Shores snow shoveling case going to trial

The Grosse Pointe Shores man cited for shoveling snow into the street in December will go to trial, but probably not until April.

Theodore W. Bogel, 46, pleaded innocent on the misdemeanor charge at his arraignment Jan. 8 before Shores Municipal Judge Vincent Brennan.

On Dec. 27, Bogel was ticketed for throwing snow into the street after several warnings from a public safety officer. Depositing snow in a roadway is against Shores village ordinances, as well as the ordinances of most other cities.

If convicted of the offense, Bogel faces a maximum sentence of 90 days in jail and a $500 fine.

Dutch elm disease expert dies

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

Dr. Gerald N. Lanier, the upstate New York entomologist who advised Grosse Pointe Park in setting up a Dutch elm disease program, died Feb. 4 after a bout with pancreatic cancer.

Lanier, 52, was professor of entomology at State University of New York's College of Environmental Science and Forestry. His knowledge of the bark beetle, which spreads the devastating Dutch elm disease fungus, was recognized throughout the world.

Through the efforts of the Grosse Pointe Park City Council and Beautification Commission, Lanier's expertise was brought to the Pointes and put to use.

Al Mazur, the Park Beautification Commission's Dutch elm disease expert, said Lanier was brought to the city in 1986. After an inspection of the Park and the other Pointes, Lanier presented the Park with a written plan to battle the disease that kills hundreds of elms a year in the Pointes.

Mazur said Lanier introduced four methods: 1) intense inspection, 2) surgical pruning to save diseased trees, 3) cacodylic injections to kill trees that are too far gone and, in the process, attract bark beetles and destroy their eggs, and 4) trenching to prevent root grafting from spreading the disease.

In 1986, the Park lost 109 elms. The number of lost elms the following year fell to 66, and in 1988, only 47 elms were lost. In 1989, the number of destroyed trees climbed to 80 or 90, but Mazur said the higher number was due to the weakened conditions caused by the 1988 drought.

Clearly, the decline in destroyed elms in the Park alone reflects Lanier's contribution to the community.

"We feel he has shown us the way to preserve our elms," said Mazur, who has been fighting to save elms since 1980. "Whenever he (Lanier) was here, he worked from dawn to dusk. Every time we met, I learned something new about elm trees. We intend to carry out the program Dr. Lanier has started."

Mazur said that not only have Lanier's methods saved elms in the Park, but saving the elms has proved less costly than the ineffective spraying process used before Lanier's methods were adopted.

Nancy Pilorget, former Beautification Commission chairwoman, said Lanier's efforts brought great awareness of the Dutch elm disease problem to all the communities. She said he introduced innovative therapies and was never satisfied with past treatment practices.

She said Lanier became a close personal friend. He stayed at the Pilorgets' home while visiting the Park. They had common professional interests because the Pilorgets own their own landscaping company.

Pilorget said Lanier knew the Park intimately and walked the complete city twice a year while he was a paid consultant for the city. On several occasions, residents called police to report a trespasser, only to learn it was the good doctor inspecting their elms. After a while, residents got to know him so well that they offered him a glass of water when they saw him on his tree inspection tours, Pilorget said.

She said a Beautification Commission committee was looking for alternatives to the Park's then-ineffective spraying program to combat Dutch elm disease. The committee's research led to Lanier, who was persuaded to visit Grosse Pointe Park. Afterward, he was hired by the City Council as a consultant.

While the Park benefited the most by Lanier's visits and knowledge, other Grosse Pointes, including the Woods which already had a Dutch elm disease program in place, were able to use some of Lanier's ideas.

Jean Rice, chairwoman of the Grosse Pointe Shade Tree Council, said that some of Lanier's ideas — such as immediate girdling of diseased elms — are being used today.

"When he was here, he was most generous with his knowledge to all of us," said Rice, who is also a member of the Woods City Council.

"He was one of the recognized experts in the country on the disease," she said.

Lanier was an expert in the management and growth of American elms, and his methods of mass trapping of the bark beetle were used nationwide, as well as in the Scandinavian countries.

Born in Colorado, Lanier grew up near San Francisco. He earned a bachelor's degree in forestry and a master's and doctorate degrees in entomology from the University of California at Berkeley.

Park's Jerry Abbs awarded state plaque

Jerry Abbs, one of Grosse Pointe Park's most enthusiastic advocates of tree planting, was recognized recently for his years of work.

Through an anonymous nomination, Abbs received a Small Michigan Plaque from the Keep Michigan Beautiful Committee. Abbs said five fellow members of the Beautification Commission accompanied him to an award banquet in Ann Arbor.

He said he has been active in work with trees for 30 years. He has helped in getting some 2,000 trees planted in Grosse Pointe Park.

MADD in court

On Wednesday, Feb. 21, from 10 a.m. to noon, MADD-Wayne County will hold Session I of court monitoring training.

It will be held at the Livonia Public Library on Five Mile Road just East of Farmington Road in Livonia. This will be an introductory session on the courts and laws with present court monitors speaking.

On Wednesday, Feb. 28, volunteers will meet at the Grosse Pointe Farms Municipal Court to observe the court in session, meet with Judge Matthew Rumora and attorney James McKenna and a Grosse Pointe police officer.

MADD's presence in courtrooms may make a difference in how cases may be handled. The group needs residents to help make this difference. Call 422-MADD for information and registration.

Woods tightens control on retail signs and awnings

By Dan Jarvis
Staff Writer

The Woods council approved an updated ordinance Feb. 5 regulating retail signs in the city.

The council unanimously approved an ordinance regulating size, design and illumination of all signs in the city.

City attorney George Catlin said the council was asked by the city's planning commission to update the existing ordinance regulating signage.

"They (the planning commission) felt they needed direction from the council to try and maintain the early American and colonial motifs in the Woods," Catlin said.

"The new sign ordinance will require the use of early American or colonial lettering, subdued lighting and a minimum of exterior signage on buildings," he added.

The ordinance requires businesses with signs already in place to conform to several regulations including the prohibition of signs that flash, blink or rotate.

According to the ordinance, all signs to be erected require a permit from the Division of Safety Inspections. If the signs are electrified in any way, an electrical permit will be required as well.

Signs that do not require a permit are temporary signs advertising a sale or rental of the property as long as they do not exceed 10 square feet in size.

Signs for a political candidate, garage sale or real estate also do not require a permit.

Lighted signs have to be "subdued," and the ordinance requires specific electrical outputs not to exceed 30 milliamps and 120 volts.

Window signs, whether electrical or not, cannot exceed 20 percent of the window area.

Signs featuring human facial expressions will require special permission from the planning commission. Permission will only be granted if the likenesses are consistent with the city's colonial motif.

Also limited by ordinance are the number of words or symbols (message units) used on the premises. The total number of message units allowed (including all signs) is 10. This means signs can contain no more than 10 words or symbols. Words or prices cannot contain more than seven letters or numbers each.

Excluded in the "message units" section are gasoline price signs, theater marquees, signs on vending machines or gas pumps and signs containing non-commercial messages designating rest rooms, telephones, traffic control or parking areas.

Also excluded from the ordinance are memorial markers, signs on schools or churches, historical plaques, street addresses or telephone numbers.

Included in the sign ordinance is a section regulating the installation of flagpoles. No flagpoles will be permitted between the sidewalk and curb line of Mack Avenue. If a flagpole is free-standing, it cannot be installed within 20 feet of any adjoining property line.

Flags other than the United States, state of Michigan, the county or city will be considered advertising signs and the number of message units will be included in the maximum number per premises.

Clarified in the sign ordinance is a section guiding the installation of awnings and canopies.

Canopies and awnings must be made of cloth, canvas or vinyl and may not be covered with metal or hard plastic materials. They must be colored in earth tones, as determined by the city.

Arched, barrel or striped awnings will not be permitted unless otherwise approved by the planning commission.

Catlin said the purpose of the Mack Avenue businesses. Personally, I like the variety in store fronts and signage when I'm searching for a particular business."

Hartmann, a 13-year investor and financial manager, said she is concerned with the long-term picture for Mack Avenue and that any restrictions on retail signs will force businesses to relocate.

"We need to encourage viable businesses, not discourage them," Hartmann wrote. "Will standardized signs, or even a colonial motif, increase business traffic and sales and resulting net income for Mack Avenue businesses? Or will the requirements in the ordinance simply increase the expense of doing business and result in lower net income?"

Hartmann suggested the city work with a developer to increase traffic and sales along Mack so that merchants can increase their profits.

The ordinance provides that any person who has been refused a sign permit may file a claim of appeal with the council along with a check for $75 payable to the Woods General Fund. Upon receipt, the council will establish a hearing date where a variance to the ordinance may be granted.

ordinance is not only to regulate signs, but to act as an anti-blight measure as well.

"I think the ordinance is an improvement," Catlin said. "Mack is not bad, but there are a few places with stickers all over the windows. They (the store owners) won't be able to do that in the future."

Woods Mayor George Freeman said he has not seen much opposition to the new ordinance. "I feel it will be for the betterment of the city," Freeman said.

"If we find it is too rigid, we will revise it. We are not trying to be too rigid; we are trying to protect the interests of business people in our community," he added.

But at least one Pointe resident, Pamela J. Hartmann, feels that any ordinance limiting businesses or their signs will discourage new businesses from locating in the city.

In a letter to the council regarding the sign ordinance, Hartmann said, "As a Grosse Pointe resident and shopper along Mack Avenue, I strongly object to a city ordinance that would restrict the appearance of

After residents' objections resolved, Park council rejects variance request

Assistant Editor

If home builder J. Barker left the Grosse Pointe Park meeting somewhat bewildered Monday night, it's understandable.

Barker came before the City Council seeking a rear-yard setback variance so that he can build a 2,200-square-foot, $300,000 home on a vacant lot he owns on Cadieux at Jefferson.

In order to build the size of house he would like and to have it face Cadieux instead of Jefferson, Barker needed the variance.

Four Jefferson and Cadieux homeowners spoke in opposition to the variance because they believed the lot was too small and not compatible with the large lots and big houses existing in the area. The residents preferred no house built on the lot.

Mayor Palmer Heenan said a hardship had to be present for the council to grant a variance, and he asked Barker's architect, Jeffrey Graham, what the hardship was. He said the hardship was that the lot was too small for the house the builder wanted to build.

It was pointed out, however, that the lot is buildable for a much smaller house facing Jefferson. Councilman Daniel Clark explained to those opposed to the variance that they had a choice: Either accept the variance and have a bigger, perhaps nicer, house or settle for the smaller house which the builder has a right to build and the city cannot oppose.

Clark and Heenan told Graham and Barker that if the residents were in favor of the variance, then the council would be more inclined to have a liberal view of what constitutes a hardship. Heenan urged the residents to get together with the builder and his representatives and work out an agreement.

The two factions agreed to the meeting and recessed to the mayor's office to discuss the matter.

When the two parties returned, three of the four homeowners withdrew their opposition to the variance. The three residents who changed their minds said they did so reluctantly because they felt the smaller house the builder had the right to build would be worse than the one he proposed with a variance.

After the residents withdrew their opposition, Clark moved to approve the variance request, and Councilwoman Barbara Leonard Miller seconded the motion. The motion to approve the variance, however, failed by a 4-3 vote. Those voting against the variance were council members David Gaskin, Valerie Moran, Vernon Ausherman and Mayor Heenan.

Earlier in the meeting, Gaskin said he was opposed to the variance because he did not believe a hardship existed since the lot is buildable as is.

Heenan, however, did not give a reason for his no vote — particularly after the two sides, at his urging, had reached agreement. He could not be reached for comment Tuesday morning.

The new wrought iron gates at Grosse Pointe Farms Pier Park were destroyed by a Farms man who took the park guard's car, in the background, and smashed through them from inside the park.

Man drives through Pier Park gates

A 20-year-old Grosse Pointe Farms man smashed through the new wrought iron gates at Pier Park last week after taking the park guard's car.

Police would not release the name of the man pending psychiatric evaluation at Cottage Hospital. He could be charged with car theft, felonious assault and fleeing and eluding a law enforcement officer.

According to police reports, Pier Park guard Tony Itria arrived for work at about 7:45 a.m. Feb. 9 and found the 20-year-old in the park. He questioned the man, who in turn made threatening statements, according to police reports. Itria then pulled his car up outside the park's gatehouse and went inside to call police.

While the guard was inside, the Farms man jumped into Itria's 1982 Chevrolet Cavalier, which still had the keys in the ignition. The man started the car and took off. Itria said the man circled the parking lot and then smashed through the closed iron gates at the foot of Moross.

"It was a good thing I wasn't standing in the way," said Itria, who was on duty at the park Friday afternoon after getting his car back from Official Towing.

Although the car was driveable, the front end was smashed, the front left quarter panel was caved in, the hood was sprung and the windshield cracked.

After the man crashed through the park's gates, he hit a car at Jefferson and continued west on Moross, where a Farms police officer began chasing him.

He then turned north on Mack and continued until he rammed into the rear of a Grosse Pointe Woods police car at Stanhope, according to police reports.

He was then arrested and taken to Cottage Hospital, where he was kept for evaluation.

School board, superintendent bid fond farewells

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Dr. John Whritner attended his last school board meeting as superintendent of Grosse Pointe schools on Monday.

In an address to the board, he urged them to stay on the course he began charting with them five years ago when he came to the district and not to lose sight of what the schools are all about — the kids.

Whritner touched on many of the district's successes and problem areas and touted his successor, Ed Shine.

Whritner came to the Pointes in April 1985 after an effort to close some schools had divided the community and lowered staff morale.

"What I see as the biggest accomplishment during these past five years has been a complete change in the governing process," Whritner said. "This was very definitely a top-down system. No one can call it that today as decision-making has gravitated to the spot closest to the classroom."

Today, teachers and parents have a larger say not only in board policy, through their work on committees which report to the board, but also in how money is spent on their students, through the site budgeting process.

The district has moved ahead with a number of major projects including a new library building, a possible overhaul of the middle school program, on-site budgeting, strategic planning, development of a high school program to meet the needs of the students of the next century and upgrading substance abuse curriculum and hiring substance abuse counselors, and installation of an active staff development office.

"When I arrived the concern

was that there was no involvement," he told the board. "Today it is that there is too much going on and not enough time to meet all committee demands."

The public perception of the schools has also changed, he said.

"Another thing I feel good about is that people on staff and in the community generally feel good about the system," he said. "They see us talking about our lighthouse status and also doing many things to earn that reputation."

But it wasn't all roses, he said, calling Central Library and the board offices at 389 St. Clair "major embarrassments" to the system.

Much of the last three years was spent on creating a plan for a new library that the community could support. A plan for renovation and expansion of the current Central Library was defeated once by voters.

A new plan, which includes a new building on the grounds of Brownell Middle School and selling the property at 389 St. Clair and moving the board offices to the current Central Library will go before the voters perhaps as early as this June or February 1991.

"I can only wish that we had gotten further down the road in solving the library issue during my tenure," he said. "It has been my greased pig. However, it does seem to finally be moving toward resolution and just in time. It is a size 12 foot being squeezed into a size 7 shoe. It cannot handle today's demands for service let alone tomorrow's wonderful possibilities. It is also on the brink of needing major renovation work which must be done, new library or not."

He called 389 St. Clair an "antiquated ark (which) was built in 1906 and hasn't seen too much in the way of improvement since." Because that building serves as a first impression for many parents enrolling their students, or potential staff members coming to be interviewed, he said it needs to be replaced.

He called for the board to continue looking for ways to help the 10 to 15 percent of Grosse Pointe students who do not go on to college, and for the coordination of recommendations presented to the board by various committees.

Whritner urged the community, although the problem is not exclusive to the Grosse Pointes, to band together to fight alcohol use by minors.

"(There) is a lack of willingness for the larger community to step forward and to say that alcohol is a major problem for our youth," he said. "The schools do as much as they can. Until it is recognized as a problem and supported on a larger scale by the full community, the problem will be with us and unfortunately will grow."

He also praised his successor, current Deputy Superintendent Ed Shine.

"During his brief tenure in Grosse Pointe, no one has made me look better than has Ed Shine. He has the personal and professional skills necessary to maintain and enhance everything that has gone on plus creating many new initiatives on his own," Whritner said.

When Whritner arrived in 1985, he quoted from "The Velveteen Rabbit," a favorite story of his. The children's tale chronicles the quest by a stuffed rabbit to become real. One only becomes real, the rabbit is told, when he is loved. He ended his tenure with many of the same words.

"In our five-year journey toward becoming real we have seen our hair being loved off, our eyes dropping out and our bodies getting loose in the joints and very shabby," he said. "However, that hasn't mattered because we have known that once we become real we can't be ugly, except to people who don't understand. Also, once we are real, we can't become unreal again. It lasts for always."

"Thank you for our opportunity to become real together, and for always."

The address was greeted with a standing ovation by board trustees and community members who attended the meeting Monday.

The board is hosting a farewell reception for Whritner and his wife, Kay, from 4 to 6 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 22, in Cleminson Hall at Grosse Pointe South High School, 11 Grosse Pointe Boulevard.

Whritner was given a framed drawing consisting of individual drawings done by students.

He also received a resolution from the board which read, in part, "with deep gratitude and warm affection for teaching us all the true meaning of what is real."

School board praises Whritner's work

The Board of Education Monday presented outgoing Superintendent John Whritner with a resolution praising his work. Trustees praised his leadership over the past five years.

Fred Adams was a member of the board delegation that traveled to East Lyme, Conn., to interview Whritner and the school board there five years ago. He said he doesn't regret the decision.

"As the only remaining delegate of the group that traveled to East Lyme, I want to say that I know we're all mighty proud we brought you to the system," Adams said. "You are a great leader and have always been true blue to the Grosse Pointe system."

Carl D. Anderson praised Whritner and his wife, Kay, as wonderful ambassadors of the school district, and said Whritner had taught the board much about what makes a good school district.

Board President Jon Gandelot told Whritner he has not only been a great superintendent, but a great friend, and added, "The legacy of what you did in this community will live for years and years."

Whritner, whose last day is March 2, is taking the top school position in Greenwich, Conn.

"I don't feel good about leaving and leaving behind the people," Whritner said. "I will carry wonderful memories of Grosse Pointe. It has been a delight."

He praised the staff, the board and the community for their dedication to and support of the schools.

"The kids are in very good hands," he said.

'Bidding war' on school aid called foolish

In the aftermath of the defeat of two tax referenda last November, both political parties are proposing new plans to increase school funding and limit property taxes that we regard as foolish.

We used that description because it appears both the Republican and Democratic plans would indeed limit the state's property tax rates but would benefit the public schools at the expense of other essential services of Michigan government.

In effect, a "bidding war" has broken out to see which party can make the biggest offer of aid to public education as the 1990 election approaches. The aim, of course, is to win the support of teachers, administrators, parents and others in the school lobby not only for the increased school aid but for party nominees for public office as well.

Take, for example, the proposal by L. Brooks Patterson, Patrick Anderson and other Republican conservatives which would shift perhaps $700 million to the support of public schools without proposing any new revenues.

Opinion

The sponsors are distributing petitions seeking a November ballot proposal which would authorize the increase for schools but would rely on a far from guaranteed 10 percent increase in general fund revenues within the next two years to finance their program.

The governor, in his budget, has spelled out a 14 percent increase in school aid funding which would also bring the total to an estimated $700 million. And Senate Majority Leader John Engler, who this week began his campaign for the GOP nomination for governor, came up with an even bigger offer of $765 million in school aid.

But not one of the three proposals suggests any way to finance this increased spending except to rely on continuing growth of the economy and further cuts in other state services, such as social programs.

Patterson's plan also would roll back or cap school property taxes at 30 mills, a limitation similar to the one proposed in a November ballot proposal that was buried by the voters. Such a plan is opposed by Grosse Pointe school district leaders because it would not only limit local spending on local schools, but also enable the state to exercise more control over school spending.

The plan also would put an unwieldy limit on legislative authority by requiring a vote of the people to approve any future tax hikes. This idea would make it difficult for the Legislature, especially in an inflationary period, to raise the necessary funds to run the state.

The governor also has proposed a new form of property tax credit on the state income tax. It would limit any future increases in school homestead assessments to the rise in consumer price levels until the house is sold.

But this is just the governor's way of offering a small cut in property taxes and does nothing to provide any replacement revenue. Like the Republicans, he, too, is relying on what may well be an ephemeral rise in general revenues considering the likelihood of a further economic decline in the state and nation.

In Lansing as well as in Washington, the emphasis is on shifting current revenues to meet new demands instead of seeking new revenues to meet the costs of needed services. In Michigan, education has become a top priority in the 1990 campaign for governor, but what about the state's other needs, such as social services and, more specifically, mental health programs, for example?

What Michigan needs, as we've mentioned from time to time, is a real overhaul of its tax system rather than the attempted Band-Aid remedies that both political parties offer these days. Unfortunately, in a political year it is unlikely any agreement could be achieved even to start a legislative examination of statewide property tax issues, as proposed by Sen. Engler.

To reiterate, we think the bidding for the education vote is not only unseemly and foolish, but unfair to the thousands of Michigan citizens who require other needed state services but are unlikely to get adequate funding for them under pending proposals.

Happy 70th to women voters

The headline on this item recognizes two major events in our national history: the ratification of the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution that gave women the right to vote in national elections in 1920 and the organization of the League of Women Voters in that same year.

Looking backward, we find it almost incomprehensible that women were so long excluded from the right to vote. Even the Founding Fathers, when they wrote about those self-evident truths and our unalienable rights in the Declaration of Independence, limited their application to men.

True, many states, including Michigan, long before 1920 had passed their own amendments authorizing women suffrage, but it wasn't until the 19th Amendment was certified on Aug. 26, 1920, that women were given the right to vote in national elections.

Since its organization in 1920 the League of Women Voters has sought voter education, first for women and now for all voters, under its formal goal of promoting "political responsibility through informed and active participation of citizens in government."

As most of us know, the League of Women Voters of Grosse Pointe, among its many activities, regularly publishes pamphlets listing local government officials, a 154-page booklet titled "Know Your Grosse Pointe," and voters' guides naming candidates and their views distributed at local election forums in the Pointes.

But it also supports and distributes a Wayne County government guidebook put out by the Leagues of the Detroit Metropolitan area, a "Citizen's Handbook" and "The State We're In," a citizen's guide to Michigan state government, as well as other publications of the state league, and publications of the national league, such as "A Nuclear Power Primer."

So happy birthday, both to the league and to all women voters, for their contributions to better government and a better informed citizenry not only in the Pointes and Michigan, but in the entire nation.

The ending of empires

A former U.S. undersecretary of state has raised the interesting question of whether the last decade of the 20th century will see the end of empires as the world has known them.

In view of what has happened in Eastern

Don Q. Kelly

Some critics characterize Sen. John Kelly, whose 1st District includes the Grosse Pointes and part of Detroit, as a kind of modern Don Quixote who often rides off on high-minded crusades that yield more publicity than accomplishment.

We occasionally agree with that assessment, but Kelly surely scored last week when he brought to public attention Mayor Coleman Young's 1970 low opinion of the Detroit utility tax. Now, of course, the mayor wants the tax re-enacted to save his city from being forced to rebate $80 million in improper tax collections.

Twenty years ago, as a state senator himself, Young saw the utility tax proposed by then-Detroit Mayor Roman Gribbs as regressive and unfair, complaining in a Senate speech that it would be "the same as taxing bread or milk or meat, to place the burden on the backs of those least able to pay."

Kelly distributed copies of Young's 1970 statement to emphasize his own opposition to the utility tax as burdensome and unfair. But his sharp lance ought to have raised at least a blister on the mayor's nose, which is unlikely to hurt Kelly's standing with his suburban constituents.

Europe in recent months and what is now apparently happening in the Soviet Union, the question posed by David D. Newsome in the Christian Science Monitor is worth pondering.

Newsome reminds us that after 1999, except for a few French territories, the European empires that dominated the 19th century will belong to history.

"The heritage of empires is mixed," Newsome writes. "The best brought education, health and internal development. The worst brought exploitation that ill prepared peoples for independence."

We know that World War I destroyed the German empire even though Hitler's dream of a new German empire helped bring on World War II. The empires of the Western powers and Russia remained intact until World War II started the final decolonization of the Western powers.

Now we are seeing the possible disintegration of the Soviet Union's empire in Eastern Europe and perhaps even the end of the Russian state itself unless Mikhail Gorbachev can rescue it.

Newsome predicts the technical advances of the 21st century will bring curbs on expansion and adds that the "same intrusive communications that helped the people of Eastern Europe give voice to their demands may also make the world more vigilant to the rise of imperialism."

The 21st century may not necessarily see a new era of world peace in view of long-smoldering ethnic and nationalist rivalries we're seeing in Eastern Europe and elsewhere. But the 20th century seems to be winding down with the triumph of self-termination and the ending of empires.

Channel One

To the Editor:

I hope that you will consider publishing my views concerning the controversy surrounding the use of Channel One in the Grosse Pointe schools.

Education in the U.S.A. has come under close scrutiny recently, partly based on a study by the Educational Testing Service comparing the math and science performances of 13-year-old students from the U.S.A. and 11 other countries. The United States came out on the bottom — not even close to the top group from Korea.

According to Albert Shanker, president of the American Federation of Teachers: "Of great interest is the fact that Korea is the only place that does not rely on classroom lectures and the reading of textbooks alone. Starting there, in 1970, the main thrust has been to develop an instructional system that draws not only on classroom lectures and the reading of textbooks, but also on multiple learning materials and an extensive and very sophisticated set of television and radio programs.

Channel One gives our schools the opportunity to have these technological advances in every classroom, and if used properly by our highly respected teachers, could have a profound effect in teaching our students. The only objection that I have heard is to the two minutes of advertising each day. Even the ads, when properly analyzed and discussed by the class, have redeeming value. Many of our students choose careers in the field of communication and advertising.

How many of our children participate in Little League baseball, hockey, service groups, book fairs — to name only a few activities — and who supports these programs? They all rely on local businesses for financial support and many couldn't exist without this support.

I believe that the benefits to be derived from Channel One far outweigh the advertisements to which all of us are subjected on all sides. Channel One's daily program becomes insignificant when compared to the use of this equipment for the remainder of the school day as an advanced teaching tool and at no cost to the school system.

I will be the first to agree that NOTHING can replace books, the love of reading or the inspiring classroom teacher, but I also believe that these can be supplemented effectively by good educational television programs.

I'm conservative; you're conservative, but neither one of us is driving a horse and buggy today.

Festive

To the Editor:

Our congratulations to the city of Grosse Pointe and the Village merchants for the very attractive Christmas decor displayed along Kercheval this past holiday season. Joy of cooking

My mother gave me a wok for Christmas and now I'm a wok-ing fool.

Never mind that this is not exactly a new method of cooking. To me it's a major, teeth-rattling kind of discovery, sort of like when I reluctantly got a microwave oven because we were redoing the kitchen and the cabinet maker created a spot for one.

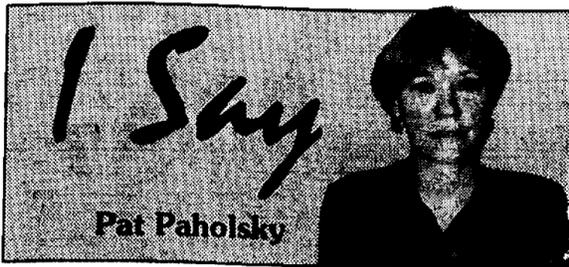

It only took a couple of days for the radiation-producing box to become as much a part of me as my arm or leg.

Now it's wok love. Now on my trips to the market, I linger lovingly over the vegetable counter, getting a little bit of this and a little bit of that. Now when there's leftover chicken, I can recycle it into a better-looking, better-tasting dish than it was in its first appearance on our table.

It feels so good to be creating and experimenting again and that's the rub: I thought those days were gone. Up to the time my first child left home, I had cooked more than 7,000 dinners and the same number of breakfasts and I had packed somewhere around 20,000 lunches.

Then my oldest son went off to the Marines and I went through a major adjustment in my shopping habits. I found I could fit all my groceries for the week in one cart, just like normal people. I could casually push a cart through the aisles instead of pushing one with one hand and pulling another behind me. My firstborn, who is slightly built, used to eat a loaf of bread a day.

And that was just for starters.

Then my daughter got married, and as is normally the case, left home for her own little love nest. Another adjustment. She was hardly a world class eater, but the difference in how much spaghetti to put in the pot was amazing.

Now we are down to one more at home — a full-time student at Wayne with two part-time jobs.

He eats a lot on the run.

And we started eating out a lot. It was such a wonderfully liberating feeling: to have someone else cook the meal and then clean it up. I began cooking less and using more convenience foods and stocking the freezer with instant food.

We meet our friends, going through the same lifestyle changes, at restaurants instead of inviting each other over for dinner. When we do entertain, if there's a group, I generally have it catered.

All of this has been a natural progression in the order of things. I still cook on holidays and Sundays, but that's minor league compared to my Suzy Homemaker days. And it's been so good to discover there is a life without pots and pans. That's what I thought, anyway, before the wok.

Now I'm back in the kitchen a couple times a week — don't want to overdo it — and enjoying it, to my surprise. But then, this is a totally civilized way of cooking.

You spend a half hour or so slicing, dicing, julienning, shredding and whatever else it takes to reduce a variety of vegetables into a colorful pile. This you do while listening to the news on TV and sipping a glass of wine.

Then during a commercial, you quickly stir fry that colorful pile, dish it up and enjoy. Even the clean-up is quick — one pan, everything else in the dishwasher.

A friend told me that if I think a regular wok is wonderful, I should get an electric one, because it's even better. I don't know. I don't like rushing into buying new gadgets. I mean, we still have a rotary dial telephone and clocks with hands and faces instead of flip-top numbers.

And besides that, I don't want to enjoy cooking too much — a little bit is OK — because there is still nothing better than having dinner with your partner and some candlelight and someone else doing the cooking and serving and cleaning.

State dirt

Want to dish some dirt? Not gossip. Not the stuff under your fingernails — or the contents of your vacuum cleaner bag — or the African Violet potting soil that spilled on the basement floor.

Do it right, by using some of Michigan's official stuff.

Like the state bird, the state tree, the state flower and so on, the Michigan Department of Agriculture thinks we need an official state soil.

Evidently, Michiganians are behind the times because Wisconsin, Illinois, Nebraska and Pennsylvania have already named their official state soils.

After a six-year process initiated by the Soil Classifiers Association of Michigan, the Kalkaska soil series has been designated as the State Soil of Michigan in a proposal currently before the House.

"The general public tends to take soil for granted," said Division Director Christine Lietzau of the Michigan Department of Agriculture's Environmental Division. "But soil is more than some abstract thing the farmers use to grow the crops that feed us. It is a resource of amazing balance, complexity, beauty and fragility."

Would you believe — Michigan has more than 400 identifiable soil types, each with its own unique set of properties.

The Kalkaska dirt was nominated as a state soil for several reasons:

- It is a unique, widespread soil found in the upper and lower peninsulas
- It's one of Michigan's oldest established soils. It was identified in 1923.
- It is visually striking, with layers of light and dark reddish-brown sands.

Romance is alive and a-love and living in Pointes

Arvid and Edith Jouppi of Grosse Pointe City are on pages 72, 74 and 78 of the Feb. 20 issue of Family Circle Magazine.

Not only that — they're in full color — and they talk about how they fell in love.

The Jouppis were one of the winning couples in the Ideal American Couple Contest sponsored by Family Circle and American Greetings, a greeting card company.

To enter, the Jouppis wrote essays describing their relationship.

"Romantic Arvid took roses from our yard and wrote 'I love you' with the petals ... on the bed," Edith Jouppi said. "Age is a state of mind. Sometimes I think he's 46 and I'm 71.

The Jouppis have been married two years.

"When my wife of 43 years died, I was positive I'd never love again. Then a miracle — Edith," said Arvid Jouppi.

Abused women

To the Editor:

On Jan. 25, your paper had an article about the problem of abused women in Grosse Pointe. In your article, you had interviews with several battered women who discussed their experiences. Also, statistics show that shelters were filled to capacity and 2,294 women were denied a place to stay.

In my opinion, there should be a lot more assistance for battered women. In our society's eyes, women are supposed to be able to take abuse from their spouse. There needs to be changes in the way we handle physical abuse. We all need to open our minds and our hearts to these women; it's not just their problem anymore. It should be everyone's.

A lot is being done to help these women, but too much is never enough. Law enforcement agencies need to help and support these women as much as possible, because without them this problem may never be resolved. More shelters are also needed, but without funds there can be no more shelters. I think it's about time we all gave a helping hand. By helping these women in need, we are helping ourselves to a healthier society.

Farewell reception

To the Editor:

As this community is well aware, John Whritner's last day as superintendent of the Grosse Pointe schools is March 2. The board of education is most appreciative of the leadership and direction that Dr. Whritner has given us in his five years with us.

When Dr. Whritner began his tenure on April 15, 1985, he confronted an angry, divided community after the closing of Barnes School and a failed board recall election.

Dr. Whritner has restored confidence in the school system. We feel good about ourselves again. He has been the visible leader in the community. Under his direction, we have begun a Curriculum Coordinating Council for curriculum review and update, a staff development program, a new teacher/administrator evaluation model, a strategic plan and site budgeting in all 14 schools.

In recognition of Dr. Whritner, the board of education is having an open house on Thursday, Feb. 22 from 4 to 6 p.m. in Cleminson Hall, South High School. We invite the community to please join us.

Budget process

To the Editor:

Budgypped!
My first experience with the school system's decentralized (i.e., site) budget process was a disappointing one.

At our school's Parent Advisory Committee (PAC) update meeting, I was informed of the history of the process and the innumerable hours spent by the dedicated parents participating on the committee. We were also presented results from a survey on parent/teacher perceptions of school priorities.

We were then presented a formal financial document that demonstrated local control of less than 5 percent of total school expenditures.

The site budgeting process seems to be a mainly centralized process with minimal decision capability given the local school in return for a large amount of effort.

William D. Baiocchi
Grosse Pointe Woods

Superintendent John Whritner responds to the writer:

Mr. Baiocchi has discovered one of the unpleasant truths of school budgeting. There is not a great deal of discretionary flexibility in funding, particularly at the elementary school level.

What he does not say is that the PACs have been given the flexibility of redistributing funds allocated for personnel, by far the biggest chunk of money expended in any school. Willingness to look at different ways of staffing can produce some creative and exciting solutions to budgetary constraints.

We are fortunate in having many staff members and parents participating in the budgetary process. They, like Mr. Baiocchi, have discovered that there are many needs and limited resources — even in Grosse Pointe.

Library project moves forward

The new library building at Brownell Middle School is inching its way forward, with two board of education decisions last week.

The board approved hiring Goodell-Grivas Inc. of Southfield to conduct a traffic study of the area around Brownell, to determine what potential problems a new library would bring to residents of that area. The results should be ready by the end of the month.

The board also approved preliminary paperwork for a bond hearing. No vote date has been set, but the groundwork needs to be laid prior to the board's decision. A vote on a bond issue to fund the $7 million project could be as early as February 1991 or possibly even this June.

On Sunday, more than 100 residents attended a special informational meeting on the library project.

They voiced their concerns regarding the location of the new library and how it would impact playing fields as well as property values. Whritner said that in his discussions with local real estate agents, property values in that area would not decline since there already is a school and a church nearby.

Another informational meeting for residents is scheduled for Thursday, March 8, at 7:30 p.m. at Brownell.

Summer program funding available

Funding is available for tri-county organizations offering constructive summer activities for young people between 6 and 18.

Block clubs, church groups, youth clubs, tenant councils, school advisory councils and service clubs in Wayne, Macomb and Oakland counties must apply for funding by Friday, March 2. Proposed programs should offer a variety of activities, such as recreation, arts and crafts, cultural and educational opportunities.

Administered by United Community Services of Metropolitan Detroit and funded by a special allocation from the United Way for Southeastern Michigan Torch Drive, Special Summer Programs have been offered to neighborhood and community groups since 1965.

Applications for funding are reviewed and approved by volunteers in the community and are available at United Community Services offices in Southfield, Romulus, and Mount Clemens, and at the main office at 1212 Griswold, Detroit. For more information, call Annette Grays at 226-9419.

Gas stations burglarized

Gas stations were burglarized in Grosse Pointe City and Woods last week.

On Feb. 11 at 9:26 p.m., Woods officers responded to an alarm at the Union 76 station on Mack. The officers found a window had been broken out. Once inside, the officers found the station's cash register on the floor. According to the station owner, $88 in bills and change was taken.

In the City, the Mobil station at Fisher and Mack was broken into some time overnight before the burglary was discovered at 5:33 a.m. Feb. 10. Twenty dollars in change was taken.

Railroad tie through window leads to arrest

Responding to a report of a railroad tie thrown through a window, Park police arrested a man suspected of other infractions.

The railroad tie was thrown through the window of a home in the 1300 block of Berkshire at midnight Jan. 28. While police were checking the area, they caught a man in the act of damaging a parked car in the 1100 block of Buckingham. Police believe the man is also responsible for vandalizing a car in the 1200 block of Berkshire.

Help homeless cover-up

Blankets are desperately needed to help the tens of thousands of homeless people in metro Detroit cover up this winter.

Blankets may be dropped off at any of the five Little Caesars Family Fun Pizzerias including: Sylvan Lake, Westland, Warren, Clawson and Southgate through the end of the winter.

Financial donations may be made directly to Detroit Cover-up, P.O. Box 35277, Detroit, Mich. 48235. To volunteer your time, or for further information, call the Homeless Hotline at 851-9027.

NFIC to meet

The National Foundation for Ileitis and Colitis (NFIC) will present an educational meeting Thursday, Feb. 22, at the Bloomfield Hills Library. The meeting, at 7:30 p.m., is free to the public. Ronald D. Holmes, M.D., will speak on the topic of "Children and IBD."

NFIC, a non-profit organization, is dedicated to increasing patient and physician understanding of, and providing education to the public about inflammatory bowel disease, as well as raising funding to promote research. It is the only national voluntary agency devoted to research into the cause and ultimate cure of Crohn's disease (ileitis) and ulcerative colitis, diseases that afflict more than 2 million Americans.

For further information, call 354-6080.

Breathing equipment sought

The American Lung Association of Southeast Michigan has issued a plea for help in serving its breathing-disabled patients.

There are hundreds of people in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties who depend on the association to provide free oxygen delivery systems and machines used to administer breathing treatments to patients with lung cancer, emphysema, asthma and other diseases.

The lung association is able to conduct its equipment loan program through donations of used equipment as well as cash gifts. People may have oxygen concentrators, nebulizers and the like stored in basements and garages who aren't aware that this equipment can be reused by the association.

Call 559-5100 weekdays for more information about the loan program.

Mural

The middle of the three panels at South depicts various images associated with learning.

should sign on it. He settled on 1939-1990.

The right panel, depicting a Roman scribe, was damaged by someone who tried to wash it, Yaeger says. He is repairing it in the way he did the original, with paint he ground himself.

Still going strong, Yaeger is working on a mosaic for a church. That will add to his work hanging in public buildings throughout the Detroit area, including at the Brodhead Naval Armory, the Public Lighting Commission Building, Children's Hospital of Detroit, and the University of Michigan's Men's Union Dormitory, now known as West Quad.

"This is kind of nice," Yaeger said of all the attention he received last week. "It's something different."

The restoration is being done prior to a special program at Grosse Pointe South High at 7 p.m. Monday, March 5, honoring Yaeger and installing a plaque marking the murals. The reception is sponsored by the Mothers' and Dads' clubs at South.

Cabaret to benefit Lake St. Clair Symphony

The Lake St. Clair Symphony Orchestra and First State Bank, East Detroit, will host a cabaret-style Spotlight Benefit Sunday, Feb. 18, at Zuccaro's Country House.

Beginning at 6 p.m. and continuing until midnight, there will be cocktails, dining and dancing, door prizes and a drawing. The orchestra will provide music for your dancing pleasure.

The public is welcome. Tickets are $25 per person and tax-deductible. Advance reservations are required. Proceeds will support the Lake St. Clair Symphony Orchestra.

Zuccaro's Country House is located at 46601 North Gratiot, Mount Clemens. For more information, call 776-1012.

Cinema League

"Alaska," a super 16mm movie, will be presented by Leo Tallieu at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial Monday, Feb. 19, at 8 p.m.

Tallieu drives the Alaska Highway from Dawson Creek, British Columbia, through the beautiful Yukon into our 49th state. From Fairbanks he follows the pipeline north of the Arctic Circle into the Brooks Mountain Range. There is a visit to Denali National Park, Mount McKinley, Anchorage, the Kenai Peninsula and Homer Spit. At Homer Spit we learn about the fishing industry and visit some interesting Russian orthodox churches nearby.

There is plenty of Alaskan wildlife, including caribou, moose, wolf, grizzlies, reindeer, musk ox, sea otters, sea lions, seals and eagles. The adventure culminates in the pristine splendor of Kenai Fjords National Park.

The Cinema League welcomes new members and guests. As of January the dues are reduced to $7.50, which is half of the regular membership fee. Guests will be charged $3 at each program, which will include refreshments at the social hour following the travelogue.

Crockett to speak

U.S. Rep. George W. Crockett Jr., 13th District, will speak at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 17, at Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church on Maumee.

Crockett will address current issues facing Washington. His appearance is being sponsored jointly by the Unitarian church and the Grosse Pointe League of Women Voters.

Crockett represents voters in Grosse Pointe Park, Grosse Pointe City and Detroit. He serves on the House Foreign Affairs Committee where he is chairman of the Western Hemisphere Affairs Subcommittee and is ranking Majority Member of Africa Subcommittee. He is also a member of the Judiciary Committee and the Select Committee on Aging.

The meeting is open to the public. For more information, call 882-7635 or 881-6343.

Bed, breakfast talk

Photographer Joseph P. Messana will speak on bed and breakfast inns and luxury hotels and inns for Grosse Pointe Community Education two Thursdays, Feb. 15 and 22.

The slide show will feature bed and breakfasts in Petoskey, Marshall, Traverse City, Grand Rapids, Holland, Grand Haven, Charlevoix, Saginaw, Saugatuck and Homer.

Hotels include the Grand on Mackinac Island, the Amway Grand in Grand Rapids, the Weston in Detroit, the Ritz-Carlton in Dearborn and inns including the Bavarian Inn Lodge in Frankenmuth and Sylvan Resort in Gaylord.

For information, call 343-2178.

Arlene Lewis and Jane Mende of the War Memorial Council of Sponsors admire Kirk Newman's cast bronze figures, "On the Move," installed at the Michigan Avenue People Mover Station.

Award-winning 'Art in the Stations' film to be shown at War Memorial "Art in the Stations: the Detroit People Mover," a documentary film celebrating the largest public art project in the country, will be shown at the War Memorial on Wednesday, Feb. 21 at 7 p.m.

Filmed over a two-year period

The CINE Golden Eagle

Award-winning film offers first-hand insight into the immensity of the project and the problems encountered as told by the nationally acclaimed artists who were involved.

An original music score accompanies the film, which is narrated by Sam Sachs, director of the Detroit Institute of Arts. Irene Walt, chairperson of the Detroit People Mover Art Commission, who spearheaded the campaign to fund the project, will introduce the film.

The event is a presentation of the War Memorial Council of Sponsors. Chairing are Arlene Lewis and Jane Meade.

Tickets are $10 per person. Coffee and light dessert will be served. Advance ticket purchase recommended. For additional information, call 881-7511.

CCS to exhibit ceramics

The Center for Creative Studies-College of Art and Design will host an exhibition of the late John Foster's ceramics from Friday, Feb. 19, through Saturday, March 31, in the College's Center Galleries at 15 East Kirby in the Cultural Center.

The exhibition will present more than 50 examples of Foster's ceramic art, including low-fire clays and glazes, raku-fired and simple ash-glaze pots, and the high-temperature porcelain, crystalline glazes and stoneware for which he was world-famous. Several photographs by Robert Vigiletti of Foster pottery will also be featured.

An opening reception will be held in the Center Galleries Friday, Feb. 19, from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m. The Center Galleries are open Tuesdays through Fridays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays to 4 p.m. For information, call the Center Galleries at 874-1955.

Kennedy to speak about learning disabled children

MACLD, Michigan Association for Children & Adults with Learning Disabilities, will present a program by Dr. Mary Kennedy on "The L.D. Child Through the Years: Progress from Diagnosis to Young Adulthood," Tuesday, Feb. 20, at 7:30 p.m. at the Central Library.

Kennedy is director of the Foundation for Exceptional Children, a private school in Grosse Pointe which provides early intervention and therapy for young children with a variety of handicaps. She is trained as a special education teacher, with a master's degree in learning disabilities. She recently received her Ph.D. in special education administration. She is also the parent of a learning disabled young adult.

Kennedy will present an overview of her years as a parent with a learning disabled child in the public schools, and the problems and successes facing him in adulthood. She will add to her parental experiences the perspective of a professional who knows of programs and methods which work well with individual children.

MACLD programs are open to the public at no charge. Refreshments will be served.

Symposium on labor, art scheduled at Detroit Institute of Arts

On Saturday, Feb. 24, trade unions will join scholars and artists in a public program on labor patronage of the visual arts organized by the Archives of American Art.

"Roses, Too: Sixty Years of Labor Art Programs" will begin at 9 a.m. in the Detroit Institute of Arts Lecture Hall and will conclude with a reception in the Rivera Court at 4 p.m.

The College of Urban Labor, and Metropolitan Affairs, Wayne State University, and its affiliate, the Walter P. Reuther Library, are co-sponsoring the event along with the Detroit Institute of Arts.

The symposium is free to the public. Space is limited, and reservations are recommended. Admission to the reception is $5 per person. Lunch is available in the Kresge Court Cafe and neighborhood restaurants. For more information, call the Archives at 226-7544.

Symposium presentations based on papers of artists and labor unions in Archives of American Art collections set the historical stage for these issues and for speakers representing a variety of more recent union art projects.

A reception with refreshments will follow in the Rivera Court, where audience and presenters can continue their discussion amid monumental images of workers laboring to the rhythm of the Ford Motor Co. assembly line.

The title of the symposium refers to a slogan from the 1912 textile workers' strike in Lawrence, Mass. Young women mill workers marched with a banner declaring, "We want bread and roses, too." The event was commemorated in a poem by James Oppenheim which includes the lines, "Our lives shall not be sweated from birth until life closes/Hearts starve as well as bodies/Give us bread, but give us roses!"

Enrollment deadline nears

Feb. 16 is the deadline for Michigan's Vietnam War era veterans to be included in the state's first summary of Agent Orange study enrollees.

The enrollees will be sampled for health studies to be used by the Michigan Agent Orange Commission to make recommendations to the Michigan Department of Public Health on the health effects of Agent Orange and other defoliants used during the Vietnam War era.

"I urge all eligible veterans to participate," said State Health Director Raj M. Wiener. "One hundred thousand Michigan Vietnam War era veterans have already enrolled to be potential study participants. Such a large study population gives Michigan a unique opportunity to look at important health problems that may be associated with exposure to Agent Orange."

Mortality, cancer incidence, birth studies and dioxin exposure will be examined during the studies. Veterans can still enroll after Feb. 16, but information on this group will be summarized only in biannual update reports.

To enroll in the Agent Orange study, Michigan's Vietnam War era veterans are urged to obtain a health survey by calling 1-800-MICH-VET.

Camp staff sought

The Camp Department of the Catholic Youth Organization is accepting employment applications for the summer camp season. They are seeking responsible, committed and energetic individuals interested in gaining valuable and rewarding work experience as a camp staff member.

Challenging positions are available for counselors-in-training and counselors, as well as activity specialists in the areas of archery, crafts, outdoor skills and the waterfront. Camp nurse positions are also available.

All openings are paid, residential positions for individuals age 17 and older. Camp staff members have the opportunity to work with children in an outdoor environment while further developing leadership and decision-making skills.

The CYO Camps are located in Port Sanilac, approximately 30 miles north of Port Huron. Dates of employment are June 23 through Aug. 11. Internships are welcome. College credit may be possible. For more information and/or an application, contact the CYO Camp Office, 305 Michigan Avenue, Detroit, 48226 or call 963-7172.

Kitchen design

"Kitchen Design," a single-session class scheduled by the Department of Community Education, will be held at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 22 at Barnes School.

Co-sponsored with Mutschler Kitchens, this is an opportunity for those contemplating a kitchen renovation project to learn the basics of design. The presentation will include the availability of products.

Fee is $6. Call 343-2178 for information.

Talk Monday to focus on services available for handicapped children

By Linn Grossman
Special Writer

Attorney Nicholas Wittner has made it his business to speak up for handicapped kids.

It's not his professional business — he works as an attorney with the General Motors legal staff — but it's his personal business spurred on by having a 4 1/2-year-old son with special needs.

Wittner, of Grosse Pointe Woods, will explain Monday, Feb. 19, what parents of children with special needs should do to ensure that their children receive the educational and related services they are entitled to by law. The meeting is at 7:30 p.m. in Room 3 at Children's Hospital of Michigan.

"The bottom line is that parents must become advocates for their children," Wittner said.

State and federal laws have been in place since the early to mid-'70s to make sure that handicapped children receive a quality education.

"We're privileged to have a first-rate team of professionals in the Grosse Pointe school system," Wittner said.

Yet it's still the responsibility of parents to become actively involved in the educational process for a handicapped child.

"Parents know their children better than any professional ever will," he said. "They know their strengths and weaknesses and they need to communicate that information (to school personnel) to tailor a program that helps develop the maximum potential of their child. The parents and the professionals must work together to set the goals and the ways to achieve this."

Wittner will talk about the process the schools use to evaluate a child's special needs and the Individualized Education Planning Committee (IEPC), a multidisciplinary team of professionals which designs a program of educational and related services to help a child learn.

Parents must be aware of what services their child is entitled to and should participate in the IEPC process to make it work, he said. He suggests talking to medical professionals and therapists before meeting with the committee to learn what services and programs would best benefit the child.

"To do the job right takes a lot of time and effort and understanding," Wittner said.

Learning about special education and the services available to a child can be complicated because there are many legal cases, regulations, statutes and procedures.

Michigan, however, has an enlightened approach to educating the handicapped and has been at the forefront of the movement for many years, Wittner said, pointing out that the state enacted special education laws four years before the federal government did in 1975.

"The legislature's mandate was even more stringent than the federal government," Wittner said. The state requires educational programs and services designed to develop the "maximum potential" of every handicapped person from birth to age 26.

Future topics

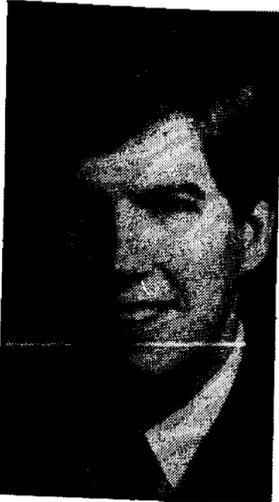

A number of families from the Grosse Pointes are active in the Support for Families of Children with Seizures group which has been meeting monthly at 7:30 p.m. at Children's Hospital of Michigan, 3901 Beaubien. The group offers educational and emotional support for families. The public is welcome to attend.

Some upcoming events include:

- Attorney Nicholas Wittner, of Grosse Pointe Woods, discussing educational services for children with special needs Monday, Feb. 19.

- Dr. Charise Valentine, a pediatric neurologist at Children's Hospital, with information on epilepsy surgery, March 19.

- A CPR class for adults, covering the techniques used on infants and children, 6-10 p.m. April 11. Call 745-5906 or 745-5785 to register.

The meeting Feb. 19 is being hosted by the Support for Families of Children with Seizures group.

More than 40 pre-kindergarten students at University Liggett School invited their fathers to a special evening. After receiving invitations handmade by the children, the fathers arrived for an evening of games, reading, crafts and other special activities planned by the students. Above, Raymond Senopole of Grosse Pointe and his daughter, Sara, enjoy reading together. According to Centie Strong, head of ULS pre-kindergarten, Fathers' Night and Mothers' Night (celebrated in May) are two of the favorite annual events in pre-kindergarten.

Gardening for good cooks

Alex Suzcek will offer a three-part program, "Gardening For Good Cooks (and cooking tips for backyard farmers)" Thursdays, Feb. 15-March 1 at 7:30 p.m.

Suzcek has years of experience successfully growing select produce in his back yard both for his own enjoyment and as an official gardener for a prominent import seed house.

The first program will focus on planning your garden; from analyzing what you have to work with and what you need to do, to selecting which vegetable, herb, and fruit varieties will grow best.

During the second program, Feb. 22, Suzcek will show you how to successfully start seeds indoors. He'll also demonstrate how fresh and home-dried herbs can enhance your cooking and explore effective and convenient ways to prepare, can, freeze or dry your harvest.

Course fee is $25 for three-part series; $10, single sessions for Feb. 15 and 22, and $15 for March 1 only. Advance registration recommended. For more information, call 881-7511.

Adding up

Students at St. Clare Montefalco Catholic School, participating for the first time in the Mathathon program to help St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, made the program an unqualified success by collecting $3,500 in pledges. More than 120 students in kindergarten through eighth grade voluntarily collected pledges, then worked up to 200 math problems in math funbooks designed for their respective grades. Shown here are the students who collected more than $100 each for the cause: from left, Donald Polla and Jim Hedemark, both grade 4; William Pokriefka, grade 2; Tiffany Battle, grade 8; Jessica Marr, grade 4, and Ken Robertson, grade 5.

Local essay winners named

Local winners in the 21st annual America and Me Essay Contest sponsored by Farm Bureau Insurance, were announced this week.

From Our Lady Star of the Sea in Grosse Pointe Woods, students who earned awards are Erin O'Malley, first; Thomas Paquin, second and Elizabeth Bertoni, third.

From St. Paul Catholic School in Grosse Pointe Farms, the winners are Tracy Mack, first, Meighen Henry, second; and Randall Defauw, third.

All received award certificates for their achievement. Each school's first place winner's name will also be engraved on a plaque for permanent display in the school.

The first place essays now advance to the state level competition, from which the top 10 essays in Michigan will be selected. The top 10 statewide winners will be honored at a banquet in Lansing and at a meeting with Michigan's top governmental leaders in late May.

A team of finalist judges that includes Gov. James Blanchard and Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths will determine the top statewide winners.

Several thousand eighth-grade students from almost 500 Michigan schools participated in the contest, which was conducted with the help of Farm Bureau Insurance agents across the state.

The topic of the 1989-90 contest was "America And Me — How We Will Work Together."

Star to present

'Women of Luke'

Our Lady Star of the Sea High School will present Roberta Nobleman in "Women of Luke" on March 6 at 11 a.m.

Nobleman's solo theater, inspired by her memorization of the 24 chapters in the book of Luke, brings to life the stories of women in the gospel through storytelling, mime, masks, puppetry, props and audience participation.

An English-born actress, Nobleman has spent her adult life in the theater as a dramatist, teacher and storyteller. She has also taught drama at colleges and universities in the United States and Canada.

Donations of $5 for the event are requested. For more information, call 881-5110.

ULS performers earn top ratings

University Liggett School upper school students were recently honored for their performances at local music and drama competitions.

On Jan. 27, juniors Yohana Suczek and Julie Muz won superior ratings for acting in the MIAF Theatre Competition at Grosse Pointe North High School.

Suczek performed "Twirler" and Muz acted the scene "Snake Handler." Both are vignettes from the upper school's fall production, "In the Limelight."

The cast and crew of that production also earned praise from the MIAF judges, who termed their work "sensitive and insightful."

On Feb. 3 at the Oakland University Music Festival, seniors Brooke Hohmeyer and Andrea Graham received first division ratings for their performances. Freshman Jennifer Lewis and the Jazz Choir received second division ratings.

Learn to accessorize

Learn to accessorize your basic wardrobe using color analysis in a new Community Education class, "Wardrobing and Accessorizing," taught by Patricia Torok.

Scheduled for 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 27 at Barnes School, Torok will, among other activities, teach at least a dozen ways to tie several scarves.

Fee is $6. Call 343-2178 for information.

Latin scholars defend title

A team of Latin students from University Liggett School did not let a defense of a Ludi-Detroitenses championship get them down, as they won their second straight quiz bowl championship at the annual Detroit Games.

At Sacred Heart Academy in Bloomfield Hills Feb. 3, the team of senior Chris Frederickson of Grosse Pointe, junior Brian Blatt of Grosse Pointe, and sophomores Paula-Rose Stark of Detroit, and Arthur Sandel of Mount Clemens, successfully defended the school's title of champion in the areas of Latin grammar, etymology, mythology, Roman history and sociology and Latin literature.

Second place went to the University of Detroit High School and third, to Grosse Pointe South. The games were sponsored by the Detroit Classical Association. ULS students were accompanied by teachers Helen Fildew and Elizabeth Hastie.

Starry night

South students win in journalism contest

Twenty students from around the state, including Grosse Pointe South High School students Sunny Swarthout and Katherine Zachary, have won honors in the annual high school writing contest sponsored by Michigan Press Women.

Swarthout's entry, "A Bust... Police crack down on drugs," was tops in the news division.

Katherine Zachary won in the features division with "Tattoos: Art in the Flesh."

Designed to encourage student writers and promote journalism as a career choice, the competition was judged Feb. 3 at Michigan State University.

More than 300 entries were received this year from students representing 47 schools, according to the contest director.

ULS to host middle school visitors

On Friday, Feb. 23, University Liggett School will host a Middle School Visitor's Day at the school's Briarcliff Drive campus in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Students in fifth- through seventh-grades are invited to attend classes, meet students and teachers, and find out more information about special programs such as Proud Lake, the archaeological dig and the rock quarry expedition.

For details, call the admissions office at 884-4444.

Mother Goose and puppets

Kindergarteners in Pat Moore's class at the Giving Tree Montessori School were recently treated to a "puppet day" presented by Monica McNamee, a teacher and puppeteer from Ithaca, N.Y.

McNamee put on several skits, using her relatively simple sets and encouraging audience participation. Through these skits, she brought to life songs, fables and stories that everyone knows; stories like "The Lion and the Mouse," "I Know an Old Lady Who Swallowed a Fly," and "Little Miss Muffet."

McNamee, who makes most of her puppets and costumes, gave the children an opportunity to make their own puppets with simple materials and lots of imagination.

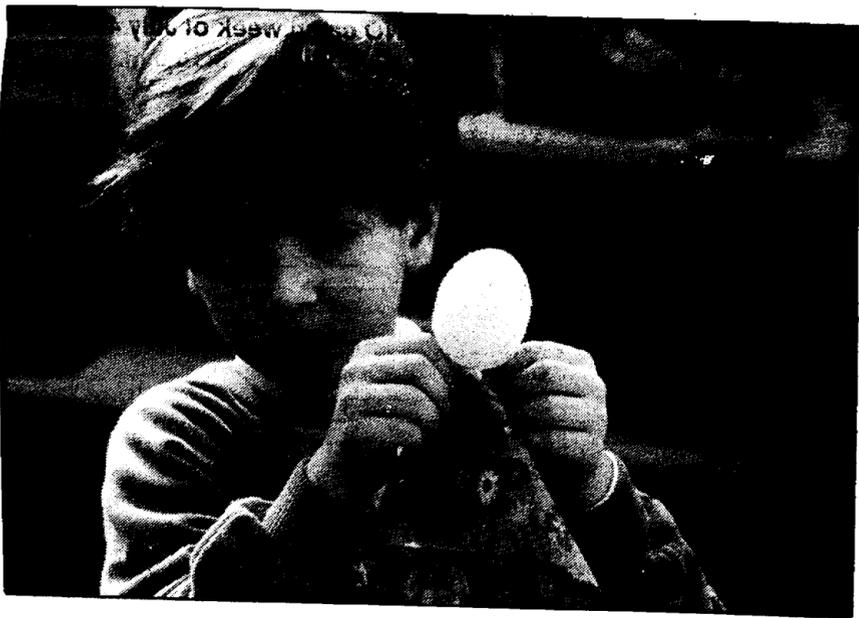

The lion (played by Monica McNamee) wonders aloud what a little mouse (the puppet, handled by Cattie Quinn of Detroit) could do to help the King of the Beasts.

Anthony Casanova of Detroit holds the spider for puppeteer McNamee as part of "I Know an Old Lady Who Swallowed a Fly."

doctors who diagnosed Cooper's gall bladder problem played on a Pioneer Furniture-sponsored Little League team.)

On the first day his doctor let him out of the house after the gall bladder operation, Cooper went to North, toting his cameras and flashes, and in one afternoon took more than 200 photographs of the athletes. After getting them developed (he doesn't have a dark room in his Grosse Pointe Woods home), he gives them to the students.

"The kids at school really don't know how much they've meant to me," he said. "They kept me going after my heart attack and my bypass surgery." He shows off a baseball signed by the 1980 North boys baseball team given to him while he was in the hospital.

"I get a lot of joy in giving the kids these pictures," he said. "Sometimes I go to students' homes and see pictures I took of them 10 years ago framed on their coffee table. That's a great feeling. I know they appreciate the pictures now, but they'll really appreciate them later, when they get to be my age."

Cooper is 58.

Not only is he the photographer, he is also a support system for the athletes. He hugs them when they're finished. He gives them encouragement when they are down. He loans a shoulder when a student needs to lean. He flashes his big friendly smile to let them know he's behind them.

He's even provided his bald head for patting by students wanting good luck. The father of a basketball player who used to rub his head does the same thing now when his daughter needs luck playing college ball.

He's even allowed students to take pictures of cute girls from the other team. In fact, he asked a girl to look at the camera and smile for the boys who had their minds on something other than the contest at hand.

"I haven't grown up yet," he said. "And I don't intend to."

But he's also been known to silence a kid who's causing a distraction during the playing of the national anthem. The raising of his hand and a withering look have stopped the off-color chanting that sometimes breaks out at sporting events.

With a few other men, he started the Booster Club Swim for Sports event which has raised $220,000 and has gone directly back to the students.

At the end of each season, he makes a slide presentation with the photos he took during the year. Because he takes photographs at school dances, too, he's been known to juxtapose a photograph of a sweaty, dirty athlete with a picture of the same student dressed to the nines.

"They really like that," he said.

As much as Cooper appreciates the students, the students appreciate Cooper. In May 1988 Grosse Pointe North dedicated an area of the school's courtyard to him, naming it Cooper's Square.

"There was no way to describe it," Cooper said of the dedication ceremony. "There were 1,200 students there and the thing that I was surprised about was the way the kids reacted. They were so quiet; there was no goofing around."

Seated on the platform with him at the dedication ceremony was his wife Marlene, their children and their spouses. Cooper also received a letter jacket, making him the only adult from Grosse Pointe North to receive one.

"My wife has always been there," he said. "Every night I think the Lord for two things: my life and my wife. If it wasn't for her, I wouldn't be here."

They've been married for 35 years.

People say he has touched as many lives as he has taken pictures and he still has a lot of photographs left.

And there's one photograph he can't wait to take. His daughter, who grew up leading cheers, has become the varsity cheerleading coach in Plainwell, Mich. She recently married the varsity football coach and the couple is expecting their first child. It is the Coopers' first grandchild.

She's due in August, but Cooper joked that she better have it before football season when her husband and her father get busy again.

"It's a lot of work," he said of his avocation, which sometimes takes him to sports events three times a week. "But it's really enjoyable work."

Among the people featured in the film are Ray and Jude Hutteman, who were instrumental in bringing King to the Pointes. Also featured is Richard Kay, local photographer and War Memorial Board member. In 1968 Kay was community services director for the school system.

"They talk about what it was like to bring Dr. King to Grosse Pointe and the experiences they encountered," Ovshinsky said.

The film also features the experiences of former Grosse Pointe High student Bill Pace, now a Hollywood producer who graduated in the late 1960s.

"Although most of the reaction to the visit was positive, not everyone in town was in favor of it," Ovshinsky said. "Donald Lobsinger and his group Breakthrough was definitely opposed to the visit."

"Lobsinger claimed King was a Communist and a traitor. Part of the group picketed outside while others heckled King inside the high school gymnasium."

Ovshinsky added: "While the visit was a minor event in King's life, it was quite an event here. He was one of our nation's Pulitzer Prize winners right here in Grosse Pointe."

Ovshinsky praised a number of residents for their cooperation in providing information for the documentary. He said many residents and school employees were concerned how the viewers would feel about the community because there was a backlash against King and his message.

"Race is a touchy subject in this community as it is in just about every community," Ovshinsky said. "People welcomed him here and were very supportive. It made it a journey worth taking for King."

Ovshinsky said the presence of Gil Hill in the film was natural because "Hill has a great deal of respect for Dr. King and he was glad to be a part of the project."

According to civil rights scholars, 1968 was a difficult year for King because his role as a civil rights leader was being questioned, Ovshinsky said. Black activists wanted King to respond to racism by advocating violence, but he maintained his non-violence stance. Others were offended by his opposition to the Vietnam War.

"People thought he was mixing two issues," Ovshinsky said. "Many people had different ideas about who King was and what he stood for."

"The film is like a flashback into the '60s," he said. "It was a

'The '60s decade wasn't all about Woodstock, love beads and rock 'n' roll.'

Harvey Ovshinsky,
WTVS Producer

rough time in history. You get a real sense of the struggles of the period. There were some real serious issues and the stakes were high. The '60s decade wasn't all about Woodstock, love beads and rock 'n' roll."

Ovshinsky said the film is in its editing stage and will air soon. "I didn't do it by myself. There were a lot of people involved. I got a lot of help on this one."

While air dates have been set, the times have not been scheduled yet.

Well, they're not really aliens, they're Kerby Elementary students David Michael Boykin, Max Martin and Meryl Pankhurst, who are preparing for the countdown to Kerby's tri-annual fundraiser. This year's Kerby Carnival theme is 1990: A Space Adventure, and is scheduled for Saturday, April 7. The Carnival will run from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. with a drawing scheduled for 3 p.m. Kerby Carnival commander Rosemary Messacar and her co-commander, Kathy Belloli, have been working with their crew for more than a year to prepare for this mission.

Kids' luncheon theater opens

The Peanut Butter Players, Detroit's only professional children's luncheon theater, will perform "How to Eat Like a Child" at the historic Players Club, 3321 Jefferson Ave., approximately one mile east of the Renaissance Center. The musical is an adaptation of the children's book by Delia Ephron. Performances begin Saturday, Feb. 10, and Sunday, Feb. 11, and continue every Saturday and Sunday through May 6, except Easter weekend, April 14 and 15.

A hot dog lunch is served at noon and the show starts at 1 p.m. Ticket price of $6 includes lunch and the show.

Reservations are required and can be made by calling 559-6PBP between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Group rates for 20 or more are available. Secured free parking is provided.

Peanut Butter Players are professional actors, 10 to 17, who have performed at numerous events in the area.

MCC alumni invited to concert

A concert performance by The Lettermen Thursday, Feb. 22, at 8 p.m. at the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts will also serve as a Macomb Community College alumni reunion.

A special block of seats has been reserved especially for Macomb alumni. Following the performance, alumni are invited to Stage 2, next to the auditorium, for an afterglow.

Tickets for The Lettermen concert on Thursday, February 22, are offered to alumni at the reduced rate of $13.50. Seating for the show is limited. For more information and to reserve tickets, call 445-7302.

'Stella' remake: Real tears, cheers

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

Those who flock to see the Divine One, Bette Midler, in action, whether on the concert circuit or on screen, know that they are in for a good time. She has never held back on a performance whether it is singing, dancing or mugging her way through a part. As the main character in "Stella," she does all of these things, but she has added something new to her repertoire. She is as raucous and wild as ever but as a single mother raising her daughter alone, she is given the opportunity to show a gentle tenderness and she does it well.

Midler's "Stella" is a remake of a 1937 film, "Stella Dallas," that starred Barbara Stanwyck in a role that became her ticket to fame. There is enough similarity in this updated version to make the story recognizable, but it is more different than alike.

In the earlier release, Stella is a cunning, scheming conniver who deliberately sets out to snare a rich husband, then gets rid of him but takes his money to support their daughter.

Midler's Stella, on the other hand, is without guile. She is forthright and honest. She knows that marriage with Stephen (Stephen Collins), the father of her child, would never work and refuses his offer when he reluctantly suggests it. Nor does she take his money.

She takes pride in raising Jenny (Trini Alvarado), their daughter, on her own and she creates a happy, wacky atmosphere in which Jenny thrives. There develops a chemistry between mother and daughter that carries them through good times and bad.

When we first meet Stella, she is a barmaid in a small town in upstate New York where she serves up drinks with a dash while at the same time keeping the customers in line. At the urgings of the regulars and one Ed Munn (John Goodman) in particular, she climbs up on the bar and puts on a mean mock striptease. The customers go but later offers to "do the right thing." Feisty Stella refuses the offer and also money to raise their child.

At this point Stella shifts into her mother role with joy and dedication. From the time she unwraps her baby from the receiving blanket, Jenny is her focus in life. Jenny flourishes. She is an enchanting child and becomes a lovely outgoing woman.

Although Stella has refused any help from Stephen she offers no objection when he shows up seven years later and asks to take Jenny to New York for a visit. It is the first of many visits that become more frequent as Jenny grows older.

After a series of incidents, Stella realizes that she can no longer be a part of Jenny's life.

When "Stella Dallas" was produced, it was touted as the greatest mother-daughter story Hollywood had ever told. The same might be said of Midler's "Stella." It is warm and touching with a modern appeal.

"Stella" is a real tears with cheers film. Don't miss it.

Isabelle Huppert as Marie and Marie Trintignant as Lucie star in the French film "Story of Women" at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

'Story of Women' at DIA for 2 weekends

"Story of Women," the 1988 film by French director Claude Chabrol, has a two-weekend engagement at the Detroit Film Theatre of the Detroit Institute of Arts on Feb. 16-18, and Feb. 23-25.

So intensely controversial that it took two years to find distribution in the United States, Chabrol's unflinching and mesmerizing film tells the true story of a young woman who was convicted of murder in 1943 and was made "an example" by the collaborationist French courts.

In the lead role as Marie, Isabelle Huppert's performance won her a well-deserved best-actress award at the Venice Film Festival last year. Boston Globe critic Jay Carr said of Chabrol's film, "It's his masterpiece. Marie is Huppert's best screen role surpassing even 'Violette' and 'The Lacemaker.' She's not nice or even warm, yet this little survival machine gets to us."

Friday and Saturday screening times are 7 and 9:30 p.m. and Sundays at 5 and 7:15 p.m.

All DFT presentations are screened in the DIA auditorium and are priced at $4. Books of 10 coupons are available for $25, making the equivalent cost of each admission just $2.50.

For ticket information contact the DIA ticket office at 833-2323.

'Tempest' to open at Bonstelle Theatre

"The Tempest," one of William Shakespeare's late romances, opens at the Bonstelle Theatre at 8 p.m. Friday, March 2, for a two weekend run. Performances are at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday through March 11.

Believed to be Shakespeare's last play, "The Tempest" is also one of his greatest successes. It centers around mighty Prospero, who, with the help of his spirit-like assistant Ariel and deformed slave Caliban, masters the native magic of the island where he lives with his daughter Miranda. With his powers he controls a tempest, rights ancient wrongs, and joins the young lovers — Miranda and Ferdinand. He finally abjures his magic in a scene which is often said to be Shakespeare's farewell to his art.

Playing Prospero is senior

David Krzysnik who was seen as Doc in the Bonstelle season opener, "Mister Roberts." Ariel and Caliban are played by seniors Curtis Colden and Matt Yates. Colden was seen in the title role of "Mister Roberts" and as the Prince in "Cinderella." Yates played the leading role in last season's production of "Sarcophagus." Miranda and Ferdinand are played by senior Missy Gibson and sophomore Darrell Stokes. Gibson played Christine in this season's "My Sister In This House."

Directing "The Tempest" is Robert Emmett McGill, who directed last season's productions of "Sarcophagus" and "The Three Sisters."

Susan Howell, second year M.F.A. student and designer of the set for the Hilberry production of "Execution of Justice," is the set designer for "The Tempest." Lighting is designed by James Latzel and costumes are by Constance Campbell.

For tickets and information, call the Bonstelle box office at 577-2960.

Rock 'n' Roll for Diabetes set

Local musicians are planning a 'Rock 'n' Roll for Diabetes' benefit Thursday, March 1, to raise money for the research and education programs of the American Diabetes Association, Michigan Affiliate. The evening will feature four live bands beginning at 9 p.m. at St. Andrew's Hall at 431 East Congress, Detroit.

"Rock 'n' Roll for Diabetes" is being organized by musicians Ron Murphy, who has diabetes, and former WDET disc jockey John Seravento. The following bands are donating their time for the event: Kash Phlagg, Ron Murphy, Jugglers and Thieves, and The Gear. Admission is $7 and all proceeds will go to the American Diabetes Association, Michigan Affiliate.

Diabetes is one of the leading causes of death by disease in the United States. Diabetes can lead to serious complications — heart disease, kidney disease, and blindness. The Michigan Affiliate serves more than 450,000 state residents suffering from diabetes. Programs include Camp Midicha for Children, Public/Patient/Professional Education, and Research Grants.

'Rainbow Rapture'

The exhibit includes winners of local 1989 snapshot contests conducted by 162 newspapers in the United States and Canada with more than 500,000 entries.

'Everybody Wins' except viewers in this film

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

Question: What do you get when you combine Nick Nolte and Debra Winger in a potboiling mystery called "Everybody Wins"?

Answer: More questions. Really. This is a picture that is as mysteriously vague and ambiguous to viewers as it is to the characters it follows. We spend more time wondering who's who and what's what than we do actually getting into the suspenseful story at the center.

This much we know: Winger, a schizophrenic prostitute, invites Nolte, a top-notch private investigator, to take on a challenging case. Winger says she knows the boy sitting in jail for the murder of a prominent local doctor is innocent. But she won't say how she knows.

Nolte, if he's going to free the guy, will have to bump heads with the local police and the hotshot local prosecutor. Neither party can understand why Nolte would take the word of a psychotic hooker over that of local officials.

And neither can we. He's supposed to be in love with her. But exactly what it is about her that he loves is never made clear. Along the way, we meet another psychologically unstable sort of guy — this one a religious zealot ridden with guilt about something.

The picture clearly asks more of viewers than they should have to give. Being suspenseful is one thing. Being downright confusing and, at times, even boring, is quite another.

To make matters worse, neither Nolte nor Winger look like they have any interest in being here. Nolte's private investigator has neither the panache of a Mike Hammer nor the winning charm of a Tom Magnum. He's got few personality traits worth mentioning. Indeed, he's the kind of guy you'd meet once and then forget.

Winger, meanwhile, is given a role with a little more substance. She's asked to slip back and forth between personalities, sometimes playing the young innocent, other times playing the world-wise tramp. She pulls neither off very convincingly, mostly because she can't seem to get a handle on her character any better than we can.

For a short time, the ambiguity of the story is intriguing. Even entertaining. Most viewers of this type of picture like a good puzzle as much as anything.

The problem is that we're asked to solve a puzzle that has so many pieces missing. By the time the closing credits roll, of course, all of the pieces have been found. But by then, most viewers will have lost interest, and will be ready to head home to read a good book.

Big band dance

Jitterbugs, Fox Trotters, Lindy Hoppers and other ballroom stylists will have a chance to dance out both their shoes when the Jimmy Wilkins Orchestra hosts another "Big Band Dance Night" on Sunday, Feb. 18, at Macomb Center for the Performing Arts.

Known as "Detroit's resident big band with the Basie beat and Ellington touch," the Wilkins group will play in concert at 7 p.m. Immediately thereafter, the band will invite members of the audience to take the stage and dance to traditional big band music along with selected pop tunes.

Wilkins, a former lead trombonist with the Count Basie Orchestra, formed his own group in 1956 after spending more than 10 years on the road with Basie and other national headliners including Lionel Hampton, Erskine Hawkins and Dizzy Gillespie.

The Wilkins appearance marks the third big band concert-dance of the center's current entertainment season. It will be followed by the Austin-Moro Band on April 22.

Tickets are $8 for adults and $7 for students and senior citizens. They may be obtained at the center's box office or reserved on credit card by calling 286-2222, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. The center is located on the Center Campus of Macomb Community College at Hall (M-59) and Garfield roads in Clinton Township.

Greasepaint Players present 'Mousetrap'

The Greasepaint Players will present Agatha Christie's legendary mystery, "The Mousetrap," at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Feb. 16 and 17, at Grosse Pointe South High School, 11 Grosse Pointe Blvd.

Tickets will be available at the door and are $5 for regular admission and $3.50 for senior citizens and students.

Park family hopes to cure cabin fever with a little saki

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Every family has its own family game, a game played whenever the aunts and cousins and uncles and brothers get together. It's usually a game that takes a little skill, a little luck and one that can be played by all ages.

Gary M. Tichenor's family game was called Shanghai, a variation on gin rummy where players lay the runs face up on the table, and other players use and rearrange the piles in an attempt to get rid of their cards. The object is to get rid of your cards first and stick your opponents with points for the cards left in their hands.

A nearly five-year journey with the Tichenor family game enters a new stage today when Tichenor and his wife, Jenny take the family game — now called Saki — to the New York Toy Fair in the hopes that it will become the next Uno.

Saki — and the children's version Socki — is the first product of the Tichenor's brand new company, Cabin Fever Games.

Jenny Tichenor, who retired from Michigan Bell after 15 years in the engineering and marketing departments is president and CEO, and serves as the company's spokesperson. Her husband, a systems analyst at Ford Motor Co., is vice president and financial manager.

The trip that takes the Tichenors to New York started before 1976. That was the year they first played Uno, the card game much like Crazy Eights which swept the country during the mid '70s. It was a game they had played for years, but called Dirty Neighbor.

"We decided that we were going to be the ones who were going to make millions from a game," she said.

A few years later they copyrighted their own game and offered it for purchase to a game manufacturer who refused to buy it. They were starting a family and money was tight, so they didn't pursue the idea.

In 1980, while walking through a store, they saw and purchased a game almost identical to the one they tried to sell a few years earlier. It was produced by the company they approached with the idea.

"We didn't want to fight it in court," Tichenor said. They decided to fight it in the market place.

"We learned from that, though," she added.

So they focused on Shanghai, the old family game. Having played it for years, and with so many different people, the Tichenors knew they had a winner. People liked it, it was easy to learn, and it involved an equal amount of luck and skill.

"We decided this was going to be our Uno," Tichenor said. "This was the idea we were willing to put family savings into."

Getting from an idea to an actual prototype was a little more involved than they realized.

Try finding a printer who does a deck of cards. And as if that wasn't difficult enough, the Tichenors wanted to keep the production inside of Michigan, which narrowed the field even more.

After six months of searching, they found a company — in Missouri — then set to work designing the four suits.

"We had these beautiful Oriental prints that would have been real nice," Tichenor said. "But the printer said they wouldn't work, so I sat down one afternoon and did four drawings."

The four suits are boats, pagodas, ladies and flowers. They discovered, in trying to copyright Shanghai, that the name had already been shanghaied, as it were, by a computer game and could not be used.

"We wanted to keep the Oriental feel of the game so we came up with Saki," she said.

The name of the Oriental rice wine led to the obvious packaging of the game in a bottle. But even that packaging led to problems.

A manufacturer who could make a bottle with a removable bottom at a reasonable price was as difficult to find as a card printer, but ultimately a novelty company came up with what they needed.

"It's not exactly what we

Jenny and Gary Tichenor get rid of their cabin fever by playing the card game they hope will sweep the country.

want," Tichenor said. "The bottom doesn't really stay on, but it's good enough for the prototypes."

After the orders come pouring in, they expect to design a bottle especially for the game.

Then after all the fuss of locating a bottle, she was told by toy store owners that they would not carry a game packaged in what looked like a bottle of alcohol. "Get it out of the bottle," she was told.

The solution came out of the mouth of her son, Derrick.

"Why don't you put it in a sock and call it Socki," he said. Which is just what they did. The adult version still comes in a bottle and the kid's version in a sock.

Last Christmas Cabin Fever Games sent out 100 Saki games to friends, neighbors, neighbors of friends and friends of neighbors, asked them to play it and return the questionnaire enclosed. The feedback was encouraging, and told them a few things they never thought of.

"A lot of people said the ones looked like sevens," she said. "So when we print again, we're going to take the little top off the one."

The Tichenors, who said they are known by friends and family as "game people," say Saki is a good game. But what makes a game good?

"It has to be easy to learn," they said. "And it has to have an equal amount of fate and skill. If fate plays too big a part, adults get bored, and if skill is too big, the kids get bored."

The Tichenor's two children, Noel and Derrick, love the game, so they figure other kids will, too.

If this takes off, Mrs. Tichenor hopes to get someone else to run the company, while she sits back and thinks up the next game.

"Can you think of a better life?" she asked.

Flexitime

A German aerospace company was reportedly the first to use flexitime, in 1967, to help employees cope with severe traffic congestion, according to a new publication by the U.S. Labor Department, "Opportunity 2000." Today, an estimated 10 million workers in the U.S. private sector participate in flexible time arrangements and an estimated 500,000 federal employees take advantage of the system.

Car buffs: Test your automotive IQ

A. This is the last body style of a car made in 1946-69 in Athens, Ohio. What is it?

B. This car was among one of the earliest hatchbacks. What is it?

C. What is this?

We are in the late winter automotive doldrums, when car dealers and automakers try to sustain interest in their products with auto shows. But buyers are waiting for a prompt from spring that it is time to seriously consider the automobile once more.

So in this lull in the action, why not test your automotive IQ with a trivia quiz?

1. Who was the first inventor to drive his horseless carriage on the streets of Detroit? (Hint: The year was 1896 and Henry Ford observed the event with much interest, following the automobile on a bicycle.)

2. In 1901, a young associate of Ransom E. Olds drove a curved Dash Oldsmobile from Detroit to New York for the national auto show there, at the time the longest trip in an automobile. Who drove? (Hint: He later headed the Hudson Motor Car Co. and much later his son headed American Motor Corp.)

3. Three men headed Buick and later left General Motors to build cars with their own names on them. Who were they? (Hint: One ran General Motors a couple times, another bought Jeffrey Motor Co. and the third took over management of Willys-Overland and then Maxwell-Chalmers.)

4. Who built the first Cadillac?

5. Who built the first Lincoln?

6. The late Gordon Buehrig designed one of the most famous classic cars, the Cord 810. It was introduced in 1936, but the financially shaky Auburn company went out of business shortly after that. Two other companies built models with the stunningly beautiful Cord's body dies. What were these cars? (Hint: These models were the last for these two makers also.)

7. What automaker began building cars with his name on them, left the company to start a new one and was unable to use his own name because the first company owned it? (Hint: The first company is still building cars using his name.)

8. Two highly publicized new auto companies were formed in 1946. What were they? (Hint: One never off the ground and was the subject of a recent movie; the other became the largest independent automaker within two years then faded before a decade had passed.)

9. What auto executive in April 1964 became the first person to appear on the covers of Time and Newsweek the same week? (Hint: He is still very much in the public eye.)

10. A small American car was marketed by Sears, Roebuck & Co. in the '50s. What company made it and what was it called? (Hint: About 2,000 were sold; among its features was an extremely durable upholstery material made of tightly twisted paper coated with vinyl.)

Who are these Grunyons and why are they having so much fun?

By Margie Reins Smith
 Feature Editor

Ten men stood in a circle (sort of) in John Prost's living room in Grosse Pointe Park. They represented one-half of the Grunyons, a group of men who have been singing together — just for the fun of it — for 41 years.

They leaned into the circle. Each held a handwritten arrangement for "I'll Never Fall in Love Again." Feet tapped to the beat.

Bill Gard of Grosse Pointe Farms, the Grunyons' director (sort of) and arranger (sort of), passed out new music.

"This was done on my 'save paper day.' So I wrote all three verses on the same page and some notes are in parentheses. There's some tricky places."

Gard blew into a pitch pipe and raised his left arm, "... two ... three ... four ..."

They sang — a blend of close, four-part harmony: "What do you get when you fall in love? A gal with a pin to burst your bubble ..."

Gard stopped them.
 "These are very square eighth notes."
 They began again. "What do you get when you fall in love? ..."

He stopped them.
 "Put the 't' on 'what,'" he said. "Come on basses. And we have a divisi in the tenor."

While they practiced, the men sauntered around the room carrying dinner plates. They ate; they loosened their ties; they laughed a lot; they sipped Coors or Cokes or coffee; they tapped their feet and raised their voices. In between songs, they took turns explaining exactly what the Grunyons are.

"We're an irreverent group," said Joe Lawrence of Ypsilanti.

Be more specific.

"We're a group of 14 to 18 members. A double octet is our ideal size. We sing a capella. We sing four- to eight-part harmony. But we don't sing barbershop.

That's better.

"And our clothes don't match," said another Grunyon.

At a recent weekly practice session, about half of the 21 members of the Grunyons got together to sing and to deliberately not take their singing seriously. The group was begun 41 years ago by two former Yale Wiffenpoofs.

Get serious.

"We sing contemporary material in the style of Manhattan Transfer or Singers Unlimited."

Better.

"Would you like us to introduce ourselves?" said John Prost.

Sure.

GET SERIOUS.

"We don't take ourselves seriously," Prost said. "People say we look like we're having a good time when we perform. We are."

The Grunyons perform about 35 times a year for a variety of organizations. During the recent Christmas season, they sang eight concerts for groups like the Birmingham Junior League, the First English Evangelical Lutheran Church in Grosse Pointe, St. Cecelia's Home for Boys, a senior citizens' center in Farmington Hills and at Bishop Coleman McGehee's farewell luncheon.

Bill Gard shares the Grunyon's director's title (sort of) with Roland Sharette of Detroit. Gard said the group was formed in 1949 by the late Tom Tilley of Grosse Pointe. Tilley and Gard are former members of Yale's well-known singing group, the Wiffenpoofs.

"Somebody asked Tom and his group to sing at the Junior League Fair in 1949," Gard said. "Tom said sure. Then he pointed out that he had no group."

"He gathered eight guys together and they sang for the Junior League."

The original eight men soon discovered that they needed some substitutes and stand-ins. Eight men with demanding careers had lots of scheduling conflicts. The group grew. Those who could practice — practiced. Those who could sing at scheduled performances — sang. It was a loose arrangement with emphasis on the pure enjoyment of singing together.

During the last 41 years, more than 60 men have been members of the Grunyons at one time or another. Two of the original eight remain: Gard and Charlie Parcels of Grosse Pointe Farms.

After their debut at the Junior League benefit, the Grunyons got more invitations. And since then, they've performed for thousands of civic groups, churches, schools, senior citizens organizations, charity functions and private parties. They've sung in the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C., at the Republican National Convention in Detroit, at the governor's mansion in Colorado and at hundreds of pancake suppers, pot

Food prices are expected to rise slowly during the year 1990

By Ada Shinaberger
MSU Food Marketing Specialist

Consumers can expect food prices in 1990 to rise 3 to 5 percent, compared with a 6-percent increase during 1989.

The 1989 increase was higher than the 4-percent predicted and reflects higher costs throughout the food industry. These increased costs, plus strong consumer demand and tight supplies of some commodities, pushed the price of food at grocery stores up more than 6 percent during 1989. Meanwhile, price increases in restaurants and fast-food establishments averaged 5 percent more in '89.

As for food costs in 1990, look for food purchased at grocery stores to average 2 to 4 percent higher than during 1989. Food price increases for foods away from home are predicted to increase by a lesser amount as firms use promotions to try to gain market share.

Expect red meat prices during 1990 to average 1 to 3 percent higher than in 1989.

Retail poultry prices are almost a wash as they decline 6 to 8 percent during 1990 after increasing a similar amount the year before. Egg prices are predicted to dip as production increases, following the sharp '89 price gains.

Dairy product prices increased at a rate nearly twice that of the past two years, with much of the increase this December. Look for prices to hold and possibly increase another 2 percent, as consumers trade off low-fat milks for cheese.

The 1990 retail price increases for cereals and bakery products are predicted to be 5 to 7 percent — the highest of all food categories. Consumer demand for high-fiber cereal products and oat items is a big factor.

Fruits and vegetables saw some of the biggest price increases during 1989. Barring unforeseen inclement weather, increases of 5 to 7 percent are predicted for fresh fruits, while fresh vegetables are limited to 0 to 2 percent increases.

Pride of the Pointers

Linda Berk Voit

Paula Touchtone of Grosse Pointe Woods has been named to the dean's list for academic achievement during the fall trimester at Johnson & Wales University in Rhode Island. Touchtone is majoring in culinary arts.

Four Grosse Pointers are among the 385 December graduates of the American Graduate School of International Management (Thunderbird) in Arizona: Herman Guevara, Colin Bradford Bower, Gilder Davis Jackson IV and Steven John Landuyt.

Grosse Pointe Farms residents Celeste Anne Sartor and Michael Gerard Schena completed Oakland University degree requirements last December. Sartor earned a bachelor of arts degree in psychology. Schena earned a bachelor of science degree in computer engineering.

Erin Snyder, a 1989 Grosse Pointe South High School graduate, has been named to the dean's list at the University of Southern Mississippi. She is the daughter of Sharon Snyder of Grosse Pointe and James W. Snyder Jr. of Grosse Pointe.

Eric J. Basta, a postgraduate student at Bridgton Academy, was named to the honors list for the second marking period. Basta is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Basta of Grosse Pointe Woods.

Diane Gorsky of Grosse Pointe Woods has been named to the dean's list at the University of Detroit for the second time, with a 3.8 average. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brian Gorsky.

Alpha Gamma Delta has initiated Nichole Rinehart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rinehart of Grosse Pointe, into membership. Rinehart is a charter member of the newly installed chapter, Zeta Upsilon, at Northern Michigan University.

Jennifer Williams, a 1988 graduate of Grosse Pointe South High School, has been named to the Vanderbilt University chapter of Kappa Delta Epsilon, a national honor society for education students. She is a sophomore majoring in elementary education.

Lyric Chamber Ensemble to play at Orchestra Hall

The Lyric Chamber Ensemble, in conjunction with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra Tchaikovsky Festival, will present a program of Tchaikovsky chamber music at Orchestra Hall on Sunday, Feb. 25, at 3:30 p.m.

Titled "Tchaikovsky's Legacy," the concert features Detroit Symphony Orchestra Concertmaster Emmanuelle Boisvert and Associate Concertmaster John Hughes, violist Darryl Jeffers and cellist John Thurman, performing the "Accordion" Quarter in D Major.

Soprano Earnestine Nimmons will perform Tchaikovsky's songs: "At The Ball" and "As a Blade of Grass in Meadow Green." Also in the program is the Piano Trio in A minor, Op. 50, performed by Fedora Horowitz, piano; D.S.O. Principal Second Violinist Geoffrey Applegate; and Assistant Principal Cellist Marcy Chanteaux.

Ticket prices are $20, $15 and $12. There are special rates for students and seniors.

Pettipointe Questers held Feb. meeting

"Childrens Collectible Books" was the topic of a lecture given to the Pettipointe Questers No. 243 at its February meeting at the home of member Miriam Van Wallegem.

Following a luncheon and general meeting, Kay MacKay, a charter member of the Grand Marais chapter of the Questers, and an antiquarian book dealer known as the Mad Hatter, spoke to the group about children's books from the 1500s through modern times.

Of special interest were the ABC books, fairy tales, nursery rhymes of Mother Goose and the first illustrated book for a child, which was published in 1657.

Support group for grieving parents

First Sunday, a support group for parents who have suffered the death of a child, meets the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month at St. John Hospital and Medical Center, from 8 to 11 p.m.

Meetings will be on Feb. 28 and March 14 and 28.

Father Lawrence DuCharme, director of pastoral care, and Sister Beatrice Monforton, chaplain at St. John Hospital and Medical Center, lead this bereavement group which seeks to help parents after a child dies.

Call 343-3695 for more information.

Woman of the Year

Dorothea Eckert of Grosse Pointe Woods was recently honored as Christ the King Lutheran Church's Woman of the Year by the Council of Lutheran Women.

Eckert was one of 52 Lutheran women, who were honored at a luncheon.

St. James Lutheran to hold Sock Hop

A Sock Hop for students in grades 6-8 will be at St. James Lutheran Church, 170 McMillan Road, on Friday, March 2, from 7:30 until 10 p.m. (The dance will be a lock-in. That is, students will not be permitted to leave, then return.)

A professional DJ will provide music of the 50s and 60s — as well as the top 40.

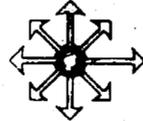

A limited number of advance tickets are $3, available at the church office. Call 884-0511 for more information.

'Murder at the Mardi Gras:' Whodunit will benefit TV lab

Grosse Pointers Jennifer Moore, Chuck Gaidica and Mort Crim, all of WDIV-TV, will add their support to an evening of murder and mayhem — all for the benefit of the Grosse Pointe school system's television production lab.

"Murder at the Mardi Gras" will take place at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore, on Saturday, Feb. 24, from 7:30 to 11:30 p.m.

Homicide Hosts Inc. will stage the dastardly crime.

Guests will play detective by questioning witnesses, trailing suspects, unraveling clues, and ... ta da ... solving the mystery.

All this hair-raising fundraising will go toward the purchase of TV production equipment which will add new opportunities for technical and creative learning for more than 250 high school students from Grosse Pointe North and Grosse Pointe South.

TV lab instructor Julie Corbett and teacher Rex Marshall will use the proceeds from the evening of sleuthing to purchase editing systems and a studio switcher.

A $50 donation for "Murder at the Mardi Gras" gets you some hors d'oeuvres, drinks, chances to win some door prizes — and a front-row seat as witness to a murder.

For reservations, call 886-4468 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; after 5 p.m., call 885-7166 or 881-1927

Students from Julie Corbett's TV production course (and some parent supporters) dramatized some of the murderous goings-on that will be staged at their fundraiser, "Murder at the Mardi Gras," on Saturday, Feb. 24, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Heart of Gold: Grosse Pointe Shores resident Georgia Mandich was honored Feb. 14 for outstanding volunteerism at the United Way for Southeastern Michigan's 23rd annual Heart of Gold Award luncheon at Cobo Hall in Detroit.

Mandich and seven other metro Detroit volunteers received the awards, presented by WDIV-TV anchors Carmen Harlan and Mort Crim of Grosse Pointe.

Mandich was nominated for the honor by the Mental Health Association in Michigan, where she volunteers her time promoting mental health and positive parenting skills. She wrote the organization's self esteem booklet, which is used by mental health organizations throughout Michigan.

Mandich has also helped organize teacher training programs for Detroit schools and she began "Choices for Positive Living," an internationally renowned program designed for the Mental Health Association and Comerica Inc.

She spends much of her volunteer time with unwed mothers at the Northeast Guidance Center, believing that a positive self-image begins between mother and infant.

She is also a trustee of the Merrill-Palmer Institute, a charter member of the Citizen's Advisory Committee for Wayne County Juvenile Court, a charter member of the Grosse Pointe volunteer probation program and director and past president of the Detroit Industrial School, which provides monetary support to ArtFest's best: The Women's Advertising Club of Detroit will hold its third annual ArtFest on Friday, Feb. 23, at WXYZ-TV's Kelly & Company studio, beginning at 6 p.m.

Grosse Pointe residents Gina Bartoszewicz and Kathy Hueter Smith are chairman and coordinator, respectively, of the event.

Artfest invites the Detroit advertising community to exhibit and sell their personal artworks. All proceeds go toward the Women's Advertising Club's scholarship fund for qualified college programs benefiting children.

The Heart of Gold luncheon was chaired by Gail Phillips of Grosse Pointe Farms. Screening and judging chair was Mary Kay Crain of Grosse Pointe.

The eyes have it: Chrysler Corp. Chairman and CEO Lee A. Iacocca has been named chairman for the 1990 Eyes on the Classics, the annual fundraiser for the Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology, a not-for-profit organization dedicated to the preservation of vision through ophthalmic education, research and support for the visually impaired.

The July 8 event will take place at the 90-acre Edsel & Eleanor Ford estate in Grosse Pointe Shores. Iacocca has been a member of the DIO's honorary board since its founding and with his late wife, Mary, served as honorary chairman for the Institute's first fundraiser in 1974.

Eyes on the Classics celebrates automobile design of the past, present and future, by showcasing historic, special interest and prototype vehicles.

Are today's young people less likely to believe in God?

The existence of God remains as unprovable as ever.

A recently published analysis of data from 16 countries gathered over 18 years shows that belief in God is waning, particularly among young people, according to a University of Michigan political scientist.

Professor Ronald F. Inglehart, author of the new book "Culture Shift in Advanced Industrial Society," sees evidence of a connection between the shift away from strong belief in the importance of God and the evolution of strong welfare states, which for some have replaced religion as a source of personal security.

Belief in God remains strongest in countries such as the United States, South Africa, Ireland and Mexico, each with weak welfare systems that create uncertainty and make personal security more difficult to achieve, Inglehart said. He is also a research scientist in the U-M's Center for Political Studies.

His study found evidence of other widespread and significant changes in values and opinions about abortion, nuclear weapons, the environment, sexual mores, and the role of women and the family. These changes have realigned the political and economic structures of advanced industrial societies throughout the world, producing increasing emphasis on freedom of expression and democracy, he said.

"In the decades since World War II, the emergence of unprecedented high levels of prosperity, together with the relatively high levels of social and economic security provided by the welfare state, have led to a decline in the prevailing sense of vulnerability," Inglehart said.

"This has been conducive to the spread of secular orientations that place less emphasis on traditional religious and cultural norms, especially insofar as these norms conflict with self-expression."

Inglehart's findings about belief in the importance of God:

A majority of the population in each of the 16 societies he studied still say they believe in God. The size of the majority ranges from more than 60 percent in Japan, Denmark and France to near unanimity in the United States, Mexico, South Africa, and both the Irish Republic and Northern Ireland — all nations with relatively weak welfare states.

"Under conditions of relative security, provided in part by a strong welfare state, one can tolerate more diversity; thus one doesn't need the security of the absolute, rigid rules that religious sanctions can provide. The United States may be more affluent than other nations where belief in the importance of God is less prevalent, but economic security is less certain," he added.

Within countries as different as Mexico and France, younger respondents (age 18-24) are about two and one-half times less likely to believe in God as older groups (older than 65). Yet the younger generation seems to have a heightened sensitivity to spiritual concerns compared with older groups.

Although within each country the young generally are less likely to attach importance to God than their elders, belief in God appears to be linked more to culture and historic circumstances than age.

Danes age 65 and older, for example, are less religious than Americans in their 20s. And in some countries, such as Mexico, South Africa and the United States, most of the young attach great importance to God. In others, such as France or Japan, even among the old, large numbers do not.

"One might think it the case that among the young it's natural for God to be of minor concern, and that as the end of one's life approaches, one accords more importance to God, religion and the afterlife. In fact, there is no apparent linkage between age and belief in God. The age group differences appear to reflect the specific historic circumstances of given societies at the time the young there were growing up and forming value systems, rather than anything inherent in the life cycle," Inglehart said.

The decline in the belief in the importance of God among younger groups is most pronounced in Western Europe and Japan, and less so in the United States, South Africa and Mexico.

In some countries the decline is cataclysmic, Inglehart said. In West Germany, for example, only 16 percent of the older population consider God unimportant, compared with 60 percent among the youngest group. Britain and France indicate almost equally great declines in belief in the importance of God, and in Denmark an even sharper age-group decline in the importance of God is manifested.

In almost every country, a smaller proportion of the population consider themselves religious than believe in God. About a quarter of the Japanese public consider themselves religious, and only about half of the French and British do. Of all nationalities studied, Italians — who ranked only moderately high on belief in God — have the largest percentage who consider themselves religious.

The survey data also shows a large-scale shift in values from materialist to post-materialist values, Inglehart said. Materialists tend to be older and more respectful of authority. They have a traditional world view and are concerned with economic and national stability.

The growing minority of post-materialists, raised during the relatively prosperous post-World War II era, on the other hand, take national and economic security for granted. They are more concerned with quality of life issues.

rather than accept central authority, according to Inglehart. "There is genuine irony in the fact that post-materialists tend to be relatively uninterested in established religions, since this group has a relatively large amount of intellectual and emotional energy to devote to the fulfillment of higher-order needs," Inglehart said.

Inglehart's book, published last month by Princeton University Press, already has been translated into French, German, Italian and Spanish. It is based on interviews with hundreds of thousands of respondents conducted in more than two dozen countries over the course of 18 years. The interviews were conducted as part of the Euro-barometer surveys, a regular measure of attitudes, values and behavior of 12 western nations that has been conducted since 1970, and the World Values Survey, carried out in 1981-82 by the World Value Systems Study Group.

Grosse Pointe United Church will present concert by Traverse City youths on Feb. 18

Forty youths from the Traverse City United Methodist Church will present a concert at Grosse Pointe United Church on Sunday, Feb. 18, at 7 p.m.

Grosse Pointe United Church is located at 240 Chalfonte in Grosse Pointe Farms.

The concert will feature the Junior High and Senior High English Handbell Choirs, under the direction of Central's director of music, Robert Murphy.

"Let Him In" is a musical that takes its audience to a familiar place: summer church camp. The script was written by youth member Kristie Evans and features such songs as Michael W. Smith's "Rocketown," Amy Grant's "Raining on the Inside" and two selections written by Kristie Evans.

Through song and dance, the musical shares the message that God is willing to be a friend and guide if we just let Him in along with those around us.

Grosse Pointe is the third stop on the musical tour which began in Suttons Bay and continued to Saginaw. The Traverse City youths will conclude their performances in Traverse City.

A free will offering will be received at the performance. For more information, please call the Rev. Jack L. Mannschreck at 886-2363.

Ecumenical Christian Educators

The Feb. 15 meeting of Grosse Pointe area Ecumenical Christian Educators will take place at Assumption Greek Orthodox Church. Lenten and Easter ideas and traditions will be shared among the educational leaders.

The Ecumenical Christian Educators organization is open to all clergy and lay leaders in the area.

For information, call Joan Geisler, 881-6670.

Hospice philosophy to be presented

The philosophy and concept of a hospice will be discussed in a talk presented at the Assumption Cultural Center Tuesday, Feb. 20, at 7:30 p.m.

Betty Pejakovich, director of volunteers and spiritual care with the East Branch Hospice of Southeastern Michigan, will speak and will show a video on hospice. A question and answer session will follow. The talk may be of interest to those wishing to volunteer their time and services, as well as to families of hospice patients.

For more information, call 779-6111. Assumption Cultural Center is located at 21800 Marter Road in the adjoining communities of Grosse Pointe Woods and St. Clair Shores.

'Winter fun,' for some people, is a contradiction in terms

Winter is fun for those who enjoy the slopes, skimming like a graceful swan on skates over the ice or sitting on a frozen river waiting for a fish to bite.

For others, winter fun is a contradiction in terms.

They find no enjoyment in cold weather and all that it brings: dark, frosty mornings, icy streets and cars that won't start. New-fallen snow is pretty, but it loses its charm when it has to be shoveled. A silver moon, surrounded with twinkling crystal stars against a velvet blue night sky is lovely to look at — if you're standing behind glass reinforced with storm windows. As for a weekend in Northern Michigan to see nature in full dress winter splendor, just give them an airline ticket to Florida instead.

The first gust of a north wind sends them scurrying inside, only to venture out when absolutely necessary, such as to go to work, to replenish the food supply or to keep social engagements.

While watching winter sports on television there are times they dream of such daring deeds as going cross-country skiing, putting on a pair of skates or taking a walk in some new-fallen snow.

Hardier souls might even contemplate a more daring adventure: getting behind a dogsled in Alaska, braving a course that winds along a historic gold rush trail from Anchorage to Nome, breathing freezing cold air, chancing unpredictable storms and encounters with moose. They see themselves mushing alone on a trackless shelterless place behind durable dogs, descendants of animals that came to North America with natives thousands of years ago. Now there is a real Walter Mitty day-dream.

If it sounds too extreme, it could be modified. No need to go all the way to Alaska to indulge in make-believe do-and-dare feats.

How about a make-believe trip to Aspen, Colo., for some real downhill skiing. The 3,000 foot altitude takes some getting used to, but after a day, you will be ready for the spectacular Big Birn, a mile wide and mile long course — or the great chute of Spar Gulch.

That is snowmobile country too. Snowmobilers invade white wonderlands to gaze on snows-

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

capas few men have ever seen.

There's more to this scenario. You might choose to sail across frozen lakes in a fiberglass boat in Linconia, N.D., or bobsled in the Adirondacks down a mile-long track.

All of these activities are exciting and fun to ponder but not to do.

Dyed-in-the-wool winter-haters would never think of doing more than thinking about it. They actively resist the lure of picture postcard pretty scenes of ski lodges nestled in snow-covered slopes looking out on lakes of frozen crystal.

When tempted they remind themselves how far away their feet are from their body's central heating system and how much chilblains can hurt. They think of their poor old noses sticking out there, turning redder and drippier as Jack Frost keeps nipping away. Ears are vulnerable too, with their little blood vessels turning to little veins of ice.

"Nonsense," you say. What about bundling up in wool, down and thermal wear.

For the dedicated armchair winter recluse, these are but temporary safeguards and only for those with souls of Eskimos. Winter hermits make use of them, but do so indoors.

All the projects that have been put aside so as to enjoy summer's munificence can now be completed.

Now is the time to read that book that has decorated the coffee table since June, to finish the afghan begun last winter, to call a friend who is often remembered in thoughts but never in deeds.

It may not be the most fun, but now is the time to clean closets, paint, wallpaper and clean the basement. Winter was made for such dreaded tasks.

The man of the house has a number of activities to enjoy. Football runs into basketball, and both of them are concurrent with hockey. Hockey and basketball hang in until baseball season. There is enough visual action to keep him happy until winter melts into summer and golf clubs and tennis racquets can be dragged out and polished for a summer on the courts and greens.

For him, winter is also a time to score points as Mr. Fix-it. There is no better way for him to endear himself to the household than to repair all those little things that have gone wrong and have been called to his attention.

So while others shiver in the snow and cold, we Polly-sit-by-Fires will spend time perusing garden catalogs and getting ready for better things.

Public input is sought for older learner issues

A regional forum calling upon senior citizens and representatives from community education, senior service programs, and institutions of higher learning in Southeast Michigan to explore learning opportunities for older adults age 60 or over, is scheduled for Feb. 22, at Madonna College in Livonia.

Also invited are those from organizations interested in providing information and education for living to older learners such as churches, hospitals, unions, corporations, the media, citizen groups, and recreation programs.

"We are joining with the Michigan Department of Education, the Area Agencies on Aging Association of Michigan, and the Michigan Older Learner Coordinating Committee to invite everyone who is interested in expanding opportunities for older learners," said Olivia P. Maynard, director of the Michigan Office of Services to the Aging.

"We want to better understand the learning needs and preferences of older adults and retirees who want to learn, and the problems and concerns shared by those who are attempting to provide them with educational programs and learning services. We also want to gather useful information about conducting successful older learner programs, and foster cooperation between Michigan's older learner service providers."

Maynard said the forum will provide an opportunity to get all of the players together to talk about the issues and make recommendations. "If you are interested or currently involved in older adult learning," she said, "particularly if you are an older adult yourself, we invite you to attend and share your thoughts with us."

The regional forum is open to the public and will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Kresge Auditorium of Madonna College. A $10 registration fee includes parking, coffee and rolls and a luncheon. Pre-registration is required for meal reservations. A $6 registration fee excludes the luncheon.

Participants will have the opportunity to make older learner program and policy recommendations for consideration at the Michigan Older Learner Summit, which is scheduled for April 18, 1990, in Lansing.

In addition, participants will nominate delegates to the summit, and will suggest outstanding programs and services to receive Older Learner Awards at the summit.

Findings from the Southeast Michigan Older Learner Forum on Feb. 22, as well as findings from four other regional Older Learner Forums, will be considered at the 1990 Older Learner Summit and subsequently addressed to policy makers in the public, for-profit, and non-profit sectors of our society who are concerned with policies, funding, and resources affecting the quality and scope of older learner programs and services.

The planning committee for the Southeast Michigan Older Learner Forum includes Grosse Pointers Esther Howell, Helen Leonard and James Moseley.

G.P. Senior Men's Club travelogue

The Grosse Pointe Senior Men's Club will present "Walt Disney World and Epcot Center," a dual projection, 35mm slide program by G. William Buchanan, on Friday, Feb. 16, at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of Parcels Middle School, Mack and Vernier roads.

The program will take viewers on a photographic adventure of both of the theme parks.

The narrative and background music are in keeping with the Disney tradition.

Travelogues are open to the public. The admission is $1, which includes refreshments served after the show.

G.P. Woods Seniors to see 'Peter Pan'

Following brunch at the Blue Pointe Restaurant, Grosse Pointe Woods Seniors are planning a visit to the Fisher Theatre on Wednesday, Feb. 28, to see "Peter Pan."

They will leave Grosse Pointe

Woods City Hall at 10:30 a.m.; brunch is at 11 a.m.; the show is at 1 p.m.; return will be about 4 p.m. Cost is $26.

Make reservations with Irene Sutton, 884-2942, or Anne McNally, 884-1549.

Cancer Foundation needs drivers

The Michigan Cancer Foundation needs volunteer drivers to transport cancer patients to treatment centers in east Wayne and Macomb counties. An average trip takes one or two hours, once a week.

If you have a car and are interested, come into the East Service Center of the Michigan Cancer Foundation or call 294-4430 for a volunteer application form. Office hours are Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Preludes East concert series to be presented by DSO

The 1990 "Preludes East" luncheon concerts will take place at 12:15 p.m. on three Fridays at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Sponsored by the Volunteer Council of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, "Preludes" is a public relations vehicle to promote and present the talented musicians of the Orchestra in an intimate concert ambience. The musicales, which are open to the public, will help promote community awareness of the DSO, encourage attendance at symphony concerts, afford an acquaintance with the performer and his instrument, and help widen one's knowledge of music literature.

The first concert on Friday, March 9, will feature principal bassoonist, Robert Williams. The offering on Friday, April 6, is Hart Hollman of the viola section. Mark Abbott, French horn, and Randall Hawes, trombone, will conclude the series on Friday, May 5.

This season marks the 19-year Grosse Pointe tradition of these concerts. Each event includes a luncheon beginning at 12:15 p.m., followed by a concert. The cost for the entire series is $37.50. Individual luncheon concert tickets may be purchased for $15, and a concert-only ticket is $5.

Heading this popular Preludes series is general chairman Mary Baynert. The steering committee consists of Ida Mae Masnick, hostesses; Ann Lawson, mailing; Dorothea Vermeulen, reservations; and Mahie Skaff and Marilyn Schneider, decorations.

Committee members include Marilyn Counen, Marianne Endicott, Alice Johnston, Gwen Mann, Lenore Marshall, Madeline Quirk, Fay Ann Resnick, Dolores Shaheen, Marge Slezak, Katherine Wasserfallen, and Patricia Young.

Reservations may be made by contacting Dorothea Vermeulen at 886-9102 or by mailing a check for the proper amount indicating the date of concert and lunch to 693 Lakeshore Road, Grosse Pointe, 48236.

East Pointe Sweet Adelines plan show

The East Pointe Sweet Adelines will present its annual show, "This Joint Is Jumpin'," at 8 p.m. on Saturday, March 10, at Lakeview High School, St. Clair Shores.

The chorus will sing as well as dance to music varying from "Sweet Georgia Brown" to Neil Diamond's "America."

Tickets are $9 if purchased prior to the show; $10 at the door. Senior citizen tickets are $5. Call 778-8557 for more information. Grosse Pointers who will perform in the show are: Sidonie Brown, Hazel DeCoster and Karin Sweetman of Grosse Pointe Farms; Sue Dugan, Patricia Freiwald, Marge Gaglio, Pat Kimel and Camille Peterson of Grosse Pointe Park; and D.J. Janeski, Deanna Leone, Marti Miller and Ardelle Spiewak of Grosse Pointe Woods.

Widows Organization plans dinner

Early reservations are encouraged for widows and their friends, male or female, who wish to attend the Widow's Organization's Madri Gras Dinner on Tuesday, Feb. 27, starting at 6:30 p.m. in the Rolls Royce of the Hyatt-Regency Hotel.

Also, plans have been completed for a Palm Sunday brunch in the main ballroom of the Fairlane Club on Hubbard Drive. Members and their friends, male or female are invited to attend.

The annual dues for joining the Widows' Organization is $5.

Plans are progressing for weekend in St. Louis, starting Friday, Aug. 17, returning home at 8 p.m., on Sunday, Aug. 19, in conjunction with a Midwest Widows' Conference on Saturday, Aug. 18.

Checks may be mailed to the organization's office at 7129 Jonathan Ave., Dearborn, 48126. Price is $15, tip and tax included. A ticket will be mailed immediately.

G.P. Farms Boat Club

The Grosse Pointe Farms Boat Club's Commodores' Ball was held Jan. 13 at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club. In attendance were the current commodore, Edward A. Smith Jr. and his wife, Jean, shown above.

Past commodores Joseph D. Crea, Jack Boland, Joseph Austerberry, James M. Kidd, Ray Dresden, Anthony Prohownik, Gary Vasher, Corinne Franks and Herman W. "Sonny" Gorenflo also attended the ball.

Grosse Pointe Farms residents who are interested in joining the club should call Smith at 885-8898 or Warren Heitman at 886-2925 for more information.

Upcoming events for the Grosse Pointe Farms Boat Club include a road rally, the blessing of the fleet, an annual regatta, a corn roast, a Sarnia race weekend, a clambake and a Christmas party.

Elizabeth Cass chapter, NSDAR

The Elizabeth Cass chapter of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution has prepared a display at Grosse Pointe's central library to promote the observance of American History month, February, 1990.

Eleven high school seniors have earned good citizens' certificates and pins from the organization for their essays on American history. Essays were judged on theme, organization, originality, interest, neatness, spelling and punctuation.

Two of the winning essays were submitted by Grosse Pointe students: Lisa June Tenkel of Grosse Pointe Shores, a senior at Grosse Pointe North High School; and Mikael Elsila of Grosse Pointe Park, a senior at Grosse Pointe South High School.

Other winners were Margaret M. Czapski of Detroit, Karol Eizen of Hamtramck, Susan Lyn Newsted of Harper Woods, Danylo Lisowsky of Troy, Claudia Anthony of Warren, Michele Helm of Warren, Sandra Houghton of Center Line, Stephen Shenduck of Detroit and Amanda Hughes of Sterling Heights.

The 11 winners and their parents are invited to a tea at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial on March 3, when they will be awarded their certificates and pins.

Commercial Real Estate Women has scholarship fund

Commercial Real Estate Women Inc. (CREW) announces the availability of a scholarship for college students enrolled in a four-year degree program in business at a local college or university.

The scholarship is designed to provide funds for students interested in pursuing a career in business, specifically in the field of commercial real estate.

"The goal of our organization and this scholarship fund is to increase students' awareness of our industry, while encouraging growth through education," said Sandra Meyers, CREW president. "We want to give students an opportunity to be exposed to the real estate industry so that they may eventually make a contribution to it."

Students must meet the eligibility requirements and submit an application for consideration. Academic performance, area of academic interest and financial need are considered in selecting the candidate for this scholarship.

Commercial Real Estate Women, Inc.-Detroit was founded in 1985. It is an organization of professionals employed full time in commercial real estate. The membership represents a number of disciplines including accounting, law, development, brokerage, architecture, property management, and construction.

The purpose of the organization is to promote professional growth through education and networking. CREW holds its meetings on the second Wednesday of each month. The public is invited.

CREW-Detroit is affiliated with the National Network of Commercial Real Estate Women, an organization of 2,000 members with chapters in 20 cities nationwide.

For more information, or for a scholarship application, write Commercial Real Estate Women Inc., P.O. Box 573, Franklin, 48025.

The Tradition Continues

Imagine a new lakefront development that combines the lifestyle you expect with views of Lake St. Clair never before experienced. Think of sea gulls, sailboats, wind off the lake...viewed from traditional architecture and lush gardens. Think of Harbor Place. The Blake Company has continued the Grosse Pointe tradition with this new luxury condominium development. Choose your lifestyle: town houses, terrace homes, each in two- and three-bedroom variations that provide the depth of living that you require. And the amenities are virtually endless: boat slips, interior parking, landscaped views, and timeless quality construction. The Blake Company, the developer with generations invested in the east side and metropolitan area, proudly presents Harbor Place. Continue the tradition that you have lived all your life. Call the Blake Company today, and see for yourself the new tradition called Harbor Place.

Grunyons

luck dinners, nursing homes, local charity functions — and at Prost's daughter's wedding.

Six of the current Grunyons are Grosse Pointers: Gard, Parcels, Prost, Gary Corbin (who is Gard's son-in-law) Bob Wollard and Sandy McMillan. (There's also a father-son combination: Dave and Roland Sharette.) Other Grunyons live in other parts of the Detroit area — Rochester, Bloomfield Hills, Troy, Romeo, Westland, Port Huron, Farmington and others.

The group practices together once a week, from September through May, at members' homes. Practice locations alternate between the east and west side of Detroit.

New members are brought into the group by invitation from a current member. "The new person's first rehearsal is a performance," said David Whitehead of Lake Orion. "If he's lucky, it's a pancake supper or something."

The Grunyon's repertoire runs to classic mellow stuff that lends itself to four- or eight-part harmony, '50s and '60s golden oldies with lots of bop bop a do pas, la dee da das and do do do dos — reminiscent of the Four Freshmen or The Arbors or the Modernaires or the Hi-Los. They also do some more contemporary jazzy arrangements.

Nancy Gard speculated about some of the reasons why the group has stayed together for 41 years — other than the fact that they're good singers and they're entertaining — and they have a lot of fun.

"They're very family-oriented. The wives are always included at rehearsals and performances. We're helpful critics. We all know each others' children and we do things together as families.

"Also," she said, "Their alter ego — the Michigan Vocal Jazz Society — has encouraged the group and kept it together."

In 1978, the Grunyons formed a tax-exempt Michigan corporation, the Michigan Vocal Jazz Society, to encourage the development and appreciation of vocal jazz activities. The MVJS sponsors concerts, workshops, and provides information (via newsletter) about vocal jazz news in and around Michigan.

Past and present Grunyons and their families celebrated their 40th anniversary last year with a three-day weekend getaway at a nearby resort. About 100 people attended.

"They're an irreverent, laid-back, informal group," Nancy Gard said. "They're more coordinated vocally than physically."

Grunyons can dredge up some amusing anecdotes.

Gary Corbin of Grosse Pointe Park remembers a performance when they led off with a song called "Ain't Got Time to Die." The song was probably a poor choice. The performance was at a retirement home.

"Another time we were singing at a home for older folks," Corbin said. "The acoustics were terrible. So one of the Grunyons stopped, told the people to pick up their chairs and take them upstairs. The entire audience of senior citizens stood up, picked up their chairs, and lugged them up a flight of steps."

Why are they called Grunyons?

Nobody knows, Prost said. "Because the group got its start on the east side, we say we had a choice between calling ourselves the Conner's Creek Croakers or the Grunyons. We chose Grunyons."

"As you can see, there's nothing heavy about us," Prost said. "We just love performing." He's serious.

Support for adult cancer patients

A group providing support to adult cancer patients, their families and significant others is available at St. John Hospital and Medical Center.

The philosophy of the group is that many people can cope with cancer a little better if they share their experiences and concerns. Health professionals assist.

The group meets on the hospital's fourth floor on the third Thursday of each month from 6:30 to 8 p.m.

The next sessions are Feb. 15 and March 15.

For more information, call the St. John Physician Referral and Information Service at 1-800-237-5646, weekdays, between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Grunyons concert

The Grunyons will perform at the Mercy High School auditorium, 29300 Eleven Mile Road, Farmington Hills, on Sunday, Feb. 25, at 3 p.m.

The concert also will feature Joseph Kolinski, who is starring on Broadway in "Les Miserables" and on TV, in "One Life to Live," and the Matt Michaels' Quartet and the Mercyairees, a girls' chorus from Mercy High School. The concert is a benefit for the Rosemary Clooney Friendship Fund.

Bridge

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD
THE PASTEBOARD PASTIME

I was always inquisitive about cards so it was a great joy for me when I was a young one to be given permission to watch my parents and their friends play this wonderful game of bridge. I can remember that I'd test my father's patience severely with my constant questions so I'd usually get skedaddled out of the card players sight after about five minutes at being a nuisance.

After the war that we and the world were in, my good friend Bill Baubie offered to school my enthusiasm, but I was a slow student and my competence never came close to equaling the image I had built of myself. In time though I gained a better understanding of my ignorance and with luck and the patience of a few great players my game reached the lower edge of acceptability. I will never forget though that it was Bill Baubie who refused to give up, kept encouraging me, spurring me thru a multiplicity of self-improvement disillusion and for that I reflect upon his interest and friendship with gratefulness.

Ask anyone of Detroit's early bridge greats about the Baubie boys. Bill was the product of his father Ray's prudent shrewdness. Father and son sat successfully in the D.A.C. game of forty and fifty years ago and believe me you weren't invited to participate unless you had a reputation for excellence.

It's still a great pleasure for me to cross town and rub hubs with the country club card room craftsmen. The play is still reigned over by many of the original pioneers of this city's game.

Take today's hand which was thrust upon me over a holiday cocktail by one of our self appointed experts with the envenomed inquisition, "Woody, what do you think of this one?" ... and before I could be useful if that were the interrogator's intention, I was scolded and told how badly it was bid. "Imagine the luck! Only 29 points and they won 13 tricks!"

When I was finally given my chance I quietly agreed with the, ready to take exception, questioner as I didn't wish to goom up the party with a card discussion that would probably have disrupted any further hilarity of the evening. You see under those circumstances I don't bid softly and carry a big club and I knew my lovely hostess, who was upon us, wasn't a bridge buff.

Now in the sheltered, quiet confines of my private library I can write down what I think to be right, with little fear of being interrupted.

The hand was bid superbly! You see the experts are moving slowly in their bidding technique today especially with hands that they know partner won't pass until the optimum contract is found. You may be critical of south's third call (three hearts) but he knew this sequence wouldn't be passed by partner and as yet a fit hadn't been found. The four club call by south and north's five spade bid were exceptional and the bow that drove declarer to such heights. East's act of profligacy over seven hearts was brain bending and bumptious. You may wonder why blackwood ace asking was never introduced. Usually hands that contain voids are difficult for this call. If south over four hearts had bid four no trump and north had shown one ace the captain (south) wouldn't have known whether it was the worthless diamond or the important club. Much better to bid your first and second round controls as was done here.

South's play for the whole deck was reasonable and only required a 3-2 trump break which was 68% chance and a 4-2 or better spade break an 84% likelihood. Here was the play.

Ruff the diamond ace. A spade to the king. A club to the king. A low spade to dummy's trump ten. A trump to the ace. Another spade ruffed with dummy's last trump. A second diamond ruffed in the closed hand. Draw the missing hearts and play high spades and clubs.

This was a particularly fun one to write about because I subsequently learned that my games maiden aid and trusted early instructor played this hand partnered with one of the pilgrims of Detroit Bridge. Congratulations Bill Baubie and George Reindel, you have become two of my most perceptive students of the modern game.

Cottage Caring Person Program

The Caring Person Program at Cottage Hospital of Grosse Pointe will present educational seminars for anyone who wishes to learn more about cancer. Presented by Cottage Hospice, the training is designed for individuals who wish to become Hospice volunteers.

The Caring Person Program began Monday, Feb. 12, and will continue for 10 weeks on Mondays from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the board rooms on the lower level of Cottage Hospital.

The Caring Person Program offers instruction in many aspects of patient care and comfort including information about chemotherapy and radiation therapy, prescription management, nutrition, pain control and respiratory problems.

Participants will learn how to lift and position bedridden patients, as well as cope with emotional problems related to living with a cancer patient. The goal of the program is to provide basic information and act as a support group, providing participants with a framework for healthy dialogue and exchange of ideas.

Those persons who plan to become Hospice volunteers must take the 10 weeks of training to prepare them for a wide range of family situations and patient conditions. The Hospice volunteer is part of the support team of physicians, nurses, social

Hospice volunteers are specifically trained to provide physical, emotional and spiritual support to the terminally ill person and the family through the patient's illness, death and bereavement.

Currently there are about 70 Cottage Hospice volunteers helping patients and their families in the hospital and their homes. Volunteers are matched with compatible patients according to home location, schedule, personality, hobbies and other interests. Hospice volunteers help family members make adjustments to the care and needs of the terminally ill person and reinforce the instruction received in the Caring Person Program. They telephone or make personal visits to the patients and help to comfort the patient by listening. Volunteers may also help within Cottage Hospital. They run errands, make visitors feel comfortable and perform office duties.

Call Kathy Ritsema, hospice volunteer coordinator, at 884-8600, extension 2464, to find out more about the Caring Person Program and hospice volunteer training.

Cottage Hospital is located at 159 Kercheval Ave., Grosse Pointe Farms and is affiliated with Henry Ford Hospital through Henry Ford Health System.

Computer-age children

Grosse Pointe Rotary donated an Apple IIGS computer to the Foundation for Exceptional Children. The computer has a voice synthesizer to help non-verbal children. Tyler Smith, left, and Danielle Riley are using an Apple IIGS to learn how to tell time.

Marnie Oakman to review novel

"Stones for Ibarra," a novel by Harriet Doerr, will be discussed by Marnie Oakman at the Feb. 20 book review at 1 p.m. at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church. The story concerns the struggles of a woman and her husband to make a life for themselves in Mexico.

Oakman is a graduate of Denison University, where she was a four-time winner of the annual McNeil Prize for poetry. She has continued her interest in AAUW and many writing groups. An experienced reviewer of books, she has another great love — music. After graduation from Denison, she studied at Detroit Conservatory of Music and was granted a scholarship to the Detroit Civic Light Opera. She sang in all Memorial Church's youth choirs and has been a member of the Chancel Choir for 14 years. She has given performances as a folk singer as well.

Luncheon will be served at noon, preceding the book review. Reservations are requested only for the luncheon. Please call the church office: 882-5330.

Program on infertility will be Feb. 15

A free program, "Infertility: Causes and Treatments," sponsored by St. John Hospital and Medical Center, will be Feb. 15, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in the hospital's main auditorium, 22101 Moross at Mack.

Minu Kashaf, M.D., the hospital's chief of obstetrics and gynecology and a specialist in reproductive endocrinology, will provide an overview of the causes and recent treatments for couples faced with infertility.

Pregnancy Aid turns sweet 16

Pregnancy Aid Inc., a non-profit organization committed to helping women find alternatives to abortion, will celebrate its 16th year of community service.

The anniversary brunch, which will honor the past and present members, will be held at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club in Grosse Pointe Woods on Sunday, Feb. 18, at noon. Special guests will be Ann Strubler, a violinist with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, and her husband, David Strubler.

Pregnancy Aid is a volunteer organization offering free services to Detroit area women with unplanned pregnancies, who need help. Services include pregnancy tests, counseling and referrals for housing, legal aid, medical aid, and providing for other material needs.

Reservations or ticket information may be obtained through calling 882-1000 or writing the Pregnancy Aid office at 18495 Mack Ave., Detroit, 48236. The office is open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and Monday and Wednesday evenings from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Tickets are $20 per person.

Cottage Hospital Auxiliary met Jan. 31

The annual luncheon meeting of Cottage Hospital Auxiliary was held on Jan. 31, at Lochmoor Club.

Joyce Rock, president, presented Mr. Lambrecht, chairman of the board of Cottage Hospital, with a check for $40,000 to be used for the cardiac monitoring system.

Mr. Vasse, CEO of Cottage Hospital, spoke briefly about the many changes and improvements taking place at the hospital.

Lorelle Schultz presented award pins to 45 members. Hildgarde Bessert, Yvette Eggleston, Audrey Marr, Jeanette Schopbach, Mary Bell Taylor and Mary Wyckoff received pins for 35 years of service.

Newly elected officers were installed by Beverly Dingle, past state president of the Michigan Association of Hospital Auxiliaries. Mary Schmeidek is first vice-president; Shirley Giller is treasurer; Evelyn Skinner is assistant treasurer and Isobelle Sayer is corresponding secretary.

L'Alliance Francaise de Grosse Pointe

L'Alliance Francaise de Grosse Pointe has presented a second French Video film to the Grosse Pointe libraries for the enjoyment of Grosse Pointe residents and their children. The film is available to take-out for home use on a VCR. The film, "Peau D'ane," was produced in France, starring Catherine Deneuve in a story by Charles Perault with English subtitles. Earlier the Alliance made a gift of "French in Action" to the Grosse Pointe Libraries — a video that has been in great demand for home viewing by residents.

The first showing of "Peau D'ane" (translation: "Donkey Skin") will be at the Grosse Pointe Central Library, on Saturday, Feb. 24, at 2 p.m. The film will be shown free to Grosse Pointe residents on the second floor of the library, which is on the corner of Kercheval and Fisher roads.

The film, described by the New York Times, is: "gently charming, opulently beautiful and slyly humorous... a most agreeable confection."

Fernand Ledoux, Micheline Presle, Delphine Seyrig and Catherine Deneuve star in the lyrical fantasy about a tiny kingdom whose Queen is dying. She insists that her husband remarry someone even more beautiful than she is. It is recommended for all ages.

Helen Gregory, head of children's services at the library, and Diana Howbert of the libraries' Audio Visual Department, assisted Louise TeWalt in the selection of the film. TeWalt is President of Alliance Francaise de Grosse Pointe.

Pointes Bridge Club

Members of the Pointes Bridge Club will meet on Thursday, Feb. 15, at 11 a.m.

Those who cannot attend should call Sandy Kabbush at 886-7595 or Vera Axsom at 881-9593

Ribbon Questers

Members of the Ribbon Farms chapter of Questers will meet Monday, Feb. 19, at noon, at the home of Frederica Glahn, for lunch, a business meeting and a program.

The program will be "Old Valentines," by Jeanne Lorenz of the Cady's Corner chapter of Questers.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Patrick Schappe

Frear-Schappe

Julie Ann Frear, daughter of Dr. Robert George and Joan Frear of Grosse Pointe Farms, married Stephen Patrick Schappe, son of Dr. Robert Henry and Glory Schappe of Grosse Pointe Park, on Oct. 7, 1989, at St. Paul Catholic Church.

The Rev. Albert Hillebrand officiated at the ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Detroit Boat Club.

The bride wore a white Italian satin gown with a scalloped sweetheart neckline and short sleeves, a beaded and embroidered bodice, a sheath skirt and a cathedral train. Her cathedral-length veil was scattered with lace appliques and she carried a bouquet of white roses, stephanotis, freesia and ivy.

Bridesmaids were Anne Franco Rodriguez of Minneapolis, Dominique Karibian of Birmingham, Tracy Graham McCabe of Madison, Wis., the groom's sister, and Elizabeth Franco of Chicago.

Dennis Andrew Coles of Troy was the best man.

Groomsmen were R. Scott Schappe of Madison, the groom's brother, Lt. Joseph Daniel Greiser of Washington D.C., Charles Hickmas of Columbus, Ohio, Timothy Reinman of Troy, Lawrence LaFerte of Ypsilanti and Brian Coles of Seattle.

The bride's mother wore a peach and white silk tea-length dress with a matching tunic jacket.

The groom's mother wore a jade green brushed silk tea-length dress.

The first reading was done by Robert Schappe, the groom's father. The second reading was done by David Frear, the bride's brother.

The bride earned a bachelor of English language and literature degree from the University of Michigan. She works for Ameritech Information Systems as manager, diversified support services.

The groom earned a bachelor of arts degree in psychology from the University of Michigan. He is a Ph.D. candidate in Ohio State University's college of business.

The couple traveled to British Columbia, Canada, Vancouver and Victoria. They will live in Worthington, Ohio.

Mrs. James Bruce Higgins

Johnson-Higgins

Christina Marie Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Basil D. Johnson of Grosse Pointe Farms, married Cmdr. James Bruce Higgins, U.S.N., son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. Higgins of Port Charlotte, Fla., on Nov. 25, 1989, at Christ Church Grosse Pointe.

The Rev. Bryant W. Dennison officiated at the 7 p.m. candlelight service. A dinner reception followed at Lochmoor Club.

The bride's gown was fashioned of white silk shantung. The Basque-waisted bodice featured long sleeves and a scalloped off-the-shoulder neckline, highlighted by re-embroidered Alencon lace with pearl clusters. The sheath skirt swept into a cathedral train accented with lace and pearls. She wore a crescent-shaped headpiece made of pearls and flowers which was originally worn by her sister and carried a cascade bouquet of orchids, white roses, stephanotis and ivy.

Bridesmaids were Dr. Kirsten Ecklund Furdak of Boston and Lt. Tina Hill VanHook, U.S.N. of Washington, D.C.

Cmdr. Peter G. Roberts, U.S.N., of Yokosuka, Japan, was best man.

Groomsmen were Lt. Cmdr. John F. O'Brien, U.S.N. of Norfolk, Va. and Basil L. Johnson of Detroit, the bride's brother.

The mother of the groom wore a dress of teal and white silk.

The Christ Church Choir of Boys, Girls and Men and two trumpets provided traditional music during the service, under the direction of Frederic DeHaven.

John P. deRegt, the bride's cousin, and the Rev. Bryant W. Dennison were scripture readers.

The bride is a graduate of Grosse Pointe South High School and the United States Naval Academy. She is currently assigned as Protocol Officer for the Superintendent, United States Naval Academy.

The groom is a graduate of the United States Naval Academy and is assigned to the International Research and Development staff of the Chief of Naval Operations.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Donald Trube

The Rev. Stan Wilson officiated at the 1 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

The bride's gown was full-length, made of white cotton brocade. Her headpiece was made of babies'-breath and she carried white stephanotis, Amazon lilies and ivy.

Mary Evans of Cleveland, the bride's sister, served as matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were Sarah Burdt of Washington, D.C., Allyson Neily of Washington, D.C. and Stephanie Crawford of Lincolnshire, Ill.

Groomsmen were Daniel Ryan of Cincinnati, Donald Howson of Cincinnati and Robert McElroy of Washington, D.C.

The ringbearer was Anthony Trube, the groom's brother.

The mother of the bride wore a two-piece blue-green silk dress trimmed in matching satin and a corsage of white Amazon lilies.

The bride and groom attended Muskegon College and will continue their studies at the University of Cincinnati.

They will live in Cincinnati.

Burgess-Morency

Lisa Marie Burgess, daughter of Ruth and John R. Burgess of Grosse Pointe Woods, married James Gerard Morency, son of Bill Morency of Warren and Gerry Morency of Mount Clemens, on July 1, 1989, at Holy Innocents Church in Roseville.

The Rev. Welsh officiated at the ceremony, which was followed by a reception at Red Run Golf Club.

The bride wore a full-length ivory satin gown with an over-bodice of ivory lace and a chapel-length train. The gown was styled with long lace sleeves with bridal points and Alencon lace trim around the neckline, bodice and hem. Her fingertip veil was held by a wreath of ivory silk flowers and she carried a cascading bouquet of white roses and stephanotis with ivy and variegated greenery.

Bridesmaids were Pat Morency and Kathy Morency of Roseville, the groom's sisters.

Attendants' dresses were light peach-colored tea-length satin with peach lace overbodices and short sleeves. They carried arm bouquets of champagne sweetheart roses, babies'-breath and swordferns tied with ribbons of peach and cream and highlighted by streamers.

Mr. and Mrs. James Gerard Morency

The best man was Earl Mackey of Roseville.

Groomsmen were Tom Morency, the groom's brother and Randy Gross, both of Roseville.

James Vincent Morency of Wayne was the ringbearer.

The mother of the bride wore a pink silk jaquard tea-length dress accented with bugle beads.

The bride is a secretary at B.C. International.

The groom is a graduate of the Detroit Institute of Aeronautics and is an aircraft mechanic for Zantop International Airlines.

The couple traveled to Mackinac Island and northern Michigan.

A family affair: The Detroit Yacht Club's new commodore, F. "Skip" Gmeiner of Grosse Pointe Farms, accepted the commodore's flag at the club's Officers' Ball on Feb. 3 from his father, Past Commodore W.D. "Toot" Gmeiner of Hendersonville N.C., formerly of Grosse Pointe Park. The Gmeiners are the first father-son team to have held the office of commodore in the Detroit Yacht Club's 122-year history. The elder Gmeiner was commodore in 1965.

This year's ball decorations were silver and hunter green. Tables were set with tulips from Holland and coral from India, and the club's exterior was decorated with white miniature lights and ice sculptures.

Grosse Pointer John Tompkins is treasurer of the club and Jerry Richardson of Grosse Pointe Park is a director.

Besides the younger Gmeiner and his wife Linda, Tompkins and his wife Colleen, and Richardson and his wife Marty, others who were among the more than 300 members and 35 local commodores at the ball were: Paul and Regina Smith of Grosse Pointe Park, Mike and Suzanne Tuite of Grosse Pointe Farms, Ron and Daryl Dawes of Grosse Pointe City, Doug and Patty Gmeiner of Grosse Pointe City, Dan and Donna McCosh of Grosse Pointe City, DYC Fleet Surgeon Dr. Steve Metropolitan of Grosse Pointe Farms, William and Maryanne Williams of Grosse Pointe Farms and Sue and William Bresser of Grosse Pointe Park.

The power of music

Seniors may use music to alter their moods, improve health

By Marlys Dee Craig
Special Writer

We often listen to music without thinking why we like it or dislike it. If we understood the benefits that could be obtained from music, we could choose certain selections according to our needs. We might need to change our mood, improve our health or increase our capacity to learn.

Many clichés have evolved over the ages to express this value of music. One written most often: Music hath charms to soothe the savage breast. Actually, music may be compared to a universal language, without words, which communicates different moods and ideas.

John Guinn, Detroit Free Press music critic, tells how music expressed his feelings of grief even better than words. One piece he names which depicts feelings of loss is the finale from Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 6,

"Pathétique."

It is possible to feel a lighter degree of sadness by listening to "Memories," by Andrew Lloyd Webber, from "Cats." Jim Croce's "Time in a Bottle" may have the same effect.

Eerie music is depicted in "Danse Macabre" and in the theme song from "Jaws." Romantic or erotic pieces are illustrated by Ravel's "Bolero" or "Summer Love" by Neil Diamond.

Shifting to a happier mood, how about "Beer Barrel Polka" or Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro"?

Older adults may feel that the use of music in their lives should have started at an earlier time. Nonetheless, one way they may work with music is to monitor their own listening and to create a list of selections that represent their various moods.

Emil Guntheil and co-researchers report in "Music and Your Emotions," some key areas of emotional expression in music:

- Happy, gay, joyous, stimulating, triumphant
- Agitated, restless, irritating
- Nostalgic, sentimental, meditative, relaxing
- Sad, melancholic, grieving, depressing, lonely
- Prayerful, reverent
- Eerie, weird, grotesque

Music therapist E. Catherine Moore cautions all who might want to alter a mood with music: Match the music with the mood to open up communication of personal feeling. For depressed older adults, it is recommended they not be exposed initially to cheerful music, but to begin with sad music such as Handel's "Largo," or the spiritual, "Sometimes I Feel Like a Motherless Child."

Older adults are apt to prefer less musical volume and low, mellow tones.

Changes in body processes are possible according to the kind of musical stimulus. Both physical and mental processes change together, since the person responds as a total unit.

Scientific studies have demonstrated that persons are a collection of moving atoms. Vibration hitting against the body rearranges these atoms. Music therapist Mary Jane Hennessey tells about a musician who sits between trumpets and echo trumpets for a performance of Verdi's "Requiem." The clear-cut sound of the brass shakes up the atoms and causes the musician to be energized for hours after the performance and eliminates his need for sleep.

On the other hand, monotonous, soft music has the opposite effect on our bodies.

Stimulation by music can facilitate a healthier condition for medical treatment. It can help a patient react better to medical procedures by putting him in a more receptive mood. It can relax a person if that's needed — or it can gradually stimulate him if he is unresponsive and make him more aware of his surroundings.

Research also shows that music affects respiration, pulse, blood pressure and the galvanic skin response. The "Pathétique" could be used to slow down the cardiovascular system, for instance, but it is not recommended for someone who is ill or fatigued.

Music therapists who work with groups of older adults found decreased insomnia, increased energy and the ability to walk farther, after regular sessions with music.

In addition, older adults' learning can be improved through music. Ostrander and Schroeder, in their book, "Super-learning," report that relaxed concentration is best achieved by using string music from the Baroque era with a metronome beat of 60. Relaxed concentration facilitates learning.

One of the disturbing aspects of aging is the decline of short term memory. Hennessy worked with a small group of older women in nursing homes who came from families with high income and education. After being institutionalized, the women had grown worse and had more anxiety and depression.

The stimulus of music and attention from other support group members reversed their memory loss — suggesting a significant future use for music.

ULS swim team takes co-ed job seriously

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

Five girls and six boys in one spot normally causes some animosity or hard feelings, but not at University Liggett School.

With 11 swimmers and 11 different personalities, one would think Coach Peter Imsdahl would have his hands full trying to accommodate everyone's ego. Not so.

Imsdahl, in his first year at the helm of the co-ed swim team, has had very little hardship to deal with despite the perpetual battle of boys vs. girls.

Jon Sieber

Instead of having a boys' team competing this time of year and a girls' team competing in the fall, ULS decided four years ago to have a co-ed team.

"I think it's easier to lump us all together for one season instead of two," said Imsdahl. "Swimming — especially when you have only 11 swimmers — can be a very expensive sport, so having only one team helps the budget."

The swim team is forced to split its workouts between Parcels, South and Pierce, because it doesn't have a pool at the Cook Road campus. All home meets are at Parcels, where there are only five lanes. South, also unlike the traditional six-lane pools, has three lanes.

"It's inconvenient, but the kids have just worked around it," Imsdahl said. "Nobody really complains about it because that's just the way it's been."

In fact, the girls will cart the boys to the pools and vice versa.

"This is a close group," Imsdahl said. "It's not like, 'I'm not taking a ride from a girl,' or, 'I'm not asking her if she needs a ride.' The kids really like one

'I've been beaten, but I don't think I'd like to be beaten by a girl.'

Jon Sieber

Even though ULS has only one swim team, Imsdahl feels the girls would still want to compete with and against the boys.

"I give the girls a lot of credit for wanting to swim on a boys' team because they (girls) already have a disadvantage because they aren't swimming against other girls," said Imsdahl. "On this team, the girls often keep up with the boys and actually finish some of the sets the guys can't. I don't think the boys are upset by it, I think they just try to use it as a tool to get better." Particularly Erica Teigte.

"She's a real diligent swimmer," said Imsdahl. "She's always completing some of the set the boys can't finish. She's really a hard worker and is one of our top swimmers."

Distance events like the 200 and 500 freestyle don't interest many girls, according to Imsdahl, but he won't tell Abby McIntyre that.

"A lot of girls like to back out of the distance events, but she's right in there," Imsdahl said. "In doing that, it says a lot about Abby's competitiveness."

losing to a girl," or "not letting a boy beat me" is obvious.

"I've been beaten, but I don't think I'd like to be beaten by a girl," said Jon Sieber, who swims the 200 and 500 freestyle races. "It's basically the macho-image thing, but I just wouldn't want to be beaten by a girl."

Beth Weyhing and Katie Tompkins, two of ULS' top girl swimmers, have been able to consistently beat the male opponents.

"When I swim against and beat the boys, I feel pretty good about it," said Weyhing, who swims the 200 individual medley and 100 butterfly. "The guys I beat usually congratulate me, but when they get out of the pool their coach is mad because his swimmer lost to a girl."

"I prefer to think I just finished ahead of him."

They help you out of the pool? Does that bother you?

"No, because I'll help them out too," said Weyhing. "I don't think it's a sexist statement. Helping someone out of the pool

Tompkins, who's proficient in the 100 breaststroke, claims that despite being good friends she'd rather beat her male teammate in practice and a male opponent in a meet.

"I think it's a lot of fun to be part of a co-ed team and not just an all girls' team," she said. "I also think it's more rewarding to beat a boy than a girl, but that doesn't mean we're not all good friends."

Imsdahl will shuffle his lineup to put his stronger swimmers in

"We like to see the girls come in second or third and beat the other guys," said Sieber.

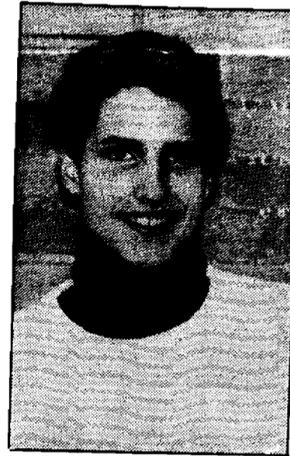

As for Greg Behling, whose strongest event is the 100 breaststroke or 200 individual medley, losing to a girl wouldn't bruise the ego, unless...

"I wouldn't want to be beaten, but if the girl is faster I wouldn't feel any worse than if a guy were to beat me," he said. "When we're training and a guy tells me to work harder, I really don't listen to him. But, when a girl on our team tells me to work harder, I take it more to heart."

Gender doesn't matter when it comes to diligent workouts because everyone works just as hard, but this team has a more care-free attitude than most.

"It's a real relaxed attitude for us," said Sieber. "We still work hard, but it's more fun than an all boys' team would be."

The program is only four years old and more girls and boys will come through the system, but Imsdahl just hopes the program picks up soon.

Greg Behling

the proper event, and even if slighted, Tompkins doesn't mind — as long as the team wins.

"There's all different levels of swimmers and it's just accepted as to who the better swimmer in a particular event is," she said. "The top swimmer in that event has a tendency to show-off a little bit in practice. I don't know if it's deliberate, but..."

Although most males are physically stronger than most females, Imsdahl finds that stamina and perseverance can sometimes be more vital than brute strength.

"In a lot of ways, the girls are better trainers than the boys," he said. "In fact, the girls have actually done better in closer meets than the boys. In most of our events, we can assure ourselves of a second and third place because we've got the girls who can touch-out the opponent for team points."

"It's awfully exciting to see our girls touch-out the boys. When that happens both teams go bananas."

Katie Tompkins

"We're low on numbers because I think a lot of it is our young program," he said. "We're excited about the future, however, because we've got some exciting swimmers at the middle school."

A heavyweight rematch on ice

Jim Bunn stopped 27 shots and lost. Kevin Nesler blocked 21 and won. Jim Pappas, Mike Kiskalt and Brad Warezak scored goals and won. Scott Nesom, who was on the losing end, was the only one to beat Nesler with a shot from 10 feet.

Bunn probably won't get the start in net when his North teammates challenge Nesler and the South Blue Devils Feb. 15 at the St. Clair Shores Civic Arena, but the rematch of the much heralded crosstown hockey rival will be another knock-down drag-out war.

North is looking to avenge its 3-1 loss to South Jan. 11, and South is looking to continue its highly successful season.

The season series is tied at 1-1, and the 3-1 win was the first time the Blue Devils had beaten North since January, 1987.

North is currently ranked No. 9 in the Free Press and South is No. 9 in The Detroit News. Big deal. All that is forgotten when North meets South.

In the first meeting, North tried to physically pound the smaller, yet peskier Devils, and lost that battle, too. South avoided most of the hits, while North became frustrated and pressed too much. North, which hadn't played like a team until two weeks ago, struggled in the first match-up, but rest assured that a rejuvenated Norsemen team will be clad in green and gold.

About two weeks ago, North coach Mike Manzella held a rap session. All the players aired their particular grievances and since then North has made great strides. Despite being 9-9 overall, North is clearly better than that. Earlier in the season there was too much individual play, but now a team shows up every night.

Injuries have also put North on the hot seat. Tim Ryan, Ed Barbieri, Frank Lucido, Jeff Jensen and Brad Russell checked into the ward, and No. 1 goaltender Matt Krieg has finally returned to the lineup after missing the first 10 games. The injuries are beginning to heal and with Krieg in net, South will have a difficult time knocking off the stronger Norsemen this time.

Senior forward Bob Beltz is on a tear for the Norsemen. With two hat tricks in two games, Beltz ignited a team struggling to meet preseason

Knights clinch MIAC title

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

With two convincing victories last week, the University Liggett School basketball team assured itself of the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference National Division title.

ULS, now 6-0 with two league games to play, beat Southfield Christian (70-45) and Lutheran Westland (69-41). It was the win over Westland which gave the Knights, 12-2 overall, the championship.

"Lately we've been really switching our defenses and confusing some teams," said ULS coach Chuck Wright, whose team was ranked in the top five of Class C earlier in the season. "We feel very comfortable with the four bread-and-butter defenses we have, and we're fortunate to be deep enough that when we substitute we lose nothing."

Coming off a MVP weekend at the Maumee Tournament, ULS senior captain Kandia Milton turned in a team-high 16 points and 10 rebounds in the win over Christian. Milton also had five assists and five steals.

"Kandia is playing very well right now," Wright said.

Tarik Lester, only a junior, had 14 points and six assists.

"It was a gradual process," Wright said when asked how his team rolled to a 36-21 halftime lead. "We were patient and worked hard defensively."

Three nights later, ULS scooted to a 36-15 lead at the intermission and never looked back.

"We switched defenses and used our full and half-court presses," Wright said. "It created a lot of points on turnovers."

Leading ULS was Brent McMahon, who scored 13 points. Kandia Milton, Lester and DeDan Milton had 12 each.

"We're 12-2 and lately it's been very easy for us," Wright said. "We're a good team who's played some weaker teams, but we know how to play well against any team. We've got to get emotionally and mentally prepared for the state tournament now."

Hockey

Senior Mike Coello has anchored the defensive corps for the ULS hockey team all season, and he continued last week as the Knights hung on for a 4-3 win over last season's Class A runner-up, Flint Powers.

Coello, who is having his finest season with 10 goals and 27 assists, assisted on Jesse Kasom's goal that gave the Knights a 1-0 lead. Andrew VanDeweghe, who figured in all the scoring, also assisted.

"Mike is — by far — the most disciplined player we have," said ULS coach John Fowler. "His work ethic is great and he's always held up our defense. That's not to take away from the other boys on defense, but Mike has been as solid as a rock, especially in big games."

ULS took a 2-0 lead in the second period after Doug Wood notched his 43rd goal of the season from Jon Davis and VanDeweghe, and then went up 3-1 on VanDeweghe's goal. Davis and Kasom assisted.

Flint Powers cut the gap to 3-2, but Wood got the game-winner, his 44th, just 40 seconds later. Tripp Tracy stopped 34 of 37 shots for the Knights.

Volleyball

The Lady Knights split a pair of games, losing to Detroit Country Day School, 15-6, 15-3, 15-2, but beating Lutheran Westland, 15-2, 15-5, 15-8.

Ali Frederick served an excellent game against Westland, notching 18 service points in three games. Other key players were Linda Morreale and Lynn Sinkel.

expectations of being a state-title contender. Beltz is capable of single-handedly beating South and there's really not a Blue Devil who can stop the speedy Beltz.

South is quietly, yet with some authority, making a bid to send Coach Tim Zimmerman out with the league's Coach of the Year award. South, which had only one league win in 1988-89, has six. North has only two.

South is guaranteed a second-place finish in the Michigan Metro East, and North is in fourth place, just a few points from the fifth and final spot. North gave up on contending for the league title five losses ago, but because of its new found team play, is capable of showing everyone why it was a preseason favorite to win the state title.

South, on the other hand, is a developing team which played a light schedule, but has played Anderson, Catholic Central and Brother Rice, all top 10 teams, tougher than expected.

At 7:50 tonight, all records are forgotten and pride, emotion and bragging rights are first and foremost.

Charlie Stumb, who will be playing football at the University of Michigan this fall, guards a Utica Chieftan earlier in the season.

Stumb, 6-6 and 225 pounds, has been on a late-season tear. He's been averaging about 20 points per game over the last three, and the Norsemen, after losing seven straight earlier in the season, have put together a six-game winning streak.

North sports

Senior forward Charlie Stumb, who signed his National Letter of Intent to play football at the University of Michigan next fall, scored 27 points and grabbed seven rebounds to help the North basketball team beat Fraser, 64-48.

North's sixth straight win moved it to 4-3 in the league and evened its overall record at 7-7.

Stumb is averaging 20 points over the last three games.

"We're just playing well as a team," said Stumb. "We get up and get in their face on defense and we just go all out. We're running the floor and playing hard-nose basketball.

"Did you ever think we were going to be in this situation?"

After a 1-7 start, nobody expected North to be even at 7-7.

"We're done losing," Stumb said. "We may lose one, maybe two, but the drought is surely over. We're on a roll right now because everyone's clicking."

Brian Sheehy had 11 points and eight rebounds, and Jon Kesman had 10 points to go with six rebounds.

Hockey

After routing Lakeland and moving one game above .500, the North hockey team slipped to an even 9-9 with a 7-4 loss at Gabriel Richard.

Volleyball

By James Moore
Special Writer

After losing to Chippewa Valley, the North volleyball team romped past Henry Ford II and Utica Eisenhower.

Against Eisenhower, Jane Rice was perfect on nine sets and Pam Thomas led the defense with two blocks. Katie Loehr had 10 sets and Laurin Schultz and Anne Boutrous combined for three aces and 16 perfect serves. North won, 15-9, 15-5.

Senior Stumb helps Norsemen hoopers to 6th straight win

North throttled Ford II, 15-10, 7-15, 17-15.

Overall, North is 9-5 and 5-1 in the league.

Swimming

At Ann Arbor Huron, Charlie Roddis took first in the 100 backstroke and Steve Swan was second in the same event, but the Norsemen lost, 113-68.

Sergio Santiviago (200 freestyle), Andrew Bringard (100

Gymnastics

A very close meet for the Lady Norsemen ended in a 115.35-113.25 defeat at Edsel Ford.

Megan Gray, who earned a team-high 29.1 points, earned a state-qualifying score of 7.95 on the balance beam and on vault (8.15). Joining Gray and also qualifying for the state on beam were Nicole Venettis and Amy Nerone, also with 8.15 scores.

Debbie Stevenson had the meet's highest score (7.6) in the floor exercise, and on the uneven parallel bars (6.45).

Heather Henning had solid performances on the beam (6.65) and floor (7.35).

Wrestling

Dan Collins (145) and Bryan Fleming (112) were the only two Norsemen to qualify for the individual regional meet after taking second place at the individual district meet.

Collins and Fleming will compete Feb. 17 at Troy.

Babe Ruth baseball plans set

The Grosse Pointe Farms-City-Park Babe Ruth Baseball League has begun plans for its 38th year of youth baseball for players age 13-15.

Registration forms are being mailed this week and registration has been set for Feb. 28 and March 1 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Neighborhood Club.

Those interested in helping as a manager or coach are asked to call Richard Reynolds at 881-2428, or write to the league at P.O. Box 36026, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich., 48236.

The league provides a Prep League (13-year-olds only) and two levels of competition for age 14-15.

For more information, call Jim Bellanca at 882-2425, evenings.

Babe Ruth coaches needed

Anyone interested in coaching or managing in the 13-15 year-old Farms-City-Park Babe Ruth league should contact John Shook at 881-6580.

Coaches are asked to commit to the program from April until July.

Charlton on a tear

C.T. Charlton, of Grosse Pointe Shores, has been scoring goals in soccer at a record pace.

Charlton, 5, who plays for the Kickers in the Neighborhood Club league, has had seven goals in his last five games, with three goals coming in his last game against the Tacklers.

In his first year of soccer, Charlton led his team in scoring.

Cottage Hospital offers class on reducing, managing stress

Stress is built into our way of life and when left unchecked, stress can affect our health and well-being.

Cottage Hospital is offering "Systematic Stress Management," a program that teaches you how to control and eliminate stress.

Carol A. Singer, M.A., conducts two consecutive Wednesday evening classes, beginning Feb. 21, from 6:30 to 8:30. The classes will be held in Boardroom B.

Reservations can be made by calling Cottage Community Services, 884-1177.

The New Jaguar XJ6.
One Of Its Greatest Comforts Is The Luxury Of A Lower Price.
$39,700

Many years ago, Jaguar established a uniquely honest form of luxury. That of offering a fine car with value for money. It's a tradition that's especially true today.

Because for 1990 we've not only lowered the price of the XJ6, we've improved it in a number of significant ways. Our improvements start with a larger, more powerful 4-liter engine. There's also a new automatic transmission with "sport" mode shifting for more spirited response. And for safer, surer stopping under all braking conditions, we've installed a more sophisticated Teves anti-lock braking system.

Of course, true motoring luxury requires a cabin filled with natural beauty. That's why the XJ6 has seats faced in hand-tailored supple leather and an interior that glows with highly polished walnut.

Test drive the 1990 XJ6 at your Jaguar dealer. You'll come to find that among its many pleasures is the comfort of knowing that you're truly getting value for your money.

Joe Caldwell lifted the Blue Devils past East Detroit by hitting six key free throws down the stretch.

South sports

Devil hoopers get help, win

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

Despite being ill and looking as white as a ghost, Grosse Pointe South senior guard Joe Caldwell scored 11 points, including six pressure free throws, in the Blue Devils' 53-49 win over East Detroit.

Three days before the win over the Shamrocks, South beat L'Anse Creuse North, 55-53, behind Durmon Coates' 16 points.

The wins allowed South to stay one full game back of Port Huron Northern, but Port Huron is now tied with South after falling to Mount Clemens. At the start of the week, South was one game behind both Port Huron schools.

"We've still got a breath left," said South coach George Petrouleas. "We've got a shot at winning the league championship still, but we've got to just concern ourselves with winning our games and whatever happens at the other end happens."

"I'll feel a lot better if someone can knock off Port Huron Northern."

Chances are good because the Huskies have to play Mount Clemens and Anchor Bay.

South is 11-5 overall and 7-2 in the Eastern Michigan League.

At home vs. East Detroit, South trailed for three quarters, but outscored the Shamrocks 18-13 in the fourth quarter to pull away for the win.

"We knew we could apply some defensive pressure full court," said Petrouleas, "but to do that you've got to put the ball in the basket. We weren't scoring so we couldn't press, but we hung in there defensively and finally got the ball to fall."

South shot 41 percent for the game, but hit 10 of 20 shots in the final eight minutes.

After falling behind by seven points early in the fourth quarter, South battled back and forced East Detroit into some mistakes. Caldwell was fouled down the stretch and calmly sank six straight free throws to ice the game.

Tim Gramling and Brian Letscher had 10 points each in the win, and Rob Khoenle had 12 rebounds.

At L'Anse Creuse, the score was closer than the game. South led by 15 at the half, 32-17, but a poor second half allowed North to get back in the game. Gramling hit for 15 points and Caldwell had 10.

"We got some help with Port Huron losing, but again, we've got to worry about things at our end," Petrouleas said.

South has only three league games left, including one at Port Huron Feb. 16.

Hockey

It's been a long time since a South hockey crowd could really cut loose, but it got its chance Feb. 10 after the Blue Devils tied Southgate Anderson, the No. 1 team in Class A, 3-3 at the GPCR.

"It was great," said Devils' coach Tim Zimmerman. "The crowd was into the game and the kids played very well. When we scored the tying goal everyone — including the crowd — went nuts. You would have thought we won the gold medal."

Well, maybe not the gold, but a lock on second place in the Michigan Metro East. With a league record of 6-1-3, South is guaranteed a second place finish.

"The way the kids are playing, they're making the coaches look good," said a chuckling Zimmerman. "I keep saying we're playing over our heads, but the kids just keep playing so I don't know how good we really are. All I know is the kids are working very hard and it's paying off."

Earlier in the week, South tied Catholic Central, 3-3. Central is the No. 4 ranked team in the state.

"It was definitely a great week for South hockey," Zimmerman said. "But it's not enough to rest on. We've still got some games left and then face a tough regional. We've got to continue to work hard."

At home against Anderson, a team which has lost only once in three seasons, South took a 2-1 lead at the end of one period on goals by Jim Pappas and Brian Crane. It was Pappas' seventh goal and Crane's 25th of the season.

Anderson tied it at 2-2 before the second intermission and took a 3-2 lead early in the third period, but with 1:03 left to play, Pappas banged home the tying goal off of Mike Kisskalt's rebound.

Goalie Kevin Nesler stopped 29 of 32 shots.

"It was one of the best high school hockey games I've ever been associated with," Zimmerman said. "We didn't back down from Anderson. We were in their faces the whole night and it was a fun game to watch."

After a scoreless first period against Catholic Central, South's Kisskalt and Crane netted goals to give the Devils a 2-2 tie at the end of two periods. Kisskalt then put South up 3-2, but Nesler, who stopped 22 shots, gave up a late goal to Catholic Central. The two ties also kept Nesler's home unbeaten streak alive.

Volleyball

The Lady Devils remained two games out of first place, despite beating L'Anse Creuse North and East Detroit last week.

In the 15-10, 15-9 win over L'Anse Creuse, Emilie Ayrault had 13 service points and Jenny Kalmink had four kills to lead the way. Tina Higel, who had seven kills in the 16-14, 15-4 win at East Detroit, had four kills and Patt Blake had three. Senior Katie Kolp had 16 assists setting.

At East Detroit, Kolp had four kills and Ann Gross had three.

South, 19-5, 7-2, trails first-place Port Huron Northern with two league games left.

Squirt travel

The Grosse Pointe Capitals are on their way to the Squirt AA state tournament after a three-game sweep in District 3 of the Michigan Amateur Hockey Association playoffs.

The Capitals wrapped up the title with a 5-4 overtime win against USA of Sterling Heights, after a 5-1 first-round win over St. Clair Shores and a 7-2 win over USA in the semifinals.

A pair of goals by Andrew Ricci, and one each by Ryan Robson and Matt Benfer gave the Caps a 4-0 lead over USA in the title game, but USA tied the game with a furious third period.

The Caps got the game-winner when Billy Crandall skated the puck across the blue line, dropped a pass for Terry Brennan and Brennan fired a shot to beat the USA goalie.

Crandall led the Caps with five goals in the tourney, including four in the 7-2 win over USA; Brennan had four, Benfer added three, Ricci scored two, and Kevin Baskel and Brett France each had one. Danny Sylvester turned in a strong tournament performance.

The defensive combinations of Robson and Danya Marshman, Joe Berger and Paul Huebner were solid in district play. Robbie King was strong in net.

The Capitals, coached by Tom Brennan, Gary Berger and Rob Crandall, is one of eight teams that will compete for the Michigan Squirt AA championship in Escanaba March 2-4.

TAKE YOUR PICK . . .

RICCO is MR. PERSONALITY - a sweet little long-haired 9 week old grey & white Tabby . . . he loves to play.

SIMONE has to be seen to be appreciated. She is a 4-year-old Persian Tortoise-Shell Tabby that has been de-clawed. Sweet and loving, she is one of the most beautiful cats we've ever had.

LOUIE is simply adorable! A 10-week-old Doberman mix puppy, he is very loving and anxious to please.

HAVEN FOR UNWANTED ANIMALS is a non-profit, no destroy shelter. Because we are a no destroy shelter, we are limited to the number of animals we can shelter. We house approximately fifty-five dogs and approximately eight cats.

WE ARE A NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATION WHO DEPENDS ENTIRELY ON VOLUNTEERS AND DONATIONS TO HELP RUN AND MAINTAIN OUR FACILITY.

We are in dire need of donations to help with payments for the building, utilities and medical bills. If anyone would like to donate their time-or make a contribution to our shelter (be it money or supplies), we would greatly appreciate any type of help.

OUR SHELTER IS IN DIRE NEED OF:

- An electrician, who can donate his/her time and skills to improve our facility.
- A plumber, who can donate his/her time and skills to improve our facility.
- Roofers, who can donate their time and skills to help seal a leak at the south section of our building.
- A veterinarian, who can donate his/her time and skills for medical attention to our animals.
- Volunteer workers, who can donate their time in helping with cleaning, feeding, walking, grooming and giving T.L.C. (Tender Loving Care) to our animals.

HAVEN FOR UNWANTED ANIMALS
313 E. BALTIMORE
DETROIT, MI 48202

Anyone wanting to volunteer their time working at the shelter can call: DR. COLLINS AT 892-7822. The shelter is open to the public Tuesday thru Saturday from 11:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The shelter is located at 19601 Mt. Elliott (on the west corner), between Outer Drive and Seven Mile Road, and between Sherwood and Mound Road.

IF YOU HAVE ANY FURTHER QUESTIONS REGARDING THE ABOVE, PLEASE CONTACT KEN ZELDA, ADMINISTRATOR, AT 873-2789.
