

Send Christmas wishes to residents serving in Gulf crisis

By Dan Jarvis
Staff Writer

A dozen local residents serving either in the Persian Gulf or in the United States as members of the reserves will get a Christmas greeting from the Grosse Pointes, via the War Memorial's Persian Gulf Conflict Support program.

During the next nine days, the War Memorial will feature hand-made Christmas cards in the center's lobby and the public is invited to sign them and send goodwill messages to local men and women serving in the current crisis, said Mark Weber, War Memorial president.

Since Oct. 28, the War Memorial has sponsored three mailings to the gulf including War Memorial newsletters, letters and personal notes from staff members and issues of the Grosse Pointe News.

During November, the War Memorial sent out Christmas cards fashioned by Brownies at Kerby School under the direction of troop leader Elizabeth Palen.

Weber said the War Memorial and community is gearing up for the final mailing before the holidays, and must meet a Dec. 1 deadline to ensure that military personnel receive packages in time for Christmas.

Young students in the center's Youth Activities art classes designed the Christmas cards now on display in the War Memorial's lobby.

"We are encouraging residents of the Grosse Pointes to come in and sign the cards," Weber said. "We are asking people to show their support by including goodwill messages and we will take care of the logistics of mailing them to Saudi Arabia."

Besides the Christmas cards, the War Memorial will again send additional letters, cards, newsletters and issues of the Grosse Pointe News.

"It's a convenient way for the community to send goodwill messages," Weber said. "To those serving in the field, messages of support are especially important at this time of year. It is a good way for us to recognize their sacrifice."

The dozen on the War Memorial's list include:

A ton of turkeys

That's just what the Dodge brothers of Grosse Pointe Park, Alexander, 10, Nicholas, 8, and Colin, 2, found while visiting the Malburg Family Farm north of Romeo.

The boys, who were visiting the farm before the holiday, left empty-handed.

Carpenter ants may mean end of farmhouse

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

Despite the efforts of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society and local builder Christopher Blake, the historic Cadieux farmhouse may have to be destroyed.

The culprits: carpenter ants. Historical society member Tish Colett, who has been discussing the fate of the farmhouse with Blake, said it appears the 1830s vintage house has a severe infestation of carpenter ants. The damage and future problems due to the ants may kill the plans to save the house, she said.

Blake, president of The Blake Co., said that in October his workers removed the part of the house that was sinking and found that the entire dwelling was infested with carpenter ants. He said he called in two exterminators, and they said the rafters and possibly side-wall studs would have to be replaced.

Also, the exterminators advised that the house be fumigated on a regular basis, probably forever, Blake said. The extermination treatments would leave a residue over the floors, something a homebuyer would not find attractive.

"We decided this was not a viable project," Blake said. He contacted the historical society and the city, informing them of the condition of the house, he said, and offered to let the society move the house or buy it. The society does not have the funds to buy or restore the house. Colett said.

Besides the historical society, someone else could buy the house and restore it, Blake said.

In May, the Grosse Pointe City Council approved a rezoning request to allow the farmhouse property at Notre Dame and Jefferson to be split into two lots. The plan was to have one new house built and the farmhouse refurbished and a kitchen and garage added to it. The historical society approved of the plan, which would save most of the old farmhouse.

Currently, Blake is nearing completion of the new home.

Originally, the house's owner, Peter Kauffman, Blake and the historical society presented a plan to the city that included the farmhouse as one of two connected condominiums. The plan was said to be an "adaptive reuse" of the historic dwelling.

Residents in the area, however, objected to a multi-family development in their neighborhood. A rezoning for condominiums was narrowly approved in January, but the residents filed a lawsuit challenging the city's vote.

In May, the residents, their attorney, William D. Gilbride Jr., and Blake reached an agreement for two single-family homes on the property.

Colett said she believes that if there is any feasible way to save the house, Blake would do it.

"I think Blake has been sincere in his attempts," she said.

She is hoping that someone will have an idea on how to save the farmhouse. She suggested that someone may want to move it to another site and restore it there. She is also exploring the idea with Blake that perhaps a replica of the farmhouse could be built on the site.

"Maybe somebody out there will have an idea we haven't thought of," she said. "It seems a shame one of our oldest structures has to be destroyed."

Mary Evelyn Self

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

One might say that Mary Evelyn Self was misnamed because she has dedicated most of her life to helping others.

Mary Evelyn Self

The list of organizations she is affiliated with or has been affiliated with runs the gamut from health organizations to garden clubs. Each one reflecting a different facet of her sparkling personality. Each one reflecting her need to be involved and stay busy.

"There's a certain amount of -- oh, I don't know what you'd call it -- gratification, I guess, to be involved in organizations. I get involved because I want to work. I don't do it just to get my name in a program," she said.

Born and raised in West Virginia, the Grosse Pointe Park resident came to her new home town in 1952. A registered nurse, Self immediately put her skills to work with several local organizations starting with the Health Education Council.

"It started out as a nutritional program around World War II."

Weather vane reported stolen

A Grosse Pointe City man reported the top of his weather vane was stolen at 7 p.m. Nov. 9.

The man told police he heard someone walking around on top of his three-story garage. When he went outside and called out, the suspect jumped down from the garage and fled. He took with him the top, removable portion of the weather vane that was a figure of an ice skate.

The suspect used a 7-foot fence next to the garage to get up on the roof.

The 25-year-old homemade weather vane was said to be worth $200.

South burglarized; windows smashed

Grosse Pointe South High School was broken into and vandalized Nov. 17, and the burglars apparently used a teacher's lounge to party.

The suspects got into the school sometime between 1 and 5 a.m. through an unlocked teacher's lounge window on the southwest side of the building. In the teacher's lounge were found two empty bottles and one full bottle of beer and two pop cans.

A dispensing machine in a women's restroom was also pried open. Bricks and beer bottles were thrown through windows.

Richard school employee praised for assisting police

A Richard Elementary School employee was praised by the school's principal last week for his alertness that led to the arrest of a Romulus man.

At about 8 p.m. Nov. 13, custodian engineer Jerry VanTiem saw a man in a yellow 1977 Chevrolet Camaro stop at Messner Field across from the school at McMillan and Ridge Road. The man got out of the car, walked onto the field and dropped something near a tree. VanTiem investigated and found the man had hidden a gun.

The man got back into the car and left, and VanTiem called police.

The responding Farms officer found an automatic, .38 caliber, nickel-plated revolver lying on the ground, covered with leaves. He called for detectives, who took the gun back to the station.

About 45 minutes later, VanTiem saw the Camaro return. When the man got out of the car and began searching for the gun, VanTiem called police again.

Officers from the Farms and City arrived while the man was still on the field looking for the gun. He was arrested.

When police attempted to ask him why he hid the gun, the man requested a lawyer, and he was released pending further investigation.

According to police reports, the man is 27 years old and works as a yard foreman at a Lincoln Park auto salvage yard.

In a letter to VanTiem's boss, Chris Fenton, director of support services for the school district, Richard Principal Jack McMahon said VanTiem's alertness and action may have prevented or solved a crime, not to mention the possible tragedy involving children and a loaded gun on a playground.

Corrections

Corrections will be printed on this page every week. If there is an error of fact in any story, call the newsroom at 882-0294.

The date of a loud party in the 1000 block of South Oxford that was reported in the Nov. 15 issue was incorrect. The date of the party was Nov. 3.

The letter to the editor, "Traffic," in last week's paper regarding the residents of Moran Road between Mack and Chalfonte should have been attributed to Kerry J. Smale of Grosse Pointe Farms. Her last name was inadvertently misspelled.

The Comerica bank robbed Nov. 9, which was reported in last week's paper, is located at Mack and Kenmore in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Village President Edmund M. Brady Jr., left, and Village Trustee John Huetteman III, chairman of the Department of Public Works Committee, and DPW Supervisor Brett Smith, in the truck, announce the new 'Eyes & Ears' program through which public works employees can assist residents in reporting emergencies via the DPW trucks' radios.

Shores adds 'Eyes & Ears' to DPW trucks

Grosse Pointe Shores has added more eyes and ears to the community. The idea isn't new, but it's still a good one.

Village Trustee John Huetteman III, chairman of the Department of Public Works Committee, noticed that utility trucks had "Eyes & Ears" stickers on them to inform children, and residents in general, that the trucks are radio-equipped and can be used to contact police in case of emergency. Because all the Shores DPW trucks have radios, Huetteman thought it would be a good idea to use them for eyes and ears like the utility companies do.

DPW Supervisor Brett Smith found out where to get the stickers and ordered some. Now police, DPW and village officials are informing residents that if they have an emergency and a DPW truck is nearby, the public works employee can immediately contact police, fire and medical emergency personnel.

The best thing about the eyes and ears program is that it doesn't cost the village an additional penny but enhances safety.

The Shores DPW workers have assisted in the past in letting police know about stranded motorists and so forth. A Shores DPW employee was the first at the scene to rescue a woman from frigid Lake St. Clair water in January 1989.

In fact, because seven of the DPW workers are also auxiliary public safety officers, they are ideally trained to be extra eyes and ears.

Parents, students, teachers celebrate Monteith's award

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Joan Robie, principal of Monteith Elementary School, said the school's designation as a national exemplary school is proof that when teachers, students and parents work together they can make a difference.

Monteith celebrated its award at a schoolwide assembly last week, the week set aside as National Education and National Student Week.

Monteith received the award from the U.S. Department of Education based on the school's curriculum, its relationship with the community, the qualifications of its teachers and the quality of the education it provides.

"As I rode here this morning, I was wondering 'What makes up a school?'" Superintendent Ed Shine said at the assembly. "It's not the building or the bricks...A school is made up of people and the most important people are the children."

Grosse Pointe Woods Mayor Robert Novitke issued a proclamation declaring Nov. 18-24 as Monteith Elementary School Week in Grosse Pointe Woods.

The teachers and support staff, as well as the parent volunteers, were honored and two fifth grade students spoke.

"We have to strive to be the best we can and work together to make Monteith even better," said Aimee Constantine.

Nathan Marshall praised his teachers: "I don't know how they do it, but they manage to put fun into learning."

"The good things you've done don't make you want to stop," Robie told the assembly. "It makes you want to try harder. Even though you believe in yourself, and you know you're a good school, you know you can still be better."

Robie also pointed out that the award was given to the school the same year it started a new improvement program.

Another student, Joe Slavik, summed it up: "I'm proud to be a student at Monteith."

Dr. Hartway wins ASCAP award

Dr. James Hartway of Grosse Pointe has received an ASCAP award for the 11th consecutive year from the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

Professor Hartway is the chairman of the division of composition and theory in the department of music at Wayne State University.

"I appreciate the recognition from ASCAP," Hartway said, "because I believe symphonic literature should continue to receive more public performances. The award reflects ASCAP's continuing commitment to assist and encourage writers of serious music."

Recent performances of Hartway's compositions include "Detours," a piece for flute and harp, performed by the Larson/Alvin Duo during their summer European tour and their October tour to Japan.

The duo also performed the selection Nov. 4 in Orchestra Hall. Frances Brockington, a part-time member of the WSU music faculty, sang Hartway's "Songs for Ronnie" on her recent European tour.

Another composition, "City Sketches," was performed by a trio composed of Detroit Symphony Orchestra members in October as part of the Cranbrook Concert Series.

Fred Adams remembered

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

More than 200 people packed Grosse Pointe Memorial Church Sunday to pay tribute to Fred Adams, a member of the Grosse Pointe board of education who died of heart failure Thursday, Nov. 15.

A noted local business leader, Adams had dedicated much of his life to maintaining quality education. He was appointed by two different governors to the board of trustees of Western Michigan University, three of those terms serving as chairman. Adams ran for the Grosse Pointe school board after being recruited, said former board President Jon Gandelot.

"We wanted someone who was dedicated to education and to the community," Gandelot said.

A petition with Adams' name was circulated and filed while Adams was out of town. Adams was informed of his candidacy when he returned from that trip.

"That was indicative of the kind of person he was," Gandelot said. "He would never run for office on his own, but if someone asked him to, he would."

Adams was elected that year and once more. In his years on the board he served variously as secretary, vice president, president. He was serving as secretary again when he died.

"He never took himself too seriously," Gandelot said. "But he took what he did very seriously. He never felt he was more than a citizen serving other citizens."

"The neat thing about Fred is that he was active right up to the end. He went to hundreds of school events a year, not because he had to but because he liked to."

Current board President Carl D. Anderson, who spoke at the memorial service, called Adams "the conscience of the board."

"The board is a policy-making body and whenever we strayed from that in the running of the schools, he would bring us back," Anderson said. "He was perceptive, well-informed, kind, considerate and caring."

Anderson remembers going to Grosse Pointe North High School at 4 a.m. to wish the school choir well in its trip to New York and seeing Adams and his wife, Mary Grace, there, too.

"What can you say about such a wonderful man, we'll miss him," he said.

Superintendent Ed Shine praised Adams' commitment to the community.

"He had a deep commitment to the children of Grosse Pointe and served the community in a superb fashion by bringing the board's attention to the children," Shine said.

"He was not a man of many words, but when he did say something, it was worth listening to," he said.

"I count it as a personal loss," said former Superintendent John Whritner. "He and Mary Grace went out of their way to make me and my wife feel a part of the community when I was hired."

Whritner, who is now superintendent in Greenwich, Conn., said Adams' death was a major tragedy for the Grosse Pointe schools.

"Fred was, probably without exception, the best board member I've ever worked with, and I've worked with a lot," Whritner said. "He was always dedicated and cared very deeply about education."

Earlier this year the board gave Fred and Mary Grace Adams a proclamation honoring his 80th birthday and the couple's 50th wedding anniversary.

His daughter, Martha Jane, said, "He gave so much of his heart, it's ironic that's what failed him. He gave it all away."

The board is accepting nominations for Adams' seat. It has until Dec. 5 to fill it.

"He'll be hard to replace," Anderson said.

A commitment.

This is a lot more than just a symbol—it's a commitment. It says the retailer who displays it is committed to a responsible fur industry. An industry that endorses humane standards for the treatment of fur-bearing animals.

An industry that affirms no pelts from endangered species will be used in any of the garments we sell.

An industry that continually strives to attain the highest standards of quality and craftsmanship.

The symbol is new. But the commitment is long-standing. And enduring.

Engler finds misery loves '91 leaders

Gov.-elect John Engler began getting the bad news early when he received confirmation last week that the state is facing a $1.3 billion deficit in its current budget even before he takes office in January.

The report from Doug Roberts, chairman of the state Fiscal Agency, supported Engler's campaign warning about the size of the deficit but it also raised questions about the new governor's ability to satisfy such campaign promises as a 20 percent cut in property taxes and no cut in education's share of the state budget.

Yet Engler is just one of many U.S. governors as well as big city mayors facing a fiscal squeeze and popular discontent over public services, and especially taxes that many citizens see as too high even though they are far from united about which services should be trimmed.

Engler is already getting conflicting advice about ways to tackle these problems.

For example, higher rather than lower taxes were demanded in Michigan last week by several groups which believe the state needs a 5 or 6 cent increase in its 15-cents-a-gallon gasoline tax to fund highway maintenance services and keep traffic moving.

But a conservative Midland think tank, the Mackinac Center, proposed tax cuts, abolition of several state programs and privatizing of county jails, state prisons as well as management of the Michigan Education Tuition guarantee program as part of a plan to encourage "free markets and less government."

The prospects for success of the effort by the Michigan Municipal League, the County Road Association of Michigan and the Michigan Road Builders Association to boost the gas tax either this fall or in the next legislative session in January are not very high.

Retiring Gov. James Blanchard's budget director, Sheldon Solomon, was quoted as saying he would not recommend the governor sign a tax increase because it could adversely affect a state economy on the brink of a recession and because a 5-cent boost in the federal gasoline tax was voted recently by Congress.

An Engler spokesman said the new administration would not consider any such action until an assessment has been made of the efficiency of the state Department of Transportation, which is funded chiefly by federal funds.

On economizing in general, Solomon recommended that Engler take a look at the most costly programs such as general assistance, welfare benefits and Medicaid, but in this recession period such cutbacks will be difficult.

That fact was highlighted when complaints arose about a state cutback of 6 percent in Wayne County and 5 percent outstate for the emergency food and shelter program despite an expected surge in homelessness and increased food needs by the unemployed.

A New York Times story pointed out that under the "new federalism" championed by Presidents Reagan and Bush, the federal government has continued for the past 10 years to heap responsibilities on the states — but has failed to provide much financing even for mandated programs.

But the nation's big city mayors, too, are feeling the financial pinch because of the loss of federal aid and the rising tide of crime, drug abuse, disease and poverty in their communities.

The mayors at an "urban summit" recommended a "competitive cities" act providing tax incentives to firms that invest in cities and requiring big federal contractors to fund city education and training programs.

They demanded that any new federal mandates for new or expanded programs include the money to pay for them. They urged that federal regulations be streamlined so that cities can apply them innovatively. And when it's available, they still want federal aid to finance mass transit and sewage plants and to battle AIDS, drug abuse and homelessness.

If misery loves company, Engler apparently is going to have a lot of it among state and local officials who face the same kind of tough tax and money decisions that he will confront in January.

And if the recession deepens, as now seems possible, his misery no doubt will grow.

Schools to miss Fred Adams

As the Grosse Pointe school board faces its third attempt since 1967 to win approval of a public library expansion project, one of its stalwart supporters and perhaps its strongest link to the business community will be missing.

We refer, of course, to Fred W. Adams, board member since 1984, a former chairman and current secretary, who died last week just two days after the board decided to ask voters to approve on Feb. 4 a $7.6 million bond issue for the library expansion.

Adams joined the board back when the controversy over school closings had aroused strong feelings in the community. His record as a business executive and as a long-term backer of public education helped to reassure the board's critics and restore the stability the district needed at the time.

In addition to issuing the bonds, the school district would be required to hike the library levy by four-tenths of a mill to finance higher operating costs of the new building. The millage boost would require an estimated tax increase of $3.33 a month or $40 a year for a home with a state equalized valuation of $100,000 or a market value of $200,000.

The owner of such a home now pays $10.42 a month or $125 a year in library taxes which are levied along with school taxes in the district. Approval of the new proposal would boost the total library tax to $165 a year on such a home.

The new building would provide more than four times the current space for popular adult fiction, three times as much for children's books, a huge increase for the reference section and space for additional computers, laser printers, copiers and a facsimile machine.

A 1966 study on library facilities found that the Central Library had "exhausted its space, resulting in a reduced efficiency of its operation," and cited such examples as "the open shelves and the book stack area are full" and "the children's room cannot accommodate its patrons."

Since 1966, no additional library space has been added to the library but the amount of printed information on a given subject has tended to double every 10 to 20 years, and both circulation and traffic have risen sharply. Such facts make it clear that the needs are even more critical in the 1990s than they were in 1966.

In our view, approval of the library would be another community enhancement as well as a fine tribute to Fred Adams for his long service to public education and the public library.

A CONSENSUS OF ECONOMISTS

War or peace in the Gulf?

The No. 1 question in Washington these days is whether the United States is heading for war or peace in the Persian Gulf.

Up to now, the answer to the question has been left to Saddam Hussein, the Iraqi dictator, but the Bush administration, in almost doubling the size of the troop commitment to Saudi Arabia, has prompted new debate on the subject.

Fearing the huge troop buildup moved the nation closer to war, some political leaders suggested Congress ought to have more to say about the issue of war or peace and perhaps should even vote to approve or disapprove the administration's policy.

That would require a special session of Congress which, in fact, was recommended by Senate GOP Leader Robert Dole of Kansas and Sen. Richard Lugar of Indiana, the ranking Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, as well as the Democratic leadership. All sought such a session to broaden the public debate, clarify U.S. goals and retain public support for them.

But President Bush apparently satisfied the leaders for the time being by assuring them that war with Iraq is not imminent and that the additional buildup is intended "to create credible options," as Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell explained to reporters.

Yet the widest possible public discussion of the issues involved in the Gulf is called for. If a special congressional session is required to obtain it, the president ought to call all the members into session rather than continuing to consult with a limited number of leaders.

It is still possible that the economic sanctions against Iraq will finally bring Hussein to his knees. Perhaps they won't but granting him more time to make his decision surely is preferable to engaging in any hasty U.S. military challenge to him.

It may be appropriate to recall that two major undeclared U.S. wars of this century, the so-called police actions in Korea and Vietnam, resulted in what are regarded at best as stalemates. In the long run, the lack of public support by the home front helped explain the unsatisfactory outcome of both wars.

That fact should serve as an additional reason for postponing a decision about the use of force against Hussein until the public understands our aims in Saudi Arabia.

2 honeymoons?

Which well-known Michigianian is going to have two honeymoons at the same time for the next few months?

Well, it's Gov.-elect John Engler, of course. He is taking a bride next month and in January will get the traditional "honeymoon" from the state Legislature before it gets down to the tough task of working on his budget and his GOP programs.

We predict, however, his personal honeymoon will last longer than the one with the divided Legislature.

Compleat poem

To the Editor:

A few weeks ago you ran a lovely picture of the Nun's Walk on Kenwood regarding falling leaves with an allusion to an anonymous poet.

As the leaves are still falling and the season is not yet too late, I thought that you might like the whole of George Cooper's lovely poem:

Come Little Leaves

"Come little leaves," said the wind one day,
"Come o'er the meadow with me and play;
Put on your dresses of red and gold,
For summer is gone, and the days grow cold."

Soon as the leaves heard the wind's loud call,
Down they came fluttering one and all;
Over the brown fields they danced and flew,
Singing the soft little songs they knew.

Dancing and whirling the little leaves went;
Winter had called them, and they were content.
Soon, fast asleep in their earthly beds,
The snow laid a coverlet over their heads.

I write this for the benefit of those who love this poem, but may have forgotten all of it.

Suzanne Lane Giddy
Grosse Pointe Park

P.S. Who was George Cooper? Did he write anything else?

Editor's note: Can anyone help the writer?

Waste

To the Editor:

I greatly support the recent attempt of Grosse Pointe Woods for their efforts to cut down waste disposal.

Their new curbside recycling plan is a big step toward cutting down on the waste sent to our incinerator. This process is also reducing the amount of money being spent to store this waste. The less garbage needed to be stored, the less money taxpayers need to pay.

It is also making people more aware of the growing environmental problems. It is giving people who otherwise wouldn't have recycled their garbage an opportunity to do so.

Hopefully, Grosse Pointe is setting an example for other communities and this idea will spread throughout Michigan.

Thanks

To the Editor:

I would like very much to thank you for your paper's support of the Metro Airport bond issue. The Grosse Pointe News' endorsement, in addition to its coverage of this critical issue, did an outstanding job of clearing up any confusion between the Metro Airport modernization and the proposed expansion of Detroit City Airport.

You also helped residents of the Grosse Pointe communities realize our sale of $100 million in bonds to make improvements at Metro included none of their tax dollars.

Of course, two of the most pressing aspects of the Metro Airport bond referendum were jobs (as many as 20,000 new ones) and noise. And depending on who you talked to, they were not necessarily ranked in that order.

As you are well aware, a community-based group calling themselves Citizens Against Aircraft Noise

The ideof . . . November

Well, if there were such a thing as the ideo of November, Thursday (Nov. 15) would have been it.

Like an Indian summer, last Thursday's warming sun and subtle breezes brought out the outdoorsman in more than a few Pointe residents.

With temperatures around 70, many Pointers — old, young, male, female, walkers, joggers, sight-seers and dog-walkers — took to the streets.

On the Hill, in the Village, and all along Mack Avenue, residents left their winter coats behind and ventured outdoors. The streets were abuzz with people shopping, chatting and just profiling.

Lakeshore was a haven for health-seekers and fast-walkers, many in shorts. When is the last time you saw someone jogging along Lakeshore in shorts in the middle of November?

Not surprising, many boaters in motor and sailing craft took to the lake for one final splash. Ducks and seagulls competed for a small sandbar a couple yards offshore near the Farms park.

The waves were low; the wind was just right; the lake was deep blue and the day was perfect.

I Say

Dan Jarvis

Many, including myself, have complained lately that the cold weather that brought us sniffles and runny noses has left us feeling dreary and rundown. Last week the complaints were gently blown out to sea.

The warm, sunny weather also gave bicyclists in the community a final chance to ride through the streets and beneath trees still rich in fall color.

Golfers in the area turned out in force, with many teeing off in the afternoon knowing full well they would not finish the course.

The Lochmoor Club and the Country Club of Detroit reported in excess of 100 players each, with many playing until darkness fell.

One club staffer couldn't remember when so many golfers turned out in November, while another said the unusually warm weather brought out more than three times the expected number for this time of year.

One avid golfer said nature was in full swing as a large hawk that regularly visits the Country Club course in spring and fall swooped down and made quick work of an unsuspecting squirrel, which was carried off to its demise.

The weather also had an effect on students in the community, who celebrated the reprieve from the cold by turning their car radios up and yelling as though celebrating a great victory.

Tennis players all over the Pointes put on their whites and ventured to the courts, possibly for the last time this year. Attendance at some courts was unusually high for November, with many players, like the golfers, holding out until late afternoon.

It was the type of November day that people savor and treasure.

It seems odd that if the same weather occurred in late July or early August, many would have donned jackets, even light sweaters, to battle the 70 degree cold spell. It all depends on the back-drop, I suppose.

Put the same day in mid-November, and out come the shorts, T-shirts and bare feet.

All in all, the day brought out the best in the community and it made many forget their troubles and enjoy the year's last day of summer-like weather.

Now, that said, put away the shorts and the bikes and bring on Old Man Winter.

Sass with class

Two Grosse Pointe teenagers were involved in the first totally reader-produced issue of Sassy Magazine.

Amy "Charlie" Boal, 14, and Nina Misuraca, 15, both of Grosse Pointe Woods, served as members of the magazine's staff for the December 1990 issue, which is available right now.

Boal served as a hair and makeup artist and Misuraca was a writer.

"I've been practicing makeup on friends and relatives for about four years, but I'm definitely not a pro," Boal said. "So when Sassy said I could work with a real live makeup artist, I was dancin'."

Misuraca contributed a music review of The Black Crowes which appears on page 39, part of a feature called "Listen up."

Seasons greetings

Two charitable organizations were left out of our Christmas card page last week (Nov. 15, page 6C) and we'd like to give them some ink.

The Muscular Dystrophy Association's holiday greeting cards were designed by MDA's Michigan state poster children, Tania Rice, 14, and Shannon Rice, 12, of Royal Oak. The card is a winter snow scene on white linen, done in red and green. Boxes of 20 cards with matching envelopes are $12 and are available at the MDA office, 136 S. Gratiot, Mount Clemens. Phone 469-9070 for information.

Detroit Meals on Wheels has holiday greeting cards available at $5 each, with all proceeds going directly for hot, nourishing meals delivered to homebound elderly people in the community. They're calling the program "Buy a Card — Give a Meal."

To order cards, make checks payable to Detroit Meals on Wheels and send to 1100 Michigan Building, 220 Bagley, Detroit 48226. For more information, call 222-5330.

More meals

Speaking of Meals on Wheels, chefs from 15 Michigan restaurants will create some delicious desserts, vying for honors in a competition to be held in Stroh River Place Atrium. It'll take place at 6:30 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 29, and the beneficiary will be Detroit Meals on Wheels.

Grosse Pointe Jimmy Schmidt of the Rattlesnake Club is co-chairman of the fundraiser. Tickets to the event are $75 and may be purchased by calling 963-3396.

Poinsettias for progress

Local nursing homes will support the ninth annual Poinsettias for Progress sale to benefit the metro Detroit branch of the Arthritis Foundation. Proceeds from the sale will go toward research and development as well as client services.

Senior resident volunteers sell discounted poinsettias to members of the community, proving that age is not a barrier to helping. Prices for plants range from $6 to $25 and they're available in red, white and pink.

Georgian East, 21401 Mack, Grosse Pointe Woods, will be selling the poinsettias on Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 27 and 28. For more information, call 350-3030.

Inventor's up to his ears in alternative fuel

Not all of life's curve balls are bad; in fact, some are downright fun.

Remember Monty Python's famous dictum: Nobody expects the Spanish Inquisition! My corollary: Nobody expects to meet an inventor at the fair.

story house belonged to "Pop" Clamage, owner of a chain of burlesque theaters in Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis.

They keep their doors open in warm weather — and they bought their house as an investment. Take that, Detroit-bashers!

Janet McLachlan doesn't see anything odd about it. "I work downtown," she says matter-of-factly.

Well, so do the rest of the people in RenCen offices, but most of them live in the suburbs. She shrugs.

Janet grew up in Detroit, expecting, as women did in those days, to become a secretary, then a fulltime mom.

"Back in the olden days, that's what you did with your life," she says.

So she became a secretary, got married, had two kids — and kept working. "I used to take a job in September and quit it in June," she laughs. "I never had a job more than two years."

Sixteen years ago she decided to look for a job with a future and went to the Detroit law firm of Dykema Gossett as — what else? a secretary.

Only the firm discovered un-plumbed depths in Janet McLachlan. Now she's facilities manager, overseeing operations and renovations in 10 offices in Michigan and Florida and bending her brain on decisions involving coaxial cable vs. twisted pair, instead of shorthand.

"You learn on the job," she says simply, as if this sort of technical information is easy to pick up. This is a lady who thinks it would be fun to own a hardware store.

"It's been interesting — I can't say I've ever been bored there. I work with everybody from the partners of the firm to the messengers, from designers to laborers.

"And I've learned a lot — like never to wear navy blue or black on a construction site." She laughs.

A few years ago, she met Randy at her "escape valve," a cottage at Kettle Point on Lake Huron's Canadian shore. A small-town guy from Strathroy, Ontario, who spent his teen years working as a turkey debaker, Randy's about as unlike Janet as two people can be.

"He's dreaming about inventions while I plod along doing what I have to do," she says. "But we're both workers, both morning people who get up every day eager for new challenges."

An independent kind of guy, Randy does construction for the cash flow, but the real energy goes into the ideas. He's interested in alternative energy. Very alternative.

He bursts into the room. "Did you ever see corn burn?" he asks. We go down to the basement where flames are shooting up in his home-built prototype of a corn-burning furnace.

The idea of burning corn as home-heating fuel has been gnawing at him for some time (along with a lot of other theories — Janet says he can't take a walk down the street without figuring out a way to make something in a neighbor's yard work better). About the time he

Tie one on again for the holidays

Red ribbons will blanket the roadways between Thanksgiving and New Year's Eve this year again as a symbol of sober driving. At least, that's the goal of MADD (Mother's Against Drunk Driving), Wayne County Chapter, in an effort to save lives during the holiday season.

This is the fourth year MADD in Michigan is asking local motorists to "Tie One On For Safety," in Project Red Ribbon, its largest public awareness campaign. The red ribbon, tied to a visible part of the vehicle, is a built his prototype, he heard about a guy from Ithaca, Mich., who manufactures corn furnaces. (Talk about life's little surprises!)

That's how Randy McLachlan became a manufacturer's rep for A-Maize-Ing Heat.

All you need is a burner, a storage bin and a farmer. If you still have a coal bin in your basement, fill it half-full of seed corn and it'll last the winter. An augur keeps the fuel flowing and it's all thermostatically controlled.

Randy's as fired up as the corn, because the new Clean Air Act will restrict wood-burning in many areas. The sky's the limit now.

His enthusiasm is contagious. (Then I remember that my brother-in-law, the chimney sweep, is creosote-dependent. I take a brochure for him in case the Clean Air Act puts him out of business.)

If you think burning corn in the city is a nutty idea, you just don't know Randy McLachlan. He'd like to convert the fireplace to corn.

His bemused neighbors watch him lug bags of corn picked up on selling trips to the country and wonder if the corn pops when you heat it.

The Tradition Lives On!

But if you're lucky, you might. It happened like this:

Back when it was warm enough to be a good idea, I was selling T-shirts at the Armada Fair. I asked for help with my sign and thumbtacks, and that's how I met Randy McLachlan.

There's more to Randy than his thumb. He's also an entrepreneur, idea guy and kook (which is what all the best idea guys are) — and husband to Janet, individualist, former Grosse Pointer and current urban pioneer.

But if it weren't for the thumb, I wouldn't have spent a pleasant afternoon at their house on a chill, rainy Sunday, savoring blueberry muffins and swapping tales about inventive husbands.

The McLachlans probably hate to be called urban pioneers. They live in an unthreatening neighborhood of gracious old houses sandwiched in between the Jeffersonian and Detroit's Waterworks Park. The mayor's neighborhood.

The subdivision was built on property owned by the Joseph Berry family of Grosse Pointe, he of the varnish and the pet bear. The McLachlans' three-(CAAN) had a complaint about the amount of noise they were enduring from arriving and departing planes. A very legitimate complaint.

But until after the Memorial Day weekend, when Dearborn residents opened their windows, and our phone lines, to the roar of DC-10s, we were oblivious to their plight. That is when we finally took action.

For many residents of Wayne County, the time since then has been, at the very least, an unfortunate inconvenience. For those of us working for the county, it has been a lesson in listening.

Now, we are well on our way to seeing that the noise will be reduced. We were able to put enough pressure on the FAA to make them consider changing the extremely loud flight paths it created.

It has not been easy, but judging by the voter returns (70-30 percent in favor of the bond issue) it appears we are earning back the public's confidence.

And though the election may be over, our fight to reduce the noise is not. County officials will be in close touch with areas impacted by the airport modernization, during and after its completion, asking questions, offering solutions and most of all, listening.

On Dec. 1, the FAA will announce the findings of its unprecedented review of their flight paths which created the noise problem. But more importantly, that is the date your readers can expect an announcement that the airspace will be changed to be quieter and more acceptable for everybody.

So rest assured, the modernization will begin, the noise will go away and jobs will be created.

Gun control

To the Editor:

Thank you very much for publishing my response to Mr. Joseph P. Wright's first letter on gun control. I appreciate the opportunity to give your readers another perspective on this issue even if it is one you do not necessarily support.

I would like to thank Mr. Wright for having the courage of his convictions and

Robbery suspect snatches purse

The suspect in the Nov. 7 armed robbery and assault of the elderly Grosse Pointe Park couple allegedly struck again with a purse snatching Nov. 10.

A 67-year-old woman was sitting in St. Clare Catholic Church at 2:27 p.m. when a man sat beside her. He then grabbed her purse and fled. He ran to the parking lot and escaped in a car west on Mack.

Park detectives, checking the ownership of the vehicles used in the purse snatching, identified the suspect as the same man wanted in the incident involving the 86-year-old woman and 85-year-old man who were robbed at the apartment building they managed on Maryland near Jefferson.

Police have recovered the rings stolen from the Maryland woman and the purse stolen from the woman at the church.

The suspect was still at large Monday morning. He is a 32-year-old Detroit man who was recently paroled. He has served three separate prison sentences for burglary, robbery and assault. He has several aliases and has a street name of Corky.

Park detectives have warrants for the man's arrest for one count of criminal sexual conduct I, two counts of armed robbery and one count of larceny from a person.

Denby plans 40th

The January and June 1951 classes of Denby High School plan a 40th reunion for Oct. 26, 1991. To be put on the mailing list for further information, call June Walters at 758-4219 or Rosemary Rein at 681-8294.

"sticking to his guns" on his position on gun control (Oct. 25). I don't agree with him, but I have no intention of following his lead by insulting him or his beliefs as he has done to me. He accuses me of being selfish, with "no concern for the poor, the starving, the homeless, the handicapped, the sick, the dying, and — of course — the almost countless and still-mounting thousands killed by handguns." Since we have never met or spoken, he must be relying on his stereotype of NRA (National Rifle Association) members for this description of me.

He finds it strange to have the word "intellectual" used in reference to the NRA or its members. So much for an enlightened opponent. Since he directed the remark at me, I would like it noted that while I am a member of the NRA, I am also a member of Mensa and The Thousand. Mensa requires an IQ higher than 98 percent of the population on any of the generally recognized IQ tests, while The Thousand requires an IQ higher than 99.9 percent (documentation provided to the editor). I submit, therefore, that it is possible to have substantial intellectual capacity and to be a member of the NRA, and to be concerned about civil rights for everyone, all at the same time. Actually, I even enjoy classical music and the ballet. Mr. Wright should also understand that I do not represent the NRA — the NRA represents me.

Mr. Wright's college taught him "Before you argue, define your terms." Mine taught me "Before you argue, get the facts." Contrary to Mr. Wright's incredible assertion, handguns are not the leading killer of humans. Homicides and accidents by firearms (of all types) accounted for less than one percent of all deaths in 1987. Heart disease is number one at 36 percent (763,820 in 1987), followed by cancer, strokes, accidents of all types, pulmonary diseases, diseases of the arteries, diabetes, etc.

What are the facts? In 1987, the National Center for Health Statistics reported 2,127,000 deaths. Of these 1,649 (eight-hundredths of one percent) were due to firearms accidents. Each one is a family tragedy caused by carelessness, but these are not the "thousands" Mr. Wright imagines. This is also the category that could be reduced by the NRA safety classes that Mr. Wright ridicules. Should we not care about these deaths, Mr. Wright?

Incidentally, again contrary to Mr. Wright's claims, the NRA is not on record as defending the AK47 as a hunting firearm. It is defending the AK47 as a sporting firearm because it uses standard semi-automatic weapon technology that has been used in sporting guns for nearly a century. Mr. Wright should also know that the NRA strongly advocates and supports heavy and mandatory prison terms for those who are convicted of the use of firearms in the commission of a crime.

There were 20,580 homicides and legal interventions reported in 1987, of which approximately 2,700 were the killing of criminals by police (600) and private citizens (2,100) while the criminal was in the act of committing a crime. About 59 percent of all deaths in this category were the result of firearms (all types), or about 12,200 (four-tenths of one percent). Deducting the proportionate legal interventions leaves about 10,500 unjustifiable firearms homicides. This is also a tragedy, but one caused by criminals. The question is what can we do to reduce this illegal deaths number? Since there are about 200 million privately owned firearms in the USA, these deaths cannot simply be attributed to the existence of firearms. There were 45,901 reported deaths due to vehicles that year, but no one is seriously advocating the banning of cars and trucks.

Perhaps the problem to be addressed is crime control. I restate the Purdy case. Five different arrests on eight felony charges. Each time he was allowed to plea bargain the felonies down to misdemeanors and was able to buy his infamous AK47 legally because he had no felony convictions. The liberal solution to this travesty is not to crack down on the criminal justice system (criminals must be protected from the consequences of the actions society forced them to commit?), but to crack down on law-abiding gun owners.

I'm sure that Mr. Wright and I can agree that we both have the right to be safe on the streets and in our homes. That our safety should not depend on our physical size and strength. That females, the weak, the frail, the disabled, the elderly etc., should not walk in fear of that segment of society that would prey on them, and us, if given the chance. Where we disagree, is in the means to protect themselves. Yet, he offers no alternative but accuses me of having no concern for them. Until Mr. Wright's Utopia can be demonstrated to have arrived, I, for one, will rely on my right to protect myself and my loved ones with all the legal means at my disposal.

Admire him as I do, I am thankful that St. Thomas Aquinas had nothing to do with the writing of our Constitution, since it does not provide for "the greatest good for the greatest number" quoted by Mr. Wright. It recognizes the same rights for all, even the least of us, whether it benefits the greatest number or not. Further, it expressly prevents the greatest number (the majority) from running roughshod over the rights depended on by the few (the minority). Under St. Thomas' "greatest good for the greatest number" philosophy, however, we need to consider the 10,000 unfortunate and illegal deaths against studies by the U.S. Department of Justice, which indicate that upwards of 650,000 felonies are averted each year by armed citizens; that frequently the mere display of a firearm is sufficient to avert the crime.

In Mr. Wright's "description" of me, he has decided that I am in favor of abortion. I have no public position on that issue and only raised it to try to demonstrate to him how "rights" not specified in the Constitution can be created or denied by the courts (or the majority), when even constitutionally specified rights are under attack. In his further efforts to discredit me, Mr. Wright uses my examples of lost rights, constitutionally and judicially, as evidence of my ignoring the obligations associated with these rights. You do not have to use drugs to resent having to take a drug test to get a job. You do not have to drink to resent being stopped at a checkpoint to establish that you are not drunk. You just have to recognize that an individual right is being subordinated to a "public need."

If you care to respond, Mr. Wright, I would appreciate it if you would please produce some verifiable facts to support your obviously sincerely and intensely felt opinions. Passion is no substitute for facts and logic. Your letters are long on the former and devoid on the latter.

Youngsters exhibit art

Grosse Pointe residents Carrie Sutton, Cynda D'Hondt and Erin Patrick are among 120 young potential Norman Rockwells who tumble out of bed on Saturday mornings to attend art classes at Wayne State University.

Their art is on display in the Saturday Art School exhibition, which opened Saturday, Nov. 17, and continues through Nov. 30 in the WSU Community Arts Gallery.

The students in grades three to 12 are from areas as close as Detroit and as far as Belleville and Port Huron and from most of the suburbs in between.

Students engage in an intensive study of drawing and painting every Saturday morning for 10 weeks, completing a total of 15 hours of lecture and studio time. The teachers operate in teams and the student to teacher ratio is low, usually six to one, assuring a high level of individual help. The exhibition and reception in November close the program.

The program is also known as the Art Teaching Laboratory, Art 211, to the teachers, who are undergraduate and post degree students in Art Educations studying for certification as art teachers. Their teaching presentations are videotaped for later analysis of effective teaching methods.

The program is sponsored by the WSU College of Education and is offered every fall semester. The student fee is $20. For information, call the department of art education at 577-4930.

An opening reception for the exhibition is scheduled for 1 p.m., Sunday, Nov. 18. The gallery is open 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and is located on Cass and Kirby. For information, call the gallery at 577-2400.

People who take advantage

My initial reaction was rage, pure and simple. How dare this lunatic on the other end of the telephone insert herself into a family's most private day of mourning? And then, the investigative part of me took over and I became more and more curious about the motives that drove her to carry on as she did. None of it made any sense.

My friend had just had a memorial service for her mother. Family and friends had gathered back at the house for refreshments and hugs when the telephone rang. I overheard her daughter saying she didn't understand and then observed her totally stunned expression as she handed the receiver to me.

A woman on the other end of the line was ranting and raving that she had attended the service and there were no programs or mention of coming back to the house. I suggested that she was WAY out of line and she hung up. At this point my blood was approaching a full boil, so angry was I that this idiot had upset a dear young woman, who was already suffering enough.

A group of us tried to determine the identity of the caller by perusing the registration book provided by the funeral home for visitors. No clues were apparent and we decided it was best to drop the matter and not tell the rest of the family. Why upset anyone else?

The following day the woman called again and repeated her litany about the "cheapness" of the family etc., etc. When informed of the most recent call, memory clicked in and I was reminded of a similar incident at the funeral of another friend. In that case, just before the service was to begin, two women slipped through the side door of the church and sat down in the front pew with the grieving widow and her children.

Each member of the family assumed that these were friends of one of them and it would have been awkward at best to question them at the time. The women followed the family back to the home and circled the buffet several times, filling and refilling their plates. When the crowd thinned, the women were gone and our friends shared a laugh that perhaps Dad had a few friends he hadn't mentioned to the family.

To satisfy my own curiosity about these incidents, I made some phone calls to several local funeral homes inquiring about how often, if ever, they had heard of similar intrusions. For the most part, those with whom I spoke said that these kinds of things were extremely rare. One funeral director said yes, it does happen and the best defense is to realize that these people have a morbid curiosity and the problem is theirs, not the family's. Still, it is sad that some are victimized by this sick harassment.

While the above may appear to be fairly harmless, I think we would be wise to have an awareness that these types of people do exist and perhaps we can be prepared for them, if our paths should cross. Unfortunately, there are those who are fascinated by death and others who make the rounds of funeral homes and attend funerals in hopes of having a free meal. If questioned, they can always say they knew the deceased at work. It was especially unfortunate in this case that the daily paper listed the deceased's address in the newspaper, inadvertently making things easier for the intruders.

In my opinion, it is harmful and incredibly insensitive. The granddaughter was visibly upset and had a right to be. We should be permitted to mourn in private without strangers trespassing on our hearts and minds when we are most vulnerable.

The moral? I don't think there is one. Just be aware that there are kooks out there and always will be, but it is easier to react or not react if we know the possibilities.

Photographer creates innovative Pointe calendar

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Park's Rosh Sillars is betting residents are ready to look at their city in a new way.

That's why he has created a 1991 calendar unlike any around.

"The design and concept is Paul Vigeant's," Sillars said. "The photos are all mine."

Vigeant, a design teacher at the Center for Creative Studies created the unique 9-inch high kiosk design for the new calendar years ago and markets several items under the kiosk line. This is Sillars' first project with Vigeant.

The two met in a class at CCS where Sillars is a sophomore.

"He liked some of the photography work I've done and we decided to go together on a project," Sillars said.

Several photographs of Grosse Pointe landmarks are interspersed with the months of the year. All the photographs are in black and white.

"I wanted to do it in black and white because I enjoy working with it," he said. "But in most of the photographs I took of the traditional landmarks, I did it with a twist, maybe from a different angle or a detail of a larger building. I think people get tired of seeing these things in the same pictures all the time, that's why I looked for the uncommon view."

"Some of them are straight-on views because they've been tested and proved to be the best angle."

He says this project is a test of the market, and because he and Vigeant worked so well together, they have plans for other similar projects.

Sillars is the owner and operator of Sillars Photography, Inc., a firm specializing in public relations. As a hobby he enjoys architectural photography. He previously owned R.C. Photographic Services with Christopher Lopez. A 1987 Grosse Pointe South graduate, Sillars spent two years at Macomb Community College before he went on to CCS.

"I learned photography from one of the best, Jack Summers," Sillars said of his photography teacher at South. "He really knows his craft."

The calendar is out this week and is available at the Camera Center on Kercheval in the Village. It retails for $19.95. It should be available at other stores in the area soon.

Those interested in purchasing a calendar or creating a similar item for their business may write Sillars at P.O. Box 36223, Grosse Pointe, Mich. 48236.

This 1991 desk calendar featuring Grosse Pointe scenes is available locally for $19.95.

Birch trees and morning mist is a good example of the impact derived from a strong black and white photograph which Nagler made near Negaunee in Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

Why I shoot in black and white

A frequently asked question at a photography exhibit I just completed was why I photograph in black and white.

I believe the answer is noteworthy and deserving of space in my photography column.

What black and white lacks in color, it gains in dramatic impact. Color, of course, is beautiful and appeals to our senses. It has a ring of familiarity and makes us feel at home in our world. People are comfortable with color photographs because they reflect what is seen and encountered in our daily lives.

While the intensity and variety of color can complicate the appearance of a scene, black and white has a graphic simplicity. It has an ability to convey mood, form and pattern in tones of light and dark that color just can't do.

Black and white is a step removed from the real world. With color eliminated you can more easily concentrate on the other ingredients that comprise a photograph.

Black and white photographs present a greater challenge to the photographer than color. More controls and image manipulation are available to the black and white worker, both in the field and in the darkroom, giving him greater creative freedom. You might say that color will take care of itself while you have to take care of black and white.

Most serious photographers prefer working in black and white because they feel they can best express themselves in this form. And a perceptive viewer can better get the photographer's message through the subtleties found in a good black and white print. One's imagination is more stimulated by black and white photography analogous to digesting a good book rather than seeing the movie.

Photography

By Monte Nagler

These are some of the reasons that I photograph primarily in black and white.

Light, a vital element in any photograph, can have a profound effect on a black and white photograph. Black and white pictures have a quality that is more interpretive and less rooted in the real world.

Park man's pharmacy licenses revoked for shortages, filling false prescriptions

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

The licenses of a Grosse Pointe Park pharmacist who owns a Detroit drugstore have been revoked for controlled substance shortages and for filling prescriptions from dead and non-existent doctors.

Albert M. Demchak pleaded no contest Sept. 17 to an administrative complaint by the Michigan Board of Pharmacy that alleged he failed to keep complete records of prescription drug transactions and that he filled false prescriptions.

As well as having his licenses suspended, he was fined $40,000, which he must pay before he can reapply for his licenses.

According to the Board of Pharmacy's complaint, the drugs involved include schedule 3 controlled substances such as Tylenol No. 4, Plegine, Fiorinal, Fastin, Empirin No. 4 and their generic equivalents, and Soma, a prescription drug that is mixed on the street with codeine.

An audit of Demchak's records at his Lexington Pharmacy on Second Avenue from May 1, 1989, to March 14, 1990, revealed that there was a shortage of 17,515 units of Tylenol No. 4 and 593 units of Plegine.

Furthermore, of the 39,645 units of Tylenol No. 4 sold, 25,675 were dispensed by accepting invalid prescriptions, according to the complaint.

The complaint charges that Demchak should have known the prescriptions were bogus because:

- Two of the prescribers (doctors) were deceased.
- One prescriber's license was revoked.
- An incorrect address and phone number were listed for one prescriber.
- Prescriptions showed three different addresses for the same prescriber.
- Prescriptions listed three different Drug Enforcement Administration numbers.

- Incorrect DEA numbers were used.

- Prescriptions were made out to male patients by a gynecologist.

- Prescriptions were photocopied on different kinds and sizes of paper.

The doctors whose names were listed on the false prescriptions denied writing the prescriptions.

In one case, 651 prescriptions filled at Lexington Pharmacy were from one doctor during a 14-month period. The doctor denied issuing any of the prescriptions.

In another example, a gynecologist was listed as the source of 1,151 prescriptions, all of which were false and many of which were for male patients.

The investigation began with an anonymous phone call to the Department of Licensing and Regulation, Health Investigation Division.

A couple days a week she works as volunteer coordinator — an unpaid position — for the Tribute Fund, a segment of United Community Service which is the largest recipient of funds from the United Way.

"The Tribute Fund works for the people who fall through the cracks," she said. "We don't work with the clients, only with the social workers who work with the clients."

The fund pays for things like medicine or a month's rent while social workers try to get the client into the public assistance system.

"We're only open two days a week for five hours a day, but if we could afford it, we could stay open all the time, but there just isn't money," she said.

She also works with Services for Older Citizens, and this week she assumes the presidency for the second time in her 12 years on the board.

The group provides aid to seniors who may be incapacitated, or need help with their taxes or small home repairs. It also provides intergenerational programming with the school district and with the help of trained students provides a caregiver relief program for those taking care of an elderly shut-in.

"That's a wonderful program," she said. "People in that situation need to get out and be by themselves for a while."

But it's a program that costs money because the students are paid and that is one of the problems she will face as president of SOC this year.

"There's no support group for SOC that likes to go out and throw parties to raise money for the group," she said. "We won't receive any more state funding so we will have to raise funds somehow."

One of the ways of raising funds is a calendar put out in conjunction with the school system. Called "Why I Like Older People," the calendar is made up of the contest winners among students who wrote and drew pictures of why they like older people. The calendar is available at various locations in Grosse Pointe for $4.50.

Garden Club, another of her great loves.

As a trained parliamentarian she is often called into groups to troubleshoot and reorganize them. It's a frustrating hobby, but it's an interesting one.

"I love being on the board of organizations because then I get the full perspective of an organization and why it is like it is," she said. "I like being in on the decisions."

But a decision she never had to make was one of the most important of her life. Six years ago, while she was unconscious, doctors decided she needed an emergency quadruple bypass.

"I woke up and it was done," she said, laughing. "I didn't know anything about it."

True to form, she didn't spend much time lying around recuperating.

"I stayed at my daughter's house for a few days and I was getting so much TLC I couldn't stand it, I had to do something," she said.

So she moved back home. She had asked the doctor what she should do and he told her to stay on her feet.

"So I dusted a lot," she said.

Never one to sit still, one month after she was released from the hospital she drove downtown and chaired a group meeting.

"My daughter still doesn't know that," Self said. "She probably wouldn't be very happy with me."

She laughed again at that story.

"I can't afford to be dead serious," she said. "It's not worth it."

Her four children and eight grandchildren keep her happy, smiling and young, she said.

Add one more course to your Thanksgiving feast — exercise

Thanksgiving is a very special holiday. After the summer picnics and barbecues, it is pleasant to go indoors with those you love and share the warmth and coziness of being together around a festive table.

And festive it is with the family's best china, crystal and silver laid out on a snowy white linen tablecloth. No paper products for this day. No informal dishes. Elegant party fare is the order of the day beginning with the royal turkey bird all crackling brown, sending up delicious smells of savory dressing and work-of-art salads and sumptuous desserts. Digestions are taxed and diets forgotten. But never mind. Enjoy! Tomorrow is another day, but with its coming, the guilt feelings begin. Bathroom scales are approached furtively. Defense mechanisms begin to work.

There are leftovers. You can't just throw them out. Freeze them? No. The texture and taste are just not the same. Besides, who wants to starve for one day of indiscretion? Who wants to spoil the memory of a beautiful day by paying for it with a stringent diet?

Take heart. And speaking of heart, there's something that will not only help alleviate the results of the sumptuous dinner, but will also shore up that vital organ.

It is exercise. Not just hit or miss but an exercise program designed for older citizens to increase their stamina. It has several benefits. Besides adding to one's well-being, it increases the efficiency of the heart and lungs, increases muscular strength and endurance, and improves balance, flexibility, coordination and agility.

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

Even if keeping fit has been sacrificed to other demands of life, it's possible to start at some level of performance and work yourself up. The exertion will pay off with a lively way of life. The way to keep lively is to be lively. The way to stay active is to move.

Energy begets energy and the only way to develop the capacity to expend more energy is to be increasingly active. Just as you need sufficient financial reserves, you also need a bankroll of physical resources.

Most medical authorities support the belief that exercise helps a person look, feel and work better. Proper exercise can improve posture by increasing supporting muscles, and there is no more tell-tale sign of aging than stooped shoulders.

It is generally accepted that physically active individuals suffer less from heart attacks, but did you also know that an active person who experiences a coronary will probably have a less severe form and will be more apt to survive the experience?

The greatest benefit that comes from maintaining physical fitness is the independence it affords. How much better it is to do and plan things without depending on relatives or friends. This sort of freedom is worth working for.

Good working heart, lungs and blood vessels are important aspects of seniors' fitness. Activities involving leg muscles help maintain good circulation. Walking, alternate walking-jogging and touching the toes are some of the exercises that are beneficial.

Muscle strength decreases with advancing years, but the decline can be lessened by keeping the muscles toned through exercise. Strength and endurance can be promoted by increasing the number of times an exercise is repeated or by increasing the speed of movement. Arm circles, knee bends, and wing circles are good exercises to increase muscle strength.

Before undertaking any form of exercise, a doctor should be consulted. Once the go-ahead has been given, physical fitness can be improved by increasing the amount of exercise, but it should proceed in easy stages. A keep-fit program that is tackled too fast and too strenuously can result in discomfort.

Much of this information comes by way of a U.S. Department of Health and Welfare pamphlet, "The Fitness Challenge — In the Later Years." It is an excellent booklet that outlines a gradual fitness program complete with instructions and diagrams.

Downtown law firm opens Grosse Pointe office

By Pat Paholsky
Editor

Grosse Pointe residents LeRoy B. McNally and Alfred W. Wilke can tell you a thing or two about the law: Between them, they have accumulated 104 years of experience.

It is fitting, therefore, that they have become associated with the 123-year-old Detroit law firm of Butzel Long Gust Klein & Van Zile, which will now occupy their office on the Hill.

It's the first time a major law firm has established an office in Grosse Pointe. The downtown Detroit-based firm also has an office in Birmingham.

William Saxton, chairman and chief executive officer and also a Grosse Pointe resident, said that bringing the firm's services to Grosse Pointe will make it more convenient for clients in the area.

As a full-service law firm, Butzel Long has 125 lawyers performing a multitude of legal services.

"Our main areas are litigation, corporate taxation, estate planning, labor and employment law, real estate and environmental law," Saxton said, "but we do many other things."

Butzel Long, the seventh largest law firm in Michigan, also specializes in admiralty, business, banking, health care and immigration law.

"One of the outstanding things about our firm is we are the only law firm in Michigan to be part of Lex Mundi, an international network of approximately 180 law firms in probably 75 to 80 countries," Saxton said.

McNally, a Grosse Pointe City resident since 1957, is an expert in estate planning. He is a fellow of the American College of Trust and Estate Counsel, which consists of the top 1 percent of lawyers in that field.

Wilke, who has lived in the Farms for 35 years, deals mainly with corporate law and labor negotiations.

With the new Butzel Long affiliation, Saxton said, "The one thing it'll do is if we have clients in Grosse Pointe who have an environmental problem, we can come out here for convenience."

The office at 73 Kercheval, has extra space so that lawyers based in Detroit can meet clients close to home.

"All the clients of the firm can be serviced through this office," Wilke said. "We've had a number of Birmingham attorneys serving clients here."

• George R. Mikhail, M.D., of Grosse Pointe Farms, is recognized as an early leader in the practice of Mohs micrographic surgery. The surgery involves removal of skin tumors in areas where tissue sparing is crucial, such as near the eyes, as well as for tumors with a high rate of recurrence. He served as president of the American College of Mohs Micrographic Surgery and Cutaneous Oncology from 1977-1979. A past president of the Michigan Dermatological Association, he is completing a medical textbook on the Mohs technique.

• Walter A. Payne, Jr., M.D., of Grosse Pointe Farms, is a highly regarded physician who joined Henry Ford Hospital in 1952 and served most of his career in Internal Medicine, where he continues to see patients. He is a clinical instructor in medicine at the University of Michigan Medical School, a position he has held since 1975. Dr. Payne belongs to many professional groups including the American Board of Internal Medicine, the Wayne County Medical Society and the American Medical Association.

• Robert Priest, M.D., of Grosse Pointe Park, is a well known gastroenterologist who headed the division of gastroenterology at Henry Ford Hospital from 1960-76. From 1976 until his retirement last spring, Dr. Priest had served as a consultant at the hospital. He served for 30 years on the editorial board of

The Journal of the American Geriatric Society. He is a past president of several organizations, including the Bockus International Society of Gastroenterology and the Detroit Gastroenterological Society. He has received several awards, including the Vincent Lyon Research Award of the American Gastroenterological Association, in 1959.

Hillis Williams makes people feel like the Old Place is 'their place'

By Dan Jarvis
Staff Writer

"A new friend is like new wine; when it has aged, you will drink it with pleasure." (Ecclesiasticus 9:10).

Restaurant-goers in the area who've been to the Old Place over the last quarter century or Little Harry's over the past half century have most likely been greeted by maitre d' Hillis Williams.

Last week when Williams celebrated his 80th birthday at the Old Place, the restaurant was packed with old friends Williams has made through the years.

"It was a wonderful party," Williams said of the standing-room-only bash. "It's nice to know that so many wonderful people like you, remember you and appreciate you after so long."

Williams joined the Old Place staff in the mid-1960s after working at Little Harry's off and on since 1936.

In 1955, when the owner of both restaurants (and many more), Diamond Phillips, bought Little Harry's, many of the patrons told Phillips the restaurant just wouldn't be the same without Hillis Williams, who at the time was working in a downtown restaurant.

"I didn't know Hillis but I went to find him," Phillips said. The search led Phillips to Frame's on Liberty Street where he introduced himself to Williams.

"I asked him if he would like to return to Little Harry's as the manager and even before the words were out of my mouth, he said 'yes' and that was the start of a very productive relationship for both Hillis and myself," Phillips said.

Since then, Williams has been back and forth at both the popular restaurants, troubleshooting and improving both.

"He doesn't skip a beat," Phillips said. "He's here every day, heart and soul."

Of his long career in the restaurant business, Williams remembers the interurban street cars going from Detroit to Mount Clemens. He also remembers when restaurants sold much more liquor than they do today.

"There have been a lot of changes in drinking and eating habits and the general attitudes of people," Williams said. "Now we're selling more non-alcoholic drinks and there is less trouble with drunk driving. People now are much more aware of those things."

Phillips said one of the best things about Williams is his keen awareness of possible trouble and knack for avoiding it.

"He is so aware of potential problems. He can make a decision in two or three seconds and handle things beautifully and with a lot of class," Phillips said.

Customers who frequent the Old Place until the wee hours can tell stories of how Williams clears out customers by ringing bells or blowing whistles.

"Sometimes they don't want to leave at the end of the night," Williams said. "You see, they know when they come they will be taken care of. Many people feel very much at home and we watch out for them by making sure they get home safely."

Because Williams himself does not drink, he often cares for those who do, Phillips said.

Sometimes Hillis gets cared for in return.

"One night while working at Little Harry's, I felt ill and Mr. Phillips rushed me to Bon Secours," Williams said. "The sisters were a little slow in getting there to look at me so Mr. Phillips went out and found a nurse and brought her to the hospital to look after me."

"Because of these kinds of things, I don't feel I'm a friend of his family, I feel I'm part of the family. Working at the Old Place is not a job. I'm just happy to be dealing with the public. At my age, I'm happy to know I'm still wanted."

There's probably only one little-known fact left about the first Thanksgiving.

After all, doesn't every school child learn about the Pilgrims' party — and their Indian guests — and the menu — over and over — year after year, beginning in kindergarten.

Kids draw pictures of Pilgrims and Indians. They dress up in Pilgrim clothes. They study Indians. They act in Thanksgiving plays. They fix and eat Thanksgiving food. They write about the occasion. Year after year. At a museum.

In fact, the actual celebration, which took place in 1621, was a three-day bash on Dec. 13, 14 and 15. It expanded into a harvest festival with lots of food and a few games for a cast of hundreds.

Less than a year after the Pilgrims arrived in the New World, Governor William Bradford proclaimed the harvest feast as a celebration of thanksgiving for the survivors.

The first year had been full of hunger, sickness, fear, disappointment and death. Nearly four dozen Pilgrims died.

The 50 survivors had planted 20 acres of corn, barley and peas in the spring and had built seven houses and four community buildings. Their first harvest was plentiful. The new settlers were friendly with the local Indians.

Bradford invited Chief Massasoit to the thanksgiving feast. He told Massasoit to bring some braves.

Massasoit showed up with 90 hungry friends.

The women of the colony scrambled to prepare enough food for the group. The menu probably included roast wild turkey, partridge, wood pigeon, fish and deer. Turkeys were probably prepared with beechnut stuffing and the rest of the meal probably included barley bread, cornbread, clam chowder and biscuits.

A festive atmosphere prevailed, and the children played games. The Pilgrim men and the Indians held impromptu contests with bow and arrows.

The women not only prepared the meal, but probably did the dishes as well.

The first Thanksgiving, by all accounts, was remembered as a great party. It didn't become an annual affair, however. Instead, the thanksgiving idea was incorporated into a mishmash of different celebrations for the next 168 years.

The Continental Congress proclaimed Nov. 26, 1789 as an official Thanksgiving Day. President George Washington approved.

The holiday continued until 1795.

In 1862, President Abraham Lincoln proclaimed a national Thanksgiving Day to give thanks for the Union's Civil War battle victories.

It was Sarah Hale, editor of Godey's Lady's Book, however, who usually gets the credit for making Thanksgiving Day a national holiday.

Hale wrote letters to the governors of all the states and to the president. She reminded Lincoln of Washington's 1789 proclamation.

In 1864, she convinced Lincoln to make the last Thursday in November an annual national holiday dedicated to thanksgiving.

In 1939, President Franklin D. Roosevelt moved the holiday back to the third Thursday in November. The reason: a longer shopping period between Thanksgiving and Christmas would benefit merchants and shoppers.

In 1941, Congress moved Thanksgiving back to the fourth Thursday in November.

The bride's gown was made of heirloom satin, fashioned with a beaded Alencon lace bodice decorated with pearl clusters and sequins, an off-the-shoulder neckline, long lace sleeves and a French tulle skirt studded with sequins and seed pearls. Her chapel-length train was scattered with seed pearls and held in place by a silk-flowered headpiece. She carried a cascade of white Casablanca lilies, orchids, white roses and pearls.

Bridge

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION
BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD

The extremely successful fictionist Elmore "Dutch" Leonard has created some of the best adventure legends of our time. His current work, "Get Shorty," recently completed and high on the New York Times top ten may be his best, who done it to whom, to date. Certainly his reader approval quotient continues to cant up dramatically. Such an astonishing imagination as he must have stirs my thirst to determine why he never developed a bridge acquisitiveness. I don't want to conclude that I am one of those tediously classed people who believes that only those who play bridge or polo make the world go round, but a man of such fertile inventiveness certainly qualifies for a high place in our card playing society. Conceivably he has a playing interest, but it has been masked by his aptitude and chosen style of life.

To get a better fix on this man who fascinates my inquisitiveness considerably I turned to one of my snoopers loose to determine his diversion when his quick wit wasn't creating with the help of his quill. Unfortunately his answering service is only programmed to promote his manuscripts so I have nothing to apprise you of in my sleuth's pursuit. Firm in my determination I personally tried the back door approach in the guise of the gas company's friendly meter man. This got the novelist by surprise and I want you to know that Mr. Leonard has a keen bridge interest. Didn't his pen give us that best seller, "Fifty-Two Pick Up"? He was pleasingly agreeable to be associated with today's vagary if three conditions were carefully pursued. 1; Today's hand had to have been played by one of the greats. 2; It had to keep the reader in suspense till nearly the end. 3; Never darken his door, front or back, again. Tall order, but I began to tackle this challenge three moons back. Finally I found in the ancient archives of the A.C.B.L. the perfect hand as recounted by Charlie Goren.

Sidney Lenz was a sparkling raconteur, a high ranking amateur table tennis player and a bewildering parlor magician. The magic he produced on today's hand had nothing to do with his powers as a prestidigitator even though it may seem so. The auction might suggest that clairvoyance was one of his talents bidding the grand slam without an ace, but his partner had clearly revealed the controls he needed.

When the most formidable bridge master of his time first saw the dummy he could count five spades, six clubs and one diamond winner. Where was the illusive thirteenth trick? How could he dispose of that second little diamond in his hand? He certainly couldn't make it disappear illegitimately or his integrity would be questioned. Nevertheless he did so, can you?...

After ruffing the opening heart lead he played a diamond to the ace to trump a second heart. Next he cashed the spade king and a spade to dummies queen. A third heart was now ruffed with his last spade. Dummy was entered with the club ace. On dummy's spade ace he pitched his other low diamond and ran clubs winning thirteen tricks.

Brunch for Barat will benefit neglected, abused children

The Friends of Barat Human Services will again hold its "Brunch for Barat" to raise funds for the agency's residential and outreach programs for neglected and abused children and their families.

The fundraiser will be on Sunday, Dec. 2, at the Grosse Pointe Academy, and will feature WXYZ-TV's Bill Bonds as master of ceremonies.

Honored guest for the festive occasion will be Lawrence VanTil of Grosse Pointe, immediate past chairman of Barat Human Services, and a long-time advocate on behalf of children and troubled families caught in the generation-to-generation cycle of abuse and neglect.

Brunch for Barat will feature a boutique full of Christmas decorations and decorated trees, choral and instrumental music and an elegant buffet brunch.

Tickets are $60 a person, with sponsorships available to individuals and organizations at $2,000 a table. All proceeds will go to Barat Human Services.

Joan DeWitt McKean, Dottie Westfall and Melodie Scherer, all of Grosse Pointe, are co-chairmen of the event.

"Our Christmas centerpieces and other decorations have always been a great drawing card because they provide a wonderful way for our brunch guests to begin their holiday decorating," said McKean. "Best of all, they can browse and buy while enjoying a delicious gourmet meal."

Barat Human Services is a private, non-profit organization, founded in 1925 when Barat House was established to provide residential care and counseling for abused, neglected and delinquent adolescent girls. The Family Center, which offers outreach programs to parents and children, joined the agency in 1977. Today, families throughout Wayne County can get help through Barat's many treatment and prevention programs.

For more information about the brunch, contact Karl Bates, 882-3760, or Ann Lesesne, 886-2848. For tickets, or to sponsor a table, call McKean, 886-7886.

Benefit auction: Family Service of Detroit and Wayne County will hold its annual benefit on Wednesday, Nov. 28, from 6 to 10 p.m. at Roma's of Livonia.

The evening will include a live auction, buffet dinner and a chance to raise some funds for a non-profit agency that provides counseling for individuals and families in metropolitan Detroit. Grosse Pointer David Benfer is chairman of the board of directors.

Three co-chairmen of Brunch for Barat, an annual fundraiser for Barat Human Services, show off one of the Christmas centerpieces which will be available at the benefit. From left, are Joan McKean, Dottie Westfall and Melodie Scherer.

Michigan Opera Theatre celebrated its 20th anniversary on Nov. 2 with a champagne reception and a dinner (a la Giuseppe Verdi) before the first performance of the season-opener "Rigoletto."

Grosse Pointer Stephanie Germack is president of the foundation.

Patron tickets are $150 a person; benefactor tickets are $250 a person. Reservations for the event may be made by writing Mrs. John Bielawski, 5829 Golfview Drive, Dearborn Heights, 48127.

They'll also get to shop for holiday gifts in the museum's Old Detroit Shop.

Wrigley Hall, the Detroit Antique Toy Museum gallery, will house exhibitions selected from more than 10,000 toys in the combined holdings of the Lawrence Scripps Wilkinson collection (he's a Grosse Pointer) and the Historical Department's own collection, which includes the Glancy trains. ## Thanksgiving

By Rev. Walter A. Schmidt
First English Lutheran Church

It's that time of year again. Thanksgiving Day seems to officially usher in the holiday season.

We all know retailers would like us to think about the holidays much earlier and start our Christmas shopping much earlier. While most of us complain about Christmas decorations being up at Halloween time, retailers are dependent upon a good selling season. We should not be too harsh with them. After all, they're only doing their jobs.

Let's not rush to Christmas, however. Let's savor Thanksgiving.

While Thanksgiving is not a religious holiday per se, those who come from a religious tradition know that all of our gifts and blessings come from the hand of God.

It's easy to take our blessings for granted, isn't it? Most of us work hard for our daily bread plus the other necessities of life. However, we shouldn't forget that not only has God given to us the natural resources to work with — but minds to think, hands to work, hearts to feel, energy to put forth. This year as we sit down to that Thanksgiving meal with family and friends — or even if we are eating by ourselves — it's good to pause and reflect upon all of our blessings.

In addition to saying thanks for past blessings, it would be a good idea to take an inventory of what ongoing gifts and talents we possess and think of ways to use those gifts to assist others.

I know of no better way to celebrate the gifts and talents we possess — no better way of saying thank you for those gifts and talents — than to use them.

How can we use the many blessings that God has given to us? If we open our eyes we will see many people, many charitable organizations, many opportunities.

How about a visit to a neighbor who is confined to home or nursing facility? How about volunteering at church, or school, or social agency, or any other worthwhile organization?

Didn't God create us in his image and endow us with gifts and abilities so that we could share those gifts with others? Gifts are not to be accumulated or admired. They're given to be shared and used. Gifts that are hidden and buried are like master paintings that are hung in closets. Gifts are for giving.

Finally, we hope our motivation is not just to feel good. We receive a great sense of purpose and well-being when we help one another. It is truly more blessed to give than to receive. Isn't it great to be able to do something which not only assists others, but makes us feel good in the process?

This year, as we gather around the Thanksgiving table, in addition to recalling the blessings of the past year, let's think about what we can do to share our blessings in the year ahead.

Rev. Thomas E. Trimmer

Guest preacher
at Christ Church

The Rev. Thomas E. Trimmer, an Episcopal deacon and a member of the Ottawa tribe, will be the guest preacher at Christ Episcopal Church at the 9:15 a.m. and 11:15 a.m. services on Sunday, Nov. 25.

Trimmer is among three clergymen who have been named by the Diocese of Michigan to launch the Decade of Evangelism with special services and sermons throughout the area during the week of Nov. 25 through Dec. 1.

The Episcopal Church has proclaimed the 1990s as the "Decade of Evangelism," a time for sharing the Church's faith and life.

Trimmer has dedicated his ministry to peace and justice issues at home and abroad. He traveled to Nicaragua as a member of the first all-Episcopal Witness for Peace delegation. He has traveled repeatedly to Central America, sharing the Gospel and establishing ties with native Indians. His message holds together a deep concern for evangelism and social justice which are at the heart of the Gospel message.

The public is welcome to attend either service at Christ Church, 61 Grosse Pointe Blvd.

Thanksgiving service at First Church of Christ, Scientist

A special Thanksgiving church service will be a time for Christian Scientists to share with friends and neighbors what they feel their study of Scripture and prayer to God has brought them, their families and the community.

This sharing comes in a testimony period in which Christian Scientists tell of present-day spiritual healing in their daily lives. Christian Scientists believe that prayer based on an understanding of God can bring healing to physical and emotional ills as well as to life's difficulties.

The testimony period is a large part of the Thanksgiving service held each year at First Church of Christ, Scientist, 282 Chalfonte, in Grosse Pointe Farms. It will begin at 10:30 a.m. on Thanksgiving morning and the public is invited. The service lasts one hour. No collection is taken and child care will be available.

Another main feature of the service is a lesson-sermon which includes passages from The Bible, and the denominational textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by the church's founder, Mary Baker Eddy. These books are considered the church's pastor. They are read at this service and at regular Sunday morning and Wednesday evening services by members elected from the congregation. The current readers at the Grosse Pointe Farms church are Adrian DeWindt of Grosse Pointe Park, First Reader, and Constance Corrigan of Grosse Pointe Woods, Second Reader.

The Golden Text of the Thanksgiving lesson-sermon is from Proverbs: "Honor the Lord with thy substance, and with the first fruits of thine increase..." The importance of showing gratitude through lifeworks is echoed in a passage from Eddy's textbook: "To keep the commandments of our Master and follow his example, is our proper debt to him and the only worthy evidence of our gratitude for all that he has done."

Older adult evening care is available

A Friend's House Adult Day Care Center is extending its services to provide older adult evening care at Lakeside Mall in Sterling Heights for family shopping trips during the holidays.

The program, co-sponsored by St. Joseph's Hospital Centers and Catholic Services of Macomb, will be available on Friday evenings at Healthier Image from 5 to 8 p.m., beginning Nov. 23, the day after Thanksgiving, and continuing until Dec. 21.

Staff from A Friend's House will provide supervised care for frail, older adults while care-giving families do their holiday shopping, have dinner or see a movie. Healthier Image is located across from Movies at Lakeside.

The cost is $6 an hour. Pre-registration is preferred but walk-ins are welcome. For more information, call A Friend's House at 751-6260 on Mondays, Wednesdays or Fridays.

Guest speaker at Assumption

The Michigan chapter of the National Association of Church Administration will present Gerald Kahler as guest luncheon speaker on Tuesday, Nov. 27 at Assumption Greek Orthodox Church, 21800 Marter Road. Kahler's topic will be, "The Hire and Termination Policies Required by Church Employers."

Kahler is director, salaried personnel administration, of the Truck and Bus Group, General Motors Corp. He serves as chairman of the Pastor-Parish Relations committee, Birmingham First Methodist Church.

Church administrators and board members in the metro area are invited. Call Joan DeRonne at 779-6111 for reservations.

Former pastor will preach at St. James

St. James Lutheran Church will welcome the Rev. George M. Schelter of Pilgrim Lutheran Church in Indianapolis to its pulpit on Sunday, Nov. 25, at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. worship services.

Schelter served as St. James' pastor from 1974 until 1987. The congregation of St. James is continuing its 50th anniversary celebration this year.

Holiday stress?

Stressless holidays anyone? The Rev. John Corrado, minister of the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church, will give the second of two talks on making the holidays the best they can be.

"Games Receivers and Givers — Play," will be discussed on Monday, Dec. 3, at 7:30 p.m. The talk is free and open to the public. The Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church is at 17150 Maumee, between Neff and St. Clair. For more information, call the church office, 881-0420.

gratitude service

The Sixth Church of Christ, Scientist, 14710 Kercheval, will hold its annual Thanksgiving Day gratitude service at 11 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 22. Kent A. Commer of Grosse Pointe Park and Susan P. Davis of Grosse Pointe Farms will conduct the service. They will read from the Bible and from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures." No collection will be taken and child care will be available.

Family Service celebrates Family Week

Family Service of Detroit and Wayne County will join Family Service America and its network of 290 family service agencies in North America in celebrating National Family Week, proclaimed by President Bush for Nov. 18-24.

The theme for the week, Families Matter, focuses attention on families and their importance to individuals and society.

Data compiled by FSA indicates that American families are becoming increasingly diverse. No one type of family is typical. The traditional nuclear family of a husband, wife and one or more children makes up only one in four U.S. households and is losing ground to childless couples, single-parent families, stepfamilies, unmarried couples and people living alone.

Family Service of Detroit and Wayne County will celebrate National Family Week at its benefit on Wednesday, Nov. 28, from 6-10 p.m. at Roma's of Livonia.

The benefit will feature a buffet dinner and auction. Proceeds will be used to meet client needs. Family Service is a non-profit agency providing affordable counseling services at offices in Detroit, Dearborn, Livonia and Trenton.

Auction items will include airfare for two to Montreal, Toronto and Chicago, an autographed Pistons basketball, dinner with Detroit Councilman and Mrs. Gil Hill, Tiger baseball bat and ball autographed by the team, shopping sprees at the Livonia Mall, and tickets to the Fox Theatre. Grosse Pointers who serve on the board of Family Service include David Benfer, Timothy Howlett and Jane Thomas.

Acting, teaching, directing: ULS's Bremer does it all

Review

How can a couple learn to care after the loving?

By Alex Suczek
Special Writer

"Frankie and Johnny in the Clair de Lune" is billed as an intimate love story by Terrence McNally. This hardly begins to describe the laugh-till-you-cry and gasp-at-the-truth experience of this play.

Actually, anyone can enjoy "Frankie and Johnny" as long as they're not a prude. It's tender. It's boisterous. It's hilariously funny. It's a probing exploration of the psyches of older, sadder and perhaps wiser lovers. It's even scatological if you want to see it that way.

But it is the feelings that are expressed and mirrored in the music that count. They should be familiar to all of us — especially those with lovers' scars. And the turnabout, where Frankie seems to accept love and Johnny reveals his weakness and misgivings, is a realistic and touchingly human twist.

With amazing disregard for the fact that they start out the show with nothing to wear but bedsheets, Mary Bremer and David Regal as Frankie and Johnny manage to make you feel you're a fly on the wall.

You watch in sympathy as she personifies the self-protective woman who has settled for a life-style she can control at the price of avoiding emotional involvement. Yet she shows a convincing element of abandon that makes her willingness to get into this situation, and eventually let her barriers down, fully believable.

There must be at least one or two moments in the play where every male in the audience can identify with Johnny's urgent, and sometimes misguided, efforts to woo, and where every female can identify with Frankie's mixed responses.

Bremer as Frankie deserves high marks for making the switches in mood from no to maybe to yes with high credibility. She makes it apparent that the stakes for emotional contact are much higher than for just a tumble in the hay.

Regal, likewise, is highly engaging in his wavering from determined, boyish, self-confident lover to disheartened and temporarily impotent swain as their discovery of each other goes on until sunrise. All of which gives rise to some of the funniest lines in the show — lines that only a man and a woman in intimate privacy would be moved to utter out loud.

It also prompts a special comment on the remarkable teamwork of this acting pair, long associated in professional theater but never before co-starred on stage. Together they provide a sensitive lesson in loving along with a really satisfying evening of theater.

Scenic designer Peter Beudert, who created Frankie's Hells Kitchen apartment, deserves credit for producing a thought-twister. It takes a particularly observant audience to notice that although Frankie repeatedly asks Johnny to leave, there is a closet and a bathroom, but no exit door in the otherwise excellent set.

"Frankie and Johnny" plays through Dec. 9 at the intimate Attic Theatre on Third Avenue, opposite the Fisher Building parking lot. For showtimes and ticket availability, call 875-8284.

Mary Bremer was sitting in her classroom at University Liggett School reading a review of "Frankie and Johnny in the Clair de Lune." The play — in which she stars along with David Regal — had opened the night before at the Attic Theatre.

Bremer seemed tired, as though she, like her character Frankie, had stayed up all night examining life, love and the meaning of it all.

"They liked it," she said almost as though she knew they would.

Bremer is very unlike Frankie. She's laid back while Frankie is uptight. She's a driven professional while Frankie is an over-the-hill waitress in a greasy spoon diner. But it's a part she's enjoying even though it's an exhausting emotional workout seven times a week between Wednesday and Sunday until Dec. 9.

That's in addition to the classes she teaches at ULS and the University of Detroit; directing "Speed the Plow" at Stage Right Productions in Windsor; serving as artistic director for the Dearborn Youth Theatre; and the work she does for the Chrysler UAW teaching inner-her acting classes of the 280 students in the upper school. Two years ago when Bremer joined the staff there were only four acting students. She also considers that a success.

"I teach quality," she said. "I try to teach them the right way to do things, and the most rewarding thing about teaching is watching the students improve."

Bremer is serious about introducing the art of theater to the next generation of theater-goers.

That's why she pulls students who aren't interested in theater into the school plays she directs. That's why she introduces inner city youth to acting and plays.

That's why she recently wrote

That's my mission and I think it's a lot of actors' missions. But they have to see good theater."

Aside from her mission, there is, above all, her acting.

"I don't know why I wanted to act," she said. "I know that it's something I always wanted to do. We didn't have a television set until I was 10, so I guess I was forced to be creative to entertain myself."

"I've had great success directing and I could do it all the time, but I love acting. I need to act."

That's why she hasn't tried New York or Los Angeles. She likes being busy. She needs to

Frankie and Mary

"I'm not a classical actress, I consider myself a contemporary actress," Mary Bremer said. "I love the shows which depict contemporary people in contemporary situations that most people can relate to."

That's why she considers her role in "Frankie and Johnny in the Clair de Lune" a great vehicle.

"I saw it in New York with Carol Kane and I really liked it," she said. "But I just couldn't do it like her with that tiny little voice. I felt I had to do it like I am."

She does it just like she is and she does it well. (See review.)

There are a lot of little themes in the play that Bremer and co-star David Regal searched for, and found.

"We really dug for the subtext," she said. "There's lights and darknesses and there's sad notes about people not connecting and then connecting. It's a beautiful story."

Her friendship with Regal and director Lavinia Moyer made the rehearsals easier. The show — an intimate yet bawdy story about the aftermath of a one-night stand — is done mostly in robes and sheets.

"There's a great trust between the three of us that makes the show more real," she said. "I think it shows."

city children about the theater.

"I get it all," she said. "Here in the day, the Attic at night, and this is a different world from the other kids I teach."

Indeed, she does associate with a full range of people, from seasoned professionals like Regal and Attic artistic director Lavinia Moyer to the students at ULS who have never thought about the theater except for deciding they probably don't like it.

"I had a student in here recently who said, 'Gosh, I like acting, I never thought I would,'" Bremer said.

She considers that a success. There are only 28 students in a musical comedy "Li'l Rascal Follies," a spoof of the Little Rascals performed by youngsters age 5 to 10. Although the show is generally done at the Cafe Royale in Ann Arbor, she has taken it to several schools and it has been a resounding success.

That's why she requires her theater students to see four shows a year. (She didn't, however, require them to see her in "Frankie and Johnny," due to the bawdy nature of the play.)

Will there be a theater scene in Detroit when the youngsters she teaches are old enough to patronize it?

"It has to grow," she said. "It can't get much smaller. But the audiences need to be cultivated."

stay busy and she can stay busy here forever.

There's also her family — she's a proud grandmother — that keeps her from straying.

"For the last five years, I've done about eight shows a year," she said. "I wouldn't be happy if I didn't. To be a good teacher, I have to practice my craft."

She says she doesn't have time to think about the fact that most people consider her Detroit's premier actress.

"You're only as good as your last performance," she said, shrugging.

The review telling her how good she is was about to go up on her bulletin board.

ADMIT ONE

But those who will enjoy it most are lovers over 35 who are, or have been, married. It gets behind the pretenses and defenses people build up over time that impede loving and making love. It pokes wonderful fun at the pretentiously passionate love scenes that assault us daily on tube and screen. And it lets us see bits of ourselves with the veneers of convention and self-delusion stripped away.

Frankie and Johnny are a middle-aged Dick and Jane: waitress and a short order cook whose chemistry brings them to her apartment for what should be only a one-night stand. But from the moment the play begins with the banal (and outrageously funny) sounds of human passion in the blacked-out Attic Theatre, nothing happens as it should.

The lights come up and the story really begins with the difficulties of loving after making love. Johnny is ebulliently romantic, disguising the fact that it may be his last chance. Frankie's practical; it's her defense against being hurt again. Johnny is the dreamer. Frankie shows signs of disillusionment.

Gradually they reveal their dreams and hangups. The moods change from relaxed to tense to amorous to angry and the difficulties of making real human contact play out with all too convincing realism.

McNally uses a superb device to emphasize the changing moods. It is the persona and musical selections of a classical all night disc jockey whose program is tuned in on Frankie's radio. The choices of music and their role in the plot reach a riotous climax, and make a grand musical joke, with Wagner's Ride of the Valkyrie played at peak volume. Not surprisingly, a key thematic piece of music is Debussy's Claire de Lune.

Elegant quail may make for a new holiday tradition

For many decades, quail were considered a great luxury — a game bird that only celebrated chefs would cook and diners with cultivated palates could experience.

Until recently these small migratory birds, which are found in one variety or another worldwide, were accessible only to hunters. But domestication of this once scarce fowl has brought quail into restaurants and grocers' freezers.

There are several different types of quail, the California valley quail (the state bird), the Japanese quail, often called the pharaoh quail and the bob white quail. The Pharaoh quail is most often raised commercially. It is a little smaller than the others weighing about 4 ounces when dressed. Most farm-raised quails have tender meat much like the dark meat of chicken. Wild quails which are not generally available commercially, have darker meat, are drier and tend to be tougher and more chewy than domesticated quail. Almost all farm-raised quail are fed grain with no chemical additives.

Quail are low in fat and are available in semiboneless varieties which make them faster and easier to cook and easier to eat.

Quail meat is sweet and moist and comes in a white and dark blend. It is known as the filet mignon of poultry and is lower in fat than turkey.

Serving suggestions:

- Cooks on a grill in 4-6 minutes, just like a steak

- Recommended marinade, Italian salad dressing topped with a Lawry's type seasoning salt. Many experienced chefs prefer to use other marinades, but the Italian dressing adds a lot of flavor.

- Pins should be removed before quail is served. To remove, push together as you would tweezers, place knife where meat and pin meet, hold quail in place and remove pin.

- One bird may be served as an appetizer or brunch item. Two birds may be served as an entree or one bird may be served in combination with another meat item.

Elegant Eating

By Irene H. Burchard

Nathalie Dupree does wonderfully simple things with quail in her book, "New Southern Cooking" (Knopf). Dupree said, "It's amazing to me that so many great big people are so intimidated by something so little as quail. They're delicious and easy to fix, and there is nothing more seductive than a few quail at a picnic."

French Style Quail

1 4 oz. semi-boneless Quail
1/2 cup white wine
1 t rosemary (fresh)
2 T butter

1 cup shallots
1/2 cup heavy cream
Salt and black pepper
4-oz egg Cappellini
Chopped parsley

Marinate quail (with the pin still in) in white wine and rosemary. Grill quail for approximately 3-4 minutes per side. Saute shallots in butter. Add white wine and rosemary. Cook until almost dry. Add cream and cook until thickened. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Toss pasta with sauce. Serve quail over pasta. Garnish with parsley. Serves one.

Quail Gallo
8 Quail
8 small marinated artichoke hearts
8 large pitted olives
1 cup brown bread crumbs
1-1/2 cups dry white wine
8 small pinches of oregano
1 garlic clove
1/2 cup olive oil
Salt and pepper to taste

Drain oil from canned artichokes and save oil. Place wine and olive oil in a saucepan, add artichokes, bring to boil and remove from heat.

Season cavity of quail with salt and pepper. To stuff, place pitted olive in cavity first, then cooked artichoke heart, then fill cavity with bread crumbs that have been moistened slightly with wine.

Rub outside of birds with oil from artichoke hearts, marinate and sprinkle oregano over each bird.

Split garlic and put in bottom of roasting pan with birds. Add wine and olive oil from saucepan.

Place in 450-degree oven for five minutes, reduce heat to 350 degrees and cook until done, basting frequently with oil and wine. Serves 4.

Poached Quail and Apples

12 quail
3 medium apples
1 small can mushrooms
1 small garlic clove
1/4 pound butter
4 T flour
1 t salt
2 cups apple cider
3 cups apple wine
4 T apple butter

Chop apples, mushrooms, onion and garlic, mix and fill cavity of quail.

Combine flour and salt in bowl. Wet quail and dredge in flour mixture to coat birds.

In a deep skillet melt butter and add cider and wine. Place quail in skillet and simmer 1 hour or until done.

Remove quail and add apple butter to thicken drippings to make gravy.

Serve on a bed of wild rice and garnish with apple slices and mushrooms. Serves 6.

'Express' a triumph of technology — and the music's good, too

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

When "Starlight Express" rolled into the Masonic Temple Theatre for a three-week stay on Nov. 6, there was considerable conjecture about its intention as theater. Was it a rock show, a display of roller skating agility or an exhibit of stage technology?

The answer is: All three.

There is rock music that is hot and exhilarating but there is also country-western, 50's rhythm and blues.

It is an amazing display of roller skating. It seems an almost unbelievable feat as the skaters zoom around the high bank curves laden with costumes that weigh up to 35 pounds.

The technology that ties it all together is astounding — 50 tons of grids and trusses create the illusion of a railroad yard. Film projection provides a ringside seat to watch the train races. Lazer beams create dramatic effects.

Beyond all this is an exuberant musical inspired by Andrew Lloyd Webber's fascination with trains. It features the age-old theme of Good vs. Evil — in which a little fellow is bullied by two bigger fellows but because he has faith, he turns out to be bigger than both of them. At the same time it is stylistically modern.

trains of all kinds from around the world.

The setting represents the length and breadth of America and the action involves a cross-country competition to determine the fastest and greatest locomotive of all time in one of the most exciting and elaborately staged races ever.

All reservations about seeing the trains as people and people as trains is quickly dispelled in the opening act when hunched-over figures dressed like trains in black metallic and chrome helmets with headlights zoom smoothly onto the stage on roller skates to establish a train motif. "Starlight Express" is a splendid spectacle, a triumph of show world technology with a musical score that embraces the various forms of American music. It presents an entertaining story and it is performed by a talented group of 40 actors and actresses who can skate but are first of all good singers and dancers.

"Starlight Express" will be at the Masonic Temple Theatre through Nov. 25. There is no performance Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 22. There are matinees Saturday and Sunday at 2 p.m. Friday and Saturday performances are at 8 p.m. A final performance is on Sunday, Nov. 25 at 7:30 p.m.

The show is a loose retelling of the Biblical story of Noah and the Ark, based on "The Flowering Peach" by Clifford Odets.

'Mame' visits the Fox

"Life is a banquet and most poor sons-of-bitches are starving to death!"

So says Auntie Mame, the high-spirited, strong-willed central character in Jerry Herman's hit musical "Mame" coming to the Fox Theatre Tuesday, Dec. 4 through Sunday, Dec. 9.

"Mame" tells the story of a party-loving flapper whose social schedule is interrupted by the unexpected arrival of her ten-year-old nephew and his snobbish nanny. Neither the sudden responsibility of raising a child nor the stock market crash of 1929 can dampen Mame's remarkable spirit.

"Mame" stars high-stepping, bold-voiced Juliet Prowse as everyone's favorite aunt.

Tickets for "Mame" are on sale now at the Fox Theatre box office, the Joe Louis Arena box office, and all Ticketmaster outlets. To order tickets by phone call 645-6666. For group discount information, call 567-7474. For more information, call 567-6000 anytime.

Hawaii: A lot to offer

Among the thousands of items written about Hawaii every month, the words "commercial, expensive and Japanese" are repeated over and over. All too often omitted is the fact that Hawaii continues to be a beautiful and wonderful holiday destination for the entire family.

As one of the most diversified states in the union, Hawaii offers something for everyone. On the outer island of Kauai, there is a 4,000-foot-deep canyon with ridged escarpments that are patterned and textured with trees, shrubs and ground covers of varying colors. The island, also known as the Garden Isle, has more varieties of tropical plants and flowers in the wild than are found in most botanical gardens.

The Big Island, the Island of Hawaii, is home to cattle ranches, snow skiing and an active volcano.

Maui has barren black lava flows contrasting with lush green sea-level valleys.

On Molai, the smallest and least developed of the visited islands, you will find pineapple fields and a climate and terrain like that of Kenya and Tanzania.

And, of course, all the islands have absolutely gorgeous beaches.

Many first-time visitors will see Oahu and one or two of the outer islands. There are escorted group tours of the islands, and there are independent packaged tours for those who prefer to be on their own. Tour operators have "do it your way" programs that let you put together specific features that suit your needs and still give you the benefit of volume discounts on hotel rooms and air fares. This kind of trip can be a very economical way to visit the Hawaiian Islands.

There are alternatives to the prepackaged, preplanned trip. There are still quiet hideaways that will offer the privacy and solitude of the islands of years gone by. There are "bed and breakfast" establishments that give travelers yet another choice in vacationing style. If you are feeling adventurous, you can hike and camp in absolutely gorgeous surroundings. Scratch the surface, get off the beaten path and you can still find many remnants of the traditional Hawaii.

Some travelers question whether they should even take the time and trouble to visit Honolulu and the island of Oahu. Yes, it is commercial. That commercialism is based on tourism. Yes, it caters to the Japanese. It is a popular destination for Japanese families and young honeymooners, so, many signs and menus are written in both English and Japanese. Yet, for the most part, the Japanese tourists are polite and friendly, pleasant and happy. They tend to share the happiness of your visit, not detract from it.

If you remember that Honolulu is a city and do not expect a tropical island paradise, you are more likely to enjoy the variety of experiences it offers. The sophisticated dining, entertainment and designer boutiques are particularly pleasurable amid Honolulu's beautiful surroundings. If, however, you are looking for a calm, serene paradise with swaying palm trees and uncrowded beaches you might consider eliminating Oahu from your itinerary. There is no rule that says you must visit Honolulu.

Finally, Hawaii is expensive — but only if you let it be. If you eat in expensive restaurants, stay at expensive hotels and do expensive things, Hawaii will be expensive. It is possible, however, to enjoy the beauty of Hawaii at a modest cost. Consider carefully what you want from your Hawaiian Islands vacation, research your options, then take advantage of Hawaii's magnificent diversity.

As mystery and gossip, 'Fortune' scores big

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

Tabloid material becomes a brilliant and mesmerizing story in "Reversal of Fortune."

It's the true story of Claus Von Bulow, an elegant and sinister aristocrat who was tried and convicted twice in the Rhode Island courts of attempting to murder his rich heiress wife, Sunny, by injecting her with insulin.

In 1981, the case was appealed and he was acquitted. Today he is a free man, while Sunny still lies in a coma.

Based on the book written by Von Bulow's lawyer, Harvard law professor Alan Dershowitz, sticks to the facts and theories in the case. In the process it becomes both a medical detective story and a legal detective story told by the sinister Danish-born Von Bulow; his attorney, Dershowitz the earnest Cambridge workaholic and Sunny who relates her version from her hospital bed.

In spite of this intimate close-up view of the case from all involved, we come to the end of the film not knowing whether Claus tried to kill Sunny or abetted her in a suicide attempt.

While the mystery remains unsolved, the intricacies of the law are revealed as we watch Dershowitz at work. Gathering a team of law students, he assigns them the task of searching out clues that will justify his right to appeal, dividing them into such groups as the "Insulin Needle" team or "Sunny's Drug History" team.

Dershowitz (Ron Silver), a flamboyant, hyperkinetic, keen-

Glenn Close and Jeremy Irons turn in stellar performances in "Reversal of Fortune."

witted and vocal lawyer, is in striking contrast to his icily restrained client Von Bulow (Jeremy Irons), who in his own way is master of the put-down. When Dershowitz muses, "I'm wondering who you are," Von Bulow replies, "Who would you like me to be?" And again, when Dershowitz remarks, "What I've seen of the idle rich, you can have them," Von Bulow replies, "I do."

Oddly, the scenes that humanize Claus are those in which Sunny (Glenn Close) relates her story in voice-over. We see her as a beautiful but spoiled woman who has given up on life, long before she went into a coma. "I like being in bed," she intones as she described her life style of rising at 9 a.m. and retiring at 3 p.m. "I didn't much like anything else."

Food and drugs are her pleasures. Through all this her husband stands by, waiting on her, never reprimanding her.

Close gives a superb performance. Her Sunny is a woman watching the life force leak out of her and not caring. In a way, oblivious to the world about her, she seems to want to be a corpse with her insistence that the bedroom be kept freezing cold. We see her in a satin nightgown reaching for pills or stumbling to the bathroom. Beside her is Claus wearing a heavy robe and ski cap to keep warm.

Dershowitz, who took Von Bulow's case not because he thought he was innocent but because he represented a moral-legal challenge, makes the scenes in which he gathers clues and hammers out strategies exciting and funny.

But Close and Irons are the reasons to see the movie.

Irons brings a sort of greatness in his portrayal of the elegantly disdainful Claus. Tall, with thinning hair, sallow skin and deadly reserve, he is a monstrous enigma.

"Reversal of Fortune" scores as a complex legal drama, a comedy of manners and a brilliant and entertaining satire on the lives of the pointlessly rich. It is a stellar film, one not to be missed.

Scrooge lives again at Macomb

A musical version of "A Christmas Carol," a production that tells the story of Scrooge, Tiny Tim and the Cratchit family in song and dance, will be the first of three special Christmas programs coming up in December at Macomb Center for the Performing Arts.

A professional touring cast of 36 singers, dancers, actors and musicians will stage two performances of the Charles Dickens classic on Saturday, Dec. 1 — a matinee at 2 p.m. and an evening show at 8 p.m.

Next up on the holiday calendar, also designed for family entertainment, are three performances of "The Night Before Christmas," presented by the Dayton Ballet at 7 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Dec. 3-5. The full-length, two-act ballet will be followed by the Mantovani Orchestra with a Christmas musical program at 8 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 6.

"A Christmas Carol" tickets are $12 for adults and $10 for children, students and senior citizens. They may be obtained at the center's box office or reserved on credit card by calling 286-2222, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Macomb Center is located on the Center Campus of Macomb Community College.

Auditions scheduled

THAT'S ENTERTAINMENT

By: PAM NEWBACK
SPECIAL WRITER

Back in town the spotlight is turned on for a limited engagement with Penny Masouris, songstress/pianist. It's about time a restaurant has decided to pay attention to their patron's ears and give them the fine sounds of light dinner music which enables you to carry on a quiet conversation. Join in and experience the homey atmosphere of classical music, movie hits, show tunes and turn of the century music. Penny gives you an entertainment that welcomes you to join in and experience the Spot Light.

Now about the location, the St. Tropez Cafe Restaurant is not your typical restaurant interior. Many of the interior furnishings in the home are well over 100 years old. I must tell you though that the interior of the building is hard to describe on paper. You must experience this restaurant in person to appreciate the fine atmosphere that protrudes from this fine old home. You won't feel closed in when eating one of their many fine dinners, because the tables are modestly placed apart to give you the necessary privacy during your pleasant stay. I would recommend that you and your friends or family experience this restaurant as soon as possible. The entertainment of Miss Masouris can be heard for a limited time Friday & Saturday night 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. The restaurant hours are Mon. & Tues., 10-6 p.m., Wed. thru Sat. 10-9 p.m., closed Sundays. Dinners are served Wed. thru Sat. 4 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. The St. Tropez Cafe Restaurant is located in Victoria Place of Shoppes, 26717 Little Mack (10-1/2 Mile Rd.) St. Clair Shores. Reservations are recommended. The phone numbers are 772-8383 & 772-0780. Now That's Entertainment!

Gnome serves musical fare

The Gnome Restaurant continues to offer substance and style in the Cultural Center: substance in a new upbeat menu and style in opera, jazz, and classical entertainment.

Pasta e' Pagliacci, returns to the Gnome every Thursday night. A unique Detroit dining experience, Pasta e' Pagliacci offers the audience the best of Verdi, Mozart and Wagner, along with Cole Porter and Rogers and Hammerstein, accompanied by a special menu of pasta dishes.

Dramatic soprano Kaye Rittinger and restaurateur Joe Zaina developed the weekly concert last year.

Theater group holds open meeting

East Detroit Theatre will hold an open membership meeting Wednesday, Nov. 28 at 7:30 p.m. at the East Detroit Recreation Center, 16600 Stephens (one block east of Gratiot).

At 8:30 a free fashion show will be presented in cooperation with Meadowbrook Theatre. "Costumes in the Community" will feature costumes from the 1400's-1920's, and there will be an informal lecture on original designs and the making of period costumes.

For additional information, call Tom Jarrell at 771-7893.

"Our performance would begin with the familiar music, such as Broadway and show tunes, easing into opera by offering the audience both background information about the music and a friendly atmosphere," notes Rittinger.

Special pasta dishes, as well as the full menu, will be served during the show for an immersion in Italian music and menu. Pasta e' Pagliacci featuring Kaye Rittinger and special guests is scheduled Thursdays, Nov. 29, and Dec. 6, 13 and 20 at 8 p.m.

Weekend Jazz continues at the Gnome with Stefan Lipson and Steve Shepherd on Friday, Nov. 23; and the Marvin Kahn Trio, Friday and Saturday, Nov. 31 and Dec. 1.

The last stanza of weekly entertainment at the Gnome plays Sundays with Brunch with the Classics. The buffet-style brunch features different Detroit ensembles each week, including a classical guitar duo, and pianist playing Broadway's best.

A Gnome tradition, the special buffet features fresh-baked rolls, muffins, quiches, Syrian-baked chicken, seafood newburg, and specials of the week along with their signature eggs McMoZart for only $9.95.

Brunch with the Classics is held every Sunday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Bowled over

I can't take it anymore. I've been interested in college football since I first bought remote controls.

I have seen national championships, losers, winners and dumb-looking fans.

I've viewed all the pre-game hype one can get, and I've spent endless hours leafing through newspapers and magazines worrying about statistics.

But, I've had enough of this bowl picture.

If Notre Dame wins, it goes to the Orange Bowl and plays Colorado. Now, if Michigan beats Ohio State, it goes to the Gator Bowl. But if Michigan loses it goes to the Liberty Bowl.

My gosh. Has it come down to the simple fact that we start looking at bowl pairings six to eight weeks before official invitations can be extended? Official bids won't come out till Nov. 24, but throw that "official" business out the window. All the bids were in a week before that, but no "official" invitations were accepted. Teams just verbally committed.

I'm getting tired of UPI and AP polls. Those polls don't mean spit and all the fans get intolerably angry if their teams aren't ranked.

Do we really need the rankings? Do we really need the national championship?

If team A beats team B, then team C would get the bid. Team D will go to the bologna

South athletic facilities to undergo changes

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South is about to change.

In dire need of upgrading and/or replacing some of its old and dilapidated athletic facilities, South will be looking to do so in the next year.

In September, South Athletic Director Jo Lake asked coaches for their recommendations on what could be improved, but because of the volume of requests — and a limited budget — all proposals could not be honored.

Funds for the renovations and repairs will come from the on-site budget, as well as the Dads' Club and team fundraisers.

For years, South soccer and swim teams have had to use off-campus facilities. That won't change, but there will be improvements for those programs.

The swim team, which uses North's pool as its home site, is scheduled to get starting blocks, and the soccer teams may soon have a scoreboard at Barnes Field.

Last year new scoreboards for basketball were put up in the main gym, and the addition of roster boards is being weighed. The basketball floor, which is also tramped on by volleyball teams and school dances, may be smoothed and refinished.

The football bleachers and press box, adjacent to Fisher Road, will be replaced if all goes well.

"All of these things will happen," said Lake, "but they are going to take time. The board of education has to approve everything, but I am very confident we will get these things done in time."

Some projects have already been finished, while others are waiting approval.

The baseball field behind the school, thanks to the South Dads' Club, is now outfitted with dugouts, and the left field area has been resodded and groomed. More diamond dry has been added to the playing field.

"Left field has been chewed up because that's where the big trucks from the district turn around," Lake said. "Our goal was to re-sod it and eventually we'd like to close that area and force the trucks to turn around somewhere else. Having those trucks turn around there is unsafe for the kids."

With the help of a $2,000 donation from the Dads' Club, the starting blocks should be in place soon. The school matched the $2,000 to fund the $4,000 project.

"There's no doubt the swimming program, which for years has been one of the best in the state, will be enhanced," said Lake. "The teams should have had the blocks a long time ago, and thanks to the Dads' Club they've got them."

The Dads' Club, whose primary function is to fund two scholarships a year, is currently in the middle of its annual fundraiser. The goal is to raise $12,000.

"It's difficult to get on the phone and ask people for money," said Dads' Club President Dr. Tom Mertz. "But it's exciting to see the cumulative effect it has on every sport."

But it's not all Dads' Club. "We organized a project committee to look at all the sports," said Mertz. "There are three students, six parents and Jo Lake on the committee, so it's obvious this year's efforts have not been from one influence."

In fact, the committee determined the order of priority.

"The kids, who represent the sports, have really had great input," said Mertz. "We're all making decisions, but the kids have been very influential."

The Jim Saros Real Estate Agency has also played a big part.

"We've had a long-standing offer from Saros and we felt we couldn't ignore it any longer," said Mertz. "They've been very kind and patient, but it was time for us to act on it."

The Saros offer is simple: It

Lady Knights advance in hoop tourney

The University Liggett School girls' varsity basketball team won two games last week in the Class C district tournament and played (after press time) in the district finals.

It was the first time in ULS history a girls' basketball team had advanced to the finals. The Lady Knights defeated St. Florian, 47-38, and Bishop Gallagher, 47-26 to advance to the finals.

In the win over Florian, senior center Martina Jerant scored 24 points. One day later Jerant had 26 points and Linda Morreale added 13 to beat Gallagher. Magda Chojnacka tossed in four points.

The Lady Knights played Lutheran East Nov. 16, and the winner of that advanced to the regionals.

"The girls have been looking forward to a rematch with Lutheran East," said Coach Ann Belloli. "They have been working extremely hard and feel confident they will play their strongest game of the season. I am very proud of these young ladies and they deserve the best."

ULS' Linda Morreale scored 13 points as the Lady Knights beat Bishop Gallagher to advance to the district finals.

will match any money the baseball team can round up in order to get a scoreboard on the field. That approach was adopted by the soccer and softball teams, and any money those teams raise will be matched by the Dads' Club.

The softball team may appropriate the money for other items, but the soccer field definitely is destined to get a scoreboard, which could be used by the Grosse Pointe Soccer Association teams as well.

The baseball scoreboard — alone — will cost from $1,500-$1,800. The electrical work would require more money.

"We feel confident the kids will raise sufficient funds to be matched by either the Dads' Club or the Saros agency," said Lake. "It'll be a partnership between the kids and the school. It will also allow the kids to realize that you make things happen."

In addition to the scoreboard at the soccer field, officials are contemplating fencing the field.

"We'd like to fence the field just for the times it's being used and not put up a permanent structure," Lake said. "We'd like to charge for soccer like a lot of the other MAC schools."

Other schools charge $3; Lake anticipates charging $2.

The biggest expense will be renovation of the football field bleachers, which, according to Lake, are unsafe and warrant immediate attention.

"We've had several incidents in which boards have broken when people have just walked on them," said Lake. "With that, we felt we needed someone to come out and take a look at them and offer us an estimate on repairs."

The current bleachers stretch from end zone to end zone. The new bleachers would be aluminum, would use some of the current substructures, be 20 yards shorter in length, and would be higher.

"Right now it's difficult to see anything on the field when you sit in the first three rows," Lake said. "So we decided that we would escalate instead of move laterally."

The renovated bleachers would have new railings, and the press box would be replaced. Currently, the top of the press box is used by coaches during games and it is not enclosed. The new press box would offer better seating and safer conditions.

"Some of the substructures under the bleachers could be renovated and used again with the new bleachers," said Lake. "The bleachers will have toe boards under the seats so we won't risk anyone falling through. The press box will have a railing around it."

Lake is confident the school board will allow the bleachers to be renovated.

"It's truly a necessity," she said. "If all goes well, bids should be in by March and construction could begin immediately if all the parts are ordered."

But in the spring the girls' and boys' track teams use the bleachers.

"That would be an inconvenience, not a problem," said Lake. "We'd have to move the teams and fans to the other side of the track and use the visitor's bleachers. We'd still have plenty of room to host a dual meet, but may have problems hosting a regional track meet."

Lake said that the Dads' Club, the Saros agency and the school system are all working very closely. She also stated that none of the expenditures are for luxury items.

"South programs have always been strong and the kids and fans deserve these things," she said. "It seems like things were standing still for a while during some negotiations, but the talks won't end, either. We're getting going and we're all very excited about all of this."

Thanks to the South Dads' Club and matching funds from the school system, the South baseball field recently had dugouts installed. The field has also had a manicure.

Devils ousted by Saddlelites

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

Regina coach Diane Laffey said the Grosse Pointe South girls' basketball team was the best 8-12 team in the state.

It's just too bad that the Lady Devils weren't better than the 15-5 Regina Saddlelites Nov. 12. South, which finished the regular season at 8-12, lost to Regina, 54-35, and was eliminated from the Class A district basketball tournament.

"I saw South play a few times toward the end of the season and I do think it was the best 8-12 team," said Laffey, whose team won the Catholic League championship for the first time since 1981. "South was playing very good basketball and we never take them lightly."

But from the opening tip it was all Saddlelites, who were ranked as high as No. 5 in the Class A polls this season.

"Going into the game I was very concerned that we wouldn't be able to handle Regina's diamond press," said South coach Peggy VanEckoute. "It's not so much that we couldn't handle it, it's just that we tried to rush too many times up the court."

And that led to turnovers. "Regina converts mistakes into points so fast," said VanEckoute. "We couldn't afford to lose control of the ball, let alone give up some easy buckets."

Regina's up-tempo and pressure game forced South into several key turnovers early in the game. Besides having to beat the press, South had to contend with a much smaller gym than it's used to.

"We ran out of real estate quite a few times when we had the press beaten," VanEckoute said. "We were patient and got the ball up court, but stepped out of bounds because the court is not as wide, nor as long, as what we play on during the year."

Regina's court meets the minimum requirements.

After trailing 16-5 at the end of the first quarter, South managed to score only seven more points in the second quarter and closed the half behind, 29-12.

"We were nervous," VanEckoute said. "I was really surprised we came out that way because I thought we were playing with a lot more confidence lately. But, I guess I was wrong. There was really no reason to be nervous, but things like that happen when you're a young team and you play against a top-10 team."

South held Regina to eight third-quarter points, but scored only six itself.

"We had to come out in the second half and try to change the complexion of the game in order to get back in it," VanEckoute said. "We had to stop forcing quick shots and limit Regina. Unfortunately, we didn't."

No matter what defense South threw at Regina, the Saddlelites broke it.

"They were chewing us up in our man-to-man defense, so we switched to a zone," VanEckoute said. "We held them for a while, then they chewed the zone up so we went back to the man-to-man. It was tough to stop them."

South was led by sophomore Stephanie Coddens' 12 points, and Angela Drake's nine points and 10 rebounds. Emilie Ayraut grabbed 10 rebounds to go with seven points.

South shot a season-low 14 percent (8 for 57) from the floor, and hit 60 percent of its free throws.

"Fifty-seven shots was more than enough to win," said VanEckoute. "But when you don't make those shots you lose."

bowl if team A loses, but team A would go to the stupid bowl.

Sure, watching all that TV isn't good for you, but it's good for the teams and their respective conferences, because they all get a cut.

Let's just have all college teams play 10 games and leave it at that. No bowls. No national championships. Let every undefeated team claim its own championship.

I saw the tail end of a commercial with Andre Ware a couple weekends ago.

Ware, the Heisman Trophy winner from the University of Houston who signed a huge contract with the Lions, was pleading with kids to stay in school and get an education.

Do we need to be reminded that Ware left Houston after his junior year to sign with the Lions? Sure, Andre, get an education. I wonder how Houston school officials reallocate the money designated to pay for Ware's scholarship. Does it go to another player? Is it split between players? What happens to the scholarship when a player forgoes a year?

Then again, the NFL allows players to come out of school early, so I guess I shouldn't berate Ware. If you can make the big bucks, you may as well do so. Education doesn't seem to be as important as it once was. Money changes everything.

I blame the NFL.

Does anybody really care who quarterbacks the Lions?

I said to a college friend of mine about five years ago that we will never — in our lifetime — see the Lions win the Super Bowl.

Care to think about whether my unborn child will see one in his/her lifetime?

Let's not forget to give thanks.

I'm thankful for basketballs, footballs, television, newspapers, my parents, my wife, hockey skates, sales on sporting goods, recliners, jogging shoes, sunshine, cool and crisp fall days, leaves that blow into the neighbor's yard.

Van conversions are big business — and getting bigger

The suburban housewife was obviously impressed. "This is great," she said, settling into one of the cushioned, gold-velour-covered pedestal armchairs in the spacious van. "I think we'll get one of these next," said a lawyer whose young family is quickly outgrowing their current mini-van.

The vehicle that impressed these buyers was a full-size domestic van that had been transformed from just plain transportation to a luxury coach. Several hundred companies are currently in the conversion business, most of them in northern Indiana in or around Elkhart. They will turn out a total of some 200,000 distinctive units this year. For as little as a few thousand dollars, a new van can be equipped with comfortable armchairs, a bench seat that opens into a bed, tables, custom windows and color-coordinated pleated blinds for those windows.

"You can have just about anything you want in one of our conversion vans," said Bill Snook, president of Coachmen Vans, Elkhart, Ind. "A popular option today is a separate sound system for rear passengers, complete with earphones. Some customers order televisions. We can install a large cooler in the full-size van."

7-digit 'vanity' plates available

Michigan motorists may now apply for a seven-digit personalized license plate.

"The seven-digit plate allows many more combinations of letters and numbers than the current six-digit maximum," Secretary of State Richard H. Austin said.

Application forms for seven-digit "vanity" plates are being accepted by mail, and are available from all 185 Secretary of State branch offices.

Requests must be submitted on personalized plate application forms and mailed to: Special Registration Unit, P.O. Box

By Jenny King

Snook said a conversion van buyer can create a unique vehicle, one that will stand out in the crowd and have all the special convenience features an individual or a family wants.

The lot at Pointe Dodge shimmers with some of these jewels — rose, silver-green, amethyst, blue vans with bold body striping swooping beneath large tinted-glass windows with sliding vents. Some have raised roofs for increased interior space. Several feature tailgater food coolers behind the rear seat.

"Full-size conversions are more popular with our customers than mini-van conversions," said a sales manager at the eastside Detroit dealership. "And of those, I'd say the less expensive, lower-line models sell better. But we sell a variety."

Pointe Dodge has several van models in inventory. Buying from stock saves time and money, the manager said.

The same is true at Russ Milne Ford in Mount Clemens. "We like to deliver from stock," said Evert Cottrell, truck sales manager. "Sales have been up for us the last five to six months."

Cottrell said the majority of conversion vans Russ Milne Ford delivers have televisions and second radios on board. His customers like the rear heating/cooling option. Some order Nintendo and/or videocassette players. CBs and radar detectors are also popular, he said.

"We concentrate on luxury models," Cottrell said. "Because they have higher quality content, they have a high resale value."

The truck sales manager said conversion vans attract repeat buyers. "I just sold a customer his third one in 10 years. This time he wanted a van with greater towing capacity."

Many conversion vans get better fuel economy than some of the two-seaters that race past them on the highway. Coachmen's Snook said 20 mpg at legal highway speeds is not unusual.

Safety is another factor. Van converters must follow federal guidelines on wiring and flammability of all interior trim materials. Van owners are protected by warranties offered by the converters as well as those from the manufacturer. "We match the factory's warranty on everything we do," Snook said.

High-fashion colors, elaborate graphics and interior luxury are vital in the van conversion market.

Snook said that color and graphics are vital in the conversion van market. "Fashion is a key element of success," said Snook. "Would you believe that I attend the National Color Show every year, along with fashion industry people, automotive color specialists, architects and other people who need to know what the upcoming color trends are going to be?"

Snook, conservatively (and colorlessly) attired in white shirt, gray slacks, gray and wine striped tie and gray sport jacket, admitted it might seem out of character for a guy in the conversion van business to set aside time to hang around malls.

But Bill Snook, president of Coachmen Vans in Elkhart, Ind., said he goes shopping with his wife so he can see which colors are hot in the fashion industry. He takes his findings, adds them to other feedback and comes up with colors for the thousands of van conversions that come off the Coachmen line.

"Mauve is out this year," he said. "Blue may have been hot last year, but purple — or black cherry, as we like to call it — is in for 1991," Snook said, pointing to a brand-new example in the parking lot.

Color trends begin in women's apparel, proceed to home furnishings and finally make its way to automotive. "Fashion colors go dead in less than 12 months," Snook said.

Snook reminisced about the earlier days of the van conversion business when murals were all the rage. "At first I liked them, then I disliked them, now I hate them," referring to difficulties in having damaged murals reconstructed.

"We used to hire hippie types who were often pretty good artists, but they didn't really fit in the automotive business," he said. "If a van was damaged, it was a real problem repairing the mural. Even if the artist was still available (most were drifters), he might have been tripped out on something the day he did it and can't recapture the mood."

Coachmen market research says conversion van buyers tend to fall into two categories: retired couples who love to travel, and young families with several children. These families are usually involved in activities like Little League sports and school activities, Snook says. Vans are perfect for taking the team to and from practice.

At Russ Milne Ford, Cottrell said he sells a wide variety of buyers. "Take a look the next time you're out on the highway on a weekend," he said. "You'll see conversion vans everywhere. They've replaced full-size station wagons for many people."

EMU announces scholarship competition

Eastern Michigan University's office of financial aid is accepting applications from high school seniors for its annual presidential scholarship competition.

The competition, which will result in the award of $935,000 in scholarships for incoming students, is scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 15, at 8 a.m. in Eastern's College of Business in downtown Ypsilanti.

At stake for the top five scorers on the competitive examination are five full-ride, four-year Presidential Scholarships valued at $27,000 each. The next highest scoring students will receive four-year Regents Scholarships valued at $7,400 each and those with scores ranked from 101 to 200 will be offered scholarships of $1,000 each.

To be eligible for the competitive exam, students must have a high school grade point average of at least 3.5 and have earned a 25 on the American College Test or a 1050 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test. For those students who have not yet taken either college entrance exam, Eastern will set up a special test day.

Applications accompanied by a $15 fee for the Presidential Scholarship examination are due by the end of November.

For more information, call 487-1111 or 1-800-GO-TO-EMU.

Alger House

Blend of community center, war memorial, historic building

By Margie Reins Smith
Feature Editor

Daughter Josephine used to climb out the circular front window of the attic playroom to relish the view, to cavort on the roof and to hang from the eaves.

The family's seaplane and yacht were docked behind the house, beyond a well-manicured bowling green, at the end of the rolling lawn which sloped down to the waters of Lake St. Clair.

On summer Sunday afternoons, when guests were present, the gentlemen bowled. The ladies, dressed in broad-brimmed hats and light summer dresses, watched from the terrace. The formally-attired butler served tea.

The setting was the Alger

House, built in 1910 for Russell A. Alger and his family.

The spacious Italian Renaissance-style home was designed by architect Charles A. Platt of New York.

Mrs. Allen Shipman was the landscape architect, and the house and gardens were designed together as a unit, with particular attention to the use of various ground levels to the best advantage. It was called "The Moorings."

For two decades after its completion, The Moorings was family headquarters for Alger, his wife, Marion, and their three children, Russell Jr., Caroline and the daring Josephine.

The Algers entertained in the Great Hall, on the bowling green and on the terraces. They dined in the dining room. They read in the library, ate in the breakfast room, sat in the sitting rooms, slept in the family bedrooms and lived in the rest of the spacious mansion — the conservatory, the Palm Room, the den, the billiard room and the kitchens.

A butler, a governess and several maids lived in the service wing and the house even had a walled courtyard for hanging everybody's wet laundry in those pre-Maytag days.

Today — 80 years later — the grand mansion is used in hundreds of ways never imagined by the Algers.

The dining room may be used for guitar lessons or a puppet show for children. The library may be used for a Senior Men's Club meeting or a seminar on assertiveness training. The Great Hall may be the site of a concert or a reception. The basement has been used for ballet classes for 35 years. The butler's and maids' rooms are offices for War Memorial President Mark Weber and a staff that runs the center.

Mrs. Alger's bedroom is headquarters for the Grosse Pointe Garden Center. Russell Alger's bedroom is the development office; his closet is the office of Suzy Berschback, publicist; his bathroom is Janet Hooper's office. She's director of development and public relations.

The carriage house is headquarters for the Junior League of Detroit. The attic, where Josephine used to contemplate her acrobatic escapades, is used to store paper, furniture and Christmas decorations.

Shortly after Russell Alger's death in 1930, The Moorings was used as a branch of the Detroit Institute of Arts.

In 1949, it was dedicated to a twofold purpose: to serve as a perpetual memorial to the 3,500 Grosse Pointers who served and the 126 who died in World War II. And it was to serve as a continuing center for educational and charitable activities of the Grosse Pointe community.

The War Memorial is unusual — some say unique — because of its dual use.

Bronze plaques near the grand staircase preserve the names of all Grosse Pointers who served in World War II and the names of those who died. Smaller plaques in the entrance hall list those who died in the Korean and Vietnam conflicts.

In addition, a meritorious service plaque on the stairway honors those killed during peacetime.

Two additions have expanded the facilities of the War Memorial. The Fries Auditorium and ballroom were dedicated in 1962, and the art wing was completed in 1977.

William H. Fries made the first addition possible with a bequest of more than a half million dollars. Fries was assistant headmaster at Detroit University School.

The auditorium seats 450 people and has a stage, projection equipment and facilities for larger gatherings and theatrical productions. The upstairs ballroom and banquet facility has a capacity for more than 500 people.

The art wing added two large art classrooms, offices and storage rooms.

Many of the furnishings in the Grosse Pointe War Memorial came from Grosse Pointe mansions which have been torn down. A few pieces were originally part of the Alger House.

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial sponsored 4,753 functions last year. Events included a wide variety of programs, from the usual lectures, classes, trips, luncheons and concerts to such programs as science camps, aerobic exercise classes, Children's Theatre performances, wine tasting parties, art shows, bridge tournaments, Safe Rides headquarters, Red Cross Bloodmobile drives, grief support groups, ski trips, weddings, holiday events, recitals, boating classes and more.

According to last year's annual report, 191,458 people attended War Memorial functions between August 1989 and July 1990.

Gardners work on the grounds of the Alger House in 1938.

Home builder provides a new-home buyer's glossary of terms

The following glossary will help new home buyers to be better home shoppers:

Adjustable Rate Mortgage (ARM)— A loan whose interest rate is adjusted according to movements in the financial market.

Amortization— A payment plan by which a loan is reduced through monthly payments of principal and interest.

Annual Percentage Rate (APR)— The annual cost of credit over the life of a loan, including interest, service charges, points, loan fees, mortgage insurance and other items.

Appraisal— An evaluation to determine what a piece of property would sell for in the current marketplace.

Appreciation— The increase in the value of a piece of property.

Assessment— A transaction allowing the buyer to assume responsibility for an existing loan instead of getting a new loan.

Balloon— A loan that has a series of monthly payments with the remaining balance due in a large lump sum payment at the end.

Binder— A receipt for a deposit paid to secure the right to purchase a home at terms agreed upon by the buyer and seller.

Buydown— A subsidy (usually paid by a builder or developer) to reduce the monthly payments on a mortgage loan.

Cap— A limit to the amount an interest rate or a monthly payment can increase for an adjustable rate loan either during an adjustment period or over the life of the loan.

Certificate of Occupancy— A document from an official agency stating that the property meets the requirements of local codes, ordinances and regulations.

Closing— A meeting to sign documents that transfer property from a seller to a buyer (also referred to as settlement).

Closing Costs— Charges paid at settlement for obtaining a mortgage loan and transferring a real estate title.

Conditions, Covenants, and Restrictions (CC and Rs)— The standards that define how a property may be used and the protections the developer makes for the benefit of all owners in a subdivision.

Conventional Loan— A mortgage loan not insured by a government agency (such as FHA or VA).

Convertibility— The ability to change a loan from an adjustable rate schedule to a fixed rate schedule.

Credit Rating— A report ordered by a lender from a credit bureau to determine if the borrower is a good credit risk.

Density— The number of homes built on a particular acre of land. Allowable densities are determined by local jurisdictions.

Down payment— The difference between the sales price and the mortgage amount. A down payment is usually paid at closing.

Due-on-Sale— A clause in a mortgage contract requiring the borrower to pay the entire outstanding balance upon sale or transfer of the property.

Earnest Money— A sum paid to the seller to show that a potential purchaser is serious about buying.

Easement— The right-of-way granted to a person or company authorizing access to the owner's land; for example, a utility company may be granted an easement to install pipes or wires. An owner may voluntarily grant an easement, or can be ordered to grant one by a local jurisdiction.

Equity— The difference between the value of a home and what is owed on it.

Escrow— The handling of funds or documents by a third party on behalf of the buyer and/or seller.

Federal Housing Administration (FHA)— A federal agency that insures mortgages with lower down payment requirements than conventional loans.

Fixed Rate Mortgage— A mortgage with an interest rate that remains constant over the life of the loan.

Fixed Schedule Mortgage— A mortgage with a payment schedule that is established at closing for the life of the loan. The payment and interest rate are not necessarily level.

Graduated Payment Mortgage (GPM)— A fixed-rate, fixed-schedule loan that starts with lower payments than a level payment loan; the payments rise annually over the first five to 10 years and then remain constant for the remainder of the loan. GPMs involve negative amortization.

Growing Equity Mortgage (Rapid Payoff Mortgage)— A fixed-rate, fixed-schedule loan that starts with the same payments as a level payment loan; the payments rise annually, with the entire increase being used to reduce the outstanding balance. No negative amortization occurs, and the increase in payments may enable the borrower to pay off a 30-year loan in 15 to 20 years, or less.

Hazard Insurance— Protection against damage caused by fire, windstorm, or other common hazards. Many lenders require borrowers to carry it in an amount at least equal to the mortgage.

Housing Finance Agency— A state agency that offers below-market-rate home financing for low- and moderate-income households.

payments for an adjustable rate loan.

Infrastructure— The public facilities and services needed to support residential development, including highways, bridges, schools and sewer and water systems.

Interest— The cost paid to a lender for borrowed money.

Joint Tenancy— A form of ownership in which the tenants own a property equally. If one dies, the other would automatically inherit the entire property.

Mortgage Broker— A broker who represents numerous lenders and helps consumers find affordable mortgages; the broker charges a fee only if the consumer finds a loan.

Mortgage Commitment— A formal written communication by a lender, agreeing to make a mortgage loan on a specific property, specifying the loan amount, length of time and conditions.

Mortgage Company— A company that borrows money from a bank, lends it to consumers to buy homes, then sells the loans to investors.

Mortgagee— The lender who makes a mortgage loan.

Mortgage Loan— A contract in which the borrower's property is pledged as collateral. It is repaid in installments. The mortgagor (buyer) promises to repay principal and interest, keep the home insured, pay all taxes, and keep the property in good condition.

Mortgage Origination Fee— A charge for the work involved in preparing and servicing a mortgage application (usually 1 percent of the loan amount).

Note— A formal document showing the existence of a debt and stating the terms of repayment.

Point— A one-time charge asserted by the lender at closing

Prepayment— Payment of a debt prior to maturity.

Principal— The amount borrowed, excluding interest and other charges.

Property Survey— A survey to determine the boundaries of a property. The cost depends on the complexity of the survey.

Recording Fee— A charge for recording the transfer of a property, paid to a city, county or other appropriate branch of government.

Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA)— A federal law requiring lenders to provide home buyers with information about known or estimated settlement costs.

R-Value— The resistance of insulation materials (including windows) to heat passing through them. The higher the number, the greater the insulating value.

Sales Contract— A contract between a buyer and seller which should explain, in detail, exactly what the purchase includes, what guarantees there are, when the buyer can move in, what the closing costs are, and what recourse the parties have if the contract is not fulfilled or if the buyer cannot get a mortgage commitment under the agreed-upon terms.

Shared Appreciation Mortgage— A loan in which partners agree to share specified portions of the down payment, monthly payment and appreciation.

Tenancy in Common— A form of ownership in which the tenants own separate but equal parts. To inherit the property, a surviving tenant would either have to be mentioned in the will, or in the absence of a will, be eligible through state inheritance laws.

Title— Evidence (usually in the form of a certificate or deed) of a person's legal right to ownership of a property.

Transfer Taxes— Taxes levied on the transfer of property or on real estate loans by state and/or local jurisdictions.

Veterans Administration (VA)— A federal agency that insures mortgage loans with very liberal down payment requirements for honorably discharged veterans and their surviving spouses.

Walk-Through— A final inspection of a home before settlement to search for problems that need to be corrected before ownership changes hands.

Warranty— A promise, either written or implied, that the material and workmanship of a product is defect-free or will meet a specified level of performance over a specified period of time. Written warranties on new homes are either backed by insurance companies or by the builders themselves.

Zoning— Regulations established by local governments regarding the location, height, and use for any given piece of property within a specific area.

ANSON

Vacation house is a 'natural'

Simple, compact design and ample living space make the Anson an ideal vacation home or recreational rental. Three bedrooms and one and a half baths provide comfort for families or vacation parties in a cottage with less than 1,400 square feet of floor space.

The living room, with its fireplace and outside views on three sides, is the activity center of the house. Front and back doors open into this space, and the stairs go up to the second floor left of the main entrance. The upstairs landing has doors right and left to bedrooms. A half-bath, straight ahead, conveniently serves both the upstairs bedrooms and the living room.

Some might find the Anson too spartan for their tastes. There is no master suite, no rambling kitchen. But then the amenities of this house are focused on the environment outside.

Besides the ample use of glass downstairs, the most striking exterior feature is the sun deck with gingerbread railing that wraps around 2 1/2 sides of the house. The front entrance and the back doors from the living room and dining room all open onto this long porch.

Upstairs, the third bedroom opens onto a balcony with matching rail that overhangs the living room windows, and is itself protected by the soaring gable of the steep roof.

The Anson is not a house for holing up in. The owner of this cottage should have an attractive site to build on, and the inclination to enjoy it.

For a study kit of the Anson (107-15), send $5 to Today's Home, P.O. Box 2832-T Eugene, Oregon 97402. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.)

500 ANIMALS ADOPT A PET LOVABLE dogs and cats need good homes. For adoption information call: Northern Suburbs Animal Welfare League Volunteer at 777-5110 or 463-7422.

PLEASE DON'T DELAY! SPAY or NEUTER YOUR PET TODAY!

An altered pet is a healthier and happier companion. Also, it spares you the grief and pain of having puppies and kittens destroyed when no homes can be found. Countless numbers of sweet, innocent little ones are euthanized every day in shelters across the country because a pet wasn't spayed or neutered. If we cut down on the numbers of unwanted litters being born, we will also cut down on the number of abandoned, lost and unwanted animals to destroy.

WE WILL BE HAPPY TO PROVIDE ADVICE as well as a LIST OF ECONOMIC SERVICE SOURCES. Call us at: 891-7188

The radical gift to give

Here comes Santa Claus

Ready or not Santa's on his way. His arrival is scheduled for Friday, November 23 at the end of the fourteenth annual Santa Parade, sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Village Merchants Association. This year's parade will begin at 10:30 a.m. in front of Grosse Pointe South High School and proceed up Fisher to Kercheval and down Kercheval to the Village. Over 10,000 people are expected to be in attendance.

HARD PRESSED FOR A GIFT IDEA? Consider The Singer Magic Press™ or Magic Steam Press™, which cuts ironing time in half.

The perfect gift can be used all year

Holiday time provides the opportunity to pamper loved ones with special gifts and provide an easier alternative to chores, or the chance to help them expand a hobby.

Here are some suggestions from Singer Sewing Company for gifts that will be remembered long after the wrapping paper is discarded.

- A workbench or tool set is perfect for the do-it-yourselfer or retiree looking for a creative outlet.

- Another creative gift is the Quantum™ XL-1 by Singer. This electronic sewing machine makes sewing easier and more creative than ever with over 190 built-in stitches, including built-in script and block alphabets, one-step buttonholer and the widest stitch width available. This machine is the ultimate gift for that extra special sewer.

- A microwave oven is the perfect gift for the family on the go. Meals and snacks can be cooked in a snap, allowing time for more pleasurable pursuits.

- Items for speeding up chores are certain to be appreciated for years to come. An at-home ironing press such as the Magic Press™ or Magic Steam Press™ from Singer can cut ironing time by as much as 50 percent with professional results.

- A high quality vacuum cleaner can make housecleaning a breeze. Deluxe versions that include filtering systems, like the SSMC Quantum V935 with its exclusive triple bypass system, actually cut down on the dust in the air.

- For the kids on your list, consider music or dance lessons, which can provide a lifelong hobby and potentially expose a hidden talent.

Remember, by selecting a gift that will get lots of use, not a passing fad, your thoughtfulness will not only be remembered all year long, but for years to come.

Distinctive Collection

What a selection of gifts! Fabulous fabrics - silks, wools, leathers, suedes, cashmeres, Scrumptious colors, Impeccable tailoring, Exquisite accent pieces, And designers such as...

Augustus
Julie Duroche
Victor Costa
Raul Blanco
Michael Simon
Creative Creations
M & N by Katasi
Brought to Grosse Pointe just for your shopping convenience.

You'll enjoy this shopping experience, complete with every amenity - gift wrap, delivery, gift certificates but most of all, personal attention and helpful suggestions.

KEEP ENERGY COSTS FROM GOING OUT THE WINDOW.

We replace old, drafty windows with new Marvin windows and new Low E glass. A perfect combination to keep the money that you spend on heating your home from flying out the window.

Energy-saving Low E glass lets sunlight in, and a special coating bounces heat back into your room. Low E glass also helps keep the color in your carpets and curtains from fading so your furnishings will last longer.

Marvin windows are tight and Low E glass keeps heat from going out the window. Well, they almost certainly will pay for themselves in reduced energy costs.

Contact Pointe Windows Inc. for a complete demonstration of Marvin products.

HOUSEHOLD FIRES OCCUR EVERY 50 SECONDS in the United States. Since the risk is even greater at Christmastime, take the following precautions to keep your house safe: Keep Christmas trees away from heat, check wiring and fireplaces, and invest in a UL-rated safe such as this one from Sentry. It will keep family heirlooms, tax records, and other important documents from going up in smoke.

Exercise can relieve stress

The holiday season is upon us and with it the excitement, fun and, all too often, the tension of seasonal demands. It seems that there are never enough hours in the day to share the holiday spirit with friends and family, or to fit in our regular workouts. Between shopping malls, parties, office functions and community events, it's easy to leave our commitment to exercise behind in the wake of the season's jubilation.

In making your personal choices this season, The President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports suggests that you consider the increasing evidence in support of exercise as a means of reducing stress and promoting relaxation. The holidays may just be a time when you need exercise the most.

Compared to the physical benefits of exercise, such as reduced body fat and increased flexibility, strength and endurance, the psychological rewards of exercise are elusive. Regular exercisers report a variety of benefits, such as feeling better, improved sleep patterns and less tension, depression and anxiety. However, these testimonies are often difficult to quantify and document. Research is just now catching up to the many personal claims that physical activity and fitness reduce stress.

When you feel stressed, you are reacting to the world around you and your body prepares itself to deal with the cause. Your heart rate and blood pressure increase, muscles tighten and you may get headaches and back pain. Related emotional tensions such as irritability, anger and depression often follow.

Exactly how physical activity relieves stress is not completely understood. But, consider the responses to regular exercise—reduced heart rate and blood pressure, increased flexibility and reduced muscle tension. The benefits are exactly the reverse of some of the common stress responses.

One theory supporting the role of activity in reducing stress is that exercise burns up the hormones produced by the body when it's under stress. Possibly, the person who exercises is better able to resist these stress byproducts. Or perhaps, stressful situations do not represent as much harm to the athletic person as they do to the sedentary.

The extra energy boost from a well designed workout can add more vigor to your holiday season, giving you the stamina you need to get through your action-packed days.

Runners have long reported the "runner's high" feeling they get from their workouts. This has been tied to the production of endorphins, the body's natural pain killers produced during longterm endurance exercise which cause an overall feeling of well-being.

"Whether you are interested in the short-term effects of a workout in reducing your daily anxiety, or the longterm effects of training to make your body better able to counter stress before it builds up, keeping up your exercise during the holidays will help.

However, don't let your workout become a source of stress. There is just so much you can do and if you're not enjoying your exercise program, it's time for a change. Don't be afraid to relax this season and have fun. Remember, there are many ways to be active, including dancing, skating and skiing, and this just may be the time of year to take a break from your regular routine and try something new. Whatever your choice, make it a safe one and have a happy, healthy holiday season.

GUARANTEED TO DELIGHT ANY LITTLE GIRL: "Friends Forever," by Pacific® Home Products, featuring a pink background, heart-shaped frames of Minnie Mouse are interspersed with an array of polka dots and bows, accentuated with ruffled borders.

A child's dream bedroom

This Christmas, you can brighten a child's world with the playful antics of Mickey Mouse and friends starring on bright new bed ensembles.

Walt Disney bed ensembles, available exclusively from Wamsutta/Pacific® Home Products, make an ideal gift that is practical as well as playful. Six different twin-size bed sets include sheets, pillowcases and comforters, with window treatments available in some patterns.

"Unlike some characters whose popularity comes and goes, the Disney characters are classics who have delighted children and adults for five decades," says Deirdre McGovern, public relations manager for Wamsutta/Pacific. "Each pattern was designed to appeal to the special personalities and interests of kids."

A child's imagination soars in Fancy Flyers when Mickey Mouse and friends sail across blue skies and white clouds in hot air balloons and parachutes. Creating a totally different mood, Marvelous Minnie portrays this adorable character as a teenager, dressing up, talking on the phone and playing her tape recorder.

Romance blossoms in True Love, a two-print ensemble featuring the cartoon couple in coordinating large and small-scale designs in crimson and white on a blue background. Guaranteed to delight any little girl, Friends Forever shows a lovable Minnie in a heart-shaped frame in a frilly and feminine ensemble in tones of pink, orchid and aqua with bows, polka dots, hearts and ruffles.

In the Wamsutta Collection, Mickey is Caught Napping in a large-scale pattern in bright, primary colors on a white background. And appealing to playful adults as well as to children, Mickey Mouse silhouettes the cartoon character in purple, green, turquoise and orange in a checkerboard pattern on a black background.

"Walt Disney bed ensembles make an ideal gift to brighten a child's environment, adding personality, creativity and fun to a room," Ms. McGovern says. "Unlike many toys that are quickly discarded, the ensembles are versatile and long-lasting. The bright, bold patterns are also easy to care for with no-iron fabrics that can withstand repeated washings."

The Walt Disney bed ensembles are available from Wamsutta/Pacific Home Products at fine chain and department stores across the country. HG903912

Double the fun of conversation this Christmas

Bicycles built for two, which have been around for generations, now are of interest largely for their novelty appeal. The telephone built for two, however, is a recent telecommunications innovation that's sure to be an attention-grabber this holiday season...and it's equally sure to remain useful for years to come.

The Swatch Twin Phone, spotlighted on NBC's Today Show last year as one of the "Best Bets for Christmas '89," quickly proved to be one of the season's sell out hits, and plans call for doubling the available supply for Christmas, 1990.

A creative innovation from Swatch, the company that permanently altered the face of time-telling with the introduction of innovative, brightly-colored watches just a few years ago, the Twin Phone allows two people to speak on the same telephone line at the same time.

One person talks and listens on the ordinary handset; the other person talks and listens on the additional handset built into the specially-designed base. What better way to double the fun of any telephone conversation—and of gift-giving—this holiday season?

Now it's no longer necessary to commit to memory and then repeat significant details of an important phone call. Conversations with far-away family members and friends will be all the more enjoyable when shared with a loved one—and with the flexibility afforded by the Twin Phone, there's no need to be isolated in separate rooms while participating in a joint telephone conversation.

With six Deluxe and four Standard models available, there's a Twin Phone to suit the style of everyone on your gift list. The see-through neon green body of the "Limelight," which features a built-in light; the clean, high-tech styling of the tone-on-tone "Black Domino," the multi-colored design of "Puzzle Pieces," in shades of violet, yellow, aqua, and pink, and the striking "Morse Code," in grey, with highlights of yellow and blue are but a few of the choices available for Christmas giving.

All models feature the Swiss quality that characterizes all Swatch products, and all are tone and pulse-compatible, and have re-dial and mute buttons. Deluxe models, in addition to a standard 20-telephone number memory, are equipped with an exciting alternative: a name dialing function. This special feature makes it possible to program names instead of telephone numbers for extra-easy access to those you call often. Calling a friend named Bill, for instance, can be as simple as dialing "B-I-L-L."

Because they are affordably priced at about $50.00 for Standard models and $70.00 for Deluxe models, purchasing a Twin Phone doesn't need to upset your holiday budget—in fact, you might want to consider giving two twin phones for double the fun. And remember, when you give a Twin Phone to your favorite couple, the recipients can even have the pleasure of thanking you at the same time!

New skin care line is a perfect gift for gentlemen

If it seems the successful gentleman on your holiday list is impossible to buy for, the perfect gift for him may be the European technique for maintaining healthy skin.

From the age of 25, especially in men, skin cell production begins to slow. The skin absorbs less oxygen and produces less elastin and collagen. Harmful UV rays, stress and air pollution all accelerate premature aging.

But a new skin care system has just been introduced to the U.S. Bearing the world-famous name of international connoisseur Zino Davidoff, Skin Care for Men has just arrived at Davidoff's New York Store at 535 Madison Avenue.

The gentle face scrub has a formula that helps slough off dead skin layers, remove dirt and oil, and prevent clogged pores and ingrown hairs. The daily face cleanser forms a slightly foaming, deep cleansing emulsion that purifies the skin, yet respects the skin's natural pH balance. After shaving, a skin comfort treatment clarifies the surface of the skin.

The Davidoff of Geneva store fills phone orders from throughout the U.S. via a toll-free number, 1-800-548-4623. For a free sample of the Active Face Moisturizer, gift-givers may write to Davidoff, 535 Madison Ave., New York, NY 10022. (Please enclose a $3.00 check or money order to Davidoff, Inc. for postage and handling.)

For cooks and food lovers, cookbooks out just in time for the holidays

To gather inspiration for holiday meals or ideas for gifts for friends who are gastronomes, peruse a new cookbook series published this fall, entitled the Fireside Cookbook Classics. The line will contain previously published cookbooks that are now out of print or generally unavailable to the buying public.

"These books were selected for their ability to be as at home on a bedside table as they are in the kitchen," says Sydney Miner of Fireside Books.

The first three titles to be published are Alexandre Dumas' Dictionary of Cuisine, The Cuisine of the Sun and The Cuisine of the Rose.

Containing more than 200 recipes adapted to the American kitchen, The Cuisine of the Sun, by Mireille Johnston, displays the flavorful taste of the south of France.

From chickpea and sage soup to country paté, this cookbook presents not only delicious recipes, but also the local lore of the country, thereby adding history and intrigue to the special dishes described.

The wonderfully distinctive cuisine of the different regions is part of what makes France so special. The Cuisine of the Rose, also by Mireille Johnston, is a unique cookbook that offers classical French cooking from Burgundy and Lyonnais. Featuring regional cooking at its best, and known for their marinades and sauces, these regions also harbor a wide range of fabulous recipes passed down through the years.

Burgundy is home to famous, sought-after wines and draws both amateur and professional connoisseurs from every country.

From thick cheese soups and seasoned salads to entrées and decadent desserts that are the envy of neighboring countries, this cookbook offers an array of tantalizing dishes.

What's the weather on the slopes?

Get ski smart. Whether you're heading to your favorite local mountain or traveling to a slope across the country, you only need to remember one number for accurate ski reports anywhere in the U.S.: 1-900-WEATHER, the telephone weather service from American Express.

From the day the slopes open, all the way through the spring skiing season, a call to 1-900-WEATHER provides slope and weather conditions for more than 150 ski resorts, large and small, all across America.

1-900-WEATHER offers a wide range of ski information including slope conditions, depth of the base, amount of new snow, number of trails open and lifts operating. You will hear whether snow is powder, machine made, icy, windblown or anything in between. The ski reports also incorporate data on closed resorts that plan to open on the following weekend, whether gondolas and trams are operating, and if night skiing is available.

"Skiers want a quick way to find the best skiing. 1-900-WEATHER offers a simple way to get the information you need to decide where to go, whether to go, what to wear, and what equipment to bring," said Jeff Bander, vice president at American Express.

1-900-WEATHER is easy to use. Just press 1-900-WEATHER from your touch tone phone, and then punch in the area code for the city nearest your favorite ski area. For example, you press 303 for Denver, Colorado or 802 for Rutland, Vermont. After hearing the weather forecast for that location, you can get local area ski reports for nearby slopes in alphabetical order. For example, Denver includes reports for Arapahoe Basin, Breckenridge, Keystone, Winter Park, and others; Rutland includes Killington, Mt. Snow, Okemo, Stratton, and others.

Before heading to any ski area, you can check road conditions by calling 1-900-WEATHER to hear statewide weather-related highway reports for the 48 contiguous states.

"1-900-WEATHER's ski and highway reports are valuable for all types of skiers, including weekend vacationers from out of state, area residents and business travelers who want to take advantage of time near the mountains," Bander said. "1-900-WEATHER operates 24 hours a day, seven days a week, so skiers can call at their convenience."

1-900-WEATHER provides up-to-the-minute weather information for more than 600 cities in the U.S. and worldwide. Accu-Weather®, the world's leading private weather service, supplies 1-900-WEATHER with new weather information every hour. Ski information is updated daily. Calls cost just 75 cents a minute. (Some hotels, businesses and all pay phones currently block access to 900 numbers.)

For a free booklet that lists ski areas and their access cities covered by 1-900-WEATHER, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: 1-900-WEATHER Ski Booklet, 240 Madison Avenue, 11th floor, New York, NY 10016.

A hearty Thanksgiving menu that celebrates American food

Thanksgiving is the ultimate celebration of classic American food and cooking. Fresh, in-season ingredients and lots of time and care make this a truly special feast. Even people who are so busy that their usual dinner is take-out Chinese food or a microwaved frozen pizza spend days planning, shopping and cooking for Thanksgiving dinner.

Traditional recipes passed from one generation to the next are an essential part of Thanksgiving, but sometimes a new dish adds a welcome spark of variety to the celebration. The menu below can be used as is or as a source of inspiration for creating a unique meal. When planning the meal, be sure to take into account the number of guests who will be attending.

ROAST TURKEY WITH WILD RICE STUFFING

- 1 small turkey (about 8 pounds), domestic or wild
- 1/2 large lemon
- 1/2 cups (3 sticks) butter, melted
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 Freshly ground black pepper to taste
- Wild Rice Stuffing (recipe follows)
- 2 tablespoons Madeira
- Pinch of dried thyme
- Pinch of dried rosemary
- 2 tablespoons heavy cream

Preheat the oven to 500° F.

Rub the surface and cavity of the turkey with the lemon, then thoroughly coat the surface with some of the melted butter, using a basting brush. Salt and pepper the bird inside and out. Lightly stuff with the Wild Rice Stuffing and sew up the opening. Place the turkey in a roasting pan just large enough to hold it.

In a small saucepan, mix the Madeira with the rest of the butter and bring to a boil. Add the thyme and rosemary. Reserve for basting.

Roast the turkey uncovered for 10 minutes. Turn the heat down to 350° F. and continue to roast for 2 hours (15 minutes per pound), basting frequently until the turkey is nicely browned and tender. During the last 10 minutes of cooking, baste the bird with the cream.

To take to an outdoor dinner, transfer the turkey to a large piece of double-thickness foil and wrap well. Put into a plastic bag, wrap in several layers of newspaper, and place in an insulated carrier. The turkey will stay warm for up to 2 hours.

Serves 8 or more

WILD RICE STUFFING

- 1/2 cup (1 stick) butter
- 4 chicken livers
- 2 tablespoons brandy
- 1/4 cup finely chopped shallots
- 1/4 cup finely chopped red onion
- 2 cups wild rice, well washed
- 4 1/2 cups chicken stock
- 1/2 cup chopped celery
- 1/2 cup chopped green bell pepper
- 1 1/2 cups coarsely chopped cooked chestnuts
- 1/2 cup minced fresh parsley
- 1/2 pound pork sausage, cooked, crumbled, and drained on paper toweling
- 1 cup toasted coarse bread crumbs
- 1/2 teaspoon cayenne (ground red) pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 Freshly ground black pepper

Melt 2 tablespoons of the butter in a small frying pan. Add the chicken livers and cook over low heat for 6 minutes, or until they are lightly browned and still pink inside. Remove the livers and deglaze the pan with the brandy. Add any liquid and browned bits to the chicken livers.

In a large, heavy-bottomed pot, melt 4 tablespoons of the butter and cook the shallots and onion over gentle heat for about 5 minutes, or until they are soft. Stir in the wild rice, stock, celery, and green pepper. Bring to a boil, reduce heat, cover and simmer for 40 to 50 minutes, or until the rice is tender and the stock has been absorbed.

Off the heat, stir in the chestnuts, parsley, sausage, and remaining butter. Coarsely chop the chicken livers and stir them into the rice along with the bread crumbs, cayenne, salt, and pepper to taste.

Makes 8 cups.

For a colorful—and nutritious—side dish, try Spaghetti Squash Confetti. This recipe is taken from the American Diabetes Association's Special Celebrations and Parties Cookbook, (Prentice Hall Press) by Betty Wedman. Anyone planning a meal for a diabetic friend or relative will do well to consult this book when planning the menu.

SPAGHETTI SQUASH CONFETTI

Yield: 4 1/2-cup servings

- 1 3-pound spaghetti squash
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1 tablespoon wine vinegar
- 1 tablespoon chopped pimento
- 1/2 cup chopped green pepper
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1 small clove garlic, minced
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cumin
- 1/4 cup minced fresh parsley

Cook squash in a microwave oven, a conventional oven, or by steaming in a saucepan. Split and remove seeds. Pull out flesh with a fork. Reserve shell. Toss to separate strands. Add remaining ingredients and stuff into shell. Bake in a 350-degree oven for 10 to 15 minutes or until hot. Serve warm or cold.

SWEET POTATO FLANS

Makes 10 servings

Preparation: 20 to 25 minutes

Cooking: About 1 hour

- 1 1/4 pounds sweet potatoes
- 3 eggs
- 3 egg yolks
- 1 to 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1/2 cup hot (170 degrees) melted unsalted butter
- Salt and ground white pepper
- Nutmeg
- Hot red pepper sauce
- 3 tablespoons softened unsalted butter

1. Put potatoes in 4-quart soup kettle; cover with cold water. Cover and boil until potatoes are soft, about 35 to 40 minutes. Drain, cool, peel, and cut potatoes into 1 1/2-inch chunks; set aside.

2. Put eggs, egg yolks, and 1 tablespoon lemon juice in a food processor fitted with the metal blade. Process, adding hot melted butter. Pulse in 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/8 teaspoon pepper, a pinch of nutmeg, and several dashes hot pepper sauce. Adjust seasoning to taste.

3. Add half the potatoes and process until minced. Add remaining potatoes and process to a fine, silky puree. Adjust seasoning, adding lemon juice, salt, pepper, nutmeg, and hot red pepper sauce to taste.

4. Adjust oven rack to lowest position. Heat oven to 350 degrees. Use softened butter to generously coat ten 1/2-cup porcelain ramekins or heatproof custard cups. Spoon puree into the molds. Cover each mold with a buttered wax-paper square, buttered side down.

5. Put filled molds in a baking dish lined with a thin tea towel. Add enough hot tap water to reach halfway up the sides of the molds (do not allow dishes to float). Bake 30 to 35 minutes. (Can turn off oven, leave door ajar, cover with foil, and keep warm for 30 minutes.)

6. To serve, remove wax paper, and loosen each flan from its mold by carefully passing a thin knife around the inside edge. Carefully invert the molds on warm plates. Serve immediately.

For many people, pumpkin pie is the best part of the Thanksgiving feast. The recipe reproduced below is from Kathleen's Bake Shop Cookbook (St. Martin's Press), a mouth-watering collection of old-fashioned, country-style goodies, by Kathleen King.

PUMPKIN PIE

- 1 unbaked 10-inch pie shell (recipe below)
- 1 egg white, lightly beaten
- 2 eggs
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 1/2 cups evaporated milk

- 1 cup granulated sugar
- 1 tablespoon ground cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
- 1/2 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 pound (2 cups) mashed fresh or solid-packed pumpkin (not pumpkin-pie filling)

1. Preheat oven to 350° F.

2. If making shell from scratch, use one-half recipe Pie Pastry. Brush bottom with egg white and set aside.

3. In a large bowl, beat eggs. Add milk and evaporated milk and mix. Add sugar, cinnamon, ginger, cloves, nutmeg, and salt. Mix well. Add pumpkin and mix again. Pour mixture into prepared pie shell.

4. Bake for 1 hour, or until filling feels firm when lightly pressed with fingertip. Remove pan to wire rack and cool. Serve with whipped cream if desired.

Yield: one 10-inch pie.

PIE PASTRY

- 1 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup butter
- 3 tablespoons cold water
- 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice

1. In a medium-sized bowl combine flour and salt. Cut in butter with a pastry blender, two knives, or with your hands. When mixture is the size of peas, add water and lemon juice. Toss gently with a fork.

2. Divide pastry into two equal halves. Roll out one half on a lightly floured surface, in a circle 3 inches larger than the pie pan you plan on using. Fit round into pie pan and either flute edges by turning excess underneath around the edges of the rim, or leave as is for a double-crust pie.

3. For a top crust, roll out second half the same size and shape and place over filling. Seal edges; trim and flute as desired.

Yield: enough pastry for a double-crust pie.

AMERICANS have an insatiable appetite for "collectibles." With this in mind, it's no wonder the hot ticket gifts this holiday season are those you can collect. Clocks continue to be classic collectibles and the perfect gift. They're memorable, meaningful and can be used in virtually every room in the house. Howard Miller Clock Company, the world's leading fine clock manufacturer, suggests you consider giving an heirloom quality clock. Craftsmanship endures and what endures becomes collectible. It can be a stately grandfather clock, handsome mantel clock or radiant anniversary clock. The brass and glass Howard Miller design shown here features a regal triple finial crown, plays the Westminster chime on the hour and beautifies the home or office it graces. CAR ACCESSORIES make super stocking stuffers. These practical Christmas gifts can add sparkle and safety to any car, old or new.

Wipe away gift giving blues

Do you have someone on your Christmas list who's impossible to buy for? Does he or she have a car? Automotive accessories and products are not all dull hub caps and carburetors—many accessories add zip to the old family wagon or improve safety and vision during inclement weather.

"Car accessories make ideal Christmas stocking stuffers for anyone who drives a car, whether it be your grandmother or your car buff brother," says Jennifer Runyeon, president of Lifetime Automotive Products, Inc. in Dallas, Texas. "Mail order car care items are especially convenient gifts for those friends and relatives living out of town, since they can be delivered directly."

Consider SpectraBlade™, the world's first colored windshield wiper squeegee. The blades are made of durable Dow-Corning silicone and are guaranteed for "as long as you own your car."

"SpectraBlade is a fun wiper that adds color and style while improving your driving safety," Runyeon says. "The blades are available in electric neon and a variety of other popular colors that will never fade or wear out."

Another gift giving idea which is inexpensive and simple is the original TRIPLEDEGE™ Windshield Wiper. These unique wipers have multiple edges to clear, clean and squeegee for maximum visibility. These blades also come with a replacement guarantee for "as long as you own your car" and fit virtually all cars on the road today.

"The key to safe driving, especially during Christmas-time driving condi-

A perfect complement to the SpectraBlade and TRIPLEDEGE wipers is Jet Vision™, a concentrated windshield wash booster. Developed by the Society of Aeronautical Engineers, Jet Vision was originally meant for commercial and military airplanes. Only recently was it made available for autos, to clean dirt, debris and chemical buildup from windshields.

Protecting your safety during winter weather includes taking precautions from locking yourself out of the car. Being locked from your car during a winter storm or extremely cold weather is not just inconvenient, but may be hazardous to your health. The Spare-Key Locking Gas Cap™ eliminates this worry by keeping a spare key, and even money, hidden in a spare compartment. Plus, the locked gas cap means decreased chances of gas theft or tampering.

If you have worn hatch supports, loading and unloading Christmas gifts can become a painful hassle. A unique product, the Lift Saver™, keeps the hatch securely open without costly hydraulic lift replacements! Lift Saver has been engineered to support over 360 pounds and quickly snaps on to existing supports.

All of these Christmas gift ideas come with an exclusive money back guarantee and are available only from Lifetime Automotive Products, Inc. For more information, call (800) 552-5327 or write to Lifetime Automotive Products, Inc., P.O. Box 871179, Dallas, TX 75287-1179.

Choose the lasting gift of fine jewelry

When you want a gift whose beauty lasts...and lasts...when you want that gift to express your feelings...there is no gift more associated with love, sentiment, quality and lasting beauty than a gift of fine jewelry.

Created from minerals and precious metals from deep within the earth's crust, millions of years old...able to become a family heirloom for generations to come...portable enough to travel across the country, around the world, and into space...and always pleasing, adorning, making a personal statement to and about the wearer.

Jewelry is a visual as well as a sensual experience. By wearing precious metals such as gold, platinum and sterling silver, and gemstones of every hue, you feel better, are better understood, and improve your own self-image. Each time you put on a piece of fine jewelry, there is a renewed sense of enjoyment.

Trust a jeweler

Whether you want to buy a gift of jewelry for a loved one or for yourself, for more information about fine jewelry, see a local jeweler whom you know and trust. He or she will be able to show you a wide variety of styles based upon your needs, budget and preferences.

In addition to offering a wide selection, a jeweler can explain the many factors that determine the value and, subsequently, the price placed on an item. Not only is the weight of the precious metal and size, number and type of gemstones considered, but the intricacy of design determines the type of workmanship necessary.

Building a "jewelry wardrobe"

Your jeweler can also show you how to build a "jewelry wardrobe" to suit your personal sense of style. And, when your jewelry pieces need servicing, such as a professional cleaning, new clasps or pearl re-stringing, your jeweler will be there to help you maintain the beauty and life of your pieces.

For free brochures offering information about diamonds, pearls, gemstones, appraisals, and many other facets of fine jewelry, write to Jewelers of America, Dept. MC90, 1271 Sixth Avenue, New York, NY 10020.

TO GRANDMOTHER'S HOUSE WE GO—Holiday travel by car, plane or train can be fun with the Atari Lynx, the world's first color handheld video game. An ideal gift for children and adults alike, Lynx features full-color graphics and a backlit screen for clear visibility even in a dimly-lit setting. The one-pound traveling arcade offers crisp sound, as well as a headphone jack for private playing. Lynx's interlinking cables allow up to eight people to compete simultaneously, perfect for holiday gatherings. With a wide variety of action-packed and strategic games available, Lynx game cartridges make great stocking stuffers.

Santa may get "slimed" this year delivering the much-awaited game titles just released for the Atari Lynx, the world's first color handheld video game.

"Slime World," the first eight-player game cartridge, challenges players in six slime-filled adventures. An original title, "Slime World," and two versions of popular arcade hits—"Klax" and "PaperBoy"—lead the list of new Lynx software titles that will be available by Christmas.

"This holiday season we are continuing to fuel the excitement surrounding Lynx with some of the hottest games in the video game market," says Sam Tramiel, president of Atari Computer Corporation.

The portable one-pound Lynx, introduced nationally last spring, took the video game industry by storm with its full-color graphics, fast action and sound effects that put the thrill of video arcade games in the palms of players' hands.

Like the arcade version, "Klax" challenges players to maneuver a platform to catch falling bricks and stack them directionally according to color. The strategic game features unique sound effects, such as a woman's voice, applause and screams, and increases in difficulty with each level.

In "PaperBoy," players face numerous obstacles while delivering newspapers on a paper route. For example, the player must maneuver his bicycle across a busy street, and avoid break-dancers and people mowing lawns. A bonus round also features a challenging obstacle course.

Additional Lynx games that will be released nationwide this fall include several titles based on arcade hits, such as: "RoadBlasters," in which players drive a car and collect weapons to fight off enemies; "Rampage," in which players can become one of four destructive monsters; "Xenophobe," in which players try to escape from an alien space station; and "Rygar," in which a dynamic warrior fights in action-packed battles.

"Zarlor Mercenary," an original title which features an intergalactic shootout between players and aliens, will also be introduced.

Ideal stocking stuffers, Lynx game cartridges—"Rampage," "Xenophobe," "Zarlor Mercenary," and "Slime World" have a suggested retail price of $34.99. "Rygar," "PaperBoy," "RoadBlasters," and "Klax" are priced at $39.99. The Atari Lynx has a suggested retail price of $179.99.

Lustrous cultured pearls: A present that's sure to please

ADD LUSTER TO YOUR HOLIDAY GIFT-GIVING. With the variety of cultured pearl jewelry styles that are available, there's cultured pearl jewelry to suit the budget of every gift-giver and the tastes of every recipient.

Festive gatherings with family and friends, special cooking and baking, and—especially—choosing the "perfect" gift for each of our loved ones, are all part of Americans' tradition-filled Christmas celebrations.

In the midst of the holiday hub-bub, finding the time to select the just-right present for each person on your gift list can be a particular challenge. But, with the variety of cultured pearl jewelry styles that are available, it's easy to enjoy the convenience of one-stop shopping.

Imparting a look of classic elegance that is both timely and timeless, cultured pearl jewelry is sure to be treasured by everyone on your gift list.

A versatile accessory

For women, these exquisite gems of nature are fashioned into uniquely-shaped brooches and pins, necklaces in a variety of lengths, chokers, bracelets and earrings. The versatility of cultured pearl jewelry provides the perfect complement to a wide range of clothes and styles. Whether an occasion calls for a casual look, or for one that's elegantly formal, cultured pearl accessories are sure to add the perfect touch.

For men, cultured pearl tie bars, cuff links and lapel pins add subtle, yet striking, ornamentation to a stylish wardrobe.

A teenage—or younger—daughter or granddaughter will cherish a simple cultured pearl pendant or a string of five-millimeter cultured pearls. Or, you might want to choose this Christmas as the time to give your favorite little girl an add-a-pearl necklace. Add a cultured pearl on subsequent special occasions, and soon she'll have a full necklace—and lots of happy memories.

While the versatility of cultured pearl jewelry enhances its inherent value, you can ensure that the gift you have chosen will have long-lasting value by selecting the highest quality pearls you can afford.

Appraising quality

There are five important qualities to look for when selecting cultured pearl jewelry: luster, size, color, shape and surface.

Luster is a deep inner glow which only real pearls have, whether cultured or natural. Look for luster in the shadowed areas of the pearl, so that you don't mistake surface shininess for true luster.

Generally, the larger the pearl, the higher its price, but a dull, lusterless large pearl is usually less valuable than a smaller pearl with greater luster.

Cultured pearls come in a variety of colors, from rose, white and cream, to silver, blue and black. Good quality cultured pearls should have a rich undertone, and the color should be even and not blotchy.

There is as great a variety of shapes available as there are colors. Few pearls, natural or cultured, are perfectly symmetrical. Nevertheless, the closer a pearl comes to this ideal, the more value it holds.

An absence of flaws in the surface of a cultured pearl is another significant sign of superior quality. Avoid pearls with disfiguring spots, cracks and blemishes.

A beautiful investment that will be enjoyed for years to come, there is cultured pearl jewelry to suit the budget of every gift-giver and the tastes of every recipient—making cultured pearl jewelry the perfect choice for Christmas giving.

YOUR FRIENDS WILL NEVER STOP THANKING YOU for giving them SpinRite II, the computer software gift that will ease their concerns about losing data stored on the hard disk in their personal computers.

The personal computer gift everyone is talking about

Anyone who has a personal computer with a hard disk knows the fear associated with losing valuable data that is stored on the disk due to a problem with the disk. What gift would be more appreciated than an inexpensive software product that can eliminate that fear? Such a product now exists...SpinRite II (Ver 1.1) from Gibson Research Corp.

Available through your local computer store, or direct from Gibson Research Corp., SpinRite II inspects your hard disk, recovers data that you thought was lost forever, and writes that data to a safe part of the disk. In addition, it tells the computer to never put data in those defective locations in the future.

SpinRite II also checks to see if the disk has developed any alignment problems. If so, it automatically rewrites the data tracks on the disk so that they will once again be properly located for perfect operation.

It also makes additional adjustments to help your disk drive run better and faster. The product is so easy to use that you hardly need to read the manual.

SpinRite II, at $89, is a holiday gift that your friends and relatives who own personal computers will appreciate for years to come.

For further information, contact Gibson Research Corp. at 22991 La Cadena, Laguna Hills, CA 92653. Phone: (800) 736-0637.

THIS HOLIDAY SEASON, consider a gift that will hold a child's attention into the new year and beyond. Introduce your child to a whole new world with a gift of learning from World Book.

Avoid fads: Give a child the gift of learning

Sometimes the box keeps a child's attention longer than the gift inside. Or a child asks for months for a toy that's been advertised, only to leave it forgotten by New Year's Day. These scenarios are a part of most families' holidays, but they don't have to be.

Parents want kids to have fun, but more and more they also want gifts that foster a love of learning. Here are some quick questions to ask before making your gift selection for that special child. Following simple guidelines can help make the gift you choose more meaningful.

Five questions to ask

1. Will it keep a child's attention after the holiday season? No one wants to give a gift that will end up in the back of a closet. So why buy an "in" gift when it will fade "out" in a month? One fad gift in a holiday season is certainly enough for any child. Make sure your gift is practical and useful. Test the product yourself. Does it keep your interest? If not, it probably won't hold a child's attention either.

2. Is the gift well made? By investing in a good quality product you can prevent spending money on replacements or repairs. Check with friends or relatives about their satisfaction with a product's quality and durability.

3. Is it a good value? Shopping around helps. Remember to check the quality of each item. The lowest price is not necessarily worth it, so compare carefully with similar products.

4. Is it appropriate for the child's age and interests? Look for a fun gift that will stimulate interest and creativity. Make sure the item is not designed for a younger child, or is not too advanced.

5. Will it help your child learn? Expanding a child's knowledge can be a great benefit in gift giving. Educational toys and books promote learning and creativity and are entertaining. Before buying, look to product reviewers for advice.

World Book suggests one gift that's a little different. "A book is a rare gift that teaches as it entertains," says nationally known reading expert, author and consultant Dr. Alvin Granowsky, World Book vice president, school and library services.

"Reading fosters the active use of a child's imagination," says Dr. Granowsky. "And a child who has an encyclopedia, a dictionary and lots of other reading materials around the home seems to do better in school than someone who doesn't have these resources."

Gift ideas for all ages

Here are some gift ideas that will last long after the holiday festivities have passed...

Early World of Learning®: (Preschool) This research-based program, including more than 100 items such as story books, audio cassettes and activity books, focuses on the 105 skills and concepts teachers deem "desirable" for children to acquire before they reach kindergarten.

Childcraft—The How and Why Library with Childcraft Dictionary: (Preschool and elementary grades) A 15-volume children's learning library, with an 11,000 word dictionary, provides learning enrichment in the early formative years. "About Animals," "Places to Know" and "How Things Work" are just a few of the volumes included.

The World Book Encyclopedia: (Elementary through adult) This best-selling, comprehensive, 22-volume reference has more than 14,000 pages. It is curriculum-coordinated and includes 1,800 entries, 29,000 photographs and illustrations, and more than 2,300 maps.

Information Finder™ by World Book: (Elementary through adult) This compact-disc, read only memory (CD-ROM) reference based on The World Book Encyclopedia runs on IBM and IBM-compatible computers, contains 17,000 articles and 139,000 World Book Dictionary entries. For more information, call World Book Customer Service, toll free, at (800) 621-8202 or write to World Book Educational Products, 101 Northwest Point Boulevard, Elk Grove Village, Illinois 60007. Look for a World Book representative in your area under "Encyclopedias" in the telephone book.

HOT TOYS THAT WON'T BREAK THE BANK—New from Playskool, Pretty Cut 'N Grow lets preschoolers cut and style their dolls' hair and then make it grow again.

Great holiday toys that are easy on the budget

Nearly $9 billion will be spent on toys during this holiday shopping season, according to the Toy Manufacturers of America. But that doesn't mean you have to break the bank to find fun and safe toys.

Here's a list of baby and preschool toys—all under $20—that are sure to bring joy to the little ones on your list.

Gifts for baby

Toddlers can follow the bumpin' ball for lots of hoppin', boppin', arcade-like action with the new Bumpin' Busy Box, a first-of-its-kind, stand-up floor toy. Kids can put the fun into motion two ways: Drop the rattling ball down the busy box to watch the monkey, giraffe, bear and seal shapes dance; or, activate the animal shapes manually for lots of hands-on play. There's always a surprise as children guess which colorful door the ball will come out.

For the handy little helpers around the house, the new Busy Workshop offers 14 fun activities and sounds. Kids will be busy with this colorful, compact, easy-to-carry, well-stocked workbench that features a buzzing, slide-along play saw, rattling hammer, pretend paintbrush, and lots of nuts and bolts for sorting and stacking play.

Playskool Baby is introducing two new Squeaker Books for the holidays: A Holly Jolly Story and A Very Merry Christmas. Both are made of soft, durable vinyl, feature stimulating graphics for baby and make a delightful squeaking sound with every squeeze.

During the holiday and throughout the year, two colorful, easy-to-grasp rattles will amuse babies. The Holly Jolly Rattle makes a soft rattling sound and is offered in three festive styles. Made of soft terry cloth fabric, the Holly Jolly Grabber Rattle features the happy face of Santa and makes a cheerful rattling sound when shaken.

Babies can wear Baby Mickey and Baby Minnie, Big Bird and Cookie Monster, and Santa style bibs for easy cleanup during mealtime. In the crib or at family celebrations, PlayJ's outfits feature new, festive designs for playtime or nighttime.

And, to soothe baby to sleep after a busy day, activate Playskool's new Musical Lullabye Bird. This music-filled electronic bird plays a sweet nursery song with just a touch from baby, or can be set for 20 minutes of continuous music.

Gifts for the preschooler

Pretty Cut 'N Grow has hair little girls can cut and style, and then make grow again. Because the doll has replaceable yarn hair, kids will enjoy creating lots of fancy hairstyles over and over again. Each doll comes dressed in a floral party dress and includes two yarn wigs, barrettes, comb and safety scissors.

My Buddy and Kid Sister have been children's favorites year after year. My Buddy is a little boy's special friend that's tough enough for rough 'n tumble fun and soft enough for lots of bear hugs. Kid Sister is soft for cuddly moments and afternoon tea parties and rough enough for playtime, too.

And to top off the holiday shopping list, here's a gift that will keep young designers busy all year. It's Sew Easy, a pretend sewing machine for preschoolers. With design bobbins and special washable marker spools, kids can print colorful patterns on paper and all kinds of fabric. Best of all, it's absolutely safe because it doesn't use needles or thread.

If you still have questions after you've made your list and checked it twice, call 1-800-PLAYSKL (1-800-752-9755) weekdays from 8:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M. EST for any questions about the products listed.

GIVE YOUR FAMILY A GIFT OF HEALTH this holiday season. NordicTrack recommends giving in-home exercise equipment to improve your family's health and help them feel better and look good.

Give a gift of a healthy lifestyle this holiday season

Give your family the gift of a healthy lifestyle this holiday season. NordicTrack recommends giving a piece of in-home exercise equipment to improve your family's health and help them feel good and look good.

"A balanced exercise program of strength training and cardiovascular exercises will benefit your family's mental and physical health now and for years to come," says Jim Bostic, NordicTrack president and CEO. "Now, a variety of in-home fitness equipment is available for busy people who want diversity in their workout, at an affordable price."

NordicTrack has several gift ideas for you to give your family to improve or maintain their functional strength and their cardiovascular systems. Overall body strength is important in reducing injuries and keeping members of your family looking and feeling their best. Cardiovascular fitness is essential for overall health because the heart and circulatory system supplies vital fluids that carry oxygen, nutrients and other life-sustaining substances to all organs of the body. Regular exercise also increases HDL (good) cholesterol, lowers blood pressure, helps give you more energy, improves mental capacity and protects you from heart disease.

Since cross-country skiing is considered by many experts to be the best aerobic exercise, NordicTrack suggests that you give the very best. Five models of NordicTracks, which simulate the motions of cross-country skiing, are available to fit the needs and budgets of Christmas shoppers.

The 303 provides the same excellent workout that NordicTrack is famous for, but it's economically priced at $399.

The compact 505 has a 49-pound frame, features easily adjustable resistance settings and is just $499.

The all-purpose Pro features four elevation settings for the front legs, ranging from two to 10 degrees, plus adjustable resistance settings and a time, speed and distance speedometer, for just $599.

The Achiever allows you to calculate the number of calories burned during any given workout, and is priced at $769.

likes that extra touch of class. It sells for $1,299.

For someone who wants to improve his or her overall strength, NordicTrack suggests giving the Nordic Fitness Chair or the NordicPower. The Nordic Fitness Chair comes in four models: the economical Excel; the basic Elan; the Euro; and the top-of-the-line Executive Power Chair which features a black leather-like or real leather seat.

All the models help people to maintain important upper body strength and flexibility with just six basic exercises. The Elan and Euro also feature an optional attachment for lower body exercises. The chairs are attractive, compact and styled to fit into the family room, den or any of the living areas of the home. The models range in price from $499 to $1,199.

The NordicRow TBX is a great gift for someone who wants variety in his or her exercise routine. It provides a unique total body workout that integrates both aerobic activity and resistance training for a balanced fitness program.

The TBX features split resistance for the upper and lower body that can be adjusted independently to vary resistance. Additional adjustable features allow the user to create a more challenging workout. A one-of-a-kind seat effectively manages workout stress and provides a smooth, but strenuous, workout similar to rowing. It's easy to use and people can tailor their workouts to their specific needs. The NordicRow TBX sells for $699.

The new NordicPower is a compact alternative to clunky barbells or a multi-purpose home gym. This simple all-in-one unit utilizes a rotational axis to safely and efficiently strengthen the entire body. With the NordicPower, people can maintain or increase strength of all major muscle groups with more than 20 exercises. Economically priced at $299, the NordicPower is an ideal gift for college students and those just starting out in their careers.

All NordicTrack products offer a two-year warranty and a 30-day return privilege. The equipment will be conveniently shipped to your home. For more information, or to request a copy of NordicTrack's new holiday gift catalog, call (800) 328-5888, ext. 635.

After-Christmas cleanup

DREAMING OF A CLEAN CHRISTMAS is easy with Black & Decker's new PowerPro® Heavy Duty Cordless vac (model DB6000). Featuring 75 percent more peak suction power than Black & Decker's original Dustbuster® vac, the PowerPro® Heavy Duty Cordless vac was designed to handle tough messes, like fragments of broken Christmas ornaments, with speed and ease. A high performance motor, six batteries and a more efficient fan system result in improved pick-up power. Two power settings (normal and maximum) enable this unit to tackle tough messes—it even picks up quarters and ball bearings! An advanced filter system and larger dirt bowl mean there's less need to empty the unit while cleaning. The lightweight, balanced design allows for effortless operation. The PowerPro® Heavy Duty Cordless Vac comes complete with an easy-mount storage/recharging base at a suggested retail price of $70.98.

A new toy for grandpa

EVEN GRANDFATHERS enjoy their new toys on Christmas day. The Panasonic RQ-V158 personal stereo is ideal for any age. The RQ-V158 features auto-reverse playback, a 3-band graphic equalizer and a direction switch, which allows you to change the direction of the tape at any time. Joyous music can be heard whenever you please, with the personal stereo.

The fun of sound effects

HO! HO! HO! IT'S SOUND EFFECTS FOR THE PHONE! Dress up all your holiday phone conversations with the Fun® Phone Effects™ Box! The sleekly designed box plugs into any telephone and features 15 digital sound effects that are individually activated by pushing one of the 15 buttons on the display panel. As soon as a button is pushed, the digital effect is automatically amplified directly over the phone line to the listener on the other end! Effects include a laugh, scream, baby, trumpet, bark, car horn, red alert, whip, buzzer, duck quack, elephant, doorbell, charge, rooster, and siren!

THINK ELEGANT THIS HOLIDAY SEASON with a gift from Zero Halliburton's new line of gold and silver toned aluminum handbags. Zero Halliburton has been the name behind unique, high quality aluminum travel cases for over 60 years.

New metallics for the holidays: Gifts that go on giving

There is something lovely about seasonal holiday gifts. They convey a certain magic. A glimmering crystal tree ornament from Waterford, a hand-knit stocking, cinnamon and orange pot-pourri, a festive patchwork wreath... all evoke the excitement of Christmas. Yet there is one drawback: that very seasonality that makes such a gift unique also renders it inappropriate come January 7 or so. So, what makes a seasonal holiday gift multi-seasonal? The designers at Zero Halliburton, creators of elegant and indestructible aluminum travel cases for 60 years, say, "The ability to evoke holiday excitement all year long."

In this spirit, Zero Halliburton suggests that you let gold and silver tones set the theme for your holidays. Perhaps even more than red and green, gold and silver tie into the ambience of Christmas with images of moonlit snow, brilliant starry nights, and icicles shimmering in afternoon sunlight. Yet, at the same time, gold and silver offer unusual versatility for spring, summer and fall...versatility found in Zero Halliburton's fabulous new line of women's aluminum handbags.

Just in time for the holidays, the new Executive and Classic handbags, both in satin silver and polished gold, combine superior technology with the streamlined styling of high fashion. Available in two distinctive styles, both incorporate the sleek horizontal beading and unerring proportions (9" x 12" x 4.5") that have become the hallmark of the Zero Halliburton look.

A study of elegant simplicity, the Executive is designed with a slim formed handle, liftup latch, and discreet round black feet to guard against wear. To complement, it offers a detachable grey or tan top grain leather shoulder strap to keep the bag secure while leaving the hands free.

The Classic takes a more fashion-forward approach, with a cool lucite handle, slide-release opening button, translucent feet, and gray or tan top grain leather shoulder strap.

The Executive and Classic are the newest additions to a distinguished family of quality carrying cases. Now with the re-emergence of metallics as a key fashion element, Zero Halliburton brings unparalleled know-how to women's accessories. Sporting dress-up/dress-down classic styling, lightweight indestructibility and capacious, tapestry-lined interior, the Executive and Classic are ideal gold and silver theme-setters for the most dazzling Christmas and for many seasons and years to come.

Santa's calling

GIVE A JINGLE—Busy holiday hosts won't miss season's greetings from friends and family with the PhoneMate Model 3900 telephone answering machine. An ideal gift, the compact Model 3900 offers one-touch operation for playing and saving messages, recording greetings, and leaving memos for household members. When out holiday shopping, users can retrieve messages, as well as turn on the machine, from most touchtone phones. Additional features include automatic tollsaver and a flashing message counter.

After a hard day of delivering presents...

THIS SYSTEM BRINGS OUT THE HOLIDAY SPIRIT in everyone. The Panasonic RX-DT5 AM/FM Stereo Radio Dual Cassette Recorder with Built-in Programmable Compact Disc Player features a remote control unit, digital synthesizer tuner with 12 FM/12 AM presets, and an automatic tape level setting, which keeps your music at a level position while recording. It also contains a built-in clock/timer with sleep function for those lazybones who like to oversleep during the holidays.

Delightful gift idea

THIS HOLIDAY SEASON, surprise her with a new high-tech, all white Supercool Safety Deep Fryer from Tefal that makes delicious crispy light fried foods to delight friends and family. The new fryer features a high thermal insulation body that keeps the outside cool, which makes it the safest fryer you will ever buy. There's also a lockable lid that's hermetically sealed and hinged with safety catches to prevent spills and splashes. A viewing window lets you check food without opening the lid. The wind-down basket can be lowered or raised from outside. It's sold at leading department and specialty stores nationwide. Mabel Hoffman's new Deep Fry Cuisine cookbook is also available at some stores. Tefal's Supercool Deep Fryer has a suggested retail of $149.99. It's a truly super gift for those who enjoy golden foods.
