Farms man opens school, orphanage in Uganda

Staff Writer When Grosse Pointe Farms resident Mike Timmis graduated from Marquette University, he had every intention of entering law school in the fall. He had already taken his entrance exams.

But his mother, Nancy, doubts that he will ever attend law school. And that's just fine with Mike Timmis wanted to help

"He came to me and he said 'Mom, I really think God has blessed me and I want to share those blessings," she said. "I had no idea he was even think-

The Timmis family had a friend who was working to feed the poor in Mozambique, and said Mozambique is too dangerous, caught in the midst of civil war. Uganda, the friend said, is safer, having just ended 16 years of a bloody civil war led by sadistic dictators Idi Amin and Milton Obote. And it was in need of people to get the country back on its

A native of Muncie, Ind., Droll, 58, moved to Grosse Pointe after marrying a local man in 1952. In 1971 that marriage came to an end, and Droll, then 40 years old, found herself on her own and having to support four daughters.

Except for the first six months of her marriage, Droll had become what most of her generation was: a mother and homemaker. After nearly two decades at home, she had to enter the job market.

What started as a job search out of necessity turned into a successful career. Within 10 years of getting her first job, she was listed in "Who's Who in America." And another year of independence saw her working in the White House for the Reagan Administration. Today she's an executive with ANR Pipeline Co., owners of the 500 and 600 Towers at the RenCen.

In fact, as director of communications, Droll's office is on the 14th floor of the 500 Tower and she has a panoramic view of downtown and a glimpse of the Detroit River.

She said she hopes her story will help other women who are entering the work force or women who are trying to decide whether to start a family now or

Her choice of majors was a small scandal with her family, she said. Her generation attended college to learn the social graces, she explained. Majoring in journalism and theater was akin to "swinging a purse on Woodward," she said, at least in her parents' point of view. Later, however, the journalism instruction and experience as an occasional free-lance writer would launch her career.

Following the divorce, she began her job search and wrote a letter to the publisher of The Detroit News. She said she knew so little about looking for a job, she didn't realize you weren't supposed to send a resume directly to the publisher.

Veterans in the City bumped from council

By John Minnis

Assistant Editor Two veteran Grosse Pointe City councilmen with a combined 28 years of service to the city were ousted by voters last week in preference for two younger candidates running in their first election for office.

Councilwoman Myrna Smith. who is halfway into her first term, failed in her bid to unseat incumbent Mayor Lorenzo "Red" Browning, who faced his first challenge for the top city post since he was appointed in 1983.

More than half of all registered Grosse Pointe City voters turned out in the local election Nov. 7. The 50.4 percent voter turnout was the third highest in a local election in the city and is comparable to the turnout in high visibility state elections.

Eighteen-year Councilman Robert L. Nugent and 10-year Councilman William N. Montgomery were defeated by newcomers Peter W. Waldmeir and Lisa R. Bradley.

The vote tallies for mayor were Browning, 1,255; Smith, 934. The council vote totals were Waldmeir, 1,355; Dale N. Scrace, 1,232; Bradley, 1,077; Montgomery, 1,065; and Nugent, 829.

Mayor Browning and the council members-elect Waldmeir, Scrace and Bradley will be sworn in at the City Council's regular meeting Nov. 13. The mayor's position is a two-year term, and the council members serve four-year terms.

Concerning his defea young people with families turned out to vote on the school issues and continued their voting by going with the younger candidates on the council. His absence will be felt by the City and other Pointes due to his 18-year involvement with the Grosse Pointe-Clinton Disposal Authority, of which he has been chair-

Montgomery, 67, who was narrowly defeated by Bradley, 31, by a mere 12 votes, said he had no comment and nothing to add to the voters' decision.

The third incumbent, Scrace, was put back in office in his first election for the job. He was appointed to fill the vacancy on the council by the resignation of M. Jackson Morris in June.

Scrace, 42, said he was very pleased to be returned to the council and he welcomes the two new members coming on board, but he is saddened by the loss of two veteran members. "The city is losing quite a bit of experience and involvement," he said.

The top vote-getter in the city was Waldmeir, 36, son of The Detroit News columnist. Waldmeir received 1,355 votes, more than Browning's 1,255 mayoral votes. Waldmeir said he did not know why he was the top vote-getter - although knocking on 1,300 doors and signing 2,500 leaflets had to help.

As top vote-getter, Waldmeir said he was both gratified and humbled by the community's election, Nugent, 65, said many confidence in him. He added, though, that he hopes city government veterans Montgomery and Nugent will continue to be involved in the community. "I think the community owes a large debt of gratitude for their collective 29 years of service to Grosse Pointe," Waldmeir

Danaher provides a surprise in the Farms general election

By Dan Jarvis Staff Writer

There was only one surprise in last week's election in Grosse Pointe Farms - John Danaher.

As a challenger seeking his first public office, Danaher not only became a Farms councilman his first time out, but he earned more votes than any of the incumbents.

Danaher topped the voting tally on the council with 2,772 votes, 260 more than the next candidate, John Crowley, who received 2,512 votes.

Danaher, 37, is a lifelong resident of the Pointes. He earned a bachelor's degree from Bowdoin College in Maine and a management certificate from Yale Uni-

At Monday's meeting of the Farms City Council, Danaher was sworn in before a packed house as he and three other members of the council took the oath of duty

Also sworn in were Crowley, Gail Kaess and Mayor Joseph Fromm.

Kaess trailed Crowley in the vote tally with a total of 2,433 votes. Fromm, who received the least number of votes on the council, was again elected mayor in a unanimous vote by the other council members.

Fromm received 2,226 votes in the general election and earned a two-year term on the council. Fromm's mayoral term is also two-years and earns $900 per year. All others on the council serve four-year terms.

Though Councilman Harry Echlin has two years left in his current term, his term as mayor pro-tem has expired. Echlin was again elected mayor pro-tem in a unanimous council vote at the meeting. The mayor pro-tem receives a two-year term and earns the same amount as a council-

Each councilman receives $600 annually for the position.

At Monday's council meeting the city's board of canvassers reported that all votes from the general election were certified, including the judicial election and charter amendments.

Both charter amendments, regarding the city's pension plans, were strongly approved by vot-

Richard Solak, city clerk, said the items were amended to give the council the authority to bring the provisions in line with recent state and federal regulations. He said the items as stated in the charter before the election were out of date. The approval by residents will allow the council to update the pension plans as needed in the future.

Solak added that the individ-

The judicial race did not yield any surprises. Incumbent Matthew Rumora won over challenger Paul Gracey by more than a 3-1 ratio. Rumora received 2,833 votes while Gracey received 805.

Gracey said he was disappointed by the low number of votes he received. Two things were working against him, he said - first, the amount of publicity generated because of charges that his wife, Irene, illegally handled absentee ballots during the judicial primary campaign and second, he said, was the abbreviated amount of time to campaign.

Gracey had just 10 days to generate support for his judicial campaign following the certification of votes from the Aug. 8 primary by the state Board of Can-

Predictably, Rumora said he is satisfied with the results. But since the actual number of votes for both candidates in the general election ran close to the primary, Rumora is not surprised by the voting ratio. "I'm more surprised with the high voter turnout in the Farms," he said. Rumora attributed the high turnout to the city's two proposed charter amendments attracting a high number of voters. Regarding his current fouryear term, Rumora said, "I appreciate the support from residents and I'm looking forward to serving to the best of my abili-

Frank remains Park judge; Heenan keeps mayor's seat

Assistant Editor Grosse Pointe Park Municipal Judge Kirsten Frank was comfortably returned to the judicial bench Nov. 7 by voters who had to choose between the incumbent and former Judge Beverly C.

Also in the Park election, incumbent Mayor Palmer T. Heenan easily defeated challenger Dutch Hendricks for the top city post. Incumbent Councilman James E. Robson Jr. won re-election as the top vote-getter in the council race, and newcomers Valerie Moran and Barbara Leonard Miller beat out three other challengers to win the two vacant council seats available.

The mayor and council members went right to work at their first regular meeting Monday night after they were sworn into office by Judge Frank.

He said he was gratified to have been re-elected by the voters for his second term. While the council has accomplished much for the city, Robson warned that the council cannot rest on its laurels.

Former Councilman Mark Valente III resigned from the council in August after accepting a position with the federal government in Washington, D.C. Councilwoman Carroll F. Evola attended her last council meeting last month after serving two terms on the council. She decided it was time to move on to do other things and did not file to run for re-election.

With two seats open without incumbents, a wide array of qualified candidates stepped forward. Getting the nod from voters, though, were Moran and Miller.

Moran, a part-time educator and active volunteer with the school district, won in her first attempt for City Council. She credits her victory to hard work and leaving nothing to chance.

"I'm delighted," she said. "We worked very hard. I'm glad it turned out this way.'

Woods voters re-elect incumbents; approve charter amendments

By Dan Jarvis Staff Writer

Although voters in Grosse Pointe Woods were not looking for a change in the City Council. they did approve four amendments to the city's charter.

Shortly after the polls closed. the numbers began to roll in, and council challenger James A. Alogdelis seemed to be pulling ahead of the incumbents, according to Chester Petersen, city administrator.

But as the night wore on and all votes from the city's 12 precincts were combined with 2,216 absentee votes, it became clear that Alogdelis, who claimed strong support, was beaten out by incumbents Thomas Fahrner. William Wilson and the council's top vote-getter, Jean Rice.

Alogdelis, who received 3,269 votes, trailed Wilson by just 181 votes. As a challenger in a city which traditionally favors the incumbents, many were surprised by the strong support he generated.

Alogdelis said one of the reasons was due to hard work.

"I got out and knocked on a lot of doors," Alogdelis said.
"Plus I had a lot of good people volunteering their time. As a former social studies teacher, I

He added that he is also considering running in the next election for Woods council.

In a 4-1 approval ratio, Charter Amendment Proposal 1 received the thumbs up up by voters. The amendment states if a city administrator is not a resident of the city at the time of his appointment, he must become a resident within one year and must remain a resident throughout his tenure of office.

Formerly, the charter required that any purchase or contract over $1,000 required council approval. Petersen said in the 1950s, when the charter was approved, $1,000 went a lot further than it does today.

The proposal was put on the ballot to keep pace with the inflation rate and to free the council for more important matters.

Pointes offer surprises in local elections long with some other communities, the Grosse Pointes offered some surprises of their own in the Nov. 7 municipal elections.

Perhaps the most surprising developments occurred in the City where two young candidates running for office for the first time upset two veteran council members, Robert L. Nugent and William N. Montgomery.

The victors were Lisa R. Bradley and Peter W. Waldmeir who attributed their success to their door-to-door visits and other campaigning tactics that obviously appealed to the voters. Both discussed positive campaign themes including improved communication, better accountability and more responsiveness to the public's probfirst attempt at public office also were elected to the council to fill vacancies left by recent retirements. Barbara Leonard Miller and Valerie Moran put on extensive door-to-door campaigns and supported continuation of improvement programs in the Name recognition also may have benefited Ms. Miller, the daughter of Donald S. Leonard, a prominent judge and state political leader, just as it may have helped Waldmeir, whose father, the columnist for The Detroit News, also lives in the Pointes but not in his son's City.

In the Farms, the surprise was the strong race made by newcomer John E. Danaher III who led the three incumbents who also were elected to the council. Joseph L. Fromm, the veteran mayor and councilman, ran fourth and won only the two-year term.

As often happens in the Pointes, however, it was a good election overall for incumbents. All three mayors facing the voters were re-elected, two incumbent judges also were returned to office and eight incumbent members of the councils in the Woods, Farms, Park and City kept their jobs.

Mayor Palmer Heenan easily won a third term over Dutch Hendricks in the Park, veteran Mayor Lorenzo D. Browning was returned in the City with a hardfought victory over council member Myrna Smith and Mayor George S. Freeman had no opposition in the Woods. Municipal Judges Matthew R. Rumora of the Farms and Kirsten Frank of the Park also won easily over their challengers.

In turnout, the Farms led the Pointes with 52 percent of the registered voters casting their ballots, apparently attracted by the contests for four council seats. The City was close behind in voting percentage, 50.4, and the Woods reported a 43.8 percent turnout. Despite contests for mayor, judge and council, the Park trailed with a 36 percent vote.

Those percentages were well below the figures recorded in presidential election years in the Pointes, but still were well above the totals counted in recent munici-

For the most part, the Pointes avoided the meanness of political campaigns in some other communities, although examples of exaggerated claims and unsupported charges were still being debated by the losers and their friends in election post-mortems.

By and large, however, the Pointes benefited from the discussions of issues and problems that developed during the election campaigns. Those discussions should lead to better informed officials and residents as the Pointe communities face important decisions in the future.

View from The Sidelines

by Wilbur Elston

orty two years ago this month on my first trip to Berlin, I saw a war-ravaged capital city that I predicted would take generations to rebuild.

Just nine years later, on a second trip to Berlin, I found how mistaken I had been in 1947. I saw a West Berlin that already had regained much of its economic life, had taken giant strides in rebuilding and had removed most of the wreckage and debris that World War II had left in its True, on both of those visits an observer could quickly tell the difference between life in the Western zones occupied by the United States, Britain and France and the Eastern zone held by the Soviet Union.

Even in 1947, the division of the city between communism and capitalism had already occurred although neither East Berlin nor West Berlin was thriving in that third post-war winter. Hundreds of thousands of people were homeless and hungry in the Western as well as the Eastern sectors. Economic activity was almost at a standstill.

By 1956, however, West Berlin was a sea of bright lights that reflected the revival of economic activity and a lively night life. East Berlin, in contrast, was still dull, drab and economically dead.

On a third visit to Berlin in 1962, I saw for the first time the hated wall that had been built a year earlier to reduce East Germany's "brain drain" to the West. Interviewing a number of East Germans who, by one means or another, had fled from their homeland to seek new lives in the West, I found that invariably their purpose was the same: to get a chance at a better economic life for themselves and their children. Even then, those who were "voting with their feet" by fleeing to the West were unhappy and dissatisfied with their lack of economic opportunities in the East. If that was their major motivation in risking their lives to get over or around the wall, their second motive was their desire for political freedom.

And now, 28 years after the wall was erected, it is suddenly full of holes. East and West Berliners are staging an informal week-long celebration, much of it on top of the barrier that separated the city and the two nations for so long.

What is astonishing is that so many of the East Berliners "voting with their feet" for permanent residence in the West are young people. Even though they had never known any other form of government than the dictatorship imposed from Moscow and had been indoctrinated in communism's supposed benefits by its schools and media, they wanted out.

From television and other contacts, they had learned about the kind of life and the opportunities the West offered them. They wanted a chance for themselves and their children that was not available behind the Iron Curtain and the wall that it represented.

Suddenly the Soviet empire is breaking up before our very eyes. Every day the television cameras offer new evidence of what is happening in the Baltic states, Poland, Hungary and East Germany and even inside the Soviet Union itself as the people press for political freedom and more economic opportunities.

Gorbachev's perestroika and glasnost may not have been intended to encourage the many new political developments in Eastern Europe, but he is no doubt learning that, to paraphrase the poet's line, "a little freedom is a dangerous thing," especially for totalitarian governments.

than anger More in sorrow

Te reacted more in sorrow than in anger to the election day offering Y by a Detroit News columnist that was headed "A late campaign for voting more responsibly.

We were disappointed that the columnist, a resident of the Pointes, seemed to be making a different argument than the one indicated by the headline on her column.

She wrote that she "probably knows more about the Detroit mayoral candidates than about any candidate running for any office" in her own community but would vote for local officials, "thus swelling the ranks of the uninformed electorate which has made this country great." And then she added:

"I probably pay more attention than the average voter to candidates and issued

I will be wondering who and what I am voting for, and why. There will be few answers beyond an educated guess, a hope and hunch that I'm doing the right thing. I am ill-equipped to do my civic duty but know if I abstain from the voting altogether some ding-dong who knows even less than I know will be making a decision for both of us."

True, if the columnist read only her own paper, she wouldn't have learned much about the Grosse Pointe elections. But we remind her the Grosse Pointe News did offor news stories and editorials on each of the 30 candidates for public office that were interviewed, including all the candidates in her own community.

In fact, in the weeks preceding the election the News published about 500 column inches of pictures and information about the candidates in the news columns. Adding in the headlines, the space would amount to more than four pages of information.

It is true that the Pointes serve as a bedroom community for many people who work elsewhere in the Detroit metropolitan area, that some are not always interested in what happens here and that some seldom vote. But that didn't appear to be what the columnist was complaining

Instead, she wrote that she thought most voters were a lot like she is and vote on instinct and nunch, meager information and hope." To her credit, she did deplore that kind of preparation for voting and said she'd do better next time if her readers would.

But we think the high proportion of Pointe voters in the municipal elections was a result, in large part, of the availability of campaign literature, the door-to-door canvassing by candidates and the amount of information in the stories and editorials in the Grosse Pointe News.

We recommend that the columnist seek out those sources of information when she prepares herself for voting in a future municipal election in the Pointes.

Soccer

To the Editor:

We marked the end of another successful soccer season at the Neighborhood Club. What constitutes that success? Is it the number of goals scored or the number of victories listed under the winner's column?

No, not at all. Although winning is an important aspect of any sport, it's not the top priority in Neighborhood Club leagues.

During the past eight weeks, more than 700 young people participated on one of 54 teams. Besides being instructed in the basics of the game, they learned that success is not limited to the winner's circle.

Being a part of a group effort in which no one person is more important than another, and where everyone has something to contribute is a lesson they will carry into whatever they do. Appreciating each other's talents and differences helps instill a sense of mutual respect.

And, of course, good sportsmanship is a value that can never receive too much reinforcement.

Setting the example and helping carry out the Neighborhood Club philosophy of providing positive leisure time activities for young people, were more than 100 volunteer coaches. Mothers, fathers, older brothers and sisters all showed their care and support in the countless hours they spent guiding their teams. Special thanks to all of you. What you've given our children is beyond price. The success of this year's season wasn't found on a statistics sheet. It was written in the smiles of the players as each received their trophy and team picture. Congratulations to all of you. Every one of you is a winner.

Congrats!

To the Editor:

We would like to congratulate the 1989 University of Detroit Jesuit High School and Academy varsity football team for its winning 7-2 season, and commend four outstanding young men for their contributions to the team's success.

Senior co-captain Michael Bucciero of the Woods, senior Brendan Henry of the Farms, junior George Petersmarck of the Park, and junior Jed Maliszewski of the Woods played with dedication and enthusiasm throughout the season.

With little fanfare they sustained their commitment and helped their school to its second consecutive Catholic Double A Division Champi onship (shared this year with Southgate Aquinas) and a Prep Bowl appearance at the Pontiac Silverdome, Oct. 29.

As parents and friends of University of Detroit Jesuit, we thank them for providing us with many exciting moments this fall.

Congratulations again for your great season. Go Cubs! Susan and George

With a feeling of dread, I asked what "punctuation by intonation" meant, though I had an idea of what it was.

A few years ago I had a reporter working for me whose writing infuriated me. It wasn't so much her writing as it was her commas. Her stories appeared as if she would write them and then stand back with a handful of commas and throw them at the text, letting them land where they may. There was simply no pattern, no reason to her comma placement.

One day I called her over to the computer terminal and asked her why a specific comma in her story. She gave me a ply. blank stare. I asked again, "Why did you place this comma here?" She thought about it and said,

When the well-meaning educator told me about "punctuation by intonation," the memory of the encounter with the reporter years ago came flooding back. Perhaps she was taught to punctuate by talking through her sentences in the same way one

Of course, spelling words by Because the reporter was a sounding them out doesn't necessarily mean they're spelled correctly. The only way to be sure is to look the words up in the dictionary. Likewise, "punctuation by intonation" doesn't necessarily mean the punctuation is correct. The only way to know for sure is to know the rules of punctuation.

The intonation approach to learning punctuation may help students get their commas in the right place most of the time, but let's not forget to teach the rules along the way.

Bright and beautiful

Three of the 34 winners of Detroit Edison's 17th annual Bright and Beautiful Block Club contest were from Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods.

First place winners for individual homes were Bonnie Zahon of Harper Woods and Don Kipka of Grosse Pointe Park.

The Wayburn-Maryland-Lakepointe-Beaconsfield block club in Grosse Pointe Park, organized by Jeff Mueller and Jim Madell, also won in the East Side Suburban division of the contest.

Judging took place this summer and involved the general appearance of property, including buildings, lawns, gardens, fences and garages as well as the cleanliness of streets, alleys and sidewalks and the use of security lighting.

The contest is sponsored by GRANDetroit, a combined effort of the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce and Detroit Edison.

Thank you

To the Editor:

I would like to express my thanks and appreciation to the voters of Grosse Pointe City who turned out in such great numbers in the rain and cold. This was the greatest turnout of voters for a city election in over 20 years.

I am indeed, proud to be re-elected mayor of this wonderful community. It is my feeling that we have long enjoyed the best in city services. With help and support particularly from our City Council and also from our city manager and staff, we will be able to continue to enjoy those services at the least possible cost. Together, we can plan and work for our community's future. I again thank you for the support and confidence you have shown in re-electing me as mayor.

Good luck

To the Editor:

First, I wish to congratulate all the candidates throughout the Pointes who ran in last week's election. Special congratulations to those who succeeded in winning the position they sought.

As with every election there are different issues addressed and campaign promises made by the candidates. This year, I believe all the issues brought to the forefront were most important; not only for the viability of our community's future but also for the well-being of the citizens.

Now that election day has come and gone and those elected are in their respective seats, all the issues should again be addressed and campaign promises kept.

Serving your community while also trying to appease all the citizens' wants and needs is a difficult task to say the least. But, at the same time very when you succeed.

I have confidence in all of you. Good luck!

Mystery To the Editor:

It is my hope that you may find this story of sufficient interest for publication. It it does appear, perhaps there may be some reader who can shed a little light upon what remains a mystery to those involved. On the weekend of Oct. 7, a good friend discovered a small fox terrier-type dog behind a fence at the rear of her house in the first block south of Jefferson on Whittier.

The little animal was in a pitiful condition. She still retained sutures from having been spayed and also had a severe burn on the inside of her legs.

My friend took her to her veterinarian where she received treatment for over a week. An ad was placed in the Grosse Pointe News on Oct. 12. The little dog was returned to the home of her finder where every effort was made to restore her to Whether "lost" or "abandoned," her condition was so poor, her emaciation and frailty so advanced, that despite her movingly gallant effort to survive, she died in her sleep on the morning of Nov. 6.

How did this frail and beautiful little creature come to such an end? No response was ever made to the ad. No previous or subsequent ad describing her "loss" found its way into your paper.

Many of us are still very sad at her passing and the trauma she obviously en-

Senior power

To the Editor:

We are very pleased and gratified that after months of bitter protests and angry outcries by millions of seniors all across the country, the Medicare Catastrophic Coverage "seniors only" much-hated, controversial surtax which American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) supported and influenced was repealed by the U.S. Congress.

Even Senator Don Riegle caved in - finally! We wish to commend them for their new and progressive thinking. It is the first time in history a federal law was repealed in less than a year after it went into effect. A vivid demonstration of what "senior power" can do when sufficiently aroused and intimidated by insensitive action. Thus ends a travesty of discrimination.

This "old age punishment law" was badly crafted and flawed from the beginning. Repair is not the complete answer. It's time we put this long and bitter national debate to an end and adopt a national health plan. Everyone - the young, the elderly, the poor, the rich - all need affordable, quality health care on an equal basis, and we all pay our fair share.

We are the only industrial nation in the world that does not have a national health plan and that is a national disgrace. People are our most important resource. Without strong, healthy, vigorous people who are well educated, we will never regain our world leadership.

I'm proud of our group's role in influencing change on this issue. Even though we are small in number, we were highly motivated to fight this outrageous law. During the past year we have sent thousands of petitions to President Bush and 18 federal legislators representing southeast Michigan and AARP who all supported this grossly unfair law. In addition, we have mailed hundreds of letters, made thousands of phone calls, and attended hundreds of meetings wherever seniors gathered to a successful conclusion.

Now I wish to respond to the media and some politicians who constantly complained that this revolt was led by the well-healed, affluent seniors. Not so - the rich cared less.

The law was capped at $800 maximum for single persons and $1,600 maximum for couples in 1989, and only 1 percent or so paid that, so the true rich got a break. In addition, many of them had their funds wellsheltered in order to have little or no tax liability. It took only $1,000 in taxable liability to trigger the surtax. That's hardly well-healed; that's below the poverty level. It was led by seniors whose hard-earned security was threatened - hardworking, low to middle class seniors who scrimped and saved to raise families and in their autumn years not be a burden on the government or our families.

Now we are being discriminated against and severely penalized by this outrageous 'old age punishment law.' Then there are those who said this revolt would hurt the poor and disadvantaged.

Again, not so. They have Medicaid and can get just as good medical attention that we get under Medicare and they don't pay anything. In addition, they can get longterm nursing home care at no cost which we must pay at least $2,500 per month until impoverished. Also provided are dental, eye glasses, hearing aid and chiropractic services but Medicare does not.

We are insensitive to the poor and disadvantaged but please tell me why the "seniors only" are singled out to pay the surtax for them. We always believed it is the responsibility and the American way for all taxpayers to support the poor and disadvantaged like all other social programs. This law unfortunately was badly misunderstood by many.

In closing, I wish to thank the thousands who signed our petitions, mailed letters, made donations to the cause, invited us into their meeting halls and those who sent letters and phone calls of encouragement and enriched our lives. Without all of your help and cooperation there would not be any petition

School board forms library committee

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe school board approved the formation of a library advisory committee Monday night whose duty would be to make recommendations to the board for the development of library services.

The board had discussed forming the advisory committee for a few months, but confusion about what its duties would be and where it would fit into the hierarchy of the school system caused the vote to be delayed.

According to a memo given to the board by library Director Charles Hanson, the advisory commission will be charged with: reviewing short- and longrange planning, • preparing an annual report on the state of public libraries for the board of education.

• promoting public library services through public relations.

The five-member board will also meet with Hanson to review the library's plans, progress and problems, and to continue strategic planning.

The state suggests the board consist of one school board member, one school administrator, one trustee from the Friends of the Library board and two community members at large.

The new committee differs from the Friends of the Library because the Friends is a library support group which supplements library programs with funding, materials, equipment and volunteers. The Friends does not make policy, but gives opinions to the board and supports the board's decisions. The Friends also is a connecting link between the library and the com-

Another committee serving the library is the Program Advisory Committee, or PAC, which was created for the purpose of site budgeting. That committee's focus is to prepare a budget for the library. It is made up primarily of library staff members with some representation from the Friends of the Library and from residents.

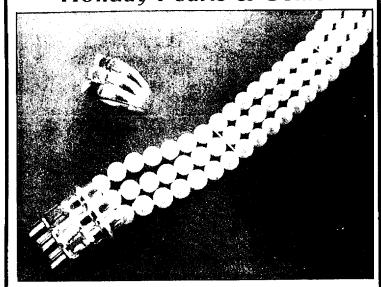

Hanson said one member from the new board will serve on the site budgeting committee to monitor and report on budget activities.

Trustee Jane Nutter, who called the new committee an unnecessary layer between the board and the libraries, cast the only no vote. "The library is in a transitional period. If there ever was a time for this board, it's now," Trustee Carol Marr said. The committee was formed to

Political campaign signs sprout on City lawns

By John Minnis Assistant Editor

Something sprung up on lawns in Grosse Pointe City this past political campaign season that some people would have liked pulled: campaign signs.

Richard Hinks, who has been city attorney for 28 years, said this past local election is the first he can recall in which council candidates used political

City Hall received numerous complaints when political campaign signs appeared on lawns Nov. 7 election, according to City Manager Thomas Kressbach, who said the city has a general sign ordinance that covers all signs and banners but does not give special consideration for political signs.

has long been protected by the courts as protected speech under the First Amendment. Bans of such signs have been consistently struck down as unconstitutional, according to the American Civil Liberties Union.

In the past, the candidates have agreed among themselves in Grosse Pointe City not to put up campaign signs, which some people think are eyesores. Presumably the gentleman's agreement over signs have not been too much of a problem in the city because few local elections have had challengers.

This past election season, however, saw two challengers for City Council and a challenger for mayor. While mayoral challenger Councilwoman Myrna Smith and incumbent Mayor Lorenzo "Red" Browning decided not to put up political signs, the two challengers for council decided otherwise.

Peter W. Waldmeir and Lisa throughout the city prior to the R. Bradley both used political signs in their first attempt at office, and both challengers unseated veteran incumbent councilmen. Robert Nugent, 18 years on the council, and William Montgomery, 10 years on the council, did not use political

Bush names Rosen for judgeship

Gerald E. Rosen

Grosse Pointe lawyer Gerald E. Rosen was nominated by President George Bush last week for U.S. District judge in Detroit. Bush's Nov. 9 appointment now goes before the Senate for confirmation. Rosen, 38, is a senior partner with the law firm Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone, where he has been employed for 10 years. He has lived in Grosse Pointe for two years. Bush's nomination followed an extensive background investigation by the FBI and the American Bar Association. The vacant federal bench was caused by the death of Chief Judge Philip Pratt in February.

The federal judgeship is a lifetime appointment with a salary of $89,500.

an ordinance covering "all signs and banners," there is no reference in the ordinance to political signs. Real estate and builder's signs are permissible temporary signs and do not require permits to put up, but no such allowance is made for political signs.

"We've never faced the situation with signs until this year," Kressbach said.

Because political signs are not listed as exceptions under the existing sign ordinance, they technically must be treated as any other sign under the ordinance, Kressbach said.

Under the strict interpretation of the city's sign ordinance, a political campaigner must first fill out an application for a sign permit and pay $10 for each sign to be put up. The applications must be accompanied by plans, drawings and specifications of each sign's location and construction. Possibly the homeowner on whose lawn the sign is being put up may have to go through the application process or else sign some type of permission form.

Howard Simon, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union of Michigan, said the burden of having to get a permit for political signs and the fee of $10 per sign are excessive restrictions on free political speech and would never stand up in court.

"I don't think people should have to pay fees to exercise their civil rights," he said. "Free speech shouldn't have to cost you $10 a shot."

Nationally, the ACLU has handled many political speech cases and locally the ACLU has successfully handled political sign cases in Oak Park and the city of Wayne, to name a couple of recent examples.

Simon said the courts have upheld reasonable restrictions on political campaign signs, such as size so that they don't impede

While Grosse Pointe City has traffic or pose a danger, but having to get a permit and paying fees are excessive. He urged city officials to sit down with civil rights attorneys before adopting any type of sign ordinance that violates the U.S. Constitution.

Kressbach said that after he received complaints about political signs this year, he discussed the matter with city attorney Hinks, and the city decided not to take any action concerning the political signs at this time due to questions of constitutiona-

Councilman-elect Waldmeir, however, said that when he filed for election in October, he was originally told by a city employee that political signs were illegal in the city. When he insisted on seeing the ordinance, the city employee then said the political signs weren't illegal, just discouraged, Waldmeir said.

Kressbach said there is no policy at City Hall requiring employees to tell candidates that political signs are illegal or discouraged. He indicated that employee may have misspoke because the question of political signs is a "new phenomena" in the city.

He said the regulation of campaign signs in the city is something the City Council should address.

Currently, the Shores and the City are the only two communities in the Pointes that do not have provisions in their sign ordinances for political signs.

The Park's sign ordinance does not restrict the size of political signs, put it does state that such signs have to be removed within two days after the election. If the signs are not down in time, the Park charges the candidate $5 a sign for removal. Also, as is the case in all the Pointes, campaign signs cannot be put on public property.

Shores Public Safety Chief Daniel Healy said the Shores allows political signs as long as they're on private property and do not create a nuisance.

Kressbach said the city of Huntington Woods hands out letters to candidates stating that while political signs are protected speech, they are discouraged due to aesthetic concerns. He said Huntington Woods' system works fine as long as all the candidates abide by it, but it only takes one candidate using signs to force the other candi-

Hinks favors the existing signs ordinance, but he has reservations about charging candidates a fee for exercising their rights. He said it is reasonable for candidates to have to get a sign permit, otherwise people would be going around the city putting up signs that the city didn't know about.

He said he was leery about adding another ordinance to the books just to cover political signs. In the meantime, he said, the city will be liberal in its attitude toward political signs.

"I for one don't want to limit anyone in their campaigning," he said.

She then went to an ad agency where she gained experience in all facets of the business. During her five years at the agency she handled media relations, inhouse publications, media purchasing, event planning and wrote articles for trade publications.

Having gone as far as she could at the ad agency, she started looking for another job. She landed a position with the Michigan Consolidated Gas Co., where she worked six years as an issues analyst and executive speech writer.

During her time with the gas company, then a subsidiary of American Natural Resources (ANR), she was sent to Washington, D.C., to represent the views of the MichCon president. While in the nation's capital, she met an adviser to President Reagan and was encouraged to send in her resume for a federal appoint-

She remembers spending $4.78 on postage and joking with her four daughters that it was a waste of stamps. She then got a call to work for Health and Human Services. She turned the HHS job down and then got a call from the Commerce Department, which she again turned down because she didn't want to uproot her family.

In January 1983 she got a call to work in the White House, which was an offer she couldn't refuse. At the White House she wrote analyses of family, juvenile and urban issues, and she wrote some of then-Attorney General Edwin Meese's speeches. She also wrote op-ed pieces on issues from the White House. She said her pieces appeared in 800 major papers and many medium size papers.

The worst part about the Washington job was that as a "white-knuckle flier," Droll refused to fly home. Instead, she took the overnight bus from Washington to Detroit every other weekend.

She would get on the bus in Washington on Friday at 7 p.m. and arrive home the following morning at 7 a.m. Because the bus made several stops on the way and required all the passengers to disembark, there was no way of getting any sleep. On Sunday she would board the bus at 7 p.m. and arrive in Washington Monday morning at 7 a.m. with enough time to get a shower and go to work.

"It was my first introduction to buses and hopefully my last,' she said of the 50 some round trips she made during her twoyear stint in the White House.

After leaving the White House she went to work for Electronic Data Systems after it was was acquired by General Motors. Then in March 1985 she filled an opening with ANR Pipeline as communications director.

Droll's career had gone full circle. She started in the natural gas business with MichCon and now finds herself with ANR, a subsidiary of Coastal Corp. of Houston.

"In a way, I've had it all," she said about her life as a mother and a career woman.

Still, it's her four daughters the oldest now 33 and the youngest 22 - and their families that are the most important aspects of her life.

One or all of her daughters and son-in-laws are always dropping by the house after work and on weekends. And Sunday meals are a regular family-wide

Droll's parents were there to help her through the rough times following the divorce. In fact, her parents moved from Muncie to Grosse Pointe so that they could be close to her and their grandchildren. And her parents made it possible for Droll to have a career that took her to Washington for two years. Back in the office, she describes herself as a "working director." And she thrives when the work is hectic and wild.

Outside of work, she helped found the Center for Missing and Exploited Children. Every morning during breakfast millions of Americans see a picture of a missing child on their milk carton. That's Droll's handiwork.

She said she has an affection for lost and abandoned children and animals. On more than one occasion she's taken in pets and found them good homes. She's even picked up two injured and starving dogs off the side of the freeway.

For recreation while in high school and college, she practically lived on the golf course.

She said she had a 12 handicap and played 18 holes four times a week, though not on weekends. She said her father wouldn't let her play on weekends because he said women held up the men who couldn't get out during the week.

She doesn't get out on the course anymore, and she seems a little saddened by the omission. But she has her two greatest loves, her kids and her work, and she wouldn't have it any other way.

"Go ahead, have your family when you're young," she advises, "because you can have a career afterward.

She knows what she's talking about. She's been there.

Defeated mayoral challenger Smith, 50, has two more years remaining to her term on the City Council and is pleased with the addition of the two new council members.

"I think you're going to see some changes in the city of Grosse Pointe," she said. "Now that I know I have a chance of getting things approved, I'll bring more things before the

Smith said the voters' decision to go with newcomers instead of the veteran councilmen is an indication that the people believe it is time for a change.

"I was wondering before if I was a voice in the wilderness,' she said of her often at-odds position on the council. "Now I know I wasn't.'

Meanwhile, re-elected Mayor Browning, 75, said his first job will be to sit down with each of the council members and discuss what committees they'd like to work on. He said he is losing two valuable councilmen who knew their committee assignments well: Montgomery with Grosse Pointe Cable and Nugent with the disposal authority.

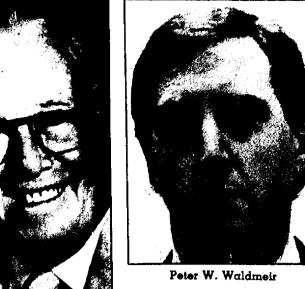

"I'm going to miss those guys," he said. "We'll have to work it out, and we will."

"It's not a question of treating them. There's no money for that," Mrs. Timmis said, "but we can love them, and care for them and give them dignity."

In Uganda, Timmis lives with a businessman, so he has a fairly Western lifestyle, until he goes to his orphanage which has no electricity, no running water and no amenities.

"He loves it out there," his mother said. "He was home in August to get his shots renewed and he was itchy to go back. He doesn't view it as being a hero. He has a heart to serve. When I see how happy he is, I know this is where he was meant to be."

The Grosse Pointe Academy, which Timmis attended, is packaging the books into a 42.000 pound shipping container which will be sent to Africa next week. They are also looking for clothes for the orphans at the school. Donations can be dropped off at the academy offices.

Planting

About 20 new trees were added to the grounds of Grosse Pointe South High School this fall as part of Greg Heffner's environmental science class. Fourteen students did research on a tree, purchased one with their own money and planted it near the school. "They did this because they wanted to do something to beautify the school and to do something for the environment." Heffner said. They also received extra credit for it. Shown with Heffner are, from left, Sarah Huthwaite, a junior, and Kelly Thompson, a senior. Another student is planting three tulip bulbs per tree. "When my grandchildren go to South, I can show them the tree I planted." Huthwaite said.

Student Spotlight Jason Dillaman

Each week in this column, we will focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a woodworking project, a book review.

The following was written by Jason Dillaman, son of Cathy and John Dillaman of Grosse Pointe Farms. He is in the third grade at Richard School.

Jack the Black Cat and Bill the Child lived in a house.

Bill heard that black cats can give you bad luck. After school Bill didn't stop and pet his cat. Jack wondered why Bill would not pet him, so Jack went to see Tiny the Mouse.

Jack knocked on the door and Tiny came out. Tiny looked at Jack and then ran inside his house. Jack creeped down the road to see his lost friend Freddie the Frog.

When he got to the pond, he saw Freddie on a rock. When Freddie saw Jack, he leaped into the water and went in his house.

Jack was sad. He wondered why his friends were hiding from him. He walked slowly into the forest and looked for Sam the Owl. Soon Jack found Sam the Owl. This time Owl did not fly away, so Jack asked why all his friends were hiding.

Sam said, "It's just supersti-

Jack said, "That is why my friends are hiding from me."

'Yes," said Sam. Sam helped Jack understand why his friends were hiding from him. Jack understands, but he doesn't like it.

South writers honored

Two Grosse Pointe South High School seniors have been named winners in the 1989 Achievement Awards in Writing by the National Council of Teachers of English.

The students are Michael Heppner, son of Gloria Heppner, and Brian A. Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Craig Jackson.

Only 13 percent of the students nominated for writing awards were cited. More than 6,000 students were nominated last January by their English teachers for the NCTE Achievement Awards in Writing.

Each nominee submitted a sample of his/her best writing and an impromptu essay. These compositions were evaluated by state judging teams of both high school and college teachers. The approximately 700 winners selected each year represent high schools in all 50 states, the District of Columbia and American schools abroad.

The council recommends those cited, now seniors, for college scholarships in 1990 should they need such assistance. Names of the students are sent to admissions officers and English department chairpersons at U.S. twoand four-year colleges and universities.

South's English Department was also commended by NCTE for excellence in its instructional program.

Early morning lighting and clouds just hovering above the landscape combined for a mood-filled photograph taken in Mettelberg, Austria.

Make mood photographs

As all of my students know, the two most important ingredients in making a photograph are you and your subject. A photograph then becomes a visual expression of the relationship between you and the subject.

And there's no better area in photography to explore this relationship than in making mood photographs. The mood photographer will make a photograph and say, "This is what I saw and felt and what I want to share with you

With a rithe practice, you can develop a sensitivity for moods which will lead you to a new, often delicate approach to your photography.

To begin with, take time to examine your environment, looking for the inherent beauty in the smallest of weeds as well as the magnificence of a towering forest.

Study your subject carefully and get to know it well, always keeping in mind that you're building that all-important relationship between you and the subject. Remember, you're going to make a photograph, not take a snapshot.

Practice by viewing your subject from every angle, in close and far back. Never rush into ject. Fog and mist will subdue

Photography snapping the picture. Study how unwanted backgrounds and will View your subject at different times of day and in different kinds of weather.

With experience, you will find your photography shifting from the literal recording of a scene to an artistic expression of mood.

Nature's elements are among the key ingredients you can capture in making mood photographs. Fog, mist, water and sunbeams skimming through soft foliage all present conditions suitable for obtaining mood in your pictures.

Early morning or late afternoon light offers the best opportunity for obtaining shadows and textures. Use side or backlighting which will give your photos a certain sparkle and will help focus attention on the main sub-

When making mood photographs, pay particular attention to depth-of-field. A wide aperture will produce shallow depth which isolates the main subject by throwing everything else out of focus. Using your depth-offield scale on your lens barrel will help to determine the sharpness you want.

Most important, become involved with your subject no matter what it may be. Build a good relationship which in turn will give you a mood picture of which you will be proud.

Man mistaken for car thief

A 30-year-old Detroit man who was changing a flat tire at Mack and Neff last Sunday night was mistakenly arrested and processed as a car thief.

Grosse Pointe City police ran a check on the car at 11:30 p.m. and learned that the car was reported stolen out of Highland

The man was arrested, fingerprinted and locked up. At 1:10 a.m. a Highland Park police sergeant called Grosse Pointe police and said a mistake was made when a Highland Park police employee typed a stolen car's vehicle identification number into the state's crime computer

The car Grosse Pointe officers had impounded was not stolen after all and the arrested man was not wanted by police.

The Detroit man was released from the city jail and was given back his personal property and his fingerprint cards.

during all elections in which there are challengers.

League Membership Chair Pearl Warn said the league will continue its Candidate Forums for future elections if there are challengers. The next election will be for one seat on the school board in

With city council elections in four of the Grosse Pointes and municipal judge races in the Park and Farms, the league hosted Candidate Forums at Trombly Elementary School Oct. 24 in the Park, in the council chambers in the Farms Oct. 25, at North High School in the Woods Oct. 26 and in the City at the Unitarian Church Oct. 30.

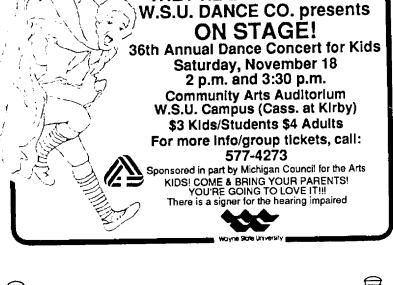

Watko said the Candidate Forums are normally televised on Grosse Pointe Cable, but due to equipment problems, the cable company wasn't able to record the candidates this year.

Mary Schultz, Grosse Pointe Cable operating manager, said the company's local origination truck is being rebuilt inside and out and was not available for the Candidate Forums this year. She said Grosse Pointe Cable records and televises the forums as a public service and will continue to do so.

The revamping of the remote van should be completed well before the next elections, Schultz said. In fact, she is hoping it will be back in time for the Thanksgiving parade in Grosse Pointe.

Whritner up for another position

tendent of Schools John Whritner may be leaving after all.

Whritner was named as the leading candidate for the superintendent's job in Greenwich, Conn. He was in Connecticut this week to meet the board of education there and to get acquainted with the community.

Last month he was named as one of three finalists for the superintendent's job in West Hartford, Conn. The position went to another candidate.

This is the second time Whritner has been up for the Greenwich position. Earlier this year he was named a finalist, but withdrew because housing in the area was so expensive.

He was informed last week that the board had put together a package for him.

The Greenwich board will

Confessed killer may be paroled within a year

Coral Eugene Watts, the man who confessed to the stabbing death of a Farms woman on Halloween 10 years ago, will be eligible for parole in December

In an Oct. 26 story about the 10th anniversary of the brutal killing of Jeanne Carol Clyne, it was reported that Watts could be released from a Houston prison in 1992.

Chris Benjamin, a producer with CBS' "Crime Watch Tonight," said Watts will be considered for parole in 1990. He said the parole evaluation process begins in February in Houston, with parole possible in Decem-

He said the nearness of the parole date is the reason the 'Crime Watch Tonight" producers decided to do a two-part feature on Watts Nov. 2 and 3. Watts has confessed on condition of immunity to killing up to 14 women prior to his arrest in 1982 in Houston.

Watts was found guilty of breaking and entering with intent to commit murder and was given a life sentence without parole in Houston. A change in Texas law, however, makes it possible for Watts to be considered for parole next year. Law enforcement officers, though, believe it is unlikely a parole board would let Watts free. Watts has never been convicted of murder. - John Minnis

Career planning service opens at Bon Secours

A new Career Planning Service in Grosse Pointe has been announced by the Bon Secours Grosse Pointe Center for Individual and Family Therapy, P.C., located at 15224 Kercheval in Grosse Pointe Park.

The Career Planning Service offers vocational guidance for high school and college students, people entering or re-entering the work force, and those considering a career change.

"A person's career choice greatly affects his or her life,' says Daniel Altier, M.S., program coordinator. "Taking time to consider options before launching or changing a career is a good investment in one's future."

Through interviews, self-report exercises and evaluation of individual strengths, an individual's ability level, interests and appropriate career options are explored. Every evaluation includes a formal written assessment, verbal feedback, and assistance in pursuing these options. The goal of this careerplanning process is to help people find jobs that foster enthusiasm, motivation and satisfaction, according to Altier.

The Career Planning Service is unique because it also provides individualized counseling to those who have personal or emotional concerns that are interfering with attainment of their career goals.

Employers may use the service to test applicants to help them identify the person most suited to their job opening, to evaluate current employees for job promotions, and to assess individual performance problems.

For more information about the Career Planning Service, call Altier at 823-2011, Monday through Friday between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m.

It looks as though Superin- make its decision soon, Whritner

The Greenwich school district is comparable to Grosse Pointe, Whritner said. There are 6,600 students in 13 schools. Like Grosse Pointe, it is an uppermiddle class area where 85 to 90 percent of the graduating students go on to college.

Whritner, who has been with Grosse Pointe for four years, came from Connecticut and has family there.

'Feed a Family' this Christmas

For the second year, officers with the Grosse Pointe Shores Public Safety Department are participating in the "Feed a Family" program for the holiday

Last year, Feed a Family donations provided 648 meals to individual families, food to two soup kitchens feeding 1,200 and groceries to several families who were in desperate need of help.

Public Safety Officer Stephen Poloni, Feed a Family chairman, said special thanks for last year's success goes to the Douglas Weiss family of Grosse Pointe Shores and Emma Rossi, formerly of Grosse Pointe

"The plight of the needy is still one that needs our help," Poloni said. "Many of us are fortunate enough not to ever have to think where our next meal is coming from or whether or not we can provide our children with a simple meal on Thanksgiving or Christmas Day.'

As was the case last year,

Feed a Family organizers are asking for donations of $12, which will feed a family of four. This year's goal is to feed 1,000 families in Wayne and Macomb counties during the coming holiday season. Any amount donated will be appreciated and will go to feeding those in need.

Contributions be made out to "Feed a Family" and sent to Feed a Family, P.O. Box 36818, Grosse Pointe 48236. Any one with questions can call Poloni at

Woodrow Woody to celebrate 50 years of selling cars

The Lebanese immigrant who came to the United States as a young boy and lived out the American dream got along well in Hamtramck, Later this month he will host a party at the Lochmoor Club to mark the 50th aninversary of Woody Pontiae at the same location on Joseph Campau.

During those 50 years, Woodrow W. Woody sold more than 100,000 Pontiacs and made thouas they say in the auto retail business

He is widely recognized by Detroit area residents because of his appearances in his own television commercials, admonishing us in the manner of a gruff but friendly grandfather to buy a Pontiac and to buy it from him. Often he is greeted as a friend by people who suddenly realize they never met him.

When Woody applied for a Pontiac franchise in 1939, he was told by a Pontiac sales executive: "This is a Polish town and you're Lebanese."

presidents, show business stars. athletes, industrialists and international statesmen, he went back to Hamtramck High School and got his diploma in 1965. He was probably the only person to graduate and enter the school's Hall of Fame at the same time.

The Shikany family moved to Detroit in 1929 and Woody went to work at the Hudson Motor Car Co. assembly plant. It was while he was working there that he met his future wife, Ann Martes.

"I was working at the Hudson factory for $40 a week and Ann and a friend would visit me sometimes," Woody recalled.

Woody quit the plant in 1935 and went into the retail car business at Mack-Gratiot Chevrolet. Then he opened his own used-car lot at Mount Elliot and Vernor. In 1940, he opened Woody Pontiac at its present location, then served in the Army during World War II.

He returned after the war and in 1946 he married Ann. With Ann Woody playing an active role in the business, Woody built his Pontiac dealership into a high-volume operation with a solid reputation for fair dealing and good service.

Woody is in a low-growth area now, but Pontiac and insurance people send cars to him for service and old friends come in Business is still good.

In his large, comfortable office over the dealership ("This is my world headquarters," he says, gesturing expansively toward the windows overlooking Joseph Campau), Woody played a videotape of a recent "Winner's Circle" feature on Channel 7 in which he was interviewed by John Gross. The feature, which appeared in two parts, aired on consecutive evening newscasts, ending with Woody saving his traditional goodbye in the friendly, slightly zany style which he uses in his commer-

Impact of substance abuse on families to be discussed

"Substance Abuse: It's All in the Family," Brighton Hospital's next Community Education Program on Tuesday, Nov. 21, will focus on how the entire family is affected by the drinking or drug use of a loved one.

Nan Hudler, coordinator of the hospital's Family and Friends Program, will lead the discussion, field questions from the audience, and point out some of the treatment and self-help options that are available to family members.

Information about the new Adolescent Center at Brighton Hospital will also be available. The 20-bed center was formally dedicated Oct. 8.

A unique feature of this new program is the Family Center. A building that was formerly the home of the hospital's founder has been renovated to provide overnight accommodations and meeting space for family members who live outside commuting distance of the treatment center.

The program begins at 7 p.m. in the hospital's chapel. The meeting is open to the public, and reservations are not needed. Brighton Hospital is located just off exit 151 of the 1-96 freeway.

For additional information, call the Community Relations Department at 277-1211, ext. 276 on weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Please keep off the grass

Grosse Pointe Woods Public Safety Officer Steve Buckley was monitoring traffic while parked at the Kenmore entrance to Ghesquire Park on election day, Nov. 7, when a car entered the Kenmore parking lot and continue to drive into the park.

The motorist continued driving through the park, around the tennis courts, ball diamonds and past the gazebo, all the time being careful to stay on the sidewalk - though sometimes a tire went off an edge and onto the

The officer followed the driver and made her stop when she drove into the park's parking lot off Huntington.

When the officer questioned the 65-year-old woman about why she was driving in the park, she become very upset and began shaking and crying, according to Buckley's report. She said she was very confused and that she had followed the route to City Hall that the signs had suggested.

Currently, the parking lot at City Hall, which borders Ghesquire Park, is a mess due to construction of the new community center.

The woman said she was just trying to exercise her voting rights.

Buckley advised the woman on the danger to pedestrians of driving a vehicle in the park.

While investigating, the officer discovered tire tracks on the grass that indicated someone else had driven in the park, though it wasn't known if it was another voter.

'Crimes and Misdemeanors' has depth, scope of a novel

Special Writer

In "Crimes and Misdemeanors," Woody Allen presents serious themes like love, death, crime, murder, guilt and religious faith in an unbelieving world. It becomes also an adventurous, dramatic comedy as he weaves together tragedy and comedy in a story of a real crime and a funny misdemeanor.

It is a film that embraces the lives of a dozen desperate characters whose interlocking stories are told in different tones and voices as the camera moves back and forth between past and present effortlessly, presenting dozarrives at moving generalities.

It concerns itself with members of a middle-class Jewish society, some of whom follow tradition and others who do with grave consequences.

At the top of the list of characters is Judah Rosenthal (Martin Landau). When we first meet him, he is a special guest at a telling him, "God's eyes see dinner honoring his work on behalf of science and humanity. He is an impressive figure standing on the dais: handsome, successful, poised.

He tells a story about how his father kept him on the straight and narrow as a little boy by anything about it.

everything." It is a warning that comes back to haunt him.

Judah is a fraud but an ambiguous one. He is bothered by his indiscretion which later results in the crime of murder, but is not bothered enough to do

He has been having an affair with an airline stewardess, Delores Paleif (Angelica Huston) over a period of two years. It becomes increasingly difficult to conceal it from his decorous wife (Clair Bloom). After a talk with Ben (Sam Waterston), a rabbi, who comes to consult Judah about his serious eye problem, he decides to break it off.

But Huston is not buying that. She not only threatens to call his wife, she threatens to make publie his shady manipulation of funds donated to the hospital he chairs. Neither reasoning nor money appeases her. She becomes more frenzied and hysteri-

From a self-assured, upstanding citizen, Landau becomes a man haunted by fear of exposure and disgrace.

In desperation he phones his mob-connected brother (Jerry Orbach). He has no problem with a solution. "I'll take care of it for you," he says. Landau gets the message. Huston will never bother him again.

Running concurrent with Landau's story is that of Cliff Stern (Woody Allen), a not-too-successful but dedicated filmmaker whose purpose it is to make his camera an all-seeing eye recording the inequities of society.

He gets no encouragement from his wife, Joanna Gleason, who openly shows her contempt for him and his ambitions.

When Allen is offered a job filming a TV puff piece documentary about Lester (Alan Alda), a crass, successful television producer, he takes the assignment to get enough money to produce his planned film about loving philosopher in an unloving world.

He meets Halley (Mia Farrow) who is also working on Alda's documentary. She shows some She is gentle and unaffected and of a novel.

he falls in love with her. She would be a perfect partner for him, but she is impressed by Alda whom she describes as a "phenomena of our time," to which Allen responds, "so is acid

Although "Crimes and Misdemeanors" is an ensemble piece, in which all the characters turn in fine performances, Martin Landau as Judah stands out. He is magnificent as a man who cannot bear to face up to the consequences of his crimes, but suffers through "to be or not to be" scenes where his conscience plagues him with what he learned as a child: "God sees

In the end it is he, who ironically demonstrates Alda's theory that tragedy separated by time is, if not comedy, acceptance.

Four months later we see him at home, relaxed and happy, surrounded by his family. For him, what happened never really happened.

We leave Allen wistfully pondering where he has gone wrong as he watches Alda and Farrow together at a party.

There is so much covered and so many vignettes in this film appreciation for Allen's work, that it has the depth and scope

November 16, 1989 Grosse Pointe News Enterlainment Dad' chronicles old age, helplessness, death

By Marian Trainor Special Writer

'Dad" may not be the best film ever made, despite fine performances by Jack Lemmon, Ted Danson and Olympia Dukakis - it clouds the story by pulling out all stops in a family's relationship as the characters come together to be with their father during the last days of his

Nevertheless it is an important, hard-hitting film that spares no detail of the pain and helplessness of old age.

Jack Lemmon, as 78-year-old Jack Tremont, long retired from his blue-collar job at Lockheed, is slipping into contented senility with the help of his over-bearing wife, Bette (Olympia Dukakis). She monitors every waking sugar he likes in his coffee, butters his toast, doles out his pills, drives the car when they go shopping on a double-coupon

They move through their quiet, uneventful days with one day like the other until the pattern is interrupted when Dukakis is hospitalized with a heart attack.

Their son John (Ted Danson) is summoned. He is shocked and concerned by how much his father has aged in the two years since he saw him last.

When his mother is declared out of danger, Danson decides that his father should learn how to do things for himself, not only because his mother will not be but he thinks it will be good for his father to be more active.

In a series of humorous and touching scenes, he introduces his father to the intricacies of housekeeping. The older man is eager to learn and joyful about being allowed to do something

To make it easier for him, Danson writes out cue cards with explicit directions on how able to wait on him as before, to operate the washer and how to cook and shop. He even per- not only to look at, but to under- is comfort in the realization that suades him to take a road test and get a driver's license.

But soon after Dukakis comes home, Lemmon is hospitalized. The diagnosis is cancer. Danson begs the doctor not to tell his father because he has a terror of the very word. The doctor ignores his pleas and bluntly announces it.

Lemmon lapses into instant senility. His vacant eyes stare ahead. His hands wave in agitation. His family is shocked by the change in him. The doctor declares him custodial which means a nursing home. Infuriated, Danson gathers his frail father up in his arms and carries him out of the hospital.

"Dad" is a fragmented story that as a whole forces the viewer

the two couples hook up and stand, the fears that shadow the lives of the very old - a fear not so much of death but of the pain that precedes it; the need to reconcile the life led with that not realized; the need for love, companionship and some joy.

In a beautifully understated performance, Lemmon conveys all those fears, regrets and needs as we watch him regress from passivity into catatonia, terror, hallucinations where he experiences the joys that eluded him, and finally the comforting stage of forgiveness and acceptance.

Danson, who has been more concerned with his career as an executive on Wall Street than with family relationships, turns in a surprisingly good performance as the neglectful son who comes home to visit and stays to care for his father.

Dukakis as the domineering wife successfully conveys the impression that she is also a loving one.

There are pathos and tears in this film that brings us close to the realities of old age, but there

By Michael Chapp Special Writer

"Immediate Family" is, to be sure, something of a contrived film. In many respects, it plays like "thirtysomething" on the Still, not unlike that awardwinning television show, there is something very poignant and likable about this film. It may have something to do with the wonderful performances of Glenn Close, James Woods and Mary Stuart Masterson. Each of them demonstrates a depth of character not common in the movies.

More likely though, the success of the film can be attributed to its honest and insightful writing and direction. This is noteworthy, since the subject matter is filled with possibilities for smarmy melodrama. Consider: Close and Woods are a happily married couple, welleducated, successful, surrounded by all the material wealth they could want. Missing from life though, is the pitter-patter of little feet. They've been trying desperately to have a child, but Mother Nature is not cooperat-

Meanwhile. Masterson and her boyfriend, played by Kevin Dillon, are eight months into an unplanned pregnancy. She doesn't work and he's in a goingnowhere job. In short, they're in no position to raise a child.

Actually, it's a whole weekend discovering the world's delights through play.

Children can step into the shoes of an inventor by creating their own special weekend. Or, they can become a high-powered radio producer and help produce sound effects for a radio commercial of yesteryear. Carding, spinning and knitting wool at the Woolworks will show kids just how much work went into a single garment 200 years ago.

The Song Sisters will be on hand to perform folk songs. And everyone can join in on the fun by performing the popular dances of the 20th century, including the Hokey Pokey and the Bunny Hop. A storyteller will take children into distant lands through an imaginationcharged recitation of adventure stories and American folktales.

And games of 1900 through 1950 will give kids a chance to discover the playthings of the past. Hula hoops, yo-yos, pick-up sticks, flipbooks and other toys and games show how children amused themselves before TV came along. A treasure hunt is rare indeed. through Henry Ford Museum will add to the excitement as well.

agree that once the baby is born, it will be immediately adopted by Close and Woods. This is pretty emotional stuff; no doubt about that. But never does the film sink into cliche or chronic predictability. Instead, we follow the development of a beautiful relationship between the natural parents and the adoptive parents. It starts much as one might expect - awkwardly. But quickly the characters develop a mutual respect for each other; an understanding of the different socio-economic circumstances they're in, and, more importantly, the different levels of maturity and understanding they all have.

"Immediate Family" carefully documents the pre-adoption feelings of Close and Woods - who clearly feel they're missing out on something by not having children - and of Masterson and Dillon - who obviously want what's best for their child.

In a similar way, the film documents the feelings of each principal character through the entire pre-adoption, birth and adoption process. We see Woods at a football game, marveling at the beauty and simplicity of a father and son enjoying their first sporting event together. We see Close, inwardly cringing in pain when someone nonchalantly asks her if she's pregnant vet. We see Masterson, afraid to look at her baby when he's born because she knows she'll grow attached.

These are real feelings, captured on film as few pictures can do. A movie that accomplishes its stated purpose so successfully

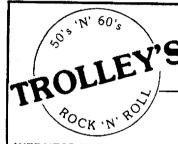

It's a refreshing and re-affirming occasion. And an opportunity to have a downright rewarding time at the movies.

Builds Fall means time to call your friendly chimney sweep

Assistant Editor

There's nothing like a nice, hot fire in the fireplace to take the chill off during the cold fall days and coming arctic blasts of winter

Stoking that hot fire can be extremely dangerous, however, if you haven't had your chimney cleaned by a qualified chimney sweep, according to Michael Bodrug, owner of the local Camelot Chimney Sweeps.

He explained that creosote created from burning wood builds up on the walls of the flu in the chimney. When a fire gets very hot, it can ignite the creosote and cause a roaring fire in the chimney. Firefighters say that the roar of a creosote fire in a chimney is frightening and difficult to put out — not to mention the hazards of an out-of-control fire.

Grosse Pointe artist Virginia Durbin Thibodeau thinks that children should learn their history lessons by studying art — not

"Maybe we'd turn out to be better people," she said.

Thibodeau has studied art since her grade school days. She goes to work every morning in a spacious studio overlooking Lake St. Clair, on the second floor of the Grosse Pointe Academy's historic Lakeshore Build-

As artist-in-residence, she said, "I'm just here. Kids visit. Classes come up to see an artist at work. Exposing kids to art is important, because artists teach them how to

"I usually have to quit around 2 p.m. because I like to work in natural light."

Daylight streams through a dozen or so huge windows which run the length of her studio. The tall, multi-paned windows are fitted with several types of louvred shutters and pull-down shades, so that Thibodeau can adjust the light for ideal working conditions each day.

A jumble of potted plants lean toward the windows, eager to soak up their share of precious light.

Classical music plays softly in the back-

Thibodeau's lifetime of creativity is displayed around the studio — on walls, on easels, propped against cabinets and shelves, on tables. Her work includes portraits, still lifes, landscapes, miniatures, sculptures and prints in a variety of media - oil, water color, pastel, enamel, bronze, pencil drawings, charcoal drawings, pen-and-ink sketches and more.

She's in the midst of gathering a few dozen of her oil paintings and water colors for an exhibit at Jacobson's in the Village. The show will continue for the next few Thibodeau has been studying art, learning new art techniques, and teaching art since she was in grade school.

"I won my first art prize in the fifth grade," she said, "from The Detroit News, in a contest for young artists and writers.'

Virginia Durbin grew up in Toledo. "I'm a product of the Toledo Museum School of Design," she said. "Two children from each school in Toledo were chosen to study there. I started my studies in fifth grade."

She also studied art every day during her high school years at Ursuline Convent of the Sacred Heart. She got her first job at age 17 as a freelance commercial artist, doing fashion drawings. She also attended Toledo University for a while.

In 1935, she married a young aeronautical engineer, Robert Thibodeau, a graduate of the University of Detroit. They moved to Detroit.

Virginia Thibodeau continued her creative endeavors by attending Wayne State University and the Center for Creative Studies. "I worked in various disciplines," she said, "painting, drawing, pastels, oil, print-making, sculpture. I worked one summer at Cranbrook and I studied with Ference (Papa) Varga, a sculptor."

She worked part time as a freelancer in Detroit, doing fashion drawings for Kern's Department Store, J.L. Hudson's and — ads for the Grosse Pointe News.

"There's some ads still running in the Grosse Pointe News that I did. Ahee's ad is mine," she said, "and some for flower shops. I did the Young Clothes ad, which may still be running.'

The most frequent subjects for Virginia Thibodeau's creative endeavors are portraits of people and flowers. A Grosse Pointe florist shop was the setting for her limited edition print "Greenhouse Images V."

In 1948, Joseph De Grimme, of De Grimme Art Gallery, gave Thibodeau her first opportunity to exhibit in a solo show. "I had a small studio with three or four other artists on Kercheval (in the Village) in a little Cape Cod building that's since been torn down," she said. "In 1949, I took a downtown studio because I was doing ads for downtown department stores. Later I gave it up because I wanted to be home when the children came home from school."

Thibodeau has two children, a daughter who lives in New York and works as a staff developer for language arts and a son who is an attorney in Denver. She also has two teenage grandchildren.

"In 1950, just after I gave up my downtown studio, I heard that they needed an art teacher at the Sacred Heart Convent, here in Grosse Pointe. I was not prepared to teach," she said. "I just wanted to practice art. I ended up teaching just 2 1/2 hours a day and I loved working here. I was here 19 years, until (the convent) closed. Now I'm artist-in-residence here at Grosse Pointe Academy."

During the mid-'50s, Thibodeau began taking groups of children on trips to Europe to study art. She went five times with about 30-35 girls each time.

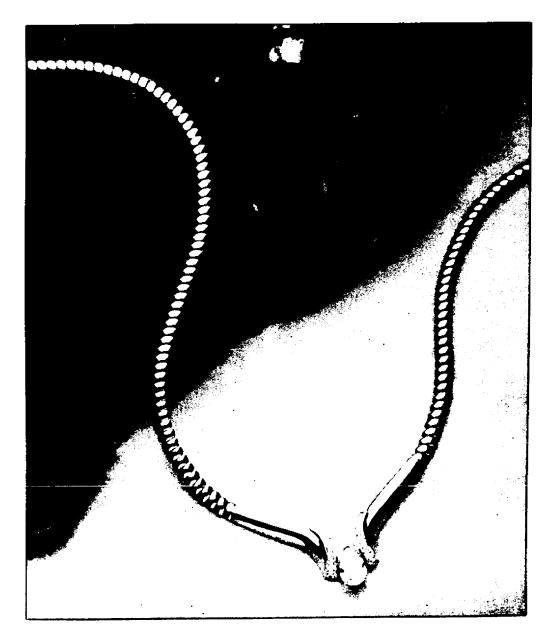

Thibodeau has won numerous awards since her first one in fifth grade.

"Looking back, I think the greatest honor was in 1950, a one-woman show at the To-

Weather may affect mood, pain sensitivity, sleep patterns

The newspaper lands against the storm door with a thud. You carefully open the door just enough to reach your hand out to retrieve the paper.

The idea is to keep the minimum of cold outside and the maximum of heat inside.

Now that you have it in your hands, what is the first item of interest that you turn to? Probably the weather. Then, more than likely, your horoscope for the day.

Now we may be able to add to these two points of interest. Before long, our daily printed link with the immediate and the faraway world will carry another important message that could help us to plan our day and to operate at peak efficiency - a run down on how today's weather may affect our health.

Example: expect a mixture of its effect on your health is no freezing rain and snow all day, accompanied by gusty winds; high in the low 30's; barometer 29.1 and falling. Health Index: look for greater energy and endurance but watch out for increased aggressiveness, sleepiness and sensitivity to pain. General medical complaints: 3 percent above average.

The index seems to be pretty much on target and is at least as accurate as many weather predictions and more reliable than horoscopes.

At the very least, the index will provide a medical excuse for not performing as well as usual on bad weather days. But what can we use as an excuse when the weather is wonderful and we are not? Maybe we could find an alibi in the horoscope section.

In the United States, we can find weather health reports on cable TV's weather channel. We already know of some 44 conditions - including blood pressure, migraine headaches and mood shifts, that correlate with the weather.

Right now you may be saying, I already know that the weather affects moods. It's just plain common sense to know that people feel better on warm, sunny days and worse when days are gloomy and gray."

But it's not that simple. Research shows that how you feel today may be associated with yesterday's weather. This seems to indicate a need for a weekly compilation of reports so that you can check back to see why you feel down on a day when the skies are blue and the sun

The answer, the experts say, is that weather, especially air temperature, humidity and amount of sunshine may exaggerate preexisting disorders, trigger illnesses or change behaviors.

Studies show that because of the weather, you may tire easily or be unable to sleep. Under other conditions you may find yourself taking medications to control weather-induced aches and pains.

For instance, on a cool rainy day, you're likely to anger easily and be more sensitive to pain. You won't sleep as well and your arthritis or ulcers will cause dis-

Just as weather can slow you down, so it can also make you feel good. Studies show that the weather that gives the most pleasure is - you guessed it sunshine! If it is a cool, dry sunny day you should feel great.

We can't go into hibernation and sleep the days and nights away until the sun breaks through the sullen clouds of winter. Economics will not permit it. Duty calls, which involves getting up and going to work no matter what the weather. But even the routine of going and coming and staying out of the weather as much as possible can get too restrictive. Tensions build.

There are ways to relieve tensions. One of them is exercise, such as walking. Walking doesn't have much appeal when each foot fall could land you bottom-side down on a sneaky piece of ice. Health clubs and exercise classes may be too structured.

What's left? Walking the malls. It's warm; it has music for diversion; and it is long enough to chalk up mileage.

Senior citizens and heart patients are often advised by their doctors to exercise in the malls to avoid temperature extremes and other stresses of outdoor walking.

Besides, as one walker remarked, "You don't have to watch for cars, dogs or holes in the sidewalks.'

Tanks — Tiananmen — Thanksgiving

By the Rev. Stanton Wilson Grosse Pointe Memorial Church

If "three peas in a pod" is a symbol of hugging and warmth, "three t's - tanks, Tiananmen and Thanksgiving" sound strangely un-hugging and un-warm. Yet in November, 1989, we must face them and note their meaning for each of us as citizens of our beloved nation and of God's planet called the good Earth.

Face tanks

The picture of the year certainly has to be the lone Chinese student bravely facing a column of tanks in Tiananmen Square in Beijing.

I see this picture from two perspectives: first, from the student's perspective - brave, daring, with adrenalin flowing fast. A daring, dangerous episode - laying one's life on the line for a great cause: freedom and democracy!

Second, I see this picture from the tank commander's view, for I was a tank commander in the U.S. Army. I'd be puzzled, confused by this unusual target in front of my arsenal of steel. I think I'd stop the tank as the first Chinese tank did. Thank God!

The overall picture is a parable of our Lord Jesus Christ, alone, facing a hostile world — daring to be run over, run out of the Beijing (Jerusalem) of His day because of the mad political leadership (within and without the religious and ruling communities) of His day.

Face Tiananmen

Tiananmen means Gate of Heavenly Peace. It is the political name of the largest gathering place in China, a mammoth 100 acres. At one end is the Zhongnanhai Compound, Beijng's seat of power, where Chinese leaders live and work. Mao Zedong looks down and keeps a watchful eye on Tiananmen from his giagantic portrait overshadowing the

And Tiananmen is a theological name for our Lord Jesus Christ who is called "the way," or "the gateway" to heavenly peace!

Large numbers of people died in Tiananmen Square. So also Jesus died on a cross at a place called Golgotha. People - elderly, middle aged, students (college and high school), and little children - died. They died violently - flattened by wide heavy tracks of tanks or personnel carriers, or they were shot at short range in the face or chest. Tiananmen Square turned red with blood on June 3-4, 1989, as did the wood of a cross nearly 2,000 years ago.

One cannot escape a theological trek to/from Tiananmen Square, for "God so loved the world" is more than a polite

Dwindling Shakers abide by a demanding faith

Viewed by outsiders with nostalgia, Shakers are, in reality, granite-tough believers of a demanding, uncompromising religion that claimed 4,000 followers in 1845.

"As a tenet of faith, Shakers are celibate; their life, communal," Cathy Newman wrote in National Geographic. Sister Frances Carr, another Sabbathday Lake resident, said, 'Celibacy frees us to be able to love, and I'm speaking of gospel love - to love everyone and not be restricted by personal love."

The founder of Shakerism was Mother Ann Lee, born a blacksmith's daughter in Manchester, England, in 1736. One of eight children, Ann could neither read nor write. She married a blacksmith, bore and lost four child-

Tormented, she swung from despair to visions of glory. Joining a sect of religious reformers known as the Shaking Quakers, later to be known as Shakers so-called because they trembled from head to foot in religious ecstasy - she became their leader.

Widely persecuted, she and eight believers set sail in 1774 for America and settled at Niskayuna, which they also called Watervliet, eight miles northwest of Albany, N.Y.

With her flock, Mother Ann combed the spiritual pastures of New England, harvesting converts. She died in 1784, without ever seeing a Shaker village established.

In the following decades, Shakers made the step from scattered converts to settled communities. Eleven communities had formed by 1800. Soon after, the Shakers pushed west, founding two communities in Kentucky, four in Ohio, and one in Indiana. The gospel was spread-

A Shaker village was divided into several families of as many as 100 members. Each family had its own house and shops. Two elders and two eldresses in each family monitored spiritual and behavioral issues. Trustees handled business dealings with the outside world. Ultimate jurisdiction rested with the parent ministry in New Lebanon (later renamed Mount Lebanon), N.Y.

Newman wrote that new members - mostly orphans, widows, and families fallen on hard times - entered a gathering order, progressing to the church order, where they signed the covenant. Because the community was celibate, but included men. women, and children, the dwelling house was divided. Men and women entered separate doorways, used separate stairs, and sat on opposite sides of the meeting room.

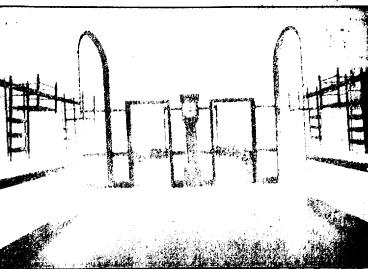

After 1845, membership began to decline. "To their dismay," Newman wrote, "the Shakers couldn't ensure that even a small proportion of the children they reared would sign the covenant." Of the 197 children raised at Mount Lebanon from 1861 to 1900, only one joined, according to a historian of 19th-century Shaker communities.

Sister Mildred herself came to the Shakers as a child, 86 years ago. Her father had died, and her mother, unable to support her children, had placed Mildred in the care of the Alfred, Maine, Shakers. Unlike most of the other children, Sister Mildred stayed in the community, fulfilling a deathbed promise to an older sister to be a Shaker.

"Sister Mildred epitomizes Shaker values: compassion, love, total dedication. No compromises here. She is rigorous, a drill ser-geant of the soul," Newman

Sister Mildred's comments are tinged with bitterness directed at the world's obsession with Shaker furniture (a single piece can command six figures at auction).

"It is a canker that will not heal, a distraction to the business of being Shaker. The peaceable kingdom is anything but,' Newman wrote. "They're scared and fading," said an observer, "and the world acts like it's a big yard sale."

Shaker rooms like this one at Pleasant Hill, Ky., reflect Shaker values of symmetry, order and function. Pegboards enable chairs to be hung out of the way, so a room could be swept. Pleasant Hill was founded in 1806.

Holidays include foods native to New World

Suddenly the holiday season is upon us with Thanksgiving about to begin a round of festive days including Hanukkah. Christmas, Twelfth Night, New Year's Eve and New Year's Day. launching us into 1990. Traditional foods play a large part in these occasions and the Thanksgiving scene certainly would not be complete without corn and squash and pumpkin pie.

Roger Williams, in his "Key Into the Language of the Indians of New England," which was printed in London in 1643, explains that corn is called Ewachimneash, and comes "in diverse colors and is easy of digestion.

Another English author, John Josselyn, reporting on New World customs at about the same time, devoted many pages to the myriad ways in which corn could be used as food. He listed recipes for Indian pudding, samp, hominy, and many uses for corn meal, parched corn, dried corn and popcorn.

Roger Williams reported that in England he had heard it said that God could have made, but never did make, a better berry. One of the first recipes to come to England from the New World was for strawberry wine. It was included in a book of recipes called "The Closet" published by Sir Kenelm Digby in 1669.

Early writers speak enthusiastically of the many fruits and berries growing wild in the New World, and letters sent back to England in the 17th century extoll the excellence of the many gallons of "syder" to be obtained from the orchards which had been planted by the first settlers. There are many reports that the Indians dried blueberries in the sun and sold them by the bushel for the colonists to use in breads. puddings and pies instead of cur-

Salads seem to have been a regular accompaniment to 17th century meals, but very often they were made of cooked greens and vegetables. There are references to salads "sodden" with "ovle of olives" which do not sound very good and, indeed, there is one cook who is reported to have written:

"Like other cooks, I do not supper dress that put whole meadows on a platter, and make no better of the guests than cows with herbs and grass to feed them fatter."

In Victorian times, planning for Christmas had to begin several weeks in advance because most decorations and many gifts were made at home. Christmas trees were decorated with colorful strings of popcorn or cranberries and beautiful wreaths of pine cones, fruits, greens and dried flowers. These ornaments

One herb with a very old history for holiday decorating and giving is rosemary, and at the season of the year when nostalgia is greatest, rosemary really comes into its own. It is the herb which has for centuries signified remembrance. It is again popular for carrying in weddings, weaving at funerals, mailing in Christmas cards and giving to guests as they leave, and, of course, including in holiday wreaths and decorations where its piney scent adds its own delight.

Rosemary is a native of the coastal regions around the Mediterranean and sailors claim to be able to smell it miles out to sea. Rosemary is easy to grow as a houseplant, and is fragrant and edible all the year around.

ledo Museum," she said. "It was most thrilling because, as a child, I thought anyone who could be in the Toledo Museum must be really something.'

Thibodeau also was invited to display her work at a solo exhibit in the Senate building in 1963. "I sent about 30 paintings," she said.

She has also exhibited her work in Palm Beach, Fla., in Del Ray, Fla., and at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial and the Griffin Gallery in Grosse Pointe.

"Around 1954 and 1955, I became interested in French enameling. Not earrings and ashtrays - but small enameled icons. I've always had a great interest in religious art - and most of it is pretty bad right now.

"I'm also a firm believer in having religious art in the Thibodeau studied enameling and specialized in miniature portraits. "It's a lost art," she said. "It's a tedious task to do miniature portraits because you get a good likeness, but when you fire it, the heat changes it.

"You have to know the technical points as well as the creative aspects of the art.'

She won some prizes for her enamels in France in the 1960s and two prizes for miniature sculptures in bronze at a show in Washington, D.C. in the 1970s.

Thibodeau even has some of her work in the permanent collection of the Smithsonian Institution. It's a design for George Bush's 1980 campaign - a red and white striped elephant with the slogan "A Clean Sweep." It's been printed on buttons, aprons and tote bags and was copyrighted. It's displayed in the Smithsonian's collection of political memorabilia. Thibodeau stopped teaching in the early '80s when her husband became ill. He died of cancer in 1983. "He was my best model. I won an honorable mention from the Toledo Museum for a charcoal drawing of him - before we were married."

Thibodeau doesn't have an agent. "My husband and my children have always said I should get an agent. The business part doesn't interest me." She keeps a list, however, of all the people who have bought her paintings.

Some of her most recent works are commissions — portraits, lots of flowers, scenes of flower markets, florist shops, gardens.

"I rarely work from photographs," she said, "except for details of clothing or architectural refinements. I like to get to have been sold since June. It's know my models first and I want to capture the spirit of the per-most people, especially children. One of Thibodeau's most recent works is a portrait in pastels of a sandy-haired 10-year-old neighbor, who is portrayed in typical 10-year-old style, hands stuffed into the front pockets of her smock and a pensive look on her Thibodeau recently released a limited edition print which is selling well. It's masses of colorful spring flowers. The scene is a florist shop in Grosse Pointe. She said 100 were printed and 44 called "Greenhouse Images V." and is the fifth in a series.

"I love flowers. They're por-Posing does not come easily to traits. Flowers are little faces.

Thibodeau passed along a hint for striving young artists: "Carry a pocket-sized sketchbook wher-

"I guess you could say this is the secret of what I do." She pulled out a book of pencil sketches that she made while seated in the audience at an Orchestra Hall concert and flipped through sketches of Maestro Gunther Herbig conducting and several drawings of Orchestra Hall's refurbished box seats.

"This is my next project.

"Actually, every place I look, I see a painting. If I were to give advice to art students, I'd say, 'Take a sketchbook wherever you go. And draw every day."

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD THE PASTEBOARD PASTIME

Alphonse "Sonny" Moyse, Jr. was the well known publisher and editor of "The Bridge World" Magazine for over twenty-five years. His newspaper columns and magazine articles entertained many and magnified his wonderful wit and whimsy for the game and its participants. Though an infrequent contestant in major tournaments, he was victorious in two national and many regional events before his death in Certainly he was a fine player and his contributions to bridge were many. Unfortunately his most memorable, "The Moysian Fit," is practiced today by very few below the expert level. Most players refrain from bidding four card majors on opening bids because they feel much more comfortable with their best minor. Certainly five card majors offer more assurance and are practiced by man including some of the great players.

Sonny was an avid supporter of four card major openings and deliberately raised with only three in the suit he knew was so opened. No one played the 4-3 fit at any level better. Unquestionably it requires some shape and a well tuned technique, but 84% of the time the six missing trumps break favorably and those aren't bad odds.

There are some basic precepts that must be considered if you wish to play this fit successfully.

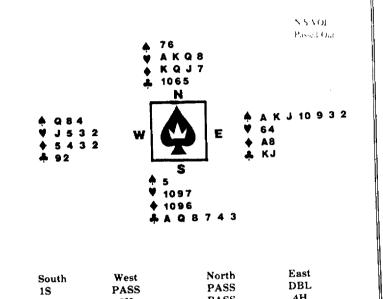

1. The hand holding 3 trumps should be able to ruff the defenders strongest or attacking suit early. Never the hand holding four trumps or declarer loses control.

2. A 4.3 trump fit should hold more combined high cards, especially in trumps, than the 4-4 fit to compensate for the

3. The hand with 3 trumps should have a fairly good side suit that he can run on his own or in conjunction with partners cards.

4. Never draw trumps until your sides suits are estab-Seldom do we see a Moysian Fit Bid to game and successfully executed after an opponent opens the bidding. Even more infrequently is the three trump holder the declarer. Such a fait accompli gave Jerry Kaufman and this columnist a top board on our way to victory in Southfield four Satur-

It seemed to me my hand fulfilled Sonny's requirements, so I bid hearts knowing we most likely had a 4.3 fit. Jerry's game bid showed extravagant confidence in his partners ability, but naturally he assumed we had a 4-4 fit plus some credible cards or I wouldn't have bid at the three level.

North's spade four was won by south and continued. I ruffed with the heart ten and played a low diamond to the king won by south's ace. On the third spade play I ruffed with the nine and played two rounds of trumps. To my gratification they belowed as I played discountries. fication they behaved so I played dummies club ten, south's jack and successfully finessed with the queen. Of course clubs had to be 2-2 or I was down. So I played the ace and continued the suit which north had to ruff immediately or I had him in a trump coup which would give us eleven win-

We were the only pair in hearts or game as the rest of the field was playing clubs.

My elated partner suggested I write about, "this Mr. Moyse," and so I'm doing for your enjoyment.

National Geographic News Service One person's natural garden is another's weed patch.

When Walter and Nancy Stewart's tractor broke down a few years ago, they decided to turn about six of their seven acres of lawn in an affluent Washington suburb into a natural meadow.

The shaggy grasses and plants prompted an unsigned hostile note in their mailbox. Some people shouted catcalls at the Stewarts as they drove past. Someone tossed a flare into the meadow.

Faced with a county order to trim their lawn. the Stewarts are standing firm in what has become a fight for a principal. They are challenging the ordinance that limits the height of lawns to 12 inches. A public hearing was held on the issue in June.

The Stewarts, he a research chemist, she a lawyer, are the latest in a succession of homeowners and renters who have attracted national attention by opting, not out of sloth but out of concern for the environment, to let their yards go natural.

Things got even rougher for Stephen Kenney and his wife after they planted wildflower seeds in the small front yard of their rented house in Kenmore, N.Y. As flowers blossomed amid uncut grass, neighbors' choler rose proportionately.

In the summer of 1985, the Kenneys received threats to burn down their house. Herbicides were sprinkled in their Their cat was stoned. Birds were shot on their property. Snakes were placed in their nas- been promoting its backyard years," McKenzie predicted.

A local court convicted the Kenneys of "creating conditions hazardous to health" and fined them $50 a day. They refused to

When neighbors cut down the growth, the Kenneys filed a complaint of their own. They ended up paying a $100 fine.

Today they live in rural Bear Creek, PA, surrounded by patches of wildflowers. Kenney continues work on his doctorate in English, and Mrs. Kenney teaches mathematics. Their departure was hastened by the pressure cooker atmosphere in Kenmore, Kenney told National Geographic News Service. "It was all getting pretty tense and and the birds. You're just a Deeply instilled habits are hard to break. One authority on lawns, biologist John H. Falk of Annapolis, MD, traces Americans' fixation on close-cropped grass from the longtime English obsession with tidy groundskeeping to the explosive growth of look-alike suburban yards after World War II.

"What sort of got lost in the process, were the aesthetics," he said. "I think our tastes will change. Gradually, this love affair with grass monoculture will disappear.

Pushed by organizations such as the National Wildlife Federation and the National Audubon Society, it may already by disappearing. They argue for natural ecosystems for animals, birds, and insects, against environment-polluting chemicals.

Pepin, coordinator of the program, says more than 6,300 yards have been certified nationwide. To be certified, a yard must offer sources of food, water, cover, and places for birds and animals to raise their young. This is landscaping for wildlife, not abandonment of wildlife,'

she said. Lorrie Otto of Bayside, Wis., a well-known lecturer and naturalist, advocates wildflower-filled meadows in front yards as well as back. "It's the foundation of motherhood to try and take care of the Earth," she said. "The only way you can keep your sanity is to make a landscape as diverse as possible for the insects

Many local governments don't see it that way. But Stewart McKenzie, environmental auviser to the Montgomery County Council, said, "They're unconstitutional, these ordinances."

Among common arguments of the monoculturists: Unmowed lawns attract rats and snakes and pose a fire hazard. "The fact is that none of the health hazards have fared very well in the courts," McKenzie said.

McKenzie foresees an eventual liberalization of the Montgomery County ordinance. One possible compromise would allow lawn meadows but would require both a mowed strip next to adjoining property and eradication of designated noxious plants.

Doctors Invent 'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight

U.S. Gov't. Approves Patent Claims for New Diet Pill

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special)-An amazing new weight loss pill called 'fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" you steady fat loss and calorie reduction by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.

The U.S. government has just approved the doctors claims for a hard-to-get patent that confirms "there has never been anything like their fat-bonding pill process before." It is a totally new major scientific breakthrough and is revolutionizing the weight loss industry.

You Can "Eat Normally"

Best of all, "you can continue to eat your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits. You can start losing fat and reduce calories from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight you desire without exercising

Flushes Fat Out of Body The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in undigested fat particles. Then, all the trapped fat and calories are naturally "flushed" right out of your body because they cannot be absorbed. Within 2 days you should notice a change in the color of your stool, caused by the fat particles being eliminated.

"Automatically" Lose Fat

According to one of the inventors, Dr.

William Shell, heart specialist and associate professor of medicine at UCLA medical school, "the new fatbonding process is a "lazy way" to lose weight because the pills alone "automatically" reduce calories by eliminating dietary fat. It is 100% safe

The fat-magnet pills are already sweeping the country with glowing reports of weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slimmer, trimmer and more attractive again.

Now Available to the Public

If you are trying to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these "no-risk" highly successful fat-magnet pills directly from the doctors' exclusive manufacturer only (includes optional calorie-reduction plan for even better results). Send $20 plan for even better results). Send $20 for a 90 pill supply (+$3 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+$3 handling). to: Fat-Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. WX44, Beverly Hills, CA 90211. (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not 100% satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard and American Express OK. (Sand and number, expire date OK. Women and smoking are exercising, eating better, and kicking the habit. Cigarette smoking, once regarded as glamorous, is now widely looked upon as an unhealthy practice. Forty million Americans have quit smoking in the last few years, and for good reasons.

The average woman who smokes shortens her life by five to eight years. Lung cancer, lung disease, stillbirth, miscarriage and babies of low birth weight are all linked to cigarette smoking. Lung cancer is now estimated to be the number one cancer killer of women in this number of women who smoke more than one pack of cigarettes Health-conscious Americans a day is increasing, and more teenage girls smoke than boys. Many women are not aware that smoking doubles a woman's chance of developing heart disease, causing thousands of premature heart attacks each year.

Some women also don't know that cigarette smoking is a serious form of addiction. The nicotine that is inhaled from cigarettes causes a physical dependence that many experts believe is stronger than addiction to some hard drugs.

When you quit smoking, your body begins to repair itself. Much of the damage to your lungs is reversed so that in time,

If you want to quit but are not sure if you can, remember to be patient with yourself. It takes time to break a habit. You can also ask your friends and family to help you quit, and your doctor may be able to recommend smoking cessation programs.

Single, free copies of "Smoking and Women" (APO65) are available by sending a stamped, selfaddressed, business envelope along with the name of the booklet to: The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, Resource Center, 409 12th Street, SW, Washington, D.C.

Thinking again

• Saw Tom Gage, the Tiger leat writer for the Detroit News, the other day and discussed his escape from the earthquake last month.

Gage was in San Francisco covering the World Series and came home - eventually - after the Series' conclusion.

Gage may have a sixth sense. After the Giants trailed two games to none to the Oakland A's, Gage's story the next day (paraphrasing of course) said something about the Giants being down to their last hope - perhaps an earthquake.

If you don't recall, the Series was delayed for more than 10 days because the earthquake hit prior to game three.

• Got to watch ULS and Detroit Country Day play in a state semifinal soccer game last ULS lost, but one nice thing about attending the game was that it was played under the lights. See Grosse Pointe, lights wouldn't just be used for football games.

 Word around the hockey rink states that Grosse Pointe North should challenge Southgate Anderson for the Class A title. North opens the season Nov. 21 at the St. Clair Shores Civic Arena.

 Some have said that Barry Sanders could be the Rookie of the Year. Sure, when was the last time those honors went to a team with only a couple of

• Some people hibernate for the winter. I prefer to think of it as a perfect excuse to grant myself sedentary privileges as long as the pop is cold, the remote has fresh batteries and PASS doesn't get cut off.

• Found this quote the other day: "If I ever need a brain transplant, I want one from a sports writer because I'll know it's never been used." Oh, good one, Joe Paterno.

• South finally updated its basketball scoreboards.

• Saw Lance Harding, a 1988 South graduate at the North/ South football game Oct. 28, and learned that he walked on and made the Michigan State football team. Nice to see a local boy making it good.

 Looking at the basketball schedule, I'm sorry to say that North and South don't open the boys' season against one another. Instead, they're slated to play Dec. 19 at North. Another tradition has been broken.

 We know that Jacques Demers works his gum over, but what kind of gum is it?

• Predictions: North makes it to the regional finals in hockey: South's boys' basketball team can't repeat last year's feat of making it to the regional finals; and the ULS boys' basket ball team still doesn't defeat Detroit Country Day.

 My favorite bumper sticker: "Eat well, live well and still die.'

Looking back on football '89

ootball season has come. Football season has gone. But North, South and University Liggett School are still analyzing what occurred this fall.

While the South Blue Devils met all three of the goals they set, the North Norsemen struggled to meet their preseason expectations, and the Knights enloved their finest season since the unbeaten 1966 team.

The following article takes one more look at the 1989 season that began in mid-August and ended Nov. 4 when South was knocked out of the playoffs by Detroit King.

South

ntering the season, South stuck with its traditional goals of winning five ball games, winning the Eastern Michigan League, and earning a state playoff berth.

All three came to pass, but the Blue Devils put a lot of stock in winning the league title "One More Time" because the E.M.L. will fold at the end of the 1989-90 school year.

South finished 8-2 overall and 6.0 in the league.

With a senior offensive backfield directed by quarterback Brian Letscher, South opened the season on a sour note at Edsel Ford. Despite outplaying the Thunderbirds, South lost, 8-7.

With that loss, however, much optimism surrounded the Blue Devils' practice field.

"We were inside the 20-yard line four times in the second half and didn't score," said third-year head coach Jon Rice. "But, we moved the hall up and down the field and our young defense really played a fine game. That's why we were so optimistic."

South evened its record the following week at home; a game that eventually decided the fate of the E.M.L. The Blue Devils hosted 1988 league champ Port Huron Northern and kept the crowd on the edge of its seat as it hung on for a 13-12 win.

"Going into that game, we league championship game" said Rice, "and as it turns out, it

"We also put a lot of pressure on the kids and they responded to it. We passed out T-shirts that had the words 'One More Time' on them. From that point on, the kids remained very focused on the goals we had set and carried them out."

The signature of the South team was focus, which began last January.

"We started in the weight room and began emphasizing our goals right away," Rice said. 'We had a great commitment from our juniors and it carried over into the start of the season.

With a 1-1 record and a league-leading record of 1-0, South put itself in the driver's seat in the E.M.L. race.

"Any time you lose a game in the league, you have to look for outside help," said Rice. "We didn't want to do that. We controlled our own destiny and that's how we like it."

Game three at L'Anse Creuse North belonged to South, 35-10, but it was also time for Jim West, the senior Z-back to show his stuff. West returned a kickoff 80 yards for a score and also had a 49-yard touchdown run. West, who was voted the Most Improved Player of the 1989 squad and also named to the All-League first team, set a school record with two kickoff returns for touchdowns. He also had 1,033 total yards, and 37 receptions for 540 yards and five touchdowns. His 37 receptions set a single-season record.

The week before the L'Anse Creuse game also marked another "focus" for the Blue Devils. Rice drew a pseudo-ladder on a piece of construction paper, with the six E.M.L. opponents listed on each rung. That's when South began its march up the ladder, knocking off opponents one by one. "The kids got very used to the concept and focus we incorporated," said Rice, "They knew exactly where we wanted to go and the motivation belonged to the kids, not anything the coaches did in the way of Tshirts or the ladder.'

Back home for game four, South hosted a pesky Port Huron team. Port Huron entered the game tied with South in the league (2-0) and this too, became a battle for the league champion-

South had to battle back from a 14-6 fourth-quarter deficit to force overtime, and prevailed, 21-20, when Port Huron's 2-point conversion failed.

"After the first four games, only two points separated us from being 1-3," said Rice. "But instead we were 3-0 in the league and 3-1 overall. We improved every ballgame and that was a key for us.

"The overtime win against Port Huron really convinced the kids they were a good football team," Rice claimed. "We had an 80-yard drive into the wind and converted a 2-pointer to tie the score with just about five minutes to play.'

If the offense could get the ball to the 30, it was a good possibilty that the sure-footed Jason Weissert would get the field goal. This season Weissert booted 29 extra points and five field goals, to raise his career record to 46 extra points and 10 field goals. Weissert was also placed on the All-League first

With only four returning players on the defensive side of the ball, South still hadn't recorded a "goose egg," something the team prides itself on. However, the waiting was over in game five, when South's defense got untracked and stuck Mount Clemens, 44-0. The offense was led by Matt Wysocki's two touchdowns and totalled 630 vards. Wysocki was an All-League second team selection.

Led by Jason Bedsworth's season-high 105 tackles, the defense recorded another shutout in game six, a 28-0 win at Anchor Bay. Kelly Graves, who like Bedsworth will return next season, had 87 tackles, while senior safety Rob Khoenle had 63. Khoenle also had three interceptions and two recovered fumbles. Bedsworth was voted the teams' Outstanding Underclassman, and also made the All-League first team. Khoenle was the team's Outstanding Defensive Back and made the All-League second team. Graves, an All-League second team selection, finished with 87 tackles and two interceptions.

Defensive end Rapo Nazarko, who had 61 tackles and three quarterback sacks, was named to the All-League first team, and also picked up the Oustanding Defensive Lineman award from the team. Offensive tackle Dave Asker also was named to the All-League first team.

Others awarded All-League second team honors were Marty Wayman (defensive back), Durmon Coates (linebacker) and Chris Harwick (tight end). Honorable Mentions went to Dane Lupo (defensive back), Chris Gramling (defensive back), Brett Brownscombe (center) and John Bednarchik (offensive guard).

Also in the Anchor Bay game, Letscher, who finished with the team's MVP award, a first team All-League honor, set a school record with 1,400 total yards in a single season (923 passing), and accounted for seven touchdowns, rambled for a 57-yard touchdown.

Mike Montagne, who rushed for 919 yards and scored 11 times, rushed for two touchdowns in the Anchor Bay win. Montagne was also voted by his teammates the Outstanding Offensive Back, and also was an All-League first-team selection for his work at fullback.

With five straight wins and a 5.0 league mark, the Devils hosted East Detroit for Homecoming in game seven. South gave up 14 points, but wrapped up the E.M.L. title with a 38-14

The win ended South's affiliation with the league, but what an impressive 16-year relationship the Devils enjoyed. In those 16 years, South had a record of 96-18 and won nine championsips. In 22 years of football, South has a 138-62 win/loss re-

With the E.M.L. title clinched, South couldn't afford to relax. Games at Woodhaven and back home to close out the regular season against North remained on the docket.

With a 6-1 record, South was ranked as one of the Metro East's top teams, and was listed as the ninth team in Region IV fighting for a playoff berth.

"Going into Woodhaven, we were concerned we'd have a letdown because we just came off of winning the E.M.L., and maybe we were looking ahead to North," said Rice. "But that wasn't the case at all. Our kids went out and beat a very good football team."

South did it handily, too, 30-6. Riding an eight-game winning streak and with the playoffs hanging in the balance, South hosted North Oct. 28. The night before, South moved one step closer to a possible playoff berth when Utica Eisenhower and Troy Athens both lost. With a win over North, South would have to wait until late Sunday, Oct. 29, to hear the phone ring with its invitation.

However, first things first. Letscher ran wild in the 42-14 win over the Norsemen, scoring three times and throwing to Chambers for another score "I felt how bad the kids wanted to perform well against North," said Rice. "Especially after last year's loss (27-6) to them," said Rice.

South's season extended into the playoffs, but ended abruptly with a 41-0 loss to Detroit King.

"You can set your goals at the start of the season," said Rice, "but sometimes you have to readjust them. These kids didn't have to readjust. They set goals last January and remained focused throughout the whole season on what they wanted to accomplish. You don't achieve your goals a lot of the time, but we did. I'm as pleased about this season as I possibly could be."

North

The 1988 season's end had a big part in the 1989 season's beginning for the North football team. After winning four straight to end last year's 5-4 season, Coach Frank Sumbera feels that win streak accounted for North's quick 2-0 start. Preseason polls ranked the Norsemen as a top-25 team in the state with senior quarterback Scott Bernhardt and senior tight end Charlie Stumb returning for a final season.

Bernhardt and Stumb, the record holders in all of the passing categories at North, were the 1-2 threat the passing game needed. Bernhardt finished with 902 yards passing, seven passing touchdowns and five rushing scores. He also holds the career mark for touchown passes (23) and has more than 2,500 yards passing in a career. Stumb, who holds the career mark for receptions (60), finished with 503 yards in the air and six touch-

"We got off to a good start because we were healthy and I think everyone was excited about last year's strong finish,' said North coach Frank Sumbera. "The four wins to finish the season definitely carried over to this year.'

North's Chris Meathe

Despite losing four games, North lost only one league game and tied for the league championship with Romeo at 4-1. Overall, the Norsemen finished 5.4 for the second straight season.

"Overall, we played over injuries, suspensions and still came out better than .500," said Sumbera. "We won a division championship and even played our toughest schedule in probably 10 vears.' North's four losses came to Eisenhower, which finished 7-2, Romeo (7-2), Sterling Heights (6-3) and South (8-2).

Each week, the head football coaches at North (frank Sumbera), South (Jon Rice) and ULS (Bob Newvine) will match their picks of 10 college games with sports editor Rob Fulton

"At one time or another, all those teams were ranked in the top 10 of the Metro East," said Sumbera. "We had our hands full every week, but the kids proved they are champions despite all the frustration and disappointments."

Senior fullback Bryan Ford, who finished with eight touchdowns and 849 yards rushing, also got off to a quick start, scoring two touchdowns in the win over Lake Shore and 103 yards rushing against Fraser.

With a 1-0 mark in the White Division conference. North headed for a non-conference showdown with top 10 ranked Utica Eisenhower in game three. North was crushed in 1988 at home by Eisenhower (48-14), and crushed again in 1989, 41-12.

"At that point in the season, Utica was a very skilled team," said Sumbera. "We gave up some big plays and that's really what eventually cost us all year long. It wasn't that our defense was getting pounded up and down the field during the season, it was just that we usually gave up the big play."

The North defense yielded 21 points per game and gave up 1,385 yards in the air. Stumb led all tacklers with 90, with Ford getting 73 and James Kutscher recording 73. Chris Meathe, who also ran for 459 yards and four touchdowns from the tailback slot, led the defense with three fumble recoveries, and had one interception.

Bernhardt, Stumb and Ford were all named the the All-League first team, along with Bob Thomas, Tim Ryan, Bob Hutton and Tim Meinig. Second team all-leaguers are Marc Adams, who led the team with five interceptions, Meathe and Kutscher. Eric D'Hondt, Brad Hea and Mike Koenigbauer were honorable mentions.

'Right after the Fraser game, we started sustaining a lot of injuries," said Sumbera. "We lost two of our top receivers (Frank Lucido and Ed Barbieri) with hand injuries and that hurt our passing game.'

Sumbera was then forced to shuffle a lineup over the next team drastically. From an average of 23 passes in the first three games, North's attack diminished to 12 passes in game four vs. Romeo.

"We had to start running the ball a lot more," said Sumbera.

North's Scott Bernhardt

"We adjusted our offense immediately following the Eisenhower game, because all we had was Charlie in the way of receivers. We had guys filling in and doing a good job, but we weren't playing with the same lineup week after week.

"Our passing attack lost its confidence and I think that affected the quarterback some because he had to continuously work with new kids."

In its four losses, North had 17 turnovers - an average of four a ballgame.

Romeo sent North tumbling, 21-12, in the season's fourth week. More important, however, the loss gave North a 1-1 league record, one game behind Romeo.

"After that loss, we needed some help from other teams," couple weeks and it hurt his said Sumbera. "We just lost two straight and our first in the league. That loss to Romeo really hurt because we had four opportunities inside the 20 and didn't score. I don't mind losing when we play well, but we didn't play well at all."

At home against L'Anse Creuse for game five, North was looking to keep its league championship hunt alive, as well as break the two-game skid. The Norsemen revived themselves with a 21-14 win, with Meathe, Ford and Stumb all scoring.

With six starters out on offense and six out on defense, North hosted Sterling Heights for Homecoming. With four turnovers and a struggling offense, North lost, 31-8, sending its record back to the .500 mark at 3-

"We lost, but it was the best I've ever felt after losing," Sumbera said. "Fraser beat Romeo and that put us in control of our own destiny. We knew then, that we could at least share a piece of the pie and that forced us to take a closer look at ourselves.

"We were at a point in the season where we were looking at ourselves and wondering what kind of team we really were," Sumbera continued. "We were wondering if we were a mediocre team or a good team. We lost some games to quality teams, but we didn't want to look back on what was."

Ahead, were games seven, eight and nine. Sumbera then incorporated a final goal: "To go undefeated over the last three games."

Step one was accomplished in a resounding 20-6 win at Utica, and then a 30-21 win at home against Roseville in game eight.

"Roseville was a pivotal game for us," said Sumbera, "because it assured us of a winning season and gave us a piece of the White pie. The championship that seemed impossible to get, we finally got. It wasn't a smooth road, but then again anything we did this year wasn't easy. We survived and pre-coach Bob Newvine's five-year tenure, the Knights enjoyed a better than successful season with a 7-2 mark.

"Coming into this season we had hopes of making the playoffs," said Newvine. "But we still had a great season. The success this season came from our talent and our will to work hard."

ULS set an early tone when it beat Harper Woods in the opener, 23-6, and then slipped past North Huron, 19-12.

"The Harper Woods win was a biggy for us," Newvine said. "We hadn't beaten them before and we knew we had to get off on the right foot."

The right foot went into a hole in game three, with the Knights tripping, 20-6 to St. Agatha; one of two tough opponents on the ULS schedule.

"We came out mentally flat and not ready to play football,' Newvine said. "We didn't get fired up at all, and it showed. Agatha pushed us around the field."

One player doing a share of his work early - and late - in the season was junior tailback Chris Carroll. Carroll was unstoppable in most of the games, and finished with 1,102 rushing yards on 137 carries, and scored 18 touchdowns.

"Chris gave us a great weapon in the backfield," said Newvine. 'He's quick to the outside and when he gets there he's awfully tough to stop.'

Whitfield finished the season with 688 rushing yards and 10 touchdowns on 72 carries. Defensively, Whitfield had a team high 109 tackles and three interceptions.

"Our defense did a great job all season," Newvine said. "We gave up only 44 total points and had five shutouts. Jim really had the kids prepared each week."

Abimbola Afariogun had 94 tackles, two sacks and 24 plays where he tossed the opponent for a loss. Karow Gordon also had a superb season with 34 tackles and one touchdown on an interception. John Dodds had 62 tackles, two fumble recoveries and four sacks.

The offensive transition worked to perfection in game four, as ULS romped past Lutheran Westland, 35-0. At Wesleyan Academy for game five, ULS recorded its second straight shutout, 38-0.

teams in weeks four and five," said Newvine. "We had a weaker schedule than I would have liked, but it also enabled us to play some of the younger kids and give them experience.'

Week six proved tougher, despite ULS hosting a previously winless Birch Run team.

"We went into that game with a great plan and carried it out," said Newvine. "We had the ball with two minutes to play, but made some mistakes that eventually cost us the ball game."

Place-kicker Mike Whelan, who booted 25 extra points and added five field goals this season, gave ULS a 3-0 lead in the third quarter with a 20-yard field goal. But, with 29 seconds to play, Birch Run tucked in the gamewinning score.

"We found out after the season that if we would have beaten

"We didn't really play strong Birch Run, we would have been in the playoffs," claimed Newvine. "That was a big loss, because it kept us from obtaining our biggest goal."

ULS, a team that traditionally doesn't end the season on a strong note, reversed its habit and rolled to wins of 43-0 over Cardinal Mooney, 73-0 over Lutheran Westland, and 55-0 at home against Hamtramck in the season's finale.

"I feel we put everything into this season that we had," Newvine said. "There were some rough times, but we came out of them pretty well and that's what counts. This team had a goal and that was to go 9-0 and make the playoffs, but looking back we still did very well.

"Every player on this team contributed in some way and that's what made this season fun," Newvine concluded.

After a 2-1 record, Newvine and assistant coaches John Bandos and Jim Glovac felt it was time for a change. Junior quarterback Kevin Whitfield stepped to fullback and sophomore Jason Drook filled the quarterback's vacancy.

"By moving Kevin to fullback, we had more of an offensive attack," Newvine said. "Jason stepped right in and did the job at quarterback and that personnel change really motivated our

North/South swim meets beginning to show parity

Sports Editor

Perhaps North doesn't corner the girls' swimming market in Grosse Pointe any longer.

Despite beating crosstown rival Grosse Pointe South last week, 97-74, the Lady Norsemen are finding the trend to equalization among the two high school teams more interesting.

"This was a very fun meet," said North coach Mike O'-Connor. "It was also a fun meet to watch and I feel that from now on this meet should come down to the final events and be an absolute dog fight.'

In the previous three years, the North/South swim meet has been anything but a dog fight, but with Kim Higel and a host have a great crop of freshmen paying off for her." Brown is coach Fred Michalik also sees his team becoming more of a threat to knock off North.

"Actually, there is more parity this season than there has been in the last couple," said Michalik. "(Parity) is long overdue. Right now it's a vicious cycle. In about two years. I can see where the North boys' team will catch the South boys' team, and the South girls' team will catch the North girls' team.

"For as long as I can remember, the success has come in the form of a circle," Michalik added. "And at this point I'd have to say we'll give some teams a run for it because we of freshmen in South's lineup, swimmers who have a great swimming background."

North, ranked in the Class A top 10, also has a host of talented swimmers, starting with the sister tandem of Heidi and Wendy Mader, and Karen Dundon

Heidi Mader set a pool record (60.25) with her win in the 100 backstroke. Dundon won the 100 breaststroke (1:11.72), and also swam a leg on the winning 400freestyle relay team that included Jennifer Paloucci, Lidia Szabo and Wendy Mader.

The hotly-contested race that highlighted the evening came in the 200 freestyle, where South's Kim Higel beat North's Wendy Mader by less than one second. Higel, who competed at last year's Junior Nationals, won the event with a 1:58.63, and Mader had a 1:59.6.

'That was a great race," said O'Connor. "Kim's an excellent swimmer and so is Wendy. It was a race both girls wanted very badly and both proved how strong they are."

South was led by the diving expertise of Denise Brown, who had a first-place total of 259.30 points. The diving finals took place Nov. 14, after press time, but many say that Brown should contend for the state's top spot.

"Denise is a very good, intelligent diver," said Michalik. "She works hard and all that work is also coached by diving coach Don David.

North's Cheryl Robertson (180.70) and Amy Nerone (168.45), finished second and third, respectively in diving. Although she only took fifth in the 500 freestyle (6:18.70), North's Charlotte Finkelman received praise from O'Connor.

"Charlotte dropped about 15 seconds off her time," said O'-Connor, "Since the beginning of the season, she has really knocked off a lot of time. I think she was somewhere up around 7 minutes earlier this season, but if she continues to drop her time, she's going to be a good one in the next few years.

Amy Verlinden also gathered some South points with a win in the 100 freestyle (59.35), and Erin Sullivan took second in that event (59.65).

"Everything in the North/ South meet was very close because our girls didn't give up when they were behind," said Michalik. "Our captains, Sarah Pattee and Anna Francis, did a great job of keeping the kids

Karen Dundon won the 200 individual medley in the MAC meet for North.

North (11-2) and South (5-4) are working very hard and I feel will head into the state finals Nov. 17-18, and both coaches are quite optimistic they can give some teams a run.

"Last year we finished a very disappointing seventh," said O'-Connor. "But right now the girls finish, but we'll be just fine."

confident we can do better than seventh.

"Right now we're making a strong move," said Michalik. "We'll do very well at the state meet. I don't know where we'll

Junior forward Noelle Cormier canned 14 points and senior center Kim Reiter added a dozen, as the North girls' basketball team advanced to round two of the Class A district playoffs with a 61-38 win over Finney (10-5), Monday night.

North forced Finney into a transition game, that frankly turned into a game of condition-

"Our pregame plan was to come out and work them," said Norsemen coach Gary Bennett. "We wanted to make it a conditioning game and did. We came out intending to press end to end and push the ball whenever we could. I think we did that better tonight than we have all season

"This time, however, we pressed full court and it worked for us." Offensively, North can sit back in its half-court game or run the transition game. Bennett opted for the faster pace.

'We would prefer to run," said Bennett. "We came right out to get them and forced them to play our game. We wanted to push the ball up court and the key was that we got a lot of points off it."

North missed its first six shots, but then got the ball to Cormier.

"They let me take the shots," said Cormier. "We played an up tempo game and it just lifted our whole team to its potential. It was a physical game, but we had a lot of fun, too.

Senior point guard Melissa Champine scored all 11 of her points in the first half as the Norsemen mounted an 18-2 lead after giving up the game's first hoop. Katie Loeher added six points and Kelly Kunkel had

ULS' Kandia Milton falls for Niagara University

Sports Editor

The Kandy Man has just wrapped up a pretty sweet deal. Kandia Milton, an outstanding basketball player at University Liggett School, became the first Knight to ever put his signature on a Division I basketball schol-

Milton, 6-3, 185 pounds, signed his binding National Letter of Intent Nov. 10 to attend and play basketball at Niagara University in New York next

"This ends all the speculation and pressure," said Milton, who is nicknamed the Kandy Man. "By signing early, I can now concentrate on our team goals this season and not worry about scoring points or statistics just to draw a scout in.'

But scoring has been a Milton trademark. In his three previous varsity seasons, with his senior year pending, Milton averaged 15 points per game over 60 games. He also snatched 14 boards a game.

According to ULS coach Chuck Wright, what made Milton so marketable was his work

"Kandia's always had talent," said Wright, "but he's studied the game from every aspect. Kandia has come a long way since he was a freshman, and I'm not just talking about him as an athlete. Kandia has a special dignity about him. He's made himself a Divison I player because he's wanted it for the longest time. He not only studies the game, he keeps a notebook on his own game. He's a great person and I'm very pleased for

So is Milton's biggest fan, his mother Tene Ramsey.

"I'm so glad he's satisfied," said Ramsey. "He had to weigh a lot of the pros and cons and come up with the right choice. I'm glad that he's finally made his own decision and that he's happy with it."

With the signing, Milton fulfilled a lifelong dream to play at a Division I college, but there was no way - other than to bulk up, score points and rebound - that he could prepare for that moment.

"When I signed the papers, I was so excited that it's very difficult to describe how I felt," he said. "Even though I used to dream about that day when I'd sign, there was still no way to prepare for all the excitement."

With college now signed and sealed, there's even more excitement ahead. Niagara, a team in a rebuilding stage that went 9-19 a year ago, plays DePaul, St. John, LaSalle, Villanova, and other college basketball hotbeds. "I used to watch college basketball on TV when I was young," Milton recalled. "And I used to admire every one of those guys. I thought to myself that I'd like to play at a Division I school and get a good education, and now it's happened. I'm a little nervous, but I'm also very excited."

At Niagara, Milton will be the No. 2 guard for the Purple Eagles and head coach Jack Armstrong. Milton will concentrate his studies on communications.

"Niagara, when I took my trip, really impressed me," Milton said. "They have a great character about them and I think I can add to that charac-

"Right from the start, they treated me very well. I didn't make up my mind right away. because I wanted to look at all the things involved. But, when I decided, I knew it was the right thing for me.'

Ramsey, who even attends Milton's games at Metro Index Camps and at St. Cecilia's, will still attend some games despite the four-hour trek to Niagara.

"I've already decided that I will be going to at least four home games," said Ramsey. "I'll miss him. In fact, when he took his visit, I was already crying. I can imagine what it'll be like when he leaves again.'

Yellowjackets sting Knights again in semifinals

By Rob Fulton Sports Editor

If the University Liggett School boys' soccer team is going to win another Class C-D state soccer title, it's going to have to find a way to beat Detroit Country Day School

For the third time in as many final four seven of the last nine years, the Yellowjackets of DCDS eliminated the Knights from potentially gaining a Class C-D title, 3-0, Nov. 8 at Country ent class.' There has been speculation that the Yellowjackets may move to either Class B or A next

ULS earned the right to play DCDS after winning its fourth consecutive regional title on

DCDS, which shared the Class C-D title a year ago with Muskegon West Michigan Christian, went on to beat Elk Rapids in the state final Nov. 11. But, that still left ULS with a chilling ef-

"We would have liked to play in the finals," said Backhurst, "but getting there has been a tough time for us. We could very well be the second best team in the state, and that's not all that bad. We would have liked that top spot, but the only way that could have happened is if we beat DCDS.'

Throughout the playoffs, it looked as if ULS would clip the Yellowiackets and play in the finals. Senior captain Doug Wood, who finished with a team-high 42 points, scored six goals and assisted on 10, as the Knights won four straight entering the semifinals. Goalkeeper Paul Lanzon, who played midfield last season and was the manager in 1987, recorded four of his 11 shutouts in the playoffs. Jon (Lanzon) didn't have much of a Davis had 22 goals and 36 total points on the season for ULS.

"Things were going very well for us," said Backhurst. "We were playing well and the kids had great confidence in themselves. We knew we eventually get to Country Day, but unfortunately that's where the season ended.

DCDS, a much stronger, faster and bigger team than the Knights, only needed Mike Clark's first goal at the 11:10 mark of the first half to enter the finals, but Chris Castillo and Joel Russell added the other two Yellowjackets' goals.

"Going in we knew we had to stop Clark because he's one of their top players," said Backhurst. "His first goal was a pretty one. He made a couple moves on our guys and Paul chance on the point-blank shot."

Lanzon, however, kept ULS in the game when he stopped a penalty shot near the end of the first half. That save should have lifted a rather listless Knights' squad, but it didn't.

'We talked about Paul's great save at halftime," said Backhurst. "I told the kids all we needed was one more goal to get back in it in the second half, but we didn't get it. In the first half we looked like we were back on our heels, allowing DCDS to carry the play and that hurt us. In the second half we played much harder, but we didn't get the goal we needed.' Lanzon stopped 11 shots.

ULS started the game with only two forwards and stacked its defense because DCDS has a great offensive attack. That plan was scrapped in the second half when ULS trailed 2-0.

"We used only two forwards and an additional defender in hopes of holding them off," said Backhurst. "But we gave up the two goals, so in the second half we put another forward up front and tried to get more of an attack going.'

ULS played a more physical second half, but couldn't get near the DCDS net despite having 13 total shots on goal.

"We really didn't get off any great shots," said Backhurst. "But what I'm really satisfied about is the play we got from our kids in the second half. We played hard and with a lot of heart. We had a lot of guys who were absolutely spent after the game and that's what pleased me even though we lost.'

Opponents found it hard to beat ULS goaltender Paul Lanzon in the playoffs. In five games, Lanzon recorded four shutouts.

VanDellen leads Calvin College

ULS soccer captain Doug Wood (10) led the Knights in postseason play with six goals and 10 assists. Mike Coello looks on.

Kara VanDellen, whose sister Lisa VanDellen also played field hockey at Calvin College, led the field hockey team with 10 goals and three assists for 23 points.

Kara's point total also was tops in the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association, where Calvin recorded a 6-0 record this season. Kara's three assists placed her third in the league. Overall, Calvin finished 12-5.

Kara's sister Lisa, who led the league in scoring in 1988 with 12 goals and one assist in nine games, matched her skills against Kara in Calvin's annual Alumni Game on Oct. 28

The Lady Knights are 137-55-10 under veteran coach Doris Zuidema. That record includes five MIAA titles and 11 straight better than .500 seasons.

The athletes named as either the MIP or MVP at University Liggett School's annual fall banquet included, front row, Carrie Carpenter, Lisa DuCharme, Alexandra Wehmeier, Licia Price, Änne Cavanaugh, Katrina Linthorst-Homan, Amy Mehr, Gunther Lie, Lars Schneider and Karow Gordon.
