St. John Hospital's Shiela Sperti named top psychiatry nurse

Shiela Sperti last week joined the few, the proud, the top psychiatry nurses in the nation.

Sperti, a Farms resident and clinical nurse specialist at St. John Hospital, was named "Psychiatry Nurse of the Year" by the Michigan Nurses Association (MNA).

The honor is reserved for only one nurse a year, one of only three nominees across the state.

The actual award was presented Tuesday, Oct. 2, during the MNA's annual awards banquet, this year held at the Pontchartrain Hotel Ball-

While Sperti had no idea her peers nominated her for the prestigious award, she was notified in a letter from the MNA, the largest organization representing registered nurses in Michigan.

"It's exciting to know your peers in health care notice you and your efforts, it makes you feel very special," Sperti said.

To have the nomination accepted by the MNA, several letters of support were required and were provided by her peers in the medical

In clinical nursing for more than two decades, Sperti earneda master of science and nursing degree from Wayne State University. Her undergraduate education was performed at Mercy College in Detroit.

"It is certainly nice to awarded for something I enjoy doing," she said. "I can't imagine doing anything else because I really love my job."

Sperti said her job, as opposed to others in the medical care field, is not strictly limited to patients.

As a psychiatry specialist, she often has contact with patients, their families and the hospital staff -"anyone with psychological symptoms such as stress, sadness or griev-

"My position presents an interesting challenge because I have the potential to have contact with everyone in the hospital," she said.

"Since I truly enjoy working with people, the award was an additional perk. Receiving professional recognition like this is an honor and I'm really proud.

"In deference to every nurse who wins an award, it is so important to do as well as you can every day," Sperti said.

'To deliver good health care in the present day is truly a challenge," she said, referring to a countrywide nursing shortage, shrinking medical budgets and an increase in people with illnesses.

The nurse is at the core of patient care and we have repeatedely demonstrated creativity," she said, "Even with - and because of - today's challenges, it is a great time to be a nurse.

Although he is quite proud of his German heritage, Schomig is even more proud to be an American. The property, located along Lakeshore between Carmel Lane and Winthrop Place, is beautifully landscaped and has a sweeping view of Lake St. Clair. Neighbors on the two adjacent streets, who belong to a combined homeowners association, want to keep it that way. Peter T. Kross, a next-door neighbor of the proposed subdivision, read a letter to the City Council at Monday night's meeting stating he is against the project for several reasons, including increased noise, lack of privacy and a loss of many large and beautiful trees on the adjacent property.	Because a road is proposed just behind his back fence, Kross said the project as currently proposed may negatively affect his property value. Similarly, in a letter from the Carmel-Winthrop Place Homeowners Association, President J.V. Clemente pleaded with the council to deny Russell's request. Clemente's letter stated that the group unanimously opposes the plan and requests the council place a moratorium on any additional subdivision or building while the matter is being studied by the city. So far, the group has collected some 70 signatures from neigh-	or's Advisory Planning Committee for further study. "This will be a good cooling off period," Russell said. "It will give me, the city and the neighbors a chance to sit down and work out the details. "I wish it would have been approved, but now we'll get to know each other and work out the concerns of the neighbors." A date for the advisory committee has not been set, though city officials say the meeting will most likely be in late October.

Airport expansion report raises doubts, questions

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

Grosse Pointers who oppose the Detroit City Airport expansion got a boost last week with the release of a study commissioned by the Grosse Pointes-Harper Woods Study Committee.

The report written by former U.S. Transportation Secretary James Burnley says the airport plan is flawed in several areas. The biggest flaw comes in the amount of funding Detroit thinks it can get from the federal government for the $501 million expansion.

Burnley, who now works in the private sector, used experi-ence gained through six years in the Department of Transportation to determine that the city is not being realistic by counting on a $199 million grant from the Federal Aviation Administration for phase one of the project.

The city has also requested another $136 million for phase two and another $7 million for phase three.

Burnley compared quests with the $185 million asked for by Wayne County for its proposed $1 billion expansion See related editorial, page 6A of Metro Airport.

The largest grant ever given to an airport by the FAA was $351 million for a new $2 billion airport in Denver.

Any shortfall would most likely have to be made up by Detroit taxpayers.

"They'll never get from here to there if they're depending totally on grants," he said.

Aside from the funding issues, there are other concerns which raise serious questions about the effects any expansion would have on air and water quality. "There is a very substantial list of very serious problems that must be addressed before this can go forward," he said.

The report says that the draft of the environmental impact statement (EIS) does not ade-quately address issues of air

Because the airport is in an area that is at its limit for carbon monoxide, ozone and other particulates, special attention must be paid to any new sources of pollutants. The study, Burnley said, does not go far enough in these areas.

But a recent proposal by developer Richard Russell to split a Lakeshore property in Grosse Pointe Farms into five lots has officials thinking about what they want the future to look like.

The city, struggling with several recent developments in the once-open farming community, has seen the land systematically being divided into smaller parcels with more and more homes.

This time, the city may just go back to the drawing board, said Farms Mayor Joseph Fromm.

Kross said he is not opposed to boring residents who also oppose property development as long as it conforms to the city's zoning regulations and as long as surrounding property owners are not damaged by the develop-the plan. Fromm said the city needs to step back and take a good look at the increase in development in the city over the last few years. He then proposed the establishment of a new master plan for the city which will specifically define what types of development will be allowed and under what conditions.

According to Russell, that's all well and fine, but the question before the council is the proposed development.

"The opposition is from the neighbors who've been benefitting from someone else's efforts," Russell said, referring to the current owner's care of the prop-

Proposed Cottage expansion sent back to committee

By Dan Jarvis

Cottage Hospital is still one step away from an approval of the proposed expansion of the facility's emergency care section.

At the meeting of the Farms City Council on Monday, Oct. 1, the council voted to send the proposed project back to the Mayor's Advisory Planning Commission for a second time.

Mayor Joseph Fromm originally sent the proposed expansion to his appointed advisory commission, who voted down the expansion 4-3 during their last

At Monday's meeting, Cottage officials said one of the commission members had changed her no vote to a yes, possibly changing the commission's recommendation to the mayor.

At a recent City Council meeting, Fromm said he would abide by the decision of his advisiory commission and his vote would be recorded as the commission recommends.

A change in the commission's recommendation would therefore change his vote and may tip the scales toward City Council approval of the expansion project.

Fromm at Monday's meeting reminded Cottage officials that the expansion will require five affirmative votes from the council rather than a simple major-id President Bush's campaign trip to Detroit benefit Michigan GOP candidates William Schuette and John Engler who are seeking to unseat the Democratic incumbents, U.S. Sen. Carl Levin and Gov. James Blanchard?

Did Bush's Detroit visit aid the GOP?

Nobody really knows the political effects of the president's partisan speech in Michigan but it is clear that the presidential visit did raise welcome campaign funds, the morale of party workers and enthusiasm among the partisan crowd that heard

Yet Bush's visit again raises the question as to whether a president can transfer his popularity to other party candidates, especially when he is not on the ballot himself and thus has no visible coattails for the presumed beneficiaries to grab

The answer to the question is that sometimes a president can transfer some of his popularity to other candidates and sometimes he can't. If the Michigan campaign for U.S. senator, for example, is based chiefly on defense and foreign affairs issues, Bush's visit could do Schuette some good, especially with the president still riding high in the public opinion polls.

But in the gubernatorial race, it is difficult to see how much benefit will accrue to Engler because the campaign is being waged chiefly on state issues. In fact, both GOP candidates need all the help they can get from Bush or anyone else since both still trailed their foes by substantial margins in the most recent public opinion

Sen. Carl Levin, however, emphasizes he is not attacking Bush nor running against him. Instead, Levin points out, he is supporting the president on Mideast policy and is running against Schuette. Democrats profess to see little chance that the coattail-effect sought by the GOP will be any more successful than it was when Ronald Reagan visited Michigan in 1986.

However, the president's trip to Michigan and his partisan campaigning for other GOP candidates in other states, do raise another question. It is whether his appearances hinder his chances of reaching acceptable compromises on legislation pending in the Democratic Congress.

In fact, it could be counterproductive for a president to urge Democrats to cooperate with him in reaching a consensus and then campaign personally against some of the very Democrats whose support he needs if his legislative goals are to be met. Yet he did reach an accommodation with the Democrats on a debt reduction package.

No doubt the president is counting on his continued popularity in the wake of the Mideast crisis to help GOP candidates in Michigan and elsewhere but as time goes on his popularity may decline. That could occur if the U.S. buildup in Saudi Arabia runs into trouble or if the U.S. assignment becomes a lengthy one.

Back on the home front, it is good to know that the first Blanchard-Engler debate has been scheduled at 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 6, and will be broadcast on WXYZ-TV, Channel 7, and also by several outstate stations.

Two more debates between Levin and Schuette also have been scheduled with the first to be broadcast next Monday, Oct. 8, at 7 p.m. by WDIV in Detroit with anchorman Mort Crim as the moderator.

Debates offer opportunities for candidates to outline the issues, testify about their qualifications and make immediate rebuttals or explanations of specific political charges lodged against them.

Debates thus serve the public better than TV commercials that in brief sound bites make charges or claims that are seldom documented and, as a Detroit Free Press poll showed last week, are disliked by a majority of the public, especially if they contain personal attacks on opponents.

GEE....DIDN'T THEY ALL USED TO BE THAT

'Civil War' offers 1990 lesson

eldom have so many Americans seen and appreciated a Public Broadcasting System film as have just witnessed the documentary, "The Civil War."

Aside from a Detroit News columnist who found it "boring" and a recent immigrant from Europe who echoed that sentiment, the majority of adults and critics we've heard and read praised the documentary's artistic merit and its historical accuracy.

David S. Broder, the Washington Post's syndicated columnist, found a special lesson in it for Americans at a time when several hundred thousand U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia are facing the prospect of a Middle Eastern war.

He wrote that while it may be necessary for the United States and its allies to fight a war in the Gulf, "it is nothing to undertake casually or impulsively, without a sense of foreboding at the cost." And, he concluded, "not after what author and producer Ken Burns has shown us.'

A point made by historian James M. McPherson in his essay on war and politics in "The Civil War" also has application in the 1990s. He pointed out that in our nation's history, election day has arrived six times during a war and that the war policies of an incumbent have led him to victory four times - in 1812, 1864, 1944 and

But twice, he reminded us, "voters overturned the party in power, partly because of the unpopularity of war policies and the war itelf." He was writing, obviously, of the Democratic defeats in 1952 and 1968, blamed in part on the Korean and Viet-

The application to 1992 is obvious: Will George Bush become a fifth war president to have his policies endorsed or is it possible he or his party could be repudiated as a result of a Middle Eastern war?

Most Americans obviously hope that the 1992 presidential election will not face such foreboding questions but perhaps if enough people raise them now, their actions will tend to mollify the war talk in Washington.

Good news for airport foes wo studies that have expressed serious doubts about the cost estimates and other factors involved in the proposed expansion of the Detroit City Airport have raised the hopes of Grosse Pointe foes that the project will not be carried out.

One study was commissioned by the Grosse Pointes-Harper Woods Study Committee opposing the airport expansion and was carried out under the direction of James Burnley, a Washington lawyer and former U.S. secretary of transportation.

The second was made by John Marco, fiscal analyst for the Detroit City Council, whose report confirms many of the observations in Burnley's study but also said the city had made a "major assumption er-'ror" in predicting its contributions would end in 1990 and "a significant omission" in failing to itemize costs of financing project monies.

Burnley said the assumption that the Federal Aviation Administration would commit $192 million for the first phase of the $501 million project "is highly questionable" in view of the needs of competing airport development projects.

He compared the city's requests with the $185 million sought by Wayne County for its proposed $1 billion expansion of Metropolitan Airport and with the record FAA grant of $351 million for the new $2 billion Denver airport.

Burnley also contended that the draft of the environmental impact statement did not adequately address air quality issues, did not answer all questions about water quality and provided only an incomplete anaylsis of the noise pollution involved.

So far, at least, the report appears to justify the $25,000 allocation by the five Pointe communities to Burnley's review of an airport expansion plan that would, many Pointers believe, cause further air, water and noise pollution, create new safety hazards and possibly even damage property values.

Our advice: Keep up the good fight.

Letters Gun control II

To the Editor: Thanks for publishing the September 27 letter on Gun Control from Mr. Joseph P. Wright. My repsonse is prompted by the unusual reasoning Mr. Wright uses to support his pro-gun-control position. Mr. Wright supports a seven-day "cooling off" period to permit police to check on a would-be handgun purchaser. Perhaps Mr. Wright and some of your other readers would be surprised to find that I, an NRA (National Rifle Association) member, also would like such a period. Why? Well, currently in the state of Michigan any legal purchaser of a handgun must first make application, be fingerprinted and have the state police check those fingerprints to make sure the applicant is legally entitled to purchase a handgun. The application fee is $24 and is non-refundable. The time period to check these data runs about 35 to 50 days. Any reduction to seven days would be welcomed by many Michigan residents who wish to avail themselves of their right to keep and bear arms.

Mr. Wright's use of a dictionary published in the 20th century to define the word "militia" as used in the 18th century is not an intellectually honest argument. During the debates in the mid 1980's on the revisions to the Gun Control Act of 1968, a sub-committee of the U.S. Senate researched this issue and concluded that the word "militia" in use in the 1780's meant "all able-bodied men between the ages of 16 and 65." Advocates of gun control are fond of using Mr. Wright's argument and, further, invariably ignore the last 14 words of the Second Amendment "...the right of people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed." What does your dictionary say about the word 'people," Mr. Wright? Does "people" mean only "politi-cally right-thinking" citi-

Mr. Wright states that the formation of the National Guard disposes of any rights under the Second Amendment anyway. Really? Since we are told in the Declaration of Independence that all men "... are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights ...," it hardly seems logical that the government can eliminate or curtail any of these rights by legislating the creation of a National Guard. The same logic would permit the Government to publish a newspaper and thereby eliminate or curtail the freedom of the

Mr. Wright goes on to argue that since the founding fathers couldn't have envisioned modern arms that they "could hardly have legislated in favor of a right to 'keep and bear' these kinds of weapons." By the same convoluted logic there could be no freedom of the press for TV, radio, telegraph or even modern printing presses. Only hand-set type used in hand-operated, handfed, and hand-cranked-press newspapers would be protected. Not even the Grosse Pointe News would qualify.

Regarding Mr. Purdy and Mr. Hinkley: Both legally purchased the weapons used in their tragic assaults. Mr. Purdy was arrested by the police five different times on eight different felony counts and was able to legally buy an AK47 in a severe guncontrol state. How? Simple. In each and every arrest, Mr. Purdy was allowed to plea bargain his charges down to misdemeanors. No felonies mean no loss of rights. Not only the right to

to trim deficit Taxes needed

t long last, the federal debt reduction package emerged Sunday from Lthe economic summit between President Bush and congressional negotiators. Now the question is whether enough votes can be found in Congress to pass it.

As expected, the package contains tax increases as well as spending cuts, both of which were required to meet the budget needs as well as the differing views of the two parties.

Yet there is still plenty of pain to go around. Higher levies on beer, wine, liquor, tobacco and luxury items will affect almost everyone. Increased taxes on gasoline and plane tickets will hit the traveling public. And Medicare costs will be boosted by increasing the amount of wages taxed and hiking the fees.

Laments from both liberal Democrats and conservative Republicans filled the Washington air after the compromise was announced. Democrats were critical of the cuts in services, the GOP of the increased taxes. So loud were the complaints that questions were raised as to whether the compromise could be put through Con-

Yet in the end, the compromise ought to be enacted. It will at least start the process of debt reduction that has been too long delayed during the Reagan and Bush presi-

True, it will cause pain and even suffering at all levels of society, from the beerdrinking stratum to the fur-coat crowd, and it may even delay recovery from the current recession. But the package is the price individuals should pay to rescue the nation and future generations from the costly federal debt.

Not much, and you?

Got a call from an old friend of mine the other day.

I hear from her about every three months, usually just at the time I could use a phone call from an old friend. We generally talk about half an hour and when we hang up, we forget about each other for three months until she runs across my name in her phone book while looking someone else's up and gives me a call.

We met while we were both working in Marshall, Mich., a speck of a town that held no interest for either of us, but we both had jobs at the same newspaper. In those tight spaces we saw each other at our best and at our worst.

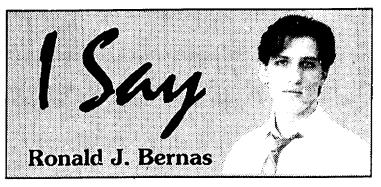

We didn't - and still don't have much in common. She was born and raised in the deep South and I did most of my growing up in the suburbs. She barely made it through high school, I breezed through college, doing as little as I could to get by. She loved the band Lynrd Skynrd and try as I did, I couldn't find anything redeeming about the music, but she couldn't understand the Talking Heads tapes I knew all the words to.

But still we became friends. Her husband and I went drinking when she worked late, and she and I went drinking when her husband worked late. I visited them when I was in Florida, and they stopped by when they were in town.

In all, it was a nice friendship between two unlikely people. It's odd when I think I only worked with her for about six months, but we've been friends for more than three years since I left Marshall.

It had been a while since we talked and, ironically, the day before she called I wondered what she had been up to. On top of having problems with her husband, she was spending her spare time at the hospital tending to a seriously ill mother.

So when I picked up the ringing phone I was glad to hear the question she always asks when she calls: "Hi, Ron, did I get you at a bad time?"

'What's new?" I asked. "Not much," she said. "What about you?"

"Not a thing, and what's new really isn't worth talking about."

Then there was a slight pause as we each thought about what, indeed, was new. It had been a long time since we talked, and I had to file through my memory banks as to what I'd done since we talked.

After a little chatting, I remembered to ask about her writing - she always asked me if I thought she was stupid for trying to write short stories because she isn't educated. I told her the only thing dumb about her was that question. "I haven't done much at all. I couldn't find anything interesting to write about and then my mom got sick and then, with what happened to me I couldn't do much writing," she said.

"What do you mean?"

"I was out bowling one night and I started feeling dizzy, but I thought it was just 'cause I was hot. But then I stood up and the next thing I remember I was in the hospital." The same one her mother was in.

"They ran all sorts of tests. They ran brain scans, it was kind of scary. Then they told me I had multiple sclerosis.

"Oh, my god," I said.

"Then they told me I didn't; then they thought I had something else; then they didn't. I was in the hospital for three weeks while they made up their minds, and last week they told me what they think I have. Have you ever heard of Epstein-Barr?"

I said I had, and that I had read a fascinating first-person article about a young woman with the bizarre malady dubbed "the yuppie disease."

"They said I got it because I was so stressed out, not taking care of myself because I was working and going straight to the hospital every day to be with my mom and

And now with her feeling better, she's getting ready to re-take the classes she had to drop during the time she spent 24 hours a day in bed, exhausted from the strain of brushing her teeth or getting a glass of water. And last week she frightened off a burglar while her new "watchdog" wagged its tail because it was happy to see a visitor. But they don't have to worry about burglars anymore because they're buying a house and things are going much better with her husband. And her mother's finally out of the hospital after eight months ... all that from a friend who said she couldn't find anything to write about and said "not much" was

Something's wrong

I love the beginning of a new school year. For "school people" such as myself it is better than New Year's Eve. The mood is one of hope among staff, parents, and students, and most share the resolution to do better, try harder, and make this the best year ever. But as is true with all resolutions, hope and good intentions are not usually enough, and sometimes we need help to make those dreams a reality.

With that in mind, I would like to reprint, with permission, a letter that first appeared in the Birmingham/Bloomfield Families in Action newsletter, Connections, in May 1990.

The author is the mother of a 17-year-old daughter, and her letter reminded me of other parents I have met who are confused, frightened and frustrated when they know that "something is wrong." I was struck by Margery Carney's honesty, her perseverance, and her insights about what did and didn't work as she sought help for her daughter. Her letter follows:

I wish I had all the answers that parents are looking for, but I don't. In all honesty, I don't believe there are any concrete answers. There's consistent hard work, caring, questioning, learning, and just plain luck. thinge aren's enough to keep our children drug-free and safe. Our daughter, age 17, has just ended six months in a drug treatment center. She will have to live with and deal with addiction for the rest of her life - and so will we, her family. The first clue we had that something was wrong was her declining school performance. Years of private and school counseling, including intensive evaluations, testing for drug use and drug awareness classes were ineffective. We were sure her problems indicated more than the typical teenage struggle for independence. We were aware, concerned and finally desperate to stop the downward spiral, but we couldn't seem to find the help we needed.

I feel lucky that finally we did find a counselor our daughter was able to relate to and that she had the courage to admit she needed help. I feel lucky we found a rehabilitation center that took her immediately and helped our family begin to find awareness and understand the changes we all needed to accept in order for all of us to get healthy. Addiction is a family disease.

I feel frightened for our daughter's future. I feel frightened for all the other kids who are facing, and will face, the pressures and temptations she faced. I feel frightened for what other parents are going to endure. I feel frightened that our society doesn't consider alcohol a drug; that our society could even consider legalizing any other drugs. I feel frightened that there is so much denial about the problem. Our kids are experimenting early and continuing to use more and more regularly. Our daughter didn't spend a lot of money to get alcohol, pot or acid — the drugs she used. For the most part they were given to her, often right at school. She was high almost daily before she entered treatment.

I think the only way we will make progress toward a drug-free community is to be willing to take risks: to risk standing up for our beliefs; to risk setting definite rules and to consistently follow through with consequences if the rules are broken. Most of all we have to teach our children w are accountable for their actions. Our kids need to know that certain behavior will not be tolerated, even if the final option means making them leave home.

I believe parents need to be firm at home and let school personnel know we expect the same of them. That means not making excuses for our kids, not protecting them, not denying information the school shares with us. It also means that maybe we have to be willing to have our kids expelled from school, so that other kids can get on with learning and the teachers can get on with teaching. I am not tough, but I'm learning. We had to walk away from our daughter when she could not agree to live with the restrictions we placed on her. I hope I never have to do anything that painful again. I think that parents are worried that what happened to our daughter might happen to their kids. We are looking for answers, for ways to guard against drugs. (Please remember alcohol is a drug, equally potent and addictive as any other drug.) I often wonder what more we could have done. I think we needed to be more persistent with trying to get help. Even though we sought help from counselors and treatment centers we were able to slip back into denial of the problem when trained people told us they didn't think she was using. We should have stuck with our instincts rather than allow ourselves to be lulled into false security. I am not blaming myself. Our daughter chose for herself each time she used, no one forced her. Now she is choosing to be straight. I just wish

I had followed through sooner.

I am really proud of how far she has come and how far my husband and son have come. We have a good, caring family relationship again. To me that's worth fighting whatever fight I have to in order to keep it. I truly hope we, as a community, can all gain the awareness we need to work together to stop the escalating drug problem and become a healthy

> Margery Carney Birmingham Parent

Mrs. Carney states much more powerfully than I could the importance of trusting your instincts when you know something is wrong, and her hope that we will take the risks necessary to become a healthy community.

In my next column I will discuss some of the resources available to you as a parent if you think your child might have an alcohol or other drug problem: how to seek help and the questions to ask of those who claim to be knowledgeable about substance abuse issues.

In future columns I will explore some of the things we can do on a community level to make a difference. I encourage you to share your reactions, ideas and experiences of what has and hasn't worked so that together we can make the dreams we have for our children come true.

Brink of war

To the Editor:

I watched the first segment of "The Civil War" on PBS by filmmaker Ken Burns. I wanted to watch it so I could, in part, relive one of the most significant events in our country's his-

The commentary, the narrative and fantastic photography, along with the old photographs, were so impressive. If I were artistically inclined, I would have stopped my tape at several intervals and sketched the scenes of the countryside.

At the end of the tape, I heard one of the most beautiful love letters I have ever heard. It was from a soldier to his wife in case of his imminent death; he died one week later at Bull Run. The sentiment he expressed was one so many of us feel, but so few have the capability to express.

"Three million people fought in The Civil War and 2 percent of the population perished.'

We are at the brink of another war. A war of a totally different nature. I pray to God that the first shot will never be fired, and that our tour in the Persian Gulf will be remembered as the greatest peace keeping mission there ever was.

News Wright finds Dodge performance — on and off road

ine admitted that for the last few years high performance at Dodge has been "mostly decals and smoke." But no more. "Affordable performance" is Dodge's battle cry for 1991, he said.

Star of Dodge's peformance renaissance is the Stealth, a rounded and very contemporarylooking sports car developed by Dodge and Mitsubishi engineers and speed demons. And it is hot, even hotter than it looks, so hot that Dodge decided to enlist the Skip Barber Racing School, to help introduce the car to the press. Actually, to introduce the press to the car.

Before we took to the test track at Chrysler's Chelsea Proving Grounds, Barber showed us diagrams and gave careful instructions in his staccato, rapid-Marketing Manger Marty Lev- fire delivery as to how to safely get the feel of the new Dodge Stealth R/T Turbo and a couple of its competitors.

As Barber rattled off his pitch for good driving, drawing diagrams on a large pad of paper, explaining how to take a turn at high speed, why you should do it that way and what happens if you don't, I began to wonder why we don't teach this kind of thing to all young drivers. Some people are going to drive fast, why not teach them how to do it safely?

Barber warned us that we can't ignore the laws of physics without getting into a lot of trouble. "There are physical laws at work here and you can't change 'em, you have to learn to live with 'em," he said.

A course had been laid out with pylons. Three pylons were tipped at each turn. The first, Barber said, was where the turn begins. At that point, the driver must begin aiming at the second tipped pylon which was at the apex of the turn. The driver then aims at the third tipped pylon which was at the end of the turn.

"If you have to slow down, brake before the turn, not after you have begun it," he said. "If you brake when you reach the apex because you realize you came in too fast, your vehicle's weight shifts to the front and the rear wants to break and sway. This turns you in too sharply for a smooth turn and you're in trouble."

The key to safe high-speed driving, he said, is to plan ahead. "Always have your eye cam, 16-valve, 2.2-liter, four-cylinder engine; the Shadow ES with turbocharged 2.5-liter four and the Dodge Dakota V-8n pickup withi 5.2-liter engine.

I selected one, tried to fasten the chin strap, but one had been pushed up as I put the heavy lined helmet on and was entangled around my left ear. I took it back off, put it on again, tried to fasten the chin strap, noticed that Unser had not fastened his and let it dangle.

I walked toward the car, trying to look like I knew what I tank. He took me through the course, telling where to shift, where to brake, where to begin turns and where to end them and how to run through a slalom

The three cars were very comparable, all excellent. Somewhat to my surprise, if I had to rank them I would put the Stealth first, the Porsche second and the Corvette third. The Dakota handled well and its four-wheel drive did what it was supposed to, biting in for good traction all the time. But the most surprising thing was the smooth ride. Never having raced off-road, I had little to compare it with, but Hall assured me that the Dakota has an unusually smooth ride.

I came away convinced that Dodge was indeed serious again about performance. I was also more convinced than ever that all motorists would benefit from acquiring some of the skills that Skip Barber and his instructors impart. And if you hanker to get off the highway, Rod Hall can show you how.

Architect Rosetti receives Man of the Year award

owner and chief executive officer of Rossetti Associates/Architects Planners, has been chosen as the 1990 "Man of the Year" by the Columbus Day Celebration Committee. The honor is given annually to an Italian-American who has demonstrated outstanding achievements in his field and is a source of inspiration to the Italian-American community.

Rossetti will be honored at the annual Columbus Day Celebration Committee Dinner on Sunday, Oct. 7, at 7:30 p.m. at the San Marino Club in Troy.

"It gives us great pride to have an outstanding Italian-American of Mr. Rossetti's caliber as the 1990 Man of the Year and we are honored that he accepted," said Thomas Lanni, president, Columbus Day Celebration Committee.

Rossetti has made major contributions to the architectural profession at the local, state, national and international level through his design talents and leadership activities in professional and civic affairs.

His firm achieved national acclaim for the design of The Palace, in Auburn Hills, home of the Detroit Pistons. In addition, they were called in to design the Italian Pavilion for Disney's EPCOT Center.

The company maintains offices in Detroit and Los Angeles. It has been instrumental in developing plans for sports facilities nationwide, including plans for new facilities in San Diego, and Ottawa, Canada. Recently it was to develop site plans for the United States Tennis Association's home for the U.S. Open.

He is the son of Louis Rossetti, founder of Giffels & Rossetti Inc., who came to the United Sates from Italy to study architecture on an Albert Kahn scholarship. He worked in his fathers's firm for many years, before founding Rossetti Associates in 1969. Gino Rossetti's son, Matthew, 29, joined Rossetti Associates last year to carry on the family prac-

During its 21-year history, Rossetti's firm has grown from an initial staff of five professionals to a firm consisting of more than 50 professionals, with a nationwide clientele.

Concerned with community affairs, Rossetti has been active on several committees and organizations involved in finding solutions to local community problems, including: the Mayor's Committee on Model Cities Programs, in Detroit; The Governor's Committee on Aesthetics; and the Central Business District of Detroit. He is also an active participant in the Downtown Development Committees for Los Angeles.

Rossetti has received numerous awards and honors, including the Michaelangelo Award, from Boys Towns of Italy, in 1982; the Mayor's Committee on Keep Detroit Beautiful, Distinguished Community Service Award, in 1979; and many architectural and engineering society awards. Last year, he received the Gold Medal Award from the Michigan Society of Architects, the highest recognition given by the society. This year, he will chair the MSA Convention to be held in October. Tickets to the Columbus Day Dinner are $50 a person and are available by calling ticket chairman Ned Piccinini at 294-6430.

"keep and bear," but the right to vote Mr. Purdy is not a gun-control issue, but rather a prosecutor-control issue. By the way, all battlefield assault weapons are designed to wound, not kill, and the Geneva Convention even prohibits the military use of hollow-point bullets which are legally and routinely used by police and private citizens.

Why am I a member of the NRA and why does the NRA "opppose every attempt of any kind of limit to even a minor extent any effort to control any gun of any kind. ..?" Simply because rights are generally not lost wholesale (constitutional amendments excepted), but are eroded through the efforts of sincere, well-meaning but unrealistic people to have government control more and more of our daily activity, heavily assisted by a general apathy among us citizens.

We can't lose rights? Well,

I lost my right not to be searched when I go to the boarding gate at the airport, or when I enter the federal courthouse downtown. In certain jobs, on probably an ever-expanding list, I have to submit to drug tests to prove that I am not a user.

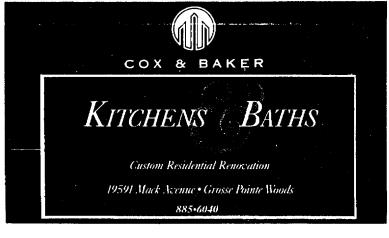

Amendment 16 of the U.S. Constitution took away my right not to have my income taxed by the federal government. (At the time of the wording of that amendment, a proposal to limit the tax to 4 percent in the amendment was ridiculed as unnecessary because the people would never permit it to reach such an exorbitant level.)

The worst human rights dictatorships of the 20th century (one on the left and the other on the right), the Nazis and the Communists, never trampled on the right of their native or subdued subjects to consume alcohol, but the most democratic country in the world did so legally and constitutionally and then changed its mind and repealed its prohibition in Amendments 18 and 21. We constitutionally lost our right to be elected president of the United States more than twice in Amendment 22. Finally, the state lost its right to require voters to be 21 years old to vote in Amendment 26.

Millions of women are fearful that their current right to an abortion might be removed by the soon-tobe, newly constructed U.S. Supreme Court. Is abortion a right not subject to government interference, or is it a "lower-case" right subject to current faddism and popularity? Without a doubt. Just ask minority citizens how easily they got and are still getting theirs.

In summary, my rights are unalienable. Mr. Wright may freely waive any and all of his rights for himself, but he does not have the right to waive mine.

Get 10 free flowering trees

Ten free flowering trees will be given to each person who joins The National Arbor Day Foundation during October.

The free trees are part of the non-profit foundation's Trees for America campaign.

The foundation will give two white dogwood, two American redbud, two golden raintree, two Washington hawthorn and two flowering crab trees to members joining during October.

"These trees were selected because they will give a colorful flowering of pink, white, yellow and red blossoms throughout the spring," said John Rosenow, the foundation's executive director.

The trees will be shipped postpaid at the right time for planting between Oct. 15 and Dec. 10 with enclosed planting instructions. The 6-to-12-inch trees are guaranteed to grow or they will be replaced free of charge.

To become a member of the foundation and to receive the free trees, send a $10 membership contribution to Flowering Trees, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Ave., Nebraska City, NE 68410, by Oct.

He said it would take a little time for the committee and the mayors who were presented with the report on Thursday — to absorb the information. The study committee was expected to meet this week, the mayors were to meet next week.

"I don't think at this point that anyone is leaning (toward legal action)," Park Mayor Palmer T. Heenan said. "I don't want to be unreasonable. We can accept what we have now, but if there's a substantial escalation it wouldn't be good for us."

George Freeman, Woods mayor, said that based on the report, he feels an all-out effort by the cities could help curtail some of the expansion.

"There's some good things about the airport," he said. "It's convenient for one. I don't think it can be stopped fully, but we can put controls on some of the elements.'

He said he was unsure at this time how the individual cities would choose to proceed.

United States after the long journey from a war-ravaged Europe.

A lifetime later, Schomig won't stop looking to the future. As a European baronet appointed by a Scottish laird, Schomig has a healthy family of his own, and has a lot to look forward to.

But in quiet reflection, he can't forget his past.

"I remember Ellis Island so well," Schomig said. "It's burned in my mind like it was yesterday. There were people lined up like cattle in a large, dingy hall confused and waiting.

"The decision to let you into the country was not made when you got on the boat in Europe, but when you got to the gates over here," he said. "Depending on your health, you could be refused.

"I was 7, traveling with my mother. We came over to meet my father, who came over a year earlier. We were coming to the U.S. to escape the political upheaval in Bavaria when the Communists tried to take over after World War I. There were no jobs, massive food shortages and we were starving.

When Schomig and his mother were examined at the immigration processing area, a doctor noticed the boy was ill and refused their entrance into the country.

'We had nowhere to go. We spent all our money on passage and our father was working in Detroit. Then my mother began to cry." Schomig said his mother's tears must have softened the immigration doctor. "He finally relinquished and said to go ahead," Schomig said.

Soon after, Katherine Schomig and her son were escorted through the streets of New York en route to the train station, just one more stop on their long journey toward Detroit.

"Just then several loud sirens started screaming and a cavalcade came along and people ran to line up to watch," he said. "As it turned out, it was Charles Lindbergh who was on his way to a ticker-tape parade.'

Several years later, Schomig met Lindbergh's mother who served as Schomig's math teacher at Cass Technical High School in Detroit.

Shortly after the United States entered World War II. Schomig enlisted in the U.S. Army, serving as a ground school instructor, then as a base photographer at Hamilton Field near San Fransisco.

He took yet another photographic-oriented job after earning a business certificate from Wayne State University and is still a professional shutterbug to this day.

Schomig began making photographs at a young age and has continued ever since. His work is often on display at Gallery in the Woods on Mack Avenue in Grosse Pointe Woods. He is a contributor to the Grosse Pointe News and Detroit Free Press and the house photographer for the Lochmoor Club.

"Photography was always a hobby but also an avocation," he said. "I started photographing weddings early and have done them ever since."

Before retiring eight years ago, Schomig became vice president of two corporations. His retirement has been anything but Schomig and his wife, Pauline. have traveled to Europe several times between photographic endeavors, swearing that the key to a happy retirement is to keep moving and keeping busy.

Among his favorite travel spots is Girvan Ayrshire, Scotland, where he was presented with his own permanent room in a 14th century Scottish castle named Penkill.

Not just anyone gets to live in a castle, first you need to be presented with a title, his being the baronet of Penkill. He was so named by former Grosse Pointer Dr. Elton Eckstrand, who was titled the 18th Laird of Penkill when he acquired the castle and estate from the last living Laird by lineage, the 17th Laird, a baroness who's family lived in the castle since 1420.

Eckstarand's title required the strict scrutiny of the Scottish crown, with approval granted by the Lord Lion of Scotland.

Penkill Castle was home to the Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood, a group of artists which included painter Dante Rossetti, his sister and poet, Chritina Rossetti, and the well-known painter William Holman Hunt.

Schomig's room, rumored to be haunted, overlooks an age-old

"I didn't believe in ghosts until I went to Penkill," Schomig said. "But I've encountered circumstances and unusual experiences which are difficult to explain. Now, I'm not so sure.'

If someone is the least bit superstitious, he said, the Castle at Penkill may give one an experience they will not soon forget.

The estate now houses possibly the largest collection of Pre-Raphaelite art and poetry in the world and is the site of tours by art (and castle) lovers from around the world.

igan. His other son, Jonathan, a software manager with Xerox, earned his master's at Eastern Michigan University. His daughter Krista also earned a master's from U-M and is raising a family of her own. Schomig said his family is the best thing that has ever happened to him. "Marrying Pauline was the smartest thing I ever did," he said.

So on German-American Day, the Schomigs will not make a big fuss. Lud, however, may just drift back to his childhood in old Bavaria. He may just reflect on his fruitful life in America. Then he will most likely go about his Attention!

Canines from the Pointes and beyond minded their P's and Q's last Sunday during the 42nd annual All-Breed Obedience Trial at Grosse Pointe North High School. The trials are conducted each year by the Southern Michigan Obedience Training Club, a non-profit organization that has been teaching people how to train their dogs for more than four decades. Dogs and their masters competed for titles, trophies and cash awards.

Unusual this year, a Belgian Tervuren was high in trial with a 198-1/2 score. The same animal also had the highest combined score.

Pointer wins cartoonist award

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

Draper Hill, editorial cartoonist for The Detroit News, recently won the Thomas Nast Prize, an award given by the Thomas Nast Society which awards the most accomplished and influential cartoonists in the

The award dates from 1978 and is given every three years, said Hill, of Grosse Pointe. He shares the award this year with a German cartoonist, Fritz Behrendt.

A modest man, Hill said he "wouldn't presume to know" why he was asked to submit work to the international organi-

Burglar arrested

An alert Park resident's tip to police led to the arrest of a suspected burglar Sept. 7.

The resident in the 900 block of Barrington watched a man walk from near his home to Alter Road and return again to Barrington. The resident checked his house and found a screen had been pushed open. He called police.

At 9:30 p.m., responding officers found the suspect hiding in a parked car.

Detectives learned the suspect's fingerprints matched those recovered at the scene of a burglary in the 800 block of Barrington Sept. 2.

Hot bikes

Two 13-year-old boys were found riding around the Farms on hot bikes Sept. 28.

At 4:15 p.m., Farms police were notified that the boys were riding dirt bikes in the area of Lothrop and Chalfonte and were going into people's back yards.

When officers found the boys, they were riding two dirt bikes that had been painted over. One bike's serial number was partially filed away and the other was a reported stolen bike. The boys were taken to their homes in Detroit.

He said he planned on stretching the trip into a working vacation. He will conduct research in Nast's hometown for a book he is writing on the legendary cartoonist.

Nast, who many consider the father of the editorial cartoon, used his medium in the late 1800s to rid New York's Tammany Hall government of corruption, including the amoral "Boss" Tweed. He is also credited with originating the stillused caricatures of the Republican elephant, Uncle Sam and Santa Claus.

"The full story of Thomas Nast hasn't yet been told," he Hill, who turns out six editorial cartoons a week for The Detroit News, said he uses a subtle text with overblown caricatures to get his point across.

"I hope the wit is subtle," he said. "The drawing is exaggerated, which makes the point. I'm also fond of parody, and I enjoy the occasional analogy which might be drawn between a situation and something everyone knows; say a Wizard of Oz-type situation.'

His subjects vary from local to international politics, but he admits that his Coleman Young caricature is one of his best and that Young is also a target of many of his barbs.

The News, where Hill has worked since 1976, has printed four books of his collected works.

McNamara vows to quiet Metro soon

Stepping up the county's attack on the noise problems at Metro Airport, Wayne County Executive Edward H. McNamara traveled to Washington, D.C., Sept. 25 to announce the county's plan to cap aircraft noise.

Addressing the congressional Subcommittee on Aviation, Mc-Namara stated, "We have decided, despite the FAA's willingness to cooperate, that the planes at the airport, as well as quickest way to alleviate the noise problems at Metro is to do it ourselves. And we are on the verge of completing our plan."

During his statement at the committee hearing, McNamara outlined the county's soon-to-bereleased plan to cap the noise. It includes the phasing-out of older, louder aircraft, restricting engine run-up, and enforcing tighter control on the use of louder other measures.

"Although these actions may enger the airlines, Department Transportation or the FAA, we believe we have no choice but to protect ourselves," McNamara said. "We expect quick action from the FAA, but we cannot wait for any FAA changes to take effect. Wayne County residents have already suffered too long.'

McNamara pointed out that ie county's plan will offer im.

mediate and permanent relief once combined with improve-ments made by the FAA. "But the only real solution," he said, "is a national solution and we are not going to wait on Washington to solve Wayne County's problems."

During his testimony, Mc-Namara also charged the panel to create national standards on airport noise that would require the FAA to conduct noise impact studies before changing flight patterns under 10,000 feet. Currently, the FAA has no such formal requirement.

"Wayne County shouldn't have to sacrifice its environment for jobs. And we won't," Mc-Namara insisted. "But economic security is also an important element of the quality of life of Americans, and we must do everything we can to ensure it."

The Children's Home of Detroit, founded in 1836, provides a residential treatment program for children 6 to 17 and includes specialized foster care and an emergency respite program. rates to around 90 percent. The U-M researchers found that more than 90 percent of front-seat occupants in cars with motorized shoulder belts were wearing the shoulder belts and 79.2 percent were wearing both the shoulder and lap restraints.

In cars with non-motorized detachable lap and shoulder belts the use rate was 74.3 percent, reflecting the fact that these systems are more easily disconnected than the motorized ver-

As observed in past studies, safety belt use remains highest among children ages 0-3 (78.4 percent) who have been required to be restrained under Michigan law since 1982. Occupants 60 and older have the next-highest rate (59.2 percent).

Women are more likely to use their belts than men. Belt use among women in the survey was 10.3 percentage points higher than that of men.

BACKYARD COMPOSTING MADE SIMPLE

Two free booklets are available to Michigan residents who join statewide recycling efforts aimed at reducing the amount of solid waste sent to landfills.

The booklets outline two methods for recycling leaves and grass clippings developed by Dr. Bill Knopp, a national yard refuse expert from Texas A&M University. According to Knopp, yard refuse constitutes as much as 50 percent of household waste sent to landfills during the growing season.

Knopp recommends two methods for homeowners to recycle leaves and grass clippings: backyard composting and not bagging grass clippings.

Backyard composting uses nature's decay cycle to break down leaves and grass clippings into usable mulch. Homeowners create a compost pile by alternating layers of grass clippings, leaves and plant matter. The second method, known as Don't Bag It, involves shredding grass clippings and leaves with a mulching lawn mower such as the Toro Recycler and then leaving them on the lawn. This can reduce fertilizer applications by 25 percent and mowing time by 35 percent.

For more information, Michigan residents can order the following bookets - "Don't Curb It, Compost It;" and "Don't Bag It. Recycle It." Both are available free of charge by sending a self-

Use ladder safely

Each year, thousands of people are injured in falls involving ladders. The National Safety Council offers these tips for using a ladder safely:

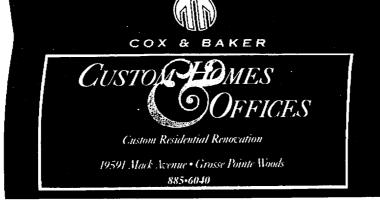

- Inspect your ladder before each use. Check for loose or damaged hinges, steps and braces.
- · Select the right ladder for the job - choose one that is long enough and sturdy enough for its intended use.
- Place the ladder on a solid, level surface. If the ground is soft, spread planks under the ladder's legs.
- Face the ladder and use both hands when climbing and descending. If you need to bring tools up with you, haul them up with a bucket and rope.
- Do not lean too far to either side — keeping your belt buckle between the two rails is a good rule. Move the ladder or extend it to get close enough to work.

Adult arrested for buying kids two 12-packs

A Grosse Pointe Park patrol unit recently observed several youths talking to a man outside a party store at Kercheval and Wayburn.

The man then went inside the store and returned with two 12packs of beer, which he handed to the juveniles. Park police then stopped the man as he left the area. The youths were also stopped.

The juveniles said the man requested a pack of cigarettes for buying the beer. The man was found wanted on a warrant out of Oak Park.

I-75: 1,700 miles of road that link Miami to Sault Ste. Marie miles north and south-linking Miami and Sault Ste. Marie; the Atlantic and Lake Superior. It passes through Alligator Alley in the Everglades, through a gauntlet of fire-breathing, 16wheelers in middle America then settles down in the quiet of Michigan's lush northern woodland, crosses the world's longest (or fourth longest, depending on how you measure) suspension bridge, and ends at the foot of an international bridge spanning one of the world's busiest water-

It is Interstate 75, running the length of Florida, the length of Michigan, and everything in between (namely, Georgia, Tennessee, Kentucky and Ohio) until it reaches the Canadian border.

From the south, I-75 swings northeast on I-75 through the bustle and glitter of downtown Detroit, passing close to such attractions as the Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village, Greektown, the Renaissance Center, and the Fox Theater (America's largest movie theater). Then the route heads northwest through the rolling hills and lakes of suburban Oakland County; through Flint with its Buick City auto plant complex, museums, Water Street Pavilion Festival Marketplace, and Crossroads Village; past Michigan's "Little Bavaria", the village of Frankenmuth; around Saginaw and Bay City, skirting the great fishing waters of Saginaw Bay; and into what Michiganians call "Upnorth."

Or, you can jog west at almost any point and drive straight up the center of the state on US-127 - from Hudson (near Ohio border) through rolling hills, lakes, recreation areas, and wildlife preserves to the Michigan Space Center just south of Jackson.

This highway passes through Lansing-site of the State Capitol, the massive new State Historical Museum, the expansive Michigan State University campus, Impression 5 Science Museum, and other attractions-before it heads through the rich farmlands and oil fields of the central Lower Peninsula to the city of Clare.

Clare lies at the center of the nearly 300-mile drive from Detroit to the Straits of Mackinac and at the midpoint of the 171mile trip from Lansing to Traverse City.

Pass Clare and the country changes abruptly: Farm fields give way to lakes and forests. First come long stretches of oak, hen birch, aspen, pine, and maple. In places, Michigan's symool, the white pine, reaches above tops of the surrounding oak trees — continuing its recovery from the clearcut logging of the late 19th century. There are stretches where large groves seperate the northbound and southbound lanes of the US-27 or I-75 freeways, and traffic is virtually non-existent. And then there are places where wide plains open up — dotted with fire-blackened 100-year old tree stumps. Here the tall, majestic white pine has not yet recovered.

Soon you are looking across a vast marsh at Houghton Lake, Michigan's largest inland lake and one of its best fishing spots. Then the freeway swings past the forest that shelters Higgins Lake with its crystal-clear waters and two state parks.

US-27 and I-75 merge just north of Higgins Lake as you head into Grayling. Here, at the headwaters of the Au Sable and Manistee rivers conceing is king (but so are fishing, hunting, hiking and snowmobiling). One of Michigan's two remaining stands of virgin white pine is nearby at Hartwick Pines State Park.

Another drive through the woods brings you to Gaylord and the Pigeon River Country State Forest. Here roam what is believed to be the largest elk herd east of the Mississippi, and some of the world's most enthusiastic golfers play here, too. The courses at nearby Garland and Sylvan resorts are gaining reputations well beyond Michigan's borders.

The next major milepost is Indian River, where the freeway threads the needle between two of Michigan's most popular and prettiest lakes: Burt and Mullett. Here, too, the road crosses a most unusual thoroughfare-the Inland Waterway. Shallow draft boats sail along it from Cheboy-

Lake just above Petoskey on the shores of Lake Michigan.

And now, it all starts to come together: Mill Creek State Historic Park, with its operating reconstructed 18th century sawmill on Lake Huron, is close to Wilderness State Park and its wildflowers on Lake Michigan; neither is far from Fort Michilimackinac State Park with its reconstructed fort and the longest the United States at the Straits of Mackinac.

Just ahead rises the Mackinac Bridge, the longest suspension bridge in the world (8,344 feet total suspension from cable anchorage to cable anchorage), or the fourth longest if you measure just the span between the two towers (3,800 feet). The bridge is anchored by Mackinaw City on the south and St. Ignace nac Island, Michigan's most popular summer destination.

Beyond the bridge, I-75 cuts north and a little east across the eastern tip of the Upper Peninsula, heading for the narrow strait that divides Canada and the United States and uniting Lake Superior with lakes Michigan and Huron.

The countryside here is generally flat and open, but just a few Cheneaux, an archipelago of 38 islands, hug the Lake Huron shore. Though locally popular for sailing, boating, fishing, swimming, and just generally poking around, they are little known outside of Michigan.

Further north, where the St. Mary's River empties Lake Superior waters into the North Channel and Lake Huron, is a cluster of American and Cana-

Know what to do when occurs

Burns are the second leading cause of accidental death among children under age 14 and the leading cause of trauma deaths in the home.

Every day 100 children are treated in emergency rooms for scald burns. Each year about 1 million children sustain burns serious enough to require medical attention.

According to Dr. Mac Cullen, director of the Burn Center at burns are the most devastating and painful injury a child can sustain. Burn patients face extended hospitalizations, disfigurement and lifelong disability. Knowing what to do when a burn occurs can make a substantial difference in the severity of the injury and may save a child's life. Remember these important steps:

• Stop the burning. Remove

Children's Hospital of Michigan, the source of heat. If clothing catches fire, smother the flames with a blanket or by rolling on the ground.

 Remove all burned clothing and jewelry. Clothing and jewelry may retain heat and make the burn deeper. Remove all clothing from the neck as well as the burn area. Swelling may occur immediately.

• Apply cool water over the area. Using a clean, white cloth apply water to burn for at least three to five minutes. Be careful not to break any blisters that may have formed. Cover burns with a soft, clean, dry dressing

• Do not pack the burned area

Judges bash for juveniles

A group of judges who spend their days deciding guilt and innocence, and sentencing the guilty, will spend an evening playing jazz to keep kids out of

At Judicial Jazz III on Thursday evening, Oct. 18, from 5:30 to 7:30 at Brewery Park, Judges Mike Wahls, Claudia Morcom and Leonard Townsend will entertain supporters of the programs for kids who come to the Juvenile Court, sponsored by the Citizens Advisory Committee to Wayne County Juvenile Court.

Proceeds will support programs like "Work To Succeed" and "Read To Succeed," which provide alternatives for kids in trouble. For three years "Work to Succeed" has succeeded in providing paid jobs for kids on probation who want to improve their lives. Some have done so well because of these jobs that they have found regular employment.

"Read To Succeed" provides intensive remediation for reading disabled probationers. It is estimated that more than 50 percent of juvenile delinquents have significant reading problems.

The Citizens Advisory Committee to the Wayne County Juvenile Court is a group of 40 leading citizens appointed by the presiding judge of the Juvenile Court to advise and assist the court. Tickets for Judicial Jazz III can be ordered by calling 577-9286. Regular admission is $50, or $75 for sponsors, who are noted in the program.

and installing smoke detectors, according to a representative of the insurance industry.

Last year in Michigan, there were 242 fire-related deaths. Most fire victims die from inhalation of smoke and toxic gases rather than flames.

"Smoke detectors provide an early warning when a fire begins, which can allow residents to escape before the house is fully engulfed in flames," Terry Buckles, president of the Michigan Association of Insurance Companies, said. "Statistics show that occupants of a home with a smoke alarm are twice as likely to survive a fire.'

Aside from saving lives, smoke detectors reduce fire injuries and help hold down property losses. However, to be effective, the units must be properly installed and maintained.

According to Buckles, smoke alarms should be tested at least once a month to ensure that they are working properly. Batteries shouuld be changed annually.

Smoke detectors should be installed on each level of the dwelling. The best locations are near the stairs, in hallways, near bedrooms and in the living room. The units should be installed at least six inches from the point where the ceiling meets the wall.

The state Fire Marshal's office recommends use of smoke detectors rather than heat detectors. The latter respond to a certain temperature; however, smoke alarms detect the visible and invisible products of combustion.

"There is normally detectable smoke before there is detectable heat," Buckles said. "Therefore, smoke units almost always give a faster warning.'

Buckles also suggests developing an escape route in case of fire. Family members should practice the escape route and determine a safe place to meet once they are outside the burning structure.

Co-workers create new venture, new way of doing business

By Pat Paholsky

Their business cards are revealing. Brian Leslie - Venture Communications Inc.; Brian Williams - Venture Communications Inc. No titles.

Actually, Leslie, a Grosse Pointe resident, is president and director of production, and Williams, also of Grosse Pointe, is vice president and director of marketing.

The two are part of a six-person staff that formed the new company, which opened for business in January. It was a dream they shared, Leslie said, when they all worked together at Sandy Corp.

Their goal was to open an agency of compatible, hardworking people doing their best in a good environment, completely rid of office politics.

"We wanted to prove we can work and be happy," Williams said. "One of the hardest things was naming the company - we wanted to call it Good Guys Inc.

The other members of the team are Jock Thomas of Troy, vice president and editorial director, Kim Garbarino of Westland; Bob Mirek of Brighton; and Ted Przybocki of Birmingham.

It was awhile before they

"We always kept in touch," Leslie said. "Discussions really heated up toward the end of last year and we felt the time was right.'

And now the team members, using their business connections, knowledge and reputations, are involved in providing a diverse list of services, relying heavily on computers and electronics, with a firm commitment to doing business in new ways.

"We have done small brochures, from a six-page brochure to a 1,000-page book, up to major films," Leslie said. "The scope doesn't matter; it's more of what it's supposed to accomplish."

beginner's guide to mutual funds If you are a newcomer to the money from one fund in the fam-world of mutual funds, get ready for an adventure that could daunt Indiana Jones

Call a mutual fund for information and you will soon receive a document that is as easy to read as an ancient Latin text. Terms like "back-end load" and "redemption fees" combine with pages of legalese that can send you scampering back to your simple savings account in the bank down the street.

But retreat may not be necessary. Armed with this guide, you should be able to venture into mutual-fund investing with confidence.

What is a mutual fund? According to the Michigan Association of CPAs, a mutual fund is a financial service that pools the money of individual investorsor shareholders—to purchase a for investors as money comes in. specially selected group of invest. Equally im- supply and demand. portant, the diversified nature of mutual funds tends to minimize the individual investor's risk. After all, one poor performer among a score of investments is unlikely to drag down an entire fund. In addition, a mutual fund enables you to have your money invested and managed by a team of professionals who study the investment market daily. And you can easily redeem your shares any time you choosee.

Open-end vs. closed-end funds

Mutual funds are distinguished by a lot more than just their investment objectives. For instance, mutual funds can be open-end or closed-end.

Most people select open-end funds, which create new shares ties, divided by the number of A primary advantage of mu-shares which are then traded the counter. The price of the

All funds charge investors for brokerage commissions and daily management fees, usually in the form of an annual charge collected from the fund's assets. But do not make the mistake of assuming that all funds charge the same amount.

To know exactly what load. brokerage and management fees your fund charges, make sure you read the mutual fund's prospectus. As a result of a new SEC requirement, the prospectus must now include a table listing all fees, including sales charges, overhead expense, portfolio management fees and 12b-1 fees (which pay for the fund's marketing and advertising costs). The table must also present a hypothetical example of what impact expenses and fees would have on a $1,000 investment growing at 5 percent a year.

CPAs say that in selecting a fund, you should look for consistent performance and a ratio of expenses to average net assets under 1 percent. You should also note the fund's portfolio turnover rate. A 100-percent turnover rate means the fund trades every stock in its portfolio every year. Be aware, too, that a 12b-1 distribution plan that costs 1.5 percent a year may seem insignificant, but over 20 years those fees can reduce your overall earnings by 30 percent.

Near-home travel accounts for about 90 percent of all fuel used by Michigan motorists. In contrast, vacation and pleasure driving account for about 3 percent. AAA Michigan advises that motorists who use the above tips can cut current gas use up to 40 percent -- more than enough to ensure an adequate gas supply without reducing tourism or other necessary travel. Tourism, Michigan's largest growth industry and the state's second-largest employer, should generate about $17 billion in spending this year.

HOW MICHIGANIANS USE GAS Budgeting tips for college students

When it comes to financing a pop up every few months. college education, most of us focus on the big picture: tuition, room and board. But, once school is under way, miscellaneous expenses such as shampoo and soap, utilities, late night snacks and transportation, can total hundreds of dollars and put a strain on any college student's budget.

To be sure you're not left holding an empty wallet, the Michigan Association of CPAs suggests that you develop a realistic budget that zeroes in on those easily overlooked expenses.

The first step in creating a budget is calculating the amount of money you have available to spend. If you're like most students, you probably have four possible sources of funds: a parttime job, a savings account, a monthly allowance supplied by parents and scholarship or loan funds (or what's left after paying for tuition, room and board).

Now comes the hard part planning for expenses. To simplify the budgeting process, break down your expenses into categories such as books, supplies and lab fees, meals, transportation, clothing, toiletries, utilities and entertainment. Make sure you include both fixed expenses (such as rent) and variable expenses (such as insurance payments and automobile repair bills).

Next, estimate how much you will need to cover each category of expenses. For instance, to calculate the cost of books for a semester, visit a local bookstore and price the books on your required reading lists.

Be sure to include lab fees associated with specific course work. Then, estimate your school supply needs, such as typewriter and computer ribbons, computer disks, notebooks, pens and calculators. If you are on a meal plan, reserve some budget dollars for those midnight snacks.

Whether you are commuting or living in a dorm, you will have to contend with transportation expenses. Calculate how much a visit home costs, and how many visits you plan to make. Talk to your parents and find out if they are willing, or able, to pay for any trips home.

If you own a car, estimate how much gas you may use each week. Is it likely the car will need repairs, or even a tune-up,

PEPS

If you are living away from home, remember that you will now have to pay for such basic necessities as toothpaste, shampoo and laundry. Although these items seem insignificant, they can add up to a sizable sum by vear's end.

Other expenses to consider are utility bills. If these are not included in your room and board fees, ask other students to give you a basic estimate of how much you can expect to spend. And, of course, no budget is complete until it includes entertainment expenses. If you are a movie buff, don't forget to reserve a few dollars for an occasional night out at the local cin-

Try to estimate expenses realistically and, as a safeguard against unexpected costs, increase your total by 10 percent. In any case, you won't be sure that your estimate is on target until you've tested it for a few months. So try your budget and see how it fits.

During the first month or two, jot down every dime you spend so you know where your money is going and whether your budget figures are accurate. If the same patterns continue the following month, adjust your budget accordingly.

Now for the big exam question. What if you find that you simply can't make ends meet? The answer is elementary - you have to increase your income or decrease your expenses.

First, try to find a part-time job. Another option is creating your own business. Some schools offer venture-capital funds to help launch student entrepreneurs. Students have successfully initiated businesses to fill obvious needs, such as typing term papers, running a wake-up call service or even house-sitting. Whatever venture you pursue, remember to keep your academic priorities in mind.

Now what about trimming those expenses? Although you may think you are living on a bare-bones budget, you will be still cut back. Often, your college ID card can be the ticket to dishaircuts and even school supplies. Don't hesitate to ask whenever paying for goods or services.

Shop for food and toiletries wisely, taking advantage of sales and coupons. To save on transportation costs, plan ahead and you may be able to purchase supersaver air fares. Find out if buses and railroads in your area offer discounts to student travel-

To trim your hefty phone bills, shop around for the company offering the best long-distance rates - and make your calls at non-peak times, when rates tend to be lower.

To ease the burden of those textbook bills, buy used books through the bookstore or from other students. But plan on shop-surprised at how much you can ping early, because supplies of used books are generally limited.

CPAs also advise you to set up counts on food, entertainment, a bank account nearby. Shop around for the bank that best meets your needs. In comparing, consider such convenience factors as location, hours and automated teller machines, as well as savings interest rates and checking charges. In addition, find out whether the bank offers special student accounts, such as no-fee checking.

> With a little bit of planning, you can stretch your dollars further than you may now imagine possible. For more assistance in building a budget, you can request a copy of the "Budget and Cash Flow Worksheet" from the MACPA. Send a stamped, selfaddressed envelope with your request to the Michigan Association of CPAs, P.O. Box 9054, Farmington Hills, Mich. 48333.

October 4, 1990 Enlessament Detroit Symphony: A new exciting season

Special Writer

If the successful opening of the Detroit Symphony's season were the deciding factor, Detroit's renaissance would be a sure thing.

Capacity crowds at Orchestra Hall for the first two programs have been charged with enthusiasm as much for the unveiling of the restored decor of the hall as for the outstanding performances.

The restoration, in fact, is a triumph. The painted reliefs of leaves, instruments, muses and cupids have become a harmonious symphony of color and design. The colors are authentic to the original - off-shades of russet red, aqua, cafe au lait and generous amounts of gold. The staining of the wood paneling on stage is a rich mahogany and the draperies are an elegant burgundy.

As with the cleaning of the Sistine Chapel, some find the restored colors surprisingly bright. The mood of the majority of the audience, however, appears exultant and primed for music.

The acoustics are still glorious, too. Like a newly washed car, Orchestra Hall restored seems to perform better than ever. Happily, so does our symphony.

At the season opener on Thursday, Sept. 20, guest conductor Dennis Russell Davies made good on his reputation as an innovator with a non-traditional treatment of the Handel Concerto that was first on the program. No gutty, baroque performance here. The orchestra gave Davies its sweet string sound and rich harmonies. It was a fresh, contemporary approach that nonetheless paid full tribute to Handel.

High point of that concert was soprano Kathleen Battle. Her rich but pure voice soared effortlessly in a bel canto style with never an unpleasant tone. Most famous of her three Handel arias was the one from "Samson" which she sang with triumphant sci-fi with "Chasm, Symphonic Fragment" by William Albright. It brought the concert from serenity to star wars. The results were startling and energizing even if the 13-minute work did not seem profound.

Davies then briefly rocketed his listeners into 21st century

Battle returned after intermission with three Lieder by Richard Strauss, and her limpid voice brought out the sensuous and loving tenderness of Strauss to a degree rarely heard. The concert ended with a resplendent performance of Ravel's "Daphnis and Chloe Suite" and the audience

Our city should cheer at the achievement of bringing a concert of such artistic distinction to Detroit, and at the fact that we have one of the world's finest concert halls in which to present

Attending the Saturday, Sept. 29, evening performance, the second week provided noteworthy variations on these themes. The audience seemed younger than on Sept. 20 and even more enthusiastic. There was also the curious coincidence of having seats bearing the names of the late Edgar H. Ailes and Mark Chancellor Stevens.

This reminder of two of the community's most cultured and erudite patrons of the arts provided a poignant link to the monumental achievement of the restoration. It was men and women like them who founded our symphony and built Orchestra Hall in the first place.

The conductor this time was rather than innovative and it not evident on Saturday. suited his program with only one minor exception.

The Blake Company has been members of the Grosse Pointe community for three generations. We know why people live here, and why they go to great lengths to remain here.

Over the years their homes have become too large and difficult to maintain and until now, the Grosse Pointe area has offered very few alternatives to people who want to change their homes, not their lifestyle.

The Blake Company has created the alternative, Harbor Place: a luxurious condominium community located on the shore of Lake St. Clair, near everything you hold dear.

Designed with traditional New England architecture with an emphasis placed on privacy, security and scenic beauty. Choose between townhouses or terrace homes each in two- and three-bedroom configurations, lavished with an endless list of amenities, including a 2 car garage, exceptional landscaping and boat slips. Climb mountains with Detroit Science Center's 'To the Limit' in OMNIMAX Theater

A new film beginning this fall at the Detroit Science Center's OMNIMAX Theater will give viewers a fascinating look into the body as it reacts to physical exercise.

Through fiber-optic technology, "To the Limit" shows how humans change the dynamics of their body and mind to improve physical performance. Along with the inner workings of the human body, the film features action sequences of world-class athletes, including a champion mountain-climber, a Bolshoi ballerina and an Olympic skier.

"We all have the ability to transcend ourselves and redefine our limits," says Jerry Porter, executive director of the Detroit Science Center. "By understanding how the heart, lungs, muscles and brain function, we can improve our style and training and learn to perform to greater limits.

Producer/Director Greg Mac-Gillivray pushed his own talents, and technology, to the limit to make the 38-minute, three-segment film. Beyond the challenge of filming on mountains, ski slopes and ballet stages, Mac-Gillivray faced the problem of showing the biological changes that allow the performers to ex-

To meet the challenge, new optics, lighting and other techniques were developed to adapt the medical endoscope - a standard instrument used to view inside the body - to the giant OMNIMAX format. At 10 times the area of a standard 35mm film frame, the OMNIMAX frame requires 10 times as much

The OMNIMAX film provides intricate detail as the endoscopic eye traces the pathway of air through the lungs, watches as blood vessels constrict in response to cooling temperatures and follows blood cells as they replenish tired muscles.

These sequences give viewers a personal feel for the human machine. "I've watched people watching the film," says Mac Gillivary. "When we enter the heart, they feel as if they're looking inside their own body.

More than a science film, "To The Limit" includes memorable action sequences. In the opening scene, viewers ascend the dizzying heights of Half Dome Peak in Yosemite National Park with mountain climber Tony Yanero as he inches up the face of the smooth, vertical cliff.

In the ski sequence, viewers experience a downhill race from the point-of-view of Olympic-champion skier Maria Walliser.

"I've always wanted to find a way to move a camera at 60 to 70 miles an hour down a ski course to create a real sense of movement," says MacGillivray. With three special camera mounts, the production team was able to capture the thrill and the tension of a rush down the sloves.

For the final sequence featuring Nina Ananiashvili, a prima ballerina with Moscow's Bolshoi Ballet Company, a special highspeed camera was developed to capture slow-motion images.

When Nina leaps, it looks like anyone can.do it - simply and effortlessly," says Mac-Gillivray. "I wanted to better reveal the intense coordination and muscle control she exhibits by slowing down the action. I felt the ability to leap - which is an exceptional ability Nina has over other ballerinas should be highlighted with a high-speed camera.'

'To the Limit" delights more than the viewer's eyes. Through the theater's six-track stereo sound system flows the music of Ludwig van Beethoven, George Frederick Handel and other classical artists.

"To the Limit" will be shown through through Dec. 31 and from Feb. 1 through April 7. During January 1991, the OMNIMAX Theater will undergo a $200,000 renovation.

Rosemary Clooney coming to Macomb

Rosemary Clooney, who still glows when she sings with the creamy-smooth voice that propelled her to recording, movie and TV stardom in the 1950s, is coming to Macomb Center for the Performing Arts with a pair of concerts featuring the tunes she made famous.

She will appear at a 4 p.m. matinee on Saturday, Oct. 20, and return for an evening performance at 8 p.m. Opening the programs will be the Gold Company, the Western Michigan University show choir acclaimed for its touring performances and also for supplying vocals for radio and TV commercials heard by millions.

Clooney's current tour is the latest phase of a career that took off in 1951 when maestro Mitch Miller prevailed upon her to record a novelty song, "Come On-A My House." Much to her surprise, the song was an immediate success and led to a whirlwind of professional activ-

The Southern Michigan Railroad Society is resuming its popular "Fall Color Tours" each weekend in October.

Trains leave from the south side of Chicago Boulevard (M-50), at Evans St., in downtown Tecumseh, Michigan. Departure times are at 11, 12:15, 1:30, 2:45

Tickets are $7 for adults, $4 for children up to age 12, and $6 for senior citizens over age 65, and can be purchased at The Lucky Duck store, across the street from the boarding site. Advance purchase of tickets is strongly recommended; call (517) 423-7230.

The train's route carries it through Tecumseh then south, descending along the rim of the Raisin River valley. The train crosses the river on a 200-foot long steel bridge, then climbs and curves through the woods to the railroad junction of Raisin

During the layover there, passengers will enjoy cider and doughnuts, and with luck, a freight train may be seen on the nearby N&W line.

Hackman makes "Narrow Margin" worth the viewing

By Marian Trainor Special Writer

"Narrow Margin is an actionpacked thriller that harks back to an era when suspense was built on close encounters rather than on a steady stream of vio-

It keeps you guessing and wondering rather than shocking you into attention by high-tech special effects and explosive gun fire. Watching it is like reading a good mystery story that keeps you turning the pages hoping that the hero makes it to the next exciting confrontation and wishing that the slippery criminal would foul up.

Actually, "Narrow Margin" is of the old school of suspense films. Its source is "The Narrow Margin" (1952), one of the most

Peter Hyams, who wrote, directed and photographed the remake, has added some exciting touches of his own to the original, notably a helicopter-car

A good story, a polished thriller, "Narrow Margin's" major attraction, one guaranteed to please moviegoers, is Gene Hackman, an actor who enhances every film he appears in, even the poorer ones.

This time he strikes pure gold. The role of Caulfield, the district attorney who is determined to hunt down and bring to justice a murderer, fits him like a welltailored suit. It could have been written for him.

Another plus is the setting. It is a cinematic treat. By helicopter, train and car, the viewer is placed in the middle of the breathless, untamed beauty of the Canadian Rockies.

The story begins with Ann Archer, who plays Hunnicut, a book editor who has gone into hiding after covertly witnessing

Hackman, determined to convict the murderer, follows her to a cabin deep in the Canadian wilderness. He wants her to testify against the killers. She refuses, adamantly declaring that she saw nothing. While he is trying to convince her to come back, promising her that she will be protected and warning her that unless the murderer is convicted she will not be safe, a helicopter that has followed Hackman and his partner, Sgt. Dominick Berti (M. Emmet Walsh), to the hideout, appears.

Diving and swooping, it firebombs the cabin, trapping the three victims inside. Sgt. Benti doesn't escape, but Hackman and Archer do. They make it to Archer's car. What happens is a spent watching it.

popular B films ever made. It's her blind date being shot to race against death as the helicopter chases them through the dense, untamed terrain. They make it to a train station where they manage to get a compartment on the train.

> Close behind them are two goons. One, James B. Sikking, is smooth talking but deadly; the other hefty brute, J.T. Walsh, enjoys what he does best, tortuing his victims.

> In the narrow confines of the train's corridors, its closeted compartments and limited ports to the outside world, the hideand-seek drama plays itself out.

> As the train speeds toward Vancouver, the action heats up to a final confrontation when Hackman, Archer and the two goons are atop the train engaged in a struggle for survival. Archer, Hackman's reluctant star witness, is right in the center of the action. She balances Hackman's controlled performance with her own modulated, intelligent presentation. However, it is Hackman who makes "Narrow Margin" a satisfying thriller and worth every minute slightly neurotic demeanor serve him well here.

Keaton's character is a dark man with many secrets. We don't know how many in the early going, except in the film's opening moments, we see him get brutally beaten for no apparent reason.

Switch over to a young couple (Matthew Modine, Melanie Griffith) who have purchased a $750,000 Victorian home in suburban San Francisco. It's a huge gamble for the couple, but they believe that if they rent out the two apartment units on the first floor of the house, they'll be able to make ends meet.

Switch back to Keaton, who shows up one day flashing a wallet full of $100 bills and expressing an interest in renting one of the apartments. Despite the couple's diligence in checking out the credit and personal references of prospective tenants, Keaton slips in.

At first, the problems are relatively minor. Keaton was supposed to wire his new landlords rent and a security deposit. It never comes. Then he's up at all hours, hammering and sawing and being destructive.

"Heights" works best as a suspense film, with moments that verge on horror. Through most of the picture, we're not sure what to make of Keaton. He could be a shrewd businessman. He could just be a jerk. That uneasiness makes the picture work.

There are moments that are less satisfying, and more than a few plot holes and forgotten characters. Still, Keaton's haunting peformance and the picture's oppressive feel are more than enough to make up for the shortcomings

COMPLETE MICROFILMING SERVICE

Enterlainment An agile Reinhart does it all in 'Billy Bishop'

By Alex Suczek Special Writer

If you ever wondered what makes a wartime act pilot tick, "Billy Bishop Goes To War" provides a convincing insight. And though the setting is the flying crate air war of World War I, the concepts have changed little.

This remarkable personality piece cum biographical sketch. playing at the Attic Theatre until Oct. 19, is a fast series of round trips between comic farce and tragic irony. It has the audience laughing uproariously at Bishop's incredible talent for impossible exploits - like an early morning solo raid on a German airfield and his final score of 72 enemy planes shot down - between gasps of dismay over the ultimate horror that is war.

On top of that, it's a true

Bishop, a Canadian from Owen Sound, was Britain's greatest and most decorated ace in the war to end all wars and came to be. Beyond the basics, however, is where the fun and fascination lie and there is plenty of each.

The whole play is set to music provided by pianist-singer-actor (in that order) Paul A. Pappas. He does a remarkable job at the keyboard, setting the moods from pre WWI ragtime to the pomp of King George V awarding Bishop the Victoria Cross (quickly shattered by Bishop's revelation of the king's remarks). Pappas frequently joins in the narration of the story by singing along as he plays, often in duet with the only other member of the cast, Gordon Reinhart in the role of Billy Bishop.

Otherwise, it's Reinhart's show. Being Billy Bishop alone is a strenuous assignment. Along with spoken lines that demand every level of vocal and acting power, and several dialects plus French and German, the actor brings into play a form of body English that pantomimes the story with equal vividness and incredible energy.

But there are at least 15 other supporting roles to play and this is a one-man-and-a-pianist show. Reinhart plays all the others, too, with agility, conviction and often piercingly funny satire. He slips with amazing ease from being Bishop, to the command- by Reinhart jumping over the the play, basically, tells how this ing officer of his military college, his British patroness Lady St. Helier, a French chanteuse and prostitute, snobby and brainless British officers, a haughty British butler and even King George V.

> Part of his secret of success is his agility at switching from Bishop's Ontario brogue, to Lady St. Helier's upper class English, to the cockney drunk in a pub who tells him how to get out of the mud and into the Royal Flying Corps. There is so much to tell and it is all so comi-tragically funny that the 2-1/2 hour performance is over before you know it and you wonder if there couldn't be more.

And in this fast-paced revelation of how Billy Bishop (who had up to then all the earmarks of a failure) managed to become a worldwide hero, you hardly notice the sombre reminders of the grim realities. "Life expectancy in the Royal Flying Corps is about 11 days," comments Bishop and it has no more emphasis than a quick line in one of his patter songs, but the message gets through and adds poignancy to the tale. As did "The only way to learn survival is to survive.

How Bishop survived in dogfights against the superior German aircraft is acted out vividly bar with a model baling wire biplane in hand. He manages at one and the same time to convey the foxiness of the seasoned and sometimes cynical ace along with the irrepressible boyish cockiness that saw him through experiences that few others survived. They were among the qualities that made the ace tick.

It is hard to believe, however, that an officer in the RFC, even in 1918, would have worn a uniform as ill fitting as Reinhart's

Other than that small complaint, Billy Bishop is a fast paced and fascinating look at a figure whose story is larger than life. It is filled with all the startling, laughable improbabilities that go into life's most dramatic events. And Reinhart makes it his tour de force. In the intimate atmosphere of this little theatre in the shadow of the Fisher Building, it is also very accessible. There are performances Wednesday at 7 p.m., Thursday and Friday at 8 p.m., Saturday at 5 and 9 p.m. and Sunday at 2 and 7 p.m. For information and reservations call 875-8284.

Gordon Reinhart plays the lead role in the Attic Theatre's "Billy Bishop Goes to War."

You just try to do justice to it when you adapt it to the more confining medium of the legitimate stage and hope the audience will enjoy seeing and hearing a live cast dancing and singing the songs that so charmed filmgoers in 1952 when Gene Kelly and Debbie Reynolds performed on screen what has never lost its charm for viewers.

The Birmingham Theatre production of "Singin' in the Rain" goes a long way toward capturing the spirit and appeal of the film. It is a fun-filled, nostalgic, romantic experience that sends audiences away wondering why they don't make musicals like that anymore.

Those who have seen the film may be wondering how the setting for this number is accomplished on stage. In the film, Gene Kelly leaves Debbie Reynolds at her door and in the pouring rain bursts into song and dance, splashing in puddles and ignoring the fact that he is dripping wet.

But filming rain on a movie scene is quite different from creating a downpour on stage. However, modern ingenuity has its pluses. A rain machine is unpacked, put in place and the rain

Creating rain is only one of the accomplishments of the Birmingham production. Staged by Theodore Pappas and performed by an outstanding cast, it retains all the satiric humor of the origi-

A satire of old Hollywood and the coming of talkies, it makes clever use of silent movie parodies and the stars who played in them.

The opening scene takes place outside Grauman's Chinese Theatre where a group of fans are waiting for the arrival of silent screen prima-donna Lina Lamont (Deborah Jean). A breathless radio gossip reporter (Ruth Whipple) who looks like the late Louella Parsons, is at the mike keeping a running patter going while waiting the arrival of the stars. Lina arrives, brushes past her fans and grabs the mike to gush about the real life romance between herself and Don Lockwood (James Mellon) while Lockwood protests in the background. With that they disappear into the theatre, a screen comes down and the closing scenes of the silent film, "The Royal Rascals" is shown. The acting is terrible and lip sinc is way off.

Filling the shoes of Kelly and Reynolds, James Mellon and Wendy Oliver are both terrific hoofers and they are backed up by a big cast with plenty of depth and incredible dancing tal-

Altogether, "Singin' In the Rain" is a special treat. It recreates a classic, retaining all its charm but maintains a freshness of its own. "Singin' in the Rain" will run through Nov. 4 at the Birmingham Theatre.

Anita Baker in concert at The Fox

The Fox Theatre for three shows, Wednesday, Oct. 17, Thursday, Oct. 18, and Saturday, Oct. 20. Showtime is 8 p.m.

Baker, a Detroit native, is a six-time Grammy and three-time American Music Award winner. Billboard magazine states, "(winning) the female R&B Grammy for the third time in four years is the most convincing domination of the category since Aretha Franklin's iron lock on the award in the '60s and '70s."

Baker's music is a mixture of jazz, gospel and blues influences of her early youth in Detroit.

Detroit Center for the Performing Arts announces season of new plays

The Detroit Center for the Performing Arts, in conjunction with its New Plays Development Series, is pleased to announce that it will present four original plays at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial during its 1990-1991

Dean Acheson will direct the series. The performers are professionals from the greater Detroit

The season gets under way Dec. 8 and 9 with "Witte's End," a sparkling comedy by Evan Keliher, a native of Detroit.

The action focuses on Peter Witte, a dispirited playwright who has just seen the bad first reviews of his first Broadway play. He is driven by his cynicism and disillusionment into a hilarious attempt to end it all. His chosen method is Russian one laced with curare.

The second production in the series, "Sandwiched Light," is also by Keliher. The Grim Reaper pays a call on an old folks home and taps a hardened veteran of life on the shoulder. The play asks: Just what is this thing called life? A sprightly crew of oldsters engage "Grim" in edgy dialogue that jostles popular notions on life and death. Can "Grim" be foiled? "Sandwiched Light" plays on Jan. 30 and 31.

"Irish Stew and Yorkshire Pudding," by Charles Kray, is the third production in the series and will be peformed on March 20 and 21. It is made up of three one act plays.

In the first, an Irish hero is involved in an altercation in a pub, having been dragged there, roulette played with six bottles literally, from his own wake. In of Chateau-Fluerny Bordeaux - Act II, a young English country lad stands closer to the law. no matter how archaic, than to his bride-to-be. And in Act III, an Irish schoolmaster with a mighty thirst works an experiment on his invisible cat - not to the astonishment of everyone.

The last play in the series, "Pork 'n Boards," is a hilarious spoof about the stuff of theater: actors, directors, butchers and bakers. It asks the question: Can the show go on when the greasepaint just may be bacon grease? When the dressing room is a walk-in freezer? When the pit drummer's only experience has been with the pots and pans? Scheduled performance dates are May 14 and 15.

The curtain goes up on all performances at 8 p.m. with the exception of the Dec. 9 performance which begins at 7:30 p.m. General admission is $10; seniors and students, $8. Season tickets are $32.

The birth announcement is for the daughter she gave up for adoption 41 years ago. Manning has been searching for 23 years.

Two years ago, Pam Zimmer of Grosse Pointe Woods found the daughter she gave up for adoption 20 years ago. Zimmer is 42, married, has three step children and one step grand daughter.

Anita is 40, a single career women who prefers to remain anonymous for this article. She was adopted when she was a baby. Anita found her birth mother a year and a half ago.

"There is a misconception by the public," Anita said. "Many think that when a birth mother is reunited with a child, she will replace the adoptive parents. That's not true.

"The reunion provides an opportunity for an extended family."

"Adoptive parents are often concerned because they fear the child will be taken away," said Zimmer's husband, Frank. "But the birth mother can never replace the adoptive mother. She just becomes another part of the adoptee's life."

"The birth mother is not a monster who's coming to steal the child away," Manning said.

Manning, Zimmer and Anita are active in the Adoption Identity Movement of Michigan (AIM), a search and support group for people who are affected by adoption. Members include all three sides of the adoption triad: birth parents, adoptive parents and adult adoptees.

The group is actively advocating changes in Michigan's adoption laws....

Currently, the state law allows people adopted before Sept. 12, 1980, to receive only non-identifying information about their parents. "That means hair color, eye color, educational level and any known health problems," Zimmer said. It also includes the date, time and place of the adoptee's birth, the ethnic and religious background of the birth parents, and the age and sex of brothers and sisters known at the time of the adoption.

Any other information is denied to adoptees unless the birth parent has filed a statement of consent with the Adoption Central Registry, part of Michigan's Department of Social Services.

A law passed last year allows children born after Sept. 12, 1980 the right to obtain identifying information about their birth parents when they reach age 18, even if the parent has not filed a statement of consent. Identifying information includes the name of the child before placement in adoption, the names of the biological parents at the time of termination of parental rights, the last known addresses of the biological parents and the names of any brothers and sisters.

ny brothers and sisters.

The recent law also allows birth parents the right to deny release of this information by filing a statement of denial with the Adoption Central Registry.

AIM members believe that all records should be open. Any adult in the adoption triad should be allowed to see his or her records unless a denial form has been filed. They also believe that birth parents should be allowed access to files about the children they put up for adoption.

Education of the public is important, Zimmer said. Many birth mothers are not even aware that they have the option of filing a consent/denial form. Even if they do file, she said, a high percentage of adoptees are unaware that the registry exists — and don't know that they can file or that they can check to see if their birth mother has filed.

"We need to release our children, who were relinquished to adoption, from the prison in which they are being held," Zimmer said.

Today, we believe we have the right to know what ingredients are in our food, what kinds of toxic chemicals are in our water or our air, she said. As birth parents, we feel we should have the right to know if our children are alive and well.

"Most birth mothers — like me — were told that giving the child up for adoption was the right thing to do. The child would have a better life. More opportunities. The child would be adopted by a loving couple. We were told we'd get over it. We'd get married. We'd have other children," she said.

Most mothers who gave children up weren't told they could change their minds. Most weren't even allowed to hold or see their babies.

"We were led to believe we had no rights," Zimmer said. "We weren't told or asked about confidentiality."

"I was one month past my 16th birthday," Manning said.

This beautifully styled small-scaled rocker rectiner with a multibuttoned back gives you a tuxurious look and that famous Barcalounger comfort you'll tove coming home to

"My health was good. Now it's different. My health problems go back at least two generations." She said she'd like to pass along some of this information to the daughter she relinquished.

Even more important, Zimmer said, is the child. "The child didn't ask to be conceived. Or to be born. Or to be adopted. The child had no choice in any of this." She said in most cases the child is being penalized by being denied information about his or her birth.

All three women stressed that reunions of birth parents and adoptees are emotional experiences

"The searching and contacting is an out-of-the-ordinary endeavor," Anita said. "It's something you have to grow into. It takes time. First reunions involve lots of working together. It's slow. You can't make up for lost years.

"The whole issue is shrouded in secrecy and branded with shame. Even though the reunion may be joyous, some of the shame is brought forth — and the guilt. It has to be worked through."

Zimmer and Anita pointed out that the person who is doing the searching has in many cases spent years in the process. When the reunion occurs the other the reunion occurs, the other person needs time to catch up emotionally. "After being apart so many years, the reunion is not the years, the reunion is not the idyllic one of running toward each other and hugging," Zimmer said. She said the goal of most birth parents is not to interfere, but to bring a sense of wholeness to the adoptee's life.

"The reunion is a slow process for each person's family too. I've found my daughter. But I will take (the re-acquaintance) at her pace."

meeting. There are announcements of reunions between birth parents and adoptees which have occurred since the last meeting. Then the larger group breaks up into smaller rap groups to exchange information and provide support for each other.

Zimmer said that three or four reunions occur each month and often all three members of the adoption triad come to an AIM meeting to tell their stories.

"They're an inspiration for the rest of us," said Anita.

AIM does not search for people, Anita stressed. AIM helps people search in appropriate

Manning, who has been searching for her daughter for 23 years, said that AIM members become good detectives. "There are two publications that I buy every month only to read one page - a 'search page' with lists of birth dates. I read the Detroit News personal ads. I'm in touch with the Adoption Central Registry in Lansing and the International Soundex Reunion Registry in Carson City.'

She added that each search is individual. Some people petition the court where the adoption took place, others contact the doctor who delivered the child, or the lawyer who handled the adoption.

Zimmer said that Michigan House Bill No. 6051, which advocates opening adoption records, and House Bill No. 6052, which would allow access to original birth certificates, are now on the floor and have a good chance of

Aardema

Visser-Aardema

Kay Lorraine Visser of Grosse Pointe Park, daughter of Robert and Newana Visser of Flint, married Kevin David Aardema, son of Carl and Mary Aardema of Grosse Pointe Park, on July 21, 1990, at Calvary Presbyterian Church in Flint.

The Rev. Floyd Wehner officiated at the 5 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at Brookwood Country Club.

The bride's gown was made of ivory silk taffeta and featured a beaded bodice and a long train. She carried a crescent bouquet of roses, Queen Anne's lace and stephanotis.

The maid of honor was Kelli

Green of Flint.

Bridesmaids were the groom's sister, Rebecca Aardema of Grosse Pointe, Shelley Stam of Gallup, N.M., Sheryl Cormicle of Flint and Traci Helsel of Flint. Attendants wore floor-length fuchsia taffeta dresses and carried long-stemmed roses.

Rob Boerma of Grand Rapids was the best man.

Groomsmen were Terry Childress of Roseville; Tom DeBoer of Grosse Pointe; the groom's brother, Randall Aardema of Grosse Pointe; and the bride's brother, Calvin Visser of Milford. Brian Aardema of Grand Rapids, the groom's brother, served as usher.

The mother of the bride wore a pale pink jacquard tea-length dress with a beaded jacket and a corsage of ivory and pink roses. The mother of the groom wore a beige lace tea-length dress and a corsage of ivory and pink ro-

Trumpeter was Stan Visser. Soloists were Lynne Carb and Hugh Vohwinkle. The bride graduated from Calvin College and is attending Wayne State University's School of Medicine.

The Pastor's Corner More vegetables.

By Rev. William C. DeVries First Christian Reformed Church

It was green beans.

They were the vegetable that I most often had to force down at my mother's insistence.

Not that they were the only kind I detested. Brussel sprouts, spinach and, yes, broccoli are equally anathema to my selective taste.

Dad liked green beans, so Mom tended to serve them more incessantly than regularly. I finally had to devise a method to get them to actually go down my resistant throat. I discovered that if I rapidly struck my head with both hands after making a deposit of beans in my mouth, I could chew and swallow them. (Careful! I know you're thinking about what this childhood practice explains about adult thinking patterns.)

I hope you will not need to resort to such radical measures to chew up and swallow the rest of this treatise. However, it's vegetables again from me. Not dessert yet. My hope is that, whatever method you use to dull the taste, you will read on as I share a few more fiber-filled thoughts.

If you chewed with me last time, remember I noted that there are some vitally important issues and questions which cannot be answered by observations and tests and

There seem to be only two options left as a source for these answers. Either we will intuitively come up with some truth within ourselves, or there is some outside source to which we must look for answers or clues.

There seem to be two big problems with the suggestion that answers to key life issues can be found within the human spirit or consciousness. The first is that we are really a part of the science-and-tests-and-observations world. When we try to get answers from the human spirit we become involved in the same sort of processes which we have agreed can never really approach these questions. It's as if we attempted to fly my car to the moon. Not only doesn't it have wings, but its engine doesn't burn right to make the trip. Observations of human behavior, thought and relationships will never tell you what caused what, let alone if anything truly causes anything else.

The second problem with the human source for answers to such questions is that so many humans have so many different answers. Who is to decide which is correct? They can't all be correct. The only way to say they are really correct is to belive that, in reality, we are all some small part

To say this, to consistently belive this, is to suggest that there really is no evil, no good, no rich, no poor, no truth, no falsehood. Everything is somehow part of the huge "it."

is: there are no questions. If there are no questions like, "What am I supposed to

And then we have found that the answer to our question do?" then the answer answers nothing. I cannot personally be satisfied with that. It doesn't give me peace or hope. In fact, it drives me mute. It's worse than hitting my own head so I don't taste the beans I don't Ooops, I've run out of dinner space again. And still no dessert. I promise dessert next time. Not too sweet, but rich and filling.

October 4, 1990 Grosse Pointe News Community AAUW offers seminar on careers for girls

Captain Richard Racosky, pilot, author, motivational speaker and Olympic trials competitor, has a philosophy: "Dreams plus action equals real-

Racosky will serve as the keynote speaker at a career workshop for girls sponsored by the Grosse Pointe branch of the American Association of University Women on Saturday, Nov. 3, at Brownell Middle School. The seminar, "Career Choices for Tomorrow's Woman," is designed for girls in grades 5 through 8.

Racosky has written a book for teenagers that summarizes how to set and achieve goals with his easy-to-remember formula. The hands-on guide to success stresses development in six categories: physical, intellectual, social, spiritual, financial and giving of oneself. The book has calendars and outlines to help youngsters chart their progress.

As author, founder of Action-Graphics in Mount Clemens and pilot, Racosky juggles his schedule between giving motivational talks and maintaining proficiency in flight maneuvers. "For me, both are perfectly balanced adventures. For half of each month I get to help young people build the self-confidence and selfesteem needed to reach their

Alice Cook Dalligan

Woods resident receives honor from NSDAR

Alice Cook Dalligan of Grosse Pointe Woods was honored by the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution at its state conference on Sept. 28 at the Novi Hilton.

The Medal of Honor, DAR's highest award, is granted to a citizen who possesses outstanding qualities of trustworthiness, patriotism, leadership and service to her or his community.

Louisa St. Clair Chapter chose Dalligan for the honor because of her contribution to individuals and groups researching historical and genealogical records in the Burton Historical Collection. She has provided access to manuscripts and volumes and brought national renown to these archives with her leadership and knowledge.

Dalligan, a descendant of a Michigan centennial ancestor, Amasa Bagley, joined the staff of the Detroit Public Library in 1949, advancing from manuscripts supervisor to assistant chief and finally chief of the Burton collection in 1973. In 1980, the Michigan state Senate passed Senate Resolution No. 581, citing Alice Cook Dalligan for exceptional effort and dedication to preservation of the history of the State of Michigan.

She has served many local historical societies; helped establish the Dau Library at Historic Trinity; served on the board of directors for the National Historical Publications and Records commission; assisted at the annual local history conference; and led the Historic Memorials Society as its president from 1982-1984.

Genealogical groups have sought her expertise. She supported planning of the Black Genealogical Society, promoted interest in the Polish Genealogical Society and arranged a policy of cooperation with the Detroit Society for Genealogical Research Inc. She initiated the publication of Fr. Denissen's "French Families of the Detroit River Region."

dreams - and for the other half I get to fly the Ferrari of fighters, my dream. Each keeps me enthusiastic about doing the other," he said.

Racosky has also competed in the finals for the 1984 Olympic trials in kayaking, after 14 months of self-taught training.

The career seminar begins at 9 a.m. with a continental breakfast and Racosky's speech. Afterward, individual group sessions will feature local women presenting information about their professions, including law, engineering, dentistry, medicine, veterinary medicine, aviation, banking, interior decoration, pri- Trudy Rhoades at 886-1933.

Social Security: A blessing for those who remember Depression

erty-stricken old age.

It was Social Security.

It was a blessing then, and is now, for those who depend on Social Security to pay bills. For those who are still working, it serves as a reminder that when the final paycheck is cashed, they have assurance that there will still be a monthly income. Paychecks end with retirement. Bills keep coming. Social Security helps to pay them.

Because it is a cushion for so many Americans, it is disconcerting when changes are made in Social Security benefits, parber the desperate times of the Depression.

Banks were closed, cities were paying employees in scrip, peofarmers faced the loss of their age, disease and accidents. land through mortgage foreclosures. State, local and private relief funds were practically ex-pendence and freedom from hausted. To be old back then was to be without hope.

The Great Depression lasted for more than 10 years. The poverty it caused in the United States had never been experienced before.

Along came President Franklin Delano Roosevelt, who promised to wage war on the Depression as if it were an enemy invasion. Americans look to

Some wage earners who are now contributing to the fund are fearful that when it is time for them to collect benefits, the fund will be depleted. They worry, despite the fact that President Reagan signed into law a $167 billion Social Security rescue package - a measure the president described as historic.

There were those who disagreed with some of the reforms, but most conceded that they were needed.

The tax on wages was increased. However, polls have shown that most workers did not object. The age for full retirement will be gradually increased from 65 to 67, starting in the year 2000. In the same period, it is projected that older citizens are likely to remain productive throughout their lives. Many will work full- or part-time until they are well into their 70s.

The tax on half of Social Security benefits for high income participants is a sore point for some, but the government estimates that only 10 percent of the population will pay this tax.

Social Security has more supporters than detractors. There are those who predict that if Social Security were abolished today, the United States would have more than 15 million additional people living in poverty. At least another 10 million would be on welfare.

More people are providing for their own futures. Retirement programs and IRAs are making it easier for workers to build up enough resources to live comfortably after they retire.

What should be remembered is that IRAs and pension systems are comparatively recent innovations. There is a segment of people approaching retirement age who will have little vested interest in retirement plans or

"Have a Pleasant Try at Perfection Bridge by Woody Boyd ♠ ♥ ♦ ♣

As this column goes to press, we are just less than a fortnight away from the Michigan Bridge Association's annual star studded Motor City Open. Last year in commemoration of everyone's friend, our own Vince Remey, the M.B.A. renamed the tournament in his honor. The Cobo Hall Exhibition Center will again be the site. There will be many more tables of bridge played there between Tuesday, October 9th and Sunday the 14th than at any other Michigan tournament held this year. Literally thousands of players from all over North America will be our guests that week. There will be eleven gold point events and many more red and black point sessions from team games to stratified, open, imp and novice pairs which gives everyone a chance to rub hubbs and gain glory in the playing company of national and world class masters.

The tournament chairman will again be the ever popular and magnificent administrator, Woody Ott. This year he will be ably assisted by Dottie Morochnick's arrangement committee who have promised a splendid week long fun bridge playing party that will match the best Octoberfest yet.

For a special reason that relates to many bridge friends gone by, this tournament brings out my sentimental longing for pastime Detroit's wonderful bridge history. Years ago, the out of town guest list numbered the who's who of bridge. To commemorate those players and a special salute to our more recent experts, I have recaptured a hand from the 1949 Michigan Open Pairs Championship. Two superb partnerships were vying for victory. The suspense was intense and the end of a long day's play was near when this board came to table twelve. Victory literally depended upon its outcome.

Modern masters would cringe at the bidding techniques of forty-one years ago. Unquestionably our methods have greatly improved thru the use of a bag full of new gadgets, but in those days what you see was quite sophisticated. Seven spades one way and seven hearts the other are laydowns. But que bidding controls wasn't in wide spread use and most calls were less technical and much more strategical.

Harry

John

No record was ever kept in explanation of each expert's bid, so I'll endeavor to guess at their reasoning. Paul Hodge was a master of guile and he knew his underbid wouldn't be passed out. Fishy also had lots of power and he decided to play coy too. Gerber certainly had a raise as did Hazen. West's second bid kept much in reserve and loveable Harry decided it was time to show his potency. East certainly had a second bid over five diamonds and he was now pretty sure his partner had clubs. South now reasoned that his hand was ideal for a heart slam and bid it. When Paul Hodge bid six spades, Fishy wasn't sure who's hand it was, but E/W had to pay for their indiscretion and he doubled. If he had passed, Lee Hazen might have bid seven hearts and it's anyone's guess what would have happened after that.

Football in the afternoon

Usually by Friday I can't wait, just like everyone else, until the weekend comes.

But last Friday I had a treat The treat, however, was as close as any of us will get to watching Friday night football here in the Pointes because there are still no lights on the football fields. Oh, pardon me for hanging onto my crusade of someday getting lights put up.

Anyway, Sept. 28 was the first Friday afternoon varsity football game I've attended since playing eighth grade football some 12 years ago.

South took on L'Anse Creuse North at 4 p.m. and let me tell you, there's no better excuse to get out of the office: "I've got to cover the football game.'

Out the door at 3:30, to the concession stand by 3:45 and onto the sidelines just in time for the kickoff. Hold dinner, I'm going to be a little late.

Friday's game was originally scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 29, but South coach Jon Rice felt like moving the game ahead so more students could filter from the classroom to the field immediately following the bell. A grand idea, but I'm not so sure it worked.

At North and South, football games on Saturdays seem to take a back seat to college games. Unfortunately, not a lot of kids attend the high school games to watch their peers and friends. Instead, they head out of town, forget about the game or simply don't want to go back to school on Saturday. I can't say I blame them.

How about this: Play the games on Friday afternoon, giving the kids a chance to stick around and fill the stands.

If there is a game on Saturday afternoon and it ends around 3:30, how many kids will come back for a dance at 7 p.m.? Maybe 100. If the kids stay around the campus, school spirit increases, attendance at extracurricular activities may increase, and the general camaraderie would seem to be affected for the better.

It's a shame to see empty seats at high school football games. It's depressing to me. Can you imagine being one of those athletes who looks into the stands and can count the people. How much fun is that to play in front 100-200 people. when the school is loaded with more than 1,000 kids.

I know other things are important, too, but why is attendance low at North or South for any sport?

How would you like to walk on stage as the lead in a play and see only 50 people? How would the choir react to singing in front of 35 people? All that hard work, all that preparation, and all those empty seats.

Let's brainstorm. Is attendance down because the school doesn't promote the events? Do people stay away from football games because they don't like the sport? Is it difficult to get a seat? Are ticket prices too high?

Ah, ticket prices, now that could be the problem.

The price to attend any Macomb Area Conference athletic event is $3. Three bucks? Where can we expect kids to get all that money if they want to go to three games in a week. That's $9, more money than I spend on lunch in a week, and I've got a full time job.

Why are we asking kids to pay for attendance to one of the school's events? Parents should pay, visitors should pay, but not students.

I like Rice's idea of holding games at 4 p.m., but I just wish 1) more kids were able to attend, 2) the MAC wouldn't charge kids $3, and 3) there would be no more Saturday afternoon games because it's too tough to compete with college games.

South's Ayrault successful with aggressive style

Don't you dare blame Emilie Ayrault for her aggressive style of play on the basketball court.

Blame Andy, her brother who played hoops at South and graduated in 1989.

"Andy used to tease, taunt and torture me all the time when we were growing up," said Emilie, who has played two years of varsity basketball for Coach Peggy VanEckoute, and will play her third year of volleyball this winter. "Andy would hit me, just in fun, but he would always be playing games with me and then all of a sudden he got nice on me.'

Off the court, Ayrault is a softspoken, gentle type, but on the court she dives for balls, rubs elbows with the opposing team's running and jumping unless the whistle blows.

"I love to play defense," said Ayrault, a senior. "I think it's easier to play defense than it is Emilie's mother Merrie Gay, to play offense, plus my more and father David both played aggressive style fits into the defensive scheme."

Because of her zealous play, Ayrault fouled out in the first two games this season, and more than a quarter of the games last season.

Growing up in a basketball family, it was only natural for Ayrault to play in the back yard. Brothers Terry, George and Andy, and sisters Kelly and Kristy enjoyed the game invented by Dr. Naismith, but it was Emilie who tried to emulate her brothers.

"We used to play all the time," she said. "I would always challenge Andy, and in fact I can beat him most of the time, in a game of H-O-R-S-E. When we weren't playing basketball we'd play whiffle ball.

"I always played with my finest player, and never stops brothers and their friends because I was closer in age to them. It seemed that my sisters always had something else to high school ball, and David went on to play at the University of Detroit and Xavier.

Playing basketball and volleyball is a far cry from what Merrie Gay had in mind for Emilie, who has played AAU basketball the past two summers.

"When I was little, my Mom always wanted to get me into acting in plays," Emilie recalled. "I enjoyed it, but once I started playing basketball and every-thing else, my Mom saw the potential I had so she really didn't stop me. She wanted me to be her little 'movie star' but knew better.'

Besides, acting wasn't going to fit in with the Beast's image.

"By brother George started calling me Beast when I was a kid because he, and everyone else in my family, thought I was a spoiled brat," said Emilie. "At first I didn't like being called that, but now I don't mind so really fallen into place."

Buhl pushes for rookie honors

By Rob Fulton

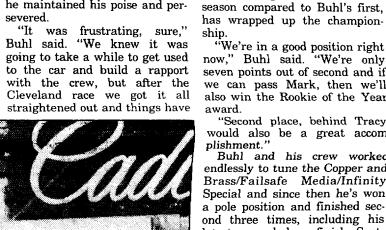

Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe's Robbie Buhl is not going to win any auto racing championships this season, but he's still in the hunt for Rookie of the Year honors.

Buhl, 26, has made his mark in his first season on the American Racing Series (ARS) circuit, and if he wins the Rookie of the Year, his season would be com-

"That was our goal all along," said Buhl, who won the Barber-SAAB Pro Racing Series last season. "It would be a very successful season if we could win

Through the season's first three races Buhl wasn't heard of much. His car problems mounted, frustration set in, yet he maintained his poise and persevered.

his first ARS season, and Rookie of the Year honors.

But he's overcome that, too. "You always need a little lady luck on your side, and lately we've been getting it," Buhl said. "We've worked very hard to get our car in the best possible shape and now that we have it where we want it we may be able to finish second.'

That would mean Rookie of the Year, too.

"That's the goal," Buhl said.

South sports

By Rob Fulton Sports Editor

When defensive cornerback Jason Benavidez knocked down a pass in the end zone, you could hear the sigh of relief from the South bench.

It was loud, but then again when you win you're always loud and cheerful.

The South football team, playing in a rare Friday afternoon game, held on in the waning moments to beat the Crusaders of L'Anse Creuse, 13-6.

L'Anse Creuse North had a first-and-goal from the South 5 with under two minutes to play, but the tough and improved Devils' defense stuffed the Crusadrers to preserve the win.

Benavidez broke up the pass on a fourth-down play.

The win, coupled with a Grosse Pointe North loss, pushed South into second place all alone in the Macomb Area Conference White Division. South, which was tied with North at 2-1 going into last weekend, is one game behind Fraser and Romeo, both sporting 4-0 league marks. South is 3-1 in the league and 3-2 over-

"We feel very good about ourselves at this point," said Devils' coach Jon Rice, "because we're all alone in second place. If we can play well and win this Saturday, then it puts us one game closer to winning the league championship.

After South took a 13-6 lead on fullback Chris Harwick's second touchdown of the day, the Crusaders took over and marched 65 yards in seven plays, including a conversion on a fourth-and-nine play that got the ball to the South 5.

"Our defense deserves a great deal of credit for this game," said Rice, who watched his team hold the Crusaders to 174 yards rushing and 99 passing. "The defense could have folded the tents, but didn't. On that last drive by L'Anse Creuse, we got some great leadership from Jason Bedsworth. He was very inspira-

Drew Woodruff, filling in for the injured Kelly Graves at safety, led the Devils with 12 tackles and Brian Burrows had nine. Norm Rice and Chad Hepner, who had an interception and two big tackles on fourthdown plays, combined for 17 tackles.

"The defense kept us in the last two ball games, but this game was a great effort on both sides of the football," said Rice, who has been waiting for his offense to mesh. "We moved the football very well and we were pleased with the offensive performance.'

Although South controlled the line of scrimmage in the first half, it only had seven points to show for it, and those points came with time running out in the second quarter.

"Getting that touchdown was a big lift and very important," Rice said. "We had moved the ball extremely well, but we had nothing to show for it until we scored late.'

That's when Harwick squirted in from the 6, and Jay Berschback kicked the extra point and South held a 7-0 halftime lead.

Harwick, who rushed for 159 yards on 21 carries, and Steve Wisniewski, who carried 16 times for 80 yards, followed the fine blocking of Scott Van Almen, Scott Partridge, Brian Burrows, Brion Czaiczynski and Pat Labadie.

South finished with 257 yards rushing, and quarterback Tim Gramling completed three of seven passes for 61 yards, including two big third-down conversions. Gramling also ran for two key first downs.

After the Devils' initial possession in the second half ended in a questionable spot of the ball by the officials, L'Anse Creuse controlled the ball and capped its 60-yard drive when quarterback Steve Humes darted in from the 4. L'Anse Creuse couldn't tie the score with its extra point attempt, because South's Charlie Lickfold and Joe Wood combined to block it, allowing South to cling to the 7-6 lead.

"It was a tough spot of the football, but anytime you go for it on fourth down and don't make it you open yourself up to second guessing the move," Rice said. "Normally, we don't go for

For the past 10 years the South girls' cross country team has gone to the state meet and done well, but this could be the season it contends.

Because of its depth, South dominated the field of 20 Class A teams at the Center Line Invitational Sept. 29, taking the championship with 36 points.

South's top five girls finished in the top 15, and a second South varsity team entered the race and placed fourth overall.

South's top five were Rachel O'Byrne (3rd), Heidi Wise (4th), Sandy Dierkes (6th), Erica Mondro (9th) and Claudine DuPont (14th). Earlier in the week, South de-

Lady Knights on a roll

In its first year competing in ranked No. 6 in the C-D state Class A, it looks like the University Liggett School girls' varsity tennis team may just give every team in the state fits.

ULS, the 10-time Class C-D state champion, beat Cranbrook-Kingswood, ranked No. 1 in Class B, and Detroit Country Day School, ranked No. 1 in the C-D polls, 7-0 and didn't lose a set in either match.

Individual flight winners for ULS were Shannon Byrne (No. 1 singles), Heather Heidel (No. 2 singles), Anne Cavanaugh (No. 3 singles), Carrie Birgbauer (No. 4 singles), Ali Frederick and Ify Obianwu (No. 1 doubles), Lauren Gargaro and Lyunn Sinkel (No. 2 doubles), and Natasha Levy and Liz Thomas at No. 3 doubles.

Luck was definitely not on the side of the ULS boys' soccer last week as it finished with a tie and a loss.

ULS had a few good chances at Southfield Christian Sept. 25, but settled for a 1-1 tie.

The lone ULS goal was scored 31 minutes into the game when Jonah Smith crossed the ball to Henry Ackerman, who headed it in. Four minutes later Southfield Christian tied it up.

Two days later, despite outshooting Dearborn 17-10, ULS

Gary Spicer converted a Jesse Kasom pass for ULS' first goal, which tied the game at 1-1, but Dearborn took a 2-1 lead just seven minutes later. Another Spicer goal tied the game at 2-2

Dearborn got the game-winplay, dropping the Knights, polls, to 4-5-1 on the season.

Cross country Jon Sieber finished second overall at the eighth annual ULS Invitational Sept. 29, leading ULS to a strong finish. Jennifer Miller was third in the girls' race in a time of 21:29. Dundee won both the boys' and girls' races.

On Sept. 27, ULS fell to 0-4 on the season with a 15-50 loss to Grosse Ile and South Lake.

Sieber, in finishing second, set personal-best time of 16:56 against Lutheran North in other action, and Miller ran a seasonbest time of 21:13.

Yes, it is true that there is a zero in the loss column for the ULS varsity football team.

With a 27-0 win over Memphis Sept. 28, the Knights stayed on line to make the playoffs and moved to 5-0 overall.

Junior quarterback Jason Drook rushed for a touchdown and threw for two more, one to Chris Carroll, who added a 12yard rushing touchdown, and one to Ed Merriman.

"We came out strong and took a 14-0 halftime lead, but we got a little flat in the third quarter,' said ULS coach Bob Newvine. "But we shaped up in the fourth quarter to put the game away."

Drook's 42-yard screen pass to Chris Carroll put ULS on the board first, and Mike Whelan booted his first of three extra points, giving ULS a 7-0 lead in the first quarter. Also in that quarter, Drook ran eight yards for a score and Whelan's PAT gave ULS a 14-0 lead.

In the third quarter, Drook hooked up with Ed Merriman on a 70-yard touchdown pass, but Whelan's PAT failed.

Drook completed four of six passes for 144 yards, and ULS had 378 yards of total offense. The ULS defense limited Memphis to 72 total yards and only six first downs.

The Norsemen have yielded only 10 goals.

Mid-fielders like John Ferguson, Nick Karabetsos, Bryce Kenny, Dave Miller and Arnaud Beauvois have helped North score 23 goals in 10 games.

"In the last four or five games we have just concentrated more, played a full 80 minutes and stayed in our positions," Regelbrugge said. "Sometimes a couple people were trying to do too much, but now they're all just concentrating on their jobs.'

North had only one win in the season's first three games, and hasn't lost since.

"It's been a matter of finding the right combination and then getting our concentration," Regelbrugge said. "In the loss to Utica, which really hurt, we got the first goal with eight minutes to play, but then we sat back and whiled the time away instead of attacking and playing to keep or increase the lead. That's when we learned a lesson.

North is in the hunt for the championship with a 5-2-2 league mark, but the true test will come at South Oct. 5, when the two teams meet again. South is currently in first place.

"I can't see anyone with two losses coming close to the title," Sumbera said. "Our job right now is to regroup and turn things back around.'

North had to regroup against Utica, after trailing 3-0 in the second quarter. Using a mixed bag of play calling, the Norsemen went to work from their own 31. A 31-yard pass from Brandon Cromar to Mike Koenigbauer on a flea-flicker put the ball at the Chieftans' 38, and Koenigbauer then caught an 11yard pass from quarterback Gary Corona to put the ball at the 20. Four plays later Mike Haskell crossed the goal line from the 2, but fumbled the ball. Center John Bomier, however, pounced on it for the touchdown and Corona kicked the extra point.

The half ended with North holding a 7-3 lead.

"We were in control and playing very well," Sumbera said. "We only gave up three first downs in the first half, but things went sour for us in the second half.'

What hurt the Norsemen were the four turnovers, including three interceptions.

"We didn't execute and we made some crucial mistakes that really put us in a hole," Sumbera said. "In the second half, Utica just kept pounding away and once it got the lead that was

LOVABLE dogs and cats need good homes. For adoption information call: Northern Suburbs Animal Welfare League Volunteer at 777-5110 or 463-

PLEASE DON'T BELAY! SPAY or NEUTER YOUR PET TODAY!

An altered pet is a healthier and happier companion. Also, it spares you the grief and pain of having puppies and kittens destroyed when no homes can be found. Countless numbers of sweet, innocent little ones are euthanized every day in shelters across the country because a pet wasn't spayed or neutered. If we cut down on the numbers of unwanted litters being born, we will also cut down on the number of abandoned, lost and unwanted animals to de-

October is Adopt-A-Dog Month! Please drop into our shelter and see all of the beautiful companion animals that are waiting to be adopted into a loving home. This week, to kick off the event of Adopt-A-Dog Month, here's who we have waiting to meet you.

Mariah is a gorgeous Blue Moro Great Dane. She is 2-1/2 years old, housebroken, good with children and has had all her shots. She weighs around 90 lbs. Her personality is wonderful. She is a gentle dog and is looking for the right home to share her

Sport, Fido & Dandy are a wonderful threesome As you can see they are what puppies are all about. They are Lab mixes and are just 12 weeks

Millie is a beautiful Lab-Retriever female that's 3 years old. She is already spayed and has had all her shots. She's housebroken and good with kids. She is a very special dog, just waiting for someone to appreciate her and to open their hearts and home to her.

The Anti-Cruelty Association 13569 Jos Campau, Detroit, Mich. 48212

Our adoption hours are M-S 10:30-3:00. Remember, October is Adopt-A-Dog Month! This celebration will hopefully give many homeless, abandoned and stray animais a second chance at a quality life. There are thousands of animals that never know where their next piece of food is coming from or what refuge he or she will find to rest. Their tomorrows do not hold much for them. Please give the gift of love and life to a companion animal and share your life with one of them. Make it a be kind to animals world! For further information our phone no. is 891-7188.
