Local lawyers are familiar faces on talk show circuit

If you've watched "Oprah" or "Geraldo" "Donahue" in the past year, chances are ou've caught appearances by two Grosse pinte attorneys.

Deborah O'Brien and Robert Ihrie, partners in the law firm of Killebrew, Ihrie and O'Brien in St. Clair Shores, have become familiar faces on the popular national talk shows, primarily because of a case they call heir "videotape sex case."

Their first appearance on national programming was on "A Current Affair." Since then, they have been interviewed five more times on national television shows.

"It's only a matter of routine now that we're contacted by certain reporters," O'-Brien said.

The videotape case began in May 1988. A local man had secretly videotaped lovemaking with a woman with whom he had an affair. When the affair ended, he began distributing the tapes.

The "Fatal Attraction" case climaxed months later in December 1989 when he was apprehended on his way to her home with a loaded gun, O'Brien said.

The pair originally represented the city of East Detroit and later, the woman who was being harrassed.

By December 1988, the story had garnered media attention, and hit the wire services. A reporter, camera crew and producer from "A Current Affair" showed up at their office door. Ihrie did the initial interview. They were interviewed by "A Current Affair" four times in the next month; the story was aired in January 1989.

That was just the beginning.

The videotape sex case was a fitting addition to an array of topics that have aired on talk shows: surreptitious videotapes on "Donahue;" revenge after break-ups on "Oprah;" real-life sex, lies and videotape on "Geraldo." And the attractive young lawyers are easy to talk with, articulate, and by their own description, "tenacious" in pursuing a case.

"We have fun at it - we really do. The practice of law can either be exciting or boring — and ours has been exciting," Ihrie said.

Legwork in the videotape case was the stuff movie mysteries are made of, including midnight collection of garbage to look for handwriting samples, clues, something to help them solve their case.

The television experience itself has been exciting. Though the attorneys do not receive a fee for appearing, the shows provide per diem living expenses. O'Brien said the "Oprah" and "Donahue" shows were most generous with their transportation, food al-

Winter's eve

A cold day in February is unmatched in its splendor and dignity when the streets are covwith snow and the silence is unbroken except for the occasional sound of crunching footsteps. This was the scene on Kercheval on the Hill last week following a snowstorm mixed with rain. For more chilling photos, see page 12A.

Youths need a ride to party; man dies

By John Minnis Assistant Editor

They had a gun and they needed a car so they could go to a party.

Today, a Grosse Pointe Farms man is dead and six young men, ages 15 to 18, are in jail facing first-degree murder. They will all be tried as adults.

Their victim was 53-year-old businessman Benjamin L. Gravel, who died Feb. 8 from a single bullet wound.

According to the detective's report filed with other court documents following the young men's arraignment in 36th District Court Feb. 13, the six youths decided early in the evening to steal a car.

They then went to Clairpointe, the road leading from the Bayview Yacht Club to Conner and Jefferson, because there are "no homes and people around." On the way to Clairpointe, one of the youths handed a .38 caliber to another.

The youths found a downed tree limb, placed it across the northbound lanes and then "hid in the shadows" and waited for a victim.

Shortly thereafter, a car approached and stopped. The driver was about to get out of the car and move the limb when he spotted several youths hiding at the side of the road. The driver told his passenger, "It's a setup," and sped away.

The next car to come along was the 1989 Cadillac driven by Gravel. It was 10:10 p.m. and he had just left a yacht association meeting at Bayview. He stopped at the limb, but when he saw one of the youths running toward the car, carrying a gun and yelling "Get out," Gravel accelerated quickly, running over the tree limb.

As Gravel sped off, the youth with the gun fired several shots at the car, with one bullet going through the driver's side window and striking Gravel in the side. He was able to retain control of the car until he got to the intersection of Conner and Jefferson. Gravel died at St. John Hospital at 11:21 p.m.

Police were able to piece some of the case together by interviewing individuals from whom the youths tried to buy bullets. They needed more .38 shells because they had shot all their bullets at cars on Clairpointe.

All the youths were charged with first-degree murder and assault with intent to commit armed robbery. Two of the six also face felony firearm charges.

All the defendants stood mute at their arraignments and are being held without bond. A preliminary examination is scheduled Feb. 23 in 36th District about a year ago to keep an eve on proposed expansion of Detroit City Airport and its effect on the Grosse Pointes and other east side communities. The committee has asked for concessions from the airport in relation to size of planes and flight patterns.

When plans for a new runway were revealed last year, the Pointes were saved from an increase in traffic because the new runway parallels the old run-

Grosse Pointe residents were concerned because one of the options was an east-west runway which would mean planes would ascend and descend directly over the area. The east-west runway option was discarded since it interfered with traffic from Detroit Metro Airport.

Additionally the current proposed runway, known as Option G, was shortened by 800 feet. eliminating larger planes like 747s from using the airport.

"With Option G, only people in parts of Grosse Pointe Woods would hear the planes as they make their turns," King said, not too much different from the current situation.

"We think we're hearing more (airplane) noise than we were in the past," King said. He believes people are more aware of the noise now, and that there hasn't been an increase in traffic.

Goodman to compare world regions

Dr. Robert J. Goodman, professor emeritus of geography at Wayne State University, will present a three-part "Comparison and Contrast of Three Disparate World Regions, " beginning at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 28, with "Kenya-Tanzania."

"The East-African countries of Kenya and Tanzania lie astride the equator at high elevations and are home to the world's most spectacular herds of wild animals," Goodman said. "Much of the economy is tied to safaris catering to tourists with cameras in hand."

This session will allow-participants to share visually in Goodman's several trips to the area. Besides animals, his slides will illustrate the results of severe continuing social, political and economic problems.

The second in the series, "Norway," will be presented Wednesday, March 7, while the third, "Ecuador-Peru," is scheduled for Wednesday, March 14. Fee for each session is $8, with advance registration requested.

All programs will be held at Barnes School, 20090 Morningside Drive

Purses snatched

Two women were accosted by purse snatchers in the Park in two separate incidents two weeks ago.

On Feb. 9, a woman, 24, got out of her car on Maryland about 10 p.m. and was confronted by a man who grabbed her wallet. After a short struggle, he ran away down the Kercheval alley.

The man is described in police reports as black, about 5 feet, 8 inches, and wearing jeans and a blue sweatshirt.

On Feb. 10 at 11 p.m., another woman, 19, and a man, 24, were walking toward a restaurant from their car when a man ran up behind them and grabbed the woman's purse.

He ran away, pursued briefly

by her companion.

The suspect is black, 6 feet tall and 170 pounds, according to the police report.

Farms man run over by own car; ex-wife's involvement questioned

Assistant Editor

Grosse Pointe Farms detectives are investigating the mysterious hit-and-run injury of a 60-year-old Farms man last week and what connection his 35-year-old ex-wife had in the in-

The Farms man was in critical condition at St. John Hospital Friday, two days after he was discovered lying in the east-bound lanes of Mack Avenue at 12:28 a.m. Feb. 14.

When police arrived at the hitand-run scene near Moran on the Grosse Pointe Farms side of Mack, they found the man badly injured and bleeding. A woman, who said she was a medical doctor and the man's ex-wife, was bending over the victim, according to police reports.

She told officers that the man was all right and that he could get up. She interferred with emergency medical technicians as they prepared to take the man to the hospital.

The woman told police that she was having dinner with her former husband at Larco's Inn on Mack near Moran, and after eating, they went across Mack to the Pointe Cafe for a couple of drinks. She said that after a while, she left to get their car. and as she was driving back to the Pointe Cafe, she saw her exhusband lying in the street.

Officers investigating the scene found a pool of blood in the metered parking area at Moran. They followed a trail of blood, and found several articles of clothing and personal items, such as a brown shoe, a hat and a man's watch, along the trail of blood that ended where the vic-

Police investigators theorized where he was found on Mack.

A bartender at the Pointe Cafe told detectives that the woman had two drinks of Absolut vodka while sitting with her ex-husband. The woman was seen laughing and crying during the 45 minutes she sat with the man. The woman then left alone, and a few minutes later the man got up to leave, saying he was going to walk home.

While checking the area, officers found a 1989 Cadillac with a damaged left front end parked facing south on Canyon, which shares the Mack intersection with Moran Road. The Cadillac was parked on the east side of Canyon, facing the wrong direction.

A check on the license plate showed that it was registered to an engineering firm owned by the hit-and-run victim. Underneath the car, detectives found a piece of the man's checkered pants hanging from the undercarriage behind the driver's door. Inside the car, the officer found his ex-wife's purse.

During questioning, a police officer reported that the woman's breath smelled strongly of alcohol and that her speech was slurred. She seemed incoherent and had to be restrained from interferring with the EMTs, according to the officer's report.

The keys to the Farms man's Cadillac were found in her possession, and the woman was arrested for drunk driving and taken to the police station.

At the station, a search warrant was obtained for a blood sample to determine the woman's blood alcohol level. She was then taken to Bon Secours Hospital where the sample was taken. Detectives are awaiting lab results to determine if the woman was legally drunk. So far she has not been charged with drunk driving or any other offense. She was released to her attorney.

According to police, the woman was verbally abusive and became so violent while being held in the jail cell that she kept banging her head against a Plexiglas window and cracked it. The woman was apparently not injured, according to police.

When detectives questioned the Farms man at the hospital prior to emergency surgery; the man said a car hit him, but Detectives refused to make any speculations on the case. They said an investigation is under way and charges depend on the outcome of the inquiry.

Unlike most watering holes in the area, many of the patrons not only stop to say hello to Sinacori, they share a joke or two.

"They always stop and talk to me," Sinacori said. "They give me the high five and I give it back to them. They seem to relate to me as if I was young like them.'

While Sinacori admits to being pleased by the attention, he can't understand why he has become an attraction, a drawing card for the popular night spot.

Engler seeks a new image as moderate

o nobody's great surprise, Sen. John Engler last week officially threw his hat into the ring as a candidate for governor of Michigan, but he did go out of his way to seek a new image as a political moderate.

That appears to be a worthwhile objective in view of the lopsided defeats suffered by recent Republican candidates for governor who were regarded as excessively responsive to or even captives of the party's right wing.

The problem for Engler appears to be twofold: one, to gain more statewide name recognition and, second, to carve out a political niche that is different from that of Gov. James Blanchard, who himself likes to be regarded as a moderate.

Engler visited all 83 counties of the state during his 1989 evaluation of his prospects for winning the governorship. If his visit to the Grosse Pointe News office was typical, he achieved his purpose of getting acquainted with and showing people that he is a reasonable, responsible and moderate Republican.

If both Engler and Blanchard are moderates or centrists, they still differ on many subjects and issues, as Engler emphasized in his opening campaign speech and as Blanchard press secretary Tom Scott told the news media.

"The basic difference is that Jim Blanchard wants to use government to help people and the Senate leader wants to play politics for its own sake." Scott said.

It is true, of course, that Engler finds it difficult to see much right with the Democratic administration of the state and, instead, calls the governor's claim that Michigan is the comeback state "a grim fairy tale."

In fact, Engler points out Michigan has one of the highest unemployment rates in the country, has one of the highest tax burdens for both individuals and businesses and ranks dead last in the return of tax dollars from the federal government.

More specifically, the GOP hopeful said Michigan lost 257,000 manufacturing jobs since 1986, its school dropout rates are among the worst in the nation and its education test scores are low. In addition, welfare spending is up, one in every 10 persons in the state is on some kind of welfare, violent crime and drug use are up, pollution is up and property taxes are the fourth highest in the nation.

Engler cited the results of a recent Detroit News poll that showed Blanchard getting only a C average on his report card as governor, a finding that the GOP candidate used to emphasize that it is time for a change in the state's political leadership.

"The people of Michigan know that if we are to be strong and competitive with the rest of America and the rest of the world, we must be better than average," Engler said. "Our schools must be better than average. The cars we build must be better than average. Everything we do, everything we produce, everything we are must be better than average.

"That means we need a governor who's better than average. But average is exactly what we have in Jim Blanchard."

In his first day on the campaign trail, Engler met only token opposition from Blanchard partisans and from abortion pro-choice advocates. He obviously hopes abortion won't become a major issue but said in answer to a question he supports the parental consent legislation, would vote for it and would ask the governor to sign it.

Just two days later, Engler did vote for the legislation when the Senate passed it. But in view of the governor's pro-choice stance and his warning he will veto parental consent legislation, it is clear the abortion issue is already heating up in Michigan.

All in all, however, Engler made an impressive start on his campaign to dislodge the Democratic governor who, of course, is already busily running for re-election even though he has not yet formally entered the

As prexy Gandelot bows out

It is appropriate that Jon Gandelot's last official act as school board president will be the distribution of diplomas at South High School's graduation exercises on June 13.

Why?

Because Gandelot's daughter Nancy will be the final member of the class to get her diploma, just as Gandelot himself was the final member of his graduating class to get his at the same school. Both were class presidents who traditionally are the final recipients each year of their diplomas.

This interesting sidelight to Gandelot's retirement from the Grosse Pointe Board of Education should not be permitted, however, to overshadow his excellent performance during 12 years of service to the school system and the community, including five as president of the board.

He himself sees the high point of his service as the consistent community support for the millage that the system requires to maintain its record and reputation for excellence.

Gandelot points out that the millage elections provide excellent feedback from the community on whether it believes the board is doing a good job for the school system. While some millage elections have been defeated, the necessary funding has been voted in the end.

Like other board members, Gandelot receives $30 per meeting, which would pay for only 12 to 15 minutes of his service in a large downtown law firm. But he emphasizes people don't offer themselves for community service for the money or prestige.

In his case, as a product of the local schools, he felt he wanted to give something back to the system which had done so much for him. So he began his board service when Nancy had just completed kindergarten and his son had not yet entered school.

Gandelot himself put in 14 years as a Grosse Pointe student. That includes two years in kindergarten which he started prematurely at age 4, plus his five years in elementary school, three in middle school and four in high school. And now his children are also completing their careers in the local schools which surely certifies the Gandelots as a Grosse Pointe schools family.

The school board has survived some tense times in the last 12 years. Through the school closing controversy, millage campaigns, searches for new superintendents, changes in curriculum and other innovations, Gandelot has served as an excellent example of the solid, responsible citizen leadership that has so well maintained the quality of the Grosse Pointe school system.

Take a bow, Jon.

BUT MISTER POLITICIAN... IT'S A MOLE HILL AND THAT'S THAT!

State of the County is good In his State of the County report last came from the county executive ra week, Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara contended that "honest and efficient government has finally taken root in Wayne County." Many of his constituents would agree with him.

But to his credit, McNamara also pointed to the need for an increase in the state gasoline tax at the rate of two cents a year for three years in order to improve the road system in the county and the state as well.

In making this recommendation, McNamara split with Gov. James Blanchard who has been leery of any tax increase since his 1983 recommendation for an income tax hike backfired and cost the Democrats control of the state Senate.

In view of the needs of the state highway system, it's disappointing that the message came from the county executive rather than the governor. But McNamara may be governor some day. He has told reporters he'll run in 1994 if Blanchard doesn't.

Among his accomplishments, McNamara listed a balanced budget, further cleanup of the Rouge River, the extension of a public works and environmental program for misdemeanor offenders to nonviolent felons, and a $1 billion improvement program already under way at the county-run Metro Airport.

He also plans to offer a county-based "health net care program" for small business to cut employee medical costs, provide more housing for the homeless and take action to stop neighborhood blight.

His report constitutes an impressive record to bolster his plans to seek re-election in November.

A winner in persistence

Te surely have to give John Lauve credit for persistence. The Grosse Pointe Woods resident is once again seeking public office in an effort to help curtail public spending.

Over the years Lauve has unsuccessfully sought a long list of elective positions, ranging from county commissioner to U.S. representative. He also has fought a losing battle to recall Gov. James Blanchard for the 34 percent income tax increase he pushed through the Legislature in 1983.

This time he has filed for the GOP nomination for governor, which means he is taking on state Sen. John Engler of Mount Pleasant, majority leader of the Senate, who has just announced. Lauve said he wants Engler to take more decisive steps to cut state spending.

On re-entering the political arena, Lauve admitted he had no campaign budget but told the news media "the recall started the same way." That was a reference to his claim he helped create the Senate GOP majority by his support for the recall efforts that ousted two Democrats and led to GOP control.

In addition to persistence, Lauve also shows his willingness to battle the big boys. Go to it, John.

Moratorium

To the Editor:

The Grosse Pointe Historical Society has sent the attached letter to the village manager and council of Grosse Pointe Shores. We urge other citizens to voice their support during the moratorium period. Let's encourage our elected officials to plan for a community that has regard for its past and pride in its future.

The Grosse Pointe Historical Society praises you for enacting the six-month moratorium on all new construction and property splits in Grosse Pointe Shores. Would that all the Grosse Pointes had taken the time to plan guidelines for proper development years ago and had followed them. Perhaps Lakeshore and Jefferson would have retained more of the character that contributed to our community's fine reputation.

We urge you to take this opportunity to rethink the way large estates and other properties have been demolished and subdivided. There are viable alternatives. Adaptive reuse of large buildings can be very successful. Wouldn't Rose Terrace have made an outstanding public library or museum if Grosse Pointe had accepted it as a gift from the estate of Mrs. Dodge? In many instances, large mansions can be converted to condominiums and other units added on the property, thus preserving the house and grounds.

Looking to the future, what will distinguish Grosse Pointe from surrounding communities and attract desirable new families? Our stately homes, our giant elms, a great part of what made Grosse Pointe unique will be gone. Will community pride and property values follow suit?

Please consider preservation, not demolition and subdivision, as the way to enhance our community. Perhaps the other Grosse Pointes will follow your lead. For the board of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society,

Lisa Mower Gandelot President

Surprise To the Editor:

To the Editor:
To the Editor,

Imagine our surprise and pleasure at the arrival in our mail slot this week of a notice from the Grosse Pointes-Clinton Refuse Disposal Authority and from the city of Grosse Pointe Farms that there is now available in the Pointes a safe way to dispose of used batteries.

Here is proof that government is ready to get involved in the effort toward safe disposal of refuse in general. Can recycling centers be far behind?

Thank you, Grosse Pointe Farms and Grosse Pointes-Clinton Refuse Disposal Authority.

Mr., Mrs. William N. Hope Grosse Pointe Farms

No biz like snow biz

The snow storm last week that' dumped nearly six inches of the puffy white stuff on the Pointes brought moans and groans from most of the people I ran into on the way to work.

The first sign of trouble appeared when I went to open my front screen door and found that it was stuck shut by a snow drift. "Well, this is Michigan," I told myself. Though the phrase is probably the oldest cliche in the book, it seemed to cheer me

Before battling the snow, I turned around to find my winter snow-stomping boots. While lacing them up, I flicked on the television and was presented with a long list of school closings in the Detroit metropolitan area. Even the weatherman looked worried and did a bit of groaning himself as he described the numerous auto accidents in the

When I was a kid, the sight of heavy snow brought certain glee that even groaning adults could understand. By the time I reached adolescence, heavy snow represented a perfect economic opportunity. The thought of shoveling snow brought dollar signs to the eyes of my friends and myself.

We would create a telephone network on heavy snow days. Each would watch a different news channel, hoping for the magic words from the anchorman: "Schools in Grosse Pointe are closed today."

At that point, four or five of us would grab our shovels, dash to the pre-arranged meeting place and venture out in our entrepreneurial pursuit.

We liked the Park, specifically between Balfour and Three Mile; Kercheval and the lake. After some much-needed practice with our sales pitch, we took turns going up to the houses. "Good morning, we noticed you have a lot of snow on your walk and driveway." Either the door would slam or the person would ask, "How much?"

I don't think we ever charged the same price twice. We just bartered at the doorstep as the others waited at the street, trying to look forlorn and underfed. Sometimes it worked, sometimes not. Usually an elderly woman outdid our efforts to look full of woe and we shoveled her walk and driveway for much less than the going rate, whatever that was.

Often a robust woman would grin and brag, "I have three boys who will shovel for free." Feeling like we had violated the American family work ethic, we sauntered next door and tried

Once in a while, we would get someone who would give us more than we asked for. These generous people, bless their hearts, would be added to our list of houses to visit again and often, generous do-gooders that we were.

By midday, we were groaning as much as our adult counterparts. Without fail, we marched into the Steak and Egg on Jefferson and sat down to cheeseburgers, fries and juke box songs, usually "Tumbling Dice" and "Maggie May."

As we divvied up the cash, we tried to talk ourselves into going back out and doing it again. One after another, elderly gentlemen wandered in, each with a hardluck snow story of their own. Their groaning continued throughout our feast as we watched the snow fall outside.

When the snow was especially heavy and continued falling throughout the day, my friends and I could start working at the beginning of our route all over again. "Weren't you boys here earlier?" an occasional homeowner would ask. To avoid that embarrassment, we would make sure the same person didn't go up to the same house twice in one day.

Even with our delicate planning, we would occasionally goof and a militant mother would appear - demanding that we shovel her snow again at no additional charge. Soon after we had to expand out work area to avoid doing double-duty. _

Eventually, we were undercut by individualist entreprenuers who raced ahead of us with snow blowers. We just stood there and groaned. Since then, the advent of heavy snow just doesn't have the same meaning it once did.

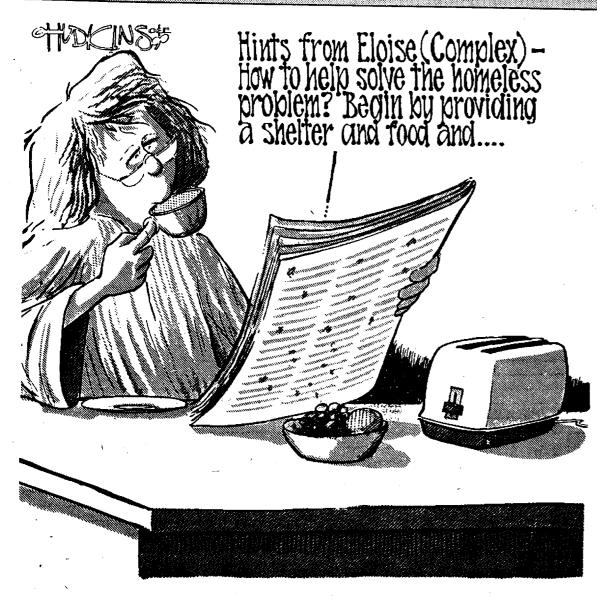

Now when it snows, I just wait for the doorbell to ring. If not, I moan, groan and get out the old snow shovel.

Lecture

To the Editor:

What is worse than a longwinded, self-righteous lecture about the supposed sins of abortion (legal and safe) from a woman?

Answer: The same lecture inflicted by a man. Joseph Wright was given much space (Feb. 8 issue) for a worn and weak argument. Perhaps he has no wife or daughters who might risk a life-threatening abortion if abortion is once more made illegal.

Alice M. Kachman Grosse Pointe Farms

Abortion

To the Editor:

This letter is in response to Mr. Joseph Wright's recent letter (Feb. 18). Although I disagree vehemently with much of Mr. Wright's letter, there is one point on which we do agree. That point is that it is indeed tragic that the moral, and I would add personal, issue of abortion has become part of the political agenda. I would further assert that a religious issue, which this clearly is for Mr. Wright, also does not belong in the political arena. There are pro-choice and anti-choice religions just as there are prochoice and anti-choice individuals. There is also the principle of separation of church and state in the U.S. Based on that principle, I do not believe that any particular religious viewpoint should find expression in the

Mr. Wright also noted that he has never heard of physicians who perform abortions nor of a woman who would admit to having one. I believe there are at least three reasons for this. One is that many physicians who perform abortion services and women who have abortions fear retribution from the socalled "pro-life" activists. Another reason which relates specifically to women is that abortion is a private, personal reproductive matter. Most women do not publicly discuss their method of birth control or other details of their sexual activity. Why would they do so concerning abortion? Finally, knowing how Mr. Wright feels about this issue, what physician or woman would choose to relate this information to him? I personally know of both physicians who provide abortions and women who have chosen this option.

I must also comment on Mr. Wright's statements about his support of womens' rights and equal opportunity. He stated that women have a right to control their own bodies, but must do so responsibly. There are two serious problems with these comments. First, he does not extend the right to control one's own body to the decision of whether to carry or end a pregnancy. Without the right to control one's own fertility and childbearing, all women's rights are essentially lost. Unintended pregnancy interrupts lives and work opportunities in ways that Mr. Wright apparently cannot understand. Second, Mr. Wright's comments about "control" imply that women who have unintended pregnancies are irresponsible. This is judgmental and simplistic. He also apparently does not understand that in many instances, abortion is a responsible choice when contraception fails. I ask him to consider the following statistics released in January 1990 by the Alan Guttmacher Institute:

• For 90 percent of her reproductive life, the average woman is trying to postpone giving birth or avoiding having more births.

• For over one-third of her life, the average American woman is trying to avoid pregnancy.

• 92 percent of women at risk of pregnancy use contraceptives. Women using contraceptives have 43 percent of unintended pregnancies. • 54 percent of pregnancies in the United States are

The competition

Young ladies and young gentlemen: Start your pianos; your violins; your cellos.

The ninth annual Seventeen Magazine and General Motors National Concerto competition will take place from March 14 to 19 in Ann Arbor.

It's billed as the only major national competition for high school age classical musicians.

The event will host 33 of the nation's top young musicians who will perform in three categories: piano, violin and cello. Prizes are a $5,000 scholarship in each category.

If the judges think that one of the three category winners is ready for a solo performance with a major symphony orchestra, he or she may be awarded the grand prize - which includes the opportunity for such a performance.

The final concert in Ann Arbor is open to the public. Call 212-407-8100.

Members of the 1940 Ice Capades cast are having a 50th reunion on Thursday, March 15, after the Ice Capades' evening performance in Detroit.

This season's Ice Capades edition, "Return to Romance," celebrates its golden anniversary tour with performances Wednesday, March 13, through Sunday, March 18.

They're looking for everyone who was ever employed by the Ice Capades in any capacity, either on tour or in the Hollywood, Calif. studio. Former employees should send names, current addresses, season(s) employed and positions held, to Bill Bain, Talent Coordinator, Ice Capades, 6121 Santa Monica Blvd., Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Detroit Ice Capades fans may take part in the reunion party too. Call 567-7408.

By the way — Ice Capades talent scouts are looking for bright skating talent for its next 50 vears.

Open auditions will be Friday, March 16, after the 7:30 p.m. performance.

Skaters must be proficient in basic jumps and spins and should be trained in figure and

Given these facts, it appears that many women will continue to need and to choose abortion. Channel One

To the Editor:

As I read your editorial in the Feb. 8 edition, I was shocked that you should take that venue to attack Dr. Julie Corbett for her leadership in the implementation of technology in the school sys-

Dr. Corbett is a committed, highly trained professional who has carefully studied the Channel One program, examined the alternatives and feels that the benefits outweigh the possible problems. The fact that she volunteered to chair the committee, of which I am also a member, should really be to her credit since it is above-and-beyond the call of Channel One would provide the two high schools with daily, high quality, teen-oriented news broadcasts giving the opportunity for classroom instruction in current affairs, global geography and even propaganda techniques (through the analysis of commercials). It would also supply an infusion of high-quality, networked video monitors which could then be used for many other instructional applications including computermediated instruction. In addition, the installation of the satellite dish would provide many other instructional programs not now available to the schools.

One reason for the enthusiasm of some people in the Grosse Pointe school system for this program is the limited resources being provided by the school system for the infusion of technology into the curriculum. The district may be "well-funded" but that has so far not significantly affected the areas of technology. We are seriously behind most of our neighboring districts in providing quality applications of instructional technology. These seem to be low on the list of priorities.

I would have no argument with a well-researched article opposing the Channel One program. I have read several. I do, however, seriously object to your using this issue as an attack on Dr. Corbett.

> Dr. Ed McKeehan Grosse Pointe Farms

Editor's note: We respectfully suggest that we did not attack Dr. Julie Corbett or anyone else in our editorial on Channel One. Instead, we did express disagreement with her viewpoint as expressed in an earlier Grosse Pointe News story. When we disagree with local people, we try not to be disagreeable. If we were thought to be in this instance, we're sorry.

Decline offer

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to "TV news in Pointe schools?" in the Feb. 8 edition. I agree that the Grosse Pointe Public Schools should decline the Whittle company's offer to accept Channel One as part of the school day. The time, costs, and actual, feasible advantages of Channel One must be weighed before the school system considers accepting the program. Upon reviewing the Channel One program, it should be decided that the schools refuse the program.

There are many unanswered questions regarding Channel One. Primarily, when will the 12-minute program be viewed? Also, empirically how has the program benefited students? How effectively is the material presented? Advocates of Channel One have yet to demonstrate any outstanding advantages that could justify shortening instructional

Probably the most controversial aspect of Channel One is the commercial advertising during the programs. Analysts claim that commercials greatly influence the consumer. Analysts also claim that teenagers are impressionable consumers. Considering this, the commercials aired could create an impact. How does the Whittle company decide what commercials are suitable, and which are not? The thought of a for-profit company intruding on our lives is important and their commercials seem inappropriate and make me feel uneasy.

The National Education Association, the State Board of Education, and the National PTA all oppose Channel One. This fact alone should cast a dark shadow on the program.

The dispute over Channel One comes down to a 12 minute controversial program that would take away from instructional time. It is also opposed by three national organizations recognized for their dedication to education. We have survived without Channel One, and we will continue.

For life

To the Editor:

The loss of a friend to violent senseless death causes one to reassess priorities and choices in life. For many persons in Grosse Pointe, the murder of Ben Gravel has touched such a raw and compelling nerve; we are not the same today as we were yesterday.

For myself, Ben's death by gun has brought to prominent awareness a yearning to see weapons of death disappear from our homes, businesses and streets through gun control legislation and enforcement. After losing a friend to such a meaningless act of violence — one that would probably not have happened without the easy possession of guns - I can no longer ignore the urgency of openly fighting for an end to handguns in our cities.

Every Monday from 12 to 12:30 p.m., members of the Anti-Handgun Association (AHA) with other concerned persons and groups stage a prayer vigil in front of the Spirit of Detroit statue to call for legislation to outlaw handguns in our city. For months I have intended to join them, but only now with the loss of my own friend to such violence - am I committed to add my voice to those dedicated to ending this era of bloodshed in our communities.

As Clementine Barfield, the founder of Save Our Sons and Daughters (SO-SAD), discovered after the violent death of her 16-yearold son in 1986, the victims of homicide are not restricted to family and friends of those killed, but extend to family and friends of those who kill. Violent death makes victims of us all.

I call upon my friends and neighbors here in Grosse Pointe to mourn our friend Ben Gravel not in ways that increase existing division between suburbs and city, but to celebrate his life by joining our voices to those who cry for an end to this violence. Let us together struggle with courage and dedication to rid our cities of handguns that do nothing but bring death and destruction. Let us be part of the on fight for life.

New state hotline to serve vets

Michigan's Vietnam War era veterans who need information or referral services on local, state or federal programs may use a newly installed statewide hotline by dialing 1-800-MIC-VIET.

The 14-member Michigan Agent Orange Commission was established by legislation to review and make recommendations to the Michigan Department of Public Health on the effects on human health of Agent Orange and other defoliants used during the Vietnam War.

A primary objective of the commission is to enroll Michigan's Vietnam War veterans for participation in four specific types of health studies. They include the study of overall mortality, cancer incidence, birth studies and dioxin exposure.

Veterans and their organizations which formerly used the Agent Orange Hotline (1-800-648-6942), are advised to use the new hotline (1-800-MIC-VIET) for direct assistance. Veterans seeking information about Agent Orange compensation should call the Agent Orange Payment Program at 1-800-255-4712.

Sand dunes have always been a favorite subject for Monte Nagler's camera. So what better time and place than a recent trip to White Sands, N.M., for a late afternoon self-portrait?

Self-portrait is form of self-expression

Without a mirror, you will need to create the picture in your mind before you begin. Think out your pose and expression in advance with any props or other objects already set in place for an environmental picture. With your camera on a tripod, compose carefully and know exactly where you want to be when the self-timer trips the shutter.

Using your own shadow can be yet another creative self-portrait method. Taking a picture of your shadow on a road, against a building, or along with some other subject can reward you with symbolic self-portraits. The time of day dramatically affects the size and shape of your shadow, consequently many creative possibilities exist.

As in all good photographs, if a self-portrait is to be effective, it should convey a strong feeling or idea. Strive to show a certain mood or emotion in your shot. Try to say something about yourself.

Don't limit yourself to facial shots. Be creative - consider a picture of yourself looking out the window or in motion of some kind. Try a photo of just your hands, or your feet, or even just your eyes. What is important is to be expressive and to say through your self-portrait, "this is me!

Recycle your toxic batteries

The next time you replace your flashlight batteries or the batteries in your watch or your camera flash, don't toss the old ones in the trash.

It's those batteries - among other items - that have kept the Grosse Pointes-Clinton Refuse Disposal Authority incinerator closed for more than a year. Routine testing in December 1988 showed that ash from the incinerator had higher than allowable levels of lead and cadmium two materials found in batteries.

The disposal authority, after some nudging from Grosse Pointes Citizens for Recycling a local group of recycling advocates - has provided all the Pointes with special bags for collection of household batteries. The bags are available at the five city offices.

If you live in Grosse Pointe City, Farms or Shores, the bags can put out with your regular garbage each week. Keep it separate and visibly apart from the rest of the refuse.

Batteries can also be dropped off at all city offices or at many local retail stores which sell batteries. The program is for household batteries only; car and boat batteries cannot be accepted, but usually can be returned to the place of purchase.

The batteries collected will be buried in a toxic landfill.

Karen D. Kendrick-Hands has testified before the state legislature on behalf of Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling and the

An environmental lawyer, Kendrick-Hands said the time for battery legislation is now. Batteries buried in traditional landfills leak mercury, cadmium and lead. When burned, they emit the chemicals into the air.

Considering that the average American uses eight batteries a year, spent batteries add up.

Currently the Michigan House of Representatives is debating a bill which would make disposal of lead acid (car and boat) batteries illegal, and would require a deposit when purchasing the batteries by 1993.

With the success of the Michigan bottle deposit law - currently 97 percent of all cans and 93 percent of all bottles subject to a deposit are returned - Kendrick-Hands believes a battery deposit will work, too.

The Wayne County Health Department offers free anonymous and confidential AIDS counseling and testing service throughout the country. Dr. Donald W. Lawrenchuk, medical director for the Health Department, indicated that: "AIDS has become the number one major public health concern facing the nation today. Already in Michigan there have been over 1,500 cases of AIDS reported in addition to an estimated 30,000 to 40,000 people in Michigan carrying the AIDS virus. Furthermore, until a vaccine and/or cure is developed for AIDS, educating the public on how to avoid becoming infected by the virus as well as counseling high risk people to change their lifestyles to prevent transmission is our main strategy against the disease."

Studies have demonstrated that the Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV), which causes AIDS, has primarily been shown to be transmitted through sexual contact with an infected person and sharing of contaminated items that have come in contact with infected blood, such as occurs with use of contaminated needles among those using intra-venous drugs. Babies born to HIV infected mothers are also at risk for developing AIDS.

Keith A. Tait, director of disease control for the health department, said, "The health department has been offering counseling and testing for the past four years. News Star sixth-graders DARE to say no

Assistant Editor

All 33 sixth-graders at Our Lady Star of the Sea took a stand last week. They all dared to say no to drugs.

Patricia Stumb's sixth-grade class was the first to graduate the DARE program, an intensive 17-week course taught by Grosse Pointe Woods Public Safety Officer Sally Beghin. DARE is an acronym for Drug Abuse Resistence Education.

DARE began in Los Angeles and has spread to 47 states. The Michigan State Police strongly supports DARE and educates local law enforcement officers, such as Beghin, in DARE course instruction. In fact, all DARE instructors have themselves participated in the same program they are teaching the kids.

At the DARE commencement exercises at the school Feb. 15, the students made speeches, gave testimonials on how and why they will avoid drugs and six teams performed skits on how they will say no to drugs when they are confronted.

A special treat was the keynote speaker: Detroit City Councilman Gil Hill. Hill is the former Detroit police inspector who became well-known for his role as Inspector Todd in "Beverly Hills Cop" and its sequel.

Hill told the sixth-graders that there is something so bad that it does not respect age, class or color and that it's a one-way ticket to nowhere. "I'm talking about drugs," he said.

Lake level

Lake St. Clair at the end of December was at elevation 573.14 feet above the mean water level at a Tathiar Point.
This was about 2 inches below that it was a year ago, and 3 inches above one month ago. The December monthly mean level of 573.37 feet was about 2 inches above the long-term average for December.

The lake, however, remained about 33 inches below the all-time high December monthly mean level, which was recorded in 1986.

The forecast shows that at the end of January, the level of Lake St. Clair will be about 7 inches below what it was at the end of January. The water level in June 1990 is expected to be about 3 inches below the label of the specific specific properties.

Snow woes

Last week's white stuff enused problems for folks all over the City last week. Police received a rush of calls about downed wires, arching wires, snow pilose obstructing access, even a tree on fire behind Comerica Bank (it wasn't). A truck slid on the ice and hit two vehicles parked at Moir's Service Station.

Tools taken

A City man reported to police that tools and tool boxes valued at $8,000 were taken from his home on Rivard Feb. 12.

One of the main suggestions by the committee — thoughing the middle school from a step-ried day to a seven-period day— was not implemented by the board, but will be studied by administrators who will submit a report to the school board in January 1991.

Superintendant John Whritzer said cost is a main factor in hold-ing off on the seven-period day.

"When we went to seven periods in the high school, we needed to add 10 teachers." he said. "This report says they'll need 12 more teachers in the middle school study committee has $339.984 or you. Chrysler's economic Omni and Horizon to fade in the horizon

When Chrysler Corp. closed its Jefferson Avenue plant on Detroit's lower east side, it also signed the death warrant for one of the most important cars it had ever built.

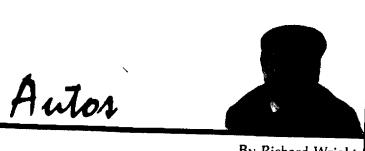

It was not a classic by any means, nor was it high performance or luxurious, as many Chrysler Corp. cars have been through the years. The Dodge Omni/Plymouth Horizon was an important car because it blazed new trails as the first Americanbuilt front-wheel-drive economy car, the first serious American answer to the oil crisis.

At their demise, the four-door hatchback twins looked pretty much the same as they did when it was introduced as 1978 models almost 13 years ago. (The Horizon and Omni were exactly the same except for their names and the fact that Horizons were sold by Plymouth dealers and Omnis by Dodge dealers. Actually, that should read "still are" sold, since Plymouth and Dodge dealers have about a 140-day supply of the small cars on hand, certainly one reason production has Horizon/Omni sales have been sliding for more than a year and in recent months the decline has been sharp. Horizon sales in January totaled 1,907, compared with 2,947 a year ago, while Omni sales were 1,874, down from 2,841.

The car's longevity doesn't compare with that of the Volkswagen Beetle, still in production in Mexico and Nigeria after well over 40 years, or the 19year lifespan of the Ford Model T, but the Horizon/Omni accumulated plenty of seniority. Omni and Horizon have never been hot sellers, but steadily racked up sales over the years, mainly to entry-level and secondcar buyers. Close to 2.8 million were built.

They have not changed substantially over the years and so have become ubiquitous and do not attract much attention. But Barry Dressel, director of the Detroit Historical Department, lists the Plymouth Horizon, the first front-wheel-drive, transverse-mounted engine small car to be built by an American maker, as one of the 100 most important cars in Detroit's his-

Unlike many bargain-basement cars, the Omni and Horizon were well-equipped and pleasant cars to drive. In 1986, reacting to lagging sales, the corporation added some standard equipment, cut the price by more than $700 (tooling had long since been paid for) and called the model "America." Gauges replaced the warning lights of old and such goodies as carpeting, intermittent wipers and AM/FM stereo were made standard. Its engine was upgraded to Chrysler's fuel-injected 2.2-liter four. It worked. At less than $6,000, it was - and still is - a real bargain. Sales picked up and the Omni/Horizon had a reprieve.

When the Omni/Horizon was introduced in December 1977 as a '78 model, it looked like a sure winner, a much better design and more sophisticated automobile than Ford's Pinto or Chevrolet's Vega and Chevette, all reardrive units with serious problems.

The Horizon/Omni was designed by Chrysler Corp.'s French subsidiary, Simca, which the corporation later sold to Peugeot-Citroen. It looked like a more substantial, American-style Volkswagen Rabbit, it had more room than many larger cars and it was peppy despite its small (1.6-liter), fuel-efficient engine. Motor Trend designated it Car of the Year.

But sales were disappointing. The second oil crisis helped sales as the price of gasoline soared well up over $1 a gallon, but the Omni/Horizon never lived up to its early promise.

With an improved product at a lower price after 1986, sales picked up, but then began to decline again in an upscale market. Now the little car that helped Chrysler in its comeback from near-backruptcy and which led Chrysler's downsizing of its entire fleet is gone.

For most of its years, the Omni/Horizon was built at Chrysler's Belviders (Ill.) plant. Production was moved in late 1987 to Kenosha, Wis., then to the Jefferson plant in Detroit in March 1989.

The Jefferson plant was built in 1907, long before there was a Chrysler Corp., for production of the Chalmers car. Chalmers (among principals of that maker were Hugh Chalmers, president famed Thomas Flyer in Buffalo, and Roy D. Chapin, later to head Hudson Motor Car Co.) later of national Cash Register Co., leased the plant to Maxwell, and E.R. Thomas, builder of the it was a major asset of Chalmers-Maxwell upon which Walter P. Chrysler built the Chrys-

Candidates must file earlier

Candidates seeking public office in the Aug. 7 primary election must file nominating petitions three weeks earlier than originally planned under a new Michigan law, according to Secretary of State Richard Austin.

Public Act 7 (House Bill 4974) moves the filing deadlines for partisan and non-partisan candidates to Tuesday, May 15, at 4 p.m. The new law also moves the filing deadline for persons seeking to become precinct delegates to May 8, at 4 p.m.

"By moving the filing deadlines ahead three weeks, clerks will be able to make absent voter ballots available on June 23, 1990, which is 25 days earlier than in past election years," Austin explained. "This will allow sufficient time for those absent voter ballots to be mailed overseas and returned in time for the Aug. 7 primary election. "This new law makes certain that Michigan residents who are residing overseas, many of whom serve in the armed forces, will not be disenfranchised from the elections process," In addition to moving the filing deadlines for partisan and non-partisan candidates and precinct delegate candidates ahead, the legislation also requires that local ballot proposals be filed with local clerks no later than Tuesday, May 15, for the August primary election. Certification of proposal wording must be completed no later than May 29. The change in state law will also move the availability of absent voter ballots for the Nov. 6 general election ahead three days. This year, absentee ballots for the November election must be available 45 days prior to the Nov. 6 election.

Public Act 7 affects anyone who plans to file as a Democrat or Republican for one of the following offices this year: governor, U.S. senator, representative in Congress, state senator, state representative, or any county, city or township office to be nominated at the Aug. 7 primary election.

It also affects anyone filing a petition for Appeals Court judge, Circuit Court judge, District Court judge, Probate judge or any other judicial office to be nominated at the Aug. 7 pri-

The law does not affect the filing deadlines for candidates without a political party affiliation who wish to seek a partisan office in the November general.

Rapp wins Ferry geography bee

Jason Rapp, a fifth-grade student at Ferry Elementary School, won the school's geography bee held

Feb. 7. The schoollevel bee, at which students answered oral questions on geography, was the first round in the second National Geography Bee that is being sponsored by National Geographic World, the society's magazine for children, Amtrak and Kudos Snack.

The bee was kicked off the week of Jan. 29 in thousands of schools around the United States. District of Columbia and five U.S. territories. The school winners will now take a written test, and up to 100 of the top scorers in each state will be eligible to compete in their state bee March 30.

Each week in this column, we will focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a woodworking project, a book review.

The following was written by 7-vear-old Chip Fowler, a secondgrader at University Liggett School. He is the son of Joyce and Jack Fowler of Grosse Pointe Park.

To the Future

One day I saw a very nice cap. I picked it up. It was a cap from the future!

I put it on and I was thrown into the future. It was cool! My house was now a Navy base!

As I walked along the street near the lake, I saw nice cars and boats in the water.
When I got bored, I took the cap off and I was home again. I kept the cap because sometime I'll take my friends to the future.

'Wizard of Oz'

An old musical with a '90s twist is what's in store for those who come to the University Liggett School Middle School Drama Trooper's production of "The Wizard of Oz" Saturday, Feb. 24, at 7:30 p.m. at the middle school's Kresge Auditorium, 850 Briarcliff Drive, Grosse Pointe Woods.

The integration of live action, slide, video and electronic keyboards and a Macintosh computer system (to create and play the music) should make the production one to remember.

Student actors will interact with portions of the original film version while singing solos to music which has been entered into a Macintosh computer through a Roland Keyboard equipped with a Musical Instrument Digital Interface.

The public is invited to attend. There is no admission charge. For more information, call 884-4444.

Open house

The doors will be open from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday, March 4, at University Liggett School.

The pre-kindergarten (3- and 4-year-olds), lower school (kindergarten-grade 5), middle school (grades 6-8) and upper school (grades 9-12) will welcome everyone in the metro area who would like to learn more about ULS and its programs.

The main campus (pre-kindergarten, lower and upper schools) is located at 1045 Cook Road, Grosse Pointe Woods. The middle school campus is at 850 Briarcliff Drive, Grosse Pointe Woods.

Students, faculty and parents will be on hand at both locations to give tours, answer questions and demonstrate typical schoolday activities. For more information, call the admissions office at 884-4444.

Labor fact

Approximately 90 percent of all scientific knowledge has been generated in the last 30 years. In the next 10 to 15 years, this pool of knowledge will double again, according to the U.S. Commerce Department in "Building a Quality Workforce." This will have enormous implications for the workers of the future, according to the "Quality Workforce" report, a joint initiative of the U.S. Labor, Education and Commerce Departments.

lowance, hotels and limousine service. Make-up was professionally applied before

Of all their hosts, "Geraldo was probably the most gracious," O'Brien said. Geraldo Rivera spent about 45 minutes with the attorneys and their clients before airtime. (The clients did not appear on "Donahue;" two appearances have been made on "Oprah," the first with the attorneys only, the second with the clients.)

Ihrie said they were at first reluctant to appear on "Geraldo," and warned that they would "come back hard" if he embarrassed their client. But the attorneys described him as "fine and sincere and genuine."

Oprah Winfrey spent little time off-camera with the attorneys on their first visit. When they appeared the second time, "It was fun - we kind of hugged each other when we said goodbye. We had sort of become friends," O'Brien said.

That second appearance was taped early this month, and is expected to air late in February or early March on a show focusing on women who have relationships with the wrong man.

Phil Donahue's show is live, which O'-Brien described as "scary" at first, but added that her initial fear disappeared after she answered the first question.

Ihrie said he felt no jitters whatsoever before the television interviews; "I've always absolutely and thoroughly enjoyed speaking in public," he said, adding that he had debated while at Wayne State University. "I don't think we're the slightest bit nervous about speaking to a national audience."

O'Brien added, "I'd say it's less nervousness and more excitement." Ihrie said that the most calming factor is their confidence in their knowledge of the subject matter.

O'Brien said Geraldo asked the toughest questions. She explained that since he is also an attorney, his questions were more technical. Some of his questions also were "very emotional questions," she said. "There was no laughter, no comic relief."

Oprah Winfrey, on the other hand, was

"like talking with someone in your kitchen," she said. Oprah would "make a face," and the audience's laughter would break any tension.

O'Brien described Phil Donahue like a "professor in your class," and added that he has "great follow-up questions."

The attorneys have not accepted all invitations to appear on interview shows. Some, they felt, might require them to compromise client confidentiality.

They did appear on "A Current Affair" a second time, in August 1989, on a different case involving the flag and sign ordinances. That case also attracted a couple of national radio interviews.

But why grant the interviews at all? Apart from the glamour or excitement that goes along with national television, what is to be gained by appearing on the shows?

O'Brien gave several reasons. "We wanted to set the record straight," she said. She said that they felt if a story was going to be done anyway, they didn't want anyone else "putting words in our mouth."

In the example of the videotape case, it was an opportunity to publicly vindicate their client. She added that the appearances have been made with the client's permis-

She also said television "can expose the inadequacies in the law that have to be addressed by the legislature." O'Brien pointed out that there is a lot to be gained by giving certain issues a forum.

Although the attorneys would not disclose if their own clients had received payment for their appearances, O'Brien said appearances on national shows could give clients an opportunity to recoup losses for legal costs; in a way, capitalize on misfortune.

Ihrie and O'Brien's law firm is a general practice firm which serves as prosecutor for Grosse Pointe Farms, and represents St. Clair Shores and East Detroit municipalities. They handle a great deal of divorce work and some criminal cases.

Have the TV appearances affected their law practice? They have received a number of phone calls from people from around the country, although Ihrie said they have not actually accepted any of them as clients.

She was assigned to be the director of religious education at a new parish in Atlanta, Ga., which had made a decision not to have a Catholic school. Students came once a week for religious training and Flanagan said she felt like a pioneer.

There were 1,200 students and the faculty numbered 75.

"I was born at the right time," Flanagan said. "I was always just there when a brand new door opened."

She spent three years in Atlanta. She was asked to go to Europe to study at the University of Louvain in Belgium. It was a bold move.

Up to 1968, women in religious orders in the Catholic church were prohibited from studying for a doctorate. The assumption was that only men would benefit from advanced studies.

Her order decided to send members to different theological universities to become leaders.

"We had always depended on men and clerics to do this," she said. "We needed to define our way of life.

It was a breathtaking experience for me," Flanagan said.

Her parents began to joke: "Join the convent and see the world," and Flanagan was beginning to see the world.

"It certainly cracked my small provincial strictures of thinking," she said. "I was thrust into a world I had never experienced before. I never had any crosscultural experience.'

The University of Louvain, one of three classical pontifical centers of learning in Europe, attracted students from all over the world - Africans, Asians and Europeans as well as Australians and Latin Americans.

"To touch the beauty and diversity of the community in Belgium, to feel the touch of history," Flanagan said. "Americans are caught up in the sense of the last 50 years. I learned what remains constant and what has flexibility.'

And it was a new experience for the professors, Flanagan said. "They would ask me, Why are you here?' It was a time of tremendous historical upheaval." There were personal changes, too. "I experienced for the first time a very caustic critique of American political policy in other parts of the world," she said. "For the first time I heard people refer to the American

Philippines appoints Roxas honorary consul

Staff Writer

What do the Philippine Islands and Grosse Pointe have in common? As of a few days ago, a great deal.

The connection is Grosse Pointe Shores resident Dr. Renato S. Roxas, the first Phillipine honorary consul in Michigan.

Roxas is a practicing pediatric anesthesiologist at Children's Hospital of Michigan in the Detroit Medical Center. He was appointed to the post by the Philippine government.

Roxas was honored during a dinner dance for the officers of the Philippine American Community Center of Michigan. Present was Philippine Ambassador to the United States Emmanuel N. Palaez and Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths.

An honorary consul is a liaison officer between the United States and Philippine governments, appointed to enhance trade and investments, Roxas said.

The consul also issues travel visas for U.S. citizens wishing to travel to the Philippines for more than 59 days, often used by Americans working for U.S. corporations in the Philippines.

Entertainment DeNiro, Fonda excel in 'Stanley & Iris'

By Marian Trainor Special Writer

Two of Hollywood's most highpowered stars, both of whom have won Oscars, combine talents in "Stanley & Iris." Both turn in performances worthy of their talents. Both shine in this warm and human story of two likable, hard-working, true-to-life

Robert DeNiro plays the part of Stanley, a cook in a bakery in the assembly line. Stanley is a loner who lives with his aged and her sister's unemployed hus-

Money is scarce, which is why she is enraged when her purse is snatched on the bus while she is riding home from work. Stanley, who is also on the bus, comes to her rescue, but too late.

After Iris calms down, she thanks him with, "Lucky you were on the bus." Stanley calmly answers as though it is an accepted happening that occurs frequently: "I don't usually take the bus but my bike was stolen."

With this opening segment, the life pattern and problems of the two principle characters is established.

Stanley is much taken with Iris who is pretty and pert. "I've been watching you for a long time," he tells her. But not only depressed Waterbury, Conn. is Iris still mourning the death Jane Fonda is Iris, a cake-icer on of her husband, she has problems at home.

In contrast, Stanley leads a father. Iris is a recent widow quiet secluded life. After work, who shares her cluttered house he goes home where he spends with her two children, her sister his time alone working on projects. He is a natural-born inven- character, gives an effective tor. But Stanley has a secret which he carefully guards. He can neither read nor write.

Stanley manages to get along but being an intelligent person, he knows he is severely handicapped, and being a sensitive person, he suffers because of it.

In a slow process that is both moving and funny, Iris begins to teach Stanley to read. She drills him in phonics. He cooks dinner and irons while she points out words and sounds on a chart. He teaches her young son the Latin names for the trees in the park.

Most of the time the film is a down-to-earth believable story about down-to-earth people who are easy to relate to, told in a leisurely manner. The film's easy pace is plus. Having things build slowly is the way to go with these characters.

DeNiro, who is never more expressive than when he is playing an awkward, inarticulate performance.

Fonda is outstanding as Iris. She is believable without being a type. She's strong and compassionate with common sense. She is idealized, as is DeNiro, but without acceptable bounds.

It is apparent that veteran Director Martin Ritt, who brought such issue-oriented films "The Molly Maguires" and "Norma Rae" to the screen, had more than a love story between two likeable characters in mind in this social-issue romance. Stanley's life and character has been shaped by his inability to read. All through the film, we see references to the restrictions illiteracy has imposed on him.

Ritt makes his point that illiteracy is a handicap clear, but he also makes it easy to swallow by giving his audience an endearing story that sends them away feeling good about the world and the hard-working, ordinary people in

'Madhouse' can (and does) make you mad

Special Writer

Let's get right to it. "Madhouse" is bad. Brutally bad. Terribly, incredibly, unbelievably

If "Madhouse" were a restaurant entree, it would cause food poisoning. If it were a major household appliance, it would be broken before it was unpacked from its box. If it were a politician, it would be recalled from office. If it were an automobile, you could say it was built without a transmission, since it just doesn't go anywhere.

If it were an attempt at entertainment, it would just be bad. Really bad.

Why is it so bad? Let us count the ways. First, let's talk about the not talk about the script. It's too depressing. And it's not funny. Ostensibly, this is a picture rooted in hyperbole: what happens when a yuppie couple (John Laroquette and Kirstie Alley) find out they're going to have some house guests?

What happens, of course, is that the house guests - Laro-

But it's not just the plot that's bad. It's the people in the picture. Not that these people are Actually, they're pretty good. Indeed, they're two of the most popular actors on televi-

The problem is that it's difficult to watch Laroquette, of TV's "Night Court," and Alley, of TV's "Cheers," in such a poor production. We're accustomed to seeing them in funny, quality performances. Watching them in ers.

Still, it's not just the plot and the misplaced actors that are bad. The worst part of all - the thing that makes sitting through the 90-plus minutes of this picture so insufferable - is that it's obvious nobody involved with the project expected it to be anything special.

It's very clear that everyone most notably the actors worked on this picture for a few quick bucks and the opportunity to stay employed between episodes of their award-winning television shows.

It just would have been nice if, in between picking up a few bucks for themselves, they had provided a few laughs for view-

'Romance, Romance' is a delight

By Marian Trainor Special Writer

"Romance, Romance" - the very title conjures up mental pictures of young love, steamy novels featuring dashing, virile handsome men and beautiful, voluptuous young women, heroes rescuing damsels in distress, Cinderella and Prince Charming.

However romance can also be a sophisticated, calculated diversion, for individuals who are bored and go looking for someone or something to enliven their lives.

Played by the right people in the proper setting can be as much fun for the audience as it is for the players.

In the musical, "Romance. Romance" at the Birmingham Theatre, it is a fun-time experience following the course of the couples who feel compelled to break out of their amorous adventures with enthusiasm, part of the enjoyment comes from knowing that they can always return to their status quo when the novelty wears off.

"Romance, Romance," winner of four Outer Critics Circle Awards and a Tony Award nomination is two delightful musicals awash with amorous antics and lively flirtation, charm, humor and surprises.

In the first of the two, "The Little Comedy," Alfred, a rich playboy played by the musical's star. Peter Noone, is tired of women who seek him out because he has money. He wants to be loved for himself.

He pretends to be a starving poet in order to pick up a poor seamstress named Josefine, played by Marcia Mitzman. But Josefine is not what she seems either. She's really a bored, rich woman about town in 19th century Vienna who has just dumped her latest sugar daddy and is looking for true love.

The musical begins with two characters billed as Him John DeLuca) and Her (Sheri Cowart), who wears masks and through song and dance give an overview of "The Little Comedy" that is about to unfold.

All through the play, they act as sort of a Greek chorus underlining to what is going on between Alfred and Josefine. Their presence not only accents the humor of the masquerade being carried on by the two fraudulent lovers, but they add immeasurably to the production. In their pursuit of true love, each of them goes to the city where they meet by accident. Each tries to outdo the other with their stories of their hard life and poverty and each believes they have found true love.

With wit and charm and tongue-in-cheek humor, "The Little Comedy" is cleverly presented and great fun.

Peter Noone seems to enjoy his role. His creative vocal technique, personal charm and compelling stage presence enchance his image as a good-looking lead singer and actor.

Noone is not a newcomer. He was a teen-age idol at 15 as Herman of the successful British rock band, Herman's Hermits. Marcia Mitzman has a beautiful voice. She is a frequent guest star with the New York City Opera. She is a delightful Jose-

It's a big jump from 16th century Vienna to 20th century "The Hamptons" where we find two modern, married couples vacationing together and wondering what it would be like to be married to the partner in the other couple.

Left alone, Sam and Monica flirt, spar and declare their love for each other. It is played out with irresistable, lively sophisticated humor and enlivened with such numbers as "It's Not Too Late," "Small Craft Warnings" and Peter Noone's "Words He Doesn't Say."

While the book and lyrics written by Barry Harman are amusing and certainly move the story along, and the music by Keith Hammann is catchy, it is Peter Noone, complemented by Marcia Mitzman, under the able direction of Barry Harmn, who also directed the Broadway version, that makes the double feature, "Romance, Romance" such a delight.

number of married couples who not only share their home, but their office as well.

The Baciulises established their own graphics design firm two years ago. A year later they were married.

A busy schedule and the dayto-day details of running a successful company have caused the couple to put their honeymoon plans on hold, but they are not complaining.

"Working together really helps on communication," Mrs. Baciulis said. "In a normal situation, you sit down in meetings and hash out ideas. But because we live together, we always know what's going on.'

"Whenever I start a sentence, Donna finishes it," her husband said. "We seem to have a communication that just clicks.

Baciulis explained that some married couples he talks with can't understand how a couple can live and work together.

But if they can't work together, how can they live together?" Mrs. Baciulis asked.

One thing the couple does not have to do is explain to their mate that they have to work late to get a job done.

"We have a high level of responsibility to our own future together, both in the relationship and in business," he said.

Mrs. Baciulis jumped in. "We will and have given up many weekends because we made a commitment with a client."

Her husband said that level of responsibility is what makes both home life and office life jibe.

"I'm not sure you can find that level of dedication with most employees," Baciulis said. "Most employees have a family signs on signs, advertisements and would rather take a vacation and spend time with their Locally their company has defamily. Most are not willing to

The future of the Baciulis family? "To take a honeymoon," Mrs. Baciulis said. "We've just been too busy. That is one of the negative aspects of marriage and business.

For Robert and Marjorie Pinney of Grosse Pointe Woods, the family which works together retires together.

Pinney, a dentist in the area for about 40 years, was joined at his private practice about 35 years ago by his wife, Marjorie.

The Pinneys describe their working and living life together as an "east meets west tale." "I'm from the east side, she's from the west side," Pinney said. 'So we compromised and moved to the east side," he quipped.

We had regular patients from Oxford, Rochester, Pontiac," he said. "If they like you, they will stick with you.'

The Pinneys' secret of success? "We didn't take our personal problems into the office," Mrs. Pinney said. "We also didn't take our office problems home with us at night. We always tried to follow that rule, the best we could."

"Now in our retirement, we're finding things to do together," rinney said.

Classes to begin

St. John Hospital and Medical Center's School of Radiologic (Xray) Technology offers a two-year program and is accepting applications now.

Radiologic technology is a clinical science devoted to all phases of patient service dealing with radiation. It is one of the fastest growing specialties in medicine due to the involvement of computers and new methods of nonradiation imaging.

Numerous career opportunities are available in general diagnostics, computerized tomography (CT), specialized vascular procedures and magnetic resonance imaging (MRI).

Applications for the program are being accepted through March for the September 1990 class. Minimum requirements include at least one year of algebra and biology and ACT scores. For more information, call Dorothy Barr, education coordinator, at 343-3549.

Make yourself heard

The Women's Economic Club will sponsor a full-day seminar on "How to Make Yourself Heard in Business" on Tuesday, Feb. 27.

The one-day workshop on effective communication skills will be held at the McGregor Memorial Conference Center, Wayne State University. Registration begins at 8:30 a.m. Workshop runs from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Kay Britten, founder of Kay Britten Associates, will be the presenter. She has been a communications professional for more than 30 years.

Cost is $55 for members and $75 for guests. For further information, call 963-5088.

Pair brews up interest in local beer

Staff Writer

If the first month's sales are any indication, Christopher Dean and Christopher Watts have a hit on their hands.

Old Detroit Amber Ale, a higher-end, heavy beer created by the two young entrepreneurs, hit the Detroit area last month and the duo is pleased with the

"We've got plenty of room to go," said Dean, president of the company, "but the results are encouraging.'

Watts, vice president, and Dean met when they were both students at Vassar College in Poughkeepsie, N.Y. Dean, 25, and Watts, 24, were history maiors. They decided to go into business together, but exactly what business was the question.

A job in a venture-capital company brought Dean to Detroit. He resigned last year to work full time on Old Detroit Amber Ale. The opportunity to start a business with Dean brought

They worked on various recipes until coming up with their all-malt brew. Watts, who spent some time working at a pub in England brewing beer, returned with some knowledge of beers from around the world

Once the pair had a recipe they liked, it was worked on by master brewer Fred Scheer from Frankenmuth, where it's brewed.

"We have a very good product here," he said. "It's got a better flavor than many imports, it's fresh (generally less than 45 days old), it's all natural and it's local.'

And that's the selling point the local angle.

"I think people will support a local product, especially those who already drink imports," Dean said. A six pack costs approximately $5.50, which although high, is less than many imported beers.

Not only is the beer named Old Detroit, but the label features an old car, tying into the automotive history of the city.

Currently the beer is brewed in Frankenmuth's fire-powered brewery, but if plans take off, they would like to build a microbrewery in downtown Detroit. A new brewery downtown was their original plan, but because they didn't have a product and couldn't prove there was a market for their ale, they couldn't get backing.

The ale is now being marketed in restaurants and bars, including Grosse Pointe Park's Sparky Herbert's.

Owner Darrell Finken feels it is the type of product Sparky's customers would like.

"This is an excellent beer," he said. "I think it should do very well here."

Dean and Watts will take Old Detroit Amber Ale to brewers' competitions this year and, in their words: "We fully expect to win an award." Having attended previous competitions, they know what to expect and believe their product is one of the finest

Weight-loss success story

After losing 140 pounds: 'People don't recognize me'

By Margie Reins Smith Feature Editor

One year ago Sue Rancilio couldn't walk around the block.

This year, at approximately one-half her weight, she not only walks, she rides a bike, swims and rides horses. She has a new wardrobe. A new way of cooking, eating and looking at life.

The 45-year-old 5-foot, 6-inch Grosse Pointe Woods businesswoman, wife and mother had gained weight, gradually, over a 15-year period.

"I have no idea how I got so heavy," she said. She had not been heavy as a child or as a teenager.

"I tried to lose. I tried at least six different methods. I tried to lose by myself, with my own diet. I tried acupuncture. I tried hypnosis. I went to a behavior modification class. I did Weight Watchers. Twice."

On different programs, she said she lost 45 pounds; 50 pounds; even 70 pounds once. But she always gained it back — and more.

"I put on more weight after every diet. Mostly it came after a diet." Rancilio said she procrastinated before each new diet waiting for the perfect day to start a new program. But she finally reached a point where there were no more excuses.

The hardest part was walking in to the Diet Center last February. The first day was the hardest." /\Last November - nine months loss has changed her life. "It opened up a new world for me. I try all kinds of things that I've never tried before." When she began her final effort to lose weight, she chose an exercise program to accompany the diet. "I couldn't even walk around the block, so I picked a water exercise - water aerobics.

"I had never learned to swim. So the next challenge was to learn to swim. I signed up for an adult swimming class. I also tried horseback riding. I do lots of walking. And now I have a mountain bike. I'm looking forward to nice weather, so I can use it more.

"Exercise made me feel good," she said. "but I don't equate exercise with weight loss. I used exercise as a method of toning.

"One thing people don't realize is that they have a lot of time on their hands when they're not eating. I used exercise for this and as a way to get out of the kitchen."

Busse said that in addition to a nutritional diet and daily counseling, the Diet Center advises clients to do some sort of exercise for at least 15 minutes every single day. The consistency is important.

"I never went off the diet once," Rancilio said. "Not once."

"When someone has a great deal of weight to lose, setting a goal is often too overwhelming," Busse said.

"Once I got going," Rancilio said, "I just knew I'd lose 100 pounds. I lost 25 pounds the first month; 20 the second month; 15 or 16 the next month; I averaged about 3 pounds a week.'

Rancilio and her husband, Marvin, are owners of the Cheesecake Shoppe. She said that cheesecake wasn't the cause of her weight gain. Because she works with cheesecake every day, she said, she no longer thinks of it as food. "It's a product. I'm not tempted to eat the product while I'm at Rancilio recalled some interesting reactions from people who didn't realize she had lost a great deal of weight.

"People don't know who I am," she said.

One of the bidding problems that generates as much pupil discussion as any in my bridge classes is the jump shift as opposed to the reverse. I advocate that both bids show considerable strength and are forcing as do most standard American players, but there is a small cadre who don't.

My minimal requirement is a very good sixteen, but usually I will have one or two points more. Why then do we have two bids that virtually have similar uses? Excellent question and the answer is totally important

Light-hearted art: "Art From the Heart," a benefit for for the Community Cholesterol Research Program of the Henry Ford Heart and Vascular Institute, took place at the Machus Sly Fox Restaurant in Birmingon Feb. 8. The evening raised more than $25,000 and included an auction of art objects designed and donated by local artists.

Grosse Pointers in attendance included Lois Warden, Denise and Karrie Crenshaw, Midge McClure and Douglas T. Mc-Clure, chairman of the board of trustees of the Henry Ford Health System. Warden's husband, Gail, is president and chief executive officer of the Henry Ford Health System.

Calling all women: More than 40 Detroit-area women's organizations and artists will gather to share music, crafts, videos, poetry, books, food and information at the fourth annual International Women's Day celebration. The theme is "Resources to Build Choices," and the event will take place on Saturday. March 10, from 1 to 10 p.m. at the First Unitarian-Universalist Church at Cass and Forest near Wayne State University.

Organizations that serve, organize and educate women in the metropolitan area will have representatives at resource tables from 2 until 7 p.m.

Some organizations which will participate: Childbirth Without Pain Education Association, Detroit Women's Coffeehouse, La Leche League International, Michigan Coalition Against Domestic Violence, several NOW chapters, SOSAD, Wayne State Women's Resource Center, Women Against Male Violence, Women's International League for Peace and Freedom and the Women's Justice Center.

The terrible catastrophe

By the Rev. Robert A. Rimbo

Mark Twain has a wonderful - though probably familiar - story titled "The Terrible Catastrophe." The same title is used here in the hope that it will catch the eye of a few of you due to its familiarity. Perhaps it has enough of a soap opera flavor to capture others.

As Twain's story progresses, its characters become involved in such a tangled predicament that finally any action by any of them would result in the destruction of all of them. He concludes the story: "I have these characters in such a fix that I cannot get them out. Anyone who thinks he can is welcome to try.'

This is an apt description of us, isn't it? Our problems are deep problems. The sickness of sin reaches into the depths of every heart. And no one can rescue herself or himself from the predicament. "Anyone who thinks he can is welcome to try.'

We are in the hole above our heads. We are bankrupt. We can only throw our hands up in utter despair. It's a terrible catastrophe from which we cannot escape, except through the mercy of God.

Forgiveness is the escape from our rebellion, and treason ... our sin against God. Forgiveness is also the escape from the debts we pile up against one another. Our predicaments are so involved, our relationships are so entangled and disturbed, there is so much hatred in our hearts and so much damage done that we could never settle our accounts with one another except by the forgiveness that comes from God.

And because God's forgiveness sweeps the slate clean, we can also freely forgive others and ourselves. We can find freedom from any guilt if only we will hand it over to Jesus Christ. In Him our relationship with God, disturbed and broken by our sin, is healed, calmed, mended and restored.

No other Lord, no other source can meet this urgent need of our terrible catastrophe. But the Lord of Life has loved us with eternal love. He gave his life for us. And because He earned our forgiveness He can speak it to us. By His death and the power of His resurrection, He became the one who alone can get us out of the terrible catastrophe of our

And if you think He can - if you know He can - if you hope He can — then give Him a try.

Monsignor Canfield to mark 45th anniversary

Rev. Francis X. Canfield

St. Paul's Parish will honor Monsignor Francis X. Canfield on the occasion of his 45th anniversary of ordination to the priesthood with a mass of thanksgiving at 1 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 25, at St. Paul Catholic of Prayer will be held this year at the Grosse Pointe Baptist Church on Friday, March 2. Nineteen churches from the Grosse Pointe area will be participating. The service will begin at 1 p.m. and child-care will be provided.

The service will feature the Rev. David Wick as speaker. Special music will be provided by the Grosse Pointe North High School choir.

The theme of this year's service is, "A Better Tomorrow: Justice for all," and was preeight different church denominations in Czechoslovakia.

World Day of Prayer was instituted by women in the United States as a day of prayer for missions. It has since grown to be a by thousands of Christians in 170 countries and regions of the world as an expression of Christian unity.

All are welcome to participate in this unique ecumenical service. Grosse Pointe Baptist Church is located on old Eight Mile Road near Mack Avenue.

Between 1955 and 1963, each summer, Canfield was visiting lecturer in library science at Immaculate Heart College in Los Angeles.

During the school year, he was librarian of Sacred Heart Semical studies and receiving his nary where he upgraded and completely cataloged the college master's degree in English liter-

In 1971, he was appointed to St. Paul Catholic Church in Grosse Pointe.

During his tenure at Sacred Heart Seminary, Canfield was ship. He was Chairman of the Michigan Unit of the Catholic Library Association from 1950-52 and again from 1954-56, sociation in 1961.

In recognition of his contributions to the field of Library Science, the Rare Book Room at Sacred Heart Seminary was named in his honor in January, 1979.

Canfield is a published author and critic. His articles and book reviews have appeared in a number of publications. His weekly column, "What's What in Books," ran in the Michigan Catholic for 14 years. In addition, he was a member of the common day of prayer celebrated Editorial Selection Committee for the Campus Book Club in 1960-61 and made important contributions to the Catholic Bookman's Guide and The New Catholic Encyclopedia. Pope Paul VI honored Canfield by naming him Domestic Prelate in 1963 with the title Right Reverend Monsignor.

From 1965 to 1971, he was chaplain to the Detroit Police Department as well as a member of the advisory committee of the American Bishops' Commission on Priestly Formation. During the two years prior to assuming duties at St. Paul, he was chairman of the seminary division, National Catholic Educational Association.

The Grosse Pointe InterFaith Center presented him with a Distinguished Community Service Award in May, 1979. The renovation of St. Paul Chruch after the fire of 1978 and the completion of the new columbarium - a first for the archdiocese of Detroit - were significant accomplishments as well.

In 1980, Canfield gathered Friends of the Vatican Library, probably the first such organization to aid the Vatican Library on a continuing basis. He is president of the American Friends of the Vatican Library.

In 1981, he was named to the board of directors of Bon Secours Hospital, where he chairs the human values committee. In 1983, Canfield wrote a brief history of the Church in Detroit when the archdiocese celebrated its 150th anniversary.

In 1983, he sponsored an archaeological dig to locate the grave site of the Rev. John F. Elsen in St. Paul Cemetery. Elsen had been pastor of St. Paul Church in 1889. In May, a permanent grave marker was dedicated in the cemetery as part of the Memorial Day observance.

Canfield's reflections on finding God and spiritual values were illustrated by Sister Kinue Matsauzake and published in a book titled, "With Eyes of

Plants were thought to have mystical powers

You may have noticed, while driving along Mack Avenue, and passing the new shopping and business center that is being built near Moross, that on the very top of the new structure, there is an American flag and, left over from Christmas, a bushy little evergreen tree.

Anyone conversant with medieval customs in Europe and England will be reminded of the custom of placing a green shrub or bush at the pinnacle of a new house to insure good luck and good health for the people who will occupy the new structure.

During the Dark Ages, it was a common belief that the houseleek should also be placed on a new house because it was the best protection against lightning, fire, witches and evil spirits.

Charlemagne, king of the Franks and first Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire, issued a law in the 8th century, compelling every householder or inn landlord to plant a houseleek on to identify them. The ivy was the roof of his dwelling. The the sign on the wine purveyor's plant was thought to provide place. Wreaths of ivy were also protection against fire, war, hun-hung on the doors.

Ivy is another plant which has an affinity for buildings, not only because it grows on brick walls and stone portals, but because, for many hundreds of years, it has been used to identify the tavern or wine-shop. Plants have always been credited with mystical and medicinal powers, and, for many herbs, the medicinal part is true.

By Ellen Probert

Plants, primarily herbs, are the basis of much of modern pharmacology and, in past centuries, comprised almost the whole list of medical remedies. Other ingredients were often added to medicines, but it was the herbal content which really did the job.

Early settlers in this country were, by necessity, their own doctors and herb lore was a very important part of the education of every housekeeper and mother. Kitchen gardens were the source of much of the material which kept aches and pains, coughs and agues, fevers and ailments at bay. Herbs to soothe, heal wounds, alleviate pain, provide cordials, flavorings, potpourris and cosmetic items, were known to every housewife.

The most popular book on this subject was Nicholas Culpepper's "English Herbals, or, The En- is located in the Grosse Pointe glish Physician Enlarged," published in London in 1653. This book, which went through edition after edition until 1824, was an exhaustive treatise on herbal medicine culled from ancient lore and practical experience.

Beverages, too, were the province of the early American housekeeper. Homemade wine, sweet and hard cider, herbal teas, beer and ale were all made at home. The ancient Anglo-Saxon beverage, mead, was made much as it had always

Retirement may provide opportunity to fulfill lifelong

People of all ages have dreams, hopes and aspirations. Little boys dream of growing up to be baseball, hockey or football players. Little girls once dreamed of growing up to be like their mother: with a husband, a home and children. Today that dream has been altered to include a career.

Sometimes the dreams change as we travel down life's winding paths. After all, they were just daydreams — pleasant to ponder - but not all suited to the talents and interests that come with maturity. The lucky ones achieve those altered aims. They regret retirement age.

Give a gift that money cannot buy - give some of your time. An elderly person in the community, who is being cared for full-time by a loved one, would welcome a visit from you. Your visit would allow their caregiver a break from the responsibilities they face each day.

Through the Care-Sharing Project of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) of Wayne County, you can receive free training and then placement in your own community. The next training begins on March 6 and continues on March 8, 13,

Support group Belmont SeniorCare will begin a support group on Alzheimer's Disease and related illnesses. The groups will begin in March and will be held each month at 1 p.m. on the second and fourth Thursdays.

If interest is great enough, an evening group may be started. The goal is to help family members and caregivers to better understand, manage, and cope with the situation presented by the patient's behavior. At the support group, family members will receive information and helpful hints about managing patients' difficult behavior.

Call 881-9556 to sign up.

Detroit Sorosis Club folds

Detroit Sorosis Club has announced it will close its books and terminate activities on March 1. Detroit Sorosis Club was organized in 1894, making it one of the oldest women's clubs in the area. As a charter member of the Detroit Federation of Women's Clubs, the group was founded as a study and philanthropic group. One of its earliest efforts was that of paying the rent for poor families, giving scholarships to deserving young ladies, working to establish the public library on Woodward Avenue and donating to the TB Society. The club assisted in establishing child labor laws by being the first club to petition the state legislature to adopt these laws.

Through the years numerous contributions were made by the Sorosis Club to the Crippled Childrens Camp, hospitals and other community organizations. As the final activity of the group, the club's records are being compiled and will be placed in the Burton Historical Library. The funds remaining in the treasury will be donated to Crossroads. The last active members include Dorothy Bersey, Gladys Cantry, Therese Davies, Jane Hormaon, Laura Neef, Blanche Plante, Saxton Voelker and Carrie Wills.

Weight loss

After Rancilio spoke to the restaurant owner, he apologized for not recognizing her. "He said he thought my husband was with someone else, and he was going to give him a table out of the way, in the back of the room."

Rancilio went from a size 28 blouse to a size 10 or 12. She finally bought new clothes.

New Age lectures

Sherwin Wine of the Center for New Thinking is presenting a series of four lectures exploring New Age thinking on Tuesday nights in March at the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church.

On March 6, the topic is "The Power of Myth: The Ideas of Joseph Campbell.'

On March 13, "Jung and his Message: The ideas of Carl Jung.

On March 20, "Peace, Love and Healing: A new book by Bernie Siegel.

On March 27: "A Brief History of Time: A new book by Stephen Hawking."

All lectures begin at 7:30 p.m. at Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church. Admission at the door is $5 for members; $6 for nonmembers.

Eton Academy will hold open house

Eton Academy has scheduled an open house at the school on Saturday, March 3, between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., to acquaint interested parents and students with plans for the second year of its summer program.

Planned for first through 8th grade students with learning disabilities, the program will run weekdays from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. for five weeks between June 25 and July 27. The program is designed to integrate enjoyable vacation camp activities with reinforcement of learning skills targeted throughout the regular school year, and will feature small group instruction.

Skills in reading and math will be highlighted, along with social experiences, field trips, treasure hunts and similar activ-

on illness, death

Our Lady Star of the Sea is presenting a Lenten series, "Letting Go - Looking at the Christian Approach to Illness and Death.'

The five-part series begins Tuesday, March 6, and runs every Tuesday evening at 7:30 p.m. through April 3 at the Grade School Cultural Center.

On March 6, the Rev. Lawrence DuCharme, director of pastoral care at St. John Hospital, will discuss the Catholic approach to death. He will cover some medical ethics, when to contact the priest, hospital admissions, organ donations, living wills, post mortem and more.

On March 13, the topic will be suicide, artificial life support and what happens at the time of

On March 20 and 27, Sister Veronica Brune of St. Ronald Parish in Fraser will explore grief.

On April 3, Sister Arlene Bennett, director of communications for the Sisters of Mercy, will share insight into how customs and rituals of Catholic funerals can bring life and hope in the face of death.

German-American Cultural Center

The Ladies Auxiliary of the German-American Cultural Center will hold its annual card party on Sunday, Feb. 25, at 3 p.m., at the Bavarian Chateau, 5251 E. Outer Drive, Detroit.

Tickets are $5. This includes a buffet and table prizes. Call ticket chairman Melitta Kniep at 574-2362 to reserve a table.

She has also modified her cooking and has added some new diet recipes. Because she has to cook for her family - none of whom are overweight - Rancilio said she has adapted some low calorie recipes for family fare, but she still prepares some of their high calorie favorites. "I don't eat everything I cook. I've learned to do more thinking about the food we eat." Another interesting consequence of her weight loss, she said, was that her jewelry was too big.

"I didn't realize how long my necklaces were. When you're heavy, you wear long necklaces. When I lost some weight, they hung down to my waist. So I had

LINC will hold art auction

Operation LINC, Inc. will host an art auction Saturday, March 10. The auction will begin at 8 p.m. at Salem Memorial Lutheran Church, 21230 Moross. A preview of the art, which ranges in price from $5 to $2,000, will be at 7 p.m.

Some of the artists whose work will be represented in serigraphs, watercolors, etchings, oils and other media include Chagall, Renoir, Rockwell, Bomberger, Miro and others.

All of the art is framed and will be auctioned below retail prices.

For a donation of $5 ($7 at the door) those who attend will be served wine punch and hors d'oeuvres and have a chance to win a door prize.

Due to the loss of LINC's largest source of funding, this evening of art will be the organization's main source of operating money and the officers of LINC are hoping for an exciting evening of bidding. Without the

Are we to expect our student athletes to maintain a great swimming tradition with conditions that don't even accommodate championship teams? It seems to me that even though swimming is a low-income sport, we could at least find a viable solution so the local teams could have decent conditions.

When I went to Parcells for a University Liggett School swim meet last week, I couldn't believe that the swimmers had to put up the flags, get the starting blocks and put the lane markers in. Then again, I'm beginning to expect that it's true - you get what you pay for.

I don't know the cost of maintaining pools, but there's no reason South has to hold it's home meets at North, and ULS must swim at either South. Parcells or Pierce.

Crane's hat trick pushes Devils past North

By Rob Fulton

Sophomore center Brian Crane notched a hat trick and goalie Kevin Nesler stopped 33 shots as the South hockey team beat Grosse Pointe North, 3-1, Feb. 15 at the St. Clair Shores Civic Crane, who now leads the Blue Devils with 28 goals, scored in each period to give South its second straight win over the Norsemen in regular season play. South had beaten North Jan. 11, 3-1, but fell to the Norsemen 6-4 in the championship game of the University Liggett School Christmas Tournament.

South is 13-3-4 overall and clinched second place in the Michigan Metro East with an 8-1-3 mark. North is 9-10 overall and 2-9 in league play.

South won the three-game series, 2-1, for the first double victory over North since the inaugural season of 1983-84.

"This win is pretty sweet," said Crane, who heads the line of Jim Pappas and Mike Kisskalt. "Coming into the locker room we all sat at the seat we tending, killed the penalties, used the last time we played North. We did that because Nesler told everybody to. It was a superstitious thing and it worked for us."

Kisskalt and Pappas, who have combined for 20 goals and 46 assists, drew two and three assists, respectively.

"I really didn't do anything different to prepare for this game," Crane said. "I was feeling pretty good and Jim and Mike just got me the puck. I have to thank them, and the defensemen, for all their help in this one.'

Nesler, whose goals against average is 2.59, would like to thank the defensemen, too.

"I've been working hard in practice and it's had a direct effect in games," said Nesler. "The team's really helping me out by clearing the puck and keeping guys out of our zone. If I can make a big save at the right time then that's my job but the team has really, helped me out."

"Four things keyed this win for us," said South coach Tim Zimmerman. "We got great goalscored on half of our power plays and had great composure and discipline.

Although he's happy with the win, Zimmerman can empathize with the way North feels.

"I thought North played an outstanding game," he said. "What else could they have done to win? They did everything they had to, except put the puck in the net. We had only 14 shots on net and three of them went in, so I think there's no doubt we were a team of opportunists,"

Nobody knows that more than Norsemen coach Mike Manzella.

"We outshot South 31 to 14, but didn't score when we had to," he said. "Our game plan was there. We had no problems getting out of our zone, but our passes weren't crisp and we didn't click in South's zone."

Besides scoring on two of four power-play attempts, the Blue Devils' solid defense frustrated and stymied the entire Norsemen rush.

"We were very frustrated all night long," said Manzella, whose team is 4-6 over its last 10 games. "We did everything statistically that we had to, but we didn't put the puck in the

It didn't help either that the Norsemen failed on all eight of its power-play opportunities, including a two-man advantage in the third period.

Stumb, Michigan agree to five-year relationship on Valentine's Day

By Rob Fulton Sports Editor

Charlie Stumb, who was listed as one of the top recruits in the Midwest, has committed the next five years of his life to the University of Michigan football

On Valentine's Day, the first official day high school recruits could commit to a college program, the name Charles Edward Stumb-III was inked on a National Letter of Intent that will bind him to one of the nation's finest institutions until 1995.

"I guess I just got married for another five years," said Stumb, whose 6-foot-6-inch, 220-pound frame filled a chair in a boardroom at Grosse Pointe North High School. "I was nervous signing that thing because it's such a big deal. I was shaky, in fact I screwed up once, but it was a good nervous. I'm extremely happy to commit to play at the University of Michigan."

Stumb, who was also an adept tight end for the Norsemen, was recruited as an outside line-

In two varsity seasons, Stumb had 170 tackles, two single-game records for eight catches, 1,097 receiving yards, 10 touchdown catches, seven interceptions and approximately 30 behind-the-line tackles. He's also believed to be the only Norseman football player to sign a full-ride scholarship to U of M.

Stumb, who will play in the East-West High School All-Star Game July 28, realized a life-long dream Feb. 14 by selecting the Wolverines.

"I wouldn't be happier anywhere else," said Stumb, who owns the North career record with 60 receptions. "There's no better school in the Big Ten. The only school in the nation that could compete with Michigan is Notre Dame, but I don't like Notre Dame. There are teams that are as talented as Michigan, but Michigan's program is much more solid.'

Manzella said. "Our power-play sputtered. We just didn't have anybody who wanted to take charge, or if we did they made the right decision too late."

"One of the keys to being successful in penalty killing is discipline and composure," said Zimmerman. "We did a great job of short-handed forechecking from their goal line to our blue line. We would either stop them, or they would stop themselves.'

Midway through the first period, North was tagged with back-to-back minor penalties, and with 7:43 to play Crane put crowd showed its appreciation by tossing an octopus onto the ice.

After the sea creature was removed, play resumed and with 1:05 left in the first period North's John Ferguson beat Nesler to the stick side after picking up a rebound from Bob Beltz. North's crowd celebrated by throwing tennis balls onto the

For the first 1:20 of the second period North had a man advantage, but failed to capitalize. With five minutes gone in that period Crane put South in front to stay, 2-1. Even play highlighted the remainder of the second period.

"After the first period we knew we had to come out and the Devils up 1-0. The South play our game," said Crane. "In the first period North really controlled the play and we didn't have many opportunities." Just 1:40 into the final period Crane completed his hat trick, giving South a 3-1 lead.

North was down, but not out.

"When we get behind in a game it seems like we rush ourselves and panic," said Manzella. We do that because we really haven't been scoring a lot of goals. I think we panicked

Despite fighting an uphill battle, North hung tough and had a two-man advantage with 5:39 to play, but South thwarted the Norsemen's last crack.

"I think this win proves we're a legitimate hockey club," said Zimmerman. "A lot of people were saying we are a young team and getting lucky. They've also said that we've played a weaker schedule, but this team deserves to be 12-3-4 and nobody can take that away.

South has won six and tied two in its last eight games, and Nesler has started seven of "Becoming a legitimate team started with the Catholic Central game," Zimmerman said about the 3-3 tie. "A lot of people started recognizing us and started wondering, 'What's this South team all about?' Now they know.'

With 3:21 to play in the game, play was stopped because tennis balls, coins, toilet paper and another squid were tossed from the North crowd. The Norsemen were given a bench penalty for delay of game.

for some renovations.

South has a team that is currently battling for a state title. Granted, the last South team to win a state swim title used the same pool South uses now, but you would think that over 20 years time a larger pool would be built.

A 20-yard pool does not give a swimmer a proper workout.

OK, you may think the PACE program deserves more money, or the books need to be replaced. I agree. But, conditions the teams - except North - must work around are ludicrous. I thought Grosse Pointe would pride itself on a great environment, whether it's in the classroom or pool area. In fact, over at Parcells, there are no true gutters to drain the overflow of water.

When taking pictures on deck, I'm forced to take off my shoes and socks, roll up my pants and splash through the water. I'm not going to melt, but when do you see anyone take off his or her shoes just to cover a swim meet?

I'm incensed by the lack of facilities and the inconvenience of traveling that teams must suffer through in order to get in a workout. Grosse Pointe is better than what's hidden inside a pool area and I for one am embarrassed that the South swim team - on a given day has part of its team at South, the divers at North and some others at Brownell. Swimming is not a big ticket item, but we surely wouldn't expect our students to study in a cold or overcrowded room, so why are the swimmers forced to shuffle between pools?

Jamerino leads Pointe Aquatics

At the 16th Annual Windsor Aqautic Club International Swim Invitational, the Grosse Pointe Aquatics team swam well, led by the talented Christine Jamerino.

Jamerino received the "High Point" award for the 11-12 girls' A group with winning times in the 100 breaststroke (1:11.64), 50 freestyle (26.61), 100 freestyle (58.43), and 50 butterfly (29.75). Jamerino also took a second in the 200 individual medley (1:10.31), and a fifth in the 500 freestyle (5:56.54).

349 points set pace

Wood notches state record

Sports Editor

Doug Wood, a two-time allstate hockey player at University Liggett School, has become the most prolific scorer in Michigan high school hockey.

Wood, who entered his senior season needing 99 points to top Jim Johnson's (Cranbrook) career mark of 346, broke the record in the Knights' 8-3 win over Jackson Lumen Christi Feb. 18 at McCann Rink.

Wood has 349 career points.

"I really didn't think about the record much," said Wood, an all-state soccer and tennis player as well. "My goal is to just help the team win the state title. I'm happy I had the chance to break it, and I'm happy I did break it, but I'm not going to dwell on it."

Wood, who has 164 goals and 185 assists, including 47 goals and 55 assists this season, knows that his success didn't come without help.

"I have a lot of people to thank," he said. "I've been fortunate to play on some great lines to start naming all of the players because I'd probably leave someone out. I'd be nowhere near the record if it wasn't for a lot of people."

Wood's assist total is a state record, as is his overall total.

With each goal and each assist, Wood knew he was getting closer to the mark, but wasn't sure how close.

"I really didn't know how many points I needed," he said. "There really hasn't been a lot of pressure on me to break it, and I don't think anyone would have thought any less of me if I hadn't broken it.'

Especially not his coach, John

"Doug is a treat to have," said Fowler. "Record or not, he's one of the finest players in the state. Doug is just one of the guys. The record won't make him stand out any more than he already does. He doesn't swagger down the halls with a big head. He's a great kid."

Fowler also sees how the team

over the four years and I'd hate rallies around Wood's recordingbreaking season.

"Doug has given a lot of the credit to his teammates," said Fowler, "and the team deserves a big part of the success. Also, every player on this team takes personal pride in knowing they've helped Doug. It's an individual honor that the team shares.

His father, ULS athletic director Bob Wood, agrees.

"It was definitely a magical moment for Sharon (Doug's mother) and me," said Bob Wood. "Obviously, any parent has great pride when his or her son has success in something. However, Sharon and I are also realistic because Doug couldn't have broken that record without his teammates and the coaching

Wood, who is very focused on leading his No. 1 ranked team to the Class B-C-D finals, would like to play at a Division I college, but he wouldn't turn down the opportunity to compete at the Division III level.

Doug Wood, second from right, broke the career scoring mark in Michigan high school hockey in University Liggett School's 8-3 win over Jackson Lumen Christi Feb. 18.

Wood, who now has 349 points, surpassed Cranbrook's Jim Johnson. Wood, who has scored 47 goals and recorded 55 assists this season, has 164 goals and 185 assists in his prep career. Wood's teammate Mike Coello, and coach John Fowler (left), his mother Sharon and father Bob, were very instrumental in Wood's remarkable career.

"I'd love to play Division I, records are meant to be broken. but if not then I'll go to Division III and do my best," he said. "If record," he said. "But right now that happens, then that's just we're focused on winning the the way my cards were dealt."

Wood, whose unselfish play is reflected in his assist total. knows that 10 years from now he'll recall his glory days as a ULS senior, but he also realizes

"I know I'll enjoy having the state title. Hopefully, sometime in my lifetime the record will be broken, but I just hope it can be broken by someone at ULS.'

The only thing Wood hasn't accomplished is bringing home

the state championship hard-

"I think we can do it," he said. "We've been struggling a little lately, but last weekend we turned it around. Everyone is still focused on winning the title. and this record wouldn't mean much if we don't win the state

By Rob Fulton

Sports Editor eek, the Grosse Pointe South basketball team put its showdown with Port Huron on the back burner.

After beating Warren Woods-Tower Feb. 13 in a non-league affair, 57-47, South was scheduled to play at Port Huron, but Mother Nature made different plans. The game, which currently is rescheduled for Feb. 27, will pit the two second place teams in the league.

South and Port Huron, which plays league-leader Port Huron Northern Feb. 23, are one game back of the Northern Huskies.

'We were prepared for the Port Huron game," said Blue Devils' coach George Petrouleas, Due to inclement weather last "but now we'll just have to redoesn't become any less important than any of the games we have left because in order to get a shot at the Eastern Michigan League title, we've got to win the rest of our games.

March 5. At Woods-Tower, South trailed

27-25 at the half after a Titan three-point basket, but used a stingy defense and some clutch shooting to pull away in the fourth quarter.

"We were not scoring at all," said Petrouleas. "We wanted to apply some pressure full court, but when you're not putting the hall in the backet it set up in a press."

In the second half, South changed its defense and forced the Titans into several turnovers.

"We forced some other people to handle the ball for them and it worked," Petrouleas said. "The game was never out of Norsemen hoopers get even with Roseville times, but then they went on a away in the third and fourth run and put it out of reach"

Sports Editor Don't ever count out a Norsemen basketball team.

After falling three games off the pace in the Macomb Area Conference White Division, the Norsemen have battled back to tie Roseville for the league lead.

North, 8-8 overall, moved to 5-3 in the White Division with a decisive 63-59 win over the Panthers Feb. 16 at North.

"I never thought we couldn't get back in the race," said Norsemen coach George Olman. That's the way it's been in our division the last two years. I told the kids that the team who's going to win this thing could have three or four losses."

Behind John Kesman's 13 points and Brian Sheehy's 12, North shot 42 percent from the floor. However, some inside work still needs to be done.

"Sure, Roseville is a physical team," Olman said. "That hurt us, but that's the way it goes inside. We either missed or had shots blocked underneath and that concerned me a bit."

away in the third and fourth quarters, before getting a bit sloppy in the final five minutes.

We had a nine-point lead, but we got a little mentally tired," Olman said. "We threw the ball away two consecutive times and gave up some easy baskets that cut our lead to five, but we hung in there.'

Andy Dudeck, Charlie Stumb and 11m Sacka combined for 24 points.

"It's a good situation to be in," Olman said about the first-place tie. "We had some problems early on in the season (when his team lost seven straight), but we've worked them out. We've got to take one game at a time and worry about ourselves, and not the other teams.'

Finess The time of year for nosebleeds-

Nosebleeds are a very common source of visits to hospital emergency rooms and physicians' offices.

While nosebleeds certainly

there is a much higher incidence of nosebleeds from November through April due to the cold, dry air.

Probably 90 percent of nosebleeds will stop without treatment or with no more than treatment administered by the person with the problem. More serious nosebleeds do require control by physicians. Nosebleeds, because they are controlled easily most of the time, are considered more of a nuisance and seldom regarded as a serious or fatal problem.

Two possible types

There are two varieties of nosebleeds: anterior (from the front part of the nose) and posterior (from the back part of the nose).

The anterior nosebleed is the most common at all ages, although as one's age increases the likelihood of a posterior bleed also increases. Most anterior nosebleeds can be taken care of by the suffering person without seeking medical care.

If medical attention is required, those nosebleeds from the front of the nose are also the easier to control because the vessels are small and easily accessible for cauterization (chemical sealing).

Posteriorly in the nose, the vessels are larger and not as easily seen. Therefore, cautery is often not helpful for those nosebleeds and those people require nasal packs.

Counteracting winter's effect

Since the frequency of nosebleeds is much higher in the winter, there are some conservative things that can be done in the home to try to cut down the frequency.

It's often helpful to increase the humidity in the house with humidifiers on the furnace or several room humidifiers placed in strategic locations. Using salt water nasal sprays, which can be purchased without prescriptions, also will increase humidity in the nose. Even gentle application of a small amount of Vaseline petroleum ointment in the front part of the nose will help.

Treatment

Once the nose is acutely bleeding, the following are some steps that can be used to help try and control the nosebleed:

1) Gently blow the clots out of the nose.

2) Sit up and lean forward so the blood is not trickling down the throat, causing choking.

3) Pinch the soft parts of the nose together (the lower one-third) and push firmly in toward the middle. This pressure should be held for five minutes.

4) Release the pressure, and if the nose is still bleeding, again gently clear the clots from the nose and apply pressure for another 10 minutes.

If the nosebleed will not stop after 15 minutes of pressure, then medical care should be sought. In addition, one should refrain from vigorous or strenuous activity and nose blowing for at least two or three days after a nosebleed.

Remember, while nosebleeds are often of major concern to patients or the parents of small children, they are rarely fatal. Most nose. bleeds usually can be safely treated at home with the steps mentioned.

A physician's care, however, is recommended for nosebleeds from the back of the nose, as well as for recurring and uncontrollable nose. bleeds.

Reprogramming success

February in southeast Michi- head: you see yourself as fat, gan is a weird month.

We could be digging out from a foot of snow or basking in breezes of 50 degrees. We can be as much in a "flux" as the unpredictable weather. Should I start my annual diet? Maybe I'll wait just one more week. We know that spring is getting closer and we know we will be happy to leave the heavy coats and sweaters behind.

However, that also means we can't keep hiding behind all those layers of clothes. So, it's time to take a look at ourselves - oh, where did those fat blobs come from?

So, do we once again resign ourselves to try to diet? How about trying the latest "quick fix?" Do you struggle to lose 10 pounds only to regain 15 then move on to yet another "miracle diet?"

Well, the problem may or many not be with the diet you have selected. One of the main reasons you may be unable to maintain a weight loss may be that while you have achieved a slim body, you have retained a "fat" head.

For example, do you give up your ritual bowl of ice cream while dieting, but constantly dream about the day you will be able to have all of your favorite foods, including those rich, creamy chocolate bars? If so, your head may still be "fat" and this thinking will take you right

Mirror, mirror

By now, we have become quite aware of how important parents are in developing their children's self-image.

Our parents were our very first mirrors of ourselves. If we were preceived as clumsy, difficult, lazy, stupid, etc., by one or both of our parents (either verbally or non-verbally), it's a pretty good bet that we became what that perception reflected back to us.

So why is it so difficult for us to accept and understand that even though we are all grownup, we still may carry with us this same programming? How do we match the slim reflection in the mirror with a slim reflection in our head?

We need to devote as much time to changing the way we think about ourselves and our relationship to food, as we do to changing what we actually eat. This procedure is known as behavior modification; changing habits to support a goal.

For those of us who are weight conscious, it means learning to make correct food choices, making exercise a daily routine and taking control of who we are and what we do.

Successful behavior modification must involve education. Educating ourselves as to what ypes of foods are the best for us back to that picture in your (best means foods that we will

Daydreaming

An important concept that is alive and kicking in all of us is the self-fulfilling prophecy. Instead of the attitude, "I'll believe it when I see it," try this one: "When I believe it, I will see it."

For years we have been running the same program through our brains. Here are just some of the examples of old programs still entrenched in our thoughts:

- "I'd like to lose weight, but I'm too busy, too lazy and too stressed out.'
- "I'd like to lose weight, but I have no self-control. I have to eat out too often, nothing works and no one helps me."
- "I'd like to lose weight, but Application: It may seem like and the time's just not right."

The integral parts of reprogramming your thinking are information, affirmation, application and repetition.

Information: Get as much information as possible so that what method you choose to lose the weight is healthy and incoporates a life-management approach to your weight loss.

Affirmation: This is a very important part of the process. Write down your personal affirmations, then practice saying them 10 times, 50 times and perhaps 100 times a day. Here are some examples:

"I'm getting better with each passing day." "I love and ap-prove of myself." "I have a beautiful and healthy body.'

I've always been fat, I've always an old saying, but it still rings been undisciplined, I'm too old true: practice does make perfect. Take one day at a time. Breakup your overall goal into short, interim goals. In losing 25 pounds for instance, focus on the first pound then the first five, and so on.

Repetition: One of the ways many of us get stuck with the ol' "fat" head thinking, is thinking too much about "when I lose this weight . . ."

We get caught in those old tapes. Don't look back unless you want to be there. With repeated healthy food choices, the process does become easier because you get further away from your old habits with each day. The further you remove yourself from your old habits the more you will begin to crave healthy foods.

The use of trainers

Cher has one. So do Sylvester Stallone and Madonna.

Private fitness trainers have become the latest exercise status symbols, and the trend is just beginning.

So, who needs a private trainer? What is a personal trainer? How much does one cost? And how do you know if it's worth the investment?

Here is a range of likely candidates for using personal trainers:

- People who are just beginning to exercise and need direction to initiate a fitness program.
- Those who have completed rehabilitation from an injury or other medical condition and need further guidance in strengthening affected areas.
- · Elite athletes who require highly specialized training and supervision.
- Busy executive-types who can't find time to escape to the health club.
- Anyone who is uncomfortable about exercising in a crowded fitness center, and prefers personal attention.

If you find that you fit into one of these categories, then you'll want to know what to look for. Below is a list of traits and skills necessary for competency as a personal trainer.

- 1) Ability to evaluate and monitor the client's level of fitness and be able to make referrals to a medical professional when needed.
- 2) Set realistic goals. The Billy Shepard added an emptytrainer needs to discuss what the client wants out of a program, kowski earned the shutout in whether it's to lose weight, to net.  - 3) Role model. Your trainer should be someone who's personal fitness philosophy is one to admire.

4) Knowledge. A qualified trainer will have a working knowledge of nutrition and weight management (i.e., healthy diet and lifestyle changes to effect sustained weight loss or gain in conjunction with a wide range of exer-

Cardiopulmonary resuscitation and basic first aid are a must, along with knowledge of post-injury rehabilitation and injury prevention. A good understanding of anatomy, kinesiology and biomechanics of sports movements are also required. Personal trainers must be well versed in all forms of exercise and be able to design a program that will meet your needs and achieve the goals you have set. 5) People skills. A personal trainer must possess people skills. These include the ability to listen, be patient, sensitive and have a good sense of humor. The era of the personal trainer is here and these heroes of the fitness industry are available at clubs and facilities all over the country — for a price.

Hourly rates differ by area and vary according to years in business, educational background, credentials and specialty, if any, expect to pay between $30 and $75 an hour.

As the number of instructors labeling themselves as personal trainers grows, the fitness industry is moving to set certification standards. The American College of Sports Medicine and The National Acadmey of Sports Medicine certify health and fitness instructors for personal training. Several other organizations will follow suit in the future.

The qualifications are stringent, but are necessary for private fitness instruction. A highly competent trainer will help you set realistic goals, provide inspiration, variety, education, feedback and motivate you to achieve and maintain a healthy, fit lifestyle.
