Pierce team to test mental skills at world tournament

Staff Writer A group of Pierce Middle School students will be taking their creative talents to Colorado later this month to participate in Odyssey of the Mind's world competition.

Shores vote is Tuesday

Voters in Grosse Pointe Shores will elect a president and four trustees to the council Tuesday, May 16. Profiles of the candidates appeared in last week's paper. There is also a story on a write-in candidate this week. Endorsements are on page 6A.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. at Vernier School. Voters may apply for absentee ballots at the village offices by 2 p.m. Saturday, May 13.

2 out of 3 appeals win

Two-thirds of the 399 property owners in Grosse Pointe Woods who appealed their new assessments in March succeeded in getting them reduced.

Of the 399 property owners who went before the Board of Review March 14 and March 28, 256 got their assessments lowered. For each $1,000 reduction in assessment, the property owner saves $1 per mill on the tax bill.

For example, if a tax bill totals 45 mills, and the homeowner got his assessment reduced by $6,000, then he would have to pay $270 less in taxes.

The sum of all the appealed assessments totaled $36.5 million. The successful appeals lowered the total by $1.6 million, or 4.4 percent. The $1.6 million reduction spread out over the 256 successful challengers equals an average reduction of assessments of $6,270. The actual reductions

Principal named at South High

By Margie Reins Smith Staff Writer

John B. Artis, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, was named the new principal of Grosse Pointe South High School at Monday's school board meeting. He will begin July 1.

Acting Principal Russ Luttinen, who assumed Ed Shine's duties, will return to his position as South's assistant principal for student services. Shine was named assistant superintendent in December 1988.

The selection ends a search that has lasted for more than a year by a 12-member committee consisting of administrators, teachers, students and parents.

This may not be the best timing," Whritner said, referring to the April 10 defeat of the school's request for a 27.55-mill package. The 27.55-mills included renewal and a 2.2-mill increase.

"Sooner or later," Whritner said. "a millage will pass, schools will be open, and we'll need a principal for South High School.'

A special election has been set for June 12, with two ballot proposals: a renewal of 25.35 mills and an increase of 2.2 mills both for three years.

South's enrollment is 1,356. "We've been involved in a search for South's principal for over a year," said Superintendent John Whritner "We've been looking for an educational leader - someone who would build on our tradition of excellence.

"Filling the position of high school principal is the most difficult job in the business," he said. "We made an on-site visit in Cedar Rapids and got universally glowing comments.

Artis was principal of Skowhegan Area High School and Bloomfield Academy, in Maine, before he moved to Cedar Rapids. Before that, he taught social studies and history in a suburban Chicago high school.

"The Grosse Pointe position gives me an opportunity to be involved with a quality school system," Artis said, "to grow with that setting and to add something to that setting.'

Artis also said he has family links in the area — his wife grew up in Indian Village and her family lives in Michigan.

Whritner said the search for a principal, which began last fall, got 50 applications at that time. 'We talked to 15 of those," he said, "but were not comfortable (with any of the candidates.) We quit. We started again in spring and received 57 applications. We talked to 20 of those and came down to one.'

Artis grew up in Wisconsin and Illinois and received his undergraduate degree from Eastern Illinois University, in Charleston, Ill.; his master's degree from Artis has been principal of DePaul University; and his John F. Kennedy High School in Ph.D. from the University of

> He also served as a research assistant with Dr. James Lipham, a nationally known educational researcher.

Artis has two children - one will enter first grade in the fall and the other is almost 2 years old. His hobbies are antiques, auctions, gardening and spending time with his family.

Police warn parents about LSD 'tattoos'

Grosse Pointe Farms police are warning parents and school officials to be on the lookout for LSD-ladened paper "tattoos."

Police are especially concerned because the LSD, which is soaked into paper, is often in the form of a brightly colored comicstrip character, such as Superman, Mickey Mouse, other Disney characters and butterflies and clowns.

The LSD is usually ingested by letting the paper soak in the user's mouth. Police, however, are concerned that small children could get some of the papers and think they are the type of tattoos that can be stuck to the skin. According to police, the LSD can be absorbed through the skin. Even worse, an unsuspecting youngster could put the paper in his mouth.

Officers also worry that older youths may give the drug to small children as some kind of joke.

Symptoms of an LSD trip, which can be fatal, are hallucinations, severe vomiting, uncontrolled laughter, mood changes and change in body temperature.

In some communities, a tattoo called "blue star" is reportedly being sold to schoolchildren. It is a small sheet of white paper containing a blue star, the size of a pencil eraser. Each star is soaked with LSD.

Also, a red stamp called "red pyramid" is being distributed along with "blue microdot," which comes in various colors. Another form of the LSD-laden paper is called "window pane" and has a grid pattern that can be cut out.

Farms police said there have been no cases of the LSD having been reported in the Pointes, but since it is known in other communities, it is important for parents to be aware of it.

A story in the April 27 issue on physical violence in the local schools should have specified that the woman who called to complain about an incident in which her son was assaulted in school was his stepmother, not his mother.

Jonathan Opdyke, 11, received a first prize in a writing competition sponsored by Cricket magazine. The April 27 issue incorrectly reported that he received honorable mention.

The story on John Monahan, candidate for trustee of the Grosse Pointe Shores Village Council, should have said he is a former member and past president of the War Memorial Board, and that he is chairman of the board of Edward V. Monahan, Inc.

The proposed city budget, which is scheduled for a public hearing before the City Council Monday night, reflects a millage rate that is .6 mills lower than last year, but due to higher property values in the Farms, the actual tax burden to property owners will go up about 6 percent.

A resident with a home assessed at $60,000 - 50 percent of market value - will pay about $44 dollars more in city taxes during the 1989-90 fiscal Farms Controller/Assessor Carrol Lock explained that the state Truth in Taxation law mandates that the city lower its millage rate to offset an increase in property values.

The total state equalized value - or assessments - of all properties in Grosse Pointe Farms rose 11.6 percent from $336.9 million last year to $376 million for the coming budget year. The higher SEV includes about $6 million in new construction, Lock said.

He explained that the higher assessments meant that property owners would have had to pay more in tax dollars if the tax rate, or millage, was left unchanged. During the 1988-89 budget year, the city's tax rate was 12.1 mills. Lock said that the millage rate had to be lowered to 11 mills in order to receive the same amount in tax dollars based on the higher property values.

Gattorn is write-in candidate

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

Another candidate, Barbara Gattorn, has tossed her hat into the ring for a two-year term on the Grosse Pointe Shores Village Board.

Ten people are running for five seats in the Tuesday, May 16 election: one uncontested for president, two for a one-year term and seven for three twoyear terms.

Gattorn, a 15-year resident of the Shores, is staging a write-in campaign, because she missed the filing deadline due to an ordinance change.

Gattorn, who is married with three grown children, handles major accounts and public relations for the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce. She is active in Republican Party politics and has been a member of the Wayne County Civil Service Commission since she was first appointed in 1983.

"I don't want to be negative," she said, "the board has served us beautifully, but there are concerns.

Our 'Titanic' to hit iceberg, pilot warns

If the proposed 2.2-mill increase in the school levy goes down to defeat again Lon June 12, the Grosse Pointe school board and the school administration will have to accept some of the blame because of their recent switch in tactics.

After reviewing the defeat in the first millage vote on April 10, the board and the administration first pledged an average increase of no more than 8.1 percent for the district's taxpavers if they approve the millage increase the second time around.

Such an increase would have actually required a $171,000 cut in school spending from the amount required to maintain present programs. The anomaly occurs beOpinion cause of the continued rise in school operating costs, including salaries of teachers and staff, health insurance costs, supplies,

But when faced with a hostile audience of teachers and parents on May 1, the board and the administration backed down and pledged an 8.5 percent increase in taxes that would restore the proposed cuts and maintain programs at their current

That means the only message the board and administration accepted from the April 10 defeat was to give the public the opportunity to vote separately on the two millage issues: one for the renewal of the 25.35 mills that had expired Dec. 31, 1988, and the second for the 2.2-mill increase.

We think that action did respond to the public's vote against the combined proposition on April 10. But we happen to believe that another message also was sent in that

That message came from retired people, those on fixed incomes and other residents who thought they had called a halt on April 10 to the ever-rising property taxes being imposed to support the schools and other public services.

These people thought their protest had at least been heard when the schools capped their increase at 8.1 percent, even though that still will require a substantial boost in homeowners' taxes. But the May 1 reversal of the schools' position saw even these limited hopes dashed. So how will this group of people vote on June 12? Frankly, we don't know.

The problem is that defeat of the 2.2-mill increase would require a much greater cutback than the $171,000 proposed to keep the increase at 8.1 percent. In fact, the board and administration have outlined a long list of important programs and services that would have to be curtailed or eliminated if the proposed millage increase fails a second time.

We still think the Pointes will renew the 25.35 millage levy and they may even approve the 2.2-mill increase as well, despite Superintendent John Whritner's unfortunate remark that "our Titanic is headed for the iceberg."

Since he has been the chief pilot on the current cruise, he should know who is likely to be given most of the blame if the disaster he predicted occurs.

4 contests mark Shores vote

↑ rosse Pointe Shores, the smallest and most exclusive of the Pointes, usually stages quiet and uncontested elections, but not this year.

Instead, it is departing from tradition and nine candidates are competing for four council positions in the May 16 election with only one person, council President Edmund Brady Jr., running without opposition. Last year only 72 Shores residents voted in the uncontested election, but in view of the competition, a much larger turnout is expected this year from the village's 2,144 registered voters.

The unusual outpouring of candidates apparently came about because of a council reorganization in January that led to extra openings on the council this year. The result is that two veteran council members are running for re-election, two members appointed early this year are seeking election for the first time and four challengers with no previous experience in elected city offices also have filed for the council.

A write-in, too

To add another unusual aspect to the election, there is even a write-in candidate who announced her candidacy after the filing deadline had closed. She said, however, she would make an all-out effort to win one of the two-year terms.

The nine candidates are campaigning chiefly to offer their own experience and capabilities to the service of their community. True, several have mentioned the need for more advance planning to prepare the community for environmental problems such as incineration and recycling of waste materials. But in interviews with Grosse Pointe News representatives, the candidates did not raise any controversial is-

The first intimation that the quiet past would not serve as a precedent for this year's election came in December 1988, when veteran council President Gerald Schroeder retired and Councilman Brady was appointed to succeed him. Councilman Dan Beck then resigned, reportedly after a misunderstanding over the appointment of Schroeder's successor.

Those shifts created two openings on the council which were promptly filled by appointment of N. William O'Keefe and John F. Monahan. Both of them now are running to keep their jobs, O'Keefe for one of the two-year terms and Monahan for the year left on Beck's term.

Two other council incumbents, John Huetteman III and Rose Garland Thornton, are running for re-election and four newcomers are running for the three twoyear terms. They are Frank P. McBride Jr., E. Ray Stricker and John F. Potvin, whose names will appear on the ballot, and Barbara Gattorn, a write-in candidate who missed the filing deadline.

Another challenger, Kristin Ann Hoffman, is opposing Monahan for the one-year

All well-qualified

As is traditional in the Pointes, all of the candidates appear to be well-qualified and highly motivated to serve. In addition, all are civic boosters who lavish praise on the Shores because of its village services, concern for community problems, crime prevention, beautification projects and senior citizen programs.

All the candidates, whether incumbents or challengers, also have a good deal of experience and expertise in community problems, as indicated in the biographical sketches reported in last week's issue of the News. And with all this talent, Shores voters no doubt will have as much difficulty in choosing among the candidates as the News has had in recommending its choices for the four council seats.

First, the News, after interviewing all nine contenders for the four council seats and reviewing their backgrounds, recommends the re-election of the two veteran incumbents. They are Huetteman, president of a food brokerage company founded by his father and grandfather, who is seeking a third term, and Ms. Thornton, a civic-minded housewife, who is running for a second term.

Huetteman calls the Shores "the pride of the state" but feels that two problems for the future will be maintaining the infrastructure and handling environmental problems, such as incineration and recycling of waste material. Ms. Thornton, if re-elected, expects to continue her strong interest in providing special services for senior citizens through such agencies as the Services for Older Citizens, Meals on Wheels and the Pointes Area Assisted Transit Service.

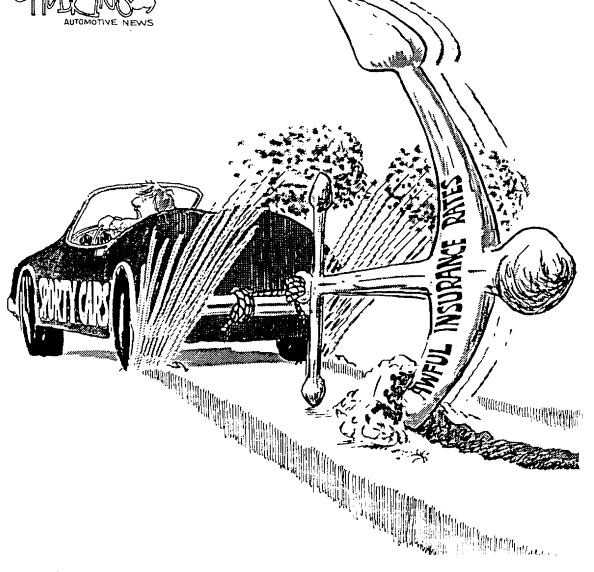

Secondly, the News believes that two other incumbents appointed earlier this year possess excellent records of community service that recommend them to the voters. They are O'Keefe, a self-employed insurance executive who has served on such agencies as the board of review and the planning commission, and is seeking one of the two-year terms; and Monahan, chairman of the board of Edward F. Monahan, Inc., a major building contractor, who also has served on the planning commission, is a past president of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial Board and is running for a one-year term.

Others rate well

Thirdly, the News believes three other candidates also deserve strong consideration. Ms. Gattorn, an executive of the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce who has had wide experience in county government and is the only known write-in candidate, and McBride, who owns an insurance agency and has been a WJR radio commentator on boating and outdoor sports, would also be highly qualified for one of the two-year terms. And Ms. Hoffman, manager of the Shores municipal park, who is running for the one-year term, would be an articulate council spokesperson for boaters and younger peo-

These comments do not intend to derogate the capabilities of Potvin, a lawyer who practices in Mount Clemens, and Stricker, a retired dentist, who are the two other candidates seeking two-year terms. They, too, would serve capably but the News believes other candidates have had more experience in community activities.

In the end, however, it is up to the voters to make up their own minds when they vote next Tuesday.

Farms beauty

To the Editor:

Congratulations to the Grosse Pointe Farms mayor and council for completing so many of their goals so quickly. It should be noted that Mayor Fromm also formed a Beautification Committee shortly after he took office. I'm sure that most everyone has noticed the results of the committee's work in many areas, especially at Mack and Moross. The plantings at Mack and Moross on all four of the islands, plus the beautiful entry sign, must warm the hearts of all Farms residents. It does mine.

Thanks, Mayor Fromm and council, for giving all the Farms residents a chance to see a bit of beauty for their tax dollars.

First check the facts

To the Editor:

They say, "Never explain. Your friends don't need it and your enemies won't believe it." However, I am compelled to respond to Tim Smith's letter to the editor in the May 4 Grosse Pointe News, where he criticized the principal for allowing two students to eat pizza in a study hall.

Yes, it's true, that did happen, but Tim neglected to check out the facts. Tim probably forgot that there was a fire at North the previous day and that the cafeteria kitchen was closed, with no food preparation or sales available. Students were advised to "brown bag it" for a couple of days and most of them did so. A few, typical teenagers forgot. Anticipating this, we had pizzas brought in to accommodate these youngsters. The girls eating in study hall were unaware of the overall problem and received special permission to eat their lunch in the study hall for one day only.

Tim's letter to the editor cast an entirely different perspective on the matter. I hope that this response will serve as an appropriate "learning experience" for the young man.

Don't throw it away

To the Editor:

We have recently received word from the Grosse Pointe School System that even if the millage renewal alone passes on June 12, support services will be severely diminished or eliminated over the next three years. Many of the services are the mainstay for the 10 to 15 percent of the student population who require extra help to get through school. These services include reading and writing consultants, social workers, guidance and substance abuse counselors and skill centers. It seems when budgetary cuts come, they hit below the belt for those students who depend on the schools to teach them the skills necessary to survive. I cannot believe that the citizens of an affluent, educated and conscientious community such as Grosse Pointe would allow this to happen because of a tax issue. Our schools are an investment in our children's futures. Please don't throw it away in favor of your pocketbook.

Nah.

I have gotten a chance to do a lot of interesting things since I walked into the old Grosse Pointe News offices across the street 10 years ago. I was a terrified kid out of school then; I even mispronounced the name of the person for whom I'd been hired to work. She never let me forget it, either.

I've had the opportunity to write about every kind of sport, from cheerleading to America's Cup yacht racing. And I loved every minute of it (except that hockey practice. I'm still not sure about that.)

Working here — and contributing to this column - has also given me a chance to write about my family, my dogs, my wedding, my likes and dislikes, my friends and my foes, and even my broken-down water heater.

The dogs, Sheba the schnauzer and Nugget, the 125-pound golden retriever, are still raising heck at my house. The house, by the way, has suffered no new major damage in about a month; although the washing machine is beginning to make grinding noises that sound a lot like the sound track of a Japanese-language movie.

(This is the update part.)

My family is great. They're speaking to me again, even after I wrote all that stuff about how they goofed up a lot in public. Well, they've stopped addressing my birthday cards to "Occupant," anyway.

Mike and I finally quit whimpering over how our wedding pictures have all those strange people in them because Stations of the Cross started right in the middle of the wedding. And no, we don't have any kids. Yet.

And finally, little Alex Mc-Kelvy, whose arrival on Earth I wrote about in detail last fall, is doing great at 6 months. He's my best friend's son. And the future centerfielder for the Detroit Tigers.

As for my friends and my foes, I think that may be the hardest thing to write about. My foes people who might not have liked what I wrote about (or in some cases, didn't write about), and other folks who are just plain not-unhappy to see me go ... well, you know who you are. And so do I.

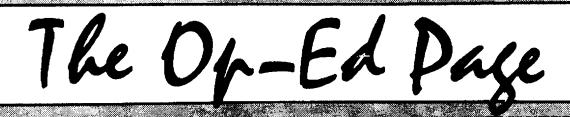

My friends, some of the people I work with and have met over the last decade, will be deeply missed. Especially Rob, Ron, Nancy, Ben, Chip, Roger, Kim, Anne M., Ann G., Chris C., Frans B. and V., Debbie, Shirley, Steve and his production crew: Mary, Renee, Mysheleeh, Debbie, Marnie, Dana and Kate and yeah, even you Dellas.

Then there's JoAnne B., who I just may miss the most (geez, I sound like Dorothy saying goodbye to the Scarecrow).

Anyway, as I said, it's been fun. Thanks. And in the words of my favorite fictional DJ, WKRP's Dr. Johnny Fever, "Ciao, babies."

Adoption option

Remember the big boulders, the pet-rocks-on-steroids that were placed for adoption via this column two weeks ago? Bob Frania, a Grosse Pointe Woods photographer, was looking for a good home for these guys - six huge plastic foam boulders that he used as props while photographing an automobile ad several years ago.

Frania said he received seven or eight phone calls after the Pet Rock is Waiting column.

We're happy to report they were adopted by the St. Clair Shores Figure Skating Club and they've already made their first appearance on ice for a club presentation.

Re: Millage To the Editor:

Right on, Mr. Pinney! (Learning the hard way," April 27, 1989). I can confirm that this voter's attitude toward the recent millage proposal was definitely influenced by my resentment of the jejune and cynical contempt for my intelligence and judgement displayed in the shysterism of the decision to combine the renewal and the increase in one takeit-or-leave-it proposition. What are the prospects of a law that would require in such cases that if either separate proposal passed on a second try, the board members who voted in favor of the original combined proposal would be personally liable for the costs of the second election? I cannot speak specifically for any other voter, but the principal determinant of my vote in the recent, and any future, millage election is my realization that, without any increase in the voted millage my taxes increased by over 25 percent last year. Before I would dream of voting more money for the school district, I must know how much of the extra amount that I and, I presume, others paid, went into the school district's coffers; and why that unvoted and presumably unanticipated windfall is not sufficient.

Can and/or will the school board or the Grosse Pointe news publish the total dollar amounts, year by year, received by the school district from locally voted millage during the time that the now-expired 25.35 mill rate has been in effect?

Fire in cafeteria

To the Editor:

On Tuesday, April 11, when Grosse Pointe North High School had a small fire in the cafeteria, one classroom was not evacuated from the building; I was in this class.

At the time the fire alarm went off, we stayed in our room waiting for an announcement. Almost everybody thought that it was a false alarm because of a faulty alarm down in the auditorium. There was then an announcement, but our speaker was not working at the time. So our teacher told us to ignore it, because it was probably a false alarm.

We continued with class, and while our teacher was lecturing, a second announcement came, but we didn't hear this one because of our speaker not working and the door was shut. This announcement told the school that they had located a small fire in the cafeteria and to evacuate. But we stayed right where we were.

Then about five minutes passed and we were waiting for the dismissal bell, but it didn't go off. We waited for a couple of minutes and then decided that the bells were not working. A couple of us peered out into the hall to see if other classes were being dismissed yet, but there was nobody in the halls, no teachers or students. One student then looked out the window into the parking lot and then noticed the fire trucks that arrived.

That was about seven minutes after the initial alarm went off, and we finally left the building. In my opinion, that's too long to be around when there was a fire in the building. Just imagining if the fire had been above or below us is terrifying. I found out from another faculty member that it was not the teacher's complete fault. They had the P.A. in our room off for a meeting in the room adjacent to us. But some of the blame must go to the teacher for not opening the door and listening to the announcements. In addition, she should also evacuate her class from the building 60 seconds after an alarm if she doesn't hear anything else.

In the future, I think they should not turn off the P.A. in the rooms because of meetings and teachers should pay more attention to the announcements of the

Symphony says thanks

To the Editor:

How do you thank supporters, merchants and guests, who give so generously, so often, to so many worthwhile efforts? Well, Sunday night, April 23, our orchestra gave the final concert of the season for over 300 dinner guests . . . with door prizes, raffle prizes and a great menu (thanks to Zuccaro's) at a terrific price, and so much more! The music was spectacular and the dance band after the concert really busted loose the fun time!

The 1989 Cabaret Concert/ Dinner was a hit! And we throw our hats in the air in gratitude to Maloof's Jewelry, Simiche's Restaurant, Elizabeth's On The Lake, Viviano's Florist and The Colonnade! You are the absolute very best!

And to the evergrowing stupendously able players we are blessed with, who also gave free of their talents, thank you! To your paper, dear Editor, hurrah!

And now one final great evening to come ... May 13 ... our Conductor's Dinner at Selfridge Air Force Base. We will feast on one elegant many-coursed dinner, with champagne/punch, hors d'oeuvres, and entertainment with dancing after. The Officers Club of Selfridge Air

Vote yes on June 12

To the Editor:

I feel that the school millage renewal and increase should be approved on June 12. If it is voted down there would be many unpleasant consequences. The first would be that the students would not receive the quality education as they have in the past due to the cuts in teaching staff and support personnel. This could mean school closing.

The only option for a quality education would be private school. People who live in Grosse Pointe would see their property values decline. People would not want to live in an area where there is no quality school system for their children. Other residents who use school buildings such as the community education program, senior center, musical productions and athletic fields would not have access to school facilities.

In conclusion, I urge all Grosse Pointe residents who are concerned about their community should vote YES for both the renewal and the increase to save our public school system. As a graduating senior, I feel that I have received a superior education in the Grosse Pointe School System and I would like to see this continue for other

Entire community will suffer

To the Editor:

Having heard from members of the community worried about the size of their tax bills, worried about excess in school budgets, and having heard from parents worried about their children, I. too, should be heard.

As a member of next year's senior class and one who will be directly affected by the school millage, I feel I have a responsibility to express my point of view. I am worried about both my future and the futures of the Grosse Pointe school graduates who will follow me.

There is one point that the entire community can agree on. It will be terrible if, come September of this year, the doors of the Grosse Pointe schools must remain locked. Therefore, everyone agrees that at the very least, the renewal of the current millage must pass. Without the monies it provides, the school will be unable to operate for the 1989-90 school year.

Confusion exists, however, regarding the need for the 2.2 mill increase. Without it, although the schoolhouse doors may open in September, they will not be gates to the high quality of education that residents and students of this school district take for granted.

Although property assessments have risen, that same inflation has also caused increases in the price of books, paper, pencils, and the less tangible costs of education, including teacher health care. Without the millage increase, this inflation wi'l cause a battle of the budget, with student programs among the casualties.

Because of the shortfall in funds, not only will improvements to both the physical and educational environment of the school have to be abandoned, but many of the programs which make an education so rewarding will feel the slash of the budget knife. Among the proposeddead are: a computer upgrade at South, North's new TV studio, the purchase of many new musical instruments, and all the improvements suggested by the Curriculum Coordinating Council and the Strategic Planning Committees. The fiscal conservatives among us may laud this sort of slashing; I do not. The implementation of these programs would improve the very thing which makes a Grosse Pointe education so valuable: its preparation for our future. Their forced cutting is no less than a tragic blow to not only the present but future educational quality of

Although the list of cuts is already long, the roll call of casualties must continue. The budget battle would also eliminate some of the existing programs, curtailing the wide range of choices now offered and encouraged by our schools for both academic and extracurricular enrichment. The list of athletics and activities would be reduced by a figure of over $100,000. Support programs for the "extreme student" would have to be cut, some gifted education programs falling alongside remedial reading instruction and a substance abuse plan.

Lunchroom prices would have to be raised (although they are already acknowledged as being the highest in the area). Field trips would be curtailed even further, and these rare chances to learn out in the real world would become almost extinct. The high school writing consultancy might also perish, breaking an important link between the high school and student and a world in which writing grows more important by the year. The choices are difficult, but without funds, programs cannot be continued.

By defeating the millage once, the public has already done great damage to the Grosse Pointe schools, a significant factor that makes this community such a fine place to live and own property. The pink slips delivered to our teachers — our friends — have thrown an aura of uncertainty over the rest of this school year. Next year is still invisible in this fog of doubt.

Also many of the best and brightest of our teachers, the very people who make this school system great, have begun to look for work elsewhere in an effort to make their futures more secure. Many of them are treasures who, once gone, will never be replaced. This damage has already been done, but if the June millage fails, what is ahead will be much, much worse. Cuts in funding at the state level make both the renewal and increase proposals even more crucial. If the money lost there cannot be replaced, even more difficult fund-cutting choices will come before the school board.

Without the renewal and the increase, the entire community of the Grosse Pointes will suffer. Please vote yes not only for the schools and the community, but for the futures of your community's youth. Thank you.

City of Grosse Hointe Hoods Michigan NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES

The City Council of the City of Grosse Pointe Woods will hold a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, May 15, 1989 in the Council Chambers of the Municipal Building, 20025 Mack Plaza to receive testimony and to discuss a proposed increase in the 1989 general fund operating fund.

In 1988, the City of Grosse Pointe Woods levied a total of 12.8920 mills ($12.892 per $1,000 SEV). This consisted of 11.1970 mills for general operating fund purposes, .4570 mills for swimming pool bonds, .7380 mills for park redevelopment bonds and .500 mills for emergency medical services. In 1989, the City of Grosse Pointe Woods is proposing to levy a total of 12.3420 mills ($12.3420 per $1,000 SEV) for the City's general operating fund, debt service and EMS purposes. This represents a .5500 mill decrease in the total City millage rate, however, such tax levy would provide for a 9.59% increase in total property tax revenues.

The City's 1988 general fund operating tax levy was 11.1970 mills ($11.1970 per $1,000 SEV). However, under the State of Michigan "Truth in Taxation" Law, Public Act 5 of 1982, the City of Grosse Pointe Woods' base tax rate would have been required to have been reduced to 10.3730 mills ($10.3730 per $1,000 SEV) for 1989 which in effect would have produced a tax revenue equal, plus an allowable 4.50% inflation factor, to the 1988 general fund operating tax levy.

Because of an increase in the City's State Equalized Valuation (SEV) and a primary 4.5% in salary/wage increase for its employees; 4.5% increase in street lighting costs; 32% increase in incineration costs; to provide necessary funds to replace and/or maintain the City's infrastructure and to provide operating funds for the City's new community center to be constructed in 1989; the city finds it necessary to restore its mandated millage levy reduction and to levy an additional millage rate of .4179 mills ($0.4179 per $1,000 SEV) above the 1989 Truth In Taxation General Fund hase operating rate. This adjusted millage increase will provide an estimated total tax dollar increase of $74.15 for the 1989 tax year for an average residence in the City of Grosse Pointe Woods having a State Equalized Valuation (SEV) of $60,000 and will represent a 9.59% increase in property tax dollars for the aforesaid residence.

In accordance with P.A. 5 of 1982, the City of Grosse Pointe Woods has complete authority to establish the number of mills to be levied within maximum millage rate as authorized by the electorate in the City Charter.

Trees please is the message of the Grosse Pointe Park Beautification Commission's winning Arbor Week poster. The winner, Roger VanTol of St. Clare of Montefalco school, used this plea along with a drawing of a tree to remind us of the importance of trees in our environment. More than 200 fourth-graders in Grosse Pointe Park were given the opportunity to participate. According to Nancy Pilorget, chairwoman of the Beautification Commission, each fourth-grader will receive a pine seedling as part of the Arbor Week celebration. Roger VanTol, above, is congratulated by Park Mayor Palmer Heenan.

Village of Grosse Pointe Shores

WAYNE AND MACOMB COUNTIES

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES

The Village Council of the Village of Grosse Pointe Shores will hold a public hearing at 7:00 P.M. on Tuesday, May 23, 1989 in the Council Chambers of the Village Hall, 795 Lakeshore Road, Grosse Pointe Shores, to receive comments and discuss a proposed additional 1989 Village operating millage rate.

In 1988 the Village levied 14.41 mills ($14.41 per $1,000 State Equalized Valuation) for Village operating purposes. Because of an estimated increase in State Equalized Valuation of existing property within the Village, State Law, Act 5 of 1982, provides that the base tax rate for 1989 Village operating taxes be reduced to 12.78 mills ($12.78 per $1,000 SEV). This is 1.63 mills ($1.63 per $1,000 SEV) lower than the 1988 operating rate.

In order to fund the Village's proposed 1989/90 budget and maintain essential services, and to make necessary repair, to its infras tructure system, roads and recreational facilities, the Village finds it necessary to increase its operating levy for fiscal year 1989/90 by 1.19 mills ($1.19 per $1,000 SEV) above the 1989 base tax rate (12.78). This will provide an estimated 9.31% increase in Village operating tax revenues and would result in a 1989 operating tax rate of 13.975 mills ($13.975 per $1,000 SEV). Under its Charter and State law, the Village has complete authority to establish the number of mills to be levied within its fully authorized millage

Why Americans love their cars, and driving them

William Jeanes, editor of Car like Troy not allow left turns on and Driver magazine, in a recent divided roads, requiring traffic to edition of that Ann-Arbor based publication for auto buffs.

"It's about time that the safety establishment - and the rest of us - grasped the deplorable fact that Americans can't drive," Jeanes wrote. "And that bad driving, not speed, is the angel of death that stalks our roads and highways.'

There is no question that bad drivers are a problem, but it seems to me that the majority of Americans are pretty good drivers, more polite and less aggressive than in most countries. I believe they are good enough to keep our highway death rate among the lowest in the world despite harassment by traffic enforcement people, odd traffic control techniques and goofy advice from safety experts.

If the goal of traffic enforcement were driver safety instead of revenue raising, then less attention would be paid to speed limits and more to keeping steady, safe and uniform speeds in each lane of highways and interstates. The test should be whether a speed is reasonable, not what someone who may or may not know what he is doing has arbitrarily decided upon.

During the years of the 55mph speed limit, the concept of driving lanes and passing lanes - or slower lanes and fast lanes - was lost. In theory everyone was driving at the same speed. In fact, of course, they were not. We were a nation of lawbreak-

With a wide range of speeds in all lanes, drivers shifted lanes to pass slower drivers on the right or the left, a dangerous practice which was a no-no when I learned to drive in the '50s.

Police spokesmen emphasize that collecting revenues is not a major purpose of their traffic enforcement efforts and that there are no quotas for the writing of speeding tickets and parking tickets. But individual policemen say there are.

The fact that many communities hire parking enforcement people indicates they know they will write enough tickets to pay the salaries of the additional personnel and turn a profit for the

I got a lesson in traffic enforcement priorities not long ago. As I was entering the I-94 freeway, another car pulled out of a parking lot into traffic and cut me off, causing me to make a panic stop. The car behind me also made a panic stop. No damage was done, but a dangerous situation had been caused by the driver who cut me off.

I continued onto the freeway and was soon pulled over by a state policeman. The state policeman was very polite, told me he had seen the driver cut me off, but went after me because he saw a more serious problem. I was driving with a license plate which had expired the week be-

"Better take care of that," he advised. I thanked him, because he was in fact doing me a favor. I realize it is important to the state that citizens register their automobiles, but is it more important than safety?

Here are a few other questions:

• Why are there so many red lights along our major arteries, such as East Jefferson, where there are traffic signals at almost every block and a few in between where there is no crossing traffic? It is easier to brake in case of emergency if driving at a steady, safe speed than when accelerating, no matter what the speed. Because of the constant stopping for traffic lights, motorists are accelerating much of the time.

 Instead of requiring expensive passive restraint systems of dubious value, such as air bags and passive belts, because some drivers refuse to buckle their seat belts, why don't the states tell insurance companies they don't have to pay injury claims of motorists and passengers not wearing belts? Insurance companies would be delighted not to pay, thus enforcing the mandatory seatbelt law.

• Why is the penalty for driving with an expired license more sure and often more severe than for the dangerous act of drunk driving?

• Why do many communities turn right, then circle back, thus greatly increasing volume of traffic through intersections, causing gridlock and setting up situations in which cars are coming at you from all directions?

• Why do most communities harass patrons of their business districts with parking tickets,

Lake levels

By the end of March 1989, the water levels of all of the Great Lakes had begun their normal spring rise. Preliminary indicators show that for March, precipitation (rain/snow) was near normal on the Lake Superior basin, somewhat above normal on the Lakes Michigan-Huron basin and slightly below normal on the Lakes Erie and Ontario basins.

Lake St. Clair at the end of March was at elevation 573.71 feet above the mean water level at Father Pointe, Quebec, or 24 inches above chart datum. This was about 9 inches below what it was a year ago, but 10 inches above one month ago.

The March monthly mean level of 573.39 feet was about 5 inches above the long-term average for March. The lake, however, remained about 33 inches below the all-time high March monthly mean level, which was recorded in 1986.

The forecast shows that at the end of April, the level of Lake St. Clair will be about 4 inches above what it was at the end of March. The lake is expected to continue its personal rise into June. The water level in September is expected to be about 3 inches above the long-term average for that month.

Pierce Middle School had the best Odyssey of the Mind team in the state this year. The sixmember team will travel to Colorado May 24-27 to participate in the world competition against teams from all 50 states, Puerto Rico, Canada, China and Mexico, They are, from left, Peter Spencer, Josh Wood, Adam Rhodes, Heather Plansker, Mark Dely and Chris Mac-Kechnie.

Cueny has been working with the team for a few years and has watched it improve and mature.

Team members are Peter Spencer, Josh Wood, Mark Dely, Adam Rhoades, Heather Plansker and Chris MacKechnie. Former team member Jamie Elsila, who is now in high school, is assistant coach.

The Pierce team received creative points on its skit — a beauty contest for insects which according to this year's rules had to show one or more morals, such as "good things come in small packages," and "beauty is only skin deep," from a list provided by the world OM organization. They wrote the skit and the songs and made the set, with no help from adults.

Pierce In winning the state competition, the team beat two others from Grosse Pointe, one from Parcells and one from Defer.

The hard part will be hauling the set to the world competition May 24-27 in Colorado where 230 teams from all 50 states, Puerto Rico, Canada, China and Mexico will be competing.

The Odyssey of the Mind program is funded nationally by IBM, with local funds for regional and state competitions coming from the school PTO.

One long-term problem the group would like to solve is raising money for the trip to Colorado. To help the young problem-solvers, contact Pierce Principal Suzanne Klein at 343-2094. The school is located at 15431 Kercheval in Grosse Pointe Park.

Trowern became president and managed to turn the losing business into a profitable one.

He came to Detroit in 1973, when the then-successful small company was purchased by Parke-Davis.

Over the years, Trowern had become an expert at rescue management. "I'd find out what was wrong with a company - then fix it. I was good at this.

Trowern rescued many different types of businesses. "Man-

Tampering with odometers is now a felony

A new consumer protection law designed to further reduce odometer fraud took effect April

Under Public Act 470 of 1988. odometer tampering is upgraded from a misdemeanor to a felony. This change increases the likelihood that prosecutors will be chaser a used vehicle's title and willing to bring charges against any title reassignment docuindividuals accused of odometer

In addition to making odometer fraud a felony, the new law requires persons selling a used vehicle to a dealer or another individual to write in the vehicle's mileage, as shown on the subject to a misdemeanor charge. Finally, as of April 1 automobile dealers must show the purments belonging to the vehicle, marking the first time that buyers will have easy access to a vehicle's title history before they purchase it. Currently, dealers are only required to give mileage disclosure statements on separate forms.

Department of State officials are emphasizing that Secretary of State branch office personnel will not accept applications for new titles if the existing title does not include the seller's mileage reading. Also, the Secretary of State will print the mileage reading on the front of all new titles issued for cars 10 years old or newer.

Individuals are encouraged to use the new disclosure requirements when selecting a used vehicle. Consumers should note the prior owner's mileage disclosure on the title, ask questions regarding prior ownership, particularly if the vehicle was formerly owned by a rental or lease company, and note whether there is evidence of erasures or alterations of information on the title. Finally, if the title is issued in the name of the selling dealer, consumers should ask why it was necessary to convert the previous title into the dealership's name. Dealers and vehicle owners with questions regarding the new law are encouraged to contact the Department of State's Bureau of Automotive Regulation: Wayne-Oakland-Macomb Counties (313) 357-5108, Other areas in Michigan 1-800-292-

Trowern and his wife Nancy opted to remain in Detroit even though Trowern was offered a position with a company in the East. Instead, he became a freelance rescuer of troubled businesses. "In depressed times, companies needed people like me. I even picked up a company of my own, along the way.'

By 1987, however, it appeared that no more companies needed

"Because Nancy had been a good money manager, we could have lived comfortably for the rest of our lives," he said. "I have a couple of pensions. But we have four children. Two are still in college. College educations and pensions are not compatible. And we wanted medical benefits.

"I needed a job."

Trowern described the prejudices he's discovered against hiring senior citizens. "The prejudice is built upon highly inaccurate stereotypes," he said. One is that old people get sick. Not true. Old people come to work even when they're not feeling well. Younger people take the day off if they're not feeling

"Another: Old people expect to be paid a high salary. Not true. Most would settle for less money simply because they want to maintain their standard of living and get medical benefits. They're not saving for big items like houses, he said.

Trowern said he wandered into the post office to mail some Christmas packages. He saw that they were taking applications from disabled veterans. I'm one of those.

He took the written test and was hired in December 1987.

He collects and delivers mail near Harper and Cadieux in Detroit, and enjoys his work, even though he's not using the business and management skills he developed for more than 40

"I've observed some things about postal workers," he said.

'First of all they really are concerned about getting the mail out. They're scrupulously honest, wonderfully conscientious, dedicated. They don't complain

'What complaints I hear are not - as I might have expected about the weather, except for ice. Postal workers dislike ice because they're afraid they'll fall and then won't be able to work. "And they dislike dogs. Loose

"They don't complain about how far they walk or about how heavy the load of mail is.

'The post office often gets criticism because of wrong deliveries, but I've seen what an astounding amount of mail is handled each day. The percentage that is misdelivered is very small. If I were a company president again, I'd be very impressed by a resume that included postal experience.

News Ficano speaks to Optimists; Woods bank teller honored

A teller at Manufacturers Bank on Mack in the Woods was recognized by the Optimists Club last week for her efforts that led to the dismantling of a major check fraud ring.

The award presentation at the Lochmoor Club May 3 featured Wayne County Sheriff Robert A. Ficano as the keynote speaker and was part of the Optimist Club's Respect for Law break-

The Manufacturers Bank teller, Charleen Rick of St. Clair Shores, was recognized for aiding law enforcement officers when she reported what she believed was a couple trying to cash a check with someone else's indentification.

She reported the incident to the bank manager, who then called the Grosse Pointe Woods Public Safety Department. She even stalled the couple for 15 minutes while the incident was reported and police began an investigation.

The investigation of the case by Public Safety Officer Robert Kwiatkowski extended throughout metropolitan Detroit and culminated in the arrest and conviction of several people who were

"Many times a law is being broken and you have a chance to intercede," Gualtieri said. "If you do, you're a concerned citizen.

Ficano, a former Wayne County prosecutor and a member of the Optimists, said the lack of social values and the urge for instant gratification have led to increased criminal

"As someone in law enforcement, I have concerns," he said. "We have not created a moral climate that discourages crime."

He said one-third of all households are affected by crime. Some 23,000 people are killed nationwide, Ficano said. "If a terrorist came to this country and killed 23,000 people, we'd declare war," the sheriff said.

"Across America we no longer trust each other's goodwill and our society's ability to protect

He said the law enforcement and judicial systems have become "society's bouncers," explaining that the police and courts are not involved until anti-social behavior has occurred.

He said concerned people are always asking him why the judicial system isn't correcting the increased occurrence of deviant behavior. But Ficano said proper socialization occurs long before the police and courts become involved. The traditional values of family, home, church and community are being "short-changed," he said.

"These values are not being passed on from generation to generation," he said.

Ficano said many young people today are unwilling to put in the time necessary to obtain legitimate success. He said they see the young drug dealer, who in a short time gets an expensive car and clothes, and think drugs are a quick and easy way to obtain success. "But the average life expectancy of a drug dealer is three years." he said.

they have to put in years of college just to become a doctor, lawyer, businessman or other professional, they seek an easier way, he said.

"They want instant gratification," Ficano said, "and life just isn't like that.'

He said the forfeiture of property purchased by drug dealers has been a big help to police in the war on drugs. The selling and auctioning of drug dealers' property has provided the Wayne County Sheriff's Department with $2.5 million, which have been used to expand the department's drug unit, Ficano

When young people hear that crooks paying for their own busts," he said. "Yes, it's good that we're getting it paid for, but the down side is that there's that many drugs out there to allow us to do this.'

Concerning the new 840-bed, misdemeanor county jail, Ficano would not say whether the jail would be located in Hamtramck or Highland Park. "That announcement will have to wait until Friday," he said.

Last Friday, county officials stated that the recommended site for the new jail will be in Hamtramck near the General Motors assembly plant. The jail site has yet to be approved by Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

Celebrating 70 years of service to the community

Sprucing up Mack Avenue

Saturday, May 6 was a day of work for those who own businesses along Mack Avenue from Alter Road to Old Eight Mile. It was a day of trimming bushes, pulling weeds, planting flowers and picking up garbage.

It was the third annual Mack Avenue Cleanup sponsored by the Mack Avenue Business and Professional Association in association with the four Pointes which abut Mack, Detroit, beautification commissions and volunteer groups.

Project chairman Bob Mowbray said the event was successful not only in beautifying the area, but in avoiding the cold rain.

"When we were done, Mack Avenue looked pretty good," Mowbray said. "Heck, it looks pretty good to-

Although the 80 or so volunteers who showed up worked hard, Mowbray said he is hoping for more to turn out at next year's clean up.

Recycling day

It was more than anyone expected and chairwoman Deva Ludwig was overwhelmed.

More than 1,000 cars dropped off 2,900 pounds of metal, 14,000 pounds of glass, 2,800 pounds of plastics and 38,000 pounds of newspapers at Grosse Pointe South High School at Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling's first recycling day.

"It was a tremendous success," Ludwig said of Saturday's event. Clowns, a sweepstakes, music and other entertainment brought the people out in droves, even in the rain.

Sweepstakes winners were: Elise Auxiea, of Grosse Pointe Park, who won a clock donated by Edmund T. Ahee jewelers ("See, recycling does pay," she said.); Jim O'Donnell, of the Park, won a watch also donated by Ahee; Denise Cox, of the Woods, won two tickets to Grosse Pointe Theatre's production of "Camelot;" and Lori Zurvalec, of the City, won two tickets to the Michigan Opera Theatre's production of "Carmen."

Fran Schonenberg, president of Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling, said the next recycling day which will be held without entertainment — is June 3, also at South, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Girl Scout Troop 1766 from Monteith School aided the efforts. These two tired workers. Samantha Mowbray and Carolyn O'Brien, take a well-earned rest.

Toni DiClementi, member of the board of the Mack Avenue Business and Professional Association, helped clean and was then in charge of doling out the Youth on the Edge, a group of Detroit kids, also helped the efforts.

Missy Danaher stacks up the plastics collected. More than a ton of plastic containers were taken in.

Recyclers of all ages dropped off recyclables of all sizes and shapes. making the day a complete success - even though it rained.

Former resident begins professional acting career

By Ronald J. Bernas

Staff Writer Prompted by her 10-year-old's shyness, Jane Marshall signed her daughter Jennifer with the Grosse Pointe Children's Thea-

That was 12 years ago. At the end of this month Jenmifer Marshall embarks on the first leg of her journey toward a professional acting career.

She's starting out with a bang, earning the lead in "Wait Until Dark," a suspense thriller about a blind woman at the mercy of drug runners in her own home. Affred Hitchcock's movie of the same name starred Audrey Hep-

Marshall will also play a second lead role as Lavinia in George Bernard Shaw's "Androcles and the Lion." She will play in a mime show and a Gershwin High School. revue at The Wagon Wheel Theatre in Warsaw, Ind.

With the ink not yet dry on her Northwestern University degree in theater, Marshall says she is amazed that she is getting off to such an auspicious start.

"I'm finally being paid for what I want to do," she said, "and I can't believe it."

Marshall was enthralled by acting after her first foray into Interlochen," Marshall said. Grosse Pointe Children's Theatre. She continued to act, playing Maria in "West Side Story," and the lead in "The Boyfriend," the roles in tandem with parts both at Grosse Pointe South

> After a summer at Blue Lake Music Camp where she took vocal lessons, she was encouraged by a vocal instructor and spent her senior year of high school at Interlochen Arts Academy, from which she graduated as a voice major studying opera.

"When it really started to crystallize for me was in the summer of 1983 when I went to

She was encouraged to study opera at Interlochen and entered Northwestern University intending to further study the art form. But she took some acting classes to supplement her singing, because acting is such an integral part of opera. Her old flame was re-ignited.

Eventually her opera training helped her get parts in musical theater at Northwestern, including lead roles in "Anything Goes" and "The 1940s Radio Hour."

"In acting classes, there was much more flexibility to what you could do," Marshall said. So she switched gears and got a degree in theater.

"I really got the best of both worlds," she said.

Marshall seemed destined to play the part of Susy, the blind woman in "Wait Until Dark." She was at her Grosse Pointe Farms home when the auditions took place, but even after watching dozens of talented actresses. the director did not cast the role of Susy. No one completely fit the bill. A professor at Northwestern suggested to the director that he audition Marshall. He did and the job was hers.

It is that type of encouragement that has gotten her where she is, she believes.

"I've always been encouraged by my parents and teachers," Marshall said. "I think the value of teachers who understand the potential in the mind of a child, and who nurture that, is phenomenal. The roles the parents and instructors play in encouraging and supporting is not talked about, but they should be seen as the stars.

"There's so little emphasis on creative thought anymore, but it needs to be there, especially for the children. They want to know, they want to learn, and in many cases, that's lost.'

Marshall's brother, Christopher, still in high school, also entertains as one of three young men who run their own disc jockey service.

"My parents gave us a love of music and of expressing ourselves. We weren't thrust into performing, but rather supported," she said. "I mean we're not the Von Trapp family sing-

After Marshall finishes the summer in Warsaw, she will apprentice until next summer at The Actors Theatre of Louisville, having won placement in a nationwide audition.

Don't ask Marshall where she's off to after that. She doesn't know, and she says she prefers it that way.

"I'm doing what I love to do, so that's all that matters," she said. "I enjoy the spontaniety of not knowing what's coming

Marshall gets dreamy-eyed when she talks about her chosen career, and what it means to

"I don't know what I'd do if I wasn't doing this," she said. "It's not that I don't have anything else to offer, but I love this. If I got out of the theater, I don't think I could stray long. I love acting, it's what I have to share

Magnolia tree damaged during prank lawn job

A Grosse Pointe Woods family is upset by a lawn job during the early morning hours last week that caused serious damage to a large magnolia tree that has been at the home for 47 years.

At 2:40 a.m. May 4 someone drove over the front lawn of a home in the 1200 block of Oxford. While traveling across the lawn, the car struck the magnolia tree, ripping off bark.

The car received extensive damage on the passenger side in the area of the side mirror and windshield. The officer at the scene found a car antenna and a side mirror. The car was steel gray, according to paint left on the tree.

A woman at the home said the tree was planted by her husband's grandmother, who is now deceased. She said her husband played in the tree when he was a boy and now her 5-year-old son plays in the tree.

"It's like a family heirloom," she said of the tree. "It really

She said the tree's trunk is split and it is not known whether the tree will survive. The family is hoping that one of her neighbors or perhaps someone who has seen the damaged car will report the perpetrator to po-

Egg-tossing youths threaten pedestrian

Two Grosse Pointe Woods youths were picked up by police last week for throwing eggs at a 59-year-old man who was walking along Mack Avenue.

The man called police from a pay phone at Ridgemont and Mack May 6 at 4:15 a.m. and said two youths were throwing eggs at him. He described the youths and the car they were in to police.

The officers spotted the youths in a white Oldsmobile on Mack. When the officer stopped the carand questioned the youths about the incident, the 18-year-old driver, who lives in the 1100 block of Hampton, reached under the seat and pulled out a carton of Twin Pines AA grade eggs. Five eggs were left in the carton.

When asked why they were throwing eggs at the man, one of the youths said the man threw something at the car. The man, a St. Clair Shores resident, said the youths started it by throwing eggs at him. He said the youths made several passes by him, but failed to hit him with an egg. He told police he threw a stone at the car in order to drive off the youths. He said one of the youths threatened him and used profanity.

The driver was told he will be contacted by Woods detectives. The 15-year-old passenger, who lives in the 1300 block of Hampton, was cited for violating curfew laws.

The Princeton Review to offer SAT course in the Pointes

By John Minnis Staff Writer

For more than 300 high school students throughout the Grosse Pointes, May 6 was one of the most important days of their

Armed with only their wits and a No. 2 pencil, the students gathered at North High School to take the Scholastic Aptitude Test and other standardized tests as a prelude to getting accepted by a college.

While the students' scores on the tests are not the only factors considered by college admissions officers, they are very important and are required by nearly all colleges - especially the better schools.

Realizing the importance of the SAT, a private company, The Princeton Review, is planning to offer preparation courses this summer for taking the SAT.

John Katzman, founder and president of The Princeton Review, was in Grosse Pointe and the metropolitan Detroit area prior to the May 6 testing date to promote his courses and to throw a few barbs at the SAT and its creator, the Educational Katzman is critical of the SAT, saying it is biased toward women, minorities and the underprivileged. His statistics show that the higher the family income, the better a student does on the SAT. Also, men score an average of 50 points higher on the SAT than do women.

Katzman asks, If the SAT is an indicator of how well students will do in college, then how come men score higher but women out-perform men in college as well as high school?

The Princeton Review founder would like to see the SAT rewritten to make it neutral toward sex, race and economic background, but any reworking of the test would be up to ETS.

In the meantime, The Princeton Review and other private companies, such as the Stanley Kaplan Educational Center, offers courses that not only increase the students' academic knowledge but also teach them the skill - some say "tricks" of taking the SAT and tests in general.

For example, The Princeton Review teaches students how the SAT is structured, with the difficulty of the questions in each section getting progressively harder. The SAT preparation course, for example, shows students how to rationally rule out several multiple choices in order to narrow in on the correct an-

Katzman said he is not teach- to eight to 12 students. The cost ing students tricks in order to get around not having knowledge. He prefers to think he is making the students "street smart" in regard to taking tests. If there are any tricks being taught, they are the tricks in the test itself designed to trip up students, Katzman said.

In order to provide students with the SAT skills they will need, The Princeton Review staff itself takes the tests so it can keep up with any changes.

Katzman said his company also runs copies of SATs through a computer to come up with the most frequently used words and the words that students most often get wrong. The words are then put in The Princeton Review's "Hit Parade." Katzınan said that just throwing a dictionary at a student and telling him to memorize it is not practical.

The Princeton Review's philosophy is make the students' preparation time as efficient as possible. "If we spend an hour on math, it will be math that's on the test," Katzman said.

The Princeton Review's SAT preparation course runs for six weeks and class sizes are limited is $595.

John P. Moran, a director with The Princeton Review, is in charge of setting up a SAT course beginning July 11 in Grosse Pointe. The summer course is in preparation for the November offering of the SAT, and a short refresher will be offered to the summer students just before the test. Those interested can call Moran at 851-1133.

The Princeton Review, however, faces stiff competition in the Pointes - not only from private enterprise but also by the schools. The Grosse Pointe Public School System offers SAT and other standardized test preparation. This summer, the public school district is offering fiveweek and two-week programs costing $60 and $30, respectively.

University Liggett School also offers SAT preparation for any student in the summer. The costs for the ULS summer SAT courses range from $260 to $470, depending on the length and hours of the program.

The Princeton Review expects more than 20,000 students nationwide to take its SAT preparation course this year. Katzman began the company in 1981 after he graduated from Prince-

BODY TONING

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS

• As a person lies on one of the tables, the machine performs a series of repetitive movements concentrating on a certain region of the body. A complete circuit of six machines will work all major muscle groups, while stimulating circulation. Even though the person is in a relaxed state, he receives a workout through repetition, with the effect of toning and firming the muscles rather than building them, as in weight lifting. (If a more isotonic exercise is desired, however, a person can also evert registeries to the machine's movement, creating more of a muscul. exert resistance to the machine's movement, creating more of a muscular contraction.) Not only do toning tables make the body leaner, they also increase flexibility as well as circulation, leaving you with an allover feeling of energy Body toning results in increased body flexibility, circulation, muscle tone and helps reverse the process of cellulite accumulation. Many achieve significant inch loss after eight sessions.

'Listen to Me' and avoid this movie

By Ronald J. Bernas

Staff Writer "Listen to Me" is proof that dimples and a hit television show do not an actor make.

It is also proof that even good actors cannot save a script as dreadful as this one is.

With all the stories to tell, with all the things to say, it's hard to believe that a film — for lack of a better word - such as this could be made. Saying this movie is bad is not strong

Kirk Cameron, star of television's "Growing Pains," Teen Beat photo spreads and countless teen girls' fantasies, gets top billing in this wholly unbelievable story about a college debating team.

"Listen to Me" tells the tale of a championship debate team, and its two newest members who win debate scholarships to attend this prestigious West Coast school. Cameron is one, and Jami Gertz (a very talented young actress) is the other.

He's a redneck, she's a city girl from working class parents, they don't particularly like each other, but the debate coach (Roy Scheider) makes them a team (surprise) and they eventually fall in love tanother big surprise). Casting the 25-year-old Gertz as an 18-year-old against Cameron who is 18 years old but looks 15, is almost a reverse Lol-

prehensible things in this movie

For example, we are expected to believe that this college's students enjoy watching debate as much as students at other colteam's captain, who uses his poany country in any year

We're also expected to believe team's problems.

The debate team consists of a

But there are so many incomthat the casting problem pales. leges enjoy football. They hoot and holler at the debaters when they bring up a good point. Girls even go wild over the debate sition to get them into bed. That simply doesn't happen in America in 1989, or for that matter that of all the people in the United States who were eligible for the two debate scholarships offered by this ultra-prestigious school, it goes to a home-span hick. But that is the least of the handicapped girl with a chip on her shoulder, a loveable pig. and a senator's son who doesn't want to debate, he just wants to write and the list goes on. We are supposed to be enlightened by each character's idiosyncracies, instead we are bored.

The cast, with the exceptions of Gertz and Scheider, is made up from the list of has-been and never-will-be teen stars - Quinn

Criminal Law' studies complex lawyer-client relationship

By Marian Trainor

Special Writer 'Criminal Law," a psychological thriller that starts with one premise and ends up with quite another, showcases Gary Oldman as Ben Chasen, a defense attorney who believes that lawyers should do everything they can to make the judicial system work for their clients.

On that basis, he concludes that whether or not the client is guilty doesn't matter. The job is to present the case in a manner that gets the clients the lowest possible sentence or, if the lawyer is really good, go free.

Van Lockeren grew up in Indiana. She earned her degree from Pine Manor College, in art, then went to Parson's School of Design in New York City. She started her career as a designer. She married, moved to Grosse Pointe, and continued designing part time, on the side.

"Flower arranging was a hobby," she said.

By 1975, at the urging of friends, she began her own custom silk flower arrangement business. "My typical customer makes an appointment for me to visit her home. I see the room and the place where she wants an arrangement. We talk about a container. She either has one, or I recommend one or she buys one. Then she looks at samples. I go back and design what she wants." A typical arrangement for a dining room table, for example, costs about $150.

This business presents some unique challenges. For instance She reached for a roll of wallpaper, a blue design of birds and deer on a creamy background. "My client wants me to find someone to duplicate this bird and deer design on towels for the bathroom.

Van Lockeren travels the world - and the United States - for unique items. She said she goes to Europe twice a year, for about 10 days each time. She goes to New York twice a year. She travels somewhere else about once a month and goes antiquing and to auctions on weekends - always picking up interesting, unique gifts.

Deborah Placke: A future in biomedicine

By Pat Paholsky Editor

It would be safe to bet that there aren't too many newspaper circulation managers who have degrees in chemical engineering. Meet Deborah Placke, who does.

She has been with the Grosse Pointe News since March 1988. enjoying a many-faceted job where she has a chance to draw on a number of skills. It's an interim job, she admits, until she goes on to graduate school.

But there's nothing of an interim nature about her duties which also include production work on Tuesdays and helping out in the classified department when she's needed.

Placke, whose principle duties are managing the circulation department, takes care of new subscriptions and renewals and works with ABC, the Audit Bureau of Circulation, which verifies the number of papers that are distributed. She enjoys dealing with people and the clerical aspect, but there is one downside to the job: when subscribers don't get their paper in the mail on time.

"It's difficult when the problem does not originate in our office and immediate answers are not always available," she said. "Although the Grosse Pointe News is second-class mail and sometimes delays cannot be helped, we do strive to have the paper delivered in a timely fash-

There has been a series of equipment breakdowns and other delays at the printing plant in recent weeks, which has resulted in the soft-spoken Placke spending a lot of time on the phone on Thursdays talking to unhappy subscribers. While the problems are complex, they are being resolved, she said.

She gets a change of pace on Tuesdays when she heads upstairs to the production department to make up - with another staffer - the pages of the classified section.

"I like working under deadlines, under a bit of pressure," she said. "It gives me a chance to be creative.'

Deborah Placke works in several departments, but her main duties are in the circulation depart-

And Placke puts a premium on creativity. Her immediate goal is to get a master's degree in biomedicine which would enable her to design and develop prosthetics. She is also considering continuing onto medical school for a combined M.D. Ph D. degree.

Her interest in modicine stems from seven years of working as a nurse's aide in a hospital, a job she began as a high school senior in a co-op program.

"I was really fulfilled when I was there, being able to help and seeing the effect," she said.

She thought of being a murse, but said, "I needed to go a mile bit further.

"Throughout high school I was always good at math, and knowing how much I enjoyed working in a hospital, I started researching and came up with biomedical engineering," she said.

The field combines the analytical and technical side of health care, she said, adding, "I always wanted to do something to really contribute to society."

Placke, who was born in Bon Secours Hospital, grew up in East Detroit. She attended Macomb Community College where she earned an associate of arts degree and then went on to Michigan State University.

She put herself through school by working in the cafeteria at MSU and proctoring and helping beginning chemistry students. She also spent summers as a nurse's aide and even delivered mail one summer, working midnights at the hospital part time and carrying mail during the day full time.

The oldest of five girls, Placke is an athlete. She was on the basketball, baseball, track and volleyball teams in school and she remains active - she plays racquetball once a week. She says she's looking forward to the summer when she can spend time waterskiing at her family's cottage in Harrison.

Placke also enjoys traveling when she can and has surfed and snorkeled in Hawaii, camped in the Smokies and enjoyed the city life of Chicago and New York.

The people behind the Grosse Pointe News

The Grosse Pointe News employs more than 35 fulltime and part-time people in five departments, all working to put out the best weekly newspaper possible. The talent involved in this endeavor is impressive.

Since June, we have been featuring an employee from a department - Classified. Circulation, Advertising and Production - that is not as visible to the public, in order that you, the reader, can better understand, and appreciate, the parts that make up the whole paper.

In his first six months, Sam did quite well. But then the XYZ Corporation confirmed rumors that had been circulating for a long time: The company planned to relocate to another town, some 600 miles away. Within a year, Sam's Restaurant folded.

Could Sam have prevented his business failure? Possibly. According to the Michigan Association of CPAs, Sam should have researched the location more thoroughly and interviewed individuals from the community. If he had, he might have realized just how much his success depended on the XYZ Corporation - and he might have gleaned hints about the company's reloc-tion plans. An estimated 45,000 businesses failed in the first nine months of 1988, many of them simply because the owners did not take the time to gather vital information about the location. Manufacturers, for instance, should make sure that whatever location they select has quick and easy access to transportation routes and necessary suppliers. On the other hand, retailers need to pay particular attention to local traffic patterns, community trends and store visibility.

If you are planning to purchase property for a small business, start by investigating the overall makeup of several target communities or locations. From the census bureau, you can find out if the community is growing or shrinking. If it's shrinking, find out way.

The census bureau can also provide the population's average income, predominant occupations and median age. By comparing this information with past ligures, you can determine if and how a community is changing. You should also find out whother nearby residents tend to be college-educated or blue collar workers. Do they rear or do they own their homes? Playe local property values increased or decreased? Consider, too, the community's future. For instance does the town have any plans for construction that may affect your business?

Another mistake small business owners often make is ignoring a site's history. If the building has housed four different businesses in just three years, you had better take a second look at the property. You may have overlooked a subtle, but devastating, flaw in the building's location.

Once you are satisfied with the site, it's time to investigate the building's actual physical condition. Is the facility large enough to permit future expansion? Does the property need manor modification to satisfy your business' needs? Examine the building as closely as you would

Increasing just as quickly is the number of women who return to the labor market immediately after their child is born. According to U.S. Bureau of Labor statistics, more than half of all new mothers are back to work before their child's first birth

In most cases, the statistics say, family finances dictate this quick return to work. New moms who would prefer to remain at home with their babies must go back to work and find adequate childcare. It is a situation which places an extra burden on the new mothers who already face the stress of running a household and child-rearing.

"The new mothers are probably more affected by the separation than the babies," says Nancy Giles, Ph.D. a therapist with the Geosse Pointe Center for Individual and Family Therapy

'One thing we have discounted is the reciprocal effect children give to the parent, "Giles says. "The issue goes beyond bonding and its importance to the baby it's just as critical to the mother.

As difficult as it is for a new mom to leave her baby to return to work. the real challenge is finding and trusting childcare-givers. It isn't a situation many moms willingly in-

Junior League of Detroit celebrates 75th, announces new AIDS volunteer project

At an April 26 luncheon celebrating 75 years of service to the community, Junior League of Detroit president Georgiann Henritzy presented the organization's newest project and anniversary gift to the city, the Coordinated AIDS Volunteer Program.

The project brings the JLD into partnership with the AIDS Consortium of Southeast Michigan, the Greater Detroit Area Health Council and the individual health care facilities involved in the diagnosis and treatment of AIDS.

The JLD has committed $75,000 and volunteer support toward the creation of a strong, cohesive AIDS volunteer program. The two-year project will identify and recruit potential volunteers, train volunteers and finally coordinate their deployment among health care facilities working with AIDS patients and their families.

The AIDS project is one of the Junior League of Detroit's most ambitious and important commitments to date, but its goal is in keeping with the principles upon which the organization was founded as a women's service organization in 1914. The league's first president, Mrs. Paul Weadock, and the 46 young women who joined the fledgling organization established a lunchroom for young working women at Woodward near Grand Circus Park. The lunchroom remained open for three years and provided nutritious, economical meals as well as a place where working women could relax, talk and be secure.

A concern for the welfare of others continues to guide today's JLD, which now boasts a membership of over 1,000 women. Its mission is to promote voluntarism and to improve the community through the effective action and leadership of trained volunteers. Its purpose is exclusively educational and charitable.

The league has a long history devoted to the development and implementation of projects and programs designed to improve the quality of life of metro area citizens, and has demonstrated time and again its ability to meet critical needs within the community through the training and placement of its volunteer force.

"I look forward to going home and being with her. And when I get there, I give her all my time. We play on the floor and I worry about the housework later," Castiglione

"After all, Katie doesn't care whether I get to wash the kitchen floor, does she?"

It's that kind of attitude that makes "moms-returning-towork" situations work, Giles says.

"You have to make a clean demarcation between areas of your life. Leave the work pressures where they are and deal with the family responsibilities at home," Giles says.

"Take some time to shift gears. Go home, change clothes and get refreshed. Then go and enjoy your kids.

The first is the Michigan Opera Theatre's premier social event of the year, the Opera Ball, set for Friday, June 9, at the Fox Theatre in Detroit. The mother-daughter team of Barbara Wrigley and Dorothy Wrigley, both of Grosse Pointe. are finalizing plans for the dazzling black-tie soiree, which is the third annual fundraiser and the first at the lavish and newly restored showpiece theater on Woodward Avenue.

"It gives me great pleasure to announce that the 1989 Opera Ball will take place in the opulent surroundings of the Fox Theatre," remarked MOT general director David DiChiera. "Under the expert leadership of dedicated trustee Barbara Wrigley and her daughter-in-law Dorothy, this year's event is certain to be a success.

Marian and Mike Ilitch, responsible for the restoration of the Fox, are honorary chairmen, as are Mary and Jules Pallone of Birmingham and Sue and Bill Vititoe of Grosse Pointe.

Among those who attended a special invitation-addressing party in April were Pointers Mary Anderson, MaryBeth Jagger, Dede Booth, Dale Austin and Barbara Fisher. Reservations for the Opera Ball are limited to 500 guests. Tickets are $300 per person and include valet parking, cocktail reception and dinner, followed by entertainment and dancing. All ticket proceeds will benefit MOT.

Pointers Dale Austin and Joyce Osgood hosted the preview patron party, which treated guests to hors d'oeuvres such as Beluga caviar, crab claws and grilled whole sirloin and luscious desserts like sweet potato pecan pie and chocolate raviolis.

Joining the Greenwalds in planning the seventh annual Grand Prix Ball are committee members from Grosse Pointe Lynn Maxwell, Daryl Weil. For more information, call the Music Hall at 963-7622.

If you're hungry . . . after all that planning, and you can't wait 'til June to chow down on Opera or Grand Prix hall munchies, try the first "Michigan Taste Fest," to be held May 26 28 in the New Center Area.

Michigan's finest restaurants -- including Grosse Pointe's own Cafe Le Chat — will serve their specialties each day on West Grand Boulevard between Woodward and the Lodge Freeway, adjacent to the General Motors and Fisher buildings. The Pastor's Corner

The Lord is my shepherd

Following this Shepherd, we find full supply for every need, a cup overflowing, goodness, mercy and finally, the everlasting habitation in the house of God.

The 23rd Psalm is probably the most loved portion of the Bible. It has dried the tears and calmed the fears of countless numbers through the centuries. It has inspired confidence in fear-filled hearts. It has brought peace to troubled people. And for some, it has an even greater meaning found in Jesus, who applied to himself the very title, "The Good Shepherd.'

Isaiah had said it many centuries before. "All we, like sheep, have gone astray." Our Shepherd, the Lord, leads us in the paths of righteousness, but sometimes we insist on going our own way.

Our Shepherd, the Lord, leads us through rich, green pastures where we may enjoy life as God meant we should enjoy it. But sometimes, we get ideas of our own. And that is precisely why the God of the 23rd Psalm came in compassion, to be with us in Jesus Christ.

Isaiah's words continue: "The Lord has laid on him the iniquity of us all." Christ loved us with a perfect love. Christ came to find the lost, to give his life a ransom, to go through hell itself for us. In the compassion of forgiveness, we are again and again enfolded in the everlasting arms.

So this great psalm is more than pretty poetry to recite as we walk the valley of the shadow. It is more than a pious wish we can sigh on Sunday morning. It is our theme in life and with this theme we walk with confidence and boldness, secure in the care of the Good Shepherd.

that television gets, the miracle of watching on the spot news, going right down on the field to see a football play at close range, the pleasures of watching a favorite sitcom, an old movie or getting an up-front seat at a concert are not to be discounted.

So prevalent in the lives of today's children is television that one of the most frequent questions asked by the younger set is, "What did you do before television?

What they don't know is that B.T. (before television) was not completely the dark ages. What we had before TV was the miracle of sound: radio. Out of that sound we delved into our imaginations to conjure up our own images of people and ac-

Out of that humble beginning came radios built in cabinets with tubes and later, the downsized carry-around variety with batteries. Now you can have radio anywhere and anyway you like it - in cars with stereos, in walls with Dolby sound.

The magic of radio persists. It is portable, inexpensive and it is possible to listen to a radio while performing chores. There are even listeners who can't work without background music provided by radio.

minutes long!

Oct. 30, 1938 was radio's most spectacular hour. ON THAT NIGHT, a small group of actors led by Orson Welles stood in front of a microphone in a CBS studio. They had with them a script based on the 1897 science fiction novel "War of the Worlds" by H.G. Wells. When they finished the performance the actors were surprised to learn that thousands of people across the country had actually believed the tale of a Martian invasion. The widespread panic that occured during and following the War of the Worlds broadcast has made it one of the more influential and memorable radio programs of all time.

Radio's heyday occured at a time when people needed a lift. The comedy, drama, sports, music and children's programs on the air during the 1930s found an appreciative audience longing for an escape from the financial hardships of the Depression.

Grandmothers today remember with gratitude the programs that kept their children entertained during the late 1930s and 1940s. The time between 5 and 6 p.m. was the children's hour on radio. While dinner was being prepared children sat around the radio listening to serials which changed every 15 minutes.

There was Hop Harrigan, Superman, Captain Midnight and Tom Mix on the Mutual Broadcasting System (MBS). Over on the American Broadcasting Com-Terry and the Pirates, Jack cast on WEAF-NY. It was 10 Armstrong and Sky King.

THE FIRST children's program to be aired on radio was Buck Rogers in 1939. He was followed by Jack Armstrong, the All-American Boy in 1933. In 1939 Captain Midnight appeared. After each of the captain's programs, a secret message was presented to be decoded at home with a special decoder badge, which you could get by sending in a box top and a dime.

During World War II, the heroes of children's programs fought enemies everywhere - in the air, on the sea and on land. Patriotism was a major theme. Listeners were urged to fight the enemy by saving newspapers, tin and scrap metal, by planting Victory Gardens and by using war bonds.

There were even programs for teenagers. Who will forget The Aldrich Family Show and its unforgettable opening? Each week for 14 years, more than 20 million living rooms were filled with the voice of Henry's frustrated mother calling "Henry! Henry Aldrich!

This was The Golden Age of Radio and perhaps the golden age of broadcasting. Nowhere is there any record of upset parents protesting violence being beamed into their home as they do with television.

By the 1950s, television had taken over. "Radio is dead!" Robert Sarnoff, president of NBC declared. Not so. Radio is alive in homes, cars and in the laboratories where cosmic radio waves pany (ABC) it was Dick Tracy, are producing new miracles from

Life Span: SOC's new intergenerational program offers respite for caregivers, valuable job experience for local teenagers

"I am of the control of the co

It seemed like a perfect match: caregivers of the elderly who needed a helping hand and teenagers who needed some job experience. So far, it has been a good pairing for both parties involved in "Life Span," which organizers call one of the country's few intergenerational respite care programs.

Ann Kraemer, executive director of Grosse Pointe's Services for Older Citizens, Inc., is a cofounder of Life Span, with Marge Nixon, director of volunteers for the Grosse Pointe Public Schools.

'Funding came from the United Foundation's Venture Grant Program," Kraemer said. "This is a very unique program and one we felt was worth the funding and the effort to set it

Life Span is a respite care program in which trained high school students are paid $4 to work a maximum of five hours per week per client as "relief" help for those responsible for the ongoing care of a dependent per-

"This is not emergency assistance," Kraemer explained, "this is a program designed to give the caregiver a chance to get out and shop, relax, attend to errands or even just take an uninterrupted rest.'

Monique Rusen of Grosse Pointe Shores is a 15-year-old sophomore at Grosse Pointe North High School. She is one of 20 students from the Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods school systems who participated in the first session of the program this lowed them only to sit with Rusen and talk or watch television. But it was a relationship which seemed to benefit both, Rusen

"I think they really liked having a young person around," she said. "The man kept telling me how he wished he was young again and could run around like I can. And for me, it was very interesting to listen to stories about what the world was like before I was born.

"Basically, it was just fun working with these people. And it was important for me, I think, to see what it's like to be an older person. I don't know where else I could have discovered that.'

THAT SORT OF learning experience is what makes this program invaluable, said Ann Watson, guidance counselor for the Harper Woods Schools. She and Grosse Pointe Schools' counselor Marilyn Goldstein did the recruiting of students for the Life Span program.

The program got off to a slow start this year and perhaps not as many seniors or students evaluate everyone involved, viswere aware of its existence, Watson admitted. "But full scale, this will be something fantastic for everybody concerned," she

Watson feels that younger students should be targeted, since they are less likely to have jobs and more eager to show what they can do in an employment situation, she explained.

"Many of these 13-, 14- and 15-year-olds had never had jobs before and this sort of job has been an excellent experience for them," Watson said. "It has also been an eye-opener for them in terms of understanding the problems of the elderly.

"Many of these kids are protected from the realities of life and aging and the problems that go with it. When these kids were challenged in situations with their patient - such as two teens who were caring for a man with Alzheimer's who were able to work through a sensitive situation with the man - they feel good about themselves.

"This is a real self-esteem

FINDING THE "right" kind of student for this program is important, said the Grosse Pointe schools' Goldstein.

"We were looking for students who have some interest in working with senior citizens," Goldstein said. "We attracted students who were interested in working with seniors after high school or those who were grieving the loss of an older relative."

Goldstein and Watson also sought students who were responsible enough to make a quick decision on getting emergency help for an ill person. Teacher comments were invaluable in selecting students who would be capable of the job and also be flexible enough to learn something from the program.

"What impressed me most about all the students who participated was that they came up with questions and suggestions which showed they had learned something for the experience,' Goldstein said.

The need for a program such as Life Span is definitely there, Goldstein said.

'Before the program started, I had gotten all kinds of requests from the community for students to do this type of work. But I reached the point where I couldn't provide the students because I did not have the time or facilities to monitor students in such a program."

THIS MONITORING and the assessment of any feedback are done as part of the training program, according to Kraemer.

'We have discussions based on situations the students encountered in the homes," she said. "And the 10-1/2 hours of training prior to placement is augmented by returning for 3-1/2 more hours after working in a home in order to collect comments, questions, etc. in helping assess the program's worth."

Kraemer and her staff also as the caregivers.

While the program has been slov to organize and build, the response has been good from both the students and the clients.

"By and large, the caregivers are happy to have a reliable system of relief. This has been a good resource for them," Kraemer said. "The best part is, the caregivers have been careful to remember to thank the students and let them know they have been of great help. That's important.

The demand is also there from the student population, according to Goldstein and Watson. Both have received requests for application to the program from students in Harper Woods and Grosse Pointe.

"I am definitely looking for iting the homes of the patients ward to next year," Goldstein and caregivers and carefully in-said. "This has been successful terviewing the students, as well for the students involved and for the community.

The question now is funding. Kraemer said that the Venture Grant funding has allowed Life Span to continue placing students in homes through the summer months, but that additional funding is necessary for this fall.

"This program is of benefit to both the school population and to seniors. The combination of a job training program and learning experience for the teenagers is unbeatable. And the assistance to the caregiver is invaluable, Kraemer said.

"This is a dynamic program and still growing and developing. I hope we get the funding to continue

Clear this up

Dear Mother Nature: Before I tell you how upset 1 am, let me ask you how you

How are you? Good, now that the formalities are over, let's take a look at why I wrote this letter. You've really got me ticked

I can't understand what's going on with the weather pat tern lately, but I know it's not conducive to spring sports.

Spring is a time for shorts, T shirts and loafers. It's a time to be stretched out in bleachers at baseball games, softball games and track meets. Spring shouldn't be a battle with the weather when trying to follow Nick Lorenzini and Sean Byrne hitting a tennis ball, and it shouldn't be a long bout with rain and cold temperatures.

No time for parkas

I have to believe you are fully aware of the course the weather has taken. I find it very difficult to attend a track meet wearing my trench coat, a pair of gloves and at times, a hat. It's also unheard of to find warmth and comfort in a hockey rink at the end of April.

I know you've got your hands full trying to program the next few months of weather, but if you could get out of your rut, the rest of us would gladly shed the winter clothes for some tank tops and sunglasses.

Last summer you uncharacteristically allowed a drought to occur, and now you are torturing us again with below-average temperatures.

When was the last time, Mother Nature, you watched tennis players play a game dressed in sweat shirts, sweat pants and hats? It looks more like a winter-fest, than it does a spring sport.

You have a pretty cushy job. You can call for rain when you're miserable, or when you want to be happy you can clear the clouds and let the sun rays gleam. You're in full control of our moods, and handle the plaints. Have you ever hit a baseball on the handle of a baseball bat when the tempera ture is 25 degrees? Have you ever tried to run against a strong wind when wearing track shorts? Have you ever fallen on a soccer field that's frozen over?

Better yet? Have you ever watched a game from the stands when all you show up in is a summer-weight jacket and then a turn for the worse puts the sun behind the clouds, and the rain upon your umbrella?

Personally, I think you had better step aside and let the second string take over.

Time for change

I know Michiganians say, "If you don't like the weather wait five minutes," but that's becoming trite. We don't know what to expect anymore. We can't allow you to cramp our sports styles and keep us away from the games because of your poor selections. Please, do something so we can let tennis players look like tennis players and not eskimos, and softball players don't have to huddle on benches to stay warm.

Michigan is a beautiful state because of its change of seasons, but isn't it time we change? It seems we went from winter, to summer, to fall. We have yet to spring forward. Please, Mother Nature, quit slacking off.

Sincerely, and impatiently,

Rob Juliton

North girls still unbeaten

Lady Norsemen hand South first track loss

To call another North/South girls' track meet a classic would be repeating one's self; but what the heck, facts are facts.

In another classical matchup at the North track May 4, the Lady Norsemen downed the Lady Devils of South, 70-58, for only the second time in four years.

"For the past four years both North and South have lost only two meets each and those have been to one another," said South coach Steve Zaranek. "That's why these meets have always been classics.'

"I guess you could say that he's (Steve) undefeated on his track, and we are on our track." said North coach Charles Buhagiar. "Being at home, I think, is an advantage for everyone, but moreso for field people.

"Shot putters like their own surface and long jumpers their own pits, so being at home makes a difference," Buhagiar added.

Being at home has made a huge difference for the Lady Norsemen because they have lost only once on their track dating back to 1982.

Besides hosting the meet and being the favorite going in, history dictated that it was North's turn to win.

"We won at our place last year and they beat us on their track two years ago," Zaranek said. "It's certainly a home-track advantage'

Pat Bruce sets school mark at Sterling Heights

By Rob Fulton Sports Editor

He believes he can attain the height of seven feet, but for now South's Pat Bruce will take the school record jump of 6 feet, 9 1:

Bruce's jump, which beat the old school record of 6.9, came at the Sterling Heights Track Invitational May 6. As a team, South collected 46 third-place points.

Mark Sonnenberg picked up points for South as he won the 1600 run (4:29.3) and placed third (2:02) in the 800 run. Jason Parol's toss of 134 feet, 8 inches in the discus was good for third, and teammate Mike Kunkel was fifth with a tops of 124 feet.

Jeremy Dixon took fifth in the shot put (45.9), and the 800 relavteam of Scott Schaupeter, Kyle Schomaker, Dane Lupo and Andy Cox finished third. Rounding out the Devils' point total was the second-place 400-relay team of Mark Mackowiecki, Schaupeter, Lupo and Cox (46.2). Soccer

John Case's team moved to 5-4-1 on the season after winning three times last week.

Case, whose team wasn't over .500 this season, beat East Detroit (3-0), Fitzgerald (4-1) and Ann Arbor Huron (1-0).

Goalie Michele Kovalcik earned the shutouts in net. Beth Bonnani, Amy Case and Laura Jeffs picked up goals against East Detroit, and Leslie Braithwaite had one assist.

At Fitzgerald, South's Stephanie Vititoe collected two goals and Julie Gayman and Kate Finazzo added one apiece.

Some things never get easier. South varsity baseball coach

Dan Griesbaum thought his team had escaped a season-long slump after sweeping a doubleheader from Mount Clemens, but two losses in one day tossed things back to square one.

South traveled to Anchor Bay May 5 and lost 5-2, and then went to Harper Woods that evening to lose, 6-2.

"I thought we were coming out of it a bit," said Griesbaum. "But then we went back to our old ways. We were seeing some good things, but . . .

At Anchor Bay, left-hander Bill Leonard (1-4) struck out five and allowed six hits, but was tagged with the loss. South commited four errors in the first two innings, giving Anchor Bay a 4-0 lead after five innings.

South's Dale Wilson smacked a two-run homer in the fifth, his fourth of the year, to cut the gap, but the Tars added an insurance run in the sixth.

"We're just not able to overcome defensive mistakes," said Griesbaum. "We didn't play very well, but we were still in the ball game."

South, led by Ray Roxas' two hits, collected seven hits.

"Seven hits isn't bad if you string them together," Griesbaum said. "We're getting hits, but not back-to-back.

South stranded nine runners

Under the lights at Harper Woods, Sean Von Schwarz tossed an eight hitter over six innings, but failed to pick up his first win of the season. He's 0-4.

"After the first couple of innings we played real well," Griesbaum said. "It was the first couple that hurt us.'

South trailed 5-0 after the third, and then Roxas laced a two-run homer in the fifth. Roxas' average of .400 leads the

"We're not giving up," Griesbaum said. "We certainly don't want to finish down in the second half of the league.'

South is 3-5 in the E.M.L. and 6-11 overall.

South scored five runs in the fifth inning, after yielding three to North in the third, en route to a 5-3 win in the first round of the Grosse Pointe Tournament.

Regina, who won the tournament with a 2-1 record, and North and Milford Lakeland competed in the tourney.

At Parcells, South's Darcy Jones and North's Kerri-Sue Kelly squared off in a classic pitcher's duel. Jones, backed by 10 hits, fanned four and gave up four hits for the win.

In the fifth inning, Becky Wysocki's and Jenny Kalmink's doubles knocked in runs, but Jones aided her cause with a run-scoring triple.

Blue Devils run past Norsemen

By Rob Fulton Sports Editor

If South's Mark Sonnenberg was sick, then North coach Bob Collins was probably glad that Sonnenberg wasn't at full speed when the two track teams clashed in a May 4 contest at South, 6-3 overall, needed Sonnenberg and many others to down a stubborn North team, 73-64, for the first time since 1985 when the Devils beat the Norsemen, 69-68.

North is 5-3 overall. "I've got to take credit for both losses to South," said North the way it goes.

Sonnenberg, who had finished first in the 1600 run (4:28.8), became ill early in the meet and South coach Al Moebus thought his long-distance runner was through for the day. However, Sonnenberg fought the flu and the Norsemen to eventually give South the edge with a win in the

"The difference for us came in the 3200," said Moebus, who's inhis first season as head coach. "It put us over the hump. If it wasn't for that race, it would have come down to the 1600 relay (the last event), but it didn't '

It also helped when Paul Heymes ran a 10:49 to place

"Those were big points for us," Moebus said about Heymes' fin-What helped, too, was North's injury-riddled team. "I have two of my top three sprinters (Brayton Cherry and David Vier) out with injuries and they haven't performed all season," Collins said. "Matt Brady competed, but he's questionable because of an ankle injury, and Straske (Bob) had pneumonia. It's tough to fill the lineup.

Moebus strategically planned coach Bob Collins. "I was coach his lineup to counter the ing both those times, but that's strength of Straske, but his plans changed again when Straske couldn't run in his events.

"I should really be home in Straske said before the bed." "but this is the South meet, meet.

The importance of the North/ South meet didn't have any bearing on Moebus' preparations, however.

'We looked at this as another meet," he said. "Our goals are still to finish high in the league and do well at regionals. It was a North/South meet, but we approached it with other things in Straske's absence could have made the difference.

"No question he could have been the difference," Collins said. "Normally he would anchor the 400-meter relay team, but because he was sick I didn't want to take any chances, so I pulled him out.'

That move may have cost the Norsemen the win.

"I think the 400 relay was the key for us," Collins said. "We had the lead after the third leg, but it didn't work out for us."

Heymes and Sonnenberg put South over the hump, and Scott Schaupeter's 53.7 in the 400 dash gave South some breathing

"Another key for us was Scott's run," Moebus said. "Because after that things got rolling for us."

Don Pata (45.4) and Jamie Nevison (45.7) took second and third, respectively, in the 300 intermediate hurdles. Chad Schomaker took third in the 800 run.

"We needed points from kids we didn't expect," Moebus said.

"A lot of people contributed." Plenty of people contributed for Collins, too.

"Scott Collins did a great job the whole day," Coach Collins said. "He has really come on and he's only a sophomore.'

Collins raced his way to a second place in the 1600 run (4:30), second to South's Sonnenberg, the way the good Lord planned and finished first in the 800 run it.'

North's Liz-Bolden, who wasn't originally penciled in to compete in the long jump, was a late entry and the move paid off as she won the event with a jump of 16.6.

"We put some people in some places they normally don't compete in," Bubagiar said, "You have to do that in order to compete with a team like South."

Matranga Brown, Karen Ehresman, Elizabeth Kraft and Monaghan also team up to win the 800 relay

Perhaps South's biggest highlight came in the 100 hurdles, where Ehresman, only a sophomore, shattered the school record with a time of 15.9. The old record was 16.3.

There are very few girls in the state who are running under 16 seconds," Zaranek said. "Karen just demolished the record. Four tenths of a second may not seem like a lot, but it Ehresman also captured first in the 300 hurdles (51.5).

'We knew we were the underdogs going in," Zaranek said, "and we knew we had to scrape up about 10 unexpected points. We only got three, but everyone still did their best.'

In fact, South had 50 of its 80 girls score personal-bests, including Julie Nichols' win (5:36) in the 1600 run.

The field-event winners gave North a lead, but it was the running production that retained it.

"In last year's meet we won only one of four relay events." said Buhagiar, "so this year we wanted to at least break even."

North did as it won the 1600 and 3200 relays. "After the 3200 the score was basically tied, but then we went up by seven after winning the 800 run," Buhagiar recalled, "It was all academic by the time we ran the 1600, but we wanted to win it in order to get two wins in the relays."

Winning the 3200 were Katie Locher, Schultz, Hope Peters and Anne Dakmak, Schultz (2:31.8) and Loeher (2:32.1) were the onetwo combination in the 800 run that gave North the edge. Bolden, Schultz, Loeher and Noelle Cormier finished the day by winning the 1600 (4:14).

Jane Rice, who had two second places in both hurdle events, Monica Rhee and Allison Liebold picked up points in the "total team effort" for North.

"After the meet, we (Zaranek and Buhagiar) were kidding one another that our teams would be undefeated if we didn't run against one another," Zaranek chuckled. "That'll never happen,

McCarron leads Norsemen to 5th straight baseball win

By Rob Fulton Sports Editor

Senior shortstop Kevin Mc-Carron's best assets may be his legs and feet.

McCarron, who was injured earlier in the season, has put life back into the rather listless North baseball team by stealing his 28th base in as many attempts.

North used McCarron's services and the strong pitching of Jon Seagram, Lou D'Angelo and Kevin Endres to beat Clintondale (5-1), and L'Anse Creuse, 3-2 and 5-2.

North has now won five straight after losing seven straight during a two-week span earlier in the season.

At No. 10 ranked Clintondale, Seagram, only a sophomore, tossed a one-hitter and struck out five in seven innings work for the win.

North scored three times in the fifth to break open the game, as Scott Bernhardt and Mc-Carron singled in runs, just ahead of Mike Rancilio's sacrifice fly. The Norsemen added one in the sixth when Bryan Ford stole home during a firstand third-base steal. In the seventh, McCarron lined a single and then promptly stole second, third and home to manufacture North's final run.

"With him on the bases, we can turn a single into a double and a lot of times a triple," said North coach Frank Sumbera. "It's important for Kevin to get on base."

D'Angelo took the rubber in the opening game of the L'Anse Creuse doubleheader, giving up five hits and striking out eight.

After giving up one run in the first, North struck for three in its half of the first when Rancilio homered, followed by a Schorer walk, a Jamie Acord single and Paul Straske's two-run single.

D'Angelo, who walked only one batter, mowed the Lancers down the rest of the way.

"Our pitchers are eliminating the base on balls," Sumbera said. "It also helps to have Schorer (catcher) back in the lineup. He's the quarterback of the team when he's in there."

With Rancilio, Schorer and McCarron, who all had injuries, in the lineup, North is 7-1.

McCarron led the nightcap off with a single and a steal of second base, and moved home on Rancilio's RBI single. With the bases loaded, Ford's sacrifice fly gave North a 2-0 lead after one inning.

In the second, McCarron was safe on a fielder's choice, but it may as well have been marked a triple because by the time he slowed down he had stolen second and third. Schorer got Mc-Carron home on a sacrifice fly.

L'Anse Creuse added two in the fourth off starter and winner Kevin Endres, but North's Ted Loumanis, Mike VanSyckle and McCarron put together some hits to counter with two runs.

Endres went the distance, striking out five and walking
