Israeli teens tour country; speak to South students

Staff Writer
Two Israeli teens discussed such varied topics as Jewish history, rap music, life in a kibbutz, school and the Gaza Strip with students from Grosse Pointe South High School as a way of promoting world understanding.

Liat Kibari and Asaf Harel are part of a delegation of 66 Israeli teenagers spending time in communities throughout Europe, North and South America. They were among eight Israeli teenagers who will visit the Midwest as part of the delegation sent by Israel's Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Ministry of Education.

The informal discussions involving four classes at South High helped to point out that although the lifestyles and customs are different, teens are alike the world over.

School in Israel is six days a week - Saturdays are off - and in addition to the usual reading, writing and arithmetic, students study the Bible, the Hebrew language and Jewish history. They study the English language from the fourth grade on.

"Religion is only part of the Jewish culture," said Kibari, 16, who is the daughter of native-born Israelites. Because the country is only 42 years old, there aren't many who are native born. Only a small percentage of Israelites are devoutly religious, and an even smaller percentage are Orthodox.

When Israel was founded in 1948 after World War II, there were 300,000 residents. An immigration country, Israel has more than 3.5 million people today.

Although there was a huge influx of Ethiopian Jews who fled their famine-plagued country in the early '80s, the largest number of immigrants these days is from Eastern Europe. In the next few years, more than 300,000 Russian Jews are expected to move to Israel.

South teens were surprised when they were told that upon reaching the age of 18 all Israeli teens must join the armed services. The men serve until they are 21, then remain in the reserves until they are 55; the women serve until the age of 20.

"Israel is surrounded by 21 hostile Arab nations," said Harel, who turned 17 last week. "We are a small country (Israel can fit into Lake Michigan 12 times) and we must protect ourselves. A poll of Israeli teens was taken last year and something like 90 percent of all teens said they would still join the army if it wasn't mandatory."

Although they enjoy most of the same privileges of Israeli citizenship, the 600,000 Arab Israelites do not serve in the army.

"We are at war with all the Arab countries around us except Egypt," Harel said. "We can't ask them morally to serve in the army and fight against their brothers."

Kibari's grandparents were held at Bergen-Belsen and Dachau and lost most of their families in those camps. They settled on a kibbutz, and Kibari spent some time

Site-based budgeting issues concern union

By Ronald J. Bernas

A number of teachers serving on program advisory committees, charged with developing site budgets for individual schools, have resigned from the committees at the urging of their union.

At the request of the delegates, Grosse Pointe Education Association President Thomas Whall wrote a letter asking the teachers to resign for a number of reasons.

First the delegates felt there was a lack of adequate funding for the program, which meant a school might not be allocated enough money to continue the same program it has this year.

grams, meaning the principal is the final authority at the building level, was another concern of the union delegates, Whall said. A lack of distinction between collective bargaining issues and site-based budgeting issues was a concern, too. In creating the best possible program for the school, advisory committees could recommend elimination or reduction of other union members' jobs. The delegates felt the teachers should not be in such a position.

Increased working hours without increased pay and lack of adequate training for members before implementing the program were the other concerns spelled out in Whall's Feb. 6 let-

"The board of delegates did not intend that this request be construed as a rejection of the concept of site-based decision-making, but rather a reaction to the manner in which this concept has been implemented under site-based budgeting in Grosse Pointe," Whall's letter said. "It is our hope that proper guidelines can be negotiated that will address the above concerns and allow all our members to participate once again in this very exciting concept.

Whall said some teachers heeded the union's request, and some didn't.

"Most of the schools had all their work done, except for the presentations to the board," he

Former Superintendent John Whritner, whose last day in the district was Friday, March 2, wrote a letter to the teachers and said he was "disappointed" with the recommendation made by the union.

"This (decision) has put teachers who, of their own free will, volunteered for PACs (program advisory committees), in the untenable position of choosing between something they felt was contributing to the system and their own colleagues in GPEA.

Whritner questioned the timing of the union's actions, considering that nearly all the work had been completed.

He emphasized that the PACs are program advisory committees, and should work on programs, not people. The final decision at the building level rests in the hands of the principal, and beyond that the ultimate decision is made by the board of education.

Superintendent Ed Shine, then-deputy superintendent, also wrote a letter to the program advisory committees, reiterating that the "PAC is not a budget committee and, therefore, does not decide a school budget." It is an advisory team whose role is to create a program. The school board decides upon a budget.

'The process still says that teacher participation is vital to the process of site-budgeting," Shine said. "I personally feel that teachers can participate as professionals, separate and apart from their membership in the union.'

Shine added that no one has alleged the contracts have been violated, and he respects the opinion of the union.

'We look forward to working with them and clarifying the issues," he said.

Shine stressed the need for clear, direct communication among staff members to eliminate the stress which usually accompanies change, and that in arriving at program decision recommendations for the board, all negotiated contracts are implemented correctly.

School budgets were due on Feb. 23 and presentations to the board will continue throughout this month.

Whall said teachers serving on the advisory committees will probably be an issue in the union negotiations later this

By Dan Jarvis Staff Writer

After the Hayden family of Grosse Pointe Woods lost their family pet, a 200-pound rescue dog, Mary Hayden told her husband she wanted either another child or another puppy dog.

Hayden, who grew up with "tons of dogs" in her house, tried owning a cat but that didn't do the trick. It had come down to a total of 35 Dalmatian puppies of different parents.

But unlike the "puppy mills" mentioned in a current Detroit News series on the abuses of dog breeding, Hayden uses strict standards for breeding and sales of her Dalmatians.

"People who don't know what they are doing should not be involved in breeding," she said. Even at about $450 for a lessthan-perfect Dalmatian puppy, the cost of proper care is more than the cost to bring one home.

'You can't make money in this," Hayden said. Out of a litter of 11, probably only two or three will be show dog quality. The rest will be family pets.

"The most important thing is to find a good pet home for the dogs," she said.

For the few puppies that show who is willing to take the dog through the proper steps toward championship status. For male dogs, this can take about 2-1/2 years. Females require only about two years to get ready for

But Hayden, looking back on her experience as a breeder and pet placement coordinator, said if you do the job right, it can be bittersweet.

"It's been a tremendous growth of knowledge," she said, "You never stop learning about the breeding of animals. It is a constant growing experience because each one is different and has a unique personality.

"There are some really bad heartaches, like staying up all night with a bitch that's going to die. You become very attached."

Then there are the successes, and when it comes to awards and titles, Hayden's Dalmatians have received many. As she said, the science of breeding can be explained by looking at the breed's desirable characteristics.

According to Hayden, a showquality Dalmatian has full and even nose coloration, eyes evenly rimmed with dark and even color and must have good bone structure. The dogs' height at

Originally pets of the Gypsies of Eastern Europe, Dalmatians ran alongside the carriages. Later bred in England, Dalmatians were used to guard delivery wagons while the traveling merchants went inside. The exotic-looking breed later became popular with the British aristocracy and could be seen trotting alongside the most regal of coaches. Bred in America by George Washington, Dalmatians were used by local firefighters because the dogs were good with horses and because they cleared small animals from the path of the fire wagons. Later, when fire engines became mechanized, the dogs were used to guard fire stations while the firefighters were away battling blazes.

The dependable breed is often trained for tracking scents of animals and humans and has helped firefighters locate small animals and people trapped in burning buildings.

For people considering the addition of a Dalmatian to their household, Hayden offers some advice: "It's very important to parents and ask for pictures of the great-grandparents, she recommends. Also, know the lineage and ask for proper documentation. Male Dalmatians can be shown for about five years, while females can be shown for as long as seven years.

Each litter can produce 10-15 puppies, with some deafness or discoloration expected. The coats on the dogs can have too much or too little color, as judged by national standards. All Dalmatians are white at birth, with spots appearing within four weeks. Most Dalmatians have black spots, but one in four has brown spots and is preferred by

If showing dogs is your pleasure, Hayden said during the summer there are shows every weekend within 100 miles of Detroit.

"Showing is very expensive," she said.

But dog owners like to brag about the camaraderie between owners.

"Some owners can be very competitive," she said. "But all appreciate the hobby." For Hayden, they are pets first and show dogs second.

There is a certain pride in knowing that you have a quality dog from a wonderful breed, a show animal that is also a good pet at home," she said.

Farms council updates housing rehab fund

By Dan Jarvis Staff Writer

Low and moderate income homeowners in Grosse Pointe Farms who want to improve their dwellings may just get a helping hand from the city.

The Farms City Council unanimously approved the establishment of an interest-bearing revolving fund for the purpose of rehabilitating homes in the city Monday night.

City Clerk Richard Solak said the fund, established 10 years ago, will continue to be distributed to low and moderate income residents at no interest for home improvements.

Money from repaid or recovered loans will now be placed into an interest-bearing account which will provide more funds for home improvement loans in the future.

Solak said when funds are transferred from the city's revolving home improvement fund to actual improvements, a lien will be set against the property inside amount lien, which will be registered with the Wayne County Registrar of Deeds, must be paid in full before the property can be sold or transferred to another owner.

Prior to the action by the council, the city handled home improvement loan repayments through the Farms' accounting department. The problem, Solak said, was that the repayment fund did not earn interest. The new account will help the fund grow to ensure more home improvements in the future.

When the housing rehabilitation program was introduced, both loans and grants were offered by the city. Moderate income homeowners were offered partial loans while low income residents were offered home improvement grants.

Homeowners are required to pay the amount in one lump sum before the lien can be lifted and the deed transferred to another owner.

Solak said the program primarily helps senior citizens on fixed incomes who cannot otherwise afford to contract improvements.

The home improvement fund is currently about $20,000. Two homeowners are scheduled for possible loans in 1990.

Solak said the home improvement program has helped approximatley 25 homeowners over the last 10 years. Approximately $250,000 in loans and grants have been offered by the Farms.

"We decided to go with a radi-cal change," said John Olmsted, "instead of filtering in changes."

"The reason we did that is because one thing affects so many other things," Alan Carlyle added. "In order to have banks to loan money, you have to have to the United States, West Gerthings to buy.'

Straight Ahead, an all-women jazz quartet which has performed at the Montreux-Detroit Jazz Festival, will headline a multicultural evening of music, art, dance and poetry in celebration of International Women's Day next month.

Sponsored by the Detroit Women's Coffeehouse, the program is part of an all-day event, "Resources to Build Choices," which will run from 1 to 10 p.m. and includes a memorial service, videos, handcrafts and community resource tables on Saturday, March 10, at the First Unitarian-Universalist Church at Cass and Forest near Wayne State University.

Other entertainers include Pam Sisson Watersinger performing original songs about women, peace and other social issues in a style that blends folk, blues, jazz and pop. Poets Dar Navarre and Marycruz Amy Kahn will display paintings, collages and wearable art that draws on Hispanic, Native American and African-American traditions.

"Art is a powerful tool in any struggle," said coffeehouse producer Ann Perrault. "These women performers strive to go beyond just performing for an audience. They become a force

The coffeehouse will run from 7:30 to 10 p.m. Suggested donation is $4. Proceeds will be used for pro-choice education and lobbying.

Earlier Saturday, Women Against Male Violence will hold a memorial service from 1 to 2 p.m. in the church sanctuary to remember women who were victims of domestic violence in 1989.

Videos highlighting women's accomplishments and struggles for equality in a variety of social arenas will be shown from 3 to

Also, more than 35 organizations that serve, organize and educate women in the metropolitan area will have representatives at resource tables from 2 to

"We hope that whatever a woman's concern is, whether it's childbirth, welfare rights, single parenting, racism or pay equity, she'll find valuable information here," said event coordinator Maureen Sheahan.

Books and handcrafted jewelry, needlework, accessories and art by local women artists will also be on sale at this time.

Suggested donation for the afternoon is $2. Free child care will be available. Everyone is welcome.

Assistant Manager Kevin Brennan showed the troop everything about the pizza process - from answering the phone and taking orders to the walk-in freezer where the dough is stored. Each Brownie then made her own small pizza by shaping the dough and adding all the toppings. The pizzas were compliments of Domino's. Troop 1727 leader is Jane McFeely.

Probation volunteers needed

District Court 32A, located in the city of Harper Woods, needs interested citizens willing to volunteer their services to the Volunteer Probation Department. The necessary requirements for joining this program are a willingness to assist persons who have come in contact with the District Court and to assist the Probation Department.

Volunteers interview counsel individuals on probation to the court. They also provide reports to the court on the progress of those on probation. The Probation Department is operated by volunteers who receive no payment for their services.

If you know of someone willing to volunteer or would like further information, please contact Judith DeKeyser, court administrator, at 343-2590 or visit the court located at 19617 Harper Ave., Harper Woods.

We need your help. Any time that you can spare will truly be appreciated.

'Bidding war' over tax cuts is warming up

he political "bidding war" to reduce state property taxes and to increase state funding for education is warming up with both political parties offering new proposals in preparation for the November election.

Both sides started with plans to increase state funding for education but now seem to have shifted their emphasis to proposed property tax cuts. That may not be surprising in view of the recently issued assessment notices that show continuing increases throughout the state and up to 16 percent in Grosse Pointe communities.

The latest entry in the "bidding war" comes from House Democrats who last week passed a $344 million tax relief plan backed by Gov. James Blanchard. The program would boost revenue by an estimated $400 million by eliminating a single business tax deduction with most of the increased revenue financing tax cuts for homeowners. The plan would also limit future home assessment increases for school purposes to the inflation rate.

The latest GOP entry in the "bidding war" was Sen. John Engler's proposal for a school property tax cut of 20 percent within three years and includes a plan to exempt people over age 65 from paying any school property taxes.

It has been estimated that the loss in local school tax revenue after three years would be up to $1.5 billion. And where would the replacement come from? That's the $1.5 billion question.

Engler would slash other state services and earmark future increases in revenue to fund the state reimbursements to local school districts that would make up for the loss in local property taxes. But he has not proposed any specific cuts in state spending by other state agencies.

Instead, in a recent Channel 7 TV appearance, Engler said "the public accepts the premise" that the state government spends too much and has gotten too large. Even a 5 percent spending cut across the board would "not be too onerous," in his

But surely if the Engler plan were seriously considered, it could result in a nasty legislative battle over the needs and financing of other state services. Many political observers, however, do not expect the Democratic House to buy the Engler program.

Instead, they tend to regard his latest plans as part of the "bidding war" between Engler and the governor to see who can propose the biggest cut in property taxes and the biggest increase in state spending for school purposes as they prepare for their November contest.

In our view, it makes some sense to trim school property taxes for senior citizens with limited income, but education surely is a necessary cost of government that all citizens, whatever their age, should support to the extent of their abilities.

Both parties appear to favor property tax reduction but Democrats want to pay for it through higher taxes on business while Republicans seek more cuts in social services to offset the loss in revenue. Will the parties agree on a compromise? It is possible but appears unlikely at the moment.

Meanwhile, the House passed the bill to reinstate the Detroit utility tax struck down by a judge earlier in February. That action left the city of Detroit possibly liable for up to $100 million in taxes already collected under the act although his ruling is now under appeal.

Efforts by some Republicans to attach their statewide tax cut plan to the utility rescue legislation for the city of Detroit apparently is doomed to failure, however. The governor has said he would veto legislation containing any such linkage. But the GOP Senate obviously wants the Democrats to pay some price for its support for the bail-out legislation.

Despite a more favorable judicial ruling, nobody really knows whether the ex post facto law would legalize the tax collections made under the act the judge ruled had expired.

The overall result is the Legislature appears to be mired even this early in an election year in tax and school aid controversies that are likely to produce little more than stop-gap legislation - and issues for the November campaign.

Have we lost our way?

e sometimes wonder whether we Americans have lost our way to the future despite the recent victories of democracy over communism all around the world.

Is it really true that the American people cannot afford to finance a minor Marshall plan to put the Eastern European na-tions on their economic feet or to fund our own domestic needs, such as fighting a tough drug war, adequately aiding people unable to help themselves, facing up to our environmental problems, restoring our highways and bridges and improving our own national educational system?

Is it that we cannot really afford to do the things that many Americans believe need to be done or is it that we just don't have the will to support the state and national measures to carry out such programs?

"Our ideals are triumphing but American wealth, influence, prestige and power are all declining," according to William Schneider, a Democratic analyst quoted by Maureen Dowd in the New York Times. "We have lost our ability to control major

If those charges are true, should we blame President Bush for his lack of the "vision thing," his seeming inability to articulate a plan for the future, or should we accept the fault ourselves because of our own unwillingness to bear the burdens necessary to finance the future?

True, money isn't the key to success in meeting all the national needs but most do require more public funding. But while polls consistently show support for expansion of many social and other programs, they also show little backing for the taxes and other revenues needed to finance them.

In the face of continuing competition from Japan and the emerging Far Eastern nations and the increased competition from a united Europe starting in 1992, is the United States going to be willing to take a back seat or will it respond to new challenges as it has in the past?

And if we in the United States lose our way, can we continue to serve as a model for nations emerging from the Communist yoke and needing more than lip service to get started in the capitalist world?

Or should such depressive musings merely be blamed on the Monday morning blues that are deepened by a new snowstorm that further postpones the arrival of spring? Perhaps.

What's the major '90 issue?

sampling of opinion in the 14th Congressional District which includes the Farms, the Shores and the Woods shows that crime and drugs together constitute the major issue today.

That at least was the response of 40 percent of the more than 6,000 district residents to Rep. Dennis Hertel's most recent legislative survey taken as the state heads

In one pocket

uch to their pleasant surprise, all of the Social Security recipients enrolled in the Part B Medicare program recently received $10.60 refunds for the increase in Medicare premiums taken from their Social Security checks in January and February.

The refunds came as a surprise because the government earlier had said it could not make the refunds, caused by the repeal of the increase in fees for Medicare supplementary medical insurance, until later this spring. The task of making corrections in almost 30 million checks and hundreds of computer programs was blamed.

The news was not all good, however. The Social Security Administration said the March and April Social Security checks also are having too much deducted for Medicare but promised another check in April for the overpayments.

Let's hope the government can make the April refunds prior to the federal income tax deadline on April 15 so that the money will get into one pocket before going out another.

into another political election year. What are the other top '90 issues, according to the Hertel poll?

They are about what you might expect: 22 percent of the respondents cited the federal budget deficit, 14 percent health care, 10 percent the environment, 7 percent the trade deficit and 5 percent the AIDS epidemic.

Asked whether they are better off financially than they were a year ago, twothirds of the respondents replied negatively and only a third positively. And when asked what they expected their family's financial situation to be in the coming year, 29 percent responded worse, 22 percent better and 49 percent the same.

Those reactions no doubt reflect the economic pessimism caused by Michigan's rise in unemployment, especially in the auto industry, and the deepening economic and political problems in Detroit.

On two major issues, the 14th District respondents showed minimum support for expanded federal spending. Asked about federal spending for education, 38 percent favored more, 37 percent the same and 24 percent less. On child care facilities and programs, 28 percent favored use of federal funds, 58 percent opposed and 14 percent expressed no opinion.

Overall, it's clear that the 14th District responses add up to a cautious evaluation of the future, both with respect to people's own economic prospects and to federal spending. In view of the economic problems in the state and nation, such an attitude is not surprising and probably reflects majority opinion in the state.

A dreamer

To the Editor:

In your recent (Feb. 15) reference to Sen. (John) Kelly as "Don Q. Kelly," let me say, he may be a dreamer but he is also a hard worker, brave and honorable servant. I'm sure many senior citizens and college students whom he has helped could attest to that.

Many years ago, my husband and I attended a conference at the University of Notre Dame. The guest speaker was then-Sen. Eugene McCarthy. One thing he said really impressed me. He said, "Teach your children to think of politicians as statesmen for their country.'

And today that's what my son is - a great statesman. Keep up the good work, Senator.

Good Samaritan To the Editor:

I just wanted to get a letter off to you and let you know about a good Samaritan who gave me a ride home Saturday, Feb. 24.

I had two bags of groceries and was waiting for the bus near Kroger's in the Village when this kind lady asked me how far I was going. I told her and she insisted I get in, so I did, thinking it was on her way. It turned out she lived in the opposite direction. This beautiful lady was in a wheelchair, did all her shopping, then went out of her way to drive me home. She drove a specially equipped van. This makes me realize there are some wonderful people still out there and I wanted to take this opportunity to let people know and to thank her again.

My turn again?

Loyal readers of this column know the editorial staff alternates writing in this space. So once every five weeks it's my say. Whether I have anything to say or not.

It's not a great feeling, being totally devoid of pithy remarks and knowing you have to fill this space regardless.

So I stare at the black screen with the green cursor staring back at me. It doesn't even challenge me. It watches me, offering no support, no encouragement and no inspiration. But deadline approaches, and the screen is still black.

Just to get something on the screen I type the alphabet. Then

I type my name. Then I decide I should relax and not force a column, so I stop and get a cup of coffee. My eighth.

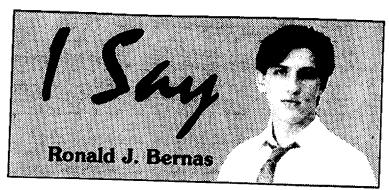

I sit back down and realize the reason I have nothing to say is not because I've got writer's block, but because my screen is dusty. I get one of those treated cloths and wipe it off.

With a fresh screen, I sit back and wait for inspiration to come

I've finished my coffee and still I wait. I go to the bathroom. Still nothing. I straighten my desk, yet no great truth reveals itself to me.

I scrub the coffee stain off my desk and realize my desk needs dusting and washing, but I'm not quite so bored I feel I have to clean it. Nor am I quite so bored I feel the need to clean the living, breathing stain off the inside of my coffee mug.

I think I'll write about one of my friends who is always urging me to write about her. I think again - it might go to her head.

I leaf through one of my quote books, hoping to find something which would unlock the dams keeping my creative juices from flowing and I find nothing.

I did find these two great quotes about writing and writers by two people I've never heard

"One reason the human race has such a low opinion of itself is that it gets so much of its wisdom from writers." So said Wilfrid Sheed. In written form, that statement negates itself.

Then there's this little gem by

Antonin Artaud:

'All writing is garbage. People who come out of nowhere to try to put into words any part of what goes on in their minds are Well. It sounds to me as though someone needs a week in the country.

Artaud, incidentally, lived from 1898-1946, and was a French actor, drama critic and get this - a poet. Lord Byron he Upon putting my book of quotations back, still uninspired, I rearrange my reference materials from biggest to littlest and still I have nothing to say. Then I arrange them alphabetically according to author, but put them back like they were.

I think of retitling this: "A study in writer's block," but realize it won't fit nicely, so I

I've been told the best cure for writer's block is to force yourself to write. I'm forcing and - still nothing.

I take a phone call, answer another writer's deadline plea for the spelling of a name, and as deadline approaches, I look at the screen filled with characters and think: "Wow, I'm almost done.'

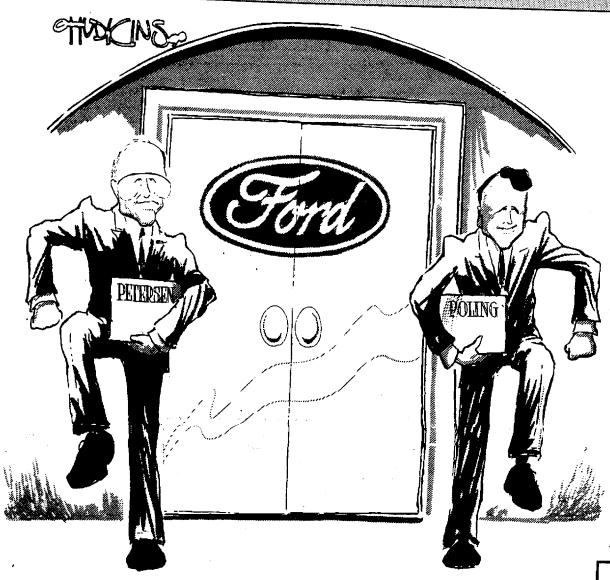

I worry that I am losing my knack for the witty observation, but remember that two weeks ago I had a great column idea but it wasn't my turn to "say" so I didn't. Anyway, I can't remember what it was so perhaps it couldn't have been that good.

I scroll back on this and think 'Say, I've said," and don't have to say again for another five weeks. Which, I'm sure, pleases all concerned.

Airport

To the Editor:

Despite the assurances in your article of Feb. 22, I pity the Pointes if the Detroit City Airport expansion goes through. Unfortunately, your article fosters complacency on the part of residents when what is needed is immediate action.

The current runway being considered, "G," runs parallel to the existing runway, in a north-south direction. Your article states, "With Option G, only people in parts of Grosse Pointe Woods would hear the planes as they make their turns ... not too much different from the current situation." I disagree that only Grosse Pointe Woods will be affected and that the expansion won't cause much change.

As a resident of Grosse Pointe Park, I can attest that the noise of the airplanes taking off is quite clearly heard in my home, starting at 6:45 a.m. and ending at 11:45 p.m. Should the expansion proceed, the noise disturbance, as well as air pollution and safety issues, will be multiplied many times over.

Currently Southwest Airlines, alone, has over 20 incoming and 20 outgoing flights per day; other airlines signed on to do business at City. With the expansion, it is projected that there will be 150 flights in, 150 flights out per day. Even if current levels are not excessively bothersome, the thought of this kind of an increase is certainly distressing to me. The quiet atmosphere which attracts so many to the Pointes will no longer exist. It isn't difficult to project the effect on property values.

If residents are concerned about the airport expansion, which is certainly warranted, they should be taking action now, before the study process is completed. Even if the expansion cannot be stopped, which should be our first aim, the Grosse Pointes can try to obtain concessions to lessen the impact on our community, quality of life, and property values. Concessions can include limiting the number of flights to 75-80 per day, restricting traffic patterns and altitudes over the Pointes, limiting operating hours, and ensuring only Class III planes (which are quieter) are permitted to use the airport.

Residents need to encourage their respective City Councils to fight for these concessions, if not to try to stop the expansion completely. Concerns should also be submitted in writing to both the City of Detroit Planning Department and the Federal Aviation Admin-

While your article claims that there has not been an increase in traffic, there has been, and it is nothing compared to what is coming. Perhaps we are only "more aware of the noise now," as your article states. Unfortunately, our increasing awareness is guaranteed if we fail to take action. Janice Skinner

To the Editor:

As wintertime residents of Florida, we have the Grosse Pointe News sent to us each week. We were particularly pleased with your recent editorial on Jon Gandelot, who has faithfully served the Grosse Pointe school board for so many years. It was an excellent editorial and says what so many of us in Grosse Pointe have been saying for so long.

Your piece on the 45th anniversary of Father Francis Canfield was excellent, too. Our congratulations to the staff of your paper for doing such a good job.

Keep it up

To the Editor:

Congratulations on the writing programs and coaching mentioned in the awards story (March 1 issue). It certainly pays off; the clarity of your stories, good grammar, etc, are superior to the two major Detroit dailies - and some radio and TV mouthexercisers.

And to the staff - keep it

Millions and millions of people watched — and laughed — as small, furry and feathery creatures took revenge on amateur magician John Moehring of Grosse Pointe Farms. Moehring is a a sophomore at Grosse Pointe South High School.

Alma Villalobos of Grosse Pointe Park, also a sophomore at South, filmed some of Moehring's prestidigitation gone awry and packed it off to "Americas Funniest Videos.'

Two segments of the video were shown last Sunday night on national TV.

Blood drive

Cottage Hospital will join with the American Red Cross Friday, March 9, to help ensure a safe and adequate supply of blood for those in need. The lower level boardrooms will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. for the hospital's semi-annual blood drive.

All participants will receive a complimentary hospital meal pass. As a special community incentive, two restaurant gift certificates, one for Irish Coffee and one for Pat O'Brien's, will be given away.

Donating blood is safe and takes less than an hour from registration to the post-donation snack. Residents and employees are invited to donate.

Appointments are not necessary, but one can be made by calling 884-8600, ext. 2450.

Chamber offers scholarship

The Metro East Chamber of Commerce, which serves the business communities of St. Clair Shores, Roseville, Fraser, Harper Woods and the Grosse Pointes, is pleased to announce the availability of two $1,000 scholarships to be awarded through the Metro East Chamber of Commerce Children's Trust Fund.

These scholarships are available to high school students with a 3.0 grade point average, who live and attend public or private schools within the nine-city service area of the Metro East Chamber of Commerce. Students must plan to attend an accredited four-year or two-year college, with the facility or extension located within Wayne or Macomb counties. The deadline for accepting for the 1990 fall semester is May 15.

Applications are available through the high school counselor's office or by calling the Chamber of Commerce office at 777-2741.

Handgun found at Jacobson's

A gun lying in a dressing room wrapped in a scarf caused a momentary flurry at Jacobson's last week. On Feb. 20, store personnel called City police to report finding the gun, a Walther .380 automatic.

A quick police check showed the gun was perfectly legal and registered to a Park businessman. The man had been shopping for vacation clothes and took the gun out of his pocket to try on a swim suit.

Arrest nets gun

Park police stopped a car for a traffic violation last week and came up with a hidden weapon.

On Feb. 20, an officer issuing a ticket noticed that a passenger in the back seat appeared to be holding a gun. The officer called for a backup and then searched the car. The search turned up a .38 caliber derringer loaded with two rounds and hidden on the floor.

The passenger in the front seat was wanted on several war-

Necklace missing

A Fisher Road resident reported Feb. 9 that a $375 gold necklace was missing from her house. According to Farms police reports, the necklace was apparently taken from a jewelry box in a desk drawer in an upstairs bedroom.

Workmen had a key to the house when she missed the jewelry. They have not yet returned the key, the report said.

Purse snatched

A Woods woman shopping in the Farms was accosted Feb. 28 by two men who grabbed her purse. They wrestled her for it and caused a slight scrape to her wrist, according to Farms police reports.

The men then jumped in their car and sped off down a Mack alley. The woman got in her own car to chase them, but the car wouldn't start. In the purse were several bracelets, a wallet and credit cards.

A type of commune, a kibbutz is a community, generally agricultural in nature, in which the kibbutzniks share everything. "No one is poor and no one is rich," Kibari said. "It's a real nice way to live."

Only 3 percent of all Israelis live on kibbutzes, but they account for 40 percent of the country's agricultural output.

Although there is no drinking age in Israel, there is not a high incidence of drug use, the teens say.

They watch American television, with "The Cosby Show" as popular there as it is here. Kibari's favorite show is "Alf." Israeli teens also like Michael J. Fox, Dire Straits, American movies and Pink Floyd.

Harel, a football fan, paid $15 to see the Superbowl in a movie theater. The game started at 2 a.m.

be achieved," Kibari said.

The two students were chosen for their poise, knowledge of Israel and their personality. They volunteered to give something back to their country.

"I volunteered because I know that the Americans don't know a lot about Israel," Kibari said. "And what they do know is not what I want them to know. It's a chance to do something for the country I love."

Harel seconded that emotion: "It's important for me that I honor my country and this is a way to do it."

They have been impressed with the enthusiastic response and the interest they have received in their travels.

The two stayed with the Scheiwe family in Grosse Pointe Park. Susie Scheiwe said she once stayed in a foreign country as a guest of a host family and wanted to return the favor.

"It's been a wonderful experience for all of us," she said. The Scheiwes have four children, who have learned from the experience, too.

Harel and Kibari are off to Flint later "Everybody believes we should have this month, then will visit Duluth, Minn.,

Or voice-actuated controls, so you just tell the car to start the engine or turn the lights on?

Probably not soon, says Trevor M. Creed, who is in charge of interior design for all Chrysler Corp. cars, even though "we have the technical capability now."

But these features cost money and there is no real need for them. Not yet, anyway.

"There's no need for heads-up display now, as is used on jet fighters," said Creed. "But air bags have driven controls off of the steering wheel and if the instrument panel becomes just as safety bolster, then heads-up display and voice actuation of controls may become necessary. That's when we'll get it."

Motorists are conservative. Change for change's sake is risky. Acceptance of digital readouts instead of analog dials has been mixed.

And motorists did not seem to like cars talking to them, telling them their door was open or to fasten their seat belts. It remains to be seen whether they want to speak to their cars. Some may feel silly telling a car to turn its lights on. And what if it doesn't? It's not a sure thing, like a switch is. Do you yell at it? What if you curse at it - will it sulk and refuse to turn on?

Even if these flashy, conceptcar features are not likely in the next couple years, there is plenty of attention being paid to interior design.

"The aerodynamic 'jellybean' exterior shape of cars is pretty well-accepted now," says Creed, director-Jeep, truck and interior design. "The emphasis is now shifting to the interior. The userfriendly interior is the equivalent of the aerodynamic exterior."

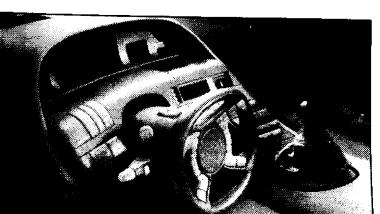

Creed said interior design is currently being strongly influquirements, which are much is the consumer demand for sumer demand for simplicity," more elaborate in regard to inte- more attractive, more friendly rior design than American. design, he cited the fingertip controls around the steering wheel in the Chrysler LeBaron and Dodge Daytona models. He said there is a thrust to standardize controls so there is no confusion about where switches and buttons are. And, of course, they should be easy to see.

"The air bag in the center of the steering wheel has driven most of the controls off of the wheel. Only the horn buttons remain, because putting them anywhere else confuses most drivers.'

Creed said neon digital displays have not been universally accepted. "We thought maybe the older drivers would resist them, but thought the younger buyers would like them. It turned out to be the other way around: Older buyers can read digital speedometer readouts more easily and faster, but the younger drivers prefer analog gauges.'

Creed said the steering wheel will remain round, because again that is what people are used to and what they expect. "With four-wheel steering, we don't really need a full wheel and could go with an aircrafttype control. But we won't."

Attention is paid to details, like how a switch feels and how it sounds. Creed said these are things that give the motorist the perception of quality.

As driver-side airbag installations grow, steering wheel hubs will get bulkier and controls will be pushed off. Pontiac, in particular, has been using steering wheel-mounted controls for its stereo systems and a number of makes put cruise control buttons on the steering wheel. With air bags, probably only the horn button will remain on the steering

As an example of user-friendly

Air bags are a major influence on interior design. Their installation could eventually eliminate the dashboard for use except as a safety bolster. This could accelerate moves toward heads-up display and voice actuated controls.

when an animal has to be euthanized," he said of his controversial decision to let the zoo go ahead with its plan.

"Actually, I got very little adverse mail on that - it wasn't as controversial as people supposed. But any time you have animals involved, there's a lot of emotion."

He laughed. "Fortunately, I was running with the incumbents and we were unopposed."

Teranes' office walls demonstrate his affection for the wild. They are decorated with photographs taken by his wife, Barbara, when she was a Peace Corps volunteer in Africa. The veldt; a lion, alert but relaxed; a leopard lying on a branch, its legs dangling, satiated with a meal of Thompson's gazelle.

The high-profile cases are surrounded by a different sort of atmosphere, Teranes said. The courtroom is more crowded, television crews wait in the corridor, the atmosphere is charged.

One such case occurred right after the county adopted its new charter. A dispute erupted over conflicting appointments to the post of county sheriff, as Robert Ficano and Loren Pittman vied for legitimacy.

"There was a lot of interest in that one, because it was the first test of the new charter and of the authority of the (newly created) county executive," Teranes recalled.

One of the problems with high-profile cases is publicity. Newspapers and television are naturally interested in big cases, especially emotional cases like child abuse or murder.

"There's always a question about whether the press will influence jurors," he said, "but the press does have a right to report. Most jurors are quite conscientious about not discussing a case or reading about it.

"The problem doesn't come during the trial - pre-trial publicity is a bigger problem.

"It's somewhat of a dilemma:

You have to get jurors who may have heard something about it, but are willing to keep an open mind. Otherwise, you'd have people who are unaware of life around them.'

These days, many criminal cases involve drugs, either because the accused was under the influence of drugs or because drugs are the motive for murder or robbery. But Teranes doesn't agree that legalizing drugs would do much to improve the situation.

"Legalizing isn't the answer," he said. "You're still going to have people who want more drugs. Once you get into drugs, it ruins your life. It would legalize ruining your life, by making it a more acceptable practice.

"When they had the methadone program, there were people who would turn around and sell the methadone illegally.

"Legalizing it wouldn't stop people from getting into drugs in the first place."

Teranes and his family live in the City. He and his wife have four children: One working, one at Oberlin, one at U of D high school and one at Pierce. They are active members of St. Philomena Church.

They enjoy riding a tandem bike and have just bought a new 18-speed model. The whole family took a bike hike on Manitoulin Island last summer for four

Aside from the mountains of professional reading required for work, Teranes said he also reads for pleasure. Mostly nonfiction, history and biographies, his current books are "In Praise of Wolves" (R.D. Lawrence) and "Waiting in the Wings," a biography of Armand Hammer.

Blindness is the focus of Teranes' civic activities. He has spoken several times to schoolchildren to tell them how blind people manage their lives.

"I show that blind people can get around and hold jobs and do things other people do," he said.

He also serves on the boards of the Great Lakes Rehabilitation Center, which teaches people with a variety of handicaps to live independently; of the Greater Detroit Society for the Blind, a United Way-connected agency that also works on rehabilitation; and of the Twitty-Milsap-Sterban Foundation, which concentrates on college scholarships for the blind. The foundation is named for entertainers Conway Twitty, Ronnie Milsap and Richard Sterban of the Oakridge Boys.

"Newly handicapped people need to rebuild their confidence," he said. "It's a devastating experience. They have to learn that they can proceed with their lives, though maybe not in the same way. So just being able to do things is a statement in it-

Library plans

On Sunday, March 11, at 3 p.m. the Grosse Pointe board of education will hold an open community meeting in the Brownell Middle School gym to discuss plans to build a new Central Library on school property at 260 Chalfonte, Grosse Pointe Farms.

This is the second meeting the board has scheduled to keep the neighbors of Brownell Middle School informed about plans for the proposed new library.

Members of the architectural firm of Osler/Milling will present the first sketches of the exterior of the proposed building.

All Grosse Pointe residents are invited to attend.

Officer robbed

A Detroit woman who had been involved in a minor traffic accident Feb. 28 went into South High School to use the pay phone. She laid her purse beside the phone, then forgot it on her way outside. When she went back for the purse, it was gone, according to the Farms police

The woman is a police sergeant in Detroit.

Arrange flowers

Two new classes in flower arranging have been scheduled during March by the Department of Community.

Both will be taught by local expert Don Jensen of The Arrangement.

The first, "Silk Flower Demonstration," will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday, March 15. Jensen urges students to bring a silk flower.

The second, "Japanese Line Arrangement," will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday, March 22.

Both classes will be held at Barnes School, 20090 Morningside. Fee is $6 each. Call 343-2178 for information.

Thirteen Cadette Girl Scouts from the Grosse Pointe area attended a Camp-In session at the Center of Science and Industry in Columbus, Ohio, recently.

The junior high girls were part of a delegation of 63 Girl Scouts from the Michigan Metro Girl Scout Council who joined with scouts from Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, West Virginia

Activities included having their hair raised by an atom smasher, visiting with robots and coal mine. The girls attended a workshop on frogs and tadpoles, and each brought home her own tadpole. Girls also attended workshops on either chemistry or flight, and were given chemistry sets or small

Rid your house of toxic substances

Do you know what poisons lurk in your home? Common household products which we do not normally think of as hazardous, such as aerosol cans, ammonia, bleach and moth balls are toxic and can be harmful to us and our environment.

Learn to identify these hazardous household products and to use non-toxic alternatives which are readily available or easily concocted at home, using safe and natural substances.

Leah Vartanian, vice president of Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling, will offer helpful information on this topic, including useful handouts and an informative question and answer session on Tuesday, March 20, at airplanes, parachutes and flight paraphernalia as mementos.

In order to be selected for the travel opportunity, each girl had and the museum planetarium to participate in an application and reference process and be interviewed. The trip is part of the "Wider Opportunity" program sponsored by the Michigan Metro Girl Scout Council that enables girls to travel and participate in programs they might not otherwise be able to experience on their own.

Paper that wall

"Wallpapering," a two-session Community Education class, begins at 7 p.m. Tuesday, March 27, at Barnes School, 20090 Morningside Drive.

Learn how to prepare a room properly for wallpapering. This class covers all the tricks of the trade - from selecting paper and related materials - through actually hanging paper.

Taught by expert James Hay, the fee is $9. Call 343-2178 to register.

House entered; heavy safe taken

An Allard resident came home from an evening class Feb. 26 and found that her house had been broken into and a safe

The rear bedroom window was broken, the back door was open and two bedrooms had been ransacked, Woods police reports

A 200-pound safe was missing. Fortunately for the homeowner, the contents of the safe had earlier been moved to a safe deposit

Police believe the safe could not have been moved by one person. A bed sheet found in the back yard had probably been twisted into a rope to help move and carry the safe.

Auto burglarized

A car parked in a Torrey driveway over the weekend was burglarized, the owner discovered Monday morning. He reported Feb. 19 that someone had entered his unlocked 1989 Oldsmobile and taken a Motorola eight-channel two-way radio mounted between the front seats. The antenna was unscrewed from the trunk.

Woods police noted that the thief had taken the time to disconnect everything, rather than breaking or cutting the wires. A front seat was not taken.

He joined the Detroit Area Council as an executive board member in 1981 and became a vice president of the council in

The Whitney M. Young, Jr. Service Award is a national recognition by the Boy Scouts of America presented by local councils to individuals who, in a significant way, have enhanced the opportunity for youth in the inner-city or rural areas to become Scouts.

The award was presented during the annual meeting Jan. 30 at the Fairlane Manor in Dearborn before a crowd of 250 Scout leaders. The presentation was made by George F. Francis III and William C. Brooks, both of whom are long-time Scout leaders. Francis is vice president, human resources for Blue Cross/ Blue Shield of Michigan, and U.S. undersecretary of Labor.

Teen drinking party dispersed

A drinking party involving some 30 teenagers was broken up by Grosse Pointe Woods police March 3.

Police received two calls from residents reporting an unsupervised teenage party at a home in the 21200 block of Wedgewood. At 11:24 p.m., police questioned the 18-year-old resident at the home. She said her parents were not at home.

While talking to the woman, police noticed several teenagers inside the house and many full and empty beer bottles. Despite the resident's protests, two officers entered the house and told the youths present that the party was over, according to police reports.

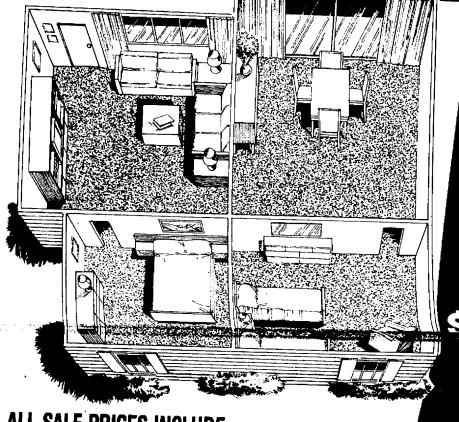

While in the home, the officers took down the names and addresses of six 17-year-olds present and told the youths their parents would be notified. Police also confiscated a case of beer containing 10 full bottles and

Farms updates emergency care

Early dismissal

Students will be dismissed at 11:30 a.m. on Thursday, March 15, at Grosse Pointe North and South high schools so teachers can participate in a special staff development program.

North and South teachers had nine different 2-1/2 hour educational sessions from which to choose. Included in the selection of in-service sessions are the following: Art in the '80s, Tomorrow's Education Starts Today, Technology of Tomorrow - Today, Global Perspectives in a Dramatically Changing World, Collaborative Consultation, Functional Foreign Language Curriculum, University of Chicago School Math Program, Project 2061 (National Science Teachers Association), and Team Building.

"We have developed a smorgasbord of outstanding speakers for our March 15 in-service half day," said Marcy Carbone and Jan Smith, chairpersons of South's and North's Staff Development committees, in a joint communique.

The cafeterias of both high schools will not serve student lunches on March 15 and bus service will be available at 11:30 a.m. to return students to their Schuch Schuch's poem will appear in the March 1990 issue of the award-winning children's magazine.

Paul Dykstra, 12, of Grosse Pointe Woods, a student at Brownell Middle School received third prize in the same month's competition. His poem will also appear in the March issue.

Nolan Thompson, 11, of Grosse Pointe Farms, a student at Brownell Middle School, and Chris Cooper, 11, of Grosse Pointe Woods, a student at Parcells Middle School, both received honorable mention for the same contest. Their names will appear in the March 1990 issue,

St. Joan of Arc happenings

At St. Joan of Arc School, Rose Heinrichs' fifth-graders collected over 500 pairs of prescription eyeglasses for Christian Blind International. Heinrichs described the response to the class' appeal as "tremendous, much more than we anticipated." Donations are still being accepted. Cash donations to help defray the cost of mailing would also be appreciated. Showing off the collected glasses, from left in back, are Dennis Abdelnour, James Simon, Rory Mallon, Joe Allemon and Heinrichs. In front is Cheryl Bird.

The class for 4-year-olds at Christ the King Lutheran Preschool of Grosse Pointe Woods was recently thrilled when Dave Bergman, first baseman for the Detroit Tigers, came and talked with them. He visited during "B" week and talked about baseball, bats, balls, bases and, most importantly, the Bible. Above, he is holding his daughter Erika who is in the preschool program.

Christ the King Lutheran Preschool at 20338 Mack is a state-licensed Christian preschool with certified teachers. Sessions for both 3- and 4-year-olds are available. For information, call 884-5090.

Art students make great showing

Grosse Pointe South High School art students earned 55 awards at the Regional Scholastic Art Awards Competition held recently at the Summit Place Mall in Waterford Township.

Included among the honors were a summer scholarship, the Ricoh Merit Award Nomination, a selection of the best-in-show photograph; two DMI gift certificates, 15 Blue Ribbons (top award), 15 Gold Keys and 17 certificates.

Junior Pat Labadie has been offered a $500 summer scholarship to Savannah College of Art and Design. He plans to attend the workshop, ultimately pursuing a career in either graphic design or cartooning. His other awards included a Gold Key in graphic design and a Gold Key in pastel, crayon and charcoal.

Senior Max McDuffee won the Ricoh Merit Award Nomination. His photograph, titled "The Deer" was judged as the best-inshow and will be sent to New York, where 12 national finalists will be selected from the 64 regional entries. Each finalist will receive a Ricoh camera for himself and one for his or her school.

Three other South photography students - Torey Birgbauer, Derek Farr and Heather Ault, all seniors - have portfolios going on to national competition.

"Only one-fourth of all the portfolios entered go on to New York," said Jack Summers, photography and art instructor.

Sophomore Russell Smith won a $20 DMI gift certificate in addition to a Blue Ribbon and a Gold Key in graphic design.

"South managed to capture more awards in photography and graphic design than any other school (in regional competition) although overall South didn't receive as many awards as in previous years," said Barbara Gruenwald, secondary art department head.

South dominated the photography and graphic design categories and has more entries advancing to national competition than in the last two years combined, while winning less than half the total number of individual awards won each year previously, according to Gruenwald. The art exhibit was on display

SAD form of depression

Do the dark, cold days of winter make you feel grouchy as a bear yearning to hibernate? You may have Seasonal Affective Disorder (SAD).

Sometimes called the winter blues, SAD is a form of depression that occurs in early fall and lasts through mid-winter. It has been recognized by the American Psychiatric Association as a distinct psychological condition.

"Seasonal Affective Disorder can be a mild to a moderate form of depression," said Daniel Altier, M.S., psychologist for Bon Secours Hospital's adolescent mental health unit

The symptoms include sad ness, anxiety, decreased physical activity, reduction in the sexdrive and an increase in appeare

Symptoms occur from early fall to mid-winter coupled with a craving for carbohydrates which often results in weight gain.

"In effect, people with SAD reduce their activity level until spring," Altier said.

There must be at least a threeyear history of the symptoms for a person to be diagnosed as having the condition, he notes.

Studies show that women are six times more susceptible to SAD than men, although this may be because women are more likely to seek treatment for depression, according to Altier.

The condition can also appear in children, who may show signs of irritability, increased need for sleep, academic difficulties and discipline problems.

Some researchers believe SAD may be an inherited condition. A recent study of 200 people with SAD indicated that 55 percent had a family history of depression. according to Dr. Andrew Maltz, clinical director of the Bon Secours Grosse Pointe Center for Individual and Family Therapy.

If the winter blues are chilling you out, sitting around like a couch potato is the wrong thing to do. Exercise can prevent SAD. Altier said.

"It is important to remain sccially active and to continue to engage in physical exercise, even in cold weather," he said, "Winter activities, like skiing, skating or making snowmen will stimulate the body, and increase one's energy level

"The Hunt for Red October" is a thrilling, compelling spy story that rivals anything in its genre we've seen in a year.

also could be plotting the first

But that's not all. "Hunt" is also a chillingly detailed character study. We watch Connery's captain develop before our eyes. He's simultaneously cunning and intellectural, dryly humorous and deadly single-minded. Though we don't always know exactly what he's up to, we do know he's somebody we're comfortable being with.

This is due mainly to the fact that Connery knows how to bring his own unique charm and personality to his characters. Through much of the picture he's speaking Russian, but we understand the human side of his concerns.

In addition, "Hunt" is a wonderfully paced action picture. Political intrigue is great, but it won't work alone. This picture places action sequences, such as a narrow escape from an enemy missile - in the midst of all the talk - which breaks up the monotony of simple dialogue and draws even the most simpleminded viewers back into the proceedings.

And that, perhaps, is "Hunt's" greatest accomplishment. It takes a story with political, social and psychological underpinnings as deep as the Pacific Ocean and makes them easily understandable to a wide audience. Even those who think the cold war is something fought by those with sniffles rather than by world governments will take something away from this pic-

To that end, we might add a quick footnote. Given the recent developments in the U.S.-Soviet relations, the politics of this film seem almost out-of-date. In an age where the headlines scream of new treaties for disarmament and great strides toward democracy in all corners of the world, it seems a bit funny to view the Soviet government as the "nasty communists" this picture hints at. Depending on how things continue to develop, "The Hunt for Red October" could turn out to be the last of the breed of anti-Russian pictures.

That would be quite a distinction. It's probably not likely, but if that did indeed turn out to be the case, this particular classification of movies couldn't go out on a better note.

'A Chorus of Disapproval' at Hilberry

Canadian actor and director Barry MacGregor directs the upcoming Hilberry Theatre production of "A Chorus of Disapproval," which opens at 8 p.m. Saturday, March 24, following a March 23 preview. The play runs in rotating repertory through May 12.

MacGregor's Wayne State University directorial debut marks his 41st year in professional theater. Although best known to Detroit-area audiences for his work at the Stratford and Shaw festivals, MacGregor first started acting for British radio and television.

Alan Ayckburn's "A Chorus of Disapproval" won the prize for Best Comedy at the 1985 London Standard Drama Awards. It tells the story of Guy Jones, a timid widower, who attempts to escape from his loneliness by joining a local light operatic society. By accident rather than design, he advances from a one-line part to the lead, finds himself as the object of sexual advances, and is prodded for confidential business information. As "A Chorus of Disapproval" progresses, Jone's plight begins to resemble that of the character, Macheath, which he plays in the light operatic society's production of "The Beggar's Opera."

'My Left Foot' boasts brilliant script, acting

Special Writer

The struggle of a brilliant mind to break the bonds of severe cerebral palsy is unforgettably portrayed by Daniel Day-Lewis in "My Left Foot."

Without sentiment but with unfailing empathy, he re-enacts the story of Christy Brown, born with a crippling disease, but blessed with a ferocious will to make his body obey his brilliant mind. The film, based on Brown's autobiography, presents an amazing tale of success in the face of adversity.

Born in Dublin in 1932, he was the ninth of 13 children born into a working class family which never made him feel he was a burden. At no time was there any thought of having him institutionalized. On the contrary, his father promptly decked one of his pub buddies who dared to suggest it.

In the film's first third, we see Brown played by a child watching his brothers and sister from a corner, his eyes taking in all their activities.

One evening, when his father is helping the boys with their lessons, with a terrific struggle he rolls off his couch, drags himself to the center of the room and with a piece of chalk held between the toes of his left foot, slowly and with great effort prints the word "Mother" on the cement floor.

It is the first indication that he is not mentally as well as physically impaired. The emotion and joy at that revelation is a moving scene.

Secure in his family, Christy is taken out into the community in a cart to join in the games with other children. When he becomes a teenager, he plays kickball, using the one part of his body he can control - his left foot.

When Brown is 17, Day-Lewis takes over the role. At this point he has become a painter and a writer. His left foot is his tool. He paints with it and types with it. În one scene we see him stubbornly working to put a record on a turntable and lower a nee-ther. She wants him to have the recognition he deserves. Sure that his work is that of a genius, she takes samples to a rehab doctor (Fiona Shaw) who recognizes his talents and agrees to help him. At first Brown is antagonistic toward her. As a professional she recognizes that his anger is not toward her, but rather the prison-body he lives in. With her guidance he emerges from his small bedroom in the cramped household and into a small study in the garden. The story of how that study came to be underlies how big a part the strong support of his family had in his achievements.

Brown was not a docile character; he was immensely complex.

Much of Christy's story is told in retrospect. When we first meet him, he is arriving as a  $l_0$ ples" as he says with a sardonic experience.

grin. While he is waiting to go on stage, he drinks and flirts with the pretty nurse who attends him. Meanwhile, key passages in his life are called up.

"My Left Foot" is a shining feature film debut for Irish director Jim Sheridan, who avoids the stereotype of a saintly person who overcomes his handicap. Instead, we see Christy as an engrossing figure, not because of his plight, but because of the way he forces his feelings through his contorted body and his piercing eyes.

Three members of the cast deserve accolades for their brilliant performances: Brenda Fricker as Christy's intuitive and determined mother; Hugh O'Connor who gives a phenomenal performance as Christy as a boy, and the late Ray McAnally as Christy's gruff but caring father.

But it is Daniel Day-Lewis' brilliant, impassioned portrayal of Christy Brown that makes the film such an outstanding success. So vividly does he project Christy's inner strength that he turns our attention away from his handicap. By the end of the film, it is almost invisible. He doesn't just play the part, he inhabits it, and by that achievecal celebrity in a limousine, to ment makes "My Left Foot" an be honored at a benefit "for crip- outstanding and rewarding film VandenBrooks, who has been with the store for two of its four years, says she works hard to create the feel of a neighborhood bookstore.

"We're not just a chain," she said. "People see a chain as a robotic kind of thing. We try for personalized service, knowing our customers. People come in and ask for recommendations or give me a brief review of the book they've just read.'

To keep store personnel up on books, she has divided the store into areas of responsibility, according to the personal interest of the booksellers, and asks them to read reviews regularly.

'The New York Times Book Review isn't always right, but it keeps us abreast," she said.

ing beyond expectations. Annual sales increased to more than $5 million five years later. Without SBA's Certificate of Competency program, this supplier of aerospace parts might not have made it off the ground.

One of SBA's major functions is to ensure that small businesses get a fair share of goods and services sought by the Federal Government. It is true that the world's biggest customer buys high-priced, sophisticated products like jets and space vehicles, but it buys staples, janitorial services, and potatoes, too.

It's also true, you don't just call Uncle Sam and offer your supply of erasers. There is plenty of red tape, but after the first go around, it becomes less and less difficult. If you can deliver a good quality product or service on time, bidding for a federal contract could be a smart move.

SBA procurement representatives at selected civilian and military purchasing centers around the country negotiate to have appropriate contracts "set aside" exclusively for small businesses. At major DOD centers, these SBA gives advice on selling to the federal government procurement representatives re-tractors and others needing speview large contracts to identify portions that can be "broken out" for small firms.

This effort is not only good for individual companies, it also saves the government — and taxpayers - millions of dollars. SBA break-out specialists at Rock Island Arsenal in Illinois found the DOD was paying $23 each for washers. The government is now paying 28 cents for each washer. This is a radical example, but we estimate SBA's specialists at 31 break-out locations saved taxpayers a minimum of $257 million in Fiscal Year 1988.

SBA assists small businesses seeking subcontracting work and encourages prime contractors to provide these opportunities. Additionally, our local offices help small businesses identify prospective purchasing agencies and learn how to get on their bidders' lists. If requested, SBA will enter a company profile into the Procurement Automated Source System (PASS), a data base of small businesses seeking work. PASS is utilized by prime concific products and services.

Being on these lists does not guarantee a federal contract. Competition is strong, and small companies should read Commerce Business Daily, Uncle Sam's shopping list. Published by the Department of Commerce, it announces all proposed federal contracts of more than $25,000. ### Grosse Pointe Realtors install new officers for 1990

On Jan. 11, the Grosse Pointe Board of Realtors installed its 1990 officers and directors at a well-attended ceremony at the Country Club of Detroit.

The new officers are Nanci Bolton, president; Thomas R. Youngblood, president-elect; Marilyn A. Stanitzke, vice president; John A. Moss, treasurer;

Shirley J. Kennedy, secretary; directors William V. Finn, remainder with a three-to-five-George E. Smale, Donald R. Smith and Geraldine M. Young; and Forman S. Johnston, past president.

President Bolton stated the board's 1990 mission:

"The purpose of the Grosse Pointe Board of Realtors is to provide quality professional services and opportunities to our members and the public we serve, to ensure high ethical standards of practice and to promote community consciousness of real property issues."

Bolton also went on to say: "I believe we must reach out into our community to continue providing the kind of assistance that will help imporve the high quality of life which exists in Grosse Pointe. And by promoting the community consciousness of real property issues, not only do we statisfy our mission, we also help preserve and protect the bile ads, you suddenly find an offer that's hard to refuse: You can lease the car of your dreams, with no money down and monthly payments you can actually afford. Should you take the plunge?

According to the Michigan Association of CPAs, you had better test the water before you dive in. Leasing may seem especially enticing now that the deduction for interest charged on automobiles loans has dwindled down to 20 percent. But beware: Hidden in the depths of many leasing agreements are snags as sharp as a shark's tooth.

The lure of leasing

In the long run, leasing a car almost always costs more than purchasing one. After all, when the lease is done, you generally own nothing. But the up-front costs can make leasing practically irresistible to anyone struggling to gather funds for a down payment. Bill, for example, wants to buy a new sports car with a sticker price of $20,000. To do so, he can put 20 percent down, or $4,000, and finance the year auto loan with an an inter-

On the other hand, he can lease the very same car, with some extra features, by making a refundable deposit of a few hundred dollars and paying the first months payment. What's more, the monthly payment on the lease is about $100 less than he would pay on an automobile

Although the specific terms of leasing agreements differ between dealers, you will usually pay only a minimal amount of money up front. As in Bill's case, your monthly payments will generally run less than those you would have to make on an automobile loan. The end result is to get more car for less money. Or so it seems.

How leasing works

The reason for the so-called generosity of leasing agreements is simple to understand, but easy to overlook. When you lease a car for five years, you are basically paying for the car's depreciation, the difference between what the car sells for today and what the dealer expects the car to sell for by the time your lease expires. For instance, a $20,000 car may be worth only $7,000 in five years. In this instance, the lessee would have to pay for the car's depreciation of $13,000, plus such extras as the leasing company's interest fees and mark•up.

Given the rationale behind leasing agreements, it's not surprising that many companies are quick to offer bargain leases on cars with very high resale value. Since the depreciation is moderate, they can afford to be gener-

Watch for snags

What makes leasing so tricky are the provisions written into the agreement's fine print which too many customers that leasing often enables you to merely skim. Most leasing companies, for instance, require you to return the car in "good condition," less ordinary "wear and tear." Make sure you find out whether your definition of these terms differs from the leasing company's before you sign any papers.

> While there are several good reasons to consider leasing, saving money is usually not one of

March 8, 1990 Grosse Pointe News Faces έμες με Local chefs are cooking up benefit to fight hunger

donate their culinary expertise to charity by participating in Bon Appetit Magazine's "Taste of the Nation," the third annual nationwide benefit for the hun-

The fundraiser is organized by Share Our Strength (SOS), a national network of chefs who seek funds and support to fight hunger both in the United States and around the world.

Detroit's edition of "Taste of the Nation" will take place on Thursday, March 29, at the Rattlesnake Club, 300 River Place, Detroit.

The first small SOS fundraiser was held in 1987, in Denver, and raised $10,000. In 1988, SOS went national and raised $250,000. In 1989, $700,000 was raised. This year, SOS is hoping to raise $1 million.

The benefit consists of simultaneous fundraising dinners in more than 70 cities throughout the country. Participating restaurants, wineries and local sponsors will donate food, supplies and services.

Rattlesnake Club owner/chef Jimmy Schmidt of Grosse Pointe is leading a consortium of Michigan chefs in the preparation of a dinner and a multicourse dessert extravaganza for the Detroit version of this event. Schmidt is also a member of the board of directors of SOS.

Also participating is Jim Boyle of One23, in Grosse Pointe Farms.

On the host committee are Grosse Pointers Tom and Diane Schoenith, Mark and Beverly Beltaire, Jim and Angie Bournias and Dr. Donald and Dale Austin.

"This is the most important fundraiser for SOS," Schmidt said. "What is essential to note is that 100 percent of the proceeds are earmarked to recipient organizations.'

Three Michigan agencies will benefit directly from Detroit's version of the national fundraiser: Gleaners Community Food Bank will receive 50 percent of the proceeds; Hunger Ac-tion Coalition will receive 20 percent; Good Samaritan Emergency Lodge in Traverse City will receive 10 percent; and the remaining 20 percent will be sent to SOS for international hunger assistance programs.

Tickets for "Taste of the Nation" are $100 and $75 for reserved patron seating; unreserved seats are $50. For tickets, reservations or information, call the Rattlesnake Club at 567-4843.

Super volunteers: The 583-member Volunteer Committee of the Founders Society, Detroit Institute of Arts, recently began its 28th year of service to the museum. The group gave 67,066 hours to the museum during 1988-89. Volunteers donate time and talent on eight separate service lic and to school groups, by givmetropolitan-area schools, by coordinating mailings, staffing the museum's gift shop, assisting visitors at the information desks and in the galleries, and by beautifying the museum's lobbies with plants and flowers.

Several Grosse Pointers are serving on the DIA's 50-member board of directors this year: Marilyn Gushee is former 1987-89 chairman and newly elected trustee of the Founders Society; Kaye Candler is corresponding secretary; Sally Barnes is vice chairman, Art to the Schools; Matina Hall is vice chairman, decorations; Mary O'Connor is vice chairman, Gallery Information; Nancy Ross is chairman and Jeanne Bertelsen is vice chairmen, Records and Awards; and Mary Lee O'Bryan is photo adviser.

For more information on serving on the volunteer committee of the DIA, call the Auxiliary Services office, 833-0247.

Fashionable fundraiser: The Christian Brothers Auxiliary of DeLaSalle Collegiate is sponsoring "Spring Fantasy '90," a fashion show and luncheon, on Thursday, March 22, at the Royalty House in Warren, beginning at 11:30

Fashions will come from the stores of Twelve Oaks: Lord and Taylor, Gantos, Alvins and more.

Grosse Pointers who are working on the committees include Joyce Tranchida and Mary Ellen Dakmak, both of the Shores. Chairmen of the event are Alyce Hallman and Arlene Bierkle, both of St. Clair Shores, and Brother George Synan, moderator for the Christian Brothers Auxiliary of DeLaSalle Collegiate.

Donation is $20 per person. Tables of 10 are available. For Spring fling: The 21st annual spring fundraiser for Alpha Delta Kappa, an honorary teachers' sorority, will take place on Tuesday, March 20, at Blossom Heath Inn in St. Clair Shores.

Gay Ahlgrim, chairman of the event, said that the theme for the party will be "A Burst of Spring," and the evening will include refreshments, door prizes, table prizes and raffle prizes. Proceeds will help underprivileged and worthy students by providing funds for scholarships and summer camp.

Grosse Pointers working on the party include Chris Burt

Art options: "Opt for Art 1990" will be a fine art auction for the benefit of the Goodwill Industries of Greater Detroit Foundation

The auction will include some works submitted directly from personal collections and numerous works from the editors, collaborators, dealers, relatives and estates of such artists as Chagall, Churchill, Cezanne, Dali, Erte, Goya, Manet, Miro, Picasso, Rembrandt, Renoir, Toulouse-Lautrec and more. All works have been catalogued and authenticity is guaranteed by Park West Galleries. All are custom framed.

Bid estimates for most lots are between $50 and $1,500, and a significant number have estimates exceeding $2,000.

All takes place on Thursday, March 8, in the Townsend Hotel Regency Room in Birmingham. Wine and hors d'oeuvres will be from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. The auction begins at 7:30 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Weaver of Grosse Pointe Woods and Dr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Johnson of Detroit are honorary chairmen.

The recently formed Goodwill Industries of Greater Detroit Foundation is committed to securing additional financial resources which will be needed by Goodwill Industries in future

The Pastor's Corner Windows and mirrors

By the Rev. Dr. Jack T. Ziegler

Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church

Reflections from my iournal

Sunday

The heavens are telling the glory of God; and the Earth proclaims his handiwork.

Day to day pours forth speech, and night to night declares knowledge. There is no speech, nor are there words;

their voice is not heard: Yet their voice goes out through all the Earth, and their words to the end of the world.

Faith. Beyond words? God speaking to us through nature? No voice? No words? Yet, "Day to day pours forth speech. What did the psalmist know that I don't?"

Lent. Not mentioned in the Bible. A forty day period set aside by the Church for what? To remember Moses' 40 days on the mountain with God? To commemorate the peoples' 40 years wandering in the wilderness? To recall Jesus' 40 days of temptation? To set aside a time for us to ponder our own "40 acres," or mountain-top experiences, wilderness wanderings, or periods of temptation?

Wednesday

Riches. There seems to be a hold in my net worth. God points to a totally different standard value.

Thursday

The Homeless. Often mistaken for the poverty of those who have no house (houseless) - which is itself a terrible problem. Yet, the plight of the homeless knows no economic boundaries. Homelessness is often suffered by those who have fine houses, but are unable to feel "at home" in them. Oh, that their pain could be eased by a good meal, a warm blanket or a cardboard shelter.

God comes to us in so many ways. Through the Word, beyond words. Through poverty? Through riches?

Academy kicks off CA<sup>2</sup>RE campaign

An evening of family fun kicked off the Grosse Pointe Academy's $3 million Children's Athletic/Arts Resource and Endowment (CA2RE) campaign on March 1, at the academy.

The five-year capital raising effort will fund the building and maintenance of a new gymnasium/auditorium to meet the school's need for expanded athletic facilities and provide for  $\alpha$ growing music and theater arts pro-

The kick-off party included a makeyour-own-sundae bar, games, dancing and a talent show. At the left, thirdgrader Maureen Lewis samples some of the refreshments with her mother. Arlene Lewis.

Widow's Organization to meet

"How Do I Use the Quit Claim Deed to my Advantage?" will be the question asked of Forest E. Youngblood, register of deeds for Wayne County, at the next Widow's Organization meeting, which begins at 7 p.m. in Room 111 on Wednesday, March 14 at the Henry Ford Centennial Library on Michigan Ave.

The most frequent question asked of guest lawyers and other speakers, is how to change the reading on the deed to a home. Youngblood will talk about the recording of legal documents in his office.

Dr. Van D. Mericas will speak on, "Let's Talk About Your Health," and will answer ques-

Then, Dearborn Police Chief Ronald F. Deziel will discuss current problems in our society and answer questions.

G.P. Rose Society to meet March 14

The Grosse Pointe Rose Society will meet on Wednesday, March 14, at 7:45 p.m. at the Neighborhood Club.

Richard Robinson of Ann Arbor will present a program on the miniature rose - today the most popular type of rose in the world. Miniature roses winter better than bigger roses, produce more blooms, require little fertilizer and last much longer when used in arrangements. They also can be used in hanging baskets or grown in pots on patios.

Robinson is the district director for the Great Lakes District of the American Rose Society, an accredited judge, and consulting rosarian. As an exhibitor, he has won awards in local, state and national rose shows.

Anyone interested in growing better roses and in learning more about miniatures is invited to attend. Call 885-5073 for more information.

Crocuses have historical roots in ancient Greece, Rome

Now that we are into the month of March - and the days are growing longer - the thought that spring is really almost here takes on reality. It won't be long before the first crocus blossoms begin to appear. After that, daffodils and tulips and the whole range of spring flowers are on the way.

Crocus has a venerable history, both in fact and in legend. There are more than 75 species and almost as many shades and variations of color in the crocus family, which is the same as the iris. They grow wild in the Mediterranean region and extend from there into southwest Asia.

According to Greek legend, the crocus was named for a young man of the plains whose name was Crocus. He was in love with a beautiful shepherdess of the hills. She would have nothing to do with him, and he pined away and died of a broken heart. In compassion, the gods changed him into a flower called crocus which was used to adorn weddings from the time of Zeus and Hera.

In ancient Rome, in the time of Nero, the crocus was considered to be a tonic for the heart and a potent aphrodisiac. The Romans of that time became so fond of this flower that they used to strew the blooms throughout their banquet halls, courtyards, and on small streams which flowed through their gardens, thereby scenting the air. Returning crusaders in the early middle ages introduced the saffron crocus to the court of King Henry I of England. He became fond of it. When the court ladies discovered that saffron tree in your garden, you may substance, they began to use up the available supply. The king was so annoyed that he issued an edict forbidding this use of his favorite spice under threat of dire punishment.

It is known that crocus was cultivated in Israel in the time of Solomon for its yield of saffron which was a very popular species in all parts of the ancient world.

In more recent times, in the sentimental but romantic Victorian language of flowers, the crocus signified youthful love and ardor and lightness of spirit.

Crocus plants are wonderful in rock gardens, in sunny borders, and on grassy slopes. Although they are usually the first flowers to appear in the spring, many varieties also bloom in early fall. Another name for the autumn flowering crocus is meadow saf-

Saffron is grown as a dyestuff commercially in Spain, France, Italy and Greece and has been grown for this purpose for many centuries in Greece and Asia Minor. The dye is made from the dried stigmas of the flowers and between 7,000 and 8,000 flowers are needed to produce 3 1/2 ounces of dve

The month of March, in the Native American calendar, was called the wakening moon, recognizing that the most significant thing about this month is that in it the first stirrings from winter dormancy of flowers, trees and animals takes place.

If you happen to have a cedar was also a good hair coloring have noticed that the squirrels are stripping bits of bark from it. This is the time of the year when baby squirrels make their appearance and the squirrels prefer to line their nests with cedar bark in the spring as a cushion for their little ones. The bark remains all through the summer and is an interesting parallel to the human use of cedar as a moth preventive. The squirrels may be smarter than pellant substance to keep their homes clean.

There are cold and wintry days ahead and our house plants are still brightening our days as we wait for garden joys to come. As soon as the first buds appear on forsythia or lilac bushes, you can bring branches into the house for forcing, and if you planted bulbs in indoor containers a few weeks ago, they should be coming into bloom soon.

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD THE PASTEBOARD PASTIME

Most bridge players have a number of bad habits. One of the most common is "The Over Bidding Misery." This chronic condition tends to jeopardize one's effort to gather success and propagate glory. To contain such a malady, one has to practice unusual self-discipline or be gifted with a personality that serves to over-shadow failure. Seymor Shaw, like so many of us, is infected with "The Overbidding Misery," but he his also uncommonly gifted. No one ever has to suffer because of his bidding bloopers, or yours, because he never blames anyone, much less himself. These kinds of reprehensible unpleasantries are usually practiced when the dummy comes down due to an inferior series of bids, but often such disruptions are delayed until the thirteen cards have been played. Seymor's sagery usually goes something like this after an adverse result usually caused by "The O.B.M." "Win a few, lose a few, but be sure to have some fun. Next time, we'll do better." It's impossible to find a more relaxed, more gifted partner. Consider the amount of grief this kind of forgiving attitude eliminates.

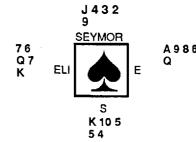

I tell you about Seymor's gift because today's hand comes from one we overbid and then I played so badly. His effort deserved a better fate, but I was looking for heaven's help instead of using better judgement.

Let me preface the play by saying I spent way too much time worrying about the missing Ace instead of the lady of the same suit. How often does one pick up seven cards in a suit and hear his partner bid it? That was today's case and, as hard as I tried to get my friend, Mr. Shaw, to slow down, he bid it to the edge of heaven. It wasn't a good slam, less than a 33% probability, but it's a fine tale that includes the bridge wisdom of a third party or this story may never have been told.

With both missing heart honors in either hand, I would be down, so for the sake of success, I had to assume they were divided. In any event, it was an ending problem, so to the play of the first eight winners, I drew trumps and eliminated the black out cards. This, then, was my position in dummy at trick nine:

As you can see, the unknown card combinations on defense at this stage were still too numerous to tally here. Unfortunately, I played the heart jack from dummy and when East played low, I let it ride. Given a second chance, I would have risen with the king and continued end-playing West. Eli Vuckovic, the commander of that position, courteously suggested that once I had played the heart jack from dummy, there was no Saving Grace. Before I could initiate a defense in support of the king play, he very quietly stated that he would have dropped his queen and now I would have been ended as East would then have the Ace, nine! Scymor, a little of your soothing sagery, please!

A LITTLE SHOWMANSHIP

It's a lot easier to sell a home than to sell a house! When preparing your home for prospective buyers, use some subtle showmanship to help set the right atmosphere. Give your home a restful, happy, inviting look.

For evening inspection, brighten your home from the front door light on through all the rooms in the house. Little decorator touches - a vase of flowers, a plant, small pillows can add much to the comfortable feeling of a home. If you are having your home shown in the winter, a crackling fire in the fireplace adds irresistable attraction. A working fireplace is a major attraction to home buyers.

A large mirror can make a room look larger. Properly placed, it can reflect and magnify many of your best selling points. Definitely turn off the TV and turn on soft background music on the hi-fi to create that subtle - lived-in atmosphere. Your prospects are buying more than a house — they are buying a new way of life. So make your home LIVE.

Sports madness

Sports writers around the country are scurrying into high school and college gymnasiums for the rush of March Madness - the time of year basketball absorbs minds and glares on late-night television.

March Madness is hectic, but what's been overshadowed in that melee is Frantic February

From Wyandotte to Allen Park, I've been rushing down I 75, of course I don't speed, to watch North, South and University Liggett School play ice hockey. South was unfortunately eliminated on the first night of competition by Southgate Anderson, and just three days later North's season ended in a loss to Trenton, Fortunately, the Knights of ULS are still on their mission to win the Class B-C-D finals.

Get this: On Monday, Feb. 26, I got to Wyandotte's Yack Arena for South's 6 p.m. game. Almost three hours after South lost to Trenton, 6-3, the Norsemen took the ice and embarrassed Livonia Franklin, 10-2. At 11:30 p.m., North coach Mike Manzella and I finished our conversation and headed back for the home front.

Tuesday, Feb. 27, I got to the office, extended my deadline and wrote the North and South game stories from the night before. Six hours later, I headed for Allen Park Civic Arena to watch ULS shell Country Day, 6-2. On Wednesday, Feb. 28, I got a night off and spent it playing in my weekly hoop game.

On March 1, I shoved off to Yack Arena to see an upsetminded Norsemen team take on Trenton in the regional semifinal game. North unfortunately lost, 10-3. At 10:30 p.m. Manzella and I wrapped up the 22-game season and I left for home - a place becoming more unfamiliar every day.

I like high school hockey, but frankly I'm glad two seasons (North's and South's) are over. ULS just won the regional title Monday, March 5, beating Jackson Lumen Christi, and will play in the Final Four March 9-10 in Flint. However, Monday, March 5 also marked the opening night of district basketball and that just caused another dilemma for my oneman sports staff.

North hosted the district basketball playoffs and played South March 5 while ULS was playing in the regional hockey finals. So, what did I do? I went to the North-South game and saw a 45-foot basket from David Vier eliminate the Devils from the tourney. In the meantime, ULS played Royal Oak Shrine March 6 at Bishop Gallagher, and I was able to see that game because my eyes ears and mind finally didn't have to be split two different

Knights crowned regional hockey champs

Using a patient, mature and confident style, the University Liggett School boys' hockey team won its first regional hockey title in 10 years Monday, March 5.

ULS, which last won its first and only state hockey title in 1980, took home the Region 10 hardware after beating Jackson Lumen Christi, 6-4, at Allen Park Civic Arena.

ULS, ranked No. 1 in Class B. C-D for all but three weeks of the season, now plays Sault Ste. Marie, the defending state champs, in a state semifinal game Friday, March 9, at 8:15 in Flint. A win would put the Knights in the finals March 10 at 3 p.m.

"This is a credit to talented, mature kids," said Knights' coach John Fowler. "This justifies everyone's expectations and the kids are happy for themselves. All season long, the guys have been focused and confident that they can win the regionals and get to the state champion-

"It's a credit to maturity and confidence when you are a topranked team and you play like

ULS, now 22-2, reached the finals by beating Detroit Country Day, 6-2, and Allen Park Cabrini, 11-3. In those wins, ULS was led by Jonathon Davis' five goals, Doug Wood's five goals and seven assists, and Alex Crenshaw's four goals. Stefan Teitge had four assists, and Jesse Kasom and John Maycock combined for six assists.

the buzzer sounded, but the win was somewhat overshadowed by an injury to Wood, the state's all-time leading scorer.

With 59 seconds to play, Wood was cross-checked to the ice and took a mean blow to the back of the neck. Wood lay on the ice for 10 minutes and was helped off.

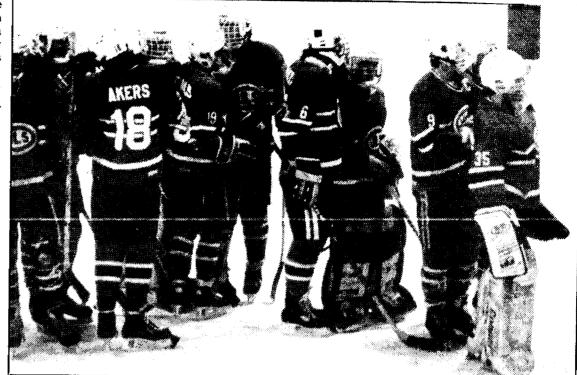

"The guys skated around the rink very proudly," said Fowler, but they all came over and gave Dougie a tap before they did it. It was an exciting moment for all of us, including our great and supportive fans.'

Wood, who had two goals and two assists, scored a power-play goal that tied the score at 1-1, but Lumen Christi took a 2-1 lead midway through the second period. It was the second deficit ULS faced.

"It's a great testament to a team on how well it plays when down by a goal," said Fowler. 'We were never worried because we knew our work ethic was there and if we kept dumping the puck in, our offense would get a couple of goals. There was too much game left to get down at either point when we trailed."

Bill Robb and Maycock worked a give-and-go that resulted in a Maycock goal, and Mike Coello snapped the 2-2 tie with his second goal of the tournament that gave the Knights a 3-2 lead to end the second period.

"Coming out for the third period, we knew we didn't want to get into a muscle game with them," said Fowler. "We wanted to continue to move our feet,

Just two more victories and the University Liggett School hockey players can congratulate one another for winning the state Class B-C-D championship.

dump the puck in and jump on them early."

And jump they did. Davis converted a pass from Andrew VanDeweghe that gave ULS a 4-2 lead, but one minute later Christi cut the gap to 4-3. After ULS goalie Tripp Tracy, who stopped 24 shots, stoned a couple of point-blank shots VanDeweghe skated the length of the ice and extended ULS' lead to 5-3 with what proved to be the game-winning goal.

"When Tripp stopped that series of shots it gave us a big don't allow teams to get great lift," Fowler said. "But then what was just as big was the goal by Andrew. We had a little bit of breathing room, but we knew it was far from over."

Wood cushioned the lead to 6-3, but Christi scored its final goal with 2 1/2 minutes to play. Despite scoring 23 goals, ULS was sparked by team defense this year's trademark.

"Throughout the regionals, we played positionally well in our own zone," Fowler said. "We chances in our own zone and we break-out very well and do the high-percentage things in the offensive zone.'

Hopefully, there's more where that came from.

"Every lane has its hurdle and what we've done is gotten past three of them," Fowler said.

Just two hurdles to go and ULS could place a new banner next to the one that hangs in

North stuns South on Vier's last-second overtime shot

David Vier made only one field goal Monday night, but it was one he'll never forget. Vier, who hit two clutch free throws with 15 seconds to play in regulation, lofted - and buried - a shot from 45 feet out as the buzzer sounded in overtime, giving the North basketball team a 52-51 win over South in the first round of district play

"When I tossed it up and it went down, I still didn't think we won," said Vier, a junior guard who finished with six points. "As soon as it went through the net, I was dazed. Everything looked like it stopped on me until everyone started jumping on me and celebrating."
And what a celebration it was for the Norsemen, who blew an 18-point lead and lost to South by three on Dec. 19.

South finished 13-8 overall, and North, which played Notre Dame March 7 (after press time). is 13-8, including wins in 12 of its last 13 games.

Vier was North's answer to a last-minute prayer, but South Gramling.

Gramling, a junior guard who finished the night with nine points, sank a 3-point hoop to knot the score at 47 and force a three-minute overtime. In the extra period, Gramling hit both ends of a one-and-one to give the Blue Devils a 51-49 lead with four seconds to play. But that's when Vier became an overnight

"When Tim put in those two free throws I thought we lost because there wasn't too much time on the clock," said Vier. 'But luck was on our side.'

"If you've got four seconds you ought to be able to get to the front court and get a decent shot off," said North coach George Olman. "Obviously, it's a shot that will dictate whether or not you're lucky, but the shot went down and the most important thing is that we play again."

Gramling, who had to run the show after South point guard

Sports Norsemen can't unsaddle the Trojans of Trenton

By Rob Fulton Sports Editor

The North hockey team gave Trenton one solid period of hockey, but unfortunately the second and third periods weren't as close for the Norsemen.

Trenton, ranked No. 2 in the Class A polls, rocked North's world, 10-3, in a regional semifinal game March 1 at Wyandotte's Yack Arena. Trenton went on to beat No. 1 ranked Southgate Anderson, 3-2, in the finals.

North, which was ranked No. 9 most of the season, finished the season 10-12 overall. The Norsemen advanced to the semifinals by beating Livonia Franklin, 10-2 Feb. 26. That win snapped a three-game losing streak for North.

"It's quite clear that we were only in this thing for one period," said Norsemen coach Mike Manzella. "We just didn't have the type of talent Trenton has and we had trouble from the second period on."

To start the game, Trenton found itself in trouble as the Norsemen attacked the zone and forced the Trojans to play more in the neutral zone. That, however, didn't last long as the powerful and speedy Trojans became too much to handle.

"We wanted to come out and force them to stay out of our zone as much as possible, and we did that by dumping the puck got North on the board first, out," said Manzella. "We banging home a power-play goal they are extremely dangerous.

Cruising with an 8-2 lead, Trenton didn't let up, but neither did the Norsemen.

"After the second period all we talked about was not giving up and trying to leave this place with some respect," Manzella said. "Despite the season being disappointing, this team has always given everything it's had and that's all I asked for in the third period. We didn't give up.'

North gave up two goals and trailed 10-2, but Barbieri netted his final goal for the Norsemen with three seconds to play.

"These kids played their hearts out," Manzella said. "By no means am I dissatisfied. It just wasn't meant to be."

A pivotal and lifeless fourth quarter by the Blue Devils enabled North to climb back into the game after trailing, 39-33, at the end of the third quarter. North outscored South 14-8 in the fourth quarter, including an 8.0 run that put the Norsemen in front, 41-39 before South's Caldwell hit a 3-point basket.

"We were able to get Brian (Sheehy) the ball where he's used to shooting it from," Olman said about the 6-foot-6-inch center who scored 10 third-quarter points."In the first half Durmon Coatesidid:a greatijob on forcing Brian out of the paint, but South allowed him back in in the second half."

That's when Sheehy went to work and scored eight straight points to put North ahead, 31-30, after trailing 30-23 in the third

"We weren't making good desions on offense and North was able to get some points off our offense," said Petrouleas. "For the most part, though, our kids did a nice job. I guess it just wasn't meant to be. Basketball is a game of spurts and North had just one more than we did." And one extra shot, too.

"I feel bad for the kids," said Petrouleas, "because they've worked so hard."

South's first-half full-court press caused North to stumble a bit, but eventually picked up five points to wash away a 6-0 Blue Devils' lead.

North held a 9-6 lead at the end of one quarter, but South put together an 8-0 spurt behind Khoenle's four points with North's Charlie Stumb sitting on the bench with two fouls. Stumb didn't play the entire second quarter and North trailed 24-19 at the half.

"Obviously, when you've got one of your offensive weapons on the bench (Stumb) and your other one (Sheehy) doesn't have any points, you could be in trouble," said Olman, "but we had other capable guys doing the

Oh, on March 9, it's possible that the North and ULS baskethall teams could be in the district finals. Don't forget, too, that the ULS hockey team is in Flint fighting for a state title that same night.

Regina was a fatigued, battered team after facing South in a grueling semifinal volleyball match, but had enough left to beat the upset-minded Lady Norsemen of North, 7-15, 15-9, 11-15, in the District 7 volleyball championship March 3.

North, 14-10 overall, reached the finals after beating a weak Finney team, 15-0, 15-4.

"I don't think the game against Finney really hurt us or really helped us for the Regina match," said North coach Leslie Harwood. "What was going to decide our fate against Regina was how we came in mentally. We were definitely ready for Regina and came out fighting, but we just didn't do what it took to win."

During the second game, however, it was the front-line play of Laurin Schultz that enabled the Norsemen to maintain the lead.

Schultz, who finished with 15 perfect hits, stopped several kill attempts by Regina. She also had seven of eight blocks that went for tips.

Regina blisters Blue Devils

By Rob Fulton Sports Editor

Deep down inside, the optimistic pit that rests in Coach Cindy Sharpe's stomach has turned to pessimism and disappointment.

After the South Lady Blue Devils were eliminated from postseason volleyball playoffs by Regina, 15-11, 15-5, Sharpe compared her feeling to that of a parent.

"I compare my feeling to the feeling a parent has when he or she finds out their kid is cheating," Sharpe said. "I am totally disappointed because we didn't put ourselves in a position to win it."

South was beaten by Regina in last year's district championship, but this year South left in round one.

"We may have been more physically ready than Regina was," Sharpe said. "But by no means were we ready mentally. We had a lot of girls crying after the loss so I knew that the match meant a lot to them, but what we needed to do was put all that heart and emotion into

"We just didn't know how to win it."

Jenny Kalmink and Tina Higel led South with a combined 11 kills, and senior Katie Kolp had 12 assists.

Sharpe said. "Both of them are always getting the job done.'

But the Lady Blue Devils needed more than that tandem.

"We tried to put a run together, but Regina won't let you do that," Sharpe said. "We also didn't whack the ball consistently, but when we did Regina had trouble with us. We just didn't maintain our intensity."

Game one featured a slow, methodical attack from South but Regina didn't allow the host Blue Devils to take the lead. South did have a run of three points to cut the lead to 13-11, but couldn't crack the Saddlelites, who went on to beat North in the district championship game.

"In the first game Regina gave us the first few points, but we didn't take advantage of it," Sharpe said. "Instead of us relaxing and getting into a groove, we froze and got scared."

The second game of the match was not a match for Regina. South struggled to keep serve and couldn't break Regina's serve, falling behind 5-0 and 9-1.
"Regina knows how to win big games and we just haven't figured that out yet," Sharpe said.

South, which finished the Eastern Michigan League with a second-place mark of 9-3, completed the year with a 24-9 re-

Agron 8, 199 Grosse Pointe New -Heart disease: Have we reached equality of sexes? -Heart disease: Have we reached equality of sexes?

If asked to describe a typical person at risk for a heart attack, most of us would cite an overweight, sedentary middle-aged man with high blood pressure, who smokes and has a high-stress job.

Heart disease is often thought of as a male illness and, in fact, male gender is a risk factor for the development of coronary heart disease. However, recent statistics highlighted in the American Heart Association's 1990 "Heart and Strokes Facts," indicates that a reevaluation of this concept is Current data show that more than one-half million American women die each year from cardiovascular disease. For females over 40, heart disease is the leading cause of death. Equal numbers of men and women die of atherosclerosis.

Recent information from the ongoing Framingham Study (a long-term study following the course of heart disease in a Massachusetts population) shows that postmenopausal women who smoke, have an elevated cholesterol level, and high blood pressure have a one-third higher risk of having a heart attack than males of the same age with identical risk factors. That is, given the same risk factors and age, women have a disproportionately higher risk for a heart attack.

These facts should raise appropriate concerns among women. Why has it taken so long for women to be made aware of their risks for heart disease? Traditional public health concerns have involved mainly female disorders such as breast cancer and gynecologic disease.

This is because heart disease has always been characterized as a male affliction. The majority of studies which are used as a basis for our diagnostic and therapeutic decisions, have involved only male subjects, or so few female subjects as to prevent meaningful conclusions. Consequently, there has been a lack of reliable data available on cardiovascular risk in women. At last, women are being recognized as being at risk and newer studies are addressing women in particuduring their child-bearing years for undefined reasons, but likely due to a protective effect of hormones, especially estrogen.

In the post-menopausal years, their risk equals and may exceed that of men. What remains to be defined is how the known risk factors for coronary heart disease smoking, high blood pressure, elevated cholesterol, diabetes and family history - apply differently to the sexes in the development of atherosclerosis.

A few facts are known already. Most notably, women are more susceptible to the deleterious cardiac effects of smoking by age 55, than are men. Women in the 55- to 75year-old age group have higher total cholesterol levels, but these levels are less strongly linked to the development of heart disease. This is probably because their HDL (good cholesterol) fractions are higher and because they are less sensitive to high LDL (bad cholesterol) levels.

Prevention programs for heart disease to date have been aimed at men. Given the disturbing new trends now being publicized, what can women do to minimize their risks for cardiovascular disease?

By far, avoiding or stopping smoking is the easiest way to reduce risk. The benefits from stopping smoking are immediate. Control of high blood pressure and diabetes is essential. Weight control, a lowfat/high-fiber diet, and exercise may also contribute to reducing risk by lowering cholesterol levels and blood pressure. In addition, birth control pills should be avoided as a means of contraception in women over 35 in view of their association with premature cardiac death.

Fish made easy

that fish, that ubiquitous Lenten special, would make a list of trendy foods?

With the focus in America toward lighter, healthier, quickly prepared dishes, fish and seafood have become a natural craze.

The enthusiasm developed into a full-blown passion for many consumers. We are latching onto fish and seafoods at an astonishing pace. Many restaurants, that a few years ago would not have served even a plate of shrimp cocktail, are offering a variety of fish choices as the main entree.

Fish offerings are an important part of a restaurant's daily specials, not just on the traditional Fridays. It's amazing how often we find a growing number of new, unfamiliar species in the marketplace. Four years ago, orange roughy might have been mistaken for some country's rugby team, or the name of a new rock group. And Mahi-Mahi that could have been mistaken for a Hawaiian love call.

Health considerations are not the only reasons we consume fish. It should be an enjoyable taste difference that we look foward to. But, it seems that preparing fish is still a mysterious task for many home cooks, espe-

Who would have ever thought cially when it comes to the "new" and unfamiliar species. Hopefully, the following tips and techniques will provide you with resources and inspiration to discover new ways to prepare fish as well as to elevate your level of appreciation for fish. There has been a revolution in the fish-cooking process. In the last decade, fish was breaded, battered and deep fried. However, that has all changed. Fish is tampered with as little as possible, allowing its natural flavor and texture to shine. It is either grilled, baked, braised, poached or blackened.

Shopping, cooking

When buying fish, look for freshness. Fortunately, fish can't camouflage its age, so use your nose and your eyes to select topquality seafood. Any sign of odor is an instant sign of decay. Fresh fish or frozen fish is odorless.

1) Look for bright, clear and shiny eyes. Cloudy, sunken eyes are a sign of not fresh fish.

2) Check under the gills for bright red lungs. Older fish will have gray to white gills. Frozen fish will have brown lungs.

3) Fresh fish has a translucent flesh and almost no odor. 4) Fish skin should be clear, bright and shiny with an iridescent quality. Slime on the skin indicates that it has been improperly stored or iced. (The highest quality seafood is generally packed and displayed on ice).

Filleted fish

Fish maintains its freshness better on the bone. Buy whole fish whenever possible and have it cut into fillets and wrapped in waxed paper. Fish wrapped in plastic can develop a fetid odor, because air is trapped inside.

1) Fish fillets should be firm and the flesh should spring back when you press gently with your finger.

2) Fillets should be true in color and translucent. 3) Avoid fillets that and show signs of browning around the edges.

4) Avoid prepackaged fillets and steaks that contain less liq-

Storing fish

The best thing to do with fresh fish is to prepare and eat it immediately.

By Mary Busse

1) Handle fish gently. Bruised fish or punctured skin tends to deteriorate rather rapidly.

2) When storing fish for a short period of time, wrap securely in heavy waxed paper and store in the upper part of the refrigerator.

3) When freezing fresh fish, wrap tightly in plastic wrap, then place in a Ziploc bag. Try not to refreeze fresh, frozen fish once it has been thawed.

4) Leaner species of fish (halibut, sea bass, perch and pollock) tend to have longer freezer life (about three months) if wrapped properly.

5) Oily species of fish (lake trout, yellowtail, mackerel and salmon) tend to have a shorter freezer life (one to one and a half months).

Fish vary in size and bone structure, but also vary in texture and fat content. Lean fish may need nonstick cooking spray or liquid added during the broilling, grilling or baking at a high temperature.

Fish with a higher fat content lose some fat during the cooking and require no additional fat or liquids. If you substitute one fish for another in a given recipe, make sure it is similar in character, fat content and density.

Lean fish include: bluefish, carp, cod, croacker, flounder, grouper, haddock, hake, halibut, mullet, perch, pickerel, pike, sea bass, sea trout, striped bass, swordfish and all shellfish.

Fat fish includes: butterfish, eel, herring, lake trout, mackerel, pompano, salmon, whitefish National State Diagonal States

Cooking fish

The best rule to remember when cooking fish is that less is better.

Prolonged cooking will toughen fish and cause it to lose its natural juices and delicate

1) Select a suitable cooking method for the type, cut, size, fat content and texture of the fish. Halibut and swordfish steaks are good choices for grilling or broil-

ing. (A tip: Heat the grill of broiler, and broiler pan to very hot. Cook fish closest to heating element. Cook fish steaks 10 minutes for every inch thick of fish. Grill or broil five minutes, turn fish, grill or broil five minutes more).

2) Keep fish refrigerated until you are ready to cook it.

3) Cook fish with the skin on whenever possible to preserve the natural juices and flavor. The skin keeps the fish intact and prevents it from falling apart.

4) Turn fish just once to prevent it from falling apart and overcooking.

5) To check the fish for "doneness," insert a skewer into the thickest part of the flesh; it should slide in easily. Or prick it with a fork; the flesh should barely flake age a que con

This is a good time to experiment with fish. Don't be afraid to try your hand at cooking. If you are not a fish lover, start with some of the milder choices such as orange roughy, halibut or swordfish steaks. I think your taste for fish and your confidence to prepare it will increase with the more you experiment with it. And, the nicest bonus, beyond being a healthy food choice, it looks good on you!

Muscles: An energy warehouse You've heard the old saying, brain, can only produce energy der to continue working. This

"It takes money to make money," right? Well, it works the same way with exercise.

It seems that when you exert energy you get more in return. In fact, a 1988 study at the Institute for Aerobic Research in Dallas found that when a group of chronically exhausted men and women was placed on a regular exercise program, the incidence of reported fatigue dropped dramatically.

This may seem like a contradiction, but when we look at the various ways the body produces energy from the food we eat, it will help in understanding how to use that energy to your advantage.

Here's a quick review of the cardiovascular system (heart, lungs, arteries, capillaries and veins): The arteries carry oxygen-rich blood away from the heart, the capillaries are the exchange site of gases, nutrients and waste products between the blood stream and cells, and the veins carry oxygen-depleted blood back to the heart, and then to the lungs to drop off waste products and pick up more oxygen. Then, it's back to the sity of activity increases, so does heart, and the process is repeated.

When you exercise, the oxygen going to working muscles takes on special importance. Most of the body's daily energy needs require oxygen. In fact, aerobic literally means "with oxygen." So, aerobic energy simply means energy produced in the presence of adequate oxygen.

aerobically, so a constant supply of oxygen is required. Skeletal the unique ability to produce energy "without oxygen" or anaerobically, when the cardiovascular system can't deliver enough oxygen to meet energy require-

Energy for muscle work is produced inside the muscle cells so aerobic and anaerobic exercise refer only to the muscles being used for the activity. When we are doing some form of aerobic exercise, it means that the muscles used are getting a sufficient amount of oxygen.

Anaerobic exercise occurs when the muscles can no longer get an adequate supply of oxygen to meet the activity's requirements. It is important to understand that most cells in the body are always aerobic, and that it is the exercising muscles that are aerobic or anaerobic, not the whole body.

At rest, the cardiovascular system has no trouble keeping up with the oxygen requirement. Therefore, the primary energy system is aerobic. As the intenthe demand for oxygen by the working muscles. The result, of course, is that your heart begins to beat faster to pump more blood and you breathe harder to take in more oxygen.

If the intensity continues to rise, there will quickly come a point at which the amount of oxygen getting to the muscles is not sufficient. When this occurs, The majority of cells in the your muscles will begin to probody, including heart, nerve and duce energy anaerobically in or-will occur somewhere between 50 and 85 percent of your carmuscle on the other hand, has diovascular system's maximum capacity, according to Dr. Daniel Kosich, exercise physiologist, and will depend on the level of fitness and genetic factors.

The aerobic system can produce a lot more energy than the anaerobic system. Carbon dioxide and water are the primary byproducts of aerobic metabolism and are easily removed via breathing and sweating. As long as exercising muscles remain aerobic, both carbohydrates and fat are converted to energy. As we are all aware, fat is stored under the skin in cells called adipose tissue. Fatty acids are released from the cell into the bloodstream and carried to the muscles. All the carbohydrates we eat, both sugars and starches, end up in our body as glucose, which is a simple sugar.

Glucose is the only energy source that will burn with or without oxygen. Fat, on the other hand, not only must have oxygen, but also must be in the presence of glucose, so fat is never a sole energy source. This is of great concern if one is interested in altering body composition toward the lean side. So, contrary to belief, the higher the intensity of your workout, the smaller the percentage of total energy that comes from fat. How then, does one know whether he/she is working out aerobically or not? We use the heart rate to approximate exercise intensity. The American Heart Association suggests a target range of 60 to 75 percent of your agepredicted maximum heart rate (200 minus your age-predicted maximum multiplied by .6 and .75). This will roughly correspond to the 50 to 85 percent of maximum capacity of your cardiovascular system mentioned

Working out with a heart range beyond your target range will push your cardiovascular system to what is called the anaerobic threshold. At that point the anaerobic metabolism of glucose results in the production of a waste product called lactic acid. When lactic acid reaches a certain concentration, it interferes with muscular contraction, and the work intensity must be reduced. When the muscle slows down, oxygen will become available again and the workout can continue at the lower pace. Here are some important signals when exercising aerobically to help you recognize your anaerobic threshold:

1) Breathlessness: hyperventilation is an indication of insufficient oxygen supply. You should be able to talk during your workout. If you can recite the National Anthem without taking a breath, you're not working hard

2) Burning sensation in exercising muscles: when lactic acid builds up it creates a clearly uncomfortable feeling. Work at a pace that stays within your comfort zone.

3) Fatigue: you should be working at a pace that you can continue for an extended period of time.

4) The bottom line: in order to burn a significant amount of fat, you must exercise below the anaerobic threshold. And, along with a decreased body-fat percentage, improved cardiovascular

Fitness Firm begins sessions

Shaping-up and losing weight can be no sweat for individuals eager to look and feel fit this spring.

Fitness Firm instructors will be offering tips and information to encourage healthy living, good eating habits and personal enhancement.

All classes are led by professional, trained instructors and follow the guidelines established by The President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports. Each class includes floor work, warm-up, a low-impact aerobic session and cool-down stretches.

Classes are being held at Christ the King Church on Monday and Wednesday at 9:30 a.m.; Tuesday and Thursday at 9:30 a.m. Babysitting is available at all morning sessions. Evening classes are held Monday and Wednesday at 6:45; Tuesday and Thursday at 6:45, and at Harper Woods Library on Monday and system, and increased tolerance to stress you'll have a lot more energy to burn.

Wednesday at 7 p.m. Class fee is $35 for the eightweek session and students are encouraged to attend additional classes at no extra cost. For further information, call 343-0040 or 886-7534.

tains, Detroit Area Agency on Aging knows who needs them. Think how your old drapes could provide a needed change for someone. A fresh coat of PAINT always breathes new life into old, familiar surroundings. Children's Center and Core City Neighborhood Inc. have asked for paint. Items also needed by these and other or-ganizations are PAINT BRUSHES, LUMBER, and other BUILDING and REPAIR MATERIAL.

How about some pretty SHEETS or BATH TOW-ELS for the folks at New Life Home for Recovering Alcoholic Women. If you have some just 'hanging' around, get them over to LINC; it would be a great way to show you care.

There's nothing to do!" is a familiar cry this time of the year. Our member agencies could use GAMES, TOYS and CRAFT SUPPLIES to help keep idle hands busy. And if you have been having bouts of cabin fever LINC might have a cure. Think about becoming a LINC VOLUNTEER. Call LINC between 10-2 for more information. WE NEED YOU.

ATTENTION! BOXER LOVERS

There is a special dog that needs a good loving home. "BRANDY" is a beautiful, gentle 7 year old neutered male Boxer that doesn't understand why he is suddenly alone. His elderly owner died recently and there are no heirs, no will, so the house and belongings are being sold by the state. If no home is found for "BRANDY", he will be put to sleep. Golden brown with white chest and blaze on his face, this dog has never known anything but love and affection, so he is very mellow and easy-going. Please call Karen: 256-5432 before 4 p.m. and 371-8427 after 5 p.m.

FIRST-RATE CAT! Lovable, affectionate family cat needs new home because children have developed allergies and we can't keep him. We all love him so much and are brokenhearted that we have to give him up - please help. He is a delightful 2 year old neutered male orange and white Tabby, with all shots and front paws declawed. Please call 886-8060.
