

Airport committee wants local cities to hire a consultant

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointes-Harper Woods Airport Study Committee is asking city councils to put their money where their opposition is and kick in funds to hire a consultant to help make sense of the studies and reports regarding Detroit City Airport's expansion.

Jack King, who chairs the group, said the committee is asking the cities for up to $25,000 to hire a consultant. How that money would be divided between the five Pointes and Harper Woods would be up to the city councils, he added.

"We're not sure of the cost; we may not even use all that money, but we want to have enough to offer to someone," King said.

The consultant would have to be knowledgeable about FAA regulations and other laws which would apply and would be employed for as long as it takes to study the expansion plans, he said.

"As soon as spending is approved, we'll start our search," King said. "We can't really be contacting anyone until we know that we have the money."

To date, all six cities have passed resolutions opposing any expansion.

The committee is still waiting to read the City of Detroit's noise study — which was supposed to have been ready last month — before deciding which way to proceed next.

But they are laying some groundwork, King said.

"We have not attempted to meet with Detroit," he said. "We believe Mayor Young has made up his mind, and nothing we can say will change it. We are meeting with various legislators, though, to see what they can do for us."

State Rep. Bill Bryant has opposed any expansion of City Airport and U.S. Rep. Dennis Hertel introduced a resolution on March 21 (HR-4338) designed to block all federal funding for the proposed expansion.

State Sen. John Kelly said he is watching the situation closely, but will make a stand when Detroit's airport master plan is completed. (See related story on page 16A.)

Airport neighbors across the country have recently won battles against noisy planes and flight paths over residential areas.

According to a recent article in The New York Times, residents near a Seattle airport reached an agreement with airlines, pilots and the FAA to cut noise in half by the year 2001. Also, residents from 208 residential communities in New Jersey have persuaded the FAA to change some flight paths.

Nationally, there are more than 300 airports which now have some type of flight curfew or other noise control.

Pilots, however, believe certain noise reduction measures they are forced to take — such as using lower power after takeoff — reduce the safety of the flights.

"I feel we should have a say in what the city does with its airport," King said. "We are federal taxpayers, and many people who live in Grosse Pointe work in Detroit and pay Detroit taxes. We don't have a vote, but we should have a say."

Arbor Day

Students at Monteith School planted a 6-foot Russian olive tree Monday in observance of Arbor Day. Every year the Student Council buys one or two trees for the event and the annual planting has been going on for about 10 years. About 65 kindergartners and student council members participated and received, through Monteith parent Patrick Stock, 65 spruce seedlings to take home. Helping at the right are Student Council President Joe Slavik, third grade, and Vice President Natalie Potthof, first grade.

Woods troubleshooter faults assessment record practices

By Dan Jarvis

Staff Writer
In the wake of numerous problems with property assessment increases in Grosse Pointe Woods, the city administration hired an assessment troubleshooter to determine what went wrong.

Phillip H. Belcher is a certified municipal assessor who has found several problems with the city's assessment practices.

Belcher, formerly with the city of Auburn in Bay County and the cities of Clair and St. Clair Shores, began his assignment by studying the history of assessment procedures.

Belcher said the city was originally assessed by Wayne County until the early 1960s when Woods officials came to the conclusion that the city was not getting its money's worth. The city then took the option of performing the assessing work in-house, Belcher said.

At that time, Wayne County provided the Woods with field sheets on individual properties. These served as the original description sheets for the majority of properties in the city.

One problem, Belcher said, was that the field sheets were not well maintained and did not contain notations when individual inspections were made.

When the city began to re-evaluate properties in 1986, it called on the services of the Michigan Youth Corps Program, and sent students out to individually inspect homes.

Belcher said several homeowners would not let the students into their homes, which added to the problem of a lack of information.

"The students were taught how to perform measurements, how to issue questionnaires to residents and the information was placed on the field sheets," Belcher said.

Belcher added that the field sheets and other notes should have indicated which properties were inspected, but the re-evaluation process failed to indicate a number of items, including renovations and additions.

The appraisal reports, which are updated each year, are available to residents who are seeking information on their individual assessments. When new data is added each year, the previous year's appraisal report's information is not included.

Residents who came to Woods City Hall to obtain a copy of the previous year's report were unable to see notations from previous years.

Belcher said the city should present appraisal reports from past years so that residents are able to make a comparison.

He added that making old appraisal reports available has not yet been decided upon by the City Council.

"In the future we may make those available," Belcher said. "We have to see whether it will be a worthwhile program. It would be a lot of extra work."

Belcher said when residents came to City Hall to look up their field sheets and appraisal reports, they had to go to three different places to get copies of the documents.

"It's confusing to understand why they have to go to three different sets of books (property cross-reference book, assessment roll and field sheets)," Belcher said. "To put the information in one location, we would have to create a whole new set of appraisal books."

Belcher said he is proposing that the Woods provide a computerized work station wherein residents could punch in their property numbers and the computer would supply a copy of the field sheet and appraisal report for the current year.

"If it can be done it would make it much easier to access the information," he said.

Belcher said recent changes in Michigan's assessing laws have added several new codes to appraisal reports.

The codes (such as FP for fire-place and ACP for aluminum covered porch) were not explained to Woods employees, residents or members of the city's Assessment Board of Review.

Shaheen is a familiar face around town in anything that's musical.

What people who know her might be surprised to learn is that Shaheen planned to enter a convent. As a student at St. Mary's Academy in Monroe, Shaheen looked forward to spending her life as a missionary nun.

In fact, she had completed all the necessary requirements prior to entering the religious order when she met Joseph Shaheen, "the love of my life." As a soloist at various churches, she was rehearsing at Sts. Peter and Paul Church where he was a member of the men's choir.

"One day it was raining very hard and he asked if he could give me a ride home and that was the start of that," she said.

Shaheen, who studied voice, theory and piano at the Detroit Conservatory of Music, had established herself professionally as a member of the Civic Light Opera where she did stock and traveled to New York and Ohio.

After marriage, however, she and her husband began their family which they didn't stop until they had four boys and four girls. With an attorney-husband and a busy — and noisy — household, Shaheen managed to keep up with her music by singing in local choirs and teaching voice and piano.

Park council calls for district court

By John Minnis

Assistant Editor
The city of Grosse Pointe Park wants a district court — even if it has to go it alone.

The Park City Council approved a resolution Monday night calling on the state legislature to establish a district court for Grosse Pointe Park, though Mayor Pro Tem Vernon K. Ausherman, who has been proposing a district court for years, said he wasn't naive enough to think a district court will become a reality just because the council passes a resolution.

The district court issue has been discussed for more than 20 years, and initiatives to establish a district court several times have failed in the Pointes.

The new resolution introduced by Councilman Daniel Clark is different from past attempts in that it proposes that the Park establish a district court on its own. Past district court plans have called for all the Pointes to have one court which meant all the communities had to agree — historically, an impossibility.

"There is a need for us to look at improvement of the judicial service we provide the community," Clark said.

"I would not like to impose our decisions on others," he said. "(We can) establish our own (district court) and invite others to participate."

Clark's resolution calls on the local attorney and municipal judge to draft legislation for a Grosse Pointe Park district court and have state Sen. John Kelly (D-Grosse Pointe) and Rep. William Bryant Jr. (R-Grosse Pointe Farms) introduce the bills.

Kelly said Tuesday that he has been dealing with the district court issue in the Pointes for 12 years. He said he has on at least two occasions introduced enabling legislation for a district court in the Pointes, only to have a couple of local communities oppose the court.

He said he will introduce the enabling legislation again, before the end of this session, though he's not sure if it can be considered by the Senate before January. He said he will have the state court administrator provide a study of the costs of a Park-only district court.

Bryant agreed Tuesday that a Park-only district court was a new concept.

"I want to look to see if a one-Pointe-only court can be justified," he said. "If it can be, fine. I won't say no and won't say yes until I look at it."

He said the other Pointes should be invited to join in the

Options for Milk River clean up discussed at public hearing

By Dan Jarvis
Staff Writer

While a clean-up solution may be in sight for the sewage-laden Milk River, the drainage board members of the Milk River Inter-County Drainage Board, the public body charged with finding an answer, is not quite sure what it will be.

At an April 19 public hearing at Woods City Hall, members of the drainage board stressed that no matter which clean-up solution they select, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources can and will most likely override the board's decision and mandate a state-approved clean-up plan.

Now that Grosse Pointe Woods has issued a general resolution of support for clean up of the Milk River, the drainage board can submit an application for state funding through the DNR's state revolving fund.

The fund was set up to aid pollution clean-up efforts by lending money at 2 percent interest.

The drainage board will soon submit the project plan to the DNR. The plan, drawn up by the engineering firm of McNamee, Porter and Seeley of Ann Arbor, contains several clean-up options with costs ranging from $5 million to $72 million.

Board member Thomas S. Welsh said, "While there is a general need for improvement, opinions on the methods of handling the problem vary widely. All agree that clean up should be handled through the state's revolving fund."

James Murray, the Wayne County representative on the board, said the next round of resolutions should contain the method or methods of clean up that the individual communities prefer.

The resolutions recently presented to the board allow it to seek a state permit to obtain funding, to draw up final clean up plans and to begin work.

In public hearings over the past several months, opinions as to the best solution varied, even among board members.

After several minutes of deliberation, a vote was taken and the board went on record favoring the construction of a 15-million gallon retention basin to reduce the number of spills of combined sewage overflows after a rainstorm.

The recommended clean-up alternative also includes:

- Construction of a disinfection facility to chlorinate the polluted water entering the system.

- Improvements at the Kerby Road Pumping Station, which pumps sewage from the Milk River System to the Detroit Sew-wage Treatment facility.

- Disconnection of downspouts on properties served by the system. This will send excess rainwater across lawns and reduce the amount of rainwater entering the system.

- Installation of river circulation systems to keep solids from settling to the riverbed.

- A complete channel cleanout to remove all solid waste which has settled to the bottom of the river.

The plan, if approved by the DNR, will cost approximately $18 million and will be funded primarily by the cities of Grosse Pointe Woods and Harper Woods. Additional funding will be provided by the city of St. Clair Shores, Wayne County and the state.

Murray, who does not support the plan, said, "I cannot support a plan that would not meet the guidelines for the permit. Alternative No. 2 does not provide an adequate level of control."

Murray added that any plan, in order to be successful, must have the support of all communities involved. He then suggested that the drainage board set up a committee of local officials to help get a specific plan in order.

The proposed plan would require the Woods to pay about $8 million; Harper Woods to pay about $6 million and the remainder to be funded by Wayne County, St. Clair Shores and the state.

"We're not hidebound on where we will end up as far as a cleanup solution," Welsh said. "The Michigan DNR is going to dictate which alternative we will use. The municipalities say they want the greatest amount of improvement at the lowest possible cost."

A 60-year-old City woman was driving this vehicle west on Charlevoix when it was struck broadside by a northbound vehicle on Moran. Also in the turned over vehicle were a 37-year-old Farms woman and her two children.

2 women, 2 children in rollover vehicle

Two women and two children were in a vehicle that rolled over on Charlevoix April 16 after being struck by another vehicle.

According to police accident reports, a 60-year-old City woman was driving west on Charlevoix and as she was crossing Moran another vehicle hit her broadside. The car traveling north on Moran was driven by a 46-year-old Farms woman.

After the collision, the vehicle on Charlevoix struck the curb at the northwest corner of the intersection and turned over. The vehicle ended up lying on its side facing east on Charlevoix.

In the rolled-over vehicle along with the driver was a 37-year-old Farms woman and her two children — a 5-year-old boy and a 2-year-old girl. In the other car besides the driver were two girls, ages 4 and 7. All the passengers and the two drivers were taken to St. John Hospital for various injuries. Police did not indicate if any of the injuries were serious.

The driver of the car on Moran was ticketed for failing to yield the right of way.

Farms joins anti-airport fold

By Dan Jarvis
Staff Writer

The five Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods are now united in their opposition against expansion at Detroit City Airport.

The Farms City Council adopted a resolution Monday night stating the city's opposition to the expansion plan.

Before the adoption, Mayor Joseph Fromm acknowledged that the other Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods had already passed similar resolutions.

The Farms joins with the other Pointes in opposing the City Airport expansion master plan because of increased noise, environmental contamination due to the dumping of jet fuel over Lake St. Clair and safety hazards and possible air disasters over the Grosse Pointes.

Councilman John Danaher said the resolution calls on the Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments to complete the seven-county airport study to gauge the impact of expansion on surrounding communities.

Danaher said the resolution also calls on the city of Detroit to complete its City Airport master plan, complete with a noise compatibility study and environmental impact statement.

Lloyd Semple, the Farms representative on the Grosse Pointe-Harper Woods Airport Study Committee, urged the City Council to allocate approximately $5,000 for the hiring of an airport consultant to present a case against expansion to the Federal Aviation Administration as well as elected officials in Washington, D.C., and Lansing.

"We need to hire a consultant to sort through various facts to gauge the impact of the expansion on the Grosse Pointes," Semple said.

"We need the additional support to lend credibility to our argument and to determine just how we should proceed."

Semple said the city of Windsor has filed an objection to the proposed plan with the FAA. "They do not want the planes flying over their city while making the landing approach," he said.

After hearing several audience members state their opposition to the airport expansion, the City Council unanimously passed the resolution and agreed to consider the partial funding of a consultant. The amount is yet to be determined.

Semple said proponents of the airport expansion plan claim that aircraft can land at City leased before taking action," Flannery said.

She praised Valerie Moran, a Park councilwoman, for getting the Study Committee to meet with the opposition group and in getting the Study Committee to take action.

"The study committee feels if they fail in stopping the expansion that they will seek concessions," Flannery said. "We don't want concessions. Concessions are a joke. They are dumping jet fuel, increasing traffic and creating noise as well as a dangerous situation. We don't want it at all."

Semple said that the Grosse Pointe-Harper Woods Airport Study Committee will investigate the cost of hiring of a consultant and will contact the city councils with a shared funding proposal.

He added that the roughly set figure of $25,000 between the six municipalities should be enough to hire a consultant, but the idea needs to be studied further.

Airport every four minutes, though experts say that is impossible. Planes making landing approaches currently fly over the Grosse Pointes at about 4,000 feet and air traffic is on the increase.

Audience members said expansion could have an adverse effect on property levels and could bring blight to the Pointes.

Christine Flannery of Grosse Pointe Farms is a member of the newly created City Airport Opposition Association said the resolution is a step in the right direction, but that the Airport Study Committee has not gone far enough in its opposition efforts.

Flannery said rather than a consultant, the committee should hire a lobbyist to go to Washington, D.C., and petition the FAA to deny funding for the multi-million dollar expansion plan.

The group is holding a community information meeting on Wednesday, May 2, at 7:30 p.m. in the South High School gymnasium. The meeting will feature a panel of speakers who will present the expansion plan.

The 20-member association was incorporated last week and members say they will fight the airport expansion primarily through public opinion.

The Study Committee has been stagnant and they're waiting for several studies to be re-

City Airport informational meeting May 2

An informational meeting on the proposed expansion of Detroit City Airport will be held at the Grosse Pointe South High School auditorium Wednesday, May 2, at 7:30 p.m.

The meeting is being organized by the City Airport Opposition Association, a grassroots organization that started in the Park and branched out to all the Pointes.

Featured speakers at the informational meeting will be Jack Knoblock, a business owner near the airport and a leader of the Detroit opposition; Pat Bausch, a Detroit resident who has investigated the environmental impacts of the airport; Paul Donahue, an aide with U.S. Rep. Dennis Hertel's Washington, D.C., office; and Walter Jakubowski, an attorney with the city of Warren.

The meeting will allow those present to ask questions, sign petitions and otherwise become involved in the airport issue.

Good news and bad news

The bad news is that a serious roll-over accident involving three cars and two young children occurred at Jefferson and Bedford April 18. The good news is that no one was hurt.

According to police, all the drivers were wearing seat belts, and the two children were secured in car seats — a powerful statement to the effectiveness of seat belts and approved child seats.

The accident occurred at 7:25 a.m. when, according to police reports, a car driven by a Park woman ran a red light while traveling north on Bedford and struck another car traveling east on Jefferson. The Bedford car then rolled over and slid on its roof into a third car traveling west on Jefferson.

School census to begin May 1

Census takers from the Grosse Pointe Public School System will begin a house-to-house canvas of the school district on Tuesday, May 1.

The census takers, who will visit every home in the Grosse Pointe Public School District during May and early June, will carry identification cards with photos and a letter of explanation.

The school census is conducted every two years by the district and is separate from the U.S. Census.

The primary purpose of the school census is to determine the number of pre-school and school-age children living in the district.

Census takers will also ask how many registered voters live in the home and whether there are any senior citizens or foreign-language-speaking residents living at the address.

They will also seek information regarding the special education needs of children.

This information is essential for the school district to plan for the educational needs of students and for community services to all residents. Answering the census taker's questions takes only a few minutes, and the school system asks the cooperation of all residents in providing complete and accurate information.

For more information, call Christian Fenton, assistant superintendent of Support Services, or Barbara Larabell, support services secretary, at 343-2030.

Dog licenses are expiring

On May 1, the Grosse Pointe Farms Public Safety Department begins issuing violation notices for illegal beagles — that is, ticketing dog owners who haven't renewed their pets' licenses.

The licenses expire April 30, so you only have a couple of days to get your pet in good graces with the law.

Original and renewal licenses are $5 if obtained by April 30. After that, they jump to $10. Also, dog owners will be fined $10 for not renewing their pets' licenses by April 30.

To get a dog license, pet owners must produce a certificate from a licensed veterinarian showing the dog has been immunized against rabies through Dec. 31.

Also, for your information, Farms ordinances prohibit:

- Letting your dog run at large.
- Allowing your dog to bark.
- Walking your dog without a leash.
- Letting your dog defecate on someone else's property (public or private) and not immediately cleaning it up.

Shores also opposes airport

A resolution opposing any expansion of Detroit City Airport was unanimously adopted by the Grosse Pointe Shores Village Council April 17.

According to Shores President Edmund M. Brady Jr., the resolution is similar to those adopted by the City and Woods, which were based on a tough anti-City Airport resolution adopted by the Park.

The resolutions were presented to the City, Woods and Shores by a grassroots organization that started in the Park. The group recently adopted the name — City Airport Opposition Association.

Busy burglar hits four homes

Two breaking-and-enterings and two attempts were made at houses in the Park April 15 and 16 by the same burglar, according to police.

One burglary occurred at a house in the 1000 block of Audubon at 3:40 a.m. April 15. The thief got in through an unlocked rear door and set off an audible alarm. He made off with a purse and a sterling silver flatware set from the kitchen table.

Another burglary occurred in the 1000 block of Harvard some time between 11:45 p.m. April 15 and 5 a.m. April 16. The burglar got in through an unlocked front door and stole three sterling silver candelabras and an initialed book bag.

A break-in attempt was made at a house in the 1100 block of Yorkshire at about 3:30 a.m. April 16. A resident at the house heard noise but didn't investigate. In the morning, panes of glass in a rear door were discovered broken, but a deadbolt lock prevented the thief from getting into the house.

The second unsuccessful burglary attempt happened in the 1000 block of Yorkshire some time between April 15 and April 17 when the would-be intruder pushed in a basement window, causing it to crash to the floor. The noise apparently scared the burglar away.

Based on evidence, police believe the same person was at all four of the houses involved.

Watkins predicts she, Collins will battle for Crockett's seat

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

State Rep. Juanita Watkins predicts the Democratic primary battle for the 13th Congressional District, which includes the Park and City, will boil down to a "two-woman race."

Last week, Watkins, a Detroit representative, told the Grosse Pointe News that while the Democratic primary ballot will most likely be loaded with candidates, the race will be between her and Barbara-Rose Collins, a Detroit city councilwoman who did well against Crockett two years ago.

"Look carefully at the two of us," she said. "I'm giving up a seat to run because I believe we need a voice in Washington that can make a difference."

Watkins has represented the state's 16th District since 1978.

She describes herself as an independent in that she is not part of any single political machine or riding on anyone else's coattails. Neither she nor any of the other candidates for the district have been endorsed by Detroit Mayor Coleman A. Young.

She said she fears that the district will be filled by a hand-picked candidate, much like a Reagan court. She urges voters to look at where the candidates are coming from as far as the issues are concerned.

The 13th District seat is up for grabs this year because George W. Crockett Jr. is retiring at the end of the current congressional term. Crockett represented the district since 1970.

To date the only other official candidates besides Watkins and Collins is Dr. Charles Vincent, 56, who is chief of gynecology at Detroit Receiving and Hutzel hospitals. Vincent's announcement April 18 was the first time he has made a run for public office.

In Lansing, Watkins is chairwoman of the powerful House Labor Committee, vice chair of the committee on State Constitutional and Women's Issues and a member of the Civil Rights and Urban Affairs committees.

While the leading issue for Grosse Pointers during the coming congressional campaign will most likely be the expansion of City Airport, Watkins indicated that she will not come out firmly opposed to increased activity at the airport at Conner and Gratiot.

She said she wants to wait and see what the final plans for the airport are and how they will affect the residents and businesses in the area. She is concerned about the number of people who will be displaced by the airport, and she wants to make sure the homeowners and business owners get adequate relocation allowances.

Watkins is concerned about the loss of population in the 13th District, which has reportedly experienced the largest decline in people of any congressional district.

She agreed with Crockett's assessment that all the Grosse Pointes should be in a single congressional district, preferably the 14th because the Pointes have more in common with the suburbs than they do with Detroit.

The issue of what congressional district the Pointes fall into is important at this time because after the census data have been collected this year, the congressional boundaries will be redrawn, and Michigan will most likely lose two congressional seats.

In Lansing, Watkins has worked on many key issues, including passage of Michigan's Right-to-Know law that mandates reporting of all toxic chemicals in the workplace. She also successfully introduced legislation that set up an advocacy program for small businesses and employees during unemployment compensation disputes.

As a congresswoman, Watkins said she will push for an expanded role of the Small Business Administration to provide more opportunities for constituents. She said small businesses make up the lifeblood of a community.

As a single mother who raised four children and put them through Michigan universities, Watkins, 51, knows hardships of a single-parent family. She favors revising the social-welfare system to provide working single mothers with health care and child care. Such a revision would make it economically possible for single mothers to take outside employment.

"Contrary to the myth," she said, "the large majority do want to go back to work."

She is very concerned about rebuilding Detroit's infrastructure, which includes not only roads and utilities, but also homes and businesses. She's worried about the continuing flight from Detroit.

"Why do we have such a high level of crime?" she asked.

We cooperate with Detroit at our peril

Those of us who live in the suburbs are constantly reminded that we're part of the Detroit metropolitan area and that we should all work together for the good of the entire community.

That's a fine sentiment and we subscribe to it ourselves on most occasions. But when we review two recent developments, we have our doubts about the advantages of cooperating with Detroit's political leaders.

We refer, of course, to two Detroit projects that have drawn strong protests from the Pointes and other suburbs in recent months. They are the construction of Detroit's giant incinerator and the proposed expansion of the Detroit City Airport.

With respect to the incinerator controversy, Detroit's tactics are clear. Mayor Coleman Young attacks any complaints as evidence of "Detroit bashing" and racism. He has demanded that the Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission reverse its decision closing the incinerator for its failure to meet state standards and has applied pressure to get approval to reopen the plant.

Going over the heads of the commission to appeal to the public, he and the Greater

Opinion

Detroit Resource Recovery Authority, which operates the incinerator, argued in a double-page ad in Sunday's Detroit News and Free Press that Detroit's trash "makes the grade" because it passes 10 of the 11 categories on which the plant is tested.

In effect, Detroit officials seek a political decision that would give the city of Detroit what it wants without further consideration of possible damage to the health of the citizens of the city and the surrounding suburbs.

The ad complains that Detroit's incinerator is being held to higher standards with respect to mercury emissions than similar facilities in Kent and Jackson counties. But Detroit's facility is much larger than either of these two and, in fact, is the largest in the entire nation, which means it spews out more pollution even at the higher standard.

As the Detroit Free Press pointed out, the Detroit facility is also located in a much more densely populated area than the two outstate incinerators and therefore its discharges affect many more people. It's also important to remember that the outstate facilities have installed the advanced pollution control technology spurned by Detroit.

In their advertisement, Detroit officials said they are committed to work with state and local officials to "ensure that the resource recovery facility (meaning the incinerator) fully protects the health and safety of all our citizens and neighbors." We'd have more confidence in that pledge if the city's record in protecting the health and safety of the area had been better in the past.

As for the proposed additional expansion of the City Airport, people in the Pointes have been watching developments with increasing concern. Even the limited expansion that already has occurred has increased air and noise pollution, to say nothing of the new dangers from the huge planes flying over a heavily populated area on increasingly frequent regular schedules.

As we're writing, the councils in four of the five Pointe municipalities have approved resolutions opposing further expansion or limiting the use of the airport to smaller planes. But, as in the case of the suburban criticism of the Detroit incinerator, the opposition has been given little attention by Detroit officials.

As a result, the City Airport Opposition Association was organized to express the community's views and to help persuade the Pointe governments to join the battle. Patrick McCarroll, a Grosse Pointe Park resident, said he and like-minded Pointers are especially concerned that Detroit "will ramrod through a poorly-thought-out plan" that will not express sufficient concern for safety and other factors.

The Grosse Pointe-Harper Woods Airport Study Committee, another group that has been monitoring the airport development, has asked the Pointes to join in hiring a consultant to help them estimate the cost of the proposed expansion to the Pointes. It, too, sounds like a reasonable request.

To some of us in the Pointes, the warning is clear. We cooperate with Detroit at our own peril. The highly prized quality of life in the Pointes surely could be seriously damaged — in fact will become one of the victims — if both projects go ahead without more attention being paid to the health and safety of the people affected.

Of course, we're all part of a single metropolitan area. But Detroit's government surely is failing to meet its responsibilities to its own people and its neighbors in its handling of the incinerator problem and the proposed airport expansion.

Both projects jeopardize the health, safety and quality of life of the people of the Pointes. Unless the criticism is met, continued opposition to both projects is warranted. In fact, the Pointes' challenges could affect future decisions in Detroit, Lansing and Washington.

A challenge to male monopoly

Will a woman succeed retiring Rep. George Crockett as the 13th District's representative in Congress in the 1990 election and thereby break the male monopoly in Michigan's congressional delegation?

Rep. Juanita Watkins, a 12-year veteran of the state House of Representatives from Detroit, is one candidate for the 13th District seat who answers that query in the affirmative because she believes that she and Barbara-Rose Collins, a Detroit councilwoman, are the two strongest entries in the growing field of Democratic candidates for the Crockett seat.

Collins earlier claimed the front-runner's role because she gave Crockett a tough battle in 1988 before losing the Democratic nomination by about 8 percentage points.

All 18 current U.S. representatives are male and so are the state's two senators, although women have been challenging the male incumbents in recent elections. Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths, the most recent woman to have served Michigan in Congress, retired in 1974.

Because Grosse Pointe Park and Grosse Pointe City are a part of the 13th District, Rep. Watkins showed up in the Grosse Pointe News office last week to discuss her candidacy and seek support from Pointe residents of the district.

On one issue, she clearly supported the view of many Pointers: that all five Pointe communities should be reunited in one congressional district when the next reapportionment is made after the returns are in from the 1990 census.

Expressing a view similar to Crockett's, she said the Pointes ought to wind up in the 14th District because they share more interests with suburban residents than they do with Detroiters, who make up the majority of the 13th District voters.

On a second issue that has high priority in the Pointes — opposition to the proposed expansion of the City Airport — Rep. Watkins said she will defer her decision until the final plan is made public. But she stressed the importance of holding public hearings before the plan is approved.

The state representative is a thoughtful, articulate and experienced legislator who would bring to Congress a strong interest in domestic legislation of interest and concern to 13th District constituents. At this stage she appears to be a formidable candidate who probably rates, along with Councilwoman Collins, as among the early favorites for the Democratic nomination.

Lottery sales in schools next?

Joe Dumars of the Pistons doesn't see anything wrong with his three-year, $642,500 deal to promote the Michigan lottery and obviously lottery officials don't either.

In passing a bill to ban any more such deals, the state House of Representatives obviously sees it otherwise. So do many other Michigan citizens for reasons which seem to escape Dumars and the lottery officials who hired him.

The National Basketball Association, along with the National Football League and organized baseball, all take a dim view of gambling. Some professional athletes in the past have been barred from professional sports for gambling, usually on their own games, although admitted gambler Pete Rose still denies he ever bet on baseball.

In addition to the obvious threat to the integrity of any game if the participants gamble on the outcome, athletes usually serve as role models for youngsters not only in what they say but in what they do. Even if Dumars doesn't mention the lottery, he has put himself in an ethical bind with young baseball fans when he speaks under the auspices of a gambling institution.

There apparently is no length to which lottery officials will not go to promote the Michigan lottery. In the print media as well as on the tube, and now with the hiring of a highly regarded professional athlete to speak on their behalf, lottery officials are seeking new ways to promote the sales of more tickets and wider participation by the Michigan public.

If the lottery is not restrained, will it eventually want to start selling tickets in the schools now that spokesman Dumars has got his foot in the door to talk to students? Or does the fact that most of the lottery receipts go to the public schools justify ticket sales in the classroom?

Congrats, Pat!

The editorial page today joins in offering its congratulations to Pat Paholsky, editor of the Grosse Pointe News, who has been named the winner of the Outstanding Journalism Alumni award of Wayne State University for 1990.

The award, sponsored by the WSU Journalism Program, was based on her career as a student, her success in her professional career and her continuing activity as a Wayne State alumna. A 1979 WSU grad, Paholsky served as editor of The Review in Richmond and the Courier-Journal in Algonac before joining the News in 1984.

It's a deserved recognition of a capable editor who, not so incidentally, had the pleasure of reading a Page 1 story by her son Todd in the South End, the WSU student paper, on the day her award was announced at the annual Journalism Day ceremonies April 20. Todd is also following a journalism career.

Pat is one of five WSU journalism grads at the News. The others are John Minnis, assistant editor; Daniel Jarvis, staff writer, and Kim M. Kozlowski and Chris Dellas of the display advertising department.

Trash Angel

To the Editor:

I, as a concerned citizen, wish to thank the Trash Angel of Grosse Pointe who for years has picked up all the refuse and rubble found on the Boulevard, Grosse Pointe South's parking lot and everywhere she walks.

This is especially of note to all Grosse Pointe residents as we enter Earth Week. Let us all join our Angel and make our community a better place to live.

Civic pride

To the Editor:

As a City resident who also works in the Village, I occasionally overhear comments about how the Village could be a prettier, tidier place if the stores and the City would just make the effort. A better question would be — why should they, especially when their efforts are defaced by the people of this community.

On a daily basis I've seen people throw trash on the sidewalks, when trash barrels are less than five feet away. Lower limbs have been wrenched from the trees planted on the recently constructed plaza.

More letters on page 7A

Holiday greens are pulled from the planters and thrown in the street, while Christmas lights on the wreaths and trees are stolen or cut in two.

What must be a couple of thousand dollars was paid to fill the Village with daffodils this spring, and on my way to work I saw where someone has stolen them from at least one planter.

What kind of people live in this community? Can there be so little civic pride that we tolerate such vandalism? If so, it's time we take a hard look at ourselves. Even if these are the acts of children or teenagers, the community must make such behavior unacceptable.

Gratitude

To the Editor:

Give Detroiters the opportunity to open their hearts — and pocketbooks — for charity and the response is truly astounding.

This tremendous outpouring of support was once again evident with the recent Taste of the Nation benefit to help ease America's hunger crisis. Through the generosity of local business and caring individuals throughout southeastern Michigan, the third annual event locally raised $36,000 for the battle against hunger here and across the United States.

Nationally, Taste of the Nation raised $1.3 million, making it the largest hunger relief effort in the history of the restaurant and food service industry. Detroit placed an impressive 10 out of a total 68 cities participating in the event in terms of funds

Fifty nifty things about Stephanie

My oldest daughter graduated from Michigan State University last month. She earned a bachelor of arts degree in advertising. Now she's looking for a job.

After I was seated in a humungous arena with 10,000 other parents of graduates, I realized the great sense of pride I felt about her accomplishment.

I have 50 nifty reasons for being proud of Stephanie. Here's five:

- She's impeccably honest. Once, when Stephanie was about 10, a girlfriend pilfered some fake fingernails from the local drugstore and gave them to Stephanie.

Stephanie — who was unfamiliar with such shady tactics — was at first glad to have the fake fingernails she couldn't afford to pay for.

She used them. I didn't know about the hot nails, so I couldn't nag. But Steph's sense of right and wrong surfaced, and did the nagging for me. She confessed what had taken place. Then she decided, all by herself, to send the money for the fingernails to the drugstore, anonymously. I helped her find the address and mail the money.

She's nearly 23 years old now — still a paragon of fair and square.

• She's loyal. In public, at least. She sticks up for her family, in spite of the fact that we frequently do and say stupid, embarrassing things in public and make fools of ourselves.

When she was in elementary school, I had a car with a horn that played "Hail to the Victors." I thought it would be a neat way to signal Stephanie and her sister when I picked them up from school, swimming practice, piano lessons, friend's houses, etc.

Whenever I hit the horn, Stephanie was overcome with embarrassment. If she was in the car, she hit the floor.

When her family does something geeky in public, Stephanie rolls her eyes up and holds her breath. Later, she lets us know how dorky we were. Outwardly, however, she's our staunchest defender.

• She taught me that it's possible to love somebody just because that person exists.

Stephanie was our firstborn. We brought her home from the hospital all pink and poopy and froggy-legged, with a pointed head and a squished nose and bowed legs. When I see photographs of her now, I realize she wasn't a beautiful newborn.

I thought she was perfect. She hadn't done anything good or bad, yet I loved her unconditionally from the moment she was born. I still do.

• She's snuggly.

While Stephanie's younger sister was busy scrambling up ladders, leaning over edges of pools, jumping off brick walls, and poking her fingers into wall sockets and ashtrays and the dog's nose, Steph was snuggled on my lap, chattering amiably about her observations on life and waxing philosophical: "It's called neat loaf because Mommy makes it nice and neat with her hands before she cooks it." "I like it when the wind wiggles my hair." "My friend Anita is sick with the chicken pops." "What are mosquitos for?"

• She's a good judge of character.

For nearly 23 years, Stephanie has been surrounded with friends. She brought all kinds of kids home: good kids and bad kids; kids that were bright, boring, brash, trashy, shy, wimpy, weird, shady, snotty, bratty, beautiful, snippy, sulky, whiny, funny, friendly, fashionable, personable, perverse, wise, witty and wicked. She gave them all a try.

Somehow, she sorted through the diverse assortment and stayed friends with the best of the bunch. She's still hanging around with the nicest ones.

She's not perfect. She charges too much on her credit card; she burps on purpose, just to annoy me; she stays up too late at night and sleeps too late in the morning.

Stephanie and I frequently do not see eye-to-eye. In fact, we're quite often nose-to-nose and toe-to-toe over some trivial detail of daily life. But I'm proud of her.

In spite of all we disagree on, we share some common views. We both like mellow pop music, lasagna, TCBYs, puppies, the smell of fresh-cut grass, fires in the fireplace and Mexican food.

This is one terrific daughter. Uh...like I said...she's looking for a job. She'd make one terrific employee.

Macho men

The hardy fellows who make your trash disappear decided to test their muscles and coordination in a different way for a change. Recently the Harper Woods DPW workers challenged their counterparts in Grosse Pointe Woods to a bowling duel.

The Woods guys couldn't let the challenge go by, flexed their brawn, and won by two out of three.

Nice way for city workers to strike.

Food events

For fanciers of Michigan-grown food, April, May and June offer lots of opportunities to treat your tummies.

Like the Maple Syrup Festivals in Shepherd on April 27-29 and Vermontville on April 28-29; the Mushroom Festival in Mesick on May 4-6; the National Mushroom-Hunting Championships in Boyne City on May 12-13; and the Battle Creek Cereal Festival on June 2-9, which features the world's largest breakfast table.

If you're into big food, there's the Pasty Bake in St. Ignace on May 27, which includes an attempt to bake the world's largest pastry.

For fisherpersons, there's the Perch Festival in Caseville on April 21-29; the National Trout Festival in Kalkaska on April 25-29; the Walleye Tournament in Midland on April 28-29; the $35,000 Blue Water Fishing Classic Tournament in Port Huron on May 4-6; the Bass Festival in Mancelona on June 1-3; the Trout Tournament in Charlevoix on June 8-10; the Smallmouth Bass Tournament in Bergland and Marenisco on June 9-10; the Walleye Tournament in Bellaire on June 15-17; the Pickerei Fishing Tournament in Algonac on June 29-July 4; and the Carp Rodeo in Union City on June 15-17.

If you were so inclined, you could eat your way around the mitten.

Honored

The Grosse Pointe Farms City Council adopted two resolutions at Monday's meeting, honoring do-gooders in the community.

They recognized retiring Farms Detective Earl L. Field for 40 years as a dedicated, hard-working officer. Field received a similar resolution from state Sen. John Kelly.

The council also honored the University Liggett School boys hockey team, the Knights, for winning the class B-C-D state hockey title.

The Farms council chamber was packed with well-suited young hockey players. Each one received a resolution and congratulations.

Feel free to act up

The Michigan Renaissance Festival will sponsor a free actors' workshop on Wednesday, May 9, at 3:15 p.m. at Athens High School in Troy and at 7 p.m. at Oakland University's Varner Hall in Rochester.

Herb Hanson, president of Sak Entertainment, will teach the workshops which will concentrate on improvisational techniques. Would-be actors with all levels of skill are welcome. Both workshops are open to all ages, but the Athens High School workshop will be targeted toward high school students. Promoters promise that there is no commitment for participants to audition or participate in the Michigan Renaissance Festival if they attend a workshop.

The Michigan Renaissance Festival will open Aug. 18-19 and run through Sept. 29-30, on Saturdays, Sundays and Labor Day. The festival is in Holly.

Pre-registration is suggested, but not required for the free workshops. For more information, call Michael Short, entertainment director, at 645-9640 or write the Michigan Renaissance Festival, 700 E. Maple, Birmingham, 48009.

In its short life, Taste of the Nation has made an enormous impact on food banks and shelters around the world. In fact, the event has been so successful it will be expanded to an entire week in 1991.

Again, many thanks to everyone involved in this most worthy cause.

To the Editor:

I was startled to read in the April 19 issue of the Grosse Pointe News what I thought was a personal letter to me from the Advisory Library Commission of the Grosse Pointe Public Library. Since the commission has violated what I consider personal ethics by making the letter public, I will respond in kind.

The letter stated that "negativity was your guiding light rather than the reasoned judgment which your position demands." The letter also interpreted my vote against the proposed site plan as "shortsighted, misinformed and anti-library."

If the members of the commission were in attendance at the two public hearings, they apparently did not hear or chose to ignore what I said at the meeting which was as follows:

1. I am a supporter of the library, a frequent user of the library and I have been a member of the Friends of the Library for many years.

2. The purpose of the public hearings was to review the site plan submitted by the public school system and not to debate the need for a new central library or the proposed cost.

3. The council was required to make a judgment based upon the zoning ordinance which states among other things:

a. A Community Service District is "intended to provide suitable locations for desirable and necessary public activities which serve the residents of the City and to limit the location, size and character of such uses so that the activity which they generate does not become a nuisance and will not overburden the facilities of the City."

b. "In the process of reviewing the site plan, the City Council shall consider... safety and convenience of both vehicular and pedestrian traffic both within the site and in relation to access streets."

4. In my opinion the proposed site plan did not provide safety of both vehicular and pedestrian traffic both within the site and in relation to access streets and the location, size and character of the proposed building would have been a nuisance to the neighboring residents of the community.

5. I would give serious consideration to an alternate site plan submitted at the public hearing of April 2 by residents of the area.

I thought the meetings represented an excellent example of the democratic process where residents of the area expressed their opinions and within one week between meetings submitted an alternate site plan that was superior to the one upon which the council had to make a judgment. I do not feel that my actions were "negative," "shortsighted" nor "anti-library." As far as being "misinformed," after service on the council since 1973, I consider that to be a personal insult to my intelligence and dedication to public service.

Library issue

To the Editor:

The Advisory Library Commission has sent a letter, published in the Grosse Pointe News on April 19, expressing "shock and disappointment" regarding the recent rejection by the Grosse Pointe Farms City Council of a site plan to place a proposed new central library on the playfields at Brownell Middle School and calling the public officials "short-sighted, misinformed and anti-library."

The fact that the proponents of the site plan are shocked and disappointed merely confirms what was obvious in the site plan itself: The proponents of that site plan still have not applied sufficient attention to the effects of the flawed plan, although they now evidence unlimited energy to depreciate and mischaracterize the public hearings and the decision made by the Farms council.

I praise the mayor and council for a correct decision. Plainly, it would have been easier for these leaders to have gone along with the plan. Instead, they carefully considered all the evidence and made a decision on that evidence, earning my admiration and deserving that of all of us. The school board will recover soon enough, but the principle of the importance of residential neighborhoods in the Grosse Pointes will benefit all of us for a long time.

I put pen to paper out of concern that public relations and spin control efforts in the aftermath of a proper decision on a seriously flawed site plan might succeed, i.e., might persuade the public of what the proponents wish were the case.

I delivered to the Farms council a five-page letter addressing four separate issues. I spoke to the council in support of my analysis and conclusions. Other serious-minded and thoughtful citizens did the same. Any one present at the two meetings of the council knows that the decision was made on relevant issues. The site plan was defective and flawed and for those reasons was not accepted by the council. The traffic study did not stand up to rational examination and the site plan presented had irremedial safety defects plainly threatening school children. The site plan was inconsistent with the residential neighborhood.

I understand the disappointment of the proponents, but I do not approve of their present tactics. If they had done a better job of site selection and design, they would have approval today. They didn't do an adequate job, the Farms Council was correct to reject the site plan presented, and it's a shame that the proponents point the finger every which way but right. If they want a new library site they should learn the lessons of their recent experience and do a better job next time. Personal attack and spin control will not, I hope, advance or accomplish a defective site plan.

I congratulate Mayor Fromm and the council for a courageous and correct decision.

Volunteers

To the Editor:

This week, as we celebrate the work of volunteers in communities across the country, my fellow board members and I would like to thank the 3,400 dedicated volunteers of the Grosse Pointe Public School System.

They shoulder an incredible variety of tasks, from baking cupcakes to chaperoning school dances, from driving on field trips to sponsoring enrichment programs and tutoring students who need extra help and individual attention. Sometimes the work isn't very glamorous; often it's demanding and exhausting. But their work makes a tremendous difference in the lives of our students.

As might be expected, most of our volunteers are parents. At least 70 volunteers, however, are senior citizens, working in classrooms, special needs swim, community education and the library. They are a special reminder of the continuous care and support all members of the Grosse Pointe community have given to the school system over the years.

To all of you who have helped our students, our heartfelt thanks. You're one of the reasons Grosse Pointe is a great place to live — and learn.

Capital punishment

To the Editor:

In 1962, a vigorous, statewide campaign was waged urging the voters of Michigan to adopt a new state constitution. Wisely, the voters of that era did just that. I'm proud to say I was active in that campaign on the pro side.

That document, the Constitution of 1963, contains a provision on capital punishment. Article IV, Section 46 says, "No law shall be enacted providing for the penalty of death." That language very clearly prohibits the state Legislature from making any law that would provide the death penalty as a punishment for any crime.

A majority of the state's voters voted affirmatively to adopt the new constitution back then in 1962. By doing so, they of course spoke on the issue of capital punishment. They said emphatically, "We do not want capital punishment in Michigan."

One of the main reasons I was in favor of the adoption of the new constitution was because of that prohibition of legislative action on capital punishment. I was opposed to the death penalty then, and I had a chance to vote on the issue. But that was almost 30 years ago.

I believe that today's generation is entitled to the same opportunity to speak out on the question as I and my generation had in 1962. That is why I am circulating the petition to put the issue on the ballot in the next general election, later this year.

In my view, society has changed drastically since 1962. Certainly the public's attitude toward crime and criminals has changed. I believe we are, as a society, less compassionate, less merciful, and less forgiving. This fact saddens and discourages me. I've been a teacher for the past 30 years and a lawyer for the past 13, and I feel I've failed in my mission to some degree because today's generation is not kinder, not gentler than mine was.

But my emotions don't change the facts of life in 1990. I believe the majority longs justifiably for retribution from those among us who would commit the most heinous of crimes, premeditated, unmitigated murder of a fellow human being.

Earlier petition drives to place the capital punishment question before the voters of this state have, as we know, failed. The last one, although it gathered more than enough valid signatures, was quashed on a technicality by the courts. That expression of the will of the people: "Give us a vote on this issue!" was not honored.

I believe that a small group of individuals, high-minded, and I'm sure, sincerely so, have succeeded in denying the people of this state the opportunity to vote directly on this issue.

Does this small group, mostly members of the judiciary, distrust the democratic process in general, or just on this issue?

An attorney friend, when asked to sign the petition to place the issue on the ballot, declined, saying that some issues should not be voted on by the people. I suggested that he do some introspective thinking on that point. I suggested gently that such thinking is the essence of fascism. He answered that it probably was, but he still didn't want to sign the petition. I wonder if his attitude is common and current in the legal community. I hope it isn't. It frightens me to think that it might be.

I say this: Let the generation of 1990 have a vote. If they say, as their fathers and mothers said in 1962, "No, we do not want capital punishment in our state," then the issue will be put to rest, at least for another 30 years.

However, if their vote is to remove the constitutional ban on the Legislature's action on the question, then that august and sagacious body, which is literally the "voice of the people," will have the challenge. It can act or not act on the question, and democracy will again bring its power to bear on the question.

The children in the square in Beijing died for a voice in their government. And they wanted a voice on all issues, not just those selected for them by an elite.

Crime doesn't pay, victims do

There is nothing in your life, short of war, famine or pestilence, that can prepare you to be a victim of violent crime. To be the innocent person hit by a drunk driver. To be dragged from your car on your way from work and mugged or beaten. To be raped in your own apartment in the middle of the night. To have your daughter murdered or sexually abused in her college dorm room on her first venture away from home. In our hearts, victims of violent crime hold a special, tender place, because we know that their pain might well be ours:

But there is no tender place in our criminal justice system for victims. Even the name implies it: Justice is for criminals, not victims.

Most Americans are unaware of the pain of victims, for a variety of reasons. Movies and television show a system of police officers, prosecutors and judges who are fighting for the victim. Their job is to get the criminal and put him away. All within 60 minutes.

In reality, it doesn't work that way. A victim may suffer a complete physical, emotional and financial breakdown from his or her experience, while the attacker is out on the streets again in a matter of hours, days or months.

Part of the reason is that in the American system of criminal justice, a violent crime is held to be a crime against society. The officials of the law, from the first police officer on the scene, to the judge and jury, to the prison guard who finally releases the offender, are all agents of our injured society.

This is not an isolated problem. In 1986, one violent crime occurred every 21 seconds in this country. Every 22 minutes someone is killed by a drinking driver. A property crime occurs every 3 seconds. A forcible rape every 6 minutes. A murder every 25 minutes. And one in every four American families will be touched by violent crime this year alone.

Today, the situation for victims is looking better. Ten years ago, there were seldom victims in our courts. Today, there are judges, prosecutors and law enforcement officials working with victims' rights groups to give victims a voice in our legal system, and to create avenues for compensation. Michigan now provides constitutional protection for victims and their rights.

In the Wayne County area, three organizations have organized together into a powerful coalition to address this problem and to draw attention to the plight of victims. They are Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD), Save Our Sons and Daughters (S.O.S.A.D.) and the Michigan Head Injury Alliance. Many of us working on this issue are victims. Others are important members of the legal system. We have performed miracles in the last few years by helping to initiate needed reforms. We have often been the only ones who stood between a victim and total despair. We have put their time and money on the line for a cause. And, we have made a difference!

This week (April 23-28) is National Victims' Rights Week. All across our nation, from the Rose Garden at the White House to our own city hall, communities are taking a stand for victims' rights. And that's as it should be. We owe victims our support. And our respect.

The time to change is now

Earth Day 1990 has come and gone. Did we learn anything? My fear is that there was so much hoopla and celebration around Earth Day that many people will feel "OK, we celebrated, and there is all this good stuff happening, so now I can go back and live my life as I was." We can't do that.

Scientists differ as to what the effects global warming and ozone depletion will have on the atmosphere and on the oceans in the coming decades. Many feel the effects could be devastating.

But there are others who believe the effects in coming decades will not be significant or that we still have too little data collected over too little time to be able to predict where global temperatures may be headed.

In addition, some feel our computer models are too crude to be able to predict the major, complex effects which tiny changes in myriad variables can make.

Also, the Earth has automatic mechanisms which help it stabilize temperatures. Will they still work or have we gone too far? No one really knows, for example, if atmospheric and oceanic warming will cause a beneficial blooming of CO<sub>2</sub> consuming phytoplankton in the oceans or if ozone depletion will result in killing off the ultraviolet light-sensitive phytoplankton.

Some effects of global warming may even be beneficial to certain regions, either by lengthening growing seasons or by increasing precipitation. Not all effects of global warming would be negative for all people. It is clear, at a minimum, however, that significant changes in weather would be costly and could be disastrous for many regions of Earth and for billions of

Lansing

William R. Bryant Jr.
State Representative

people. So, we have a mixed bag of scientific opinion as to the extent of changes which will occur unless we mend our ways and the possible effects of our behaviors and, to a degree, a mixed bag of pluses and minuses whether specific possible changes would be bad or good for particular regions.

What we can conclude, I believe, for starters, is that we all need to do a far better job of conserving energy in our daily lives. And we need to live individually and as a society in ways which do not violate our basic responsibility to leave a habitable Earth for future generations.

And that, in turn, means we need to take particular care not to cross some environmental threshold which will cause irreversible damage to the systems of our Mother Earth. We can't demand scientific certainty. By the time we have such certainty, it will be too late.

We must do more research, certainly, but we must act now to try to make sure we do not cause irreversible damage, any more than we have. Every loss of a species to extinction is an irreversible loss. Every loss of rain forests is virtually irreversible and banishes tribal peoples from their homelands. We have much to do to come to peace with Earth.

The 20th Earth Day has passed. We have heard and seen and learned much. But the world will suffer if we celebrated Earth Day 1990 and went back to our old ways. We can't go back. The time to change has come.

Court

district court system. He, too, wants the state court administrator to study the cost of a Park-only court. He said the cost of a district court has been more than anticipated in some cases.

District courts are mandated by the state Constitution of 1963. Today, the only communities in the state that still have municipal courts are East Detroit and the five Grosse Pointes. Harper Woods has District Court 32A. The Pointes were supposed to house District Court 32B.

The state has never mandated the switch to district courts here because — for one reason — under the Headlee Amendment, if the state forces a new program on a community, the state must also pick up all the costs. Therefore, the state prefers the local community voluntarily go into district courts, such as the Park is now attempting to do.

A comparative cost analysis by city Comptroller Peter Dobrzeniecki indicated that a district court will cost little more than a municipal court. The municipal court appropriation is $126,900. Appropriations for a district court would be an estimated $136,200.

He estimated a Park-only district court will handle 150 more cases a year than the municipal court's 8,000 to 9,000 cases currently.

Clark innumrated what he believes are advantages of a district court:

- Civil cases are not limited to $1,500 as they are in municipal court. District Court can handle cases up to the circuit court minimum of $10,000.

- More criminal cases can be tried in a district court, and the district court's trial decisions are recognized by higher courts. Also, sentences can be handed down based on local standards.

- The Park already operates a full-time court, and therefore should have the full status provided by a district court.

Councilman David Gaskin didn't share Ausherman and Clark's enthusiasm for revamping the court and he was the only one to vote against the district court resolution.

"I've been opposed to the district court," he said. "It's not the be-all end-all it's purported to be."

He said the local community would have less control over a district court, the court's case-load would increase dramatically and many downgraded Wayne County Circuit Courts cases will be remanded to the district court and the costs would be far greater.

He said the district court proposal needs a lot more study before he could vote for it.

"If we think this is going to be a court for the Grosse Pointes, that's just not so," Gaskin said. "They're going to come from all over."

He also argued that the state will not allow the Park to have its own district court. Sen. Kelly, however, said there are smaller communities in the state with their own district courts.

Gaskin also argued that there has not been a lot of complaints from residents that the court system is inadequate.

"I haven't heard any citizens beating us in the ears stating they've been denied justice here," he said.

Ausherman argued that there hasn't been a lot of residents' feedback on the court because it isn't something they come in contact with frequently, if at all.

"Until you get involved in the court system, you couldn't care less what type of court they're running at City Hall," he said.

Even Mayor Palmer Heenan, who has favored the district court in the past, said he now had reservations. He said he has heard from another local mayor who now regrets going to a district court. Heenan did not indicate the identity of the disenchanted mayor.

"I'm not against a district court," Heenan said, "but when making a major change, you can't move quickly. I have not perceived any demand from the people to act precipitously."

The district court resolution was destined to languish on the parliamentary table, but an impassioned plea by Municipal Judge Kirsten Frank carried the day — at least as for those in favor of a district court.

She prefaced her remarks by stating she was a strong advocate of the district court system and she has stated so in her campaigns for judge.

Frank pointed out that the municipal court is a full-time, full-service court. The only thing part-time about the court is the hours the judge supposedly conducts court. But she added that while court day is Thursday, that doesn't include jury trials and arraignments that are held on other days of the week because court day is full.

Frank was especially concerned about the lack of authority granted the municipal court. She said any trials and sentences on the municipal court level have an automatic right to an appeal to circuit court. And the appeals are not just procedural. The entire trial is reheld. It's as if the municipal court action never took place.

"It's like they (criminals) have a free shot and then they go downtown," she said.

"Our citizens deserve more here. It's not fair."

She said she has seen the same defendants come before her again and again, only to receive lenient treatment downtown. She said drunk drivers can go to circuit court to receive lighter sentences than those awarded in courts in the Pointes.

Clark pointed out that the Constitution promises a trial by peers, but when defendants are sent out of the community, they are not tried by their peers or by the community's standards.

Frank urged the council to do what's best for its own residents.

"It doesn't matter if Grosse Pointe City wants one," she said. "It doesn't matter if Grosse Pointe Shores wants one. Grosse Pointe Park wants one."

Assessments

Belcher said many of the existing codes were changed and appeared as new codes on the appraisal reports. He said a complete listing of codes should be given to everyone needing the information.

"The property owners have never seen these codes before and don't know what they mean," he said.

In addition to new codes, the appraisal reports themselves were changed, Belcher said. "Even board of review members with years of experience did not understand the appraisal reports because they (appraisal reports) were not explained," he said. "The assessor may have done a better job in explaining it so that everyone involved would have known what was going on. We have to look at the procedures for next year to avoid information gaps or even misinformation."

Another problem residents encountered was in the actual delivery of the assessment notices from City Hall. In an attempt to save money, assessment notices were mailed third-class, bulk-rate.

"The assessor made the decision to imprint the assessment change notices with the bulk mail permit of the city," Belcher said.

"The decision in 1990 for bulk mailing was in error. The General Property Tax Law (sec. 211.24c) states that 'the assessor shall give to each owner or person or persons listed on the assessment roll of the property a notice by first class mail.'"

Belcher, referring back to the Board of Review process, said things could be expedited if the petition forms involved were in a three-part form.

"When the decision by the board was entered on the form and all appeal reviews completed, then a copy could be placed in a window envelope for mailing," Belcher said. "The assessor's Board of Review work could continue and the residents would have their results."

Summing up his findings, Belcher said, "The city administration and the council are deeply concerned about what happened. We are reviewing all procedures and have made many changes with the goal of avoiding problems next year."

Belcher said he did not know why many of the property assessments in the Woods were unusually high, while others dropped dramatically.

"The council will request information on the detail work that determined individual assessment levels to avoid problems with inequity next year," he said.

Once notified of assessment appeal decisions by the Board of Review, residents who can demonstrate an unfair assessment should notify the Michigan Tax Tribunal for an additional appeal. Information is available at Woods City Hall.

Park conducts Law Day contest

May 1 is Law Day U.S.A. Twenty-nine years ago, Congress set aside the first day of May as a "special day of celebration by the American people in appreciation of their liberties."

To celebrate Law Day U.S.A., the Grosse Pointe Park Municipal Court in conjunction with the Grosse Pointe Park City Council are sponsoring a Law Day quiz contest. Elementary and middle school children who are residents of the Park should unscramble each of the sets of letters to form the words that answer the definitions.

Entrants are to complete the quiz and return it to Grosse Pointe Park City Hall by noon May 1. A winner will be drawn from all the correct entries and will receive a savings bond for $100 donated by the Grosse Pointe City Council. Good luck!

Brownell undergoes accreditation

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Brownell Middle School in Grosse Pointe Farms is undergoing accreditation by North Central Association, an educational group comprised of schools in 19 regional states.

Any school can become a member by meeting certain standards of programming and staffing.

Within three years of joining, a school must undergo an accreditation procedure. Brownell joined the NCA last year.

Brownell Principal Don Messing said the main purpose of the accreditation procedure is to take a look at the school's programming and point out directions to improve it.

To be accredited, the school must meet guidelines in six different categories — administration and organization, instructional programming, education and qualifications of the staff, the school building itself and its contents, the school's relationship with the community and the school improvement plan.

In January, the school's staff spent two half-days completing questionnaires relating to the six categories, and earlier this month an outside accreditation team of educators from throughout the state visited Brownell and filled out their own questionnaires similar to those completed by the Brownell staff.

Their findings will be sent back to the school in late June.

"From that information, we will look at how we can improve the school," Messing said.

At the reception welcoming the accreditation team, Messing told the staff that Brownell already has a good program, but they must constantly look for ways to improve it.

Being accredited means a school meets the North Central Association's criteria for quality education.

Messing says the Legislature is discussing legislation that would require all schools to be accredited if they are to receive state aid, but that no bill has been passed yet.

"We're proud of the fact that we're ahead of the game," he said.

Brownell is the only middle school in Grosse Pointes undergoing accreditation procedures.

Both high schools are fully accredited and the elementary schools will begin the accreditation procedure on a rotating basis later this year. The first four elementary schools to apply for accreditation will be Kerby, Maire, Monteith and Trombly.

Kelly, Heenan clarify stances

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

Grosse Pointe Park Mayor Palmer Heenan and state Sen. John Kelly share concerns about the expansion of Detroit City Airport and their reported roles in the controversy.

Heenan took issue recently with Kelly's picture being placed in the Grosse Pointe News story April 12 under the headline: "Park mayor tells airport foes: Look for Crockett replacement."

The story described how Heenan urged those fighting the airport expansion to seek an anti-airport candidate to run for George W. Crockett Jr., who announced his retirement effective in December.

Heenan, a Republican, objected that the juxtaposition of the headline and picture of Kelly made it appear that he (Heenan) was endorsing Kelly. The purpose of Kelly's photo appearing in the story was due to the fact that Kelly is seriously considering a run for Crockett's seat.

"I've backed Democrats for certain things before," Heenan said Monday, "but never, never John Kelly."

So who does the mayor think will be a good U.S. representative for Grosse Pointe Park, City and the rest of the 13th District? Tom Barrow.

Heenan said the two-time Detroit mayoral challenger has the breadth on the issues to make a good representative in Washington, D.C., and besides "he happens to be against airport expansion."

The Park mayor said he talked to Barrow as recently as Monday and Barrow is considering running for Congress. Heenan said Barrow's staff is currently taking polls, testing the waters — even though Mayor Young is telling all comers that "the water's fine."

Meanwhile, Sen. Kelly, in response to a Grosse Pointe News editorial April 12 saying he was ducking the Detroit City Airport issue, said Monday he is taking an active role in whether the airport expands.

Indeed, Kelly has successfully blocked the airport expansion in the past when he prevented a runway from displacing Gethsemane Cemetery. As part of the Gethsemane victory, a judge ordered that the airport cannot proceed with any expanded activity without first filing a master plan and obtaining an environmental impact statement, according to Kelly.

The senator from Grosse Pointe Woods indicated that he owes it to the Gethsemane agreement to allow Detroit to complete the process of filing reports before he takes a formal pro or con stance on the airport.

Kelly warned that taking an uninformed stand could do more harm than good as far as the airport and Mayor Young are concerned.

"I feel very strongly that this is bad, but I don't know that because I haven't seen the master plan," he said. "He (Young) will say, 'He's criticizing it and he doesn't even know what it contains.'"

Kelly believes the best, most informed approach is to have the master plan and environmental impact statement in hand before going up against the city and the Federal Aviation Administration.

"You have to frame your argument properly," Kelly said.

"It's got to be something that's going to work."

Gilpin to begin serving jail time

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

Graham Gilpin, the former Park resident who was sentenced last year to one year in jail for two counts of indecent exposure, finally began serving his sentence last week.

Gilpin, 31, was given the one-year sentence Aug. 2 by Park Municipal Judge Kirsten Frank after guilty pleas were entered on the indecent exposure charges. The two incidents occurred in late November and early December 1988 near Pierce Middle School. Frank sentenced Gilpin to one-year probation for one of the charges and one-year incarceration for the other.

Gilpin's attorney, William E. Buffalino II, appealed the sentences. The appeals failed, and on April 19 Frank ordered Gilpin to begin serving the one-year incarceration, which will be fulfilled at an out-state facility, a court official said.

On June 30 last year, Detroit Recorder's Judge David P. Kerwin found Gilpin guilty of three counts of providing alcohol to minors. He also found Gilpin innocent of providing pornographic material to minors. Kerwin sentenced Gilpin to three years probation on the three charges of giving alcohol to minors.

Kerwin, during the July 31 sentencing, also ordered that Gilpin continue counseling, that he not come in contact with the juvenile witnesses in the case and that he not come in contact with anyone under the age of 18. He was also ordered to perform 150 hours of community service.

Gilpin lived on Beaconsfield in the Park when several youths went to his apartment to hang out and party during the summer of 1988. Gilpin has been living in Riverview since.

Mercedes-Benz remains the embodiment of taste

If you are going to associate with high rollers, then you must be like them — dress like them, talk like them, drive the cars they drive.

So if you are going to the Sotheby's classic car auction in Cleveland, as did many high rollers, what should you drive? A Mercedes-Benz, of course, is always proper.

The world of automotive snobbery is a tricky one. Take Rolls-Royce, for example. This $100,000-plus piece of automotive artistry is OK for the nouveau riche in Britain or for Americans, but the British royal family sticks to Daimlers and high foreign office and military intelligence officials prefer Humbers.

In the United States, the Packard was the choice of American old money before World War II. Duesenbergs, Ruxtons, Pierce-Arrows, Auburns and Cords were for Hollywood stars and the nouveau riche (which in America was very nouveau). Cadillacs and Lincolns were favored by gangsters.

A Rolls-Royce or Mercedes-Benz was OK, but a Packard was always proper. A serious socialite did not want to be caught driving the same car as his liquor purveyor, so he let the liquor purveyor have the more flashy and technologically advanced Cadillac or Lincoln, while he drove a Packard.

Many observers say Packard signed its own death warrant when it introduced the lower-priced Clipper, which made it possible for the cook to drive a Packard. The Grosse Pointe matron who employed said cook was not amused.

Mercedes-Benz has never made such a mistake, not even with the 190 series, which many saw as the Clipper when it was introduced. But it has not worked that way. The 190 was priced high enough and embodied enough Mercedes qualities to keep things on an even, if snobbish, keel.

The Mercedes 300SE was just the right modern selection to take to the Sotheby's auction, one of the few contemporary automobiles that could be driven without apology among the LaSalles and Chryslers of '30s classic-era vintage outside the city's Convention Center, where the auction was held. There were no questions from the parking attendant, just a tip of the cap and a "sir."

The 300SE is a member of the S-series large sedans. Mercedes-Benz model designations can be confusing. There are three model series, the smallest 190 series, the mid-range 300 series and the top-line S series. If a model designation has an S in its name, as does the 300SE, it is an S series model and the 300 refers to its engine, a 3-liter in-line six. If the model has a 300 in it but no S, then it is a 300 series.

A 350SDL Turbo is an S series sedan powered by a 3.5-liter (designated by the 350) diesel (marked by the D). There is also a smaller 300 series turbo-charged diesel sedan, called the 300D 2.5 Turbo.

Mercedes designations may be complicated, but it is not difficult to identify all its cars as Mercedes, no doubt an important factor in its continuing hold on its high-status position.

The older Mercedes-Benz classics on sale inside the auction hall were clearly the same make as the new Mercedes in the parking garage. Styling changes have been very conservative and evolutionary since World War II and Mercedes from the '50s do not look all that different from those of the '90s.

The 1990 Mercedes-Benz 300SE has that traditional look, but under the elegant skin is the latest technology. The 300SE has as standard equipment anti-lock braking, driver-side air bag, anti-theft alarm system, central locking system, power windows, leather upholstery, power seats with two-position memory on the driver's side, headlight washers and wipers, heated windshield washer reservoir, lines and nozzles, heated outside mirrors, automatic climate control and warning lights for various fluid levels, brake pad wear and malfunctions of the anti-lock braking and air-bag systems.

All these goodies cost money, of course, and the base price on the 300SE is $52,950. In addition, you will have to pay Uncle Sam an $850 gas-guzzler tax.

An automobile is more than the sum of its pieces, of course, and the Mercedes buyer is also acquiring the status of the nameplate and a lot of automotive history. The Mercedes-Benz heritage goes right back to the very beginning of the auto industry, when Karl Benz sold the first production automobile in late 1885 or early 1886 Germany.

The next maker to go into production, just weeks later in 1886, was Gottlieb Daimler, who began building cars near Stuttgart, Mercedes-Benz' present headquarters. By 1888, Daimler was talking to American piano maker William Steinway about manufacturing his car under license in the United States. He also helped launch the British Daimler company, which has gone its own way separate from the German firm.

Emil Jelinek, an Austrian businessman who was Austro-Hungarian vice-consul in Nice, France, bought a special Daimler racing car in 1897 and in 1900 joined the Daimler board of directors, where he urged a new approach to auto design. He (Jelinek had a younger daughter named Magda and Daimler built a car called the Magda, but it did not sell well and was dropped.)

In 1926, the Daimler and Benz companies merged and Mercedes became Mercedes-Benz.

Music making

Students from Memorial Nursery in Grosse Pointe were treated to a hands-on instrumental music lesson at Grosse Pointe South High School recently. The students were enthralled (left and right) watching the students under the direction of John Donnellon. They then had a chance to bang the tympany and play the vibes.

Ronald J. Bernas

The beat goes on for Shannon O'Connor. Are her eyes closed because she's got the beat, or to protect herself from the loud crash? Maybe both. At right, Meredith Whims shows band director John Donnellon how to play the triangle. Below, Evan Scott, Kent Kolemammen and Nathan Baker beat the skins.

Michaela Brady doesn't seem too sure about the vibrations she's getting from the vibes.

Visiting author

Author Ann Tompert visited the fifth grade at Maire Elementary School recently and shared her latest book, "Grandfather Tang's Story." Important techniques of quality writing were discussed and Tompert encouraged them to become voracious readers. The students are now writing, illustrating and binding their own stories which will be sent to Tompert, at her request, for critiquing. Tompert was raised on a farm at the corner of Mack and Vernier 70 years ago. She attended St. Paul grade and high school. She currently resides in Port Huron with her husband.

Assumption schedules summer classes

"Celebrate Summer 1990!" at Assumption Nursery School and Toddler Center where music and art, cooking and science, language and storytelling provide activities.

"Our World Around Us" is the theme of three-week units June 18 to August 17, with morning sessions from 9 a.m. to noon. Full-day child care is available 6:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. (Day care only will be extended through Aug. 31.)

The younger set will be grouped according to age: 1 to 2-1/2, 2-1/2 to 3, 4, and 5-6-year-olds, with a qualified teacher in each classroom.

New this year is a youth camp for 7- through 12-year-olds. Units of three weeks each will be offered beginning June 18 through

Aug. 17 (with full-day care offered through Aug. 24). Classes of 7-9-year-olds and 10-12 will choose activities where they can create, discover and experiment — tie-dyeing, papier-mache, wood-working, gourmet cooking, sports, sculpting and weaving.

In theater workshops, aspiring actresses and actors, scriptwriters, and stage crews will have an opportunity to experience first-hand production of a play. They will create costumes, construct and paint scenery, hold on-stage rehearsals, and present a performance at the end of each unit.

Enrichment classes for ages 4 through 12 are also offered. "Intro to Jazz" by Angela Kennedy Dance Studios allows dancers to enjoy lively expression of music and rhythm while developing strength and coordination. "Computer Classes" by Computer Learning Paths provide individualized educational sessions, combining extensive use of microcomputers and teacher-advisers.

"Kindergarten Brush-Up" will be held Aug. 20-24 from 9 to 11 a.m. for children entering kindergarten in the fall. The refresher class helps strengthen skills acquired throughout the preschool years.

Registration for the summer day camp begins April 30. Register now for the fall session which includes programs for toddlers, transitional, preschool, young fives and kindergarten. Openings are limited.

The Assumption Nursery School and Toddler Center is located at 22150 Marter Road in St. Clair Shores. For information, call 772-4477.

Enroll now for kindergarten

Parents with children who will be five years old by Dec. 1, 1990, and who want their children to attend public school in September, should enroll as soon as possible at their neighborhood school.

For parents who want an all-day kindergarten program for their children, a few openings remain at Defer Elementary School.

Tuition for the all-day kindergarten is $1,600 for the 1990-91 school year. The student does not have to live in the Defer school boundaries to attend all-day kindergarten.

All parents of pre-kindergartners should have received information about the Grosse Pointe Public School's kindergarten program. If you have not, call the principal of your local school or the Office of Elementary Curriculum, 389 St. Clair, Grosse Pointe 48230.

Aye, aye, captain

Fifth-grade Richard P.A.C.E. students visited Al Brengman, better known as The Captain of the Captains' restaurants, to get a behind-the-scenes look at the restaurant business. Students toured the kitchen area and had the opportunity to be cooks, each child making his or her own mini-pizza. Here, from left, Jessica Pluhar, Sandra Hammel and Emily Fleury knead their pizza dough.

ren took piano lessons. They all had to start with piano and "from there, I gave them a choice of continuing with piano or going into another cultural program," she said.

Her influence on her children is apparent. Today, ranging in ages from 40 to 27, they are all accomplished individuals for whom music and the performing arts are a way of life.

Anne, who lives in Northville with her husband, three children and two stepchildren, has an undergraduate degree in criminal justice and a master's in social work. She is also a musician who plays guitar and sings with a band.

Julie lives with her husband and five children in New Jersey. She has a degree in biochemistry and is working toward a master's in clinical psychology at New York University. She's also a musician who plays a number of instruments and sings.

John has a master's degree in administration and lives in Grosse Pointe Woods with his wife and four children. He plays clarinet and guitar and was headmaster of the nursery school at the Neighborhood Club for many years.

Gerard, who is married and lives in Harper Woods, is an accountant-bookkeeper. He plays a variety of instruments and is musical conductor and director for Grosse Pointe Theatre.

Therese, who began studying drama, switched to political science. She has worked at the United Nations and now has her own company, U.S. Asia Commercial Development. She and her husband live in Bethesda, Md. She has worked in theater.

Molly, who has a double degree in music performance and music education, was recently accepted into the Chicago Symphony Orchestra chorus. She and her husband live near Chicago with their two children.

Joseph has had "many, many performing groups, plays almost every instrument and composes and arranges music," his mother said. He and his wife both have degrees in chemical engineering and they live near Denver with their two children.

Paul, an insurance broker in Chicago, is working toward a master's degree in world health. He sings and plays a little bit, his mother said, and has done a lot of sports broadcasting.

While Shaheen has maintained an active schedule throughout the years working with various musical groups, including five years with Michigan Opera Theatre, and planning and coordinating fundraisers for Bon Secours, St. John Hospital, the War Memorial and St. Clare of Montefalco, among others, she keeps close ties with her spread-out family.

"Whenever we have free time, we go to see the children," she said.

They are the reason she is holding on to her big house in Grosse Pointe Park, which she said is getting smaller now with 18 grandchildren.

When Shaheen's husband died of cancer 5-1/2 years ago, she took in boarders to keep from being alone.

"I'm not an alone person," she said. "When people talk about retiring in the country, I think it's lovely to visit for an hour or two, but I'm a city gal."

In fact, Shaheen said she would prefer living in a nursing home rather than living alone.

"I want to hear people and see people and hear the rattle of trays," she said. "I love to hear life going on."

Fortunately, Shaheen is not alone. She met her second husband, Ted Zberanowsky, whose wife also died of cancer, through friends at the Scarab Club. They were married 1-1/2 years ago.

Recently retired as executive vice president of Visual Services, Inc., Zberanowsky is an artist who did the mechanical doll display in J.L. Hudson's window downtown every year. This past Christmas, he made a gingerbread house for outside their Park home.

Zberanowsky, who had no children from his first marriage, is enjoying his new large family, Shaheen said. This summer, they are taking their two oldest grandchildren, ages 12 and 13, on a trip to Canada — to Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal. "I want to get them before they have other fish to fry," she said.

Since her husband has retired, Shaheen said she is slowing down her activities. "I think I'm cutting back, but nobody believes it," she said.

"I want to have more time with my grandchildren."

She also cares for her 94-year-old mother on alternate weekends, sharing the care with her sister.

Some of the groups Shaheen has been or is involved with include the Grosse Pointe Community Chorus where she has been a member for more than 30 years; the Grosse Pointe Chamber Singers for 10 years; Accent 70, a show chorus, for 10 years; Grosse Pointe Theatre, where she does musical and vocal directing, 22 years; Kaleidoscopes I, II and III at St. Clare Church, nine years; Tuesday Musicale; Judelaires, director for nine years, where she is ending her tenure with the annual show this weekend, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, April 27-29. (For information on the Judelaires show, call Bev Kummer at 824-0644.)

Shaheen is also a member of the Volunteer Council of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, Grosse Pointe Symphony Society, Grosse Pointe Symphony Women's Association, Friends of Orchestra Hall and Pro Musica.

And she volunteers one day a week at Bon Secours Hospital's front desk. She also coordinates the hospital's Christmas shows and annual party for volunteers.

Shaheen loves to entertain. "My kids call me a party animal," she said. "I love opening my home, I love hosting, meeting people, planning parties."

And she is a wedding consultant. She will plan and coordinate an entire wedding or arrange for the music. "Last year, every couple of weeks, there was a wedding (to do)," she said.

Concert to benefit choir

Bringing a 9-foot Steinway and providing additional musicians at his own expense, local pianist Michael A. Shaieb will give a benefit concert on Saturday, May 5, at 7 p.m. at the Community Performing Arts Center at Grosse Pointe North High School.

The concert receipts and donations will go into the Herman Clein Fund which has helped many choral students since it was initiated in memory of the former North choir director who died in 1981.

In recent years the fund has been depleted. With Shaieb's help, the fund will again become viable.

Although he is not a North graduate, when he heard about the choir trip and the need to help the fund, he offered to put on the concert. Production costs are sponsored in part by Whitlam Label.

Shaieb has been playing the piano for 22 of his 28 years, performing throughout the Detroit area. He has studied with concert pianist and Grosse Pointer

Ruth Burczyk. In addition to his talent at the piano, he is a composer and conductor. He will perform one of his own compositions, as yet untitled, at the concert.

In addition to his own piece, Shaieb will perform three Scarlatti sonatas, Beethoven's "Apostrophe Sonata," three movements from Ravel's "Le Tombeau de Couperin" and three movements from Claude Bolling's "Suite for Flute and Jazz Piano II." Joining Shaieb will be flutist Celeste Cordonnier, Al Fields on bass and Jim Miller on percussion.

Tickets at $5 each may be purchased at the door. Senior citizens with Gold Cards can receive their complimentary tickets from Marge Nixon by calling 343-2191.

Anyone wishing to donate to the Herman Clein Fund may send a check to Grosse Pointe North Choirs (specify Herman Clein Fund), 707 Vernier Road, Grosse Pointe Woods, Mich. 48236.

The South Symphonic Band will follow with Sousa's George Washington Bicentennial March, the Roman Carnival Overture by Berlioz, and Grieg's Piano Concerto in A Minor, featuring Amy the Nobles and the Overture to Candide by Leonard Bernstein.

Stephens on piano. Stephens, a senior, performed concertos with the Troy and Rochester Symphony Orchestras last year and plans to major in piano performance in college.

City of Grosse Pointe Farms Michigan
NOTICE OF HEARING ZONING BOARD OF APPEALS
NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT that Zoning Board of Appeals will meet in City Hall, 90 Kerby Road, Grosse Pointe Farms, MI on:
MONDAY, MAY 7, 1990
at 7:00 p.m. to hear the following:

- The appeal of Dr. & Mrs. L. Andary, owners of the premises located at 8 Windward Place, from the denial of the Building Department to issue a building permit to allow the construction of a paved driveway in the front open space of their property. Section 1400, Item 6 of the Zoning Ordinance states that any paved drive located in the front yard for any residential lot shall not exceed 30% in coverage of the required front yard. The proposed drive as shown on the plan indicates a driveway coverage of approximately 38%, thereby requiring a variance.
- The appeal of Dr. Francis Shea, owner of the premises located at 17 Rose Terrace, from the denial of the Building Department to issue a building permit for the construction of an addition to the rear of his existing dwelling located at the foregoing address. Such permit issuance was denied for reason that:
  - The residence located on the foregoing premises is non-conforming for reason that it is in violation of the rear, side and front yard provisions of Article XIII, Section 1300 of the City's Zoning Ordinance, and in accordance with the provisions of Article XV, Section 1502, Item 4-A of the City's Zoning Ordinance, no such structure may be enlarged or structurally altered unless a variance is granted.
  - The proposed addition of the rear would further infringe upon the minimum rear yard requirements of 40 feet leaving a rear yard of 30 feet thereby requiring a variance from the provisions of Article XIII Section 1300 of the City's Zoning Ordinance.

The Hearings will be public. Interested property owners or residents of the City are invited to attend.

'Impulse': Cop flick provides two hours non-taxing entertainment

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

"Impulse" is a gritty crime thriller which stands out because of Theresa Russell who plays the part of Lottie Mason, a Hollywood undercover cop who works face gives her a tough-on-the-outside, tough-on-the-inside aura. Beside working the streets, she is also called upon to bust drug users and dealers and is often used in major cases involving drug lords, all of which she handles with a cool indifference to the danger involved.

Lottie has personal problems, however. She has been forced by her department to see a psychiatrist because she has a tendency to shoot too fast and refuses to face up to the emotional consequences. She keeps the appointments but refuses to cooperate, admitting only that "sometimes vice excites me. I wonder what it would be like to lose control."

Another problem is Morgan (George Dzundza), her superior officer. At one time she was in-involved with him. He wants to continue the relationship. She doesn't. From then on, the most dangerous assignments are reserved for her.

It is not surprising that when a tip comes in that will lead to a key witness who can sew up a drug war case and lead to the man at the top, Lottie is chosen to set him up.

Working on the same case is a handsome prosecutor, Stan Harris (Jeff Fahey), who falls in love with Lottie. At first she resists but he persists and she goes to his apartment. The love scene that follows is both intense and exotic. It is close to being surrealistic and a cinematic plus for both Russell and director Sandra Locke, the veteran actress who is Clint Eastwood's former on-screen and off-screen love inter-

Unlike "Blue Steel," a previous police thriller centered on a female cop, "Impulse" focuses more on dialogue than gunplay. There is less violence but no less suspense. Russell gives a strong performance as the cool, hard-edged cop, who makes good use of her magnetic sexual attraction on the job.

George Dzundza gives a good performance as the chauvinistic, mean police department head who isn't above skimming a little off the drug raid cash. Jeff Harris fits the part of the handsome former all-American prosecutor who is determined to bring down the drug lord and to win the love and trust of Lottie.

"Impulse" is a good "B" movie which accomplishes what it sets out to do — provide two hours of non-taxing entertainment.

as a police decoy walking the streets with the hookers.

Our first view of her is a rear one, as she walks the rain-soaked pavements swinging her hips encased in an eye-catching metallic tight-fitting skirt, the street lights bouncing off every seductive movement. We dismiss her as part of the background, a street girl plying her trade.

A car stops. Money is exchanged. She invited him to her room. Waiting to greet him at the doorway are a pair of vice squad officers. It is then that we discover that she is a female cop. It's not difficult to figure out why she rates her assignment with her enviable body, swinging blond hair and sexy good looks.

Looks are not all that Lottie brings to her job. Her immobile

'First Power': Redundant, stale

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

In case you were wondering, "The First Power" is not the power of resurrection.

The movie of the same name is about a follower of Satan who has been granted this power. In other words, he can kill and be an all-around general nuisance to society, and there's nothing society in general or one cop in particular can do about it. And that includes giving the bad guy the death penalty.

Now you know practically all there is to know about "Power."

What's that? You want to know more? Well, OK. But don't say we didn't warn you. "Power" is a bloody, violent, loud, obnoxious and deeply disturbing film rooted in the premise that the Ultimate Evil would be awfully difficult for the police to control.

There is, perhaps, some merit to the idea, if nothing else.

But the picture is insulting to actors and viewers. The actors are asked to do little more than run around dark locations either thinking they're going crazy (the good guys) or threatening to kill more innocent people (the bad guy). Dialogue is weak, pacing is slow, routines are redundant.

The audience, meanwhile, is asked to sit still through all this. How many times can we be on the edge of our seats in a suspense-induced frenzy just because the main character is walking through a dark warehouse? This is a routine that works once, and that's when it's done in good films. It does not work here.

Also, how can we care about the people here? Lou Diamond Phillips of "La Bamba" is the cop. He's only a marginally-talented actor to begin with. Here, he's about as dry as they come. No sense of humor, no personality. Nothing but a single-minded obsession to stop the killer.

This picture is an affront to anyone with any religious beliefs at all. It makes a mockery of the church, the cross, the priesthood, the sisterhood, and a handful of other things inappropriate to mention in this space. One wonders why the people who get up in arms about true works of art like "The Last Temptation of Christ" — which was not in any way offensive — don't protest pictures like this instead. If anything is a personal assault on Christianity, it is a film like "The First Power."

Still, many viewers aren't bothered by such things. Fair enough. For those who are simply trying to decide what movie to go see one night this week, here's what you'll get in "Power": lots of violence and swearing, a plot that is borrowed from a half dozen or so other films, uninspired acting and a host of redundancies.

If that's what you're looking for, enjoy.

'Coda,' jazz comedy, next at Attic

The Attic Theatre will present the world premiere production of Detroit Bill Harris' play, "Coda," a comedy with jazz, opening Friday, April 27, and running through May 20.

"Coda" is set in Detroit, at Spoon's Lounge, shortly after the death of the great bebop saxophonist, Charles Parker. The play is about a black family's tie and the changes within the family and the music world of the '50s.

The cast includes Von Washington as Maddox, a saxophone player returning to his Detroit home after three years in jail; Booker Hinton as Weatherspoon, his friend of many years and owner of Spoon's Lounge, where all the action takes place; Wayne David Parker as Royst, a former musician, now a kid's television show host; and Judith Milner as Theresa, Maddox's 20-year-old headstrong daughter, also a musician.

The play is directed by Woodie King Jr., and Thomas "Beans" Bowles is the musical arranger.

"Coda," about the end of the bebop era in music, was commissioned through a Rockefeller Foundation grant by the Attic Theatre's artistic director, Lavinia Moyer, whose interest in Detroit jazz was stimulated by the Attic production of "Ma Rainey's Black Bottom."

Additional funding for "Coda" has come from the Arts Foundation of Michigan, the Community Foundation for Southeastern Michigan, the Detroit Council of the Arts, the Kaufman Memorial Trust, the Michigan Council for the Arts, and the Michigan Council for the Humanities.

Performance days and times are Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays at 8 p.m.; Saturdays at 5 and 9 p.m.; Sundays at 2:30 and 7 p.m.

Tickets range from $10 to $20 and can be charged to Visa or MasterCard by calling the Attic box office at 875-8284.

The Lyric Chamber Ensemble will present a Mozart Jubilee concert at Orchestra Hall, 3711 Woodward Avenue, Sunday, April 29, at 3:30 p.m. The all-Mozart program features the LCE Camerata Orchestra and soloists under the baton of Felix Resnick.

The program includes Mozart's "Concerto in C for Flute and Harp" with DSO flutist Shaul Ben-Meir and guest harpist Kerstin Allvin; the "Sinfonia Concertante in E Flat for Violin and Viola" with the DSO's Principal Second Violinist Geoffrey Applegate and Assistant Principal Violist James Van Valkenburg; and the "Concerto in E Flat for Two Pianos" with pianists Fedora Horowitz and Joseph Gurt.

Ticket prices are $20, $15 and $12. There are special discounts for students and seniors. To order tickets or for more information, call the Lyric Chamber Ensemble office at 357-1111.

Attic to present Detroit jazz reunion

The Attic Theatre will present a Monday night series of historic jazz concerts, during the run of "Coda." These concerts reunite Detroit legends who have gone on to worldwide recognition, with the cream of Detroit's local talent.

The concerts will take place on the Monday nights of April 30, May 7 and May 14 at 8:30 p.m. at the Attic Theatre.

The first pair of concerts will feature artists whose recording and performance histories read like a "Who's Who" of jazz greats. They include tenor saxophonist Billy Mitchell, who has played with Thad Jones, Milt Jackson and The Count Basie Orchestra; pianist Hugh Lawson, who has performed with Sonny Rollins, Dexter Gordon and Yusuf Lateef; trombonist Curtis Fuller, who has worked with John Coltrane, Miles Davis and Lester Young.

The third concert is an original production co-written and performed by Miche Braden and Harold McKinney entitled "Jazz is" encapsulating the history of jazz.

The schedule is:

- Monday, April 30: Tenor saxophonist Billy Mitchell and pianist Hugh Lawson will be joined by "drummer" Roy Brooks and bassist Ralph Armstrong.

- Monday, May 7: Trombonist Curtis Fuller and pianist Kirk Lightsey will be joined by drummer Bobby Battle and bassist Ralph Armstrong.

- Monday, May 14: Vocal stylist Miche Braden joins pianist Harold McKinney along with bassist Ray McKinney and drummer GayleLynn McKinney in "Jazz is," followed by a jam session with some of Detroit's finest musicians.

Tickets are $20 for the April 30 and May 7 concerts and $12 for the May 14 concert. They may be charged to Visa or MasterCard by calling the box office at 875-8284.

Almost nothing is impossible for Ritz's head concierge

By Pat Paholsky
Editor

There's a Japanese goldfish fondly named Mr. Honda in Kip Edwards' office in the Ritz-Carlton in Dearborn. It's a living symbol of the myriad duties that Edwards routinely performs in his position as head concierge.

When the owner of Honda Motor Co. and his wife were coming to Detroit last year, Edwards wanted to do something special for the couple. Since they were bringing their own chef, researching and providing their favorite foods was out of the question.

Edwards and his staff decided to place a beautiful bowl stocked with two Japanese goldfish in the couple's room. "We were so proud of ourselves," Edwards said.

And rightly so. "Mr. and Mrs. Honda loved the fish so much," he said.

The only problem was they fed the fish, their secretary fed them, Edwards' staff fed them and other hotel employees would feed them.

"They practically exploded, they were floating on top of the bowl," Edwards said. So while the Hondas were out at an awards ceremony, Edwards arranged for more fish.

"The next day the same thing happened," he said, "and we had to go and replace them. We finally had to send out a memo, now known as the fish memo, instructing everyone not to feed the fish."

It's all in a day's work for Edwards whose official title is chef concierge. The Grosse Pointe City resident oversees a staff of 10 at the Ritz-Carlton.

While hotels in the United States have only recently established the position of concierge, it has been a mainstay of European hotels for centuries. Les Cles D'or, the international organization of concierges, has actively promoted the concept in this country and business travelers have been quick to recognize the advantages, Edwards said. "We save them more money than a secretary," he said. "We can get them a cheaper car, tickets for sold-out shows, last-minute dining reservations."

The concierge can also arrange for clerical services or a translator at 10 p.m., he said.

"Each day is so different," he said, "from arranging for a helicopter to land at the hotel and take a guest to Ann Arbor to changing a reservation to personally greeting a guest at the airport to handling Federal Expresses or faxes to repairing their luggage or shoes to purchasing a wedding gift."

One guest requested a copy of the London Times for each day of his three-day stay. Edwards arranged, through his English contacts, for a copy to be flown in from London on a Concorde to New York, then flown to Detroit where it was picked up at the airport each morning by a hotel employee.

While some requests might appear to be impossible, Edwards said he likes to be challenged. "You can accomplish almost anything. You commit yourself and say 'no problem' and it requires you to be resourceful."

And when Edwards does the impossible, he said it's very fulfilling. "Every day I come to the hotel — I've been there 1-1/2 years — and I get so excited," he said. "I have never had a day I didn't want to go to work."

A concierge must have a vast network of resources. "You know every restaurant and every manager," he said. "And recognition of key people in the city is important."

A concierge is the liaison in the hotel and must understand the front desk, food and beverage, housekeeping and the community, he said. "It's like a mini-general manager in many ways. There are no parameters we're bound by."

Edwards keeps a file of information gleaned from publications about celebrities, so that when one is staying at the hotel, he doesn't have much research to do.

"When I get someone like Cher or Janet Jackson, I'm not intimidated or ill at ease," he said. "I try to be as natural as possible."

"As you take care of more VIPs, you realize they are just ordinary human beings, except they are heavily scheduled. They want someone to anticipate and they don't want to be interrupted. It becomes second nature."

Before Edwards came to the Ritz-Carlton, he was a concierge and also a private butler at the Boca Raton Hotel and Club in Florida. For an extra $400 a day, he served as a private butler on call 24 hours. For periods of two days to three weeks, he worked for people like Elizabeth Taylor, Barbra Streisand, Robin Leach, Bob Hope and Alexander Haig.

Edwards said he hasn't encountered any difficult or temperamental celebrities. "When they sense you're nervous, that makes them uncomfortable. What I try to do is give them a more friendly approach."

The general manager at the Ritz-Carlton has a saying, Edwards said, that elegance without warmth is always perceived as arrogance. "That's so true. You can do all the mechanical requirements, and without warmth, they're going to look at it as being snooty."

"You have to be not intimidating, especially in intimidating surroundings like the Ritz-Carl-ton," he said. "We really try to over-compensate. We are ladies and gentlemen serving ladies and gentlemen. We are not servants; we are perceived as professionals."

And how does a hotel guest compensate a concierge for duties either above and beyond or just routine? Edwards is not specific.

Regarding tipping, Edwards said: "Only if you feel the service merits it or warrants it."

Edwards said he gets Christmas cards from guests. "Writers give me books and performers will give me and my staff concert tickets," he said.

Edwards, who grew up in Grosse Pointe, attended De La Salle High School. He went to Michigan State University where he studied landscape architecture. When his parents became ill, he left school to care for them, and during that time, began working at various hotels.

"I decided I really liked it," he said.

At the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island, he worked at a variety of positions — front desk, night audit, bell captain, room service captain, accounts payable, wine steward, social host. It was there that Edwards, whose given name is Robert, came by his nickname of Kip. His co-workers pinned the name on him because of his affinity for kipped eggs.

He worked at the Pontchartrain and the Omni and when his mother was able to care for herself, he moved to Palm Beach and got a job at the Boca Raton Hotel.

After a month of working in room service, Edwards said he was asked if he would like to be a private butler for special guests.

He began his butlering career for Robert Van Kampen, the owner of the hotel and 68 others, and his family. For three weeks, Edwards decided the family's menus, concentrating on health foods, and arranged for private teas and other amenities. He would place a sea shell on the children's pillows at night with a history of the shell and a piece of chocolate with it.

"This wasn't a typical family," Edwards said. "They took a liking to my services and we became friends."

Edwards was then established as an in-house butler for VIPs.

"I never moved out of the hotel," he said. "They moved me to a two-room villa."

It was then that the position of concierge was established at the hotel and Edwards became head concierge. He was there for two years.

In 1987, the Ritz-Carlton called him and offered him the position of chef concierge. Edwards said, "I was so happy, I almost jumped through the phone."

"I wanted to come back. All of my friends are here. This is my city, my town."

Concierge Editor honored by Wayne

Edwards established the Michigan Concierge Association last year which has set guidelines and training and serves as a networking group as well.

Edwards, who wears a tuxedo on the job, has six. He works 60 to 70 hours a week and part of his job is dining anonymously at the restaurants he recommends to guests.

He also travels extensively for the Ritz-Carlton, which has 13 hotels in the United States. He was in Laguna Nigel, Calif., last year coordinating 40 butlers for a fundraiser. In June he'll be at the Ritz-Carlton in Rancho Mirage in California coordinating another function.

In his spare time, Edwards is involved with the Players Club. He also enjoys boating and gardening, "a lot of gardening." His interest from his days at Michigan State when he was studying landscape architecture has never waned.

"I have a knack for it," he said. "I'm a naturalist. I like to do English gardens."

And although he no longer plays regularly, Edwards is a violinist who traveled to Europe every summer from 1978 to 1983 through Interlochen.

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

Grosse Pointe News Editor Pat Paholsky was ranked by her alma mater with the likes of several successful journalists from Detroit's major media.

Paholsky, who has headed the editorial department since 1984, was named Outstanding Journalism Alumni at the Journalism Day luncheon April 20 sponsored by the Wayne State University Journalism Program.

Paholsky graduated from WSU in 1979. Prior to Wayne, she graduated from Macomb Community College. Because of her top academic performance at Macomb, she was granted a full merit scholarship to Wayne.

Before coming to the Grosse Pointe News, Paholsky was editor of The Review in Richmond and editor of the Courier-Journal in Algonac. She also served a journalism internship at The Detroit News and worked on the Wayne State and Macomb student newspapers.

According to WSU journalism area head and assistant professor Richard Wright, who also is the "Autos" columnist for the Grosse Pointe News, Paholsky is the fourth recipient of the Outstanding Journalism Alumni Award since it was started by the journalism school. Outstanding alumni are chosen by their career as a student, their success in their professional career and their continuing activity as alumni.

Wright said Paholsky exemplifies the many students at Wayne who attend the school later and then embark on a new career. He said the older students typically do well in college and afterward. He termed Paholsky's career and editorship of the Grosse Pointe News as "more successful than many."

Previous Outstanding Journalism Alumni included Louis Mleczko of The Detroit News, a Grosse Pointe resident, and Michael Pyle of the Associated Press.

Also at the Journalism Day luncheon, the George F. Pierrrot Award for outstanding contributions to journalism was posthumously granted to Brian Flanigan, of the Detroit Free Press.

Flanigan, a Grosse Pointe resident, died Oct. 15 at the age of 43. He had just completed working as part of a team on an investigative story on cocaine abuse called "24 Hours: The Drug Menace."

The featured speaker at the luncheon was Ben Burns, editor and publisher of the Macomb Daily, Royal Oak Daily Tribune and Suburban Sunday, all Adams Communications papers. Burns is a Grosse Pointer.

During Paholsky's leadership at the Grosse Pointe News, the editorial department has received a dozen awards, including the prestigious Community Service Award from the Suburban Newspaper Association for the series "Alcohol & Adolescents." The series also received top recognition from the Michigan Press Association.

Action Auction is better than ever

By Nancy Parmenter
Staff Writer

The halls and storerooms are crowded with mysteriously draped shapes, fragile glass and china swathed in bubble plastic, sturdier pieces hiding under dust covers. Oriental rugs are stacked, furs hang under cover, art works in gilt frames line the walls.

Outside, piles of dirt and plywood scraps clutter the site of a playhouse in a still unformed state.

That's now.

In two weeks, order and glamor will prevail, as the Grosse Pointe Academy's 23rd Action Auction, that mecca of good taste and fabulous finds, opens its doors to hordes of upscale buyers eager to snap up the unusual and part with dollars to support a good cause.

Last year, the auction raised half a million dollars for the school's operating budget and scholarships and to assist with preservation of the school property, which is a registered state and national landmark.

Grosse Pointe Academy is a pioneer in individualized education and was recognized nationally as an Exemplary School in 1988.

But the Action Auction is a whole lot more than a way to support a good school. It's fun, good food, and a sure source of unusual experiences, vacation spots and home decor that aren't even on the market yet.

Where else can you buy a congressional internship or china

Painted with a jaguar motif? Or a river ride in an offshore racer?

"The word is out that this is a good opportunity to show upscale merchandise," said auction co-chair Kathryn Kaiser, explaining why the auction attracts such unusual and fine donations.

"We're very fortunate in being the largest and most successful auction in the country. People want to be associated with us. We give our donors a huge amount of publicity."

General chairs of the event are Kaiser and her husband, Joseph P. Kaiser IV, and Michelle and Maurice M. Taylor Jr. Honorary chairs are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Meade.

The auction has been growing each year. Some years ago, it got so big that a preview night was started. Two years ago, the silent part of the auction was computerized. Now bidders watch big screens overhead to see how they fare in the bidding.

Note: In order for bidder numbers to be entered in the computer, people must respond to the Wednesday Preview Spectacular as they respond to the Saturday Action Auction itself. This is the first year the preview's silent auction will be computerized.

"The preview this year is much more important than it's ever been," Kaiser said. That's because there is even more great stuff to buy than ever before.

A stroll through the "warehouse" in the upstairs halls of the Academy reveals oil paintings, Madame Alexander dolls, a menagerie of giant stuffed animals. A Venetian mirror with a ribbon-and-bow mirrored frame. Human-sized bunnies hand-painted on a wooden bench. Oriental rugs, a banner year for china dinnerware, Gucci luggage, jewelry.

"We all fall in love with things every year," Kaiser said.

The Action Auction has a discerning and demanding audience, which accounts for the variety of unusual purchase possibilities.

"We have a large group of upscale bidders who know quality," she said. "We try to get things they haven't seen yet — they wouldn't come if we didn't offer the best."

This year the best includes:

A Judith Lieber jeweled "egg" handbag colored like a spring flower garden. Donated by Saks Fifth Avenue in Troy, it's valued at $3,100.

A Detroit River test ride in racer Don Johnson's TEAM USA offshore Superboat — with Johnson at the helm.

A masterpiece of elegant furniture reproduction by Kindel Furniture. A 1760 desk from Delaware's Winterthur Museum is meticulously reproduced in mahogany, poplar and sycamore, with all its tiny drawers and compartments. Donor value: $20,000.

A week for 10 at a castle in Italy, standing on 2,000 acres of wildlife refuge and olive groves. Spannocchia has its own archaeological laboratory and Etruscan museum. Donated by Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Cinelli, the catalogue lists this value as "bellissimo."

If cars are more in your line, there's a Lexus from Lexus of Lakeside or a 1960 Ford Thunderbird convertible from Mr. and Mrs. Maurice M. Taylor Jr. Both automobiles are worth about $22,000.

Perhaps you know a little girl who'd dream in an architect-designed Victorian playhouse with a fireplace and skylight and wrap-around porch. Contributed entirely by Academy families, the gabled house was designed by Hal Messacar and built and finished by John Olson and Mark Millich, the Steinke Painting Co. and supported by the Academy Alumni Association. The value on this one: "Fantasy

Kathryn Kaiser, one of the general chairmen of Grosse Pointe Academy's 23rd annual Action Auction, poses with Academy headmaster Sidney I. DuPont in front of a playhouse which is under construction. The diminutive neo-Victorian fantasy will be auctioned at the Academy's annual fundraiser on May 12.

Fulfilled."

A state of the art kitchen has been donated by a long list of contractors, with Richard E. Russell as the general contractor. The kitchen begins at the beginning, with a new oak floor, then adds cabinets from Mutschler, Wilsonart counter tops, new sink and appliances. The package includes painting, installation and electrical work and is worth $20,000.

The Preview Auction Spectacular is Wednesday, May 9. The computerized silent auction starts at 6 p.m., with the live auction at 8:15 p.m.

Action Auction follows on Saturday, May 12, with the computerized silent auction beginning at 4:30 in the afternoon and the live auction at 7:15 p.m.

There will be a buffet at both events. Optional dinner and dancing at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club follows the Saturday auctions.

For further information, call the Action Auction office at 886-1802.

Kathryn Kaiser holds a replica of Don Johnson's 48-foot offshore Superboat. A test ride on the Detroit River with THE Don Johnson, in his boat, on Aug. 2 or 3, is one of the hiddable items which will be offered at the Grosse Pointe Academy's 23rd annual Action Auction.

The secret to youthful old age: Remain active, involved

The young glory in their youth — confident, vigorous, filled with enthusiasm. They look forward to each day as an opportunity to make all their hopes and dreams come true. The middle-aged, mellowed by experience, have a more realistic view. They know that along the way to personal achievement, choices must be made, alternatives accepted and goals reassessed. Some arrive at this point content with their accomplishments. Others lament and look back with regret on the road not taken and what might have been.

Alice Longworth said, "There's one advantage to middle age; you outgrow it."

Older people who have passed through that stage know that this is true. Middle age, like adolescence, is a trying time — a sort of limbo when one is neither young nor old, when children leave home but still expect Dad and Mom to stand by.

Then come the golden years, a time when the burden of making it in the world of work is over. The responsibility of taking care of a family is finished. Keeping up socially is a matter of choice. It's a time when regardless of your financial or social status, you are finally free to do what you want to when you want to do it. Each day is a gift, not a demand designed to wear you out accomplishing what is expected.

Like all gifts, the gift of time must be used to fully enjoy it. It is important to keep active doing things you enjoy. Don't use the excuse of being too old for activity.

You can be old in years without being old in spirit. Keep those fires of youth burning by firing them with new and old interests. Being interested and interesting is the secret of youthful old age.

Some older people work hard at creating an illusion of youth. Unfortunately they go about it in the wrong way. They demean the image of being older by deceiving people about their age. If you are investing an enormous amount of emotional interest in the trappings of youth, then you are putting your self-esteem as a person of worth on the line. The result is often unconscious self-rejection. Self-acceptance is the key to aging happily and that means accepting oneself at any age.

One psychoanalyst put it this way: "I find it very sad when a man or woman refuses to admit his or her age. It is proof that they have been caught in a need to satisfy superficial vanity. To cling compulsively to youth is a vicious cycle. The more time and energy people spend trying to stay young, the older they be-

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

come. A person dedicated to looking young to the exclusion of real interests in life is old indeed."

Another author said: "My observation is that men in great power love work and as long as they are fulfilled, their minds drag their bodies along. Hard work stimulates them."

Oddly enough, as people get older, according to experts, their appreciation of humor broadens. They are able to laugh at more things that would have troubled them in earlier years.

One of the great joys of growing older is being able to look back on sensitive areas that were hurtful to see the fun as well as the hurt. When you grow older, you come to grips with life and you realize there's precious little that you haven't experienced and that there is much less in life that is going to hurt you.

Interests, whether work, hobbies, or volunteering, plus a sense of humor, are important in keeping alive a youthful spirit.

It is difficult for some people to slow down. All of their lives they were programmed to equal or surpass. Now they are told to adjust their lives to a slower pace. But when you stop to consider it, competition is a two-edged sword. It is fun to win but there is always the need for a repeat performance. There are advantages to age and the opportunity to get off the superhighways of life and wander the slower, more scenic and delightful roads of pressure-free living.

One final thought, one that is endorsed by general psychological principles: It is not advisable to spend too much time examining ourselves. It is more in our best interests to remain essentially involved with others and to lose ourselves in the activities we share with them.

Easter sharing

Volunteers with Services for Older Citizens gather to deliver 50 meals to shut-ins on Easter Sunday. Continuing a tradition begun during the Christmas season, volunteers delivered ham dinners and a holiday visit to residents who had no other means of getting a holiday meal. SOC participates in the Detroit Meals on Wheels program. Pictured are Dana Locniskar, Diane Heavner, Helen Salbert, George Salbert, Ann Kraemer and Rosemary Touscany.

ST-"ART" TIPS

LIGHT AND BASIC FORM

By using the basic shapes in drawing and painting, a few rules apply when combining light and shadow. Light from any source travels in a straight line. Only a flat plane can be evenly lighted such as the planes on a cube or the pyramid. The sphere or the cylinder, for example, are lighted only in graduated tones.

BASIC SHAPES

The cube, the cone, the cylinder and the sphere are the basic shapes found in nature. Any subject matter, figure or flower, can be simplified into one of these basic shapes, or a combination of them, and can help your understanding of how to construct your drawing of them.

Celebrate life with the Michigan Cancer Foundation May 19

A celebration of life is what's being planned for May 19 to raise money for the Michigan Cancer Foundation. Funnyman Jerry Lewis will be on hand along with The Johnny Trudell Orchestra to provide the entertainment.

Six Grosse Pointers were named corporate co-chairs for this eighth annual event. They are Randy and Judy Agley, Charles and Margaret Fisher, and Dean and Barbara Richardson — all residents of Grosse Pointe Farms.

Another Grosse Pointer, Mort Crim, will serve as master of ceremonies, a role he has assumed for nearly all the dinner's eight years. Grosse Pointer Dale Austin will give the invocation.

More than 1,600 people are expected to attend, raising hundreds of thousands of dollars for MCF's programs in cancer research and patient programs. Patron tickets, which include a May 17 "Pre-Gala" event at the Birmingham home of honorary chairmen Paul and Marlene Borman are $300. Sponsor tickets are $150.

For more information, call Lizz Mitchell or Jackie Sunday at the Michigan Cancer Foundation at 833-0710 during business hours.

For the shot-and-a-beer crowd who also want to lend their support to the foundation, there is the MCF's Fourth Annual Bowling Tournament on April 29.

A grand prize of up to $4,000 is offered, along with other prizes of merchandise, cash, and gift certificates. Every finalist will receive a prize.

Bowling begins April 29 at Plum Hollow Lanes in Southfield with final roll-off June 8 at Sterling Lanes in Sterling Heights. Other locations include Merri-Bowl Lanes in Livonia, Frontier Lanes in Mount Clemens and Bonanza/Bronco Lanes in Warren.

Bowling champion Mary Mohaci is serving as event chairman for the third year. More than 600 bowlers participated in last year's tourney and Mohaci says they're expecting more than 800 this year.

For official entry blanks, call the foundation at the above number. The entry fee of $25 includes a sandwich and a soft drink.

Starstruck: Carmen Miranda, Groucho Marx, Charlie Chaplin and Mae West showed up at the Roostertail March 31, to show their support for Our Lady Star of the Sea.

They mingled with Grosse Pointers, including Robbie Burke, who co-chaired this year's auction/fundraiser, "Starstruck 1990."

More than 350 guests wined and dined their way through the evening of elegance and charm, and rubbed elbows with celebrities, who looked an awful lot like Our Lady Star of the Sea staff members in costume.

Pizza and pottery: Chef Carl Oshinsky will transform Pewabic Pottery's kiln room into Cafe Pizza Gourmet, turning a century-old kiln into a state-of-the-art gas-fired pizza oven, creating "edible works of art."

This annual spring party is the primary fundraising event that helps to maintain the historic pottery and support its education program and museum. Founded in 1902, Pewabic remains the oldest art pottery in continuous operation in the nation.

Pizza at the pottery is scheduled at 5:30 to 9 p.m. on May 16, at Pewabic Pottery located at 10125 East Jefferson. Call Garce Serra at Pewabic at 822-0954 for information.

A Broadway wish: is what the Variety Club brings to its annual Celebrity Ball May 5. The club started way back in 1928 when 11 show people "adopted" a baby girl abandoned in a theater. Now Variety Clubs International is the largest non-profit organization devoted to helping needy kids.

"Broadway Salutes Variety" is the theme for this year's black-tie gala, so it's fitting that Tony Award-winners Adolph Green and Betty Comden and "Phantom" star Katherine Buffaloe will provide the entertainment. The celebration will also honor several people for their continuing support of children's causes:

Along with the Pistons' Chuck Daly and WOMC's Tom Ryan, honorees include our own Frank Newman and former Grosse Pointer David Lawrence.

Newman will receive Variety's Humanitarian Award for the Wish Grant program organized by his company, F&M Distributors. Initially funded by a grant from the Randolph and Judith Agley Foundation and in conjunction with the Make-A-Wish Foundation of Michigan, the program provides for the fulfillment of up to 13 wishes a year for terminally ill children in each of the communities where the company has stores.

Proceeds from the $175 per person ticket will benefit the Variety Club Cardiology Center at Children's Hospital, the Variety Club Myoelectric Center and other children's charities in the area. Call 855-6440 for info.

Fiesta: The Casa Maria Fiesta auction and dinner dance bids fair to be a pinata of fun for supporters of the multi-ethnic programs for the city dwellers in the neighborhood around Tiger Stadium. The gala party will take place at the Riverfront Ballroom of the Westin Hotel on Saturday, May 5. Cocktails and silent auction at 6 p.m. followed by dinner, live auction, cash bar, mariachis and dancing to the Grupo Azteca Orchestra. Tickets are $80 per person. Honorary Chair is Mrs. Emmett Tracy.

Benefit for Wolverine

Services: TV celebrities and local politicians will be guest models and hosts for Wolverine Human Services' first "Capture the Elegance" fashion show. Besides fashions, the evening promises celebrity models, splashy dance numbers, the latest fashions, hors d'oeuvres and displays by local businesses.

Wolverine is an independent non-profit Michigan corporation offering residential and aftercare treatment for more than 200 adolescent boys and their families. Among its programs are two residential facilities (one at 1200 Alter Road, behind St. Ambrose Church), a work and learn camp, an emergency diagnostic and psychiatric respite shelter and a series of aftercare programs designed to bridge the gap between institutional living and living on one's own.

The fundraiser will be Thursday, May 3, at Days Hotel/Southfield Convention Center in Southfield. Cash bar and hors d'oeuvres begin at 6 p.m.; the show begins at 7 p.m.

Among the models and entertainers are Grosse Pointers Chuck Gaidica and Jerry Hodak. Marilyn Turner, John Kelly, Dayna Eubanks, Martha Reeves, Hilmer Kenty, Betty DeRamus and Barbara Rose Collins will also lend a hand.

Tickets are $25 each. A table of 10 is $235. All proceeds will benefit the abused, neglected and emotionally disturbed adolescent boys served by Wolverine

The Pastor's Corner

Tired

By Rev. William C. DeVries
First Christian Reformed Church

I am tired. Dog tired. Exhausted. Worn out. It is not that I am physically tired. I am mentally and emotionally pooped. I am tired of us — you and me — Americans at the end of the 20th century. How long will this go on? To what unreasonable degree can we continue?

In spite of all evidence to the contrary, we hold to a value which propels us: we are convinced that the best kinds of things are those that are used once and then thrown away.

I'm not just haranguing you about this. I am deeply tired of myself. I have so often self-righteously defended disposables by claiming my convenience as a high value. I would make me sick, if I weren't so tired.

I am not tired of being reminded to not throw away. I am tired of our not listening. I am so worn out by my own laziness and my assumption that I have the right to use it and throw it away. What we just can't seem to learn is that there is no away.

Possibly the most exhausting yet — is that we want to treat people this way. We throw them out, ignore them, shut our eyes and ears and pretend they don't exist. It is bad enough that we don't insist that coffee cups and pickle jars and newspapers be used again and again. But when we don't insist on the value and character of every human being around us . . . well, I am just so tired of our lazy, self-centered smallness.

This Easter season I need a spring, a resurrection, a hope. It will cost to recycle: time and money and sweat . . . maybe tears. It will cost to recycle persons. But there are no garbage people.

Second only to the call to love God is the call to love persons around us. I am tired of our racism, our slander, our weak attempts to strengthen ourselves while letting others be trampled. I am so tired.

Thank God for hope. Thank God for people. Thank God for Easter.

G.P. United Methodist pastor to be honored

The Rev. Perry A. Thomas, former pastor of Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church, will be honored Friday, April 27, at 6 p.m. as he retires from 41 years in the pastoral ministry.

The event, "An Evening for the Senses: A Celebration of Ministry," will be held at Eastern Michigan University Radisson Center in Ypsilanti.

The evening will feature an exhibition of Thomas' sculpture, a banquet buffet and a performance by the Eastern Michigan Chamber choir directed by Leonard Riccinto.

In addition to the Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church, Thomas has served the Asbury Methodist Church in Flint, Commerce United Methodist Church and presently serves Ypsilanti First United Methodist Church in Ypsilanti.

His life-long interest and work in art has complemented his ministry and enriched the larger church as well as congregations he served. His works have been exhibited at the Flint Institute of Arts, Rackham Galleries at the University of Michigan, Detroit and Grosse Pointe, and several pieces have been privately commissioned by individuals and churches.

Among many honors he received was the invitation to inaugurate the Theologian-in-Residence Program in First United Methodist Church in Boulder, Colo., in 1985 with the topic, "Worship and the Visual Arts."

Thomas has given leadership in many conference and jurisdictional positions and has served as exchange pastor in churches in Great Britain and Australia.

Grosse Pointe Symphony rhapsodizes to good effect

By John Miller
Special Writer

The appearance of Emmanuelle Boisvert attracted a near-capacity audience to the Grosse Pointe Symphony's subscription concert April 8. As word had it, "nearly every fiddler in town" was on hand to hear Boisvert, the concertmaster of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

It was an afternoon of fine music-making from both the orchestra and soloist. The concert consisted of three well-known orchestral rhapsodies and a popular violin concerto, the latter serving as an excellent vehicle for Boisvert's remarkable talents and musicianship.

The first two works, Chabrier's "Espana" and Lalo's "Symphonie Espagnol," have, although composed by Frenchmen, a definite Spanish flavor. It is a curious musical fact that some of the best known "Spanish" music has been served up by the French. Works that come to mind are Bizet's "Carmen," Debussy's "Iberia" and Ravel's "Bolero."

The "Espana" rhapsody was a bright and spirited opener to the concert. The tricky rhythms of this piece came through well, with only occasional looseness of ensemble in the rubatos. Winds and brass contributed sparkling playing throughout.

Although called a symphony,

Lalo's "Symphonie Espagnol" is really a violin concerto, cast in five movements, instead of the usual three or four. The middle movement is usually omitted, as was done at this concert. Boisvert, making a dazzling visual appearance in her black, double-flounced beaded dress, easily conquered the many technical difficulties of this virtuoso showpiece. The flexibility of her bow arm was a real joy to behold. Maestro Felix Resnick and his players provided excellent support. The initial slower tempo of the last movement soon built up to an exciting finale.

Two more rhapsodies — pieces that are somewhat free in form — ended the program. It was good to hear Victor Herbert's "Irish Rhapsody," which is a potpourri of numerous well-known Irish melodies. The extremely popular "Roumanian Rhapsody No. 1" of Georges Enesco brought the afternoon to a rousing conclusion, with Maestro Resnick drawing some colorful playing from the entire orchestra. The famous viola solo was beautifully projected by first violist Jamie Dabrowski.

The concert ably demonstrated the high quality of musicianship within the ranks of the orchestra. The community can be justifiably proud of having its own symphony orchestra.

Tau Beta committee members work on the flower sale. Shown are Peggy Kross, Sue Moll, Tina Griffin, J.J. Benkert, Wendy Jennings, Frannie Gough and Lalia Young.

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD THE PASTEBOARD PASTIME

In a lifetime one has been tremendously benefited if he makes friends with a few unusually gifted people. I have enjoyed that opportunity. Let me tell you about one such friend because he was a remarkable person and I was truly fortunate to have experienced such a wonderful encounter.

General Constantine Platsis was Greece's first air corp general. Following the second world war in which he distinguished himself against the Nazi invaders on many hazardous occasions, he represented his country as Greece's first United Nations Ambassador. Shortly after his move to New York City, an invitation to join the Regency Whist Club was extended as the General's love for card games, especially his fondness for bridge and those who played it, was intense. In no time it was apparent to everyone that his gifts were many. His gentleness was extraordinary yet you knew at a glance this was a man of character and tremendous strength even though stored in a physique just over five feet in size. I knew no one who could match his smile and charm. His humility and kindness allowed him no enemy anyone could remember.

Today the annual Platsis Memorial Bridge Tournament is one of the club's two most eminent events.

Costa, an endearing nickname the General acquired ages ago, could hold his own in the world's strongest stake games. His bidding and play were imaginative and bold. He never let the right bid get in the way of a speculative venture if he felt an opportunity was at hand. Certainly there were only a few who could match his deceptiveness at the table. When he tired of stake play in New York, he traveled east to Monte Carlo or west to the glittering lights of Las Vegas and busied himself at the tables of unpredictability. Some of the stories that came from those ventures at fortune and chance are splendid and legendary. Once he invited five of his best friends, who just happened to be excellent players, to Montreal as his guests for a four day challenge match against that city's finest. For ninety-six unbelievably exhausting hours the marathon continued in a luxurious series of suites at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel with no let up for feasting or sleep. On another occasion he chartered a magnificent yacht which sailed the Aegean Sea with a dozen of his favorite bridge playing pals for ten days of play.

There was a memorable evening some twenty years ago in which nine of us were his guests at an elegant, but delicate, dinner party at the Regency Whist followed by an into the daylight hours game. Here is a memorable hand from that fun drenched evening that portrays Costa's shrewdness. This hand came late so it was natural that only the fittest participants were still playing at a level equal to their greatest capabilities, but the General never intentionally took advantage of one's hard evening habits.

If you had been sitting east, on lead in this intimidating high stake drama, holding cards that could probably beat your adversary's contract what card would you put in play? East knew Costa was operating with his series of deceptive bids, but which, if any, were trustworthy and for who's ears to reason? Could south's shape be 0-6-0-7? Certainly not likely, but which cue bid was true? After a prolonged council with the wizardly gods of bridge, east laid down a loser... the diamond ace and a plus 1860 for N/S.

You could have heard a snow flake fall. The stunned silence was finally interrupted with Costa's quiet condolence... "The alternative, gentlemen is almost as displeasing as you can't make six spades. I'll double, lead a club and beat you for 800."

Lomax: A mind as sharp as his skates

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

Allen Lomax is not a boastful man. He's reserved, doesn't like to talk about his age and yet has more tales to tell than Hans Christian Andersen.

In May, Lomax will be pampered, primed and honored by the United States Figure Skating Association for 50 years of service as a national judge. The ceremony will take place in Indianapolis May 10-13, and Lomax will be flown down and put up in a hotel, with the bill going to the USFSA.

"I did it because I wanted to," Lomax said about getting involved in figure skating. "It's an exciting sport, but it's just too bad people don't know more about the real enjoyment of figure skating."

Lomax, whose home is graced with aged figure skates, feels his golden anniversary is no big deal.

"I think it's just incidental that it's been 50 years," he said. "I guess it's true what they say: 'Time flies when you're having fun.'"

And Lomax, president of the Grosse Pointe Figure Skating Club, will remain active as long as he can. In fact, just last Sunday he was in Lansing judging and last Tuesday he was skating at the St. Clair Shores Civic Arena.

Although he'll be honored for his dedication and contribution to the sport for 50 years, Lomax's relationship with figure skating started long before 1940, when he was a member of the Cleveland Figure Skating Club and the Philadelphia Figure Skating and Humane Society Club.

While stationed in Philadelphia during World War II, Lomax itched for something to divert his mind from the pressures of the war. He discovered the Philadelphia club, paid his dues and became a member.

"I went down to the club and told them I was a member of the Cleveland Club and they welcomed me with open arms," Lomax recalled. "I was like a fish out of water without being able to be involved in skating, but when you want something bad enough, you'll do anything to get it."

Lomax and his business partners opened the David L. Babson Company in Boston, but with the interruption of the war the company almost folded.

"If it wasn't for a few strong-hearted women," he said. "I can assure you that the company would have gone down."

But Lomax returned to the company and salvaged what was left when the war ended. He later moved to Detroit in 1945 when he got his final assignment from the Navy.

"I had to come to Detroit and clear out the plants that were producing war materials so the automobile companies could begin building again," he said. "That was very stimulating because we (the Navy) were able to get the automobile industry started again."

For two years he searched for a place to skate. Olympia, which used to be home to the Detroit Red Wings, was the only ice available — but that too, was limited.

"We could only skate once a week while the Wings were still in the running for the Stanley Cup," Lomax said. "As soon as they were eliminated from the playoffs, the ice was melted down and we no longer had ice."

Hence, the immediate — yet slow — search for a place to please those who indulged in figure skating.

"We got going on what was sort of a half-baked arrangement," said Lomax, who was one of approximately 15 people conducting the search in 1947. "We found some riding stables at Moross and Wyoming and eventually got in. One night, China Clarke had to wait until a woman got home at 12:30 in the morning in order to get a check for a down payment on the land."

Eventually the troops moved in, excavated the stables, laid the ice and called it the home of the Detroit Figure Skating Club, which is still in existence.

"I believe I'm correct in assuming that that was the first private rink in Detroit," Lomax said.

Allen Lomax has enjoyed figure skating over the years, and has also enjoyed collecting skates more than 100 years old.

To place to go

Grosse Pointe, a five-city ace that used to pride itself its community services, eds to rid itself of an eyesore.

The Grosse Pointe Community Rink, which houses the Grosse Pointe Hockey Association and Grosse Pointe South hockey teams, is a bland, gray building that has not impressed visitors over the years.

The stands — as limited as they are — are rickety and old. The glass on the boards has fallen at times when a player was checked into it, the ice surface itself is treacherous, and the locker rooms are so smelly and old that vagrants may even find them unappealing.

Grosse Pointe needs a facility it can be proud of. Many teams, including the Grosse Pointe Figure Skating Club, could use a fine, well-kept house to practice and perform in.

Maybe over the years the investors or owners in the community rink have neglected some of the upkeep. Perhaps the people who attend games don't treat the rink very well because they take no pleasure in it. And, because hundreds of games and shows are performed there, many people do attend despite the uncomfortable conditions.

I skated on the ice about a month ago and believe me, I don't know much about an ice surface, but I know that ice needs to be replaced. Near the boards where the Zamboni is, my skate blade got caught. The ice is crowned like a baseball field and the lighting in there is insufficient. It's also a cold place to watch a game.

I'm sure that at one point the community rink used to be the pride of the hockey association, but now I think Grosse Pointers are ashamed to call it home.

Many rinks like Fraser and the St. Clair Shores Civic Arena attract bigger and better ice shows, and both are enjoyable and clean places to watch games. The GPCR features neither of those.

The GPCR evolved to give Pointers a place to skate. Locals were no longer expected to drive to Livonia, Fraser or St. Clair Shores for ice. However, people are still doing it because most people involved with the GPCR have become complacent.

Grosse Pointe deserves a fine hockey arena. People here have proven they can pay for things and I believe they would in order to upgrade and serve this area with a fine hockey forum. If St. Clair Shores, Fraser, Livonia and Wyandotte can support an arena, then why can't Grosse Pointe?

I'm willing to donate the first $100 to swing the wrecking ball and level the GPCR. That's a little harsh, and I hope it never comes to that, but locals should no longer be forced to play, watch or skate in conditions that are unfavorable and intolerable.

It's a shame what has happened over the years to the GPCR, and I'd like to think the owners and administrators of the rink could find a viable solution to renovate the GPCR, or in fact, build a fine rink all locals can proudly call home.

Norsemen double-dipped by long ball, Blue Devils

South's Jason Weissert smacked three hits off North's Lou D'Angelo in the first game of a doubleheader April 21. Weissert and his South teammates went on to sweep the Norsemen.

In two classic pitcher's duels, Grosse Pointe South persevered and swept a doubleheader from the ever tough Norsemen of North.

April 21 marked the first great day of spring weather, but the first game didn't get under way until three hours after the scheduled 11 a.m. starting time because of the heavy rains that fell the night before.

South got home runs from Brian Letscher and Matt Wysocki to win the opener 4-2, and the second game featured a battle between North's Marc Adams and South's Mark Jungwirth, and it took some late inning heroics from Mike Oliver for South to win, 2-1.

South's Brian Downs, who went the distance to pick up his second win against one defeat, and North's Lou D'Angelo, who hadn't pitched in 12 days, locked horns after each had a shaky first inning.

"It took me a while to get used to the mound," D'Angelo said. "But even then I really never got into a groove. I was all over the place and South gets all the credit because they beat me."

"I didn't like the wait because I was ready when we got to school about 9:30," said Downs, who struck out seven and gave up five hits. "I just had to be ready mentally and I was. I kept concentrating the whole time and that made the difference."

So did the fact he only walked one batter.

"When it comes down to it," said South coach Dan Griesbaum, "Brian is a bulldog. He has such confidence in any of his pitches and wants to be in games like that."

D'Angelo was handed a 1-0 lead in the first when catcher Dan Watkins singled home Steve Craparotta, who had doubled. But the lead was washed out when Letscher cracked his first homer of the season, giving South a 2-1 lead.

South sent eight hitters to the plate in the first inning, and was also helped by three D'Angelo walks.

"The kids could see that Lou was having trouble with his curve ball so they sat back and waited for the fastball," Griesbaum said. "They saw him struggle and became patient at the plate."

"I think it definitely showed that Lou wasn't sharp," said North coach Frank Sumbera. "But, as the game went on he got sharper and sharper, but was hurt by the long ball."

Adams started the North second inning with a double and rode home on Jim Tatti's single to tie the score at 2-2, and both pitchers then had it out until Wysocki drilled a two-run homer to center field in the fifth inning.

"It's always nice to beat North because they are our crosstown rivals," said Downs. "I thought I pitched OK and could have pitched better, but I have to give a lot of credit to our defense."

D'Angelo shouldered most of the blame for the defeat.

"I served up the home runs so it's my fault," he said. "I feel bad for the guys because I didn't give them a chance to win it. Instead, South took me deep a couple times to win it and I can't blame anyone but myself."

South's Jason Weissert also hit safely three times in the first game, but the South offensive discipline wasn't evident in the nightcap — thanks to North's Adams.

"He kept us really off balance," Griesbaum said. "He threw a lot of curves and we had trouble laying off the curve that looked like a strike but would break away. Adams did a great job."

And he didn't deserve to lose either, as he struck out six, walked one and gave up only four hits, three of them to Oliver.

"It was very disappointing to lose both games, especially the second one," said Sumbera.

"Marc has thrown three solid games and should have won two of them, but instead he's 0-3. I think he pitched the best game of all the pitchers that day. He tossed a gutty game and didn't deserve to lose."

North jumped in front in the second game, too, as Craparotta and Tim Sacka smacked back-to-back doubles for a 1-0 lead. North sat on that 1-0 cushion until the sixth when Wysocki's sacrifice fly tied the score at 1-1.

Tom Moellering was aboard in the sixth when Bill Leins, who's batting .550 and has yet to strike out in 20 at bats, tried to move him up on a bunt. D'Angelo dove to catch the ball — to no avail — and both runners were safe. A passed ball moved both runners up, and two pitches later Wysocki hit the fly ball.

North loaded the bases in the seventh inning with only one out, but Jungwirth, who yielded only three hits and walked five, fanned the next two hitters.

Oliver stepped to the plate in the bottom half of the seventh and ended the game with a solo home run, giving the Blue Devils their fifth straight win over the Norsemen.

Jungwirth moved to 3-0 on the season and has an ERA of 0.78. Jungwirth and Downs have combined for all five South wins, and as a staff the Blue Devils have hurled six complete games.

"With a couple of breaks in both games," Griesbaum said, "either team could have won it."

Lomax

But that wouldn't be his first accomplishment as a backer of figure skating. He was one of several involved in starting the Grosse Pointe Figure Skating Club in 1970.

"I got involved in those clubs because it was contagious," Lomax said. "Right now the Grosse Pointe Figure Skating Club is devoted to the basic skills for people ages 5 and up. We deal with about 100 youngsters a year."

And Lomax gets more out of teaching and judging than the aspiring skaters.

"I have more 8-year-old friends than I do people in my age group," he said. "They're wonderful kids and it's pure enjoyment for me to see those kids pass a test because they're so vibrant and enthusiastic."

Lomax has seen hundreds of skaters pass tests, including Dick Button and one of the Detroit Figure Skating Club's original skaters, Timmy Wood.

"I say this boastfully," he said. "I'm the only judge in captivity who judged two world champions in generations apart."

During his membership in Cleveland, Lomax quickly made a name for himself as he moved into judging in 1940. A bachelor at the time, Lomax felt compelled to move off the ice and into a judge's robe.

"It was another avenue of figure skating that I hadn't pursued," he said. "Becoming a judge was an active and interesting thing to do, so I did it."

Norsemen split Lancers

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

Runs have been coming in bunches for the North baseball team but it could have used a few more — four to be exact — as it split a doubleheader with Bishop Gallagher last week.

"We are scoring more runs than I thought we would," said Norsemen coach Frank Sumbera. "But I don't think we're playing all that well."

North dropped the opener, 8-5 in eight innings, but rebounded to take an 11-10 win in the nightcap.

"We should have won both of those games," Sumbera said. "I really think we gave the first one away."

North is now 3-5 after a doubleheader loss to South April 21.

Mike VanSyckle gave North a 3-2 lead with a three-run homer, his first of the season, in the second inning, and RBI hits by Tim Sacka and Steve Craparotta extended North's lead to 5-2 going into the sixth.

Right-hander Marc Adams ran into trouble in the sixth, giving up three runs after getting the first two outs. Adams, now 0-2 on the season, struck out seven and gave up five hits.

A three-run homer in the top of the eighth gave Gallagher an 8-5 lead, and North loaded the bases in its half of the eighth but didn't score.

Brit Pierce started the nightcap, but went only two innings, giving up four runs on six hits. Pierce and the Norsemen trailed 4-0 at the end of 1 1/2 innings, but then the season's biggest inning took place.

Jeff Thomas (2), Jason Gaca, Paul Straske, Dan Watkins and Eric Merte all singled in runs in the 10-run second inning, and Craparotta capped the inning with a grand slam, his second home run of the season.

North's Jeff Thomas relieved Pierce and gave up three runs before giving way to Jim Tatti, who allowed three runs in the fifth as Gallagher tied the game at 10-10.

In the seventh, North's Sacka drove in Straske, who had walked and was sacrificed to second by Merte, with the game-winning run.

Girls track

Katie Loeher was involved in four first-place finishes as the Lady Norsemen won the North Invitational April 20, with 47 points.

Lady Devils finish third in Huron's Husky Relays

The South girls' track team placed third, behind Port Huron and Ann Arbor Huron, at the 10th Annual Port Huron Northern Husky Relays on April 21. Eighteen schools competed. South's high jump relay team of Jenny Williams, Amy Balok and Sara Liliensiek took first place. Balok also became the second South freshman this season to clear the five-foot mark. The distance relays were a South strong point, as the Lady Devils took second place in the 8000-, 4800-, 3200- and 2400-meter relays. The medal winners included Heidi Wise, Susan Llewellyn, Erica Mondro, Claudine DuPont, Ann Llewellyn, Susan Blean, Mary Rowe, Amy Balok, Jenny Barber, Jenny Mangol and Suellen Garr.

South also placed third in the 400 sprint medley relays, with the team of Tere Gavin, Cheir Andre, Leslie Arbaugh and Karen Ehresman. Garr, Ehresman and Katie Taylor also gave South a third in the long jump relay.

Before beating North in a doubleheader (see story page 1C), the South baseball team struggled to reach the .500 mark, going 1-3 in two doubleheaders. The Blue Devils split a pair of games with Utica Ford, but lost two 3-2 decisions to the Stallions of Sterling Heights.

In the opener against Ford, Ray Roxas, Brian Downs and Bill Leins had the only hits, as Ford pitcher Bill Phillips, a top college prospect, struck out 12 Blue Devils.

Mark Jungwirth picked up his second win of the season in the second game, striking out seven en route to a 3-2 victory.

Catcher Kelly Graves, who is now out with a broken ankle, doubled home Leins, who had singled, with the winning run in the third inning. Jungwirth went on to walk only one hitter and gave up five hits.

In the home doubleheader with Sterling Heights, South proved to be its own worst enemy, stranding 15 runners during the day.

Both games were decided in the seventh inning, with South leading both times.

In the opener, Lance DeBets took the loss after giving up 10 hits, four walks and striking out three. Jason Weissert and Matt

Wysocki combined for the RBI.

Mike Oliver, who took over in relief in the second game, walked the first two hitters in the seventh inning, before giving way to Brian Campbell.

South was up, 2-1, but the walks and an eventual double vaulted the Stallions past the Blue Devils.

In its league opener Monday, April 23, the Blue Devils squeaked past L'Anse Creuse North, 5-4.

Bill Leins and Tim Gramling had the only two South hits, but got sacrifice fly balls from Oliver

(2) and Wysocki to pull away. Lance DeBets pitched 5 2/3 innings for the win, and Brian Campbell got the final four outs for the save.

"It wasn't real pretty, but we got the job done," said Coach Dan Griesbaum. "We weren't as sharp defensively, but did what was necessary when we had to."

Softball

Things weren't supposed to begin the way they did for the Lady Blue Devils.

In a season-opening tournament at Waterford Mott, South lost twice by Mercy Rule, and once, 16-11, to fall to 0-3 on the season.

South played No. 6 ranked Rochester Adams in its opener of three games, and mustered only one hit by Kim Apple, in a 14-0 loss.

Right-hander Tina Higel was tagged for nine hits and walked six, and was relieved by Jenni Wysocki, who gave up four walks.

Kim Apple took the mound in the second game against Water-

Lacrosse team sweeps Grand Rapids, moves to 6-1

The University Liggett School boys' varsity lacrosse team traveled to Grand Rapids last weekend and returned with victories over East Grand Rapids and Grand Rapids Forest Hills Central.

ULS is now 6-1 overall. Against East Grand Rapids on April 21, ULS ran to a 5-1 lead behind the strong goaltending of Rob Petz and an offensive explosion led by John Gordon, Jon Davis, Jesse Kasom, Tom Reynolds, Duncan McMillan and Tripp Tracy. EGR mounted a comeback in the fourth quarter, but ULS held on to win, 8-6.

On April 22, ULS completed the Grand Rapids sweep, beating Forest Hills, 9-8.

Again, the powerful offense was paced by Gordon, but the team's victory also was credited to the solid defensive play of Mike Coello, James Dobrzecowski, John Ellis and Rob Petz.

Baseball

After losing 9-4 to Harper Woods on April 17, and dropping the first game of a twin bill, 6-1, with Detroit Country Day, the Knights won the nightcap, 5-4, to salvage the week.

"I was proud of how hard our boys played," said ULS coach Glynn Conley. "We hadn't won a game yet. We had hustled, but we were 0-4 and our troubles weren't over because we got behind 3-0 in the first inning of the second game.

"There are boys who would have wanted to get on the bus and go home, but our kids persevered and won. If you keep working and stay cool, sooner or later good things happen."

Freshman Tom Best and sophomore Jason Drook each pitched effectively for ULS. Best allowed four earned runs in 10 innings, and Drook allowed two earned runs in nine innings, including seven scoreless innings in a row against Country Day. Combined, Best and Drook walked only seven hitters in their 19 innings on the mound.

All-state shortstop Kevin Crociata went 5-for-8 with two doubles and reached base twice on walks.

Freshman David Martin had a banner week with five hits in 12 at bats. Junior Greg Akers, playing in his first game after returning from a hockey injury, went 2-for-3 in the Knights' win.

Tennis

Anthony Abiragi (No. 2 singles) and Paul Fozo (No. 3 singles) led the boys' tennis team to a fourth-place finish in the East Grand Rapids Invitational April 20-21.

ULS finished with 17 points. Okemos, a highly-ranked Class A team, won the tourney with 27 points.

Abiragi and Fozo reached the finals in their flights, and Sean Byrne played extremely well at No. 1 singles, losing 3-6, 6-4, 6-3, to nationally ranked Adam Kraft.

At No. 1 doubles, Doug Wood and Bill Schervish were down 6-2, 5-1 to Okemos, before rallying to play a third set tie-breaker in which they lost.

Flight winners were Byrne, Abiragi, Fozo, Wood and Schervish.

Soccer

The ULS soccer team dropped two close games last week to a pair of highly ranked teams.

On April 20, the Lady Knights hosted Detroit Country Day, ranked No. 3, and lost, 4-2.

ULS fell behind 3-0, but bat-led back to cut the score to 3-2 on goals by Monica Paul and Lauren Gargaro. Country Day iced the game with a penalty-shot goal.

On April 21 at Ann Arbor Pioneer, ULS faced a 2-0 deficit and didn't score until Paul's free kick from 20 yards late in the game. ULS lost, 2-1.

ULS is now 3-2 overall.

Boating course being offered

The Grosse Pointe Power Squadron, in cooperation with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, will sponsor a free youth boating course.

To operate a boat powered by a motor more than six horsepower, youths between ages 12 and 16 must be certified.

Certification is achieved upon successful completion of an examination after six hours of classroom study.

The course will be offered in a series of three, two-hour sessions, either in the afternoon or evening. Meeting times will be 3:45 or 7:30 p.m. for three consecutive Mondays, May 7, 14, 21.

Classes will be held in room 164 at Grosse Pointe South High School.

South

ford Mott, which lost to Adams in the championship game, and didn't get much defensive support.

"Kim really did a decent job, but we didn't play well behind her," said coach John Bruce.

South committed 10 errors.

Kathy Apple, Becky Wysocki, Higel and Jenni Wysocki led the offense with one hit each.

"We certainly are not a team to commit that many errors, but I was happy with the way the kids battled back in the third game," Bruce said. "They proved to themselves that they weren't as bad as the previous two games."

But they still lost, 16-11, to Flint Powers.

Higel pitched the first three innings, giving up 11 runs on five hits and five walks. Jenni Wysocki tossed the next two innings, but ran into trouble in the sixth when she was tagged for four runs. Wysocki gave up only five hits.

Catcher Becky Wysocki, who had one of South's nine hits against Powers, threw out six would-be base stealers on the day.

North

Anne Scallen helped her relay teams to three first place runs.

Boys track

East Detroit and Sterling Heights were the top two finishers at the North Invitational April 21, and the Norsemen took third with 49 points.

Glens Harkenrider, Juan Ganumaleff, Grant and David Vier won the sprint medley, and took second in the 800-meter relay (1:35.52).

Harkenrider (19 feet 5 inches) also teamed up with Hyko Ekmekjian (18-2) and Reeve Brandon (16 feet) to take second in the team long jump competition.

Tom Gauerke, Scott Collins and Andy Torrence anchored the distance relays, while Britt Baubie, Jeff Elezko, Dan Skuce, Keith Rader, Mark Heaphy and Chris Pearce set personal bests.

GPSSA

Dold, Stacey Bieszck and Alex Carpenter anchored the offense.

U-12 house

Raiders 3, Celtics 1

Brian Wronikowski had two goals and Steven Drader added a solo blast to lift the Raiders. Nick Provenzano, Chichi Kabongo and Matt Gorczyca had assists.

Raiders 7, Q of Peace 1

Brian Wronikowski (3), Nick Provenzano, Matt Smith, Peter Smith and Steve Drader notched goals for the Raiders, with help from Ben Weaver, Smith and Drader. Goalie Justin Wynne and fullback Brian Easton held off the Peace attack.

U-12 travel

Rebels 2, Silverstreaks 1

Matt Agnone scored both goals in the win, as Sean Schotthoffer and Dave Ryszewski drew assists.

Ryan Janke, Mike Howe and Aaron Zurschmiede were tough on offense, while Jason Rabe, Paul Long, Nick McGee, Peter Messacar and goalie Brandon Thomas supported the defense.

Higel leads Pointe Aquatics

Kim Higel, a freshman at Grosse Pointe South, swam to a third place in the 200 backstroke and was the highest finisher for Pointe Aquatics at the Junior Nationals in Cleveland.

Higel also took seventh in the 100 backstroke and broke a Michigan record for the 13-14 age group with a time of 58.88.

Higel and teammates Heidi Mader, Karen Dundon and Christine Jamerino combined to swim a 14th-place time of 4:01.19 in the medley relay.

Jamerino, still only a middle-school student, swam a 100 breaststroke split time of 1:07.2 in that relay, and that time would have placed the 12-year-old in the top six of last year's Class A championships.

"All in all the meet was a very successful one for Pointe Aquatics," said Coach Mike O'Connor. "It was nice to see us do something in a national meet."

Wendy Mader also competed in the nationals.

"To do as well as we did will hopefully spur some people on," O'Connor said. "It gives the younger kids something to shoot for and hopefully encourages other kids to do well and eventually help both high school swim programs."

Exercise with Fitness Firm

The Fitness Firm will offer a new spring session of aerobic fitness classes beginning the week of April 30.

All classes are led by professional, experienced instructors and include mat work for firming and toning, a warm-up, an aerobic segment for conditioning the heart and lungs, and a cool-down and stretching for increased flexibility.

Modifications for all fitness levels are taught including low impact. Light weights and exercise bands are also incorporated into the workout for those interested.

Persons of all ages and fitness levels can participate in this non-competitive workout. All students are encouraged to exercise at their own level. By taking advantage of the firm's free class option, students may attend other Fitness Firm classes at no additional cost.

Classes are offered at Christ the King Church in Grosse Pointe, on Monday and Wednesday at 9:30 a.m.; Tuesday and Thursday at 9:30 a.m. Babysitting is available at all morning classes.

Evening classes are held Monday and Wednesday at 6:45; Tuesday and Thursday at 6:45 and at Harper Woods Library on Monday and Wednesday at 7 p.m.

Class fees are $35 for a seven-week session. For further information, call 886-7534 or 343-0040.

The Missing LINC
LINC is a non-profit organization whose purpose is to place goods no longer needed by individuals and businesses into the hands of metropolitan Detroit charitable agencies. If you have any items no longer of use to you, Operation LINC knows who can and will use them. Please call LINC at 882-6100

Spring has sprung and that signals cleaning season. After you have shuffled and sorted through your closets, drawers and attics, spring over to the LINC warehouse with some donations.

CHRISTLAND Prevention Outreach Program Center which provides community outreach, substance abuse and educational programs would like an OVERHEAD PROJECTOR.

Even though the seasons change some of the requests for goods never do. One ongoing need for many of our member organizations is CLOTHING for INFANTS and CHILDREN.

Those hard working women at United Sisters of Charity would like a TWIN BED for victims of a home burnout.

FURNITURE, LINENS, and HOUSEHOLD ITEMS seem to be things that are in great demand presently.

When your garage sale is over, bring the unsold items, to LINC. Just make a list of the things you plan to donate and fill out the tax deductible slip at the warehouse. Your generosity will profit you in more ways than one!
Do us a favor: mention LINC to a friend!

PLEASE DON'T DELAY! SPAY OR NEUTER YOUR PET TODAY!

An altered pet is a healthier and happier companion. Also, it spares you the grief and pain of having puppies and kittens destroyed when no homes can be found. Countless numbers of sweet, innocent little ones are euthanized every day in shelters across the country because a pet wasn't spayed or neutered. If we cut down on the numbers of unwanted litters being born, we will also cut down on the number of abandoned, lost and unwanted animals to destroy.

How to Plant Your Tree

Make sure that you go about installing your new trees correctly to ensure their continued health as much as possible. Taking the time now to learn the proper steps of tree-planting will boost your chances for having a successfully established tree later. Make the most of the time and effort you invest, by following these instructions.

- Locate a clear, open site for the tree with generous rooting area and good drainage.

- Loosen and blend the soil in the entire planting area 6-10 inches deep. In the center, dig a hole at least as wide, but only as deep as the root ball

- Remove tree from burlap or container and place on solidly packed soil so that the root collar (where the tree's main stem meets the roots) is slightly above the surrounding grade.

- Backfill the hole and lightly pack the soil into place around the tree.

- Spread a two-to-three-inch layer of mulch in the entire area, keeping a six-to-eight-inch distance from the tree trunk.

- Stake the tree so that it can flex in the wind. Attach stake to tree using discarded rubber inner tubes. Remove them after six months.

- Water thoroughly, but do not flood the hole. Water twice a week during dry periods.

Add a blaze of color by gardening with roses

No matter how limited your outdoor space, you can still enjoy the beauty and color of living plants. Container gardening is a popular choice for people with small-space balconies, decks or terraces.

You might be surprised to learn that roses, especially Sunblaze™ roses, are well suited to container gardening. Adaptable and resilient, roses will thrive with sunshine and proper drainage. Put roses in a sunny spot on your deck or patio and enjoy them the entire growing season.

A Sunblaze rose will grow 18 to 24 inches high, with 1½- to 2-inch blooms. They feature rich lustrous foliage which contrasts beautifully with the vivid flowers. And these hardy roses are bred to be disease-tolerant, making them easier to grow and care for.

Sunblaze roses bloom all summer long, even under the hot summer sun. Use them to create dramatic effects in containers on porches, decks and balconies. Then, in the fall, they can be transplanted into your landscape.

The hardest part of rose container gardening may be choosing your colors! Sunblaze roses are available in a variety of blazing colors.

A quick look at this list will show you just how difficult it may be to make up your mind:

- Classic Sunblaze™ — rich, hot pink
- Debut™ — scarlet and cream blend
- Lady Sunblaze™ — elegant pink
- Orange Sunblaze™ — brilliant orange
- Red Sunblaze™ — deep, velvety red
- Royal Sunblaze™ — yellow
- Scarlet Sunblaze™ — brilliant scarlet
- Sunny Sunblaze™ — golden buff

Check out all your colorful options at your local nursery or garden center. You'll love these vibrant roses that add a lot of color in a little space.

Collect losses on Your Damaged landscape

Trees, shrubs, and other landscape plants are valuable assets to your residential property, says the American Association of Nurserymen. So much so, the group stresses, that damage or destruction of these landscape materials can represent a substantial financial loss, which you may be able to recapture in one of several ways: The plants may be covered by your homeowner's insurance; you may be able to deduct their value from your federal income tax; and sometimes you can recover the value through a civil court action.

According to some estimates, trees may boost the sale price of a home by as much as 27 percent. Trees as well as shrubs also reduce heating and air conditioning costs. And they help to abate noise and shield the house as well as its inhabitants from wind. In fact, all the plant materials of a residential landscape have a dollar value of their own apart from the dwelling structure or the property as a whole.

As important, trees, shrubs, and other plants create an atmosphere of beauty. So when plants suffer damage or destruction, the homeowner loses aesthetic quality as well as money.

Insurance policies usually cover casualty losses (casualty means "an identifiable event of a sudden, unexpected or unusual nature") due to such problems as fire, lightning, explosion, riot, civic commotion, and vandalism.

Many states have set $500 maximums for reimbursement on a single tree, shrub, or plant.

An income tax deduction can be useful in case the insurance company doesn't cover all or part of your claim. For nonbusiness casualty losses, the Internal Revenue Service allows deductions in cases where each casualty is more than $100 and the aggregate amount of these losses is higher than 10 percent of the homeowner's adjusted gross income.

As for civil court actions — attorneys report settling many of these cases out of court, as judges almost always uphold claims once they have all the facts.

No matter how homeowners choose to handle the recovery, right after the damage has taken place they should secure the advice of a professional. This professional will be able to tell whether the plant item can be replaced or repaired. He or she will also know how, if possible, to preserve the item and ways to proceed in recapturing financial losses.

To learn more, write for a free brochure on recovering the value of lost landscape plants. To receive this information, send a stamped, self-addressed business-size envelope to "Tree Values," 1250 Eye Street, N.W., Dept. MRC, Suite 504, Washington, DC 20005.

Kitchens are the heart of the home

Everyone in the market for a new home, as well as those interested in remodeling an existing one, knows the meaning of "sticker shock" when visiting model homes or kitchen design showrooms. It's hard to find high quality and good design at an affordable price, especially in the kitchen.

"The kitchen often is the focal point of family activity," says John Stephenson, head of design at Yorktowne Cabinets, a leading manufacturer of stock wood cabinetry. "In fact, some people call it the 'heart' of the home, so its appearance and practicality are important considerations."

What are the most common mistakes in kitchen design? Stephenson reports that many people sacrifice quality for space, then use the space inefficiently. He recommends a basic floor plan with a work triangle not exceeding 12 linear feet between the range, refrigerator and sink.

"You don't want to spend the next 20 years walking more miles in the kitchen than you have to, so practical design is crucial. If you have the luxury of additional space, create satellite work areas and expanded storage capability for infrequently used items outside the work triangle."

Stephenson points out that stock cabinetry with a wide range of cabinet sizes and optional features lets you achieve the look of an expensive custom kitchen at affordable prices. "You can certainly extend your budget," he says, "and, at the same time, achieve a look you'll be proud of through the years."

He uses wall cabinets to create islands, for instance, and produces interesting storage areas for appliances and other kitchen necessities behind tambour doors. "Imagination and creativity are the keys," Stephenson says.

BASIC PRUNING GUIDE

WHY PRUNE

1. Pruning increases a plant's production through the increase of the measure of light it receives, and through the redistribution of the available raw materials for growth.
2. Pruning improves a plant's vitality through improved air and sunlight penetration, and removal of portions of the plant that are a burden to healthy growth.
3. Pruning directs a plant's growing habits and tendencies to suit our personal needs.

DO'S

1. Always prune away dead, broken and diseased portions of a plant at any time.
2. Prune flush to a main branch or trunk.
3. Cover cuts of 1 1/2" diameter or more with a protective wound compound.
4. In general, prune weak plants hard and vigorous plants lightly.
5. For safety and ease of pruning, use the correct tool for the job.
6. Keep your tools sharp and clean. Clean cuts heal quicker.
7. Make a cut only with a good reason and with an understanding of what your cut will produce.

DON'TS

1. Do not leave ragged cuts or stubs.
2. Do not use hedge shears for general pruning.
3. Do not prune with sprung, dull, or improper tools.
4. Do not do all your pruning at one time.
5. Do not expect pruning to compensate for obvious defects caused by overcrowding, poor soil conditions, improper climate, etc.
6. Do not assume that every good gardener is a good pruner. Check out casual advice before you prune.
7. Do not climb trees! The hazards for outweigh the benefits. Call a professional or use a long-handled pole tree trimmer.

For a free brochure about pruning, write to: Ames Lawn and Garden Tools, Box 1774, Parkersburg, WV 26101.

TWO MAIN PRUNING CONCEPTS

Heading Back
1. Heading back increases the density of the plant and makes it sturdier.

Thinning
2. Thinning will make a plant grow taller and more open.

TYPICAL PRUNING NEEDS OF A TREE

1. Broken Branches: Unsightly and possibly dangerous.
2. Diseased Branches: Removal isolates disease-causing organisms.
3. Crowded Branches: Removal increases light and raw materials to remaining branches.
4. Non-symmetrical: Removal improves appearance.

A PROPER CUT
Support the branch below where the cut is to be made. Cut at a slant in the direction you want the new branch to grow.

CUT CLOSE
Cut an unwanted branch in such a way as to leave the shortest possible stub.

PINCHING
Frequently pinch back, with the thumb and forefinger, soft growth throughout the growing season to avoid future pruning, to redirect growth, and to increase the density of the plant. Pinching is also useful for disbudding flowers and thinning fruit.

PRUNING DECIDUOUS SHRUBS
Remove all broken, diseased, and crisscrossing branches. Remove a part of each long shoot that may spoil the shape of the shrub, and prune down to ground level about one third of the oldest branches.

REMOVING HEAVY LIMBS
Use a 3-cut technique to avoid damage to a tree by splitting. Cut at (1) under the limb, then at (2) above and further out to remove the limb, and at (3) to remove the stub. The heaviest limbs may be supported by a rope.

THE IDEAL HEDGE SHAPE
Prune hedges narrower at the top to allow sunlight to reach the bottom foliage.

THE CUT IN RELATION TO BUDS

1. Too Slanted: Exposes too much surface area to damage.
2. Too long: Can cause dieback of the stub.
3. Too Short: Will interfere with bud growth.
4. Ideal: Cut from opposite the base of the bud slanting upward to the top.

CHOOSING THE CORRECT BUD
Prune near a lateral (side) bud that is pointing in the direction that you want the subsequent branch to grow. Cutting off a terminal (end) bud will cause the nearest lateral bud to inherit its strength and direction.

PLAN 1427-3A/3B FRONT VIEW

Second floor: 880 sq. ft.
Total living area: 1,690 sq. ft.
Garage: 443 sq. ft.
Basement: 810 sq. ft.

According to the National Association of Home Builders, the majority of today's home buyers are looking for an economical three bedroom home between 1,650 and 1,850 square feet. Additionally, an open kitchen, a Great Room, and a master bedroom with a private bath are the three most requested interior design features.

The home plan pictured here, #1427-3A/3B, is one of the most popular home designs available from HomeStyles Plan Service, one of the nation's largest sources of stock blueprints. According to Bob Pool, President of HomeStyles, "Most of today's home builders are looking for quality construction, traditional design styles, and modern-day conveniences."

"The popularity of Plan 1427-3A/3B is based on the simplicity of the design and the fact that the home will accommodate narrow lots and hillside lots," says Pool. "With construction costs and land values on the rise, home builders and developers are building on smaller and unusually shaped lots. Plan 1427-3A/3B adapts to either a narrow lot or a hillside lot and therefore is highly popular with builders."

The open kitchen, a walkout deck, expansive Great Room with a central fireplace and skylight, and three bedrooms on the second floor (the master bedroom has a private bath and walk-in closets) make this plan ideal for the typical American family. The plan is also available with an optional walk-out basement.

In addition to full-size construction blueprints, HomeStyles Plan Service offers home builders a variety of specialized plan books. Plan 1427-3A/3B, along with more than 200 best-selling home designs, is featured in The Book of Home Plans ($10.95 including postage). A study plan of 1427-3A/3B, useful for preliminary planning and cost estimating, is available for $9.95 (postage included).

You'll find the same excellent quality in both our kitchens and bath cabinets - they vary only in their dimensions. Let your IMAGINATION play with the combinations, and the possibilities.

We offer cabinets in a wide range of styles, from traditional to contemporary, and a range of finishes as well. Whether you're drawn to the rich warmth of oak, the deep radiance of cherry, or the sleek, understated look of laminates, we have cabinets to tempt you.

No matter how exquisite the cabinets, their quality in no way precludes the necessity for expert planning. Planning makes it all come together.

And when it is done with consummate skill, as one would expect from a staff as experienced as ours, the kitchen takes on character, reflecting the lifestyle of you and your family.

Our expertise in kitchen planning compliments the SUPERB CRAFTSMANSHIP that goes into the kitchen as well.

Wood flooring: there's a product for every interior design style

From the fancy parquets in Versailles, to the hand-hewn planks in Mount Vernon, to the contemporary white herringbone flooring in a New York City townhouse, wood has been the flooring choice (or necessity) for hundreds of years.

For discerning homeowners today, it is obviously the flooring choice. And what a choice!

There seems to be an unlimited number of wood flooring options—from planks and parquets, to species that range from popular oak to exotic merbau, in natural finishes or soft pastels, for professional or do-it-yourself installation, in any price range you want.

One major floor covering company interviewed for this article counted over 1,200 different flooring products in their line.

"Wood flooring is more popular today than ever before," said Cliff Morrison, director of marketing for Tarkett, Hardwood Division-North America, based in Johnson City, Tenn.

"Five years ago, wood flooring was used primarily in the dining room and foyer," he said. "Today, it is very common to find wood flooring used throughout the house."

And it's no wonder. Not only is there a product to suit any interior design style, but with the advanced factory finishes, wood flooring can be used in almost any room. And there's a product for every budget, said Morrison.

Morrison cited two Tarkett products, one brand new, the other a best seller, as examples of how the company responds to consumer demand.

"Our research confirmed that the trend was moving away from the linear, plank look to a renewed interest in the patterned look of parquets," he said. "To respond to that trend, we introduced the OakWeld™ Collection of prefinished parquets."

The OakWeld Collection features the traditional mosaic pattern in four species: Oak, Parawood, Merbau and Ash. Oak, Parawood and Ash are available in three popular finishes: honey, polar white and natural.

Malaysian Merbau is available in a natural finish. Merbau is an extremely hard wood, which makes it ideal for high-traffic areas such as entryways and even kitchens, noted Morrison. Three coats of acrylic finish ensure long-lasting beauty and durability.

Best of all, the OakWeld Collection is very reasonably priced, making it competitive with carpeting, sheet vinyl and vinyl floor tile, he added.

The best seller Morrison alluded to is Longstrip, a prefinished laminated plant product that can be installed over most subfloors without nails or adhesives. Longstrip products, now produced in Sweden by Tarkett's parent company, have been available in North America for over eight years and are one of the company's most popular lines.

"Our Longstrip products are available in a wide range of species and stains, from a natural colonial-like pine plank to a contemporary strip oak look in Nordic white," said Morrison. "And with the tough Swedish polyurethane finish, we recommend Longstrip for almost any room in the house, including the kitchen."

Both of these products can be installed by an experienced do-it-yourselfer, but Morrison recommends a professional installation for best results.

For more information on these products and Tarkett's complete product line, plus care and maintenance information for hardwood flooring, consumers may visit their local Tarkett hardwood flooring retailer or write to Tarkett, Hardwood Division-North America, P.O. Box 300, Johnson City, TN 37605-0300.

IDEAS FOR CHOOSING CABINETS SUCCESSFULLY

If you are planning to purchase new cabinets for your kitchen or bath, you may be wondering where to begin. You may ask: "How will I know which cabinets will last?" "If water or food is accidentally spilled, will the finish be ruined?" "Will the shelves sag after years of use?" "Will I have to replace a door if my child hits it with a tricycle or falls against it?" "When I sell my house, will I recover my cabinet investment, or most of it?" The following ideas can make your job easier.

Consider your lifestyle. Is it formal or informal? Do you prefer traditional cabinets or would a more contemporary look, such as the European style, meet your needs? Do you want solid wood or wood veneer, or would a more high tech look with laminates be best for you?

As you inspect the many different cabinet styles and special features, finishes, and colors available today, you can rest assured that regardless of which style you choose, those bearing the NKCA certification seal will retain their beauty and serve you well for years to come. These cabinets have proven their ability to withstand abuse from a wide variety of household spills, moisture, and temperature variations present in even the most careful households.

Carefully consider the construction. Look at door alignment and check the hinges to be sure they are securely attached. Joints should show no sign of separation, and components that are joined should have corner bracing.

Many other important aspects of a cabinet's construction really cannot be seen. For example, before construction, wood parts should have been dried correctly, and all materials used in construction must be suitable for use in the kitchen or bath. The blue and white NKCA certification seal tells you that even the parts of the cabinet you can't see are well constructed and will perform well for you.

Strength tests

Strength also can be difficult to measure. A certified cabinet can be loaded with as much as 500 pounds and show no sign of strain, and an open drawer will not be damaged if a can or other heavy item is dropped into it. Doors and drawers are tested to assure that hinges and slides will not fail when loaded.

Whether you consider your kitchen a workroom or want it to double as a place to entertain, cabinets chosen wisely now will provide you with years of pleasure and performance. Your investment will pay off handsomely while you are using and enjoying your cabinets, and when you decide to sell, you can expect to recover about 80 percent of your original investment.

What is the NKCA certification seal? The blue and white certification seal of the National Kitchen Cabinet Association, usually found on the inside of cabinet doors and drawers, stands for quality, durability, and long-term performance. Cabinets bearing it must have passed over 30 tests measuring more than 60 performance and construction requirements. The tests are administered by independent, third-party labs under the direction of NKCA, a national trade association representing cabinet manufacturers. The association responds to consumer inquiries on certified cabinets.

For more information on choosing cabinets, the testing program, or a Directory of Certified Cabinet Manufacturers, please write the National Kitchen Cabinet Association, P.O. Box 6830, Dept. M, Falls Church, VA 22046, or call (703)237-7580.

A border of flowering herbaceous perennials adds a distinctively elegant touch to your garden. That's a bit of gardening guidance from the specialists on the Garden Council, a national group of firms and professionals representing the lawn and garden industry.

In winter, the perennials lose their foliage and revert to root or bulb. Their hardy root systems enable them to survive the cold by hiding underground through frost, snow, and harsh temperatures to bloom again year after year.

Sun-tolerant perennials include carnation, aster, chrysanthemum, geranium, hibiscus, peony, poppy, crocus, daffodil, tulip and narcissus. Lily of the valley, bleeding heart, primrose and lungwort are examples of varieties that bloom in the shade.

Growing seasons vary according to location, so find out when the blossoming season occurs by consulting retailers of lawn and garden goods. Their staff will provide information specific to your area and help you pick a mixture of perennials to keep your garden blooming from the first spring days to the end of fall.

Plan your garden by mapping out the bed or border you wish to plant, making sure to mark the placement of perennials according to growing season. When you're finished, you'll know precisely where each plant will be, which ones will blossom together, and how they'll look.

By planning this way, you can make sure that you mix early-spring bloomers with those that bloom in fall. As the spring flowers fade, the fall plants begin blossoming—and your garden activity of color and scent continues.

And you can use your plan or map to arrange color. For plant placement, consider how colors and heights of plants will look together in various patterns. A good rule of thumb: Place tall, brightly-colored plants in the back and short, dark ones in front.

Hot colors like red, orange, and yellow jump out, while cool greens, blues, and violets tend to fade into the background. To get a sense of how these colors will interplay, use a color wheel. You may decide on a monochrome scheme for uniform color or a polychrome arrangement of dramatic contrasts.

Include in your mixture of heights, colors, and growing seasons the shape and texture of the plant's leaves and bark. These are also important design elements that add interest and beauty when properly placed. And they continue to do so through the winter season.

A major consideration in designing a garden of perennials is style. Decisions about beds, borders, growing seasons, color schemes, plant heights, and foliage shapes and textures must be part of an overall formal or informal design.

An informal garden is asymmetrical. Its natural feeling is accomplished with flowing lines and continual curves that wind around pathways, sitting areas, and other established sections. Much planning goes into creating this casual look, in which every element from color to texture must change continually, blending in new combinations with nature's cycles.

Formal designs are simple, classic, and symmetrical, consisting of straight lines and arcs. This approach makes it easy to map out and, ultimately, to plant a formal garden. The garden's central point is marked with an object such as a pool or statue. Around it and throughout the design, squares and rectangles are repeated, forming an orderly pattern of geometric shapes.

For more assistance on planning your garden and selecting perennials, visit retailers of lawn and garden goods. If you're too anxious to wait for the plants to grow and the colors to gradually appear, buy your perennials in one-gallon containers or flats. But if you're patient enough to watch the beauty unfold slowly, start at the beginning with seeds, bulbs, and bare-root plants.

Protect your home with metal roofing

ANSWERING THE ROOFING NEEDS of today's homeowners, Rustic Shingle aluminum roofing carries a 40-year limited warranty.

No part of your home is called upon to protect that structure quite like its roof. It is common sense, then, that your next roof should be selected carefully with performance first in mind.

Metal roofing was developed in the 1800s and many of these same roofs are still providing protection. But, most of those roofs looked agricultural or commercial. The answer for today's homeowners is Rustic Shingle.

Rustic Shingle aluminum roofing combines the dimensional look of wood shakes with the durability of metal. Available in ten baked-on Glidden colors, Rustic Shingle carries a 40-year limited warranty.

Aluminum shingles are ideal for all climates. They protect against ice build-up in the snowbelt and against attic heat build-up in the sunbelt. Because aluminum reflects radiant heat, cooling loads are reduced by up to 40 percent in comparison with other roofing materials.

Rustic Shingle is lightweight and installs directly over most existing roofs including wood shingles. Due to aluminum's high strength, Rustic Shingle can be walked upon and carries a special hail warranty. Another Rustic Shingle advantage is its Class A fire protection.

For more information on Rustic Shingle, a metal roofing product which resists the problems that deteriorate other materials, contact the manufacturer as follows: Classic Products, Inc., Dept. A-3, P.O. Box 701, Piqua, Ohio 45356.

Glazed vs. unglazed: the ceramic tile showdown

UNGLAZED CERAMIC TILE enhances the look of any home area from outdoor patios to kitchen floors.

To most of us, a tile is a tile, but the fact is, there are many differences among ceramic tiles, especially when it comes to glazed and unglazed types.

Glazed tile starts as a clay base, then a thin layer of glaze or "glass" is melted on top. Glazed tile does have some drawbacks that you need to consider. The glass can create a slippery surface when it becomes wet and can scratch and wear through when exposed to prolonged scrubbing or traffic.

So what's a better tile option? Now there's a new type of low maintenance, waterproof, unglazed ceramic tile floor covering that not only eliminates the drawbacks associated with glazed tile but also gives you the freedom of both indoor and outdoor use.

Often at a lower cost and with a full spectrum of color choices from violet to rose, peach to blue, and beige to traditional brick colors, Metropolitan Ceramics unglazed ceramic tile matches durability with beauty to improve the appearance of any wall or floor surface, indoors or out, in any climate.

All Metropolitan Ceramics products are specially manufactured to be completely waterproof. Industry tests show them to be vitreous (less than three percent absorption), an attribute nearly unheard of in the world of unglazed tile, until now.

The tiles' extremely low absorption properties contribute to a stain resistant, freezeproof surface that can withstand years of rain, snow and ice, as well as spills from ketchup, fruit juice, mustard and more. It's also resistant to mud, sand and tracked-in road salt. And Metropolitan Ceramics products need no waxes, polishes or waterproofing sealers—they can be cleaned with just mild soap and water.

These new unglazed ceramic tiles won't show wear like glazed tile. They're specially made to ensure solid color throughout the full one-half inch thickness of each tile, enabling them to stand up to heavy foot traffic year after year.

The unglazed tile's natural long-wearing surface and slip-resistant properties make it the perfect solution for outdoor areas such as patios, pool areas, steps, privacy walls, walkways, breezeways, driveways and more.

Indoors, it offers just as much—adding beautiful colors and designs to any room or area you can think of, such as entryways, kitchens, bathrooms, rec rooms, counter tops, spas, wet bars, family rooms, fireplace hearths, behind and below wood burning stoves, solarium or mud room floors, walls and more.

Indoors or out, it's easy to apply to most existing surfaces, including properly leveled and patched concrete or well-supported, level plywood subfloors.

For do-it-yourselfers, literature with step-by-step tile installation instructions and detailed drawings is offered wherever Metropolitan ceramic products are sold. You'll find all the basics as well as helpful "old pro tips."

This unglazed tile is offered with several unique extras such as "relieved" or beveled edges, which allow even first time do-it-yourselfers to achieve professional looking results.

For free full-color literature on the many exciting applications for Metropolitan Ceramics' USA-made Ironrock®, Metro®Tile, Signet®, or VersaTILE®, visit your nearest floorcovering, tile or home improvement store or write to Metropolitan Ceramics, P.O. Box 9240, Canton, OH 44711.

WINDOW TREATMENTS, such as this one highlighting a living room corner window arrangement, can take on a new dimension with a combination of pleated shades, vertical blinds and a balloon valance fabric, "Topper," all color coordinated and all from Joanna, a CHF Company.

There are a lot of new angles to window treatments today—literally and figuratively. Manufacturers of blinds and shades and similar window coverings are offering a vast array of new products that can make a very real difference in the way a room and its windows look and the way light, air and the temperature comes through them.

Pleated fabric shades, for example, can add new dimensions to windows. Their soft folds create a sense of depth and their textures diffuse the light gently, casting a soft glow over the room. Some, such as Joanna's Solaré shades, also offer two backings, white privatene and colored privatene tones, that can filter or block sun and light and, regardless of the colors used in the rooms inside, keeps the window dressings looking uniform from the street.

Combining vertical blinds with pleated shades, as the homeowner did in the living room pictured here, gives the room, with its Oriental details, a sleek and tailored look.

Whether closed or open, vertical blinds are both functional and aesthetic. Closed, they control light and air. Open, they give the effect of an architectural element and heighten the calm, Far Eastern character of the room.

The pleated shades, vertical blinds and balloon valance are all color coordinated, as are other window treatments from Joanna, so that they can be used together, interchangeably on different windows or in adjoining rooms.

Pleated shades, among the newer products on the market for windows, offer many assets of their own. Combined with the vertical blinds, they enhance an out-of-the-ordinary window treatment and provide a visually appealing foil for the verticals.

Whoever said there was nothing new under the sun had not seen the newest sun-blocks, today's window treatments.

How to select a painting contractor

For some people, selecting a home exterior painting contractor is like listening to the carnival barker of old, who used to bellow: "Lay your money down, and take your chances!"

But it doesn't have to be that way. In fact, experts at The Rohm and Haas Paint Quality Institute say that the selection of a painting contractor should never be left to chance.

One of the best ways to go about choosing a contractor is to get recommendations from neighbors whose painted homes you admire. Also, ask your paint or hardware retailer or decorating center manager to give you the names of qualified contractors.

After obtaining the names of three or four painting contractors, The Paint Quality Institute recommends following these steps:

- Meet with each of the contractors and ask about the materials he proposes to use. Will he allow you to specify the paint brands you prefer? Most importantly, does the contractor recommend top quality paint? The cost of paint is usually 20 percent or less of the overall cost of repainting, but higher quality paint can last years longer, so it pays to purchase the best. For most exterior applications, top quality acrylic latex paint is an ideal choice.

- Ask for references. Former customers are an excellent source of information on painting contractors. Call these individuals and ask if they were pleased with the contractor's work. Take time to drive by their homes to see the results firsthand.

- Get estimates. Request bids from at least three contractors and let them know that others are bidding on the work. Be sure to ask for a breakdown showing the cost of paint versus labor.

To make a fair comparison, be sure that the contractors submit bids based on the same materials and same quality of workmanship (surface preparation, number of coats, etc.).

- Check credentials. Before making your choice, call the Better Business Bureau to make sure the contractor is reputable. Also, find out if the contractor is a member of the local painting contractors association. That, in itself, is some indication of reliability.

- Confirm the contractor's insurance coverage. Ask whether the contractor has liability insurance and call his carrier to be sure. Don't hire a painter who doesn't carry such insurance or you could be held liable for injuries he or his crew sustain while working on your property.

- Ask for a guarantee. Reliable contractors will usually insure that the paint will not peel, chip, blister or chalk excessively for one year. You should get the contractor's agreement that if any of these conditions occur, he will correct the problems at no cost to you.

- Insist on a written contract. Commit your agreement to writing and have the contractor sign it. The terms should include details on surface preparation, quality of paint to be applied (remember, top quality acrylic latex is best for home exteriors) and payment terms.

Your home is very likely the most important investment you have. Don't gamble with it by selecting a painting contractor by chance.

Know which leaves are poisonous

(A. Poison Ivy; B. Poison Oak; C. Azalea; D. Poison Sumac; E. Rose; F. Raspberry)

Unlike other flora and fauna, the most important fact gardeners and other outdoor enthusiasts can learn about members of the beautiful Rhus family (poison ivy, poison oak, and poison sumac) is how to avoid them.

Likewise, it pays to know the basics of treating the itching, burning, and redness which result from contacting—often simply from touching—the poison plants.

According to Charles Zugeran, M.D., associate professor of clinical dermatology, Northwestern University Medical School, and consultant to Blistex Inc., makers of Ivarest poison ivy medication, treatment should be "ASAP" (as soon as possible):

"If you have come into contact with poison ivy, oak or sumac, wash exposed skin within approximately 10 minutes of contact with a mild soap and warm water to remove toxins. Do not rub to the point of irritation," Dr. Zugeran advises.

"If itching starts, apply a medicated cream or lotion, such as Ivarest, that contains an astringent to dry oozing blisters and an anesthetic to relieve pain and itching, as well as an antiseptic to prevent secondary infection.

"After initially washing, keep hot water, soap, and rough clothing away from the affected area. Avoid caffeine and alcohol, which can increase itching. Warm compresses can be soothing. If the rash becomes severe, consult your physician," he adds.

Despite the fact that Americans reportedly have been warned about a skin rash caused by touching plants as far back as Captain John Smith and his early settlers, the problems persist—and the plants flourish in virtually every state, in forests, backyards, and unsuspected urban sites. Here are a few basics to pin on your refrigerator door, garden shed or campstove:

- Poison ivy grows as a bush or as a climbing vine. Leaves appear red in the early spring, shiny green in summer and red-orange in autumn. Each leaf has three leaflets with ragged edges. Small greenish flowers grow in bunches attached to the main stalk, later becoming ivory-colored berries.

- Poison oak is more of a low, branching shrub. Each leaflet is shaped somewhat like an oak leaf.

- Poison sumac is a long stalk with six or seven spade-shaped leaves attached to either side.

"Reportedly, more cases of allergic contact dermatitis affect Americans each year from these poison plants than from all other causes combined. But, with proper knowledge and precautionary measures, allergic reactions can be prevented and controlled," he believes.

Be aware, too, that virtually everything around you is suspect: Golf clubs, fishing rods, hiking boots, baseball bats and other sports equipment—as well as the clothing you wore last summer—can retain a layer of poison ivy resin if they came in contact with the plants and were not adequately cleaned.

Plant toxins, which may remain under fingernails for a brief period, can continue to spread on the skin and result in a rash.

What's more, Dr. Zugeran warns, "The fact that you never contracted the rash before doesn't mean you are immune this season. And, allergy to one implies allergy to all three."

For a free booklet on poison ivy prevention and treatment, and a sample of Ivarest, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to Ivarest, P.O. Box 8721, Dept. M, Clinton, IA 52736.

There are pros and cons to painting your home yourself

Life is full of decisions, especially for homeowners. One of the big decisions is determining whether your home exterior needs repainting. If it does, the next question is usually, "Should I hire a professional or do it myself?"

While the answer to that question will differ from homeowner to homeowner, there are certain considerations everyone should take into account, according to experts from The Rohm and Haas Paint Quality Institute.

To the uninformed, painting may not look very strenuous. But that's an opinion that's often revised after a day of climbing up and down ladders.

Are you in good health? Do you enjoy physical work? Are you afraid of heights? Working two or three stories off the ground can be physically demanding and, for many of us, a little scary as well.

Do you have the proper tools and equipment to handle the job? Without scaffolding, painting even a moderate size home can be a monumental task. Those who've been through the experience will tell you that attempting to paint from a single ladder is a mistake you won't make twice.

And if you don't have the right equipment (or the required skill) to do a professional job, will you be happy with the results?

For many people, the biggest consideration is the time the job will take. Do you really want to spend your vacation, weekends or free time painting the house? Only you can decide.

On the other side of the ledger, there are some sound reasons to undertake the project yourself.

First and foremost is the money you can save. House painting is very labor-intensive. In fact, labor costs often total from 80 to 85 percent of the cost of repainting. That's money you can pocket if you do the work yourself.

Then there are the psychological rewards that can come from successful do-it-yourself projects. For many of us, repainting can be satisfying and a pleasant change of pace from our regular jobs. And there's always the feeling that we'll take just a little more care than would a stranger, since it's our own home we're working on.

Perhaps the best approach, according to The Paint Quality Institute, is to call in several professional painting contractors, check references and get estimates. Then, balance the time, money and other factors in deciding whether or not to do the job alone.

In any event, one decision that should be easy is determining the quality of paint to use, say the Institute experts. For the best results, be sure to use top quality 100 percent acrylic latex paint on the exterior of your home, whether you want a flat, satin, semigloss or gloss appearance.

Since the cost of paint is usually rather small, it pays to invest in the best product available.

Quality paint adheres to difficult surfaces

STICKS TO SIDING—The upper panel of aluminum siding, on display at The Paint Quality Institute, attests to the good adhesion of top quality acrylic latex paint to difficult surfaces. After 12 years of exposure to the elements, the 100 percent acrylic latex paint on the left side of the panel still adheres well to the siding, while the oil-based paint used on the middle portion is peeling away.

Whether you would like to personalize your new home's appearance or would like to add excitement to your present home, Unilock™ interlocking concrete paving stones and retaining walls offer possibilities.

Unilock interlocking paving stones offer architectural beauty in a variety of paver designs and colors. You can turn your outdoor entry or entertainment area into a contemporary, European, nostalgic or traditional setting. You can individualize your pattern design even more by choosing pavers from four basic colors — salmon, charcoal, red and brown and a variety of color blends. This allows you to mix and match the paving stones to highlight your home's overall color scheme.

The beauty of Unilock paving stones goes beyond their decorative value. Not only will the pavers add visual drama to your driveway, walkway or patio, but their durability will withstand any amount of traffic. Unilock pavers are a high density material manufactured to a compressed strength in excess of 8,500 psi. Combined with their low moisture absorption rate, the paving stones are resistant to salt scaling, which is common in other types of concrete. These functional stones are freeze-thaw resistant, skid resistant, maintenance free, and offer years of elegant wear.

Another attraction of Unilock interlocking paving stones is that they are designed for fast and inexpensive installation by any "do-it-yourselfer."

You can easily landscape and pave your home's exterior, using construction equipment such as a tape measure and level, and renting a couple pieces of equipment such as a masonry saw and a plate compactor.

Unilock has "do-it-yourself" video and brochure, free with any purchase. Unilock guarantees the pavers and retaining walls for life, when installed according to recommended Unilock specifications. Additional information can be obtained from Unilock Michigan, Inc., 12591 Emerson Dr., Brighton, MI 48116; 437-7037.

with central air conditioning

Last summer's heat wave made news in many parts of the country—and air conditioners sold like hotcakes. If the hot weather patterns of recent years are any indication of what's coming, this summer may be just as bad or worse.

The question—as always—is, "What to do about it?"

Impulse buyers who can't sleep at night run out and buy window air-conditioning units. These units do a good job of area cooling, but if you're looking for continuous comfort throughout your home, summer after summer, central air conditioning is the choice.

Buying a central air conditioner, however, is not something you should do on impulse. You'll be investing in a product that should last for years and years. What, then, do you look for when you choose a central air conditioner?

Comfort, of course, is your first objective. That means selecting a system that keeps every room at the right temperature and does its job quietly.

"No one wants to walk into a home that isn't cool because the air conditioner is on the blink," says David Lewis of Bryant, Day & Night and Payne, brands of heating and cooling systems and equipment. "You should be able to count on being cool and comfortable when you need it."

Lewis says manufacturers are striving to develop new air conditioners with reliability, durability, quiet operation and comfort. "Surveys show that while homeowners want comfort, they also want a system that responds to peak demands and performs year round," says Lewis. He believes recent innovations in split-system, or central, air conditioners offer homeowners the most benefits.

What does split-system technology—in use now for over two decades—mean to the homeowner? Quite simply, it improves the efficiency of your central air conditioner. It also enables you to combine new equipment with existing air conditioner components so you don't have to invest in an all-new system.

Besides efficiency and comfort, it is important to find a central air conditioner that is quiet. Imagine your embarrassment when guests have to shout above the whirl of your air conditioner in order to be heard. Since most noise comes from the compressor, some manufacturers put anti-vibration pads under compressors and then wrap them in a sound-deadening blanket.

Also, with split-system air conditioners, the compressor is kept outside, while the condenser coil remains on the furnace. The result is a quieter air conditioner that doesn't drown out a conversation or make phone calls difficult to hear.

When purchasing a new central air conditioner, homeowners should find a system with a vertical air discharge on the outdoor unit that carries sound and hot condenser air up and away. This helps to prevent dryout and burning of surrounding landscape plantings.

Lewis also cautions consumers not to ignore the warranty on the central air conditioning system. "If a manufacturer can back up a reliable, efficient and durable system with a good warranty," Lewis says, "that's a system worth having."

Some of the better central air conditioners available today include a limited warranty of five years on the compressor and one year on the coil.

Your local heating and cooling dealer can tell you which system is the proper size for your home, and recommend the unit that best fits Lewis' description.

For more information on split-system air conditioners, Lewis suggests you call your nearest Bryant or Day & Night dealer, toll-free, at 1-800-HOT-SALE. For your nearest Payne dealer, call 1-800-CASH-OFF.

The German Car That Pioneered 8-Cylinder Engines, Front-Wheel Drive, Galvanized Bodies, All-Wheel Drive, Anti-Lock Brakes And Aerodynamic Styling Is Now On Sale.

For a few weeks only, we're having a sale.* Not simply in hopes of selling you an automobile. But that you will give yourself the opportunity to discover once again what a truly remarkable car an Audi really is.

An Audi Can Resist Rust For Years. Even Without A Paint Job.

Ask a German driver what he or she fears most and they won't say a speeding ticket. It's called a TUV inspection, a periodic examination by inspectors whose job is to go over, under and around a car trying to Exhaust valves on our turbocharged engines (left) are sodium-filled to dissipate heat — keeping them cooler than ordinary valves (right).

You don't need to have an Audi rustproofed. It's galvanized inside and out.

find something wrong. Even a rusted rocker panel qualifies. And if they find it, you don't drive it. Not until the problem is fixed. Which helps explain why so many Germans drive Audis. (The 80/90 Series is the most popular sports sedan in Germany.) Audi fully galvanizes every square centimeter of every car body, inside and out. Of all the world's auto-makers, Porsche is the only one we know of who does the same. It's such complete protection that prototype cars have withstood years of outdoor exposure without so much as a single coat of paint. Of course, galvanizing is only the beginning. To paint and finish an Audi requires 27 separate steps. We spray the underbody with PVC. And wherever moisture might accumulate, it never gets the chance. We flood those areas with hot wax.

As an indication of just how good this protection is, you might want to compare corrosion warranties. Mercedes' is 4 years or 50,000 miles. BMW's lasts for 6 years with unlimited mileage. And Audis? Ten years with unlimited mileage.*

Our philosophy is that a car designed for long life will give greater enjoyment no matter how many years you personally own it. Teflon® coated door hinges, for example, don't simply extend hinge life. They work without a squeak. Or the need for lubrication.

Obviously, we realize you're looking for something more to enjoy than door hinges. Should that be a sports sedan, you'll find our 80/90 Series more than fits the description.

Zinc reacts with steel to actually seal small nicks or scratches.

They're cars sleekly in keeping with Audi's aerodynamic tradition, shaped by 4000 hours in the wind tunnel. These are cars whose engines, steering, suspension and brakes make you feel so at home on the open road you don't want to leave it. As Automobile remarked about the 90 Quattro, "This car is more than a little like a four-door Porsche..." That was before it acquired its current 5-cylinder, 20-valve engine with 164 horsepower — 34 more than its predecessor.

In terms of performance, fit and finish, and standard equipment for the dollar, they give the BMW 3 Series a real run for the money.

Even the Audi 80 (below) comes equipped with everything from air conditioning (thoughtfully tested in the 127-degree heat of the Sahara) to central locking to driver's side air bag. While the 90 and 90 Quattro add ABS and power sunroof to the list.

A lot of cars wouldn't think of making exhaust pipes out of stainless steel. Audi doesn't make them any other way.

Audi 80

An Audi Is A Car That Sets Records Going From 35 mph to 0.

In the parlance of engineers, there are two kinds of automotive safety: Passive, being anything that protects you in an accident. And active, anything that helps you avoid one.

Recently, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration conducted a 35-mph crash test on an Audi 100 like the one below.

Of the cars they've tested, it recorded the best Crash Test Index score of any car currently sold in this country. In the critical area of head injury potential it registered the best score ever recorded in the 10 years that the NHTSA has conducted the test.

Such scores are not the product of chance. They are the result of the latest computer technology and safety engineering techniques.

Better though that you never have an accident at all. Audi believes a car should enhance your driving skills. Not test them. This led us to conclude early on that the best way to propel a 2-wheel driven car is by the front wheels. So the wheels that propel it are always working together. The handling stays predictable even in poor conditions. Or when a car is driven near its limit. Unlike rear drive where the back wheels can slide and propel the car in a different direction than the driver is attempting to steer. After nearly 60 years of refinement, the front-wheel drive in our 100/200 Series represents the system at its most advanced. Our efforts didn't end there. In 1980 we introduced a drive system like no other. Quattro™ all-wheel drive. It too is available in our 100 Series sedans which include the 100 and 100 Quattro, both powered by a 2.3 liter, 5-cylinder engine developing 130 horsepower.

Audi Didn't Just Have The Intelligence To Pioneer ABS, We Gave Ours A Higher IQ.

Audi ABS systems know something other ABS systems don't. They know they're in an Audi.

Working with the supplier, we educated the electronic brain of each and every ABS system to the unique characteristics of each of our cars. Each has been programmed to optimize an already sophisticated brake system. One that is load-sensitive, pressure-regulated and, in some cases, lateral acceleration sensitive. In fact, the brake system on our Quattro models, bolstered by ABS, is smart enough to react to the steepness of a hill or the "g" forces of a turn.

And Audi was smart enough to make sure our brakes perform normally without ABS. We even provide a switch to turn ABS off for certain conditions like gravel or deep powder snow where regular braking may let you stop in a shorter distance.

Such thinking extends into every corner of an Audi.

Should a fuel-injection computer fail in some cars, it would stop you in your tracks.

But not in an Audi. Every system has a "Limp Home" mode. Either a mechanical or electronic backup that lets you keep on going. Albeit not setting any land speed records.

We install some very good stereo music systems in Audis. We also install an excellent electronic theft deterrent system that renders the AM/FM cassette inoperable if removed from the power source.

Many cars talk about flow-through ventilation. But in an Audi, after the air cools or heats you, it cools or heats one other important thing. Your groceries in the trunk. By extending air-flow into the luggage compartment, Audi's flow-through ventilation effectively air-conditions or heats its contents as well.

If your passengers comment about all the leg room in the back seat it's not because you've got the front seat all the way forward. We purposely curve the backs of front seats to leave more room for knees.

A minor point perhaps. Unless you're in the back seat.

Every Audi has features like these. But there are some Audis with even more things that set them apart: Our 200 and 200 Quattro sedans.

The 4-speaker Audi/Bose® sound system (each speaker has its own amplifier) sounds like it was made just for the cabin of the 200. And it was.

The Kodiak leather seats not only adjust 8 ways for your comfort. There's a memory for the driver's seat that can recall how four different people like it adjusted.

There's even a 6-function trip computer that can tell you everything from how many gallons of gas you've burned to your average speed. Which you should watch carefully.

The turbocharged, 162-horsepower engine can take you from 0 to 60 in as little as 7.7 seconds.

10 Years After Audi Introduced All-Wheel Drive, No One's Been Able To Beat The Original.

This is not 4-wheel drive as most people think of it. This is a system as good to have in and control. It must be experienced to be believed.

Florida or Texas as in Minnesota or Vermont.

One that is constantly in action.

On dry pavement or wet. In freezing rain or sunshine. On straightaways or curves or exit ramps. It's a system that continuously senses which wheels have the most traction and transfers more of the power to them. On takeoff. Through corners.

Over slippery spots. Up and down hills. It even responds to the weight of all that luggage you've managed to cram in the trunk. We call it Quattro® all-wheel drive.

And while there may be several new systems as of late, none operate the way Quattro does.

Some bias much of the power to the front or rear axle. Quattro puts the power where the traction is, which could be either axle.

Some divide torque evenly between front and rear but can't transfer power dynamically the way Quattro does. Still others are part-time and basically intended for bad weather. Unlike Quattro, which has benefits no matter what the weather.

Racing proved that. In 1989,

Audi Coupe Quattro

The Torsen® differential continually transfers power from the wheels that slip to those that grip, instantly moving up to 75 percent of the torque from one axle to the other.

Quattro won 7 of the 13 IMSA-GTO races it entered. On dry pavement. The year before, in Trans-Am, no one gave Audi a chance, racing modified standard Quattro 200 sedans against custom tube-framed cars. At, we might add, a severe disadvantage in horsepower.

Yet we had 8 victories and 4 second-place finishes in 13 starts. And won both the Driver's and Manufacturer's Championships.

As front wheels hit ice, power transfers to rear.

As front wheels leave ice, power moves forward.

A short list of Quattro victories includes 4 world rally championships, 6 North American Pro Rally championships, 4 Pike's Peak records, 2 Trans-Am championships and the IMSA-GTO winningest driver award to Hans Stuck.

There is a more practical distinction.

Quattro isn't just one model. Or an extremely expensive option.

Quattro all-wheel drive is available in every Audi, from the 80 Series up.

For those seeking it in its sportiest manifestation, there's the Coupe Quattro, a car for the number conscious. With 164-horsepower, a top track speed of 135 mph, a 10.3:1 compression ratio, 4 valves per cylinder, double camshaft and no limit on exhilaration.

If All Cars Were Built Like This, Our Highways Might Not Have Speed Limits Either.

This is a car that breaks new ground in engines, in drive systems, in brakes, in comfort. A technological tour de force in elegant understatement.

A car judged to be among the top six luxury sedans in the world by no less an authority than Car and Driver which opined, "Frankly, there are few cars that feel as refined, as cultivated, as of-a-piece as the Audi V8, particularly during long-distance cruising."

in its onward rush." And swift. Zero to 60 mph takes just 8.7 seconds.

It should be. This engine is a graduate course in high-technology powerplants.

Another Audi engineering feat: internal brake calipers that not only provide a 17 percent larger brake surface, they're less likely to overheat or fade.

Like the Ilmore V8 engine that won last year's Indy 500, it makes great use of aluminum and magnesium alloys to minimize weight.

Its leichtmetall block doesn't use cylinder liners. Instead, the bores are etched to expose a surface of silicon crystals

(a substance so hard it has a more common application—grinding wheels).

Our V8 crankshaft is built using technology from the aircraft industry. While still red-hot, the shaft is twisted to optimally align the counterweights for smooth running.

Like the Corvette LT1 V8, it breathes deeply with 4 cams and 32 valves feeding 8 flattened dome combustion chambers. And like the Porsche 928S4, its fuel injection is state-of-the-art. Adaptive Bosch Motronic. The result is horsepower and lots of it—240 from its 3.6 liters.

None of which is squandered or allowed to escape the control of the driver. That required the invention of the world's first fully auto-

 an ingenious adaptation of ABS. The system uses the

 tion. Any wheel slip is detected within 1/50 of a second and compensated fer as much as 100 percent of

We've Even Engineered A Better Way To Own An Audi. Or Lease One.

Through June 30th, because of special incentives from Audi of America, your Audi dealer can offer you substantial savings on any of our cars. He can also give you special financing with annual percentage rates as low as 4.9 percent.*

You'll find leasing an Audi just as affordable. Right now your dealer can give you a 3-year rate comparable to most 5-year rates with no money down on our 3-Year Test Drive.** A program so popular, the number of people leasing Audis increased 247 percent in just the last year.

Either way, you get the full protection of the Audi Advantage. It includes all the coverage of our comprehensive limited warranty plus no-charge scheduled maintenance for 3 years or 50,000 miles.

This means all scheduled maintenance, all routine oil changes, even wheel alignments are paid for. Even normal wear items, like brake pads and wiper blades, are covered. It also includes 10 years of corrosion protection and 24-hour roadside assistance! Your dealer will gladly fill you in on all the details.

In short, the Audi Advantage pays for virtually everything but gasoline. (An owner does have a few responsibilities, of course; so there's some inevitable fine print about negligence and accidents.)
