Child's quick thinking saves mother

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

Jane Brown of Grosse Pointe Farms spent Mother's Day recovering from recent emergency surgery.

But she says that if it weren't for the quick thinking of her young children, she wouldn't have been able to celebrate the day at all.

At about 8 p.m. on May 2, Brown was watching television with her two children, Katie and Andrew Barnes, who are 8 and 6. Her husband Glenn, an attorney, was in Washington, D.C., serving two weeks of active duty with the Naval Reserve.

Brown didn't feel well and stood up to go to the bathroom. As soon as she left the room, she collapsed. "We heard a noise and then we heard her say, 'help me," Katie said. "Her eyes went up in her head and were going. ..." Andrew said, demonstrating by rolling his "I was shaking, I was so scared," Katie said. But she had enough presence of mind to dial 911 and send Andrew to the street to flag down the ambulance. Within minutes, Grosse Pointe Farms police and emergency medical technicians were at her house. Less than two hours later, she was in surgery.

Brown had been pregnant, but the pregnancy was in her fallopian tube, which had ruptured. More than two liters - nearly two-thirds - of her blood had collected in her abdomen.

After a short hospital stay, Brown was released a few days before Mother's Day.

"All I've thought of since that day was what if it hadn't been so easy? What if I hadn't told them how to call for help?" she said.

And what if she hadn't let them watch their favorite show. "Rescue 911," shown Tuesdays at 8 p.m. on CBS, Channel 2.

"They watch that show all the time; they love it," she said. "I think from watching that show, they knew what to do." Brown also praised the Farms EMS and the police officer who stayed with the children and called their grandparents.

Neighbors, nurses and doctors have said that they have been talking with their children, asking them if they would know what to do in a similar situation.

Grosse Pointe's 911 system has only been in existence since October 1988.

Katie turned 9 on her birthday last week, and as her mother hugged her appreciatively, she said, "Katie was my first Mother's Day present and this year she's gone and saved me.'

Wind gusts topple mighty oak

Tom Mossman bought this house on Kensington in the '70s and set about redoing it.

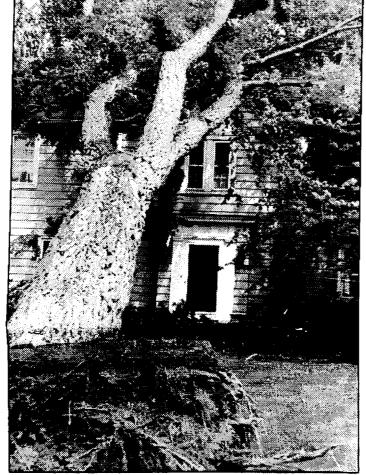

He did everything, he said, from the floors to the walls to the ceiling to the siding. And in two weeks, the upstairs bathroom would have been complete, bringing an end to his renovating days.

But last Thursday, high winds brought down the American elm tree in his front yard, cause an unknown amount of damage to the front of the house.

It fell slowly, Mossman was told, so it didn't puncture the roof or cause damage to the inside of the house.

Mossman said he also believes a leaky water main which was repaired last year - may have undermined the root system, making the tree weak and susceptible to a heavy wind.

War Memorial buys property next door

By Dan Jarvis Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial Association has bought the house and lakefront property next door, north of the War Memorial Center.

The acquisition represents the War Memorial's first real estate purchase since it was established in 1949.

Jane Kay, chairman of the board of directors, said: "The need to expand our space and facilities has been a top priority of the association's board of directors for more than a decade. As anyone who has tried to schedule an event here already knows, the War Memorial operates at capacity and is generally booked a year in advance.'

The 15-room house and estimated 50,000 square feet of property was purchased from the John C. Uznis Co. for more than $1 million. Funding for the purchase was derived in part from the center's recent Capital Funds Drive.

buffer to the nearby residential area and will take some of the pressure off the well-used Alger House, thus helping to preserve the national historic site.

While the house is the first real estate purchase by the War Memorial Association, the home is its third acquisition.

In 1949, the War Memorial received the Russell Alger House as a gift from the Alger family. The Fries Auditorium and Ballroom were made possible through a gift from William H. Fries, with furnishings contributed by Walter B. Ford II. The auditorium and ballroom were dedicated in 1962.

And in September 1977, the Center for Arts and Crafts was opened, with contributions from several Grosse Pointers.

On June 30, after nearly four decades of helping, shaping and getting to know thousands of children, Mary Thorn will retire from University Liggett School.

The decision, after 37 years at the school, was not an easy one, she said. After a year of mulling it over and discussing it with family and friends, the head of the Lower School decided it was time to step down.

"It's going to be different, after going 80 m.p.h. from 8 a.m. until whatever time my work is done each day," she said. "But I know it's going to be good and happy.'

Just as she looked forward to every day of her career at University Liggett, she is looking forward to retirement.

"It's hard to retire," she said. "Every year we have new goals to meet, and there's always something new to reach for. I feel good about where the lower school is right now, and I think it's good to leave on a high."

After retirement, she will indulge in simple pleasures walking, traveling, visiting friends and family.

"It will be nice, late in the afternoon to be able to pick up a book," she said. "Plus, who knows what else is out there?"

Thorn, a Grosse Pointe Farms resident, is a quiet beacon of peace in the somewhat hectic surroundings of the lower school. In 1953, after six years of teaching third grade, Thorn accepted the position of the lower school

The lower school at the time consisted of children in grades K-3. Gradually, as the lower school added grades, it began to grow and now includes nearly 300 students in grades K-5.

"There's nothing else I wanted to do," she said. Then she rethinks: If she had it to do over but she emphatically denies that she wants to have another chance - she would, she thinks, See POINTER, page 4A

Cadieux farmhouse may become one of two single-family homes Owner, developer, residents reach agreement

By John Minnis Assistant Editor

The historic Cadieux farmhouse will be saved after all, at least if Grosse Pointe City officials approve of a new plan for the site.

The residents near the historic home at Notre Dame and Jefferson have reached an agreement with the property owner, Peter Kauffman, and developer Christopher Blake of the Blake Co. to save the farmhouse and build a second home on the site.

A public hearing to rezone the property to single-family residential will be held Monday, May 21, during the regular City Council meeting, which begins at 7:30 p.m. at City Hall. Last November, Blake probe added. A second condo was to be built on the site with the two dwellings connected at the garages.

The nearby residents, however, opposed the plan, which required rezoning the property from single-family to two-family. The residents objected to having so much structure on the site and preferred that just the farmhouse occupy the site. They further objected to the rezoning of the property away from singlefamily residential.

In January, after a questionable two-thirds approval, the City Council voted 4 to 2 with one abstention to rezone the property to two-family residential. The nearby residents, through attorney William D. Gilbride Jr., filed a suit against the 1830s farmhouse into a condomi- city claiming the City Council's vote did not meet the two-thirds requirement. Gilbride said the residents he represents have agreed to a plan by Blake to build to single-family homes on the site, with one of the homes incorporating the existing Cadieux farmhouse structure. He said they furthermore agree with the required lot split.

He said that if the city approves Blake's plan for two single-family homes, then his clients have agreed to drop the suit against the city.

Blake's layout calls for a lot split, with the existing farmhouse to be refurbished and a kitchen and garage added. The house will be 2,107 square feet and have a lot coverage of 21.9 percent.

The second house will maintain the architectural style, have an attached garage and will be 2,374 feet square. The lot coverage will be 29.7 percent.

China visit

2A

A group of 34 Americans were invited to visit China by the Beijing Overseas Travel Corporation to view first-hand the China of today, nearly a year after the events at Tiananmen Square.

Grosse Pointers in the group were, from left, Robert G. Edgar, William H. Klingbell, Myrtle Everett and Dr. Robert C. Everett with U.S. Consul General for Shanghai Frank Wardlaw.

The fact-finding trip was co-hosted by Beijing Overseas Travel Corp., Northwest Airlines and Sheraton Hotel Corp. U.S. Exchanges, 18100 Mack Ave., coordinated the two-week tour. In the past nine years, U.S. Exchanges has arranged several dozen trips to mainland China, enabling more than 700 Americans to get a first-hand experience.

Soviet women speak at War Memorial

Three Soviet women - leaders in their country - gave Grosse Pointers a glimpse of what glasnost and perestroika have meant to women in Russia when they spoke to an overflow audience of 300 at the War Memorial May 8.

The theme - that all women around the world must work together to end war and violence recurred throughout their talks which followed a dinner sponsored by the American Association of University Women and the League of Women Voters.

The Soviet visitors were part of a 25-member delegation which came from Washington, D.C., where with American women, they worked on a proposed world summit agenda to be presented to Presidents Bush and Gorbechev in June.

The three women - a magazine editor, a historian and a textile plant manager — spoke of gains for women under glasnost and perestroika. Valeria Basharina, editor-in-chief of "Working Women's Magazine," told of women, spoke of her current efforts to increase the number of Plymouth, Port Huron and Birwomen in management positions mingham. and to improve health care services for women and children.

Kate Rostiashivili, Soviet labor expert, explained that until glasnost, she would not be able, as an unmarried woman and a non-party member, to travel abroad. She also commented on the need for adopting democratic practices in her country's economic structure.

In response to questions about ethnic problems in the U.S.S.R., Rostiashivili expressed the hope that force will never be used to settle such disputes.

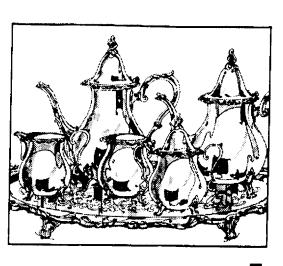

Myrtle Everett, a member of the Michigan planning committee for the Soviet visit here and a member of both AAUW and LWV, arranged for the women to visit Grosse Pointe. She also served as panel moderator for the evening and fielded audience questions that ranged from day care to unrest in Lithuania and Gorbechev's chances for survival. Kay McDonald, LWV co-president, said she was "pleased but not surprised," over the number of women and men attending the dinner. School board tries again for new library site plan

After a few months of regrouping, the school board discussed a draft of a site plan for a new library at Brownell Middle School Monday night.

The proposal, just a draft at this point, attempts to answer some of the concerns by Brownell residents whose vocal opposition caused the Grosse Pointe Farms City Council to deny approval for the first site plan in April.

David Osler, of the architectural firm of Osler-Milling which has been working with the board for several years, presented the cade. plan to the board.

To allay the concerns of safety regarding an access drive between the proposed library parking lot and the Brownell parking lot, Osler eliminated the drive and added more parking spaces. The parking lot would be hidden by trees.

The building was also moved 110 feet back from the proposed plan in the hopes that it would erase the concern that the building was too close to the street.

Osler said moving the building back will also allow for more planting of trees to soften the faOsler said the revised plan should not cost any more than the plan rejected by the Farms council, except for, perhaps, the landscaping budget. The building was also flipped, so the garden originally in the back is now in front. There is no loss of field space in the new proposal: There will still be three diamonds and two soccer fields.

Although only a draft at this point, the proposal is already getting some negative comments. One neighbor of Brownell told he or several of his neighbors will support any new library at Brownell.

School administrators discussed the merits of an alternative plan submitted to the Farms council by two local residents which called for moving the library back and changing the entrance.

"But after three hours, we came to the conclusion that we could not bring harmony to that site-plan," said Superintendent Ed Shine.

The board also discussed asking the residents of Grosse the board that there is no way Pointe whether they really want a new library. The possibility of a community survey will be discussed at future meetings.

The board asked Shine to find out how much money it would cost to create a new site plan to present to the Farms council. To date, the board has spent $159,000 on the library project.

But some members of the board expressed frustration about the entire project.

Board President Jon Gandelot said the community survey could be a helpful tool in deciding which direction the board should go, before spending more money.

"I think we should wait for the community to come to us and tell us they need a new library instead of trying to push it groundswell of support for a new library?'

But trustee Gloria Konsler disagreed, saying the board had been elected to lead the people and should move forward in the best interest of the community.

Neighborhood Club Director John Bruce has been involved with the library project since its inception nearly three years ago. He is also varsity girls' softball coach at Grosse Pointe South High School, and he says he knows what it's like to be behind with two down in the seventh inning.

"That's the hardest time to keep playing. But, board, I beg you, keep playing," he said.

The board will discuss the so hard," he said. "Where is the next step at its June 4 meeting.

Restrain pets, protect carriers

Each day of the year, except Sundays and holidays, letter carriers encounter one of the most threatening of everyday hazards - unrestrained dogs. Too many carriers suffer the trauma of a dog bite after these encounters, an average of nine every working day.

Last year nearly 3,000 letter carriers were attacked by dogs while delivering the mail. In the Detroit Division (482, 481, 480 and 483 zip code area) 149 letter carriers sustained dog bite injuries in 1989. Many of the injuries were serious, and some of the victims suffered permanent disfigurement. The cost to the Postal Service and dog owners who subsequently paid both costs and punitive damages in many dog bite cases exceeded $3 million.

Beyond the protection offered by considerate pet owners, who keep their dogs from running loose, letter carriers are armed only with a small can of spray repellent and the satchel containing the mail. The harmless oil of pepper spray is used to immobilize an attacking dog for a short time until the carrier can escape from the area. The satchel is used as a shield to distract the dog and give it something to bite in place of the carrier.

The problem isn't with dogs, however, it's with dog owners who do not restrain their pets and risk lawsuits and interruption of home mail delivery.

The Postal Service will seek to recover damages when a carrier is bitten, and counsels its injured carriers wishing to sue on their own. The Postal Service will also interrupt mail delivery where loose dogs are a problem - including, in extreme cases, halting service to entire neighborhoods.

Pet owners can help protect their pets, themselves and their letter carriers by recognizing ineir responsibilities to keep their pets controlled.

In 40 years, teachers and teaching have changed, but the common thread throughout her career, Thorn says, is the children.

"Children are basically the same, but family lifestyles have changed considerably," she said. Outside influences, including sports, television, travel opportunities and various other activities, pull today's children in almost too many directions.

"As teachers we have to find ways of responding to those changes," Thorn said. "We have to find different ways of teaching because of the extra stimuli. City airport foes now fear a 'done deal'

Is the proposed expansion of the Detroit City Airport already a "done deal" with only the formalities left before the official announcement that the master plan has been approved along with state and federal financing?

That fear expressed by local foes of the project appears to be justified by a reply from the state Department of Transportation to a Grosse Pointe resident's inquiry about the proposed airport expansion.

After explaining that the department's mission is to provide Michigan citizens "with quality, safe and efficient transport facilities of all modes," the letter said that "studies done as parts of the master plan have shown that, from a state transportation systems perspective, an expanded Detroit City Airport could fill many roles."

Among the roles are convenient access to east side and downtown commercial interests by businesses using corporate aircraft, access to educational facilities by those seeking jobs and careers in aviation and aeromechanical engineering, support for current industries and businesses, attraction of new industries and businesses and economic development, and support of essential community services such as police and Coast Guard monitoring and rescue activities.

The letter reported that economic studies "found that $73.1 million a year in economic activity is generated in your area through the operation and use of Detroit City Airport." It added, "Perhaps more importantly, $22.6 million in payroll and 1,333 jobs each year can be attributed to the facility, both at the facility and in the surrounding area."

The letter did not report on the status of the environmental studies that define impacts on soil, toxic materials, noise levels, wildflife, historic areas and items unique to each airport, but it did say, rather belatedly in our opinion, that "further development of the airport will not be supported unless a significant benefit to the residents of the surrounding area can be found."

It is not just the wording of the letter that hints at a "done deal." It is also the way the Detroit city administration has operated in the past in obtaining final approval for the Poletown project for GM, the Chrysler project on Jefferson Avenue and the deal for the sale of the Ford auditorium to Comerica Bank.

In each case, by the time the public hears about the details, the city with the support of the Democratic state administration and the commercial interests involved has started the project rolling with such momentum that it is almost assured of completion despite citizen protests and despite a lack of planning that has cost Detroit millions of dollars in additional costs.

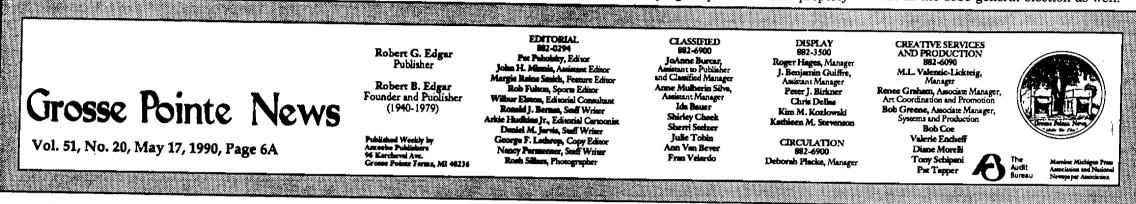

In seeking to slow down the airport expansion juggernaut, Grosse Pointe interests are trying to preserve their property values and protect themselves against the noise, air pollution and dangers caused by huge jets flying over a heavily populated part of the metropolitan area. In short, the community is seeking to protect and preserve its quality of life.

What value does that quality of life have to the bureaucrats in the Detroit city administration, in Lansing's state administration and in the Washington labyrinth who are planning an airport expansion that will gravely endanger the Pointes' way of life? Not much, from what we've read and heard.

Somehow we're not impressed by the DOT's assurances: "If development of the facility is undertaken, it will be done in a way which minimizes the impact on residents and business in the area." That comment just adds to the impression it's already a "done deal."

If it's not, perhaps Pointers still can express their opposition not only to the long list of city, state and federal officials cited by Rep. William R. Bryant Jr. in his column in the Grosse Pointe News last week, but to the White House itself.

We think it's possible that the Republican administration might hear the complaints of a Republican island in Democratic Wayne County, an island which strongly supported George Bush not only in the 1980 Michigan presidential primary but in the 1988 general election as well.

War Memorial expands again

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial Association's acquisition of the home adjacent to its present property, just announced this week, should make p ssible further expansion of the commun 'y center's educational, cultural and patriot. ' service to the entire Grosse Pointe community.

What that really means, of course, is that the War Memorial will be even better prepared to serve its mission as a center for lifelong learning and enrichment that helps the people of the Pointes preserve and even improve their quality of life.

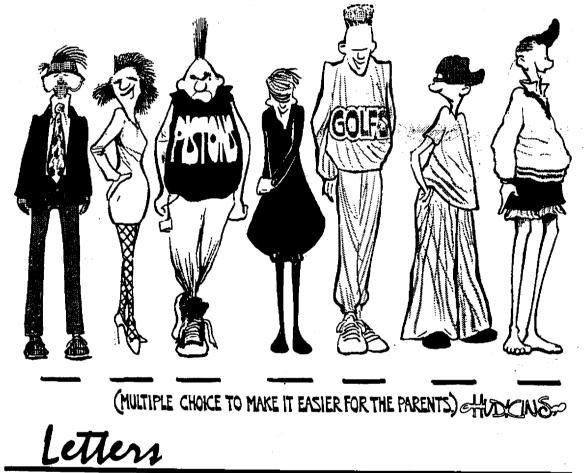

After a search for added space that has been under way for several years, the association has acquired from the John C. Uznis Co. for in excess of $1 million the 15room home just to the north of the center that had been occupied until recently by John Griffin. Total cost of the property, including expenses of renovation, is estimated at $1.4 million. Funds were allocated from the center's recent capital funds drive. The new acquisition, which will serve as a buffer to the nearby residential area, will also relieve some of the pressure and use on the Alger House and thus help preserve it as a state and national historic site as well as a valuable community asset in its own right.

The purchase of the home becomes the third addition to the War Memorial's facilities since the association in 1949 received as a gift the former home of the Russell A. Alger Jr. family: and an of belief of the association

The Fries Auditorium and ballroom, made possible by a gift from William H. Fries, with the furnishings contributed by Walter B. Ford II were dedicated in 1962. The Center for Arts and Crafts, opened on Sept. 7, 1977, was made possible by contributions from many Grosse Pointers.

As a non-profit organization, the War Memorial is 67 percent self-supporting and expects to maintain that record with acquisition of the new residence. That means for every $1 the association receives in program and registration fees, it spends $1.50

The question of a High School Dress Code.

The lot, with 120 feet of lake frontage and a depth of 400 to 500 feet, increases the center's property by almost a third. Plans for use of the facility, still incomplete, include serving as a short-term guest residence for visiting dignitaries and as an additional site for art exhibits, classes, meetings and conferences.

In addition, it will also become the site for the non-profit, local origination community programming for cable television which, until purchase of the residence, the center had planned to house in an addition to the Alger House. for operating costs, with voluntary contributions from the community making up the differences.

Its annual fund drive raised $253,837 in 1989 from more than 4,000 donors. Its 1989 services included the sponsorship or hosting of more than 4,500 individual events with more than 189,000 people attending. It truly is a busy center of activity for the Pointes and all Pointers.

With its new space, the War Memorial obviously is well-positioned for a new era of expansion to meet the growing educational, cultural, civic and patriotic needs of the community.

Martha: A senior with spunk

Even in this bastion of Republicanism, we suspect that a good many people admire the way Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths reacted to efforts to force her into retirement.

Perhaps she had hinted she would not run again but like everyone else she has a right to change her mind. Furthermore, she could not have missed the clumsy and all-too-public efforts of the governor's friends to line up a "suitable" successor well before she announced her own intentions. And she had reason to be miffed that the list of potentials did not include a woman.

The news media do not come off too well in this episode in which almost all of them predicted she would quit. Afterward, most of the print and electronic media complained in effect that the lieutenant governor had doublecrossed them by changing her mind. But who gave them the original assurances that she would retire? Not Martha. Instead, the word apparently came from Blanchard cronies and aspirants for Martha's job.

Nobody likes to be taken for granted. Yet from all accounts the lieutenant governor never became the insider in the Blanchard administration that she had every right to expect to become in her eight years in the office. True, senior citizens are often rebuffed in their efforts to continue to serve but she deserved better treatment than she got from the Blanchard administration.

True, Martha Griffiths has a tart tongue. Reportedly she is sometimes difficult to get along with. And she did retain an independent view on political and other subjects that annoyed the governor's yes-men because it was not always consistent with Blanchard's own efforts to downplay differences of opinion in his administration.

Sometimes the critics forget that Martha Griffiths has a public record she can be proud of, regardless of what happens to her this year. She was Michigan's first woman congresswoman, a leading advocate of feminist causes, including the Equal Rights Amendment, the state's first woman lieutenant governor and always an independent thinker.

In fact, Martha Griffiths no doubt often annoys Jim Blanchard because she is the antithesis of the governor in many respects. He likes to stage-manage events, keep information closely held within his circle and, since the 1983 tax debacle, take no chances of leading any unpopular causes.

So we say, good for Martha, a senior with spunk!

To the Editor:

We recently wrote to Sen. Carl Levin expressing our opposition to the proposed "Detroit City Airport expansion." About a month later we received a response from Senator Levin.

We suggest that other residents who have received unsatisfactory responses from their elected representatives write and tell them that vague responses that they will somehow "take care of things" are not acceptable. Below is our letter to Senator Levin:

Dear Senator Levin:

I have just received your reply to my letter expressing my opposition to the proposed Detroit City Airport expansion. Your reply is totally unsatisfactory since it has told me nothing about your position on the airport expansion. I oppose any more expansion. The expansion which has already taken place has already subjected east side residents to almost constant air traffic and noise. The proposed expansion would entail literally constant air traffic and intolerable noise due to the larger size of the planes. I resent my tax dollars being used to destroy my peace and security in my own home.

As a person who is committed to my community, 1, and many others like me, will hold you as my elected representative directly responsible should this expansion take place. I believe that you should be responsible and responsive enough to look beyond partisan politics and truly represent the interests of your consitutents. Airport ex-

A fable

Because the evening was the most beautiful time of each day, the man who lived at the edge of town celebrated it. The nighttime was greeted with a simple song, then with a moment of silent contemplation. When the night had fully come, the man felt peaceful.

Sometimes neighbors or out-oftowners would join the man and would celebrate the coming of the night with him, but he never invited them. Some laughed at his singing, which was breathy, others were oddly touched. When they were old enough to go out without their parents, the town's children gathered at the brick house on the edge of town — it was a rite of passage, and a minor rebellion because they were always told to stay away: "He's not like us," the parents said. This went on for years and years and the man in the house at the edge of town never bothered anybody and nobody ever bothered him.

One hot summer day the man with the big smile visited the man at sundown. He followed the breathy singing coming from around the house and watched the man celebrate the evening. Because it was getting dark and because the man with the big smile was frightened by what he saw, he ran back to town and didn't stop until he reached the street light in front of his house. He leaned on it until he caught his breath, then he put his smile back on and went inside.

The next morning he went to the police and told them what he saw — as a candidate for mayor, he was concerned about all things in his city and he did not want "weird" things going on that might upset his voters.

So he wrote a speech about it. And he gave the speech at a rally. And people were scared.

"It's wrong to celebrate darkness," cried the lady with the big hat.

"Why can't he celebrate the morning?" yelled the man with the blue suit. "It's a better time of day."

"Elect me and people won't think they can get away with this sort of weirdness," said the man with the big smile. His wife kissed him and people cheered. Then the rumors about the man who lived in the house at the edge of town started.

"One time he picked flowers from the park," someone said. (They forgot to say that he gave them to a little girl who was crying because she was lost.)

"He never paid city taxes," said another. (The fact that he lived outside city limits and didn't have to pay them didn't really matter.) And someone said his dog had disappeared and was last seen near the house at the edge of town.

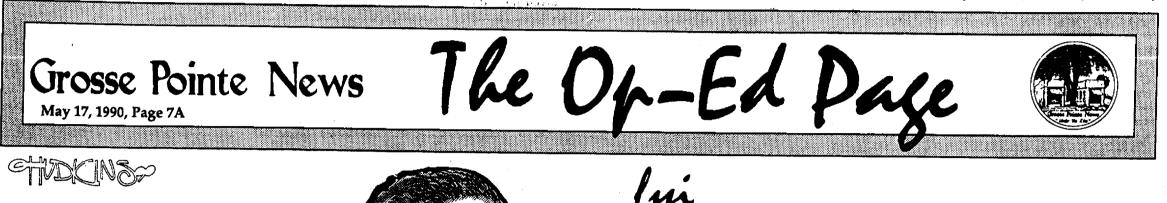

As the man with the big smile campaigned to put an end to the weirdness of celebrating the night, the serious-faced man also running for mayor campaigned to lower taxes and to bring more jobs and to make the town a nicer place to live, but no one listened. They wanted the weirdness stopped.

And all the while the man who lived in the house at the edge of town celebrated the coming of evening as he always did. But it bothered him that people yelled at him when he only wanted quiet.

It also bothered him that some people who didn't like the man with the big smile came to celebrate evening. They brought blankets, they brought food, they brought guitars, and they sang his song loud and long. It made him sad that he couldn't sing his song as he wanted to anymore, though, and he began to wonder when things would be back to normal again. Or if they ever would. And he wondered if the peace he used to feel when evening fell would ever come back.

On election day, the man who lived in the house at the edge of town packed his few belongings and left town, and at the same time the man with the big smile was declared the next mayor.

One year later, when people were mad that there were no jobs, and that taxes were raised, and that life wasn't good, they at least took comfort that there wasn't any weirdness in town. It was quiet, it was silent, but every now and then someone commented that the sunset wasn't as sweet as it was before, but they weren't quite sure why.

Grosse Pointes and also for taking to task what is called the "Grosse Pointe Community Rink." Many of your readers may not be aware that this rink is held privately by a group of doctors and is not in Grosse Pointe but across Mack Avenue in Detroit.

When visiting teams from Trenton, Southgate, Wyandotte and St. Clair Shores come to compete against our South High School and the travel team of the Grosse Pointe Hockey Association, we are continually embarrassed. Each of these suburbs have their own beautiful community rinks.

As Rob pointed out, the ice surface is rough and mounded instead of flat and smooth. The boards are uneven and are on the edge of being dangerous. The showers are so disgusting in some of the locker rooms that over the years many players elect not to use them. They prefer to go out on cold winter nights still bathed in perspiration and wait until they get home. Not only do players have to put up with the conditions, but we are required to pay far higher rates for ice time than many other rinks. This all comes from having absentee investors with a monopoly.

Our family has been involved in hockey with three boys for the past 16 years. My wife Julie served on the board of the Grosse Pointe Hockey Association. There is a tremendous interest in this sport in Grosse Pointe. As you know, we have two high school teams with fine records of achievement. Currently the Grosse Pointe Hockey Association has about 450 boys and some girls playing organized hockey. There are several senior leagues which play regularly. The Grosse Pointe Skating Club, which uses it for figure skating, has approximately 100 members. Additionally, during weekends many, many use it just to enjoy skating when no organized activities are taking place.

University Liggett School has a rink which it keeps busy with intramural skating as well as varsity boy's and girl's hockey. Certainly if one private school can find justification to have built and maintained a rink for over 15 years, our community with its much larger base, should see the need for such a facility.

Jeremiah Bourke President South Hockey For'em Club

Prevent expansion To the Editor:

Further expansion at Detroit City Airport can be prevented. The question is not whether it is possible to prevent expansion, it is whether we are willing to do the work necessary to prevent expansion — whether we are willing to do our part as private citizens to make representative government work so that those in a position to protect our interests do so.

In order to make representative government work for us, we must inform our representatives of our opposition to this plan and we must urge them to join us in our efforts to prevent funding from being granted for this project. We must ask them to accurately reflect our opposition by actively opposing expansion plans themselves.

Elected representatives can influence the decisions of the agencies whose assistance is essential to making this plan a reality. Expansion cannot proceed without provision of funds from the Federal Aviation Administration and infrastructure assistance from the Michigan Department of Transportation. These agencies dispense our tax dollars. We must inform them, directly through our letters and indirectly through our representatives, that we do not want our tax dollars put to work to construct a facility whose operation will destroy the quality of life in our community.

A letter-writing campaign can constitute an important part of an effective opposition to airport expansion. Elected representatives are accustomed to silence on the part of their constituents. They know that apathy and indifference are far more common than communication. They also know that, if a matter is sufficiently serious to elicit an outpouring of letters from concerned citizens, that they must respond or run the risk of being replaced by someone else who will. This is an election year. Elected representatives are even more susceptible to the pressures of public opinion than they usually are. It is for us to apply that pressure, by writing letters and by encouraging others to do the same.

We must commit ourselves to the work of informing this community of the peril in which it is placed. We must arouse a sleeping citizenry to action now, while expansion can still be averted. We cannot leave our neighbors in a condition of ignorance; we cannot wait until the thunder of jets overhead awakens them and informs them that the time for effective opposition has passed.

ments of the Shores and the Park have mailed information sheets to their residents to alert them to the proposed expansion. Regrettably, the Woods, Farms and City have not yet done so. They must be prevailed upon to do the same. Unprecedented peril requires unprecedented response, not only by individual citizens but by all entities which can serve as a channel for communicating the facts. Local governments can be of great assistance in getting the word out. Private citizens must urge their local governments to do so, and local governments must be responsive to the request. Attendance at city council meetings by citizens who want to see their local government take an active part in spreading the word will assure councils that their decision to make city channels available is supported by their residents.

Attendance at council meetings is also important in order to show citizen Bit A.: port for the hiring of an action-oriented aviation expert who can act as a lobbyist with the FAA when one is identified by the Grosse Pointe-Harper Woods Airport Study Committee. We want our councils to know that we approve of spending money to hire an appropriate, active advocate.

Elections this November will provide us with the opportunity to elect candidates on state and federal levels who openly and actively oppose expansion. Wisdom dictates that we identify these candidates and assist them in their campaigns for elective office.

Action is essential, for each of us as private citizens and for those who represent us, because the essence of effective opposition is action. Please join with us at City Airport Opposition Association and work with us, now.

Inexcusable

To the Editor: H I am angered by the heading of (the Detroit Free Press) April 29 editorial "Racial Pointes." The editorial itself brought attention to the Racial Justice Center of Grosse Pointe and that organization's need for additional contributions. That's fine. What is unjustifiable and inexcusable is the slam of all the Grosse Pointe communities with the "Racial Pointes" heading. This worn-out generality implies that the five Grosse Pointes are racist communities.

The Free Press has a habit of throwing the occasional editorial beanball at the Grosse Pointes and other affluent suburbs by serving up the old "racist" label. The timeliness of this latest high, hard one is rather transparent, indeed predictable, in light of recent charges by some of Detroit's black leadership that the Free Press itself is racist.

Allow me to set the record straight. The people of all the Grosse Pointes are no more or no less racist than people anywhere else — no better or nor worse, nor more perfect or less flawed. Simply, we are part of the human race, not apart from

Redistricting: Pointes could lose

Are we going to lose both our congressmen?

Rep. George Crockett, who represents the Park and City, is retiring. Now comes news that Rep. Dennis Hertel may be tapped to run for lieutenant governor, with Governor Blanchard.

While Hertel appears to want to stay in Congress, he has the same problem that Jim Blanchard had 10 years ago. Congressional redistricting may squeeze out Hertel as it did Blanchard.

After the 1980 census, Michigan went from 19 to 18 members of the U.S. House. Blanchard was told by the Democratic Party, "We need to knock out your seat, but we'll back you for governor." Thus our gift from the Democrats.

This time, with the 1980 census, Michigan will probably lose two more U.S. House seats and go from 18 to 16.

There will be tremendous pressure to assure two Detroit seats but that's all Detroit's population will warrant. So Rep. Dennis Hertel's district could be "pushed" out of Detroit and Wayne County. But when he gets pushed north, he bumps into a more senior member, Rep. Dave Bonior. Thus Hertel's problem, potentially Blanchard's and that of the Democratic Party. To run Dennis Hertel for lieutenant governor, the Democrats must refuse to renominate present Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths, who announced on May 10 she intends to run again.

Was the governor overjoyed? Hardly! His response was that a decision on a lieutenant governor nominee would "be made in

Hard work plus dedication equals state math champ

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

Today is a big day for Parcells Middle School eighth-grader Jeremy Cieslak. He takes off for Washington, D.C., to compete against 200 other students from across the country in a program called Mathcounts.

He earned the trip by being the top competitor in the state Mathcounts tournament. Cieslak's top rating in this tournament is only one part of his prize-winning equation.

He is also a member of the team which went to the Michigan Math League tourney and took first place.

He is a member of the team which will be competing in the Michigan Council of Teachers of Mathematics tournament this weekend. But he won't be participating there since he'll be in Washington.

"Math comes pretty easy to me," said the shy Cieslak. "There's usually a formula that you can apply.

"Jeremy could operate at any level math I could teach him," said Cieslak's teacher, Alan Silveision. "He'd learn it, then he'd pass me by.'

Cieslak is excited about his the White House and a visit going, he says, for fun, and if he wins, it's just gravy.

"We're going to really enjoy ourselves," Silverston swAR ship, a trip to Space Camp, and "We're going to de-emphasize the stressful competition. He's got as good a shot at the national title as anyone else. It just depends if he has a good day."

The top prize varies from year to year, but last year's prizewinner took home a $25,000 scholarmore importantly, the interest of several colleges and universities. Cieslak knows his figures in geometry and algebra I and II. and because of Silverston's one hour a day, three times a week coaching, he's not only accurate, ond rounds. The winner of that then takes on the eighth place he's fast.

Mathcounts is both team and individual competition. The team, which also includes William Stephens, Gordon Steil and Thomas Fennell with Michael Kim and Trisha Morrow as alternates, answers several questions as a team, determining the team winner.

Then the 10 top individuals, based on the number of questions they answered correctly, compete in a bump off.

The 10th place student competes against the ninth place student in a best of three 45-secthen takes on the eighth place student.

Cieslak was ranked fourth in the final 10, but beat the three above him to take home the state's top honors.

"Mathcounts is a program designed to bring attention to math," Silverston said. "It's to make people feel a little more positive about math - the way they do about football and basketball."

According to Silverston, it is.

Although he's only 13, Cieslak is hoping to enter the University of Michigan's engineering school when he graduates.

Students experience hockey, history, hamburgers in Russia By Ronald J. Bernas

Staff Writer

For nine days, 65 students and chaperones from University Liggett School took an eye-opening trip abroad, from Helsinki to Moscow to Leningrad.

They played hockey and learned that although the Cold War may seem to be over, its chill can still be felt. And they also had their plans changed slightly, thanks to a little thing called the course of history.

Several people kept diaries of the trip, others remembered. What they wrote and remembered brings a new picture to a people experiencing glasnost, McDonald's and emerging personal freedom.

Helsinki is a beautiful, beautiful city - with beautiful, beautiful people and children. And the weather was incredibly warm about 50 - and the entire city was out walking. We were dropped off at the train station, and left to wander for a couple of hours until it was time to board the train for Moscow. (We) finally boarded about 4:30 in the afternoon. Our compartment was about 6 by 6 and four of us shared. However, there were four bunks (narrow, not terribly clean) and within a very short period of time, I was out like a light. We were rudely awakened when we crossed the Finland/ Soviet border.

- from the diary of Barbara Stone, chaperone

It was very eerie once we crossed the border into the Soviet Union. Soviet guards looked at our passports very closely to make sure the kids were who they said they were. The kids were told to be quiet and not to mouth off. They checked high and low in the berths, making sure no one else was in there. They were really intimidating. (We were passed through.) The countryside is really depressing, there would be farms all around, then right in the middle of nothing there would be a small cluster of houses and a big statue of Lenin. It was really weird.

–John Fowler, Thockey coach," trip leader

In Moscow - bleak - everyone dressed in dark clothing. Got on a nice bus and went to hotel. Hotel had high ceilings, refrigerator, TV, a semi-living room - it was great. Took train to hockey game number one. People at the game gather and flock trying to trade Soviet pins and coats and hats. We win 7-4. On the way home we pass McDonald's - a ine completely around the block. Passed St. Basil's Church great. I never thought I would see it up close.

was very big. Everything was Lenin's Tomb. The wait w really cheap, like boxer shorts for a dollar, but it's not very good quality. We went to Mc-Donald's - there was a half hour wait, but I got three hamburgers, fries, Coke and a shake all for $1.10. It was worth it. -Abiragi

It's kind of weird to be in a McDonald's and see two Soviet armed guards. It's exactly like our McDonald's but three times the size. My wife said Russian women were washing in the bathrooms, and they were lining up to use the air hand driers and doing their hair. -Fowler

We visited Lenin's Mausoleum - cool. He looked fake though, lots of security guards. -Paul

It was pretty cool, but it was kind of spooky. Then we went to Estonia, on a Russian plane. It was, like, the worst thing, ever. It was dirty, it was small, people didn't want to put their heads on the back of their chairs. -Abiraei

I think the pilot was drunk because the whole flight was turbulent. -Paul

I think the pilot was an old army man because we came in for a speed landing.

-Fowler

Apparently the first group had a really awful pilot, and were all a bit shaken by the trip. But our flight was fine.

-Stone

—Abiragi

In Estonia we took a tour of the city and because of everything that's going on over there, the tour guide got teary-eyed when she talked about the country. It was funny, though, we passed a Russian church and she said it had no architectural value and that it was ugly, but we passed an Estonian church and she told us how it was the most beautiful thing.

When we returned to the hotel after the hockey game, we were informed that two-thirds of our rooms had to be vacated immediately. We were scheduled to leave the hotel for the train station at 9 p.m. anyway, but had expected to be allowed to stay in our rooms until then. To put this day in perspective, this was Thursday, the 22nd of March. About 5 p.m. that day the Russian Army had begun to assemble in large numbers on the Lithuanian border (less than 200 miles away), and the Communist Party of Estonia was gathering quickly for meetings dealing with their secession. The atmosphere in the hotel quickly lost its comfortable quality as the "suits" came in, somewhat grim faced. This is not to say there was any panic, but everyone became noticably more tense.

-Stone

We found out that they had cut the phone lines. It wasn't really scary, it was more - interesting. The kids have a much train - my neck is sore. Got off never known just from reading and met our tour guide who took us to our hotel. The hotel was just like an American Holiday Inn. We lost hockey game number four 9-3. we played terribly. (The next day) after breakfast (eggs) we went on a tour of the Hermitage and the Winter Palace. Both were pretty cool. Both were decorated everywhere with gold. -Paul

You could go back every day for two years and not see everything at the Hermitage. It was just huge. I liked Leningrad better than Moscow. It was a great trip. There's things I learned about Russia that I might have

We were exhausted when we were done. We did everything. It was well worth it, though. We won three out of five games. We played really good teams really well. I was pleased with their performance.

Some of the people were trading gum for these little Russian pins, and we were all excited that we had these Russian pins. Then some other people came back with fur hats and big Russian coats and things like that. They wanted anything with American writing on it, or gum, or hats. (Fowler) said don't trade for too many things, because he did and everything's sitting in his closet now. I should have listened to him. I got three or four hats, three belts and an overcoat and it's all sitting in my closet.

- Chris Abiragi, student

Red Square is totally awesome. I can't begin to describe the feeling standing there looking across this enormous brick courtyard with Army everywhere. No one is allowed to wander around the square. There are walkways, but they aren't marked. If you wander outside of the imaginary lines of these walkways, you can be sure that someone in a uniform is going to get you back inside them quickly. As a side comment, there are a lot of blackmarketeers here. One was trying to trade with one of our group when several soldiers came charging up, grabbed the Russian kid (he was in his early teens) started beating him up and threw him into a car which whizzed off. Scared the hell out of everyone. These soldiers are not gentle, and they don't ask questions before they start roughing up their victim. -Stone

Distinguished British constables visit Park, Show House

Grosse Pointe Park police Capt. William Furtaw hosted some distinguished guests last week.

Visiting Furtaw, the city and the Junior League's Show House were Chief Constable Charles Kelly of Staffordshire, England, and Chief Inspector Ken Ainge.

Kelly is the No. 1 law enforcement officer for Staffordshire, a community of 1.1 million. Ainge pointed out that in Staffordshire. Kelly's 2,000-member police department is the only law enforcement agency. Unlike here, for example, where we have the city, county and state police with overlapping authority and jurisdiction, in England, one department serves a particular geographic area.

Furtaw met the top Stafford-shire officers in 1986 through Michigan State University's master's degree program in criminal justice. The MSU program has an overseas study arrangement with Staffordshire police department and Trinity College, Cambridge, and the University of London.

In fact, Kelly was one of two speakers at a 20-year reunion of MSU's criminal justice program, which is one of the reasons he and his chief inspector were in the United States.

ty budget, taxes show slight increase over inflation

By John Minnis Assistant Editor

Due to higher expected costs, a Grosse Pointe City tax increase of 6.67 percent is being proposed to balance the 1990-91 budget.

Environmental costs, including a 22.5 percent jump in the cost to dispose of municipal waste through the Grosse Pointe-Clinton incinerator, and moderate inflation, contributed to the 7 percent increase in the city's budget.

The current (1989-90) general fund budget is estimated to reach $3.95 million. The 1990-91 budget proposes a balanced general fund budget of $4.22 million, an increase of $275,460.

The current budget depends on a city property tax rate of 14.56 mills ($14.56 per $1,000 of state equalized value). The 1990-91 proposed tax rate of 13.36 mills, though lower than the current millage rate, actually reflects nearly a 7 percent increase in the amount of the taxes paid. The increase is due to a nearly 17 percent increase in the citywide SEV.

was $179.19 million. The 1990-91 SEV is estimated at $209.63 million.

To account for the increase in SEVs, the Truth in Taxation law requires that the city millage rate be rolled back to 12.52 mills. Because the city is seeking 13.36 mills, a real increase of .84 mills over the Truth in Taxation rollback, a public hearing was held Monday night.

According to the Headlee Amendment, the total 23 mills granted in taxes by the city charter has been rolled back to 16.48 mills over the years due to rising property values. The city could assess a total of 16.48 mills without requiring voter approval. The 1990-91 proposed rate of 13.36 mills is below the maximum allowed by Headlee.

According to City Manager Thomas 'Kressbach's budget introduction to the City Council. the 1990-91 budget maintains the services and programs that residents are accustomed to receiving.

Of the tax dollar paid by the Grosse Pointe City property owner in 1989-90, 55 cents went to the public schools, 25 cents went to the city, 14 cents went to the county and jail and 6 cents went to other taxing authorities.

State-shared revenues continue to fall behind increased city costs. The city expects to receive $441,925 in state-shared funds in 1990-91, up just 2.7 percent from the year before.

Furthermore, the city warns there could be a loss of thousands of dollars from the state for the general and highway decline in population.

The city proposes an additional spending of $50,370 for environmental programs. Refuse disposal is expected to cost contribution to Grosse Pointe from the general fund. Park for allowing City residents ing. No funds for curbside recycling are included in the proposed budget. Kressbach said the costs must be carefully considered before going ahead with a curbside recycling plan, which the city estimates will cost $46,000 to $60,000 a year. There would also be a start-up cost of about $15,000 for household recycling containers.

Along with environmental isfunds if the 1990 census shows a sues, the infrastructure will be a continuing concern for the city. A total of $503,000 is slated to be spent out of the capital improvements fund. The onion-shaped, colorful domes of St. Basil's in Moscow's Red Square make a fascinating subject.

Photographing Moscow

Monte Nagler just returned from a trip to Moscow, courtesy of Travel Key/ U.S. Exchanges of Grosse Pointe. Today's column concerns some of his impressions while in Moscow.

Shortly after leaving Moscow International Airport heading toward town, our taxi passed an unusually shaped monument consisting of huge, barricade-like structures. Upon inquiry, I was informed the monument marked were their needs. the very spot where the property of the transformed be a vasion was halted by the Russ wery friendly people and would sian Army during World War II. This rather stark and barren monument was also to mirror some of the impressions with which I left Moscow some days later. Photographically, I found Red Square and the Kremlin very picturesque with numerous photo opportunities. St. Basil's Church, with its colorful turrets and domes, is a photographer's delight. Upon its completion hundreds of years ago, the architects were all blinded to assure that no other structure of St. Basil's beauty could ever be constructed.

Restaurants were difficult to find and window displays in stores were rare. Outside of the Kremlin, one of the liveliest places to be found was the new McDonald's where a two-to three-hour wait in lines that literally extended around the block was necessary for a small taste of capitalism. But waiting in lines is nothing new to the Russian people. Everywhere I went, I saw lines of people waiting for whatever

School board agrees to buy vacant car dealership

The Grosse Pointe school board bought the vacant car dealership at the corner of Jefferson and Lakepointe in Grosse Pointe Park on Monday to house the district's maintenance vehicles.

The board paid $400,000 cash for the 22,000 square foot Albert Kahn building which has been empty for several years. The money came from the sale of the parking lot behind the Kroger store in the Village in 1986 and the sale of the superintendent's house, 51 Grosse Pointe Blvd., in April this year. The board got $265,000 for the superintendent's house.

Playscape given OK

The proposed $50,000, 10,000square-foot playscape for Patterson Park has been given the green light by the City Council.

After receiving favorable recommendations from the Recreation and Planning commissions, the council approved the playscape Monday night. The approval is subject to the Planning Commission approving the plans prior to the playscape being built.

Park residents proposed the playscape to the City Council last month.

The residents have plans for a playscape designed by Robert Leathers and Associates of Ithaca, N.Y. Leathers is nationally known for his playscapes, which the children help to design and volunteers build.

The group plans to begin fundraising immediately. If everything goes well, a Leathers representative will meet Park students during the first week of October for design day, and the structure will be built during the first two weeks of May 1990.

All the money for the playscape will be raised by volunteers, all the construction materials and tools will be donated and all the labor will be volunteer. Leathers provides the final design, the know-how (from fundraising to building) and supervision during construction.

The playscape, which will be about the same size as a Leathers structure at Detroit Country Day Lower School in Birmingham, will be built in Patterson Park where the current play equipment is located.

The purchase, from the estate of Karl Hoften, is contingent on satisfactory soil testing and approval of a zoning variance.

Currently the school's 24 maintenance vehicles are stored at scattered locations throughout the district, including the administration building's parking lot, because there is no garage space. The new building will also provide the schools with space for an expanded supply department, now housed in the basebuilding and in a wooden storage shed behind that building. The shed is in bad repair and the board has considered replacing it for several years.

More storage space, said Su-perintendent Ed Shine, will allow the schools to purchase items in larger quantity, thereby saving money.

"We've been trying to do something like this for years," said Larry Yankauskas, superviment of the administration sor of buildings and grounds for the schools, in a printed release. "The car dealership is one of the last buildings within the district that can be utilized for this purpose.

Renovation of the building will be required before it can be used by the school system. Renovations include the removal of four underground fuel storage tanks. Occupancy is expected sometime in mid 1991.

Seven University Liggett School students were caught in the act of conducting a senior prank May 11.

According to Woods police reports, an officer on patrol saw a student walking in front of the Upper School at 12:22 a.m. The youth ran around to the back of the school when he saw the officer.

At the rear of the school, the officer found a ladder up against the wall. He climbed the ladder and discovered six youths lying on their stomachs on the roof. He ordered them off the school.

On the ground were a couple of real estate signs, five traffic cones, a Do Not Enter street sign, three cement contractors' signs and a large Action Auction banner.

The students were taken to the police station, and their parents notified.

There appeared to be no damage to the school.

City of Grosse Pointe Park Michigan NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES

The City Council of the City of Grosse Pointe Park will hold a Public Hearing at 7:00 P.M. on Tuesday, May 29, 1990, in the Council Chambers of the City Hall, 15115 E. Jefferson, Grosse Pointe Park, to receive comments and discuss a proposed additional 1990 City operating millage rate.

In 1989, the City levied a total of 15.06 mills ($15.06 per $1000 of SEV) for City operating purposes. In 1990 the City anticipates levying a total operating rate of 14.10 mills ($14.40 per $1000 of SEV) for the City operating purposes. This represents a .96 mill decrease in the operating millage rate, however, would allow for a 5.5% increase in operating property tax revenues.

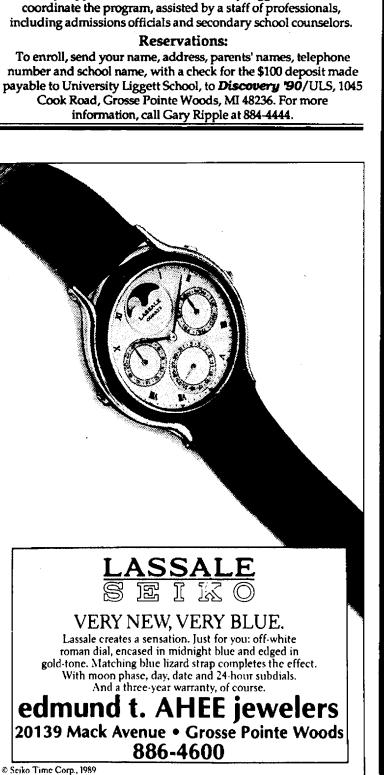

Due to an increase in the state equalized value of existing property in the City, State law (P.A.5 of 1982) provides that the base tax rate for the 1990 City operating taxes be reduced to an estimated 13.23 mills. In order to fund the City's proposed 1990-91 budget and maintain essential City services, the City finds it necessary to restore its millage levy reduction. Accordingly, the City proposes to levy an additional millage rate of .87 mills ($.87 per $1000 of SEV) above the estimated 1990 Truth-in-Taxation base tax rate. This may allow up to an estimated 6.8% increase in the City tax operating revenue and result in a 1990 operating tax rate of 14.10 mills ($14.10 per $1000 of SEV).

In accordance with P.A. 5 of 1982, the City has the authority to establish the number of mills to be levied within its authorized millage rate.

^{22A} Enertianent Gre 'Short Time' combines suspense with sentiment

By Marian Trainor Special Writer

Cops and criminals, hostages and stores blown up, and car chases and shootouts makes "Short Time" a police thriller that combines an exciting, suspensful story with a sweetly, sentimental one about a father's devotion to his son.

The result is an enjoyable melodrama that doesn't tear at the side of life. Instead it focuses on the story of a good cop and relates it with both humor and human interest.

of hijackers are removing a ship- coast out and that doesn't inment of high-powered army weapons from an armored truck footed thug who is probably priority list in headquarters and the best and most astute men on the force are assigned to track down the thieves and recover the dangerous weapons.

Among those assigned are Burt Simpson (Dabney Cole man), who is just eight days away from retirement, and his partner, Ernie Dills (Matt Frewer), the Max Headroom. While the two are cruising the nerves with graphic violence in neighborhoods, they sight a susan effort to portray the seamy picious character who matches the composite of one of the hi jackers.

Frewer is out of the car in a flash. Coleman is not so eager. When the film opens, a group He has made up his mind to clude chasing some young, swift-The crime is placed on the high armed, down alleys. But he is duty bound to join his partner, which he does, screaming all the way, "Wait for backup." The chase comes to an end when the numble digitive jumps from one building to another. Coleman draws the line at that and refuses to let his partner follow him

For his failure to follow through, Coleman gets a dressing down from the captain in front of the entire force and some nasty remarks from an obnoxious co-worker who accuses him of being cowardly. At this point, Coleman doesn't much care although he does feel badly about going on a bad note.

His real interest, however, is his young son and his estranged wife Carolyn (Terri Garr), both of whom he has driven off because of his tendency toward controlling behavior and his inability to share his deepest feelings.

His main goal in life has been to have his son go to Harvard. To that end, he has showered the boy with souvenirs and shirts and jerseys - all from Harvard. This would be fine except his son is only ten years old and his interests run more to baseball, tropical fish and bugs, all subjects on which he is well informed and enthusiastic.

Meanwhile Coleman is being careful to avoid high risk duty. He is determined to reach retirement day alive. This extreme caution infuriates his risk-taking partner.

All this changes when Coleman is in for a routine check-up and his report gets mixed up with that of another patient. He is told that he has a rare blood disease and has only two and a half weeks to live.

He goes from cautious to reckless in an effort to get himself killed in the line of duty so his ex-wife will get enough insurance money to send their son to Harvard. He becomes a suicidal daredevil.

And he changes in other ways. Always uptight with his family, he becomes more relaxed and loving. Always saving for the future, he now adopts the motto: "Live for the day."

Director Greg Champion creates an unusual emotional texture as he cuts between hairraising episodes and scenes showing Coleman with his estranged wife and son.

Dabney Coleman is well suited to his role as the serious but funny cop determined to get himself killed and the loving father whose pride in his son lights up his face. Teri Garr is excellent as the good-humored wife who seems to be just waiting for Coleman to realize there is more to life than Harvard. "Short Time" is not a great film, but it is a satisfying and easy one to watch.

The Hawaiian shirt and Detroit Tigers cap worn by Tom Selleck in the TV series, "Magnum P.I.," are among the items featured in the occupational clothing exhibit at the Detroit Historical Museum.

Exhibit to feature togs

"From Bunny Suits to Business Suits: Detroit Goes to Work" examines the dress codes, written and unwritten, that are often dictated by Detroit's varied occupational environment.

The work clothes worn by such well-known Detroiters as John Salley, Steve Yzerman, Tom Selleck and the Temptations as well as the clothing worn in non-traditional jobs such as Playboy bunny, nuclear plant worker and race car driver are featured in the Detroit Historical Museum exhibition which runs through April 1991.

From early Detroit settlers to workers in today's occupational environment, Detroiters have found that what they wear to work is often dictated by a number of factors including identificiation, protection and status.

"What a person wears to work can be used to establish a unified corporate image or a personal image for a public figure," said Vicky Kruckenberg, cos-tume curator for the Detroit Historical Department and curator for the exhibition. "For example, uniforms, name tags, and logos help project a corporate image. Consumers then associate those images with the quality of goods and services they seek.

"Public figures can take a particular style of clothing and use it as a readily identifiable part of their image - such as the Tiger baseball cap and Hawaiian shirts Tom Selleck wore when he starred in 'Magnum, P.I.'

"Other occupational costumes identify the wearer as an authority figure - such as a judge's robes or a police officer's uniform; or are used to protect workers from natural or manmade hazards they may be exposed to in the course of their duties.'

The exhibition is divided into five sections: roles of authority; job association (uniforms which give immediate visual identification); sports; personal protection; and, individual images.

Several educational programs will be offered by the Detroit Historical Department at the museum in conjunction with the exhibition. They are:

• "What Do I Want To Be When I Grow Up?" This event will give direction and information to children on making a career choice. Saturday, July 21.

• "You Are What You Wear." This brown bag luncheon program, held in the exhibition's gallery, will consider the rules in society and how appearance and image affect our daily lives and work. Wednesday, Oct. 24.

allows it to be sold in less than a week, when the house next door has been on the market for six months without even a nibble.

It's not just how it looks from the curb, says Virginia Mc-Namara Ficarra, a Grosse Pointe Woods specialist in marketing real estate. It's also what it looks like inside, and she doesn't just mean the sizes and shapes of the rooms.

Ficarra; an interior designer, has created an innovative program which works through Johnstone and Johnstone exclusively in the Pointes, to premarket homes, to get them ready for the market, and to prepare them for quick sale.

"I use the analogy of what do you do to your car when you want to sell it? You wash it, you vacuum it, you fix all those little things you lived with," she said. She thought - why don't people do this to their house?

"I presented the idea to Peter Johnstone in 1986 and he liked the idea," she said. "I give him credit because most Realtors would have hesitated before going forward with something like this, because it is so new.'

When a person decides to sell a house, Ficarra will go into that home, offer advice, ideas and designs to "recycle" it and make it anything, it's up to them." look new and fresh.

number of reasons - divorce, What is it about a home that death, a new job, a new baby," she said. "The houses look like the reasons they're selling, some look so sad. I've been doing this for a while now, and I can tell why they're selling their home. My job is to make each home a happy one.

Virginia McNamara Ficarra

"All the suggestions I make are designed to make the house sell quicker or for the best value. They have the option of doing what I suggest or of not doing

Her track record shows that

"People sell their homes for a her suggestions work.

A house had been on the market for several months; its beautiful interior was never even seen by potential buyers who didn't like the forboding exterior. For an investment of $3,200, a new facade was built and the house sold within a week.

Most of the suggestions cost nothing, some involve a slight expense, and a few cost a bit of money. But Ficarra said statistics show homeowners get back 80 percent of what they put into it.

If people don't want to spend money, but still want their house to sell quickly, she has endless suggestions.

The first is to remove clutter and any excess.

"The traffic flow of a house is very important to buyers, and they don't want to have to walk around chairs placed in doorways or piles of books on the floor," she said. "Just rearranging the furniture can make the room balanced and more inviting."

Ficarra arranges things to bring attention to a focal point in a room, whether it's a fireplace, or a window or a painting, making each room an entity unto itself.

She closes doors, arranges bookshelves, eliminates knickknacks and stuffed animals and other general clutter which distracts potential buyers.

The Jeep is now in the Chrysler corral, but its family tree includes American Motors, Kaiser-Frazer, Willys and, in a way, Ford Motor Co. and a small manufacturer in Butler, Pa., called American Bantam Co.

A couple years later, it began production of a very jaunty little car, the Bantam, now a collector ery, would recognize it as the car. Jaunty or now, Americans

> But the Army liked a little military vehicle the company had developed and after rigorous tests it ordered 1,500 of them. Dubious of American Bantam's production capabilities, the Army placed orders for similar vehicles with Willys-Overland and Ford Motor Co.

> After more testing and some changes in specifications, Willys' version of the vehicle was standardized. Willys could not satisfy itary parlance as "vehicle, quarter ton, GP (General Purpose)." The "GP" was quickly Americanized to "Jeep."

American Bantam went out of business shortly before World War II began. Since Willys had designed the version that the Army finally used, it got the rights to build civilian versions of it after the end of World War II.

It soon became Willys' most successful line, particularly its all-steel station wagon, just the right vehicle for migration to the new frontier, the suburbs building up after the war. A sporty version called the Jeepster is now a collector car, but it was the wagon that sold well.

The Jeep was not enough to save Willys as the Big Three shifted into high gear after the war and the Willys nameplate died in the early '50s. Kaiser-Frazer, also on the way out, acquired the Jeep operation. First the Frazer, then the Kaiser died, but Jeep survived and became a part of American Motors, where it was AMC's most successful product.

It was Jeep that made AMC attractive to Chrysler Corp. and the Jeep has a solid place in American history. And what other maker has the military services giving test drives to a lot of potential buyers?

Grosse Pointe Lawyers' Auxiliary celebrates 30 years

Cheryl Brennan

Linda Casazza

By Margie Reins Smith Feature Editor

Mary Cohan, first president of the Grosse Pointe Lawyers' Auxiliary (formerly known as the Grosse Pointe Lawyers' Wives), said the group was started 30 years ago this year, as a women's social club.

"The idea in the beginning was PR for lawyers," she said. Lawyers were not always held in high esteem. "As wives, we thought we could do a few good things to help.

"Many of the women didn't like attending the Michigan State Bar conventions with their husbands." So they started their own organization and got better acquainted and soon looked forward to attending the conventions together.

The name of the organization was changed in 1986, according to Carol Neef, a charter member and president of the group in the mid-60s, because women's attitudes had changed. Women were no longer comfortable being classified as wives.

"Now we're known as an auxiliary to the bar, which includes both men and women." Cohan said.

The group has no male members, however. "We would certainly welcome men," Cohan added.

Today, the Grosse Pointe Lawyers' Auxiliary is a group of women who are officially dedicated to promoting a better relationship and better understanding between the general public and lawyers; to cooperating with state and local bar associations; and to promoting good fellowship among families which have members in the legal profession.

The group was founded 30 years ago, in April 1960. That year, a small fundraising party at downtown Hudson's raised $150 the first of many annual fundraising projects.

Proceeds from the first projects were used for scholarships for law students at the University of Detroit, Wayne State University and the Detroit College of Law.

Cohan said the projects have gotten more ambitious each year. For a while, the Wayne County Juvenile Home was the recipient of funds from the group. Later, proceeds were divided between the juvenile court and the Grosse Pointe Youth Services. Other years, funds were donated to Family Life Education Council (FLEC), the Wayne County Juvenile Court, Safe Rides in Grosse Pointe, Turning Point and Services for Older Citizens (SOC). "We normally do one fundraiser a year," said Cheryl Brennan, membership chairman. She's also in charge of the group's 30th anniversary party which will take place May 19.

"We raise anywhere from $1,000 to $1,600 and the board votes on a charity -a different one each year.

"We bailed out FLEC one year, when it was about to go under. Now FLEC is doing fine. We provided the seed money for the first Safe Rides organization in Grosse Pointe."

To become a member of the group, one must be married to a lawyer. Currently the group is about 120 strong. Twenty-five of the charter members are still active in the organization.

"At one time we had more than 300 members," Brennan said, "but recently more women have returned to the workforce. We used to hold luncheon meetings. Then we changed to a ladies-night-out format. This year we had a mother-daughter brunch on a Saturday."

She said the membership represents a nice mixture of ages, from women in their early 30s to women in their 80s.

President Linda Casazza said the group is affiliated with a state organization, the Michigan Lawyers' Auxiliary, which has more than a dozen chapters in Michigan.

"Every year we present Concerned Citizens Awards," Casazza said. "We get the names of candidates from local police chiefs. We also present an award to a local teacher who has promoted educational programs about law.

"We're more than an auxiliary," she said. "We're doing things for the community. It's also a social organization. We have four or five general meetings a year with programs or speakers and the board meets every other month.

"Next year, we're planning on presenting mock trials in the middle schools for Law Day. In the past, we've sponsored Law Day activities in the high schools."

This year's fundraiser is a cocktail party, which will take place on May 19 at the home of member Betty Tucker in Grosse Pointe Park.

Anyone who is the spouse of a lawyer and would like more information about the Grosse Pointe Lawyers' Auxiliary should call 882-1805.

THE PASTEBOARD PASTIME A British bridge buff would call today's representation beastly, bothersome and monstrous. Any good east/west pair playing against an evil omened exacting defense would call it a painful labor in vain.

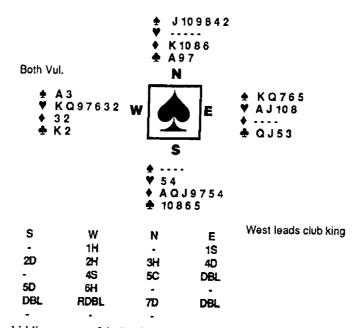

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION

On first inspection, one notes that east/west, holding only 25 high card points and a strategically placed void are enviably seated. This allows them to reach an excellent heart slam with various bidding techniques after south opens the auction with a three diamond call...But I suggest you shouldn't be a Chicken Little and act before the research is complete. An experienced south with his shape should boldly double and that beats west by 500 points with a spade lead. That's what Teddy Lightner's double of a slam bid is all about. It specifically asks partner to make an unusual lead and north should have no trouble doing so.

It's not easy for north/south to find, much less achieve their optimum spot, but one pair, led by an indifferent declarer did on the bidding shown. At its successful conclusion south simply showed some astonishment at the fortunate location of the out cards and congratulated his partner for her sagacious, but daring, bid.

How often do we see an ice cold grand slam with only 15 high card points in the combined hands? Here is a majestic example, but such was possible only because north/south each held inexistent majors in a somewhat unanticipated, but pleasantly surprising situation.

We don't like south's pass in the originators position. We can appreciate that he was being cozy and planned at some stage to back into the auction, but this gave his opponents too much bidding room. It's hard to argue with success, but most of the world's great players would preempt immediately with this fine minor suit.

As you can see, each of the contestants had a lot to talk about. Three cue bids, two lead directing doubles and west's "nothing to gain but a headache," redouble! Whether north got nervous with his partner's penalty double or what we'll never know, but instead of east/west minus one grand, they took it on the chin to the tune of -2330. That, my good readers, is what we call a top in anyone's tournament.

May 17, 1990 Grosse Pointe News Faces έ places MOT's annual Opera Ball draws its share of Grosse Pointers

Michigan Opera Theatre's premier fundraising event, took place on Friday, May 4, at the Ritz-Carlton, Dearborn, just as MOT launched the second production of the spring grand opera season with Verdi's "La Traviata."

The event was sponsored by Maccabees Life Insurance and all proceeds will benefit MOT. Entertainment featured selections from Puccini's "La Boheme," Lerner and Loewe's "Camelot" and "La Traviata," performed by Stephanie Friede, Florin Georgescu, Charles Huddleston and MOT accompanist Suzanne Acton.

Table decorations were a mix of low-standing arrangements of tulips, roses, lilies and peonies in silver urns and large arrangements of irises, roses and lilies in large silver vases. Tables were covered with multi-colored, floor-length moire cloths. The elaborate 20-foot sweets table included three ice sculptures shaped like hearts and cupids and a chocolate portrait of (who else?) Giuseppe Verdi.

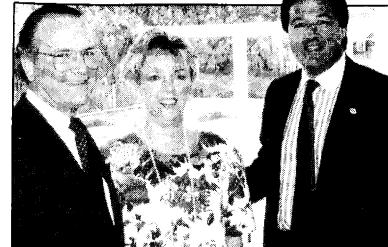

Dinner was served in the Presidential Ballroom and included such operatic delicacies as: Pastina Traviata, Veal Verdi and Sweet Tables Violetta.

Chairmen of the ball were Rosette Ajluni and Marianne Endicott of Grosse Pointe. Grosse Pointer Dale Austin was board adviser. Other committee chairs included Mrs. Roger Fridholm, Mrs. Hugh Harness, Mrs. Alexander Wrigley, Mrs. George Wrigley and Mrs. Leonard Jaques.

Others who attended: Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ahee, Dr. Lourdes V. Andaya, Mr. and Mrs. Addison Bartush, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Chamberlin, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Crachiolo, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Fisher Jr., Mr. and Mrs. James Huntley, the Hon. The concert is titled "The Mozart Family" and will feature compositions by three generations of Mozarts: Leopold (father of Wolfgang Amadeus) Wolfgang himself, and Franz Xaver, Wolfie's son, who composed a piano quartet when he was 12 years.

Among those who attended a fundraiser for Northwood Institute on May 1 were, from left, Bill and Susan Frost and Jim Snyder. Northwood is celebrating its 30th anniversary this year.

Auction items for "Art on the Pointe" will be accepted at the finish line.

Price is $22 per person. For more information about any of these events, call 824-8000.

Comedian Thom Sharp will entertain and music will be by Charlie Gabriel and Friends. Brunch is from noon until 3:30 p.m. Tickets are $500 for sponsors; $250 for benefactors; $175 for patrons; $100 for friends.

Churches

The Pastor's Corner What is a 'United' Church?

4B

By Rev. David Kaiser-Cross Grosse Pointe United Church

This is the year our church is celebrating its 50th Anniversary. The colonial edifice on the corner of Chalfonte and Lothrop has stood for almost 40 of those 50 years, and it's interesting that so many know it as: "the church next to Brownell Middle School."

The sign on the front lawn says, The Grosse Pointe United Church, but that doesn't help much. Presbyterian, Episcopal, Methodist . . . those are easily understood. But what is a United Church?

In this particular case a United Church is a group of Christians who originally gathered in 1940 to worship and study in the Congregational tradition which came to this country with the Mayflower as a people separating themselves from religious hierarchy and celebrating religious freedom.

A United Church is a group of Christians who then, in the late '50s, joined the United Church of Christ, a denomination that merged Congregational, Christian, Evangelical and Reformed churches into one.

United Church is a group of Christians who then, in 1976, merged with 238 members of the Jefferson Avenue (American) Baptist Church and became The Grosse Pointe Congregational and American Baptist Church.

Finally, a United Church is one which then decided in 1987 that a shorter name was better. Thus, the Grosse Pointe United Church.

For our people, and for your church, too, united is more than a name or denominational designation. It has to do with the inner quality of church fellowship. No one wants to be a part of a divided church. Most folks look for a church that is united:

• United in the belief that every individual is important and precious.

• United in the belief that whether it's fully understood or not, the love of God through Christ is the same kind of love that we are to share with each other.

• United in the belief that the strongest support systems and the deepest friendships are still found within the church.

• United in a caring commitment to children and parents, single and married, young and old.

Fifty years past; 50 years ahead ... we remain true to our faith in Christ, and to our care for real people. In these things we are "United."

Happy Birthday to the Grosse Pointe United Church.

Miracle Sunday

When members of Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church voted to consider a $3.2 million building program, they knew they needed a miracle.

On Sunday, April 29, their miracle happened. During special collections at two services, members turned in envelopes pledging gifts that tallied up to $534,843. According to member Evelyn Montgomery, it was the largest single offering in the history of the church.

What are ethics? Can we make excuses for unethical behavior?

Seniors

This article is Part II of a three-part series dealing with ethical decision-making and technology.

By Martys Dee Craig Special Writer

You have just learned that your car needs piston rings. This repair is going to cost more than you want to spend. You would like to sell the car. Do you sell it without informing the buyer? Your answer tells a lot about your idea of ethics.

When persons are asked about the meaning of ethics, they may decline or hedge. If they attempt an answer, the variation from person to person is remarkable.

Confusing you say? Yes, but certainly to be expected. How can you explain something when you seldom think or talk about it.

The beacons that signal right from wrong have grown dim in the last few decades. The 1980s capped the height of the wave which swept away all too many of our ethical guidelines available for decision making.

Increasingly, corporations are having to design programs with company employees in order to define and promote ethical behavior in the workplace. Phillips Petroleum Company furnished one example of such corporate effort. Chairman C. J. Silas has already tackled the problem of describing ethics as a stimulus for the program.

In the first place, ethics is not just what is enforceable by law. If we rely on the existence of laws for our standard of ethics, crime from ethical judgment?

we are certain to fall far short. Laws can change within a short period of time. In fact, the shift has been so rapid lately that we are encouraged to question the values on which they are supposedly based. Further-more, laws can be "bent, dodged and misinterpreted."

The sale of alcohol and gambling both reflect interesting historical shifts. Once, gambling was the target of widespread opposition. Now, many states promote lotteries for revenue.

Second, ethics is not "what will work." James Walls who provides honesty tests for job applicants finds that three out of 10 retailing applicants respond that they have stolen from a previous employer. The United States Chamber of Commerce reports that employee theft increases the cost of consumer goods at least 15 percent. A poll in 1986 showed that 37 percent of all taxpayers said they cheat on their reporting.

People say that the chances of getting away with all of this are good. Does "getting away with it" make it ethically OK? it" Hardly. Others will pay for goods stolen from stock. Others will pay for those who underpaid on taxes.

Third, ethics is not defined by what is excusable. After a wrong is committed, justifying it does not make it excusable.

We have seen a rash of defenses describing the "unfortunate and unfriendly environment" as contributing to the action of the accused. Does this excuse the vate sectors and is an agency business to hire older workers.

Hardly. Because of the crime, others have suffered loss of their rights or bodily harm.

Columnist Meg Greenfield wrote an article in 1986 describing how it is that "nothing is really wrong anymore." She elaborates ways we excuse wrongdoing.

First, we can rename a wrong act and call it "dumb or stupid." Unethical behavior, then, is excused because it is a dumb thing.

Another way is to believe the act is "sick." The person committing the act, as a result, does not do it with intent but because he/ she is not well. It follows that society must share the blame for "bruising the person's self-esteem and tearing down his or her moral barriers.

A third method is to show how the wrong is to be expected. An act is justified because of circumstances. If the food is bad in a restaurant, it is excusable to leave and not pay the bill.

A fourth excuse views the situation as too complex. Black and white are gone. The world is too sophisticated for moral absolutes. Ethics won't work.

Certainly, ignorance of the facts or disagreements obstruct ethical decision-making, but this does not rule out behavior guided by a prescribed code: a respect for others, compliance for the common good, a sense of civic responsibility, a continuous search for truth, etc.

If public feeling is shifting more toward a need for ethics in decision making, this calls for more public awareness of where the ethical issues are in society. It also signals the need for leaders in business and government to become more accountable for their actions and increase their credibility by applying the same ethical standards to themselves that they request of others.

May, June are peak months for planting, attending flower shows

It is mid-May. Full summer is who was providing for the provjust around the corner. Of course we have cold days as well as hot days since this is, after all, Michigan, but on the whole, spring is really here.

Spring in Grosse Pointe can be pure delight. Lilacs and tulips in all directions. The birds have returned to our gardens carrying building materials to their next construction sites. They are just as imaginative about home design as people are. It's amazing, the variety of things they use to give individuality to their nests.

Birds nesting near the food concession stand in a park nearby constructed their nest almost entirely of plastic drinking straws. One enterprising bird purloined a ribbon sash from a dress hung on a clothesline, adding a bright touch of color to its nest. And one local resident reports seeing a dollar bill carefully woven into the nest of an especially wealthy bird erbial rainy day.

Flower shows are the order of the day in spring too. The Mother's Day Flower show which will remain on view until early in June at the Anna Scripps Whitcomb Conservatory on Belle Isle is a delight with banks of colorful giant pink, white and blue hydrangeas, schizanthus, snapdragons and beautiful Martha Washington geraniums in many shades.

"A Celebration of Life" is the title of the flower show which the Garden Club of Michigan is presenting this weekend at Jacobson's in the Village.

Participating clubs include the Grosse Pointe Farm and Garden Club, the Junior League Gardeners, and the Garden Club of Michigan. Exhibits are divided into categories celebrating birthdays, graduations, weddings, an-

House plants and topiary are included in the displays, spring bulbs and flowering trees will be featured, and awards will be given. This is a must-see show, filled with color and scent highlighting spring.

The Detroit Recreation Department has been busy for weeks with a campaign to choose an official flower for the city, which is to be used in city flower beds in parks and around public niversaries and life eternal. buildings and presented to special visitors and encouraged for planting in neighborhood gardens. Their choice has finally settled upon the zinnia which will henceforth be the City of Detroit flower symbol.

An annual, zinnia comes from the flower family compostas and is of the Elegans species, one of may types of zinnia. They come in may hues and sizes and are easy to grow.

Zinnias have always been considered an elegant flower. Bernal Diaz, who accompanied Cortez to Mexico in the 16th century, noted that in the garden at Chapultepec, where the king had a summer residence, there were sculptured fountains, orchards and flower gardens, and that the zinnias were a blaze of color in the hot sun.

Zinnias are native to Mexico and were probably known there in very ancient times. They are depicted in stylized form in many of the pre-Columbian sculptures which survive, and are grown in Mexican gardens to this day.

It is not definitely known when the zinnia first was introduced into Europe, but it might well have been brought back by Cortez and his returning soldiers. Now this hard, cheerful flower with its many brilliant hues is a worldwide favorite. The Victorians loved zinnias and thought of them as a symbol of nostalgia.

May is the month for planting everything. The seed catalogues are very popular right now in the Grosse Pointe Garden Center library and books on garden planning and planting are in great demand.

The Garden Club plans another spectacular flower display in the Trial Gardens this year. These far-famed gardens, located on the lake side of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, are planted and maintained by the Garden Clubs of Grosse Pointe with the assistance of a professional gardener, and are the scene of many civic events during the summer. This year's theme is "Flags of the World." Each plot will include the colors and symbols of a different nation, interpreted in flowers. Planting days, an annual gardening event, are May 21, 22 and 23, and it won't be long before visitors can see and smell and enjoy the lovely blooms.

Eleçant Eating Michigan's asparagus is harbinger of spring

Luckily there are temptations in life that one need not resist. This applies to asparagus.

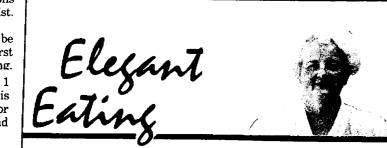

Michigan asparagus can be welcomed as one of the first crops to appear in the spring. Peak availability is about May 1 to about June 30. Michigan is ranked third in the nation for asparagus production, behind Washington and California.

The root of the name asparagus is from the Greek: asparagos. As early as 200 B.C., the Romans had how-to-grow directions for asparagus.

Congratulations

So, this is it. The last time to be top dog, head cheese, big person on campus.

Graduation. The time to celebrate, the time to cry, the time to toss the cap in the air. The time for hugs, kisses, well wishes. The time to hang up cleats, volleyball uniforms, basketball jerseys and track spikes.

For most seniors there will be no more athletic tomorrows This was it. For four years you made your way through the freshmen and javvee teams. Boys finally got some peach fuzz and eventually shaved. Girls discovered that long nails didn't help when it came to handling the basketball.

It's been fun, but when you walk across the stage in June, your day as top dog will soon end.

High school athletics will groom you forever. Discipline. Commitment. Dedication. Teamwork. All those good things will play a major role when you graduate from Harvard, Central or Michigan in 1994-95.

Graduation day, unfortunately, will also bring alcohol.

This isn't one of those preaching columns; it's just a simple reminder that you should be careful.

You've made it through elementary school, junior high and now you're just a few weeks from donning the cap and gown. It's a time for you to recognize your accomplishments, the time and frustration your parents went through to help you, and the time to realize how painful it can be to say goodbye to fellow schoolmates.

j,

Parting is sorrowful, but not forever. This isn't a time to whoop it up with booze and allnight parties. It's a time to commence the next portion of your life.

I've been here three years and it's been fun to watch you seniors mature from sophomores just three short years ago. I can remember watching Darcy Jones (South) hurl a onehitter when she looked no older than 10. I recall the days when Brian Letscher was an aspiring jayvee quarterback and eventually led the Blue Devils to a state playoff berth as a senior. Watching Jane Rice (North) play volleyball, Michael Barnes (ULS) run track, or Charlie Stumb (North) catch a football, were the moments I lived for. I guess it's kept me young. I do, however, wonder what the seniors will do next. Some will head for Harvard, some to U of M, some to Macomb Community College. Whatever route is chosen, I'm sure the Grosse Pointe school system has prepped these young adults.

ULS' Kevin Crociata is having a ball Sports Editor

Kevin Crociata spends endless hours reading baseball magazines and leafing through instructional baseball books. He admires the talent of major league players and their statistics, but he could care less about his own numbers.

Crociata, a senior shortstop for the University Liggett School Knights' baseball team, can't get enough baseball, whether it's on or off the field.

He's played on ball yards in Warren, Grosse Pointe, Sterling Heights, Roseville, East Detroit and hopefully Ann Arbor for the University of Michigan.

Although Crociata makes a concerted effort to ignore his own stats, it's very difficult not to pay particular attention to them.

"Statistics take care of themselves," he said. "I never really expected to do some of the things that show up on paper. I don't think about stats. I'd rather worry about fielding, hitting and throwing the ball.'

From a 5-year-old T-ball player to an all-state player as a 17-year-old junior, Crociata has impressed coaches all along especially his current coach, Glynn Conley.

"Kevin is just an athletic-type kid," he said. "On top of his great reflexes, foot speed and quick bat, he's got a love for the game that has driven him to spend a lot of time on his game. He is so focused when it comes to playing baseball that he can't help but succeed.' And succeed he has.

As a freshman he rapped out 30 hits in 61 trips for a .491 batting average, while posting a fielding percentage of .996. In his sophomore season, he missed only two of the 22 games with an injury, and led the team with 14 RBI, 18 walks, and a .538 average. More impressive, however, was the fact that he never struck out in 52 at-bats. Defensively he made only two errors.

"Kevin could come to the plate already having four hits in four at-bats," said Conley, "and he's just as intense as he was in the first at-bat no matter what the score or situation is."

franchise player, is batting in the clutch.

"I look ahead in the batting order and try to orchestrate the order so Kevin will be batting with guys in scoring position," he said. "In fact, I will even make an imprudent steal just to make sure he's not going to come to the plate with two outs and nobody on. In the clutch, he's the guy I want at the plate.'

And it's not a bad choice either, because Crociata, who has been called out on strikes only twice in 3 1/2 years of varsity ball, has a .750 average in clutch situations, and a career batting average of .502 (107 for 213 going into last weekend). His on-base percentage also exceeds .600.

"A lot of my success has come from desire," said the 6-foot, 160 pound Crociata. "Once you've got the fundamentals, it's just a matter of finding time to practice — a lot. I have a strong work ethic and besides, I enjoy doing it so it makes it that much easier.'

Crociata's defense is just as impressive as his offense.

"Kevin is the best defensive shortstop I've ever coached," Conley said. "He makes the tough plays look easy, and pulls some 'impossible' plays out of the hole. His arm is strong and he has great range. There have been times that I didn't think he'd have a chance at throwing a guy out, but he did - with a bullet throw."

In one game last year, Crociata gunned two runners down at the plate on relay throws. He's made only 10 errors in his prep career.

Although a pure hitter, there are times that Crociata is fooled at the plate.

"I was so reminded of Kevin's 'humaness' when he popped up one time," said Conley. "You and he - expect him to come through time after time, but as good a ball player as he is he still makes outs.'

Crociata, who will play in an 18-and-under travel league for A Plus Grinding, enjoyed the fruits of childhood athletics, but chose baseball over all the other sports. Because he excelled he

"I played with 8- and 9-yearolds in my first T-ball league,' he recalled. "I used to always play with the older kids and that really taught me a lot. It was funny, but I was always the youngest kid in my neighborhood so it was only natural that I played with the older guys."

It was also natural for his parents, Rose and Pete, to support him.

'My dad always took a big interest in my playing baseball," said Crociata. "He never pushed me to play, but he'd always hit me grounders and play catch with me, but only if I asked. He would always wait for me to ask, and then he'd help."

And don't tell the boss, but Kevin's mom used to help out, too.

"My mom would sometimes get off work early just to take me to where I had to go," he said. "It means a lot to me that my parents are so supportive. But, they're also my biggest critics and believe me, that helps."

But nobody could criticize last year's performance, which earned Crociata an all-state award.

"That was really special to me because not only did it mean that coach (Conley) respected my abilities, but the other coaches in the state did as well. I've always been one to prove to myself that I can meet any challenge and that just proved I could," he said.

But, the biggest challenge is yet to come.

"When I go to college in the fall, it will be my biggest challenge," said Crociata. "I'm going to Michigan because I like the institution and even if baseball isn't a part of it I'll be comfortable."

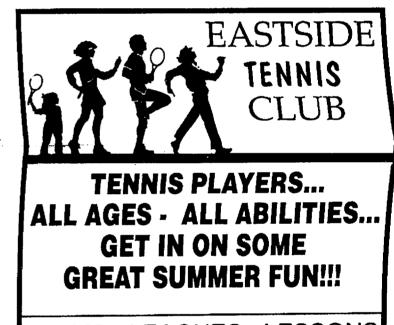

Since his junior year, Crociata has been contacted by Indiana, Stanford, North Carolina, Notre Dame and Northwestern. Northwestern offered him a scholarship, but he turned it down.

"When you've got a chance to play at Michigan for coach Bill Freehan, you only need a second to realize how much of an opportunity this is," said Crociata. "They can't offer any scholarships right now because they are on probation, but that didn't matter.

"I just hope I get a chance to perform at that level. I just want the opportunity." And the stats will take care of Kevin Crociata has had plenty to smile about in his high school baseball career at ULS.

The coaches will miss you, you will miss the coaches. Those Saturday afternoons on the football field, and Friday nights on the basketball court will all be memories. Your time to shine is gone now as you grab that diploma and head for the future.

I've enjoyed watching you mature, hit baseballs, drill the jump shot. I've also appreciated the times you fell, failed and learned from those mistakes. Winning was always fun, but at times so was losing.

You'll miss the North-South hoop games, the challenges between ULS and Detroit Country Day. You'll reminisce about the shot you should have made, and you'll laugh about the time you fouled someone so hard on the basketball court that you drew blood.

But on graduation day, you have one last opportunity to be at the head of your class. It's a time you deserve, but don't waste it. Enjoy it and, most of all, be smart.

Conley also makes sure that had to play with older kids, but Crociata, ULS' closest thing to a that didn't matter.

Despite the overall record of 6-10.

On May 12, South swept a doubleheader from Rochester, 3-0 and 11-8, as senior left-hander Darcy Jones picked up her fifth and sixth wins of the season.

Jones pitched a four-hitter, giving up only two walks and striking out seven in the opener. Julie Cartwright gave South a 1-0 lead in the second with an RBI single, and a Rochester error gave the Devils a 2-0 lead. Jenny Kalmink's sacrifice bunt got South a third run.

"We had only three hits, but we made the most of them," said Bruce. "Good teams can manufacture runs, and that's exactly what we did."

In the nightcap, Jones had a 10-1 lead after one inning but the Devils had to hang on to win. Laurel Wolfe's three-run double was the big blow in the first inning, which got South off to a 13-hit attack.

Carla Stade relieved Jones in the seventh, but after yielding four runs and leaving the bases loaded, Bruce had to get Jones back in to save her own game. On May 7, Jones hurled a four-hitter as the Devils crushed Mount Clemens, 11-1.

Wolfe, Kalmink and Chris Coffey had RBI hits, but South also used errors, walks and passed balls to get the win.

Two days later, Kim Apple drove in three runs as the Devils beat L'Anse Creuse North, 10-1. Jones went the distance, striking out four and giving up three hits.

Jones, Tina Higel, Kalmink, Patty Provenzano and Geneva Cusmano all had one RBI.

But, just when the winning streak arrives so does Port Huron Northern. South, looking to upset the Michigan League, got two runs in the bottom of the seventh to tie the game at 2-2, but gave up four runs in the eighth to lose, 6-

Higel and Jenni Wysocki had back-to-back hits to start the seventh, and then Jones, the losing pitcher who scattered 11 hits. knocked both of them home on a single. South had the bases loaded after that, but failed to score.

South's 4-4 league mark is good for fourth place.

Baseball

At the Fraser Tournament, South sought to make it six straight wins over Grosse Pointe North, but the Norsemen ended the streak with a 5-3 victory. South's Lance DeBets went the distance, striking out three and scattering seven hits, but he gave up four runs in the first inning that proved fatal.

In the third inning, South trailed 5-0, but Matt Wysocki drove in Mike Oliver, who had singled and stole second, to cut the lead to 5-1. Oliver then drove in Nick Johnston in the Devils' half of the fifth, and Brian Letscher followed with an RBI single.

South had only six hits, two by Oliver.

In the second game of the tournament, Kevin Brennan tossed 4 2/3 innings to get a 13-9 win over Fraser.

Fraser knocked starter Brian Campbell out after 2 1/3 innings, in which he gave up five runs on seven hits. Brennan threw no-hit ball through the sixth.

South tied the score with three runs in the sixth, and exploded for eight runs in the seventh to win it. In the seventh, South had five of its 13 hits. Bill Leins had two hits, as did Kevin Nugent, Jason Benavidez and Colm Moore. Jason Weissert went 3-for-5, including two RBI, and Oliver added a two-run double. On May 9 at home against L'Anse Creuse North, Mark Jungwirth got his fifth win of the season, a 4-3 decision.

Jungwirth pitched 6 1/3 innings, striking out seven and walking eight. Campbell picked up his fourth save in relief.

Weissert had a two-run double in that win, and Tom Moellering had two hits, including an RBI, and Nugent had an RBI double in South's eight-hit attack.

That win put South in first place by percentage points, but two days later an 8-6 loss to Port Huron Northern dropped the Devils back into second.

Grosse Pointe News

The first inning again proved deadly for South, as Northern struck for six runs on only three hits. South committed three errors.

Brian Downs took the loss, giving up eight runs on nine hits.

Wysocki cracked a two-run homer in the second inning, but Northern came back with two of its own in the bottom half of the frame to extend the lead to 8-2. Weissert got things going in the fourth inning with a lead-off single, followed by Nugent's tworun double. Nugent then scored on a passed ball.

Leins' RBI single in the sixth closed the scoring.

At home against Port Huron May 14, South moved to 7-3 in the league with a 3-1 win, thanks to Tim Gramling and Mark Jungwirth.

Jungwirth scattered five hits and struck out 10, and Gramling laced an RBI single and also tripled. Brian Letscher, who also doubled, added the other RBI on a sacrifice fly.

Tennis

At the Eastern Michigan League championships, South scored 47 of a possible 49 points to take its 23rd consecutive and last — league title. The E.M.L. will fold at the end of the school year.

Jeff Giraldo (No. 1 singles), Craig Kostecke (No. 2), Cullen McMahon and Matt Smucker (No. 1 doubles), Bill Wundram and Chris Schilling (No. 2) and Steve Carlin and Peter Bourke (No. 3) were all league champs. Earlier in the week, South beat East Lansing, 4-3, on wins by Giraldo, Lee Lorenzini (No. 2 singles), Nick Lorenzini (No. 3) and Emiliano Lorenzini (No. 4).

Soccer

Before losing to Troy, 3-0, on May 12, South shelled Clawson, 9-0.

Goal scorers included Katie Page (2), Sarah Foley (2), Stephanie Coddens (2), Pam Reinke (2), and Laura Jeffs.

Assists went to Vicky Spicer (3). Page (2), Leslie Braithwaite and Beth Bonnani.

Early in the week, ULS played well in a pair of 10-5 victories over Kingswood and Detroit Country Day. Against Kingswood, ULS was down by a goal at half, but rallied in the second half behind the strong play of Sarah Stackpoole, Molly Shields and Lexie Crain.

On May 12, ULS participated in a tournament at Kingswood, which included a pair of teams from Cleveland.

In the first game, ULS played an inspired game but lost, 6-2, to Hathaway Brown School. Against Western Reserve Academy, last year's Midwest Tournament champion, ULS fell easily, 11-3.

PLEASE DON'T DELAY! SPAY or NEUTER YOUR PET TODAY! An altered pet is a healthier and happier companion. Also, it spares you the grief and pain of having puppies and kittens destroyed when no homes can be found. Countless numbers of sweet, innocent little ones are euthanized every day in shelters across the country because a pet wasn't spayed or neutered. If we cut down on the numbers of unwanted litters being born, we will also cut down on the number of abandoned, lost and unwanted animals to destroy. DEATH THREAT! Mosquito bites can be deadly to your dog. Mosquitoes can be carriers of heartworm disease, a potentially fatal disease that's been reported from almost every state in America.

And unfortunately, your dog can have the disease for a long time before any signs are even noticed. Treating advanced heartworm disease can be dangerous and difficult. Prevention, however, is surprisingly simple.

Just take your dog to the veterinarian for a heartworm test. And ask about heartworm prevention and how convenient it can be.

Be sure to make an appointment today. Your dog's life could depend on it.

Retire With Us And Enjoy Even More Than A Great View.

A new lifecare community from one of the largest, most experienced nonprofit companies is coming to the mountains of North Carolina.

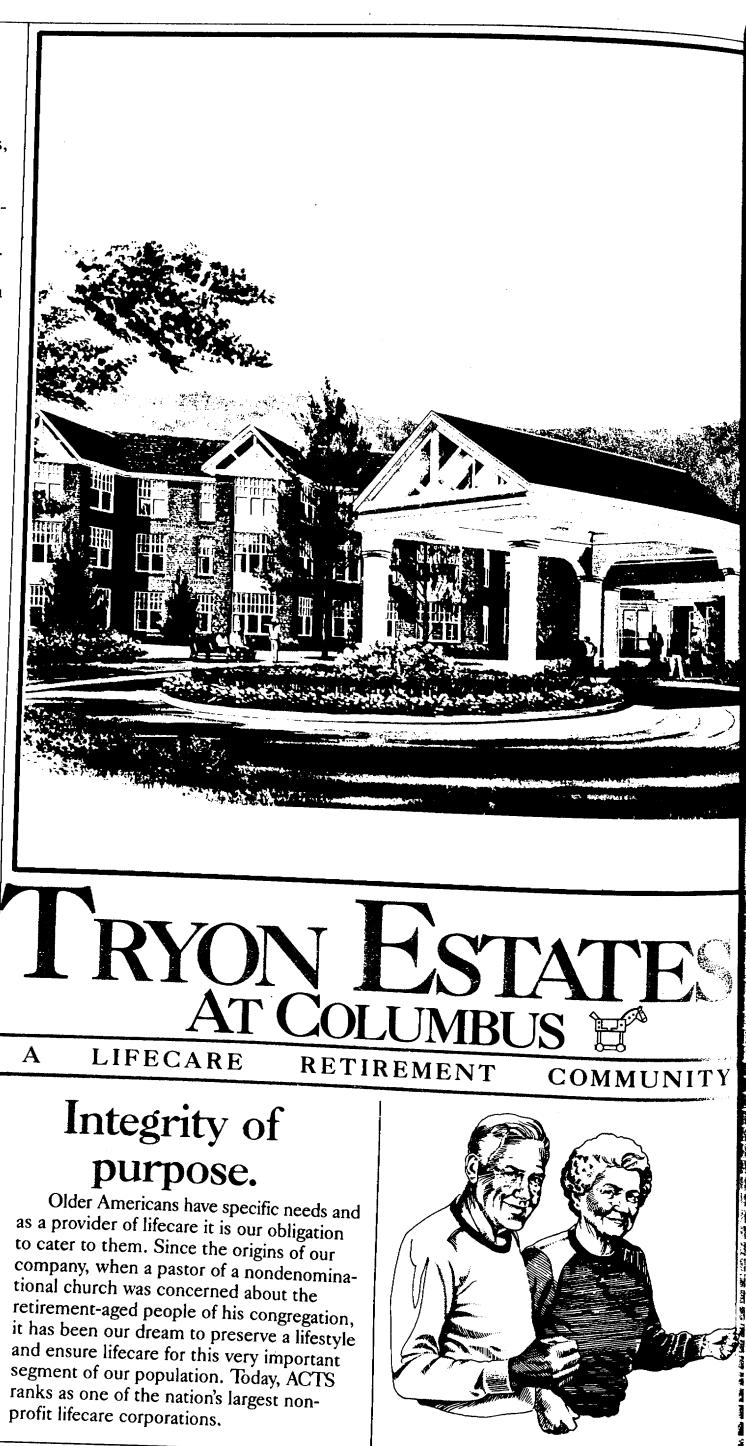

Introducing Tryon Estates at Columbus, an exclusive lifecare community offering retirement living at its best. Tryon Estates is designed to provide you with the independence and lifestyle you deserve, plus the healthcare and financial security you desire.

Our newest community will be nestled in the Appalachian Mountains, divided by a gentle valley and surrounded by 14 natural springs. Tryon Estates at Columbus is under development on 63 acres of a 215acre site found on the most prime property North Carolina has to offer. The site for this extraordinary retirement living community is located just off Interstate 26, right at the South Carolina state line.

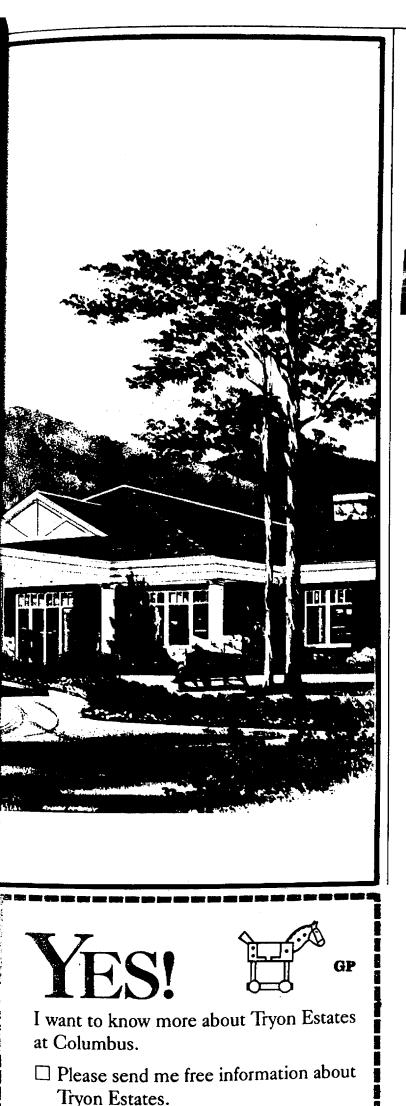

Long on experience.

Adult Communities Total Services, Inc. (ACTS), a nonprofit corporation, has been designing and managing retirement lifecare communities for 17 years. ACTS is a premier leader in the industry, long on experience and financial stability, serving over 6,000 residents in 14 Estate communities. From Boca Raton and Vero Beach, Florida to the Philadelphia, Pennsylvania area and Matthews, North Carolina, retirement residents live in secure environments. Like every ACTS community, Tryon Estates at Columbus will operate under the philosophy that your security and health are critical to your happiness.

That's why our style of lifecare will consist of a security gate with guards on premises, and a separate on-site medical facility that provides everything from a routine nurse's visit to personal care (assisted living) to 24-hour skilled nursing care, at no extra cost and for as long as necessary. Care for life at Tryon Estates at Columbus means you can be as independent as you want to be and as dependent as you need to be.
