

Students build radio telescope — for fun

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Radio telescopes gather radio waves from celestial sources. They are those large parabolic dishes used by mad scientists looking for space invaders in '50s B movies.

But a group of Grosse Pointe South High School students is building one to be mounted on the roof of the school.

It's not part of a class and it's not for extra credit. The complex, mathematical, electrical and physical undertaking is being done by a club, after school, and for fun.

Under the guidance of earth science teacher Ardis Maciolek, the project began last November, and although Maciolek budgeted for two years to complete, the device should be up and semi-operational by October.

After the 18-foot dish is installed on the roof of the boy's gym, there will be several months of calibrating and adjusting before the telescope is working properly.

Although the project is open to all students in the school, and several students have worked intermittently on the telescope, a core of four underclassmen has kept the project ahead of schedule.

Those students — sophomores Bob Kalogerakos and Jamie El-sila and freshmen Katrina Koski and Derek Harris — were so dedicated to the project that during their spring break they went, not to Florida like many other classmates, but to West Virginia to study the inner workings of a 40-foot radio telescope — information they found invaluable.

They tested their equipment with expensive calibration tools and learned how to operate a radio telescope, too.

Maciolek was given a National Science Foundation grant two years ago and studied radio telescopes and the relatively new field of radio waves.

"I just got all fired up about it," she said. "I think they're really neat."

Unlike their visual counterparts, radio telescopes can be used during daylight. They can "see" — or more accurately "re-record" — information through clouds (but not during an electrical storm) and can pick up information much farther into deep space.

When completed, the telescope will have cost about $2,200, most of which was provided by grants and a donation from the Mother's Club. It will be of research quality and Maciolek says it will have the potential to make significant contributions to science and to classes at South.

Gypsy moth traps OK'd in six cities

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

If the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods suffer an infestation of gypsy moths in the future, at least it won't be a big surprise.

All six cities have agreed to participate in a plan by the Grosse Pointe Shade Tree Council to put up and take down 62 gypsy moth traps at designated locations. The cities will also count the number of moths captured.

The numbers of moths caught in each trap will be reported to the state Department of Agriculture, and a Michigan State University entomologist will put the data in a computer to determine the gypsy moth infestation rate and recommend eradication measures, if necessary.

"I'm really pleased we're getting off the dime on this," said Jean Rice, president of the Shade Tree Council.

Gypsy moths have made devastating inroads into Michigan, with the Midland area suffering the most.

Last summer, Grosse Pointe Woods and Shores set out 28 traps. While the Shores traps inexplicably contained no moths, the 14 traps in the Woods and one on Worden just off Mack in Detroit caught 201 male moths. Eleven of the traps had 10 or more moths. Individual trap catches ranged from two to 28 moths captured.

Rice, in a letter to administrators of the six cities, said the numbers caught last year indicate that the gypsy moth is something to be concerned about now.

The gypsy moth is the most harmful to trees and disgusting to humans when its larval stage, or caterpillar, stage. Up to 2 inches long, the caterpillars feed on leaves of trees, particularly oak, during the night. During the day they hide from the sun in the cracks of the bark near the base of the trees.

The moths can completely defoliate trees in huge areas. The thousands of caterpillars can be heard munching on leaves and dropping feces. The caterpillars and their wastes can foul swimming pools, cover sidewalks and make driving treacherous.

Before this happens to the Grosse Pointes, the Shade Tree Council wants to be aware of the extent of the gypsy moth infestation and be prepared to combat the moths while they're smaller in number.

The traps are not intended as a means of reducing the gypsy moth population. Rather, they're part of a monitoring program. If

Pointer of Interest

Paul E. Andrews

By Pat Paholsky
Editor

To Paul E. Andrews, Wayne State University is more than a collection of buildings made of brick, wood, stone, cement and glass. It's a living, pulsating, vibrant community smack in the middle of a scrappy industrial city that has a surfeit of culture.

As one of 17 institutions that comprise the Cultural Center, Wayne State is the ninth largest employer in the state, Andrews says, "and probably the major cultural anchor in the city."

He is a Wayne State booster through and through, and after nearly five decades of association with the school, the Grosse Pointe Woods resident plans to retire in September.

He first came to the school as a student in 1941 and he'll leave as associate vice president of alumni relations. Except he won't quite sever the ties — he'll continue working on some projects on a quarter- to half-time basis.

Andrews' affinity for school manifested itself early — when he first started grade school — and it continued through high school. He was sports editor of the student newspaper at South-eastern High and active in student government.

"High school was just a ball," he said. "I can't think of anything that was more fun."

There is a small nucleus of classmates who maintain contact, Andrews said, and they are planning their 50th reunion. His goal of becoming a sports writer changed to sports broadcasting when he entered Wayne. World War II interrupted his plans, however, and after 1 1/2 years as a student, Andrews was drafted.

After basic training in California, he was sent to Hawaii where he was assigned guard duty. West Point was being democratized at the time, Andrews said, and he applied. There was a quota for the Hawaiian Islands and Andrews was one of eight selected and sent by the academy to Amherst College in Massachusetts.

"It was like dying and going to heaven," he said. "There's no place more beautiful than sleepy little Amherst."

After nine months, Andrews

Cadieux farmhouse saved; council approves lot split

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

Without fanfare, the Grosse Pointe City Council approved a plan Monday night to save the historical Cadieux farmhouse as one of two single-family homes.

The plan, as approved by the council and designed by Grosse Pointe developer Chris Blake, calls for the 1830s vintage Isidore Cadieux on Jefferson at Notre Dame to be refurbished as a single-family home with a kitchen and attached garage added.

A second, smaller home will be on the Cadieux farmhouse property just north of the existing structure.

Last November, Blake, property owner Peter Kauffman and Grosse Pointe Historical Society president Lisa Gandelot proposed that the farmhouse be saved as one of two attached condominiums. The "adaptive reuse" plan called for rezoning the property from single-family to two-family residential.

The nearby residents, however, were not as thrilled with the plan.

They objected to losing the existing open space and to the rezoning that may have set a precedent for more two-family or multi-family development in the area.

At the time, Blake insisted that the only way the farmhouse could be saved and be economically feasible for his company would be as a condominium.

During a close vote, the council approved the rezoning by a 4-2 vote with Councilman Dale Scrace abstaining. Scrace chose not to vote because his company, John Cooley Construction, has worked on projects with The Blake Co.

Because of residents' objections, a two-thirds vote was required to approve the rezoning. A two-thirds vote of the seven-member council requires five votes, but because Scrace abstained and only six votes were cast, city attorney Richard Hinks believed the four out of six votes met the two-thirds requirement.

The nearby residents disagreed and through their attorney, William D. Gilbride Jr., filed suit and obtained a temporary restraining order blocking the development of the property as condominiums.

Blake then came up with another plan calling for two single-family homes instead of two attached condos. The residents with their attorney found the new plan acceptable and sent a letter to the city stating that if the new plan is approved, the lawsuit will be withdrawn.

Rob MacGregor of The Blake Co. said Tuesday the residents' suit would have been a long and costly delay, which his company did not want. He indicated that The Blake Co. would have preferred to build the condominiums, but he added that the two houses resolved all the residents' concerns.

"It'll come off well," he said, "and it does preserve the farmhouse."

At a public hearing Monday to rezone the property back to single-family residential, split the property into two lots and approve variances for some minor set-back allowances, no residents commented on the plan.

Peter Waldmeir was the only member of the council with lengthy comments on the Cadieux farmhouse issue.

He pointed out that the council, at least in his opinion, did not want to rezone the property in the first place, but it was believed to be the only way to save the historical dwelling. Now it turns out the farmhouse can be saved as a single-family after all, he said, and he, for one, was in favor of rezoning the property back to the single-family residential.

He said the council and city officials have put a lot of time and effort into the Cadieux farmhouse issue. The council's goal from the beginning was to save the house, Waldmeir said.

Youths interfere on police radio

Youths or young adults interfered with Farms police by shouting obscenities and racial slurs over police radio channels last week.

The unauthorized use of police radio began at 11 p.m. May 16 and continued in to the early morning hours. According to police reports, the Farms Pier Park guard's police radio was stolen and later recovered, and it may have been the radio the youths were using.

Farms '90-91 budget adopted with more parking enforcement

By Dan Jarvis
Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe Farms City Council approved the operating budget for the 1990-91 fiscal year Monday night.

The budget, which includes creating the position of parking enforcement officer, received a unanimous thumbs up from council members.

According to the budget, the new position, requested by Public Safety Director Robert Ferber, is intended to:

- Address unauthorized parking on residential streets.
- Address illegal feeding of parking meters, primarily by employees of Hill businesses, who are exceeding the maximum limit.
- Address parking meter enforcement, though Ferber plans to use restraint with customers of Hill businesses.

Other specific items approved within the operating budget were discussed prior to the approval, with property tax and infrastructure repairs drawing the most discussion.

Property tax, historically the largest single revenue source, currently provides the major share (60 percent) of general fund revenues.

Residential state equalized value in 1990 increased by approximately 12 percent, while commercial properties increased by about 11 percent.

New construction in the Farms has added $7,840,000 to the property tax base this year, which amounts to $84,000 in new revenue. The city's total equalized value is approximately $430 million and consists of 94 percent residential and 6 percent commercial and personal property. The State Highway Fund, a state-shared gas and weight tax, reimburses the city's general fund in part for street maintenance, street sweeping and snow removal.

Revenues are estimated at $340,000, an increase of $20,000 over the current budget.

Overall estimated revenues are expected to increase by approximately 7.6 percent over the current budget. The estimated projections are based on 1990 census projections, which will not be known until mid-1990.

City Manager Andrew Bremer said the budget "contemplates a proposed tax rate of 10.75 mills, a reduction from 11.50 mills for fiscal year 1989-90."

The millage rate would result in a tax levy of some $299,000 more than this year, which when the affect of new construction is subtracted, results in a tax increase of approximately 4.8 percent for the average homeowner, or the increase in the cost of living over the past year.

Traditionally, the Farms has enjoyed a large unreserved surplus to succeeding budgets. Bremer, however, states in the budget report that the practice is unlikely to continue at the previous levels.

This year, the appropriated surplus is $689,365 and is $145,385 less than last year's surplus of $834,750.

Bremer points to infrastructure costs to keep the city's streets, sewers, buildings and facilities in operating condition as a reason for the reduction in the budget surplus.

Before the council's approval, Bremer sought ways of increasing the proposed tax rate of 10.75 mills by .2 mills, but was told that an increase in the proposed tax rate must be advertised in advance of a public hearing.

Also in the budget report, Bremer said the increased costs of refuse collection and disposal are expected to speed the shrinking of budget surpluses in the future.

The most significant changes in the general fund occur in the public works budget, the debt service budget and infrastructure improvements.

Of the significant changes, most predominant is the impact on costs attributable to solid waste collection and disposal.

According to Bremer, the costs of the status quo methods of solid waste disposal have increased more than one-third to $55 per ton, due primarily to the increased costs of transporting ash from the Grosse Pointes-Clinton Refuse Disposal Authority incinerator in Clinton Township to a special-use landfill.

"This line item alone has therefore resulted in a $140,000 adjustment to the public works budget for refuse disposal and is nearly one-half the $299,000 increase in the tax levy for 1990-91," Bremer wrote in the budget report.

Debt service has been increased by $72,690, reflecting principal and interest payments on the new $800,000 public improvement bond issue. The public improvement reserve contains $200,000, which is transferred from surplus, and $330,000 appropriated to the public improvement reserve account for a total of $530,000.

Nearly $200,000 of these funds are scheduled to be used for continuing repairs to the city's infrastructure.

In the budget, an amount of $24,000 is listed for the replacement of outdated furnace equipment in the city's sewage plant, while $25,000 is listed for furnace replacement in City Hall.

Also included in the public improvement reserve as a carryover from last year is $30,000 to enhance the computerization of several offices within City Hall.

The amount is expected to cover the increase of additional computer hardware, software and the equipment to network the system as necessary.

Following approval, Mayor Joseph Fromm suggested that in the future, the city may have to raise the tax rate higher than expected to ensure that the city has enough emergency funds to cover unexpected infrastructure repairs.

North choir goes to D.C., gives a capital performance

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

When the Grosse Pointe North High School choir went to Washington, D.C. to perform in competition last week, all the students knew their music.

What they didn't know is that they would come together in a way that amazed the students and impressed the teachers.

The 92 students and 12 chaperones arrived in Washington on May 10, prepared for four days of sightseeing and touring of the nation's capital. They were there as part of the Adjudicators' National Invitational Festival, an invitation-only competition for America's finest musical ensembles. North's choir was invited because of its outstanding performance last year in Chicago.

"In the beginning everybody had their doubts about how we would do in competition," said Julie Hathaway, a sophomore. "In the regional competition we got a II rating." (The top rating is a I.) "But once we got there everything clicked."

It all had to do with a warm-up exercise by choir director Ben Walker, so the students say.

"He had us close our eyes then he told us we were to do the best we possibly can," said Gail Marlow, a senior. "It was really weird, because you could have heard a pin drop and we're always joking around."

"We all felt that we could do it," said Dale Ihrie, a junior.

Although a slight problem with the elevator to the competition floor at Kennedy Center caused the group to go on a little late, the kids were never flustered.

Not even in the middle of the quietest part of "How Lovely is Thy Dwelling Place" by J.S. Bach, when some workmen behind the stage started pounding.

"We just kind of looked down and Mr. Walker had this look on his face like..." Marlow said.

"But they didn't stop," Walker said. "They kept going. I was so proud of them."

The other two songs — a spiritual titled "Witness," and "Masquerade," a selection from Andrew Lloyd Webber's "Phantom of the Opera," went off without a hitch. Even the dance number for "Masquerade" was perfect.

"When we ended our number," Marlow said, "we all cut off at the exact same time and it rang through the auditorium. It was so cool."

"I thought we sounded great," Ihrie said, and Walker agreed.

"The students did the best they have ever done," he said. "Even with the pounding."

The students received a plaque for outstanding performance, and a I rating.

"But as happy as I was with the competition, in some ways it's been more exciting to see the way the students came together and matured," Walker said.

"At first we were kind of mad at the chaperones for planning so many things for us to do," said junior David Miller, whose mother, Janet, was one of those planners. "But now that we're home I'm glad we did all those things, and everyone else is too." They saw the Smithsonian, the Lincoln Memorial, the capital buildings and a visit to watch Congress in session where the students brag they saw Gopher — Fred Grandy, a Rep. from Iowa who's better known as the Love Boat purser — but it was the Vietnam Memorial the students and the teachers talk about.

"There are really no words to describe it," Miller said. "It was amazing."

Walker said he was overcome with emotion as he saw the name of a friend of his on the wall, and a student came to him and comforted him.

"It was a role reversal, the student helping the teacher." "But that's the kind of things that happened," said Margaret Steele, also a vocal music teacher at North. "The kids just came together and solidified into one group. That's what's important, getting to know the kids better."

Marlow said that the students also got to know Walker, Steele and accompanist Bob Foster better, and it was meaningful for them, too.

"I think there's a lot of love for them," she said. "They're the ones who make it all happen."

Although the competition is over, it will be remembered by the students.

"It was really worthwhile," Hathaway said. "I'm so glad I had the chance to go."

"It was an experience no one should miss," Miller said. "I learned things I would never have learned in school."

"The warmth and love we all felt for each other came through," Walker said. "I think the judges sensed that. I think our kids represented the best of Grosse Pointe."

The North Choir performed in competition recently at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.

The choir also had time to fit in some sightseeing.

Public school pilot D.A.R.E. program completed at Mason Elementary

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

Now fifth-graders at Mason Elementary School know how to say no to drugs.

The 26 students of Dr. Michael Dib's class graduated May 9 following a 17-week drug resistance program conducted by the Grosse Pointe Woods Public Safety Department.

The Drug Awareness Resistance Education course, taught by Public Safety Officer Sally Beghin, was conducted at Mason as a pilot program. Beghin said she will not know until the fall whether the school wants her to continue offering D.A.R.E. at Woods elementary schools.

The Mason class is the second class in the Woods to graduate students from the D.A.R.E. program. Sixth-graders at Our Lady Star of the Sea completed the D.A.R.E. program in February.

The D.A.R.E. program was started by the Los Angeles Police Department in 1983 in conjunction with the public school district. Since then it has spread to 49 states and several foreign

In Michigan, D.A.R.E. instructors are taught by the State Police. All instructors have to be sworn, uniformed officers.

D.A.R.E. teaches students to expect to be offered drugs in the future and how to deal with the situation when it occurs. They learn how to handle peer pressure. They are taught decision-making and to anticipate the consequences of their decisions.

The guest speaker at the graduation was Detroit Red Wings announcer Dave Strader. He told the students he was speaking to them not only as a media professional but also as a parent.

Strader, 35, said he was lucky there weren't drugs in school when he was a kid. He said he hopes a new kind of peer pressure will develop in the future, where kids pressure others not to use drugs.

Following the speech, the fifth-graders peppered Strader with questions concerning Red Wing Bob Probert, who is on probation for charges stemming from alcohol and other drug abuse. The students wanted to know if Probert will get any more chances.

"He won't be able to stumble one more time," Strader said. "I don't think he's got any more chances."

He added, "You guys are really tough on this guy."

At the graduation, the students performed several skits on how they will handle situations involving pressure to use drugs, and they sang a song they composed called "Drug Free" to the music of "Wild Thing" by the Troggs.

Many Woods officials attended the D.A.R.E. graduation, including Mayor George Freeman, City Council members Ted Bidigare and Jean Rice, Municipal Court Judge Patricia Schneider and schools Superintendent Ed Shine.

The Exchange Club of Grosse Pointe/St. Clair Shores recently donated $500 to the Grosse Pointe Woods D.A.R.E. program.

Exchange Club President John Schober presented the check to Grosse Pointe Woods Public Safety Director Jack Patterson and Crime Prevention Officer Sally Beghin at a club breakfast meeting.

D.A.R.E., which stands for Drug Abuse Resistance Education, is a preventive program whose aim is to equip youngsters with the skills to resist peer pressure to experiment with and use harmful drugs. The unique feature of Project D.A.R.E. is the use of police officers and instructors and resource persons. The 17-week course is taught to fifth and sixth-grade students and concludes with a graduation ceremony.

Schober said, "The demand for illicit drugs from all levels of society is increasing, dramatically and children are being subjected to the drug culture at an early age. The D.A.R.E. program fits the Exchange Clubs of America criteria for supporting projects that encourage proper youth development in our society."

The Exchange Club of Grosse

Pointe/St. Clair Shores is part of the National Exchange Club, a service organization with local chapters across the country. Activities of the organization center around the prevention of child abuse and other youth-related activities, American Citizenship, and Crime Prevention.

The local club meets each Thursday morning at Gilbert's Restaurant in St. Clair Shores at 7:30 a.m. A brief business meeting is conducted and guest speakers are invited to address the group. Membership is open to both men and women, and the club is seeking new members. For more information, contact Mike Reynolds at 343-0176.

Shores solves garage burglary

The May 6 burglary of a Grosse Pointe Shores garage has been solved, according to police.

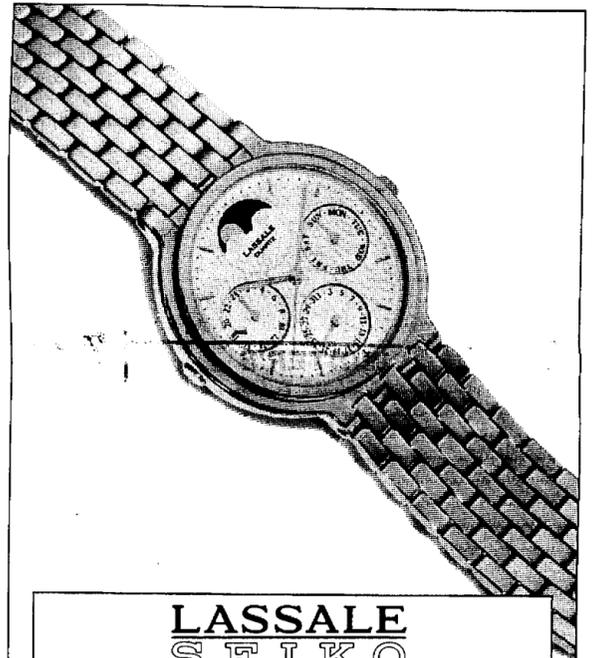

Public Safety Chief Daniel Healy credited Sgt. Dan Fronczak with the successful investigation of the burglary, which resulted in the loss of a hedge trimmer, leaf blower and golf clubs. The theft occurred on Moorland.

Healy said Fronczak learned that the suspect was being held by Grosse Pointe City on an armed robbery charge. Fronczak interviewed the 34-year-old suspect, who admitted to the theft.

Limit terms of legislators? We'd say no

Would Grosse Pointers be in favor of limiting the terms of members of the Legislature and Congress?

We don't profess to know what Pointers think of such proposals but, nationally campaigns are under way to achieve both goals that, if enacted, would affect the representation of the Grosse Pointes both in Lansing and Washington.

At the state legislative level, Rep. William R. Bryant Jr. of Grosse Pointe, who is now seeking his 11th term in the state House of Representatives, is, in fact, the senior Republican in that body. If any limitation were to come to pass in Michigan, he would already have served well beyond the 12 years being suggested as a maximum.

At the congressional level, Rep. George Crockett of the 13th District, which includes the Park and the City, has already announced his retirement, but Rep. Dennis Hertel of the 14th District would not yet be affected by the proposed 12-year congressional limitation.

Seniority is no longer the only factor affecting committee standing but it still is an important one which, veteran legislators remind their constituents, does much to determine how well or how poorly the state or district is represented.

For example, Rep. Bryant long has been an effective legislator in Lansing on such issues as restoring low income tax rates, opposing any state-imposed cap on local school taxes, proposing the tax amnesty that became law and involvement in other matters that showed leadership or reflected the views of his constituents. Bryant's seniority, even in the GOP minority, obviously adds to his power.

For that reason, among others, many political scientists call the limitation proposals overkill that would deprive the public of able senior officials. In fact, it's true that new legislators often need several terms just to locate the sources of power and learn how to use them on behalf of their constituents and their legislative proposals.

With the Democrats still controlling both houses of Congress, it's not surprising that conservatives and Republicans are leading the campaign for a constitutional amendment to limit House members to six terms and senators to two terms.

In 1988, the sponsors of such limitations remind voters, 98.5 percent of incumbent House members who ran were re-elected, as were 86 percent of the Senate.

Those favoring limitation apparently have broad public support. A recent New York Times/CBS News Poll found that 61 percent of the respondents favored limits on congressional terms with majority support coming from Democrats as well as Republicans, liberals as well as conservatives, whites and blacks and men and women alike.

In Michigan, Democratic Rep. John Dingell with 18 consecutive two-year terms or 36 continuous years leads all other state congressmen and is tied for fifth place among those with the longest terms of service in the U.S. House.

Rep. William S. Broomfield of Michigan is tied for seventh place on the list with Rep. Robert H. Michel of Illinois, the minority leader, and they have more House seniority than any other Republicans.

Some political scientists claim a better approach than limitation of terms would be to tighten campaign spending limits, prevent incumbents from redrawing their districts after the census, scale back free mailing privileges and even cut the size of congressional staffs, all of which would make it possible for challengers to give incumbents a better battle.

We believe some alternative proposal that would provide a level playing field for challengers and incumbents is preferable to any strict limitation on length of service. In politics as in many other fields, knowledge is power and few legislators, whether in Lansing or Washington, acquire either one until after several terms of service.

Foes continue airport fight

Representatives of the City Airport Opposition Association took mild exception to the Grosse Pointe News' editorial view expressed last week that the expansion program is practically a "done deal."

Instead, the critics of the expansion proposal contend that if the Pointes and the other communities opposing the airport's increase in size and use continue their campaign, they still have a good chance of stopping the plan.

In urging the continuation of the letter-writing campaign, a spokesperson for the association reiterated that funding from the Federal Aviation Administration and assistance from the state Department of Transportation have not yet been approved.

Furthermore, she reminded airport foes that elected state and federal officials can influence FAA and MDOT decisions on funding and/or assistance and ought to be sought out for their support in opposing the airport expansion in all possible ways.

Even though the MDOT response to a Grosse Pointer indicated general support for the expansion, we agree that opposition ought to be continued and, in fact, ought to be carried "to the very top" in view of the support George Bush won in the Pointes both in 1980 and 1988.

Information in the form letter quoted in last week's editorial apparently came from a study by the MDOT titled "Value of Detroit City Airport to the Greater Detroit Area." The report of the study, made from October to December last year, was issued in January.

The report represents "the findings and/or professional opinions of the staff of the MDOT, Bureau of Transportation Planning," but "is not an official opinion of either the Michigan Transportation or Michigan Aeronautics Commissions." Nor, in fact, do the contents reflect the official views or policy of the FAA, the report says.

Furthermore, the report issues a disclaimer, emphasizing that its acceptance by the MDOT and the FAA does not constitute a commitment either by the state or the FAA to participate in any airport development, or to indicate that the proposal is environmentally acceptable to either agency.

Yet the report tends to offer support when it says, in a one-sided approach, that the study measures the importance of aviation as an industry in terms of employment it provides and the economic activity it generates, without, however, considering some of the adverse effects of airport activity and expansion.

For example, what about the importance of the increased threats to safety, health, property values and quality of life posed by increased air traffic stemming from any airport expansion in a heavily populated area? None of those factors is mentioned.

True, before the master plan is announced, the MDOT and the FAA presumably will at least take cognizance of the reactions of the public. For the MDOT letter quoted last week did promise that "further development of the airport will not be supported unless a significant benefit to the residents of the surrounding area can be found."

If the MDOT and FAA live up to that promise, there still ought to be a good chance to halt the juggernaut of official bureaucracy that at both the city and state levels appears determined to continue empire-building at Detroit City Airport.

3 Detroit jewels in trouble

Two more of Detroit's cultural and educational jewels are in deep financial trouble and will have to cut back their services to the public unless help arrives soon.

Coming on the heels of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra's money problems, the plight of the Detroit Institute of Arts and the Detroit Public Library offers additional evidence of the economic depression into which the city of Detroit is sinking.

All three institutions are now regarded as state resources and appreciated by many non-Detroiters, including Grosse Pointers and other suburban residents, who also contribute to the support of all three in various ways.

The financial plight of the Detroit Public Library was the latest to come to public attention. As a result of a reduction in state aid and other shortfalls in income, the library commission has approved a cut in service from six to five days a week and the closing of six branches effective July 2.

Earlier, the Detroit Institute of Arts disclosed it is projecting a $1.8 million deficit for the 1990 fiscal year and is considering a number of options to try to close the gap.

With the state itself unlikely to boost its $16.2 annual contribution, which amounts to about half the museum's income, officials are talking about closing the institute on Tuesdays, charging admission, increasing memberships and donations, boosting ticket prices for various events, reducing education programs and adopting other measures to cut costs and increase revenues.

The problem with proposals such as charging admission and closing the institute one more day each week is that such measures would deny more people the opportunity to enjoy the museum's cultural and educational programs.

Like the art institute and the library, the symphony orchestra gets state aid to preserve an asset that benefits all of the people of the state. Mayor Coleman Young's budget omitted even the $250,000 the city has been providing to the symphony in recent years but the council last week restored the item.

Whether the mayor will veto that item and whether, if he does, the council will override the veto is unknown.

Young has often described the three institutions as among the jewels that Detroit will insist on controlling as long as he is mayor. However, unless he and his administration do more to obtain adequate support, all three institutions may have to be named wards of the state or managed by some regional organization if they are to survive as cultural and educational jewels.

ANOTHER PEACEFUL SATURDAY IN THE 'BURBS.

Architectural merit

To the Editor:

The Grosse Pointe Historical Society has perhaps acted prematurely in its choices for distinguished buildings this year. It is understandable that in an area where few buildings of architectural merit and a meaningful historic past have been left that one is faced with a dilemma to find suitable choices. The society should use the same criteria as the National Historic Register and consult both architectural historians and serious architects with a proven track record in order to establish credibility. In an era of irresponsible development of dubious motivation, it is especially important to maintain the architectural integrity of the community.

Both the Grosse Pointe South High School and the Buck-Wardell House (despite the newer additions) represent the best of their era with an intelligent consideration for site, function, materials, volume, scale and aesthetics.

The Schafenberg-Allor House is a mixture of discordant units which is of a type duplicated profusely throughout the rural Midwest. Although it has a modicum of charm, it hardly deserves recognition for superior work. Age itself does not constitute merit as every era has had its Tiffany and Kresge artifacts. The Home

Expand airport

To the Editor:

Here's a vote to expand Detroit City Airport. The convenience of flying to Chicago, St. Louis, Indianapolis and other places out of City Airport has been fantastic. There are many Grosse Pointers who have enjoyed this tremendously. Enlarging the airport will bring even more enjoyment to them. The long ride to Metropolitan Airport is ridiculous if it can be avoided.

During the winter we live on Key Biscayne, which is just a few miles southeast of Miami International Airport, one of the biggest in the world. We live about the same distance from that airport as we do from City Airport. The distances are almost identical. Hundreds of planes fly over our home on Key Biscayne every day. There has never been any kind of a problem. There have been no accidents and everyone is happy.

To have a centrally located airport in mid-city is a real pleasure. We hope the opponents of the proposed City Airport expansion will reconsider their thoughts.

Rivalry belongs on playfield

You can feel it in the warm spring air. Students who for 12 long years have been humming the melody to "We've got to get out of this place" will soon be humming "School's Out (for summer)."

And as anyone who graduated from either Grosse Pointe North or South high schools knows, the warm spring air often is the calling for students who will soon march to the beat of a different drum.

For me (back in 1978), the mid-June graduation ceremony could not come fast enough. Soon after, however, I found myself missing the old school at Fisher and Grosse Pointe Boulevard.

One thing I do not miss is the fact that before my own graduation, the North-South rivalry got out of hand a couple of times during the downhill ride toward graduation.

There were the traditional hot rod duels along Grosse Pointe Boulevard, the screeching tires and burning rubber, the yells of the students on the lawn and the screaming of police sirens.

There was the giant slingshot which hurled water balloons from the center of South's lawn well into the boulevard, often frightening a passing motorist when one of the missiles slammed into his or her car.

But there were also the fights between students from North and South. This to me, even at 18, seemed to take all the fun out of the pre-graduation romp.

The idea is to have fun, not to maim students from the other school in town. Sadly, many missed the point and sought to once-and-for-all establish the dominance of one high school over the other, often resulting in the injury of one or more Grosse Pointe students.

I'm not saying we should end the rivalry. But when seniors, warm spring air, fast cars, rivalry and yes, even alcohol, mix, the result can be dangerous.

I remember one particular round of rivalry-inspired stupidity where students from both schools made a point to take turns visiting the other school, screaming insults and threats as they drove by.

One thing led to another and students got out of their cars and began fighting. The fight was quickly broken up, but was postponed until nightfall.

Many other students from both schools gathered as the fighting students stood their ground and continued their noontime battle in the cover of the night.

One after another, students from both schools were bruised, booed and bloodied as the crowd jeered them on.

I remember thinking, "Are they really that different from us? A little school rivalry is fun, but is it worth blood on the pavement? And, aren't we all from the same basic town?"

I'm afraid that my concerns seem naive to some, especially to some high schoolers. But clearly if I'm going to fight, I need a good reason. Because someone lives on the other side of town is not reason enough to draw blood.

The North-South rivalry was born of football, basketball and several other sports. In my mind, the 20-year-old rivalry belongs on the playing field, not in some dark alley.

Students from both schools are lucky to be schooled in one of the nation's best districts. To many high schoolers, these are empty words.

My appreciation for a good education came a few years after graduation, but my concern for needless violence was instilled at a much younger age.

This June, I hope our community will be free of the rivalry-gone-haywire and furthermore, I hope that the rivalry will be fought out and decided on the gridiron rather than the pavement.

Chef stuff

Grosse Pointer Jimmy Schmidt owner of Detroit's Rattlesnake Club, recently traded his chef's hat for an ambassador's hat when he took the flavor of the Motor City to Opelousas, La., for the St. Landry Parish Heritage Festival.

The affair was coordinated by Chef Paul Prudhomme, and the three-day extravaganza was a celebration of the food, music and traditions of St. Landry Parish, Prudhomme's birthplace. Schmidt was a guest chef at the Quality Inn in Opelousas.

Count off

Thirteen-year-old Jeremy Cieslak of Grosse Pointe Woods, an eighth-grader at Parcels Middle School, traveled to Washington, D.C., last week to compete in a program called Mathcounts. (Our school-beat reporter Ronald J. Bernas wrote a story about Jeremy last week, before he went to Washington.)

Jeremy was the top contender in the preliminary competition in Michigan.

The trip to Washington, D.C., was wonderful, said Jeremy's teacher, Alan Silverston, and the test was easier than expected. "It was really an interesting competition."

Jeremy was interviewed by CNN too.

Jeremy placed 100th out of 224 contenders; the team from Michigan placed 18th out of 56 teams.

William Stephens of Grosse Pointe Woods, also an eighth-grader at Parcels Middle School, placed third in the state at the Michigan Council of Teachers of Mathematics tournament last weekend. William was the runner-up to Jeremy.

Bowl-a-thon

Seedlings is a non-profit organization which transcribes children's books into braille.

The group is supported by a tri-county volunteer board of directors and is funded through benefits, grants and donations. Last year, a bowl-a-thon raised more than 13 percent of the organization's total budget.

"Without these books, some children would never know the joy of reading, or even what it is like to own their own books," said Debra Bonde, founder and director of Seedlings. Placing a book in a child's hands is like planting a seed.

The bowl-a-thon will be Friday, June 1, at 7 p.m. at the Bronco Lanes, 22323 Ryan Road, in Warren. Every $10 earned will create one more book for a blind child.

Participants may sign up to be part of a team of bowlers or they can get sponsors who will donate a certain amount of money per pin.

Call Seedlings at 427-8552 for registration and information.

Recycle cars

To the Editor:
I am learning from my children the importance of recycling materials and conserving our precious resources. The information they are getting in school urges the family to sort and recycle its refuse.

I came from the disposal, throw-away, fast-food generation — at one time there was even throw-away underwear and clothes. To support the recycling effort, we must break old daily habits and develop new ones that make it easy to sort paper, glass, metal and garbage.

If families are willing to do this, we also need help from businesses and car manufacturers who are major consumers of our natural resources and contributors to the pollution in our environment.

In my office building, I see tons of trash each year composed mostly of reams of computer paper and expired project notebooks with hard plastic bindings, all of which gets put in dumpsters and carted away to the dump.

Car manufacturers turn out tens of thousands of cars every year out of new materials. Why can't older cars, like returnable bottles, be returned to the car manufacturer for deposit and recycled — either cannibalized and refurbished into manufacturer rebuilt cars and resold, or broken down into component parts, reclaimed, and used to make new cars?

It is truly a throw-away society that mass produces $10,000 to $24,000 products which after 7.5 years are compressed into six inches of mangled metal, glass and plastic chunks and sold to the junk man for a penny a pound.

If the private sector can tool up to recycle for our environment, the business sector can too. Let's hear it from Chrysler, Ford and GM!

Negligent businesses

To the Editor:
A great concern of the Grosse Pointe community is property values. The businesses in the area and the way they maintain the outside of their buildings can either add charm to the community or detract from it.

The shopping areas on Kercheval and the businesses above Moross on Mack do an outstanding job of maintaining their buildings and planting flowers in the summer. But about half of the businesses below Moross on Mack (predominantly on the Detroit side of Mack) do little or nothing to maintain their buildings. The area is deteriorating and the term "slum landlord" comes to mind whenever I drive in that area.

As a homeowner in Grosse Pointe City, I am concerned of what this will do to our property values. Although we can't demand that these businesses fix their buildings, we can show them that we won't stand for this lack of respect for the area by refusing to do business with them.

I have stopped going to my regular cleaners because their flower tubs sit empty and rotting and the small patch of grass in front of the building is neglected. I have told the owner of the cleaners why I am switching and intend to let my new cleaners know why I have switched to them, in order to show them that adding to the community adds to their business.

If every person in the area would do the same, I am sure we would see a big change in the attitudes of the negligent businesses. It is a minor inconvenience for us, but will pay off in the end.

Expansion benefits

To the Editor:

I am currently a student at University of Detroit Jesuit High School. I am writing in regard to the recent article, "Farms joins anti-airport fold," printed in your April 26 issue.

I, too, am disappointed in the prospect of enlarging the city airport, and I understand that the expansion could have negative effects on property assessment levels.

However, there are benefits to this expansion, such as the convenient location to the city of Detroit, the east side, Port Huron and Windsor. This could be very helpful to frequent fliers.

This proposed enlargement would also generate new jobs. Publishing my letter will give the people of Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods a look at this positive side. I do not feel any issue is one-sided. In order to make the best decision for our future, both sides must be weighed.

Keep river open

To the Editor:

In the film "Crazy People," an advertising copywriter (Dudley Moore) suffers a mental breakdown and begins to create slogans that are truthful. Off he goes to the mental hospital.

Actually, the advertisements nowadays do not make statements of fact. The companies want to avoid a lawsuit for misrepresentation. A TV advertisement for an automobile plays an aria from an opera. A cigarette advertisement shows a cowboy out on the range.

The most controversial urban design issue at the moment in Detroit is whether the city, strapped for funds, should turn over the prime publicly owned site on the Detroit River — Ford Auditorium — to Comerica so the bank can build a skyscraper on it.

In a downtown full of abandoned buildings and vacant lots, Comerica, if it is to build in the city, reportedly wants the river site, so that its employees would have a nice view of the river. It's an affront to the public. By right, the use and enjoyment of the shores of navigable waters belong to one and all.

First of all, as William Kessler, a leading Detroit architect, says, the auditorium is a perfectly good structure, useful for many civic functions. Why tear down a good building when there is so much being torn down in the city?

Secondly, it's civic space, space that belongs to the public. In endorsing the plan to turn over the area to Comerica, Diane Edgcomb, president of the Central Business District Association, seems to have the vision of a bat. Free Press writer John Gallagher quotes her as saying, "It's important that we have a balance on the riverfront between the private and the public."

Just imagine if instead of the so-called Renaissance Center and the parking lot along the riverfront, the entire area between Jefferson and the river were open land. It would have revitalized the city more than anything else that could have been done.

Free Press columnist Jim Fitzgerald puts it aptly: "Could there possibly be anything more stupid than putting buildings and parking lots directly on the riverbank, blocking the gorgeous view of sparkling water, majestic lake freighters, and the skyline of a foreign city? ... (It is spiritually downgrading not (to) be able to see the water because of the hundreds of cars parked on the riverbank."

Chicago's entire lakefront is parkland, public and open, and it enhances the value of property throughout the area. Baltimore has rejuvenated its waterfront. In New Orleans the French Quarter and the area near the Mississippi River have been improved by opening up the shores of the river, and there is a large strip of land along Lake Pontchartrain that allows for strolling, sitting and other recreation. The open river and lakefronts make the city attractive, for resident and visitor alike.

Cities that have kept their shoreline open are numbered as the most beautiful in the world — Paris, Amsterdam, Rio de Janeiro, Leningrad, Prague, Geneva and Cape Town.

Hereabouts, a two-mile stretch of Grosse Pointe's Lakeshore Drive is open, providing a beautiful view, but the roadway, located near the water's edge, rules out any recreational use of the lakefront. In St. Clair Shores, passers-by can't even see the lakefront.

Like King Lear, in Shakespeare's play, the city is destroying itself by acts of willful folly.

Thank you

To the Editor:

If in the last week you've had the occasion to drive Mack Avenue, you'll have undoubtedly noticed that it looks much nicer than it did before. The streets are clean; there are flowers blooming, and the grass has been cut and edged.

I would like to extend a sincere thank you to the following individuals and organizations who took the time and made the effort to help make our community just a little better. Thanks to Karen Warren, the Grosse Pointe Board of Realtors, Wayne County Commissioner David Cavanagh, Wayne County Road Commission, Helen Geisbohrer, Mack Avenue Beautification Association, Fred Cansiani, the cities of Grosse Pointe Farms, Park and Woods beautification commissions, Sen. John Kelly, County Executive Ed McNamara's office, Wayne County Work Alternative group, Gretchen Morris, Dr. Bob Gorski, Samantha Mowbray, the Detroit Police Department, Mr. C's, Pointe Pizza, Little Caesar's, Captain II, Jim Komaine, Rick Landuyt and all those business people along the avenue who took the time to help in front of their respective offices and businesses.

This is an annual clean-up effort of the Mack Avenue Business and Professional Association to promote and beautify Mack Avenue. Please, let's remember that the grass will grow back, litter will accumulate again and paint will peel. Hopefully, this effort will act as a catalyst for all of us to pay more attention to our business area and continue of a regular basis to do those things that will keep our avenue, and the community as well, healthy, clean and beautiful.

Once again, thanks to all who volunteered.

Bryant introduces airport bill

Declaring "we don't need a new Metro Airport in the backyards of Detroiters," Republican State Rep. Bill Bryant, who represents a portion of Detroit plus the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods, introduced House Bill 5756, with bi-partisan co-sponsorship, to place new and difficult hurdles in the way of Detroit's plans to expand Detroit City Airport.

The bill would require advance written approval by the Michigan Natural Resources Commission, and by the appropriate regional planning agency, the Detroit City Council and the Wayne and Macomb County boards of commissioners.

Other bills pertaining to Detroit City Airport expansion introduced in recent weeks seek a vote of Warren and other adjacent community residents before Detroit could proceed. "This bill seeks," Bryant said, "to provide a somewhat more conventional but still very substantial burden to be satisfied by Detroit before it could invade the airspace of its neighbors so severely."

Bryant says his bill is needed as another strong alternative to bills calling for votes of the residents of airport neighboring communities, because requiring such a popular vote has met with some legislative opposition. "I still favor a popular vote," Bryant said, "but we need an alternative, in case a popular vote cannot gain approval of the legislature and governor."

Cancer survivors to offer support at seminar June 1

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

The fact that Charles Merz is speaking to a group of cancer survivors is something of a miracle when you consider that last year at this time, the Grosse Pointe Park resident was given an eight percent chance of surviving prostate cancer.

But his message to those who attend the program for cancer survivors on Friday, June 1, at Harper Hospital will be a message of hope, not of pain or of struggle.

This is the sixth year for the cancer survivor's workshop, which was started by Gwen MacKenzie, a product line administrator in the Oncology Department at Harper-Grace, when patients began discussing what would be categorized as survivorship issues.

Patients stated their fear of recurrence, their inability to obtain insurance and fringe benefits and their problems with relationships to other people.

Mackenzie said most hospitals pull off herculean efforts to cure cancer, but once the cancer is gone or under control, their efforts stop. The problem, however, is that's when many new problems start.

"The first year we had a really hard time defining the term cancer survivors," Mackenzie said. "We realized we didn't need to define the word; we let the people define it."

"We had people there who had been diagnosed with cancer 15 years earlier to people who had been diagnosed 15 days earlier to those who were obviously terminal."

A cancer survivor is defined as any person from the time of the discovery of the cancer through the balance of his or her life, MacKenzie said.

Currently there are more than five million Americans with a history of cancer. More than half of them have lived five years after their first diagnosis.

Many people with a history of cancer are seen as bad risks for employment. Employers may think that they will need time off for treatment or will be out sick often.

"But studies have proven that's not true," MacKenzie said. "My experience, clinically, shows that they almost feel guilty about taking time off. And quite often nowadays, it's not necessary to take time off for therapy."

Studies have shown also that cancer survivors approach their work with a different attitude and a stronger work ethic, most likely because of their experience fighting cancer.

In Michigan, MacKenzie says, cancer patients fall under the Handicappers Civil Rights Act, making discrimination toward them illegal.

But even after they are hired, cancer patients have difficulty obtaining fringe benefits. Insurance companies can freeze people out of life insurance coverage because cancer is deemed a pre-existing condition and, therefore, might not be covered, MacKenzie said.

But the biggest problem facing cancer survivors is the fear of recurrence, a fear one woman told MacKenzie was "like a monkey on my back." Dealing with that fear is one of the most difficult things a survivor has to do.

Interpersonal relationships are also changed after a cancer diagnosis. One patient told MacKenzie that her friends stopped asking her how she was doing because they were afraid she might tell them.

The half-day program will offer round-table discussions on all these issues, with an insurance specialist, a lawyer, a therapist and other survivors.

Additionally, a keynote address will be given by Patti Knox, chairwoman of the state Liquor Control Commission. Knox, who was diagnosed with lung cancer in 1988, continued working in her position during treatment and describes herself as a workaholic. She will share the tips that helped her overcome her battle.

The program will be held Friday, June 1, from 12:30 to 4:30 p.m. at Harper Hospital, 3990 John R, in Detroit. The fee is $10 for materials. For registration and further information, call Harper Hospital Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at 745-8902.

A survivor's story

Charles Merz was a workaholic — running the architectural firm Schervish Vogel Merz, raising a family, teaching, and as he puts it, "maxing out on everything."

That was until a year and a half ago when his wife told him she wanted a divorce and two months later he discovered he had prostate cancer. At 43, Merz was too young to get prostate cancer, but today he points the finger at the lifestyle he led until the diagnosis.

Doctors differed on what treatment Merz should receive, and he did extensive research into the treatments, so he knew what to expect. He questioned doctors, bucked their orders when he felt they were wrong, and got into group therapy and meditation.

His cure, he believes, came not just from the doctor's treatments, but also from deep inside himself, with more than a little help from above.

"It sounds silly, but when you're facing death, you get desperate," he said. "I started praying more and I started believing I was going to live no matter what."

Merz tells a tale he admits is somewhat supernatural about how he came to pray to a local legend, Father Solanus Casey, a Capuchin monk. After months of disregarding the advice of two women and others that he should pray to Casey, he received something at Vic Tanny, he found a scapular (a type of religious medal usually made of cloth) for Father Casey on the ground next to a machine on which he was exercising.

"Someone must have dropped it there," he said. "I took it home and sewed it up because the edges were fraying and kept it in my pocket."

He visited Casey's crypt one day and talked to a monk who had known him. The monk told Merz that Casey counseled people to pray as if their wish was already granted, and that is what Merz has done ever since.

He also puts his faith in meditation and visualization, and has used those techniques to help him overcome the side effects of chemotherapy. Work with Adult Children of Alcoholics has helped him overcome some internal anger which he believes contributed to causing his cancer.

He has worked with Bernie Siegal, the founder of ECap, which stands for Exceptional Cancer Patients. ECap promotes group therapy for cancer patients and the visualization techniques used have helped people get well.

His love for and support from his three daughters Hannah, 13, Nora, 8, and Martha, 3, is also what kept him going, he said. His friends who listened to him "babble endlessly about my problems" were also part of his recovery. He says a person with cancer really discovers who his or her friends are.

Although Merz says his partners were supportive while he put his work on hold to fight cancer, many people didn't understand what he was going through or how sick he was. He invited friends to go to the hospital with him for his chemotherapy sessions which helped them understand his pain.

He learned to walk away from negative people in his life and to dwell on the positives, a message he will give to cancer survivors when he talks to them June 1 at Harper Hospital.

"I would tell cancer survivors to take control of their lives," he said. While doctors and nurses administer medications and make diagnoses, Merz says that "no doctor or nurse can tell you how to get well — you have to do it yourself."

The second message he gives to cancer patients is that they should accept a higher power — a scary proposition to many people.

He urges people to open themselves to love and to stop internalizing the stress and strain of everyday life.

Today Merz believes he is totally clean of cancer. While tests show he is, chances of recurrence are common and rapid with his type of cancer. In the meantime, he is counseling three other cancer patients with what he learned from his battle.

Celebrate Memorial Day in the Woods

For the eighth year, the annual Memorial Day observance will take place in Grosse Pointe Woods on Monday, May 28, at 10 a.m. at the Veterans' Memorial Parkway Circle of Honor, Vernier at Mack.

This year, the 7th Michigan Volunteer Infantry will join the parade and give a volley during the ceremony. The group will set up an encampment before and after the event on the median and the public is welcome to visit with them.

Other participants include Chet Bogan and the Wolverine Jazz Band, Girl Scout Troop 13, Cub Scout Troop 290, the Rev. David Wick, pastor of Grosse Pointe Baptist Church, the Rev. Robert Keller, pastor of St. Peter's Catholic Church, and the Woods-Shores Exchange Club.

There will be a flyover at the beginning of the ceremony by Detroit's helicopter division.

Bring a lawn chair and, in case of rain or cold weather, the ceremony will be held in the auditorium of Parcels Middle School.

7th Michigan Volunteer Infantry

Commission, co-chaired by Dr. Albert C. Howe and John A. Hammel.

Emergency room volunteers sought

It takes a special kind of person to volunteer in the atmosphere of an emergency room. If you think you have what it takes, Saratoga Community Hospital needs you.

It takes someone who can be comforting to family members of patients who are in the emergency department. The volunteers handle questions and communicate with the families of patients. They act as the liaison between the medical staff and the families.

Emergency department volunteers are needed 14 hours daily from 11 a.m. to 1 a.m. Four-hour shifts are arranged according to each individual's schedule. Saratoga asks volunteers to commit themselves to at least a four-hour shift per week and a minimum commitment of four months.

Volunteering in the emergency room atmosphere can be a learning opportunity for students in the nursing, medical, and social work fields. Retirees and other adults with extra time on their hands are also good candidates for volunteers.

For information on volunteering at Saratoga Community Hospital, call 245-1522.

Saratoga Community Hospital is located at 15000 Gratiot Avenue, near Eight Mile Road.

Defer parents upset over principal transfer

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

The routine transfer of one Grosse Pointe elementary school principal to another elementary school by the board of education has upset several parents at the principal's new school.

Sheila Turney, principal at Trombly Elementary School for the last six years, was transferred by the board May 14 to Defer Elementary School. Defer Principal Robert Shover will retire at the end of this year.

Turney requested the transfer to the larger school. She has been with the district for 14 years.

Kate Callas, president of the Defer PTO, told the board Monday they were unhappy with the decision to transfer Turney to their school.

"We feel we were inadvertently assigned someone who for reasons only members of the Defer community can tell you will not be a good fit," Callas said. She declined comment on what those reasons were, saying: "I don't think this is the proper time to discuss this."

Callas said that with the school system allowing each school to make more site-based decisions, parents and teachers should have had input in the transfer.

Board trustee Jane Nutter is the only board member who voted against the transfer. While she praises Turney as an educator, she doesn't feel the transfer will be good for the school. Nutter has had children attending Defer for nine years and feels she knows the school and the community.

"I have no problems with Sheila as a principal," Nutter said. "She's eminently qualified, but it's a very different situation at Defer than it is at Trombly."

Nutter would not say why she felt Turney would not fit in.

"We don't want this to be an open war," she said.

Turney also has children at Defer, and Nutter believes Turney cannot be objective when evaluating the educators who are teaching her own children.

Although it's been the board policy to have educators and their families at the same school, she believes it may be time to look at that policy.

She said the board could change their decision, but most likely will not. She felt that with open dialogue, the change can be made easier for all concerned.

Turney declined comment on the situation, but a Trombly parent who has worked with her on the school's PTO for the last five years has nothing but praise for her.

"I think she is one of the most outstanding principals the Grosse Pointe schools has," said Julia Keim. "She's got an excellent sense in hiring teachers, and the community and the staff have good feelings, it's not 'us' and 'them.'"

Keim said Turney knows the name of every student in her building, and received a more than 90 percent approval rating from a recent outside appraisal of the school by parents, teachers and students.

Keim says Turney is hard on those who aren't putting forth the effort for the students, which puts people off, but she is equally supportive of those who are innovative and creative in their teaching styles.

"She's a very strong woman and you have people who like that and people who don't," Keim said. "She's as good as she is because she has an edge which makes her unique. Her first and last concern is the kids."

Keim says the parents at Trombly are upset Turney is leaving, and believes there are as many people in support of her transfer as there are opposed to it.

Defer parents met behind closed doors with Superintendent Ed Shine after the board meeting to voice their concerns.

Congressman Dennis M. Hertel (D-Harper Woods) of Michigan's 14th Congressional District is accepting applications for the U.S. military academies (West Point, Air Force, Navy, Coast Guard, Merchant Marine) for the fall 1991 school year.

To be eligible, you must be between 17 and 22 years of age and a resident of the 14th Congressional District.

Prospective applicants must meet high leadership and academic standards. Individuals interested in a military career should prepare a written request to Congressman Dennis M. Hertel at 28221 Mound Road, Warren, Mich. 48092. Simultaneously, the individual should contact the academy of his or her preference, and request a pre-candidate questionnaire.

Applications for nomination to one of the U.S. military academies are reviewed by Congressman Hertel's Academy Nomination Committee, a non-partisan volunteer committee comprised of community members.

The deadline for application is Nov. 15. Interviews will be held on Dec. 15 at Bishop Gallagher High School.

Cities included within the 14th Congressional District include Center Line, Detroit (portions), East Detroit, Grosse Pointe Farms, Shores, and Woods, Hamtramck, Harper Woods, Hazel Park, Madison Heights, Sterling Heights, Troy (portions), and Utica, and Warren (portions).

House broken in

A house in the 1400 block of Lakepointe was broken into some time between 7 a.m. and 5:20 p.m. May 15.

The burglar got in through an upstairs window and possibly used the resident's ladder. No loss of property was reported.

More burglaries plague Woods blocks; police offer prevention tips

By John Mlinis
Assistant Editor
Four Grosse Pointe Woods homes were burglarized last week, bringing the total to 15 burglaries or attempts in the area since April 26.

In response to the rash of break-ins, police are reminding residents to lock windows and doors and report suspicious activity immediately.

On the weekend nights of April 29 and 30, Grosse Pointe City experienced five burglaries, but none have been reported since then. The Farms and Park have also had a few burglaries, but it is not known if they're related.

According to Woods police, their burglaries seem to be oc-curing in a specific area, namely the neighborhoods south of Alford and west of Mack in the southwest corner of the city. The streets involved include Littlestone, Broadstone, Severn, Prestwick and Newcastle.

In many of the cases, the burglars are getting in through unlocked windows and by cutting screens. In several incidents, the thieves merely reached through milk chutes and unlocked side doors. For the most part, the thieves are taking wallets and purses lying in plain view. In some cases, videocassette recorders and camcorders are being taken.

In many cases the residents have been home asleep and did not hear anything. The thefts seem to occur on weekend nights between 3 and 5 a.m.

Because of the simple methods used to break in and that only small items are taken, police suspect the thieves may be local youths or young adults.

According to police, the burglars look for easier homes to get into and take items that can be grabbed quickly.

Police have been patrolling the area by car and on foot throughout the night, but have been unable to spot the burglars.

A home in the 1700 block of Newcastle was broken into by someone who cut the screen and broke a kitchen window. Some $3,500 worth of items was taken, including men's watches, women's jewelry, a sawed-off shotgun, a couple handguns and a camcorder. The resident was not home at the time.

A videocassette recorder was taken from a home in the 1900 block of Severn some time between 3 p.m. May 17 and 5 p.m. May 20. The resident returned home to find the side and rear doors ajar. Police believe the burglar may have reached in through a milk chute to open a side door.

A wallet, bank passbook and car keys were taken from a purse in a home in the 1900 block of Broadstone some time between 12:01 a.m. and 7 a.m. May 19. The burglar got in through a rear family room window. The car keys, passbook and wallet were found discarded in neighbors' yards, and $12 in cash was taken. The residents were home at the time, but did not hear anything.

A resident of the 1800 block of Broadstone heard two thumps at about 4:30 a.m. May 19 and later discovered her wallet with $105 in cash was taken from her purse, which was hanging on a door knob near the kitchen. The thief got into the home through a kitchen window.

In response to the burglaries, Public Safety Director Jack Patterson sent letters to the residents urging that they take precautions, including calling the police by dialing 911 if they hear or see anything at all suspicious.

Patterson's list of crime prevention strategies are:

1) Never under any circumstances attempt to apprehend or detain any suspects.

2) Immediately report suspicious persons, vehicles or circumstances to the police department. If you delay only a few seconds, this could allow the person to leave the area, making apprehension difficult or impossible.

3) Replace your original, outdated locks with modern dead-bolt style locks.

4) Secure windows with supplementary devices, such as window pins for double-hung or sliding windows. Doorwalls can be secured in a similar fashion, and you can easily remove the cranks on casement or jalousie windows, which prevents opening the window, even if the glass is broken. Remember, burglars do not like to crawl through jagged glass; they prefer to open the window.

5) Keep windows closed and locked while you sleep. As hot weather approaches, this may be uncomfortable, but if you leave windows ajar, you are inviting a burglary. The majority of recent burglaries have occurred while the residents were asleep.

6) Do not keep valuables such as purses in plain view. Keep small, east-to-carry valuables (cellular phones, wallets, car keys, etc.) hidden from view.

7) Milk chutes should be bolted shut.

8) If you have outdoor lighting, use it. Light is an excellent deterrent to crime. If you have no lighting, it is a worthwhile investment and is affordable.

9) If you are awakened by an intruder, do not attempt to confront or corner him. Even though Woods police have no reason to believe the perpetrators are dangerous, it is not worth taking a chance in a face-to-face confrontation. A safe choice to make is to lie quietly, feign sleep and wait until they leave your home before you take any further action. A life is more important than property.

Memorial Day services planned

A lakeside service honoring men and women who died in the United States Armed Forces will be held Monday, May 28, at 10 a.m. on the grounds of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

The community is invited to attend the Memorial Day observance, which has been held annually since the Grosse Pointe War Memorial Association was established in 1949.

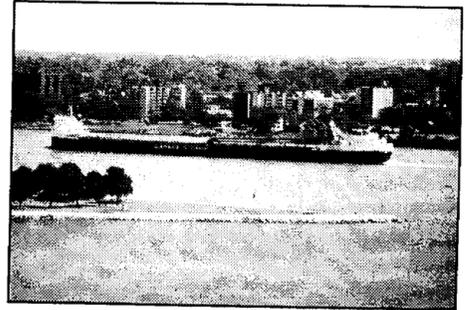

Participating in this year's service will be members of the United States Marine Corps, VFW Alger-Hoffman Post 393 and 393 Auxiliary, Grosse Pointe American Legion Post 303, VFW Bruce Post 1146 Ritual Rifle Squad, Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts.

Also planned are a concert by the Imperial Brass and War Memorial vocal music teacher Patricia Willington and her students, Heidi Bowan, Jessica Hawk and Grosse Pointer Rory Conway. In addition, there will be tributes by local dignitaries and clergy.

In the event of inclement weather, the program will be held indoors. For more information, call 881-7511 daily except Sunday.

Window painters

There was an invasion of young artists in the Village Saturday at the fourth annual Paint the Window Contest sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Village Association. The theme was "Think Spring in Michigan" and the event had been rescheduled due to the weather. Defer student Jason Cuney, at the right, of Grosse Pointe Park, concentrates on his creation.

City pools, courts ready

Spring is in full swing at the city of Grosse Pointe's Norbert P. Neff Memorial Park and Elworthy Field tennis courts. Pools have been cleaned, courts swept, picnic tables are up and swings are hung.

The Neff Park pools will be open for swimming on Saturday, May 26. Pool hours will be abbreviated while local schools are still in session.

Before June 15 the pools will be open during the following hours: Saturday, 10 a.m. - 9 p.m.; Sunday, 10 a.m. - 8 p.m.; Monday through Thursday, 3:30 p.m. - 8 p.m.; and Friday, 3:30 - 9 p.m. From June 15 through Labor Day, the pool hours will be 10 a.m. - 9 p.m.

Swim and tennis lesson registration for the first session is Saturday, June 16, from 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. Registrations will take place at the Neff Pool office.

Swim classes include American Red Cross Pre-School, Beginners, Advanced Beginner, Intermediate and Swimmers. Water Aerobics, Synchronized, and Introduction to Competitive swimming classes will also be offered. Tennis classes include Beginners and Intermediate for children and adults.

The City's Swim Team, the "NORBS," have a parent/swimmer meeting on Wednesday, May 30, from 4 to 5:30 p.m. At this meeting swim team suits will be purchased, sweatshirts will be ordered and team activities and meets will be discussed. Any one interested in swimming on the swim team should attend this meeting. The meeting will be held at the Neff Park pavilion.

Practice will begin on Thursday, May 31. Practices before Friday, June 15, will be at the following times: Monday - Friday, 4 - 5:30 p.m., Saturday 8 - 11 a.m. All swimmers interested in swimming for the City must be 6 - 17 years old.

Elworthy Field tennis courts will begin taking reservations on Saturday, May 26. They will take reservations on Saturday and Sunday only until June 14. After June 15, reservations will be taken from 8 a.m. - 10 p.m., seven days a week.

Two June day trips take a step back in time

A pair of War Memorial-sponsored day trips offer participants a glimpse into Detroit's rich history.

The first is a Saturday, June 9, visit to Indian Village for the annual House & Garden tour. Ten gracious homes and several beautiful gardens in this historic Detroit neighborhood will be open to the public. The homes represented on this year's tour were designed by some of Detroit's finest architects and constructed between 1904-24.

Lunch will follow at the River Place Inn, Detroit's newest luxury hotel. Trip leaves the War Memorial at 9:30 a.m. and returns at 4:30 p.m. Cost is $40 per person and includes motorcoach transportation, tour and lunch.

Detroit's elegant Van Dyke Place Restaurant, once the home of overalls tycoon William Muir Finch, is the destination of the next War Memorial day trip. Scheduled for Monday, June 18, from 11:30 a.m.-4:00 p.m., the day includes lunch, tour and the opportunity to see the personal antiques collection of the restaurant's co-owner, Ron Fox.

The collection includes handsome examples of American antiques, Rose Medallion Chinese pieces and miniature furniture. Cost is $41 per person and includes motorcoach, lunch and tour. For more information, call the War Memorial daily except Sundays, 9 a.m. - 9 p.m.

Elizabeth Puelo

Puelo to reign at Grand Prix

Elizabeth Puelo, 22, of Grosse Pointe Woods was crowned Miss Valvoline Detroit Grand Prix last week competing with 56 young women from the metropolitan area.

A University of Michigan summa cum laude honors college graduate in Spanish and communications, she has served as a model and spokesperson for Buick Motor Co. at several auto shows around the country, including the North American International Auto Show in Detroit.

Her court includes first runner-up Audrey Markulis of Sterling Heights; second runner-up Kristine Barrett of Fair Haven; third runner-up Kimberly Snoes of Lincoln Park; and Marcell Falconer of Detroit.

Puelo will reign for one year and make appearances at official functions ranging from the Grand Prix Ball to race weekend's opening and victory ceremonies.

The Miss Valvoline Detroit Grand Prix Pageant is officially endorsed by Detroit Renaissance Grand Prix, Inc. and was produced by Southfield-based Powers Modeling & Talent Agency.

The 1990 Valvoline Detroit Grand Prix will hit the streets of Detroit June 15, 16 and 17. June 15 is Hudson's Free Prix Day. Prime seats are still available as well as photo and pit walk passes. For ticket information, call the Detroit Grand Prix Ticket Office at 259-7749.

Burglary nets 7 guns, jewelry

Seven collector's guns and jewelry were taken from a home on Clairview in Grosse Pointe Shores some time between Nov. 10 and May 13.

The resident was in Florida when the theft occurred. He returned home to find the guns missing and jewelry taken from jewelry boxes that were stored among the basement rafters. According to police reports, there was no sign of forced entry.

The value of the guns, which consisted of five handguns, a deer rifle and a shotgun, was estimated at $5,720, according to police. No value was given for the missing jewelry.

THINK OF HUDSON'S FIRST WHEN YOU'RE CONSIDERING CARPETING

If you're planning to buy something you'll live with for a long, long time it only makes sense to shop at a store that's accustomed to "staying power." Just look at our credentials.

EXPERIENCE.

We've been selling and installing quality carpeting for more years than most people can remember. We truly have earned our trust with over a generation of satisfied customers.

SELECTION.

Because our good relations with the nation's top quality manufacturers go back such a long way, we're able to show more famous name carpets than anyone in our community. That's why you'll find more styles, colors and prices to choose from, and names you'll recognize like Karastan, Bigelow and Lees.

SERVICE.

Every sales consultant and installer on our staff takes pride in their own expertise. They enjoy being helpful and passing their knowledge on to you. Also, when you buy from us, you enjoy the convenience of using our credit accounts and relying on our respected storewide policies.

DECORATING ADVICE.

The experienced designers in our interior Design Studio will be happy to help you. They can give you pointers on style, color and show how to put rooms together effectively—right here in our adjacent furniture departments. You can visualize the final effect easily, and perhaps add a final touch of furnishings in a one-stop shopping experience.

And, it's so nice to say "I bought it at Hudson's!"

Arrangements were made by the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Park.

Henry L. Caulkins

Henry L. Caulkins, 92, a longtime resident of Grosse Pointe Farms, died Wednesday, May 9, 1990. He was born in Detroit.

Mr. Caulkins served in the U.S. Navy during World War I. He was a graduate of the University of Michigan and was a member of the Phi Upsilon fraternity.

He retired 22 years ago as vice president and head of the Detroit office of Hickman, Williams and Co., specializing in the brokerage of raw materials for industry.

Mr. Caulkins was also president and founder of Waterways Navigation Co., a firm which was active in Great Lakes shipping, the iron and steel industry, farming, real estate and the recreational boating industry.

He continued the operation of Detroit's well-known Pewabic Pottery in cooperation with master artist Mary Chase (Perry) Stratton. The Pewabic was founded by his father, Horace J. Caulkins and Miss Perry in order to promote Miss Perry's artistic talents.

Today, her pottery and ceramic tiles are found in homes, businesses and churches throughout the Detroit metropolitan area and in museums and special installations throughout the world.

Mr. Caulkins was chairman of the board of the Arnold Home for the Aged and was responsible for the construction of the Caulkins Wing and the establishment of the Minnie Peck Caulkins Endowment Fund.

He was responsible for scholarships at Michigan State University which enabled more than 600 students to complete a two-year short course in agriculture. In recognition of his efforts, MSU awarded him an honorary doctorate.

Mr. Caulkins was also active in the Protestant Children's Home (now Children's Home of Detroit) and was a past president and director of the Country Club of Detroit.

Survivors include his sons, Ralph of Florida and Henry Jr. of Cheboygan, Mich; a sister, Esther Ford of Grosse Pointe Farms; and two grandchildren, Lee and Henry III, both of Ann Arbor.

Mr. Caulkins was predeceased by his wife of 68 years, the former Ruth Stone of Grand Rapids and Bloomfield Hills.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Pewabic Pottery and the Arnold Home.

Arrangements were made by the Wm. R. Hamilton Co., Mount Clemens.

Services for Russell J. Koenig, 78, formerly of Grosse Pointe, were held Saturday, May 19, at St. Andrew Church in Rochester.

Mr. Koenig died Wednesday, May 16, 1990, at Crittendon Hospital in Rochester. He was born in Cleveland.

Mr. Koenig rose from stock boy to the head of interiors during a 40-year career at Hudson's. He was a member of the management team that developed the nation's first shopping center, Northland.

He left Hudson's in 1968 to join Blue Cross, retiring in 1974.

Mr. Koenig was a 1927 graduate of Detroit's St. Catherine's High School and was a sergeant major in the U.S. Army during World War II, serving in several South Sea Island battles.

Survivors include his wife, Dorothy; sons, Russell Jr. and Thomas; a daughter, Leslie Kinross; brothers, Charles and Nicholas; sisters, Mary Lubic, Margaret Koenig and Ellen Cooke; and eight grandchildren.

Burial will be in Mount Evergreen Cemetery, Jackson.

Mary E. Hayes

Services for Mary E. (Japes) Hayes, 71, formerly of Grosse Pointe, were held Wednesday, May 23, at St. Joan of Arc Catholic Church in St. Clair Shores.

Mrs. Hayes died Monday, May 21, at St. John Hospital in Detroit. She was born in Detroit.

She was a homemaker. Survivors include her daughter, Ann Mary; a son, Michael Joseph; and two grandchildren.

Mrs. Hayes was predeceased by her brother, Frank Japes.

Burial was in Mount Olivet Cemetery, Detroit.

Arrangements by the Chas. Verheyden Funeral Home.

George H. Cholack

Services for George H. Cholack, 64, of Grosse Pointe Farms, were held Wednesday, May 23, at Assumption Greek Orthodox Church in St. Clair Shores.

Mr. Cholack died Saturday, May 19, 1990, at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor.

The son of Greek immigrants, Mr. Cholack was a 1948 graduate of Wayne State University and 1951 graduate of the University of Michigan Law School.

He was a member of the law firm of Shrauger, Dunn and Aronson.

During the 1950s, Mr. Cholack co-founded the Hellenic Bar Association, an organization for Greek attorneys. He was one of the charter members of the Hellenic Board of Trade.

He was a member of the Parish Council of Assumption Greek Orthodox Church. Mr. Cholack was active in the Democratic Party and was nominated in 1962 by Gov. John Swainson to serve on the Michigan Workers Compensation Commission.

A U.S. Naval yeoman, he served with the PT Squadron in the Philippine Islands during World War II.

Mr. Cholack served for more than 26 years as an attorney for the VFW National Children's Home in Eaton Rapids, Mich. In 1975 he was elected judge advocate general of the VFW, the organization's highest legal position.

Mr. Cholack was a member of the Composite Lodge No. 449 F&AM, the American Hellenic Educational Progressive Association, and a life member of the VFW, Damos-Pternas Post.

A Civil War buff, he was a longstanding member of the Civil War Roundtable Club.

Survivors include his wife, Jeanne; a son, Eric; a daughter, Dina; a brother, Michael; a sister, Angela Bournias; a niece, Karen Bournias; and a nephew, George Bournias.

Entombment was in Oakwood Cemetery, Saginaw.

Memorial contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society or to the VFW National Children's Home in Eaton Rapids.

Arrangements were made by the A.H. Peters Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Do you know this house?

We are preparing for our 50th anniversary issue and have a number of photographs that are not identified. If you have information about this house, please call the newsroom at 882-0294. Last week's photo was the Carl E. Schmidt House at Lakeshore, corner of Kirby. Five callers identified the house which has undergone exterior renovation - the awnings are gone, the porches removed, brick was added and a large bay window added. Callers were Susan Watkins of Grosse Pointe Farms; Sally Blake of Grosse Pointe Woods; Raymond Smith who lives in the house and whose grandfather bought it in 1926 and remodeled it; Conrad H. Smith, father of Raymond; and Alfred B. Moran, whose grandfather owned it. Moran said the original property reached from Lakeshore to Grosse Pointe Boulevard and the garage had a turnstile to turn cars around.

City approves 1990-91 budget

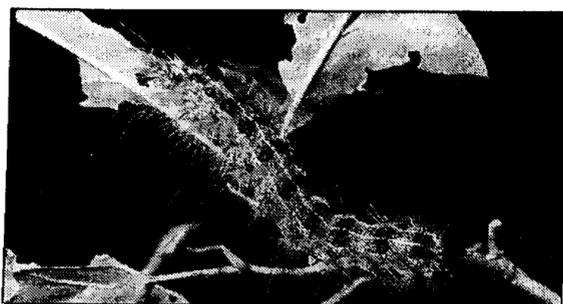

A 1990-91 Grosse Pointe City budget calling for 6.67 percent tax increase to city residents was approved by the City Council Monday night. The new $4.22 million general fund budget reflects a 7 percent increase over the year before. The council also approved a total city property tax rate of 13.36 mills which, though lower than last year's tax rate of 14.56 mills, actually reflects a real tax increase of .84 mills. Before the new tax rate was set, it was rolled back to account for the increase in property values this year. The increase was added to account for increased costs, including those for waste disposal and other environmental concerns. Under the new budget and tax rate, the owner of a $150,000 home will pay about $80 more in city taxes.

tronomy - you name it," she said. The students involved say they've had a lot of fun, even though some of the work - like soldering and designing of circuit boards - is tedious. "We've sacrificed a lot of clothes for this," Koski said, pointing to a soldering stain on her sweatshirt. But they've learned a lot, too. "We don't have anyone who knows what they're doing here," Harris said. "No one's ever built one before, so a lot of people don't know what we need." Case in point: They ordered aluminum alloy pipe, but the supplier didn't have the exact kind they needed, so he sold them something similar. What was supposed to be used for the ribs of the dish could be bent and twisted and even knotted. "It wasn't his fault," Maciolek said. "It's not like he could have said, 'Oh, when most people build radio telescopes, they use this.'"

Indeed, the telescope will be the only one of its size in the country associated with a school. Other schools have radio telescopes, but none are as large as this one and none have been built by students. They have had some help, though, from across the country. Carl Chestnut, an operator of the radio telescope in West Virginia, has been dubbed the group's guru, and a man in Wisconsin sends videotapes of his radio telescope to help the students visualize the intricate circuitry. The tapes, the group concedes, are less than fascinating, but have been of some help. When completed, the telescope will not be visible to, but may be used by, the general public. Maciolek has plans to create a program for people who want to learn about radio telescopes and will offer assistance to students who wish to use it for science projects.

"This has been kind of like a job where you don't get paid," Harris said. "But it's worth it. We're learning as we go along."

The gypsy moth caterpillar

infestation occurs, small eradication techniques can be used, such as trapping caterpillars in burlap at the base of trees, or large-scale spraying can be conducted. The traps look like quart-size milk cartons with little porches to keep water out. The traps contain a synthetic pheromone that attracts male gypsy moths looking for a mate. When a moth enters the green traps, it is killed by a weak poison in the pheromone. While the female gypsy moth has wings, she does not fly. The males, which can fly, zero in on the pheromone scent to find the females. The Shade Tree Council has been consulting with MSU entomologist Dr. Stewart Gage, who has developed a trap location map for the five Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods. The traps will be placed by the respective cities as close as possible to the map locations. Because the traps contain an insecticide, Rice said the ideal locations will be in the backyards of families without young children.

Because the gypsy moth prefers oak trees, the traps will be placed in them wherever possible.

Of the 62 traps planned, five will be in the Shores, 14 in both the Woods and Harper Woods, 12 in the Farms, five in Grosse Pointe and 12 in Grosse Pointe Park. The cost of the trapping this year is $500 for the trap location map and $155 for the 62 traps, or $2.50 per trap. The cost to the city is only the labor of putting up and taking down the traps and counting the moths. The initial cost of $655 is being paid for by the Shade Tree Council. Rice said the Shade Tree Council is very pleased with the cooperation of all the cities to undertake the trapping program. "The cities were very prompt on this," she said.

Learn landscape drawing

A six-week class in landscape drawing will be offered at the War Memorial by Carolyn Swift Armitage Tuesdays, May 29-July 10, from 6:30 to 9 p.m. The lakeside grounds of the War Memorial afford students a variety of landscape elements to study including light, shade, trees, foliage, sky, water and buildings. Students may choose to work in color media including pencil, pastel, ink, charcoal and watercolor. Class fee is $75 for six weeks. Supply list is available at registration. No enrollments accepted for fewer than five sessions. Call 881-7511.

took the entrance exam for West Point. "I passed the English and flunked the math," he said.
It was June 1944 and the armed forces "were looking for every guy they could to ship overseas."
Andrews was sent to Europe where he took part, as a mortar gunner, in the Battle of the Bulge. When the war ended, he remained in Europe for nine months with the army of occupation.
Andrews returned home in 1946, re-enrolled at Wayne State and earned a bachelor's degree in speech and English in 1948.

He did some work in broadcasting, but decided against a career in the field.
"I enjoyed school so much, it occurred to me that I ought to get a teaching certificate," he said.
Andrews taught English at Cass Tech for three years. During that time, he married Shirley Guier whom he met while they were both students at Wayne.
He joined the university as admissions counselor in 1952 where he said, "My job was to be Mr. Outside." The school had just begun College Days, where counselors visited high schools around the state.

"I had a great time talking to the kids," he said. "We did high schools all over the state and we didn't practically expect to get kids from the U.P. — we were working for visibility."
In the meantime, he earned a master's degree in speech in 1955. In 1962, Andrews was named assistant director of the university development office and executive director of the Wayne State Fund.
"Fundraising was the last thing I wanted to do," he said. "Fundraising and development were fairly new in public universities in the '60s."
Andrews said he was reluctant to leave admission, but then-President Clarence Hilberry advised him to take the job.
"I've always had good things happen to me," he said. "I'm not a planner."
The job entailed soliciting gifts from alumni and Andrews said it was then that he met some of the influential people in the city and he began to learn what it was to work with volunteers. He began working with the Alumni Association.
He earned a doctorate in educational administration and supervision in 1966, and in 1967, Andrews joined the alumni relations staff as associate director. A year later, he succeeded the office's first director.
Andrews said he went from fundraising to fun-raising. His job has taken him around the country, working with more than 30 alumni groups. About a dozen are in Michigan and others are in places like California, Florida, Dallas and Tucson.
Wayne State University President David Adamany said, "Paul

Andrews is a leader in building Wayne State's future. Under his leadership, alumni membership has more than doubled and active alumni clubs have tripled.
"He cares deeply about Wayne State and its students, both present and past. Paul has been a strong voice for the university and a warm friend to its alumni."
In 1986, Andrews was selected to receive the Wayne State University Alumni Association's Homer D. Strong award, given annually for stimulating alumni participation in alumni activities, enhancing the university's recognition level among its constituencies and providing leadership of significant benefit to the university.

"My job is to emphasize the good stuff and not mask the bad stuff," he said. "It's a pride builder. Student recruitment is very important to us and we want our alums to come back and do advanced degrees."
One of the benefits of the position, which Andrews calls the "dessert of the program," is the alumni travel program. Andrews organizes about 10 trips every year which attract 450 alumni annually. As a result, he and his wife have traveled extensively and have just returned from a 19-day trip to New Zealand.
Andrews hopes to travel more and play golf and bowl with his wife. "I would like to spend more time with my grandkids and get re-acquainted with my wife," he said.

The couple have two children, Krystyne and Mark, and four grandchildren, from 2 months to 3 1/2 years old. Daughter Krystyne lives with her family in Grosse Pointe and son Mark, who lives in Grosse Pointe Woods with his family, is sports announcer for Channel 50 and a regular on the WKQI 95.5 FM Dick Purtan show.
"We are a Wayne family through and through," Andrews said. His wife attended Wayne and both his son and daughter graduated from the university. They also worked there and his son-in-law still works at the school.

Paul Andrews stands with Lily Tomlin at December 1988 commencement exercises. Tomlin, a Wayne State University alumna, received an honorary degree.

At his last official commencement held this month at Cobo Hall, Andrews, carrying a mace, leads the processional of graduates to their seats.

Advisers sought for mental health centers

The State Department of Mental Health is seeking nominations for membership on Citizens Advisory Councils at Newberry Regional Mental Health Center, Detroit Psychiatric Institute and Lafayette Clinic in Detroit. All three are state mental health facilities operated by Michigan's Department of Mental Health.
Councils are voluntary groups which meet at least quarterly to advise hospital directors Jack Anderson, M.S.W., Lawrence Jackson, M.D., and Gerald Sarwer-Foner, M.D., on administrative policy and programs, and to monitor programs, recipient rights issues and the facility's operating budget.

DPI and Lafayette Clinic are state psychiatric facilities serving adults and children from Wayne County. Newberry serves adults with mental illness and/or developmental disabilities from 27 lower and upper peninsula counties. Membership is restricted to persons from within each facility's service district. Department of Mental Health employees are ineligible to serve.
The Department of Mental Health encourages broad representation on councils, to include mental health consumers and their parents, family members and guardians; community mental health and local elected officials; and other interested persons.

For consideration, interested persons should forward biographical information and a letter of interest by June 15 to Lois Brennan, Michigan Department of Mental Health, Lewis Cass Building, Lansing, Mich. 48913. For further information, contact Brennan in Lansing, (517) 373-6594.

Shores incumbents re-elected

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

The incumbent president and three trustees were re-elected to office in Grosse Pointe Shores May 15, with one challenger missing out by just a few votes.

President Edmund M. Brady Jr. was elected to his first full two-year term. He was elected president last year to fill the vacancy left when President Gerald Schroeder's resigned. Brady received 633 votes.

Technically, Brady was challenged by Peter P. Werle, who received 66 votes. Werle, however, formally withdrew from the race after the filing deadline and too late to have his name removed from the ballot.

Former Trustee Daniel Beck received one write-in vote for the presidency.

Of the trustee incumbents, John Monahan received 508 votes, Patricia Galvin, 414, and C. Bradford Lundy Jr., 403.

Challenger Barbara Willett barely missed out with 400 votes. Of the other two challengers, Virginia Rice received 191 votes and Vito Cusenza earned 89 votes.

Village Clerk James T. Wright was unchallenged and received 625 votes. There was one write-in vote, Ralph Wilson, for clerk.

Voter turnout for the Shores-only election was 33 percent. There are 2,295 registered voters in the Village of Grosse Pointe Shores.

British aviators recall training in Michigan

Memories of their brief assignment in Michigan during World War II are recounted by some of the British aviators who trained here in the May/June issue of "Michigan History" magazine.

The Grosse Ile Naval Air Base, on the southern tip of Grosse Ile on the Detroit River, became the U.S. Naval Air Station Grosse Ile during World War II. From 1943-45 the base was used to train pilots for the U.S. Navy, the British Royal Navy and the Fleet Air Arm.

Visiting pilots spent three months at Grosse Ile, before being shipped to Pensacola, Fla., or St. Louis, Mo., for intermediate training. Michigan Historical Commissioner John H. Collins wrote the article and excerpted the recollections after receiving dozens of letters from British veterans describing their Michigan experience.

In the six-page article, the air-men's reminiscences describe rivalries between American and British soldiers, pranks and humor, and the hospitality of Grosse Ile and Detroit residents who befriended and hosted the visiting allies.

The current issue pays special tribute to Isle Royale, with four articles, describing the past industry, settlement and shipwrecks around "the Island." It also contains articles about the history of Saginaw County, one of the state's most historic counties; John Alexander Dowie, a "Healing evangelist" who built an imposing summer home on White Lake; the historic Isaac Cappon home in Holland; Pere Cheney, a forgotten Crawford County town; and the farewell address of Dr. Martha M. Bigelow, outgoing director of the Bureau of History.

Send subscription requests with check or money order, made payable to the State of Michigan, to: Bureau of History, Michigan Department of State, 717 W. Allegan St., Lansing, Mich., 48918. Credit card holders may place subscription orders by calling the magazine's toll-free line: (800) 366-3703.

Open campus to remain unchanged after study

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

A study of the open campus policy at both Grosse Pointe high schools has shown that the policy is working well and recommends that there be no change.

Basically the open campus policy states that students are allowed to go off campus during lunch hour.

The study, more of an update, was done at the request of new Superintendent Ed Shine, because the policy hadn't been looked at in a few years.

Dr. John Burl Artis and Dr. John Kastran, principals at Grosse Pointe South and Grosse Pointe North, questioned staff, students and parents and invited comment from the community and local businesses which might be affected by student lunchtime business.

The study by both schools found the following:

- Despite the perception that students cut class more and are tardy more during the lunch hour, research shows most class cuts occur in the first and seventh hours and that tardiness figures are the same.

- Although the possibility for accidents from students speeding to get out to lunch and back in a 35-minute period is apparent, there is no major problem and when one does arise, the principals have the power to reprimand the student and to keep him or her on campus during lunch.

- North High School has not had one complaint from businesses or residents regarding student behavior during lunch.

Littering is a small problem, though. South has a small problem with former students and older adults who hang out across the street from the school. Farms and City police, however, are quick to respond to the problem. Those businesses across the street do periodically seek the school's help with loitering and student behavior, but one businessperson dismissed the concerns by saying "students are a substantial part of our business."

To completely close the campus would require several major changes and would cost the distract money. Keeping all students on campus would necessitate at least three lunch shifts at South, but North could accommodate all of the students with no additional shift.

Parents are able to restrict their own children from leaving campus during the day and both schools have check-in policies to monitor those students.

Additionally, the school can reprimand students who abuse the privilege.

Both principals endorsed the open campus policy, but as a privilege, not as a right, and continue to reprimand those who abuse it.

They believe that keeping the policy will also encourage maturity and trust among the students.

University Liggett School senior Tom Reynolds — shown here in an art room at the school — recently had some of his art selected by the Detroit Artists' Market for exhibition and sale. Reynolds' medium is sculpture. He is the son of Barbara and Richard L. Reynolds of Grosse Pointe.

Star graduates honored

Twelve years of hard work were acknowledged at the 29th Honors Convocation held at Our Lady Star of the Sea High School May 14.

Bethany Arndt and Amy Caste were co-valedictorians.

Arndt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Arndt of St. Clair Shores, plans to study marine biology at Roger Williams College in Bristol, R.I.

Arndt

Arndt's high school involvement included four years of volleyball in which she was awarded the All-Academic Team member, four years of softball; three years in the National Honor Society, serving as secretary, two years in the Spanish Club, and one year on the high school yearbook.

Academic honors and scholarships for Arndt include the Roger Williams College Presidential Scholar, Lake Superior State University Distinguished Scholar, Forester Scholarship, Nomination for the Coca-Cola Bottling Company Scholarship Award, the Lakeshore Optimist Club of Grosse Pointe Award, the Archdiocese of Detroit Annual Scholastic All-Catholic Team Award, State of Michigan Competitive Scholarship Award, the Phi Beta Kappa Award, the Wayne County Academic Excellence Award and the Detroit Free Press and the Michigan Catholic recognition for co-valedictorians.

Caste, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Caste of Grosse Pointe Woods, plans to study mathematics and physics at John Carroll University. In addition to earning co-valedictorian status, Caste's high school involvement included National Honor Society member — three years, class treasurer for three years, student council representative, forensics member for four years, earning her letter for 400 hours of involvement, Archdiocese of Detroit All Catholic Academic Team for four years.

Academic awards and scholarships for Caste include: Phi Beta Kappa Award, Wayne County Academic Excellence Award, Michigan Competitive Scholarship Award, Presidential Academic Fitness Award, Detroit Free Press Best of Class, Michigan Catholic Top of the Class, Michigan State University Scholarship for academic excellence, University of Michigan Regents Alumni Scholarship, John Carroll University's Arthur J. Monville Physics Scholarship, John Carroll University's President's Honor Award Scholarship, award from the Alliance Francaise de Grosse Pointe.

Caste was also selected as a member of the 1990 Michigan Academic All-State/All-City Team selected by the Detroit Free Press and the Michigan Association of Secondary School Principals.

Salutatorian Laura Henderson, daughter of Dr. Elaine Beckham of Detroit, will enter Northwestern University with a course of study directed toward pre-medicine and mathematics. Henderson's activities in addition to her studies include: varsity swimming, National Honor Society President, volunteer at Children's Hospital.

Henderson

She has also earned the following awards and scholarships: Phi Beta Kappa Award, the Wayne County Academic Excellence Award, Oakland University Endowment Scholarship, nominee for the National Honor Society Scholarship Certificate of Merit, Grosse Pointe Rotary Club honoree, State of Michigan Competitive Scholarship Award.

Outdoor concert is May 31

The Grosse Pointe High Schools' annual Outdoor Band Concert and Ice Cream Social will be presented on Thursday, May 31, at 7 p.m. on the South High School front lawn.

The 180-member North/South Band will combine to play the entire concert together. Along with several marches, the band will play selections from "My Fair Lady," "Die Meistersinger," "Themes from French Ballet,"

"Armed Forces Salute," and the "George M. Cohan Patriotic Fantasy."

Ice cream and strawberries will be served during intermission and after the concert, which will take place in South's gymnasium in the event of inclement weather. Admission is free, and any questions may be answered by calling Ralph Miller, instrumental music director, at 343-2240.

Jackson wins scholarship

Grosse Pointe South Senior Brian A. Jackson has been awarded a $2,000 National Merit Scholarship.

Jackson was ranked number one in the senior class at South with a grade point average of 4.218 at the end of the first semester of the school year.

Serving as editor of the Viewpoint, the school's yearbook, and playing in the symphony orchestra, Jackson has been active in extracurricular activities as well.

Student Spotlight

Elizabeth Meriwether

Each week in this column, we will focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a wood-working project, a book review.

The following story was written by Elizabeth Meriwether, a second-grader at Grosse Pointe Academy. She is the daughter of Patricia and Heath J. Meriwether of Grosse Pointe Farms.

My Little Bud

It was late summer, and all the summer flowers were becoming dead flowers, except my little bud. I sat on the ground watching it. It still looked beautiful in the golden sunlight. I had planted a Junelly seed in the spring and it had bloomed in June, and I had named it "Little Bud." A tear rolled down my cheek.

"Time for lunch, Paige," my mother said from the kitchen window. I ate my lunch very slowly. That night I thought about my Little Bud. I knew Little Bud would be gone in the morning.

When I woke up I quickly got my clothes on and ran out to the back yard. I couldn't believe my eyes! There was my Little Bud! In the exact same place it was the day before!

I ran into my parents' bedroom. I said, "Please pinch me, tell me I'm not dreaming!" "You're not dreaming, so go back to bed," my father grumbled.

At breakfast my mother was cooking eggs and my father was reading the morning paper. I was out in the back yard feeding my Little Bud. When I told my parents, they laughed and said, "Oh, Paige."

Months passed and school began, but my Little Bud was still there. When I told my best friend that my Junelly was still in my back yard, she laughed and walked away. I told my teacher and she said, "Paige, you have the best imagination."

I got mad. I got so mad that I got myself into a little bit of trouble.

When I was walking home from school, I went to see my good friend Mr. Brude, the gardener. I said in a quivering voice, "My... my Junelly is... is still in my back yard!"

"In the olden days people used to say that if a flower lasted until the first snowfall, the person who planted it would have good luck in the year," said Mr. Brude.

I vowed that if my flower lasted until the first snowfall, I would share my luck with him. Finally, on Dec. 25, the first snowfall came. I looked out my window to see snow falling from the heavens!

No, but still another thing, my Little Bud was dead! I thought how sad I was, but my Little Bud had lasted until the first snowfall.

Then I remembered it was Christmas! I rushed downstairs and I tore open a little box and it was... a PACKET OF JUNELLY SEEDS!

Lobster

Fresh, live lobsters should be cooked immediately. Do not attempt to keep lobsters alive by placing in water; they will suffocate.

To boil lobster fill a large kettle with sufficient water to cover lobsters. Add 2 teaspoons salt for each quart of water. Bring water to a rolling boil. Grab live lobsters, one at a time, at the back of their heads, just beyond the claws. Do not let claws reach you. Plunge lobsters head first into boiling water. Simmer, covered, for 10 minutes for the first pound and 3 more minutes for each additional pound of lobster. (1 1/2-pound lobsters will cook in about 13 minutes. 2-pound lobsters will take 13 to 15 minutes.)

Remove cooked lobster from water. Place it on a board or work table on its back. With a heavy, sharp knife or a mallet or hammer split lobster in half lengthwise, from head to tail. Remove the stomach and the intestinal tract. Keep the green liver (also called "tomalley") or any reddish deposit. The other 1/2 of the lobster and it is called "coral." Both liver and coral are used in some lobster recipes. Crack claws with a nutcracker and remove meat carefully. Discard as large as possible.

Reuther tribute becomes an old-fashioned union meeting

"He was the only friend I had in the world."

— Alexander Cordozo, a retired Chrysler Corp. worker at the Veteran's Memorial in 1970 where Walter Reuther's body lay in state.

The leadership and the rank and file of the UAW recently got to do something that very few groups ever get to do. They got together to honor a hero, a fallen leader that most of them knew as a man, now a myth.

When the UAW held a service a couple weeks ago at the Veteran's Memorial to mark the 20th anniversary of the death of Walter and May Reuther in the crash of a light plane near the union's camp at Black Lake, it turned into a love-fest, a sharing of a tragic loss and a sharing of the triumph of this unique man.

To many young people who know nothing of the struggle of earlier generations for economic and social gains through the union movement, Walter Reuther is just a name on a freeway. But the people at the memorial knew he was a lot more than that.

Walter Reuther was to the UAW and the entire labor movement what Franklin D. Roosevelt was to the Democratic Party and what Abraham Lincoln was to the Republicans — a larger-than-life hero, a legendary figure whose feet were not clay.

At the speaker's table was a who's who of the UAW, including the three men who succeeded Reuther as president of the giant union, Leonard Woodcock, Doug Fraser and Owen Bieber.

There were famous associates of Reuther — Pat Greathouse, Ken Bannon, Olga Madar and Irving Bluestone, now a professor at Wayne State University (as is Fraser), who acted as moderator of the service.

And there was Elisabeth Reuther Dickmeyer, youngest daughter of Walter and May Reuther.

Because everyone there regarded Walter Reuther as a great man and a unique historical figure, a kind of communal fellowship and, yes, solidarity, was unmistakably achieved at this gathering. But rifts remain.

Not there was Victor Reuther, brother of Walter and founder of the UAW, not invited by the union because he had been critical of its current leadership. His absence underscored the peculiar mix of democracy and suppression of dissent which is characteristic of organizations whose major purpose is dissent, challenge of the status quo.

Not all rifts have been healed, obviously, but many were and the invited guests at the service shared emotional moments as speakers recalled the great leader and what he stood for.

By Richard Wright

Early in the program, the Rev. Joseph Lowery, of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, electrified the crowd and brought it to its feet with his rhetorical mastery and his message, which harkened back to the early days of the union movement and the civil rights movement, both of which were central to Reuther's life.

After that it was solidarity as speaker after speaker exhorted everyone in the audience to remember Walter Reuther and to carry on in the fallen leader's tradition, which is exactly what they wanted to do. Far from a solemn memorial, the event became an old-fashioned union meeting for the purpose of building morale and firing enthusiasm. The kind of thing that Walter Reuther was very good at.

When Elisabeth Reuther Dickmeyer took the podium, there was a moment of apprehensive silence. After all, she was a Reuther and no one quite knew what a Reuther might say. There was the matter of her Uncle Victor and her own actions after her parents' death, her involvement with the Krishna Consciousness movement, which puzzled many of the unionists and her own family.

Apprehension may have been heightened by Bluestone's reference to her book about life in the Reuther household, which he called "Reuther: A Daughter Rebels." In fact, the title of the book is "Reuther: A Daughter Strikes," a reference to an incident in which she and her older sister Linda used the classic union strategy of a strike threat to get their parents to discuss moving year-around to their summer home at Paint Creek.

But Lisa, as she was once known to her family and friends, quickly put the meeting at ease. She was there to honor her parents and to heal, not trouble.

She spoke briefly and movingly about her parents and when she finished the audience responded with long and enthusiastic applause, lavishing the love they felt for her parents on this daughter who displayed some of her father's rhetorical skills, commitment and gutsiness.

Lisa's book is mostly about growing up in the Reuther household, meeting such family friends as Eleanor Roosevelt, Helen Keller, Hubert Humphrey, Martin Luther King Jr. and Willy Brandt. It is also about the constant fear which haunted the household.

"My earliest memory was of the shotgun blast that shattered my father's arm. I didn't know then what was happening. I was only nine months old. But I remember the awful fear. I knew something terrible had happened."

After the death of her parents in 1970, Lisa sought solace in the teachings of Srila Prabhupada, Indian swami who in 1965 brought the message of Krishna Consciousness to America. By 1974, Srila Prabhupada's teachings had attracted thousands to the Krishna movement, including Lisa. A year later, Alfred Bush Ford, great grandson of Henry Ford, also joined the Detroit temple.

In 1976, Ford and Lisa Reuther pooled resources (Lisa had received a substantial inheritance from insurance policies) and purchased the mansion built by Lawrence Fisher (of Body by Fisher) on Detroit's lower east side and donated it for use as a temple, a museum and to feed the poor. (It also feeds the not-so-poor at Govinda's, a fine Indian/vegetarian restaurant in the temple.)

The following year, Lisa married fellow devotee Bruce Dickmeyer, who is now director of the cultural center at the temple.

At the memorial, Lisa wore no Eastern robes. There was no gemstone in her nose. She looked like a middle-class American wife and mother, a member of the middle class that her father had a lot to do with creating.

The book, "Reuther: A Daughter Strikes" by Elisabeth Reuther Dickmeyer is being distributed by Wayne State University Press.

Children's Home to celebrate 154 years

On May 18, 1836, following a cholera epidemic, 13 civic-minded women met at the Woodward Avenue Presbyterian Church and founded the Ladies' Orphan Association of Detroit.

The women adopted a constitution and began raising money to run a home for children orphaned by the epidemic. A house on St. Antoine Street was obtained, rent free, for one year. The home opened on Feb. 1, 1837, and cared for 11 children during the first year.

Now known as the Children's Home of Detroit, the home has had a number of names and locations. In 1950 it moved to the current campus in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Founders' Day will be celebrated Wednesday, May 30, by the children who reside at the home. Festivities will be highlighted by a talent show as residents from each of the six cottages will perform a play with a theme reflecting the establishment of the Children's Home.

Residential treatment is the main component of the Children's Home program and provides individual and group therapy, special education, medical services and recreational programs. Emphasis is placed on working with the child and his or her family. The home also provides emergency respite and specialized foster care programs to the Detroit metropolitan area.

'Bird on a Wire': You'll like it

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

"Bird On A Wire," a romantic action film, could well have been titled "On the Run With Mel and Goldie" because most of the film involves sending them off on a series of cross-country escapades.

Mel Gibson is Rick Jarmen, a former hippie radical who disappeared for 15 years after he testified against a couple of corrupt drug enforcement agents and entered the secret witness program. At the time he went into hiding, he was engaged to Marianne Graves (Goldie Hawn). She was told that he was on a plane that crashed.

After holding a memorial for him, she redirects her life and becomes a corporate attorney, quite a switch from being a hippie in Mexico.

On assignment in Detroit, she pulls into a gas station where Gibson is working as a mechanic under the name of Billy Ray. As it happens, the murderer he testified against (David Carradine) has been released from jail and arrives at the garage the same day with Bill Duke, a heavy-weight thug, looking for Gibson and revenge.

With the help of Hawn, Gibson escapes but not before being shot in the buttocks. The two speed off in her rented car with the killers in hot pursuit.

The car chase is not unlike others filmgoers have seen before with escapees and pursuers careening through city streets with screeching brakes, tearing into sidewalk plays and ramming other vehicles. It ends on a novel note, however, when they drive into a railroad tunnel. They escape the oncoming train but the car is trashed.

If this were a western, we would see the two mount a horse and gallop off, but since it's the '90s, they appropriate a motorcycle and speed away.

They stop at a horse farm where Gibson had worked as a carpenter. It is run by an attractive woman doctor who apparently knew him well under another alias. Much to Hawn's distress, she volunteers to remove the bullet from an area she claims to have seen many times before, and there are spins and turns and hairbreadth escapes in this film. The car chase

Director John Badham ("Short Circuit") shows off his considerable skill and his work here is slick, professional and filled with startling stunt scenes.

But it is the two stars that set "Bird on A Wire" apart from other action films. Both Mel Gibson and Goldie Hawn have wide appeal. They are immensely engaging as they square off against each other with one-liners and wisecracks.

He's terrific in the chase scenes, which are reminiscent of his "Lethal Weapon" role, only with a comic, romantic touch. Billed as the sexiest man alive in People magazine, he radiates charisma and magnetism.

Goldie Hawn is appealing as ever with her wide-eyed, goofy behavior. Although the film is billed as a romantic comedy, there are only two scenes where Gibson and Hawn get around to that phase of their relationship. It is these scenes that Hawn is at her best.

The bottom line: You'll like "Bird On A Wire" (which takes its title from Leonard Cohen's song of the same name), in relation to how much you are a fan of Mel Gibson and/or Goldie Hawn.

Auditions at Macomb for 'Grease'

The Macomb Community College Music Department will hold open auditions for its summer musical, "Grease." The popular '50s musical will be presented July 12-14 on the main stage at Macomb Center.

Production director/musical director Dr. Stuart Scott will hold open auditions for all roles Monday and Tuesday, June 11 and 12, from 7 to 9 p.m. in room L-119 at the Macomb Center on Center Campus at Hall Road and Garfield in Clinton Township.

Prepare a pop or Broadway song appropriate to the show and be ready to dance. An accompanist will be provided. Those interested in auditioning may attend either session and no appointment is necessary.

For additional information, call Scott at 286-2044 or producer Carol Fratarcangeli at 286-2022.

Car show, swap meet planned

Classic and exotic cars — some dating from as early as the 1920s — will be featured during the eighth annual Spirit of Detroit Car Show and Swap Meet to be held Sunday, May 20, at Historic Fort Wayne from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The show is being presented by the Detroit Chapter of the Veteran Motor Car Club of America (VMCCA), the Detroit Historical Department, and the Detroit Historical Society.

William Clay Ford Jr., recently named director of Business Strategy for Ford Motor Co.'s Automotive Group, has agreed to serve as honorary chairman of this year's show. Proceeds will benefit the Detroit Historical Department's Automotive Collection Restoration Fund. Lincoln Continental has been selected as the featured marque for this year's show in honor of its 50th anniversary. The original Continental was the inspiration of Henry Ford's son Edsel, who had a custom-built body built on a Lincoln Zephyr chassis in 1939.

Reaction to Edsel's car was so favorable that the company put it into production as the Continental in 1940. It remained in production until 1948. In 1953 Edsel's son William Clay Ford Sr., was put in charge of a Special Products Division at Ford to design a successor to the original Continental.

The result was the Continental Mark II. Produced in 1956 and 1957 it was the most expensive car made in America at that time ($10,000 each). Ford discontinued production after the 1957 model year.

One of the Great Lakes region's fastest growing car shows, the Spirit of Detroit Car Show will feature one of the largest varieties of vehicles from private collectors of any show.

Collectors attending the show also have an opportunity to buy and swap automobiles, parts, and accessories. Unlike many of the other car shows in the region, the Spirit of Detroit show is not invitational and is unrestricted.

The 1990 car show will feature 58 trophies in 18 classes. Cars registered by May 6 will be eligible for a $100 cash door prize.

The show's setting will also provide an opportunity for family entertainment. Historic Fort Wayne, located on the Detroit River, will be open to visitors on the day of the event. Visitors can tour a number of restored buildings including the original barracks, commander's house, guardhouse and fort.

General admission to the Spirit of Detroit Car Show is $3 per person and children under 12 accompanied by an adult will be admitted free. Historic Fort Wayne is located at 6325 W. Jefferson at Livernois, just off the Fisher Freeway. Free parking will be available.

"Cadillac Man" isn't the type of comedy that's going to make you fall out of your chair in uncontrollable fits of hysterics. It's funny, yes, but the film's dark theme is also simultaneously tragic and insightful.

Not that we'd expect anything less anymore in a Robin Williams film. "Good Morning Vietnam" laid the groundwork for his crossover appeal as both a serious and comic actor. And last year's "Dead Poets Society" confirmed his wide-reaching talent.

Now he's in another role that asks him to be funny and serious with equal measure. "Cadillac" is not as strong as either of those pictures; it seems to be unsure at times about where it's going. But Williams plays a car salesman. From the opening moments he confirms everyone's worst fears about people in that profession — he attempts to make a sale in the middle of a funeral procession. He loves to sell, he tells the audience in a personal aside. The point of sale is the closest one can get to another human being.

Well, not really. And he really proves that, too. His favorite hobby is fooling around with women. Some are married. Some have other boyfriends. It matters not to Williams. To him, women are like customers — talk to them right and you can get them to agree to anything.

Indeed, he's a very smooth talker. And that helps him on a day that seems to go bad from the very beginning. His boss tells him he's got to sell 12 cars in 24 hours or lose his job. His ex-wife complains about how their daughter stayed out all night. His mistress wants them to get married. Another girlfriend wants him to lend emotional support while she tries to pull her life together.

And a violent, jealous husband of one of the ladies Williams works with bursts into the dealership with an automatic rifle and takes a large group of people hostage. It's up to Williams, smooth talker that he is, to attempt to talk some sense into the crazy man.

Before too long, Williams and the psycho become confidantes.

It's a little farfetched, to be sure. And to some people, it's not going to be very funny. But for those who approach with the right attitude, for those who simply want to simply want to enjoy Williams' unique brand of entertainment — the film is worthwhile.

A warning: This is not simply a comedy. It gets violent in parts, and is heavy in theme throughout. Discerning viewers would do well to take note of the picture's "R" rating, and make their moviegoing decision accordingly.

Ribs, blues at Hart Plaza

Another great weekend of music will fill Detroit's riverfront as the Budweiser Detroit Blues Festival and North American Championship Rib Cook-Off takes place in Hart Plaza, Friday, May 25, through Monday, May 28.

More than 500,000 people are expected to attend the festival over the Memorial Day weekend to hear some of the biggest names in the blues world, such as The Kinsey Report with Big Daddy Kinsey, Clarence "Gatemouth" Brown, Eric Burdon, Koko Taylor, Lonnie Brooks, Eddy Clearwater, Lonnie Mack, Little Milton, John Mayall and Robert Jr. Lockwood. Entertainment will begin each day at noon and continue until 11 p.m.

In addition to the music of some of America's best blues artists, all those attending will have the opportunity to sample great-tasting ribs from all over the world.

The cooks (or "ribbers" as they are known) will be competing for $10,000 in cash prizes in determining the winner of the North American Championship Rib Cook-Off. The cook-off will take place all four days, with celebrity judges selecting the grand champion.

Scheduled to participate is two-time defending world champion "Big" Ray Green of Mainstream BBQ in Eulees, Texas; Dennis McCaffrey of Sydney, Australia; and the Great Lakes sauce champion, Billy Bones of Red Keg, Mich. Rib connoisseurs will be able to sample the various recipes throughout the entire weekend.

Dossin prepares for 30th

For the past three decades, the Dossin Great Lakes Museum on Belle Isle has preserved the maritime heritage of the Great Lakes. As the museum prepares to celebrate its 30th anniversary on July 25, a number of activities have been planned.

The Dossin has embarked on a major effort to explore the bottom of the Detroit River using volunteer divers. Several cannons which were lost during the War of 1812 have already been recovered as a result of this effort.

To assist the Dossin in raising funds for the dives as well as its many other projects, WDIV and Detroit artist William A. Moss have provided a limited edition, signed lithograph and accompanying videotape. The lithograph,

"The Delphine Docked at Rose Terrace," depicts Anna Thompson Dodge's yacht, the Delphine, and her mansion, Rose Terrace. The 30-minute, VHS videotape is a tour of Rose Terrace, which was razed in 1976, and the Delphine, the largest private yacht ever built on the Great Lakes. Purchase price of the package is $100.

For information on where to purchase the lithograph and videotape, as well as other Dossin anniversary activities, call John Polacsek at 267-6440, Monday-Friday, 9:30 a.m.-4 p.m. The Dossin Great Lakes Museum, located at 100 Strand on Belle Isle, is a Detroit Historical Department institution. Hours are Wednesday through Sunday, 10 a.m.-5:30 p.m.

'Evita' to conclude G.P. Theatre season

"Evita," an opera by Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice, based on the life of Eva Peron, begins with Evita as a girl of 15, continues through her rise to power and concludes with her death.

Evita was called a master of manipulation. The poor loved her, the politicians hated her and the upper classes snubbed her. But Evita became the most powerful woman in Latin America by seducing a nation.

Eva Peron, "The Rainbow of Argentina," is played by Ruth Ellen Mayhall. Che, the revolutionary who taunts Evita and narrates the story, is played by Mark Maccagnone. Ron Otulakowski portrays Argentinian Dictator Juan Peron.

Augustine Magaldi, a tango singer and the first man to discover Evita is played by Ron Bernas. Peron's mistress is portrayed by Sherri Such-O'Connor.

The people of Argentina are: Christina Gaitley, Douglas Tobbe, Chuck Doyle, Mary Battaglia, Kaki Tindall, David Two-tek, Stephanie Samuel, Jim Patten, Peter Calandra, Shannon Liegghio, Vince DiRita, Julie Hathaway, Rick Bodick, Deborah Frontzcek, Patrick O'Connor, Dawn Holtzhouse, Brian Wagner, Donna Grundman, Jann Hight, Al Lombardini, Bridget Kaiser and Bronwen Hupp.

The staff includes: Arlene

Marie Schoenherr, stage manager; Karel Fikacek, set designer and technical director; Gerard Shaheen, musical director; Marie Oleksiak, vocal director; Lois Constant and Ric Selke, costumers; Gretchen Morris and Marie DeLong, properties and set dressing; Lois Bendler and Gwenn Samuel, make-up; Peter Walilko, lights; David Hertzberg, sound; Marey Kazmirowski, dance captain; Marisa DiSante, assistant to the director; Marsha Lesinski, assistant producer; and Kelly Smith, pianist.

Director is Jacqueline DiSante and producer is Liz Purdy.

"Evita" opens Tuesday, June 5, and runs through Sunday, June 10, then Tuesday, June 12, through Saturday, June 16. Tickets are $10 and can be purchased by calling the Grosse Pointe Theatre ticket hotline at 881-4004.

Tinney

Kathleen D. Tinney, director of university communications at Eastern Michigan University, was promoted to assistant vice president in the executive division by the EMU board of regents. Tinney, a former Grosse Pointer, earned a bachelor's degree in English from the University of Michigan in 1968 and a master's degree in English from U-M in 1971. She began her professional career at EMU as assistant publications editor in 1968 and was promoted to news editor in 1975. She was named director of the Office of Public Information in 1980, additionally assuming the directorship of University Publications in 1982, and in 1987 was promoted to director of university communications. She is a former Grosse Pointe resident.

NBD Bank recently promoted Richard F. Budolfson to the position of first vice president. Budolfson, a resident of Grosse Pointe, joined NBD Bank in 1988 as manager of the fixed income group in the trust investment division. Shortly after, he was named vice president and director of the fixed income group. He holds a bachelor of science degree in economics from Macalester College, and a master's degree in business administration from the University of Chicago. He is also a certified financial analyst.

Boniface Maile of Grosse Pointe Park was reappointed to the Michigan Veterans' Trust Fund Board of Trustees for a term expiring in February 1993.

Denise M. Cox, CPCU, of Grosse Pointe Woods has been awarded the Associate in Risk Management (ARM) designation and diploma by the Insurance Institute of America for successfully completing three national examinations. A graduate of Wayne State University, she is currently vice president of Donald K. Pierce & Co. of Grosse Pointe City and is also a board member for Aetna Casualty's Computer Group.

Cheryl Shelton Gauss was appointed senior vice president of Republic Bank S.E. Gauss joins Republic Bank S.E. with 10 years of mortgage and real estate experience. Most recently, she served as manager for Standard Federal Bank at the Grosse Pointe Farms branch. She will be responsible for all sales and mortgage activities of the bank at the Grosse Pointe Farms office.

Gauss

Emerson Lane Fortuna, Inc., has announced the promotion of Mia McNiece to account manager. She was previously an assistant account manager at the agency. McNiece is responsible for the Etonic Athletic Footwear, Faulkner Hospital and BankEast accounts. McNiece is a Grosse Pointe native who received her bachelor of arts degree from Michigan State University.

Howe

Comerica Inc. has promoted two Grosse Pointe residents. Brian V. Howe was named first vice president, Comerica Capital Management. He is director of an investment management group which manages money for high net worth individuals and tax-exempt organizations. Howe received a bachelor of arts degree in 1967 from Michigan State University and a juris doctorate degree in 1971 from Wayne State University. G. Thomas Doyal was appointed to assistant vice president, dealer commercial services. He is responsible for loans to auto dealers. Doyal received a bachelor of arts degree in 1980 from Michigan State University and a master of business administration degree in 1988 from the University of Detroit.

Doyal

Shieldalloy Metallurgical Corp. appointed former Grosse Pointer Richard D. Way as vice president of manufacturing. In this capacity, Way will have responsibility for all production and engineering operations in the company's plants in Newfield, N.J., and Cambridge, Ohio.

Former Grosse Pointer Todd Ciavola has joined Fifield Assét Management, Inc., as manager of City Place, a new 40-story mixed-use development located in Chicago's Magnificent Mile. Ciavola was previously with JMB Properties Companies, involved in leasing and management of prestigious projects including the new 39-story mixed-use Piper Jaffery Tower in Minneapolis and the Allied-Bendix Office Center in Southfield.

Max L. Gardner, M.D., was elected area representative to the Michigan Psychiatric Association by the members of the Michigan Psychiatric Society. Gardner is a past president of the Michigan Psychiatric Society. He is in private practice in Grosse Pointe.

Cox

Grosse Pointe Woods resident E.L. Cox, chairman of the board and CEO of Amerisure Companies, was elected vice chairman of the Liability Insurance Research Bureau. The LIRB specializes in auto liability, auto physical damage, uninsured and underinsured motorist, commercial general liability and homeowners liability coverage issues. Attorneys answer coverage questions and handle requests for legal research.

Henry L. Ritter P.E., an employee of Albert Kahn Associates, Inc., Architects and Engineers, was recently re-elected to a three-year term on the firm's board of directors. Ritter, who is a resident of Grosse Pointe Woods, is a registered engineer and holds both bachelor's and master's degrees in civil engineering from the University of Notre Dame. A member of the firm since 1967, he was named a senior associate in 1972. He was appointed assistant chief of the structural/civil engineering department; and, in 1986, was named manager of the department. He was elected a vice president in 1988.

Cars and trucks are her business

By Pat Paholsky

Mona Gualtieri knows cars. And trucks. She knows when it's beneficial to lease and when it's not. She knows every dealer in town and has worked in every department in a dealership and even, when it was necessary, washed a car that was ready to be delivered to a buyer.

She is, in short, the consummate car person whose mother says that to this day, she has no idea how her daughter got into the business.

It's been a good match. Gualtieri was, for years, the only woman in her field in management and she says simply: "I have the best job in the whole world."

A fleet leasing manager for Chevrolet for 15 years, Gualtieri is breaking new ground again by managing fleet leasing for Don Gooley Cadillac at 8 Mile and Harper.

Her clients include most of the utility companies and the Construction Association of Michigan, which has 2,200 member companies. And she deals with individuals — people she knows through prior business contacts, retirees whose companies dealt with her, a relative who just graduated from college and is a first-time car buyer.

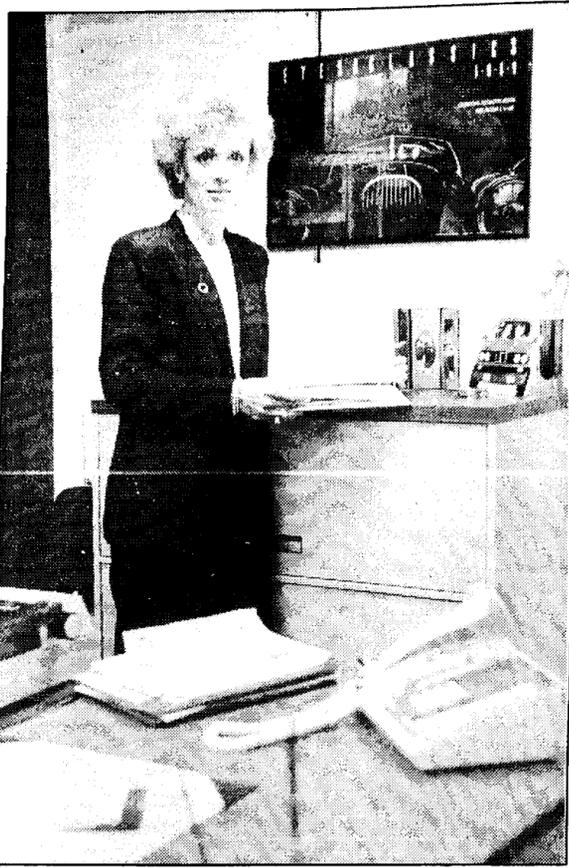

"I have delivered to the president of Detroit Edison and to the linemen and their aunts," Gualtieri said.

She gives seminars to women's groups and retirees on how to buy or lease a car, what questions to ask and what to look for. For instance, she'll advise buyers to find out whether the air conditioning system was factory- or dealer-installed.

"A car is probably the second most expensive thing you will buy," she said, "and there are tons of ways to save money if people take advantage."

Mona Gualtieri

To lease or not is complicated and depends on a number of variables. "Because you think you can get more car for less money is not a reason to lease," she said. "That same car may hold its residual value."

Residual value is based on retail price times a percentage after 24 months. One car might have a residual value of 50 percent compared to another with 10 percent, she said.

There's no down payment involved in a leasing contract, so a person requires a better credit rating. Whether a company that doesn't have a leasing program should consider it depends on its corporate structure, Gualtieri said.

One reason for leasing is that at the end of this year, taxpayers will no longer be able to deduct interest and sales tax for vehicles.

And depending on the situation, if a person is considering leasing a car at $200 a month versus paying $280 a month including interest to buy that same car, Gualtieri might advise him or her to lease and take the $80 difference and invest it over the two-year leasing period.

She advises people who are considering leasing to go to a dealership with a leasing specialist. "Sometimes there are buy-backs on leases," she said. "There are a lot of angles on leasing that people are not aware of at the time."

Corporate leasing five years ago was 10 percent, Gualtieri said. Today it's 30 percent.

Her entree into the car business began when she worked at Chevrolet Motor Division as a secretary before she met Joseph Gualtieri in 1965. She stayed home after the births of her children and was then asked to model at a car show.

She followed that up by working a couple of days a month on accounts at VerHoven Chevrolet on 6 Mile and Van Dyke. Her boss, Bud Greiner, was impressed with her abilities and he encouraged her to consider buying her own dealership.

He sponsored her in the dealer management training program in which she learned how each department worked. She was a parts manager, service manager, office manager, and she did the billing. "I did everything but wash cars, but I did that too," she said. But it was trucks, Gualtieri said, that captured her interest. She went to truck training school and became a truck specialist, managing that department for 2 1/2 years.

She recalls with humor how a man buying a three-ton dump truck, for instance, would react when he was dealing with her.

"It was always a test," she said. "I always had to be 10 percent better, then they'd go to another dealership to check me out."

Now, she says, 90 percent of all her business is from former customers.

There's a growing market of women who are buying cars and trucks today — 40 percent — Gualtieri said, and it's puzzling to her why more young women do not consider getting into the business.

"There is such an opportunity for women to get into sales and make money," she said. "Women are not aware of the opportunities open to them. It's better than real estate." One woman she knows earned $40,000 in her first year of selling cars.

Her advice: "Pick a dealership very carefully that wants to train you." And there are innumerable classes and workshops offered: "All of the training you want is out there."

In her off-hours, Gualtieri works at keeping fit. She rides an exercise bicycle every day for 45 minutes, even if she gets home at midnight, she says. She maintains that it is her source of energy. She also plays tennis, walks four to five miles several times a week in the summer and works out in a gym in the winter.

She is a member of the committee for Eyes on the Classics that will be held at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House July 8. She said she welcomes the opportunity to meet some of the car designers. Gualtieri also serves on committees at the Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology, Bon Secours and St. John hospitals as well as belonging to professional organizations.

She and her husband live in Grosse Pointe Farms. Son David is at DePauw Law School in Chicago and Douglas is in his second year at Central Michigan University.

Charles H. Hewitt

Hewitt honored

Two men who played lead roles in developing Michigan's public transit and highway programs were inducted into the Michigan Transportation Hall of Honor May 17.

They are James C. Kellogg of Lansing, the first administrator of the state's bus and rail programs from 1973 to 1983, and Charles H. Hewitt of Grosse Pointe, who was chairman and a charter member of the State Highway Commission and its longest surviving member (1964-1975).

Hewitt drew on his experience as president of the Detroit Bank and Trust Co., and a long career in banking and finance, to improve the efficiency and strengthen the financial controls of the Department of State Highways, now the transportation department.

Business Notes

The management of Metro Technologies, Inc., in Mount Clemens, has successfully completed a management buyout of the company. Dennis J. Patterson, president, said that all of the outstanding stock in Metro Technologies has been purchased and that he and Scott K. Russell, of Grosse Pointe Woods, are the principal shareholders. Russell has been named vice president of the new firm and has held management positions with Republic Automotive Parts and most recently held the position of manager of heat exchange systems with the Tesma division of Magna International.

The new card game, Saki, in a wine bottle, and Socki, an embroidered tube sock hit the shelves of local stores recently. The game was packaged by Grosse Pointer Jenny Tichenor, president of Cabin Fever Games. It is available at Par-

Riley receives honorary degree

Dorothy Comstock Riley, chief justice of the Michigan Supreme Court, received an honorary doctor of laws degree from the University of Detroit School of Law May 13 in Ford Auditorium.

Riley, who has served as chief justice since 1987, is the second woman ever to hold the highest position on the court. She also has served on the Michigan Court of Appeals, Wayne County Circuit Court and with the Wayne County Friend of the Court office. Her legal experience also includes several years in private practice.

Riley chairs the Tort Reform Committee for the Conference on Chief Justices and is a director of the National Center for State Courts. She served for three years on the committee on State-Federal Relations of the U.S. Supreme Court Judicial Conference. Currently, she is active in numerous legal and judicial organizations, including the American Bar Association, the State Bar of Michigan, the Detroit Bar Association and the National Women Judges Association.

Among many awards the Michigan jurist has received is the Distinguished Alumni

Fundraiser for Northeast Guidance Center

Art on the Pointe will be June 9, 10 on Ford House grounds

One hundred and seventy artists will display their work at the seventh annual art fair, Art on the Pointe, on Saturday and Sunday, June 9 and 10, on the grounds of the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House, 1100 Lakeshore. The juried fair, a fundraiser sponsored by the Assistance League to the Northeast Guidance Center, will have some added attractions as well.

Sure, there's art.

All artists and artisans will be set up on the spacious lawns surrounding the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House, a mere palette's throw from Lake St. Clair.

"We had 270 applications from artists," said Flo Kliber, publicity chairman for the two-day fair. "We narrowed them down to about 170. We like to keep it to about 150."

Grosse Pointe artists who will participate in the fair are Michael Derbyshire (watercolors), Bette Prudden (watercolors and oils), Leo Salvaggio (mixed media collages), Paula Smolenski (hand-woven basketry) and Jerry Crowley (marine art).

Jurors were Gene Pluhar, a teacher at Grosse Pointe South High School and a specialist in ceramics and sculpture; Mary McNichols, a teacher of art history at the Center for Creative Studies; and Carol Sinclair, a member of the Grosse Pointe Artists Association and the Assistance League for the Northeast Guidance Center.

According to Kliber, Art on the Pointe serves to introduce creative arts in various media to the uninitiated as well as the connoisseur. Patrons may wander leisurely among unique booths, she said, and browse among the oil paintings, watercolors, pottery, photography, handcrafted jewelry, sculpture, etchings, fiber arts, basketry and more.

There's food.

The Apple Court patio cafe will be set up in the new Activities Center on the grounds of the Ford House and will serve light lunches, beverages, cheese, fruit, croissants, and more.

Picnic tables will be set up beside the lake for art browsers to buy hot dogs, sausages, barbecue, fries, pop, beer, wine and ice cream.

There's entertainment.

Special events will include strolling musicians, the Renaissance Players, Shriner Ladies clowns, face painting, jugglers — even an organ grinder and monkey.

There's tours.

The Cotswold-style 1927 mansion designed by Albert Kahn for Edsel and Eleanor Ford and their four children will be open for tours at its regular rate. According to Kliber, house tours are a popular attraction at Art on the Pointe. Tours will leave every half hour. Cost is $4 for adults; $3 for senior citizens; $2 for children.

There's a party.

On Saturday, June 9, after the crowds have gone, the Assistance League will put on a Caribbean Adventure theme party, with dinner, dancing, an auction of donated art work, and a chance for partiers to get into the tropical spirit by sampling authentic island food, doing the limbo and (gasp) dancing the lambada. Beach attire is encouraged.

Invitations to the Caribbean Adventure are $30 per person and are limited. To get an invitation, call 824-8000.

There's funds for NEGC.

After all, that's the point of Art on the Pointe. A couple of hundred dedicated volunteers are responsible for the whole weekend.

Kliber said that the Assistance League, with a membership less than 200, enlists husbands, family members and staff to help out at the annual art fair.

"Especially the husbands," she said. "We couldn't do it without them."

Doug Cooke is the husband of co-chairman Ellen Cooke. "We help the artists set up on Friday afternoon," he said. "Then we help them break down on Sunday afternoon. We transport food, ice and generators. We organize the parking. We help clean the grounds afterward."

"We put in at least a 40-hour work week from Friday to Sunday," he said.

"Whatever the artists want, we do," said Barni Grabowski, husband of Kris Grabowski, co-chairman. "We help them get all their equipment in place. They come in with loaded vans, tents, display items."

Kliber said the Assistance League expects 10,000 people to attend Art on the Pointe. "We hope to earn $25,000 or more."

Admission is $2 per person. Children under 12 are free. Parking is $1. Shuttle vans will be available within the grounds for those who are handicapped or those who choose to ride.

The Northeast Guidance Center is a professionally staffed mental health and substance abuse center serving northeast Detroit, the five Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods. NEGC provides direct counseling and treatment services for children, teens, adults and families as well as consultation and education services to schools and other agencies. The center is supported by county and state funds, private fees and private contributions. Nobody is refused service because of inability to pay.

For more information about the Northeast Guidance Center, or the Assistance League, or Art on the Pointe, call 824-8000.

The Tradition Continues.

A representative of The Blake Company will be at the Harbor Place construction site on Friday, Saturday and Sunday May 25th, 26th and 27th from 1:00 - 5:00 pm to show condominiums. Please enter the site through Riviera Terrace Condominiums off Jefferson north of 9 mile road across from Manufacturers Bank.

Imagine a new lakefront development that combines the lifestyle you expect with views of Lake St. Clair never before experienced. Think of sailboats, breezes off the lake...viewed from traditional architecture and plush gardens. Think of Harbor Place. The Blake Company has continued the Grosse Pointe tradition with this new luxury condominium development. Choose your lifestyle: townhouses, terrace homes, each in two- and three- bedroom variations that provide the depth of living that you require. And the amenities are virtually endless: boat slips, 2 car garage, landscaped views, and timeless quality construction. The Blake Company, the developer with generations invested in the east side and metropolitan area, proudly presents Harbor Place. Continue the tradition that you have lived all your life. Call Rob MacGregor for an appointment today, and see the new tradition called Harbor Place.

Senior citizen status is not a good excuse for poor memory

So you forgot where you put your keys and you can't remember if your luncheon date is tomorrow or next week. You sigh and remind yourself that poor memory is one of the penalties you pay for living a long life.

Sorry, but that excuse won't wash anymore.

Experts have found that the difference is what older people remember and what young people remember is very small. In a study done by Roger Dixon of the Max Planck Institute for Human Behavior and Education in West Berlin, the abilities of people in their 30s to recall a short text was compared with those in their 60s. It was found that, given equal verbal skill, there was little difference.

Beyond the assurance that poor memory is not part of the aging process, such studies provide evidence that older people can go on learning as long as the desire to acquire new skills and interests remains. It may be possible for them to get more out of learning because they bring to the subject a background of living experiences.

The older person who has lived through four wars will have a broader base for understanding the effect of war on people and nations than a younger student whose acquaintance with American history is limited to lectures and the written word.

"The Grapes of Wrath" will have more meaning to a reader who has lived through the Depression years than to a reader who is experiencing the deprivation and hardships of that era vicariously in a novel.

It is this portfolio of living experience that makes the difference in the process of remembering between younger and older people. Younger people remembered the facts of a story but older people were better at remembering the point of a story. This seems to be logical since younger people have little to go on but facts, while someone who is older can computerize facts into his or her subconscious memory and sort them into a pattern that will lead to a conclusion based on a lifetime of experience.

And what a wealth of experience the older generation of the 1990s has to draw on.

My mother lived in a house that had a stepstone at the curb for ladies to step on when they got out of their horse-drawn carriage. During her lifetime she saw the demise of street cars and the intervention of motor-driven high-powered cars and planes that crossed the ocean in record time.

However meaningful those findings concerning the capacity of older people to remember, they don't help with the problem of misplaced keys or forgotten luncheon dates.

There are techniques which work for younger people who have trouble remembering and should work for older people as well.

One of the most successful methods for remembering is association. For instance, you might be introduced to a Mr. Lambey. You are impressed with his quiet, gentle manner. You want to remember him by name so you associate his name with lamb. (Just don't call him Mr. Lamb the next time you meet him.)

It is good to know that memory does not decline with age but it is just as reassuring to know that age does not affect intelligence. A study done by Raymond B. Cattell and John L. Horn found that when intelligence did decline during the post-retirement years it was because people felt left out. It was found that society sometimes encourages older people to play the "sick" role, a role that exempts them from normal obligations.

An older person who succumbs to that role may come to view himself or herself as helpless and dependent. This self-image and behavior reinforces society's prejudices and reinforces an image of lowered intelligence when actually the potential is there, needing only self-motivation.

Memory and intelligence do not decline with age, particularly today, when older people enjoy greater health and vigor and are better educated than their predecessors.

Bridge

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD
THE PASTEBOARD PASTIME

A common phenomenon that often pops up at the post mortem of a duplicate board score is the wonderment at what happened and why. Half of the field is making and half are going down in what seems to be an ice cold contract. Dealing is absolute critical restrictions or conditions can often be premature as further research sometimes provides reasonable explanations. True, there are many hands that are misplayed or misdefended, but now and then the cause for such a result is the reverse. Superb play by declarer wins against any defense or an incredible defense scuttles declarer's excellent strategy and execution.

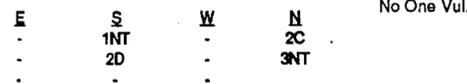

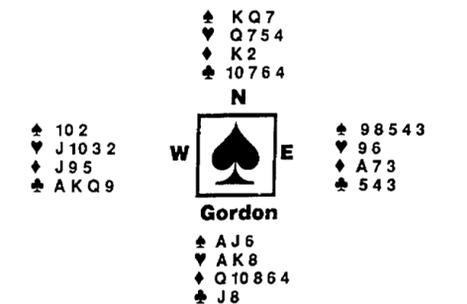

Here is a grand hand, an exceptional playing example of that maxim.

What do you think, is this contract in jeopardy? Out of the twelve tables playing this hand, surprisingly only three N/S pairs reached the no trump game. Only one, my partner, Gordon Harley, successfully scored a nine trick victory and game. Is it makeable or isn't it? Four of the six declarers playing two no trump brought in nine tricks which suggest the game is makeable. Last chance...are you with or agin the declarer?

The stage is now set for the dissection of the declarer, and defenses crusade. Let's go along with Gordon and play this one trick by trick sitting at his side.

West opens the club ace and Gordon counts three spade tricks, three hearts and the odds are only 36% for a fourth, one diamond unless the jack is behind the queen — ten a 50% probability, and maybe one club. This hardly adds up to nine winners and one can see, viewing fifty-two, nothing is breaking right so south is confronted with some risky business. Here's how he developed his tricks.

- Trick 1 and 2...West wins the club ace, king.
- Trick 3...West shifts to the spade ten won by dummy's king.
- Trick 4...Spade seven won by declarers ace.
- Trick 5...Diamond four to dummy's king won by east's ace.
- Trick 6...Heart nine to declarer's ace.
- Trick 7...Heart king won by declarer.

Trick 8...Declares spade jack won by dummy's queen. West is squeezed and pitches club nine. Any other discard by west is just as infictive.

Trick 11...Dummy's club ten and west is again squeezed and must unguard his diamond jack.

Trick 12...Gordon has the queen-ten of diamonds and knows east has a spade and a diamond and west a heart and a diamond so he plays to his queen winning the last two tricks.

Was declarers conquest a legitimate success?...No!...The defense slipped and Gordon took full advantage of it.

The two crucial plays for the defense are at trick three and six. At three, west made a fine switch to the spade ten. Nothing can beat an experienced south if, at trick three, west continues with the club queen. So at trick six east, after winning the diamond ace, must continue diamonds before west is squeezed by declarers third spade. Perfect defense holds south to eight tricks, but the defense must rise to the occasion. West did at trick three, but east didn't at trick six.

Garden party will benefit St. Vincent & Sarah Fisher Center

St. Vincent & Sarah Fisher Center will hold its third annual fundraiser, "La Fete au Jardin," on June 3, from 2 to 6 p.m., on the center's grounds in Farmington Hills.

Proceeds from the garden party will be used to address the needs of young, single mothers like Lisa and her baby, Kelly: "When I first came to the center, I was 16 and scared to death. My baby was only three weeks old. My mother was on drugs and I had called DSS for help... The DSS worker told me about this place where I could live with my baby and go to school. I learned so much at the center — how to be a better mother, what to do when Kelly got sick, even things about myself and my feelings. I'll never forget my days there and the people who helped me."

Lisa spent nearly two years at the center. She finished high school and has since married the father of her child. They've added a new baby to the family and her husband owns his own small business.

The St. Vincent & Sarah Fisher Center, which was begun in 1929, serves children and families who are in crisis or in need. Its services to orphaned children and to unmarried mothers go back to the 1830s. It is administered by the Daughters of Charity of St. Vincent De Paul.

The fundraiser will feature gourmet foods prepared by chefs from 60 of the area's finest eateries and 100 wines from the world's finest wineries. Music will be provided by Alexander Zonjlik, classical and jazz flutist.

Tom's Oyster Bar and ONE23 will be there. Ditto the following sponsoring committee members from Grosse Pointe: Charles (Chick) and Beth Fisher, Emmet and Frances Tracy, Bill and Leddie Fiscus, Dana Lochniskar, Marie Varnierian, and Al and Ellen Nick.

Golf benefit: Bon Secours Hospital will sponsor its annual invitational golf benefit on June 4, at the Country Club of Detroit.

This year's event will raise funds for the Bon Secours Hospital Adolescent Mental Health unit, the only hospital-based facility of its kind on the east side of Detroit. The 21-bed inpatient program for teenagers with emotional and psychiatric problems provides complete treatment, including individual, group, occupational and recreational therapy as well as the continuation of the patients' academic studies. General chairman of the 1990 golf benefit is Robert G. Loomis Jr.

Golfers may choose from shotgun starts at 8 a.m. or 1 p.m. A continental breakfast will be served from 7 to 9 a.m.; a barbecue lunch at 11 a.m.; cocktails at 7 p.m.; dinner at 8 p.m. Tickets for the meals and the day of golf are $250 per person; dinner only is $100. For reservations or other details, call Rose Mary S. Rudy, 779-7199.

Have a ball: The overall survival rate for leukemia patients has doubled in the last 23 years due to research that has produced earlier disease detection and diagnosis and dramatic advances in treatment. The Leukemia Society of America will hold a black-tie fundraiser, "The Ball of the '90s," at the Ritz-Carlton, on Friday, June 1, from 7 p.m. until midnight.

Proceeds from this formal journey into the future will benefit the Michigan chapter of the Leukemia Society's research and patient-aid programs.

Hit a ball: Tee up with sportscasters Eli Zaret, Ray Lane and Jay Berry at the Ameritech Pages Plus Celebrity Golf Classic for the Alzheimer's Association on Monday, June 4, at the Meadowbrook Country Club in Northville.

A tax-deductible donation of $175 per person includes 18 holes of golf, video golf clinic, contests, buffet lunch, prizes, awards, cocktails, dinner, auction, beverages, and a chance to gawk at some celebrities.

Shotgun tee times are 8 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. For information or reservations, call 557-8277.

Judge Michael Connor of Grosse Pointe Farms, left, WSU President David Adamany, center, and Judge Kathleen Macdonald of Grosse Pointe Woods, attended Hilberry's Understudies' picnic on May 6 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Robert Zeff.

Good taste: The 1990 Michigan Tastefest, a free four-day outdoor festival featuring Michigan restaurants, wines and music, will be on Memorial Day weekend, May 25-28, in the New Center area in Detroit.

Mario's, the flagship restaurant of this year's event, is owned by the Passalacqua family, Grosse Pointe Woods residents for 23 years.

The New Center Foundation Inc., producer of the Michigan Tastefest, is a charitable organization working to strengthen and improve Detroit's New Center area.

Tastefest hours are 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Friday through Sunday; 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday. Three stages will present continuous free entertainment with such notables as the Spinners, Mitch Ryder, the Chenille Sisters, the Sun Messengers, Norma Jean Bell and the All Stars and more.

There will be stuff for kids — like the Peanut Butter Players — and stuff for grown ups: like N'ong Tong from the Bangkok Cuisine, rice pudding, hummus and tabouleh from the Gnome Restaurant, pizza by the slice from Little Caesars, deep-fried ravioli from Mario's, alligator sauce piquante from Moby Dick's, ice cream from Stroh's, and baklava from Pegasus in the Fisher. Also: culinary demonstrations by professional and celebrity chefs, (Grosse Pointe's own Charity Sucek, on Sunday, May 27, at 4 p.m.) a photo exhibit, discount coupons, walking tours of the Fisher Building, New Center One and the General Motors Building, some non-edible Michigan products from outstate establishments, face painting, free parking, taste-priced and taste-sized bites of most foods, and more.

More taste: A menu tasting party for the June 14 Grand Prix Ball (a benefit for the Music Hall Center for the Performing Arts) was held May 9 at the Westin Hotel. Co-chairmen for invitations for the ball are Linda Drook and Anita Vogel. Host chairman is Dale Austin. Among those who sampled confections at the May party were: Diane Schoenith, Henrietta Fridholm and Susie Lambrecht.

Autumn plans: October isn't as distant as it sounds for Cindy Van Pelt and Judy Martena, co-chairs of the Grosse Pointe Garden Center's 35th an-

By the Rev. John Corrado
Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church

Words. I love words. I love to play with them. I'd better, of course, since they are a preacher/teacher's tools. There are some words I can't stand: phony words; nonsense words; culturally accepted babble. Anyone who knows me knows that I abhor the word share as a substitute for the more honest tell you about. When someone says he has something to share with me, it's not usually an apple or tickets to a Red Wings' game. I find laughable career of-fender cartel (translate: gangsters). Negative patient outcome (translate: dead in a hospital bed) is sick! But the greatest offender, perhaps because it trivializes the greatest mystery of all, is the nauseating phrase lifestyle. The only good thing I've ever heard about lifestyle is that one critic used it in the following sentence: "If a lifestyle is here, can death-stance be far behind?"

The reason I am on my pro-life, anti-lifestyle kick is that my mischievous eyes refused to elude a recent article. The article dealt with the rapidly accelerating celebrity of K-Mart's lifestyle consultant. What's a lifestyle? Why is it important?

Television tells me that the Rich and Famous have lifestyles. Bad words, like bad money, replace good words. That's an extension of Gresham's Law.

Do trivialized versions of reality replace reality, too? Do the rich and famous have lives, too? What about the lifestyle of street people? Or do you have to have money to have a life-style? I refrain from asking the question, "Would you like to read a book about the lifestyle of Jesus, Gandhi or Pope John XXIII?" because I'm afraid a few people would. Can you imagine singing a song like "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Lifestyle?"

Reductio ad absurdum? Perhaps, but with something so truly inane, there's not much to reductio.

Disagree with me if you will. As a man called to deal with the mystery of life, I have passionate feelings about its counterfeits. And think on this: When they scatter your ashes, do you want to be remembered for your life, or for your lifestyle?

Seminar is for seniors, caregivers

Historic Trinity Church, 1345 Gratiot, Detroit, will present a day-long seminar for seniors and caregivers on Thursday, May 31, beginning at 10 a.m.

Topics will be: Safety tips for seniors; Understanding Medicare and Social Security; Alternative housing for seniors; Senior health concerns; and Services available to seniors.

Registration is $6.50 and includes coffee, workshops, handouts, lunch and entertainment. Reservations are required. For information, call 567-3100.

Twenty-two of the Grosse Pointe United Methodist women are participating in a reading program sponsored by the women's division, board of global ministries of the United Methodist Church. The purpose of the program is to inform women — through reading — of human needs, interests and concerns and the issues facing humankind today, in order to become involved in the Christian mission.

Books from each of four categories must be read: Christian global concerns, Christian social involvement, supportive community and Christian personhood. Those participating are: Eleanor Golinske, Lois Harding, Dolly Smedley, Pris Van Horne, Betty Buffa, Eunice Hayward, Phyllis Armstrong, Alice Callaway, Marge Carrier, Ruth Mansnshreck, Marge McGiverin, Mary Eldo Thompson, Evelyn Friffith, Carol Ann Maleitzke, Henrietta McNally, Mary Kerr, Grace Simmons, Connie Buydens, Pat Stuckey, Sarah Frakes, Pat Wilson and Dorothy Greer.

Mariners' Inn plans benefit for homeless

Mariners' Inn, an agency of the Episcopal Diocese of Michigan, has announced plans for the third annual "Mariners' Inn Boblo Cruise on the Detroit River," on Thursday, June 14. Proceeds from the event will be used to provide food, shelter, health care and counseling for Detroit's homeless men.

According to Mary Ellen Robertson, executive director of Mariners' Inn, "Detroit's homeless men have a right to self-esteem. Funds from the Inn Cruise go directly toward providing the tools for these men to build a better life."

Cruise contributors will board the Boblo boat at 8 p.m. The boat will depart at 8:30 and returns at 11 p.m. The boat will cruise the Detroit river, providing a view of the city of Detroit as it prepares for the ninth annual Detroit Grand Prix. Entertainment will be provided by Chet Bogan's Wolverine Jazz Band.

Tickets for the cruise are $25 per person. A patron contribution of $125 or more entitles the donor to enjoy dinner aboard the boat from 7 to 8 p.m.

Tickets may be ordered by calling 962-9446 or by sending a check to Mariners' Inn Boblo Cruise, 445 Ledyard, Detroit, 48201. All contributions are tax deductible.

Mariners' Inn, founded in 1842 to provide lodging for working seamen, is today a human services agency of the Episcopal Church. One of Detroit's oldest service agencies, the Inn is more than a shelter. It has a complete staff of professionals committed to assisting those in need of medical care, counseling and education. The recipient of numerous awards, the Inn has been honored by the Michigan State Housing Development Authority for offering hope and help to Michigan's homeless. In 1988, the Inn was selected by the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism as one of the top 15 drug treatment programs in the United States for homeless alcoholics.

More information about Mariners' Inn and the third annual Boblo Cruise can be obtained from Mary Ellen Robertson, executive director, 962-9446.

Pointe teen honored by YMCA

The Lakeshore YMCA recently awarded Jennifer Alff, 16, of Grosse Pointe, the Christian Youth Leadership Award for 1990. The award spotlights young people in the community who demonstrate Christian values, leadership and an active prayer life.

Alff, a member of Christ Church of Grosse Pointe, was nominated by the Rev. Gregory P. Sammons.

This is the first time the Lakeshore Y has participated in the annual event. Alff and recipients will be recognized by the Detroit Metropolitan YMCA in May at the Metropolitan Board luncheon meeting and be presented with a $250 bond.

Last year Alff participated in a trip to Appalachia where she and others from Christ Church helped to repair and improve homes of impoverished West Virginia families. Through her youth group, she also participated in the Mariners' Inn Christmas party, delivered flowers to shut-ins and served as an acolyte.

She is the daughter of Joseph and Margery Alff. She is a junior at Grosse Pointe South High School and is active on the school's yearbook staff.

G.P. Ski Club to play tennis

The Grosse Pointe Ski Club will hold its annual tennis party on Saturday, June 9, at 7:30 p.m. at the tennis house of the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club. A dinner party will follow.

All levels of tennis players are welcome. Those who don't play tennis can enjoy the dinner party and socializing.

Reservations are required. Call 881-7381 or 771-3868. Cost to members is $12 for the evening. Prospective new ski club members are encouraged to call for information about attending the party.

The club is planning a picnic and bicycling outing at Pointe Pelee National Park near Windsor, and a canoe trip in Michigan during the summer.

The Grosse Pointe Ski Club is open to all singles and couples who enjoy sports and socializing. Call President Dick Campbell at 771-3868, or Publicity Chairman Virginia Gardiner at 881-0909 for information.

Garden Center plans lecture, luncheon

The Grosse Pointe Garden Center will present its annual spring membership event on Tuesday, June 5 at 10:30 a.m. in the library of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

The speaker will be Mike Pricer, an organic gardening and farming expert from Hunter's Creek Perennial Gardens in LaPeer. Price will share his approach to gardening and enhance knowledge of the perennials indigenous to the community.

Perennials will be available for purchase and there will be a white elephant sale of vases and other flower-related items.

A light luncheon will be served following the lecture. The cost is $6 per person and checks must be received with reservations. For more information, call the Garden Center at 881-4594.

Mrs. Gail Warden and Mrs. D. Kerry Crenshaw are co-chairmen. Ann Hathaway is president of the Garden Center.

The Single Way to meet for dinner, golf

The Single Way, a group of interdenominational Christian singles, is sponsoring a dinner at a Bob Evans restaurant on June 5, at 6:30 p.m. Kids and teens are welcome. The group will meet at 6:30 p.m. at the restaurant, 30750 Gratiot at 13 Mile, in Roseville.

Christian singles are invited to play miniature golf, followed by dinner, on Saturday, June 9. Adults and teens are welcome. Price is $4.50. The group will meet at 4 p.m. at Captains' Cove Miniature Golf Center, 3506 Edgar in the Coolidge and Thirteen Mile area of Royal Oak.

Christian singles of all ages and faiths are invited to attend. For more information, or for a calendar of other group activities, call 776-5535.

Navy League Ball will be June 9

Eileen Doyle of Harper Woods, past president of the Detroit Women's Council of the Navy League, has been named chairman for the 40th annual Navy League Ball which will take place at Lochmoor Club on June 9.

Freida Kunnert, president of the Detroit Women's Council, and Eileen Doyle will act as hostesses at the ball. This year's ball will honor the sea services in the year of the United States Coast Guard bicentennial.

The Navy League was founded by Theodore Roosevelt as a liaison group between the public and the U.S. Navy.

Cocktails will begin at 6:30 p.m. Dinner will be at 7 p.m., after the color guard ceremony.

Dancing will be to Phil Cole's orchestra. There will be prizes.

Tickets are $50 per person. Send reservation request and $50 to Mrs. James Glander, 12744 Lincoln, Huntington Woods, 48070, before June 2.

Widows' Organization

Reservations are still being accepted by the Widows' Organization, which is sponsoring a weekend in St. Louis, starting Friday through Sunday, Aug. 17-19.

Price is $150, which covers the plane fare, a bus from the airport to the hotel, two nights lodging, all hotel tips, and bus fare from the hotel to airport.

A deposit of $50 is required immediately. The balance is to be paid by July 15. Reservations are limited.

For further information, call the organization's office, 582-3792, between 1 p.m. and 5 p.m.

Lakeshore Singles

The Lakeshore Singles Club holds a dance every Saturday evening at the Lakeshore Family YMCA, 23401 Jefferson, St. Clair Shores.

Admission is $3.50 and includes dancing from 9 p.m. until midnight, featuring a live band and refreshments.

The club is open to all single, widowed and divorced persons 40 years of age and over.

For more information, contact Lu Cartwright, 776-6768, or Virginia Krinock, 268-3882.

Progressive Artists

Guest artist Beverly Richards will give a demonstration in watercolor at 7:30 p.m., on Friday, May 25, at Spindler Park Recreation Drive, East Detroit.

Detroit Review Club plans tea

The annual Detroit Review Club June tea will be held on June 19 at the home of Mrs. Alfred Massnick.

Reservations should be sent to Mary Fitzpatrick, along with a check for $8.

The Detroit Review Club started as a Literature Club in 1984, it helped found the General Federation of Women's Clubs and the Detroit Federation.

League of Women Voters to hold forum for school board candidates

Grosse Pointe voters will have an opportunity to meet and question the two candidates running for the school board at a candidate's forum at the War Memorial Center at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, June 7. The election will be held on Monday, June 11.

The forum is sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Grosse Pointe as a part of its citizen education program. Joanne Watko, voter service director for the league, urges voters to attend this forum in order to know how candidates will react to important issues facing the board today.

The candidates are Linda Schneider, former executive assistant at the General Motors Technical Center, and an active member and office holder in parent/school related organizations; and Timothy Howlett, an attorney who also has held offices in a variety of parent and school groups.

Schneider and Howlett will briefly address their positions on state school aid reform, site budgeting, the library question and the state of vocational education in the Grosse Pointe schools. Questions from the audience will be posed by league moderator Fran Schonenberg.

The League of Women Voters is a non-partisan organization which works to promote citizen participation in the governmental process.

Show House boutique

Chairmen of the boutique for the Junior League of Detroit's 1990 Designer's Show House are Wendy Jennings, left, and Terri Berschback.

The boutique is in the basement of the English Tudor mansion and is filled with merchandise representing 150 artisans from Michigan, Canada and 16 states.

The house is a showcase for the creativity of 28 different design firms. The Greenery is selling plants, hanging baskets and herbs. The Staffordshire Pub is selling snacks and lunches.

The Show House is open through May 28. Hours are Tuesdays through Fridays from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m.; Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays from 6:30 until 8:30 p.m.; and Saturdays, Sundays and Memorial Day from noon until 5 p.m.

Tickets are $10 at the door.

Children's Home honors employees

The Children's Home of Detroit board of trustees honored 11 employees recently for their continuous years of service to the home.

Each employee received a service pin recognizing his or her accomplishments. The honorees included Jack Doterer, maintenance supervisor; Loretta Burton and Tommie Jo Davis, child care workers for 20 years of service; and Judith A. Vos, therapist for 15 years of service.

Ten year service pins were also awarded to Elizabeth Dix, health center attendant; Bruce Wertlow and Glynis Tarver, child care workers; Joyce Strobbe and Jeri Verscheure, child care supervisors; Bill Whitesell, business manager; and Kathleen Walters, therapist.

This formal recognition of Children's Home employees began in 1986. Since then, 56 employees have been honored for service ranging from five to 20 years, for a combined total of 510 years of continuous service to children and their families.

The Children's Home was founded in 1836.

Action Auction 1990 sets record

Action Auction, an annual fundraiser for the Grosse Pointe Academy, lived up to its reputation as the nation's most successful independent school auction.

On May 9, at the kickoff event, the Auction Preview Spectacular, 550 boosters bid on 250 items, grossing about $80,000 for the Academy.

On May 12, more than 600 bidders bought more than 800 items, from a private skating clinic with Detroit Red Wings star Jimmy Carson to a vacation for 10 in an Italian castle to a Cartier diamond watch.

At the right are Jane and Kenneth J. Meade, Action Auction 1990 honorary chairmen.

G.P. Symphony, Elizabeth Parcells, shine in season finale

By John T. Miller
Special Writer

It was a gala affair, with a touch of local girl makes good, when the Grosse Pointe Symphony Orchestra brought its current subscription season to a close on Sunday, May 6, in the Parcells Middle School auditorium.

A large audience was on hand for this concert of operatic music and was treated to splendid performances by the orchestra, under conductor Felix Resnick, and guest soloist Elizabeth Parcells Becker, coloratura soprano.

Since it was a rather lengthy program, Maestro Resnick wisely chose brisk tempos, including an uncommonly fast introduction to Mozart's "Magic Flute" Overture. Strings and winds handled the tricky fugal section cleanly, resulting in a most satisfying performance.

The suite of excerpts from Bizet's "Carmen" showed off the orchestra to good advantage, with only occasional intonation problems in the "Seguidilla."

Dominating the program was the excellent soloist, Elizabeth Parcells Becker. A native of Grosse Pointe, she has gone on to considerable fame and renown here and abroad. Since all of the arias that she sang were from the 18th and 19th centuries, she was appropriately resplendent in an operatic costume of egg-shell silk velvet, featuring an off-the-shoulder neckline and a deep collar of lace embedded with pearls. The large hoop skirt featured a flowing train.

Parcells possesses a voice of great beauty, and she has developed her coloratura technique to perfection. She demonstrated enviable flexibility and agility in the difficult "Mad Scene" from Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor" and the "Sempre Libera" from Verdi's "La Traviata."

Although sometimes lacking in focus in the higher fortissimos, she displayed expertly controlled nuances in her pianissimos. This was most ably projected in the beautiful "Caro Nome" from Verdi's "Rigoletto," the highlight of the entire concert.

Maestro Resnick lent most capable orchestral support to his soloist, and there were numerous examples of extraordinary playing and teamwork between the piano and the players. Especially noteworthy was the fine work of flutist Laurie Strachan in the "Mad Scene." The program also included spirited and exquisite readings of two Verdi overtures, and the concert concluded with a rousing "Dance of the Hours" from Ponchielli's "La Gioconda."

Thinking again

Got to thinking the other day:

- Why does it go from extremely cold to extremely hot weather? Do we no longer have a spring season?
- Will someone please tell me why time is flying by.
- Track meets aren't as boring as they look.
- With five nationally ranked players, the South tennis team should win the state Class A title. If it doesn't, I'll do 100 push-ups.
- The dance of the year: North coach Guido Regelbrugge after his team beat South Lake, 6-0, for its sixth straight win.
- The play that never was: In a softball game against L'Anse Creuse North, the South softball team completed a triple play, but only two of those outs counted because there was already one out. It looked great, though.
- It's nice to see the Grosse Pointe Soccer Association and Little League seasons under way.
- Is there anything better than a lazy Saturday afternoon under the sun watching baseball?
- I hear Matt Brady, a former North football player, is on the University of Michigan football team as a walk-on.
- I wonder how Magic Johnson's golf game is going?
- I don't think TV sportscasters or newspaper writers should double as radio personalities.
- Who would you select as the next Pistons' coach?
- I don't like sportscasts on the TV that give more time to bloopers than other stories.
- I'm glad ESPN picked up a major league contract to show baseball games.
- Oh boy, here comes another Arena Football season.
- Will Sparky be around next year?

Sonnenberg, Collins heat up boys' regional meet

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor
Mark Sonnenberg and Scott Collins don't care about when or where; they'll just do it.

For several years now Sonnenberg and Collins have battled on the track, and after qualifying at the regional meet May 19, both will take their heated rivalry to the state Class A boys' meet on June 2. Sonnenberg helped his South teammates place second with 40 1/2 points, and Collins assisted North's sixth-place, 28-point performance.

"It was a great race," North coach Pat Wilson said in reference to the heated 1600 run, which Sonnenberg won by one second. "It was just as exciting as it was last week when they met in the North-South meet."

But the result was the same for Collins, who lost that race, too.

Sonnenberg's first-place time was 4:31, and Collins took second with a 4:32.

"Those two are so competitive that it's too bad someone has to lose," said Wilson. "Every time they meet, you can bet it's going to be a war."

The top two finishers in each of the 16 events qualifies for the state meet.

Sonnenberg also took a second place (2:02) in the 800 run, and Collins was fifth (2:04) in the same event.

North's Juan Ganum will also travel to the state meet after finishing second (22.6) in the 200 dash.

"Before the meet I thought Scott and Juan were the two guys who could possibly get in and they did," said Wilson. "I also thought the 800 relay team had a shot, but I guess it wasn't meant to be."

The 800 relay team of Ganum, David Vier, Ed Smith and Glen Harkenrider took fourth (1:34.3).

"We did what we could and I was pleased with that," Collins said.

Adding to North's total were Jared Kolleth (pole vault, 10 feet 7 inches), Bob Thomas (shot put, 43-9), Vier (high hurdles 16.3), Tom Gauerke (3200, 10.32), and the two-mile relay team of Collins, Gauerke, Doug Brown and Andy Torrence.

FOR SOUTH, Dave Asker's third-place discus toss of 137.4 was less than two feet from qualifying, and he also placed fourth (46 feet) in the shot put.

Tom Murphy (pole vault, 10-7) and Jeff Kerfoot (long jump, 18-8, and high jump, 5-9) also tallied for South, as did the 3200 relay team of Pat Hayes, Noah Silvers, Chad Schomaker and Sonnenberg.

Devils smiling after winning regional

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

With five nationally ranked players, it's no wonder that the Grosse Pointe South tennis team rambled through the regional tournament May 18-19.

South, a team which hasn't lost a dual meet in two years, earned 28 of a possible 28 points en route to the win, highlighted by a clean sweep in all seven flights.

"It was a lot of fun," said South coach Tom Berschback. "One of the true signs of a championship team is concentration and I like the way we aren't losing sight of our goals."

North took second in the regional with 17 points, and will join South in Midland for the Class A championships on June 1-2.

"I was impressed with the fact that the kids kept their concentration despite the 30 mile-an-hour winds," Berschback said. "The wind can be a great equalizer because you can get upset quite easily if you don't concentrate."

Jeff Giraldo, Lee Lorenzini, Nick Lorenzini and Emiliano Lorenzini won the first four singles flights, and Cullen McMahon and Matt Smucker started the sweep in doubles with a victory at No. 1 doubles. Bill Wundram and Craig Kostecke won the No. 2 flight, while Chris Schilling and Brian Disser took No. 3 doubles.

Giraldo, the three Lorenzini and McMahon are all ranked players.

"I'm always expecting them to have a letdown," said Berschback, "but they didn't and that's why I'm extremely pleased. By no means do we have the state title wrapped up. It's going to be tough."

South took on, and beat (6-2), Ann Arbor Pioneer, the state's No. 3 ranked team May 21.

Giraldo, Lee Lorenzini and Nick Lorenzini won, as did Smucker and McMahon, Kostecke and Wundram, and Jim Pappas and Steve Carlin (No. 4 doubles).

Knights finish behind Country Day

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

University Liggett School tennis coach Bob Wood knew it would be difficult for his team to defend its 1989 boys' Class C-D regional title, so finishing second in the tournament last weekend came as no surprise.

ULS, ranked No. 2 in the C-D polls behind top-rated Detroit Country Day School, relinquished its 1989 regional title as the Yellowjackets scored 19 first-place points and the Knights had 16.

"We all knew it was going to be tough," said Wood, "but we've still got another shot at them."

ULS and Country Day both qualified for the state championships on June 1-2. ULS is the defending state champion, but that crown will also be tough to defend.

In the regional meet, No. 4 singles player Cheo Ramsey and the No. 1 doubles team of Doug Wood and Bill Schervish won their flights, but Country Day took the other five flights.

"The difference was at No. 2 and 3 singles," Wood said. "Those matches went three sets and we unfortunately lost, but if we could have reversed them we would have won by a point."

Instead, Anthony Abiragi and Paul Fozo had to settle for a runner-up trophy.

"We feel we still have a shot at them in June," Wood said. "We're not disappointed about the regional finish because we knew Country Day would be tough. We've just got to turn a

Baseball

Just when things were getting interesting in the race for the Eastern Michigan League championship, along came Anchor Bay.

South, which began last week only one full game off the pace, was upset, 6-5, by the Tars.

The loss dropped South to 7-4 in the league, which gives them only a mathematical chance at winning the championship.

"That game, by far, was the worst league loss I can ever remember," said South coach Dan Griesbaum, whose team gave up five unearned runs. "We just played awful. I'm mostly disappointed in the way we hurt ourselves and put ourselves out of the race."

South left-hander Brian Downs, (4-4), carried a 5-4 lead into the seventh, but gave way to Brian Campbell with two outs. Campbell walked one and a South error allowed the Tars to keep the rally going, eventually getting a two-run single to win it.

Downs scattered six hits and struck out eight.

South trailed 3-1 after one inning, but got one back in the second when Mike Oliver scored on a passed ball. In the fourth inning, South cut the lead to 3-2 on Tim Gramling's sacrifice fly, and then tied the game at 4-4 in the fifth on a Nugent RBI single and a Brian Letscher sacrifice fly.

Tom Moellering started the sixth with a walk and stole second, and Oliver gave South a 5-4 lead just one swing later when he tripled.

At the Home Plate Tournament May 19, South was shelled by No. 8 ranked Farmington, 13-3.

Mark Jungwirth suffered his second loss of the season and was bounced after pitching only 2 1/3 innings. He gave up 10 runs on five extra-base hits, including two home runs. Campbell tossed the final 1 2/3 innings.

giving up six runs. The game was called after five innings because of the mercy rule.

Wysocki added another RBI double in the third, and finished with a couple RBI.

In the second game, South won on a mercy rule, beating East Detroit, 11-1.

Lance DeBets went the distance, striking out two and allowing only two hits.

Letscher, Gramling, Jason Benavidez and Nick Johnston had two hits apiece. Johnston had two doubles and two RBI. Kelly Graves also had two RBI.

Softball

After a 3-2 win at Anchor Bay, the South softball team locked itself into fourth place in the E.M.L. with a 5-6 record.

Darcy Jones threw a two-hitter, striking out four and walking three. Jenni Wysocki and Becky Wysocki smacked two hits each.

At the Home Plate Tournament, South played well, but had nothing to show for it.

In the opener, Jones scattered only four hits but still took the 4-1 loss to East Detroit.

South had seven hits, led by Jones' three hits and Patty Provenzano's two hits.

In game two, a South error in the seventh inning gave Fraser a 3-2 win. Jones again allowed only two hits, and Jenny Kalmink and Laurel Wolfe drove home runs.

In the final game, Tina Higel picked up a 10-6 win over Farmington as she went the distance.

Angela Roxas, playing in her first varsity game, had two hits in three trips to pace the Lady Devils.

Norsemen take runner-up spot

By Rob Fulton

Because his three doubles teams advanced to the finals of the regional tennis tournament, North coach Ken Gutow suspects he has one of the strongest doubles lineups in the state.

And, he'll find out just how good they are when the team travels to the state meet June 1-2. North earned the trip after finishing with 16 second-place points.

"We were right in the crucial matches with all our doubles teams in the finals against South," Gutow said. "I would venture to say that we have one of the strongest doubles lineups in the state and we're looking forward to getting to the state meet to find out."

South won the regional championship with 28 points.

"South is very strong," Gutow said. "But our kids played outstanding. I'm very pleased with the results."

Especially because only one point separated North and third place Port Huron Northern, who didn't qualify for the state meet.

Scott McSkimming and Ben Fong (No. 1 doubles), Jason Serwa and Brad Hea (No. 2 doubles) and Tom Moisesides and Na-deen Elian (No. 3 doubles) finished second in their respective flights.

"We did what we had to do in order to get at least second place," Gutow said. "We lost a couple of close matches that could have gone either way, but the main thing is that we've now put ourselves in a spot where we can go all out and try and win the state title."

North baseball team moves to next district

By Rob Fulton

Lou D'Angelo tossed a one-hitter and Steve Craparotta and Paul Straske laced home runs to lead the North baseball team past Finney, 10-0, in a district qualifying game May 19.

North, now 11-16 overall, will face East Detroit May 25 at North in a pre-district game.

"This was a big win for us," said Norsemen coach Frank Sumner. "It's the best I've felt in three weeks. We just did batting average.

With a 4-0 lead, North got five consecutive walks to force in two runs before Straske's walk got in the fifth run of the inning, giving North a 7-0 lead at the end of five.

Before North batted in the fifth, however, D'Angelo almost allowed a big inning.

He walked the first batter, who promptly stole second and took third on an error. D'Angelo then proved why he's the staff's ace by striking out the side.

"In the fifth inning Lou showed what he can do on the mound in a clutch situation," said Sumner. "He took over and ignited our rally in the bottom of the inning. He just took charge."

And so did the offense in the sixth, when it got two runs from a VanSyckle single to end the game.

"We've really got to put it together now," said Sumner. "This season we've been very inconsistent and it cost us a shot at the league. We would win a couple and then lose a couple, but we never put together a run of wins. We need to be very sharp in order to beat East Detroit."

everything right and we all feel good because now we move on in the state tournament."

North, which got seven hits to support D'Angelo's nine-strikeout performance, took a 2-0 lead in the second on only one hit. Mike Haskell started the inning with a double, and Dan Watkins walked. Mike VanSyckle hit a slow roller to the mound and Finney's pitcher threw the ball into left field on an attempt to force the speedy Haskell. Haskell charged home with the first run and Straske later added a sacrifice fly.

The Norsemen got the fireworks ignited in the fifth after two scoreless innings. Straske homered and with one out Craparotta smacked his team-leading sixth homer of the season. He also has 27 RBI and a .348 lem with L'Anse Creuse a few days later, winning 17-1. Leading goal-scorers were Gordon, Ayuyu and Davis with three goals each. Reynolds had two goals.

Track

At the regional track meet, Mike Barnes and Jenny Miller qualified for the state meet June 2.

Barnes' school-record time of 51.7 in the 400 dash earned him first place and a trip to the state meet. Miller set school records in the 1600 run (5:37.2) and 3200 run (12:20.8), to finish first and second, respectively.

On the season, the boys' team finished 11-1 and the girls' team was 7-3.

Natasha Levy and Ify Obianwu both ran a 13.1 100 dash, tying for second on the school's all-time records list. Obianwu ran a 27.8 to place second in the ULS record books in the 200 run, while Angela Walker is third (28.1).

Barnes is also the school-record holder in the 800 run (1:58.7), and John Dodds (2:06.4) is second. Barnes' 4:47.90 in the mile is also the school's third fastest time, and Jon Sieber is third all-time in the 3200 run (10:28).

Other record holders for ULS include Derek VanDeGraaf (110 hurdles), Abimbola Afariogun (shot put), Smith (high jump) and the undefeated 3200 relay team of Sieber, Chris Frederickson, Dodds and Barnes.

With the state tournament still ahead, the ULS lacrosse team ended its regular season with a 12-4 mark, making this the most successful boys' team ever at ULS.

ULS soundly defeated South, 16-1, as John Gordon, Jon Davis, Tom Reynolds and Larry Ayuyu each had hat tricks. Tripp Tracy added a pair of goals, while James Kim and Jason Robichaud had one goal each.

Perhaps the highlight of the season was a tie against the state's No. 1 team, Country Day.

Rob Petz had the best game of his career in goal, stopping a barrage of shots by the Yellowjackets.

North needs several overtimes to upend South

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

It's too difficult to predict what can happen in a North-South soccer match, but the one constant is that someone has to lose.

North and South clashed in a district tournament game at Elworthy Field May 21, and North walked away with a slim, 3-2 win to advance to the second round against Fraser (May 23 after press time).

North's win, its 13th in 14 games, took two 10-minute overtimes, two five-minute sudden-death overtimes, and three five-player shoot-outs, including one sudden-death shoot-out.

South, the Expressway League East champions (7-0), finished the season 11-5-1. North is 13-0-1.

"It was the longest game we've ever been in and I'm disappointed for the girls," said South coach Vasilios Simopoulos. "It was a great game that was played in front of about 250 people."

Or 250 witnesses.

Each half is supposed to end after 40 minutes, but Simopoulos claims the referee allowed an extra three minutes at the end of the second half. Consequently, that three minutes gave North the edge.

"Not only did the referee allow an extra three minutes, but he called a penalty kick on us," he said. "There was a bit of a scuffle inside the 18-yard box and the ref called a hand ball. I thought it was a chest ball, but he awarded North a penalty shot and obviously they tied the score."

"I felt like we played against 12 people instead of 11 and I feel my team was robbed by the official. It was too arbitrary at that time for him to call the penalty shot."

South led 2-1 at the time of the penalty kick.

But the referee did make the call and North's Christie Mack booted the tying goal that forced the first overtime period.

"I don't think the goal was scored in any extra time," said Guido Regelbrugge, North's coach. "I didn't think there was any extra time allotted. There was nothing said about the time or that particular play after the game. It was unfortunate a team had to lose this type of game."

Regelbrugge thought the key play was a hand ball.

"There was a player in front and in back of Felicia (Paluzzi) so it was tough to tell what she would have done with the ball," he said. "There was no doubt it was a hand ball. We got lucky to tie it because I don't know if she would have scored, but she would have had a play on it."

After two scoreless overtime periods, both teams battled in two, five-minute sudden death overtimes. Because no goals were scored in those periods, the shoot-out took place. Both teams scored three times in the first round, and twice in the second, but North got two goals to South's one in the final shoot-out.

The winning goal was credited to Mack.

North took a 1-0 lead on Paluzzi's goal, but back-to-back goals by Sarah Foley and Erin Lalley gave the Blue Devils a 2-1 lead in the second half.

North's Kelly Konsler moves in on the ball.

Lady Knights take 7-0 win

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

Carrie Birgbauer had seen very little varsity action, but after her two-goal performance in University Liggett School's 7-0 soccer win over Lutheran East she's got a permanent spot on David Backhurst's squad.

Birgbauer, who had played most of the season at center defender for the jayvee team, scored twice in the first half as ULS ran to a 6-0 halftime lead in the first round of district play.

Heather Heide's 13th goal of the season closed out the scoring in the second half.

With the win, ULS advanced to the second round of district play against Lakeview (May 23 after press time), a team it beat 2-1 last year to win the district championship.

"Carrie's goal really set the tone early," said Backhurst, whose team is now 10-5-2 overall and ranked No. 5 in Class C-D. "It really gave us a lift, particularly because we had tried three or four people in the center mid-field position and they didn't work out."

The vacancy was created when Sarah Haggarty went down with an ankle injury.

"It's very gratifying that Carrie just stepped in and did the job," Backhurst said.

P-R Stark connected on back-to-back goals to give the Lady Knights a 3-0 lead, and subsequent goals by Katie Tompkins, Beth Paul and Birgbauer gave ULS the 6-0 margin.

"Three of our first five goals were scored on perfect corner kicks," Backhurst said. "In fact, the kicks were just like you design them and I'm not so sure we've executed them that well in practice."

"We did a lot of things right," Backhurst said. "We had a big lead in the second half so we decided to back off some and really prepare for the Lakeview match.

"In the first half we came out strong and just kind of coasted. I didn't want the kids to get sloppy and they didn't."

Goalies Beth Weyhing, who played the first half, and Dana Roach combined to give the Lady Knights their ninth shutout in 10 victories. Overall, ULS has given up only 14 goals on the season.

Haggarty, who has been out for three weeks, may return Saturday, May 26 if ULS advances to the district championship game.

"I'm keeping my fingers crossed that we can get her back," Backhurst said.

If Haggarty returns, what happens to Birgbauer?

"Oh, don't worry," Backhurst said, "we'll find a spot for her somewhere."

Ehresman, Schultz steal regional track show at South

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

South's Karen Ehresman and North's Laurin Schultz proved that they are two of the state's finest track athletes May 19 at the track regional at South.

Ehresman and Schultz will represent their respective teams at the state meet June 2, but will also be running head-to-head.

In the meet, South finished second with 76 points and North took fourth with 66.

The top two finishers in each race qualified for the state competition.

Ehresman lowered her own school records, placing first in the 100 hurdles (15.4) and second in the 300 hurdles (46.8). She also joined Tere Gavin, Robyn Scofield and Leslie Arbaugh to place second in the 400 (51.6 ties record) and 800 relays (1:48.8).

Ehresman also became the first South girl to qualify in the maximum four events.

"This was not only a great day for Karen," said South coach Steve Zaranek, "but the entire team. I was extremely pleased with the victory because we really beat some fine teams."

Including Port Huron, which had beaten South handily earlier in the season.

Also qualifying for the state meet for South were Jenny Williams (high jump) and Claudine DuPont (3200 run).

South also got points from Arbaugh (400 run, 61.1), Heidi Wise (800 run, 2:29), Sandy Dierkes (3200, 12:25), Kathleen Monaghan (long jump, 14 feet 7 inches), and the 3200 relay team of DuPont, Wise, Erica Mondro and Amy Balok.

Schultz, a senior who has carried the team all season, qualified by winning the discus (103 feet 11 inches), the 800 run (2:21.8), and she also placed second in the 1600 run with a time of 5:27.9. Schultz's day also included a leg of the two-mile relay team that took first. Running with Schultz were Katie Loeher, Hope Peters and Anne Dakmak. The team will also run in the state finals.

Linda Krieg also had an outstanding day, taking fourth in the discus (98-7), and fifth in the shot put (32-11). In the 1600 run, freshman Jessica McLalin took third (5:31.3).

"The kids who I knew would come through for us did," said North coach Charles Buhagiar. "I am pleased with our performance, and I can't say enough about the way Laurin performed."

The Missing LINC
LINC is a non-profit organization whose purpose is to place goods no longer needed by individuals and businesses into the hands of metropolitan Detroit charitable agencies. If you have any items no longer of use to you, Operation LINC knows who can and will use them. Please call LINC at 882-6100

Spring has sprung and that signals cleaning season. After you have shuffled and sorted through your closets, drawers and attics, spring over to the LINC warehouse with some donations.

CHRISTLAND Prevention Outreach Program Center which provides community outreach, substance abuse and educational programs would like an OVERHEAD PROJECTOR.

EVEN though the seasons change some of the requests for goods never do. One ongoing need for many of our member organizations is CLOTHING for INFANTS and CHILDREN.

Those hard working women at United Sisters of Charity would like a TWIN BED for victims of a home burnout.

FURNITURE, LINENS, and HOUSEHOLD ITEMS seem to be things that are in great demand presently.

When your garage sale is over, bring the unsold items, to LINC. Just make a list of the things you plan to donate and fill out the tax deductible slip at the warehouse. Your generosity will profit you in more ways than one!

Do us a favor: mention LINC to a friend!

PLEASE HELPI We have two beautiful Calico kittens that were rescued from a gravel pit where they had been dumped by some uncaring person. Almost starved to death or on the verge of being buried under a load of gravel, the finder has nursed them back to health and they are beautiful, sweet and litter trained. Finder cannot keep them as she has a dog and cat already. Please call 884-3041 if you know anyone that can give these kittens the good home they deserve.

TO YOU IT'S A NUISANCE, TO YOUR DOG IT'S A DEATH THREAT!

Mosquito bites can be deadly to your dog. Mosquitoes can be carriers of heartworm disease, a potentially fatal disease that's been reported from almost every state in America.

And unfortunately, your dog can have the disease for a long time before any signs are even noticed.

Treating advanced heartworm disease can be dangerous and difficult. Prevention, however, is surprisingly simple.

Just take your dog to the veterinarian for a heartworm test. And ask about heartworm prevention and how convenient it can be.

Be sure to make an appointment today. Your dog's life could depend on it.

Protect your dog from heartworm disease. See your veterinarian right-away or call...

PLEASE DON'T DELAY! SPAY or NEUTER YOUR PET TODAY!

An altered pet is a healthier and happier companion. Also, it spares you the grief and pain of having puppies and kittens destroyed when no homes can be found. Countless numbers of sweet, innocent little ones are euthanized every day in shelters across the country because a pet wasn't spayed or neutered. If we cut down on the numbers of unwanted litters being born, we will also cut down on the number of abandoned, lost and unwanted animals to destroy.

WE WILL BE HAPPY TO PROVIDE ADVICE as well as a LIST OF ECONOMIC SERVICE SOURCES. Call us at: 891-7188

ALL THAT CLUTTER AROUND THE HOUSE GETTING HAIRY?

Try our spring cleaning short cut...
It's painless AND profitable! Before you start your spring cleaning, take an inventory of all those winter items and 'packed-aways' that you no longer want or need, and then place an ad in the Classifieds! That way, you can sell items and clear away clutter as you go...and then you can 'clean up' with all the cash you've made!
