State drug czar: We're not ready to fight the war on drugs

By John Minnis Assistant Editor

Winning the war on drugs will take a commitment that the public is not now willing to make, according the the state's drug

Donald L. Reisig, 54, director of the newly formed Office of Drug Agencies, told a group of Michigan journalists Oct. 6 that the war on drugs can be won, but only if demand is reduced and if the public is willing to put up a "homefront" effort comparable to that of World War II.

"Yes, the war on drugs can be won," Reisig said, "but it's going to take a commitment I don't think we're willing to give it."

As was the case during WWII, Reisig said everyone has to get involved in fighting drugs. And simply throwing money at the problem isn't enough - especially when the amount of money spent is small.

Reisig said that nationwide only 3 percent of the federal funds spent on combatting drugs actually trickle down to state and local enforcement efforts. And on the state level, there are 10 percent fewer law enforcement officers than there were 10 years

"I think we do a commendable job for the minimal amount of resources we have to work with," Reisig said.

As author of the "Search and Seizure Handbook" for police training and a former instructor in Michigan State University's criminal justice master's program, Reisig may be tempted to look at the drug problem from strictly a law enforcement perspective, but Reisig believes intervention and treatment are the key ingredients to licking the drug problem for good.

"My real interest as a human being, as a person, is that we impact on the demand side," he said. "We must keep our people

The Grosse Pointe News was awarded first place by the Michigan Press Association for its Alcohol and Adolescents series. It's the second time this year the newspaper has received the top honor for the nine-month series that ran from October 1988 through May 1989.

Winning in the Enterprise/Feature category of the 1989 Better Newspaper Contest, the judges said the series was "excellent journalism and community service. Many lives will be touched with this caring and hardhitting series (which) clearly indicates the paper's leadership qualities.'

The paper was honored earlier this year by the Suburban Newspapers of America in a nationwide competi-

New absentee vote ordered in Farms judicial primary

By Dan Jarvis

Staff Writer At the request of Wayne County officials, a District Court judge has ordered that 315 absentee ballots be re-cast in the Grosse Pointe Farms judicial primarv.

But the court order could soon be upset by the Michigan Court of Appeals.

The court order followed a series of proceedings that finally led the county Board of Cavassers to refuse to certify a recent re-count of the absentee ballots and ask for all absentee ballots cast in the Aug. 8 primary to be re-cast.

In the week preceding the primary, it was revealed that Irene Gracey, the wife of candidate Paul Gracey, received several absentee voter ballots from City Hall, which she delivered to voters and then returned to City

A police investigation ensued and Mrs. Gracey last week was charged with unauthorized possession of absentee ballots by the Wayne County prosecutor.

Following the Sept. 29 recount of absentee ballots by the state election officials called for certification of the re-count by the county board. But the board county clerk has already ar-

Richard Kaufmann of the 3rd absentee ballots be re-cast, citing irregularities in ballot handling.

On Friday, Oct. 6, Kaufmann ordered a new absentee vote in the judicial primary, but gave opponents of the decision until Tuesday, Oct. 10 at 5 p.m. to appeal the decision to the Michigan Court of Appeals.

Candidate Paul Gracey on Oct. 9 said he would appeal the ruling on the grounds that the Sept. 29 re-count was never certified by the county Board of Canvassers.

Gracey's attorney, Lawrence Friedman, said the Michigan State Police in their investigative report to the county prosecutor could not find one absentee voter who was unduly influenced by Mrs. Gracey to vote for her husband

Therefore, Friedman said, the original vote count should stand and the county's re-count should be certified.

James Killeen, Wayne County clerk, said county employees have already prepared the new absentee ballots and envelopes, county Board of Canvassers, with addresses of absentee voters, as supplied by the city.

Killeen said the office of the refused and instead asked Judge ranged with the Wayne County Sheriff Department to hand-de-District Court to order that the liver absentee ballots to voters on Tuesday, Oct. 10 after 5 p.m. He added that the ballots will be delivered over a three-day period ending Thursday, Oct. 12.

In the ballots, absentee voters will receive instructions stating that the ballots should be returned to the Farms City Hall. where a county sheriff will be stationed on the first floor. All ballots must be returned to City Hall by Friday, Oct. 13 at 7 p.m.

Killeen said when ballots are delivered to homes, county sheriffs will make arrangements for those who cannot physically return ballots and will pick up ballots from those homes.

The county clerk stressed the point that the re-vote plan as described assumes that the Michigan Court of Appeals will not intervene in any way. Killeen said he is aware that Gracey will attempt to get the county's re-count certified and may ask that Kaufmann's order to re-cast ballots be reversed.

If the Court of Appeals denies the requests, the re-cast absentee ballots will be counted on Saturday, Oct. 14 at the Farms City Hall by city employees under county supervision. Once tallied,

for possible store expansion

Farmer Jack's real estate division has made several conditional offers to buy homes in Grosse Pointe Woods for the expansion of the Mack Avenue-Lochmoor store, but the word from the company is hush. Gilbert Borman, director of the chain's public relations department, said, "The store is showing her age and the company is trying to find a new location for a full-size supermarket or to expand the current store." Borman said the current property occupied by the store is about three acres. Successful expansion would require the purchase of two more acres of property, now a residential neighborhood.

Chester Petersen, city administrator, said several homeowners living on the west side of Sunningdale Park between Sunningdale Drive and Lochmoor have been approached by the company with offers to buy homes for demolition. The offers are conditional on the company obtaining changes in the area's zoning from residential to commercial status.

Petersen said while the city is aware of the plans, the company has not approached the city for changes in zoning status.

"Because there are deed restrictions for the property under consideration, the company must own the property before they can ask for any change in zoning," Petersen said.

Often when a project is considered in a residential area, the residents are notified so that they can address the City Council and state their opinions. Borman said the company has notified only those homeowners whose homes are under consideration for purchase.

"There is no point in letting the neighbors know about the plans until the land is owned by the company," Borman said. "It is conceivable that just one homeowner could block the operation by refusing to sell. Do we really want to upset an entire neighborhood with an announcement when it may not happen?"

Failure by the company to notify its neighbors of the plan has upset at least one Woods resident. In a letter to the Grosse Pointe News, a resident of Sunningdale said, "I must protest over the secret affairs by Farmer Jack's to pave over our neighborhood for needless expansion . By the secrecy, citizens are denied information ...

The Sunningdale resident also claimed that the expansion will add to traffic problems in the area and may cause cause danger to students walking to nearby Parcells Middle School.

Borman said, "The company is not attempting to do anything underhanded. When we have enough purchase agreements to make the project feasible, then we will approach the residents with our plan. We want to do this with community approval. We want to provide the citizens of Grosse Pointe with the highest caliber supermarket operation we can.'

The Woods administrator said the company is probably offering more money for the homes than is available on the open

"If they do build a new store," Petersen said, "they must have a decorative wall or barrier to shield the store from the prime Lochmoor and Sunningdale resi-

Woods offers fire prevention tips

Oct. 8 through 14 has been declared Fire Prevention Week by Gov. James Blanchard.

In Michigan in 1988 two out of three structure fires were in residential properties. The Michigan State Police Fire Marshall Division further states that in that year more than 23.4 percent of the fires, 81.5 percent of the fatalities and 75.3 percent of the injuries occurred in these residential areas.

Today, smoke detectors have become as commonplace as air fresheners in our homes. These inexpensive devices have proven to be the difference between safe escape from a burning building and death or serious injury from

Remember, however, that an inoperative smoke detector can lead to a false sense of security for the homeowner. Do not depend on the weak battery indicators built into the most detectors. Once a month manually test the detector and once a year - if needed or not - replace the battery. Last year 222 Michigan resident lost their lives as a result of of this number, over 23 percent of the deaths were children under 12 years of age.

One evening, sit down with your family and establish a prearranged plan in case of a fire emergency. Establish escape routes, arrange a safe place for your family to meet outside of the house. Once out, do not reenter; never try to hide from smoke or fire.

Furnace and heating systems should be checked and cleansed at least annually prior to the heating season.

Check the belts and pulleys, and lubricate systems requiring this type of maintenance. Re-

Unstable subsoil on Lochmoor plagues street repairs in Woods

By Dan Jarvis

Staff Writer Since Lochmoor is one of the oldest streets in Grosse Pointe Woods, it is not surprising that problems have plagued the city's efforts to make repairs over the past few years.

At the Oct. 2 meeting of the City Council, members were presented with two cost increases, each $13,000, to stabilize Lochmoor's subbase soil from settling.

The council approved both increases. Robert Novitke, mayor pro-tem, said, "We didn't have much of a choice."

Chester Petersen, city administrator/clerk, said a series of delays began when the city installed new water mains and sewer lines over the past two years.

The city experienced delays in obtaining approval from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. DNR approval is required for any major work to a city's municipal sewer system.

Soon after the project was approved by the DNR, most sewers and waterlines were installed, but because of the approaching winter weather the project had to be delayed until the spring of this year.

After the city's paving contractor, John Carlo Inc., installed sewer gutters and began the paving process, workers encountered problems with unstable soil along Lochmoor.

Petersen said the unstable soil will be removed and replaced with a crushed concrete compound which will stabilize the street's base and support the top layers of asphalt.

year, settling soil was discovered near Lochmoor and Holiday Road, over the site of a bridge, now buried under soil. The bridge formerly extended over the Milk River.

The Milk River now ends at the pump station at Marter Road and Parkway near the city's DPW yard. It formerly flowed through much of the city's residential section.

Covered in the early 1950s, the bridge's opening remained hollow, slowly filling with dirt later, thus collapsing soil on the

During the summer, the city approved the installation of sprinklers along the median between the two paved areas of Lochmoor. Sprinklers were installed by the Grosse Pointe Lawn Sprinkler Co. in areas along Lochmoor from Mack Avenue east to about Fairway at a cost of just over $7,000.

Petersen said if the paving contractor can stabilize the settling areas along Lochmoor soon, much of the paving can be completed before the approaching winter season.

He added because of delays in Burd, who is a member of the Society of Manufacturing Engineers, becomes animated when she talked about industrial technology, which is "tripping over itself. The S.M.E. office offers all kinds of fascinating programs."

She credits the Single Parent Program at Macomb for her success and her teachers, whom she says are "so supportive."

"I've been given this second chance and I figure I shouldn't botch this one. I've got to show them I can do it.'

Mainly she credits her family for their support. "I'm the luckiest kid in the world," she said. "I've got a wonderful family and my brothers take me out."

Her three younger brothers are John, a career Navy officer: David, who is the sound technician for the Sun Messengers band; and James, "who takes me fishing and aspires to be a comedian or a pool shark." Her parents are Joyce and Eugene Martin.

Burd's immediate goal, after she gets an associate's degree, is to find a good paying job so that she can buy a house. She plans to work toward her bachelor's degree at night and "after that, maybe I'll set my sights on getting a master's," she said.

Strange vote in Farms still not explained

mportant questions still remain unanswered in the strange case involving the Aug. 8 Farms judicial primary, despite the efforts of the courts as well as state, county and Farms officials to unravel the mysterious handling of the absentee ballots.

What made the absentee votes so important is that they decided the outcome of the four-man race to pick two nominees for Farms municipal judge in the election Nov. 7.

Paul Gracey would have come in second to incumbent Farms Municipal Judge Matthew Rumora if all the ballots, including those from absentee voters, had been accepted, while Eugene Casazza would have been the second nominee if the absentee ballots had been disregarded.

True, officials tried to bring some order out of the recent chaos in their actions last week, but immediately appeared to be running into new legal roadblocks to settlement of the issue.

Under a court order, a new vote by the 315 people who cast absentee votes in the primary was to have gone into effect this week, but it was promptly challenged by Gracey's lawyer who said he would appeal the order to the Michigan Court of Appeals.

Furthermore, Irene Gracey, wife of judicial candidate Gracey, pleaded innocent in the Farms Municipal Court when she was arraigned Monday morning on two counts of unauthorized possession of absentee ballots before visiting Judge Frank Jeannette. The Michigan State Police also had reported that she had hand-delivered several other absentee ballots prior to the vote.

Her case was transferred to 39th District Court Judge Mark Switalski in Macomb County because Farms Municipal Judge Rumora, himself a candidate in the Aug. 8 judicial primary, had disqualified himself. Switalski will direct a pre-trial conference at a date yet to be set.

But the important question that remains is why, after Mrs. Gracey was told on Aug. 2 by City Clerk Richard Solak that she was not to take any more ballots over the counter in the Farms, she was still given or was permitted to take additional ballots after that date.

In its press release about the issuance of the warrant against Mrs. Gracey, the Wayne County prosecutor's office conceded "the office of the Grosse Pointe Farms Clerk failed to follow proper procedures for handling of absentee voter ballots" as required by law.

Yet the onus for the illegal handling of the ballots is put entirely on Mrs. Gracey and the clerk's office is excused on the grounds that the Aug. 2 notification to Mrs. Gracey "together with the retention of a voted ballot and the inconvenience suffered by two other voters require proper response by the criminal justice system to protect the electoral process."

What Mrs. Gracey did was illegal and she has admitted as much, except that she has been quoted as saying she didn't know she was breaking the law and that she had been given the ballots in the clerk's office. As we've said before, ignorance of the law is no excuse, but surely Mrs. Gracey's intent was not to break it.

In a statement to the Grosse Pointe News, City Clerk Solak said that he had informed the treasurer's office before the election, after he had heard of ballots being taken by Mrs. Gracey, that no more ballots were to be taken by other than the applicants for absentee ballots. He said there had been a "breakdown in procedure" and "poor judgment" by the employee involved but "no intent to create an illegal act.'

Yet surely the same charge of illegality that was leveled against Mrs. Gracey should be made against those in the Farms clerk's office or the treasurer's office who made it possible for Mrs. Gracey to get possession of the additional absentee ballots. Ignorance of the law is no excuse in their case, either. And if the charge is warranted against Mrs. Gracey "to protect the electoral process," then a similar charge ought to be placed against those who made it possible for her to obtain the ballots.

Some critics have complained that the state and county have been making a mountain out of a judicial molehill and wasting taxpayer's money in the process. We don't buy that line of reasoning but we do think that if Mrs. Gracey is guilty of violating the law, and she seems to be on the basis of her own admissions, then the people who made it possible for her to obtain ballots illegally must share at least part of the blame and, in fact, also must be guilty of violating the law.

ction by both the U.S. House and Senate in recent days assures repeal of the surtax imposed by the Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act along with most of the health benefits it provided.

But the angry reactions by many members of Congress to the protests by senior citizens against the cost of the program that would be borne by the most affluent of their number have prompted a new and rather nasty controversy that pits the young versus the old.

At least part of the blame for the new controversy can be laid directly on the U.S. news media, including some of the most distinguished newspapers in the United States, that have accused the oldsters of being "greedy geezers" who want their health insurance paid largely by others.

True, some members of the media have attempted to make the case from the seniors' point of view. As an oldster covered by Medicare myself, I share a personal interest in this legislation and thus I am writing this piece under my own byline in an effort to clarify the position of this old "geezer."

In the first place, a major objection to this legislation by senior citizens I know is to the fact that this legislation marks the first time that any specific group has been expected to bear the full financial burden of a federal program imposed by law.

Previous Social Security programs were financed by federal taxes imposed on the payrolls of both employees and employers. Thanks to former President Ronald Reagan, who demanded the requirement as the price of his support, the entire cost of new Medicare or Social Security benefits was to be paid by beneficiaries.

So that is the major reason that Congress when it passed the law last year said that all Medicare recipients would pay an additional $4 a month, which would rise to $10.30 by 1993, plus a surtax of 15 percent of each person's federal income tax liability, with a 1989 ceiling of $800 which bout all the Toronto Blue Jays proved, in losing to the Oakland Athletics in the American League playoff, 4 games to 1, is that the Eastern division has become the doormat of the major leagues.

After the Tigers had proved to be the worst baseball team in the majors in 1989 by losing 103 games, more than any other entry, the Blue Jays promptly proved themselves to be the poorest of the four teams in the playoffs, despite the support they had from some of their Detroit and Michigan friends.

But why should the football Lions and the hockey Wings now make such a strong effort to duplicate the Tigers' losing record? We dunno.

would rise to $1,050 in 1993.

Just how many older people would have been required to pay the full additional $800 apiece or $1,600 per couple this year is open to argument. But the congressional Joint Committee on Taxation said a typical couple with a gross income of $25,000 to $30,000 would pay surtaxes of $69.75 each this year while a couple would reach the $1,050 per person maximum in 1993 when combined income hit between $65,000 and $70,000.

That means that couples in the latter category, not exactly in the wealthy income range, in 1993 would be paying $2,100 in surtaxes, plus another $247.20 in Medicare fees, for the catastrophic insurance coverage.

That would make these oldsters the most highly taxed class in the United States and would also have meant that they would be making a substantial contribution to reducing the federal debt since a $4 billion surplus was predicted for the first year in this new insurance program.

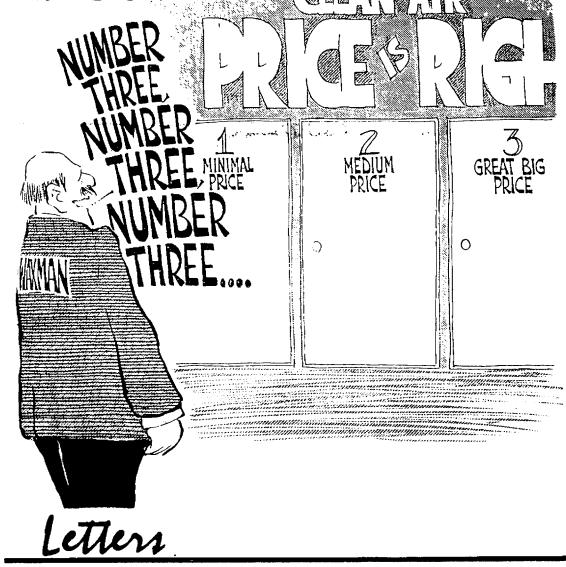

Another major reason for the protests was the fact that many elderly people already are covered by private insurance policies paid for in part or in whole by their former employers or by themselves. In addition, many who pay the top premium have coverage equivalent to that provided by the new program.

But the biggest complaint from the seniors, at least in my opinion, involved the requirement imposed to get Reagan's backing: that the recipients and beneficiaries finance it themselves. That prompted the surtax provision that aroused the loudest criticism.

In testimony to Congress, in speeches and in letters to newspaper editors, senior citizens pointed out that they continue paying taxes to finance schools and other public programs long after they expect personal rewards from them. They also ask what other federal programs are financed in this way and the critics come up empty.

But they also resent the tone of some of the stories and editorials in the media that describe the "greedy geezer syndrome" and attribute to unnamed officials of organizations representing the elderly statements contending that many seniors believe they are entitled to a wide range of benefits for free or paid largely by others.

My own view is that the financing of the new program would have been accepted without much criticism if the rates had been kept within reasonable limits. It is true that elderly people with incomes of $65,000 and up are not starving, but many of them are on fixed incomes which already have been committed to meeting what they regard as essential and/or family needs. Another $2,347.20 in federal taxes by 1993 would have imposed such an additional burden that the elderly objected vociferously, with the result that we now know.

On youth home

To the Editor:

I am writing to you about the Sept. 21 article concerning the Wayne County Youth Home's refusal of a drunk 15-year-old. Isn't a youth home a place where a minor could go when involved in a serious problem at home or anywhere else?

To be a minor passed out drunk on a lawn late at night, if that isn't a problem. what is?

I believe that a person with nowhere else to go should not be thrown back on the street because he is drunk. A youth home should welcome a kid like this, not turn him away. The present policy should be reconsi dered.

Accident

To the Editor:

Last Wednesday (Sept. 27) my 9 month old son. Yates, was taken on a walk in his stroller by his babysitter, Florence, around 11 a.m. We live on Beverly Road near Grosse Pointe South High School. Florence was pushing Yates across Grosse Pointe Boulevard at Fisher

Road as the traffic light was red for the Boulevard and green for the traffic on Fisher. They were in the middle of the intersection when a car driven by a Grosse Pointe South student, traveling toward the lake on Fisher Road, turned left at the light at Fisher and Grosse Pointe Boulevard without yielding and hit the stroller, knocking it to the pavement.

The police and ambulance were summoned, response was immediate, and Yates and Florence were taken to Bon Secours Hospital. They were shaken but not hurt, thank God.

After speaking with the police, I learned the girl driving the car was only 15 vears old. She also left the scene of the accident, was pursued, and caught, by the Grosse Pointe Farms police. She was issued two citations; driving without an operator's license and leaving the scene of an accident. To hopefully prevent another potentially tragic situation from occurring, I raise these questions and comments:

This could get interesting.

I predict a variety of reactions by Grosse Pointers on the weekend of Oct. 20-22.

• Some will be acutely aware of beer ads on TV, beer and alcohol ads in magazines, on radio and on outdoor billboards.

I think the No Use weekend is a terrific idea. Not only to let kids see adults having fun without an alcoholic crutch. But also to test our reactions and feelings about not using alcohol.

One of the monumental misquotes of my reporting career occurred about a year ago, in a story about teen alcohol use. When Susan Pearce was talking about adult attitudes toward alcohol use, and how teenagers' attitudes reflect those of the grown-ups, she said, "We CAN change society.'

I didn't hear what she was saying. I heard what I thought I'd heard many times over. I added an extra 't to CAN.

She called me. She politely pointed out my error and asserted again that she believes that adults can change society's attitudes about alcohol use and that this change is the key to addressing the issue of alcohol use by teenagers.

"Look at the change in the attitudes of people toward cigarette smoking," she said. "In 10 years, we've seen nearly a complete turnaround in public attitude about smoking.

I hope she's right.

I'd like to hear from people who accept the No Use challenge Oct. 20-22.

I'd like to hear about your difficult moments; the easy times; about your coping skills; your thoughts; your successes; your failures; your feelings; your observations; your arguments; and the ease - or difficulty - or indifference — you found in this unique challenge.

Write to me.

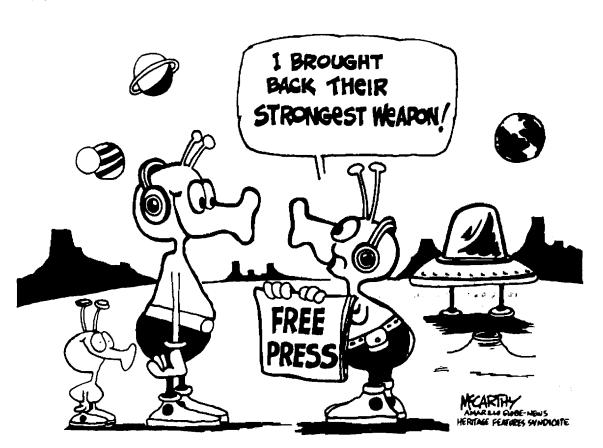

I need names and phone numbers to verify information, but I promise not to use any names unless I get a personal OK-goahead-and-quote-me from you.

Those who didn't receive a No Use pledge card may pick one up at the main offices of North and South high schools or at one of the public libraries. Drop them off at any Grosse Pointe school.

needed (by both the City police and Farms police) around Grosse Pointe South during arrival times, lunch hours, and at the end of the school day. Many of the students driving to and from school are in such a hurry or want to impress their friends that they take too many chances (eg., driving too fast, pulling into the street without looking, etc.). I spoke with an officer on the way to the hospital who told me that officers were assigned to schools during these time periods. However, as a resident living near the high school and who is frequently out during these times, I feel there should be greater police visibility at these time periods.

2. There has been much publicity and coverage about teenage substance abuse and parental responsibility to that regard in our community. Shouldn't this parental responsibility extend to other areas of minor behavior ... such as allowing a nonlicensed, underage child use of the family car? 3. Finally, to all the South students who drive to school and/or go out at lunchtime, please slow down, take that extra minute and extra precautions especially near heavy pedestrian areas. This could have been you, with more tragic results.

Response

To the Editor:

I read with interest the letter from Jeanne Whittaker-Hines in the Oct. 5 issue of the Grosse Pointe News. Since her daughter Margaret is a 22-year old adult, I was surprised that if she had a complaint she did not write her own letter.

Since Jeanne Whittaker-Hines works as a journalist, it concerned me that, having not witnessed the events in the park on Sept. 1 firsthand, she made no attempt to call me in the intervening month. Isn't the first rule of journalism to get all the pertinent facts?

If Jeanne Whittaker-Hines wishes to promote the candidacy of my opponent for the office of mayor, she would be well advised to write a letter endorsing him or contribute to his campaign.

The young people who are employed by our city to work at the park are hardworking paid employees and of course deserve to be treated fairly at all times. They, on the other hand, have a responsibility to treat with respect those citizens who report a complete absence of soap as well as unsightly conditions in the ladies' shower room.

Silent women?

To the Editor:

A recent issue contained an announcement that St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran Church had hired an ordained female as associate pastor. There have been other occassions of so-called Lutheran (and Christian?) churches in our area becoming involved in such practices - which the Apostle Paul called "ignorance."

The Bible clearly teaches that women should not serve as pastors nor be ordained to the holy ministry. For almost 2,000 years the scriptural prohibitions have been observed throughout Christendom. Within the past 50 years, and the spread of "enlightenment" (trashing the Bible), much of church officialdom have turned wimpish and succumbed to the pressures of women's lib.

Forgotten are the ordinal vows to the inspired Word of God. Who has ever heard a sermon, based on the Gospel, justifying the calling of women into the holy ministry? This is the most divisive matter facing the Christian denominations of today.

Both Holy Scripture and Martin Luther condemned the use of female pastors. Martin Luther declared: "In the New Testament the Holy Spirit decrees via the Apostle Paul (1 Cor 14:34) that women are to be silent in the church and congregation. It is the Lord's command. Where the office of preaching is, they are to be silent and not preach. Beyond that they may pray, sing, praise and speak the Amen.'

The Apostle Paul added in v. 34... "For it is not permitted unto them to speak; but they are commanded to be under obedience, as also saith the law." He amplifies this further in 1 Tim 2:11-15. In both instances Paul is referring back to the Order of Creation - Genesis 2 and 3 - where Eve was created out of Adam, to be his helper (Hebrew: ezer) and to be under man's rule and authority (Gen 3:16). Unfortunately many of today's clergy do not accept the biblical account of Creation so it is easy to understand the "evolution" of the weaker speak-

Before belittling the Apostle Paul, remember that he was specially chosen by Jesus Christ to carry the gospel to the Gentiles (Acts 9:15). Casey Stengel of the New York Yankees was often belittled for some of the claims he made but he would defend himself by saying: "You can look it up." Try looking up the above passages. The acceptance of women into the holy ministry would make liars of God, Jesus Christ, the Holy Spirit, Apostle Paul, Luther and other orthodox Christians. That's really heavy, man! Isn't it strange that some churches using the name of St. Paul (or St. James etc.) would promote error and act contrary to the clear teaching of their namesake!

Policy

To the Editor:

If you strive to serve and inform this community, then your policy of not publishing the name of the travel agent "known to engage in dubious practices" simply because an investigation was dropped and restitution made falls far short of meeting those goals.

To maintain such a policy does your community a disservice. The publication of the name might prevent the recurrence of such a scam by the same scoundrel. Such information might not be made easily available to an individual, whose powers of access are often much weaker than those of the media.

What will prevent this "blacklisted" agent from repeating? Paying restitution was surely more acceptable to him/her than going to jail, and he/she probably knew he was caught. Now restitution might not be much of a de-

Regardless of the outcome of the incident, the facts remain your obligation to report, and your policy of nondisclosure shows cowardice.

John M. Harwood Grosse Pointe Farms

Editor's note: The Grosse Pointe News' policy of not printing names of individuals until after they are arraigned is in consideration of libel laws and upon the advice of our attorneys.

Enough To the Editor:

We've all read it over and over again. It's been on the radio. That Irene Gracey is charged in a criminal warrant with mishandling absentee ballots.

Irene Gracey, the mother of nine, an upstanding Farms resident like yourself, has to explain to her children, her friends, the calumny heaped upon her from all sides. For doing what? Yes, for what? Because her husband, in a public-spirited effort to serve his community, ran for public office and she wanted to help in a door-to-door campaign. I understand that an employee for the city admittedly gave her absentee ballots, without request, for delivery. The irony is, the city employees' names have been protected, never mentioned in the press. Yet if anyone is guilty, and I say if, it would be the employees of the branch of government responsible for running the election, wouldn't it? They gave out the ballots and said it was OK to deliver them.

But the point is, no one is really guilty in this whole fiasco. The path is strewn with the bodies of innocent bystanders. This petty intrigue is made tragic by the shadowy figures of political heavyweights allegedly acting behind the scenes. It's outrageous that a criminal warrant has been issued against an innocent member of our community, who acted with absolutely no wrongful intention. How did this happen? An intelligent observer might say it was to discredit her husband as a political candidate in the upcoming election. I say it's time for the residents of Grosse Pointe Farms to rise up as a community against this shabby injustice. How can we express our outrage at the disgrace brought upon Grosse Pointe Farms politics by this charade of justice?

How can we voice our dismay at the cost to our community of this tempest in a teapot? And the incredible personal cost the Graceys are incurring, such as attorney fees to protect their good name. What can we do? Well, for openers, why don't we all say a prayer that this matter yet ends well for Mr. and Mrs. Gracey. It's not often we have the opportunity to support a victim of injustice. That is, just for openers.

Expansion

To the Editor:

As a lifelong resident of Grosse Pointe Woods, I must protest over the secret affairs by Farmer Jack's to pave over our neighborhoods for needless expansion. It's not only the inconvenience it will cause, but also the fact that nobody is aware of this plan.

Why are we not informed that Farmer Jack's (located on Mack and Lochmoor) is buying up some of our nicest homes to put up a bigger store and to expand their parking lot?

Although this plan isn't complete yet, we can imagine the problems it will cause. By the secrecy, citizens are denied information on actions which violate our zoning laws. Long-term problems include traffic and pollution. Parcells Middle School is so close to this scene that the extra traffic will cause danger to schoolchildren. Pollution, in the form of exhaust and drainage problems, will also result. Where will this expansion leave the families who have built their lives in this neighborhood?

We already have enough grocery stores in this immediate area. By planning to take away these houses and trees, we are also planning to take away part of the beautiful environment that Grosse Pointe is known for. I think that by building a Farmer Jack "super store"

we are only adding to our problems of traffic and pollution which we already have.

A DESTRUCTION OF A SECRET OF A

I hope this letter clearly expressed the problem and my concern, and also helped other concerned citizens to

Sen. Kelly seeks compensation for homemaker crime victims

By John Minnis Assistant Editor

Homemakers who are victims of crime would be compensated for what it costs to pay someone else to do their jobs, according to an amendment introduced Sept. 26 by local state Sen. John Kelly.

Under the existing Crime Victim's Compensation law, wage earners who are injured by a criminal can seek restitution of lost wages from the criminal. Kelly, D-Grosse Pointe Woods, is seeking approval of legislation that could force a criminal who has injured a homemaker to pay for housekeeping and child care expenses until the homemaker has recovered.

"When homemakers cannot provide those services because of criminal violence, they should receive restitution as if they were compensated wage-earners," Kelly said.

While the Crime Victim's Rights Act includes a person's lost wages as recoverable economic damages, the act does not cover the economic loss of the many "non-quantifiable" services provided by the homemaker. Kelly's amendment could, in effect, make the criminal pay someone to provide the services formerly provided by the homemaker - which normally include housekeeping and child

nizes that the services provided by the homemaker are just as valuable as those provided by a person employed outside the

When a homemaker is injured physically or psychologically families are often crippled by the loss of the homemaker, Kelly said. "Someone must continue to clean the house, take care of the children, do the laundry, shop and prepare meals. Because the criminal is held accountable to society, he should also be responsible for the economic consequences.

Kelly points out that most families living on a single in-

Because nine out of 10 homemakers are women, Kelly said his bill is part of the movement toward equality for women and recognition of their contributions to society.

While homemakers are not expected to make up a large proportion of crime victims, Kelly said an effort is under way to determine the exact number of homemakers who are victims of

He said it doesn't make sense for a worker outside the home who is injured by a criminal to be compensated and not to recognize the worth of the homemaker who is a crime victim. The amendment to the Crime Victim's Rights Act was introduced in the Senate Judiciary Committee on which Kelly sits. The next efforts will be to get the legislation out of committee and before the full Senate.

Kelly said the amendment may be revised in committee and on the floor. One addition to the bill may be a definition of "homemaker."

Bryant opposes Proposal B

State Rep. Bill Bryant, strong legislative opponent of the Proposal B question on the Nov. 7 special election ballot, charged legislative leaders are proving his worst fears about "B" are completely justified.

A main reason why Bryant opposes the proposed two cent sales tax and property tax revision constitutional amendment is that its school aid distribution language can be changed by the legislature. This, Bryant says, jeopardizes all higher spending districts, if the legislator decides, or is ordered by a court, to equalize all districts at the same total reve-

By doing Committee and one of the most vocal opponents of Proposal B. Bryant does not oppose A, the half-cent proposal which does not alter property taxation.

Proposal B, the two cent sales tax proposal also reduces local school taxes and provides for a statewide school tax and new school funds and distribution formulas. It provides that the complicated distribution formulas in the amendment can be altered by statute with a two-thirds legislative vote.

Rep. Bryant says attacks on schools that are now providing excellent education are "doubly incredible at the time when all states and the nation are seeking to discover and emulate the best that now exists in excellent schools around the country. We should not destroy good schools as we seek to help improve others. There is no excuse for it. Proposal B must be defeated."

16734 E. WARREN DETROIT, MI 48224 which seeks to have the people vote whether to abolish the State Officers Compenstation Commission (SOCC).

The commission was created through a 1968 constitutional amendment to determine the salaries and expense allowances of the Legislature, governor, lieutenant governor and state Supreme Court justices. Prior to 1968, legislators set and voted their own salary increases.

"The SOCC originally was to be comprised of members with no ties to government who would make fair, unbiased appraisals of what would constitute reasonable salaries for these elected officials," Bryant said. "Instead, it has become a hand-picked group of people who are thought to view favorably the idea of or need for salary increases."

The seven commission members are appointed by the governor for one-time, staggered, fouryear terms.

"The commission's recommendations automatically become law unless the Legislature reiects them by Feb. 1 of a new term, and the Legislature makes so, legislatures get their pay them.'

October 1989.

Bryant has no illusions about the chances of placement of HJR P on the November 1990 ballot, but he believes the issue needs to be raised.

"Michigan voters were told – and believed - the commission system would provide a fairer method of determining salaries,' he said. "However, because of its resultant automatic, pro-increase tendency, the process has become a fraud on the people and I believe they should have a chance to abolish the commission.

"The Legislature made the situation even worse by passing legislation a few years ago that tied state judicial salaries to those of the Supreme Court justices. When the justices get raises, it costs taxpayers millions to increase the paycheck of each district, probate, circuit and appeals court judge.

"I am willing to look at alternatives to abolishing the commission if a change could provide legislative accountability. For instance, I could support a revision requiring an acceptance vote of the commission's recommendations, instead of the current method of having to vote to reject it," Bryant said.

HJR P was referred raises without having to vote on House Oversight Committee for consideration,

Just gotta have another cigarette

A suspect who used a stolen credit card to buy more than $300 worth of cigarettes from a Grosse Pointe City gas station was finally caught Monday when he went back for just one more purchase.

At 9:35 p.m. Oct. 8, a man entered the Amoco station at Mack and Rivard and requested 20 cartons of cigarettes in various brands. The man offered a Citibank MasterCard for payment of the $272.27 bill. When the cashier ran the credit card through the automatic verification machine, the purchase came back approved.

A little later the man returned to the station and purchased another $55.83 worth of cigarettes. The man told the cashier at the station that he and some buddies were going to Canada and they wanted plenty of cigarettes to take with them.

At 7:17 a.m. the following day. the man again appeared at the station and requested to purchase another 20 cartons of the cigarettes. When the cashier, who was the same person from the night before, asked the man what happened to all the cigarettes from the night before, the man said he and his buddies had an all-night card game and smoked all the cigarettes.

When the man presented the same credit card for the purchase, the cashier said she would have to call the bank this time to verify the purchase. The man then fled from the station, leaving the credit card behind. He jumped into the taxicab that brought him to the station. According to police reports, the cab driver said the suspect bailed out of the cab on Mack between Washington and Rivard and ran between buildings.

When police checked on the credit card, it was found to be stolen.

Candidate's wife charged

Staff Writer

Following eight weeks of speculation by Grosse Pointe Farms and county officials regarding her conduct prior to the Aug. 8 judicial primary, Irene Gracey, wife of candidate Paul Gracey, has been charged by the Wayne County prosecutor with illegal ballot handling.

The written announcement from the prosecutor's office issued Thursday, Oct. 5, read: "A warrant has been issued charging Irene Gracey with the offense of being in possession of an absent voter ballot delivered to another and agreeing to return an absent voter ballot to the city clerk.

The document spells out the actions by Mrs. Gracey in the days before the primary, stating that one or more ballots were given to Mrs. Gracey by the office of the Grosse Pointe Farms clerk and that she had taken the ballot to the voter. The ballot was voted on Aug. 2 or 3 and Mrs. Gracey offered to return it to the clerk's of-

The misdemeanor charge carries a maximum penalty of 90 days in jail and/or a $500 fine. Also outlined in the announcement is the failure of the Grosse Pointe Farms clerk's office to follow proper procedures in the distribution of absentee ballots.

Richard Solak, city clerk, after learning that Mrs. Gracey had removed ballots from City Hall, said he told Mrs. Gracey not to remove any more ballots from City Hall.

Mrs. Gracey agreed with Solak's statement, but added that the city clerk failed to mention that taking ballots out of City Hall was an illegal act. Just three days later, Mrs. Gracey again was offered absentee ballots by a Grosse Pointe Farms employee which she accepted.

Richard Padzieski, chief of operations for the Wayne County prosecutor's office, said the city of Grosse Pointe Farms and its employees will not be charged.

"The bottom line is that there is no evidence that someone at the City Hall was in violation of intentionally breaking state election laws by handing out the ballots," Padzieski said.

"If suddenly evidence is brought forward that proves otherwise, then there is a likelyhood that more charges could be brought," Padzieski added.

Solak said when he learned that ballots had been distributed over the counter, he instructed the treasurer's office at City Hall that no more ballots were to be handed out.

"Unfortunately there was a breakdown in procedures,' Solak said. "The result has been very distressing to me both personally and professionally. It's been distressing to the city's staff as well. Steps have been taken to assure that this does not happen again."

Padzieski said the prosecutor's office concluded, based on a Michigan State Police investigative report, that the notification by the city clerk of improper procedures by Mrs. Gracey and the inconvenience suffered by voters require proper response by the criminal justice system to protect the electoral process.

Mrs. Gracey was arraigned on Monday, Oct. 9 in the Grosse Pointe Farms Municipal Court before visiting Judge Frank Jeannette on two counts of unauthorized possession of absentee ballots. She pleaded innothe absentee vote will be taken to Kaufmann's courtroom, where the judge is expected to certify the vote.

Killeen said if the schedule is adhered to, the Nov. 7 general election will include a final vote for municipal judge in the Farms.

Bradley Whitman of the Michigan Election Commission said the state is withholding any action pending the outcome of the decision by the state Court of Appeals.

Whitman said the Appeals Court decision could dramatically affect the outcome of the election, especially if Kauf-mann's decision to re-cast the absentee vote is overturned.

Prior to Kaufmann's decision for a new vote, the state was preparing to certify the county's re-count. Whitman said the state will now wait for a decision from the Appeals Court.

A Pie(r)ce of history

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

At the Oct. 1 celebration of Pierce Middle School's 50th year of teaching, there were students there who were grandchildren of the original class members.

And there were former students, former teachers, former principals, and just about everyone else who is or has been associated with the Grosse Pointe School District and John D. Pierce Middle School.

The week-long celebration began with the opening of a time capsule which was buried in the cornerstone.

The time capsule almost went undiscovered because no one could find the blue-prints for the building. Ron Gavula of the school's maintainence department knocked on bricks for a week hoping to find one that was hollow. Without the blueprints, it was anybody's guess which corner housed the time capsule.

When the capsule was opened, the last item removed was, of course, the blue-prints.

Along with the blueprints were some test books, a student handbook, a copy of the now-defunct Detroit Times and the Grosse Pointe Review, and also a copy of the Detroit Free Press.

The school was built in 10 months for a total cost of $878,000 funded partially by a grant of $395,000. Charles E. Leavitt was the principal.

Warrena Rhodes was a member of the original staff. She came to Grosse Pointe after receiving a master's degree in science from Columbia University

— causing quite a furor
because she, and a number of other new teachers, were from out of state.

"I came here to fill a biology teacher vacancy and planned to stay for a few years," she said. "But I fell in love with Grosse Pointe because of Pierce School.

Rhodes

"That school had the finest spirit and still has it," she said.

In those years the girls were taught by women and the boys were taught by men. In addition to a principal, there was a

In addition to a principal, there was a dean of boys and a dean of girls. Rhodes remembers so many girls in her Health and Safety class that they were sitting on the window ledges.

And she remembers the parents.

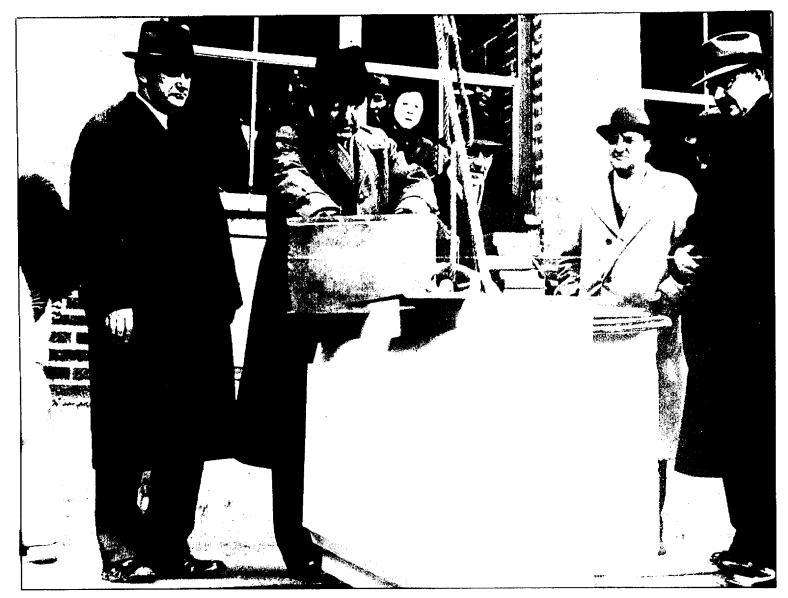

"We had a country fair to raise money one year and we had every single parent participating," she said. "It was just great, there was a great family feeling there. We made $8,000 on that fair and that was when $8,000 was a whole lot of money."

That, she said, is how Pierce was and still is. When some of the tightly knit staff were tapped to fill the brand new Parcells School, and again when they were taken to fill Brownell, the school only suffered slightly, because the staff rallied together to pick each other up.

Rhodes taught at Pierce for 25 of its 50 years before leaving to work at the district offices recruiting personnel — many from out of state.

"It was just a wonderful experience to teach at that school," she summed up.

And as former Principal Bill Mogk said at the celebration: "We can have the bricks and we can have the mortar, but Pierce is more than that. Pierce is an attitude and a personality. Pierce is pride."

Teachers learn new math

On Oct. 10 teachers from Grosse Pointe Public Schools, University Liggett School and schools in Detroit and Southfield had the opportunity to learn new approaches to teaching mathematics that concentrates on the whys rather than on the hows of memorizing formulae.

Deborah Schifter, a professor at Mount Holyoke College in South Hadley, Mass., who is the director of Mount Holyoke's nationally recognized SummerMath for Teachers program, conducted the all-day workshop for 25 elementary and middle school teachers from inner city public, suburban public and suburban private schools. The conference was held at ULS.

The sessions focused on handson exploration of the participants' methods for approaching the teaching of mathematics.

North, South day off

Grosse Pointe North and South High Schools will be dismissed at 11:30 a.m. on Thursday, Oct. 26 in order for the faculties of both schools to participate in staff development.

Students and parents are advised to make plans in preparation for the day.

DIA offers mask kits for Halloween

Youngsters planning a costume for a night of trick or treating can also learn about African culture with a Curiosity Kit from the Detroit Institute of Arts

Museum Shop. With the Curiosity Kit, and little imagination, children 6 and older can create an original mask for their Halloween haunts. The $9 kit comes complete with a die-cut cardboard mask with elastic string; raffia, colorful grass-like material to adorn the mask's outer edge; a set of markers and full instructions. The kit also includes a brief explanation of the mask's significance in African culture. Masks, patterned after humans, animals or supernatural beings, are part of all phases of African life. Made of a variety of materials, there are as many different masks as there are people. In the African culture, masks are often used, along with songs and proverbs, to instruct child-

Reisig explained that unless attitudes are changed, there will always be a demand for drugs. And as long as there's a demand, there will always be new, stronger, more attractive drugs, abuse. regardless whether they come from outside the country or not.

"A mad scientist in his basethat give a stronger high, Reisig said. "So we have to stop the demand."

One way of stopping drug abuse before it occurs is through education. Reisig said that if school finance Proposal A is adopted by voters in the November general election, then $10 treatment and all-important afmillion of the money earned through the 1/2-cent sales tax keep former drug abusers from increase will be earmarked for drug education in grades K-12.

The remainder of the earmarked Proposal A funds would be for educating students in ment" is creating new drugs higher grades, teaching drug resistance skills through the Drug Abuse Resistance Education (D.A.R.E) program and for educating parents.

Another way to reduce demand and to keep it down is through drug-abuse treatment.

Reisig said far more drug tercare programs are needed to relansing.

"Yes, treatment works," he said, "but 28 days in Betty Ford used for identifying and provided doesn't solve the problem for any

Furthermore, Reisig said drug treatment has to be made available to everyone, not just those who can afford to pay for it.

"If you have Blue Cross, you can get treatment," Reisig said, "There's plenty of treatment facilities for those who have the capacity to pay.'

What are needed, he said, are treatment slots for those who can't pay.

Reisig is especially concerned with female drug abusers, who are far less likely to seek treatment than men. He said women have family responsibilities, such as childcare, that prevent them from getting help.

A man who decides he needs help just admits himself to a program, Reisig said, regardless of whether he has children or other responsibilities. He said a woman, however, will not abandon the children to seek treatment or she will be afraid of los-

We must have more interest in treatment for women, especially women raising children, Reisig said, "because she is in a position to influence for good and for evil.'

Also, stopping pregnant women from abusing drugs can save society a tremendous amount of money and resources.

Reisig said a premature baby, which is common among drug abusers, costs $90.000 to $120,000 for initial hospital care. And this doesn't include the long-term societal cost of supporting a dysfunctional child and adult.

Concerning the legalization of cocaine and other drugs, which is being proposed by some prominent intellectuals, Reisig said legalization is a "cop out" and will only exacerbate the problem.

He said the illegality of the powerful, addictive drugs of today cannot be compared with the prohibition of alcohol, as many claim. And even if the two were comparable, Reisig points out that after Prohibition was repealed, alcoholism increased four

He said that if cocaine were legalized, experimentation would increase and there would be a resulting escalation in drug addiction. Many people who would not try cocaine because of the fear of getting caught and prosecuted would be willing to try it and use it if it were legalized.

And even though cocaine and its potent, smokable form, crack, are illegal, it hasn't prevented large segments of society from using the drug.

"Crack has reached suburbia and middle America," Reisig

Attorney General Kelley: We can't do it alone

By John Minnis

Assistant Editor With drug abuse and its related crime at crisis proportions, Michigan Attorney General Frank Kelley says law enforcement can't solve it alone.

Kelley, 64, an old-school Democrat who has served as the state's top law enforcement officer since 1962, expressed his concerns to journalists at a luncheon hosted by the Michigan State Police at its academy in Lansing Oct. 6.

Kelley also used the luncheon to throw a few barbs at conservative Republican lawmakers and to espouse liberal Democratic thought that has only been whispered in select company since the Reagan revolu-

"We won't increase the minimum wage but will reduce the capital gains tax for the rich," Kelley said, concluding that it is no wonder disadvantaged youth decide to take the quick, easy road to wealth that drugs provide rather than plug away at a dead-end minimum wage jobs with no chance of even a raise.

"What are our priorities for the 21st century?" he asked the journalists who were attending the luncheon, which was part of gram sponsored by Gov. James Blanchard and the Michigan Press Association.

While crime and drugs are an obvious priority, Kelley indicated that we are not willing to put our resources where our concerns

"I honestly think people out there think that a herd of Wyatt Earps are going to put on their white hats and get on their white horses and go out there and take care of crime," he said.

To aid in the war against drugs and crime, Kelley presented a law enforcement wish list, which included multi-county grand juries, stronger property forfeiture laws and "court supervised" wiretaps.

He said the wiretaps, which put watchdogs of civil liberties in a frenzy, can be handled responsibly through a judge's supervision. Kelley reasoned: Why should local bank offices and credit bureaus, for example, be the Government Affairs Day pro- allowed to intrude into people's lives daily while law enforcement's hands are tied?

> "I'm as good a civil libertarian as anyone," he said, "but I can't understand why we have such a phobia on wiretapping in this

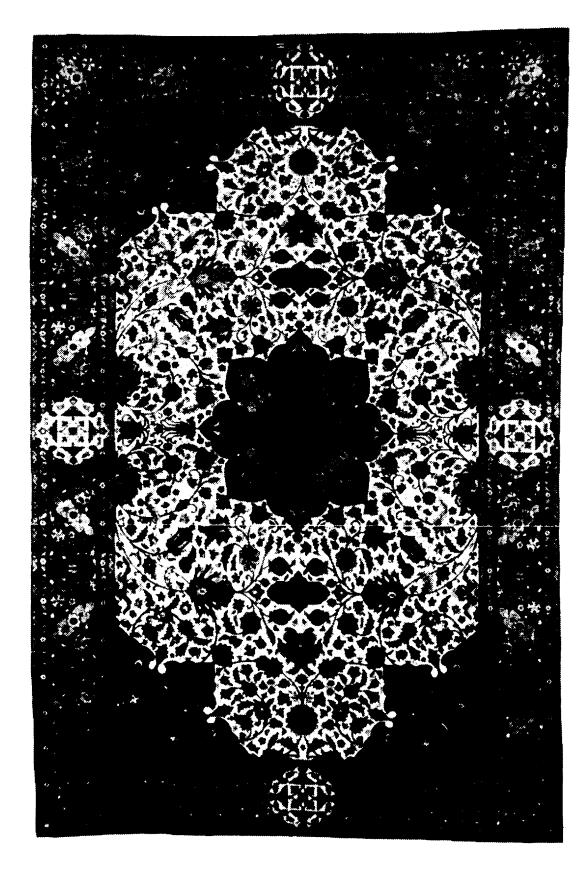

Kelley said the state is making progress. More criminals are being jailed, and more prison space has been and is being

"We have more prisoners per capita serving longer sentences than any other state in the country," he said. "If we keep it up, we'll go broke."

There is a bright spot, however. Kelley said that 80 percent of the criminals are in the 13 to 24 age group. And as the population declines due to the baby bust so will the high-crime age

"We may get a cheap way out of this crime epidemic," he said.

See the U.S.A. in a Chevrolet? Today it's a Toyota

What is the quintessential American car, the car which requires no explanation by any American why he or she bought it? What's that? Toyota Canry? The successor to the Chevy Impala is the Toyota Camry, a car built in Japan?

Consider the Chevrolet Impala, the all-American car, the car of Dinah Shore's choice in which to see the U.S.A., the car associated with baseball, hotdogs and apple pie. It was not the flashiest car around, but it was good enough and no one would ever ask you "Why'd you buy one of those?

Now the Impala is gone, and its successor is made in Japan. Tell people you bought a Chevy Caprice and they may say "What's that?" Or tell them you bought any American car and they may say "Why?"

But Toyotas are correct, above reproach. Respectable, conservative and clean. Middle America. And the biggest selling Toyota is the Camry, accounting for almost a third of Toyota sales last year and surpassing the Corolla, long the biggest-selling car in the world.

The Camry reminds one of later Impalas, not the legendary Impalas of the late '50s and '60s with all the muscles, but the later Impalas designed to irk no

Where's the beef?

A Detroit woman was charged Sept. 19 with stealing three beef loin steaks from Kroger's in the Farms. She hid the packages in her purse, according to the police report. She was taken to the police station, where she admitted to being a heroin addict for the last six years. She destroyed a packet in her purse, which police believed could have contained heroin, some syringes and a spoon.

one, pleasant automobiles with conservative styling, smooth ride and enough but not too much

The Camry is middle-of-theroad. With its four-cam, 24-valve, 2.5-liter V-6, it is state-of-the-art in modern powerplant design. It is smooth. So smooth you think it has stalled the first few times you stop at a light, but it hasn't.

If you wonder how good the Japanese have become in divining exactly what Americans like in a family car, drive a Camry. The Camry does not grab you with its styling or with hot performance, as do other Toyotas with names like Supra, MR2 or Celica. It is more like the late Chevy Impala - a quietly incredible, understated all-around automobile, a lot of car for around $15,000.

Just the thing for a quick trip to New York City, which I had to make recently, but I didn't have the Camry. Instead of the best-selling Toyota, I made the trip in what I came to regard as the best Toyota, a '90 4Runner four-door sports-utility truck. I was not excited, because that is a lot of miles in a truck. But I was most agreeably surprised. The miles were as easy as in a Bentley. (Well...)

The 4Runner's rugged good looks attract a surprising amount of attention. In a gas station just off I-80 somewhere in the wilds of Pennsylvania, an attendant asked: "Is that the new 4Runner?" He inspected it carefully and approvingly while I tried to figure out where I was.

Driving in New York City in any vehicle quickly makes it clear why there is a lot of hostility to automobiles in the East. Chronic and apparently permanent gridlock grips the city.

I asked a gentleman in the Bronx for directions to Long Island and he asked where I was from. "Detroit," I said.

By Richard Wright

1990 4-Door 4Runner

He chuckled. "They allow you to drive a Japanese car there? How much are they?"

"They start at about $18,000," "Nice."

With four-wheel drive, smooth 3-liter V-6 engine and four-door luxury-car comfort, the 4Runner is nice, as the New Yorker said.

The Grosse Pointe Shores Improvement Foundation is currently lighting the intersections along Lakeshore Boulevard. Some 27 lights were purchased by the foundation at a cost of $1,500 apiece, according to Mary Matuja, president of the foundation. The project is now under way and should be done before long. Matuja said residents were asked whether they preferred the acorn-style lamppost, which was put up for viewing at Hawthorne, or the presidential-lantern post at Roslyn, as shown above. Residents voted for the lantern style, Matuja said. Residents were also able to purchase a lamppost and dedicate it with a plaque. Some 15 individuals purchased a lamp, Matuja

Horwitz new director of Children's Home

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

When Michael Horwitz was interviewed for the executive directorship of the Children's Home of Detroit, he said he was struck not only by the beauty of the Grosse Pointe Woods campus, but also by the dedication and competence of the staff.

"My first week here hasn't changed my opinion one bit," Horwitz said. "Everyone I've met has been extremely professional and very dedicated. I'm looking forward to working with all of them.'

Horwitz, 44, was chosen after a nationwide search. He replaces H.E. Tammelaid who retired in

For the past 15 years, Horwitz was director of the Larkin Center for Children and Adolescents in Elgin, Ill. It is a place similar to Children's Home, which caters to the educational and emotional needs of children in trouble.

"Larkin Center has grown a great deal," Horwitz said. "It's been a marvelous experience, but I wanted to try my skills elsewhere. I saw a lot of challenges here.

The challenge facing him at Children's Home is anticipating the needs of the children who walk through those doors tomorrow and well into the 1990s.

"We have to take a look at the services we provide now and what can be provided into the next decade," he said. "I have no preconceived notions of what the Children's Home is, and I think that's the best way to meet the challenges.

His position, as executive by the students and the staff on campus.

Horwitz received a bachelor's degree in sociology from the University of Maryland and worked as a volunteer in mental health at a state hospital, but it was the army which advanced his career in the field.

After completing basic training at the height of the Vietnam War, he was sent not to Vietnam, but to Denver to work in a psychiatric clinic. There he worked with military active duty families and their children.

"Any field where you're serving people, there's something in your background that draws you to it," Horwitz said. "I grew up in a very traditional home with parents who cared deeply, so I'm sensitive to those who don't have

His parents, who are both in their 80s and in good health, recently celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary.

"I'd also like to give something back," he said.

Horwitz's wife, Michele, is a registered nurse and the couple has four children, Alexander, 19, a student at Purdue; Joshua, 8, Nathaniel, 5 and Zachary, 2 months. They are looking to move to the Pointes.

In addition to the challenges his new position brings, Horwitz is facing a personal challenge.

An admitted running addict who runs five miles a day during the week and eight to nine miles a day on the weekends, he is looking for someone to run with.

Recycling group makes recommendations

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

With all the data from Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling's pilot curbside recycling program pronounced dead at 4 a.m. at Henry Ford Hospital, where he in, the group is ready to move forward with recommendations lay in a coma since receiving a head injury while playing touch to local governments. Among the recommendations football Sept. 17 at Meisner

Field, which is across from Rich is that at least one city have curbside pickup for recyclables by July of next year. Millan and Ridge roads in According to Sheila Osann, Fischer is survived by his head of the Recycling Education and Curbside Test (REACT) project, an eight-week pilot curbside recycling program was a success with close to 90 percent particicouple of seasons with some life. pation from those chosen as part long friends who played on the of the program.

Approximately 100 houses in ach of the Pointes and Harper Woods were chosen to participate in the project. Each home was given a red plastic bin, along with educational materials explaining what to recycle and how to do it. They were asked to put their bins out on their usual garbage day, and the materials were picked up by Waste Management, Inc.

According to Waste Management, Inc., more than 10 tons of paper, four tons of glass, a ton of metal and a half-ton of plastics were collected.

Education was a major aspect of REACT. Two surveys were given to the participants asking them to give opinions on the importance of recycling, support for the project and other issues such as how much would they pay for recycling and how that money should be collected.

Only 3 percent of those who didn't participate said they didn't because it was too much trouble, while most non-participants said they were either out of town or they didn't have enough items.

The survey showed that while 21 percent weren't willing to pay anything to cover the cost of recycling, 27 percent said they'd be willing to pay up to $30 a year for recycling.

Of those who said they'd be willing to pay, 27 percent felt the best way to collect the costs would be a yearly fee with some form of discount for recycling. The next most popular way was to incorporate the costs into local

In the pre-test, only 19 percent of those homes chosen said they would participate in the Citizens for Recycling's monthly collection held at Grosse Pointe South High School on the first Saturday of every month. Following the program, 63 percent of the participants said they would participate in that program. Those who said they would recycle newspapers went from 36 percent in the pre-test to 42 percent in the post-test. Fewer people - after the program was completed - said they would reuse items, such as plastic bags or other items at home.

In every city but Grosse Pointe, the percentage of people who felt a recycling program should be mandatory dropped after participating in the project.

The Citizens for Recycling made the following recommendations to the five cities:

• The Grosse Pointes-Clinton Refuse Disposal Authority should hire a recycling manager to serve its eight-member communities. The manager should investigate the means of implementing curbside recycling programs for all the cities the authority serves, and educate the public to promote recycling and set a target date of July 1990 for a curbside recycling program in at least one community,

· The cities should establish drop-off centers until curbside recycling can be instituted. The centers should be set up by Jan. 1, 1990.

• The cities should support the leaf composting program to be started this fall at the authority.

· The cities should increase their use of recycled materials. including not only paper, but should also investigate picnic tables and other park equipment made from recycled plastic.

Citizens for Recycling hopes to meet with city officials to go over the recommendations and explore how the cities can participate.

Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling will hold its annual board meeting at 7:30 p.m. tonight, Oct. 12, in Cleminson Hall at Grosse Pointe South High School. It is open to the

Racial Justice Center celebrates 20th anniversary

Members, friends and newcomers gathered at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial Sept. 28 to celebrate the 20th anniversary of the Racial Justice Center of Grosse Pointe. The event featured speeches promoting racial harmony.

Sept. 28, 1989 marked the date for the celebration of the 20th anniversary of the Racial Justice Center of Grosse Pointe. The Rev. Glenn Wegmeyer, former center executive director, very ably handled a retrospective in which he highlighted some of the frivolous and serious aspects of past center activities.

Dr. Virgil Jones, who leads the United Campus Ministries at Wayne State University, gave a riveting presentation on the current status of racism in America. Many longtime members thought his speech acted as a buoy and a reminder of work yet to be done.

Founding members Carrie Peebles and Dennis Mongoven were introduced to newer members. The introduction added to the sense of continuity which an anniversary celebration creates.

Former and current board members attending included Suzan Anderson, Kathy Barret, Rick Drabant, John Fillion, Bob Jackman, Pat James, Mariana Manion, Jack McSorley, John Mozena, Lois Rimbo, Jack Ruth, Dave Upmeyer and Cynthia Warner.

Executive Director Sheila Emery received a good-natured ribbing from past executive directors Vivian Buffington, Kate Elsila and Karen Moore about upcoming projects.

Summers' work on exhibition

Jack Summers, Grosse Pointe South High School art instructor, will be among a select group of Michigan photographers selected to display their work at two important art exhibitions that will open Friday evening. Oct. 13.

The Detroit Artist's Market, 1452 Randolph St., is hosting an exhibition of photographs titled "Michigan Connection." More than 100 photographers submitted work for possible exhibition. Robert A. Sobleszek, director of photographic collections at the International Museum of Photography at George Eastman House, served as the juror for the show. Six of Summers' photographic collages were selected and will be on display.

Lynn Cazabon, a 1982 graduate of South and a former student of Summers, will also have work in this exhibit.

Detroit's Focus Gallery, 743

Beaubien, will also host a concurrent exhibition featuring photography. The show "Of Light/ Primitive Processes" was curated by Carlos Diaz, photo instructor at the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit. Diaz selected only three photographers to create new work for this special show.

The works in the Focus Gallery display will feature 19th century non-silver printing methods. One participant will display work in the casein printing process. Another photographer will show work in the platinum printing method and Summers will display a cyanotype collage which stands 6-1/2 feet by 21 feet long.

Both photo shows are open to the public and open Oct. 13 at 5 p.m. and run to 7:30 p.m.

Summers said the two shows are part of the events that are designed to commemorate Photography's Sesquicentennial. 1839 to 1989.

"Wenceslas Square" is about an American professor, Vince Corey, who returns to Prague, Czechoslovakia, after the 1968 Soviet invasion to complete a book he had written about the Czech theater during the political thay under the liberal Dubcek government. He is planning a final chapter, "Where Are They Now," as an epilogue to his book, but soon he realizes that the book's publication would jeopardize the lives of his

The real-life professor is Nicholas Howey, a Ph.D. graduate from Wayne State University, whose dissertation was the book being prepared for publication. In 1974 he returned to Prague with the late actor-playwright Larry Shue, then an amateur photographer, to complete his research. The experience in Prague was such a memorable experience for Shue that he wrote the play as a thank you to Howey. Shue, also the author of "The Foreigner" and "The Nord," died in a plane crash shortly after writing the play.

This production has special meaning for the director, Robert T. Hazzard, who was Nicholas Howey's adviser on his dissertation, which was never published.

Vince Corey is played by Hilberry veteran actor, Tom Helmer, now in his third year with the Hilberry Repertory Company. His friend and associate, Bob Dooley (Larry Shue), is played by another third-year actor, Christopher Yohn, who was seen last year as Romeo in "Romeo and Juliet" and John in "A Life in the Theatre." Physically, Johnny Handsome, played by Mickey Rourke, was born a loser. As his doctor put it: "He was born with physical defects that 99 percent of all humanity consider disgusting.'

All of his life he has had to overcome the obstacle of being. Not only does he have hideous facial and cranial deformities, he has difficulty making himself understood because of a cleft palate and harelip.

It is not long into the film "Johnny Handsome" that we discover that Johnny has character flaws also and in the end it is character that shapes his des-

He is a low-life crook with few friends and he loses one of them, Mikey (Scott Wilson) in an opening slam-bang heist scene.

They set on a plan with Sunny (Ellen Barkin) and Rafe (Lance Henrikson) to knock over a rare antique coin shop. It is a violent scene complete with gunfire, shattering glass and murder. While it is bloody and vicious, it is put together with style by Director Walter Hill ("The Warriors," "Streets of Fire"). The masks are eerie and sleek, the guns shoot fire.

Johnny is double-crossed by his accomplices. They escape. His friend Mikey is dead. He is

In prison Johnny comes to the attention of Dr. Resher (Forest Whitaker) who believes that Johnny is the way he is because of his background and his deformities. He grew up in an orphanage where the kids would say on Halloween: "Johnny doesn't need a mask." Dr. Resher is convinced that if Johnny gets a new face, Johnny will be a new man.

Lt. Drones (Morgan Freeman) thinks otherwise. He insists that Johnny's problem is not his face but an ingrained meanness of character and that fixing his face will not make him a better Convinced he is right, Dr. Resher, with Johnny's permission, undertakes a long, expensive procedure hoping to undo nature's mistake and give Johnny a new lease on life.

It is a process that actively involves the audience which waits in suspense as Johnny sits, his face swathed in bandages in an amphitheater where the staff has gathered to see if Dr. Resher has been successful in rearranging Johnny's face.

Before the bandages are stripped away, Johnny is warned that the results may not be all he had hoped for, but it will be an improvement. Johnny is satisfied and agrees to further surgery. The next time around Johnny emerges from his bandages looking like – well, Mickey Rourke.

After several sessions with a kindly and patient speech therapist, Johnny is ready to face the world. He gets a new name, new identification and a job.

He gets a job in a shipyard where he meets Donna (Elizabeth McGovern).

For a brief time, it looks as though Johnny is going to make it until he begins hanging out in his old haunts and plots to revenge the murder of Mikey. He tracks down tarty, hardboiled Sunny and ratty Rafe and convinces them that he is on to a good thing - a $5 million plan to hold up the shipyard. They are wary but unable to resist the

Mickey Rourke's portrayal of Johnny is his best role to date. He is equally convincing as the criminal who wears his scars on the outside and the cool, handsome young man who refuses to surmount the scars that flaw his character. A pivotal character, he holds the film together.

There are others who contribute considerable talent to this flashy crime drama. Ellen Barkin with her lopsided grin, skintight leather pants and hard-asnails attitude is one. She has no brakes when it comes to mayhem. She is a rough, tough moll.

Elizabeth McGovern makes the most of a nice-girl role. She never gives up on Johnny. Like Dr. Resher, she believes that he can and will overcome the criminal tendencies that belonged to a past made unbearable by his disfigurement.

Forest Whitaker who labors to create a normal being out of a Frankenstein character brings sincerity to his part that makes us believe he can succeed.

Then there's sardonic Morgan Freeman who understands the criminal mind. He gives a superb performance as the laidback shrewd detective who is willing to wait for the criminal to return to his inevitable old

There is real suspense and violence in this film that intrigues rather than entertains.

Selleck solves a problem in 30 seconds that someone else at work spent four hours sweating over. His wife has time to work, go to school and cook great dinners. They will travel. They will have kids.

The cops, meanwhile, are onedimensionally sleazy. They lie; they cheat. They shoot people as often as they can.

Now he's a take-charge aggressor who isn't afraid to do what's necessary to restore his storybook life. The newfound in-

Selleck is engaging and very believable in the picture. He's a man caught in circumstances beyond his control. He may be a pretty boy, but he's a pretty boy with the same weaknesses and expectations we all have.

F. Murray Abraham, who won an Oscar a few years ago for his performance in "Amadeus," does a fine turn here as the convict who teaches Selleck what he needs to know to survive in "An Innocent Man" plays more than anything else as as indictment of the legal system. We're told repeatedly that right and wrong, truth and lies, have nothing to do with reality. It's all about proof and manipulation and persuasion.

Whether that's an honorable theme is debatable. It is, without doubt, and intriguing one. And the film works because of it.

Farms Market: 50 years in the same family, same location

By Pat Paholsky

It's a milestone when a business observes its 50th year. The milestone becomes extraordinary, however, when a busines remains in the same family and in the same location as when it first opened.

Such is the case with the Farms Market which will celebrate its Oct. 14, 1939 opening with a party for the community Saturday, Oct. 14. There'll be freshly squeezed orange juice. coffee and Danish in the morning, and tea sandwiches, shrimp, cheeses, cake, ice cream and refreshments in the afternoon. There'll be door prizes and the day-long celebration promises to be a festive occasion for the Moir family

The Moirs will be on hand as they are every day - to greet old customers and reminisce and to introduce new people to their store and its services.

And no one will be more proud of the business than Bill Moir Sr., who started it all. He has good reason to be proud, especially since he'll observe his 87th birthday a week after the event.

Moir, who retired in 1972 and turned the business over to his children, said, "Grosse Pointe has been very good to all of us, me especially.

Moire, who was born in London, Ontario, came to this area and then Sanders.

"I always wanted to get into business for myself," he said.

The building at 355 Fisher was constructed and in October 1939, the market opened for business with 18 employees. Within 60 days, the store employed between 25 and 27 employees.

"We had a following out here, Moir said.

The market specialized in gourmet foods and unusual items. It stocked fresh caviar shipped from New York and French bread from France, among other things.

"I always tried to have something new," Mon said. "Many of our customers on their travels would bring me back a label or samples and I would order from

Nobody else in the area carried Thomas' protein bread and muffins at the time and Moir said he introduced Pepperidge Farms products to the area.

Much of the business was by telephone and was handled by four delivery trucks, a shipping clerk and three office clerks. The office had a switchboard. Clientele included the Fords, the Dodges and the Strohs as well as other prominent tamilies.

The store was open six days a week. Monday through Saturday, with no evening hours.

Grosse Pointe South High School, the market enjoys a brisk business at noon. They sell about 95 sandwiches a day, Jean Moir said. It's heartwarming, she said, when the students come back years later with their children.

Space is a problem. Other than a warehouse that was added to the back in the early days, the building, due to its location, cannot be expanded.

"At one time it was large enough," the elder Moir said. "Now it's not."

Moir was active in the community. He was one of 27 charter members who formed the Grosse Pointe Rotary Club which recently celebrated its 50th year. There are two charter members left, he said.

He helped form the Grosse Pointe Businessmen's Association and was one of 12 charter members. He also served on the poards of Bon Secours and Cot tage hospitals.

When the store caught fire in 1964, Moir said some of the customers offered to help clean up so it could reopen quickly. He had the phone connected to a nearby location and in the eight days it took to reopen, there were orders stacked a foot high, he said.

There'll be plenty of memories for him Saturday as the business he started celebrates its golden anniversary. "The boys are doing a good job here," he said, referring to his son and grandson. "They keep the store up very well.'

Smokers get serious about quitting

National program helps smokers break the habit

By Margie Reins Smith

Feature Editor
"Sniff your butt jars."

Five soon-to-be-ex-smokers unscrewed the lids of their own personally-prepared containers filled with smashed, crushed butts, ashes and the fragrant burnt ends of smoked-up cigarettes.

Five soon-to-be-ex-smokers inhaled deeply.

They placed the wrong ends of unlit filtered cigarettes in their mouths and pretended to smoke, using their non-dominant hands, turned backward. They placed the cigarettes between their ring fingers and pinkies.

"Flick your ashes."

Five soon-to-be-ex-smokers leaned over and pretended to flick ashes from their unlit cigarettes without taking the cigarettes from their mouths.

Five soon-to-be-ex-smokers watched the movie screen as slides flashed quickly before them: pictures of diseased lungs; people with faces eaten away by cancer; advertisements showing beautiful people smoking; coffins; dirty ashtrays; cancerous growths on people's lips, chins, tongues.

"We're getting people to associate smoking with unpleasantness," said Lynn Stapleton, instructor for Smokeless, a national program for people who want to quit smoking which is conducted through health care institutions.

It was the third day of the program's five-day treatment phase, given through St. John Hospital at Assumption Cultural Center in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Stapleton was guiding the group through an hour and a half session that included a discussion of stress management.

She said the methods used in the Smokeless program help people learn ways to manage stress without lighting up a cigarette, how to reward themselves for not smoking, how to change their attitudes toward smoking, how to manage their weight and how to motivate themselves. Some patented negative smoking techniques are included, she said.

The five members of the class appeared to sincerely want to stop place that allows smoking anymore.

Elaine Burton of Detroit said she has smoked for 42 years. "This is the first time I've gotten help. I've tried to quit on my own before. So far I've gone from a pack a day down to 12 and today I've had no cigarettes at all."

The Smokeless class costs $155. The first session is quit day, Stapleton said. It's devoted to getting rid of the physical urges to smoke. "I give people 70 techniques for this."

The second session is devoted to Stapleton read to them in a smooth, soothing, almost hypnotic voice.

The soliloquy was punctuated by occasional cigarette coughs.

Stapleton said the fourth class is devoted to advertising and how it affects smokers. "It's graduation day. We get people prepared for the weekend ahead."

The fifth and sixth classes are maintenance sessions, designed to help people never smoke again.

Smokeless guarantees that its intensive program will wean participants from cigarettes within five days and offers a lifetime guarantee which allows participants to attend any Smokeless program in the country as often as necessary at no additional charge.

The program is offered several times a year in conjunction with St. John, Bon Secours and Cottage hospitals in Grosse Pointe.

Smokeless class member ABrilla Milostan of East Detroit said she has smoked for 45 years. "I've tried other methods. So far I've gone from a pack or more a day down to only three cigarettes today.

"The most difficult time, yesterday, was when I came home from work. The rest of the day I didn't even think about it."

At the end of the class, members geared up for another 23 hours without cigarettes before the next class.

Stapleton gave them some helpful techniques to try:

- Imagine yourself a nonsmoker
- Put a straw in your mouth
- Treat yourself to pizza or an ice cream cone or flowers
- Take vitamins and calciumDrink lots of fluids
- Sniff your butt jars.

Grandparents share memories, feelings with grandchildren

In the eyes of children, old is most frequently asked questions old. It matters not that grandmothers and grandfathers compete in the job world, play golf with the best of them and feel like 16-year-olds inside. To children, it is almost imcomprehensible that anyone has lived so long. Not that they don't love their grandparents and take special pride in them. Anyone who has been associated with children know that.

School children assigned to write stories about their grandparents will invariably write about how much they like going to visit their grandparents' homes; how good their grandparents are to them and how much they love their grandmothers and grandfathers.

One of the most successful school functions is Grandparents Day. Students practice long hours to put on a program. They do their best work for weeks because they want their grandparents to see how well they do in school. They proudly introduce their grandparents to their teachers. A gallery of pictures drawn by the children of their grandparents is on display. The most outstanding feature of the art display is that grandmas and grandpas are smiling. Children love their grandparis, "What was it like when you were young? Did they have television, automobiles, airplanes?" They may ask if you had electric lights.

They have not yet learned to put age into perspective. They think that anyone who has reached the exalted stage of being a grandmother must have lived through the entire history of the nation.

For the most grandparents today, such questions present a problem. Often the very experiences children want a first-hand account of — they have never been through.

It's possible to wing it. Trips to sites of historic interest help. Locally, Greenfield Village and the Historical Museum in Detroit provide good background material for what it was like in the olden days.

Books are also a good source. It's possible to find books detailing every era, with good accounts of how people lived, what they wore, ate, and the kind of houses they lived in.

The Pastor's Corner Missed Address

The Rev. William DeVries First Christian Reformed Church

It is not that I am lost, mind you. No, it is just that something else is occupying the proper section or fold of my brain, and I am temporarily off-track.

Fortunately, this condition is not usually a very longlasting one. I remember the goal with which I started and simply reorient myself and get going again. The turnaround mechanism works well in my car.

Unfortunately, people's lives or a society's life are not so easy to U-turn. I wonder sometimes if we have not forgotten our destination along the way. We continue puttering merrily along, but have passed by one of the key reasons that we are going at all.

We hear an awful lot about our society being built on freedom as its chief cornerstone. Personal freedom and rights are certainly a vital part of why our society exists and what we hope to accomplish with our society.

Nearly all of us can quote some of the inalienable rights that are not only our possession, but also the desire of every one of us. My rights, your rights, our rights and freedoms are in fact a part of both the destination and the means of travel for our "daily drive."

But, at the start that was not at all the sum and substance of where we are or were going. At least equal to freedom was mutual responsibility. We are supposed to care for each other. Equal to the question of "What will it do for my freedom?" was the question "What will it do to you?" It is not a mere fluke that "all were created equal" preceeds 'inalienable rights" in our declaration of release from Bri-

The founders of society knew that there can be no personal freedom, if all of the persons are not also concerned to see the assistance of all their neighbors.

It's interesting to me that Judaeo-Christian responsibility is the foundation for any real personal freedom.

I wonder if we got distracted.

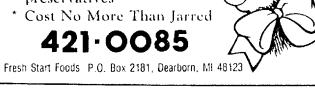

I wonder if we need to care a whole lot more about each

I wonder if we can make a U-turn on this street and think again about arriving at the place where all the people are our sisters and brothers.

It would be nice to find that address, wouldn't it?

October 12, 1989 Grosse Pointe News Community Journal from Oxford: A sample of dry, wry British humor Simulated by death and sidence: two shifted to Virginia Mineral valleys of the Bentley Brox

Joseph Samulowicz accepted an early retirement offer from Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan - and decided to travel. His first trip, a six-week study tour to Oxford, England, was to study the evolution of arts in England and British architec-

I was shopping one day, admiring the large selection of onions imported from Spain. Next to me was a distinguished British gentleman, probably in his 70s. He told me his wife wanted him to get some onions to go with steaks and asked me if the purple onions were good for that.

I wasn't sure, so I suggested he buy the yellow ones, otherwise his wife would be mad.

He looked me squarely in the eye and said, "She better not. I already bought her a 6-foot plot!" Such is English humor.

Another time I asked my architectural professor if he knew of an outdoor swimming pool that I could use one afternoon. He rubbed his chin thoughtfully, pondered and said that he didn't know of any.

I told him, jokingly, that since he wasn't the athletic type, he probably never went swimming. He smiled, looked at me, and said, "Yes and no; I do go swimming, but I swim in ideas!'

Upon enrollment with the study program, we were all issued student ID cards which would give us discounts to the theater, museums, restaurants and other attractions. One Wednesday afternoon I decided to go to London to see a matinee of a revived American musical, "Brigadoon." With a student ID card, the ticket was half price quite a bargain.

I showed the box office attendant my card. He looked at me quizically and said, "Student?" I replied, "Doing research."

I don't remember the answers, but the callers — and the answers — were dead serious.

Chipping Norton was a charming, unspoiled Cotswald village. We visited one of the old churches that had a graveyard alongside of it. The gravestones dated back to the 15th century. All of them had epitaphs inscribed on them. One of the When King Charles III came more thought-provoking ones

It gives a lot of food for thought. Some of the epitaphs were comical:

Dear friends I am going Where washing ain't done Or cooking or sewing: Don't mourn for me now Or weep for me never: For I go to do nothing Forever and ever!

This one was written by a hus-

One of the booklets given to us when we first checked into college, was a student guide book. written by the students of Oxford describing restaurants, pubs, sport facilities, entertainment, etc. The guidebook describes one of the American fast food restaurants: "There is little need to describe this ghastly convenience food nightmare." Students paid little heed, because the place was always jam packed.

Another one of our visits took us to the town of Cheltenham, known for its 19th century regency-style architecture. The town was originally famous for its tobacco industry. My friend lives in a 200-year-old cottage facing a farm. He took me for a ride through a beautiful country park that had a narrow road running through it. Various animals were roaming the park: sheep, lamb, cows and giraffes. It was like going on a safari.

The next day, we went to see the ruins of Croxden Abbey, built in 1176. The Abbey belonged to the Cistercian Order of monks. The Abbey specialized in breeding sheep for wool. The history of the Abbey was fully recorded by the monks. During the 14th century, the chronicle records various disasters, gales, floods, bad harvests, loss of livestock, damage to buildings, labor trouble and the Black Death.

During the 15th century, the discipline of the abbey became lax, and it fell into dissolution. It was eventually abandoned and only ruins remain.

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD THE PASTEBOARD PASTIME

A couple of weeks ago Woody Ott, Tournament Chairman for this year's Vincent Remey Motor City Regional, said "If you're such a wonderful columnist, why don't you write about our Cobo Hall tournament?" An inspiring challenge like that, I can't say no to.

I'll elaborate on Woody's favorite tournament topic in a moment, but that subject matter stirs my memories of Detroit's by gone days of Bridge. Therefore I'm going to first turn back the clock some thirty one years this Fall and invite you to reminisce with me.

While Vince missed being an event winner that year, he was still honored for his play. A hand he played, partnered with Helen Shambrom, in the mixed pair was selected as the best played of the tournament. This was well before the experts' bidding bags were packed with gadgets. Helen and Vince were both known for their basic approach, sound judgement and simple style. Their bidding on this fine hand is pretty standard for that day and this, but Vince's play was remarkable and earned everyone's credit.

FINANCING IS WHAT COUNTS

When you're selling a home, it's not the price that counts as much as the buyer's ability to pay. You can have the best house on the block for sale at a give-away price, but it will never sell to the prospect who loves it but cannot afford it - or thinks he can't afford it.

An experienced agency like Adlhoch & Associates, Realtors, on the other hand, can be expected to discuss personal matters such as financing with prospects. Prospects will tell our agent freely what they would hold back from you. During such a frank exchange, we have the ability and experience to suggest ways to make buying your home possible for such discouraged clients. At our office, we've saved many sales that both Buyer and Seller thought were impossible

We can suggest the advantages and drawbacks of 15 as opposed to 30-year mortgages; refer prospects to the bank that's most likely to lend buyers in their situation; and suggest ways of financing that weren't available a few years ago. It pays to sell through Adlhoch & Associates, Realtors.

If there is anything I can do to help you in the field of Real Estate, please phone or drop in at ADLHOCH & ASSOCIATES, REALTORS. We are located at 19515 Mack Avenue Grosse Pointe Woods. Phone 882-5200. No Obligation.

Grosse Pointe A Unique Community

A Cultural Cornucopia Appreciation of the arts begins at an early age for Grosse Pointe children. The public library, a division of the Grosse Pointe Public School System, offers, at no cost, a variety of children's reading programs at its three locations.

For adults, the library programs range from travel films to informative presentations on subjects of current interest. These, too, are free to residents of all the Grosse Pointes.

Another great source of local culture is the beautiful War Memorial Center, the former mansion of the Russell A. Alger family. With its subsequently added ballroom and theater overlooking Lake St. Clair, the center is a community attraction that rivals the many private clubs in the area. Here—open to all residents—are offered art classes and exhibits, lectures, concerts, plays, ballet and social dancing instruction, and children's theater, as well as membership in a long list of special-interest clubs whose focus is either cultural, informative or just plain fun.

A more recent addition to public property is the Edsel and Eleanor Ford House. Designed by architect Albert Kahn and supported by a $15 million endowment, this gracious replica of an English manor house is now open for tours and is used for meetings, fund-raising events and several series of "house" concerts.

CHILDREN GROW . . .

Houses don't. In this age of shrinking space, you'll find a 21 x 16.6 foot family room with sky lights and its own full bath perfect for your growing family. ## Responsibility

Another drinking incident has hit the Pointes.

This time, athletes were dismissed from teams for at least one week, and maybe more. This travesty of alcoholic bever ages being served at house parties or hall parties continues to linger and it's becoming too big to stop.

Peer pressure to drink is one thing, and poor judgment is another. Kids will be kids is not an excuse any longer. Lives of athletes and non-athletes are being jeopardized for a few hours of experimentation with

My first reaction to this fallen ax was, what if? What if the kids drive? What if the kids walk home? What if the kids pass out, fall down or just don't make their way home after a night of drinking? Kids want to be adults, but drinking is not a way to mature or be sophisticated. The novelty of drinking is an obvious draw to a party, but what do you gain? I think for every drink you take as a teenager, you take a step backward in maturation, reality and

The solution to stopping this is not apparent, but alcohol kills. That should be obvious enough, but it's not.

In this recent incident, athletes should have been reminded of the Standards for Athletes cards they signed before the season. By signing the card, the student-athlete pledges to abide by the rules and regulations as outlined in the North/South Standards and Policies for Athletes booklet. Those of you who got caught, do you recall signing that? Do you also recall that your parents had to sign that as well?

You've not only let down your fellow athletes, but you've turned your back on your parents and family, community and school. When the fans don't see you playing, they know it was you who may have been busted at a house party.

I know there are those who get away without any punishment, but as an athlete you have a responsibility, even after the bell rings, to your school.

The school system has a very effective policy intact and is constantly trying to educate the students on the abuse of alcohol and other drugs, but the consequences are not in place. A week off from a team is nothing. You could have been arrested, jailed, or worse yet, killed.

Some may argue that the school can't punish a kid when he was off school grounds or breaking the law outside of school hours. The Grosse Pointe School system has always contended that it cares about the kids on weekends, holidays and immediately after the bell rings. Opponents can continue to argue this point, but in the long run the kids aren't going to be as sharp in the classroom, field or life. Alcohol shouldn't be an excuse because Jane Doe is throwing a party, or because it's Friday night, or because "I bombed that test."

Those of you who drink are missing life. You're copping out of the reality of growing up and learning from mistakes, or having true fun. I for one, don't want to watch a game, a play or a concert knowing that the night before - or that same night - that you were a different person. Nobody likes a pretentious person, especially one that's inebriated.

The entire community must deal with this devastating problem, whether it happens at North, South, ULS, or any other school.

Kaiser eyes world offshore championship

By Rob Fulton

Sports Editor

It's been just shy of a year since former national and world champion powerboat racer Bob Kaiser sped through the waters in competition.

And after his 11-month layoff from the offshore racing circuit, Kaiser, of Grosse Pointe, will challenge others vying for the Trump World Offshore Power-boat Championship in Atlantic City, Oct. 17-19-21.

Kaiser will be racing a field of 25-30 competitors, with his toughest competition being mounted by the Italians.

Kaiser cited many reasons why he didn't race a full schedule this season, but primarily he couldn't race because he didn't have a boat. His former 38-foot catamaran had been sold, plus he picked additional support from offshore heavyweights Chevrolet and MerCruiser. In the interim, Kaiser, who is also supported by Cougar, waited anxiously for his new state-ofthe-art boat to be built, and the boat is so advanced that the details of it have been confined to only those people directly in-

After 16 months of planning, simulation and test runs, Kaiser will unveil his new 40-foot aluminum Cougar Catamaran next

"MerCruiser and Chevrolet combined efforts with my team to manufacture the fastest boat on the water," said Kaiser. "They have put a lot of stock in me and I'm the one who's got to put all our efforts where they belong and that's in the winner's circle.'

The winner's circle is not unknown territory to Kaiser, who won the 1987 National Championship US-1, was named the 1987 Offshore Racer of the Year and won the 1986 World Championship, among numerous other awards, including two victories in the last three years at the (Donald) Trump's Castle Casino Grand Prix.

"I've been fortunate in my racing career," said Kaiser, who has started three races this year. "I raced just three times this

North sports Lady Norsemen net big win over Lady Devils

By Rob Fulton Sports Editor

For years, the North/South girls' tennis matches have been decided in the final moments.

This season, however, the match was well in hand for the Lady Norsemen from the start as they won three of four singles matches and two of four doubles matches en route to a 5-3 win over South.

North, ranked No. 5 in the Class A polls, got victories from Jennifer Freidline (No. 1 singles), Jennifer Galvin (No. 2 singles), Nikki Tassos (No. 3 singles), Alicia Lynch and Amy Austin (No. 1 doubles) and Rebecca Damm and Joan Eve Malcoun (No. 3 doubles).

"It's never easy to beat South," said North coach Karen Cooksey, "because they always have tough teams, especially at doubles. This is the first time we've beaten them outright in years.

With the win, North moved to 9-3 overall.

"We've played some tough teams this year and South was one of them," said Cooksey. "If the girls don't have good competition, then they can't become better players.'

They were good enough to take another Macomb Area Conference American Division crown, however.

Winners in the conference tourney were Freidline, Becky Devine (No. 4 singles), Lynch and Austin, Barb Thomas and Cristine Bermudez (No. 2 doubles). Damm and Malcoun, and Marimartha Barlow and Erin McHugh (No. 4 doubles).

The season has turned into one of attrition for Frank Sumbera's Norsemen football team.

North, playing with substitutes and guys out of position, was handed a 31-8 loss on Homecoming by the powerful Stallions of Sterling Heights.

North, 3-3 overall, has a half dozen starters out on both offense and defense and that, according to Sumbera, doesn't help a struggling team.

"The problem offensively is that we've got guys playing in new spots and guys hurt," he "We haven't played one game this season with all our starters and that's really thrown us off. We've had to make a lot of personnel changes and we're not deep enough to handle it."

Despite the loss, Sumbera remains optimistic.

"This is the best I've felt all season long and we lost," he said. "Fraser beat Romeo and that put us right back into the thick of things in the White Division race. We lost a non-league game to Sterling Heights, but now we've got a shot at a piece of the White Division pie.'

Sumbera and the Norsemen will have to cut their own piece, however, with league games remaining against Utica and Rose-

"It's in our hands," he said. "You never like to have to rely on help from other teams, but after we lost to Romeo the only way we were going to get back in it was with some help. We're in control of our season.

"Our defense was on the field too long and our offense wasn't on it long enough," said Sumbera. "We needed a big play from our defense and we didn't get it, but we also didn't get it from our offense.

Under the direction of quarterback Scott Bernhardt, North had 234 yards of offense, including 14 first downs.

"We were moving the ball, but we just didn't execute," Sumbera said. "We came out in the second half and had two first downs right away, but fumbled the ball. You can't win if you don't have the ball."

Sterling Heights took a 17-0 lead at the half and went up 23-0 in the third quarter. Bernhardt got North on the board with a 1yard sneak on the first play of the fourth quarter, and then hit Ed Barbieri for the 2-point conversion.

Sterling Heights, which had 429 total yards, ended the scoring from 1-yard out.

"We couldn't contain Demetral (Scott, the Sterling Heights quarterback)," said Sumbera. We played defense the way it's suppose to be played, but not consistently. Their backs and quarterback would bust through the line either bouncing or stumbling because we hit them, but we weren't wrapping up and tac-

The Lady Norsemen avenged their only defeat of the season by whipping Utica, 46-30, at home.

North's defense pulled through once again, led by Kelly Kunkel and Katie Loeher. Noelle Cormier, another defensive standout, had four steals and rounded out her game with eight points and four assists.

Melissa Champine led North with 14 points and Kim Reiter popped for 13 points and 10 rebounds.

Earlier in the week, every player contributed to North's 40-21 win over South Lake.

Before leaving the game, Reiter scored 12 points and Lori Haskell came off the bench to net four.

North is 9-1 overall and 4-1 in the MAC's White Division.

The win still cludes the Norsemen golf team.

At Lochmoor, North looked for its first win of the season, but came up short to Stevenson, 174-181.

One day before that loss, North was outshot by three strokes in another loss to Stevenson, 174-177.

The state regional meet is Oct.

Swimming

North shelled Utica Ford II, 103-68, as Jennifer Paloucci won the 500 freestyle and 100 breaststroke.

Karen Dundon had a seasonbest in the 100 free, and Hope Fenton took third in the 500 free. Linda Kang finished third in the 200 individual medley and Cheryl Jamerino was third in the 50 free.

North, South earn split in annual cross country clash

By Rob Fulton

Sports Editor The North/South rivalry on the cross country course remains intact, but North's Scott Collins and South's Mark Sonnenberg are doing what they can to steal the thunder.

Collins and Sonnenberg ran neck-and-neck through the 3.1mile course, but it was Sonnenberg and the Blue Devils prevailing, 23-34.

In the girls' race, the Lady Norsemen, ranked in the state's top five, took the top five spots to devastate the Lady Devils, 15-41, for the second consecutive what he wanted, but not without didn't deserve to win. a struggle.

"I think our team ran a good race," said North's first-year head coach Pat Wilson. "We ran a competitive race, but we couldn't match their depth. South is a very strong team."

Sonnenberg and Collins have mounted a perpetual battle that time it had beaten North, as began last spring in a track well, and was its fifth victory meet. Sonnenberg beat Collins in down to the traditional one-point the mile run, but this was time for Collins to even the score.

"I wanted this one pretty tor," said South coach Tom Wise. bad," said Collins. "This was my "I told the guys that we hadn't chance to get him back. I ran as good a race as I possibly could course and that it would be nice have, but it wasn't enough. Mark ran a great race."

According to Sonnenberg, he Well, the guys gave Wise did run a great race, but he

> 'Scott ran a better race," said Sonnenberg, "and he deserved to win it. But, all I can say is I beat him and that's all that matters.'

It also mattered that Collins wasn't familiar with the course.

"I went about 20 yards out of my way," Collins explained. "I went outside the cones and then I had to sprint to to catch up, but I didn't have much left. I ran a really good race, but I don't want to say he beat me just because I ran the wrong way. He simply beat me."

The win for the South boys also marked only their third in 21 meets with North.

"It's always nice to beat North," said Wise. "We've finally put together two wins in a row over them and that's a big step for us, too. Right now, however, we're more concerned with trying to run for regional position.

For Wilson, the race could have been tighter.

"I'm disappointed we lost, but I'm more disappointed that we didn't make it closer." he said. 'We got a good effort from everyone, but we could have gotten closer with our times.'

Could you beat them if you ran again today?

"I think on another day it would be closer," admitted Wilson, "but I'm not so sure we could beat them."

Collins was followed by Tom Gauerke (17:27), Dave Meda (17:57), Jim Moore (18:34) and John Kolinski (18:57).

The competition is just as stiff for the girls, but this year both coaches knew it wouldn't come difference.

"North is a very, very superb team," said South girls' coach Steve Zaranek. "Our girls had a very competitive race, also, but we don't have the front-runners like North does. We've got a lot of depth, but we just couldn't compete with Charles' (Buhagiar, North's coach) top five."

Buhagiar's top five finishers on his now 11-0 team were Nikki VanOppens (19:53), Laurin Schultz (20:15), Jenny McLalin (20:18), Hope Peters (20:55) and Anne Marie Scallen (20:56).

"We split the meet with them," said Zaranek, "but when they've got the front-runners it makes all the difference in the world, and that's why North is a top team in the state."

Buhagiar knows it, too.

"Yes, we are having a good season," he said. "But we use this South meet as a barometer of where we are and how far we've come this season. When you beat a team like South, you know you've beaten one of the better teams in the state."

South, now 5-1, didn't take a top-five finish, but did have Erica Mondro (21:03), Claudine DuPont (21:10), Debbie Solterisch (21:14), Susannah Mc-Andrew (21:25) and Jenny Williams (21:49) take the sixth through ninth, and 11th positions. Freshman Mary Rowe finished 12th for South (21:51).

Even though North's girls' team is stronger than South this season, Laurin Schultz wasn't taking the Devils lightly.

"Whenever you run against South, no matter how good your team is, there's always a bit of uncertainty," she said. "South has such a tradition and good reputation that you never take them lightly."

But winning sure added a feather to the cap, didn't it?

North's Laurin Schultz (foreground) and Nikki VanOppens led . the Lady Norsemen to their second straight victory over South.

'Not just a feather, a large feather," said Schultz, who like Nikki VanOppens raced in their last dual meet against South.

"The first thing I thought of after I crossed the finish line was. 'This is the last time I'll face South one-on-one," recalled VanOppens. "We've had some great races over the years, but this one is even nicer because it's my senior year and we won one more time.'

Romp over Anchor Bay puts Devils in driver's seat

Five rungs of the Eastern Michigan League ladder have been climbed and now only one stands in the way of the South football team winning its second outright league title in three thing we got."

South, which last won the league championship in 1987. clinched at least a tie for the title with a 28-0 feathering of the Anchor Bay Tars Oct. 7.

With a win at Homecoming over East Detroit Oct. 14, the Blue Devils won't have to share the trophy.

"This is just what we wanted to do," said South coach Jon Rice, whose team has now won five straight. "We've clinched the tie, but we would like to win it outright. # Knights cut down, 6-3

By Rob Fulton Sports Editor

Twenty-nine seconds is all it took for previously winless Birch Run to hand the University Liggett School football team its second loss of the season, 6-3, on Oct. 7.

The Knights' defense did everything it could, but eventually snapped when Birch Run quarterback Dale Bolton hit Larry Pagel with an 11-yard scoring strike in the waning moments of the game.

ULS, which held a 3-0 lead on Mike Whelan's 20-yard field goal in the third quarter, held Birch Run four of the five times it was inside the ULS 10, but the fifth time was too much to ask.

"We just weren't getting any defensive pass rush," said ULS coach Bob Newvine, whose team is now 4-2 overall. "We couldn't expect our defensive backfield to keep us in the game the entire time. The defensive backs shouldn't be held responsible for the touchdown because we weren't getting to the quarterback.

'You're asking a lot of your defense when you face five situations inside your own 10 yard line," said Newvine. "The kids were tired because most of them play both ways, but they shouldn't have been put in that situation that many times."

Birch Run took over on the 50yard line after recovering a ULS fumble with two minutes to play, and kept the drive alive by converting on a third-and-11

ULS, which held Birch Run to 199 yards, stepped out of its traditional 5-2 mode to take on Birch Run's run-and-shoot of-

"We had to go to a 4-3 defense in order to handle their trap-andshoot offense." said Newvine. "The kids really adjusted to it well and stopped the run, but not the pass. Birch Run was forced to the air where they found some success.'

But not a lot of success because Michael Barnes picked off two passes.

"Defensively we played our hearts out," said Newvine, "we played too well to lose.'

Offensively, the Knights ran up only 149 yards and had three turnovers. Quarterback Jason Drook, who threw for 42 yards, engineered some drives but the fumbles aborted the drives.

Kevin Whitfield, who led the defense with 14 tackles, compiled 54 yards on 14 carries for the Knights.

"We moved the ball all day, but hurt ourselves by not hanging on to it," said Newvine. "After it was 6.3, we felt that if we could have gotten Michael (Whelan) to about the 30, we could have tied it and gone for overtime but we didn't get down there. It was defensive war, and unfortunately we didn't come out

1989 nte News Hunting season brings fun, Lyme disease

The pleasant weather during summer and fall allows the pleasure of outdoor activities, but these activities may also expose the hunter or camper to Lyme disease.

Lyme disease, which may involve the skin, joints, nervous system and heart over a period of several years, is caused by Borrelia burgdorferi.

This spirochete is a type of bacteria which is transmitted to humans by the bite of an infected deer tick as it takes a blood meal. Lyme disease is currently the most common tick born illness in the United States, with more than 5,000 cases reported in 1988.

The syndrome is named afer the Connecticut town in which Lyme disease was originally described when an unusual number of cases of what appeared to be rheumatoid arthritis were actually found to be Lyme arthritis.

In the United States, most cases of the disease occur in the Northeast, along the Pacific coast, and in the Upper Midwest, especially Minnesota and Wisconsin. Lyme disease is also found abroad, with cases reported from Europe, China, Russia and Australia. The number of reported cases has been increasing each year in the United States, and a total of 43 states have reported cases.

Most cases of Lyme disease reported thus far in Michigan have been acquired in the Upper Peninsula, although in recent years it has also appeared in the Lower Penin-

Most cases of Lyme disease are acquired during the summer and fall when the deer tick is active and seeking a blood meal. The signs and symptoms of Lyme disease are many and varied, and may closely resemble those of other illnesses.

The disease occurs in

Stage I may occur from several days to several weeks after the initial tick bite, and consists of flu-like symptoms including headache, muscle and joint aches and pains, fatigue and fever, in addition to the most characteristic feature of Lyme disease - a lesion known as erythema chronicum migrans, or ECM.

The red, circular, expanding skin rash occurs at the site of the tick bite, is neither painful or itch, and often appears as a "bull's eye" with a red ring surrounding a central clear area.

About one half of Lyme disease patients go on to develop multiple skin lesions distant from the original tick bite. If Lyme disease is untreated at this early stage, patients may go on to develop further stages, despite resolution of the original symptoms.

Stage II may manifest as involvement of the heart, including an irregular heart beat or involvement of the nervous system, including headaches and meningitis.

All of these manifestations of Lyme disease may be accompanied by severe systemic symptoms, such as fatigue, fevers and generalized muscle and joint aches. Approximately 50 percent of patients subsequently go on to develop Stage III disease, which consists of arthritis of varying severity; 10 percent of patients will develop a chronic, severe form of destructive arthritis. In addition, recent reports have suggested that some forms of chronic neurologic disease, such as dementia, may be caused by Lyme disease spirochete.

Since the symptoms resemble those of many other illnesses, recognition and diagnosis of patients with Lyme has sometimes been delayed. Tests for diagnosis of Lyme disease currently rest on detection of antibodies in the blood directed against the spirochete. However, the body's production of these antibodies is usually delayed, often for several weeks.

This quite frequently results in falsely negative tests in Stage I disease, the time at which accurate diagnosis is important. Early antibiotic treatment of early disease hastens resolution of ECM and its associated symptoms and prevents the occurrence of the later, more serious complications of Lyme disease.

Oral therapy with tetracycline or doxycycline (or a penicillin derivative for children and pregnant women) is given for Stage I disease.

Intravenous or intramuscular antibiotics are required for later stages. Penicillin or more recently, ceftriaxone, have been given for the cardiac, neurologic and arthritic complications of Lyme disease. However, treatment of these later stages is not always effective, especially in patients with severe arthritis.

Prevention of Lyme disease consists of minimizing one's exposure to the bite of the deer tick. The ticks are most frequently encountered in wooded, grassy areas, especially in tall grass or low brush. During excursions in these areas, long pants tucked into socks or secured with rubber bands should be worn with a long-sleeved shirt; light-colored clothing facilitates detection of ticks and tightly woven fabrics deter the ticks from gaining access to the skin.

Insect repellant containing DEET may also be used. However, caution should be used when applying DEET containing compounds to small children since neurologic complications have been reported; in children, repellant should be applied to clothing, not skin, and products containing less than 15 percent DEET are preferable.

After outdoor exposure in an area where ticks may be encountered, it is important to visually inspect the skin for the presence of attached ticks. Careful inspection is necessary because of the very small size of the tick, which is not much larger than a poppyseed, even when engorged with blood.

If an attached tick is found, it should be removed with tweezers by grasping it as closely to the head as possible and pulling it gently straight away from the skin without squeezing its abdominal area.

In addition, outdoor pets should be fitted with tick collars and inspected for ticks before being allowed indoors; unattached ticks may move from pet to owner and attach.

Should a tick bite be noticed, the site should be observed carefully. If a rash or flu-like symptoms develop, a physician should be consulted promptly. Although the late complications of Lyme disease may be debilitating, preventative measures and early diagnosis and treatment can prevent their occurrence.

Common questions, common answers

From time to time, I will write about some of the most often asked questions about dieting and healthy eating behaviors, and will attempt to answer them to the best I can. If you have any questions or comments, please write me in care of the Grosse Pointe News.

Fad dieting

Q: Everyone is aware that fad diets are dangerous and should be avoided, but I'm unclear as to exactly what constitutes a "fad

A: Fad diets are characterized primarily by a daily food intake that fails to meet the body's nu- crabby dieter tritional needs. Many times food lists come from one or two food groups, at the exclusion of others. Many fad diets have dangerously low calorie intake. They may produce excessive weight loss that is mainly water and can often induce a breakdown of important muscle tissue.

I recommend that you examine your current program, or any program that you may be considering by asking the following questions:

Does the diet meet all of the body's nutritional needs? Is it made up of fresh foods available at the local grocery store? Does it provide an adequate volume and variety of familiar foods? Will I receive guidance and education relating to changing negative eating behaviors? If the answer to any of these questions is no, you may be looking at a fad diet, or at least a questionable program.

Run-down

Q: I've noticed that often while I'm dieting, I have almost no energy and tend to become short-tempered and rather difficult to live with. What causes this problem?

A: Many diets are concerned with limiting calories at the expense of necessary nutrients that help you maintain a good level of energy and emotional equilibrium. The only way around this loss of energy and equilibrium is to focus on nutrients, not calories and to see that you are eating a balanced diet.

Eat Smart

A sound and balanced diet will actually help to increase your energy level while you are losing weight and give you a sense of well-being. If you are presently experiencing loss of energy and or an increase in negative behavior responses, I would seriously suggest you curb your diet plan until you can correct either or both of these problems.

Feast or famine?

Q: I seem to be able to go all day without eating, or I'll eat a little something and still feel great. I don't feel hungry at all, but when I finally do sit down in the evening and eat dinner, I can't seem to get satisfied? What do you recommend?

By Mary Busse

A: What you're experiencing in the evening is a drastic drop in your blood sugar concentration. When this happens, the brain sends signals for you to eat. The brain knows that the fastest way for you to elevate the blood sugar level is to eat something that will give you a quick

Often times this is in the form of sweets or over-processed foods that will race through your system, elevate your sugar level and quickly leave the system. As it leaves the system, the blood sugar level can drop, leaving you once again hungry and the cycle starts all over.

By learning to eat on time and following a schedule, plus selecting appropriate foods that have "staying power," you will maintain a more constant blood sugar level. Eating at fairly consistent times and choosing the right foods is the only way to eliminate the cravings and extreme hunger you experience.

Dieting and dining out

Dieting and exercise

Q: Is there really a connection between dieting and exercising? I am getting mixed messages. Some diet programs say no exercise, some exercise people say not to worry about changing eating habits, just exercise. Who should I listen to? A: First of all, yes you can lose weight without exercise, and yes some people can lose weight by exercising and not changing eating behaviors.

The next time your breakfast includes a glass of orange juice or half a grapefruit, don't make a face if it has a slightly bitter

Those compounds which give citrus fruit some of its bitterness may also offer increased protection against cancer.

A new research project, funded by the American Institute for Cancer Research, is studying "limonoids," the compounds responsible for some of the bitter taste in citrus fruits. This research, conducted by Luke K.T. Lam, Ph.D., a researcher at the Gray Freshwater Biological Institute of the University of Minnesota, is examining how these compounds may stimulate the body's natural defenses against cancer.

Scientists know that each day we are exposed to a variety of cancer-causing substances in our environment. These potential carcinogens come from many common sources, including radiation, smoking, industrial chemicals, pollution and even sunlight.

However, most of us don't get cancer because our bodies are able to remove or fight these poisons before they damage cells and lead to cancer.

In one of his studies, Lam found that certain compounds in green coffee beans could prevent breast cancer in laboratory animals.

Although humans don't eat green coffee beans, Lam discovered that compounds with similar structural features were also found in foods we do eat: lemons, mals. oranges, limes and grapefruits. Preliminary tests indicated that looking for the most bitter orthese compounds, called limo- ange or grapefruit at your supernoids, could stimulate the detoxi- market. And it's certainly too fication system.

Super Shape, owned and operated by Grosse Pointe's Kathleen Koerner, will be offering early morning and lunch hour "No

The old "I can't find the time" Excuse" aerobic classes at its brand new fitness center on Mack at 9 Mile.

> "These sessions have a special format designed for the working person without a minute to spare," says Koerner. "The 45minute class will give you a great workout and still allow enough time to shower and get back to work.'

The eight-week sessions beging Oct. 23, with classes being held Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6-6:45 a.m.; Mondays and Wednesdays from 12:30-1:15 p.m.

A healthy snack will be available to participants after class.

Reservations for either session are required by Oct. 20, by calling 772-9470. The first two weeks of both sessions are being offered free of charge, so there are no more excuses.

The Missing LINC

LINC is a non-profit organization whose purpose is to place goods no longer needed by individuals and businesses into the hands of metropolitan Detroit charitable agencies. If you have any items no longer of use to you, Operation LINC knows who can and will use them. Please call LINC at 882-6100.

Spread the word! Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital has requested a GOLFCART which will be used as a mini-bookmobile. It will make the distribution of books to patient wards spread out over 522 acres much easier! Detroit Area Agency On Aging assists senior citizens in maintaining homes, and provides for safety and well being. Donations of REFRIGERATORS, GAS STOVES, and GAS DRYERS would be put to good use by these folks. Go directly to jail!" "Checkmate!" Many organizations have requested GAMES: checkers, chess, board games, table tennis, pool tables, pinball machines, and sporting equipment. Are there any unwanted Nintendo or other video game systems lying around? They'll use those too. What do WARMING TRAYS, a MEAT SLICER and a REFRIGERATOR have in common? They are needed at soup kitchens. The United Sisters of Charity would be thankful for the refrigerator and People In Faith United will be using the trays and

CLOTHING of all kinds are always needed: childrens' infants', womens', and particularly, mens'. Child Family Center, Lula Bell Stewart Center, Inc., El Buen Pastor United Methodist Church and Coalition on Temporary Shelter are just a few of the organizations among which the clothes would be distributed. FROM SCRAPS TO SKILLS. A drapery company donated fabric scraps to Operation LINC. We matched the donations to an agency that teaches parenting skills. The agency's clients transformed ther scraps into colorful quilts, which they sold in a raffle. The money was used for summer outings with their children. What have YOU got that can be put to good quickly for this extraordinary dog. Through no fault of his own, the man who adopted him and was supposed to give him a good home has decided he no longer wants a dog and has given us one scant week (at the time you read this, it will be a matter of days)to find a home for him or he will take him to animal control. A neutered male, this delightful dog is AKC, housebroken, affectionate and well behaved. We can't understand why his adoptive owner is relinquishing him, but we definitely DON'T want him to go to a shelter where he will be frightened and possibly become ill. For more information on this 'One in a Million" dog, please call 773-0954.

People plus Pets

Medical experts say people with pets are less likely to suffer from stress-related diseases than people who live without the healthy companionship of a loving animal. These findings come as no surprise to pet owners. They know how much a good friend adds to their lives. So give yourself some of the best medicine available. Bring a dog or cat home, and enjoy your new pet in good health.
