

Transplanted Pointer survives Bay Bridge during quake

By Tina Hondras Mayk
Special Writer

Former Grosse Pointe John Sparks left his San Francisco law office one afternoon last week about 10 minutes to 5 "to try to get home for the first pitch of the World Series."

Moments later, the drama that devastated the beautiful San Francisco Bay area would unfold all around him. Sparks had just entered the first section of the Bay Bridge "when everything went nuts."

His gray Dodge minivan began rocking back and forth "so much that I really thought it was going to tip over." The car felt "like all four tires had blown," he said.

But Sparks knew instantly what actually had happened — that his greatest fear in 20 years of commuting across this 5-mile bridge was coming true:

"I've always been fearful that I would be caught on the Bay Bridge during commuter traffic during a major earthquake."

Sparks described the Bay Bridge as built in two sections, with a tunnel in the center. He was heading east to his Oakland Hills home in the East Bay, traveling on the bridge's lower level.

"My first thought was 'I don't want to go across this.'" But cars were in line behind him and traffic was backed up. "I was committed."

He made his way to the tunnel, where "everything stopped. I sat in the darkened tunnel for about 45 minutes listening to the radio."

Finally police arrived to tell him he'd have to turn around; that the bridge had collapsed. "You've got to be kidding," he said.

Traffic was gradually diverted to the upper deck moving west-bound. Sparks was once again in the city, and it was now about 6 p.m. He drove into the Marina district, past collapsed buildings and fires, winding his way to the Golden Gate Bridge.

Traffic here moved "pretty well," probably because he was among the first to have been turned away from the Bay Bridge, he surmised. He traveled north to Marin County and next headed toward the Richmond San Rafael Bridge, where traffic again was not much of a problem.

By this time, he was on the east side of the Bay Bridge. There he met with a "massive tie-up," and sat for another 45 minutes until he could complete the journey home, about 8:15 p.m.

Sparks, 48, has made the 20-mile drive from his home to his San Francisco office countless times since he moved to California in January 1967, following graduation from the University of Michigan Law School.

A 1959 graduate of Grosse Pointe High School (and commencement speaker), he maintains strong ties to the area, re-

Scary things keep cropping up in the Pointes these days. Maybe the arrival of Halloween has something to do with it. At right, Diane Wachter starts the hearts of those who dare to walk through the "Halls of Nightmares" at St. Paul School now through Oct. 30. Appeals court puts Farms judicial election on hold

By Dan Jarvis
Staff Writer

Once again, the results of the Grosse Pointe Farms judicial primary have been put on hold — this time by the Michigan Court of Appeals.

Responding to motions of a stay of proceedings and a request for immediate consideration by candidate Paul Gracey, the Court of Appeals granted a stay Monday, Oct. 23 of all proceedings regarding both the outcome of the primary and the election Nov. 7 for the city's municipal judge.

Lawrence Friedman, an attorney representing Gracey, said the Appeals Court, in granting the stay, has set aside time to consider Gracey's appeal to the decision of a Circuit Court judge who ordered a new absentee vote from the Aug. 8 judicial primary.

The court is also expected to rule on the validity of the certification of the new absentee vote which placed candidate Eugene Casazza as challenger to incumbent judge Matthew Rumora and removed Gracey from the running.

The stay also puts on hold any action regarding absentee ballot printing and distribution for the Nov. 7 election, as it applies to the Farms judicial race.

The Appeals Court earlier denied a stay of proceedings after Gracey filed a request pertaining to the new absentee vote, ordered by judge Richard Kaufman of the 3rd Judicial District. The Appeals Court, however, granted a stay when Kaufman certified the new absentee vote, which he ordered earlier this month.

In an answer to Gracey's motion to the court, Casazza's attorney John Jacobs urged the Appeals Court to reject the motion for a stay. Jacobs, in the document, said "Gracey has made various outrageous claims about James Killeen, Wayne County clerk ... and for his own reasons, Paul Gracey wants his cake, wants to eat it, and wants the voters to wait until it bakes."

Casazza's attorney also said, "it is hardly a matter for this court (Court of Appeals) to disrupt the general election of Nov. 7, 1989 to give the wrongdoer his chance to further disrupt the process ... If the court grants the stay ... then the court rewards whatever wrongdoing the Graceys are guilty of and compounds the catastrophe ..."

Farms City Clerk Richard Solak said the city sent out 203 absentee ballots for the Nov. 7 election, but upon notification of the stay is refraining from sending out additional ballots until learning the outcome of the case.

Gary Gordon, assistant attorney general representing the State Board of Canvassers, said in a brief filed to the Appeals Court that the position advocated by Gracey is correct and he does not believe the decisions by Kaufman regarding the new absentee vote and certification are correct, Friedman said.

In a notice from the Appeals Court, all parties involved in the litigation are ordered to appear in court Wednesday morning (Oct. 25), when a decision is expected.

The parties expected in court include Casazza, Gracey, representatives from the county and state boards of canvassers, the Grosse Pointe Farms city clerk and attorneys for all parties.

Pointer of Interest Ralph E. Cross

Anyone who knows anything about machine tools knows of Ralph E. Cross.

To be exact, they know of his company, The Cross Co., now Cross & Trecker Corp.

A list of awards and accomplishments during his nearly 60 year career would fill a book. Most recently, as a way of giving something back to his alma mater, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and the field that has given so much to him, he established the Ralph E. and Eloise F. Cross Professorship of Manufacturing Technology at MIT.

"It's a continuation of my life's work," he said, describing his life's work as "designing and building machines to improve the productivity of workers in America and across the world."

His life's work was almost chosen for him when his father, Milton started The Cross Co. at 12 Atwater Street — land upon which the Renaissance Center now stands — in 1898.

The company made brass goods, ship's steering wheels, chandeliers and the like before branching out into marine boat engines by 1907, then during the Depression when pleasure boat engines weren't in high demand. And the once-thriving company had only the three Cross men as employees, they once again regrouped and moved their efforts into machine tools.

The following year, the company moved to Bellevue and Mack, which turned out to be Group calls for gypsy moth program — before it's too late

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

"They're ugly as sin. It's like something out of Revelations. These things were everywhere. It's hopeless. You cannot imagine such devastation."

This wasn't a worldwide invasion of biblical locusts being described by Ann Stricker of the Grosse Pointe Shores Beautification Commission. Rather it was what she experienced early this summer at her and her husband's tree farm in Clare County. And it's not locusts she's talking about; it's gypsy moths.

Clare County has been experiencing heavy defoliation of its trees by gypsy moth larvae, causing all kinds of damage and nuisances, and members of the Grosse Pointe Shade Tree Council are afraid the same thing will happen here.

Chairwoman Jean Rice reported at the council's meeting Oct. 18 that 173 male gypsy moths were captured this summer in Grosse Pointe Woods. While traps had been set by the council and the state Department of Agriculture in the Woods and the Shores, only flies were caught in the Shores traps.

Rice said she wasn't sure what went wrong with the Shores traps. Each trap contains a synthetic pheromone that attracts male gypsy moths looking for a mate. When a moth enters the green traps that look like milk cartons with a porch-like roof halfway up, it is killed by a weak poison in the pheromone.

The pheromone is designed to attract only gypsy moths, so something must have contaminated the attractant causing flies to be attracted to the Shores traps.

The Department of Agriculture placed one of its 2,350 traps statewide at the lower end of Grosse Pointe Woods. That trap caught 40 gypsy moths. The remaining Woods traps placed at the request of the city and the Shade Tree Council collected the 173 moths reported.

Dr. Stewart Gage, a Michigan State University entomologist who addressed the council last week, said serious defoliation of trees occur in areas where 200 moths or more are caught in a trap. The state average in 1988 was 63 moths per trap.

Besides the one Department of Agriculture trap that caught 40 moths, the other traps in the Woods varied from a low of two to a high of 22 moths.

"It is here, but we don't know where," Rice said of the gypsy moth. "It's a devastating insect, much more than Dutch elm disease because it eats everything."

The Shade Tree Council is calling for a gypsy moth trapping and monitoring program for all the Pointes so that the moth's devastation does not take the community by surprise and, possibly, so that it can be prevented.

Gage, who helped the Department of Agriculture set up a statewide trapping and computerized monitoring program, said inaction can lead a community to waking up one summer and finding the problem has become a crisis.

Such was the case in Clare County.

Residents there shouldn't have been surprised. Neighboring Midland County, southeast of Clare County, has been experiencing a devastating gypsy moth population for years. In fact, Midland voters approved a .3 mill tax just to fight the gypsy moths. The battle is starting to have some impact, Gage said.

The gypsy moth devastation is spreading in a radius around Midland and is threatening much of the center of the Lower Peninsula. Clare County should See GYPSY MOTH, page 10A

It's more than a matter of party politics in Grosse Pointe City's race for mayor

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

It began with a dispute over Grosse Pointe City's centennial, and now Councilwoman Myrna Smith is going on to challenge the mayor for his job Nov. 7.

During the summer, first-term Councilwoman Smith accused Mayor Lorenzo D. Browning of opposing her planned 1989 centennial party for the city in August because of her plans to run against him for mayor. While the City Council ended the centennial dispute by saying 1993 was the appropriate year for the 100th birthday, Grosse Pointe City voters are the only ones who can settle the dispute over who will be mayor.

Lorenzo D. Browning

Lorenzo "Red" Browning, 75, has held public office in Grosse Pointe City for 18 years. He was first appointed to a vacant City Council seat in 1971, and held that seat continuously until he was appointed to fill a vacant mayoral seat in 1983. He has never been challenged as mayor.

Browning has been a City resident since 1960. Now retired, he has nearly four decades of experience as a business executive. He served a executive vice president of the T.H. Browning S.S. Co., president of the Island of Bob-Lo Co., assistant division manager of the Lake Division of Republic Steel Corp. in the 1950s, was executive vice president and chief financial officer of Datavision Inc. and has been an executive committee board member of Maccabees Mutual life Insurance Co. since 1961.

Browning's campaign slogan is "Keep a good thing going" and he's "Committed to preserving Grosse Pointe's traditional values," according to his campaign literature.

His main goal as mayor if re-elected is to maintain the high standard of living and quality of life in Grosse Pointe. He said he believes his administration and the city workers and managers are doing a "pretty good job" of meeting the residents' needs.

A key concern in the city, Browning said, is its aging infrastructure, which includes water, sewerage and roads. He said the city has continued with its yearly road resurfacing program and plans to continue the road resurfacing in years to come. He also points out that the city used new technology to put a lining inside some aging sewer lines. The lining saved money by eliminating the need to excavate and replace piping.

Opponents of the current city administration say the city lacks future planning, but Browning disagrees. He points out that all capital projects, such as road and sewer work, are planned far enough in advance so that they can be budgeted. He said the city keeps track of every piece of machinery and knows when the equipment will need to be replaced.

He said the recent purchase of a new fire truck was planned in advance. It was no surprise, he said. "We do know what we're doing years down the road," he said. "We have to make a budget."

Opponents say the city under Browning does not communicate well with the residents. Browning said he is unaware of any resident whose complaint has not been followed up by the city. He said the city puts out an annual report on what the city has done in the past year and what needs to be done.

He said he has been really happy with the current City Council and encourages the incumbents' re-election.

Myrna Smith

Smith, 50, was elected to her first term on the City Council two years ago. With half her term still before her, she does not have to give up her seat to run for mayor.

Smith is challenging the mayor of six years because she believes the city is ready for a change. She said she has new ideas to offer.

Her new ideas include forming a beautification commission so that residents could be awarded for improvements to their property.

She also wants to see that the board members of the Grosse Pointe Foundation be controlled by residents, not elected officials. Currently, the foundation board is made up of the City Council and mayor. Smith resigned her seat on the foundation board at the City Council's October meeting, she said.

Smith also said that if she is elected mayor, she will have the city publish a quarterly newsletter so that residents can keep up with what the city is doing and plans to do.

To protect the way the community looks, Smith said she would like to see greater enforcement of certificate-of-occupancy laws for income properties to make sure the units are kept up to code. She said she would also like to study Grosse Pointe Farms' new exterior maintenance ordinance as a means of forcing property owners to keep up their homes and prevent blight.

She believes the city should be engaged in more future planning. Also, future planning should include trash disposal and recycling, she said.

She would also go over the city's annual budget carefully looking for where money can be saved. She said that while she is not a financial person, if elected as mayor she will seek to have a financial expert appointed to fill her spot on the council.

Smith, as well as one of the City Council challengers, is making a campaign issue out of the possible future expansion of the Kroger store in the Village. She fears Kroger will purchase some of Maire Elementary School's playground so that the grocery store can expand. She said Kroger recently submitted and withdrew a purchase agreement to the board of education. She said she would oppose any expansion of Kroger if it meant using school property.

(Browning, however, responded to this issue, stating that the matter has not come before the council. He said that because school property is being discussed, the matter is between the school district and Kroger at this point and not with the City.)

Smith said she should be elected because she has leadership experience and offers voters a choice.

"I care about the community a great deal," she said, "not only as a 24-year resident, but also as a Realtor."

She is an associate broker with Bolton-Johnston with a total of 11 years in real estate. She is president of the Family Life Education Council (FLEC) and has lived in the city since 1965.

She has bachelor's and master's degrees in English from the University of Michigan.

Smith said the main thing is for elected officials to be responsive to what the people want.

Farms doctor's house ransacked; loss at $7,000

After being away for a day and a half performing surgery last week, a Grosse Pointe Farms doctor returned home to find the house had been ransacked and some $7,000 worth of possessions stolen.

The burglary and theft at the Moross home occurred sometime between 10 a.m. Oct. 18 and 8 p.m. Oct. 19. It is believed the burglar got into the home through a door leading from the garage. The doctor reported to police the house had been turned upside down.

Taken were a stereo, speakers, sterling silver set, videocassette recorder, jewelry, a personal computer and a cordless phone.

Halloween hours set by Park City Council

Halloween hours have been set again this year by the Grosse Pointe Park City Council.

At the advice of the Park Public Safety Department, the council Monday night set the trick-or-treating hours at 5 to 8 p.m. While the hours are effective only in the Park, they are nevertheless reasonable hours for parents and little goblins throughout the Pointes to follow.

A dozen or more police cars will be on patrol in the Park on Halloween, and the new Public Safety Auxiliary officers will be on the beat. During trick-or-treating and after, the Park and other public safety departments will inspect candy.

The Woods Public Safety Department provided the following guidelines by the National Confectioners Association:

- Wear light-colored clothing short enough to prevent tripping, and add reflectors.
- Make sure your children can see well through face masks.
- Accompany young children.
- Go out in daylight, if possible, and carry a flashlight when it's dark.

• Stay within the neighborhood and only visit homes you know.

- Watch for traffic.
- Only give or accept wrapped or packaged candy.
- Examine candy before allowing children to eat it.

Happy haunting!

Halloween: 10 years after brutal murder of Farms woman

Confessed mass murderer could be free in three years

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

Ten years ago on Halloween a 44-year-old Farms woman was walking home on Kercheval about 6:30 p.m. when a 35-year-old man approached her from behind.

He put his left arm around her neck and with his right hand holding a 14-inch, sharpened screwdriver, he stabbed the woman 11 times in the left chest.

The suspect, though never charged with murder, confessed in 1982 to the slaying in the Farms, as well as a dozen murders elsewhere. But in three years, the killer, Coral Eugene Watts, may be paroled from a Houston jail.

In reaction to the possibility of the mass killer possibly going free, "Crime Watch Tonight," a daily program shown on Channel 2 at 4 p.m., had a camera crew in the Farms to interview the officers who investigated the murder of Jeanne Carol Clyne on Halloween 1979. The show will air on an unspecified date within a couple of weeks, said special projects producer Christopher Benjamin.

Clyne's body was found by resident Howard Ballantyne, then 20 years old, who lived near the murder scene on Kercheval between Merriweather and Lothrop. The first officer at the scene was a 24-year-old named Dan Jensen.

It was the first murder he'd experienced as an officer. Today, a Farms detective, he remembers that her body was still warm and that she was clutching leaves and twigs in her hands where she fell.

Despite hundreds of hours of overtime by Farms Detectives George VanTiem, Earl Field, Sam Cardella, Farms Police Chief Robert Ferber, other officers from the Farms and all the Pointes and Harper Woods and a team from the Michigan State Police, the brutal Oct. 31, 1979, murder was never solved.

That is, the murder was never tried in court.

Detective Field, however, knows who did it, and the confessed mass murderer is sitting in a Texas prison. In fact, he was supposed to be locked up for 60 years following his 1982 arrest and conviction in 1982.

In 1982, Watts was sentenced to 60 years without parole for burglary with intent to commit murder. He was found in a Houston apartment where he had tied one woman up with coat hangers and was sexually assaulting another woman in her bathtub. In lieu of a weapon, he was holding the woman's Farms Detective Earl Field shows where Jeanne Carol Clyne was killed by confessed mass murderer Coral Eugene Watts on Halloween 1979. Chris Benjamin, special project producer for "Crime Watch Tonight," and cameraman Doug Tracey shot the local footage on a segment about Watts for airing on Channel 2 on an unspecified date in the next week or two.

head under the water and near drowning her if she didn't cooperate.

Because there was no physical evidence linking Watts to the Farms murder, then Wayne County Prosecutor William L. Cahalan, a Farms resident who is now a Circuit Court judge, gave Field written permission to offer Watts immunity if he agreed to be interviewed in Houston by the detective.

On Aug. 18, 1982, Watts not only confessed to Field that he killed Clyne, but he confessed to killing two other women "in your town." Field theorizes one woman was killed in Harper Woods and another in Detroit.

Watts told Field he was driving around and just picked Clyne out at random. He followed her in his car as she walked from her psychiatrist's office on the Hill. He then drove on ahead and waited for her and approached her from behind. Watts is described as animal-like in his stalking of a victim, and once he picked out a woman to kill, he never gave up until he succeeded.

When he was arrested in Texas, he confessed to 11 murders there, making a total of 14 women he has specifically admitted to killing. Police further believe he is responsible for 26 other murders — a total of 40 women.

Field said that during the seven-hour interview, Watts admitted to killing a woman every three weeks in the metro Detroit area from 1972 or 1973 until he left for Texas in March 1981. He's suspected of killing three women in Ann Arbor in 1980, where he was dubbed the "Sunday Morning Slasher."

At the time of the Ann Arbor killings, police there did have Watts under arrest. Field went to Ann Arbor to interview Watts, but the defense attorney refused to allow it. Moments later, the Ann Arbor detectives received an anonymous call stating that Watts was the Sunday Morning Slasher. Police believe the anonymous caller was the defense attorney.

While in Ann Arbor, Field gave Watts a cup of coffee and bummed a cigarette for him from his partner, Cardella. Two years later when Field interviewed Watts, the mass murderer remembered Field's kindness.

In Texas, Watts even took police to where he had buried some of female victims in shallow graves.

Even with all the confessions, Watts has never been charged with murder. He successfully eluded police surveillance and left no physical evidence behind. But Field is convinced Watts killed Clyne because of the detail he gave of the incident and because of a similar killing that Watts is suspected to have committed at Northern Michigan University.

Field and the other Farms officers were happy with the confession/immunity arrangement in 1982, because Watts was given 60 years without parole for the Texas incident. They had his confession to solve the Clyne murder, and they figured he'd die in prison.

In March, the whole thing unraveled due to an appellate court decision in Texas that makes Watts eligible for parole in 1992. The prosecutor had gotten the court to agree that the bath water Watts was drowning his victim in was a deadly weapon. The appeals court ruled the defendant wasn't informed that he faced a lethal weapon charge. Hence, no deadly weapon charge and he gets a chance at parole.

"You're sick to your stomach that he gets out," Field said, "if he gets out."

Will he get out? Field and Texas officials think the chances are unlikely given the violent nature of the offense.

"If you've confessed to killing, if you've showed where you buried bodies, how do you get parole?" Field asks.

Casazza challenges Rumora for Farms judicial seat

By Dan Jarvis
Staff Writer

In the wake of the highly challenged Farms judicial primary, voters on Nov. 7 will decide who will occupy the position of municipal judge, incumbent Matthew Rumora or challenger Eugene Casazza.

Both longtime Farms residents, Casazza and Rumora both share memberships in the American Arbitration Association, the State Bar of Michigan, the Michigan and the American Trial Lawyers associations and both serve as Circuit Court mediators.

But while Rumora favors the municipal court system over the circuit court system because control over cases is kept at the local level, Casazza considers the local system inefficient and feels it is just a matter of time before the state mandates that the Grosse Pointes join in the circuit court system.

Eugene Casazza

A practicing attorney in Mount Clemens, Casazza won the second nominee's post in the primary by a single vote over Paul Gracey in a re-cast of the absentee ballots from the Aug. 8 judicial primary.

Casazza, 43, according to his canon of ethics, does not feel an attorney should comment on the workings of the court. Speaking on the re-cast absentee vote that will put his name on the November ballot, Casazza simply replied, "I'm happy to be here."

Seeking his first public office, Casazza also would not comment on the primary vote as a whole.

Casazza said he has not campaigned to voters in his bid for municipal judge seat, but will take advantage of every opportunity to deliver his views to the public, when invited to speak.

If elected to the judicial seat, Casazza would seek the establishment of mediation panels of volunteer attorneys from the Pointes to expedite the court's docket. He would also recommend use of conference calls to save time and use existing technology to save time on the part of litigants, attorneys and the judge.

Eugene Casazza

While Casazza is aware that most Pointe residents favor the municipal court over a district court, he feels a district court representing one or more of the Pointes would be more efficient than a municipal court and would help speed the docket along.

Refusing to comment on the much-debated and recently renovated Hill area parking plan, Casazza flatly said, "I have no comment on that."

Casazza is seeking his first public office as Farms municipal judge because, as he said, "The

Matthew Rumora

Appointed to the judicial seat in May 1988 by the City Council to fill the vacancy left by retiring Judge Peter O'Rourke, Rumora served the city of Grosse Pointe Farms as a city prosecutor, is a graduate of Grosse Pointe High School and is a former Grosse Pointe volunteer probation officer.

Rumora also holds memberships in the Grosse Pointe Crisis Club and the Exchange Club of Grosse Pointe.

Rumora, 40, sees the recent judicial primary in which the wife of candidate Paul Gracey was charged with illegal ballot handling as an unfortunate situation.

While he has no idea whether the allegations of impropriety on the part of the accused are true, Rumora excused himself from hearing the case because he is a candidate for the judicial seat.

Rumora said residents of all five Pointes want to retain a locally controlled municipal court. And while the part-time position as judge for the Farms is time consuming, Rumora feels the time is well spent and that the municipal court system is the best way to serve the Pointes.

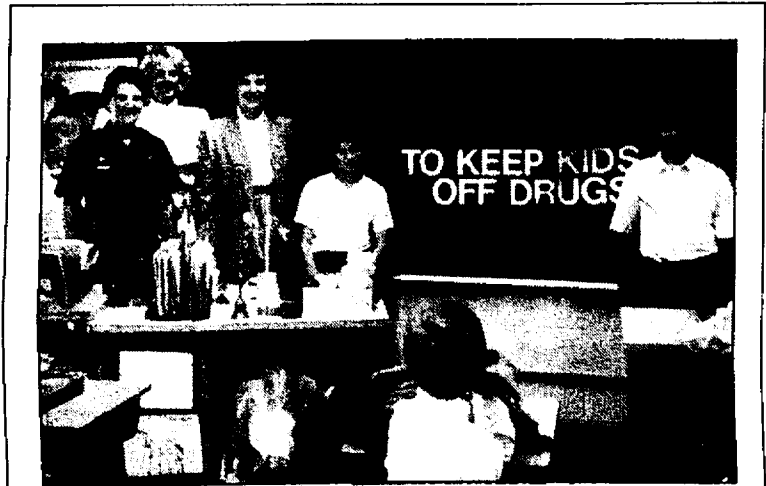

Also a practicing defense attorney, Rumora wears different hats on different days.

"All the experiences have helped me in my judgments," Rumora said. "When you're on the bench, you just do what you think is right."

On his reason for seeking a second term as municipal judge, Rumora said, "I'm running because I enjoy the job and enjoy working with the people in the court. I enjoy using my talents and expertise as a service to the community."

The Farms municipal judge is elected to a four-year term and is responsible for arraignments in criminal cases and preliminary exams in felony cases. As judge, Rumora presides over trials of all misdemeanor violations, civil cases up to $1,500, including small claims, landlord-tenant disputes and all traffic violations. The part-time position pays $12,000 per year.

Grosse Pointe Farms Municipal Court is regularly held on the second and fourth Monday of each month. The responsibilities of the municipal judge include being available 24 hours per day, each day, for arraignments, to sign warrants and to attend to urgent matters of the court as they arise.

DARE to be different

The Grosse Pointe Woods Department of Public Safety is sponsoring the D.A.R.E. program for Star of the Sea students. D.A.R.E., or Drug Abuse Resistance Education, is a nationally acclaimed drug education program designed for elementary-aged schoolchildren; specifically exit-level elementary students. The program will be taught by Officer Sally Beghin, a six-year veteran of the Grosse Pointe Woods Department of Public Safety, who, in addition, received close to 100 hours of specialized training to become a D.A.R.E. officer.

Holiday day trips planned

Get into the spirit of the holiday season by registering for one or more War Memorial day trips scheduled for November and December.

A motorcoach will leave the community center for Plymouth on Monday, Nov. 20. The occasion is the Pilgrim's Feast, an authentically prepared Thanksgiving dinner at the Mayflower Hotel.

The meal is prepared in wrought iron kettles and served by costumed waitresses. Each course is narrated and a color film about the Pilgrims will be shown for a fuller understanding of the true meaning of Thanksgiving. The day in Plymouth also includes free time to shop prior to lunch. Cost is $38 per person.

Next on the calendar is a Wednesday, Nov. 29 shopping trip to Chicago. Reservations are due by Wednesday, Oct. 25. Included in the $109 fee are round trip transportation to the airport from the War Memorial and airline ticket. Also included is round trip motorcoach transportation from the airport in Chicago to Water Tower and Michigan Avenue.

Finally, one of the War Memorial's most popular annual day trips, Christmas at Greenfield Village's Eagle Tavern. The event takes place, Friday, Dec. 15 with reservations due by Friday, Oct. 27.

Enjoy an evening of entertainment and feasting in the warm, candlelit atmosphere of an 1850's stagecoach tavern; then see Detroit aglow with Christmas lights as the motorcoach travels homeward for its 11 p.m. return to the War Memorial. Cost is $52 per person.

After Nov. 7, will Park still be Palmer's?

Opinion

Two veteran mayors, Palmer Heenan in the Park and Lorenzo "Red" Browning in the City, are facing challengers who are taking issue with many of the incumbents' actions and policies and thus heightening interest in the Nov. 7 election campaign.

In the Park, real estate broker Dutch Hendricks is tangling with an old friend with whom he has parted political company, in part because of the 1988 presidential contest in which Hendricks supported George Bush and Heenan backed Rep. Jack Kemp.

But Hendricks' current criticism deals with the mayor's policies and promises with respect to the Park. He contends the mayor promised lower taxes but is guilty of political flim-flam because the tax rate is going down while property assessments are rising and causing higher tax payments.

He is critical of the Tax Incentive Finance Authority (TIFA), too, on the grounds that most of the money being provided for renovation and improvement is going to outside investors and that the district is reaping benefits at the expense of the rest of the Park. He is also critical of the Downtown Development Authority (DDA).

Heenan, on the other hand, is proud of the accomplishments of both the TIFA and DDA programs and their contributions to the improvement of residential housing and business places in the Park. As a result of the improvements supported by the city, homes have improved in appearance and property values have increased throughout the Park, the mayor contends.

Heenan feels that the organization of the Public Safety Department has contributed to the 40 percent reduction in crime in the Park in recent years and that while total personnel have been reduced in number, more uniformed officers now are patrolling the street than under the old police department.

In the News' opinion, Heenan deserves re-election because, despite Hendricks' criticism, there has been an impressive redevelopment of much of the residential area, the business districts have been upgraded and crime has been substantially reduced.

In the City, Mayor Browning is under attack from Myrna Smith, an associate real estate broker with a local firm, who was elected to the council two years ago and who now is gunning for the mayor.

She recommended that the City Foundation board be expanded to include citizen members, wants more city communication with the public, believes the city's certificates of occupancy should be enforced on a uniform basis, wants more long-range planning and thinks the city government should be more responsive to its citizens.

All in all, challenger Smith believes she could provide strong leadership, improved services and new ideas. She says her candidacy gives voters a choice for mayor and promises quarterly newsletters to help inform the residents of what is going on in the City if she is elected mayor.

A retired business executive, Browning defends his regime and points to many governmental efforts to improve the quality of life in the City. Those efforts include attacking continuing problems such as the maintenance and restoration of the infrastructure and the use of more than $1 million in block grants over the years to help finance the improvement of streets, sidewalks, the water system and even home maintenance.

He also is sensitive to future needs, such as recycling of waste which he regards as something "we have to do." He believes that communication between the city government and the people has been good and is testified to by the rapid responses made to public requests.

In his 18 years as mayor and councilman, Browning has served his community well and, in our opinion, deserves re-election. For her part, Ms. Smith deserves credit for bringing new ideas to the mayor's race and giving voters the opportunity to weigh the city government's performance from a different perspective.

6 battle for Farms council

In the Farms, a hotly contested campaign for four council seats is under way with three incumbents running for re-election and facing three challengers.

Mayor Joseph L. Fromm and council members Gail Kaess and John M. Crowley are being challenged by John Danaher, LeRoy H. Wulfmeier III and John F. DeHayes Jr.

Named mayor three years ago, Fromm believes that even an appointive mayor can exercise leadership by making proposals to his council. He claims some credit for the approval of the Farms Public Safety Department that replaced the separate fire and police departments, for example, and praises the council for improving its handling of specific issues after the establishment of council subcommittees.

Ms. Kaess with 10 years on the council is seeking her fourth term. She thinks the renovated parking lot and the new parking fee schedule ought to improve those areas of concern. But she thinks it is time to take another look at the McMillan traffic problem now that new traffic patterns have emerged. She feels all of the Pointes ought to join at some future time in a recycling program and curb pickup plan to ease the waste removal problem.

Crowley also believes that another look should be taken at the Hill traffic problem but thinks the revamped lot and the new rates should improve the Hill parking situation. He agrees that the Farms might need more traffic people on the streets. He also backs the recycling pilot program and says the council should help increase public awareness of the need for recycling.

DeHayes, who has served on the advisory ordinance committee, was instrumental in the formation of the recently adopted exterior maintenance code to protect residential and business buildings both structurally and esthetically. He applauds the city's efforts to step up recycling but thinks relations with the Grosse Pointe-Clinton Refuse Authority could be improved.

Danaher believes his experience in total quality management could be beneficial to the Farms council in achieving increased efficiency, flexibility and decisiveness. He would, he says, take a hard line on taxes but not at the expense of services. As a trustee of the Farms Foundation, he applauds its contributions to park and other improvement efforts.

Wulfmeier, an organizer of the Grosse Pointe Property Owners Association that successfully opposed the granting of a liquor license to the War Memorial, said he had been concerned that there would have been the potential for an open bar if conditions imposed by the council could have been removed. He also endorses recycling and says the Pointes ought to be "environmentally wise."

In the News' opinion, the three incumbents are highly qualified, have served well and deserve re-election. But the three challengers also have excellent credentials and so the choice for the fourth position is a toss-up with the nod going to DeHayes.

6 running for 3 Park seats

In a lively election campaign, the Park features one incumbent seeking re-election to the council and five challengers trying to fill the vacancies created by the retirement of two other council members.

The incumbent is James E. Robson and the challengers are Barbara Leonard Miller, Valerie Moran, Nancy J. Pilorget, Art Williams and Dean Valente.

Robson, elected in 1985 as a self-styled "guardian of the Cabbage Patch," is seeking re-election in the belief the Park government has done much to benefit the "patch" and the rest of the Park. He supports Palmer Heenan as "the best mayor the Park has ever had" and defends both the Tax Incentive Finance Authority (TIFA) district and the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) projects.

Ms. Miller, a homemaker making her first try for elective office, inherited her interest in public affairs from her father, Donald Leonard, who held many substantial city and state posts. She, too, supports the mayor as well as Robson because of her involvement in the latter's candidacy four years ago. And she backs the TIFA and DDA programs because of their benefits to the community.

Ms. Moran thinks the work of the watch groups and the setting up of a Public Safety Department that put more police on the streets have helped sharply reduce crime. She applauds the work of TIFA and DDA in improving residential and business districts and supports recycling and, eventually, a Pointe-wide curbside pickup program.

Ms. Pilorget, chairwoman of the beautification commission, says the two council vacancies aroused her interest and explain her candidacy. She sees progress under TIFA programs as "fantastic" and says new plantings and other improvements have made possible many beautification awards in the TIFA district. It was her idea to expand the awards to the residential areas.

Dean Valente, a lawyer and a lifetime Park resident, is making his first try at elective office, but he has been involved in campaigns for candidates for many higher state and U.S. offices. He says his substantial background in business and the law would enable him to help with community planning and also permit him to give back something to the community.

The fifth challenger is Art Williams, a mechanical engineer who has been president of two corporations. A licensed pilot, he has been the spearhead of the Grosse Pointe Study Committee for the Detroit City Airport and helped persuade the the Park, City and Farms councils to pass resolutions opposing the the airport's master plan. He also supports the TIFA and DDA projects and applauds the Public Safety Department's crime control efforts.

In making its endorsements, the News reviews its interviews as well as the backgrounds and experience of the candidates. After doing so, we recommend re-election of Robson and give the edge among the other candidates to Ms. Pilorget and Williams, even though we think all of the challengers would fill the vacancies well.

5 seek council posts in City

One of the most wide-open election campaigns in the Pointes is being waged in the city of Grosse Pointe where three incumbents are facing two challengers for three Council seats.

Robert L. Nugent is the senior member with 18 years of service. William L. Montgomery has served 10 years and Dale N. Scrace was appointed in May.

Challengers are Lisa Bradley and Peter Waldmeir, who are in their 30s and running individually to serve their community and support specific programs. Ms. Bradley is a Pointe real estate agent and Waldmeir is a lawyer with a large downtown firm.

Nugent has been the City's representative on the Grosse Pointes-Clinton Refuse Disposal Authority and is now its chairman. Because a generation of trash has almost doubled in the area in 20 years, Nugent recommends additional control methods: recycling as an absolute necessity, more composting of leaves, and even possible use of mulching lawnmowers to cut up grass clippings.

Montgomery joins with Nugent in seeing as another major problem the maintenance and modernization of the infrastructure, especially the 60-year-old sewer system. Montgomery says the Pointes' recent recycling pilot program proved that people are willing to sort out and deliver waste to collection points. He believes markets must be sought for recycled products to help finance costs of recycling.

Scrace, who owns a construction company, believes his background can be helpful in meeting the council's problems with modernizing the infrastructure. He points to the excellent public response to the pilot recycling project but believes waste removal should be a communitywide project. Scrace also stresses the importance of good relations between the council and merchants in the Village and on Mack.

Bradley believes incumbents ought to be challenged so the public can learn more about City problems and that appointed incumbents, in particular, ought to have competition when they run. She is critical of the City government's lack of responsiveness to the people's needs and problems. She believes the council ought to name a committee to deal with complaints and questions, and have it report back to the council and citizens.

Waldmeir clerked for the late Justice G. Mennen Williams while in law school, served in an honors program at the U.S. Justice Department and acted as an attorney for the White House on occasion. As a candidate, he feels he brings special qualifications because of his service in advising local governments directly or indirectly on planning, zoning problems and the effects of court decisions on their operations.

In the News' opinion, Nugent and Montgomery are clearly qualified for re-election on the basis of their background and experience. Scrace brings excellent qualifications to his new tasks and Ms. Bradley and Waldmeir would add new perspectives to the council. While we clearly favor re-election of Nugent and Montgomery, we think the other post is a toss-up between Scrace and Waldmeir.

Judicial races spur interest

Contests for municipal judgeships this year in Grosse Pointe Farms and Grosse Pointe Park have aroused unusual interest in the Nov. 7 elections.

Results of the contested Farms primary were still uncertain after the Court of Appeals at the request of Farms judicial candidate Paul Gracey Monday ordered a stay of proceedings until a hearing Wednesday morning, which would be after this issue of the Grosse Pointe News had gone to press.

However, if the latest appeal is denied, the Nov. 7 election would pit incumbent Judge Matthew Rumora against challenger Eugene Casazza, a Farms resident who practices law in Mount Clemens.

Rumora has been municipal judge since May 1988 when he was appointed by the Farms council to fill a vacancy in the part-time $12,000 a year post. Rumora says his service as a judge occasionally prompts referrals that benefit his private practice but feels his experience as Farms city prosecutor and in private practice has helped make him a better judge.

Casazza, in discussing his candidacy, proposed several innovations for the Farms municipal court. In civil cases, he proposed use of mediation panels and requiring participating attorneys to provide three hours of pro-bono service by hearing small claims cases at Saturday and evening court sessions. He also suggested the greater use of conference calls to save the time of litigants and the court.

In the News' opinion, Rumora is well-qualified, has done a good job as prosecutor and judge, and deserves re-election.

In the Park, voters have the choice of two seasoned candidates for the $12,000-a-year part-time post. Kirsten Frank seeks re-election after winning the office two years ago. She succeeded Beverly Grobbel who now wants to return to the bench.

Ms. Grobbel says she built the Park's municipal court and takes credit for establishing the non-felony probation system now used by all five Pointe courts.

Ms. Frank takes credit for bringing the court docket up to date after having inherited a heavy backlog of cases when she was elected in 1987. She also claims responsibility for introducing computers to the court, reducing staff assignments and cutting the court's operating costs. Ms. Grobbel has challenged these claims.

Critics have questioned the "cozy" relationship that results from Ms. Frank's endorsement by Mayor Palmer Heenan, her partnership in the Durant & Durant law firm and her resulting employment by Richard Durant, Heenan's brother-in-law.

Judge Frank's response to the criticism is that she was elected by the public in 1987, is not involved in Heenan's legal work and does not apologize for the mayor's endorsement.

Yet there is an implied threat to the independence of a part-time court in this situation. Under the circumstances, the News believes that while both candidates are well-qualified, the independence of the court would be better protected by the election of Ms. Grobbel.

Looking for service — and a smile

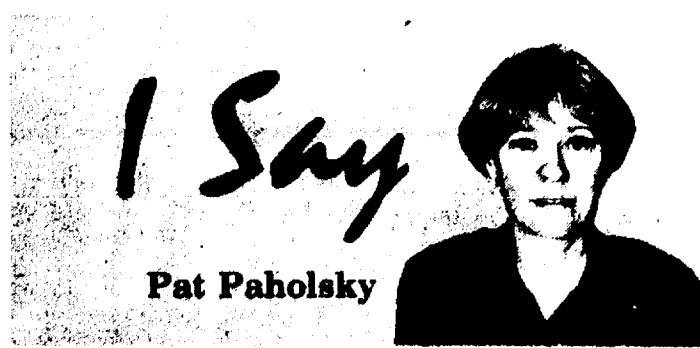

Imagine, if you will, a business that would be prohibited from using the word service in any of its newspaper, radio or TV advertising. Imagine that this business couldn't have a service counter, service representative or service department. The word itself would be banned forever from the company's vocabulary. How long could such a place operate?

You know the answer. The words service and business have become synonymous. It doesn't matter what kind of business it is — its reason for being is to serve someone or some industry. Every legitimate business prides itself on its service, and companies thrive and prosper not necessarily because their products are superior, but because their service is.

So why is it that many businesses don't understand this? A person can start up a business and invest a lot of sweat, guts and long hours in it and roll back the profits into the company to make it healthy. Then the owner hires people who think they're doing the customer a favor by being there. It's a puzzle.

I was glad when a new bakery that was on my way home opened. I could buy freshly baked bread with no preservatives once or twice a week and maybe even a glorious coffee cake once in awhile. No more mass produced, cellophane wrapped, slick loaves that can live mold-free for two weeks.

The first time I went in there was my last. The counter clerk was reading and didn't look up when I came in. She sullenly got the bread I asked for from the shelves, added up the items and then, for the first time, spoke — to tell me what I owed. She took my money and gave me change and resumed her reading. No thank you. And that's what I mentally said to the business as

There's a party store near our house that is open many hours a day. The owner works hard and keeps the interior clean and the exterior pleasant with plantings and snow-free when there's snow.

One day my husband went in. A new clerk was on the phone, engaged in a personal conversation. She proceeded to take care of a handful of customers without interrupting her phone call — except to tell each customer as she completed a transaction to "have a nice day." My husband alternately steamed and stewed over whether he should tell the owner. In the end he decided against it.

Not long ago, I was having a problem with a tire on my car that had developed a slow leak. I went to my favorite station which I knew had an air pump but the pump wasn't where it used to be — or anywhere.

The attendant told me that the parent company — a major oil firm — barred the business from re-installing its air pump after the station had been renovated. It was deemed to be a safety hazard, the employee said.

I figured my tire with 12 pounds of air was a safety hazard and to make matters worse,

I had to drive around looking for air. So much for the word service in service station.

I was so angry I called the parent company and asked a spokesman (that was how he described himself) if he could explain the company's policy regarding air pumps.

After checking it out, the spokesman reaffirmed what the attendant told me — there wasn't enough room for a person filling his tires to do it safely and therefore, it was hazardous.

This station, before it was modernized and expanded and made into a mini-market, sat on half the land it now occupies. It was OK to have a pump then, but now it isn't. I don't understand.

Service is intangible. The thinking in some quarters might be if you can't ring it up, you can dispense with it.

I won't even go into the government bureaucrats with whom we are sometimes forced to deal. That's usually an experience in frustration and helplessness and anger.

I came across a list recently called the Ten Commandments of Good Business. I wish businesses would hand this list to employees and make them memorize it as a requirement for employment:

1. A customer is the most important person in any business.
2. A customer is not dependent on us — we are dependent on him.
3. A customer is not an interruption of our work — he is the purpose of it.
4. A customer does us a favor when he calls — we are not doing him a favor by serving him.
5. A customer is part of our business — not an outsider.
6. A customer is not a cold statistic. He is a flesh-and-blood human being with feelings and emotions like our own.
7. A customer is not someone to argue or match wits with.
8. A customer is a person who brings us his wants. It is our job to fill those wants.
9. A customer is deserving of the most courteous and attentive treatment we can give him.
10. A customer is the life-blood of this and every other business.

Letters

City park

To the Editor:
I have had enough of small-town politics and would like to set the record straight concerning Myrna Smith and the Grosse Pointe City Park.

First of all, I did write Mrs. Smith a letter, addressing the problems at the park. I pointed out that the public works department, not our parks and recreation department, will not pipe in hot water for the locker room sinks, nor will they stop using a sand and paint mixture for the locker room floors, which peels away and looks terrible.

I also stated that our soap dispensers worked until the first week of September, which in itself is a miracle, because children kept pulling the dispensers completely off the wall — I myself fixed six of them.

On the date of the altercation, Sept. 1, we were understaffed, overworked, and I was voluntarily working with a totally dislocated right shoulder (which I dislocated four days previously while working at the park). I met Myrna Smith while mopping the ladies' shower room (with one of my arms immobilized in a sling), and told her that the problems in the park could not be fixed by our department.

For the record, I hand delivered her a letter on Sunday, Sept. 3, stating the problems at the park, and also stating that I didn't respect her method of criticism — reducing my boss to tears and failing to mention one positive aspect about the park, despite our ultra-successful swim classes and programs, and exemplary safety record.

The only reason that I spoke to Myrna Smith, and the only reason that I am now writing to you, is because I care about the park, and enjoy teaching, guarding and serving 99.9 percent of Grosse Pointe City residents.

you'd feel as I do. We didn't buy our home in this neighborhood to look at "a decorative wall or barrier to shield the store from prime Lochmoor/Sunningdale residents."

I wonder why Farmer Jack didn't buy Red Lobster and/or Bonanza if it wanted to expand and stay on Mack where it belongs.

I certainly have no objection to people selling their homes, but I hope they don't sell to Farmer Jack.

To the Editor:

I am a concerned resident of Lochmoor Boulevard (in the Woods). I hope you take into consideration what will happen to our lovely neighborhood if certain homeowners sell their homes to Farmer Jack.

In my view, our property values will go down and people will begin putting their homes up for sale. The western segment of Lochmoor will be affected first, but I believe it will progress down the street in a domino effect.

If you lived across the street from the property that Farmer Jack wants, I think you'd understand, I think

Correction

To the Editor:

In my letter published Oct. 19, you printed "If you cannot find what you need in the overcrowded, understocked Farmer Jack on Mack, then it is very important to drive out to St. Clair Shores or to fight the truck traffic behind Kroger at Moross." What I said was "...it is very inconvenient to drive out to St. Clair Shores or to fight the truck traffic behind Kroger at Moross."

The point of my original letter was that I hope Farmer Jack can find a way

Op-Ed Treats might be tricks for kids

The Feingold Association of the United States, a non-profit organization to help hyperactive children, wants parents to be aware of the results of some research about synthetic dyes and flavors in candy.

Candy, lollipops, jelly beans and other Halloween fare, they say, are loaded with synthetic chemicals. While sugar is often blamed for behavior problems and hyperactivity, they say, sugar is only part of the problem.

Many of the candies distributed as treats on Halloween contain synthetic chemicals made from petroleum that are suspect as health hazards, they say, and may cause hyperactivity in children.

The Feingold Association suggests that families distribute candies without synthetic stuff — or non-food treats — for Halloween favors.

To learn more about additives, and which ones to avoid, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to: Feingold Parent Support Group, P.O. Box 6550, Alexandria, Va. 22306.

Grosse Pointer Jimmy Schmidt chef-proprietor of the Rattlesnake Club, took his show on the road earlier this month by heading for Los Angeles to participate in the seventh annual American Wine and Food Festival.

The event was an all-American cookout benefit for the Los Angeles chapters of Meals on Wheels.

Schmidt joined notable chefs from all over the country for this fundraiser, which took place on the backlot of Universal Studios.

A grand century

A recent addition to the list of 100-year-old Grosse Pointers is Leo P. Lesperance. Born on Oct. 17, 1889, in Canada, Mr. Lesperance graduated from the University of Toronto in 1917 and worked as a metallurgical engineer for Chrysler Corp. for 37 years.

He married in 1921, and has 5 children, 30 grandchildren and 27 great-grandchildren.

Learning not to burn

The 4-year-old pre-school class from Grosse Pointe Co-operative Nursery School listened to Officer Sally Beghin of the Grosse Pointe Woods Public Safety Department during Fire Safety Week Oct. 8-14. The students learned about all aspects of the police and fire departments and about good safety habits.

Grosse Pointe Theatre to hold 'Roshomon' auditions Nov. 4-5

Director Dean Erskine will be holding auditions Nov. 4 and 5 for the Grosse Pointe Theatre production of "Roshomon," a marvelous story of four eyewitness accounts of a rape and murder. It raises the eternal question "What is truth?"

Auditions will be from noon to 5 p.m. on both days and will be at 315 Fisher Road in Grosse Pointe City. Performance dates for this production are Jan. 17 through Jan. 21 and Jan. 23 through Jan. 27.

"Roshomon's" greatest novelty is its story that is non-national, timeless and universal. More, it is a story about men and women and sex, and it results in a play for grownups.

The cast is as follows:
• Priest: He is beaten, tormented, seeking truth because his beliefs have been badly shaken.

• Woodcutter: Humble, sensitive, but meek. He is wary and insubstantial.

• Wigmaker: Alert and resourceful, he is a disillusioned cynic who looks at life as rough and ready. He is jeering and con-scienceless.

• Deputy: Arrogant at times, fawning at others. A small part. Explains the capture of the bandit.

• Bandit: Unlimited emotional range. A treacherous, cunning, skillful braggart. At times a swaggering Robin Hood, at others a weakling. A skillful duelist.

• Husband: A samurai warrior and a heel. An aristocrat, at times a coward. The hapless husband who is murdered!

• Wife: Part lotus flower, part flower of evil. She has an aura of innocence; runs the gamut of passion, shame and hysteria. She is spirited with an exciting commonness.

• Mother: Elderly, proud, protective and defiant. Her main speeches are poetic soliloquies.

• Medium: The husband speaking through her tells his version of the murder. She tells the story in a bewitched trance. A concerted effort toward lip-synching will be necessary.

For more information call producer Mary Sturt at 885-1356.

Jack W. Mills

A memorial service for Jack W. Mills, 82, of Grosse Pointe Farms, will be held Friday, Oct. 27 at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms.

Mr. Mills died Monday, Oct. 23, 1989 at Cottage Hospital, Grosse Pointe Farms. He was born in Pennsylvania.

He was an architect for Ralph Calder Associates in Detroit, retiring in 1977.

He was a 1930 graduate of the University of Michigan College of Architecture and was a member of the Tau Sigma Delta and Phi Kappa Phi honor societies.

Mr. Mills' other memberships included the The American Institute of Architects, he was an elder and former trustee of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, a life member of the Detroit Boat Club and the Grosse Pointe Senior Men's Club. He was formerly active in the English Speaking Union, Circumnavigators of the Fine Arts Society of Detroit.

Survivors include his daughters, Anne Mills Fritz and Barbara Mills Koenig of Grosse Pointe; sons, the Rev. C. Richard Mills of Minnesota; seven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

He was predeceased by his wife, Helen Bush Mills.

Cremation was in Forest Lawn Cemetery in Detroit, with interment in the columbarium of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

Arrangements were made by the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home, Grosse Pointe Park.

Betty H. Hoffman

Betty H. Hoffman, longtime resident of Grosse Pointe Woods, died Wednesday, Oct. 18, 1989 after a long illness. She was born in Racine, Wis.

Mrs. Hoffman was a 1936 graduate of the University of Michigan, graduating magna cum laude in political science.

Prior to World War II, she helped direct U.S. Army tank production for the war at the Massey Harris Co.

Mrs. Hoffman was active in the Women's City Club, the Cottage Hospital Auxiliary and the Republican Party, serving for several years on the Republican State Finance Committee.

She was also an accomplished artist and needlewoman.

Mrs. Hoffman moved to San Marcos, Calif. in 1983.

Survivors include her husband, Kenneth; a daughter, Sally; and a son, Gary.

Memorial contributions may be made to CARAL, 1337 Santa Monica Mall, Suite 306, Santa Monica, Calif. 90401 (Attn: Ms. Robin Schneider, executive director).

Etta Maywood

Etta Maywood, 62, formerly of Grosse Pointe, most recently of Pasadena, Calif., died Friday, Oct. 20, 1989 in Pasadena, after a long illness.

Mrs. Maywood is survived by her husband, Dr. Frank N. Maywood; a daughter, Lisa; and sons, Dr. Sami, Dr. Michael and Dr. Robert.

Arrangements were made by the Turner and Stevens C. Lewis Mortuary in Pasadena.

Standish Backus

A memorial service for Standish Backus, 79, of California, was held Saturday, Oct. 12 at All Saints by the Sea Episcopal Church in California. Mr. Backus died Thursday, Oct. 12 in California. He was born in Detroit.

Attending Liggett and Monteth School in Detroit, Mr. Backus was a graduate of Princeton University, where he pursued a career in architecture, was active on the Crew and was a member of the Cap and Gown Club.

He later studied art at the University of Munich and became nationally recognized as one of the leading members of the California School of Watercolorists.

Mr. Backus accompanied Admiral Richard Bird on a six-month expedition to Antarctica. His paintings of the journey were widely displayed across the United States.

Survivors include a daughter,

Mrs. Sander Vanocur; sisters, Dorothy Lancken, Mrs. Edward Jewett and Mrs. Edward Caulkins of Grosse Pointe; and one granddaughter.

William Gilbert Massengale

A memorial service for William Gilbert Massengale, 60, of Grosse Pointe City, was held Saturday, Oct. 21 at the First Congregational Church in New Baltimore.

Mr. Massengale died Wednesday, Oct. 18, 1989 at the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor. He was born in Detroit.

A graduate of Cass Technical High School, Mr. Massengale was involved in the graphic arts for the last 38 years and was with the Tweddle Litho Co. for the last 15 years.

He was a U.S. naval officer during World War II, and later served during the Korean War.

Survivors include his wife, Jane (Verna); daughters, Mrs. Michael (Lesley) Dinsmore and Mrs. William (Lisa) Hess; and six grandchildren.

Mr. Massengale's ashes were interred in Forest Lawn Cemetery, Detroit.

Arrangements were made by the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home, Grosse Pointe Park.

would do if elected mayor is to immediately begin testing of the city's drinking water. He said the tests only cost $75 apiece and are necessary, especially considering that there is some lead piping in the Park.

Concerning recycling, Hendricks thinks the Pointes, as well as southeast Michigan, need to take a more than "basket" approach. He said merely sorting materials into baskets is not sufficient. He favors setting up a large sorting facility that will not only separate 100 percent of the Pointes' waste stream but will also create jobs for the unemployed.

"Grosse Pointe is going to have to take the initiative to show the rest of the Detroit area what to do," he said.

Hendricks believes strong measures have to be taken to stop polluting of all kinds and to get recycling under way. Such measures could include legislation mandating the use of recycled products, such as newsprint.

Hendricks resents what he believes is Mayor Heenan's taking credit for the formation and success of the Public Safety Department. He said the idea of merging the police and fire departments stemmed from before Heenan became mayor.

Concerning the reported drop in crime in the Park, Hendricks is skeptical. He said one easy way to have a drop in crime is not to report it, and he thinks many crimes are being "white washed" by the police department so that they do not show up in annual reports.

He does agree with his opponent in the belief that one reason for the decrease in crime in the Park is the depopulation of the area of Detroit bordering the Park.

Unlike his opponent, Hendricks believes there is room in the Park to build senior housing. He points out that many of the homes in the Park are old and have exceeded their life expectancy. He said tearing down the old homes would provide land to build housing for seniors.

Hendricks also dislikes what he indicated was the inability of the cities in the Pointes to think for themselves.

"The trouble with the Pointes is everybody keeps saying,

"What did the other Pointes do?"

Although this is Hendricks' first attempt at public office, his political activities have included chairman of the Grosse Pointe Board of Realtors political affairs committee, two-time elected Republican delegate, state convention delegate in 1988 and Michigan Association of Realtors Wayne County Campaign '88 chairman.

the young Cross' stamping grounds.

"It was so exciting back then," he said. "It was a great place for a kid to grow up." Ford Motor Car Co. was right across the street. Cross and his brother Milton Jr. — their mother died the boys were still young — used to play in and around the factories, learning about the business from the ground up.

In fact, when Cross and his brother were young, they could be found playing auto mechanic while the other boys were playing baseball in the sand lots.

"We thought that all mechanics were named 'Bill' and so we would say to each other 'Hey, Bill, could you check the oil?' or 'Bill, I need some spark plugs,'" Cross said. "People called me Bill until I went away to school."

Cross and his brother guided the company through the war, with Cross doing all the designing of machines and his brother doing the selling. They built artillery shells with a machine that was so revolutionary that after the war, machine shops across the country adopted the ideas created for it.

He never stopped designing and today has more than 20 patents to his name.

But his work wasn't all with his company. For 11 months in the 1954, he was on loan to the U.S. government and filled a position in the Department of Commerce during which time he was a member of a team whose purpose was to create a plan to get American industry back on its feet if there were a nuclear attack.

While he said it was an interesting year, all he got for a year's work "was a flag that flew over the Senate building."

He also served in the 1950s as a part-time consultant to the assistant secretary of the Air Force. His job was to design machine tools that would help create better airplanes which could fly safer at higher speeds. He developed numerically controlled machine tools — a forerunner of robotics and computer-controlled tools — for this purpose.

When he testified before Congress on the subject of automation and technological change in 1955, he foresaw the dangers of the large increase in labor costs, without a similar increase in productivity. He warned of a trade imbalance and was laughed at.

"But I turned out to be quite a prophet," he said.

He has testified before Congress on a number of other topics including automation, technological change and private foreign investment.

There is a lecture series in his name at MIT and the school has also named a floor of a building after him. He has honorary degrees, memberships and awards from Lawrence Institute of Technology, the World Trade Club of Detroit, the Society of Manufacturing Engineers and the National Academy of Engineering.

Cross Co. today operates in Switzerland, West Germany and Japan, although Cross is no longer affiliated with it aside from owning some stock.

One of Cross' greatest successes was born of a need to attract engineers to his business.

After World War II, Cross Co. tried to recruit engineers, but watched as they went to bigger companies offering better programs. Instead of dipping into the pool of college graduates, he went to the high schools, and got the best and the brightest and formed the Cross Engineering School.

The students were to design a machine from specifications given to them. The machines were never made, but all of the students received full college credits for the work they did. "We now have engineers all across the country," Cross said proudly.

But Cross credits another member of his family as "the best salesman we ever had" — his wife of 57 years, Eloise.

"People just loved her," he said. The two met when they were in their teens (even she knew him as Bill) and married after he returned from MIT.

"When we were expanding into Europe, we traveled everywhere, and Ellie went with me," he said. "She really gets along well with people — she doesn't know anything about machinery — but she was great with the people."

They remember the time when in their travels they crossed the international date line so many times that her birthday came three times in three days.

"But I didn't count it each time," she joked. And Mr. Toyota hosted a birthday party for her on the top of the Toyota Building. They did business with the Shah of Iran and they met Brezhnev.

"I've learned so much traveling around," she said. "It was better than a college education."

They learned about local customs and religious practices through their business travels, too.

When they sold machines in India, it couldn't be started until the stars were right, and a holyman could bless it.

And in Japan, he was awarded a large order after throwing a coin into a Japanese wishing well. He bought a small replica of the well for his home and said he was going to install one at the company so his salesmen could have the same luck.

Now in retirement, the Crosses still do a lot of traveling. They have to, in order to see their three children, Ralph Jr., Carol and Dennis who are spread out across the world.

The Crosses laugh as they tell the stories of their travels and point out mementos and awards given to them for their years in the business.

"I tell you," Mrs. Cross said. "It's been so exciting I wouldn't have traded it for the world."

"Me either," he said. "We've had some great times."

After 57 years of marriage, Ralph and Eloise Cross are still happy with what they worked for together.

1 incumbent for 3 seats leaves Park council race wide open

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

With three Grosse Pointe Park City Council seats up for election and only one incumbent running to keep his seat, the field is open to a diverse selection of candidates.

Because veteran council members Carroll Evola and Mark Valente III are not running for re-election, that means at least two new faces will be on the council after Nov. 7. Only Councilman James E. Robson Jr. will be running to keep his seat.

The challengers, in alphabetical order, are Barbara Leonard Miller, Valerie Moran, Nancy J. Pilorget, Dean Peter Valente and Art J. Williams.

Barbara Leonard Miller

Miller, 43, is a homemaker and she has no problem saying so.

This is the first time the mother of two has run for office, and she's doing so because she likes the way the Park is right now and wants to see it stay that way.

Barbara Leonard Miller

She said that with two council members not running for re-election, that means at least two new people will be on the council. Two new people can mean a change in the direction of the council and the city, and Miller doesn't want a change for the worse.

She said the Park is in an upward movement right now and she wants it to continue.

Though this is her first venture into politics, Miller grew up in a politically active family. Her father, Donald S. Leonard, was chief judge of Detroit Recorder's Court, and he held other leadership positions in the state before his death in 1976.

Miller has lived in the Park for six years. She has bachelor of science degree from Wayne State University in special education. She resigned from the Grosse Pointe Park Board of Canvassers when she decided to run for office.

She has been involved as a board member of the Junior Group of Goodwill, the fundraising arm of Goodwill Industries; a fundraiser for the YWCA's Interim House for abused spouses and children; a member of the Pierce Middle School PTO and an active member of Christ Church.

She is supporter of the Park's Tax Incentive Authority (TIFA) program for Wayburn, Maryland, Lakepointe and Beaconsfield neighborhoods and Mack Avenue. "That whole area is starting to look really good," she said.

She also likes what she sees happening on Jefferson in the Downtown Development Authority (DDA), which is also a TIFA district.

Crime is a leading concern of Miller's. Although she is pleased to note that crime has declined 18 percent in the last year and some 40 percent over the past few years, she would like to see it reduced more. She said the city must continue its vigilant efforts to fight crime.

"No matter what the crime rate, if it happens to your neighbor or to you it's too high," she said, adding that all the neighborhood and business district improvements aren't any good if people are afraid.

A strong supporter of recycling, she said that while she learned about the necessity of recycling back in grade school, she is amazed that we are still talking about doing it. She said her block was one of the six in the five Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods that recently completed a pilot curb-side recycling program.

She said the key to having a successful recycling program is to make it "user friendly" and convenient. It has to be a curb-side, Pointes-wide program, she said, adding that she wouldn't mind seeing the Park lead the way, though.

Miller said she has never thought of senior housing as a problem in Grosse Pointe Park. She said there is a wide range of housing in the Park to meet any income level. While she said she would be willing to investigate whether special housing for seniors should be built, she is opposed to high-rises, which aren't good for senior citizens anyway, she said.

"It's a very important time for the city," she said. "The entire nature of the council could change. I don't want to see that happen."

"I want to make sure our council acts on the concerns of all citizens."

Valerie Moran

A lifelong Grosse Pointe resident, Moran, 42, has been very active in volunteer work, particularly with the school district.

Valerie Moran

"I've always been in the background," she said, "now people have said I should get in the forefront."

She held various leadership positions with the Pierce Middle School PTO and the Grosse Pointe South High School Mothers Club. She has a bachelor's degree in teaching home economics and a master's from Wayne State University in vocational education. She has taught on contract and as a substitute with the Grosse Pointe school district.

She said she really likes what she sees going on in the TIFA district between Wayburn and Beaconsfield. "We need to make the outer edge strong to make the rest of the community strong," she said.

She said the Park will be seeing a lot of good changes soon on Jefferson because of the DDA plans.

Moran said she helped create the first Neighborhood Watch program for her St. Paul neighborhood, and she is very pleased that crime is down some 40 percent over the past few years.

"It's very important to be able to go out of your house at 3 in the afternoon or 3 in the morning and be safe," she said. While crime is declining, she said the Park cannot relax. "It's amazing how much of a difference (in crime) we can make," she said.

Moran is a strong supporter of recycling. "I see that as the wave of the future," she said.

Because the Grosse Pointe-Clinton Disposal Authority handles the waste stream of all the Pointes, Moran said the authority should hire a recycling specialist to organize the Pointes' recycling efforts. She would also like to see the city use recycled products whenever they are economically feasible.

Concerning housing for senior citizens, Moran said she would like to see the council create a senior citizens advisory board, and would like an emergency alert system set up for medical and safety emergencies.

Like the other candidates in the Park, Moran has been going door to door, sending out literature and attending "coffee's." She said that just running for the council and campaigning has been a learning experience.

Nancy J. Pilorget

Pilorget, 42, is chairwoman of the Grosse Pointe Park Beautification Commission and a teacher at Detroit's Denby High School. Her reason for running for the council is "to conserve and maintain the beauty and quality of life in the Park," according to her campaign literature.

Nancy J. Pilorget

She said she chose now to run for the council because two seats on the council are not being sought by incumbents. She said her 5-1/2 years on the Beautification Commission, including three as chairman, give her experience working with city government.

As a longtime student of political science with a bachelor's degree in political and social sciences and a master's in international education, Pilorget believes she has the leadership abilities to help the Park enter the next century. She also has business experience as vice president of her and her husband's landscape/construction business.

As a member of the Beautification Commission, Pilorget is very aware of the improvements in the TIFA district between Wayburn and Beaconsfield. She said almost an entire block on Lakepointe could qualify for a beautification award. Of the 82 residential awards from the commission this year, many are sure to go to homes in the TIFA district.

"I think it's fantastic," she said of the TIFA program.

While Pilorget noted that crime has gone down significantly and said she did not believe crime is an issue in this campaign, she did think there are many little things residents can do to deter crime. She said that while campaigning door to door, she saw many front doors of homes wide open and unlocked. She said a simple latch will at least deter a thief.

She said the shift to a Public Safety Department was a good move and provides good, quick emergency response for Park residents.

Pilorget believes recycling is definitely part of what's required for planning for the future. She wholeheartedly supports recycling, but she also pointed out that for recycling to succeed in the Pointes and elsewhere, a market for recycled goods has to be created.

She pointed out that when she was studying in India 10 years ago, Americans at that time were already using 10 times the number of resources per capita as the people of India.

Pilorget is very concerned with the apparent lack of housing for senior citizens in the Pointes, and feels terribly that Grosse Pointe Park refused to take part in a Focus on Seniors study that would have determined the need for senior housing and would have made recommendations for the construction of the housing. The Park's share of the cost of the study would have been $6,000.

"I think it's very unfair for someone who has lived in this community not to be able to continue to live here," she said. "I think we lose something of value when you don't have elderly citizens."

The most important issue facing the Park is the future, Pilorget said. She points to the maintenance of the aging infrastructure, such as the combined storm and sanitary sewer system, as something that has to be planned for. She said the future has to be planned. "We can't be content with the status quo," she said. "We can't say 'Isn't it wonderful now?' We have to say 'Won't it be wonderful then?'"

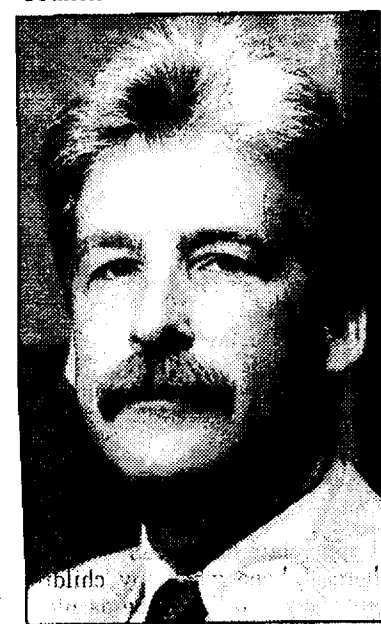

Pilorget has been an educator for 18 years and has lived in the Park with her family for 14 years. She is a member of the Grosse Pointe Park Foundation, active in the choir and on the peacemaking committee at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, a member of the Defer Elementary School PTO and a supporter of the arts in Detroit.

On the Beautification Commission, her leadership has seen the beginning of the Arbor Week and City Flower programs and she has helped monitor the Dutch elm disease program.

"I think I'm doing a good job," she said, "and I think I can do a better job as a council member."

James E. Robson Jr.

Robson, 41, is the only council member running for re-election. He is being endorsed by Mayor Palmer Heenan, Mayor Pro Tem Vernon K. Ausherman and Councilman Dan Clark.

James E. Robson Jr.

He is a lieutenant with the Wayne County Sheriff's Department and has 15 years of law enforcement experience. He has a bachelor's degree in secondary education from Wayne State University and a master's in criminal justice from the University of Detroit.

A Beaconsfield resident in the Cabbage Patch, Robson knows firsthand what the TIFA program has meant for his neighborhood. "It's near and dear to my heart," he said of the Northwest TIFA district. "I encouraged it." Robson described the program that captures property tax dollars to be put back into the community as a lifeline for his section of the Park.

Robson also pointed out that the area benefits from city assisted loans for income properties, resident owners and low income borrowers.

"You can't go through the area without seeing work being done," he said of the Northwest TIFA district. "That whole area is bursting with confidence."

The incumbent councilman is also excited about the Downtown Development Authority on Jefferson. He pointed out how well the The Pointes Office Centre at Westchester turned out, and he's looking forward to development on Jefferson at Barrington, which will mean a new building for Michigan National Bank and other office tenants.

He is concerned about the Lakepointe Oldsmobile building remaining vacant. He was disappointed to see a recent developer's plans be voted down by the council. Because of residents' concerns, Robson voted against the developer's plans to put a pasta factory in the building, he said. He said other parties have recently expressed interest in the building.

Robson said recycling is a very important issue, and everyone is in support of it, including himself. "I think we're proceeding judiciously," he said of the recycling efforts in the Pointes thus far.

On environmental issues, Robson said he introduced a resolution to the council in opposition to the Detroit incinerator. The resolution was tabled, however.

Concerning the Focus on Seniors $6,000 appropriation request for a study on senior housing, Robson said the money would have been a "silly appropriation" as far as the Park is concerned.

First, he said that there are plenty of rental housing in moderate and high income ranges. And, second, he said the four-story apartment building across from the Park fire house is almost 100 percent occupied by older residents — though the occupancy by older residents didn't happen by design.

Robson is proud of his mandatory rental dwelling inspection ordinance he sponsored that was adopted by the council. The ordinance requires that all rental units in the Park be inspected every four years to make sure they are up to code. The inspections are not restricted to whether the property has changed ownership.

He is also proud of the new Public Safety Auxiliary formed in the Park. He said the $10,000 start up cost was well worth it. The auxiliaries go through training and help out in emergencies, as well as the traditional parade duty. The auxiliaries also have to serve at least eight hours on duty a month, and all the auxiliary officers will be on the streets on Halloween.

Robson also pointed out that crime in the Park is down 18 percent last year and 42 percent over the past four years. He also pointed out that the Park has a new city manager who can help take the city into the 1990s.

Over the past four years, there's been a tremendous turnaround in the Park, Robson said, but he warned that the city and its leaders cannot rest on their laurels. He said the city has an outstanding mayor and a good City Council, and he looks forward to at least a couple of new council members.

"We're working hard," he said of the council and city administration. "Community confidence has never been higher."

Dean Peter Valente

Valente, 30, is looking to take over his brother Mark Valente III's position on the council, from which his older brother resigned recently due to his appointment with the federal government in Washington, D.C.

Dean Peter Valente

Valente said community service is a tradition with the Valente family, and he hopes to take over from where his brother left off, though he does have his own opinions on the issues.

Valente is a lawyer with his own practice on Mack in Grosse Pointe City. He earned his law degree at the University of Detroit Law School and his undergraduate degree from Villanova University.

A lifelong Grosse Pointe Park resident, Valente said he (and his brother) are the third generation of Valentes to live in the Park. He said this is his first attempt at public office himself, although he has worked on many other campaigns, including those of Presidents Reagan and Bush.

Valente believes the TIFA program has been a wonderful success. He said it has solidified property values in the northwest district, and people are moving into the area to raise families.

Likewise, he said the TIFA district has helped encourage business improvements on Mack and Kercheval on Jefferson through the DDA. He said it usually takes one home or one business to act as a catalyst for others. He would like to see more foot traffic on Mack that would encourage more retailers to locate there. He optimistically hopes the improvements in the Park would have a ripple effect that would reach across Mack Avenue.

He agrees that the medians planned for Mack will act as an attractive entranceway for the Park and will make the Jefferson business district that much more appealing to business.

Concerning crime, Valente said it's important that the message get out that crime is dropping. He said it's a matter of perception vs. reality, and the reality is that crime has dropped some 40 percent in recent years.

He said the Public Safety Department has done an excellent job.

He said he favors upgrading the ambulance service in the Park from basic to limited advanced, which is reportedly being considered in the Park. He said any further steps, such as going to paramedics, would require a lot of study as to the economic feasibility of the upgrade.

Valente is a strong advocate of recycling, and he said he has helped out on Saturday mornings at South High School when recyclable goods are being collected. He said education and convenience are important to make recycling work, and he said the cities in the Pointes would be near-sighted not to work together on recycling.

He further believes the Pointes should get a good recycling program going before higher levels of government make recycling mandatory.

Concerning senior housing, Valente said the first problem is that people automatically equate senior housing with low-income housing, which is not necessarily a correct assumption. Another problem he said is a lack of land in the Pointes to build any kind of senior housing, no matter what the income level of the tenants.

Valente said he has an excellent background in business and law that will make him an asset to the council. Furthermore, he said he can help the council plan for the city's future. While community involvement is important to his family, he said he is at the point in his life and career where he can make a commitment to the city.

"I feel it's the right time to give back to the community," he said.

Art J. Williams

Williams, 63, is a retired master plumber, engineer and former president of two corporations. But he is most known in recent Park history because of his relentless efforts to block expansion of Detroit City Airport.

Arthur J. Williams

A resident of the Pointes for 40 years — 22 of those years in the Park — Williams has most of his adult life invested here, and he has been working for five years to see that the proposed airport expansion doesn't rob him and residents of all of the Pointes of their investments in the community.

He said he began fighting the airport expansion before anyone else knew enough to be concerned. At first, he was a voice in the wilderness.

Thanks to his efforts — and those of others since those first lonely days — the Pointes now have a firm legal standing in fighting any airport expansions.

that will diminish the quality of life in the Pointes. He said the airport expansion could not only cause air pollution and increase the risk of airplane mishaps here, but the expansion could negatively affect property values.

He has already seen a proposed east-west runway at City Airport scrapped, much to his relief and that of others in the Pointes, but he has also been able to influence the airport expansion by getting appointed to Detroit's airport committee.

He is a co-chairman of the Grosse Pointe-Harper Woods Study Committee for Detroit City Airport. He said a master expansion of the airport has yet to be launched. Some 300 aircraft a day are expected to land or take off at the airport's proposed 8,600-foot runway, which is long enough to handle anything that flies, Williams said.

In the meantime, there's flight patterns and hours of operation to worry about. Because of his inside track with the airport committees, however, "We now know what's going on before it happens," he said. He said he and his co-chair, Jack King of Grosse Pointe City, are now able to communicate not only with Southwest Airlines, but also with Detroit Mayor Coleman

Young.

Concerning the TIFA projects, Williams said it is a delight to see the improvements being made. "It's so upbeat and it really makes you proud," he said.

"I think Grosse Pointe Park is really alive, especially if I have anything to do with it," he added. "I'm really committed to maintaining the residential integrity of the community."

He said the Park should strictly adhere to its earlier master plan, which would protect residential areas. He was relieved to see the Lakepointe Olds proposal denied. He felt a pasta factory was totally inappropriate for the site which abuts residential property.

With all the rental units in the Park, Williams does not think senior housing is a problem as it is in the other Pointes. And he is opposed to any congregate or subsidized housing in the Pointes.

Williams cites the Public Safety Department's increased presence on the streets as a major factor for less crime. He also favors looking seriously at having Korte Road closed at the Detroit border, as some residents have proposed.

He favors recycling efforts in the Pointes and says recycling is actually conservation in its purest form. He believes mandating the use of recycled products would help create a market for recyclable materials.

Besides constant vigilance as far as a City Airport is concerned, Williams believes maintaining the quality of life and the residential character of the Park are two big concerns of his.

He favors the hiring of an animal control officer to enforce restrictions on pets and to assist in doing something about the raccoons and opossums proliferating in the Park. He also favors inspecting homes for radon, asbestos and other toxins, and he would consider a city tax on businesses.

Williams has a mechanical engineering degree from Michigan State University and is a licensed plumber. As a past president of two corporations during his career, he has extensive experience working with governmental agencies of all levels, he said.

He said he is "actively retired" and has the time to put into city government.

Six candidates vie for four Farms council seats

By Dan Jarvis
Staff Writer

Three incumbents and three challengers will seek four council seats in the Farms Nov. 7.

Mayor Joseph L. Fromm and two incumbent council members, John Crowley and Gail Kaess are seeking re-election, as challengers John Danaher, John F. DeHayes and LeRoy H. Wulfmeier seek their first elected office.

The fourth incumbent whose term expires this year, Bruce Rockwell, will not seek another term on the council.

Contrary to the other Pointes, the Farms council elects the mayor from its membership. Fromm, the current mayor, must be re-elected to the council before he can make his bid for the mayoral seat.

John M. Crowley

A lifelong resident of the Farms, Crowley earned a bachelor of science degree from the University of Detroit and serves as a loan officer with Manufacturers Bank in Detroit.

John M. Crowley

Crowley, 29, is seeking his second four-year term and has served as an employee of the Farms Parks and Recreation Department. He has served on several committees in the Farms, including the Parks and Harbor Committee and the Library Study and Finance Committee.

Commenting on the recent judicial primary, Crowley said the unfortunate incident of mishandled ballots by the wife of candidate Paul Gracey has been costly to the city, the county and the state.

The construction of parking areas serving the Hill has not kept up with building projects, he said, and a lack of parking has resulted. As a member of the city ad-hoc committee studying the problem, Crowley said recent actions such as reconstruction of the city lot and a restructuring of the parking rate system will help to solve the problem.

Rates will not be a problem, he said, because many of the Hill merchants have agreed to validate parking stubs so the customer does not have to pay to shops on the Hill.

Recycling in the Pointes is going well, Crowley said, and the City Council should support recycling efforts by educating residents through information.

John Danaher

A 21-year resident of the Pointes, challenger John Danaher, 37, earned a bachelor's degree from Bowdoin College and a management certificate from Yale University. He currently serves as vice president of development for Cottage Hospital and is a trustee for the Grosse Pointe Farms Foundation.

John Danaher

While most of the candidates see the recent judicial primary as unfortunate, Danaher thinks the staff at the Farms City Hall should have known the proper procedure for the distribution of absentee ballots.

Hill parking and the recent plan by the ad-hoc parking committee, Danaher said, represents the best of what a small town is all about. He said many residents in the area are in support of the plan, which includes the newly constructed lot and a raise in parking rates.

"If it doesn't solve the parking plan, then it should be reconsidered. Nothing has been cast in stone."

On recycling, Danaher said he feels strongly that recycling efforts should be expanded and that any recycling plan should involve all five Pointes.

Senior housing is an issue of concern. He said local city councils need to investigate the need for senior housing to get the issue to the public.

Danaher is seeking his first public office "to help the council do a better job."

John F. DeHayes Jr.

Seeking his first public office, DeHayes, 40, is a third generation resident of the Grosse Pointes. He holds a bachelor's degree in business administration. He is an account manager at Complex America, an automotive supplier.

As a member of the Grosse Pointe Farms Ordinance Enforcement Committee, DeHayes was instrumental in forming the recently adopted ordinance regulating the exterior property maintenance of businesses and homes.

Like the other candidates for council, DeHayes thinks the recent primary and resulting criminal charges were an unfortunate series of incidents. He believes there was no malice on anyone's part. DeHayes also hopes that the incident will not have a detrimental effect on the absentee ballot system.

While DeHayes is in favor of the city's recent parking lot restructuring and rate hike, he feels that Hill employees should park farther away from the Hill to provide more room for customer parking.

DeHayes is also in favor of recent recycling efforts and applauds the Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling for initiating successful recycling efforts. If elected, DeHayes would seek an all-Pointes recycling effort and would call for a total ban on the incineration of refuse materials.

DeHayes is seeking a seat on the council because he wants to retain the charm of the Pointes.

"I grew up in the Pointes and I appreciate how nice it is to live here. I hope when my children grow up it will still be as nice," he said.

Joseph L. Fromm

Incumbent Joseph L. Fromm, 59, currently serving as mayor, was elected to the mayoral seat by the other council members. He has been on the City Council since 1973 and mayor since 1986.

Joseph L. Fromm

Fromm earned a master's degree in business administration from Harvard University and currently performs consulting work with Fiduciary Advisors Inc. He is also the pensions assessment director with Eastern Airlines.

Regarding the recent judicial primary, Fromm said the city should not have allowed the absentee ballots to be handed out inappropriately and that steps have been taken so that the mistake will not occur again.

The Farms mayor said while the newly designed city lot on the Hill created several new parking spots, they may not be long enough. Fromm said a row in the lot may have to be set aside for compact cars.

The overall plan as suggested by the ad-hoc parking committee and approved by the City Council will solve the Hill's parking problem. The biggest problem Fromm said is the use of metered areas along Kercheval. Many people let the meters expire, which may force the city to hire additional parking enforcement officers.

Fromm said the city may eventually have to install a parking deck over the Richard Elementary School lot to create additional parking space. The problem is the high cost. Fromm said the cost for a deck at the location will cost in excess of $6 million — or about $3,000 per parking space.

Another issue, Fromm said, is high traffic flows on residential streets adjacent to the Hill, such as McKinley and McMillan. Solutions proposed include closing Moran at Mack Avenue to re-route traffic toward Kerby or Moross. Another solution involves closing off McMillan in front of Richard School to lighten the traffic flows onto McMillan and to protect young students.

Gail Kaess

Seeking her third four-year term on the council, Gail Kaess, 49, earned a bachelor's degree from Michigan State University and has lived in the Farms for 22 years. She is a senior research analyst working in the office of the Wayne County executive.

Gail Kaess

Kaess, who is eyeing the seat for mayor pro tem, said it is a shame that the employees at City Hall who handed out absentee ballots for the recent judicial primary did not know the correct procedure for ballot distribution. "It makes everyone look wrong," Kaess said.

Like other candidates, Kaess thinks there is a lack of parking for employees and customers in the Hill area. The reason: Construction of parking areas in the Hill area have not kept up with building projects, resulting in a lack of parking.

Kaess said the parking plan as outlined by the city's ad-hoc parking committee, is a good plan and the residents need to try it. Like Mayor Fromm, Kaess thinks the spaces in the city lot are not long enough.

Parking rates, Kaess said, are reasonable and should not be a problem since many merchants have agreed to validate parking stubs.

Involved in local recycling efforts, Kaess supports recycling and calls on all five Grosse Pointes to develop curbside pickup of recycled materials. Having traveled throughout the state, Kaess said recycling is the No. 1 issue in the state.

Senior housing is another issue Kaess would like to see local municipalities tackle. "Senior citizens are calling out for housing. Many have lived here all their lives, and they want to stay in the Pointes."

Kaess said nothing less than a cooperative effort between all five Pointes will solve the lack of senior housing in the area.

Kaess also thinks increased traffic on McMillan is an issue calling for a solution. Kaess said better traffic signs to route traffic onto larger streets are the best solution. She is opposed to closing off streets like Moran (at Mack Avenue), and she feels the situation should be studied by the council.

LeRoy H. Wulfmeier III

A challenger for a seat on the Farms council is LeRoy H. Wulfmeier III.

LeRoy Wulfmeier III

Six elected to board

Richard W. Kay, Ronald C. Lamparter, Frances B. Mead, Ronald C. Morketter, Bruce M. Rockwell and Frank J. Sladen Jr. were elected to the board of directors of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial Association at its 41st annual meeting Oct. 5 in the Fries Ballroom.

Lamparter and Rockwell (term to begin Nov. 8) were elected to the 16-member volunteer board for three year terms, filling vacancies left by the departure of John D. Lewis, outgoing board chairman, and Wesley R. Johnson. Kay, Morketter, Mead and Sladen were re-elected to second three-year terms.

Also serving on the board are A. Stewart Kerr, chairman, Charles W. Davis Jr., John D. Durno, M. Jane Kay, Margot W. Kessler, William B. Lafer, Kenneth G. Meade, Barbara N. Weiss, John F. Youngblood, and Frances D. Shelden, honorary member.

2 dogs caught after biting kids

Two children were bitten by a couple of dogs at large last week before police were able to catch the animals Oct. 19.

Park officers responded to a call at 7:20 a.m. of a Doberman pinscher and a Bouvier running loose near Defer Elementary and Pierce Middle schools. The officers were able to confine the animals in a rear yard, but not before two children had been bitten, according to police reports.

The city veterinarian was called and the animals were tranquilized. The dogs are being held at an animal clinic.

The injuries to the children were minor, and Public Safety Director Richard J. Caretti praised the officers' quick actions which prevented the possibility of more serious injury to the children.

An attorney and co-founder of the Grosse Pointe Property Owners Association (the group opposing a liquor license at the War Memorial), Wulfmeier is seeking his first public office.

Born in St. Louis, Wulfmeier, 44, has been a Grosse Pointe resident since 1966.

Regarding the recent judicial primary, Wulfmeier said, "It is sad when this type of situation raises its ugly head. It was a combination of errors on the part of the clerk's office and Mrs. Gracey.

"Technically, she has done something wrong, but to establish punishment is punishment without a crime," Wulfmeier said.

He said the current parking plan on the Hill is not going to please everyone. What is important is that the plan makes parking easier for customers. "Others should not be allowed to park on the Hill."

Regarding parking fees, Wulfmeier said, if the goal of the committee and the city is to get the customers to the Hill, then the city should do everything possible to attract customers.

Wulfmeier said while he is a neophyte in the political arena, he is a good candidate because he can bring a voice to the council which is not being heard.

"A fresh approach can be helpful in dealing with issues," Wulfmeier said.

The War Memorial, administered by Mark R. Weber, president, was established in 1949 as a non-profit civic, cultural and educational association honoring those Grosse Pointers who served in our country's armed forces.

Throughout the year, the association sponsors classes, workshops, educational travel opportunities and special events for all ages. The activities are outlined in a calendar of events sent bi-monthly to all households in the Grosse Pointe school district.

In addition, the historic War Memorial facility, with the adjacent Fries ballroom and auditorium, is a popular site for meetings, conferences, dinners, theatrical performances, concerts and receptions. During fiscal year 1988/89, the association hosted or sponsored 4,500 individual activities with over 189,000 participants in attendance.

The War Memorial is located at 32 Lakeshore Road in the Farms. Membership in the association is open to all contributors to the War Memorial's Annual Fund Campaign which runs from November through May. For more information about the War Memorial, call 881-7511.

Wallet snatched; culprit caught

Quick action by the Grosse Pointe City and Park police departments led to the arrest of a wallet snatcher Oct. 23.

A pedestrian's wallet was grabbed by a man on a bicycle at Cadieux and Maumee at about 10 a.m. The man's description was broadcast on police radio, and Park police arrested the suspect in the 1400 block of Bishop after a chase on foot. The 33-year-old Detroit man was turned over to City police.

Halloween means another "Halloween" at theaters near you.

'Halloween V' is like its predecessors

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

OK. It's October. It's getting colder. It's getting close to Halloween. You know, of course, what this means.

Time for another sequel to John Carpenter's "Halloween," the movie that set into motion the endless series of boogie-men-who-don't die horror pictures. This fall's offering is chapter five, subtitled "The Revenge of Michael Meyers."

I'll bet that really sets your pulse in motion, eh?

You remember Mr. Meyers. He's the raving mad psychopath who kills teenagers and anybody else who gets in his way. And also people who don't get in his way. And animals, too.

So you know this much going in: Michael is going to slice, dice, butcher and bash about 57,000 people, mostly attractive teenage girls whose IQs match their chest sizes. Meanwhile, Donald Pleasence, who is looking like he's been in three too many of these films already, will run around imploring people to listen to him.

Michael is the epitome of all evil, he yells. He's got those menacing eyes, after all. Those killer instincts.

Why doesn't anyone remember? Indeed, of all the lunacy in a picture like this, that has to be the biggest of all. The senseless killings are a drag. The dialogue and storyline being repeated over and over is a drag, too.

But maybe — maybe — we could deal with the redundancy if the characters demonstrated even a slight degree of intelligence. Instead, they don't have a clue about their situation.

If you pay attention to such things, you know that only one year has passed since Meyers disappeared. Even some of the same characters are back from last time. Why do they wander into empty houses alone? Why do they pretend Michael doesn't exist? Why do they think that a pistol is going to kill him when flamethrowers and bazookas and nuclear bombs have failed in the past four films?

Why indeed. Mostly because somewhere out there audiences buy into this kind of thing. And the producers know audiences will continue to buy into this kind of thing. In this installment, a dark, sinister character (other than Michael) who wears distinctive shoes lurks in the background. We never do figure out what he wants. Instead, he wanders into the corner of the frame in the last sequence, whetting our appetite for "Halloween VI."

That's how sure they are that there will be another installment. I wouldn't bet against it. Like it or not, October rolls around every year.

Formal Italian concert planned Nov. 4 at Macomb Center

Replete with tenor and soprano voices to enhance their "Italia" theme, the 35 formally trained musicians who carry on the Mantovani tradition of style and elegance will appear in concert at 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 4, at Macomb Center for the Performing Arts.

Known around the world and through the years for the distinctive sound of its cascading strings, the Mantovani Orchestra's program will feature a selection of traditional melodies, folk songs and operatic arias that reflect the diverse musical moods of Italy, the country of Mantovani's birth.

The program will salute masterworks from such notable composers as Verdi, Puccini and Rossini and present a montage of the country's gay, melancholic and heroic songs.

Singing duets as well as solos will be soprano Cristina Fontanelli, best known for her appearances in opera and on Italian television, and lyric tenor Robert Trentham, an American who has performed with several opera companies, including the New York Opera Ensemble and the American Chamber Opera.

The touring orchestra bearing the Mantovani name is directed by British guest conductor Royston Nash, who has conducted extensively in Italy, Germany, Holland and Denmark. Specializing in opera, symphony and chamber music, he twice has toured the United States, performing at Washington's Kennedy Center and New York's Lincoln Center.

Mantovani, one of the most successful developers of light concert music, had a career that spanned 35 years, four continents and a sale of more than a million recordings. Before he died in 1980, he was credited with introducing more people to the concert hall than any other performer before him.

Tickets are $17 for adults and $15.25 for students and senior citizens. They may be obtained at the Center's box office or reserved on credit card by calling 286-2222, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. The Center is located on the Center Campus of Macomb Community College at Hall (M-59) and Garfield roads in Clinton Township.

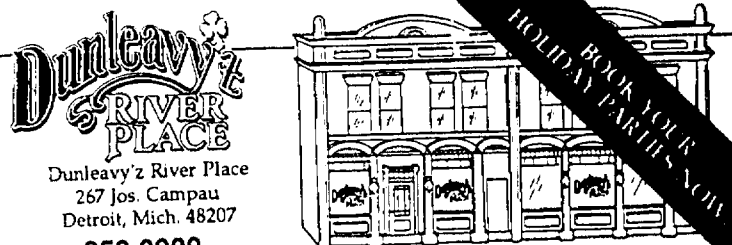

Auction to benefit symphony

The fourth annual Autumn Auction, to benefit the Lake St. Clair Symphony Orchestra, will be held Sunday, Oct. 29, from 1 to 6 p.m. at the Shores Banquet Club, 24255 Harper in St. Clair Shores.

Items to be auctioned include art collectibles, automotive and electrical, business and professional services, clothing and jewelry, entertainment and travel, food and beverages, health and beauty, home improvements, decorations, music, recreation and sports, and lotteries.

The orchestra annually provides scholarships and grants to students. Admission is $10 and includes hors d'oeuvres and beverages, music and entertainment. Tickets are on sale now. Call 776-1012.

'The Fabulous Baker Boys' is one of season's best films

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

Smoky, down-at-the-heels glamour, a stretched out and vibrating sexual tension and three characters who both complement and complicate each others lives make "The Fabulous Baker Boys" one entertaining, not-to-be-missed film.

Its sultry, intimate style fascinates and draws the viewer right into the center of a story that is laced with laughs and framed with a dark edge.

It is the story of two brothers, Frank (Beau Bridges) and Jack (Jeff Bridges), who have been playing piano together for 15 years. We catch their act in a depressing, plastic bar where the few patrons ignore Frank's friendly warm-up patter and worse, pay no attention to their tired, Muzak repertoire. To add insult to injury, the proprietor pays them for another night's work with the understanding that they don't show up.

This abysmal dismissal doesn't disturb Frank. He's a head-in-the sand optimist. He believes in the act. Jack, who is more in tune with reality, takes it at face value. A talented musician, he hates the act and hates himself for not breaking away from it.

He hangs in because of Frank who does the hard work. Frank makes all the contacts, pays the bills and sees that Jack shows up on time. He is a solid character with an off-screen wife and kids to support, and a house in the suburbs with a mortgage.

Jack lives in a run-down walk-up with his dog and tries to find some relief for his frustrated career in playing jazz in after-hours bars.

So much for the brothers. In desperation Frank decides that adding a girl singer to their act might spice it up.

In a very funny scene, we see the brothers audition some of the worst talent ever assembled anywhere — all 35 of them in short takes. Frank dismisses each of them in a crisp business-like tone. Jack just plays the accompaniment, but when the camera cuts to him we see his ill-concealed disdain.

Just as the boys are about to fold up, in stumbles Susie Diamond (Michelle Pfeiffer) swearing up a storm, holding a broken heel in her hand and the screen becomes alive with her electric magnetism.

From that point on, she becomes the focal point of the film. When Frank refuses to audition her, she gives him a hard time, strips off her coat and begins to sing in a seductive voice that sends out sexy vibrations that mesmerizes them. Their tired old act becomes charged with fire and passion. Frank is elated. The success he has always dreamed of is his. The three are invited to perform in clubs and lounges they had never been in before.

A hint of discord begins to creep in. Frank senses an attraction between this dynamite singer and his handsome brother who, in spite of his coolness, sends out strong sexual vibrations.

On New Year's Eve, Frank is called home because of a family emergency. Susie and Jack are left alone for the first time to carry on the act. Susie makes the most of it. In an unforgettable scene that brings down the house, Susie sings "Making Whoopee" like it has never been sung before as she slithers around the top of the piano in a skin-tight red velvet sheath. It's a show stopper and a lead-in to a scene that follows.

The merry-makers have left. Balloons and confetti are scattered around the empty dance floor, lamps on the empty tables cast a deep warm glow and Susie and Jack are still reeling from her torchy "Whoopie." The time has come for the two to let down their defenses. In one of the sexiest scenes ever on screen, they begin their lovemaking. We never see the culmination, but the heat generated by the scene is more exciting than any explicit bedroom scene.

Filmmaker Steve Kloves writes and directs with unusual wit, maturity and attention to detail. He piques interest by holding back the past of his characters and their motives.

Pfeiffer ("Dangerous Liaisons," "Married to the Mob") scores high in her bombshell singer role as Susie Diamond.

Jeff Bridges effectively projects the frustrated artist who suppresses his talent to keep his brother happy and hides behind a noncommittal attitude, while at the same time giving off an air of sexiness.

Beau Bridges is equally good as the out-going brother who brushes off setbacks by pretending they never happened and refuses to face the fact that he is not a talented performer. The cast members' ingenuous musical performances are one of the film's attractions as are the rich hues of Michael Balhaus' cinematography.

While Pfeiffer stands out, "The Fabulous Baker Brothers" is an ensemble achievement. All three stars shine in one of the best of this season's offerings.

British Columbia Chucklelogue part of travel series

Photographer-humorist Stan Midgley, known in travelogue circles as "Mark Twain of the Camera," will present his British Columbia Chucklelogue two nights running at Macomb Center for the Performing Arts.

The film-and-narration presentations — at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 8, and Thursday, Nov. 9 — are part of the Center's popular Travel Series, coordinated by lecturer and TV personality Dennis Glen Cooper and sponsored by AAA Travel Agency.

Known for his wit as well as the credibility of his films, Midgley first appeared on the George Pierrat "World Adventure" television series in Detroit in the 1950s. Through the years his humorous way of telling a story, combined with unique sound effects and music, earned him his "Mark Twain" reputation.

His British Columbia travelogue begins in California when he heads north aboard Gus, his 1957 model camper truck with more than 250,000 miles on it. The trek takes him past Washington's Mount Ranier and then in to the Canadian province where he films its scenic attractions, including breathtaking mountains, fish-filled lakes and seemingly endless forests.

Along the way, his camera focuses on century-old settlements, 50-mile-long fjords, springtime in Vancouver, the Trans-Canada Highway, the Continental Divide and 1,248-foot Takakkaw Falls.

Tickets for all Travel Series programs are $4.50 for adults and $4 for students and senior citizens. They may be obtained at the center's box office or reserved on credit card by calling 286-2222, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. The Center is located on the Center Campus of Macomb Community College at Hall (M-59) and Garfield roads in Clinton Township.

Weavers to exhibit

The Michigan Weaver's Guild will present the seventh annual exhibit and sale of weavings representing the work of more than 100 weavers from Southeastern Michigan and Southwestern Ontario on Nov. 9, 10, 11 and 12, at the Orchard Mall at Orchard Lake Road and Maple in West Bloomfield.

There will be demonstrations of weaving and spinning during the show and various artists will be there to discuss their crafts and to answer questions.

Pontchartrain Wine Cellars: Part of Detroit's long history

By Dan Jarvis
Staff Writer

When Joe and Mollie Beyer pour you a Cold Duck near the end of a cool evening, you can bet you're tasting a bit of history.

As owners of the highly acclaimed Pontchartrain Wine Cellars in Detroit, the place where the famous drink was invented, the couple has poured more than a few in the 32 years since he began working as a manager.

The history of the Wine Cellars dates back to Detroit's glamorous days of long, sleek automobiles and high style. More than just another stylish restaurant, the Wine Cellars was and still is a place for people and good conversation, a fact that the Beyers have not forgotten.

Both longtime residents of the Pointes, they both attended Richard Elementary School in 1930, as part of the school's first kindergarten class. They went on to Grosse Pointe High School, now South High.

Upon graduation in 1943, she entered the Western College for Women, where among other subjects, she studied home economics. And though she graduated magna cum laude in her class, Mrs. Beyer said she "cooks as little as possible, which pleases everyone."

Upon his high school graduation, Beyer ventured off to Michigan State University, where he had a hard time with hotel-restaurant school and decided to become a commercial photographer.

So how did this unlikely couple go on to become successful restaurateurs?

Research.

"We like to try other menus for ideas," Mrs. Beyer said. "We have to know what the competition is doing."

"Neighbors, not competition," Beyer said, attempting to correct his wife.

"Not all of them are neighbors," she countered. Mrs. Beyer was referring to bistros in Paris, Rome, Munich and American cities like New York, Chicago and San Francisco, where the couple travel in search of new ideas.

One reason for the success of the Wine Cellars is the Beyers' gift of gab and respect for their customers.

"We have fun doing it," he said. "The people keep you stimulated and there is always something new every day. You have to enjoy being around people."

Mrs. Beyer agreed.

"Many of our customers are like family," she said. "They really have become the heart of our business."

Indeed, a quick glance at the decorated walls and you'll notice plaques installed above many of the tables in honor of faithful customers. Some have people's names etched in brass and some denote historic events such as the establishment of the second largest charity wine auction in the United States, to benefit the Detroit Community Music School, now part of Detroit's Center for Creative Studies.

One plaque was installed for a customer who never missed lunch at the Wine Cellars and always sat at a particular table. When the customer later died, the Beyers, out of respect, left the table empty during a busy lunch rush.

Also gracing the bistro's walls is an impressive collection of hand-drawn artworks, most donated by friends, artists and media cartoonists. One such work by a friend features a detailed sketch of the Alexander III Bridge in Paris.

"He came upon the bridge and did not have a sketch pad," Beyer explained. "So he made his wife put her shopping items in her pockets, took her shopping bag, tore it and made the sketch."

Perhaps the most eye-catching decorations are several light fixtures made from 110-year-old grapevines from the Chateau de Lascombes, in the Bordeaux winemaking region of France.

Beyer's history in the restaurant business doesn't go back quite that far, but there is some interesting history just the same.

In 1951, eight years after both the Beyers graduated from Joe and Mollie Beyer stand at the barrel-shaped bar at the Pontchartrain Wine Cellars in downtown Detroit. Both longtime Pointe residents, the Beyers share a gift for conversation and a respect for customers which has made the restaurant popular in the area for several decades.

Grosse Pointe High School, he began working for Francois, a restaurant on Mack Avenue near Cadieux. Earlier, Francois was located on Fisher Road near the high school and became prominent in 1938 after Life Magazine ran a story on the Grosse Pointes.

By coincidence, the Wine Cellars manager, Lena Connolly, had earlier worked for Beyer at Francois. Beyer later managed a Chicken Delight at Mack and Canyon, then worked for Swift & Co.

He joined the Wine Cellars as a manager in the spring of 1957 and purchased the restaurant in 1971.

In 1935, the Pontch was located on Wayne Street, now Washington Boulevard. When Wayne Street was scheduled for widening into a boulevard, the restaurant was moved to its current location at 234 W. Larned, just east of Washington Boulevard.

The former owner, Harold Borgman, is credited with inventing Cold Duck.

A mislabeled drink from in Germany, Cold Duck at one time was the most popular sparkling wine in the United States.

Based on the German phrase meaning cool end of the evening, the drink features two parts dry burgundy and one part champagne. In Germany, when a bar was about to close for the night, wine was collected and combined with white sparkling wine and offered as the "cool end," or nightcap.

When Borgman tried mixing burgundy and champagne, the drink became a house specialty and remains popular today.

But somewhere, something got lost in translation, and cool end became a Cold Duck. The rest is history.

Veit

Monon Trailer, Inc. announced the appointment of Grosse Pointe Woods resident Jim Veit to branch manager of the company's newly acquired factory branch in Romulus. Veit comes to Monon with 18 years of industry experience in sales and marketing with Fruehauf. He will be responsible for marketing Monon's complete product line of new and used trailers, service and parts in eastern Michigan and northwest Ohio areas.

Jill A. Jentink of Grosse Pointe Park was named one of only two sales, service and marketing area managers for Saturn. Jentink began her GM career in 1980 as a district sales manager with the Chevrolet Motor Division. She was named metro district sales manager for Chevrolet in 1983 and became an assistant sales promotion manager for General Motors customer sales and service staff in 1984.

Jentink

Margaret McIntyre of Grosse Pointe Farms was named senior media planner for the Lincoln Mercury Dealer Association account at Young & Rubicam Detroit. Previously, McIntyre was media director for Marontate & Co.

Wright

Dick Wright of Grosse Pointe Park, longtime Detroit journalist and automobile columnist for the Grosse Pointe News, received a two-year appointment to direct Wayne State University's journalism program. Wright began his career as a copy aide at the Detroit Free Press in 1956, and most recently was an auto columnist and business editor at The Detroit News, which he left in 1988.

John Ballantyne of Grosse Pointe, senior vice president and director of client services of Baker Advertising Inc., has been named to the board of directors for Barat Human Services. Ballantyne will serve a four-year term, heading Barat's Development Committee. His responsibilities will include creating and executing a strategic plan.

Thomas P. Rhoades of Grosse Pointe was named corporate communications director of Ford Motor Company's public affairs. His office is responsible for corporate media relations and U.S. communications involving the company and its senior officers. In his new position, Rhoades oversees three departments: corporate news, broadcast news and technical and regulatory news.

Folk guitar taught

Alex Sucek, who has taught hundreds of individuals in the community to play guitar, once again offers his specially designed program of folk guitar at the War Memorial.

Classes meet Wednesdays, Nov. 1 to Dec. 13. Beginners class is held from 7-8 p.m.; intermediate students, from 8-9 p.m.

Sucek began playing guitar while a student at Harvard and member of a stock theater company. During that time, he met and worked with top performers such as Woody Guthrie, Cyril Richard and Theodore Bikel. He studied classical guitar for five years culminating in three private auditions with Andres Segovia.

He developed the course in response to widespread interest in guitar within the community. Using familiar songs as the basis for the lessons, students learn how to find chords and how to pluck and strum suitable rhythm for the songs.

Lessons are suitable for all ages. Students under 14 must have permission from the instructor.

Students are asked to bring their own classical style (nylon strings) guitars. Lesson sheets are provided. Courses fee is $45 for six one-hour sessions. For more information, call 881-7511.

A humane Halloween

While your children are collecting candy for themselves, the Michigan Humane Society is hoping they will take along a canister and collect money for abused animals. Canisters are available at Johnstone & Johnstone at 82 Kercheval on the Hill. They can be picked up any day and should be returned on Nov. 1. Some humane trick-or-treaters shown here are, back row from left, Diana Sefton, Sara Maters, Michael Formisano and Kate Feiss. In front from left are Emma Sefton, Peter Feiss, Rennie Pelman, Mathew Pelman and Patti Printz from Johnstone & Johnstone.

Quake relief

The senior class of Grosse Pointe North is holding a Shake for the Quake Dance Contest at the dance they are sponsoring after the North/South football game from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the North Commons Saturday, Oct. 28.

The class will donate all money collected from those who enter the contest to relief efforts in San Francisco. A percentage of the dance profits will go to help quake victims, too.

The $5 admission for the dance includes pizza and pop. The students will be asked for an extra dollar to enter the dance contest which will take place at 6:30 p.m. All students from both North and South are invited. For more information or to make a donation, call Merrie Gay Ayrault at 343-2027.

Holiday Spree: Shop-till-you-drop at benefit for St. John Fontbonne Auxiliary

By Margie Reins Smith
Feature Editor

The women of St. John Hospital's Fontbonne Auxiliary hope that many Grosse Pointers will go on holiday shopping sprees.

One stipulation: They hope that this shop-till-you-drop fever takes place on the evening of Saturday, Nov. 4, from 6 to 9 p.m., at the Country Club of Detroit, at the Fontbonne Auxiliary's fundraiser, the Holiday Spree.

The benefit will feature cocktails, hors d'oeuvres, music for dancing by The Classic Trio, a relatively inexpensive pricetag — $20 per person — and a chance to purchase some unique gifts.

Biddable fare will include furs, jewelry, men's and women's clothing, tickets to sports and entertainment happenings in Detroit, dinners at some fine Detroit restaurants, and a selection of unique special items.

The women of the Fontbonne Auxiliary are advising Holiday Spree attendees to bring their Christmas lists — and their checkbooks.

"You'll see everything you've always wanted for Christmas," they said, "and you'll have a chance to ask for it."

It's also a chance to get started shopping for others on your Christmas list, they said. Proceeds from the first-time fundraiser will go toward a new heart lung machine for St. John Hospital, according to Marilee Rinke, publicity chairman for the event. The machine replaces the function of the patient's heart while heart surgery is being performed.

Holiday Spree models will be wearing jewels by Edmund T. Ahee Jewelry Co., furs by Chudik's of Birmingham and fashions by Judith Ann and Hickey's, both of Grosse Pointe.

More than 60 silent auction items will be up for grabs, and a few biggies will be saved for an end-of-the-evening live auction by Larry DuMouchelle.

A sampling of some of the up-for-bid stuff:

- A roller skating party for 10
- Riding lessons at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club

- Symphony tickets
- Handmade chocolate candy
- A Lionel train set
- A case of wine
- A food processor

- Tickets to practically everywhere — the Michigan Opera Theatre, for instance. If that's not appealing, how about tickets to see the Detroit Red Wings or box seats for the Fox Theatre or tickets to Hilberry Theatre or tickets to fly anywhere on American Airlines or tickets to see the Detroit Tigers — and more.

- Dinners for two or more to practically anywhere in Detroit — the Roma Cafe or the Gnome Restaurant or the Traffic Jam or Joe Muer's or the London Chop House or a Coney Island — and more.

- His and her Ray-Ban sunglasses
- A clock and barometer
- A handmade porcelain doll
- A fruit basket
- A man's or woman's wristwatch
- A bird feeder
- A two-bedroom house for a week at Hilton Head

- A chalet up north in Michigan for a week
- A cheese and wine tray
- A tour of the News 4 newsroom and dinner with WDIV-TV anchorman Mort Crim
- A food processor
- And more

Sharon Burke is chairman of the event.

Co-chairman is Suanne Taylor. Committee members are Jane Young, auction; Maureen McCabe, decorations; Bonnie Burke, hostesses; Jane Postlethwaite and Kelly Burke, invitations; Maralyn Domzalski, models; Patricia Minnick and Nancy Burrows, reservations.

Patricia Young is president of the St. John Hospital and Medical Center Fontbonne Auxiliary and Verence McQuade, S.S.J., is director.

For more information about the Holiday Spree, call 343-3675. Reservations are requested.

The Fontbonne Auxiliary is an organization of more than 1,300 people who are dedicated to solving the health care needs of the community by supporting St. John Hospital.

The auxiliary was named in honor of Mother Saint John Fontbonne, who, in 1807, restored the congregation of the Sisters of Saint Joseph, which had been dispersed during the French Revolution.

Mother Saint John Fontbonne sent the first six Sisters of Saint Joseph to the United States in 1836.

The Auxiliary was organized in 1947 and has raised more than $4 million since then for the hospital. "We had donated $3,850,100 as of November, 1988," Rinke said. "We just gave the hospital another check for $320,000. That puts us at more than $4 million."

Call 343-3675 for more information.

AAUW holds seminar for girls, parents: 'Career Choices for Tomorrow's Women'

The Grosse Pointe branch of the American Association of University Women will sponsor "Career Choices for Tomorrow's Woman" on Saturday, Nov. 4 at Brownell Middle School, 360 Chalfonte, from 9 a.m. to noon.

A slate of outstanding local professionals will introduce the girls, and interested parents who attend, to today's range of careers plus the education, training, and personal effort necessary for success.

Jennifer Moore, national award-winning business editor for WDIV-TV will deliver the keynote address. A Phi Beta Kappa journalism graduate, Moore's reports appear daily at 6 p.m.

Following a continental breakfast and Moore's address, each attendee will meet in four in-depth sessions of her choice. The sciences will be presented by Laurie Townsend, Ph.D., of Grosse Pointe Park, professor of neurology at Wayne State University, assistant director of the surgical cell culture laboratory at Beaumont Hospital. Townsend has a patent pending for a laboratory test for Alzheimer's Disease. Many of her presentations at national scientific meetings have been published. Sandra Surch, D.V.M., practices at Harvey Memorial Animal Hospital in Detroit. Her specialty is small animal and equine care. Jackie Carew-Connrad of Grosse Pointe Farms works at Harper Woods Veterinary Hospital and specializes in small animals.

Susan Houtekier of Harper Woods is a clinical pharmacist at Henry Ford Hospital. A recent article which she co-authored entitled "Risk of Cerebral Hypoperfusion with Antihypertensive Therapy," was accepted for publication in the Annals of Pharmacotherapy.

Pamela Hammel, D.D.S., practices and resides in Grosse Pointe. Hammel won the American Dental Association commendation in 1988 for forensic services for flight 255.

Pamela Collier Fleming, M.D., of Grosse Pointe Park, is a staff member of Oakwood Hospital with dual specialties in internal and emergency medicine.

Ellen Chapin of Grosse Pointe Park is the current program director for the school of nuclear medicine at St. John Hospital. Business choices will be represented by Margit Jackson of Grosse Pointe Farms, a self-employed CPA. Jackson is a former professor of accounting at Oakland University in Rochester, Mich.

Debra Alexander of Grosse Pointe is personnel administrator for General Motors where she develops corporate pay policy for GM's nearly 100,000 salaried employees.

Ann Ryan of Grosse Pointe is an account executive with Roney & Co. managing personal, business and pension accounts for her clients.

Kay Hunt of Grosse Pointe is corporate vice president of Detroit Edison.

Transportation will be represented by Kathleen Hinkle, pilot for Kalitta Charter Services, Inc. Hinkle is a certified Lear jet captain.

Religion will be presented by the Rev. Margaret Holt Sammons, associate at Christ Church Grosse Pointe. Sammons was the first woman ordained as deacon in the diocese of Western Michigan, Episcopal. She is a former Peace Corps member who served in Liberia, West Africa.

Law as a profession will be addressed by Maureen Reiley of Grosse Pointe, who serves as judge of the Michigan Court of Appeals.

Sally Beghin, a public safety officer in Grosse Pointe Woods, will discuss law enforcement at the local level.

Politics will be the topic of special guest Eleanor "Coco" Siewert, former mayor of the city of Birmingham. Siewert is currently assistant to the president of external affairs at Wayne State University and is an active member of AAUW at the divisional level.

Pre-registration is required to attend "Choices for Tomorrow's Woman" and the fee is $3 per student; $5 for a student with a parent.

Registrations are being ac-

In-Site provides on-site experiences for disadvantaged kids

Do you remember the first time you went to the zoo and saw a living, breathing tiger? The muscles rippling under the striped skin — the huge teeth — those gigantic paws? Five hundred pounds of carnivore and roar.

In-Site is a new, privately funded, non-profit program designed to provide just this sort of vivid, memorable first-hand experiences for disadvantaged Detroit youngsters.

In-Site Horizon Field Trips, Inc. funds an enrichment program for schoolchildren from third to sixth grade in Detroit — the ones most likely to slip through the cracks and be forgotten.

The goal is to provide opportunities to expand their education with visits to centers of science, culture and commerce, to see new people, places and things, to lift them beyond the confines of school and home.

Kids will get to go to museums, zoos, libraries, businesses and more.

In-Site has planned an informal meeting on Monday, Oct. 30, at 5 p.m. at Miller Hall, Christ Church Grosse Pointe to explore the specifics of the program and the movers and shakers of In-Site are looking for people who want to share time, talent and finances to support the project.

Norah M. Williams, Lois J. Warden, Carol R. Gove and Joan N. Woodhouse are appealing to supporters of the project.

Each $110 invested in In-Site, they say, will underwrite six field trips for one child. Any donation is welcome.

To say yes to In-Site — to donate — or to say you'll be at the meeting, call Woodhouse at 884-9442.

Buy a bit of history:

The Grosse Pointe Historical Society will be the beneficiary of a Hartz Household Sale 10th anniversary preview party tonight, Oct. 26, from 7 to 9 p.m.

The $10 admission charge at the door of 99 Kercheval (that's the old Grosse Pointe News building) will go directly to the society and will be earmarked for historic preservation in Grosse Pointe.

Once inside, preview-goers will be able to sip punch, munch on hors d'oeuvres, and peruse or purchase furniture, antiques, silver, jewelry and decorative items gathered by Susan Hartz, president-elect of the Historical Society and owner of Hartz Household Sales.

(The sale will continue on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 27 and 28, with no admission charge.)

Hartz noted that Hartz Household Sales is celebrating its 10th anniversary this year and it's also the 10th anniversary of the re-organization of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society.

For more information call 885-1410.

House warming:

Ronald McDonald House of Detroit is also celebrating its first decade with a benefit party that will include a buffet dinner, casino gambling, duty-free shopping, musical entertainment and ... sea horse racing?

The fundraising event begins at 7 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 3, at the Southfield Hotel and Conference Center (formerly known as the Southfield Hilton).

Tickets are $150 each. All proceeds benefit Ronald McDonald House of Detroit.

The evening's theme is "Cruise into the Future." Cruise director Chuck Gaidica, WDIV-TV weather anchor and host of the lottery game show "Fame and Fortune," will lead guests in some on-board activities such as dance lessons, shuffleboard games, bingo and Simon Sez. Guests will also have a chance to win a Caribbean cruise for two.

Ronald McDonald House is a "home away from home" for families of children being treated for serious childhood illnesses. Adjacent to Children's Hospital of Michigan, it provides a home-like atmosphere for families who are being treated for cancer and other serious illnesses — a place where families can gain strength and share experiences with other families in similar situations. Each year, more than 1,000 families use the house.

Ronald McDonald House opened its doors on Nov. 2, 1979, with an initial pledge of more than $300,000 by Michigan McDonald's restaurant owners, who, along with other corporations, organizations and individuals, continue to raise money for the house.

Ronald McDonald House of Detroit was the 11th house to open in the United States. Currently, there are more than 125 in the United States and five other countries, and 30 new houses are being developed.

Call 745-5911 for more information.

Maskerade party: Ken Hill's "Phantom of the Opera" will be presented on Tuesday, Oct. 31 at a special benefit performance for the Music Hall Center.

The evening of suspense, mystery and thrills. See FACES, page 9B

Some who attended the recent Junior League of Detroit's Lexus Gold Cup Polo Match: Ken Meade, Mary Lamparter, Lynn Alandt, Mary Benfer and Paul Alandt. The event raised more than $45,000 for the restoration of Sibley House.

Tim Brown, Charlotte and Mel rousek and Virginia Brow attended the Juvenile Diabetes Foudation's fifth annual Evening of Brilliance on Oct. 6. More than $200,000 was raised for research into finding a cure for diabetes.

The Pastor's Corner

How will you be remembered?

By the Rev. Robert E. Nelly
St. Michael's Episcopal Church

Perhaps it is because I am getting older and am more aware of my own mortality, but I find the obituary page of the newspaper very fascinating to read.

It is interesting to note what the persons who died are remembered for.

In almost any edition of our area's papers we can find notices are about people who will never be noted in any history books — people like you and me.

There is a kind of parlor game known as the obituary game. It sounds morbid, but it is not. The object is for the players to state what they would like to have appear about them in the newspaper or on their gravestones. The other players are to either affirm the choice, question it, or to suggest an alternative.

When played with some seriousness, the game can be quite revealing. It is a way of thinking about one's values, dreams and goals for the days that remain. It requires a statement of that which gives meaning to a life, a naming of the center by which a life is shaped and lived. It requires something like: "he helped those in need" or "she was active in church and charitable affairs" or "he was known for generosity and sound advice."

Obituaries cannot adequately measure a lifetime, but they do say something about how we perceived ourselves and how we are perceived by others.

(I think I might like to be remembered as "a personable pastor with a sense of humor.")

The question is: How would my or your obituary look if it were published tomorrow? That might suggest a kind of negative ego trip, but it is not meant to be such. What is implied is, What will my obituary be before God and before history?

Does my true inner life show in a meaningful way? Have I contributed in some small way to the welfare of the world of which I am a part? Do I live my life in a fully human manner? Will it be said that I loved God by loving as many persons as I was capable? Are there some things in my life that need changing? Are my actions rooted in love and ethics or in convenience and selfishness?

How will you and I be remembered? Will we at least be remembered as someone who honestly tried?

Local business leaders host executive seminar at St. Clair Inn

In 1984, a group of local business and professional leaders and their wives organized the Executive Seminar. The purpose was to provide an opportunity for couples and singles to take time out, in a relaxed setting, to examine how to apply their faith in meeting the daily pressures they face.

This year the Executive Seminar will celebrate its fifth year when approximately 125 men and women gather at the St. Clair Inn in St. Clair, Mich. Oct.

27-29. The participants will hear nationally recognized speakers as well as share life-changing experiences that have influenced their marriages, families and career priorities.

The hosts for the event are: Mr. and Mrs. John A. Boll, Mr. and Mrs. Allen G. Carter, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Lane, Mr. and Mrs. Peter J. Mercier, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Nicholson, Mr. and Mrs. Richard P. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Stedelbauer and Mr. and Mrs. Michael T. Timmis.

This year the featured speaker will be Tim Timmons, an internationally recognized lecturer and prolific author on Christian family life. His works include "Maximum Marriage," "Hooked on Life," "Loneliness is Not a Disease," and his recently published book, "Call It Love or Call It Quits: A Singles Guide to More Meaningful Relationships."

In reflecting on the growth of the seminar, Michael Timmis, one of its founders, said, "It has been exciting to see the continued growth and success of the seminar over the past five years. Its strength lies not only in the high quality of the speakers we attract but also in the quality of the sharing of insights and experiences that takes place between participants."

The seminar weekend begins with a Friday evening dinner and extends through a Sunday morning breakfast. In addition to a variety of seminar presentations, there is ample free time for participants to enjoy both the ambiance and the amenities of the St. Clair Inn, which include an indoor pool, a whirlpool, nearby antique gift shops and the magnificent view of the St. Clair River from the world's longest fresh water boardwalk.

Additional information concerning the seminar is available by calling Susan Graham at 885-8100.

Lovetalk '89 continues

Counselor and religious educator Dayton Gnau will be the fourth and final speaker in Saint Ambrose Parish's adult education seminar, Lovetalk '89, Thursday, Oct. 26, at 7:30 p.m. in Saint Ambrose Church.

Dayton's presentation is entitled, "How Do I Empower Loving Relationships In My Life?"

His experience as counselor and religious educator equips him with insights into how we can build strong, enduring and positive love relationships in our lives. Dayton will draw material from one of his most popular workshops, "Success Is Not An Accident: Piercing the Illusion of Risk, Fear and Failure."

Dayton is co-founder and director of the Growth Center Inc., in Allen Park. He has done extensive individual and family counseling and is regional representative of Effectiveness Training, Inc.

He is also the Michigan producer of the "Sex, Love, and Intimacy" workshops sponsored by the California-based Human Awareness Institute.

Saint Ambrose Church is located in Grosse Pointe Park, one-half block north of East Jefferson between Maryland and Wayburn.

A donation of $3 is requested at the door. For further information please call 822-9646.

Memorial Church women to hear program about India

On Tuesday, Oct. 31, Grosse Pointe Memorial Church women will hear up-to-the-minute Miraj, India, news from Judy Jewett who served two assignments there with her husband Paul, who is a cardiologist.

Jewell has been described as a fireball and an entertaining speaker — not surprising for who organized a library and data center while mothering an international family of six adopted children.

Martha Nyboer will lead devotions at 10:30 a.m. After the program, the group will go to Park Place Cafe for lunch for $8.

Please make reservations in the Church office.

Lutheran center presents art fair

The Lutheran Center's first showing of Christian art-mixed media will be held on Saturday, Oct. 28, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sunday, Oct. 29, from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Lutheran Center building, 579 East Nine Mile Road in Ferndale. The public is invited. There is no charge.

St. Clare of Montefalco begins series

St. Clare of Montefalco Church has announced the schedule for its 1989-90 concert series.

The first program will feature violinist Hart Hollman and pianist and harpsichordist Fontaine Laing on Sunday, Nov. 5 at 3 p.m.

Hollman is a member of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and Laing is a well-known keyboard artist and teacher who has appeared with the symphony.

Subsequent concerts will take place on Sunday, Jan. 21, and Monday, March 19, and will feature trumpeter Carolyn Bybee and organist Elaine Grover in January and the Singing Boys of Pennsylvania in March.

All concerts will be held at St. Clare Church, corner of Mack and Outer Drive in Grosse Pointe Park.

A subscription to all three is $15. Individual tickets are $7. Benefactor or patron tickets are available. To order tickets, call 881-4041 or 882-0042.

Tickets are also available at the door the day of the concert.

Hart Hollman

Christian Science is subject of public lecture

Jean S. Raymond, C.S. of Ada, Mich. will present a public lecture, "Christian Science: A Problem-Solving Power," on Thursday, Nov. 2 at 8 p.m. in the First Church of Christ, Scientist, 282 Chalfonte, Grosse Pointe Farms. Raymond will discuss the importance of an understanding of God can have on human life and individual experience and how better understanding is man's basis for problem solving. Illustrations from the Old Testament and Christ Jesus' teachings, as recorded in the gospels, will be examined — with emphasis on today's problems and today's solutions.

The members of First Church of Christ, Scientist invites the public to attend. There will be no collection or offering. Child care will be provided.

Grosse Pointe Memorial begins adult classes

Grosse Pointe Memorial Church will offer two new Sunday morning adult education classes beginning Sunday, Oct. 29, and running for six consecutive Sundays, with the exception of Nov. 26. Classes will meet from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. and guests are welcome.

Hungarian bishop to preach at G.P. Memorial Church

Bishop Dr. Karoly Toth, of the Reformed Church of Hungary, will be the guest preacher at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church on Reformation Sunday, Oct. 29, at 9:30 and 11:00 a.m.

The bishop will also speak at a luncheon hosted by Memorial Church and open to the public at 12:15 p.m.

Toth has served as an officer of the World Alliance of Reformed Churches and on the Central Committee of the World Council of Churches. He is in the United States to preside at a meeting of the presidential board of the International Christian Peace Conference, which is celebrating the 100th anniversary of the birth of its founder and first president, Joseph Hromadka.

As a leading Hungarian churchperson, Toth recently represented his country as a delegate to the European Parliament, where Hungary, under the new leadership of the Social Democratic Party, is working to strengthen ties with the Western European community.

The Rev. V. Bruce Rigdon, pastor of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, has stressed the impact of Bishop Dr. Toth's life work in terms of the strong relationships that have been maintained between churches in Eastern Europe and churches in the United States, despite differences in politics and economic structure, particularly in the past 30 years.

Rigdon pointed out that the visit of this renowned Christian world leader is a major event for the church and the entire community.

Reservations for the luncheon with Bishop Dr. Toth can be made by calling Grosse Pointe Memorial Church no later than Friday, Oct. 27.

"Developmental Milestones of a Family" will be taught by Guy T. Doyal, Ph.D. Doyal will start from the moment of conception and follow an individual throughout life, emphasizing the factors that shape and influence development and behavior.

"Encountering Religious Change in Key Countries" will be led by the Rev. Nile Harper, director of the Ecumenical Campus Center at the University of Michigan. Several guest speakers will be featured during the six-week program, and the countries under discussion will include the Philippines, Poland, Palestine as well as Islamic culture in Uzbekistan.

Soroptimists, Venture Club plan fundraiser for Turning Point

Grosse Pointe Soroptimist/Venture partnership in service will present a dinner and fashion show at the Assumption Cultural Center, 21800 Marter Road, St. Clair Shores, at 6:30 p.m. Friday, Nov. 3.

The proceeds from the event will be used by Turning Point to purchase outdoor playground equipment. Turning Point is a 57-bed shelter for battered women and children in Macomb County established nine years ago.

In addition to providing temporary housing, the facility provides health care for the homeless, a 24-hour crisis line, displaced homemaker service and a 24-hour sexual assault hotline. Eleven full-time and six to eight part-time workers provide these services. Funding is from the United Way of Southeastern Michigan and the State of Michigan.

Fashions for children, women and men will be by Lisa's, Antonio Rimaneli, Judith Ann, Cricket's Corner, Lee's Inc., Dorothy's Bridal Creations, Coliseum 2000 and The Dried Flower.

Donations are $25 per person and tickets are available from Lee Meyer (881-9099), Lydia Nichols (881-4992) or Betty Morris at R.G. Edgar Associates on the Hill (886-6010).

Art of Poland Associates holds membership drive

The Art of Poland Associates is initiating a membership drive in the metropolitan Detroit area, inviting everyone interested in Polish art and culture to join.

The Art of Poland Associates is the only Polish auxiliary in a major American museum — The Detroit Institute Arts. Art of Poland Associates promotes over 1,000 years of Polish art and culture, and was created to represent the more than 800,000 Polish-Americans in the metropolitan Detroit area.

The 1989-90 season includes a recital by cellist Paul Ledwon and pianist Wesley Fishwick, at 8 p.m., in the recital hall on Saturday, Nov. 4.

New members joining the Art of Poland Associates on this evening will receive a complimentary poster from the DIA exhibition, "Polish Symbolism." An afterglow with the artists in Kresge Court will follow the concert. Coffee and pastries are included in the ticket price.

On Saturday, Jan. 27, there will be a presentation by Tadeusz Chrzanowski, professor at Lublin University, visiting Professor at the University of Michigan.

His topics will include "Polish Art from the 16th-18th Centuries" — the individualism of Polish art form of this period of Polish culture.

In May 1990, there will be a symposium under the direction of Polish archeologist, Jadwiga Lipinska, professor at Warsaw University. The topic will be discoveries by Polish archeologists in the Mediterranean and Egypt.

Colony Town Club pays tribute to pioneer Bernard

The Michigan Cancer Foundation's Volunteer Leadership Recognition Day, an annual event, was held Oct. 24 at the St. Regis Hotel.

A tribute to honor the memory of Jessie Bernard of Grosse Pointe Park was offered.

Bernard was a registered nurse, superintendent of Cottage Hospital of Grosse Pointe for more than 20 years, and a member and past-president of the Colony Town Club. Because of her knowledge and experience she was well equipped to accept the challenge to establish a Cancer Loan Closet in the area in 1947 for the Colony Town Club. She and the members had been told that there were no Loan Closets in the United States except for one in New York City, so they were pioneering in a new health field. Now the legal name of the Loan Closet is the Cancer Loan Closet Foundation of Greater Detroit.

The Colony Town Club continues to finance the Loan Closet with cash solicitations of members, from the sale of its cookbooks, proceeds from fashion shows and garden fairs, from the annual sale of pecans, raffles, from wine-tasting parties and marathon bridge. In addition, the Holden and McGregor Funds assist with annual contributions.

In 1955, the Colony Town Club was presented a citation by the American Cancer Society because their loan closet was the first in the United States to be underwritten by a club.

In 1956 the Detroit News presented the Colony Town Club a certificate of award accompanied by a check for having been selected as the woman's club having made the greatest contribution, through its loan closet, in the field of community service for the metropolitan Detroit area that year.

Jessie Bernard had been involved from the beginning of the Colony Town Club, which celebrated its 40th anniversary in 1987. She was recognized for her work by the Board of Trustees of the Michigan Cancer Foundation. The Colony Town Club will be represented at the Volunteer Leadership Recognition Day by Jan Coulter, president and Ida Mae Massnick, immediate past-president.

Village Garden Club holds meeting

Margie Brink will open her home for the Oct. 27 luncheon meeting of the Village Garden Club. Assisting her will be Jackie Caskey, Betty Fox, and Mimi Ternes.

G.P. Ski Club

The Grosse Pointe Ski Club will hold its next meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 1, at 8 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. A coffee and brownie socializing session will be held before and after the meeting.

The meeting will feature a ski show of the latest ski equipment and a style show put on by Metro Ski and Sports Shop of Grosse Pointe Woods. Owner Dick Matzka will also give a talk on "Safety in Skiing." Sue Yaklin will present models parading a variety of the newest ski fashions and after ski clothes.

Club members who will model are Sue Adelberg, Rosemary Seibert, Rosemary Schumar, Jack and Lisette Cotaling, Bob and Terri Stieber and George Peterson.

The club will travel to Boyne Mountain Jan. 12-14 for a weekend of skiing. The all-inclusive ski package includes charter bus, lodging at the slopes, lift tickets, meals, and a wine and cheese party. Call trip chairman Roy Adelberg at 885-6057 for reservations. There is a special early-bird discount for full payment by Nov. 15.

On Jan. 26-28, the group goes to Shanty Creek-Schuss Mountain for the same ski package. Call George Peterson at 882-2983.

The big trip of the season will be to Winter Park, Vail and Breckenridge, Colo.

Deposits are due now. Contact president Dick Cambell at 771-3868.

The Grosse Pointe Ski Club is open to all singles and couples who enjoy skiing and socializing. For information on membership and year-round social activities, call 881-0909 or 771-3868.

Bridge

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD
THE PASTEBOARD PASTIME

The Encyclopedia of Bridge says of Tom Smith, "Bridge editor, writer, one of the leading American players. He was an original member of the Precision Team that won the Spingold in '70, '71; the Vanderbilt in '72 and numerous regional titles."

I first played with Tom in 1979 at the famous New York Cavendish Club where he distinguished himself for fifteen years as the able director of activities. During his tenure, it was an accepted premise that Cavendish's high stake game was the most demanding contract bridge contest played anywhere and it attracted celebrated players from all over the world. In 1987 Tannah Hirsch, President of Goren International, persuaded Tom to join Goren as Executive Vice President. His departure saddened many as he was extremely popular, but fortunately the Club had, in Tom Snow, an able assistant who has filled that position with distinction.

I am but one of a large army that holds Tom Smith in high regard. He is a gentleman of considerable talent and stature who is certainly one of a dozen of the best high stake players in action. You would have a difficult time picking him from a crowd. He is uncommonly unastonishing at or away from the table. Yet he is one of the most sought after partners playing today. It is ordinary for him to make the most consequential decisions look easy. He's far from flamboyant nor does he search for applause. His competence has been consequential in almost every bridge victory he's been a part of, but it's usually his partner or some other team member who has gotten the Kudos. He's the first to praise and his few words of criticism's only purpose is to promote better play. If the mischievous, but fun loving Michael Moss is "The Little Beast of Bridge", an endearing compliment that was composed by his many friends, then Tom Smith is his antithesis. Both are superb players, but poles apart in personality.

Remember when we would walk a mile for a camel? I'd do a great deal more to be Tom's partner. His competence is extraordinary. His friendly composure gives one unusual confidence. You're a favorite to win when playing with him. Watch Tom in action at Cavendish Club in today's hand.

Declarer's play looks simple for ten tricks, but this is some kind of game that many experts stay away from. There were over eighty years of world class talent at the table and those four players represented some 25,000 master points.

West King of Diamond's lead was overtaken by East's Ace. At trick two East cashed his Spade Ace and returned the Diamond Deuce to West's Jack. Obviously West's overall must be just a solid six card suit as all the other high cards were accounted for. This amplified East intention to over rough Dummy on the Queen continuation. Declarer countered this by roughing in Dummy with the Trump Queen. Trumps didn't look to be in trouble as there was a 68% chance they would break 3/2. So what did East do? He casually discarded his Diamond six. Now we often see a false card like this, but only an academician of Tom's skill could possibly draw the correct inference. East was contriving a ploy. West had only five Diamonds for his overall plus a singleton Heart. East must have four Hearts to the ten and this was his plan for a plus. Tom's next play was amazing. He called for the Heart nine and let it ride!

Suggestion...Politely decline their kindness to play if an invitation in this grade of game comes your way.

Weddings

Robichaud-Koelsch

Sarah Anne Robichaud, daughter of Loretta and Hamilton Robichaud of Grosse Pointe Woods, married David Carl Koelsch, son of Joan and Carl Koelsch of Royal Oak, on Saturday, June 24, 1989, at the Grosse Pointe Academy chapel.

The Rev. Albert Sandor officiated at the 10 a.m. ceremony. The reception was held at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial Fries ballroom.

Mr. and Mrs. David Carl Koelsch

The bride's gown was made of white silk satin and featured an off-the-shoulder neckline and basque bodice. White pearl buttons outlined the back of the gown and satin bows and flowers covered the shoulders. Her long, cathedral veil was held by a headpiece of silk flowers. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and English ivy.

The maid of honor was Amelia Dugan of Hanover, N.H. Bridesmaids were the bride's sisters, Nicole and Rachel Robichaud.

The attendants wore teal-length gowns of pale peach satin which featured bateau necklines, elongated bodices and full skirts. They carried arrangements of pale peach roses and babies' breath.

The best man was Chris Hayden of Ann Arbor.

Groomsmen were John Koelsch of Hartford, Conn., the groom's brother, and Jason Robichaud of Grosse Pointe Woods, the bride's brother.

The mother of the bride wore an ivory lace dress and carried a single rose.

The mother of the groom wore a soft peach colored long-sleeved silk chiffon dress and carried a single rose.

Family members Claire Koelsch and Debbie Weiskittel read scripture at the ceremony. David Bowlin was the organist.

The bride graduated from Grosse Pointe North High School and James Madison College at Michigan State University. She is currently a first-year law student at Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C.

The groom is a graduate of Royal Oak Kimball High School and James Madison College at Michigan State University, where he earned a degree in international relations. He is employed as a legislative aide in the U.S. House of Representatives to David E. Bonior.

The couple traveled to Maui and Kauai, Hawaii. They will make their home in Washington, D.C.

Jacobson's to host Pewabic benefit

Jacobson's of Grosse Pointe will host a holiday benefit for the historic Pewabic Pottery on Wednesday, Nov. 8, at the Store for the Homes on Kercheval in the Village.

A new limited edition tile designed exclusively for Jacobson's, along with other original works of art, will be premiered the evening of Nov. 8. Proceeds from this event will go toward the support of Pewabic's educational programming.

Pewabic Pottery is a nationally recognized turn-of-the-century ceramic arts learning center, museum and gallery. It is owned and operated by the Pewabic Society Inc., a nonprofit tax-exempt organization.

For further information and invitations to the holiday benefit, call Barbara Denler at 822-2000.

Jamie Marie Hackett-Dixon

Jamie Marie Hackett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William John Hackett of Grosse Pointe Farms, married Ben Ellis Dixon, son of Mrs. Reba Dixon of Louisville, Ga. and the late Ellis Dixon, on Sept. 30, 1989, at St. Clair Shores Assembly of God Church.

The Rev. Paul D. Sundell officiated at the 1 p.m. ceremony. The reception was held at The Annex in St. Clair Shores.

The bride's gown was a satin Juliet style with silk lace appliques and trim. The full-length sleeves were puffed at the shoulders with sheer inserts. The bodice featured a semi-sweetheart neckline and a fitted dropped waistline which held the gathered, full-length A-line skirt. Her cathedral-length train was finished with lace scallops. The gown was accented with pearls and rainbow sequins. Her veil was full length, set in a crown-style headpiece and adorned with pearls and Austrian crystal. She carried a free-flowing bridal cascade with cymbidium orchids, white gardenias, pink sweetheart roses, white carnations, babies' breath, stephanotis, eucalyptus accents and flowing lace streamers.

Co-matrons of honor were Karen Fine Rigdon of Grosse Pointe Farms and Susan Carollo Krucker of St. Clair Shores.

Bridesmaid was Gail Hackett of Knoxville, Tenn. Flowergirl was Angela Krucker of St. Clair Shores.

Attendants wore mauve teal-length dresses of lace over satin with flared full cap-style sleeves, taffeta bows at the waists and scalloped hemlines. Their bouquets were nosegays of lavender and pink sweetheart roses, miniature mauve carnations, pink gardenias and mauve satin ribbons.

The flowergirl wore a teal-length eggshell lace over mauve satin dress with a dropped waistline, layered ruffles, and a scalloped hem.

The best man was the bride's brother, John W. Hackett of Grosse Pointe Farms.

Groomsmen were Jason Channell of Grosse Pointe Shores and Brian Schulte of Grosse Pointe Farms. Ushers were John M. Wright of Flint and James Wright of Cahuita, Costa Rica.

The ringbearer was the bride's nephew, Michael J. Hackett. He carried a pillow of cross-stitched pink and mauve rosebuds which was designed and created by Mrs. Lois Wright, a great aunt of the bride.

The bride's mother wore a lavender full-length dress with a sheer chiffon eggshell overlay and a wrist corsage of cymbidium orchids.

Soloist at the ceremony was Cecelia Boettcher of Grosse Pointe Woods. The organist was David Fox of Grosse Pointe Woods.

The bride is a graduate of Grosse Pointe North, Eastern Michigan University and Wayne State University. She is a former teacher of special education at Kerby Elementary School.

The groom is a graduate of Louisville Academy and Georgia State University. He is employed by Van Tram Electrical Corp. The couple traveled to Savannah, Ga. and the West Coast. They will live in Louisville, Ga.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Dean Bailey Marcil-Bailey

Denise Marie Marcil, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond P. Marcil of Grosse Pointe Woods, married Larry Dean Bailey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Bailey of St. Clair Shores on July 22, 1989, at St. Joan of Arc Church.

The Rev. Edward Mitchell officiated at the ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

The bride's gown was white Alencon lace and pearls over satin and featured a bateau neckline. Her headpiece was made of Alencon lace and pearls and she carried a bouquet of white stephanotis and orchids.

The maid of honor was Mary Kay Marcil, the bride's sister.

Bridesmaids were Lorrie Bailey of Biloxi, Miss., and Karen Piornock, the groom's sisters, Mary Louise Fabu and Donna Stoffy of San Diego, Calif.

Monique Mobley was the flowergirl.

Attendants wore black teal-length faille gowns with white Alencon lace collars and cap sleeves. They carried white lilies with pink centers and pink and black ribbons.

Randy Corbett of St. Clair Shores was best man.

Ushers were Charles Bailey Jr. of Atlanta, Barry Piornock, Steve Corbett, Bob Lafferty, and the bride's brothers: Raymond, David and Richard Marcil.

Ringbearers were the bride's nephews Kyle and Ricky Marcil.

The mother of the bride wore a pink silk tea-length sheath with iridescent beadwork and a white orchid corsage.

The mother of the groom wore a mauve chiffon tea-length dress with an accordin-pleated skirt and a white orchid.

The bride graduated from Oakland University with a bachelor of science degree. She is an elementary school teacher in the East China school district.

The groom earned an associate's degree in business management and computer information from Macomb Community College. He is a program analyst for Henry Ford Hospital.

Out of town guests included Mrs. Rosetta Price of California, the groom's grandmother.

The couple honeymooned at Paradise Island, Nassau. They will live in East Detroit.

Journal from Oxford: Visits to local pubs, historic mansions

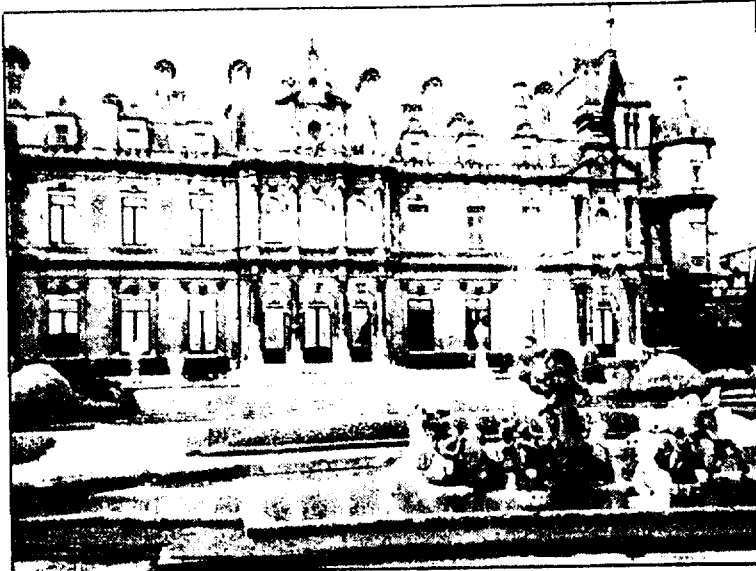

Joseph Samulowicz accepted an early retirement offer from Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan and decided to travel. His first trip, a six-week study tour to Oxford, England, was to study the evolution of arts in England and British architecture.

This is the fifth and last in a series of articles, "Journal from Oxford."

By Joseph Samulowicz
Special Writer

One Sunday evening, I went to Christ Church Cathedral for Evensong. The choir was to be conducted by Stephen Darlington, the choir director I met in Detroit before beginning my trip. The performance was glorious. Afterwards Darlington and I made arrangements to visit various pubs the next evening.

The first pub he took me to was The Bear — small and packed — popular with students. It is one of the oldest buildings in Oxford. Another pub we visited was the Cricketers Arms — friendly pub frequented by locals and cricketers and geriatric hip-pies. A lot of fun and an evening to remember.

There are many concerts and events going on in Oxford in the summer. One of the concerts I went to was at the Sheldonian Theatre. The Theater was designed by Christopher Wren in the days before fire risks were taken seriously. It was his first large-scale work and it opened in 1669. This is the ceremonial nerve-center of the university — the seat of the chancellor and the setting for the opening and closing moments of an undergraduate's career in matriculation and graduation, respectively. It has a splendid ceiling painted by Robert Streater, designed to suggest a Roman theater, open to the sky. The panels are of allegorical scenes. The theatre is an important center of the cultural life of the university, particularly for music.

In one of the tourist pamphlets, I read about the beautiful French Renaissance chateau built in the late 19th century for Baron Ferdinand de Rothschild. It's popularly known as Waddesdon Manor near Aylesbury.

One Saturday morning, one of the ladies in our group and I decided to take a bus to Aylesbury. We got there before noon, and then took a taxi to the Manor. We got there at noon and nobody was there.

We were looking for the entrance to the mansion when a security vehicle drove up and a guard looked sternly at us and asked us how we got in since the place didn't open until 1 p.m.

I started to explain when the guard, W. David Terrell, interrupted and remarked, "You're an American!"

He warmed up and told us of the need for keeping tourists out until official opening time. Terrell drove us back to the main gate and suggested where we could get something to eat. He told us of his affinity for Americans.

After our lunch, we headed back to the gate to purchase our tickets for the tour. Terrell spotted us in the line, came to us, and gave us two tickets with his compliments. In addition, since I had earlier told him I like to paint, he gave me a booklet containing all the paintings in the mansion.

The mansion was opulent. It houses superb collections of French decorative art, furniture, carpets, porcelain, and paintings, including works by Gainsborough, Reynolds and Romney.

The extensive grounds contain an aviary and a herd of Japanese Sika deer.

At the end of the tour, we spotted Terrell. He introduced us to his wife, Beryl, called a taxi for us, and promised to keep in touch.

One afternoon, a group of us went to visit Chastleton House, an early Jacobean building which has suffered no material alteration or addition since it was built in the early 17th century. Much of the original furniture, tapestries and paintings remain in the house and the rest was acquired by successive owners in the 17th and 18th centuries. The present owner, Mrs. Alan Clutton-Brock, showed us the secret room where the grandson of the original owner hid after the battle of Worcester.

He had fought for Charles II, and when the King Charles was defeated, the grandson rode home. Some of his enemies pursued him. He got home ahead of them and hid in this secret room.

His wife Sarah told the Cromwellian soldiers that she was alone in the house. They had seen a tired horse in the stables which they suspected might belong to the king himself.

They insisted on searching the house, but didn't find the secret room. They decided to spend the night in the house and, unfortunately, chose to rest in the bedroom just outside the secret room, probably because it overlooked the stables and they wished to keep watch.

Sarah sent them up supper and beer. She mixed some opium from her medicine chest with the beer, waited outside until the soldiers were asleep, then got her husband out.

They chose the best of the soldiers' horses and rode away.

During my six-week stay at Oxford, it only rained a couple of times. In fact, England declared this to be the sunniest summer this century. The temperature was usually in the 80s. Unfortunately, hardly any place is air conditioned — not stores, restaurants or buses. At times it was almost unbearable in some stores and restaurants.

At the end of six weeks, it was time for our graduation. Everyone dressed his or her best, and we had a wonderful champagne party in the college gardens, followed by a gala dinner in the stately dining hall of the college.

Many of us exchanged addresses and vowed to keep in touch. The study program was everything I expected and more.

For those who are interested, the program is conducted by Dr. Edward Wolff of the University of Detroit and Dr. Margaret Pigott of Oakland University. They've been doing this for 17 years.

REDUCED . . .

Located in Grosse Pointe Woods, this larger-than-it-looks brick ranch has so very much to offer. The home's three bedrooms and family room are just the start. Other features include a newer gas forced air furnace with central air conditioning, hot water heater, and sprinkler system. There is an additional bedroom and bath in the basement. Occupancy is negotiable. This home is ready and awaiting your inspection.

HOW NEAT IT IS . . .

To come home to this neat-as-a-pin home. The present owner has lavished lots of love on this Grosse Pointe Farms home and it shows — the house is move-in ready. Among its many features are a newer kitchen, furnace, roof, central air, and baths. The three bedrooms and one-and-one-half baths, family room and den make this very livable family house. The piece de resistance is the larger than average "Farms" lot. This one won't last.

INTRODUCED BY A . . .

Winding driveway, this residence reflects a lifestyle of refined indulgence and incomparable beauty. One of the oldest mansions remaining in Grosse Pointe Park, this lakeside home has all the wonderful detailing of years gone by but allows you to bring in concepts for the 1990's. This home will be perfect for all your entertaining needs from black tie affairs to casual evenings.

AN AURA OF SUCCESS . . .

Flows through every room of this 5000 (estimated) square foot residence in Grosse Pointe Farms. It is rich in features to enhance your lavish celebrating and private personal life. Finishing touches include gleaming hardwood floors, gorgeous new Mutschler kitchen, opening into a sitting room with fireplace, very private Gazebo-styled garden room with wet bar.

IT WILL BE SO NICE . . .

To come home to this gracious house. Situated on one of the nicest streets in Grosse Pointe City, you'll be proud to call this four-bedroom, four-and-one-half-bath Colonial home. You'll enjoy the extra-large family room with its sky lights and open sunny feeling. The spacious living room and dining "L" is perfect for all types of entertaining from casual to formal.

Battle of Pointes

Memories of the North/South football game will never die

City battle

On Oct. 28, North and South will square off for the 21st time on the football field.

It's going to be a game dictated by fullbacks. North's Bryan Ford and South's Mike Montagne are wide-necked, wide-bodied runners that know only one way to run: fast forward.

Ford and Montagne will lead a cast of seniors for their respective teams. Both schools sport senior-laden backfields led by quarterbacks Brian Letscher (South) and Scott Bernhardt (North).

Every pass Bernhardt has completed or thrown this season has just added to his school-career record mark. Letscher, on the other hand, isn't near any records, but his consistency has not been equaled in the Eastern Michigan League conference.

Letscher has more receivers than Bernhardt, but that's because Bernhardt's receivers have been injured most of the season. Bernhardt, however, does have All-State candidate Charlie Stumb.

For the second time in three years, this game holds only a possible playoff berth for South, not North. South needs the win to keep its slim playoff hopes alive, and North can only spoil those hopes with a win.

South seemingly has the edge over North with an overall record of 7-1, but North, 5-3, is as strong and big. Hence, this should be another brutal battle on South's field at 1 p.m.

North and South are similar teams. Defensively both have survived on the 4-4. Offensively, both coaches enjoy establishing a running game and occasionally going to the air. With Montagne and Ford, who needs the air?

I don't think many points will be scored because both defenses are stingy. If that's the case, then the kicking game will become a vital part of the game and the edge would go to South's Jason Weissert.

Three weeks ago, I would have predicted that Letscher could pick North's secondary apart. However, North has regrouped after several injuries to its defense to record 15 interceptions. North has also played a tougher schedule than South, so maybe that will benefit the Norsemen.

South's defense also took time to mature. With only

When North and South tee up the pigskin Oct. 28 at South, both teams will know their strategies, but what they may not be aware of are the memories they will be creating.

Since 1969, North and South have ended the regular football season with an annual clash. The Norsemen hold an 11-9 advantage in the all-time series, including a 27-6 win last season after entering the game an underdog. This season, South looks like the favorite again, but nobody ever knows what will happen in this crosstown rivalry.

"Anything can and does happen," said 1988 North graduate Marc deManigold, who's now playing defensive tackle for Notre Dame. "Going into that game, you know what the records are, but it's never a given as to what can happen."

Since 1980, North has won five times and South four. The most lopsided win came in 1985 when North won, 37-0, before entering the playoffs. South, whose widest margin of victory over North was recorded in 1983 (29-6), also used a win over North in 1987 to catapult themselves into postseason play, but the North/South game hasn't always held a playoff berth.

In 1988, neither team was destined for the playoffs, and much the same is expected this season. With a 5-3 record heading into Saturday's game, North will not advance, but at 7-1 South has an outside chance. Currently, South is in the top seven of Region IV in class A, with the top four teams in each region qualifying for the playoffs.

"In my senior year (1988) we needed the win over North to get into the playoffs," said Doug Lucas, who led the Blue Devils with 90 tackles and 75 assists that season. "It was a great, hard football game. I think it was just our year."

The win for South that season snapped North's three-game winning streak over the Blue Devils.

"We weren't really thinking about that," said Lucas. "We were concentrating on winning that game to make the playoffs."

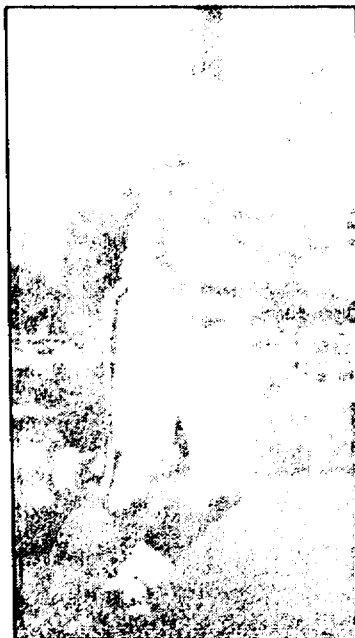

The North/South game attracts fanatics and would-be fanatics. It seems that most of the fans hibernate until this clash. According to Lucas, the North/South game spreads a particular energy.

"Everyone gets into that game," he said. "It's such a big deal to the faculty, the students and the community that it really gets you pumped during the week of preparation. In fact, it's so big, that it becomes tough to concentrate in school."

This is no ordinary game and anyone who's been associated with it will tell you that.

"When's the game?" shouted Dean Graham when contacted by phone. "That game brings back a lot of fond memories," said the former South quarterback (class of 1981). "No matter how many big games you were involved in during the season, the North game was always the biggest. Winning the league was a big goal, but beating North seemed bigger than that. No matter how poorly the records are going into that game, both teams look to dominate."

Photos by Rob Fulton

NORTH	SOUTH
Edge PASSING South's Brian Letscher will compete pass for pass with North record holder Scott Bernhardt, but Letscher has more receivers to throw the ball to, including Chris Harwick, Mike Chambers and the big threat, Jim West.	Edge
RUNNING This one's tough to call. North's Bryan Ford and South's Mike Montagne will do most of the work, and they should with fullback size of 220 and 210 pounds, respectively. Ford has run more consistently, however.
DEFENSE South has recorded two shutouts, but North has 15 interceptions. North's defensive backfield was suspect early in the season, but has improved. The front line of South makes the difference, however, as does end Rapo Nazarko. North's front line has been hit hard by injuries, but heals in time for this one.
KICKING GAME If this comes down to the kicking game, there's no question South's Jason Weissert will make the difference. Weissert has converted 39 of 41 extra points in two years and 11 of 15 field goals. North's kicking game has struggled all year long.
COACHING Frank Sumbera (North) and Jon Rice (South) both like to establish the ground and throw when needed. Both coach a 4-4 defense. Both are intelligent, intense coaches. No edge, here.
ALL-TIME SERIES North has won four of the last five, including a 27-6 win last year at home. Overall, North takes an 11-9 edge into South, where the Devils qualified for the playoffs after beating the Norsemen, 14-3, in 1987. - Rob Fulton

Battle

their act from Frank Sumbera's team to the campus of Hillsdale College, where they are still finding success. Como, after a near career-ending injury, quarterbacks and Palazzo is a wide receiver.

"My senior year, we were going into the South game with a guaranteed playoff berth, but it didn't matter," said Como. "We were still gunning for South. We wanted to beat them to make the perfect season (9-0), plus we didn't want to lose to South because that would have been a crusher. The North/South game is like a mini Michigan vs. Michigan State."

Como was also the one who kicked a field goal to beat South, 3-0, in overtime in 1984.

"That was great," he said. "In fact, my dad (Nino) made about five albums with newspaper clippings and articles and I look back on them quite a bit. And when you look at the South game, it brings back the most memories."

Those games should for Como because he threw for 293 yards and three touchdowns as a senior.

Palazzo also had a big day against South.

"I caught six passes and one touchdown on a deep pattern," said Palazzo. "Winning that game meant we were the city's best team that year and when you win it, you walk around with a big smile on your face."

How long does the smile last?

"At least a few months, if not longer," said Palazzo.

South also smiled a wide grin in 1982 and 1983 when it finished unbeaten both those years and advanced to the playoffs. In those seasons, Paul Hawk, who holds South's career mark for rushing with 1,791 yards, and Tony Tocco, a middle linebacker, were two of South's horses. South beat North 14-10 and 29-6 in those seasons.

The North/South football game begins at 1 p.m. at South, Oct. 28.

Luks wins amateur racing title

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

The only hardware on Dave Luks' shelf is a championship baseball trophy he won back in his Little League heydays. Now, however, his tiny trophy is being replaced by a much larger, more prestigious trophy he won racing cars.

Luks, of Grosse Pointe Park, won the Central Division Regional Championship Series of the Sports Car Club of America (SCCA) despite never winning a race. Luks, who won one pole position and recorded the fastest lap in three races, collected 46 points in nine of the 11 scheduled races.

"I have never won a full-season championship before," said Luks, "unless you count the time my team won the Little League championship."

That counts, but what counts more is that Luks is fortifying his racing career.

"Driving race cars is a lifelong dream that I'm finally able to realize," said Luks. "But winning an amateur championship only keeps me thirsting for more."

According to Luks, not winning a race wasn't the true mark of a champion.

"I didn't take a first place and that doesn't set well with me," said Luks. "But my main goal was just to race consistently. Apparently that was good enough to get me the championship, but I think it's just a matter of time before I get a first place."

'Being new to the sport, I put a lot of pressure on myself to win.'

Dave Luks

"Being new to the sport, I put a lot of pressure on myself to win," said Luks. "I had a lot to prove, and I did it — without a first-place win, however."

But a championship is a championship, right?

"Don't get me wrong, I'm very happy about it," Luks said. "With one race to go I had the championship, so that took a lot of pressure off me for the final race."

As it did his contingent of mother JoAnn, father Hank and companion Teresa.

"Yeah, I think everyone was a little more relieved," Luks added. "And without the support of my family, obviously this wouldn't have happened."

In the SCCA series, all 50 drivers operate identical cars that are only separated by the driver's preferred chassis setup. Subsequently, drivers are forced to rely heavily on experience.

"I've been told that I have a lot of natural ability," explained Luks, "but it's too early to tell how far I can go with that."

"I've got a great deal to learn and obviously I don't have a great deal of experience, but over the winter I'm going to polish my skills at a couple schools and just keep learning."

Getting his feet wet in car racing was about a $20,000 lesson, but the expended money doesn't bother him even though the SCCA doesn't offer a cash purse.

"It doesn't bother me in the truest sense of the word," Luks said, "but I know that race car driving is an expensive, and often frustrating sport. My sponsors (Controllor Systems Security, Competition Graphics and Elite Auto Sport) have been a huge help, and in a few years I hope I can win on the professional level to earn some money."

It would be nice if amateur racing had some purse, wouldn't it?

And what a great start it is, too.

"I really didn't light things on fire this season, but all in all it wasn't half bad, either," Luks said.

Luks will move his Little League trophy in December when the SCCA delivers his newest addition.

"The championship really hasn't settled in yet," Luks said, "but I'm sure that it will once I get to the banquet."

Spikers 2, Turbos 1

Jake Wardwell and Todd Otto both booted solo goals, while Matt Picel and goalie Yianni Kaiafas led the Spikers' defense. Nick Rotondo and Dominic Paluzzi assisted on offense.

Cavaliers 1, Stallions 0

Matt Magretta assisted on Michael Landau's winning goal, and goalies David Landau, Jim Van De Putte, Michael Kasprzak and Joey Karem combined for the shutout.

Goaltender Sean Westropp and defender Fred Besimer paced the Stallions.

Attackers 3, Hawks 0

Jon "Ice" Berg netted two goals and Adam Budday slammed the third for the Attackers. Budday also assisted on both Berg goals, with picture-perfect passes.

Trey Stewart and Sam Alnajon contributed to the Attacker firepower, while Jonathan MacPharlin notched another win in goal.

Stallions 0, Jets 0

Blake Ellis and Sean Westropp held the Jets off by not allowing any goals. Chip Fowler made many attempts to score, backed by Jeff Barton and Mark and Scott Jacobson.

Alexandra Brown and Mike Bertelsen paced the Jets with outstanding midfield play, and strong defense was turned in by Todd Faner, Lucas Morawski and Brad Staniszewski.

U-10 house

Warriors 1, Eagles 0

The Warriors held on to a one-goal lead, despite a furious Eagle attack. The Warriors' defense was led by Kevin Hall as sweeperback, and goalies Steve Davies and Mike Clark. Jeff Tiede scored the game's only goal.

Warriors 3, Rockets 0

Steve Davis (2) and Matt Barry enabled the Warriors to remain unbeaten this season. The defensive squad of Kevin Hall, John McNichols, John Sullivan, Ted Swarthout, Mike Alum and goalies Steve Davis and Mike Case held tough. Jan Kuczinski played well in midfield.

J.K. Kraetke, Scott Richards, Kevin Gordon, Peter Clark and Garrett Heffner played well for the Rockets.

Kars 3, Eagles 0

Matt Laphis scored once and assisted on another goal, while

Kevin Camitta and Chris D'Angelo also scored. Alec Dragovic and Jeff See keyed the defense, and Tim Camitta was outstanding at midfield.

Kars 2, Orange Crush 0

Shaun Dillon and Graham Meriwether each scored, and Catherine Lenard had an assist and supported the offensive effort. Mike Garza, Patrick Moultrie and Elizabeth Meriwether played strong defense.

Eagles 1, Rockets 1

Andrew Mellos scored for the Eagles, with help from Steve Ricci, Matt Burns (goalie), Johnathan Paquin and Logan Campbell.

Jets 4, Rockets 0

Adam Hess and Adam Partridge supported the defense, while Trevor Szymanski (2), Erick Krauss and Jason Thompson booted goals.

Peter Clark was outstanding on defense for the Rockets, as was Jeffrey Hermann. Victor Mangone held the defense.

Jets 2, Bears 0

Andrew Georgandellis and Trevor Szymanski scored, and Adam Partridge, Marc Bertelson and Jason Thompson were outstanding on defense.

Jets 1, Warriors 1

Adam Hess booted the tying goal for the Lightning-Jets, with help from Trevor Szymanski. Randy Thompson and Sarah Rahim led the defense.

three starters back from a year ago it was suspect early on, but in its last four games the defense has given up only 20 points, while the offense has scored 140.

Defensive battles have been common in the North/South football game. In 1986, North won 12-10. In 1982, South won 14-10. There's also been only two years in which South was shutout: 1984 and 1985. North has never been shutout in a South game.

In '87, South lost its first game and rattled off eight straight, including a win over North, to win the Eastern Michigan League before heading into the playoffs. This year South won the E.M.L. (6-0) and rides a seven-game winning streak going into Saturday.

North on the other hand has won two straight and finished tied for the MAC White Division championship with Romeo (4-1).

Most people will use this game as a measuring stick of success, but it's not fair to judge the entire season on this game. Both teams are league champs, and win or lose they are guaranteed a winning season.

After Saturday, the North/

South game will no longer mark the end of the regular season. Next season, since South will enter the White Division, the game is set for the eighth date and not the traditional ninth. Next season will be a league game, as well.

The Jaguar XJ6

is not only $15,000 less than a Mercedes 420 SEL, it's 7" wider, 2" lower and 100% prettier.

While some European manufacturers have well-earned reputations for charging a lot of money for their cars, Jaguar maintains its tradition of giving you a lot of car for your money.

Take the Jaguar XJ6, for example. Its interior, unlike some of its European competitors, is neither cold nor austere. Instead, you'll find the warm luster of polished burl walnut and the richness of hand-stitched leathers. You'll also find impressive performance and a near perfect balance of riding smoothness and handling agility. With this and much more, it's no wonder many people expect the Jaguar XJ6 to cost even more than some well-known European luxury sedans. Yet, when compared to a Mercedes-Benz 420 SEL, the Jaguar XJ6 is not only seven inches wider, two inches lower and 100% prettier—it can actually cost about $15,000* less!

We invite you to see and drive the XJ6. We think you'll agree that it's a beautiful example of dollars and sense.

Norsemen grab share of White Division crown

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

After a 31-8 defeat to Sterling Heights two weeks ago, North football coach Frank Sumbera scrapped the first five games of the season and told his players it was time to begin a second season.

North moved one step closer to going 3-0 over the last three games, with a 30-21 win over Roseville, Oct. 21. The win also gave them a co-championship with Romeo in the Macomb Area Conference White Division. North finished the White Division campaign 4-1, and stands 5-

3 overall. "It wasn't a smooth road," said Sumbera. "It was a long and frustrating road, but we got a piece of the pie. We struggled for a while, but we got through it with a share of the championship. I'm very proud of the kids."

Early against Roseville, however, Sumbera wasn't thrilled because his team blew two scoring opportunities.

"We could have put them away early, but we made some mistakes that took us out of good field position," Sumbera said. "We took points away from ourselves by being penalized and instead of being up 21-8, we were down 8-6."

On the day, North was penalized eight times for 70 yards.

"You can't expect to put points on the board or move the ball when you have penalties," said Sumbera. "I was very disappointed in the first half."

In this very physical, hard-hitting game, Roseville struck paydirt first with a 20-yard half-back pass, and then went up 8-0 on a 2-point conversion. North, which had 378 yards of offense, came right back on its first series with a 73-yard pass from Scott Bernhardt to Charlie Stumb. The point after failed and North trailed 8-6.

The Norsemen defense, which yielded 299 yards on the day, then went to work, stopping Roseville on its next possession. North then capped an 85-yard, 8-play drive when Bryan Ford, who rushed for 109 yards on 17 carries, popped in from the 1-yard line. Chris Meathe's 2-point conversion gave North a short-lived 14-8 lead.

"We got beat on a couple big plays in the first half," said Sumbera, "and the second one came right after we took the lead."

That's when Roseville's Eric Gunther caught a 50-yard pass to take a 15-14 lead at the intermission.

"We were stuffing them on the run, so they had to pass and we had some breakdowns," Sumbera explained. "But we came right out and took control again by playing tough defense and sustaining drives."

The second half was also all Chris Meathe. Meathe rattled off a 62-yard jaunt on the third play of the second half and added the 2-point conversion to give North a 22-15 lead it never relinquished. Meathe later capped the scoring with his second touchdown of the day from 6-yards, and Bernhardt converted the 2-point try, extending North's lead to 30-15.

Meathe finished with 117 yards on eight carries.

"Chris had a career day," said Sumbera. "We wanted to bring Chris into the game more in the second half because they were looking for Ford to run inside, so we had to get outside. Chris did a nice job."

Bernhardt only completed two passes, and both went to Charlie Stumb for 106 yards.

Roseville scored on the last play of the game to close out the scoring.

"In the second half, we had to come out and control the line of scrimmage," said Sumbera. "In the locker room, we also talked about maintaining some poise and not getting caught up in their game. In the first half, we let them dictate at times and that cost us a potentially big lead, but we dictated in the second half."

Steve Craparotta and Tim Meinig each had nine tackles to pace the Norsemen, and Charlie Stumb, who also had an interception that negated a Roseville drive, had eight. Also playing well were Marc Adams, Brad Hea, and Bob Tiderington.

"We're going to savor this championship," Sumbera said. "After we lost to Romeo, we knew we'd need help and we did. But, we set our sights on the task at hand and went after it (the championship) and got it. This road was a rocky one, but it was one we had to travel in order to get at least a share. These kids did a great job."

North closes out the season at South Oct. 28 at 1 p.m.

Katie Loehner canned two free throws with less than a minute to play, lifting the Lady Norsemen hoopers past Detroit Kettering, 40-37.

North trailed 15-25 midway in the third quarter, but put together an 11-0 run to take a 26-25 lead. Kim Reiter led North with 11 points, four rebounds and three steals, and Kelly Kunkel canned 10 points, snatched 10 rebounds and picked up three steals.

Loehner finished with eight points, three assists, five steals and six rebounds.

At Fraser two nights later, North got out to an early lead and never looked back to record its 13th win in 14 games, 46-39.

Melissa Champine had 13 points and seven steals to lead the way, and Noelle Cormier had 10 points, four assists and three steals. Reiter had 12 points, 13 boards and five steals.

Swimming

Jenny Paloucci was first in the 500 freestyle as the swim team beat Sterling Heights, 127-44 last week.

Paloucci's time also qualified her for the state meet. Lidia Szabo (200 individual medley, 100 free) was a double winner, and others who swam well were Sarah Young, Julie Basta and Roberta Ricci.

North, ranked No. 4 in Class A, also picked up a 93-79 win over Ann Arbor Huron.

In that meet, Heidi Mader picked up wins in the 50 free (24.99) and 100 backstroke. Wendy Mader swam a personal-best (5:12.74) in the 500 free, and Julie Ricci had strong finishes in the 200 and 500 free. Diving well were Cheryl Robertson (2nd), Amy Nerone (4th) and Roberta Ricci (5th).

Soccer

North recorded its seventh consecutive shutout, a 4-0 win over Cousino. North has now held the opponent scoreless over 560 minutes of play.

That record remained intact Oct. 20, as North battled South to a 0-0 tie. Don Rosati has been superb in net for the Norsemen.

In the win over Cousino, John Ferguson booted the hat trick and Angelo Gritsas added a solo blast.

It was Nick Karabetsos' lone goal that sparked North to a 1-0 win over No. 4 ranked Class C-D ULS, earlier in the week.

North is 12-1-2.

Cross country

The boys' team reclaimed its MAC White Division title with a team score of 48 at the MAC meet at Metro Beach.

North lost the MAC crown a year ago by one point to Romeo. All-conference runners for North were Scott Collins (1st), Tom Gauerke (4th), Dave Meda (6th) and Jim Moore (15th).

The girls' team was paced to the MAC title, as well, by Most Valuable Runner Laurin Schultz.

Schultz led a cast of North runners with her first-place run. Behind her were Nikki Van Oppens (2nd), Jessica McLalin (3rd), Allison Liebhold (6th), Hope Peters (7th), Cathy Petz (9th) and Stephanie Liebhold (10th).

North, which finished yet another unbeaten season, is ranked No. 4 in Class A.

Decade ends same way it began for Lady Knights

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

At the opening of the 1980s, University Liggett School's girls' tennis team began its dynasty. And at the closing of the 1980s, there's still no better team in Class C-D — and perhaps classes A and B — than the Lady Knights.

At the state finals in Battle Creek last weekend, ULS capped its "dream season" by scoring 28 of a possible 28 points, en route to its 10th consecutive Class C-D tennis title, which came only one week after ULS won its 10th straight regional championship.

The title also capped a season that saw the Lady Knights ranked No. 1 in Class C-D and All Classes the entire year, win three major invitationals, beat the 1989 Class A champs Ann Arbor Huron, and the 1989 Class B champs Cranbrook-Kingswood in head-to-head competition, and do it all with nine freshmen in their top 15 players.

With a vengeance, the Lady Knights produced their best tennis of the season and it couldn't have come at a better time. In its seven flights, ULS lost only two sets, one at No. 1 doubles and No. 3 doubles. With the sweep at all flights, ULS became the first school in Michigan to ever win all seven flights in a state meet.

"There's not a doubt in my mind that our tough schedule prevailed in those third-set matches," said Wood. "The girls are faced with such a tough and competitive schedule during the season, that it can't do anything but prepare them for situations like they encountered in the finals."

Senior Lexie Crain and junior Ali Frederick prevailed in the third set (6-2) at No. 1 doubles to become a state-championship team, and Natasha Levy and Liz Thomas won the state championship with a 6-2 win in the third set at No. 3 doubles.

Other state champions are

Shannon Byrne (No. 1 singles), Heather Heidel (No. 2 singles), Anne Cavanaugh (No. 3 singles), Carrie Birgbauer (No. 4 singles), and Iffy Obianwu and Lynn Sinkel (No. 2 doubles).

Out of 274 combined matches, the Lady Knights were 235-39.

"We've obviously been blessed with great talent," said Wood. "We also had a great chemistry on this team, and without it, we wouldn't have been anywhere near as successful as we were. The chemistry has been our strength."

But, at the start of the season the chemicals were repelling one another. Captain Lexie Crain and Lynn Sinkel were asked to make room for the four freshman who play singles, by moving to No. 1 and 2 doubles, from 2 and 3 singles a year ago.

"Lexie and Lynn did it without a complaint," said Wood. "Then we had our challenge matches for the singles slots, and early on the season was tough for our singles players because they were all so even and competitive. But after that, each of them really became very close and came to respect and care for one another. I know a good chemistry is commonplace when you talk about a championship team, but their (all the girls) togetherness and concern for one another was the best I've seen in 29 years of coaching."

It was only fitting that ULS closed the 80s with a storybook season that Wood never wanted to awaken from.

"It can't get any better for any coach than it was for me this season," said Wood. "It can only be matched. This has been so wonderful that I didn't want anyone to pinch me so I'd wake up."

Things look bright for the 1990s also, because ULS only loses Crain to graduation.

"Lexie was a great captain with outstanding leadership," said Wood. "She will be sorely missed."

"The future, however, does look very promising," Wood concluded.

Kevin Whitfield and Chris Carroll will not be graduating this year from ULS. And head football coach Bob Newvine couldn't be happier.

Whitfield and Carroll, both only juniors, combined to score five touchdowns and rush for 295 carries on only 12 carries in the Knights' 73-0 drubbing of Lutheran Northwest Oct. 21.

Carroll and Whitfield, perhaps the best rushing tandem in Class C, helped ULS compile 366 yards on offense before sitting out most of the second half. Carroll rushed for 131 yards, including touchdown runs of 15, 26 and 17, and Whitfield ran for 164 yards and touchdowns of 53 and 82.

"We not only scored offensively, but we had three scores on defense," said ULS coach Bob Newvine. "We dominated play and it was a fun victory because everyone played."

John Ellis, Jason Drook and Ryan Molitor returned three of ULS' five interceptions for touchdowns, and then Karow Gordon and Michael Fox scored on the offensive side of the ball. Drook also added a 2-point conversion, and Mike Whelan had eight extra points and a 30-yard field goal to cap the scoring.

"In the second half, we took a look at the future by playing the second team," said Newvine, "and the future looks bright. Our second team was playing just as well as our first team."

Playing well for the Knights were Jumanne N'Nimdi, Tom Best, Andrew VanDeWeghe, David Niccolini, Paul Pozniak and Josh Ferry.

"We've never won three in a row before," said Newvine, "but we're going for it against Ham-

Jon Sieber tied the freshman/sophomore course record and placed first at the annual Whitmore Lake Invitational Oct. 21.

Sieber's time was 17:18, and teammate Wilson Wehmeier grabbed seventh place.

On Oct. 17, ULS challenged Plymouth and Oakland Christian, and Sieber (18:11), Wehmeier (20:13) and Frederickson (20:15) placed first, second and fourth, giving ULS its eighth win of the season. ULS beat Plymouth, 19-39, and Christian, 22-33.

Martina Jerant scored 20 points and grabbed 16 rebounds, but the Lady Knights lost to Greenhills, 37-34.

Three days later, ULS was nipped, 51-47, by Oakland Christian. In that game, Jerant canned 27 points and yanked 22 rebounds. Sophomore P-R Stark banked in a career-high 19.

Golf

The season ended with a 171-206 loss to top-ranked Detroit Country Day.

Low-scorer for ULS was Wes Sims (48). Others shooting well for ULS were Andrew Stewart (54), Pat McCormick (53) and Steve Nanovski (51). ULS finished 3-9.

Soccer

The Knights suffered through their toughest week, losing twice and winning once.

The No. 4 ranked Knights lost to North, 1-0. The game marked only the third time the Knights had been shutout, and only the team's third loss.

The scoring drought continued Oct. 18 at Lutheran North, and for the second straight game, ULS was shutout, 2-0.

On Oct. 20, ULS beat Roeper, 3-0, on goals by Jonah Smith, Jonathan Davis (2). Smith's goal 54 seconds into the first half was ULS' first in 160 minutes.

Entering district play (after press time) ULS is 14-4.

In the final-dual meet of the season, the Blue Devils shelled Roseville, 15-48.

Ten personal-bests were set by South runners Amy Balok (first place), Sandy Dierkes, Katy Neumann, Jenny Barber, Lisa Ritter, Melissa Chamberlin, Cynthia Gordon, Michelle Rogers, Katrina Kuntz and Sara Lilien-siek.

The boys' cross country team finished with its best record in history (8-1) after wins over Port Huron Northern, 15-43, and Roseville, 17-38.

At home against Northern, South swept the first five places on the strength of Mark Sonnenberg, Eric Lindsay, Marty Kraft, Delaine Boon and Dave Kerfoot.

Strong performances were also turned in by Noah Silvers, Dan Quinn and Dan Taylor.

Sonnenberg, Kraft and Lindsay took the top three spots in the tromping of Roseville, and Josh Christain had a personal-best time of 18:06 in his sixth-place finish. Kerfoot also ran his second strong race in a row.

South has earned the league championship in each of its 11 years in the E.M.L.

South will be hosting the regional meet on Oct. 28 at Metro Beach, and will attempt to qualify for the state meet for the 10th straight time.

Coach Fred Michalik continues to experiment with his medley relay team, but no matter who he puts in there the wins keep coming.

However, as a team last week, South beat Edsel Ford, 103-68, but lost, 100-72, to top-ranked Ann Arbor Pioneer.

Ann Llewellyn, Tina Higel, Anna Francis and E. Sullivan won the medley relay against Ford, and the team of Kim Higel, Tina Higel, Ann Llewellyn and Amy Verlinden won the same heat against Pioneer.

Other winners against Ford were Denise Brown (diving), Kim Higel (100 backstroke), Tina Higel (100 breaststroke), and Verlinden, Llewellyn, Peggy Francis and Kim Higel won the 400-free relay.

Kim Higel took the 200 individual medley against Pioneer, and Brown kept her first place in the diving. Kim and Tina Higel won the 100 back and 100 breaststroke, respectively.

Soccer

Jason Dritsan, Jamie Mertz and David Birnbryer combined for the hat trick in South's 3-1 win over Mott. Steve Carlin and Tony DeLuca assisted.

South then faced North and used steady pressure and strong defense to come up with a 0-0 tie.

South is 14-1-1 and faced DeLaSalle in the first round of the playoffs (after press time).

Winter hit early, but so did the South Blue Devil football team. The difference was that South hit often, as well.

The Eastern Michigan League champions traveled to Woodhaven on a night fit for staying at home buried under an afghan, and came away with a 30-6 win over the Warriors, despite the snow, sleet, rain and cold.

South, 7-1 overall, has now won seven straight games after losing its opener to Edsel Ford, 8-7.

"This win was big because it gets us one step closer to our third goal," said Devils coach Jon Rice. "We've already won five ball games and the E.M.L., but now we'd like to get into the state playoffs."

South, however, won't worry about what it can't control.

"The only thing we can control right now is the outcome against North," said Rice, whose team hosts city rival Grosse Pointe North Oct. 28. "We are going to concentrate on beating North, and then just wait and see what happens. It would be nice to get in (to the playoffs), but even if we don't we've still had a very successful season."

Place-kicker Jason Weissert has also enjoyed a successful season, and he got South on the board first with a 20-yard field goal. Senior fullback Mike Montagne, who now has 748 yards rushing on the season, gave South a 10-0 halftime lead after pounding the ball in from the 7-yard line just before the half.

Montagne's touchdown was set up by a 38-yard pass from quarterback Brian Letscher, who completed six passes for 71 yards, to Jim West, who caught four passes for 71 yards and a touchdown.

Both first-half scores were aided by the Blue Devils' defense, which stopped the Warriors twice on fourth-and-short plays.

"We're just getting very consistent play on both sides of the ball," said Rice. "When you work hard, you hope you get progressively better each ball game, and we are."

The defense, led by Kelly Graves' 11 tackles and Dane Lupo's two interceptions, gave up only 207 yards. Rapo Nazarko, Dave Asker, Rob Khoenle and Jason Bedsworth also paced the defense.

Montagne, who finished with 222 yards on 21 carries, dominated the first half. He rushed for 117 yards in 24 minutes, and when the game resumed in the second half, he became even tougher to haul down.

South took its opening possession of the second half and extended its lead to 17-0, when Montagne popped in from a yard out. Weissert added the extra point, one of three on the night.

"At the half, the kids were really upbeat," said Rice. "They wanted to get back out there and play, even for as poor as the conditions were. We made some adjustments, and then came out and took the ball down and scored."

Woodhaven continued to have trouble stopping South's option, so the Devils continued to milk it.

"They weren't defending the option, so we took what they'd give us," said Rice.

South took 586 yards of total offense, and after Montagne's touchdown gave South a 17-0 lead, Matt Wysocki went 33 yards for a score and Letscher hit West from 9 yards out to cap the scoring. Montagne's 64-yard run set up the Letscher-to-West pass. "We're getting to such a point in the season that we're very confident we can establish either our passing game or running game," said Rice.

South hosts North Oct. 28 at 1 p.m., and this will mark the final time the North/South game will end the regular season. Next year South will enter the White Division of the Macomb Area Conference and plays North on the eighth date, instead of the traditional ninth date.

Getting a leg up on muscle cramps

The recent U.S. and French Open Tennis tournaments saw many of the world's elite players struggle through their matches in pain related to severe leg cramping.

Simply put, a muscle cramp is a sustained, involuntary and painful muscle contraction. Factors which definitely play a role in precipitating cramps include sodium and potassium depletion, dehydration, low blood sugar, fatigue and inadequate flexibility. However, essentially any condition which affects a muscle's circulation or metabolism can lead to cramping.

The "simple muscular cramp" can affect just about anyone regardless of their activity level. However, the poorly conditioned "weekend athlete" who exercises hard only on occasion is probably at greatest risk.

Leg muscle cramps noted while sleeping is a frequent complaint heard by physicians. Cramps that often awaken the patient are painful and usually involve the calf muscles or small muscles of the foot. This nocturnal cramping is almost always benign and can usually be corrected easily by stretching the calf muscle daily.

Correction suggestions

The simplest way to stretch these muscles is to stand facing the wall, approximately one meter away, and lean forward while keeping the heel in contact with the floor. Raising the foot of the bed six to 12 inches will help decrease pooling of blood in the lower extremities and hopefully lower the incidence of muscle cramping.

If these conservative measures do not work, there are medications (quinine preparations) which are effective in some cases. When cramps do occur at night, the calf muscle should be stretched slowly by both actively and passively forcing the foot upward. At the same time, vigorous massaging and applying pressure will also help the cramp to abate.

Many people experience muscle cramps during athletic competition. Dehydration may be the most common cause, thus replenishing fluid deficits is very important. Replacing fluid loss adequately during intense competition is admittedly very difficult. Anyone who has tried to play a sport at a competent level with a "liter" of fluid sloshing around in his or her stomach will attest to that.

Football players have been known to receive liters of electrolyte solutions intravenously to avert that uncomfortable feeling.

For the average person drinking frequent small sips of fluid will help prevent dehydration and resultant leg cramping.

What you eat

Eating foods such as bananas and oranges may help prevent cramps during exercise by ensuring adequate levels of potassium in the blood. Salt tablets should not be taken either prophylactically or during athletic competition as they will probably do more harm than good.

I recently read about an unusual but reportedly successful treatment for people who experience cramps during the heat of competition. The piece said to simply pinch the upper lip very hard and reportedly the cramp will disappear. I have not had a chance to try this out.

Cramping which occurs during every day activity may signify an underlying vascular or neurologic problem.

Richard Berg, M.D., chief of Peripheral Vascular Surgery at St. John Hospital and Medical Center, for instance, said people complaining of frequent leg pain could be suffering from blockage in the femoral artery in the thigh.

"When people walk and exercise the leg muscle, the muscle needs more blood and oxygen. Because of the blockage, the muscle doesn't get the blood it needs and the muscle begins to hurt," said Berg.

This illustrates the point that if cramps persist they may be a symptom of an underlying serious problem. There are many neuromuscular, vascular, endocrine and rheumatologic conditions that can show themselves as muscle cramping. However, in most cases they are benign, and can be treated very easily with proper fluids, diet and conditioning.

Relaxation techniques

Although there are many first-hand accounts supporting the benefits of relaxation/visualization techniques, scientific evidence supporting it has been non-existent.

All that changed, however, with the completion of a study conducted in Great Britain by researchers Robert C. Parker (Oxford University) and Derek W. Johnston (University of London).

The researchers set out to compare the effects of "Periodic Somatic Inactivity" (a form of Transcendental Meditation developed by psychologist Jonathan C. Smith) with a program incorporating muscle relaxation, meditation and visualization of pleasant scenes.

The results showed that the relaxation/visualization technique reduces arousal to a greater degree than simple meditation does. For those of us raised in the psyche of western civilization, the above paragraphs may bring about many diverse reactions and responses, ranging from an unbelieving scoff to initiating some skeptical interest.

As unbelieving as many people choose to remain, there are more and more articles, books and reports that attest to not only a renewed interest in these various techniques, but also in the numbers of people who are willing to practice these techniques and find out just what all of this "hoopla" is really about. People also need to find out if it has a positive affect on their lives.

As part of the philosophy of the Diet Center Life Management, we've always incorporated a relaxation/visualization technique to help clients change their eating behaviors. You can change your body, but unless you also learn to change your mind towards food, your chances of success are diminished.

Where to start

For those who could benefit

By Mary Busse

from a relaxation/visualization technique and do not wish to enroll in controlled therapy, the following 10-step program is offered:

1) Sit in a comfortable chair, stretching arms and legs.

2) Take three cleansing breaths, breathing in through the nose, out the mouth. Remember to breathe easy and relaxed, letting go of each deep breath naturally.

3) Now, starting with your feet, one foot at a time, tighten the muscles in the foot, hold for the count of three, then relax. Let the foot relax completely, then repeat the exercise with the other foot.

4) Remember as you proceed through this part of the exercise to breathe gently.

5) After you finish with the feet, work your way up your body, tightening the muscles of the leg, then tighten the stomach muscles, relax each arm and when you relax, let it go limp and place your arms in a comfortable position on either side of the chair.

6) Close your eyes, your body is at a completely relaxed and quiet state. Repeat the three cleansing breaths.

7) Visualize yourself in a favorite place, a place where you feel totally relaxed and at peace. It is often recommended you visualize a special room, the mountains, or the beach. This place should be one that is important to you.

As you picture this special place, concentrate on as many details as you possibly can. What are the colors, sounds, smells, of your special place? This part of the exercise should be approximately 15-20 minutes of your time.

8) As you finish with the visualization phase, again take three deep breaths, breathing slowly and easily.

9) Now stretch each part of your body, starting with your legs, working your way slowly up your body, ending with stretching your arms. The movements are easy and relaxed.

10) Open your eyes, breathing slowly and take three deep breaths.

It is important to keep in mind a few helpful hints when you first begin to practice the relaxation/visualization technique.

The old adage, "practice makes perfect" couldn't be more appropriate when applied to this technique. Don't judge yourself, or worry whether you are doing the exercise right. The main idea is to relax and have fun.

Think of it as your daily opportunity to take a "mini vacation." If thoughts seem to intrude, don't fight them, but become more aware of your breathing, let the thoughts drift and you will be back on focus of your mind's image.

If this is your first encounter with a relaxation process, you may find that playing soft instrumental music in the background helps, as well as some fine tapes available to take you through the exercise.

To help you get started, I recommend both book and tape, "Creative Visualization," which can be purchased at your bookstore, or through Whatever Publishing, P.O. Box 137, Mill Valley, Calif., 94941.

Getting fit while pushing papers

Every day, many Americans spend time working at a job outside the home. Many of these jobs require very little physical exertion.

Those individuals with sedentary jobs need to make a special effort to create opportunities to put physical activity into their daily routine. There are numerous activities that can be done in and around your work area.

Before starting any kind of exercise program, there are a few precautions to take:

Consult a physician, especially if there is a history of chronic problems such as high blood pressure or lower back pain and it has been several years since you have been exercising regularly. Discontinue an exercise if it causes pain or undue fatigue; and start slowly.

Take some time now to consider how you could restructure your work day to add basic fitness fundamentals—flexibility, cardiorespiratory endurance, and muscular strength and endurance to it.

One important component to physical fitness is flexibility. There are a variety of stretching exercises that can be done right at your work station. They can help relieve muscular tension as well as keep your muscles and joints loose and relaxed. Some stretches to try include reaching your arms straight overhead as far as possible, headrolls, shoulder shrugs, ankle circles, and a wall stretch for the Achille's tendon.

A second physical fitness component is cardiorespiratory (heart and lungs) endurance.

This is developed through continuous, rhythmic activities that use large muscle groups and deepen respiration. These activities increase heart rate and your blood circulation.

There are many opportunities during the day to add aerobic exercise to your schedule. Park your car farther away from your work entrance to get a little extra walk.

Take some time at lunch for an outdoor walk or walk the halls of the office building. Running errands is often a popular lunchtime activity. Try briskly walking between stops or by store windows.

You can use the stairs in your building. Walk up three sets of stairs and then down those same stairs. You can either walk down backwards (hold onto the railing) or turn around and walk down. Use the stairs rather than the elevator.

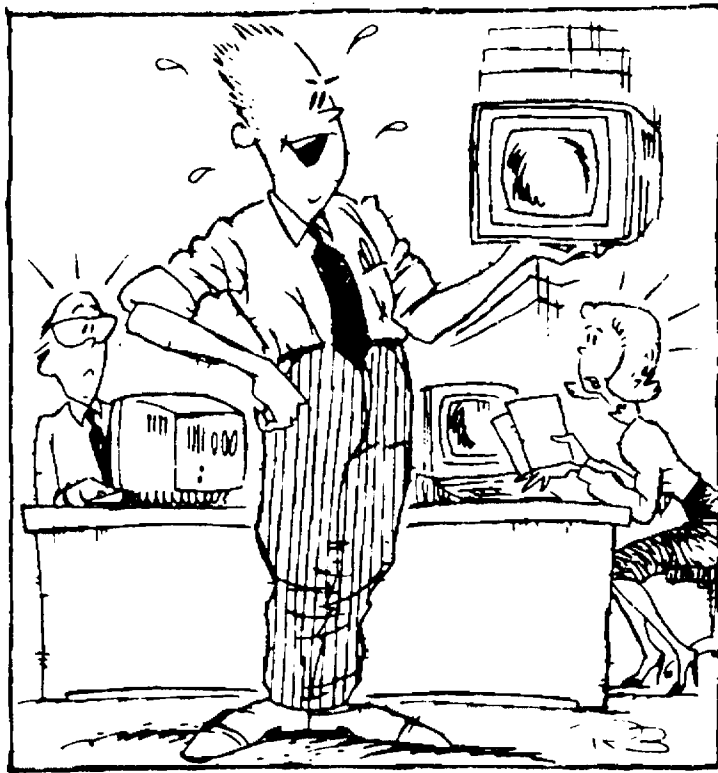

A third component of fitness is muscular strength and endurance. To build strength and endurance, muscles must be overloaded. That is, muscles need to work a little harder in each subsequent workout to make progress. This usually requires the use of weights.

However, gains can be made by doing some calisthenics. Some exercises to include here are small horizontal arm circles with the palms up, quarter knee bends, calf raises, side leg swing and arm curls.

Making changes in your daily routine will not be easy at first. Look for convenient places to add activity—walk the longest distance to get to another location at your work place, use the stairs to change floors and take a stretch break twice a day.

Try to involve your friends and co-workers in your activity plan. It is easier to stay committed if you have other people doing it with you. Everyone can motivate each other, especially on those days that you think you're too tired.

Booklet guides weight loss

It's been estimated that on any particular day, more than half of the U.S. population is dieting.

According to a new booklet from the American Institute for Cancer Research (AICR), there are many benefits in reaching the proper weight, but too many people go about a weight loss program incorrectly.

The new AICR booklet, "Get Fit, Trim Down," focuses on a sensible, effective and healthy approach to weight loss based on behavior modification, exercise and menu planning that emphasizes good nutrition.

The booklet provides tips on how to reduce the intake of dietary fat and develop a sound weight loss program. In addition to offering useful hints on how to handle food cravings, it also explains the dangers of many fad diets, and of "yo-yo" cycles of weight loss and gain. Included are charts of the healthiest

The booklet was developed by the American Institute for Cancer Research in response to the many diet plans which place an over emphasis on calorie counting, and don't give enough attention to good nutrition and healthy eating habits. Researchers have estimated that as much as 40 to 60 percent of cancers may be linked to diet. The AICR booklet is intended to help consumers plan healthy menus that will lead to sensible weight loss, while still eating the types of foods that can lower cancer risk.

The AICR is a national, non-profit agency which focuses on the relationship between diet and cancer.

"Get Fit, Trim Down" may be obtained free by sending a stamped (45 cents postage), self-addressed business-size envelope to the American Institute for Cancer Research, Dept. TD, Washington, D.C., 20069.

Try setting up your fitness goals

It's lunchtime and you have to attend a meeting rather than your regular fitness workout.

You think it doesn't matter because you can always go tomorrow. However, tomorrow comes and you have too much work to do. More days go by and you haven't worked out; something keeps getting in the way.

You have really enjoyed your exercise time, but now you just don't understand why you are not as motivated as you once were.

Any number of factors can contribute to changing fitness habits. One possibility is that you did not establish a clear direction or goal for your program.

Realistic goals provide focus to an exercise program. They help you get from where you are to where you want to be.

The goal setting process is the same for physical fitness as it is for personal and professional development. Attainable goals help you understand what is possible out of many available options. Establishing goals brings into focus how your current fitness status relates to your ideal.

Develop both long- and short-range goals. Long-range goals are more general, but not all-encompassing. Goals should be achievable through a logical progression of activity. They do not need to have a time limit on achievement, however.

Short-range goals identify the logical steps to achieving your long-term goals. They should be very specific and realistic based on your present capabilities and have a time limit for achievement. Short-term goals can be used to measure your progress.

Remember to include all the components of fitness when setting your goals: cardiovascular fitness, muscular strength and endurance and flexibility. Take a few minutes to consider your fit-

Now, you need a means to keep yourself focused on what you want to accomplish. One method is to make a contract with yourself. Contracts help you establish a system of accomplishments and rewards.

First, list your short-term and long-term goals. Then, decide how to reward yourself for reaching each of your goals. Make the rewards special things that are important to you. The more you value the reward, the easier it will be to accomplish the goal.

Here is one example to get you started:

Long-range goal: to participate in a triathlon.

Short-range goal No. 1: to run, bike or swim five days per week for five months.

Reward: A professional sports massage.

Short-range goal No. 2: To lift weights three days per week for one month.

Reward: Purchase a pair of lifting gloves.

Short-range goal No. 3: To properly stretch each day, especially before and after each exercise session for one month.

Reward: Purchase a new pair of shorts.

Setting goals keeps you motivated to do what you should do on a regular basis. This is a very personal process. Everyone's goals will be slightly different; your goals and rewards need to be right for you.

Remember that goal setting, like physical fitness, is an ongoing process. Each time a goal is achieved, set a new one. If you do not reach your goal within your set time frame, do not be discouraged. Reassess your status and set a new goal, either short or long range. Goal setting will help you maintain a consistent fitness program for the rest of your life.

500 ANIMALS ADOPT A PET

TABBY KITTEN

If you have a place in your heart and home for a delightful bundle of fun and love, please read on. We found this abandoned kitty in a field and have given him his first set of shots, including leukemia vaccination, and had him wormed, dipped, neutered, and front paws de-clawed. He is approximately 5 months old, a beautiful black and white Tabby shorthair, and he loves to play with people or other animals. We have fallen in love with him but can't keep him because we already have several pets. Please call 881-2909 if you are interested.

LOVEABLE dogs and cats need good homes. For adoption information call: Northern Suburbs Animal Welfare League Volunteer at 773-0954 (for dogs) or 463-9708 (for cats). Weekdays only for both numbers.

FREE Adorable Kittens - all gray and white, Siamese mother, 885-5413.

FREE to good home. Spayed chihuahua. All shots. 884-6248.
