Before we begin, one rule must be laid down: Don't call them fishflies.

"They may be commonly called fishflies, but common names mean nothing," said Wayne State biology Professor S.K. Gangwere. "I mean half of all ladybugs are male and none of them are bugs, they're all beetles.'

So call them what they are: mayflies.

And yes, it's not even close to May anymore, but don't fault the insects. They are much more primitive than fishflies, and besides, they don't have much access to calendars. But as sure as there will be a movie sequel opening at the end of June, so will there be mayflies.

ACLU to challenge Woods' cameras By Dan Jarvis Staff Writer

Public surveillance cameras in Ghesquiere Park monitored by Woods police violates constitutional law, according to the American Civil Liberties Union.

Howard Simon, executive director of the ACLU of Michigan, said the state arm of the ACLU is planning a constitutional challenge that will prohibit the use of cameras that surveil the general public. Leonard Grossman, president of the Detroit metropolitan branch of the ACLU, said that once the cameras are operational and the public is being monitored by police, the "search and seizure" claise in the U.S. Constitution is being violated. "When you put a surveillance camera on a public street or park and watch someone, you are surveilling not only those who may be engaged in illegal activity, but the general public

Earlier this year the Detroit branch of the ACLU, a 30-member volunteer committee, voted unanimously to oppose this particular use of cameras by the Woods. The Detroit committee recommended to the state body that a constitutional challenge should be brought to the courts.

Grossman said the ACLU's challenge, if successful, could force the Woods to remove the

Two cameras with zoom lenses will soon be installed northeast of the gazebo and northeast of the tot lot. Each will be connected to individual monitors in the Woods public safety dispatch area, according to Chester Petersen, city administrator-clerk.

Petersen said last week that the system is in place, but due to technical problems with the cameras, they have been returned to the manufacturer. New cameras should arrive soon, he said.

Grossman said the ACLU is not waiting for the cameras to be installed to decide on the grounds of the suit. He said there are three tests used by courts to determine whether surveillance is warranted under the U.S. Constitution:

· First, the method of surveillance must be the least intrusive of all possibilities.

 Second, the method must be cost-effective.

 Finally, the method of surveillance must not infringe on people who are not suspected of illegal activities.

Grossman said the Woods has chosen a very expensive method of surveillance, which, as he said, "may be more expensive that hiring an additional safety officer." He added that this form proved the installation of the of public surveillance infringes citizens who enter the park and appear on monitors.

'It's the whole concept that people have the right to privacy and not to have the government looking in on them. The government has the right to surveil people only when there is reasonable cause. We do not think this is reasonable cause."

Woods city attorney George Catlin said in an earlier interview that he does not see anything wrong with surveillance cameras in Ghesquiere Park.

"Whenever you go into a bank, you are under surveillance," Catlin said. "I don't see an invasion of privacy problem. If people are not breaking the law and appear on camera, it's no problem; the camera just keeps on moving.'

'It's a mass search of everybody who enters the park, Grossman said, "men, women, children, someone on an afternoon walk. Anyone.'

He added that the ACLU of Michigan will most likely find a volunteer attorney to bring the case to court. Also, plaintiffs from the Woods will be sought who have a direct interest in the Catlin said once the cameras are installed and operational, he will recommend signs be posted at each park entrance to inform visitors that they are being watched by the police.

Petersen said that at the attorney's recommendation, the city will install the signs.

Woods lawyer to be sentenced for involuntary manslaughter By John Minnis woman, June Gaedke, 32, died Matthew R. Rumora was not

Assistant Editor

The Grosse Pointe Woods lawyer who was charged with second-degree murder in the death of a Mason woman following a high speed chase in the Farms in December will be sentenced Aug. 10 on the reduced charge of involuntary manslaughter.

Dennis Allen Peppler, 36, pleaded no contest to involuntary manslaughter June 23 after Detroit Recorder's Judge Dominick R. Carnovale reduced the charge June 12.

Assistant Prosecutor Robert Hood said last week that his office has appealed Carnovale's reduction of the charge and is appealing the judge's ruling that Peppler's blood alcohol tests are not permissible as evidence.

The Michigan Court of Appeals probably will not have made a decision by the Aug. 10 sentencing, Hood said. If the court reverses the sentence reduction. Peppler will face trial on second degree murder.

Involuntary manslaughter carries a maximum sentence of 15 years. Life in prison without parole is the maximum sentence for second-degree murder.

Peppler was charged with second degree murder after the car he and the Mason woman were traveling in crashed through a Grosse Pointe Academy fence on Grosse Pointe Boulevard at about 3 a.m. Dec. 8. The car smashed into a tree and the instantly.

Peppler suffered a crushed heel and other injuries and was taken to St. John Hospital.

Police obtained a search warrant and got a blood sample while Peppler was in the hospital. The emergency room staff also took a blood sample that showed Peppler had a blood alcohol level of .20, according to testimony given by the emergency room's physician on duty when Peppler was brought in.

On June 12, Carnovale ruled that the hospital's blood sample cannot be used as evidence in the case, and the judge said the search warrant was not valid because Municipal Court Judge given sufficient information to justify signing the warrant.

The prosecution charges that Peppler was driving the car and fleeing from Farms police at high speeds when the accident occurred. Police and prosecutors believe the second-degree murder charge is adequate because Peppler's actions showed a "wanton and willful disregard that the likelihood of the actions will cause great bodily harm or death.'

Peppler has told the Grosse Pointe News that he was not driving the vehicle at the time and that he was asleep in the car when the incident occurred.

Brownell parents upset over possible loss of counselor time

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

An administrative proposal to reduce inequities in student-tocounselor ratios by having Brownell and Parcells share a counselor met with anger and outrage Monday when some 25 parents of Brownell students appeared at the Grosse Pointe school board meeting.

The proposal to share the counselor was made by Superintendent John Whritner. Each of the three middle schools has two counselors and two administrators. According to Whritner's figures, that means Brownell has a 185.5 to 1 student-to-counselor ratio, Parcells has a 317.5 to 1 ratio and Pierce's is 244.5 to 1. Sharing a counselor, which would give Brownell 1.5 counselors and Parcells 2.5 counselors brings Brownell's ratio to 244 to 1 and Parcells' to 254 to 1.

Whritner said the vast majority of students meet with their counselor about two to three times a year to discuss scheduling of classes. But there are a number of students for whom the counselor is indeed a counselor, helping them deal with prob-

Brownell PTO President Joan Coyle read a statement to the board asking it to override Whritner's proposal not only because it creates inequities between Brownell students and their peers in other middle schools, but because it would mean half the students at Brow- ated with the decision for a year, nell would have only a part-time

The parents also feel that to cut back the number of counselors would be unfair to the special needs students - the educably mentally impaired and emotionally impaired - who require more, perhaps two-and-onehalf times more, counseling time. Last year Brownell had 33 special education students.

Coyle said the PTO questions the timing of the decision to decrease the counseling staff, coming the day after Grosse Pointe ents said they were "shocked" voters approved a millage renewal and a 2.2 mill increase. They felt that by approving the millage requests, the administration would maintain the status

Also, the Brownell Site Budgeting Committee was not informed of the cutback during their budget deliberations, and they believe they could have found some funds if they had been informed earlier.

They are also concerned because the counselors will be spending more time in classrooms implementing a peer relations skills program, which will take them away from counsel-

"We sincerely hope that the Grosse Pointe Public School System administration will make full-time counseling services available to all our middle school students," Coyle told the board.

Whritner said he had deliberbut waited to announce it because until the millage passed, he had no idea what the staffing situation would be. The decision, he said, also keeps the promise the board made to keep the increase in school spending to 8.5 percent. Hiring another counselor would mean cuts in other programs.

The parents didn't believe that. One said he felt like a victim of extortion because he voted for the millage and his children will suffer a cutback. Other parand "outraged" at the decision and questioned the quality of the board and the way Whritner is handling his job.

"Don't penalize Brownell," one parent said. "Fix the situation at Parcells."

"It's not going to be an easy situation," Whritner said. "If I didn't believe in the benefits of counseling, I'd leave it alone, but I do believe in the benefits of counseling and I have a responsibility to all of the citizens and students in the district."

After 45 minutes of discussion, the board asked the Brownell Site Budgeting Committee to look in the budget and see if it could come up with any of the money needed to keep two fulltime counselors at the school. Because it is an administrative decision, the board didn't take any action. However, the board and Whritner will take the matter up after the committee

Farms OKs street repairs

By Dan Jarvis Staff Writer

The Farms City Council approved an aggressive paving program July 10 which includes seven residential streets and the three-way intersection of Williams, Moran and McMillan streets.

City Clerk Richard Solak said the asphalt recapping effort will include:

• Muir, from 200 feet west of Kercheval to Ridge. · Merriweather, from Ridge to Charlevoix. • Ridge, from Merriweather to Fisher.

• Kercheval, from Moross to Provencal.

• All of Colonial Court.

Boulevard to Lakeshore. Solak said the all of the paving locations will include curb repairs and adjustment of manhole catch basin covers to align with new asphalt levels. While it is difficult to nail down a completion date, Solak said all repairs will be done well before the end of the year.

At the meeting, the council accepted the lowest bid of $133,522 from the Ajax Paving Co., which has performed several paving projects for the Farms and surrounding areas.

Solak said the price is based upon a per-unit installation cost estimate and therefore the final cost to the Farms cannot exceed the bid.

"In fact the final price may come in lower than the bid. It depends on the amount of additional work," he said.

Additional work includes conditioning existing pavement for recapping and cutting necessary

Farms pool to be closed

The wading pool for tots at Farms' Pier Park will be closed for repairs from Monday, July 17, through Friday, July 21.

The pool's cement base supports a marcite shell, which is badly cracked and must be replaced, according to Councilman John Crowley.

Repairs will be carried out by Robinson Brothers, contractors from Paddock Pools Inc., at a cost of $8,000.

While the pool is under repair, parents can take their children to the beach area within the park for wading, according to the council.

wedge joints to hold the new surface in place.

The cost of replacing curbs will roughly match the recapping bid and will push the final cost to about $260,000, Solak

Because one of the streets to be paved, Colonial Court, has curbs in direct contact with sidewalks, which are homeowners' responsibility, the Farms will probably set up a special assessment district along the U-shaped

The plan under consideration by the council involves the city splitting the cost of actual sidewalk replacement with residents of Colonial Court.

Solak said while the plan has yet to be finalized, the city will the project will be reviewed.

Councilman John Crowley said the paving effort is part of an ongoing program in the Farms where several streets are paved each year based on need.

Inspections are carried out by the city and a list is kept, with paving carried out based on the amount of allocated funds, Crowley said.

Daniel Healy, chief of public safety in Grosse Pointe Shores, said the greasy little bugs have been the cause of some accidents along Lakeshore, because they are so slip-

And he said they get so bad sometimes that the Shores hauls out its pumper and sprays off the municipal building to get rid of them.

He said new sodium lights installed along the streets, which give off a different type of glow, have reduced the number of flies gathering on the street corners.

Even Pollyanna would have difficulty seeing the good side of this yearly bout with the insects which have also been termed "Canadian Soldiers." But according to Gangwere, the very presence of the ephemeroptera mean Lake St. Clair - the incubator of the larva - is clean, because mayflies cannot stand any pollution.

An informal survey showed people who grew up on the east side have found some uses for the bugs - the favorite one being stepping on them because they pop.

Why? "Well, wouldn't you, if someone stepped on you?" Gangwere said.

But seriously, folks, it's because their skeletons are on the outside of their bodies, and that's why it sounds like you're being followed by a large bowl of Rice Krispies when you walk down the street anytime from late June to mid-July.

But the bugs aren't despised everywhere. The city of New Baltimore in Michigan's Thumb has a festival every year called the Bay a rama Fishfly (they obviously haven't spoken to Prof. Gangwere) Festival.

"We used to have the festival in July, but it always seemed to be when the fishflies were out," said New Baltimore Mayor Tom Ensign. "So we changed it to June."

The logo of the festival is a fishfly on waterskis.

No, they don't have Fishfly King and Queen, or fishfly eating contests, but they do have five days of fun and games, including fireworks and a parade. It's all over for this year, but plans are already being made for next year's mid-June celebration.

When asked if he could think of a use for the insects, Ensign said kids have fun sliding on them, and older kids like making their tires squeal by gunning their engines while on a puddle of the flies.

When you're a little boy, they're also good to scare away girls. Just hold the wings and run after the offending female. Some people also believe mayflies were put on the earth for the same reason daddy longlegs spiders exist - to pull apart. But we wouldn't suggest that.

Healy said, "If you could eat them, it would be great."

Think of it, mayfly quiche, which, of course real entomologists wouldn't eat; then there's french fried fishflies which is probably not feasible, but is fun to say three times fast; and don't forget Cajun blackened mayflies for the yuppie gourmets out there.

But again, that's something we wouldn't

But the best thing about mayflies is that when they start coming out, you know you only have to put up with them for about two weeks — unfortunately they become adults at different intervals, spreading out their attempted coup of the land.

And then you don't have to think about them for another year.

Couple charged with indecent exposure at club

A 29-year-old woman and a 26-year-old man were charged with indecent exposure following an incident at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club July 1.

At 7:40 p.m. Shores police responded to an indecent exposure incident in progress at the yacht club. Once at the club on Lakeshore at the foot of Vernier, officers were told by the club's captain of security that a couple was having sex in a van in the parking lot and that the van's doors were wide open.

The officers walked around to the rear of the van and verified that the security officer's report was accurate, according to police reports.

Officers at the scene said the rear of the van was visible to motorists and pedestrians on northbound Lakeshore and to all boaters and yacht club visitors along the club's south breakwall.

The couple was told to put their clothes on, and the man and woman were taken to the Shores police station. The New Haven woman and the Warren man were cited for indecent exposure and each, posted $50

Lesson of oil leak:The need for vigilance

ne of the major lessons to be learned from the oil leakage that polluted the Milk River in late May is that public officials and private enterprises must be eternally vigilant to protect the environment.

Fortunately, in this case the cooperation of Wayne County, local and Coast Guard officials and Eastland Center's management not only limited the damage, but also led to the discovery of the source of the pollution.

Even so, the management of the Eastland Center is apparently going to have to pay in excess of $100,000 in clean-up costs associated with the pollution caused by the oil leak. The company has made clear its willingness to assume that responsibility.

It is true, however, that officials are also concerned about ways of preventing similar pollution in the future. The problem is that during periods of heavy rain the Detroit sewage treatment plant is overloaded and the Milk River Pump Station lacks the capacity to store the additional runoff. The result is that raw sewage and other pollutants flow into Lake St. Clair.

In this case, the early theory that someone had "dumped" oil or asphalt into the Milk River was disproved by the sleuths of the Coast Guard. By using their own "fingerprinting" procedures, the Coast Guard was able to prove that the oil was from the Eastland Center tanks.

As reported in last week's issue of the Grosse Pointe News, the oil came from a leak in one of the underground fuel tanks maintained at the Eastland Center to provide backup fuel for the gas-operated boil-

When that happened, the oil apparently made its way through a drain into the Milk River Pump Station in Grosse Pointe Woods. While an estimated 1,000 to 2,000 gallons entered the pump station, only about 50 to 100 gallons apparently went over the weir at the station and got into the Milk River channel.

Boaters promptly discovered the oil spreading throughout the harbor and covering boats at the waterline with the sticky emulsion. While they apparently will be eligible to collect the costs of cleaning their boats, the procedure for filing claims for reimbursement has not yet been made public.

While cooperation was excellent among the officials, individuals and management of Eastland Center, Lt. Cmdr. Clay Evans, executive officer of the Marine Safety Office of the Coast Guard in Detroit and a Park resident, was especially helpful to the county authorities and the media in keeping them informed of what was happening in the investigation.

CLASSIFIED

JoAnne Burear, Assistant to Publisher and Classified Manager Anne Mulherin Silva, Assistant Manage

Credit also should go to the Eastland management for quickly assuming the responsibility for the clean-up after it had been notified of the Coast Guard's finding. As James Murray, Wayne County public works director, said, "Eastland is certainly handling this better than Exxon did in the Valdez deal" off the Alaskan coast.

But now that this episode is behind us, we hope officials will proceed with plans to enlarge the pump station's holding capacity, improve screening at the gates of the pumping station to prevent solids from going into the lake and pursue other ways of preventing further pollution of the lake.

All Pointers and other area residents who enjoy boating, swimming, fishing and other activities on Lake St. Clair have a stake in preventing further damage to this great water resource and helping preserve it for future generations.

As we said, eternal vigilance is the price of maintaining a good environment. That requires the cooperation of public officials, private individuals and businesses serving the area.

'n southern Maine last week, the Fourth of July was celebrated as a • George Bush media event with natives and tourists joining in tribute not only to the Declaration of Independence, but also to the nation's 41st president as he spent the holiday weekend at his summer home on Walker's Pointe at Kennebunkport.

The president's face peered out of the local newspapers and TV screens as he swam, golfed, fished, took his mother to church, played tennis and took a 10-minute ride in his boat, Fidelity, to pick up a takeout order of fried clams and lobster chowder. With 150 reporters on hand, it was not surprising that most of his activities were recorded.

BUT VACATIONERS who trooped to Kennebunkport just before the Fourth to shop and gawk at the president's mansion had a better chance of running into him almost anywhere than at home, the Portland Press Herald reported. That, according to old-timers, is the way it always has been with Bush while he's visiting at his summer home. He's nearly always on the go around town.

In short, he's a hyperactive president who appears to enjoy being in motion, whether it's jogging with reporters early in the morning, racing around a tennis court or a golf course, taking the helm of his boat for a quick fishing trip or touring familiar places along the coastline.

Even the New York Times correspondent complained about reporting assignments that began at 5:45 a.m. when Bush got ready for his morning jog and continued all day long with reporters trying to keep up with the president's same "headlong, mix-and-mingle style" that he follows in the White House.

But if the president used his extended holiday weekend to enjoy a bit of recreation and spend time with his family, as so many other Americans did, he also mixed in some presidential politics.

While not as active politically as he was physically, he used the holiday as another opportunity to reiterate his support for a proposed constitutional amendment to han desecration of the flag, and wrapped himself in the flag a second time in his Fourth of July message urging all Americans to "remember the precious legacy of freedom we enjoy.'

He also found time to register approval of the Supreme Court's decision on abortion but advocated a right-to-life constitutional amendment as his answer to the emotional controversy.

Since he also has endorsed former President Reagan's proposed amendments to require a balanced federal budget and a lineitem veto and to permit prayer in the public schools, Bush is winning a reputation as a president who wants the people to help solve his problems via constitutional amendments.

HOWEVER APPRECIATIVE the home folks may be to have the president in summer residence, his frequent trips to Kennebunkport are creating financial problems for the community, according to the York County Coast Star. It is running out of money to pay for police and security measures required to maintain law and order in the face of the waves of tourists and media representatives.

In fact, the Kennebunkport selectmen and police chief even warned that if no federal funding were forthcoming, the town would not provide local police assistance when the president visits his summer home the next time, which is expected to be in August. The town's contingency and police overtime budgets are being rapidly depleted.

But, as is customary even in a Republican administration, the federal government is being asked to come to the rescue. A Maine congressman introduced legislation to reimburse Kennebunkport and state agencies for costs incurred during the presidential visits after saying Maine is "proud" to count Bush among its summer

Not "proud" enough, you will note, for the state of Maine to offer to pick up the tab for the local community's policing and security responsibilities during the presidential visits. Yet perhaps that position simply reflects Yankee frugality.

From Kennebunkport's viewpoint, the biggest additional costs arose from the policing of the free fireworks extravaganza that an anonymous donor presented to Bush and that attracted a crowd estimated at from 25,000 to 40,000 to the town of 4,500 on the eve of the Fourth.

That show disappointed some viewers. however. It started early, used smaller fireworks than expected because of concern for the president's house 150 feet away and ran more rapidly than planned after Mrs. Bush reportedly became concerned at the security arrangements.

(Your correspondent can testify, however, the fireworks were clearly visible at Biddeford Pool, some six miles to the north.)

NOT ALL MAINE residents are Republicans, of course, and Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell of Maine reminded the public of that fact by showing up for a Democratic committee session in the Kennebunkport vicinity during the holiday.

However, a Realtor who is a professed Democrat still admitted beforehand she'd be in the crowd hoping to catch a glimpse of the president and the fireworks on Walker's Point on the Fourth. Even so, she pointed out, presidents are nothing new to

"William Howard Taft used to come up to this area to visit relatives," she said, "and some of the Cincinnati Tafts still vacation around here."

Down East magazine recently reported that President Taft is remembered in nearby Biddeford Pool for getting his feet wet when he came to call on his sister back in 1910. It seems he stepped onto a crowded float - and his weight of nearly 300 pounds caused it to submerge.

So far George Bush has been more surefooted than Taft was but has not yet proved to be a political heavyweight. He's trying to move up to that weight class, however, as his performance among the "Down East" home folks over the Fourth seemed to prove to most people, except, perhaps, the tired reporters.

DSO

To the Editor:

Mr. John Guinn, as a single individual, has done more damage to the success of our Detroit Symphony than anyone else. His consistent negative reviews of the DSO has resulted in low ticket sales and limited appreciation of the fine organization.

I have found very few people who agree with Mr. Guinn's reviews and we often question his comprehension of classical music. Fourteen years at the Free Press is truly remarkable for Mr. Guinn.

Cable credit

To the Editor:

Last week our family received an approximate $32 refund check from Grosse Pointe Cable TV. Several months ago we were surprised to learn that we were being charged for two television sets when we only had

According to the management of Grosse Pointe Cable TV, it had been the policy of the cable company to charge for two television sets whenever a company installer hooked up cable through a VCR even if the residence only had one television set. I was told that the company had performed an internal audit late last year in order to identify and terminate the extra charge to customers who were being billed monthly as a result of an initial hook up through a VCR (approximately $2.50 extra per month). Our residence slipped through the audit process unnoticed.

It seems to me that there may be other current or exsubscribers who might be due a credit or refund for this questionable charge.

Editorials

To the Editor:

It's no big deal, but the placing or non-placing of quotation marks can sometimes alter the meaning of a letter or an article. Thus "The American Heritage Dictionary of the English Language" says the following of their use: "When lengthy quoted materials extended beyond one paragraph, each additional paragraph begins with quotation marks, but the marks that close the quotation appear only once. For that reason your failure to put quotation marks at the beginning and end of paragraph three of my letter of July 6 gives the impression that Mr. Conley and not your editorialist Nancy Parmenter is speaking. Mr. Conley heartily agrees with those sentiments, but Ms. Parmenter deserves the credit and the praise.

As to your rather grandiose pronunciamento following my letter that "The Grosse Pointe News does not deem it necessary to sign editorials since they are all written by editorial writer Bill Elston and that readers who agree or disagree with an editorial are always referred to Bill," put it this way: Imagine that someone moves to Grosse Pointe next month and picks up a copy of your paper. That reader hasn't read your disclaimer of July 6 that Mr. Elston is the author of all editorials and almost certainly assumes that this is just an-

At least I looked the part

I went golfing for the first time last weekend - for the 10th year in a row.

A yearly tradition of mine has been a trip to the golf course. I'm not an avid golfer, but since I bought a beginner's set of clubs some 10 years ago, I've felt obliged to use them at least once a year to justify buying them in the first place.

Last weekend I made the annual pilgrimage to the links. My brother took me to a small ninehole "cow pasture" course near Smith's Creek. It was a nice course, especially since there were few people there for me to embarrass myself in front of.

Since I've golfed all of about 10 times and each time was a year apart, I just tell everyone at the course it's my first time golfing and I take advantage of the allowances for beginners.

For example, if off the drive I barely dribble the ball to the lady's tee, my brother would let me take another try without penalizing me a stroke. Or if my ball went into the water, I was able to drop a ball on the far side of the pond, thus keeping the number of drowned balls to a

I seldom rent a cart, because most of my balls go where no man has gone before. If they made four-wheel-drive carts, I'd be all right, but until then I'll continue to drag my clubs through swamps, thickets and miniature rainforests where there are mosquitoes that have never tasted human blood but become man-eaters after a sip of

Golf is a frustrating game. It's harder than it looks. Watching the pros on television gives a novice golfer a false idea of what to expect. Before I golfed the very first time 10 years ago, I imagined I'd just smack the ball out there a couple hundred yards, make a long chip onto the green and two-putt in for an

Imagine my surprise when things didn't go quite as I ex-

My first problem was merely hitting the ball. One would think a ball perched high atop a tee would be an easy target for a large wooden club. But I swung once, twice, three times before I finally got a piece of the ball, and then it was a small, top piece and the ball dribbled out about 100 feet.

A couple of times I got a good piece of the ball, but even then it seemed to instinctively seek out the middle of the fairway that someone else is playing. My most embarrassing shot of the day was when I put the ball on the green right off the drive. Sounds like a good shot, right? The only problem is that the green was for the hole we just got finished playing. I still haven't figured out how a ball can not only go to the right but also backward off a drive.

After half a dozen strokes I would finally get on the green. I thought the hard part was over once on the green. Foolish me. I'd putt at the hole, missing it by a couple of inches and the ball would stop at the far side of the green at the fringe. Back and forth across the circular green I'd go before the ball would finally come to a rest within a sink it. Putting has to be the most frustrating part of golf, at least for me, and I'm diametrically opposed to it.

The best part of my game, however, was my clothing. I had on navy-blue golf shorts and a golf shirt that I bought as a spectator at the Pepsi Senior Challenge at the Horseshoe Bend golf course in Atlanta. My socks were color coordinated with my shorts and shirt. Even my brother was impressed by my outfit, if not so by my game.

All in all, even though my golf game wasn't up to par, I at least looked a good game.

I did improve my game, though. At an Atlanta course last year I hit 90. This year got my score down to 72. Not bad for nine holes, eh?

I don't know if I'll venture out on the links again this year, but next year if you see someone in foot of the hole and I could then a snappy outfit golfing the wrong way up your fairway, make allowances for me, because I'll once again be a first-time golfer - my 11th first time in so many years.

Waste dispósal

To the Editor: The Michigan medical profession recently expressed deep concern and grave reservations about the present policy for the disposal of lowlevel radioactive waste that would make Michigan, which is in the center of the Great Lakes, a host state for the disposal of wastes of six other states of the midwest. In a resolution which was passed at the annual meeting of their House of Delegates in Dearborn, May 5-7, they asked the Michigan delegation to the American Medical Association (AMA) to request that the AMA call for an evaluation of the present national policy for lowlevel radioactive waste disposal and to seek development of a coordinated national policy for its dis-

The resolution also noted these facts: 1) That the disposal of low level radioactive waste significantly impacts public health and environmental safety; 2) That the Michigan State Medical Society (MSMS) must seek protection of Michigan's natural resources, particularly its fresh water aquifier; and 3) That MSMS should recommend appointment of a physician with expertise in radiological health to the Low Level Radioactive Waste Authority Review Board. Documentation used to support this resolution pointed out that the National Academy of Science has warned that placing these wastes in a humid climate or over any water table or aquifier can cause in their words, "a serious fouling of man's environment.'

The documentation also noted that there is a third less volume of waste to be disposed of nationwide than there was in 1989 when three sites were accepting all the wastes as they are now. Instead of the more than 15 sites now being planned nationwide, only two or three are needed. These sites should be chosen after careful environmental assessment, which includes consideration of humid climate and protection of major aquifiers. This can only be done by Congress.

You can follow up these concerns of our medical doctors with letters to your congressman, senators and Governor Blanchard and help save the fresh water aquifier and groundwater of this state and other humid regions of the country from the environment disaster that the present policy will cause.

For more information on this nuclear waste disposal issue, write Don't Waste Michigan, 227 Custer, Lansing, Mich. 48912.

Death penalty

To the Editor:

On Monday, June 26, the United States Supreme Court announced that it had decided, by a 5-4 vote, that the imposition of the death penalty upon 16 and 17-year olds does not violate the Eighth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution's ban on "cruel and unusual punishment.

As the chief executive officer of an institution which cares for over 600 children and their families, I wish to register my deep dismay at this decision. Based on my experience with troubled teenagers, some of whom have been previously involved in very serious criminal activities, I firmly believe that every single youth has the potential of turning his or her life around and becoming a responsible, contributing member of society. To condemn a teenager to death is to profess that for that person, there is no hope for redemption.

In all the world, only a handful of countries allow the execution of minors. In the United States, the majority of states do not allow it. This country has come to use 18 as the age of adulthood, as the time to gain the right to vote, the duty to serve on a jury and for readiness to assume the full responsibilities of citizenship. People who are 16 and 17 years old do not generally have the experience, wisdom and maturity to grasp the full meaning and consequences of their actions. A vouth who becomes involved in a serious crime is often a deeply troubled, frightened and confused person. Of course, society needs to be protected from criminals of all ages, but the protection of society does not necessitate the state-sanctioned killing of teenage criminals. It is my fervent prayer that the people of the United States, public officials at all levels and all of our judges up to and including the U.S. Supreme Court will carefully re-think this issue in light of the moral and ethical traditions of this country. I am confident that such a rethinking process will inevitably result in the reversal of the court's truly unfortunate decision.

Brother Francis Boylan, csc Executive Director Boysville of Michigan

Millage election

To the Editor:

I had followed with great interest your coverage of the recent millage election in Grosse Pointe. I noted with particular interest the content of letters, editorials and other reports provided emotional rather than factual information to the community. There was no apparent attempt by the the board or any other members of the educational community to provide detailed financial information on the budget which would include both revenues and expenditures.

Lo and behold! Your June 29 issue features an article on the $45 million budget and reports on the new "wonderful" site budget planning process. In addition, your readers are given a budget summary which notes a 20.3 percent increase in revenues for 1989 from the tax increase as well as the SEV increase. Since none of these details were shared with us prior to the election, it's not surprising that the school officials are saying "wonderful." I also thought the quote that there could be anxiety from "working with too much money.

was revealing. Fortunately, the article recovered by acknowledging that salaries accounted for most of the money and that, indeed, frugality was the watchword.

Most of us in the area are great supporters of education not only in our own community but with our colleges and universities ... so "support is not the issue. There are major questions concerning the quality of our educational system in Washington, Lansing and Grosse Pointe which are not well served by emotional rhetoric. What is needed is factual information so that the community can make intelligent decisions which may or may not serve the interests of a vested bureaucracy.

But, officer . . .

All she wanted to do is document a duck's devotion. Just the

Grosse Pointe Farms photographer Betty Carpenter was awakened by a phone call at 7:30 a.m. Friday, July 7. The caller gave her the facts about the tragedy. Told her to bring her camera. A photo opportunity was unfolding.

A pair of Mallard ducks was strolling along Lakeshore near Kerby Road. They ventured too close to traffic. The female was struck by a car. Killed.

Dead.

Those were the facts.

The male mallard was standing vigil over her body. He refused to leave. Betty was up and ready to get the photo. She drove to the scene. Parked her car.

Did what she had to do. Paul Wehmeier of Grosse Pointe Farms was also documenting the facts with his camera.

One hitch, ma'am. When Carpenter returned to her car, a Farms police officer was writing up a ticket.

The facts? The car was illeally parked. The ticket costs $25. "I wasn't obstructing traffic,"

Carpenter said. Said she often takes photos at odd times. Parks in strange places. Always calls Farms or Shores police first. Tells them who she is. What she's going to do. Where she'll park.

They've been cooperative, even helpful, Carpenter said. Not this time.

The names have not been changed to protect the innocent. Dum da dum dum.

He, his wife Linda and 2-yearold son Jason went to the park last June.

Frania and Jason were on the air July 4 — and got a chance to wish Mom a happy thirtysomethingth birthday.

INTRODUCING GENTLE CHIROPRACTIC!

Hi, I'm Dr. Mary Quarnstrom. Perhaps gentleness in chiropractic is a new concept to you; it was to me before I began the six years of college training necessary for my doctorate degree. During those six years I learned the precise locations where light pressure can bring chiropractic relief to pain.

In addition to my doctorate, I am certified in both Impairment Rating and Ergonomics (man's relationship to his work). I have completed courses in advanced Orthopedics and Neurology. Even now I attended nationwide seminars to stay current on the advances in this rapidly changing field a weekend each

If you have hesitated visiting a chiropractor, perhaps you didn't know about this gentle or "soft touch" technique. It has been effective treating:

Back Pain Neck Pain Numbness

Arthritis Bursitis

Headaches

Shoulder Pain Arm/Leg Pain Hip Pain

Painful Joints Stiffness Cold Hands/Feet

And, because most insurance companies recognize and cover Chiropractic care, your treatment may be at little or no cost to you according to the limits of your insurance policy.

First Church of Christ, Scientist has unique and democratic history

Staff Writer

This is the 17th in an occasional series about the churches of Grosse Pointe.

The idea of establishing a Grosse Pointe branch of the Christian Science Church was first considered around 1920.

The idea of expanding into the Grosse Pointe community was delayed, however, because the mother church in Boston was in the process of enlarging the Second Church of Christ, Scientist, in Detroit.

The idea was once again deferred in 1928 with the establishment of the Sixth Church in Detroit, according to a church history compiled by several members.

By 1953, population in the Grosse Pointes had grown to more than 50,000. Plans for the establishment of a recognized branch of the church in the community had become important, not so much for the convenience of Christian Scientists in the Grosse Pointes, but for the presence of the church in a community which had representation of every major religious group in the United States.

On June 22, 1953, following some preliminary correspondence with the mother church, a group of 32 people met in the Grosse Pointe Farms home of Alice and Ethel Tucker, both whom were educators in the Grosse Pointe schools, said Mary Stamman, secretary for the church's board of directors.

Ethel Tucker was principal at Mason School, while her sister Alice taught at Trombly School, Stamman said. The group in the Tucker home voted to begin informal church services as soon as possible.

The group informed the mother church's department of branches and practitioners, who granted approval of informal services so that the establishment a Grosse Pointe branch could be considered.

Soon after, arrangements were made with the Grosse Pointe Board of Education for the use of Kerby School since it was centrally located.

some local members are not, Stamman said.

Because the church is a democratic organization, individuals are not emphasised and often are not in favor of speaking on behalf of the membership, she said.

Within 30 days of filing the application, the local branch received a telegram from the mother church stating that the Christian Science Society of Grosse Pointe Farms had been officially recognized.

With the establishment of the reading room on the second floor of 93 Kercheval approximately two years later, the branch's name was changed to the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich.

In October 1958 the reading room was moved to 19613 Mack Ave. and four years later church services were moved to the Fries Auditorium in the Grosse Pointe War Memorial at 32 Lakeshore.

To establish a permanent location, a building committee was established in 1954 and a study of vacant lots in the area was

Science Day

For students between 5 and 11. Living Science Day Camps will be offered this summer at the War Memorial.

Developed by the Living Science Foundation, a non-profit educational organization, each one week "hands-on" session is filled with a healthy mix of indoor and outdoor activities that combine fun with learning through active participation.

The first camp, Science Sampler, meets Monday - Friday, July 17 - 21 from 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. Each day will highlight one area of science discovery. On science and nature day, students will have personal encounters with parrots, snakes, frogs and a variety of Living Science Foundation animals.

On physics day, there will be an opportunity to explore simple machines and electricity. Dinosaur day will find students touching real dinosaur bones, making their own plaster casts or fossils and reconstructing giant models.

Air and space day offers a chance to experiment with the basic principles of flight and view the stars in the Living Science planetarium. On marine biology day, students will taste the salty ocean water, hold a living sea star and pet a four-foot shark.

Science Sampler day camp $185 per student. Advance registration recommended. Groups of eight to 10 students will be formed by age. Students will work with fully qualified, professionally trained science interpreters. Older students (ages 12 -16) are encouraged to serve as volunteer assistance.

Following Science Sampler, there will be Air and Space Camp, Monday - Friday, July 24 - 28, 9 3 p.m.;; Science and Nature Cap, Monday - Friday, July6 31 - August 4, 9 - 3 p.m. and Sea Camp, August 7 - 11, 9 -3 p.m. Registration is $185 per student per camp. Campers should bring a sack lunch. Beverages and snacks provided.

Park's elm preservation in 10th year

This year - 1989 - marks the 10th year of Grosse Pointe Park's elm preservation efforts. The basics of the program inspection, prophylactic and therapeutic sanitation, fertilizing. watering and fungicide injection - remain the same. The program began and continues as a volunteer effort of the Park's Beautification Commission.

The program took a major step in credibility in 1986 when the Grosse Pointe Park City Council hired Dr. Gerald Lanier as a consultant at the urging of the Beautification Commission. His program is based on the same principles, but also addresses root graft transmission and cooperation among neighboring communities. Losses ran as high as 307 in 1982 and 234 in 1985, the year prior to Lanier's arrival. Park losses to Dutch elm disease in 1988 numbered 83 with projected losses in 1989 to be approximately 60, evenly divided between public and private trees. The Park still boasts of about 2,400 elm trees.

Readers who are interested in elm preservation can call Al Mazur of the Park Beautification Commission at 881-0193. In addition to discussing the total program, Mazur has VHS videos about fungicide injection provided by Merck Chemical Co.

New chief of staff plans to set example at hospital

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

Dr. George M. Kazzi says he's going to have fun for the next two years.

As the new chief of staff at Harper-Grace Hospitals in Detroit, the Grosse Pointe Shores resident says people have asked him how, but Kazzi said it's the job itself that's fun.

He took over on June 1, after being elected by the more than 1,400 physicians associated with the medical center. His term runs for two years.

In the position, he is responsible for almost everything the doctors do. He also acts as a liaison between the physicians and their patients, and the board of trustees. He will also sit on various other committees and

He will retain his position as chief of the obstetrics and gynecology department at Harper-Grace, even though the post as chief of staff means he will be doing a lot of administrative work.

"I always remember that I am here because I am a physician, and I am still a physician," he said. "I don't think I can do a good job if I concentrate on just the administrative work.

Harper-Grace is the only hospital in the area - and Kazzi says possibly the country where the chief of staff is an elected position. Most are appointed by the board, he said.

The system of electing keeps the chief of staff in touch with the needs of the doctors and the needs of the patients when dealing with bottom-line issues, like money, he said.

"I would like to put the physicians back in the driver's seat, so they can give the best quality care to the patients," he said.

That was one of the items he stressed in his campaign.

"The changes in health care immense at present," he said. "As physicians we still have the power to keep pace with the changes."

Kazzi wants to see hospitals become more patient-oriented, and less business-oriented and he plans to set an example with Harper-Grace.

"It can be a win-win situation for patients, physicians and the hospital," he said. "There's no doubt in my mind that something like that can be done."

He plans to build on the hospital's relationship with the Wayne State University Medical School and by doing that, keep quality doctors working in the hospital which in turn assures the best care for the patients.

He intends to keep channels of physician referrals open between Harper-Grace and suburban hospitals. He wants to keep the doctors that are at the hospital now and to woo those who have left back to the hospital, again, all to keep local residents in touch with the best care.

"I'd like Harper-Grace to continue to be the leader in southeast Michigan, both in service to patients and physicians," he

New county handbook available

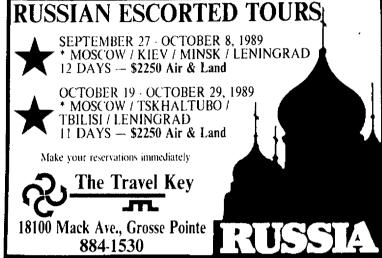

An 84-page handbook, "Wayne County Government," has been rewritten and edited by members of the League of Women Voters.

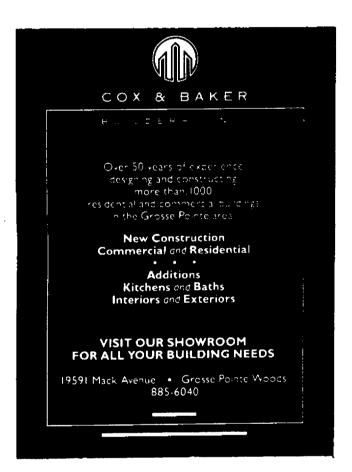

Its purpose is to inform citizens on all the aspects of county government. There are 15,000 copies available, at no cost, to schools, libraries, colleges, government offices and the general public. For information, call County Commissioner David Cavanagh at 224-0920.

The handbook is an 84-page booklet of 10 chapters, illustrated with photos and graphs, describing the history of Wayne County, its departments, intergovernmental relationships and elections. Of special interest is the story of the restored historic Wayne County Building in downtown Detroit, site of the majority of county offices.

Curbside recycling pilot program begins

Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Pointe Citizens for Recycling's pilot curbside recycling program officially began July 10 with a press conference on the front lawn of the Grosse Pointe Woods City Hall.

The project was made possible by a $10,000 grant given to Citizens for Recycling by the Garden Club of Michigan Fund of the Community Foundation for Southeastern Michigan.

The Recycling Education and Curbside Test (REACT) project runs through the beginning of September and includes 600 houses - 100 in each of the five Pointes and Harper Woods chosen randomly by Market Opinion Research. Each of the houses was informed it was chosen and was given a red bin, which is made of partially recycled plastic, to fill with recyclables and put on the curb on garbage day.

The recyclables will be picked up by Waste Management of North America which sorts and stores the items before shipping them off to a company that can use them. Any money made from the sale of the recyclables - which include plastics, metal, glass and newspapers — goes back into Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling budget.

"The response from the entire community has been extremely positive," said Sheila Osann, REACT project manager. The only people who have declined to participate are those who will be take a survey before and after Al Decker, in his Michigan Wolverines outfit, meets pen pal Drew Harris for the first time. Everyone enjoyed the flowers and the name tags the students brought.

Dear Pen Pal . . .

Hi. How are you? I'm fine.

It was nice to finally meet you on June 5th during that picnic at Betty Scherer's house. After four months of writing, it was nice to put a face with the name at the bottom of the letters.

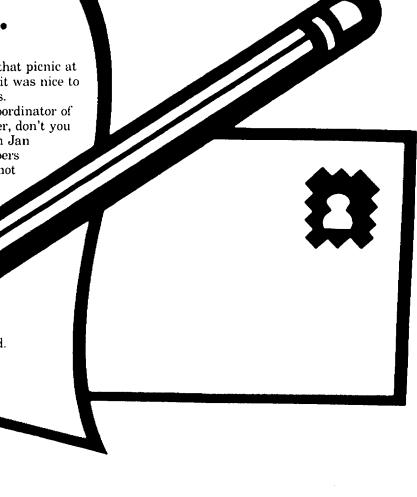

It was an interesting project that Marge Nixon, coordinator of volunteers for the Grosse Pointe schools, put together, don't you think? Teaming a group of third-grade students from Jan Thompson's class at Kerby School with senior members of the Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church was not only fun, but it was educational, too.

Not only did the students learn that senior citizens can live exciting, vital lives (and can be Pistons fans, too), but they also learned how to communicate with adults, and how to write letters and address them too.

It was an exciting way to learn language arts. Now that we have each others' address, let's keep writing this summer, OK?

Enjoy the pictures and write back soon!

Your friend.

Here we all are singing. That's Jan Thompson, the teacher in the back. We're singing "School Days" now. Remember that?

One of the interesting things about the pen pals is that some of the boys (there are 19 in the class, and only 7 girls) wrote to women and some girls were paired with men. Patti Merritt got a flower from new friend Allan Gillies.

After graduating from the University of Minnesota, Noecker labored in both New York and Chicago for an accounting firm until, as he described it, "World War II raised its ugly head."

A turning point for Noecker, the war presented an opportu-

At the war's end, he and a partner formed a company by purchasing surplus blankets from the military at $1 each and selling them at a high markup to moving companies during the postwar housing boom.

This venture was just the first in a long line of successful efforts which continue to flourish today.

At the heart of his long list of holdings is the Kaufmann Corp., which began producing aluminum windows in 1937. He bought the company in 1952 after several years of employment.

Achieving steady growth ever since, he began purchasing other companies and later formed several new ones that answered the needs of several industries.

Manufacturing a spectrum of aluminum products including awnings, doors, commercial wall panels and passenger waiting stations, Noecker's firms also produce automotive manufacturing components, oil wells, plastics and defense electronics.

One product, the Sonobuoy, is an underwater submarine detection unit that was instrumental during the Cuban missile crisis that shook the nation in the early '60s.

Hundreds of Sonobuoys were dropped in the waters surrounding Cuba to warn the United States of the possible presence of Soviet submarines. Noecker said during the Faulkland Islands conflict, both England and Argentina were dropping them around the islands. This and other inventions by Noecker and his inventive staff propelled his holdings past a profit margin of $42 million last year. At the close of this year, he expects his 20 companies, collectively titled the Noecker Group, to top the $50 million mark. His knack for doing business recently caught the attention of colleagues who successfully nominated him for 1989 Small Business Person of the Year, an annual award presented by the U.S. Small Business Administrawinner of the award, Noecker is one of several million small business owners in the United States. He was recently honored at the White House by President Bush during a formal recognition ceremony during which Noecker was presented with an American flag that was flown over the Capitol Building in his honor.

The nomination was kept secret from Noecker by his wife Sandra, who supplied information to the selection committee, via representatives from the National Bank of Detroit, who nominated him.

Tough guidelines for the candidates required the following:

· A substantial history of an established business.

• Growth in the number of employees.

• An increase in sales which shows continued growth.

• Innovation of products or services offered.

• The ability to form solutions as a response to adversity.

• Evidence of contribution to aid community-oriented projects.

Noecker qualified for the last item with the 1978 formation of the Northeast Manufacturers' Association, a group of more than 200 member companies in Noecker said he formed the group to keep the neighborhood from deteriorating from high unemployment.

The area is bordered on the south by McNichols; eight Mile on the north; Ryan on the west; and Van Dyke on the east.

In the award announcement, Michigan SBA director Raymond L. Harshman said, "Under Marshall Noecker's leadership, this company has made outstanding progress for nearly 40 years. Mr.

Noecker has taken a small proprietership and turned it into a very successful provider of jobs for Michigan. When Marshall Noecker bought the company (Kaufmann Corp.) in 1952, it employed 15 people and generated annual sales of less than $1 million. Today sales are $42 million and employment is nearly Noecker is not shy about mentioning the award, his many antiques or his family.

When his first wife, Harriet, died of cancer in 1961, Noecker raised four children until Sandra and he were married five years

"Sandra has been a tremendous help," Noecker said. "She has helped me both professionally and personally, in numerous ways.

Her two sons, Rick and Greg Spangler, and his first four were later joined by the couple's own children, Nicholas and Alexandra. Of the eight, Noecker said all have taken the initiative to make their own gardens grow.

The two youngest are studying business, Greg heads up architectural sales for the Noecker Group and Rick is co-founder and co-leader of Detroit's liveliest big band, the Sun Messen-

Another son, Bill, oversees westside operations for Noecker, two daughters, Ann and Nancy, work for major airline companies and his oldest son, Marshall, is president of a chain of television stations received a call of an auto theft in progress. Responding police saw two men tampering with the car in the alley in the 18400 block of Mack, according to police reports. The Fiero's driver's side window and the steering column were broken.

When the men saw the officers, one man jumped into a 1978 Grand Prix and drove off. The other man tried to jump in the window of the Grand Prix while it was moving, but he fell and his co-conspirator drove over his arms and hands and left him behind, police said. The second man then got up and escaped on Police chased the man in the Grand Prix down the Mack alley to Fisher, then northbound on Mack to Canyon and west on Canyon into Detroit. The suspect didn't stop or slow down for stop signs and lights, police said.

When the fleeing man got to the end of Canyon at the I-94 service drive (northbound Harper), he crashed through the cyclone fence and went airborne and landed on the shoulder and right lane of eastbound I-94 during rush-hour traffic.

While the Grand Prix was still moving, the man bailed out and ran across the eastbound and

A split horizon line in Monte Nagler's photograph of Yosemite's Lake Tenaya doesn't disrupt the composition. In fact, the rocks and sand bar serve a lead-in to the mountains.

Break the rules for drama

Feeling a little mischievous? Want to break a few rules? With some thinking and planning, you can do just that in your photog-

Listed below are some hints and ideas that will allow you to break what are usually steadfast photographic rules.

• Split your horizons. A horizon line directly down the middle of your picture can add interest and doesn't necessarily split the photo into two competing halves. Reflections particularly lend themselves to a split horizon line. Try it.

• You don't always need a main subject. Abstracts and patterns can produce dramatic results. Pictures we don't instantly recognize can be stimulating and thought-provoking.

• Violate the "rule of thirds." Placing your subject in a corner of the viewfinder or even smack in the center rather than in the "thirds" can often add an unusual perspective to your shot.

• Use color filters with color film. What? An orange filter

Abbott, Hazlett receive research awards

Dr. Philip Abbott of Grosse Pointe Woods and Dr. Linda Hazlett of Grosse Pointe have been selected by a Wayne State University faculty committee as recipients of Charles Gershenson Distinguished Faculty Fellowship awards.

Both will receive $6,000 a year for up to two years to continue current research. The Gershenson Awards are named for Charles Gershenson who formerly served on the WSU Board of Governors.

Abbott, a political science professor in the College of Liberal Arts, is a specialist in the field of political theory. Since coming to Wayne State in 1970, he has authored six books on topics ranging from the conception of the family in political thought to a study of how American presidents justify and legitimize their actions.

The Gershenson Award will help Abbott complete work on a

Mackinac island guidebook available

Nearly one million people visit Mackinaw Island annually and ride in a horse-drawn carriage or buy some fudge. But Mackinac Island is much more than horses and fudge, according to a new guidebook, "Mackinac Connection: An Insider's Guide," written by long-time summer resident Amy McVeigh.

The 176-page book gives an insider's perspective of the Michigan vacation destination. In addition to comprehensive information on the island's 23 hotels and inns, 48 restaurants, and 89 "Mackinac Connection" provides detailed maps for bike riders, shoppers, and hikers.

The book is available for $8.95 from Border's Book Shops (Southfield, Novi and Ann Arbor) and Michigania stores (Birmingham, East Lansing and Lansing) and from stores in the Mackinac area. It can be ordered from the publisher for $10.81 (includes shipping and sales tax) by sending a check or money order to Mackinac Publishing, P.O. Box 215, Mackinac Island, Mich.

book about the development of leftist thought as reflected in the work of V.F. Calverton and contributors to his Modern Quarterly, an independent journal published during the 1920s and

In addition to his writing and teaching, Abbott has also served as assistant and associate dean of the College of Liberal Arts and is currently a member of the University Council and the Student Affairs Committee.

Abbott has a bachelor's degree from American University, and a master's and Ph.D. from Rutgers University.

The Gershenson grant to Hazlett will aid her study of the alteration with age of resistance to bacterial eye infections, a major cause of blindness worldwide. The research is being done in Hazlett's laboratory at the WSU School of Medicine, where she is a professor of anatomy and cell biology.

In addition to the work on eye infections, Hazlett is also principle investigator for the medical school's Core Vision Research Grant and training coordinator for the Visual Sciences Training Grant.

Hazlett joined the medical school faculty in 1971 after completing her doctorate in anatomy at Ohio State University. She earned her bachelor's degree at St. Mary's (Indiana) College, and a master's in anatomy from the Medical College of Georgia. In 1988, Hazlett was a nominee for the Alcon Laboratory Award given in recognition of outstanding research on ocular problems.

Treasurer's job filled in-house in the Park

A nine-year veteran with the city of Grosse Pointe Park has been promoted to city treasurer to fill one of two vacancies left by the resignation of former City Clerk-Treasurer Pamela J. Kondziolka June 16.

Jane Blahut, 28, who most recently served as the Park's deputy clerk-treasurer, was unanimously appointed to the treasurer's position by the City Council June 20 after City Manager Dale Krajniak recommended Blahut's appointment.

She started with the city as a building department clerk-cashier and has held several positions since.

To fill the clerk's position, Krajniak was named temporary clerk until a candidate can be interviewed, selected and hired by the council. Krajniak said the position should be filled before the November elections.

Woods woman's purse snatched

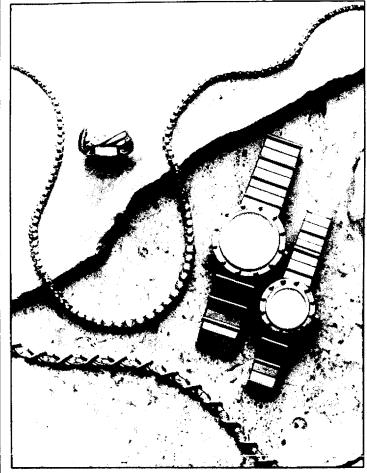

A 69-year-old Grosse Pointe Woods woman's purse was snatched July 8 after the thief slugged her.

The woman and her husband had just returned to their home in the 500 block of Hampton at 11:15 p.m. when the incident occurred. The woman had just started to put her key in a side door of her home when someone hit her in the back with his fist and grabbed her purse off her shoulder.

The thief then ran to the street and got into a waiting car and took off. The woman's husband was able to get a description of the car but couldn't get a good look at the perpetrators. The purse contained $40 in traveler's checks, credit cards and about $20 in cash.

normal that you would not know you were driving something unusual except for the note on the steering wheel hub. Driving the Justy EVCT is a little different, but it is not weird. In fact, it is quite pleasant. When you first step on the throttle, there is a slight jolt as the magnetic clutch engages, then the engine accelerates to a weird as did the NSU Prinz of the '60s, the maker for which

Felix Wankel developed the engine. And the two four-wheel-steering entries on the market,

from Honda and Mazda, feel so without shifting gears. If this sounds like a '50s-era Buick Dynaflow, it is not really. While the Buick's engine revved and buzzed as the Dynaflow tried to keep up with demands with its torque converter, the Justy engine holds a steady speed while the car gains speed through the actions of its pulleys and belts smoothly changing ra-Driving with the shift lever in "D" can lead to sluggish acceleration unless you drive at all times with a lead foot. However, there is a "Ds" setting which keeps the variable transmission in lower ratios and gives the Justy a much peppier demeanor.

The Justy EVCT also feels differently when you let up on the accelerator and slow down. Again, engine speed stays steady for a surprising time until the magnetic clutch disengages and engine suddenly drops. Odd at first, but predictable and not upsetting.

If your first impression upon test-driving a Justy EVCT is similar to mine, give it another chance. I was not overly impressed at first, but after I got used to its idiosyncrasies which are consistent and predictable - I became quite fond of the car.

It is kind of fun to drive a little car full-out all the time and have it run so smoothly, despite the fact that its engine is not much bigger (1.2 liters) than the one that powers your wristwatch. (Come to think of it, that's twice as big as the first D.A.F.) And it's cheap, with base price a shade under $7,800. You can't buy very many new cars with automatic transmissions at that price.

Ride and handling are of a level unheard of on such small cars in earlier times and those cables and belts give the Justy fuel economy well up into the 30s, even in city driving. Ford and Fiat have introduced CVT cars in Europe, but the Subaru Justy ECVT is still the only one available in the United States. So if you like novel technology, try a Justy ECVT, you may like it. But if all you want is a cheap small car to get you around smoothly while burning a minimal amount of fuel, try a Justy ECVT, you may like it.

Each week in this column, we will focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a woodworking project, a book review.

The following was written by Geoffrey Young, son of William and Helen Young of Grosse Pointe Park. He just completed the third grade at Trombly School.

The Magic Pencil Brothers

One day I was at school in the morning. I sat next to Paul when suddenly Paul and I heard a noise. Paul and I looked at each other. The teacher called on us and told us to be quiet because we were supposed to be working on something. We went on with that something which was a summary of a story we read. We kept hearing that noise, but we ignored it. Some people kept saying, "Shhh," be we ignored that, too.

At lunch we sat together and all we did was talk about that noise we kept hearing. Both of Math was after that, but suddenly as we were working on our assignment, two little pencils popped out of our boxes. Paul and I both ducked our heads as if we were looking for something Our eyes started slowly to open in our desk. The pencils had wide and then we looked at each eyes, little ears, a mouth and a other with a grin and started to cute little nose. Paul's pencil scream and hug. at what we saw. We whispered to them, "Please be quiet. We will take you home after school.' They listened to what we said. After school we took them home and asked them tons of questions. During the weekend, we had a huge amount of fun, but we kept it a big secret.

On Monday we left them at home so they would be safe. That day we quickly rode home and went to get the pencil brothers. But when we opened their little house, they were gone. We looked everywhere but could not find them. We were very unhappy the whole week but we kept the house where it was to remember them. Paul and I both looked there everyday of the week.

On Saturday we didn't bother to look. All we did was sit there in my room. But all of a sudden they popped down on our knees.

A car for learning

The recent donation of a 1988 Buick Reatta from General Motors to the Industrial Technology program of the Grosse Pointe Public Schools has moved North and South high schools into auto technology of the future. Through the assistance of former Grosse Pointer, Bill Szkodzinski, the advanced system Reatta, which carries an on-board diagnostic computer system, will become part of the schools' test bench for teaching sophisticated problem solving. "We are trying to include diagnosis and solution in our programs, and this will help us reach those objectives," said Dean Balcirak, chairman of the Industrial Technology Department for the schools. The Reatta is an experimental car made by General Motors at its Lansing plant and donated to education as part of its scrap pilot vehicles program. The car will be shared between North and South, but will not be driven on public streets.

Examining the new technology of the 1989 Buick Reatta is auto technology teacher Frank Sumbera, South students Ed Safadi and Chris Rowan, with Industrial Technology Department Chairman Dean Balcirak.

And very entertaining.

That's a strange combination, to be sure. But this is no run-ofthe-mill police comedy action pic-

In the interest of fair play, I should mention right off the top that I never saw the first "Lethal Weapon" film, so I'm in no position to evaluate how this movie rates as a sequel. Taken on its own merits though, this is surely a top-notch summertime thriller, despite its violence.

Danny Glover and Mel Gibson are the cops. One is nearing retirement, a little behind the program, and not into the risk-taking as a method of police work. That's Glover.

The other is still in his prime, always looking to take a chance, and always ready for the roughand-tumble method of getting the job done. That's Gibson.

Their stylistic differences are interesting enough to grab viewer interest immediately. It's easy to see why these characters chemistry is that good. And of course, when they intercept a trunk full of South African gold coins, things can only get better.

Things do get better. And more violent. The South African ambassador to the United States is also a criminal mastermind, and has all sorts of devious things planned - things that will turn Los Angeles upside down. Unless, that is, Glover and Gibson can stop him.

The plot is of little importance though. What actually makes "Lethal Weapon 2" work is the relationship between the two main characters, and the film's sense of humor.

Case in point is a scene in which Glover discovers a bomb planted underneath his toilet. But he makes the discovery too late; he's caught with his pants down, literally. And it's up to Gibson not only to help rescue spills often and freely. Nobody here, including the two cops, has much moral difficulty with shooting first and asking questions later. Or not asking questions at all.

That, to me, is repulsive. So is earn this picture an "R" rating quicker than anything else.

Still, the action is non-stop, Be warned though, the blood the humor is extremely funny, and the performances of Glover and Gibson are tremendous. If your stomach can handle the violence and your ears can handle the language, the rest of you will have one heck of a good time.

Too many genres 'Great Balls of Fire':

By Michael Chapp Special Writer

As a film, "Great Balls of Fire" is much like the man on theme? whose life it is based: offbeat, unpredictable and, it would seem, lacking any kind of master plan or direction.

"Fire" takes up the life - or at least part of the life - of Jerry Lee Lewis, the wild rocker of the 1950s who did for the piano what Elvis Presley did for the guitar. Lewis is one man among many who helped shape and define rock 'n' roll. That his mold of rock was irreverent and even shocking for the day helped him find his niche. Of course, marrying his 13year-old cousin didn't exactly guarantee his lifelong anonymity, either. Indeed, it is the spirit of that marriage - and its effect on Lewis' career - that "Fire' tries in earnest to capture.

If the film had stayed on that track, and if it had done so in one particular style, it would have been infinitely more appealing. As is, the picture takes more wrong turns than an intoxicated cab driver.

Is this a comedy? Can't be, because of all the heavy drama we're subjected to in the second half. Is this a drama? What about all the loose humor? Is it a musical? Then why aren't there more dance numbers? Is it some kind of morality play? Then where is the development of that

"Fire" tries its hand at all of those styles, and in doing so it dips into one too many genres for its own good. Viewers don't know whether they should laugh, sing along or be appalled.

After some brief formalities, the picture introduces us to a full-grown Lewis (Dennis Quaid). Within a few more minutes, he has scored his first hit record.

> CLOSED MONDAY

Soon he fancies himself the next mensional country bumpkin; too King of Rock 'n' Roll.

He's not the only one. The record company executives he works for want to market the done. of their newest star as quickly aside, there is little to recomand as fully as possible.

His records climb the charts and his career takes off. Then he weds the baby girl, and his career takes an instant nosedive. Sexual innuendo is one thing, the world tells Lewis. Marrying a 13-year-old cousin is quite another. It is that conflict which provides Quaid with his best opportunities in the picture. With what little material he has to work, he fleshes out a three-diegocentric and dense for his own good, and unable to understand the consequences of what he's mend about "Great Balls of Fire." There is a theme picked up every so often - and then wrapped up in the film's conclusion — about a battle of right vs. wrong going on in Lewis' mind. In that battle was the nucleus of a great story.

Maybe someday, someone will explore that theme. Until then, it seems safe to say most viewers can learn everything they want to know about Jerry Lee Lewis by listening to his music.

'Lawrence of Arabia' at the Fox

Stunning masterwork displayed on enormous screen

By Marian Trainor Special Writer

Shown on an enormous canvas provided by 70mm cameras and a 30-foot screen in the newly restored Fox theatre, David Lean's "Lawrence of Arabia," Hollywoods's greatest epic, sparkles like a precious jewel in a gorgeous setting. It is a stunning film and well worthy of this royal treatment.

Shot by cinematographer Freddie Young, Lean's masterwork unveils some of the most ravishing movie images ever shown. You'll be mesmerized by the scope of it's pristine splendor.

Never has the desert been presented in such breathtaking scenes. As it stretches across the giant canvas, the full impact of it's grandeur is felt as dune after dune unfurls in an enormous expanse of beige sand stopping only at the horizon where it meets the blue of the sky.

All of the bloodshed, all of the who were World War I enemies glory rest on his shoulders in the savagery he finds in his own contradictory soul.

The film abounds in imagery. "The desert," Lawrence says, "is an ocean in which no oar is dipped." That simile of Saharan is translated into screen poetry through the seaside effect of light shining over the parched expanse.

When Lawrence treads on the surf of Aqaba, the mirage of victory is realized. The sand is now water, and this miracle man he has invented out of sheer determiniation, can walk on both.

In the shifting sands we see the shifting strenghs and weaknesses of a culture and the shifting strengths and weaknesses of the cultures they tried to subjugate. We see what's wrong and right in the English longing to challenge fate and the Arab code of accepting it.

There are scenes that stand out. For instance, one where we see T.E. In real life, Lawrence was an enigmatic person whom many knew but didn't know well. The same recalcitrant personality is retained in the film. He throws out questions and answers in cryptic short phrases. A reporter his British uniform for the robe who tracks him down asks him and burnoose of the Arab war- why he is fascinated with the

Retired executives who know the score help ailing businesses

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

It's a simple equation of supply and demand - small business or new business owners who need guidance and retired executives who have a wealth of information on running successful businesses teaming up for the benefit of both.

The Service Corps of Retired Executives, known as SCORE, began in the early 1960s when the federal Small Business Administration started using retired volunteers to supplement its management assistance programs. The response was so good and the possibilities so varied that in 1964 the SBA launched a pilot program.

One year later there were 34 SCORE chapters across the country that helped more than 12,000 people that year alone.

Detroit's chapter, located in the McNamara Building in downtown Detroit, is tucked away in offices it shares with the Small Business Administration. but there are satellite offices throughout the state and the tricounty area. It is run by an executive board, of which Rudy Sell is the treasurer.

"What we do here at SCORE is counsel," he said, "We do not consult; there is a fine line between the two.

For example, if someone wants to open a card shop or a restautell this person that the best rant - the two most common thing would be to close up shop, requests - or wants to know why their business is failing. Sell or one of the other counse- retired executive volunteers, Sell

Business

Those needs can be increasing sales, personnel matters, recordkeeping and accounting, creating a business plan or maybe franchising a business or dissolving a partnership, Sell said. It even helps direct people to different agencies if they can't give the kind of help needed. SCORE also makes people aware of laws and regulations which must be adhered to when opening certain businesses. You might want to sell the cakes you make in your kitchen, but when you start selling them, you must adhere to health and safety regu-

Then the applicant is matched up with a counselor who has the expertise needed. Personnel matters are referred to former personnel officers, cash flow problems are referred to former financial officers, and so on. All counseling is done free.

SCORE also offers seminars and workshops for the new businessperson. There is a small fee for the seminars to cover material costs.

How does SCORE work?

"It's hard to determine a success ratio, because sometimes our success may be to not get this person into business, or we Sell said.

SCORE is always looking for

At one time Sell thought they couldn't use a retired librarian, but they have one now who keeps the corps' library up to date, and he thought a retired teacher couldn't be put to use, but now one heads the training

All volunteers must adhere to the SCORE code of ethics which says that a counselor will not counsel two businesses which are in competition, and will not counsel a business in which there might be a conflict of interest. All volunteers are trained to ask the right questions and to provide the answers which become the means to the solution.

Sell, who has volunteered his time for SCORE for six years, said the corps is looking for retired women executives, because at least 50 percent of the applicants are women.

When Raymond Hollerbach of Grosse Pointe Farms retired in 1980, he said he was a little bored and looked around for something to do. He read about SCORE and has volunteered his time to the organization.

He has worked with older companies and with new companies, and said he enjoys using his skills.

"One of the advantages SCORE offers is that there are so many different areas that we have volunteers in," he said. 'Marketing, personnel, finance, you name it.'

One company he was assigned to had a great product, he said, but didn't know how to present it to the public. He turned that over to a marketing specialist and now the company is success-

The day after Grosse Pointe Woods resident Ward Beard retired as director of education and research for FTD, he went to the SCORE office downtown. He had worked indirectly with the agency and was impressed with "The bulk of our work is to counsel people who have had a thought about going into busihe said, stressing the word thought. "Many who come in have absolutely no idea what it takes to start a business, so we guide them to one of our workshops.

Rudy Sell, who retired as benefits secretary from Michigan Bell, now puts his executive experience to work for small businesses as a volunteer for SCORE (Service Corps of Retired Executives).

Many people never return and realize they may not have what it takes to open a business. Other people may have gotten what they need and taken off on their own to put the tips into ac-

Because Beard's experience is in the florist business, he was the counselor for three people who wanted to open florist shops. All three are operating successfully now. Because his expertise is in marketing, he has also helped entrepreneurs market their product.

"There are no big deals here, it's all small, but it is a way for people to find out what needs to be done," Beard concluded.

"I think it's a very helpful tool," Hollerbach said, because most of the companies he has counseled are so small, they can't afford the services of a professional business counseling

Sell echoes Hollerbach's sentiments.

"It's a pleasure working here." he said. "It keeps me abreast of what's going on in business. It's not just busy work, I'm actually helping someone."

Tony Schipani: Grosse Pointe News connection spans 35 years

Tony Schipani knows the Grosse Pointe News like the back of his hand. Even though he's only been on the payroll since May, he has been involved in its production for the past 35 years.

As a journeyman printer, Schipani has worked at the shops with which the Grosse Pointe News has been associated over the years.

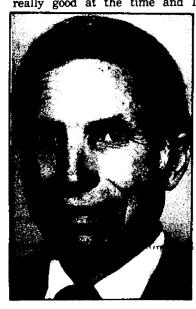

"Every week I touched part of it," he said, whether it was putting together grocery ads, laying down the strips of classified ads or making up news pages.

Born and raised in Lumberport, W.Va., Schipani came to Detroit after his graduation in 1951 to get a job. He landed a factory job where he worked about 20 days before he was laid

He said he was about ready to return to West Virginia when he got a job at Business News Publishing Co. The shop on Fort Street published the weekly, Air Conditioning and Refrigeration News, as well as books.

He began in the bindery. The company then sent him to what was called a union school, where he learned how to set type by hand and other jobs associated with printing. He served a sixyear apprenticeship - going to school and working - before he earned his journeyman's card.

"I fell into it," he said. "It was really good at the time and I

Lake St. Clair at the end of May was at elevation 574.20 feet above the mean water level at Father Point, Quebec, or 30 inches above chart datum. This was about 4 inches below what it was a year ago, but 4 inches above one month ago.

The May monthly mean level of 573.99 feet was about 2 inches above the long-term average for May. The lake, however, remained about 27 inches below the all-time high May monthly mean level, which was recorded

The forecast shows that at the end of June, the level of Lake St. Clair will be about 1 inch above what it was at the end of May. The lake is expected to complete its seasonal rise in June. The water level in November is expected to be about 3 inches above the long-term average for that month.

After a couple of years, Schipani went to Abbe Press, where the Grosse Pointe News was printed. The company was later bought by Post Printing, and then the Post went out of busi-

Liposuction will vacuum away bulges, bags, bumps

But . . . how safe, how common is it?

By Margie Reins Smith

Feature Editor Caroline is a bookkeeper. She's 40 years old. She's 5 feet 4 inches tall. About 130 pounds. Married. The mother of a teenager. A resident of Grosse Pointe Woods.

She described her dissatisfaction with one of women's most common figure faults the accumulation of excess fat on the outer thighs and hips.

"I always had those awful saddlebags. That's that knee-to-hip fat. Even when I was 118 pounds I still had them.

'Some people go into this with too high expectations.

> Caroline Liposuction patient

"I went to Vic Tanny. I did aerobics. I biked. I did floor exercises. They were still there. When I wore form-fitting pants the fat still hung out . . . and went blerp blerp.'

Three years ago, Caroline (she preferred a pseudonym for this article) had surgery on her saddlebags. She's pleased with the results of an increasingly popular form of cosmetic surgery known as liposuction.

"Now I look nice in a bathing suit. My legs are more appropriate for my body and age. I'm not perfect, but I'm comfortable in a bathing suit now.'

Grosse Pointe Shores resident Dr. W. Peter McCabe, chief of plastic surgery at St. John Hospital and Medical Center, said he does five or six suction-assisted lipectomies a month. "It's the most common plastic surgery procedure in the nation," he said. For McCabe, lipectomy is the third or fourth most frequently performed procedure.

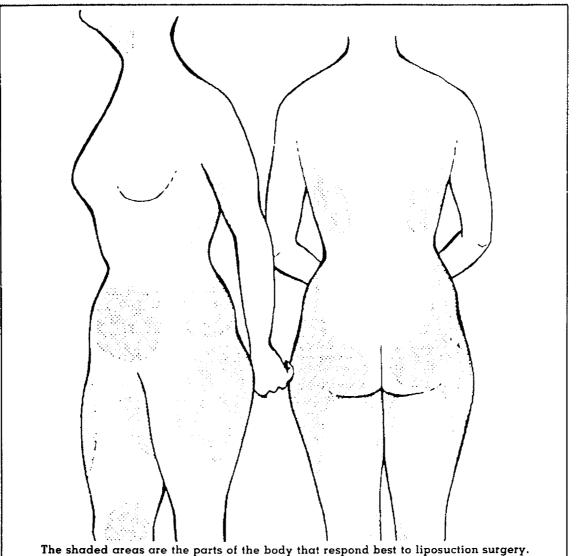

"The most common for me is the nose job," he said, "then the eyelid lift and the face-lift.'

Dr. Rouchdi M. Rifai of the Straith Clinic, an outpatient surgery facility in Southfield that specializes in cosmetic procedures, said he does 250 to 300 lipectomies a year and that 95 percent of his patients are women.

A typical patient, he said, is 25-35 years old, female, of normal weight. "This is not recommended for overweight people.

The typical patient has tried to get rid of bulges by diet and exercise, but can't.

Rifai said the outer thighs, or saddlebags, respond best to the procedure, but lipectomies are also performed to reduce the size of stomachs, knees, buttocks, upper arms, chins, waists and inner thighs.

Rifai described the surgery, an outpatient procedure performed with a local anesthetic and sedation which he said carries little risk of infection or complications.

"Before the surgery, I make marks, like a target. The center is the highest point. The patient sees and agrees with the marks. The patient lies down on the table. The area is sterilized and covered. The patient receives a general anesthetic or sedation.

"I freeze the area with a local injection. I make a small cut in a body crease, about 1 inch under the skin and insert a cannula, a metal tube with an opening connected to a vacuum. I move it in a fan-like motion. It breaks down fat and sucks it into a vacuum. I stitch up.'

The patient wears a tight girdle for about three weeks after the surgery and Rifai said the pain is minimal. "It's about like a bad fall. Most patients go back to work in three or four days."

Caroline said she would call the postsurgical experience discomfort, not pain. "I had two incisions with scars like a faint fingerprint. The first three days I had two drains coming out of these incisions and I wore a Velcro girdle to keep the swelling

"You need help for about three days. You can't go to the bathroom by yourself. When you sit down it feels like a garter or a pin. Your skin is tight and drawn. I had it done in March and I was wearing a bathing suit in May," she said. "I'd do it again."

Rifai said the surgery is permanent and doesn't need to be repeated - even if the patient gains weight. Scarring, he said, is minimal.

Risks are minor and rare, he said, "I tell my patients the risks. There could be fluid accumulation or a blood clot under the skin. There may be a need for more surgery because it can't be done all at once. Skin is often loose and I sometimes recommend removal of some skin, a thigh lift or buttock lift following the (liposuction) surgery.'

McCabe said the risks are similar to those

'It's a way to approach the mistakes of nature.

Dr. W. Peter McCabe Chief of Plastic Surgery St. John Hospital

for any surgical procedure with an anesthetic. There's a small risk of nerve damage, bleeding and dimpling of the skin.

Major complications from lipectomies are well below 1 percent, he said. "Minor complications, which can be fixed, are between 1 and 3 percent."

"The biggest danger," McCabe said, "is poor patient selection. Success depends on the ability of the skin to contract. The patient needs elastic skin.'

"Some people go into this with too high expectations," said Caroline, who said she has also had comsetic surgery on her nose and chin. "Liposuction is no miracle. There's no loss of dress or pant sizes.

There's no weight loss. "But now when I wear pants, they hang straight down. I look nice in a bathing suit. I'm a modest person and I don't want people looking at me. Now I'm not so conspicuous."

McCabe said liposuction is a way to approach the mistakes of nature. "It's not a way to lose weight. It's a mechanism to fashion the body into a more symmetrical

"It improves psychological functioning, not physical functioning.

"I would advise anyone interested in the procedure to investigate the credentials of the doctor thoroughly. This is an extremely successful and safe procedure in properly trained hands.

Foreign travel just hours away for Grosse Pointers

Travel to a foreign land has a mysterious and excitement that is absent when traveling in your own country. Even when your destination is many miles away. With a completely different terrain and attractions different from home base, home still doesn't have the same pizzazz as does a foreign land.

For those who dislike plane travel, it is good to know that it is possible to visit another country by car and spend as little time there as one day. We in metropolitan Detroit have that opportunity.

It is true that Canada is not generally thought of as a foreign land. There is no language barrier, except in the province of Quebec where French is spoken. Basically Americans and Canadians share the same life style.

Fashions are not much different. We go there to buy wool. They come here to buy cotton. Tastes in food are similar. Americans cross the border to buy cheese and Canadian bacon; Canadians find staples are cheaper here. We observe the same religions, enjoy common cultural in- mistake to assume that because terests and work in similar job we have so much in common markets. The only time we are there is not much new to see and reminded that we are entering do in Canada. another country is when we go through customs at the border.

This oneness is reinforced in the Detroit area each year with the Freedom Festival. Shot from three river barges, the showy 40-

Seniors should beware of multiple Medicare policies

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of many instances reported where Michigan has sent a letter from the Acting Commissioner of Insurance for the State Insurance Bureau to 175,000 senior citizen subscribers, urging them to buy only one Medicare supplemental policy.

"Buying multiple policies is a waste of money and it does not increase coverage," Commissioner Dhiraj N. Shah told sen-

He also warned against agents who urge seniors to replace an existing Medigap policy. Many new policies don't cover pre-existing conditions for six months or more. This means seniors would have to pay co-pays and deductibles for medical services for pre-existing conditions during the period.

The commissioner also provided seniors with the name, address and phone number for the Bureau's Senior Ombudsman, who helps seniors with questions on Medigap coverage or other insurance matters: Wayne Tanner, Senior Ombudsman, Michigan Insurance Bureau, P.O. Box 30220, Lansing, Mich. 48909. Phone: (517) 373-

The Commissioner had requested that blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan mail the letter to the corporation's senior subscribers. The letter was accompanied by one from BCBSM President and CEO Richard E. Whitmer that seconded the concerns about additional Medigap insurance.

"This mailing reaches seniors at a most opportune time," Whitmer said. "There have been less hectic world as they sit in one of the parks that line the riverfront or wander through the small shops in the area. About a half-hour drive along Highway 18 out of Windsor, is Amherstberg. Stretching along the river, the town is an interesting blend of the old and new. Houses that have been there for years sit serenely on streets, shaded by century-old trees. In contrast, on the edge of the town, new apartment buildings rise into the sky. Small shops thrive in the town's center. Just blocks away, a modern shopping mall offers all the services of a large city mall.

Visitors will not want to miss a visit to historic Fort Malden. It was established by the British when they had to leave Detroit. Another place of interest is the North American Black Historical Museum built by slaves who escaped to freedom via the underground railroad.

In town is the Navy Yard restaurant where fine lunches and dinners are served. Out of town, along the river, is Duffy's Tavern. It has been a favorite eating and watering spot for both residents and summer visitors for many years. Duffy's is part of the town's history.

As you go farther along the river road, past homes as old as the town, you come to the boarding dock of the ferry that takes visitors across the river to Boblo. On Boblo, you can take a train ride around the island, attend live shows, or, if you have an adventuresome spirit, try some of the 50 rides offered in the amusement park.

Back across the river and on the road again, you lose the view of the river, but you are never far from water. There are marshes where there is always someone fishing.

Before you head home, you will want to stop at one of the many roadside stands where fruit, vegetables and berries, just freshly picked, are offered.

Another day trip that will be remembered is one just 35 miles out of Detroit to Point Pelee National Park. It is a 4,000-acre wonderland of marsh, trees, grass, birds - and butterflies, if you come at the right time. Visitors arrange their trips to see the butterflies fly off in an explosive flutter of color as they leave the island. There is something on the island for everyone who enjoys the outdoors: 14 miles of beaches, nature walks and picnic grounds. A unique attraction is the mile-long boardwalk where visitors can walk out into the marsh and see the fish and flora at close range.

If that is too long a walk, you can rent a canoe and paddle around the marsh. Whichever method you choose, save enough energy to walk up the observation towers on each end of the boardwalk. The view is worth the exertion.

If you make the trip later in the summer, make a stop at a roadstand. This is melon country. Melons are shipped all over from this area. Tomatoes are special too. There are those who say that tomatoes grown in Canada have a goodness that is unsurpassed. That is probably why Lemington is known as the tomato capital of the world. It is also a major canning center. Once you have explored the attractions that border Lake Erie, you may want to see what Lake Huron has to offer. Over the Blue Water Bridge from Port Huron is Grand Bend, a major resort. Its pine trees, sandhills and wonderful sand beaches draw vacationers from all areas. Other attractions are the Lambton Heritage Museum, a complex containing artifacts tracing Indian and pioneer history of the country and the Pineridge Zoo, 20 wooded acres of many varieties of birds and animals.

A day spent at any one of these close-to-the-border vacation attractions would not only be relatively inexpensive but would be an enjoyable outing.

There wasn't a bad seat anywhere.

Everything was front-row-center-best-in-the-house for the Freedom Festival fireworks June 30 at Sigma Gamma Association's annual Fireworks Picnic.

Held at Stroh River Place, on a warm summer evening, the event included inviting sights and sounds and smells from Detroit's revitalized riverfront, a variety of choices of good food, an interesting mix of members, families and guests, and, of course, a spectacular 40-minute fireworks display.

Sigma Gamma Association is an 85-year-old charitable organization dedicated to the care and treatment of orthopedically handicapped children. A spokesperson for the Association said that because of the successful work of the underwriting committee, and generous donors, the Fireworks Picnic was pure profit for the Detroit Institute for

Co-chairmen Sally Barnes and Lynn Carpenter planned something for every age, beginning at 6:30 p.m. and ending with the last burst and blast of the fireworks display that thrilled a million Detroiters.

Some guests dined on food prepared by the Rattlesnake Club. Others took part in a gourmet picnic. Others opted for plain ol' American hot dogs and hamburgers, cooked by Sigma Gamma members and their husbands.

Entertainment included a calliope, the Grosse Pointe Barbershoppers, Rainbow the Clown, a unicyclist and juggler, a Moonwalk, a ball cage and merry-goround for children, as well as opportunities for face painting and a sneak peek of the soon-tobe-completed River Place Inn.

The American Association of University Women is already planning a unique project which will take place in the fall: a seminar on non-traditional careers for women.

Tentative plans are to hold the career day at a local school, invite girls in grades 5 through 8 (and their mothers) for an educational day devoted to exploring careers that girls may not realize are available to them.

William De Turk to perform at Cranbrook

William De Turk, music director of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, will perform selections by Shubert, Debussy and Haydn in the Summer Carillon Concert Series at Christ Church Cranbrook on Sunday, July 16 at 4

The concert is free and open to the public.

Listeners are invited to bring blankets or lawn chairs and enjoy the concert from the lawn or the Cranbrook Gardens across Lone Pine Road. A video monitor system has been set up in the church where visitors can watch the carillonneur as he performs. Programs are available at the church entrance.

De Turk's program will include "Ave Maria" by Franz Shubert, a carillon transcription of "Golliwog's Cakewalk" by Claude Debussy, and 18th century dances by Franz Joseph Haydn and various French composers. He will also play "Toccata" from the Sonata of Henk Badings and several pieces based on the sound of the cuckoo. Before coming to Grosse Pointe, De Turk was carillonneur and assistant professor of music at the University of Michigan. He received a bachelor of music degree from Heidiberg College, Tiffin, Ohio, and a master of music degree in organ performance from the University of Michigan. He is active in the Guild of Carillonneurs in North America, serving as board member for nine years and president for four years. De Turk has performed throughout the United States, Canada, and Europe.

Grosse Pointe Baptist Church affirms pro-life resolution

The members of the Grosse resolutions adopted by the con-Pointe Baptist Church, by unanimous vote, affirmed a pro-life resolution June 28.

The resolution says, in part: "We believe that this is a moment in history when we must challenge current practices concerning human life. We must affirm the rights of the unborn, convince others of the sanctity of life, and seek to eliminate the tragedy of abortion . . . The value of human life cannot be measured simply by its usefulness or capacity to enjoy life. Hence, we affirm our responsibility to fight injustice, to alleviate human suffering, to uphold the right to life, and to provide for the security of the unborn child, the severely handicapped, and the disabled against all forms of technological and social dehumanization.'

The resolution reflects a similar resolution adopted by the delegates of the North American Baptist Conference held during July 1988 in Calgary, Alberta. Grosse Pointe Baptist is a member of the North American Baptist Conference.

Because of the Baptist tradition of local church autonomy, ference are not binding on local churches. The Rev. David H. Wick, senior pastor of the Grosse Pointe church, felt that his congregation needed to affirm the position of the conference, and the response of the congregation was overwhelmingly in support of the resolution.

Several members of Grosse Pointe Baptist Church have become active in the pro-life movement. A few, including Pastor Wick, have participated in Operation Rescue protests at Detroit area abortion clinics.

The church also provides financial support for a pro-life pregnancy aid center in South-

Williams-Gram

Mr. and Mrs. H. James Gram

Nancy Quirk Williams and H. James Gram have announced their marriage, which took place on June 17, 1989 at the Grosse Pointe Farms home of Mrs. Williams.

Dean Bertram Herlong and the Rev. Stanley Wilson officiated at the afternoon ceremony.

The bride and groom traveled to Mackinac Island after the wedding. They'll live in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Mrs. Williams is a graduate of the University of Michigan.

Gram, also a graduate of the University of Michigan, is a retired partner of Touche Ross & Co.

Fox-Dompierre

Patricia Louise Fox, daughter of William R. and Frances Fox of Grosse Pointe Woods, married Michael Daniel Dompierre, son of Albert J. Dompierre of Farmington Hills and the late Carol Elaine Dompierre, at Our Lady of Sorrows Catholic Church in Farmington on May 6, 1989.

The Rev. Kean Cronin officiated at the 1 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Detroit Golf Club.

The bride wore a gown of French tulle with a dropped waist and a bodice of appliqued flowers covered with iridescent sequins, a sweetheart neckline and a low cut back. Her chapelength tiara-style veil featured white roses, sprays of pearl and iridescent sequins with white satin streamers down the back. The bridal bouquet was made up of bridal roses, white tulips, stephanotis and ivy.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Daniel Dompierre

Charlotte Ann Parks of Grosse Pointe Park was the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Dorothy Shock of St. Clair Shores, Angela O'Connor of Aurora, Ohio and Colleen Dompierre of Hudson, Ohio, sister of the groom.

Attendants wore pale pink waltz-length gowns with French tulle skirts and taffeta bodices.

For years and years I suffered from depression, even as a kid. At the time, people couldn't understand that children can suffer from the disease-and need you to find them help.

How do you know if your child's "bad" behavior is really a cry for help? Here are some signs: Excessive school absence. Staying out late and not coming home. Personality changes. Hanging out with the wrong crowd. Absent-mindedness. Dropping grades. Defiance and short-tempered hostility. Withdrawal or secretiveness. Excessive sleeping, isolation. Selling possesions. The list goes on.

Take it from me-things will not get better on their own. They will get worse. Find the strength as a parent to make the call. Now. Depression can be treated.

Thyme in a bottle: Perfumes, potpourris are ancient arts

How delightful is the summer breeze wafting across the garden and carrying with it the mingled scents of all the flowers. It is one of the nicest aspects of summer days. Wouldn't it be wonderful if we could just bottle it to be uncorked in the house on a snowy January day?

Bottling flower scents is, of course, the business of the perfumer. And a fascinating business it is. Did you know that at Grasse, in France, there are 50 perfume factories employing many hundreds of people? The perfume industry at Grasse dates back to the 16th century May, roses and orange blossoms; and was begun by a man named Tombarelli who was sent there by Catherine de Medici to establish a laboratory. Now Grasse produces millions of gallons of flower perfumes per year.

continues nearly the year around, beginning in February

The flower harvest at Grasse also grown there as well as petals are needed to make one sweet olive. Workers are sent mint, lilacs, geraniums and pound of attar of rose (pure rose oil) and some more delicate and with violets. March and April also into the French and Italian elusive scents require as much bring hyacinths and jonquils; Alps to gather and distill laven- as 10,000 pounds of petals to make one pound of attar. You know how lightweight a flower petal is. Are you surprised it would require so many to make a pound?

Rose and geranium are related scents and are often combined in rose perfume. Jasmine and lily of the valley also combine well. Other happy combinations are almond and laurel, rosemary and patchouli, and rose and jasmine, which is what the famous perfume, Joy, basically is.

In the manufacturer of perare busy distilling herbs, gums fume, the essences are aged in copper storage tanks to preserve the full strength and fragrance. Nearly 5,000 pounds of rose When they are ready for use, they are drawn off into copper pitchers and taken to the bottling room. Perfume is purified in glass drums with filter tops.

Unless you're a trained perfume smeller, it is impossible to smell more than six scents and still be able to tell them apart, whereas an expert can smell more than a hundred and still tell the differences among them. Perfume experts go to work in a quiet room after deep breathing exercises in the open air. Drops of each perfume are sprinkled on slips of absorbant paper which the experts waft under their noses. Devotion to duty calls for sacrifice. Perfume smellers avoid tobacco, coffee, alcohol and, because they discovered that irregular eating impairs olfactory efficiency, they never eat between

Now is the time to be thinking about making potpourri in the fall. If you started to gather flower petals to dry when the violets and flowering trees were in bloom you have made a good start. As flowers come into bloom, save some of every kind of scented blossom and dry them. Store in glass jars with screw tops. Roses of all kinds are indispensible, but any kind of scented flower should be included. If you have herbs in your garden, their blossoms may be added too.

By fall you should have a marvelous mix. Put them all into a big bowl and add jasmine tea, some tobacco, powdered cloves, salt, and oils of rose geranium, lavender, cinnamon and musk. Stir everything together. The proportions and amounts don't matter. Keep adding until you like the result. Put the mixture into decorative potpourri jars or bowls and scent every room in your house. If you have really been enthusiastic about saving flower petals through the summer you'll probably have enough potpourri to make some pretty nice Christmas gifts as well.

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD THE PASTEBOARD PASTIME

A partnership's goal when bidding a hand is to maximize the opportunity of reaching the most desirable contract that can be played for the best result. To achieve this, they must carefully describe their hands correctly and this requires experience, skill and sound judgement.

It is a priviledge and pleasure to play with partners who respect this premis.

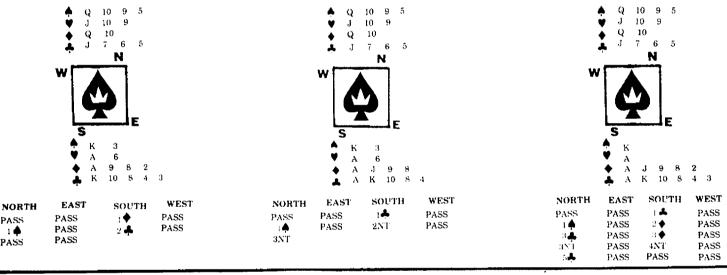

I would make three suggestions if you would truly like to improve your bidding technique.

1. Learn the basic fundamentals, preferably from a good

2. Study a bridge book on bidding and discipline yourself to rigidly follow direction.

3. Find a partner who has an equal respect for the game as you do and play often.

Let's test your bidding mastery on these three lesson hands. Note only the South cards change. Hand One is a good opening bid of 14 high. Two a supurb opening bid of 19 high points and three, the same 19 reshaped to give it even

How many of you bid these hands as shown? If you did, you're well on your way to becoming a reliable bidder. Admittedly, some experts may vary the South calls, but that's a matter of style and experience.

Hand One could be in jeopardy if North bids over 2 Clubs.

Hand Two, some Souths would bid 2 Diamonds on their second call which also shows a very good hand with 4 Diamonds and 5 Clubs, but that forces North to make an awkward call and Declarer at No Trump should be South.

Hand Three is close to a Slam, but only the exceptionally lucky, or those who know that the Diamond King is right, would venture 6 Clubs

St. Joseph Home For The Aged Assisted Living Residences

The Gracious Alternative To A Nursing Home

Worried about someone?

When someone you love lives alone and is getting on in years, you worry about their safety and welfare. You can't help it. Are they eating properly? Did they take their medications? How are they making out? Sons and daughters have these concerns about an aged parent. Maybe you do. In a situation like this, some people start thinking about placement in a nursing home. But that decision may not be the wisest. A nursing home might not be appropriate at all. Too much care. Too restrictive and confining. Consider an alternative. It's called assisted living.

St. Joseph's Assisted Living Residences.

St. Joseph's Home has the perfect place for those you love and care about. Our residences are for seniors who can basically take care of themselves. They do not need a nursing home. They are alert, independent and active. They need occassional assistance and supervision, support and encouragement. At St. Joseph's the residents enjoy their freedom and independence. They can do as much as they want or as little as they please. If and when help is needed, a very attentive staff is always available.

Consider what is included in the monthly rate: · very comfortable private rooms

- utilities, housekeeping and maintenace services
- 24 hour personal supervision
- three delicious, appetizing meals served table-side,
- social opportunities, companionship and
- recreational programs
- chapel with daily mass and rosary • tranquil, spacious landscaped grounds
- barber and beauty salon

All of this and more at St. Joseph's Assisted Living Residences. So if you are concerned and worried about a senior living alone, give us a call. We provide peace of mind and a gracious alternative to a nursing home!

AN INVESTMENT WITH INDIVIDUALITY

This Grosse Pointe City two-family offers the best of both worlds. The lower flat has a traditional layout - living room, dining room, kitchen and two bedrooms. The upper flat is contemporary in its design. It offers a spacious great room and adjoining bedroom suite. Each unit also has a fireplace and rear porch. Add to all of this a lovely backyard and you have a wonderful investment opportunity. Perfect for everyone.

summer garden is blooming around this lovely Grosse Pointe Farms home. This garden includes a flowering crab tree, raspberries and rhubarb. The rest of the home is as well-maintained as the garden. The home is decorated in neutral colors and has leaded glass windows and custom window treatments. Add a den and Florida room to its three bedrooms, two-and-one-half baths and three car garage and you have a wonderful family home

The hot, lazy summer days won't bother you in this cool home. If I the heat gets unbearable in the large backyard, come inside to the central air conditioning. Nestled in the heart of Grosse Pointe Woods, this three-bedroom, two-bath home also features a large kitchen, dining room, finished basement, new roof, double drive. walk and garage floor. For those cooler nights you can always get comfortable in front of the living room fireplace.

With a lot of love, gracious living in luxury can be yours in this mansion on the lake! Entering into a marble-floored vestibule is just the first step. The first floor has a huge living room, dining room with fireplaces, breakfast room with parquet floor, and slatefloored closed-in porch. Take the elevator to the second floor with eight bedrooms and baths and three sitting rooms. The basements even has a bowling alley. The property can be subdivided.

1989 fresh season is late

there will be a near-normal crop of both this year.

Production of sweet cherries our next seasonal fruit crop varies greatly across the state. The crop is very poor in the southwestern part of the state while a normal crop is reported for northwestern Michigan. This means that few Michigan sweet cherries will be marketed until July 20 since the northwestern crop always comes in later.

Consumers who aren't already aware of it need to recognize that the entire 1989 fresh season is delayed by a week to 10 days for all crops. A few hot days would enable early apples and blueberries to catch up to a nor-

July is traditionally cherry- mal year, but by no means can berry month in Michigan, and they reach last year's accelerated Strawberry harvest is over for all practical purposes, but the other berries will all come to harvest in July. The first of these are black raspberries. Raspberries - both black and red - are specialty crops today and are not raised on a large scale in this state. Shoppers who are serious about getting raspberries, blackberries and rare fruits like currants need to search out farm markets and U-Pick operations. The fall-harvested raspberries (Heritage variety) are getting more and more widespread throughout the state.

The June crop report for red tart cherries was delayed a week due to the cool weather and late development of the fruit in Michigan. The USDA's June 29 release forecasts a 190 million pounds for Michigan - only slightly larger than last year's drought-ravaged crop.

A normal crop of peaches is predicted for the state as a whole. The Red Haven variety will likely be a short crop in southwestern Michigan, but a normal crop is expected up north where 90 percent of the crop is produced.

North American production of cultivated blueberries (for both fresh market and processing) is expected to increase 7 percent this year. Michigan is looking for a crop 11 percent larger than last year's short crop.

Nose to nose

I've often wondered what umpires and managers say to one another when a confrontation heats up.

We've all passed the test of lip reading, but what's even funnier to watch or listen to is broadcasters. Broadcasters like to give the blow-for-blow while Sparky argues with umpire Rick Reed.

"Sparky's not putting up a stink, he's just out there to make sure Reed is on top of things," is a common synopsis.

Bull, Sparky's making a stink otherwise he wouldn't be out there.

I also often wonder why umpires can bump a manager or ball player, but why a player or manager can't bump an ump.

I also often wonder why, at horse races, gamblers and bettors yell at a horse for not finishing first. Can Mr. Ed actually listen?

What's even better is the fan who screams at Mike Heath from the bleachers. Does that megaphone mouth actually think Heath will hear him? Another thing that's got me curious is why pop, hot dog or pretzel vendors at Tiger Stadium have no concept of what it's like to be quiet.

Sure, they've got to announce what they're selling and that they are in your section, but it's not hard to figure out that the guy carrying a pretzel above his head is selling pretzels.

When was the last time you attended a neighborhood softball game?

I've played twice a week for about five years now, and it's finally come to my attention that softballers state the obvious, too.

When a left-handed batter comes to the plate, everyone vells, "Lefty" or something else that signifies what side of the plate he bats from.

Why do we yell lefty? Is it some big surprise, or is the bat ter actually going to get away with disguising it?

I think the quote of the summer occurred the other day at my softball game.

Our pitcher had popped out to the catcher for the second time in as many bats. Obviously quite upset, No. 3 didn't think his bat belonged in the bat rack so after being called out by the umpire, he launched the bat 15 feet straight in the air in a series of twists and turns that would have been the envy of any majorette.

Our player was quickly ejected by the umpire and then - in all seriousness - turned to the ump and said, "What

Isn't it funny too, when you go to a ball game with one, maybe two buddies and suddenly by the fifth inning you have about 10?

Detroit has a sports magnetism that dictates friendship. Tell me you never went to a game and did a high five with the guy next to you. Tell me you never shared an opinion about a ball player with someone sitting in front of you. And convince me that you didn't tell the guy behind you that you could have made that catch.

We've all done it at one time or another, admit it. Then again, when you've got to spend three hours cramped in a seat with your elbow on your neighbors arm you may as well make a new friend.

Don't you hate when you're on an aisle seat at a ball game and people continually get up to leave, come back, leave, come back? I'd rather just swap seats with the guy and call it a day.

You know what else is funny to watch?

When a baseball goes foul and 10 people touch it, try to catch it or run for it and this little guy in the back - who didn't try for it - pulls it out from under the seat.

Good things come to those who wait.

Two 'Old Goats' call it quits — sort of

By Rob Fulton Sports Editor

Two sailors with 68 Port Huron to Mackinac races between them will not be leaving the Black River and heading for Mackinac Island this year.

Doug and Maggie Wake, who out of the 65th Bayview Yacht Club Port Huron to Mackinac Sailboat Race.

When the fleet of more than 300 boats heads for Mackinac on July 22, Velero VI won't be voy-

Doug and Maggie Wake have put an end to their Mackinac couple of old goats," are bowing there's a lot of things you can't do," said Maggie, who like her race." husband of 49 years, is 71 years old. "I'm the one who instigated us not racing in the Mackinac. I think we both wanted to compete, but now that we're in our 70s, we can't really do it like we want to. I don't think we have the endurance to race another Mackinac.'

THE BIRTH CERTIFI-CATES may state that the Wakes are 71, but the vibrant looks and pleasing smiles on their faces say that sailing the seas keeps them young.

'We have gotten a lot out of sailing," Maggie said. "I think one thing that has kept us, well call it young if you want, is the association with younger sailors.

'We've been fortunate enough to make a lot of friends over the years," she added.

Just because the Wakes won't be competing in the 259-nautical mile Mackinac doesn't mean they're retiring from the sport.

'We can't remove ourselves from it totally," said Doug. 'We're racing in the local regattas, and frankly we're doing quite well. But, we just can't make a long journey.

THE PACE HAS been steady for the Wakes ever since they began sailing. Summers were filled with regattas, weekend sailing and nightly sailing. Now, however, it's just time to slow

"Doug is a terrific helmsman," said his wife, who navigates the North American 40. "He used to be able to go 24 hours straight, but not anymore. He can handle about seven or eight hours at the helm."

Not sailing in the Mackinac ends a streak of 39 races for Doug and 29 for Maggie. "Sure it's going to be different," she said, "but I know one thing: I'm not going to be as tired as I usually am after the the Cruising D Division. Since then, they have collected six hoisted some makeshift sails. more firsts, two seconds and six thirds. All the flags are attached on one halyard, forming a colorful sight.

"They're all nice to look at," he said. "We have such fond memories of each one. We're just so very pleased that we could be a part of this spectacular event for as long as we have.'

FOR EVERY MEMORY, there's an anecdote. And for every anecdote there's a laugh.

Maggie, the only official female "Old Goat," sailed in her first Mackinac in 1940 and admitted that that may be the most memorable race in her annals.

"We were cruising along and all of a sudden our rudder post broke," she said with a smile. "I began to panic because I wasn't sure what to do. Doug got everything under control. We used two two-by-fours and jerry-rigged them together where the tillers would come up. We got going again and were very proud to finish the race."

Maggie was bitten by the bug and immediately began working on the streak to reach the golden plateau of 25 Mackinac races. By doing so, any sailor immediately is inducted into the category of "Old Goat."

"I BECAME MORE excited when I was getting closer to becoming an old goat," said Maggie, whose closest competitor is listed with approximately 17 Mackinacs. "It was really exciting for me to sail in my 25th race, but I'll always remember

Perhaps jerry-rigging was Doug's forte. At 15, he began In 1962, with Doug skipper carving his niche in the sailing ing, Maggie navigating and world. He and a friend bought Brian Wake on board, the an old life boat off a freighter his Wakes walked to the winner's friend's grandfather had skipcircle to claim their first win in pered. They repaired it, borrowed a flagpole for a mast and > Maggie came to the sport in an "if you can't beat them join 'em" move. She plunked down a few dollars to buy a canoe, that Doug later converted into a small sailboat. While Doug built a mast and leeboard, Maggie went to work on the sails and a paddle was used as a rudder.

> "We have come a long way since then," said Doug, who has skippered in dinghies, 39-footers, 46-footers and now a 40-footer.

> IN THE EARLY years, it was uncommon for a woman to become part of a crew. However, Maggie was fortunate than most.

> "I think I'm luckier than most because there aren't many skippers who will take a woman along," she said.

Her husband wouldn't have it any other way.

"She's been great," he said. "She has been incredible and without her, I don't think I would have been able to do this this long.'

According to Maggie, the first few years of sailing were "disasterous." The Wakes then bought an "old clunker" full of dry rot and delicately sailed it. Then, things took off as they bought Velero IV, V and VI, but now it's time to semi-retire in the friendly confines of Velero VI.

"We're done as far as longdistance races go," they agreed. "However, we think we have at least 10 years left in local rac-

Twenty teams from around the country will by vying for the national trophy that will be presented to the team who survives the double-elimination tournament.

Grosse Pointe, which has long been highly supportive of its little leagues, has been selected to attend the eight-day tournament.

"We received an at-large bid," said Spada, who will be handling the team's managerial duties. "Michigan doesn't have AAU sponsored baseball so this team didn't compete in any qualifying games.'

Four of the 20 teams represented from across the country have been invited to attend.

'We were one of the four teams invited," Spada said. Basically, I think we got an invite because of our contact with them last year. That and Grosse Pointe is a nationally recognized area for fine amateur baseball."

The intent of the tournament, according to Spada, is to give the kids esposure to national play.

Spada, who coached a team of 13-year-olds last year in the regional tournament in Kentucky, was notified by the national AAU that he was selected to bring a team from Michigan for the tourney.

The AAU allows the 20 players to come from any city in Michigan, but Spada felt that Grosse Pointe kids deserved it

"I don't think it's selfish to select kids from Grosse Pointe," he said. "I am taking the kids from this area because I feel there's enough talent in Grosse Pointe to compete on the national lev-

"What we did was take the teams and they nominated some players for this team (Michigan). We (DiLaura and Spada) then evaluated the kids to form the team. There are a lot of good ball players in Grosse Pointe, but we feel that the guys we are taking are the best. "This is also a great opportunity to put together both Babe Ruth teams in the Pointes for one special purpose," added Spada, "and that purpose is to give kids from Gross Pointe the opportunity to gain national recognition for the type of ball they play.'

While most of the 20 spots have been filled, a few v ca remain.

Each team is guaranteed five games. There will be four pools of five teams each, with the top two teams in each pool advanction bracket.

Spada. "We'd like to reach the finals. If we do that, then we will be one of the top 10 teams in the nation for 14-year-olds. I think it's important for us to make a strong showing.'

Former Detroit Grand Prix travels to Phoenix

By Doris A. Goleniak Special Writer

Doris A. Goleniak attended the Phoenix Grand Prix and her story and some analysis follows.

There was no stop in Detroit. After seven exciting years, Detroit opted to host an Indy-type auto race instead, forcing the Formula One cars to find a new North American home.

The Formula One cars just completed their North American tour on June 18 in Montreal. Before Montreal, Phoenix was the substitute for the Motor City.

The tour began in Mexico, where heavy rains fell almost every afternoon or evening. It rained during the race in Montreal, but sandwiched in the middle of the tour was a visit to the dry, hot Arizona desert for the U.S. Grand Prix, June 2-4. No rain in Arizona, and you didn't need transportation to the track if you stayed downtown because, like Detroit, the race was run through city strets.

But, unlike Detroit, the weekend lacked spectators and atmosphere. Only 31,000 attended the finals on Sunday. The usual international crowd - the conga dancing, samba-swaying Senna fans with big Brazilian fans, the enthusiastic Ferrari-bannered hoards, the Honda worshippers, were strangely absent. Not only the grounds lacked atmosphere; many drivers noted a boring, featureless track with all the corners the same.

It may have been the high admission prices that kept people away. Tickets ranged from $200 for the covered grandstand across from the pits, to $35 for general admission. There were few good viewing spots for ladders, and only a glimpse of the race course was visible through sometimes hidden by trees. Top aged 87 mph, compared with Deseats in Detroit were only $120.

Despite the sparse turnout, es-

Phoenix expressed confidence that the crowds would increase in future years. But the Detroit Grand Prix had a total of 170,000 in its first year (1982) and had in excess of 60,000 for last year's race. Detroit has consistently been well over 200,000 for the weekend. Phoenix, like Detroit, had a Friday free day, but drew only 36,000. Detroit generally tops 100,000.

The 2.36-mile Phoenix track encircles an area that almost entirely consists of public buildings and parking lots. The permanent facility built for garages will be used for public vehicles the rest of the year. The new control tower building will be used for city offices. Phoenix expects to invest $8 million over five years for the facilities and for track preparation. The organizers invested another $4 million.

A 500-member "Grand Prix Volunteer Committee" helped staff the event, along with 1,200 paid temporary workers. There were only five full-time regular employees, according to Sid Priddle, director of communications.

Despite boasts that the wide streets would provide the fastest street course ever assembled, the speeds were only slightly above those set in Detroit. Senna's record pole time in 1986 in Detroit was 91.5 mph. His pole in Phoenix was 94 mph. But, spectators had the special thrill of seeing him break the all-time record for most career poles (34), surpassing Jimmy Clark's record in eight consecutive poles. Sunday's race had to stopped at the mandatory two-hour limit, before the full distance of 305 kilometers doubled fences with the view was covered. Race speed avertroit's best of 85.7 in 1987. The intense desert heat may have

Senna also set a new record of the weekend, the promoters in the track surface was reported to be in excess of 140 degrees.

The drivers, in general, liked

Phoenix. Italian Sandro Nannini, who drives for the Benetton team, told me he prefers Phoenix to Detroit because, "I like the sand." Second-place finisher Riccardo Patrese, also from Italy, likewise expressed a preference for Arizona, adding that it had better hotels.

Phoenix-born Eddie Cheever, the only American in Formula One, diplomatically responded Phoenix, was better in some ways and Detroit better in other ways. Although most drivers felt the track was smoother and wider, Stefan Johansson of Sweden stated he found Detroit's track more interesting. Two-time world champion Alain Prost of France, probably the most vocal complainer about Detroit's street track, also had little use for the Phoenix track. But he took his first U.S. win ever, breaking the record he already set for most wins -36. Prost also holds the record for the most points scored.

Phoenix fans also got to see another record-breaker: Patrese was in his 181st race, setting another record for the most Grand Prixes ever driven in by one driver.

The spirited ambience one exeriences in downtown Detroit during Prix week was totally absent in Phoenix. Streets were nearly desserted in the evening. The two large city center hotels (with a combined total of 1,245 rooms) were not completely full. Rates ran around $150 per room. A Friday evening outdoor party at the Civic Plaza was not wellattended. Around the track, there were relatively few street vendors, and not a great variety were popular (95 cents to $1.50), but ice cream stands were even more popular. A liter of Perrier water was $2.50, official T-shirts were an astounding $19, hats $12 and a cotton pullover was

Out on the track, the drivers were experimenting with how close they could get to the concrete blocks, and there were numerous spins and crashes. Even Prost totaled a car, a rare event. There were no serious injuries and all 26 qualifiers took Unlike Detroit, few were run- cent dominance of the McLarenning at the end. Only seven cars lasted the full two hours, and nine were classified as finishers. A special bonus to the Phoenicians was to have native-son Cheever on the podium following his third-place finish.

Phoenix may lack the sophistication of Mexico City or Montreal, but it presents an interesting contrast to these older, European-flavored venues. To the Formula-One fan, each city provides a worthwhile visit. To the critics who allege that racing has become boring due to the re-

Honda team with Prost and Senna, it can be pointed out that in the three North American races, 14 different drivers from 10 different teams scored points. There were also three different winners from two separate teams.

Although Detroit may be gone from the circuit, Formula One will continue to survive in North America. Phoenix made a fiveyear commitment with next year's race being moved to early spring or fall. It should prove more popular with the fans.

Pilot becomes Flyer

Ben Paul Pugliesi of Grosse Pointe Shores, has signed a National Letter of Intent to play varsity soccer for the University of Dayton Flyers next fall.

Pugliesi, who captained the DeLaSalle Collegiate soccer team last season, finished a highly successful prep career. He played four years as center halfback, recording the most assists of any player as a result of his very long throw-ins. Pugliesi was the team's MVP this season.

In his junior year, the Pilots went to the state final four. As a senior, Pugliesi became an All-State player, was voted All-League, All-Catholic and the No. 2 player in his league. As a team, the Pilots finished tied for first in the Catholic League.

Pugliesi will be joining former Pilot teammate Brady O'-Toole on the Dayton soccer team.

Luks finishes second

Dave Luks, Grosse Pointe Park's newest addition to the car racing world, led most of the way at the Blackhawk Farms Race in Chicago July 2, but had to settle for a second-place finish.

Although it was his highest finish of the year in the Sports Car Club of America (SCCA) series, Luks is still not satisfied.

"I'd be happier if I would have won, obviously," he said. "But that's the way it goes."

Through the final five to seven laps, Luks, who had already recorded the fastest lap of the day in 1:24.5, was ready to bask in the glory of winning the race. However, an unfortunate twist caused him to yield his top spot.

"I was really feeling good over the last few laps," he said. "I was coming up on a lapped car and got pinned behind him. Normally, that lapped car is supposed to get out of the way, but it spun causing me to lose the first position."

Luks, apparently frustrated, was not about to let the lapped racer dampen his spirits on his most successful race of the sea-

"I had the taste of victory, just for a minute," he said, "but that's the way it goes. I've just got to keep trying for that first place finish."

In three races, Luks has a sixth- and third-place finish to his credit.

"Looking at the way the races have gone (sixth, third, second),' he said. "It looks like I have to take a first in the next one.' Luks, who averaged 75.3 mph through the 20-lap race, leads the Central Division Championship Series with 20 points. "I've got eight more races to go and I've got to try and lock up the top spot," he said. "The pressure is on.'

Bill Huntington, left, and physical education instructor Jon Rice look over some of Grosse Pointe South High's newest equipment. Under Huntington's leadership this year, the South Dad's Club organized a telephone drive which brought in the necessary donations to refurbish South's weight room with new equipment and mirrors. Huntington of Grosse Pointe City is the father of South junior Jennifer and freshman leff. Rice serves as South's head football coach and is currently planning a new physical education course for high school students which will use the new equipment called "Fit for Life."

AMERICAN MINORS Denver 8, Austin 3

Steve Bernhardt doubled home three runs in the first inning to give Denver all the runs it needed to beat Austin in this American League championship. Devner and Austin both finished with 11-4 records.

Austin took a 2-0 lead in the first on a single by Rich Grosfield and doubles by Ryan Ruttan and Mike LaHood. Denver, adding two RBI. however, got one run back in the bottom of the first. Jason Popham walked to load the bases with two outs, setting up Bernhardt's big blow.

Tom Rudolph pitched the first three innings for the win, and Dan Dimaggio tossed a one-hit shutout over the last three frames. Eric Soumis had two hits and scored twice for Denver.

Grosfield and Ruttan each had two hits for Austin, with Ruttan Mooney singled for Wichita.

Austin 16, Wichita 5

Brandon Welch pitched five innings, striking out 10 while giving up only four runs and two hits to lead Austin. Welch helped himself with four RBI, three of which came on a double. Mike Aubrey was 3-for-4 with five RBI, and Grosfield and Ruttan each had two hits.

Mike Magri doubled and Paul while Eric Soumis and Tom Rudolph had five hits each to pace Denver. Omaha's Anthony Vitale hit for the cycle, and Ben Peters hit two homers.

NATONAL MINORS Dayton 30, Tampa 8

Don Morrissett was 3-for-5 with a double and triple, while Brendan Rauss was 2-for-4 for Dayton.

Andrew Maniaci pitched the final three innings for Dayton, allowing three runs while striking out six. Andy Jones and Hardy Emery each had two hits for Tampa.

Miami 9, Buffalo 7

Tibor Szabo pitched a complete game and Michael Fine had a double and triple to boost Miami over Buffalo. Brad Wheeler also had two hits for the winners. Frank Giglio and Chris Cooper each had two Buffalo hits.

Memphis 7, Syracuse 3 Brian Fehling, Ben Peters, Jeremy Schmitzerle and Molly Peters combined to pitch a fourhitter for Memphis. Fehling, Peters and Paul Dykstra also had two hits. Jason Ramberger had two hits for Syracuse.

MINOR CHAMPIONSHIP Chris Sterr knocked in the winning runs with a three-run triple as Dayton claimed the minor league championship of the Woods-Shores.

Sterr's third-inning blow to left was his first of two hits in the game. Pitcher Fritz Schippert held on to pitch a complete game, scattering hits by six different Denver players. Schippert fanned seven. Dayton, which finished atop the National League, also got a pair of hits from Mark Foust, whose fifth-inning single sent home the game's final run. Schippert had the only other Dayton hit.

Denver, representing the American League, received exceptional pitching from Dan Dimaggio, who fanned 18 and walked only three.

Dayton scored a run in the first, but Denver took a 3-1 lead in the second on an RBI single by Carl Rose Jr., and a two-run single by George Volis. Dimaggio, Eric Soumis, Tom Rudolph and Mark Partham had Denver's other hits.

Farms-City-Park

AAA A's 5, Mariners 3

David Shock's triple in the bottom of the ninth drove home the winning run. Brad Hohlfeldt had two singles, a double and pitched six scoreless innings for the win. Offensively, the A's got two hits from Devon Allard and Frank Bommarito, and Mike Veda and Jon Shock each had singles.

Nick Arrigo laced a single, double and triple, and pitched five strong innings for the Mariners. Tom Gough added a double, and Christian Auty singled for the Mariners. Christine Galnor pitched four innings of strong relief.

INSTRUCTIONAL Buffalo 11, Toledo 6

Steven Palms, Clark VanVliet, Tom Williams, Peter Cline and Peter Alle all scored runs for Buffalo. Mike O'Sullivan rapped a single.

Andrew Fisher, Whitney Gage and Ted Neesley anchored the Toledo defense, and Ryan Cordier slapped two doubles.

Denver 14, Toledo 9

Schuster, Chris Frendo, Morrell and Tim Leto scored runs for Denver. Brad Ramge scored three times and Jack Donnelly had an RBI for Toledo. Andrew Fisher, Ricky Landuyt, Jordan Materna and Whitney Gage all scored for Toledo.

Columbus 18, Erie 5

Van Martin went 3-for-3 and picked up an RBI, as Columbus beat Erie in this playoff game. Jimmy Louisell had a big day for Columbus with eight put outs, and went 3-for-3, including a triple. Andrew Fromm had two perfect bunts and scored a run, and Jeff Failla went 2-for-3.

Adam Budday had two hits, including a triple for Erie, and Andrew Fisher had two hits and scored a run. Charlie Keersmaker played a strong defensive game for Erie, and Shaun Dillon had a double.

Miami 12, Columbus 11

Miami scored two runs in the top of the sixth to take a one-run lead, then held off Columbus in an exciting semifinal playoff game. Clay Vanderpool and Jeff Pilley each had two Miami hits, while Andy Shelden and Mike Getz both turned in excellent defensive plays. Adam Novak hit a round-tripper for Columbus, with John Mills, Paul Cassleman and Dennis Pascoe having two hits each.

Miami 29, Phoenix 5

Miami exploded for 29 runs in the Class C championship game and completed an undefeated season at 18-0.

Nine Miami players had at least three hits apiece, while defensively the team played almost errorless ball. Joel France and Clay Vanderpool each scored four runs, while Ryan Schafer and Matt Lapish added three apiece. Jeff See pounded out four hits, Jeff Piley and Justin Owen had three hits each, including a double, and Jack Kristan and Mark Spicer each had a double and triple.

Ted Fortier had a good game at catcher, and Michael Mitchell and Jamie Carrier played well in the field. Mike Getz and Andy Shelden each had three hits, while supporting the defense.

Phoenix advanced to the finals with wins over Buffalo and Richmond. In the championship See GPLL, page 16C

pure water associates

would like to take this opportunity to introduce myself. My name is William Ahee, and I am with Pure Water Associates located on the east side of Detroit.

- I am personally very concerned about improving the quality of our drinking water. Upon investigating the market on water purification devices. I am very proud to announce that I have discovered, and presently have in my possession, an in home "on tap" water purification unit called the "Purtek" that purifies water by means of deionization. This purification method produces water of triple distilled quality. Processed water by deionization is the purest form of water

Babe Ruth

WOODS-SHORES Cubs 15, Reds 14

In an old-fashinoned slugfest, the Cubs outlasted the Reds. Matt Fowler had two hits and three RBI for the Cubs, and Tom Kavanagh, Mike Haskell and Kurt Barr had two hits each in the losing cause.

Pirates 11, Reds 2

Paul Straske and Eric Merte combined to pitch a five-hitter in defeating the Reds. Straske and Jeff Jensen each had two hits for the winners.

Reds 15, Cards 11

The Reds pulled out the game with a five-run sixth-inning rally. Tom Kavanagh tied the game with his third hit of the game, to go with three RBI, and Mike Haskell had three RBI.

Reds 6, Cubs 2

In the Woods-Shores playoff series, Mike Haskell tossed a three-hitter against the firstplace Cubs. Kavanagh, Korzeniewski, Barr, Hall and Jay Radloff each had RBI for the Reds. Pete Bogus had two hits in the losing cause.

The Reds advanced to play the Cardinals in the series championship.

Farms-City-Park

A's 17, Twins 14

In a storm-interrupted, twoday affair the A's beat the Early in the game, the Twins overcame an early eight-run deficit and took a three-run lead into the seventh. But, the A's rallied for three runs, tying the game on Tom Veda's one-run single, and Steven Olzark's two-run double. For the Twins, Matt Haack, Jason Geideman each had two hits and two RBI.

and four RBI by Shawn Mc-

Matt Haack of the Twins and Allan Leitch (A's) both turned in gritty pitching performances. Haack, in relief, pitched 7 2/3 innings, striking out 10. Leitch, with fine fielding behind him, shut the Twins out over the last four innings, striking out seven.

Brewers 6, Rangers 2

Bill Gough clubbed three hits to go with two RBI and two runs scored to lead the Brewers. Todd Scallen and Jay Harrington added a double each for the win-

Geoff Prysak took the win, hurling five scoreless innings, while yielding only one hit. He also drove in two runs. Brewer catcher Jon Swartz threw out two Rangers attempting steals.

Jason Kester knocked in both Ranger runs, while Mike Hendrie pounded a long double. Andy Crowley reached base three times.

Brewers 10, Pirates 3

Clutch hitting by Bill Gough (double, 2 RBI) and Jon Swartz (double, 2RBI) and strong relief pitching by Steve Booher enabled the Brewers to rally in the Prep Playoff Championship Se-

Key Brewer defensive plays were made by Swartz, Bill Palazzolo and Josh Rodriguez. The Pirates were led by Ryan Messacar, who gave up only four hits. Chris Dobranski (two hits, 2 RBI) and Messacar (two hits 1 RBI) led the Pirate offense.

The defensive play of the game was a long running grab by Pirate right fielder Bob De-

The Brewers won 13 of their final 14 games.

Pirates 5, Angels 4

Corey Greer (Pirates) won the game in the bottom of the seventh with a base-clearing single. Tom Rhodes, Peter Gracey and Mike Formola and Scott Cairo were tough at the plate.

Dan Paull tossed seven in-The A's attack featured four nings, giving up only five hits hits by Olzark and three hits for the win. Matt Galnor and Sean Recht led the Angels. Joe Cann. Tim Cassell, Jason Cheva- Michael and Jason Rolka saw

MAJORS

Tigers 10, Pirates 5 Jay Berschback ran his record to 5.0 and helped his cause with three hits, as the Tigers beat the Woods Pirates. Brad Dunlap added two hits and Nick Kotsis scored four Tiger runs.

Tigers 2, Dodgers 0

Jay Berschback threw a threehitter, while Dodger counterpart Dan Minadeo tossed a four-hitter. Nick Kotsis and Tom Kolojeski provided the Tiger RBIs, while Berschback had a long triple and scored a run.

Tigers 7, Red Sox 2

Tom Kolojeski recorded his sixth win against no defeats, and Nick Kotsis did a fine job in relief for the Tigers. Dan Commer and Mike McLaughlin each had two Tiger hits, with Kevin Mc-Cracken, Adam Hogan and Brad Dunlap adding timely hits. Chris Oliver had a Sox triple.

Yankees 12, Reds 4

Kyle Hoye led the Yankees with his strong pitching and three RBI. Steve Bednarchik had three Yankee hits, with Matt Recht supplying two hits and three RBL For the Reds, Brian DiLaura had two singles and Shane Barr scored three runs.

Yankees 10, Red Sox 9

Matt Haack picked up the win on the mound, and Bednarchik paced the winners with three hits, two RBI, four runs scored and two stolen bases. Britt Stebbins had two hits for the Yankees, while playing great defense in center field.

Brett Brownscombe provided two Sox hits, and Ryan Molitor and Colm Moore each scored twice.

Tourney

The 13-year-old Babe Ruth baseball tournament will be held July 15-18 at Kerby Field.

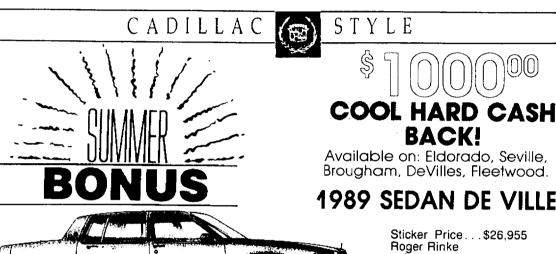

Four games will be played on Saturday, July 15, beginning at 9 a.m. Sunday's games, of which there are four also, begin at 9 a.m. On Monday, July 17, two games will begin at noon, with the championship game set for 3 p.m. Tuesday, July 18.
