

'Pardon me, but your drinking really bothers me'

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

You're at a social gathering. A friend of yours has had too much to drink and it is clearly evident. What do you do? Do you say anything?

In today's society, we probably wouldn't say anything, but in the not too distant future, we may treat the excessive drinker the same way we now treat smokers.

According to Mark Steinberg of the state's Office of Substance Abuse Services, we may say something like, "Your being intoxicated really creates a problem for me."

Steinberg was the final speaker at the Substance Abuse Community Council's fall lecture series: "We've Just Begun to Fight!" Steinberg's presentation followed a short keynote address by Michigan's new drug czar, Donald Reisig, whose actual title is director of the Office of Drug Agencies.

Reisig's address, titled "We Need You! Enlisting in the Home Front Effort," revolved around the belief that the war on alcohol and other drug abuse cannot be fought by law enforcement personnel alone.

Reisig commended SAC² for its efforts to fight drug abuse and added, "Too many communities stand on the sidelines and say it can't happen here.

"As much as you are involved, you have not reached your full commitment. Grab your neighbor by the neck, if you can, and get him to the next meeting. Get him involved."

Reisig said that no matter how much is done to attack the supply side of illicit drugs, there will always be a problem as long as there is a demand.

"Until attitudes change, there will always be a demand for drugs," he said, "and there will always be someone willing to profit."

But Reisig is optimistic: "I am convinced the answers to the dilemma that faces this country lies within each of us."

He points to the crackdown on drunken driving — or, rather, all impaired driving — as an example of what can happen when the community gets concerned and gets involved.

He said the same thing happened with tobacco use.

"This could not have been done by some faceless bureaucracy in Lansing or Washington," Reisig said.

Even though the Grosse Pointes aren't plagued by crack houses, the drug czar said it is still very important that Grosse Pointes get involved in the war on drugs, because they are in positions of authority, whether in the board room, community or in the family.

Steinberg, who is co-author of "Two Steps to Adequate Prevention Efforts," said the question isn't so much why do we have alcohol and other drug problems; it's why do we have so many alcohol and other drug problems?

While there are many reasons for alcohol abuse, one thing that has not hindered alcohol consumption is price. Steinberg said the real price of alcohol has dropped since the 1950s, and price has a direct effect on consumption.

Steinberg used the price of gasoline as an example. The lower the price at the pumps, the more people drive and more accidents occur. Likewise, the lower the price of alcohol, the more people will drink and more alcohol problems will occur.

The same goes for cigarettes.

Carl E. Larson

By Dan Jarvis

The next time you're driving on a rainy night and you turn on your windshield wiper, think of Carl Larson. Larson is, in part, responsible for getting wipers installed in American automobiles.

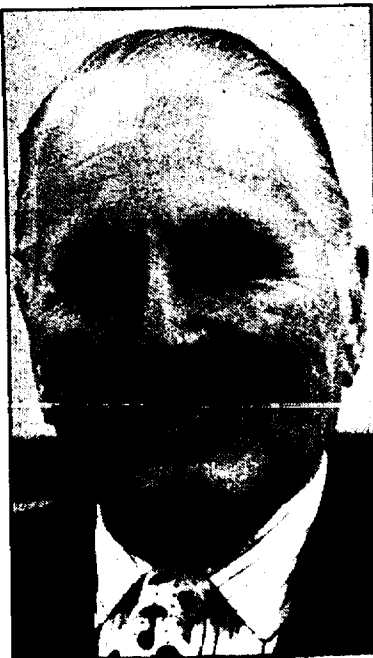

With more than 65 years in the automotive industry, Larson remembers several other changes besides the automatic windshield wiper becoming a standard feature in production cars.

When he was hired into the sales department of the Trico Products automotive firm in 1924, workmen were removing the Durant sign from the building. Soon after, workers installed the current name on the building, General Motors. The GM building today remains one of Detroit's most well-known landmarks.

The building in years past housed several automotive support companies. One by one as the automotive companies folded or moved, only one company, Trico Products, was permitted to remain in the GM building.

Trico Products remains a fixture today and Larson, now on the board of directors, is considered one of the industry's fixtures, with a hand in Detroit's rich automotive history.

But Detroit was not always the undisputed automotive manufacturing center, Larson said.

"At the beginning of the auto industry, Indianapolis appeared to be the leading automotive center since Duesenberg, the Marmond, the Cole, the Stutz and the A.L.S. models were all built in Indianapolis," he said.

Detroit was not the only city giving Indianapolis competition for the No. 1 spot. Cleveland was

Harper/Grosse Pointe Woods may pay twice for cleanup

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

Not only may Grosse Pointe Woods and Harper Woods residents get hit with their share of a multi-billion-dollar, state-mandated cleanup of the Rouge and Detroit rivers, but they may also have to cover another $27 million to stopping sewage spills in the Milk River.

On Oct. 19, the state ordered Detroit and some 50 suburban communities to take measures to prevent sewage and chemicals from entering the Rouge and Detroit rivers.

Estimated cost of the improvements, which include building huge retention basins to catch excess combined sewage/rain water overflow from entering the rivers, was reported to be $3.5 billion, of which Detroit suburbs would likely have to come up with $1 billion.

The head of the Detroit Water and Sewerage Department, Charles Williams, reported that homeowners could see their water and sewer bills jump from an average of $129 annually now to more than $2,000 a year in order to meet the state's sewage overflow guidelines within 20 years. The state puts the price tag at a mere $50 a year.

The cleanup of the Detroit and Rouge rivers requires that massive retention basins be built in Detroit and the suburbs where combined sewage overflows enter one of the two rivers. Detroit estimates the retention basins to cost $730 million, and another $860 million would be needed to increase the capacity of the huge sewage treatment plant on Detroit's southwest side.

Combined sewage overflows occur during heavy rains in systems where water and storm drains are connected. At points along the Detroit and Rouge rivers, there are more than 200 outfalls where raw sewage mixed with rain water overflows into the two rivers.

Though not included in the discharge permits recently issued by the state to Detroit and other communities along the Detroit and Rouge rivers, the Milk River Pump Station serving Harper Woods and Grosse Pointe Woods faces the same fate as Detroit and the communities along the other two rivers.

Combined sewage overflows the retention basin at the Milk River Pump Station in Grosse Pointe Woods near the county border an average of 46 times a year. The overflow enters what is left of the Milk River channel and eventually enters Lake St. Clair.

Currently the Milk River Inter-County Drainage Board is working with the engineering firm of McNamee, Porter and Seeley to come up with options that will meet the overflow standards being set by the state Department of Natural Resources.

Among the options being considered is an expanded retention basin, similar to what is being talked about for Detroit and the communities along the Rouge and Detroit rivers. The new basin would have a 45-million-gallon retention capacity and would meet the DNR's requirements. The price tag: $27 million.

However, in order for the huge Milk River retention option to work, the pump station would have to be able to pump to Detroit at a higher gallons-per-minute capacity than currently allowed in order to draw down the 45-million-gallon retention basin before the next storm.

Of great concern to Harper Woods and Grosse Pointe Woods residents, however, is not only will they have to pay for the Milk River retention basin, they along with other suburbanites may have to chip in the additional billions of dollars that Detroit has to pay for its retention basins and increasing the treatment plant's capacity.

"That's what we're concerned about," said James Murray, director of the Wayne County Public Works Department, which operates the Milk River Pump Station for the Inter-County Drainage Board.

Staff development: Even teachers need to continue learning

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

"The reason for staff development is the kids. We do this for the kids."

Rosalie Bryk is in her third year as head of the staff development office, a position which was brand new when she took it. And she loves her job.

"I find it stimulating to do things and to find things that get people turned on," she said.

Superintendent John Whritner is impressed with what Bryk has been able to do in three years.

"I think she's done an outstanding job," he said. "When you look at what industry puts into their employees, it comes out to about 2 to 5 percent of its overall budget. We're putting well under 1 percent of our budget and I'm already seeing significant differences.

"I sense a new excitement on our staff. There's a desire to try new things. I think this is the best investment we can make."

"Things are constantly changing," Bryk said. "It's up to me to make sure teachers and administrators have the latest methods of doing things. You wouldn't want open heart surgery done by someone who hasn't updated his technique since he graduated med school. This is the same

Classes on everything from team building, personal motivation, problem-solving with a computer, conflict resolution, AIDS, methods of challenging the gifted, coping with the problem student, even ways of spotting and stopping child sexual abuse are offered on a volunteer basis. Even classes for lunchroom monitors are offered.

"Believe me, what goes on in that lunchroom has everything to do with how well a child learns in the afternoon," she said.

Some programs are taught by outside experts; many are taught by employees of the school system who may have attended a seminar and feel it would be good for others to benefit from techniques and information learned. Credit is offered for certain classes.

"It's amazing the number of employees we get to come to these programs, especially when you consider that most of the programs are offered after school and on weekends," Bryk said.

She says she still worries and hopes that at least 20 people will show up for the sessions, even though for many offerings she has a waiting list.

The system has approximately 1,000 staff members; attendance at the nearly 45 programs put on last year was more than 2,700 people.

Her goal this year is to put on more programs for classified personnel, school secretaries, and other non-educator staff. Programs for them would include implementing new technologies into their work.

Bryk was on the committee which created the staff development position three years ago. In-service training and development activities were being done prior to that time, but they were performed by various departments.

"The quality of the programming was there, but we wanted to give it its own identity," Bryk said.

It was almost as if her years of teaching in the system and the time spent as assistant to the principal and her other experiences came together, she said, making her background perfect for the position.

Staff development is a relatively new field, but it is one that is growing by leaps and bounds. The National Staff Development Organization's first conference in 1980 was attended by 80 people. More than 3,000 people attended last year's event. "The Developer," the newsletter for staff development which at first came out on a sporadic basis, is now a monthly publication which is no longer a dittoed sheet.

Funding comes from the school budget, with state money available, too. Bryk makes grants to district employees who want to attend certain conferences or seminars. When they return, they hold seminars for district teachers and pass on the information.

Most of the seminars are free, however, materials fees are sometimes charged so no money is lost.

"We should all be lifelong learners," Bryk said. "When we stop wanting to learn, that's when we should book a room at Verheyden's (funeral home)."

When on-site budgeting was introduced into the public schools on a trial basis last year, it was Bryk's job to give people the background on what needed to be done when each school's budgeting committee got together.

She is working on programs to help teachers implement a thinking skills curriculum which will come to the board for approval before the end of the year.

"The superintendent is very supportive of staff development and so is the board," she said. "It is not unusual for board members to attend some of the sessions."

Although this position has stopped her from direct teaching face to face with children, she sometimes gets a chance to try out a new technique on a class, so she hasn't totally given up the kids.

But she says the kids are never far from her mind.

"I look at what I do as having an impact on not just the teachers or one class of students, but on the education of 7,300 students."

Composting begins

After you rake your lawn and the vacuum truck takes the leaves away, they are off to the grounds of the Grosse Pointe-Clinton Refuse Disposal Authority to be composted.

This is the first year of composting for the authority. The program was approved by most of the councils of the eight cities which make up the authority's board. It was started in response to shrinking space in landfills and growing concern among residents about the use of landfills.

Doug Taylor, acting administrator of the authority, said they are waiting for release of Department of Natural Resources funds for a leaf-turner, a $39,000 piece of equipment which will travel the rows of leaves and turn them, making composting quicker.

"We were already okayed for the machine, but it just takes time," he said.

The incinerator has been shut down since Dec. 28 when routine testing of ash found higher than allowable levels of lead and cadmium in the residue. A re-start date is still undetermined. All trash has been transferred directly to a landfill since that date.

Woods says no to day care in residential neighborhoods

By Dan Jarvis
Staff Writer
Is it babysitting or a day care operation? To Woods Councilman Ted Bidigare, that was the question.

At the council meeting Monday night, the question was unimportant to other councilmen. Bidigare stood alone, voting to allow child care in a residential neighborhood. But Bidigare was not voting to allow day care facilities into the Woods, he was saying yes to babysitting.

When Mayor George Freeman brought the gavel down, however, the council had spoken. The city of Grosse Pointe Woods will not allow day care facilities, babysitting, plumbing or any other business to operate in a residential neighborhood.

The action was the result of a hearing scheduled before the Woods Zoning Board of Appeals (the same members as the council) by attorneys for Mary Rose, a day care provider currently suing the city.

The suit, filed in June 1988, claims that the city's ordinance prohibiting businesses in residentially zoned areas is unconstitutional and is selectively enforced. Rose is seeking in excess of $10,000 in damages, court costs and attorney's fees.

When Rose approached the city for a clarification of the ordinance, which she said allows for small babysitting operations, she was told the action was against the city's laws. She was also given a cease and desist order, as were two other Woods residents who provided child care from their homes.

Roose went to court. But unlike the television courtroom dramas which provide an instant answer, she was told by a Circuit Court judge to go back to the city to exhaust all administrative remedies.

And that's exactly what happened at Monday's meeting. Before an unusually large crowd and a rarely seen court stenographer, Rose's attorney, Mary Arsenault, told the council that Rose is just one of many Woods residents who provide child care.

"Mary Rose has been singled out because she is licensed by the state," Arsenault said. The attorney said that the names of all licensed day care providers appear on a state listing which is provided to municipalities. Many other unlicensed day care providers continue to operate, but because Rose followed the law and became a state licensee, she now is being singled out.

Arsenault added that by denying Rose permission to provide child care, the council is sending out a clear message to others: Do not become licensed; do not conform to state regulations; do not leave a paper trail to a Woods residential address.

But a majority on the council, especially Paul Beaupre, feels the state regulations are not stringent enough to guarantee proper care for children in the community.

As Beaupre repeatedly questioned Rose regarding the number of state inspections over the past two years, Rose repeatedly answered only once.

Roose said during the state inspection, all electrical outlets were checked, as was the cleanliness of the home. Roose passed.

Beaupre remained dubious about the inspection process. "The state has been remiss. The state will pay, not the city of Grosse Pointe Woods," he said, referring to legal problems created in a residence.

Roose said she offered open visitation and inspections by the state and the city, but the state only came once. The city did not send anyone to inspect the home, though Roose again offered an open door.

In support of Roose, several parents whose children are left with her daily spoke to the council.

"We also want state inspections, but we held our own inspection and everything is up to satisfaction. Her rules are stringent and exacting to avoid problems with the neighbors," the parent said.

Another parent said he represents the homeowner where both parents work. He said the city should get involved in providing day care and should not shut down one of the few licensed operations providing a good environment for his child.

But a neighbor said the operation was creating traffic safety problems in the area. Another said by allowing Roose to operate, the city was contributing to the formation of a socialist state where local laws are ignored by state government.

Arsenault doubted the claim and said the Michigan Legislature, recognizing the need for day care, has recently passed laws protecting day care facilities on a township or county level.

She added the state will soon pass into law a similar law for cities, which will take precedent over local zoning restrictions and allow day care in residential neighborhoods.

Arsenault said Roose will now go back to Circuit Court to schedule a trial date. "If we lose, then we will appeal."

School board learns costs; holds off on library decision

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

December. That's the month when the Grosse Pointe school board will make a final decision about the library project.

The board on Monday was presented with a construction timeline by David C. Milling, president of Osler-Milling, the architects for the project. The board was also given a schedule of architectural fees. That's when they decided to wait until December to make a decision.

"The process needs to proceed immediately," Milling told the board if the library is to be ready for a June 1992 completion date.

Design work and re-work — which will be done in conjunction with Director of Libraries Charles Hanson and other library staff — and contracting must start now, Milling said.

and will conclude near February of 1991.

The system should let bids for the project early, Milling said, before construction firms tie themselves up with other projects. Construction should take approximately a year.

The one stumbling block is the timing of the bond issue vote. The board has tentatively set that vote for February 1991.

The total library cost is approximately $7 million, but the board is hoping private fundraising will chip away at that number and that the bond issue will be considerably less.

A study is being done now in the community by Ketchum Associates, a private fundraising company, to determine how much money can be raised. Ketchum will report their findings to the board in December.

If the board goes ahead with the plans now, it must pay architectural fees of approximately $22,000-$25,000 a month.

That's before the board knows if the residents will approve a bond issue. If they don't, the board will have already spent close to $366,000 by February 1991.

Trustee Fred Adams, however, said he didn't want to make a decision on whether to go ahead with the project until he knew what was going to happen to Central Library.

A committee whose purpose was to present plans for that building was supposed to report to the board this month. That report will now come in December.

The board is expected to vote then on how to proceed with the project.

Woods man assaults girl after school

A 19-year-old Grosse Pointe Woods man assaulted his girlfriend, a 17-year-old Woods resident, after she refused to get into his car on her way home from school Oct. 31.

According to police reports, students who witnessed the 3:50 p.m. incident said the 19-year-old man, who lives in 900 block of Woods Lane, stopped the girl on Wedgewood near Briarcliff. Witnesses said the man wanted to talk to the girl and wanted her to get into his car, a gray Suzuki JX convertible.

When the girl refused, he dragged her about, threw her to the ground and forced her against his car, where she bumped her head and received a cut in her lower lip. The officer said the girl was obviously shaken and her lip was cut and swollen when he arrived.

While the officer was talking to the girl and witnesses, the Woods man returned to the scene. When the students pointed out the car, the Woods 19-year-old squealed his tires and took off. The officer witnessed the "jack rabbit" start and pursued the man up and down several streets before making a stop.

The man was cited for unnecessary noise and was released after being told detectives would be contacting him concerning the reported assault.

Cab passenger asks residents for the fare

A young man in a green Checker Cab approached residents on Huntington in Grosse Pointe Woods Nov. 5 seeking cab fare.

The man, who was described as Arabic and about 22 years old, approached one house in the 1800 block at about 10 a.m. and said he intended to visit the resident's neighbor, who wasn't home. He said he needed $22 for cab fare and only had traveler's checks.

The resident said he would cash a $25 traveler's check, but the stranger didn't like the idea. The resident then told the stranger that the neighbor had relatives three doors down. The stranger then went to the home of another neighbor but not to the one pointed out as being a relative of the people the stranger said he came to visit.

The stranger told the resident at the other Huntington home that he was a nephew of the one neighbor and that he had just arrived from California. The stranger told the second resident that he needed $23 cab fare. The resident gave the stranger $13 and later called Woods police.

Woods detectives are investigating to determine if the incident was a larceny by trick.

Author helps children 'bear' writing

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Cynthia Holt Cummings will be 70 this year, but you'd never know it by watching her recite her poetry to school children.

Energy flowed from the petite Birmingham author out into the room of Maire school fifth graders, as she read her poems, and urged them to read and write.

Cummings reads her poems to classes throughout the area at no charge, but she was a little more at home in Christa Goldsmith's class. Goldsmith illustrated Cummings' latest book "Christmas Spirit."

The two met a number of years ago when one of Goldsmith's friends gave her one of Cummings' books.

"I was just delighted by the story," Goldsmith said. "Then I heard she did presentations to classes and I called her up and invited her to my class."

After a number of talks given to Goldsmith's classes, Goldsmith gave Cummings a set of stationery she had designed as a thank you, and offered to illustrate her next book.

Cummings, however, had decided to stop writing books. Then she thought she needed a swan song, a final book put out for her 70th birthday, and one day while she was vacuuming, a phrase passed through her mind and she sat at her kitchen table and wrote "Christmas Spirit."

"Spirit" is the third of Cummings' eight books that tell the story of a family of bears that lives in the house with the circular stairs. It tells the tale of Peter, a bear who, by his actions and his words, embodies the spirit of the holiday season.

Cummings gave Goldsmith four pages of her poetry, and told her to go to it.

"The artist is very important to putting a book together," Cummings said. "The artist has to put the package together."

For 10 weekends Goldsmith sketched and re-sketched the family of bears and their house that had the circular stairs. In the end, when it was finished, the 80 page hard-bound book was sent off to the printers.

"Let me tell you," Goldsmith said, "I will never ever look at an illustrated book in the same way again."

But the project wasn't completed. After the books were printed, Cummings inspected each one and signed them "With warm friendly thoughts, Fondly, Cynthia Holt Cummings" as she has done with every one of her books since the printing of her first book, "Christmas Ribbons." She estimates she has signed more than 75,000 books.

Cummings has always been a writer, but it took a back seat to her nursing career. As an Army nurse, she traveled with the 77th Field Artillery to Africa. In the middle of the Atlantic, the ship she was on was accidentally rammed and it had to be rerouted to Bermuda.

Her first poem, "Convoy," tells of that experience. She recited the poem to the soldiers and it was added to the history of the 77th when World War II ended.

Other poems were printed in "Stars and Stripes," the armed forces newspaper.

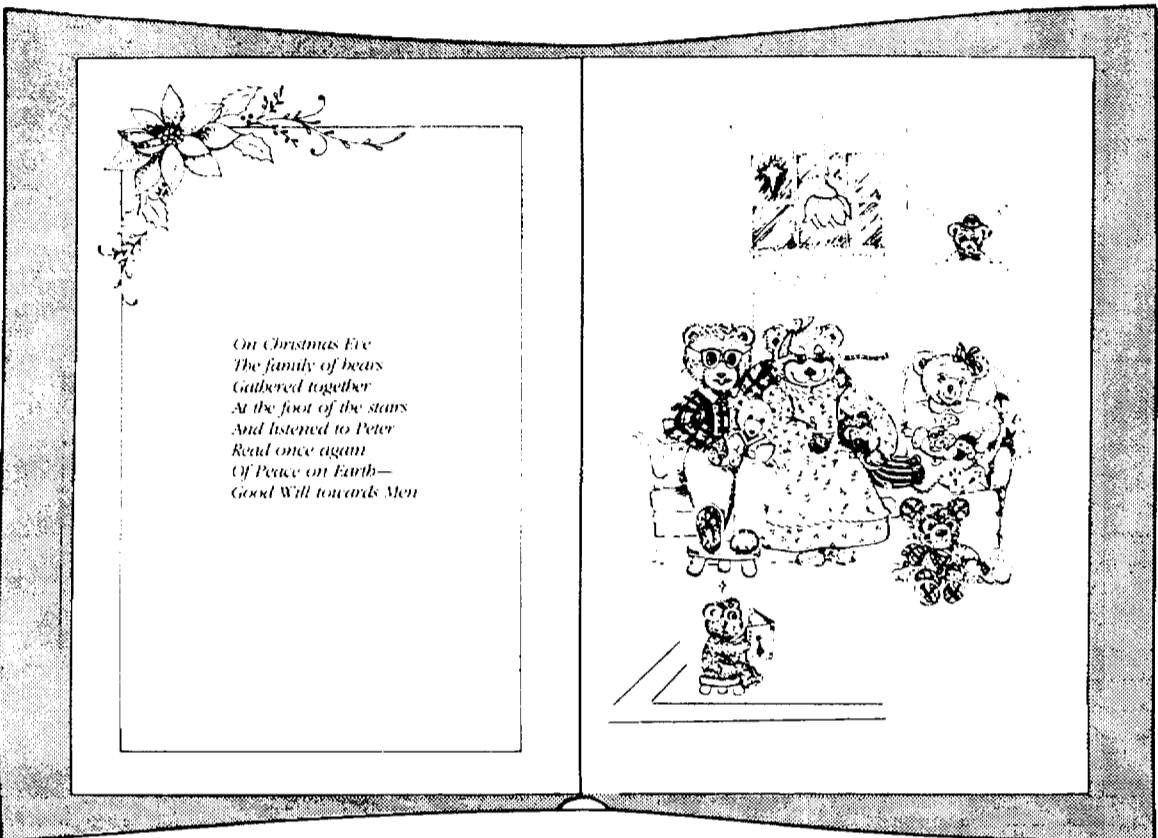

After the war she married and wrote short poems (Thank you, God, for giving me/Another year to trim the tree) as Christmas cards, and sent them to family members who urged her to collect them into a book.

She was 60 before she took their advice and with her husband backing her, she compiled "Christmas Ribbons." That book, Cummings urged the students to write. She says the characters in her books are her friends, but her most important friends are a pen and some paper.

"Just sit down and write," she told the students. "Write anything that comes into your mind, and don't ever throw anything away. You never know when a word or a phrase you wrote once will develop into a story."

Park woman abducted at party store; police alerted on witness's car phone

The 26-year-old Grosse Pointe Park woman who was abducted in her car at Alter and Kercheval in Detroit last week was released from St. John Hospital Monday morning.

The incident occurred at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 2 in the parking lot of a party store at the Detroit-Grosse Pointe Park border. According to Detroit police, the woman had just gotten into her car when a man forced his way into the woman's car through the driver's side door and pushed her over to the passenger's side. The suspect told the woman he had a knife.

During a struggle with the Park woman, the man lost control of the car at Philip and Charlevoix and crashed into a porch of a home in the 2900 block of Philip.

The man escaped on foot. The woman was taken to St. John Hospital, where she was initially reported in temporary serious condition with injuries to her face, neck, chest and shoulders.

A Detroit police spokeswoman said an investigation is continuing and there are no suspects.

According to television reports, a Grosse Pointe Park woman in another car saw the abduction taking place and tried to block the other woman's car. She then followed the other woman's car and called 911 on her car phone. She got through to Detroit police, who requested backup from Park police at the Philip address.

Park police said the car was already smashed into the house on Philip when they arrived at the scene, and the suspect had already fled. A Detroit police canine unit began tracking the suspect, but then lost the trail.

New district library plan studied here

As a result of enactment of new state legislation, the Grosse Pointe Board of Education has begun to study the feasibility of setting up a separate district library to serve the Grosse Pointes.

To date the board's library governance committee is simply examining the legislation to determine the advantages and disadvantages of a new library organization which would replace the board of education which now operates the public library system for the school district.

Some library supporters think the plan is worth serious study with a view to eventual adoption in the Pointes in order to give the library needs a higher priority than they sometimes seem to get from a board deeply immersed in school problems.

Support for that view was expressed at a recent school board meeting by Jerry Furi, a Pointer who is assistant director of the Farmington district library, and who testified about the benefits of a separate board that could concentrate on library problems and purposes.

The establishment of a separate library organization might also become helpful to the schools in the event of the adoption of Proposal B in the Nov. 7 referendum on school financing or any legislation that might cap school millages in districts like Grosse Pointe. Setting up a separate library district might make it possible to maintain the millage for school purposes at a higher maximum than would otherwise be possible.

But there are disadvantages, too, in a new library organization. It would require another public board, which could be either appointed or elected, and the support of the Pointe municipalities and Harper Woods if the entire school district were to be served by the new district library.

In addition, adoption of a district library organization would require transfer of the current library property now owned by the school district to the new library board. That might be a major obstacle in the event the school board wanted to retain property that the library board wanted, as, for example, the Brownell school property being considered as the site of a new library building.

Under Senate Bills 140, 141 and 142, which provide for the establishment, financing and maintenance of district libraries, the Grosse Pointe school board apparently would have to approve any new library district. Approval would also be required by two or more of the cooperating municipalities while the state librarian would have authority to approve or disapprove on the technical grounds of whether the district library agreement conformed to the new law.

However, all the residents of any proposed area to be covered by a library district would have the opportunity to vote on the millage that would be needed to finance the district library. The new law permits a maximum levy of 2 mills, as contrasted with the current 1.7 mill library levy that has been authorized in the Pointes by the school board and the citizens of the school district.

Several other state school districts already are investigating the possibility of converting their systems into district libraries. One is Kalamazoo, where, according to the state librarian's office, the school board is initiating the action because it apparently feels its plate is filled with just the problems of the Kalamazoo public schools. Saginaw, Lansing and Heartland schools are also reported to be considering the new system.

Michigan now has a total of 377 public libraries, with 30 operated by school districts and 72 as district libraries. The others are basically municipal libraries operated by cities, as are the majority of public libraries in the United States.

The News believes the library district idea is worth investigating although we think no action should be taken that would jeopardize the planning for a new library building. Yet it is true that some residents of the area surrounding the Brownell school site are unhappy, fearing traffic and other problems if the new building goes on the proposed school site.

The expansion plan, which seems to have been studied to death, now appears to be moving toward a bond election to finance the project probably in February, 1991. Regardless of the site eventually approved or the kind of library organization that is finally determined to be best for the Pointes, all the recent studies emphasize that the system needs more space if it is to continue to serve the increasing information needs of the community.

An import we can do without

As if disposing of our own waste isn't a serious enough issue, Michigan now is becoming concerned about the growing amount of waste being imported into this state from New York and New Jersey and possibly other Eastern states.

Not a moment too soon, a state House committee is starting to review the problems associated with waste disposal, including such subjects as landfills, transfer stations, incinerators and waste haulers, to determine whether new regulations are required.

The committee of five Democrats appointed by House Speaker Lewis Dodak plans to make a full review of the entire waste disposal industry before reaching any decisions. It is especially interested in rates for disposal of garbage and possible new regulations to limit the amount of waste being imported from other states, improved control of waste haulers and how contracts are negotiated between municipalities and waste disposal companies.

As part of its review, the committee plans to schedule public hearings throughout the state. In our opinion, that is a wise move in view of the growing seriousness of the waste disposal problem in smaller communities such as Grosse Pointe as well as in big cities.

Michigan is not alone in becoming concerned about the growing importation of garbage and trash from other states. The New York Times in a recent story reported that as communities in the Northeast run out of disposal space, there has been a rush to find dumps in other states, where private landfill operators are willing to sell off unused capacity.

The Times quoted an Environmental Protection Agency estimate that New Jersey, which has strict dumping rules, now exports nearly half of its solid waste to other states. Many cities and towns in that state find it less expensive to truck a ton of garbage 400 miles to Ohio, where dump fees are only a fraction of what they are in the East, than to bury it in one of its own few remaining landfills, the Times said.

The Associated Press quoted Rep. Tom Alley, D-West Branch, a member of the House investigating committee, as warning about the increasing cost of disposing of garbage, especially since many communities now oppose landfills in their areas and the Department of Natural Resources is putting more stringent regulations on landfills.

But federal regulation may be needed to slow the flow of Eastern trash into the Midwest. A 1976 Supreme Court decision held that garbage is a commodity in interstate commerce, not unlike TV sets and automobiles, and thus not subject to state-enacted tariffs or taxes.

But Congress in its wisdom probably could upset that ruling, especially if the Eastern states continue the practice of dumping a big share of their trash on their Midwest neighbors. In our opinion, that is one kind of protectionism that a majority of Michigan and Midwest people would strongly support.

Pershing High then and now

The editor of the Christian Science Monitor, Richard J. Cattani, recently returned to Detroit's Pershing High School for his 35th class reunion and wrote two columns for his paper about the changes that have occurred since 1954.

A trained newsmen, Cattani offered some thoughtful observations about Pershing while pointing to differences in the school population and the kinds of problems the school now faces as contrasted with 1954.

Then Pershing was about one-third black, with large white ethnic and white southern blocks. But, he quotes a Michigan classmate as saying, "We were all Americans then." Today it is 88 percent black, 11 percent Middle Eastern and 1 percent "other."

Then, Cattani reported, students believed in the melting pot ideal. Now, while racial tensions have eased since the 1970s, he finds "the sense of progress toward racial harmony we once shared has been disappointed."

He sees black flight replacing white flight as middle-class blacks move out to Southfield and Oak Park while Southern blacks and Middle Easterners move in. The dropout rate is 43 percent but nearer 20 percent if the common stretchout to five years and night-school attendance are taken into consideration.

But desegregation has created a brain drain, because the new citywide schools in the arts, sciences and math have "stripped Detroit's regional schools of the scholars and performers who can help bring the thrill of achievement to students and faculty."

It is no surprise that he finds "crime is the staple Detroit topic for outsiders." But crime, he adds, is the reverse side of something missing, which is:

"A vigorous and spirited school life, animated by the ideal of a time, such as sped many of us to useful careers and relationships. The vitality of a great city and a nation does begin in one community, with one teacher and one school."

As Detroit struggles with its school problems, Cattani's views are worth thinking about, especially when he cites that now-missing ingredient — "a vigorous and spirited school life" — that he felt helped speed him and many of his 1954 classmates to successful careers.

The unanswered question, however, is how to instill such a spirit into school life at Pershing where he now "senses less of the hopes, for ourselves and our community, that we shared in the '50s." How, indeed?

Halloween

To the Editor:

I would like to send a big thank you to the Village Association for coordinating the trick or treating event Halloween afternoon from 3:30 to 4:30. Handing out treats to clamoring children for an hour is not everyone's idea of a good time, but participating merchants went out of their way to make the hour fun.

Grosse Pointe mothers and children spent a lot of time creating costume masterpieces. This was the perfect opportunity to "see and be seen" while it was still light. It is also a wonderful way to promote the friendly atmosphere in the Village. Children do not forget when an adult is kind to them. Most will remember from year to year which stores participate and exactly what they distribute!

Recycling

To the Editor:

I am responding to an Oct. 12 article by Ronald J. Bernas titled "Recycling group makes recommendations." It discusses the results of the REACT project and the latest recommendations for future legislation made by Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling.

I feel that five Grosse Pointe cities should establish a curbside recycling program. My family and I have participated in Saturday collections at Grosse Pointe South High School, and I see the need for further programs. A curbside collection would probably be more convenient for many people, especially if the pick-up day is the same as garbage day.

Our national resources are diminishing and the need to recycle is greater than ever before.

Police

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to a letter printed in the October issue of your newspaper. This was a letter by a lady whose 9-month-old son was hit by a car driven by a Grosse Pointe South student while he was being pushed in a stroller. The complaint was that the Grosse Pointe police weren't patrolling the South area enough during lunch time.

Being a South student, I experience the lunches every day. I feel there is a little irresponsibility on the part of South students during lunch. In the case of this accident no one was hurt seriously, even though the driver of the car was only 15.

Things like this don't happen very often, but you can't expect police to catch them all the time. The police have to patrol the whole city all day and all night. You can't expect half of the police force to go to South during lunch time. They have enough to do without watching South.

Singin' holiday blues early this year

I know a guy who leaves his Christmas lights up all year. He says it's easier that way. He probably won't like this article, but then again he's probably too busy relaxing to read the darn thing.

Have you noticed that Santa has arrived a little early this year?

Now I'm not usually a "bah humbug" kind of guy, but there is a phenomenon in local shopping malls I'm not crazy about: Without fail, Santa seems to show up a little earlier every year.

When I was younger I heard people say in a resigned way that after Thanksgiving we should expect to be deluged with a mass of tinsel from the Christmas marketing machine. Now I realize that this sounds a bit cold, but I really do enjoy participating in the special holiday. I enjoy spending time with family and friends and I admit to having a soft spot for the holiday season.

But lately I feel like uttering Scrooge's famous words when Santa gives me his trustworthy grin well before Thanksgiving.

One Santa I recently encountered was peering out from between pumpkins, goblins and assorted other Halloween monsters. It looked like one of those "What's wrong with this picture?" quizzes.

"I know the answer," I thought. "Santa took the wrong sled and ended up at the wrong party."

The gang of evil pranksters must have thought, "Who is this do-gooder anyway?" Santa looked like a lost lamb among the stodgy set. He looked like he needed a lift to the land of the living but was too nice a guy to trouble anyone for a ride.

I shrugged it off until another answer to the "What's wrong with this picture?" quiz came to me.

The brilliant marketing executives who ordered the Halloween/Christmas decorations forgot the turkey. They took us straight from the night of the living dead to Christmas Eve without even a thought for the pilgrims or the Indians.

What about the Indian corn, the turkey, those little gourds and the cornucopia? I guess they don't sell many cornucopias at the mall, so why bother?

Well, I can think of a few reasons, but I may be stretching it, so I won't.

Since I'm on the subject of holidays, why do you suppose the last one, Halloween, has become so violent, in theme at least? Traditionally, Halloween was the evening before Allhallows, or All Saints Day, and was celebrated with masquerading and fun-making. According to Random House Dictionary, the day was especially celebrated by children who solicited treats and threatened minor pranks.

As many in the Pointes have noticed, Halloween is not necessarily reserved for children in costume. And in Detroit, Coleman Young and the Firefighter's Union are still arguing over the number of arson fires which once again have made world headlines. Not minor pranks, but damaging fires. Done in the spirit of fun-making? I'm sure some in the fine city think so.

Now I'm not going to blame the over-eager marketing executives for the troubles of the world. But they too have jumped on the bandwagon with the people who use holidays as an excuse for something else. They too seem to get more eager every year.

But I'm the one who's always saying that the world is not getting any worse. It's always been a rough place. Some say that is a positive attitude; others said the statement is defeatist. Who knows?

I guess if the world is going to change, I prefer that it happens slowly. I would hate to think of a Fourth of July fireworks display raining sparks down on a nativity scene.

Perhaps the guy with the permanent Christmas lights is just ahead of his time.

Something's cooking

Michigan Opera Theatre is seeking up to 100 participants for the Hansel and Gretel gingerbread house competition on Tuesday, Nov. 28, from 6 to 9 p.m.

The competition kicks off the Hansel and Gretel Gingerbread Village exhibit and sale which runs through Dec. 3, concurrent with the opera company's presentation of the fairy tale opera "Hansel and Gretel" at the Masonic Temple auditorium.

Entrants may compete in one of three categories: professional, amateur or student. A panel of culinary experts will judge the tasty creations, according to presentation, originality, workmanship and composition.

Ribbons and trophies will be awarded for first, second and third place in each category. Entries must be edible and the base of the cookie house must be no larger than 2 by 3 feet.

Those interested in whipping up a delectable gingerbread edifice should call MOT at 874-7850 for an application, which must be completed and returned no later than Tuesday, Nov. 14. There is no application fee.

Participants are being asked to donate one gingerbread house (not necessarily the one in competition) to MOT for sale during the Hansel and Gretel gingerbread village exhibit.

On exhibit day, besides the competition, festivities will include a chance for guests to purchase gingerbread houses, a demonstration about how to create gingerbread houses by Chef Harvey Menzel of Zehnder's of Frankenmuth bakery, a chance for children to decorate houses, a holiday gift boutique and a gingerbread cafe and bar.

Admission to the Nov. 28 party is $3 for children 12 and under; $8 for adults; or $22 per family. Safe parking is available. Make reservations by calling 874-7850 or buy tickets at the door.

Co-chairs of the fundraiser are Carole and Jere Berkey of Grosse Pointe. Planning committee members include Dale Austin, Sheila Ingwersen and Marion Tringale of Grosse Pointe.

Cappy's Restaurant in the Park Shelton will carry on the tradition they began three years ago on the day after Thanksgiving by holding their annual "all you can eat" pancake breakfast. The event is a benefit for the Leukemia Society of America.

Cappy's owner Rick Juchartz, his staff, vendors and landlord will donate their time and services from 8 a.m. until noon on Friday, Nov. 24, to help raise funds to fight the disease.

Cost of the pancake breakfast is $5. It includes — besides a lotta pancakes — a chance to win a VCR, a compact disc player or dinner for two at Mr. Mike's Restaurant on Woodward.

Cappy's is in the Park Shelton, next to the Detroit Institute of Arts, at Woodward and Kirby.

For more information, call the Leukemia Society at 885-6550 or Cappy's at 871-9820.

I feel the police are doing a fine job patrolling the city and shouldn't be criticized. You shouldn't expect them to be there whenever something happens, but only when you call them. Many times I've been in a circumstance where police help was requested. Before I had a chance to call them, a patrolling car would come by and help. Once again, I don't think they should be criticized, and I commend them on a job well done.

PAATS

To the Editor:

A few months ago a new transportation system for senior citizens and the disabled came into existence in the Pointes and eastside Detroit. It's called PAATS (Pointes Area Assisted Transit System).

PAATS has met a desperate need for those of us who are unable to use public transportation and are unable to drive our own cars. It's a very good beginning to helping these citizens remain independent with dignity in their own community.

It's good business for the community because these members have money to spend and often a good deal of energy and ideas to contribute. Many of them have spent a good portion of their lives in our community.

PAATS gets people to hospitals and clinics and physicians as a first priority, oftentimes for out-patient therapy, radiation and chemotherapy.

What a joy it was for me to get to Eastland Mall and Macomb Mall in recent months to shop independently and just stroll around.

The system still does not cover the hours after 5 p.m., holidays or weekends, so does not take into consideration recreational or religious needs.

I find that the drivers and dispatchers are friendly, know the area exceedingly well and are kind and considerate to their elderly and sometimes very fragile passengers.

A serious problem has developed, however. In recent days I have learned that they have had payless paydays. I'm not in a position to try to untangle the problems involved here, but perhaps someone who reads this and who better understands the causes and complications, particularly some of our newly elected officials, can look into this.

Planned Parenthood

To the Editor:

Rex Roy's letter, dated Oct. 26, speaks of expecting "serious backlash" for his "stand." I doubt that will happen but would appreciate the opportunity to correct his misinformation about Planned Parenthood.

Planned Parenthood has done more than any other organization, and for a longer period of time, to prevent the need for abortion through its clinical services and educational programs. The Planned Parenthood position on, and philosophy about, abortion — that the decision must be left to the individual woman to make privately, in counsel with her family and physician — is supported by the majority of Americans. Mr. Roy is entitled to his beliefs. His "stand" at the Planned Parenthood Holiday Mart clearly indicated he wants everyone to share his viewpoint. That is not the case. Abortion is a visceral issue which can never be settled to the satisfaction of both sides. However, this country is fortunate in that we do have choices and the right to exercise them.

The solution to the unacceptable rate of teen pregnancy and abortion must focus on prevention through education. Education about human sexuality and reproductive anatomy and physiology. Education about birth control methods and responsible sexual behavior. And, most of all, education about the enormity of the commitment that parenting is all about.

I am indeed very proud to be on the board of directors of Planned Parenthood of Detroit, an organization that, in this community, has worked for 67 years to prevent problems before they occur. We have nothing to hide. In fact, I invite Mr. Roy and any member of the Grosse Pointe community to come to Planned Parenthood's open-house meeting, Nov. 28, and enjoy our Teen Theatre presentation — one of our excellent education programs. Call 963-2870 for more information.

Drug czar

To the Editor:

I was very impressed with the article "State drug czar: We're not ready to fight the war on drugs" (Oct. 12). I agree with Proposal A.

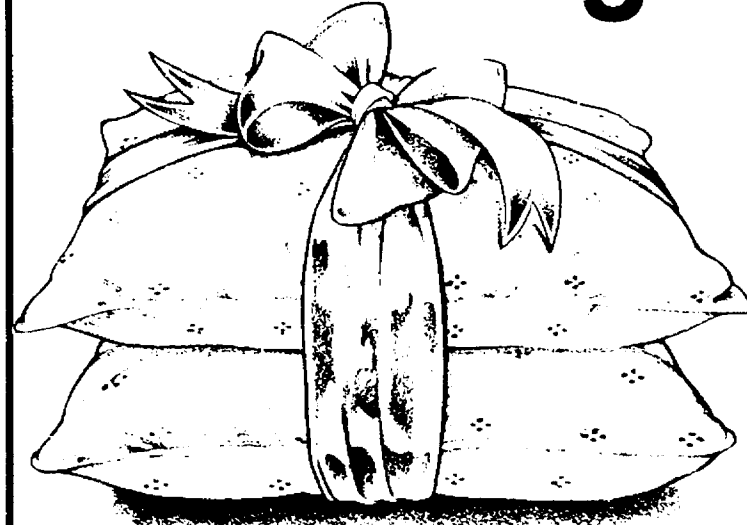

I think that drug education should be strong in the elementary schools. If the kids are taught at a young age, the dangers of drug use, they may realize that it is bad and they should not experiment. Drug education should also be focused on in middle school and high school, but for those students already on drugs, rehabilitation programs should be discussed.

In the article, Mr. Reisig says that a child who is a troublemaker in early grades may go on to use drugs. Those children are spotted and helped. If the child is a troublemaker that does not mean that he will use drugs. I have seen kids who were problems in elementary school and never even touch drugs. I have also seen kids who were not problems in elementary school start to use drugs as young as ninth grade.

If a good drug education program is used in schools I think that the number of drug users will drop and drugs won't be as big of a problem.

Keep the fields

To the Editor:

I am writing with reference to the article by Ronald J. Bernas in the Sept. 14 edition of the Grosse Pointe News titled "The library: Its future to be decided in November."

I was very disappointed to read that Grosse Pointe was thinking about building a new 40,000 to 45,000 square foot library on Brownell Middle School's playing field. If the board does indeed build the new library, the Grosse Pointe Soccer Association wouldn't have enough soccer fields, nor would the baseball association have any good baseball diamonds.

I think that Grosse Pointe should expand on the Central Library, not lengthwise, but story-wise. The library could move some books to the second floor and build a new third floor.

Donation

To the Editor:

It may not seem like it can possibly make a difference. Whether it's $2 a paycheck or $10 a month, in today's world of ever increasing costs, many people may feel that their payroll deduction designation in the United Way or Combined Federal Campaign doesn't make a difference.

Please let me assure your readers it makes a very big difference.

Those seemingly small donations, when multiplied by the millions of caring Americans who make these campaigns work, are important elements in carrying out the missions of many valuable charities.

For the American Institute for Cancer Research these donations help fund basic cancer research that is providing meaningful answers on cancer prevention and treatment. Those donations help make possible nationwide cancer education programs that are helping millions of Americans to lower their cancer risk. In the near future, these donations may help find an answer to this tragic disease.

May I urge your readers still considering their participation in these campaigns for the coming year to join their millions of fellow Americans. Even the smallest donation really does make a difference.

The American Institute for Cancer Research is proud to be participating for the third year in the Combined Federal Campaign as Agency 0808. We thank all those federal and military personnel who have made our past efforts so successful.

Last recycling day set

The Grosse Pointe Citizens For Recycling will hold its last once-a-month Recycling Day on Saturday, Dec. 2. The announcement came in a letter distributed to recyclers during last Saturday's Recycling Day, which tallied the biggest attendance so far at the recycling events.

More than 1,050 cars lined up Nov. 2 to drive through the South High School parking lot, bringing glass, metals, plastic and newspapers for recycling. Frances Schonenberg, president of Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling, called the day's collection the most successful one in the group's eight-month series.

mitment of Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods citizens to recycling," she said.

"We have markets for our recyclables," Schonenberg said. "We get the most money for glass, and in spite of the present poor paper market conditions, we are still selling, making a profit, on newspapers we collect."

Citizens for Recycling was organized a year ago to promote the understanding of and support for curbside recycling at the community level as one means of helping to control the growing amount of trash being generated and the increasing shortage of landfill space.

Veterans Day 1989

By Miles S. Epling
National Commander
The American Legion

Today, the United States is experiencing a remarkable time of peace and decreased international tensions. Whenever that happens, it is easy to forget that the peace we enjoy, the freedoms we take for granted, and the liberties we treasure so much have been guaranteed for more than 200 years by men and women who have served with honor in the uniform of our country.

They are honored every Nov. 11 — Veterans Day — a holiday established by Congress. Each of us needs to pause on this Veterans Day weekend to think about what service to our country means. We do not honor only those who died for their country — although we surely do honor them. The purpose of Veterans Day is to celebrate the part of our national character that has motivated millions of our best and brightest young men and women to put their national lives ahead of their personal ones.

Few countries in the world could ever staff a military without a draft or other form of compulsory service. The United States has since the mid-1970s.

Few other countries can look at an all volunteer force with the pride this country does. As citizens we rest assured that the military is there, and when they are needed, they will serve.

It is, perhaps, our faith in our defense that causes us to forget that the country's sons and daughters are serving without much fanfare in spots from Maine to the DMZ in Korea. They serve aboard aircraft carriers and at remote missile locations every day and night. The fact that we are able to devote our time and attention to our peaceful pursuits without much thought to their service is a sign that they are doing their jobs well.

In wartime this nation has a great tradition of appreciating military service. Now that we do not have the horrible specter of war threatening so much, should we not feel the same?

Our veterans have paid for our security with their toil, their blood, and sometimes their lives. By our observance of their Veterans Day, let us show our acknowledgement and appreciation of their service and sacrifice.

Appeals court reverses wrongful firing ruling against Park

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

Grosse Pointe Park was spared a $600,000 expense last month when the Michigan Court of Appeals reversed a lower court decision that was in favor of a former employee in a wrongful discharge suit.

On Oct. 5, the state appellate court reversed an earlier Circuit Court ruling that was in favor of former Park Department of Public Works driver James Magee. The lower court had awarded Magee $375,000 in the suit, which alleged the city had fired Magee out of fear that he may in the future file a worker's compensation claim against the city.

City attorney Herold McC. Deason, who briefed the City Council on the appellate decision at the council's Oct. 9 meeting, said Magee has 20 days to seek an appeal to the state Supreme Court. Deason said Tuesday that Magee's attorney has filed a leave to appeal. The Supreme Court should decide in about a month whether it will hear an appeal.

At the October council meeting, Mayor Palmer T. Heenan said the reversal is especially fortunate for the city in that the award, which would have cost a total of about $600,000 with interest, would have come out of the city's coffers. The Park worker's compensation insurance carrier that covered the city when Magee was employed has since gone bankrupt.

While the Park now has a new insurance carrier, the Magee award would not have been covered had the Court of Appeals upheld the Circuit Court ruling in favor of Magee.

Highlights of Magee's employment with the city were outlined in the appellate court's decision.

Oct. 11, 1974: Magee is hired by Park as a permanent employee and he is put on 90 days probation.

April 9, 1975: He's fired.
Feb. 16, 1976: Magee is reinstated and put on six months probation.

Jan. 30, 1978: He's promoted to assistant driver.

Oct. 2, 1978: While driving a city truck, he hits a bump, showering the car behind him with sand and cinder. The car's windshield is damaged.

Nov. 16, 1978: While driving a leaf sweeper, Magee strikes another vehicle, tearing off its side mirror.

Jan. 15, 1979: Magee is promoted to driver, which means he can operate garbage, salt and tree-spraying trucks and snow plows.

Aug. 2, 1979: He falls off a garbage truck, injuring his leg. The injury is reported but no time at work is missed.

Aug. 9, 1979: Magee is written up for substandard work. He loses one day's pay.

Oct. 3, 1979: He is given a second written warning for damaging two city vehicles, and he is placed on six months probation.

Jan. 7, 1980: While driving a snow sweeper to clean off sidewalks, he hits a curb, causing him to bump his head on the snow sweeper's dashboard. The injury is reported but no work time is missed.

July 1, 1980: He cuts his finger on glass while picking up garbage. The cut finger is reported and no work is missed.

Feb. 10, 1981: While driving a snow plow, Magee hits a parked vehicle, removing its side molding.

June 29, 1981: While driving a garbage truck, he hits a vehicle that was passing him on his right.

Nov. 9, 1981: He backs a garbage truck into a parked vehicle.

March 3, 1982: While cleaning a sidewalk, he hits a snow drift and again strikes his head on the snow sweeper's dashboard.

Oct. 4, 1982: Before taking a leaf picker out, he checks the machine over, which is required procedure, and discovers it is low on oil. While reinserting the dipstick, he comes in contact with the starter solenoid, causing a hot spark and an explosion. His right arm is severely burned. He files a worker's compensation claim, which the city honors.

March 15, 1983: Magee returns to restricted duty due to the arm injury.

April 15, 1983: He returns to full duty with full use of his arm.

May 2, 1983: While descending from a truck, Magee forgot about not being able to put his full weight on his weakened right arm, and he falls and injures his back.

May 3, 1983: City manager requests detailed report on Magee's work absences. Magee files a worker's compensation claim, which the city contests through its insurance carrier because of the chiropractic care Magee receives. The city's insurer eventually pays the claim.

End of May 1983: Magee returns to work, works a few days and is sent home when his arm swells. His doctor places the arm in a cast. Magee is scheduled to return to work Oct. 3. Meanwhile, he collects worker's compensation.

Sept. 1, 1983: Senior payroll clerk responds to city manager's request for details of Magee's work absences.

Sept. 20, 1983: City sends Magee a letter stating that his safety record was poor and that carelessness on the job would not be tolerated. The letter also stated that the on-the-job accidents resulted in Magee "taking substantial amounts of time off the job."

October 1983: Magee takes two weeks vacation.

December 1983: He takes three sick days off.

January 1984: He takes three sick days and five vacation days.

Feb. 3, 1984: He takes an injury day off.

Feb. 14, 1984: He takes a sick day.

Feb. 17, 1984: Magee notices his arm is swelling, works a half day and reports the swelling to his supervisor. He's told to go home and report back after he's seen his doctor. The following week, Magee sees his doctor, who said Magee could only work in a job that required "no use of his right upper extremity" until he was further evaluated by a psychiatrist.

Feb. 22, 1984: Magee takes doctor's letter to the city manager, who tells Magee that there is no restricted work available and that he would be dismissed as of Feb. 24, because he is unable to fully perform his job. Magee charges in front of a union representative that he's being fired because of past or possible future worker's compensation claims against the city. The city manager denies the accusation.

Magee filed a grievance through his union, but failed to fully pursue it.

March 30, 1984: Magee files a worker's compensation claim arising out of a Feb. 24, 1984, injury. The city disputes the claim; Magee wins the dispute, and the city appeals the decision.

Dec. 3, 1984: Magee sues the city, claiming the city discriminated against him because of his handicap and discharged him in retaliation for filing a worker's compensation claim. He later abandoned the claim under the Handicappers' Civil Rights Act and proceeded to trial solely on the claim of retaliatory discharge.

The Court of Appeals, however, found that the law protects employees from being fired for filing a worker's compensation claim, but the law does not prohibit someone from firing an employee in anticipation that future worker's compensation claims may be filed. Furthermore, Magee failed to prove that the city fired him in retaliation for past claims, especially due to the fact that the city has already paid the past claims.

Lastly, the appellate court pointed out that Magee failed to argue against the city's claim that he was physically unable to perform his job.

While Deason presented the good news concerning the Magee case to the City Council, he said it was his partner, James Walsh, who did all the work on the case and deserved any credit that may be due. Mayor Heenan publicly praised Deason and Walsh for their efforts in defending the city.

Teachers to discuss mainstreaming learning disabled children Tuesday

Michigan Association For Children And Adults With Learning Disabilities, Inc. will meet in Room 105 at South High School Tuesday, Nov. 14, at 7:30 p.m. for a program by Parcels Middle School teachers Cindy Reed and Bill Taylor on "Making Mainstreaming Work For All Children."

Reed and Taylor are a special education and a general teacher who are part of Parcels' Cooperative Teaching Program. This program, which is being tried throughout all the middle and high schools in Grosse Pointe, uses a special education teacher and a general education teacher in selected classes at the same time.

In this way, the unique special ed teacher is able to modify tests and assignments and provide on-the-spot tutorial help to students without pulling them out of the class, or waiting for them to fail. The teacher is also available to help students who may be having difficulty, even if they are not actually certified learning disabled.

Reed and Taylor will discuss the Cooperative Teaching concept and offer their views on the L.D. child in the mainstream. From the perspective of both special ed and general ed, they will be available to answer questions from the parents with children at all levels.

MACLD meetings are open to the public at no charge. Refreshments will be served.

City condo burglarized

A condominium on St. Clair in Grosse Pointe City was broken into Nov. 1. The resident reported the incident when she arrived home at 9:26 p.m.

Taken were several pieces of jewelry. A dollar value of the jewelry was not provided.

City police said the thief got into the condo by forcing a rear door with sufficient force to split the door jamb.

DuMouchelles to auction lost Remington treasures

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

When Grosse Pointe resident Ernest DuMouchelle was driving to Lansing to look at the estate of the late William Mountain, he didn't know what he was going to find.

His brother, Lawrence, also of Grosse Pointe, who along with a sister owns DuMouchelles Art Galleries, said, "We had sold some items for him in the past. He was pleased with our work and he called us again after he found some other items."

What DuMouchelle found there made national and international headlines. In the attic under layers of dust were several original, rare and untouched pieces by famed American artist Frederic Remington.

The most noteworthy item is a bronze titled "Cheyenne." It is the second of eight cast at the Roman Bronze Works in 1901. It bears the number 2 next to the foundry's name.

Two of the original eight are in museums today. The rest are in private collections, and until last week, the second bronze was listed in art books as "whereabouts unknown."

"This is a very important find," Lawrence DuMouchelle said, referring to the bronze. "Remington's hand actually touched this. He worked on this."

Also in the attic were several original sketches, one oil on canvas and two en grisaille (in gray) oil on canvas illustrations. One of the en grisaille is of a battle in the Spanish-American War and the other is believed to be of the northern Rocky Mountains. The oil is of a cart being drawn by oxen and a driver.

Framed with glass over the canvas, which is no longer done, DuMouchelle believes it is the glass that kept the oils from being destroyed while they were stored in the attic.

"These are originals they didn't know existed," DuMouchelle said. "An original painting by Remington is worth into the millions of dollars."

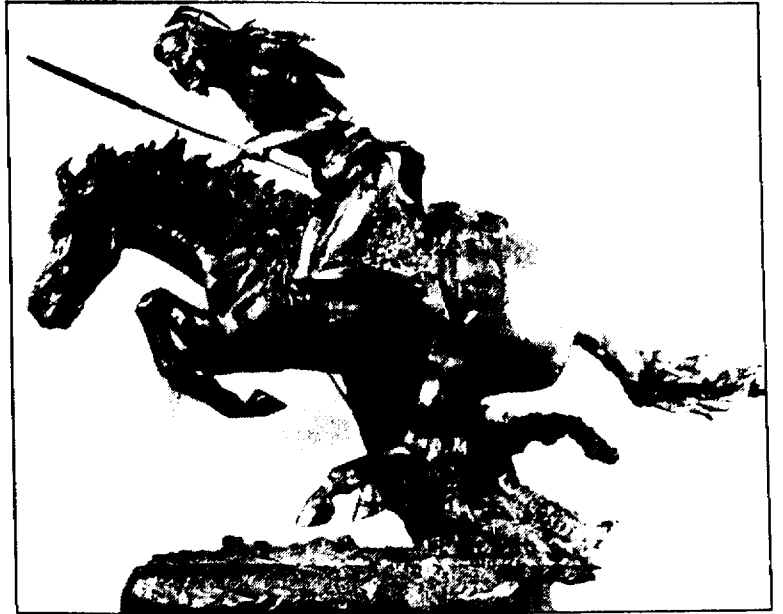

Also discovered in the attic were paintings by other well-known artists and a bronze by the French sculptor J.L. Gerome. The items, along with a number of sterling silver pieces, crystal, furniture, and of course the Remingtons, will be auctioned next weekend, Nov. 17-19, at the gallery.

Mountain, who purchased the Remingtons in 1915, founded the Flint Varnish Works and was one of the early collectors of Western art.

When he sold his company to General Motors Corp., he went to Toledo and established the Mountain Varnish & Color Works in 1921.

He died in 1936. His estate was divided between his two daughters, Grace Alexander and Maude Edgcomb, both now deceased.

Preview of the auction items runs Friday through Thursday, Nov. 10-16, during gallery hours. Bidding on the items begins Nov. 17 at 7 p.m. and may be handled by telephone or written order. For information and a catalog, call 963-6255.

"Cheyenne"

This oil in muted colors by Remington was found with other treasures in the attic.

Park resident writes book of short stories

By Bob MacDonald
Special Writer

Harlan Hagman, retired Wayne State University professor from Grosse Pointe Park, has drawn upon more than a half century of scholarship to put together a tightly written collection of short stories and plays titled "A Seasonal Present and other stories."

As one might suspect, the title story is about the Christmas season and a young couple who find, once again, that the rewards of the season come from sacrifice and sharing.

There is an element of tragedy and an all-too-common reality about the plight of a homeless young man and the concerns of a young married couple who care. A warm tale for a winter night.

Many of the stories were written by Hagman for a syndicated newspaper column and they vary in content and style. His description of folklore legend "Johnny Appleseed" is almost poetry.

Hagman's historical vignettes take you to Gettysburg, the hanging of patriotic Nathan Hale and New Salem, Illinois. Your stomach will tighten up as you read the adventure of a man clinging to the back of a tight-rope walker crossing Niagara Falls.

There are ghost stories and endings which will make you think of O. Henry. Some sketches may remind the reader of Ring Lardner.

One story of domestic violence

Harlan Hagman

called "The Breakfast" has a fascinating line on the end of a 30-year marriage. "In the crowded, uncomfortable days following her death, he sometimes almost regretted pushing her down the stairs."

The villain, of course, is punished, but in a subtle and haunting fashion. Another accused wife-slayer turns out to be innocent through a bizarre revelation in "Corpus Delicti."

Three short plays are titled "The Fifty Thousand Dollar Ransom," "Family Reunion" and "Morning Train." The plays frequently paint the hypocrisy of the human being in broad strokes.

The book makes for light and enjoyable reading. It is, as its title suggests, a seasonal present.

Pierce's 'Inklings' wins award

The 1989 edition of "Inklings," Pierce's literary magazine, received a medalist award from the Columbia Scholastic Press Association.

Medalist awards are presented to the top 10 percent of all publications submitted for evaluation. They are selected from those magazines with first place ratings which display special qualities. "Inklings" also received All-Columbia Awards in concept and in creativity.

The theme of the magazine, "Songs of Life," was especially commended by the judge for the way the staff tied together the words of Pierce's new alma mater and the sense of songs, meaning all types of verbal and written expression. "It (the magazine) will show future generations what society was like in 1989," one judge commented.

The "Inklings" staff believed this was an important part of their job this year because the issue of the magazine is available for Pierce's 50th anniversary and will be placed in the cornerstone for future generations to see. Pierce has published an "Inklings" magazine each year since the school opened.

"This is one of our best issues," said Rae Kuhn, "Inklings" adviser. "The editors and staff can be very proud of their accomplishment. They worked hard to make this a magazine of quality."

Suzanne Hackleman, Christopher MacKechnie and Melissa Van Hoek were the editors of this award-winning issue. Katy Thompson was the art editor and Kristen Miquel was the secretary of the staff consisting of Rob Bacon, Cynthia Gordon, Adam Rhodes, Mary Rowe, Claire Schrom and Katie Weed.

The judge made particular reference to the quality of stories written by Josh Wood, Kate Hupp and Chris Jeffries. He also commended the poetry written by Rachel Smith, Niamh Comerford and Christopher MacKechnie. Essays written by Melissa Van Hoek, Suzanne Hackleman, Jenny Mangol and Katy Thompson were singled out as was a book review by Charles Ruifrok. The judge further praised the cover design created by Kyle Watson and Kevin Hinton and illustrations done by Joe Dombrowski, Claire Schrom, Fritz Coyro, Kyle Watson and Kevin Hinton.

Student Spotlight John 'J.D.' Spina

Each week in this column, we will focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a wood-working project, a book review.

The following was written by J.D. Spina, a second grader at University Liggett School. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Spina of Grosse Pointe Farms.

The Adventures of the Leaf

I am at the top of the tree. I am a leaf. I am the biggest leaf on the tree. Now I will begin my life. I was born in Spring. One day a boy climbed up and picked me off the tree. He carried me a little way and dropped me. Then this hairy thing with four legs, two ears and a mouth and a nose sniffed me. He stepped on me! Then he went away. Then the wind blew me away. The ride was bumpy but I made it! But to my surprise, I was near a stream. A little wind blew and I was floating in the stream. But to my surprise I was in rapids, and I was thrown around like a ball. I was almost torn by the rapids, but I made it in one piece. But to my surprise, I was going down the waterfall! I was halfway when suddenly the wind changed direction and blew me behind the waterfall. There was a cave. I went inside the cave and I saw goblins! I left! The wind blew me out of the waterfall and I saw a rainbow. I am changing color. I am beginning to die, but I don't care because I saw the world. I almost died the next day. But a little boy picked me up and brought me home in Fall. But in the Spring he planted me and I lived and grew there the rest of my life. And I will never forget about that little boy.

G.P. Academy has open house this Saturday

The Grosse Pointe Academy will open its doors Sunday, Nov. 12 from 3 to 5 p.m. at 171 Lakeshore in Grosse Pointe Farms.

The academy is a co-educational day school serving children ages 2 1/2 through 8th grade. A philosophy of Christian oriented education, coupled with a low teacher-student ratio, promotes the moral, intellectual and physical development of the individual student.

The academy was named an exemplary elementary school by the president and the U.S. Department of Education.

Student council members will offer guided tours of the campus during the open house and faculty and staff will be on hand to answer questions.

No reservations are necessary. Interested families can contact Admissions Director Molly McDermott at 886-1221 for information.

Daniell honored

Grosse Pointe North student Michael Daniell won the following awards in the drum category at the American Guild of Music's 88th National Competition in St. Louis, Mo. during the summer:

- First place in the North American Invitational Championship — an open competition which is deemed the guild's most prestigious contest

- First place Length of Study in which the student competes with other musicians who have studied drums the same length of time

- First place North American Age Championship in which the student must have qualified in the age achievement solo category by placing in the top five at an American Guild of Music Regional Contest during that year

- First place age achievement in which the student competes against other students of the same age

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Daniell of Harper Woods.

Kelly visits ULS

State Sen. John Kelly, center, was a guest speaker at University Liggett School in October. Kelly, with Headmaster G. Gary Ripple, left, and economics club president Sean Byrne, delivered an address to the upper school students on "Young People and Politics." The address was followed by a question and answer period, during which Kelly touched on issues such as the war on drugs and political corruption. Later in the day, Kelly spoke to advance placement government classes. Byrne, a senior, was instrumental in bringing Kelly to the school.

Trombly School recently held its back-to-school Coney Night for students and their families. Between bites, parents got to see the school and their students' classwork.

Middle school to present musical

The University Liggett School Middle School Dramatroopers extend an invitation to everyone to come see their fall musical production, "The Arkansaw Bear," Friday, Nov. 17 at 7:30 p.m. in the Kresge Auditorium at the middle school, 850 Briarcliff Drive in Grosse Pointe Woods. There is no admission charge.

"The Arkansaw Bear" is the story of a young girl facing the impending death of her grandfather. Through a wish, she is introduced to "the world's greatest dancing bear," who helps her find the secret to "the great circle." This play deals with the cycle of life in a charming, easy-to-understand manner.

The production is directed by Phillip Moss, chairman of the ULS creative and performing arts department. Members of the cast include Anne Magreta, Whitney Horton, Tammy Walker, Eric Martin, Nelson Mitchell, Wesley Waterston, Lucie Piedra and Emarie De-Meulemeester.

For further information, call Moss at 886-4220.

De La Salle plans open house

De La Salle Collegiate will host an open house Tuesday, Nov. 14, from 6:30 to 9 p.m. at 14600 Common Road, Warren. Call 778-2207 for more information.

The high school placement test will be held Saturday, Nov. 18, at 8 a.m. Cost is $9.

Financial aid seminar scheduled

A program on financial aid for college planning for parents of juniors and seniors is scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 15 at 8:15 p.m. in the auditorium of Grosse Pointe South High School. Parents from both North and South are invited to attend.

The featured speaker for the one-hour session will be Elaine Nowak, financial aid officer at the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor and a recognized expert in the field.

South's counseling and guidance department has planned the program to provide the latest available information about applying for financial aid using the Financial Aid Form or the Family Financial Statement.

Parents of juniors will meet with their student's counselor in small group meetings at 7:30 p.m.

These small group meetings have been designed to provide up-to-date information for family discussions about the future plans of juniors.

Among the topics to be discussed are calendar of deadlines, including test dates for college admission, financial aid and scholarships, career planning, planning for senior year's courses, and college visitations.

These same topics were discussed by counselors in small group guidance meetings with 11th-grade students earlier this fall.

VARIABLE RATE*
A.P.R.

FIXED RATE
A.P.R.
up to 10 years

*This is our October 1989 starting A.P.R. A 14.75% A.P.R. Cap applies. The starting A.P.R. is a special introductory rate for the first six months of your loan, at which time the regular A.P.R. (10.87% in October 1989) goes into effect. For example, based on the current index, the regular monthly payment for each $1,000, borrowed on an 18-year loan would be $9.94 for the first six payments (based on a 9.75% A.P.R.), and $10.36 for the remaining 210 payments (based on a 10.87% A.P.R.). The overall A.P.R. for the entire loan term in the example would be 10.84%. (Of course, A.P.R. and payment changes after the introductory period may occur if the index varies at the time rate changes are determined.)

If you choose a fixed rate ten-year loan, your monthly payment would be $14.32 for each $1,000, borrowed.

Pointe Players to perform 'Brighton Beach Memoirs'

The Pointe Players of Grosse Pointe South High School will present Neil Simon's Broadway hit, "Brighton Beach Memoirs," Thursday through Saturday, Nov. 16-18, in South's auditorium.

"Brighton Beach Memoirs" received four Tony Award nominations, two Drama Desk nominations, and the 1983 Outer Critics Circle Award for Best Play.

The story concerns two families sharing a small house in Brooklyn in 1938. It is told through the eyes of Neil Simon as a 15-year-old boy who is writing his memoirs. It is a touching comedy about Simon's impression of the Depression.

Simon has broken more records on the American stage than any of his predecessors. Since 1961, at least one Simon play was current on Broadway every weeknight for the next 14 years (except for one 3 1/2 month gap in 1963 and four months in 1967). He has also had great success writing for television and film.

"The family bond is very evident in our production," Director Mary Martin said. "The actors have worked hard at developing their relationships with one another. They are a very talented group of actors. You won't want to miss this one!"

Set construction is led by Performing Arts Center Supervisor Paul Andreacovich.

Performance dates and times are Thursday at 7:30 p.m., Friday at 8 p.m. and Saturday at 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. Tickets are $4 or $3 for the Saturday matinee, and all seats are reserved. Tickets may be ordered by calling 885-8592.

Folk group to perform Sunday

The SongSisters, a children's folk group, will appear in concert Sunday, Nov. 12 at 1 p.m. at The Giving Tree Montessori School, 4351 Marseilles, located in the old St. Philomena School across Mack from Rivard.

SongSisters Chris Barton and Julie Austin perform children's music on a variety of folk instruments, such as guitar, banjo, hammered dulcimer, flute and homemade rhythm and folk toys. Their presentation is a mixture of songs, stories, humor and movement.

The concert will benefit the school, which offers classes and child care for preschool through sixth-grade students.

Tickets are $5 for children and $7.50 for adults. For reservations, call 881-2255 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

Lakeshore Optimists to honor 25 students

The Lakeshore Optimists of Grosse Pointe will host the annual Youth Appreciation Dinner Wednesday, Nov. 15 at 6 p.m. in the Harper Woods Community Center.

Twenty-five students from five local high schools will be honored for their academic achievement, community involvement and school spirit. The students are from Grosse Pointe North and South, Bishop Gallagher, University Liggett and Star of the Sea. Tickets are $10 and will be available at the door.

Christmas Bazaar

The Grosse Pointe North Parents Club will host a Christmas Bazaar on Saturday, Nov. 11, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Center for Performing Arts, Grosse Pointe North High School, 707 Vernier, Grosse Pointe Woods.

The bazaar will feature high quality handmade crafts and gifts, including wreaths, pewter, hand-painted sweatshirts, wood Santas, jewelry, a bake sale, a quilt drawing and more.

Light snacks will be available. Also, the Grosse Pointe North Choir will gift wrap your purchases for a nominal charge. Proceeds will go toward a special choir event.

Caribbean next travelogue topic

The Grosse Pointe Cinema League will meet at the War Memorial at 8 p.m. Monday, Nov. 13. Helen Kosy will present a 35mm slide program on touring 12 islands of the Caribbean.

This composite of four separate trips will take viewers to Puerto Rico with its ancient fortresses and modern hotels, the old government palace, and inside a center to enjoy ethnic dances.

The next stop is St. Thomas where shopping is the main attraction — then to nearby St. John which has a national park, miles of beautiful sandy beaches, and even tent camping accommodations. On the French side of St. Martin there are scenic vistas to enjoy, and on the Dutch side it is a bustling area ideal for shopping and leisurely browsing.

Guadelupe has a huge marketplace to see and wonder at the strange edibles and smile at the friendly people. Its sister island of Martinique has narrow streets filled with shops and cars, which is in great contrast to the remains of an area nearby devastated by a volcanic eruption.

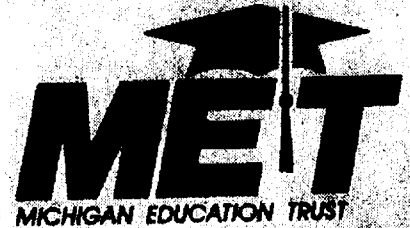

Antigua still has remains of Lord Nelson's naval base, while St. Lucia has the ruins of ancient baths frequented by Napoleon's army. Also St. Lucia has lush vegetation, resort areas and volcanoes. A tour of Trinidad included stops along the way to enjoy the scenery and the terrain of the island.

The tile roofs of Curacao can be seen from the ship and on the shore there is a warm greeting by native dancers in colorful costumes. A stop at Grand Cayman and the 7-mile beach is visited first, followed by a ride to an interesting turtle farm. Also on the island is a small town with a post office called Hell.

The last island to visit is Cuba — so different from all the other islands. The basic influence of Spain is still in evidence among the modern buildings. A walking tour afforded many camera opportunities for street scenes and people.

Cruise ship activities are interspersed in the travelogue and complete the Caribbean experience.

The Cinema League welcomes new members and guests. Single membership dues is $15 and $25 per couple. This covers the win-

G.P. Theatre play to benefit Cottage Hospice

Helping people understand the hospice movement and how special efforts can help terminally-ill cancer patients achieve more control over their last days is the focus of "Death Defying Acts" by West Coast playwright Doug Haverty. The award-winning play also studies the role of hospice volunteers as they counsel and respond to the patient.

length play will be presented at the War Memorial Sunday, Nov. 19, at a 2 p.m. matinee and a 7 p.m. performance.

Both performances will be followed by a champagne reception at which time staff and volunteers will be available to tell people about Cottage Hospice and the services available for patients.

"This is an excellent way for people in the community to find out what hospice is all about," says Sondra Seely, director of Cottage Hospice. "So often, we find that people don't know or don't want to know about what we do until they have some reason to contact us officially."

"Any money we raise from these performances will benefit our terminally-ill patients who do not have insurance or who have extraordinary needs," she added. "Even in our community, there are people who need this kind of help."

Presented in cooperation with Grosse Pointe Theatre which is providing the acting and technical talent for the performances, as well as the sets, costumes and lighting, "Death Defying Acts" follows a hospice volunteer on the West Coast as she visits and cares for her patients.

Directed by Michele Karl of St. Clair Shores, the five-character drama features Terri Turpin-Amato and Pat Bushey of Harper Woods, Roland "Mike" Evans of Grosse Pointe, Ron Bernas of Detroit and Nancy Sortor of St. Clair Shores. Executive producer is Ruth Mayhall of St. Clair Shores.

Tickets for either performance and the champagne afterglow are $15 by reserving in advance or at the door on the date of the performance. Cottage Hospice may be reached at 884-8600, ext. 2467 or by mail at 159 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Farms 48236.

Communist world examined

Sherwin T. Wine, director of the Center for New Thinking, will present a three-part lecture series at the War Memorial, Nov. 14-28 from 7:30-9 p.m.

Topic of the program is the "Future of the Communist World." During each evening, Wine will explore the extraordinary changes that are taking place behind the Iron Curtain and what these changes mean to the future.

Wine's first lecture will focus on Poland and Hungary and their recent capitalist reforms. Will Russia allow these moves toward democracy to continue?

"The Soviet Union: Will Gorbachev Last?" is the topic of the second lecture. During the program, Wine will look at the recent challenges to glasnost and perestroika. Will there be a party and army coup or will Gorbachev himself become the instrument of a new repression?

For his final lecture, Wine will discuss "China: After the Repression." What are the prospects for the future now that the conservatives have so firmly regained control and how should the Western world respond?

Tickets for the three-part series are $20; $8, single lecture. Advance purchase suggested. For more information, call 881-7511.

Drivers' refusal to use belts now making all motorists pay

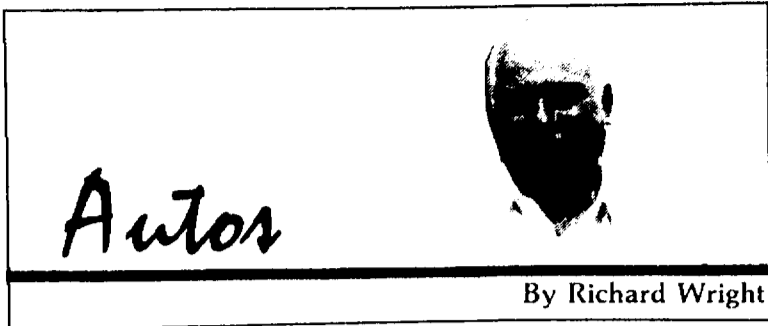

Air bags have arrived in force in the '90 models after a long and tempestuous struggle, not with a bang (not yet, anyway), or even a whimper.

The federal air-bag requirement has been a long time coming. We Americans don't pay a lot of attention to politics, but once in a while Washington does something that arouses us. Air bags may be it.

When some greedy folks in the savings and loan industry mess everything up and Congress hands them the keys to the public treasury instead of locking them up, there is scarcely a murmur. When gangs of dope-dealing street thugs regularly outwit our finest judicial and legislative minds, we yawn and turn to the sports pages.

But when car buyers discovered in 1976 that they couldn't start their cars because a device called the ignition interlock had failed — the interlock would not allow the engine to start until seat belts were fastened — there was an explosion from voters that stirred Congress to righteous wrath and it quickly repealed that requirement. The ignition interlock was, in fact, an attempt to eliminate the need for air bags by forcing drivers to buckle their belts.

And when buyers find that

part of the reason for the hefty price of the '90 models is an explosive device which we think might work and which is required because many people won't buckle up their safety belts, there could be trouble again.

But air bags have been around for a long time, promoted by the public interest as the insurance industry, government bureaucrats and Congress, long opposed by the auto industry and the motor press. The air-bag passive-restraint system has been one of the most controversial pieces of automotive equipment in the industry's history and the debate has been marked by enough hyperbole that it is difficult to assess the air bag's value.

Extravagant claims were made in the early days for air bags, but over the years studies showed that they work only with the belts buckled and their reason for being was because people refused to buckle up. Bags don't help in rollovers or side impacts, so the belts are still needed.

There was a lot of hyperbole and plenty of red herrings along the way. Wayne State University, which did much basic research on crash protection, caught some flack when a bemused press discovered that cadavers were being dropped down elevator shafts to ascertain the effects of crash impacts.

General Motors staged a dramatic demonstration for the press early in the '70s in which two bags were exploded inside a closed Fiat and the sudden pressure rise blew off the doors. (GM had vented all its cars to avoid that problem.)

To the embarrassment of the safety establishment, an air-bag failed in a crash-pled demonstration at Wayne State and the dummy was "killed." It was just a wiring problem, but some observers thought that during the production of 10 or 15 million cars every year, some wiring problems might occur.

Air bags came to light in the late '60s, when Eaton Corp. developed its Auto-Ceptor air bag system. Detroit showed little interest, but Washington did and, much to the auto makers' chagrin, required installation of "passive restraint" systems by

Jan. 1, 1973. (The current belts in your car are "active restraints," because you have to do something — buckle them — to get them to work. Passive restraints work whether you do anything or not.)

Air bags kept getting delayed and delayed until it seemed maybe they would never happen and they kind of faded from consciousness, overwhelmed by concern over air pollution, fuel economy and the increasingly real possibility that the American auto market would be taken over by foreign powers.

But, the air bag is here now. Driver-side air bags are standard for '90 on all Chrysler Corp. cars built by Chrysler Corp.; Ford Crown Victoria, Mustang and Taurus, Mercury Grand Marquis and Sable; all Lincolns; Chevrolet Camaro, Corvette and Geo Storm; Pontiac Firebird; Oldsmobile Toronado; Buick Reatta and Riviera and all Cadillacs except the Brougham. Passenger-side bags are standard on Lincoln Continental and Town Car, while driver bags are optional on Ford Tempo, Mercury Topaz and Oldsmobile 88 Royale and 98 Touring Sedan.

Among the imports, driver-side air bags are standard on Acura Legend, all Audis, all BMWs, all Infinitis, all Isuzus, Jaguar XJS, all Lexuses, Mazda RX-7 and Miata convertibles, all Mercedes-Benz models, Mitsubishi Sigma, all Porsches, all Saabs, Toyota Celica and Supra, Volkswagen Cabriolet and all Volvos. Passenger-side bags are standard on Mercedes 300SEL, 420SEL, 500SE and 560 models and all Porsches.

Makes which do not offer air bags use passive belt systems, which envelop you as you close the doors. Some are motorized, some are not.

Air bag systems consist of a sensor, which detects sudden deceleration, as when you hit a tree. Within a few milliseconds, it fires a device which releases gas to blow up the air bags and driver and passenger sink harmlessly into the bag instead of sailing through the windshield. It then quickly deflates, so that vision is not impaired. But of course it offers no protection if you hit one item and then head into another.

Safety experts concede that air bags won't protect in many kinds of crashes and won't protect if the occupant is out of position, so the three-point seat belts have to be used anyway. The reason air bags were promoted in the first place was, of course, that too many motorists were not buckling their belts.

It is true that once in a while an air bag is going to malfunction and someone who might not have otherwise been injured is going to be injured. Safety experts have concluded that the trade-off is a good one. Injured parties are notoriously uninterested in statistics and tradeoffs, so the likelihood of lawsuits is great.

Everyone agrees seat belts work. So you should have been buckling up right along. Now you will pay for your sins. Or someone else's.

Home burglarized in Park

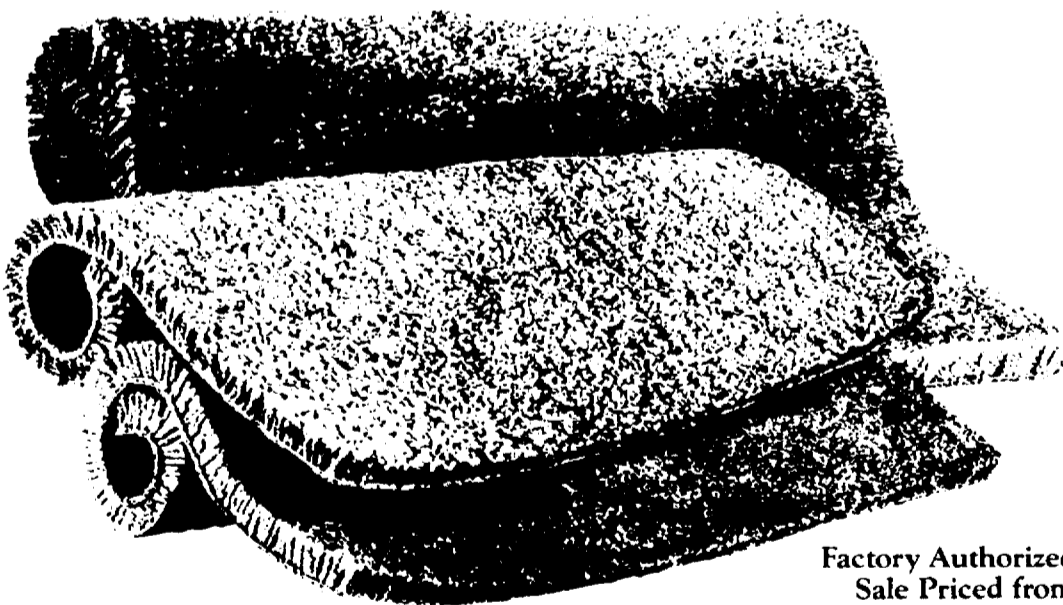

A house in the 1100 block of Cadieux of Grosse Pointe Park was broken into Oct. 31 by a thief who broke a window in the back door with a rock.

The burglary occurred sometime between 7:45 a.m. and 5:45 p.m. The suspect reached in the broken window and unlocked the door. After a quick search, the thief made off with an AM/FM dual cassette tape player, cash and two antique watches.

the home of the Sterns-Knight, the Jordan and the Ruxton automobile companies. All of the companies, including Detroit's companies, were equipped with hand-operated windshield wipers, eventually replaced with vacuum-activated wiper systems.

In the boom years of Detroit's automotive manufacturing history, Larson and Trico Products installed the first hand-operated windshield wiper "on Mr. Ford's automobile," Larson said.

"In those days there was a two-piece windshield. When it rained you would vent the upper half and could see out to drive."

Larson added that many travelers would emerge from the car with rain-soaked clothing.

During his many meetings with Ford engineers and executives, Larson said he would receive visits from Henry Ford II, dressed in knickers and blazer, having just come from school.

He also had associations with the original Henry Ford and his son Edsel in connection with the introduction of vacuum-operated wipers in the Lincoln Continental Mark series.

The first vacuum-operated wipers were installed into the Marmond, Stutz and Duesenberg companies in Ohio. Trico Products also installed complete vacuum wiper systems on the 1952 Tucker vehicles, but Larson said he doesn't know whether Trico Products was ever paid for the work.

The next improvement in windshield wipers were hydraulic motors. They were installed in Ford Thunderbirds and Lincoln Continentals.

But when the two-speed electric wiper motors appeared on the market, Trico Products developed, at the request of Ford engineers, the first adjustable intermittent wiper control. The device was used first on Ford models, and then on most other American car models.

"Being able to adjust the dwell period coinciding with the volume of rain resulted in clearer vision," Larson said.

Like the other improvements in the windshield wiper, the intermittent wiper was later adopted by the auto industry as a whole and is still offered today as a standard feature.

In more recent years, representatives from Trico Products were called in by John Delorean, then chief engineer at Pontiac, to review a new model.

Delorean's problem was how to conceal the wiper arm and blade when the wiper was in the off position. Plans called for a 7/8-inch-wide slot from which the wiper arm would appear when activated. The arm would slip through the slot and disappear from sight when the wipers were switched off.

"This being a confidential development," Larson said, "we were sworn to confidentiality and were asked to provide equipment for the prototype model. Given the urgency of providing such an assembly on limited time, we were put under great pressure. We responded by completing the assembly on schedule."

As car models progressed, he said, the windshields kept getting bigger and the companies demanded longer blades with larger capacity vacuum motors to avoid windshield wiper stalling during acceleration of the car.

At that point Trico Products was approached by Fred Arnold, chief engineer at Cadillac. Arnold was seeking an improved vacuum wiper system that was so dependable it could provide continuous wiping in all driving conditions at all elevations. Arnold's challenge: Provide a system that will work continuously to the top of Pike's Peak, one of America's highest elevation points.

Fortunately, Larson said, Trico Products had already developed such a system which piggy-backed onto the oil pump as a second story unit that was more than sufficient to live up to Arnold's challenge.

Coincidentally, Cadillac was in the process of testing its dyna-flow transmissions on runs up Pike's Peak. And since the performance of the transmissions were being monitored by the Cadillac engineer, Larson saw a golden opportunity and accompanied Arnold on a trip to the peak.

At the top, after observing the performance of the wiper systems, Arnold gave immediate approval of the advanced Trico Products wiper system. The approval meant installation of the new systems on all new Cadillac models as well as Buick and Ford Thunderbird and Lincoln models.

Larson said at one time, prior to the electric windshield wiper motor, Trico Products supplied all American automobile makes with windshield wiper systems.

Coincidentally, for several years Larson's family lived on Grosse Pointe Park's Windmill Pointe Drive in a home originally built by Ross Judson, president of Continental Motors. The company, with manufacturing plants in Detroit and Muskegon, was one of the auto industry's suppliers.

Looking to the future of the windshield wiper, Larson said current and future model cars with larger windshield areas will all have complete unitized systems where the motor, pivot linkages, arms and blades are installed in one piece.

So the next time you reach for the wiper switch, you can rest assured that Carl Larson and the next windshield wiper invention are just around the next corner.

He said that while the discharge permits that raised the $2,000-a-water-bill scare last month do not include the Milk River situation, he said they do represent the same "philosophical differences" the Milk River officials have with the DNR.

Murray would like the DNR's standards reduced so that a 25 million gallon tank would be sufficient at the Milk River Pump Station, which would reduce the cost to Grosse Pointe Woods and Harper Woods residents to $7.1 million. Property owners in the two cities, as well as a few in St. Clair Shores, pay for the Milk River Pump Station through a drain tax, which would most likely be increased to pay for more retention capacity at the Milk River.

The Milk River Pump Station was issued a discharge permit in the 1970s, which has expired, according to Roy Schrameck, of the DNR's water quality division. He said a discharge permit application has been filed with the state Water Resources Commission.

While it may be a couple of years before the commission gets around to issuing a permit for the Milk River, officials have to plan for the same requirements attached to the permits that are causing the same multi-billion-dollar ruckus along the Detroit and Rouge rivers.

Schrameck said the discharge permits are regulatory tools, not permissive devices, meaning that the permits are meant to restrict the discharge of pollutants into the state's waterways.

Meanwhile, the Milk River Inter-County Drainage Board and the engineering firm, McNamee, Porter and Seeley, are studying options that will meet the DNR discharge guidelines. So far, only the 45-million-gallon retention basin at $27 million will satisfy the DNR — but only if the Milk River Pump Station can send greater volume to the Detroit treatment plan, which will only be possible if the capacity of the treatment plant is expanded.

"It's going to be expensive," Murray said, "no matter how you look at it."

But cigarette consumption is on the decline and is socially unacceptable. The same can be done with alcohol and other drug consumption, Steinberg said.

"Once we quit, we wanted others to, or at least not to smoke around us. But massive change starts with small changes in each of us in our own homes."

He admitted that he doesn't speak up when a friend drinks too much, but being polite might not be the way to solve the alcohol and other drug problem.

"Sometimes being 'nice' can't win a public health issue," Steinberg said.

Man exposes self to woman in parking lot

A man in his mid-30s exposed himself to a woman in the parking lot at Torrey and Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods Nov. 6.

The woman was walking from her car in the lot at 8:25 a.m. when a pale yellow Aspen or Volare station wagon pulled up and the male driver said "Hi," according to police reports. When the woman looked, she saw the man exposing himself.

She immediately walked away, and the man remained in the parking lot a short while before driving off.

Sears security guard assaulted by shoplifter

A 42-year-old security guard at the Sears store was cut by an unknown weapon when he tried to stop a shoplifter from making off with a leather coat Nov. 5.

The security guard saw the suspect put on a black leather coat with a white fur collar and then a long, blue wool coat. When the shoplifter went outside the store at Mack and Moross, the security guard attempted to apprehend him.

The suspect then struck the guard's right wrist with an unknown object that not only cut the security guard's wrist but also cut his watch band.

The suspect then fled in a silver Dodge van, which was being driven by another man and had a female passenger.

Though a description of the suspects and their vehicle was broadcast on police radio, police were unable to locate the van.

Older man shows girl obscene picture

A 12-year-old girl walking home from school Oct. 31 was approached by a man in his 40s who showed the girl a picture of a naked man, Park police reported.

The incident occurred at Nottingham and Fairfax at about 3:20 p.m. As the girl was walking, a man in an older silver-colored car pulled up alongside her and showed her the photograph, made an obscene comment and drove off.

The man is described as having gray hair and a wrinkled brow.

Money found

An envelope containing money was found by a Grosse Pointe Farms resident last month and turned in to police.

Farms police would not say how much money is in the envelope, nor were any other details given.

The party who lost the money should call the Grosse Pointe Farms Public Safety Department at 885-2100.

Woods officers, auxiliaries on patrol

Grosse Pointe Woods public safety officers and auxiliary officers were out in force on Devil's Night and Halloween.

On Devil's Night, 12 public safety officers, 17 auxiliary officers and a paramedic were on duty. On Halloween, nine regular officers and five auxiliaries were on patrol while a paramedic stood by.

No devilry was reported either night in the Woods.

Woods driver hits hydrant; 'roaches' found

A 22-year-old Woods man who drove into a fire hydrant Nov. 1 may be charged with marijuana possession by Woods police after suspected "roaches" were found in the car.

Woods officers responded to a report of an abandoned disabled car at 10:17 p.m. and found a damaged 1981 Mustang at the side of the street in the 600 block of Sunningdale.

The Mustang had a cracked windshield, heavy front-end damage and a flat left-front tire, and radiator coolant was leaking on the pavement. Debris from the car was lying on the street in a direct path from a fire hydrant that had been struck about 115 feet away, according to police reports.

The driver was not in the car, and because the windshield was cracked, the police officer feared the driver could be injured and seeking help. The officer entered the Mustang, which was unlocked, and began looking for some identification of the driver. In plain view between the bucket seats was a clear-plastic photographic film container that was full of suspected "roaches," which are the unsmoked butts from marijuana cigarettes.

The Mustang's driver, who lives in the 900 block of North Renaud, then came back to the scene and was questioned by police.

Soviet doctors visit St. John on scientific exchange

As part of a scientific information exchange, three prominent doctors from the Soviet Union who directed care at the Chernobyl nuclear plant and Armenian earthquake disasters, visited St.

John Hospital and Medical Center Sept. 18.

The three Soviets from the N.V. Sklifofovskiy Institute of Emergency Medicine in Moscow (similar to the U.S. National Institutes of Health) were Dr. Boris Gazetov, professor and head of disaster medicine; Dr. Teimuraz Gurchumekidze, senior researcher, Department of Emergency Medicine; and Dr. Vladislav Teriaev, professor and director.

The visiting physicians toured the St. John Critical Care Unit and Emergency Center and lectured on several aspects of emergency and disaster medicine in the Soviet Union.

Dr. Anthony Southall, director of the hospital's Emergency Center, coordinated the hospital visit and Dr. Joseph Szyc, retired anesthesiologist, helped serve as interpreter.

During the visit, Dr. Gurchumekidze gave Dr. Larry Lloyd, vice chief of the Department of Surgery and chief of General Surgery at St. John, the newest Soviet surgical stapler brought to the United States. Dr. Lloyd exchanged the gesture by sharing our latest model with the Soviet doctor.

The Russian doctors' visit was part of a two-week stay in the United States to tour trauma centers and discuss disaster medical care. St. John was included on the tour because it is the east side's only designated trauma center as well as a major medical referral center.

Food drive begins: Asks donors to buy a case of food

The Gleaners Community Food Bank, with help from Michigan National Corp., has begun a campaign to feed the hungry this holiday season. The program is called "Help feed the hungry: Buy a case of food."

Michigan National Bank branches throughout southeastern Michigan as well as more than 50 private businesses are placing supermarket displays in high-traffic locations at their offices. On display will be 12 different food items with the cost of each case of food listed.

Employees and the public will be asked to buy a case of food by sending a check in the amount indicated to either Michigan National Bank or the Gleaners Food Bank.

The program will run through Dec. 22.

An estimated 400,000 people in the metropolitan Detroit area suffer from hunger. The Gleaners Community Food Bank is a non-profit organization that secures food from farmers, grocery stores, food processors and individuals. The food is distributed to more than 180 agencies that provide 155,000 meals a week for the hungry.

Since it was established in 1977, Gleaners has distributed more than 66 million pounds of food to the hungry.

Grosse Pointe City resident Jack Grifo, a Gleaners volunteer, is the coordinator of the program. For more information, call him at 923-3535.

'Burn This': Little hope for love, art

By Chris Dellas
Special Writer

If we are to believe the message in the Attic Theatre's current production of Lanford Wilson's "Burn This," then there is little hope left for things such as Love and Art.

Robbie, the dancer, dies before the play begins without a single member of his family ever having seen him dance. Anna, the dancer/choreographer and Robbie's roommate, falls in love with a man of whom she is both afraid and hopelessly unsuited.

Larry, another roommate, wastes his creative talents by designing secular, safe and sterile greeting cards for his ad agency's client. Writer Burton dodges reality by churning out screenplays for cheap sci-fi flicks instead of focusing on the real-life drama he is capable of.

And Pale, Robbie's look-a-like brother and Anna's eventual love interest, well, his problems are so innumerable, we'll just say he doesn't stand a chance.

Wilson's miscellaneous collection of characters live their lives as if they're floating in Manhattan, being carried along by tides of grief, violence and exhaustive cynicism. They seem to react to, as opposed to act on, the events that overpower them.

The tension begins when Pale explodes onto the stage and into the roommates' lives in the middle of a drunken night to retrieve Robbie's meager belongings. He is a supercharged enigma to Anna, full of violence and hostility, but physically resembling her brother. Robbie enough to believe in Wilson would have us believe this is a play about the common goal of the characters to attain Anna into the world of Paris, intoxicated by the use of is an understatement. Ronald Martell plays Pale like a bulldozing androïde. He is vulgar, sexist, homophobic, and prone to the predictable violent reactions that we see all too often in life.

Ronald Martell and Jan Puffer are Pale and Anna in the Attic Theatre's current play, "Burn This."

Martell works best when he delivers Pale's dialogue, acquiesces on life's expectations, like his mother's life of a tree. It either ends up being parchment for Jack Nicholson to scribble on or it gets washed down the New Jersey sewer system.

Cynicism also gets a dose of humor through Larry, played by Gordon Pinhorn, whose timing and delivery is on the money. Larry is full of delicious one-liners like, "The wrong people reproduce," referring to his sibling baby-machines. Or "there is no such thing as a real bell anymore," reflecting on society's propensity for pre-recorded messages. When he quotes Hollywood it's not a recognized classic, but Divine's "Lust In the Dust."

The closest anyone comes to being an optimist is Anna's pre-Pale boyfriend Burton, played by Richard Klautsch. Burton can be the white light of True Love and Art, but he's afraid or unwilling to touch it or live with it.

Pinhorn plays Burton passionately and coherently as the toxic writer prostituting himself for the Big Buck. Some of Wilson's most colorful and vivid language is delivered through Burton, like his description of one particular homoerotic experience in the Manhattan snowfall.

Klautsch and Reinhart's solid performances serve as stabilizers for the occasional shakiness of the lead players.

Which brings us to Jan Puffer as Anna. Puffer works well in the physical sense of a dancer, but delivers her lines at times as if she's reading from cue cards.

What's most unbelievable from Wilson's male perspective is that an attractive and talented woman like Anna would be smitten with a jerk like Pale. When he does a complete turnaround towards sensitivity, it seems too late and unconvincing.

Puffer doesn't help to reveal what it is in Anna's character that absorbs her with Pale so much that she develops a dance about him. If that answer lies in their sensual compatibility only, then there is indeed little hope.

"Burn This" will run through Sunday, Nov. 19, at the Attic Theatre. For tickets, call 875-8284.

DIA schedules musical film classics

On Friday, Nov. 10, the Detroit Film Theatre of the Detroit Institute of Arts will present two musical films starring the legendary Josephine Baker. This special screening, "Tribute to Josephine Baker," takes place at 7 p.m. only in the DIA auditorium.

The St. Louis-born Baker became a superstar of the cabaret circuit in France in the 1920's. In the mid-1930's, at the height of her French fame, she starred in "Zou Zou" and "Princess Tam Tam."

"Zou Zou," which premiered in Paris in January 1935, was commercially one of the most successful French films of the year. In the film, a musical star walks out on her sugar-daddy producer for her true love and the talented laundress Zou Zou (Baker) takes her place, saves the show and becomes a star on opening night. This musical is primarily a showcase for the talents of the vivacious revue star. A dynamic performer, Baker's musical numbers are the high points of the film.

Following the smash success of "Zou Zou," Baker starred in "Princess Tam Tam," a film about the rise from a shepherd girl to pretend princess. The story is about a French nobleman who, after a dispute with his wife, leaves Paris for Tunisia, where he hopes to find an inspiration for the novel he is trying to complete. Enters Alwina (Baker), a brown-skinned beauty totally unfamiliar with the high society life of Paris.

The Frenchman happily seizes Alwina as his goddess and plots to polish her charm and bring her to Paris where he hopes to present her as an Indian princess. In the process, they fall in love.

On the same weekend, two CinemaScope classics will be screened. On Saturday, Nov. 11, there will be a 9:30 only screening of "High School Confidential." This outrageous story featured an undercover narcotics agent who cracks a high school drug ring while posing as a student. The film stars Mamie Van Doren and Jerry Lee Lewis, who performs the title song from the back of a flatbed truck.

On Nov. 12, there will be a 5 p.m. only screening of "La Dolce Vita," the 1961 Italian classic from Federico Fellini that affected a generation of moviegoers. This is the story of a shameless Roman journalist who's bored with his decadent friends and their hedonistic lifestyle.

All tickets are $3 and can be purchased in advance. Discount coupon books of 10 tickets for $20 are available and may be used at the door for single or multiple admissions. For information, call 832-2730.

Traveling dancers to hit the road

Movin' Theatre, the Wayne State University Theatre's traveling dance troupe, will take to the road again in January following a year off last season. Bookings are available now for the group's new show, "Decades of Broadway Dance," and for related workshops in dance and movement.

"Decades of Broadway Dance" is a narrated program, performed by eight actor-dancers, tracing the history of dance in Broadway musicals from the 1920s to the present.

The Movin' Theatre, founded in 1977 by Wayne State University choreographer Nira Pullin, has given nearly 200 performances throughout Michigan. The company has performed at Hart Plaza, at the Detroit Institute of Arts, on Good Afternoon Detroit, and at the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts, as well as at numerous elementary and high schools and for various community organizations.

The Movin' Theatre company includes David Figlioli (Sterling Heights), Kate Kenney (Rochester), Annessa Kortez (St. Clair Shores), Allen McCoy (Okemos), Scott Peerbolte (Highland), Jennifer Potocki (Warren), Michael Serapiglia (Troy), Robin L. Urban (Dearborn), Brent Vance (Detroit) and Tracy Washburn (Romeo).

For more information or to book performances and/or workshops offered by the Movin' Theatre, call Bill Wilson at 577-3010 or write: Bill Wilson, Movin' Theatre Outreach Director, Wayne State University, Department of Theatre, Detroit, Mich. 48202.

Mike Craver, Christine Elliott, Mark Hardwick and Mary Ehlinger perform in the musical comedy "Oil City" at the Birmingham Theatre through Dec. 3.

'Oil City' is fun all the way

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

So you've missed the fun of your own class reunion. Don't fret, take yourself out to the Birmingham Theatre and see "Oil City." You'll have the time of your life. And even if you've been a loyal alumnus, never missing that five- and 10-year get-together, go anyway. This is your golden opportunity to be a part of a fun-filled assembly like one you've never experienced.

Don't worry. You won't be subjected to a gathering hashing over old football scores or recalling the time the class put glue on a substitute's chair.

What you'll see and hear are four talented performers putting on a recital against the appropriate background of an old high school gym decorated with crepe paper, streamers, potted plants and a basketball hoop.

They are truly an original, remarkable ensemble. Their repertoire ranges from ragtime to rock 'n' roll and from the big band sound to gospel with a dash of classical.

But no one goes to a class reunion just to hear a recital. "Oil City" is much more than a presentation of outstanding musical numbers.

The performers raise the entertainment level to riotous comedy as they mug their way through their various routines.

Every number is introduced and executed with an exaggerated emphasis that creates laughs as they successfully project the impression that they amateurs trying to entertain their former classmates. Nothing could be further from the truth. They are professionals with a capital P.

They extend that aura of amateur status with their mannerisms and stilted speech patterns.

They really know how to work with an audience. You probably will deny it, but you'll join in and do the Hokey-Pokey when Debbie (Mary Ehlinger) and Mary (Christine Elliott) take center stage and invite — nay, command — the audience that they join in.

What are you going to do? Sit in your seat while the rest of the audience stands up — puts their right hand out, their right hand in, and turn themselves about?

This is an example of the lively goings-on that make "Oil City" so irresistible.

The performers are the whole show. All of the numbers are presented on a stage set with a piano, drums and a couple of chairs and music racks.

Time and place are accentuated by the clothes worn by the cast, particularly Debbie's off-the-shoulder, full-skirted swishy dress, something she probably wore to her prom. She gets a lot of mileage out of that gown as she tugs at the top, fusses with the skirt, forever pulling it down to cover her knees.

If there is a centerpiece in the group, it is Mary. She doesn't just play the drums — she attacks them. It is a riot to watch as she pounds the drums, beats the cymbals and generally creates a dizzying impression of a whirlwind at work. But she never takes off on her own. She remains a part of the musical group and, at the same time, its focus.

Her forte is the drums but she energizes with her own creative flair for comedy and her center-stage song and dance numbers.

This is not to discount the other members of "Oil City Symphony" as it is listed in the theater program, supposedly a copy of the one handed out to the alumni. They all are an integral part of the evening's fun.

Mike, who is an accomplished pianist, contributes to the comic atmosphere with his stiff, professional stance. Mary with her serious, no-nonsense expression plays a mean violin and Mark adds to the merriment with his bewildered, detached air and piano and accordion skills.

The show begins with a welcome speech by Mike to the alumni. This is followed by a rendition of "Count Your Blessings" by the groups. "Czardas," a classical selection, is played and a spoof of a regional tribute "Ohio Afternoon" is sung.

Other lively and hilarious presentations include "Beaver Ball At the Big Club" and "The Beehive Polka," both presented musically complete with antics.

"A Patriotic Fantasy" is a roaring number that fills the theater with the beat and sound of the most often performed patriotic tributes to our nation.

In between these offerings we have the cast reciting in their inimitable manner recitations appropriate for a high school reunion, as a background for "Let's Get Acquainted." They include the history of the instrument they play, a description of its possibilities and an account of why they chose to be musicians.

The cast makes the most of these interludes both with their solemn, serious delivery and in the instance of their personal history, their off-the-wall reason for their choice of career. None of it makes sense but it adds to the fun.

"Oil City" is an unique collection of talent. They amaze with their musical ability in such numbers as "Coaxing the Ivories" in which all four play the piano as one. Their versatility is remarkable. They move easily from a lovely rendition of "In the Sweet Bye and Bye" to a stomping offering of "My Old Kentucky Rock 'n' Roll Home."

Don't miss this reunion. It's fun all the way. The cast goes all out to make it a grand success, even to providing punch and cookies in person after the show.

Performance times are Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 7 p.m. Wednesday matinee at 2 p.m. Sunday matinee at 2 p.m. at the Birmingham Theatre through Dec. 3.

'Gross Anatomy' captures life in med school, but misses in characterization

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

"Gross Anatomy" is, as the name implies, somewhat gross. Set in a nameless medical school, the film explores the relationships of first-year medical students with each other and with authority. In charting its course, the film has ample opportunity to be graphic with its cadavers.

And, quite often, it takes advantage of those opportunities.

But this is not an audience shocker; or a picture that goes to great lengths to test the limits of an audience's intestinal fortitude. It is, instead, a simple picture that tells a simple human story.

Chief among the first-year students is an upstart smart aleck (Matthew Modine). The hotshot son of a blue-collar fisherman, he goes out of his way not to study. Academics come easy for him, so he adopts an apathetic attitude and coasts along with ease.

Then he hits a roadblock — a hard-edged teacher (Christine Lahti) who demands of him more than he cares to give. She wants to teach him to be more than just a doctor, she says. She wants to teach him to be a healer as well. And the only way to do that is to make him unwilling to be anything but the best.

This, of course, is the stuff of which classic movies are made — "old" master teaching young prodigy lessons about life and death. Unfortunately, "Gross Anatomy" is anything but a classic picture. Because while it had the makings of something special, it turns out in the final analysis to be little more than routine.

Most basic and most apparent among the problems is the lack of pacing and direction. The entire picture takes place over the course of one academic year, but judging from the way the characters interact, it just as easily could have taken place over the course of a month.

Too, we have a difficult time understanding the motivations of the characters. Why is Modine so apathetic about his studies, we wonder. What is his relationship with his pretty lab partner (Diane Zuniga) all about, we ask. And what is going on with this teacher.

All of these questions are answered in due time, of course. But in the meantime, the characters grow further from the audience while they grow closer to each other.

Worth mentioning is the setting of many of the film's crucial queasy about such things may do better by staying away.

On the positive side, Lahti does a fine turn as the demanding teacher. In one particularly poignant scene, she wraps up the loose ends of the picture with words and actions, and helps make sense of the proceedings.

Otherwise, "Gross Anatomy" is very much a routine film. What it lacks in structure it also lacks in character interest. And, let's face it, if you fail to generate interest about the character in a film about relationships and the human condition, there's not much left.

scenes — a physiology lab. In other words, we see shots of rotating bodies interspersed with shots of other, less repulsive things. Though the film handles the medical school fare with a gentle touch, viewers who are

This limousine service is accessible, amiable, affordable

By Pat Paholsky
Editor

Picture this: A sleek limousine with a uniformed driver comes to your house to pick you up for a three-hour shopping and lunch tour.

You can go to either Eastland Mall, the Village shopping district in Grosse Pointe or Birmingham. And if you prefer, you can catch the matinee at the Birmingham Theatre. Then the driver comes back and returns you to your door.

Elegant? You bet. Expensive? Not at all.

Emerald Limousine began offering the new service last week to residents in the Pointes, Harper Woods and St. Clair Shores for $11 a person, $10 for people 62 and older.

And the company's owner, Dr. James Seifried, has other innovative ideas to keep his fleet of four limousines running about 20 hours a day.

"My idea is if they are used productively, the service can be done more efficiently and cheaper," he said. "Our business plan calls for providing fine cars at a low price."

Seifried, who lives in Grosse Pointe City, is a dentist who has had a practice in Warren since 1976. He finds it hard to sit still.

Born in Oklahoma, Seifried joined the Air Force where he became an officer. After service in Vietnam, Seifried came to Michigan in 1972. The National Guard in Battle Creek had jet reconnaissance planes with which he was familiar and he began looking at schools in the area.

Attracted to dentistry, Seifried settled on University of Michigan where he graduated in 1976. Because his wife Joe got a job at Wayne County General Hospital, she was required to live in Wayne County. They moved to Grosse Pointe.

After a dozen years as a dentist, Seifried said he felt he reached a plateau and it was time for a change of pace in addition to his practice. Since cars were his avocation before the Air Force, Seifried said the limousine service was a natural.

He has computerized the operation which he said is essential to getting the maximum use of each vehicle. His limousines are Ford products — three Town cars and a Grand Marquis — all a year old. Each one is assigned to a specific geographic area.

"The computer has a block set aside for each position," he said, so that it's possible to reserve a seat for the lunch and shopping tour up to 112 hours before it leaves.

Reservations can be made in advance, but for someone who wants to see what the weather is like or for a spur-of-the-moment decision, a person can call up to 9 a.m., 10:30 a.m., noon or 1:30 p.m. the same day. The scheduled calls for trips to Eastland on Tuesday, Birmingham on Wednesday and Grosse Pointe on Thursday.

"It's sort of a hybrid between a bus and a taxi and a limousine. We are expecting to handle six or seven people a trip which makes it economically feasible."

All the cars have cellular phones and the driver will call the customer about five minutes before he gets there, so delays are minimal.

Seifried said the limousine business is "a little bit stuffy, with everybody scrambling for weddings and proms and homecomings and a certain amount of commercial usage. As far as someone doing something fresh,

Dr. James Seifried

I haven't seen that."

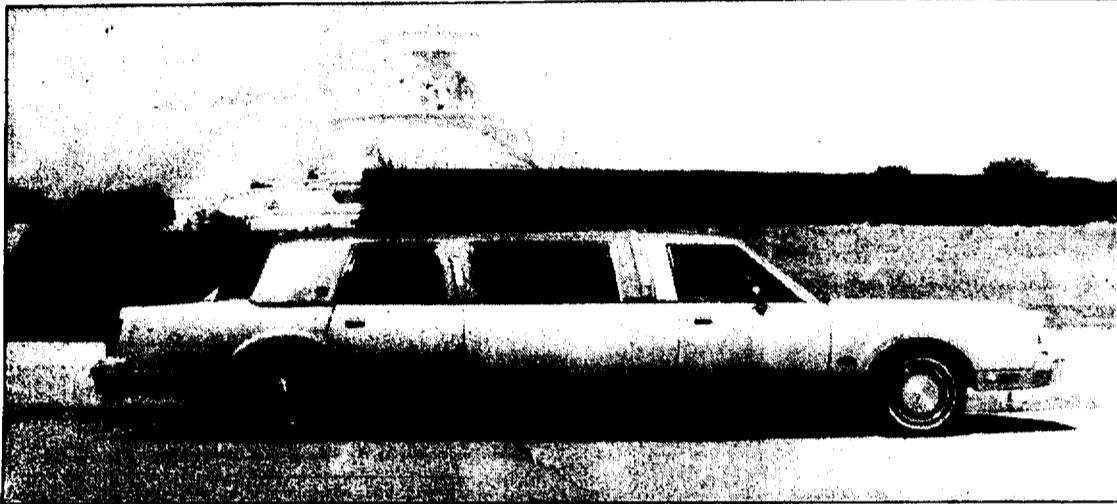

That's where he hopes his ideas will change the business. He plans to offer an all-day rate of $400 — from 9 a.m. to 3 a.m. — for two or three couples who want to reserve a limousine for the day, to go to Ann Arbor, for instance, for a football game and dinner.

It'll also be possible to rent a limousine for a three-day trip to Toronto or Chicago, leaving at 9 a.m. Friday and returning about 6 p.m. Sunday, for $980. Seifried said by the time a vacationer drives to the train station, takes a cab to the hotel and for other transportation within the city, the luxury of having a limousine on call for several couples becomes more attractive.

Other ideas Seifried plans to implement when the lunch and shopping shuttle is in place are early morning trips to Metropoli-

For the tenth consecutive year, James Hartway of Grosse Pointe Park received an ASCAP award from the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers. Among Hartway's most recent compositions is the children's operetta, "Ke-Nu and the Magic Coats," commissioned by the Michigan Opera Theatre, which presented 25 performances on its Michigan tour. The operetta was also presented at the Hilberly Theatre during the summer.

Ulrich

Grosse Pointe Woods attorney Gregory L. Ulrich was elected clerk of the Representative Assembly for 1989-90 during the 54th Annual Meeting of the State Bar of Michigan. Ulrich, who joins the State Bar's Board of Commissioners through his election as clerk, has served in a variety of leadership roles with the Young Lawyers Section and in other Bar-related activities.

Albert Spalding, a Grosse Pointe Woods resident and an attorney-CPA in charge of the local office of the statewide law firm of Flickinger, Gockerman & Spalding, P.C., recently presented several seminars to CPAs on estate and trust administration, accounting and taxation topics. Spalding is a former IRS agent and tax law specialist on the legal staff of the IRS National Office, Washington, D.C. He has written a book and several articles on taxation, accounting and related topics.

Salvatore A. Munaco of Grosse Pointe Woods has been appointed associate broker-commercial/office leasing division of the Byron W. Terice Co. A licensed attorney, Munaco joins the company from a Detroit area law firm, where he got experience in commercial real estate acquisitions, property development, financing, zoning compliance, property tax appeals and lease litigation.

Munaco

Karl W. Roskamp, professor emeritus of economics, has been elected president of the Wayne State University Academy of scholars. During his 28 years at WSU, Roskamp of Grosse Pointe Woods received many honors in recognition of his work in international economics and finance. In 1987, he received the Cross of Merit, First Class, of the Federal Republic of Germany. In addition he has served as president of the International Institute of Public Finance from 1984-87, only the second American to be elected to this position.

Glancy

Grosse Pointe Farms resident Alfred R. Glancy III, chairman and chief executive officer of MCN Corp. and its principal subsidiary, Michigan Consolidated Gas Co., has been elected as the new chairman of the Detroit Economic Growth Corp. Established in 1978 by Mayor Young, in concert with business and labor leadership, the Detroit Economic Growth Corp. is a private, non-profit organization founded to generate jobs and tax base through industrial and commercial development within the city of Detroit.

Comerica Bank-Detroit, principal subsidiary of Comerica Inc., announced that Grosse Pointe Woods resident Gregg D. Watkins has joined its staff as vice president, Trust Investment Department. Watkins received a bachelor of arts degree in 1970 from Yale College and a master of business administration degree in 1977 from Wayne State University.

tan Airport for about $25 and evening dinner runs for $40. The dinner runs would begin at 7 and 8 p.m. for returns at 10 and 11 p.m.

He would also like to serve auto dealerships who have people drop their cars off for service in the morning. A limousine would take the person to work and then return him or her back to the dealership at the end of the day.

"Basically we would like to see the cars used from 4 a.m. to 11 p.m. everyday," he said.

Seifried began Emerald Limousine in April 1988 when he took delivery of his first car. "By the first of July, we were up to four cars."

To get the business started, he sent letters to class presidents at a number of local schools.

"It was prom season and I gave them a good price," he said, charging $39 an hour with a three-hour minimum. Most services charge $40 to $50 an hour, he said.

The business took off. When a handicapped student's classmates in Lincoln Park chipped in and rented a limousine for him and his date for the prom, Seifried said, "I wouldn't have passed that up for the world. I drove them myself."

When they got to the girl's house, Seifried said, "I asked him if he wanted me to go to the door and he said, 'No, she's my

Seifried employs 12 drivers and one woman who uses an office in his dental offices to take reservations and keep track of scheduling.

He had no trouble finding drivers, he said. On staff is a retired IBM executive, a nurse anesthetist, an engineer and a cum laude University of Detroit graduate "who just enjoys it." The men wear a black business suit, white shirt and emerald bow tie and the women wear black tuxedos. They are all required to have chauffeur's licenses and safe driving records.

Whatever spare time Seifried had before he began the business is gone for awhile. He has a boat, "but I don't see it very often," and he used to play golf, "but I don't do that very often anymore."

The company's phone number is 826-3994.

Avoid probate

Attorney William M. Wright will be the guest speaker for Village Financial Services on "How to avoid probate and minimize estate taxes with an estate plan that includes a loving trust."

It will be held at the St. Clair Shores Recreation Department Monday, Nov. 20 at 8 p.m. The cost for the seminar is $10 with advance registration. Call 884-0171.

Mack business group to meet

The Grosse Pointe Business & Professional Association of Mack Avenue will host a cocktail party and roundtable meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 14, at 6:30 p.m. at the Jefferson Colonnade Restaurant in St. Clair Shores.

A selection of hot hors d'oeuvres, a hearty soup, and French bread will be served along with cocktails from the cash bar.

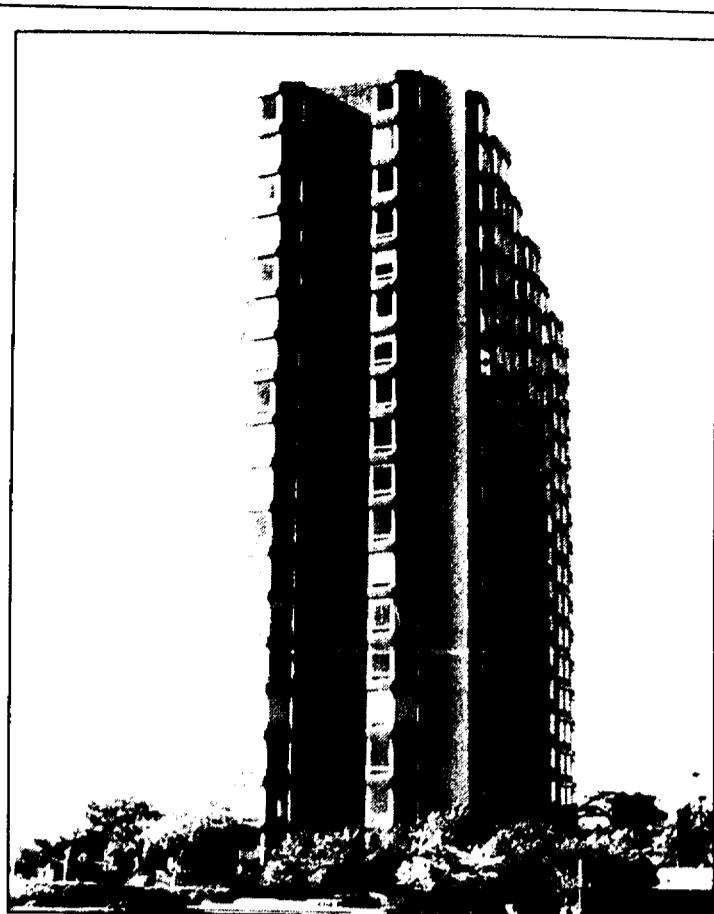

A slate of officers and board of directors for 1990 will be voted on, followed by the program. There will also be a report on the Mack Avenue Christmas Open House that will take place on Sunday, Dec. 3. Toni DiClemente, of the Dried Flower, will report on the project.

Three speakers will participate in the roundtable discussion of "Banking Services for the Small Business." Herb Feyer, head of Community Lending Group, First of America Bank, will speak on "Small Business Loans." Michael Josephson, Trust Division of Michigan National Bank, will speak on "Employee Benefit Plans." Nancy Barling, Corporate Cash Management, Michigan National Bank, will speak on "Other Services Available Besides Savings and Checking Accounts." There will be a question and answer period following.

Members and guests are invited. The cost is $10 per person, with reservations to be made by Nov. 10 by sending a check made out to G.P.B.&P.A. to Karen Warren, First of America Bank, 17101 Mack Ave., Detroit, Mich. 48224.

The meeting will be held in the private dining room of the Colonnade. Enter by the front entrance. For more information, call Lee Meyer of This 'N That for Pets at 881-9099.

Condo auction

Twelve one-bedroom and studio condominiums in downtown Detroit's posh riverfront Shoreline East will go on the selling block Monday, Nov. 13 at 7 p.m. The dark gray building at 8200 E. Jefferson is noted for the window bays which give the exterior a textured look and provide most units with at least an angled view of the river.

Prospective buyers may view the units from 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 11-12. The auction will be held at the Days Hotel, formerly the Southfield Hilton, at 17017 W. Nine Mile, Southfield.

Understanding the financial pages

A one-evening seminar designed to explore the relationships between investment performance and the various factors in the market will be presented at the War Memorial Thursday, Nov. 16.

Certified financial planner Patrick Bommarito will conduct the 7:30 to 9 p.m. program, which offers students an introduction to the basics of investments and criteria for their selection as well as an introduction to newspaper financial pages.

Using The Wall Street Journal and Standard and Poor's Guide, participants will learn to interpret the important information published in these resources. The program will conclude with a question and answer period.

Enrollment fee is $7 per person. Call 881-7511.

Family-owned business seminar

Laventhol & Horwath and Shearson Lehman Hutton will jointly host a seminar, "The Family-owned Business - Build It, Manage It, Make It Last," on Thursday, Nov. 16 from 8 to 11 a.m. at the Radisson Plaza Hotel at Town Center, Southfield. Registration fee is $35 and includes breakfast.

Three leading authorities on family-owned businesses will provide participants with valuable insight into many family business issues including:

- How to continue the family legacy, the management succession issue
- Coping with role carryover between home and business
- Differences in management style between generations
- Interactions with non-family key management
- Minimizing conflict within the business

The speakers include Dr. Trudy G. Verser, associate professor at Western Michigan University who is also vice president of the Small Business Division of the U.S. Association for Small Business and Entrepreneurship, Ronald H. Drucker, the national director of Family-Owned Business Consulting Services for Laventhol & Horwath in Philadelphia, and Gerald J. LeVan, a Shearson Lehman Hutton first vice president in the Birmingham office who is also a certified investment management analyst specializing in retirement plan consulting.

Succession planning

Strategies for the orderly transition of leadership in family-owned or privately-held businesses will be discussed during a War Memorial-sponsored program Wednesday Nov. 15 and 29.

Calvin J. Shannon, CFP, CLU, will facilitate the two-part series, "Succession Planning In Family And Other Businesses," from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. The course is designed to offer several courses of action open to individuals whether in business with a college friend, service buddy or family member.

Shannon is the founder and president of the Calvin J. Shannon Co., which provides business and personal planning services primarily to owners of privately held companies.

Course fee is $45 for two sessions (no single sessions). For additional information, call 881-7511.

Festival of Trees: Benefit is for Children's Hospital of Michigan

By Margie Reins Smith
 Feature Editor

The Festival of Trees takes George F. Hawkins of Grosse Pointe Park back to some fond memories of childhood Christmases.

"It's a fairy tale . . . the sights . . . the sounds . . . the smells. It's an experience. It's the closest thing to what the 12th floor of downtown J.L. Hudson's used to be," he said.

Hawkins is a Park resident, owner of Design Detroit Interiors Inc. and Hawkins Enterprises Ltd., 17732 Mack Ave. He's been involved with Festival of Trees since its beginning in 1985.

Festival of Trees is all the stuff of which the Christmas spirit is made: a public display of 100 professionally designed holiday trees, vignettes, an elaborate gingerbread village, a garden of wreaths, continuous entertainment, a gift shop, a Santaland and children's activities.

This year Hawkins is preparing a vignette and he'll be one of the tree judges.

The annual fundraiser for Children's Hospital of Michigan is in its fifth year and will take place in the Riverfront Ballroom of Cobo Center from Nov. 18 to 26.

"Children's Hospital is a well-run organization doing phenomenal work," Hawkins said. "For a nominal investment of my time, I can do something for a good charity. I like Children's Hospital because it takes care of everyone in the city — all elements of this city."

Hawkins also pointed out the inexpensiveness of the festival. "It's a terrific family outing," he said. Admission is $4 for adults; $2 for children; $3 for senior citizens.

Karen Eisenbrey of Grosse Pointe Park is coordinator of volunteers for the nine-day event. Last week Eisenbrey and Kathy Baker of Westland worked several days on a computer, assigning tasks to the 1,000 volunteers who have signed up so far to work at the festival.

"We need 1,000 more volunteers by Nov. 17," Eisenbrey said. "Volunteers will work 2 1/2-hour shifts at a variety of jobs such as assisting with set ups, greeting visitors, distributing programs, staffing display areas, helping entertainers set up for performances, supervising children's activities and packing up display items after the festival is over."

Baker is a legal secretary for the law firm Kitch, Saurbier, Drutchas, Wagner and Kenney. Children's Hospital is one of its clients, so Baker's expertise is, in effect, a volunteer donation from the law firm.

"This is exciting," said Jane Meade of Grosse Pointe Farms, "to see corporations and businessmen donating their business experience and expertise for such a good cause." Meade is on the advisory board for the Festival of Trees and her husband, Ken Meade of the Meade Group, is one of the major underwriters of the benefit.

The festival affords an opportunity to raise funds in a variety of ways — through underwriters, through corporate sponsorships of trees and vignettes, through donations of goods and services, through the sale of decorated trees, wreaths, gingerbread houses and gift shop items, and through a cash raffle and a preview party.

The Evergreen Endowment Fund at Children's Hospital is the sole beneficiary of Festival of Trees. The endowment was established in 1985 and funds research into the causes and cures of childhood diseases. Since 1988, when the fund reached the $1 million mark, Children's Hospital has begun spending the interest from the fund on research.

An invitation-only preview party will kick off the benefit on Friday, Nov. 17. Tickets to the preview party are $75.

Tickets for the festival are available at all Ticketmaster outlets. Call 645-6666. To volunteer, call 824-6229 and leave a message. For more information, call the Festival of Trees office at 745-0178.

Festival hours on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. On Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays, hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. The festival is closed Thanksgiving Day.

Other Grosse Pointe tree designers include Design Interiors, Metro Design, Grosse Pointe, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Ramsey of Grosse Pointe Park and the Gather Together Chapter, Smocking Arts Guild of America.

Tree sponsors include Mrs. Gerard R. Slatery and Mrs. Henry T. Bodman, both of Grosse Pointe Farms.

Festival of Trees committee members include Linda R. Bracci of Grosse Pointe City, Janet Bodenmiller, Sally Bernard, Sally Spain and Therese McGratty of Grosse Pointe Farms, Amy Edwards, Diana Kohler, Donna Fitzgerald, Doreen Lee, Jackie Cotton and Sandy Garver of Grosse Pointe Park, Lynn Campbell and Susan Kenney of Grosse Pointe Shores and Beth Kastner and Kathy Kasiborski of Grosse Pointe Woods.

Grosse Pointe garden clubs and individuals who have donated hand-crafted holiday wreaths, which will be for sale, are: the Grosse Pointe Farm and Garden Club; the Garden Club of Michigan, Grosse Pointe Farms chapter; the Junior League Gardeners of Grosse Pointe; the Pointe Garden Club; the Garden Club of Grosse Pointe Park; Patricia Beierwaltes of Grosse Pointe Park; the Windmill Pointe Garden Club; and the Grosse Pointe Shores Garden Club.

Entries in the chef division for the gingerbread village include Josef Bogosian, Rob Gomanski and Mark Everett of Josef's French Pastry Shop.

The Rev. William A. Doubleday

Speaker to focus on AIDS ministry

Guest preacher at Christ Church Grosse Pointe on Nov. 12, will be the Rev. William A. Doubleday, a pioneer leader in the United States in the ministry to those afflicted with AIDS. Professor Doubleday will preach at both the 9:15 a.m. and 11:15 a.m. services and will lead a forum for adults at 10:20 a.m.

Doubleday is director of field education and associate professor of pastoral theology at General Theological Seminary in New York. In the past he has served as chaplain at hospices, at nursing homes, and most recently, at St. Luke's-Roosevelt Hospital Center in New York City. At St. Luke's he served first as hospice chaplain and then as AIDS chaplain. He has lectured widely on the ministry to those with AIDS, as well as writing articles in church publications. In addition he is responsible for two chapters on AIDS and pastoral care in the recent book "AIDS: Facts and Issues."

Christ Church is located at 61 Grosse Pointe Boulevard in Grosse Pointe Farms. The public is invited to both the services and the adult forum. For more information call the church office at 885-4841.

Lecture at Memorial Church about Central America

El Salvador, Honduras and Nicaragua... three troubled countries will be brought into focus for women of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church on Tuesday, Nov. 14. The meeting will begin at 10 a.m. Barbara Madarasz will lead devotions.

Guest speaker will be Elder Carol Hylkema who chairs the Department of Ministries for both Detroit Presbytery and Women in the Synod of the Covenant.

When Hylkema spoke at Memorial Church in 1987, she was remembered as a keen observer and an artist with the camera. She will illustrate the discussion of her recent trip to Central America with slides. The trip was sponsored by (National)

Global Mission Unit as part of International Designs for Economic Awareness Program.

Grosse Pointe Woman's Club luncheon

The Grosse Pointe Woman's Club Dollars for Scholars party will be held Nov. 15 at 11 a.m. in the Crystal Ballroom of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

There will be a boutique, prizes, luncheon, and an informal style show by Pointe Fashions, followed by an afternoon of cards for those wishing to play.

Mrs. Edward Schwartz is general chairman. Deadline for reservations is Nov. 9. Call 881-3615.

Women's Economic Club to meet

The Women's Economic Club will have David Adamany as its speaker for the luncheon meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 14, at noon, at the Pegasus Conference Center.

Adamany is president and professor of law and political science at Wayne State University. He will discuss Michigan universities at the crossroads.

Adamany is a graduate of Harvard College and Harvard Law School. He is also the author of numerous articles and books on constitutional law, the judicial process, American politics and campaign finance.

Tickets are $16 for members; $20 for guests. Call the WEC office at 963-5088 for information.

Grand Marais Questers to meet Nov. 10

The Grand Marais Chapter of Questers will meet at the home of Becky Hein on Friday, Nov. 10, at 9:30 a.m.

Thomas Hart Benton, whose paintings were featured at the Detroit Institute of Arts in August, September and October, will be the subject of the program presented by the hostess who is also a docent there. Her talk will be enhanced by the use of slides of those paintings seen by the public.

1989 marks the 100th anniversary of Thomas Hart Benton. He was born in Missouri in 1889 and died in 1975. His distinctive style of paintings and murals depicting rural scenes of the Midwest were most popular during the 1930's.

Mini-Fontbonnefair at St. John Hospital

The Fontbonne Auxiliary of St. John Hospital is sponsoring a mini-Fontbonnefair Thursday, Nov. 16, and Friday, Nov. 17, in the Concentrated Care Building lobby (near the Gift Shop) for St.

John Hospital employees and visitors. Holiday items from the gift shop, an arts and crafts table, a bag-it table and the ever-popular pantry shop will be featured.

Local fundraisers appeal to early-bird holiday shoppers

Santa's Attic — St. Paul Catholic School's annual harbinger of the holiday season — will begin with a special preview party for adults only on Wednesday, Nov. 15, at 7 p.m., at St. Paul School, 170 Grosse Pointe Blvd.

Besides giving those who attend a jump start on purchasing items from more than 50 vendors, the preview party will also feature a silent auction of items donated by local merchants and a raffle of items donated by Santa's Attic vendors.

At 8:30 p.m., the live auction will begin with special guests Mike O'Connell of the Detroit Red Wings, Ned McGrath from WDIV-TV news and Red Browning, auctioneer emeritus.

Items up for bid include a hockey stick and puck used and autographed by Pittsburgh's Mario Lemieux, a weekend at the River Crab in St. Clair and an hour with Dick Purtan and his Q-95 morning crew.

Tickets to the preview party are $5. They're available at the school or by calling Karen Beil at 881-6654 or Rosanne Jamieson at 882-1211 or Linda Brennan at 822-1763.

On Thursday, admission to Santa's Attic is free. Some favorite items from previous years will be available, such as antique framed postcards, Sister Matsuzaki's watercolors, hand-painted clothing and hand-crafted country accessories.

Local talent: The Community Conciliation Center, a non profit organization designed to mediate neighborhood disputes in the 5th precinct in Detroit is holding a benefit talent show on Saturday, Nov. 11, at St. Clare of Montefalco Church, 1401 Whittier, beginning at 7 p.m.

The money will be used for operating expenses for the center: rent, training, promotional materials, and eventually a full-time staff person.

The evening is billed as a "Talent Explosion," and will include lots of local talent, including a professional magician, several singers, gospel music, dancers, comedy skits and several rappers.

Emcees will be Ted Jeffries, president of the board of directors of the Community Conciliation Center, and Jeff Lyon, a volunteer for the group. Cindy Briggs, a member of the board, will take part in a comedy skit.

This innovative method of dealing with neighborhood and community disputes was developed by a San Francisco attorney. Volunteers are trained to deal with conflicts in a positive, non-threatening, non-judgmental way. Conflicts are mediated before a panel of neighbors who have been trained as conciliators.

The conflicts are generally solved within 30 days; they often avoid courts and police; the service is free; and the process builds a feeling of cooperation and good feelings within the neighborhood.

The Community Conciliation Center, 16349 Warren, on the corner of Courville, has been in existence for more than two years and so far has handled about 135 cases, according to Jeffries. Typical stuff to come before the council: vandalism, fights harassment charges, family and housemate problems, renter-owner disputes and concerns about parking, noise and pets.

Of the 130 cases, he said, about 70 were solved outright and about 40 went through the panel hearing process. Of these 40, 90 percent were successfully solved.

Talent show tickets are $10 per person and will be available at the door — if they're not sold out by then.

Call 885-7707 for information or tickets.

and is billed by proud members as "Detroit's longest running antiques show." The three-day weekend sale will feature 50 outstanding dealers from throughout the country, who will exhibit 18th and 19th century American and English furniture, primitives, oil paintings, Chinese exports and more.

All proceeds will benefit the mentally and physically handicapped clients of Goodwill Industries.

The preview party will be Thursday, Nov. 16, from 7 to 10 p.m., and will include cocktails, gourmet hors d'oeuvres, and an opportunity to purchase items from the antiques booths, Goodwill booth and country store prior to the opening of the show.

Tickets are $125 for benefactors; $100 for patrons; $50 for friends; $5 general admission on show days; and $3.50 for senior citizens or groups of 15 or more.

Trying to go it alone?

Christ Jesus, who had the toughest job in history, didn't try to go it alone. He looked to his Father constantly. In fact, he said, "The Son can do nothing of himself, but what he seeth the Father do."

Like Jesus, you can rely on God's love and power.

Cracked pitcher, organ pipes and colored windows

By the Rev. William C. DeVries
First Christian Reformed Church

There is a rather crumpled old bag on the corner of my desk. Inside is a wad of old newspapers. And in the newspapers is the peace offering.

You see, I dropped the pitcher, the one my wife and I purchased at an antique store for a friend. This piece of pottery, wrapped in newspaper and carefully untouched by my "all thumbs" hands, is awaiting delivery to my long-suffering friend.

Some things are more delicate, I guess, than they seem. A few days ago, a vital errand of some sort forced me to climb into the organ loft at First Church. There I stood in the narrow space between pipes and rail at the loft's edge. The pipes that looked so solid and stately and serene from below, were precariously close to my posterior.

It would be far too easy to bend over quickly and summarily dent and destroy. I could imagine myself the Godzilla of the organ loft, trampling and mashing the makers of music like smokestacks in a doomed village.

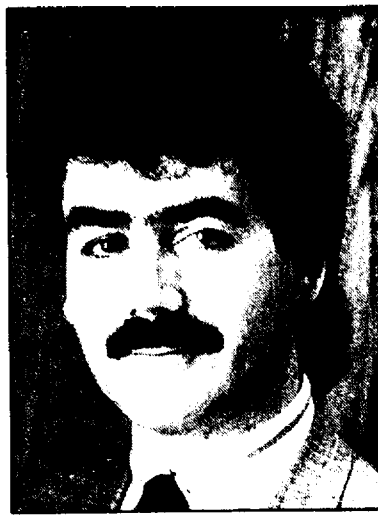

Sometimes common sense does call out for the gentle touch. Sometimes something even more is clearly the need. Last Advent season I was helping to hang the greens on the old and lovely stained glass windows at First Church. I remarked to the friend who was handing me the garlands that my perch was not contributing a sense of well-being. I had one foot on the ladder, the other on the sill, and I was stretching to reach a nail. I assured the witness below me that — if I became truly unsteady — I would save the old colored window. I would push myself back to fall on the oak pews rather than fall through the window.

And I wonder if I would give myself up, even a little, for a delicate, precious easily dented or broken person. Just a gentle touch sometimes is all that is needed. Sometimes a bit more effort is necessary.

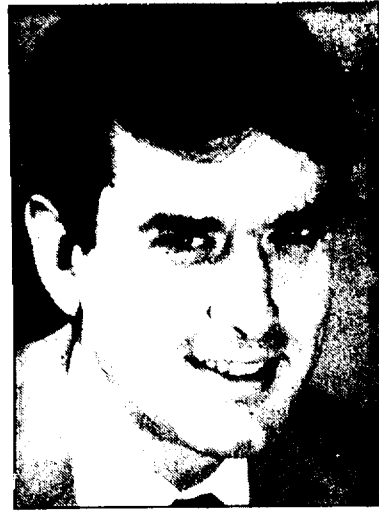

I would gently carry a bit of pottery, carefully keep from bumping a row of pipes, rigorously work to not hurt a window — but would I speak a gentle word, carefully approach a tender heart, vigorously stretch to keep from harming a precious life.

I wonder if I can treat people as if they might be tender precious and easily hurt.

I wonder what my world might be like if I did.

Soviet pastor will speak at Grosse Pointe churches

The Rev. Anatoly Sokolov, a Baptist pastor from the Soviet Union, will visit Detroit and Grosse Pointe during the week of Nov. 12.

Sokolov is the guest of three Presbyterian churches — Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church and Jefferson Avenue Presbyterian Church.

In addition to his pastoral duties, Sokolov serves as the director of press services for the All Union Council of Evangelical Christian Baptists in the USSR. The Rev. V. Bruce Rigdon, pastor of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, knows Sokolov from his visits to the Soviet Union and described Sokolov as an exciting, articulate, committed church leader whose visit will enrich lives and broaden Christian vision.

On Sunday, Nov. 12, Sokolov will lead the 11 a.m. worship service at Jefferson Avenue Pres-

Saint Ambrose begins 1989-90 concert series

The first event in the new concert series sponsored by the Music Ministry of Saint Ambrose Church is "Finger Feast: Music for Keyboards," featuring David Wagner and Curtis Posuniak on Sunday, Nov. 12, at 4 p.m.

Wagner will perform a selection of organ music chosen specifically to showcase the 1940 Casavant Pipe Organ at Saint Ambrose. At one time Wagner was minister of music at Saint Ambrose Parish and he knows the instrument's capabilities very well. Wagner is currently minister of music at St. Paul Parish in Grosse Pointe Farms as well as a radio personality at Detroit's classical music station, WQRS.

Curtis Posuniak is a well-known Detroit area pianist who will perform some of his favorite pieces for piano.

Posuniak is general director and founder of the Michigan Bach Festival in addition to his duties as minister of music at Sts. Peter and Paul Parish on the west side of Detroit.

Tickets for the concert will be available at the door. Adult tickets are $5 and tickets for senior citizens and children are $3.

Saint Ambrose Church is in Grosse Pointe Park, one-half block north of East Jefferson between Maryland and Wayburn.

The Music for Your Pleasure Concert Series at Saint Ambrose includes three other events. "Winter Wonder 1989, A Festival of Christmas Music," Sunday, Dec. 17 at 4 p.m., will feature the Saint Ambrose Liturgical Choir, the Chapel Bells Handbell Choir from Orchard Lake Presbyterian Church and Frances Brockington, soprano.

The third concert will showcase a vocal ensemble of eight voices, The Musicies Pleasure, who perform music from early times through jazz. Their performance is slated for Sunday, March 4, at 4 p.m.

The final concert of the season will be "Saint Ambrose Goes Broadway." Members of the Saint Ambrose Choir along with friends will offer a look back at some of the great melodies from Broadway musicals on Sunday, April 29, at 4 p.m.

G.P. Woods Presbyterian holds fair

Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church, located at Mack and Oxford, will present its Holiday Fair on Friday, Nov. 10, beginning at 10 a.m.

Featured will be craft items, Christmas decorations and trims and a "White Elephant Booth."

A country store will be selling home-made baked goods, candy, jellies, soup makings, cheese and other goodies.

United Methodist has used book sale

Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church will have its used book sale in the Fellowship Hall basement Friday, Nov. 10, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. and Saturday, Nov. 11, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Good home insulation will save energy, fuel costs

This year, fall's farewell was a spectacular display of gold and red leaves, highlighted by the outpouring rays of the sun. It was a beautiful presentation, a gift much appreciated after the damp, dreary days that preceded its appearance. For some it meant one more opportunity to enjoy a game of golf, a walk through the neighborhoods to admire the rich bronze-tinted leaves or a color tour up north.

For the more practical, it was an opportunity to batten down the hatches and prepare for the all-too-swift departure of Indian Summer.

Soon the fall winds will grow colder and the bright sun duller and winter's chill will have to be reckoned with. This means that a few hints on how to keep the cold on the outside and the heat on the inside are in order.

There is more than comfort at stake. Money is involved. Energy prices have been going up. We just cannot afford, as parents are apt to remind their children, to heat the outside.

The Community Services Administration reminds us that older Americans spend more than 30 percent of their total income on energy. It rises to 45 percent for some low income persons.

Older people have been affected more than others by price increases. The health of some older people depends on comfortable temperatures in their homes. Furthermore, they spend more time in their homes than younger adults.

Often their homes are harder to heat because when those homes were built, energy was plentiful and cheap. There wasn't the concern for insulation that there is today.

However, the main reason that retired people have been hit harder by rising fuel costs, is that they were already spending a large share of their incomes on fuel and utilities when prices began escalating.

For many older Americans, heating and utility bills have become the dominant item in their budgets — compared to food and health care.

Consider these points. If you are in doubt about whether or not your home is adequately insulated, make a survey of the house. Check what insulation you have. Are the storm windows and doors sufficient?

By Marian Trainor

How about the weatherstripping around the windows, doors and joints? At today's prices, weatherstripping can bring big returns.

When you are doing this evaluation choose a cold, windy day. Test for a draft around windows and doors, and under doors. See if there is a draft or beam of light coming through a crack. A lighted candle can be used for checking leaks. Place it near suspected leak points. Where the smoke deflects, cold air is leaking into the house. Check for drafts where pipes go through floors, walls and ceilings.

Attic leakage can be found by feeling for drafts along the edge of the attic door. If cold air is coming down the stairs, there must be air leaks in the door or ceiling.

Place the palm of your hand against ceilings. Then against floors. If they are cold, this is a sign of heat loss.

Correcting these areas of heat loss is not expensive. Caulking and weather stripping are the most effective improvements that can be made to any home that needs them. As much as one-fourth of the heat wasted is due to cracks, gaps and spaces any reasonably adept do-it-yourself person can plug.

Simple instructions for caulking, weather stripping and insulation are available in the Department of Housing and Urban Development booklet, "In the Bank . . . or Up the Chimney." It may be ordered through the U.S. Government Office, Wash., D.C. 20403 for $1.70.

You may find that your home requires improvements involving some investment of funds.

The higher fuel and utility costs rise, the more you can save from increased investment in energy conservation and improvements. You will get rapid returns at today's and tomorrow's fuel prices.

The National Bureau of Standards has said that an investment in 6 inches of attic floor insulation for a house that has no ceiling insulation will be returned by fuel savings within one year in a region of relatively mild winters.

Another method of saving heat is to lower the thermostat. That has limitations. Medical opinions generally agree that older persons in normal health can live at 70 degrees Fahrenheit without harm to health or danger of hypothermia (low body temperature). Current opinion seems to be that most older persons can adjust gradually to temperatures as low as 68 degrees without harm to their health. The acclimation should take place gradually, by lowering thermostats one or two degrees a week over a period of 30 days.

Just setting the thermostats back a few degrees will save a surprising amount of energy. Lowering temperatures at night also is a great fuel saver. Turning the thermostat down 5 or 10 degrees before going to bed can mean savings of 7 percent to 15 percent of your bill.

Don't overdo it. The National Institute on Aging warns that even mild cold can create serious problems for some older people. Persons with impaired circulation or specific diseases of veins and arteries should be wary of hypothermia.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schmidt

Perrin-Schmidt

Sarah Perrin, daughter of Anne Smith of Grosse Pointe Park and George Perrin of Dallas, Texas, married Robert Schmidt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Schmidt of Hilton Head Island, S.C., on May 20, 1989, at Wexford Plantation Club on Hilton Head Island.

The Rev. Harold Lewis officiated at the 5 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at Long Cove Plantation Club.

The bride's gown was white raw silk, off-the-shoulder, with a full skirt. She wore a white, waist-length veil with blusher and carried a cascade of yellow and white roses, lilies, iris, orchids and ivy.

The matron of honor was Jane Whiting of Traverse City.

Bridesmaids were Katie Miller of LaPorte, Ind., Kim Hill of Los Angeles, and Renee Schmidt of Chicago.

Attendants wore yellow taffeta off-the-shoulder dresses and carried yellow roses, lilies, orchids, blue irises and ivy.

John Stallman of Bloomfield Hills was best man.

Groomsmen were Andy Brogan of East Lansing, Steve Shields of Westfield, N.J., and Tom Larimer of Lincolnshire, Ill. Ushers were Peter Schmidt of Urbana, Ill. and David Watson of Belleaire, Fla.

The ringbearer was Michael Perrin of Dallas.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. T.R. Buttrick of Grosse Pointe Farms and Mrs. J.S. Perrin of St. Clair Shores.

The bride earned a bachelor of science degree in business administration from Miami University in Ohio and is currently a student at Kellogg Graduate School of Management, Northwestern University.

The groom earned a bachelor of science degree in business administration from Miami University in Ohio and is employed by the Hull Trading Co. in Chicago.

The couple traveled to Majorca, Spain, the southern coast of France and Paris. They live in Chicago.

Bridge

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD
THE PASTEBOARD PASTIME

Six weeks ago Grosse Pointe lost one of its eminent long time residents, legendary senior prefects of the banking world, gentleman friend of many and one of the original cadre of Bridge Bums, Inc. which celebrates its 43rd anniversary this coming January.

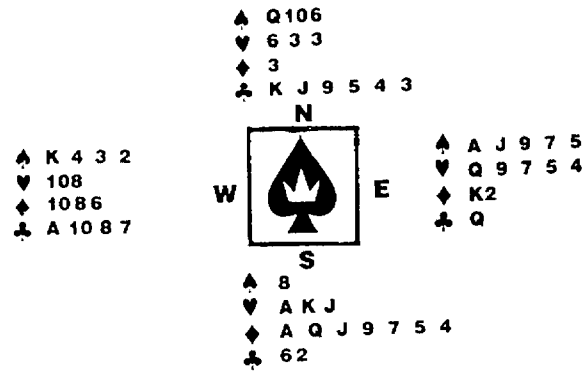

George Parker was playing Bridge with the likes of Howard Schenken, Teddy Lightner and Barclay Cooke before most of us were riding tricycles. The Parker Three No Trump dates back to at least 1935 and some of our famous Bridge historians have suggested it was the forerunner of the world famous Gambling 3 No Trump which is still popular among stake players and some duplicate aficionados.

Many years ago George confided that the success of his bid measurably depended upon keeping a straight face and an impassive posture when it was placed in play. Often opponents who are gifted with extra perception or mental telepathy can perceive from expression, vibes and voice tones a bid's real value, not its intended value. George's constant monotone and stoic stare never gave away anything, and this was the principle reason Parker's Larceny was so effective.

The experts will tell you that 62% of the time there is a given lead that will beat a given contract. The problem is to find it. Against Parker's Larceny the winning lead was even more difficult to discover because "The Stoic Stare" gave nothing away and left everything to chance.

One of George Parker's most glorious thieveries was perpetrated against yours truly and one of my favorite partners, the talented Dick McKinley. It took place some years back one Saturday afternoon in the men's grill card room where we had a habit to gather and play. I was on lead, sitting West, after the ensuing series of unstabilizing speculations.

Dick knew from bitter experience Parker's bidding duplicity and doubled to alert me that Parker's Larceny was being practiced. George's redouble was another talented and experience tact that the great French aces call "Savior-Faire". Of course this now placed me in a catastrophically consequential position to uncover the right lead. After much pretended judgment, I put the Heart ten on the table. When partner's Queen forced declarer's Ace I obviously thought I'd struck gold. It never occurred to me that the pure Mr. Parker would also practice false carding. So when the Club six appeared at trick two, I popped the Ace without a pause for more thought and played the Heart eight! Ten tricks after that Parker penned plus 1350. For twenty-one years I've been telling the talented Mr. McKinley that if he had played the Heart four at trick one, I would have found the Spade switch, but this estimate has fallen on deaf ears.

We will miss the honorable swindler. There was no one who enjoyed the game or his Bridge playing friends more.

G.P. Garden Center to present European floral design lecture

The Grosse Pointe Garden Center will present its annual Eska and Raymond Memorial Lecture on Friday, Nov. 17, at 10:30 a.m. in the Fries Auditorium at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. Duane Reeves will come from Pittsburg to be the speaker.

Reeves has background in theater and the performing arts as well as in art, history, architecture and decorative arts. He is a teacher and lecturer in floral design, and he is the successful manager of two floral shops.

Based in Pittsburg, his lecture tours in seven states include many different aspects of floral design, featuring different historical periods and many moods. His specialized background has led to such assignments as being chosen presidential florist for the Eisenhower administration and decorator of the annual Christmas and spring festivals at the Belmont County Victorian Mansion Museum in Barnesville, Ohio.

Reeves is artistic consultant to three floral shops and has lectured to more than 100 garden clubs in 17 states.

Following his lecture interpreting contemporary European floral design, his demonstration arrangements will be raffled. A reception to meet the lecturer will be held and refreshments will be served.

For information and reservations, call the Grosse Pointe Garden Center at 881-4594 Tuesday through Thursday. Members of the Garden Center may attend the lecture without charge. Guests and interested members of the community are invited at a cost of $10 for lecture and reception. The cost for the reception for members is $2.50. Garden Center memberships will be on sale for $7.50. Reservations are necessary for the reception.

Grosse Pointe Rotary Club hosts visitors from Brazil

Four young women from central Brazil recently spent a week visiting Grosse Pointe as part of the Rotary International Group study exchange program.

Their four-week introduction to the professional and cultural life of Detroit included three weeks visiting other portions of the Detroit metropolitan area, including one week in Canada. The final week was spent with host families from the membership of Grosse Pointe Rotary.

The four young women were Juliana Schuttenberg, a physician specializing in industrial medicine, Sandra deMoraes, a civil engineer, Sara de Souza, a civil engineer and Beatriz Schuttenberg, a metallurgical engineer. Dr. Danilo Coscarelli and his wife, Ana, served as leaders of the group. All the visitors live and work near Belo Horizonte, a city about 200 miles north of Rio de Janeiro.

While in Grosse Pointe, the visitors were escorted on tours of the Pointes by Jean Dodenhoff of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society. They also toured St. John Hospital and attended a performance of "Ezita" at the Fox Theatre.

Grosse Pointe Rotary is part of Rotary International District 640, which sponsors similar group study exchanges annually. Future exchanges will be with Belgium, Luxembourg and Ireland.

Team members must be between 25 and 35 years old and actively engaged in a profession. All travel expenses are paid by the Rotary International Foundation, and accommodations are provided by local Rotary organizations.

Anyone interested in future group study exchanges should call 882-3799.

Pointer Bridge

Members of the Pointer Bridge Club will meet on Thursday, Nov. 16, at 11 a.m.

Those who cannot attend, call Helen Daler at 881-8083 by Nov. 13.

Women's connection to meet

Stones, gemstones and crystals have existed since the beginning of time. Civilizations, the ancients through the 20th century, have treasured them, admired their beauty, used them to advance technology, and sought to capture their powers. There are 3,000 known varieties.

Frances Moss, psychic, will discuss "Stones, Crystals and Psychic Things" and how they can be used in our lives today, at the Grosse Pointe Women's Connection meeting on Thursday, Nov. 16, in Grosse Pointe.

A native of London, now a permanent resident of the United States, Moss is a popular lecturer at many colleges and school districts in the Detroit area.

Dinner will be at 6:30 p.m. and the program will be from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Women's Connection of Grosse Pointe is a women's support and networking group composed of both professional women and those working towards entering the work force. Any person interested is welcome to attend. For information or reservations, call Nancy Neat at 296-7402 (days) or 882-1855 (evenings).

Deadline for reservations is Monday, Nov. 13.

Bess Bonnier, pianist, will be featured with "In the Mode for Jazz" at the Dec. 7 meeting. For more information on the December program call Jean Porter at 885-8338 (home) or 961-5040 (office), or Marcia Piekielek at 884-4201 (home) or 568-2289 (office).

Herb Society of America

Some of the 21 million bushels of apples grown in Michigan each year come from the Romeo farm of Jesse Cardello.

Cardello will be sharing his apple growing knowledge with members of the Grosse Pointe unit of the Herb Society of America and their guests at the home of Doris Woerner on Tuesday, Nov. 14.

Cindy Carson and Elaine Yates are co-hostesses for the evening.

Detroit Review Club will meet Nov. 14

The Detroit Review Club will meet Tuesday, Nov. 14 at noon at the Fairlane Club in Dearborn. President Mary Lee Balmer will be the official hostess.

Following luncheon, Ida Mae Massnick of Grosse Pointe will introduce Robert J. Goodman, professor emeritus, Wayne State University.

The university gave Goodman an "Excellence in Teaching" award and the National Council for Geographic Education honored him with an award for Distinguished Teaching. Goodman has traveled extensively and he uses his slides and motion picture films to bring the landscape indoors.

Goodman's subject will be "Detroit's Pattern of Growth." He will be using films and slides to show how the face of Detroit has changed over the years. He will show, with animated maps, the different periods of the city's development and how it sprawled out in different direc-

Newcomers Club plans hayride, dinner

The November party for the Grosse Pointe Newcomers is a hayride at the Hayride Lodge in Washington, Mich., on Nov. 11 at 6:30 p.m.

The hayride wagon leaves at 7 p.m. Dress for cold weather and bring a blanket. Upon returning to the lodge, there will be a warm fire, cider and square dancing. The dinner will be an all-you-can-eat pasta buffet. The party is chaired by Phil and Susan Duvall.

If you have moved into the Pointes within the last two years and are interested in joining 200 other couples who are new to the area, call the Bonds at 885-4547 or the Frappiers at 822-4638.

The next Membership Coffee is scheduled for Nov. 14.

The annual Christmas formal dinner dance will be held Dec. 8.

French decorative arts lecture

In honor of the bicentennial of the French Revolution, David McFadden will discuss French decorative arts at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 15, at the Eleanor & Edsel Ford House.

McFadden, curator of decorative arts at the Cooper-Hewitt Museum, recently organized the exhibition "L'Art de Vivre: Decorative Arts and Design in France 1789-1989" at that institution.

General admission to the event is $10 and reservations may be made by calling the Detroit Institute of Arts at 833-1720. The evening is co-sponsored by the Visiting Committee for European Sculpture and Decorative Arts of the Founders Society and the Alliance Francaise of Grosse Pointe.

ABWA

The Silver Oaks Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association will hold its monthly dinner meeting on Nov. 14, starting with social hour at 5:30 p.m. at the L-Bow Room, 12 Mile and Schoenherr, in Warren.

For further information, contact Pat Chechlowski at 280-1078.

National Farm, Garden Association

The Grand Marais Branch of the National Farm and Garden Association will hold its November meeting on the 13th at the home of Ester Nagel.

Florence Hardy and Olive Meikle will be the co-hostesses for the luncheon.

Keith Coderre will present a program on garden lighting.

Yachtswomen

The November meeting of Yachtswomen will be held on Thursday, Nov. 9, at 8 p.m. at the Great Lakes Yacht Club, 23900 Jefferson, St. Clair Shores.

Hostesses will be Frieda Curtis of Pearl Beach, Bonita Herman of Troy, Ruth Lowmaster of Birmingham and Elsie Verbal of Warren.

The November program will be the annual election of officers and annual reports.

bers have been fine-tuning this major fundraiser, which will take place Wednesday, Nov. 15, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at both Jacobson's stores in the Village.

Co-chairmen are Muriel Hughes of Grosse Pointe Woods and Sharon Werthmann of Grosse Pointe Park.

Mort Crim, WDIV-TV anchor man, will serve as honorary chairman for the event.

Some Grosse Pointe eateries (Captain 2, ONE23, Park Place Cafe, Pointe Patisserie and Tom's Oyster Bar) will be providing samples of their specialties. Both Jacobson's stores will be open for shopping. And music, entertainment, demonstrations and modeling will be arranged by Jacobson's.

The League hopes to raise more than $20,000 to fund its many community projects, including alcohol and drug community education, historic preservation of the Sibley House, Focus: HOPE - Center for Children, and a recently initiated AIDS project.

Tickets for the holiday benefit preview party are $20. They're available at Jacobson's sales promotion office or at the door.

Love affair: The metropolitan Detroit chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation will hold its third annual benefit ball "Love Affair Third Set," on Saturday, Nov. 18, at the Hyatt Regency in Dearborn.

The black-tie gala will feature cocktails, silent auction, dinner, dancing and a live auction of 16 Pro-Am tennis teams whose "owners" win prizes based on the ranking of the teams in a round-robin tournament played off on Sunday, Nov. 19 at the Franklin Fitness & Raquet Club.

General co-chairs for the event are Dotti Doerer of Grosse Pointe, Dee Saunders and Sheldon J. Scott of Birmingham.

Some committee members from the Grosse Pointes include Mark and Beverly Beltaire, Alice and Dalton Black, Clarence S. and Louise Livingood and Ross and Mary Meretsky.

For tickets or information about "Love Affair Third Set," call 354-6565.

Plan far ahead: A benefit banquet to provide scholarship funding for the blind and visually impaired will take place Saturday, Jan. 20, at the Hyatt Regency Dearborn.

At the banquet, such sports-types as Darrell Evans, Lance Parrish and Tom Brookens will be honored for their contributions to the game of baseball in Detroit.

Ticket orders must be processed by Nov. 15, however.

The Twitty, Milsap, Sterban Foundation is entering its fifth year of providing educational assistance through such scholarships, and Grosse Pointer S. Gary Spicer is president of the foundation.

The fundraiser will begin with a silent auction from 5 to 7 p.m., a special reception with the players at 6 p.m., dinner at 7 p.m., and an evening program that includes not only Evans, Parrish and Brookens, but also Ernie Harwell, Jack Morris, Alan Trammell, Dave Bergman and others.

Tickets are $100 for patrons, $50 for benefactors, $30 for dinner, program and live auction. Contact co-executive directors Sarah Koval or Deborah DiRezze at the Twitty, Milsap, Sterban Foundation, P.O. Box 43517, Detroit 48243 for ticket orders. Make checks payable to the foundation.

Fashion show: The American Lung Association of Southeast Michigan, along with GM's Cadillac Division, will present a holiday fashion show, "Fantasia," on Nov. 15, at the Hyatt Regency Dearborn, beginning at 5 p.m. Dinner will be at 7 p.m. and the collection will be shown at 8 p.m. The show will mark the Detroit debut of George Simon-ton, a New York designer, and

An opening for the general public will be held on Saturday, Nov. 18, during gallery hours and will continue through Dec. 31.

Extended holiday hours will be: 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays; 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursdays; 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturdays; noon to 5 p.m. Sundays.

Pewabic Pottery is a nationally recognized turn-of-the-century ceramic learning center, museum and gallery. It is owned and operated by the Pewabic Society, and is funded in part by the National Endowment for the Arts and the Michigan Council for the Arts.

Salvadoran youngster comes to Grosse Pointe for surgery

Eight-year-old Roxanna Zuniga traveled from her native El Salvador to Grosse Pointe this fall for the beginning of a new life.

Through Heal the Children, a national non-profit organization that brings children from around the world to America for donated medical care not available in their home countries, Roxanna is receiving plastic surgery at Bon Secours Hospital.

Doctors, hospitals and their staffs donate professional services, and host families offer their homes.

Elena Herrada and Jesse Villegas of Grosse Pointe are Roxanna's host family.

Dr. Steve Tsangalias and Dr. Albert K. Pierce have donated their services.

"She had third-degree burns and came to us with scars that started from her chin and extended to her upper abdomen," Tsangalias said. He performed Roxanna's first plastic reconstructive surgery on Sept. 29.

"She has a lot of scarring and the skin has contracted. We will be working for the next year to repair this damage."

Due to her contraction of the skin, Roxanna's lower jaw was pulled to her chest and she could not raise her arms very high before the surgery, Tsangalias said. "We believe that these burns are about a year old."

Roxanna also had a broken finger which had not healed properly. Pierce repaired her finger during the Sept. 29 surgery.

Roxanna will be with her new Grosse Pointe family during her entire stay in the United States.

Although this is their first time as host parents, Jesse and Elena say that the experience has already been very rewarding for their family.

They have three children of their own — Alejandra and Zoe, 16-month-old twins, and 11-year-old Elisa.

"Elisa shares her room with Roxanna and in just this short time, she's really getting fluent in Spanish," Herrada said.

Elena and Jesse both speak Spanish. This has been a big advantage as Roxanna didn't know any English when she arrived in the United States.

"English used to be the first language in our house, now it's Spanish," Elena said.

Roxanna was raised in a rural community in El Salvador. Moving to a big city in the United States has been quite a revelation to her, Herrada said.

"The first few weeks were really an overload for her — she experienced so many new things," she said. "She has never been in a car, had never seen running water — everyday there was another revelation."

One of the funniest discoveries for Roxanna was money. "My mother came over and gave her some money a few weeks ago," Jesse said. "Roxanna looked at her and said, 'What am I to do with this?' My daughter jumped in right away and said, 'Whatever you do, don't throw it away.'"

Although Roxanna has a lot of surgery ahead of her, Villegas said.

"She's really brave," he said. "She is learning things from us, but we're learning from her, too. It's wonderful to be able to do this."

Tsangalias will perform several more operations on Roxanna this year, and he believes that she may have to return when she's older for more surgery.

Right now, though, she's enjoying school and her new family. "She just fits right in," Jesse said.

Sts. Peter & Paul Church plan homecoming

A Homecoming Social at Sts. Peter & Paul Jesuit Church will be held Sunday, Nov. 12, at noon, preceded by mass in the church at 11 a.m.

This annual benefit, in the University of Detroit Law School atrium, will raise funds for much-needed building restoration projects.

Located at the corner of East Jefferson and St. Antoine, Sts. Peter & Paul Church invites all its parishioners, former parishioners, friends in the downtown community and friends of the Jesuits in the metropolitan Detroit area to join in this celebration, to meet old and new friends, and possibly win one of the door prizes.

Parking is available in the U of D parking lot on Larned Street, where a guard will direct you to the church and atrium.

For further information please contact the rectory at 961-8077.

Pork is lean, nutritious, low in cholesterol, tasty

The pig is truly an outstanding animal whose position ranks high among the animal kingdom in intelligence.

The friendly pig has helped make the English language more vivid and colorful. Think about "going whole hog." It is believed that this phrase became popular after the publication of a poem about Mahomet in the 19th century. The prophet stated that a certain portion of the hog was forbidden to true believers, and since his followers could not be sure which part to avoid they "went whole hog." Presently the term means to do something thoroughly.

Have you ever felt "hog tired?"

Have you had enough of this "hogwash?" Many of these phrases will always be a part of our language "until pigs fly."

Few animals have been as useful to the human population as the pig. These animals are easily fed, cared for and housed. The pig has always been one of the main dietary props of the world populations. For centuries, the pig provided Europe's peasantry with practically the only meat they ever ate. In the Orient, pork was prized. A symbol representing a pig beneath the roof of a house became the symbolism for home.

Our new country had a production of hogs which continued to spread. Hogs were introduced to New Mexico by Hernando Cortez in 1600 and Sir Walter Raleigh brought hogs to Jamestown colony in 1607. By 1660, the hog population of Pennsylvania colony numbered in the thousands. The typical farmer of the 17th century owned four or five hogs, supplying salt pork and bacon to his table.

American cuisine served in the White House has revealed a representation of a large assortment of individual backgrounds and tastes of the present and the past. Geographical, familial, and cultural influences have all helped to inspire the menus for each of the first families and it is apparent that pork has been popular.

President James Buchanan favored pork served with pickled cabbage.

President Lyndon B. Johnson hosted a party on the White House lawn which featured Texas-style barbecued ribs, Michigan-style barbecued ribs, Michigan-style barbecued ribs, the Gerald Fords, liked very lean pork chops simmered in red wine and served midwestern style with braised red cabbage and apples. When Jimmy and Rosalyn Carter lived in the White House, they were both fond of pork chops seasoned with barbecue sauce or sweetened with a side dish of fried apples. A special event recipe favored by President Ronald Reagan and Nancy was saltimbocca of veal and prosciutto ham.

President George Bush has a predilection for the crunchy puffs of pigskin and his preferences are bringing fresh popularity to what was previously regarded as a regional delicacy of the South.

Data from the Michigan Pork Producers Association and the National Pork Producers Council

- 1 Tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
 - 1 tsp. Dijon-style mustard
 - 1 Tbsp. minced parsley or chives
- Press each tenderloin slice to a 1-inch thickness. Sprinkle surfaces of medallions with lemon pepper. Heat butter in a heavy skillet. Cook tenderloin medallions 3-4 minutes on each side. Remove medallions to serving platter; keep warm. Add lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce and the tenderloin, combine the sherry and soy sauce. Add the pork. Let marinate, 1-2 hours, turning several times. Remove the tenderloin. Spread the honey on a plate. Roll the pork in honey, then in sesame seeds. Place the tenderloin in a roasting pan; bake at 350 degrees 15 minutes then slice thinly on the diagonal. Serve with a dipping sauce.

compiled for the 1987 marketing year, states that hog marketings totaled 1.85 million head. Cash receipts from marketings amounted to $213 million, and Michigan placed eleventh among the states in hog inventory.

Recent USDA research confirms that today's fresh pork is a lean product containing only about 198 calories per 3-ounce serving. This is about 50 percent leaner than the animal of twenty five years ago.

Three ounces of pork loin contain about 76 milligrams of cholesterol, representing 26 percent of the American Heart Association's recommended maximum of less than 300 milligrams of dietary cholesterol per day. Pork's cholesterol content is about the same as a serving of roast chicken, skinless, dark turkey meat or lean beef. Pork is a primary source of dietary thiamin and a rich source of vitamin B6, B12, niacin and riboflavin.

Pork is also a good source of "heme" iron, the most readily absorbed form of dietary iron. Pork's wholesomeness is assured by the U.S. pork industry's goal to produce a lean, nutritious product for the consumer.

The age-old fear of trichinosis is unfounded today, as the incidence of trichinosis infection in U.S. hogs today is nearly nonexistent. Today's pork can be enjoyed cooked to a medium 160 degrees F. internal temperature, or well done at 170 degrees.

Consumer research shows that people like the taste of pork

GOOD THINGS COME . . .

In small packages. This warm and cozy petite Colonial has all the amenities of a much larger house. From the living room fireplace to the hardwood floors and formal dining room, this Grosse Pointe Farms home offers all the creature comforts. Its two bedrooms are perfect for small families of one or two. Enjoy the family/Florida room overlooking the very pretty yard. Immediate occupancy is available.

YOU CAN AFFORD . . .

The fun. Fill the leisure hours with hiking, biking, tennis, swimming and shopping when you own this two-bedroom condo near the water. Enjoy watching the ice boats on the lake this winter, and next summer revel in your lake privileges and your own twenty-five foot boat well. Nuzzle up in front of your natural living room fireplace or lounge in your Roman-style tub in one of your two-full baths. This condo has so very much to offer.

POETRY IN LAKESIDE LIVING . . .

From the moment you enter the front door and experience the sweeping views of Lake St. Clair you'll realize this is the home you promised yourself someday. For those with a flair for living, try breakfast in the breakfast room with bay window and parquet floor, dining in the dining room with its own fireplace or bowling in your own bowling alley in the basement in one of the oldest mansions in the Park.

NOT ONE BUT TWO AFFORDABLE . . .

Homes in Grosse Pointe Woods are awaiting new owners. If your budget is under $105,000 this four-bedroom, one-bath ranch may be your ticket. It features a natural fireplace, and a recreation room. If the budget's under $128,000 then schedule your appointment to see this three-bedroom, two-bath, semi-ranch with its large kitchen with eating space, natural fireplace, and large yard. One is just right for you.

FAMILY LIVING IN A . . .

Park-like setting. From the four bedrooms, with large closets and two-and-one-half baths, to the basement with its recreation room with natural fireplace, office, games room and laundry room, here's the perfect home of the growing family. The first floor offers a living room with natural fireplace, dining room with hardwood floors and coved ceilings, and a marvelous kitchen with breakfast area. Plus double family room. Call today!

ANNUAL BUGLER SUPPLEMENT TO THE GROSSE POINTE NEWS

Secretary FLEC

It is the dream of every community service organization to work itself out of a job. How wonderful it would be if FLEC could close its door knowing that people no longer need their services! These services include crisis intervention, short-term counseling, information and referrals, and a medical clinic as well as a legal clinic. It seemed that FLEC was approaching that dream early this year when the telephone hot line service was discontinued. Frankly, the service became a financial drain on the organization in view of the diminishing numbers of calls received via the hot line.

Unfortunately, the calls never ceased completely. The Staff and Board of Directors of the Family Life Education Council were confronted with a difficult decision. Should the Crisis Hot Line be reopened and remain open regardless of how few people are served by it? Colinda Hendricks, Executive Director of FLEC, shared the story of one young woman who called FLEC's regular business phone number. Possibly a victim of incest, the young woman's experience was painfully recounted by Colinda at the monthly meeting of the Board of Directors in February. Colinda assured us that the young woman's needs were met by immediate crisis intervention and referral. Several such calls were received through the business phone number at the FLEC office. A motion was made that the Crisis Line be reopened at the risk of possibly only one person being helped through that service.

It was a burdensome decision given the cost factors and the low number of Hot Line calls logged each month previous to January. The motion carried and the next day Hot Line services were resumed. At present, the Hot Line receives sixty to seventy calls per month, a thirty to forty percent increase over the numbers received in the last months of 1988.

Center Point Volunteers are receiving training in order to service the now increasing demand for crisis intervention via the Hot Line or on a walk-in basis. Volunteers participate in a "core" training which consists of 35-40 hours of cognitive lectures and skill application. The curriculum includes introduction to the Center Point philosophy, the helping relationship, crisis

What the Family Life Education Council (FLEC) has been since 1966: A brief history

The Family Life Education Council (FLEC), started in 1966 by concerned citizens of this community, was approved as part of the Grosse Pointe Board of Education in August, 1967, and became an independent non-profit agency in April, 1969. At that time, Grosse Pointe Rotary gave a $10,000 grant to start a drug program.

FLEC programs have constantly changed to meet the needs of the community and these programs are frequently sponsored with other community organizations. Listed below are the major programs FLEC has undertaken since its inception:

1967 - Workshop for Ministerial Association, parents, community groups, and school administrators on sex education.

1968 - Teen drinking deemed an issue to explore. Proposed program to curtail adult and parent carelessness in making alcohol available to minors.

1969 - Donal Louria, M.D., presented "The Drug Scene and Community Responsibility".

Grosse Pointe Rotary donated $10,000 and FLEC became an independent agency.

Youth Assistance Committee started drug hot-line and rap sessions for youths.

1970 - Community-wide action group seminar on drug education, treatment, and recreation.

Methadone Withdrawal Clinic began for adolescent heroin addicts who were given intensive group therapy by a psychiatrist or psychiatric social worker, and parents of addicts received group counseling.

1971 - Center Point Crisis Intervention Center opened to assist youth with problems before they could become involved with hard drugs.

Voluntary Medical Clinic began to test and treat venereal diseases among youth.

Living with Alcohol program for middle and high school students whose lives were harmed by alcohol abusers.

1972 - Student Volunteer Program is taken over from the Neighborhood Club.

Recreation Therapy Program for clients in Methadone and Cyclazocine Research Program.

1973 - Treatment program for drug users who were students aged 14 to 17 and currently in school.

Alcohol Education Study Committee organized.

Four-part series on human sexuality, separate sessions for parents and students, covering the physical, psychological, and ethical aspects of sex.

Weekly "HELP" program on drugs appeared in the Detroit Free Press, written by Kenneth G. Schoof, M.D., FLEC Advisory Board member.

1974 - "Dialogue" confidential help line for adults opened.

Adolescent Methadone Clinic treatment program closed because of, fortunately, little demand for services.

FLEC has new office address on Mack Avenue in Woods

by Jennifer Miller

The Family Life Education Council has relocated to new office space at 20171 Mack Avenue, Grosse Pointe Woods. Until early 1989, FLEC's offices were located in the Cottage Hospital Nurses' Residence, but with Cottage's current growth and expansion, it was necessary for FLEC to seek new quarters.

The new location on Mack near Oxford, between Moross and Vernier Roads, is more visible to the community and provides easier access for the young people utilizing FLEC's services.

On March 5, 1989, FLEC hosted an Open House to celebrate its move and introduce its new facilities to the community. Members of its Board of Directors, representatives from the city councils of the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods, students, FLEC volunteers, youth officers, and neighboring business people attended, as well as members of the public. Guest enjoyed refreshments and were entertained by a special visit from Arthur the Clown of the Grosse Pointe Clown Corps. Jane Marshall, FLEC Board Member, won the use of a stretch limousine generously donated by Joseph's Limousine.

FLEC appreciates all the support given to the Open House and invites community members to tour its new offices on their own. Please call 885-3610 to make arrangements.

The Family Life Education Council is more visible in its new location at 20171 Mack Ave. Greater visibility means better service to the community.

Grosse Pointe/Harper Woods Youth Assistance Program is now in its fourth year

by Pamela Oswald,
Youth Assistance Program Director

The Grosse Pointe/Harper Woods Youth Assistance Program is now in its fourth year of operation and has evolved into a slightly different program than it was at its inception. While the basic concept and goals (to provide early intervention to juveniles who break the law and to provide an alternative to the formal Juvenile Court System) remain the same, the Youth Assistance Program has been expanded and improved.

Several areas of new program development include:
— The expansion of the volunteer training program from 12 to 33 hours of comprehensive education;
— New and more stringent volunteer qualifications: all volunteers must possess a Bachelor's Degree in human-service field;

— The hiring of a paid professional to facilitate the Project Impact Group, a 10-week structured adolescent discussion group;

— The development of a work-service component, providing those adolescents enrolled in the Youth Assistance Program with the opportunity to make restitution to the community for the crime committed, possible work-service sites including local nursing homes, hospitals, libraries, etc.

Since its beginning, a total of 165 youths have been referred to the Youth Assistance Program, and 35 are currently enrolled. Referrals come primarily from the police for first-time juvenile lawbreakers for such offenses as breaking and entering, shoplifting, larceny, and malicious destruction of property. There are 12 volunteer counselors who donate 2 to 4 hours per week to work with the program's clients. Program Director, Pamela Oswald, and FLEC Volunteer Coordinator, Marla Ruhanna, coordinate training of the volunteer counselors.

Police departments of the five Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods strongly support this court-approved program, viewing it as a working alternative to the juvenile court system in dealing with the community's young people. It provides services close to home and the anonymity that only such an organization such as this can provide, since it is independently based in the community. There are 19 other Youth Assistance Programs throughout Wayne County, all proving to be statistically effective.

Police departments strongly support this court-approved program.

Partial funding for the Youth Assistance Program, which is administered by FLEC, is provided by the cities of the five Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods; but community support in securing the remaining funding is extremely important. FLEC sincerely appreciates all the financial assistance it has received, and it is hoped that this community's concern for its youth will encourage donations to FLEC's annual fundraising efforts so that this very necessary program will be able to continue.

Kilt and bagpipes help fight the drug war

The bagpipes and kilts go back to antiquity. The Kirking of the Tartan goes back just to World War II, when the St. Andrew's Society gathered the ancient clans of Scotland to the National Cathedral in Washington, D.C., for a dedication to God and country.

Now, the Scottish Clan Alliance for a Drug Free America brings the Kirking of the Tartan to the Detroit metropolitan area. The Kirking ceremony is traditionally held in large churches throughout the country. The ceremony is unique, colorful and stirring with more than 20 clans of Scotsmen and women presenting their colorful tartans at the altar for dedication. Some say the bagpipes can move the dead and on one doubts they can stir the living.

On May 21, 1989, St. John's Episcopal Church was the setting for a Kirking of the Tartan sponsored by the Scottish Clan Alliance in cooperation with the Royal Oak Families in Action, local police departments and St. John's Church. A voluntary collection was taken and donated to Royal Oak Families in Action for their various educational programs directed toward children and concerned parents.

The next scheduled Kirking will be held at the Birmingham First Presbyterian Church in Birmingham, Michigan on November 19, 1989. This Kirking ceremony will be held in cooperation with the Birmingham/Bloomfield Families in Action, local law enforcement agencies and the Birmingham First Presbyterian Church. Offerings will be donated to local agencies fighting the war on drug abuse.

Tentative plans are being formed for a Kirking of the Tartan in the Grosse Pointe area in cooperation with FLEC. We commend the Scottish community for their dedication to the fight for a drug free America.

FLEC gets high score on organization survey

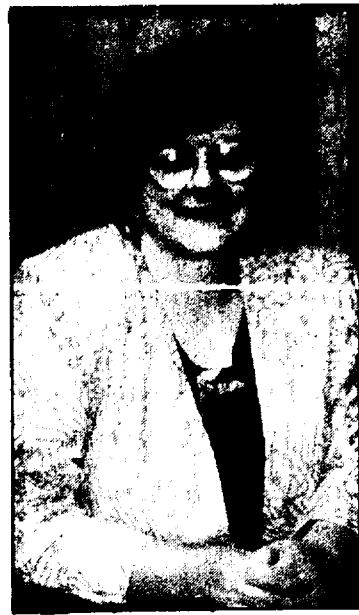

by Andrea Rasmussen

Early this year, so that it could become better at serving the needs of this community, FLEC underwent an internal evaluation survey to establish its strengths, growth areas, and challenges. The specific areas covered by the survey included an evaluation of current services and current programming, an assessment of the community's needs, and a recommendation of future direction for FLEC. F. Barbara Simons, president of Human Service Consultants of Detroit, conducted the survey and interviewed FLEC staff, volunteers, and Board of Directors, as well as personnel from community referral agencies, schools, churches, and police.

Ms. Simons earned her Master's Degree in Social Work from the University of Michigan in 1969, and her past professional experience includes serving as a social worker, Director of the Detroit Police Department Rape Counseling Center, and Director of the Neighborhood Service Organization's Community Mental Health Emergency Telephone Service.

The results of the evaluation survey indicated that FLEC's strengths include its staff with its exemplary commitment to FLEC, its dedication to meeting the needs of the community, and its excellent teamwork. Another strength is its trained volunteer program, described by Simons as "... a most impressive element of the organization. Not only is the volunteer staff rich in experience and dedication, the volunteer training and support services are good." Other strengths include its Board of Directors with a diverse composition of community leaders, its rich history, and its "excellent working relationship with community governmental agencies and police" through the Youth Assistance Program (Y.A.P.). In fact, referring to Y.A.P., Simons observed that, "FLEC enjoys the unchallenged support of the local police departments. . .,"—noting that, "It is rare for a human service organization to enjoy such positive relationships with (community governmental agencies and the police)."

F. Barbara Simons

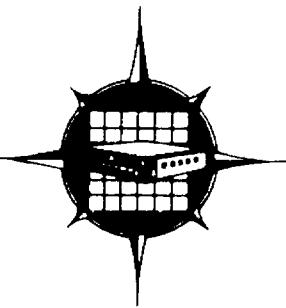

A frequently expressed sentiment derived from those surveyed was that, although FLEC provides services similar to those of other agencies in the Metro-Detroit area, people prefer to stay within their own immediate communities for these services. FLEC's services to the Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods communities include the Youth Assistance Program (Y.A.P.) and Center Point, which is FLEC's direct service component overseeing the Crisis Phone Lines, the medical and legal clinics, and short-term crisis counseling.

One purpose of the survey, said FLEC Director, Colinda Hendricks, was to "take a good hard look at ourselves." A major concern and growth area revealed by the survey is the need to be better-known in the community. As Simons states, "(T)here is a grave need to clarify for the community the existence of FLEC programs, and the exact services that the organization provides." In addition, as with many non-profit organizations, FLEC is faced with the constant need for adequate funding, and, as the survey recommends, will be seeking a stable funding source. Another growth area recommended by Simons is the need for "networking with other agencies in the community," particularly the schools, since most of the clients FLEC serves are this community's students.

As a result of this survey, FLEC has affirmed that it is a viable, needed organization and has accepted its challenges, which include: continuing to maintain its strengths, serving its community, clarifying to the community what it does and does not do, and advertising its services more adequately in order to increase its visibility in the community. FLEC will also work to assess the community's needs and try to meet them both on its own and with other community organizations. Ms. Simons specifically recommended that FLEC develop a "program element that would deal effectively with the lack of networking in the community. . . FLEC/Center Point can play a vital role in organizing the community to work together to provide services." She also suggested that Center Point become a "central referral agency and coordinating organization."

The future is bright for FLEC. Both the survey results and the dedication of its staff, volunteers and Board members substantiate that fact. FLEC is capable of serving the needs of the Grosse Pointe-Harper Woods community and is committed to continuing those services.

Earlier teen sex poses health threat

By Colinda Hendricks
Executive Director

American society is becoming increasingly concerned about adolescent health and sexuality, and with good reason.

According to a recent article in the Journal of the American Medical Association, "Immunological virgins seem to be the only kind one finds among adolescents anymore, and that fact may in part account for the tremendous increase in sexually transmitted diseases (STD's) in the United States."

Increased exposure to STD's may lead to rapid and asymptomatic infection. One may have initial exposure to a sexually transmitted disease, become infected, and pass the infection on without ever feeling ill or suspecting infection. Only years later may the cost of careless sex become apparent, when gonorrhea or Chlamydia have left scarred fallopian tubes, or human papillomavirus (HPV) or hepatitis B virus have lead to cancer, or genital herpes or syphilis has resulted in a damaged in-

Attempts are being made to address the issues of increased incidence of sexually transmitted disease and teen pregnancy through the establishment of health clinics, school based education programs, etc. A 1989 survey of 1021 ninth and tenth graders who attend a mid-western metropolitan suburban high school system was undertaken using a questionnaire that addressed a number of teen health and sexuality issues. Sexuality questions included issues such as contraception, sexually transmitted disease, sexual experience, birth control methods and frequency, age of first intercourse, and number of partners.

The majority of students answered that their age of first intercourse was between 13-15 years old. The males on the average indicated a younger age of first intercourse than the females. Overall, 59.8% of the sexually active females and 46.2% of the sexually active males reported having had only one sexual partner. Five or more partners were reported by 11.6% females, and 20.6% males. Males tended to report higher numbers of sexual partners throughout the age groups.

Concerning the frequency of birth control use, 44.7% females and 50.3% males reported that birth control was always used. 14.9% females and 21.3% males reported never using birth control. The most likely method of birth control used was the condom. Responses as to why a sexually active person of their age would not use birth control ranged from embarrassment to interference with sex to fear of physical effects or parents' discovery.

From this survey it is seen that sexual intercourse is common among 14 to 16 year old high school students, with an overall frequency of 33% for all age groups. Significantly, the initiation of sexual intercourse is occurring earlier than indicated in past studies.

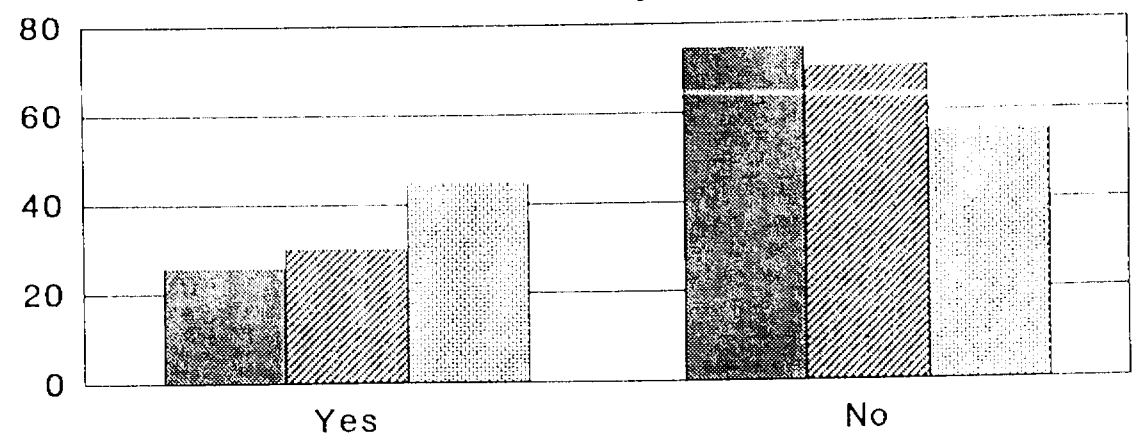

A significant proportion of the students felt most comfortable discussing sexual issues with their peers, as opposed to a more mature and informed source (ie. parents, teachers, physicians, etc. . .)

Teenagers are becoming sexually active at an earlier age and with a greater number of partners than their predecessors, and apparently relying on the information from their peers for guidance. These behaviors put our young people at risk for sexually transmitted disease and unwanted or unplanned pregnancy.

FAMILY LIFE EDUCATION COUNCIL

AN OPEN LETTER TO COMMUNITY MEMBERS OF GROSSE POINTE/HARPER WOODS:

FLEC has a 20-plus year history of helping our youngsters with the many problems of youth — problems they normally encounter when growing up, but which often get out of hand. For instance:

You are a young adult. You are in trouble. You don't know if your usual confidants can be trusted with this problem. Where can you turn for help?

Frequently, teenagers are reluctant to confide in their parents, teachers, doctors, and clergy, and either try to work these problems out for themselves, or seek advice from friends. That's fine, until these problems become seriously out of control, with resultant adverse consequences. Many of these problems are sexually oriented, such as pregnancy or venereal disease. At other times, the problems involve substance abuse, various legal encounters, or difficulties with social interaction.

Sometimes, realizing that they do need professional help, these young people turn to FLEC for confidential, professional, compassionate advice and treatment. Center Point and FLEC Medical Clinic offer assistance in a thorough and impartial manner. Although they receive counseling and advice from professionals, it is often mediated through peers, which makes it easier to accept and understand. We try to "put out the fire" first and then work on causes and prevention, through counseling and education.

The alcohol-awareness program, the juvenile-offender program, our legal clinic, crisis center, and medical clinic, have helped thousands of young people. Most have gone on to improved lives — smarter, better-equipped to deal with future encounters — with the memory of their experience firmly etched in their minds. They have learned that, while living in an increasingly complex world, they are responsible for their own life activities and outcomes.

All of this is fine, but it costs money — it costs more than $100,000 a year. We must rent our facility: there are direct and indirect costs, salaries and materials. We receive some assistance from grants, municipalities, and endowments, but most of our support comes from our community. It must continue to be available to our children in future years. We cannot let FLEC's services decline for lack of support. We need your support.

I have been involved in FLEC for most of its years, and have personally treated hundreds in the Medical Clinic. I know how much it does and can do for our children. The need will always be there; the costs will always be there. No one else is going to do this for us — we must take care of our own.

I ask you to join me in continued support. Your contributions are not wasted and reap long-term benefits.

Thank you sincerely.

Gov. James Blanchard and Mr. and Mrs. John Burrows attended FLEC's gala fundraiser "Pre-Summer Night's Dream."

Gala evening at the 'Globe': A good party for a good cause

On May 5 of this year, FLEC hosted a gala "Pre-Summer Night's Dream" fundraiser in the atrium of the Globe Building on Fort Street in downtown Detroit. Honorary chairpersons of the event were Governor James J. Blanchard, Dr. and Mrs. John H. Burrows, and Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Weil, III. Following a sampling of fine wines and nibbles, a fashion show was presented by Judith Ann and Hickey's, both Grosse Pointe City clothing retailers. Later came an auction of the apparel modeled and a silent auction of donated items. The evening concluded with dessert and coffee, and dancing to music provided by S.T.C. Entertainment.

Co-Chairpersons, Judith A. Agle, Judith Sieber, and Darlene Soave were ably assisted by their committee members, Paul Azar, Ardis Gardella, Dorothy Gemeund, Colleen Lee, Jane Marshall, Marcia Russell, Myrna Smith, and Sharon Southwell. The generous support of those attending the party and those who contributed funds, supplies, and auction items is sincerely appreciated, for without such generous support from the community, FLEC could no longer survive. It was a festive occasion where all who attended had a wonderful time.

Fun Fundraising

Youth from area churches joined volunteers from FLEC in sponsoring a car wash on Saturday, Aug. 19. Although the weather didn't cooperate, FLEC Executive Director Colinda Hendricks did have the opportunity to share with the youth what FLEC is all about. Everyone enjoyed the fellowship as well as pizza and pop.

Grosse Pointe Community Chorus, Band to benefit FLEC

On Thursday, April 5, 1990 at 8:00 p.m. at Parcels Auditorium, The Grosse Pointe Community Chorus will join with the Grosse Pointe Community Band for a concert to benefit FLEC. Proceeds after concert costs will go directly to help those in the communities, symbolizing and proving that one hand will help the other.

The chorus was started in 1953 under the direction of Malcolm and Marian Johns. Concert director for the chorus, June C. Schultz-Zydek, says, "This will be an uplifting experience for all of us and gives both groups a chance to pour something more back into the community." The chorus has traditionally provided Christmas music to area seniors in extended care and nursing facilities.

The band is just two years old but is filling the need for people of any age who wish to continue instrumental music, according to Ralph Miller, director and founder. He says, "We are looking at an enjoyable and varied evening of music."

A reception will be held in the gym immediately following the concert. More information will be available at a later date; however, if you would care to help with the costs of this concert as a sponsor, patron or advertiser (in which case your name would be in the program), or wish to be a volunteer for ushering, reception or for the many details that will make this a special evening, please contact Beth Campbell, publicity, 885-8746.

New FLEC volunteers are trained and ready to hit the hot lines

by Marla Ruhana
Volunteer Coordinator

Center Point Crisis Center offered a fall volunteer training program 2 nights weekly from September 25 through November 1, 1989. Eight new volunteers went through this intensive training.

Center Point's forty-hour crisis intervention training begins with an orientation to agency policies and procedures. Two sessions on the "Empathy Model" were taught by Keith Coderre, long-time volunteer and current board member. A presentation on substance abuse and assessing and responding to drug-related calls, was given by Virginia Biegum from Oxford Institute. A session on suicide addressed how to deal with a suicidal caller, lethality assessment, and crisis intervention techniques.

An overview of sexual concerns pertaining to crisis intervention services provided trainees with information on AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases, as well as Center Point's medical clinic policies and procedures.

Gloria Danna-Brooks spoke on "Abusive Relationships". Ms. Brooks works at the "Haven", a domestic violence shelter for battered women. She informed the volunteers about the dynamics of domestic violence, child sexual abuse, rape and date rape and how to handle a Crisis Line caller in any of these situations.

Three skill-building sessions were included in the training. These are active sessions, utilizing role-play and other experiential tools to increase skill level and build confidence in new volunteers. Colinda Hendricks, Program Director of Center Point, facilitated the training and was assisted by Marla Ruhana, Volunteer Coordinator.

Active volunteers are required to commit a minimum of four hours weekly for one year. This allows for maximal skill development and utilization, and enables proper volunteer staff coverage on the crisis hotlines.

Volunteer responsibilities include direct service to callers, as well as involvement in outreach activities, program development, updating referral files and community service information. These activities provide volunteers with a broad base of experience, and assist in the maintenance of high quality agency services. The core crisis intervention training is offered twice yearly, in the fall and the spring. Those interested in becoming a Center Point Crisis Phone Line volunteer or in more information about the program may call the FLEC office at 885-3510.

Mark Schafer, left, makes an inquiry of volunteer coordinator Marla Ruhana and FLEC Board of Directors Vice President Keith Coderre during a volunteer training session.

Why be a volunteer?

It's not for the money; it's not for fame It's not for any personal gain. It's just for love of fellow man, It's just to lend a helping hand.	It's just to give a tithe of self, That's something you can't buy with wealth. It's not for medals worn with pride, It's for that feeling deep inside.	It's that reward down in your heart, It's feeling that you've been a part of helping others far and near That makes you a volunteer!

History

1975 - Alcohol Awareness Seminar, "Community Leaders Look at Alcoholism - Whose Responsibility?" provided accurate information on alcoholism and alcohol abuse to representatives from 70 community groups.

1976 - Sponsored workshop entitled, "Alcohol and Women". Marianne Brickley, wife of the President of Eastern Michigan University and future Lieutenant Governor of Michigan, was guest speaker.

1977 - High school students were trained to provide "Alcohol Awareness" information to younger students in elementary and middle schools.

1978 - Legal Center opened on Wednesday evenings to provide assistance on simple legal problems.

1979 - Family Life Forums offered a lecture series to the public.

1980 - Juvenile Offender Program established between Center Point Crisis Center and the police departments of the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods to counsel juvenile offenders as an alternative to the Wayne County Juvenile Court.

Dialogue Help Line combined with Center Point.

1982 - Creative Parenting workshops, originally developed to provide education and support to parents of our juvenile offenders, and since have been made available to the community at large.

1983 - Co-sponsored the David Toma speaking engagement on drug abuse to parents and students.

1984 - Phone Friend program developed to give elementary and middle school "latch key" children a place to call.

1986 - Grosse Pointe/Harper Woods Youth Assistance Program established as a neighborhood-based delinquency prevention program in cooperation with the police, juvenile court, schools, and families. Youths receive one-to-one counseling, and Project Impact classes, which include topics of values clarification, problem solving, communication skills, coping skills, and listening skills.

1987 - Co-sponsored the Community AIDS Education Forum at which Lawrence Crane, M.D., presented facts about the disease and addressed concerns about its spread.

1988 - "Strengthening Stepfamilies" educational series initiated to provide information and support to parents of blended families wishing to improve family dynamics and communication patterns.

Medical staff from Center Point Medical Clinic gave presentations on sexually-transmitted diseases (STD) and AIDS to community high school health classes.

Birth Control Discussion Group added to Medical Clinic services.

1989 - Grosse Pointe/Harper Woods Youth Assistance Program adds work service as a program component to allow the first-time juvenile offender an opportunity to make restitution to the community.

Center Point Crisis Phone Lines continue to operate.

intervention model, empathy, values clarification, goal setting, decision making, assessment, sexual and medical concerns, and substance abuse. The training does not end with the "core" curriculum. In-service education and guest speakers are utilized to increase the knowledge and skill level of volunteer counselors.

In order to maintain staff continuity, volunteers are required to commit a minimum of four hours weekly for one year. This allows for comprehensive training, application of skills, and may be extended to meet the needs of various field placements.

In addition to the services provided to callers and clients, volunteer responsibilities include involvement in outreach activities, program development, training of new volunteers, and other administrative and clerical activities. Volunteers are now needed and interested persons may contact the Family Life Education Counsel at 885-3510.

The dream of FLEC working itself out of a job seems more illusive now than ever. The doors are open and the Hot Line is available. Until such time when the services of the Family Life Education Counsel are no longer needed, they will continue to serve this community faithfully as they have done for the past twenty-three years.

Meet Colinda Hendricks, FLEC's executive director

Since January of 1989, Colinda Hendricks has served as both Executive Director of FLEC and Program Director for Center Point. Colinda called FLEC offering to volunteer counseling services. Myrna Smith told her, "No, we don't want you to volunteer. Come in and apply for the job of Executive Director." After one interview, Colinda was hired to do both jobs.

Colinda's support in her ambitious undertaking comes from her husband, Terry, and her two children, Colin, 6, and Katelyn, 3. She has a Bachelor's Degree in psychology from Wayne State University as well as a Master's Degree in clinical psychology from the Center for Humanistic Studies. A limited license psychologist with the State of Michigan, Colinda has a private practice one day a week.

Prior to coming to FLEC, Colinda taught behavioral science in the Foundation Studies program at Oakland County Community College. She is a credentialed substance abuse counselor and has previously counseled at Gateway Counseling Center in Madison Heights.

Colinda has also owned a small business which specialized in consultation for office automation and word processing. She purchased equipment and trained staff in its operation.

Among Colinda's many responsibilities for FLEC are short-term counseling, grant writing, and supervision and training of staff and volunteers. She is liaison to the FLEC board and generally oversees the operations of the agency. She has been observed stenciling the phone number on the front windows and even wallpapering the bathroom along with husband Terry. Everyone at FLEC is very grateful for that January phone call from a potential "volunteer."

What our volunteers say . . .

Over the past one and one half years, I have donated my time as a volunteer attorney for Family Life Education Council. The attorney's role is to give free legal advice to members of the community. I am proud to give my support to FLEC.

I know what a nightmare it is to reach out for help and have your hand cut off at the wrist. That's why I'm here — to hold that reaching hand until its strong enough to hold its own.

— Josie Christensen
Center Point Volunteer

worth, and the need to be listened to and heard. Through an 8 week course in values and self worth I observed the gradual and at times painfully reluctant unfolding of young individuals coming to terms with who they are, accepting themselves, taking responsibility for their actions and choices and achieving the ability to solve their problems in acceptable ways.

To observe and participate in the blossoming of one's inner self — the awakening of a spirit, and the faith in human possibility has been tremendously rewarding, with each new growth of a client served I have, myself, developed further, always receiving so much more than what I feel I have offered.

I enjoy volunteering at Center Point because of the warm feeling I get inside when helping another deal with life's situations.

—Bill Baker
Center Point Volunteer

I used to always say I'd like to or I wish I could find the time to . . . and I finally did. It's a very rewarding feeling. There's a lot of people that need support or just someone to listen. That's what I'm there for.

—Carmella Sanna
Center Point Volunteer

Looking back at my introduction to FLEC/Center Point I recall being drawn to a public service ministry to answer some internal call to give to others what I had received over time and experience — to broaden my own base knowledge of the needs which exist among the community, and to disseminate information to those searching for honest, factual answers to the many questions carried over the years of ambiguity.

Beginning on the crisis lines and expanding my role to include medical clinic, Project Impact, and short term counseling refined my psych background while strengthening my confidence in a supportive role for others.

Within the boundaries of med clinic I have come across adolescents struggling with self, values, expectations, conflicting ideas/info on sexual issues, and the need to be able to communicate honestly with people who were willing to share info while helping these youth to develop a greater sense of self and enough understanding to make responsible choices.

In Project Impact, dealing with adolescent first offend-

A poem to our volunteers at Center Point and Youth Assistance: 'Being with You'

By Mary Lawrence

Being with you is good for us.
Blessed by your generosity, we remain steadfast in our appreciation of your service and loyalty. Sometimes we don't understand why you give so much and ask so little in return. What moves you to unselfish deeds?

It's the little things you do that make the difference here the warmth of your smile, the soft touch of your hand on tired shoulders uplifts the patient, and lightens the load.
What would we do without you?
It is an honor knowing you. Although we may not always show how much we care for you or how thankful we really are.

Along with us, give yourself much credit for the good you do here.
Be proud. Carry on, at our sides, as our friends.

Thanks,
The Flec Staff

WAYS TO BREAK FREE FROM ALCOHOL, TOBACCO AND HARMFUL DRUGS

Using these chemicals can cost you your health, your relationships, your safety, your performance, your emotions, your job, even your life. Sooner or later you will have to pay and the price is often very high.

STEP 1: REALLY ANALYZE YOUR SITUATION

- Is your use affecting your appearance, your relationships, your job, your health. Are things happening to you that seem out of your control?
- Check with someone who will be honest with you. This is difficult because one way we cope is to deny our problems.
- Remember, you are not a "bad" person because you have ended up in a bad situation.
- Blaming other people for your problems won't help.
- One reason it is hard to recognize the need to stop using is that the parts of the brain and mind that tell you that you have problems are altered when you are on these chemicals.
- We often associate with people who help us stay on the chemicals.

STEP 2: DECIDE YOU ARE GOING TO QUIT

- A private, personal, committed decision to quit is the cornerstone of changing behavior. The decision is yours and yours only.
- Trying is NOT deciding and only delays the process.
- Becoming committed to change is vital.

STEP 3: ACTUALLY QUIT AND GET THROUGH WHATEVER WITHDRAWAL IS INVOLVED

- Develop a plan of action. Start on it right away.
- Reach out for help. Join a local AA 541-6565 or NA 543-7200 (Narcotics Anonymous) group. Many heavy alcohol and drug users need special help when quitting, although most smokers can quit on their own. (If you need help, call your local hospital, most have a STOP SMOKING CLINIC). Asking for help is a sign of strength. Let others know how they can help you.
- Consult with a physician to assess your physical condition and to plan an appropriate treatment.
- The degree of dependency, the type of substance, and your expectations will govern the withdrawal you will experience. Severe psychological pain may be the worst. This pain can help you develop courage.

STEP 4: DEVELOP COPING SKILLS

- Even when you are free of these chemicals you will still have many of your old problems, personality traits and coping styles. Life will still be full of struggles.
- You will need to alter your attitudes toward people and problems.
- You need to recognize the situations that triggered your use. Get rid of the ones you can and change your response to the others.
- Watch out if you are bored, angry, tense or frustrated or feel a need to escape. Plan what you will do when this happens.

- Plan ways to deal with social pressures. Stay away from temptation. You may have to move or at least change your environment.
- You may need counseling and/or medical help to deal with some relationships, self control issues, anger management, anxiety and stress.
- You may feel empty and bored. You will miss your old habits. You will want to use again. Learn to wait out the urge. There will be lots of time to fill. You may feel depressed and anxious as your body changes.
- Get involved in something outside of yourself such as volunteer work, helping others and spiritual growth.
- Read and talk to people who have overcome major obstacles.
- Reward yourself with positive activities and special treats.
- Give yourself credit for your successes and your positive changes. Your self esteem will increase with your accomplishments.
- Learn to relax and worry less.
- Find ways to develop or increase your spiritual side.
- Develop a support team and activities that will be healthful. Find a few friends with whom you can truly communicate.
- Believe in yourself. Add up your positive points. Consider forgiving yourself for past mistakes.

STEP 5: CHANGE YOUR LIFE AND YOUR SURROUNDINGS

- This is difficult for most people.
- Learn new ways to deal with yourself and the rest of the world in a positive (and realistic) way.
- Learn new ways to build up and restore your health.
- Find new acceptable sources of pleasure.
- Take advantage of opportunities to enrich your life and your relationships. Develop new hobbies, new friends, healthful exercises, better nutrition, relaxation/meditation and spiritual growth. Support groups can play a part in all this.
- "Putting it all together" . . . change and growth is a long, constant process. Take it one day at a time.
- Be patient and forgiving if you stumble along the way.
- If you slip, you can always start again.

What our clients say ...

A few short months ago the rough draft of my will was ready to go to a lawyer, my refrigerator was emptied of all perishables, and an expensive bottle of champagne was chilling to wash down the bottle of sleeping pills I had set aside. For some reason, though, at the last minute I started grasping for shreds of hope. I knew I needed help and immediately. After being brushed off by several counseling centers I tried FLEC. They immediately set up an appointment for me with someone who was very caring and interested in helping me to help myself. I've also found their medical clinic to be equally helpful. I'm so thankful for the people at FLEC. Without them, especially my counselor, I'm certain I wouldn't be here today.

My association with Center Point goes back to 1979, when I was a confused fourteen-year-old, misunderstood at school, lonely at home, and wondering what direction my life was heading. I made a rather weak attempt at suicide that summer; it was later in the year when I started counseling, mainly because a couple of my friends were going there. I had started drinking and smoking pot the year before, and that began my long, slow decline into alcoholism and general drug abuse.

The medical clinic was a boon then, too, because I was quite sexually active by the time I was 17 and birth control had become a must.

Even as late as this summer, the wonderful staff at Center Point has been there for me. Having admitted my alcohol and drug problem in late May, and then joining Alcoholics Anonymous, my marriage of four years disintegrated. I needed help to sort out my life — my alcoholism, my rather painful separation from my husband and pending divorce, the difficulties in raising my son, and living with my parents again. I simply couldn't handle it on my own. I went through the twelve week

I will be always grateful to everyone at Cen. Point. And I know if I ever need further help ... I will be able to obtain it.

Hi Center Point!
I think of you as "friends" who personally cared when I was hurting so badly. The help you gave to me was always truthful and you really listened to me with all my problems. If it wasn't for your support and personal caring I would not be writing to you today.

I had tried other places for help, but no one seemed to want to listen.

I had tried other places for help, but no one seemed to want to listen.

I'd like you to know I am doing much better, I have purchased the books you mentioned and I am continuing to see my pastor. I thank you all — and hope your continued phone services with others will really help them as you have helped me.

counseling program, and although I still have my problems, I feel that because of those 12 sessions, I am better equipped to cope with them. For that I will be always grateful to everyone at Center Point. And I know if I ever need further help, whether it be personal, medical or legal, I will be able to obtain it at Center Point Crisis Center.

I went through a lot of changes through the past eleven years, and I would like to believe that all of them, good and bad, brought me the great things I have now: sobriety and a better outlook on life. Center Point was, and still is, a part of that.

Time to teach

When my nephew Jason reached the age of 10 and played in his first football season, I thought I was just about finished offering sports equipment and advice.

Now, however, I have my brother-in-law Mark and sister Donna to thank for me having to drag out the old football shoes, baseball gloves, basketballs and tennis rackets.

Mark and Donna gave birth to a baby girl, Jamie Arlene Marie Smith, on Oct. 31, just three days after the South Blue Devils' football team wrapped up a playoff berth, and three days before the start of the NBA basketball season, and eight weeks into the professional football season.

I realize that we can't dictate her life, but since her dad was already predicting she'd run track in the 2008 Olympics I deemed it necessary to predict that Jamie would be a basketball player in the winter and a tennis buff in the fall. When spring rolls around she can take that season off and work on her modeling career. Summers will be filled with chasing boys, driving cars (I think I'm pushing things)...

Whether or not Jamie follows her uncle's brilliant and well thought-out suggestions doesn't matter — as long as she lets me be her agent.

If you take her initials, there's definitely a sports correlation: JAMS. I told you she could hoop it up.

A few months before Jamie was born, Jason (Jamie's "older" brother), was speculating that if the baby were a girl, that when it came time for dating, he'd have to screen Jamie's dates. The poor guy who attempts to date Jamie will also have to go through me, Mark, my brothers and the CIA.

I saw Jamie less than an hour after she entered the world, and I wouldn't have missed her grand entrance. Besides, the Wings weren't playing, the Pistons were off and the World Series was over.

When Jamie was resting in the nursery, my wife Sandy and my other sister, Sue, were gawking at her through the window. At times she became understandably restless, but she was silenced by her new found pacifier: a finger. When she turned her head toward us she smiled — at me, of course!

All kidding aside, Jamie is a beautiful addition to the family. She's healthy and vibrant. And fortunate to have an uncle like me who's cool, can take her to games and oh, did I forget to mention I can babysit, too?
Welcome to the family, Jamie.

Fiddler plays great tune

Much to my delight Oct. 27, I watched the actors and actresses at North display their talents in "Fiddler on the Roof."

I've seen golfers, football players, tennis matches and soccer games since August, and this play was a refreshing and delightful distraction from the ordinary games.

Paige Pelok, Gail Marlow, Scott Nesom, Ed Barbieri, Steve Craparotta and Mike Babel — all athletes for the Norsemen — were seen exhibiting their other talents.

Traditionally, I don't see these athletes dressed in costume. Rather I see them sporting the green and gold, hitting, driving, and beating opponents. The six athletes, turned actors and actresses, weren't the only ones to take part, but again, it was nice to see athletes getting involved with more than just sports.

King crowns Devils in football playoffs

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

Rest assured that the South Blue Devils have a good, solid football team. Also rest assured that Detroit King is a solid football team, but add the words speed and size when you talk about the Crusaders.

Detroit Public School teams traditionally don't fare well in the state football playoffs, but Grosse Pointe South may tell you differently.

In a highly physical and hard-hitting game, the Detroit King Crusaders thrashed and eliminated the Blue Devils from the state playoffs, 41-0, at Lorenzo Wright Field Nov. 4.

King, ranked fifth in the state and still unbeaten (10-0), will play Lake Orion on Nov. 11 in Port Huron. South, the Eastern Michigan League champ, ended the season 8-2.

The Blue Devils entered the game as the No. 4 team in Region IV, and King was No. 1.

South, which hadn't lost since its season opener on Sept. 2, was in serious trouble from the start.

The Blue Devils were averaging 28.6 points per game, but faced a Crusader defense that had given up only 12 points on the season, including eight shutouts in nine games.

The running attack of Mike Montagne and the passing and running threat of quarterback Brian Letscher wasn't any threat at all to King, as the Crusaders held South to only 114 yards of offense.

"We were very ready and prepared to play," said South coach Jon Rice. "We gave it a great effort, but we played a very good high school football team whose caliber of play is entirely different than we're accustomed to."

King thrives on a swarming defense and a three-pronged offense, which features running backs David Bowden, Edward Davis and Larry Davenport. Don't forget quarterback Zolton Hall, who made the option go.

"We tried to play good, strong defense on them and it was tough because they have so many weapons," said Rice. "They executed everything they were taught to do and we had a tough time stopping them."

King rushed for 226 yards and passed for 75.

The Crusaders scored 21 points in each half. Bowden scored three times, Davis had two touchdown runs and Davenport closed out the scoring in the second half.

To start the game, South deferred and elected to kick the ball away. With the wind at its back, King drove 80 yards in 11 plays to open the scoring. King later took a 21-0 halftime lead and extended it to 35-0 at the South lacrosse club looking for a few good players

The Grosse Pointe South lacrosse club will begin its third season next spring, but is looking to fill its roster immediately.

Sign up sheets will be available in the athletic department and other locations in the school beginning Nov. 14.

Players will need to supply their own equipment, which includes shoulder pads, sticks, shoes, gloves, mouth guard, elbow pads, athletic supporter, helmet and rib pads (optional).

There will be a club charge for each player. For further information, call John Auld at 963-0660, or 885-2578.

Lady Devils take 13th place at state cross country meet

Grosse Pointe South completed its cross country season with a 13th-place finish at the state finals Nov. 4.

Twenty-eight teams competed in the meet held at Flint's I.M.A. Brookwood Golf Course.

Four South runners broke the 20-minute mark, including Erika Mondro (20:25), Claudine DuPont (20:26), Kim Apple (20:38) and Debbie Solterisch (20:45).

South's remaining three all broke the 22-minute mark and included Susannah McAndrew (21:46), Amy Balok (21:49) and Emily Burkett (21:59).

Earlier in the week, South competed in the final invitational of the season and ran to a first-place finish.

The 9th-10th grade meet at Center Line saw the Blue Devils compile 35 points. Leading the way were Apple, Mondro, DuPont, Burkett and Balok — all placing in the top 15. Following closely were Katy Neumann, Mary Rowe, Michele Evans, Sandy Dierkes and Heather Cunningham.

The 1989 season marked the 10th consecutive year South has placed in the top 20 in state competition. With their 13th place at the state finals, the Blue Devils became the only Class A school in the state to finish in the top 20 every year during the 1980s.

The boys' team bid farewells to Mark Sonnenberg and Dave Kerfoot at the state finals Nov. 4. Kerfoot and Sonnenberg, South's top runners for years now, will graduate next spring.

Both will leave some impressive credentials behind, as will seniors Marc Palombo, George Vall and Chris Hart.

Sonnenberg has been South's front-runner for three years now, and Kerfoot ran every varsity race for four seasons.

Before the state meet, the Blue Devils won the Center Line Invitational.

Marty Kraft was fifth and Delaine Boon, Erik Lindsay and Joshua Christian all placed in the top 20 of the 9th-10th grade meet.

The star of the day was Dan Quinn, who ran to a 25th-place overall in his fastest time of the year, 18:12.

South's biggest offensive threat came late in the first quarter and at the start of the second quarter, but ended after holding the ball for only three minutes.

"We would open some holes on the offensive line, but they'd swarm to the ball and close them," said Rice. "I've coached for a lot of years and I've never seen a team so quick to get to the ball. As soon as we thought we had a decent hole to get through, they closed it on us."

Letscher, who had passed for 848 yards going in, couldn't afford to stay in the pocket because of King's size. He escaped most of the rush by getting outside, but not all of it.

"With guys at 6-6 and 280 pounds coming at you, we knew we couldn't stay in there (pocket) very long and be productive," said Rice. "So we had worked on getting Brian outside. But again, the difference in the ball game was their size and speed."

Trailing 13-0, South's defense finally stymied the Crusaders and forced a punt, but the Devils nullified their own efforts when they roughed the kicker.

"If that wouldn't have happened, we would have had the ball on our own 40 and the wind at our backs," Rice said. "That was a big play because King eventually scored to go up 21-0."

After getting the ball back before the half, Letscher engineered a short drive that got South to the King 23. But the ironclad King defense sacked Letscher for a 20-yard loss just two plays before forcing another South punt.

The South defense, which was on the field the majority of the day, had one good stint to close the game when it stopped King from scoring from the 1-yard line.

"You don't like to get blown out, but the mystery was taken out of the game very early," said

Rice. "When they scored first, that really didn't concern me. What bothered me was how quickly they did it."

King scored its first touchdown with less than five minutes off the clock.

With an E.M.L. championship, eight straight wins before the King loss, and a playoff berth, the Blue Devils have a lot to look back on.

"The only good thing about this game against King is that there's no second guessing ourselves," said Rice. "We don't have to think of, if we would have done this or if we could have done that. We got beat by a very good football team."

"Our kids will have plenty to look back on," Rice continued. "We accomplished all three of our goals (win at least five ball games, win the league and make the playoffs) and that's what's satisfying. We would have liked to play forever, but we played as well as we could."

The South girls' cross country team took 13th place at the Class A finals Nov. 4. Girls who competed include Erica Mondro, Amy Balok, Susannah McAndrew, Debbie Solterisch, Emily Burkett, Kim Apple and Claudine DuPont.

Knights advance to final four with championship

The University Liggett School boys' varsity soccer team won its fourth straight regional championship Nov. 4, by shutting out Redford Temple Christian, 4-0.

The victory set up a state semifinal showdown on Wednesday, Nov. 8 (after press time) against Detroit Country Day School.

The win also marked the seventh time in the last nine years that ULS has progressed at least as far as the final four in the state Class C-D tournament.

The Knights got the first goal 15 minutes into the game as Doug Wood scored off a pass from Walter Gasser. The goal was Wood's 20th of the season. Four minutes before halftime, Jonah Smith intercepted a pass and scored his 10th goal of the season. ULS added two goals in the second half, one each by Larry Ayuyu on a free kick and Jonathon Davis. Wood also drew an assist on the play.

The Knights outshot Christian, 33-2, en route to recording their 11th shutout of the season, and fifth straight. The Knights have yet to be scored on in tournament play. The defense consists of goalie Paul Lanzon and defenders Larry Ayuyu, Derek VanDeGraaf, James Kim and Richard Berri.

Entering the game at DCDS, ULS was 18-4.

Last week, the ULS girls' basketball team extended its winning streak to four with a pair of wins.

Martina Jerant tossed in 27 points and grabbed 15 rebounds for the Lady Knights in a 45-30 win over Bethesda, and hit for 27 points to go with 14 rebounds in a 58-41 win over Southfield Christian.

In the win over Bethesda, point guard P-R Stark had 12 points. Linda Morreale canned 13 points in the win over Christian.

District play begins Nov. 13 for the Lady Knights.

Red Barons end season on high note

Jim Candela threw for two touchdown passes as the varsity Red Baron football team shutout Northeast Detroit, 27-0, in the season's final game.

Derek Ottavaeren opened the scoring, and then Candela hit Anthony Vitale and Mike Hendrie for touchdown tosses of 68- and 22-yards, respectively. Corey Greer scored the final touchdown and Vitale added the 2-point conversion. Tom Paquin added a 1-point conversion and added an interception on defense. Hendrie also had an interception.

Defensive ends Ben Peters, Corey Greer, Tim Northey and Jon Cugliari stopped Northeast's wide game.

The jayvee Barons tied Northeast Detroit, 6-6.

Vince Thomas and Dan Vormelker connected on a scoring pass for the Barons' only score. Max Prokop had an interception and Mike Huot recovered a fumble.

Hard running from Vince Thomas and Ryan Rouls sparked the offense, and Matt Thibodeau, John Day, Dan Gough and Morgan Mathews provided strong blocking. Good defensive games were turned in by Andy Smith, John Pietz, Chris Campbell, Jimmy Myers and Bobby Kazma.

Norsemen paint town red with White championship

Katie Loehner is a defensive force for the Lady Norsemen hoop team, but she can also score.

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor
Many girls don't want to tryout for the North girls' varsity basketball team because they fear the amount of work involved. Those who stick around, however, become champions.

The Lady Norsemen won their second Macomb Area Conference White Division basketball championship in three years with a 51-37 win over L'Anse Creuse Nov. 2. North, 16-2 overall, is 8-1 in the league, with the final league game to be played Nov. 9 at home against Romeo. That game, however, doesn't mean a thing.

"At the beginning of the season, we thought that the championship may come down to the Romeo game," said Norsemen coach Gary Bennett. "But now it doesn't have any bearing on the standings. I'm very pleased for the girls."

North (16-2 overall) has now won six of eight championships, dating back to the Bi-County days, but this one has a different meaning.

"I think the thing that makes this one more satisfying than the other ones is our work ethic," said Bennett. "The girls are asked to do a lot, and I mean a lot. Ray (assistant coach Ray Ritter) and I supply the girls with the things to do, but they do them. They are responsible for carrying this thing through."

Senior center Kim Reiter, who averages 15 points and 10 rebounds a game, led North in the win over L'Anse Creuse with 15 points, 13 rebounds and five steals. Noelle Cormier canned 12, and senior point guard Melissa Champine had 11 points, six assists and five steals.

"This team has great chemistry," said Bennett. "We knew at the beginning of the season that we were going to need to be mentally tough if we wanted to win the championship, and we have. I didn't really think we had it in us to be mentally tough, but these girls gutted it out and came together."

Bennett will only lose Reiter and Champine next season.

"We've received great leadership from our two seniors," Bennett said. "They are two very important players on this team."

North has survived on its impenetrable defense, which yields just 33 points per game.

"It's just defense and conditioning," Bennett said. "What's got us to this point has been those two things. If we didn't have those two things, we'd be a .500 ball club at best. By no means are we out-scoring them (opponent), we're simply out-working them."

Offensively, North cans an average of 44 points a game, but Bennett feels his team is just now getting untracked offensively.

"We're starting to score in the 50s," he said. "But earlier in the season we weren't really scoring a lot of points. In the game with L'Anse Creuse, we really put together our best effort of the season at both ends of the floor."

In that game, North held a 25-18 halftime lead, but L'Anse Creuse battled back to knot the score at 27-27 near the end of the third quarter. The fourth quarter, however, was all Lady Norsemen.

"We hit a streak there where we couldn't hit our shots," said Bennett. "But all of a sudden it was like a huge explosion and all of the defensive pressure and conditioning just took over. The next score I remembered after 27-27 was 42-27."

North's starting lineup hit all 10 of its shots in the final eight minutes, but against it was the defense that forced L'Anse Creuse into hanging itself.

"We forced six or eight straight turnovers," said Bennett, "and then converted on the other end. L'Anse Creuse's passes weren't as sharp and our girls just stepped in and got the job done. It was only fitting we won the championship that way, because that's how we've been doing it all along."

After hosting Romeo, North will host the district tournament beginning Nov. 13.

"It doesn't matter who we play," said Bennett. "We'd just like to win the district championship." North last did that in 1987; it's first girls district title ever.

The boys' team finished 27th at the state meet, with Scott Collins leading North with an 11th-place finish in the time of 16:09.

Tom Gauerke (17:27), Dave Mea (17:31) and Jim Moore (18:02) finished just behind Collins.

Swimming

The tankers not only performed well as a team by defeating Fraser, 112-59, but swam record-setting and state-qualifying times as well.

Heidi Mader set a new varsity record in the 200 individual medley, and naturally that time qualified her for the state meet, as well.

Karen Ellis flew to a state-qualifying time in the 100 butterfly, and Karen Dundon also qualified for the state meet with a first-place in the 100 breaststroke. Julie Ricci had a personal-best time in the 100 freestyle.

Nikki VanOppens was North's top finisher (13th) at the Class A state cross country finals in Flint.

Workshops on safe weight training Nov. 11

Why is it that some people are terrified to enter the local gym or the weight room at the fitness center?

Almost every magazine you pick up has a fitness article about the important benefits of strength and flexibility, and yet those who need these benefits the most rarely, if ever, set foot in a weight room.

The primary reasons for hesitation appear to be a combination of misconception and lack of education with regard to proper technique and equipment use.

Super Shape, Inc. owned and operated by Grosse Pointe's Kathleen Koerner, is holding monthly workshops on safe weight training principles, beginning Saturday, Nov. 11, at 10 a.m.

The first workshop will focus on the benefits of weight training and its effects on your overall fitness level. There will be plenty of time left to address questions as well as allow participants hands-on experience with the weight equipment. Your questions will direct the topics of future workshops.

Mini sessions at Assumption

Assumption Cultural Center begins its fall fitness mini-sessions Nov. 13, extending through Dec. 22.

Kalosomatics classes for beginners, advanced, moderation or pre-natal/post-partum are available in the six-week session, in addition to co-ed, early bird and Saturday classes.

There will be no fee for the first workshop. However, reservations are required.

Call Super Shape at 772-9470 to reserve your spot.

Nautilus weight room classes are also available. Students can sign up for Nautilus classes only, or a combined Kalo/Nautilus session.

Karate lessons are also being offered in the mini-session at both the peewee and adult levels.

For more information and to register, call 779-6111.

Dedication

The official dedication of the Bon Secours Nautilus Room at Assumption Cultural Center was held Oct. 17, as the hospital's chief operating officer, Henry DeVries, presented a plaque to be displayed in the weight room.

At Detroit Riverview Hospital,

Your Experience Counts.

The best medical facilities demand the best nurses. If you're the kind of nurse who won't settle for anything less than the best, you'll fit in at Detroit Riverview Hospital. We are a progressive, new facility which continues the tradition of serving Detroit citizens established by our predecessor in 1845. We've strived to provide outstanding care and treatment. We need nurses who can help us accomplish that. Could you be one of them?

Your Opinion Counts.

We want nurses who want to contribute. We want you for your skills. We need nurses who ask why — people with better ways of doing things and new ideas that deserve to be heard. We need nurses who can make a difference in the treatment of their patients.

And You Count.

Where you fit in is choice, not chance. You can choose your field of expertise at Detroit Riverview Hospital: Become involved in the health care services offered to medical and surgical patients or our busy obstetrics department. Our open and closed chemical dependency treatment program offers a challenge to caring professionals. And because Detroit Riverview Hospital is part of the Detroit-Macomb Hospital Corporation, there are more opportunities for advancement and transfer. No matter what you're looking for, make your choice Detroit Riverview Hospital, and make your career count.

The Missing LINC
Living Individuals in Need in the Community

LINC is a non-profit organization whose purpose is to place goods no longer needed by individuals and businesses into the hands of metropolitan Detroit charitable agencies. If you have any items no longer of use to you, Operation LINC knows who can and will use them. Please call LINC at 882-6100.

"Isn't that cute!" You've just seen the cutest toy and you'd love to give it to someone — but WHO?! John's too old. It's not quite right for Sue. Get it anyway! LINC is starting to collect SMALL NEW TOYS for their Holiday Gift and Toy Chest Program and would be delighted to reap the benefits of your shopping urges.

Support the arts. The Michigan Dance Association, a program focused on the advancement of dance, is in need of an IBM compatible computer, office furniture and an air-conditioned.

Do you have a BABY CRIB but your "baby" isn't a baby anymore? If that crib is less than 10 years old it meets the new legislative requirements and several organizations know of babies who could use a good night's sleep. American Indian Services, Inc. is also looking for other pieces of INFANT FURNITURE.

Freedom Center is a group that helps provide furniture to families in need and they need help from you. DINING TABLES and CHAIRS, BEDROOM FURNITURE, SOFAS and LIVING ROOM PIECES that are clean and in NO need of repair or upholstery could make someone's house more of a home.

Groups which give much helpful service to people in our metro community are always in great need of OFFICE EQUIPMENT, FURNITURE and SUPPLIES. Computers, typewriters, desks, filing units, copy machines and paper supplies are a sample of the requests made by a majority of these charitable organizations. If you have something that is CLEAN, USABLE and in WORKING CONDITION but you aren't using it — think of LINC and KEEP IT MOVING!

COCO

Coco is a mixed Terrier, female about 7 months of age. She is partly housebroken and hungry for affection. Coco is available for adoption at Michigan Humane Society Central Shelter at 7401 Chrysler Drive, Detroit 48211 or call 872-3400. Adoption hours are 10:00 a.m. - 4:30 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday.

MICHIGAN HUMANE SOCIETY

The Michigan Humane Society is dedicated to protecting and working for the rights of animals. We offer the following services:

- Adoption • Animal Rescue
- Cruelty Investigation • Education
- Pet Therapy • Veterinary Services
- Wildlife Rehabilitation • Legislation

and
Shelters and cares for over 40,000 dogs, cats and wild animals annually

People plus Pets

Medical experts say people with pets are less likely to suffer from stress-related diseases than people who live without the healthy companionship of a loving animal. These findings come as no surprise to pet owners. They know how much a good friend adds to their lives. So give yourself some of the best medicine available. Bring a dog or cat home, and enjoy your new pet in good health.

A Mercedes 420SEL is about $60,000.
A BMW 735i is over $55,000.
A Jaguar XJ6, under $45,000.

The best value in luxury is a beautiful example of dollars and sense.

If the above price-comparison* surprises you, you're not alone. Many people assume the Jaguar XJ6 costs considerably more than it does. And no wonder.

The XJ6 is distinctively elegant, achieving contemporary aerodynamic efficiency, while reflecting the classic character of its celebrated ancestors.

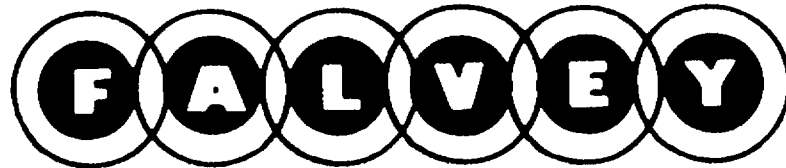

Inside, the XJ6 is spacious and serene. The cabin is rich in the Old World splendor of polished wood and supple leather. The XJ6 also has impeccable performance credentials. Its double overhead cam engine incorporates the added sophistication of four valves per cylinder for enhanced power and high speed responsiveness. Its four-wheel power disc brakes are complemented by one of the most advanced anti-lock (ABS) braking systems.

We invite you to test drive the Jaguar XJ6. We think you'll agree: it's a beautiful example of dollars and sense.

*Based on the above price-comparison. Excludes taxes, license, title, and other available options. Dealer price is subject to change without notice.
