

Recycling, Milk River, dominate the year's news

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

1989 will be remembered as the year of new hope for freedom, as in Eastern Europe, and for failed attempts at change, as in China.

But local news stories touched us and changed the landscape of the Pointes and moved the community confidently forward — with only a few missteps — into the last decade of the century.

These are the stories that, for better or worse, made the pages of the paper this year.

January

After the Park council condemned it and a suit was filed challenging the condemnation, the Grosse Pointe Park formally took possession of the Esquire Theatre on Jefferson. City officials said the theater was closed to make way for the Park's revitalization of the business district on Jefferson Avenue.

The pit bull, which residents of Lancaster Road in Grosse Pointe Woods were so concerned about that they convinced the Woods council to ban the breed from city limits, died after contracting parvovirus.

A volunteer auxiliary firefighter and a public safety officer from Grosse Pointe Shores were being hailed as heroes after braving icy waters to save a woman whose car plunged into Lake St. Clair.

Ash testing was scheduled for the Grosse Pointes-Clinton Refuse Disposal Authority's incinerator. It was closed Dec. 28, 1988 after routine testing showed higher-than-allowed levels of lead and cadmium.

The four suspects in the intended rape of a Woods woman and the beating of her boyfriend behind the War Memorial in July 1988 were found guilty by a Wayne County Circuit judge of assault with intent to commit rape and felonious assault. All men were sentenced to prison for terms of varying lengths, all having to serve at least 2-1/2 years before becoming eligible for parole.

Plans for the fishing pier proposed for Lakefront Park by the Grosse Pointe Woods council were denied by the DNR because it would have an adverse impact on fish and invertebrate habitat and create a navigation hazard to boaters.

The school board set April 10 as the day for a millage election, asking for 2.2 mills.

The ACLU said it was considering a constitutional challenge on the use of police surveillance cameras at Ghesquire Park in Grosse Pointe Woods. The council approved installing the security cameras in response to vandalism and littering in the park.

The War Memorial renewed its decade-long plea for a liquor license from the Grosse Pointe Farms City Council.

February

The Grosse Pointe Woods Planning Commission overwhelmingly approved rezoning of University Liggett School's Briarcliff site to single-family residential use. The council unanimously approved the commission's recommendation.

With the incinerator still closed, trash from Grosse Pointe was taken directly to a landfill. A new local group, Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling, started talking about the need for recycling.

A 12-year-old Park boy's quick thinking and fast action saved his friend from drowning after the friend fell through the ice at Windmill Pointe Park.

Two nurses and two doctors from St. John Hospital successfully revived a woman who suffered a heart attack while crossing Moross at Mack Avenue.

Coats for the Cold

With only three days notice, members of the Lakeshore Optimist Club of Grosse Pointe collected more than 200 coats from residents and took them to Most Holy Trinity Church in Detroit for distribution to those in need. The drive, held for the first time this year, was the brainchild of Optimist Marv Redlawski who coordinated the event. Feds seize Park home after woman jumps bail

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

U.S. Marshals last week took possession of the Grosse Pointe Park home of the woman who jumped bail last month hours before she was to be sentenced in Boston for heroin trafficking.

The U.S. Marshals Service legally took possession of the Westchester Road home Dec. 20. The home had been put up as bail for Helen Mary Formanczyk, 60, who was found guilty Sept. 12 in U.S. District in Boston of possession with intent to deliver at least 1,000 grams of heroin, which carries a minimum sentence of 10 years in prison.

Detroit U.S. Marshals Supervisor Lou Economo and two deputy marshals, Lou Stock and Ed Brandon, served Helen Formanczyk's husband, Theodore, notice at his downtown Detroit store that the house was now the property of the U.S. Marshals Service.

The federal agents then came to Grosse Pointe Park and with the assistance of Park police officers, posted notice on the home that the property had been seized by the U.S. Marshal. A relative was in the home when the marshals were posting the notice. When Economo informed the woman at the home what was happening, she wished the marshals a merry Christmas.

Economo said the marshals could have ordered the home vacated immediately, but U.S. Marshal Anthony Berton gave the residents until Jan. 10 to move out.

Meanwhile, federal law enforcement officers have been unable to learn the whereabouts of Helen Formanczyk. She was last seen in Boston Nov. 27, which was the day before she was to appear in U.S. District Court for sentencing.

Officials speculate that she either fled to Canada or Lebanon where she is reported to have drug trafficking connections.

On Feb. 14, Formanczyk was arrested in a downtown Boston hotel after she purchased 1 1/2 kilograms of heroin from a Lebanese courier. The Drug Enforcement Agency had intercepted the courier and accompanied him to Logan International Airport and to the drug deal exchange with Formanczyk.

A federal jury found her guilty of heroin trafficking, and the federal judge allowed her to remain free on the $200,000 bail which was met by providing the court with a quick-claim deed to the Formanczyks' Westchester home.

The Formanczyks also own the T&H Discount store downtown.

When Helen Formanczyk failed to show up for sentencing Nov. 28, the federal court put out a warrant for her arrest and an international warrant was posted. Economo said officials are still looking for the fugitive and anyone with information concerning Helen Formanczyk's whereabouts is asked to call the U.S. Marshal's office in Detroit at 226-7756.

House on tiny lot denied; court appeal planned

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

While variances required to build a house on a small lot on Neff were denied by Grosse Pointe City officials last week, the matter is far from over.

"We are going to appeal to Circuit Court," said William Gilbride Jr. following the city's denial Dec. 18. Gilbride is the attorney representing Gary Haberkorn, who plans to build a $160,000 three-bedroom home at 547 Neff.

In April, Haberkorn bought the small lot and existing two-bedroom cottage on Neff. Because the house is dilapidated and repair costs would be more than half the state equalized value of the property, Haberkorn must tear it down. He plans to replace the 1910 era cottage with a 1 1/2 story home.

The lot, however, is too small — or substandard — for the home, so Haberkorn requested variances from the city to allow him to build. The City Council, sitting as a Board of Zoning Appeals, denied the request for the variances by a 2-to-5 vote. Voting in favor of the variance request were Dale Scrace and Lisa Bradley.

The council did not cite reasons for its denial.

Gilbride believes he has a strong case to present to the Circuit Court. He said the council as the Board of Zoning Appeals did not provide any material evidence for its rejection of Haberkorn's variance request.

According to Gilbride, the only material evidence the city had was the report by its planning consultant, Brandon Rogers. Earlier, Rogers said he "reluctantly recommended" approval of the variance request. Therefore, the city acted in opposition to its planner's recommendation.

Many neighbors opposed Haberkorn's plans for a new house. They object to a house being built on the lot because of its small size. They view the demolition of the cottage at 547 Neff as an opportunity to open up some space in the crowded neighborhood, which was platted long before there were zoning laws restricting small lots.

"I've been next to the home for 10 years," said Margaret Smith, who opposed a new "home crammed between houses, depriving us of our light and air."

To reduce the crowded feeling of the site, Haberkorn proposes setting his house 45 feet back from the street. The neighbors on either side will have a front yard to look at instead of the side of a house. Currently they look at the side of the old cottage which has to be torn down.

In addition to opposing the building of a new house between them, the neighbors on either side of 547 Neff have presented offers to buy the property. They would like to own the lot so that the house can be torn down and

Pointer of Interest Arthur W. Bryant

Loyalty is a way of life for Arthur W. Bryant. He believes in it and practices it to a point few people do.

The Grosse Pointe Woods resident is currently coordinating a major fundraiser for the U.S. Naval Academy, the scope of which was at first daunting, but is now an exciting challenge, not to mention a lot of work.

As president of the Detroit Chapter of the U.S. Naval Academy Alumni Association, Bryant agreed to help his former school raise funds for a badly needed activities center. On Jan. 23, the alumni association will sponsor the opening night benefit performance of "The Unsinkable Molly Brown" with Debbie Reynolds at the Fisher Theatre.

Bryant explained that all of the service academies depend on fundraisers and private donations to maintain the level of excellence for which they are noted.

"The academies do not get everything from the government," he said.

For years, the Naval Academy has been trying to get a building in which all of its midshipmen could assemble. The academy population is about 4,500.

Recognizing the need, Congress agreed to appropriate half of the $26 million project if the academy would match the funds. And that's what Bryant and academy supporters throughout the country are doing.

With no prior experience in organizing a major benefit,

Arthur W. Bryant

Bryant trudged forward, making contact with various academy supporters until he met Harry Nederlander, of the Fisher Theatre, who offered the premiere performance of "Molly Brown."

Proceeds from the benefit will be donated to the new Brigade Activities Center at Annapolis in the name of Lt. Mark Lange, USN, who died when his plane was shot down over Lebanon in December 1984. Lange grew up in Fraser, where his parents still live.

Tickets for the event are $250 for mezzanine seats, which includes a reception, $100 main floor and $35 balcony. For more information, call Bryant at 885-2174.

The proposed expansion at Detroit City Airport received opposition from all of the Pointes as they each passed resolutions urging the city of Detroit not to go ahead with the project. They feared air pollution and claimed increased traffic could put Grosse Pointers at risk.

Neff Park marina fees up 15 percent

Marina fees at Grosse Pointe's Neff Park will be 15 percent higher in 1990.

The increase is part of a two-step fee hike that began in 1989 to pay for this summer's dredging of the harbor, which cost $84,000, not including engineering expenses.

The marina rates were increased 30 percent this year to begin paying for the dredging. This and last year's increases will pay off the dredging in four seasons. By the end of the 1992 boating year, the dredging bill should be paid off.

In past years, the marina fee increases merely kept up with rising costs, but in 1987 and to a lesser degree in 1988, the fees were increased because of work required due to high water levels. Then in 1989 and 1990, the rates had to be increased to accommodate low water levels.

W. Clark Durant III announced he would run for the U.S. Senate in the hopes of ousting Democratic Sen. Carl Levin. He announced early — the election is November 1990.

The campaign for the April 10 millage election was launched. The school board decided to roll the millage renewal and the additional 2.2 mills needed into one proposal, instead of asking for each separately.

William Clay Ford retired from Ford Motor Co.

A letter-writing campaign and petition drive had the Grosse Pointe Farms City Council considering upgrading its emergency services.

The Grosse Pointes-Clinton Refuse Disposal Authority's incinerator was still not operating, but plans were being made to compost the leaves collected by the municipalities in the fall, in order to save the cost of putting the leaves into a landfill.

Grosse Pointe South High School's journalism instructor Bob Button was named to the Michigan State Journalism Hall of Fame.

More than 135 people dropped off two trucks full of plastic bottles and jugs at the first plastics drop-off day sponsored by Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling.

Expansion plans for Detroit City Airport were announced and residents were relieved to be told that there would be no east-west runway which would re-route traffic over the Pointes. An east-west runway was ruled out after it was discovered that it would interfere with Metro Airport traffic.

A Grosse Pointe Woods home was raided after an investigation by the County of Macomb Enforcement Team, known as COMET. Four ounces of suspected cocaine, a scale, an AR-15 semi-automatic weapon, and a shotgun were among the items confiscated in the raid. The house was later seized by the Wayne County prosecutor and sold. Two brothers, one of whom lived in the house, are still awaiting trial.

Four 14-year-olds were facing charges after they apparently exploded homemade pipe bombs.

More than 300 cars came through the Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling plastics collection day, nearly doubling the previous year's take.

City raises water rate

The average homeowner in Grosse Pointe City will pay about 6 cents more a day for water next year due to an increase approved by the City Council Dec. 18.

The combined water sewage rate in the city was increased $1.50 per cubic foot from a rate of $18.10 per unit to $19.60.

The increase means the average customer using 4,000 cubic feet water per quarter will get a bill for $78.40, up $6 from $72.40 under the old rate. The city sends out water bills four times a year. The new rate goes into effect Jan. 1.

City Manager Thomas Kressbach said the higher rate was due to an increase in the cost of lage proposal while approving a 1.3 mill increase for the library's operating expenses. Letters to the editor at the Grosse Pointe News said people felt as though the district was pressuring voters into approving the increase by combining it with the renewal. Assessments in the Pointes had just been raised, which led school officials to say residents were not voting against education, but against higher taxes. Another election was scheduled for June. This time, the renewal and the increase were to be separated.

Three vans hit the roads in the Pointes under a new program sponsored by Michigan National Bank. The Pointes Area Assisted Transportation Service offered inexpensive door-to-door rides to seniors throughout the Pointes.

After urging from residents in Grosse Pointe Woods and St. Clair Shores, the two cities made a resolution to seek funds to improve conditions at the sewage-laden Milk River.

The school board approved lay-off notices for 723 teachers, administrators, office personnel, classroom and library assistants, paraprofessionals, non-instructional supervisors and plant and cafeteria personnel. The notices were to fulfill contractual obligations; if voters didn't approve the millage, the schools would have had to close their doors.

After months of discussion and a letter-writing campaign urging cities to upgrade their emergency medical services, Grosse Pointe Park approved the purchase of two automatic external defibrillator units.

The Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling announced plans for its first Recycling Day. In addition to the plastics they had been collecting for two months previously, metal, glass and newspapers were to be collected.

May

Parents and teachers decided water from Grosse Pointe Farms and the higher cost of maintaining the aging water/sewerage system.

Grosse Pointe Farms increased the rate it charges the City for water from $3.2699 per cubic foot to $3.8354. The Farms increase is retroactive to Oct. 1.

The City's rate increase is also designed to raise funds for maintaining the water and sewerage systems. The city has spent $1.24 million over the past eight years on improvements to the systems. The funds have been raised through water-rate fees and investment revenues. No bonds have been issued.

to make a big push for the millage election. Instead of working to institute newer programs, the board decided to focus solely on getting the millage passed. A list of program cuts — including social workers, substance abuse counselors, one-third of all athletics, clubs and extracurricular activities — which would be made if the increase were to be defeated again, was released.

Five incumbents were re-elected in the Grosse Pointe Shores municipal elections.

John B. Artis of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, was named the new principal of Grosse Pointe South High School.

Students objected, but the school board approved changing high school final exam weights from one-seventh to one-fifth of the students' final grades, beginning in the 1989-90 school year. The decision came after six months of study and discussion.

Planners were astounded after more than 1,000 cars dropped off 2,900 pounds of metal, 14,000 pounds of glass, 2,800 pounds of plastics and 38,000 pounds of newspapers at the Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling's first recycling day.

Topsiders Uptown Cafe, formerly the controversial Cracker Jax young-people's bar on Mack in the Farms, closed its doors. The Liquor Control Commission earlier in the year found Cracker Jax guilty of several violations involving the sale of liquor to minors. The bar was ordered to sell its liquor license.

Four Grosse Pointe schools took the first steps in site-based budgeting, a process that allows individual schools to determine priorities for staffing, equipment and supplies. Later in the year, all Grosse Pointe schools were to institute site-based budgeting.

June

The dredging of the Milk River at Lakefront Park in the Woods began, shortly before an estimated 700 gallons of oil sludge was discovered floating in the harbor. Due to heavy rains, about 200 gallons of sludge poured out of the outdoor retention pool at the pump station and into the remaining Milk River channel. A $1,000 reward was offered for the arrest of the oil spiller which eventually turned out to be Eastland Center. The accidental spilling was the result of a leak in an underground fuel oil storage tank. Eastland agreed to pay for all cleanup costs.

After two years of discussion by the Woods City Council and residents, construction was finally begun on the Woods Community Center.

The incinerator was still closed, and costs were rising. The 1989-90 budget was more than $5.8 million, up $800,000 from the previous year's budget. The increase was for the higher costs of transporting raw garbage to a landfill instead of transporting ash.

Voters approved both the school millage renewal and the increase. Voter turnout was higher with the renewal passing by almost 6 to 1.

The Woods installed cameras at Ghesquire Park, some six months after the council approved the cameras as a means of controlling vandalism.

A $10,000 grant from the Garden Club of Michigan Fund of the Community Foundation of Southeastern Michigan to the Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling made a pilot curbside recycling program possible. One hundred homes in each of the Pointes and Harper Woods were asked to collect their recyclables and an outside collection service was hired to pick them up once a week.

The judge who was to rule whether the Woods' ban on pit bulls was unconstitutional, delayed making a decision due to a bottleneck of cases.

Citing accusations of political backbiting, a Grosse Pointe City councilwoman vowed to continue her plans for a party celebrating the 100th anniversary of the founding of the City. She said the City was incorporated in 1889, but the mayor and other councilmembers said 1993 was the year. The councilwoman and the mayor were running against each other for the City's top seat.

John Kastran, principal at Grosse Pointe North High School, sued two co-workers for slander after he charged they allegedly sent a memo detailing unprofessional conduct, charges he denies. The two countersued and both cases are still working their way through the court system.

Residents along the Milk River were told that county and state departments were investigating the foul odor and raw sewage associated with the river and were looking for ways to take care of those problems.

Next week, the rest of the year.

Farms council tackles several issues in 1989, looks to 1990

By Dan Jarvis
Staff Writer

As 1989 draws to a close in Grosse Pointe Farms, several civic projects are already in the works for 1990. When looking at the progress of the Farms City Council and various commissions during the year, Councilman Gregg Berendt and Mayor Joseph Fromm said the two most notable issues this year were Hill parking and property maintenance.

More parking for the Hill
Increased parking for the Hill area has been a subject of discussion for several years; the current city government actually began forming possible solutions about a year ago.

Actual renovation of the city's largest civic owned parking lot behind retail shops on the Hill began the week before Labor Day. Along with an increase of 14 parking spaces in the municipal lot, the city installed a brick walkway and plans to install new lighting and landscaping. The lot's utility poles will be removed in the spring of 1990 with all utility lines serving the lot and adjacent shops being run underground. Though the project has suffered cost overruns and scheduling delays, the total tab for the renovation is now pegged at about $275,000.

Along with the parking lot renovation, the city council approved the recommendation by the city's ad-hoc parking committee to raise parking meter rates by 50 percent in several areas. Also approved were several price structures which encourage short-term parking for shoppers while discouraging long-term parking for Hill employees.

The committee's recommendations included the cancellation of several monthly leased parking spaces in the municipal lot, though the City Council will reconsider establishing a number of leased spaces in June 1990. Meanwhile, Cottage Hospital in a cooperative agreement with the city has provided space for several leased parking spaces, though Hill employees now have to pay more for the spaces.

Exterior Property Ordinance

Councilman Gregg Berendt is being credited with much of the work leading to the formation of the city's recently approved exterior property maintenance code.

Pressured by residents concerned with maintaining and increasing property values, the City Council in June approved the ordinance which requires homeowners to maintain painted surfaces, keep yards free of rubbish and provides strict regulations for vehicle storage, controlling weeds and rodent control.

Mayor Joseph Fromm said the property code was the toughest job completed by the council in 1989. Fromm added that the council took into consideration the elderly who may have physical and financial difficulties in maintaining exterior property.

Out with the old, in with the new

The Farms Ordinance Committee did some much-needed housecleaning in 1989. Berendt, also an ordinance committee member, said several ordinances which are no longer applicable to today's lifestyle were stricken from the books as committee members discussed parking and property maintenance.

An ordinance regulating the dating of milk being delivered by horse drawn wagon and another ordinance regulating the care of live chickens in stores within the city limits were broomed out.

The ordinance committee also updated and increased several fines to "put teeth into several ordinances," Fromm said.

Valet parking regulations

Also in June, the City Council approved an ordinance regulating valet parking in the city. Not only were the regulations for application stiffened, but once approved, the valet operators must adhere to strict regulation and must re-apply for the valet license once a year.

Among the regulations is a ban on parking cars on residential streets or in metered areas unless permission is granted by the city's director of public safety.

Valet parking operators violating any section of the ordinance may face a $500 fine for each day the violator exists.

In October, the council approved two applications for valet service, the ONE23 restaurant and Cottage Hospital's emergency room entrance area.

Advanced life support

Though the City Council began thinking about improving ambulance service in early March, it was several months before the Farms added advanced life support to the public safety department.

At the urging of local health care professionals, the City Council agreed to accept an automatic defibrillator so that emergency medical technicians would be able to revive a patient at the scene. Public safety officers are now near the completion of EMT training.

Prior to the acceptance of advanced life support, ambulance personnel in the Farms simply transported patients to one of the three local hospitals. As was often the case, by the time patients arrived, it was often too late for them.

Advanced life support now enables EMTs to effectively save the life of a heart attack victim on the scene. Council members and health care workers agree that the provision will save many lives in the years to come.

A grand old flag

This year the Farms became the first of the five Grosse Pointes to design and manufacture its own flag. At the recommendation of the Michigan Municipal League, the Farms Beautification Commission considered several designs and will soon fly the flag at the Farms City Hall.

Roads to the future

The City Council in mid-year approved street paving repair for seven residential streets and the three-way intersection of Williams, Moran and McMillan. Though much of the work is yet to be completed, the Farms has contracted and completed new curbing along Kercheval between Provencal and Moross and has resurfaced several areas with asphalt.

Also approved was the formation of a special assessment district on U-shaped Colonial Court. At the urging of residents, the city approved the district under which the city paved and re-curbed the street while residents funded a portion of the sidewalk repairs. The completed project, though costly, is considered successful by both residents and city officials, Fromm said.

The Farms council and various commissions are studying several improvements for 1990. Some may be ready for discussion in the spring while others, such as a redesign of the parking area at Mack and Moross, may have to wait until later.

1989 is year of recognition for long-time Shores officials

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

1989 was a year for recognizing the contributions of a century of elected service by officials in Grosse Pointe Shores.

At the village's annual luncheon last week, Shores President Edmund M. Brady Jr. and the Village Council recognized three men whose combined elected service adds up to nearly 100 years.

Carl Hedeon has served as a village trustee and chairman of the pension committee and continues to serve as supervisor of Lake Township.

C. Bradford Lundy, Village president pro tem, was recognized for his 25 years on the council. An avid bowler, he was given a bowling bag and ball as a gift from his peers on the council.

Gerald Schroeder, who resigned as village president a year ago, was recognized for his 34 years on the council, including 17 years as president. In his honor, the ball fields behind the village hall have been renamed the Gerald C. Schroeder Athletic Field.

Brady, who replaced Schroeder as president, is completing his first full year as the top village officer. He said it's been a busy year for him.

In order to acclimate himself with village business, he's been attending meetings with department heads, committee members and his fellow trustees. He has also been involved in Grosse Pointe-wide concerns by attending the monthly mayors' meetings.

and his fellow trustees. He has also been involved in Grosse Pointe-wide concerns by attending the monthly mayors' meetings.

Brady said he is very pleased with the work of all the village trustees and their leadership on their various committee assignments. He complimented Village Manager Michael Kenyon, Public Safety Chief Daniel Healy and other village department heads and employees for their work throughout the year.

This year saw the completion of the Lakeshore resurfacing. Also completed was the landscaping and sprinkler system along the boulevard. Brady complimented the Beautification Commission and the Grosse Pointe Shores Improvement Foundation for their efforts along Lakeshore and elsewhere in the community.

The foundation's most recent project — new lampposts at the Lakeshore intersections — will be almost completed in 1989. The new lampposts with streets signs just arrived, Brady said, and installation should begin.

Grosse Pointe Shores enhanced its emergency medical service with the addition of an automatic heart defibrillator, which has the potential to increase the survival rate of heart attack victims.

The Public Safety Department successfully negotiated a new 12-hour shift system, which will save overtime and increase the amount of manpower available when it goes into effect Jan. 1.

The May election in the village saw a large field of candidates, a large turnout and five incumbents re-elected.

"Our community is keenly interested in how the village runs," Brady said. "They should be very proud of our community."

School programs 'come of age' in 1989

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

During the past year, the Grosse Pointe schools saw a millage defeat and an approval, giant strides toward a new library, the beginning of a program to bring the schools into the 21st century and the loss of a superintendent.

"It really has been a year where a lot of things that have been started in previous years came of age," said Superintendent John Whritner.

"But if there's anything that I'm particularly excited about, it's the coming together of the library project."

The $7.1 million project — which includes building a new library at Brownell Middle School, selling the facility at 389 St. Clair where the school board's current offices are, and use of that money to move the offices to the Breuer Building which currently serves as Central Library — has been discussed by various committees for a few years and will start moving ahead in January.

Whritner called the progress of the project "glacial, with molecules going in 20 million different directions. But now it's exciting; the molecules are lining up and the movement will be lickety-split now."

"All of a sudden it seemed to coalesce into a common project." In January, the board will receive a report from Ketchum, Inc., a private fundraising company, which will detail results of a study regarding how much money can be raised privately for the project.

If the amount is substantial, the board must decide whether to put off the project while Ketchum starts raising the money. If the amount of private dollars estimated by the Ketchum report does not justify the money the district would have to pay Ketchum for its services, voters may get a chance to vote on a bond issue this June.

Also in January, the board will receive a report on how it will conduct its search for a new superintendent.

Whritner, who has been school chief for nearly five years, accepted the top school position in the Greenwich, Conn., school district. Although he said he was pleased with his position here, he wanted to be nearer to his family.

"This is another opportunity for the (Grosse Pointe) schools," he said.

High School 2000, a program whose goal is to design a high school curriculum for the future was delayed by various problems. But now, with a $50,000 grant from the state board of education, the program, which is being conducted by the two high schools, can proceed full speed ahead.

The goal of the program, Whritner said, is to determine what skills students attending high school in the year 2000 would need and to start gearing programs in that direction.

"The grant will allow the staffs at the two high schools to do some summer work and pull it together and get it going," Whritner said.

A pilot on-site budgeting program — where each school is in charge of budgeting money given them by the board — was successfully completed and will now be expanded to the entire school system.

"It worked quite well, and it's good for the board, too; they get into the nitty gritty of each school's budget," he said.

The Curriculum Coordinating Committee is maturing and becoming comfortable with its place in the system. Whritner said the CCC is learning which questions to ask and what to look for before it sends something to the school board for approval.

Other school news included the slander suit filed by Grosse Pointe North High School Principal John Kastran against two co-workers. He claimed the two teachers defamed him by writing a memo detailing alleged unprofessional conduct by Kastran. The teachers denied writing such a memo and filed a countersuit against Kastran. The suits are currently pending in court.

The school system survived a millage defeat in April as voters approved the same request two months later, in June.

"That was bad news for a while, but at least that ended up well," Whritner said.

In other news, Pierce Middle School turned 50 this year and completely refurbished its auditorium, much of the work done with private donations; Dr. John Artis was named principal at Grosse Pointe South High School, Dave King was named principal at Ferry Elementary School and Christian Fenton

Woods resident caught in Panama crossfire safe

By Dan Jarvis
Staff Writer

When American forces began invading Panama's capital city last week, Grosse Pointe Woods resident Jerome Drolshagen hit the dirt.

A volunteer worker for Covenant House, a goodwill organization that helps feed poor children in Panama City, Drolshagen and fellow volunteers were pinned down by gunfire during the early hours of the invasion.

After about 10 hours of crossfire by American and Panamanian troops, a Catholic priest led Drolshagen and several Covenant House volunteers to safety in a nearby church.

Drolshagen had been in Panama only six weeks when the now ousted leader Manuel Noriega declared himself the "maximum leader" and began a campaign of terror in which American servicemen were killed and the family of another serviceman was threatened and beaten.

When President George Bush sent in troops, Drolshagen was just across the street from Noriega's Presidential Palace and close to the Panama Defense Forces headquarters, a main target for U.S. forces.

Drolshagen's mother, Janet, also a Woods resident, said she had to wait nearly three days before hearing from her son.

"We are very glad," Mrs. Drolshagen said. "Our prayers have been answered. We spoke to him for the first time since the war started. He said there was lots of looting and gunfire but he's safe. He's in a church with about 800 people who went in seeking refuge. When the gunfire lifted somewhat, a Catholic priest, Father Ellis, came into Covenant house and led the volunteers to the Santa Anna Catholic Church, located nearby."

Jerome Drolshagen, a former Jesuit seminarian, called his family as soon as he could to say that he was safe and wanted to come home soon.

"He said the war seems to be dying down now, but there is a state of anarchy and disorder," she said. "Now he has to make a decision on when it is safe to go to the airport."

Though the Drolshagen family hopes to see their son for Christmas, they are taking comfort in the fact that he is safe.

"It's just a matter of time before we can get him home," Mrs. Drolshagen said.

Strowger to study Brazilian economy

Ryan Strowger, a Grosse Pointe Shores resident in his sophomore year at Colby College in Waterville, Maine, will examine the range of economic problems facing Brazil, by touring parts of the country during the month of January.

He and other Colby students will hear lectures on Brazilian inequality, trade, labor and macroeconomics. During the second week, students and Assistant Professor Patrice Franko Jones will travel to the rainforest region and northeast to Salvador, a backward agricultural region. The group will learn the economic contrasts in Brazil as it tours the rich industrial and agricultural south.

Colby adopted the nation's first January program of independent study in 1960, and since then the Jan Plan has seen students pursue formal courses on campus and embark on independent studies across the globe.

Jan Plan provides both students and faculty a change of pace from the two regular semesters. Students enrolled in the Jan Plan can develop their individual intellectual strengths, pursue specialized topics and interests, explore other countries and investigate potential careers through courses, independent study or field study internships.

An economics major, Strowger is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Strowger of Grosse Pointe Shores. In addition to the Brazilian trip this January, Colby students are traveling and studying in Europe, Greece and Mexico, as well as in Washington, D.C., New York and the Mojave Desert in California.

War Memorial to close for week

The War Memorial will be closed to the public Monday, Jan. 1 through Sunday, Jan. 7.

The center will reopen at 9 a.m., Monday, Jan. 8 with a new calendar of classes, workshops, lectures, travel opportunities and special events.

The War Memorial staff uses the semi-annual closing to repair and refurbish the War Memorial facility, a registered historic site, built in 1910 as the residence of the Russell A. Alger Jr. family.

Since 1949, the War Memorial Association has served the Grosse Pointe community as a non-profit civic, cultural and educational organization honoring Grosse Pointe veterans of World War II, Korea and the Vietnam conflict.

Six times yearly, the association sends its calendar of events to all households in the Grosse Pointe school district. If you have not received your copy of the War Memorial's January/February calendar, call the Development Office at 881-7511, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m.-9 p.m.

During closing, registrations will be handled by mail. The War Memorial is located at 32 Lakeshore in the Farms.

School issues dominated the news in '80s

If we take a broad view of news developments, the problems of the Grosse Pointe School District had more impact on the Pointes than any other continuing story in the community in the 1980s.

The district was in transition during the decade as its school population continued a drastic decline that led to a long and bitter controversy before the closing of Barnes Elementary School ended an unhappy chapter in the history of the local public school establishment.

Yet as the decade neared its end, it appeared that school enrollment was about to begin another rise although it is not likely to reach the record proportions of the 13,300-plus mark achieved in the early 1970s.

Steady increases in enrollment of the elementary grades in the late 1980s even prompted the raising of the question of whether it might be necessary to reopen Barnes, closed since 1984, if the growth continues.

But the Pointes now are almost built, with few open lots left and not even very many estates available for conversion into housing developments. Between 1970 and 1980, the Pointes lost 12.4 percent of their combined population, dipping from 58,899 to 51,588, and it is doubtful that even the housing developments of the 1980s have accommodated an increased population in our aging community.

It appears unlikely, however, that any differences of opinion about reopening Barnes will arouse the bitterness that resulted when the school board in the early 1980s first proposed closing four elementary schools, later trimmed that number to three and then finally "compromised" by closing only Barnes.

In fact, that decision was finally made only after the defeat of the attempted recall of three board members that also aroused emotional reactions until reason returned and community peace once more prevailed.

Yet accommodating the schools to a changing population was only one of the district's problems. During the decade, it shifted superintendents three times (actually, four if the seven-month service of an interim superintendent is included) and ended the decade with another search under way for a successor to Dr. John Whritner. He recently resigned to become superintendent of the Greenwich, Conn., system in March 1990.

Changing superintendents three times in a decade appears to be unusual in a district with the excellent reputation of Grosse Pointe, and yet nationally, superintendents in today's world tend to serve only about three years.

At any rate, this time the board's search committee is taking a hard look at possible local candidates in the hope of avoiding another costly national search and shortening the time that a new school chief requires to get acquainted with his new responsibilities.

The Pointes also were affected by Michigan's recession and the nationwide revolt against property taxes when they defeated two school proposals at the polls during the 1980s.

The first to go down to defeat was the proposed bond issue to build a new library which, of course, is administered by the school board. Revised plans now are for another vote either next spring or by early 1991 on a less costly library expansion plan.

The second school issue to be defeated at the polls was the proposal that sought to combine a millage renewal with an increase in the millage. Fortunately, a second election that separated the issues finally resulted in approval of both just last June but only after a vigorous campaign by the supporters of the issues.

Other changes such as curriculum improvements, lengthening the school day, new emphasis on drug and alcohol control as well as election of new board members helped keep school news in the public eye.

In addition, abortive state efforts to increase state funding for the schools and even put a cap on local school funding aroused community interest and opposition. Pointers saw the proposed cap as an effort to increase state control and mandate mediocrity rather than excellence. Fortunately, the plan went down to a resounding defeat in a statewide referendum.

Yet education problems remain as a major concern as the community and state move into the 1990s. With society facing more complex problems and employees needing greater basic and technical training, Michigan must take moves to improve the opportunities of all young people, not just those in favored communities such as Grosse Pointe.

The question is whether Michigan's leaders in politics, education, business and other fields will be able to agree on a program to achieve these goals. If they fail, the prospects of a real and permanent recovery in Michigan's economy and improvement in its social structure are not very bright.

'Gifts' from two Scrooges

Just before Christmas, in accordance with long-standing custom, the state and federal governments once again this year sent taxpayers their new individual income tax forms. As a consequence, both qualify as two of the worst "Scrooges" of the holiday season.

The rationale for delivery of the unwelcome forms at this time is, of course, that the tax year is just ending and that people ought to have the opportunity as soon as possible to begin figuring out the additional amounts they will owe to the Internal Revenue Service and the state Department of the Treasury.

Our view, however, is that it would be more pleasant for taxpayers if both the state and national tax collectors deferred sending out their 1989 tax bills until early in the new year. Then taxpayers could get all the bad news at once. They would get their tax bills along with the bills for Christmas presents.

It may not be a real consolation to taxpayers, but the state once again uses the tax form to help inform taxpayers as to where their money goes as well as where it comes from. The largest share of the fiscal year 1988 state revenues comes from the income tax which accounts for 27.9 percent of the total or $3.573 billion. Second biggest source of revenues are sales and use taxes, which account for 22.6 percent of the total or $2.893 billion.

And where does all the money go?

Well, the Blanchard administration has been publicizing the large amounts it spends for education and its figures bear out the claim. The largest share of our tax dollar, $4.169 billion, or almost one-third of the total, is distributed to finance education at all levels. Human services account for the second largest share, $2.394 billion, with transportation and health services each receiving more than $1 billion.

Uncle Sam does not provide any such breakdown although, as might be expected, the federal form provides 48 pages of instructions as contrasted with the state's total of less than half that number.

The federal return also warns that at the time the instructions were being printed, Congress was considering changes that affect both the capital gain and supplemental Medicare premium and that, as a consequence, supplemental instructions will be issued by IRS.

As we now know, Congress did not change the capital gain provisions but it repealed the supplemental Medicare premium that would have cost those eligible substantial additional amounts if they had been required to pay at least $150 in income taxes.

But does this specific information make you feel any better about paying your own individual income tax bills? Probably not, even though it is some consolation to know that most of the state and federal tax money does go for needed services.

A difficult call in Panama

For President Bush, the decision to send U.S. troops into Panama must have been a tough call, especially just before Christmas.

Yet most Americans apparently approved of the decision and justified it on the grounds that the president used in explaining his action. It was, he said, not only an attempt to bring the Panamanian dictator, Manuel Noriega, before U.S. courts to face drug trafficking charges, but it also was a necessary action to protect U.S. citizens in Panama and to secure the Panama Canal itself.

There has been the expected outcry from Panama's neighbors and other Latin American nations that tend to see a revival of Yankee imperialism in any unexpected move by the United States in their hemisphere.

Britain and Canada, on the other hand, expressed their support although other European and American governments either expressed regret or declined to accept the president's explanations at face value.

As the death toll mounted, there was increased criticism on the home front and the strong domestic support for the military action appeared to decline. But with Noriega turning himself in to the Pope's envoy in Panama to seek political asylum, there was hope that the organized resistance to the U.S. presence was ending as well.

There are two important points to remember: First, Noriega had imposed a puppet president on Panama and, second, Guillermo Endara, the duly elected Panamanian president and his vice presidents who had won office by a 3-to-1 margin earlier this year, had been deprived of their offices by the Panamanian dictator and his "Dignity Battalions," the name Noriega applied to his political goon squads.

Along with those who expressed regret at the U.S. use of force, we wish the action had not been necessary, especially not just before Christmas. But now we can hope for the early achievement of law and order in Panama, a restoration of democracy and a speedy withdrawal of U.S. forces.

As a world power dedicated to peace and support for democratic governments, the United States must avoid even the appearance of any modern-day "gunboat diplomacy" and exercise the restraint expected of nations that respect international law. Despite the criticism at home and abroad, the Bush administration can prove by its future actions that its aims in Panama are consistent with the best U.S. "good neighbor" traditions.

Living Nativity

To the Editor:

Another successful Living Nativity was enjoyed at Christ the King Lutheran Church this past Sunday. Despite the numbing cold weather, an estimated 500 to 600 visitors came to see the children in tableau, assorted farm animals and listen to the choirs.

It seems that each year has its unplanned incidents and this year was no exception. Three years ago, a recalcitrant cow refused to leave the security and warmth of its trailer and had to be "bull-dogged" off.

Last year, the big pink pig escaped and a not-so-merry chase ensued down busy Mack Avenue. The pig led the parade of excited pursuers for almost a block before being "hog tied." Needless to say, the onlookers were cheering for the pig.

So what happened this year? While the choir was loudly singing "Away in the Manger," the big white hen was stealing the show by laying an egg. To its credit, the choir never missed a beat. Someone chuckled, "Well, it looks like your Living Nativity just laid an egg."

At least it wasn't a goose egg.

Street parking

To the Editor:

I have recently purchased a home in Grosse Pointe Farms. As a new resident, I have been prompted to express my pet peeve to Grosse Pointe News subscribers.

I cannot understand why this affluent area where most homes have at least a two-car garage, has an over-abundance of cars parked on the streets.

It seems that many people forego using their garages and leave their vehicles parked in the narrow city streets. I have noticed several homeowners in my neighborhood have garages filled to the gills with miscellaneous articles while their $20,000 cars sit in the street.

Our neighboring community of St. Clair Shores prohibits automobiles to be parked on the streets between 2 a.m. and 6 p.m., leaving the neighborhood more eye-appealing as well as safer.

My family made the move to Grosse Pointe because of the beauty of the homes and the surrounding trees. It is quite disappointing to discover that our city streets are treated like a parking lot.

Married without children

According to our friends, my wife and I should be filthy rich, spoiled, pampered, impulsive and world travelers.

In our mid-30s, having been married for 13 years, both working and having no kids, we are what are enviously known as "DINKS": Double Income No Kids.

Our many friends who have kids coming out of the woodwork look at us as if we are living in heaven here on earth. A friend who's a mother of three remarked the other night, "What I wouldn't give to be able to just get up and go to Denny's at 3 in the morning."

I wanted to respond by asking, "Why on Earth would I want to go to Denny's at 3 in the morning?" but I kept my thoughts to myself. I knew what she meant. I understand (not through experience) that in order for the couple with children to go anywhere it's a major ordeal — especially this time of year.

First, the dirt has to be scraped off a little face that has a magnetic repulsion to a wash rag, clean clothes have to be forced over unwilling limbs and then the little guy has to be jammed into impossible snow suits. And once the ordeal is done, the little bundle of joy has to go to the bathroom, so layers have to be peeled off and the process has to be repeated. That's for just one kid. Add a second and third, and the fun expands exponentially.

Again, I have to repeat that I am not even pretending to talk from experience. And if I've missed some essential details through ignorance, please forgive my naivete.

I have had some experience with kids, though. I once took a 7-year-old niece to see "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" at the Royal Oak Theatre. We were watching her one weekend while her parents made one of those rare weekend escapes to salvage some semblance of sanity. So I figured a Disney movie was just the thing.

My wife offered to come along and help, but I told her not to worry. I was going to spend some quality, one-on-one time with my first niece, and I was fully capable of looking after a 7-year-old.

We got to the theater, and it being the Saturday matinee, there were wall-to-wall kids. A three-ring circus would have been less hectic. Minutes before the film was to begin, we found two of the last seats available in the middle of a row. We excused ourselves through a couple of dozen reaching, sticky kids to the empty seats, and we no sooner got settled when she said she had to go to the bathroom.

So back through the gauntlet of sticky fingers we went. Before she went into the restroom, I told her not to talk to anyone, to wash her hands and to hurry. I then stood outside and worried. I waited and waited and still no kid. Adults and kids went in and out, but there was no sign of the niece. Frantically I wondered what to do. Just as I was ready to get the manager to report a missing child in the restroom, the niece came out, acting like nothing could possibly be the matter. I asked what took so long, and she just shrugged her shoulders and said, "I don't know." Can you imagine?

Well, anyway, we finally got settled to watch the movie, and within 10 minutes she was bored and wanted to leave. Can you believe it?

At any rate, I'm not totally without experience with kids, so I get the general idea. Just getting up and going somewhere on impulse is not possible with kids. Our married friends with children marvel at the idea of jumping into the car and going somewhere, even if it's just to Denny's, at any time and without fuss.

Of course, they don't realize that even though we don't have kids, we're not all that impulsive. And we don't jump up and run to Denny's just because we can do so without great hassle.

Our friends with kids also think we are some kind of jet-setters, running off on weekend getaways to Toronto, New York, Chicago and so on. Although we do like Toronto, we don't get there as often as we would like. Such things as work, family obligations and affordability get in the way of weekend fantasies.

Those with children also think that childless couples have to be rolling in money. I wish that were true. I will admit, though, that the money we would have spent on shoes, doctor bills, school supplies and, ultimately, college is spent on ourselves. So I guess in that way we may appear richer than our friends with kids.

Of course, with Christmas having arrived, my wife and I get a dose of the cost of children. We had 11 nieces and nephews to buy for this year, and the number grows each year. And after dropping a bundle at Toys 'R' Us, we don't have any money left to spend on ourselves.

So I guess we'll just stay home again this holiday season and think about all the fun we should be having because we don't have kids. Merry Christmas!

Home delivery

Some Christmas spirit was home-delivered to Beth Ebenhoeh in the Woods. Bed-ridden with lupus, Ebenhoeh received a Saturday evening concert by the Cantata Academy, whose members were on their way to give a Christmas concert at the Grosse Pointe Baptist Church.

Ebenhoeh was only the most recent home audience to be delighted by the music of these 46 men and women under the direction of Frederick Bellinger. They recently returned from a tour of Europe.

More music

The DSO will host a special concert of appreciation for blood donors who give blood between Jan. 2 and 5. "Salute to the Red Cross" will be held at Orchestra Hall on Jan. 6 at 7 p.m. Donors to a Red Cross Center during the week will receive a pair of complimentary tickets.

Blood collections are usually low in December and January, although demand is still as great. To donate, call 492-2800.

Moms at home

Sometimes mothers who stay at home get desperate for some adult conversation. Here's a Grosse Pointer who'd like to do something about it.

Susan Graham, a stay-at-home mom herself, with a 10-month-old daughter, thinks moms could have fun and find support by getting together once in a while. It could help pass the long, cold winter months.

Interested moms can give Graham a call at 331-3758.

Don't worry, be happy not best advice

The holiday season can be full of phony cheer and stress for people with long-term problems. It's tough trying to look happy when deep down it feels like life's a mess.

Predictably, someone has studied this — and predictably, the study's title is jargon. But "Situational Determinants of Coping and Coping Effectiveness" doesn't have many suggestions.

The U of M researcher reports that most people don't approve of the song's advice, "Don't worry, be happy." It just doesn't help you cope.

"Positive reappraisal," the study's way to say "look on the bright side," is occasionally helpful, but more often surprisingly ineffective — and can actually interfere with adjustment to practical problems.

Apparently, thinking of ways to improve the situation can also make you feel worse, especially if you don't act on the resulting plans. In fact, most of the ways people try to cope with disaster only work part of the time for some people.

Maybe the old advice about stiff upper lips and grinning and bearing it and talking it out and praying and continuing to try in the face of adversity is the best we've got to fall back on.

Like they say, life's tough. Happy New Year.

Cut it out

It's never too late to stop smoking.

The Lung Association is going to give you one more shot at quitting with its annual Great New Year's Cigarette Send-Off on Sunday, Jan. 7. A doctor and a hypnotherapist will present a three-hour clinic of medical info, behavior modification and hypnosis.

Register quickly to assure yourself a seat. Send your check for $35 to ALASEM, 18860 W. 10 Mile Rd., Southfield 48075.

Even if you don't usually make New Year's resolutions, this is a good one.

Why people become addicted to drugs

"It must be considered that there is nothing more difficult to carry out, nor more doubtful of success, nor more dangerous to handle, than to initiate a new order of things. For the reformer has enemies in all those who profit by the old order, and only lukewarm defenders in all those who would profit by the new order, this lukewarmness arising partly from fear of their adversaries, who have the laws in their favor, and partly from the incredulity of mankind, who do not truly believe in anything new until they have had actual experience of it."

Because a large part of my job is to try to create "a new order of things" when it comes to attitudes which unconsciously encourage the abuse of drugs, these words strike like a chord. I believe that behavior doesn't change unless beliefs do, and I thank the Grosse Pointe News for the opportunity to write this column.

The challenge is to say something new about a subject that is discussed, analyzed, debated and dissected almost everywhere we turn. But the success of this paper's recent "Adolescents and Alcohol" series suggests that the Grosse Pointe community might welcome a local forum in which to examine this issue.

"Why do some people become addicted to drugs?"

"Why are so many people in our society becoming addicted to drugs?"

These are two very different questions, and they have different answers, as was pointed out by Mark Steinberg of the Michigan Office of Substance Abuse Services during the third part of the recent SAC² "Home Front" series.

Individuals probably become addicted to alcohol or other drugs as a result of a complex interaction between their biochemistry and their environment. To quote Peter Bell, another prevention specialist who appeared here during the SAC² series, there are three rather reliable predictors of whether a person will become chemically dependent:

1) The addictive potential of the drug. For example, we know that approximately one in six persons who drink become dependent on alcohol, but the rate of addiction to cocaine — or its more potent form, "crack" — is considerably higher.

2) The environment for use. How accepting is the society in which one lives to use of a particular drug? American society has been traditionally repelled by the use of heroin; nowhere do we see heroin use presented in a positive way; and heroin use has remained at a relatively low, level rate of about 4 percent of the population for at least fifty years.

On the other hand, cocaine was presented as quite glamorous for several years, and during that time use increased dramatically. Perhaps the clearest example of how environment affects use is cigarette smoking. Rates of smoking have declined in every portion of society except one: among people 12-25, the one segment of society in which smoking is still considered "cool."

3) Genetic predisposition. A clear genetic link has been established for alcoholism, bolstered by studies of human identical twins and the creation of "alcohol rats" who pass their addiction on to children and grandchildren. (We must assume that what the rats are passing on is neither poor role modeling nor a lack of self-esteem.) Less research has been done and therefore results are less clear-cut for a genetic link to other addictions. But it is well-known that the odds of addiction to alcohol quadruple if one has an alcoholic parent.

So what do these predictors mean to people like me who work in the prevention field? They mean that we must use education to inform people of the addictive potential of various drugs, so that they will know that some chemicals are too dangerous to try — even once.

They mean we must try to break through some of the mythology associated with addiction, which holds that it is purely a matter of will power whether or not one becomes addicted.

And they mean we must look very carefully at the "environment for use" of drugs of all kinds in our society. For I believe that it is this third factor which gives us the most hope for short-term change in reducing the number of persons addicted to alcohol and other drugs in this country today.

Let me say in closing that the use of alcohol and other drugs is a topic that is so emotionally charged for many people that even the title I have chosen for this column, "Sober Thoughts," has myriad connotations, from commendable to pejorative.

I hope this column will become a forum for the "sober thoughts" of readers as well.

(By the way, the words which begin this column were written in 1537 by a man who also had his supporters and detractors: Niccolo Machiavelli, in "The Prince.")

It wasn't easy, but our critic picks the decade's top 10

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

Choosing one's 10 favorite movies of the decade is a lot more difficult than it might seem. Pick a year. Any year. Now think of how many movies you saw during that year. How many of those movies did you really enjoy?

If you're like most people, you're left with at least a couple films that stick in your mind as especially memorable. Maybe the movies gave you a new insight. Or made you laugh as you never have before. Or made you cry as you never have before. Maybe you marveled at the special effects. Or at the artistry of the production.

Whatever the case, the laws of probability dictate that most people will see more than one movie a year that leaves a lasting impression. So when you have a period of 10 years to cover, and you can only choose 10 pictures, the task is immensely difficult.

But it's pleasurable, too, because what we're doing, in a sense is reminiscing. And even though all of these pictures are long gone, much like old friends, they'll never be forgotten.

Here, then, is my list of personal favorites from the 1980s.

in no particular order.

- "Blue Velvet" — it was obvious when it first came out and it's become more obvious in the three years since: This haunting picture about the dirty underbelly of small-town America is powerful enough to jolt even the most cynical viewers into the uneasy grip of reality.

- "Tootsie" — One of two Dustin Hoffman films on the list, this movie was a beautiful combination of comedy and insight. Hoffman's reading of the title character was inspired, and helped breathe new life into the old "what is a man" and "what is a woman" questions.

- "The Last Temptation of Christ" — This movie received a lot of publicity — mostly negative — when it opened. When all the hoopla died down, though, the lasting image is a film that made Jesus Christ more human — and more approachable — than ever before. A towering achievement.

- "Rain Man" — Dustin Hoffman was as strong as he's ever been or ever will be. Playing an autistic savant traveling across the country with his "normal" brother, Hoffman drew on many of his previous characters and his deep understanding of the human condition to make the film work.

- "Field of Dreams" — I believe this picture will be the American Classic of the 1980s. Few movies have captured the American spirit in its layered depth as well as this one. Baseball, family, the American dream. It's all here. Truly a film for the ages.

- "Amadeus" — where "Tootsie" used comedy to help us answer an important social question, "Amadeus" used it to help us understand the tremendous joy — and burden — of the creative process. Also, the performance of F. Murray Abraham as Salieri ranks among the best of all time.

- "The Killing Fields" — Set during the Khmer Rouge revolution in Cambodia in the early 1970s, this movie was second only to "Blue Velvet" in the power of its disturbing images. "Velvet" showed us the evil that can exist in our own backyard. "Fields" showed us that same evil can and does exist in the farthest corners of the world.

- "Mask" — The story of Rocky Dennis was told on the most simple terms. As memorable as the story itself was the soundtrack by rocker Bob Seger, whose liberating music became the essence of Dennis' spirit.

- "Return of the Jedi" — This was by far the strongest of the three "Star Wars" pictures, even though all of them were extremely special. This movie had everything — special effects, a love story, action and adventure, a hero's quest, humor. It doesn't get any better than this at the movies.

- "E.T." — Well, OK. This film ranks right up there with the "Star Wars" pictures in its unique magic. What viewer — of any age — was not taken with the simple yet profound lessons of this modern day fairy tale? This ranks as Hollywood Wonder-Boy Steven Spielberg's best work. He may never top it.

'Family Business' has fun examining father-son relationships

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

Boasting a three-star cast, "Family Business" gets off to a prestigious start with the story of a three-generation family of crooks.

There is Sean Connery, who in his younger years wowed the ladies as the handsome hero of the James Bond series. He has aged so gracefully that People magazine named him the "Sexiest Man Alive," quite an accomplishment for a man who fits the role of Jessie, a grandfather.

Dustin Hoffman, who won an Oscar for his "Rain Man" role is Vito, his son. Vito and his father have become somewhat at odds since Vito opted to go straight after spending a year in prison.

Adam (Matthew Broderick), whose career is on the upswing, is an MIT honor student who admires his grandfather. He resents his father and wants to join grandpa in what he thinks is an adventurous life of crime rather than pursuing the brilliant career which lies ahead.

He comes prepared for action. He has hatched a plan to pull off a theft at a Long Island research center that will net him, his father and his grandfather a million dollars. His idea sets off a family squabble.

Connery is all for it. He sees it as a perfect, fool-proof crime. Hoffman is angry at Connery for encouraging the scheme. He is worried and concerned because he learned the hard way that even the best-laid plans can go awry. He finally agrees to be a part of the scene to protect his son.

Determined that everything will go as planned, the three go shopping for the right equipment in a funny scene where Connery relates an experience of a burglary that failed. Father and son get into a hilarious argument over who was to blame for that incident.

The planned heist is a nervous excursion. They have trouble putting on their stocking masks. They disarm the guard, get past all the locked doors and elevators but when they reach the right floor, Broderick can't remember which lab holds the experiment.

What follows is a series of scenes that emphasize the basic theme of the film: a son's duty to his father and a father's relationship with his son.

Connery plays a dominant part in the film. His roughish charm is irresistible and never more so than in a scene where he is trying to coax Hoffman into chasing after a couple of females.

Hoffman has the difficult role of the frustrated father who wants what is best for his son and can't understand why his son resents him. There are scenes that belong to him alone, ones which he carries off well.

One of the main attractions of the film is the background against which the story is played, a background that clearly shapes the characters of both Jessie and Vito. When the film opens, the camera scans New York's skyline with its towering highrises, descends slowly and comes to rest in the streets of the lower east side, still a melting pot where both Jessie and Vito grew up tough as they struggled to find a better life.

Vincent Patrick, who adapted the film from his novel about three generations of Irish Americans, allows considerable footage of scenes in an Irish bar and Irish wakes where friends and families of the deceased gather in the parlor of the deceased's home to pay their respects, drink and sing.

"Family Business" delivers a profound theme of father-son relationships, but its main attraction is the fun viewers have watching it played out.

Despite DeNiro, 'We're No Angels' falls flat with big names

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

It is fitting and appropriate for Sean Penn and Robert DeNiro to lead the way in a film called "We're No Angels." Neither man is the picture of virtue; especially Penn, who has earned more of a name for himself by marrying and divorcing Madonna and popping photographers than making movies.

Still, off-screen exploits can be quickly forgotten when the performers do something significant on the screen. Unfortunately, this movie does not meet that requirement. Not only is "Angels" insignificant, it is bad. Really bad.

A pity, especially for DeNiro, who doesn't often lay eggs this big. The picture — which casts the men as escaped convicts who hide out at a Catholic shrine — allows them to do little more than stutter and mumble their way through lame dialogue and uninspired plot complications.

It's obvious from the movie's opening moments that neither Penn nor DeNiro are the smartest prisoners in their cell block. They're also clearly not the most dangerous, either. When one of their fellow prisoners tries to make his escape — and drags DeNiro and Penn into the uproar — the two stooges act as if they'd rather be safe and cozy in their cell.

Once they're out in the real world, things don't get much better. The setting is a town on the Canadian border in 1935. And in a series of mishaps, the two convicts who can barely think clearly enough to articulate their own names get mistaken for religious scholars by the priests at the shrine.

Apparently, nobody in the film is very smart.

And that, more than anything else, is where the problem lies. Perhaps we could put up with a couple dunderhead convicts, even if they are the film's principal characters. But when everybody else, from the prison warden to the local sheriff to the rector of the shrine all display the IQs of bricks, the movie is in trouble.

The picture does have fairly high aspirations. Penn and DeNiro, forced to stick around the shrine for awhile, begin to get religion in their own unique way. And the overriding theme here — that where there is faith and concern anything can happen — is laudable.

But it's not nice enough — or believable enough — to make us overlook all the problems. With the exception of one scene, Penn is as boring as he's ever been. DeNiro, meanwhile, is as lifeless as we're ever likely to see him in the movies. And in a supporting role, Demi Moore is one-dimensional and predictable.

As a comedy, "We're No Angels" falls about as flat as any film in recent memory. Given the big-name status of the stars involved, a strong case could be made that this film will do for them what "Ishtar" did for Dustin Hoffman and Warren Beatty. Namely, nothing.

Personal shopper will run errands, buy groceries, wrap gifts

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Elaine Caulfield had been thinking about the idea for five years, ever since she read an article about it in a woman's magazine.

A woman had opened her own business running errands for people. Caulfield, a mother of three who chose to stay at home, thought it might be a way to pick up some extra money.

Urged by her husband, Tom, she had some cards and fliers printed up. She calls herself Time Brokers.

"I really can't give a list as to what I do specifically," she said. "I do whatever the caller needs. A lot of people call me but they say they don't know what to do with me."

For various customers, she has purchased gifts, planned parties, bought groceries, wrapped gifts, taken cars in for repairs, even catered dinners.

"People have called me and said 'I need an apple pie for dinner,' so I make them an apple pie," she said. (She'll use whatever recipe you want, or one of her own.)

She has picked up and dropped off items at the dry cleaners, and picked up kids after school. She has even done some banking for certain customers.

Because she stayed at home, Caulfield said she did the same things for friends and neighbors who worked full time. Now, she's getting paid for it.

"After doing a lot of work for one man, he told me I was just like a professional wife," she said. "I do the things neither the wife nor the husband has the time to do. Professional people with families don't have time to do everything during the week, so their weekends are filled with stressful things."

"Who wants to stand in line on weekends when I can buzz in in the morning and get it done in half an hour?" she asked.

At 12 to 15 hours a week, the work has been "steady enough" for her, she said. She can choose which jobs to do and when to schedule them so she can be with her family when she wants to or needs to be.

The work, she said, has been fun, too.

"I enjoy being with people, and helping them out, especially the senior citizens, because many of them can't get out, but still need to do some shopping," she said.

When she shops for someone, he or she gives Caulfield a list. She encourages them to cut out photographs of the items from catalogues so she won't buy something they don't want. If she does, she returns it — on her own time.

Elaine Caulfield

Parties are planned with or without the assistance of the host or hostess, depending on each case. Caulfield not only helps plan the party, but also recommends caterers and wait-people.

Fees are charged by the hour and vary according to the task. Seniors get a discount.

Time Brokers turns one year old in January, and Caulfield looks back at a good start, and forward to a better year.

"I know I'm now in competition with (the home computer program) Prodigy," she said. Prodigy allows people to shop and place orders and do their banking at home through their home computers.

"But I think people like the personal touch," she said.

For information and rates, call Time Brokers at 822-5580.

New Detroit publishes small-business resource directory

A resource directory for small businesses has been published by New Detroit, Inc. and for local banks. The "Small Business Resource Directory for Southeastern Michigan" is a joint effort of New Detroit and Comerica Bank, Manufacturers Bank, Michigan National Bank and the National Bank of Detroit.

The directory is an updated version of one originally published about two years ago. Its purpose is to aid those new and small business owners who need help in obtaining funds or development assistance.

The directory gives a comprehensive listing of the many government, business and non-profit development organizations that serve small, minority or start-up businesses.

The directory is one component of the Minority Business Partnership Plan, the collaboration between various private and public sector groups in the area. The goal of the Partnership Plan is to provide access for minority businesses into the economic mainstream.

Copies of the directory are available at branch offices of the above-mentioned banks, or by contacting Ronald Hall at New Detroit, Inc., One Kennedy Square, Suite 1000, Detroit, Mich. 38226.

Educators eligible for scholarships

With the winter 1990 term (Jan. 8-April 28) rapidly approaching, the admissions office at the University of Detroit reminds elementary and secondary school teachers, administrators and counselors that they are eligible for half-tuition scholarships through U of D's "Educators Scholarship Program."

Once accepted under the program, scholarship recipients continue to be eligible as long as they are employed by a school.

More than 130 persons enrolled for classes under the U of D program during the fall 1989 semester, according to Randall Berd, director of admissions.

Now in its fourth year, the program is available to those pursuing undergraduate, graduate or doctoral degrees. For information on how to apply, contact the Office of Admissions, University of Detroit, 4001 W. McNichols, Detroit 48221. Phone 927-1245.

Looking back

I love to reminisce. While finger through the 1989 pages of the Grosse Pointe News, many memories were revived and replayed.

It doesn't seem quite right that time seems to pass us by. People come and go, and grow older, but memories are something that keep us all young.

It's unnerving to think of all the athletes who have passed through the system this year, but it's also exciting to think of how many of them set a record, drove in the winning run, or sank a free throw in the waning moments of a game.

Grosse Pointe turned out another award-winning sports season. It doesn't seem too long ago when the South Blue Devils won the district basketball title (March), the North girls' cross country team recorded another unbeaten season, the South football team made it to the state playoffs, the North girls' swim team finished No. 6 in the state, or when University Liggett School's girls' tennis team won its 10th straight title.

Looking back on 1989, I saw many things happen. I don't remember them all, but there are a few things I'm glad I was around to witness.

Let me share some of them with you.

- Joe Caldwell, South's point guard, stole an in-bounds pass and dished the ball to Andy Ament who banked it in for a go-ahead basket in South's win over DeLaSalle in regional play.

- Doug Wood and Shannon Nowowiecki became the first hockey tandem in University Liggett School history to score more than 100 points each in a single season.

- John Shefferly (140 pounds) of North finished third in the state wrestling finals.

- The millage increase passed after a first-vote denial, enabling the school system to maintain its fine standards.

- The South girls' swim team won the Brighton Invitational.

- North's basketball team lost to Southeastern in district playoffs. The Norsemen finished 10-11 overall, its worst finish since 1983-84.

- Traci Lee leads the South volleyball team past North, but doesn't have enough to beat Regina in the finals.

- Bill Leonard tosses a one-hitter for the South baseball team, and loses.

- The North baseball team won the Alpena tournament for the third time in four years.

- The Detroit Boat Club celebrated its sesquicentennial.

- Ken Meade's Renegade won the Chicago-to-Mackinac sailboat race.

- South's Pat Bruce broke the school record with a high jump of 6 feet 9 1/2 inches.

- The probation slapped on the North and South hockey programs was lifted.

- Jennifer Miller set a meet record (5:45.09) in the 1600 run as the ULS track team won the MIAC championship.

- The ULS boys' basketball team lost only four games, three of them were to eventual Class C champ Detroit Country Day School.

- North's Liz Bolden became the first Lady Norsemen to qualify for the state track finals in four events.

- Tony Giunetti led the Norsemen hockey team with 41 points.

- South basketball center Andy Ayrault signed a scholarship to play hoops at Wayne State.

- Robbie Buhl wrapped up the Barber SAAB Pro Racing Series championship faster than any other racer in history.

Grosse Pointe wraps up another sports year

By Rob Fulton

Although 1989 hasn't officially ended, it's still the proper time to reflect on what was.

From December to June, the following article is the first of a two-part series on 1989 athletics in Grosse Pointe. The second article, which will cover July through December, will be published in the Jan. 4 issue.

From last-minute shots to early season victories, North, South and University Liggett School athletes added to the established tradition of athletics in Grosse Pointe. What will come in 1990 is unknown, but what happened in 1989 will act as precedent or incentive for the future athletes.

JANUARY

- Kelly Gianunzio has 11 service points in the second game of a two-game set, as the North volleyball team beats South, 15-13, 15-5.

- Star of the Sea won the Catholic Youth Organization bowling championship for the first time ever. Sue Maldrige, Julie Jorgenson, Megan Lahey and Jackie Bakowski led the Tunas.

- Jason Serwa hit four 3-pointers en route to a game-high 20 points, as the North basketball team won at Romeo, 68-66.

- Chris Gramling had 21 points and nine assists as the South basketball team beat Utica Ford, extending South's record to 5-2.

- ULS was drilled, 64-44, by Detroit Country Day School, but the score was not indicative of the way the Knights played. Kevin Crociata led ULS with 13 points. It was the first of three defeats ULS picked up from DCDS on the season.

- In the first of two meetings, the North hockey team beat South, 5-1, behind junior forward Bob Beltz's two goals and assist.

- North gymnasts score their highest team total ever (114.65) in a win over Farmington Harrison. Soo Hur led North with a 6.9 in the floor exercise.

- Walter Gasser set a personal-best record in the 200 individual medley for the ULS swim team.

- Proposition 42, which attempted to make the rules for high school athletes entering college more stringent, was rejected.

- At McCann Rink, the Norsemen hockey team beat ULS, then ranked No. 5 in Class B-C-D, 7-5, as Beltz notched a hat trick.

ULS goaltender Mark Sullivan was superb in nets for the Knights.

Boating course begins Jan. 15

The Grosse Pointe Power Squadron is holding a nine-week boating course starting Jan. 15, 1990.

Classes will meet at 7:30 p.m. on Mondays in the Grosse Pointe North cafeteria. Registration will be at the first meeting on the 15th. There is a course fee of $20, which includes all reference material.

The Grosse Pointe South boys' basketball team highlighted 1989 by winning 19 straight games, the Eastern Michigan League championship and its first district title since 1981. Coached by George Petrouleas, the Blue Devils finished the season 21-3, losing to Southwestern in the regional finals.

- John Shefferly, who now wrestles at Central Michigan University, won the 140-pound division at the prestigious Mount Clemens Invitational.

- South hoop team continued to roll, 73-63, over L'Anse Creuse North. It was South's fifth straight win in the Eastern Michigan League. Andy Ament scored 33 points, blocked three shots and had eight rebounds.

FEBRUARY

- Mike Kisskalt gave the South hockey team a 1-0 lead with his goal in the first period, but eventual state Class A champ Southgate Anderson went on to win, 4-1.

- After losing to Cousino, 54-49, the North basketball team fell to 2-3 in the White Division and 8-5 overall. In that game, Charlie Stumb had 22 points.

- Doug Wood and Shannon Nowowiecki became the first ULS tandem to ever score 100 points each in a single hockey season.

- Peter Ellison won the 200 individual medley, helping the Norsemen swim team take a surprising second place in the American Division.

- North and South tie, 4-4, in the second of two meetings on the ice. Derek Farr stopped 31 of 35 shots for the Blue Devils and Brad Russell had two goals for North.

- Karin Kiefer's outstanding serves helped Star of the Sea beat St. Mary's, 15-13, 15-11, in volleyball.

- The South swim team, ranked No. 3 in Class A, slams North, 129-43, for its ninth straight win. Craig Winger, Ted Stedem, Brad Stedem and James Mello were first in the medley relay.

- With Andy Ament, Andy Ayrault, Chris Gramling, Chris Rowan and Joe Caldwell starting, the South basketball team ran off 15 straight wins, including 13 in the E.M.L. to run its record to 17-2.

- The North hockey team ran its record to 14-3-1 after beating

North's Steve Swan did a fine job for the Norsemen swim team.

Pioneer. The win also kept North's unbeaten streak at the St. Clair Shores Civic Arena intact.

- Bill Lucken snared 12 rebounds to go with 10 points as the ULS basketball beat Southfield Christian.

- The South wrestling team gets out of the E.M.L. cellar by finishing seventh in the league meet. Paul Kelley (103) won two matches.

MARCH

- Kevin Crociata and Kandia Milton scored a combined 43 points as the ULS hoop team ran its winning streak to 11, closing the regular season at 17-3 overall.

- The South hockey team is knocked out of postseason play by Trenton, 8-1. Jim Alderton had South's lone goal. The Devils finished 6-13-4 overall and 1-9-3 in the Michigan Metro league.

- Jesse Kasom notched the lone ULS goal in a 3-1 loss to Country Day in the regional hockey finals. ULS finished 20-2-3.

- The South volleyball team eliminated North, 17-15, 15-7, in district play, but couldn't get past Regina in the finals.

- North loses to Southeastern in the first round of district basketball play, 64-56, handing coach George Olman his worst season (10-11) since 1983-84 (8-13).

- The Grosse Pointe South basketball team beat Southeastern, 61-55, to win its first district championship since 1981. Andy Ament scored nine of the final 10 points, helping South win its 18th straight game since starting the season 2-2.

- Andy Walter swam a 22.57 50 freestyle, pacing the South swim team, ranked No. 5 in Class A, to its 13th consecutive win.

- Tony Giunetti, who led North with a season-high 41 points, and his North teammates, were eliminated from the hockey playoffs by Southgate Anderson, 4-0. It was the third time in as many meetings that North lost to Anderson.

- After beating DeLaSalle, 55-52, South was edged, 59-55, by Southwestern in the regional basketball finals. South had pre-

Volleyball teams being formed

Winter winds are blowing and snow is flying, but that's no excuse to stop being athletic.

More than 600 participants in three separate Neighborhood Club leagues are winding down the fall volleyball season, and are gearing for the winter games. Boasting the largest recreational volleyball program in the state, the Neighborhood Club offers leagues for women, men and co-rec players.

All games are played at Brownell Middle School. Currently, 12 men's teams, 30 women's teams and 22 co-rec teams enjoy getting together for an evening of fun and exercise.

MAY

The millage increase in Grosse Pointe finally passes, after a first-vote failure in April.

North scores 34 runs in three games to win its third Alpena Baseball Tournament in four years. The wins snapped a seven-game losing streak.

Bill Leonard pitches a complete game, striking out seven and giving up only three hits in South's 13-0 win over L'Anse Creuse North.

Eventual All-State shortstop Kevin Crociata has seven hits in three games to lead the ULS baseball team to a 5-1 record.

Christie Mack and Beth Stevenson combined for nine goals in North's 13-0 win over Cousino.

Pat Bruce won the high jump (6-2) at the Chippewa Relays in Mount Pleasant. Two weeks later, he went on to set a South record in the high jump with a leap of 6 feet 9-1/2 inches, at the Sterling Heights Invitational.

Martha Spiewak (97-6) and Laurin Schultz (84-6) take first and second, respectively, in the discus, leading North to a 70-58 track win over South. It was South's first defeat of the season. North moved to 9-0.

Meghan Brady scored both goals in ULS' 2-1 win over the South soccer team.

Karen Ehresman set a South school record in the hurdles as South advanced to 10-1 on the track season.

Both the boys' and girls' track teams at North won the Macomb Area Conference track championship. The girls were paced by Liz Bolden and Nikki VanOppens, and the boys were led by Scott Collins and Greg Donahue.

Gail Marlow drove in the game-winner as the North softball team beats Regina, 2-1.

Jennifer Miller set a ULS record (5:45.09) in the 1600 run as her team won the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference track title.

Jon Davis scored a hat trick as the ULS lacrosse team beat East Grand Rapids 10-4.

North's Liz Bolden becomes the first Norsemen to qualify for the state championships in four events. She went on to compete in the long jump, 800-meter run, 1600 run and the 3200 relay.

South and ULS both win regional tennis titles. South won six of seven flights, led by Lee, Nick and Emiliano Lorenzini.

JUNE

The North boys' tennis team finished tied for third at the regionals with 13 points, one point from qualifying for the state tournament.

After shelling Southeastern,

23-0, in predistrict softball action, the South softball team lost, 11-1, to Regina. Darcy Jones finished the season as the school's career holder in strikeouts.

Kerri-Sue Kelly finished the softball season with 139 strikeouts in 133 innings pitched for the Lady Norsemen.

Liz Bolden finished second in the 800-meter run at the Class A track championships.

ULS won the boys' Class C-D tennis title. All-State players included Doug Wood, Mike Niccolini, Paul Fozo, Bill Schervish, Dike Ajiri, David Allen, Ken Prather and Cheo Ramsey. It was ULS' 19th title in 24 years.

Brian Letscher tanks a three-run homer, but South still loses, 5-4, to eventual state champ Notre Dame in the district finals at North.

The ULS girl's soccer team loses in the first round, 2-0, to top-ranked Bishop Foley.

John Gordon and Jon Davis play in the East-West Lacrosse All-Star Game. Gordon and Davis had 29 and 32 goals, respectively, for ULS during the season.

Bob Schroeder left the South football program to take the head coaching position at Chippewa Valley.

ULS' Dike Ajiri was an All-State tennis player and an All-State football player for the Knights. He helped the tennis team recapture its state title, which it lost in 1988.

Super Shape instructors place in aerobic competition

Jennifer Burke, Peter Ianuzzi, Cyndi Davilla and Janet Miller, aerobic instructors at St. Clair Shores' Supershape Inc., all placed at the Regional Aerobic Competition at the Franklin Racquet Club in Southfield.

Burke claimed the Female Singles championship, while Miller danced her way to a third place. Davilla and Ianuzzi easily swept the Doubles Division championship — defending the title they earned at last year's first cyclic fibrosis aerobic competition.

Displaying aerobic finesse was not the only challenge the competitors faced. Each participant was also responsible for raising money for cyclic fibrosis. Once again, Super Shape's Ianuzzi and Davilla found themselves on top as they each donated $505, the second largest total.

Raising more than $7,000 in donations, the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation considered this year's competition to be yet another victory in the battle against the No. 1 genetic killer.

Super Shape brought in more than $1,600 of the total donation.

Moy earns karate honors

Chris Moy, 9, of Grosse Pointe, competed at the National Junior Olympic Karate Championships Nov. 10-11, and shared the team kata honors for his performance.

The championships were part of the national Junior Olympic program, which conducts events for youngsters age 16 and younger under rules and conditions which closely simulate international Olympic competition.

Brunner letters

Rob Bruner, a 6-foot-3-inch, 245-pound defensive lineman, recently earned his first varsity football letter at Bowling Green State University in Ohio.

Bruner, a North graduate, helped the Falcons to a 5-3 record in the Mid-American Conference and an overall mark of 5-6.

North's Mike Rancilio was the right-hander that opponents had trouble hitting.

Khelokian collects more ivy at Dartmouth

Dartmouth College junior Laurie Khelokian, a 1987 University Liggett School graduate, earned first team All-Ivy League honors for field hockey.

Khelokian finished the season tied for the league lead in goals with six. She was an honorable mention Regional All-America selection for the second consecutive year, as well.

Khelokian, a co-captain for the 1989 Big Green field hockey team, has been named co-captain again for the 1990 squad. In the season's final game, Khelokian eclipsed a 10-year old school record, netting her 14th goal to set a Dartmouth record for most goals in a season. She scored two or more goals in a game four times this season, including four against Lowell.

As a sophomore, she was Dart-mouth's top scorer with 11 goals and two assists for 13 points, leading the Big Green to a second consecutive Ivy title. That season, Khelokian earned second team All-Ivy honors. She was also a member of Dartmouth's 1987 Ivy championship squad. This season, the Big Green struggled to a 4-10-1 record.

A two-time Junior Olympian, Khelokian is an English major.

Bryant has been president of the Naval Academy Alumni Association for the past 12 years. Although he didn't graduate from the academy, his feelings for the school remain strong.

His brother, Stan, is a member of the class of '69 and is now a captain in the Navy. His brother, who went to Grosse Pointe University School, will take command of a large amphibious ship in February, Bryant said.

After 2-1/2 years at the academy, Bryant worked at Chrysler and continued to work toward a degree at Wayne State University. When he graduated from Wayne, he moved to Ford Motor Co., where he has been for the past 23-1/2 years, 23 as an engineer.

And Bryant is loyal to Wayne State — he is active with the Ford Wayne group at work. He also became a member of the Anthony Wayne Society last year, a group of donors who have each pledged $10,000 to the school.

St. Columba Episcopal Church on Manistique in Detroit, where Bryant has been a lifelong member, is another institution which he actively supports. He has spent evenings and Saturdays helping to maintain the building and its grounds.

He has supervised the renovation of the interior of the church building and the repainting — inside and out — of the parish house. He rebuilt the handicap access ramp that was knocked down by a truck and he has helped repair the sidewalks. His nickname among parishioners is Bryant Construction Co.

The area around the church has deteriorated and Bryant said, "We hope to keep going until things turn around. I think it's working because I see a few new faces."

He has been a member of the church choir for 38 years. He is also a member of the Christ Church-Grosse Pointe Chorale.

"I love to sing," he said, adding, "I know I'm only there because they're short of tenors."

Regarding the work he does for the various institutions, Bryant said, "I do feel people have a responsibility to help out. I know that I'm so lucky."

Bryant has two children, Cherie, who was recently married and is a teacher at St. Juliana School, and Arthur Ward Jr., an engineering student at Wayne State University.

Bryant, who says he is always busy, is a member of the Society of Automotive Engineers Speakers Bureau.

He also works on the Education Committee of the American Society of Body Engineers which sponsors a drafting contest for high school students every year. The contest, which last year drew 350 entries from 42 schools, not only helps the students, but helps the industry as well, he said.

He is a member of the Navy League Sea Cadet Committee and has gone on cruises the past two summers as an adult supervisor. When his children were younger, Bryant was involved in Little League baseball, Little League football and Indian Guides.

Bryant sailed in 15 Port Huron-to-Mackinac and Chicago-to-Port Huron races and he also sailed in the Saturday races on Lake St. Clair. He collects stamps and enjoys scuba diving and skiing.

And he travels. He has gone skiing in Europe and traveled to China and the Far East and the Caribbean islands. As director of Kendall Travel in Grand Rapids, Bryant knows he'll be traveling more in the future.

He's also part owner of Madron Lake Hills Winery, a small producer near Buchanan. The wines are sold at some of the best restaurants, Bryant said, including the London Chop House, the Whitney, Chez Raphael, Les Auteurs, ONE23 and the Rattlesnake Club. They're also available at the Merchant of Vino.

At the International Eastern Wine Competition in Watkins Glen, N.Y., in 1968, Madron Lake came home with a gold, silver and bronze medal.

"You just don't do that," he said, with obvious pride. "It has been a lot of fun. We are probably the best in the state."

Art Bryant is in the midst of organizing a major fundraiser for the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis. Proceeds from the opening night performance of "The Unsinkable Molly Brown" will go toward the new Brigade Activities Center at the academy.

House

their side yards expanded.

Prior to the Dec. 18 meeting, James Alle, an attorney for one of the neighbors and a nearby property owner, made a $20,000 offer for 547 Neff on behalf of the neighbors. Gilbride rejected the offer because it is much less than what Haberkorn paid for the property, he said.

The state equalized value of the property is $8,925, which is 50 percent of market value. The SEV, however, only includes the land because the house is beyond repair.

Gilbride points out that while eight neighbors have publicly opposed a new house on the site, a total of 43 neighbors within 300 feet were notified of Haberkorn's plans. He said that because only eight out of 43 voiced opposition, then the silent majority must not be opposed.

City attorney Richard Hinks, in a written report to the council, pointed out that the sentiment of neighbors cannot be considered as legal grounds for denying a variance request. Only the merits of a request can be considered. Neighbors' viewpoints are pertinent only if they shed light on the merits of the case.

"It is not intended as an opportunity to poll the neighborhood," Hinks said of a public hearing concerning a variance. "... the sheer force of the number and the vigor of their opposition should not be considered."

The petitioner for variances must prove that the applicable building restrictions pose a practical hardship. Gilbride points out that because the house cannot be repaired and the small lot cannot be built on, his client owns a lot that cannot be used for any purpose.

The inability to repair the house or build a new house poses obvious practical difficulties for Haberkorn, Gilbride believes, and deprives his client of his property rights.

Another argument expressed by neighbors is that Haberkorn knew that the lot was too small to build on when he bought it, so he brought the hardship upon himself. Hinks, however, argued against the neighbors' caveat emptor reasoning.

"Although Haberkorn purchased the property with knowledge of the zoning restrictions and, therefore, we might be less than sympathetic for him personally, he did not create the circumstances which have rendered the property non-usable."

The neighbors also resented the fact that Haberkorn does not plan to live in the house if it's built. He bought the property as an investment. But again Hinks argued.

"Mr. Haberkorn may have created the difficulty for himself by purchasing the land, but he did not create the inherent difficulty which the city would still be facing regardless of who had purchased the land."

Haberkorn's planned three-bedroom house has a footprint close to the same size as the existing house. He plans to get extra square-footage in the home by adding living space upstairs in the proposed 1 1/2 story dwelling. Neighbors believe the 1,607-square-foot home is too large for the site. Gilbride counters by pointing out that the ground-floor square-footage would be about the same as the existing cottage.

Councilman Peter W. Waldmeir asked whether a two-bedroom house could be built, but Gilbride indicated it wouldn't make sense to not take advantage of an extra half-story upstairs.

In his written report, Hinks pointed to several reasons why the Circuit Court may decide in favor of Haberkorn. One reason is that almost all of the homes on the west side of the 500 block of Neff are built on substandard lots. Another factor in favor of the petitioner is that rejection of building variances means that there is no use for the property except to add to the enjoyment of the neighbors on either side of the parcel.

Hinks said the chances of the city successfully defending against the appeal are no better than even, and the court action will be expensive. He further pointed out that Grosse Pointe Farms lost a 1988 case that was similar to Haberkorn's request.

The city attorney pointed out that while the threat of court action should not dictate the city's actions, careful consideration should be given whether this is the case upon which the city should take a strong legal stand.

Gilbride said it could take six to eight months before the Circuit Court decides on the appeal. He said the court could rule in three ways: It could affirm the city's denial; it could reverse the decision; or it could send the matter back to the city for reconsideration.

Cars stolen

A 1984 Pontiac 6000 was stolen Dec. 23 from the parking lot at Mack and Moross in Grosse Pointe Farms. The car was recovered the following morning by Detroit police.

In the Park, one car thief apparently abandoned a stolen vehicle in favor of another.

A police patrol observed a man leave a 1988 Chevrolet Blazer at Korte and Barrington and run between houses. The officers were unable to find the suspect. The Blazer turned out to have been stolen out of Roseville.

A short while later a 1978 Oldsmobile station wagon was stolen on Middlesex. Police believe the man they were looking for earlier took the station wagon, which was later recovered by Detroit police.

Where in Grosse Pointe?

How carefully do Grosse Pointers observe their surroundings? These seven items are local landmarks, of a sort. All are highly visible. All are in public places. Grosse Pointe residents have seen them many times. How many can you identify? How many can you locate? Do you know any of the interesting stories behind these items? Answers are on page 2B.

by Margie Reins Smith

The item at the left is decorative — today. What was it originally used for and where was it? The plaque at the lower left marks the location of the first Protestant church in Grosse Pointe. Where was it?

Trees like the one on the right are not native to Grosse Pointe. According to local lore, how did they get here?

The tree and the wall at the lower right are intimate, long-standing companions. Why was this wall constructed? Where is it?

This twisted tree — and others like it — is highly visible. It's located next to a well-traveled Grosse Pointe Farms thoroughfare. Where is it and why is it tied in a knot?

The animal at the right is one of a pair that guards the entrance to a well-used Grosse Pointe institution. Which one?

The carved letters at the lower right are on a public building. Where is it? What is it today?

It's not too early to plan spring and summer gardens

Christmas was fun. All the aspects of the day are a delight — the sparkle and lights, the trees and decorations, food and festivity, carols and candles, religious observances and secular partying. All are a part of this wonderful time. Now we look forward to a new year with all its possibilities.

In Victorian days Christmas was a time for churchgoing and family feasting. Presents were exchanged on New Year's Day. That day was also the time when hostesses gave lavish receptions and held open houses and all the gentlemen went from house to house to pay their respects.

The ladies vied with each other to decorate their homes for their New Year's Day receptions and flowers, greens and candles played a big part. Garlands of ivy and evergreen were often used as swags around the picture moldings of rooms and around picture frames. Arrangements of fruit and evergreens adorned mantels and door frames. The pineapple, a symbol of hospitality, was often included. Sometimes long festoons of holly or smilax were draped from chandeliers to the corners of the room and holly usually adorned the punch bowl at these festive gatherings.

Every country has its holiday customs and these are invariably maintained by American families according to their different ethnic backgrounds. English plum puddings and mince pies have become traditional holiday fare and German Christmas cookies are familiar to us all. One charming custom of Finnish origin is popular in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, which has a large proportion of Finnish families. It's called a white dinner and is held on Christmas Eve. The menu might include a white fish, potatoes, cauliflower, cucumbers, white breads and traditional rice pudding — everything white, with white flowers for a centerpiece.

Now is the time to think of our friends the birds too. Hang a suet ball from a tree branch and scatter seed and dried corn and bread crumbs on the snow for them to find. Holiday hospitality can extend to them too. Conventionally, we often take time as one year turns into the next, to served cold with almonds and cream. Rich in vitamin C, it is an important food in the depth of winter.

In a fascinating book published in 1909, called, "A handbook of Hospitality for Town and Country," by Florence Howe Hall, the introduction includes this paragraph: "Hospitality is one of the earliest virtues of civilization and one of the latest as well. Leaders of the peace movement recognize international hospitality as an important factor in promoting peace on earth, good will to men."

This is as timely for us now in 1990 as it was in 1909.

Spring seems far away in January and an early preview would be most welcome. Our winter flowers such as poinsettias and Christmas cactus will have their day long before the snow is gone.

Winter is definitely the time to plan next summer's garden and to polish up garden tools and wash flowerpots in preparation for the balmy days to come. This is very much a time to plan ahead. Even though we look out of our windows on a winter world of snow and ice and cold, it can somehow warm our spirits to see in our mind's eye, the flowers we will have in our summer gardens.

It won't be long now before the seed catalogs with their enticing wares will be arriving in the mail. We can hardly wait!!

Engagements

Black-O'Neill

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Priest Black of Grosse Pointe Farms have announced the engagement of their daughter, Pamela Priest Black, to Robert Gwinn O'Neill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles William O'Neill of Columbus, Ohio. A May wedding is planned.

Black graduated from Bentley College in 1982, with a bachelor of science degree in business communications. She is a member of Sigma Gamma Association.

O'Neill is a graduate of Miami University, where he earned a bachelor of science degree in English and political science in 1982, and New York University, where he earned a master of arts degree in English in 1984. He is a member of Delta Upsilon fraternity.

Where in Grosse Pointe? The Answers

The wheel is a millstone brought from France in the late 18th century. It was part of the original Windmill Point mill and was used to grind the grain for settlers in Detroit and Canada and for local Indians. During the War of 1812, it was placed in Lake St. Clair to keep the enemy from using it. The Lauhoff family donated the stone to the War Memorial about 20 years ago, and the Trial Gardens were planned around it.

The first Protestant church was built in 1876 on the southwest corner of Kerby Road and Lake St. Clair, although the congregation had existed for several decades. This plaque marks the spot where that church was located.

According to local lore, early French settlers in the Grosse Pointes brought seedlings for French pear trees. The trees flourished. A few grandchildren of these trees remain. This one is on Lakeshore between Cadieux and Fisher roads.

The twisted tree is one of several in front of Grosse Pointe Academy on Lakeshore. According to tree expert Jerry Abbs, a member of the Grosse Pointe Park Beautification Commission, they're all crab trees and were probably planted in the 1920s. "They're twisted because somebody pruned them as they grew over the sidewalk or blocked the street. Once cut back, the branches grew in a different direction. They're rather artistic, I think."

The lion is one of a pair that guards the entrance to the circular entrance driveway at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. The building was constructed in 1910 as the home of Russell A. Alger Jr., founder of the Packard Motor Car Co. After Alger's death, the spacious home became an annex to the Detroit Institute of Arts. It has been a community center since the late 1940s. The 90-year-old stone lions were part of the original Alger estate.

The tree which has grown over the wall can be seen on the north side of Fisher Road between Grosse Pointe Boulevard and Lakeshore. The wall was probably built in the late 1800s as a barrier for the noise and commotion of the interurban, a street railway transportation system that ran on tracks along Jefferson, up Fisher Road to Grosse Pointe Boulevard, across to Provençal Road and back to Lakeshore. The railway was diverted from Lakeshore to the "back road" because owners of prime Lakeshore property didn't want the railway to spoil their tranquil view of Lake St. Clair. The interurban went out of business in the 1920s.

Cadieux School, 389 St. Clair, is now used as the administration building for the Grosse Pointe public schools. The building was erected in 1906 as an elementary school, part of Michigan's District No. 1.

It was expanded in the 1920s to include a high school.

take stock of where we are and what we have experienced during the past year, and to plan and dream of what we can become. We must all embark on our individual journeys and only we ourselves know what our dreams for the new year are.

The turn of the year is the time when the world changes and you can be transformed. This is what the Cree Indians say: "You are the center fire... You are the flowering tree. Look forward to spring."

In the Scandinavian countries, particularly Sweden, where many towns lie north of the Arctic Circle, spring is anticipated at this time of year by bringing tree branches into the house and forcing them to sprout and leaf. Chicken feathers dyed in bright colors are fastened in little clusters to the branches, to simulate flowers.

In Scandinavia winter is a time of darkness and sunlight only makes a brief appearance in the middle of the day. In the days before modern transportation and food processing, fresh foods, with their valuable vitamin content, were often unobtainable for weeks. The famous fruit soups of Sweden were developed to meet this lack. One of the most popular has been nyponsoppa, made from the orange-red seed pods of the rose. It is

International Auto Show preview will benefit charities

Dr. Donald and Dale Austin of Grosse Pointe will serve again this year as honorary chairmen for the Northeast Guidance Center (NEGC) at the North American International Auto Show charity preview on Friday, Jan. 5, at Cobo Hall.

NEGC is one of seven charities (others are Barat Human Services, Boys and Girls Clubs of Southeastern Michigan, Children's Center, Detroit Institute for Children, Easter Seal Society and March of Dimes) that will benefit from the black tie preview party.

Proceeds are divided among the charities according to donors' preferences. The event is also sponsored in part by Gov. James J. Blanchard and Mayor Coleman A. Young.

NEGC contributions will be used for the School Success program, a project which aims to reduce the school drop-out rate by identifying potential drop-outs and intervening during the children's elementary school years.

Infant mental health is another NEGC project. By addressing family problems from infancy, the mental health of the child can be improved in later years.

Chairmen for the assistance league to NEGC are JoVona Cisco and Judy Rutan.

Tickets for the preview are $75 per person and may be ordered by calling 882-1607 or by calling Nancy Henning at 833-1525.

Northeast Guidance Center is an outpatient psychiatric clinic for children and adolescents, a service provider of the Detroit Wayne County Community Mental Health board. It serves children and families in northeast Detroit public schools and the five Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods school districts.

Barat Human Services is a United Foundation-supported organization which provides a variety of services to prevent or interrupt the cycle of child abuse. This includes individual and group therapy for children and adults and family therapy. Barat House also provides a residential program for 24 teenage girls.

Gallery gala: Carolers — and a doorkeeper in beefeater regalia greeted guests as they entered the Detroit Historical Society's 1989 Holiday Gala on the evening of Dec. 1, at the Detroit Historical Museum.

Proceeds will benefit Wrigley Hall, the Detroit Antique Toy Museum Gallery and the History Education Center scheduled to open at the Historical Museum in 1990.

Wrigley Hall will house exhibitions selected from the more than 10,000 toys in the combined holdings of Lawrence Scripps Wilkinson's collection and the historical department's own collection, including the Glancy trains.

Traditional holiday fare was the theme for the black tie event which drew more than 200 guests.

Steve Schopen of the Whitney Restaurant was the creator of the multi-course dinner which featured cream of mushroom soup, a salad of selected lettuces and fresh spinach in a hazelnut-orange vinaigrette, roasted beef tenderloin with horseradish, cream potato leek gratinee and vegetables. The Tin Drum Desert consisted of chocolate fudge cake filled with white chocolate hazelnut mousse, covered with cointreau butter cream and Grand Marnier white chocolate on top.

The evening's entertainment included an opportunity to preview plans for the toy gallery and an opportunity to shop at a 15 percent discount in the museum's gift shop.

MCF benefit: The Tribute to Michigan Cancer Foundation will take place on Friday, Feb. 2, at Penna's of Sterling Heights.

The dinner menu will feature beef tenderloin and cherries jubilee. Guests will dance to Joe Vitale's band, and they'll get a chance to participate in a silent auction for such goodies as a gourmet dinner for four, or some sports equipment, or a Florida condo vacation and more.

Tickets are $50. A limited number are still available. Proceeds from the evening will go for services to cancer patients in eastern Wayne and Macomb counties.

Suzanne and Lawrence Scripps Wilkinson are shown in front of a holiday display of toys from Wilkinson's collection. The Wilkinsons, who live in Grosse Pointe, flew up from Miami to attend the holiday fundraiser for Wrigley Hall, the Detroit Antique Toy Museum Gallery and the History Education Center.

Smiles: Two local dental organizations, the Tri-County Dental Health Council and the Detroit District Dental Auxiliary, recently joined to bring season's greetings to the children who receive care at the Detroit Institute for Children.

A giant holiday card, signed by well-wishers from the two groups, was presented as an expression of concern on the part of the dental community for the community at large, especially its children.

On hand for the presentation was Eve DePerro of Grosse Pointe Woods, representing the Detroit District Dental Auxiliary, a charity organization of dentists' wives.

Holiday reception:

Grosse Pointe Farms residents Peter and Elaine Schweitzer held a reception for friends at the Regency room of Birmingham's Townsend Hotel to commemorate the holiday season — and the 125th birthday of the J. Walter Thompson Co.

The Pastor's Corner

Listening for the '90s

By Rev. William C. De Vries
First Christian Reformed Church

It is one of those times again. A time of beginning and ending is here: an opportunity to look forward and backward.

We will never see the 1980s again. For the first time, we mark our passage through history with 1990s. I suppose I side with those who say the new decade doesn't begin until 1991. (The first decade began with the year 1 and ended with the year 10. There was no year 0.)

It is a larger beginning and ending in some sense than just a new year rushing at us.

If I were to characterize the '80s in the United States, I would say they were years of pride and security. We seemed bent on asserting our pride in accomplishment both personally and collectively as a society.

Not that we consciously overlooked or hid some of our shortcomings — but we wanted to find areas for pride. If other areas were ignored — well, we didn't want to slow our self satisfaction.

And both personally and nationally, security was a prime concern. We expended vast amounts of energy to try to see to it that we were strong against threats that face us.

The '80s were a good time for many — even most of us. We are able to feel good, secure with pride, about our situation and relationships. So much has really gone well.

But, as we enter the '90s, certain sounds seem to be getting louder and louder. Our society has an ever deepening relationship with chemical substances that destroy minds, bodies and wills. The drug problem is not just that dealers are violent, greedy people. It is that more and more families and neighborhoods are having the life blood slowly sucked out of them by a seductive parasite.

And the ugly cry of racism continues to disturb our images of a shining and free United States. It is a cry not only of bombings of civil rights activists, but the low moan of thousands on our door steps denied education, job opportunity and open access to housing. The reality of our bigotry comes back again and again in private conversation as well as public policy.

It is an important time to listen to the sounds around us. Listen to find direction for the future. Pride and security are good and important qualities. They are in the front line of things necessary as we continue our declared right and desire to the pursuit of happiness.

But equally vital to this pursuit are justice and mercy. They are more subtly related to our happiness. They often affect others first before we sense any benefit. But without justice and mercy, without a concern for fairness and hope for everyone, all else we seek will eventually lose its power and vitality.

It sounds to me like a good time to confront racism, bigotry, lack of hope and quick chemical fixes.

I wonder what you hear from the '80s and '90s. It sounds to me like a good time to find ways to really help the down and nearly broken.

Bridge

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION
BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD
THE PASTEBOARD PASTIME

The first conventional bid, as opposed to a natural bid, a bridge player learns is Blackwood Ace Asking. It is unquestionably the most popular and best known proclamation in the game today and it has held that rank for its lifetime.

Easley Blackwood, now in his eighty-sixth year of a marvelous bridge lifetime introduced his convention fifty-six years ago in 1933. It is a basic part of the bidding bag of the best, the better and even the beginners of bridge.

Unfortunately, it like so many artificial bids is abused too, especially by players who have never learned the basics. Nearly every user knows the standard responses which describes the number, but most who initiate its use (the hands captain) do so erroneously or prematurely. Hopefully today's column will eliminate much of the malpractice commonly associated with its use.

Many worthwhile variations have been added to Easley's fine bid, but for the sake of simplicity let's stay close to the original manuscript.

I. The 4 no trump bid is natural (quantitative) unless there has been suit agreement, either directly or by inference. The following are natural bidding examples.

North	South	North	South	North	South	North	South
1NT	4NT	1NT	2C*	1D	1S	1S	2C
		2D	4NT	2D	4NT	2H	3D
		*Stayman				3NT	4NT

The following are conventional (Blackwood) bidding examples.

1S	3S	1H	2C	1S	3H
4C	4D	2H	3D	3NT	4NT
4H	4NT	4D	4NT

II. Always proceed cautiously if the intention is to play a minor suit slam. Discretion must be exercised if the captain (the 4NT bidder) has fewer than two aces. Blackwood may be used with one Ace if Diamonds are the intended trumps, but not if it is Clubs because you could be overboard and forced to play an awkward five no trump.

III. The conventional responses to 4NT are:
5 Clubs None or Four Aces | 5 Hearts Two Aces
5 Diamonds One Ace | 5 Spades Three Aces

Never ask for Kings by then bidding 5 No Trump unless you can account for all four aces as this surely suggests an attempt at playing a Grand Slam.

DOPI

E	S	W	N
-	1S	3D	3S
4D	4NT*	7D!	-
-	7S	Passed Out

Let me suggest one variation that has significant value, especially if the opponents have bid. Over 4NT a 6 Club response shows no aces and a useable void; and 6 Diamonds shows one ace and a useable void. Usually this means the opponents bid suit. Of course, this eliminates the possibility of asking for kings so even the most simple variation should be discussed and comfortable for the partnership.

There are three traditional methods for dealing with opponents interference over Blackwood.

1. DEPO which stands for Double Even, Pass Odd. A double therefore shows zero, two or four; a pass shows one or three.
2. DOPI which stands for double with zero and pass with one.
3. PODI stands for the reverse of DOPI.

Today's hand is an excellent example of the Blackwood and DOPI convention hard at work for North/South.

Once south, the captain, bids Blackwood he's responsible for setting the final contract, but with West's aggressiveness it takes North's careful cooperation. 7 Diamonds in this columnist's opinion shows poor judgement. 6 Diamonds might very easily have convinced N/S that 6 Spades was a satisfactory elevation. Put to the test with North's pass of 7 Diamonds showing one Ace South gambled he had a strong play for 13 tricks (plus 2210) as opposed to a maximum penalty of 4 tricks (plus 1100). We like his evaluation.
