Business trip to China becomes lesson in fear

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

It started a year ago as an international symposium on dermatology.

Ten American dermatologists were to meet in Beijing with some 200 Chinese dermatologists for two days of meetings, presentations and swapping of ideas. It ended with only two doctors from each country meeting while 24 miles away, Chinese troops onstrators who had occupied Tiananmen Square. Dr. Edward Krull of Grosse Pointe was one of the four doc-

Two days later - in fear for his life and that of his daughter who accompanied him - Krull made a hasty retreat from China, still unaware of the full scope of what had happened. Krull, who is chairman of dermatology at Henry Ford Hospital, had planned the trip for months, but got edgy as the June 2 departure date neared.

At that time, Chinese students had occupied Tiananmen Square for weeks. Chinese troops had confronted the protesters. The protesters rallied. The troops backed off.

Krull said.

He followed the events with interest and some concern from his Grosse Pointe City home. The day he left, and a few days prior, he contacted the State Department, looking for official advice whether to go or not. He was cautioned to be careful, but because there had been no clashes, the government said everything was fine. And it was fine when he ar-

Voters approve millage renewal, increase

Staff Writer By 9 p.m. Monday it was all over but the dancing.

The school election results were in from most of the six voting districts, and it was clear that the two millage requests one for a renewal of the 25.35 mills and one for a 2.2 mill increase - had both passed.

Nearly 5,000 more voters turned out Monday than did in the April 10 election in which the two proposals were combined. The voters rejected that

By a resounding ratio of almost 6 to 1, Proposition I, the request for the renewal, passed. Unofficial vote totals had 12,255 yes votes to 2,826 no.

Proposition II, which asked for the additional 2.2 mills to continue school programs at the current level, was a little closer. It lost in Grosse Pointe Shores and among the absentee voters, but passed, sometimes by a small margin, in the other cities. Unofficial results had 8,644 yes votes to 6,327 no votes.

"I'm extremely happy that the entire community worked together to bring the victory," McLeod said.

She credited the parents and students who campaigned to get the message out to the voters for the victory.

Parent groups dropped off fliers door to door, sent out mailings, talked to groups, wore buttons and posted signs urging residents to "Say Yes, Yes to Kids," and tied bright green ribbons to trees asking people to not hold the children's education hostage. Students from Parcells Middle School sponsored a bake sale and a car wash to raise money for an ad in the Grosse Pointe News urging support of both propositions.

Whritner said that the board has learned something from the April defeat and the subsequent passage.

He said the board heard the voters' message of practicing fiscal restraint, and will be working to meet that challenge.

The passage assures that there will be no cuts in staff or programs, however, the board will be discussing minor cuts to the hot lunch and community education programs which will make those programs more self-supporting.

"I'm pleased that we can continue to maintain the kind of education that makes Grosse Pointe such a special place to live," Whritner said.

Voter turnout was heavy all over the Pointes in Monday's millage election. Voters at Brownell Middle School, shown here, came strong and steady all day. By 10:15 a.m., 600 people had already cast ballots.

Shores judge presides over two 'grassroots' court cases

By John Minnis Assistant Editor

King Solomon presiding over "Night Court" - that's how Shores Municipal Judge Vincent J. Brennan felt one day last

When he arrived for court on the morning of June 8, Brennan was faced with two "grassroots" cases, you might say. One involved a man who cut his grass too little and the other about a resident who cut his grass too

On May 19, Shores police ticketed the owner of a home in the 600 block of Lakeshore for having grass over 6 inches tall. The judge found the man guilty of the offense and fined him $150.

The resident, however, was unhappy with Brennan's decision and refused to pay the fine, and Brennan gave him three days in the Shores jail for contempt of court.

Brennan said it might appear to some that a Shores man was jailed for not cutting his grass. but that isn't exactly the case. The judge said anyone who refuses to pay a fine could land in jail. Brennan added that it wasn't as if the man couldn't af ford to pay the fine.

The other case also involved a Lakeshore resident, but in this case a man living in the 800 block was said to mow his lawn too often, causing residents to suffer with the almost constant drone of a power mower and other lawn equipment.

According to a May 24 police report of a neighbor's complaints, the conscientious Lakeshore resident cuts his grass with a power mower and uses a gas-powered blower on his lawn seven days a week.

The complaining resident said his neighbor does the yard work every day after work from 4 to 7:30 p.m. and on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 11 a.m to 3 p.m. on Sundays.

The complainant said he can't sit in front of his house, on the enclosed porch, on the patio or even in the den or dining room without hearing the lawn equipment. He said the noise is intol-

Based on the angry neighbor's report to police, the yard-working resident was ordered to appear in court for possible violation of a Village ordinance that prohibits operating lawn equipment "in a fashion and at such times of the day as to unreasonably disturb the public peace and

Brennan said the constant yard worker has been in court before. Several months ago the judge told the complainant and the meticulous resident to reach some kind of agreement, but the dispute was not resolved.

When the matter came before him again last week, Brennan asked if the grass cutting couldn't be done just two days a week. The resident said he might be able to do it in two days, and Brennan adjourned the case for 90 days to see how things work out.

In a gesture worthy of Solomon himself, Brennan said he suggested in the courtroom that the man who cuts his grass too much ought to go over to other Lakeshore man's house and cut his grass.

"I asked if there was a full moon the night before," Brennan said of his unusual day in court.

Spill in Milk River was asphalt residue Estimates are that up to 1,000

By John Minnis Assistant Editor and Dan Jarvis Staff Writer

The 700 to 1,000 gallons of a tar-like substance that made its way into the Milk River last week was used to make asphalt for road surfaces, a county official said last week.

The identification of the substance is crucial in determining who dumped the pollutant into the combined water and sewage system that goes through the Milk River Pump Station. Officials, however, still have no idea who dumped the oil emulsion and when.

"It's a difficult situation," said Jim Murray, director of the Wayne County Department of Public Works, "but we hope to have more answers in a week to 10 days."

Murray made the comments to officials meeting June 8 to discuss a study of the Milk River drainage system, which consists of the pump station at Marter and Parkway and the open canal that runs from the pump station to the Jefferson bridge at Grosse Pointe Woods Lakefront Park in St. Clair Shores. The system is operated by Wayne County through the Milk River Inter-County Drainage Board.

On June 1, county officials notified the U.S. Coast Guard and Department of Natural Resources that there was a large quantity of an oil emulsion at the Milk River Pump Station.

gallons of the asphalt material made its way into the pump station. Sometime between May 27 and June 1 heavy rains forced the pump station's operators to pump some of the oil-sewage-rain water mixture into an outdoor retention basin. Some 200 gallons of the oil emulsion went See OIL, page 17A

"The cable for the two cameras has been installed," Petersen said, "and the cameras should be in soon.'

City officials said the cameras are necessary to combat vandalism of the gazebo and to watch for possible problems concerning strangers watching or approaching children in the park.

Two cameras with zoom lenses will be installed northeast of the gazebo and northeast of the tot lot. Each will be connected with individual monitors in the Woods public safety dispatcher's area of the police station.

The Woods council earlier considered the use of videotaping equipment to have a record of activities in the park, but is currently not in favor of the proposal, Petersen said.

City attorney George Catlin said that he does not see anything wrong with the surveillance cameras in Ghesquiere Park.

Murder charge reduced in auto accident fatality

Woods lawyer's blood tests not admissible

By John Minnis Assistant Editor

The second-degree murder charge against the Woods lawyer involved in the December death of a Mason woman following a high-speed chase in the Farms was reduced to involuntary manslaughter by a Detroit Recorder's judge last week.

Following Judge Dominick R. Carnovale's reduction of the charge against Dennis Allen Peppler June 12, Wayne County Assistant Prosecutor Robert Hood said his department is considering whether to appeal the decision.

Peppler, 36, was bound over to Wayne County Circuit Court March 3 on the second-degree murder charge after a preliminary examination before Farms Municipal Judge Matthew R.

At the March preliminary exam, Peppler's attorney argued that his client was improperly charged with second-degree murder. He said Peppler would have to have had malice for the 32year-old Mason woman, Diana June Gaedke.

At the hearing, however, Rumora said another test for malice was whether the suspect's actions were with a "wanton and willful disregard that the likelihood of the actions will cause great bodily harm or death."

Based on police testimony and evidence, Rumora felt that the wanton and willful disregard standard had been met sufficiently to bind Peppler over to Circuit Court on the second-degree murder charge.

According to police, Peppler was fleeing a Farms officer at high speeds Dec. 8 at 2:50 a.m. Lt. Mark Brecht testified at the preliminary hearing that he did get a close enough look at the occupants of the late-model Ford Probe that was owned by Gaedke. The officer testified that he saw Peppler behind the wheel shortly before the fatal accident.

Brecht then lost sight of the car, but later found the vehicle had crashed through the Grosse Pointe Academy fence on Grosse Pointe Boulevard at the foot of Kenwood. The car had traveled through the fence and slammed into a tree 20 feet from the boulevard. Peppler was found sitting in the driver's seat with the car door open and his feet on the round, Brecht said. Peppler was holding his head and moaning, years in prison. Second-degree the officer testified.

In January following his arraignment in Municipal Court, Peppler told the Grosse Pointe News that he was not driving the car and was asleep in the passenger's seat when the highspeed chase and accident occurred.

Gaedke was killed instantly in the crash. The autopsy indicated that she died from a gash in her neck that cut her left jugular vein. Police believe that at the car's impact with the tree, Gaedke's head smashed through the windshield and then jerked back in again after the vehicle bounced off the tree. Blond hair was found dangling from the jagged glass edges of the hole in the windshield, which was stained with blood, police testified.

Peppler pleaded innocent to the second-degree murder charge at his January arraignment and

Disorderly youths found possessing suspected drugs

Disorderly youths in cars who were riding side by side down Jefferson last week were found in possession of suspected drugs after being stopped by police.

According to Park police reports, the youths were cruising on Jefferson and acting in a disorderly manner shortly after 11, p.m. June 8.

One car was pulled over at St. Clair and Jefferson, and suspected marijuana and LSD were found on the driver's possession. The other car was stopped at Lakeland. A passenger was found holding suspected marijuana and a prescription pill.

Police said the youths were between the ages of 17 and 21 and will be charged as adults.

was released on $100,000, 10 murder carries a maximum senpercent bond.

Following the accident Peppler was rushed to St. John Hospital, where a blood test taken at 3:37 a.m. showed Peppler had a blood alcohol level of .265, according to the testimony of an emergency room physician. Legally drunk is an alcohol level of .10. The Farms police later obtained a search warrant for another blood

At last week's hearing before Carnovale, Peppler's attorney presented three motions. One was to have the second-degree murder charged dropped or reduced, and the other two were to have the two blood tests taken from Peppler following the accident ruled as inadmissible as evidence.

Carnovale ruled in favor of Peppler on all three motions. Assistant Prosecutor Hood explained that there are two court cases on the appellate level concerning using hospital blood tests as evidence against a suspect. One case said the hospital's blood tests are admissible and the other said they are unconstitutional.

The court decided to go with the decision making use of hospital blood tests unconstitutional, Hood said.

The court also ruled that the blood test obtained by the search warrant was not valid. Hood said that Carnovale had to decide based on the police investigator's sworn affidavit when seeking the search warrant whether there were sufficient grounds for the judge to grant the search warrant.

Hood said that Carnovale ruled that there was not sufficient evidence given to Rumora on the sworn affidavit from police to justify signing a search warrant.

Without the blood tests, it will be difficult for the prosecution to determine if Peppler was legally drunk at the time of the accident, but Hood said whether Peppler was drinking has nothing to do with the second-degree murder charge.

He said the prosecution's argument is that the willful disregard standard is not dependent on whether the defendant was intoxicated at the time of the in-

Gaedke's father, Percy Farero, of Mason, said last week that he would have liked to have seen the second-degree murder charge stand. "I don't like the outhe said. "I'm disapcome," pointed."

At the time of the fatal accident, Peppler was wanted on a bench warrant for failure to appear in court on a cocaine possession charge, which was brought against Peppler by Woods police. At his Municipal Court arraignment, Peppler told Rumora that he had pleaded no contest to the cocaine charge.

Neither Peppler nor his attorney could be reached for comment concerning the most recent court action.

A pretrial hearing on the involuntary manslaughter charge has been scheduled for June 23. The pretrial will be delayed if a appeal is filed.

A worker for the Wayne County Road Commission got a little too close to the breakwall while trying to mow the grass and ended up suddenly in the lake - tractor and all. Police said the county employee was cutting the grass with a tractor near the breakwall along Lakeshore near Moran in the Farms June 9 at 2:38 p.m. when the tractor slipped on the wet grass, turned over and fell into the lake. The tractor operator escaped injury except for a few scratches and being scared to death, police said. The road commission got the tractor out with An attorney with the Abbott, Nicholson, Quilter, Esshaki & Youngblood, he was appointed to the City Council in August 1983. He won his first election in November 1983 and was re-elected in November 1987. His current term expires in November 1991.

"I am very sorry to lose John Youngblood," said Mayor Lorenzo D. Browning. "He's been a very effective councilman, particularly because of his expertise. He's a lawyer and a good one."

Browning said Morris, who is a certified public accountant, also added to the professional background on the council.

Appointed in November 1986, Morris' term expires in November. He is a partner with the accounting firm of Pannell Kerr Forster. He also moved to Grosse Pointe Park.

"It was with deep regret," Morris said concerning his moving from the city and having to give up his seat on the council. "We had a lot of fun. It's a great city."

The City Council will officially accept the resignations at its June 19 meeting.

Park, customs officials thunder across Lake St. Cl

Assistant Editor

Grosse Pointe police and city officials stormed across Lake St. Clair last week in the U.S. Custom's high-powered intercept boat Blue Thunder.

The Park police and city officials and Shores resident Herold McC. Deason, Park city attorney Park Mayor Pro Tem Vernon and a member of the executive K. Ausherman joined Public board of Spirit of Detroit, got the ride of their lives during a 50 mph, white-knuckled dash from Windmill Pointe to the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club. After the exmad dash across Lake St. Clair hilarating ride, which included after Blue Thunder stopped for a high-speed, hairpin turns, Ausherman said, "This is something, region from headquarters in De-chief he was the Park's harbor master and that a requisition for a couple of Blue Thunders would come before the Park council.

According to Blue Thunder's captain, Ron Miller, the Customs Service purchased 13 of the 39foot, navy-blue intercept boats in the mid 1970s. He said the boats cost $176,000 apiece, not including the state-of-the-art electronic gadgets aboard each boat.

He said the boat's twin 575 hp Mercruiser engines can push the boat along at 65 mph, burning 85 to 90 gallons of fuel an hour.

Miller, 45, is an instructor for the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center in Brunswick, Ga. He has been in law enforcement for 24 years and has been with the Customs Service since 1975, and he started with the service as captain of a 16-foot Boston Whaler. It was amazing how many bad guys he caught with the little boat, he said.

While tracking down Uziwielding drug traffickers with Blue Thunder along the Florida coast, the Keys and as far east as the Bahamas has become a very dangerous business, Miller said it wasn't always like that.

"They don't play fair like they used to," he said. "I didn't used to have to worry about guns." He said he once stopped a boat loaded with marijuana and made arrests, all the while being unarmed. He said he wouldn't get away with such bravado today, but he has no regrets.

"If I were 30, I'd do it all over again," he said.

On Saturday, Miller was the captain of one of two Blue Thunders participating in a mock drug interdiction on the Detroit River in front of the hydroplane race's grandstands. A Customs Service tracking jet, a helicopter, a smaller plane, a U.S. Coast Guard ship and a leisure craft were used to put on the mock drug intercept.

The tracker plane, a Cessna Citation II, flew along the water to check out the leisure craft suspected of waiting for a drug Chicago.

School voters give millages easy victory

n a surprising reversal, voters in the Grosse Pointe School District approved both propositions in Monday's millage election and assured the reopening of school in September without cuts in staff or programs.

The total vote exceeded 15,000, the largest in recent memory for a school election, with both propositions winning easily. Proposition I, to renew the 25.35-mill rate that expired last Dec. 31, carried in all communities by a huge 12,255 to 2,826 margin while Proposition II, the 2.2-mill increase, was adopted by a smaller 8,644 to 6,327 vote with only the Shores and the absentee voters showing disapproval.

What accounted for the startling reversal of results after the April 10 defeat?

No doubt much of the credit should go to the hard work of the supporters of the two millage issues who distributed new literature which included the most recent estimates of how much the increase would cost the average homeowner in each of the Pointes and in the Harper Woods part of the district.

In a campaign directed by the Invest in Excellence Committee and the school administration, the backers also played up the fact that the board had responded to the April 10 defeat by separating the issues into two propositions this time and by guaranteeing restraint on school spending if one or both issues were approved.

In specific terms, that meant if only the renewal had passed, the school tax increase would have been capped at 6.3 percent. However, since both propositions were approved, the tax increase now will be limited to 8.5 percent although approval of the 2.2-mill hike authorized a first-year rate of twice as much.

As Superintendent John A. Whritner guaranteed in advance, approval of both issues means that most of the $1 million cut from the existing budget will be restored to bring programming back to the 1989-90 levels, building and site improvements will be held to $1 million and programs will be maintained in the third year of the levy when the Headlee amendment would ordinarily have required spending

As a result of the victories, the board and school administration will be able to breathe easier, along with the 723 employees who already had received lay-off notices subject to the voters' action in the Monday vote.

If the increase had been defeated, the schools would have had to make serious cuts and even eliminate some programs. Among those targeted for elimination were the elementary school gifted program, middle school reading and math support, hockey and nearly one-sixth of all other sports and clubs. Cutbacks were scheduled in substance abuse support, secondary school teaching positions and social work, nurse and computer services.

If both proposals had been defeated, the schools would have had to call for a third vote because, without even the renewal millage, there would not have been sufficient funds to finance the opening of school in the fall. In addition, the district would have been liable for unemployment benefits estimated at from $1.4 million to $3.3 million if schools had not been able to open on time.

Now, however, congratulations are in order for the board, the school administration, the Invest in Excellence Committee and, of course, the majority of voters who rescued the district from possible disaster.

rosse Pointe Shores, already regarded as the richest of the Pointes, now can lay claim to being the 35th wealthiest suburb in the United States, if you can believe a Chicago urbanologist who says the Shores' 1987 per capita income of $40,874 earned it that status.

Pierre deVise of Roosevelt University also finds that Bloomfield Hills is the wealthiest suburb in Michigan, which is no surprise, and the second wealthiest in the nation, with a per capita income of $59,830. The top rank belongs to Kenilworth, Ill., a Chicago suburb with a $61,950 per capita income while Franklin village ranks 11th with a $49,961 per cap-∍; ita income.

The Chicago researcher apparently is more interested in the fate of the poor than in the wealth of the rich and uses the list of the wealthiest suburbs to emphasize his contention that the gap between the richest and the poorest Americans is growing wider.

Thus he sees the rising affluence of the Shores, Bloomfield Hills and Franklin village as a "disaster" for the urban area and further evidence of the declining economic influence of the city of Detroit.

"Detroit no longer has a desirable downtown, there's no return-to-the-city movement," he told The Detroit News. "Despite the success of your suburbs, there are no enclaves of influence in your city. That's the basic news of your story."

Yet the urbanologist found no Detroit suburbs among the nation's poorest. The class perspective, the nation's poorest suburbs represent the American nightmare. They have ramshackle houses, old jalopies, slum schools, dirty air, clubby neighborhoods of the street-gang variety and access to a metro-wide drug market.'

Unfortunately, however, deVise didn't have any recommendations for improving the economic status of the poor suburbs. Nor did he give the wealthier suburbs any credit for offering housing havens for businessmen and investors who provide employment in Detroit.

After all, they might well have sought out another metropolitan area if they hadn't found the residential attractions they wanted in such places as Bloomfield Hills, Franklin, the Shores and, we might

The lack of consideration of such matters no doubt helps explain deVise's own expectation that more attention will be paid to his list of the wealthiest suburbs than to his comments about the poor.

Shores makes 'richest' list

Chicago suburb of Ford Heights, with a per capita income of $4,943, was the poorest on his list.

So what do we learn from his study? Not much that we didn't already know, although his findings do reinforce the view that the gap between the richest and poorest communities in this country is widen-

DeVise contends that from the "middle add, the other Pointes.

The poisonous side of politics

verything is supposed to be fair in love, war and politics. If we omit love and war for the moment, that comment is certainly true of politics as it is being played in Michigan and Washing-

In this state, Michigan AFL-CIO President Frank Garrison wants the Michigan Education Association's representative ousted from the Democratic State Central Committee because the MEA boycotted Gov. James J. Blanchard's political fundraiser and compounded its political crime by contributing $25,000 to the GOP senatorial campaign committee.

The MEA declined to buy tickets to the event that raised a record $1 million for the governor's 1990 campaign war chest because it was dissatisfied with the governor's action, or lack of action, on reform of state school funding. In our view, the MEA had reason to be angry.

Blanchard last year torpedoed a proposal for a 2-cent sales tax increase coupled with a cut in property taxes at a time when legislative approval had nearly been achieved. This year he has favored a 1-cent sales tax increase which MEA lobbyists feel will not raise enough revenue to even start equalizing the tax support for pupils in all Michigan school districts.

It strikes us that the MEA ought to accept its threatened ouster from the Democratic State Central Committee with equanimity and, instead of protesting, decide to run an independent course from here on out. We doubt that will happen but it would be good for the MEA and its members as well as the two major political parties if the MEA were no longer a captive of the Democratic Party on most is-

However, Michigan is playing softball politics in comparison with the hardball being played on the national field in Washington between the Democrats and Republicans. There the latest controversy involved a Republican attempt to use innuendo to damage the reputation of the new Democratic speaker of the House, Rep.

That effort was so obvious that President Bush himself called it "disgusting," Senate Minority Leader Robert Dole said it was "garbage" and the Democrats had even tougher descriptions for the Republican National Committee release that implied that Foley was a homosexual.

It is true that some Republicans, and especially the new GOP House whip, Newt Gingerich, feel that the only way they can end the Democrats' hold on the U.S. House of Representatives is to blacken the reputation of as many incumbents as possible. Such people feel they have new ammunition with the resignations of the former Democratic speaker and the former Democratic majority leader for ethical reasons.

But both parties can play that game. If the Republicans actually seek to uncover personal political peccadillios of individual Democrats, they will find the Democrats replying in kind. Unfortunately, both sides appear to have plenty of ammunition for such a war, but the major result would be further damage to the reputation of the House and Congress.

Let's hope both parties clean up their acts, resume their legislative work and get back to discussing and debating the issues in the 1990 campaign.

Thank you

Teen alcohol legislation

To the Editor:

I read with interest the Grosse Pointe News' June 1st article "Governor Vetoes Teen Alcohol Use Legisla-I agree with Gov. tion.' James Blanchard's conclusion that "Senate Bill 119 is not the solution we need."

This bill would have been addressing only part of the problem: the minors. A more efficient way to end this dilemma would be to make prosecuting the seller the main objective. These sellers are multiple offenders. For instance, one seller could be serving several minors in a single day. It would be more effective to stop that one seller instead of trying to stop each and every minor.

Admittedly, minors are at fault also. But SB119's punishment would not be fitting the crime. As the article stated, all of SB119's penalties involve some sort of driver's license suspension. It would be illogical to suspend the minor's license even if driving was not involved. It is important that punishments be fair so they can act as a deterrent. The current laws are as such.

Drug problem

To the Editor:

The June 1st article, "Woods Home Considered Under Drug Forfeiture Law," immediately caught my attention. It's about time that the police did something about the drug problem in Grosse Pointe.

As I am a student at Grosse Pointe South, I have been witness to one of the worst drug problems in the area. A much larger percentage of kids are using drugs than people would like to believe. It is perhaps the most chronic problem that South

If more drug dealers, such as the Scandalis brothers, are prosecuted, the drug flow would decrease. Once drugs are cut off, the crime rate would drop, since drugs are probably responsible for the majority of crime in the Detroit area.

The bottom line is that if drug raids are more common, Grosse Pointe will maintain its high standard of living.

Home again

Since my byline will be appearing regularly in the Grosse Pointe News, I (and a few others) thought it only fair to let the readers know a little about myself. (Keep reading.)

Though I was born in Blue Island, Ill., shortly after JFK's inaugural address, I was quickly whisked off to Grosse Pointe Park at the mature age of three months. What a shame. I was just beginning to enjoy the seedy lifestyle that the south Chicago area can deliver.

Within a few years I realized that I was not the center of the universe. In fact, I was only one of 10 children. I gave this issue all the careful thought that a 5year-old can muster and decided it was a pretty good deal. (My mom may disagree slightly.)

Growing up in a family of 10 children was exciting. I thought that all families had as many.

By the time I entered kindergarten at Trombly Elementary School, I found out that some kids had no brothers or sisters. Boy, I thought, they've really got it made.

No one to share your room with. No one to pass down their clothes. No one to get in the

Looking back, I realize how lucky I really was (am).

In our house, there were always plenty of babysitters who allowed much more tomfoolery than my parents. There were the stories of adulthood (junior high and high school), which I heard first-hand.

But best of all, having older brothers and sisters meant adult parties (pubescent students) when my parents dared to leave home base.

Living in Grosse Pointe Park as a child, one of our biggest fears was Officer Blair. He was the scary policeman who would tell our parents if we rode our bikes in the street. Well, he's gone now, as is his house which eventually gave way to a parking lot. He must have really cared about the safety of children to get so worked up over us riding our bikes in the street.

As a young student going through the Grosse Pointe school system, I didn't appreciate it much at the time. My parents and the teachers told me that it was important to get a good education, but I had other ideas. I wanted to be one of the Beatles.

By the time I went to Pierce Middle School, I wanted to join a rock band so all the girls would like me. It didn't work. The ones who liked me would have anyhow: the ones who didn't were not wooed by our special brand of screeching noise pollution. Oh,

In high school (South, of course) I reached a great awak- natural. ening. I was one of the few (so I thought) who bridged the gap between the "jocks" and the 'freaks.'

I didn't really fit into either category, which was a problem for some, including myself at

Catastrophic health surtax

To the Editor: This is to commend Congressman Bonior and Senator Levin for their legislation to repeal the Medicare Catastrophic Health Surtax recently announced by the media. Their proposal to completely repeal the surtax by extending the existing 33 percent income tax bracket for those most able to pay may not please everyone.

However, it is much fairer than the current law which places the entire burden on approximately 20,000,000 low and middle class seniors who have scrimped and saved so they would not be a burden in their old age on their families or the government and now are being penalized.

Congressman Bonior's statement: "The surtax is unfair to senior citizens. Most seniors live on fixed incomes and simply cannot shoulder the burden of paying additional taxes," is worthy of praise. It is a complete reversal of his statement to me when I confronted him on this issue in Roseville early last fall and he said, "It's about time seniors start paying for something — they have been getting too many freebies." Be that as it may, even though our group, Seniors Against Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act, is for repeal, we laud him and welcome him as an ally.

After months of bitter protests and angry outcries all over the country, it is apparent the law will most likely be changed in some manner. It's reported that 178 members of Congress are now cosponsoring legislation to repeal or change the law. The Bonior, Levin and Harkin legislation is included in this number.

I'm proud of our group's role in influencing change on this issue. Even though we are small in number, we are highly motivated to repeal this outrageous law. For the past eight months we have sent thousands of petition signatures to President Bush, 18 federal legislators representing Southeast Michigan, and AARP who all supported this grossly unfair law. In addition, we have mailed hundreds of letters, made thousands of phone calls, and attended hundreds of meetings where ever seniors gathered.

Although we are greatly encouraged, we are going to keep up the pressure indefinitely. It's important to let our legislators and AARP know that we will not be intimidated by their insensitive action. We will be monitoring the situation closely and will respond appropriately at the polls.

Finally, I wish to thank the thousands who signed our petitions, made donations to the cause, invited us in their meeting halls, and those who sent us letters and phone calls of encouragement. Without all your help and cooperation there would not be any petition drives. Hopefully you will be rewarded soon. For us, the primary reward will be the end of discrimination to one class of seniors.

News Chevrolet challenges imports with imports of its own

If you said it's a Toyota Corolla, you'd be partly right. If you said it's a Chevy Sprint or a Suzuki Swift, you'd be partly right again. And if you said it's a tiny cartoon-like utility vehicle based on the Suzuki Samurai and the same as the Suzuki Sidekick, once again, you're partly right

The Geo is all of these. The Geo Prizm, which replaces the Chevrolet Nova, is a Toyota Corolla built at the joint Toyota-GM plant in California; built in America, but a Japanese car.

The Geo Metro is built by Su zuki, which markets the same car as the Swift and it replaces last year's Chevy Sprint The Geo Trucker mini utility vehicle is a version of a Suzuki Samurai, built to Chevy's orders and marketed by Suzuki as the Sidekick. And there's more to come. In the fall, the Geo Storm, a small sportster based on the Isuzu Impulse, will join the

OK, but what is a Geo, really? Well, for one thing, it is an imaginative approach to the market in which Chevrolet in effect is saying "the imports (read that Japanese imports) are here to stay and we want a share of that market.

After a long string of more or less (usually more) unsuccessful "import fighters," starting with the Corvair and running right through the Chevette and Xcars. Chevrolet is fighting fire with fire—challenging Japanese imports with Japanese imports of its own.

Chevrolet has high hopes for the Geo nameplate, expecting it to rival mighty Toyota, Nissan and Honda, with sales potential of 400,000 units a year.

The Geo line is aimed at bringing in buyers studies show are "committed" to imports. Most of these buyers, who tend to be younger, would be unlikely to visit a Chevrolet showroom because they are only interested in imported vehicles.

Chevrolet says it's a new nameplate, but not exactly a new franchise. Chevrolet dealers signup to sell Geo, but it is not a separate franchise. It is, say some at Chevrolet, a "franchise of the mind." And it is an interesting assortment of vehicles

Flagship of the Geo line is the Prizm, a roomy, peppy and stylish sedan which should have appeal to the import buyer since it is a version of one of the most popular models in the world, the Toyota Corolla. In fact, because the Prizm is a '90 model, it has a more advanced engine than is available yet in the Corolla, a four-valve-per-cylinder fuel-injected 1.6-liter four that is so smooth and quiet you may think it has stalled when you stop for a light. But it hasn't.

A thoroughly pleasant and practical car available as fourdoor hatchback or hatchback sedan, the Prizm is priced at $9,960 base, but think of it as a very nice $12,000 car when you get it equipped the way you want it. Every bit as good as the Toyota Corolla (since that's what it is) and better for a while, the Prizm also has the advantage of the Chevrolet dealer network to support it, of whom roughly 80 percent have signed to handle

The Prizm is Geo's "breadand-butter" car, its volume leader, but the "niche" cars are interesting and fun. The Metro is a peppy little mini sedan, available as a two-door or fourdoor. It is rated by the EPA at 53 mpg city/58 mpg highway with standard five-speed manual transmission, so you'll have to go some to beat it in the fuel economy department.

Its engine is tiny, a one-liter three-cylinder unit that puts out 55 horses, enough to move this little aerodynamic car briskly, but the brutal performance of the Sprint Turbo pocket rocket, which was almost impossible to hold at legal speeds, is just a memory. No turbo option is available on the Metro.

Prices start at $5,995 for the two-door and $7,195 for the four-

The little car is fun to drive (even without the turbo), is more comfortable than it looks, handles very well and stops with the same alacrity with which it goes. Like many Japanese cars, it has trouble keeping the windshield clear when it's cold out and everybody in the car insists on breathing. But it's a good, clean fun and snappy transportation at

The geo which seems to attract the most attention is the Tracker, a cute mini four-wheeldrive sports-utility vehicle which looks like it had been designed by Walt Disney.

It is great fun to drive and is a real attention-getter because it looks like a toy. Although based on the Samurai, the Tracker has a lot of U.S. input, more of a joint effort between Chevrolet and the Japanese maker than the Metro or even the Prizm, which is built by New United Motor Manufacturing Inc., a joint venture of GM and Toyota.

The Tracker is offered in three models, the base two-door, the up-scale LSi and - hold on to your hats - the convertible. The Tracker is powered by a 1.6-liter Suzuki four, with five-speed manual or three-speed automatic transmission and a floormounted transfer case to allow two-wheel or four-wheel drive.

The sporty Storm, scheduled for fall introduction, was shown at the Detroit auto show and is a sharp example of a current Japanese styling trend - brightly colored cars that look like fun, kind of oversized toys molded of plas-

Phyllis Jane Hewitt's third-grade class at Poupard has become pen pals with third-graders from Clough Elementary School in Rome, N.Y. The project helps students improve their writing skills and they have also improved their geography skills. Griffis Air Force Base is located in Rome and the vast majority of the students' parents are employed by the government, consequently the children have traveled around the country and in some cases the world much more than the average 8- or 9-year-old. Be aware of Lyme Disease, symptoms

The Michigan Legislature declared May 29 through June 4 as Lyme Disease Awareness Week.

During June and July, prime outdoor recreational time, more and more people will be exposed to this strange, very serious, tick carried disease.

Last year the United States reported 5,000 cases, but there have been nearly 500 cases this year in just one New York county.

Most of us have never heard it. Lyme Disease, sometimes called "the great masquerader," is carried by a tick that lives in and near wooded areas, tall grass and brush. It burrows its head into the skin. The tick, which carries the tiny corkscrew shaped creatures called spirochetes that actually cause the disease, is in a small, early stage when it does its damage. It is often no bigger than the period at the end of this sentence.

A principal warning sign of the disease is a bull's-eye rash that usually, but not always, appears days to weeks after the the skin. Also, flu-like symptoms symptoms, please contact your

But what is Lyme Disease? can appear, including headaches, chills, fever and fatigue. Swelling and pain can occur in joints, especially in the knees. This can lead to arthritis. Less common symptoms are heart arrythmia, severe headaches, facial palsy or paralysis and numbness. The tiny, dangerous spirochete may even hide out in the central nervous system. There it may cause an Alzheimer's disease-like confusion or even encephalitis or meningitis. It can cause birth defects if a pregnant woman is infected.

Prevention steps can be taken by tucking pant legs into long socks and by wearing a longsleeved shirt tucked in. Use pest repellants containing the ingredient DEET on your skin and clothes. A petition by more than 150 Park residents to close Korte Avenue at the Detroit border due to traffic concerns will go before the Planning Commission sometime in July.

The petitions with signatures from about 150 residents of six Park streets that intersect with Korte were sent to the Planning Commission by the City Council Monday night.

When the matter came before the council, no one stepped forward on behalf of the petition drive, and the only ones to speak about Korte Avenue were two Detroit residents who live on Alter Road. Both the Detroit residents were opposed to closing

"We're very concerned. We

a former Park resident who now lives on Alter. "We don't want to be walled off."

Mayor Palmer T. Heenan said it is customary for requests such as street closings to go before the Planning Commission for discussion and a public hearing. He said the matter will probably go before the planners in July.

"We are extremely sensitive of the concerns not only of our residents but of our neighbors in Detroit," Heenan told the two Detroit residents. "Your concerns will be addressed with sensitivity."

Korte Avenue runs parallel to Jefferson near Lake St. Clair. The road begins at Windmill Pointe Drive and runs west for 4.1/2 blocks before coming to the Detroit-Grosse Pointe Park borwant to keep the neighborhood der at Barrington Road. Korte continues into Detroit for 12 blocks and ends at Lennox.

According to the language on the petitions, which were circulated May 22 through June 6, the signers are requesting the closure of Korte at the city border because of concern over the high volume of traffic on Korte.

"We believe this traffic endangers citizens in the area, particularly the large number of children resident there," the petition

The petition signers also indicated how many children are in their households. According to the petitions, nearly 100 children are represented by the signers.

The petitions represent residents from all the streets that intersect Korte in the Park: Barrington, Pemberton, Lakepointe, Middlesex Boulevard, Westchester and Windmill Pointe Drive.

Program will test curbside recycling

By Ronald J. Bernas

Staff Writer
The Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling is getting closer to achieving the goal it was created to meet - curbside pickup of recyclable materials - thanks to a $10,000 grant from the Garden Club of Michigan Fund of the Community Foundation of Southeastern Michigan.

The group, formed last last fall to raise the community's awareness of the need for recycling, will send out letters this week to 100 homes in the five Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods informing them that they have been chosen to be part of a pilot program on curbside recy-

At a meeting last week, each of the officials approved their city's participation in the eightweek program which runs from July 10 through Sept. 1

The project, called REACT, or Recycling Education and Curbside Test, is designed to help the group determine how many people will take advantage of a curbside recycling service, according to project manager Sheila Osann. The project is also designed to educate both the participants and other residents. The 100 homes in each of the cities will be chosen randomly, but they will all be in the same block-area which will facilitate pickup, Osann said.

Each of the homes will be given an 18-gallon bright red plastic container (made partly of recycled materials). They will also receive instructions on what to save and how to deal with it.

Each block will have a captain lege student to do it. Everything that is picked up will be sold and the proceeds will be be returned to the communities through the project.

"Education is a very important part of the program," Osann said. "As the project goes on, we'll see what types of educational tools work. Osann said that other communities who have tried similar pilot programs usually receive about 25 percent participation, but that is the point of the program, she said: to determine level of participation.

"Nearly everyone who has heard about it is very excited about it," Osann said. "Every-body does feel it's going to be inevitable, but no one wanted to put a date as to when it would become mandatory to recycle. We're just getting ready for it."

In other Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling news, the second monthly recyclable collection held June 3 at Grosse Pointe South collected nearly as much as the first collection day a month earlier.

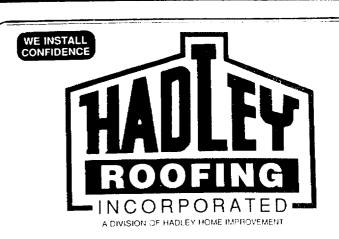

To date, including the May 6 collection, more than 62 tons of recyclables have been collected. The next drop off day will be Saturday, July 1 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Grosse Pointe South.

Once at the youths' car, he saw a case of beer containing 12 full, unopened beers and two empties. He also saw a youth, who turned out to be the driver of the car, walking along the north side of the school.

When the driver was asked about beer, he told the officer that a person driving a yellow Jeep gave the beer to him, according to the officer's report.

Matthew R. Rumora

Rumora files

Judge Matthew R. Rumora has filed petitions for re-election as municipal court judge in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Prior to becoming judge, Rumora served as city prosecutor in Grosse Pointe Farms. A practicing attorney with 15 years of experience in both criminal and civil cases, Rumora also has served, by special assignment, in the Grosse Pointe City Municipal Court and as District Court judge in the 36th (Detroit), 39th (Roseville, Fraser) and 40th (St. Clair Shores) District Courts.

Rumora's professional achievements include: appointment as magistrate — 36th District Court; referee, Detroit Traffic Court; Circuit Court mediator; and arbitrator for the American Arbitration Association.

Among his professional associations, Rumora is a member of the State Bar of Michigan, the Macomb County Bar Association, American Trail Lawyers Association and Michigan Trial Lawyers Association. He currently is president-elect of the Municipal Judges Association of Michigan.

A lifelong resident of Grosse Pointe and a graduate of Grosse Pointe High School, Rumora is a member of the board of directors for the Grosse Pointe Farms-City Babe Ruth Baseball League and is co-chairman of its 1989 State Tournament. He has worked as a Grosse Pointe volunteer probation officer and as a volunteer attorney for Family Life Education Council (FLEC).

He is active in the Grosse Pointe Crisis Club, the Exchange Club of Grosse Pointe and the Metro East Chamber of Commerce.

The Farms municipal judge is elected to a four-year term and is responsible for arraignments in criminal cases and preliminary exams in felony cases. Rumora presides over trials of all misdemeanor violations, civil cases up to $1,500, including small claims, landlord-tenant disputes and all traffic violations.

Grosse Pointe Farms Municipal Court is regularly held on the second and fourth Monday of each month. The responsibilities of Municipal Court judge include being available 24 hours a day, every day, for arraignments, to sign warrants, and to attend to urgent matters of the court as they arise.

Solutions sought for Milk River

A public meeting to discuss long-term solutions for cleanup and possible re-working of the sewage/drain system feeding the Milk River is planned for Monday, June 26 at Grosse Pointe Woods City Hall.

On hand to lend expertise on sewage and drain problems and solutions will be representatives from Wayne and Macomb county public works departments, Michigan's Department of Natural Resources and engineers from McNamee, Porter and Seeley, an engineering firm conducting a study of the problem.

"The Milk River has some difficult times ahead," said James E. Murray, director of Wayne County Public Services. "It will be one of the most difficult long-term sewage problems in the state to solve."

At the meeting, several solutions will be offered to solve problems, like raw sewage and odor experienced by residents living near the mouth of the Milk River.

American doctor, his wife, and a tour guide took a trip to Tiananmen Square to see what they knew was history in the making.

"When we arrived, I got the feeling that it was like a county fair or a festival," Krull said. The square was less than half full with protesters. The curious and the interested also occupied the area. Vendors were selling soda pop.

One public address system steadily droned the students' message of democratic reform. Another public address system, run by the government, told the students to leave the square. A camera, also government run, circled the area. Krull now realizes the camera was used to gather evidence for the subsequent arrests.

"It was not a confrontational atmosphere," Krull said. "People were just sitting there. Children. Old people. They were talking with the soldiers who were there. It was really much more of a fair atmosphere than anything else.

The plaster of Paris statue modeled after the Statue of Liberty was surrounded by the curious and the tourists. They were taking pictures.

"No one really could have ever anticipated what happened," Krull said.

The group stopped at a Beijing hotel for drinks and walked around the city before going back to their hotel in Moven Pick, 24 miles from Beijing. The symposium had originally been scheduled at the hotel at which they stopped, but due to the unrest, had been moved at the last minute to Moven Pick.

On Saturday, the day before the conference was to start, there was a trip to the Great Wall.

"Everyone we met, everywhere we went, everyone was in sympathy with the students," he

During a late dinner at their hotel, something started happening. Everyone rushed to the front lobby and saw troops from where, no one was sure, perhaps it was Mongolia, people said - moving toward the

The public address system on the trucks blared, "We will not harm the students," in Chinese.

Still the atmosphere was not one of fear. Young women flirted with the troops as they marched through, asking them not to harm the students.

The trucks continued the chant: "We will not harm the students.

"We took them at their word, because no conflicts had taken place and it was a peaceful demonstration," Krull said.

"Four hours later they were slaughtering the students.

But at that time, 24 miles away from the action and because there was no word on what was happening, Krull and his group had no idea what was going on.

They were awakened by the staff and guests early Sunday morning and they listened to the fears and the rumors that were filtering in.

The tour guide who had been to China 17 times before had brought a short wave radio, and the hotel also had one. They listened to the Voice of America had originally been scheduled, and the BBC accounts of the bloodshed. The Chinese television was still not saying much.

Krull called his wife, Joan. "She said, 'Ed, they're killing the students. Are you all right?"

He assured her he and their daughter Lael were fine, well removed from the action and that she wasn't to worry. But he worried.

It was Sunday morning, the day the symposium was to start. They met. Four doctors. All but Krull and the other doctor had backed out, and only two Chinese doctors showed up. Whether the rest were called into service because of the conflict in Tiananmen Square or were too concerned to attend the conference, Krull couldn't say,

"But we felt we needed to hold. the meeting," he said.

Later that day new troops rumors said they were from Beijing -- were marching toward the square. More rumors circulated that there was going to be a clash between the troops who had killed the students and the troops who were marching in.

"On Monday we made plans to leave because we were told that this could be very messy and very prolonged if there was fighting because it would have been a civil war," Krull said.

The hotel they had stopped at on Friday, where the symposium was taken over by the army. It

The American embassy was telling its citizens to lay low and wait it out.

"I don't think anyone who was over there thinks his embassy did enough," Krull said. "The other embassies were earlier and more aggressive in telling people to get out of the country.

On Tuesday the hotel Krull and his group was staying in made contingency plans for their guests. They were building a new hotel five minutes from the Beijing airport, and although it wasn't completed, there were some rooms which could be made available. They loaded up linens and their guests and took them around the outskirts of the city, avoiding the action, to the airport. There was a sign placed on the van saying the people in it were tourists.

They passed burned-out cars and trucks and blockades. Who erected the blockades could not be determined.

"The scene at the airport was one of panic," he said. "They were rushing around, the crowd knocked my daughter over. It was frightning.

We know that once you meet the right car, you won't buy the wrong car. So here's the new Saab 9000S, a car that's incredibly right.

For openers, this elegant European sedan has 4 doors blended into a body so flawlessly designed that it could be called classic. A body so roomy that it shares the EPA "large" category with one other imported car: the Rolls Royce Silver Spur limousine.

The 9000S also gives you what every Saab gives you: A superb 16-valve Saab DOHC engine. The driveability of front-wheel drive. And the security of Saab's anti-lock brakes, tough roll-cage construction, and driver's airbag restraint system.

Add Saab's 72 great standard features (like heated front seats and an 80 watt AM/FM stereo/cassette system). Then subtract thousands of dollars from the price of a 5-series BMW. And you'll have the 9000S 4-door.

If you come to see it, we think you'll want to take it out. Then, like any good dating service, we'll just let nature take its course.

The most intelligent cars ever built.

bus from the hotel, and that evewas evacuating its employees and some British students to Hong Kong. Perhaps there were some seats left.

At the airport, more rumors circulated. No more flights were being allowed. Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping had died. Li Peng, the man who had declared martial law, had been murdered by his bodyguard. These rumors, all untrue, came from everywhere. The taxi drivers, who were charging three and four times the normal rate to get people out of Beijing, were telling those at the airport what was happening. Or more accurately, what they were being told was happening, for the Chinese government was still saying more soldiers than students had been killed.

"The only thing we trusted was what came out of the short wave radio," he said. "We listened to every English-speaking station we could get, because the government wasn't telling us anything."

There were, as it turned out, seats available on the flight. But there were only four, and there were five in the group. The fifth person, the tour guide, had a seat on the next plane. They left within five minutes of each other just before midnight, Beijing time. No planes are allowed to land or take off after midnight.

While on the plane, they were told that they should not leave when they landed until an official from the British embassy had talked to them.

The embassy official told the passengers, when the plane landed at 3 a.m. in Hong Kong, that they had secured 200 rooms for those on the plane who had no immediate flight plans, and that they had secured less expensive rooms for those who could not afford the nicer rooms. They would help with other arrangements as needed.

The night before, Hong Kong had been the scene of riots in protest of the massacre of the students. An impromptu shrine to the students was created at the base of the trade center in the middle of a square. Wreaths and flowers honoring the students and drawings and signs condemning the government were everywhere.

The stores had been closed, placards were erected in condemnation of the act and people wore black armbands. It was a day of mourning.

"It was quite crowded and moving," Krull said.

He also remarked on the irony f the protest at the trade cente which is a monument to the government's forward thinking.

In 1997 the United Kingdom is to give Hong Kong back to the Chinese government, and many newscasters and newspapers in Hong Kong said the slaughter should negate that agreement.

Families sought to host foreign exchange students

NACEL, a cultural exchange group, is seeking Grosse Pointe families to host students (ages 14-18) from France, Spain and Germany.

The teenagers from abroad pay their own way and come with spending money and insurance. They have studied English and want to experience life with an American family.

Host families are matched carefully with exchange students as to general interests and specific activities they would like to share with their guests such as sports, water activities, computers and cultural pursuits.

Groups of French and Spanish students will arrive July 10 and leave Aug. 7. A second group, which will include students from Germany, arrives July 24 and departs Aug. 20. Host families need not speak a foreign language; the students are coming here to use their English.

NACEL also still has a few openings left for American students who want to travel abroad this summer or next. A $200 scholarship will be awarded to teenagers of families hosting in tography is by closely looking at ferent. the photographs of others?

Whether it's browsing through a gallery or leisurely thumbing through a good photography book, many benefits can be yours by a good, hard, critical look and analysis of the photographs. It doesn't matter if you prefer landscapes, street scenes, abstracts, people pictures, color or black and white. The important thing is to start looking at pictures and to begin to understand not only what the photographer is trying to communicate but, more importantly, how he or she is doing it and what the picture is doing for you.

By tuning into your own emotions and asking yourself some important questions as you "read" a photograph, you'll gain blurred in motion or caught at insight and technical skills that the peak of the action? Day trips to have Oriental flavor

A traditional Japanese tea ceremony is one of the highlights included during a War Memorial sponsored day trip, Wednesday, June 28.

Travelers will leave the War Memorial at 9 a.m. for Saginaw, where the first stop is the Japanese Cultural Center, which houses one of only three authentic Japanese tea houses in the United States.

After witnessing the tea ceremony, travelers are invited to stroll through the Japanese gardens where there will be a demonstration of the paper folding art of origami.

Lunch will follow at elegant Montague Inn, which is housed in an antique-filled, Georgianstyle mansion, built in 1929. Last stop is a tour of Saginaw's Historical Museum. Trip fee is $42 and includes transportation, tours and lunch.

Radio service is eyes to the blind

The former annually to help offset the ser-Wayne State University director of the division of library science and professor of library science, Booth loved to keep up on the news in such publications as the New York Times and the Wall Street Journal.

And he still does. Booth gets the same news not only from the Times and the Journal, but also from such local newspapers as The Detroit News and Detroit Free Press as well as special programs all through the Detroit Radio Information Service

DRIS is a subchannel service of Public Radio Station WDET-FM, Wayne State University. It is a "closed-circuit" radio broadcast service created for people with vision problems. Operating seven days a week, 24 hours a day, the service provides access to the printed page through the human voice.

Kim Walsh, the service's director of promotion and development, said more than 100 people volunteer to read and do other tasks for DRIS. The only service of its kind in the area, DRIS not only offers the reading of newspapers but also programs on local entertainment, readings from popular magazines and national programs from In-Touch Network in New York City.

There is consumer information covering everything from recipes and local store ads to book reviews. Locally produced specialty programs include information about employment, adjustment, rehabilitation, hobbies, legislative news, hearings and special events.

The DRIS service is free through a special receiver which is loaned to the listener by WDET-FM, Wayne State University. Walsh said that although

A stroke in March caused Bob it's not mandatory, listeners are vice's operational costs, which, she pointed out, is less than half the cost of a full year's subscription to a single daily newspaper.

Financial support for DRIS comes from grants, civic and religious groups, business and corporate contributions and the generosity of concerned individuals. To date, individual donations constitute the backbone of DRIS's financial support.

To keep up on what listeners want to hear, Walsh said a survey is conducted to help improve the service. One improvement came as a suggestion from a listener who suggested the DRIS program guide be made available on cassette. "A lot of our listeners are senior citizens and have become visually handicapped later in life. Only about 10 percent of our listeners read Braille. After reviewing a number of options, cassettes came out on top. They are usable by most listeners, are easy to mail, and can be re-used," Walsh said.

Stemming from that project, DRIS has instituted a "Program Hotline." People can hear an audio recording of DRIS programming by dialing 577-4207, 24 hours a day.

During the weekly schedule, many programs are repeated so that listeners can fit them into their busy schedules. "We want to make it convenient for them because for many, DRIS is a vital part of their lives," Walsh

Arlene Braun of Grosse Pointe likes to hear the local newspapers and the Wall Street Journal. On Sundays and Mondays she catches the local grocery store ads to hear what is on sale.

"A friend who saw an ad and knew you were looking for something might tell you about it but this way, I can hear all the ads as well as the news," she said.

For Booth, the DRIS programs can bring back some beautiful memories. "I was listening to one of the cultural programs about Amsterdam," he said. "My wife and I have been there. As they were speaking about the canals, I could picture them."

To help meet the demand for additional receiver and marketing material, the Detroit Radio Information Service has launched its first ever Corporate Development Campaign. DRIS has also recruited the assistance of numerous other agencies serving the blind. For more information on the service or to find out about being a volunteer, call 577-4146.

Guilty verdict returned in Goldilocks trial

Famed storybook character Goldilocks was found guilty of breaking and entering the home of the Three Bears earlier this year. She was found not guilty of a second charge of vandalism.

The jury of Trombly fourthgraders returned the verdict after deliberation in isolation, due to the sensational nature of the trial. The defendant was fined $100 and sentenced to 20 days of community service.

The charges stem from an incident earlier this year when Goldilocks, while walking through the woods one day, came upon the Bears' empty house and entered it. During testimony, Goldilocks said she was hungry and entered because she smelled some porridge.

After eating some porridge.

she said she accidentally broke a chair by sitting in it. Suddenly tired, she fell asleep in the youngest bear's bed and that's how she was discovered when the Bears returned from a walk they were taking Fourth-grade judge Christina Mahac, after consultation with Grosse Pointe Park Municipal Judge Kirsten Frank, presided over the trial.

Sergei Lie, who along with Larry Friedman, an attorney with Durant and Durant, was counsel for Brian Degnore, Monika Zielinska and Mark Mix — the Bear family.

Goldilocks, also known as Constance Prog, and her attorneys fourth-grader Emily Rainey and Grosse Pointe Park attorney Eric Sobczak, had no comment on the verdict, but hinted at an appeal.

Court is in session

Two groups of students recently took favorite childhood tales to their natural 1980's conclusion — the courtroom.

Trombly fourth-graders spent a day in court watching The Three Bears vs. Goldilocks, and students from the Program for Academic and Creative Education class at Ferry Elementary School presented the Three Little Pigs vs. Mother Goose and Grimm Insurance Co.

The Goldilocks trial was part of Elsie Onychuk's study of the American judicial system, while the Pigs trial was part of a leadership unit.

Pigs sue insurance company; lose shirts

In what is seen as a major victory for insurance companies everywhere, a jury of students from Ferry Elementary School ruled in favor of the Mother Goose and Grimm Insurance Co., saying the company did not have to pay for repairs to two houses—one built of straw, and one of sticks—owned by sibling pigs.

The plaintiffs, dubbed The Two Pigs by the press, were upset with the unanimous verdict, and said their names were, well, dragged through the mud during the court pro-

Members of the jury, when questioned later, said the Pigs' story — that their houses were destroyed by a windbag wolf — had inconsistencies. The Pigs, Lyndsey Safran and Jennifer Enekes, were represented by Mark Miller and Matt Rector. The trial was presided over by Peter Mellos.

Surprise testimony came from The Big Bad Wolf, who huffed and puffed and blew the houses down. No charges were ever filed against Wolf, who goes by the alias of John Trepczynski.

The jury agreed with insurance company representative Billie Wildrick that the insurance policy sold to the Pigs by Mother Goose and Grimm Insurance did not cover destruction of the home by a wolf. Judge Patricia Schneider of Grosse Pointe Woods was technical adviser for the trial.

The two homeless Pigs are staying at the house of a third sibling — one made of brick — while looking for new quarters.

Attorneys Sergei Lie and Larry Friedman confer on behalf of their clients, the Three Bears.

Court reporter Michael Moore gets all the testimony down on paper.

Miss Swine, left, and Pigletta Pig await the jury's verdict. They had asked the jury to force their insurance company. Mother Goose and Grimm, to pay for damage done to their homes by a windbag wolf.

Pigletta Pig swears to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth about the day the wolf blew down her house.

The PACE students who participated in the mock trial from Ferry Elementary School were, from left, defense attorneys Meredith Chan and Rachel Bell; insurance company representatives Billie Wildrick; bailiff Jonathon Weinert; plaintiffs Pigletta Pig (Jennifer Enekes) and Miss Swine (Lyndsey Safran); prosecuting attorneys Mark Miller and Matt Rector; Judge Peter Millos; and surprise witness The Big Bad Wolf (John Trepczynski).

Each week in this column, we will focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a woodworking project, a book review.

The following was written by 10-year-old Heidi Knopf, fifthgrader at Ferry Elementary School. She is the daughter of Debra Knopf of Grosse Pointe Woods and Robert Knopf.

The Bakery Disaster

One bright and cheerful morning, Mr. Micctwitter was baking his prize-winning doughnuts at the bakery when all of a sudden, the oven went haywire! Jelly and dough and frosting were falling all over the room! It was a disaster zone.

But when he was about to clean up, the sink blew a fit and now water was everywhere! This was a job that he could not clean up. So he called the fire department. They arrived in a flash.

When they looked at the mess, the uncontrollable banana pie maker began to act out and things got haywire and Mr. Micctwitter was going hyper. Bananas and whipped cream flew all over the room. One of the sweet fluffy pies blew right into the headmaster of the fire department. The pie-faced chief was so steamed that his bald head baked the pie like a microwave oven.

Everyone there laughed. Even the chief started laughing. Soon the room was spotless because everyone pitched in to clean it up and the bakery was open for business once again.

North, South co-op students honored

South hosted the 26th annual banquet at the War Memorial May 3. The banquet is the students' way of thanking the companies who served as co-op employers for the year.

Students from each program at each high school are nominated for Co-op of the Year. The students prepare an essay on what the experience has meant to them.

Members of the advisory committees for each program then interview the candidates and select one as the recipient of the Co-op of the Year plaque. In addition, the coordinators have a plaque containing the names of winners for each year. The plaques are donated by the Grosse Pointe Kiwanis Club.

Finalists for 1988-89 Co-op of the Year are:

• Child Care: Jacqueline Bomier, Patricia Livermore and Heather Smith, North; Rosalie Corrado, Kristi Ewald, Laura Jasina and Pamela King, South.

• Industrial Education: Jeff Valentic, South.

'Earth Girls Are Easy' is fun, fluff, frolic

By Marian Trainor Special Writer

'Earth Girls Are Easy" is a delectable summer treat that's light and airy as cotton candy.

It is fluff, fun and frolic as it follows the adventures of three furry aliens from outer space who land on Earth. Tired of watching "Alien Playgirls" holograms on the VCR, they decide to have a look at a real-life earth girl, after sighting Valley girl Val (Geena Davis) on their periscope as she sits sunning herself beside her pool.

Quick as a flash, they plop their orange and red spaceship down into her pool.

To begin with, she has a more immediate problem. Her fiance, who likes to play around, made the mistake of bringing home his latest conquest thinking Val was at a convention.

She is not at all pleased. She

Now she has to deal with three rainbow-hued spacemen.

At first she is frightened, but because they are as friendly and affable as live teddy bears, she invites them into her house.

While they are waiting, Val gets another call from her fiance. He is coming over to plead his case in person.

Fearful that he will do something drastic when he sees her strange-looking guests, she hustles them off to the beauty salon where she and her friend, Candy (Julie Brown) decide to do something about the hairy hulks.

Waiter school dishes out lessons in service and life

By Ronald J. Bernas

Doris Brown opened her training school for servers in March, and although she hasn't graduated a single student yet, she already has the restaurant industry listening.

In the few months the school's been open, people from New York and California have contacted her about franchise rights, she and the school received "Spirit of Detroit" awards and hotel chains have already told her to contact them when she has some graduates.

Brown's Restaurant Server's Academy, tucked in the basement of Dominican High School in Detroit, is the only licensed school in Michigan which trains people to be waiters, waitresses, hosts and hostesses. It is, she says, also the only school of its kind in the country.

I want to change the American way of thinking about this business," she said. "I mean people can make $40,000 to $80,000 a year in this business. It is a respectable job.

"Americans want and are willing to pay for good service,"

Brown says, "but they're not getting it. Too many places give cheap. The 12-week course their employees two weeks of onthe-job training and think that's Brown's school lasts five hours a day, five days a week for 12 weeks. She developed the curriculum, wrote the book and designed the rooms in the school to simulate a working restaurant.

Her two instructors, one a restaurant manager, and the other a French waiter, will teach the students everything they need to know about serving.

They learn Russian and French serving, table settings, napkin folding, proper glassware usage, safety, etiquette, resume writing, job application and interviewing skills, service history and even how to stand at the table while taking an order

Brown supplements the training with life lessons. "I teach them personal development, human relations, selfconfidence, pride in their work, ingetrity, loyalty and dignity,' she said. "These are the kind of values that will help people whatever they do.

Patty Yaden: Balancing family, work

By Pat Paholsky

Editor The first thing you notice about Patty Yaden is her smile. She wears it easily and naturally.

And it's no wonder: She has a 1-year-old daughter, Emily Rose, with whom she spends most of her time and a two-day-a-week job that gets her out of the house and helps supplement the family

The people behind the Grosse Pointe News

The Grosse Pointe News employs more than 35 fulltime and part-time people in five departments, all working to put out the best weekly newspaper possible. The talent involved in this endeavor is impressive.

Since June, we have been featuring an employee from a department — Classified, Circulation, Advertising and Production - that is not as visible to the public, in order that you, the reader, can better understand, and appreciate, the parts that make up the whole paper.

"It's the perfect balance right now," she said.

Yaden works in classified advertising Mondays and Tuesdays, the two busiest days for the department. She began working for the Grosse Pointe News in January.

Before the birth of her daughter, Yaden was a media coordinator at Young and Rubicam in the Renaissance Center. "But after spending three months home with my daughter, I couldn't go

Census Bureau

When I joined the Census Bureau as a media specialist, I was surprised to learn just how much there is to know about this

Sure, I knew about the population census that takes place every 10 years, but little about how the subsequent count is used to determine political representation in the 435 seats of Congress. I've also learned that cities like Detroit, Chicago and Los Angeles rely on census numbers to determine how federal funding is divided within the local community.

During the past year, much has happened to shape my views about promoting the 1990 Census of Population and Housing. Not because I work for the bureau, the because so much is at stake in our community. Although the Census Bureau does not allocate funds to any program, the numbers derived from the census are often the criteria in determining how much money federal, state and local programs are entitled to.

One year from now, our nation will take part in what is considered the country's largest peacetime undertaking. That undertaking is the completion and return of census questionnaires which will be mailed to some 106 million households nationwide.

The bureau's outreach arm known as the Census Awareness and Products Program (CAPP) is currently engaged in spreading the Census message to all who will listen. Civic organizations, fraternities, sororities, social service agencies and educators are all being asked to play a role. We're asking these organizations to work with the bureau in supplying census information to their focus groups through newsletters, community bulletins, radio, television and cable programs, community networks and places of worship. We're encouraging utility companies to include census reminders in billing statements and outdoor advertisers like Gannett and Gateway to display census ads on electronic and stationary billboards.

This vast undertaking also requires hundreds of staff people through 1990 to count an estimated 250 million people nationwide. Locally, offices in Detroit and Rochester Hills are hiring and training enumerators and crew leaders. As the need arises. both offices will bring clerical staff as well as data transcribers on board. All positions are temporary and offer employment opportunities to individuals from all walks of life.

Spaces for the testing and training of applicants who'll staff the district officers is another crucial need according to recruiter's Carolyn Cato and Yolanda

Wherever he is: England, India, Europe or Grosse Pointe, Tom Mayshark rises at 4 a.m. and chants his mantra for two hours. "It's the repetition of powerful sound vibrations which effectively pacify and cleanse the mind," he said.

Mayshark is a slim, soft-spoken, ascetic-looking man in his early 40s. He speaks with just the barest hint of a clipped British accent. He speaks of philosophy, theater, art, music, religion and morality. He speaks of Eastern philosophies. And he speaks of pragmatism.

He speaks of the various lifestyles he's led.

To some, Mayshark's life may appear insecure - unstable. "Security is very important to me," he said. "But security is within.

"I could have apparent security all around me with material things like cars, homes, alarm systems. But it can vanish. "Solace and security within can't ever be taken away."

His karma - or destiny - has recently taken him to the Midlands of England, about two hours north of London, where he has a wife and two children, a comfortable home, an organic garden, and a job representing the works of several English watercolor artists.

Mayshark grew up in New Jersey and lived in Grosse Pointe during his teenage years. He graduated from Grosse Pointe High School in 1963. His father was an executive with Bethlehem Steel.

Like most of the Grosse Pointe kids in the class of '63, he went to college. Mayshark earned a degree in communication arts from Emerson College in Boston. That's where his so-called conventional lifestyle ended. After graduation he traveled to the West Coast and worked in a settlement house with underprivileged children. This was the '60s ... and Mayshark was a hippy. "I was probably the straightest hippy there," he said.

Next, he spent two years in the Merchant Marine.

"Then, in my search for myself, I went to India to study Eastern philosophy. I believe in reincarnation. I believe every soul has a particular destiny he has to work out." Mayshark was based in Bombay in Temple Ashram, which is similar to a monastery. He practiced yoga and managed a theater and cultural

"Yoga means to link with God or with absolute truth, he said. "Yoga is practiced as a lifestyle meant to be incorporated in whatever situation you're in."

He still practices yoga. "The lifestyle should be pure. I'm a vegetarian - for spiritual, moral, ethical and medicinal reasons. Life is supposed to be peaceful, but productive.

"Another aspect of yoga is meditation. The meditation which I employ is the chanting meditation. Many people are familiar with the Hare Krishna mantra.

"One who practices yoga can also be a Christian, a Jew, a Hindu or whatever. I don't feel un-Christian by practicing yoga. I'm even more of a Christian because of it."

Mayshark has held some unusual jobs. Most have involved the arts: theater, dance, visual arts, music. Since the late '70s, one of his ongoing projects has been recording Indian singers and organizing tours for Indian singers, dancers and musicians throughout the United States, England and Africa.

"I really love Eastern and Indian culture. But it's so difficult to live there - because of the poverty and overpopulation.'

Mayshark's wife is a classical singer and actress. They have two children, 11 and 3 years old. Because of his young family, he said he has settled down, at least

Retirees have unique chance to help nation combat illiteracy

By Marian Trainor

himself as a newsmaker is the president's wife. There is a natural interest in how she views herself and her role. Readers like to know her opinions on current happenings; what she wears; her interests.

In recent years, first ladies have added to the list of what is expected of them. They have involved themselves in causes and have set an example for all women to spend time and energy by helping others.

For instance, Nancy Reagan worked hard urging young people to simply say no to drugs.

Following that pattern of social concern, Barbara Bush works to promote literacy.

In a recent interview, she talked about literacy from the vantage point of her rich family life. The reason for the high illiteracy rate in the United States she suggests, is the failure of parent to parent.

Mrs. Bush, the mother of five and grandmother of 11, emphasized the point by saying, "I think a lot of our problems are because people don't listen to their children. It's not easy sometimes, but it's very important to listen."

worked to eradicate illiteracy, Second only to the president sitting on the boards of such groups as Reading is Fundamental and participating in literacypromoting events. Soon she will establish a private grant-awarding foundation called the Barbara Bush Foundation for Familv Literacy.

She is a believer in the Head Start program. Visiting Head Start projects, she found that more than half of the mothers were functionally illiterate. 'What chance did the little kid have, if the mother couldn't encourage him to read or couldn't help her?"

Barbara Bush is not alone in her concern for literacy. While some educators contend that more money should be allocated to education, others say that money alone is not the answer.

Both sides are right and wrong. More money is clearly needed for urban education. Major expansion of the highly successful Head Start program to include every disadvantaged child would cost an enormous amount.

Jeffrey E. Mirel, a member of the Federation of Teachers, believes that more money is not the only solution to the problems of the schools. He contends that For years, Barbara Bush has changes can come cheaply.

Higher expectations of what urban children can accomplish in the classroom, more rigorous standards, more substantial cirricula and tougher discipline are

These are problems that educators and parents must work on to ensure that not only do students stay in school but come out with the basic skills of reading and comprehension.

Those whose children are grown can help. What better use could retirees make of their leisure time than volunteering to help a child who is having difficulty learning to read? Teachers work hard to improve reading skills, but real improvement can be achieved on a one-to-one basis: a generous grownup working with one child.

It is a sad situation for adults who dropped out of school because they couldn't read. All learning rests on that basic ability. Without reading ability, there is no way a student can succeed in other subjects such as history, geography or even math. Now it has become a factor in jobs that one could be mastered by the hands-on method.

Educators can no longer operate on the premist that keeping children off the streets is enough. The system must do more and retirees can help by volunteering.

It is not only school-age children that need help. There are adults who realize that reading is fundamental in every aspect of their lives. Unless they learn to read they will never move out of the minimum wage category into jobs that pay enough money to live a better life.

For volunteers who would prefer working with adults rather than children, there are many opportunities to do that. It is very rewarding. Adults realize how much they miss by not being able to read and are so greteful when someone takes the time to teach them.

From the Michigan Office of Service to the Aging comes the story of a 36-year-old woman who had worked with cowboys training horses; with a traveling circus training elephants; and with deaf people working on sign language in drama and acting. She wanted to write about her experiences in a book for child-

Up until a year ago, she would never have been able to realize her goal because she couldn't

The Detroit Artists Market's Garden Sale on Wednesday, June 7, was one of three of Grosse Pointe's successful fundraising outdoor art fairs within eight days. All were threatened, but not intimidated, by rain.

Browsers dodged raindrops popped umbrellas and ducked under tents during the off-again, on-again afternoon showers. Visitors strolled, sipped, and scanned the paintings, prints, photographs, sculptures, jewelry and artworks in glass, clay and fiber.

The Detroit Artists Market is a non-profit gallery in downtown Detroit dedicated to exhibiting and selling the work of artists living in southeastern Michigan.

The garden-party theme has been a tradition for the Market's spring fundraiser since 1935.

Dottie Westfall chaired this year's event. Joy Emery was jury chairman; Susan Glass was art chairman; Hariette Gussenhoven and Ginna Ives were bar co-chairmen; Carole Hays was volunteer chairman; Sheila Ingwersen was patron chairman; Anna Platt was in charge of set up; Melodie Scherer and Chrissie Zoufal were in charge of food; Anne and John Warren were music chairmen and Jim Bridenstine directed valet parking.

Artists Market Director Sharon Zimmerman said the work selected for this year's sale reflects the increasing popularity of decorative and craft objects.

'Many of the artists at the Garden Sale exhibit on a yearround basis in our Elements gallery, an exhibition space in the front of the Market designed for smaller, decorative craft objects," she said.

This year, 1989, is the bicentennial year celebrating the French Revolution. Highlights of the French Market will include a performance by the First Michigan Colonial Fife and Drum Corps, can-can dancers, French food, cooking demonstrations, a sale of second-hand French books, a boutique of new articles for sale, a raffle and the everpopular flea market.

The French Festival is a nonprofit group which raises money to support civic and cultural projects with a French orientation and promotes and maintains the French tradition of the region.

In the past, the group has furnished a French room at Wayne State University; re-enacted the landing of Cadillac in Detroit; purchased equipment for the Grosse Pointe Historical Society; and worked with the Detroit Historical Society on various French-related projects.

Farewell to a senior pastor

The Rev. Jack L. Mannschreck

Within the next week, Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church will bid farewell to the Rev. Dr. Robert W. Boley, senior pastor for the last seven years — and welcome into its fold a new senior pastor, the Rev. Jack E. Giguere.

Bob Boley will retire and with his wife, Emily, make his home in a slower-paced community nearly 100 miles from the Pointes.

I have known Bob for 12 years and have labored in the same vineyard for the past five years. We have had what I consider to be a successful ministry together and, along with the members of Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church, I will miss Bob greatly.

I realized only a few weeks ago that I have never felt the loss of a pastor. My hometown church welcomed a new pastor when I was in junior high school (too young to take notice) and Reverend Al was with us until I graduated from college and went to seminary.

For the past few weeks, I have watched Bob go about his ministry and have realized that he is doing some things for the last time as a local church pastor: his last funeral, his last wedding, his last staff meeting.

Next Sunday, Bob will preach his last sermon and lead his final service as senior pastor. I admire his style as he loosens his grip on the reins of this fine church.

Despite the efforts of several committees, this transitional period in the life of our church has not always gone smoothly. Tempers have flared, acidic words have been spoken and a struggle for identity and power has ensued.

I would guess that our church is not so different from others as we suffer the growing pains of losing one pastor and receiving another. As the church of Jesus Christ, we must keep our eyes on the higher goals of God and not get bogged down with our feet of clay.

The important part of experiencing growing pains is growth. We must move ever steadily toward the goals of the Christian church. Dr. Boley has always guided my efforts toward the ministry of the local church, avoiding putting excessive energy into work outside the local congregation. His words to me were simplistic, yet profound: "In it gives us inward pain; but we shall still be joined in heart, and hope to meet again.'

I wish to take this opportunity to bid a fond farewell to a man I respect and love — the Rev. Dr. Robert W. Boley.

Assumption prepares for sacred rites significance will take place June 17 and 18 at Assumption Greek Orthodox Church, 21800 Marter Road, in St. Clair Shores.

The Assumption Church is preparing for the ancient sacred rites of Consecration - the church's "baptism" - when Holy Relics, actual bones of saints, will be placed in the altar. This event occurs only once in a church's lifetime.

Assumption's Consecration will be officiated by His Eminence Archbishop Iakovos, primate of North and South America and religious leader of 10 million Greek Orthodox faithful.

His Eminence this year celebrates his 30th anniversary as archbishop, and is the senior clergyman of the United States in tenure, as proclaimed by the World Council of Churches.

Archbishop Iakovos will preside over the Consecration Ecumenical Vespers Service Saturday June 17 at 5 p.m. and the Consecration Ceremony Sunday June 18 at 8:30 a.m.

Clergy from many faiths will attend both the Vespers and the Consecration services.

A highlight of the weekend will be an ecumenical news conference at 3:30 p.m. at the Assumption Church, with religious leaders from the metropolitan area meeting with Archbishop

The Saturday Vespers service will honor the memory of saints who have died for the faith. Bones from the bodies of St. George, St. Boniface and martyrs of Mt. Sinai will be placed atop the altar. The service will be followed by a grand banquet in the St. Clair Room of the Assumption Cultural Center.

The Sunday morning Consecration ceremony will include a processional three times circling the outside of the church and the permanent sealing of the Holy Relics in the church's altar.

The Rev. Demetrios S. Kavadas, parish priest at Assumption, has extended an invitation to the Consecration to the 29 Eastern Orthodox churches in the metro area which serve 125,000 Orthodox Christians.

Additionally, with the spirit of ecumenism, clergy and friends from all faiths are expected to attend, the Vespers, Consecration rites, the Grand Banquet and a brunch on Sunday.

Assumption's contributing membership makes it the largest parish in the 60-parish Seventh Archdiocesan District. Assumption is also among the 20 largest churches of the 500 in the Greek Orthodox Archdiocese of North and South America.

Assumption Cultural Center has assumed a useful and significant role in the life of both the Assumption family and the community at large.

The center serves Detroit and and a wide-ranging program of other memorable occasions.

The Gracious Alternative

To A Nursing Home

When someone you love lives alone and is getting on in years, you worry about their safety and welfare. You can't help it. Are they eating properly? Did they take their medications? How are they making out? Sons and daughters have these concerns about an aged parent. Maybe you do. In a situation like this, some people start thinking about placement in a nursing home. But that decision may not be the wisest. A nursing home might not be appropriate at all. Too much care. Too restrictive and confining. Consider an alternative. It's called assisted living.

St. Joseph's Home has the perfect place for those you love and care about. Our residences are for seniors who can basically take care of themselves. They do not need a nursing home. They are alert, independent and active. They need occassional assistance and supervision, support and encouragement. At St. Joseph's the residents enjoy their freedom and independence. They can do as much as they want or as little as they please. If and when help is

Barbara Terese Beauchamp

Denison University recognized seven outstanding seniors at their spring honors convocation ceremonies April 13. Among the recipients was psychology major Barbara Terese Beauchamp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Beauchamp of Grosse Pointe Woods. Beauchamp was lauded for her strong academic accomplishments as well as her significant campus leadership. She is a psychology department senior fellow, an Anderson Scholar and a member of Mortar Board and Psi Chi, a psychology honorary society. She is also this year's winner of the Irwin S. Wolf Psychology Prize, a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, and she has served as co-chair of the University Residence Council, the Denison Community Association, as head resident of Curtis West Hall, and on numerous campus task forces.

Susan Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen F. Edwards Jr. of Grosse Pointe Farms, graduated from the University of Colorado in December 1988 with a bachelor of science degree in business administration and a concentration in commercial recreation and tourism. She is a 1985 graduate of University Liggett School.

Edward Gruca, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gruca of Grosse Pointe Park, has earned his doctorate in economics from Columbia University. He has a master's in business administration from the University of Michigan and a master's in computer science from the University of Detroit. He served in the Peace Corps and is a member of Beta Gamma Sigma Epsilon.

Leslie Gruca, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gruca of Grosse Pointe Park, has graduated from George Washington University's school of government and business administration and has received a bachelor of business administration degree in finance. Gruca also holds an associate degree from Green Mountain College in Vermont.

Kris Ann Brown, daughter of Marc W. and Peggy Ann Brown of Grosse Pointe City, has been elected president of Phi Sigma Iota, a national honorary language society. She is a junior at Ohio Wesleyan University in Delaware, Ohio. She's also chairman of the Modern Foreign Language board.

The President's Fine Arts Series, an annual spring tradition at Kalamazoo College, included an art exhibition with photography by Sarah Colegrove, daughter of Ms. Barbara Colegrove of Grosse Pointe City and Geoffrey Colegrove of Grosse Pointe City.

Two of Mary Ellen Cooper's ballet students danced in spring concert productions. Jennifer Dahl danced in a graduate concert performance May 19 and 20 at Ohio State University, where she is a freshman dance major. Her sister, Meredith Dahl, performed in the Nashville Ballet's spring production of "Cinderella" May 5 and 6 in Nashville. Their parents are former Grosse Pointers Andrew and Jan Dahl, now of Brentwood, Tenn.

Madeleine Willard of Grosse Pointe was among nearly 350 representative campus leaders invited to the 72nd annual Finkbine Dinner, honoring outstanding student leaders recently at the University of Iowa.

Albion College senior Mary Jo Yaklin was one of 41 students recognized as an Albion College Fellow at the college's annual honors convocation ceremony in April. Albion Fellows have attained a 3.7 average for three successive on-campus semesters and have successfully completed four units of credit during each semester. She's the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Yaklin of Grosse Pointe Woods.

Elizabeth Pugel of Grosse Pointe Woods has been accepted to study in the Summer Institutes Program of Michigan, a camp of learning for gifted high school students. Pugel will focus on biomedical technology.

Berklee College of Music freshman Mark Mantho, son of Mary Louise Olszewski of Grosse Pointe, was featured vocalist in "The Jackson Five Live," a concert of pop/rock music on May 1. Mantho is majoring in professional music at Berklee.

DeAnn Patanis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Patanis of Grosse Pointe Woods, received the Distinguished Upperclass International Study Student Award from the University of Michigan Dearborn. She is also the recipient of a presidential scholarship at the University of Detroit School of Law, which she will attend in the fall.

Grosse Pointe artist Corinne Dolega has had one of her mixed media works selected in a competition of Michigan Art by Michigan Artists for the new corporate headquarters of Michigan National Corporation. Titled "A Fleeting Moment," the work is a collage with paper and acrylics on wood.

Miami University student Kimmerle Metz of Grosse Pointe Park, was chosen by audition to compete in the recent Central Ohio Flute Association's sixth annual Young Artist Competition.

Denison University junior Bridget Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Johnson of Grosse Pointe, is studying in Seville, Spain, at the Sweetbriar College. Johnson is a 1986 graduate of Grosse Pointe South and is majoring in Spanish at Denison.

Albion College sophomore Michelle St. Amour, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert St. Amour of Grosse Pointe, spent her spring break in Circleville, W. Va. as a volunteer with Appalachia Service Project. St. Amour and 32 other Albion students made major repairs on private homes in the region.

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD

THE PASTEBOARD PASTIME Much of what I have gained about this fascinating game in the past years few has come from the experts and I am truly appreciative. Let me share with you some of their expertise. Experts hold the Ace in high reverence, much more so than the average player and this is one of the reasons they find more makeable contracts. Unquestionalbly the Ace of each suit is a regal card and when you are favored with more than your share, don't abuse the fortune that has been dealt to you to wisely use.

If there was a flaw in Goren's point count system it was that he under valued the four count he assigned to Aces. In the past twenty years the experts have corrected that. Hands made up of two or three Aces as opposed to hands of Kings and Queens are worth in most instances considerably more. The experts call them fast taking trick hands as opposed to Kings and Queens which are slower taking trick hands.

Most of the experts feel that Aces work more effectively in suit contracts than in no trump. Aces properly harnessed to lower valued cards in consort with a well shaped dummy of similar fast taking tricks (including voids and singletons) is another reason why experts are finding alot more less than thirty point slams.

Today's layout is a fine example of a hand made up of Aces and the proper role an experienced declarer put them to play in. My partner, Dave Buskirk and I were playing at Pat and Bob Newmans Tuesday afternoon West Bloomfield Game. It was a two section twelve table movement and the boards had been duplicated. Eighteen of the twenty four north-south pairs played three notrump, four Hearts of five Clubs successfully. Four were playing six clubs with a plus and one was in seven clubs off a trick. we played six Hearts making seven for a top and it can be attributed to Dave's perception of the Aces power. Note how he carefully took command of the hand sitting north. Never did he give any consideration to bidding no trump yet many norths fell into that erroneous trap.

True, in a Life Master Pair Game more slams would have been found, but this wasn't an inexperienced field.

When North sorted his hand, the slam warnings instinctively went up with four Aces and two five card suits.

EAST PASS PASS PASS PASS PASS PASS PASS PASS

You may be somewhat critical of Norths second call, but my Diamond bid hadn't added much to his eighteen high point arsenal and Dave, in my opinion correctly treaded slowly. Once he realized how well the hands meshed, he or-

East leads Spade King.

There's no play to the small slam in either Clubs or Hearts as declarer can pitch his losing Spade on dummy's Diamond king. If north guesses the lonesome Club King shivering unprotected in the cold alone there's a lottery winners wealth of tricks to be won.

Now Renting: A landmark address.

Since its completion, the elegant Shore Club Apartment Tower has been a landmark for ships and boats cruising Lake St. Clair. But it's also been a landmark in luxury living. You can choose from highrise, garden apartment or townhouse lifestyles. All provide the same convenient, luxurious, environment. Shore Club is situated in a park-like atmosphere. Here we combine the peacefulness of the lake with stately old shade trees. Our community-by-the-lake is conveniently located near major expressways and surface routes, leading to most every part of the Metropolitan area. As well as close to Grosse Pointe Shopping

What's more, because Shore Club is on the water, renters have first priority on our available boat wells.

We're now renting apartments. So come and see why Shore Club is the most prestigious address on the waterway. We're sure you'll find everything about it is of landmark quality.

Variety of fruits: a modern phenomena

What fun a visit to Eastern Market can be, with the herbs, flowers, vegetables and fruits of the world spread out in lavish array along with all the other foods, plants and products from everywhere that tantalize eyes and noses at every turn.

We take for granted so much of all this prodigal display and are not impressed by the lavish variety that we have available in any farmer's market or supermarket.

It wasn't so very long ago that fresh fruits now available far from their growing sites were unheard of in this part of the country. What Midwest family had bananas on the table even at the beginning of this century? That was the era when oranges were in the special category of Christmas treats at greate ex-

Bananas as food have a past that is older than history. Originally they are thought to have come from the tropical regions of Southern Asia. In 327 B.C. the armies of Alexander the Great found this fruit growing in the valley of the Indus and about that time people learned that they could carry the dried roots to distant places where they would grow. The great migrations from Southern Asia carried Bananas to the islands of the Pacific.

The Arabs brought the fruit from India, and it is believed that the bananas grown in the Middle East and in Egypt came from this source. The banana was found in these regions before the Mohammedan conquest of 650 A.D.

Indian Ocean trade established bananas along the East Coast of Africa some time during the beginning of the Christian era. Arabs carried the fruit from tribe to tribe and used it as a medium of barter for ivory and slaves. This commerce carried the fruit to the Canary Islands, and the banana was well on its way to being the world-wide product it is today.

Indian tribes of the Western Hemisphere had no word for this fruit nor did they leave records or pictures of it. The credit for bringing bananas to the New World belongs to a Spanish priest, Thomas de Berlanga, who came as a missionary to San Domingo in 1516 carrying some banana roots from the Canary Islands. He later became Bishop of Panama and introduced bananas there.

Have you seen the bananas growing on the trees in the Anna Scripps Whitcomb Conservatory on Belle Isle? And if you have, were you surprised to see that they grow upside-down?

Oranges, the expensive Christmas treats of the last century, are now so ho-hum commonplace as to be taken totally for granted. Oranges are indigenous to India and China. They reached Europe, and, in time, America, by way of Persia. In 1178, oranges were listed in herbals and medical books as remedies for many things. Some of the listings indicate that even though ancient physicians knew nothing about vitamins, they were really on the right track. Lemons come originally from western China and recipes for lemonade appear in many writings before the 17th century.

Anyone who is familiar with Chinese art will realize how often the peach is depicted in Bananas were not known in paintings and sculpture and America for a long time. Ancient mentioned in poetry and other writing. Peaches are native to China and have been cultivated there since prehistoric times. As early as 100 A.D., peaches arrived in Greece and Rome and the fact that they called them

Persian apples tells us how they got there. In Persia, apricots are called sun eggs and they found their way to ancient Rome by way of Armenia. They reached England some time in the 16th century and were called early procox. Apricots appeared at about this time in Portugal and it was the Portugese who first learned how to preserve them in syrup. Apples grow wild in most countries of Europe and in America, all descended from the wild crabapple. Grafting has made possible many new varieties throughout the centuries and even the ancients recorded many of them. Pliny mentions 22. Now more than 2,000 kinds of apples are known world-wide and apples figure largely in the folklore and customs of most of the countries of the world.

Some theories have it that the ancient golden apples were really peaches or apricots, but apples as we think of them are almost a universal fruit, and cider is a beverage more ancient than many varieties of wine.

Pears are just as old. Traces of pears have been found in the remains of prehistoric Swiss lake dwellings but their origin was probably Asia in the section of the Himalayas that extend from Persia to Tibet. Pears are mentioned in the very oldest Greek writings and were cultivated by the Romans.

Although it is perhaps a little difficult to see the connection, pears are not only cousins of the apple but are also members of the same family as the rose.

Like the banana, pears were brought to America by Spanish missionaries some 400 years ago.

The many varieties of pears all derive from two wild Pears that are native to Europe and Western Asia and are the ancestors of the more than 3,000 different pears we have today.

Pineapples are native to this hemisphere, originating in Brazil and in the West Indies and have been carried all over the world by travelers over a long period of time.

Another fruit we think of as tropical is the avocado, which was mentioned in the first Spanish book to give an account of America, "Suma de Geographica," by Martin De Enisco, published in Seville in 1519. Over time this fruit has been known by nearly 50 different names - among them alligator pear and midshipman's butter. Avocados arrived in Florida about 1900 and in California in

The cultivated plum is a domestication of the wild plum known to the Romans in Cato's time. Plums originated in Western Asia near the Caspian Sea where it was first discovered they could be dried to preserve them and became prunes, but prunes did not arrive in America until 1856.

Sun dried fruits have been known at least from the time of the ancient Egyptians, and this method of preserving is still a popular one, creating prunes from plums and raisins from grapes and producing many other delectable creations.

It was the Spanish missionaries who first planted the fruit trees and grapevines which have made California the world's most prolific producer of dried fruits, and whose orange and lemon orchards cover miles instead of acres.

With the modern methods of refrigeration and transport and with many ways to preserve fruits, from freezing to the production of jams, jellies and marmalades, we can now enjoy strawberries in January and almost any fruit the year around.

And dried fruits are just as popular as they were a thousand years ago. The profusion and availability of so many kinds of fruit all the time for everyone is certainly evidence of the high standard of living with which our society is blessed.

Asparagus, mushrooms add color, flavor to summer menus lar vegetable, reaches its peak in our markets in April but domestic growers supply local markets for much longer.

Asparagus can be used in many ways. It adapts itself very well to a variety of sauces -Hollandaise, Mornay, mayonnaise, vinaigrette, a light mustard, and even exotic Maltaise but probably the best version is the simplest one: steamed until just tender, then served with melted butter or homemade mayonnaise, a touch of salt and fresh ground black pepper.

Asparagus is loved, not only for its delightful flavor and its low calorie content (58 per cup) but for its high valuable nutrients: potassium, calcium, magnesium and vitamins C and E.

Mushrooms, whatever their type, are absolutely essential to good cookery. When one considers the rich flavor they impart to dishes in which they are incorporated, then their cost is distinctly within the reach of even the most budget-conscious cook.

Lamb Chops with Asparagus Bundles

They are very nutritious fure 2 lbs. lamb loin or rib chops trimmed of all fat

1/4 cup soy sauce

1/4 tsp. dry mustard 1/4 tsp. ground ginger or coriander

Arrange lamb chops in shallow baking dish that has been lined with aluminum foil. Mix together remaining ingredients in small bowl or cup. Pour over meat. Refrigerate overnight. Broil meat 5 to 6-inches from heat, about 5 minutes on each side for medium rare or until desired doneness. Baste with marinate several times during broiling period.

Asparagus Bundles

1 lb. fresh asparagus 1-1/2 cups Italian dressing

2 Tblsp. lemon juice 1 green onion, finely chopped 1/4 tsp. salt 1/4 tsp. garlic powder

Steam asparagus in basket of steamer until just tender. Remove asparagus to shallow bowl. Combine remaining ingredients until well blended. Pour over cooked asparagus spears. Refrig-

Fulton Awards

Spring sports have come to an end in Grosse Pointe, so what better way is there to celebrate their conclusion than with the Fulton Awards?

The Fulton Awards are awarded each season to coaches or players for either a folly, or a superb play

Who Needs a Travel Agent Award?:

The nominees for this award are bus drivers of athletic teams, and Kerri-Sue Kelly, a pitcher at Grosse Pointe North.

You see, after pitching three games in a Saturday softball tournament, Kelly flew from Detroit to Chicago for a choir concert. Her brother Jeff flew to the windy city the day before and picked up Kerri-Sue when she arrived. Once there, she was still 125 miles away from her destination, so her brother drove her to the concert in a rental car.

Kerri-Sue was the losing pitcher in two games, but was part of the first place concert

A special honorable mention goes to Kerri's mom for acting as the travel agent.

Lending a Hand Award:

Custodians, grounds-keepers and anyone else associated with dressing up tracks, fields and courts could get this award, but instead a family tandem should step forward.

Matt Wysocki, a catcher for the South baseball team, and his twin sister Becky, also a catcher on the South softball team, receive this award hands down - LITERALLY!

You see, both Matt and Becky like to help the umpire by wiping off the plate with their bare hands. Sometimes they even act as a bat boy or bat girl by retrieving the oppo-

The Best Call Award:

Some baseball tournaments decide the home team with the flip of a coin, so that's why Frank Sumbera is the first nominee. ULS tennis coach Bob Wood also made a spectacular call during a tennis tournament, so that's why he's nominated. The third nominee is a parent who called me last week and chewed me out for, well . .

Sumbera called tails six times in the course of two three-game tournaments and was right each time. The phone call to the office was not a nice one, so I can't give that irate caller an award, so it has to go to Bob Wood.

On an overcast day in May, and his school hosting a tournament, Wood saw the threat of rain when a lightning bolt dashed across the sky. Immedi ately, Wood got all the players off the courts and within 20 seconds the rain came down.

Nice call, coach. The Hospitality Award: The nominees for this award are Melissa Champine (North), Steve Zaranek (South), and Cathy Schmidt (ULS).

Although Schmidt and Zaranek always make me feel at home during games or visits. Champine takes her second Fulton Award of the year because of her unselfishness.

During a softball tournament played in weather only for eskimos, Champine handed me her hot chocolate and said, "I'm donating it to the cause.

I didn't admit it, but I was dying to take a sip, but didn't.

Thanks anyway, Melissa. The Finger Award:

Oh, clear your dirty mind. Many players at North, South and ULS have played injured this spring season, but none of them had to play through the embarrassment that ÜLS' Sylvia Ristic did.

A day before the district finals against Gallagher, Ristic was trying to cut open a frozen bagel. Instead of slicing the bagel, Ristic sliced her finger. In order to play in the game, she had to keep her finger above her heart. Therefore, Sylvia was running around with her finger in the air.

Sylvia, we know that you are No. 1.

Hepner returns to South staff

Schroeder heads for Chippewa Valley

Fitness 3C

By Rob Fulton

Sports Editor

Bob Schroeder, the long time co-coach and assistant coach of the South varsity football team, has finally reached his coaching plateau.

Two weeks ago Chippewa Valley High School ended its fivemonth search for a successor to Randy Jarmenga by naming Schroeder to the head football position. The decision to transfer to Chippewa Valley - which Schroeder admits was a bittersweet one - was something Schroeder had to do.

"Everything I've ever had to do with South has been great," said Schroeder, who is leaving after 15 years of service. "However, it's time to move on for me. It wasn't an easy decision to make, but it's something I've wanted for so long and the time has come for me. I'm going to miss South.'

State for seven years, discounted his dream of becoming a head and do the job. I have repeatedly coach, but now he's in charge of the Big Reds' program.

"I was also offered the head position at Fraser," Schroeder said. "At one point I had three football jobs, but now just one."

Why did he choose Chippewa Valley over Fraser?

"It's in such a phenomenal growth stage," Schroeder said. It's a tremendous opportunity for me to go to a school where the growth potential is so high. I just hope I can build a winning tradition like they have at South.'

Chippewa Valley athletic director Ron Hellier is hoping Schroeder can build a winning program, too, but isn't looking for overnight success.

"We are very happy and fortunate to have a person like Bob,"

At one point, Schroeder, who said Hellier. "Our football program to have stable coaches who was an assistant coach at Wayne gram has been down for years, so we're hoping Bob can come in told him, however, that there is no pressure to turn things around overnight.

"I have every confidence that Bob will be successful," Hellier continued. "We wanted a person with Bob's experience, but even more important, we wanted a coach who is concerned about the kids. He does great things for kids and with kids and that's what it's going to take to put our program on the map.'

By his own admission, Schroeder isn't an "overnight successor," but he is a little impatient. He'd also like to improve on Chippewa Valley's 5-13 record over the last two years.

"I don't want to think that we're in a rebuilding year," he said. "We are going to go out and play hard-nosed football with players who also want to be good students and good citizens.

"I'm not a very patient person and I'd like to build a tradition immediately and there's only one way to do that," he said, "and that's by winning with good kids who enjoy the game of football."

After a combined 23 years in football, Schroeder's knack for the game and enthusiasm has finally paid off with the job offer. But now it's time to put all the puzzle's pieces on the table.

"Being a head coach now gives me the chance to put ail the things I've learned from everyone else into my own scheme," Schroeder said. "I know Chippewa Valley is aching for a football winner and I need to build a program that is comparable to some of the finest football schools in the state in order to compete."

He hopes to do that by establishing some consistency.

"I think the key to winning also rests in the hands of a consistent staff," said Schroeder. "In all my years at South, there was very little turnover in the staff and I hope to incorporate that in my staff. It's important to the kids that come through the pro-

Schroeder's move created a coaching vacancy at South which will be filled by former South head coach Russ Hepner, but it also will leave a slight empti-

"Not only are Bob and I coaches, but we are best friends," said South head coach Jon Rice. "It will be very different not seeing him every day, but I couldn't be happier for him. I'm sure he's going to do just fine."

Hepner, who retired from South after the 1987 season, will be coaching the defense, and Rice will switch from defensive coordinator to offensive coordina-

Hepner, who was the Devils' head coach for 19 of his 27 football years, is pleased to be back.

"I'm looking forward to begin growing and learning again," said Hepner, who was an assitant defense coach at Eastern Michigan two years ago. "I'm happy to be a part of a program that has goals to accomplish.'

Hepner, who didn't coach for the first time in 27 years last year, compares his experience to that of an injured player.

> "Bob and I tried to get Russ back into football last year," explained Rice, who took the title of head coach when Hepner retired. "But he just wasn't quite ready to return. Now, with Bob's opportunity, it allows us to get someone like Russ back. We'll miss Bob dearly and I'm sure he'll miss us, but it's time to

> Since Rice took over, the Devils have lost only five times (15-5) and won 13 of 14 league games in two years.

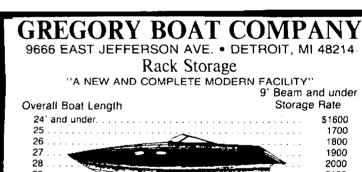

Schroeder, who was an assitant under Hepner, is fortunate for his years with the Devils' program, but the change will be welcomed. He'll also have to have his wife Carol help him with his wardrobe.

"I bleed blue and gold," Schroeder said. "But now I guess I have to switch my blood and my wardrobe to red and white.

"I am very thankful for all my years at South," Schroeder added. "I was very loyal to them, but now it's time to be loyal elsewhere. I will, however, be looking for the South scores all the time. Again, I'd like to thank everyone for what they've given letics, you don't feel like you're me in my years as a coach at

June 15, 198 Grosse Pointe New Millage renewal, increase pass; athletics maintained

Sports Editor

Unlike the Hearns/Leonard decision, however, both the millage renewal of 25.35 mills and won decisively.

"We're ecstastic about this," Tom Gauerke. "Thank you voters of Grosse Pointe. You came through again."

Gauerke, and South Director of Athletics Jo Lake, are relieved that the package of proposals passed, because now they can rest assured that their athletic programs will be maintained.

After the rejection of both proposals in an April vote, Gauerke and Lake had to devise some proposed cutbacks if the June students, once again.' election was also turned down.

Lake, who will enter her third year next fall as athletic direc-2.2 mill increase the board tor, is also pleased that the sought in the June 12 election wrecking ball didn't descend upon the Pointes.

"I am absolutely delighted," said North Director of Athletics she said the morning after the election. "I was very concerned about the fact that once you begin eliminating the feeder programs (basically the freshmen sports), it could take years to get them back.

"I'm certainly pleased that the people of Grosse Pointe wanted to maintain their traditional values," Lake added. "The community has my utmost appreciation for recognizing the needs of our bined $120,000 worth of cuts would have been hockey programs at North and South, South ninth grade soccer and North ninth grade track. At each school, seven assistant coaches, ninth grade cheerleading, transportation and state meet expenses would have also been severed.

Superintendent John Whritner, who met with the board Tuesday (June 13) night, has stated that the athletic programs will not be affected.

"There's no question about that in my mind," Whritner said when asked if the athletic programs would be maintained. "It was absolutely critical that both proposals pass because once you begin cutting, there's no end in sight.'

Hockey, a sport which costs $25,000 a year per school, would have been dropped with no questions asked if the increase was rejected. Advocates of high school hockey — which many say is too costly - were reportedly

"I'm sure a lot of people are schools. Included in the com- mounting their attack if that they've done." would have come to pass.

According to North hockey coach Mike Manzella, several kids were upset about the possible elimination.

"The kids were really down." he said. "We've worked very hard over the last six years and we think we've got a quality program and to have it dropped would have been a shame. The kids were worried because they began believing they didn't have a place to go.'

South hockey coach Tim Zimmerman, who like Manzella has been with the program six years, believes a rejection could have caused damage to more than athletics.

"Hockey, not from just the sports side of it," he said, "has helped a lot of kids earn more responsibility. I've seen the program grow, go down and then grow again, and right now I think it's definitely growing. I'm very pleased for the kids and I'd like to thank the community and many people for everything

It isn't just a hockey issue, however.

"It was very important that the proposals pass for academics as well," said Lake. "Not passing would have made a great impact on athletics, but even more of an impact on academics.

"We are all relieved now because the community has voted to maintain our programs of excellence," Lake added.

Many questions will be answered by Whritner in the next few weeks, but he'll now look at it all from a new perspective.

"It sure is easier to do this (talk about the millage) with a smile, rather than a frown," he said. "I am very pleased, obviously, with the passage of both the renewal and increase. The board still needs to be fiscally responsible, but the message is clear that the community is behind its school system.'

Filness

Exercise and the diabetic

We have been talking, in recent articles, of how important exercise is in relation to many areas of one's physical health.

Exercise can help control or even reduce the risk factors of cardiovascular disease. It's also important for the healthy individual.

There is one large group of people, however, for whom exercise is a vital link in controlling daily physical health. The estimated 12 to 14 million Americans with diabetes all want to live healthy and otherwise disease-free lives.

There are two types of diabetes: Type I is insulin-dependent, while Type II is noninsulin dependent. Both types could find that regular cardiovascular exercise should return some degree of control back in their lives.

Know your types

People who have Type I diabetes are able to live longer and reasonably healthier lives, due to better detection and treatment. Even though Type II is a more preventable form of diabetes, the destructive combination of obesity. inactivity and stress has created a near epidemic in the United States. Both the rich and the poor are susceptible to diabetes and in each decade of life between the ages of 40 and 75, the risk increases.

With current trends, a person born in the United States today and living 70 years, has a one-in-five chance of developing diabetes.

In regards to exercise, the two types of diabetes must be managed somewhat differently. Type I diabetics must pay closer attention to the actual timing of exercise. For Type II diabetic patients, more often the problem is weight control; exercise can be used with diet to improve this in a compliant patient.

Exercise or insulin?

Physical activity in the form of exercise does have an insulin-like effect in general. When exercise continues beyond the first five-10 minutes, blood glucose and free fatty acids become very important as the "fuels" for work. The insulin dependent diabetic must then either reduce his or her insulin or increase his or her carbohydrate (food) intake.

Consistency is important. Diabetes mellitus influences the size of the body fuel reserves, primarily the carbohydrate store. In insulin treated diabetics, exercise is accompanied by a lowering of the blood glucose concentration. Because exercise produces a fall in glycogen, it also prolongs the stimulation of its own production and use. As a result, glucose tolerance of the diabetic improves, and insulin requirements are diminished.

Of course, when we speak of exercise, we are talking of dynamic aerobic exercise.

Activities such as fast walking, bicycling, swimming, etc., are just a few examples. Doing these exercises three to four times a week for 20-30 minutes at the proper intensity should bring an optimal conditioning effect.

A final word on timing is noteworthy.

For the exercise to be of greatest value, the time of day which the session takes place is important. If exercise is done about an hour and a half to two hours after a meal, it will be beneficial to both types of diabetics. It is also unlikely to cause an insulin reaction in patients using David L. Thomson, M.D., chief of Endocrinology at St. John Hospital and Medical Center, agrees that exercise is essential. In working with diabetic patients, he concludes that, "Exercise is one of the three major components in the management of diabetes, either Type I or Type II. The other two components are diet and medication.

"Exercise is a powerful factor for increasing blood-sugar control," adds Thomson. "It can also be helpful in reducing the risks of cardiovascular disease, which sees a two-fold increase in occurrence with the diabetic patient.

Dr. Thomson does advise that the individual diabetic be sure to check with his or her physician before beginning any exercise program. There are precautions and helpful hints to consider.

Suggested approach

1) The diabetic should know his or her ideal blood glucose level before starting each exercise session. Here is where the physician and/or registered nurse are essential in the education-instruction pro-

2) Wearing appropriate and supportive shoes is crucial. Because diabetics tend to have circulatory problems, often involving the feet, injury must be avoided at all costs. Prevention of blisters and the like are key here.

3) Always carry a fast acting food-sugar supplement. This can be small cans of fruit juice or raisins. Even several packets of sugar will do the trick. For longer exercise periods, the person should carry extra longer-acting food such as a cheese sandwich.

4) Always wear a diabetic identification bracelet or neck chain when exercising. If one should become unconscious as a result of hypoglycemia, this information will be vital for those coming to aid.

5) Exercise with another person. This will add to the diabetic's enjoyment as well as provide an element of safety in the event of an insulin reaction. Be sure the friend is informed of the diabetic's needs.

Take charge of the controls

Here, again, we are seeing how a positive routine of exercise can affect one's control to a healthier life.

This should result in increased feeling of self-confidence and freedom. It sure beats constantly depending on others to watch for symptoms. Taking it one step further, encourage other diabetic persons to exercise. By being a positive role model, other persons can see that vigorous exercise is possible - and fun.

Chevalier paces Flames in spring hockey season

The S.C.S. Bantam Flames Hockey team, behind the goaltending of Jason Chevalier, went unbeaten in the spring season and eventually won the tournament championship.

Chevalier recorded five shutouts with a goals against average of 0.75 per game. Despite going undefeated during the regular season, the Flames slumped when the playoffs rolled around, but recovered in time to win the title. The Flames won their first game by one goal and faced elimination after losing to the Cobras in game two. On the brink of elimination, the Flames earned their way to the championship game with a big win in game three.

In the finals, Dan Bombich played his best game of the season as he scored a hat trick and recorded one assist. David Deleeuw scored once and assisted twice, while Everett Covacha and Frank Vetesse each notched an assist. Craig Carlson scored the final goal, unassisted.

Anchoring the defense in front of Chevalier were Gary Olson, Derek Zmijewski, Chris Weinert, Mike Denardis, Peter Megler and Everett Covacha. Forwards Chris Hoglund, Jason Benanatti, Nick Berger, Dan Bombich, Craig Carslon, David Deleeuw, Marty Lorkowski and Frank Vetesse all played well.

Jets 4, Turbos 2

Eric Krauss, Jim Kruse, Andrew Georgandellis and Trevor Szymanski booted goals for the Lightning-Jets.

Everyone played hard for the Jets, who have now won their spring league.

Rory Cleary, Anthony and Lou Ciotti played well for the Turbos.

U-10 House

Falcons 4, Shredders 2

Dwyer McDuffee opened the scoring off a cross from Pat Scallen, who later tallied from his halfback position. Jeff Denys added a goal following a breaka-Topolewski completed the scoring on a penalty kick. George Montgomery and Ben Jackson anchored a tough Falcon defense in front of goalie Chris Magee.

Falcons 3, Eagles 0

Pat Scallen scored on a penalty kick, and Dan Novembre and Mike Munerantz added solo blasts. Jeff Denys added two assists, while Pat Gonyea and Chris Magee shared the shutout in goal.

Mike Topolewski, Marty Finkelmeier and John Koenig supported the defense.

Wolverines 3, Falcons 1

Pat Scallen scored the lone Falcon goal on a pass from Munerantz. Magee and Topolewski bounced shots off the crossbar, but the Wolverines' defense protected the win. Novembre, and Richard Spalding were credited with fine defensive games for the Falcons.

Turbos 2, Falcons 1 Pat Scallen put the Falcons on the board first with a goal set up by Munerantz, but the Turbos used the firepower of Stuart Yingst to win. Jeff Denys and Dwyer McDuffee led the defensive effort, and Ben Jackson anchored the Falons' midfield.

Turbos 3, Stingers 1

John Berschback scored twice and Yingst netted one goal for the winners. James McAfee, Andy Benfer, Peter Smith and Andy Klein (goalie) played well in the win.

Turbos 2, Falcons 1

Stuart Yingst scored on passes from Ben Weaver and Jonn Berschback, and Andy Klein and Matt Gorczea shared the win in net. Seth Lloyd and Vassilis Jaway by Pat Gonyea, and Mike cobs did a great job defensively, and Matt Keating was the offensive specialist of the game.

Turbos 3, Wolverines 0

The Turbos, behind goals by Berschback, Weaver and Yingst, won the U-10 House championship with a 12-1 record.

Andy Benfer broke up many plays and Peter Smith and Lloyd played strong defensive games. Martin Mathews and Ralph Harik played well for the Wol-

Turbos 3, G-Force 0

Joseph Choma's strong defensive play between the posts kept the game close, with Drew Harris, Ian Watt and Joe Varani providing the midfield support. Rami Zayat and Peter Cline III anchored the offense.

Stingers 3, G-Force 3

Harris, Brian Lorey and Stephen Owens scored for G-Force, while Sarah Sudney, Joe Varani and Justin Wynne held up the defense. Drew Harris led several breakaway drives to rally the of-
