

After a decade, Grosse Pointe Cable sees profits

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

After almost 10 years in operation, Grosse Pointe Cable faces the possibility of being able to pay dividends this year to its stockholders — which include four of the Pointes and Harper Woods.

John M. Rickel, chairman, president and treasurer of Grosse Pointe Cable, said last week that the cable system hopes to pay off all its inter-company debt by October, which would mean possible dividends based on earnings for November and December.

Rickel said the company's directors had agreed that no dividends would be paid until all inter-company debt was paid. The inter-company debt is funds advanced by Grosse Pointe Cable's technical operator, which is currently Comcast.

The first technical operator was Teleprompter, which was later bought out by Westinghouse's Group W cable. Group W cable's 25 percent interest in Grosse Pointe Cable was then acquired by Comcast.

The inter-company debt reached a high of almost $2.4 million, but the company steadily paid down the principal. As of Dec. 31, 1988, $562,285 remained of the debt to Comcast, and Rickel is confident Comcast will be paid off this year.

As of the end of 1988, Grosse Pointe Cable also had $4.3 million in long-term bond debt remaining on the books. The company has until 1994 to pay off the bonds, which originally totalled $7.2 million. Dividends can be paid while the bonds are being paid off.

With the prospect of dividends to stockholders, Rickel said the cable system is facing the possibility of being able to consider holding down rates to subscribers. Stockholders, for example, may decide to forgo dividends in exchange for lower subscriber rates.

Grosse Pointe Cable is unique in that it is 75 percent owned by the community it serves. The non-profit Grosse Pointe-wide War Memorial Association owns 37.5 percent of Grosse Pointe Cable. The cities of Grosse Pointe Woods, Farms, City and Park and Harper Woods beneficially own a combined 37.5 percent, and the remaining 25 percent is held by the technical operator, Comcast.

Actually, the ownership is slightly more complicated in that Grosse Pointe Cable equity consists of only four common shares. The War Memorial legally controls three of the shares, while Comcast has the fourth share. One half of the War Memorial's shares is split beneficially among the five cities served by Grosse Pointe Cable, based on the revenue generated over the years from each of the cities.

Rickel is the founder of Grosse Pointe Cable. It was his idea. The organizational structure, ownership and financing scheme were all his. And as the attorney for and then-president of the War Memorial, he proposed that the non-profit community center manage the cable system for the five member cities.

Concerning the economic structuring and performance of his company, Rickel said, "Grosse Pointe Cable has been

These young men from Grosse Pointe Farms decided to go beyond the traditional lemonade stand by offering reprinted baseball cards to Kercheval travelers.

Andy Shelden, 8, left, Cliff Magreta, 12, and Jeff Shelden, 11, made a total of about $2 for two day's work, which was more than they planned.

"We're not in it for the money," Magreta said. "We do it because it's fun." If you happen to be one of their valued customers, don't expect any collector's items.

Farms won't certify election; issue goes to county officials

By Dan Jarvis
Staff Writer

Primary election results remain uncertain in the Aug. 8 Grosse Pointe Farms race for municipal judge as Michigan State Police wind up a three-week investigation.

Richard Solak, city clerk, said the Farms Board of City Canvassers declined to certify election results at the Aug. 22 meeting.

Solak, in a press release, said he recommended that the board not certify election results because the police investigation was under way.

"Although the canvass is essentially a mathematical audit, certain vote totals remain under investigation by the Michigan State Police and therefore are questionable. It would seem prudent that, in such case, as much time as possible be allowed to resolve this issue prior to an audit," he said in the release.

Solak said the board agreed with his recommendation and declined to certify the election count.

Both Solak and Gerald Johnson, a state police investigator, said the investigation should be completed this week and a report is expected to be turned over to both the Wayne County prosecutor and county clerk.

Johnson said earlier that if the local board of canvassers decline to certify the election results, the issue will go before the county board of canvassers and county clerk for a decision.

The county board of canvassers have a deadline of Wednesday, Aug. 30 to certify or reject the vote count.

A county election official said the county board was expected to meet Wednesday, Aug. 30 and was expected to ask for an extension from a Wayne County Circuit Court judge. In his press release, Solak indicated that if any action other than certification were to be recommended by the police investigative report, Wayne County Circuit Court would be requested to assume jurisdiction of the electoral process, as initiated by the county clerk.

As reported earlier, allegations of illegally distributed absentee ballots by Irene Gracey, wife of

Staff Writer

As an illustration of how long Dr. Clifford Benson has been a practicing surgeon, there's this story: A patient whom Benson was examining recently told him that he knew he was in good hands, because, the man said, Benson operated on him 30 years ago.

For more than 60 years, Benson has been practicing medicine in the Detroit area, and at 86 — he turns 87 at the end of October — he still puts in three days a week at Bon Secours Hospital as a consultant in the preoperative clinic.

In 1946 he performed the first operation at the new hospital.

Born in Wisconsin in 1902, Benson received a bachelor of science degree from the University of Wisconsin and in 1929 earned a doctor of medicine degree from Northwestern University.

"I'd have gotten it in 1928, but they had a rule that you couldn't get your M.D. unless you did your one-year internship," he said.

He came to Detroit because he heard Harper Hospital had a residency in surgery program and some other graduates of Northwestern were working at Harper. The first year his salary was room and board. The second and third years he received $25 a month in addition to room and board.

After the second year, Benson got what he calls "my lucky break." It was the summer of 1930 and he landed a spot as the ship's physician on Mr. and Mrs. David Whitney's 175-foot yacht which was embarking on a seven-month tour of Europe. Including Benson, there were five passengers — with a crew of 21.

It took them 11 days to cross the Atlantic. They toured the Norwegian coast, and on July 4, 1930, Benson climbed a mountain at North Cape, the northernmost part of Norway, and

The Grosse Pointe News was awarded first place for community service in the 1989 Suburban Newspapers of America Editorial Contest.

The paper was honored for its series on Alcohol and Adolescents which ran monthly from October 1988 through May 1989. The series was written by staff writers Margie Reins Smith, Ronald J. Bernas, John Minnis, Nancy Parmenter, Peggy O'Connor Andrzejczyk, Rob Fulton, Dan Jarvis and Pat Paholsky.

The judges said, "Without sensationalism or maudlin decrying, this extensive series of articles kept the issue of adolescent alcohol use relentlessly before readers for months. The series was highly responsible and balanced, not only describing the problem, but also offering useful advice on how to help remedy it..."

The paper was also awarded second place for best editorial pages, with the judges citing the "spaciousness of the pages and the clean, fresh, contemporary appearance."

The Grosse Pointe News competed in the Class A category, for papers with a circulation up to 50,000. A total of 1,504 entries from throughout the country were received in the contest and there were 20 categories.

St. Clair Shores man drowns off Lakeshore

The body of Gerald Douglas Cawley, who lived in the 22200 block of Revere, was found about 10 feet from shore off the 700 block of Lakeshore by a resident at 12:30 p.m. Aug. 23.

Police believe the man, who was single and thought to be an epileptic, went swimming after dark Aug. 22 and drowned accidentally. At 7:50 a.m. Aug. 23, the man's three-speed bicycle was found along with his shoes near the breakwall in the 700 block of Lakeshore near the foot of Fontana.

The Coast Guard responded by boat and searched the area of the lake between Vernier and Moross roads. The search was called off, and the man's body was later sighted by a resident, who sent his wife to notify police.

Grosse Pointe Shores Public Safety Chief Daniel Healy reminded residents that swimming, fishing and loitering are prohibited along Lakeshore. He said anyone caught swimming, fishing or lounging will be sent on their way.

Healy said the St. Clair Shores man's bike was lying on its side, and because of the trees and darkness, police did not know the man was by the lake.

done perfectly over the past 10 years."

Because it was Rickel's idea and the War Memorial is acting on behalf of the cities, the community center gets 37.5 percent of the ownership and controls 75 percent of the stock. In fact, the War Memorial's three shares were paid with three $1 bills out of Rickel's own pocket. The $3 were the best contribution he's ever made, Rickel said.

After struggling with planned start-up losses during the first half of this decade, Grosse Pointe Cable finally began ending up with money at the end of 1984, when it realized its first annual net income of $6,000. By 1986 the annual income had doubled to $12,134, and after that the company took off. Net income in 1987 was $200,138, and last year it shot up to $547,000.

Rickel says the company is beginning to make money, but he adds that it has to produce profit in order to pay off its bond debt of $4.3 million by 1994. Also, Grosse Pointe Cable will be required to buy out its technical operator by 1994. What Comcast's 25 percent ownership will be worth in the next decade is unknown, Rickel said.

"The future is not clear as to what is the best direction of the cable system," he said. He pointed out, for example, that if the major telephone companies jumped predatorily into the cable business by subsidizing cable operators, then small operators may not be able to compete, which could make Grosse Pointe Cable unviable.

Rickel would not venture an estimate of Grosse Pointe Cable's current market value. Industry estimates of value, however, put a system's worth at between $2,000 and $3,000 per subscriber.

Grosse Pointe Cable has a 56 percent penetration rate with 14,237 subscribers. Thus, using the per-subscriber estimate, then the cable system could be worth between $28.5 million and $42.7 million.

While the War Memorial with its 37.5 percent share stands to be a big winner financially if the cable system is ever sold, Rickel is quick to point out that the community center has not received a single penny to date from Grosse Pointe Cable since the company's founding.

On the other hand, the five cities together have received over $1 million in franchise fees from Grosse Pointe Cable. Franchise fees are paid to cities by cable providers for the privilege of doing business in the city.

As of the end of June, Grosse Pointe Woods has received $328,837 in franchise fees since 1980. The Farms has received $190,075; City, $107,753; Park $216,080; and Harper Woods, $237,329.

The franchise fees are 5 percent of the charge for basic cable service plus 5 percent of net charge for pay programming.

Grosse Pointe Cable's basic service costs $17.45 a month, and pay channels, such as HBO, cost about $12.95 a month, though package specials are offered.

By comparison, residents in Grosse Pointe Shores, as part of Comcast's system in St. Clair Shores, pay $17.45 for basic and $10.25 for one pay channel and $7 for each additional premium channel. Also, special discount packages are available.

Grosse Pointe Shores received $4,825 in franchise fees last year. Under its agreement with Comcast, the Shores' franchise fees are calculated at 3 percent of gross subscriber revenue.

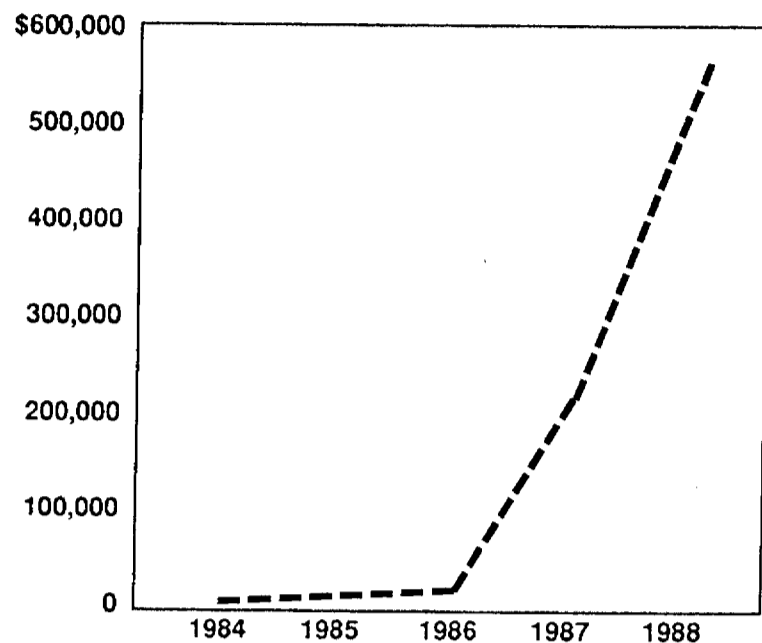

Rickel, who knew nothing about the cable business when he began formulating Grosse Pointe Cable 10 years ago, has a father-like pride in his system. He said one of the best things about Grosse Pointe Cable is that it is owned by the community it serves, and local ownership means control over rates, programming and service.

And while basic rates have climbed from $7.50 nearly a decade ago to $17.45 now, Rickel said the rate increases were necessary to pay off the debt. As the debts are retired, the cable company will have more control over the rates.

From the beginning, Grosse Pointe Cable was a self-funding deal, Rickel said, and presented no liability to the War Memorial or the member cities. And as Rickel proudly points out, it has worked according to plan.

Board adopts new health curriculum

The Grosse Pointe board of education recently approved a new health curriculum for grades K-5 which should provide a broader base of health learning at an earlier age.

Dr. Alfreda Frost, director of elementary curriculum, said the new health model will be better for the students because it was developed not only by the Michigan Department of Education, but also in conjunction with other state agencies, such as the Department of Social Services, the Michigan Department of Public Health, the Office of Substance Abuse and the Michigan Department of Mental Health.

This model is now used in 700 schools in Michigan, including nearly 70 percent of all schools in Wayne County.

"What this does is pull together into one curriculum everything we've been teaching before," Frost said.

Subjects such as self-esteem, which previously was taught in social studies, are combined into a comprehensive package.

The curriculum consists of 40 classroom lessons per grade and uses a hands-on experiential learning approach. The content consists of: disease prevention and control, personal health practices, nutrition, growth and development, family health, substance abuse, consumer health, safety and first aid, community health, emotional and mental health and AIDS.

"Another real strength of the program is the teacher training," Frost said.

All K-5 teachers will receive in-service training. Some teachers were trained last year and the rest will complete the program this year.

All materials, including charts and models, are furnished by the state through the Wayne County Intermediate School District. Because of that, the only cost to the district for this new program is what is paid in substitute fees while the teachers are in training. Frost said that money will come out of the staff development budget.

AIDS is part of the new health curriculum, and according to Frost, the teachers will receive the most comprehensive training on the subject. She added that sex education is still separate, and will still require parental permission for student participation.

"We're really excited about this," Frost said.

Emphasis on fun at nursery school

The Cooperative Nursery School at Christ Church, Inc. has a few openings for the school year beginning Sept. 14.

Under the direction of Mary Ellen Kelly, the two classes, 3's and 4's, function in a nurturing environment several mornings a week. Mothers and/or fathers are a vital component in the classroom, serving once every six to eight weeks.

The teaching staff, Rhondi Kreger, Sue Simonson and Cherie Hollerbach, helps supervise daily activities, field trips, holiday parties and other events including the annual Beach Party, (held in January), May Day Party, Art Night, Pajama Party and end of the year picnic.

Located on Grosse Pointe Boulevard, the school has its own private enclosed schoolyard. The curriculum includes games, music, stories, gym, art and general socialization all within a relaxed, supervised setting.

The board of trustees, President Lis Jeffries and Vice President Kathy Boccaccio invite your involvement in the school and ask interested parents to call 881-2223 or 886-3423 with questions or to arrange an informal visit to the school.

Nude man runs through Park

A man who took off his clothes and was running through a Grosse Pointe Park neighborhood was caught by police last week.

The man was apprehended in the 1300 block of Kensington after being chased on foot through rear yards. The man remained violent while in custody, according to a police bulletin.

The man was taken to a nearby crisis center.

A 1988 Chevrolet Blazer was stolen from a bank parking lot at Mack and Moross in Grosse Pointe Farms Aug. 22.

The owner of the vehicle, a Woods man, went into the bank at 12:16 p.m. and returned 10 minutes later to find his truck gone. He had taken his keys but left the door unlocked.

Enroll for children's theater

Grosse Pointe Children's Theatre has set enrollment for its 36th season at the War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore.

Registration for new members of grade school age will be held Friday, Sept. 8 from 4 to 5:30 p.m. and middle school and high school students from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

Returning members will enroll on Saturday, Sept. 9 at the same location. Grade school students will register from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m., middle school from noon to 1 p.m., and high school from 1 to 2:30 p.m.

Classes of one and one and a half hours will begin the following weekend and will run for 10 weeks. Fee is $84.

Classes will be arranged according to age and experience. There will also be four productions during the season for which students may audition.

Sally Reynolds, founder, producer and director of Grosse Pointe Children's Theatre will teach the classes. She has an undergraduate degree in children's theater from Michigan State University and a master's from Wayne State University. She has directed and acted professionally and taught drama to youth through the years.

Ferriole-Petrie Properties Inc. of Grosse Pointe Park is proposing converting the old Lakepointe Oldsmobile building on Jefferson into an office building. The exterior will be refurbished similar to this artist's drawing.

Mini-office-park proposed for Lakepointe Olds building

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

A 12-tenant office park is being planned for the old Lakepointe Oldsmobile building on Jefferson in Grosse Pointe Park.

Ferriole-Petrie Properties Inc. of Grosse Pointe Park has plans to refurbish the exterior of the building and partition the interior for up to a dozen tenants, according to James Ferriole Jr.

Ferriole presented his plans for the 60-year-old Albert Kahn building at Lakepointe and Jefferson before the City Council Monday night. Ferriole was requesting a parking variance for the project, which he is calling Lakepointe Park.

Ferriole, who has an option on the building, plans to spend $2 million on the Lakepointe Park project. The dollar figure includes purchasing the property and refurbishing the facade, which according to an artist's drawing will include the rounded type of modern awnings that are now popular. The interior will also be finished.

The members of the council were pleased that Ferriole was planning to fix up and reopen the building, which is now vacant and falling into disrepair, but several were concerned with the types of tenants proposed for the building, which is zoned OS-1, an office-services zoning.

A list provided by Ferriole of possible tenant uses included a dry cleaners with no on-site cleaning, an optical retailer, travel agency, Mail Box U.S.A. and packaging store, photographic studio, answering service, counseling service, medical or dental lab, detective agency, employment agency, real estate office, health/weight control salon, interior design office, nursing registry, sun tanning salon, fast printing shop and a non-retail pasta maker.

The allowed uses under the OS-1 zoning include banks, accountant and law offices, medical offices, personal services, barber and beauty shops and similar uses.

George Everham, who is acting as a real estate consultant for the project, said the similar uses category is vague and the list of possible uses was presented to the council for it to help define what can be allowed in the building.

The council expressed concern over the amount of traffic some of the retail-oriented tenants may generate. Also, there was concern over whether there would be enough parking available.

According to Ferriole's estimate of 18,774 square feet of usable floor space, a minimum of 47 on-site parking spaces are required. Ferriole is asking the council to allow him to have 40 on-site parking spaces.

The council is also concerned that whatever uses it allows at Lakepointe Park, it will also have to allow in similarly zoned properties throughout the city.

Mayor Palmer T. Heenan suggested that the matter be referred to the Planning Commission so that another public hearing could be held and the allowable tenants be discussed. He asked the developers to be patient and work with the city.

"This building is an Albert Kahn building," Heenan said. "It is a treasure. It has character and charm. And we must listen seriously to people who want to convert a vacant building."

The council agreed and ordered that the matter go before the Planning Commission Sept. 19.

Everham said Ferriole had hoped to begin construction on the building in October.

Windmill Pointe man faces cocaine charge

Alleged stolen goods found earlier in home

A 37-year-old Grosse Pointe Park resident, whose Windmill Pointe home was earlier found allegedly harboring more than $40,000 in stolen goods, pleaded innocent to possession of cocaine last week.

Alfred Berdayes was arraigned before Park Municipal Judge Kirsten Frank Aug. 21 on a charge of possession of less than 50 grams of cocaine.

The drug charge stems from a search of the resident's home Aug. 4 in the 15300 block of Windmill Pointe Drive. At the time, the alleged stolen goods were found at the home as well as the alleged cocaine.

On Aug. 5, a Park 17-year-old who was living at the home was arraigned on a felony charge of breaking and entering. He pleaded innocent to the charge in Park Municipal Court and has been bound over to Wayne County Circuit Court.

The 17-year-old is free on $2,000, 10 percent bond and was ordered to move back into his mother's home, also in the Park. He was also forbidden to have any contact with the Windmill Pointe residents.

The 37-year-old Windmill Pointe man, Berdayes, was released on $5,000 personal bond.

Following the Aug. 5 arraignment of the 17-year-old, police said the discovery of the stolen goods closed the books on at least 10 home burglaries in the Park since August 1988.

Found in the Windmill Pointe home was an assortment of stolen goods, including electronic equipment, silverware, jewelry, art objects and oriental rugs.

Board talks more about library; takes one step closer to a decision

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Another meeting of the school board Monday night has moved it a little closer to making a decision on the fate of the libraries.

The decision on which process should be followed before approving a library building is scheduled to be made at the Tuesday, Sept. 5 meeting.

The library issue has been before the board for at least two years and was brought to its attention again earlier this month when members of the Library Building and Advisory Committee asked the board to raise the $6 million cap and look at other options.

At the end of the meeting, the board agreed to raise the cap to $7 million and that figure was to include only the construction of a new 40,000-45,000 square foot building at Brownell School which would have minimum impact on the playing fields, would have future growth potential and would have room for all of the programs the community needs.

The board was also in agreement that another architect would be contacted with the above guidelines as a way of ensuring that it gets the most for its money. Although most members were pleased with the work of Oster-Milling, the architectural firm that has been working on the project, some members felt another expert might help make them make a decision.

That decision has been the stumbling block for a long time, and the board has been told that it's time to make up its mind.

"Once the board makes a decision," President Jon Gandelot said, "there will be no problem selling it to the community. But we've got to get off the dime. The perception is that the board can't get off its duff."

Another decision the board had to make is whether there was a limit on how much money it was going to ask the community for in a bond issue. There had been talk that the board would not ask for any more than $6 million and raise the rest privately. The board agreed to bond whatever is needed to make up the difference.

But no matter what decision is made Tuesday, the next big project the board has is to sell the library and the bond issue to the people.

The tentative timeline the board is expected to follow calls for an election in February 1991 for the bond issue.

Kidnapping hoax reported

A Grosse Pointe Woods woman reported a prank phone call to police last week during which the caller said the woman's husband was kidnapped.

The woman received the call at 10:55 a.m. Aug. 26. The call went something like this:

Caller: It this the John Doe residence?

Woman: Who is this calling?

Caller: The reason I'm calling is because your husband has been kidnapped.

Woman: Oh, really?

Caller: Yes. I'll let you speak with John and he will tell you what to do.

Pause.

Caller: Do you have any masking tape and stockings in the home?

Woman: Yes.

Caller: I want you to place the tape and stockings around your mouth because I don't want you to scream. I don't want you calling the police department.

Woman: Silence.

Caller: Hello. Hello. Answer me.

Woman: Click.

According to the police report, the woman then called her husband at work. He was fine and told her to call police.

Child care center seeks enrollments

Shores Child Care Center, sponsored by St. Clair Shores Adult and Community Education, is currently accepting enrollments.

Shores Child Center is a developmental extended preschool child care center for children from 3 to 6 years of age. Various enrollment options are available for children of working parents and students, including full day, half day, or flexible schedule.

The center is located at 10815 St. Gertrude (12 Mile & Little Mack area) in St. Clair Shores. Information can be obtained by calling 296-8233.

Cocaine, marijuana abuse next topic

The topic of Brighton Hospital's next Community Education Program on Tuesday, Sept. 5, is "Cocaine and Marijuana — What Everyone Must Know." The free program begins at 7 p.m. in the chapel, and reservations are not required.

At the meeting Stephen Bartholomew, P.A.C., a member of the hospital's medical staff, will discuss the effects of these two drugs on the body. Bartholomew will also discuss the treatment options that are available for both the substance abuser and his or her family.

3 Eagles Scouts honored

Parcells School Boy Scout Troop 479 honored three Eagle Scouts at its Spring Court of Honors at Bayview Yacht Club.

The Hon. Dorothy Comstock Riley, chief justice of the Supreme Court of Michigan, opened the award ceremonies with the remarks directed to all of the troop's scouts. She expressed concern about the current state of ethics in the United States. She told the boys that they are the hope of the future as exemplified in the Code of Honor of the Boys Scouts of America.

Britt Baubie, Peter Ellison and Jim Murray received their Eagle Awards along with congratulations from the President and Mrs. Bush, Governor Blanchard, and Grosse Pointe North High School Principal John Kasran. Scoutmaster and Mrs. Joseph L. Meinig made their own special gift to each boy with the presentation of flags that were flown over the Capitol Building in Washington, D.C.

Nearly 100 friends and relatives attended the dinner and ceremony as 23 scouts received a total of 65 awards.

In addition to the three Eagle Scouts, Rob Dallaire and Dan Meier became Life Scouts. Dave Eisenbrey, Dan Meier and Scott Wilcox received the Star Award.

Erik Dahlstrom, Chris Frey, Jon Opdyke, Nathan Pierantoni, Paul Serilla, Sean Stevenson and Scott Wilcox earned the rank of First Class Scout. Erik Dahlstrom, Chris Frey, Jon Opdyke, Nathan Pierantoni, Jeff Profeta, Paul Serilla and Sean Stevenson became Second Class Scouts.

John Everett earned his Tenderfoot Award. Anthony Lombardi, Justin Roose, Marshall Swanson and Matthew Thibodeaux, newest members of the troop, are now scouts.

Wood's meters enter electronic age

By Dan Jarvis
Staff Writer

Like Grosse Pointe City, the Woods will soon have electronic parking meters.

But don't look for any Jetsonesque, space-age design. Besides a new paint job, the meters will look much the same, but will be filled with electronic modules.

Thomas A. Whitcher, director of Public Works, said that the current parking meters are worn out and give incorrect times.

Due to numerous problems with the existing meter mechanisms, most of which are 25 years old, Whitcher said it is the recommendation of the DPW to update meters with electronic logic modules from Duncan Industries.

The advantage of the electronic meters over their mechanical counterparts, according to Whitcher, is that the time and money amounts can be changed on the spot instead of removing them from poles and hauling them into a repair shop.

Computerized and battery operated, 600 new meters will cost the city $186.48 each. The total cost is $111,880.

The annual cost of batteries is $6.28 each and will be paid after the first year of operation.

Whitcher also recommended that the meter housings be reconditioned: sandblasted, primed, painted and sealed.

Meter housings will be reconditioned by city employee Mike Calahan for $14 each. For 600 units, the total cost for the housing reconditioning will cost the city about $8,400.

Both Whitcher and administrators say the up-front cost for the electronic modules and the housing reconditioning will quickly be balanced by long-term savings due to less maintenance.

Total cost of 600 modules and reconditioning of the same number of housings is $120,280.

Squirrel killing irks neighbor

A 40-year-old Farms man retaliated against his 40-year-old neighbor's practice of shooting squirrels last week by smashing out his BB-gun-toting neighbor's windows.

Farms officers replying to a trouble-with-neighbor complaint at 9:30 a.m. Aug. 26 in the 300 block of Moran found one neighbor in the act of smashing out the windows of another neighbor's house with a crowbar.

The window smasher explained that his neighbor has been shooting a BB gun at squirrels and killing them. He said he likes the squirrels and feeds them and has warned his neighbor on several occasions not to hurt the squirrels. Finally the killing got the best of him and he retaliated by smashing out his neighbor's windows.

The neighbor admitted to killing squirrels and said he didn't like the rodents because they were digging up his yard. He also thinks it's a health hazard for his neighbor to be setting out food.

The neighbor minus two large windows wants malicious destruction of property charges filed against his squirrel-loving neighbor, who in turn wants the fearless hunter charged for firing a gun in the city.

Library faces new vote on space needs

In view of its recent election experience, the Grosse Pointe Board of Education is wise to be cautious in deciding on the date for a new library bond issue election and the size of the bond issue to be sought.

Pointers will recall that earlier this year it took two elections before the board could obtain approval of a renewal and an increase in the millage to finance school operating costs.

Many also will recall that the last time the board sought approval of a bond issue and a 1-mill property tax increase in November 1987 to finance library improvements and construction, the proposals went down the drain in the face of criticism of both the size of the $8.6 million bond issue and the use of a small part of South High School's athletic field for the Central Library expansion.

Despite the importance of careful and prudent study, however, it is clear that the library's space needs are continuing to mount and that some action ought to be taken to alleviate the problem. The school board apparently agrees with that view and may adopt a specific plan at its Sept. 5 meeting.

Since defeat of the 1987 bond issue, a study committee has been investigating locations for a new building, the possibility of keeping costs of the library improvement program to perhaps $6 million and the possibility of raising perhaps as much as an additional $2 million from private sources to ease the burden on Grosse Pointe taxpayers.

In a recent report, the committee did recommend in favor of the Brownell Middle School site and suggested that the board raise the $6 million cap on the grounds that construction of a new building and renovation of the existing branches in Grosse Pointe Woods and the Park could not be completed for that figure.

As it deliberates about the future of the library expansion program, the school board will also have before it a report by expert Anders Dahlgren of Library Planning Associates that proposes eight options spelling out alternative ways in which the future space needs of the library and the services sought by Grosse Pointe residents could best be met.

Dahlgren's own recommendation was for a building estimated to cost $6,918,238. That figure is in the middle of the options ranging from the highest proposal of $9,308,000 to a low of $5,986,375. The latter, however, was ruled unacceptable by Dahlgren himself.

One of the library's problems is that in common with libraries everywhere, its functions have widened as it becomes more of an information center than a traditional book lending institution. That means the library needs more and more space just to house new resources such as the thousands of records, tapes, compact disks and audio and visual cassettes the library expects to have on hand in the future.

Another of the library's problems is the future use of the current Breuer building which houses the Central Library services. The 1987 vote against the proposed addition to that structure apparently killed the possibility that it could be expanded sufficiently to fulfill present and future library needs at that site. But some other community use surely could be found for this beautiful structure in one of the prize locations in the Farms.

Whatever library expansion plan finally is proposed to the voters in an election tentatively set for February 1991, it is likely to face some opposition in view of the community's recent reluctance to increase its tax burdens, as shown in the 1987 and 1989 library and school votes.

But from the evidence we've seen and heard, expansion of space is required if the Pointes are to maintain their tradition of providing excellent library services. From the board's careful and prudent examination of the problem and the alternative solutions, we are confident the public will get an acceptable expansion plan.

That Hill parking fee boost

As predicted, reconstruction of the municipal parking lot behind retail shops on the west side of Kercheval in the Farms has created new confusion over parking in the Hill shopping area.

Customers, shop owners and employees all are being affected although the reopening of the reconstructed lot in the near future is expected to ease some of the problems but, unfortunately, not all of them.

For one thing, the cost of parking, especially for long-term use, will be substantially increased both for on-street metered parking and in the municipal lot which will be converted into an attended lot, if the council accepts the recommendations of an ad hoc parking committee at its Sept. 11 meeting.

Metered parking in front of retail shops on the Hill will remain at one hour but the cost will be 50 cents, as compared with the present 20 cents. Cost for the meters serving the Richard lot.

And the attended municipal lot, replacing the metered parking lot, will charge 25 cents for each of the first three hours, as contrasted with the old 20-cent-an-hour metered rate for up to eight hours on some meters. In the attended lot, an additional fourth hour will cost $1.50 and all-day parking $5.

For another thing, the length of some parking periods will be reduced by cutting the metered time limit in the Richard school lot.

The purpose of these changes, recommended to the Farms council by the ad-hoc committee, is to keep the short-term, convenience shoppers parking on Kercheval, while keeping longer term shoppers in the Richard lot.

People leasing $20 a month spaces in the municipal lot were notified last week of the cancellation of their leases as of today, Aug. 31. They will have access at the same cost, however, to new leases in the Cottage Hospital B-lot, located between the parking structure and Ridge Road, as space is available.

In effect, however, the only city parking accommodation on a full-time basis will be the $5 per day or $25 per week charge in the attended lot. That makes the monthly cost of new attended parking more than four times what it was in the old leased lot.

Business people on the Hill are mainly concerned, of course, about accommodating their customers but they also must be concerned about accommodating their own employees and about the competition from other shopping areas, such as in the City, which maintains generally lower parking rates, and at Eastland, which offers free parking.

City officials expect the reconstructed and lighted municipal lot will be a great improvement over the metered lot in terms of aesthetics, convenience and safety. Let's hope they are proved correct and that those advantages will offset the disadvantages of the increased cost of parking.

Rescue

To the Editor:

I must write to tell you how heartwarming it was to read of the efforts of the Michigan Humane Society, Farms police, Wayne County Sheriff's office and Dr. Lawrence Herzog in rescuing Jane Doe on August 9.

One of the reasons I'm glad to live in the Pointes is because of people like these who take the time and no little effort to rescue an animal in distress when so many other pressing matters require attention.

I would particularly like to show my gratitude and appreciation to Dr. Herzog, as I know this is not the first time he has responded to the police call when an animal has been in danger.

As he has been the veterinarian to our family's two cats and two dogs, I can also personally attest to the personal interest he takes in all creatures' welfare.

Bless you all.

A joke?

To the Editor:

Last Wednesday, Aug 23, I was witness to an incident at Waldenbooks in the Village that angered me and that I think bears relating.

Four junior high age males entered the store and raced through it, firing caps and shouting at the manager to turn over her cash to them. One of them yelled sarcastically to ask her if she was going to call the police "this time"—and one shouted to ask if she was going to tell the police that they had raped her.

As they dashed out the side exit, the last of the four was grabbed by a clerk and detained. This young man whined in protest, saying it was just a joke; that he and his friends had pulled the same stunt in two other Grosse Pointe stores and the reaction had been laughter. And he expressed outrage that there was any thought of the police being called.

Meanwhile, the clerk who was leaving for the day saw the other three boys on the sidewalk behind Waldenbooks, where they were apparently waiting for their friend. When they learned that the police might be called, their manner was defensive and they asked what they'd done wrong: Why anyone would be upset?

The manager did call the police, who came and took the boy away — with what result I do not know. The manager, needless to say, was quite shaken. She, along with at least one other customer, had believed for a moment that the guns and intent to rob were real. These same boys had caused trouble at Waldenbooks before by loud and obnoxious behavior and refusal to leave the store.

If I were a parent of these boys, I would be more than just embarrassed or ashamed. I would be frightened by my son's ideas of acceptable behavior and his attitude toward guns and violence. These boys' apparent lack of understanding of any wrongdoing, and their disrespect of authority are, it seems to me, just short steps away from the amoral thinking of true criminals we read about daily.

And I can't help but speculate on the reaction to the above scenario had it taken place on inner city streets — where shouts of robbery and rape are no joke and the guns are real.

'90 'Lincoln-Douglas' debates?

Clark Durant, the only Pointer still known to be harboring ambitions for a U.S. senatorial seat, has challenged Sen. Carl Levin to agree to a 1990 series of seven debates based on the Lincoln-Douglas model of 1858 with the GOP senatorial nominee, whomever he might be.

Durant picked up on Levin's earlier comment that he would like to hold debates on the issues for the 1990 Senate election in Michigan.

Durant complimented Levin on his "great idea" and suggested he ought to agree now to debate whomever is nominated by the Republicans. Durant proposed following the pattern of the 1858 Lincoln-Douglas debates which Lincoln proposed and Douglas accepted to the benefit of the people of Illinois.

"The U.S. Senate race for 1990 will offer a clear choice to every citizen of Michigan," Durant wrote. "Your convictions and beliefs, though honestly held, are substantially different from the platform and positions of the Republican Party. Such differences offer a great opportunity for debate."

In his letter, Durant proposed that the debates examine the issues and cited in particular:

"Taxes, government spending, the cost of creating jobs in Michigan, welfare and the erosion of the family, abortion, the growth of the bureaucracy in Congress and in the government, drugs, the decline of our cities and educational competitiveness, and the development of democracy behind the Iron and Bamboo curtains."

The idea is a good one, although it is extremely doubtful that a modern audience would be willing to listen to a political debate for hours at a time, as they did in 1858 for the seven Lincoln-Douglas debates. And if the debates were televised statewide, it probably would not be necessary to schedule as many as seven.

Aside from these minor criticisms, we think the proposal for a series of debates is one that Levin ought to accept, especially since he suggested it in the first place.

By issuing the challenge, Durant gave new evidence that he is taking his campaign very seriously. In fact, he is already reaping some rewards from his campaign for an "opportunity society."

Just last week he captured 61 percent of the vote in a straw poll at the Michigan Federation of Young Republicans state convention with only 36 percent going to Congressman Bill Schuette, a yet-to-announce candidate for the GOP Senate nomination. Durant also claimed the endorsement of a majority of GOP district chairmen.

As a precedent, the Lincoln-Douglas series offers something for each party. While Democrat Douglas won the election to the U.S. Senate in the Illinois legislature in 1858 after the debates, the performance of Republican Lincoln prepared the way for his successful campaign for the presidency in 1860.

A day at the old state fair

By now we've all heard that the Michigan State Fair is in full swing.

Since I missed the fair during the last several years, I was determined to make it this year.

But I didn't go for the cotton candy or the gut-wrenching rides I loved so much as a boy. This year I was looking for something else.

As the first state fair in the United States, the Michigan State Exposition Fair has a long and rich history.

And the rural aspect (pigs, horses and cows) is the most fascinating part of the fair for me.

And so it went this year for me and my fiancée.

After the ritualistic search for a parking spot and a quick dish of ice cream, we headed right for the hogs.

Maybe my fascination with the ugly beasts comes from the fact that when I was growing up, there wasn't a hog in sight.

My only experience with farm animals was either at the zoo or during a family vacation that featured riding horses.

This year at the fair I was able to get nose-to-nose with some of the largest hogs I have ever seen. Some real prize winners, no doubt.

While watching them eat (after being slopped), my fiancée, who was also in awe, turned to me and quipped, "Now I know why they're called pigs -- they eat like pigs."

Well they may eat like pigs, but they're hogs, plain and simple.

In case other city folk (like us) are unsure, a pig, according to the Random House dictionary, is a young swine less than 120 pounds.

A hog is a domestic swine

greater than 120 pounds.

The Guinness Book of World Records lists the largest hog as belonging to the Poland-China breed and owned by Buford Butler of Jackson, Tenn. during the 1930s. Named "Big Bill," the record-holding hog weighed 2,552 pounds and was over nine feet long from snout to twisting tail.

For an unknown reason, Big Bill was eventually sent to the big slop trough in the sky by a lethal dose of chloroform. I have no doubt that the event brought a tear to Buford's eye. At least Big Bill gave Jackson, Tenn. an identity.

One hog at the fair was nearly as large. It was not moving very much, so a quick slap to the back (which I learned from watching the hog farmers) brought the animal to life.

After protesting the unwanted attention with loud squealing and grunting noises, the hog again settled to its neutral position, after checking its trough one more time for food. A sad life it seems, to be a hog on tour.

Next we entered the State Fair Coliseum and were delighted to find a very well organized equestrian exhibition.

Approximately 20 experienced riders on horseback were riding in a circle, demonstrating various gallops and walks. In what appeared to be a complicated series of commands by each rider, horses were going through a like number of moves in perfect unison -- very slowly and deliberately.

As one who does not frequent equestrian events, the uniformity of movement was amazing. We sat there in complete silence for quite some time before noticing the slightest variation between the horses' movements.

All the while, a subdued voice was broadcast over the public address system giving commands like, "walk, canter, reverse walk and prance."

The horses seemed to understand every word. If you haven't seen one of these events, it might be fun.

We watched for a while as judges tested each horse's ability to back up without turning. I didn't know horses had a reverse gear.

Then we hit the midway. Though we liked the country atmosphere of the fair, we just had to hit the giant ferris wheel, a couple of junk food stands and one of my favorites, the sharp-shooter game.

Like a BB gun, the sharp-shooter game, despite two tries, reminded me that being a crack shot with a rifle requires a lot of practice. I took aim, gently squeezed the trigger and in a blaze of gunfire suitable for any Western, I missed. Oh well, I didn't want the stupid stuffed animal anyway.

If you get a chance this weekend and are looking for something to do, head for the fairgrounds.

The rides, the fun house, the corndogs, the barkers and the miles of neon at night are a few reasons to make it.

But I like old-time aspect of the fair best. The farm animals, the rodeo, the wagon rides and the cooking contests are the best reasons to go.

Limo-nade

If life hands you a limo, what should you do?

Go to Baskin-Robbins, of course.

Especially if you're a kid. The kids on Country Club Drive in Grosse Pointe Woods were treated to a ride in a 28-foot white Lincoln limousine Aug. 16.

The stretch limo belongs to Mr. and Mrs. Roger Basse and the neighborhood group was one of the first to ride in it.

A lot of oohing and ahhhing and picture-taking preceded the ride. Then each child was picked up, individually, at his or her home.

Included in the evening's surprise were Rachel Bassé, 5, Angela Michels, 9, Lauren Michels, 5, Alyssa Mellis of Ann Arbor, Nicholas Sauer, 5, Lindsey Grosso, 5, and Andrew Rabe, 6.

Golden anniversary

their 50th wedding anniversary Sept. 9.

Daughters Beverly Kaye Sneed of San Diego, Claudia Brown of Dallas and son Roger Gary Kaye of Sterling Heights will join in the celebration.

The Kayes exchanged vows in Detroit on Sept. 9, 1939 at the church of St. Stanislaus.

George Kaye is a retired director of the Michigan Veterans Trust Fund and a past state commander of the Disabled American Veterans.

Fall into Michigan

The 52-page Michigan Fall Travel Guide and calendar of events is out.

The booklet outlines 25 fall color tours, from the Keweenaw Peninsula to Detroit, and suggests the best times to take them.

It also includes directories of cider mills, state parks, symphonies, theaters, sources of travel information and suggestions on how to stretch your summer.

Coming up soon is the traditional Labor Day stroll across the Mackinac Bridge, led by Gov. James J. Blanchard.

The Michigan Wine and Harvest Festival is coming up in Kalamazoo and Paw Paw Sept. 7-10 and the Mackinac Island Carriage Festival on Mackinac Island, Sept. 30-Oct. 1.

Mystery is solved

Alana Sullivan of Grosse Pointe Farms, said she believes she has the scoop on that finch-like bird with a kelly green tail that has been spotted in several backyard bird-type fast food establishments recently.

At least four Grosse Pointers have called the Audubon Society to report the colorful visitor. The Audubon Society didn't know what it was.

Sullivan spotted the unusual bird and mentioned it to her neighbor.

Oh yeah, said he. "I've been marking the birds that come to my back yard feeder with non-toxic paint for a while -- to see if they come back."

Ah-ha. Sullivan said the mystery bird is probably a plain ol' sparrow with some paint on its tail.

Crime, drug epidemics: Rhetoric vs. reality

There's an old story about the man who stayed too late at the tavern and discovered, as he weaved several blocks down the sidewalk, that his money had dropped from his pocket. For nearly an hour, he stood under a street lamp with his eyes cast to the ground. "I've lost my bankroll," the man explained to a passerby. "It could be anywhere but I'm looking here because the light is so much better."

In much the same fashion, we have sometimes focused on the difficult issues of crime at times and in places where the issues are illuminated by publicity. Instead of concentrating on what works in crime prevention and punishment, Congress has too often cast about for what works in crime politics. In the process, too many have become hooked on tough talk and grand game plans.

The federal government is in a unique position with respect to battling crime, from its causes, to law enforcement and the prosecution and imprisonment of offenders.

But when we act at the federal level, we can't afford just to concentrate on the most visible concerns of the day: drugs and juvenile crime today, gangs tomorrow, car theft and home burglaries the next. Instead, the proper federal role is to provide strong support to state and local law enforcement officials who spend their days handling a volatile mix of crimes and criminals.

A prime example is the war on drugs. We now have a drug czar, William Bennett, who has proven his ability to make speeches about drugs and drug criminals. But most of the major issues in the war on drugs have nothing to do with visibility in Washington.

Instead, we need to ask about the viability of the drug fight in the urban, suburban and rural communities of our nation. The questions that need answering are very specific to our system of local law enforcement. Do the beat cops, sheriffs and federal agents have the tools to penetrate the drug markets? Do they have the best intelligence available to keep dangerous South American drug cartels out of their jurisdictions? Do they have the benefit of state-of-the-art military intelligence to protect our borders?

Do state, city and local officials have confidence that addicts who want treatment can get that treatment and thereby break the vicious cycle of drug addiction, crime and imprisonment?

Do they have the confidence that prosecutors can win convictions instead of plea bargains; that communities and states have the prison space so judges can impose prison time instead of parole--including, in serious crimes, sentences with no possibility of release?

And finally, are parents all over this country confident that their children are being educated in schools that teach the jarring truth about drugs?

Laws that leave criminals with the unmistakable impression that doing a crime will mean "doing time" are one way to help both communities and their courts. That was the thinking behind my amendment in 1986 that set a mandatory prison sentence for anyone convicted of using children to distribute drugs or dealing drugs in or near school. Closing down the deadly children's market in drug means fewer young people hooked on drugs as they enter their teen years, and a chance for educational efforts against drugs to work.

A good example of the way the federal government can assist local law enforcement efforts can be found at the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center. Located at an abandoned Air Force base in Georgia, the center trains 30,000 local officers each year in a variety of subjects including firearms and criminal investigation.

It was there in mid-June that President Bush unveiled plans to spend approximately $1.2 billion for a package of anti-crime efforts, including more officers, prosecutors and prisons.

But while that proposal was being laid out, in Washington the budget submitted by the president showed the center's spending would be cut by 20 percent.

Moreover, this same administration's budget failed to include funds for new court personnel and drug enforcement agents that were promised in last year's anti-drug bill. Once again, we witness a failure to back the rhetoric with the necessary funding.

Recently, I joined in introducing legislation in the Senate to direct new funds--including $41 million for Michigan--to combat drug-related crime through improved drug intelligence operations. The Drug Intelligence Act of 1989, if passed, would help state and local governments to monitor, track and prosecute drug dealers and money launderers by establishing a network of drug intelligence units.

No one understands the war on drugs better than local law enforcement officials on the front lines. This legislation signals our intention to put federal money and expertise to work at the community level. It would provide a boost to police departments when their budgets are at their tightest, but the needs are greatest.

Crime prevention and punishment require that leaders understand what works best, not just what sounds best. Local cops and prosecutors don't need speeches. What they need from Congress and the administration is help in dealing with the massive strain that crime, especially drug-related crime, has placed on their resources.

Diabetes series begins Sept. 7

Between 10 and 11 million people in America have diabetes — a disease that is the No. 1 cause of blindness, No. 2 cause of kidney transplantation and contributor to heart attack, strokes, gangrene of the legs, and a leading cause of impotency in men, among other complications.

It's estimated that five to six million people have diabetes but don't know it, and that the disease results in $20 billion in direct and indirect costs annually in the United States.

David Thomson, M.D., of Warren, chief of endocrinology at the hospital will speak.

To register for this program, call the St. John Physician Referral and Information Service at 1-800-237-5646 weekdays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Registration deadline is Tuesday, Sept. 5.

Future topics planned for the series include: "Exercise and Diabetes," "Weight Control and Holiday Eating," "Coping with Diabetes," "Managing Stress" and more.

The first program in a free year-long diabetes education lecture series on this potentially dangerous, yet often controllable disease, called "Diabetes: an Overview," will be presented Thursday, Sept. 7 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at St. John Hospital and Medical Center's auditorium, 22101 Moross at Mack (one mile east of the I-94 freeway).

The purpose of the program is to make people aware of problems diabetes can cause and offer advice for practical management of the disease.

Woods home burglarized

A Grosse Pointe Woods home was broken into during a 43-minute period last week while the homeowner was out on an errand.

The resident of the home in the 2000 block of Hampton left the house at 10 a.m. Aug. 22. When she returned at 10:43 a.m., she noticed a door she had locked was ajar.

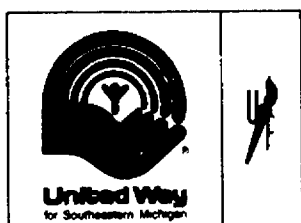

According to police reports, the burglar got into the home by removing a screen from a rear window that was not locked. The house was not ransacked and an RCA color television was taken from the living room.

A nearby resident told police a stranger came to her door at 10:15 a.m. and asked for "Randy Topinkin," which she said she recognized as an entertainer's name.

The man was driving a rusty, green pickup truck with racks. The truck also had spots where it was painted with primer.

The suspect is described as white, 35 to 40 years old, slim, almost 6 feet tall, and had brown shoulder-length hair. He wore green khaki pants and a gray sweatshirt.

Census Bureau seeks managers

Plans are being finalized by the U.S. Census Bureau in Michigan for the purpose of conducting the 1990 Decennial Census of Population and Housing. Several offices in our area are to be opened by November 1989 to facilitate this procedure.

The census is vital to our area because of the federal dollars involved. Thus, the Census Bureau has asked for assistance in recruiting the best available persons to fill the supervisory/management positions. They will be full time through September 1990.

Some of the skills they are looking for include experience in public speaking, ability to supervise and coordinate groups of people, ability to conduct interviews, experience with personal computers, and implementing and overseeing payroll systems.

A background in public or business administration, statistics and computer sciences would also be helpful. In addition, you must be a United States citizen. Veterans, if qualified, you will be contacted to make arrangements for testing and a personal

Electrical fire at yacht club

An electrician working in the basement of the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club received first- and second-degree burns on his hands and forearms Aug. 21 when a short cause a small fire.

Shores firefighters responded to the call at 11:18 a.m. The electrician was changing circuit breakers when an exploding short circuit threw a shower of sparks. The electrician blocked his face and eyes with his hands and arms.

The man was taken to Bon Secours Hospital. No other damage was reported at the yacht club.

Here in Michigan 793 men, women and children died in alcohol-related crashes last year. That is why MADD and Volkswagen United States, Inc. are focusing state attention on the third annual Drive For Life public awareness campaign.

We are asking all motorists to turn on their headlights during daylight hours of the Labor Day Weekend in remembrance of those 793 individuals who were killed in drunk driving crashes and, of course, to drive sober over the Labor Day Weekend and for the rest of the year.

planted an American flag. The ship toured Stockholm, Finland, and went into Germany.

They traveled that country by train. His hotel room overlooked the presidential palace where every day at 3:59, President Von Hindenburg would be treated to a concert on the grounds. From his room, Benson listened to the music and watched as the German president listened from his seat.

Whitney found out that Benson played the horn and every time they left a port, he asked the young doctor to face the flag and play "Stars and Stripes Forever." Benson still thinks that's funny today.

They traveled to France and then to Bermuda, wrapping up their trip seven months and 16,000 miles after it started. He remembers the trip well.

In 1932 he ended his residency and became the first full-time resident in thoracic surgery at Herman Kiefer Hospital.

After a short stay he went to Children's Hospital and stayed there for 40 years, serving as chief of surgery from 1957 to 1967. Except for four years he spent in the Navy as an associate chief of surgery, he performed more than 2,000 operations during the war.

He continued his affiliation with Harper Hospital during that time. He also spent 10 years as a volunteer working with interns at Detroit Receiving Hospital, and began his affiliation with the medical school at Wayne State University.

During the time spent at Children's Hospital, he developed a name for himself among the top children's surgeons in the country. He did this by developing new methods of treating two congenital bowel problems which caused the deaths of many infants.

The Benson Pyloric Spreader, an instrument still in use today, was created by Benson to fix a blockage of the stomach in newborns.

In the early '50s he found a way to attach parts of intestines which, for some reason, were not fully formed in the womb prior to birth.

Dr. Clifford Benson and a portrait of him signed by friends and colleagues who honored him recently at a testimonial dinner when he was made emeritus professor of clinical surgery at Wayne State.

Ironically, the same year he presented this method to the medical society, a man in England, completely independently, presented a similar method to the English medical establishment.

Both methods are still in use today and the recovery rate is 90 percent. Prior to this method, all children with this affliction died.

"These babies we do this operation on are usually two days old," he said. "Some of them are no bigger than rabbits."

The author of more than 70 medical papers, Benson is also one of the co-editors and contributing authors of what is considered to be the bible of children's surgery.

In its fourth edition, the two-volume set has been translated into numerous languages and is used throughout the world by pediatric surgeons. He has also written chapters for English medical books. He marvels at the changes during his 60 years as a physician.

"Back in those days, interns did all their own lab work and monitoring patient's conditions," he said. "We had 85 patients each. Now we have intensive care units where the nurses are trained specifically, and we don't have as many patients."

"I love working with the children because of their responses. They can't talk to you so you have to go entirely by your experience. One of the greatest boons in pediatric surgery was the improvement in anesthesia. That has come a long way."

Looking back, Benson gives all the credit for where he is to his wife, Mary Louise.

"I had a wife who was just something," he said. "She was a beautiful girl. She always knew what I was doing, and always supported me." They had one child, Katharine, who gave them four grandchildren. Mary Louise died 14 years ago from a stroke.

Among his other firsts, Benson was one of the founders of the American Pediatric Surgical Foundation. It started in 1970 with 20 members and now numbers more than 400.

He has awards from England and America honoring his outstanding contributions to pediatric surgery, and has been the guest lecturer to medical societies in countries from Germany to Mexico.

Framed and hanging on the walls at Bon Secours are letters of which Benson is proud. The first is from John Coury, former president of the American Medical Association commending his work. The second is from former Surgeon General C. Everett Koop, also praising Benson's work.

On June 25 this year he was the guest of honor at a testimonial dinner at the Detroit Athletic Club. Made emeritus professor of clinical surgery at Wayne State, he was toasted and honored by more than 100 colleagues in the medical profession.

"The awards are nice," he said. "But this surprise testimonial dinner, this was the topper, because it was from my colleagues."

Looking back, Benson says, "I've attained a lot of things and met a lot of wonderful people. I'm just going to keep on enjoying life. Maybe I'll do some more traveling."

candidate Paul Gracey, were raised during an Aug. 7 press conference called by Wayne County Clerk James Killeen.

Killeen told reporters that Mrs. Gracey illegally picked up ballots from City Hall, delivered them to absentee voters and returned the ballots to City Hall.

State law prohibits a candidate from distributing ballots to voters, using ballots to solicit votes, or returning them to City Hall.

Mrs. Gracey admitted to the allegations, but said she did not know she was breaking the law by picking up ballots from a city employee.

Johnson said that the law is more incumbent on the city to properly distribute ballots than on the person who picks them up.

Both Gracey and his wife allege that Killeen, a supporter and next-door neighbor of candidate Eugene Casazza, called the press conference to discredit Gracey.

Killeen will not return calls from the Grosse Pointe News.

Of the total 1,789 votes cast, 115 are absentee ballots. Incumbent Municipal Judge Matthew Rumora received 1,034 votes, with Gracey coming in second with 308.

In regular ballot voting (not counting the absentee ballots), Casazza came in second, edging Gracey by 10 votes.

Johnson indicated that Killeen, in his role as county clerk, may be in a position to decide the outcome of the primary election, though state election officials contend that the law is not clear on who will have final say once the issue comes before county election officials.

Johnson added in many criminal cases such as burglary or murder, investigators and prosecutors must demonstrate a specific intent to commit the crime. In an election where illegality is suspected, intent does not always have to be shown.

"Many of these elections are in small towns where people don't know the rules of elections. The law deals with how the city is required to handle the distribution of ballots.

"It may have just been a case of sloppy procedures. If there would be a prosecution, then it is up to the county prosecutor to determine whether it was a lack of knowledge or an illegal intent."

Drug dealer in Harper Woods sentenced to 10 years in prison

A Harper Woods man was sentenced to 10 years in prison Aug. 28 for operating a criminal enterprise and tax evasion, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

Arthur Dale Derrick pleaded guilty July 6 to one count of operating a criminal enterprise and two counts of tax evasion. U.S. District Judge Avern Cohn in Detroit handed down the sentence.

A criminal information filed June 15 charged that between January 1985 and October 1987, Derrick organized and managed at least five other people in a continuing criminal enterprise to distribute cocaine. It also charged that Derrick failed to file federal income tax returns for 1986 and 1987 when he had a taxable income of at least $1.6 million, on which he owed $678,000 in federal income tax.

Stating he was satisfied that the defendant was a key player in Detroit drug operations, Cohn sentenced Derrick to 10 years in prison on the continuing criminal enterprise charge and 6-1/2 years on the two tax evasion charges. The sentences will be served concurrently. Derrick also was given three years probation.

A separate criminal information filed June 15 charged that Derrick's wife, Connie M. Derrick, also known as Connie M. Daly, conspired with Derrick in the cocaine distribution operation and that she aided and abetted Derrick's tax evasion. She pleaded guilty to the charges and was sentenced to three years in prison.

In addition to the jail time, Derrick must also pay all the taxes due, plus interest.

The case was investigated by the IRS.

Kelly proposes National Guard to stop crack use

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

In a proposal that is being blasted by other state legislators, Detroit mayoral candidates and church leaders, state Sen. John Kelly is asking that the National Guard be brought into Detroit and four other Michigan cities to stop the use of crack cocaine.

The plan would allow Gov. James J. Blanchard to declare certain sections of five cities — shut down operations.

Detroit, Pontiac, Flint, Grand Rapids and Muskegon — as areas of high intensity drug trafficking and allow the National Guard to go into them with barricades and

The high intensity areas would be identified after examining law enforcement data on cocaine arrests and activity.

The program is targeted at the users, Kelly said. If you make it harder for them to get drugs, he says, it will be a big step in the war on drugs.

"If we can chill people by cordoning off areas and blocking off areas and making it difficult to get drugs," he said, "and at the same time provide educational and rehabilitation services, it would be effective."

Money for the education and rehabilitation would come from the federal government.

Users who are arrested can escape prosecution by enrolling for treatment in a drug rehabilitation program set up by the proposal.

Other aspects of the proposal call for a special prosecutor to be appointed in each city to work with local police forces to oversee the work. Guardsmen would be used to do a number of services including boarding up vacant houses used by dealers and surveillance of suspected crack houses. They would be paid by federal anti-drug money.

The idea is a harsh one, but Kelly said it is about time to get serious.

"We've got a Kitty Genovese mentality that exists here and it's time to do something about it," he said.

Kitty Genovese is the New York woman who was killed on the street in front of an apartment building while residents watched and did nothing.

The proposal has been blasted by nearly every Detroit mayoral candidate, and Detroit Mayor Coleman Young called the idea "vigilantism."

Kelly said he hears the criticism, but until there is another proposal, he will stand by his.

"I'll take any other alternative that will be more effective," he said, "but there isn't one. I haven't seen them (his critics) present anything that would stop mothers from selling their daughters to pay for drugs."

The plan would need approval of both the state Senate and the House, as well as the governor and the federal government.

City comptroller hired in Park

Peter M. Dobrzeniecki of Clarkston has been hired as city comptroller in Grosse Pointe Park.

Dobrzeniecki, 41, was previously the finance director for Independence Township for six years. Before that he worked for the city of Detroit in the auditor general's office.

He has a bachelor of science degree in accounting from Lawrence Institute of Technology and has completed some post-graduate studies at Indiana University.

He and his wife, Linda, who is a teacher with the Grosse Pointe school district, plan to move to Grosse Pointe Park.

2 young men caught smoking pot at school

Two young men were found smoking marijuana at the playground at Ferry Elementary School Aug. 26.

Woods police responded to a call of a disturbance at the school at 1:15 a.m. As the officer was walking up to the two men, he detected a cloud that he recognized as marijuana smoke.

He asked the two men what they were doing and they said they were on their way to get a pizza. When asked if they were burning anything, an 18-year-old from Grosse Pointe Woods told the officer, "Yeah, smoking pot." According to the officer's report, both men denied having any more marijuana in their possession.

The officer then told the two men to empty their pockets. The Woods man had a small amount of suspected marijuana in plastic and a hashish pipe, which was still hot, the officer reported. The other man, a 20-year-old from St. Clair Shores, also had a hashish pipe in his possession.

The men were allowed to leave the scene and were told detectives will be getting in touch with them concerning charges of drug possession.

Insider's guide to northwoods available

A book for people who get goosebumps when they hear a yodeling loon, a bellowing moose, or the snort of a vanishing doe is how author Janine Benyus describes "Northwoods Wildlife: A Watcher's Guide to Habitats."

Produced by the USDA Forest Service North Central Forest Experiment Station and published by NorthWord Press, Inc., the book is now available in bookstores and gift shops or by calling NorthWord Press at 1-800-336-5666. Cost is $19.95.

This book is an insider's guide to the northwoods of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan. With it, readers can visit any woodland or waterway, and easily know what habitat they are in and what kind of wildlife they may see there.

The 453-page book is based on information produced by wildlife researchers at the Forest Service's North Central Forest Experiment Station and the knowledge of wildlife biologists from National Forests and other resource management and conservation organizations. It is a comprehensive guide to 18 different types of wetlands, forests, and open spaces, each a habitat for specific wildlife.

Father Clem Kern is subject of biography by Pointer

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Genevieve Casey was a librarian at the Detroit Public Library when she first met Father Clem Kern, pastor at Holy Trinity Church in Detroit's Corktown in the 1940s and 1950s. But it wasn't until three years ago, three years after his death that she got to know him well.

Casey tells this story: There was a man who, like thousands of other men and women, came to Father Kern at his offices at Holy Trinity asking for money. But unlike most of the down and out who asked for money for a room that night, or for food, or for help finding a home, this man asked for a lot of money. He had a scheme in which he would use what Kern could give him to make money hand over fist and never have to ask for money again. Kern gave him some money, but not nearly what the man had asked for.

After the man left, Kern turned to his assistant who had been present during the encounter, and said, "There goes the biggest con man in the city."

"Then why did you give him money?" the assistant asked.

"I wouldn't want him to think he's lost his touch," Kern replied, as the next person asking for money came into his office.

"That," says Casey, "is the essence of Clem Kern."

And she should know. Casey recently wrote "Father Clem Kern: Conscience of Detroit," an in-depth examination of the man who more than anyone else helped Detroit's area known as Corktown, and the indigent and homeless there.

In writing the book, Casey, of Grosse Pointe City, looked at newspaper accounts of Kern's life, but they were inconclusive and superficial. So it was the 60 interviews she did — from skid row derelicts to Douglas Fraser, former president of the UAW — all of whom shared stories and expressed their deep respect for Kern that helped her the most.

It was those stories, the ones circulating among those who knew and admired Kern, which inspired Casey to write the book.

"Like most people in town, I've heard stories about Father Kern. I just thought someone had better capture these stories," she said. "I feel like I've been living with him for three years."

"Kern" is not Casey's first book, but it is her first biography. She has written a number of books on library sciences. She was with the Detroit Public Library for 25 years, as head of the extension department. It was through that capacity that she met Kern.

Kern had opened a reading room where the homeless and alcoholics could come to get out of the elements. It offered a washer and drier, classical music to play and books to read. Casey and the library kept the shelves stocked with books.

But it was the other things Kern did that intrigued Casey. He turned a donated house into a cooperative home for indigent old men who learned how to pool their resources, turning them from the poorest people in the neighborhood to among the most well off.

He started free medical, dental and legal clinics, started a school at Holy Trinity, worked for the rights of migrant workers and helped with the union movement in the '40s when there was a danger of communist influence. His unionist activity was fueled by his remembrances of his father's dismay over the way the auto industry was run, by bribes to foremen which didn't always work.

The Detroit Federation of Teachers had its start in the basement of Holy Trinity Church.

Even though he was a Roman Catholic priest, he raised money for other religions, including a Lutheran church in danger of going under and he spoke often at local synagogues.

"He believed all of Detroit was his parish," Casey said. "When people asked for counseling or for money, he never asked them if they went to church or what their religion was. He believed in the basic dignity of all people."

"He would tell children, 'You aren't poor because you have parents who love you,'" she said.

"When you write a biography, you steep yourself in that person," Casey said. "You try to find out if there is one driving force behind that person that guided his life."

What was Kern's driving force?

"He is one man who absolutely trusted God," said Casey, who is herself a Roman Catholic. "Most of us trust God only partly." His belief that everyone deserves to have dignity is the other guiding force in his life.

When he died after a car accident in 1983, more than 25,000 people attended services for him. The services ran for three days.

"He made Detroit a sweeter place to be," Casey said. "And people wanted to honor him."

All money made from the sale of the book is going to be divided between the Clem Kern Society, an organization formed by his friends and family to carry on his work, and Marygrove College, the publisher of the book, which will set up a minority scholarship fund with the proceeds.

If the proceeds were not earmarked for a charity, Casey said, "Clem would curse this book."

Casey and Marygrove are trying to get the book into local stores, but until then, "Father Clem Kern: Conscience of Detroit" can be ordered through Marygrove College, 8425 W. McNichols Road, Detroit, Mich. 48221-2599. The cost is $11.95 plus tax and shipping. Phone orders can be placed at 862-8000, extension 257.

Father Clem Kern Conscience of Detroit

by Genevieve M. Casey
Foreword by Neal Shine

Knights of Michigan Avenue

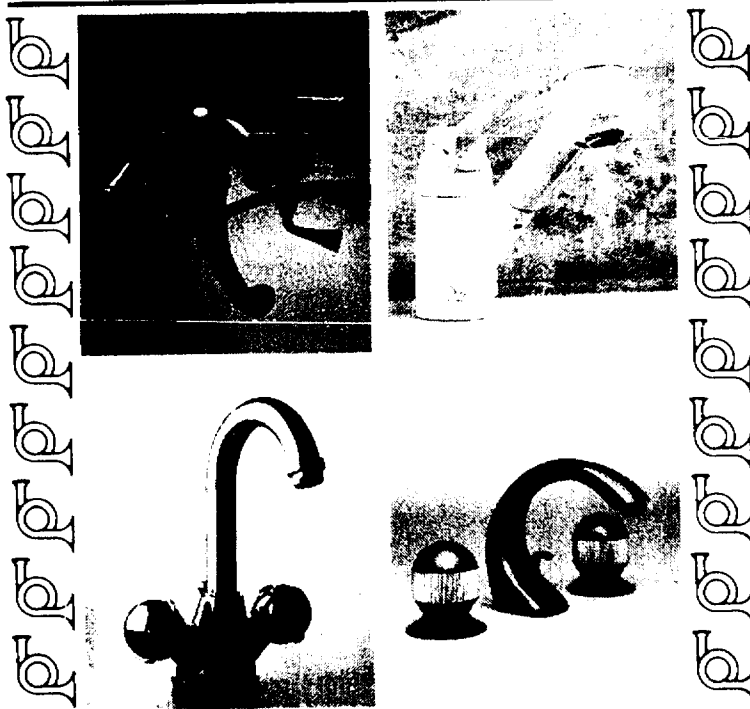

During most of Father Kern's tenure at Holy Trinity, Michigan Avenue which ran through the parish territory, was the major skid row of Detroit, where hundreds of homeless men wandered. These "Knights of the Avenue" and their bitter problems were a major pastoral concern of Father Kern. When they came to him with their urgent needs for food, shelter and clothing, and their more urgent need to be respected as human beings, Father Kern never asked what their religion was, and he never made religious practice a condition of his interest and help. In fact, in retirement he began to worry that perhaps he should have talked more about God and Jesus to the people he helped. His friend to whom he confided this concern assured him that for the people who came to him confident of help, he was indeed the image of Christ and did not need to talk about it."

— From "Father Clem Kern: Conscience of Detroit" by Genevieve M. Casey.

Woods council joins MADD to prevent drunk driving deaths

By Dan Jarvis
Staff Writer
The Woods City Council adopted a proclamation designating Saturday, Sept. 2 as "Drive for Life" day.

The proclamation, approved unanimously, states that approximately 65 people are killed each day on the nation's highways in alcohol-related crashes. During a typical year, drunk drivers kill more than 23,000 and injure nearly 540,000 citizens.

Originating from a similar proclamation by Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) and Volkswagen United States Inc., the Woods proclamation designates the third annual Drive For Life event.

Mayor George Freeman said the event is designed to promote safety and public awareness to the serious problem of drunk driving.

And the fact that Drive for Life is related to the Labor Day weekend is no accident.

According to the National Safety Council, drunk driving fatalities increase 10 percent during the weekend.

Last year nearly 100 citizens died and hundreds more were seriously injured on the Saturday before Labor Day. In 1987, 115 lives were claimed as a result of drunk driving.

Planners of the national effort say that the decrease in deaths last year is encouraging and they hope to further decrease alcohol-related deaths this year.

In the signed proclamation, Freeman urges all citizens of the community to drive sober as they join the local and national campaign to prevent fatalities.

Councilwoman Jean Rice said, "This affluent area seems to have a great number of people, both young and old, who drink. The statistics supporting this resolution are staggering.

"The impact of the death or injury of a family member in an alcohol-related accident has a lifelong affect on young and old family members who must go on with their lives — financially, physically and mentally.

"Any temporary or permanent measure taken to stop excessive consumption of alcohol would benefit our country, our city and our residents," Rice added.

"To be responsible now in your drinking and driving habits means you don't have to be responsible for the death or injury of another person in the future."

Drunk driving facts

Deaths, Injuries

- Every 22 minutes, one person dies in an alcohol-related traffic crash. (NHTSA 1988)
- Approximately 65 people are killed each day due to alcohol-related traffic crashes. (NHTSA 1988)
- In 1987 alone, 23,632 people died in alcohol-related traffic crashes. (NHTSA 1988)

- Traffic crashes are the biggest cause of death for people between the ages of 5 and 34. More than half of these are alcohol-related. (NHTSA 1988)
- About 534,000 people suffer injuries each year in alcohol-related traffic crashes, an average of one person dies every minute. About 40,000 of these are serious injuries. (NHTSA 1988)

- 40 percent of all fatal crashes in 1987 involved a drunk driver or pedestrian. (NHTSA 1988)
- In 1987, approximately nine teenagers died each day in alcohol-related traffic crashes. (NHTSA 1988)
- In 1987, 3,259 teenagers died in alcohol-related traffic crashes. (NHTSA 1988)
- More than 40 percent of all teenage deaths result from motor vehicle crashes — Nearly half of these involved drinking. (NHTSA 1988)
- In 1987, nearly 27 percent of the fatally-injured teenaged drivers were intoxicated. (NHTSA 1988)
- One out of three teenagers say that they have been in a car with a driver who is intoxicated. (Gallup 1944)

- Young people aged 15-24 make up 19 of the population, but constituted nearly 37 percent of alcohol-related fatalities in 1986. (NHTSA 1986)

General Statistics

- Drunk driving is the most frequently committed violent crime in the nation today. DWI arrests in 1986 totalled more than three times the total for all other violent crimes (murder, robbery, forcible rape, and aggravated assault). (FBI 1986)
- On a weekend night, one out of every 10 drivers is legally impaired or drunk in some parts of the nation.
- Estimates of the economic cost of drunk driving have been as high as 24 billion dollars. (Allstate 1982)
- Two out of every five Americans will be involved in an alcohol-related crash at some point in their lives.
- A U.S. General Accounting Office survey of research on the effects of raising the drinking age shows that the fatalities in the age groups affected by the change in laws (18, 19, and 20) declined an average of 13-16 percent, and the available longitudinal studies reported significant decreases were sustained over time. City of Grosse Pointe Farms Michigan NOTICE OF HEARING ZONING BOARD OF APPEALS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Zoning Board of Appeals will meet in City Hall at 90 Kerby Road on:

at 7:30 p.m. to hear the appeal of Mr. & Mrs. Jeffrey Budday, owners of the premises located at 457 Cloverly, from the denial of the Building Department to issue a Building Permit for the construction of a two story addition to the rear of their existing dwelling located at the foregoing address. Such permit issuance was denied for reason that:

a. The residence located on the foregoing premises is non-conforming for reason that it is in violation of the side yard provisions of Article XIII, Section 1300 of the City's Zoning Ordinance, and in accordance with the provisions of Article XV, Section 1502, Item 4-A of the City's Zoning Ordinance, no such structure may be enlarged or structurally altered unless a variance is granted.

b. The proposed addition on the rear would infringe upon the minimum side yard requirement of four feet leaving a side yard of 3.3 feet thereby requiring a variance from the provisions of Article XIII, Section 1300 of the City's Zoning Ordinance.

The Hearing will be public. Interested property owners or residents of the City are invited to attend.

Clown workshop planned

The Grosse Pointe Clown Corps will sponsor a nine-week clown workshop that will be held Mondays. The workshop begins Sept. 11 and continues Sept. 18, 25, Oct. 2, 9, 16, 23, Nov. 13 and 20.

The classes will be held in the Woods City Hall basement. The group needs students.

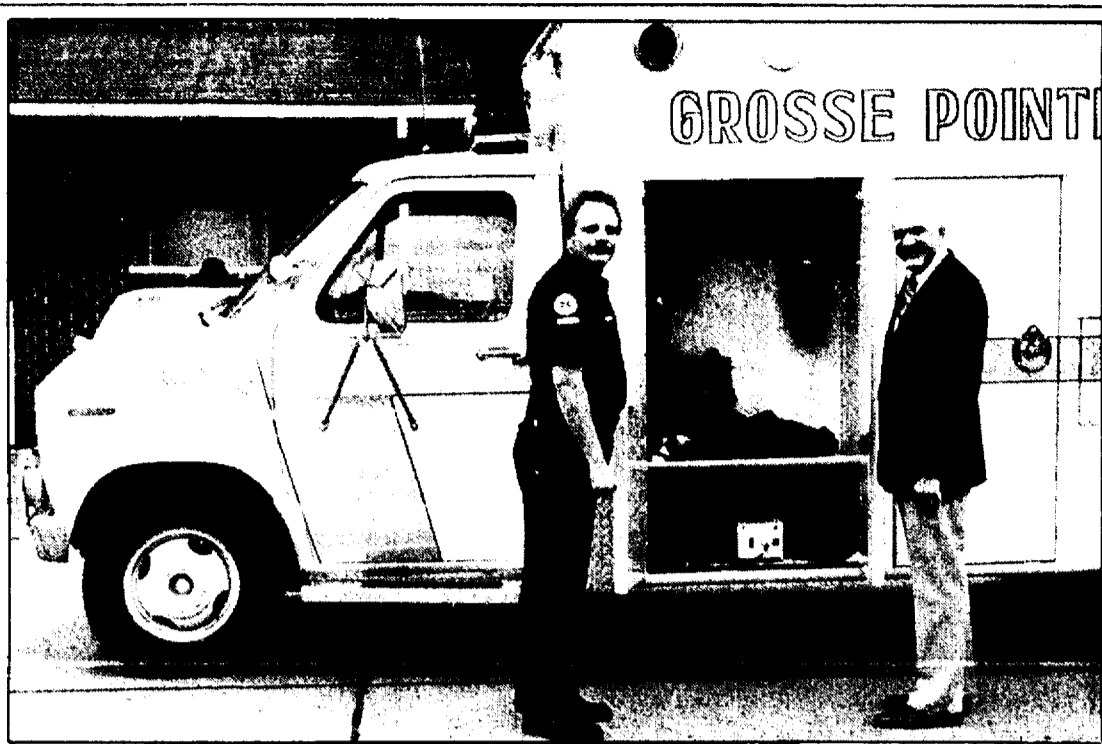

For more information, call Arthur Kuehnel at 881-8186.

Booklets for kids

Michigan League for Nursing has a new coloring/activities booklet, "Nurses Care for People," developed for children between 3 and 7, to introduce them to the nursing profession.

This booklet is ideal for distribution to young children in nursery schools, day care centers, visitors' areas, in schools and in health care facilities.

For further information and to order copies, contact Nancy J. Caputo, executive director, Michigan League for Nursing, at 532-4343.

New wheels

Grosse Pointe Woods Mayor George Freeman and paramedic James Vowell show off the refurbished emergency module on the city's advanced cardiac life support ambulance. Earlier this year, the City Council had the old ambulance chassis replaced with a new 1989 Ford chassis, which included a diesel engine. The new chassis and refurbished module cost the city $32,000, a savings of $30,000 had the council purchased a complete ambulance with module at a cost of $60,000. The ambulance is licensed and rated as a 1989 emergency response unit.

Bartos honored

Bradley Bartos, Grosse Pointe North graduate, was awarded a four-year scholarship by the H.T. Ewald Foundation.

He will attend the University of Michigan where he will study medicine. A member of the varsity track and football teams, Bartos was head lifeguard at the Woods pool. He also teaches Sunday School.

The award was made during a ceremony in which 14 students received scholarships. They were presented by Ted and Carolyn Ewald.

Detroit News columnist Pete Waldmier spoke at the presentations along with Dr. Barbara Markey, a former scholarship recipient.

Each year Ewald awards 12 to 15 scholarships to tri-county students through the foundation established by his father. He currently sustains more than 57 students in colleges across the country.

Farms home burglarized

A house in the 300 block of Piche in Grosse Pointe Farms was burglarized last week.

The burglary occurred sometime between 3 and 10:17 p.m. Aug. 23. The thief got into the home through an unlocked window.

Taken were a Yashica 35mm and black leather carrying bag, an undetermined amount of jewelry, $400 to $500 in cash and $150 in coins.

Chess club seeks members

New members are invited to participate in Grosse Pointe Chess Club, which meets Tuesday, beginning Sept. 5, 7:30 to 11 p.m. at the War Memorial.

Members enjoy informal games, tournaments and inter-club team competition. Dues are $10 per year. Chess sets and boards provided. For additional information, call John De Jongh, at 579-0601.

Multi-community task force formed to catch cat burglar

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

Grosse Pointe Woods detectives have been asked to join a multi-community task force created to ferret out a cat burglar who has been plaguing eastside homes.

The thief has hit homes in Grosse Pointe Woods, Harper Woods, East Detroit, St. Clair Shores and Detroit's 9th precinct bordering Harper Woods.

Detective Lt. Douglas Garascia of the Harper Woods Police Department said the cat burglar has been bold and lucky. Most of the thefts have occurred during the early morning hours and many occur when residents are asleep in the home.

The thief is bold because he's not deterred by residents at home, and he's lucky because no one has gotten a good enough look at him to get a description. Police believe the cat burglaries are being done by no more than one or two men.

Grosse Pointe Woods Public Safety Director Jack Patterson said his detective bureau has been asked to join the task force, but he has not assigned an officer to participate. He said that while he believes the task force is a good idea, he doesn't have enough manpower to have a detective devoted to the special unit.

Garascia said there have been nine burglaries and nine other attempted burglaries since late May in Harper Woods that his department attributes to the cat burglar. He said the thief almost always takes only jewelry and cash. The burglar gets into homes through unlocked doors or by cutting screens out of windows.

Patterson did not indicate how many burglaries in Grosse Pointe Woods may be attributed to the cat burglar. He did say, though, that many thefts could be prevented if people simply locked their doors when they are at home as well as when they're away.

Garascia said that because the police have only very poor descriptions of the cat burglar, detectives could definitely use tips from the public.

He said the good thing about the task force is that the affected communities are sharing information and the investigation is going in one direction, instead of each department going at it alone. "We have a game plan," he said.

Manuscript deadline set

Oct. 2 is the manuscript deadline set by the Oakland University Division of Continuing Education and Detroit Women Writers for individual manuscripts to be critiqued by professionals at the 28th annual Writers' Conference Oct. 20-21 on campus near Rochester.

To qualify for individual evaluation, manuscripts must adhere to certain requirements and the author must be registered for the Writers' Conference.

Also scheduled are manuscript workshop sessions from 1 to 5 p.m. Oct. 20. These categories include general fiction, literary fiction, both fiction and nonfiction for children and young adults, nonfiction books, nonfiction articles, essays and poetry.

For a brochure of manuscript requirements, fees and conference sessions, call 370-3120 between 8-5 p.m. weekdays.

WSU seeks award nominations

Nominations are currently being sought for Wayne State University's Dauris G. Jackson Award, presented each year to a woman who has distinguished herself by helping other women in their professional growth and development. Nominations must be submitted by Sept. 8.

The award will be presented during the Dauris G. Jackson Seminar for Women in Management, a daylong program beginning at 5 a.m. Friday, Oct. 6, in the McGregor Memorial Conference Center.

To qualify nominees must be women residing in the Detroit metropolitan area who are or have been employed (or self-employed) in a managerial or administrative position, or who have served in a policy-making role on the board of the company or major organization or institution.

Nominees will be judged on their contributions to the career growth and development of women. Additional consideration will be given to community service which focuses on the needs of women, and to personal career achievement which had helped break ground for women.

Nomination forms, attainable from the university's provost's office, should be sent to: 1989 Dauris G. Jackson Award, c/o Ms. Karen Salome, McGregor Memorial Conference Center, 495 W. Ferry Mall, Wayne State University, Detroit, Mich. 48202.

The award honors Dauris G. Jackson, an educator and writer of children's books, who in 1976 became the first black woman to serve on WSU's governing board. She died in 1979.

Foreign language classes offered

Once again, this fall the Department of Community Education will offer a wide array of classes in foreign languages.

In addition to offerings at various levels in French, German, Italian and Spanish, a new-for-fall offering is "Japanese for Travelers" taught by Janet Dunn.

Elizabeth Ferguson will also offer "Latin - How it Works" for those who have never had Latin or for those who wish to review the language.

With most classes scheduled to begin the week of Sept. 18, the offerings include two sections of "French - Phase I," one in the evening, the other in the afternoon to accommodate various schedules.

Other French classes include continuation offerings, "French - Phase III" and "French - Phase IV" starting Sept. 19 as well as a new class, "French Literature."

Those teaching French include Aphrodite Roumell, Claudine Herodote, and Sheila Ingwersen.

Three classes in German to be taught by Irene Roland are "German - Phase I," "German - Phase IV," and "German - Intermediate/Advanced."

Six classes in Italian have been scheduled. They include "Italian - Phase I," "Italian - Phase III," Italian - Phase IV,"

"Italian - Phase IV Plus," "Italian Conversation," and "Italian for Travelers."

Instructors of Italian classes are Anne Harnett, Tonino Corsetti, Leonardo Fabilli, Tullio Cristofaro and Katalin Cristofaro.

Three classes in Spanish have been scheduled. They include "Spanish - Phase I," "Spanish - Phase IV," and "Spanish - Phase VI." Teachers are Colleen Dane! and Joe Gerardi.

Full information on the foreign language classes are contained in the fall brochure which were mailed recently.

Call 343-2178 for further information.

Libraries programs planned for preschoolers

The Grosse Pointe Public Library will accept registrations starting Tuesday, Sept. 5, for fall preschool programs at Central Library and the Park and Woods branches.

Children, ages 3 to 5, may join Storytimes; half-hour programs of stories, songs and fingerplays.

The schedule is as follows:

- Central Library - Wednesdays, Oct. 4 through Nov. 15, at 10:45 a.m., 1 and 2 p.m.
- Park Branch - Thursdays, Oct. 5 through Nov. 16, at 1 and 2 p.m.

• Woods Branch - Tuesdays, Oct. 3 through Nov. 14, at 1 and 2 p.m.

Parents or guardians are asked to remain in the library during Storytimes.

The library offers Toddler Time, a special 20-minute storytime for 2-year-olds. Due to the special intimacy of the program, each child is asked to bring an adult.

Toddler Times are offered at the Central Library only on Wednesdays at 10:10 a.m. Parents may register their child for sessions running from Oct. 3 through Oct. 24, or sessions from Oct. 31 through Nov. 22.

Due to the great demand for the program and the limits on registration, the library staff urges parents to enroll their children in only one session.

For further information, call the children's librarian at your branch: Central, Helen Gregory or Lana Miller, 343-2078; Park, Margaret Kitchel, 343-2071; and Woods, Marietta Taliani, 343-2072.

Speaking out

'Broadway Bound' next at Golden Lion

Dennis Wickline Productions, Inc. opens its 10th anniversary season Friday, Sept. 15 with Neil Simon's "Broadway Bound" at the Golden Lion Dinner Theatre. It will run Friday and Saturday evenings through Saturday, Oct. 28.

"Broadway Bound" focuses on the Jerome family of Brighton Beach, and completes the trilogy of autobiographic comedies that began with "Brighton Beach Memoirs." It tells the story of Eugene and Stanley's quest to become radio comedy writers.

Eugene and Stanley are now grown and are ready to leave home. Living with the Jerome family is Ben, Gene and Stan's grandfather and Kate and Blanche's father. The marriage of Kate and Jack is foundering, but as is in all of Neil Simon's comedies, laughter comes out of all of life's situations.

Continuing as Kate Jerome from "Brighton Beach Memoirs" is Maureen Bruce and David Lichwala moves into the role of Eugene and Don Ross, a long-time Grosse Pointe Theatre member and local choreographer, takes on the role of Stanley.

Nick Dara and Harry Burkey, who can be seen in a variety of local television ads, complete the cast as Ben and Jack.

"Broadway Bound" is under the direction of Nancy Sortor.

Price for the evening is $22.95 per person, which includes dinner, show, tax and gratuity. Cocktails begin at 7 p.m., dinner at 7:30 p.m. with the show following dessert. Group rates and performances are available. Special senior citizen group rates are available for Friday performances only. The Golden Lion is located at 22380 Moross, near Mack across from St. John's Hospital, in Detroit.

MOT to hold auditions Sept. 6-14

Michigan Opera Theater will hold auditions Sept. 6-14 for openings in the company's 1989-90 season adult chorus, orchestra, and children's chorus. Auditions will take place in the company's administrative offices, located at 6519 Second Ave. in Detroit's New Center Area.

Adult chorus auditions for positions in the 1990 grand opera season of three productions: "Don Giovanni," "La Traviata," and "Romeo and Juliette," will be held Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 6 and 7.

Positions are available for both male and female singers in all vocal categories. Applicants will be asked to sing from memory one aria in a foreign language and one selection in English. An accompanist will be provided, however singers must bring their own music.

Orchestra auditions for Violins I & II, Principal Viola, Contrabass, Flute-Piccola, Oboe, English Horn, Clarinet, Bass Clarinet and Principal Trumpet are scheduled for Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 11 and 12.

Interested applicants must audition with a prepared solo from the standard concerto repertory

Rackham choir schedules auditions

The Rackham Symphony Choir, one of Detroit's oldest performing organizations, will conduct auditions for membership on Tuesday evenings Sept. 5, 12, 19, and 26 at the Emma Schaver Building (Wayne State University's Music Building) on Cass and Forest.

This season the choir will perform works by Rutter, Verdi, Beethoven, and Lerner and Loewe as well as the perennial favorite, Handel's "Messiah" at Old St. Mary's at Greektown.

All interested singers — sopranos, altos, tenors and basses — should call 822-4385 for an audition appointment and/or further information about the choir.

Singers and orchestral musicians interested in auditioning for the 1989-90 season must call the MOT Production Department at 874-7850 for complete information and to schedule an appointment.

Time about right for 'Rude Awakening'

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

The timing is appropriate—a film featuring hippies in the year Woodstock is celebrating a 20th anniversary.

The questions raised of whether hippies would be listened to by today's young people who are intent on making it big in a society that values success and position is interesting to ponder, as is the question of whether hippies who have been removed from the youth culture for a period of time be dismayed at the unwillingness of their 1989 counterparts to risk status and security to protest situations that in the long run may be as devastating as war.

All this is explored in a semi-comic format that begins in 1969 at Woodstock where thousands of young people have gathered to celebrate in songs and slogans their message that love can save the world and to loudly and vehemently protest the Vietnam War.

To accent that time in history, we are switched to shots of President Johnson declaring that it is a war that will be won and other politicians echoing the same viewpoint.

In the meantime, Jesus (Cheech Marin) and Fred (Eric Roberts) are pegged as traitors by the government. There is a sad parting between the two and their friends Petra (Julie Hagerty) and Sammy (Robert Carrine) when Fred and Jesus take off to South America to avoid arrest.

Twenty years pass before we see them again. Fred and Jesus have established a commune in the jungles where they build their huts and grow their food and "grass."

One of the funnier sequences shows Jesus, sitting on a bank fishing and smoking marijuana. His eyes begin to roll and he his shrewish wife. Cheech as Jesus delivers his own brand of comedy, mugging and stomping around like a latter day Groucho Marx.

Robert's Fred is a bigger-than-life crusader who is almost fanatic in his zeal to end wars and live in peace with man and nature.

"Rude Awakening" is a film that veers between comedy and reality. It dwells on serious issues from a tilted viewpoint. The contrast between the hippies of the '60s and the yuppies of the '80s is filled with possibilities for humor.

As it is, the film is best when it offers sarcastic wit in the style of Saturday Night Live. It is likely that it would have been more successful if it had played out the return of the hippies' meetings with the ex-hippies who have bought the establishment, in that vein.

goes into a typically comic Cheech routine when a fish begins to grow bigger and bigger. The clincher comes when the fish swims up to the bank and in a gravelly voice demands a puff.

Meanwhile Fred, who goes into a dissertation every time he talks, is giving a lecture to a member of the commune who wants a new pair of jeans.

The peace and solitude of their jungle home is broken when a band of guerillas come breaking through the brush, shooting in all directions. A federal agent, who has been documenting the activities of the group, is shot down and dies.

When Fred and Jesus find him, they discover the secret papers and learn that the United States is planning to invade the country and start a war.

It's back to the states once again to protest war.

The film is laced with comedy. Haggerty's Petra is a cartoonish character with flashing eyes and exaggerated mannerisms, who goes into screeching, abusive rages when she is displeased and collapses into helplessness when it suits her purpose.

Carradine, as Sammy who has built an empire of tanning salons is a likeable frustrated character who is afraid of displeasing

Macomb Center to host Detroit Concert Band

A selection of international favorites, ranging from Tchaikovsky to Gershwin, will be performed by the Detroit Concert Band beginning at 8 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 8, at the Macomb Center for Performing Arts.

Under the direction of Dr. Leonard B. Smith, the Detroit Concert Band has received international acclaim for their performance in concert halls, theaters, on radio and television, in motion pictures and on records. The concert is sponsored by Macomb Community College, Central Macomb County Chamber of Commerce and Ford Motor Co.

"Around the World with Music" will feature the work of Italian, French, German, Russian, English and American Composers. The Detroit Concert Band will perform such classics as the "Don-Rosenkavalier" waltz by Richard Strauss and the "Barber of Seville" overture by Gioacchino Rossini. Other selections include "Fascinating Rhythm" by George Gershwin, "The Star Spangled Banner" by John Safford Smith, three works by Tchaikovsky and a John Phillip Sousa march.

An afterglow reception will include complimentary wine and cheese and the opportunity for neighbors in the community to meet and mingle.

Tickets are $10 and are available from the Chamber of Commerce, 58 North Avenue, Mount Clemens, 48043. Advance reservations are preferred but tickets will be sold at the door after 7 p.m. the night of the concert. For more information, call the chamber at 463-1528 or the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts at 286-2222.

The Macomb Center for the Performing Arts is located on Macomb Community College's Center Campus, Garfield and Hall roads in Clinton Township.

Henneman spends day at fair

Never mind the pitcher's mound! On Sept. 1, dairy spokesman and Detroit Tiger ace relief pitcher Mike Henneman will be taking signals from fans visiting the Amazing Acre Dairy Booth at the Michigan State Fair.

Henneman will be near the American Dairy Association of Michigan's Dairy Product Information Booth, where visitors will receive free milk, recipes, Tiger buttons and nutrition information. From 1 until 3 p.m., Henneman will join that fun as he signs photos and meets with fair-goers. Fans are also welcome to bring baseball memorabilia to be autographed from this year's sole Tiger all-star.

As Michigan's dairy spokesman, Henneman meets with residents statewide to promote the healthy goodness of dairy products — products he uses to stay fit.

The American Dairy Association of Michigan is a non-profit organization funded by Michigan's dairy farmers to encourage the use of real dairy products.

Boots Randolph to kick off new Macomb Center season

In what's becoming a tradition, jazzman Boots Randolph will kick off another professional entertainment season at Macomb Center for the Performing Arts.

With his touring Nashville band, the man known nationally for his "Yakety Sax" will appear at 7 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 10.

His concert will launch the 1989-90 season described by Executive Director Laurence L. Teal as "the most star-studded" in the center's eight years of bringing professional entertainment to the tri-county area.

The new-season lineup features 60 professional events, highlighted by six Broadway musicals, two operas and a host of new faces who will join a select group of audience favorites returning by popular demand.

Among the newcomers are notable singers Crystal Gayle, Tony Orlando and Dawn, the McGuire Sisters, Eddie Rabbitt, Fabian and the versatile Ben Vereen.

For Randolph, this will be the sixth season in a row at Macomb Center, which has become a regular stop on an annual tour that has taken him and the band to more than 100 cities in the United States and Canada.

Since his first hit record, "Yakety Sax" in 1958, Randolph has recorded more than a score of albums.

His 11-piece band sports a rhythm group and a five-piece horn section — a setup he says is small enough for intimate combo arrangements but still big enough to generate the power of a big band.

A typical Randolph concert features a musical program ranging from Dolly Parton's "Nine to Five" to standards like "In the Mood." His road performances are extensions of the popular shows he puts on six nights a week during the entertainment season at his club in Nashville.

Tickets are $15 for adults and $13.50 for students and senior citizens. They may be obtained at the Center's box office or reserved on credit card by calling 286-2222, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. The Center is located on the Center Campus of Macomb Community College at Hall (M-59) and Garfield roads in Clinton Township.

Concert in the gazebo

There will be a Summer's End Concert at the gazebo in Ghesquiere Park in Grosse Pointe Woods Sunday, Sept. 10, from 3 to 5 p.m. Joe Vitale's big band sound will be featured. The concert is for Woods residents, families and friends. There will be some bleacher seating available. Bring your own blankets or chairs. Due to court room and community center construction, there will be limited parking in the north city lot. Park on the north side of the park and surrounding streets. Use the Kenmore entrance. The Grosse Pointe Woods/Shores Little League will operate the concession stand. In case of rain, the concert will be held in Parcels auditorium.

12th Heritage Harvest Day

The 12th annual Heritage Harvest Day at Seven Ponds Nature Center near Dryden is scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 9, 11 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Displays and demonstrations will highlight the day with operating steam engine threshing oats by the Eastern Michigan Collector's Club. Many other vintage tractors, stationary engines and antique equipment will operate during the day.

Old time crafts, antiques, antique tools, quilting and a fleece to shawl demonstration are a few of the many displays in the craft tent. Children will enjoy games and pioneer skills. An ox roast lunch, gingerbread with lemon sauce, and corn on the cob are some of the food items available.

The Michigan Friends of Traditional will play traditional and bluegrass music. Visit the country store for gifts, antiques and herbal items. All proceeds support the nature center. Admission is $2 for adults, 75 cents for children, or $6 maximum for each family.

Seven Ponds Nature Center is an environmental education facility of the Michigan Audubon Society located on Crawford Road, three miles west of Dryden. For further information, call the nature center at 796-3200.

Dally in the Alley art, music fair

Artists and residents of the North Cass Community will present their 12th annual "Dally in the Alley" art and music fair on Saturday, Sept. 9.

Music, art galleries, poetry, food, crafts demonstration, children's games and trolley tours begin at 11 p.m. The recycling truck will be at Third and Forest from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. In all, 21 bands, 30 poets, 35 visual artists, 13 chefs and many more craftspeople will be performing and demonstrating their crafts until 11 p.m.

The Dally in the Alley provides an opportunity for artists and musicians who live, work or play in the North Cass Corridor community to present their works to the public free of charge.

The money raised through the sales of T-shirts, posters and beverages benefit the needy and homeless, improvements in local safety conditions, and the preservation of neighborhood historic features. Last year more than 5,000 people attended.

The Dally in the Alley is located between three blocks west of Woodward, between Forest Avenue and Hancock. Free parking is available in the lot behind Wayne State University's Old Main on Second and Warren avenues.

Artists and chefs demonstrate their crafts and sell their wares in the garden galleries and cafes between the two performance stages. Poetry and acoustic music will be presented this year in the new indoor Art Gallery. A juried art competition in the afternoon will provide prizes for young artists as well as the seasoned professionals.

For further information call 833-3443.

'Twigs' auditions

Triangle Productions will present "Twigs" by George Furth with permission of Samuel French, Inc.

George Valenta will direct. The cast will include four women and up to 11 men, and all actors will receive nominal pay. The production dates will be the first three weekends in November.

Casting dates are Saturday, Sept. 9 and Sunday, Sept. 10, from 2 until 6 p.m. at Immanuel United Church of Christ, 4600 Livernois between I-94 and Michigan Avenue. Bring a resume and black-and-white head shot.

Rehearsals are set to be held at St. John-St. Luke Church, 2120 Russell near Gratiot in Detroit. The majority of rehearsals will be held evenings with some Sunday afternoon rehearsals planned.

'Weekend at Bernie's' is dark but not funny

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

"Weekend at Bernie's" accomplishes only half of what it sets out to do.

This is a film that fancies itself a dark comedy. It's certainly dark; no problem there. But it is not, in any sense of the word, a comedy.

Andrew McCarthy and Jonathan Silverman play an odd-couple type work pair: the former a messy, lazy malcontent; the latter a hard-working, upwardly mobile but shy neatnik.

A bit of luck lands them at their millionaire boss' posh island summer home for a weekend of fun of laughs. What they don't know is that the boss wants them murdered. What they also don't know — until they get to the island — is that the boss has been murdered.

They debate calling the police, but then think better of the idea. If they call the police, they reason, McCarthy will not be able to enjoy the weekend party of his life. And Silverman won't have a chance to win the heart of that cute office assistant he's had his eye on (Catherine Mary Stewart).

So they decide to hold off calling the police, and try to make things look as normal as possible. First they just let the boss sit on the living room couch with a dazed look on his face; telling all the visitors the boss is extremely intoxicated.

Later, when that doesn't work anymore, they try to hide the boss' body. Only the boss isn't cooperating. The corpse keeps showing up in the worst places. Like when Silverman finally has his woman right where he wants her — on the beach — and the boss' body, having been washed out in the tide, drifts in next to them.

The film is full of scenes like that, the only variation being the scenes in which the two guys are looking for the body and can't find it. Like when McCarthy dumps it off the side of the sun deck, and some little kid buries it in the sand.

The corpse jokes are uninspired and lame, and everything else we've seen before. Alfred Hitchcock worked with this same topic many years ago in a picture called "The Trouble with Harry." That film was infinitely funnier, and it had a better grip on the dark material.

McCarthy and Silverman have no chemistry; both look like they stumbled onto the set by mistake. Either that, or they wanted to work on a picture where they'd be able to spend a lot of time on the beach.

Either way, the film is very forgettable. Let's hope it disappears much quicker than the dead boss.

E. Daniel Grady: Bell restrictions are self-defeating

By Dan Jarvis
Staff Writer

Five years after antitrust legislation broke up the national Bell System and scattered operations into restricted regional companies, new legislation has been introduced into a joint U.S. House and Senate subcommittee asking that restrictions be lifted.

E. Daniel Grady, Michigan Bell vice president of corporate communications and a Grosse Pointe Farms resident, said the intent of the breakup was to allow new U.S. telecommunications firms to compete with the Bell giant.

"Unfortunately, much of the market was opened to existing foreign companies," Grady said.

During the 1984 Bell break up, several restrictions were put in place.

Among them is the prohibition of Bell from manufacturing hardware such as telephones and fax machines, creating or using existing Bell software to connect information systems between various industries, and finally, using the Bell network to transmit calls from one area code to another.

Bell representatives say these restrictions have kept the network from competing in the global market, to the detriment of American consumers and government.

Research organizations such as the Rand Corp., Citizens for a Sound Economy, and the North-east-Midwest Institute seem to support Bell's claim.

The Consumer Telecommunications Services Act of 1989, if successful, could bring existing technologies of the information age into your office, living room and even your car, Bell officials say.

Many business-minded executives who already have a car phone may yawn at the frequently uttered statement.

But how about a fax machine in your car? How about a telephone that instantly displays the caller's number on a liquid crystal display? Or a phone with several distinct ringing sounds that tell you if the call is coming from your office, your home, your stockbroker or travel agent?

Consumers may delight at the possibility of ordering entertainment tickets, groceries, clothes or even a new car using the good old phone as a computer terminal.

The people with the technology in hand say this is no Home Shopping Network. It is an unlimited network that could allow consumers to tap into an endless variety of goods and services throughout the world.

Currently in place in France, England and Japan, such networks offer scholastic instruction, support groups and even an electronically guided tour through Japan's largest department store.

Bell literature outlines services such as community hotlines complete with theater schedules and local restaurant menus, emergency and health services and educational support services.

If the system holds such promise, then why did the U.S. Department of Justice break up the Bell System just as technology was surfacing in Europe and Japan?

Keeping the Bell companies out of manufacturing has resulted in what Grady calls "a bonanza" for foreign suppliers.

"We've been exporting telecommunications jobs. Virtually every telephone set sold in the U.S. today is imported."

Grady added about one-third of all switching and transmission equipment used in Bell networks is imported.

Originally, public opinion against large monopolies put antitrust legislation in place during the latter 19th century with the passage of the Sherman Act of 1890. By 1914, two more acts, the Federal Trade Commission Act and the Clayton Act, were put in place to strengthen regulations. The Sherman Act, virtually unchallenged, passed in the U.S. House by a 242-0 vote.

Prior to the break up, America boasted a telecommunications trade surplus of $582 million. Last year, the surplus dropped to a deficit of $2 billion and experts claim that by 1992, the deficit could grow to $7 billion.

Further, an independent consulting firm estimated that lifting the restrictions could improve the deficit by $6 billion and could create 14,000 new jobs.

Tina Harris, of the National Newspaper Association, is less excited about the possibility of lifting the restrictions.

"Not just newspaper publishers, but publishers in general, including electronic publishers are opposed to lifting the restrictions," Harris said.

"Since Bell has control over the phone lines, we don't want the possibility of Bell competing with other companies offering information through the lines. We don't mind competition, that's already there. But since Bell controls the lines, they may promote their content service over that of another company."

Harris said the legislation is currently before the House Telecommunications Subcommittee where it is being rewritten before going before the full House.

Terry Maguire, senior vice president of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, said the ANPA has taken no position on two of the restrictions (manufacturing hardware and creating software), but objects to the company having a financial interest in actual information going through the Bell network.

"We support competition in electronic publishing and want to ensure that it is free and easy for everyone who wants to use the lines. But if Bell has a financial interest, it would provide a strong incentive to boost one of their own information sources over a competitor," Maguire said.

Grady explained that the legislation, (House Resolution 2140 and U.S. Senate Resolution 34) was introduced in an attempt to take the antitrust legislation out of the hands of the Justice Department and into the House and Senate — and eventually to the American people.

Grady, who joined Bell in 1957 as an engineering assistant, said lifting restrictions would free current technology and would not only benefit American corporations and consumers, but would help the government reduce the telecommunications trade deficit drastically and immediately.

He recently stood before delegates at a National Urban League convention and said the U.S. telecommunications policy is "out-of-touch and self-defeating for America."

Maguire said because the legislation is being rewritten, there is no time frame in the near future wherein a bill in modified form will go before the full House and Senate.

This convertible pickup makes people smile and shout

Autos

By Richard Wright

If you are, like me, a very trendy guy who likes to partake of all the latest groovy stuff, then you should check out the Dodge Dakota convertible pickup truck, because several of the auto industry's strongest trends are represented here.

Light trucks are the hottest segment of the market in sales. Convertibles have become a very trendy item since they were brought back from the dead in 1982 by Chrysler. As if that weren't enough, the Dakota convertible is available with four-wheel drive, another very trendy item.

West Coast custom shops have been chopping off the tops of pickup trucks for some time for California types, trendiest of the trendy, but the Dodge Dakota is the only factor ragtop pickup available, so we Midwesterners can have them too. Unlike Chrysler LeBaron convertible, however, the Dakota is not done in-house, it is done by ASC, Inc.

In this complex high-tech age, the Dakota's top is elegant in its simplicity. The manually operated vinyl top can be lowered by turning two latches at the top of the windshield, then lifting up and back. Two cords hold the top at a horizontal level above the truck bed.

If this sounds familiar, it is because it is surprisingly similar to the Ford Model T roadster pickup, another machine that was elegant in its simplicity.

The Dakota convertible was added to Dodge's lineup because of the very positive response accorded topless Dakotas at the auto shows, press previews and dealer meetings over the past couple years.

And response is still positive. Few vehicles attract the attention this one does when driven around town with the top down. It is one of those rare vehicles that makes people smile. If you don't like strangers hollering "nice!" at you from the sidewalk, then avoid this vehicle like leprosy. But if, like me, you enjoy this sort of exhibitionism, you will have trouble outdoing the Dakota pickup.

Aside from its fun in the sun uniqueness, the Dakota convertible is a pleasant driver, peppy with its standard 3.9-liter V-6 engine teamed to a five-speed manual or four-speed automatic, comfortable with its Dakota Sport trim level and such standard options as tachometer, AM stereo/FM stereo cassette radio, power steering, power windows and power door locks.

Because there is nothing behind you except the truck bed, the Dakota has a more "naked" feel to it than most convertibles, but a sense of security is provided by a vinyl-seathed roll-bar which the top covers when it's in the up position. A ride with the top down is windier than in convertible cars, apparently because of the aerodynamics of the truck bed, so ladies might want to cover their head or braid their hair, while men might want to do what I did, go bald.

The Dakota's interior is so plush and its handling so carlike that you can easily forget you are in a truck until you turn your head to look behind you and bump into the rear window. There is no more room in a pickup than there is in convertible cars, except that the seats fold forward so you can stash a briefcase, a jacket and an umbrella out of sight.

In the next couple of years, your cars will come equipped with air bags, but the Dakota already has as standard equipment a feature much more likely to save your life and/or your sheet metal, rear-wheel anti-lock braking. Anti-lock brakes maintain directional stability by preventing rear wheel brakes from locking up under stress conditions. Aside from three-point seat belts, collapsible steering column and safety windshield, most "safety" features are just bureaucratic posturing, but anti-lock braking is for real. I know, it has saved me more than once.

A control module sense lock-up and automatically releases hydraulic pressure before it occurs. An idiot light on the dash lights up if there is a malfunction, although I am not sure what you should do about this, since you are probably not intending to lock up your brakes anyway.

Gas shocks are standard and enhance the ride, as are 15-inch wheels. If you wonder what 15-inch wheels will do for you, try putting them on your compact or mid-sized vehicle. You'll be surprised at how much better it looks. (It will also affect your speedometer, which was set for 14-inch wheels. If it says you're doing 65, you may get a ticket, because you're doing 70. But the Dakota is set for 15-inches, so go for it.)

I am not particularly a truck fan. But I am a convertible freak. And I like this truck a lot.

Small-business conference planned

The Metro East Chamber of Commerce, which serves the business communities of St. Clair Shores, Roseville, Fraser, Harper Woods, and the Grosse Pointes, in cooperation with Congressman David Bonior, will host a conference on small business needs, Tuesday, Sept. 5, at the Barrister House, 21801 Harper, St. Clair Shores.

This will be followed by a noon luncheon where Bonior will give an address regarding business legislation in the 101st Congress.

Conference registration begins at 8:45 a.m., with two conference sessions planned. Speakers and topics at the first session are as follows: Retail: Morris Alalouf, private consultant, Lending to Small Business - A Banker's Perspective: Frederick Knapp, small business banking officer, Comerica; and Business Planning - Your Roadmap to Success: Donald Morandini, coordinator, Macomb County Business Assistance Center.

Speakers and topics at the second session, which begins at 10:45 a.m. are as follows: Accounting, Taxes and Microcomputers: Bruce J. Ferguson, CPA Deloitte Haskins & Sells; Cut Your Cost of Hiring and Training New Employees: Marsha Prose, public relations/marketing specialist, Macomb/St. Clair Private Industry Council, Inc.; and Market Research, Donald Morandini.

At each session the three presentations will be held simultaneously in separate rooms, and participants may choose which one to attend.

The cost is $12 and reservations must be made in advance by check, money order, Visa or MasterCard. The reservation deadline is Sept. 2.

Reservations should be sent to the Metro East Chamber of Commerce, 27601 Jefferson, St. Clair Shores, Mich. 48081.

For additional information, call the Chamber of Commerce office at 777-2741.

Committees for Wulfmeier formed

Leroy H. Wulfmeier III, a candidate for the Grosse Pointe Farms Council, announced the formation of three committees to assist him in this fall's election.

Wallace Riley, Paul Marco and John Griffin will handle the Senior Advisory Committee to assist him in strategy and fundraising.

Chairing his Volunteer Action Committee are Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Glass, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kross and Phoebe Weinberg. They will coordinate volunteers to distribute information and arrange fundraising activities.

A Junior Advisory Committee, which Wulfmeier feels is necessary to reach the Farms' future leaders, will be led by Lindsey Ford, Dainforth French Jr., and Christie Weinberg. They will target the 18-30 year old voters that Wulfmeier feels should get involved in the local political process.

Women's group to meet Sept. 11

Guest speaker for the Michigan Professional Women's Network dinner meeting Monday, Sept. 11 will be State Rep. Judith Miller from the 65th District.

The event begins at 6 p.m. at the Holiday Inn in Southfield.

The Michigan Professional Women's Network is interested in all areas of concern to professional women. By learning from speakers, sharing information and actively networking together, the group helps career women succeed in business, industry and education.

Meetings are open to the public, but advanced reservations are required. Cost is $17 members and $23 non-members.

For information call Diane Wilbur at 647-4480.

Cottage Hospital Auxiliary's 1989 Kitchen Tour is Sept. 14

By Margie Reins Smith
 Feature Editor

If the seven Grosse Pointe kitchens on Cottage Hospital Auxiliary's 1989 Kitchen Tour indicate trends in culinary decor — here's what's hot in kitchens this year:

- Natural wood floors
- Hand painted tile accents
- Pale, neutral colors
- Cooking islands
- Cabinets with glass doors
- Copper accessories

The tour will be Thursday, Sept. 14, from 1 to 5 p.m. and all proceeds are earmarked for the hospital's cardiac monitoring systems.

The benefit is a kick off for Cottage Hospital's 70th anniversary celebration.

Kitchens on the tour range from examples of traditional to contemporary designs.

"Each tour kitchen offers a variety of well-planned remodeling or decorating ideas easily transferred to kitchens of all sizes and purposes," said co-chairman Mary Nolan.

A Grosse Pointe Park kitchen features copper and brass sinks and faucets with old fashioned porcelain handles. The double kitchen sink is made of bright hammered copper. Above the central island is a copper hanging rack filled with dangling baskets, copper and cast iron pots. The floors and woodwork throughout the kitchen and the adjoining family room is a rich, warm tone of stained red oak.

Fabrics and accessories are shades of hunter green and rust. Backsplashes in the kitchen area are tiles made of brick and mortar, interspersed with handpainted tiles depicting designs of houses and churches.

In contrast — a Grosse Pointe Farms kitchen is sleek, modern and spare, with wide expanses of clutter-free countertops. Formica cabinets are a bright mauve with black handles.

The recently redecorated kitchen was created from a small cook's kitchen and an even-smaller butler's pantry.

The owners added a bay window and a large center island designed for cooking and eating with its indoor grill and pull-out bar stools.

A kitchen in the City repeats the popular off-white countertop and cabinet theme, but accents are rose, mauve and blue — boldly stated in the striped, flowered wallpaper.

The floor is wood planks and a large antique dining table dominates the adjacent eating area.

More brass accents can be found in another City kitchen. This one is decorated in subdued tones: beige, gray and white, with accents of lush green plants.

The white oak floor has a natural finish and white cabinets with glass doors are finished in a pale off-white wash that lets the natural wood grain show. The huge center island, which dominates the room, is topped by a gray and white flecked granite slab and features a double sink with brass-trimmed fixtures.

Hand painted tiles with fruit designs accent the cooking area.

In the Farms, the kitchen of a 60-year-old home has been re-designed to keep the best of the old — and add the best of the new.

Cabinets and countertops are almond-colored and the natural wood planked floor is accented with oriental area rugs in shades of pale blue, rust and beige.

The owners have collected accent pieces for the room from their travels to England: an arrangement of framed paintings of English shops that they picked up at a London street fair; an antique duck figurine; some duck decoys.

A bit of tongue-in-cheek: Instead of a fruit bowl or a candy dish or some nuts and a nutcracker — a bowl of baseballs . . .

Tour kitchens were designed by Mutschler Kitchen, Inc., Cox & Baker Builders, Inc., Customcraft Construction Inc. and Pointe Kitchen Center Inc.

Place settings will be designed by Jacobsons. Floral arrangements will be by Grosse Pointe Florists Inc., Viviano Flower Shop, Arrangement Flower Shop, Wesley Berry Flowers and Charvat The Florist Inc.

General chairmen of the fundraiser are Nanette Quinones and Mary Nolan and they said that all the guilds of Cottage Hospital's Auxiliary are enthusiastically participating in the 70th anniversary event.

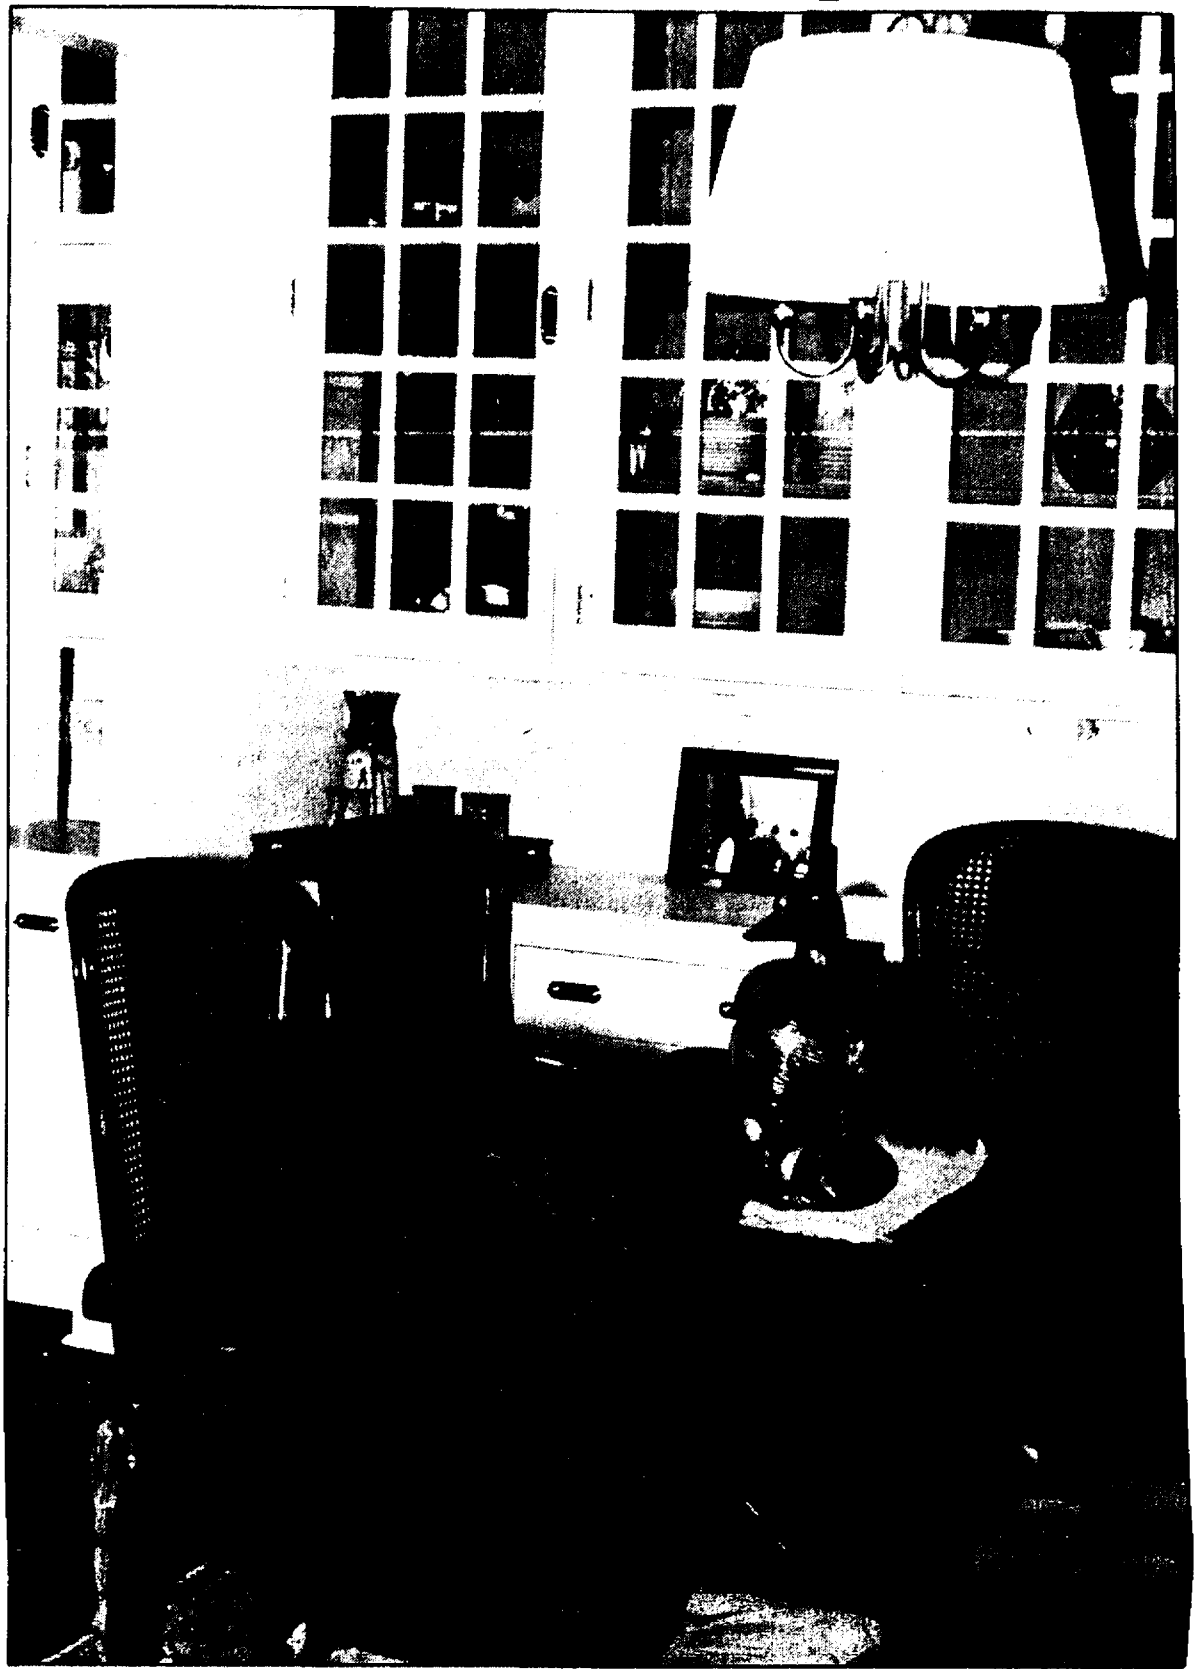

Other chairmen and committee members include Loretta Cross, Isobelle Sayer, Dorothy Gitre, Peg Noble, Suzanne Debruyne, Josette Hosking and Henry Marchand.

Tickets for the tour are $8 per person. A $6 group rate (minimum 15 people) is available at the Cottage Hospital Gift Shop and at Village Records and Tapes. Orders may be placed in advance by mail or purchased at 250 Washington, 1020 Three Mile or 217 Lakeshore on the day of the tour.

Make checks payable to Cottage Hospital Auxiliary Kitchen Tour and mail them with a self-addressed stamped envelope to Cottage Hospital Auxiliary Kitchen Tour, P.O. Box 36363, Grosse Pointe, Mich. 48236.

No photographic equipment is permitted on the tour. No children under 8 or infants are permitted.

For more information, call 886-6244.

Seniors

Senior boom: America struggles with a demographic shift

One of the best selling books of the season is not a sex novel or a spy thriller. It's not even fiction.

It is "Age Wave: The Challenges and Opportunities of an Aging America" by Ken Dychtwald, Ph.D. and Joe Flower. It's a book that concerns itself with a phenomenon that has never before occurred in America: a senior boom.

The senior boom, the birth dearth and the aging of the baby boomers are coming together to create a massive demographic shift, one which we refer to as the "Age Wave."

Larry Tisch, chairman of CBS, said, "Throughout history most social phenomena have repeated over and over again."

We have had political movements shift from left to right. We've had good leaders and bad. Social behaviors have become more liberal and then conservative again.

But we have never before had a mass population of middle-aged and older men and women.

In his book, Dychtwald provides insights and suggestions not only for seniors but also for those who will one day be part of that group which now comprises 12 per cent of the population and by the year 2000 is likely to represent one-fifth of the total population.

Two-thirds of all the people who have ever lived beyond the age of 65 are alive today. Ten per cent of our senior citizens have children who are senior citizens. The average American woman can expect to spend more years caring for her parents than she did caring for her children.

This shift to an older population is not a trend, it is a social inevitability, offering challenges and opportunities for which we are ill prepared. Every aspect of our culture — patterns of social and personal relationships; financial and political power; workplace dominance; the focus of product development and marketing; healthcare and educational priorities — is already showing signs of transformation. And the most radical changes are yet to come.

Are we ready for this demographic revolution? The author says no — at least not yet.

"How strange," he writes, "that while we have spent the past 10,000 years trying to live long and grow old, now that we are having success we don't know what to make of it. Our nation has yet to figure out a positive and hopeful way to think about itself growing up. America is having an identity crisis."

He suggests what can be done to make changes that will not only benefit seniors now and in the future but the population in general.

Baby boomers are a group that is already influencing what being old in America will be. Dychtwald writes; "To understand aging, we can wait until the first boomers celebrate their 65th birthdays, or we can glimpse the future in the challenges and the crises being experienced by today's middle-aged and older Americans. These people are the social pioneers."

Among the challenges will be the future of Social Security, a sacred area where change is feared and resisted. The author contends that Social Security may no longer fit the problem that it was so well designed for in the 1930s.

In recent decades, the Age Wave has transformed the group of old people receiving support from a large pool of young workers into a huge mass of retired people who are being supported by a steadily shrinking population of young workers.

Medicare also comes in for criticism. He writes that 10 percent of the beneficiaries accounted for more than 72 percent of the cost.

"Many people argue," he said, "that instead of pouring billions of dollars into health care for the terminally ill elderly, we could be using this money to help young people to live healthy active lives."

However, he holds that to interpret these social warning signals as representative of an intergenerational animosity and age wars is wrong. It undermines the generous American spirit.

Dychtwald's message goes beyond the well-known fact that people are living longer.

The aging of America has numerous impacts on the way we live. For example, we all pretty much had linear life plans. Education, career, marriage, children and, if we lived long enough: retirement and grandchildren.

No longer. With 30 or so extra years added to our life expectancy since the turn of the century, people are increasingly disregarding established patterns, often delaying marriage and children and pursuing education and second and third careers far out of the traditional order. Also the numbers of people who stay with one mate all of their lives is decreasing in favor of what Dychtwald calls serial monogamy.

"When people could expect to live only a few more months or years in an unsatisfying relationship, they would usually resign themselves to it. But the thought of 20, 30 or even 50 years in an unsatisfying relationship can cause decisive action."

Businesses have profited by the Age Wave. Seniors are not only a major market in themselves but also for their frequently less wealthy children and grandchildren. Over the last two years, for instance, grandparents have counted for nearly one-quarter of all toy purchases.

Dychtwald has done a remarkable job with the assistance of free-lancer Joe Flower in simplifying a very complicated and important subject.

Short of a balanced budget, dealing with the aging of America may be our most significant problem.

Group endorses repeal of health care surtax

Nick Zizzy, acting chairman of the Michigan-based Seniors Against Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act (SAMCCA) pledged his group's support for a bill authored by U.S. Sens. Carl Levin, (D-Mich.), and Tom Harkin, (D-Iowa).

The Harkin-Levin proposal keeps benefits at current levels but changes the health care funding mechanism.

The group aims to repeal the supplemental surtax paid for catastrophic health protection for seniors by endorsing legislation to eliminate the added tax.

Zizzy also noted that Rep. David Bonior, (D-Mich.), has introduced identical legislation in the House of Representatives.

Under the Harkin-Levin-Bonior plan, the surtax would be eliminated for 13 million older Americans. Catastrophic care would be funded by earmarking revenues through an extension of the 33 percent marginal income for families with taxable incomes over $208,500. Under current law, the marginal tax rate actually drops to 28 percent for taxpayers in that upper range.

The funding mechanism would affect only 1 percent of the wealthiest U.S. taxpayers, Zizzy said Levin told his group. He said Levin said, "Older Americans aren't asking for a free ride. They're looking for a fair deal — not one in which a portion of one group is singled out to pay for others in that group."

"We don't ask some vets — and no other taxpayers — to support other vets or some students to cover loan costs for other students. Why should some seniors — and no other taxpayers — have to cover costs for other seniors?"

According to Patrick L. Burns of the SAMCCA committee, between Sept. 1 and 15, all who are interested in the repeal of the surtax are asked to write letters to: Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, 703 Senate Office Bldg., Washington, D.C., 20510-43015 or Congressman Dan Rostenkowski, 2111 House Office Bldg., Washington, D.C., 20513-1308.

ElderCamp is for senior citizens

Circle Pines Center has announced its first ElderCamp, Sept. 4-10.

ElderCamp is a vacation for mature people to relax, learn and play together in a cooperative and supportive environment. Located northeast of Kalamazoo, Circle Pines is a cooperative recreation and education center founded in 1938 to teach cooperation. Activities center around a Civil War vintage farmhouse which houses the kitchen, dining hall, library and activity areas. The grounds and nature trails encompass 284 acres of rolling woods and meadows bordering Stewart Lake.

Program leaders will lead workshops on such topics as maintaining health, the politics of aging, loss of a partner, retiring and leaving home. Other workshops may include creative writing, photography and storytelling. Also featured will be arts and crafts, nature walks, music and singalongs, folk, square and ballroom dancing, table games, gentle exercises, swimming and sauna, croquet, horseshoes, softball and volleyball.

The accommodations are simple and rustic and include a lodge, cabins, and camping areas for tents or motor homes. Meals are prepared by experienced cooks using unprocessed foods and are served family style. Special dietary needs will be accommodated with advanced notice.

Crescendo Ball: Fundraiser for new DSO Volunteer Council

Members of the committee responsible for the 30th annual Fall Art Festival, co-sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Artists Association and the Grosse Pointe War Memorial Association are, from left, Isabelle Goosen, general chairman; Barbara Wehby, publicity; Jim Stelma, grounds and security; Bette Prudden, jury chairman; Corinne Dolega, honorary chairman; Ruth Whipple, entry chairman; and Carl Hedeen, featured artist for the show. The Art Fair is this Saturday, Sept. 9 at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Musicophiles: The new Detroit Symphony Orchestra Hall Volunteer Council will hold its first fundraiser at the Westin Hotel on Saturday, Sept. 16.

The Crescendo Ball — the first such event at the opening of the DSO season, is part of the Homecoming Festival, a series of 11 events from Sept. 12 to 24 celebrating the orchestra's return to Orchestra Hall.

The theme will be "Fascinating Rhythm."

Cocktails begin at 7 p.m.; dinner at 8 p.m.; dancing to the music of Lester Lanin and his orchestra and the Symphony Strings conducted by Felix Resnick.

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra Hall Volunteer Council was created during the 1988-89 season as a result of the merger of the DSO and Orchestra Hall. The five volunteer groups associated with the two organizations (the Women's Association for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, the Detroit Symphony League, the Friends of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, the Orchestra Hall Associates and the Friends of Paradise Theatre) were consolidated into one organization, the Volunteer Council.

Marianne Endicott is chairman of the Volunteer Council; Barbara Tucker is chairman of the ball.

Other Grosse Pointers on the committee for the Crescendo Ball are: Mrs. Donald Austin, Mrs. Mark Beltaire, Mrs. Henry Ford II, Mrs. Frank A. Germack Jr., Mrs. David Lawson, Mrs. Kim Lie, Mrs. Donald C. Longyear, Mrs. Peter Spivak, Mrs. Thomas Schoenith, Mrs. William P. Vittoe, Mrs. Alexander Wrigley and Mrs. John E. Young Jr.

Tickets for the Crescendo Ball are $250 per person; $2,500 for a table for 10.

Call 567-9000 for tickets and more information.

American beauties: The Hospice Foundation of Southeastern Michigan will present an American Beauty Luncheon and Fashion Spectacular on Thursday, Sept. 28.

Kaye Lani Rae Rafko, Miss America 1988, will preside over the festivities to be held at the Michigan Inn in Southfield.

Saks Fifth Avenue-Fairlane will present the fashions.

Cadillac Motor Car Division is sponsor of the event, which will feature a silent auction and raffle. The use of an Allante for one week is one of the prizes.

Proceeds will support the patient care programs of Hospice of Southeastern Michigan. This not-for-profit corporation offers an alternative to traditional medical care for the terminally ill.

Over the last nine years, HSEM has provided compassionate care for more than 6,500 patients and their families, allowing patients to live in the final stage of life with dignity, control and self-respect.

Committee chairperson is Grosse Pointer Diane Schoenith. Other Grosse Pointers on the planning committee are Dale Austin and Stephanie Germack.

Luncheon and fashion show tickets are $25 per person. Patron tickets are $50 each. Patrons will also enjoy a private reception with Ms. Rafko and complimentary valet parking.

Seating is limited. For more information and reservations, call the Hospice Foundation at 552-1933 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

Funnies: "Crazy for Cartoons" is the theme of this year's Party in the Park, the Detroit Artists Market's annual fundraiser.

Cartoons will come to life in the Cartoon Theatre, original cartoon art will be sold in a silent auction and artists will exhibit their work on Friday, Sept. 15 from 5:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. in Harmonie Park and the Detroit Artists Market.

Food and spirits will be provided by some of the area's top restaurateurs and guests are encouraged to let their favorite cartoon character influence their attire.

Tickets are $30 per person and are available at the door or by calling the Detroit Artists Market at 962-0337. Payment for advance reservations is due by Sept. 7.

The Detroit Artists Market is a non-profit art gallery devoted to exhibiting and selling the works of emerging artists in the Detroit area.

Les Miz biz: Michigan Opera Theatre will launch its 19th anniversary season Friday, Sept. 8 with the Detroit premiere of the Tony Award-winning musical "Les Miserables."

The co-presentation between the Nederlander Organization and MOT opens at the Fisher Theatre with a gala benefit preview performance that includes an evening of pre- and post-theater dining and entertainment called "The Great Gala."

Michigan Bell Telephone and Ameritech Foundation have underwritten the evening's festivities which will be hosted by general co-chairmen Bill and Sue Vittoe and honorary chairman Gov. James J. Blanchard.

Benefit tickets include dinner, theater and afterglow and may be purchased by calling the MOT Special Events Department at 874-7850.

Business as usual: The Grosse Pointe charter chapter of the American Business Women's Association recently elected its officers for 1989-1990. They are: Dorothy Bond, president;

Donna Maladecki, vice president; Donna O'Brien, secretary; Bridget Julian, treasurer.

The mission of the ABWA is to bring together businesswomen of diverse backgrounds and to provide opportunities for them to help themselves and others grow personally and professionally through leadership, education, networking support and national recognition.

Last year, the Grosse Pointe charter chapter awarded more than $4,000 in local scholarships. Currently, plans are under way for the chapter's annual fashion show, a fundraiser for its scholarship fund.

Christ the King Church plans 50th anniversary

"Rejoicing in God's Love, 1940-1990" is the theme of the 50th anniversary celebration at Christ the King Lutheran Church in Grosse Pointe Woods. Plans for commemorative activities were underway in June at a kick-off meeting. The year-long observance will begin with a church banquet on Oct. 21. Christ the King Church had its beginning in 1940 when the English district of the Missouri Synod opened a preaching station in the Woods community. Ten charter members helped organize the congregation under the name Calvary Lutheran Church in 1941 with the Rev. W. Burmeister as minister. Services were held in a store front on Mack Avenue until 1947, when a permanent site was selected at the corner of Lochmoor Boulevard and Mack. The Rev. Walter J. Geffert became the leader of this flock in 1945 and in 1953 he officiated at the dedication of the Tudor Gothic-style edifice with a new name, Christ the King. An addition in 1964 expanded the facility to its present capacity. Current membership is 650. Geffert served the congregation for 27 years and retired in 1972, when the Rev. Joseph Fabry was installed as pastor. In 1985, the Rev. Randy Boelter became assistant pastor. As a gift to the community, the church sponsors a living nativity on the grounds at Christmas, with performances by Sunday School children and choral groups. The preschool, added in 1986, now has an enrollment of 52 youngsters. Vacation Bible School attendance numbered 110.

The beautifully landscaped and well-kept exterior has earned the Mayor's Beautification Award for three years. Committee members who are planning the year's commemorative activities are: Marie Schulz, Shirley Fabry, Joseph Fabry, Pauline Schomig, Steve Wyrock, Beverly Hacker, Robert Marshall, Betty Knop, Tom Knop and chairman Walter Geffert. Invitations are being prepared for past vicars, officers of the Missouri Synod and all former members of Christ the King.

Ellington's sacred music is featured

A performance of the sacred music of Duke Ellington and its roots which was premiered by Fort Street Presbyterian Church and the Jimmy Wilkins Cultural Foundation, will again be presented on Sunday, Sept. 24, at 5 p.m. at 631 W. Fort at Third. Featured artists include the Jimmy Wilkins Orchestra, Ange Smith and the Earl Van Riper Trio, with chorus directed by Mildred Doby. Also featured are Lloyd Storey and Don Mayberry. Masterful Ellington selections include songs and hymns of slavery and freedom, traditional spirituals with a featured dance segment. Ellington regarded the music in his sacred concerts as some of his most significant work. When asked why he spent so much time writing it, he said, "You can jive with secular music; but you can't jive with the Almighty." The concert, produced in association with the Jimmy Wilkins Cultural Foundation, Inc. with support of the National Endowment for the Arts and the Michigan Council for the Arts, benefits Fort Street's Open Door, a weekly food and social services program. As the spiritual proclaims: "All God's children gotta have shoes." Fort Street believes that they must continue to be afforded more. General admission tickets are $8 and reserved patron seats are $20 by mail order from the church or in person at 631 W. Fort. For information, call 961-4533.

Female horticulturalists dish dirt, influence garden design

In spite of all the very famous masters of gardening and garden design who created the marvelous gardens surrounding the great estates and palaces all over Europe, gardening has long been considered a suitable and particular female accomplishment. In the Middle Ages it was the lady of the manor who tended the herb gardens and the rose gardens and who created lotions and potions and ointments and fragrances from them in the stillroom. Vegetable gardens and the general upkeep of the shrubbery were left to the supposedly less perceptive care of male gardeners. Artists in the 18th century often portrayed ladies wearing garden hats and carrying cutting shears and baskets of flowers. Recipes for potpourris of petals and spices abounded at this time. In the Victorian era, gardening for ladies was over sentimentalized and romanticized to a great degree. At that time women were supposed to be fragile, swooning creatures unable to lift a hand further than to wait a fan or admire a rose, and yet gardening was an activity thought to be suitable for such delicate hands. Of course, everyone knows gardening is hard work and anyone who has ever weeded, pruned, transplanted, raked and hoed knows that this is so, but the Victorians only saw what they wanted to see. What they wanted to see was an ethereal feminine creature, delicately cutting roses with the dew still on them — not the actual lady gardener with sweating brow and mud under her fingernails. By the early years of this century, people were admitting that the general heave-ho of gardening was a fact and that women were really capable of doing it. Lady gardeners, with a sigh of relief, could stop pretending that all they did was to wave a magic wand for the roses to burst into bloom. There were some very notable gardeners early on. Gertrude Jekyll was one. She has been called the architect-in-chief of modern gardens and indeed is responsible for much of what we consider good design in gardens today. It was Jekyll who managed to effect a departure from the popular Victorian concept of geometrical gardens. The formally arranged and artificial looking beds, where flowers were treated as objects rather than as growing things, were replaced by flowing lines and natural growing areas for plants.

By Ellen Probert

Jekyll became the fashion in her native England and soon in the United States as well. She designed more than 350 gardens in both countries and influenced many more. A trademark touch in Jekyll gardens was what she called 'drifts' of color-massed borders or areas under trees filled with daffodils or primroses. Her water and wall gardens are still being copied. Her book "Color in the Flower Garden" is a classic. She was an inveterate gardener all her life and even managed to tend her beloved plants from a wheelchair toward the end of her life. Much earlier, an enterprising gardener named Alice Fenwick, who came to Connecticut with her husband in 1639, left a diary of her gardening efforts. She described the process of "dressing a garden." Her earliest projects were the successful grafting of slips from fruit trees that she brought from England. She was homesick for England at first and turned to her garden for consolation, determining to make it as much like an English garden as she could. She planted an herb garden and was knowledgeable about uses of the herbs. She grew herbs for cooking and for their medicinal virtues. One thing that Fenwick is noted for is the classifying of many native plants and the hybridizing of some. Her garden has long since vanished, but the legends about it survive and in the area where the settlement of Saybrook flourished so long ago, Fenwick's name is still a familiar one. Other notable lady gardeners of early days in this country have made their impact on the American scene. Jane Colden was America's first woman botanist. She died in 1766. Eliza Lucas Pinckney was well known as an agriculturist in the 1780's. Maria Martin, who died in 1863, was an accomplished botanical artist as well as a gardener. She painted many of the illustrations for Audubon's writings. Fanny Searls was the first to document the plants native to the American West and her collections of drawings and writings are still the authoritative works on the plant life of the Rockies. Helena Rutherford brought gardening into our own age with her development of new varieties of old favorite plants. She was well known as a garden writer before her death in 1920. All these women used their talents of writing, painting and later photography, to depict what was really their first love, gardening.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Francis Digan

Laura Ann Hamlin, daughter of Robert and Joanne Hamlin of Grosse Pointe Woods, married Michael Francis Digan, son of Richard and Marjorie Digan of Garden City, Long Island, N.Y. on April 22, 1989, at Our Lady Star of the Sea Catholic Church.

The Rev. John F. Child officiated at the 5:30 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

The bride wore a full length, off-white gown of Italian silk. The off-the-shoulder gown featured short, puffed sleeves and Aton lace appliques with pearls and iridescent sequins on the dress, around the neckline and on the 10-foot train. She wore a single strand pearl necklace, bracelet and single pearl earrings. Her veil was a beaded pearl sequin motif Juliet cap, which held a puff and four-tier illusion veil bound in satin. Her bouquet was Cymbidium orchids, stephanotis, white roses and freesia.

The matron of honor was Susan Tittlebach Welsh of Atlanta. Bridesmaids were Patricia Lee Hamlin of Grosse Pointe Woods, sister of the bride, Karen Ann Bodie of Dearborn Heights and Carol Tittlebach of Marietta, Ga.

Attendants' dresses were full-length cerise taffeta with portrait necklines and short puffed sleeves. They carried bouquets of stargazer lilies, tea roses, babies'-breath, freesia and cascading cerise colored ribbons.

The groom's brother, Timothy Digan of Garden City, N.Y. was best man. Groomsmen were Richard Digan of Upper Montclair, N.J., Matthew Digan and James Digan, both of New York City — all brothers of the groom. The bride's mother wore a dusty blue full-length chiffon dress with iridescent sequins and beads and wore a corsage of Cymbidium orchids.

The groom's mother wore an ivory silk tea-length dress with a scalloped hemline and wore a corsage of Cymbidium orchids.

The organist at the ceremony was Edward Higbee. Trumpeter was Walter Szymanski. Soloist was Margaret Ahee. Scripture reader was Douglas Hamlin, brother of the bride.

The bride graduated from Grosse Pointe North High School and the University of Michigan. She is a stockbroker and a credit union specialist with Prudential Bache Securities in Palos Verdes, Calif.

The groom graduated from the University of Florida and is vice president - marketing - Pacific North and South regions with Prudential Bache Securities.

The couple traveled to Hawaii. They will live in Marina Del Rey, Calif.

Shaway-Semmler

Mary Ane Shaway of Upland, Calif., daughter of George and Louise Shaway of Grosse Pointe Park, married Steven C. Semmler of Anaheim Hills, Calif., son of Norman Semmler and Beatrice Valdez of Las Vegas, Nev. August 6, 1989 at St. Peter and Paul Catholic Church.

The Rev. F.J. Zakoor, uncle of the bride, officiated at the 4 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Gourmet House.

The bride's gown was ivory peau de soie with a dropped waist, a sweetheart neckline and sleeves with double puffed bows. The neckline and scalloped waist were bordered with Aton lace, pearls and iridescent beads. The chapel-length train and skirt were edged in a petite double ruffle with a border of Aton lace, iridescent sequins and seed pearls. She wore a Juliet cap of matching lace and a jewel band with puff illusion which was edged with ribbon and cascaded into a four-tiered chapel-length illusion train. She carried a bouquet of white orchids, roses and stephanotis.

Sharon Dobis of Livonia served as maid of honor.

Attendants were Sharon Nietzke of Farmington Hills and

Mr. and Mrs. Steven C. Semmler

Laurie Shaway of Grosse Pointe, both sisters of the bride, Terrie Shaway of Harper Woods, Rose Dasaro of Grosse Pointe and Susan Wilkinson of Upland, Calif.

Attendants wore light blue tea-length gowns of iridescent taffeta with bateau necklines and full gathered skirts. Their bouquets were purple iris and stephanotis.

Chris Valdez of Las Vegas, brother of the groom, was best man.

Groomsmen were Mark Shaway of St. Clair Shores and James Shaway of Grosse Pointe, brothers of the bride, Joe Sadovich, Dan Farano and Craig Christiansen, all of Las Vegas.

Jeffery Moore of Grosse Pointe, a cousin of the bride, served as ringbearer.

The bride's mother wore an ivory silk cocktail suit with ruffled sleeves and an orchid corsage.

The mother of the groom wore a wine-colored tea-length jacquard silk dress with an orchid corsage.

Readings at the ceremony were done by Sandra Moore and Patricia Downs. Singers were Jerome and Chris Michael.

The bride is a graduate of Grosse Pointe South High School and Michigan State University, where she earned a degree in marketing. She is a sales account executive with Eastman Kodak Co. in Anaheim Hills, Calif.

The groom is a graduate of the University of Nevada in Las Vegas and the University of Nevada in Reno, where he studied marketing. He is manager of R.B. Furniture in El Toro, Calif.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Paul Layman

Keri Leigh Bates of Columbus, Ohio, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. John Bates of Grosse Pointe Woods, married Eric Paul Layman of Columbus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Layman of Oak Harbor, Ohio, on April 22, 1989 at Salem Memorial Lutheran Church.

The Rev. Glenn Wegmeyer and the Rev. Olaf Lidums officiated at the 4:30 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

The bride wore her mother's wedding gown of embroidered Swiss organdy. The gown featured a fitted bodice, Sabrina neckline, short sleeves and a four-tiered skirt over a French

Women will offer insight into non-traditional careers

"Walk to the beat of a different drummer" will offer insights on why four women have chosen divergent career paths.

They'll talk about the difficulties they incurred along the way on Monday, Sept 11 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Tickets are $10 each. All proceeds from the evening will go to the Michigan Women's Hall of a Reserve Deputy of the Macomb County Sheriffs Department.

All four women have many business affiliations; all have hobbies and activities outside their chosen careers; all play an active influential and profitable role in businesses not generally headed by women.

Each woman has volunteered her time to benefit the Michigan Women's Hall of Fame.

The Michigan Women's Hall of Fame honors outstanding contributions to Michigan and the world by women who were either born in or made their major contributions in the state. Founded by the Michigan Women's Studies Association, the Women's Hall of Fame brings these outstanding contributions to the public's attention and fills in some of the historical blanks.

The Michigan Women's Hall of Fame is located at 213 W. Main Street in Lansing, Michigan and is available for tours and research by both the general public and scholars. School tours are also welcomed through the year.

Information is available by calling (517) 484-1880.

Bridge

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD
THE PASTEBOARD PASTIME

Getting yourself ambushed in an end play can be perplexing and sometimes embarrassing. To invite such abuse shows arrested development.

The end play is also called a throw in or coup and it is usually made by declarer towards a hand's end, but sometimes earlier. To execute such a play, declarer eliminates the easy out cards then purposely puts a defender on lead so that the forced return is favorable and allows him to win additional tricks, the preparation for such a perpetration may commence as early as the first trick. An experienced defender can sometimes recognize his endangerment and take counter measures such as jettisoning the card that will do it to him, but sometimes he is helpless.

Today's hand was played at Cavendish West, Los Angeles, some three or four years back. It was always a formidable pleasure to sit in the games that Billy Eisenberg would arrange as the talent was usually special. On this occasion Danny Rotman, one of our participants, was a late arrival and an unnamed celebrity of questionable credentials volunteered to take up the slack. In today's hand I sat North and had a ringside seat observing the canny card artistry of my skilled partner, Larry Cohen, after the bidding shown.

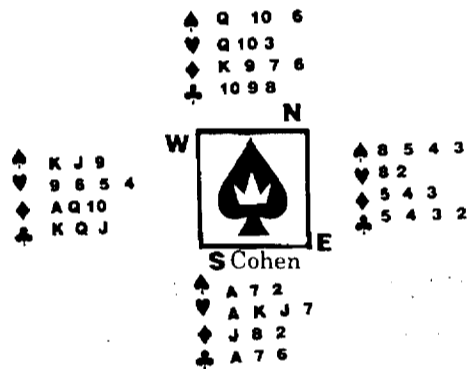

NORTH	EAST	SOUTH	WEST
PASS	PASS	1NT
2NT	PASS	3NT
PASS	PASS

* Dumbfounded pause, stammering pass.

 Hesitant pause, confident pass.

(West bidding performance got him shelled from the box, as we say in baseball, by the end of the first inning). Ed. Note.

But back to the excitement.

West, on lead, over confident and full of zeal, drubbed his Club King to the table. Naturally I wondered, as did East and a covey of kibitzers, just how much of this incautious brash exhibition my partner had assimilated. (Such capricious antics in Bridge, especially in a stake game, are the trademark of a born loser) Ed. note. In no time it was apparent that Larry had reached the same conclusion as everyone present, save one. All the missing high cards were with West and he planned his play accordingly.

West won the King, Queen of Clubs and lost the Jack continuation to declarer's Ace. Next a low Diamond won by dummy's King after West inserted the Ten. Then four rounds of Hearts, dummy pitching a small Spade. West was then thrown in with his two high Diamonds, but at trick eleven he was end played. No matter which Spade West exited with the Spade Queen and Diamond Nine in dummy won and South's Spade Ace was the ninth trick.

Best we learn something from this lesson. Never, never show your cards until they're put in play on the table. Bid and play in a consistently even tempo. Otherwise the expert will get 'cha!

Value, Value, Value

An open and shut case on value. This picturesque home in the Woods is the best buy on the market today. It is the perfect family home for the young executive. And you can move in before school starts. Great for entertaining - both inside and out. Some of its many features include central air conditioning, three bedrooms, two baths, large kitchen with eating space, living room fireplace, and much more. All this for $129,900.

Elegance Beyond Compare

The luxurious features and distinctive styling of this beautiful Colonial will overwhelm even the most discriminating buyer. Conveniently located in the Farms, this home offers the light airy feeling of California with the elegance of New York. From the new Mutschler kitchen with adjoining great room with fireplace to a year-round garden room built around a secluded walled garden, the home has so much to offer the persnickety buyer.

This Grosse Pointe Park estate could be the site of your dream home. If restoration is your desired method, you have a wonderful foundation on which to start. If demolition and evolution are more your style, you can either keep the property intact or subdivide. The property is currently platted into fifteen lots of varying sizes, two of which border Lake St. Clair.

A wonderful two-family, this Grosse Pointe City two-family has lots to offer. A traditional lower, yet a contemporary upper. The upper offers a spacious great room and adjoining bedroom suite. Each unit also has two bedrooms, a fireplace and rear porch. Add to all of this a lovely backyard and you have a wonderful investment opportunity. A perfect investment for everyone.

This handsome Colonial with its exquisite architectural details, epitomizes the quite elegance that is the City. The excellent floor plan - featuring a spacious living room and dining "L", extra large family room, and screened-in porch over-looking the pretty garden. Add to all of this four bedrooms, four and one half baths and attached two-car garage and you have perfection.

Update your wardrobe with pieces that express your personal style

Fall is the power season for Seventh Avenue. As the weather turns crisp, spring and summer clothing seems flimsy, insignificant. This is the season when women across the country buy those fat, five pound issues of fashion magazines in search of something that is fashionable, yet wearable.

Today's women are tired of being dictated to by fashion designers. They are tired of feeling that, to be considered stylish, they must wear clothing that is neither flattering nor appropriate to their lifestyles, or which will look dated after one season.

And, slowly but surely, designers, stores and fashion magazines are beginning to respond to the needs of modern women. Lately, fashion magazines have begun to talk about "personal style," the idea that it's best for women to wear what makes them happy, and to express their personalities through their clothing.

Personal style means having the confidence to combine pieces which traditionally don't belong together, like separates from different designers, or something bought a few years ago with something bought this season, or something casual with something dressy.

This season, it's apparent that designers, rather than indulging in pure flights of fancy, have taken some time to think about what women really want and need. Most of them have designed clothing that is elegant, wearable and versatile, and which will still look great next fall, or even a few years from now.

Fall, 1989, is about looking and feeling your best. Luxurious sportswear in rich fabrics and relaxed shapes helps the modern women step out in style.

Soft, slouchy jackets are great wardrobe updaters this season. They are the focal piece of many American collections. These jackets have a softer shoulder and skim the body like a blouse. Bathrobe wraps, drape fronts and even classic blazers come in colors that make a statement.

Coats are also headliners. They are unfitted and fluid, as seen with the swing or trapeze coat. The tailored, double breasted coat is now oversized, with soft shoulders. Bathrobe wrap coats have shawl collars and gracefully cloak the body.

Long skirts are lean and slit up to the thigh—a new way of showing some leg. Of course, short skirts also continue to look modern. But, the woman who would feel uncomfortable in a slit or short skirt has plenty of options, since many collections feature pants and longer skirts which are full and not slit.

Knits are the backbone of many collections. Staples, such as the turtleneck, can be used for layering or be part of total knit outfits. This fall, fashion is comfortable, so knits are a substantial part of what's coming from Seventh Avenue.

In keeping with the relaxed feeling, draped skirts and blouses, soft and figure flattering, are uniquely important.

Well-bred color is a significant detail. Midnight blue, the deepest and darkest of blues, replaces black in many designers' collections. Pale shades of camel are captivating on their own or when paired with midnight blue. Ivory is the season's bright, to accent the monotone layered separates. Smoke gray, spice brown and moss green also are important.

Fabrics are soft and sumptuous this season. Cashmere, alpaca, wool and pure camel's hair are used in a way that makes them touchable as never before. Stuede is used in supple jackets and skirts.

For those who prowled the urban jungle, animal prints are making a comeback and turning up everywhere. However, it's usually best not to go overboard with this motif. Animal prints look best when used sparingly, rather than head-to-toe. One piece, such as a scarf, bag or hair ornament, can add excitement to an unadorned outfit.

Accessories add style to every designer's collection. Buttons double as jewelry on some clothing. Belts are wide and define the waist, or are fashioned from gold chains with colored stone details. Studs are used to embellish sportswear. Black velvet piping boldly defines the shape of a dress or suit, for day-into-evening dressing. Hosiery usually matches the color of the dress or skirt, for a streamlined effect.

Of course, there are still many avant-garde designers, free spirits who design the kind of clothes that prompt most women to ask, "Who in the world would wear that, and where would they go in it?" Yet, these designers have their fans, and some of their most extreme designs may very well turn up, in modified forms, in future collections of the more mainstream designers.

This season, there really is something for everyone, from the woman who likes the most classic styles, to the one who likes to be the center of attention in the trendiest outfits. Fashion-conscious women can select the styles and details they like best from the fall collections, combine them with the favorites already in their closets, and feel confident that their personal style is shining through in every ensemble.

CLEAN, SOFT SHAPES: Donna Karan brings her modern city lines to sweater dressing this fall. The drape front cardigan tops a matching scoop neck knit made from wool, alpaca and camel hair that's buttery soft against the skin. Black body leggings are the 1989 winter sportswear basic. The pearls of fall score high with fashion-conscious women

Before you consider putting your summer pearls in hibernation for the winter, think again. Cultured pearls are riding a veritable tidal wave of popularity this year. They continue to be one of the hottest items in fashion for fall. And like the spectrum of Seventh Avenue collections this season, the different ways to wear pearls with the new fall styles will be limited only by the imagination.

Ranging from the man tailored to the loosely draped, a wide variety of jackets will be cropping up all over. Strands of pearls, long and short, worn under the jacket and over the blouse will provide a bit of feminine flash in the corporate world or luncheon circuit.

Pins and brooches of cultured pearls set on sculptured gold and silver will be out and about for the season.

On the lapel, off the shoulder or even on the sleeve, brooches are the perfect spice for the tinnest of tunics.

Accents for outerwear

Sporty weekends in the country call for white button-down shirts, worn leather bombers and jodhpur pants. Try a long strand of pearls doubled loosely around the neck for an air of "country chic."

The "bathrobe" coat, full in figure and belted at the waist, will be the popular answer for outerwear. A triple-strand cultured pearl necklace peeks out from underneath bringing a welcome warmth to blustery autumn afternoons.

Big stoles, stolen (or should we say borrowed) from Halston of the seventies, will be another hot item to keep a body toasty this winter. To keep them around the body and off the ground, fasten them with a pearl brooch of Byzantine flavor. For an even more medieval feeling, loop a strand of pearls through the brooch several times to enlarge the look.

For evening romance is back. A woman's back, that is. Evening wear for fall is dramatically focused on a woman's other side. Crossed and open or bare and sexy, these looks will turn a lot of heads. For this look, try a long single strand of cultured pearls looping down the back of a dress, perhaps knotted near the end for an intricate detail.

Fitting in with the myriad of styles for fall '89, it's no surprise that the versatile cultured pearl will once again score high marks on the fashionable woman's report card.

Soft silhouettes

IN LUXURIOUS MATERIALS with leather edging, these three-quarter length shell coats with matching shawls are a standout in Louis dell'Olivo's fall, 1989, collection for Anne Klein. Also featured are cashmere wool jersey turtlenecks and slim pants are shown in a variety of colors. Those of the coats and shawls: Verdian green, moss, violet and navy. The "to-match" look and the lush fabrics create a sense of esthetic pleasure.

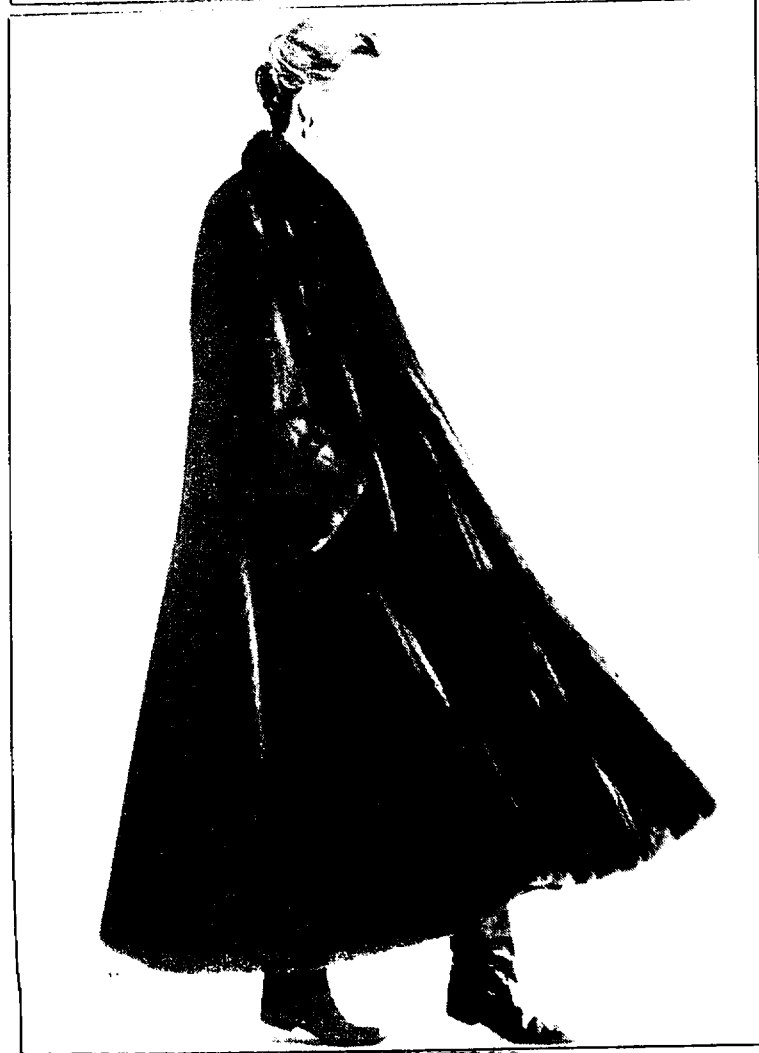

With the 1989 fashion season the rich vibrant colors explode in an array of patterns ranging from the soft flowing paisleys to regal crests. This season the country influence is still holding strong again incorporating a lot of color and rich textured patterns. Colors of the season are the jewel tones in an array of depths from the lightest of aquamarine and rose to the deepest of emeralds, sapphires and rubies. With this in mind Lisa's chose "Gems of Autumn" for their fall fashion theme. Lisa's has a large selection waiting for you. Lisa's is located on Mack Avenue, Grosse Pointe Woods.

ENDURING STATEMENT OF SCOTLAND. Black Watch, one of today's most popular tartans, is shown here in Pendleton Woolen Mills' Knockabouts walking shorts and Scottish dog sweater ensemble. The company, which has a long history of manufacturing authentic tartan designs, says that Black Watch continues to endure as its most popular tartan for men and women. Black Watch earned its name from its color palette of deep green, blue and black. Originally called the Campbell, the tartan was worn by Scottish Royal Highland troops serving in the 42nd Regiment of the English army in the early 18th century. The British soldiers, dressed in their traditional scarlet uniforms, called their newest members "The Black Watch."

New hope for conservative yet image-conscious professional

For fall, 1989, men's fashion offers directions, not directives. Options abound: There is no one look that is right for every man, but every man, from the most conservative to the most fashion-forward, will be able to find something which is both appealing and appropriate to his lifestyle.

Today's man is more interested in fashion than ever before. He is aware of trends in fashion and realizes that he can improve his image and self-esteem by improving his wardrobe. According to the Men's Fashion Association, "men are becoming more involved, interested and discerning when purchasing their wardrobes."

The fall, 1989, collections are sure to appeal to the more demanding, more sophisticated male consumer. Updated silhouettes, luxurious fabrics, rich colors and new details are seen throughout the collections.

In tailored clothing, the big news is the revival of the sack suit, the shapeless three-button suit which was popular in the 1900s. The new sack suit bears little resemblance to its predecessor, which had a narrow cut and skinny lapels. The new sack suits are broad, with a full chest, ventless back and wide shoulders. There are many variations on the sack suit, the differences mainly being in the positioning of the buttons and the way the lapel is pressed or rolled.

The sack suit is an attractive option, though men should keep in mind that, just as the short skirt is not appropriate for every woman, the sack suit does not look great on every man. In general, men with athletic builds will look good in sack suits, while men with more average shapes may tend to look somewhat shapeless. The important thing about the sack suit is that it gives men another alternative in suit styles.

The double-breasted suit is still going strong, in classic and contemporary variations, with peaked or low notched lapels. In both double- and single-breasted suits, shoulder widths continue to widen. With a wider shoulder, the chest is fuller and, in most cases, the coat is tapered at the bottom, giving it an athletic stance.

Gray and navy blue will probably always be the most popular colors for suits. For fall '89, designers showed deeper, richer shades of navy and charcoal, sometimes infused with fuchsia and jade, as well as deep brown tones and varying shades of olive. Appropriate patterns include pin stripes, chalk stripes, beaded stripes and spaced stripes.

In dress shirts, spread collars are catching on, while fuller cut shirts are replacing those with a more tapered fit. Cotton and cotton blends are still the most popular fabrics, while predominant colors are whites, neutrals or pastels, alone or accented with stripes in a variety of color and stripe combinations.

Ties are elegant, ranging from three and a half to four inches wide in bottle-neck shapes, with retro-inspired patterns in a wide range of colors. Suspenders are becoming an acceptable alternative to belts, though certainly not in every workplace.

Adopting a more fashionable image at work is a matter of judgement. Something that is acceptable in one office may very well be frowned upon in another. But, just as working women are moving away from the cookie-cutter "dress for success" look, men, too, are beginning to realize that a more individualistic approach to dressing can actually help their careers.

This does not mean, of course, that a man in a conservative field should deviate dramatically from the dress code at his workplace. It does mean becoming aware of options which may be appropriate, such as double-breasted and sack suits, wider shoulders, softer silhouettes, and variations in color and pattern. A man who dresses to express his sense of style automatically feels better about himself and looks more confident.

The sport coat is becoming more popular outside the office, as men and women alike discover the pleasure of dressing up a bit. A softly constructed jacket is a valuable addition to any sportswear wardrobe, as it can be thrown over anything, even a pair of jeans, for a touch of style.

The Men's Fashion Association defines four major attitudes in sportswear dressing for fall, inspired by plush fabrics, biker street fashion, the American Southwest and the great outdoors.

Plush fabrics, touchable and luxurious, have a rich, exclusive feel. Within this category for fall '89 are greatcoats in rich camel hair and alpaca, coats of melton wool, blazers in cashmere, sweaters of angora, cashmere and mohair, and supple suede vests. These fabrics are costly, but a well-made item in a classic style is a wardrobe investment which will last for years.

raw, aggressive quality of biker-influenced motorcycle jackets, in leather, sturdy cottons and denim.

Native American patterns bring Southwestern spirit to sweaters and outerwear. In a similar spirit, clothing with a "rough and ready" attitude combines the practical features of wilderness attire with an urban sensibility.

Green is a dominant color in all clothing categories this fall. Shades of olive, bottle, moss, hunter and emerald are used as base colors or as accents for sweaters, sport shirts, activewear, tailored clothing and foul weather gear. While bottle green may not appeal to most men, moss and olive are wearable, versatile colors, especially for sportswear and outerwear.

In short, the man looking for a few new additions to his wardrobe, or the one who is ready for a whole new wardrobe, will find that there are plenty of options this season. As men are becoming more interested in fashion, men's fashion, in turn, is becoming more interesting.

RETURN OF THE NATIVE: The three-button sack suit, an American classic, is reinterpreted with international appeal. Jeffrey Banks gives the suit modern sophistication and ease of movement. For fall, 1989.

MOVE TO THE FRONT LINES of fashion with Marienbad, a member of the Men's Fashion Association. The "Scrimmage" crewneck sweater has an all-wool quilted base with graffiti cotton appliques that produce a plush, rugged elegance. For fall/winter 1989.

TRUE COLORS—An exceptional plaid sports jacket by Palm Beach plays pattern against pattern, enlivening black houndstooth checks with an open windowpane of violet, rose and green and placing them on misty grounds of rust, gold and gray. The single-breasted, one-button styling enhances the confident aspect of this well-tailored coat, with notched lapels, flapped pockets and horn button that confirm its country character. The a-sot turned up in many fall 1989 collections.

Denim and Leather apparel getting decorated this fall

PIN PIZZAZ

Pins play an important role in today's fashion statement. They are used to express an individualistic approach to dressing, accessorizing everything from hat brims to scarves, shawls, coat lapels, suit lapels, belts, and purses.

Pins make a wardrobe more versatile. The many styles and motifs available allow the wearer to express her personality... or even a favorite hobby. And, pins can be functional too, used to secure a scarf or shawl to a lapel or coat.

Pins are a perfect gift because no one can have too many. Shown is a classic circle pin updated by channel set baguette diamond and marquise cut diamonds from Edmund T. AHEE, jewelers in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Paisley power

PAISLEY PANACHE: Elegant paisley patterned robe from Nightflowers by Archdale is styled in brushed back satin from Allied Fibers' 'Creme de Captiva' collection of luxurious nylon fabrics. The robe features an outer surface of satiny shimmer, with a warm, napped side for next-to-the-skin comfort.

Denim and leather have been best-selling fabrics among young women for at least 20 years. This fall, denim and leathers are being given new appeal with the introduction of novelty treatments: fringes, embossments, tie-back corset closures, tasseling, silver nailhead studding and multi-colored studding.

New emphasis on individuality

Teens were happy with the look and feel of denim and leathers in the early '80s, but the decade was characterized by a certain amount of conformity. Today's juniors are beginning a new decade marked by individualism and personal style. While teen idols, rock stars, TV and movie actors will continue to influence changing trends, individual twists to mainstream fashion will become more evident.

"The fast changing tastes of the younger generation are a challenge that keeps manufacturers on their toes," says Morgan Cooper, whose company's new MorganWear line is leading the current trend. MorganWear has created a full range of 1990's treatments—black and white leathers, vintage stonewashed denim and overdyed stonewashed denim in jet black.

European influences

Morgan says the current look reflects this year's latest fashion phenomenon on the streets of Paris and Milan. His styles now include back-laced stonewashed corset skirts with matching jackets, hip zip leather skirts of various lengths, and leather jackets decorated with silver nailhead studs. One winner that Morgan forecasts is a zip front stonewashed bustier worn with form fitting jeans.

Teen stars on fall television programs are now introducing these new looks in denim and leathers, with MorganWear first seen nationally on the hostess of the popular television program, Remote Control.

Pointe teams gear to hash it out

Sports Editor

Together again

In early June, Bob Schroeder said his goodbyes to the football staff at Grosse Pointe South. On Aug. 24, he said hello.

Schroeder, who announced his retirement from South to take the vacant head coaching position at Chippewa Valley, greeted his former team for a scrimmage.

It wasn't anything special, but it did look awkward. Schroeder wasn't on the team bus. He hasn't been in preseason camp, and he's not wearing blue and gold.

Instead, Schroeder is dressed in red and white, has a Big Reds cap and has been running his own camp.

Schroeder deserved the opportunity Chippewa Valley gave him. He had ached for a head coaching position and when the chance came, he took it even though it meant leaving South.

For 15 years, Schroeder not only helped South find its foundation for tradition, but tried to add a step each season. In the meantime, he developed a friendship with all the coaches, especially head coach Jon Rice.

Rice and Schroeder are golf partners, were co-head coaches for two years, worked as assistants together under Russ Hepner and still maintain that close tie. Now, however, it's different.

Since departing, Schroeder and Rice have seen one another, but this was the first time they had to step on the field from opposite sides. They didn't make a big deal out of the entire situation, but you could sense a certain style of competition only two coaches could share.

For the first time ever, two men who think so much alike had to oppose one another. It didn't seem right. Then again, friends or not, the rivalry in athletics can't be replaced. Nor can friendships.

No comparison

Chippewa Valley's football facility makes Grosse Pointe North's and South's look like a junior high complex.

A two-tiered press box that is immaculate and heated makes South's look like a tree fort, and North's just a green box at the top of the bleachers. ULS doesn't even have one.

The field conditions are much the same, but what sets Chippewa Valley's apart is the cement stands — not bleachers. The team emerges from a tunnel set back in the middle of the stands like Division I teams do. Under the stands lie the lockers, training room and soon to be coaches' office. Batting cages also dress up this fine 1990 establishment.

The sad part about having such a facility is that it hasn't been filled to capacity for quite sometime. Schroeder is taking over a 5-13 program over the past two years, but the energy his team generated on that cool August night may infect the student body.

Schroeder comes from a winning tradition and is looking to build a foundation the people of the Valley can be proud of. It's just going to take one step at a time.

Nice touch

Before the scrimmage, South captains Mike Montagne, Brian Letscher, Matt Wysocki and Rob Khoenle gave Schroeder a card signed by all the '89 Blue Devils.

Well wishes filled the card from corner to corner. Schroeder, obviously touched by the idea, gave each of the kids a pat on the back and his wishes: "Good luck, fellas."

It's awkward not having Schroeder around South, but if history dictates, the Big Reds will soon be heard from.

Within the next week, the fall sports will begin for the Knights of ULS, the Blue Devils of South and the Norsemen of North.

The preseason practices are over and the game-day butterflies are approaching. Again, as is tradition in Grosse Pointe, the athletic teams are going to field winners. From tennis to football, this year could be the time for all good fans to come to the aid of their team.

Whether or not North will be better than South, or University Liggett School will be more dominant than North remains to be seen. In their respective sports, all three schools look to fill the trophy cases with more hardware.

For South, this is the final year of the Eastern Michigan League. At the end of the school year, the E.M.L. will fold. With that in mind, there's added incentive to leave with championships in each of the sports.

The Norsemen will welcome South into the Macomb Area Conference in 1989, but before they do that, they still want to prove they are the team to beat. ULS is looking for a superior football season, and as usual, the tennis team will be strong as will the soccer team.

The following articles give a preview of what the various coaches expect for 1989.

PHRF C goes to Eliminator

Eliminator, skipped by Grosse Pointe's Paul Van Tol, was the top finisher in PHRF C of the Lake Shore Sail Club's weekly Sunset Series.

The top three finishers of each division, which follows, are listed by place, boat name and skipper.

PHRF A: 1, Bodacious, Mike Kunzman; 2, Sure, Sandy Naples; 3, Hokusai, Doug and Cindy Miner.

PHRF B: 1, Dream Machine, Mike Goran; 2, Regale, Gale Forbes; 3, Woodpecker, Don Holstein.

MORC: 1, Fast Forward, Mark Miller; 2, Fiddler, William Sporer; 3, Shogun, John Francisco.

PHRF C: 1, Eliminator, Paul Van Tol; 2, Bravo, Frank Tenkel; 3, Con Moto, Harvey Krieger.

PHRF D: 1, Blue Chip, C. Bruce Taylor; 2, Invincible, Gerald Lavine; 3, Icing, Hugh Livingston.

PHRF E: 1, Stormalong, Bob Orr; 2, Windward, James Cooley; 3, Windy 3, Jim Rapelje.

JAM A: 1, Warthog, Matt Savage; 2, Gallivant, Walter Nikesch; 3, Charisma, Norm Mallory.

way back to the top of the E.M.L. charts. In 1987, Rice's first season, the Blue Devils won the league with a 7-0 clip. Last year they finished one game back of Port Huron Northern. This season more emphasis is being placed on winning that trophy back than in years past.

"Because it is the final year for the Eastern Michigan League," said Rice, "we are putting more emphasis on winning the league. It would be a great way to finish up."

However, Rice and his staff of Hank Lewandowski, Dan Wyers and Russ Hepner, are not focusing solely on the league title.

"We want to first win five ball games," he said, maintaining the long standing tradition. "If we do that, then we're guaranteed a winning season."

In its 15 year affiliation with the E.M.L., South has won eight football titles.

"One more time," said Rice. "Our motto this season is to win the E.M.L. one more time."

With a senior offensive backfield, a strong defense and zeal, South's chances to win it all are good. However, Port Huron Northern and Port Huron stand in the way.

"There are five or six teams that could pull this thing off," Rice said. "The Port Huron schools are always tough, and Anchor Bay, East Detroit and L'Anse Creuse could pose a problem for us."

Nineteen seniors return, as do seven offensive starters, led by quarterback Brian Letscher.

Letscher, who is one of four captains this season, will have a senior-stocked backfield behind him. Fullback Mike Montagne, who steps in at 207 pounds, and tailback Matt Wysocki, also captains, will complement Z-Back Jim West.

Experience is hard to replace. "Having a senior backfield just means that these guys have done this before," chuckled Rice. "They've been working together for a few years now and that's important, especially in our scheme of things."

With the intention of running 60 percent and passing 40 percent of the time, South will have a sturdy offensive line to move the ball by land or air. Tackles Dave Asker (6 foot, 3 inches, 230 pounds) and Andy Shaffer (6-3, 230) anchor the offensive line, with guards John Bednarchik (6-0, 205) and Jim Campagna (6-0, 165) surrounding center Chris Graves (6-1, 215).

"We're doing a lot of things right at this time," Rice said in reference to his offense. "The kids have worked extremely hard over the winter and through the summer. This is a very dedicated and enthusiastic football team."

Senior captain Rob Khoenle will line up as a split end and sophomore Chris Harwick (6-3, 225) will be the Devils' tight end.

On the other side of the ball, South will pride itself on its continued effort to shut the opponent out. Calling it their 4-4 Goose Egg defense, which Russ Hepner will direct, South will contain the opposition's outside game with defensive ends Brett Brownscombe (5-11, 185) and Rapo Nazarko (6-3, 230). Paul Wortman (6-3, 210) and Frank Voelker (5-10, 230) will support the defensive tackle slots.

Jason Bedsworth and Kelly Graves will plug the middle as inside linebackers, and Marty Wayman and Durmon Coates will be outside linebackers. Junior Tim Gramling will watch the flats from a cornerback slot as will senior Dane Lupo, and Khoenle will play safety.

"Our goal is to hold the opponent to no more than two scores a game," Rice said. "If we can do that, then we should win a lot of football games."

In close games, the kicking game could win a few, also.

Jason Weissert returns with his steady leg that produced 17-of-17 in points after touchdowns (PATs). He also kicked a South season-high seven field goals. Besides booting field goals and PATs, Weissert will handle the kick offs and punting.

South opens on the road at ever-tough Edsel Ford, a team it lost to (12-3) in last season's opener.

"The attitude of this team is super," Rice said. "The kids came in and committed themselves to having a successful season. We just have to work hard all season and keep that attitude. We've got to hang on and not give up on our commitment if things get rough early on."

The opener begins at 1 p.m.

Tennis

With seven starters lost to graduation, the South tennis dynasty may take on a whole new look this season.

"We aren't very strong right now," said Coach Stephanie Pritchitko. "I'm still very much up in the air as to who will play where. We're having a lot of challenge matches to place people."

All is not bad, however. "This is a very energetic team with hard working girls," said Pritchitko. "We may be very inexperienced, but we're going to play a lot of teams close."

Jennifer Schutzman, Beth Bonanni and Holly Walker are the only three returnees from last year's team.

"When we started winning our state titles (76-77) we didn't really have a lot of tournament-tested players," said Pritchitko. "That's much of what we have this year. All I can ask is that we improve with each match and become a good team by the end of the year."

Just in time for the regional and state meets.

"I'm very optimistic, however," said Pritchitko, who begins her 39th season of coaching tennis. "This is a nice, hard working group. It's just that we need to sort out the team right now."

Girls' cross country

The string may be cut. After winning its 10th consecutive E.M.L. title and second straight regional title in 1988, the Blue Devils' program is in jeopardy of relinquishing all that.

Don't forget the nine straight trips to the state finals. "It's going to be tough to repeat," said Coach Steve Zaranek. "I hesitate when asked if we'll repeat because we lost more talent at the end of last year than we ever have."

Port Huron and Port Huron Northern present the keenest competition in the league.

"We've got some dynamite teams in our league," said Zaranek, "but we'll be very competitive."

Returning from last year's 19-1 team are Debbie Solterisch, Jenny Barber, Jenny Williams and Emily Burkett. "Looking strong with a lot of potential" are, Susannah McAndrew, Claudine DuPont, Heather Cunningham, Erica Mondro and Katy Neumann.

According to Zaranek, 13 freshmen, led by Kim Apple and Heidi Wise, are also vying to score points on the varsity.

"It's very encouraging because we have such a nice blend on this team," he said. "It'll be a year where we just have to develop. We have a lot of talent that we hope blends."

Boys' cross country

With only two graduated, it's fair to say that Tom Wise's team is a favorite to win the league.

However, once you get into his No. 6 and 7 runners, the depth just isn't there — yet.

"We have five very strong front runners, but beyond that we don't know just how good we'll be," said Wise. "We've got 12 highly qualified guys who can fill those spots, we just have to wait and see."

Anchoring a surge of returning runners are co-captains Dave Kerfoot and Rob Bruce. Last year's freshman record holder Marty Kraft, returns, as do Billy Wilson, John Nickles and Billy Staats. Rounding out a full lineup are Joshua Christian, Delaine Boon, Pat Hayes, Mark Palombo, George Ball, Tim MacGillis, Colton Weatherston, Noah Silvers, Tom Coyle and Peter Gilliespie.

"With this team, I believe we can return to the state finals for the second straight year," said Wise. "We'd like to win the E.M.L., but East Detroit may stand in our way."

Basketball

WANTED: One or two very tall girls who can play hoops.

In a nutshell, that's the story of this season's Blue Devils' basketball team. However, with the talent and speed on this team, a tall post player may not be needed.

Liz Liebold and Emily Ayrault, both of whom step in at 5 feet, 8 inches, will be heavily relied on to polish the inside game. Katie Kolp, Darcy Jones, Becky Wysocki and Karen Ehresman will be responsible for dishing the ball to them from the guard spots.

"These girls on this team are very talented," said Coach Peggy VanEckoute. "But without some height, we are hurting."

Kathleen Monaghan, Therese Zanglin, Julie Cartwright, Alex Billiu, Colleen Dailey, Vicky Spicer and Patty Provenzano round out that small, but quick team.

"We can out-run anyone," said VanEckoute. "We're working on our transition game because it should be one of our strong points."

This season, VanEckoute claims the girls can improve on last year's 7-14 mark.

"They have talked about being winners this year," said VanEckoute. "I'm letting the girls set their own goals and the first one is to turn that 7-14 into 14-7. I'd like to see them do that, and I really believe they can."

North

Football

Last year the team was young and inexperienced. This season, Coach Frank Sumbera welcomes his seniors, filled with intensity, emotion and experience.

"We could have 11 kids starting on offense who'll be seniors," said Sumbera, who is entering his ninth year for the Norsemen. "You can't replace experience and experienced offensive linemen."

"Last year our young line took its lumps," Sumbera continued, "but now it's time for them to be the people controlling the tempo."

Across the offensive front, North, which finished 5-4 last year, averages 230 pounds per man. Led by right tackle Bob Thomas, the running game should be steady. Complementing Thomas will be left tackle Brad Hea (225). Tim Ryan (230) and Bob Hutton will set up at the guard slots, and Tony Vallan (215) will play center.

"The key is to keep our offensive line healthy and moving," Sumbera said. "In order for us to be successful, the line will have to control the play."

Last season, North survived in the air. Senior quarterback Scott Bernhardt, who eclipsed all the passing records in North history a year ago, returns to the helm. His receivers include school-record holder Charlie Stumb, who caught five touchdown passes, caught a school-high eight passes twice in games, and tallied more than 600 yards a year ago. Ed Barbieri, also the backup quarterback, and Frank Lucido are two highly regarded receivers. Adam Korzeniewski, who's only a sophomore with a 6-foot, 2-inch frame, will be the tight

The 1989 football captains at North are, kneeling, Charlie Stumb and Bryan Ford. Standing, Chris Meathe and Scott Bernhardt.

"Last year we threw the ball 220 times and completed 96 of those," said Sumbera. "This year we may not have to do that. Our running game will center around Bryan Ford (fullback) because he is so strong and big. It's not to say we won't, or can't throw the ball, though."

Ford, who is a potential 1,000 yard rusher and steps in at 6-2, 225, will have Chris Meathe (tailback) as a backfield partner. Mike Koenigbauer and Bob Tidderington will be seeing action at the wide receiver spots.

Defensively, North can't afford to give up 16 points a game, something it averaged last year. This year, however, with Stumb returning to his linebacker spot where he had 103 tackles, North should slice that average.

"Obviously, we have to keep the points off the board," Sumbera said. "We have to get some shutouts by being a more physical team than we were a year ago. We've got to put the rock back into roll."

That shouldn't be too difficult with Ford and Scott Nesom manning the defensive ends. Leo Salvaggio, only a junior, will set his 6-1 235-pound frame at one defensive tackle, and Trey Brangan (6-3, 275) and Bob Thomas are battling for the other tackle spot in the 4-4 defense.

Tim Meinig and James Kutcher will be the outside linebackers, with Korzeniewski, Ryan or Steve Craparotta taking the second inside linebacker position next to Stumb. The cornerback spots belong to Barbieri and Lucido, who led the Norsemen with six interceptions last season, with Meathe stepping in as the safety. Marc Adams, however, will be seeing action in the defensive backfield, as well.

"The strength of the defense has been stopping the run," Sumbera said. "The front four will have to control the line and keep people off our linebackers so they can read and get to the ball."

As if he didn't have enough to do, Stumb, who is also the varsity club president, will handle the kicking duties. Angelo Gritsas, who will also be playing soccer, will help out in the kicking game.

Sumbera, along with coaches Dick Grammatico, Mike Kras and Nick Thomson, will be looking for their second Macomb Area Conference White Division championship in three years. However, a formidable opponent in Romeo may impede that surge.

"This is the first time I've had an all Class A schedule," Sumbera said. "I'm happy about that, but it's a very tough schedule. In our division, Romeo will be very tough, as will Fraser, and L'Anse Creuse, who won the Blue Division in '88 will be strong."

"It's going to be an exciting year for Norsemen football," Sumbera concluded.

North opens at home on Sept. 2 when it entertains Lake Shore at 1 p.m.

Basketball

Six girls return from last year's 14-8 district-finals team, but Coach Gary Bennett is hoping the depth chart is extended.

In 1988, Bennett, and assistant coach Ray Ritter, played the final two-thirds of the season with three girls on the bench.

Barring injuries, that shouldn't happen again.

"We're not real deep, but we'll be respectable," said Bennett, whose team lost to Regina in the district finals last season. "The six girls who are back will be the ones we count on. After that, the rest of the group is pretty much the same. We have a lot of hard-working girls, and as time goes on I wouldn't be surprised if several of them were capable of coming off the bench and contributing."

The bench depth is not attributed to the lack of skill, but to inexperience.

Seniors Melissa Champine (point guard) and Kim Reiter, who returns to the post, key the list of returnees. Katie Loeher, Noelle Cormier, Kelly Kunkel and Stephanie Gore, round out the top six. Amy Sacka leads a list of hopefuls, which includes Kim Senter, Lori Haskell, Karen Bova, Laura Staniszewski, Jennifer Shapiro and Jennifer Mc-Mann.

"We should be able to finish better than 4-4 in the White Division," Bennett declared. "If we can get some depth, something I'm very concerned about, than we should give the league title a run."

North opens its season this evening when it entertains Cousino at 5:30.

Tennis

Coach Karen Cooksey is already faced with a dilemma: Who to play in place of the injured Jennifer Freidline.

Freidline, who was to return as the No. 1 singles player, is sidelined for at least three weeks with tendonitis in her shoulder. Jennifer Galvin, who was set to play No. 2 singles may step up to No. 1.

"If she (Jennifer) returns, we'll have a much stronger season," said Cooksey. "Without her, however, I'm still very optimistic because we have some strong players."

Amy Austin and Nikki Tassos should team up at No. 1 doubles, with Cristina Bermudez and Barb Thomas playing No. 2 doubles. Becky Devine will play in the singles rotation, as should Rebecca Damm.

"We have many players vying for spots," said Cooksey. "I have every reason to believe that we will be a strong team."

Soccer

In 19 of their 21 games last season, the Norsemen held their opponents to one or less goals.

But, in 14 of those they had problems scoring, too.

Despite all that, the Norsemen still won the National League in the MAC, and the district title.

Coach Guido Regelbrugge predicts much the same this season.

"We have a potentially strong team that could repeat as champions," he said. "I'm a bit concerned, though, that we won't be scoring many goals."

According to Regelbrugge, the defense should be strong and the midfield "OK," but up front is where the potential troubles are.

"My guess is that we're going to be inconsistent in scoring," said Regelbrugge. "Even if we don't score a lot, we will still be a difficult team to beat."

Don Rosati will defend the goal, with defenders Amod Sarniak, John Karabetsos and Joe Schotthoefler in front of him. Midfielders Nick Karabetsos, John Ferguson and David Miller will be strong, and the line of Angelo Gritsas, Bob Beltz and David Miller, or Nadeen Elian, will have the pressure of scoring goals.

Regelbrugge will be assisted by Tony DiStasio. North opens at Romeo on Sept. 6.

Boys' cross country

Tom Gauerke and Matt Beal will be the only returning letterman for first-year head coach Pat Wilson, but a strong supporting cast is geared for the 1989 campaign.

"We have a nice blend of experience and inexperience," said Wilson, who takes over for Bob Collins. "I'm not going to make any predictions about the season, but by the end of it we'll make sure every team has to work hard to beat us."

John Kolinski, Scott Collins, Jim Moore, Chris Hamilton, Dave Meda, along with several others, will be fighting to fill the card.

Girls' cross country

The record looks as if it'll remain intact.

North's girls' cross country team has never lost a league title, and this season, with five of its seven runners from '88 back, the hardware should stay in North country.

Leading the 1989 team will be Nikki VanOppens, Laurin Schultz, Allison Liebold and Hope Peters. After that, a slew of runners are hoping to crack the varsity's top spots.

Melissa Blumenthal, Jane Rice, Anne Dakmak, Anne Scallen, Shelly Ballew and Jessica Mactailen are the likely candidates.

"We need to find that fifth runner," said Charles Buhagiar. "We need to find someone who will remain consistent and get the job done."

North, which went unbeaten last year, would like to repeat an year, returns, as does Lisa Williams and Karen Ellis. Divers Amy Nerone and Cheryl Robertson will be a tough tandem, and Anne Boutrous, Stacy Williams, Julie Ricci and Lidia Sabo will support the cast of swimmers.

"We want to get back to the state meet and have a better showing," O'Connor said. "We've changed some things over the course of the summer that should help us. This is a very excited group determined to do better at the states."

Golf

Paige Pelok, the only girl golfer on the boys' team, will not only captain the Norsemen, but will also be the No. 1 linkster.

blemished season, and then some.

"We'd like to return to the state finals," said Buhagiar, something North has done in all its years of cross country under Buhagiar. "But, we'd like to have a better showing in the regionals and state meet."

Swimming

Jennifer Paloucci and Wendy Mader will lead a strong long-distance oriented team.

Under the direction of Mike O'Connor, the Lady Norsemen will be strong in the long races as they make a bid to better last season's 11-4 mark.

"I'm optimistic that we can improve," O'Connor said. "We should be a stronger dual-meet team than last year because we have more depth."

Heidi Mader, who won the 100 butterfly state championship last

Brian Schatko, also a captain, will be Coach Marlene Maige's No. 2 shooter, and Scott Carson will be No. 3.

"With those top three players, we've got a great shot at having a successful season," said Maige, who's in her second season. "We've got three very good scorers and with practice the other kids should be able to fill in for the varsity."

Football

Traditionally a slow-starting team, the ULS football squad is hoping to set a new standard when the season kicks off on Sept. 2 at home against Harper Woods.

"ULS is not known for a fast start," said Coach Bob Newvine, who is in his fifth season, "but I think this team has a different approach. The kids know what they have to do and there are a lot of seniors who want this season to be a success."

ULS, which has struggled to gain football respect, may not have to worry about that this season. Many teams are aware of the experience and talent that returns for the Knights, especially the coaches.

"This is a very strong football team," said Newvine. "The seniors on this team will have to keep us going."

ULS, which could record its first winning season under Newvine, must get over the first-game hump.

"We haven't beaten Harper Woods in two years," said Newvine. "We are looking forward to that game, not only because it's the opener, but because it could set the tone for the season."

In order to maintain the feeling of success, however, ULS will have to avoid injuries, and get a big season from its offensive line.

"Just like any small team, we can't afford to lose one player," said Newvine. "We've got to prevent injuries, as well as stay away from the mental mistakes."

"Our key is how well the offensive line plays," Newvine continued. "The seniors on the line will have to control the line of scrimmage and move people off the ball."

The line is led by guards John Dodds (5 feet, 11 inches and 175 pounds) and James Dobrzecowski (5-7, 220). Abimbola Afariogun (6-1, 220) and John Ellis (6-0, 220) will man the tackle spots, while Joe Ehrich (5-10, 180) will play center. Ed Merriman (6-1, 170) and Mike Barnes (5-10, 150) will be the wide outs.

The offensive line will have to protect swift-footed quarterback Kevin Whitfield. Whitfield, who played linebacker in '88, will add more speed to an already quick backfield.

"With his speed and ability to run the option, Kevin is going to give us a dimension we've never had," said Newvine. "We're going to stretch out our offense and force the cornerbacks to play us one on one."

Chris Carroll, who rushed for approximately 800 yards a season ago, and fullback Karow Gordon, will be tough to handle.

"It's one of our best backfields ever," Newvine said. "Chris is so quick and Karow blocks and runs very well. We're going to force the defensive backs to come and get us."

Tom Best and Andrew VanDeWeghe will be the defensive ends, with Dodds and Jason Drock playing linebacker. Whitfield will be the safety, with Barnes and Carroll, or Ryan Molitor cleaning up from the cornerback slots. Afariogun, Merriman, Dobrzecowski, Barnes and Ellis will be playing defense also.

Tom Best and Mike Whelan will share the kicking duties.

"This is going to be a fun, exciting season," said Newvine. "A lot of people, including ourselves, are expecting us to do very well. I believe we can."

John Bandos and Jim Glovac will assist Newvine.

Tennis

Five girls return from last season's state championship team, but a slew of freshman players is the biggest news in camp.

Bob Wood, who enters his 25th season with the Knights, has the good fortune of filling his single's card with four freshmen.

In no particular order, Shannon Byrne, Heather Heidel, Anne Cavanaugh and Carrie Birgbauer will be playing singles.

"It's a little bit of a fluke, but these girls are extremely strong," Wood said about his freshmen. "It's hard to tell how well they'll do because they'll be playing tournament-tested juniors and seniors, and if they stay here at ULS for four years, they could be the strongest group ever."

Lexie Crain, the only senior on the squad, returns to play No. 1 doubles with Ali Frederick. Crain will also captain the Lady Knights.

Lynn Sinkel, whose partner is undecided, will play doubles. Liz Thomas and Natasha Levy, who won the C-D state title at No. 3 doubles, will team up again.

"With all this talent, we should be a favorite to win the state title (C-D) again," said Wood, "but you can't forget about Country Day because they return everyone except one player."

If ULS does win the title, it would be its 10th consecutive.

"Our goals remain the same as they always have," said Wood. "We play one of the toughest schedules in the state. By doing so, we guarantee our girls a tough match every time out."

Others standing by to help the varsity include, Rachel Robichaud, Lauren Gargaro, Elaine Calderon and Ify Obianwu.

Soccer

The front line of Doug Wood, Jonathan Davis and Mike Coello could be one of the strongest in Class C-D.

Wood, an All-State soccer player in his two previous seasons, will anchor that line for Coach David Backhurst's club. Coello will play right wing, with Davis playing left wing.

"It's a very powerful line," said Backhurst, "but it's going to take a great team behind them, as well, if we want to be successful."

The center-midfield will include Anthony Ayuyu, Jonah Smith and Jesse Kasom. Larry Ayuyu, James Kim and John Gordon will be the defenders, and the goalie responsibilities belong to Paul Lanzon and Billy Schervish.

"We can do just as well, and if not better than last year," Backhurst said when comparing this season to last season's clip of 15-4. "I say this because we've had a year of growth and maturity, and our losses to graduation shouldn't hurt us that much."

ULS, which won the regionals but lost in the state semifinals, is hoping to advance past the semifinals.

"This is our toughest schedule in years because we dropped some of the weaker teams from it," Backhurst declared. "It's going to be tough, but I think it'll better prepare us for the playoffs."

According to Backhurst, this year's team is a close group.

"Cohesiveness," he said. "All the kids get along very well and I think that may be what we need. On top of that, we have a very fast team and should be able to out-run the opponent."

Moroun, Wilson Wehmeir and DeDan Milton, the MIAC is in reach.

"We're going to be the most competitive for our league title than we've ever been," said Langford. "We just hope to build upon what we do along the way to win the conference meet."

"We should be in the running because we return five letterman, including our top four runners from last year," Langford continued. "Another key for us is that we came into camp in great shape. Last year it took us a few meets to get in shape. This year is a lot different."

Field hockey

Nancy Dau is taking over for Muriel Brock, and with that in mind, Dau pursues a second consecutive Michigan Field Hockey League title.

"We've always been strong," said Dau, "and I'm hoping we can continue to build on the fine things Muriel has done here."

Returning to front line duty are Sarah Haggarty, Sarah Stackpoole, Monica Paul and Kristen Seemster.

"I'm very optimistic about the front line," Dau said. "What we need, though, is to find some good consistent play and communicate."

Carrie Carpenter, Elizabeth Wisgerhof and Molly Shields will defend, with Erika Teitge manning the goal.

"There are quite a few open spots where freshman, or anyone else, can take over," said Dau.

Golf

Andrew Stewart and Chris McCormick, both shooting in the 30s, should pace the Knights. Wes Sims and Pat McCormick will be listed on Coach Tom Horsley's card, as will Rob Petz.

"We've got a couple of strong players, and if they can stay consistent we should have a decent year," said Horsley.

Players expected to help out are Sonny Randazzo and Katie Tompkins.

To the hole!

Fourteen teams competed for the top spot in the third consecutive Grosse Pointe Farms 3-on-3 basketball tournament on July 29.

The Farms Parks and Recreation Department organized and sponsored the double elimination tournament. The winning team consisted of Margie Gatliff, Tony Gatliff, Jim Dixon and Mike Cosfield.

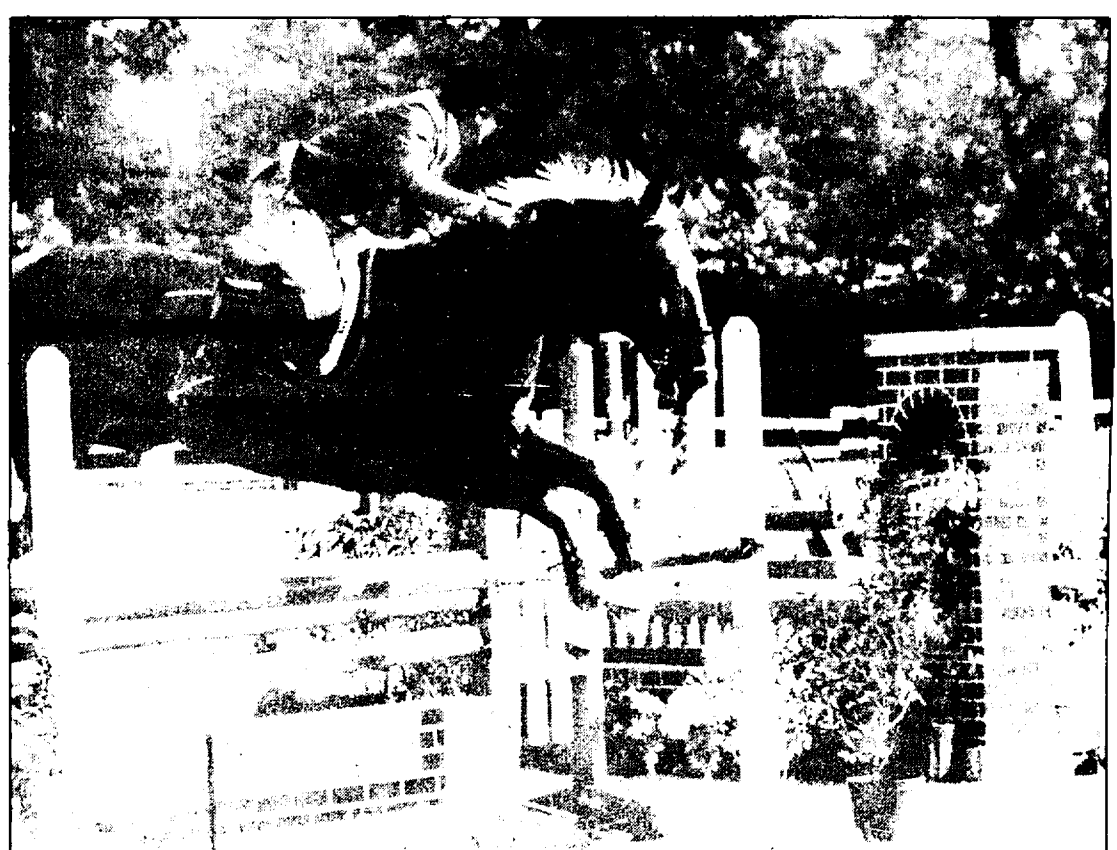

The tournament has grown each year from eight teams to the 14 in 1989.

Cross country

Phil Langford is looking beyond a 500 season.

Entering his second full season with the Knights, Langford is seeking a Michigan Independent Athletic Conference (MIAC) championship.

Up and over

On Saturday, Sept. 2, the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club will be hosting the M.O.E.T. Jumper Horse Show at noon.

The afternoon will consist of top horses and riders competing for a purse of more than $2,000. Horses and riders will navigate a course of fences of varying heights and widths, hoping to achieve a "clean round" (no fences being knocked down).

The competitors with clean rounds then jump a different course where the winner will be determined by the fastest time.

Covered seating and a cash snack bar will be available. Admission is free. The Hunt Club is located at 655 Cook Road.

The Jaguar XJ6
is not only $15,000 less than a Mercedes 420 SEL, it's 7" wider, 2" lower and 100% prettier.

While some European manufacturers have well-earned reputations for charging a lot of money for their cars, Jaguar maintains its tradition of giving you a lot of car for your money.

Take the Jaguar XJ6, for example. Its interior, unlike some of its European competitors, is neither cold nor austere. Instead, you'll find the warm luster of polished burl walnut and the richness of hand-stitched leathers. You'll also find impressive performance and a near perfect balance of riding smoothness and handling agility. With this and much more, it's no wonder many people expect the Jaguar XJ6 to cost even more than some well-known European luxury sedans. Yet, when compared to a Mercedes-Benz 420 SEL, the Jaguar XJ6 is not only seven inches wider, two inches lower and 100% prettier—it can actually cost about $15,000* less!

We invite you to see and drive the XJ6. We think you'll agree that it's a beautiful example of dollars and sense.

Drowning: Essentially a form of suffocation

Summertime for many people in our area is associated with activities centered around the water, such as boating, fishing and swimming.

Unfortunately, every year this brings a number of drowning victims to the emergency center. Nationwide, about 8,000 people drown annually, and drowning is the second most common cause of death in people under 25 years of age, exceeded only by automobile accidents.

Drowning is essentially a form of suffocation and there are two factors which greatly influence whether or not a person will survive.

The first is called "mammalian diving reflex."

This is a primitive reflex which allows diving mammals such as seals and whales to remain under water for prolonged periods of time. Children also have this reflex and it is of great help to them in surviving drowning episodes.

The reflex is stimulated when the face is immersed in cold water and it stops the breathing; it also causes a constriction of the blood vessels in the body so that blood carrying the oxygen is shunted to the two organs that need it the most: heart and brain.

The second factor is "immersion hypothermia," which means the rapid cooling of the body when immersed in cold water. The brain can survive for a much longer period if it is cooled, and so the faster a drowning victim cools down, the better the chances are that we can revive the patient with minimal damage to the brain. All other things being equal, a person who is immersed in cold water has a much better chance of being successfully resuscitated than one in warm water.

Hypothermia is very important in determining survival, and because of the low body temperature patients whose hearts have been stopped for long periods of time, and patients that normally would not have been saved have been resuscitated.

A case in point: A 4-year-old boy spent 40 minutes in the water trapped under ice and made a complete recovery.

Titanic example

The greatest single cause of mass immersion hypothermia occurred when the Titanic sank. The crew from a rescue ship arrived at the scene less than one and a half hours later, and found that 1,500 people had perished. However, most of those people had not drowned, they were floating around in life jackets and had died of hypothermia. The Titanic had plenty of life jackets, lifeboats were what they were short of.

This is the type of patient that a modern emergency center would attempt to resuscitate.

Although the clinical presentation of a person who is drowning can vary, often the victim will be making overhead swimming-type movements, with the head rolled back and the mouth open but silent. This picture is quite different from that seen in swimmers who are attempting to swim a long distance under water. These people are often good swimmers and before they dive in they take several deep breaths and hyperventilate. This washes the carbon dioxide out of their bloodstream.

The stimulus that normally makes a person want to take a breath is build-up of carbon dioxide in the blood, and by the time this has reached this level in these swimmers, their blood oxygen level has dropped below the level needed to remain conscious.

These people will be swimming under water and they will suddenly stop swimming and lie motionless on the bottom of the pool. As there is no struggle it is often not recognized by bystanders that this person is in trouble, but in actuality he is unconscious and drowning and must be brought out of the water immediately.

Factors to consider

There are certain conditions which are associated with drowning. One common factor is alcohol.

We find many adult victims have ingested alcohol prior to their mishap. It is important to remember that a person who has been in a diving accident or has head injuries may have injured his neck and spinal cord. Also, precautions should be taken not to move the neck.

In the emergency center, we also have to make sure that there is no other serious problem affecting the patient, such as a heart attack or a seizure disorder which had initiated the drowning episode.

One question people often ask is the difference between drowning in salt water and fresh water.

We used to believe that there was a difference, but we now know that in the majority of cases it really doesn't matter if the water is salt or fresh. In 10 percent of drowning victims, there is no water in the lungs, and death is due to lack of oxygen caused by spasm and closure of the airway.

Another question concerns the need to drain or pump the water out of the patient's lungs. If the patient is in cardiac arrest the best thing is to forget about the water and go straight to CPR, which, as I have mentioned in previous articles, every person should learn.

This article was written by Dr. Anthony Southall, director of the St. John Hospital Emergency Center.

Friendly dieting

Marcia was excited. After many futile attempts to lose weight and keep those pounds off, she felt she had finally found the perfect program for her particular needs.

Marcia's previous attempts were not based on good nutritional eating. Marcia was often irritable and left with feelings of hunger and fatigue. She would take these feelings out on those closest to her.

Marcia's dieting efforts would invariably lead to a conflict within the family and with her friends.

As Harold listened to Marcia extol the virtues of her latest diet plans, he was inundated with very strong feelings from the past. Harold felt caught in the middle once again. He truly wanted Marcia to succeed in her new plan, but intellectually he knew that Marcia would feel better about herself and would benefit health-wise from the weight loss.

But, history also told him that Marcia would probably gain the same lost pounds and that Marcia and the family would again be afloat with all the emotions of one more failed attempt.

Even though Harold's words were supportive, he was still giving out a non-verbal message that said what he truly felt: you'll fail once again.

To be totally honest, Harold actually wanted Marcia to be over-weight. Her excess weight was a safeguard; if Marcia was over-weight she was also safe. Harold did not have to worry about other men "hitting" on Marcia. Marcia's slim friends also looked at her excess pounds as safe, because they could be the attractive ones while she was noted for her "bubbly" personality. Marcia's friends even needed her to be over-weight for if she remained fat, she reflected their own inability to deal with the extra weight.

Sabotage to support

After reading the above scenario, you may wonder how Marcia — or anyone for matter — could possibly reach their goal and experience success at dieting. The following guidelines may help you, whether you are someone who needs to lose weight, or you find yourself more in accord with Harold's position.

What to do

1) Make sure the program you have selected is healthy.

A good nutritional program will include all of the basic nutrients necessary to your overall health. You should be eating from a variety of real foods. A variety that will eventually teach you how to eat for the rest of your life.

2) Be very careful of those you wish to share your eating program with.

Your program is exactly that — your program. When you share your new endeavor with too many people it can actually be given away. It is no longer your program, and when it's no longer yours your chances of success diminish.

After you've literally given the program away, you have allowed someone else to take the responsibility from you. Therefore, someone else made you fail.

3) Be specific regarding your personal goals.

The "I don't care," or "I have no opinion on when or where I eat!" will not work anymore. Others can't know your personal needs unless you are willing to share what those needs are.

4) In a perfect world, the dieter receives all the necessary support in the physical aspects of the diet, and also in the verbal and non-verbal "strokes."

But, this is not a perfect world. As the dieter you may very well have to take the initiative and assure your spouse (or acquaintance) that as you shed those pounds, you still love him or her.

5) Understand that with taking responsibility for what goes in your mouth comes a form of power and control that will give a natural high.

Once you admit that you are completely responsible for what you eat, you will gain a power over your life that you'll never want to relinquish. This does not come overnight, however. With practice, however, will come the fact that you also are in control with the power to say yes or no to any situation.

Lending support

1) Even if you have elected not to lose weight, you must help to assure that your spouse, friend or child, has chosen a healthy program. Learn as much as you can about the program and how you can help.

2) Understand that this program is for your loved one and must remain so. Avoid discussing the fact that your spouse had gone on another diet. Let your spouse, child or friend initiate any conversation regarding the diet.

3) If your dieting friend seems evasive in his or her needs as to what foods are appropriate, ask if the restaurant you are visiting will be conducive to their program. This does not mean that everyone has to suffer because of diet restrictions. On the contrary. If you openly discuss needs and apprehensions before you go out to eat, chances are very good that a game plan can be worked out in advance of almost any situation.

4) Be supportive. Let your dieting spouse know that you are with them 100 percent. Let them know that you think they are terrific, you admire them and are supporting them in the attempt to lose those unhealthy pounds.

5) Remember that this is not your program, nor your power. Changing eating behaviors is one of, if not the most difficult behaviors to modify. But you're not in charge. You must be a supportive team member, but the dieter remains the team captain.

With some of these points in mind, the dieter can be successful this time. The real failures in life are those who give up after the first try. This time you really are going to make it!

Aerobic exercise can help the immune system

If it seems like you're suffering from chronic pain, or that you catch every bug that goes around the office, you may find that regular aerobic exercise is the cure.

Recent research shows that exercise strengthens the body's immune system, so it can fight off infections and diseases, according to The National Exercise For Life Institute. In addition, studies have shown that those who exercise more are less bothered by the pain they do have.

Fighting diseases requires a strong army of white blood cells to attack the viruses and bacteria that invade the body. Research by Laurel Traeger Mackinnon, Ph. D., at the University of New Mexico, measure the activity of athletes' immune systems. According to an article in the July issue of Women Magazine, Mackinnon's researched and found that after a vigorous workout, the ability of white blood cells to wipe out viruses and tumor cells rose about 40 percent above normal for at least one hour after a workout.

Mackinnon explains that most of the body's immune cells are normally "in storage," either inside tissues of adhering to the walls of tiny veins. These cells are actually sticky.

"When you exercise, your need for oxygen opens up your blood vessels, and the increased blood circulation may knock the sticky immune cells into movement in the bloodstream," said Mackinnon.

Relief

Regular aerobic exercise is also the solution for millions of Americans who are laid low — or enjoy life much less than they could — because of persistent pain. According to the University of California Berkeley Wellness Letter, pain clinics around the country are now including exercise in their regimens.

Aerobic exercise is also recommended by Paul Nutter, M.D., a nationally recognized back pain specialist.

"People with high levels of physical fitness may not necessarily have a lower incidence of back pain, but they rate their pain as less severe and have less disabling back pain than those who are not as fit," said Nutter.

"One possible explanation is that people who exercise sufficiently are able to increase levels of beta-endorphins in their blood and spinal fluid," added Nutter. "These neuro-hormones reduce the level of pain while improving overall sense of well-being. Patients with back pain may actually feel better during and after exercise because they are able to raise the level of beta-endorphins."

"Exercising regularly is important to achieving these benefits," notes Diane DeMarco, executive director of The National Exercise For Life Institute. "Make exercise a part of your life by incorporating a variety of exercises into your life, including an in-home exercise machine," she advises.

The advantages of in-home exercise are plentiful, too.

"In-home exercise also has the advantage of saving time and being convenient," said DeMarco. "That's important because many people don't have time to drive to a health club,

Bolos takes Michigan gold

Peter Bolos, the ex-prize fighter turned runner, suffered his first injury in a long time, but still managed to collect some gold.

Bolos, 76, ran the 1500-meter race in eight minutes and two seconds to capture the gold medal at the Michigan Senior Olympics in Farmington Hills.

Bolos, who has 20 races to his credit this year, also traveled to and don't want to run in the rain, heat or after dark."

St. Louis to compete in the National Senior Olympics, placing fourth in the 10K with a time of 1:00:56.

"It wasn't one of my better races," Bolos said. "That's when I hurt my heel and I had to run the final mile on it. I'm just glad I finished. Not bad for an old man, eh?"

Nope, not bad at all.

Macomb offers activities

The fall community recreation program at Macomb Community College offers residents the opportunity to continue their favorite summer activities indoors at the Physical Education Center. Facilities include an olympic size pool, a one-eighth mile indoor track, five racquetball/walleyball courts, stationary bikes, a universal gym, weight room and more.

Levine wins Woods tourney

The Grosse Pointe Woods Tennis Tournament drew many talented players.

The finals were played on Aug. 10 for the boys' 9-13 and 14-17 age groups, and the girls' 13-19 division.

Mark Levine took the top hardware in the 9-13 category with a 6-4, 6-3 win over Ajit Sarinaik. Matthew Holuscko captured the 14-17 title in three sets, 2-6, 6-1, 6-4, over Patrick Kelly.

Allison VanDeGinste won the girls' 13-14 slot with a resounding 6-0, 6-1 win over Susan Cornille.

In the men's 35-and-over competition, Gary Conti defeated James Freeman, 6-0, 6-0, to round out the champions.

Health cruise

The Sovereign of the Seas will again be the "floating city" for a second annual health and fitness cruise offered by the Cardiac Rehabilitation Department of St. John Hospital and Medical Center.

This cruise, which will see three ports of call, is for cardiovascular health program patients.

Sailing dates are Feb. 17-24, 1990. For further information, call Karen Cosmos at 886-0111, or Davis Sabo, 343-3158.

'Lifesteps' re-educates

St. John Hospital and Medical Center is offering one of the newest weight loss programs in the country.

Designed by the American Dairy Council, the "Lifesteps" program is aimed at re-educating one's eating habits and emphasizes the need for exercise to shed unwanted weight and keep it off.

The 14-week program, taught at the Assumption Cultural Center, will be led by a registered dietitian and includes a complete "Lifesteps" kit for each participant. Pre-registration is required because class size will be limited for individual attention.

The introductory class will be held Sept. 21 at 7 p.m. Regular classes begin Sept. 28 and run for 14 Thursdays from 7 to 8:30 p.m. The program fee is $175. To reserve a spot, call 779-6111.

St. John Hospital, in conjunction with Assumption Cultural Center is offering "Smokeless," a highly successful stop smoking program.

The program will be demonstrated during a free introductory session Tuesday, Sept. 19 at 7 p.m. at Assumption Cultural Center in St. Clair Shores.

The program, which has helped more than 200,000 people quit smoking, is offered in cooperation with St. John Hospital. Classes run Sept. 25-28, and Oct. 3-10, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Fee is $155. For more information, call 779-6111.

NOVENA TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN REMEMBER, O MOST gracious Virgin Mary, that never was it known that anyone who fled to the protection, implored thy help or sought thy intercession, was left unaided. Inspired with this confidence, I fly unto thee, O Virgin of Virgins and Mother; to thee do I come, before thee I stand; sinful and sorrowful; O Mother of the Word Incarnate, despise not my petitions but in thy mercy hear and answer me. Amen. Say this Novena for 9 days. Thank you for favors received. H.T.

NOVENA TO ST. JUDE May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved and preserved throughout the world now and forever. Oh, Sacred Heart of Jesus, pray for us. Workers of miracles, pray for us. St. Jude helper of the hopeless, pray for us. Say this prayer 9 times a day. By the 8th day your prayer will be answered. It has never been known to fail, never. Publication must be promised. Thanks St. Jude for prayer answered. Special thanks to our Mother of Perpetual Help. K.G.

101 PRAYERS

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything and who shows me the way to reach my ideal. You who give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and you who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual glory. Amen.

NOVENA TO ST. JUDE Apostle and Martyr, great in virtue, rich in miracles, kinsman of Christ, intercessor of all who invoke you to use your great God given power to aid me in my urgent petition. In return I promise to make your name known. Pray for us who ask for your aid. St. Jude, Say 3 Our Fathers, 3 Hail Marys, 3 Glorias. This Novena has never been known to fail. Say Novena for 9 days. My request was granted. J.A.G.
