court. He had died earlier in the month and his estate was valued at $10 million. He left money to his children, land to the D.M. Ferry Trustee Corp., a philanthropic trust, four paintings to the Detroit Institute of Art Founders Society.

Three teenage boys were hauled in for questioning by the City police when a resident complained they were trespassing on his land. They were Christmas caroling.

The Detroit City Ballet was performing Prokofiev's "Cinder-

Christine Kurap, Brownell seventh-grader, won the jellybeans this year.

And the African Wildlife Foundation is $250 richer.

Brownell social studies teacher Rufus McGaugh held his annual jellybean jar drawing recently for the ninth or tenth year in a row.

Tickets were 25 cents each. Rufus' rules are that the winner must be a kid, although adults are allowed — yea, encouraged — to buy tickets.

The money, as usual, was raised for the African Wildlife Foundation, one of McGaugh's pet charities. "The Foundation helps preserve wildlife in Africa by producing movies, doing educational projects and buying equipment for park rangers," he said.

He sold about 1,000 tickets. Raised about $250.

Humbug

A Grosse Pointe Park resident wants to alert residents in the Nottingham-Jefferson-St. Paul area about children who are going door-to-door, selling candy for a school fundraiser.

The kids evidently misplaced the ol' Christmas spirit.

They take orders for the candy. And money. And no candy gets delivered.

This resident called the Detroit school they claim to be representing and the principal said, yes, the school had a candy sale.

But it was last October. It's over. And students were instructed not to sell door-to-door.

The Office of Highway Safety Planning, law enforcement officials, Students Against Driving Drunk, 7-Eleven Stores, Domino's Pizza, The Michigan Association of Convenience Stores, and a host of other groups and concerned citizens have joined Mothers Against Drunk Driving in our statewide red ribbon campaign "Tie One On . . ." MADD created this campaign because people in many communities told us they want to show how they feel about the dangers of drinking and driving, especially during the high traffic holiday time.

MADD wants to change the meaning of "Tie One On." We are asking the motoring public to tie a red ribbon on the left side-view mirror, door handle, or radio antenna of their vehicle as a simple reminder to pass the keys if they have been drinking. The red ribbons also serve as a symbol of hope for a less violent future.

Two out of every five Americans will be involved in an alcohol-related crash in their lifetime. Two out of five. Those odds are frightening. That's why drunk driving is everyone's problem. That's the bad news.

The good news is that alcohol-related crashes can be prevented. Public awareness is one way to do this and a thing as simple as tying a red ribbon on your vehicle could save a life — maybe yours or someone you love.

Barbro Lynton of Grosse Pointe Farms and Sheriff Robert Ficano show support for the "Tie One On" Red Ribbon Campaign. Lynton is president of Wayne County's Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD). The campaign encourages motorists to attach a red ribbon to their cars to remind people to not drink and drive during the holiday season.

The campaign is supported by the Michigan State Police, 7-11 Food Stores, Domino's Pizza, the Detroit Public Schools, Transportation Department, the Michigan Sheriff's Association, Metro Cab Association, and the Student Affairs and Public Transportation Departments at Wayne State University.

The Wayne and Oakland County chapters of MADD will sponsor their annual LifeRide Program to provide free rides to drinking drivers on New Year's Eve. Headquartered at WOMC radio station, volunteers coordinate phone calls from riders to the cab companies.

Volunteers interested in answering calls can call 422-MADD.

Visit Plymouth, Birmingham

The War Memorial's January day trip calendar includes visits to two suburbs.

On Thursday, Jan. 12, a motorcoach will take travelers to Plymouth for the annual Ice Sculpture Spectacular. Each year the festival becomes more elaborate as master craftsmen transform more than 120 tons of ice into intricate designs.

The day begins with a 9:30 a.m. departure from the War Memorial. First stop is the Historical Museum, then you're free to enjoy the day. Lunch is on your own. Dress warmly as this is an outdoor event.

Cost is $15 per person and includes motorcoach and museum tour. Return to the War Memorial is planned for 3:30 p.m.

Also planned for January is a 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. excursion to Birmingham. Plans for the day include an opportunity for shopping, lunch at the Panache Restaurant followed by an afternoon performance of the Broadway musical "Stepping Out" at the Birmingham Theatre.

Reservation deadline is Friday, Dec. 30. For additional information, call 881-7511.

Dog training classes to begin

The St. Clair Shores Recreation Department will begin dog training classes Wednesday, Jan. 4, at the St. Clair Shores Civic Arena, 20000 Stephens, I-94 and 9 Mile.

Classes last for eight weeks, one hour per week and class fee is $40. Pre-registration is preferred, but owners may register the day of the class.

There will be beginners obedience, intermediate advanced obedience and conformation show handling offered. For more information, call the department at 445-5340 or instructor Anne Dunn at 463-6100.

Christmas hosts sought for third world students

Would you like to share your family's holiday celebration with two or three young professionals from a Third World country?

Hosts for a one-night Christmas visit Dec. 24-25 or for dinner on Wednesday, Dec. 28 are sought by International Visitors Council of Metropolitan Detroit (IVC), sponsor of a Dec. 21-30 seminar for 20 to 30 foreign graduate and undergraduate students studying in the United States on grants from the U.S. Agency for International Development.

Some of the guests are Christians from Grenada, the island country off the coast of Venezuela, and from the African countries of Botswana, Rwanda, Swaziland and Zambia. Others are Muslims from Morocco and Pakistan, and from Oman and Yemen on the Arabian Peninsula. Their fields of study include nursing, agriculture, engineering, construction management, urban planning and census techniques.

Except for the night of Dec. 24, the visitors will stay at Southfield's Radisson Plaza Hotel, where hosts will pick up and return their overnight or dinner guests.

To offer hospitality, phone the seminar coordinator, IVC volunteer Julie Oldani of Birmingham, at 647-8060 (office) or 643-4528 (home).

tional roast turkey menu and served a roast beef dinner to 23 people — including her daughter Joan, son Donald, five grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

The morning she was being interviewed for this story, she had been up early to sweep the snow off her driveway and sidewalk. The tree was up, the Christmas cards and a poinsettia plant were displayed in the dining room, the wreath was in the window, the lace tablecloth was on the table.

Iveson has lived in Grosse Pointe all her life. "It was always snowy at Christmas time. I remember ice skating and ice boat races on Lake St. Clair." She also remembers that most homes had an ice house. People cut blocks of ice out of the lake during the frigid winter months and stored them in the ice houses for use during warmer weather.

She said her older brother owned an ice boat. He took her for a ride one cold day. The boat hit a thin spot where someone had recently cut a chunk of ice — and the boat began to sink.

"It was going down. My brother grabbed me by the collar and pulled me out. The boat was half in and half out of the water, so he stayed there to rescue the boat," she said. "I had to walk home from the lake to our house on Kerby, beyond Kercheval. I was covered with ice when I got home and my mother was shocked. They warmed some water and made me sit in it."

Iveson remembers a lady on Kerby who dressed up like Santa Claus and visited neighborhood children.

In the early part of the century, Iveson said she usually made gifts for others for Christmas. Her mother was an accomplished seamstress and taught her to sew. After she was married, Iveson often made dresses for the girls in the family as Christmas presents. She also has some Christmas tree ornaments that she and some friends made in the early '20s — tiny angels with red net skirts.

This year she has an artificial tabletop tree, decorated with three of these antique handmade angels, lots of red glass balls, colored beads, and a few handcrafted ornaments from children and grandchildren, saved from other years.

She married Henry Iveson in 1925. When their children were young, she remembers taking them downtown for the Thanksgiving Day parade on Woodward. "We shopped at Hudson's then, and Crowley's and Siegel's. Later there were more stores nearby."

Iveson said Grosse Pointe has been a good place to live for nearly 90 years. She went to old Kerby School, which was next to the Farms city hall and police station, recently demolished. In fact, she said, her father was a member of the school board and a trustee for the village of Grosse Pointe Farms at different times.

"I remember Kerby School when it was just a couple of rooms and just two teachers." She said that students who talked during class had their names written on a slate. At the end of the day, those on the slate had to hold out their hands and the teacher would hit their hands with a switch.

"They were good teachers in other ways, though. One used to bring suckers to school for everybody."

Iveson finished eighth grade at Kerby School, then had to go downtown to the county building to take a two-day exam in order to enter high school. She graduated from Central High School in Detroit. (Grosse Pointe High School was completed in the late 1920s.) "To get to Central, we had to get up before dawn and walk to catch the interurban at the corner of Grosse Pointe Boulevard every morning by 6:30 a.m. We rode the streetcar downtown, then switched to another streetcar to finally arrive at school by 8 a.m."

Her younger sister attended high school in Grosse Pointe, at the Cadieux Road school that is now used for school administration offices.

"Grosse Pointe has always been a good place to live," she said. "We knew all our neighbors. Everybody was friendly. We visited a lot."

It still is a good place, she said ... but there's a lot of newcomers.

Local musician records for the homeless

"It's been too long for the homeless to live like they have been, while people don't do anything about it."

So says Grosse Pointe resident Roger Mills who recently — along with a number of his musician friends under the direction of Keep Detroit Beautiful Teens — recorded an original song, the proceeds of which will go to help the homeless.

Coming from North Carolina, the singer/songwriter saw the number of homeless in the area and was moved to do something.

"I was touched and moved, and I was inspired to write a song," he said. "You can see these people on the television, but until you really see them, you don't understand."

The song, "It's Been Too Long," reflects Mills' feelings about society's responsibility to the homeless.

"I feel that we, as a people, must do something to help the homeless and help with other things that are wrong in our society," he said.

Mills has been planning to record this song since April; it was recorded last week with some 15 other musicians and singers from the area.

He said he is not sure when the public will be able to hear it — the KDB Teens, a committee formed by Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, is in charge of the promotion and getting the record airplay.

"We're hoping and believing people can get it all over, and that it can do some good."

State bar to sponsor Law Day essay contest

The State Bar of Michigan announces the 1989 Law Day Essay Competition open to all seventh, eighth and ninth grade students in Michigan schools.

Students are invited to submit original essays of not more than 400 words on this year's Law Day theme, "Access to Justice."

Awards for the top 1989 Law Day essays include U.S. Savings Bonds of $200, $150, $100 and $50, engraved plaques and dictionaries. Winners, parents and teachers will be guests at the statewide Law Day Luncheon to be held May 2, 1989 at the University Club in East Lansing.

Entries must be postmarked no later than March 1, 1989. More detailed information may be obtained by writing: Karen Adams, State Bar of Michigan, 306 Townsend Street, Lansing, Mich. 48933.

Law Day is held each May 1 to celebrate American liberties and to provide an occasion for rededication to the ideals of equality and justice under the law.

FROM $730 PER MONTH (including maid/meals)

A number of lottery game players have recently asked about televised drawings, and why some stations have changed. This column answers those questions.

Q: What stations are now in the network?
A: The eight stations include: WDIV-TV Channel 4 in Detroit; WUHQ-TV Channel 41 in Battle Creek; WEYI-TV Channel 25 in Flint; WZZM-TV Channel 13 in Grand Rapids; WILX-TV Channel 10 in Lansing and Jackson; WLUC-TV Channel 6 in Marquette; WGTQ-TV Channel 8 in Sault Ste. Marie; and WGTU-TV Channel 29 in Traverse City. The network stations also feed some local cable outlets.

Q: Are the drawings shown live?
A: Yes. Originating at 7:29 each night in studios of WDIV-TV in Detroit, the drawings are shown live over all other stations via a satellite link.

Q: Which drawings are shown?
A: The Daily 3 game drawings are shown and the winning Daily 4 game number announced on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday nights. The Super Lotto drawings shown on Wednesday and Saturdays include announcement of both Daily game winning numbers.

Q: Do the same stations show half-hour lottery specials when they occur?
A: Yes. These generally start at 7:30 on Saturday night and include live drawings of both Daily games and Super Lotto.

Q: When did the network start?
A: The network was formed in 1984 just prior to the start of Lotto game play.

Q: Why are some stations different now?
A: The lottery recently asked TV stations throughout Michigan to submit bids for a new network contract in order to provide the best possible coverage for players at the lowest cost. As a result, some changes were made.

Q: Are drawings also now being aired by radio stations?
A: As a service to players not always able to watch the drawings on television, the Lottery has also formed a statewide network of radio stations to carry the live drawings.

Q: Which stations are included?
A: Network radio stations include WKJF-FM in Cadillac, WWJ-AM in Detroit, WZZZ-FM in Flint, WLAF-FM in Grand Rapids, WMLP-FM in Ironwood, WIBM-AM & FM in Jackson Lansing, WKZO-FM in Kalamazoo, WMQT-FM in Marquette, and WGER-FM in Saginaw Bay City.

For submitting the question leading to this column, Richard Barber of Gaylord will receive 50 tickets for the instant lottery game, "Doubling Dollars."

If you have a question not yet covered in these monthly columns, send it to: "Winners Circle," Michigan Lottery, P.O. Box 30077, Lansing, MI 48909.

Gallery focuses on automotive art, memorabilia

Looking for a gift for that car nut on your list who has everything? How about a painting of a special-bodied '30s-vintage Packard for $2,500?

A little more than you were thinking of? Well, how about a painting of a '51 Mercury or a '49 Buick for $125? Or a stylized ceramic rendition of a '50 Chevrolet for $450?

the most magnificent American cars of the classic era, built in very small numbers in 1930-31) as the focal point is offered at $3,800.

More than an automotive boutique, the Michalak has succeeded in building their 2-year-old business into a gallery of automotive art. And not only the kind that hang on walls. Last

One of the most unusual artists who has contributed work to the gallery since it opened is local artist Belinda Currie, who does highly stylized ceramic sculptures designed to capture the essence of the subject car, not to simply reproduce. Her exaggerated renditions show the car not as it is idealized by advertising artists, but as the often shabby machines we actually drive, knocked about and punished because of their wonderful ability to move about and thus hit things now and then.

Her '56 Chevy seems to sag just a little, as older cars often do, and her '57 Plymouth sports wonderfully grotesque tailfins, and if you inspect it carefully, you find a bit of simulated rust.

"As far as I know, this gallery is unique in Southeastern Michigan," said Denise Michalak, who quit her job a couple years ago to manage the gallery full time. She said model cars are big sellers, as are books, posters and calendars, but the original art is what makes the gallery unique.

Denise Michalak has gifts for the auto nuts on your list at Gallery Automania, in Rochester.

"There are about 40 well-known auto artists in the world today," she said. And quite a few of them are here in the Motor City area, more often than not designing cars for one of the auto makers in addition to making them the object of their art.

The Gallery Automania is at 304 East Street, Rochester, and is highly recommended for auto maniacs and their loved ones.

Richard A. Wright is author of "Love and Revolution: 101 Years of the Automobile," a brief history of the auto industry. It is available from Thirty-Three Publishing, Box 3333, Farmington Hills, Mich. 48333, for $9.95 plus $1.90 handling; Gallery Automania, 304 East St., Rochester, and Jack Miller Motors, the last Hudson dealer, 100 E. Cross St., Ypsilanti.

Autos

Richard Wright

All that and much more is available at a fascinating and unique automotive boutique in Rochester called Gallery Automania.

The gallery is a work of love by Bill and Denise Michalak, of Troy. It features original paintings, drawings and sculptures, signed lithographs, posters, books and an assortment of jewelry, ornaments, trinkets, cards and note paper, old ads, sales literature, badges, calendars and collectible model cars. The thing that ties them together is that they all focus on cars — classics, exotics, nostalgic favorites of the '50s, rally cars and racing machines.

"We try to feature work of local artists," said Bill Michalak, an auto stylist at General Motors when he is not at the gallery. "Most of them are in the auto industry."

A number of paintings now hanging at the gallery were part of a recent two-man show which featured Camilo Pardo, a designer at Ford Motor Co. and a recent graduate of the automotive design program at Center for Creative Studies, and Jorge L. Ferreira-Basso, head of interior design at GM's Opel operation in Germany.

Ted Paul painted the Packard ($2,500) and also a Rolls-Royce, winner of a Scarab Club award and priced at $3,300. A pen-and-ink outdoor scene at a club with what looks like a Ruxton (one of

Sunday, Satch Carlson, Auto-Week columnist who has built a cult following over the years with his weird epistles from Alaska and other exotic places, was at the gallery to chat and promote his new book "Runnin' on Empty: The Best of Satch Carlson."

More shows are in the works, said Bill Michalak, including the Hot-Rod Heritage Show, featuring the hot-rod art collection of Bob Larivee, boss of Autorama and car and art collector.

Children's Home has its wish list, too

Christmas is for children, so where else would you expect to find a wish list but at the Children's Home of Detroit.

Patty Kelly, first assistant at Barnard Center, the school on the grounds of the home located at 900 Cook Road in Grosse Pointe Woods, has been asking the community for help in completing their "Wish List," a list of items the school needs.

"I've spoken to groups like PTOs, and some churches and we've gotten some community response," Kelly said. The Ferry School PTO and some churches gave money, the Grosse Pointe South senior student council gave gifts and decorations for the school, and played volleyball with the students at the schools. The Children's Home also received some furniture for its lobby.

The fourth grade Junior Girl Scouts, Troop 1766 at Monteth School, saved six weeks of their dues which amounted to $64, and purchased items for Barnard Center's rewards closet. They also collected 50 stuffed animals which they took to the school last week.

Troop leader Cheryl Brennan said, "This is something they all wanted to do. They see that there are those who are less fortunate than they are, and wanted to help them."

Kelly said there are still a number of items on the school's Christmas Wish List which could be purchased at minimal cost and dropped off for the holidays.

Among the items are books for the library, which would supplement the school's reading program — the same reading program in place at Grosse Pointe Public Schools. Also, games and models can always be used, Kelly added.

One of the larger items on the list is a showcase needed to display the students' work, similar to the showcases at most public schools. It will, however, need to be modified to include unbreakable glass, Kelly added.

Gifts can be dropped off at the school any time, she said.

Grosse Pointe South's novice debate team took top honors in the fall meetings of the Mac/Oak Debate League, finishing first both in the overall standings and in the final tournament.

This debate league, one of the largest in the state, gives South's novice debaters the opportunity to compete against 22 teams from 12 schools in the tri-county area.

Last year's novice team also placed first.

Team members earned a special trophy from the Detroit Free Press in recognition of their winning more than 75 percent of their league debates.

The team will travel next to Ann Arbor for the Novice State Preliminary Tournament.

Stuckey and Jehan Varzi.

Their adviser is Marjorie Dorman of South's English Resource Center.

The national high school debate topic this year evaluates the desirability of a comprehensive federal program to guarantee retirement security for U.S. citizens over age 65. The South High novice case is based on a proposal from economists at the Brookings Institution to expand Medicare for long-term nursing home care.

Student Spotlight

Elizabeth Broderick

Each week in this column, we will focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a wood-working project, a book review.

The following was written by Elizabeth Broderick, a fifth-grader at Richard School. She is the daughter of Kevin Broderick of Grosse Pointe Farms.

Snow

Drifts slowly to the ground like a sinking ship.
Makes the world seem like someone stole all the beautiful colors.
When it's all over you can hear children sledding and playing in the snow.
And then a warm day comes along.
The snow drips to the ground like tears from a person's eyes.
And one day the whole cycle will happen again.

Sripinyo studies in Switzerland

University Liggett School sophomore Kirk Sripinyo is currently studying in Zermatt, Switzerland, through "Swiss Semester."

ULS is now in its third year of affiliation with Swiss Semester, a unique program which provides an unusual educational opportunity for sophomores enrolled in college preparatory schools.

In 1986-87, ULS sophomores Tracy Tompkins and John Southall, both of Grosse Pointe, initiated the affiliation by studying in Zermatt for one semester. Their academic program included English, foreign languages, math, science and history. In addition, Swiss Semester made certain that they took advantage of their alpine location by scheduling hiking and skiing activities, and arranging travel to other parts of Europe.

Tompkins and Southall were followed in 1987-88 by Erika Teigte of Grosse Pointe and Julia Caputo of St. Clair Shores.

For further information about Swiss Semester, contact Mariela M. Brown, ULS coordinator, at 884-4444, or write to: Swiss Semester, Box 327, 3920 Zermatt, Switzerland.

Swiss Semester is administered by Raymond P. Robbins, headmaster of University Liggett School from 1969-84.

ULS debate team brings home honors

A first-place finish and many individual honors marked a successful weekend for the University Liggett School debate team as it competed at Plymouth-Salem High School Dec. 2-3.

The varsity team of senior Nishu Sood, of Grosse Pointe, and sophomore Alex Stine, of Detroit, ended the tournament by defeating Detroit Catholic Central in the final round, after compiling a 5-1 preliminary record.

Other teams ULS defeated on its way to the top are Birmingham Marian, Birmingham Seaholm, Henry Ford and Mount Pleasant. Out of 90 competitors at the varsity level, Sood was named "Second Speaker."

The junior varsity team of Manisha Kulkarni (Sterling Heights, sophomore), Mehul Patel (East Detroit, junior) and Shlini Srivastava (Detroit, freshman) earned its way into the semifinal round where they were defeated on a 2-1 decision by Grosse Pointe South. Winning individual speaker awards were Srivastava and Patel (ninth place tie) and Kulkarni (sixth place).

This year's debates on the topic of "Governmental Policies for Citizens over 65" have provided many suggestions for providing retirement security for older Americans. Sood and Stine will next present ULS's suggestions at the Princeton Viking Classic, a tournament which will include teams from across the nation.

Kindergarteners Katy Conley and Matt Lambrecht choose a tag from the Giving Tree. The tags bear names of needy youngsters in the Detroit area, and specific requests for gifts.

Giving Tree helps needy

To help fulfill University Liggett School's commitment to community service, the ULS Parents' Association recently worked with the students on the "Giving Tree." Over the past five years, more than 75 percent of ULS students have participated voluntarily in this project.

During the first week of December, a Giving Tree, decorated with tags bearing requests for gifts, was placed by the Parents' Association in the lobby of each level of the school: pre-kindergarten, lower, middle and upper. By Dec. 12, students had voluntarily taken tags from the tree and had purchased the appropriate gifts (suggested price range: $5-$10).

Some tags had specific names of individual children; others had the name of an organization and the needs of its residents. Gifts were wrapped in holiday paper with the tags placed prominently on the outside of the package.

Some children included a special note with their gift. In many instances, the gift was the only holiday present for its recipient.

Marion Shanle served as parent coordinator of the Giving Tree. Chairmen for each level were: pre-kindergarten and lower school, Cathie Mitchell; middle school, Linda Slone; upper school, Denise Crenshaw.

Writers target their services to small businesses

By Pat Paholsky
Editor

Brand-new business partners Nancy Solak and Katie Elsila can sum up in two words how they feel about their company and their working relationship — just right. That's also the name of their business — Just Right Communications — which is barely a month old.

What they bring to their fledgling business, however, is about 40 years of combined writing experience. That experience includes writing speeches for a state senator, designing brochures, writing newsletters and press releases, publishing annual reports and even teaching high school English.

Their service is geared to the small or mid-size business or non-profit organization that doesn't have a brochure or a newsletter — but would like to. The company also specializes in annual reports.

"That's the thing that makes us different," Elsila said. "We are offering our service on a fee-for-project basis, so a person can call for a brochure or a newsletter and does not have to sign up for retainership."

And they bring their service to the client. It's important, Elsila said, to see the person in his or her own surroundings.

"By seeing it, we can get a different perspective," Solak added. The need for the service is there. In less than a month, they have one client and eight good prospects, according to Solak.

"We have been busy," she said. "In fact, the day we picked up our brochures, everything started happening."

Their initial success is the result of months of planning and market research and plenty of good advice from people in the community who have counseled them on setting up a business.

"They have been so generous in sharing their advice and skills," Elsila said. "We hope to be able to do the same for some other fledgling company (in the future)."

The two, who met at the Racial Justice Center of Grosse Pointe 11 years ago, decided to pool their talents this past summer.

"Nancy put an ad in the Grosse Pointe News that I thought was excellent and I called her to compliment her on it," Elsila said. "We started talking about how we may collaborate, because the life of a freelance writer is somewhat lonely. "We both shared an interest in businesses and organizations in conveying their best image. I was writing brochures and she was writing newsletters."

From there came the seed for a business, one in which "small to mid-size companies in the community have the kind of services large companies have," she said.

They began planning for their new venture Sept. 1, meeting regularly, doing market research, structuring the business and seeking advice. They registered their business name, which came out of a lot of brainstorming.

"It just seemed just right," Elsila said. "It's funny how after we named it, that expression comes up a lot."

From their years of working together at the Racial Center for Justice (Elsila was executive director for four years and Solak chaired the Holly Mart for two years), they knew they were compatible. "We knew philosophically we were on the same plane together, which was important," Solak said.

Part of their research included collecting written material put out by businesses and organizations. "Quite often, we would find that it didn't match their image," Solak said, "and I would crave to redo it."

Elsila said one of the things the partners share is an interest in making every word count. Another thing they share is an enthusiasm in "being rewarded for something we love to do," she said.

The most satisfying part of the business has been interviewing prospective clients about their businesses, Solak said. "We see them come alive," she said.

"Their businesses are an integral part of their lives, and interviewing is a skill integral to our writing and we just enjoy it a lot."

While the new business is a full-time proposition, both said the flexibility of being their own bosses is important. By working several hours the night before, Solak said she would be able to take her Girl Scout troop to a nursing home that afternoon. Both women are involved in local activities as well as professional organizations. They also plan to pursue their individual freelancing writing.

Larry R. Zastrow

Services for Larry R. Zastrow, 44, a former Grosse Pointe Park resident, were held Saturday, Dec. 17, at Immaculate Conception Church in Iron Mountain, Mich. Mr. Zastrow died Dec. 13, 1988, in Florence, Wis.

He was born in Buffalo, N.Y. He graduated from Grosse Pointe High School and Michigan Tech University and he served in the U.S. Army as a chaplain's assistant in Vietnam.

Mr. Zastrow was a civil engineer with the Michigan State Highway Department. Survivors include his wife, Linda; two sons, Matthew and Daniel; two sisters; and a brother.

Burial was in Iron Mountain. Memorial contributions may be made to the charity of one's choice.

Ralph W. McKenney

Services for Ralph W. McKenney, 75, of Grosse Pointe Farms, were held Monday, Dec. 19, 1988, at St. Paul's Catholic Church. Mr. McKenney died Dec. 16 in Bon Secours Hospital of cancer.

He was born in Michigan. Mr. McKenney graduated from the University of Detroit in 1934 and Harvard Law School in 1937. He was the first person to get a perfect score on the Michigan Bar exam, according to his son, Paul, who is also an attorney.

He served in the U.S. Navy from 1941 to 1946 and was among the first group of American officers to land in Japan in August 1945. He helped make arrangements for the subsequent surrender of the Japanese government on the USS Missouri.

Mr. McKenney taught at the Detroit College of Law for more than 44 years, beginning in 1937. He was one of three people at the school to become a professor emeritus. His son, Paul, said that he was a fatherly professor who often counseled students in addition to his teaching duties.

He was a member of the Country Club of Detroit, the Detroit Athletic Club and the Grosse Pointe Senior Men's Club.

Survivors are his wife, Pearl; a daughter, Sally T. Branon; a son, Paul L.B. McKenney; two stepsons, Mark and Gerald Davidson; and nine grandchildren. He was predeceased by a son, Dr. Ralph W. Jr.

Burial was in Mount Olivet Cemetery. Memorial contributions may be made to the Capuchin Soup Kitchen, 1740 Mount Elliott, Detroit 48207.

Arrangements were handled by the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home.

Jean Marie Perrone

Funeral services for Jean Marie Perrone, 68, of Grosse Pointe Park, were held Wednesday, Dec. 21, 1988, at the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home.

Verheyden Funeral Home. Mrs. Perrone died Dec. 17 in Grosse Pointe Park. She was born in Michigan. She was a member of the N.M.I. Boosters, the Detroit Review Club, the Grosse Pointe Park Foundation, the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, the River-view Yacht Club and the St. Clair Yacht Club.

Survivors are her husband, Louis J.; two sons, John M. and L. James; an aunt, Jeanette Towler; and a cousin, Jack Towler.

Burial was at Highland Cemetery, Washtenaw, Mich. Arrangements were handled by the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home.

William A. Roth

Private family services for William A. Roth, 73, will be held Friday, Dec. 23, 1988, at 5 p.m. at Christ Church Grosse Pointe. Mr. Roth died Wednesday, Dec. 14, in his daughter's Grosse Pointe Farms home.

Born in Youngstown, Ohio, Mr. Roth was a former resident of Philadelphia, Pa. He earned a degree in engineering from Case Western Reserve University in Ohio. He served as a lieutenant commander in the U.S. Navy in World War II, overseeing ship construction with the War Production Board.

Mr. Roth was owner and proprietor of L.T. Muench, a men's store in Philadelphia.

He is survived by his wife, Peg R. Roth; two daughters, Mrs. John Danaher Jr. of Grosse Pointe Farms and Suzanne R. Graham of Philadelphia; a son, Charles M. Roth of Philadelphia; three grandchildren; three sisters, Helen R. Johnson, Mary Louise Thomas and Betty Schriener of Youngstown; and a brother, Robert E. Roth of Youngstown.

Interment will be in St. Paul's Church, Chestnut Hill, Pa.

Memorial contributions may be made to the hospice program at Cottage Hospital. Arrangements were handled by the Wm. R. Hamilton and Co. Funeral Home.

Henry A. Kuhlman

Services were held Saturday, Dec. 17, at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, for Henry A. Kuhlman, 86, a former Grosse Pointe Shores resident. Mr. Kuhlman died Dec. 14, 1988, at Bon Secours Nursing Center.

He was born in Detroit. He was president of A. Kuhlman Co., a hospital supply company.

Mr. Kuhlman was a member of the Country Club of Detroit and the Detroit Rotary Club.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. W. James Truettner Jr., of Golf, Ill.; a son, Henry M., of Grosse Pointe Shores; five grandchildren; three great-grandchildren; and a sister, Mrs. Edward Kihen, of Clearwater, Fla. He was predeceased by his wife, Helen. The body was cremated.

Memorial contributions may be made to Grosse Pointe Memorial Church or to the charity of one's choice.

Arrangements were handled by the Wm. R. Hamilton Funeral Home.

Danforth Holley

Services for Danforth Holley, 73, were held Saturday, Dec. 17, 1988, at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church. Mr. Holley died Dec. 15 at his Grosse Pointe Shores home of cancer.

He attended LeRosey School in Switzerland, Babson College in Boston and Wayne State University.

He was former vice president of Holley Carburetor, in Warren, now called Colt Industries. He retired in 1975, after 45 years.

Mr. Holley began skiing in Connecticut when he was eight years old. He eventually invented the fiberglass ski, now on display in the Ski Hall of Fame in Ishpeming, Mich., the L-shaped ski edge, and more than 30 other ski products. He also developed the process for making plastic snow.

He was a former director of the U.S. Ski Association and worked on fundraising activities for the Olympics. He developed a training track near Ann Arbor for instruction of cross-country skiing.

Mr. Holley co-authored several books, "Michigan Trail Atlas" and "Opportunities in Solar Energy," and he published the Holley Quarterly, an investment letter.

He was also president of the Earl-Beth Foundation, a Grosse Pointe philanthropic organization.

He was a member of the Investment Finance Committee of the Detroit Institute of Arts Founders' Society, the Country Club of Detroit, the Detroit Library, Friends of the Detroit Library, the Grosse Pointe Club, the Otsego Ski Club, and several tennis clubs.

Survivors include his wife, Jane; two daughters, Deborah Palms and Janie Fleckenstein; three sons, Mark, Scott and Danforth; a brother; and a grandson.

Burial was at Woodlawn Cemetery.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Michigan Cancer Foundation.

Arrangements were handled by the William R. Hamilton Co., Groesbeck Chapel.

THE
Grosse Pointe News
Graphics and Production Facility

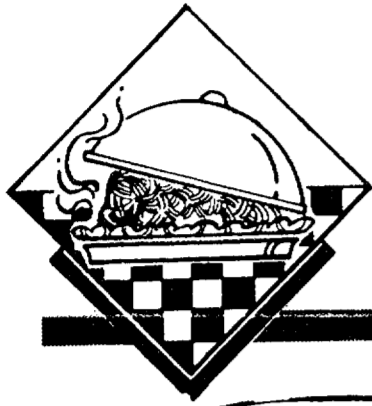

The importance of printed promotional materials and their relationship to success in business is a given. What you need to know is a company that can supply high quality, creative ideas transformed onto paper for a price that provides a return on your investment. The Grosse Pointe News Graphics and Production Facility is that company.

The equipment and staff necessary to produce the Grosse Pointe News is also used to produce promotional materials. Expanding into Creative Production is the natural progression. Only question is... can we create the image and produce the materials you need to sell your products and/or services? Give us a call.

We quiz you a Merry Christmas . . .

By Peggy O'Connor Andrzejczyk
 Assistant Editor/Feature Editor

Twas the evening of Christmas and all through the house, relatives are snoozing, time to give them a rouse. The Nintendo is broken, the eggnog is sour, it's time to perk things up . . . now is the hour!

Face it, after a two-month build-up, Christmas flies by quicker than a crazed shopper reaches his Master Card limit. And while most of us are pretty glad about that, there's still that little matter of a house full of bored relatives.

So we came up with this little Christmas quiz to amaze and amuse your friends and families this holiday season. The answers can be found elsewhere (no peeking, this is Christmas!) in this story.

Good luck!

What was the name of the bumbling guardian angel in the perennial Christmas favorite, "It's A Wonderful Life"?

What was the name of the inn in Bethlehem where Mary and Joseph stayed and where the Baby Jesus was born?

Where was Santa Claus born?

How old is he?

What do the national anthem and an old Christmas carol favorite have in common?

Here's a multiple choice question: On what street did the famous Christmas "miracle" of movie fame occur? A) Fifth Avenue; B) 12th Street; C) 34th Street; D) Pennsylvania Avenue.

What was the name of the 1970s remake of the movie "It's A Wonderful Life"?

And who was the star of the remake?

One more "Wonderful Life" question: In the movie, what happens when the angel gets his wings?

What are the amazing powers attributed to mistletoe?

To whom was Santa Claus delivering Christmas gifts in the Thomas Nast cartoon that first depicted him with a sleigh and reindeer?

Why was fruitcake invented?

Answers

- 1) Clarence Oddbody.
- 2) Back then, inns were called "kahnns," sort of olden-day motels where travelers could find shelter and food. Give yourself a half-point for creativity if you said "Holiday Inn-Bethlehem," however.
- 3) St. Nicholas, the saint after which Santa Claus is patterned.

was born in Turkey.

4) The aforementioned St. Nicholas was born in 280; Santa Claus, of course, came much later.

5) The melodies for both the national anthem and "What Child is This?" are both originally old English tunes. "What Child is This?" is "Greensleeves" and the national anthem borrows its melody from an old pub song titled "To Anachrenon in Heaven."

6) C, 34th Street, naturally. There haven't been many miracles on Pennsylvania Avenue lately.

7) "It Happened One Christmas."

8) The brains behind this remake decided that they couldn't improve much on the original, so they tried anyway. They came up with a gender switch, making the hero of the movie a woman and giving Marlo Thomas the starring role. So much for brains.

9) If you are astute enough to know that it's a wonderful life, you also know that every time a bell rings, an angel gets his wings.

10) So great is the power of mistletoe that long ago, enemies meeting below it were required to drop their weapons and embrace. But the power only stayed as long as there were berries on the branches and a berry had to be removed after each embrace.

11) Soldiers fighting in the Civil War were the beneficiaries of Santa's charity. The cartoon, "Santa Claus in Camp," appeared on the cover of "Harper's Weekly," on Jan. 3, 1863.

12) There may never be a correct answer to the question asked through the ages: "Why, oh, why, was fruitcake invented?"

The closest we can come is this: It was a creation of the Middle Ages, before the advent of refrigeration. Summer's fruits and flowers were dried and candied for use in the winter. Why people kept it up after Frigidaires came about is something you can ponder as you cut through this year's slab, er, slice of fruitcake.

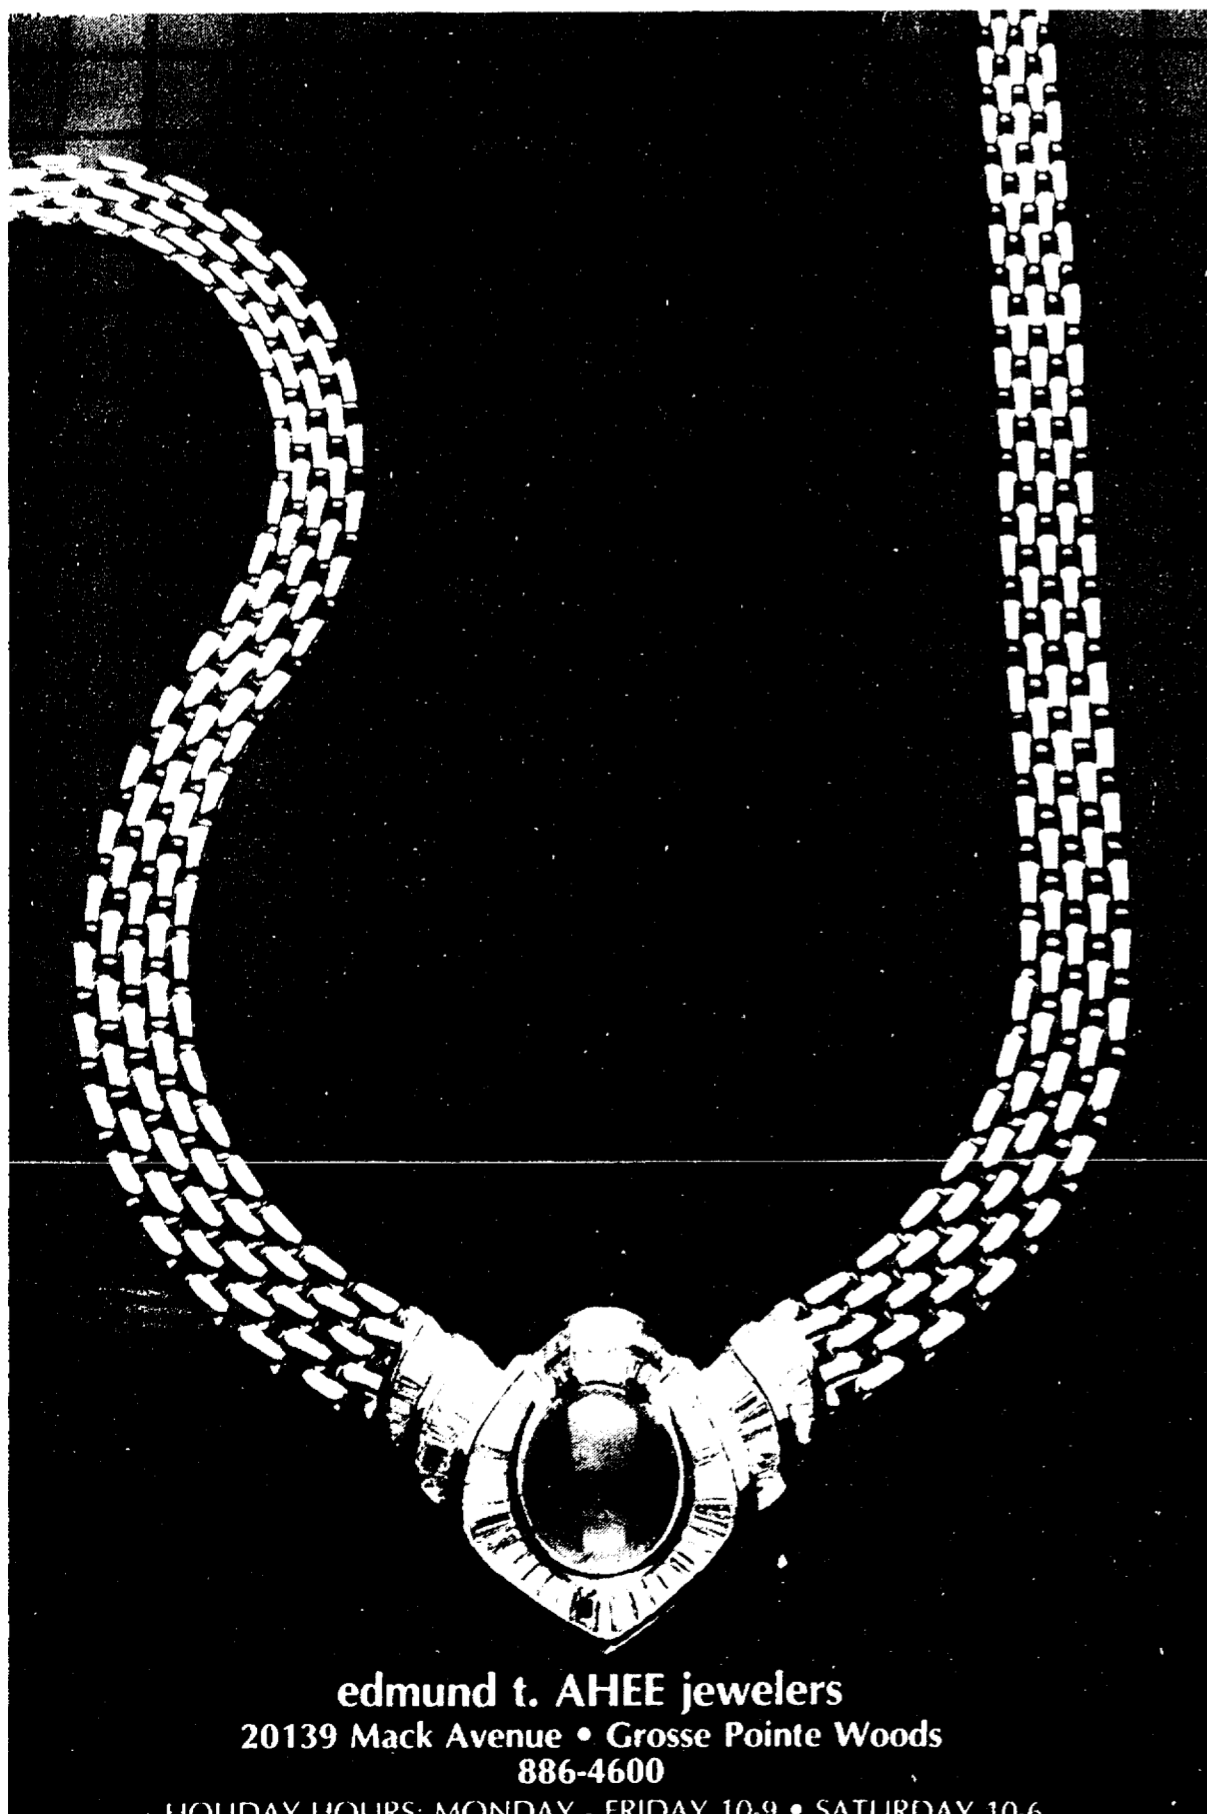

If you scored a 12, call yourself a Son of St. Nick and expect an extra goodie in your Christmas stocking.

A score of 6-12 makes you a Santa's elf, second class.

0-5, call yourself Scrooge, enjoy your lump of coal and hope that these are things which will be, not things which will be.

While you're at it, have a very Merry Christmas.

Grosse Pointe Theatre is a multi-dimensional organization

Santa Claus put on a convincing performance for Grosse Pointe Theatre members, families and friends at the GPT's recent charity auction. The event raised nearly $4,000, which the group will donate to several charitable causes.

Travelers Aid Society needs help

The Travelers Aid Society of Detroit — a United Foundation agency mandated to care for people in transition — has prepared its holiday wish list for clients. Donors may provide the following items:

Soaps, shampoos, toothbrushes, toothpaste, shaving cream, disposable razors, washcloths and Wash-N-Dry products. Others are warm winter accessories for children and adults, such as mittens, gloves, scarves, hats and socks. Diapers of all sizes and sturdy children's books will be appreciated, as will toys in safe, clean and good condition.

Also needed are teething rings, safe toys with wheels and stuffed animals which have been well-sewn and have small parts which cannot be pulled off easily.

Travelers Aid Society cares for people such as the disabled, elderly, abused or runaway youth, as well as those who are homeless and have nowhere else to turn. At the Travelers Aid Society headquarters on Congress and Shelby in downtown Detroit and at the Greyhound Bus station, the waiting rooms are filled daily with individuals and families whose needs are great and who have nowhere else to turn.

Children are frequently involved. Social workers and volunteers provide assistance through community resources and other assistance. Vouchers for meals, bus tickets, a referral to a temporary shelter, long distance phone calls to verify information and assurance that help is there, are what the volunteer has to offer.

Donors who would like to drop off items should come into the Travelers Aid headquarters at 211 West Congress, third floor. If you have a large quantity of items, pick-up can be arranged by calling 962-6740.

Fine comedy and drama aren't all the Grosse Pointe Theatre (GPT) gives to its community. GPT also performs many charitable acts in the area, especially at this time of year.

"It's undeniably true that we are first a community theater dedicated to teaching and sharing theater arts," said GPT president Mary Lou Johnson. "But we also are a community theater in the sense that we try to contribute more to the area than just excellent performances and we've been doing it for 20 years."

As an example, Johnson cited the recent charity auction held at the group's rehearsal hall at 315 Fisher Road. Nearly $4,000 was raised for the Michigan Cancer Foundation, Coalition on Temporary Shelter (COTS), Salvation Army and other groups.

Items and services donated by GPT members were auctioned off to GPT members, their families and guests. And in keeping with the spirit of GPT, some of the items were a bit unusual. Among the items auctioned were a one-hour plane ride, legal services, voice lessons and a catered, gourmet candlelight dinner.

Additional charitable funds were raised through a Christmas card fund. "Members get into the pool by signing up. Then instead of exchanging cards with other members, the money which would have been spent on cards is pooled and donated to various charities."

GPT also sponsors raffles, bazaars, and a gift wrap and poinsettia sale.

This year, monies will be used to buy and wrap presents for 10 Grosse Pointe senior citizens identified for GPT by Services for Older Citizens. Money raised by the group will also be donated to five needy families recommended for assistance by Family Services of Detroit and Wayne County. Learning disabled children will also benefit from money raised by GPT and donated to the Salvation Army Booth Services.

Birds will be Garden Center lecture topic

Members and friends of the Grosse Pointe Garden Center will gather at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial on Friday, Jan. 13, at 10:30 a.m. to enjoy a program on birds, presented by professor Grover Niergarth of Schoolcraft College.

Niergarth holds bachelor of science and master of arts degrees from Central Michigan University. He is a member of the national, Michigan and Washtenaw Audubon Societies; the Whitefish Point Bird Observatory; Michigan, Inland and Eastern Bird Banders Associations; American Ornithologists Union; Wilson Ornithological Society; and the Michigan Community College Biologists.

A subscription luncheon in the reception room will follow the program, which will be presented in the library. Cost is $12.50. Checks (which will serve as reservations for the luncheon) must be received by Jan. 10. Checks should be mailed to the Grosse Pointe Garden Center, 32 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms, 48236.

Sally Schueler is chairing the event, which will include the reports of committee chairmen and the election of new officers following the luncheon.

International auto show will benefit area charities

The Detroit Auto Show has a new name for 1989, but one thing about the popular show remains the same.

The 1989 charity preview of the North American International Auto Show will benefit six charities: Children's Services at the Northeast Guidance Center, Boys and Girls Clubs of Southeastern Michigan, the Detroit Institute for Children, Children's Center, the March of Dimes and the Easter Seal Society of Wayne, Oakland and Macomb.

The charity preview is set for Friday, Jan. 6, from 7 to 9 p.m. at Cobo Hall. More than 6,000 people are expected to attend this grand opening, black-tie event. Guests will view vehicle displays by 43 of the world's largest domestic and foreign auto manufacturers. They will also be invited to attend the ribbon-cutting ceremony which officially opens the event.

Serving as honorary chairpersons for the Assistance League to the Northeast Guidance Center are Grosse Pointers Dr. Donald and Dale Austin. General chairpersons include Pointers Judy Rutan, Cheri Dowdall and Kris Grabowski.

Tax-deductible tickets are now on sale for $50 per person, which includes complimentary wine and champagne. The tickets may be purchased at the door or in advance. All proceeds will go to the one or more of the six charities listed above. Invitations are not necessary.

"We are very excited to be a part of the auto show charity preview this year," said Edsel B. Ford II, president-elect of the board of trustees for the Detroit Institute for Children, which is participating for the first time.

"I personally invite everyone to attend the charity preview."

For more information, call the Northeast Guidance Center at 824-8000; the Detroit Institute for Children at 832-1100; the Boys and Girls Clubs of Southeastern Michigan at 756-2255; the Children's Center at 831-5535; the Easter Seal Society at 722-3055; or the March of Dimes at 423-3200.

Dr. Donald and Dale Austin of Grosse Pointe are serving as honorary chairpersons for the Assistance League to the Northeast Guidance Center. General chairpersons are Judy Rutan, Cheri Dowdall and Kris Grabowski.

Richard and Ellen Beach, their daughter and son-in-law, Betty Beach Harvey and Paul Harvey, at the Beaches' 50th wedding anniversary Dec. 6.

More than just a few close . . . friends helped Richard and Ellen Beach celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary on Dec. 6. The Beaches, long known for their support of community and civic concerns, combined their golden wedding anniversary party with the annual Christmas program of the Kiwanis Club.

Dick Beach had a double honor that evening in the Crystal Ballroom of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. He was presented the Lieutenant Governor's banner as he assumes the role of Lt. Governor, Division 2, Michigan District of Kiwanis.

The evening began with the Pledge of Allegiance and the singing of "America the Beautiful." Ellen Bowen, performed a solo of "Because" and the "Lord's Prayer," before dinner. Following dinner and the presentation of the Kiwanis banner, Ellen Beach received a plaque from the Pilot Club in honor of her founding of the St. Clair Shores club in 1952. The Grosse Pointe South Choral Group then serenaded the guests with Christmas music.

The Beaches' daughter, Betty Beach Harvey and her husband, Paul Harvey, presented them with an oil painting by Grosse Pointe artist Betty Prudden.

Among the 112 guests in attendance were Grosse Pointe Park Mayor Palmer T. Heenan and City Manager Dale Krajniak. Others included Grosse Pointe South High School principal Edward Shine, and South High educators Russell Luttinen and Bernie LeMieux, as well as several Kiwanis officials.

Historical holiday:

The Warren Wilkinsons of Grosse Pointe were among the 200 guests at the Detroit Historical Society's traditional Holiday Party Nov. 30 at the Detroit Historical Museum. Wilkinson is the immediate past president of the DHS board of trustees.

Chairing the gala event — which featured cocktails, dinner and costumed "Alice in Wonderland" characters and a chance for guests to shop for unusual holiday gift items — were Barbara Smith and William Zoufal of Grosse Pointe. The evening benefited the DHS and its educational programs.

Also on the committee were Mrs. Ernest J. DuMouchelle, Mrs. Charles Kessler, Mrs. John Lambrecht and Mrs. William Vittoe of Grosse Pointe.

Shoppers and party-goers included Mr. and Mrs. Mike Ilitch, Dr. and Mrs. Kim Lie and the William Vittoes

Hosting their hosts:

When George and Marge Slezak of Grosse Pointe bid on and won a vacation in Italy in this year's Grosse Pointe Academy Action Auction '88, they really didn't have any intention of getting to know the owners of the castle they'd be staying in.

But, after all, how many castle owners — a Conte and Contessa no less — does the average person get to meet in his life?

That all changed for the Slezaks on Dec. 8 when they hosted a party for Conte and Contessa Ferdinand Cinnelli, who donated a stay in their castle and farm houses, "Spannocchia," in Siena, Italy, as an auction item for the Grosse Pointe Academy.

But the Slezaks thought that it might be a nice gesture, considering that the very busy Cinnellis were so gracious in assisting the Academy. "It turned out just great," Marge Slezak said. "Everyone had such a wonderful time, they stayed until 1 a.m. Some of them are even thinking of visiting us at the castle this spring."

The Slezaks purchased the vacation trip with Dr. and Mrs. Richard Kulis, who also attended the party. Also enjoying the evening were Marlene Hamel, Ben Capp, Carol Chadwick and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ingalls.

The Pastor's Corner

What is Christmas?

By Monsignor Francis X. Canfield
Pastor, St. Paul Catholic Church

Christmas engulfs us. We're all caught up in a frenzy of buying and partying and preparing to celebrate the occasion with relatives and friends.

For the person of little or no faith, it's just a way to lighten the dark days of the winter solstice and engage in what amounts to the somewhat more sophisticated rites of primitive, pagan tribes dancing and carousing to induce the sun to return to warm the earth and brighten the days again.

The person of faith will struggle to keep in mind what it's all about: We celebrate the entrance of Jesus into history and into our lives to save us from sin and death.

Going to church will help immensely. We ministers and priests know that many people at Christmas services may not be back until Easter or even next Christmas. But do come! Like Jesus, we don't want to turn anyone away.

The birth of Jesus has generated myths and legends just as the lives of Washington and Lincoln and John F. Kennedy created myths and legends which enrich our memories.

The fact of Jesus' birth: Joseph and the pregnant Mary journeyed some three days, some 130 miles to go from Nazareth to Bethlehem. The "inn" at Bethlehem was known as a "kahn," something of a modern day motel where travelers could find shelter and food.

No advance reservations! No 800 number to call! The rooms were full but Jewish hospitality would not tolerate a closed door. Joseph and Mary were given what was available, a stall for animals, undoubtedly cleaned for their use. Thus the infant was laid in a manger, a scrubbed trough for animals.

Actually, the season was most likely the spring of the year when shepherds were out on the hills. Our December date goes back to the fourth century when efforts were made to counteract the pagan festival of Mithras, the Persian sun-god.

In the Roman empire, of which Israel was an occupied nation, Saturn also was celebrated as the god of agriculture. Excited by the prospect of a rebirth of nature, the sun finally rising in the heavens, the Romans pulled out all the stops in riotous frivolity: a Saturnalia.

In an effort to wean people away from these pagan practices, the early western church chose Dec. 25 to mark the birth of the Lord. The eastern church, centered in Constantinople, chose Jan. 6.

The exchange of gifts was meant to symbolize the exchange of God's divinity for our humanity, our rebirth into the life of the Son of God through baptism and faith.

And so we're all caught up in the frenzy of the season. What will it mean for us?

Women's group will protest church closings at residence

A committee of women has organized to encourage Cardinal Edmund Szoka to withdraw his recommendations to close 43 churches in the city of Detroit.

The women say they are concerned for the future of their children if the church is no longer a presence in their neighborhoods. The group will be present at the Cardinal's residence each weekday morning from now through the first of the year, meeting from 10 to 11 a.m. each day. Szoka is expected to make his final recommendations during the first week of January.

Volunteers serve holiday dinner

More than 400 people enjoyed a full course holiday dinner and a program at St. Leo's Church soup kitchen Dec. 17. Volunteers from prayer groups, the center staff of the Charismatic Renewal, staff persons from the Michigan Catholic, men from St.

Jane deChantel and the staff of St. Leo's served the group turkey and dressing, ham, sweet potatoes and dessert.

Entertainment was provided by the St. Joan of Arc Church One O'Clock Mass group.

Festival of Nativity at 1st English

First English Lutheran Church will celebrate the Festival of the Nativity at the Christmas Eve and Christmas Day services. The church is located at 800 Vernier Road in Grosse Pointe Woods.

The 5 p.m. Christmas Eve service has been planned especially for families with younger children. There will be a visual presentation to portray the meaning of Christmas. Special music will also be presented.

The traditional Christmas Eve service will be at 8 p.m. Carols by the Bell and Senior choirs will begin at 7:45 p.m. There will be a special arrangement of "The First Noel," combined with Pachelbel's "Canon in D." Soprano Jeanne Heller Ludwig will sing Adams' "O Holy Night." Bell choirs under the direction of Christina Judson, will play traditional carols, "In Dulci Jubilo" and "Venite Adoremus."

The motet choir will sing an old French carol, "Ding, Dong Merrily on High." The Senior Choir will perform "Jesse's Carol," a selection written during the past year for soprano Jesse Norman. Robert Foster is music coordinator and organist at the church. "Christmas is Good News," will be the subject of Pastor Paul Keppler's sermon.

Christmas at United Methodist

Christ United Methodist Church, 15932 East Warren Ave. at Haverhill in Detroit, has scheduled its holiday services. The Rev. Frank R. Leineke will deliver the sermon. Bernard Leshley is the music director.

Services on Christmas Eve will be at 11 p.m. There will be special music by the choir. Christmas Day services will be at 11 a.m., with special music by Al Allford and Deloris Meadows.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Andrus
Bowen-Andrus

Judy Alden Bowen, daughter of Mrs. Daniel W. Bowen and the late Mr. Bowen of Grosse Pointe, married Samuel Joseph Andrus, son of the Rev. Richard C. Andrus and Jean H. Andrus of Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church.

The Rev. Jack Mannscheck, assisted by the Rev. Andrus and Dr. Robert Boley, officiated at the 4:30 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, James Bowen of Warren. Maid of honor was the bride's twin sister, Virginia Bowen of Grosse Pointe Woods. A cousin, Janet Albers of Cleveland, was a bridesmaid.

The best man was Kenneth Thomas of Pontiac. Groomsmen included Christopher Sliva of Troy and Thomas Green of Owosso.

The bridegroom's sister, Debra Root of Kalamazoo, was the pianist and soloist at the ceremony. Guests were greeted by sisters of the groom, Cynthia Thick of Pigeon and Beth Andrus of Minneapolis.

The bride is a graduate of Grosse Pointe South High School and Northwood Institute, where she received a bachelor of business administration degree. She is employed at ANR Pipeline as a programmer analyst.

The bridegroom holds a bachelor of science in chemistry degree from Adrian College, a bachelor of science in chemical engineering from the University of Michigan and a master of business administration degree from the University of Detroit. He is employed as senior project engineer at ANR Pipeline Company.

The newlyweds honeymooned in Bermuda. They live in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Mr. and Mrs. Thaddeus J.
Kedzierski

Gallagher-Kedzierski

Kathleen Ann Gallagher, daughter of Tom and Mae Gallagher of Grosse Pointe Woods, married Thaddeus Joseph Kedzierski, son of Caroline Kedzierski and the late Michael Kedzierski of Grosse Pointe Woods, on June 17, 1988, in the Grosse Pointe Academy Chapel.

The Rev. Duane Novelty officiated at the 7:30 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception in the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club ballroom.

The bride wore a gown of ivory Chantilly lace styled with a dropped, Basque waistline, three-quarter length sleeves and a high, lace neckline. The gown featured a fitted bodice and a lace skirt which ended at tea length in the front and swept into floor length at the back. A

Juliet cap of ivory satin and Chantilly lace held the bride's chapel length veil and a pouf. She carried a garden bouquet of long-stemmed blush roses, alstroemeria, lilies, verbinium, foxglove, wild flowers and ivy tied with satin ribbon.

The bride's sister, Maryann Gallagher Aubrey, a former Grosse Pointe Woods resident who now lives in Palatine, Ill., was the matron of honor. She wore a tea length dress of dusty rose bengaline moire taffeta, styled with a dropped waist, short, puffed sleeves and hand-made ivory lace at the neckline. She carried a cascade bouquet of garden flowers and greens.

The bride's cousin, Laura Cathleen Martin of Grosse Pointe Woods, was flowergirl. She wore a tea length dress of pink shantung silk accented with lace and carried a small flower basket.

The best man was John Konkel. Ushers included the bride's brother, Tom Gallagher Jr. of San Francisco, and the groom's brother, Michael Kedzierski of Grosse Pointe Woods.

The mother of the bride wore a beige floral print chiffon dress. Her wrist corsage was white and pink baby orchids. The groom's mother wore a dress of mint green chiffon and lace. White and pink baby orchids formed her corsage.

Organist for the ceremony was Marilyn Walilko, who was accompanied by a trumpeter. The groom's sister, Pamela Agby, read scripture. Musical coordinator Ruth Ellen Mayhall and Donald Bliss were soloists. A classical string quartet played chamber music before the dinner reception; the Joe Vitale Orchestra provided music for dancing.

The wedding party was transported to and from the chapel in a 1926 Dodge Brothers Deluxe Sedan, owned and driven by Martin L. Bufalini II of Grosse Pointe.

The bride holds a bachelor of science degree from Eastern Michigan University. She did graduate studies at Wayne State University and is employed as a Chapter I reading teacher in Detroit.

The bridegroom holds a bachelor of science degree in business administration and a juris doctor from Wayne State University. He is an attorney and a certified public accountant.

The newlyweds honeymooned on a grand tour of Europe during the month of August. They live in Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Rose
Liddane-Rose

Margaret Irene Liddane, daughter of William and Virginia Liddane of Livonia, married Arthur James Rose, son of Hazel and James Rose of Grosse Pointe Farms, on Aug. 13, 1988, in St. Paul Catholic Church.

The bride's cousin, the Rev. Lawrence O'Keefe, officiated at the 11 a.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Lochmoor Country Club.

The bride wore a chapel length gown of white silk organza, styled with capped, tulip sleeves and a portrait neckline. The bodice of the gown was adorned with Alencon lace and seed pearls. A crown of lace and seed pearls held the bride's chapel length, illusion veil. She carried a bouquet of pink baby roses, freesia and ivy.

The bride's sister, Catherine Liddane of Marina Del Ray, Calif., was the maid of honor. Bridesmaids included the groom's sister, Karen Cartwright of Northford, Conn.; the bride's sister-in-law, Jeanne Liddane of Grosse Pointe Farms; Andrea Logan of Plymouth and Karie Chesebro of Plainfield, Ill.

The groom's niece, Chloe Cartwright of Northford, was the flowergirl.

The attendants wore tea length dresses of teal green and soft pink floral cotton chintz with Elizabethan-style bodices. Each carried a bouquet of baby pink roses and ivy.

Marc Wollard of Grosse Pointe Farms was the best man. Groomsmen included the bride's brothers, Michael Liddane of Grosse Pointe Farms and Matthew Liddane of Westland; Paul Wilson of Arnold, Md., and Robert Guy of Three Rivers.

The mother of the bride wore a tea length dress of peach embroidered handkerchief linen, trimmed with cutout lacework. She wore a picture frame hat and pinned a peach-colored flower to her purse.

The mother of the bridegroom wore a cocktail length dress of peach silk, accented with cutout lacework. Her purse corsage was a peach-colored flower.

David O. Wagner was the organist and soloist for the mass. Celtic bagpipers played at the opening and close of the wedding ceremony.

The bride holds a bachelor of arts in studio art and education from Michigan State University. She is employed as an art teacher with the Grosse Pointe public schools.

The groom holds a bachelor of arts in communications from Michigan State University and is employed as a specifications representative for Pass & Seymour Inc.

The newlyweds honeymooned at The Homestead in Glen Arbor. They live in Grosse Pointe Park.

IMPROVE MORE THAN YOUR ECONOMIC OUTLOOK.

Unlike lesser wagons, the 1989 Peugeot SW8 and SW8 Turbo require virtually no concessions in the area of creature comforts. An unstinting abundance of space allows eight passengers to face forward with separate seats and seat belts for all. And for safety: front and rear impact-absorbing crumple zones, side-impact beams and an immensely strong, protective cage of cold-rolled steel are all Peugeot standards. Before you invest your funds in a wagon, make sure they're earmarked with foresight, not hindsight. Test drive one and see how good it can make your wallet look, too.

Merry Christmas — prices go down

The big question in the December food outlook is the price of Christmas turkey.

Allen Rahn, extension poultry specialist, Michigan State University, forecasts the answer: Retail turkey prices for the pre-Christmas shopping week will hover around the 50-cent-per-pound level, making them comparable to Thanksgiving prices.

Retailers are "taking the hit" on this so look for the same restrictions that were imposed in November, namely one bird per customer or a minimum shopping order. Also, the popularly priced turkey in each store will likely be a private-label, frozen bird basted with broth or vegetable shortening. One thing for sure — there won't be another entree item that will come close to delivering as much value.

Increasing citrus supplies ensure that there will be oranges aplenty for the toes of Christmas stockings. Unless a cold snap intervenes, most citrus will be one of your lower-cost fruits throughout the winter. Tangerines are the exception; they are undersized and overpriced.

Is your teenager smarter than his or her SAT score?

Probably. Even a case of the butterflies can affect your child's SAT score.

To do better, your son or daughter should prepare better. For nearly 40 years, Stanley H. Kaplan's test-taking techniques and professional educational programs have helped over 100,000 students prepare for the SAT. Many have increased their scores 150, 200, as much as 250 points.

Call us. We could be your teenager's smartest move yet.

You'd better watch out . . . if shopping isn't done

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

So December came and along with it went those good resolutions to shop the sales and get presents purchased before the last-minute rush. The weeks before Christmas became days and now you find yourself in the same situation as last year, scurrying around trying to get the right gift for friends and relatives in the last few days before Dec. 25.

Bundling up against the relentless December winds, you set off determined that victory will be yours and you will return laden both with packages and the Christmas spirit.

Despite this sudden burst of adrenalin and moral courage, there are precautions to follow if you are to remain hale and hearty and ready to greet Santa Claus on Christmas. Because for all its possibilities as the year's most wonderful holiday, the preparations leading up to Christmas have some built-in stresses.

This is particularly true for older shoppers. When you were 25, you could shop all day, go to a party at night and get up the next day ready to go. Now, you get tired trying to get something for everyone on your list.

If you are shopping the malls, it is better to go early in the morning and return before the crowd gathers. You will arrive at the stores fresh and alert and have less trouble making decisions about your purchases. Everyone has had the experience of being so worn out they had trouble making up their minds about something they'd been so sure of earlier.

Getting out early is a good rule to follow on other counts. Merchandise is neatly folded and displayed. You know this is a plus if you have ever dug into a pile of items which has been rooted through until it was a jumbled mess. All you can do is reach in and hope you come up with what you are looking for.

Eating wisely is another precautionary measure to ward off mid-shopping let down. You won't go far on a coffee and doughnut breakfast. The addition of a glass of orange juice and a dish of cereal will get you farther along on the completion of your appointed tasks.

It takes stamina to walk the malls and to endure standing in line to purchase an article that has already taken more time than you had planned. And if you are like most shoppers, you begin to resent standing in lines.

You take no comfort in the fact that you are not at the end as you shift packages around to avoid dropping them. You sympathize with the lone clerk who must do whatever it takes to complete each sale, run the credit cards through, verify checks and make change.

If there is any mercy, she has a helper to put the purchases in bags. If not, she must do that, too, all the while answering questions about whether the merchandise comes in a different color or size or if it is marked down or will be discounted next week.

Then there is the battle of the boxes. No way will a size 40 robe fit into that box meant for a medium-sized sweater, but that's all there is.

Then the overworked computer breaks down. The floor manager is called and the clerk takes to pencil and paper, adding the sum and don't forget the sales tax! Forget it! You didn't want the purchase anyway. You give up your place in line to someone more patient and persevering.

Yes, Virginia, there once was service with a smile. That was when sales people actually came out from behind a counter to help you find what you wanted. Your purchase was neatly folded in tissue paper and placed into a real, honest-to-goodness box. You were not handed one of those folded puzzles that takes the dexterity of a pianist to assemble without tearing.

Even more astonishing, you could have the purchase sent to the recipient. It was delivered to the door. In those days you didn't run back and forth to the car to deposit purchases in the trunk . . . or worse, have to juggle the pile as you walked from store to store.

One more thing. If you didn't have the cash and you didn't dare charge another item or write a check, you could use something called lay-away, putting a small amount down and paying the rest when your monetary situation improved.

This is all true. It wasn't made up. So what happened? Progress, I guess.

There is an unwritten rule which goes along with progress. You can't go back, which brings us to the realization that the only way to endure this new and improved shopper's world is to fortify the body with the kind of food that results in stamina and endurance.

You need patience, also, but for that you have to call on other resources, such as charity and sympathy for those struggling along with you.

Prudent shoppers who have not waited for a sudden splurge of energy and heaven-sent inspiration to do their shopping will be spared much of the last-minute shopper's ordeal. But they cannot know that wonderful sense of accomplishment that comes from battling the odds and knowing that once again, as in other years, victory is yours. You have something for everyone on your list.

Still and all, maybe next year . . . no promises. Just a sincere Merry Christmas to all.

An extra-special holiday event at the DIO

Sometimes the old saying "What goes around, comes around," has a pleasant connotation.

Take, for example, last month. A charitable foundation, the Mary Thompson Foundation, made a contribution to a non-profit organization, the Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology. The DIO turned around and used a portion of that donation to help another non-profit group — the Children's Hospital Evergreen Fund.

The Thompson Foundation gift paid the way for 30 visually impaired seniors — all part of the DIO's visually impaired support group, plus 10 sighted volunteers from the Friends of Vision — to visit the Festival of Trees at Cobo Hall Nov. 28. The Festival of Trees is an annual benefit for the Children's Hospital Evergreen Fund.

The trip was unique in several respects, according to the Friends of Vision.

First, it was unusual for everyone to be so wide awake and ready to board the bus at 9 a.m. on the Monday after Thanksgiving. Second, the group chose a very visual event to attend, despite the fact that the majority suffer from severe vision problems. Most are able to distinguish lights, bright colors and shapes, so the brightly lighted colorful trees weren't hard to miss. Sighted volunteers also helped to describe the details and assist those in wheelchairs.

After two hours at Cobo Hall, the group enjoyed a leisurely bus ride back to the eastside, which included a drive around Belle Isle. After lunch, participants returned to the DIO, but not before agreeing that the trip had been enjoyable — and beneficial — for all.

Members of the DIO's Visually Impaired Support Group enjoyed last month's Festival of Trees exhibit at Cobo Hall, accompanied by Friends of Vision volunteers.

Holiday greeting: A hot meal

Detroit Meals-On-Wheels is offering a double holiday gift for the person who has everything — and the homebound senior citizen who is in need of a hot meal and some warm, human contact on Christmas Day.

The gift comes in the form of attractive Meals-On-Wheels holiday greeting cards which sell for $5 each, $50 for a box of 10. Proceeds from each card will buy a $4.50 hot meal to be delivered in the name of the card recipient to a homebound senior citizen in the Detroit area who would otherwise go without a nutritious meal on Christmas.

Paul Bridgewater, executive director of the Detroit Area Agency on Aging, said, "How else can you purchase a holiday gift for only $5 and yet buy so much?"

In 1989, Detroit Meals-On-Wheels hopes to expand the program to include other holidays and weekend meals.

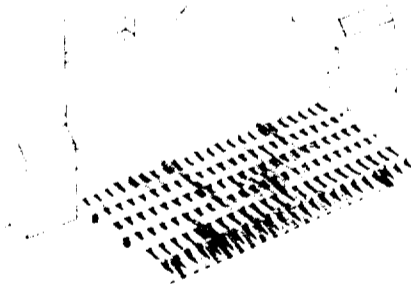

The holiday greeting cards may be purchased by calling Cheryl Kimelman at the Detroit Area Agency on Aging at 222-5330.

HOW MANY DOLLARS
DID YOU DEDUCT?

How many dollars did you deduct on last year's income tax return for mortgage interest? If the answer is NONE, read on?

Many career-minded people feel that a disproportionately large share of their income goes toward the payment of federal income taxes. Perhaps that's true for you also.

To simplify matters, let's say that you're in the 28% tax bracket. Do you realize that by owning your own home with payments of $800 per month, you might actually have an initial tax saving of up to $2,688 per year ($224 per month)? And with a $800 monthly payment, less a $224 monthly tax saving, you would have a net house payment of $576 per month! On top of that your house value should increase significantly each year.

If you feel you've been paying too much income tax and want to change that part of your life, call our office. With no obligation or cost to you whatsoever, we'll show you how to make that change — painlessly.

Grosse Pointe A Unique Community

A Cultural Cornucopia Appreciation of the arts begins at an early age for Grosse Pointe children. The public library, a division of the Grosse Pointe Public School System, offers, at no cost, a variety of children's reading programs at various locations.

For adults, the library programs range from travel films to informative presentations on subjects of current interest. These too are free to residents of all the Grosse Pointes.

Another great source of local culture is the beautiful War Memorial Center, the former mansion of the Russell A. Alger family. With its subsequently added ballroom and theater overlooking Lake St. Clair, the center is a community attraction that rivals the many private clubs in the area. Here—open to all residents—are offered art classes and exhibits, lectures, concerts, plays, ballet and social dancing instruction, and children's theater, as well as membership in a long list of special-interest clubs whose focus is either cultural, informative or just plain fun.

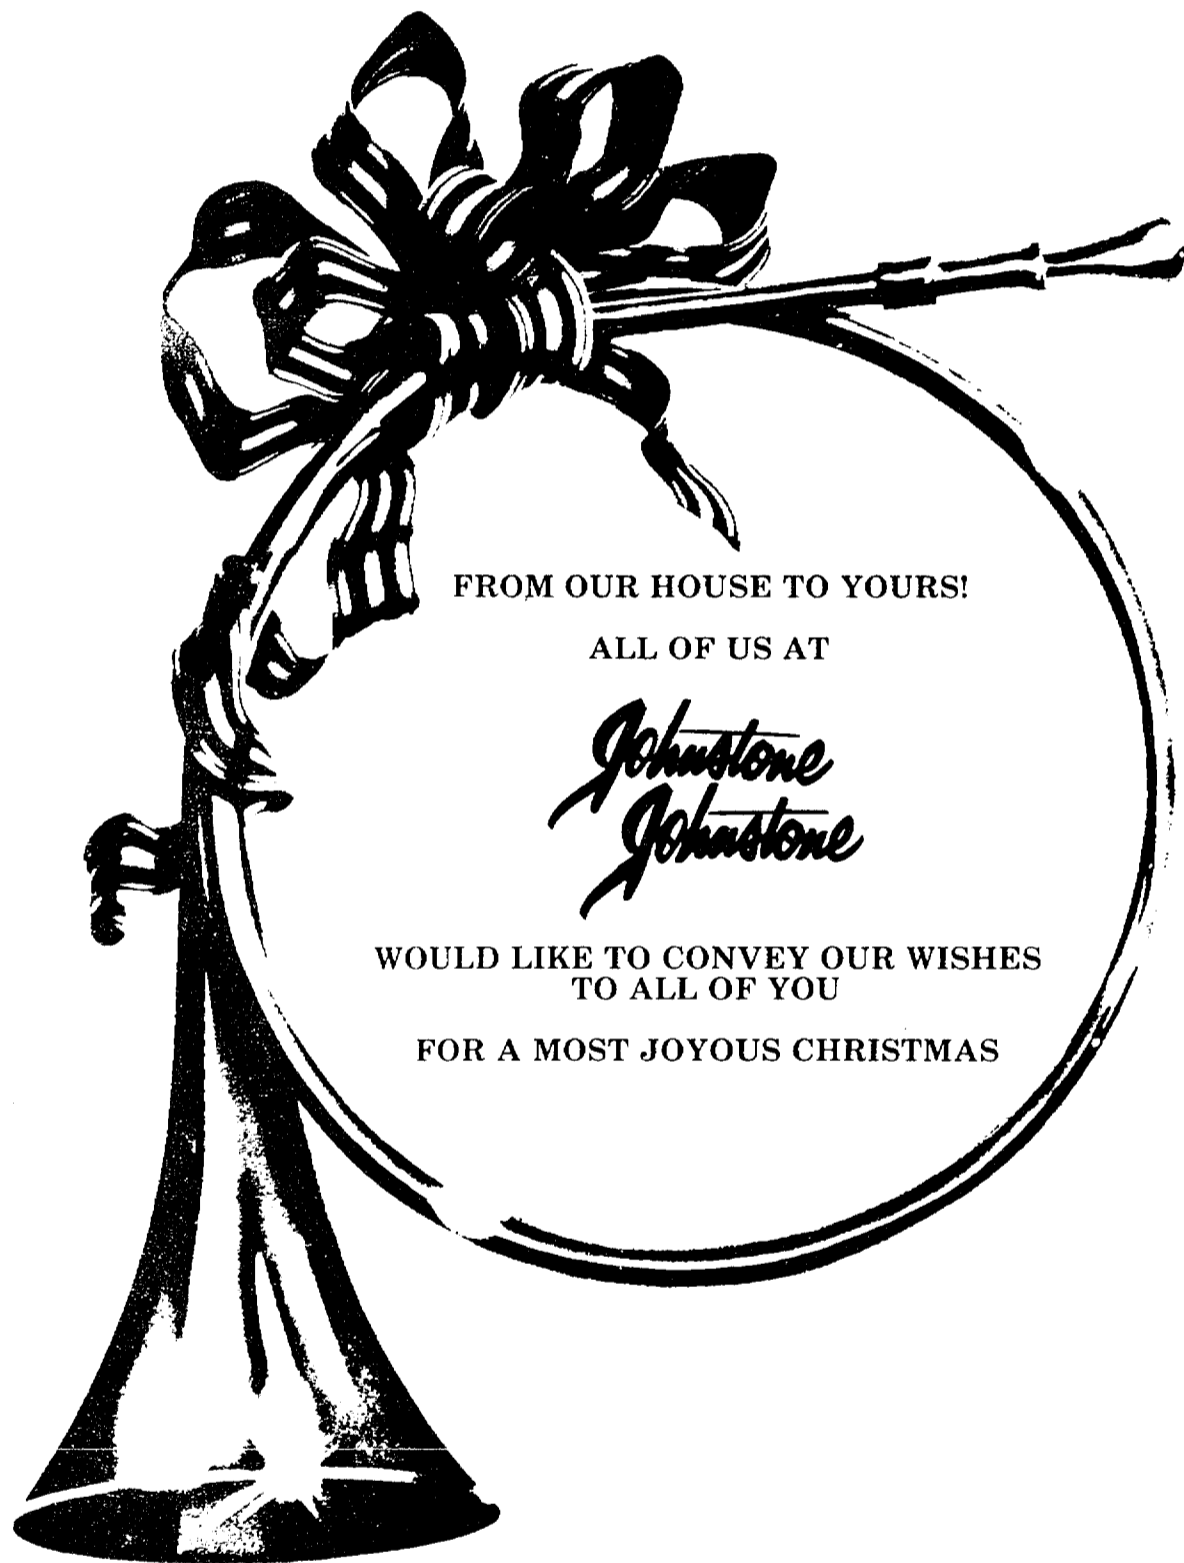

A most recent addition to public property is the Edsel and Eleanor Ford House. Designed by architect Albert Kahn and supported by a $15 million endowment, this gracious replica of an English manor house is now open for tours and is used for meetings, fund-raising events and several series of "house" concerts.

SPACIOUS EXECUTIVE RANCH, designed for entertaining 2,200 sq. ft. of quality features family room, library, attached garage, two natural fireplaces, and much more.

Don't forget

Many times we open the sports pages and discover — again — that the heralded and revered players are at it once again.

They will continue to take up the ink and fill the space, but many times we neglect to report or feature the people behind the scenes.

I tipped the paperboy and sent out Christmas cards this year, but I haven't recognized the "small" people in life who make the big things function easier.

This time of year let's not forget:

- Waterboys and student trainers.
- The good-hearted efforts that athletes make to give the homeless and needy a memorable holiday season.
- Maintenance people who sweep the basketball floor between games.
- Poster-makers and sign artists.
- Scorekeepers and public address announcers.
- Coaches' spouses.
- Sports editors (just tossed that in).
- Physicians who tend to kids' injuries.

Remember Zamboni

- High school mascots.
- Zamboni drivers.
- Caddies.
- People who wash uniforms.
- Mothers who keep meals warm for their athletically inclined sons and daughters.
- Die-hard fans.
- Coaches who care.
- Sports editors (just a reminder).
- Equipment managers.

Those who throw, those who clean

- People who throw confetti.
- People who clean up after hockey games.
- Parents who supply pre-game meals.
- The board members of the Grosse Pointe Hockey Association.
- Sports shop owners.
- Concession stand workers.
- Ticket-takers.
- People who sing or play the national anthem.
- Sports editors (who like cashews).

Tossing paper

- People who groom baseball fields.
- Referees and officials.
- People who never play a down.
- Athletes who enjoy their privilege.
- People who don't throw toilet paper when a basketball player makes a shot.
- Weekend joggers.
- Baseball card collectors.
- People who have to string a new net on the hoop when it's torn.
- People who enjoy sports.
- Individuals who read sports sections.
- Sports editors (who wear jerseys of all sorts).
- Rescue workers on ski slopes who come to the aid of would-be skiers.
- Fans who travel to watch their team.

Whether you're a fan or a fanatic, I hope your holidays are bright and the New Year is pleasant. May Santa fill your baskets with balls and your pockets with pocket sports calendars.

ULS takes runner-up brass; South third

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

As far as hockey coaches Tim Zimmerman (South) and John Fowler (University Liggett School) are concerned, Southgate Anderson is more than deserving of its No. 3 ranking in the Class A polls.

The Titans rolled into McCann Rink for the second consecutive ULS/South Hockey Invitational Dec. 16-17 and rolled out with an impressive 2-0 record to capture the trophy.

South slipped into the consolation game against East Grand Rapids after losing to Anderson, 5-0, in the first night of action. ULS reached the finals by dousing EGR, 13-1, behind Doug Wood's four goals.

In the championship game, the Knights (6-3-1) were out to regain the respect they may have lost earlier in the year when Anderson dumped them 9-2. They got it, but had to settle for the runner-up trophy after losing, 4-1.

South (4-5-1) on the other hand, has been struggling somewhat through the young season, and the weaker EGR squad was just what the Blue Devils needed as they skated to an 8-3 victory.

"With the way we've been playing, East Grand Rapids didn't look like a weak team," Zimmerman said. "In all the games we've won this year, we have had a comfortable lead and almost blown it. This time it was no different.

South took a 2-0 lead at the end of one period on goals by Pat Clavet and Jim Pappas. Brad Warezak tallied twice in the second period and Clavet added his second of the night to extend the Devils' lead to 5-0 at the end of two periods.

"When we physically got on them, we scored," Zimmerman said. "We were up real big, but we've been in that situation before and we let up. I think we let up again."

Andy Busse scored South's sixth goal after the Pioneers beat netminder Chris Paul with two quick goals, but Brink Cawley drilled a shot to give South a four-goal cushion, 7-3.

"We wanted to continue to keep the puck in their zone and cut down on time spent in our own end," Zimmerman said. "We were doing that, but near the end we let up somewhat."

Busse tucked in his second of the night with 3:32 left to close out the scoring for South, which outshot the Pioneers, 36-18.

"Busse played real well," Zimmerman said about his captain. "For the first time this season he took the game under control. Peter Bourke also played well for us."

Last year in the tourney South finished fourth after losing to the Knights in the consolation bracket. This year team play contributed to the third-place finish.

"We played well," Zimmerman said. "We wanted to play better with regard to puck control and we wanted to physically forecheck. We didn't cut down as much on time spent in our zone as I would have liked, but we did forecheck better."

In the ULS contest, Shannon Nowowiecki and Doug Wood, two premier players in Class C, teamed up for a goal in the first period that cut Anderson's early lead to 2-1 with 2:55 left in the period. It was Nowowiecki's fifth goal in two nights, and Wood's fifth assist. Wood also had four goals in the lopsided win over EGR.

"You can't say enough about those kids," Fowler said. "They skate so well and work so well together."

Anderson, a more physical team, fired 31 shots at goalie Mark Sullivan while ULS pummeled Rich Nagy with 26 shots in a tight, well-played game.

"We wanted to keep it close and score when we had the chances," Fowler said. "We had the opportunities to capitalize after we beat their forwards and defensemen, but Nagy was tough to beat."

After the first period, Fowler was concerned about carrying out the game plan for the remaining 30 minutes.

"We wanted to continue checking," he said. "I think Anderson was a bit surprised that we were that physical. We wanted to stick with all that because it could have been trouble if we got away from our plans."

South's Chris Paul stops East Grand Rapids here. Paul, starting in only his second game, earned the 8-3 win between the pipes for the Blue Devils.

The Knights followed Fowler's map during the scoreless second period and into the third before the Titans scored their third goal with just over five minutes remaining.

"We came out at the start of that period with one thing in mind and that was to get the next goal," Fowler said. "We had many shots on goal, but you've got to bury them (pucks) for them to count."

ULS continued to bomb Nagy, but he wouldn't surrender. ULS even had six power play opportunities, but failed to benefit.

"If we could have scored on one or two of those it could give us the lead or at least tied it," Fowler said. "The thing I was most impressed with is that we didn't give up when they scored that third goal. We kept battling."

With seven seconds left, Anderson won the battle and the war by netting its fourth goal.

"I think it's a credit to the kids," Fowler said in reference to how the kids played a state-championship caliber team. "The kids turned in a strong team effort, but just didn't capitalize on the opportunities they created. Anderson is a very, very good team."

ULS won't play again until Jan. 7, and South resumes play on Jan. 6 at Midland Dow.

The All-Tournament Team included South's Kevin Nesler, Andy Busse and Peter Bourke. Mike Coello, Wood and Nowowiecki represented ULS.

Stuck in the middle is Southgate Anderson's Charles Mathews. Surrounding Mathews are the Knights of ULS. Bob Scoville (15), Jonathon Davis (11) and Akil Adams. Anderson beat ULS 4-1 in the championship game of the ULS/South Hockey Invitational.

Take precautions during winter exercise

With winter now upon us, the time has come to get out the winter sports equipment and prepare for skiing, ice skating and enjoying other winter activities.

Just as the equipment must be prepared, the preparation of the individual must also occur so that strains, sprains and other injuries are minimized during this time.

It is common during the summer season to see people warming up as they prepare to run, swim, play golf or tennis. Warming up by stretching and starting slowly is equally very important in the winter sports.

Riding up to the top of a ski slope on a chair lift for the first run of the day, or strapping on the ice skates without warming up is inviting sprains and strains by overstretching those muscles which aren't ready. Winter sports use a different set of muscle groups that may not be ready for the sport early in the season. Therefore, these muscles must have a chance to get stretched out and warmed up for the exercise. Although warming up may appear to slow you down in getting to the enjoyment of that winter sport, not warming up and straining a muscle may put you out for the season.

A lot of rumors have been spread on the potential dangers of inhaling too much cold air as we enjoy winter sports. Most of these rumors are false.

In a normal cold winter day with temperatures above the freezing level, no special precautions need to be taken.

As the temperature drops below freezing and particularly if you are exercising vigorously in sub-zero temperatures, covering your mouth with a scarf or disposable mask is advisable.

At normal breathing rates, the mouth and nose warm the cold air before it gets to the lungs, so play it safe. If the temperatures are much below the freezing level and certainly if it is sub-zero, wear a scarf over the nose and mouth to warm the air you breathe.

Inhaling cold air, even in small amounts, can cause bronchospasm in some people. This is a constriction of the small airways in the lungs. People who develop this problem usually notice difficulty in breathing as soon as they get into the cold air. If this happens to you, you should see your doctor and have a test performed to see if taking inhaled medication before starting to exercise will prevent the shortness of breath.

This can happen to athletes who are accustomed to running and continue to exercise when the weather is cold. Individuals may discover that they are very short of breath only a short distance from their house while on their daily run. Again, this is usually a preventable condition and should be investigated by a visit to your doctor.

Frostbite is always a risk in cold weather. Remember that the intensity of cold on exposed skin is increased with the speed of the wind blowing across it.

Skiing, skating, running or any other sport like sledging exposes the skin to high-speed wind blowing on the skin. This can cause frostbite much more quickly than would normally happen in still air. It's advisable to check your and your child's nose, cheeks and ears frequently during winter sports to see how cold these parts are becoming.

Warm them frequently and go indoors immediately if any area of skin appears white, bluish or frozen. A frozen part of the body becomes numb from the cold which allows the body part to freeze even more completely.

There have been cases of penile and breast nipple frostbite in runners who were not aware that these parts of their bodies were getting too cold. So, beware of wind chill induced by high speed winter sports.

Otherwise, enjoy the winter season. With the cold, crisp air comes a wonderful opportunity to exercise. Getting out in the cold burns off calories, tightens up those flabby parts and generally makes you feel good all over.

Eat Smart

By Mary Busse

Travel the goal-den road.

Another New Year, another list of resolutions.

By striving to continually improve ourselves, we set many first-of-the-year goals and like thousands of people, one of those goals is to lose those unwanted pounds.

But also like many, we know what we want but we aren't too sure on how to attain it. That is where the power of goal setting comes in.

Like every other undertaking, knowing the correct way to establish goals will go a long way in assuring the success of your goal. The saying, "If you fail to plan, you plan to fail," may sound trite, but it does prove to be right on target almost every time.

Selecting a destination

So, where do you start? Begin by selecting a goal that you really want to achieve. Once you choose your goal, you must also draw a map of how to reach your destination. Otherwise, it's like putting your car in drive, but having no idea what route to take. It would be a waste of time and effort if you were to drive around hoping to stumble upon the right road.

It is the same with goals. The goal is your destination, but you must take action to reach your success in various areas of your life.

First, put yourself in the driver's seat. If you want to lose weight, you have to do the driving. In other words, you can't let someone else decide for you that losing weight is what you must do. Losing weight will take hard work and dedication. If you really don't want this for yourself, then it will be too easily tossed aside when the tough part begins.

Once you decide your goal, draw your map with the best route possible. According to motivational expert Bob Conklin, "If people operated their cars the way most operate their lives, they would never get out of the driveway."

Once you have charted your course, make sure to schedule all of the check points along the way. This is where you establish the difference between long-term and short-term goals. The total weight-loss of those extra pounds is the long-term goal, but the total amounts must be broken down into smaller increments, amounts that can be accomplished each day. These mini-successes of one pound at a time, will add up to your final destination.

At Diet Center, we use the following as one of our favorite examples:

Imagine for instance, that you plan to drive from Detroit to Florida for vacation. If I told you I plan on being in Florida in six hours, you would not get in the car because you would think I had some problems, and serious ones at that! What would be reasonable, would be to plan on arriving as far as Knoxville, in a reasonable time frame. From Knoxville we would plan the next leg of the trip, and so on, while bearing in mind Florida is our destination.

The same holds true for planning weight-loss strategy. You have to break the total pounds into attainable increments. Also, keep in mind that you may have a flat tire along the way.

Just as in the trip to Florida example, the flat tire would not force us to come home. We would fix it and would once again be on our way. So, it is with losing those extra pounds you may run into an unexpected road block or problem, but it can be corrected.

The following four-step program can be used for successful goal setting.

- 1) Do it now. You have taken the time to think about losing weight probably before the holidays even began, so don't wait any longer. There are 52 Mondays in a year, but none better than this one now. The longer you wait to put your thoughts into action, the longer success is postponed.

- 2) Be realistic. Confidence is important, but not to the point of assuming "super powers." Don't overdo it by setting a goal that is impossible (losing 15 pounds in one week). Certain limitations must be recognized. Establish those short-term goals and you will reach the end result.

- 3) Write it down. For all the good intentions, only a recorded 3 percent actually employ this vital step. The written goal has become visible, tangible item, a type of contract has been established and is much harder to put aside.

When putting pen to paper, be very specific. Contemplate and include every foreseeable loophole that could hamper the fulfillment of the contract. Being specific also provides guidelines as to whether the goal has been accomplished. And, post your written goal where you can see it often.

- 4) Set a time schedule. This step requires a realistic approach. The time limit should be neither too short, or too long. You know yourself best, so you should set the schedule according to your needs.

It often helps to consult with another person to evaluate and help determine whether you have been too strict, or too lenient on yourself.

Even if your attempts have been unsuccessful before, don't allow yourself to quit. Just put the attempt in its proper place — the past.

It is advantageous to learn from past mistakes and then steer clear of repetition. Do not, however, dwell on mistakes because you can set yourself up for failure.

The successful people of this world have all experienced failure, but what separates them is their determination to get back up each time and keep on going.

Rules to fool the sugar fairy

The holidays are a time for giving.

Unfortunately, what we usually give ourselves over the holidays are a few extra pounds.

Lorraine Stefano, A.C.S.W., founder and director of Think Trim, has been helping people develop a more positive attitude about themselves and their relationship to food.

The following are Stefano's tips to join in the holiday fun without gaining weight.

- 1) Look forward to the fun of holidays rather than the good. Discover other activities and traditions to enjoy during the festive season.

- 2) Start your New Year's resolution to be healthy today and think of how much further along you'll be by Jan. 1.

- 3) Cut down, but don't cut out. Cut down on your portions rather than on your selections. You won't feel deprived and you will lose weight.

- 4) Don't choose a candy by its cover. The foil-wrapped chocolate Santa was Thanksgiving's turkey, which used to be the Halloween candy, which will eventually be the Valentine's heart.

- 5) Quit saying, "I always gain weight over the holidays." If you insist on telling yourself you'll gain weight, you will.

- 6) Leave the table satisfied, not stuffed. Stuffing is only for turkeys.

- 7) Try not to let the cookie cutter fool you. The cookies shaped like angels, bells, candy canes and snowmen, all taste alike.

- 8) Find the true joy of the holiday season in family, friends and festivities — not food.

- 9) Holiday food? There is no such thing. Don't get your fill for the year right now. Prepare your favorite holiday foods when you want them. Yes, even in July.

- 10) Find nutritious, delicious, calorie-controlled foods for this time of the year and enjoy the holiday season.

The art of walking for fitness

Fitness walking, also called exercise walking, has become one of the most popular forms of exercise in America.

Recent surveys indicate that 58 million people walked for exercise in 1987, up from 54 million the year before. Of that 58 million, 31 percent were 55 years or older making walking the most popular activity among this age group.

Fitness walking is the term commonly used to describe brisk, continuous walking that is done often enough, vigorous enough and long enough to provide cardiorespiratory, or aerobic benefits. Walking with a consistent, steady and uninterrupted pace for at least 20 minutes three times per week, benefits your heart, lungs, circulation and helps control weight and reduce stress.

Supplement your walking program with strengthening and stretching exercises and you will improve your muscle tone and flexibility.

Standard walking or strolling is not considered fitness walking. However, if you are a beginner to exercise and have led an inactive life, start out slowly before working up to a vigorous pace. As you progress to a brisk pace you will find that your breathing and heart rate will increase. That shows that your cardiores-piratory system is getting a workout. You should never, however, feel that you can't catch your breath.

Three to four miles per hour is a brisk walking pace, four to five miles per hour is considered vigorous.

In fitness walking, proper form is important. Maintain good posture, with your back erect, eyes ahead and let your arms swing naturally by your sides. Keep a smooth pace and take long, even strides. Breathe naturally and evenly.

In the beginning, choose a level surface. As your fitness level increases you may want to tackle some hills and a more challenging course. Warm-up for about five minutes before your workout and gradually slow your pace before coming to a complete stop. Make sure to stretch the muscles behind your leg on a regular basis, and especially after you complete the workout.

One reason fitness walking is popular is the ease with which it can be done and the minimal equipment needed. Actually, a good pair of walking shoes and comfortable clothes are all that's necessary. Well-designed walking shoes accommodate the heel-toe motion of walking and provide stability.

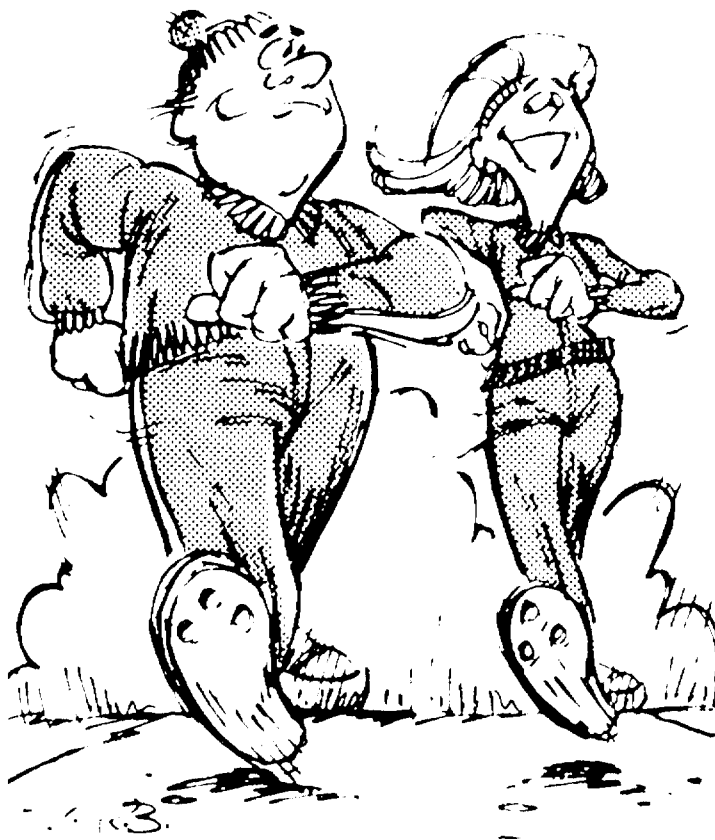

Yes, walking is easy. But keeping with a fitness program does require some degree of effort and consistency.

If you are new to exercise or have a medical condition that may affect your fitness program, check with a physician first. Then, learn the basics of fitness walking and choose an enjoyable place to walk.

Hoffman makes 'Rain Man' one of year's best films

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

Two men cruise down a stretch of rural highway in their 1949 Buick Roadster convertible. The driver's perfectly coiffed hair blows in the breeze and a pair of dark sunglasses conceals his penetratingly descriptive eyes. The passenger's short hair remains close to his head, which is tilted unknowingly to one side. His eyes say nothing. He stares at the passing world, and inside himself.

The conversation is of the passenger's ability to drive, which, under the circumstances, seems questionable. The mundane debate goes back and forth until, without missing a beat, the passenger says: "Of course, I'm not wearing any underwear."

The scene is a definitive one from "Rain Man." Director Barry Levinson's poignant and emotional exploration of an autistic man (Dustin Hoffman) and his younger brother (Tom Cruise). The film presents what is easily the most layered and thoughtful work Hoffman has done in his career.

That statement, hyperbolic though it may sound, is the truth. One would be hard pressed to point out a more thorough, complete Hoffman performance among his impressive list of films. At this point, he seems a shoe-in for an Oscar nomination.

Before Hoffman is introduced in the picture, we meet Charlie Babbitt (Cruise), a young Los Angeles businessman man who gets what he wants. He's the type of salesman who can lie through his teeth, and simultaneously wrap up two mega-dollar deals and be halfway to Palm Springs for a vacation. So when his recently deceased father is less-than-generous in his will, Charlie is less-than-thrilled.

Babbitt's rich father has left his estranged son the roadster and a prized rose collection. The remainder of his $3 million estate has been placed into a trust fund for Charlie's autistic older brother Raymond (Hoffman), an individual Charlie never knew existed before the death.

Mad at his father and seeking revenge, Charlie kidnaps Raymond from his group home in Cincinnati. He figures he can take Raymond back to L.A., and keep him there until the trustee of the estate agrees to give Charlie his share of the money.

An airplane flight to the West Coast is definitely out of the question since Raymond is afraid to fly. That makes for a long car trip, especially since Raymond refuses to travel in the rain.

Indeed, there's a lot about Raymond that's different. And special, too. That's what Charlie learns over the course of a week-long journey on the road. Raymond's life is rooted in routine. That's why he must watch "The People's Court" on television no matter where he is. That's why he needs to have eight fish sticks and lime jello for dinner on Wednesday. That's why he insists on going back to a Cincinnati K-Mart for a pair of boxer shorts, even though they are in Utah. That's why the syrup has to be on the table before the pancakes.

But despite his inability to function in a normal way, Raymond has an uncanny memory and ability with numbers. By looking in the phone book, he can memorize everyone's phone number. All of them. By looking at a fallen box of toothpicks, he can accurately determine how many are on the floor. By counting cards, he can be a big winner at Caesar's Palace.

"Rain Man" is not about presenting a one-man sideshow, however. It's about a developing relationship between two brothers. And while the film's thesis is obviously the emotional maturation of Charlie, there is no doubt the picture rides almost completely on Hoffman's reading of Raymond.

Hoffman steals the camera from the first moment he appears, then never lets go. By the time the 130-minute film has run its course, viewers have grown weary of Raymond's demands. But they've also grown to love him.

Cruise, for his part, is plenty believable and impressive. The reality however, is that he is only a foil for Hoffman's performance. Cruise's Charlie responds to Hoffman's Raymond much as one would expect, first with misunderstanding, later with anger, finally with love.

The movies don't get any better than "Rain Man" for pure emotion, entertainment and downright satisfaction. It is easily one of the year's 10 best offerings.

Maybe the best.

'My Stepmother is an Alien' is out of this world

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

If ever highways to the sky become a reality, there should be a mad rush by earthlings to migrate to those fabled Shangri Las where there are no wars, sickness and one lives forever.

How could a person go wrong if those other worlds are everything as reported in "E.T.," "Cocoon" and now "My Stepmother is an Alien"?

"My Stepmother" is particularly convincing. If all those who live in space looked like her, it would be worth the trip. Her name is, appropriately, Celeste and she is played by Kim Basinger, who has graced many films with her out-of-this-world face and figure.

In "Stepmother" she is beamed down to earth, courtesy of Dr. Steve Mills (Dan Aykroyd) a nerdy radar astronomer. Mills, who has been trying to reach planets light years away in space, pushed the wrong button and voila! Celeste, a gorgeous, seductive creature, comes to call. The mystery is why has this ravishing woman chosen Mills to host her earthly visit?

There's nothing special about him. He has long foregone social contacts in favor of science. He is a little roundish, the type whose pants tend to slide down from his waist unless they are anchored with a belt. He is a widower with a 13-year-old daughter, whom he loves but neglects to notice is growing into a young woman.

Celeste is not traveling alone. In a purse which she carries at all times is a mean-looking snake-like creature who unwinds himself at crucial times to instruct her on how to behave.

Celeste is far from being a typical spy. Besides being radiantly beautiful, she is vivacious, and utterly charming in her innocence of the pleasures earth has to offer, such as the delights of ham and cheese on rye, and sex and marriage, all of which she embraces with equal ardor.

Mills, who can't believe his luck, falls madly in love with her.

For a scientist his power of deduction appears to be nil. He accepts without question that she doesn't know what a kiss is, much less sex. This ignorance on the part of Celeste provides material for some of the funniest segments in the film.

The only person who suspects Celeste of being something other than she appears is Jessie, Mills daughter. She reports her misgivings to her father after she observes Celeste drinking battery acid and eating cigarettes — life-sustaining food for aliens. He attributes her suspicions to jealousy.

This nonsensical film is made special by its two stars, Aykroyd and Basinger. Aykroyd is perfect as the bumbling scientist who can't believe what has happened to his life and Basinger brings more than a spectacular face and body to her role as an otherworldly beauty. She shows a marked talent for comedy.

Alyson Hannigan as Aykroyd's daughter gives a good performance as a spirited girl who welcomes Celeste as a stepmother even as she wonders about her.

John Lovitz as Aykroyd's brother is a real party animal who won't settle for anything less than Princess Stephanie of Monaco. His man-of-the-world character contrasts with Aykroyd's sheltered innocence.

"My Stepmother is an Alien" provides a pleasurable evening.

It's love at first sight for Dan Aykroyd's scientist as he meets Kim Basinger's alien.

DIA to present 'Alice in Wonderland'

If you are looking for a little "jabberwocky" and a lot of smiles this holiday season, you can find them both at the Detroit Institute of Arts' Youthcentre presentation of Alice in Wonderland. Detroit's own Prince Street Players' musical adaption of everyone's favorite adventure story comes to life in an extravaganza of limericks, songs and riddles, designed to delight audiences of all ages.

The Prince Street Players were founded in 1964 by Jim Eiler and Jeanne Bary in Greenwich Village, N.Y., quickly gaining North American fame as family entertainers. In 1965, the troop won the Emmy for outstanding children's classics. Since 1982, they have headquartered their spectacular children's productions at the Detroit Youthcentre.

The creative energy of Eiler's lyrics and Bary's music have coupled for the highly rated Alice in Wonderland production, sparking the imagination of children, at their level, and adults on a higher level.

The Prince Street Players have taken Alice in Wonderland on a nationwide tour this year, and will return to their home, the DIA's auditorium/theatre, for 10 performances Dec. 27 through 31 at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. daily.

Corey Goodrich is Alice and Layne Sanden is The White Rabbit in The Prince Street Players' musical production of "Alice in Wonderland" at The Detroit Institute of Arts' Youthcentre.

General admission tickets at $5 each and Youthcentre's Discount Season Pass, good for 10 admissions throughout the current season, may be purchased in advance through the DIA ticket office and at the door.

Detroit Film Theatre begins 15th year at DIA

The Detroit Film Theatre — the popular weekend movie program at the Detroit Institute of Arts — kicks off its 15th anniversary season on Jan. 6.

A celebration of most important new works discovered at film festivals from Cannes to Montreal, the selection is a temporary departure from the traditional format of first-run films on Friday, classics on Saturday and Sunday.

The season opens with Louis Malle's classic and controversial 1971 comedy of adolescence, "Murmur of the Heart." Unavailable on American screens for nearly a decade, its exclusive Jan. 6-8 and 13-15 run at the DIA is made possible by special permission of the director.

The year will be marked by a number of other important premieres, including Denmark's epic "Pelle the Conqueror," which captured the grand prize at the Cannes Film Festival and stars Max van Sydow; "Women On The Verge of a Nervous Breakdown," a wickedly funny comedy and Spain's official entry in this year's Academy Awards for Best Foreign Film, "Hotel Terminus," the long-awaited documentary on the life of Klaus Barbie and the six-hour film adaption of Charles Dickens "Little Dorrit," starring Alex Guinness.

It's 'Tween time

Working on the final plans for a Project HOPE League of Metropolitan Detroit's 30th birthday celebration, 'Tween '88, are, from left, (front) Toni Sclafani of Mount Clemens and Herman Mozer of Grosse Pointe and (back) Sigrid Carlson of Grosse Pointe Woods and John McCormack of Grosse Pointe Farms.

'Tween '88 is set for Thursday, Dec. 29, at the University Club, 1411 East Jefferson Ave. Tickets are $22 in advance, $25 at the door (40 percent of the donation is tax deductible). The evening includes dancing to the Jerry Luck Band, hors d'oeuvres and a cash bar. Monies benefit the Children's Rehabilitation Center, Krakow, Poland. For more information, call 792-0003.

Flames 3, Stars 2
Eric Przepiora's hat trick was all the Flames needed. Hoban and Weyhing tallied for the Proform Stars. Defensively, the Flames' Matt Kenney and Tim French performed well, and Giffer and Kerwin skated well for the Flames.

Flames 6, Wings 2
Robert Stars led the Flames with a hat trick, and Patrick White, Natalie Brewer and Przepiora added single goals. Ben Karle, Brett Fletcher and Adam Fishman played well for the winners.

Chris Auty and Dennis Ignagni scored for the Red Wings, while Aaron Wudyka, Kevin Gee and Elizabeth Auty played well.

Sabres 5, Coney 2
J. Donohue, R. Bair, C.J. Williamson, M. Kujawski and A. Morris scored for the BDO Seidman Sabres. A. Shipton and J.B. Cisco drew assists.

Chris Hollaway scored both goals for the Coney and N. Komer guarded the nets. A. Schorer played well for the Sabres.

Sabres 8, Devils 1

M. Blenman and J.B. Cisco scored their first career goals and Kujawski (2), A. Morris (2), M. Robson and Donohue added the goals in the lopsided win.

D. Franklin blasted the goal for the Devils. C.J. Williamson and J.P. Delanrien played well in net.

Rockets 4, Raiders 3

Charlie Braun scored two goals as the Monroe's Rockets came from behind to nip the Ram's Horn Raiders.

Other goal scorers for the Rockets were Michael Kasiborski and Danny Baskel. The Raiders got goals from Robbie Crandall, John Staniszewski and Mike Getz. Goalies J.C. Tibbits (Rockets) and Matt Farr (Raiders) were strong in net.

Raiders 3, Magics 1

Gene Baratta recorded the win in net for the Raiders, while Joey Baratta (2) and John Staniszewski buried the third goal on a pass from Mike Getz. Sara Nixon, assisted by Justin Lariscy, scored for the Magics.

Raiders 3, Arrows 2

Mary Meade and Adam Raab scored for the Arrows, while Baratta, Anthony Curis and Alex Chapman scored for the winners. Matt Farr (Raiders) played well in net.

Rockets 2, Talons 2

Abby Fox scored two goals for the Talons, but Baskel and Aaron Bayko knotted it for the Rockets.

Ryan Durant and Matt Borushko played well for the Talons, while Charlie Eldridge and J.C. Tibbits starred for Monroe's.

Rockets 3, Stallions 3

The Monthly Detroit Stallions got goals in the final minutes from Troy Bergman and K.C. Anderson to tie the Rockets.

Justin Holmes tallied for the Stallions, while Michael Kasiborski, Ryan Oren and Anthony Tocco scored for Monroe's.

Coney 6, Wings 4

Chris Hollaway's hat trick helped the Coney, as did goals by Brad Balesky (2) and Steven Owens. R.J. Wolney assisted.

Mark McCuien, Pat Manion, Nate Marshall and Chris Auty scored for the Wings.

Mite Travel

The Grosse Pointe Bandits routed Livingston, 10-2.

Scoring their first goals of the season were Brian Brown and Chris Mitchell. Other goal scorers were Mark Aronson, Danny Gilen, Steve Andris (2), Brian Fehling (2), George Andary and David Legwand.

The Bandits, who got off to a slow 0-5-1 start, have turned things around to now establish a .500 record. Coach George Gilen is assisted by Sarke Solomon, George Andary and Dave Aronson.

Squirt

Blackhawks 5, Devils 1

Peter Sullivan and Jamie Whitehead each scored twice for the Blackhawks. Frank Zimmer, Nick Miotke, Todd Goodwin and Browe Merriweather drew assists.

Matt Lariscy scored an unassisted goal for the Devils. Tim Brady, Ian McMillan and Paul Huebner skated well for the Devils, and Andy Hunt tended goal.

Hawks 3, SCS Devils 2

Whitehead, Miotke and Peter Sullivan scored to beat the SCS Blue Devils.

Matt Prozaki played well between the pipes and Brent Kuhar played an excellent game.

Selleke and Peltier scored for the Blue Devils. Beyto drew an assist and Liss guarded the net.

Squirt B

Canadians 2, Rebels 1
Geoff and Tim Kimmel accounted for the Canadians' goals as the Joe Ricci Canadians slipped past the Fraser Rebels.

Tom Stroble, George Massu and Danny Sylvester drew assists.

Cliff Magreta, Doug Semack, Jed Scott and Leo Salvaggio played well for the winners.

Canadians 5, Bulldogs 2
Geoff Kimmel and Andrew Ricci broke a tie with a pair of scores midway through the third period.

Kimmel had two earlier goals and an open netter to account for the four points. Massu, Tim Kimmel and Andrew Ricci recorded assists.

Blake Kenny, Tim Kimmel, Massu and Sylvester, along with goalie Behi Rabbani, held the Bulldogs to only two goals.
