

Park's chief of detectives retires after three decades

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

For as far back as he can remember, Detective Sgt. James LaPratt wanted to be a policeman — and he still does.

After 33 years with the Grosse Pointe Park police department, LaPratt, 58, is retiring Feb. 24, although he'd like to stay on the job. A faulty heart valve is forcing him to retire. He said the heart problem doesn't cause him difficulty, is correctable, and he could go for years without it affecting him.

But policy at the Grosse Pointe Park Public Safety Department requires everyone to be 100 percent healthy, LaPratt said, and he supports the policy.

"We thought about it (retiring)," LaPratt said. "I may have been a year away from it anyway."

Retirement from the Park notwithstanding, LaPratt is looking for work.

"I'm not going to sit in this house," he said. "I'm just not going to do it. I have a wealth of experience, and I'm not going to waste it."

Even though LaPratt is being forced to retire prematurely, he has no regrets and no bitterness.

"I loved my job," he said. "In fact, it wasn't a good job; it was a great job."

He started with the Grosse Pointe Park Police Department as a 25-year-old rookie on Aug. 6, 1956. He said all rookies didn't go through the police academy in those days, as they do today. In the '50s, LaPratt received 120 hours of in-service training.

Before becoming a policeman, he served in the Korean War as a corpsman for the Marines. The irony, LaPratt said, is that he enlisted in the Navy in 1950 to keep from getting drafted. The Navy taught him to be a medic, and the Marines needed a few good men.

He and Mary Ann were married in 1953 and they raised seven children on LaPratt's detective's pay in a large house on Grayton in Detroit. The LaPratts, though empty-nesters, still live there.

In 1954, LaPratt landed a tool-and-die apprenticeship, but that was not the kind of work he wanted. He filled out applications with local police departments, including Detroit. He showed up late for a pre-employment examination for the Detroit Police Department and a tough old sergeant who wouldn't pass today's physical fitness requirements told him to come back another time.

LaPratt said he was then interviewed by the Park Police Department, where he has been ever since.

"There's no ifs, ands or buts about about it," he said, "I always wanted to be a policeman. It was a vocation I wanted."

In 1960, Patrolman LaPratt was sent to detective school. "I was very fortunate to be picked," he said. In 1961 he was assigned to the detective bureau; in 1964, he was promoted to detective; in 1967 he made sergeant; and in 1968 he was put in charge of the "DB," a position he held ever since.

LaPratt said there are a lot of outstanding cases he and his fellow detectives worked on through the years. One case set a precedent

Gandelot won't seek re-election

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

School board President Jon B. Gandelot announced Monday night that he will not seek re-election in June.

In a statement read to the board, Gandelot said, "Being a member of the board of education over the past 12 years has been a demanding task. The time commitments attendant to being a board member are significant. My family and my business have made sacrifices these past 12 years.

"Whatever I have given in service as a board member does not begin to repay the benefits I received from prior boards and the staff of this system."

Gandelot was elected to the board 12 years ago and has served as president five times. He said he has been encouraged to run again by members of the community, but after much discussion with his family, he decided 12 years was enough.

In that 12 years, he was one of three board members targeted for recall when the board recommended closing several elementary schools. After a bitter campaign that divided the community, no one was recalled.

Gandelot said that it is time to step aside and let someone else serve.

"I am making this announcement early in the year in the

Shovelin' off

This was the scene Friday and Saturday as residents cleared off sidewalks, driveways and cars after a snowstorm covered the area. The weekend weather was blamed for widespread accidents. Woods man charged with armed robbery of pizza delivery man

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

A 30-year-old Grosse Pointe Woods man is sitting in Wayne County Jail this week after he allegedly pulled a shotgun on a Domino's Pizza delivery man Jan. 31.

Daniel Lawrence Lucas, of the 1500 block of Fairholme, pleaded innocent before Municipal Judge Patricia Schneider Feb. 1 on felony charges of armed robbery and commission of a crime with a firearm. Using a firearm carries a maximum two-year jail sentence, and armed robbery varies from two years to life in prison.

Schneider set bond at $1,000 cash, which Lucas was unable to raise. He is being held in Wayne County Jail.

The Domino's driver, a 26-year-old East Detroit man, told police that he was delivering a pizza at the Fairholme address when Lucas came around the side of the house and pointed a shotgun at him and said, "You picked the wrong house."

Lucas then took the pizzas and demanded the delivery man's money, according to police reports. When offered $18 in singles, Lucas dropped the pizzas and grabbed the money. Lucas then raised the gun toward the delivery man, who in turn grabbed the gun and began to wrestle with Lucas.

During the struggle, the Domino's driver yelled for help. His yells were heard by a neighbor across the street who came to the delivery man's aid. During the struggle, another neighbor called police.

He pointed the shotgun and said, 'You picked the wrong house.'

When police arrived, the man from across the street had possession of the shotgun and was struggling with Lucas. The first officer at the scene ordered the neighbor to put the gun on the ground. The officer then held Lucas at gunpoint until other officers arrived.

When Lucas was searched, a wad of yellow napkins was found in his pocket. Inside the napkins was a toy cap pistol.

District to sell superintendent's house

By Dan Jarvis
Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe school board has decided it will no longer provide a house for the superintendent of schools.

Board President Jon Gandelot announced plans to end the nearly 40-year tradition Monday night. He said the school board plans to sell the house since it is no longer needed as part of the package to attract school superintendents.

Gandelot said plans to sell the house at 51 Grosse Pointe Blvd. hinges on rezoning from the city of Grosse Pointe Farms.

The house is currently zoned as a community service building, similar to a school or church, and the zoning must be changed to single family residential before the house can be sold as a residence.

The request, on the Farms agenda Monday night, was viewed favorably by council members who said the house should be rezoned so it can be sold and added to the city's tax rolls.

Councilman Emil D. Berg said the Grosse Pointe School System is one of the few districts that still offers a temporary residence for the superintendent. Other councilmen said the house is a detriment in attracting a superintendent because the value of the house is not included in the superintendent's retirement plan.

Other councilmen said they want to ensure that any rezoning would prohibit the subdivision of the property or the construction of a second home on the site.

The council approved a public hearing for March 19 for citizen input and possible approval of the rezoning request.

The house, built around 1920 for the headmaster of Country Day, was acquired by the school system in the winter of 1953-54 from Grosse Pointe University School with the intended use as living quarters for the superintendent.

During the late 1930s, the house was used as the Grosse Pointe Country Day School headmaster's residence. After Country Day merged with the Detroit University School in 1941, the house was sold to the Grosse Pointe School District for $20,000.

The house was also used at one time as a driver's training written test site by the Grosse Pointe schools.

Known as the headmaster's cottage, the 3,262 square foot house will soon be listed for $285,000, as announced by the school board.

Known as the headmaster's cottage, the dwelling at 51 Grosse Pointe Blvd. used as a residence by the superintendent of schools, may soon be rezoned and sold as a single family residence.

Pointer of Interest

James Kellow

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

James Kellow of Grosse Pointe Park isn't a captain without a ship, but he could end up as a harbor master without a port.

As executive director of the Detroit/Wayne County Port Authority, Kellow, 50, is embroiled in a controversy: He would like to see the port authority's power and role expanded, but others would like to see the authority disbanded altogether.

Actually, Kellow wears three hats. Along with heading the port authority, he is general manager of the Detroit Windsor Port Corp. and executive director of the Greater Detroit Foreign Trade Zone Inc.

The highly successful Detroit Free Trade Zone is the largest such enterprise in the United States and is expected to increase in importance due to the Free Trade Agreement with Canada that went into effect Jan. 1, 1989.

A free trade zone is an area within the United States where imported merchandise can be held for prolonged periods without paying duty. The imported merchandise can be combined with domestic merchandise to manufacture a larger product, such as an automobile. Duty is not paid until the foreign merchandise leaves the free trade zone, and then the duty is usually less because it is not paid on each piece of merchandise.

Board plans open meeting re: new library

On Sunday, Feb. 11 at 3 p.m., the Grosse Pointe Board of Education will hold a community meeting at Brownell Middle School to discuss plans to build a new Central Library on the school property at 260 Chalfonte, Grosse Pointe Farms.

The meeting will focus primarily on the impact the proposed new library will have on the neighbors of Brownell Middle School. All Grosse Pointe residents are invited to attend.

Members of the architectural firm of Osler/Milling, school administrators and library officials will be present to answer questions about the proposed project. Tentative site drawings will be available for examination, and a timeline for the project will be outlined.

B&Es reported

At least two of three burglaries reported in Grosse Pointe Park recently were committed by the same person, police believe.

On Jan. 27 between 10:20 and 10:30 p.m. someone threw a piece of concrete through the front door of a store in the 15000 block of Charlevoix. Beer and cigarettes were taken.

Sometime during the same night or the following morning, a house in the 1000 block of Wayburn was burglarized. The thief got in through a basement window and took two televisions and a videocassette recorder. The resident heard a noise at 6:30 a.m. Jan. 28.

Evidence was found at the scenes of the two burglaries to lead police to believe the same person was involved.

In another incident, someone threw a cement block through the display window of a store in the 15000 block of Mack some time between 7:20 and 7:30 a.m. Jan. 28. Two battery chargers were taken.

Corrections

Corrections will be printed on this page every week. If there is an error of fact in any story, call the newsroom at 882-0294.

The North-South hockey story in the Jan. 18 issue should have said the North goaltender Jim Bunn stopped 27 of 29 shots. Bunn also holds the third best goals against average in the league.

Brad Russell should have been credited with the game-winning goal in North's 2-1 ice hockey win over Ann Arbor Pioneer.

Harper Woods man sentenced for accosting

A 43-year-old Harper Woods man was sentenced last week to one year probation on a sexual conduct charge involving a 13-year-old neighbor boy in August.

Unni Krishnam Pisharam, of Lochmoor, was found guilty by District 32A Judge Roger J. LaRose on Jan. 5 of accosting, enticing or soliciting a child for immoral purposes.

During sentencing Jan. 31, LaRose ordered the man to attend and complete the Detroit Recorder's Court sex offenders program, pay for counseling for the 13-year-old and cover court costs.

LaRose said Pisharam has denied any knowledge of the incident, adding that the court received nine letters from neighbors on behalf of Pisharam's character. He does not have a prior criminal record or history of sexual misconduct.

Pisharam's attorney, Patricia Cade, said Friday that an appeal may be forthcoming. She indicated that there is more to the story than has been reported.

Packed garage catches fire

A garage packed with antiques and other items on Old Eight Mile Road in Grosse Pointe Woods was extensively damaged by fire Monday.

The fire in the 2200 block was called in at 8:57 a.m. and was under control by 9:52 a.m. Grosse Pointe Woods Public Safety Department officers were able to put out the fire without the assistance of other departments.

According to fire officials, the fire started in the rear of the garage several feet off the floor, as if something on a work bench ignited the fire. Fire officials said that because of the amount of stuff stored in the garage, the cause of the fire has not yet been determined.

The garage contained antiques, clocks, a chest, "everything imaginable," a fire official said. He said that while the garage was not totally destroyed, the damage was extensive.

Violent crime down 60 percent in Farms; overall crime steady

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

While overall major crime remained about the same in the Farms in 1989, compared to the year before, violent crime dropped more than 60 percent.

According to the Grosse Pointe Farms Public Safety Department report for 1989, all major crimes were down 3.4 percent in 1989. Last year there were 425 major crimes in the Farms, compared with 440 in 1988.

According to FBI crime reporting standards, major (Part I) crimes are homicide, rape, assault, robbery, burglary, larceny, auto theft and arson.

Among the major violent crimes, the largest decrease came in assaults, which plummeted from 16 in 1988 to four last year.

Year-End Crime Report

There were also fewer robberies in 1989, with five reported last year, down from nine in 1988. There was one case of fourth degree criminal sexual conduct last year, compared with metted from 16 in 1988 to four last year. There were also fewer robberies in 1989, with five reported last year, down from nine in 1988. There was one case of fourth degree criminal sexual conduct last year, compared with one first degree criminal sexual conduct case the year before.

Homicides dropped from two in 1988 to one in 1989. The one death last year involved the 78-year-old Farms woman who was accidentally run over by a semi-trailer truck behind A.L. Price at Mack and Moross Aug. 18.

Among the major property crimes, there were more burglaries and larcenies in 1989, but there were fewer auto thefts. There were 43 burglaries last year, up from 34 the year before. Larcenies rose slightly from 311 in 1988 to 316 last year. Auto thefts dropped to a three-year low of 55, down from 67 the year before.

There were no arsons reported last year or the year before.

Two suicides were reported in both 1988 and 1989.

The number of drunken driving arrests fell from 60 in 1988 to 21 last year. The number of accidents on roadways dropped from 299 in 1988 to 278 last year. The most dangerous intersection was Mack and Moross with 24 accidents.

Farms officers made 73 adult felony arrests last year and 78 the year before. Juvenile felony arrests totaled 23 last year and 22 in 1988.

Police officers wrote 6,494 parking meter tickets last year, up from 4,017 in 1988.

In fire activity, the number of runs declined from 157 in 1988 to 149 last year. Of the runs last year, 45 were residential fires and eight were for commercial fires. Those figures compare with 44 residential and 23 commercial fires in 1988.

The losses due to structural fires were $372,100 lower last year than the year before. In 1988, commercial and residential losses amounted to $501,300. Last year, losses totaled $128,700. The high losses in 1988 were due to a six-alarm blaze on Kenwood.

In his annual report, Public Safety Director Robert Ferber said 1989 was the city's first full year served by a combined police and fire public safety department. Efforts are continuing to have all public safety officers successfully complete the highest level of firefighting training.

Ferber said his department will continue in the next several years to attain the highest level of firefighting skills.

PACE vote delayed

By Ronald J. Bemas
Staff Writer

It appears that the Program for Academic and Creative Education (PACE) might be saved after all.

A recommendation from Superintendent John Whritner was discussed by the board Monday night and taken off the agenda until two outside consultants submit proposals on the cost of a study to overhaul the elementary gifted and talented program.

Whritner had recommended the PACE program be put on a one-year hiatus and that the money earmarked for PACE be used to study the system's K-12 gifted and talented program. Parents of PACE students objected loudly and at length and an attempt at a compromise was made.

The recommendation was made after an attempt at compromise met with the same resistance, and after Whritner discovered the study of the K-12 gifted and talented program would cost less than first anticipated.

Two nationally recognized consultants have been asked to submit proposals to the board. The proposals should be ready in about three weeks.

The consultant will be asked:

- to work with an advisory committee,
- to consult staff and parents about the current program,
- to arrange for consultants to visit Grosse Pointe and for Grosse Pointe advisory members to visit other exemplary gifted and talented programs,
- to develop a proposal for the board of education and
- to oversee staff development activities to assure the new program a smooth start in September 1991.

The proposed study is expected to cost between $35,000 and $50,000. The money for the study would still come out of the PACE program, but Whritner said it would have much less impact.

Trustee Carl D. Anderson said he was not prepared to spend money for a study when there are qualified people inside the system who could carry out the program, but Whritner said a totally objective viewpoint is needed to conduct a study like this.

Only a few PACE parents attended the meeting, and none spoke in favor or in opposition of the proposal.

Park public safety officers receive recognition, awards

Some 18 Grosse Pointe Park public safety officers were recognized for their hard work, quick thinking and bravery during 1989.

Department Citation:

Officer Charles Heinrich was recognized for his bravery in subduing a suspect Aug. 9 following a robbery at a Park business. The suspect violently resisted arrest, but Heinrich was able to detain the man until other officers arrived.

Lifesaving:

Officers John Viviano and Steve Lothrop received department citations for their part in the rescue of a 12-year-old boy at the breakwall at Windmill Pointe Park Feb. 4, 1989.

The boy fell through the ice near the breakwall and could not pull himself out of the water. A friend with him tied his belt to the boy in the water and the breakwall and ran for help. He and his father were pulling the boy out of the water when the two officers arrived and assisted. The civilian rescuers received citations for their efforts as well.

Commendations:

Lt. Bobby McAlister, Sgt. Howard Carl and Officer Christopher Powell were cited for their assistance in the Aug. 9 arrest by Lt. Heinrich of the suspect in the robbery of a Park business.

Lt. David Hiller and Officer Paul Konefke were recognized for their combined action May 8 that resulted in the arrest of a man responsible for several house burglaries in the Park. The suspect had fled on foot from a house in the 700 block of Lakepointe at 5:39 a.m. The two officers chased the suspect and found him hiding by the Fox Creek canal on the other side of Alter Road, where the suspect was arrested.

Detective Sgt. James LaPratt and his officers in the Detective Bureau — Sgt. Walter Paton, Sgt. James Smith and Detective Richard Wedding — were cited for their investigation that led to the Aug. 4 search of a Windmill Pointe home and the recovery of $50,000 worth of merchandise stolen from Park homes. The investigation solved 10 burglaries and several larcenies from vehicles.

Sgt. Smith received a second citation was for his three-month investigation that led to the arrest of the Grosse Pointe Park man who was found guilty of charges involving indecent exposure and giving alcohol to minors.

Sgt. James Armbruster received a commendation for his foot pursuit and arrest of a purse snatcher. He also protected his prisoner from a group of angry men who wanted to beat the suspect.

Officers David Loch and Joseph Poirier received citations for their actions Oct. 12 that led to the arrest of two suspects shortly following the burglary of the A.J. Meyer Pharmacy on Mack. The store had been subject to several prior burglaries. The two officers checked the area and arrested two men who had the stolen merchandise in their possession.

Dispatcher Barbara Maxwell was commended for her calm, deliberate handling of a call from a panicked woman who was reporting an intruder in her home. Maxwell was able to calm the woman and obtain sufficient information that led to the intruder's arrest.

Director's Award:

Officer Powell received the Director's Award for his willingness to assist in extra activities for the betterment of the department. He has taken on increased responsibilities and duties in coordinating the Park emergency medical service and is trained as an EMT specialist and an instructor.

Director's Letters:

Sgt. Armbruster received a letter of commendation from Public Safety Director Richard J. Carretti for the Oct. 23 arrest of a suspect involved in several larcenies in Grosse Pointe City. Armbruster monitored a City broadcast of a purse snatching and a separate larceny report at Bon Secours Hospital. He spotted the suspect riding a bike on Bishop and gave pursuit when the suspect abandoned the bicycle and fled on foot. Following the arrest, the suspect was found carrying stolen merchandise from a third, unreported larceny.

Officer Robert Roach was cited by the director for his quick thinking that led to the arrest of a fugitive from a narcotics bust in Detroit. Roach monitored the Detroit activity on Marlborough south of Kercheval Aug. 18, and he placed his police vehicle at Alter Road and caught the suspect as he ran through the area.

Officer Lori Thompson was recognized for her assistance in the arrest of the suspect following the Aug. 9 robbery at a Park business. Thompson took the initial call from the victim and was able to obtain a complete description of the suspect, which facilitated the quick arrest.

House burglarized after man, wife are lured away

Some $105,000 worth of jewelry was taken from a Grosse Pointe Shores home Feb. 2 after the husband and wife were tricked into leaving the house.

According to Shores police reports, the couple received a call at 9 p.m. from a man who said he was a doctor at St. John Hospital and that the couple's son was hurt in a car accident and they should get to the hospital at once. When the couple got to St. John's, they found out their son wasn't there.

When they returned to their home on Belle Meade, they found a door leading from the garage had been forced open. Along with the jewelry, five bottles of cognac were taken.

Nobody wants defense cuts in his district

Residents of the Detroit metropolitan area as well as Michigan congressmen now are faced with the question of whether they are willing to have their own districts make sacrifices to help finance the nation's peace dividend.

We are referring, of course, to Defense Secretary Richard Cheney's proposed cutbacks in the Pentagon budget that would cost jobs in the Detroit metropolitan area and other places in Michigan. For example, the closing of the Detroit Army tank plant in Warren would cut 1,300 jobs and the phasing out of the Detroit Naval Air facility would eliminate another 400.

For Michigan, the proposed cutbacks in defense spending are being made at a particularly bad time. Michigan's unemployment rate in January bounced up to 8.4 percent, the city of Detroit began laying off hundreds of employees to try to meet a budget crunch and, worst of all, the auto industry is imposing heavy cutbacks, including those required by the closing of the Chrysler Corp.'s old Jefferson Avenue plant last week.

In Washington, the Bush administration has been accused of providing a "partisan hit list" because 19 of the 21 domestic military bases listed for closing are in congressional districts with a Democratic representative, as are 99 percent of the civilian jobs that would be cut if the proposed actions are carried out.

The Pentagon, denying it made the recommendations with political considerations in mind, insisted, instead, that the list reflects the services' reactions to decisions to reduce the overall size of the armed forces.

In fact, President George Bush's State of the Union pledge to cut another 50,000 troops from our European forces, to a new level of 225,000, will increase the pressure for cutbacks of Army bases and defense production facilities both at home and abroad.

Whether there will be only a small peace dividend, or none at all, will depend, of course, on whether the administration can persuade the Democratic Congress to adopt its overall budget proposals or at least reach satisfactory compromises with the loyal opposition.

In its rebuttal to the charges of politics, the administration might add that there are more Democrats than Republicans in Congress and that the long-time control of the House by the Democrats has led to approval of many more military installations in Democratic districts than in GOP districts. Both parties play "pork barrel" politics with such installations and it's still true that "to the victor belongs the spoils."

It is also true that the administration appears to be trying to put the Democratic Congress on the spot by proposing to close many more domestic bases than overseas bases. In response, the Democrats are likely to call hearings on the overseas bases before they look at their own districts for defense savings.

There is, of course, a legitimate argument over the form of defenses required for the future. The administration appears to be sticking in the main with development of new weapons systems, including nuclear weapons and the highly controversial Star Wars, while the Democrats believe future defense needs will be met better by maintenance of conventional forces.

Yet it is not logical to argue that tank production should continue undiminished in Warren or anywhere else if the need for tanks declines in the wake of the collapse of the Soviet Union's empire in Eastern Europe. This argument, however, emphasizes that future military strategy has become another controversial and partisan issue.

It's obvious that if Detroit and every other area targeted for cutbacks successfully resist the Pentagon's proposals, the nation will have little chance of making substantial reductions in defense spending and in achieving any peace dividends.

Limited as they are, the Bush administration's moves do recognize that the European Revolution of 1989 requires some reduction in U.S. military spending. It is clear that most Americans also believe the savings ought to go not only for deficit reduction but for improved funding of needed domestic programs.

A View from the Sidelines

by Wilbur Elston

The news media joined millions of Americans last week to mark the 40th anniversary of one of the most popular syndicated comic strips of all time, Charles Schulz's celebrated "Peanuts."

Schulz, now living in California, is a native of Minneapolis and lived there during his early success which began with the creation of his "Peanuts" strip in 1950 when he was 27.

As a guest of two Minneapolis newspaper cartoonists, I sat at Schulz's table when he was awarded his first significant national prize, the outstanding cartoonist of the year award presented by the National Cartoonists Society in 1956 in New York.

A modest, unassuming man, Schulz appeared to be completely surprised by the award and made a few appropriate but self-deprecatory remarks about being chosen as the top cartoonist that year by his peers.

It was a typical appearance by a cartoonist who since then has gone on to worldwide fame and fortune. Today his strip is reportedly syndicated more widely than any other in the world. Equally important have been the TV shows, movies, books and other items that have flowed from "Peanuts" creator over the years and made him into a major production enterprise.

In Minneapolis, Schulz's children attended Page Elementary School where my children were enrolled. In the late '50s, my wife was helping plan fundraising events for the annual Page PTA carnival and asked Schulz whether he would be willing to contribute some cartoons for the cause.

He did more than that. He offered to attend the carnival and draw cartoon characters on demand for those willing to buy them, if, he said, the school didn't sell them for more than $1 apiece.

The evening of the carnival he showed up with 100 sheets of drawing paper and asked my wife whether he had brought too many. As you might expect, the supply was quickly exhausted and our two daughters were among those who carried off their choices of "Lucy" and "Charlie Brown," still prized possessions today.

What is the secret of "Peanuts" great success?

Schulz himself says he doesn't know and I certainly don't even though it's the one comic strip I still read. But surely some of it stems from the fact that his characters, whether children or birds or dogs, reflect the cartoonist's own optimistic nature, his love for children and animals, and his kindly instincts which lead him to defend the underdog.

Now 67, Schulz after 40 years is not talking of retiring "Peanuts" or his own efforts to make the world a kinder and gentler place. I'm happy to join in saluting him.

TV news in Pointe schools?

At a time when educators are warning that students' reading skills are being adversely affected by overexposure to television, the Grosse Pointe schools are considering accepting Channel One, the controversial closed-circuit TV show for teenagers.

It is true that some educators believe students will benefit from the daily 12 minutes of news and commercials beamed into the school system. Unfortunately, the chairman of the committee to assess the proposed program and make its recommendations later this year apparently falls into that category.

Dr. Julie Corbett, who teaches video production at Grosse Pointe South, told a Grosse Pointe News reporter last week that the Channel One proposal is "an excellent program" and "a terrific teaching tool," pointing out it uses maps to show the location of countries under discussion and offers the opportunity for local discussion of items shown.

In addition, she was captivated by the offer of nearly $50,000 in electronic equipment and the wiring of the building that would allow the schools to network their computers and use the system for other purposes after the Channel One program is delivered.

No doubt the offer of free equipment is attractive, although in the well-funded Grosse Pointe system it should not be the controlling factor in the decision. But we think questions should be raised about the use of any school time for such a purpose on a compulsory basis in view of the incompatibility of TV viewing and reading.

While it is true that there are other kinds of commercialism in the public schools, and not all of it is bad, we also dislike the idea of the Whittle company, owned in part by Time magazine, deciding what news and commercials the Grosse Pointe youngsters would see each day on the Channel One program subject only to a local veto.

From the comments of the chairman, it is clear that she already has made up her mind about the advantages of the new program. We trust that other members of the committee will at least be able to offer critical judgments about a proposal that is being opposed by the National Education Association, the State Board of Education and the National PTA.

Boat well fees

To the Editor:

Having just received my boat well renewal notice I was surprised to see it had increased by 15 percent this year. I may be wrong but I don't believe the inflation rate was that high. And if I remember right, in 1988 my fee was increased 70 percent. Could it be that there have been some major harbor improvements similar to the other Grosse Pointe marinas? No, it can't be. We've moored a boat in the old boat harbor over 40 years and it's still the same. The city now gets well over $50,000 per year from boaters in the old harbor and probably close to that amount from the new harbor (not really new). It would be nice to see a small amount of this revenue used for old harbor improvements.

And it is really nice of the city to provide for the boat owners in the newer harbor: electricity, running water, dock boxes and a cat walk for easy boarding of their boats. In the old harbor we get to pay more per square foot of well space. For this the city includes 'Use at Your Risk' signs and the privilege of using our own extension ladders to board our boats.

Is this an example of our City Council's competence; to charge the highest rates for the worst boat wells in all the Grosse Pointes?

Library site

To the Editor:

Enclosed is a letter I wrote to Mr. Jon Gandelot, president of the Board of Trustees for the Grosse Pointe school system. I felt that by sending this to you, you may feel my idea has some merit, and may be worthy of other eyes and opinions.

Dear Mr. Gandelot:
There has been a lot of talk and controversy over the proposed site for the new public library. I have an idea that I wanted to bring to your attention, which may or may not have already been discussed.

It is my understanding that Liggett School on Briarcliff in Grosse Pointe Woods will be closing its doors in the next few years. I feel that this could be an excellent site for our new library. Not only would we be utilizing an existing building, but it would eliminate the possible destruction of a beautiful work of architecture for the building of a new subdivision.

This site offers many advantages. The parking facilities appear adequate. The grounds are spacious, with great potential for a park-like atmosphere. The building itself is quite large, which would allow the consolidation of offices and auxiliary personnel. This would eliminate the cost and maintenance of keeping outside buildings.

The community would benefit by having this magnificent, traditional building as our public library. Thank you for allowing me to express my idea.

Old farm may house nuke dump

The old homestead where I grew up has been awarded the dubious honor of becoming a "candidate site" for a nuclear waste dump.

The farm was a far cry from the picture-postcard-perfect world of Currier & Ives, but it certainly deserves better than a nuke dump.

In October, state officials announced that the St. Clair County site near Yale — about 30 miles west of Port Huron — was among three sites in Michigan as a possible location for a low-level radioactive waste storage facility.

State officials probably thought they could sneak a nuke dump in St. Clair County and the sleepy rural folk wouldn't even notice.

Imagine the surprise, then, when several thousand people showed up at tiny Yale High School to protest the nuke site.

And these aren't your run-of-the-mill protesters. It's hard to get the rural Republicans excited about anything, except maybe the price of corn, but if there's a way to upset people, Lansing will find it.

One of the irate protesters happens to be my brother Doug. I've never known him to join anything, let alone a grass-roots protest organization. Nevertheless, you will find his name on the membership list of Don't Waste Michigan, a state organization fighting the nuke dumps at all three of the proposed locations.

Doug was in Lansing when Governor Blanchard gave his State of the State Address recently, marching in the bitter cold. He was incensed when the Channel 7 reporter gave his group short shrift by stating some people were "protesting a dump in their backyard."

Brother Doug and those fighting the nuke dump are quick to point out that the St. Clair County site eventually drains into the St. Clair River. A toxic leak, therefore, will affect more than someone else's backyard, it will contaminate the Great Lakes system.

Furthermore, there's a 12-foot diameter Detroit water line running from Port Huron to Flint and right through the middle of the proposed nuke dump site. I am told that those who proposed the St. Clair County site didn't even know the water line was there. I guess it is pretty easy to miss a pipe that's big enough to drive a car through.

But that's been the story of life in rural St. Clair County.

When the mega-pipe was being buried right through the middle of our farm, disrupting nine acres of our land along a 200-foot right of way, my father and his neighbors had to go to court to get a decent price for the use of the land, which was made virtually unusable for years. Depending on who you talk to, the farmers still got gypped.

Now the state wants to put a nuke dump right smack on top of a water supply line for thousands of people. Pretty smart. Come to think of it, the Detroit Water Board has a 99-year lease on the land through which the pipe runs. I wonder what the leasee thinks of the nuke dump?

While a final decision on which of the three proposed sites will finally be chosen is not expected until next year, the Don't Waste Michigan group is trying to get the state to back out of its agreement to host a nuke dump in the first place.

State officials say backing out now will cost Michigan more in the long run. But what will be the health cost of keeping the site? My brother and others like him think the political cost will be the same as Blanchard's tax hike when he first took office. Brother Doug says elected heads will roll.

No one has really said why Michigan lawmakers, including state Sen. Dan DeGrow, R-Port Huron, overwhelmingly voted to allow the nuke dump in the first place. My brother and others with him theorize that Michigan readily agreed to the dump because a low-level nuclear waste facility was needed to accommodate the Superconducting Super Collider, for which the state lobbied hard and spent millions.

That sounds like a pretty good theory. Why else would lawmakers willingly commit political suicide to host a nuke dump for seven Midwestern states? Well, Texas got the super collider and we got stuck with the, ah, dirty end of the stick.

Lawmakers may try to say they're just allowing the dump site because someone has to do it, and the state wants to fulfill its responsibility as producer of the most nuclear waste among the seven-state Midwest Interstate Low-Level Radioactive Waste Compact.

Well, if you think politicians would jeopardize their jobs for altruistic reasons, then I have some farmland in St. Clair County I'd like to sell you.

Sure, brother Doug doesn't want nuclear waste in his backyard, but he's quick to point out that he doesn't want it in anyone else's backyard either. He says the electric companies, who produce the nuclear wastes, should be held responsible to safely dispose of the radioactive leftovers. If they can't safely dispose of the waste, then they shouldn't be making the stuff.

At the very least, Doug says, the power companies should store the nuke wastes on their own property until they know what to do with it. As it is now, they want to pass it off on the taxpayer public.

Brother Doug and his unlikely protesters in overalls, blue jeans and flannel shirts may be pretty easygoing most of the time, but they're not stupid. And I think Lansing is going to find out just how savvy these so-called rural folk really are.

Basic vs. advanced

To the Editor:

Congratulations to your staff writers on their two-part resume of newsworthy developments in the Pointes during 1989 (Dec. 28, 1989, and Jan. 4, 1990).

In the segment captioned "Advanced Life Support" (Dec. 28, 3A) the point was made that the Farms now has advanced life support.

That statement is grossly misleading. Of the five Pointes, only the Woods has advanced life support (ALS), which went on line in 1983. This is the third-highest level of service, requiring paramedics, and is state of the art. Paramedics are the eyes and ears of M.D.'s in the supervising hospital; they bring the emergency room to the patient.

The rest of the Pointes still have the lowest level of service; i.e. basic life support, enhanced by the life-saving capabilities of Heartstart, the automatic defibrillator. Grosse Pointe Park has been on line with its two Heartstarts since last summer. Grosse Pointe Farms has been training its personnel in its use since last October. Grosse Pointe Shores expected to have its personnel begin training in January and to put Heartstart into use by March 1, if not sooner. We are grateful for this improvement.

We are also pleased to note that the Park, which led the way in recognizing and utilizing the value of Heartstart, is once again in the vanguard in moving to level two of service: limited ALS. Training of personnel began last autumn. This level adds intubation (clearing the airway) and starting an I.V., valuable additions to EMS.

We applaud the improvements to date, but we cannot afford to become complacent. The ultimate goal is to provide a state of the art emergency medical service for all Pointe residents which is already enjoyed by citizens in Southfield, Oak Park, Troy, Mount Clemens, Livonia, Westland, etc.

The next feasible step is for the Farms and the Shores to chart a course toward limited ALS.

It may have been cheering for Farms residents to read that they had ALS. However, such an illusion makes reality twice as harsh at a time of crisis.

It is imperative that we all know precisely and accurately the level of service that exists.

Abortion

To the Editor:

Your lead editorial in your

Jan. 25 issue appraises, quite fairly, I would say, President Bush's first year in office. However, it touches a live nerve quite early on.

The fourth paragraph states: "However, Bush also has shown himself to be more pragmatic than expected. For example, just last week Lee Atwater, the GOP national chairman, proposed that Republicans should support GOP candidates regardless of their stand on the controversial abortion issue."

"Atwater would not have made such a statement to the Republican National Committee without advance clearance with Bush..."

How true. And how cynical. And how sad.

Bush rode to victory on a firm, unyielding Republican Party plank that was pro-life and anti-abortion. Yet on the anniversary of Roe-Wade, with its pro-life and pro-abortion rallies, Bush sent messages to each. To the pro-life group he said "God bless you, and God bless life."

However, unlike last year, he notably failed to ask for a constitutional amendment and, unlike last year, neither he nor Quayle met with march organizers. At the same time Atwater was busy washing out the Republican anti-abortion stance with, as you observed, Bush's approval.

The tragedy with the whole moral issue of abortion is that it is becoming irretrievably bound up with party politics. This is abhorrent. This is the most important, mass life-and-death issue any of us will ever face. In the 17 years since Roe-Wade, 23 million babies have been killed. This beggars Stalin's record in killing Russians. Some 4,100 babies are killed by abortionists every single day. Yet a complacent leadership of both parties, Democrat and Republican, assigns no more moral concern to this holocaust than it assigns to a tooth extraction.

I often wonder about the abortionists who commit this endless horror in the abortion mills all around the country, these human abattoirs which that screeching termagant Molly Yard, president of NOW, esteems and praises so highly.

These abortionists are all physicians. Each of them, upon graduation from medical school, has risen from his/her seat and taken the Hippocratic oath. I have seen them, proud and idealistic, pledge to use their healing skills "always to be used to preserve human life and never to destroy it."

I wonder if this oath, suitably framed, were required to be displayed on the wall of every legal abortion mill would make any difference — either to be the abortionist who is about to violate it — or the tragically misguided mother who is about to have her flesh and blood destroyed.

Further, on the subject of doctors and abortion, did you ever hear a physician boast, or even acknowledge that he performs abortions? I have reviewed medical directories in which doctors are listed, along with their specialties — internal medicine, cardiology, gastroenterology, etc. But I have never seen "abortion surgery" listed as a specialty. The fact is these practitioners, with some exceptions possible, are basically ashamed of themselves — and the Hippocratic oath they flout. They are not unhappy, however, with the blood money they take in fees, nor the "patient" referrals they get from the "pro-abortion-NOW" crowd.

In Los Angeles last week, I happened upon a radio speech on abortion in which it was stated that all the doctors in Duluth, Minn., and more than half the doctors in Atlanta, Ga., refuse to perform abortions. They're doing 100 percent better than President Bush is in stopping abortion.

I have heard many women say they are anti-abortion but "pro choice." This is a bit of meretricious idiocy used to mask an abortion stance. But I, personally, have never heard a woman admit to having an abortion. I think this indicates that we all have an innate abhorrence of abortion because we feel, deep down, that it is a violation of the moral law — which flows from the natural law, which flows from the Divine law. This is further affirmed in the Declaration of Independence which speaks to man's endowment by his Creator with the right to "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." Not that "right to life" reference. Pretty basic, wouldn't you agree? The Declaration further states this nation is founded "on the laws of nature and the laws of God."

The Decalogue further codifies the "right to life" when it states: "Thou shalt not Kill." This word of God is holy to Jews and Christians alike.

I would like to make clear my position on women's rights. I believe in equal opportunity for women, equal pay for equal work and every other legitimate aspiration of women in politics and vocational pursuit. And I do believe every woman has a right to "control" her own body. But remember — please — that right has a corresponding obligation to control her body responsibly. And she has absolutely no right to control — read "kill" — the body of another.

When I hear the screeching Molly Yards of the pro-abortion mob, I find myself wishing the abortion which they embrace so passionately could be made retroactive — so as to bestow its "benefits" on them as subjects of the fate they so freely wreak on the innocent victims of a woman's "right to control her own body."

In your Bush editorial you observed, "... the president was willing to accommodate himself to the political reality that indicates increased public support for the pro-choice view as the 1990 election approaches."

That's the crux. Here's a leader who fearlessly denounces abortion as a moral wrong — and gets elected. A man who thunders out "God bless you and God bless life." But as soon as his banjo-plunking, country-western-singing Republican national chairman tells him to switch positions, all he says is "how far?"

So now we stand on the brink of an era in which morality, the incidence of the natural law, and the application of the Divine law — all are to be decided by majority vote.

Bush got elected on such non-issues as Willie Horton, pledging allegiance, and the pollution of Boston harbor. His last pre-election speech was the last anyone heard of these voter traps. But now it's election time again — time to wet his political finger, put it to test in the wind, and switch positions on abortion.

Anyone for morality, folks?

Environment

To the Editor:
(The following is an open letter to the mayors of the Grosse Pointes.)

We are students in the religious education classes of the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church. We have been learning about taking care of our environment and how we can help by recycling. A lot of the garbage we throw out, especially paper, could be recycled. The drop-off recycling center that Grosse Pointe Park is setting up is a good start, but much more should be done. We think that the Grosse Pointes should start a curbside recycling program along with regular garbage pickup. Then every family could do their part to help save our environment.

Double property tax credit limit

The governor's property tax relief proposal is far different from what was expected. Details are gradually emerging. While he still refuses to put the proposal in writing and to flesh out the rough idea with specific statutory language, we have gleaned details from various staff sources.

The governor's proposal would be a new form of property tax credit on the state income tax. In effect, it would limit assessment increases as they apply to school operating levies on homesteads to consumer price index increase levels, until the house is sold. The governor had made a similar proposal a year ago, but only for a delay in taxes on assessment increases beyond C.P.I.

It appears that the cost of the governor's proposal is far in excess of media reports. Newspapers have said the plan would provide $300 million in relief over 10 years. It now appears the plan would provide tax credits of over $300 million in the first five years and perhaps a billion dollars over the decade. The governor does not say how he would pay for it.

What the governor is doing is targeting a proposal to appeal to those voters he feels he most needs for his re-election, the independent voting, blue collar and two-income family, those who live in newer subdivisions with rapidly rising property values.

The shame is not in his rather blatant attempt to appeal to a segment of the voters, but that the governor has refused to support a general increase in the present $1,200 property tax credit limit. That limit was set in 1976.

Let's be fair, governor. Many senior citizens who bought a modest home decades ago have seen inflation make that house worth, often, $100,000 to $150,000 or more. And the taxes on the house have skyrocketed, often more than inflation. A retired couple in a $100,000 house, assessed at $50,000, with 65 mills of property tax (which is about what many suburbanites pay) is paying $3,250 in property tax. If their retirement income is $25,000, they should get a property tax credit for $2,375 ($3,250 less 3.5 percent of their income but they are limited to the $1,200 credit.

Let's double the property tax credit limits.

Seminar for senior citizens continues

"Seminar for Seniors," the Grosse Pointe Board of Education's tuition-free program for local retirees 60 or older featuring health-related programs in the popular Friday series, began Feb. 2.

In cooperation with Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Michigan, a series of four programs will be offered.

Budget hearing

The Grosse Pointe North Program Advisory Committee (P.A.C.) will hold an open hearing on the 1990-91 school budget for all members of the community on Thursday, Feb. 15 at 7 p.m. in the high school cafeteria.

Residents are invited to attend the session and, if they wish, may review detailed material in the administrative offices at North prior to the 15th.

"Brown Bag Prescription Drug Program," the second in the series, will be held at 1:30 p.m. Friday, Feb. 9. The focus is on having people take drugs wisely. Those taking drugs to the session will have them reviewed for expiration dates and possible harmful drug interactions.

The third in the series, "Crime Prevention Program," will be held at 1:30 p.m. Friday, Feb. 16. Focus will be on simple tips to prevent one from becoming the victim of burglars, thieves and con artists.

"Emergency - What To Do," the fourth in the series, offers suggestions on the best way to act in different emergency situations. The final "Seminar for Seniors" program consists of the "Bon Secours Hospital Health Fair." Set to begin at noon on Friday, March 2, those attending will be able to avail themselves of health screening. Beginning at 1:30 p.m., those attending will have an opportunity to screen their medications under expert guidance.

All programs in the "Seminar for Seniors" offering will be held at Barnes School, 20090 Morningside Drive, Grosse Pointe Woods.

All retirees in the school district are welcome to attend. Call 343-2178 for more information.

Organization promotes world awareness

Young Americans have fallen far behind students in other Western industrialized nations in geographic skills, knowledge of foreign languages and overall international awareness, according to a recent report by the National Governors Association.

"It is time (for young Americans) to learn languages," said Gerald Baliles, governor of Virginia and chairman of the association's Task Force on International Education. "It is time to learn geography. And it's time to change our thinking about the world around us."

One of the best ways of doing this, according to the report, is through international exchange programs. Since its founding more than 40 years ago by ambulance drivers from the first and second world wars, AFS Intercultural Programs has been a leader in the field.

AFS is a non-profit, volunteer-based organization that places students with families in more than 50 countries around the world. Students learn new languages and cultures not as tourists, but as sons and daughters, brothers and sisters to families worldwide.

Grosse Pointe students have been AFS students since the 1960s and many local families have AFS sons and daughters from countries around the globe.

"Many of our AFS students are graduating seniors," said Ann Nicholson, local AFS coordinator. "They see this as excellent hands-on preparation for college studies in language or international affairs."

High school students between 15 and 19 by June 1990 may choose a school year or summer program. Several programs are already filled, but there are summer programs still available in Finland, Germany, Iceland, Indonesia, Malaysia, Portugal, Thailand, Yugoslavia, Turkey, Switzerland and Italy.

There are still places in year programs in Denmark, Finland, Indonesia, some Latin American countries, Malaysia, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Soviet Union, Thailand, Turkey and Yugoslavia. Year program students leave in July or August, and must have a B grade point average. No language experience is required. Final application date for all programs is April 1, but applicants are placed in their first-choice countries on a first-come, first-serve basis.

For informational brochures and application forms and for information to host a student for the 1990-91 school year, call Ann Nicholson at 884-4637.

News rack makes great stereo cabinet

A Grosse Pointe Woods youth has found an alternative use for newspaper racks.

Responding to an alarm at a home in the 1500 block of Dorthen Feb. 1 at 2:45 p.m., Woods police found no one at home, but a door ajar, so they went in to investigate. In a second floor bedroom, the officers found a new-looking Detroit News coin-operated rack.

According to police reports, the locking mechanism on the news rack had been cut off, and the rack was being used as a cabinet to house a stereo. Police also found a road blockade and an amber warning light.

Police confiscated the news rack and road construction equipment. According to city records, the only residents at the house are a 39-year-old woman and a 15-year-old boy.

Explore Africa

Award-winning filmmaker Kenneth Richter will narrate his travelogue, "Surprising Southern Africa," Friday, Feb. 16 at the War Memorial.

Richter

This Grosse Pointe Adventure Series presentation takes place at 8 p.m. in the War Memorial's Fries Auditorium following an optional 6:30 p.m. dinner.

The film is a remarkable look at Southern Africa, from Capetown to Victoria Falls in Northern Zimbabwe, to bone-dry Namibia and the black kingdom of Swaziland. It is filled with grand scenery, colorful costumes, photogenic craft markets and big game animals filmed in their native habitat.

An expert filmmaker, Richter has produced outstanding documentary lectures for more than 40 years. Tickets are $4.25, film only; $13.50, dinner only, and $17.75 for the complete evening (dinner, service, film, free parking).

A menu of mock leg of venison (marinated braised leg of lamb), green mealie bread from Swaziland, beet and sliced onion salad and melktert (custard pie) will be served. Reservations for dinner must be made in advance by Tuesday, Feb. 13. Call 881-7511, for more information.

Monte Nagler is traveling in the southwest. This photo, taken in Monument Valley, Arizona, is a sample of things to come. Nagler's column will appear in two weeks.

Parents: Learning to listen

Grosse Pointe Community Education offers "Parenting: Developing An Inner Ear," an opportunity for parents to learn to listen and to respond more effectively to the language of children.

Maureen McKinley Light, ACSW, who will teach the single session at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 13 at Barnes School, said that children have a way of communicating unique to themselves. Often, when under stress or feeling emotional, they speak in metaphors or "act out" their messages through behavior which get them into trouble. Under these circumstances, their needs are often unmet.

Fee for the class is $6. Call 343-2178 for information.

Learn meaning of dreams

Are your dreams keeping secrets from you? A course beginning Feb. 20 at Macomb Community College's Fraser Campus can help you solve each night's mystery.

"Discovering Your Dreams" is a six-session course that will show you how to retain and recall your dreams so that you may interpret them. Dreams are a release of your creativity and a reflection of your experiences. By compiling a dream journal, you will learn how dreams affect your personal growth and reveal your needs.

The course will be offered on Tuesdays, Feb. 20 through March 27, from noon until 3 p.m., at Macomb's Fraser Campus, 32101 Caroline. The fee is $50.

For more information, call Macomb's Professional and Continuing Education Department at 445-7417.

Group opens recycling center

The Detroit East Area Residents (D.E.A.R.) Neighborhood Association has established a recycling drop-off center for the convenience of all east side residents at the Cannon Recreation Center Parking Lot next to Finney High School (Bluehill off East Warren, just east of Cadieux).

Recyclables may be dropped off on the last Saturday of each month, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Michigan residents throw away 10 million tons of solid waste every year, enough to fill the Silverdome 291 times a year, and landfill 80 to 85 percent solid waste and recycle only 5 to 10 percent.

Recycling 25 percent, reducing waste 5 percent, composting 6 percent, reusing 5 percent and incinerating for energy recovery 40 percent would mean landfilling 19 percent, a 70 percent reduction in reliance on landfills.

The D.E.A.R. Recycling Center takes in all glass, metals and high density plastics.

Glass — All clear, green or amber glass (rinsed, labels are OK). Lightbulbs, mirrors, window glass or ceramics are not accepted.

Metals — All metal items, food cans rinsed. Air conditioners and large appliances are not accepted.

Plastic — All soft plastic containers such as detergent, laundry, milk, juice and shampoo containers are accepted. Yogurt, cottage cheese, flower pots, plastic bags, ketchup, peanut butter and vegetable oil containers are multi-layered and cannot be recycled. If plastics shatter when stepped on, they're not recyclable.

Batteries — All dry cell household batteries, AA, AAA, C, D, 9-volt, lantern, watch, calculator, camera and hearing aid batteries. Auto or motorcycle batteries are wet cell batteries and cannot be accepted.

Newspapers — Bundle newspapers, no glossy magazines, with string or put in paper bags and drop them off at St. Matthew's parking lot, Harper at Whittier, seven days a week, 24 hours.

Couple caught in car B&E

They came. They saw. They arrested a man and woman in the midst of breaking into a car Jan. 27.

Grosse Pointe City police responded to a report of a car breaking-and-entering in progress at 2:50 p.m. in the 16800 block of Kercheval. The officers arrived at the scene and saw the man leaning in through a broken-out window of the car, his feet off the ground. He had a screwdriver in one hand and the car's radio in the other, police said.

They were both wanted on warrants out of Detroit.

Social Security office reports man with ax

The Social Security office on Mack in Grosse Pointe City was visited by a man with an ax Feb. 2.

Police said the man entered the office at 10:21 a.m. and was carrying an ax. But the man wasn't irate. The man used the ax as a walking stick to keep him from falling on the ice. Police confiscated the ax and transported the 32-year-old Detroit man to the city limits.

Grosse Pointe South High School Pointe Players won first in the Michigan Interscholastic Forensic Association district theater festival held Jan. 27 with their performance of the one-act play "Why Do We Laugh?" Their win advances them to the regional festival on Feb. 10. It is the third consecutive year Pointe Players advanced to regionals. Last year they placed in the top 12 in the state. The entire cast and crew received special recognition for their talents. South junior Shanna McNamee received a superior rating for her portrayal of a five year old. Excellent ratings were given to junior John Armaly, junior Jennifer Schultz and sophomore Delanie Boon. Senior Steve Carlin received an excellent rating for lighting, and the entire ensemble received an excellent rating for their combined effort. The play was directed by Pointe Players' adviser Mary Martin.

South plans madrigal dinner performance

On Saturday, Feb. 24 and Sunday, Feb. 25 at 6 p.m., the cafeteria at Grosse Pointe South High School will be transformed into a scene reminiscent of Camelot, as the Grosse Pointe South Choir holds its second Madrigal Dinner performance.

The event is dinner theater with a medieval flavor. Those attending will be welcomed and seated in the cafeteria by members of the South choirs, who will be dressed in medieval costumes. Music will be performed during the four-course roast beef dinner. In addition to musical selections of the period, authentic dances will be performed. The dinner will be presided over by King Gus Grodzinsky and Queen Caroline DeFauw, and their jester Geoff Finger.

The Madrigal Dinner is the South High choir's major fundraiser and proceeds will fund choir trips and the year-end awards banquet.

Cost for the evening is $25 per person, and reservations are limited. Tickets can be obtained by sending checks to Grosse Pointe South Choir, 5 Rathbone Place, Grosse Pointe, 48230, or at Village Records and Tapes.

For more information, call 343-2140.

Student Spotlight Carolyn Baiocchi

Carolyn Baiocchi

Each week in this column, we will focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a wood-working project, a book review.

The following poem was written by Carolyn B. Baiocchi, 9, a student at Ferry School. She is the daughter of Bill and Kris Baiocchi of Grosse Pointe Woods.

Rain and Snow

Rain is wet
Rain makes a rainbow, they are always pretty,
Rain is water for most living plants.
Rain is everything it could be, like snow!
Snow is colorful like black, brown and white.
Snow is fun - you can sled, ski and shape it.

Snow is pretty, every little flake is different.

That's Why I Like Snow!

Dutko, Barry casualties of self-esteem

How do you measure a person's self-esteem? By confidence in one's abilities? By willingness to stand up for what one believes in? By willingness to take risks? By decisiveness or grace under pressure?

I would like you to consider the possibility that two of our most recent and most publicized victims of addiction, Dennis Dutko and Marion Barry, were also very much casualties of self-esteem and, perhaps, friendship.

I knew neither man personally, and I realize that it is very difficult, probably impossible, to know what is in another person's mind or heart concerning self. But I think that by most objective measurements each man displayed characteristics of someone who believed in himself and was able to inspire confidence in others as well.

It takes a lot of courage and self-confidence to stand up and say, in effect, as anyone does when they run for elective office: I think I am the best man to lead you. Give me your support and your faith because I have the wisdom and the energy to fight for you and make decisions in your best interests. And by most accounts these men not only made but fulfilled those promises. The continuing support that both men received through the years of rumors about their abuse of alcohol and other drugs are evidence of that.

I have heard nothing but praise for the way that Dennis Dutko represented his Macomb County constituents, how sensitive he was to their needs and how vigorously he fought for them in the Michigan House. Marion Barry's personal rise from the son of a sharecropper to real achievements on behalf of civil rights and the people of Washington, D.C., are also well-documented. So what went wrong? Why couldn't two men who displayed so much self-discipline and strength in the face of so many adversities do what we tell our school children to do every day: "Just say 'no' to drugs!" I believe that in part it was their previous successes, their records of being able to accomplish whatever they set out to do, that (1) persuaded them that they were exempt from some of the rules that govern others and (2) even when events began to indicate otherwise, made it virtually impossible for them to admit that there was something they could not control. And that's why I refer to them as casualties of self-esteem.

Dutko and Barry apparently both believed that they could handle drugs and still fulfill their responsibilities, even in the face of mounting evidence to the contrary. They seemed to be incapable of believing that they could be wrong. They blamed a rumor-mongering press, a judge out to make a statement, racism, politics: everything but the possibility that they weren't special, that they were in the grip of something that they couldn't control, that all of their self-discipline and self-sufficiency and talent were useless in this personal war on drugs.

The most successful treatment for alcoholism yet devised — Alcoholics Anonymous — teaches that the first step in overcoming an addiction is admitting one's powerlessness over it. For that reason it is pretty much accepted in the treatment community that among the most difficult clients to treat are those who are not used to being powerless: doctors, lawyers, and other highly successful professional people. People who have never been in a situation that they couldn't think, work, or talk their way out of are slow to recognize it when they do encounter one. Especially if the "situation" is a compulsive behavior that many people still mistakenly believe is purely a matter of willpower.

Sober Thoughts

By Susan Pearce

So belief in one's own powers (a.k.a. "self-esteem") finally encounters a situation which requires one to give up one's belief in one's own powers. Many thousands of people, famous or not, have died needlessly from alcoholism and other addictions because they could not take this step.

The other irony is that while both Dutko and Barry claimed that their fame caused them to be treated more harshly than the average person, the reality is that the more powerful you are, the more "protectors" you have who are willing to shield you from both the discovery and the consequences of your unacceptable behavior.

And since it can be argued that no one can maintain his addiction alone, that there must always be someone who will act as a buffer between the addict and the world, another real tragedy for Dennis Dutko and Marion Barry and many other influential alcoholics like them is not that they had too many enemies out to crucify them, but that they had too many friends willing to help them deny, deceive and "protect" their self-esteem.

I believe that Dennis Dutko died, in part, because his inability to control his addiction finally crushed his self-esteem. Sadly, although he finally came to accept his powerlessness over chemicals, he could not take the next steps required for recovery, believing in and then asking for help. A person who has seldom experienced failure usually has great difficulty saying, "Help me." Fifteen percent of substance abusers commit suicide, compared with less than one percent of the general population.

Mayor Barry seems to have admitted some powerlessness. I hope that his "self-esteem" and his "friends" allow him to accept his human limitations so that he may receive support for his recovery, not protection from his transgressions. And I sincerely hope that anyone reading this column who recognizes himself, herself, or someone close to them will realize that no one can combat alone an enemy as strong as addiction.

A safe first step for the person concerned about his or her use would be to call Alcoholics Anonymous (541-6565). Concerned family members or friends may call AlAnon (527-4610).

Kellow explained that the Detroit Free Trade Zone has saved automakers a lot of duty costs. An auto assembly plant, for example, is declared a free trade zone. Therefore, duty on Canadian auto parts shipped to the U.S. assembly plant does not have to be paid until the car is shipped to a dealer. And then the duty is assessed on the total foreign content of the car and at a much lower rate than the duty that would have been on the parts originally.

The Detroit Windsor Port Corp., known as DeWin, is a joint creation of the Windsor and Detroit port authorities. DeWin's purpose is to promote use of and cooperation between the ports of Detroit and Windsor. DeWin also acts as a cargo broker and marketing consultant to bring cargoes and vessels together.

Kellow's plans for the Detroit/Wayne County Port Authority, however, is what has municipal and business officials concerned.

Legislation is pending in Lansing that would give the port authority power to operate port facilities, condemn property, assess fees and subsidize a shipping line. The legislation is opposed by private marine terminal operators, the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce and Wayne County communities other than Detroit that fear the expanded port authority will take their river-front property. The legislation would also give Detroit majority representation on the port authority board.

Park resident James Kellow, executive director of the Detroit/Wayne County Port Authority, is working for expansion of the Port of Detroit through his Clark Street offices in the heart of the port district in downriver Detroit.

Kellow, however, said the fears of Wayne County communities, such as Grosse Pointe Park, Ecorse and Wyandotte, are groundless. He said the authority has not intention to condemn property in the Pointes. "Why would we want to? What are we going to do with it?" he asked.

Private marine terminal operators fear that the authority with condemnation powers could take their properties. Kellow said the authority does not want the jobs of the private operators.

"There's no hidden agenda here," he said, "no intent with malice. Our goals are known."

And those goals are ambitious. One goal is to make Detroit the distribution consolidations center for the entire Midwest and southwestern Canada. Kellow would like all roads, including water and rail, to lead to Detroit.

The authority would also like to help get a year-round shipping line into business. The line would regularly operate between Detroit and Europe during the nine-month Great Lakes shipping season. While Detroit is frozen in for three months, the shipping line would operate between an Eastern ocean port and Europe. The goods from the hub of Detroit would be shipped to the East on rail.

The power to implement the ambitious plans is dependent on the passage of the bill introduced by Detroit state Reps. Morris Hood and Curtis Hertel. Kellow said he is optimistic the bill will be approved in some form.

Addressing the concerns of his opponents that the authority will have too much power, Kellow said the proposed legislation is consistent with the powers given to ports throughout the country.

Kellow has been in the port business for some 15 years. He came to the Detroit port authority in 1984 from Louisville, Ky., where he was president of the port authority of the Ohio River community. Before that he was deputy director of the Port of Corpus Christi on the Gulf Coast of Texas.

His inland and ocean port experience made him uniquely suited for the Port of Detroit job, which requires knowledge of "lakers" and "salties," as the Great Lakes and oceangoing ships are called.

Kellow's education is in economics. His bachelor's and master's degrees from Memphis State University are in marketing, economics and finance.

Despite the port authority's troubled waters recently, Kellow is happy to be here. He encourages the debate over the proper role of the port authority and doesn't take criticism personally. His main goal is to make the authority effective, rather than just a promotional entity as it is today.

Though much of their lives were spent in the South, Kellow, his wife, Nancy, and son, Patrick, don't mind the Northern climate.

"We really like it up here," Kellow said. "We think it's really great."

The Kellows attend Christ Church, and Nancy Kellow is active in the Junior League. Patrick Kellow is a student at Trombly Elementary School.

Kellow said moving into Grosse Pointe Park was easy for the family, and making friends was even easier.

"It's been a very pleasant experience for us," he said. "We can't say enough nice things about it."

Cash register at cleaners carried off

A Warren man was arrested and charged last week after running off with the cash register at the One Hour Martinizing on Mack at Fleetwood in the Woods.

John Joseph Missig, 28, pleaded innocent to larceny from a building at his arraignment before Woods Municipal Judge Patricia Schneider. He was released on $5,000 personal bond.

According to police reports, Missig walked into the cleaners at 4:41 p.m. Jan. 30 and asked how much it would cost to have three suits cleaned. He then asked the cashier if the store was taking applications for employment. The cashier said yes and walked a few feet away from the cash register to get an application.

When she turned around toward the man, he grabbed the register and lifted it from the counter, causing the counter to fall over. He then ran from the store with the cash register with 4 feet of register tape streaming behind him.

A witness saw the man take off in an old, yellow Ford pickup truck. Woods police broadcast a description of the truck and the suspect.

Farms officer Stephen Puckett was monitoring the broadcast and responded to the area. He spotted the yellow pickup and stopped it at Edgefield and Moross in Detroit. Puckett made the arrest with the assistance of fellow Farms officers Michael McCarthy and Detective Daniel Jensen.

Missig was turned over to Woods officers.

that withstood challenges through the U.S. Supreme Court.

The case in 1976 involved — of all things — garbage. LaPratt and William Furtaw (now captain in charge of police operations) were investigating an armed robbery. As LaPratt was walking up to the house of a suspect for questioning, he noticed wallets in a garbage bag at the curb. The trash bag had been torn open by a dog and the wallets were in plain sight.

The use of the wallets as evidence, which led to the suspect's conviction on four counts of armed robbery, were challenged to the Michigan Supreme Court. The state's high court ruled in favor of the prosecution.

The California high court, however, ruled opposite in a similar case, so the issue of trash as evidence was dumped before the U.S. Supreme Court. The Supreme Court ruled that trash by the curb is no longer private property and is not subject to search and seizure protection.

"It was a feather in our cap," LaPratt said. "Not only was it a state case, but it is now the guideline which we work under."

Another case involved a Wayburn woman who was kidnapped and raped. Later, the abductors burglarized the woman's home and took a coat of arms the woman's husband had made. During the investigation, LaPratt and his men obtained a search warrant of a suspect's home. LaPratt said he walked into the home and the first thing he saw was the unique coat of arms that had been stolen.

Detective Sgt. James LaPratt

After the successful prosecution of the case, the woman gave LaPratt the coat of arms as a gift.

"It was a very dramatic case," he said. "Of course, you don't do anything alone." LaPratt is quick to point out that he had the help of the entire police department, and he doesn't want to take credit for what others helped accomplish.

One case LaPratt did handle alone, however, was the one involving three bronze turtles that were stolen from around Scott Fountain on Belle Isle sometime in the early '60s. Although it was a Detroit case, LaPratt soon learned it had a Grosse Pointe Park angle.

Shortly after the turtle theft, LaPratt got a call from a St. Ambrose priest who, off the record, said some St. Ambrose High School students took the turtles as a prank, but he didn't want to get the kids in trouble.

LaPratt, not wanting to get the priest in trouble, arranged to accidentally "find" the turtles. He loaded them into his car and called Detroit and said an anonymous tip led him to the turtles' whereabouts. He said Detroit was so happy to get the turtles back, no questions were asked.

LaPratt said he has a million stories to tell, including a few skeletal bones from the closets of Grosse Pointe's most prominent families.

"There were so many good times," he said. "The bad things you put away."

Some detectives may wish they had worked on a big police department and solved the big case, but LaPratt is glad he worked for the Park. He said the department was his second home. He said he established friendships that could never have developed in a big-city police department.

"I have no regrets," he said. "I would do it right over immediately."

LaPratt said he hopes to find some work that will utilize his investigative experience. He'll also spend more time with his wife and at their cottage up north. He'll probably spend some time gossiping in the DB.

"I didn't want to leave," he said of his retirement. "It's one of the hardest decisions I've ever made."

A retirement party is being planned for LaPratt at Alcamo's Castle, 21801 E. Nine Mile Road, on St. Patrick's Day, March 17. Doors open at 7 p.m. and dinner is at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $20 per person and can be obtained by calling Park Public Safety Deputy Director Phil Costa at 822-7400.

A younger Detective James LaPratt in the early 1960s "accidentally" found three turtles that were stolen from Belle Isle's Scott Fountain. Though the turtles were taken as a prank by St. Ambrose High School students, LaPratt never let on that he knew who took them.

Attempted B&E at party store

A man who was seen throwing a piece of concrete through a party store door at Mack and St. Clair in Grosse Pointe City at 1:13 a.m. Jan. 31 escaped on a bicycle.

The subject fled south on Mack when the store's burglar alarm sounded.

At 2:08 a.m. a man matching the suspect's description was brought to the Grosse Pointe police station and later released.

hope that some highly qualified candidates will step forward and accept the challenge to serve and to lead the board in the 1990s," Gandelot said.

Although he has not endorsed anyone, and no one has announced candidacy for the board, Gandelot said people with skills in business, negotiations and law are needed because of the challenges — such as school finance reform, teacher negotiations, site budgeting and strategic planning — facing public schools in the 1990s.

South student may be charged in drug incident

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

A 16-year-old Grosse Pointe South High School student may be charged with possessing drug paraphernalia and a concealed weapon after being stopped near the school Feb. 1.

A Farms public safety officer was on patrol near the school at 8:30 a.m. when he received information from the high school's security officer that a youth in a black Cadillac parked in front of a business on Fisher was possibly involved in the sale and distribution of drugs.

The officer turned from Grosse Pointe Boulevard onto Fisher Road and saw the black Cadillac parked as reported in front of the businesses on Fisher. As he drove by, the officer observed the 16-year-old driver and two other students in the Cadillac. One student was a 15-year-old Farms girl and the other was a 14-year-old City boy.

When the officer turned around and approached the Cadillac from the rear, he noticed that the driver was alone in the car. As the officer approached, the Cadillac pulled away from the curb and into traffic. The car then turned right into the parking lot of the service station at the corner of Fisher and Grosse Pointe Boulevard.

According to the officer, the driver of the Cadillac did not use his turn signals when he pulled away from the curb or when he turned into the service station. When the driver rolled down the window, the officer said he smelled a strong odor of marijuana smoke. When the youth opened the glove box to get the vehicle registration, the officer saw a knife with at least a 6-inch blade. He told the youth he was being detained for carrying a concealed weapon in a motor vehicle.

While searching the Cadillac, the officer found a yellow and silver pipe underneath the passenger side of the front seat. The pipe was still hot to the touch from being used, the officer reported. Inside the pipe was what is believed to be marijuana residue.

Police notified school authorities and a school official told police the youth was immediately suspended and would not be allowed on school property.

The boy's father was notified and he came to the Farms police station. With the youth's father present, the possible charges were recited. The boy denied taking drugs or smoking marijuana. He said the pipe belonged to a friend who last smoked marijuana in the car a week ago. He said he didn't know the pipe was in the car because he used it to cut wires while installing a car radio.

The youth, who lives with his family in the City, was released to his father's custody.

'Internal Affairs' is a compelling police thriller

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

In a clever, intricate and sometimes brutal police thriller, magnetic Richard Gere plays the part of Dennis Peck, a police officer who is highly regarded by his superiors, in "Internal Affairs."

Raymond Avila (Andy Garcia) is a newly appointed detective assigned to the Los Angeles Police Department Internal Affairs Division, whose job is to investigate other cops. When he suggests that Gere has links to criminal activities, he is brushed off.

While Avila has to work to prove his point, viewers are in the know from the beginning. The suspense comes from wondering how far Gere will go before he is apprehended.

To make it easier for him to pursue his criminal activities and to divert suspicion from himself, Gere manages to involve many of his fellow officers with his charm.

A monster he is, but one who is handsome, personable and exudes a charm that is almost hypnotic.

These attributes have worked well with women, too. He has three ex-wives and numerous casual conquests and eight children, all of whom he supports in high style.

The danger level rises when he discovers that he is being investigated.

Gere uses sex both as a tool and a weapon. Seeking every cover possible, he plays up to his various conquests hoping to keep them from talking to Avila.

Sex is a persistent theme in the movie, whether it is a charged camaraderie between a male police officer and his female partner, Gere's various liaisons with other officers' wives, or his associations with prostitutes. Even straight-arrow Avila is not immune.

Gere makes the most of Peck's smiling villainy. It is his best role since "Officer and a Gentleman." He is good at being bad.

Andy Garcia as Peck's nemesis, best known for his role in "The Untouchables," almost steals the show with his piercing eyes and intense portrayal of Sgt. Avila.

The supporting cast is well-chosen, particularly Laurie Metcalf, William Baldwin and Annabelle Sciorra.

Director Mike Figgis creates an overheated atmosphere that intrigues. Henry Bean's script effectively presents all the ambiguities of lust and domination.

"Internal Affairs" is an energetic film that presents a compelling, entertaining and well-paced story.

'Heart Condition' suffers from casting

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

"Heart Condition" is actually three films in one.

It's a comedy, featuring both dry humor and plenty of slapstick. It's a cop drama in which the good guy faces incredible odds in trying to catch the bad guy. And it's a morality play, in which the main character is supposed to learn something about himself and the world in which he lives.

It is, in many respects, a unique picture, or at least a picture in which many tried-and-true elements are brought together for the first time.

Bob Hoskins isn't just any cop; he's a cop who's alive only because of a recent heart transplant. And the new heart he's living with isn't just any heart; it's a heart that once belonged to the man Hoskins hated most (Denzel Washington). Hoskins' hate was motivated partly by racism and partly for professional reasons.

Washington, while he was still alive, was a black lawyer with shady business dealings.

But now Washington is dead — murdered. And it's up to Hoskins to figure out who killed him, and why. And why would Hoskins agree to such an arrangement? Because only he can see Washington's ghost. And the spirit isn't going to let Hoskins rest until he solves the case.

The scenario is good for more than a few laughs, most of them reminiscent of the best routines in "All of Me," the classic Steve Martin-Lily Tomlin picture. None of the material in "Heart Condition" is nearly as done as it was in "All of Me," however.

Luckily, there's still the cop story — and the morality play — to keep things moving. Though we may not laugh very hard at Hoskins wrestling on the sidewalk with an invisible ghost, we can't help but be at least somewhat moved by the lesson we're supposed to be learning.

A heart is a heart, regardless of color, the picture says. It follows that a person is a person.

The picture's biggest flaw is in its casting. Washington is extremely likable and professional, as he has been ever since first being presented to big-screen audiences in "Biko" a few years ago. Hoskins, however, is not at all inventive or likable. Indeed, viewers will probably spend a majority of the film's running time trying to figure out why they should care about this guy. Then they will spend the rest of the time wondering how he's capable of making such a miraculous turnaround.

But we're getting ahead of ourselves. Suffice it to say that "Heart Condition" is at least mildly successful with all three of its objectives.

But it's not overly successful on any one of them alone.

'Flashback' teams a '60s rebel with a yuppie

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

The players:
Dennis Hopper is the rebel. He's been a fugitive since the 1960s, when he made a public nuisance of himself in an episode involving the vice president of the United States. The quintessential flower child then, he's the quintessential con man now. Kiefer Sutherland is the conformist.

He's a yuppified FBI agent who wears nice suits and has totally immersed himself in the '80s way of thinking.

The plot: 20 some years after his crime, Hopper has finally been captured in San Francisco. Sutherland's job is to accompany him up the coast to Portland, where he is to be jailed.

But a funny thing happens on the way to prison. First Hopper tries to escape. Once Sutherland catches up with him, the two begin running together from a psychotic local sheriff. On the road, they develop a friendship and an understanding.

The politics: Weird. It's difficult to tell exactly what this picture is trying to say politically, but it's clearly trying to say something. The idealism and civil disobedience of the '60s is repeatedly contrasted with the consumerism and selfish fickleness of the '80s. This picture comes from the left as much — in its own way — as another recent movie partially set in the '60s, "Born on the Fourth of July."

The prognosis: Politics aside, "Flashback" has its moments of quality. Though it starts slowly, and is overlong by at least 15 minutes, the film documents a good relationship between two people who are about as far apart as they can be.

Sutherland learns a few lessons from Hopper about how to begin the process of finding yourself. Meanwhile, Hopper learns a number of lessons from Sutherland about what it means to be true to yourself once you know who you are.

If this all sounds like smarmy pop psychology, it is. But that, of course, is one of the things the movies do best. We don't necessarily have to believe all of the tremendous coincidences the picture presents. We don't even have to agree with or understand all of the stereotypical images of the '60s the film displays. All we're asked to do is suspend our disbelief and cynicism long enough for the characters to grab us.

The performances: Sutherland is acceptable and even believable enough as the young FBI agent whose psyche gets seduced into a strange new world. But it is Hopper who ultimately makes this film worth watching. His characteristically offbeat, neurotic qualities demand our attention whenever he's on the screen.

And since that's most of the picture, there's plenty to like here.

Belanger to enter Miss Grosse Pointe Competition, 30-and-over Division

Grosse Pointe Woods resident Susan Belanger is expected to vie for the title of Miss Grosse Pointe in the 30-and-over division. Belanger, who turns 30 this week, is no stranger to such contests.

In 1960, she was named "Baby of the Year." In 1966, she became the poster child for the National Association of People with Incredibly Curly Hair (NAPICH). Ten years later, Belanger was awarded Rookie of the Year honors in the Grosse Pointe Demolition Derby Circuit. The former Star of the Sea prom queen was second runner up for the "Miss Rosemont College" title in 1982.

Most recently, she was named "News Broadcaster of the Year" by the Women in Radio Association (WIRA). If past performance is any indication, she will be named "Bride of the Decade" when she marries Randy Burns Aug. 10.

Judges say Belanger, a slender brunette who could pass for 29, is a favorite in the Miss Grosse Pointe contest. ADVERTISEMENT

Opera singers invited

If you are an aspiring opera singer, you could be chosen to receive the opportunity of a lifetime — a scholarship to study for six weeks in Sienna, Italy, under the tutelage of Maestro Walter Baracchi, artistic director of La Scalla Opera House in Milan.

Southland Center in Taylor is conducting a talent search for vocalists with operatic experience to sing in the Bel Canto Opera Competition being hosted in the center in February. One talented singer will be offered the chance to attend the six-week Bel Canto Opera Seminar conducted by Baracchi in June 1990.

Any American singer between the ages of 23 to 35, with a high level of performance ability and operatic experience, is eligible. To compete, singers must complete an application form and send an audition tape of operatic arias (including at least two of Italian repertoire) to the Bel Canto Foundation in Chicago by Feb. 10. Applications and further details are available in the Southfield Center Management Office.

Vocalists will be judged on overall voice quality, technique and stage presence. Judges will include: Suzanna Acton, music director, Michigan Opera Theatre; Ken Cazan, director of the opera workshop, University of Michigan; and Kathy Lipscomb, coordinator of auditions, Bel Canto Foundation. The winner will be announced at the conclu-

'Blueprints' at Attic

"Blueprints," three humorous, short plays paralleling modern characters with their archetypes in the Bible, will play at the Attic Theatre Monday, Feb. 12 at 8 p.m.

Tickets are $12 and can be purchased at the Attic Theatre box office at 3rd Street and West Grand Boulevard or by calling 875-8284.

"Blueprints" was written by Ann Arbor playwright Rachel Urist on a grant from the Michigan Council of the Arts, and was first performed at the Performance Network where she is a resident playwright. The Caravaggio painting, "The Sacrifice of Isaac," inspired her to explore the contemporary meaning of classic Old Testament stories.

"Blueprints" will be performed in reader's theater style with three actors playing 14 different character roles. The actors include long-time Ann Arbor celebrity-performers Nancy Heusel and Larry Henkel. The third actor is newcomer David Singer. Urist will direct the play and add off-stage voices.

ANNOUNCING PATRICK JAYS
A FINE DINNING EXPERIENCE

A bright green awning highlights the length of Patrick Jays, a new restaurant with adjoining pub at 19133 Kelly Rd., at Moross.

The location was chosen with a purpose. The originators and co-owners, Patrick Dougherty and Jay Tanghe, became aware of a definite local need for a restaurant where casual attire is welcome and fine dining is offered at reasonable prices. Responding to popular demand, they've passed over potential suburban locations to invest in this area.

If the Kelly-Moross corner sounds familiar, it's because the four-star restaurant Aldo's once occupied part of the space now incorporated into the larger Patrick Jays.

Now Aldo has retired, and has given his renowned pizza recipe to the new Patrick Jays, whose owners, in turn, are giving it back to local people.

Patrick Jays takes pride in its homemade pasta. One favorite is tortelacci-noodles bent into "nurses caps" stuffed with filling, and served in Italian meat sauce. Another favorite is gnocchi-potato dumplings in meat sauce. In addition to these homemade Italian delights, Patrick Jays offers an exciting selection of entrees including beef, veal, chicken, pork, and seafood.

Diners can relax to live entertainment from the piano, 7 p.m. to midnight, Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays.

One dining room seats 80, and the second, which is generally reserved as non-smoking, -seats 100. They are available for banquets, funeral luncheons, showers, communions, graduations or other parties of 10-100 people.

Pub-side, casual atmosphere, wide-screen TV and PASS provide fun and entertainment for people of all ages.

1989 home sales up 5 percent; average price climbs 10 percent

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

Realtors in the Grosse Pointes were pleasantly surprised by selling activity last year.

Home sales figures released by Grosse Pointe Board of Realtors President Nanci Bolton show the number of homes sold in 1989 was up 4.6 percent over the previous year. In 1988, members of the Grosse Pointe Board of Realtors sold 667 homes. Last year, 698 single-family units were sold.

"It was a good year," said Bolton, who was installed as the board president Jan. 11. "Housing prices went up, and I would say it (home selling activity) was better than expected."

Board executive officer Tom Kotzian said 1989 was expected to be a leveling off year for home sales, "but the year ended with more units being sold than the previous year, which we thought was a boom year."

Reflecting rising demand for Grosse Pointe housing, the average selling price in 1989 was $188,466, up 10.5 percent from the average price of $170,591 in 1988. The reported prices of homes sold by members of the Grosse Pointe board last year ranged from a low of $49,900 to a high of $825,000.

In 1988, the prices of homes ranged from $35,000 to $1 million.

The total value of all homes sold last year — $131.5 million — was 16 percent higher than the year before.

Bolton said sales activity was steady throughout the year. Contrary to other communities, winter/spring and fall are active periods for home transactions in the Pointes, she said.

On the state level, the Michigan Association of Realtors reported a 2.36 percent increase in the number of homes sold in 1989 as compared to 1988. The state board's average home price increased 7.06 percent to $78,897.

Even though home prices climb 10 percent a year in the Pointes, Bolton does not believe first-time home buyers are being priced out of the market.

"I work with a lot of first-time buyers," said Bolton, who is co-owner of Bolton-Johnston Associates of Grosse Pointe. "I really don't feel it is more difficult than 10 years ago."

Kotzian points out that incomes are higher along with home prices, and he and Bolton believe people are buying more than a home in Grosse Pointe. "We're selling life style," Bolton said on behalf of her associates in the Grosse Pointe Board of Realtors, which is composed of 454 Realtors from 39 real estate companies.

Bolton, who has been selling real estate locally for 12 years, said she foresees more of the same for 1990, with the number of homes sold and the prices of homes continuing to increase.

"The market has started out very, very strong in the 1990s," she said. "There's been an incredible amount of activity in the month of January."

J.D. Power: Buick LeSabre is best-made car in America

I set out for the Big Apple recently in the best car made in America, a Buick LeSabre, according to J.D. Power.

I admit I was skeptical. That is not meant to put down Buick. Buick has made some fine cars over the years. But best American car? Better than Cadillac? Better than Lincoln?

And J.D. Power rated the LeSabre second best car sold in the United States, second only to Nissan Maxima. Better than Mercedes-Benz? BMW? Jaguar? (I was startled to learn that the Jaguar XJS was among the worst 10 listed by J.D. Power, as were Saab 900, Peugeot 405, Sterling 825 and just about all Alfa Romeo; Alfa Romeo Milano was dead last. No. 154 out of 154 cars rated.)

The ratings were based on the number of complaints per 100 cars. So the California market research firm's ratings cast the most light on quality of manufacture.

The LeSabre was pleasant enough, nice looking in a middle-of-the-road sort of way, very comfortable and it looked like a good day of driving ahead. In fact, it was better than I expected.

Just through Toledo, I stopped for coffee, headed onto the Ohio Turnpike and found to my pleasant surprise that there was a built-in cup holder in the armrest between the seats, one with rubber flaps around the top for firm grasp.

I stop for fuel. Some quick figuring indicates close to 29 miles per gallon. I am impressed, as I do not have a light foot. In fact, I finished dead last once in a Pontiac economy run, even though I was driving a diesel.

The cruise control is smooth and holds the car unerringly on the speed selected. I wonder idly if state troopers have a device that can tell what speed you had your cruise control set on. Naw! The very smooth 2800 V-6 engine with sequential-port injection, balance shaft and hydraulic roller valve lifters puts out plenty of power (165 horses) and the four-speed automatic transmission with overdrive delivers it to the front wheels with no fuss, no bother.

The LeSabre's DynaRide suspension (I don't know what that means, but it sounds good; like Dynaflow) combines a soft American big-car ride with tight handling and steering, total control at all times, especially with the anti-skid brake system.

Perceptions, of course, change more slowly than automobiles do. While the J.D. Power rating helped sales of the LeSabre and the Buick line in general, many people still do not believe that the American makers can match Japanese quality.

But anyone who hangs around

car makers a while knows that quality is not a gradual development, it is a decision that can be made by anyone. Many decisions were made in the '60s and '70s which led to a decline in quality. In retrospect, it was clearly a mistake to reduce quality in order to cut costs and boost profits.

But once it is decided to make quality a high priority, it can happen quickly. Buick City was a massive undertaking and there were problems at first. But they were not the problems of teaching a slovenly work force a new interest in quality, they were problems of organizing a large operation and working out the bugs. Apparently that has happened.

It appears that Buick has taken note of how its buyers perceive it and is moving to give Buick buyers what they have traditionally favored — smooth, powerful engines, automatic transmissions, boulevard ride and plenty of luxury features.

Years of sticker shock may have deadened my nerves, but LeSabre's base prices of from $16,050 to $17,940 seem very reasonable for what you get, which is an updated high-tech version of the traditional conservative and comfortable Buick.

Big-ticket features like air conditioning, automatic transmission, etc., are all standard equipment, but there are plenty of options available, too, such as upgraded sound systems, electronic instrumentation and other luxury goodies, so you can easily boot the price up to the $20,000 neighborhood.

Buick used to have the image of a "doctor's car" — solid and reliable, a car for the conservative buyer that provided the luxury of a Cadillac without the ostentation. That describes the LeSabre. This image became somewhat discredited among the mindlessly young Pepsi generation, but in the metal it is still enormously appealing.

Oh, yes, when I got to New York after 12 hours of driving, I was not tired, I had no sore back, and I was ready for a night on the town. I don't know if it's the best car made in America as J.D. Power said, but I can't knock a car that makes 12 hours of driving a piece of cake.

Sweet - sensual - or steamy Authors of romantic fiction tell it like it ought to be

By Margie Reins Smith
 Feature Editor

Romantic fiction.
 The term conjures up images of inexpensive paperback novels with titillating cover illustrations — mass-produced formula fiction written for women who are looking for temporary escape from boredom into an imaginary world of romance, sex, exotic places and times.

Perhaps.
 For sure, romantic fiction is popular. For sure, the genre is evolving.

Romance fiction is the most popular reading category for women of all ages, according to a booklet published by Harlequin Enterprises Ltd. for its distributors and retailers. Harlequin claims to be the world's largest publisher of quality romance fiction.

Harlequin and Silhouette novels are aggressively marketed by the publisher in several categories (Harlequin Presents, Harlequin Romance, Harlequin Superromance, Harlequin Temptation, Harlequin Historicals, Harlequin Regency Romance, Silhouette Special Edition, Silhouette Desire, Silhouette Intimate Moments are a few). Each category has its own requirements as to sensuality level, type of characters, plot and setting, and number of pages.

The Harlequin Romance series, for instance, is "Light, entertaining love stories for a romantic escape, with high moral standards and low sensuality. Tender, heart-warming stories with the traditional fantasy of the heroine being swept off her feet by the ideal man. Pages: 192."

The Harlequin Superromance series is "Mainstream quality novels, longer than most series romance, with an involving, complex story ... and a mix of realism and adventure with strong, sympathetic characters. Pages: 304." Sensuality is rated mid-to-high level.

The Harlequin Temptation series is "Passionate novels for today's women. Sensual, mature stories of love that trace the changing nature of relationships between men and women. Pages: 224." Harlequin Temptations ranked high in sensuality.

Marianne Shock of Grosse Pointe Farms said that writers, editors and agents categorize sensuality levels more succinctly. "We say a book is sweet — sensual — or steamy."

Shock has written six romance novels. Category romances (a more accurate label, she said) used to be slavishly written to a complicated formula, a strict and rigid set of guidelines unique to each publishing house. Readers depended on the formula and made their purchases accordingly.

Recently, Shock said, readers have only two expectations when they plunk down their $2 for $2.50 for a romantic novel:

♥ "They want a story about a relationship. The main plot must be between two main characters. Any previous relationship these two characters have had, is flawed — or over.

♥ "And they want a happy ending." That's all.

Julia DeBets of Grosse Pointe Park has written seven romantic novels which have been published under her pseudonym, Maura McGiveny.

"Ten years ago, heroines had to be sensual and virginal," she said. "It's changed now. The hero and heroine can go to bed before they're married and before the end of the book — if it's tastefully done."

According to the publishers of Harlequin and Silhouette novels, 70 percent of their readers are women under age 49 who are high school grads; 45 percent have attended college; 57 percent are married; two-thirds own their own homes; 51 percent work, either part time or full time; 41 percent have an annual household income of $25,000 or more; and 79 percent are currently involved in a relationship with a man.

They're loyal, repeat customers who purchase romance novels at least once a month.

Today, according to Shock, there are almost no taboos for plots and characters.

Heroines may be a bit older than they used to be. They aren't virginal and naive. They may have careers — even non-traditional careers. Savannah Jones, the main character in Shock's novel, "Run Away Home," drives an 18-wheel truck and semitrailer. (She also plays the cello.) Heroines are competent, self-directed, able to take charge of their own lives.

She could feel the violence in him, the taut power of his legs pressed against hers making her traitorous body tremble, and the bruising pressure of his hands in her hair, holding her still, arching her neck up to him.

"You must have loved a man once," he murmured huskily. "Is there any of the passion you must have felt left? Or has all that ice choked out the fire?" His lips brushed the curve of her neck as she arched away from him, tasting the warm creamy skin, feathering along her madly pounding pulse before making his way to her mouth, where he surprised her by gently resting his lips against hers before brushing them back and forth in a caress.

She expected him to be ruthless and demanding. But when he wasn't, somewhere deep inside her an unsuspected sensation flared, trapping her in its gripping spell. Shaking, she found herself clinging to him, her hands mindless curling into the bunching muscles of his back and shoulders. She was stunned by this instinctive response, maddened by its all-enveloping power.

Heroes have changed as well. They've become more communicative, more sensitive.

Sex scenes are more explicit, although they're still restricted to love relationships. And, according to Shock, 20 to 25 percent of the writers of romantic scenes feel committed to some sort of reference to birth control in the sex scenes.

Neither author has any illusions that she's writing Pulitzer Prize-winning prose.

Shock said her writing is not great literature. "I'm an entertainer. My entertainment is on paper. No deep message is being conveyed. It's like a sitcom or a movie. I give people their money's worth. It's $2.50 well spent," she said.

"Romances are escape literature. Readers want to read about two people falling in love."

DeBets said that her novels are not literary masterpieces.

"My books are written for escape and to give people a lift," she said.

"Romance is idealistic love. You need an element of realism, so people believe it could happen. In romantic books, you have to bend events so that things turn out right. They have happy endings. These books are written for escape."

Shock said she is not a romantic person. "I'm a realist and a fatalist. I'm surprised by good things. Romantics, I think, are disappointed and cynical by the time they reach midlife."

Shock said she has always been an avid reader. She began college at Eastern Michigan University in pre-med, but switched to business administration.

"I began reading category romance when I decided I wanted to write and publish."

In the late '70s and early '80s, the only buyers of work by writers without agents, she said, were publishers of romance novels.

Shock's first novel took five weeks to write. "That blank page was intimidating for about 10 minutes," she said. "I ripped through it and surprised myself by making up characters and a story."

"It was rejected. "I wrote another one. It was tougher. It was also rejected, but I got some handwritten suggestions from the editors."

"I sold my third completed manuscript. Then my second one sold. The first one never sold."

Shock is married and is the mother of four teenagers. Her writing routine is rigid, she said. She has a home office with a computer, printer, and two typewriters.

"I'm in my office by 9 or 10 a.m. I don't write for the first hour. I found that my best writing hours are from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. I do rewrites from 2 to 4 p.m."

"Doing the writing is awful," she said. "Exhausting. But it's a wonderful, satisfying feeling at the end of the day, when you've got that scene down."

A romance is not necessarily a good love story, Shock said. "A romance is written from the senses. It relies on colors, smells, touch, sounds."

"A love story is who loves and why. A romance is who loves, why — and how."

DeBets published her first romance, "Duquesa by Default," in 1982.

"I didn't choose to write," DeBets said. "Writing chose me. I started writing romance novels because I liked to read. I'd read — then rewrite in my head. So, I tried to put it on paper. I didn't know what I was doing. I just had a wonderful story to tell."

DeBets is married and is the mother of two boys. She said she's a homebody — quiet, shy, stubborn, a perfectionist, an idealist. "I lead a dull and boring life. I'm a housewife first and foremost. Nothing exciting happens to me. But in my imagination, I travel. I meet interesting people. I live in my imagination."

"I'm not a militant feminist, but I have strong opinions and they show up in my characters."

DeBets' first novel took a year to write. When it was completed, she didn't know what to do with it, so she took a creative writing class through Grosse Pointe Community Education. "In that class, I heard about a book called 'The Writers' Market' and I learned how to type up a manuscript and where to send it."

"It was rejected by Harlequin in Canada. So I fixed it up and sent it a few other places. It was rejected 12 or more times. It took six years to get accepted."

"But after the first one, they couldn't get my work fast enough."

DeBets said she's a slow writer. After her husband goes to work and the kids leave for school, she takes the phone off the hook and writes for four hours a day, five days a week. She works on a word processor and she goes to the Grosse Pointe Public Library to do research for historical backgrounds. "My library card is my most valuable possession." She re-writes a lot.

"I don't think about my audience. I only think about pleasing myself. Harlequin knows who the audience is."

When she reads for pleasure, DeBets prefers romances. The last books she read were Taylor Caldwell's, "A Prologue to Love" and Rosamunde Pilcher's "The Shell Seekers." She's also interested in supernatural phenomena.

Shock said she reads everything but science fiction and big Russian spy novels. "I usually read 10 or 12 books at a time.

The last one I finished was 'Guests of the Emperor,' by Janice Young Brooks, who is a friend of mine.

"I try to stay current in category romances, but I don't want to pick up another writer's style. I read about one romance per month."

Taylor Caldwell is also one of Shock's favorite authors, as is Stephen King and Tom Clancy.

How do DeBets and Shock see themselves 10 years from now?

If they could have their wishes come true, what will they be doing in the year 2000?

DeBets said she'd like to be one of Harlequin's top writers. "People would know my name — but not know me. My books would always be on the shelf."

Shock said she'd like to be writing mainstream or midlist novels. "I'd like to write generational sagas involving industry from 1900 to 1940, to explore how families and history and industry interact."

Shock is currently revising her seventh novel, "What Price Glory?" which will be published in fall, 1990.

DeBets is working on a novel for Harlequin about a diminutive diva. "She's small. But she doesn't let that stop her."

DeBets said she will no longer use a pseudonym. "When I began, I thought that the anonymity would be good. Not so."

Bal Polonais to present debutantes for the first time

Bal Polonais, an annual Michigan Opera Theatre fundraiser which takes the form of a gala dinner dance, will take place on Saturday, Feb. 17, at the Detroit Athletic Club.

The black tie event will support Michigan Opera Theatre's forthcoming Polish opera presentation.

This year, Bal Polonais VII will feature its first Presentation of the Debutantes. The purpose is to present young ladies from the metropolitan Detroit area to society and to provide them with an opportunity to become involved in social and cultural life, according to a spokesman for the Bal Polonais committee.

Mrs. Mitchell I. Kafarski of Bloomfield Hills and Palm Beach, Fla., is chairman and founder of Bal Polonais of Detroit. Along with Kafarski, co-chairmen of the event are Mrs. William E. Johnston of Grosse Pointe and Mrs. Arthur H. Schultz of Birmingham.

Cardinal Edmund Szoka and Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. VanderKloot are honorary chairmen for the benefit.

The evening's entertainment will feature such mood-setting details as: pages in 17th century costumes, colorful banners, trumpeters, knights in armour — even costumed dancers to lead guests in the Grande Polonoise.

Roland L. Olzark of Grosse Pointe will be the master of ceremonies for Bal Polonais VII. His wife, Halina, will be patroness for the debutantes.

Tickets are $125 per person; $175 for patrons; $250 for benefactors.

For more information, call 642-2730 or 822-7085.

Action Auction: Luxurious furs, glittering jewels, cars and fine works of art that will be up for auction were revealed at the Grosse Pointe Academy's Jan. 24 Action Auction Update party.

Kathryn Kaiser and Michelle Taylor, both Grosse Pointers, are Action Auction 1990 co-chairmen. Some of the items which will be auctioned at the May 12 benefit include a gold and diamond cuff bracelet created by Grosse Pointe jeweler Edmund T. Ahee.

The Ahee family also presented each lady at the party with a sterling silver pin in the star shape of the Action Auction 1990 logo.

Honorary chairman Ken Meade has donated a Lexus 250 and a get-away-weekend at a northern Michigan hunting lodge (including dinners flown in from Sparky Herbert's and The Rattlesnake Club).

The annual Action Auction is reportedly America's oldest and most successful independent school auction.

The preview party will take place on Wednesday, May 9. The auction itself will be Saturday, May 12.

Another auction: The Rotary Club of Grosse Pointe will hold an auction party on Saturday, March 3, at 5:30 p.m. at Assumption Cultural Center in St. Clair Shores.

Rotary has served the Grosse Pointes for more than 50 years. Some projects have included the purchase of emergency rescue equipment for public safety departments, hunger and catastrophe relief, scholarship programs, aid for senior citizens and handicapped children, assistance for the Children's Home of Detroit, Center Point Crisis Center, Family Life Education Council, the Substance Abuse Community Council and the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, and more.

The evening's events will include cocktails, dinner, a silent and a live auction. Price is $80 per couple.

Officers of Grosse Pointe Rotary Club are John Brooks, president; Ronald Vitale, first vice president; James Alle, second vice president; Mark Raveschot, secretary; and Mark S. Zmyslowski, treasurer.

Still another: Our Lady Star of the Sea schools have announced their sixth annual auction, "Starstruck '90," to be held March 31, at the Roostertail.

Honorary chairmen are Mr. and Mrs. Edmund T. Ahee. The Ahees have already donated a ladies 14k gold panther link necklace valued at $3,600.

For more information about tickets and reservations, call 881-5110 during school hours.

Action Auction 1990 advertising co-chairmen Pat Brown-Borden, left, and Brooke Tompkins, right, join chairman Kathryn Kaiser, center, at a recent Action Update party, to admire an oil painting by Jan Pawlowski. The artwork will be auctioned at the May 12 fundraiser for Grosse Pointe Academy.

Director: Grosse Pointe Shores resident Barbara Ann Willett has been appointed capital campaign director for the Children's Center, a non-profit, private comprehensive child and family agency in Detroit.

Willett will lead a drive to raise $5.4 million for building renovations and new construction.

The Children's Center's headquarters is in downtown Detroit, near Wayne State University.

The campaign will fund renovation of three service centers and the construction of a new three-story facility as well as the remodeling and expansion of the existing main service center.

Willett was previously employed by the Michigan Society of Architects and has served as president of the Junior League of Detroit and as national director for the Association of Junior Leagues.

The Children's Center, which is supported by government funding and private donations, offers 19 different programs to meet the critical needs of children from infancy to age 17. Included are: screening for children with psychiatric emergencies; counseling for abusive mothers; assistance for children and families coping with chemical dependency problems; pre-natal and post-natal care support; a teen parent educational program; crisis intervention, counseling and legal services for families involved in sexual abuse cases; and a nationally recognized family bereavement program for families whose children have been killed or for children who have witnessed homicides and other violent crimes.

The Center treated more than 4,000 children in 1989.

"There are so many lives riding on the successful outcome of the Children's Center capital campaign drive," Willett said. "Because the need for our services by high-risk youth is increasing each year, we must expand to serve these children... They are the future. That's why I became involved."

Sweethearts: Four Detroiters have been named to receive the prestigious Humanitarians of the Year Awards at the March of Dimes' 18th annual Sweetheart Ball on Saturday, Feb. 17. The benefit will take place at the International Market Place in Greektown.

Detroit Free Press columnist Neal Shine of Grosse Pointe Park will be honored along with Queen of Soul Aretha Franklin, founder and president of Little Caesars Mike Ilitch and retired physician/internist Marjorie Peebles-Meyers.

The March of Dimes has been honoring such noteworthy Detroiters since 1973.

The evening's festivities will begin with a reception at 6:30 p.m.; dinner at 7:30 p.m.; then the awards program; then dancing to the music of Higher Ground. Entertainer Larry Santos will emcee this year's ball.

Tickets are $150 per person and proceeds from the black tie gala will benefit the March of Dimes campaign for healthier babies.

For more information about the Sweetheart Ball, call the March of Dimes office at 432-3200.

NEGC awards: The Northeast Guidance Center board of directors has established special recognition awards noting unique contributions to NEGC, its clients and the people of Michigan.

Awards were presented at the recent annual meeting. Dr. Thomas Coles of Grosse Pointe received the Joe Young Sr. Leadership Award. Coles is a strong advocate for people with mental illness through his leadership of the Alliance for the Mentally Ill — Eastside support group.

The Barbara Wicking Knight

Barbara Ann Willett

Philanthropy Award was named to honor the founder and first president of the Assistance League to the NEGC, Barbara Wicking Knight. The award was presented to the Assistance League in recognition of its 25 years of faithful, creative, generous support through volunteer services, advocacy and fundraising for the center.

Knight, a former Grosse Pointe resident, flew to Grosse Pointe from her home in Florida for the meeting and the awards presentation.

The Eli Z. Rubin Service Award was presented to Ellen J. Cooke of Harper Woods, for her many active volunteer roles at the center.

New officers for the NEGC are: Stanley M. Webb of Detroit, president-elect; Ellen J. Cooke of Harper Woods, vice president; Betty Loeher of Grosse Pointe Woods, treasurer. David F. Crowley of Grosse Pointe Park began his second year of a two-year term as president and Toni Stewart of St. Clair Shores continues her term as secretary.

The Northeast Guidance Center is a non-profit human service agency and has served the community's mental health needs for more than 26 years.

The Pastor's Corner

Living with shadows

By the Rev. Jack L. Mannschreck
Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church

My eyes are turned toward South Africa as the people of that racially divided nation enter a new era. Although the face of apartheid has been altered in recent years, I wonder how deep those changes really are. As the release of Nelson Mandela nears, I wonder if he will emerge as the leader and ultimate savior of black South Africans.

I pray that Mandela will not fall victim to a more subtle form of racial oppression. Mandela is an optimist and most likely will forge ahead with great strength and tenacity. My fear is that he will rise out of prison, get a good look at the shadowed society which imprisoned him for 27 years, and, like the proverbial ground hog, return to seclusion.

On the other side of the apartheid issue are the white Afrikaners who live in luxurious comfort compared to most black South Africans. Apartheid offers the white person certain comfort and safety and leaves no doubt about who is in control. The idea of an integrated democratic government (of a country which is 86 percent black) threatens the average white person living in South Africa.

Many believe that a majority-ruled government (in another word, black) would mean political chaos.

I am not sure that black domination of the South African government means chaos. The future of South Africa is unknown. It is another shadow with which all must learn to live. I hope to learn about justice as events unfold in South Africa. I hope to learn about racism in our world, in our own nation, and in myself.

We citizens of the United States are not in a position to judge either side of the apartheid issue. Apartheid is merely the extreme of an evil that still plagues our nation.

This is not to say that we have not made great strides toward a just society. However, the process is never-ending. I want justice for the people of South Africa — black and white. I want justice for the people of the United States who have learned to live with the shadow of apartheid. We call it racism.

As you might have guessed, I believe that we all live with shadows of one type or another. They make us feel uncomfortable. It is easier to deal with other people's shadows.

Let us not forget our own shadows as we move toward a world of freedom, justice and peace.

The agape meal, or love feast, has roots in the Bible. Early Christians gathered for fellowship with a common meal to celebrate God's love for humankind, according to Grosse Pointe Memorial Church spokeswoman Virginia Main.

"The meal will be simple," Main said, "because the emphasis will be on friendship and nourishment for the mind and spirit."

Rep. Crockett will speak

U.S. Rep. George W. Crockett Jr. will bring the Washington scene to Grosse Pointe when he speaks at an open meeting at 1:30 p.m., on Saturday, Feb. 17, at the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church. The League of Women Voters and the Unitarian Church are sponsoring the meeting.

Crockett, whose constituency includes voters in Grosse Pointe Park and Grosse Pointe City, currently serves on the U.S. House Foreign Affairs Committee, where he heads the Western Hemisphere Affairs subcommittee. He also is on the House Judiciary Committee and the Select Committee on Aging.

Crockett has been a prominent civil rights advocate throughout his career, which spans more than half a century. He has been in the U.S. House since 1980 and served as a Recorder's Court judge in Detroit for 12 years and as a visiting judge of the Michigan Court of Appeals.

The 13th District representative, who is 80, has been on the front line of change since graduating from the University of Michigan School of Law in 1934. He spent four years in private practice before joining the U.S. Labor Department in Washington. He was one of the first hearing examiners selected in the early 40s for President Roosevelt's fledgling Fair Employment Practice Commission and later founded and directed the UAW's Fair Employment Practice Department.

Kay McDonald, co-president of the Grosse Pointe LWV, said that the Crockett meeting will help the league celebrate its 70th national birthday anniversary. Organized shortly after women gained the right to vote, the league's first mission was to educate women on voting issues — a tradition the group carries on today.

Other current national LWV concerns include voter registration reform, campaign reform and the need to educate the public about the threat to democracy posed by declining citizen participation in the governmental process.

Membership in the league is open to all men and women who are 18 or over — anyone interested in joining should call 885-8077.

Bridge

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD THE PASTEBOARD PASTIME

One of the most costly misunderstandings an unaccomplished partnership experiences is the inability of one to recognize the clear call of a slam try after the responder has made a jump forcing bid. In our Standard American bidding system anytime opener shows a new suit following responder's jump (etch in stone) "It Is A Slam Try." Therefore the following examples by south are slam tries.

S	N	S	N	S	N	S	N	S	N	S	N
INT	3C	1S	3S	1S	3H	1H	3S*	1D	2H	1C	3C
3S		4C		4D		4D		2S		3D

*Splinter in support of hearts

In the above sequences south is cooperating with his partner's force and showing:

A good hand and second suit probably headed by an ace or a good hand and first round control.

Conversely these examples show south's reluctance to bid past game.

S	N	S	N	S	N	S	N	S	N	S	N
1NT	3S	1S	3S	1D	3D	1S	3H	1H	2S	1C	2H
3NT		4S		3NT		3S		2NT		3C

Recently I had the pleasure of partnering Ray Jacobstein, one of Oakland County's fine players and such a problem came up. It was our maiden voyage and while we hadn't specifically discussed this sequence his performance was exemplary. Old pros just know book bids and one of Ray's accomplishments is his bidding credibility.

We had agreed to transfer over a no trump through two spades and with a bad hand long suit at the four level. This allowed our three bids to show a good hand, good suit with some slam intentions. While Ray's three diamonds was on the lower edge of our requirement I liked his aggressive style. How else could he possibly show this holding. As you can see he uncovered a gold mine in my hand and I bid it to the spear of the yardarm.

East opened the diamond queen and while the dummy was a thing of beauty Ray had no lay down. Seldom can declarer draw trumps in one play, but this was today's case. You can see the trap! If declarer plays clubs prematurely, in the hope of finding the honors divided he would be relegated to a purgatorial ending. At trick two thru six therefore he played the ace, king of hearts, ruffed a heart and then the king, ace of spades ending in dummy. Now with all of the out cards safely disposed with, it was time to play clubs in the possible event east held both honors. The jack of clubs was allowed to run to east's king, but the defenses subsequent prospects were predictably wistful. A club return meant surrender and a sluff and ruff was equally exasperating submission.

Infertility Research and Treatment

How much help will you need to fill these shoes?

A couple trying to overcome a serious fertility problem has basically two options. Seek help from a small fertility clinic associated with a general hospital (a few of these actually attempt fairly advanced procedures like in vitro fertilization). Or choose the Hutzel Fertility Center. The difference is dramatic. Hutzel's program is medical center- and university-based; encompassing both treatment and research. Unlike general hospitals that mostly apply established technology, a comprehensive clinical and research center like Hutzel actually pioneers and develops new techniques.

Hutzel's century-long leadership in the reproductive sciences includes Michigan's first in vitro fertilization babies, the newest techniques of egg retrieval, and, to date, Michigan's first and only embryo freezing capabilities (which contribute significantly to reducing the risk of multiple births). Hutzel has also pioneered the concept of treating couples rather than individuals. This helps avoid unnecessary delays, expenses and frustration.

Hutzel's extra research and clinical dimension means more hope, every day, for patients with the most complex problems. And, because Hutzel's care costs no more, even couples with less serious problems can afford the extra peace of mind that comes with the Hutzel program.

Infertility programs often require considerable economic and emotional investment by couples. To make the most of that investment, call the Hutzel Fertility Center for more information.

Rice is nutritious, versatile, easy to prepare, tasty

Rice... the world's most versatile food. Rice is easy to prepare, nutritious and is the most important food for two-thirds of the world's population. The significance of this staple grain cannot be overemphasized.

The United States, one of the greatest exporters of rice, is an important grower of this grain. Even though rice has been recognized as the backbone of Asian agriculture and cuisine, today rice is grown on every continent except Antarctica.

Rice is an ancient crop, having been refined and cultivated for more than 5,000 years. Archaeological evidence indicates it was one of the major cereals gathered by prehistoric man. It is thought that rice probably originated in southeast Asia. When the Moors invaded Spain in the early 700s A.D., they brought rice with them. The Spanish took rice to Italy in the 1400s.

Throughout the world, the versatility of rice is reflected in classic recipes: pallela and arroz con pollo of Spain, rystafel of Indonesia, jambalaya and etouffe of the USA, Mexican rice of our southern neighbor, and lemon rice of Greece. The many pilafs of the Middle East and the risottos of Italy constitute still more variations.

Risotto (re-zoh-toe) of Italy is showing up on many menus throughout our country. It is traditionally made with short-grained rice, but converted long-grained rice may be substituted. The short-grained rice cooks up creamy, but retains a crunch. This classic dish is a staple in northern Italian homes and restaurants. Julia Child stated in "From Julia Child's Kitchen," that when you want a real Italian risotto, you buy Italian Arborio rice - thicker, sturdier and chewier than our usual rice.

Julie Dannenbaum, in "Italian Fast and Fresh," said that among the best Italian brands of short-grained rice, which are getting easier and easier to find, are: arborio, superfino, and carnaroli.

Risotto is one of the most loved and delicious dishes of northern Italy. The dish has to be cooked just before serving and timing is essential to its success. The perfect risotto should have a moist, but not watery, consistency, with creamy, yet individualized, separated grains of rice. Practice makes perfect. Risotto is one dish that cannot be made ahead of time, because when reheated the rice will become sticky, dry and overcooked. The principal ingredients are rice, a chicken, fish or meat stock and onions.

A well-flavored risotto is one of the best dishes. It can be

1/2 teaspoon saffron threads (optional)
8 tablespoons butter, softened
2-4 tablespoons freshly grated Parmesan cheese

Bring the stock to a boil and hold at simmer. In a heavy-bottomed casserole, melt 4 tablespoons butter. Add onion and garlic. Cook over medium-high heat for a few minutes until on-3/4 pound asparagus, trimmed, peeled and cut into 2-inch lengths.

1 pound medium shrimp, peeled, deveined and cut in half crosswise

3/4 cup shelled fresh peas or frozen tiny peas, defrosted in a sieve under warm running water.

1 to 2 teaspoons kosher salt
1/2 teaspoon freshly grated Parmesan cheese

Heat butter and oil in a 14" x 11" x 2" dish, uncovered, at 100 percent for 3 minutes. Add scallion whites, celery, parsley, and rice and stir to coat.

Cook, uncovered, at 100 percent for 4 minutes. Stir in broth and cook, uncovered, at 100 percent for 12 minutes. Add asparagus, shrimp, and peas and stir well. Cook, uncovered, for 12 minutes more.

Remove from oven. Stir in salt and pepper. Cover loosely with paper toweling and let stand for 8 or 10 minutes. Uncover, sprinkle with scallion greens and cheese and serve. Serves 6 as a main course, 10 as a first course.

Italians use ambra rice rather than arborio in this recipe, both for its pale golden color and for its lighter, less glutinous consistency, but arborio can be substituted.

Elegant Eating

served as an appetizer or a main course. Some hints that help to prepare this dish for company or family:

- Line up all ingredients on a tray.

- Chop and sautee the onion in advance.

- Keep the broth hot on the back burner of the stove or use a microwave to heat the broth.

- About 15 minutes before the meal is to be served, start cooking the risotto.

- Warm the serving dish.

Rice is important for its nutritional value. It's an excellent source of complex carbohydrates.

Rice is also low in calories. One half-cup serving of cooked rice supplies 82 calories. Also the protein content of rice, while limited, is superior to that provided by other cereal grains. Rice contains only a trace of fat and it is cholesterol-free. It is non-allergenic and gluten-free, and is low in sodium and excellent for diets restrictive in these factors. Rice is wholesome, nutritious food.

Risotto

5 cups, more or less, chicken stock

4 tablespoons butter

1 large onion, chopped

1 garlic clove, chopped

2 cups Italian rice

6 tablespoons dry white wine

Salt and fresh pepper to taste ion is limp. Reduce heat to a simmer and add rice, stirring to coat rice with butter.

Add wine. Raise heat and cook, stirring, until wine is absorbed. Add salt and pepper.

Dissolve saffron in a bit of stock and add.

Start adding stock, a ladleful at a time. Stir with a wooden spatula to keep rice from sticking. When the stock is absorbed, add another ladleful. Continue adding stock gradually until the rice is cooked. It should have a creamy consistency, but the rice should have a bite to it. The rice mixture should not be dry like a pilaf.

Remove pan from heat and add the softened butter and Parmesan cheese. Stir in gently and serve immediately. Serves 6.

Shrimp and spring vegetable risotto (microwave)

3 tablespoons unsalted butter

3 tablespoons fruity olive oil

1/2 cup chopped scallion (white part only)

2 celery stalks, peeled and chopped

1/2 cup (packed) chopped flat-leaf parsley

2 cups ambra rice

4 cups fish stock, clam broth, chicken broth or canned chicken broth

Spring tonic suggestions

Visit flower shows, plant herbs indoors, order seed catalogs

By Ellen Probert
Special Writer

Our Victorian forefathers firmly believed in spring tonics to combat the tired, run-down feeling that they associated with the gray days of late winter and the dreary weeks before the beginning of spring.

Magazines and newspapers of the time were full of ads for patent tonics with names like: Dr. Able's Miracle Discovery or The Old Indian Spring Reviver. There was a little truth to the run-down feeling people complained of, because limitations of winter diets often resulted in deficiencies.

When early spring "greens" became available, people did actually feel better.

Now, everyone knows how vital vegetables, greens and fruits are to our nutritional well being. The Victorians were really on the right track when they looked for spring tonics and the first greens.

The Romans understood a great deal about nutrition and every Roman citizen was compelled to eat salads and greens. Many prominent families of old Rome even seem to have derived their names from association with vegetable-eating laws or their enforcement. Fabius comes from Faba, a bean; and Cicero derives from Cicer, a kind of pea.

Beans were popular as a staple food. Alexander the Great brought white beans from India and set a fashion of bean salad in Macedonia, Greece and Rome which has lasted until now. Peas were as popular as they are today.

Garlic is a cultivated plant of such antiquity that its origin is unknown. Cabbage was deified by the Egyptians and onions and leeks were held in high esteem all over the ancient world. Many superstitions have centered around leeks. Charlemagne, for instance, ordered them planted on housetops to guard against fires, lightning and sorcery.

Though its beginnings are uncertain, lettuce has known a long period of cultivation. Botanists say it was developed from wild lettuce, the compass plant. Aristoxenus, in the 5th century B.C., grew garden lettuce so proudly that he had it watered with honey and wine. Lettuce was prized as a medicine, too - another instance where its vitamin content was useful.

Radishes came from central Asia and were known in ancient Egypt, but for some reason they did not reach England until 1588. Cucumbers are mentioned in the Bible. Carrots, mentioned in writings as early as 500 B.C., became fashionable as hair adornments during the reign of James I in England.

Probably the French were the first to improve on the ancient Roman idea of salads by mixing herbs into them and adding other ingredients to the point that finally, in 1500, a complete salad bowl contained 35 ingredients.

Many kinds of herbs and greens can be grown on sunny windowsills as houseplants in the winter, making them available to add to salads at a moment's notice. Pretty and decorative plants can easily be grown by sprouting carrot tops, sweet potatoes or rutabaga in pretty containers. These all create vines or ferns to bring a springtime look to wintery days.

A wonderful preview of spring will bring the tropical beauty and color of orchids to the Detroit Garden Center this month on Feb. 10 and 11, when an orchid display, sale and workshop will be featured. The Moross House on Jefferson Avenue will be the showcase for many colors and varieties of these lovely blooms as Mr. and Mrs. Ron Ciesinski bring their varied collection.

Ongoing workshops in orchid culture will be a feature and there will be a chance to win an orchid plant. For more information, call the Garden Center, at 259-6363.

The Grosse Pointe Garden Center, located in the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, is turning its back on the frozen lake and beginning to plan for this year's Trial Gardens which are an annual decorative feature of the community. They attract thousands of visitors.

New spring seed catalogs are beginning to arrive at the Garden Center, and the number of requests for garden reference books in the center's library has begun its annual pre-spring upward swing. A new slate of officers and trustees is enthusiastically looking forward to garden-planting days.

This is true in Garden Centers and Garden Clubs in other cities too. In Pittsburgh, plans are under way for a conference on natural resources and the global environment which will be held April 5 at Pittsburgh's Westin William Penn Hotel.

This conference, which it is hoped will serve as the model for community involvement nationwide, will be called Step One. The Allegheny Garden Club, founded in 1914, is the sponsor of the conference. If you'd like to know more, call Mary Navarro at 412-642-2221.

The Winter Flower Show at the Anna Scripps Whitcomb Conservatory on Belle Isle is in full bloom and may serve as another escape from mid-winter gloom. An hour or a day spent in the warm fragrant galleries there is a total contrast to the ice and snow outside. The show began in mid-January and will continue until just before Easter.

Nothing can say "I Love You" like fresh, beautiful flowers!

South swimmers make big splash in victory over North

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

Should the Grosse Pointe South swim team be ranked No. 2 in the state?

Grosse Pointe North certainly thinks so.

"I think they just intimidate our kids," Norsemen coach Les Roddis said after his team was tanked, 115-59, Feb. 3 at North. "South is a legitimate contender for the state Class A title because it is a deep and strong team."

South is 7-0 and North is 6-2. South showed why it's deserving of the No. 2 ranking by taking first place in all events.

"I didn't expect it to be a lopsided win for us," said South coach Fred Michalik. "I think the difference in the meet was our number two and three guys. They really swam well against North, but they're going to have to come up big again against teams like Huron and Pioneer."

Michalik, whose team hasn't lost a dual meet in three seasons, was pleased with the victory, but didn't try to pad the lineup to run up the score.

"I don't like a score like that," he said. "We tried some different combinations because we needed to know where we're at this late in the season, and I'm not so sure I like where we are."

The biggest surprise, according to Michalik, came in the 100 freestyle, where Chris Nelson (53:30), Brenn Schoenherr and Norman Rice took the top three spots.

"I was very surprised because there are two sophomores and one freshman (Schoenherr) in the group," Michalik said. "It was a nice surprise."

It was, however, no surprise that South's Ted Stedem, who owns the state's top time in the 100 breaststroke, took first in the 100 breaststroke (1:01.67), first in the 200 individual medley (2:05.59), and swam a leg on the winning 200 medley relay team (1:42.8). That team also included Craig Winger, Andy Walter and Chris Nelson.

"The North-South meet is always a big one even though you know it might not be close," said Stedem. "It's definitely our biggest psych-up meet of the season. It's always nice to beat North."

meet, but the only one who has dropped his time is Andy Walter."

Steve Swan took third for North in the 100 backstroke, while Peter Ellison and Eric DeMeulemeester took third in the 200 individual medley and 100 breaststroke, respectively. Charlie Roddis was second in the 100 butterfly for the Norsemen.

In diving, South's Ken MacLean took first place with 280.45 points, just four points shy of Chris Jackson's school record set in 1975-76.

"Ken was outstanding," said Michalik. "He was on in every dive and I was really pulling for him to break that record. He's worked extremely hard."

So is the entire North team. "We are working hard," Roddis said, "but it doesn't seem to show. I believe we're winning because of our depth, but we really don't have the great swimmer who can lead the team and take us one step further."

The closest swimmer is Perez. "Victor is our sparkplug," Roddis said, "but our nucleus is in our sophomore class. We just need to get those guys more experience."

'It would have been a closer and better meet if we had as much talent as South does.'

Victor Perez
North swimmer

"It would have been a closer and better meet if we had as much talent as South does," said North swimmer Victor Perez, who took second in the 200 free (1:54.95) and third in the 500 free (5:08.76). "South is awfully strong."

Other first-place finishers for South were Tim Jogan (200 and 500 freestyle), Walter (50 freestyle, 100 butterfly) and Winger (100 backstroke). Winger, Tip Quilter, Jogan and Bellanca also teamed up to win the 400-free relay.

"I think our top swimmers could have had a better day," said Michalik. "We're not swimming against others who can really push our top guys and that hurts us because we can't just swim with mediocrity and then turn on the heat. We need to be consistent."

"I want to be faster now than we were a year ago at the state

A doormat no longer

One year ago it wasn't difficult to find where the Grosse Pointe South hockey team stood in the standings - look to the bottom.

This year, it's difficult to find the Devils if you look in the same vicinity because they are settled in at second place.

From last place to first place one season later.

With only five seniors in the lineup, it is a true surprise that South has an 11-3-2 overall record, and a 6-1-1 mark in the Michigan Metro league. Some may credit the turnaround to a weaker schedule, some may even say that South has been lucky. I think South, a very disciplined and organized team, plays well together and deserves to be ranked in the Class A's top 10.

South's only league loss, a 5-2 decision, came at Southgate Anderson, the No. 1 ranked team that hadn't lost in some 35 tries before losing 1-0 to Trenton. The tie came at Brother Rice, another top 10 team.

Coach Tim Zimmerman won't disagree that his team has played a weaker schedule than previous years, but when a young team needs to mature, playing weaker teams is the right decision.

One year ago South finished 1-9-3 in the league. Now with only five league games to play, it is assured of no worse than a .500 season; not bad for a team labeled a preseason doormat.

"It's been our attitude," Zimmerman said. "This season the kids have done everything asked of them and spirits have been up. The early season attitude started with the coaches and just traveled through the team."

South has shut out two of its last three opponents, including a 6-0 win over Pioneer Jan. 31, but now the true test of mettle begins.

With games against Catholic Central, Trenton, Anderson, North, a team South already beat 3-1, and Gabriel Richard - all at home - South could undoubtedly finish with five straight league losses. Even if that happens the Blue Devils will finish with 24 points, eight more than last season.

Already, the team has met two goals: Win one more game than last year, and get 23 points. Now, the Devils, captained by Mike Kiskalt, Chris Paul and Peter Bourke, want 29 points. It's not impossible, but is highly improbable.

This is the time of season the team begins to peter out. Tired skaters, fatigued goalies and frustrated practices. Zimmerman has cancelled all Monday afternoon workouts because his team is dragging its wagon, but so are the other teams in the league.

South won't contend for the league title because Southgate Anderson proves too strong to knock off, but South can proudly and decisively say that second place in the Michigan Metro East is a league championship in itself.

Now is the time for South to prove that 11 wins is no fluke. An easier schedule has helped it regain some respect, but if it can muster two or three wins down the stretch, it could be the sleeper team in the regional playoffs at Wyandotte's Yack Arena Feb. 26.

South's Jim Bellanca gets off the blocks in the 100 backstroke. Bellanca also swam on the winning 400-freestyle relay team.

Victor Perez, North's top swimmer this season, if up and off in the 400-freestyle relay against South. Perez took second in the 200 freestyle and third in the 500 freestyle for the Norsemen.

After a five-game winning streak put the South boys' basketball team in the driver's seat to win the Eastern Michigan League title, one quick loss to Port Huron Northern has now forced South to ride in the back seat.

The Blue Devils, 9-5 overall, fell to 5-2 in league play, after losing to the Huskies, 70-62, Jan. 30. Both league losses have come to Port Huron Northern, which has only one league loss (6-1).

"This makes things much more difficult for us now," said Devils' coach George Petrouleas. "We were controlling our own destiny, but now we've got to look for help from some other teams, that's the difficult part. We're forced to win every game from here on out and can't afford another loss."

South has four league games left.

"We're certainly not out of contention," said Petrouleas. "Port Huron (which South has beaten once) and Port Huron Northern are in the driver's seat. We just have to get out of being a back-seat driver."

South got 19 points from Tim Gramling and 18 from Rob Khoenle. Brian Letscher added eight points and Durmon Coates

Northern too Husky for South basketball, volleyball teams

(8) and Joe Caldwell (5) combined for 13 points Coates also had 12 rebounds.

"In the Northern game, we showed signs of greatness," Petrouleas said. "But we also showed signs of mediocrity."

South, which trailed 38-27 at the half, shot 40 percent from the floor and 71 percent from the line. Northern, which shot 80 percent in the first quarter, shot 56 percent on the night.

"We shut them down in the latter part of the game," Petrouleas said, "but we were playing catch-up basketball. We dug ourselves a hole and fought to get out of it and put ourselves in position to win it, but we couldn't grasp it."

South cut Northern's two 17-point leads in the third quarter to eight and 12 points, but still trailed 56-44 at the end of three quarters.

To start the fourth quarter, South got seven quick points on baskets from Caldwell and Letscher and two Gramling free throws to cut the gap to 56-51. But South failed to convert on its next two possessions and Northern bounced back to a 60-53 lead with 3:33 to play.

"We missed some key baskets and some crucial one-and-one free throws when it was nitty-gritty time," Petrouleas said. "Plus, Northern hit eight straight free throws down the stretch."

Gramling's hoop cut Northern's lead to 62-58 with 2:36 to play, but again, South failed to convert on two straight possessions. Northern then stepped to the free-throw line to ice the game.

"There were a few times we scrambled defensively, but we weren't consistent," Petrouleas said. "Then we were forced to pressure the ball — and did — but we stopped scoring. We were inconsistent at both ends."

Volleyball

Since Jan. 11, after losing to Port Huron Northern, the South volleyball team enjoyed a five-game winning streak; until Jan. 30, when it lost at Northern.

South, 5-2 in the league, is two games behind Northern.

"We were playing for the league championship and the girls just didn't play," said Devils' coach Cindy Sharpe. "I don't know what it was, but it certainly wasn't inspired play. We just never played our game."

South lost, 15-2, 15-11. Jenny Kalmink and Tina Higel highlighted the dismal performance with five kills each.

Three days later, South got back to winning, beating Henry Ford II, 15-4, 16-14. That win carried the team into the Wayne State Invitational, where it finished second.

At home against Henry Ford,

South got 10 service points from both Katie Kolp and Laurie Thomas, and got a combined 12 kills from Emilie Ayrault, Kalmink and Higel.

"It was a great weekend," Sharpe said. "The girls really played well and did everything they had to to beat good teams at the tournament."

South beat St. Alphonsus, Divine Child, and East Detroit to get out of pool play, and quickly beat Oak Park, and Fraser in the quarter- and semifinal games, respectively.

However, in the finals, the Lady Devils were beaten, 15-8, 15-10, by Chippewa Valley.

Higel finished the afternoon with 35 kills and Kalmink had 25. Ayrault had 17 ace services and Kolp was perfect on 90 assists.

South is 17-5 overall.

Hockey

Goalie Kevin Nesler stopped 24 shots and recorded his second shutout in three games as the Blue Devils routed Ann Arbor Pioneer, 6-0.

South, 11-3-2 overall, moved its second-place record to 6-1-1 in the Michigan Metro East league.

Brian Crane led the way with two goals, one short-handed, and John Morreale (short-handed), Ray Roxas, John Olmsted and Peter Bourke all notched solo goals.

Lisa Christensen takes the bronze

Ryan Jahnke competes in Minnesota

Ryan Jahnke, who's been skating under the direction of Grosse Pointe's Diana Ronayne-Wetzel since 1987, had an outstanding week of figure skating at the Midwestern Championships in Minnesota in mid-January.

Jahnke finished second in the Figures Competition and 11th in the Free Skating Competition at the Midwestern Championships.

Jahnke, an honor-roll student at Brownell, has placed third in the Figures and fifth in the Free Style competition in the Juvenile Men's Division during the 1988 regional championships. He's also placed first in Figures at the 1989 regionals, and also was sixth in Free Style.

During the Midwestern Championships, Jahnke overcame a knee injury to compete against 17 boys at the Intermediate Men's level. There is no Intermediate Men's division at the naional championships, so Jahnke is looking forward to next year when he can compete at the Novice Men's level.

Ronayne-Wetzel, who has been a figure skating coach for 20 years, also had Dan Hollander of Huntington Woods place at the Midwestern competition.

Hollander finished third overall in the Junior Men's division, and placed eighth in Figures, fourth in Original Program and second in Free Skating against nine other competitors. His third-place finish qualified him for the National Championships in Salt Lake City, Utah this month.

Ronayne-Wetzel, a Park resident, has been coaching figure skating out of Fraser Ice Arena for eight years. She is master rated by the Professional Figure Skating Guild.

Dan Hollander, who is coached by the Park's Diana Ronayne-Wetzel, will be skating in the National Figure Skating Championships this month in Utah.

Beltz leads Norsemen hockey team to split

Bob Beltz has recorded two hat tricks in two consecutive games to put the Norsemen hockey team back on track.

Grosse Pointe North hockey team.

In his last two games, Beltz has scored six goals and assisted several times. His contagious play has rubbed off, as the Norsemen beat Port Huron Northern, 6-3, but lost to No. 2 ranked Trenton, 5-3.

Despite the loss to Trenton, the only team to beat top-ranked Southgate Anderson (1-0) in three years, the Norsemen stand 8-8 overall.

In the league, the Norsemen are 2-7.

"We may have lost to Trenton on the scoreboard," said North coach Mike Manzella, "but we beat them everywhere else. We outplayed them and outshot them, but in the end we just got a little tired."

North was up 1-0 on one of Beltz's three goals, but was deadlocked at 2-2 at the end of two periods.

North peppered Trenton's goalie with 24 shots.

"We had our chances, but we didn't convert when we had to," Manzella said. "This loss definitely proved to these kids, however, that they can play with Trenton."

Senior goaltender Matt Krieg, who picked up the win against Port Huron Northern, stopped 17 shots. The fifth Trenton goal was an empty-netter.

"Krieg was hot," said Manzella. "He made some point-blank saves and really came up big for us."

So did Beltz, who scored his second hat trick in as many games, and his fourth of the season.

"Bobby has really picked up his intensity and I think that's really carried over to the rest of the team," Manzella said. "He's really come to play the last few weeks and I think he's put this team in the right direction."

Even though North lost to Trenton, it could have had at least a tie because two goals were disallowed.

"Even though we lost, I was very pleased with how the team responded," Manzella said. "We had a fantastic game because everyone worked together and played well at both ends."

North has struggled all season, for one reason or another, but Manzella feels last week's 1-1 record really proved something.

"We're back on track," he said. "The harmony of this team is alive and everyone seems to be happy. I think we're getting a little frustrated over losing, but we're definitely back to playing Norsemen hockey."

Basketball

After getting guards Tim Sacka and Jason Serwa back from injuries, the North basketball team has been making a remarkable comeback.

After losing seven of its first eight games, the Norsemen have now won five straight, including a non-league win over Woods-Tower and a league victory at Romeo (71-55) last week.

Brian Sheehy led North with 16 points and nine rebounds, and John Kesman, playing his first game since transferring, had 15 points. Charlie Stumb and Lou D'Angelo combined for 23 points.

Wrestling

At the Macomb Area Conference Meet, North came up with a second-place finish after all nine of its wrestlers advanced to at least fourth place.

North was led by All-MAC champions Dan Collins, Bryan Fleming, Keith Giannico and Reid O'Brien.

Third-place finishers were Ade Alli and Neil Stellingwerf, and Gary Godawa and Chris Irving finished fourth.

Detroit Boat Club high school rowers took delivery of one of their three restored boats at the DBC. Although they can't put the shells in the water — just yet — DBC oarsmen and oarswomen are meeting daily to condition themselves for the rowing season this spring.

Milton paces Knights

For the fourth consecutive year, the University Liggett School boys' basketball team has ruled the state of Ohio.

Behind Kandia Milton's Most Valuable Player weekend, the Knights beat Wellington, 106-46, and Maumee High School, 67-51, to win the Maumee Invitational.

"Our guys played extremely hard," said ULS coach Chuck Wright. "Kevin Crociata had a magnificent defensive game against Maumee. Kevin Whitfield was a terror on the boards and on the press, and DeDan Milton simply played excellent basketball."

But, the player who stuck out the most was Kandia Milton. Milton, who was joined by Tarik Lester on the All-Tournament team, led the scoring parade over Wellington with 19 points to go with 14 rebounds. Whitfield added 17 points and five assists and Brent McMahon collected 13. Eddie Merriman had 10 points for ULS.

In the championship game, in which ULS confused Maumee with its defense, Lester had 21 points and seven assists.

"Maumee could never establish a rhythm against our defense," said assistant coach John Bandos. "That was a major key to the game."

Kandia Milton had his second straight double-double, scoring 13 points and grabbing 12 rebounds. DeDan Milton had 12 points and McMahon had 11.

The Knights are 10-2 overall.

Volleyball

It was not a fun week for the ULS volleyball team.

On Jan. 29, the Lady Knights fell to Our Lady Star of the Sea, 16-14, 15-7, 15-12.

"The team had been playing very well up to that point, but there didn't seem to be anyone playing their game that evening," said Coach Ann Belloli.

One day later, ULS came back to life in its first league match against Oakland Christian, but it still wasn't enough as it fell in three straight matches.

"Natasha Levy (setter) played the best game of her career. It seemed that she could do no wrong," said Belloli.

Girls hockey

In a challenging week, the ULS Lady Knights lost two and tied once.

The Knights fell to Capital, 7-1, lost to Trenton, 4-1, but tied Livonia, 2-2.

ULS trailed 2-0 to Livonia, but came back with third-period goals from freshmen Beth Mozena and Danielle McCarron to get the tie.

Snow Birds hit slopes with parents

The Snow Birds Ski Club continued its annual winter fun in the snow with Parents' Day.

Many parents ventured onto the slopes and watched their children earn patches.

Several beginners got their white patches. They include, David Easlick, Betsy Ramsey, Julia and Drew Meretsky and Chris Sigouin. Those completing the linked turns and getting green patches were Scott Brown-Borden, Dorrie Ray and Alexander Heinen. The sliding maneuvers necessary to attain the yellow patch were successfully completed by Chris Brown-Borden, Alexia Watson, Amanda Hanley, Christoph Heinen and Anne Marie Spaulding.

Graduating to good intermediate and the all-area lift ticket status were Tara Holvick, Jackie Rogers, Matthew Shirilla, Lauren Simmons, Brian Goldstein, David Scott Linn, Courtney Lytle and Jay Lytle.

Becoming a parallel skier is every skier's goal and last week, the red patch went to Katie Blake, Dayna Borbeau, Katie Perry, Sara Post, Allison Ridder, Mark Conrad, Andrea Dundas, Nicole Norris, Brendan Thomas and Keri Vandermale.

Lauren Kordas worked with the instructors during their clinic session in her first step toward the silver pin.

The Snow Bunnies group, under the supervision of Katie Stroble and Dayle Dettlinger, put in a full day of learning and progress. Seven-year-old Kristen Perry earned her all-area blue patch. April Schafer received her green, and Kristina Spaulding, Lisa Blake and Betsy Ray all earned their white.

The torment of anorexia nervosa and bulimia

Karen Carpenter died of the diseases. Cathy Rigby and Susan Dey fought them and recovered. What are anorexia nervosa and bulimia?

Anorexia nervosa is a disorder in which a young woman looks in the mirror and sees herself as fat even when she isn't. Her fear of obesity is so great that she may eat nothing all day or just a portion of cottage cheese or soup or salad, and may persist to the point of death.

In addition, she may work off anything she does eat with self-induced vomiting, laxative abuse and/or excessive ritualistic exercise. She may be the 5-foot-8-inch girl, weighing 69 pounds, who jogs 10 miles in subzero weather.

Bulimia is a related disorder in which a patient binges on large quantities of food — a whole cake, a carton of ice cream. She then compensates for the food intake by self-induced vomiting, laxative abuse and excessive exercise. In so doing, she may actually maintain a normal weight so her disease may remain carefully hidden even to close friends and family. The menstrual cycle is disrupted or absent and may be the first symptom.

Who becomes anorexic or bulimic?

Both are 10 times more common in women than men, but they can occur in men. It occurs predominantly, but not exclusively, between 15 and 30 years of age, striking young people in the prime of their lives. It occurs predominantly in middle and upper class Caucasian women.

The incidence may be as high as one in 100 in women of the appropriate age group in a Grosse Pointe-type community. It occurs in achievement-oriented, perfectionist young people who would otherwise lead very productive lives. However, their lives become centered around their anorexic/bulimic behavior to the exclusion of all else.

Typically, they are good students and model children until the disorder appears. Yes, your perfect child could become a victim.

Athletes, dancers and models are particularly susceptible to these afflictions. You may say you eat too much to ever become anorexic. This is not true. Patients may start a diet in response to a valid need to lose weight, but then the diet gets out of control and controls them. It is like an addiction.

Patients cannot just be told they have to eat. Although characteristically very intelligent individuals, their addiction is so strong that it overcomes all else. The denial is like that of an addict. Patients must often be forced into treatment because of the resulting physical consequences or loss of career, education and perhaps family and friends.

The tooth decay, heart irregularities, bone fractures and other consequences may be the symptoms for which patients seek help. However, a patient's failure to respond to such pressures does not mean that he or she doesn't care about the relationship, but it reflects the addictive nature of the disorders.

Typically, a patient may battle anorexia nervosa for five years despite the threatened loss of children and/or marriage. For example, a hospitalized 15-year-old anorexic patient was so malnourished that she had an electrolyte imbalance resulting in cardiac arrhythmia. She knew she could have a heart attack as a result. In fact, when restricted to bed rest and being fed intravenously, she was found bicycling in bed to work off the calories.

Patients may well recognize the disease in others who are 20-30 pounds heavier, but deny it themselves. They may wear baggy clothes to hide their emaciated appearance, but simultaneously take great pride in their ribs showing.

Obviously there are intermediate stages as the disease progresses.

But if untreated, it will proceed even to the point of death.

Malnutrition damages many organ systems and can even compromise the ability to think clearly in otherwise very intelligent young people. Electrolyte imbalances may result, which can produce a heart attack. Immune function is compromised and one becomes more susceptible to many illnesses. Bones become fragile and one's body becomes like that of someone many years older. Acid from the self-induced vomiting etches the teeth and causes premature decay.

The self-induced vomiting and laxative abuse can cause ruptures and ulcers in the gastrointestinal tract and hemorrhage.

Both anorexia nervosa and bulimia are lethal diseases.

The persistence of this behavior indicates that these disorders must be biologically driven. Patients are fighting a tug-of-war between the biological drive of the disorder and their intelligent caring selves.

Research going on at Harper Hospital by me and Elliot D. Luby, chief of psychiatry) proposes that it is a biological addiction. There are compounds that are naturally occurring in the brain that act like heroin or morphine. These compounds are released during an initial period of dieting and make the patient unwittingly "high" on dieting. Dieting does not trigger an addiction in most of us.

However, a biological predisposition may exist in some individuals due to underlying differences in their naturally occurring heroin-like system.

Drugs that block the action of these compounds may help interrupt the biological addiction. This must be in combination with psychotherapy rather than as a substitute for it.

Controlled clinical trials for both anorexia nervosa and bulimia on an outpatient basis are currently under way at Harper. Patients need professional help to learn to manage their addiction and their special biology. The feeling that they can do so on their own is not realistic even in the strongest individuals.

It is really part of the denial of an addiction. Like patients with diabetes, they need to learn to manage a diet, stress and lifestyle in a way compatible with their biology.

As with diabetes, patients do not need to reinvent the wheel, but can seek help from experts who know the repertoire that has worked for others. An outstanding strength of character must be marshalled by patients to conquer this challenge and lead full, productive lives.

In seeking treatment, it is important that patients select a professional group specifically expert in eating disorders, since this is a subspecialty unto itself.

This article was written by Dr. Mary Ann Marazzi, a Grosse Pointe resident, who is the director of the research program on eating disorders at Harper Hospital.

Your body's response to food

As a diet counselor working with people over the past 8 1/2 years to help them understand and control their eating, it has become apparent how significant the body's response to certain foods affects weight control.

The foods we eat affect the blood glucose level, which in turn affects the amount of insulin secreted from the pancreas. Fluctuations in the insulin level may result in adverse reactions in the body, such as hunger, depression and irritability.

In order to control these fluctuating blood sugar levels, you must first learn to monitor what and when you eat.

The main factor in maintaining a stable blood glucose level is the type of carbohydrates consumed. There are two types of carbohydrates, simple and complex.

Simple carbohydrates are the refined sugars found in baked goods, processed cereals, soft drinks, etc. They are easily digested and converted to glucose, making it available to the body for energy. Complex carbohydrates are those foods that are left in their most natural states, such as fresh fruits and vegetables, whole grains found in cereals you cook yourself and whole grain breads. Complex carbohydrates take longer for your body to break down and longer to be converted into glucose.

Dr. Judith Rodin, a researcher on obesity at Yale University, has conducted studies on how different types of sugar (carbohydrate) affect insulin response and food consumption. When comparing the ingestion of the natural fructose (the sugar found in fruits) and glucose (used in preparing foods and also the end product of carbohydrate metabolism), she found they had different effects on raising the blood sugar level.

Fructose (we're referring to natural fructose, not the chemically produced kind) produces a much slower and more moderate rise in both the blood sugar level and insulin. Your body, which is the original food processor, is able to release the energy you require in a steady and equal pace.

Glucose, on the other hand, causes a rapid rise in the blood glucose level, and the body produces more insulin to move glu-lose from the blood to the cells. As a result, blood glucose drops quickly while the insulin level remains high for two to three hours.

Rodin's study also found that people who consumed a dessert containing refined sugar at lunch, ate 500 calories more than those choosing fruit as a lunch dessert. The people consuming the refined sugar had a rapid rise in blood glucose and insulin levels, triggering a hunger response when the levels fell.

What does this tell us? By keeping the blood glucose level and insulin levels stable, the storage of fat as well as the consumption of calories can be controlled, and in turn you control your weight.

I have had plenty of experience with dieters who tell me: "If I see or smell food, I gain weight." The dieter may have just licked the spoon while baking and knows that this could not possibly make him gain weight. Yet, Rodin's research may be a new link to why some dieters do not lose weight very easily.

After studying the insulin connection, Rodin realized how dramatically the mind can affect a body's physical hunger. She calls these people "hyper-responders." They are literally hyped by the sight, smell and thought of food. Insulin can be released as a response to their body's "thinking" they ate a certain food.

There is also new research that continues to study the effects of artificial sweeteners on the body. In some people, like the "hyper-responders," the message to the body when artificial sweeteners are ingested is the same as if they had taken in refined sugars.

In both of these cases, we can see how sensitive some of us are to certain foods consumed and to food suggestion.

To help you control your blood sugar and insulin response, you must have a good understanding of how quickly the foods you are consuming can cause a rise in the blood glucose level. Refined sugars cause the sharpest rise in blood glucose levels, taking only 15-20 minutes to enter the bloodstream, and then cause a sudden drop in blood glucose.

Fruits, vegetables and whole grains take one to two hours to be absorbed, causing a moderate increase in the blood glucose level. Now, compare these times with the absorption of other nutrients. Protein foods take four to six hours to absorb into the bloodstream with a moderate increase in blood glucose. Fat causes only a slight rise in blood glucose and at six to eight hours, it takes the longest for absorption.

The fiber and water content in the diet can also affect the rate of rise in blood sugar. High fiber foods are digested slowly and inhibit a sharp rise in the blood glucose level. Thus, eating carbohydrates in their most natural forms results in a longer time for the blood glucose level to rise than when they are consumed in over-processed and refined products.

With this knowledge of the blood sugar theory, you will be better equipped to understand your particular body and how it responds to the foods you eat.

Never too old

Winter joggers should take care

Jogging during winter can help a person remain healthy, but may also cause serious medical problems if proper clothing is not worn, AAA Michigan reports.

"Lightweight, multi-layered jogging togs should be worn for better insulation, rather than a single bulky covering that can cause excessive perspiration, which might freeze on the skin," said Michael D. Daubemier, general manager for Auto Club Life Insurance Company. "With the right clothing, you might feel a slight chill when starting out. But soon you'll warm up gradually, without heavy sweating."

The American Running and Fitness Association (ARFA), a non-profit research group, recommends wearing a wind-resistant running suit over polypropylene underwear. Polypropylene absorbs sweat, while cotton or wool gear allows sweat to freeze on the skin, which can lead to frostbite. At zero degrees Fahrenheit, frostbite can occur in 15 to 30 minutes. If you feel a cold, painful tingle, head for shelter immediately.

Polypropylene hats and masks protect the head and face. In extremely cold weather, cover your nose and mouth with a scarf so frigid air does not go directly into the lungs.

While insulating the skin protects against frostbite, runners should also take steps to prevent hypothermia — when the body's core temperature goes below normal.

Symptoms include constant yawning, loss of coordination and frequent stumbling. Runners should seek immediate shelter if these occur. Hypothermia can lead to serious illness or death.

AAA Michigan recommends:

- Check with your doctor before starting a strenuous exercise program. Beginners should run indoors.

- Do stretching exercises before starting out to help prevent pulled or strained muscles.

- Start slowly, then gradually increase your pace.

- Watch for ice patches, especially under snow.

- Wear reflective clothing if running at dusk or in darkness.

- Whenever possible, run on established paths away from traffic.

- Make sure you can see and hear traffic at all times.

Pump up on aerobics, iron

Super Shape, Inc. is introducing its new "Aerobics and Iron" fitness class geared to the athlete who wants to go one step further.

This class has a challenging format, using one of the studio rooms in combination with Super Shape's strength training facility.

"This class is for athletes looking for a different challenge coupled with some diversity in their workout," says Grosse Pointe's Kathleen Koerner, owner and director. "We are simply giving the male population what they have been searching for."

The class is offered on Saturdays, from 11 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. Although the class is geared toward the male fitness enthusiast, women are welcome. Reservations are required. Call 772-9470 for more information.

The Missing LINC
LINC is a non-profit organization whose purpose is to place goods no longer needed by individuals and businesses into the hands of metropolitan Detroit charitable agencies. If you have any items no longer of use to you, Operation LINC knows who can and will use them. Please call LINC at 882-6100.
Help make a positive change for others during these dog days of winter. Glance through the following items and see if you might be able to donate any and help to spread some cheer.
DRAPES!! do it. If you have some bright clean curtains, Detroit Area Agency on Aging knows who needs them. Think how your old drapes could provide a needed change for someone.
A fresh coat of PAINT always breathes new life into old, familiar surroundings. Children's Center and Core City Neighborhood Inc. have asked for paint. Items also needed by these and other organizations are PAINT BRUSHES, LUMBER, and other BUILDING and REPAIR MATERIAL.
How about some pretty SHEETS or BATH TOWELS for the folks at New Life Home for Recovering Alcoholic Women. If you have some just "hanging" around, get them over to LINC; it would be a great way to show you care.
"There's nothing to do!" is a familiar cry this time of the year. Our member agencies could use GAMES, TOYS and CRAFT SUPPLIES to help keep idle hands busy. And if you have been having bouts of cabin fever LINC might have a cure. Think about becoming a LINC VOLUNTEER. Call LINC between 10-2 for more information. WE NEED YOU.
