Holy cashboxes, it's Grosse Pointe's own superhero

An extremely wealthy woman is murdered in cold blood. The lead in Grosse Pointe North's production of "West Side Story" has been kidnapped.

Who ya gonna call? Forget the Ghostbusters, and that guy who dresses up like a bat. Call Moneyman, star of his own irreverent and witty Grosse his RayBan sunglasses, patchwork pants and pink sweater tied around his shoulders, creating a cape.

And he does a lot of running trying to keep up with the evil Rose Villa and Fraserite, who vowed to wreak havor on Grosse Pointers after being shunned by friends when they moved out of the Pointes to Roseville and Fraser.

It all started in the not-toodistant past when Jim Clor and Jeff Witzke, two 1988 graduates of Grosse Pointe North High School, got interested in video production. The two would put together scenes and skits to entertain themselves and their friends.

Then they met Lynn Kaiafas, a 1989 graduate of North, and Mike Babel, a North High junior, during a production of "The Wizard of Oz." Their sense of humor meshed, and the four be-

"He's good," Clor said. "He is Grosse Pointe and all that's good rolled into one.'

By day, he's "Macomb student Jim Clor," but whenever he's needed, wherever there's a cry for help, he pops over to Hudson's and one trip through the revolving glass doors and he becomes - Moneyman.

Fireworks spectacular!

The sixth annual fireworks display Sunday at Parcells field drew more than 20.000 people, making it one of the best-attended events yet, according to Robbie Curry, coordinator of the project. Sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Business and Professional Association of Mack Avenue, the event this year introduced a sky show in which the musical program was coordinated with the fireworks display.

At the left, Grosse Pointe Woods resident Bob Bozell gives son Jeff a better view. Below, brothers Chuck and Dave Stankovich, also of the Woods, are obviously ready for the show to begin. Eastland to pay costs of cleaning up oil spill

By John Minnis

Eastland Center must pay in excess of $100,000 in clean-up costs involving an estimated 1,000 to 2,000 gallons of fuel oil that flowed into the Milk River Pump Station in Grosse Pointe Woods during late May.

At a press conference June 29 at the pump station at Marter and Parkview, Wayne County Executive Edward H. McNamara he anticipates no complications ment is cooperating fully. as the source of the oil. He said the shopping center's management is negotiating with the county on reimbursing the Milk River Drain Inter-County Drainage Board's expenses in cleaning up the oil.

McNamara said the county is preparing a list of expenditures to submit to Eastland. He said said Eastland has been identified from Eastland management. The County Public Works Director said the three 20,000- to 25,000drainage board has already spent $100,000 on the clean-up, and another $30,000 will be spent to finish the job.

While Eastland is the source of the oil, the county itself does not plan any legal action against the mall. McNamara said there was "no malice" on Eastland's part, and the mall's manage-

James Murray, who is secretary of the drainage board and has been in charge of the clean-up and investigation of the spill, was satisfied with Eastland's cooperation.

Eastland is certainly handling this better than Exxon did in the Valdez deal," he said. "We look forward to a very quick resolution with Eastland."

Catherine O'Malley, Eastland director of management services, said in a statement that Eastland will respond "as concerned corporate citizens and will meet with statutes, ordinances and applicable regulations regarding this situation. The tanks are stored underground in a cement bunker, which has a storm drain so that rain and ground water seepage can drain off.

Apparently one of the tanks began leaking. O'Malley said one tank was used on an occasional basis to make sure the boiler plant can operate on the oil reserves. She said the other two tanks are full. The tanks were last filled in 1977.

O'Malley said Eastland was contacted June 9 by environmental agencies investigating the oil spill. One June 12, the mall hired its own environmental consultant and is awaiting a report. She said measures have been taken so that no more oil escapes the tanks.

In order to find where the oil came from, Murray said his DPW workers physically climbed into the sewer and traced the oil ble.

Assistant Editor A jury awarded more than $2 million last week to a former Farms police officer whose fingers were severed in a domestic accident in 1984.

The award by a Wayne County Circuit Court jury June 30 is to compensate the former officer, John Winter, 48, who lost his job after the accident because he was no longer able to fire a

His attorney, John C. Carlisle of Grosse Pointe Farms, said the award is half the $4.1 million dollars, including interest, that was originally awarded to his client in a suit against the Mack-Moross Amoco gas station in the Farms. Carlisle said the jury decided that Carlisle was 50 percent responsible for the accident and therefore was eligible for only half the monetary judg-

The accident occurred June 25, 1984, when Winter was attempting to repair a sidewalk in from of his Kerby Road home. Carlisle said Winter was told by the city of Grosse Pointe Farms to get his sidewalk repaired or the city would do it and bill him.

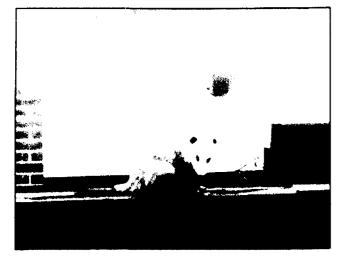

Winter then got a wrecker from the Amoco station to come over to his home and hook onto a sidewalk slab and lift it up while Winter attempted to cut out the tree roots that were causing the sidewalk to raise. While Winter was working under the slab, it slipped off the wrecker's hook and caught Winter's hand as it fell. Three of his fingers were severed.

Winter was taken to St. John Hospital and then to Harper Grace Hospital, where the fin-were sewn back on. Carlisle said that even though the fingers were reattached, the officer did not gain sufficient use of the fingers to handle a gun and eight months 'ater was given a medical disability from the police department.

The attorney for the Mack-Moross Amoco, William Joselyn, reportedly plans to appeal the decision.

Farms toughens property code

Farms residents, take heed. If your paint is peeling or your lawn is strewn with trash, you could end up in jail.

An amendment to the basic housing property maintenance code which will tighten exterior codes on homes and businesses and will help the city council in enforcing existing codes was approved June 12.

Richard G. Solak, city clerk, said, "The basic intent is to address exterior property. It will help us to maintain the character and property values in the community.

Specifically, the exterior walls section was strengthened to read: "None of the exterior painted facades or surfaces of a building shall contain areas of flaking or peeling paint in an amount in excess of five percent of the entire painted surface area of such facade or surface." Added to the outside sanitation section is wording which In the exterior ordinance, sev- makes any occupant of a build-

Also the occupant is responsible for keeping rubbish containers screened from view from the street or neighboring property. Formerly, the building owner was responsible.

Existing subheadings from ordinances regarding driveways, rodent control, vehicle storage and noxious weeds were combined into the new ordinance.

Solak said the measure was approved in part because of comments made by residents at council meetings who were concerned with maintaining property in the city. He said council action was under consideration for about a year.

Residents at the June 12 council meeting said that about 30 homes in the Farms need attention. Solak said the city has never conducted a formal survey on the number of problem homes that would fall under the new exterior code.

Residents violating the ordinance, if convicted, could be subject to a $500 fine and 90 days in prison.

Solak said the ordinance will go into effect July 11, but that some council members have concerns and may ask that the ordinance be changed at the July 10 meeting.

City's 100th birthday party in limbo; centennial year still unresolved

By John Minnis

Assistant Editor Unpack your suntan lotion. portable radio, beach towels and bug spray. The proposed centennial party for the City of Grosse Pointe may not happen after all - at least that's the way things looked last week.

At a special 8 a.m. meeting June 28, the council rejected a motion by Councilwoman Myrna Smith to establish 1889 as the year the City was founded, which would have allowed her to continue her plans for a 100th birthday party at Neff Memorial Park Aug. 26.

At last week's special council Lisa Bradley, head of a committee of five looking into when the City's centennial should be cele-tennial year question and possibrated, argued that 1889 should bly schedule another special be established as the founding date, but the members of the City Council, including Mayor Lorenzo Browning, rejected the year during a formal vote.

Since 1889 was rejected as the founding year, Smith said after the special meeting that her plans are off for a 100th birthday party because there now isn't anything to celebrate.

Late last week, however, Smith said she still may have a small party because she has contributors lined up to cover the costs of food, fireworks and other party items. She also stated that meeting, Smith and resident city attorney Richard Hinks has sent a letter to the City Council asking it to reconsider the cenmeeting this week.

While Smith had arranged donations from businesses in the City to cover costs and provide food and other items for the party, Kroger had stipulated that its food contribution would only be made if this is the official centennial year, Smith said.

At the special meeting last week, the council was expected to pick one of two years as the City's centennial year. After 1989 was rejected, the council could have chosen 1993, but no further action concerning the centennial was taken.

The C ty is under pressure to decide the founding year because of two 1-asons: First, 1989 may be over before any observance of the centennial can be conducted if 1889 is chosen as the founding year; and, second, the City wants to put up new signs at the entrances to the City listing the year in which the city was estab-

In 1889, the Village of Grosse Pointe, which which was established in 1879 and comprised the area we now know as the Farms, expanded its territory to include today's City land extending west to Cadieux. This is the first time the area of today's City fell under a municipal government.

In 1993, a dispute over liquor being served at a roadhouse west of Fisher led to the reincorporation of the Village of Grosse Pointe, with the land east of Fisher Road becoming Grosse Pointe Farms. The area between Cadieux and Fisher continued to be called the Village of Grosse Pointe, but there are appears to be no charter established at the time establishing the jurisdiction of the new Village of Grosse Pointe. In 1934, the Village of Grosse Pointe was incorporated into the City of Grosse Pointe.

Proponents of the year 1889 said the City should not lose four years off its founding just because the people in the Farms decided to "secede" from the Vil-

City attorney Hinks said that valid arguments could be made for both 1889 and 1893 as being the City's founding dates. "I believe celebrations in the years 1989 and 1993 would be very appropriate," he wrote in his report to the council.

"In typical legal fashion, I came up with a way to pass the decision back to the council," he

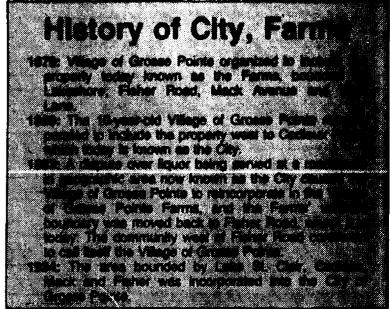

Concerning the new signs at the entrances to the City, Councilman William N. Montgomery said whatever year is chosen should be the correct one.

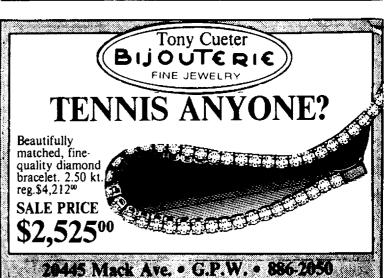

When Councilwoman Susan Wheeler moved that 1993 be established as the centennial year, Hinks cautioned the council to take its time in making a decision, and Wheeler withdrew her motion.

"I don't want you to hurry

this decision," he said. "We've had 100 or so years to arrive at

Teen caravan stopped: four youths charged

An officer in an unmarked police patrol car observed a caravan of several vehicles containing teenagers traveling along Park streets at 11:30 p.m. and saw beers being passed from car to car.

After stopping the cars, police charged four teenagers, Park police said. The teens were a 16year-old, two 17-year-olds and an 18-year-old.

85-year-old's purse snatched

A purse belonging to an 85year-old woman was snatched while she was standing along Jefferson, east of Beaconsfield, June 28.

The suspect exited a vehicle at 12:50 p.m. and acted as if he were looking for an address. He then got back into his car and backed up to where the woman was standing. He got out, asked a question and then grabbed her purse. The woman was dragged a few feet when the thief was getting back to his car. The woman received slight injuries, according to Park police.

The four want people of all ages to watch their show, so there are even some educational moments. For instance Moneyman tells kids about the importance of being home by their curfew so parents can develop trust in them.

Saluting the flag that burns

By William Brennan

The First Amendment literally forbids the abridgement only of speech, but we have long recognized that its protection does not end at the spoken or written word. Conduct may be sufficiently imbued with the elements of communication to fall within the scope of the First and 14th amendments.

On June 21, the U.S. Supreme Court upheld the right of Americans to burn their country's flag. The decision strikes at the heart of the meaning of free speech. Because of the importance of the ruling, the following articles by Associate Justice William Brennan and Chief Justice William Rehnquist are reprinted with permission from the New Federalist Papers.

Gregory Johnson burned an American flag as part indeed, as the culmination - of a political demonstration that coincided with the convening of the Republican Party and its renomination Ronald Reagan for president. The expressive, overtly political nature of this conduct was both intentional and overwhelmingly apparent. In these circumstances, Johnson's burning of the flag was conduct sufficiently imbued with elements of communication to implicate the First Amendment.

Texas asserts an interest in preserving the flag as a symbol of nationhood and national unity. According to Texas, if one physically treats the flag in a way that would tend to cast doubt on either the idea that nationhood and national unity are the flag's referents or that national unity actually exists, the message conveyed thereby is a harmful one and therefore may be prohibited.

If there is a bedrock principle underlying the First Amendment, it is that the government may not prohibit the expression of an idea simply because society finds the idea itself offensive or disagreeable. We have not recognized an exception to this principle even where our flag has been involved. In Street v. New York (1969), we held that a state may not criminally punish a person for uttering words critical of the flag. Nor may the government, we have held, compel conduct that would evince respect for the flag.

To conclude that the government may permit designated symbols to be used to communicate only a limited set of messages would be to enter territory having no discernible or defensible boundaries. Could the government, or this theory, prohibit the burning of state flags? Of copies of the presidential seal? Of the Constitution? In evaluating these choices under the First Amendment, how would we decide which symbols were sufficiently special to warrant this unique status?

The First Amendment does not guarantee that other concepts virtually sacred to our nation as a whole - such as the principle that discrimination on the basis of race is odious and destructive - will go unquestioned in the marketplace of ideas. We decline, therefore, to create for the flag an exception to the joust of principles protected by the First Amendment.

We are tempted to say, in fact, that the flag's deservedly cherished place in our community will be strengthened, not weakened, by our holding today. Our decision is a reaffirmation of the principles of freedom and inclusiveness that the flag best reflects, and of the conviction that our toleration of criticism such as Johnson's is a sign and source of our strength. It is the nation's resilience, not its rigidity, that Texas sees reflected in the flag - and it is that resilience that we reassert today.

The way to preserve the flag's special role is not to punish those who feel differently about these matters. It is to persuade them that they are wrong. To courageous, self-reliant men, with confidence in the power of free and fearless reasoning applied through the processes of popular government, no danger flowing from speech can be deemed clear and present, unless the incidence of the evil apprehended is so imminent that it may befall before there is opportunity for full discussion.

We can imagine no more appropriate response to burning a flag than waving one's own, no better way to counter a flag-burner's message than by saluting the flag that burns, no surer means of preserving the dignity even of the flag that burned than by - as one witness here did - according its remains a respectful burial.

Flag's protection justified

By William Rehnquist

or more than 200 years, the American flag has occupied a unique position as the symbol of our nation, a uniqueness that justifies a governmental prohibition against flag burning in the way respondent Johnson did here.

During the War of 1812, British naval forces sailed up Chesapeake Bay and marched overland to sack and burn the city of Washington. They then sailed up the Patapsco River to invest the city of Baltimore, but to do so it was first necessary to reduce Fort McHenry in Baltimore Harbor. Francis Scott Key, a Washington lawyer, watched the British fleet firing on Fort McHenry that night. Finally at daybreak, he saw the fort's American flag still flying; the British attack had failed. Intensely moved, be began to scribble on the back of an envelope the poem that became our national anthem.

The American flag also played a central role in our nation's most tragic conflict, when the North fought against the South. The lowering of the American flag at Fort Sumter was viewed as the start of the war. The Union troops marched to the sound of "Yes we'll rally round the flag boys, we'll rally once again.

In the first and second world wars, thousands of our countrymen died on foreign soil fighting for the American cause. At Iwo Jima in the second world war, United States Marines fought hand-to-hand against thousands of Japanese. By the time the marines reached the top of Mount Suribachi, they raised a piece of pipe upright and from one end fluttered a flag. That ascent had cost nearly 6,000 American lives. The Iwo Jima Memorial in Arlington National Cemetery memorializes that event.

Impetus for the enactment of the Federal Flag Desecration Statute of 1967 came from the impact of flag burnings in the United States on troop morale in Vietnam.

The flag symbolizes the nation in peace as well as in war. It signifies our national presence on battleships, airplanes, military installations and public buildings and the United States Capitol to the thousands of county courthouses and city halls through the country. Two flags are prominently placed in our courtroom. Countless flags are placed by the graves of loved ones each year on what was first called Decoration Day, and it is now called Memorial Day. The flag is traditionally placed on the casket of deceased members of the armed forces and it is later given to the deceased's family.

The flag is not simply another "idea" or "point of view" competing for recognition in the marketplace of ideas. Therefore I cannot agree that the First Amendment invalidates the act of Congress and the laws of 48 or the 50 states, which make criminal the public burning of the flag.

The court insists that the Texas statute prohibiting the public burning of the American flag infringes on Johnson's freedom of expression. Such freedom is not absolute. In Chaplinsky v. New Hampshire (1942), a unanimous court said: "There are certain well-defined and narrowly limited classes of speech, the prevention and punishment of which have never been thought to raise a constitutional problem. These included the lewd and obscene, the profane, the libelous and the insulting or 'fighting' words - those by their very utterance inflict injury or tend to incite an immediate breach of the peace. It has been well observed that such utterances are no essential party of an exposition of ideas "

Here it may equally well be said that the public burning of the American flag by Johnson was no essential part of any exposition of ideas, and at the same time it has a tendency to incite a breach of the peace. Johnson was free to make any verbal denunciation of the flag that he wished; indeed, he was free to burn the flag in private. He could publicly burn other symbols of the governemnt or effigies of political leaders. He did lead a march through the streets of Dallas and conducted a rally in front of the Dallas City Hall. He shouted out various slogans during the march, including "Reagan, Mondale which will it be? Either one means World War III"; "Ronald Reagan, killer of the hour, perfect example of U.S. power"; and "Red, white and blue, we spit on you; you stand for plunder, you will go under." For none of these acts was he arrested or prosecuted; it was only when he proceeded to burn publicly an America flag stolen from its rightful owner that he violated the Texas stat-

The court could not, and did not, say that Chaplinsky's utterances were not expressive phrases - they clearly and succinctly conveyed an extremely low opinion of the addressee. The same may be said of Johnson's public burning of the flag in this case: It obviously did convey Johnson's bitter dislike of his country. But his act, like Chaplinsky's provocative words, conveyed nothing that could not have been conveyed and was not conveyed just a forcefully in a dozen different ways. As with "fighting words," so with flag burning, for purposes of the First Amendment: It is "not essential part of any exposition of ideas '

Uncritical extension of constitutional protection to the burning of the flag risks the frustration of the very purpose for which organized governments are instituted. The court decides that the American flag is just another symbol, about which not only must opinions pro and con be tolerated, but for which the most minimal public respect may not be enjoined. The government may conscript men into the armed forces, where they must fight and perhaps die for the flag, but the government may not prohibit the public burning of the banner under which they fight.

Negative image To the Editor:

Several of us here at The Stroh Brewery Company (based in Detroit) have noticed that you have printed a very unflattering photograph of California Cooler with your articles on Adolescents and Alcohol. Most recently, this photo appeared in your May 25 issue with an article written by Margie Reins

Smith. We feel that picturing California Cooler in relation to an article about adolescent alcoholism is very unfair to our product and our company. It projects an image to your readers that we market our alcoholic beverages to minors and most likely promotes a negative feeling about the product to our potential adult consumers.

This negative image is far from true. The Stroh Brewery Company purchased the marketing rights to California Cooler this past year, we have marketed and advertised only to an adult audience. As a company, we also promote educational programs such as Techniques in Alcohol Management (TAM) which educates managers and employees of drug stores, convenience stores and on-premise drinking establishments on how to identify under-age drinkers and purchasers. Another program which we support is the "Parent to Parent for Prevention" program. The program is a unique parent support group which offers alcohol and drug educational programs and guidance to families of elementary and middle school students. Although the program has visited several school districts in the Detroit area, it recently took place at Pierce Middle School in Grosse Pointe this past February.

Our company takes a hard stand on under-age drinking and alcohol abuse by adults, and we try to make the public aware of this. We would appreciate it, therefore, if you would refrain from picturing our products in such a negative light again.

Check on home schools

To the Editor: Regarding articles on church and home schools recently in the newspapers, I would like to express my feelings.

It is certainly a shame Michigan does not have better laws regarding the education of our children. The fact that anyone can start a home school, and teach not only their own child but other children without being certified teachers, is absurd. They could even be third grade dropouts or dope addicts.

They don't even have to apply to the state for a permit to start a school or report on the student's progress to the board of education. No one knows how much, if anything, the students are learning in these home schools. I believe this is definitely a cruel form of child abuse, because these children have no choice.

Can't someone get the ball rolling and untie the hands of our board of education so at least they would have the right to check up on these so-called schools.

Get a horse

Maybe it's because my car broke down, its electronic innards baffling even the most dedicated car buff in the office.

It might be my inability to understand the arcane workings of the state bureaucracy, whose unfairness leaves me ready to chew a stick even three years after the fact.

Maybe it's the noise from my neighbor's heat pump, humming steadily at just one micro-decibel inside the safe limit and aimed directly into my window.

Whatever.

All I know is that the desire to retreat deep into the woods to a one-room cabin with one pair of ieans and a bunch of books has come over me again. The Thoreau syndrome.

Actually, Thoreau was trying to prove a point about self-sufficiency when he moved to Walden Pond. And since he went home for lunch at his mother's every day, you could argue that he wasn't being entirely self-sufficient.

I don't really want to prove that an acre of beans will support a family (or whatever Thoreau's economic formula was please don't hold me to exact facts here). I just want everybody to leave me alone.

Don't try to tantalize me with promises of a shopping spree at the Neiman Marcus they're threatening to build at Somerset Mall. Neiman Marcus is the deity's way of telling us we have too much money (to paraphrase Richard Pryor).

Besides, I can't afford it. On the other hand, better they should put it in Troy than where I live. My town is nice and quiet, just the way I like it. But there are disturbing signs of modernity there, too. I know a guy who owns 128 '800' numbers. This is the kind of business coup I don't know how to appreciate.

There is also a new office with a phone bank offering access to computerized information somewhere. (Probably everywhere.) This is so esoteric that the guy with the '800' numbers can't figure it out.

It's hard to get away from things in the 1980s. They have condos at Grand Marais, for pete's sake. To really distance yourself, you have to go to Yellowknife.

Or distance yourself mentally. Walden Pond actually was less than a mile from the village of Concord. A railroad track ran diagonally across - in fact, they just filled a swampy area at the end of the pond to lay the tracks on. And there are more trees there now than 150 years ago.

But that didn't stop Thoreau.

His keep-it-simple philosophy is a coincidental grandfather of my own (though he probably wouldn't approve of our VCR). And though I cannot claim his mental rigor, a life of writing all morning and walking all afternoon sounds pretty good.

Bob and I march to a different drummer too. He wears red fireman's suspenders. Our lawn mower is older than Michael Dukakis's. Our living room is still decorated in the wallpaper selected by old Mrs. Morrison nearly four decades ago. And we sit on the front porch. On a

George Cantor wrote a couple of weeks ago that front porches are making a comeback. It's about time.

We sit there, sippin' lemonade, watching our small corner of the world go by. There's an old guy with droopy Bermuda shorts and a fat cigar, talking to himself. Kids on bikes, dads pushing strollers. Teenagers flooring it in mom's car.

Everybody waves. This illusion of friendliness can fool you, however. They wave, we wave back - and turn to each other and ask 'who was that?' They're probably asking themselves the same thing.

But, hey, it feels good. It's slow-paced, it's a retreat from too much bustle. It's nearly as good as Walden.

But my mother doesn't make our lunch.

The trash heist

Michael Lahey of Grosse Pointe Park was accustomed to taking his trash to the curb the night before the weekly trash pickup.

Something strange was happening, however.

If he put out four trash bags in the evening, there were only three left in the morning. If he put out three - only two were left.

Lahey (who is also president of the Grosse Pointe Business and Professional Association of Mack Avenue) recently received a phone call from a company to verify some charges on his credit card for merchandise to be sent to an address that was not the same as his home address.

"Ah ha," Lahey said. "And no wav."

He speculates that someone was stealing his trash to find information about his credit card numbers - then charging merchandise.

Lahey wants to alert other Grosse Pointers about this scam.

nouncing the Supreme Court's decision "allowing flag-burning as a protected form of political protest under the First Amendment." Rather, she said, "We are talking about a piece of cloth. . . Democracy will not fail because someone burns a piece of cloth. . . Displaying the flag is not in itself a patriotic act. Is the gas station with the biggest flag owned by the most fervent patriot?

This July 4, we'll hang our flag from the front porch as we always do, but if our neighbors choose to burn theirs to protest Nicaragua or taxes or governmental indifferences to the poor, we'll understand their point. Hurrah for red, white, and blue diversity!

That's the key word: diversity - diversity in a pluralistic society, no goosestepping, not everyone the same.

Incidentally, why not sign all editorials every week? Don't tell me. I've heard the answer. I know, I know, I know: It's the paper that's speaking, not just Bob Pittston or Kate Kilkenny. Yup, it's the Holy Paper itself speaking from Mount Sinai. But it won't wash. It's jive. It's an evasion. Real people write real editorials and then hide out in delightful anonymity.

I think that the Grosse Pointe News set a high standard, if only this once, by affixing signatures to its Independence Day editorials. Let editorial writers everywhere come out of the woodwork, be men and women, and speak for themselves. If the editor doesn't want to use what is written, that's all right, but the writer ought to accept the blame and receive the plaudits for what is said.

James Joyce once wrote, "The sentimentalist is he who would enjoy without the responsibility for a thing done." Same thing with editorialists. They, too, enjoy without the responsibility for a thing done.

In the meanwhile, all praise to Nancy Parmenter for an editorial that deserves an award for saying calmly and easily what has to be said.

> John Conley Three Mile Drive

Editor's note: The Grosse Pointe News does not deem it necessary to sign editorials since they are all written by editorial writer Bill Elston. Readers who agree or disagree with an editorial are always referred to Bill. The only time editorials are signed is when they are written by other writers.

A. The Peugeot family and Peugeot S.A., which builds the Peugeot, the Citroen and the Talbot.

Peugeot is the third-largest auto maker in Europe. Long known for well-crafted cars of solid value, it is the oldest company still producing cars under the original name. It was voted Car of the Year by the European motor press, but sales in the United States have been disappointing.

The 405 is modern, high tech, very European, very stylish. For its price (base starts at $14,500, but it is better to think of it in terms of $20,000 - still a bargain) it's hard to beat. In performance, design and comfort, ride and handling, it is in the same league as Volvo, Saab, Audi and the lower range of Mercedes-Benz and BMW. But it is French.

seriously by Detroit which viewed them as the province of radicals, flakes and college professors. Most imports sold in the '50s were Volkswagen Beetles, but in a very distant second place was the Renault Dauphine, a very chic little four-door sedan with rear air-cooled engine which probably had more to do with the Peugeot 405's lack of sales success here than is immediately evident.

Obituaries

Gerald J. Christ Jr.

Funeral services for Gerald J. Christ, 35, of Grosse Pointe Woods, were held Wednesday, June 28 at St. Lucy Roman Catholic Church in St. Clair Shores, where he was a member.

Mr. Christ died Saturday, June 24, 1989, when a riderless horse galloping toward his van in the dark crashed through his windshield, killing him instantly.

Gerald J. Christ Jr.

His wife, Sherry, who was in the front passenger seat, suffered a broken rib. Their three-yearold daughter, Catherine, was not injured.

The family was on their way to spend their first night in a newly purchased condominium in Glen Arbor.

Born in Detroit, Mr. Christ was a 1972 graduate of Grosse Pointe North High School and earned an associate degree in industrial education from Northern Michigan University in Marquette.

He attended Oakland University where he studied architectural landscaping.

He is the co-founder of Three C's Landscaping in Warren, a company he started while 16, when he and partner, Clement Chargot Jr., each bought a lawn mower and started cutting lawns lawn Cemetery, Detroit.

for $3 per hour. The firm now employs 60 people.

'He was my pillar," Chargot said. "He was an unbelievable optimist. He was the most honest partner with the most positive attitude. And he truly cared about people."

Christ's brother, Michael, said, "Gerry was an energetic, generous and hard working man. He lived by his motto, 'Do something for someone daily.'

Before leaving town, Mr. Christ called a Milwaukee hotel where his secretary of 11 years, Sheila Kenworthy, was spending the weekend and told them to put her room and all expenses on his Visa.

"That's just one example of Gerry's deep caring for people,' Chargot said.

Mr. Christ recently spent the only evening he had free during the landscaping season helping a Girl Scout troop plant a shrine at their church, donating the flowers and soil.

In addition to his wife and daughter, he is survived by his parents, Gerald and Sally Christ; and brothers, Tom, Michael, Duane and Charles.

A scripture service was held Tuesday, June 27 at the A.H. Peters Funeral Home. Burial was in Resurrection Cemetery, Clinton Township.

Memorial contributions may be made to Greenpeace USA, 1611 Connecticut Ave. N.W.. Washington, D.C. 20009.

Edith Sandin

Funeral services for Edith Sandin, 96, of Grosse Pointe Woods, were held Friday, June 23 at the A.H. Peters Funeral Home with the Rev. Bryant Dennison officiating.

City police warn against 'lottery' scam

City of Grosse Pointe police are warning residents against a mail fraud scheme that was attempted on a City woman last week.

The woman who lives in the 400 block of Fisher received a post card telling the woman she may be the winner of more than $10 million dollars being given away in a lottery sponsored by a private donor.

The post card stated:

"An anonymous donor has given me the task of finding you. If you are the right person all I can tell you is that 10 million dollars could be yours.'

The perpetrators of the scheme ask for the resident's signature and a written statement saying "Here is $20. I am the person you are looking for."

The signature is "To establish your indentity beyond a shadow of a doubt ...," the post card states. Postal customers are told the $20 check is needed to do a computer search, compare the resident's handwriting and file the papers required by the anonymous donor. Recipients of the post card are told to make the $20 check out to Cartwig, Chandler-Jones and Smythe and mail it to a post office box in Orangeburg, N.Y.

City police Detective Dennis VanDale said he contacted the Postal Service and was told the Consumer Fraud Division of the Postal Service was already investigating the scheme.

VanDale said that whoever is responsible knows what they're doing and is very close to breaking the law and probably is guilty of fraud. He warns residents not be be taken in by the

He said things got out of hand when he refused to let them take advantage of him and when he threatened to call their parents. He testified that the youths threatened to call police and say he was molesting them if he called their parents.

Gilpin said the youths only drank beer in his apartment and watched porno tapes while he was taking a shower after work. He said the boys once broke into his apartment by shinying up a gutter downspout.

He pointed out that all the youths had consumed alcohol before they ever met Gilpin.

During the testimony, Judge Kerwin had asked each of the three youths when he started drinking. One started at age 13, another at 14 and the third at age 16.

Explaining his verdicts, Kerwin said he, like a jury, must be convinced beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant is guilty of the charges. He said he was convinced Gilpin provided the youths with alcohol, but he was not convinced that he intentionally showed them pornographic material.

While Kerwin said the two adult witnesses and Sgt. Smith gave credible testimony, he had doubts as to the veracity of parts of the youths' and Gilpin's statements on the stand.

The judge had strong words to say about the youths, who he said by their behavior in the court and on the witness stand led him to believe that the youths thought the court proceedings were a big joke.

He said that while he was conwhen "They refused to listen to vinced that Gilpin was guilty of providing the youths with alcoing and smoking." hol, he also believed that the "The weren't going to use my youths did not drink the alcohol hol, he also believed that the place as a drinking pad," he because of the influence of Gil-

Scholars named

Shannon Byrne and Errin Porter

Two University Liggett Scholar Awards have been presented to Shannon Byrne and Errin Porter. Porter received a $10,000 four-year scholarship, while Byrne, as runner-up in the selection process, was given a one-year stipend of $500. Both students will enter ULS as ninth graders in September.

Porter, the daughter of Gerald and Adele Porter of New Baltimore, was lauded by Douglas Goodman, director of admissions, for her "high aptitude and achievement, and many contributions to her school community." To supplement her application to ULS, Porter wrote an essay supporting the value of socio-economic diversity.

The daughter of Robert and Linda Byrne of Grosse Pointe Park, Byrne was recognized for "academic and extracurricular talent and contributions."

The University Liggett Scholar Awards are presented to incoming sixth and ninth grade students on the basis of "allaround merit, including demonstrated and predicted academic excellence, and positive contributions to school community." This is the second year that the awards have been given. For more information, call Goodman at the ULS admission office, 884-4444.

Student writers garner honors

The Detroit Free Press recently announced that two University Liggett School students captured honors in its 1988-89 writing award contest.

In the Junior Division (grades 7, 8 and 9), freshman Chris Martin, of Detroit, won a Commendation in the "Sketch" category.

In the Senior Division (grades 10, 11 and 12), junior Sunil Golwala, of Grosse Pointe, was awarded a Commendation in the "Essay" category.

'Star Trek V': Something old, something new

By Marian Trainor Special Writer

The mystique that has fueled "Star Trek" through four successful films and countless television episodes still works its magic in "Star Trek V: The Final Frontier." It is formula film at its best, each new episode different but essentially the same.

And why not? Over the years it has built up a loyal following of Trekkies who are eager to zoom into space aboard the Enterprise and follow the adventures of the crew.

Whether the Enterprise will be retired after this film is up for conjecture. If it is, William Shatner, who besides his keyrole as Kirk in the series also directs this episode, has gone allout to make "Star Trek V" the biggest and grandest of the se-

The concept of boldly going where no man has gone before has been expanded to breaking through the barriers that separate God and man. Along the way the film meanders through desert landscape, enemy spaceships, laser gunfights and an array of subplots.

The film opens on a desert scene showing a lone individual staring out at an endless sea of blowing sand. Out of the swirl-tional scenes where Skybok en-ing storm rides a majestic caped figure. As he approaches, the man grabs a weapon. He will not need to use it. The stranger is no ordinary man. It is Skybok (Laurence Luckinbill) who has only to look into the eyes of would-be attacker to bring him to his knees.

With that, the viewer is switched to a scene in Yosemite National Park where Spock (Leonard Nimoy), and Kirk and McCoy (DeForest Kelly) are on leave. There follows a period of suspense as we watch Kirk climbing the wall of a mountain, his feet slipping, his hands grasping crags that crumble. When Nimoy appears and asks him why, he answers, "Because it's here.

Also on leave are Sulu, Chekov, Uhura and Scott who is working on the Enterprise, which is showing a little wear after so many missions.

The journey involves enemy spaceships, laser fights and emotreats the crew to get past the barriers of personal pain that keep them from knowing God.

Screenwriter David Loughery's special effects are impressive and add to the impact of the film. The thrill of watching the Enterprise zoom through space, the spectacle of the wars between the Enterprise and enemy ships and the suspense of the final breakthrough are exciting.

"Star Trek V" gains from exploiting the humorous interaction of the crew. One of the more memorable scenes is one showing them sitting around a campfire, eating beans and drinking bourbon and trying to teach Spock how to sing the rondo, Row, Row, Row Your Boat."

If you think of "Star Trek V" as a combination of something old and something new, then you'll be pleased to add to the Trekkies' collection of Star Trek memorabilia the first extended conversation in the Klingon language translated in subtitles.

8th Souper Summer Celebration

Take a trip back in time when Edmund T. Ahee Jewelers and the Capuchin Community Center team up at the Roostertail for "Souper Summer Celebration VIII: Time After Time," a benefit fundraiser for the Capuchin Soup Kitchen and Community Center of Detroit.

On Friday, July 21 at 8 p.m., thousands will enjoy free appetizers and cash bar and dance the night away to music from different time periods. Featured performers include the Johnny Trudell Orchestra (big band), The Suspects (pop), Royce (top 40) and more

The event takes place at the Roostertail at the foot of Marquette Drive on the waterfront. There is no cost for admission and the party is open to the public.

In addition, party-goers will have the chance to win more than $23,000 in jewelry to be raffled off at the end of the evening. Ticket donations are $1 each and may be purchased during the party or in advance from Edmund T. Ahee Jewelers in Grosse Pointe Woods or the Capuchin Community Center in Detroit.

Capuchin Community Center serves more than 1,000 hot meals a day and prepares thousands more for the homebound, as well as shelter, recreation, facilities, clothing, counseling and education for Detroit's poor.

Last year more than 2,000 people attended the seventh annual event which raised more than $110,000. This year's goal will be to exceed the $125,000

All prizes, including a $10,000 ladies diamond choker necklace with 119-brilliant cut diamonds weighing more than eight carats, are donated by Edmund T. Ahee Jewelers. All of the ticket proceeds benefit the Capuchin Center, and ticket-holders need not be present to win.

> Director Joe Johnson paces the film to suit the movie's tone. The humor is charming.

Each of the children before and after shrinking have a distinct personality. And both sets of worried parents are amusing, especially in such scenes where we see them suspended in hammocks from a clothes line searching for the kids with magnifying glasses. They are afraid to walk on the grass for fear of stepping

The real stars of "Honey, I Shrunk the Kids," however, are the giant props - the broom and the dustpan, the O-shaped piece of cereal and a small sized toy dinosaur that looms large and terrifying to the children. There are some startling effects but the outsized props are the real startlers. The film effectively conveys the feeling small people, namely children, have in an oversized world and the need for adults to pay attention to the "little" things in life.

Future of young florist shop owner coming up roses

By Dan Jarvis Staff Writer

Not many 22-year-olds own their own business, but Joseph Twardy is not like most people

Sole proprietor of the Scribner-Jean Florist at 1925 Vernier, Twardy has known all along that having his own florist/interior decoration outlet is what he wanted to do.

"It's always been my dream to own my own shop and to be able to do the impossible," Twardy said. "I want to be able to offer quality at a fair market price."

And quality comes natural for Twardy, who began very early in the decorating business. His uncle is owner of Kay Danzer Florist in Detroit, where Twardy began from the ground up, you might say, sweeping floors about 10 years ago.

From there he graduated to arranging flowers and bud vases and eventually swung into filling orders, booking parties and arranging full-blown weddings with all the trimmings.

"I guess it's a shock to most people for someone to be so young and take on the responsibility of ownership," he said. "When I walk into someone's home on a call, they'll say, 'My you're young,' I say just give me five minutes of your time. Like the whisk of a wand, when they see my work and see what I can do, they will give me a chance to prove myself.'

Some examples of his work include draping all of the interior of a large reception tent with various fabrics and flowers for an outdoor wedding reception. Last Christmas he decorated Michigan State Floral Associa-committees and had just over an hour to transform the Hyatt ballroom into a outside garden setting with an orchestra pit bathed in hundreds of flowers and all tables draped with white cloth.

Twardy often consults and installs perennials in gardens.

"I've gotten down on my tion at the Hyatt Regency in hands and knees several times Dearborn. Twardy put together for garden work. We can make home gardens extra-special and Grosse Pointe is an extra-special place. People here know what they want. We can combine people's taste with our knowledge of flowers to create extra-special In the Grosse Pointe area work. You have to do good work or people won't come back.'

It is that philosophy that Twardy follows every day.

Chamber gives scholarship

The Metro East Chamber of Commerce, which serves the business communities of St. Clair Shores, Roseville, Fraser and the Grosse Pointes, will award two $1,000 scholarships from its Children's Trust Fund.

The scholarships are for Macomb Community College. They will be given at a reception sponsored by the State Bank of Fraser, held at the Chamber of Commerce building, 27601 Jefferson, St. Clair Shores, at 4 p.m. on Tuesday, July 18. Scholarship recipients are Tracey L. Cermak, senior from Fraser High School, and Paul J. Heymes, senior from Grosse Pointe South High School.

"Age does not mean a lack of experience or a lack of understanding of what quality is. The talent is within a person at any age, whether you're 20 or 40. Somtimes it takes people that long to decide what they want to

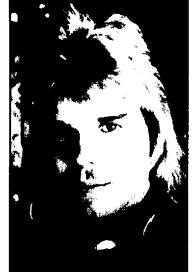

"I didn't wait. I can't wait. I know what I can do and I go for it. I have given up a lot to buy my own store. I have saved my pennies," he said, "And all those pennies add up. I have given up many weekends and worked an exhorbitant amount of hours."

Twardy credits his mother, Theresa Twardy, with offering support when he needed it most.

"She really wanted to see it happen. She knew how hard I worked and wanted to see me reap the rewards myself instead of working for someone else." She now helps him at the store with bookkeeping. "She was the moral support behind all of it. She really got me through some rough times," he said.

The future for Twardy seems to be coming up all roses. He plans to open a couple more shops in the area.

Joseph Twardy

Part of the reason for his success is the fact that he loves what he does and does not plan to stop.

"No matter how busy you are filling orders, you have to stop once in a while to look at a special flower and stand in awe of the magnificance."

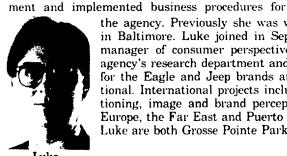

Employee of the year

Joseph Pellerito, former Grosse Pointe resident, was named employee of the year at Rehabilitation Institute. Pellerito, an occupational therapist working with the physically challenged, received the award because of his committment to his patients, the help he provides other staff, and his leadership in bringing about "Celebrity Challenge - wheelchair basketball game pitting wheelchair athletes against local celebrities.

17th annual French Market features

food, fundraising, fun, flea market

By Margie Reins Smith Feature Editor

Le Marche Aux Puces (translation: the flea market) has always been one of the most popular attractions at the French Market.

The French Market is the French Festival of Detroit Inc.'s annual fundraiser.

Grosse Pointers - with their penchant for antiques, previously owned items, garage sale knickknacks and attic treasures love to pore over piles of their neighbors' fantastic throwaways

Dorothy Rieven, chairman of the Flea Market, said her committee has gathered hundreds of donated items, from chandeliers, vases, jewelry, dishes, and household appliances, to clothing, unusual bibelots and objets d'arts.

"We welcome donations of garage sale leftovers," she said. "We will give receipts for tax deductions too."

The Flea Market is only part of the French Market's attraction, however. The 17th annual event will take place at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial Saturday and Sunday, July 15

The French Market is more than les puces, according to Mary McNair, publicity chairman. The two-day event will also feature the First Michigan Colonial Fife and Drum Corps, playing handmade replicas of 18th century instruments and wearing authentic uniforms.

There will also be be an encampment on the grounds of the War Memorial - men dressed as 18th century French soldiers demonstrating 18th century crafts with antique tools.

There will be can-can dancers and balladeers, a Punch and Judy puppet show for children, face painting, a mime, a magician and the Judelaires, a singing group.

Then there's the French food. McNair said visitors should expect crêpes with strawberries and sour cream, a patisserie with cakes, pies and cookies as well as a selection of cheeses, French bread, French cider - even good ol' American hot dogs.

Grosse Pointe's own French cook extraordinaire Charity Suc-

zek will be doing cooking demonstrations.

L'Alliance Française de Grosse Pointe will have a booth selling second-hand French books.

In addition to the flea market, there will be a boutique selling new articles: linens, crystal, and

A guillotine will be available for picture-taking purposes. "It's the 200th anniversary of the guillotine as well as the French Revolution," McNair said. A French physician, Joseph Guillotin, invented the device to make executions more efficient, less agonizing, swifter and cleaner.

French Market raffle winners will take home two round-trip tickets from Detroit to Paris donated by Northwest Airlines, or a watch from Edward Ahee, or a TV set, or a day of beauty at LaModa International Salon in Grosse Pointe Woods, or a basket of wine, and more.

The French Festival is a nonprofit group which raises money to support civic and cultural projects with a French orientation. Its objective is to promote and maintain the French tradition of the region.

Among the French Festival's past projects: a room at Wayne State University furnished in the style of LeCorbusier; a reenactment of the landing of Cadillac in Detroit; plaques commemorating Cadillac's landing; equipment donated to the Grosse Pointe Historical Society for record-keeping purposes; part of a mural at the Detroit Historical Museum that depicts early French life in Detroit. The French Festival is currently working with the Detroit Historical Society to create a large exhibit at the museum showing Detroit's history from early French colonial days to its motor-capital-of-the-world days.

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD

THE PASTEBOARD PASTIME

Thirty five years ago, one of the strongest and also most vociferous pairs in bridge was Tobias Stone and Alvin Roth. Both were brilliant performers whose temperaments, under the strain of intense competition, tended to surge. On occasion, this would happen in a room full of players and sometimes over the simplest mis-understanding. When such an incident occurred, the show that followed was often ignitous.

Let there be no doubt though that these two living legends contributed significantly to bridge. One of those quittances, at the time of its creation was nicknamed "Sputnick' as the negative double was created about the time of Russia's initial space launch. At first it wasn't received with much enthusiasm, but in time its acknowledged value and use, especially among tournament players, became wide spread. Today the negative double ranks in popularity with Howard Schenken's weak two bids, Sam Stayman's favority major suit search and Easley Blackwood's age old Ace asking call.

Until Roth/Stone turned the positive double of an opponent's bid suit from a penalty into a negative call that specifically showed shape the double of a suit bid at low levels was seldom used. This was because the experts in those days rarely took low level suit bids that could cost partnerships significant damage.

Roth/Stone dusted off the penalty double and put it to work in a new role that had frequent use and a better telling powerful story. Two suited responder hands take two bids to describs. The negative double lets the responder do it with Seldom is it used by a responder with less than 6 points and no more than 12, but some partnerships have used it when responder has more.

Unfortunately, like so many bidding systems, it is often abused by the undisciplined user. The inventor's intentions were rather specific. After partner has opened the bidding in a suit and your right hand opponent over-calls in a suit you initiate, the negative double provided your hand meets the following requirements:

- 1. The responder's hand is at least 4-4 in the two unbid
- 2. The responder's hand has a tolerance for his partner's opening bid suit. Jack or Ten Doubleten would be minimal tolerance.
- 3. The responder's hand holds no more than two cards in the opponent's bid suit.
- 4. If either of the following circumstances is present; the responder's hand doesn't have sufficient points to show his two suits over the intervening bid, or he can best describe his shape with the negative double, even though he may have enough points to do so at the two or even the three

South bids one Club. . . West bids one Spade. North's hand fulfills all of the requirements for a negative double. Hopefully, partner's next bid will be Hearts or Diamonds and you may pass with satisfaction, unless his bid is forc-

In the next example you have sufficient points to bid at the two level, but the negative double best describes your shape and gives your partnership more bidding room. North holds:

D. QXX C. KJ10XX S. X H. AK10X South bids one Diamond . . . West bids one spade. Here it would take three bids to describe North's hand, the two unbid suits and support for partner's Diamonds. Miraculously one bid, the negative double does it all. If partner next bids Hearts or Clubs or jumps in Diamonds, you certainly want to be in game and a slam isn't out of the

Here's a classic hand that Henry Siegel and Yours Truly recently played at Joyce Krout's Thursday afternoon game at the Southfield Civic Center. It shows how you convert sputnik into the adverse performer's misfortune.

South's pass of partner's negative double converts it into a penalty double. The slaughter was monumental after North's Diamond Jack opening.

Grosse Pointe News Faces ξ places Kickoff reception for Brighton Hospital's Adolescent Center

Brighton Hospital will open a new Adolescent Center in the fall, a 20-bed addition on its 69acre campus in Brighton especially for the treatment of chemically dependent young people.

A June 27 kick-off hors d'oeuvre reception at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club drew about 70 people for a brief talk about the new center.

The event was co-chaired by Stephanie Germack of Grosse Pointe Farms and J. McGregor

For more information about the Adolescent Center, call 227-1211, ext. 276, weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Susan Pearce, Doug Merkle and Ivan Harner discuss the upcoming dedication of Brighton Hospital's Adolescent Center, one of the few treatment centers for chemically dependent young people in southeastern Michigan. Pearce and Merkle are substance abuse coordinators for the Grosse Pointe Schools and Harner is president of Brighton Hospital.

Dodds of Grosse Pointe Park, who are trustees of Brighton Health Services Corporation, the hospital's parent organization.

According to Ivan C. Harner, Brighton Hospital's president, an estimated 3,000 teenagers in southeastern Michigan have serious problems because of drinking or drug use - and they desperately need inpatient treatment.

There are currently only 34 beds available specifically for chemically dependent adolescents in this part of the state, he said — and all facilities have long waiting lists.

Guests viewed a model of the new 24,000 square foot Adolescent Center, which is under construction. Dedication of the completed project is scheduled for Oct. 8. Patients will be admitted immediately afterward.

"In developing our plans," Harner said, "we recognized that, because there are so few adolescent treatment programs in Michigan, some families would be traveling great distances to participate and would need some type of temporary lodging during their stay." A building that was formerly the home of the hospital's founder is being renovated to provide overnight accommodations and meeting space for family members of patients. Brighton Hospital is the oldest substance abuse treatment center in Michigan and the second oldest in the country. It was recently selected for inclusion in The 100 Best Treatment Centers for Alcoholism and Drug Abuse, published by Avon Books.

About 30 family members and friends attended the dedication and heard presentations by Michael Brennan, M.D., president of the Michigan Cancer Foundation, John Burrows, M.D., Mrs. Crim's personal oncologist and Mort Crim.

Crim introduced his children and said, "When Nicki died, I told Carrie and Al that we each represented one leg of a threelegged stool. The stool - our family - would only remain standing as long as each of us remained standing. If one of us fell, we'd all fall.

'We did remain standing thanks to friends, family and faith."

Burrows, who treated Mrs. Crim, said, "With every case, a physician learns more about what he does - caring for peo-

The Pastor's Corner On Christian marriage

By the Rev. Ronald Corl Redeemer United Methodist Church

When couples come to the church to be married I usually do three things during our counseling sessions together. In the first session I seek to get acquainted with them, to determine their seriousness about wanting a Christian marriage, and to set the date and time for the wedding, as well as set up a series of counseling sessions.

In the second session I have them do an inventory survey that will help them to discover their relationship strengths and the areas they may need to work on. In subsequent sessions we talk about the results of their survey.

The third thing I do with the couple is go over the wedding ceremony itself, discussing with them some of the key phrases in the Christian wedding ceremony. I mention a few:

"In holy matrimony" - Here, I remind the couple that Holy is another way of saying complete, wholesome, including body, mind and spirit. In Holy matrimony, the human and the divine, God and the married couple work together.

In the ritual I use, there is mention of the time when Jesus attended a wedding in Cana of Galilee (see John 2:1-11). At the wedding they ran out of wine, and John reports that Jesus turned six jugs of water into the finest wine, better than the wine that had been served first at the wedding. For me, this is an analogy that when the spirit of Christ, the spirit of love and forgiveness is a part of any marriage, it will make even the best of marriages even better.

During the ceremony I also ask the congregation this question: "Will you, the family and friends of 'John' and 'Mary' support them in their marriage covenant?" If so answer, "we will." The congregation then responds, indicating their love and support. We remind them that the couple being married will also need their love and support.

One of the phrases in the marriage vows that I lift up is the one in which they declare to each other that they will continue to have and hold each other "for better, for worse." It is easy to love someone at his or her best. It is very necessary that we love someone at his or her worst.

If my parents hadn't loved me at my worst, I would have never reached adulthood.

If my wife doesn't love me at my worst, I don't make it as her husband.

If my children don't love me at my worst, I don't make it as their father.

And if the congregation I serve doesn't love me at my worst, I don't make it as their pastor.

That does not give me permission to be my worst. However, in spite of my best intentions, I may from time to time show up at my worst. When I do, I need someone who will love me, even if it means "putting me in my place."

After all, if God had not loved the human race at its worst, there wouldn't be any human race.

May God bless your marriage. If you are preparing for a Christian marriage, be sure to allow the spirit of Christ to be a part of it.

GP Memorial names Peacemakers

The Peacemaking Committee of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, on June 18, named Grosse Pointe Park residents Al and Louise Thomas as Peacemakers of the Year, 1989.

The committee commended the Thomases for their continuing volunteer work with the Eastside Emergency Center on Kercheval in Detroit. The center provides meals, shelter, clothing and assistance to individuals in need.

Al and Louise Thomas are the first recipients of what will become an annual award from the Memorial Church Peacemaking Committee. A new plaque will hang in the church with nominee names engraved on it. A donation was made to Eastside Emergency Center on behalf of Al Thomas, and a similar gift sent to Cottage-Belmont Adult Care at Louise Thomas's request.

gentler view of added years by those over 65 is psychological. Fifty years ago, 65 was old. Since that time, life expectancy has jumped dramatically.

Today, 80 is generally accepted as a more reasonable milestone for the onset of old age. Those who have reached the age of 65 will no longer be expected to slow down unless they choose. They have miles to go before they move over to the slow lane.

Maybe they'll never move to the slow lane. Good health will govern that decision.

As it is, most older people are not seriously ill - only 5 percent of those over 65 are presently being cared for in convalescent hospitals or nursing homes.

Actually many of the problems of old age are not due to aging but to improper care over the course of a lifetime. About 80 percent of the health problems of the elderly are preventable and affluent. have more to do with lifestyle than inevitability.

Another thought: would the need for catastrophic coverage be so urgent if every American had been able to have adequate medical care during all the years of

In the United States, 37 million people lack any form of medical coverage. In Japan every Japanese has a right to medical care. Japan is now the healthiest nation in the world and boasts the world's longest life expectancy. In Japan the average persons sees a doctor three times as often as the average American. Universal access to medicare care must provide a partial explanation for the lower cost of keeping the Japanese healthy. Prevention is cheaper than medical treatments and medical treatment begun early is cheaper than treatment begun late...

It is comforting to know that we are covered for catastrophic illness. There have been too many horror cases where life savings have been wiped out by the cost of caring for a spouse or a parent struck down by catastrophic illness.

It is understandable that people accustomed to subsidizing health care complain when they must pay something for new benefits, but catastrophic care is a blessing worth paying for.

So also would be medical coverage for those who can't afford to buy it for themselves.

In temperatures of 90 degrees and above, older adults are susceptible to heat stress and their problems increase if they suffer from heart disease, hypertension, circulatory problems, diabetes, diarrhea or skin diseases.

Physicians say serious signs of heat stress include dizziness, rapid heartbeat, breathing changes. Preventive measures include reducing physical activity, wearing light loosefitting clothes and drinking plenty of water. Hot foods, heavy meals and salt should be consumed in moderation.

Dehydration results from not drinking or retaining enough water to maintain the body's necessary fluid level. Hot weather is one cause. Mental changes such as sudden confusion, and unusual sleepiness, loose skin, constipation and dry eyes and mouth are symptoms.

To prevent dehydration it is recommended that individuals keep cool and drink eight to ten glasses of water or other fluids including juice, milk, soft drinks not only at mealtime but throughout the day.

When teenagers get into drugs, they aren't the only ones who suffer. Whole families feel the pain. Shouting matches begin. Doors slam. The arguing seems endless. If you're going through times like this with your teenager, it may be hard to imagine ever spending more than a few minutes together without fighting— much less feeling close enough to hug.

But it is possible. Psychiatric Center of Michigan has programs designed especially to help teenagers with drug and alcohol problems. Our specially troined staff will work with you and your child to develop an individualized treatment plan—not only to help solve your teenager's drug problem, but also to help put your family back together again.

If you and your teenager are having trouble, and you suspect the problem is drugs, don't let it the problem is drugs, bon the interview of the first step and call Psychiatric Center Hospital. We'll talk about the problem, possible solutions, and what the next step should be.

For many generations, Euro-

see the world before settling down to family or career, spent a year abroad as an au pair. These young adults, usually girls, lived as members of a foreign family and cared for the family's child-

The tradition provided young women the opportunity to learn about another country, its culture and people, while being included in the family's activities on an equal basis.

In French, au pair literally means on par, or equal.

The au pair looked after the children as if she were an older sister. In return, families provided room and board, transportation and pocket money.

EurAupair has now established a similar program throughout America. The organization's European offices conduct extensive interviews, verify references and scrutinize school transcripts prior to the au pair's arrival. All are proficient in English, have had experience caring for children in their own homes and villages, and are conscientious, personable and educated young adults. Au pairs live with families and provide personal in-home care for children mornings, evenings and weekends. They may also do cooking or cleaning for the children as well as transporting them to school, sports practice, music lessons or doctor's appointments. The au pair can read to and play with children and share her European culture and language as well.

The average cost to the family is about $168 per week - in many cases below the cost of less personal institutional child care or babysitting.

Until recently, it has been forbidden in the United States for foreign young people to participate in such an exchange. Although some families have hosted "illegal" au pairs, most recently a new au pair program has been established and temporarily authorized by the United States Information Agency. This program allows European young people, ages 18-25, to spend a year as an au pair in America and also allows an opportunity for American young people to do the same in Europe.

Those interested in learning more about securing an au pair through this non-profit exchange program should contact the local EurAupair Community Counselor Sharon Cahill at 881-5643 or the EurAupair office at 1-800-

AN OFFER SELLER CAN'T REFUSE

Most people assume that the highest bidder will always get the nod from a home seller, but in many situations that is not the case. The highest bidder does not always win. A smart seller will often accept a lower offer from someone who is certain to qualify for a mortgage rather than worry about a financially shaky buyer who might not even qualify for a loan to consumate the sale.

If the market is one where homes don't stay available for even a short time at the asking price, the buyer might want to make the offer one that will be hard to refuse. For example, sellers are very impressed if you can strike the finance contingency clause from the contract. (This is the clause that releases the buyer from the contract without losing the deposit if he cannot qualify for a mortgage.) However, do not even CON-SIDER scratching the mortgage contingency clause unless you have the cash on hand to complete the transaction.

Children's International Summer Village selects students

Three Grosse Pointe students have been selected by Children's International Summer Villages to participate in the Interchange family exchange program this summer and next.

Molly Thomas and Amy Boal, both of Grosse Pointe Woods, are traveling to Londrina, Brazil, where they'll spend a month with a partner and a family.

Molly is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Thomas and Amy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Janssens. Both girls will be freshmen at Grosse Pointe North this fall.

Heather Smith of Grosse Pointe City is spending a month in Gladsaxe, Denmark. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Smith. She'll be an eighth grader at Pierce Middle

Anyone interested in the CISV Interchange program should call 881-5517. Applications will be available in the fall for 1990-91

ULS names trustees

University Liggett School recently announced the new members of its board of trustees. Named to a three-year term are James A. Bridenstine, Janet Allen Fruehauf and George A. Haggarty, all of Grosse Pointe.

Officers for the board of trustees of ULS for 1989-90 will be: W. Merritt Jones Jr., president; William W. Shelden Jr., vice president; Cynthia N. Ford, secretary; and William T. Mc-Cormick Jr., treasurer. All are Grosse Pointe residents.

NICU reunion

Graduates of St. John Hospital and Medical Center Neonatal Intensive Care Unit gathered recently for the first-ever reunion with their caregivers. Doctors and nurses got a chance to renew acquaintances with their previous patients, who ranged in age from a few months to 18 years.

Meghan Brady, 18, of Grosse Pointe Shores, center, was the oldest former NICU patient at the reunion. With her is Elizabeth Williams, R.N., director of Perinatal Services and Ali Rabbani, M.D. director of the NICU and chief of pedia-

Appreciation reception

More than 200 people gathered on the patio at Macomb Community College Center for the Performing Arts for a Donor and Supporter Appreciation Reception June 28. The event, held for the second year, featured jazz and blues signer Sunny Wilkinson and the Paul Keller Trio. Laurence Teal, executive director of Macomb Center and an accomplished saxaphone player, joined the group.

At the left are school supporters Dick and Sharon Amluxen and Marilyn and Ross Richardson, all of Grosse Pointe Woods. At the right are Farms resident Lee Lindberg. media relations coordinator for the center, and City resident Ben Burns, publisher and editor of the Daily Tribune in Royal Oak and the Macomb Daily.

Grosse Pointe A Unique Community

A Cultural Cornucopia Appreciation of the arts begins at an early age for Grosse Pointe children. The public library, a division of the Grosse Pointe Public School System, offers, at no cost, a variety of children's reading programs at its three locations.

For adults, the library programs range from travel films to informative presentations on subjects of current interest. These, too, are free to residents of all the Grosse Pointes.

Another great source of local culture is the beautiful War Memorial Center, the former mansion of the Russell A. Alger family. With its subsequently added ballroom and theater overlooking Lake St. Clair, the center is a community attraction that rivals the many private clubs in the area. Here-open to all residents-are offered art classes and exhibits, lectures, concerts, plays, ballet and social dancing instruction, and children's theater, as well as membership in a long list of special-interest clubs whose focus is either cultural, informative or just plain fun. A more recent addition to public property is the Edsel and Eleanor Ford House. Designed by architect Albert Kahn and supported by a $15 million endowment, this gracious replica of an English manor house is now open for tours and is used for meetings, fund-raising events and several series of "house" concerts.

It's that time

It's almost time for Pete Rose to say goodbye.

It's been reported that many fans in Cincinatti would like to see Charlie Hustle quit with some dignity before a verdict is even in, while others are waiting anxiously for the man with the most major league hits to be acquitted.

Every piece of evidence the prosecutors have come up with paints an awful picture of Rose However, bear in mind that we have yet to hear from Rose. Sure, we've heard him publicly deny the charges, but his evidence still hangs in the bal-

Either way, I still like what is associated with the words Pete Rose.

I always liked to watch Rose slide head first into a catcher. I also liked when he spiked the ball on the turf after the third out of an inning. And I enjoy watching him manage his ball club. From what I read and hear, Rose is going to wear a black and white pinstripe uniform soon. Right now I think he's guilty, but I'll wait anxiously with the others until all the pages are turned.

More cash?

I've always admired major league athletes. However, something that's overshadowed that is learning that another ball player is receiving cash for signing autographs.

Big league ball players, hockey stars, basketball sensations should sign autographs, gratis.

Players attending baseball card shows or benefits shouldn't receive a cent. I believe they are giving something back to the community and having to receive a few bucks just makes me sick.

I believe in free enterprise, but what I don't believe in is charging a young kid filled with dreams $4 to snare an au tograph. The people who desire the ball player's presence at a fundraiser or other event, can foot the bill for his transportation, even buy him a lunch. But they shouldn't guarantee an amount just to sign a program, ball, piece of paper or T-shirt.

I think the athletes owe it to loyal and supportive fans to sign an autograph. I know autographs have become the latest sports commodity, but I just hope the progression of it doesn't find a ball player pocketing $4 from each fan reaching from the stands of the stadium for an autograph.

Charity game

On July 8 at the Southfield Civic Center, I will be joining other media celebrities (OK, I'm not really a celebrity) in a softball game to benefit Cystic Fibrosis.

Last year the media team was shut out by the TIGER-WIVES, a team consisting of Detroit Tiger wives. Sparky Anderson is usually on hand to umpire, and other notable names like Paul Carey and Lee Norwood show up, too.

It's a day of fun for the whole family and all the proceeds go directly to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. Some of the Tiger wives have their own baseball card. A picture on the front, and vital recipes on the back. Those can be purchased.

Not only can you see some of the Tiger wives in action, but you'll also see many smiles on children who suffer from the No. 1 genetic killer - Cystic Fibrosis.

The ball game, which is being sponsored by Rolaids, begins at 11 a.m. at the Southfield Civic Center. For more information, call 354-6565.

Acquiring a taste for the fresh waters of Lake St. Clair is becoming easier - thanks to the Junior Sailing Program.

Under the direction of the Detroit River Yachting Association (DYRA), more than 100 junior sailors are slowly, but surely, becoming acclimated to the nautical terminology and tactical skills it takes to become a bona fide sailor.

Whether it's sailing solo in a laser sailboat or accompanying a sailors from eight DYRA clubs over the Crescent Sail Yacht ing camaraderie." have to manuever 14 foot sailboats around a course varying in length from one to two miles.

Junior sailors range in age from 10-17.

ON WEDNESDAY, June 28, a fleet of approximately 59 boats entered the first of the weekly regattas off the shores of the Grosse Pointe Club (GPC), vying for individual and team points. After one day of competition under perfectly sunny conditions and medium to heavy winds, the Bayview Yacht Club holds an Club (CSYC); 8.25 to 19, respectively.

The sailing program has been around for more than 30 years and its purpose remains intact: teach the kids to have fun, too.

"It's a great way for a lot of kids to spend the summer," said CSYC instructor Erik Garr. "Many of the kids can go to summer camps and have fun, but we offer a great team-oriented atmosphere. These kids are learning some very valuable skills, but they are also making

In the second half of the fourrace regatta, winds picked up to approximately 25 mph and that's when the friendship and concern for opponents escalated.

"It was very scary for a lot of kids because several boats capsized because of the high winds,' said Sue Davies, chairman at GPC. "Many of the better sailors helped the kids who capsized. Kids want to win, but not if it means not helping one another the week. Instructors and sailors then put their skills on the line once, sometimes twice a week at regattas. The regattas are hosted by the various clubs on a rotating basis during the nine-week stretch.

MOST CLUBS HOLD half-

"This isn't just something most kids do to kill time." said George Uznis, a former junior sailor who will race Nitissima in his 25th Port Huron to Mackinac July 22. "This is something that is taken very seriously by everyone out there. They progressively work toward becoming quality sailors."

Some work on honing their skills alone in a laser boat, while others depend on some assistance from a crew member in the flying juniors. In the juniors, a skipper mans the tactical aspects, while the crew - generally one person - is responsible for the jib, boom and sheeting of the sails.

According to Uznis, coordination is the key to a flawless performance.

"These kids have to learn to coordinate their moves," he said. "Ninety percent of the skipper's responsibility is to make the tactical decisions. and organize his crew so when they come to a mark, the spinnaker gets up in time and the jib gets out of the TEN-YEAR-OLD Shera Teitge, who crews with skipper Bridget Murray from the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club (GPYC), has sailed for three years, but this is her first official season.

"I really enjoy sailing," she said. "It's fun to be on an FJ because I have a lot of responsibility, like telling the skipper when other boats are coming. I pull the jib and make sure the spinnaker is set and that's what I

Murray, 13, and Teitge cruised to a sixth-place finish in Division I. Murray has been skippering for four years and knows that without a crew, life on the waters could be rocky.

"You really can't do anything without a crew," said Murray. The crew is as important as a skipper, if not more important. I'm really proud of the way Shera and I have worked together."

Then you have the laser sailors who prefer piloting their boats alone.

"Every decision you make is your own and you don't have to agree or disagree with anyone but yourself," said Rem Milli-See SAIL, page 2C

Zimmerman heads to Olympic center

Tim Zimmerman, the head hockey coach at Grosse Pointe South, has been invited to the Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs.

Zimmerman, who has coached at South for six years, is one of 11 coaches attending the preliminary camp for Olympic hockey hopefuls. Zimmerman will be instructing 17-year-old hockey players.

"I've always wanted to go there, but I always thought it was for the elite," Zimmerman said. "I don't think that I'm elite, but I sure am glad that I'm going."

The camp runs from July 6-16 and Zimmerman is hoping that he can get something out of the camp also.

"Not only will it give me some great ideas for coaching high school hockey, but it will give Grosse Pointe South's program some national recognition. It should be a lot of work, but also a lot of fun.

gan, who took third place for Bayview. "In the lasers, you're able to run your own race and not your crews. Then again, if you make a mistake, you have nobody to blame but yourself." For GPYC's first-place finisher Jim Murray, there's no better way to race than in a single-sail laser.

"It's simply an exhibaration of being in complete control of the boat," said Murray, who has been in a laser two years now. "I like being in control and making the boat do whatever I want. It responds to me immediately and I don't have to wait for a crew to make a move. I think laser sailing is a great way to achieve some personal things."

FOR THE GROSSE Pointe Club's Joanne Davies, the first regatta was a personal accomplishment. She placed fourth.

"It was my first race in the lasers and I really liked it," said Davies, who skippered an FJ for two years previous. "I just worried about myself. It's a little easier too, because you only have to worry about one sail and not two. Plus, there's less competi-

Only 15 laser boats, and approximately 44 FJs competed.

"To have that many boats in the fleet is absolutely phenomenal," said Dean Balcirak, whose children have all gone through the program. "This is very special. When you see eight DYRA clubs come together once a week, you know that something's being done right."

As far as Sarah Deeds and Natasha Lie are concerned, they did their race right.

"We finished second, but I'd rather finish first," said Deeds, who's been racing for six years. "I would have liked to have beaten Dean (Balcirak Jr.), but I guess I'm satisfied." Balcirak and crew man Byron took the Division I's top spot by one-half

For Levy, the race and sailing for that matter, was mind consuming.

"IT'S A SPORT that keeps you thinking all the time," said the 12-year-old Levy. "At times it's very frustrating, especially when you have to gybe and shoot the sails. But, that's why I'm a crew."

Paul Deeds, who crewed for his sister for two years, is now skippering a boat with crew member Dave Rinke out of Crescent.

"Sailing is just fun for me," said Deeds, who finished second in Division II behind skipper Mike Uznis and Forester of Bayview. "It's great to be on the water, moving fast with the wind and being able to do it without a lot of noise like you get from powerboats.

But wouldn't he have liked to finish first?

"Yeah, probably," said Deeds. "But that's not the only thing about sailing. It's mostly a summer thing for me to do, but I wouldn't do it if I didn't enjoy it as much. Plus, I've met a lot of people through sailing.'

The Junior Sailing Program has produced many fine sailors in its day, and if GPYC instructor Liz Paschke has her way, Lake St. Clair will continue to be one of the hot beds of sailing.

"I think all the instructors will agree that we have a top notch sailing program," said Paschke. "We all love teaching them (the kids) what we know best and that's sailing. I want to bring up some good sailors and keep Lake St. Clair going as a strong sailing port."

All the flying junior sailboats, which compete in the Junior Sailing Program, jockey for posi-

MORC seeking sailors for July 15

The Detroit area Midget Ocean Racing Club (MORC) is seeking participants and sponsors for its upcoming Lake Huron International Regatta, also known as the Sarnia-Alpena Race.

The race, which is scheduled for July 15, will benefit the American and Canadian Diabetes Association. This is the 24th year MORC has sponsored the 160-mile sailboat race from Sarnia, Ontario to Alpena, Mich.

MORC-Station 11 Commodore. Scott Turner, says, "Our longdistance race traditionally takes place on the same weekend as the Chicago to Mackinac Race and highlights the keen competition of smaller yachts from 20 to 36 feet. It's a major offshore event. It's also a significant test for skippers and their crew.'

Sailors compete in two divisions - MORC and PHRF (Performance Handicap Racing Fleet. Last year's fleet was composed of nearly 50 yachts.

Adds Turner of Grosse Pointe, 'We at Station 11 again look forward to our affiliation with the American and Canadian Diabetes Associations. After last year's successful inauguration as a benefit regatta, we hope to contribute more funds to diabetes research and education programs.'

Funds for the associations are crew contributions and corporate sponsorships.

"The success of this event, in terms of raising dollars for diabetes, is dependent on the generous support of our corporate neighbors and participants," said 563-2763.

All corporate contributions are tax deductible.

In addition to corporate sponsors, Turner and MORC-Station 11 are seeking participants. The race fee is $115 (MORC members receive a $50 credit) if paid by July 7. After July 7, the fee is $165. No entries will be accepted after 5 p.m. July 14.

Diabetes is one of the leading causes of death by disease in North America. One out of every 20 Americans has diabetes, a generated through entry fees, chronic metabolic disorder in which the body does not produce or properly use insulin.

Harper sponsors weight loss program

In the United States alone, approximately one in 20 people are morbidly obese.

Aside from the social stigma associated with obesity, statistics show that these individuals are 12 times more likely to die of sudden death than those who are at a normal body weight.

Harper Hospital, together with the Wayne State University School of Medicine, will sponsor an orientation session for individuals who would like to partic-program aimed at reducing the risks for the medically obese.

The scheduled sessions for the summer will be held July 10, July 31, and Aug. 28 from 6 to 7:30 p.m. in the Kresge Auditorium located at Harper Hospital, 3990 John R, Detroit.

The 22-week program is designed for patients who are at least 50 pounds overweight. Participants will be supervised by a team of experts, including endo-ipate in a weight management crinologists, nutritionists and behavioral therapists. A nutritionally balanced supplement, OPTIFAST, will be used during the first 12 weeks of the program to ensure maximum weight loss. During the second phase of the program, participants will gradually return to fixed amounts of regular foods. The final phase involves learning proper weight maintenance.

Finess Losing weight can be psychological

Unfortunately, of necessity, the quest for weight loss has become the great American pastime.

Recent studies have indicated that one fourth of all children and adults in the United States are 20 percent or more above their ideal body weight. Because of the seriousness of this problem, the National Institute of Health recently stated that obesity has adverse effects on health and longevity, and treatment is strongly advised.

Currently, there is an entire genre of weight loss programs promising "quick and easy ways to lose those extra pounds." Too often, however, these programs only result in a modest and temporary weight loss. Despite all the advertising hype, permanent weight loss never comes quick and easy. In regard to the various programs, the old adage of buyer beware certainly applies. Anything worth doing is worth doing right. Thus, the most effective weight loss programs do not simply focus on weight. They provide both group and individualized counseling on nutrition, exercise instruction and effective lifestyle management techniques - long-term weight loss requirements.

Long-term weight maintenance encompasses both physical and psychological efforts. There are some psychological tools to help you achieve your weight management goals:

1) Use your mind in a constructive manner; plot a healthful course of action for yourself and your body will follow. Remind yourself daily, in a caring manner, that you can control your eating hab-

2) Don't simply put the mind on auto-pilot. This path only leads you to the circle of old habit patterns. Where the minds leads, the body will follow. Be aware of this.

3) Awareness, not fearfulness, is the key for sustained weight loss. For example, if you are asked to walk 300 feet on a three-foot wide sidewalk outside your house without going over the edge, you would have no problem doing it. Why? Beacause you know you could easily do it.

So, the body simply follows the course that the mind has carefully plotted. However, if you were asked to walk that three-foot wide sidewalk over a gorge, you probably would take one look and start to feel panicky, weak and dizzy. Many of us would say, "I can't do it." Unfortunately, many of us who need to lose 30 or more pounds view our ability to lose and successfully maintain a large weight loss in the same manner of crossing the gorge: the path is viewed as one fraught with demanding austerities and unpleasantness.

Therefore, we are all too willing to mentally give up before we even make a heartfelt and concentrated effort. It's not the gorge, or in this case the ability to lose weight and maintain that loss that does us in, it's our mind. Don't let your fear of weight control put you in mentally fabricated chains of delusion. You should be aware that you have it in your power to set a new and healthy course in the mind for weight management. When this is done in a sincere, realistic way, the body will follow the mind's lead.

To help you deal with your anxieties, you need to include stress management techniques in your daily routine.

When there is tension in the mind, the body becomes stressed. When the mind is relaxed the body becomes relaxed. Ther are various forms of mental and physical relaxation. One very effective technique that can be used to relax mentally and physically, is to observe the flow of your breath. The fact that the breath is an efficient tool for dealing with stress is well known to us, since at one time or another we have all taken a deep sigh to help release tension.

Concentrating on your breathing can also help to shift your focus of attention away from food. For example, eating food without a real physical hunger is often caused by the mind turning to an old pattern. The thought of food often arises in an attempt to distract us from something else. This response is usually the result of attempts to deal with a stressful situation in a way that is neither constructive nor healthy.

If, instead of eating, you take a moment to relax and breathe smoothly, often the sudden desire for food will pass. Finally, as you learn to relax, you slowly develop more self-confidence. You are not dependent on so many things outside yourself for help such as tranquilizers or fad diets. Rather, you learn to find your strength from within. A calm, optimistic look is the state of mind.

Breathing tips

1) Sit in a straight-back chair with your head, neck and trunk in a straight line. Turn the palms of your hands down, rest them on your legs and gently turn your awareness to your breathing. Observe that your breath flows in a quiet and even manner. When your breathing is shallow, rapid and uneven, there is tension in the mind, which is affecting the body.

When breath is smooth and even, a little slower and a little deeper, the mind and body become more relaxed.

2) Specifically, begin to concentrate on making your breath flow smoothly through the nostrils. As you inhale smoothly and evenly, energy and vitality enter the body; as you exhale, tension leaves in a wave down and out through the toes. When your mind wanders, gently bring your awareness back to the breath, or you will move toward sleep. This exercise, when done with focused attention, will allow you to feel relaxed, calm and alert without feeling sleepy. The key is to remember that when the mind wanders, gently bring your attention to the breath. You only need to practice two or three minutes at a time for it to be effective. It is important to practice when you're in a good mood, as well as when you're feeling stressed; this allows the exercise to be more effective in time of stress.

If you practice these technics regularly, you will begin to control your weight by reducing stress-induced eating. At the same time, you will use your inner resources to develop the necessary focused, calm and optimistic outlook that is so helpful in successfully maintaining your weight

As you learn to trust your resources, you look at life's situations in a more beneficial way. You begin to realize that the gorge, life and food are not the enemies. Rather, it is the lack of awareness which puts the mind on auto-pilot, allowing the daily storm of a thousand different thoughts to scatter us.

It's important to develop an optimistic and positive state of mind. Then you can master dealing with life's stresses and strains. Rely on your inner strength to sustain a balanced path for maintaining a healthy weight.

Diet, disease connection

As emphasis on physical fitness has intensified in the past 20 years, so have medical and dietary studies concerning the role of food in helping maintain optimum health.

While findings fall short of providing absolute answers to this complex debate, guidelines have been set. The following information provides a discussion of some common diseases and the role diet may play in their development.

Osteoporosis

A bone disease characterized by a redcution of bone density, osteoporosis is associated with the loss of calcium.

The bones become brittle, porous and easily fractured. Although it has been known to manifest itself in men, osteopo rosis is most common among the Caucasion post-menopausal woman.

Dietetic Association, "Prevention of osteoporosis begins during the teen years. Bones grow to their maximum strength only if a girls consumes enough calcium." The extent of the disease may not be realized until much later in life. Dairy products - milk, cheeses, yogurt, milk products are the best sources of calcium. content of these sources for calcium (using the low-fat varieties) we can still assure we will be taking in a rich suply of calcium.

It's recommended you buy lowfat plain yogurt, add your own fresh fruits (if desired) and you can prevent taking in added sugars you don't need. Green leafy vegetables such as broccoli and spinach contain modest amounts of this mineral, also,

It has also been found that consistent daily exercise and activity will help the body use calcium more efficiently; keeping the bones strong and firm. While a woman can't undo years of calcium neglect, an effort to rebuild bones at any point can help.

An increase in dietary foods rich in calcium, coupled with a return to exercises (such as walks) is recommended.

Diabetes

Studies from the past few years support theories that fac-According to the American tors such as obesity and diet play a significant role in the onset of diabetes.

> Statistics indicate that the diabetic is more likely to be obese than the non-diabetic. Similarly, there is a greater probability of diabetes occurring in an obese person. Therefore, it is frequently assumed that the two are casually related.

Although the relationship be-By being cautious about the fat tween obesity and diabetes does exist, research indicates that the obese, whose glucose tolerance tests show a tendency toward diabetes, are more likely to develop the disease. But, if the obese persons have a normal glucose tolerance, they are no more likely to develop diabetes than a slender person is.

The consumption of high-fiber foods (whole grains, fresh fruits) seems to lessen the risk of the development for diabetes. Populations which consume a high-fiber diet tend to have only a slight incidence of the disease. But once these societies adopt Western eating habits, the rate of diabetes increases rapidly

In the October 1984 "Nutrition and the M.D." article, "Die tary Fiber and Diabetes," we read, "Evidence continues to mount, establishing the therapeutic benefits of increased fiber for many patients with diabetes. Some researchers documented the effects of fiber on improving blood glucose control, and in many cases, decreasing insulin requirements.'

A fiber-rich diet evenly regulates the absorption of sugars into the blood and can help to reduce the insulin needs in the diabetic.

Diverticulosis

In the early 1900s, diverticulosis disease was virtually unknown. But with the increased consumption of refined sugars and white flours, the disease has become the most common colon disorder in the United States and other industrialized nations.

In Western countries, 5 percent of the population is affected by diverticulosis by the age of 40. That number increases to one person out of three by age 60, and two out of three by age

With all of the latest publicity fiber has received, we may tend to think it is a rather recent phenomena. Actually, fiber has become prominent in the treatment and prevention of this disease since the publication of a medical report by Neil Painter in 1972. Approximately 90 percent of gastroenterologists prescribe a high-fiber diet for irritable bowel syndrome, including diverticulosis.

However, one should always consult a physician before making drastic changes in your eating habits. Good sources of fiber include whole grain cereals and breads, vegetables and fruits (fresh is best). Those with edible skins are great soures of fiber, plus dry beans and peas, nuts and seeds.

Be careful when selecting sources for fiber. In this age of the advertisement "hype," many food companies may be giving you a mixed message, or partial information that makes their product sound perfect. Just remember to choose the products that are closest to their natural state without a lot of additives.

The following recipe is an example of a good source of fiber without the necessary fillers:

Diet Center Bran Muffins

1 cup unprocessed bran 1/2 cup water 1/2 cup powdered skim milk 1 apple, (cored) grated, if skin is not too thick, leave some on the apple, or 3/4 cup blueberries

dash of artifical sweetener

1/2 tsp. nutmeg 1/2 tsp. cinnamon

1/2 tsp. vanilla extract 1/2 tsp. baking powder

Place water, powdered milk, eggs in blender and blend well. Place mixture in a bowl. Add remaining ingredients, beat well (about 40 strokes).

Pour batter into eight to 10 muffin cups that you have sprayed with vegetable spray. Bake in pre-heated oven at 350° for 25-30 minutes. Remove from oven, place on cooling rack. When completely cooled, store in plastic wrap in freezer. Muffins can quickly be microwaved to thaw.

Take a vacation, not a fitness break

Summer is here and it's time lifts are some suggestions. Or, to take the family on vacation, but it's not time to take a break from your fitness program.

Vacations are a good time to involve the whole family in an active way of life. Have each member of the family plan an event in which everyone participates. While workouts may not be the same on vacation, there are numerous opportunities to maintain a fitness routine.

The first place to start your vacation fitness plan is traveling to your destination whether it be by plane, train, car or bus. Take every opportunity to get up and walk. Do some easy stretching exercises in your seat or aisle to prevent your muscles from becoming stiff and sore. Some suggestions include neck rolls, shoulder shrugs and ankle cir-

When traveling by car, stop frequently. The whole family can participate in a mini-workout. Light calisthenics will get the circulation going. Jogging in place, jumping jacks and knee take a brisk walk around a rest stop or a town that you're passing through. Take a few minutes to do some stretching movements before getting on the road

It may be impractical to try to maintain your normal exercise routine on vacation. Jogging in a strange place, the unavailability of a pool or your bicycle, no place to take an exercise class and the lack of time can contribute to an interruption in your schedule.

Here are some suggestions to assist you in planning your vacation program:

Cabins, tents and hotel rooms can be used to set-up a miniworkout circuit. Some exercise suggestions include sit-ups, pushups, side leg raises, bicep curls, heel raises (using a telephone book) and toe raises.

Bring along a cassette player and your favorite aerobic music. You can put on your favorite tape and continue your exercise routine. Or, you might want to take it to the pool and try the routine in the water. Also, many along a pack to carry water and hotels have cable TV and some cable channels offer a variety of fitness classes.

Walking for fitness can be incorporated into busy days and the whole family can participate. It requires only comfortable shoes and clothing. Many places have beautiful trails and some cities have walking trails and others have walking tours through historic districts. Briskly walk from one marker to the next, read about it and briskly walk to the next one.

Cycling individually or as a family is also a possibility. Many vacation places rent bicycles of all types if you are unable to take yours with you. Take this opportunity to go trail riding. Take the family and pack a snack or picnic lunch to enjoy along the way or try riding a tandem bike.

Day hikes are an enjoyable way to see the parks and forests that many states offer. Be sure to have sturdy shoes that you previously have worn and take a snack. Many parks offer a varity of trails of varying difficulty. Start with an easy trail and then try one that is more challenging.

Remember that the environment you encounter on vacation may be very different from home.

Exercising at altitude is very different from sea level, while temperature and humidity may also affect your physical abilities. Start slowly and adjust the pace and length of your workout to fit how you feel. Be sure to take clothing that is appropriate for the area you are visiting. It may be hot and humid at home, but cool and windy in the moun-Be creative on vacation. Try new activities and involve your whole family in an active lifestyle. You'll have more vacation fun that way.

101 PRAYERS

HOLY SPIRIT oly Spirit, you who make me see everything and who shows me the way to reach my ideal. You who give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and you who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with your perpetual glory. Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Pray this prayer three consecutive days without asking your wish, after third day you wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this prayer as soon as you favor has been granted. Thank you for and forever. Oh, Sacred Heart of Jesus, pray for us. Workers of miracles, pray for us. St. Jude RESULTS... CALL THE helper of the hopeless, Say this prayer 9 times a day. By the 8th day your prayer will be answered. has never been known to fail, never. Publication
