

That first day of school: Remembered by school officials

By Dan Jarvis
Staff Writer

Do you remember your first day of school? For some, the great event has been tucked away or conveniently forgotten because of some horrible experience. Others gladly jumped headlong into the first day of kindergarten and never looked back.

We asked several local school officials and a teacher to recollect their first day at school. While some had better recall than others, all had a very personal story to tell.

Gary Ripple, headmaster at University Liggett School, said, "I cried all day. I was totally in shock and didn't like it at all."

This was a reaction fairly common among the people we talked to. "I'm totally flabbergasted to realize 41 years later that I still go to school every day," Ripple said.

Things were a little easier for Ed Shine, superintendent of the Grosse Pointe schools. "I was the youngest of seven children," Shine said. "I remember going off to school with my brothers and sisters. When I walked in, everyone seemed to know my name and who I was."

Harrison Cass, deputy superintendent of the Grosse Pointe schools, said his experience was not quite as positive.

"My first day of kindergarten, I didn't want to go, so I went home with my mother and didn't come back for three days," Cass said.

"When I came back I realized that it wasn't so traumatic and the teachers were nice to me. As I got older, I really looked forward to going back after the summer."

When Cass entered the second grade after moving to a rural area, he came out of school after the first day and was shocked to learn that the bus he came to school in had multiplied into a line of half a dozen buses.

Perplexed, Cass finally received the help (and the sympathy) of a school custodian who narrowed the lad's choices by taking him to each bus until he was placed on the correct one.

"If it hadn't been for him, I'd have been standing there all alone until who knows when," Cass said.

Sidney Dupont, headmaster at the Grosse Pointe Academy, really had it good on the first day. "I was one of the fortunate few who grew up across the street from the school," he said.

Dupont's school, which was easily visible from his bedroom window, was New Lebanon Elementary School in Greenwich, Conn., the school that his grandmother, both parents and his older brother attended.

"By the time I started kindergarten, I was already a fixture on the school grounds," DuPont said.

"I would actually wander into the school at 2 to 3 years old and they would turn me around and send me back home."

Chris Fenton, assistant superintendent for business affairs for the Grosse Pointe schools, went to school first at Poupard Ele-

At the park

With the passing of Labor Day, the days will get shorter, temperatures will begin to drop and the population of kids in Grosse Pointe parks will decrease.

Despite preventive efforts, City elm tree losses double

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

Grosse Pointe City has lost more than twice as many trees to Dutch elm disease this year than last year, despite continuing efforts to save them.

The city plans to cut down about 140 trees on public property this year, according to Administrative Assistant Chris Bremer. She said 128 trees have already been cut down this year.

Private tree losses this year are expected to total an additional 40 to 45 trees, she said. Though the city monitors all trees, public and private, it is more difficult to keep track of private trees being cut down.

"This is an absolute record-breaking year to date," she said. "We're doing all we can. It (elm tree loss) is going on throughout the country."

Bremer suspects that the drought of 1988 is still having an effect, weakening trees so that they cannot fight Dutch elm disease as effectively.

Last year, the City lost 72 elms from public land. In 1988, 84 were lost.

Grosse Pointe Park estimates it will lose 73 public elms this year; 63 have been cut down so far. Thirty-nine private trees have been lost.

Last year, according to Park forester Bob Tarabula, a total of 124 elms were lost — 82 public and 42 private. Fifty-three public trees were lost in 1988.

For years, the Park and the City have taken measures to save the elms and stop the spreading of the disease.

All the public and private trees are inspected for the disease and the necessary actions are recommended. If the trees are not too far gone, they can be trimmed to remove the affected areas. The City marks trees that have to be cut down. Homeowners have a specified time period in which to have their diseased trees removed.

The trees that have to come down are injected with cacodylic acid, causing the leaves to turn bronze and attracting the disease-carrying bark beetles to the ailing tree and away from other trees.

To prevent transmission of the disease to other trees through the roots, infected trees are sometimes girdled — a process in which a 4- to 5-inch strip around the trees is cut with a chain saw and the bark peeled away. Gir-dled trees are placed on the removal list.

The City also sells a fungicide, Lignasan, to residents. The fungicide is injected into a healthy elm to protect it from beetles. Residents can inject the fungicide themselves by borrowing equipment furnished by the City.

Grosse Pointe City spends $88,000 a year for its tree program, which includes planting replacement trees.

In the Park, Tarabula knows all the elm trees intimately. He walks the entire city inspecting the elms on public and private property. He recommends whether they should be trimmed or condemned. For trees on private property, he sends the resident a letter recommending what should be done.

The Park also injects cacodylic acid to prevent the fungus from being spread to other trees. To stop root transmission, the Park also uses a trencher to cut the roots between elms.

But despite the efforts to prevent the spread of the disease, there seems to be no way to stop it.

School board, teachers reach tentative agreement

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

The bargaining teams for the school board and the Grosse Pointe Education Association entered the bargaining room on Tuesday morning, Aug. 28, and emerged nearly 24 hours later with a tentative contract, concluding months of bargaining.

The new three-year contract, which has yet to be ratified, was presented to union members on Aug. 30. Union bylaws state members cannot vote on it until at least 10 days after that date.

Terms of the settlement were announced by Superintendent Ed Shine who also said he was pleased to be able to settle the contract before the scheduled start of school Sept. 5.

Included in the contract is a wage increase of 7 percent for each year of the contract.

In a money-saving move for the board, newly hired teachers will not be covered by the traditional Blue Cross/Blue Shield plan. Instead, they will be provided with Preferred-Provider and Health Maintenance organizations (PPOs and HMOs).

After two years of service in the district, teachers may switch to the traditional Blue Cross coverage. This process will begin with the 1991-92 school year.

New librarians hired after this contract goes into effect will be paid on a separate salary schedule from teachers. Details of that pay scale were not made public.

Additionally, in a move which will change the way the district's middle schools operate, the contract approves an adviser-advisee program and will institute a seven-period day for middle school students in the second year of the contract.

A study committee late last year suggested the board institute a seven-period day in the middle school as part of a major restructuring.

Other points of the contract allow for direct deposit of paychecks for teachers and increasing elementary school planning time by 15 minutes a week.

The school calendar remains at 181 days of instruction a year for students and 184 teacher duty days, and maintains the traditional vacation schedule.

Ronald Tonks, director of personnel and head of the board's bargaining team said the new contract, including salary increases, was competitive with settlements made by other school districts.

The tentative contract must be submitted to Local 1 of the Michigan Education Association and to the membership of the Grosse Pointe Education Association for ratification.

Union members will vote on the contract Sept. 11, with the board scheduled to vote Sept. 12.

The Neeme is familiar

Family, Trombly School go way back

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

As Robert Neeme walked his son Benjamin through the halls of Trombly Elementary School recently, it was not only to orient Benjamin to his new school, it was also a trip down memory lane.

Neeme attended Trombly when he was a child, and had been walked down the halls by his father, Edmond, who also had attended Trombly as a child.

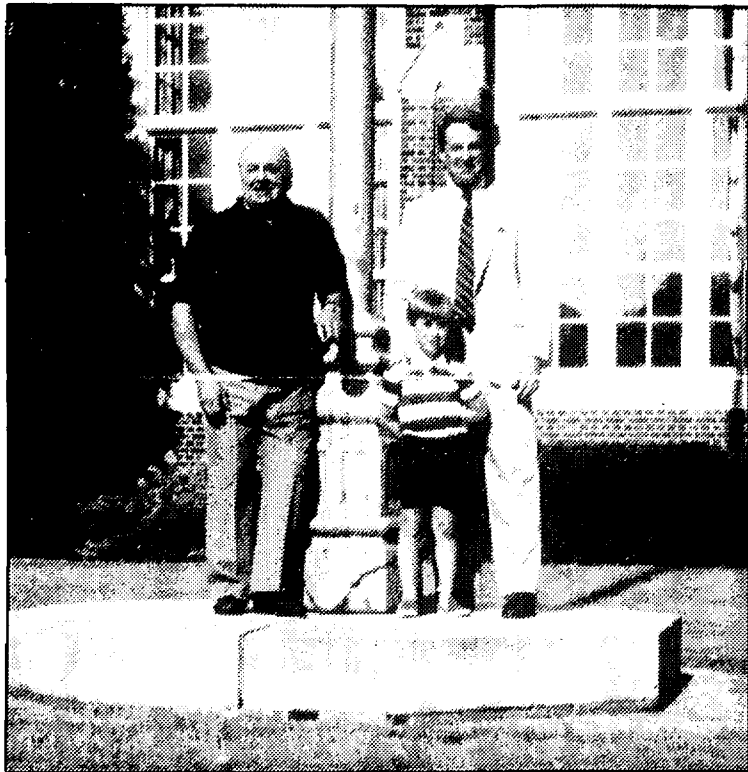

"I went to the old Trombly school, when it was located on Beaconsfield and Kercheval," Edmond said.

"It was a typical four-room school house with several classes in each room.

"We had something like a gym class that was held in the boiler room, but we did get to run in the field out back. Well, actually it was a cow pasture. Nottingham wasn't developed back then."

He, along with his brothers and sisters — seven in all — and all the other Trombly students were transferred to Defer Elementary School while the new school on Beaconsfield and Essex was constructed. The new school impressed all the students, he said.

"It was something," he said. "It was a change to a nice modern up-to-date school with lockers and the whole ball of wax."

His brothers and sisters all went through the Grosse Pointe school system and he proudly points out that at least one Neeme boy was on the Grosse Pointe High football team every year from 1931 to 1941 — a record which is still unbeaten.

He married and had children — three boys and one girl — all of whom went to Trombly.

"I can't think of one bad time at Trombly School," said his son, Robert. "I did not have one bad teacher there, either."

He said he remembers the huge playground, the auditorium which was home to all kinds of programs from concerts to plays and his days as a lieutenant and a captain of the safety patrol.

"It was a dubious honor," he remembers, "because when you were a captain you had to go around and make sure everyone was on the stations and you couldn't play baseball or soccer."

"And I made a lot of friends here, some of those friends lasted throughout high school."

It was those memories which led to the decision to purchase a home in the Trombly district, coincidentally, a house he remembers playing in as a child.

But Benjamin told his dad he wished he didn't have to go to school at all. Dad chalks it up to pre-school jitters.

"When we were walking through the halls I saw my first grade teacher making plans for this year," Neeme said. "And now my son knows the school and the janitor so I don't think he's so scared."

The Neemes feel the district has given them a lot of opportunities and memories in addition to the quality education, and they believe Benjamin will also be a recipient of the school's tradition of excellence.

Park man saves Windsor couple

A Grosse Pointe Park man rescued a Windsor couple from Lake St. Clair shortly after 6 p.m. Sept. 2.

According to police, Jeff Littmann of Harvard pulled Ted and Linda Fox out of the water on the other side of Peche Island. Littmann was boating when he saw the couple in the water.

The Windsor couple were sailing when the woman fell into the water and the man jumped in to help her. When Littmann pulled the two in, they were suffering from exposure and exhaustion.

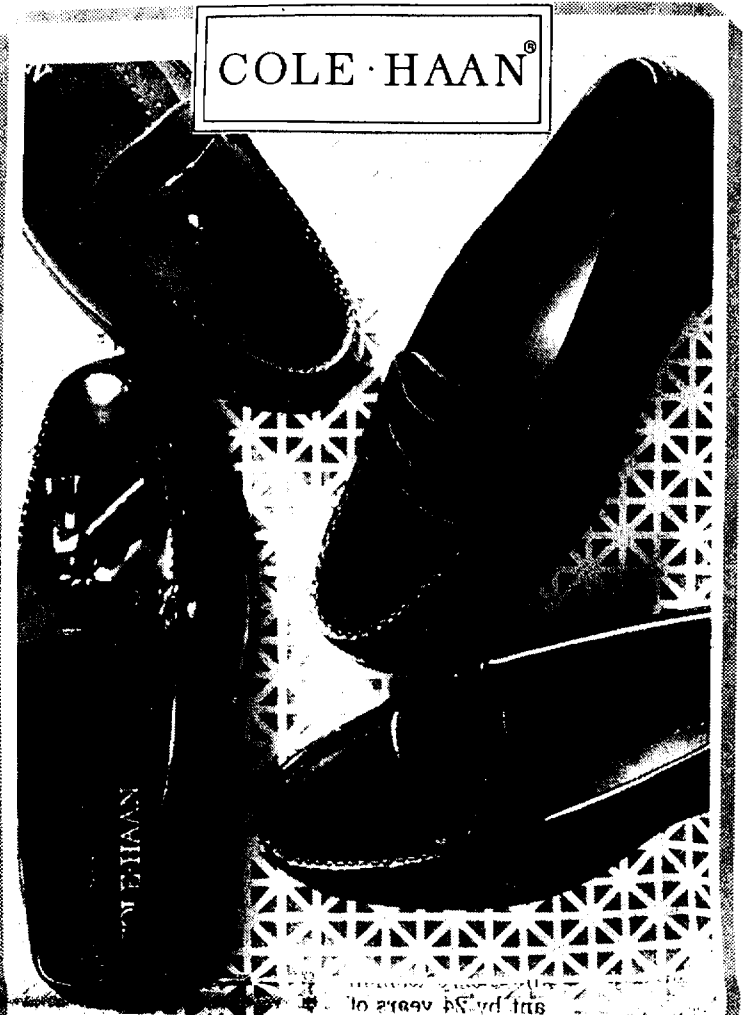

Littmann radioed the Coast Guard and then took the couple to Grosse Pointe Park's Windmill Pointe Park, where Park emergency medical technicians treated the couple for exposure. The man was conscious and the woman was semi-conscious, police said. They were taken to Bon Secours Hospital.

Pointe couple works together to fight scourge of breast cancer

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

A husband-wife research team at the Michigan Cancer Foundation has made a startling discovery which may one day lead to a vaccine for breast cancer.

Drs. Irma H. and Jose Russo of Grosse Pointe Park, who have conducted research on breast cancer together for 25 years — and have been married for 22 — were able to reduce the incidence of breast cancer in laboratory rats by treating them with a human hormone produced naturally by the placenta during pregnancy.

The findings were published in the Aug. 1 issue of the Journal of the National Cancer Institute and have received a lot of attention in the medical world, the pair said.

The hormone, chorionic gonadotropin (hCG), is produced naturally in the placenta during pregnancy and injected into virgin rats to simulate the effects of pregnancy. After the hormone treatment, the rats were then injected with a carcinogen known to produce breast cancer in other rats, but the treated animals did not develop cancer.

The cancer incidence was reduced in direct proportion to the amount of hCG injected.

"It's been known for a long time that if a woman had a full-term pregnancy before the age of 24 she is virtually protected from breast cancer for life," said Jose Russo. "But nobody knew why."

They found that women's breasts change permanently after pregnancy, and that change seems to form a protection.

Inside the breast, the mammary glands look like trees, Jose Russo said. After pregnancy the ends of the "branches," called terminal end buds, look like trees in summer, he said. Before pregnancy, the buds are not fully developed, like trees in winter.

Irma Russo says that if women could be treated with the hormone at an early age, they might be protected against breast cancer.

"Because really, every woman can't get pregnant by 24 years of age," she said.

The two are working to find a pharmaceutical company which would set up clinical testing of the treatment with women. What bothers Irma Russo is that it may take 30 years to determine whether it works on humans.

Other questions which need to be answered are what is the best age to administer treatment, and what dosage would be adequate.

To date, there are no side effects, because the treatment is natural, not chemical.

"We are very happy," Irma Russo said. "Right now there is nothing to do for breast cancer but hope for early detection. This is a hope for women."

Irma Russo sees herself as an advocate for women with breast cancer, because they are, quite often, a silent group which doesn't lobby for research funds.

Officer recognizes employee's car

An alert Grosse Pointe Park officer on patrol at 3:41 a.m. Aug. 29 noticed a car drive by that looked just like one owned by a Park employee.

The officer checked the license plate and, sure enough, the car was the city employee's, but the owner was not the one behind the steering wheel. When the officer attempted to stop the vehicle at Charlevoix and Alter, a chase ensued.

The suspect bailed out of the car at Chalmers and escaped on foot.

Woman robbed at bus stop

A 33-year-old woman got her teeth knocked out when she tried to keep from getting robbed.

The incident occurred at 7 a.m. Aug. 27 at Charlevoix and Buckingham. Men in a vehicle drove by the bus stop and then returned. The passenger got out of the car and grabbed the victim's purse.

When the woman resisted and screamed, the suspect punched her in the face. She was knocked to the ground and had several teeth knocked out.

The suspect then ran back to the waiting car, which headed west on Charlevoix.

"I'm in a rush, because it affects so many people. One woman in 10 gets breast cancer," she said.

That figure balances out to nearly 120,000 new cases of breast cancer each year in the United States alone.

This is just a small step in the pair's 18-year search for a cure for breast cancer, although it's an encouraging one.

The two have worked together in pathology for 25 years; they met in Argentina where Jose was one of Irma's teachers. They have spent the last 18 years at the Michigan Cancer Foundation studying not only the mechanics of breast cancer, but how it starts and what can be done to prevent it.

"We complement each other," he said. "In any issue we have a different point of view, but we find some common ground in talking it over."

Irma Russo calls the pair a "monument to perseverance," both inside the workplace and at home.

"Especially when you think that we have a lot of work to do; we still know nothing about cancer," she said.

From left, Maria Kozalka, research assistant, and Drs. Jose and Irma Russo search for a cure for cancer at the research facilities of the Michigan Cancer Foundation in Detroit.

Dan French dies at 49; friends remember him

By Dan Jarvis
Staff Writer

Dan French was one of those people in life who seemed to attract good friends wherever he went. So said Libby Follis, a family friend for more than a decade.

Dainforth Baker French

"He had a quiet wit that everyone loved and he was considered a best friend by many, many people," Follis said. "He was a real gentleman, very humble and very vulnerable."

Follis said she will never forget his memorial service, which was held Aug. 28 at Christ Church in Grosse Pointe Farms. She said there were some 700 people packed in the standing-room-only ceremony which left scores of friends crying in the aisles.

French, 49, whose full name was Dainforth Baker French, died Friday, Aug. 24, at St. John Hospital after being diagnosed with cancer just four months earlier.

"Dan fought bravely and with a lot of class," Follis said.

He was the third generation of a well-known family of Michigan bankers, and was known for having a wide circle of clients and friends.

Another friend, John Standish, said, "Danny was a very special person who gave so much of his life to others. He had a million friends and really thought about other people rather than himself. He was a unique person and a special friend."

He was vice chairman of the Bank of Bloomfield Hills, the most recent post in a financial career of more than two decades. In the past he was a lending officer with Comerica and with First of America.

First of America was the former City National Bank, of which the original directors in 1949 included his late grandfather, John H. French, and his father, John H. Jr., who survives his son.

French was active in several charitable and social organizations. He was the board president of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Detroit's Lourdes

Houses burglarized

A home in the 1000 block of Wayburn was broken into sometime between 8 and 8:30 a.m. Aug. 28, and a suspect has been arrested.

Police would not release the name of the suspect, who is also thought to be responsible for other burglaries, because he has not been arraigned.

The suspect got into the home through a front window by pushing in an air conditioner. A 27-inch color television was taken but found next to the rear yard fence.

A home in the 500 block of Saddle in the Woods was broken into sometime between 11:30 a.m. Aug. 31 and 4:52 a.m. Sept. 1. Entry was made by cutting a kitchen window screen and removing the storm window. The house was thoroughly searched, but the loss was unknown.

Home burglarized

A Grosse Pointe Farms woman returned to her home on Provençal at 2:55 p.m. Aug. 23 and saw a man crawling out of her bedroom window.

The woman had gone for a walk at 2 p.m. and was returning when she saw the suspect.

The man got into a van that was backed into the woman's driveway and was ready to drive off when the resident confronted him. She saw her purse on the front seat of the van and said she wanted her purse back.

The suspect gave her back the purse and drove away, according to police reports. The wallet had already been taken from the purse.

Park arboretum to be named for Abbs

The Grosse Pointe Park Beautification Commission voted unanimously to name the arboretum at Patterson Park the Jerome K. Abbs Arboretum, after Abbs, who has been an active member of the commission since 1982.

Under Abbs leadership, more than 1,000 trees were planted in the Park since 1983. A retired advertising agency executive, Abbs has always had a great interest in trees. That interest was fueled when he moved to the Park in 1952, and began landscaping his property.

He was inspired by trees planted on Lakeshore and was frustrated in his attempts to get information on trees. He received lots of misinformation which led him to study trees, and bit by bit became a master gardener and a recognized tree expert.

He is affiliated with the American Forestry Association, the National Arbor Day Foundation, Michigan Conservancy and the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

Abbs' accomplishments, which led to his nickname "Mr. Tree Promoter" and the honor, are:

- He personally initiated the reforestation of Jefferson Avenue in 1983 with the planting of 100 sycamores. This action helped the commission secure the "Tree City USA" designation for the Park.

- He developed a block-by-block reforestation plan for all of the Park.

- He prepared specifications for nursery bids, selected planting sites, checked on specimens to make sure they were of good quality and accurate size.

- He initiated many new varieties of street plantings.

- He was instrumental in developing the Grosse Pointe Park Arboretum in Patterson Park. He has identified trees already growing in the Park and has purchased more than 50 additional specimens to display the vast array of trees that will grow in this area because of the tempering effect of Lake St. Clair.

- He assisted Dr. Gerald Lanier in the Elm Disease Management program begun in 1986.

- He has been responsible for selecting and ordering the tree specimens for sales to residents of the Park.

- He has been actively involved in tree education for the community and has written several articles. He has also written for national gardening magazines.

- He was the 1989 recipient of a Keep Michigan Beautiful Award.

The official ceremony designating the arboretum will be Tuesday, Sept. 11, at 7:30 p.m. at Patterson Park. It is open to the public.

Hell hath no fury like a lady scorned

Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned, or so the early playwright William Congreve said. Now Gov. James Blanchard knows what that phrase really means.

But isn't it a pity that The Detroit News and the Free Press couldn't have waited to get Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths' side of the story before editorially endorsing Blanchard's unilateral decision to oust her from the Democratic ticket for November?

If they had waited, the dailies' editorial pages wouldn't have looked quite as silly as they do now for having approved an action that Blanchard has handled with all the delicacy of a sledgehammer and thereby prompted new questions about his administrative skills and his relations with women.

True, the Free Press editorial conceded that Ms. Griffiths had been helpful in winning support for the Blanchard-Griffiths ticket from women and older voters who "helped Gov. Blanchard win his narrow initial victory" in 1982.

But in a second editorial, reiterating its support for Blanchard, the Free told the lieutenant governor bluntly "to pack it in" and concluded she "does not deserve support in her attempts to dictate to a governor who has made a very tough decision involving some personal pain and some political risk and who has every right to decide as he did."

The News chimed in with rare support for a Blanchard decision, this time on the grounds that "if in his judgment there are doubts that the lieutenant governor is capable of being an effective governor, he did the only proper thing."

In other words, the papers' editorials seem to say, "Thanks a lot, Martha, for your previous service, but what have you done for the governor and the state lately?"

In her interview with the Free Press last Wednesday, Martha Griffiths made it clear that she felt the governor had treated her badly all the way. She indicated Blanchard had made up his mind to get rid of her even before he asked to see her health records and reveal her income tax statement.

She declined both requests on the solid grounds of invasion of privacy but she had offered, she explained, to submit to a physical examination by a physician of the governor's choice. On the tax issue, her husband said he had asked his wife to decline on grounds it would be an invasion of his privacy since they file joint tax returns.

In answering critics, Ms. Griffiths said, "He wouldn't even be governor if I hadn't helped him." It's true he was an obscure congressman when he asked her to run with him in 1982. Blanchard's apparent response is: "So what? This is 1990."

The lieutenant governor and her husband, Hicks, a former state Democratic chairman, told the Free Press they think Blanchard believes he'll be re-elected but wants to be able to leave the governor's chair if and when he chooses — perhaps to run for Don Riegler's seat should the senator be ousted as a result of the savings and loan scandal.

According to this scenario, Blanchard could resign as governor and his lieutenant governor would become governor — and promptly appoint Blanchard as senator to fill the vacancy left by Riegler's political demise.

This explanation has the ring of truth because Blanchard is a political animal who has looked out for his own political interests first, last and always and now wants to keep open as many political options as possible.

The lieutenant governor announced on Tuesday she will not contest the governor's decision, but a good many people still hope that she will at least make clear to her fellow Democrats that Blanchard's action was no way to treat a lady who had served him and the state well.

But who will be Blanchard's choice if he insists on picking a new candidate for lieutenant governor? It had better be a good one because many people, especially women and senior citizens, feel almost as aggrieved as Martha Griffiths does at her treatment.

It's worth noting, too, that on the GOP side, Sen. John Engler has come up with a solid, respectable senior citizen and state senator, Connie Binsfeld, as his running mate.

WCCC doth protest too much

A representative of Wayne County Community College took the Grosse Pointe News to task last week in a letter to the editor that charged an editorial misrepresented the college's actions and intentions in at least two ways.

In one way, the letter said, the editorial "inappropriately implied" the college had timed its announcement of its new evening program in Grosse Pointe to influence voters to approve the Aug. 7 millage request.

In the other, the letter said that the editorial "misled readers" in contending that WCCC had not told "the full story when it went to the public to ask that the current 0.25-mill levy for operating expenses be replaced by a full 1-mill levy."

In its denial that WCCC had sought to influence voters by announcing its program at South, the letter said the program had been conceived more than a year earlier and had been approved by the Grosse Pointe Board of Education in May before the WCCC trustees had voted to seek the millage.

Such arrangements obviously are not made overnight. We have no doubt the program had been under study for some time. But we thought the announcement just before the Aug. 7 election of the start of the educational program in a community that has never strongly supported the WCCC was "more than a strange coincidence." Perhaps it was only a strange coincidence.

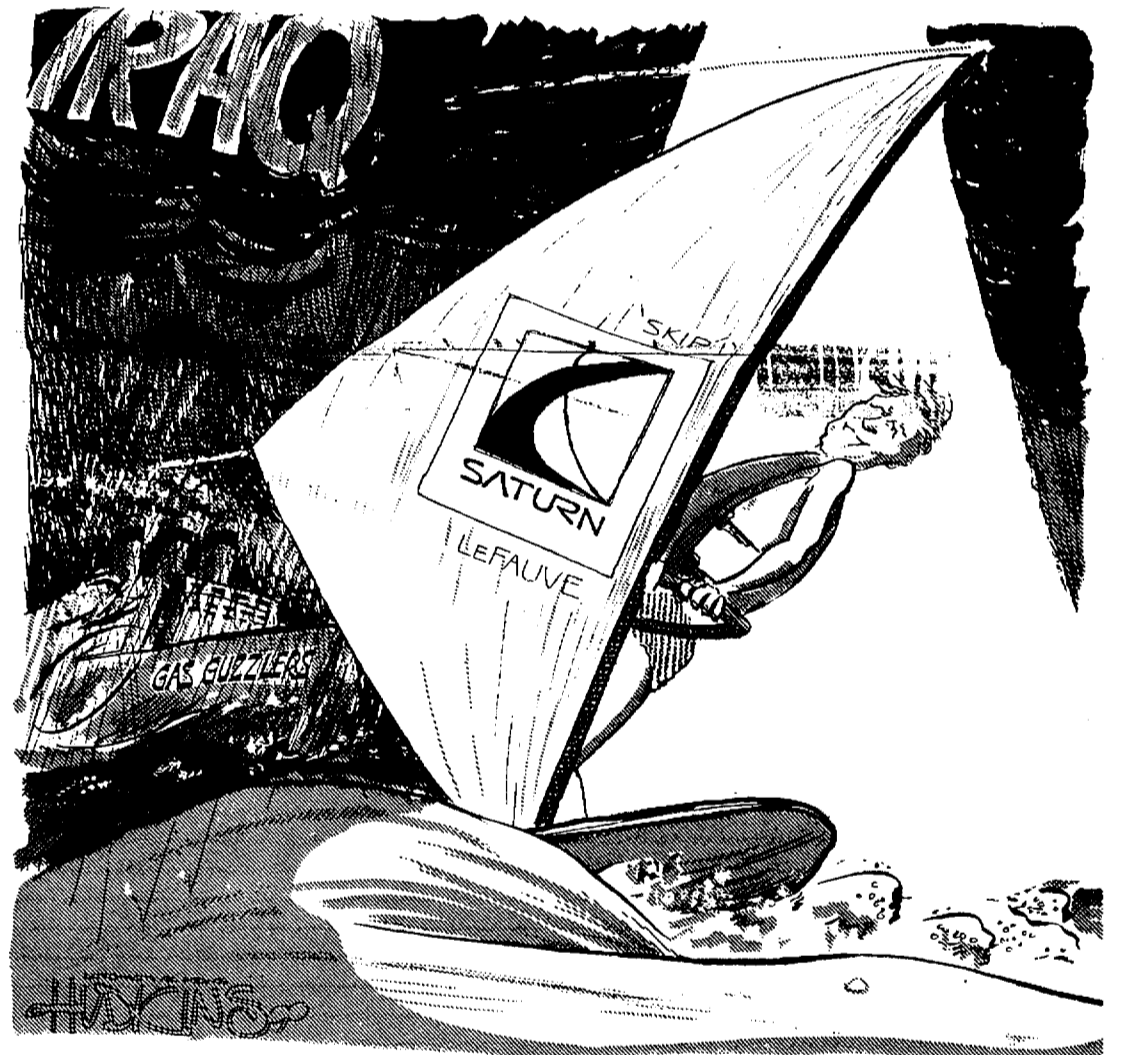

The second charge of misrepresentation is more serious, however. It was only after the Grosse Pointe News investigated the reason that property owners already were paying 0.99-mill to support WCCC that we learned, and most property owners realized, that 0.74 of that millage was going to pay off the college debt.

For WCCC now to claim that we misled the readers is curious since it never told the voters in advance that any of their tax dollars were committed to debt service even though since 1982 Grosse Pointe and other Wayne County property owners have paid more for debt service than for operating expenses of the college.

And for a college spokesperson to airily dismiss its failure to mention the 0.74-mill debt service levy on the grounds that it "is not used for operating expenses nor subject to voter approval" shows a callous indifference to taxpayers who are paying the bill for operating expenses as well as debt service.

In our view, the latest allegations that the college has been overpaying some of its faculty and the dismissal of the acting president who "blew the whistle" on that practice support this newspaper's contention that the college ought to get its house in better order before it again attempts to seek greater public funding.

In short, we think the college doth protest too much.

Adding insult to city's injury

If it weren't disappointment enough to learn that Detroit apparently will lose its prized possession of a population of one million, now three more cities from the rapidly growing Southwest have swept past Detroit in the 1990 census sweepstakes.

True, Detroit still may come up with the 30,000 more residents it needs to retain its one million status and thus might even surpass Dallas and Phoenix, which are larger than Detroit in the preliminary count but still less than one million.

But if Detroit can find more uncouneted persons, the same may be true of those cities as well. So it seems likely that Detroit will become the ninth largest city in the nation in the 1990 census and thus drop down three notches from its 1980 standing.

While Detroit has been in a downward spiral since 1950, it was still the fifth largest city as recently as 1970. But in 1980 it was surpassed by Houston and now San Diego, Dallas and Phoenix have passed it, too.

Even San Antonio is close on Detroit's heels and still growing at a 17.9 percent rate while Detroit's loss in the 1990 preliminary report was at a 19.3 percent rate.

Michigan, too, lost ground in the 1990 preliminary figures but still retained its position as the eighth largest state. Three other states immediately ahead of it in the population totals — Ohio, Illinois and Pennsylvania — also lost population but at a slower rate than Michigan's 0.9 percent.

The dipping populations for Detroit and other cities and for the state itself have some dire consequences. The state is expected to lose two congressmen as well as a vast amount of federal aid that depends on population.

Equally important, the Midwest is continuing to lose congressional clout to the rapidly growing populations of California, Florida, Arizona, Nevada and Texas. And with a rapidly aging U.S. population that tends to seek the warmer climes, the outlook for the Midwest and Northeast does not indicate any early change of population direction.

It's true that most of Michigan and the rest of the Midwest states have been spared the traffic, developmental problems and other troubles of rapidly expanding state economies.

But the prospect of a rather stable population for at least the near future ought to flash a new warning signal to state government and the people of the state.

It is that the state will have to develop more innovative ideas, more workable long-range plans and better teamwork among business, labor and the government in tackling school reform, tax problems, restoration of the state's infrastructure and the other major problems Michigan faces.

If Michigan doesn't meet this challenge, it is likely to drop even farther back in the population race and become a less attractive and profitable place in which to do business in the future.

War Memorial

To the Editor:

In response to recent letters to the editor regarding the War Memorial's acquisition of 40 Lakeshore Drive, we would like to clarify the following points:

1. The War Memorial is not asking to rezone the property to commercial use as one letter stated. The War Memorial is asking for the property to be rezoned to Community Service.

2. The War Memorial is not commercial; it is a non-profit organization that facilitates the educational, cultural, civic and patriotic needs of the Grosse Pointe community. It has done so for well over 40 years. Program calendars are mailed only to contributors and the 22,000 homes within the Grosse Pointe Public School System.

3. In an effort to maintain the current tax revenue of the city of Grosse Pointe Farms, the War Memorial has offered to pay a fee for city services.

4. To move War Memorial functions to other facilities is not feasible. The Central Library is already operating at capacity and does not have facilities adequate for our purposes; and rooms at the local schools are not available for our use and are not functional for art exhibits, meetings and lectures. Also, part of the uniqueness of the programs at the center is the War Memorial's site.

5. The board of directors are all volunteers and residents of our community, and never has any board member incurred personal or financial gain for efforts on behalf of the community. The War Memorial is making an investment for the community, and the board's wish is to preserve and enhance the quality of life for residents of all ages.

The War memorial board of directors' decision and the Grosse Pointe Farms City Council's approval to rezone the Alger House residence to Community Service in the 1940s proved to be a monumental decision. Further additions of the Fries Auditorium and Ballroom, the Art Wing, and the Junior League Carriage House offices also proved to be beneficial to all Grosse Pointers. We are confident that 40 Lakeshore will also prove to be a wonderful investment for our community while helping to preserve the Alger House as a registered historic site.

Park is great

To the Editor:

(The following letter was written to Grosse Pointe Woods Mayor George Freeman by Yorg Kerasiotis, 9. It was signed by several of his friends and delivered to Freeman on Aug. 28. It is being reprinted here at his mother's request.)

Sweeney Park Blowout. There's a small little park in-between two driveways and there are six entrances. They have a new playscape there and it is the best playscape I have ever been on in my life.

There is a twisty slide, a pulley that you hang on and you go back and forth. It has a tire swing and, my favorite, a slide that has rollers and it's very bumpy going down.

But the best thing is I made 10 friends in one day. It's the best place this year. Thank you.

Just a day off work?

Here I go again, trying to attach meaning to just another day off work. The last time was Memorial Day and I went on about the flag and our country's brave soldiers.

Well, we've just completed another one of those weekdays spent at home or at the park and I couldn't resist looking back in history to find out how Labor Day came into existence.

Many people in the community, especially those under 30, do not seem to know why we celebrate Labor Day.

According to the American Book of Days by Jane M. Hatch (3rd Edition, 1978) we do so in recognition of America's workforce, which for more than two centuries has contributed to our nation's prosperity.

Hatch says that the national holiday is most prized by members of America's labor unions, who unlike most Americans, appreciate labor's many contributions, victories and sacrifices since the dawn of the Industrial Revolution.

At the beginning of the industrial movement, most workers toiled long hours for low pay under difficult conditions. Labor as a force lacked any clout with employers or lawmakers and was without representation to improve its bargaining position.

The intolerable conditions were later portrayed in books like Upton Sinclair's "The Jungle" and several other books by muckraking authors who sought to expose those conditions to the American public.

Efforts to organize America's vast workforce began in earnest in the decades following the Civil War.

According to a long-accepted version, labor organizer Peter J. McGuire first proposed in 1882 the idea to set aside a day to honor the nation's workers.

McGuire, the son of Irish immigrants, had himself known extreme poverty and was forced to leave school at the age of 11 to hold an assortment of jobs.

In his own words, McGuire "was everthing but a swordswallower. And sometimes I was so hungry that a sword - with mustard, of course - would have tasted fine."

McGuire suggested that Labor

Day be celebrated on the first Monday in September because, as he put it, "It would come at the most pleasant season of the year, nearly midway between the Fourth of July and Thanksgiving."

And so it was in 1882 on Sept. 5, that the first Labor Day celebration took place in New York City.

Many in this area may remember that Detroit often played host to elaborate Labor Day celebrations including parades and even political speeches by Democratic candidates who launched their campaigns from what is now Kennedy Square.

Today's unionized labor force has dwindled significantly since the days of Franklin Delano Roosevelt's New Deal, which placed several government controls on industry. The New Deal spelled out guidelines which are credited with protecting the American worker as well as stirring industrial activity and, in turn, overall economic activity.

Numerous debates have raged on the effects of an organized labor force on American industry. Recessions such as the one during the Carter administration had crippling effects not only on America's economy, but on the labor force as a whole.

Massive layoffs and plant closings by major industrial powers such as General Motors have made the company a logical choice as this year's possible strike target in automotive contract negotiations.

Some gloomy predictions say if industrial workers' morale and overall numbers keep dwindling, that the United States will be home to primarily service industries. Many believe this is already the case.

In 1956, when labor in America was stronger and healthier, the U.S. government even issued a Labor Day stamp - a half century after McGuire's death.

If the industrial strength of other nations keeps growing at breakneck speed, perhaps Congress after a decade or two will issue a service industry stamp just in time for Service Industry Day. By then, the first Monday in September should be available.

Anyway, Labor Day is about more than barbecues and beer.

I don't claim to be an expert on the subject, but for you in the 20-something set, the sacrifices your parents and grandparents made long ago probably put you where you are today.

Whew! OK, I'm done. I can hardly wait until Sadie Hawkins Day.

Opposed

To the Editor:

I am a Grosse Pointe Farms property owner and have been a Grosse Pointe resident for over 40 years. On Monday, Sept. 10, I must be out of town on business, so I will not be able to attend the hearing for amendment to the zoning ordinance to allow the War Memorial use of an adjoining residential property for non-residential purposes.

I am strongly opposed to the proposed change for the following reasons:

1. Removal from tax rolls of $1,000,000 worth of real estate. This will naturally increase the tax burden for all remaining Grosse Pointe Farms residents' city taxes, and will increase school taxes for all Grosse Pointers. War Memorial use also blocks private development of the property which could greatly increase tax revenues for community use.

2. The War Memorial now provides a wonderful community service, and already has a large enough facility to provide for Grosse Pointe. Further enlargement is not needed to serve this community.

3. Many War Memorial activities compete with private enterprises, and an enlargement or extension of activities will harm the business community by encouraging and providing more tax-free competition to business.

4. Enlargement of the War Memorial will cause more traffic, noise and similar problems, and will lower residential values in the area. Homeowners in this area bought property based on present zoning rules, and they expect our city to protect and enforce zoning ordinances.

Please protect the interests of our community and oppose this zoning change.

Proud

To the Editor:

Every time I have gone to the base to visit my son in the service, I have been impressed by our soldier's disappointment that no one seems to appreciate what they always stand ready and willing to do.

Now we have an excellent opportunity to let them know how very appreciated they are and how very proud we are of them! I respectfully submit my small contribution to this cause.

Determined

America's finest, our strongest and best,
Pour like a torrent from out of the West;
Ready and able to do what needs done,
Determined to stay till the battle is won!

Fearsome and mighty, they take up their stand,
Building a stronghold in hot desert sand;
Not one deterred by the blistering sun,

Determined to stay till the battle is won!

Spread like a tide on the vast trackless space,
Fierce warriors, undaunted whate'er they must face;
Protectors of freedom with each loaded gun,
Determined to stay till the battle is won!

Slanted

To the Editor:

The headline of the August 1990 issue of the Pointer was intentionally slanted and sensationalized. To wit: the headline, "Crime statistics scare Grosse Pointe Park residents," was not backed up in the accompanying article with any comments by Park citizens, nor was there any citizen survey or poll to substantiate the headline.

As most educated folks know, there are statistics to play with and there are facts to work with. The facts are 1) The public safety and security of Grosse Pointe Park has never been better, 2) breaking and enterings are on a dramatic decrease, 3) the city is blessed with the finest, most professional and most aggressive Public Safety Department in the State of Michigan, and 4) in 1989, the FBI reports the Park's crime stats were in fact below such fine communities of Traverse City, Farmington, Troy, Alpena, Farmington Hills, and on and on. As a result, property values in Grosse Pointe Park are at an all-time high.

School taxes

To the Editor:

Mr. Cook's letter last week regarding school and library taxes raised a number of points that need to be clarified.

1. Statistics from the Michigan Department of Education show that in 1988 Grosse Pointe teachers' salaries ranked 9th in the state (not 5th) and our per pupil cost was 13th statewide (not 4th). The salary statistic is misleading without noting that the average Grosse Pointe teacher has worked 25 years in our school system and has 10 hours of postgraduate training beyond a master's degree.

2. In June 1989 voters approved a 2.2 mill increase, not 3.3 mills.

3. The 9.5 percent increase

Best decorated

The Metropoulos family of Grosse Pointe Farms won an award at the Detroit Yacht Club's Venetian Night on Aug. 11.

The club's week-long celebration included decorated boats, a fish fry and a dinner dance.

Drs. Peter and Lanore Metropoulos, Dr. George Metropoulos, Mary Resh, Kathy Vouharas and John Metropoulos won the prize for the best decorated boat on Main Dock.

Appreciation

The price of an existing single-family home in Michigan increased by 5 percent to an average price of $72,432 during the first half of 1990, according to statistics compiled by Century 21 Real Estate Corp.

The national inflation rate in June 1990 was 4.7 percent.

Hawaii enjoyed the highest rate of appreciation for homes - 26.2 percent. Homes in Delaware, Vermont, New Hampshire and New Jersey recorded average depreciation in excess of 2 percent during the six-month comparison period.

A whale of a time

Sidney Dupont, Grosse Pointe Academy's headmaster, and his wife booked a trip on a whale-watching expedition recently while vacationing in Cape Cod.

They saw 13 whales ... and John Whritner, former Grosse Pointe school superintendent, and his wife.

An educational expedition was had by all.

Avoid gridlock

Got a letter to mail before you go to work in the morning?

Want to avoid the traffic jam that occasionally forms at the drive-by mailbox on Mack Avenue near Kerby in front of the post office?

Turn into the post office parking lot and drive straight back.

There's a drive-by mail box (on the driver's side of the car, yet) just before you turn at the alley.

Then say thanks to Judy Mathews, of Grosse Pointe Farms, who thinks more people should use the box in the lot.

More bizniz boomers

On Aug. 23, this column noted Crain's Detroit Business' list of business men and women who are destined to shine during the '90s - and noted the Grosse Pointers who were included.

Well, we forgot one. Richard David, partner, KPMG Peat Marwick, is also a Grosse Pointer.

And Thomas Jeffs II, is not a former Pointer, but is still a Pointer.

in the 1990-1 school budget was not solely for teachers' salaries. Part of that increase was to fund a number of improvements, both in programs and buildings, that we had hoped to make this school year. Now part of that increase will offset the recent and unexpected loss of $1.6 million in state categorical aid. To our knowledge, we are the only out-of-formula school district absorbing this loss without going to the taxpayers for additional money.

4. All Grosse Pointe public schools do operate 181 days a year.

5. "Extra pay for extra duty" is money paid to athletic coaches and advisers to various school clubs, newspapers, etc. This extra duty requires a substantial time commitment on the part of a limited number of teachers, who work evenings, weekends, and holidays with students involved in extracurricular activities.

6. The Blue Cross-Blue Shield plan we offer to our employees is competitive with that offered by other school districts in the state. Like Mr. Cook, we are concerned with health care costs, and we are looking at ways to contain those costs while at the same time being fair and equitable to our employees. We will continue to address this issue in all negotiations.

7. The retirement plan for the Grosse Pointe Public School System is mandated by the state, as is our 5 percent contribution. All school systems in Michigan are required to offer the same retirement benefits.

8. All contracts with employees other than teachers are negotiated separately. While there are some similarities, there are also many differences.

In Grosse Pointe, much of the cost of running the school system falls directly on the individual taxpayer. That is because we have no industrial tax base and only a small business community to help dissipate the tax burden. The nature and character of our community is something we chose and presumably want to continue. Unfortunately, that means individual taxpayers pay a larger percentage of school taxes than residents in other communities with substantial industrial and/or business holdings.

The board of education has always been acutely conscious of the tax burden on our residents. Consequently the board has tried to keep costs down without affecting the quality of education offered to our students. Over the past five years (1985-1990), the average Grosse Pointe school tax increase has been 5.7 percent. Compare that to Bloomfield's 6.2 percent, Birmingham's 7.5, or Troy's 9.4!

Mr. Cook has spent an enormous amount of time studying the school budget, and we appreciate his interest. It is because of knowledgeable and committed residents like him that Grosse Pointe has both a school system and community of which we can all be proud.

Gun control

To the Editor:

While I was serving as press secretary to President Reagan, a man named John Hinckley shot me during his failed attempt to assassinate the president. Hinckley easily purchased his concealable Saturday Night Special at a Dallas pawnshop. In Texas, as in more than half of the states in America, there is no "cooling-off" period to give police the chance to run a background check on the buyer. Each day I live with the consequences of that easy gun sale.

The U.S. House of Representatives is set for a showdown on several important gun control bills this fall.

The one I'm watching with the most interest is supported by 91 percent of the American people, every major police organization in the nation, and is vital if America hopes to reduce its ever-escalating level of handgun violence.

This legislation is known as the Brady Bill (H.R. 467) and would require a national, seven-day "cooling-off" period before the purchase of a handgun. During those seven days, local law enforcement officials would have the opportunity to run criminal records checks of handgun purchasers. This cooling-off period would prevent the John Hinckleys of the world from easily buying handguns over-the-counter.

Last year, 9,536 Americans were murdered with handguns. And according to a Justice Department study, 639,000 violent crimes a year are committed by criminals armed with handguns. No American is safe from the threat of handgun violence.

We fell a few votes short of passing the Brady Bill last time, but each member of Congress will have the chance to vote on this key bill within the next several weeks. My wife, Sarah, and I are asking all Americans to help pass this public safety bill by writing their representatives urging a vote for the Brady Bill. Because seven days can save a life.

Reflections

For our 50th anniversary issue, we invited readers to submit their memories of Grosse Pointe past. We received hundreds of responses from all over the country and were able to include nearly all of them in the special issue which came out June 28.

Since then, we've had requests to continue "Reflections." This will give those who later said they had planned to send something but didn't a chance to get their reminiscences on record. Submit your memories to: Reflections, Grosse Pointe News, 96 Kercheval, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich. 48236.

On my retirement from Mason School, the P.T.A. celebrated the occasion by inviting the com-

Park man charged

A Park man in his late 30s was scheduled to be arraigned Thursday in Grosse Pointe Park Municipal Court for armed robbery.

The incident occurred in the early evening hours Aug. 23 when the Park man allegedly robbed a female visitor who is reported to be 20-year-old from the west side.

On the day following the incident, the woman reported the incident to Park police. Based on her statements, a search warrant was obtained for the Park man's upper flat in the 700 block of Harcourt.

Sufficient physical evidence was obtained during the search to corroborate the victim's statements and the Park man was arrested without incident. He was released pending a warrant from the prosecutor's office, which was issued Aug. 28.

According to police, the woman was in the Park man's flat and he had given her money. He then demanded the money back and allegedly threatened her with a rifle.

The Park man was expected to turn himself in at his arraignment Sept. 6. He is being charged with armed robbery and felony firearm.

munity to an afternoon tea. Since I had taught at Mason for almost 30 years, a great many people attended. It was a festive affair on a beautiful May afternoon.

Among several gifts was a generous sum of money which troubled me. Grosse Pointe, I felt, had paid me well as a teacher, so what could I do for the children to help show the parents how very much I appreciated their generosity.

My final decision was to write Hardie Gramatky, an author and illustrator of books for children who was on assignment for the Air Force.

He graciously and generously answered my letter offering to paint an illustration from "Little Toot" which I could have framed for our library. Needless to say, I happily accepted.

On the day I was to tell the story of "Little Toot" to a group of children, several adults were quietly talking in the Library. One child who knew why I was hesitating (hoping the adults would leave) asked me, "Ohh, why don't you let them stay, Miss Sagala?" The response from one of the adults, a reporter on the Grosse Pointe News staff, was "Ohh, yes, Miss Sagala why don't you let us stay?"

Brownies help out

Members of Brownie Troop 766 at Trombly Elementary School took part in a recycling project as one of the requirements to earn a special Girl Scout Earth Day 1990 patch. The girls collected newspaper, glass, plastic and aluminum from neighbors and from their own homes. The collected items were then placed into the proper bins at the Grosse Pointe Park Recycling Center on the corner of Jefferson and Barrington. Shown are Ann Swickard, Rebecca Brady, Jessica Brady, Carin MacKinnon, Shelleyann Hancock, Lauren Pawlaczyk, Lisa Maltz, Athena Inempolidis and Sia Theokas. Not shown are Leslie Stieber, Robyn Holmes and Christina Bakalis.

Leeches become attached to surgery therapy

Most people squirm when they think about leeches. But doctors at Henry Ford Hospital are using these tiny blood-sucking worms for a fascinating type of therapy that is helping certain patients recover from surgery.

The leech therapy is effectively being used on patients who have lost fingers or toes in accidents and had them reattached through surgery. Sometimes these patients have poor blood circulation after surgery, because the original blood in the affected areas blocks the passageway for fresh blood to enter. By applying leeches to the site, the "old blood" is removed creating room for fresh blood to circulate.

"The leeches not only help to remove some of the old blood, but they also emit certain chemicals which can dilate vessels in the affected tissue," said Peter Janevski, M.D., a hand surgeon at Henry Ford. "This helps improve blood circulation in a manner that cannot be achieved through medications."

Only one leech is applied to each finger or toe, and it may suck blood for up to a half hour. When the leech has had its fill of blood, it will automatically let go. By this time the leech may have grown as much as three inches.

The area will continue to bleed for the next 12-24 hours. The therapy is painless because most of the patients do not yet have any feeling in the affected areas.

Doctors can determine if there has been an improvement in circulation shortly after the therapy is completed. If it is successful, the area will turn from a bluish color to a pinkish color.

Doctors had few alternatives for treating these patients before the leech therapy. Sometimes fingernails or toenails were removed or incisions were made in the affected areas to facilitate bleeding.

Anticoagulants, drugs prescribed for blood clotting, also were used to help improve circulation. But Janevski says the leech therapy has proved to be the most effective type of treatment.

"The leeches are very effective through their own components by relieving congestion where it could not be done with other means," Janevski said.

Leech therapy is only used to treat specific cases, he said. It cannot be used, for example, to help restore poor blood circulation caused by heart disease.

Navin awards help students overcome odds

By Dan Jarvis
Staff Writer

For the third consecutive year, the Children's Home of Detroit has helped its students by presenting the Jack Navin Humanitarian awards.

William C. Rands, president of the home's board of directors, said that three years ago the Children's Home Fundraising Committee sought ways of rewarding its students who showed great initiative and excelled in their studies.

"The Jack Navin award was established as part of the endowment for the Children's Home," Rands said.

The Navin Humanitarian Fund award is currently administered by the survivors of the late Jack Navin.

Rands said the award was in part patterned after University Liggett School's Terrill Newnan award. Rands explained that Navin and Newnan were childhood friends.

Both awards are given each year to the top few students and are designed to provide academic enrichment. Students who reside at the Children's Home are also awarded a plaque for permanent placement in the Children's Home Barnard School Building.

Funds are also provided to pay membership dues in the Boys Club and Girls Club of Detroit.

Rands said, "Navin was a remarkable fellow who was well-known in the Grosse Pointes."

He added that Navin loved the adventure of life and was curious about many things.

Navin, born in 1911, lived until 1987, and was a Greek scholar, an artist and a world traveler.

During his youth, Navin's great-uncle was the owner of the Detroit Tiger baseball club and knew baseball greats like Ty Cobb and Hank Greenberg.

Later, he became a nationally recognized portrait photographer and applied his talents to designing classic home and office interiors around the world.

Rands said Navin's character combined many strengths such as a sense of community, love of his Detroit heritage and an artistic and intellectual breadth gained in Detroit, New York, Hollywood and Europe.

Above all, Rands said, Navin had a genuine interest in those around him, especially young people and their development and growth.

The Navin Humanitarian Award Fund was recently used to establish a nature center at the Barnard School, and to fund scholarship awards, a living science program and special education events.

Anyone interested in making a memorial contribution to the Jack Navin Humanitarian Fund may write the Children's Home of Detroit, 900 Cook Road, Grosse Pointe Woods, 48236.

Ballet teacher learns new steps

Mary Ellen Cooper, a member of the board of directors and a permanent senior examiner for the Cecchetti Council of America, went back to ballet school this summer.

She attended the Bishop Otter College in Chichester, Sussex, England, for an intense schedule of the latest ballet techniques during the 35th annual Cecchetti Summer School.

The Cecchetti method of ballet training is a rigorous system drawn up with careful regard for the laws of anatomy, designed to endow the dancer's body with balance, poise and strength.

"I came back with a renewed level of inspiration to teach the new techniques I learned," Cooper said. "This is the highest level of professional ability in the Cecchetti method and I hope to introduce it at a variety of levels to all my students this fall."

She will teach adult classical ballet workshops at the War Memorial beginning Monday, Sept. 17, through Nov. 28, for people with some experience; Tuesday, Sept. 18, for beginners; and Wednesday, Sept. 19, for intermediate students, from 8:20 p.m. to 9:40 p.m.

Fees are $52 for 11 weeks, one hour a week; $90 for 11 weeks, two hours a week; and $126 for 11 weeks, three hours a week.

Cooper will also teach a youth classical ballet workshop at the War Memorial running Monday through Friday, starting Thursday, Sept. 13, from 4 to 6:30 p.m. and Saturdays, starting Sept. 15, from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Fees are $52 for 12 weeks, one lesson a week; $91 for 12 weeks, two lessons a week; and $126 for 12 weeks, three lessons a week.

Registration is by interview on Monday, Sept. 10, and Tuesday, Sept. 11, from 3:30 to 6 p.m. at the War Memorial.

For more information, call 881-7511. Visa/MC accepted on phone orders, with a minimum order of $20, plus 50 cents handling fee.

mentary, then to Parcels Middle School. He graduated from Grosse Pointe High School just one year before it was renamed Grosse Pointe South. Like many, Fenton had anxieties about his first day of school. "I was very nervous about going off to school and was always scared to go back," Fenton said. "The same feeling still applies today. Now that I'm in charge of many non-instructional projects for the district, I'm still nervous about the first day of school." One of the things Fenton is nervous about is the renovation of the swimming pool at North High School, "which won't be done on the first day," he said, "but will be done soon afterward." Lillian Kachadourian, a teacher at Trombly Elementary School for the past 25 years, said she can also appreciate a student's anxiety on the first day. As a teacher of young children, she sees a similarity between students who came into her classroom 25 years ago and the students who come in today. According to Kachadourian, their concerns have not changed at all. "They want to know what the teacher will be like and they're afraid of making mistakes," Kachadourian said. "The kids are also worried about getting lost or forgetting a school rule and many are worried that the work will be too difficult. "My feeling is that the teacher needs to establish a feeling of trust and understanding the minute the students walk in." Kachadourian said she remembers feeling concerned over leaving the house and going off to a school building that was overwhelming and very far away. "I was ready but I felt very anxious and cautious about what was to come," she said. "These are the things that young students experience. The most important thing for the teachers is to establish trust right away. That's the first step in education."

An employee of Bob Schomer Tree Service works on a stump from an elm tree that had just been cut down because of Dutch elm disease. The tree was in the 900 block of Lincoln in the City.

"I lost one this year, one of my favorites," said Tarabula, who has a degree in forestry from the University of Michigan and a biology degree from Eastern Michigan University. He works full time for the Park. Grosse Pointe Woods' tree man Joe Shock, a foreman with the Department of Public Works, said his city expends most of its energy in quickly getting rid of diseased trees and planting replacement trees. He said the Woods has lost 30 elms so far this year. The Shores has lost only a few elms on public property this year, according to Public Works Director Brett Smith. In the past, annual losses have been in the teens, he said.

Wine seminar, tasting planned

Bonnie Delsner, who has been involved with wine and food over the years as a caterer, wine importer and wholesaler and has traveled extensively to various wine regions, will instruct the first of three wine tasting seminars at the War Memorial beginning Wednesday, Sept. 12, with "New Wines on the Block." The seminars will explore a variety of wines that some of California's newborn wineries have been producing. Participants will taste a range of six wines from a few of the best newcomers. Seminar fee is $15; class begins at 7:30 p.m. Advanced registration is required. The topic of the second seminar on Oct. 3 is "The Re-emergence of Southern French Wines," and on Nov. 7, the topic will be "California Rhone Varietals." For more information call 881-7511.

Cancer symposium planned

Survivors are what many people with cancer prefer to call themselves. Through networking and workshops, cancer survivors are able to share experiences, gather information and learn more about new cancer research. The Henry Ford Medical Center - Pierson Clinic will present a symposium, "Cancer Survivorship: Issues in Focus" from 9:30 a.m. until 5 p.m., Friday, Sept. 21, at the Hyatt Regency in

Dearborn. There will be a reception following the program. Topics to be discussed include sexuality, changes in interpersonal relationships, the role of emotions during and after treatment, spirituality, as well as breakthroughs in cancer research. The keynote speaker is Patricia Rieker, Ph.D., director of psychosocial research, Dana-Farber Cancer Institute Harvard Medical School. The conference is open to patients, families, friends, physicians, health professionals, attorneys and theologians. The symposium has been approved for 6.25 CME credits. Registration is limited to 200 participants. For more information, call Nina Vulpetti at 594-6956 or Alice Morgan at 343-5901.

home is being, and has been, enjoyed by the public through tours, exhibits and other events.

His role in preserving the past — something in which he is firmly committed — is linked to his childhood when he lived in a large apartment with his family above the Verheyden Funeral Home.

His father, Clayton Alandt, helped run the funeral home and, in fact, convinced Charles Verheyden to move to Grosse Pointe when it was still "the sticks," Alandt said.

Alandt worked at the funeral home while studying for his mortuary license. It was expected that he would become a mortician like his father.

But Alandt, who hated chemistry, said, "I switched to business and found life to be more sensible." He graduated from the Detroit Institute of Technology with a bachelor's degree in business administration.

Before graduation, he met his future wife, Lynn Ford, at a cocktail party. They were married in June 1975, "the hottest day on record," he recalls.

The following year, his wife's grandmother, Eleanor Clay Ford, died. Her 60-room Cotswold house, while not inhabited, continued to be maintained by employees. Before Alandt's father-in-law, Benson Ford, died in 1978, he asked his son-in-law if he would be interested in running the house according to Mrs. Ford's wishes.

Alandt started his new job Aug. 1, 1978. It was a tremendous challenge, he said, because there were no handbooks on what to do and how to go about it. There were long discussions with family members.

Mrs. Ford wanted the house left intact and she left a sum of money for its maintenance.

His first office, Alandt said, was a desk in the library. They began hosting events for non-profit groups and before long were scheduling 30 functions a month.

Furniture was being moved around on a daily basis, Alandt said, and there were many problems with adapting a house used for family living to a center for various activities.

First, the house was on a septic system, Alandt said, and the plumbing had to be updated. "We had no parking lots, we didn't have coat racks, we didn't have tables and chairs and we had to do everything from scratch," he said.

"We had to put in a decent telephone system and we had to have stationery. We had to decide where to put the men's room and the women's room."

People were in awe of the house, he said, and he had a stack of thick folders from groups requesting tours. There were discussions on what to name the house which had been simply known before as granny's house.

An expert was hired to research the furnishings and paintings, which had not been cataloged.

The Edsel & Eleanor Ford House Foundation was set up as a non-profit organization, beginning a long tax dispute case. "It took us about eight years to get tax-exempt status," Alandt said.

During this time, the house was the site of many functions. "Food had to be carried from one end of the house to another," Alandt said. "It couldn't be wheeled over because it would destroy the carpeting."

Paul Alandt stands at the lakeside part of the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House where he is president and chief executive officer.

The events were creating considerable wear and tear on the house and it was decided to curtail them and offer public tours.

A docent corps was begun in 1980. "We started off with about eight retired school teachers," Alandt said, "and many of them are still here."

Today there are 23 docents who conduct tours Wednesday through Sunday at 1, 2, 3 and 4 p.m. Noon tours are offered from May through December.

Alandt credits the staff for maintaining the house through the years. It's due, he said, to their "great feel for this house. It's their house."

It was Alandt's idea to build an activities center, opened earlier this year. It houses exhibits and various events and acts as a meeting place and conference center. It's the first time anything has been built on the property since the original buildings went up and Alandt said, "We now have the building in full swing."

Alandt's plans for the future include opening the powerhouse for public tours. There is a tunnel running from the main house to the powerhouse from which heat is piped through to the house. He would like to open up the pool house as well.

Another feature will be Mrs. Ford's car — a 1952 Lincoln that is in the process of being restored. There were only two like it built — one for the queen of England and one for Mrs. Ford. It will be displayed in the garage, possibly by November, Alandt said.

"One of the last things we ever want to do is be in competition with our Grosse Pointe War Memorial," Alandt said. "I feel we have a good rapport with the War Memorial, however, we are something different and we want to continue that way."

Alandt serves on the board of Cottage Hospital, Boys Hope of Detroit, Metropolitan Detroit Convention and Visitors Bureau, Historic Trinity Church and the advisory board of the Junior League of Detroit.

He is also a member of the Founders Society of the Detroit Institute of Arts, the Detroit Zoological Society, the Grosse Pointe Club, 100 Club, the Bayview Yacht Club, the Detroit Athletic Club and the Grosse Pointe Historical Society.

The house he and his wife live in is her parents' home, which they moved into after her mother died in 1980. "So many of our homes are being destroyed," Alandt said, "but that one won't, not as long as we're here."

Because they are involved in many charitable events and sit on a number of committees, Alandt said he and his wife try to live as quiet and private a life as possible. They enjoy boating and spending time in Florida every year.

Man arrested in parking lot

A 22-year-old Detroit man was arrested by Farms police Aug. 27 in the parking lot at Mack and Moross.

Police officers responding to a report of suspects trying car doors in the parking lot observed a 1990 Ford Probe occupied by the suspects. The car pulled into a parking space, backed out and then into another.

A check on the Probe via the state law enforcement computer revealed the car was reported as a non-returned rental.

The officers watched while the three suspects in the car got out and went into a store. When the suspects came out of the store, got in the car and began driving off, the officers stopped the car.

One of the men was found with a warrant and was arrested. He was also found possessing an American Express card that was not his.

Nissan Maxima is tailored for American taste and style

I was shifting through the gears toward a reasonable highway speed on a beautiful stretch of Ohio Route 2 through the Sandusky Bay area toward Cleveland when I realized that I really liked this car. It was one of the best sports sedans I had ever driven and a bunch of half-formed thoughts began bubbling up to the more or less conscious part of my mind.

What prompted the bubbling was the thought that said: "The only thing I can find that I don't like about this car is that it was built in Japan." And then: "That's dumb."

This past summer I had driven the new Toyota MR2, Land Cruiser and Previa. And now this 1990 Nissan Maxima SE. I was having my attitude readjusted by the excellence and value of these new Japanese cars. I admit to a prejudice in favor of American cars, but it is getting difficult to tell what an American car is.

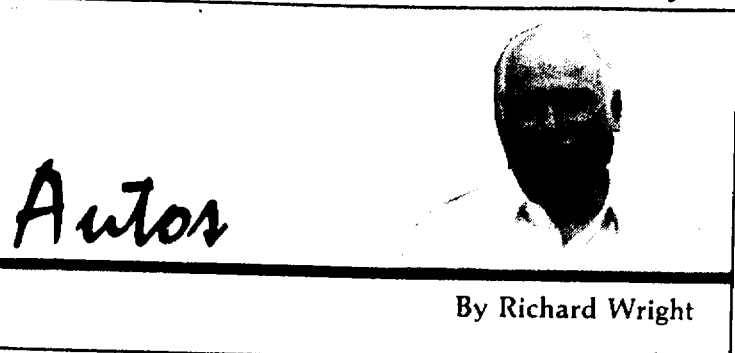

A Ford Crown Victoria? This most American looking and feeling of automobiles has enough foreign content that it is regarded by Washington as an import. Ford did that to get it out of consideration for determination of its domestic CAFE rating. The Ford Probe and the new Escort are built in the United States, but they are basically Mazda designs, at least mechanically. Are they American or Japanese?

What about the Hondas that are built in Ohio or the Mazdas built in Flat Rock? Are Japanese cars built in America American? What about Toyota Corollas built in California and sold as both Toyota Corollas and Chevrolet Prizms?

And how about the Plymouth Laser, Eagle Talon and Mitsubishi Eclipse built in Illinois by a joint venture of Chrysler Corp. and Mitsubishi? Are they foreign or American or what? The Cadillac Allante has an American drivetrain and a body designed and built in Italy. The Eagle Premier features Italian styling, French and American engineering and assembly in Canada.

What are the "capitulations" ports, the Chevrolet Geo line, the Dodge and Plymouth Colt, the Ford Festiva, the Mercury Tracer and the Pontiac LeMans? They are all built abroad but marketed with American nameplates. And the 1991 Dodge Shadow convertible is built in Mexico.

domestic and import is no longer valid. But let's get back to the Maxima. Nissan had been on a gentle decline for several years, but that was reversed in 1989, the year Nissan redid its flagship Maxima.

The Maxima SE is powered by a single-overhead-cam 3.0-liter V-6 with iron block and aluminum heads rated at 160 hp. The five-speed manual transmission is extremely smooth and precise. The power train is more than ample to cruise at interstate speeds without working the engine hard at all.

The suspension, with struts and coil springs all around and anti-roll bars at each end, provides the driver with complete control and with the optional SE Sport package you get anti-lock brakes and even greater control.

The old Maxima had excellent mechanicals, but this new one has more than that, it also has nerve and style. Its sleek aerodynamic look turns heads and it is fun to drive and pleasant to look at.

Japanese engineers have been paying a lot of attention in recent years to what Americans like in a car and it is obvious that they found it's more than just fit and finish. Sound, for example. Much was made over how the Mazda Miata's exhaust sound was tuned to jog memories of post-war sports cars and the Maxima's sound is pleasant and powerful, rather like a Pontiac.

Base price of the Maxima SE is $19,224 and the SE Sport package kicks it up to a little more than $20,000. But for what you get, this sports sedan which can run with the best from the U.S. or Europe is a real bargain. Standard equipment includes air conditioning, a premium Nissan/Bose sound system, power windows, power door locks, power outside mirrors, power sunroof, cruise control, rear defroster and tilt steering wheel. The EPA rates the Maxima at 20 miles per gallon in the city.

Ranked by J.D. Power & Co.

as the car with the fewest customer complaints last year, the Maxima is an indication of how far Nissan has come since it began importing an odd-looking little car called the Datsun into the United States in 1958. After selling 1,002 that year and drifting for several years without making much of an impression on the American market, Nissan began tailoring cars for the American taste and began gaining in sales during the '60s and '70s. The company now assembles cars here and is the fourth largest vehicle producer in the world, according to Automotive News.

Nissan is also the oldest of the current Japanese car makers. In 1912, Kwaishinga Motor Car Works began building an experimental car which was put into production in 1914. It was called the Dat, derived from the initials of the partners, Den, Aoyama and Takeuchi.

In 1926, Kwaishinsha merged with another company to form Dat Automobile Manufacturing Co., which oddly enough quit building the Dat and began making a car called the Lila. Then it began manufacturing only trucks.

It returned to car manufacture in 1930 with the "Son-of-Dat," or "Datson." This was changed to "Datsun" in 1932 in a burst of nationalism to make use of Japan's rising sun emblem. The company name was changed to Nissan in 1934.

Nissan offered a full range of cars in the latter '30s, based on the British Austin Seven. Most Japanese cars of this era were copies of European or American cars, including the Graham-Paige, from which Nissan bought tooling. After World War II, Nissan built a car in 1948 which looked a lot like an American Crosley, then added a British-style sports car in 1952.

Americans did not take the Japanese industry with its imitative ways very seriously. "Made in Japan" meant "cheap." Things have changed.

As part of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's annual refurbishing process, the public facility is shut down for a week and everything in sight is repaired, cleaned and polished. This year, War Memorial houseman Marc Gregory, of Grosse Pointe Shores, put the finishing touches on the silver chandelier in the Alger House dining room.

New categories hold old favorites in catalog

The fall brochure of program offerings of the Department of Community Education contains new sections titled "Home and Garden" and "Consumer Awareness."

"We found that we were cramming too much into the 'Special Interest' section of the flyer," said George T. Eddington, director of community education. "We decided that we had more than enough possibilities in the areas to justify creation of the sections. We just hope that people looking for a favorite class under 'Special Interest' who do not find it, will not give up."

For example, several of the department's most popular classes, "Upholstery" and "Wallpapering" are now in the new category.

There are 17 "Home and Garden" classes offered this fall. They are "Antique Furniture," "Composting," "Decorating Your Home for the Holidays," "Do It Yourself: Electrical Demonstration," "Do It Yourself: Plumbing Demonstration," and "Fall Care of Roses."

Others are "First Time Home Buyers," "Get Your House Ready to Sell," "The Gypsy Moth: Beware," "Holiday Decoration: An Exterior View," "Indoor Air Quality," and "Interior Design: Trends for the '90s." And "Kitchen Design," "Spring Flowering Bulbs," "Understanding Your Heating System," "Upholstery," and "Wallpapering."

Another new category of classes in the offerings of the department is "Consumer Awareness." Included are such topics as "Asbestos," "Cruises," "How to Buy a Car," "Landlords' Rights and Responsibilities," "Obtaining a Mortgage - Understanding the Basics."

Other offerings under "Consumer Awareness" are such classes as "Personal Styling for the '90s," "Pet Care," "Taking Care of Your Car in the '90s," and "Upholstered Furniture: What Every Consumer Should Know."

Eddington added that the category of "Arts and Crafts" has been expanded to "Arts, Crafts and Hobbies" to include some other classes that were being lost in "Special Interest." He said that all the photography classes will be found under the new category in the current brochure and in the future.

Details of the fall program of activities provided by the department will be found in the brochure which has been mailed to all residences. Copies are available at the public library and its branches, as well as at Barnes School, 20090 Morningside Drive, Grosse Pointe Woods.

Student Spotlight

Nicholas Rutan

Nicholas Rutan

Each week in this column, we will focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a wood-working project, a book review.

Nicholas Rutan, a seventh-grader at St. Paul Catholic School, wrote the following on his summer vacation, on how he could aid the cause of world peace at the grassroots level. His parents are C. Richard and Judy Rutan of Grosse Pointe Farms.

How I can do good for our country. Not make fun of other religions. Not to pick fights for small things. Obey my mother. Do not lie to anybody, especially to my parents. Try to love my sister and not fight with her.

I know that I can't do anything about the Far East, but I can pray that nothing bad happens, and that the United States will become friends with the Far East and not fight anymore. I will also make friends with new kids when they come to our school. I will do things like show them around and make them more comfortable. I will be a good leader. If my friends are doing bad, I will try to act the opposite and do good.

Scholarship winners

Two local students received four-year scholarships from the H.T. Ewald Foundation, located in Grosse Pointe. Heather Ault, second from left, and Michelle Puricelli, second from right, were among the 12 students who received Ewald scholarships this year.

Each year, Ewald awards 12 to 15 scholarships in the tri-county area through the foundation that was established by his father. Currently, he sustains more than 50 students in colleges across the country. Each recipient is chosen after an intensive interview.

With the two winners are, from left, Ted Ewald, foundation president, Carolyn Ewald, foundation secretary/treasurer, and Detroit Free Press columnist Bob Talbert, who spoke to the students at the awards luncheon. Information on the scholarship program is available by writing to the H.T. Ewald Foundation, 15175 E. Jefferson, Grosse Pointe, Mich. 48230.

Center gets Bell grant

Michigan Bell has made the first installment of a three-year, $75,000 contribution to help fund the construction of Rose Hill Center, a residential rehabilitation center for people with mental illnesses.

Michigan Bell Vice President E. Daniel Grady presented the check for $25,000 to Rose Hill President/Treasurer Virgil R. Stucker and Vice Chairwoman Rosemary Kelly Aug. 24.

The donation, which Stucker said is the largest single corporate contribution to date, goes to the capital fund that will build the center's nine structures on a 372-acre site in Holly, 40 miles northeast of Detroit.

Michigan Bell's gift put Rose Hill Center's fundraising effort over the $1.5 million mark. Stucker said he was confident that the center would meet its $5 million goal and that construction would start in October.

Rose Hill, modeled after centers in Vermont and Massachusetts, is designed to treat persons with schizophrenic, schizo-affective and manic-depressive disorders.

Grady said he was pleased with the philosophy of Rose Hill Center and the approach it has taken in raising funds through the combined efforts of business, the state of Michigan, foundations and individual support.

'One Tiger to a Hill' is one powerful prison drama

By Alex Sucek
Special Writer

The tension of a hostage-taking in a Canadian maximum security prison chills the audience at the Stratford's final opening this season. Sharon Pollock's "One Tiger to a Hill," based on an incident in the mid '70s, recounts with vivid reality events that began with the suicide of an inmate in solitary confinement and ended with a shooting by guards of a prisoner and his female rehabilitation counselor.

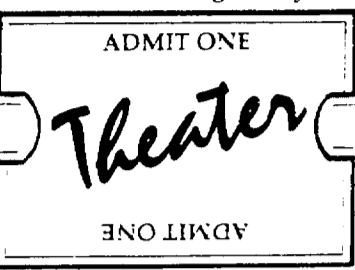

For Stratford, it represents an important trend to present more contemporary plays and the work of Canadian authors. If the work of Sharon Pollock is indicative, the trend is highly justified.

Pollock lived near the Canadian prison where the tragedy occurred and became obsessed with uncovering every fact and detail. Her play, presented in a one and a half hour single act, recounts the 10 hours of tension involved and the points of view of all the participants.

James Blendick as George and Ron Hastings as Richard represent prison authority. They keep order and control at any cost while dealing with pressure for reform from all sides — prisoners, counselors, politicians and the public — but without adequate funding.

Anne Wright as Dede Walker is the rehabilitation officer. She is confident that her unorthodox professional style can succeed with her hardened yet highly intelligent client, prisoner Tommy Paul, who takes her hostage. She trusts him even though he is declared incorrigible by the security staff.

Corporate lawyer Ev Chalmers, played by William Dunlop, becomes the negotiator only by chance. Caught in the irreconcilable conflict between prison security and the inmates, he discovers he is dealing with a dark and brutal world previously unknown to him.

Robert King is ominous as the coldly calculating security guard,

Carl Hanzuk. On duty, he is an inhuman professional, but he offers a brief contrasting glimpse of his other life as a family man. The questions that linger at the end of the play are whether it was he who fired the fatal shots, whether he really intended to kill Dede as well as Tommy Paul, and if so, why.

And Joe Norman-Shaw as Tommy Paul is the pivotal figure. He inspires wrenching ambivalence as he portrays what may be on the one hand a psychopathic criminal as the prison managers see him, and on the other, a talented, redeemable human being, which is Dede's view. Triggered by his prison buddy's suicide and encouraged by Dede's sympathetic guidance, he seeks to win his freedom and prison reform by the desperate act of taking his counselor hostage and threatening her life.

Each one has conviction for his or her point of view and there lies the tragic conflict and sheer terror of this play. All are right and all are wrong. There is no resolution except the tragic deaths of the key players. The guards shoot Tommy as he is about to board the negotiated helicopter to freedom, and then Dede Walker, too, as she shrieks in horror and runs to Tommy's side. Whether her death was intentional or not is not known.

While Pollock insists that her play is not a polemic for prison reform, it is a powerful statement to that end. It is also a fine, suspenseful drama and a revealing portrayal of an interesting array of different types of people from widely different levels of society.

A truly bright spot and hopeful figure in the story, engagingly performed by Pat Armstrong, is Lena Benz, another rehabilitation officer and a reform activist called in by the prisoners to help negotiate. Her feisty readiness to state the bare truth of security abuses and her quick, ironic wit bring welcome relief and humor to the stress. Armstrong is totally sympathetic and single-minded in the otherwise conflict-riddled cast of combatants.

Another supporting role that stands out as a superb characterization is Gillie McCermott, fellow inmate and accomplice to Tommie. Played by Roger Honeywell, this low IQ, amoral murderer wins audience sympathy and laughter for his inept efforts to gain dignity and freedom and his display of concern for his hostage, even as he threatens her.

The interplay between Gillie and Tommy places clear leadership on the latter as the one on whom Gillie is counting for his liberation. Their relationship in the play is both touching and terrifying.

The web of the plot, in fact, based entirely on details dug up by Pollock over months of research, could hardly be more complex or more engrossing. It verifies again that truth is stranger than fiction. There is even a hint of love interest between Tommy and Dede which becomes warmly suggestive when Gillie persuades them to dance to the radio while they wait for response to the prisoners' demands. The contrast of moods is excruciating.

Director John Wood skillfully sets the atmosphere of the play from the first moment with a total blackout, lasting what seems like an eternity while the audience hears steel door after steel door clang shut on every side. The lights then come up on a stark set of multi-level bars and wire cages by John Ferguson. This and the highly focused lighting by John Munro, greatly enhance the impact. The result is a powerful piece of theater, loaded with tension and suspense that is also an informative social statement of an issue that society still addresses inadequately.

"One Tiger to a Hill" opened at the Avon Theatre Aug. 24 and runs through Oct. 27. Tickets and information are available in the Detroit area by calling 964-4668.

5 playwrights featured in theater's new season

Henry Ford Museum Theatre will present works by five of America's most celebrated playwrights in its 1991 season — Lillian Hellman, Elmer Rice, George S. Kaufman, John van Druten and Ayn Rand.

Gillian, Regina, Georgina, Diana and Karen are five engaging and mysterious women who will dominate the season.

"Bell, Book and Candle," written by John van Druten in 1950, will be staged Feb. 1 through March 16. This romantic comedy about witches in New York is set not in the witch-burning days of 1650, but in 1950.

Its heroine is not the sweet spell-caster of television, but one who will use spells to win a man or frighten a rival... and enjoy it all hugely. Gillian's witch-ly aunt and brother, having far fewer scruples than Gillian herself, keep things amusing even when she faces losing her powers for the love of a mortal man.

"The Little Foxes," written by Lillian Hellman in 1939, will be presented April 5 through May 12. Greed, corruption and murder in a rich and powerful Southern family form the backdrop against which this turn-of-the-century drama is set.

Lauded as the finest work of America's greatest female playwright, it provided a wonderful opportunity for its stars to collect top acting honors for their portrayals, first on Broadway in 1939 and then in the 1941 film. Melodrama reaches new heights as Regina ignores the pitiful entreaties for help from her husband as he is stricken with a heart attack.

"Of Thee I Sing," written by George S. Kaufman and Morri Ryskind with music by George Gershwin and lyrics by Ira Gershwin, will take the stage June 7 through June 29 and July 12 through July 20.

The main characters in this 1931 Pulitzer-prize winning musical comedy include President Wintergreen who swoops into office on the campaign slogan "Let's put love back in the White House"; Alexander Throtlebottom, the practically invisible vice president whose name no one can remember; and Diana Devereaux, winner of the Miss White House contest who naturally expects to become first lady. Songs include "Love is Sweeping the Country," "Wintergreen for President" and "Of Thee I Sing, Baby."

"Dream Girl," written by Elmer Rice, plays Aug. 9 through Sept. 14. This 1945 fantasy comedy features a female "Walter Mitty" named Georgina whose life is continually at odds with her daydreams.

When she hears a quiz show on the radio, she immediately imagines herself the winner; mentions a hospital and she's the mother of twins; when a man insults her, she sees him in court being sentenced to death. Georgina's daydreams come to life on the stage and every character in them is a family member or co-worker.

"The Night of January 16th," written by Ayn Rand, will engage and intrigue audiences Oct. 4 through Nov. 16.

In this 1935 murder mystery a young, wealthy tycoon plummets to his death from atop his own building. Whodunit? His wife, his secretary and a gangster are among the suspects. To solve the murder mystery and resolve the courtroom drama, a new jury is chosen each night from the audience and their verdict determines the final scene.

Along with this diverse array of theater experiences, a dinner theater option with memorable feasting at the museum's American Cafe is also offered.

Plays are performed Fridays and Saturdays at 8:30 p.m., with one Sunday matinee offered for each production at 4:30 p.m. For further information or reservations, call the Reservations Center at Henry Ford Museum, 271-1620.

'Darkman' vies for best horror film horrors

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

Constrained restraint. Controlled excess. Unbelievable horror made believable. These all make Sam Raimi's high-octane "Darkman" the best horror film of the year.

Raimi, who created a following the the derisively, cultish "Evil Dead" and "Evil Dead II," goes all out to surpass "Batman," "Superman" and "Phantom of the Opera," borrowing something from each of them and dressing it up in Marvel comic book surrealism.

It has the page-turner pace of a comic book and, in its most outrageous moments, it is obvious that "Darkman" is a campy satire of horror film conventions.

Before the film begins, a prelude set in the dark recesses of a building shows a group of menacing characters demanding that the owner turn over the premises to make way for a shady real estate development.

When he refuses, the leader steps forward armed with a device meant to cut the ends off cigars and slowly and methodically clips first one finger and then another from his hands before shooting him and fire-bombing the building.

With that we move on to a laboratory where Dr. Payton Westlake (Liam Neeson), a brilliant scientist, is working on a process to produce synthetic skin. Working with the computer, he succeeds, but what he produces is flawed. It breaks down when exposed to more than 100 minutes of light. This becomes a major drawback when later in the film he tries to use it for personal reasons.

He is determined not to give up. "I don't care how long it takes; I know it's out there waiting for me," he tells his girlfriend Julie (Frances McDormand), who encourages him.

Westlake is interrupted by a group of vicious killers led by high rolling land developer, evil Durant (Larry Drake). They demand the return of a memo which Julie, who is a lawyer, has that implicates them in a bribery scheme.

Although Westlake insists he knows nothing about it, the finger clipper comes out. When he struggles to get loose, he is dunked in a vat of boiling oil, not once but over and over. When he manages to crawl out, leaking gas causes an explosion and he is thrown through a glass wall. He lands on a river bank where he is left for dead.

When we see him next, he is strapped to a board swathed in bandages in a hospital where a young doctor is explaining the operation she has performed on him.

It is an operation that will keep him from feeling physical pain, but because of the side effects, he must be institutionalized.

As they walk away, we see his eyes working behind the bandages. When they look back he is gone.

The advantages of modern technology are put into motion to bring this old-fashioned Gothic tale into the present as the computer cranks out masks that will make it possible for Darkman to settle the score with his enemies. Dramatic shifting scenes and striking visuals accent the story. Each time Westlake goes back in reverie to the night of his vicious attack, the screen becomes awash with brilliant swirling color. The laboratory is a cave lit by gyrating computer graphics, spooky holograms and other high-tech gadgets that mark Raimi's vivid flamboyant style.

"Darkman" is a Raimi film, a film that stands alone for its originality and brilliance. He even manages to suggest that beneath the surface there lies the message that you can't count on your own skin to hold you together or tell you who you are.

His achievement as the director owes much to Liam Neeson's outstanding performance both as the handsome, dedicated Dr. Westlake and the tormented heroic Darkman.

'The Witches' casts a spell on young, old

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

"The Witches," a magical modern fairy tale, opens on a storybook setting as the camera glides over the snowy mountain peaks of Norway, roams the red-roofed tops of colleges that line the cobblestone streets and settles in a picture book parlor where Grandmother Hega (Mai Zetterling) is telling scary stories in a lyrical voice about witches to her wide-eyed, entranced grandson, Jason Fisher.

The boy, Luke, sits in awe as she relates the story of a little girl who was seized by a witch and lived forever after in a painting, growing with the years but never moving until she was very old and then disappeared.

Grandmother knows about witches because as a little girl, one almost grabbed her. In the struggle she lost a finger.

When she puts Luke to bed, she warns him that real witches look very much like ordinary women who hate children and can't stand the smell of clean children. One way to identify a witch is to look for someone holding her nose. They wear square-toed shoes because they have no toes, he is told.

Armed with this information, Luke drops off to sleep, fully confident that now he knows what to look for to be safe.

So begins Nicolas Roeg's horror adventure movie for kids.

Luke and his grandmother travel to a seacoast hotel in England where witches have gathered for a convention under the leadership of the Grand High Witch, Anjelica Huston, a stunning, sleek woman with strangely perfect hair and long gloves who moves through her role affecting a Transylvanian accent, exuding an imperious air to all who approach her. She is fascinating to watch in her changes of mood. She purrs seductively when she offers candy to Luke, rages and screams when she is displeased.

Posing as "The Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children," the group plots to rid England of its children by changing them into mice with a powerful magic potion.

Luke becomes their first victim when he is an unwilling witness at the witches' convention in the hotel auditorium.

His non-violent transformation from boy into mouse can be funny or scary, according to the reaction of young viewers, but any apprehension is soon dispelled. Luke is a cute, savvy little gold-colored mouse who still has Luke's voice in a believable-looking mouse's body constructed by Jim Hensen's Creature Shop. What's more, Luke has fun. As he tells his astonished grandmother, "I like being a mouse."

Like all good fairy tales, this magical mixture of fun, mischief and enchantment has a happy ending.

As Luke, Jason Fisher is a natural both as a boy and a mouse. Huston is the wicked witch of all time behind a glamorous mask. Mai Zetterling, an accomplished Swedish actress, is outstanding as the caring grandmother whose concern for Luke and willingness to believe in fantastic events gives the film a gentle touch that offsets the meanness of the witches.

Roeg, who directed the terrifying "Don't Look Now," is the right man for this macabre and funny tale. He tempers his usual weirdness by avoiding the dark and gloomy atmosphere often seen in scary tales.

Instead "The Witches" is visually sunny, making it more suited for what is essentially a children's story.

The mice crafted in Hensen's workshop are lifelike and capable of facial expression and movements and the ability to speak. Wonderfully expressive and realistic, they are a delight to watch as they zip around the nooks and crannies of the old hotel.

Never condescending to children, the film, because of its wit and puns, holds interest for adults also.

Fall fun abounds at Greenfield Village

The days are getting shorter and the nights getting longer, but the fun continues this fall at Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village in Dearborn.

On any given day in the museum, visitors can discover more than 300 years of American ingenuity and innovation in factories and farms, at home and on the road. Or journey back in time through the village's historic homes and shops to see how our ancestors prepared for winters past.

Fall Harvest Festival, Oct. 5, 6 and 7, transforms the village into a 19th century harvest celebration where visitors can experience both the work and the festivity of the season.

Out in the fields at the 1880s Firestone Farm, a steam-powered thresher will be in action and Percheron draft horses will be tilling the soil and planting winter rye. The farmhouse will be the center of domestic chores as apple butter and sauerkraut are made, a quilt is pieced, and the house cleaned.

And when the work's all done, visitors and farmhands alike can stomp their feet as everyone gathers for a 19th-century barn dance.

A nostalgic trip to autumn's past would not be complete without a stop by the village cider mill throughout the month of October to watch both mechanical and hand presses squeeze apples into sweet, tangy cider which can be purchased in the village by the glass or jug.

In November, kids of today can discover what it was like to be a child of past generations as Henry Ford Museum presents "Growing Up in America, Nov. 10 and 11."

While the traditional vacation season has passed, Henry Ford Museum keeps travel memories alive with its special exhibit, "Americans on Vacation." Featuring travel items that range from steamer trunks and Samsonite cases to a 19th-century stagecoach and a 1950 station wagon, this exhibit explores 150 years of change in how we've planned for, traveled to, enjoyed and remembered our vacations. "Americans on Vacation" remains on view through Labor Day 1991.

The museum is also showcasing two temporary exhibits which recognize the growing influence of design in 20th-century American life. The Herman Miller Furniture Collection: A Gift to Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village features landmark innovations in residential and office furniture by such renowned American designers as Charles and Ray Eames.

Power in Motion: The Automotive Design Career of Bill Mitchell chronicles the striking work of the General Motors design chief who set the standard for decades of American auto styling with such cars as the Chevrolet Corvette Stingray and Buick Riviera.

Antique autos to journey to Greenfield Village

More than 200 "horseless carriages" will take a sentimental journey to Greenfield Village for the 40th annual Old Car Festival, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 8 and 9.

Automobiles, commercial vehicles, motorcycles and bicycles built no later than 1929 will be featured in one of the oldest and most prestigious car meets in the United States.

Vintage vehicles with such nostalgic nameplates as Chalmers, Duesenberg, Grabowski, Maxwell, Overland and Pierce Arrow will pass in review along with historic examples of still-popular makes including Cadillac, Dodge and Ford. Parades and demonstrations will give visitors a rare opportunity to see those oldies but goodies in action.

Local residents who will participate include Charles Van Dotted of Grosse Pointe Woods, 1926 Moot; William Lange of Grosse Pointe Park, 1911 Ford; Martin Buffalini II of Grosse Pointe, 1926 Dodge Bros. car; Warren Hardy of Harper Woods, 1917 Buick; Clifford Weidenbener of Harper Woods, 1916 Packard; and George Lute of St. Clair Shores, 1914 Ford.

In conjunction with the village festivities, more than two dozen pre-1915 vehicles will make the trek from Lansing to Dearborn in an event simulating an early automotive endurance run. No one will care who's last... it's who last that counts as the one- and two-cylinder cars and motorcycles chug along a 100-mile route from the R.E. Olds Museum to Greenfield Village.

A panel of judges will present awards for automobiles dated 1896-1918 and 1919-29, motorcycles and bicycles, and commercial vehicles. Quality of maintenance and authenticity of restoration work will be among the criteria for determining awards.

A new distinction in this year's festival is the Curator's Choice award. Museum staff members will bestow the honor on a vehicle that has not undergone restoration, but displays good overall preservation.

Admission to the Old Car Festival and all special weekend programs is free with general village admission. Village hours are 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Benefit to aid AIDS

Gregory Hines and his dance company will perform at the Fisher Theater Sunday, Sept. 9, to raise funds for the Kaplan Medical Center, with money going toward AIDS research.

From perfume to plays to technology, his territory is the world

By Pat Paholsky
Editor

It was while David L. Kelson was working in army intelligence in Vietnam that he developed an interest in international relations.

After his return, he spent a summer in Europe and South Africa while he was a student at Wayne State University. His goal, he said, was to get a job with an organization like the United Nations.

His client base today, however, is the world. As president of KMG International, Kelson, a Grosse Pointe Park resident, consults consultants in the import and export business.

In 10 years of dealing with foreign businesses and governments, Kelson has traveled throughout the Pacific basin — India, Indonesia, Taiwan, Japan, Thailand, Hong Kong, South Korea — and Kuwait, China, Germany, Italy and the United Kingdom.

His current focus is on the Soviet Union, including Moldavia where his company is setting up a marketing joint venture for essence used for making perfume.

KMG is the exclusive agent of the artwork of 35 artists from the Cooperative Moskva of the Soviet Union. The art will be exhibited at Gallerie 454 on Kercheval in Grosse Pointe Park later this month.

KMG is also exploring producing a play, "Dragon," written by a Russian playwright in 1943. It's a musical that can be enjoyed equally by children or adults either as a fairy tale, musical or political satire, and Kelson said KMG is in the process of getting a syndicate to produce it.

Technology is another field open to transfer across continents and oceans. In the Soviet Union, technology traditionally went to the military, Kelson said, and little was passed on for non-military use.

One of the cooperatives, however, came up with a better way to produce, among other things, table tops. The Soviets and Americans use the same production techniques which involves a machine that has as one of its parts a belt, he said. The belts, however, wear out periodically, and the Soviets were unable to replace them.

So they devised a cylinder to run the machine that is not only permanent, but can make the table top thinner and can be used on polymers. KMG is transferring the technology to the United States, he said.

Kelson, who is constantly broadening his knowledge, began his professional career in telecommunications. A 1964 graduate of Grosse Pointe High, he earned a bachelor's degree in political science from Wayne State University, a master's in public administration from Wayne and a master's in international business management from the American Graduate School of International Management in Phoenix.

His first job was with the International Trade Administration in Washington, D.C., a department within the Department of Commerce. As major projects manager for overseas, Kelson worked with large corporations, like ITT and ATT.

He would locate projects valued at more than $5 million for them to bid on overseas. He would then assist them in preparing documents, intercede with foreign governments and provide international marketing planning for them, he said.

From there, Kelson went to Ameritech to explore communications markets in India and China. He began consulting for other companies. Kelson became president of Michigan Trade Exchange International and last year, formed his own company, KMG International, with two partners — Jeff May and Duke Grimshaw.

This fall, Kelson will teach two four-hour seminars at Macomb Community College, one on Oct. 15 on marketing in the Soviet Union and the other on Oct. 22 on marketing in ASEAN countries. Then in November he'll be a professor in international management at Ferris State University.

The area of education, he said, is one he enjoys. While he was in Washington, he spoke to foreign ministries and trade associations.

He wants to offer students courses that have a strong relation to reality, he said, and he has the background.

"History keeps repeating itself," he said. "People ran into China and lost billions. People are now running to Poland and Czechoslovakia. If you have an idea and you go into the Soviet Union, you'll find 10 people who'll agree with you.

"American firms really have to do their research and understand the restrictions involved, basically with currency."

His company's success lies in having associates in the countries they are dealing with who live there, know the language and customs and are committed to the company. "I happen to be lucky because I have a close friend who is Russian," he said. "In China I have a close friend who is Chinese."

It's important, Kelson said, to never insult the business people with whom you are dealing and to be totally truthful. His job, he said, is to appease both sides and to smooth bruised egos. He said he gets helpful information on dealing with people from his wife, Julia, who teaches at the

Earth fact

If 100,000 people stopped their junk mail, we could save about 150,000 trees a year.

If every household in the United States lowered its average heating temperatures only 6 degrees over a 24-hour period, we would save more than 570,000 barrels of oil a day.

If every gas-heated home were properly caulked and weather-stripped we'd save enough natural gas each year to heat about four million homes.

Get Michigan map free

The Michigan Department of Transportation (M-DOT) 1990 Official Transportation Map of Michigan is making its debut this week, luring visitors to the state with the theme of "Celebrate! the Great Lakes."

It is the most up-to-date map of Michigan available and may be obtained from M-DOT, no charge.

The lighthouse at Holland on the Lake Michigan shore, one of about 100 lighthouses along more than 3,200 miles of Great Lakes shoreline in Michigan, is pictured on the cover. Gov. and Mrs. James J. Blanchard are shown with their welcoming message on the back cover.

Inside is a photo display of people having fun on and along the Great Lakes, the largest body of fresh water in the world.

"Besides helping our own residents find their way through Michigan, this map is a primary tool for our multi-billion-dollar travel industry," said Transportation Director James P. Pitz. "Many of the two million maps we are printing this year will be distributed nationally and internationally."

M-DOT cartographers made 280 changes and additions to bring the new map up to date. It was printed in Michigan on Michigan-made paper for about 20 cents a copy.

The new map can be obtained, no cost, at numerous locations, including all M-DOT district offices and welcome centers. Other distribution points include state police posts, district offices of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, local chambers of commerce, municipal government offices and offices of the Michigan Travel Bureau and regional tourist associations.

The Department of Transportation will send a map to individuals on request. Requests should be made on a post card (not in a sealed envelope), providing the name, address and zip code of the requestor. Post cards should be mailed to: MAPS, Mich. Dept. of Transportation, P.O. Box 30050, Lansing, MI 48909.

David Kelson, president of KMG International, has been dealing with foreign governments and businesses for 10 years.

Kelson

Macomb Intermediate School District.

And it's vital to understand the culture, he said. Arabs, for instance, will cease dealing with anyone who admits to not knowing the answer to a question. Soviets believe that by tearing up a contract, a deal is null and void. "The legal value of a contract has not been established there," he said.

Kelson said the people he most enjoys dealing with are the difficult ones: Chinese, Arabs and Soviets.

He gets gratification, he added, from dealing with cooperatives. "I get a lot of satisfaction from helping them to better their lives," he said.

And strange as it sounds, Kelson said he gained satisfaction from not making deals. When he was working for the federal government, he got a request from Argentina for a crematorium and another country wanted police gear for crowd control. Those requests, he said, were not processed, unknown to his superiors.

KMG is based in Royal Oak. The telephone number is 398-6218.

Want to join a club? Volunteer? Here's some suggestions

By Margie Reins Smith
Feature Editor

September is the beginning of the season for many local organizations. Church groups, musical groups, auxiliaries, charity organizations, special-interest clubs, service clubs, educational and social groups are gearing up, planning activities and programs for fall and winter.

Many organizations are actively seeking new members.

We asked local non-profit organizations and clubs to tell us what they're about — what kinds of members they're seeking — how much dues are — how to join — and so on.

Here's the scoop on those that answered our questionnaire.

The Alliance for the Mentally Ill-Eastside is a support group for advocacy, education and support concerning serious mental illness.

Anyone who is interested in improving the plight of the mentally ill may join. Dues are optional. Meetings take place at Henry Ford Nursing Care Center, 19840 Harper, Harper Woods.

A spokesman for the group said that working for, and with, the mentally ill is not easy, but is much-needed and rewarding.

For more information, call Margaret O'Brien, 884-9005; Frances Buccilli, 839-9826; or Carol Scripps, 881-5429.

The American Business Women's Association is a non-profit organization which raises funds for scholarships for women in college or women who are re-entering the workforce.

The group meets monthly to discuss and plan fundraisers such as fashion shows and seminars. The group is also involved with Turning Point, a shelter for women in Mount Clemens.

Members of any age who are presently working are welcome.

New members should be willing to spend two evenings and 10 hours a month working on a committee. National dues are $25 annually. Chapter dues are $18 annually. The group meets at various restaurants in Warren.

For information, contact Lisa Sicilia-Steele, president of the Silver Oaks charter chapter, at 30037 Wagner Drive, Warren, 48093.

The American Heart Association, East Shore Division, is a non-profit volunteer health organization which promotes cardiovascular fitness through educational programs and fund-raising activities.

The group is looking for volunteers to work on fundraising and programs. There are no dues. It meets at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club and various Grosse Pointe schools.

For more information, call Rodney Harden, 557-9500.

The American Legion, Business and Professional Post No. 372 is a nonprofit United States military veterans' service organization.

The group supports veterans' hospitals, mentally impaired adult activities, anti-drug programs in schools, Boys' State and activities for impoverished elderly veterans.

The group is looking for veterans with professional and business backgrounds whose honorable military service was during one of the following periods: Dec. '41-Dec. '46; June '50-Jan. '55; and Dec. '61-May '75. The dates were set by Congress.

New members should be 32 or older. Meetings are at the University Club on the fourth Thursday of the month. Members devote about four hours a month to the group.

For information, call Bill Miller, 882-1421, or Tom Verbiest, 882-7309.

The American Lung Association of Southeast Michigan is a voluntary health agency affiliated with the American Lung Association, which seeks to prevent and control all lung diseases through cooperation with patients, the medical community, official and voluntary agencies, community groups and interested citizens.

The association has several community health service programs such as family asthma conferences, Breathers Club, pulmonary function screening and a camp for children with asthma. It also offers a variety of smoking withdrawal programs. The organization is looking for people who can help with mailings and light clerical work at special events.

Bridge

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD THE PASTEBOARD PASTIME

A mirage in the desert is something illusory. At the card table, an illusion is a false conception of something you see that is actually present. This experience is quite common in bridge, especially when declarer views the dummy for the first time and commences the important count of winners and losers. The defense can sometimes suffer the same delusion. Best when this happens, look away for a moment before looking back. Such a pause often gives you a better perception of the problem at hand. Take today's ticklish stickler that can be an anguishing exercise. The illusion is that declarer sees four losers; a spade, unless the finesse is successful, a heart, a diamond and a club. This is a false conception that can be corrected and Carolyn Russell did just that in a game I kibitzed in Grosse Pointe over the fire cracker Fourth.

West's no trump opening was a little limp, but not vulnerable; there was a thin vindication. East's six card club suit was a savior for North's pass of partner's double acknowledged a willingness to penalize West's bid to the tune of at least 500 points. I like North's three spade call after Carolyn introduced the suit and game was certainly a reasonable endeavor.

Carolyn concluded that if West was left to his way, he could inflict some mayhem and a possible minus upon her for he obviously had all the missing high tickets . . . But could he? Did he have time? After a careful survey she realized she was a trick ahead of the defense and had no intention of relinquishing that lead. Could she set up the heart ten for a diamond discard before her protection was gone? Yes she could with a carload of careful play, so she initiated her plan to counter West's execution.

She won the club ace; not to do so would have been mortal. Then she laid down the space ace and another. After West won both black kings, he switched to the diamond queen which Carolyn won with her ace and played a heart to dummy's ace and back to her king. Now she relieved West of his last trump and played a heart toward dummy's king won and the ten of hearts was a haven for Carolyn's minor red loser.

W 1NT .	N . 3S	E . 2C .	S DBL 2S 4S Passed Out
♠ J 10 3 2 ♥ A 10 5 3 ♦ K 4 2 ♣ 7 4		N ♠ Carolyn	E 4 8 2 8 7 6 3 10 8 6 5 3 2
♠ K 6 5 ♥ Q J 9 7 ♦ Q J 10 ♣ K Q J		West led Club K

The discussion that followed was puzzling. East erroneously contended that if West had led the diamond queen at trick one and persisted, the defense would have gathered in four winners. Not so! If West originally plays diamonds and continues each time he's in, the defense will only win a spade, a diamond and a heart. Open clubs as west did and you know the outcome. The defense can't win a club and a diamond too against good declarer play. Four losers is an illusion.

Frustrations of shopping, packaging, call for creative solutions

It's not always the major crises that stir the waters and make our charted course difficult. Sometimes minor challenges cause ripples of frustration.

For instance: boxes of soap powder with instructions that direct you to "push here to open." Unless you have a well-developed muscular thumb, you might as well be pushing against a concrete wall.

Then there are the plastic strips on frozen juice cans. Half way around the can, the tape breaks and you are left funneling the contents out of a small opening.

Caps and tops that refuse to turn can upset your day.

Topping them all in the de-

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

partment of maddening packaging are the caps designed to keep children and people with headaches from getting at the contents of the bottles.

Relief from this ordeal is in the offing.

Hugh Lockhart, professor at Michigan State University, after considerable research in cooperation with Western Michigan University, has come up with a bottle design which has a self-seeking tab inside a double cap. The tab slips down into a slot, allowing the top to be turned.

For some consumers, the inconvenience of wrestling with the tops of products is secondary to the chore of shopping for them. Shopping is a tedious task that takes up valuable time better spent in more pleasurable ways. The true "I-hate-to-shop individual" would rather do almost anything else — even household chores. They dislike pushing their way down aisles that are often impassable because two friends who haven't seen each other since yesterday are exchanging gossip; or because boxes waiting to be unpacked defy passage; or because some conscientious shopper blocks three shelves with herself and a cart while she makes a choice.

Then there are the ankle-bumpers. Some are more treacherous than others. The real menaces are the speeders who go whirling through the store, zipping around corners, crashing into all obstacles, including shin-bones.

All good things come to an end, including the frustrating ones. The groceries are checked out and packed in the cart. Breathing a sigh of relief, you push the wobbly pile to the car. Leg muscles bulge, shoulders strain with effort, but you make it. It was an ordeal but thankfully you won't have to face it for another week. A sense of accomplishment and peace settles over you that is quickly dispelled when you spot your car.

You've overstayed your time. You have a ticket. So ends the saga of a disconsolate shopper.

There are those who love the challenge of shopping. They never seem to encounter the travails of the reluctant supermarket visitor. It could be because of their positive attitude toward the chore. Their adrenaline begins to flow the moment the door swings open. They come armed with lists of specials and neatly clipped coupons.

For them it is exciting to beat the system and come out with $6 worth of merchandise for every $5 spent. They go from store to store in a euphoric state, making pennies do the work of dollars and loving every minute of it.

This separation of kind is not limited to supermarkets. That area of shopping is just a prelude to the big-time pursuit of taking on the shopping malls. Here the perils are more marked.

To begin with, it is important to remember where the car is parked. Unless the lane number is noted, hours could be lost searching for the car you drove there that suddenly looks like any one of the 50 cars parked in the location where you are sure

The next problem is figuring out where the shop is that advertised all merchandise at 50 percent off. Usually it is at the opposite end of the building where you parked.

Then there are those uncanny shoppers who enter a mall, point themselves in the direction of the best buys and come home with coordinates that they can mix and match to make them look like an ad for tomorrow's fashions.

There is no doubt that successful shopping is a skill. There are those who are born with it, some who acquire it and others who have it thrust upon them.

WHEN THE PROSPECT ARRIVES

When one of our agents and prospective buyer arrive to inspect your home, here are a few points to remember:

- Greet them courteously, then disappear. If you can, leave the house. Don't tag along. Your presence will inhibit free discussion, making it difficult for the agent to ferret out the buyer's likes and dislikes.
- Avoid having too many people in the house. This can make a buyer feel like an intruder. Children and pets should be housed elsewhere during the showing.
- Do not try to interest the buyer in purchasing furnishings before signing the sales contract. This can ruin a transaction. After the sale is made, there will be plenty of time for such discussions.
- Do not discuss the terms of the sale, occupancy, or related matters with the buyer. Refer these questions to our agent. The answers given may make or break the sale.

Rock gardens, natural landscapes, are eternally popular

Rock gardens are popular right now. A lot of people think of them as the latest thing, but rock gardens and ornamental grottos have been around with varying degrees of popularity since a general revolt against formality in landscaping took place beginning about 1710. The Earl of Shaftsbury in England was one of the first to say that he was tired of the clipped, edged, and otherwise manicured gardens of the time.

He was a collector of the paintings of Salvador Rosa who delighted in rugged scenes of craggy mountains, grottos and caves, great boulders strewn artistically about and otherwise rough terrain. The earl's ideas of landscaping were influenced by these paintings. In 1711, he published an essay in which he stated, "Even the rude rocks, the caverns, the grottos, the broken falls of water, with all the grace of the wilderness itself representing nature, appears with a magnificence beyond the mockery of princely gardens."

Joseph Addison was also writing about the natural landscape and advocating a return to rocks and grottos. And in 1712, Alexander Pope joined this chorus with a denunciation of topiary and its artificiality.

The idea grew in popularity and William Kent, landscape designer and artist, began to plant natural gardens for his clients.

He even planted dead trees in strategic spots.

Along with Kent came Batty Langley, who advocated rock and grotto areas in gardens in his book "New Principles of Gardening" published in 1728. He began the vogue of building ruins in gardens with broken pillars and heaps of rubble, among which were planted trailing vines.

Charles Hamilton, in his grounds at Pain's Hill in Surrey, went so far as to build ruins and a grotto which were to be inhabited by a hermit. The hermit was to be supplied with a Bible, a mat and pillow, an hourglass to tell time and food from the house. He was to wear a robe and sandals, never shave or go out of the grounds, and never speak to anyone. If he held the job for seven years he was to be paid 700 guineas. There was only one applicant for the job. He lasted three weeks.

But rock gardens were a coming thing. England's first rockery garden was built at Chelsea in 1772 when Sir Joseph Banks brought slabs of lava from Iceland. At this time repairs were being made on the Tower of London and a lot of stones were dumped on the grounds. These items with some broken bricks, the lava, and other rocky debris were heaped together and planted with Alpine plants. By the end of the 19th century, rock gardening was an established fact.

In our own time both naturalistic and formal rock gardens vie for popularity. In France and Germany, many of them are built in terraces and many owners pride themselves on their collections of rare Alpine and rock plants. Perhaps this is really a full circle back to the ancient gardens of Babylon with their rock terraces and pebbled paths.

Many of our gardens today have pebbled paths like the paths in the geometric herb gardens of medieval monasteries which were filled with patterns of colored river pebbles. And of course, in another part of the world, there are the stone gardens of China and Japan.

In these end-of-summer days as we look forward to fall, it is harvest time in our vegetable and herb gardens — and time to think about the making of pot-pourri. One local lady maintains that the ideal way to store large quantities of green beans in her freezer is to fill a cotton muslin pillowcase with them and secure the top with a twister tie. She maintains that they keep perfectly. The right amount can be scooped out with a cup and the twister retwisted. Peas or corn can be frozen this way too.

Fall in the medieval calendar is listed as the season of the vintage and harvest, and the flower for September is the morning glory. The Chinese flower calendar lists mallow blossom which, it maintains, is also a potent charm against evil spirits. In Japan, the flower calendar for September shows the chrysanthemum, which is called kiku-mon, the imperial crest of Japan.

The chrysanthemum could almost be a local symbol too. So many of them are appearing in our gardens, ready to vie with the changing colors of leaves as this most beautiful month progresses.

Get a real league

The Bi-County League, once the premier sports organization, is gone, and now so is the Eastern Michigan League, a place South called home for 17 years.

But over at University Liggett School, a different twist is occurring.

ULS can't seem to get out of a league that houses nothing but decent-at-best teams. For the most part, the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference (MIAC) is a mediocre and embarrassing conference.

Last year the football team won the conference championship, and Coach Bob Newvine and his staff were not pleased with their new reign. While most coaches would celebrate and order new T-shirts for the players, Newvine and his brain trust just shrugged their shoulders in bewilderment.

Winning the league was not a big deal. With only three teams in the league, it's no wonder ULS won it. All it had to do was split those two conference games and it would have shared a piece of the pie. But, because they thrashed Lutheran Northwest and Westland Lutheran by a combined score of 108-0, there was no sharing the title.

The league is now in its second season, but why is ULS in it? They would do much better to jump out of the league, just as the basketball team should do this coming winter, and get some stronger opponents. Hence, a larger crowd would be on hand to watch the Kevin Whitfields and Chris Carrolls, but not this year.

Chuck Wright's basketball team waltzed through the MIAC schedule to win the crown last winter, and even with the projected lack of competition they're staying in the league.

ULS has got to get out of that league. It's doing nothing for them and it's giving them less competition than their newly instituted junior varsity football team would.

This season Newvine got St. Agatha, Country Day and Birch Run on the schedule, and discarded Cardinal Mooney, a team ULS beat 43-0. But, because of his school's obligation to the MIAC, the hapless teams from Lutheran Northwest and Westland Lutheran have to be played.

It makes no sense to put a rising program into a rinky-dink league.

For years, ULS ran an independent schedule. While struggling to regain its football heritage, the Knights were on the losing end of many games. Winning was unheard of, and nobody wanted to attend the games because they knew the outcome.

Newvine resumed the program six years ago and after playing one year of a jayvee schedule, decided to go challenge the other local varsity teams.

Making the jump five years ago was a big decision, but it was necessary. And, now, so is the move to a different league or even jumping back to independent status.

The football team would be better off playing some stronger schools and finishing 6-3, than getting beaten by two strong opponents and drilling seven terrible teams — as it did last year on its way to a 7-2 record.

In the seven wins, Newvine's team outscored its opponent 295-44. Sure the wins looked great, boosted confidence and gave the school a winning record, but the games were boring to watch.

The words "Champions 1989" are on the ULS football pocket schedule, but it should read "Champions 1989, of a league with no competition."

Rahaim's life is a drag

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

For Grosse Pointe Woods resident Bob Rahaim, life in the fast lane is truly a drag.

Rahaim, co-owner of Oxford Beverage, isn't one to race down Mack Avenue, nor would he test the Farms cops on Kercheval. But, he does put the pedal to the metal on dragstrips around the country.

On Aug. 26, Rahaim won the Quick Rod Division of the International Hot Rod Association World National Drag Racing Championships in Norwalk, Ohio.

"When I started racing, I figured it would be best to do so on a track and not in the street," said Rahaim, 30. "I knew racing on the street wouldn't be the way to go. Besides, there would be too many tickets to pay for if I did race on the streets. The track was the place to be."

But if it weren't for hockey, Rahaim feels he wouldn't have tried to develop this "hobby."

"I've got a very high competitive spirit about me and I got it from playing hockey," he said. "I've always had this drive and edge about me, and I just thought it would carry over into drag racing and it has."

Each race stretches a quarter mile and all cars have the capability to cross the line in 8.90 seconds.

"Everything just really comes at you pretty fast when you're running 150 miles an hour," Rahaim said. "But it's an exhilarating feeling."

In seven years of racing, Rahaim has been to the quarterfinals before, but he's never stood in the winner's circle.

"This is a life-long dream come true for me and my family," he said. "I think the only thing that can compare with this is when my Pee Wee team went to the state finals in 1972. Unfortunately we lost in overtime."

"I never thought this would happen so soon, but when things go right, they really go right."

And fortunately, these races don't need an extra session.

Rahaim, who started racing in a 1968 Camaro at Milan and Detroit Speedways in 1982, had to drag five races to win the championship by .006 of a second.

"In the final run, I got off the light fast and took off," he recalled. "I remember just glancing back and seeing the other car laying back a bit, so I knew I was in pretty good shape."

But he didn't know he had won.

"I got into the safety zone to shut the car down and I saw all the guys jumping up and down," he said. "Then, my friend, Greg Tillison came back with his three-wheeler we use to pull the car back, and he was going nuts. We were jumping up and down hugging one another. It's really a feeling I can't compare anything to."

And it's not too bad a job, considering Rahaim's raced in only three of the scheduled 10 races, and plans to compete in only one more.

"I'm not even in the point standings and suddenly I'm a winner," he said. "If I can score at the next race I go to, then I may finish in the top 10 of the season."

Bob Rahaim looked over his shoulder in the race at Norwalk because everyone was behind him.

What if you don't?

"That really wouldn't bother me because I've got something that not everyone gets."

When Rahaim began fantasizing about his experiment with drag racing, he wasn't sure what to expect. He found a Camaro for sale in California and later purchased it and had it delivered to Michigan.

"At that time I was not in a great position financially to go out and buy a newer car," Rahaim said. "I did what I could just to get started in the sport. Now, I've been bitten by the bug and I can't get away from the sport."

That's evident by his purchase of a 1989 Oldsmobile Cutlass Supreme, with an engine that measures 509 cubic feet and sports 900 horsepower. The body is made of carbon-fiber panels; it's lightweight, yet has great strength and durability.

"As I continued to race, I knew this wasn't just a phase," Rahaim said. "I knew I was going to continue to do this, and I've been able to, so I figured I'd buy the right stuff this time and get it over with. The car is great."

When the race was completed, Rahaim looked for his wife Kelly, and children Bobby, Sarah, Kristin and Jennifer. He also had Marc Matthews and Jim Lewis in his crew, along with his father Robert. Long-time friend Eric Rasmussen was also on hand.

"I owe them all a great deal for helping me and supporting me," Rahaim said. "But I owe a special thanks to my dad. He's really helped me a great deal and without his help I don't think this would have happened to me. I'm really fortunate to have a family that supports this type of hobby, because there are a lot of families and wives that wouldn't allow such a thing."

But there's proof positive that Rahaim belongs in drag racing.

"I hope to be around for a few more years," he said.

At Norwalk, Grosse Pointe's Bob Rahaim waits for the light to turn green before he busts out for an 8.90 run on the half-mile track.

ULS tackles Harper Woods

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

After a very sluggish first quarter of football, the University Liggett School Knights scored 21 second-half points en route to a 29-0 win over Harper Woods.

ULS used nothing fancy to win the opener, but had to rid itself of the pesky Pioneers.

"The first quarter was not one of football's finest," said ULS coach Bob Newvine. "I was worried before the game because I didn't see a lot of intensity, and I think that's what was lacking in the first quarter."

What also added to the first-game jitters was the fact that ULS was expected to beat the Pioneers.

"Going in we knew we were expected to win and I think some of our guys took them too lightly," Newvine said. "That's not the approach we wanted, but eventually we worked out the kinks."

After a scoreless first quarter, in which the ULS offense couldn't get untracked, Jason Drook intercepted a pass and ran it back 50 yards. Kevin Whitfield, who led the Knights with 137 yards rushing on 21 carries, added the two-point conversion and ULS led 8-0, and that's the way the first half ended.

"At halftime we had to get some kids motivated," Newvine said. "We had a few guys who weren't playing up to par, so we had to make sure they knew what was expected of them. We wanted to play some smash-your-face football in the second half and I think we did."

The ULS defense, led by Whitfield's 11 tackles, held Harper Woods to 81 total yards.

Whitfield extended ULS' lead to 14-0 on a 2-yard run in the fourth quarter, and Mike Whelan kicked his first of three extra points to push the lead to 15-0 with 11:19 to play in the game.

Senior tailback Chris Carroll, who carried 11 times for 81 yards, plunged in from the 5 three minutes later, and Whelan's conversion made it 22-0.

Michael Fox also got his first touchdown of the season, as he popped in from the 2 with three seconds on the clock. Whelan added the point after and ULS savored its first victory.

"By no means was this a pretty win, but the bottom line is the win," Newvine said. "The kids were nervous in the first half, but settled down. This year's team is also a lot different from a year ago, so it was hard for the coaches to read the intensity."

"This team isn't the rah-rah type. Instead, it's quiet and just likes to come out and get the job done. Fortunately, we woke up in the second half and played the game the way we should."

South burned in battle of Devils

Karen Ehresman (14) moves around the corner in South's 44-40 loss to Grosse Ile.

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

After a hapless first quarter, the Grosse Pointe South girls' basketball team almost pulled out the season's first victory, but had to settle for a 44-40 loss to the Red Devils of Grosse Ile.

The Blue Devils' defense limited the Red Devils' offense to three missed shots in the final eight minutes, but Grosse Ile canned five free throws to seal the victory.

"We almost pulled it off," said South coach Peggy VanEckoute. "We lost the game at the free throw line."

That's because the South Blue Devils shot a miserable 31 percent (5-16) from the line, and only 28 percent (17-60) from the floor.

Grosse Ile made 16 of 31 foul shots.

"We obviously didn't shoot very well, but we were tough on defense and that impressed me," VanEckoute said. "The girls really never gave up and I'm also pleased with that."

Juniors Vicky Spicer and Erin Lalley led South with eight points each, and senior Karen Ehresman had a team-high six rebounds.

Late in the game, South kept pressuring the Red Devils with a half-court press that enabled South to cut the lead and make the final few minutes interesting.

"We got back into our offense and had stepped up our defense a bit," VanEckoute said. "We didn't let them get many shots, but we also didn't make the ones we created for ourselves."

After trailing 29-18 at the half, South outscored Grosse Ile 15-10 to cut the lead to 39-33 at the end of the third quarter.

"We began shutting their offense down, plus we had the first-half jitters out of our system," VanEckoute said.

And if it wasn't for a slow first quarter, South may have won this game against a team that started four seniors, all of whom played on a state quarterfinal team just two seasons ago.

"I didn't tell the girls that Grosse Ile was the perennial downriver power," VanEckoute said. "Going into the game I was a little apprehensive thinking we were so inexperienced that we'd get blown out of the gym, but the girls weren't going to let that happen and they just kept battling."

But early on it looked like South was going to be blown out. After scoring the first four points of the game, the Blue Devils were outscored 15-1 in the next five minutes, and trailed 15-5 at the end of the first quarter.

"We got out of our offense and had no consistency," VanEckoute said. "Our defense broke down totally and we also started fouling and sending them to the foul line. We were running the ball up and down the floor, but we didn't do it very well."

DON'T TURN YOUR PLEASURE CRAFT INTO A DESTROYER.

A Free 9-Week Course on Basic Boating.

Ever wonder how others view you from out on the water? Are you a pleasure craft? Or the biggest threat on the lake?

The sad thing is, most boaters have no idea of the effect they have on others.

To help promote boating safety and an enjoyable water experience for everybody, the Grosse Pointe Power Squadron will conduct a free 9-week course covering boating safety skills—there is a small fee for course materials. Open to all residents, the course includes topics like boat handling, piloting, communications, maintenance, safety and navigational aids and rules.

To enroll, simply attend the first class on September 17, 1990, from 7:30-9:30 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe North High School Commons.

Norsemen beat South Lake

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

Playing like seasoned veterans, the Grosse Pointe North football team used a methodical ground attack to beat South Lake, 17-0, in the season opener Aug. 31.

North, which threw the ball only three times the entire game, controlled the line of scrimmage, enabling a young but now experienced offensive backfield to rush for 339 yards.

"We used our counter plays, reverses and mis-direction plays as our passing plays," said Norsemen coach Frank Sumbera, whose team tied for the White Division championship last season. "Instead of throwing in an obvious throwing situation, we came up with some big running plays."

Six to be exact, including 35-yard runs by Bob Tiderington and Eric Merte.

Merte and Tiderington ran well, but the rushing game was highlighted by the bullish running of sophomore Mike Haskell and junior Paul Straske, who played while nursing the flu.

"Both Paul and Mike really ran well," Sumbera said. "Basically, we felt going in we could control the line of scrimmage and we did. I think the difference was the fact that the kids really buckled down and worked hard between the four-way scrimmage and the opener."

Haskell rushed 21 times for 125 yards and Straske had 124 yards on 17 carries.

Backup quarterback Sam Sanom, who replaced Gary Corona in the fourth quarter, threw the only complete pass, a 21-yard spiral to tight end Adam Korzen-iewski.

After a scoreless first quarter, in which a North drive was stopped when Corona's first pass was intercepted, the Norsemen got on the board early in the second quarter.

On the first play of the second quarter, Scott Nesom, who finished with seven tackles and a quarterback sack, picked up a loose ball and ran it to the Cavaliers' 5-yard line. Three plays later the Norsemen had to settle for a 25-yard Corona field goal to take a 3-0 lead.

"That was big," Sumbera said about Corona's field goal. "We had established the ground game and set the tone with some great defense, but we almost came out of that empty. Instead, Gary kicked the field goal and we were on our way."

Senior linebacker Steve Crapotta, who jarred the ball loose on a tenacious hit, led North with eight tackles.

With Jim Kutscher and Leo Salvaggio, who combined for 10 tackles, manning the defense, it was Straske and Haskell who went back to work offensively. After his 82-yard punt return for a touchdown was nullified by a penalty, Straske came right back and rambled 45 yards to the Cavalier 5, where Haskell tucked it in one play later. Corona's one-point conversion gave North a 10-0 halftime lead.

North's defense held South Lake to 18 rushing yards and 36 in the air, and only five first downs.

"We won the toss, but deferred to start the game so we could play defense," said Sumbera, whose team's last opening-day shutout came in 1981 at East Detroit. "South Lake didn't earn one of those first downs until the second half. We gave them a couple in the first half because of penalties, but I was very pleased with our aggressive defense."

North was penalized 11 times for 95 yards.

"I think it can be credited to our aggressive style of defense," Sumbera said. "Penalty-wise, it was definitely a case of first game jitters. We were aggressive and that's why I think we had that many penalties."

Tiderington's run in the third quarter put North in scoring position, but a fumble at the South Lake 25 stopped that drive, and the third quarter ended with North ahead, 10-0.

Merte galloped 35 yards to the Cavalier 9 on a reverse to open the fourth, but North picked up another penalty that pushed the ball back to the 20. Two plays later, however, Haskell drove to the 5, setting up a fourth-and-goal for Corona.

Corona's pass was incomplete, but a South Lake penalty gave North another crack, and Straske sealed the game on the next play when he bolted in from the 3. Corona's second conversion of the night gave North a 17-0 lead.

Devils unsuccessful in season opener

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

Unfortunately, the South football team has yet to win an opening game with Jon Rice as head coach.

The losing streak hit four Aug. 31 at Clintondale, as the Blue Devils finished on the short end of a 14-3 score.

The game was South's first in the Macomb Area Conference, but didn't count toward the White Division standings because Clintondale plays in the Blue Division.

"We expected to play a lot better offensively than we did," said Rice, whose teams have qualified for the state playoffs two of the last three seasons. "We didn't execute our offense at all. The plays were there and open for us, but we just didn't execute."

Senior quarterback Tim Gramling, starting his first varsity game after backing up Brian Letscher last season, completed 10 of 19 passes for 144 yards. He connected with Chris Harwick and Aaron Letscher three times each.

Senior Nick Johnson led the rushing attack with 60 yards on 18 carries. South had only 67 yards on the ground.

Despite the sputtering offense, the South defense held the Dragons in check and kept the Devils in the game, trailing only 6-0 at halftime.

"We were playing good, solid defense," said Rice, whose team gave up only 95 yards rushing and 135 passing. "At halftime, we made some adjustments and told the kids to continue to play strong defense. We feel Clintondale hurt us more with the pass than the run."

Senior tackle Frank Voelker had six solo tackles and three assists, and safety Dan Fannon had seven solos and one assist. Senior Brett Browncombe had eight tackles, five of them solos.

In the third quarter, South cut the gap to 6-3 on Jay Berschback's 25-yard field goal, but on the ensuing kickoff dug a hole it couldn't get out of later.

"Clintondale had a good return of the kick, but we had a 15-yard penalty for piling on that really hurt," said Rice. "Instead of just giving up the return, we lost the 15 yards and that gave Clintondale the ball on our 40."

And several plays later Clintondale's quarterback Tim Kubiak lofted a touchdown pass to put the game out of reach.

"That really knocked the wind out of us," Rice said. "But, it was just a case of our inconsistent offense."

South will travel to Romeo for the White Division opener Sept. 7 at 7:30 p.m.

Fall fitness classes at Assumption

Assumption Cultural Center is beginning its 13th year of Kalosomatics fitness classes on Sept. 10.

Kalosomatics, the low-impact and progressive exercise program, features classes for the busiest of schedules, including an early bird session at 6:20 a.m., plus weekday and evening classes.

Moderation classes are ideal for all ages, including senior citizens. Pre-natal and post-partum fitness classes are designed to improve posture, muscle tone and body alignment, and encourage relaxation for labor and childbirth.

"Soft and Safe" Kalosomatics is a class designed for men, women and teens to become physically fit, and who need to lose 50 or more pounds. The 45-minute classes are taught in conjunction with the Bon Secours Nutrition Center.

Assumption also offers Fitness Testing, conducted by exercise physiologist Kathleen Wood. The testing is a helpful guide in developing a personal fitness program, and includes measuring of body composition to determine body fat and tissue, flexibility testing and strength measurement.

Testing dates are Sept. 18, 8-11:30 a.m. and 6-9 p.m., and Sept. 19, 8-11:30 a.m. Re-evaluation to check progress is slated for Nov. 6, 8-11:30 a.m. and evenings by appointment.

The 15-station Bon Secours Nautilus weight room, donated by Bon Secours Hospital, is a most efficient approach to toning and developing strength and endurance. You can choose to train alone on Nautilus, or sign up for a combination of Kalosomatics and Nautilus.

Assumption's fitness schedule also includes cardiac rehabili-itation presented by St. John Hospital, an exercise class for those who have recovered from a heart attack or have undergone heart bypass surgery. The class is also offered for those with risk factors such as hypertension, high cholesterol and coronary artery disease. To enroll, contact Davis Sabo at 343-3157.

St. John Hospital also presents Lifesteps, a 14-week weight loss program designed by the American Dairy Council, and Smokeless, one of the country's most successful smoking cessation programs.

Golf, Karate and a Fitness Walker's Club are also on the fall agenda, as are ballet, tap and jazz classes.

Assumption Cultural Center is located at 21800 Martar Road in the adjoining communities of Grosse Pointe Woods and St. Clair Shores.

First place eludes Buhl

Grosse Pointe's Robbie Buhl came within a whisker of his first American Racing Series win in Denver Aug. 26, before electrical problems forced him to concede first place and accept a solid second-place finish.

Nevertheless, Buhl matched his best performance of the year (he took a second in Milwaukee in June), earning $9,000 and 17 points. Those totals put him into fourth place in the overall totals for the season. He is also in second place for Rookie of the Year honors with five races remaining.

The accident-marred Denver race featured a three-car incident at the start, which sent season leader Paul Tracy to the pits for the afternoon. Snaking his way through traffic at the start, Buhl moved from sixth to third place on lap one and then into second place following another early-race accident.

When leader P.J. Jones retired with cooling problems, Buhl moved into the lead for the first time this year. He then began to methodically distance himself from the field, looking very much like the driver who broke all existing records on the way to the Barber SAAB Pro Series Championship last year.

"The course was very hot and about halfway through the race my brakes began to fade," Buhl said. "But I was confident I could stay in the lead even though the rest of the field was catching up to me."

However, an electrical problem that has plagued Buhl in the last three races reared its ugly head again.

"With six laps to go, my engine just stopped. I flipped the engine toggle switch frantically and got the car started," Buhl recalled. "By then, however, Mark Rodrigues had passed me. I was still able to maintain second place, though."

Buhl raced in Vancouver Labor Day Weekend.

LOVABLE dogs and cats need good homes. For adoption information call: Northern Suburbs Animal Welfare League Volunteer at 777-5110 or 463-7422.

PLEASE DON'T DELAY! SPAY or NEUTER YOUR PET TODAY!

An altered pet is a healthier and happier companion. Also, it spares you the grief and pain of having puppies and kittens destroyed when no homes can be found. Countless numbers of sweet, innocent little ones are euthanized every day in shelters across the country because a pet wasn't spayed or neutered. If we cut down on the numbers of unwanted litters being born, we will also cut down on the number of abandoned, lost and unwanted animals to destroy.

The Missing LINC
Living Individuals in Need in the Community

THE MISSING LINC
LINC is a non-profit organization whose purpose is to place goods no longer needed by individuals and businesses into the hands of metropolitan Detroit charitable agencies. If you have any items no longer of use to you, Operation LINC knows who can and will use them. Please call LINC at 882-6100.

Summer is in full swing, and so are the summer programs for our member agencies. Several have special needs to help make their activities complete. Take a peek at the following and see if you might be able to make a contribution.

COOL IT with beverage coolers. Northeast Guidance Center has a lot going on, but they need a few more things to ice it! An OUTDOOR ICE CHEST or COOLER, 2 large BEVERAGE COOLERS (5-8 gallon capacity), and an AM-FM PHONOGRAPH or TAPE PLAYER (one that is simple to operate would do nicely). The center would like to acquire a free standing CLOTHING RACK with wheels.

More Summer fun going on over at Antonio Santos Elk Lodge. They need things for their childrens summer program like EDUCATIONAL GAMES, educational COLORING BOOKS, CRAYONS and WASHABLE MARKERS.

C.O.T.S. would like a DOUBLE STROLLER. Many other agencies are always in need of childrens items from GAMES to GALOSHES, CRIBS to CLOTHES, and SOCKS to SWINGS.

Detroit Public Schools has asked for a 5' x 7' area rug.

LINC wants your clean, usable odds and ends. There are many organizations who can put these things to a creative use. Uses have been found for misprinted calendars and drapery fabric scraps. Be inventive and call LINC.

THE JAZZ FORUM

is a Michigan not-for-profit organization incorporated in 1990 to perpetuate jazz through educational programs and performances. Concerts showcase the finest talent available in the best possible acoustical setting. The Fall 1990 series features world class artists from the "motor cities" area of southeast Michigan performing song gems by Jerome Kern, Duke Ellington, the Gershwins, Cole Porter, Billy Strayhorn, Rodgers and Hart, among others.

September 19

"Dean" of Detroit pianists Earl Van Riper presents the group which he recently took to Djakarta, Indonesia, and Singapore. Trumpeter Marcus Belgrave, alumni of the Ray Charles and Duke Ellington bands, will be featured instrumentalist. Songstress Helen Gilbert, long a favorite at the Rhinoceros jazz club in Detroit's Warehouse District, will highlight the music of Cole Porter. Rounding out the group are bassist Ken Kellet and drummer Joe Harris.

October 3

Saxophonist George Benson and pianist Claude Black will reprise their recent smash hit performance in the Graystone Jazz series at the Club Penta. Perhaps best known for their teamwork on several Parkwood Records releases, the Benson/Black sextet will feature singer Judy Cochill of the Austin-Moro band, Stan Kenton alumni Jerry McKenzie on drums, Stu Saunders on trombone, and Don Mayberry on acoustic bass.

October 17

Chanteuse Nancy Wood brings together influences as divergent as Dinah Washington and Barbara Streisand to create a style which is uniquely her own. Widely admired by patrons of nightclubs such as the 1940's Chop House and the Rhinoceros, Ms. Wood will be accompanied by prominent educator and pianist Dennis Tini and his quartet featuring Bob Mojica on trumpet, Dan Jordan on bass, and Jerry McKenzie on drums.

October 31

A broad variety of experience, including classical voice training, performance on the club scene in Chicago and Detroit, and work in commercial recording studios, informs the vocal stylings of singer Marla Jackson. Having been a featured attraction with a number of Detroit orchestras, such as those of Jimmy Wilkins and Bill Meyer, Ms. Jackson will be backed by pianist Earl Van Dyke, whose work graced the recordings and concerts of many of Motown Records biggest stars, and an all-star quartet consisting of Steve Wood on sax, Don Mayberry on bass, and Pistol Allen on drums.

November 14

Pianist Bess Bonnier, featured at this year's Detroit Montreux Jazz Festival in a Piano Summit with Barry Harris, Tommy Flanagan, Oliver Jones, and Earl Van Riper, will display both her ability at the piano and as a jazz singer in this Jazz Forum performance. While her roots as a player are in the famed Detroit be-bop piano school, her interests as a vocalist lean toward the urbane lyrics and sophisticated stylings of Dave Frishberg and Blossom Dearie. Ms. Bonnier will lead a Quintet featuring Walt Szymanski and Scott Peterson on trumpet and sax, formerly of the late J. C. Heard's Orchestra, Paul Keller on bass, and Tom Brown on drums.

November 28

Johnny Allen, orchestrator of the Grammy Award winning music for the movie "Shaft," winds up our Fall series with a group featuring singer Shahida Nurullah. Ms. Nurullah, perhaps best known to Detroit jazz fans for her tenure at the Omni Hotel and her work with the New Graystone Orchestra, was recently featured on a recording by internationally acclaimed jazz pianist Geri Allen. Mr. Allen's group will include Steve Carryer on guitar, Rich Kowalewski on bass, and Pistol Allen on drums.
