

North graduate witnesses Berlin liberation for Boston Herald

By John Minnis

Assistant Editor

When East and West Germans were dancing on the Berlin Wall Nov. 10, former Grosse Pointe Shores resident Harvey Dickson was there. When holes were being punched through the wall, he too had a hammer and chisel in hand.

"You realize this is a once in a lifetime thing to witness," said Dickson, who was sent to Berlin as a reporter for the Boston Herald.

As a general assignment reporter, Dickson covers a wide variety of stories, and his biggest pre-Berlin story was covering the 1988 presidential campaign featuring Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis.

"I thought that was the best story possible at the time," he said. "But this is real history."

Dickson, 31, a 1976 Grosse Pointe North High School graduate, said that on Nov. 9 when it was announced that travel was no longer restricted between East and West Germany, the Herald editors decided it was time to get someone over there. Dickson said he was called into an editors' meeting and asked if he had his passport and some clothes packed because he was going to Germany.

It just so happened, Dickson said, that he did have his passport and he had a suitcase packed in the trunk of his car. By the next day, he was dancing on the crumbling Berlin wall.

Dickson said that he had been pestering his editors with offers to go to Germany, should the need arise, so he kept his suitcase and passport handy and was pleased with the foreign assignment.

Even though he has nearly 10 years experience as a journalist, Dickson was nevertheless fortunate to be picked for the assignment. At many large dailies, a seasoned foreign correspondent would have gotten the choice Berlin assignment. But at the smaller Boston Herald — circulation 350,000 — Dickson had a couple of things going for him: He spoke German and he knew his way around Berlin.

He owes his fluency in German to his alma mater: Kalamazoo College. He said one of the graduation requirements is a study tour in Germany. So for six months during college he studied and traveled in Germany, including Berlin. He graduated from Kalamazoo in 1980 with a bachelor's degree in English and political science.

Dickson didn't plan to become a journalist. He said his first exposure to newspaper work was when he was asked in his senior year to be the college paper's editor. He's been in the business ever since.

He started his professional career with the Spinal Column weekly newspapers in western Oakland County. From there he landed jobs on a couple of small Florida dailies. A creative cover letter with plenty of blarney got his foot in the door at the Boston Herald in 1986.

Because of his past experience in Germany, Dickson said he kept up with the developments there and didn't let his communication skills get rusty. "I was at speed by the time I hit the ground (in Germany)," he said.

Of course, the first thing he did was head for the wall, where

Shores adopts building freeze

By John Minnis

Assistant Editor

The village of Grosse Pointe Shores is starting off the new decade with a six-month moratorium on all new construction and property splits.

The Village Council adopted the moratorium Dec. 19. The freeze on new construction will be in effect while the village master land-use plan is being reviewed and updated.

Village Manager Michael Kenyon said the moratorium prohibits the issuance of all permits for construction throughout the village. Permits will not be granted for new structures, new principal homes or accessory buildings.

The moratorium also prevents property owners and developers from subdividing properties into lots.

Kenyon said the moratorium is necessary while the village reviews and revises its existing master plan, which was last revised in 1956. Coincidentally, the chairman of the Planning Commission when the master plan was last revised was Edmund M. Brady Sr., father of current village President Edmund M. Brady Jr.

Kenyon said the master plan is being studied by an urban planning consultant. The urban planner will compare the old plan with what exists in the Shores today, will evaluate the village's demographics and try to forecast the community's land-use needs for the coming decade and century.

Gertrude Droege

By Dan Jarvis

When Gertrude Droege was growing up in Missouri, she had no idea her life travels would take her to Hitler's bunker in Berlin in the years following World War II. But she didn't go to Germany on a recreational visit. You might say she was on a mission from God.

The daughter of a church pastor in Festus, Mo., Droege learned the value of brotherhood at a very young age. But it was much later in life before she had a chance to positively change people's lives.

Because she speaks fluent German, Droege served as an interpreter and accompanied a team of religious volunteers. The group worked with American industrial and agricultural representatives in attracting talented people living in the Soviet sector of Germany to the United States following the war.

"We began by obtaining a list of families in the United States who were willing to sponsor a German family by providing food and shelter," she said.

The following year, 1951, Droege and fellow volunteers ventured to Wentdorf, Germany and interviewed 3,500 refugees who wanted to come to the United States. Many were living in burned-out, war-damaged buildings.

Droege said in some cases, entire families were rejected be-

Family seeks owner of Christmas dog

By Ronald J. Bernas

The McSheas don't know the name of the dog they've been harboring. So they call her C.C.

But they do know she's probably a pure-bred German Shepherd. They know from the way the pads on her paws are worn and covered with sores that she must have come a long way before camping on their doorstep a few days before Christmas.

They believe C.C. was a show dog because she is so well-trained, and knew how to stand when being groomed and even lifted her leg to aid in grooming. The veterinarian told them she is about 3 years old.

"She's such a beautiful dog, we want to get her back to her owner," Corlette McShea said.

The family first noticed the dog a week before Christmas, when temperatures were well below zero. Four days before the holiday, C.C. curled up on their front porch to take refuge from the weather.

They fed her and tried to bring her into the house, but she was skittish and ran away. They put blankets outside so C.C. could stay warm.

The police were called to take the dog to a shelter or a veterinarian, but no one could catch the dog.

About midnight, Corlette's husband Michael fed the dog out of his hand and the following morning enticed the dog into the house with a bowl of warm milk.

The police came and took the dog to the vet who gave her a clean bill of health.

But still no one claimed her. After four days, on Dec. 26, the family brought the dog to their home. She fit in beautifully and gets along well with the three kids and their parents.

"He never leaves my dad's side," said Michael Jr. "He's like his bodyguard."

Although the family is getting attached to C.C., they want her returned to her rightful owner, because they feel it's best for their Christmas dog.

"We'll be sad if someone claims her, but as long as they take care of her, and it seems like they have, that's all that matters," Mrs. McShea said.

If you think C.C. is your dog, call 882-3534.

Upgraded EMS, recycling, Milk River make news all year

By Ronald J. Bernas

Staff Writer

Much like the first half of the year (which we reviewed last week), the second half of 1989 was dominated by many of the same issues. Recycling, which was started with only a handful of supporters, was picking up speed and was the most discussed subject of the year.

The Milk River pump station needed, and still is in need, of expansion. Responding to pressure from residents, the councils of the Pointes upgraded their EMS services.

As the year ended, so did many of these stories, but some will continue to make news throughout this year, and well into the decade.

July

The ACLU announced it would challenge the public surveillance cameras in Grosse Pointe Woods Ghesquiere Park on the grounds that it was unconstitutional for police to constantly monitor parkgoers.

The Grosse Pointe City Council, after much deliberation and debate, officially established 1893 as the founding year for Grosse Pointe City. The vote put an end — so the council thought — to the centennial party planned by mayoral candidate Myrna Smith. Mayor Lorenzo Browning said Smith was using the party to gain support for her candidacy, which she denied. The party was held nonetheless, in August.

REACT, the Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling's pilot curbside recycling program, started. REACT was an acronym for Recycling Education and Curbside Test.

Grosse Pointe Park put the first of two new automatic defibrillators into service. The devices can increase a heart attack victim's chances of survival by some four times.

Gingerbread village

Karen Sullivan's fifth grade class at Ferry Elementary School constructed a gingerbread house village under the direction of Sharon Peters whose son, Michael is in the class. The students first constructed a frame out of cardboard requiring careful measuring. Students then used icing as mortar to attach the graham cracker sides to their homes. Then the fun began. The students used Life Savers, M&M's, crackers, miniature candy canes, nuts, red hots, marshmallows and countless other small candies to make the roof designs. All the homes were then given a name of a public building from a village such as The Roslyn Road Inn, The Bakery and The Post Office. The final step was adding rooftop snow, coconut bushes dyed green and cobblestone walkways for small candies.

Voters force biggest change in City last year

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

The rejection of two veteran councilmen by voters in November in favor of two political newcomers was one of the biggest changes in Grosse Pointe City in 1989.

Not only did the defeat of the two veterans put two new faces on the council, but the resignation of two councilmen in June meant two new members had to be appointed. So at the end of the year, the four new names on the city's governing body were Lisa R. Bradley, Peter W. Waldmeir, Dale N. Scrace and Carl Rashid Jr.

While Rashid and Scrace were appointed in June to fill the seats vacated by the resignations of John F. Youngblood and M. Jackson Morris, only Scrace faced the election in November. Rashid will face his first election in 1991.

In their first attempts for public office, Bradley and Waldmeir defeated veterans Robert L. Nugent and William N. Montgomery. Combined, the two men had represented the city for 28 years.

Mayor Lorenzo "Red" Brown easily won re-election for his fourth term as the city's top official. He was challenged by Councilwoman Myrna Smith, who gained recognition earlier in the year when she called for 1989 as the year of the city's centennial.

The council, after much debate, declared 1993 the proper year for the city's 100th birthday.

Other than the fireworks over the centennial party and the voters' revolt in November, maintenance and other chores occupied the city officials' concerns.

Due to low water in Lake St. Clair, the marina at Neff Park had to be dredged at a cost of $84,000 and disruption to boaters. Also at the city park, the bathroom heater was replaced at a cost of $6,500.

The city's aging infrastructure requires yearly maintenance. The city was able to save thousands of dollars through new technology. Instead of digging up sewer lines and replacing them, the city used a new process that put a lining inside the sewer pipes and did not require excavating the sewerage. The sewer line rehabilitation cost $275,000 and prevented the disruption of service for the two city blocks affected.

The city spent $80,000 on its annual street repaving program, and $56,000 was used for sidewalk ramps, making virtually every intersection in the city handicapped accessible, according to City Manager Thomas Kressbach.

The city parking structure in the Village received $28,000 in repairs, and 95 electronic meters were installed throughout the city to replace the old mechanical models.

The city and various agencies worked together to continue beautification efforts throughout the community.

Eighty-five new trees were planted at a cost of $15,800, and Grosse Pointe was recognized for the fourth consecutive year as a Tree City U.S.A.

The Village Association, the city and Village landlords worked together to beautify the shopping area. Kressbach called the cooperation a good sign for the community.

The city and the Village Association also jointly paid for the new lighting for the trees in the Village during the holidays. The cost of the lights was $5,000 and the city also contributed the manpower for installing the lights.

The Grosse Pointe Foundation and the city completed the landscaping at the entrance at Neff Park. The landscaping, sprinklers and pedestrian walkway cost some $21,000.

The city also spent $110,533 for a shiny, new fire truck. The yellow pumper truck replaces the 25-year-old model that the city bought new in 1964. "It was a very active year for us," said Kressbach concerning 1989.

Woods completes busy year; faces a challenging 1990

By Dan Jarvis
Staff Writer

With the end of the year and the decade in Grosse Pointe Woods, city officials are looking back on a busy 1989.

When officials in the Woods entered 1989, there were already several projects in the works, including an ongoing effort to improve the city's infrastructure, street repairs and improvements in the city's parks.

Improving the infrastructure:

Many improvements were centered on Lochmoor Boulevard. The city replaced water and sewer mains on Lochmoor from Mack to the Milk River drain. Water and sewer drains were also replaced along Vernier from Wedgewood to Marter Road. Water and sewer improvements came to $767,671.

Along with the water mains, the city paved Lochmoor, also from Mack to the Milk River. Sprinklers were installed on Lochmoor and Mack Avenue and landscaping was done in several areas along Mack. Several sidewalks and driveway approaches were replaced, bringing the cost for street improvements to just under $1 million.

Park improvements:

Improvements in the city's five parks, costing $610,000, included the remodeling of the old bathhouse at Lake Front Park. The bathhouse will now be used as an all-season activity center. The city constructed a new concession stand/comfort station at Lake Front, as well as a large sun shelter and a children's play area.

Also at Lake Front, the city installed new pool liners for the diving pool and children's pool.

At the request of several boaters, the city dredged the Lake Front Park marina entrance into Lake St. Clair. Some owners of sailboats later complained the dredged channel was not deep enough and the City Council, near the end of 1989, considered additional dredging, possibly in the spring of 1990.

Additional improvements at Lake Front Park included the installation of a sledding hill and horseshoe pits. Shuffleboard courts were also improved.

Park improvements in 1989 included the natural ice rinks at Sweeney, Lake Front and Chene-Trombly parks. The total bill for all improvements came in at over $610,000.

Surveillance cameras:

Along with park improvements, the city installed two surveillance cameras at Ghesquiere Park to curb vandalism of the park's gazebo and to protect children playing in the park. When the cameras were installed in mid-year, the American Civil Liberties Union threatened to launch a Constitutional challenge, claiming that all citizens entering the park are being searched and surveilled. The ACLU, after December 1989, had not filed a suit against the city.

Building construction and improvements:

Approved in May was the construction of a 5,300 square foot community center and a 1,500 square foot courtroom addition adjacent to the city offices on Mack Avenue.

Councilwoman Jean Rice said she and others on the council reviewed several plans before final approval was granted. A $581,500 contract was awarded to the Family Building Co. of Goderich, Mich., and the project at the end of 1989 showed substantial progress.

substantial progress.

The city also approved and built a salt storage building at the city's DPW yard, bringing the new construction and building additions to $621,500.

New equipment:

Along with these improvements, the City Council approved the outlay of $782,628 for new equipment purchases including a new aerial platform fire truck, a new ambulance chassis, six police patrol cars and seven trucks for the city's DPW department.

Legal challenges:
The city has still not resolved

two legal challenges. One challenge centers on the city's ban on pit bulls while the other is aimed at shooting down a zoning ordinance prohibiting the operation of day care facilities.

The constitutionality of the ban on pit bulls and related breeds will be decided by Wayne County Circuit Judge Kaye Tertzag on May 14, 1990. If the ban is ruled unconstitutional by Tertzag, the city's ban, approved in October 1988, will be struck down. George Catlin, city attorney, said such a ruling would be unlikely, given the violent history of the dogs in neighboring Detroit.

The day care challenge by Woods resident Mary Rose will also go to the Wayne County Circuit Court, though no date has been set for a trial date.

Charter amendments:

For the Nov. 8 general election, the city proposed and obtained approval for several amendments to the city charter, drafted in 1951. Included in the amendments was a requirement that the city administrator must live in the city. Other amendments were simply updates to the charter and included a requirement that all sales or purchase contracts in excess of $5,000 must be approved by the council. Prior to the amendment approvals, all contracts in excess of $1,000 required approval by the council.

Also approved in 1989 was a building permit for a mid-rise office building at the future site of Pointe Plaza, at Moross and Mack. Estimated construction cost for the building is $5 million.

A look ahead:

In looking ahead to 1990, Petersen said the city plans to begin improvements on the Milk River drain to ease pollution.

Also, to combat the parking crunch along Mack Avenue, the city plans to acquire land and begin construction of three municipal parking areas.

Petersen said the city also plans to consider the establishment of a curbside recycling program. He added that the city officials will continue to make several improvements in 1990 and will tackle typical civic problems as they appear.

Capital improvements top Park's business in 1989

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

Capital improvements were the main items of business in Grosse Pointe Park last year.

The improvements, which were completed under a lower tax rate to Park residents, varied from street paving to marina dredging to new flower boxes and landscaping along Mack Avenue.

The tax rate for the 1989-90 year was reduced 1.77 mills to a total rate of 15.38 mills. And while the lower tax rate that was due to increased property assessments still resulted in a 2.16 percent increase in spending, city officials point out that a lot of major projects were started or completed in 1989.

Some $500,000 was spent at Windmill Pointe Park alone.

The park's Olympic-size swimming pool received $225,000 worth of renovation, including a new filter system, stainless steel gutters, new Marcite and an automatic chlorination system. Also, a new concession stand was built at the park, and the old stand attached to the Tompkins Community Center was converted to offices for the Parks and Recreation Department.

While the community center renovation was completed in 1988, it was dedicated in the spring of 1989. Since its opening, the center has hosted a multitude of community events, classes and private parties. City Manager Dale M. Krajniak said the Tompkins Community Center has been booked nearly every day in November and December.

Most of the funds for the community center were raised by the Grosse Pointe Park Community Foundation.

Other work at Windmill Pointe Park included the raising of docks No. 2 and 4 and dredging, which cost about $55,000. The dredging tailings were used to create flood-plain berms along Lake St. Clair and the Detroit River at Patterson Park and at the foot of Trombly.

The Park's street resurfacing program was expanded this year. The streets repaved at a total cost of about $275,000 included Wayburn, Lakepointe, Berkshire, Goethe and Hampton. Wayne County began resurfacing Mack. The Park's share of the cost of the Mack resurfacing will be 6.25 percent of the estimated $1 million project.

Through the Tax Incentive Finance Authority, streetscape improvements were made on Mack between Beaconsfield and Nottingham. Also, streetscape work was started at Kercheval and Wayburn. The streetscape improvements include new cement work and landscaping, concrete flower boxes and trees.

Progress was made toward plans for a median on Jefferson as part of the Downtown Development Authority project. The median work will be supported by funds captured through the DDA as a TIFA district. The opening of the Pointes Office Center in mid-summer completed one major project in the district. Another project is planned on Jefferson between Pemberton and Wayburn.

The Esquire Theater controversy was resolved to the city's satisfaction and a final selling price was reached by the court. The city purchased the theater as part of its future development plans for the downtown district.

At City Hall, $110,000 was spent on a new roof, soffit and gutters.

Other than capital improvements, the Park made news by being the first city to come on board with automatic defibrillators. The defibrillators are used by emergency medical technicians to stimulate cardiac arrest patients. Since the Park's incorporation of the equipment, the Farms and Shores have been given defibrillators by Cottage and St. John hospitals, respectively.

Also in 1989, the Park Public Safety Department formed its own auxiliary complete with training and uniforms. The auxiliary officers are required to be on patrol eight hours a month and are on standby for emergency duty.

In November, Municipal Judge Kirsten Frank was re-elected to the bench, and incumbent James Robson Jr. was re-elected to the council. Newcomers Valerie Moran and Barbara Leonard Miller beat out three other challengers for seats vacated by veteran council members Mark Valente III and Carroll Evola.

Apparently happy with the progress of the city over the past years, incumbent Mayor Palmer T. Heenan was easily re-elected to the city's top post.

A Hollywood legacy: Mementos of another era

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

The photographs are the last strings of the Rays' attachment to Hollywood.

During their day they were, so Clara Ray said and so the pictures show, a Golden Couple. He acted in silent movies and she designed the costumes.

Photographs signed by their subjects, Nelson Eddy and opera singer Lawrence Tibbett, and unsigned, like the one of Mary Pickford, show an era gone by.

Clara Ray, who lived in the Pointes much of her life after leaving Hollywood with her husband Charles, died Dec. 8. She gave the cherished photographs to Beverly McConnell, her nurse at the Moroun Nursing Home, which had been Ray's home for just more than a year before she died there.

McConnell and Ray became friends two years ago when Mc-Connell, working as a nurse, was assigned to Ray.

"She was a quiet lady. No matter how much pain she was in she never complained," McConnell said.

"She was such a neat lady that I used to stop by and see her even after I was off work. She'd talk a lot about how it was when she was coming up. She talked about her home in Hollywood. She missed everything they had."

From the photographs one can piece together only bits of information: Clara had a brother and a sister — photographs contained their names; their Hollywood home was filled with only the most elegant of furnishings; the couple was elegantly beautiful.

One of the photographs was stamped with the insignia from Charles Ray Studios, but whether it was a film studio or a photography studio is uncertain.

Although Ray said she designed costumes for the silent movies, McConnell does not know the names of the films or the stars in them. In "The Filmgoers Companion" only Charles Ray is listed. He is described as an "American leading man of silent films most often in roles of the country boy." He made a few talkies.

The Rays never had children, and Charles Ray is long dead. The stories of old Hollywood died with Clara Ray on Dec. 8.

These photographs were given by Clara Ray to her nurse, Beverly McConnell.

Will the '90s treat the state much better?

For Michigianians, the 1980s were the best of times as well as the worst of times.

That Dickensian conclusion surely is one that can be drawn from a review of what happened to Michigan in the 1980s written by the Washington Post's David S. Broder, the premier reporter in the capital during the decade.

Why spotlight Michigan from Washington?

Because the Reagan Revolution started at the GOP national convention in Detroit in 1980 and because Michigan is "an all-American blend of farms and factories, of churches and union halls," and "is representative, if not typical of the country."

Yet, writing in his paper's national weekly edition, Broder concludes that while Michigan met many of the challenges of the '80s "well enough to brag of itself as 'the comeback state,' the gulf between those who are making it in Michigan and those who are not has deepened."

But there were success stories, too, along the route of the '80s. One success was achieved by Michigan women. Between 1970 and 1985, the percentage of businesses owned by women grew from 4.5 percent to 36 percent, according to figures compiled by Michigan Woman magazine.

Broder cites the Michigan Education Trust as another plus on the state's score for the '80s with more than 40,000 families enrolled in the first year. He also credits Blanchard with evolving a strategy of using state funds to support business needs and supplement what business itself was doing to train the work force, spur research and move technologies into the marketplace, all in efforts to replace the old, high-wage unskilled auto industry jobs that are gone for good.

As part of the positive side of Michigan's economy, Broder points to the tax abatement deals that Mayor Coleman Young used to persuade General Motors and now Chrysler to build new auto plants within Detroit's borders as well as the city's deals with developers to build condos and apartment buildings along the riverfront.

But on the negative side, Broder reports the continuing shrinkage of Detroit's population, the fact that San Diego recently passed Detroit as the nation's sixth largest city and the continuing abandonment of city houses with too many becoming "havens for derelicts and drug-dealers, nurturing a grim crime problem."

Further, he reminds us that the quality of the lives of the city's residents has declined even faster than their numbers; that safety, the amenities and the services are slipping, and that Detroit's department stores and shopping centers have not been able to survive the competition of suburban malls.

Perhaps the most striking quote in the Broder report comes from Paul Hillegonds, the GOP House minority leader from Holland, who faults not only the Democratic Blanchard regime but his own party's White House occupants for the past nine years.

In the 80's, Hillegonds told Broder, "there's been a passing of the buck to the states and the communities. They (in Washington) have cut off aid in meeting human needs and they have fostered an anti-government theme that makes it more difficult to meet our fiscal responsibilities. There's been a pandering to the desire to have services without paying for them and to delaying needed investments."

He lays the same fault at the governor's door, contending that "Blanchard saw that the Reagan formula worked, so he has done the low-risk, symbolic things and avoided the hard choices, knowing that 10 or 15 years down the road it will be somebody else's problem."

Summing up, Broder finds that "the people who feel best about the '80s are people like President Reagan himself, old enough that their personal obligations to the next generation have been discharged. For those who are not yet finished worrying about the future, this decade has been less comforting."

Unfortunately for Michigan, that verdict does not really arouse very high hopes for any immediate revival, which depends so heavily on the vigor, vitality and innovative brains of a younger generation. Broder doesn't say so but the sense of his review of Michigan in the 1980s is that an immense challenge confronts the business, political and educational leadership of the state as it heads into the uncertain 1990s.

And even in an upscale community like this one, it must be said that as Michigan goes, so goes Grosse Pointe.

A View from The Sidelines

A Chinese businessman who has been representing his government in Seattle is one of the latest victims of the purge that followed China's student-led revolt last spring.

He is Yao Wei, a former chief spokesman for government leader Deng Xiaoping and later head of the Chinese Foreign Ministry's press division.

In letters to U.S. friends in December, Yao Wei revealed that he is being ousted as chairman of his government's Seattle-based export company, Citifor, which buys standing timber in the Pacific Northwest and then exports logs to China, Japan and Korea.

His "crime"? He supposedly had publicly expressed sympathy with the student demonstrations crushed by the Chinese army June 4.

Earlier, while representing the Chinese People's Association for Friendship with Foreign Countries, Yao Wei served as a guide for the first group of American newsmen to tour the People's Republic in 1972 after President Richard Nixon's historic "opening" to China earlier that year.

As a member of that 23-man delegation representing the American Society of Newspaper Editors, I became well acquainted with Yao Wei during our three-week visit to the mainland. But he has long served as a bridge between China and the United States for touring U.S. reporters.

In fact, he was the guide for Edgar Snow when the late American journalist traveled into China's interior in 1936 to collect material for his historic, "Red Star Over China," published a decade before the Red armies finally captured control of the mainland. He later guided other U.S. journalists, including Harrison Salisbury of the New York Times and Joseph Alsop, the late columnist.

In his letters, Yao Wei said he had been "framed" by "despicable individuals of this company," who, he added, "I am ashamed

Why the '90s start in '91

At the arrival of previous decades, we recall momentous discussions, chiefly in the news media, about when the dying decade was ending and when the new decade was beginning.

As might be expected, the discussion is now being revived and we are pleased to report that The Christian Science Monitor weighed in the other day with its opinion on the issue.

"Mathematically," the Monitor intoned, "the 10th decade of the 20th century A.D. begins on Jan. 1, 1991, not Jan. 1, 1990 (the second decade A.D., after all, began in the year 11, not the year 10).

But then the Monitor fudges. Calling attention to the phrase in the preceding paragraph, "the 10th decade of the 20th century," the Monitor asks whether that is synonymous with the 1990s or whether the '90s begin the first time "9" appears as the second digit from the right, i.e., on Jan. 1, to say are my countrymen." He apparently is also being forced out of his post of chairman of CITIC Canada Inc., which operates a pulp mill in British Columbia.

Both Citifor and CITIC Canada are subsidiaries of the China International Trade and Investment Corp., a Chinese government agency charged with encouraging investment in China, investing in businesses in other countries and promoting trade.

Because the mission of the parent company is to encourage business and trade with the West, it has been sharply criticized by Chinese officials since the student uprising. The company has been termed a primary importer of "bourgeois liberalism," which is what Chinese hard-liners call unwanted Western influences.

In an interview with Seattle newspapers, Yao Wei said he had never hidden his political views but declared that for his critics to say he had "appeared at least twice on television and moved the audience to tears by supporting the students' movement in Beijing is simply not true."

In the same interview, however, he acknowledged that in a National Public Radio interview he had made some rather strong statements about the Chinese government's action against the students.

At any rate, this one-time personal bridge between the East and the West is now being closed by the Chinese government.

For Yao Wei, it must be a disappointing final chapter to a long career of serving his native land both at home and in the United States, to which he has felt strong ties ever since he attended two American schools in China as he was growing up.

I find it ironic that while the Chinese student revolt is credited with having ignited the generally peaceful revolutions against communism in Eastern Europe, the Chinese government is still claiming its pound of flesh from Chinese who backed the students.

1990, which it regards as the "semantic" option.

At any rate, concluding that mathematical and semantic decades don't coincide, the Monitor opts for the latter definition on the grounds that is "how the average person thinks about decades and feels about them."

So the Monitor concludes that the '90s started on Jan. 1, 1990, "just as for most people the 21st century will begin in 2000, no matter what any nitpicker says."

Mathematically, of course, the journalistic retrospectives about the '80s that have been flooding the airways and the print media for the past week are a year early but who wants to wait another year to bid goodbye to the '80s anyway?

At the Grosse Pointe News, we certainly don't and it's now clear The Christian Science Monitor doesn't either.

Legacy

To the Editor:

As the bulldozer turns or the privilege of living in an expensive slum...

It is with extreme sadness to have witnessed the incessant destruction of a unique lakeside community. I moved here eight years ago to escape the now-complete commercialization of Birmingham in the '70s.

At that time Grosse Pointe still retained the rural atmosphere and charm which had a healthy respect for its natural habitat. Although there were signs of genteel decay, I had assumed wrong! that the community would have the intelligence and clout to restore and police new development with vigilance.

A healthy community is able to sustain both a demographic and physical change by education, laws to control irrational change and strong citizen pressure.

These control mechanisms are non-existent at the moment, therefore the area has been wide open to the dubious efforts of parasitic developers motivated by greed. These individuals, often accompanied by silent partners without a vested interest in the community, will continue to destroy the quality of life which had been taken for granted in the past unless there is a check and balance system.

A special year-end award for providing a friendly climate toward lunacy should go to the City and Farms.

Hoping for a more beautiful community to leave as a legacy to future generations.

Teenagers

To the Editor:

The articles in your newspaper constantly stereotype teenagers as troublemakers, substance abusers and takers from the community.

I attend Grosse Pointe North High School and at Christmas time, many of the homerooms participate in a project to serve the community. It is called "Adopt a Family." For several weeks, students collect food, clothes and toys to aid needy families of the east side. All of this is voluntary. Over 49 families are being helped this holiday season. This project is organized by teenagers with the help of some teachers.

For all the ridicule, stereotyping and negativism toward teenagers, the Adopt a Family plan is positive recognition for teens in our community. I believe this should be printed because the Grosse Pointe News rarely writes good articles about teens between the ages of 15 to 19.

Out with the old

Hoo boy. Historic preservation is singing its siren song again.

What would old Pa Cadieux think of Chris Blake's plan to "preserve" his farmhouse?

If the old man was the free-wheeling capitalist so honored today, he'd be all for it. Regretful that the money wasn't his to make.

Let's face it. Capitalism is where it's at in America — and Grosse Pointe probably has most deal-doers per capita than most places. Private property rights are the cornerstone of the philosophy.

That means using your property to make a profit. It means there's no reason not to sell your property for condos, whether your neighbors like it or not. There's no law against buying more house than you can really afford, and there's no law against letting your property run down so you can argue that it's only good for tearing down. The city of Detroit has been doing it for years.

So it also means that if the neighbors want to look at a historic farmhouse in its original, open setting, they'd better buy it themselves.

It's the way of the marketplace. Not very foresighted on the community level, however.

But, hey, the Grosse Pointes have come down firmly on the side of individual rights over the community every time they had the chance. Nobody could stop Henry or Edsel Ford from demolishing their lakefront mansions. Nobody stopped Mrs. Dodge.

There was enough hot air expended rationalizing why preservation or adaptation was impossible, to power the Delphine. Never mind that there was evidence on all sides that it was not only possible, but being done.

A friend of mine lived on Boston's South Shore in an estate adapted to apartment/condos. She happened to live in the old servants' quarters of the main house, an apartment with three bedrooms and a 30-foot living room. Out in the grounds were scattered charming stone cottages with modern amenities — the former hen house, stable and garage. That was in 1970, about the time the Grosse Pointe mansions were disappearing.

In a climate like that, we should be grateful that Chris Blake is willing to work with the old structure. Is it preservation? Of course not — but it's better than knocking the old house down.

There are some pretty wretched things being done in the name of historic reuse and adaptation. One of my favorite outrages took place a couple of years ago in the city of Cleveland Heights.

The city fathers built a new city hall and sold the old property to an auto dealer. A public howl arose at the thought of the wrecker's ball.

Typically, a study, discussion and compromises followed. Solution: They tore down the building, but saved the stone entrance facade — onto which was attached a modern glass and steel auto showroom. That's right, folks, they didn't even take the facade to the new city hall, where it would have at least provided some historical continuity. You walk through it to look at cars.

But before the city rezones the Cadieux property, are we sure there isn't somebody who wants to fix the house? The argument that it can't be fixed is baloney. Chris Blake is going to fix it, isn't he?

Fans of "This Old House" will remember a recent episode in which a couple wanted to renovate a barn. The contractors said they could do the job, but they'd have to replace the foundation, the walls, the floors, the roof and all supports. If you can fix that, you can fix anything.

Besides, I have a candidate for the job. Doug Andrus, Mark Provenzano and John Ahlbrand have tied themselves in knots for the last six months fixing up a house in the Park. From all accounts, it was a big success. How about it, guys?

Failing all else, the city should let Blake go ahead with the project, which has received backing from the historical society.

But in the larger picture, all of the Grosse Pointes should stop dragging their Topsyders and pass some ordinances to preserve the past while there's still some left.

Challenges of the '90s: Looking toward year 2000

Dependent care, AIDS and illiteracy are three of the many workplace issues of the '90s, according to "The Future World of Work: Looking Toward the Year 2000," a strategic planning report published by United Way of America.

Today, many parents are responsible for caring for both their children and elderly relatives at the same time. The combination of this new family structure and greater work force participation by women — including more working parents — is creating new stresses and a crisis in the workplace. Currently, 60 percent of American women with preschool children now work. By the end of the century, two-thirds of the nation's new workers will be women, and about 80 percent of working women will be in their childbearing years. Eighty to 90 percent of these women will become pregnant during their working life.

For working parents, child-care arrangements strongly influence job performance. In fact, problems with child care are the most significant contributor to employee absenteeism and unproductive time at work. Companies are just beginning to realize that in order to recruit and retain good employees, child care needs to be considered a "business issue."

Dependent care for the elderly is also a concern of the employed. Currently, about 6.6 million people over age 65 need some form of assistance from others. This number is expected to reach nine million by the year 2000. As the population grows older and the number of younger adults available to provide care for elderly dependents declines, this concern will become even greater.

Between one-third and one-quarter of all people over age 40 are currently caring for an aging relative. Care givers spend an average of 12 hours per week taking care of an individual, and nearly 10 percent of those care givers spend more than 35 hours a week care giving. Because of the strain of providing such care, many people find they must cut their work hours, take early retirement or quit their jobs.

AIDS will be a major issue of the final decade before the 21st century. The National Center for Health Statistics predicts that AIDS will be one of the 10 leading causes of death by 1991. It will be the leading cause of death for people aged 25 to 44. Employers today must consider a number of AIDS-related issues, including relevant laws, insurance ramifications, employer-employee relations and concerns of workers who do not have the disease.

Today, less than 10 percent of employers have AIDS-related policies in place. More may be forced to adopt such a policy as AIDS cases continue to rise. One out of five American

Its time to think about being good to your heart, after burdening the poor thing with assorted fats for three weeks.

Now this isn't going to be easy, so you have to start getting ready in advance.

To the Top is a "stair-climbing extravaganza" to benefit the American Heart Association. All you have to do (heh, heh) is climb 72 flights of stairs at the RenCen.

Race to the Summit is a one-time climb up 72 flights. For the truly hardy, the Vertical Mile Marathon is an eight-time climb for a total of a mile — straight up.

A special feature will be a firefighters' relay, with local teams competing. These guys and gals are used to tough climbing, so it should be exciting to see.

The heart-healthy sports extravaganza will be held Saturday, Feb. 3, starting at 9 a.m. with the relays. At 9:30, the one-timers will start, with the vertical milers at 11 a.m.

Start practicing now. And if you register now, you can save 10 bucks. Registration is $15 until Jan. 24, then it goes up to $25.

Call the Heart Association to register: 557-9500. Go for it!

Enjoy the play

While we're in a benefiting frame of mind, let's think about the Detroit Repertory Theatre.

Saturday, Jan. 13, is their annual benefit performance. Half the tickets are already pledged, so call 868-1347 to reserve yours.

Your ticket ($25) covers free champagne, hot hors d'oeuvres, music and the award-winning Broadway hit, "Fences." It's a great evening — and promises to add to your convenience in the future, as the money raised will buy new theater seats and an expanded parking lot.

Let the play begin.

Yum, yum

Make a stop at the "Nuts about Chocolate" festival on your way to the Detroit Rep.

Nancy Parmenter

This gooey delight runs the same day (next day too) over at the Novi Hilton.

Your sweet tooth will benefit the National Kidney Foundation of Michigan. Between noon and 4 p.m. on Jan. 13 and 14, you can sample truffles, cakes, candy, cookies and judge the creative efforts of Detroit pastry chefs. And they'll raffle off a 10-pound Nestle bar.

Tickets at the door are $7, with a $1 reduction for kids and senior citizens. You can save a dollar by calling 1-800-482-1455 and ordering in advance.

Dancing Dave

Swinging former Detroit Tiger Dave Rozema of Grosse Pointe Park was seen dancing up a storm on New Year's Eve at the Hilton International in Windsor.

Mr. and Mrs. Rozema and party had a rollicking time in the River Runner lounge. The former pitcher had on a party hat instead of a baseball cap and made his own music with noise makers provided by the Hilton. Happy New Year, Dave!

Gas leak in Village

An underground gas leak was discovered in the Village Dec. 27 after Grosse Pointe City police received several calls reporting the odor of gas at St. Clair and Kercheval.

As of last weekend, MichCon workmen were trying to repair the leak. Jacobson's had problems with a gas line on the previous day, though it was not known if the two incidents were related.

The judgeship primary in Grosse Pointe Farms fielded four candidates. Incumbent Matthew Rumora faced three challengers, Eugene Casazza, Paul C. Gracey and Richard Roosen.

August

Construction began on the $100 million Pointe Plaza at Mack and Moross. When completed, the plaza will include two five-story office buildings, a parking structure and an upscale shopping center.

The state started processing the War Memorial's liquor license application.

Gary Ripple was named new headmaster at University Liggett School.

The Grosse Pointe Property Owners Association, a group formed to fight the War Memorial's liquor license application, filed a petition of opposition with the Liquor Control Commission.

The Grosse Pointe Farms judicial election was being challenged on the grounds that Irene Gracey, wife of candidate Paul Gracey, distributed and collected absentee ballots. Gracey won second place by 10 votes over Eugene Casazza. State law prohibits a candidate or a candidate's relatives from handling ballots. Incumbent Matthew Rumora was the easy winner in the voting.

The school board approved raising the cap on the library expansion project to $7 million after a committee report showed that a library which would contain the square footage and programs required for this community could not be built for less than $6 million, the previous cap. The board, however, also approved hiring a private fundraising company to determine if money could be raised privately to fund part of the project.

The Michigan State Police were investigating 315 absentee ballots cast in the Grosse Pointe Farms judicial election.

Grosse Pointe Academy got the OK from the Grosse Pointe Farms City Council to build a new fieldhouse.

The parking lot reconstruction on the Hill in Grosse Pointe Farms angered employees, delivery people, business owners and shoppers. The reconstruction not only took longer than expected, but also cost more than was anticipated.

More than half of the 600 families chosen to participate in REACT were collecting recyclables and putting them out for curbside pickup.

The ACLU said its busy agenda would cause a delay in the challenge of the Grosse Pointe Woods surveillance cameras which were installed at Ghesquiere Park.

Grosse Pointe Farms would not certify the vote totals in the judicial primary and sent the whole matter to the county. Wayne County Clerk James Killen, however, was a contributor to third-place winner Eugene Casazza's campaign for judge. The two are also next door neighbors.

Cottage Hospital donated an automatic defibrillator to the Grosse Pointe Farms EMS, thereby upgrading services to what they are in the Park, which recently put into service an automatic defibrillator.

September

The Wayne County Health Department issued at least six health advisories over the summer warning residents not to fish or swim in Lake St. Clair near the mouth of the Milk River. Although it was the first year for health advisories to be issued, the health hazard has been present since the Milk River Pump Station was built.

A judge in the 3rd District Court ordered that the results of the Farms judicial primary be sent to the state Board of Canvassers for certification. The investigation of the alleged illegal ballot handling by Irene Gracey continued, amid charges of sloppy procedures at the Grosse Pointe Farms city offices.

St. John Hospital donated an automatic defibrillator to the Grosse Pointe Shores EMS, bringing the Shores on par with the Farms, Park and City (which receives EMS services from the Park).

An engineering firm told the Milk River Inter-County Drainage Board that the costs of solving the Milk River problem would cost at least $27 million and possibly up to $72 million. The firm also told the board that it was not a matter of if the project were to be done, but rather when.

More parking problems plagued the Hill as merchants and real estate professionals aired their views on whether the city should offer leased spaces in the new lot. The council rejected leased spaces, at least for six months.

Bon Secours Hospital paid for a second automatic defibrillator for Grosse Pointe Park.

Grosse Pointe Farms was waiting for a decision from the state before they printed their ballots for the November judicial election. Until the state certified the election, the city didn't know whose name to place on the ballot with incumbent Matthew Rumora. Eventually, the state Board of Canvassers certified the vote count taken from the Aug. 8 primary, putting Paul Gracey on the ballot with incumbent Rumora, but Eugene Casazza, whose third-place finish was certified by the state, asked for a recount.

The 60-year-old Grosse Pointe Park woman who was implicated in a Lebanon-to-Detroit heroin shipment in February was found guilty of possession with intent to distribute at least 1,000 grams of heroin. Her attorney promised an appeal.

The new municipal lot on the Hill opened, but work was yet to be completed.

October

Grosse Pointe Shores resident Cynthia Ann Broad was named Teacher of the Year by the Michigan State Board of Education.

At the request of Wayne County officials, a District Court judge ordered that 315 absentee ballots cast for judge in the Grosse Pointe Farms judicial primary be re-cast.

Farmer Jack's real estate division made several offers to buy homes in Grosse Pointe Woods for expansion of its Mack Avenue store.

School Superintendent John Whritner was a finalist in a nationwide search for the school chief in West Hartford, Conn. Whritner wanted to be closer to his family which is located on the east coast.

Pierce Middle School turned 50 years old with a grand celebration.

Because of restrictions placed on granting a liquor license imposed by the Grosse Pointe Farms council, the state Liquor Control Commission denied the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's request for a liquor license.

In the recast of the absentee ballots for Farms judge, Eugene Casazza edged Paul Gracey by one vote.

A stay on all proceedings regarding the outcome of the judicial primary and the election which was just more than a week away was granted at the request of candidate Paul Gracey.

November

Superintendent John Whritner was told the position he was seeking went to another candidate.

The Michigan Court of Appeals rejected the recast absentee ballots in the Grosse Pointe Farms election and put Paul Gracey back on the ballot, and removed Eugene Casazza. Incumbent Rumora won by more than 3 to 1.

In other election news, the Pointes saw five new members join various councils and lost two long-time incumbents.

The Grosse Pointe School Board, learning of preliminary costs for the library project, decided to wait on approving the new project until it knew what was to be done with Central Library.

Superintendent John Whritner was announced as the leading candidate for the superintendent's job in Greenwich, Conn. He had been up for the job earlier in the year, but due to the high cost of housing in Greenwich, he disqualified himself from the search. A new package, including a housing subsidy, was presented to him.

The Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling told the councils of all five Pointes that they wanted to get out of the recycling drop-off business. After eight months of collections, the demand had grown so much that the volunteer group decided enough was enough. They placed the burden of establishing a permanent recycling drop-off center — until the cities could institute curbside pickup of recyclables — into the laps of the councils.

Superintendent John Whritner accepted the school chief position in Greenwich, Conn., and announced he would be leaving in March.

December

The 60-year-old Grosse Pointe Park woman, who was found guilty in U.S. District Court of possession with intent to distribute at least 1,000 grams of heroin, failed to show up for her sentencing hearing. Her Westchester home which was put up as collateral for her bail was seized by U.S. marshals.

See WRAP UP, page 9A

The Grosse Pointe Farms Council approved placing controls on how many occasions alcohol can be served at the war Memorial and that an advisory board be established to periodically monitor alcohol-related activities at the center.

Profits from the quick sale of a Grosse Pointe Woods home which was raided during a drug investigation in March were seized after a judge declared the house was used for illegal drug-related activities. It was the second home in Grosse Pointe Woods to be seized under Michigan's new law.

REACT, the pilot curbside recycling program in the Pointes and Harper Woods, was being called a great success. Some 57 percent of the 613 households put recyclables out every week. Nearly all the houses in the program put recyclables out at least once.

Bar patron robs another at knife point

A 22-year-old man was robbed by another man at 12:45 a.m. Dec. 19 outside a bar in the 15200 block of Charlevoix in Grosse Pointe Park.

The victim had just walked out of a bar on Charlevoix when he was approached by another man who offered to sell him drugs. When the first man refused to buy any drugs, the other pulled a knife and demanded money. He fled with $30 cash.

A Grosse Pointe Park police patrol that was following up the investigation the following night, spotted the armed robbery suspect in a bar in the 15000 block of Charlevoix at 1:50 a.m. A witness reported to police that the suspect did leave the bar the previous night at the time of the robbery.

The suspect was arrested and found carrying a small packet of a suspected illicit drug. He was released by order of the Wayne County Prosecutor's office pending a line-up identification.

Wrap up

The Grosse Pointe Board of Education unanimously approved converting the current Central Library to the new board offices and selling the land where the board offices are now. With that out of the way, the board was ready to make a decision on the library project, but had to wait until the private fundraising company issued its report on what potentially could be raised. That report, originally scheduled for December, was postponed until January.

The board of education established a committee to develop a procedure for the board to follow in its search for a new superintendent.

A report by an engineering firm told the Milk River Inter-county Drainage Board that work which needs to be done to eliminate raw sewage from entering Lake St. Clair through the Milk River could not be done soon because public hearings had to be held before a decision could be made. Options ranged from $7 million to $90 million.

The last recycling day sponsored by Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling also collected more than 1,000 signatures on petitions asking cities to establish an interim site to drop off recyclables and work toward instituting citywide curbside recycling by January 1991.

Grosse Pointe Park approved establishing a city-operated recycling drop-off center at the old Unical station on Jefferson.

Eagle eyes wanted

Michigan's 1990 mid-winter bald eagle survey will be conducted Jan. 4-18, according to the Department of Natural Resources. Residents are urged to become directly involved with this annual count by reporting all sightings of bald eagles seen during the two-week period.

"Sighting information gathered is vital to identifying wintering areas of Michigan's bald eagles," DNR Director David Hiles said. "This project is part of a continuing effort to refine management techniques for this magnificent bird."

Anyone sighting a bald eagle during Jan. 4-18, should send a postcard containing the date, time, specific location and number of eagles observed to: Winter Eagles, DNR Natural Heritage Program, Box 30028, Lansing 48909.

During the 1989 winter count, 217 eagles were observed in 47 of Michigan's 83 counties.

Past surveys have shown that during milder winters, the eagles tend to winter farther north. During last year's relatively mild winter, nearly half of the eagles observed were found in the Upper Peninsula.

Funding for management of bald eagles as well as for loons, peregrine falcons and many other non-hunted animals and endangered plants is provided, in part, by contributions to the Nongame Wildlife Fund, designated on the state income tax forms as a check-off.

Champ

Don Orth, formerly of the Pointes, is selling the idea of giving blood. Supplies are low during the winter months and Orth has done his share. In 47 years, he has given 32 gallons of his blood - that's 256 pints. But he can't do it all. A donation to a local blood bank would be appreciated by the Red Cross.

cause a member had a disease such as tuberculosis. "They would break down and cry — sometimes for hours," Droege said.

For the ones who were chosen for sponsorship, Droege said the feelings of joy were contagious. "They would jump for joy when they learned they were coming to America," she said.

Droege said it was a moving experience to see German refugees arriving in an American train station to be greeted by their sponsor family. "Again, they would jump and shout for joy. These people had nothing but their skills," she said.

Droege is a 1915 graduate of Detroit's Central High School, now Wayne State University's Old Main. While at Central, she studied painting and drawing. "I took as much artwork as I could," she said.

After her high school graduation, Droege began studying art and architecture at the Pratt Institute in New York. Soon after, she began drafting aircraft parts during World War I.

Droege also studied art education and returned to Detroit to teach art in the Detroit public schools. She later worked with the architectural firm of Harley, Ellington and Day and helped draft plans for Detroit's City County Building on Woodward and Jefferson. Droege also worked on plans for the Veterans Memorial Building just one block west.

One of the architectural firm's specialties was designing breweries. Besides helping draw plans for the Stroh Brewery in Detroit, Droege helped draft designs for several others across the United States and South America. She worked for the firm until leaving for Germany in 1951.

Besides being an artist and interpreter, Droege is also a world traveler.

The second time she went to Europe was to see the world, she said.

In 1962 and 1963, Droege and a friend traveled to every country in Europe, with the exception of Finland — because it was too far out of the way.

While in Europe, the pair stayed in Vienna for more than four months. The best part, she said, was that the small hotel where they stayed was within walking distance of two opera houses.

"There is so much music in Vienna, it is really a beautiful place. We stayed in a nice little hotel for $25 per week. Now that won't even pay for one night," she said.

One of the best parts of the trip for Droege and company was the train systems. "The trains in Europe beat the American trains all hollow," she said. "Well, most of them."

After a memorable trip to Italy which included stays in Rome, Florence, Naples and Sicily, Droege headed for France and Spain. "We caught a bad train into Barcelona, Spain, and we had to hold on for dear life because the ride was so rough," she said.

Soon after, the pair ventured to Madrid and then Lisbon, Portugal, and eventually home.

For Droege, the experience of traveling throughout the world has helped her with her lifelong ambition to paint. The walls of her Grosse Pointe Woods home are graced with original artworks, some by Droege and others by friends who also paint.

Droege's daughter, Carol, also dabbles in the art world. A retired school teacher, she dyes and weaves natural fabrics into rugs and display pieces.

As for Droege, she enjoys cooking and spending time with family members. Is another trip to Europe on the horizon? She wouldn't say, but as her full and varied life has unfolded, it is clear that anything is possible.

War Memorial plans Scandinavia sampler

The War Memorial's educational travel department will hold an informational program Thursday, Jan. 11, at 6:30 p.m. to provide details about its April 19-26 trip to Denmark, Norway and Sweden.

The trip includes a four-night stay in Copenhagen, tours of the city, the Carlsberg Brewery and Royal Porcelain Factory. At your leisure, travel to Malmo, Sweden's third largest city, aboard a hydrofoil, then board a cruise ship docked just a few steps from your Copenhagen Hotel to cruise the sound between Sweden and Denmark into Oslo Fjord for a day in the Norwegian city of Oslo.

One breakfast and two dinners are included on the cruise prior to its return to Copenhagen and departure for Detroit. Cost of the trip is $1199 per person double occupancy including round trip air from Detroit, $170 single supplement; $350 per person deposit. Call 881-7511 for flier.

Shores man ticketed while shoveling snow

A 46-year-old Grosse Pointe Shores man who was ticketed last week for shoveling his snow onto the street vows he will fight the matter in court.

On Dec. 27 at about 4 p.m., a Shores police patrol saw the Wilson Road resident and his children shoveling snow from their driveway and throwing the snow onto the street. When the officer explained to the resident that it was illegal to throw the snow onto a roadway, the man became very upset, according to police reports.

The officer then told the man to stop throwing snow onto the street and continued his patrol. About five minutes later, the officer returned and found that the man had ignored the police order and shoveled more snow onto the street.

The police officer found the man at a nearby home on Sheldon that belonged to the man's father. The officer again found the man shoveling snow onto the street at the Sheldon home.

The officer said he then took more time with the resident explaining the ordinance and the tax dollars paid in overtime for Shores employees to remove snow from the roads.

The resident then complained to the officer that the salt from the snow in the driveway would harm his grass and no way would he put the salty snow on his lawn. He told the officer to do what he had to do.

The officer then ticketed the man for throwing snow in the roadway and ordered him to shovel the snow back off the street. The man said he would be in court with his attorney. A court date has been set for Feb. 8 at 8 a.m.

FREEDOM FROM PARENTAL CUSTODY AND CONTROL
(ABANDONMENT RE: ADOPTION)
Case Number: FFC 02226

Superior Court of California, County of San Bernardino. The People of the State of California, to Roger Robert Scopas and to all persons claiming to be the father or mother of said minor person(s) above named.

By order of this Court you are hereby cited and advised that you may appear before the Judge Presiding in West District-Rancho Cucamonga, 8303 Haven Avenue, Rancho Cucamonga, CA 91730 of the above-entitled court on Feb. 8, 1990, 8:30 a.m. of that day, then and there to show cause, if any you have, why said person should not be declared free from the control of his parents to the petition on file herein.

The Court finds that the interest of the (minor(s)) requires his or her protection, the Court shall appoint counsel to represent the minor(s). Such counsel shall be appointed whether or not the minor(s) is able to afford counsel. If you appear without counsel and are unable to afford counsel, the Court shall appoint counsel for you if you request appointed counsel.

The purpose of this action, to free the minor(s) from the custody of his parent(s), is to permit the adoption of said minor(s) to a suitable adopting parent.

The Court may continue these proceedings, not to exceed thirty (30) days, as necessary to appoint counsel and enable counsel to become familiar with these proceedings.

Given under my hand and seal of the Superior Court of the County of San Bernardino, State of California, this 20th day of December, 1989.

Seat belt use: An emergency room doctor's perspective

After 13 years in the hospital Emergency Center, Dr. Steven C. Rossmore can't recall ever seeing a seriously injured auto accident victim who wore a seat belt.

"I'd make a guess that 95 percent of auto accident fatalities are people who don't wear seat belts," said Rossmore, an attending physician in the St. John Hospital and Medical Center's Emergency Center and a member of the American College of Emergency Physicians Trauma Committee.

"It's possible that someone who was wearing a seat belt may have died at the scene," Rossmore said, "but of all the DOA's and serious injuries that actually come through the Emergency Center, I don't recall anyone who wore a seat belt. We've had a number of auto accident fatalities here lately. All were intoxicated and none wore a seat belt."

Rossmore's personal observations support the findings of a new University of Michigan study which reports that auto accident fatalities, injuries and hospital admissions have been reduced drastically since Michigan's safety belt law became effective in July 1985.

Hospital stays of a week or longer due to car crash injuries dropped 43 percent, according to the study, while the number of crash victims admitted to hospitals dropped 19 percent. Auto accident fatalities fell 19.7 percent.

Researchers, who collected injury data on 8,661 patients at 1,004 Michigan hospitals, found that auto accident victims admitted with injured arms and legs dropped 20 percent after Michigan's safety belt law became effective. Admissions for back injuries dropped 24 percent, abdominal injuries 14.5 percent, head injuries 13 percent and neck injuries 11 percent. Only thoracic injuries showed no similar decrease.

Properly used, automobile safety belts reduce the risk of injury by 35 to 45 percent, according to the University of Michigan study. But Rossmore said they must be properly worn.

"Perhaps the greatest sense of false security is improperly worn seat belts," he observes. "If they're not used according to design, they don't work at all."

Everyone should take a few minutes to read the owner's manual to determine exactly how to use the seat belt, he advises. All seat belts should fit directly over the shoulder, and they should never be slipped off the shoulder or held under the arm.

"People who slip their seat belts off are totally unprotected," he said. "Seat belts work on a deceleration principle. A ratchet catches when the car stops suddenly. But the shoulder portion is the part that catches you. Without it, the belt won't work at all."

Rossmore also cautions drivers to make sure that roll-out seat and shoulder belts unwind smoothly and have no slack. If not, they may be defective and will not lock properly in a crash.

Children under four should be strapped into an approved child safety restraint, preferably in the middle of the back seat, he suggests.

"They say the child restraints are crashproof," he said, "but if the side of the car is smashed in, something has to give. Children are safer in the middle."

Rossmore also recommends the center of the back seat for those ages 4 to 6.

"Seat belts are not totally dependable on young children," he said. "Many parents put the shoulder straps on so that they fall across the child's throat. You can break or fracture a neck that way. The strap should fall across the shoulder. You may have to experiment. I personally have found the belt works better if the child is more toward the center of the car, away from the door."

Pregnant women, he adds, should wear their belts low across the abdomen.

In Michigan, the number of front-seat drivers using safety belts soared from 18.3 percent to 60.5 percent in the first month after the belt law became effective. Seat belt use, however, has fallen to 45 percent, according to the study.

Grief support to start

New Beginnings, an ongoing support group for those who have lost a loved one through death or divorce, meets Tuesdays, Jan. 9-March 13 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the War Memorial.

Fee is $2 per person per session.

For additional information, call 881-7511.

Drug awareness programs offered

Brighton Hospital has announced its new schedule of Community Education Programs designed to provide concerned parents, family members, and the community at large with up-to-date information on the prevention and treatment of substance abuse.

The series begins on Tuesday evening, Jan. 9 with "Drug-Free Kids: How Adolescent Chemical Dependence is Treated." The featured speakers for this session are Bradley Casemore, administrator of the hospital's new Adolescent Center, and Barbara Volger, admissions coordinator.

They will discuss how parents can get help for teenagers who are abusing alcohol and other drugs and will highlight the treatment programs offered at Brighton Hospital.

Beginning January 16 and continuing through May 15, the hospital will also host a five-part series of community programs of special interest to women conducted by the Livingston Council for Alcohol Services and the Women's Resource Center. This series presents information on addiction and breaking the cycle of alcoholism and other types of drug problems. It is a special effort to reach women who are in relationships with chemically dependent people or who are themselves chemically dependent.

All programs are free and open to the public. Reservations are not required. For additional information, contact Brighton Hospital's Community Relations Department on weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. at 227-1211, ext. 276.

Berlin

he found out that his paper wasn't the only member of the media represented. He said the American television networks were there with huge spotlights that turned night into day. "It was a madhouse," he said.

A U.S. Army private was dancing on top of the wall with some Germans, and the soldier pulled Dickson up to join them a dozen feet above the crowd. Dickson said the soldier felt that dancing on the wall was a blow to communism.

He said the West Berliners were welcoming their eastern counterparts with flowers, hugs and even money. He said many relatives were reunited after nearly three decades of separation.

Along the Spree River in West Berlin, there's a small burial area for those who died while trying to escape from the East. Dickson said the most recent death was in 1985, less than five years before the wall came tumbling down.

When Germans began chipping away at the wall with picks and sledgehammers, Dickson bought a hammer and chisel and brought home his own souvenirs. He said the chunks of rock being passed off by a Boston department store as authentic fragments of the Berlin Wall did not look at all like the pieces he brought home.

One of the first things the East Germans did when they entered West Berlin was to buy bananas. Dickson said fresh fruit is rare in Eastern Europe. He said the Easterners also goggled at the luxury and size of Western automobiles. He said the Mercedes dealerships were filled with East Germans marveling at the size and quality of the cars.

In fact, it was the East German cars that began wearing on the hospitality of the West Germans. Dickson said the small, communist-built cars are terrible polluters, and the invasion of the little oil burners fouled the air in West Berlin.

Finding stories was the easy part of being in Berlin for a couple of weeks. Dickson cites one story about Poles who would travel all night to sell a few goods in West Berlin for some German marks. He said a few marks would make the long trip worthwhile for the Poles. He said similar stories abounded during his stay.

Once back in the states, though, he returned to reality as a general assignment reporter at the Herald. Dickson said his first story when he got back was about a funeral for a cat. "It keeps you humble," he said.

Former Shores resident Harvey Dickson, who graduated from North in 1976, was back in town during the holidays after having spent a couple of weeks in Berlin as a reporter with the Boston Herald.

SERVICE IS OUR PRIORITY . . . NOT JUST A NECESSITY
(One mile south of the new I-696, use the Gratiot Ave. exit)

To see the most exciting products at the 1990 Auto Show, proceed through these doors.

The 1990 Oldsmobiles

For 1990, we're going to unveil a truly special exhibit at the Auto Show.

The 1990 New Generation Oldsmobiles. By far, the most advanced and exciting vehicles in our history.

Take our all-new Cutlass Supreme™ 4-door, for example. It doesn't ask you to give up style or performance just to enjoy the increased versatility of two extra doors. The International Series model comes with the powerful new High-Output Quad 4™ engine. Front bucket seats with electronically adjustable side, lumbar and thigh bolsters. Air conditioning. The advanced Driver Information System with full instrumentation. And a leather-wrapped steering wheel. Hardly the stuff ordinary sedans are made of.

Next, there's our all-new Silhouette™—the truly amazing multipurpose vehicle that takes luxury to new lengths. It comes with the comfort of seven individually contoured bucket seats. A 3.1-liter V6 engine. 112.6 cubic feet of cargo space with the rear seats removed. And much more.

For 1990, we even created a new Toronado. It's nearly a foot longer than last year—for more luggage space and a sleek new look. Plus, its powerful 3800 V6 engine with sequential port fuel injection assures you that its dramatic new shape isn't the only thing about it that's designed to take your breath away.

If you're interested in a bit more headroom, there's our all-new Cutlass Supreme convertible (available in early 1990). It has a power folding roof and a rear window that's made out of real glass, not plastic.

Now while our Cutlass Supreme convertible is great for catching some rays, our new Cutlass Calais™ Quad 442 is perfect for catching just about everything else. And passing it. Thanks to its new High-Output Quad 4—one of the most powerful 4-cylinder engines ever built. Best of all, this car is just as impressive around corners as it is on straightaways.

So if you want to see the most exciting products at this year's Auto Show, make sure you enter through the proper doors: the ones attached to the 1990 New Generation Oldsmobiles.

Actually, about the only thing that isn't new about Chevy this year is our logo.

Bring your track shoes. You've got a lot to see at the Auto Show. More new Chevys than ever before. New features like Scotchgard™ Fabric Protector on select models, new advanced engines, new unrustable materials. And—the new Corvette ZR-1. And that's just for starters.

New Lumina APV and Coupe.

The Lumina APV: With body panels that won't rust and optional modular seating for seven. You've never seen anything like it. The Lumina Coupe: a new dimension for those who love to drive.

New S-10 Pickup.

A new aggressive sporty look. High-tech 2WD or 4x4. Nothing in its class has a bigger engine. And it can tow up to three tons including people, trailer and cargo, when properly equipped.

New All-Wheel-Drive Astro.

Chevy Astro is the first American compact van with the superior traction of all-wheel drive and standard four-wheel anti-lock brake system.*

THE Heartbeat
OF AMERICA IS WINNING.
TODAY'S CHEVROLET

We could tell you about a dozen new Chevys. New features that make driving easier. And make your vehicle last longer. But come on out and see for yourself. When it comes to new designs, innovations and pure driving pleasure, nobody's winning like The Heartbeat of America.

New 4-Door S-10 Blazer.

America's favorite sport utility vehicle will be available in March with 4-door convenience. In 2-wheel drive—or as a 4x4 with standard shift-on-the-fly Insta-Trac.™

Chevrolet, the Chevrolet emblem, Corvette, Lumina, Astro, Caprice, S-10 and Blazer are registered trademarks and Chevy is a trademark of the GM Corp. ©1989 GM Corp. All Rights Reserved. *Excludes other GM products. Let's get it together...buckle up.

New 1991 Caprice.

This spring Chevrolet will introduce the all-new, six-passenger, luxurious Caprice. It's as smooth-riding as it is looking.

1990 BUICK RIVIERA

1990 OLDSMOBILE CUTLASS SUPREME CONVERTIBLE

The New Jaguar XJ6. One Of Its Greatest Comforts Is The Luxury Of A Lower Price. $39,700

Many years ago, Jaguar established a uniquely honest form of luxury. That of offering a fine car with value for money. It's a tradition that's especially true today.

Because for 1990 we've not only lowered the price of the XJ6, we've improved it in a number of significant ways. Our improvements start with a larger, more powerful 4-liter engine. There's also a new automatic transmission with "sport" mode shifting for more spirited response. And for safer, surer stopping under all braking conditions, we've installed a more sophisticated Teves anti-lock braking system.

Of course, true motoring luxury requires a cabin filled with natural beauty. That's why the XJ6 has seats faced in hand-tailored supple leather and an interior that glows with highly polished walnut.

Test drive the 1990 XJ6 at your Jaguar dealer. You'll come to find that among its many pleasures is the comfort of knowing that you're truly getting value for your money.

How to survive the 90's.

ABS standard. Air bag standard.
The safety standard.

When it comes to buying a car, it's impossible to be too careful. The same goes for driving one. That's why every single 1990 Saab, in every single Saab showroom, comes standard with anti-lock brakes and driver's air bag. There's something else you need to know. Saabs have been rated the safest cars in their class for the past five years! Yes, even safer than Volvos.

Yet, none of this safety comes at the expense of driving fun; which is the whole point of a Saab in the first place. It's a point which your Saab dealer will be happy to demonstrate with a test drive. Do it soon. We'd hate to launch the 90's without you.

HISTORY OF DETROIT AUTO SHOW

The first Detroit Auto Show took place in 1899 at the Light Guard Armory. Co-sponsored by William Metzger and Seneca Lewis, that first show relied on hunting trophies imported from Canada, hunting and fishing supplies, and livestock accessories to attract the public. There were four vehicles (two steam, two electric) on display.

The Detroit Auto Dealers Association, formed in 1907, sponsored its first Detroit Auto Show at Hellers Beer Garden. At that time, there were fewer than 20,000 vehicles in the United States.

Prior to 1920, manufacturers used the Detroit Auto Show as the place to launch all vehicle lines for the year. The vehicles were covered by canvas until a starting gun was fired to begin the show.

Innovations such as four, six, and eight-cylinder engines, electric headlamps, rubber tires, power steering systems, automatic transmissions and push-button starters all were introduced at previous Detroit Auto Shows.

President Dwight D. Eisenhower was the keynote speaker at the 1960 Detroit Auto Show, the first show held at Cobo Hall and first of the modern era. Vice President Lyndon Johnson was the keynote speaker at the 1962 Detroit Auto Show.

CHILDREN'S CHARITIES TO BENEFIT FROM AUTO SHOW PREVIEW

When Detroit throws a party, it does it first class and for a purpose. The auto show's traditional block-tie Charity Preview will take place Jan. 5 at the Cobo Center in Detroit. Several children's charities will be the beneficiaries. Last year's event raised more than $300,000 for six Detroit-area children's charities, and this year's party is expected to generate in excess of $400,000 for seven beneficiaries. Numerous celebrities and top automotive executives will be in attendance. Credentialed media will be admitted free. For more information and tickets, call Jane Innes at (313) 824-8000, ext. 28.

LEXUS, ONE YEAR LATER

Using the 1989 Detroit show as its world introduction, Lexus tallied 4,554 sales in September, the first month the vehicle went on sale.

"We introduced the Lexus at the Detroit show and used the subsequent auto show circuit to build name recognition," said Kurt von Zumwalt, Lexus spokesman. "Building name recognition was nine months in the making. Fortunately, the strategy has shown positive results."

Lexus sold 4,554 units in September, the first month the vehicle was available to the public. According to von Zumwalt, interest remains high.

"By using the Detroit show as a kick-off, and through subsequent shows, we used the long lead time to have the market come to us," von Zumwalt said. "We didn't have to go out and find a market simultaneous to rushing the vehicle off the production line."

Lexus returns in 1990 with the LS 400 and ES 250, displaying its 1990 4-door sedans for the first time in North America.

'Roger & Me' at DIA Jan. 11

A special advance preview of the new film "Roger & Me" will be held at the Detroit Institute of Arts Auditorium Thursday, Jan. 11, at 7:30 p.m. The film's director, Flint native Michael Moore, will answer questions following the screening.

Tickets are $4 (or one Detroit Film Theatre discount coupon) and are available in advance. For further ticket information, call 833-2323.

Auditions

The East Detroit Civic Theatre will hold open auditions for its winter production, "Footlight Festival, an Evening of One-Acts."

Auditions, for four one-act plays, including "God" by Woody Allen, will be held Jan. 3, 4 and 5 from 7:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. at the East Detroit Rec Center, 16600 Stephens. Roles for 10 women, 20 men and two children are available.

For more information, call Ellen at 885-8429 or Cyndi at 778-5374. The production is scheduled for February.

Auditions for kids scheduled

Children's auditions for Grosse Pointe South's production of "The Sound of Music" will be Friday, Jan. 12 at 4 p.m. in South's auditorium.

Students should have a song prepared, preferably from the show, and an accompanist will be provided. Callbacks will be Monday, Jan. 15. Performances will be April 3-8. If there are any questions, call Ellen Bowen at 343-2140.

Murder

Tom Spackman, Leslie Lynn Meeker and John Bayliss have leading roles in Meadow Brook Theatre's production of "Dial M for Murder" which opens a four-week run Jan. 4 on the campus of Oakland University near Rochester. Tickets are available at the Meadow Brook box office. 377-3300.

'Blithe Spirit' scheduled at the Golden Lion

"Blithe Spirit," Noel Coward's classic comedy, is the third show of the dinner theater season at the Golden Lion Restaurant.

Presented by Dennis Wickline Productions, Inc., the play will open Friday, Jan. 12, and run Friday and Saturday evenings through Saturday, Feb. 24.

"Blithe Spirit" is the enchanting tale of Charles Condomine, an English gentleman who is haunted by his long-dead first wife, Elvira.

An after-dinner seance brings on the whole mess, and that is followed by maid-possession, a double-haunting, and the appearance of one of dramatic literature's most endearing characters, the inimitable Madame Arcati. Arcati is the medium who mistakenly brings back Elvira in the first place, and spends most of the play trying in vain to get rid of her.

Portraying Charles Condomine will be Harry Burkey. Elvira is Suzanne Marie Hillman. Maureen Bruce will portray Ruth Condomine, Charles' second wife, Denyse Clayton is Edith, Jane Vreeland will play Mrs. Bradman, and Cliff Levin will portray Dr. Bradman. Kim Marlinga will take on the plum role of Madame Arcati.

Price for the evening is $22.95 per person which includes dinner, show, tax and gratuity. Cocktails begin at 7 p.m., dinner at 7:30 p.m., with the show following dessert. Gift tickets are available. Special Senior Citizen Group Rates are available for Friday performances only.

The Golden Lion Restaurant is located at 22380 Moross, near Mack, in Detroit across from St. John's Hospital. Call 886-2420 for information and reservations.

Poland chronicled in film

A travelogue that chronicles Poland from its glory days as a world power to its destruction by the Nazis to its post-war resurrection will be presented at Macomb Center for the Performing Arts at 8 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 11.

Cole

"Passport to Poland," a film and narration by platform veteran Jim Cole, is designed to show how Polish traditions, language and customs have survived through the years in "one of the pivotal countries in the history and culture of Central Europe."

The program is part of Macomb Center's monthly Travel Series, coordinated by veteran lecturer and TV personality Dennis Glen Cooper and sponsored by AAA Travel Agency.

Tickets are $4.50 for adults and $4 for students and senior citizens. They may be obtained at the Center's box office or reserved on credit card by calling 286-2222, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. The Center is located on the Center Campus of Macomb Community College at Hall (M-59) and Garfield roads in Clinton Township.

Cole's presentation begins with a look at Warsaw, the city the Nazis virtually destroyed and was rebuilt out of the debris of World War II. Then it moves on to five major areas that depict the rise and fall of the Polish nation and its current status in world affairs.

Included are the Mazurian Lake District, the "Great Lakes of Poland" with their holiday resorts; the Baltic Coast with its fishing ports, beaches and ship building facilities; Poznan, with its folk pageants, farms and modern auto race track; Wroclaw, with views of the Polish mountains and the Silesian lowlands, and Cracow, where attractions include visits to the university where Copernicus wrote his theory about the universe and also the monument to the Polish Jews who died in Nazi concentration camps.

Au pair program offers residents live-in child care

By Pat Paholsky
Editor

After Sharon Cahill gave birth to her fourth child more than a year ago, she began looking for help with child care.

She even explored the idea — among other options — of bringing a nanny from London. Through her search, she saw an ad for EurAupair, a non-profit, intercultural child care program.

Headquartered in Laguna Beach, Calif., and affiliated with the Swedish and Finnish ministries of education, EurAupair is based on the European au pair concept.

Au pair in French — on par or equal — is a generations' old tradition in which a young person lives with a family in another country, learning another culture and caring for the family's children in exchange.

The au pair, generally female, is more of an older sister who is included in all family activities. The concept, widespread in Europe, was until recently illegal in the United States due to immigration laws.

The quota for temporary visas has been increased recently, Cahill said, and there are at least three other programs like EurAupair now operating in the United States. EurAupair, in conjunction with its working partner, ASSE International Student Exchange programs, is officially designated as an exchange visitor program by the U.S. Information Agency.

The upshot of her research into the program didn't net Cahill an au pair; instead it got her the job as community counselor for Michigan. At the time she called, the program did not have a representative in Michigan and was not able to offer any of its services here.

"At first I thought, what am I getting into," she said. "But for my family, it's been totally super."

Most of her work is done by phone and she can adjust her schedule to her family's needs. With four children — ages 8, 7, 4 and 1 — Cahill needs to be flexible.

She visits prospective host families and she visits each au pair at least once a month.

There are now 12 young women placed in homes in Grosse Pointe, Birmingham and other cities and one as far as Kalamazoo. She'll have two more this month, two in March and one coming in June.

The young women come from 13 countries. In Michigan there are au pairs from Germany, Sweden, Finland, France and Italy with young women from Denmark, Spain and England scheduled to arrive in the coming months.

The profile of an au pair is a female 18 through 25; some males are in the program. She is a high school graduate, proficient in English and experienced in child care.

"A lot of the girls have worked in factory child care and all of their mothers work," Cahill said. "It's part of their culture."

They are required to be in good health and many are experienced drivers. To apply for the program, the prospective au pair must make a 12-month child care commitment and must obtain a 12-month U.S. J-1 visa.

Host families are required to have a separate furnished bedroom for the au pair and include her in family meals, outings and activities.

They agree to a child care schedule of up to 45 hours a week with one complete free weekend a month and 1 1/2 days off each week for the rest of the month.

The program also requires that the host family reimburse the au pair up to $300 for the year for four hours of educational or cultural instruction a week, which can be continuing education classes, night school or other classes.

Experiencing her first Halloween, Paula Kumpula of Finland sits in the middle of some members of the Cahill family; from left, mother Sharon, Allison, 4, and Ashley, 7.

Costs include $195 application/interview fee; $2,800 for round trip fare and liability and medical insurance for one year; and $100 a week which is called pocket money.

Typical duties of an au pair might include getting a child or children off to school, cleaning their rooms, playing with the younger children and taking them for a walk or to the park. She might drive the older children to after-school activities and pick them up.

The au pair might prepare meals if both parents work and do light housework, but she is not a maid, Cahill said.

Both the host family and the au pair are screened thoroughly and matched as closely as possible, Cahill said. Smoking is an issue, she added, since most Europeans smoke and a number of families prefer non-smokers.

Both sides exchange photos of their families to acquaint each other with their backgrounds.

There are numerous benefits to the program, Cahill said. If the parents want to go out in the evening, the au pair is there. The major plus is having one person caring for the children in their own home as opposed to taking them to a day care center and picking them up and having to make other arrangements when a child is sick.

Of inestimable value, however, is a child's exposure to a person from another culture, Cahill said.

She has brought au pairs to her home on a temporary basis before placement. On one occasion, an au pair took out the globe and began showing Cahill's children the map of the world.

"I think my little boy learned more about Europe and the Arctic Circle in 20 minutes," she said. "He still talks about that."

Another time, a girl from Finland was staying with the family over the Halloween weekend.

"We took out the knife to carve the pumpkin and discovered the knife came from Finland," Cahill said.

It delighted their visitor who didn't know what Halloween was and she began to tell the children about various Finnish customs.

"It's a sweet relationship," Cahill said. "If you can work it out in your life, it's such a nice thing."

The process, from initial application to arrival of the au pair, takes about three months. It's possible to speed up the process, Cahill said, but there is an additional charge.

While the au pair program is ideal for working parents, Cahill said 80 percent of her clients are at-home mothers who are involved with community affairs.

"It's a wonderful option today. There are no more Hazels," Cahill said, referring to the comic strip character.

For more information about the program, call the EurAupair office toll free at 1-800-333-3804 or call Cahill at 881-5643.

Designer clothes to be auctioned for DIA

On Saturday, Jan. 6 at 11 a.m., more than 200 designer gowns from the estate of the late Lucille Wertz will be auctioned on the sixth floor of DuMouchelle's Art Galleries, located at 409 E. Jefferson, in downtown Detroit, across from the Renaissance Center.

The sale of the elegant day and evening wear, along with accessories, will benefit the Associates of the Founders Society, of which Wertz was a member.

There will be a preview of all items at 10 a.m., one hour before the auction. Catalogs will be available at the door prior to the preview and sale Jan. 6.

The late Wertz's elegant taste was reflected in both the designers and their creations she selected to wear. Classic designer names fall from the labels — Chanel, Geoffrey Beene, Guy Laroche, Mary McFadden, Louis Azzaro, Stavropoulos, Bill Blass, Carolyn Roehm, Valentino, Adolfo, Givenchy, Louis Ferraud, Yves St. Laurent, Christian Dior, Halston, Sonia, Anthony Muto and more. Most of the garments are size 10. There are several items, however, in sizes 6 and 8.

Included in the selection are blouses, jackets, suits, knits, lounging costumes, evening and cocktail gowns. Miscellaneous boutique items, including shoes, handbags and additional blouses, will conclude the sale to benefit the Associates of the Founders Society.

All checks are to be made out to DuMouchelle's Art Galleries which in turn will present the check to the Founders Society on behalf of the estate of Lucille Wertz. There will be no dressing rooms available. Bidders should be certain of size and use. Information is available by calling DuMouchelle's at 963-6255 or 963-0248.

On Jan. 12-14, household furniture and other items from the estate of the late Lucille Wertz will go on the auction block at DuMouchelle's. Catalogs will be available soon.

Do you belong in a zoo?

Volunteers are needed at the Detroit Zoo, as well as the Belle Isle Zoo and Aquarium. The Detroit Zoo Docent Association is now accepting applications for its spring training class.

Detroit Zoo docents (a Latin word for teacher) become zoo educators who share their knowledge and appreciation of animals with groups of adults and children. Docents participate in a variety of activities following their in-depth training period at the Detroit Zoo.

The current 100 members of the Detroit Zoo Docent Association lead group tours, deliver Outreach programs in the community, and staff the Log Cabin Learning Center. Docents have been an integral part of the zoo for 12 years and range in age from 19 to 72 with diverse backgrounds.

All applicants must be at least 18 years of age. No prior training or experience is required. Interested persons should call the Detroit Zoo at 398-0903 for an application and more information.

Making a gift of reading

Kindergartener Mara Burns puts the finishing touches on her rainbow bookmark.

Defer School hosted a work party for the second year in a row for some of the students and parents who selected and contributed 140 books to the Detroit Free Press Gift of Reading program.

Students put their artistic skills to work, making about 120 bookmarks in one hour to accompany the books which were distributed to children under 7.

Shores volunteer firefighters on call

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

When things go up in smoke, who are you going to call?

Well, if you're a Grosse Pointe Shores resident, you're lucky because you have two firefighting units available. One, of course, is made up of the trained public safety officers on duty. The other consists of the eight auxiliary firefighters.

All of the auxiliary firefighters are fully trained and could be sent out as a unit to fight a fire if necessary, said Public Safety Chief Daniel Healy. Under most situations, however, the auxiliaries assist the regular firefighters.

Healy points out, though, that these volunteers are more than hose handlers. They all have their own equipment and know what their responsibilities are. Two of the eight auxiliaries are fire apparatus operators who are trained to control the firefighting equipment at the truck.

"They can do their equipment as fast as any full-timer," Healy said of his volunteers.

All the volunteers are Shores village employees. Seven are employed in the Department of Public Works. They are Brett Smith, John Paisley, Harold Michaux, James Cooke, Thomas Duke, Jeffrey Duprey and Chris Leadbetter. The eighth man is Fred MacWhirter, the only Shores office worker in the group.

Because all the auxiliary firefighters are village employees, they can respond to all fire runs during the day. At night, the department works as a progressive call system. The first call goes out to two of the volunteers who live the closest. The second call goes to the next two closest and so on.

The auxiliaries double the manpower available to fight a fire in the Shores, Healy said. On the average fire, five public safety officers are available to respond, and some five volunteers can respond as well.

Because most of the auxiliaries are DPW workers, many are already out in the community and can respond quickly to an emergency.

Paisley, for example, was one of the first to respond when the handicapped Grosse Pointe City woman accidentally drove into the lake last winter and sank through the ice. He was in the freezing water along with a public safety officer and successfully pulled the woman to safety.

Healy said the auxiliaries provide a valuable service for the community, and they do it as unpaid volunteers.

Shores has a history of volunteer firefighters. Its 1911 charter mandated that all village employees must also be volunteer firefighters. Though the mandate no longer meets modern employment practices, there is still good participation among village workers as auxiliary firefighters.

Intrepid columnist makes predictions on future of auto industry

This is the time of year when columnists peer into their crystal balls, make predictions of things to come and hope no one remembers how wrong they were a year ago. And since it's the beginning of a new decade, we have even more leeway for being wrong, because who's going to remember 10 years from now. (We'll be dealing with centuries and millennia then anyway.) So here goes.

1. The European makers will fall upon hard times in this market.

Why did Ford Motor Co. buy Jaguar? Why did General Motors buy half of Saab? Why did Chrysler enter a so-far unfruitful marriage with Maserati?

It may well be Detroit's continuing awe of things European, but it may also be that the Europeans need a major infusion of capital to survive. And this gives us a peek at a dominating theme of the '90s — fear of Japan.

Mercedes-Benz, BMW and other European darlings of the

Autos

By Richard Wright

yuppies publicly look down their upturned noses at the new Japanese luxury cars, but there can be no denying the amazing quality of the first Lexus and Infiniti models. And those high-class Japanese cars are not aimed at Pontiac and Dodge and only tangentially at Cadillac and Lincoln; they are aimed at the high-line European "prestige" cars.

Look at their advertising. Hazy, image-oriented, stressing intangibles. No Dodge Rebellion here, no VW-style "Think Small," this is deep-think. The Lexus is very definitely not the Toyota your father drove.

Nothing lasts forever. Cadillac used to be the standard of the world, the definition of a fine luxury car. Mercedes-Benz took over that role sometime in the '70s and built on it through the '80s. It seems likely that Toyota, Nissan and Honda will usurp the luxury crown from Mercedes-Benz, just as they did small-car honors from seemingly unbeatable Chevrolet and Ford.

Detroit may be down, but it is not out. But the high-flying European makers are in deep sushi. The only thing that can save them is continued inscrutable advertising from the Orient.

2. Detroit will be born again.

"Detroit" has long been a synonym for the auto industry, even though very few cars are actually built in the city. Chrysler Corp. has torn down much of the east side, but is planning to shut down the Jefferson plant, so not so much can be expected from Iacocca's minions for a while.

And Cadillac's Poletown plant is a wonderful place for many innovations in union-management relations and in money-guys-car-guys cooperation, but turning out cars in big quantities has never been one of its long suits.

Nonetheless, the outlook for Detroit, both the city and the American auto industry, seems good in the '90s. The Japanese makers are beginning to offer what Detroit has always done best — big luxury cars with V-8 engines, automatic transmissions, big wheels and luxury interiors. (The European makers have eschewed true Detroit decadence typified by plush deep-cushion seating, but there is definitely a market for it.)

When Nissan offers an Infiniti with landau roof or Toyota touts a Lexus with fake wire wheels, we will know that traditional Detroit iron is back.

It seems likely that Detroit (not cars made in America, but American nameplates not owned by Japanese companies) will in the coming decade decide to meet the Japanese challenge by doing what it does best, not by trying to imitate Europeans or Japanese.

Everyone wants cars from the '50s or muscle cars from the '60s and '70s. Why? Nostalgia? Yes partly, but also because those cars were Detroit's best ever. When Detroit imitates Europe, no matter how well, it doesn't work. Witness the Ford Taurus SHO, which beats the Europeans at their own game in almost every category except sales. But the 5.0-liter Mustang with its outdated styling is still proper anywhere.

It is already becoming difficult for those who want to buy American to tell a car's nationality. Technically, a Ford Crown Victoria is an import, but a Probe, which is a Mazda under the skin, is not. What about an Eagle Talon?

The American auto makers will survive by linking with European and Japanese firms, a process already well under way. But what about that mythical Detroit, maker of big luxurious cars with V-8 power and lavish creature comforts? They will be back too.

3. Congress will act against air bags, by either rescinding the requirement or banning them.

Air bags have never been as good a safety device as seat belts, but in '90 they are on cars in great numbers. They are expensive, they scare a lot of people and they probably won't work as advertised. Just as Congress was roused in the mid-'70s to ban the ignition interlock after hearing from irate voters, it will begin hearing from them again about air bags.

Analysts won't say it and the auto companies won't say it, but it seems likely that last summer's surprisingly strong new-car sales and the deep slump since the '90s were introduced may have something to do with air bags.

Opposition to the air bag was strong in Detroit for a long time, then it suddenly folded. Why? It's a good excuse to raise prices and the government requires them.

The quiet acceptance of the air bag by Detroit shows more clearly than any other action the deep contempt auto company managers have for their engineers and the ascendancy of money manipulators, lawyers and professional managers who have no more concept of what makes a good automobile than the Japanese had in the '50s.

4. One of my favorite automotive columnists, Satch Carlson, will return from exile and once more make the rest of us look bad.

Satch is undeniably a weird auto columnist and was long a major reason many people read AutoWeek. He was given a sabbatical after details of his private life showed up in the New York Times. He will return to AutoWeek. Or somewhere.

Usher in 1990 with a resolution to photograph different subject material. Try your hand at close-ups — you'll be pleased with the results!

Make some photo resolutions

When the New Year begins and you're busy on your list of resolutions, don't forget to include your photography.

Here's my list of recommended 1990 photography resolutions to help you usher in a photo-filled decade of the '90s.

First, resolve to get those favorite shots of yours enlarged, matted, framed and up on the wall. You're still thrilled over the dramatic Lake Michigan sunset you shot last summer and that candid of your new puppy cuddled in Junior's lap — so what are you waiting for? The small investment to get them on the wall will pay off in enjoyable dividends.

How about resolving to enter some of the many Detroit area photo contests? Unusual photographs with high emotional impact often place well, and, of course, if you don't enter, you'll never know how well that special shot might have done.

And to help you prepare for that contest, resolve to take a photography class or workshop. Many good ones are offered throughout the metropolitan area that will benefit you greatly.

Didn't find that new lens you've been longing for under the tree on Christmas morning? Well, resolve to please that special person, yourself, with an after-holiday gift. Buy it for yourself and enjoy it throughout the coming years.

Photography

By Monte Nagler

And speaking about equipment, resolve to check into insurance coverage for your camera gear. Premiums are inexpensive compared with the emotional and financial losses if your equipment is lost or stolen. Also, use your camera to photograph valuables in your home. Safely stored in your safe-deposit box, these pictures could prove invaluable in the event of damage or loss.

Feel in a photographic rut? Resolve to photograph different subject material perhaps in a different way. Document a year in the life of one of your children or photograph that oak tree in the back yard as it appears during each of the seasons.

Or perhaps try a new kind of film. If you've been shooting color negative film for years, try color slide film or some black and white. You'll be pleasantly surprised at how a change of film can alter the effectiveness of your images.

Finally, resolve to take more pictures than you've shot before and concentrate on obtaining better quality shots. After all, the more you shoot, the more photographic knowledge you'll gain.

One of my most important resolutions . . . to wish all of you a joyous, photo-filled 1990.

A backward glance

In which we look back at a year's chronicling of our town

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

This day last year we wrote about New Year's resolutions, those pesky little promises most people can't keep. The good news: Such goal-setting won't hurt you. It probably won't help you, either, so if you want to blow the tradition off — go ahead.

So, this year, let's do something different. Let's rummage around in the year's back issues and see what we've been up to. Kind of like rummaging in Grandma's attic, only not as musty.

We've covered a lot of ground in the Community section. Socialites glittering at the auto show preview parties. A minister working on a book about St. Francis of Assisi. Tap dancing on Tuesday nights.

Let's see... here's a good one. Women joined the Rotary for the first time last February. Those stuffy guys had just voted a month before (on the international level) to finally admit women. Wait a minute — it says here that one of the first women to join in Grosse Pointe had already been a member of a club in the U.P. Hmm, maybe they aren't so stuffy after all.

Here's one about Shakespeare. A man named Mark McPherson tried to prove to the Friends of the Library that Queen Elizabeth wrote all those famous plays. Or Francis Bacon or the Earl of Oxford. It's kind of an interesting controversy, especially since no matter who wrote the verse, we still get to read it.

Queen Elizabeth — can you believe it? I thought she was too busy with her Corgis. Oh, that Queen Elizabeth! Well, her father wrote the music to "Greensleeves," which was a pretty cultured thing to do.

OK, what have we got here?

The Racial Justice Center got a new director. It says here that she's "outspoken" and doesn't mince words. Good, we need that.

"Ethnic relations are at sort of a standstill," Sheila Emery told our features editor. That sounds like a real kind way to put it.

Later in the spring, the Junior League celebrated its 75th birthday. The men and boys choir from Christ Church went on a European tour. The Academy's Action Auction offered big spenders a chance to buy a retired race horse or a 1940 Ford.

And of course there was Art on the Pointe.

We wrote a lot about religion.

A Grosse Pointe man traveled to the East to study philosophy.

A Biblical scholar came to town to talk about his translation of a book of psalms from the Dead Sea Scrolls.

A teacher and graduate of Star of the Sea went on a volunteer ministry to Central America. She intended to do a one-year ministry in El Salvador and ended up mothering 15 boys in a Guatemalan orphanage.

The romance of selflessness came up against hard reality when she found out the director was molesting the kids. She brought charges against the man.

The closing of 30 Detroit Catholic parishes touched Grosse Pointe when St. Ambrose opened its doors to St. Martin de Tours in a merger. In April, parishioners at St. Martin's met for the last time on the steps of their church, prayed, then walked together to their new church home as the St. Ambrose congregation applauded them.

Moms talked about the need for maternity leave in a Mother's Day issue. With more than half of all new mothers going back to work before their child's first birthday, that's a lot of working moms in Grosse Pointe.

We ran this photo for the first time in July, as vanloads of books arrived for the fall AAUW Book Sale. October marked the 27th year for the sale. It's just one of the ways volunteers got together for a good cause last year.

Nancy Caputo, Nanne Simonds and Kay MacDonald were doing the heavy lifting on this occasion.

Many of them said they worked for economic reasons. "We sat down and did the books and figured if we wanted to eat I'd have to go back to work," said a Liggett teacher.

On a fey note, we reported in April that a new business has found uses for milk bottle caps, cardboard tubes, pantyhose containers and plastic newspaper bags. Arts & Scraps supplies crafts materials to local nursery schools. Wow, bags and bags of egg cartons and styrofoam peanuts!

Hey, did you know you can make a hanging tree ornament out of a squashed pop can? See, you just paint this little face on the round end and glue hair or a hat on it.

No, huh?

In July, we toured gardens and bought great stuff, tres francais, at the French Market.

Whoa, what's this? Some guy actually claimed to be reading "The Closing of the American Mind"! Sure. I have a completely open mind on this — that book was dull. And I got all the way to page 25, so I know.

Also in July, we learned how to improve on nature with liposuction. No more saddlebags or droopy tush. The surgery confers better psychological functioning, a Grosse Pointe plastic surgeon told us. Look better, feel better about yourself.

Grosse Pointe likes tours. Home tours, garden tours. In August, it was the Kitchen Tour.

We wrote a lot about art, too. Grosse Pointe likes art, which is one of the nice things about our town. Late summer is the traditional time for the Grosse Pointe Artists to strut their stuff. It's always popular.

In the fall, we ran one of my favorites: what you can buy in Grosse Pointe for a quarter. Postcards, Gummi Bears (a penny apiece), a daily newspaper (pre-JOA), a banana, handful of wall anchors or screws. You could board a plant for a day or get your sandwich in an onion roll instead of bread.

One of Grosse Pointe's most endearing qualities is its willingness to work and raise money for causes. We ran several stories on volunteers, for hospitals, for children's organizations, for animal causes, for musical and artistic groups.

Labor Day was scarcely a memory when the benefit season began. Planned Parenthood, Fontbonne, churches, historical society, the Festival of Trees, Orchestra Hall's Christmas Walk. Every group offered an opportunity to dress up and glitter a bit, all to raise money for a good cause. "Cause" photos and "check-passing" photos abound in those issues, as people gathered to address envelopes and donate money.

People kept on trying to kick their compulsions. In October, we focused on a national program to quit smoking. "Sniff your butt jars," participants were advised. They looked at slides of cancerous tumors and diseased lungs, smoked with their hands upside down, all in an attempt to make smoking unpleasant. For some of them, it worked.

That same month, Grosse Pointers were urged to get involved against drugs. Communities aren't as tight-knit as they used to be, and some believe that's one of the reasons for many of our asocial behaviors.

If you look out your window today and see kids drinking beer, chances are you won't do anything, we wrote. But a generation ago, you would have grabbed the kitchen broom and chased them away. And told their parents. And bawled out the kids.

There's a lesson there for us all. We're willing enough to involve ourselves in charitable work, but not with our own kids or our neighbors. It's a good lesson — one worth making a New Year's resolution about.

By the way, anybody out there pass the "where in Grosse Pointe" quiz we ran last week? I didn't think so.

Claudia Could End Up In An Institution. Her Crime Was Getting Sick.

It happens every day. In every community in the Tri-county area. Someone like Claudia is forced to leave their own residence, give up their independence and be placed in a "home." Simply because they can no longer take care of themselves. Simply because no one is there to help them.

That's where CareGivers comes in. A United Way agency since 1965, CareGivers serves thousands of persons just like Claudia, whose physical or mental limitations prevent them from performing essential personal and household chores.

We bring our care right into their homes, providing whatever services are needed - at no fee: personal care, nursing services, household work, parenting education, just to name a few. Preventing those like Claudia from ending up in an institution...or children from troubled families being placed in a foster home. Encouraging their self-reliance. Preserving their dignity.

But limited funding prevents us from reaching out to everyone in the Tri-county area who needs our care. That's where you can make the difference! Your gift can help brighten the holiday season for hundreds of other individuals just like Claudia who are now on CareGivers' waiting lists.

Please help us help them.

IT MUST BE IN WRITING

You are an honest person. You've always made business deals with a handshake. Now, when you want to buy or sell a house, you find that everything has to be in writing. Why is this?

Every state has enacted laws to protect buyers and sellers involved in land and home sales from misunderstandings, needless disputes, and the occasional unscrupulous operator. For this reason, real estate listings, offers, acceptances, binders, options and deeds are usually required by law to be executed in writing to be enforceable. In addition, in most states, mortgages and leases with a term greater than one year, must also be in writing. The laws may seem overly conservative, however, the purchase and sale of property is the largest financial transaction in which most of us engage in our lifetimes. Isn't it nice to be protected?

A home buyer or seller is entitled to know EXACTLY what he is buying or selling and under what terms before being asked to make a substantial commitment with potential long-term consequences.

If there is anything I can do to help you in the field of Real Estate, please phone or drop in at ADLHOCH & ASSOCIATES, REALTORS. We are located at 19515 Mack Avenue Grosse Pointe Woods. Phone 882-5200. No Obligation.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Meno Ryszewski-Meno

Julie Marie Ryszewski, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Richard Ryszewski of Grosse Pointe Farms, married Richard S. Meno, son of Ronald Meno of Sterling Heights and the late Lorraine Meno, on Sept. 15, 1989, at St. Paul Catholic Church.

The Rev. Francis X. Canfield officiated at the 5:30 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception in the Fries Ballroom of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

The bride's gown was taffeta, with a full skirt, chapel-length train, a scooped neckline and short puffed sleeves trimmed with lace flowers and shoulder bows. The fitted lace bodice was accented with crystal beads and pearls. Her veil was chapel-length with a headpiece of pearls and crystal beads and she carried a cascade of white roses, orchids and stephanotis.

Susan Hinz of East Lansing served as maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Sheri Ryszewski of Sun Valley, Idaho, the bride's sister, Alix Kelly of Grosse Pointe, Sozi Hessburg of Grosse Pointe, Janye Fossano of Royal Oak, the groom's sister, Dana Meno of Sterling Heights, the groom's sister and Ronna Roncelli of Sterling Heights, the groom's sister.

Attendants wore amethyst tea-length dresses with velvet bodices, V-necks, long tapered sleeves and full taffeta skirts. They carried bouquets of vivid pink stargazer lilies, ivy, heather and tiny cascading ribbons.

Peter Solaka of Warren served as best man.

Groomsmen were Todd Briggs of Gahanna, Ohio, Bill Peterson of Silver Springs, Mo., Jim Ryszewski of Grosse Pointe, the bride's brother, John Spearin of Lansing, Randal Fossano of Royal Oak and Nicholas Roncelli of Sterling Heights.

Local church musician to publish, record his composition

Joseph Palazzolo, full-time minister of music of St. Margaret of Scotland Catholic Church in St. Clair Shores, is a member of a national consortium of composers that hopes to publish and record their original works.

The California-based partnership is the result of a meeting at the recent convention of the National Association of Pastoral Musicians, held last June in Long Beach, Calif.

The group of composers helps each other by using each other's music in their own churches, with their own choirs and congregations. They critique the music by noting their own as well as their congregations' reactions to it. Through this process they will choose the best of each composer's work and include it in a collection of printed music and a recording which will be released at the next national convention of the NPM, in June, 1991.

Palazzolo, a graduate of Oakland University, has been playing and directing his original music in churches in the metro Detroit area since 1968.

Also a concert pianist and former pupil of internationally-known artist Flavio Varani, he has appeared as soloist with both the Warren and the Lake St. Clair Symphony orchestras.

Palazzolo is presently preparing a cassette tape of Christmas music which will include some of his compositions. In addition to his own keyboard and vocal talents, the voice of Kim Korba, one of St. Margaret's cantors, will also be featured.

Both Palazzolo and Korba will appear in concert this month at St. Margaret's. Call 293-0116 for information.

Santa Claus is alive and well at Eastern Michigan

Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus and he's a telecommunications major at Eastern Michigan University, an ex-keyboard player for a top 40 rock 'n' roll band and smokes Marlboro cigarettes.

Last week he was featured on WTWS-TV's "Club Connect" on both the Wednesday and the Saturday shows.

Eric Kroph, a junior from Grosse Pointe Woods, was in need of some holiday employment when he came across an ad seeking Santas. He went in for an interview, gave his best "Ho! Ho! Ho!" and was hired as one of Briarwood Mall's five jolly fat men.

"It's pretty hot and itchy in the suit. It's wool with fur lining and I have to pad myself with pillows," Kroph said.

His usual shift is between three and five hours long and on the weekend he'll see more than 400 kids in a shift.

But he's not complaining; Kroph likes kids. Being a Santa allows him to see them at their most naughty and nice.

"The best part is making kids believe you're Santa. Some kids aren't sure they believe, but after I convince the skeptics it's great! They really open up and start asking questions - 'Where are you reindeer now?' 'Do you come down from the North Pole everyday' - and saying what they want for Christmas," Kroph said. "They get really excited."

Are visions of sugar plums dancing in the heads of the children who climb onto his lap to disclose their Christmas wish list?

Not really. "The boys ask for anything to do with Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, Batman or Ghostbusters and all the girls want Barbie dolls or Little Miss Make-Up," Kroph said.

The spirit of giving hasn't escaped all children though, according to Kroph. He noted one little boy's selfless request. "He asked for a toothbrush for his dad, a watch for his mom and a doll for his sister, but nothing for himself."

Generally, Kroph said being Santa is a low stress job, except for tired arms from lifting up kids.

"It's like playing a role I get into character. I think about what Santa means to me and I try to portray that image. You can't be negative. You don't want to be responsible for someone having a bad Santa complex." He also said a few 'Merry Christmas's and Ho! Ho! Ho's! help him get into the spirit of things.

Is there really a Santa Claus? Kroph thinks so. "There definitely is one for children but there's one for adults, too. There is a Santa in the spirit of the season and in the joy of giving."

Eric Kroph

Memorial Church celebrates anniversary

Grosse Pointe Memorial Church enters its 125th year with two services to be conducted by the Rev. Joan Salmon-Campbell, moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Salmon-Campbell will speak on Friday, Jan. 5, at 7:30 p.m. in an old-fashioned Presbyterian revival with preaching and singing. The Rev. Eddie Edwards and the congregation of Joy for Jesus will join in the Festival for Christ.

On Sunday, Jan. 7, at 10 a.m., there will be a single worship service, with the Rev. Salmon-Campbell preaching. The sacraments of baptism and communion will be celebrated.

The Rev. Salmon-Campbell has served the Presbyterian Church at the national level in several different capacities. She is a musician, educator, administrator and pastor.

United Church women to meet

The Women's Association of the Grosse Pointe United Church will meet Tuesday, Jan. 9, at 11 a.m. for its annual meeting and installation of officers. Lunch, hosted by the Leah group, will be served at noon.

The Missionary Board will present an afternoon program, with Barbara Wineka of the Friends of Samaritan Center and Sisters of Mercy as the featured speaker.

University of Detroit scholarship available

The University of Detroit has announced that students from Catholic parishes in the Archdiocese of Detroit are eligible for a $500 scholarship, beginning with the fall 1990 term. One grant is available for each parish, according to Randall Berd, director of admissions at U. of D. To be considered for a Pastor's Scholarship Award, a student must have a written recommendation from the pastor of a church in the archdiocese and must also meet the university's admission requirements. The non-renewable $500 scholarship will be applied toward the first year of enrollment as a full-time undergraduate.

"This is our way of thanking pastors who have been recommending U. of D. to graduating seniors and community college students in their parishes," Berd said.

Christian Brothers gather in Warren to honor canonization of Brother Mutien-Marie Wiaux

The local Christian Brothers (De La Salle) gathered at De La Salle Collegiate in Warren on Dec. 10, to celebrate the canonization of their confrere, Brother Mutien-Marie Wiaux, who was canonized in Rome that day.

Christian Brothers from the LaSallian Center in Windsor, Canada, DeLaSalle Collegiate and Bishop Gallagher High School gathered for a Mass celebrated by the Brothers' chaplains, Reverend Michael Kazer and Reverend Jim Duggan.

Brother Mutien-Marie Wiaux is a native of Malonne, Belgium. "We are proud of Brother Mutien-Marie's accomplishments. He was an excellent educator and spiritual leader of the young. With the large number of Belgian settlers in the metropolitan Detroit area we are honored to have another Christian Brother canonized as a saint," Brother George Synon said.

Other Christian Brothers who have been canonized are John Baptist De La Salle (France), Brothers Benilde (France), Miguel (Ecuador) and Blessed Brother Scubillon (France).

Fox Creek Questers

The Fox Creek Chapter of the Questers will present a program by member Carol Davey for their first program of the year. Davey, who has a master's degree in textiles from Cornell University, will speak on "Silk through the ages." Hostess for the Jan. 4 meeting is Mary Ann Draper.

GP Camera Club

The Grosse Pointe Camera Club will meet Tuesday, Jan. 9, at 7:30 p.m. at Brownell Middle School. The group will hold a monochrome and color print competition and a pictorial and nature slide competition. Visitors are welcome. Call 824-9064 or 881-8034 for more information.

Grosse Pointe Ski Club

The Grosse Pointe Ski Club will hold its next meeting on Wednesday, Jan. 10, at 8 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. A social hour will be held before and after the meeting.

The meeting will feature a color movie from the Travel Unlimited Co. on Breckenridge, Vail, Keystone, and Copper Mountain, Colo., by ski photographer Warren Miller. The movie shows all the slopes, the winter skiing activities and the condo accommodations of those areas.

Another film will be shown on Winter Park, Colo., which is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year and will be celebrating with parties, fire works, hot air balloon rides and all kinds of festive activities.

The Grosse Pointe Ski Club's Boyne Mountain trip, Jan. 12-14, is sold out, but call 771-3868 for wait-list reservations.

There are still a few openings for the Shanty Creek-Schuss Mountain ski trip Jan. 26-28. This includes charter bus, lodging at the slopes, lift tickets, meals, and after-ski wine and cheese parties. Call 882-2983 for reservations.

The big trip of the season for the club is to Winter Park, Vail, and Breckenridge from Feb. 17 to March 3. This is either a one-week or two-week all-inclusive package. There are only a couple of places left. Call 771-3868 for information.

The club is open to all couples and singles who enjoy skiing and socializing. For details on the year-round social activities call Virginia at 881-0909.

Senior Men's Club

The Grosse Pointe Senior Men's Club will meet Jan. 9 at 11 a.m. at the War Memorial. The speaker will be Philip Fox II of the Hilberry Theatre at Wayne State University. His topic will be "A Visit with William Shakespeare's Kings."

Members may make reservations by calling Pete Corsiglia. Jan. 19 the group will sponsor a trip to Windsor Raceway.

Windmill Pointe Garden Club

On Jan. 3, the Windmill Pointe Garden Club will kick off the new year with a meeting at the home of Mrs. Charles R. Begemen at 11:30 a.m.

Mrs. Bruce Feighner will be co-hostess for the luncheon. Following the business meeting, Lois Johnson will present the program "Higgins Lake Reviewed."

Pettipointe Questers No. 243

A Russian Christmas was celebrated by the Pettipointe Questers No. 243 at its December meeting held at the home of Mandy Scranton.

Hostesses Scranton and Arlene Creech served an authentic Russian meal to members and special guest Marieanna Bair, Questers' state of Michigan president.

The meal was followed by a lecture on Russian culture by Olga Stevens, who is the Russian liason at the International Institute.

Members brought something Russian for a show-and-tell and a wrapped child's gift to be donated to a Christmas party for underprivileged children.

Mah-Nah-Bee-Zee Questers

The Mah-Nah-Bee-Zee Questers will gather on Monday, Jan. 8, at 12:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Paul Honderich. The co-hostess will be Mrs. Edward Avery.

Grosse Pointe Farm and Garden

The Grosse Pointe Farm and Garden Club will hold its first meeting of the winter season Monday, Jan. 8, at 11:30 a.m. at the home of Mrs. William Moll. Hostesses will be Mrs. Gordon Maitland Jr., Mrs. William Moll and Mrs. Robert Sivanson.

Bill Thomas of Flower Design will speak on "How to Brighten up Your Winter," working with fresh flowers and a design presentation.

Lakeside Palette Club

The Lakeside Palette Club will have Electra Stamelos as their guest artist on Jan. 11. Stamelos is listed in Who's Who in American Art and will present a lecture on fine arts.

Club meetings are held at 7:30 p.m. at the Civic Arena, 20000 Stephens, St. Clair Shores. Visitors are welcome.

GP Crafts Guild

The Grosse Pointe Crafts Guild will hold its monthly meeting Wednesday, Jan. 10, at 7:30 p.m. in the upstairs meeting room of the Central Library. Members will learn how to make potpourri sachets. Anyone interested in crafts is invited to attend. For more information, call 886-1827 or 881-0597.

The group will go to Northville for lunch at Genitti's Hole in the Wall.

AARP No. 3430

AARP's Grosse Pointe chapter will meet Monday, Jan. 8, at 1:30 p.m. at the Neighborhood Club. The program will be "Elderhostel Goes to Britain," presented by Esther Peters. The Neighborhood Club is located at 17150 Waterloo.

Two trips are planned for January. On Jan. 14 the group will go to Adrian to see "Auntie Mame" at the Croswell Opera House. The price of $36.50 includes transportation, lunch and the play.

On Jan. 20 a trip to Plymouth to see ice sculptures is planned.

Senior Ladies Club

The Senior Ladies Club of Grosse Pointe will meet Wednesday, Jan. 10, for cards and refreshments from noon to 4 p.m. in the War Memorial's Fries Ballroom. The club is open to Grosse Pointe women over 60; it meets the second and fourth Wednesday of the month.

Dues are $9.50. A limited number of non-resident memberships are available at $11.50. Refreshments are $3.50; $4.50 for guests.

To attend, call Natalie Patten at 777-1383 no later than Jan. 5.

Bridge

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD THE PASTEBOARD PASTIME

By nature, bridge players would rather declare than defend even though the art of either requires genuine excellence. Most of a hands after gab and chatter is similar. It usually relates to the management of the declarer's cards, not the adversaries.

Some hands, no matter how well they're bid by either side, are just unwieldy to deal with successfully. Either which way they're played the declarer ends up wishing he wasn't as the penalty generated is henpeckable.

Today's hand is this columnist witness. It was played a few weeks ago at Don Curtis' Friday Post Meridian Duplicate Game. That day I came to kibitz and was glad I hadn't missed it. I seated myself to the right of South, Jack Danaher who was in complicity with the ever pleasant Eddie Wunsch. Their game from what I had gained was a shade or so above ship shape when Peg Klock and George Belanger came to play board twenty-six.

Four Spades by E/W can be beaten by the incredible lead of North's Spade nine. Such a double dummy play almost requires a peak at the Fifty-Two Pasteboards for even a world class master would have an impossible option discovering that solution. It's difficult therefore to fault South for bidding five hearts in the face of his partner's strong calls. In doing so not even this kibitzer was capable of anticipating the impending wreckage. George's penalty double was well founded as the club king seemed well placed and hearts weren't breaking for declarer. Add to this a possible Spade winner and East's scent of a set was truly a premature smell of sweet success.

Witness with me my delightful astonishment at the exacting practice of the defenders flawless action. East's spade six lead won by West's ace. The diamond three ruffed by East and a small club return ruffed by West. Another diamond ruff by East. Peg's diamond play at trick two and George's club play at trick three were well thought out as both reasoned that declarer had to have three cards in each suit for his high level informative double. East now knew that another club ruff was out of the question for Eddie must have had five hearts to introduce that suit at the four level. He therefore played the ace, ten of trumps and sat back to wait his still to come club winner as North had no place to ditch the lady. The eleven hundred set was a top. Two other pairs defended same, but were unable to score more than down two and all E/W in 4 spades made.

By nature bridge players would rather declare than defend, but sometimes it's much better not to.

New Year is symbol of hope the whole world over

As "Merry Christmas" blends into "Happy New Year" there remains that euphoric feeling that all is right with the world. We have touched base with all of our friends by way of cards and notes. We have renewed and strengthened ties with our loved ones as we gathered to celebrate Christmas.

We have given, and we have received, and it is difficult to decide which made us happier. It was wonderful to have loved ones think of us in a special way but it was also gratifying to see the happy, pleased look on the faces of those to whom we gave gifts.

Now it is over, and we look forward to a new decade with hope and, of course, resolutions. We look backward once more and pray that no matter what lies ahead, we will all be together for a rerun of Christmas '89.

We know that modern technology has shrunk the world to the point that the world we once knew no longer exists, and the one that we know must survive on different strategies than those which once worked. We know, too, that our future exists at a political level, but we hope that those in charge will look beyond ambition and realize that all of us want to live in peace and equanimity.

They do not want to send their young people off to a no-win war or to live in fear of annihilation. They have the same hopes and desires we do. Our common beliefs and practices are nowhere more apparent than in our celebrations — particularly the New

Year. In fact the New Year has been called the grandfather of all other festivals that have been held the world around.

In almost every country of the world, the new year has become a time of feasting and fun. People are thankful for the blessings that have come to them during the year. They feel kindly toward their fellow men as they look forward to the promise of the new year.

While customs differ in other countries, the same spirit prevails as the new year is welcomed. In the USSR, New Year's is a child-centered affair. It is the favorite festival of all the year.

It comes at the beginning of the school holidays and the fun lasts for 12 days. It is a time for non-stop children's parties which last from Dec. 30 through Jan. 10. There are skating parties, hockey and ski parties and rides over the snow in sleighs pulled by horse teams. There are gaily ornamented trees in homes, schools and public buildings. The most elaborately decorated and the tallest tree of all is installed in the Kremlin's Tainitsky Garden where children gather to watch ancient Russian fables come to life.

Closer to home, in Mexico, people celebrate the event much as we do. But they have some customs that differ.

In the small towns and cities, Jan. 1 is celebrated as one great carnival-like fiesta. Streets are decorated with paper streamers and flowers. If the birthday of a town's patron saint falls on New Year's there is a double celebration.

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

Some of the small villages of Mexico celebrate New Year's Eve with a festival called 'Noche de Pedimentos, the Cross of Petition. Here they make their wishes for the coming year and build miniature reproductions of their wishes which they set up on the ground surrounding the cross.

An exciting fireworks display is the grand climax of every fiesta in Mexico. On New Year's night the display lasts for hours. The most beautiful and intricate designs are called castles and are sometimes a hundred feet high. These are made in sections to represent figures of saints, crowns, crosses, exotic flowers, colorful birds with gay plumage, swimming fish of every description, animals of all kinds. Each section is made to go off separately, the whole castle taking from 20 minutes to a half hour.

It is surprising to us that in some countries New Year's takes precedence over Christmas as a holiday. For instance, New Year's is the big holiday of the year in Scotland. In Wales and England, New Year's is not an official holiday and people go to work on Jan. 1. New Year's Eve in Scotland is known as Hogmanay, meaning, New Year with Mistletoe.

Families traditionally gather on Hogmanay Eve in the home of the older member of the family and hold an open house. As the clock strikes midnight, someone dashes quickly to the front door and opens it to hurry the old year out and to usher the new year in. Toasts are drunk and all the family and friends link arms and sing "Auld Lang Syne."

Ringling bells on New Year's Eve is an old English tradition.

In some parts of the country the bells are muffled shortly before midnight that they may sound a mournful tune to show the grief for the passing year. On the dot of midnight the wrappings are removed and the unmuffled bells are rung in wild abandon to express the joy over the coming of the new year. It was this custom that inspired Tennyson's lines:

"Ring out, wild bells, to the wild sky/The flying cloud, the frosty light/The year is dying in the night/Ring out wild bells, and let him die."

In western Ireland on the last night of the year, it is an old custom for the head of the house to take a large Christmas loaf specially prepared for the occasion to the outside of the house and hammer it against the barred doors and windows. As he does so, he repeats an old Irish rhyme bidding famine to keep away from the house during the coming year.

We could travel the world over and find that the arrival of the New Year with its promise of new beginnings is celebrated in every town and village. This worldwide manifestation of hope for a better year is a bond that unites people everywhere, it is a bond that surmounts political differences.

Garden center studies bonsai

The Grosse Pointe Garden Center will hold its annual meeting, program and subscription lunch Jan. 12 at the War Memorial. Members and guests will hear an illustrated lecture program by Tom Trueman.

Trueman is an expert in Oriental dwarfed trees and director of Tokiwa Bonsai at Alexander Nursery in Mount Clemens.

The program, which will begin at 10:30 a.m., will include a discussion of the culture and technique of creating bonsai from indoor plants and will be illustrated by bonsai from Trueman's own collection.

The lecture is free to members and guests; the lunch is $10. Your check made out to the Garden Center is your reservation and must be received by Jan. 10.

A brief business and election meeting will follow the lunch.

The Grosse Pointe Garden Center has an extensive collection of books about bonsai and supports an active bonsai group. After Jan. 9, the center will be open Tuesday through Thursday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Common-sense psychologist to speak

Dr. Kevin Leman, known for his common sense approach to child psychology, will speak at 10 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 13, at Christ Church Grosse Pointe. The lecture is free and open to the public.

Leman is the author of "The Birth Order Book," "Growing Up Firstborn," "Making Children Mind Without Losing Yours," "Smart Kids, Stupid Choices," and others.

The hour lecture will be followed by a 90-minute question-and-answer period. The church is at 61 Grosse Pointe Blvd. in the Farms.

For more information, call 885-4841.

Symphony benefit

A New Year's season celebration will be given by the Lake St. Clair Symphony Orchestra Auxiliary on Saturday, Jan. 6, at 8 p.m. at 21120 Benjamin in St. Clair Shores. Anyone interested in contributing to the orchestra's efforts is invited to attend. Call 776-1012.

Senior meals program spreads Christmas around the year

In the spirit of the holiday season this time of year, many volunteers deliver meals to senior citizens, handicappers and shut-ins. They work hand-in-hand with private and non-profit organizations to make life brighter for others, and they feed thousands of people.

The Dining Senior Style campaign, recently launched by the Office of Services to the Aging, is a timely effort to call attention to the demand of the age 60-and-older population for food, especially the frail elderly and the low-income minority elderly, not just at holiday time, but all year.

The need for volunteers is also a problem in many parts of the state — as is the need for funding sources.

The Area Agencies on Aging and nutrition service providers report increasing waiting lists statewide for home-delivered meals targeted to older adults who are ill or incapacitated and cannot make it to a congregate meal site. Statistics have shown that low-income minority elders are not getting out to the congregate meal sites for a number of reasons, including a lack of awareness of the sites, no transportation, and for psychological reasons, such as feelings of rejection.

Through the nutrition information and education campaign, the importance of the senior meals will be emphasized. For many it is the only meal they receive a day. The meals are nourishing and well-balanced to help ward off malnutrition and disease.

Looking to the 1990s, waiting lists for meals will continue to increase and funding for congregate and home-delivered meals will remain a major problem unless this tremendous need of our older adults can be recognized by the public and become a top priority.

Sailboats, football dominate end of 1989

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

In last week's Grosse Pointe News, we took a look back on the sporting events that took place from January to June, 1989. This week, we'll further explore and recall what events took place, and who was an integral part of the athletic success in Grosse Pointe from July to December.

The new year is only days old, so it's still appropriate to recall who and what will help us move confidently into 1990.

Highlighting the last six months of 1989 were Ken Meade's win in the Chicago to Mackinac Race, and the Grosse Pointe South football team advancing to the state playoffs for the second time in three years. We can't forget the North girls' cross country team's unbeaten season, and the ULS boys' soccer team advancing to the state semifinals.

Here's the final recollection of 1989:

JULY

- The finish of the Port Huron to Mackinac Sailboat Race, sponsored by the Bayview Yacht Club, was delayed for two days. Boats were motionless because winds of only 1-3 knots were reported. Finally, Pied Piper prevailed.

- South hockey coach Tim Zimmerman was invited to coach some of the nation's finest hockey players at the Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs.

- The Junior Sailing Program on Lake St. Clair continued to draw attention.

- John McSorley retired as president of the Grosse Pointe Hockey Association.

- Ben Pugliesi of Grosse Pointe signed with the University of Dayton to play soccer. Pugliesi attended DeLaSalle Collegiate.

flag in the Port Huron to Mackinac race. Aboard Walloon, the Grow brothers won titles in 1970, 74, 84, 85, 87 and 89.

AUGUST

- J.J. Kinkel leads the Americans over the Nationals, 10-5, in the first Little League Minor All-Star Game. Kinkel was the winning pitcher.

- The Little League celebrated its 50th national anniversary.
- The Grosse Pointe Yacht Club swimmers finished their season unbeaten.

- South's Pat Bruce finished ninth in the National Junior Track and Field Olympics in Washington.

- Robbie Buhl took his third straight checkered flag in his quest to win the Barber-SAAB racing championship.

- The Woods-Shores won the 14-year-old Babe Ruth State Championship.

- Grosse Pointe welcomes in a new high school football season.

- The DRYA sailors finished the season with an annual banquet. Dean Balcirk took three of the top four awards for his sailing expertise.

- Jason Jaworski, Mike Haskell and Colm Moore were selected to the All-American team for their outstanding performance at the AAU National Baseball Championship in Cincinnati.

SEPTEMBER

- Football season opens with North and University Liggett School winning, but South losing, 8-7, to Edsel Ford.

- North was led by Bryan Ford, Charlie Stumb and Scott Bernhard, while ULS was paced by Kevin Whitfield's 137 yards rushing, including a 99-yard touchdown run. South, despite dominating the Thunderbirds, got its only score from Mike Montagne.

car racing series. Buhl wrapped up the championship in race 10, quicker than any other racer in the 10-year history of the series.

- ULS' Jon Sieber ran a personal best time of 17:42, in the Holly Cross Country Invitational.

- North's Nikki VanOppens takes first in a triple cross country win over L'Anse Creuse, Mott and Lutheran East. North was 5-0.

- After beating Port Huron Northern, 13-12, with Jason Weissert kicking field goals of 40 and 21 yards, the South football team romped past L'Anse Creuse North, 35-10.

- In that win, Jim West compiled 206 all-purpose yards and two touchdowns for the 2-1 Blue Devils.

- Charlie Stumb returned an interception 52 yards for a touchdown in North's 21-14 win over Fraser. Two weeks later, however, North loses its second straight game of the season, 21-12 at Romeo. Chris Meathe had 60 yards rushing, 43 receiving and 73 in returns.

- The ULS football team ran its September record to 3-1 with a 35-0 win over Lutheran Westland. Football fever at ULS was catching on, as Jason Drook stepped in at quarterback and completed 4 of 5 passes for 65 yards.

- Martina Jerant had 20 points and 18 rebounds in a 37-25 basketball win over Kingswood for the ULS Lady Knights.
- Kim Reiter had 24 points

Brian Letscher directed the South football team from his quarterback spot for two seasons. Letscher had his biggest moment in the North game, rushing for three touchdowns and throwing for one to pace South to a 42-14 win over the Norsemen.

Reading for the 1990s

New Year's resolutions? I don't think so.

However, this time of year brings new will, inspired energy and optimism.

Out with the old, in with the new. Bull. If it wasn't for the good stuff, I wouldn't have a resolution. New stuff, perhaps. It may be I'll be better off following my norm and tradition.

Making resolutions hasn't been my strong point. I don't want to lose weight, I just want to tone the tire. I don't want to break habits, I just want to form new ones.

Diets seem to dominate the list of resolutions, but not for me. I'm more anxious to spend more time with my family, be a better writer and frankly, quit frowning so much.

However, I guess I have to fall into the "everyone does it" category and not rest on my laurels.

Here are my resolutions for 1990.

- To stop yelling at careless drivers.
- To eat celery instead of ice cream at 10 p.m.
- To watch less TV.

- To enjoy the Lions.
- To dust off the rowing machine.
- I didn't say I'd use it more.

- To give more to charities.
- To hope that Ernie Harwell stays on WJR.
- To not give up on the Tigers.

- To wear green at North games and blue at South games, but red when they play one another.
- To lift with the legs and not the back when picking up the weekend newspaper.

- To eat fewer hot dogs and more popcorn while covering athletic events.
- To act like I don't miss Bo.

- To not scream, yell or offer advice when watching Monday Night Football.
- To listen to my wife even when the basketball game is on.

- To stop flipping from channel to channel to get all the sportscasts.

- To stop saying, "there's only two minutes left in the game" when there really isn't.

- To not pick up the sports section first.

- To stay out of the sand trap.
- To have more respect for Michigan State.
- To stop collecting — and adding up — Christmas receipts.

- To cheer the underdog.
- To spend two days at the Detroit Grand Prix.
- To sail to Mackinac Island.

- To maintain my position of disgust toward high school coaches who try to recruit athletes.
- To get warmer boots for ice hockey games at McCann Rink.
- To learn how to ice skate.

- To follow through on my golf swing.
- To continue to fight for lights on Grosse Pointe football fields.

- To hope marching bands can someday march again at high school football games at North and South.
- To ask why University Liggett School doesn't have cheerleaders.

Fred Detwiler's Trader was second overall in the Chicago to Mackinac Race.

- Nittisima, skippered by George Uznis, won the IOR A in the George E. Van Memorial Regatta.

- Ken Meade's Renegade won the overall flag in the Chicago to Mackinac race. Fred Detwiler's Trader took second overall.

- Ethan Dettmer and Geoff Hannert teamed up to row in the Summer Olympic Festival.

- For the first time in a combined 68 Mackinac races, someone was missing: Doug and Maggie Wake. Doug sailed in 39 races and Maggie in 29.
- Chris, Rick and Buddy Grow set a new record in PHRF G, by winning their sixth divisional

- North beats South in girls' hoops, 36-27. Katie Loeher and Noelle Cormier prove tough on defense, while South's Becky Wysocki pours in nine points to go with 12 rebounds.

- Hosting its own tennis invitational, the Lady Knights of ULS take the trophy with 21 points. South was second.

- North soccer goalie Don Rosati gets a 4-0 shutout over Romeo.

- Chad Schomaker's hat trick gives the South soccer team its third win by shutout. South had 20 goals in those three wins.
- Robbie Buhl wins $100,000 for winning the Barber-SAAB and 10 rebounds in North's 47-45 win over Utica. The Lady Norsemen moved to 5-1 overall and 2-1 in the White Division.

• The ULS girls' tennis team, ranked No. 1 in all classes, re-team beat Chicago Andrews, 4-0.

• The South tennis team won its 16th straight E.M.L. title, and then went on to win the regionals. Two weeks later, the team finished sixth in the state championships, with the No. 2 doubles team of Catherine Yan-troit allowed South to capture its ninth title in 16 years, and close out its affiliation with the E.M.L. Quarterback Brian Letscher helped South score 110 points in three games.

• The South boys' cross country team finishes the season 8-1; its best finish ever.

• ULS' Martina Jerant cans 20 points in a 37-34 basketball win over Greenhills.

• The South girls' cross country team won its 11th straight E.M.L. title.

• On a roll, the North girls' basketball team beat Kettering, 40-37. Katie Loeher's two free throws in the final minute provided the margin of victory.

• In the regular season football finale, South shelled North, 42-14. It was the most lopsided victory in the 21-year history of the annual clash. North still holds the overall lead, 11-10.

In that game, Brian Letscher rushed for three touchdowns and threw for another, propelling South to its second playoff berth in three years. One week later, however, the South offense was stymied at King, 41-0. South finished 8-2 overall.

• A 55-0 romp over Hamtramck, gave the ULS football team its best finish since 1966, 7-2. Chris Carroll, who rushed for more than 1,000 yards, and Kevin Whitfield became one of the strongest backfields in Class C.

Christmas Tournament. Bob Beltz powered the Norsemen to a 4-3 win over ULS, and a 6-4 win over South.

• The ULS hoop team got off to a 2-1 start and earned some respect, getting ranked No. 3 in the Class C polls.

• Behind Rob Khoenle, the South basketball team jumps out to a 4-2 record, including a three-point win at North. Khoenle is averaging about 20 points per game.

• The ULS hockey team is ranked No. 1 in Class B-C-D. Doug Wood is leading the charge with 53 points in 10 games. ULS is 9-1 overall.

• The North basketball team wins its first game, but loses three straight to fall to 1-3 before the Christmas break. North blew an 18-point lead to lose to South.

North's Kim Reiter became an All-State hooper this season.

mained undefeated. Five of the top 10 players were freshmen. Lexie Crain was the only senior, and she nicknamed the freshman class the Baby Bunch.

OCTOBER

• The South soccer team began the month with a 10-1 record, scoring 50 goals and giving up only three.

• The North soccer team, despite losing Angelo Gritsas and John Karabetos to injuries, was ranked No. 7 in Class A with an 8-1 overall record.

• The North girls' cross country team took the first 17 places in a 15-50 win over Cousino. Laurin Schultz, Nikki VanOppens and Allison Liebold took the top three spots.

• Susannah McAndrew's first-place run of 21:33 helped the South girls' cross country team remain unbeaten with wins over Mount Clemens and L'Anse Creuse North.

• Doug Wood booted the only goal in ULS' 1-0 win over South. Paul Lanson got the win in net, and stopped a penalty shot late in the game.

• Bryan Ford, Chris Meathe and Charlie Stumb all scored touchdowns in North's 21-14 win over L'Anse Creuse.

• Holly Walker and Molly Katchmark (No. 1 doubles) win to help South beat Dearborn in tennis.

• Mike Whelan booted a 35-yard field goal and five extra points, helping ULS beat Wesleyan Academy, 35-0.

• Mark Sonnenberg (South) and Scott Collins (North) run a neck-and-neck race in the annual North-South cross country match. Collins misses the final turn and Sonnenberg widens the margin, but Collins closes it, only to lose by one second. South, as a team, prevailed, 23-34, for the second straight season.

• The North girls' cross country team, ranked in the top five of Class A, moved its record to 11-0, with its second straight win over South, 15-45. Nikki VanOppens, Laurin Schultz, Jenny McLain, Hope Peters and Anne Marie Scallen take the top five spots for North.

• The South football team won its fifth straight, 28-0, over Anchor Bay. Mike Montagne finished with 85 yards on 16 carries and two touchdowns. It was his first game back after missing the 44-0 romp over Mount Clemens the previous week.

• Sarah Stackpoole scored two goals as the ULS field hockey team and Beth Bonanni leading the way.

• Liz Mange, Star of the Sea's No. 1 singles player, helped the Tunas beat Our Lady of the Lakes.

• The ULS soccer team lost only its second game of the season, 1-0, to Cranbrook.

• The North boys' cross country team tied Romeo for the White Division title under first-year head coach Pat Wilson.

• North's Wendy Mader swam a 1:03.3 in the 100 butterfly in a 91-81 loss to top-ranked Birmingham Groves.

• The ULS girls' tennis team closed out the 1980s with its 10th straight Class C-D tennis championship.

• The North soccer team gets its fourth straight shutout, and had not given up a goal in 560 minutes of play. Goalie Don Rosati was the big stopper in net.

• Ann Llewellyn, Tina Higel, Kim Higel and Amy Verlinden take first in the medley relay as South beats Eisenhower, 130-39.

• After struggling most of the way, the North football team beat Roseville, 30-21, to earn a co-championship in the White Division. Chris Meathe rushed for 117 yards on 18 carries.

• With its seventh straight win, the South football team celebrated the E.M.L. championship. A 38-14 win over East Dearborn in tennis.

• The North girls' cross country team, ranked in the top five of Class A, moved its record to 11-0, with its second straight win over South, 15-45. Nikki VanOppens, Laurin Schultz, Jenny McLain, Hope Peters and Anne Marie Scallen take the top five spots for North.

• The South football team won its fifth straight, 28-0, over Anchor Bay. Mike Montagne finished with 85 yards on 16 carries and two touchdowns. It was his first game back after missing the 44-0 romp over Mount Clemens the previous week.

• Sarah Stackpoole scored two goals as the ULS field hockey

NOVEMBER

• The North girls' cross country team won its first regional title since 1986. Nikki VanOppens and Laurin Schultz paced the way. A couple weeks later, the girls took ninth in the state, behind VanOppens' 13th-place run.

Nikki VanOppens finished 13th in the state for North.

• The ULS field hockey team finished second in the state tournament.

• After winning the White Division championship, the North girls' basketball team was up-ended by Regina in the district tournament. North finished 17-3, and 8-1 in the league. Kim Reiter was named the league's MVP. Melissa Champine, as well as Reiter, picked up honorable mentions in the All-State voting.

• The Grosse Pointe South girls' basketball team struggled all season, but advanced to the district finals at North. However, after South scored only two fourth-quarter points, Regina took the title, 55-21.

• In the Class A cross country meet, the South girls' team took 13th.

• Bob Wood and Chuck Hollosy were inducted into the Michigan High School Coaches Association Hall of Fame, and the Basketball Coaches Association of Michigan Hall of Fame, respectively.

• ULS' boys' soccer team was ousted, 3-0, by Country Day in the state semifinals.

• Kim Higel led South with a win in the 200 freestyle, but North dominated the swim meet, 97-74. North, which eventually placed sixth in the state meet, was led by diver Denise Brown.

• ULS' Kandia Milton signed with Niagara University to play hoops next fall.

DECEMBER

• The North hockey team begins the season 3-3, but finds a quick fix by winning the ULS

Fitness Firm offers nutritional guidelines

The Fitness Firm will offer guidelines for good basic nutritional practices during classes which are scheduled to begin in Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods the week of Jan. 8.

Coupling safe, effective and progressive exercise programs with healthy tips and handouts will help students begin to achieve their goals.

All classes are led by professional instructors and include floor exercises for firming and toning, warm-up for safe limbering of the muscles, an aerobic segment for cardiovascular conditioning and a cool-down for heart-rate recovery.

Classes are held at Christ the King Church on Mondays and Wednesdays at 9:30; Tuesdays and Thursdays at 9:30 a.m. Baysitting is available at all morning sessions. Evening classes are held Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays at 6:45, and at Harper Woods Library on Mondays and Wednesdays at 7 p.m. Class fees are $35 for the eight-week session and students are encouraged to attend additional classes at no additional cost. For further information, call 343-0040 or 886-7534.

Begin the 90s with no excuses

Millions of Americans are saying hello to a new, healthier way of life by making a familiar resolution: "I will be physically fit this year."

But all good resolutions are meant to be broken, right? Wrong! Super Shape Inc. is giving you no excuse not to adhere to your resolution this year by offering you a "no excuse" exercise class.

The classes are formatted for the "on the go" person who has trouble finding the time to stick with an exercise program. Each motivating low-impact aerobic class is 45 minutes long.

The two eight-week sessions begin the week of Jan. 8, with classes being held on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6 to 6:45 a.m.; Mondays and Wednesdays from 12:30 to 1:15 p.m. In order to begin this exciting addition to your daily work routine, call Super Shape at 772-9470. Enrollment is limited.

Ski Hi Club begins 1990 campaign

The War Memorial's Ski Hi Club begins the 1990 season with a two-night trip to Pine Knob Jan. 12.

Membership is open to all 6-12 graders who reside in or attend school in Grosse Pointe. Dues are $7 per student, plus $1.50 for the mandatory War Memorial patch.

The club sponsors six Friday trips, open to all members, plus two day trips, open to senior club members and junior club members who have earned the Pine Knob "D" patch or better. Cost of each trip is $25 per student.

Advance reservations for all Ski Hi trips is required. Reservations for Friday, Jan. 12, are suggested to be in no later than Tuesday, Jan. 9, at 9 p.m.

The Senior Club (grades 9-12) leaves the War Memorial at 4 p.m., the Junior Club (grades 6-8) leaves at 4:15 p.m. Deluxe motorcoach transportation is provided with return to the War Memorial scheduled for 11:30 p.m.

Ski Hi manuals are available at the War Memorial's front desk. Membership application and parental release forms, contained in the manuals, must be signed and on file prior to making trip reservations. Call 881-7511 for additional information.

North's Keith Giannico, top, wrestled his South opponent and maybe he's still not sure who it is since the head was buried in this match.

Those were the days

From January to December, 1989, we had our hands full of winners, losers and champions at North, South and University Liggett School. These photos will provide one final glance backward at who brought those championships to their respective schools.

Alicia Lynch helped the Norsemen tennis team win the MAC title and eventually enter the state Class A playoffs. Lynch teamed up with Amy Austin at No. 1 doubles.

Heather Heidel was one of five freshmen in the top 10 for the University Liggett School tennis team. Heidel became a state champion at No. 2 singles for the Lady Knights.

Photos by Rob Fulton

Out of the hold of quarterback Brian Letscher (7) Jason Weissert (5) became the top place-kicker in South history, booting 46 extra points and 10 field goals in his career.

North's Scott Collins and South's Mark Sonnenberg highlighted the North-South track and cross country meets with their one-on-one duels.

Left, South's Jenny Kalmink was a top player in the South volleyball lineup. Waiting for a return, is Meg Blondin, a top setter for the Lady Blue Devils.
Right, North quarterback Scott Bernhardt, who became the career leader in passing yards and completions, had his hands full against a feisty South team in the season finale.
