Grandmother pedals from coast to coast to fulfill a dream

For Doris Mulligan, pedaling her bike from sea to shining sea was the fulfillment of a lifelong dream. It was an emotional trip, a fascinating trip, and one she'll never forget or regret.

But it's also a trip she doesn't plan on taking again.

Mulligan – who turns 61 this month – recently returned from the 3,400-mile, 47day, 13-state trek which raised $2,500 for the Children's Home of Detroit, where Mulligan works as a health center attendant.

Sponsored by the League of American Wheelmen, the trip was the second Pedal for Power event. In order to participate, a rider had to raise a minimum of $5,000 in pledges, half of which went to the league's law fund and the other half to the charity of the biker's choice.

On May 13, in Los Angeles, Mulligan and 65 other riders from all walks of life dipped their bicycle wheels in the Pacific Ocean and began their journey.

As each day began, the participants were given breakfast and a map to a destination some 80 or 100 miles away where dinner and a motel room were waiting for them.

"You could say we ate our way across America," Mulligan laughed. "But we burned it all off through all the riding we did."

Bikers could go on their own or ride with others, but they had to make it to their destination at a certain time or the organizers sent out the "sag wagon." "No one wanted to be sagged in," she said. "I was sagged in once, in Missouri in a pouring, drenching rain. It was hailing, too. It was only 16 miles I missed, but I more than made up for it by all the wrong turns I took on other days.'

Luckily, Mulligan had few problems with her bike, compared to others, some of whom had multiple flat tires. She was

Successful youth program faces uncertain future By John Minnis Assistant Editor

Juvenile offenders in the Pointes and Harper Woods may lose the opportunity to make amends and have a clean record due to the planned disbanding of the Family Life Education Council.

Last week FLEC officials announced that the 24-year-old, non-profit organization designed to help youths and their families

While FLEC offered a wide variety of programs, including a crisis hot line and legal aid, the one program that may be missed the most is the Youth Assistance Program. The program has received high praise from police youth officers.

"I think it's in jeopardy," said Woods youth officer Daniel Koerber, who is also a FLEC board member. He said the program up the rest of the tab. was extremely effective and he hoped that it could be salvaged. "I think that's the opinion of all the youth officers," he said.

The program serves youths from the five Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods. Each of the cities contributed to the FLEC program. The cities' contributions covered half the cost to run the program while donations or grants from other sources picked

C. Sartor, director of the youth program, said its annual cost is roughly $50,000. The cities have covered half the program costs for the current year, but FLEC is looking for funding for the rest of the year and for the coming year. Sartor said FLEC is currently negotiating to have the youth program picked up by an interested party, but she would not give more details of the talks.

The youth program provides a means for juvenile offenders to take responsibilty for their crimes and avoid the Wayne County Juvenile Court system and thus prevent having a criminal record.

screened before acceptance into the program. Minimum requirements are that they are from 6 to 16 years old, live in the Grosse Pointes or Harper Woods and be first-time offenders of non-violent crimes.

Ninety-five percent of the re-ferrals to the Youth Assistance Frogram come from the police departments. Last year 58 youths went through the pro-gram. So far, 28 juveniles have been through the program and 14 referrals are waiting to be processed, Sartor said.

The offenses of the youths include, but are not limited to, shoform some 15 hours of community service, usually at nursing homes and other institutions.

If the youths successfully complete the program, their records are expunged. If they fail to complete it, they are processed through the county juvenile system.

Koerber said FLEC's juvenile offender diversion program allowed the local communities to have some control over the correctional process involving their youths. That control may be lost if the program closes down along with FLEC and nothing is created to replace it.

of youths a year to it. If the FLEC program is discontinued, he said his department will have to set up a counseling program itself for juvenile offenders, which is what the department did before FLEC began its program.

Koerber said that in his experience the program has been very successful and that few youths counseled become repeat offenders.

Grosse Pointe City Public Safety Officer Ed Pelyak, one of several youth officers in the City, said the Youth Assistance Program does a far better job for Grosse Pointe youths than what would be done if they were sent downtown. He would like to see it continued.

The 48-year-old suspect at the Woods address is an employee Detroit Public Schools Granados said he thought the man was a custodian or maintenance worker with the school district. The 48-year-old suspect at the Van Dyke address is owner of four day care centers throughout Detroit, Granados said. The suspects' names and addresses are being withheld from publication until when and if they are charged and arraigned, per Grosse Pointe News policy. Along with the DEA and IRS, other agencies taking part in the investigation are U.S. Customs Service, Wayne County Sheriff's Department, Michigan State Police and the Troy Police Department. Woods police assisted in the execution of the search warrant at the Woods home.

Pointer of Interest The Hon. James A. Hathaway

By Pat Paholsky Editor

There were two things Wayne County Circuit Judge James A. Hathaway said he always wanted to do when he was growing up: become a lawyer and write.

James A. Hathaway

"My early aspirations were to use my legal background to write," he said.

Now with more than 30 years experience as a trial attorney and 18 years as a judge, Hathaway certainly has the legal background and the material.

'I've amassed a great deal of material on the law and its relationship to other disciplines," said Hathaway, who lives in Grosse Pointe Shores. "Hopefully one day . .

But Hathaway, who shed 50 pounds in the last four months, isn't slowing down just yet. Nor does he plan to even though he has decided not to run again when his seat is up in 1993.

The judge is an activist. He works to make things happen, not only within his profession, but for the community and for his church.

In recognition of his service to his profession and the community, Hathaway received the Msgr. Charles A. Malloy Award from the Catholic Lawyers Society recently. It's the highest honor accorded by the group. And even though he isn't comfortable talking about it, Hathaway is clearly pleased to be recognized by his peers.

The lifelong Detroiter graduated from Catholic Central High School, one of six boys in the family. He earned a bachelor's degree at the University of Detroit and then graduated from U of D Law School.

There was a war going on and Hathaway served in the Pacific as a Naval officer. He was about to be sent to Japan to operate a mine sweep when the Navy began looking for personnel who had legal training. Hathaway was sent to Harvard Business School.

After the war, Hathaway practiced as a trial attorney in courts in Michigan and other states. He served as public administrator for the state of Michigan and he was an arbitrator.

Hathaway also was a proctor in admiralty - a lawyer dealing with problems involving ships and sailors.

But his involvement extends beyond the law. He was appointed by President Harry Tru-burglaries, 3 car thefts plague Farms within week 7

Seven homes were burglarized in Grosse Pointe Farms within a week and three of the victims' cars were stolen.

2A

In the wake of the burglaries, police are urging residents to call if they hear or see anything suspicious and to take simple precautions that may prevent them from being victimized.

Sometime between 7:30 p.m. July 3 and 6:30 a.m. July 4, a home in the 200 block of Lewiston was broken into. The burglar got in by removing a screen and pushing open a window.

Money and car keys were taken from a kitchen table and some cabinets were searched. The buglar then made off with the stolen goods in the resident's 1987 Jeep Wagoneer.

On July 5 at 3:44 a.m., Detroit police in the 10th Precinct recovered the Wagoneer and arrests were made.

Police believe the suspects in the Farms burglary on Lewiston may be responsible for a burglary and attempted car theft in the 500 block of Lincoln in Grosse Pointe City at 3:55 a.m. July 4.

A resident at the Lincoln home arrived and found the doors to the house propped open and keys and items from the house were inside his parents' car. City police speculate that the resident returned home and scared away the thieves.

Three homes and a garage in the 300 block of Kerby were burglarized.

Sometime between 11 p.m. July 8 and 6 a.m. the following day, a Kerby home was broken into and cash and change taken. Entry into the home was gained through an unlocked rear door. The resident's credit cards were found on the ground in front of a nearby home.

A fourth block on Mack Avenue in Grosse Pointe Park will get streetscape improvements this year through the Tax Incentive Finance Authority.

TIFA plans call for streetscape improvements of the five blocks in the business area between Wayburn and Somerset. After this year's improvements to the Lakepointe-Beaconsfield block, the only stretch left to complete is between Maryland and Lakepointe.

The streetscape improvements include landscaping, concrete flower boxes, sidewalks and parking improvements.

The second Kerby house bur- lowing the burglary of a home in and windows and leaving lights glary occurred sometime between 10 p.m. July 7 and 8:30 a.m. the following day. The thief got in through a screen door and a sliding-glass door. The doors were shut but not locked. A gym bag containing golf shoes and accessories was taken and later found in front of a nearby home.

The garage burglary occurred sometime between 9:30 p.m. July 7 and 7:30 a.m. July 8. Two sets of golf clubs - men's and women's - and golf bags were taken. The resident said he closed the garage door at night but in the morning found it opened.

At the fourth Kerby burlgary, the resident's 1987 Toyota minivan was taken along with a video camera, a videocassette recorder, a television, a 35mm camera, cash from a wallet and keys to the minivan.

The theft occurred sometime between 10:30 p.m. July 7 and 7:15 the following morning. A resident at the home reported getting a suspicious phone call at 2:30 a.m. with the caller giving a name and saying he was sorry. The resident immediately hung up.

A home in the 400 block of Mount Vernon was broken into and the resident's car stolen sometime between 2:30 and 8 a.m. July 9. The burglar got in by prying open a corner of a window and reaching in and opening a rear door. Taken were a 12-piece silver set, a 35mm camera, a 12 string guitar and an electric guitar. A purse with credit cards, cash and keys to the residents' 1985 Mercury Topas were also taken, along with the car.

the 400 block of Manor sometime between 11:30 p.m. July 8 and 7 a.m. the following day. Taken from the house were a personal computer and a leather wallet containing credit cards. At 11:30 p.m. the resident heard a noise but dismissed it thinking it was the cat.

Farms Detective Michael Mc-Carthy said the method of operation in all the burglaries are similar with the thieves finding easy, quiet ways to get into the homes. The thieves take wallets, cash and car keys that are usually left on the kitchen table or counter.

Residents can take easy precautions, such as locking doors

Board seeks ways to trim budget Surfeit of newspapers causes

There was some good news and some bad news at the school board meeting Monday night.

The good news is that state cuts to the Grosse Pointe School District amount to $700,000 less than what was originally thought.

The bad news is that the board must still pare $1.6 million - nearly 3 percent - from the 1990-91 budget.

Taxpayers, though, should be heartened because the board expressed a commitment to keeping the possibly inevitable tax increase to the absolute minimum.

As part of the state's new budget, the Legislature passed an eleventh-hour bill which shifts money from rich school districts to poor school districts in an attempt to equalize perpupil spending,

Most of the cuts come in the areas of Social Security payments to teachers and categorical funding, which includes items such as special education, gifted and talented programming, vocational education and

The board discovered the extent of the cuts on July 1, the first day of the schools' fiscal year. Originally officials believed the amount of the cuts was $2.3 million, but that figure included $700,000 the district already knew it wouldn't get. That leaves the final cuts at $1.6 million. Christian Fenton, assistant superintendent for business affairs, outlined five possible options for the board: • Raise taxes an additional 3.5

percent, generating the entire $1.6 million;

• Take the entire amount out of the general fund equity which currently has some $3 million;

• Make cuts in the amount of $1.6 million; or

• A combination of all three. The board directed Superintendent Ed Shine to come up with a recommendation which includes parts of all three options.

"I think the board should go on record that we will do everything but increase taxes if we could possibly avoid it," said

Board trustees expressed concern over what types of cuts would be made, and were reluctant to give Shine a definitive figure for the cuts and the potential tax increase.

But Shine said officials were committed to keeping the cuts as far away from the students as possible.

The board also discussed the matter of how the money would be recollected from the schools, each of which received an allotment of money to budget for its building.

Shine did say, though, that interviewing and staffing will continue as outlined by the budget adopted in June. The positions above and beyond the classrooms, which include speech and language therapist and social workers, will be put on hold temporarily.

Shine also wrote a letter to Gov. James J. Blanchard expressing his concern of the bill and the timing, adding that if the state expects sound fiscal actions from school boards, the boards expect the same from the state.

He also offered to meet with the governor to discuss the matter. Blanchard has 14 days from the day he sees the bill to sign it.

Two years ago - when Great Lakes Paper Co. could afford to pay for used newspaper - people dropped off their newspapers to the tune of 100 tons a day.

Today, there is almost none dropped off at the company's Roseville plant.

For 20 years, St. Matthew's Church on Harper and Whittier provided a newspaper drop-off site for people in the area. Although some years raised more money than others, the church collected some $10,000 a year for its athletic programs.

A few weeks ago, the church followed the lead of University Liggett School which closed its bin because it was no longer getting any money for the newspapers.

In fact, they had to pay Great Lakes Paper to take it.

"We have to charge them to pick it up so we can cover our costs," said Lee Horwitz, senior marketing executive for Great Lakes Paper. "The problem is that the mills (that use the newsprint to make recycled paper) are getting so much of it for free that they're not willing to pay for it."

ment's lack of planning for the problem. Too much newspaper is being collected, and not enough mills have the capacity to use it.

He also contends that despite the big recycling push, there is just as much used newspaper going to the landfills as there was two years ago.

"It's not a very rosy picture," he said. "There was a better system before they put in the incentives. All they've done is put the Boy Scouts — who have been re-cycling since World War II — out of business, along with all those churches who got a little income, and the retiree who picked up some extra spending money.'

But what can people do? Horwitz says: "Write your congressman."

Fran Schonenberg, president of Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling, says there is a problem, but there are things the environmentally conscious can do.

"Philosophically, we are saying, 'yes, continue to save papers," she said. "And we should be very, very appreciative to Grosse Pointe Park for their recycling center."

Newspapers can be taken to the St. Clair Shores Civic Arena Horwitz blames the govern- Mack, on the first Saturday of

"But the best thing we can do is to buy things made with recycled paper," she said. "Even if it's just toilet paper or paper towels.'

Boxes - such as those for toothpaste and breakfast cereal that are gray inside are made with recycled paper.

The purchase of such products serves a two-fold purpose: It supports businesses which support recycling and it creates a market for recycled paper. Creating that market is necessary to completing the recycling circle.

Schonenberg also suggests people call a veterinarian or the Humane Society to see if they need newspapers to line their cages.

"It's a second use, which is better than nothing," she said.

Farms seeks more details on Cottage expansion plan By Dan Jarvis Staff Writer

The proposed expansion of Cottage Hospital now hinges on statistics.

At Monday night's meeting of the Grosse Pointe Farms Mayor's Advisory Planning Committee, members of the committee and audience questioned the need for expansion of the hospital's current emergency care facilities.

Committee members told hospital officials if they want approval for expansion, the hospital must supply related statistics.

Included in the informal decision was a request for:

• The number of emergency patients served by the hospital over the past two years.

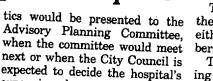

• A breakdown of how many of those patients are from Grosse Pointe Farms, the other Grosse Pointes and how many are from other communities.

• The percentage of patients turned away due to a busy or full emergency room.

• The total number of emergency beds at the three local hospitals (St. John, Bon Secours and Cottage).

• The number of times that St. John and Bon Secours closed their emergency facilities and for tics would be presented to the Advisory Planning Committee, when the committee would meet next or when the City Council is Several committee members questioned whether the emergency care needs of the Farms and surrounding communities requires expansion of Cottage. Others voiced opinions that those needs are currently being met at the three hospitals.

The proposed expansion plan includes moving the emergency care entrance to the west, or Ridge Road side of the hospital, expansion of the emergency unit almost to the sidewalk along Muir Road and construction of an L-shaped, third-story skywalk which will connect the hospital with both the Pierson Clinic and the parking deck across Muir Road from the hospital.

The plan calls for two variances in the city's community service zoning ordinance.

First, the emergency room expansion will be within three feet of the Muir Road sidewalk, while the ordinance requires a 25-foot setback.

Second, a proposed canopy on the front, or Kercheval side, also exceeds the 25-foot setback and requires a variance in the zoning ordinance before approval can be granted by the City Council.

Neither hospital or city officials were able to give a timetable estimate on when the statis-

State imposes budget cut on G.P. schools

Tn its faltering efforts to equalize perpupil spending in the state's school dis-Ltricts, the Legislature has just imposed a $50 million cut in aid to the state's wealthier districts, including Grosse Pointe.

The Grosse Pointe's share of the cut is $1.6 million for the fiscal year that began July 1. That figures out to a reduction of almost 3 percent in the district's $59 million budget.

The timing couldn't have been much worse. School districts operate on a July 1-June 30 fiscal year and the Grosse Pointe district, like others throughout the state, had just adopted its budget for the current year before the state acted, in effect, to impose its cut.

The state action at this time came as a surprise, although the district had been aware of the legislative negotiations over the revision of state school funding that have been going on for several years.

The new legislation did not, however, impose a restriction on local funding that had been discussed in Lansing and feared in Grosse Pointe. That proposal would have put a cap on local millage that could be imposed to replace the loss of state aid.

The state legislation leaves the district with at least four alternatives to offset the cut in state aid: raise the local tax levy, cut programs, spend some of the $2 million in its fund equity account for operating expenses or use a combination of several of the alternatives.

Since the district already is operating at less than its maximum authorized levy, it could raise virtually all of the needed funds by a millage boost without a vote of the people. But whatever decision the school board makes with respect to the recommendation of Superintendent Edward Shine, implementation will not be easy in these cost-conscious times.

For that reason, speculation is that the tax rate will not be raised but that some programs will be cut and some money will be taken from the fund equity account to offset the loss of state aid.

The board is expected to take its time in evaluating the superintendent's recommendations before making its decision. Because the board has until $\check{\mathbf{S}}\mathbf{ept.}$ 15 to set its tax rate, it is unlikely to act until an August meeting.

The $50 million to be cut from the state's wealthier districts will be diverted to distressed districts such as Detroit and Flint which have low property values and high millage rates. The additional state funds will be used in such districts to raise their lower-than-average amounts of spending per pupil.

Most of the Grosse Pointe district's loss in state aid will come from a cut in the state's reimbursement for the district's payment of FICA or Social Security taxes for the local school system's employees. Other cuts will come in categorical aids which include special education, transportation, vocational education and gifted and talented programming.

Few reasonable people will argue with efforts to equalize educational opportunities in Michigan by increasing state funding for poorer districts so that they can at least meet minimum standards.

However, the Grosse Pointe Board of Education, the school administration and, in our opinion, the majority of local residents object to proposals to limit the amount of money local districts can raise by local taxes voted by the people.

In our opinion, such a limitation would be likely to end the efforts of lighthouse districts such as ours in Grosse Pointe to improve education through experimental and innovative programs which, if they prove beneficial, often can serve all districts in the state.

Permitting local districts to enrich their programs if the people are willing to vote the necessary funding better serves the cause of education than any attempt to force conformity in district spending. Such a plan would tend to support egalitarianism, not the excellence the people of Grosse Pointe are proud to claim for the Grosse Pointe school system.

cratic nomination for Congress in the 13th District, is making a strong appeal for support from the Republican Pointes.

After unsuccessfully challenging Mayor Coleman Young of Detroit in the last two city elections, Barrow in effect is taking on the Young Democratic machine for the third time because the mayor has endorsed Barbara-Rose Collins, a Detroit councilwoman, who is seeking the Congress' seat.

Barrow, nephew of the late world champion boxer, Joe Louis, contends that with six black candidates in the contest, the Detroit vote will be diluted and that the Grosse Pointes could provide the winning margin.

Backing up his talk with action, Barrow campaigned over the July Fourth holiday in the Park and the City, the two Pointes that are in the 13th District, and expects to continue to seek both financial and voting support through direct mail distribution of literature, phone solicitations, doorto-door campaigning and sending absentee ballots to every 13th District resident.

Barrow woos GOP voters with the arguthe proposed airport expansion can stop it with their support of his candidacy.

Enlarging on that point, he says Barbara-Rose Collins, the Detroit councilwoman who has been endorsed by Young, will be "a clone, not an independent," and points out she already has backed the Young plan on the airport expansion issue.

Barrow is optimistic about his chances. Citing his own poll on name recognition, Barrow said his name was recognized by 99.6 of those queried, Collins was identified by 82 percent and the other candidates ran far behind the two leaders.

In his view, the other point that determines voting is the candidates' stand on the issues. He believes he will win support with his programs to attack the high infant mortality rate, to win congressional approval for improved health care, to make available more affordable housing, to increase economic redevelopment, to meet environmental problems and, in general, to enhance the quality of life in the entire district.

It's an impressive program and he is an impressive candidate who ought to do well in the Pointes as well as in the city of Detroit.

Comerica deal in trouble?

ith both Detroit dailies now expressing doubts about the subsidy involved, the Comerica deal to acquire the Ford Auditorium as a site for a new office building is still arousing strong opposition.

With a council hearing coming up on July 16 and a vote on July 18, it is also clear that the Detroit City Council critics are still seeking at least improved terms before approving the deal.

Other opponents, including other commercial interests as well as professional architects and planners, simply do not want the city to give up the Ford Auditorium and the riverfront property involved under any circumstances.

The Grosse Pointe News believes that the most reprehensible part of the entire deal is the cavalier attitude of the city administration toward the Ford family erhaps the explanation for President Bush's reversal of his pledge, "No new taxes," lies in the old saying, "Misery loves company.

Newsweek reported that the latest property tax assessment on the president's summer home at Kennebunkport, Maine, has boosted his taxes to $23,206, up from $17,832 last year.

Even by Grosse Pointe standards, that represents a hefty tax increase but it reflects the doubling of land values in Kennebunkport in the last eight years. The assessment on the president's compound rose from $892,000 in 1982 to $2.2 million this year.

Like other property owners, the president has to take the bitter (higher taxes) with the sweet (higher land values).

which with its company foundation and its dealers contributed the funds for the Ford Auditorium.

William Clay Ford's letter to Council President Maryann Mahaffey makes it clear that the Ford family is "disturbed" and "distressed" by the proposed demolition of the Ford Auditorium. He concluded his letter this way:

"You can be assured that any possible future gifts by the Ford family to the City will be influenced by the fate of the auditorium.'

In view of the Ford family's many contributions to the cultural life of the Detroit metropolitan area, that statement should not be taken lightly by the city administration. In a way, perhaps, it also serves as an offset to the Comerica warning about pulling out of the city.

In fact, one of the worst features of the deal is the bank's threat to move out if it isn't able to win approval of the proposed riverfront site. That is the same kind of warning that Southwest Airlines has issued to the critics of the proposed expansion of the Detroit City Airport.

If municipalities bow to such threats, where will such deals finally end? How far will the city's concessions go? Is there any limit to the benefits other developers and commercial interests will seek in the future, once these precedents have been established?

True, Detroit and Michigan need more jobs and more investments in creative enterprises but the public interest does not require that the city administration buckle before every threat. Instead, the benefits of any deal must be weighed against the costs to the community in each case.

In the Comerica case, the evidence to date indicates the public is getting the shaft and the bank and its developer are getting the major benefits.

For the record To the Editor:

We do not wish to contribute to the divisiveness that a small minority in the community seem to want to create regarding the Grosse Pointe War Memorial Association. However, we feel that it is necessary to respond when they impugn the integrity of Mayor Fromm, the Grosse Pointe Farms City Council, and Grosse Pointe War Memorial President Mark Weber.

Their accusations are totally untrue. To set the record straight, there was NO discussion or commitment, implied or otherwise, from anyone on the council regarding rezoning of the property at 40 Lakeshore. This matter will be addressed at the appropriate time and place according to established municipal procedures. Neither the mayor nor other members of the council were aware of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial Association's purchase before it was an accomplished fact.

We did not make rezoning a condition of purchase; the seller did not make residential usage a condition of sale. We look upon the purchase as an investment in the community which will be beneficial under any circumstances.

It is the responsibility of the Board of Directors to consider the mandate of the donors of the property to serve ALL members of the community. To do so properly, additional space is reauired.

Memories To the Editor:

Congratulations to you and your staff for a very interesting and excellently done 50th anniversary issue. It took me all week to read, but I read every word! My memories of Grosse Pointe go back to 1948 and many people recalled things and places I had forgotten about. I also enjoyed the reflections from earlier years.

Many reflections mentioned playing in the Pine Woods. I'm curious to know where that was located. Also, others referred to the Cabbage Patch. Can someone tell me what area that referred to?

Thanks again for the great gift of memories you gave us with the special anniversary issue.

'Hey! Let's get Mom'

In spite of the rivalry thing, I often suspect siblings are in cahoots.

They get together frequently, secretly, to divide up the responsibility for making their parents miserable.

"I gave Mom AND Dad a pile of worries from 1967 through 1970," says Sibling No. 1, for instance. "You cover Mom from January 1971 until Sibling No. 3 gets born in 1975, and I'll do Dad during that time."

Sibling No. 3 gets into gear mere hours after her birth.

"If I'm colicky for the first three months of my life and drive 'em both up the wall with the crying and fussing and carrying on, you guys have to take care of making 'em crazy while I learn to walk and talk." Later on, when they go to school, siblings divide the responsibilities into smaller time segments.

"I'll throw tantrums until Mom buys me a pair of gerbils and you can take care of the music department by choosing to play the cello.

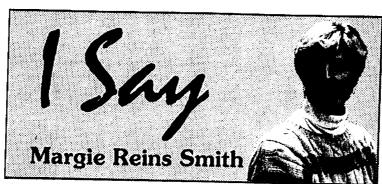

Cellos, of course, have to be driven to and from school and practice and rehearsals and performances. Gerbils, of course, have babies. They have to be fed, cleaned, buried. Still later, the three siblings get together:

"I'll throw up on the piano keys." "I'll throw up over Mom's shoulder, while she's driving on I-94.

"I'll throw up when we get to the shoe store, in a shoebox, while I'm trying on boots."

When they become teenagers, they divvy up the fun even more creatively.

"I'll take Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays, if you do weekends," says Sibling No. 2, at about age 14. Sibling No. 1, who is 16 and has just gotten her driver's license, agrees.

Sibling No. 2, meanwhile, is perfecting her conversational skills. She talks on the phone for eight hours after school each day; more on weekends. As her best friend leaves our house at 5:45 p.m., Sibling No. 2 says,

"Call me when you get home. She does. She also calls at 6:10, 6:35, 7:14, 8:06, 9:33, 9:58 and 10:15 p.m.

I try to consider this phone-athon as a developmental stage. These children are honing their social skills. Sort of ... honing by phoning.

Now that two siblings are grown up and the youngest one is well-established in high school, they have once again renegotiated the territory and decided how to keep Mom off-center.

"I'll ... uh, borrow Mom's best I wanted to help mold some good (and only) blue shoes and forget to put them back. Then, when she's standing in her closet - in a hurry - dressed in blue - the only choices she'll have will be the white canvas running shoes or the pink patent leather flats or the red rubber flip-flops." "I'll start smoking.

"I'll go on a crazy diet and appear malnourished for three months."

"I'll leave my curling iron on - in the bathroom - teetering on the edge of a sink full of water - for six days in a row next week.'

"When I bring Mom's car home, I'll turn off the engine while the radio is blaring at top volume on my rock 'n' roll station. Then, when she turns on the ignition, that blast of sound will clear out her sinuses."

I always wanted boys. I wanted to get to know some boys from the ground up, so to speak. ones - suitable for female companionship at a later date.

and a characterized as a second

But daughters. Ah. Who can top 'em?

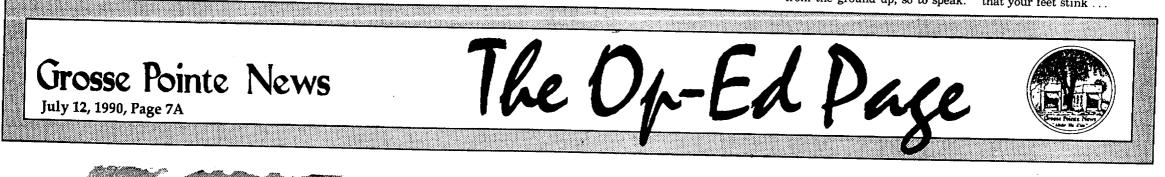

Who but a daughter would play contentedly on the family room floor for four hours with dolls whose shoes are only onequarter inch long?

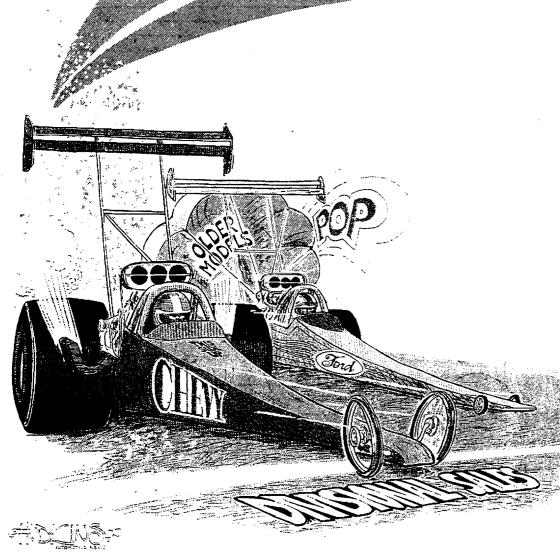

Who but a daughter would get a kick out of receiving a purse as a birthday gift, then use it to carry her baseball mitt to practice?

Who but a daughter would pet a worm?

Who but a daughter would tell you (with gusto, in front of a room full of strangers) when you have lipstick on your teeth or toilet paper on your shoe?

Or that your cellulite is wobbling ... or your choice of music sucks ... or you don't know how to make decent pancakes ... or that your feet stink

Safety first

The sixth grade safety patrol kids from Our Lady Star of the Sea held a surprise party and breakfast in honor of their safety lady, Diane Brown.

Brown is the crossing guard at the Morningside-Fairford intersection in front of the school. According to teacher Patty Stumb of Grosse Pointe Woods, Brown was honored by the kids because of her above-and-beyondthe-call dedication and love throughout the year.

Brown was mentioned in this column last winter because she was spotted at her post early one blustery morning, shoveling snow before the kids arrived.

Burp . . .

Camille Molloy of Grosse Pointe Farms surprised her kids Claire, Brigid and Brian on the Fourth of July at the festivities held at Greenfield Village.

The children entered the pieeating contest. They didn't win.

Mom entered the adult pieeating contest. With two big slurps, she beat 14 men and two women by gulping down the mostest the fastest. Mom went home with a huge blue ribbon. Husband Tom missed it all.

Letters

Terrific job To the Editor:

Congratulations on a job well done!

I am writing a little late for inclusion in the beautiful 50th anniversary edition of the Grosse Pointe News, but want to extend a special thanks to everyone involved in making that edition so special.

I wish I had been aware that letters were called for which would make up the "Reflections" columns but I'll get my 2 cents in now by expressing my pleasure with the terrific job you did on this anniversary issue.

Since moving to Grosse Pointe in 1932 at the age of 10 years, I have experienced so many of the things mentioned in the "Reflections" letters and other specialty columns. Reading the special edition from front to back gave me a thrill. I will cherish the paper in my collection of memorabilia.

I remember with mixed emotions the bike rides along Jefferson Avenue parallel to the ragweed-infested fields at that time which caused continued attacks of hay fever and asthma; particularly I remember the roller skating we enjoyed every day after school into the evening hours on Somerset when the block was closed off for our safety; Tony Koinis and his wonderful carmel corn; Luchins Candy Store on Maryland Avenue; and many other special experiences that were jogged out of the corners of my memory.

One memory not mentioned which occurred in 1923, I believe, was when I entered "high school" at the seventh grade level, and it became necessary for some classes to be held in the school building on St. Clair Avenue. We attended afternoon sessions there. Now, of course, that building is devoted to the administration offices of the Grosse Pointe School System, housing our son as assistant superintendent of business and support services.

Thank you again for all the fond memories of life in Grosse Pointe. We saw to it that our two children had the advantage of the Grosse Pointe School System and thank God for that privilege. Janice Lathrop Fenton Harper Woods

Airport To the Editor:

Three months ago I entered into a mailing campaign requesting appropriate federal and state legislators and agencies, including Southwest Airlines, to oppose expansion of Detroit City Airport and to propose its reversion to pre-1988 status. Readers of the Grosse Pointe News and their neighbors may be interested in the results.

I'm still hoping to hear from Riegle and from the FAA; also from Gov. Blanchard and state Sen. DiNello to whom I wrote in mid-June. State Sen. DiNello is chairman, State Regulatory Affairs Committee, whose responsibility it would be to report out of committee DCA opposition bills introduced into the state Legislature by state Sen. Kelly.

State Sen. Kelly, state Rep. Bryant and U.S. Rep. Hertel responded in opposition to DCA expansion. Levin's response indicated that he takes his agency oversight responsibilities very seriously and did not directly address the issue of DCA expansion.

Mr. Ricks of Southwest Airlines supported his company's position and was quite diplomatic. He did say that neither the size nor scope of the airport nor Southwest's anticipated level of operations will justify my alarm. Obviously, he represents only the Southwest position and not that of other airlines.

He makes no reference to the change of flight path from Windsor to the Grosse Pointes. Also, he makes no reference to the fact that, since inception, additional flights have been added, and hours of operation and days of operation have been extended.

Subsequently he indicated that there is local support for the expansion. I wonder how much.

Our federal representative, our state senator and our state representative who responded in opposition to DCA expansion need the help of their counterparts at governmental levels. Probably those who have not responded are in favor of permitting their agencies to adopt and justify positions in the matter before they will make any commitment. Follow-up correspondence to those who haven't responded is in order.

The MDOT response indicates that it participates in a process known as the Master Plan, which must be updated in order for DCA to be eligible for any federal or state funding. It states that MDOT is currently at an "early stage" in that process. I quote, "First, studies have shown MDOT that an expanded DCA could fill many roles - besides providing air carrier services to large jet aircraft. (The accen-tuations are mine). Convenient access to east side and downtown commercial interests by businesses using corporate aircraft.

• Access to educational facilities by those seeking careers in aviation and aeromechanical engineering, and employment in these areas.

Grosse Pointe Park Public Safety Officer Ann Hoffman swam her way to Edmonton, Alberta, recently.

Well, she actually didn't swim to the Canadian city. Rather, she competed against police officers, state troopers, federal officers and others in the state's Law Enforcement Olympics in Saginaw June 19 and 20.

And swim she did.

She took five gold medals in individual competitions and two silvers in relays as a member of the Michigan State Police team.

Her golds were in 50-meter butterfly, freestyle and breast stroke competitions and in 100meter freestyle and medley. She competed against fellow female law enforcement officers in the individual events. The state po-graduated from North in 1977. She has been keeping in shape, though. She said she swims a couple of hours a day.

The practice paid off and earned medals for herself and pride for the Park department.

Because of her outstanding finish at the state competitions, Hoffman will go to the International Law Enforcement Olympics in Edmonton July 29 through Aug. 4.

"Then comes completion of the master plan process including the effects of:

 Relocation of businesses and residents.

· Related events and development of mitigation measures.'

The last paragraph states that only after all this work will it be appropriate to make a final decision.

Segments: "Let me assure you that further development of DCA will not be supported unless a significant benefit to the residents of the surrounding area can be found." "If development is undertaken, it will be done in a way which minimizes the impacts on residents and business in the area." "We are confident that our partners, the city of Detroit and the FAA are also concerned with these issues and their resolution.'

It appears that "environmental effects," such as soil, toxic materials, noise levels, wildlife and historic items are receiving minimal consideration - because they all appear together in one sentence of the response.

Condensation of the response would seem to indicate that "significant benefit to residents of the surrounding area" will be the catchall phrase upon which a final decision will be based. The phrases "possible reduction of property values" and "related events will be studies and mitigation measures developed as appropriate," also say "Look out! Here it comes!'

Is it possible the MDOT is trying to delay selling the idea of DCA expansion to the people until after the elections? The tie-in of economic activity as a positive effect upon residents seems to leave DCA opposition fortified only with the objection "noise." The Grosse Pointes, Harper Woods, Warren and Madison Heights positions are most likely a part of "related events and develop-ment of mitigation measures."

There is now a chairman, DCA Advisory Commission. Now may be the time to engage a qualified lobbyist for the opposition.

It has been a lesson in psychology to note how quickly the number, hours and days of DCA flights have increased since the original plan took effect. It didn't take the FAA long to divert overflights from Windsor to the Grosse Pointes. Little attention seemed to be paid to Warren, Harper Woods and others.

It's going to take more local public reaction to prevent this "psychology of easing into the ultimate objective' from becoming a reality.

The Grosse Pointe Woods City Council is to be commended for its resolution of April 16 opposing further expansion of DCA and for the July 3 distribution to all residents of a related Fact Sheet. The information contained in the Fact Sheet, alone, should stimulate residents to action: (1) through communication with elected state and federal officials and agencies and (2) through remembering the problem at election time.

Barrow campaigns hard for congressional seat in 13th

By John Minnis Assistant Editor

10A

This is fourth in a series of profiles of candidates squaring off in the Aug. 7 Democratic primary for the 13th Congressional District, which includes Grosse Pointe Park and City.

Two-time Detroit mayoral candidate Tom Barrow is again challenging the status quo this time by running for the 13th District congressional seat.

After being defeated by powerful Mayor Coleman Young in 1985 and 1989, Barrow and his campaign staff are experienced and ready to make a bid for the U.S. representative seat being vacated by George Crockett, who is retiring.

Barrow, 41, boasts 99.6 percent name recognition in the district, according to his staff's own surveys. He said the two Grosse Pointes are going to be pivotal parts of the primary.

He pointed out that with six black candidates, the Detroit vote is going to be spread out among the many candidates, making it possible for the Pointes' voters to push one candidate into the lead.

"The people of Grosse Pointe can have a greater impact than they can imagine," Barrow said. He has been campaigning

U.S. representative seat being hard in the Pointes, including vacated by George Crockett, who going from door to door. On July 4, he rode in a parade in the Park and then throughout the Pointes. He went to Windmill Pointe Park and shook hands with hundreds of residents.

Adamantly against the proposed expansion of Detroit City Airport, Barrow is being backed by the recently formed Citizens Against Airport Expansion, which is an offshoot of another grassroots organization, City Airport Opposition Association.

More than any other election this year, Barrow believes the 13th District campaign will have the biggest effect on whether the proposed airport expansion is approved. He points out that it would be very likely for a major airport expansion, which would be largely financed with federal funds, to be forced on a congressman who didn't want it in his district.

"If you want to stop the airport ... then don't sit this one out," he said about the Democratic primary election. "The decision on the airport will be made in August."

Barrow said that whoever wins the Democratic primary will win in November. Though there are GOP candidates for the congressional seat, a Republican hasn't represented the 13th District since 1948, and most observers believe the Democratic monopoly will continue.

A pilot for 15 years, Barrow said he opposes the proposed expansion because he said residents and businesses are being forced to move against their wishes. He also doesn't think residents should be subjected to having the large planes overhead that the proposed expansion would accommodate.

Barrow also charged that the proposed airport expansion is a move toward getting casino gambling in Detroit, which has long been promoted by Young. "That's where he's going," Barrow said. "There's no doubt in my mind."

As a congressman, should he be elected, Barrow said he would like to get committee assignments dealing with finances and budgets. He said he wants to see more federal funds coming back to the 13th District. One thing he would like to do as a U.S. representative is to revise tax laws to encourage investment.

Barrow is a certified public accountant and president of Barrow, Aldridge & Co., which is the largest minority-owned CPA firm in the state, according to his campaign literature. Before starting his own firm, Barrow was a senior auditor with Arthur Andersen & Co.

He is on the boards of directors of many civic organizations and businesses, including chairman of the board of New Center Hospital and Citizens for Detroit's Future, a grassroots organization dedicated to improving the quality of life in Detroit. He earned his bachelor's degree and his master's degree in business administration at Wayne State University.

Concerning the redrawing of congressional districts in the state following the 1990 census and the expected loss of two U.S. representative seats from Michigan, Barrow said he has no problem with all the Pointes being once again put together in one district. Currently the Pointes are divided between the 13th and 14th districts. Barrow is concerned, though, that minority dominance of the district not be lost if suburban communities are brought into the district to make up for population loss.

July 12, 1990

Grosse Pointe News

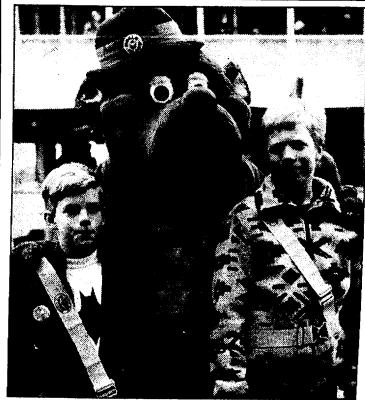

If the voters send him to Washington, D.C., Barrow said he would be a fence-mender and someone who can work with others to get things done for the entire district. "I'll represent everybody (in the district)," he said.

Moreover, if elected to Congress, Barrow believes he will have some influence in Detroit, particularly at City Hall.

"As a congressman, the city administration has to talk to me," he said. "They can't ignore me."

Woods builder/developer to restore 'workman's cottage'

After 17 years of waiting, Grosse Pointe Woods builder and developer John E. Pierce is finally getting a crack at his dream house.

For others, the nearly 100year-old "workman's cottage" at St. Clair and St. Paul in Grosse Pointe City might be a money pit, but Pierce is looking forward to the challenge.

Pierce needed a small place for when his college-age children come home on weekends or holidays and for him and his wife, Susan, when they're not in northern Michigan or Florida on building projects for their company, John Pierce Associates. Any small home in the Pointes would have done nicely, but Pierce had his eye on the cottage.

"While it's a little more expensive," he said, "it's more fun, more rewarding."

He first looked at the house at 548 St. Clair 17 years ago. He wanted to buy it then, but the seller wasn't interested. Every few years since then he's talked to the owner about selling. Finally this year he struck a deal.

Pierce said the city is requiring some 25 things be done to bring the house up to code.

A successful builder/developer, real estate broker and insurer, Pierce had the resources to restore the historical dwelling and garage and bring them up to city code. He estimates he'll put about $30,000 into the house.

According to Jean Dodenhoff, curator of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society, movie star Mary Manning, who married developer Fred T. Wadsworth, decided in 1912-13 to build 32 of the sixroom, one-bath houses on Wadsworth property for workers and laborers, hence the name "workman's cottage." The cottages were rented for $25 a month.

A dozen of the original cottages are said to still exist, but Dodenhoff cannot confirm the number. Along with 548 St. Clair, another cottage still stands next door. In about 1936, one cottage was used as the Grosse Pointe Library. Another was used at one time for the Grosse Pointe City Hall and another was used for the Neighborhood Club gift shop.

The two-bedroom dwellings are built of solid granite blocks, which are still available today, though expensive. While the exterior is in very good shape and requires only scraping and painting, Pierce will need to find a place to buy some extra granite blocks. He's planning on adding 6 feet to the rear of the house for a bathroom off the largest bedroom.

Other than the addition and another modern bathroom off the kitchen, Pierce will be trying to restore the cottage to historical authenticity, and he is working with the historical society.

Experienced in both new construction and rehabilitation work, Pierce said there are trade-offs that have to be made. City codes have to be met for safety, and modern appliances are necessities today. He said the architectural integrity of the home will be maintained, and period colors, floors and wall covreplaced. erings will be used. In the kitchen, for example, the modern floor covering will be taken up and the maple planks restored to their original beauty. Likewise, the wall-to-wall carpeting will be torn up throughout the house.

The wet-plaster walls are in good shape with few cracks.

Open house

The nearly 100-year-old Manning workman's cottage will be open to the public for viewing on Sunday, July 15, from noon to 3 p.m. The cottage is at St. Clair and St. Paul. The address is 548 St. Clair.

Pierce suggested that the sturdy, granite-block construction may be the reason the house has held up so well.

For safety and comfort, the electrical wiring and service, plumbing and furnace have to be

There's even a greenhouse lean-to at the side of the house that was probably used by the original inhabitant for germinating and growing seedlings to be planted on the Wadsworth estate

While the house is historically fascinating, so is the original barn on the property.

The barn was built before the house and served as the home for the residents and their horses during the year or so before the cottage was completed, Pierce said.

The small loft upstairs that served as the original living quarters could make a great studio apartment, which is what one of Pierce's older children wants. Pierce, however, hasn't decided whether the apartment is worth the expense.

The barn, too, is in pretty good shape — at least the original heavy beam skeleton is. Some of the wooden siding needs replacing, and the lean-to in back is being torn down and replaced. The barn doesn't have enough depth to park cars, so Pierce will reconstruct the lean-to.

Pierce said he is going to keep the two pairs of heavy, carriagehouse-type hinged doors, but he will have special automatic openers installed.

"My wife says I'm more excited about the barn than the house," Pierce said, while pointing enthusiastically at a pulley still hanging in the peak. The pulley was used for lifting hay and feed up to the second-story loft.

Pierce said the city was ready to condemn the barn, but he convinced the officials that he could restore it. His own company is doing the work.

Also on the job is his son, Brit, who at age 16 is working his first summer in the family's construction business. He attends Grosse Pointe North High School.

11A

Pierce said he is starting his son the way he started out working for his father.

He said another son, J.D., discovered the historical significance of the house by accident. He was at the Grosse Pointe Historical Society doing some genealogy work when he spotted a map on the wall listing Grosse Pointe's sites of historical interest. No. 2 on the list was the house his father had just bought.

Pierce then checked with the society and agreed to work with it to maintain the historical integrity of the dwelling.

Despite record-breaking 98 degree heat, thousands of people came out to see the Grosse Pointe Park Civic Association Fourth of July Parade. Although this was the 15th annual, it was the first international parade with the addition of the Windsor Police Pipe Band.

In spite of its international status, this parade still remains a throwback to the good old days, when parades didn't take place down 10-lane major thoroughfares, but were neighborhood affairs, with horses, clowns, kids and perennial politicians kissing babies.

True to form, the Park's parade had it all: The Grosse Pointe Park Public Safety Mounted Division was there: Lt. Randy Cain brought his horse, Rebel's Mr. Shinn C (nicknamed Johnny), a purebred Missouri Foxtrotter. It seems that half the kids in Grosse Pointe Park are on a firstname basis with that horse.

The kids joined the parade at Essex Street, on foot, in buggies and on their bicycles, all decorated with flags, bunting and ribbon. Despite the sizzling heat, several kids came dressed up in costumes. Some even brought their pets dressed for the occasion.

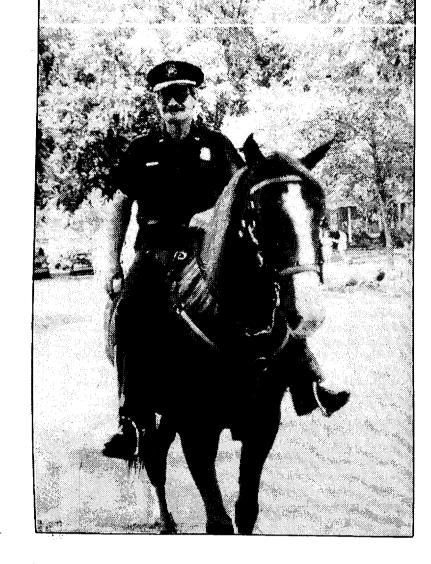

The world-famous Grosse Pointe Park Civic Association Kazoo Band, directed by Dr. Bill Leith, made its fourth annual appearance. Originally formed just for these parades, the band's director has received numerous calls asking if the band is for hire. (Not just yet.)

A new addition in this year's parade was the ecologically sound Grosse Pointe Park Garbage Can Brigade. This precision drill team is under the direction of Bob Buhl and includes Ron Malis, Ray DeRyck, Jere Berkey, Dr. Bob Lenhard and Ron Eschenburg. The parade was the premier performance for the team. (It was not a coincidence that this precision drill team followed Lt. Cain's horse.)

No Fourth-of-July parade would be complete without politicans. Among the politicians who attended the parade were Grosse Pointe Park Mayor Palmer Heenan, just about the entire Park council, Sen. John Kelly, Senate-hopeful Clark Durant, Congressional-hopeful Tom Barrow, and a number of others. It should be noted that, among the speeches and conversations, Detroit City Airport was a recurring theme; as a topic, it was even hotter than the weather. This year's big feature was one of Windsor, Ontario's crown jewels: the Windsor Police Pipe Band, directed by Detective Neil Lester. The band was a sight to behold, marching down Westchester in a quick step to the strains of "Scotland the Brave." People lined the route cheering to the skirl of the pipes. Even Lt. Cain's horse Johnny cocked his ears and stared as the band went by. At the park, the band entertained the crowd by forming a circle and performing several favorites. The band thrilled the crowd with a beautiful performance of "Amazing Grace" and then marched back off the field. At the park, the ceremonies included a flag-raising while Grosse Pointe Cable celebrity Johanna Gilbert sang the "Star Spangled Banner." Cathy Stelma awarded prizes to the children for the best costumes, and then Mayor Heenan delivered his traditional Fourth of July address. After the parade, despite the heat, Deborah Peck held numerous games for the children and the committee provided cold drinks for all of the children parade participants. Parade chairman Bob Buhl said that, even before this parade was done, planning had begun for next year's parade. The parade is financed by donations and membership dues from the Park Civic Associaiton. This fall, the association will host the first Croquet and Bocce Ball tournament at Patterson Park. The chairperson for the event will be Norma Eschenburg.

The Grosse Pointe Park Garbage Can Brigade precision drill team strut their stuff.

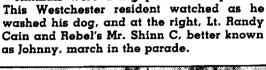

The Windsor Police Pipe Band, under the direction of drum major Detective Neil Lester, livened up the proceedings.

Animals were a big part of the parade.

The Mitten Force

Once upon a time in a different kind of world, there was a mitten. This wasn't an ordinary mitten - it's Super Mitten! He's a rainbow-colored mitten with super powers. He is 25 and already put 100,000 bad guys in iail.

For the past few weeks, he has been chasing a man named Mitten Noriega who has lots of bad friends to help him escape from Super Mitten. Super Mitten's friends are MegaMitten and Robomitten. Together we are the Mitten Force.

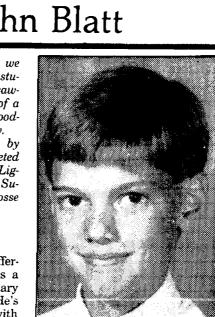

The next day they all met at the Mitten Cave to discuss the problem. They knew that Noriega was cunning and quick but there must be a way to catch, him and put him in jail. All they knew is that he was hiding in the Jungle of Danger and that his friends were giving him weapons and money that were from Savings Bank.

Noriega and his friends had ripped off $1 billion. So the Mitten Force gathered up all their gear and hunted down Noriega. When they found him, they also found 20 guns, each one loaded, walked up to some bad guys and threw them in a portable cage.

A grenade disabled Robomitten for awhile. Then Mega-Mitten came out shooting at the guns with fire. A second later, a missle buzzed by MegaMitten's ear. Then the Mitten Force re-grouped. Super Mitten gave his friends some grenades. When they blew up the bombs a pink smoke came out. When the smoke cleared, they found that Noriega and his friends were sleeping like babies.

The Mitten Force took all of

1BA Entertainment 'Die Hard 2' is perfect summer escape

By Michael Chapp Special Writer

What's that? You say the summer is already half over and all the fun is done? You say there's nothing left to look forward to now except the blistering dog days?

No more fireworks?

Think again. Just in time to rescue the summer comes "Die Hard 2: Die Harder," the highly publicized sequel to the actionpacked Bruce Willis thriller.

This is a rock'em, sock'em pure fun movie much like its predecessor. It's two hours of virtually non-stop action. Fans of the genre will go home thoroughly satisfied.

And fans of the irrepressible Willis will get more than their money's worth.

It's not hard to pick up the storyline, even for those who didn't get a chance to see the original picture. Police officer John McClane (Willis) has become something of a celebrity due to the single-handed rescue of hostages in a skyscraper he pulled off in the first movie. And in between "Nightline" appearances and other publicity events, he's been reunited with his wife.

As this picture opens, Mc-Clane is in a Washington airport on Christmas Eve, exactly one year after the skyscraper incident. He's waiting for his wife's plane to land. There's a snowstorm.

No big deal in itself. But Mc-Clane is, not surprisingly, the wrong guy in the wrong place at the wrong time. A group of very intelligent U.S. military officers have conspired to completely shut down the airport so they can escort a Central American cocaine smuggler to freedom via a plane.

Detroit Concert Choir auditions

The Detroit Concert Choir under the direction of Gordon Nelson, previously longtime choral director at Detroit's Denby High School, is holding auditions for singers. Scheduled for this season is a three-concert subscription series, and the International competition in Llangollen, Wales.

Auditions for both the full choir and the international competition choir will be held on Tuesday, July 24, from 4 to 8 p.m. and on Saturday, July 28, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the

are as follows: from "Messiah" by Handel, "for unto us a child is born" or "He shall purify;" also one prepared solo, preferably in a foreign language. There are some paid positions available: these require a special appointment and additional literature.

For more information or to schedule an appointment, call the Detroit Concert Choir office at 882-0118.

It's a hijacking, but in reverse. And since the airport police are at first unwilling - and then unable - to put a dent in the bad guys' plans, it's up to Mc-Clane to save the day. Again.

Forget that the circumstances are too farfetched to be even remotely realistic. That's not what made the first film successful and it's not what makes this film sucessful. Instead, focus on Willis' normal-guy-in-unbelievable-circumstances situation. Then focus on the picture's selfreflexive sense of humor, which disarms even the most hardened will hold auditions for "The Phantom of the Opera" and "Tap Dance!" on Monday and Tuesday evening, July 16 and 17, at 7:30 p.m. in the lower level of the Golden Lion Restaurant. The Golden Lion is located at 22380 Moross, near Mack, in Detroit across from St. John Hospital.

'Phantom,' 'Tap' auditions

"The Phantom of the Opera" is a new version of the story by Gaston Leroux featuring music from Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Sorcerer." "Tap Dance!" is an original musical featuring classic musical numbers such as "You're A Grand Old Flag," "Give My Regards to Broadway," and "When The Saints Come Marchin' In.

Both are musical productions. Both require four men and four women of various age ranges.

"The Phantom" will run on Friday and Saturday evenings,

Dennis Wickline Productions Sept. 14 through Oct. 27. "Tap Dance!" also runs on Friday and Saturday evenings, from Nov. 2 to Dec. 29 with a special New Year's Eve performance on Monday, Dec. 31.

And finally, focus on the ac-

No appointment is necessary to audition. No prepared material is necessary. Readings and singing auditions will be held utilizing the scripts and scores of each show. Those auditioning for 'Tap Dance!" should come in rehearsal clothing.

For further information, call 773-5914, Monday through Friday, 6 to 8 p.m.

Featuring a blend of community and collegiate talent, the Macomb Community College Music Theater Department will present a three-night run of "Grease," the hit Broadway musical that satirizes and glorifies the 1950s rock 'n' roll era when Elvis Presley and friends ruled the teenage world.

Showtimes are 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 12-14, at Macomb Center for the Performing Arts, located on the College's center campus at Hall (M-59) and Garfield roads in Clinton Township.

Named for the heavy oils the boys used to plaster on their hair during the rambunctious rock period, the show had its birth in a little playhouse in Chicago in 1971. A year later it was transported to New York where it became one of the biggest successes on Broadway.

Tickets are $10 for adults and $9 for students and senior citizens. They may be obtained at the center's box office or reserved on credit card by calling 286-2222, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Book At The Tunnel Toll Booth and

July 12, 1990 Grosse Pointe News Entertainment Stratford's 'Phaedra' brings 2,200-year-old classic to life torment of every woman trapped standards of speech, elocution, Special Writer In "Phaedra" at Stratford's Third Stage this summer, a cast of virtuoso actors brings the statues of classic Greece to passionate life. It is a performance that belongs on the festival's Mount Olympus.

This is no small achievement. "Phaedra" is a difficult play on every level. It is a classic tragedy on a heroic scale. The script is in a poetic form. The action moves relentlessly, with no pause for comic relief or subplots. And the story is an old one from Greek mythology, first dramatized by Euripides 2,200 years ago.

Phaedra, offspring of Gods and kings, is the wife of Theseus, King of Athens. He is famous in mythology as a slayer of monsters and a romantic philanderer. But Phaedra is an overpowering guilt trip. Even though her love for her stepson, Hippolytus, is well-hidden, she is painfully ashamed of this incestuous and adulterous passion.

Its object, the Greek-godlike and supposedly frigid Hippolytus, secretly adores the forbidden beauty Aricia. The intrigues of their story unfold like a melodrama as they discover each others' conflicting, secret guilts and express their seething emotions. Ultimately, Theseus, the all-too-hasty man of action, plays the jealous husband and thwarted father to bring on the tragic finale.

Don't be misled by the soap opera outline of the plot. The brilliant acting, the probing of human emotions, the monumental scale of the concept and the combined sublime artistry of some of the greatest literary talents of all time put this production on a special plane.

The authorship alone is awesome. The play is a collaboration that spans two millenia. Created by Greek poets of antiquity, it has been modernized by France's greatest dramatist, Jean Racine (protege of Moliere and the Sun King Louis XIV) and translated by Richard Wilbur, official U.S. Poet Laureate, Pulitzer Prize winner and distinguished scholar.

Each played a key role. In first dramatizing the myth, Euripides immortalized it for all time. In writing a humanized version, Racine helped to launch the era of contemporary drama that examine's man's motivations and psychology. In translating it, Wilbur rendered Racine's subtly phrased rhyming couplets in an equivalent style in English that is both dramatically effective (it plays well) and artistically uplifting. This was long considered impossible; Wilbur has achieved the impossible and done it brilliantly. All this posed a challenge that Stratford Artistic Director David Williams met head on. By choosing veteran star Brian Bedford as director and giving him the finest talents to work with, he forged an ensemble that turns one of the most difficult scripts in Western literature into a modern, mind-blowing experience.

Wisely, Bedford seems to have taken the direct approach. Although the characters are drawn in heroic proportions, he lets them play out their lives, loves and obsessions as the human beings they really are. And his cast is gifted with the skills and insights to do just that.

Patricia Conolly as Phaedra is a classic beauty conveying controlled anguish over her irreconcilable conflict. Against our better ethical judgment (and hers), she wins audience sympathy for her weakness in allowing her blame to be laid on the unresponsive Hippolytus. Never forgetting the status of her role, she maintains a queenly grandeur even as she portrays the in a hopeless triangle by fate, her scruples and her jealousy.

Colm Feore as Hippolytus, irresistibly heroic in his scant but elegant suit of armor, is a tour of self-control until the many truths unfold. And his portrayal is nobly consistent in the face of his surprise, even alarm, over Phaedra's sudden and unwanted expressions of her love after thinking so long that she hated him. And again with Theseus, his father, Feore as Hippolytus grimly resists showing the humility that might save him from tragedy.

Equally vital to the success of the production, and almost more than any reasonable audience could expect, is the quality of the rest of the cast. Leon Pownall as Theseus is the classic father figure - quick to judge, sure he's right, commanding, and then woeful and penitent to realize that he was fatally wrong.

It is a treat to see Douglas Rain as Theramenes. He personifies the dependably thoughtful and solicitous tutor to Hippolytus. And Shirley Douglas as Oenone, Phaedra's nurse, is a convincing instrument of the deceits that bring them all down. The plot pivots on her performance as she radiates the sincerity of her desire to protect and restore her mistress by her disastrous intrigue. In another supporting role.

Lucy Peacock lends a clear and effective portrayal of the beauteous Aricia, as do Roberta Maxwell as Ismene, Aricia's confidante and Mary Hitch Blendick as Penope, a lady in waiting.

It makes a major point for Stratford and good repertory theater in general. To produce a great performance of a classic as difficult as this, it is essential to put on stage an entire troupe of the finest artists.

And while top acting talent is essential, so are uniformly high interpretation and movement, and total understanding of the play. Those qualities are evident in "Phaedra" and these assets, drawn from the ample resources of the Stratford company, create an experience that is rare indeed

- an ancient classic that plays like a contemporary story from our lives, a down to earth and vet noble and uplifting experience with power and conviction.

Much credit too, goes to designer Desmond Heely whose rich costumes glow on the simple arena stage. Their recall of the art of classic Greece strongly enhances Bedford's powerful, straightforward approach to the play, as do Gabriel Charpentier's music and Kevin Fraser's lighting which enhance without intrusion.

Still, this is not an easy play to see. It is not for the casual seeker of an evening's amusement. In another key decision, Bedford lets the play roll uninterrupted, inexorably to its conclusion for one hour and 45 minutes of building to the crashing end. It is a rewarding endurance test that leaves the viewer emotionally drained. This is, in fact, an opportunity to experience a rare confluence of great artistry that plays theater's most important role in our lives — to nourish the soul.

As if this were not enough. Stratford is an embarrassment of riches this season. There are 15 plays, including four by Shakespeare, on the festival's three stages. They will be performed in repertory until Nov. 11.

There are also regular free discussion groups with leading actors on Wednesday through Friday mornings at the Third Stage, and backstage at the Festival Theatre after the Tuesday evening performance. Not to mention the familiar charms of an old-fashioned town graciously locked in amber. Tickets and information are available in the Detroit area by calling 964-4668.

Pongracz celebrates 60 years as family-owned business

By Pat Paholsky Editor

20A

Sixty years ago, Edward J. Pongracz set up a workbench in a corner of the front window of his father's upholstery shop in the Village and began repairing watches and clocks. Passersby could see the young man bent over his bench with a jeweler's glass perched on his forehead.

Humble beginnings for a store that has been a mainstay of first the Vilalge, and now the Hill.

Born in Chicago to Hungarian immigrants, Pongracz began an apprentiship at Tiffany's in New learned to repair and make parts for watches. He also learned how to identify and appraise fine jewelry.

And he was also extremely fond of going to Yankees games, according to his daughter, Marie Neil.

Before he set up his bench in the window, people had to send their watches and clocks out of town for repairs. It didn't take long for his business to grow.

He opened his own store at 16194 Kercheval and later moved to 17008 Kercheval, York when he was 14. He where Jacobson's is now located. He started a clock route and every Sunday during the 1930s and '40s, Pongracz would visit the finest homes in Grosse Pointe, including those belonging to the Joys, the Dodges, the Fords and even the yacht, the Delphine, to wind all of the clocks.

> It was not an ordinary task, his daughter said. The weights would have to be balanced and the chimes set each time the clocks were wound. "There were no batteries in those days," Neil said.

> The Sunday trips were an experience. "I can remember going with him as a little girl and just being awed (by the houses)," Neil said. "He always knew all of the maids and he'd sit down and have a cup of coffee with them.

As his reputation grew, so did the business.

Up to this time, he had been renting and he decided to buy his own property. He bought a 20 by 80 foot lot on the Hill and built the store which stands today at 91 Kercheval. That was 1948.

On opening day, there were congratulatory flowers everywhere, Neil recalls, covering every counter in the store. The business carried sterling silver, china and crystal besides jewelry, and Mr. Five Eyes, as his daughter said he was called because of his glasses plus the jeweler's glass, began to get involved in community affairs.

He was a charter member of the Rotary Club and one of the founders of the Neighborhood Club. He was active in the Grosse Pointe schools, serving as president of the board of education.

He was also active in the Democratic Party, Neil said, and a friend of G. Mennen Williams.

All of the counters in the new store on the Hill were decorated with flowers from friends and patrons on opening day.

He never ran for office, but he served on the board of review. "People would come in the store just to talk politics," Neil said. Pongracz retired in 1975, selling the business to his son, Ted. He and his wife Hilda then spent a lot of time at their cottage in Canada and in Florida and they traveled, Neil said. Her father died in 1987.

It was a family business, Neil said, with the three children working there. One brother, Edward, has since died. His mother was the bookkeeper, saleswoman and she also decorated the windows, Neil said.

Their son Ted, the current owner, remembers beginning in the business when he was 8. After he graduated from Hillsdale College in 1962, he attended the Gemological Institute of America in Los Angeles, where he became a certified gemologist.

Times have changed and the store no longer sells silver or china or crystal. Jewelry continues to be the major part of the business, particularly gold jewelry. Pongracz also does a substantial repair, appraisal and engraving business.

"We have a pearl stringer, a hand engraver and a jewelry manufacturer we deal with, Pongracz said. "Those are very important people when you have a small jewelry store."

Pongracz does machine engraving on the premises, but sends out the finest pieces for hand engraving.

The business today is computerized, but the Old World touches, like the fine flannel bags in which the jewelry is placed, remain. Some of the services include delivery and free Business hours are 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday. There are three fulltime and two part-time employees, gearing up for the 60th anniversary which will be celebrated the week of July 23-28.

Everything in the store will be on sale, according to Crystal Rice, manager, and there will be a champagne and hors d'oeuvres reception Thursday, July 26, from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. The phone number is 881-6400.

The system was being decentralized and the busing program was started, "creating monumental problems that have not stopped," Hathaway said.

Education, Hathaway said, "is the one area where more can be done that can correct our social problems than any other area I can think of."

Hathaway is currently on the board of Life Directions, a group started 14 years ago by Father John Phelps, a Catholic priest who will be going to Chicago to begin the same organization there. Life Directions works within the Detroit school system, Hathaway said, to bring about a change in the attitudes of nonachieving children.

News

The program, currently in seven schools, has helped 65 to 70 percent of students who were classified non-achievers to become achievers, Hathaway said, It's done without taxpayer money - supported by General Motors, Ford, MichCon, Detroit Edison, banks and other companies, Hathaway said.

He is also involved with the Senior Judges Committee of the Senior Lawyers Division which he chairs. A charter member of the Senior Lawyers Division, Hathaway said there are now more than 7,000 members.

Besides numerous professional organizations, Hathaway is a member of the Veteran of Foreign Wars and former post commander of the American Legion and former post commander of the Catholic War Veterans.

He is also a member of the Knights of Columbus, 4th Degree, the Elks, member and past president of Friends of the Cathedral.

Hathaway said he has always seen the law as a "great equalizer of all men and women. One of the ultimate goals is to provide a forum and code of laws that bring about justice and fairness for both sexes and provide equal opportunity for all.

He adds: "I love my profession. I respect it a great deal, but it has the capability of doing more.'

He and his wife, the former Carmelita Mary Bach, have been married 48 years. They have seven children and 27 grandchildren - three who are now attending college on academic and athletic scholarships, he said. Two of his children followed him into the law and he has a number of nieces and nephews who are lawyers and judges.

For recreation, Hathaway sails and swims. He has added walking to his regimen.

Hathaway has had a long and fruitful career. He said, "As long as health and effort remain, you should use every bit of potential advocate of PLAV Post 169 and you have for the betterment of others. The years are rolling by, but I'm not rolling over."

After receiving the Msgr. Charles Malloy Award from the Catholic Lawyers Society, Judge James A. Hathaway stands with some of his sons. They are, from left, Robert of Grosse Pointe Woods, Thomas of the Park, the judge, Frank of the Shores and Paul of the Woods. His other children not in the photo are James A. Jr. of Washington, D.C., Arthur of Chicago, and Carmelita of Parkersburg, W. Va.

No more money Family Life Education Council closes doors after 24 years

Beginning July 16, Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods teenagers who are looking for close-to-home confidential help with problems involving pregnancy, suicide, venereal disease, rape, substance abuse, domestic violence and more - will have to look to other communities for assistance.

Family Life Education Council (FLEC), an independent, non-profit organization dedicated to enhancing the quality of life for youths in the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods, will close for good on July 15 after 24 years of operation.

FLEC's programs have changed from time to time as they reflected

'This is not a nnouncement.

This is an provided education and assistance on a variety of issues, including suicide, sex education, pregnancy counseling, alcohol and substance abuse and legal issues. In addition, FLEC has offered a crisis hotline, counseling, a medical clinic, a rehabilitation program for first-time juvenile offenders, referral services and a speakers' bureau.

We have no more funds," said Dr. John Burrows, president of the FLEC board. "This (closing) is not a fundraising appeal. It's an announcement.

'We've already exhausted everything. FLEC has been a hand-tomouth operation for the last year. The crowning blow was that some major grants we expected to get have been denied."

FLEC operates on an annual budget of $120,000. Of that, $25,000 is provided by the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods for the Youth Assistance Program (YAP).

We really struggled," Burrows said. "We cancelled a fashion show recently because we needed to sell 100 tickets to break even and we only sold 50. We've done special mailings, letters, emergency appeals, car washes, dinners, fashion shows, tennis tournaments, golf outings, newspaper special editions. We had a Friends of FLEC group for a while made up of about 50 women. They helped us raise some money. But they burned out."

FLEC's services are free and its programs are run almost entirely by trained volunteers. Of the paid staff of five, one is a full-time position.

The volunteer staff currently numbers about 40, said Colinda Hendricks, executive director of FLEC.

"Our board is all volunteers. Our doctors and nurses are volunteers. Our attorneys are volunteers. A large number of clients give a small amount, which means a few dollars here and there," she added.

"The organization needs another $70,000 to $100,000 a year from other sources," Burrows said.

Burrows and Hendricks said that FLEC's programs have very little overlap with the work of Northeast Guidance Center. "They handle psychological and emotional disorders for adults and youngsters," Burrows said. "They have no crisis center, no youth assistance program and no medical clinic. They don't do the kind of work FLEC does.

Of the three major programs currently in operation at FLEC, Burrows said that the Youth Assistance Program is one that the board is hoping to preserve after the doors close.

The 8-year-old Youth Assistance

Program is an alternative to the Wayne County Juvenile Court System for local juveniles who are firsttime offenders.

The youth program consists of a six-month intensive counseling and rehabilitation program which includes parents as well as teenagers and offers juveniles a chance to make restitution to the community.

"These are not hardened criminals," Burrows said. "They are usually boys, who, on a whim, have stolen something or have been involved in some kind of vandalism. They've entered the system on the judgment of local police. Parents must also enter the program, which includes individual and group counseling and a work service program designed to provide an avenue for restitution.'

The Youth Assistance Program is strongly supported by the five Grosse Pointe public safety departments, Burrows said.

Those who successfully complete the program may have their records expunged. Those who fail are returned to the court system.

Burrows said that the youth program handles about 50 to 60 teenagers each year.

Other major FLEC programs currently in operation are a medical clinic and the Center Point Crisis Center, both based in the Mack Avenue office.

Burrows said that a typical client at the medical center is a 14- or 15year-old girl who comes in thinking she is pregnant or has VD - orboth.

"She's scared. She usually has a girlfriend with her. She has heard about FLEC in school or from a friend.

"A physician sees her and does the necessary lab tests and a diagnosis, supplies prescriptions and follow-up. If she is pregnant, she gets counseling about alternatives. We are not an abortion clinic.

"Everything is confidential." Hendricks said the medical clinic is used by 300 to 350 teens each year.

The Crisis Center is a a confidential source of immediate assistance and referral for problems and crises such as suicide, rape, substance abuse, child abuse, relationship difficulties and domestic violence.

Hendricks estimated that FLEC handles about 1,500 crisis calls a year.

"We were recently involved with the crisis response team at Harper Woods High School earlier this

'People who are involved in the ongoing operation of FLEC recognize the value of its services. But that's not enough. The community doesn't recognize the value.'

The Blake Company has been members of the Grosse Pointe community for three generations. We know why people live here, and why they go to great lengths to remain here.

Over the years their homes have become too large and difficult to maintain and until now, the Grosse Pointe area has offered very few alternatives to people who want to change their homes, not their lifestyle.

We Understand

The Blake Company has created the alternative, Harbor Place: a luxurious condominium community located on the shore of Lake St. Clair, near everything you hold dear.

Designed with traditional New England architecture with an emphasis placed on privacy, security and scenic beauty. Choose between townhouses or terrace homes each in two- and three-bedroom configurations, lavished with an endless list of amenities, including a 2 car garage, exceptional landscaping and boat slips. Call Rob MacGregor today for an appointment and experience the tradition of Harbor Place, you'll see that we really do understand.

The Harbor Place site will be open from 1-5 PM, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. To visit the site enter through Riviera Terrace, 100 yds. North of Nine Mile Road, just off Jefferson.

Show and Auction, a fundraiser for Historic Trinity Lutheran Church, will feature some not-sougly stuff this year, donated by nationally syndicated cartoonists.

The cartoon art chairman for the annual event is Detroit News cartoonist Draper Hill of Grosse Pointe.

The whole ticky-tacky affair will take place on Wednesday, July 25, from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. at Historic Trinity, 1345 Gratiot, in Detroit.

Promoters of the event say some ugly edibles will be served, some horrible mention awards will be given, and the grand prize ribbon will go to the Worst of Show. The art display will include the best of the worst art, including a piece rejected by the DIA.

But seriously, folks, editorial and comic cartoons have been donated by some of Hill's colleagues - including Larry Wright of The Detroit News and Richard Guindon of the Detroit Free Press; also some original drawings and signed prints from the creators of Doonesbury, Blondie, Family Circus, Luann, Hagar the Horrible, Lockhorns, Rex Morgan, M.D., The Far Side, Beetle Bailey, Off the Leash and others.

The ugly portion of the show will feature a variety of donated icky stuff: paintings, sculpture, lamps, pottery, weavings, whatever.

Tickets for the event are $15 per person; $25 per couple. Call Historic Trinity for information, 567-3100.

Renaissance frolic: A Mid-Summer Night's Dream, a gala evening to benefit the Multiple Sclerosis Society will take place on the grounds of the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House on Saturday, July 28.

Festivities will begin with a reception on the terrace at 6 p.m. From 7 p.m. until midnight, guests will be offered a strolling supper and desserts provided by 25 of Detroit's top chefs and restaurants - including Chef Jim Boyle of One23 in Grosse Pointe Farms.

The evening's entertainment will also include Renaissance musicians and dancers, jesters, jugglers, mimes, classical harp music, dancing under the stars, a magic show by Don Jones and his dancers (in Renaissance costumes) and a silent auction.

The Multiple Sclerosis Society is a national voluntary health agency which supports an inter national program of scientific research to find how to prevent and/or cure the disease. Chapter services include education, information and referral, counseling, advocacy and equipment assistance. Tickets to A Mid-Summer Night's Dream are $150 per person; $200 for patrons. Additional information and invitation requests may be made by calling Pamela Livingston Hardy, 540-4898.

Draper Hill, left, the Rev. David Eberhard and Darlene Soave display some of the cartoons donated for the third annual Ugly Art Show and Auction at Historic Trinity Church on July 25.

Farms resident Ruth Emanuele is shown with Astronaut Wally Schirra Jr. at a dinner celebrating the 125th anniversary of the Detroit Public Library on June 28. Schirra was one of the original seven astronauts and the only astronaut to pilot crafts in three different missions.

Now Renting: A landmark address.

Since its completion, the elegant Shore Club Apartment Tower has been a landmark for ships and boats cruising Lake St. Clair. But it's also been a landmark in luxury living.

You can choose from highrise, garden apartment or townhouse lifestyles. All provide the same convenient, luxurious, environment.

Shore Club is situated in a park-like atmosphere. Here we combine the peacefulness of the lake with stately old shade trees. Our community-by-the-lake is conveniently located near major expressways and surface routes, leading to most every part of the Metropolitan area. As well as close to Grosse Pointe Shopping districts.

What's more, because Shore Club is on the water, renters have first priority on our available boat wells.

We're now renting apartments. So come and see why Shore Club is the most prestigious address on the waterway. We're sure you'll find everything about it is of landmark quality.

Trained volunteers answer the Crisis Center phones Mondays and Fridays from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. and Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. When the center is closed, a taped message refers callers to emergency counseling services.

Burrows said the reasons for FLEC's closing are threefold:

• There are too many people competing for the same charity dollar.

• FLEC is no longer eligible for certain grants because of its restricted catchment area.

• Many people in the community fail to admit that their teenagers have problems with pregnancy, VD and substance abuse.

Family Life Education Council was founded in 1966 as an independent, non-profit community organization to address the issue of drug use and to enhance the quality of community and family life.

It was approved as part of the Grosse Pointe Board of Education in August 1967 and became an independent non-profit agency in April 1969.

That year Grosse Pointe Rotary gave a $10,000 grant to start a drug program.

A partial list of the various programs FLEC has sponsored during its 24-year existence includes:

• In 1976, workshops on sex education for ministers, parents, community groups and teachers.

• From 1968-1971, a variety of programs addressing alcohol and drug use by teenagers, including a drug hotline, rap sessions for youngsters, seminars on drug education and treatment, a methadone withdrawal clinic and a crisis intervention center to help young people with problems before they became involved with hard drugs.

• In 1971, a medical clinic to test for and treat venereal diseases among teens.

"We want to thank people who have supported FLEC," said Burrows. "We hope families can find alternative sources of care. The problems of youth are ongoing. There will be a void. The school system or hospitals or other agencies will have to find alternative programs to fill the void.

health, extend life and enhance its quality.

The annual Joseph A. Grady Conference at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial on June 27 featured three speakers who addressed issues of ethics and health care. The seminar was sponsored by St. John Hospital and Medical Center.

All three cited ethical decisionmaking as an indispensible component when formulating solutions to health care problems.

"The open frontier is over," said Dr. Daniel Callahan, director of the Hastings Institute and national authority on ethics in health care. "We must face up to limits because we are not going to have everything we want in health care.'

Callahan spoke to an audience of doctors, nurses and concerned citizens

"How we allocate our health care resources is the No. 1 concern today," he said. "Some say we need to get rid of inefficiencies, but this is whistling in the dark."

Callahan said that we face an aging population requiring not only more care - but expensive care. Overall, we're looking at an ever-increasing public de-mand for more health care services, he said.

Howard Brody, practitioner, professor at Michigan State University, and director of the Center for Ethics and Humanities in the Life Sciences, reaffirmed that resource allocation is the key challenge for health care in the 1990s.

"Principles and theories don't solve the problem," he said. "Rather, a political process needs to evolve whereby people identify with the problem and form a consensus around the issue."

He urged that organizations within the community develop discussions and workshops allowing participants to exchange ideas and opinions.

see that a bloated 10 percent bureaucratic expense in our health care system is designed to place people in pigeonholes according to the kind of coverage.

This 10 percent amounts to $60 billion annually, he said, which also goes to keep other people out who don't belong, such as the working poor.

Brody said the injustice stems from the exclusion of an estimated 37 million people from health care. These are the workers who are shut out, but who pay taxes to the government from their earnings, to disqualify them from a pigeonhole.

An additional use of their tax money goes to subsidize workers who have health insurance, he said, but who are excluded from paying income tax on the amount deducted or paid for health coverage.

Brody also expressed regret for the "fat cat" image which permeates public and political belief about physicians. This kind of misperception about doctors lowers their credibility in the public eye and limits their worth in political and community leadership, he said.

He urged doctors to cut loose from the "fat cat" image.

"Get off the malpractice kick as the primary political focus," he said. "Broaden the exposure concerning other health care problems. Where were the physicians in Lansing when patient rights were being considered?"

Mila Aroskar, professor and researcher in biomedical ethics at the University of Minnesota, espoused the use of ethics in nursing decision-making. She discussed examples of such leadership for hospital, out-patient and in-home practice.

The subject of the conference involved information about the health care system that needs to be told many times in many places.

ه Communily Vegetables and flowers of peas are sweet

With July upon us we begin to think about early harvests in the vegetable garden. One of the first crops we look forward to is Pisum sativum, green garden peas, which are among the hardiest and most healthful of vegetables for backyard culture.

1. A. 1. 1. 1. 1.

Peas go back a long way. The oldest evidence of the cultivation of peas has been found buried in mud which lay beneath the ancient pile houses of the Swiss lake dwellers nearly 5,000 years ago. Pea seeds have been found in ancient Egyptian tombs and green peas were a garden staple in England at the time of the

Norman conquest. Garden peas made their way to America with the earliest settlers and were the favorite vegetable in the Monticello garden of Thomas Jefferson.

More than a century ago, Gregor Mendel chose peas for his research subject in the studies that first revealed the laws of heredity. These biological principles became the basis of our very productive modern method of making both new and improved varieties and hybrids of flowers and vegetables.

The lovely pastel blossoms and clinging vine tendrils of the sweet pea, which produces profuse flowers but no peas, is a member of the same family and has ornamented gardens almost as long as its edible cousin. Sweet peas are annuals. They are native to Sicily and were introduced into Europe about 1700.

In their wild form, the sweet pea flowers are almost always purple and for the first century after they were introduced into Europe, only two or three other colors were developed. In 1870, an English florist, Henry Eckford, began a program of plant breeding to further develop the sweet pea. He was incredibly successful in producing other colors such as pink and yellow, and in gaining larger and better-proportioned flowers. Sweet peas became popular in Victorian gardens and the variety named Dorothy Eckford, produced in 1903, is still a favorite.

In 1912, a frilled version was grown by Silas Cole who was the gardener to Earl Spencer of Althorp Park in England. This was the beginning of the sweet peas of modern times.

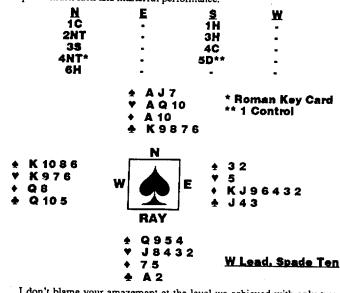

American sweet peas date from 1886 when a seed-raising industry was established in California where sweet peas grew

Bridge

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD THE PASTEBOARD PASTIME

Ray Feldman is one of the boldest, most ingenious bridge partners I've ever had the pleasure of consorting with at the card table. Good that God graced him with a very pleasant manner for beneath that sincere surface is a fiercely competitive nature that literally challenges his opponents every step of the way. The by-product of this audaciousness, even though pleasantly presented, is a compelling desire that his partner perform with the same maximum accuracy and motivation. This is a magnificent winning attitude for victory won't come from the ranks of those who are idle averagers. Of course this type of aggressive style can produce some tops and a lot of bottoms if one doesn't use superb judgement coupled with luck and good play.

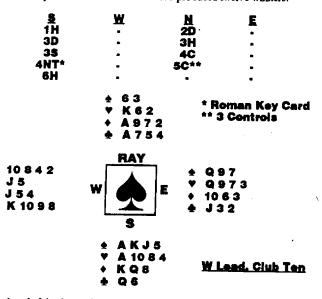

Here are two tops that portray Ray's style and in both instances they required much luck and masterful performance.

I don't blame your amazement at the level we achieved with only twentyfive combined points, but believe me Ray performs exceptionally well in these tenuous circumstances. Of course the bidding mishap was mine. I should have paid a lot more attention to his rebid in hearts and a lot less to his next call of four clubs, but I never suggested that where we were headed would be easy to accomplish.

Ray gave the ten of spades a lot of thought and finally ducked it to his queen successfully. Guess what was going thru his mind? If the trumps behaved and the king was right (a 50% chance) and the clubs were 3-3 (a 36% chance) he could win thirteen tricks. That's a mighty positive attitude, but that's the nature of his game! Follow his every play: a heart to the ten; a club to the ace; a heart to the queen and east showed out so he had to abort his hope for the whole deck, but even twelve winners were still in jeopardy. Now the club king and a ruff which answered his prayer for a 3-3 split. A heart to the ace; a club from dummy pitching his losing diamond and west trumped with the king. West then exited with the diamond queen which dummy won with ace. A diamond ruff and the known space finesse with the last club produced twelve winners.

Turn about's fair play so look what he put me to four boards later. You can see we love four card majors and Moysean fits are fun, but at the small slam level they're life threatening.

The club was ducked to my queen. A heart to the king and a small heart by east and south to west's jack who got out with the club king to dummys ace. At trick 5 and 6 a spade to the ace followed by the king. A small spade then ruffed with dummys last trump. At trick 8, 9 and 10 three rounds of high diamonds ending in dummy. You say it was phenomenal luck the spades and diamonds broke even . . . I agree. How else could I have successfully found the three card ending. At trick 11 dummys diamond nine. If west pitched his club I pitched my good spade. If west ruffed I over ruffed, drew the last trump and won my spade jack.

You see this game only requires a ton of luck and a modicum of skill in these impossible contracts.

> Potato blossoms, the flowers of onions and carrots (which look like the Queen Anne's lace that grows along country roads) and the flowers of many herb plants all have a delicate beauty which many of us have never seen because we have never looked at our vegetable gardens except with a view to the ultimate products.

You may have noticed in driving about in the metropolitan area that colorful zinnias are appearing everywhere in parks, roadside plantings, along public buildings and in private gardens.

The zinnia is the new official flower of the city of Detroit, and Detroit seems to have taken to the idea with widespread enthusiasm. Henceforth, bouquets of zinnias will be presented to distinguished visitors to the city, and the new offical flower will be portrayed on plaques and monuments as time goes on.

July 12, 1990 Grosse Pointe News Community Michigan's succulent strawberries are ready to pick and eat by man for thousands of years, but not much was done to cultivate them before the Renaissance in Europe. Early colonists of the New World noted that strawberries were abundant and that the Indians held feasts at the harvest of the fruit.

The Virginia strawberry, the meadow strawberry and the scarlet strawberry are names given the native American strawberry by the white settlers and by the tribes of the eastern coast of America.

How did the strawberry get its name? Some popular theories: strawberries are traditionally mulched with straw; European children used to thread them on straws and sell them in the streets by the straw; the mother plants strew baby plants on runners - thus we're really eating strewberries.

The strawberry plant is highly prized for its sweet juicy fruit and is cultivated in temperate regions around the globe, including southern Canada, central Europe and Japan.

The largest U.S. producers are in California, Louisiana, Michigan, Oregon, Tennessee and Washington. Fresh strawberries are available in southern Michigan at the beginning of June and in the Upper Peninsula in late July. The season lasts only three to four weeks, but delivers a lot of succulent strawberries. Michigan ranks sixth in the nation and it has been estimated that more than 13.2 million pounds of this crop have been harvested from more than 2,300

Strawberries are rich in sugar and rank high as a source of vitamin C, averaging somewhat higher than oranges, lemons or grapefruits.

The strawberry is enjoyed with cream, marinated in liqueur or wine, dipped in chocolate or eaten plain. Those who enjoy the last method enjoy venturing out during the summer to the nearest strawberry farm. To those who can recognize a seasonal bargain at the produce market and the strawberry pickers, I dedicate these suggestions and recipes:

• Leave the hulls on the strawberries and serve them with small dishes of brown sugar and sour cream for dipping.

• Fill individual dessert glasses with whole, hulled strawberries, puree an 8-ounce package of frozen red raspberries. Strain the puree and spoon a small amount over the strawberries before serving. Marinate whole, hulled strawberries in Grand Marnier for 30 minutes before serving.

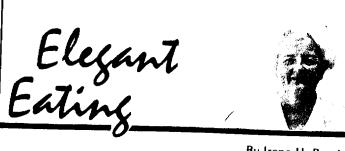

• Leave the hulls on the strawberries, dip each one into lightly beaten egg white, roll in granulated sugar, and set aside to dry for a few minutes before serving.

Comfort is not one of the big aims of life. Sometimes we experience it unexpectedly, like walking into a room after being out on a cold damp day and finding a fire in the fireplace. Sometimes it is planned for, like setting the thermostat on an. electric blanket before one getsy into bed and sliding into the warmth of preheated sheets.

of the growing process, but there are times when one would like to return to an easier time. Food can do this. As we prepare and consume our favorite food we know it's a brief reprieve from the never-ending struggle to maintain our place in society as worthwhile, caring people.

This theory is backed up by Dr. Perry Ortenberg, a Philadel-phia psychiatrist. He said that eating is deeply rooted in the nurturing warmth and security we felt in childhood.

"When sick, feeling defeated or helpless or overwhelmed," he said, "it's almost natural that one would turn to past symbols of secruity. Food takes on the symbolic meaning that good care once had."

"The comfort food is not all in your mind," said Susan Schiff-

Always teaching

Lessons about life, education and athletics, that came from my father, are some of the most memorable things I have stored in my mind.

Small things my father did have etched my character and shaped my personality. Last week I had a brief reminder of how special my father was and is to me.

There was a little boy and his dad playing on the baseball field. I pulled up to the field and stayed in my car, but was close enough to hear what was happening.

The father, who never scolded or yelled at his son, was taking 35 minutes to inform, educate and teach the fundamentals of baseball.

My dad took the time, also, when I was an aspiring player. I lost count how many times a day my dad would toss me the ball. No matter how tired or worn out from work, my father always took the time to assist me in honing my game.

Today, he may not be as proud when I boot the softball across the field, but I know that he was the one who showed me how to hustle, remain poised and always give 100 percent.

It seemed to me a relationship was unfolding in front of me. As the little boy, no more than 3 feet tall, chased a popup, he stumbled, eventually fell and did catch the ball - on his shoulder. After a short cry, the boy got a quick dusting of his pants from his dad and that was all the TLC he needed and got — from dad.

I was pleased to see that some parents don't try to coddle too much, or pamper. We need to see more kids becoming somewhat independent and tolerant of a little pain.

Anyway, when the ball hit the boy's shoulder, I remembered a brief interlude I had

Sailing Grow(s) on this family

By Rob Futton Sports Editor

Just about 50 years ago, J.A. 'Skip" Grow started a dream on Walloon Lake in northern Michigan.

Now, his son, Richard, is not letting go of that dream, but is perhaps beginning anew.

Rick, who along with his dad started the C & C 35 division in 1973, will not be racing Walloon in this year's 66th running of the Port Huron to Mackinac race on July 21. Rick is Walloon's skipper.

"I think we've done the dream justice," said Rick, who is an 'Old Goat,' "but now it's time for something new."

An Old Goat is someone who has raced in at least 25 Port Huron to Mackinac races.

Rick, and his brothers Bud and Chris, have carried on the Grow family affair with sailing that was conceived by his father's passion for the water.

Skip, according to Rick, was not a sailor. In fact, he was a golfer - with a three handicap - for 40 years. But, after a stay in the Navy, the salty air seemed to settle in his soul.

"Being in the Navy had a lot to do with how my dad felt about boating," said Rick, who was the commodore of the Bayview Yacht Club 10 years ago. "My dad was always looking for new frontiers in boating and that was obvious because he'd sell his boat every three years or so. I guess I'm not like that, though, because I've had the same boat for 17 years.'

But, on July 6, Grow emotionally cut some ties with Walloon when he purchased Bill Alcott's 41-foot Equation.

"It's time for a change," said Grow. "Over the winter months we thought about what we should do, but it took me more time than I thought to decide to step up and buy a quicker boat.

'We weren't sure if we should go for a seventh flag with Walloon, or find a bigger boat. Now we've got both.'

And they've also got a built-in crew

"We've always had the advantage of having a crew at our finger tips," said Rick. "We are a close family and sailing is a common bond for us. Racing sailboats has become our way of life. It's sort of nutso, but then again sailors are a different breed."

Walloon, behind the TLC of

"Dad really liked Walloon Lake and thought that would be an appropriate name for a boat because it was his favorite spot," said Grow. "In fact, the people who live around the lake wait for the results of every Mackinac race because they still feel close to us and the boat."

Rick, who sailed in his first Mackinac race in 1961, was a freshman in college when he took to the waters with Skip in Querida, a 44-footer.

"Dad had a series of boats, but I really didn't do a lot with them until he got the big boat," said Rick, who will probably name his new 41-footer Carreda. "After the first time I raced with him, I knew I was never going to get enough. Racing is not only a huge part of my life, but my entire family's as well."

Tuppy Grow, Rick's cousin, is the official Walloon cook and photographer, and Rick's mother Audrey still waits for her boys on the shore.

Bud Grow, now 39, came aboard Walloon in his 20s. Chris, 34, never sailed with his father, but joined the Walloon crew shortly after Skip's death.

'For one reason or another, Chris never sailed with us," Rick recalled. "One day I got him involved as a self-confidence factor. He took the boat from Detroit to Chicago (some 600 miles) with some buddies and at that time didn't know a whole lot about racing. Some of the guys on the boat knew what to do, and Chris had directions and some guidance from Bud and me and eventually made it.

"I guess you could call that trip his coming out party.'

Well, Rick's son Dan will have his inaugural father-son trip July 21 when he steps aboard the new boat. Before that, according to Rick, Dan wouldn't race with his father until he got a faster boat.

"I called Dan the other day and told him we had just purchased a faster boat and he told me he'd be sailing with us in the Mackinac," Rick said. "Before that, Dan used to tease me about not having a fast enough boat. Therefore, he never raced on Walloon. I'm looking forward to sailing with him."

Perhaps Dan will have something to do with the renewed chemistry aboard Carreda, just as his father had on Walloon.

"The harmony and spirit we have on Walloon is the best thing we've got going for us," Rick said. "But, in the end you've got to move on. We won't forget about Walloon. What I'd like to do is sell it to someone in the Detroit area and make sure it races in the same class it has for 17 years. In some way, I guess that would be just like continuing the dream my dad started.'

Chris (front), Bud (left) and Rick (standing with son Ricky) have been carrying out a sailing dream started by their father J.A. Skip Grow.

with the ball

This was almost a storybook scene. I saw my scrawny 3-foot frame and my dad standing at home plate some 20 years ago. I felt as if I were reliving a time in my life that seems so distant, but another little boy and has dad had given me time to reflect on how fortunate I was to have a father who took time for me despite all the other things he could have been doing.

I realize Father's Day has come and gone, but my father hasn't and neither have my memories.

My dad, he may think otherwise, is my friend, my mentor and my reason for being as strong as I am today. Without him I could have made it, but with him I have become a better person and yes, a better ball player.

My dad used to tell me that no matter how many errors you make, how many answers you got wrong on a test, you have to be the best you can. I'm sure there were times my dad wanted to give up on me and stop teaching me, but I don't recall a time when he made life difficult on me.

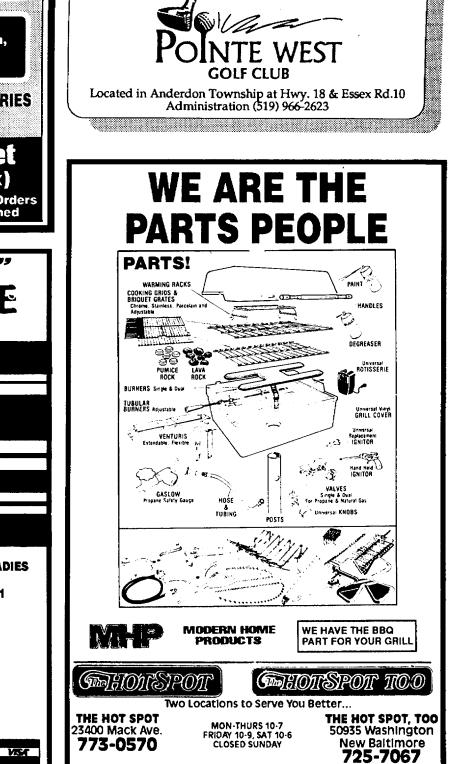

I miss the times of playing catch in the yard, or talking about baseball. I miss oiling my glove with my dad. I miss him driving me to games and buying me baseball cards. But, from what I could see on that last Thursday evening was a little boy who will someday be saying some of the same things I'm saying now.

I'm sure others are less fortunate than I, but nobody is as fortunate.

the Grow family, set a record for winning six Performance Handicap Racing Fleet (PHRF) Division G races. But, a seventh may not be in the cards for Walloon.

"I'm not so sure yet what we'll do with her," said Grow. "Almost 20 years in one boat is enough. If I were able to ask my father (who died 10 years ago) what to do, I'm sure he'd say to start fresh. We could send both boats out, but we need the crew on the bigger boat.'

In what turned out to be the league championship game, the Tigers and Yankees exchanged the lead six times before the Tigers prevailed.

The Tigers became co-champions with the Dodgers.

The night started with the Tigers, Dodgers and Yankees all within one game of each other.

The Tigers trailed 10-4 in the sixth against the Yankees, but scored eight times in that inning and pushed two more runs across in the seventh to take a 16-10 lead.

After getting the first two outs in the seventh, winning pitcher Tom Kolojeski saw five Yankees cross the plate. The game ended when Tiger second baseman Steve Olzark caught a short fly to right.

Mike Miller, Brian Blake and Eric Lindsay each had three hits for the Yanks, while Ed Dorda had two long doubles.

Adam Hogan and Tom Rajt had three hits each for the Tigers, while Joe Provenzano had a bases-loaded triple. Olzark, Bill Palazzolo and Kolojeski added two more hits to the 14-hit Tiger attack.

Dodgers are champs

The Dodgers lost the first World Series game, but then bounced back to win two straight over the American League champion Orioles to claim their third straight Woods-Shores Major League championship.

The Orioles won the series opener on a strong outing by pitcher Aris Lambropolous, 6-2. The Dodgers evened it with a 3-1 victory featuring the pitching of Billy Clark and the hitting of Kevin Halicki. John Spath provided the hitting and pitching heroics in the Dodgers' 5-2 championship win.

Spath fanned 10 and allowed one hit, a solo homer by Chris Gazepis, in six innings on the mound. Spath also belted a grand slam, with Chris Sterr, Mike Spath and Frank Sumbera aboard, that gave the Dodgers all the runs they needed. Gazepis also homered in the

Unbeatable Falcons

The St. Clare track team, under the direction of head coach Chris Pellerito, won the Catholic Youth Organization Eastside Division championship with an undefeated season.

The St. Clare group was also the Metro Detroit CYO runner-up and has only had two losses in 11 years. This was the ninth time the Falcons have gone unbeaten.

Other coaches include Julie Boyt, Scott Fisher, Bob Zaranek, Steve Zaranek, and assistants Karen Ehresman, Dave Kerfoot and Elizabeth Johnston.

Three cheers

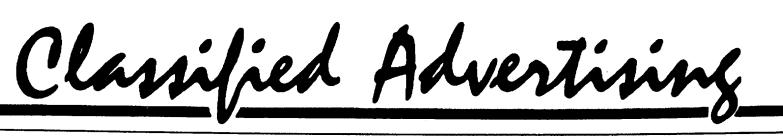

Grosse Pointe adult rowers were all smiles after they successfully completed their first race down the Detroit River at the Detroit Boat Club's 151st Anniversary Rowing Regatta.

Cheering spectators lined the beaches as crews from Grosse Pointe, Ecorse, Wyandotte, Ann Arbor, Western Reserve, Toledo, Cleveland, Michigan State, Chicago and Baltimore, Md. rowed DBC's famous Detroit Mile.

For information on rowing classes call Carol Swanson at 882-2944.

The team includes Tim Hannert, Sally Irwin, Molly Irwin, Libby Irwin, Richard Dorman, Ray Jones and Gene McKinney.

THE MISSING LINC

LINC is a non-profit organization whose purpose is to place goods no longer needed by individuals and businesses into the hands of metropolitan Detroit charitable agencies. If you have any items no longer of use to you, Operation LINC knows who can and will use them. Please call LINC at 882-6100 6100.

- Summer is in full swing, and so are the summer programs for our member agencies. Several have special needs to help make their activities complete. Take a peek at the following and see if you might be able to make a contribution.
- COOL IT with beverage coolers. Northeast Guidance Center has a lot going on, but they need a few more things to ice it! An OUTDOOR ICE CHEST or COOLER, 2 large BEVERAGE COOLERS (5-8 gallon capacity), and an AM-FM PHONOGRAPH or TAPE PLAYER (one that is simple to operate would do nicely). The center would like to acquire a free standing CLOTHING RACK with wheels.
- More Summer fun going on over at Antonio Santos Elk Lodge. They need things for their childrens summer program like EDUCATIONAL GAMES, educational COLORING BOOKS, CRAYONS and WASHABLE MARKERS.
- C.O.T.S. would like a DOUBLE STROLLER. Many other agencies are always in need of childrens items from GAMES to GALOSHES, CRIBS to CLOTHES, and SOCKS to SWINGS.

Detroit Public Schools has asked for a 5' x 7' area rug..

LINC wants your clean, usable odds and ends. There are many organizations who can put these things to a creative use. Uses have been found for misprinted calendars and drapery fabric scraps. Be inventive and call LINC.
