

Money magazine features Park as a tax bargain

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

"Grosse Pointe is the best kept secret in the Detroit area," says Rick Seymour of Grosse Pointe Park.

But it's not a secret anymore.

The entire nation learned what a tax bargain the Park is through a Money magazine article this month featuring Rick and Kathy Seymour.

The bottom line: It's cheaper, tax-wise, to live in Grosse Pointe Park than it is to live in Shelby Township.

In its January issue, Money offers tips on "How to cut all your rising taxes." As part of the series of articles, Money compared the property taxes paid by the Seymours with the taxes paid by a couple who own a comparable home in Shelby Township, a growing, affluent suburb in western Macomb County.

According to Money, the Seymours' total tax bill on their home comes to a "modest" $4,011. The Pampalona family in Shelby Township, on the other hand, pays $5,900 in property taxes on its equally priced home.

Furthermore, while the Shelby Township homeowner pays 47 percent more than the Grosse Pointe Park homeowner, Shelby doesn't provide as many services for the money.

In the Park, garbage pickup and snow plowing are provided as basic city services. In Shelby, the Pampalonas have to pay $240 a year extra for garbage pickup and $60 a year to their homeowners' association for snow plowing.

Money magazine credits the Park's ability to keep taxes down to the fact that it is a built-up community with a stable tax base. Some 75 percent of the Park's 4,200 homes are worth more than $175,000.

In Shelby Township, the population continues to rise as new homes are built. But unlike the Park where roads, water and sewers are in place, Shelby has to build its infrastructure, a cost that is spread throughout the township and drives taxes up, according to Money.

The Park City Council has been able to hold annual tax increases to 3.1 percent over the past decade, while Shelby's yearly 9 percent increases far exceeded the inflation rate.

And while Park residents such as the Seymours are satisfied with the services they're getting for their tax bucks, the Pampalonas think they should be getting more for their money.

"It's always fun to boost the Pointes," said Seymour, a computer consultant who has lived in the Pointes since 1978. He first moved to the Woods and then to the Park. "I don't know why anyone would want to live anyplace else," he said.

Park Mayor Palmer Heenan credits more than a stable tax base for the city's ability to keep costs down.

He pointed out that converting the fire

New Year's party hoax possibly nationwide scam

Assistant Editor

A 38-year-old Detroit woman who wanted to do something "different" sent in cash for admission to an advertised erotic New Year's Eve party featuring porno stars and an orgy room.

"It was to be a surprise to my husband, and I guess the surprise was on us," she told Farms police.

The steamy New Year's Eve party that was supposed to be at a home in the "Grosse Pointe Farms area" could have been part of a nationwide scam.

According to Farms Detective Daniel Jensen, the party organizers may have advertised New Year's Eve parties in major cities throughout the country, collected cash payment for tickets to the parties that were never held and then made off with the money.

Jensen said there is no way of knowing how many people were duped into sending cash, but the number of victims may be quite high. He said police will probably never know how many were involved because most victims will not file complaints.

"It's kind of embarrassing to admit to family and friends that you've been scammed out of $30

'It was to be a surprise to my husband, and I guess the surprise was on us.'

or $40," Jensen said.

Farms police first became aware of the party plans Dec. 8 and began receiving calls from people who had sent in cash for party tickets and location information did not get a response.

One of the callers gave police a telephone number that appeared in an ad in a Detroit entertainment weekly. The number belonged to a Southfield answering service and connected the caller with a taped message.

A female with a seductive voice invited callers to the "second annual Erotic New Year's Eve Party," promising a private room for couples, "heavy breathing," "Arabian Nights orgy rooms," and a Jacuzzi. Swimsuits were billed as optional.

The party was to take place at a four-bedroom Colonial in the Grosse Pointe Farms area. Jensen said that if there were such a party planned in the Farms, police probably would have known of its whereabouts through past incidents.

The cost for the purported party was $40 for single men, $30 for couples and $10 for single women. Payment was to be cash only "for your protection and privacy" and sent to a private postal box on Mack in the Farms.

The deadline for ticket purchases was Dec. 28. Farms police sent in $30 but did not receive a reply.

Sometime after Dec. 28 the taped message was changed to state that the party was postponed indefinitely due to serious illness of two of the party organizers. The new message, this time featuring a man, said they would make it up at the next party to those who sent in money.

Jensen said the party organizers knew what they were doing.

Gun pulled on resident

A handgun was pulled on a Park resident Dec. 24 by a man who demanded money.

The incident occurred in the 1000 block of Wayburn at 7:10 p.m.

The resident told the gunman he didn't have any money and handed the robber his checkbook. The robber looked at the checkbook and then handed it back. He wished the resident a Merry Christmas and then fled on foot.

800 to 1,000 CDs taken from store in the Village

Some 800 to 1,000 compact discs and several pieces of music equipment were stolen from a record store in the Village sometime between 11:51 p.m. Jan. 6 and 8:30 a.m. the following day.

Among the items taken were a JVC integrated amplifier, a Sony CD player, a Bozak Celeste Digital Time Delay, a Sony double cassette deck and two JBL speakers.

The theft occurred after someone punched a hole in a rear glass door and reached in and unlocked the door. The CDs were valued at $10 each. The cost of the other stolen merchandise was not reported.

Police believe the thief may try to sell the CDs at reduced prices and are urging anyone with information to call the Grosse Pointe Public Safety Department at 886-3200.

The Chevrolet dealer, and co-chair with Grosse Pointer Robert Thibodeau of the 1991 North American International Auto Show, appears to accomplish more in one day than most of us do in a month.

Stewart, native Detroit and resident of Grosse Pointe for 20 years, runs two Chevrolet dealerships, works on a half-dozen boards and councils and has had an active role in innovations that are making Detroit's auto show the premier event of its kind in the United States.

Take the Trade Days that debut at the auto show this year, a couple of days ahead of the public exhibition Jan. 12-20.

"Detroit is the first U.S. show to feature these days when suppliers and anyone involved in the auto industry can see the displays early and talk with top automotive professionals who will be on hand," Stewart said. "Governor Engler will address the group."

Trade Days are already feature of such high-stature international shows as Frankfurt and Tokyo, he said. "In Frankfurt, people bring their entire families — we saw parents with their children in strollers. Attendance was so high we had to park five

Pharmacy owner to make good on postal debt

The owner of the Hollywood Pharmacy, who pleaded guilty Dec. 19 to the misuse of postal money orders, will make good his debt to the U.S. Postal Service, his attorney said.

Pharmacist William F. Lelickens, 61, of St. Clair Shores faces up to six months in jail and a fine of up to $100,000 on a misdemeanor charge. The business faces up to $500,000 in fines on a felony charge.

Lelickens is the sole director of the incorporated pharmacy.

According to the U.S. Postal Service and the U.S. attorney in Detroit, Lelickens misused postal money orders amounting to about $180,000 from January to May 1990.

There was a contract postal station at the Hollywood Pharmacy, and Lelickens used the money orders to pay suppliers.

After issuing Postal Service money orders, Lelickens wrote business checks payable to the Postal Service and placed them in the postal funds at the pharmacy.

Contrary to a statement released by the U.S. Postal Service and printed in the Grosse Pointe News last week, Lelickens' attorney, William B. Daniel, said his client did not admit to embezzling the $180,000 from the Postal Service.

Furthermore, he said Lelickens is only guilty of the misdemeanor charge of paying for postal money orders by check. According to law, postal money orders can be purchased only with cash.

At no time did Lelickens intend to embezzle money from the Postal Service, Daniel said. He said Lelickens plans to pay every penny owed to the Postal Service.

Farms house suffers $250,000 fire damage

The home of Grosse Pointe News editorial cartoonist Arkie Hudkins Jr. on Cloverly in the Farms suffered $250,000 damage in a fire Dec. 31.

Both Hudkins and his wife, Terry Brooks, escaped injury.

Hudkins awoke at about 3:15 a.m. and heard the flames crackling in the basement, he said. He ran to the basement, saw the fire was serious and called the Grosse Farms Public Safety Department.

Firefighters from the Farms, City, Park, Woods and Harper Woods responded to the fire, Hudkins said. The last of the firefighters did not leave until about noon.

The fire started in the circuit breaker box in the basement at the rear of the home. Hudkins said a big hole was melted in the middle of the box between rows of breaker switches. The cause of the electrical malfunction is unknown.

The rear of the home received extensive structural damage and the entire house suffered smoke damage.

Hudkins said all the floor and wall coverings will have to be replaced. He said the originals of many of his drawings were saved from the basement.

He praised the response and work of the firefighters and the fire damage restoration contractor, Burton Brothers of Southfield. Hudkins said the contractor was boarding up the house even before the firefighters had left.

He said it will be two to three months before the house is ready for occupancy.

Star offers adult classes

Our Lady Star of the Sea will offer two free classes for adults in January.

On Jan. 10 the Rev. Norm Nawrocki will present "Spirituality of the Ordinary" from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

On Jan. 24, Sean-Hogan Downey and Bill Downey will present "Marital Relationships" from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Both classes, offered at the church's cultural center, are free. For more information, call 884-7407.

Preschool program scheduled

The Grosse Pointe Public Library is accepting registrations for winter-into-spring preschool programs at Central and Park and Woods branches.

Children 3 to 5 may join Storytime — half-hour programs of stories, songs and fingerplays. The schedule follows:

- Central Library — Wednesdays, 10:45 a.m., 1 and 2 p.m.; Feb. 6 - March 27.

- Park Branch — Thursdays, 1 and 2 p.m.; Feb. 7 - March 28.

- Woods Branch — Tuesdays, 1 and 2 p.m.; Feb. 5 - March 26.

Parents or guardians are asked to remain in the library during storytimes.

The library offers Toddler Time, a special 20-minute storytime for 2-year-olds. Due to the special intimacy of the program, each child is asked to bring an adult.

Toddler Time is offered at Central Library only on Wednesdays at 10:10 a.m. Parents may register their child for sessions running Feb. 6-27, or sessions March 6-27. Due to the demand for the program and limits on registration, sign up for only one session.

For further information call children's services at your branch: Central, 343-2078; Park, 343-2071; Woods, 343-2072.

Art lectures scheduled

Learn what the experts have to say about modernist painting, the Wyeths, and antiques this winter at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Hope Palmer will discuss "Early American Modernist Painting, 1910-1935" in a three-part series meeting on Wednesdays from 1-3 p.m.

The series begins with the "Stieglitz Group" on Jan. 16. On Jan. 23, she will discuss the "Ambiance of the Arensberg Circle." And on Jan. 30, Palmer will describe the achievements of "The Color Painter and the Precisionists."

The series is $30 or $12.50 for a single lecture.

Michael Farrell will review the achievements of three generations of Wyeths in the Brandywine Valley of Pennsylvania and the coast of Maine in "The Wyeths and the Brandywine Tradition."

The three-part series will meet Mondays from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Learn more about "N.C. Wyeth and Illustrations as Art" Jan. 21; "Andrew Wyeth: Art of Illustrations" Jan. 28; and "Jamie and Andrew Wyeth: New Traditions" Feb. 4.

The series is $30 or $12.50 for a single lecture.

Frank H. Boos, speaker and auctioneer, will share his knowledge of "Antiques and Collectibles" in a slide presentation on Wednesday, Feb. 13, at 7:30 p.m.

Following the lecture, verbal appraisals will be given by advance reservation only for $10 per item (you must have a ticket in order to get an appraisal).

If the item is too large to move, bring a photograph. The lecture fee is $8.

For more information, call 885-7511.

Rock stolen

Grosse Pointe Woods police are investigating the disappearance of a resident's rock sometime between Dec. 23 and Christmas Day.

A resident in the 1400 block of Hollywood reported the disappearance to police. He said the 60-pound rock was on his front lawn near the neighbor's driveway before it disappeared. The neighbor denies having any knowledge of the whereabouts of the rock.

The rock is 14 to 16 inches in diameter.

House burglarized

A home in the 2100 block of VanAntwerp in Grosse Pointe Woods was broken into sometime between 4 p.m. Dec. 28 and noon the following day.

The burglar removed a storm window at the rear of the home and smashed the inner window with a piece of firewood. The bedrooms were ransacked, but the extent of the loss was unknown.

Bullet damages Park house

Park residents returned to their home in the 1400 block of Lakepointe New Year's Day morning to find a 45 caliber bullet had been fired through two windows at the rear of the house. Police suspect a New Year's Eve marksman may have been the source of the bullet.

and police departments to one Public Safety Department and hiring a private company for garbage pickup, for example, reduced costs and the size of the city payroll.

He also credited the high degree of volunteerism in the Park. "It's the people and volunteers that give us so much of the amenities at little cost," he said.

"It's a great pleasure to get national recognition as being a nice place to live when Detroit and Michigan have been receiving adverse publicity. Michigan does have other nice places to live, but it's nice to be recognized."

"It's a very fine honor to have a place where people want to live. It is an absolute joy to be thought of as a good example."

Park City Manager Dale Krajniak said the Park is not the only place where quality living is a bargain. He said the Money magazine article could apply to all the Pointes.

Woods resident hopes to skate in Olympics — for Germany

By Ronald J. Bemis
Staff Writer

Jennifer Goolsbee has always had her eyes on skating in the Olympics.

She's trained and competed since she was 6 1/2 and in January she'll compete against other European skaters in Sophia, Bulgaria. She and her partner will represent the newly united Germany as that country's No. 2 ice dancing team.

How this 22-year-old Grosse Pointe Woods skater got to Germany is a story in itself, as are the changes she's seen as the country comes to grips with its reunification.

Until eight years ago, Goolsbee skated and competed alone, she said. But her coaches and parents suggested she work with a partner, and try ice dancing.

"The coaches said it would be good for me to work with someone and they said I had the right style," Goolsbee said. "They said I was 'soft in the knees,' which is what you need for ice dancing."

That came as no surprise to Goolsbee; she had taken dance classes since she was very young to improve her moves on the ice.

She took to ice dancing well, she said, and always placed high when competing. But she and her partner split, and her coaches accepted better offers as one went to California and another to Colorado.

"I needed a partner, and there were a lot of boys in California, so I went there for six months," she said. "It was a great experience because I was taking lessons from other coaches and any time you learn new techniques and styles it helps."

No potential males were in her league in California. Then she received a telephone call from a skater she and her partner competed against. He was also without a partner, so they moved to Colorado and skated at the Olympic Training Center for a year.

"I got to live with other athletes and saw how they trained and what they ate," she said. "It's so neat being in an atmosphere where everybody is so competitive."

She worked out with the U.S. Air Force Academy football trainer, which was, she says, "tough but fun."

With her new partner, Goolsbee placed twelfth in the United States, respectable, but not high enough to guarantee her a chance at a spot in the Olympics. Only the top three teams from the United States are sent.

"And I knew it would be nearly impossible to move from twelfth place to one of the top three in the country in only two years," she said, noting that the next winter Olympics will be in 1992.

Several years earlier, when she had trained in Germany for a month, Goolsbee had met Hendryk Schamberger, a German ice dancer. The two kept in touch and in one letter he mentioned he was without a partner.

She saw her opportunity. Goolsbee auditioned to be his partner in July, and in August moved to Germany permanently.

Five hours a day, seven days a week, the two practiced, perfecting their compulsory dances, their original program and the free dance required in all competitions.

In the German national competition they placed third in their compulsory dances, second in their original program and first in the free dance for a second-place overall.

"It's very political," she said. "We were a new team, so they put us third in compulsories because they didn't know what to do with us."

Because the national competition was in Berlin, she saw first hand the changes that have been made in the newly reunited city. She could see where the East German crests were removed from buildings; the bricks beneath were unfaded. She saw the joy on East Berliners' faces as they were able to cross back and forth across a wall that had been dividing a nation for a generation. She felt the distrust some older people had for her because she's an American.

"I think most of the changes affected those on the border rather than those in the outer areas where I live," she said. "But the reunification celebration was huge. I think it was bigger than New Year's Eve is here."

Pair skating develops relationships in an interesting and uncommon way, Goolsbee said. She's seen skating pairs fall apart on the ice after the relationship off the ice crumbles, so she and Schamberger are simply friends.

"You become like brother-sister and best friends," she said. "You fight the same, but I don't think they last as long."

She is only the second American to skate for another country, she says. International rules allow her to skate for Germany because her partner is a German national.

"People always ask me how I can skate for another country, but it never really hit me until they were putting the medal around my neck and the ribbon was a different color," she said. "My ribbons were always red, white and blue, but this ribbon was red, black and yellow."

She gets homesick every now and then, but there are friends and something else she never had to contend with in the United States — fans and the press.

"Because we're so highly ranked, we get a lot of press coverage and we get a lot of fans," she said.

Parents Rosemarie and Roland, who still live in Grosse Pointe Woods, also offer long-distance support.

"My parents have been extremely supportive both emotionally and with money," she said. And she has her toy poodle Sweetie for company.

Prior to the world competition in March, Goolsbee and Schamberger are hoping to come to America to train with her old coach in California.

And then it's eyes on the 1992 Winter Olympics.

Home to open second shelter for women addicts, their kids

By Laura Phillips
Special Writer

Women with chemical addictions and their children will soon have a new shelter in Detroit.

The non-profit Grateful Home organization, which has tried to expand from its single location for several years, has obtained the vacant St. Bernard community parish and school at Mack Avenue and Fairview Road on the east side.

Sara Snyder, executive director of Grateful Home and a Park resident, said obtaining the property simply was a question of working out a fair deal with the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Detroit, which closed the complex and several other church properties this summer.

Snyder said Grateful Home obtained the lease with the option to buy, and plans to pay for the facility within five years.

The acquisition allows Grateful Home to expand its programs to women with children, who make up 75 percent of the clients in the current program, she said.

"Growing bigger as a program and being able to reach more people is something that should've happened years ago," Snyder said. "It's a tremendous step in the vision of this program."

Grateful Home, on East Grand Boulevard in Detroit, houses a dozen women recovering from alcohol and drug addiction. It is the oldest women's treatment program in the state.

The new property will become a comprehensive women's and children's service center, organized by Grateful Home with help from a handful of other services planning to lease space in the complex.

The four-story school building will house day treatment substance abuse services; teen services; day care; GED classes, parenting and child care classes; a clothing room and food bank; and a performing and creative

Open house for Community Center planned

The new Grosse Pointe Woods Community Center will be open to the public next week.

Open house hours are from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 15, through Friday, Jan. 18. City staff will be on hand. The new court addition will also be open for tours.

Police warn of anti-drug ad scam

Store owners and professionals are being warned to beware of individuals selling anti-drug ads for textbook covers, purportedly on behalf of a parochial school.

Grosse Pointe Woods Detective James Lafer said a man and woman approached a dentist on Mack Avenue Dec. 3 and convinced him to put money down for an ad that was said to carry an anti-drug message. The dentist was told the message would appear on bookcovers to be distributed at St. Joan of Arc school on Mack in St. Clair Shores.

Later, the dentist had suspicions and called the school. He was told by a school official that he had no knowledge of the Farmington company selling the ads and that he had received another inquiry about the ads.

Lafer said the state attorney general's office has received several complaints about the Farmington company.

The Woods dentist told police that a man and woman, both well dressed, came to his office soliciting money for the ads, which ranged in price from $259 to $885. He said the man and woman were pushy and wanted money down right away. They did not offer business cards or any other identification.

The woman is described as a thin blonde, white, in her late 40s, 6 feet tall and with a Southern accent. The man is white, in his middle 30s, 6 feet tall with a heavy build and thinning, brown hair.

Backers face hard fight for new library

With the start of the New Year, backers of the proposed new Grosse Pointe Public Library have stepped up their fight to win voter approval on Feb. 4 for a $7.6 million bond issue to finance construction of the new building.

School district residents are being bombarded with information and voter material from the Grosse Pointe School System, the Friends of the Grosse Pointe Library and the newly organized Citizens for a New Library headed by John Bruce.

City councils in the Shores, the City, the Park and the Farms have already been briefed about the project and information meetings are being held with the district's 14 different PTOs as well as with the umbrella organization, the PTO Council.

So while the information about the bond election is getting around the community, the question now is: What is the reaction?

In view of the current recession and the threat of war, the supporters we've talked with have said they expect a hard sell but remain optimistic that the people will respond when they have heard the message about the need.

The critical part of the campaign, no doubt, will be convincing the public of the need for a new central library that will require a tax hike of up to a maximum of nine-tenths of a mill when construction is completed, according to present calculations.

An increase of four-tenths of a mill in the debt-reduction levy will be required to pay off the $7.6 million bond over a 20-year period. However, approval of another four-tenths or five-tenths of a mill will be sought from the voters to finance the expanded operations after the building is completed.

The four-tenths of a mill that would be levied after approval of the bond issue would cost a homeowner whose house is worth $200,000 an additional library tax of $40 a year or $3.33 a month or 77 cents a week. The additional four-tenths or five-tenths of a mill for expanded operations upon completion of the building and approval by the voters would cost an additional $40 or $50 a year.

As for the need, the school system's newsletter contends that the present library is "behind the times" because it lacks sufficient parking, barrier-free access for handicapped residents, space for the staff and space for special services for children, adults and students and even for more copiers and word processors.

One point that is often missed is that the ballot language requires that the bond issue will provide funds not only for erecting, furnishing and equipping a new library building but also for developing and improving the building site and the adjacent athletic field at the Brownell School site.

That language was added to answer the fears expressed by some Brownell parents that the library building would damage the soccer and baseball diamonds on the school's athletic field.

The recent distribution of the 1990 tax statements showing increased taxes for property owners in the five Grosse Pointe municipalities and Harper Woods that make up the Grosse Pointe School District does not make the sales pitch for the new library any easier.

The school budget already is by far the largest of the items on every homeowner's tax statement and the overall tax total as well as the school taxes once again have increased appreciably for most taxpayers.

Yet the need for more adequate library services won't go away. The issue has been studied since 1966 and the committees that have reviewed the facilities since then have been unanimous in reaching the opinion that expansion is needed.

A single statistic proves the point: Since 1950, the Grosse Pointes' population has grown by 23 percent while library card holders have increased by 234 percent.

Why the big increase? Librarian Charles Hanson points out that libraries have become more and more essential sources of information, especially in a well-educated community like Grosse Pointe.

Isn't that the telling point about the need?

Somber mood grips the U.S.

Reset by the twin threats of war and a serious recession, the people of Michigan and the United States as a whole appear to be in a somber mood as they open the New Year.

The headlines in the nation's most prestigious newspaper tell the story. The front page of the Dec. 30 issue of the New York Times carried this collection of reports on the nation's bad news:

"80s leave states and cities in need"; "Umpires give an early call: Yes, indeed, it's a recession"; "Homelessness in New York: Years of plans, no solution"; "For Cuomo, hard times and choices"; and, finally, "As Jan. 15 nears, some hope lingers for a Gulf peace."

Even Gov. John Engler's call for a conservative course in Michigan that in effect termed state government an enemy of free enterprise was hardly optimistic to everyone and certainly not to the many people who rely heavily on public services.

President Bush, in an interview broadcast as the New Year opened, said he sees "no evidence of a deep recession," but admitted we're in "a slowdown economically" and "in some areas, we're clearly in a recession."

Neither Engler nor Bush, however, offered any immediate proposals to bolster flagging sections of the economy.

Bush claimed that "short-range government spending answers have historically proved counterproductive" and added that he had no plans "to spend a lot of new federal dollars" in order to speed economic recovery.

Engler pins his hope for Michigan's economic recovery on a property tax cut and restoration of the "spirit of enterprise." He added that "we must allow the inventors and entrepreneurs of today the same opportunities enjoyed by their predecessors when this century began."

We assume that Engler does not intend to turn the clock back by advocating repeal of state laws, unknown early in this century, that now protect the public health and safety as well as the environment.

To his credit, however, Engler did say that government has an important role to play, although he indicated that it was chiefly in revitalizing the state's education system.

With the increased threat of a Middle East war already affecting thousands of Michigan families, the president in his comments expressed the hope that if war comes, it would be over in a few days even though he did not predict the outcome one way or another.

The tone of the comments by the national and state GOP leaders on the current state of the state and the world tends to reinforce the nation's grim mood that we referred to at the outset.

We suggest, however, that in these times the expression of a bit of compassion for families hard hit by the Middle East buildup and the economic recession would not have been out of place in the remarks by either the governor or the president.

Yet both men did raise some hopes: Bush with his prediction that the recession won't be deep or last long and that if war breaks out in the Gulf, it will be over in a few days; and Engler with his forecast of the state's renewal if people follow the same principles of hard work and sense of personal responsibility that their forefathers did to overcome their problems.

A new villain in Harwell saga

Joe Falls' story in the Sunday Detroit News and Free Press pointed a finger at a new villain in the Ernie Harwell saga, but it also raised several new questions.

True, the new villain is WJR station manager Jim Long, a Grosse Pointe resident who has now accepted, according to Falls, the blame for firing the popular Detroit Tiger radio announcer at the end of the 1991 season.

But the question of why Long and/or Bo Schembechler, the Tigers' president who earlier was regarded as the culprit in the case, wanted to get rid of Harwell is still unanswered.

Long's explanation was, again according to Falls, that he was unhappy with Harwell's on-air performance and, as he told Mitch Albom in Monday's Free Press, "I felt Ernie's broadcasts were not what they used to be."

Bo Schembechler, back when he was taking the heat, had said the Tigers wanted to go in "new directions" with their game broadcasts but told Albom that WJR "felt that his (Harwell's) skills were diminishing, that he couldn't see the ball like he used to, that he wasn't as enthusiastic as he used to be."

Neither excuse stands up very well unless the two critics know something that the fans don't.

Furthermore, in their new explanations, both men expressed astonishment at the extent of the fans' displeasure with the dismissal of Harwell. But neither expressed any particular regret at what was done to Harwell.

It now seems to have been a joint decision, except that Bo apparently wanted Harwell to serve through the 1991 season while Long had suggested the announcer be replaced when his old contract expired at the end of the 1990 season.

So should Bo now be regarded as a hero for obtaining a final year for Harwell and Long be given all the blame for the dismissal? We don't see it that way despite Falls' fawning story and his suggestion that everyone who criticized the deal earlier should now apologize to the Tigers' president.

After all, Long now has told Albom that the decision was made by both men. Who's kidding whom, Joe?

Cartoonist Arkie Hudkins' house was damaged by fire New Year's Eve. His cartoons will reappear in several weeks.

For everyone To the Editor:

I have served on the Library Study Committee for several years. Citizens of the community have explored all the possibilities, and I am convinced that the current plan is the very best solution. While still continuing the two branch libraries in the Woods and the Park, it will give us the needed space at a central location. Actually, (consult your maps) it will be more centrally located than the present Central Library.

Libraries are for all ages — everyone benefits! The cost per family will range between $20-$50 a year, a small price to pay for a larger facility, additional books, and expanded computer possibilities — a modern library which will serve our community for years to come.

This is absolutely our last chance. If this proposal is voted down, our libraries will continue to be crowded and outdated for at least another decade. In this era of spiraling taxes, it takes mature, forward-looking voters to voluntarily raise their taxes; but I feel sure we have those kinds of citizens in the Grosse Pointes. Feb. 4 is the day to "Just say Yes."

Dorothy M. Kennel
Grosse Pointe Shores

Exciting

To the Editor:
I am excited. I hope everyone else in the Grosse Pointes is, too. If the library bond issue is passed on Feb. 4, we will soon have a new library which will begin to meet the needs of our community in long-awaited and exciting ways.

We are so far behind other communities in library services, despite our library staff which works wonders with the present facilities. Much more space and new configurations will enable us to have so many more important services and programs.

I am excited that the library will still be close to my home. I wish it could be across the street. A library in the neighborhood is a boost to property values. Talk with people who are looking for a home in any community and you will find that they look for houses near schools and libraries. This is not only for their own needs, but also for resale value.

Be excited with me. Join in the anticipation of all the new library can mean in your life. Vote "Yes" on Feb. 4.

Thankful

To the Editor:
We lived through a terrible experience. Our home burned in Grosse Pointe Farms. Nevertheless, this tragedy had a positive side.

We are grateful for the combined efforts of five city fire departments. We are thankful for neighbors who provided us with hot coffee and clothing (Mariann Petz), blankets and gloves (Sandy and Walter Fisher) and the finger-pointing directions of our pal, Chief Robert Ferber.

A special thanks to a cooperative, understanding insurance company, Auto Owners of Michigan. River Place Inn staff, you are the best.

Good people/friends all!

Priority

To the Editor:
As the new year begins and Americans make resolutions, there are many important problems which face them.

One of our important municipal decisions is whether to approve the library bond issue. To briefly describe this proposal, a new more centrally located library, built on the site of Brownell Middle School, would expand the overall space in the library to almost three times the existing space. With our current "Central" library 37 years old, it is time to update our cities' information center to what is necessary for the 21st century. Thirty-seven years ago, the architect didn't plan for computer systems and facsimile (FAX) machines!

A "yes" vote is very important to our city!

On Feb. 4, our cities' taxpayers will expose their priorities. The library vote should mean a lot to the citizens of the Grosse Pointes. Whether for reference or pleasure, the Grosse Pointe public libraries have a large collection of books, tapes (cassette/video) and other things, which will grow even more with more storage space.

The increase in the number and volume of books available will allow the users of the Park and Woods libraries to get the Central books shipped there, so even if the two other libraries don't have a book, you could get it anyway.

And if not for your own use, vote "yes" to give the people that will represent the United States and you in the future the tools necessary to expand their knowledge.

Be it hereby resolved

Like nine out of 10 Americans, my New Year's resolution is the same this year as it has been for the last 10 years: Go on a diet.

That, simply stated, is hardly worth filling a 20-inch column, let alone satisfying a copy-hungry editor. So as I thought about what more I might say about this most-usual New Year's resolution, I decided to follow the example of those masters of the resolution: elected officials.

A succinctly stated resolution is totally incomprehensible to your average city councilman, for example. Brevity will never do. A lengthy, word-laden resolution is a source of pride to bureaucrats, and city attorneys make big bucks drawing them up.

The subject matter is not important — any constituent's good deeds will do. So without further to-do, here's my resolution in city-council-speak:

WHEREAS, the first of the year is Jan. 1;

WHEREAS, Jan. 1 has come and gone;

WHEREAS, it is traditional to adopt a resolution to begin the New Year;

WHEREAS, nine out of 10 Americans choose diets as their resolutions;

WHEREAS, for 10 out of 10 years I have chosen a diet as my New Year's resolution;

WHEREAS, according to insurance actuarial tables I am 15 pounds overweight;

WHEREAS, each pound of fat consists of 3,600 calories;

John Minnis

WHEREAS, barring exercise, the only way to lose a pound of weight is to burn 3,600 calories more than I consume;

WHEREAS, my bodily intake of energy must run a deficit of 54,000 calories in order to lose the desired 15 pounds;

WHEREAS, the only way to run a calorie deficit of this magnitude is to cut down on caloric intake over a prolonged period of time;

WHEREAS, the only way to cut down caloric intake is to eat less;

WHEREAS, being overweight stresses the cardiovascular system;

WHEREAS, excess pounds make one sluggish;

WHEREAS, if I don't lose it now, it'll be harder later;

WHEREAS, fat is unflattering;

WHEREAS, thin is cool;

WHEREAS, Oprah Winfrey lost weight and looked great;

WHEREAS, we can all follow her example;

WHEREAS, she gained hers back but I won't;

WHEREAS, we plan to go on our annual spring vacation to Florida;

WHEREAS, it's hot in Florida; WHEREAS, when it's hot, people wear less clothing;

WHEREAS, in Florida, one spends a lot of time in a bathing suit at the beach or pool;

WHEREAS, in Florida, one spends a lot of time sun bathing; WHEREAS, one does not want to gross out fellow vacationers;

WHEREAS, it's no fun having to worry about what you eat on a vacation;

WHEREAS, each day is one less day to lose weight before vacation;

WHEREAS, my Soloflex can't do all the work if I don't stop pigging out;

WHEREAS, vegging out in front of the tube with beer and potato chips is not the right thing to do;

WHEREAS, I wish I had a Big Mac;

WHEREAS, my willpower is fading;

WHEREAS, I've run out of WHEREASES;

THEREFORE, IN RECOGNITION OF THE AFOREMENTIONED, BE IT HEREBY RESOLVED THAT I will go on a diet until I have lost the required 15 pounds.

Whew! I see now why city attorneys make the big bucks. This is hard work, and I still don't have city-council-speak down like they do.

Damn, I forgot to add in the resolution that I also wanted to exercise more. That means re-writing the darn thing. Forget it!

Right mix: Chemistry, environment

Jim Nicholson was surprised I wanted to talk to him. People in the chemical business don't expect reporters to come around unless something bad has happened, he said.

Nothing had. In fact, I wanted to talk to him in his role as environmentalist.

Nancy Parmenter

It sounds like an oxymoron. The chemical industry is generally seen as one of the main enemies by the environmental movement — but here's Jim Nicholson in the thick of it, secretary of the Michigan Nature Conservancy.

He's one example of the diversity of the environmental movement, a movement that is sometimes depicted as being at war with itself because the various approaches are so different.

More likely, the approaches play off each other. There's a theory that the aggressive groups like EarthFirst! or Greenpeace actually paved the way for more mainstream groups like the Nature Conservancy or the Audubon Society. It's a theory that's been demonstrated in the civil rights movement, too.

"We're very aware of it at the Conservancy," Nicholson said. "We think it's true."

Nicholson, a Farms resident and president of PVS Chemicals, is attracted to the Conservancy because of its businesslike attitude. Instead of demanding that property owners give up their rights to use land, the Conservancy buys the properties it wants to save.

"It's the American way," he said.

Nicholson isn't convinced that the Earth is on its last legs, although like most environmentalists, he thinks it needs a lot of help.

"A lot of folks are getting press predicting that the sky is falling," he said. "It's an interesting half-full/half-empty argument."

Technology, in his view, isn't the monster causing Earth's problems; it may be the only thing keeping us going.

"The Earth couldn't support this population of six billion without chemicals," he said.

The Nature Conservancy isn't interested merely in setting aside a lot of empty land. Its focus is to maintain biological diversity — land supporting a rare plant or habitat for rare animals.

It may come as a shock to Michiganders accustomed to the open spaces in our state, but very little of the state remains natural. Almost all of it has been touched and drastically altered by human farming, mining and logging.

As the Conservancy's September newsletter put it:

"It's hard to imagine that our lovely Michigan landscape is as altered as other more heavily urbanized or farmed states... Most of the landscape we see is only a skeleton of the richly diverse communities that existed a century and a half ago."

Even rural counties often have less than 1 percent of their land in its original condition.

"At times in our history we lost sight of (the environment) and pillaged the land," Nicholson said. "Wetlands were swamps not so long ago and everybody was trying to fill them in."

"As there are more of us, it becomes more precious to have spots of nature."

Even the definition of "spots" has changed, though. The Conservancy, particularly in its international group, is now focusing on "bio-reserves," huge multi-million acre plots.

"You can't keep plant diversity with 20 acres of prairie. The issue is that all plants and animals live in a system — and you have to have enough of the system to provide a closed loop," he said.

What Nicholson says he likes about the Conservancy is its intelligent approach in which trained staff thoroughly studies areas and issues. It's an approach he can sell to businesses contributing funds. It isn't emotional. No tree-huggers.

"Emotionalism is getting in our way," he said.

In fact, happy as he is to see so many people professing environmentalism, Nicholson thinks many of us don't know what we're emoting about. No offense, but the general public isn't well-informed — owing partly to emotionalism in the press and partly to our by-now-legendary lack of scientific information.

"As a nation, we're very poorly educated in the sciences and the scientific approach," he said.

Just look at our fears about the greenhouse effect. A couple of years ago, a drought and heat wave convinced many of us that it was here with a vengeance. A mere year later, a cooler summer convinced many of the same people that the greenhouse effect was nothing but a phony scare. Probably wrong both times.

Nicholson's view is that industry doesn't have to dry up and blow away in order to save the Earth. But it does have to clean up its act — as we all do.

"Any product misused can be a problem," he said. "It's important for industry to take a responsible attitude. We have a franchise from the public to operate."

"We all have kids and we want them to have a future."

A nearby example of the Michigan Nature Conservancy's work is a cooperative effort with the DNR at Algonac State Park, where fire is being re-introduced as a management tool in maintaining a mosaic of prairie and oak savanna.

Send love early

Operation Desert Shield has created a 30 percent increase in military mail and one of the biggest overseas postal operations in history, according to U.S. Postal Service officials.

So — to avoid a last minute crunch — and to guarantee that the more than 450,000 troops in the Middle East receive mail by Feb. 14, officials at Mail Boxes Etc. are recommending that all Valentine's Day cards and letters be sent by Jan. 15.

"The post office has advised us that Valentine's Day mail for military personnel in Saudi Arabia should go out at least four weeks in advance," said Sandy Greenberg, spokesperson for Mail Boxes Etc.

Express mail deadlines are several weeks later, but overseas express mail costs can be steep, Greenberg said. Postage for regular mail with an FPO or APO address costs the same as mailing the item domestically.

Mail for Operation Desert Shield should be addressed to: Any Service Member, Operation Desert Shield, APO, New York, 09848-0006. Mail to Marines or sailors on ships should be addressed to: Any Sailor/Marine, Operation Desert Shield, FPO, New York, 09866-0006.

Up with Older People

Services for Older Citizens still has some 1991 calendars for sale. The full-color hanging wall calendar was a project of SOC Inc. It includes 12 posters designed by Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods elementary school children about why they like older people and dozens more quotes from kids about senior citizens.

Some samples:

• "If it weren't for older people we wouldn't have a past."

Amanda Watkins, Maire Elementary School.

• "I like older people because they are kind and fragile pieces of artwork."

Katie Daniels, Férry Elementary School.

• "Older people are gentle. Older people take up half of your heart."

Kelly Smythe, Kerby Elementary School.

• "I like old people because they are easy to talk to."

Jill Snyder, Trombly Elementary School.

• "I like older people who stay young by having fun with their grandsons and daughters." Danielle DePew, Mason Elementary School.

• "Grandperson — I'm amazed you lived without TV, but I'm lucky I have it." John Hadala, Poupard Elementary School.

• "Older people are full of wisdom and are strong in both feelings and thought." Drew Bosler, Richard Elementary School.

• "I like older people because they always have stories of the past or they can make up good stories." Leslie Harrell, Kerby Elementary School.

• "I like older people because they like and respect life." Wesley Cadaret, Trombly Elementary School.

• "I like my grandma because she is interesting and understanding. I can tell her things that I can't tell anybody else." Adam Larson, Defer Elementary School.

The full-color calendar also lists SOC's services and programs. It's $4.50. The Rotary Club of Grosse Pointe also contributed to the publication of the calendar. All profits from its sale go to SOC.

To purchase a calendar, call the SOC office in Ferry Elementary School, 748 Roslyn, Grosse Pointe Woods, at 882-9600.

KISS program offered in Park

A program to help protect senior citizens is being offered in Grosse Pointe Park in cooperation with the Public Safety Department.

The program, Keeping Independent Seniors Safe (KISS), provides seniors a telephone number to call at regular intervals to report they are OK. If a senior in the program does not report at the scheduled time, someone will be sent to see if he or she is all right.

The Park Public Safety Department will keep a file of KISS participants at the dispatcher's desk. The files will include specific medical information and authorization to enter residences if necessary.

For more information on the KISS program, call 278-8455. The KISS program is sponsored by the Michigan Eyecare Institute.

Fisher Road

To the Editor:

I would first like to compliment the Grosse Pointe Farms City Council for the job that they have done for the city as a whole. I believe that they have served the city well and have made Grosse Pointe Farms a truly enjoyable place to call home.

Consequently, I was very surprised and disappointed to learn of the proposed plan to redirect the ever-growing volume of traffic to and from the Hill business district onto Fisher Road and other residential roads.

While I agree that the volume of traffic resulting from the Hill and Grosse Pointe South High School has reached unacceptable levels, and I applaud the efforts of the City Council to limit that traffic, I believe that the plan as presently structured will impose a severe and unnecessary hardship upon residents living on Fisher Road for the following reasons:

1. Fisher Road is not a major road.

The Dec. 3 letter to residents of McKinley Avenue, McMillan Road, Muir Road, Lewiston Road, Fisher Road and Moran Road, designates Fisher Road as a "major road," which is targeted by the city to "carry large volumes of traffic." The designation of Fisher and other roads as "major roads" appears to be based simply on random selection, rather than a complete evaluation of a particular road's ability to accommodate large amounts of traffic.

Even a freshman student of civil engineering could correctly conclude that all of the streets listed in the letter, Fisher Road is the least capable of accommodating even the present volume of traffic, let alone an increase in the volume of traffic.

Fisher Road is only 20 feet wide, and is by far the narrowest of all roads listed above. In fact, every other road referenced in the letter, including the other so-called minor roads, are at least 20 percent wider than Fisher Road. All of the other roads are at least 24 feet in width.

There is great concern among the residents along Fisher Road that the increased traffic carries with it a significant and substantial increase in the risk that children playing along or near the road may be injured. The risk is heightened by the fact that the City of Grosse Pointe Farms Police Department does not consistently enforce the speed limit along Fisher Road, and drivers rarely observe the speed limit.

Simply stated, Fisher Road, like all the roads referenced in the letter, is purely a residential road — not a commercial thoroughfare connecting traffic from the Hill business district to Mack Avenue. There are absolutely no unique characteristics about Fisher Road which make it better suited to accommodate larger volumes of traffic than the other roads. Indeed, Fisher Road should be categorized as a minor road, and targeted as a road on which traffic volumes should be reduced.

2. The purpose of the plan itself is unfair. Fisher Road has always had to bear a disproportionately large share of the commercial traffic (including buses and trucks) from Kercheval Avenue to Chalfonte Avenue and Mack Avenue. Fisher Road also bears the burden of a substantial portion of the traffic of Grosse Pointe South High School.

Further, Fisher Road has had higher volumes of traffic than the minor roads referenced in the letter. Notwithstanding, the proposed plan suggests that since the volume of traffic over the past five years has increased on all the roads referenced in the letter, it is appropriate to reduce the volume on the minor roads and further increase the volume on Fisher Road.

This suggestion is offensive to people living along Fisher Road. It suggests that simply because we have had to bear the burden of an unreasonable volume of traffic in the past, that we are somehow better suited to bear an even greater volume of traffic.

3. The plan is the beginning of the end for Fisher Road. Perhaps the most disturbing aspect of the letter is the suggestion that it is the solution to the traffic problem. It may be the solution for the minor roads, but it is the beginning of the end for Fisher Road.

Not only does the plan divert substantial volumes of current traffic onto Fisher Road, but it will continue to divert all future increases of traffic resulting from the Hill business district, Grosse Pointe South High School, the potential expansion of Cottage Hospital, the potential construction of the library on Chalfonte Avenue and all natural increases in traffic onto Fisher Road. In short, the current volumes of traffic on Fisher Road are the lowest they will ever be, and the volume of traffic will only get worse.

Again, it is with disappointment that I find myself so critical of action taken by the city of Grosse Pointe Farms.

Indeed, I applaud the fact that the City Council has recognized the problem created by the increased traffic volumes on Fisher Road and other roads created over the last five years and is taking action to remedy that problem.

I simply disagree with the proposed solution. Since all the roads referenced in the letter are in fact residential roads, notwithstanding any major or minor designation that the city may impose, I believe that it is patently unfair to impose such a burden on a road such as Fisher Road, which is clearly the least capable road of handling any further increases in traffic.

I am confident that the council members of Grosse Pointe Farms will make the right decision and will not implement the plan as presently structured.

Christopher O. Corden

In favor

To the Editor:

As an enthusiastic user of the Grosse Pointe library and once myself a librarian, I support wholeheartedly the impressive plans to give even greater service to all of us in this community.

The Grosse Pointe library provides us with all the current media of communication, the life-line of a civilized society.

After 25 years of "wrestling with library space problems," after exhaustive research into the best way to solve their problems, the administration and staff of our community library have richly earned our wholehearted support.

Let's all vote in favor of the library bond on Feb. 4.

Rev. Msgr. Francis X. Canfield
Grosse Pointe Farms

To the Editor:

I was studying the numbers this afternoon on the proposed new library and came up with some fairly interesting questions for the board.

CPA, attorney, and Wayne State University professor Bert Spalding tells me that underwriting costs (on a bond issue) run 8 percent usually. Just for the fun of it, I backed out $608,000 underwriting costs from the $7,600,000 and found that cuts the funds left for the building down to $6,992,000.

Architects' fees generally run 10 percent, so let's back out another $699,200. That leaves us with $6,292,800 to do the job. Let's see now; they've already spent $200,000 plus the cost of two special elections and we see that the $7,600,000 is reduced to $6,092,800. We wonder if they can do the job with $1,507,000, 20 percent of the funds gone before breaking ground.

We are being asked to approve borrowing $7.6 million and pay back $14,694,720 over 20 years on the promise that they're going to vastly improve our library and move it forward into the next century. Many of us don't think they'll be able to make a real improvement of more than 1 percent or 2 percent if that.

The liberal idea is that if you spend enough (borrowed or otherwise) money on anything, you're going to make a big improvement. It just isn't so. OK - Question time:

Could the taxpayers have an accurate breakdown of how the $7.6 million would be spent?

What assurance would we have that the project would be completed for the $7.6 million?

Why was an Ann Arbor architect selected when we have dozens of world-class architectural firms in Wayne County, three or more living in Grosse Pointe, and most would appreciate a chance at this project.

I just hung up the telephone. A concerned taxpayer was asking me if I knew that videotape rentals were going to be a big feature of the new library, with thousands of titles. Using taxpayers' (borrowed) dollars to go into competition with tax-paying entrepreneurs? Could we have some information on the projected plan for the videotape business?

Pete Winkler
Grosse Pointe Park

Good reason

To the Editor:

A selfish reason is a good reason for considering carefully the library proposal to be voted on Feb. 4.

Persons who are not acquainted with the services of the library, who do not use the library often, who do not have school-age children who use the library will still have tangible benefits from it as a community asset.

Those benefits may not appear until a residence is to be sold and its attractiveness weighed in terms of the community setting. Median plantings along Lakeshore Road or Jefferson Avenue in the Park enhance the value of Grosse Pointe property as do the attractive facades in the commercial strip. The well-maintained houses, schools, churches and other public buildings speak well for the community.

A public library facility of truly Grosse Pointe quality will also speak well for our community when prospective residents visit. The investment called for is one to be made by property owners for selfish, as well as altruistic reasons.

Harlan L. Hagman
Grosse Pointe Park

Victimized

To the Editor:

Once again we are victimized by Grosse Pointe Cable. Service was out from around 11:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 30, to around 9 p.m. Monday, Dec. 31. This time it apparently wasn't their fault.

However, during their recent move from Moross and Mack to Charlevoix and Wayburn, a three-day period, we had interruptions of from one to five minutes at least a dozen times. No apologies or credits.

They could have sent a note with their January invoice the end of December, but they didn't.

Since they have the only game in town, and since they are apparently answerable to no one, why should they care about their customers? They seem to have more down time than all the northeast cities combined.

Regarding their recent dividend paid to the cities they serve, this, I am sure, was made possible by their rate increases the past two years. Better that the money had been used to improve their service.

New library

To the Editor:

In the Dec. 20 issue you published a letter from S.E. Girardin which compared the proposed dismantling of Detroit's Ford Auditorium with the proposed plan for the future use of Central Library by the Board of Education. It is our understanding that our library building, donated by the very generous Ferry Foundation, has the support of Mr. Dexter Ferry for its planned use as an administration building, since it would not be dismantled but rather remain serving the citizens of the Pointes.

Mr. Ferry recognizes that the current Central Library has become overcrowded, and he has been involved through dialogue in several years of a complex decision-making process. The process resulted in the recommendation to build a new library on the Brownell Middle School site. This plan offers an opportunity for more library space and improved parking on a site which is zoned community service and which is already owned by the Board of Education.

Any comments S.E. Girardin heard from one of the long-time library employees about using the current Central Library for expansion may have occurred in the past discussion of options. Returning to the current Central Library location for expansion was eliminated as a viable option some time ago.

Girardin states that "the school board's hired gun" responded in writing to a previous question about the costs of building a new library. It is unfortunate that an honest response by a respected school system employee must be belittled with the phrase "hired gun."

We would assert that the shame of which Girardin writes is that people rely on second-hand information rather than seeking correct facts about the proposed library plan. Thus it is easy for misconceptions to proliferate, especially by those who step in late in the planning process to discredit the hard work and sound decisions accomplished by many dedicated people.

Fortunately, accurate information and facts are two areas where the library can help. We invite S.E. Girardin to visit the library, become a library card holder, and use the library in order to become more knowledgeable about the proposed new library plan.

Dr. Charles Hanson, director of libraries, has community hours on Wednesdays, 10:30 a.m.- 12:30 p.m., to meet with citizens. And if any Grosse Pointe citizen needs information about the library, we will be happy to send it. We are excited about the services that the new library will offer the Grosse Pointe community!

Cars

To the Editor:

Your editorial cartoon Dec. 6 showing Lee Iacocca dressed as the pope commenting on "Greenwald's lack of loyalty" while his Chrysler throne room is crumbling should have set me up for John Minnis' op-ed column on his recent car purchase.

Mr. Minnis was shopping for a Plymouth Sundance with a starting sticker price of $7,699, taxes, delivery and extras are extra. We advertise it as "the lowest-priced American car." A nicely equipped car at a bargain price and with an airbag. He's off to a good start.

But, here's his intro: "I made the mistake of going to price a new car at a Chrysler dealership." Wow. I almost feel sorry for your ad sales people explaining that one to our dealers who are good advertisers in your paper and strong supporters of our community.

Then "cars are a waste of money" and in his opinion the dealer is entitled to no profit. His wife's lease car had been driven 8,000 miles (equal to two Detroit/Las Vegas round trips) over the max allowed, for which the charge under the contract they agreed to was $640. Would he pay his debt? No way, the dealer should be willing to eat it.

After making a deal, this amazing bargainer further slams his unnamed Chrysler-Plymouth dealer and suggests we really didn't get a good price by stating he later learned a competing dealer was advertising the same car for $2,802 less. This was a Sundance, starting sticker of $7,699.

If they ask for my advice - I work at Chrysler - I'd say "no way, spend your ad dollars where they'll do you some good" (and where they may appreciate your business).

Support from afar

To the Editor:

I write in encouragement of your new library. As a frequent library user and a person who sometimes visits friends in your area, I am encouraged that your community has decided to move forward with improved library services.

Why should I care? Because I value libraries as one of the most accessible (and, I think, cost-effective) public services around. I know because our public library, located in a new building, has given me so much.

I have also had the opportunity during my visits to witness the kind of struggle that your community has gone through with library expansion. What has always amazed me is: Who could be opposed to a better library?

Well, I have a few observations to make. Most of those who oppose library improvements seem to be the following types: 1) those who are infrequent or non-users of the library (or, would you believe, do not have a library card at all!) and therefore have no inside knowledge of the space needs of a modern library; 2) those who will spend $17,000 for a car which they designate as their "toy," but at the ballot box say that 5 cents a day is too much for library services; 3) those who say that they love libraries (just like Mom and apple pie), only they don't want to pay for them; 4) those who have no experience with libraries and their wonderful services, but who in the work world are "managerial office workers" who think it is their job to tell those who work to improve libraries that they are all misguided about proposed solutions; 5) those who think the library costs too much money to operate; 6) those who would rather curse the darkness than light a candle.

My hope is that your community consists of more enlightened types than the people I have described above. I believe your election is sometime in February. May the light shine on your good (library) work!

Come and visit the Wyoming Public Library, located in the heart of our suburban residential area. A beautiful library; I love it!

Star has a super supporting cast

My buddy is celebrating a BIG birthday this month. She has never made headlines and would shun the glare of the spotlight, but to many of us she is a star and, at the very least, a remarkable woman.

My friend was married early, right out of college. She put her Phi Beta Kappa key in a drawer and over the next 19 years produced four daughters and several thousand balanced meals for her family. Somewhere along the way the marriage slowly disintegrated and the father of her children left for "greener pastures." With almost no means of support, my friend set out to seek employment for the first time in 20 years, at the tender age of 40.

Wonder Woman soon found her way and her confidence. She made her mark in the business world, quickly climbing the corporate ladder to top management. All of which came as no surprise to her friends. She had untapped reservoirs of talent bursting to be utilized. The White House beckoned and she responded affirmatively, knowing it was a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

Her journey hasn't been without hazards, detours and risks. There have been sacrifices difficult for a mother to justify, however necessary. The four young daughters bonded together with love, devotion and a deep faith in their mother and themselves.

Maternal grandparents moved in, lending financial and emotional support. The grandmother walked the dogs, cleaned the house, chauffeured the children to doctors and games, baked the cookies and, with her husband, provided the pure love and unconditional acceptance unique to grandparents. Their very existence in the home gave backbone to the family unit while mother was away.

Being a white-knuckled flier, her commute to Washington was made by Greyhound twice monthly. The normal stresses of family life were exacerbated by exhaustion, children with asthma, problems with aging parents, trips to the vet, etc.

The four beautiful daughters matured into accomplished young women. All graduated from college. The beloved grandparents are both dead. Three of the daughters are married and there are now four grandchildren. Each Sunday night the extended families gather at my friend's table and offer thanks for their many blessings.

Next week Mom and her four daughters will travel to Chicago to celebrate her birthday, big time. The five women will go it alone once again. No men allowed: Of course, they will travel by train.

I hope they will drink a toast to themselves. No Super Bowl ever knew a stronger team. Her friends will send their best wishes and my friend will be back in her office Monday a.m. Business as usual. Happy birthday!

miles from the show site," he said.

This year's Trade Days are history as far as Stewart is concerned. He already is deep into planning a similar event for the '92 show. There are "only" 84 meeting rooms at Cobo Center, he says, indicating that their use will have to be carefully scheduled so suppliers and automakers can meet effectively in what he predicts will become an increasingly busy and important facet of the annual show.

And you thought the auto show was just a chance to see a roomful of beautiful new cars and trucks, and maybe a couple of way-out concept vehicles.

This past Thanksgiving weekend, a couple of days before he addressed a major pre-show press gathering, Stewart hosted a grand opening of his completely remodeled and enlarged dealership in Garden City, Gordon Chevrolet. The fact that the building, which he designed himself, was nearly six months behind schedule didn't seem to bother him. He took advantage of the fact that his son Gordie was home from Lynchburg College in Virginia for the holiday to make it a double celebration.

Stewart and his wife, Linda, are also the parents of Andrew and Sarah, both students at University Liggett School, where Gordon and Linda are currently chairing the annual fund campaign.

Stewart is a ULS trustee, a team captain for the Boys and Girls Clubs of Southeastern Michigan and a board member at Lochmoor Club. "My handicap? That's not for print," he warns.

The Gordon Chevrolet grand opening in November featured several inanimate members of the Stewart clan — some of the 12 cars from a personal collection that includes Chevys, a '54 Oldsmobile and a '67 Pontiac GTO. The Garden City showroom was resplendent in its new chrome-and-smokey-glass decor, red-and-white popcorn boxes filled with fresh flowers, and cunning stuffed life-size figures propped in an old convertible or leaning against a shiny vintage jukebox.

"I was surprised at how many people brought cameras," Stewart said. "They were having fun running around the showroom

The postal box and answering service were hired via faxes and money orders out of Chicago. On Dec. 28, the contents of the private postal box in the Farms were forwarded to another private postal box in Chicago.

At no time did anyone come face to face with the party organizers.

Jensen said the way the party was referred to as the "second annual" in the "Grosse Pointe Farms area," gave it some kind of credibility. Also, the scam organizers cleverly justified sending cash only by stating it was for the partygoer's "protection and privacy."

He said it is possible that the organizers advertised similar New Year's Eve parties in several major cities.

"Everybody's looking for that big, big New Year's Eve party," Jensen said.

Because the U.S. mail was used to collect money for a party that was never held, Jensen said federal mail fraud charges could be brought against the party organizers — if they're ever caught.

The U.S. Postal Inspection Service is assisting in the investigation. Jensen said that because the perpetrators covered their tracks so well, postal inspectors believe such party scams have been pulled previously in other cities.

U.S. Postal Inspector Fred Van de Putte said the party scam is a new twist and one he hadn't heard of before.

"There's always someone willing to take money out of your pocket," he said.

He said the U.S. Postal Service's involvement is limited to how extensively the party organizers used the U.S. mail. If they used private mail carriers, like Federal Express or United Parcel, the post office does not have jurisdiction.

"If it's not U.S. mail," he said, "we can't get involved."

posing family members with the cars."

Stewart, a product of Denby High School and a graduate of Wayne State University, has some definite business ideas in addition to a superb sense of humor — he says he bought the showroom dummies at a shop in Petoskey. Stewart has taken the hassle out of buying a new car by eliminating the bargaining that customers — and many salespeople — dread.

The 1990 Time Quality Dealer designed the remodeled 28-year-old Garden City facility to reach out to both sales and service customers. Sales offices are separated by glass partitions, so buyers won't feel trapped.

"A couple of years ago I did some research," Stewart says. "I talked with customers and learned that a fair price is what they want. Most — especially women — dislike negotiating with a salesperson they figure is much better at it than they are." So Stewart decided to stabilize prices on his new vehicles, making them attractive to customers and profitable to the dealership. The customer's trade-in is the only thing being negotiated, he said.

The sales numbers indicate he was right. While colleagues complain about a recession, Stewart reports impressive year-to-year volume increases. Volume, he admits, is crucial when price and profit don't fluctuate with each sale.

A past president of the Detroit Auto Dealers Association, Stewart did considerable homework for his role as auto show co-chair. Field trips for him include jaunts to major U.S. and international shows to see how they are organized and run.

Tokyo was an eye-opener, he said. There he discovered several interesting things about Japanese business and society. The Tokyo show in the past closed at 5 p.m., he said, a far cry from the late-evening hours of U.S. shows to accommodate the after-work crowd. Tokyo eventually took the plunge and went to a later closing time — 7 p.m.

"The auto show is like a shrine to many Japanese," Stewart

art said. "When I asked the manager how he gets people to leave on time, he seemed surprised. 'Closing time is printed on the tickets,' he told me. And when closing comes, show visitors head for the exits!"

The dealer recalls another instance of unusual discipline in Japan. On one trip Stewart stopped to shop for pearls. There were only a few customers in the store at the time, and each of them was being waited on, he says. He says he wondered at the time what would happen if a tour bus pulled in with dozens of shoppers. His curiosity was soon satisfied when a bus arrived and people began pouring in, seeking Japanese pearls.

"The Japanese don't like to wait. They expect to be helped right away, and they serve customers the same way," Stewart said. "When the busload swarmed into the store, sales clerks began materializing from nowhere and everyone was helped immediately."

Stewart's January agenda includes spending a couple of weeks at Cobo Center shepherding pre-show and main show activities. He'll be on hand to watch Robin Leach of television's "Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous" host the show's first live-broadcast, evening of entertainment with local celebrities Anita Baker and J.P. McCarthy. On-site broadcasting and TV taping is a project Stewart says took nine months of hard work by members of the '91 show committee.

The committee landed GM Chairman Robert Stempel to be keynote speaker for the annual auto show banquet midway through the public show. It enlisted John Engler for Trade Days speaker as soon as he had won the gubernatorial race in November. It cooperates with Crain Communications and the University of Michigan in staging the annual Automotive News World Congress.

Stewart says Detroit's dealer-run show is becoming unique as more and more shows rely on full-time management staffs or hire outside promotion companies to handle their auto exhibits.

Sometime after the Detroit auto show and before February's National Auto Dealers Association meeting and exposition in Atlanta, Stewart will open his new Tampa area Chevrolet dealership.

In Atlanta, Stewart is scheduled to receive the Northwood Institute 1991 Education Award. He has just completed a term as the Chevrolet dealer on the GM University of Automotive Management board, he said.

Stewart started in the dealership business while a student at Wayne State in the '60s. Over the years he progressed from salesman to general manager to dealer. He says he misses being on the floor greeting sales customers. "Selling is fun," he said.

Where he can, Stewart spends time in his service departments to get an idea of how customers view their cars and trucks. The revamped service area at his Garden City dealership stretches to Ford Road. Its prominence and accessibility indicate the importance of service to the dealership, he says. The write-up area has been enlarged and enclosed to protect service customers from the Michigan elements.

Stewart even made his new-car lot user-friendly and inviting to casual shoppers. The area is landscaped and well-lighted. Numerous benches invite weary walkers to rest — and stay to look at all the new products. The dealer himself is a man who never seems to weary.

Young lawyer experiences Japanese law firsthand

By Pat Paholsky
Editor

Fact: In Japan, with a population of 120 million, only 500 new lawyers are admitted to the legal profession each year.

Fact: Michigan alone admitted more than 1,000 new lawyers to the bar last year.

The differences between Japanese lawyers and American lawyers are as great as the differences in language, culture and every other aspect of society.

"We know as little about Japan as we know about the Islamic world," said Tim Hazlett, a lawyer who spent two years there practicing law in a unique program.

"It's a very small club," the Woods resident said, "and they don't care for interference from outside. That's the leading issue in the trade talks now between the United States and Japan."

Hazlett, who returned to this country a few months ago, said the opportunity gave him an unequalled learning experience.

"The dominant share of my practice in Japan was joint ventures, sometimes a distribution network, or research and development effort or an industrial plant," he said. "It was absolutely stimulating and always a challenge to get each party to obtain their objective."

Hazlett was admitted to the select program when his employer, Dickinson, Wright, Moon, Van Dusen & Freeman, offered him the opportunity. In exchange for a Japanese lawyer who came here to practice and learn, Hazlett went to Tokyo to Anderson, Mori & Rabinowitz, one of a few law firms formed by Americans with Japanese partners after World War II and allowed to remain in business after the Japanese government in the '50s prohibited Americans from forming new partnerships there.

The law that closed the door opened a crack to allow foreign legal apprentices, like Hazlett, to be admitted to the country on a temporary basis.

"Anderson, Mori & Rabinowitz became prominent in Japan and is the most international of the international law firms," Hazlett said.

In 1986, the government passed a law permitting foreign lawyers to enter Japan under certain conditions to give advice on the law in their area of expertise, Hazlett said. Foreigners are still not allowed to form partnerships with Japanese lawyers.

"I would be called upon to meld, to combine the business and legal issues of an international transaction between any two countries in the world, with one country always being Japan," he said. "Japan and the United Kingdom, Brazil, Spain, Saudi Arabia, the U.S."

Hazlett said he never wanted to be a lawyer. "I wanted to be a businessman. The most fascinating part was I got to participate in more commercial transactions in one year than many managers get to do in their careers."

"The learning is intoxicating. In Tokyo I had two years of the most intense commercial training available."

The most important thing he learned, he said, is the Japanese

Tim Hazlett is adjusting to life in the United States after spending two years in Tokyo. He and his family returned about two months ago.

are different. "I have to appreciate those differences and not judge them."

Americans, Hazlett said, are terrible at joint ventures. "They are generally the worst performers in the most difficult place to negotiate a deal."

He believes the problems between the two countries are a result of federal policy. "We keep giving away the store," he said. "Of course, they're beating the pants off us. Our government is giving them the land."

Hazlett said the American worker is twice as productive as the Japanese worker. "The average American worker produces in 30 minutes what it takes the Japanese to do in one hour. We have a very capital intensive production policy now and that's what's keeping us No. 1."

The productivity gap will narrow, he said, but "we have the full capacity to compete with the Japanese if we just do the job."

The Dutch are the most successful in joint ventures with Japan, Hazlett said. "They are patient, they are a trading nation from way back and they have a very strong work ethic. I've learned a lot from them."

And he learned a lot from living in one of the most expensive cities in the world. Hazlett said a compensation package of $500,000 for American executives is not unusual and rent averages $10,000 to $15,000 a month for an apartment.

Since he and his family, which included an infant son, had to get by on considerably less, they learned to live like the Japanese and made many friends among them and other foreigners in the country.

He and his wife Leslie took one semester of Japanese at the War Memorial before they left. He knows enough of the language to get by, he said, but his wife is fluent from going to the park with the baby and talking to Japanese mothers.

As a result of his experience, Hazlett will be able to bring another perspective to Dickinson, Wright.

"We have clients who do a lot of international business and they involve me in anything that involves the international element," he said.

"We have the leading capacity to provide legal counsel in international transactions, particularly between the U.S. and Asia. We are the only firm in Michigan with two fully qualified bengoshi (Japanese lawyers) in our employ. And I'm the only attorney in the Midwest to my knowledge who has two years' practical experience in Japan. We also have a partner who is counsel to the minister of finance in Poland."

The world market is opening up and there is great potential, he said. "What I really would like to do is add some gumption to businesspeople in the Midwest to encourage them to realize that economic rewards are available in international business and you don't have to be a giant to be successful."

Hazlett, who was born in Latrobe, Pa., grew up on Grosse Ile. He studied economics and general business administration at Michigan State University, where he was a drum major in the marching band for three years. After earning a bachelor of arts degree from MSU in 1982, he was awarded a Rotary Foundation scholarship.

He earned a master of arts degree in European economic studies in 1983 at the University of Exeter in England. While he was there, he was on the men's varsity basketball team which finished third in the national title competition.

He then earned a juris doctorate from Georgetown University Law Center.

Up until the age of 21, Hazlett had never been out of the country. Now, at 30, he has traveled extensively, visiting 25 countries and living on three continents.

He and his wife, who is a musician and a music therapist, are members of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church. They are expecting their second child in June.

Timothy M. Mucciante of Mucciante & Aubrey, P.C. was a speaker at an international law seminar in Romania. The seminar, "Introduction to Basic Market Economy," focused on legal aspects of creating and managing business and trade with Romania. Topics included basic business, simple trade concepts from western views, an explanation of stock and commodity exchanges, and key issues to remember when trading with the United States. Mucciante is a Grosse Pointe City resident. Mucciante & Aubrey, P.C., is an international law firm located in Detroit.

Jeffrey A. Craig of Grosse Pointe has been promoted to senior manager in the audit department at the Detroit office of Deloitte & Touche. Craig, a certified public accountant, was formerly a manager with the audit department of the Detroit office of the same company. Craig specializes in serving clients in the automotive and insurance industries. His major client is General Motors Corp.

Craig

Jeffrey Lutz of Grosse Pointe Farms was one of seven people elected to the board of regents of the Orchard Lake Schools. Lutz is a partner in the management consulting division of Deloitte & Touche. Grosse Pointe Park resident Dr. Peter Nowosielski was one of five regents who completed terms on the board.

Grose

Nancy Grose, a 1971 graduate of Grosse Pointe North High School, recently was appointed director of operations for Square Lake Corp., a managed mental health care company located in Bloomfield Hills. Grose formerly worked with the Michigan Small Business Development Center at Wayne State University.

Cynthia Boal Janssens of Grosse Pointe Woods was elected to the board of directors of The State News, the daily student newspaper at Michigan State University. Janssens, who was with The Detroit News for 10 years, has been managing editor of The Daily Tribune in Royal Oak for the past two years.

Janssens

Jani Maurer of Grosse Pointe Farms was named an operations account executive at Cato Johnson/Detroit, Young & Rubicam. Maurer, who joined Y&R in 1986, will work as an operations account executive for all Cato Johnson accounts including Du Pont and Lincoln Mercury. Prior to her promotion, Maurer was a traffic coordinator for the Du Pont account.

The room is filled with bits and pieces of theatrical stuff — black velvet curtain covers the back wall; worn, parquet floor is marked with strips of blue and yellow masking tape; two pianos are pushed against walls; stacks of folding chairs lean against an overstuffed chair; a 25-foot decorated Christmas tree is stage left, trimmed with tiny white lights and multicolored ornaments, including several large tragedy and comedy masks; a few costumes are strewn about; a 1940-vintage refrigerator hums softly in a corner, next to pegboard filled with hanging coffee cups; stage area is set with tables, chairs, lamps, a telephone, a carafe and several drinking glasses.

Director is seated on a table in front of the stage area, arms folded, an intense look of concentration on his face. Actors are mid-rehearsal. The author sits at a table, watching the action with interest.)

Grosse Pointe Theatre members have been rehearsing for their next play, "A Little Murder Never Hurt Anybody," since the beginning of December.

This play is different. It was written by GPT member Ronald J. Bernas.

"It's the first full two-act original play the Grosse Pointe Theatre has ever presented as part of its regular subscription series," said director Mike Trudel of Grosse Pointe.

"We've had playwriting workshops for the last three years. Ron's play was one of the fruits of that endeavor. We had hoped for this."

Bernas, 26, is a 1986 graduate of Central Michigan University, where he majored in journalism. He has been a staff writer at the Grosse Pointe News for three years.

"I've always been interested in the theater," he said. "I joined the Grosse Pointe Theatre a couple of years ago. I've been in a couple of plays — '42nd Street,' 'Camelot,' 'Something's Afoot' and 'Evita.'"

"I always wanted to write a play."

Bernas joined a playwriting workshop last year, coordinated by Gwenn Samuel. The plays written in the workshop were submitted to three college professors for judging.

"Even if it were never produced, I thought that the feedback from other writers would be valuable."

The top three plays were submitted to the theater's board and they subsequently decided to produce "A Little Murder Never Hurt Anybody."

"I think they chose it for several reasons," Bernas said. "It's not technically difficult. It uses only one set. It doesn't use a lot of costumes. It doesn't have a large cast of characters. And it's fluff. You don't have to think. It's just a good time."

Bernas said he had been mulling for about a year over the story of a man who wanted to kill his wife.

The plot developed as he talked to others about it.

"It's almost a comedy of manners or a screwball comedy in the style of the '30s.

There's a lot of witty banter back and forth.

You know exactly how it's going to end up. The fun is how it's going to get there."

Bernas took a week's vacation to finish the play in time for the judging.

"I wrote it in longhand first. On the night before the deadline I typed into the wee hours on a typewriter that had no 'l.' A friend came over and filled in all the l's for me and corrected the typos I missed. My correction cartridge broke. We ended up tearing pieces off the roll and holding it on the page to make corrections. Then it cost me 30 bucks to get the thing duplicated because I had to turn in three copies for the judging."

Plays evolve and change. Bernas said the author often changes things. The characters add their personalities and interpretations. The director makes some changes. Friends, colleagues, bystanders, almost anybody can influence a change in dialogue, character, plot, costume or set design.

He said some of the characters are different than those he created. "Originally, the butler did everything, but as I was writing, it didn't come out that way."

"The detective was different when I first wrote it. He was more bumbling. But there's already two stupid characters on stage, so now he's a Sam Spade caricature."

Trudel gave Bernas credit for the play, but added, "It has stopped being Ron's play. We're taking what Ron put together and making it better. Ron has respect for the director and for the other people involved. He hasn't gotten defensive at all about his work. He's hardened to the process."

"It's not really mine anymore," Bernas said. "It's a combination of what the first actors did in June when it was presented just for Grosse Pointe Theatre members, of what these actors are doing, and both directors. They all brought things to it that work so well — I think 'why didn't I put that in?'"

The play has a cast of six. Matthew Perry, a wealthy man of 55 who decides to kill his wife so he can travel more and enjoy life, is played by Mike Evans of Grosse Pointe. Julia, his wife, is played by Jodi Brown of Canada. Buttram, the butler, is Marty Bufalini of Grosse Pointe. Bunny, the Perry's air-headed daughter, is played by Robin Bucci of Sterling Heights. Donald, Bunny's ardent fiance, is Jim Rose of Grosse Pointe. And the Sam Spade-type detective is played by Grosse Pointer Clarke Scholes.

"There's an immense amount of talent onstage and supporting the play," Bernas said. "Everyone associated has years and years of experience onstage and backstage. We have the cream of the Grosse Pointe Theatre crop and they are a good crop to be going with.

"They're creating something for the first time — and that's more fun than doing a play they've seen a million times."

"The crew — set designers, set dressers, props people, costume designers and the lighting engineers are terrific. I had an idea of what I wanted, but I didn't write any of it down. The set is an old-fashioned drawing room with a deep, rich, old money look and it's better than I had originally imagined."

The play opens at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, Jan. 15, at the Fries Auditorium of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial and continues through Saturday, Jan. 26. A special black-tie afterglow will take place at the rehearsal studio after opening night. Tickets are $8.50. Opening night tickets are $7, which includes the afterglow.

How will the play be received? "I don't want audiences to walk away saying it was a nice play for an original product from someone from Grosse Pointe," Trudel said. "I don't want them to compare it to Neil Simon or Agatha Christie. I want them to see it as an evening of theatrical entertainment. A good play is tight; it clicks; the acting is believable; in this case, it's humorous."

"I'm scared," Bernas said. "It could be a flop and I could be the Grosse Pointe Theatre joke for the next 20 years.

"But — it could be a hit, I suppose."

For tickets, call 881-4004.

Pre-murder dinner

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial will serve dinner before each performance of "A Little Murder Never Hurt Anybody." Dinner is served at 6:30 p.m. and costs $11.50 a person, including tax and tip. For information, call 881-7511.

The performance begins at 8 p.m. Tickets are $8.50 and may be purchased by calling 881-4004.

Bridge

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION
BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD ♠♥♦♣

Many of Michigan's early playing elders fondly remember the fun loving Bud Smith, who in his day was a skillful participant of the game. During the twenty year period following W.W. II, Bud's bridge-ability gained national ranking and consequential recognition. He was a favorite of many of the greats of that time. The celebrated Oswald Jacoby was an admirer of Bud's game and so stated on many occasions.

Bud's match up with the Detroit Lion's famous fullback, Ace Gutowski, was by chance, but it developed into a successful and celebrated partnership. They first met in the early thirties when Ace came up from Portsmouth, Ohio as a rookie with the Lions. It was an instant stroke of good fortune for both as their relationship at and away from the table was sterling and diverse, but their greatest achievements weren't realized until after the war.

Our forever celebrated Win Malchie, Bud's sister can spend an evening telling tales about "those two" as she affectionately relates to them. It seems that just before Pearl Harbor, Win and her husband were in a team game with Bud and Ace and as game time came closer "those two" never showed. All wasn't lost though as they only missed the first four boards. Where had they been? Down at the Grosse Isle Naval Air Station enlisting in the Navy.

At the table, their contrasting styles were ideal. Ace was an adventurer always searching for precarious plateau's that no other pair would go to and sometimes even Bud's fine play couldn't achieve, but this was the nature of their game. Bud on the other hand was a disciplined advocate of bidding stability rarely ever speculating unless the probability was in his favor.

Today's hand mandated Bud's best cleverness to accomplish the nearly impossible which was typical of Ace's obsession to overbid. Why he made no attempt to uncover a major suit fit isn't discernable, but Ace's typical bidding posture had always been, "Damn the torpedoes, full speed ahead."

When Bud saw the dummy he was stunned. Ace had made another plunge, but not for the goal line. This time it seemed to obliteration. Always the perfect gentleman, Bud preserved his composure and went about his work as hopeless as it seemed.

He won East's club queen with his ace and laid down the heart ace, king. When West's queen fortunately fell he now had twelve tricks. 2 spades, 5 hearts, 3 diamonds and 2 clubs, but where was the thirteenth? Maybe he had a spade, club squeeze on one of his adversaries or a mistake might be his salvation. At trick 4-6 high diamonds ending in his hand. 7-8 the spade ace, king ending in dummy. 9-10 the heart jack ten and here was the three card ending.

Women in Communications

Pay Equity: Are we keeping up with our Canadian counterparts?

That issue will be explored by the Women in Communications Inc. as it kicks off the new year on Tuesday, Jan. 15, by exploring this issue at the Holiday Inn/Fairlane in Dearborn. Cost is $16 for WICI members and guests; $20 for non-members; $10 for students.

Guest speakers will include Polly Howe, coordinator of the Pay Equity Network, and Julie Mason, director of information and education for the Ontario Pay Equity Commission. Howe will discuss the strides the network has made to date and what the future holds. Mason will review what Ontario has already accomplished legislatively regarding equal pay.

The meeting will begin at 6 p.m. with a buffet reception. Guest presentations begin at 7 p.m., followed by a question and answer session.

To R.S.V.P. for the Pay Equity meeting or for more information about membership in WICI, contact Women in Communications Inc., Detroit Chapter, 35918 Rewa, Mount Clemens, 48043; or call 791-1277.

Women in Communications Inc. is a national organization of communicators, both professionals and students, who work in a variety of communications fields including advertising, public relations, education, the news media and free-lance writing and editing. Originally founded as Theta Sigma Phi at the University of Washington, the organization promotes high professional standards among its members, understanding of the First Amendment and its rights and responsibilities, professional development, and distinguished professional achievement.

Grosse Pointers volunteer at Detroit Institute of Arts

The 507-member volunteer committee of the Founders Society, Detroit Institute of Arts has begun its 29th year of dedication to the museum. Volunteers donate time and talent on eight service committees and present docent-guided tours of the museum and slide talks to schools in the metropolitan Detroit area. They coordinate mailings, staff the museum shop and assist visitors at the information desks and in the galleries. The beautification of the lobbies with plants and flowers is also one of the volunteers' tasks.

Serving on the 46-member board of directors this year are Grosse Pointers Sally Barnes, chairman-Art to the Schools; Jeanne Bertelsen, chairman-Community Relations; Martina Hall, vice chairman-Decorations; Mary Lee O'Bryan, corresponding secretary; Mary O'Connor, second vice chairman-Gallery Information; Mary Ann Lawless, chairman-Personnel Placement; Margaret Parker, Trip Chairman; Nancy Ross, chairman-Staff Coffee; and Carole Tibbitts, chairman of Volunteer Marketing.

For information about serving on the volunteer committee of the DIA, call the auxiliary services office at 833-0247.

The Rev. John Phelps, left, and the Honorable James A. Hathaway, right, were honored for their service to the Detroit community by Life Directions at its annual tribute dinner on Dec. 5. Hathaway's wife, Carmelita, is in the center.

Auto Show Preview: Darlene Soave of Grosse Pointe and David Baker Lewis of Detroit are honorary chairmen for the 1991 North American International Auto Show Charity Preview on behalf of Barat Human Services.

The annual black-tie fundraiser is a prelude to the introduction of new car models and is coordinated by the Detroit Auto Dealers Association. It will take place on Friday, Jan. 11, at Cobo Conference and Exhibition Center.

Soave is a volunteer on behalf of a variety of charitable organizations and Lewis is an attorney and founder and president of Lewis, White and Clay, the city's largest minority-owned law firm.

Tickets for the event are $75 a person. All proceeds go to seven local charities in the proportion selected by the purchaser. In addition to Barat Human Services, agencies include Boys and Girls Clubs of Southeastern Michigan, The Children's Center, Children's Services of Northeast Guidance Center Assistance League, Detroit Institute for Children, Easter Seal Society-Wayne, Oakland, Macomb and March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation. For tickets or information, call 833-1525.

Debutante ball: Bal Polonais VIII, a dinner dance which will benefit Michigan Opera Theatre's Polish opera presentation and the acquisition of the "Spoon Altar" sculpture by Ursula Karolizsyn von Rydingsvard for the Detroit Institute of Arts collection, will be held on Saturday, Feb. 9, beginning at 6:30 p.m., at the Detroit Athletic Club.

The second presentation of debutantes of Bal Polonais will be under the patronage of Mrs. John S. Kolon of Bloomfield Hills. One of the vice chairmen of the event is Mrs. William E. Johnston of Grosse Pointe.

Bal Polonais is generally remembered for the lavish costumes of its 17th century Polish court pages and herald trumpeters, jousting knights in shining armor and costumed dancers.

Tickets for the 1991 event are $125 a person; $175 for patrons; $250 for benefactors. For information, call 642-2730, 352-1968 or 885-2126.

Honored: The Honorable James A. Hathaway of Wayne County Circuit Court and the Rev. John Phelps, executive director of Life Directions for 18 years, were honored at Life Directions' 16th annual tribute dinner on Dec. 5 at the Westin Hotel.

Life Directions was begun in 1974 as a non-profit organization dedicated to motivating young adults to redirect their lives in a positive manner. The organization works through peer motivation groups in Detroit high schools, peer mentoring groups in Detroit middle schools and neighborhood circles in the community. Life Directions Inc. provides guidance to youngsters on living a life free from violence and addiction.

Hathaway and his wife, Carmelita, were honored for their years of service to the Detroit community and especially for their deep and abiding love for the children of Detroit.

Phelps was honored for his 18 years of dedication to the young people of the Detroit area.

Anyone interested in volunteering or making a contribution to Life Directions should call 342-2020 or write to 8425 West McNichols, Detroit, 48221.

Children's Home of Detroit receives, gives donations

Mrs. George R. Fink of Grosse Pointe, honorary trustee of the Children's Home of Detroit, made a contribution that enabled the home to purchase 72 new beds, desks and chairs.

The Children's Home, in turn, donated its used beds and night stands to four local charities that serve the needy in the metropolitan Detroit area: Catholic Social Services' Teenage Mothers program, Parents and Children Together, Coalition on Temporary Shelter and Children's Immune Disorders.

Fink has been a member of the CHD board since 1952.

The Children's Home provides a residential treatment program for children ages 6 to 17 who are severely emotionally troubled.

Emergency respite services are also provided. Recently, the Children's Home acquired financial and administrative responsibility for two programs that were part of the Family Life Education Council (FLEC): the Youth Assistance and Center Pointe Crisis Center programs. FLEC closed in July.

Mrs. George R. Fink

Support group for grieving parents

First Sunday, a support group for parents who have suffered the death of a child, meets from 8 to 11 p.m. the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month at St. John Hospital and Medical Center in the lower level education center.

The next meetings will be held on Jan. 9 and 23.

The Rev. Lawrence DuCharme, director of pastoral care, and Sister Beatrice Monforton, chaplain at St. John Hospital and Medical Center, will lead this bereavement group designed to help parents cope after the death of a child.

Call 343-3695 for more information.

Start new year at Nutrition Center

The Nutrition Center at St. John Hospital and Medical Center offers three weight management programs to help people begin the new year in a healthier way.

HealthFast, Nutrition Plus and SHAPEDOWN are designed with specific needs in mind. HealthFast is a 26-week, medically-supervised program for those with 50 pounds or more to lose. It combines nutritionally-safe modified fasting with instruction from dietitians, behaviorists and exercise specialists to help clients lose and then maintain a specific weight goal.

Nutrition Plus, a 14-week program, is for those with a more moderate weight loss goal. It uses an individualized diet plan, meal replacement shakes and portion-controlled low fat entrees combined with fruits and vegetables.

SHAPEDOWN is a 13-week program for overweight 8-to-18-year-olds who wish to improve their eating and exercise habits. Participants meet weekly with a registered dietitian and exercise specialist. Parents also meet with a behaviorist and dietitians to learn how they can help their child change eating behavior.

Call 343-SLIM (7546) to register for one of the free program orientations to be held this month and in early January.

Singles party

Nitemoves will hold a singles party on Friday, Jan. 11, at the Chateau Rouge, 22425 Harper, St. Clair Shores, from 8:30 p.m. until 1 a.m. Admission is $7 and includes beer, wine, pop, snacks and dancing. For details, call 881-1019 or 881-1817.

Monthly organ recitals begin at Memorial Church

The first of a monthly organ recital series will be presented on Sunday, Jan. 13, at 3:30 p.m. at The Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore. The featured guest organist will be Thomas M. Kuras performing on the church's new Klais organ which was dedicated in a recital last October.

In addition to being director of music at St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Detroit, Kuras is also distinguished performer on the organ, harpsichord and piano as well as an improvisator, composer and arranger of music and a lecturer. Among his achievements are the recitals of the organ works of Vierne, Franck and Widor. In 1975-76, he performed the complete organ works of J. S. Bach in a Detroit series of 17 recitals, the first and only such undertaking in Detroit's musical history.

Kuras' program will include a variety of music: Prelude & Fugue in F Major by Buxtehude, Chaconne in F Minor by Pachelbel, Voluntary in C by John Christopher Pepusch, Concerto in D Minor by Vivaldi/Bach, Scherzo in G Minor and Woodland Scene by Marco Enrico Bossi, Impromptu by Louis Vierne, Lamento by Gaston Litaize and Paeon by Kenneth Leighton.

Tickets, available at the door, are $8 for adults; $6 for senior citizens and students.

The next recital in the series will be on Feb. 17 at 3:30 p.m. featuring "Orgue et Trompettes" by organist Arthur A. Vidrich of Grosse Pointe Farms and trumpeters Brian Rood and Charley Lea.

Grand Marais Questers

Jane Warner will host the Grand Marais chapter of Questers at her home on Friday, Jan. 11, at 9:30 a.m.

Peg Stocking, program chairman, has planned a program of mini talks to be given by chapter members.

Marge Smith will present a talk on George Wade from Burslem, England. Wade is known for his ceramic animals given as premiums in Canadian Red Rose Tea. The factory closed in 1988. The Wade porcelain curios, cottages and commemoratives may well become the collectibles of the future.

Kay MacKay has chosen American Victorian Majolica as her subject. Majolica is a tin glazed earthenware painted in polychrome colors of blue, green, yellow, orange and manganese purple, made in the late 1800's to 1914.

Marilyn Stedem has selected Quimper pottery from France as her topic. This faience factory was founded in 1690 and recently celebrated its 300th anniversary. Quimper is known for its popular hand-painted peasant type decorations.

Garden Center plans program

The Detroit Garden Center invites the public to its annual program on Monday, Jan. 14, at 11 a.m. at the University Club, 1411 E. Jefferson.

Dale Morgan of Silk and Morgan will present "Make Your Party Blossom." Morgan and his partner, Norm Silk, are known for their specialized party and event-planning. Together, they operate Blossoms Fresh Flower Markets.

Luncheon follows the program at 12:30 p.m. and dessert will be served across the street at historic Moross House, home of the Detroit Garden Center, 1460 E. Jefferson.

Tours of the center, which is also Detroit's oldest brick house, will be available until 4 p.m.

Price of the luncheon and program is $14; program only is $5. Reserve a space by calling the center at 259-6363. Reservation deadline is Jan. 15.

Pointer Bridge Club

Members of the Pointer Bridge Club will meet on Thursday, Jan. 16. Those who cannot attend should call 881-8033.

Grosse Pointer returns to preach at Grosse Pointe United Methodist

The Rev. James C. Batten will return to his home church, Grosse Pointe United Methodist, 211 Moross, to preach and assist in the baptism of his nephew on Sunday, Jan. 13.

Batten is the president of United Methodist Retirement Homes, Detroit Annual Conference, Inc. In that capacity he serves as chief executive officer, responsible to the board of trustees, for the operation of the Chelsea and Boulevard Temple United Methodist Retirement Homes. The homes serve 480 residents, employ a staff of 300 and have an annual budget of more than $9 million. Each year the homes raise more than $500,000 in gifts to support the care provided by the two facilities to under-financed residents.

He serves on the board of trustees of Michigan Non-Profit Homes for the Aging (MNPFA) and chairs its health and reimbursement committee. He was instrumental in founding the association's Political Action Committee (PAC) and serves on the board of trustees of the PAC. He has led the association's efforts in attempting to provide a reasonable reimbursement to member homes that participate in the Medicaid program.

Before accepting his present position in 1987, Batten served as executive director of Breckenridge Village, a unit of Ohio Presbyterian Retirement Services. Breckenridge Village is a 500-resident retirement community in Willoughby, Ohio, with extensive services to non-residents.

Women's support group to meet

The Women's Support Group helps members work through problems that might include anxiety, tension, trouble at work, starting a new job, troubles with spouse/family, family crises, losing a loved one and the myriad other problems that may arise in the stress and pressures of everyday living.

The support group will meet on the second and fourth Thursdays of the month from 7 to 9 p.m. beginning on Jan. 10 at the Living Our Vision center, 17427 Mack.

Some of the subjects which will be addressed are co-dependency, feelings and assertiveness.

For further information, call Marty, 886-2724 (evenings) or Donna, 772-5485 (days).

Questers No. 147

The Grosse Pointe chapter of Questers No. 147 will meet on Jan. 11 at 10 a.m. at the home of Lisa Gandelot. Following the business meeting, Carol Davey of the Fox Creek chapter of Questers, will present a program, "Silk Through the Ages."

Davey taught textiles at the University of Illinois and Wayne State University. She will follow silk through its discovery in the Orient to its cultivation in the Western world. Cultivation, varieties, uses and care of silk will be discussed. Members are asked to bring interesting silk items to the meeting.

Hostesses for the luncheon following the program will be Nini Galbo and Eleanor Durno.

Lakeside Palette Club

The Lakeside Palette Club will hold its regular meeting on Thursday, Jan. 10, at 7:30 p.m. at the Civic Arena, 20000 Stephens, St. Clair Shores.

The program will feature Joe Manascalco. Visitors and guests are welcome.

Tip Toppers

Detroit Tip Toppers is a non-profit social club for tall men and women.

The clubs are for men 6' 2" and over; women 5' 10" and over.

The next business meeting and house party will be Saturday, Jan. 19, at 7:30 p.m.

For more information about Detroit Tip Toppers, call 278-TALL.

Detroit Historical Society plans church tours

Some of Detroit's most beautiful historic churches will be featured by the Detroit Historical Society for its church tours. Since 1972, the society has been conducting church tours to acquaint Detroiters with the contributions that churches have made in the religious and cultural life of the area and to focus attention on the importance of preserving and maintaining these buildings.

Tours are conducted on the first Monday of each month. The tour bus leaves the Detroit Historical Museum parking lot at 10 a.m. The price, including lunch, is $8.50 for members of the society; $10 for non-members.

On Feb. 4, the tour will include the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, St. Dominic, St. John Episcopal, Central United Methodist and St. Joseph churches.

On March 4, the tour will include Immaculate Conception Ukrainian, St. Florian, St. John Christian, St. Matthew-St. Joseph and Blessed Sacrament Cathedral churches.

For reservations, send a check to the Detroit Historical Society, 5401 Woodward, Detroit, 48202. For more information, call 833-7934.

Prayer service for Middle East crisis

On the eve of the Tuesday, Jan. 15, ultimatum by President George Bush to Iraqi president Saddam Hussein, the Peacemaking Committee of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church will hold a prayer service focusing on the hope for a non-violent resolution of the Middle East crisis.

Representatives from other Grosse Pointe churches will join members of Detroit's Chaldean community in an ecumenical service of prayer, meditation and readings on Monday, Jan. 14, at 7:30 p.m. at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

The service will be preceded by a prayer vigil beginning on Saturday, Jan. 12. The Peacemaking Committee has united more than 100 members of Memorial's congregation in a 24-hour chain of prayer and meditation.

Seminar on helping troubled children

The Children's Center, a mental health agency for troubled children and their families, is sponsoring a seminar on how to help severely troubled families on Friday, Jan. 18, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the center, 103 West Alexandrine, Detroit.

Jerome A. Price, director and founder of the Michigan Family Institute, will be the presenter. Cost is $50; $30 for students. Call The Children's Center, 831-5535.

Mr. and Mrs. David Cox Jackson
Pfaendtner-Jackson

Joan Marie Pfaendtner of Tampa, Fla., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Gilbert Pfaendtner of Grosse Pointe City, married David Cox Jackson of San Francisco, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Jackson of Port Charlotte, Fla., on Feb. 17, 1990, at St. Bonaventure Monastery in Detroit.

The Rev. Rupert Dorn and the Rev. Jaques Constance officiated at the 4:30 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

The bride wore a gown of ivory silk shantung with a portrait neckline. The cuffed collar, bodice and sleeve cuffs were adorned with beaded Alencon lace. The bride wore her mother's Juliet cap and cathedral-length veil and carried her mother's mother-of-pearl prayer book covered with gardenias and ivy.

The maid of honor was Mary Lou Pfaendtner of Grosse Pointe City, the bride's sister.

Bridesmaids were Christine Grumeretz of Grosse Pointe Woods; Maureen Niscovich of Madison Heights; and the groom's sister, Sarah Jackson of Sarasota, Fla.

Rebecca Tennis of Chicago was the flowergirl.

Attendants wore olive green floor-length taffeta gowns with tapestry bodices and carried bouquets of mauve roses and multi-colored freesia.

David Steigerwalt of Pace, Fla., was the best man.

Groomsmen were Brett Azarelli and Trevor Price, both of Tampa, and the groom's brother, Thomas Jackson of Sarasota.

The mother of the bride wore a street-length pink silk chemise with iridescent beading. She pinned pink and white sweetheart roses to her purse.

The mother of the groom wore a street-length teal silk dress with a fluted hemline. She wore a corsage of multicolored freesia and ivy.

Music was by Pat Wagner. The soloist was Margaret Wagner. Readings were by Brett Azarelli and Trevor Price.

The bride earned a bachelor of architecture degree from the University of Detroit. She is a store designer for The Gap Inc.

The groom earned a bachelor of arts degree in economics and business administration from Hanover University. He earned a master's degree from the University of Michigan. He is vice president of sales and marketing for National Utility Services in San Francisco.

The newlyweds traveled to Austria. They live in San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Christopher A. Flood

Vitums-Flood

Kellija Susanne Vitums of Seattle, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Vitolas Vitums of Eugene, Ore., married Christopher A. Flood of Seattle, formerly of Grosse Pointe, son of Robert J. Flood Jr. of Grosse Pointe and Barbara Flood of Detroit, on May 19, 1990, at Trinity Lutheran Church in Seattle.

The Rev. Luther Engelbrecht officiated at the 6 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Woodmark Hotel in Kirkland, Wash.

The bride wore a beaded, strapless blush-colored silk floor-length gown with a chapel-length train and a matching silk and beaded bolero jacket. She carried white roses and Casa-blanca lilies.

The maid of honor was the bride's sister, Kristine Vitums of Las Vegas.

Bridesmaids were Heidi Harken of Knoxville, Tenn.; and Jennifer Rossi, Caroline Corr and Jayme Morrison, all of Seattle.

Attendants wore brocade strapless dresses with tea-length taffeta skirts and matching brocade bolero jackets. They carried bouquets of roses and wildflowers.

David Wittwen of Grosse Pointe was the best man.

Groomsmen were the groom's brother, David Flood of Grosse Pointe; John Rossi of Seattle; Steven Truba of Gainesville, Fla.; and Alan Riley of South Lyon.

The mother of the bride wore a blush-colored lame front-wrap dress and a gardenia corsage.

The groom's mother wore a two-piece ivory cream-colored silk dress and a gardenia corsage.

Soloists were the bride's sisters, Heidi Harken and Kristine Vitums.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Washington in Seattle, where she earned bachelor of arts degrees in marketing and English. She is an account executive at King Broadcasting, an NBC affiliate.

The groom is a graduate of Michigan State University, where he earned a bachelor of arts degree in communications. He is employed by Dun & Bradstreet as a business analyst.

The newlyweds traveled to Hawaii. They live in Seattle.

Mr. and Mrs. Geoffrey Hawkins Durno

Bogdanovics-Durno

Silvia Linda Bogdanovics of Los Angeles, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Aurelius Bogdanovics of Brooklyn, N.Y., married Geoffrey Hawkins Durno of Los Angeles, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dregge Durno of Grosse Pointe Farms, on Sept. 15, 1990, at Bethlehem Lutheran Church in Brooklyn.

The Rev. Richard Zarins officiated at the 5:30 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at Bridgewater, South Street Seaport in New York City.

The bride's gown was white silk with applied lace and pearls on the bodice and sleeves.

The matron of honor was May Bogdanovics of Waterbury, Conn.

Bridesmaids were the groom's sister, Amy Durno Harned of Atlanta; Kim Carroll of Brooklyn; Anne Miller of Mount Vernon, N.Y.; Dr. Margita Meyers of the Bronx; and Linda Rencs of North Arlington, N.J.

Attendants wore black and white dinner suits and carried bouquets of calla lilies.

The best man was Craig Field Durno of Grosse Pointe Farms, the groom's brother.

Groomsmen were Chel Cavalon of Acton, Mass.; the bride's brother, Dr. Egils Bogdanovics of Waterbury, Conn.; Alex Stein of Pittsburgh; David Pierce of Grosse Pointe; and Griffin Gielow of Old Greenwich, Conn.

The mother of the bride wore an ice blue silk dress and a gardenia corsage on her wrist.

The groom's mother wore a green chiffon dress with a brocade jacket and a gardenia corsage on her wrist.

Ingus Naruns played the cello at the ceremony.

The bride is a graduate of Colgate University. She is employed by Hyatt Hotels.

The groom attended University Liggett School and graduated from Kings College School in London, England. He is a graduate of Dartmouth College, where he earned a bachelor of arts degree, and New York University, where he earned a master of business administration degree. He is vice president of Financial Security Assurance Co. in New York City.

The year in film

Our reviewers choose last year's top films

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

In a year in which there was an excellent choice of films, it is no small task to pick the best of the many good ones.

For viewers hooked on gangster films, it was a banner year. There were at least six to choose from and all were noteworthy, beginning with Sean Penn's outstanding performance in "State of Grace" and ending with the long awaited "Godfather Part III."

In a somewhat eclectic list, I have made these choices:

1. "Dances With Wolves," Kevin Costner's bow as a director is epic in scope, and he also turns in a grand performance as its star. Set in the Western frontier in the 1860's, it scores on every point: adventure, romance, humor and as an accurate portrayal of Sioux culture.

2. "Reversal of Fortune," the true story of Claus Van Bulow, who was tried for attempting to murder his heiress wife, Sunny. A potent mixture of truth, mystery and melodrama, it is a triumph for Jeremy Irons who plays the ghoulish aristocrat.

3. "Edward Scissorhands," an enchanting adult fairy tale starring Johnny Depp as a strange and sorrowful teenager created by a scientist who gave him a set of scissors where his hands should have been. A pale, sensitive boy, he dwells in a Gothic castle overlooking a cardboard pink suburb and spends his time creating huge figures out of shrubbery. The story of his visit to the real world where he falls in love with a real girl is unforgettable.

Martin Scorsese, who rules the operation.

8. "Godfather III." I haven't seen this yet, but I reserve this space on the list for it.

9. Every list should have a place for the offbeat. I choose "House Party," a fast-paced, hilarious view of a sub-culture. Besides being funny it is a realistic portrayal of black youth. The jokes and rap scenes need to be seen twice.

10. And as long as we're deviating from the usual, let's include a cartoon. "The Rescuers Down Under" was the best of several offerings. In it, Bernard (Bob Newhart) and Miss Bianca (Eva Gabor) go to Australia on a rescue mission in a beautifully imagined and drawn sequel to the 1987 Disney cartoon.

4. "Memphis Belle" is an inspirational film that also achieves epic proportions in its World War II battle scenes, but scores highest in its portrayal of the young B-17 crew members who endear themselves to us with their youth, enthusiasm and bravery.

5. "Men Don't Leave," the story of a young widowed mother (Jessica Lange) and her two sons who struggle to remain united without Dad is a touching film with quiet emotional appeal that sets it apart.

6. "The Krays," an English production, is the strange and weird story of twin gangster brothers with a mother fixation who were brought up to be cold, cruel and predatory thugs. This one fascinates even as it shocks.

7. "GoodFellas": a mob comedy about a young Irish-Sicilian boy who gradually insinuates himself into the Mafia. The virtue of this piece is its ability to combine black comedy and violence thanks largely to director

Glenn Close and Jeremy Irons in "Reversal of Fortune."

My arms are tired. My fingers are dirty. And my head hurts.

See, I just spent the last hour with a huge stack of newspapers. A year's worth. I was poring over them, re-reading old movie reviews, trying to formulate a list of my favorite films from the past 12 months.

My conclusions:

1) A year's worth of newspapers, when piled one on top of the other, can be very heavy. I'm quite thankful this paper publishes only once a week, rather than daily.

2) A year's worth of newspapers contains a lot of ink. Most of this ink, unfortunately, ends up on your hands.

3) A year's worth of newspapers contains about 52 movie reviews, give or take a few. So whittling down the list of contenders takes a while. And it makes your head hurt.

Of those conclusions I'm sure. Of the list that follows, I'm willing to engage in a meaningful dialogue. These are not, by any means, necessarily the best films of the year. If you want that kind of analysis, check out those two guys on TV from Chicago. If you want an honest, knee-jerk response from somebody who was in movie theaters at least one day a week every week last year, read on.

• "Pretty Woman" — This became one of the biggest hits of the year, and it's not hard to see why. Julia Roberts was a joy to watch throughout, and the film's fairy-tale approach was refreshing.

• "Joe Versus the Volcano" — a combination of existential philosophy and, yes, fairy tale romance. Not an everyday combination. But a combination that worked.

• "The Hunt for Red October" — A chillingly detailed character study laced with elements of thrillers and spy stories. A top-notch adaptation of the Tom Clancy novel.

• "Tremors" — Giant alien slugs live underground in the Nevada desert and surface occasionally to eat people and cars. A movie as funny as it was scary — actually it was much funnier than scary.

• "Born on the Fourth of July" — Here's the movie that answered the question about Tom Cruise once and for all:

Yes, he can act with the best of them. Also, this was a socially relevant, solid piece of movie-making.

• "Ernest Goes to Jail" — As long as viewers lowered their defenses — and their standards — this was a very amusing piece of physical comedy. Not an Academy Award winner, but very funny.

• "Total Recall" — An Arnold Schwarzenegger picture with brains to match its brawn. It wasn't completely understandable, but it was a fast-paced ride into a world where nothing is as it appears.

• "Die Hard 2" — Two hours of rock'em, sock'em fast paced action that gave viewers everything they could want from Bruce Willis, and then some.

• "Ghost" — This Patrick Swayze/Demi Moore film aimed straight for the heart of romantics everywhere. And just like "Pretty Woman," it hit its mark.

• "Mo' Better Blues" — Spike Lee at his creative best. A lively, fun picture that put aside politics and concentrated on character and story. And music; this film probably produced the best soundtrack of the year.

DSO Report:

Rampal serves up a flute feast; if you missed it — you blew it

By Alex Suczec
Special Writer

The capacity-audience entering Orchestra Hall last Friday should have gloated as it spied the "sold out" sign. The lucky ticket holders were in for a treat as regular concerts resumed after the holiday hoopla. This one featured Jean Pierre Rampal in a dazzling double demonstration of virtuoso flute on a nicely balanced concert program. Rampal's double in the limelight was the DSO's own flutist, Irving Monroe.

The distinguished music director of the Oregon Symphony, James DePriest, guest-conducted. He added his own special interest to the evening.

Appetizer for this first musical banquet of the new year was Sinfonia No. 1 by the Swede, Daniel Bortz. The work was premiered by Sixten Ehrling with the Gothenburg Symphony in 1974 when Bortz was 31. While it opens with a firmly based major chord, it quickly segues into music of the spheres with Stravinskyesque pagan rhythms, deep rumbles from the contra bassoon and ethereal slides on the strings. The work explores outer reaches of orchestral sound, sometimes rattling your teeth with discordant brass, then fading into the verges of cosmic silence.

Under DePriest's precise direction, it was well performed and while Bortz seems to have originated musical effects that we have since grown accustomed to on sci-fi film and video sound tracks, the work deserves more credit than that. He has organized his ideas into a genuinely artistic, modern musical statement.

The mood changed markedly, then, as the program turned to classical composer Domenico Cimarosa. A contemporary of Mozart infrequently performed today, he was a highly accomplished musician who enjoyed great success in his time. His Concertante in D major for two flutes and orchestra was part of the concert's main course and flutists Rampal and Monroe served it up elegantly.

The work sometimes seems more display than content, but what lovely display. Sometimes in unison, then in parallel thirds, the two flutes sang together like a pair of operatic sopranos with the kind of togetherness that you come to expect only of duettists who work together constantly. Monroe's deeper tone quality and minutely wider vibrato blended richly with Rampal's sweet sound while adding interest and depth to the combination.

It seems miraculous that there was only one small presto passage in the rondo where momentarily the togetherness came apart. But that passed so quickly as to seem untrue.

Responding to enthusiastic applause, the two then served a most delectable confection in the form of a duo flute transcription of one of Papageno's airs from Mozart's opera The Magic Flute. Without orchestra now, Rampal and Monroe took flight on their flutes like co-conspirators and treated the hall to Mozart's irrepressibly joyful spirit at its absolute best. Listening to the two of them and trying to distinguish between their tones and styles was like making a comparative tasting of two fine wines. Rampal was the Premier and Monroe the Deuxieme Grand Cru.

The treat continued after intermission as Rampal soloed in Mozart's Andante in A major and Rondo in D major for Flute and Orchestra. His clarity, grace, precision and powers of expression brought home to the audience the profound musical ideas in Mozart's deceptively simple sounding themes and variations.

The concluding work was a welcome opportunity to come back to Earth. Displaying a detailed knowledge of the score and firm concept for his performance, DePriest led a rendition of the Beethoven Symphony No. 4 that was more studied than inspired. This was most noticeable in the adagio. In the last two allegro movements at faster tempo, the orchestra seemed less repressed by DePriest's careful and precisely crafted conducting. It was still a fascinating performance. As a part of his extraordinary triumph over physically handicapped legs, DePriest conducts from a stool on the podium. Unable to put much body English into his gestures, he none the less achieves a dance like grace with highly expressive hand and shoulder movements and nods his head. It is a remarkable creative achievement in itself and yields a first-rate performance.

There are two concerts this week featuring violinist Elmar Oliveria, the only American violinist to win the Tchaikovsky competition in Moscow (1978). Under Associate Conductor Leslie B. Dunner, the DSO will perform A Short Overture by Ulysses Kay, Concerto for Violin and Orchestra in D minor by Joseph Joachim, and Symphony No. 7 in D minor by Antonin Dvorak. The first performance is a 10:45 a.m. coffee concert on Friday, Jan. 11; the second is at 8:30 p.m. on Saturday. For tickets and information call 833-3700.

Jarvi seeks help to record

Once again, Music Director Neeme Jarvi has enclosed his personal plea for financial help to enable the DSO to close a contract with a leading recording company.

"Recordings are the best marketing tool a symphony can have today," he writes, because they extend the DSO's audience to the entire world, demonstrate the high quality of DSO performances and unique sound of Orchestra Hall, and will enable Jarvi and the orchestra "to introduce a completely new repertoire of great American music unfairly forgotten and overlooked."

If proposed cuts in state budgets occur, funds may not be available to underwrite the first recording unless individual friends of the orchestra come through.

"My friend, stand up and contribute," he urges. You can do so by sending a check to DSO Recording Fund, 400 Buhl Building, 535 Griswold, Detroit, MI 48226.

'Cyrano' opens Friday at DIA

Cyrano de Bergerac (Gerard Depardieu) and Roxane (Anne Brochet) star in Jean-Paul Rappeneau's "Cyrano de Bergerac."

The Detroit Institute of Arts' acclaimed Detroit Film Theatre series begins its 1991 season on Friday, Jan. 11, with the Michigan premiere of "Cyrano de Bergerac."

The award-winning new French film will have an exclusive area engagement at the DIA on Jan. 11-13 and 18-20.

Veteran actor Gerard Depardieu stars as the lovesick Cyrano, the poet with the big nose whose fear of rejection permits him to express his love only through the voice of another. Depardieu received the Best Actor Prize at the 1990 Cannes Film Festival for what many critics regard as the finest portrayal of his career.

Vincent Canby, critic for the New York Times, called his performance "a magical achievement...expansive, funny, gross, dainty and always humane...the definitive Cyrano."

With a $17-million budget, "Cyrano de Bergerac" is the most expensive French film in history. Director Jean-Paul Rappeneau recruited hundreds of magnificently costumed actors for the film's many large-scale and elaborately designed action sequences. Although the film is massive in scale, Rappeneau never lets his audience forget the delicate and fragile heart at the center of Edmond Rostand's classic tale of unrequited love.

Friday and Saturday performances are at 7 and 9:45 p.m.; Sunday performances are at 1, 4 and 7 p.m. Tickets are $5; $4 for students and seniors. Discount coupon books, valid for other DFT showings, are also available.

To obtain a new DFT schedule, or for information on purchasing advance tickets by mail or phone, call the DIA ticket office at 833-2323 from 9:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. daily.

Oklahoma

Cowpoke Curly bursts into song in the Broadway musical "Oklahoma" coming to the Macomb Center for the Performing Arts. A New York-based cast of 40 singers, dancers and musicians will present fully staged performances of the Rodgers and Hammerstein classic at 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Jan. 10-12. Tickets are $22 for adults and $20 for students and senior citizens and may be obtained at the center's box office or reserved on credit card by calling 286-2222. Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Macomb Center is located on the center campus of Macomb Community College at Hall (M-59) and Garfield Roads in Clinton Township.

War Memorial offers voice classes

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial is introducing two new voice instructors this season: Richard Patton will teach "Adult Voice," "Individual Voice" and "Youth Voice," and Laura ReVelle Schwartz will instruct "Children's Voice."

Patton has extensive teaching experience and has produced and directed numerous musical productions. He holds his master of music degree from Ohio State University and is currently working on his doctor of musical arts degree from the University of Michigan. He recently completed a successful tour in Spain as featured soloist with the Rackham Symphony Choir.

Schwartz has taught vocal music in the Birmingham and Grosse Pointe Schools while directing the Judelairens and performing with the Grosse Pointe Theatre. She has studied under Zoltan Kodaly, Robert Shaw and Dave Brubeck at National Music Camp and Oakland University. "Adult Voice" begins Mondays, Jan. 14, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. This class will teach the principles of breath control in six sessions for $55.

"Individual Voice" is offered in half-hour sessions beginning either on Monday, Jan. 14 from 3 to 7 p.m. or Tuesday, Jan. 15 from 3:5 to 8:30 p.m. The fee for six half-hour lessons is $90.

"Individual Voice" for teenagers begins Monday or Tuesday, Jan. 14 or 15, from 3 to 4 p.m. or 5 to 7 p.m. The class fee is also $90.

"Youth Voice" for ages 11 and up, begins Tuesday, Jan. 15, from 4 to 5 p.m. The class prepares the student for honors choir, solo and ensemble. The fee is $55 for six weeks.

"Children's Voice" for ages 7-10 begins Monday, Jan. 14, from 4 to 5 p.m. Elementary school children will learn musicianship, solo performance techniques and develop stage presence. The six week class fee is $55.

'Russia House' was a better book

By Michael Chapp
Special Writer

Apparently, Sean Connery has a thing about spy movies.

He made his name as James Bond, the most famous movie spy of all time. Then, last year, he was chillingly effective in the adaptation of Tom Clancy's "Hunt for Red October."

Now comes "The Russia House," an adaptation of the John LeCarre novel of the same name. While "House" is every bit as detailed and intricate as "October," it isn't nearly as entertaining.

"House" is two hours of dialogue. Nothing much happens, but the characters spend the entire running time of the film talking about what could happen.

As the film opens, Connery, a British publisher, is the recipient of a mysterious letter from a Russian woman (Michelle Pfeiffer). The letter asks Connery to consider publishing a book by a high-ranking Russian writer — a man who knows many of the Soviet Union's military secrets.

Immediately, of course, British and American intelligence agencies become nosy. Why did Connelly receive this letter? What are his connections with the book's author? With the female messenger? And with the Soviet Union in general?

comes that much harder. Clearly, this is a plot that can — and does — get much better treatment in a book.

Still, if viewers are going to be stuck for two hours just listening to a couple people talk, there are far worse choices. Connery and Pfeiffer are two of Hollywood's most appealing talents, even if the material they have to work with this time around leaves a little to be desired.

Too, Roy Scheider and Klaus Maria Brandauer shine in supporting roles.

It's not that "House" is a bad movie. As movie fare goes, it's actually one of the better choices one could make. The simple truth, however, is this film tries to handle proceedings that are better suited for page than screen. With that obvious constraint, the picture could hardly avoid being mediocre.

Through most of the film, viewers know little more than the intelligence personnel asking the questions. We witness the development of a relationship between Connery (who is pressed into spy service by the American government) and Pfeiffer (who has some secrets of her own).

Much of the picture plays like an intricate chess game; each character trying to anticipate the moves of the others, and outmaneuver the opponents.

The problem here is the hard-to-follow and very convoluted plot. And with little or no action to sustain things, the task be-

Cute kids turn Schwarzenegger into blubber

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

In the comedy thriller "Kindergarten Cop" the "Terminator" gets terminated — well almost. Arnold Schwarzenegger, a steely Los Angeles cop, goes undercover as a kindergarten teacher and discovers that a room full of precocious 5-year-olds can be as threatening as any intergalactic villain he's ever met.

The first question that comes to mind is how did he get there?

To answer that we go back to the movie's beginning sequence in which we see Arnold with his shades on, his jaw set, stalking his prey, Alex Karomzay, a junkie who is hot on the trail of his ex-wife, Joyce (Penelope Ann Miller). For some perverse reason he wants custody of their young son. A cold-blooded killer, he is definitely not the father type.

Schwarzenegger has been trying to nail him for some time and finally does but he needs the wife as a witness to his drug activities, which reportedly had yielded $3 million.

When last heard of, she was a teacher in Oregon. So Arnold and his partner, Pamela Reed, take off to Oregon to find her. Their only lead is that the boy attends kindergarten there. The plan is for Reed, an ex-teacher, to take the place of the regular teacher for a few weeks, try to spot the boy and get to the mother through him. When Reed becomes ill, Schwarzenegger is drafted to take her place.

Thus, 30 pint-sized kindergartners are faced with a giant-sized teacher. Does that phase them? Not at all. They sense right off that he's not the real thing and before an hour is up, they send him screaming from the room for help.

Things begin to change, thanks to some help from a fellow teacher — who turns out to be the woman the two cops are stalking. The kids are great and the kindergarten sequences are the best part of the film.

Schwarzenegger handles his roles well, both as a cop who can blast his way into a den of junkies and snarl, "I'm da party pooper," and as a teacher who loosens up and has fun with the kids while still keeping them in line.

"Kindergarten Cop" has a killer cast: Linda Hunt as a feisty principal is hilarious; Pamela Reed, Arnold's partner, contributes a lot of laughs; Carroll Baker, the gun-toting granny, is comic in a deadly way and Cathy Moriarty, scores as a sexy young mother.

"Cop" is questionable as a family film. There is too much violence at the beginning and the end, but the rest ranks right up there with the best in family entertainment.

Research your cruise

You know you want to try a cruise vacation, but aren't quite certain about how to find the right one. You hear and see so much about different types of cruises. The cruise firms' brochures are full of attractive pictures and pages of prose describing all the wondrous delights of spending money and vacation time on their liners.

Choosing the right cruise ship and the right itinerary are important. Consider spending your entire vacation faced with the prospect of a cabin near the disco, when you are an "early to bed, early to rise" type. Finding yourself and your family on a cruise that caters to senior citizens, with no shipboard entertainment for the kids, can ruin the trip for everyone. Ending up on a cruise without any "table for two" seating while on your honeymoon could also be very disconcerting.

There are a number of important things to consider when looking for the right cruise. Since you will be confined with your fellow passengers for the duration of the trip, perhaps one of the first things to investigate is the passenger demographics of the cruises you are considering. Younger crowds, 45 and under, tend to book the shorter cruises to the Caribbean or to Mexico. The over-45 group is most frequently found on longer voyages to Alaska, Scandinavia and the Mediterranean.

There are so many choices today that some investigation will be needed to uncover the right cruise for you. First, there are handbooks and guides that will present the facts without the PR glitz. These can be purchased or often are available at your local library. The guides are a good place to begin your search, since they allow you to compare the same basic points of many cruises.

You will want to check with your favorite travel agent. Give him some broad guidelines and ask him to research which cruise lines offer good values at the time you are prepared to travel. Let him know what activities and features are important to you. If he doesn't start by asking these things, tell him. If he doesn't listen, find another travel agent. It simply isn't possible for a travel agent to recommend a specific cruise without some knowledge of your interests and lifestyle. If you are fortunate enough to be able to travel on short notice, ask your agent to investigate cruise stand-by fares, which are considerably less expensive than the regular tariff.

American companies have reacted to the growing interest in cruising by building bigger ships. Each company is trying to outdo the other. In the past ten years, cruise ship capacity has doubled. As a result of all this building, the lines are scrambling for your cruise dollar.

What all this means to you, when looking for just the right cruise, is that you have more to research and more to choose from than ever before. Begin by determining exactly what you want from your cruise holiday. Check guidebooks and your travel agent to narrow the field. Consider itinerary details and the layover time in each port, as well as the age, size, style and personality of each ship. Check the ship's passenger profile. Does the ship offer alternative diet menus, full in-cabin food service and a good wine list? Look over the cabin details and be certain they fit your needs. Compare size, closet space and bathroom size. Look at the cabin's ventilation system. Ask if there is adjustable air conditioning and heating.

Be certain to compare everything that is important to you and read the small print in the brochures. Finally, work with your travel agent to get the best possible price.

'Driving Miss Daisy' is dinner theater offering

"Driving Miss Daisy," Alfred Uhry's Pulitzer-Prize winning play, is the January/February offering by Dennis Wickline Productions, Inc. at the Golden Lion Dinner Theatre. Opening on Friday, Jan. 11 and running Friday and Saturday evenings until Saturday, Feb. 23, the touching play promises to be a memorable evening of dinner theater.

"Driving Miss Daisy" takes place between the years 1948 and 1973. It tells the story of Daisy Werthan, an aging Atlanta matron who is no longer able to drive safely. Her son, Boolie, decides to hire a black chauffeur. This invasion of her privacy angers Miss Daisy at first, but the relationship that develops between her and Hoke, her driver, becomes ever more cordial until, at play's end, they are dear friends. The play is done very simply, but the relationship of the three characters also says something about the struggle between young and old, and black and white. In the end, "Driving Miss Daisy" is about dignity.

Portraying Daisy Werthan is Shirley Shepard. Shepard has been involved in theater for many years in this area, and has appeared in such memorable plays as "The Lion in Winter" as Catherine, "The Gingerbread Lady" as Evie, and "Something's Afoot" as Miss Tweed. Shepard is also a gifted director, and has directed such noted titles as "Summer and Smoke," "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little," and will direct the upcoming production of "Steel Magnolias" at the Golden Lion.

Portraying Hoke is Ronald Mitchell. Mitchell brings a wealth of theatrical experience with him. He has studied acting with Uta Hagen, and has been seen in a variety of professional venues throughout the area.

Completing the cast is Nick Dara as Boolie. Dara can be seen in a variety of local television commercials and industrial films. Dara has also appeared at the Golden Lion several times.

Directing the production is Dennis Wickline. He is the producer of all shows at the Golden Lion and is an award-winning director for other groups in the area. Molly Dodge acts as stage manager for the production.

Price for the evening is $23.95 per person which includes dinner, show, tax and gratuity. Cocktails begin at 7 p.m., dinner at 7:30 p.m. with the show following dessert. Group rates and performances are available. Gift tickets are also available. Special senior citizen group rates are available for Friday night performances only.

The Golden Lion restaurant is located at 22380 Moross, near Mack, in Detroit across from St. John Hospital. For further information and reservations call 886-2420.

Hilberry Theatre presents Ibsen's 'Peer Gynt'

Henrik Ibsen's epic fantasy, "Peer Gynt," makes its Detroit debut at the Hilberry Theatre on Friday, Jan. 18, running in repertory through March 1.

"Peer Gynt" is among the most compelling and contemporary works of modern drama. The play is written around the central character, Peer Gynt, and his quest to find his own identity. With his flamboyance, his rough variability, his innumerable masks and emotions, he is an immensely theatrical figure. Although the play is more than a century old, Peer wrestles with profound questions still facing mankind today.

"Peer Gynt" has enjoyed remarkable theatrical currency over the past two decades, capturing the imaginations of some of the world's leading directors, not as a distant literary classic but as a visionary modern drama pulsing with vitality.

This timeless play was written in 1867 and marked the end of Ibsen's romantic verse dramas based in Norwegian ballads and history. After "Peer Gynt," Ibsen's focus turned to more contemporary problems presented naturalistically, such as "A Doll's House," "Ghosts," and "Hedda Gabler," which are more recognizable titles today.

Cast in the role of Peer is Max Baker, from London, England, who has also been seen as Garry in "Noises Off" and Malvolio in "Twelfth Night." The cast, which includes the entire Hilberry acting company, many in multiple roles, also features Lee Heinz as Peer's mother, Aase, Tami Evans as Solveig, Michael S. Ouimet as the Trollking, Catherine Coscarelli as the Woman in Green, Kate Willinger as Anitra, Phillip Sekou Glass as the Pastor and Richard R. Hamblin as the Button Molder.

Call 577-2972 for tickets.

War Memorial schedules trip

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial has planned a day trip to see the Hilberry Theatre's presentation of Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest" on Wednesday, Feb. 20, from 11:15 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The trip fee is $18 per person and includes motorcoach ride and theater ticket. The trip includes a lunch in Greektown.

Reservations must be made by Jan. 12. For more information, call 881-7511 Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Let's try it

Got talking sports the other day with some people and some very interesting concepts came out of our half hour session.

At first I felt these ideas were far-fetched and stupid, but the more I thought about each of them the more they made sense.

1) With the move to build new stadiums, it appears that bleachers will no longer be a part of the makeup.

Bleachers are always an inexpensive way to get into the ballpark, no matter how far away the seats are. Will new parks have bleachers? Are we stealing the blue-collar sport and turning it into a rich man's game? Will we no longer be able to spend just $5 or less to see a game?

2) How about this thought? Last week I bashed Bo Schembechler for the firing of Ernie Harwell, but...

Let's assume WJR wanted Ernie out, but didn't have the guts to do the dirty work. WJR calls Bo and tells him of the station's plans, which don't include Ernie. WJR wants Ernie out immediately, but Bo says, "No way. You have to give a Hall of Fame announcer a farewell trip through the American League. Give him one more year. Don't fire him yet."

Now WJR is taking the blame for canning Ernie and trying to take the heat off Bo.

Some believe the story that ran over the weekend, while others are still believing it smacks of Bo involvement. At this point, who cares who fired whom?

Whether or not Bo or WJR officials fired Ernie isn't the point. Ernie's gone after this year and no more questions should be asked. Ernie has been professional and a gentleman about the situation, but we continue to bear the cross for him. Let's enjoy Ernie's final season and forget about who fired him.

3) New York and Chicago. What do those two cities have in common?

Both have American and National League baseball franchises.

Could Detroit support two teams? Maybe, but it couldn't even support two newspapers. Wouldn't it be great to have a choice of teams. The Cubs would play here, the Dodgers, Cardinals, Padres, Giants. It would be wonderful, but this is the one that's very far-fetched.

4) By 1993 North and South will be able to play Friday night football games because the lights will be in place. ULS will have cheerleaders.

5) In Detroit's next mayoral race, a slew of write-in votes gets Ernie Harwell the job.

6) George Kell replaces Ernie on the radio.

7) Think about this one:

Show me a players' coach (Wayne Fontes) and I'll show you a losing team.

8) People finally realize that diets don't work alone. Exercise helps.

9) Baseball, hockey and football ticket prices don't increase if the team has a losing record.

10) Bill Laimbeer will be the Pistons' next head coach.

11) Larry Bird, Michael Jordan, Magic Johnson and Isiah Thomas organize a seniors basketball league.

North-South hockey game becomes family affair

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

The Quinn and Tucker families gathered during the holidays, but there's another party planned for Jan. 12 at the St. Clair Shores Civic Arena.

Brian Quinn, North's outstanding freshman center, and Bill Quinn and Steve Tucker, South's leading defensemen, will be the hosts of the party along with their respective teams.

North and South will reacquaint themselves in the first of two hockey meetings Saturday at 7:30 p.m., with mothers, fathers, aunts and uncles in attendance.

No invitations are in the mail because everyone involved in the game — off the ice — will be prepared to watch sons and cousins being bounced around the hockey rink.

Brian is a freshman at North, brother Bill is a senior at South and Tucker is a junior. The three are cousins.

The blood is thick, but Brian only hopes he doesn't have to reveal how thick.

"I'm ready to prove that I can play with the big boys," he said. "I just hope I don't get laid out by Bill or Steve. That just can't happen."

But it just may, too.

"I won't go out of my way to hit him (Brian), but I will take the chance to hurt him if it's there," said Bill. "If I get carried away by trying to go out of my way to get in a hit, I could get burned and I don't want that to happen."

The words are harsh and sometimes brutal, but they never cut too deep.

"Every once in a while when Brian and I get into a fight we say things, but we never mean them," said Bill. "We say a lot, but I think it's just part of playing the mind game."

Brian's not convinced Bill is telling the truth.

"I think there's more rivalry than what Bill says," Brian said. "I don't think he's being very honest."

But Tucker will clear the air.

"When we were younger Bill and Brian would fight a lot," said Tucker. "I'd just sit there and not get involved, but that's a little different now."

But don't feel sorry for Brian, who's always being reminded that he's only a freshman. He claims he's got more speed than his brother, plus his teammate Scott Collins will step in to defend him when the verbal wars begin. Cousin Steve, however, must be loyal to his teammate as well.

"When the two of them get into teasing one another, I'll jump in on Bill's side," said Tucker, who has five goals and four assists for the 6-1-1 Blue Devils. "Occasionally Scott (Collins) comes over and he'll side with Brian so then we're two-on-two and that makes for an even match."

Bill and Steve have already started filling Brian's mind with North-South war stories, but Brian remains understated.

"I can't wait to see his (Brian's) face during the national anthem," Bill said. "I know he's going to be very nervous and uptight."

Tucker won't wait until the national anthem to begin his taunting.

"I'll get after Brian during the warm-up," said Tucker. "I'll be in his face a little bit, but mostly we'll just keep talking to him."

"Plus we want a big crowd there. When you've got a big crowd for your first North-South game, it always makes you more nervous."

And Bill knows his brother may have trouble performing in front of the Saturday night crowd.

"The more the merrier," Bill said. "I've seen Brian play in big games before, and he's always struggled in at least the first period. It'll be fun to see if he can react or not."

Admittedly, Brian hopes he can perform from the start.

"I feel I get too nervous in the big game and lose focus," he said. "I've been nervous for every home game this season and I know this is South's home game, but it's being played in the same place where we play our home games, so I know I'll be nervous."

But in the first period Brian could be a marked man.

"Since he doesn't have a good first period in big games," Bill can all talk about the game. We can talk and laugh even more if Brian screws up."

One area where Brian may screw up is getting the puck past a defenseman. For that full game report, talk to Bill and Tucker.

"He (Brian) has a hard time shooting the puck," Bill said.

"Yeah," Tucker agreed. "He likes to shoot the puck into the defenseman's pads."

"I think he's a better playmaker than a goal scorer," said Bill.

It's tough to swallow, but Brian has to agree.

"I do shoot the puck into the defenseman's legs," he said. "But I can still score a goal."

In fact, Brian would like to score the game-winning goal, but Tucker and Bill may have something to say about that.

"I'd like to get the game-winner and get a good shot at Bill," Brian said. "If I can't get the goal I hope to make a pass that sets up a big play. If neither of those happens, then I guess I'll have to get a shot at Bill and Steve."

But don't hit Brian too hard.

"I can take the hits that I know they'll give me," he said. "They've already told me they're out to hit me, but I just don't want the crushing blow that sends me to the ice. I don't want to be embarrassed."

Would Tucker or Bill do that?

"If the opportunity's there we will," Tucker said. "I'd like to score a goal, too, because I've never scored in a North-South game, but I'd just like to win comfortably. I also don't want to see Brian make me look bad, either."

Brian and Steve played together one year in the Grosse Pointe Hockey Association at the Mite level, and haven't played together since, but almost did this season.

"Steve and I tried to sway Brian to play at South because we knew he'd be a great player for us," said Bill. "But we understand his choice to play for North."

It was a difficult choice for Brian.

"I really mulled it over for two months this summer and thought about how much fun it would be playing with my cousin and brother," said Brian, "but all my friends are at North so that made up my mind."

Off the ice, the Tuckers and Quinns are a tight group, but on the ice the story is much different. After the game, however, it could be a long night for someone.

"Talent-wise South has the edge on us," Brian said. "But we've really started to come together even if our 2-7 record doesn't prove it."

"I don't want to say it's going to be easy because it's not," said Tucker. "North is a tough team and anything can happen. We'd just like to keep our string of wins (two) over North intact."

"We need to win to get back into the league race," said Brian.

Bill Quinn

Brian Quinn

"This game is very important for our team to get things back on track."

"The league doesn't mean a thing in the North-South game," said Bill as he stared at Brian. "It's important to win these games so you can brag."

That and the North-South games can make for some interesting conversation at the dinner table.

North vs. South

Grosse Pointe North and South will renew their annual hockey rivalry Jan. 12 at the St. Clair Shores Civic Arena.

South (6-1-1), ranked No. 4 in Class A, trails Southgate Anderson for first place. North, 2-7 overall, is winless in four league games.

Game time is 7:30 p.m.

Sprint, Fast Company receive Boat of the Year awards

Sprint, skippered by John Stevens, won the ORCD IOR Boat of the Year honors.

Sprint, skippered by John Stevens, and Fast Company, skippered by George E. Gerow and Ed Palm, won the IOR and IMS Boat of the Year Awards, respectively, from the Offshore Racing Club of Detroit at the annual awards ceremony in November.

Fast Company was the ORCD season champion in IMS B, and Sprint finished second in IOR B to Nils Muench's Moonraker.

For Sprint, this was the fifth time it won the IOR Boat of the Year. In 1987, Sprint was the overall winner of the Southern Ocean Circuit Conference in Florida, and in 1986, Sprint was IOR overall winner in the Port Huron to Mackinac race.

Sprint crew members include Bernie VanAntwerp, Rod Barton, Larry Mahieu, Glenn Hummel, Jay Jones, Greg Stevens, Dwight Scott and Bob Scoville.

Fast Company's crew includes Jeff Clark, Ted Everingham, George Gerow, Ed Palm, Matt Malley, Geoff Brieden, Greg Engels, Don Measel and Ted Huebner.

Fast Company also won the DRYA spring, summer and overall series.

Fast Company's crew sailed its craft to the ORCD IMS Boat of the Year honors.

Knights split pair in Notre Dame basketball tourney

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

Senior point guard Tarik Lester had been out for three games, but he came back just in time to stop the University Liggett School boys' basketball team's two-game losing streak.

Lester, who had the flu, played in the Dec. 29 consolation game of the Notre Dame Christmas Tournament and scored a team high 21 points as the Knights rolled past Bishop Gallagher, 78-62.

ULS played in the consolation game after losing to Notre Dame, 61-41, in the opening round Dec. 27.

"It was a great opportunity for us to see how far we've come this season," said ULS coach Chuck Wright, whose team is now 3-3 overall. "We've still got to work on our rebounding and our inside defense, but for the most part I'm pleased with the progress we've made."

He's also pleased that Lester is back.

"There's no doubt we're a different team without him," Wright said. "We got great leadership from Tarik, but we also did a good job without him. However, anytime you get one of the finest guards in the state back in your lineup it helps."

Lester scored 14 first-half points en route to his 21 against Gallagher, as ULS washed away a 24-17 deficit in the first quarter and went on to outscore the Lancers 29-10 in the second quarter to take a 46-34 halftime lead.

"We went to a zone defense and forced them to shoot from the outside," Wright said. "When that happened, we started rebounding better and were able to push the ball up court. In our three losses this season, we failed to get into a transition game, but against Gallagher we really came on."

Lester added eight assists, while Brent McMahon, who scored six straight points in the second quarter, added 14 points. Kevin Whitfield had 15 points and eight rebounds, and DeDan Milton had 14 points.

"I think getting a win against a quality team should get us over the hump," said Wright.

Against Class A Notre Dame, the Class C Knights stayed close throughout the first half, but couldn't hang on in the second half.

"We played some strong defense," Wright said. "But we had a difficult time scoring because we just lacked that scoring punch."

ULS hit 16 of 45 field goals (35 percent) and hit on eight of 11 free throws (72 percent).

"We didn't have a strong night shooting from the outside," Wright said. "What also contributed to our loss was our inability to stop them on the defensive end."

ULS trailed only 26-23 at half-time, but a miserable defensive front in the second half cost the Knights a shot at the upset.

"Two minutes into the third quarter we hadn't given up a point and cut the lead to 26-25, but we started to run out of gas," Wright said. "We got excited and lost our focus. We then gave up nine points in 35 seconds by not getting back on defense."

"We spent ourselves in the first half. Even at 26-23, we were struggling to stay in the game."

McMahon led ULS with 16 points and Milton had 10 points and six assists.

"Even when we've lost, we've remained a very close team," Wright said. "Everyone's supportive of each other and that's really helped. We're sporadic with our defense and rebounding, and in order to do well the rest of the way we've got to improve on both of those things."

Student writers honored

Becky Opdyke, 11, of Grosse Pointe Woods, a student at Parcels Middle School, received honorable mention in the September 1990 Cricket League international writing competition.

For the contest, entrants were asked to write a tale in which the hero or heroine uses a special gift or power to save the day. Opdyke's name appears in the December 1990 issue of the children's magazine.

Sara Dykstra, 11, of Grosse Pointe Woods, a student at Brownell Middle School, received first prize in the October 1990 Cricket League international writing competition. Patrick Cassleman, 12, of Grosse Pointe, a student at Pierce Middle School, received third prize in the same contest.

For the contest, entrants were asked to write a ghostly poem.

Dykstra's poem and Cassleman's name will appear in the January 1991 issue of the magazine.

Happy knitting

Eight University Liggett School students from the lower school participated in an after-school activities program by attending a knitting class taught by Evelyn Cobden and Kathleen McCormick. Their project was to knit squares in pastel shades of blue, yellow, green, pink and white. The girls completed 20 squares and they were joined together by Elinor Giblin to form a crib blanket. The blanket was donated as a "Giving Tree" gift, and was given to a baby in need during the holiday season. Shown here are, front row from left, Ariadne Lie and Christina Oney, and back row from left are Kirby Brink, Kristi McCracken, Elinor Giblin, Sarah Stewart, Naaha Dixit and Jacquelyn Schneider. Not shown is Lindsay Willett.

Movies at the library

Movies scheduled for this week at the Grosse Pointe Public Library are "On the Twelfth Day" (22 minutes), an entertaining interpretation of the Old English folk song, and Ezra Jack Keats' Caldecott winner, "The Snowy Day" (6 minutes). Show time is 4 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 10, at Central Library.

At 4 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 15, at Park Branch; Wednesday, Jan. 16, at Woods; and Thursday, Jan. 17, at Central, "Corduroy" (16 minutes) based on the popular teddy bear story by Don Freeman, and "Curious George" (14 minutes), H.A. Rey's modern classic about the curious monkey, will be shown.

There is no admission charge and registration is not necessary. For more information, call the Park Branch at 343-2071; Woods at 343-2072 or Central at 343-2078.

Scheduling meeting set

On Monday, Jan. 14, the department chairpersons, the counselors and the administrators of Grosse Pointe North High School will present information designed to help in course selection, schedule planning and pupil adjustment for students entering Grosse Pointe North High School in the fall of 1991.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Performing Arts building. Students and parents are invited.

After the formal presentation, parents and students will have the opportunity to walk around the building and visit classrooms where department chairpersons, teachers and students will be available to answer questions.

Copies of the 1991-92 North Program of Studies will be delivered to private and parochial schools in Grosse Pointe, and copies are also being sent to all incoming eighth graders from Brownell and Parcels middle schools.

Nicole Sharrow

Each week in this column, we will focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a wood-working project, a book review.

Nicole Sharrow, a fifth grader at Defer Elementary School, wrote this poem about Halloween which teacher Nancy Kline is also a commentary on a person's life. Nicole is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Sharrow Jr. of Grosse Pointe Park.

Old and Rotten

I am old and rotten,
But I can still remember
The good old days
When I was strong,
Firm, round and bright.
I was the best looking one
In the patch.

That's why I was picked Very quickly.
I could not see the person
Who picked me,
For I had no eyes,
I couldn't smell
The way she smelled
For I had no nose.
I couldn't hear what she said,
For I had no ears.
I couldn't speak to her,
For I had no mouth.
To her home we drove Far away from where I was raised.

We came to a halt.
The door opened and I was carried away.

I thought to myself,
What if she carved me
With only one eye,
Or no mouth?

What if she didn't Carve me at all,
And I would set on a table.

Then one day
She picked me up
And set me down
Somewhere else.
She patted my head and then began

Chop, Chop, Cut, Cut,
I could see!

Chop, Chop, Cut, Cut.
Ears, I have ears!
Chop, Chop, Cut, Cut,
A nose!

Nicole Sharrow

I can smell the clean air.
Chop, Chop, Cut, Cut,
I have a mouth,
But I dare not speak
With her around.
I had a smile...
Perfectly arched.
I was sitting on the table
All by myself.
When she came back
She was dressed all funny.
In went the candle and Away I went outside.
Plop, she set me down on the porch.

I glowed like a new Light bulb.
All of these people came up
And got candy,
But I didn't get any.
The night ended and I
Was set in the alley.
I guess I did my job.
When the garbage truck came
They wouldn't even take me
For I was all rotten
And brown;
So I sat there... and sat.
Every week they came I got worse.

So here I am,
Sad and gray,
Rotten and a big old frown
With wrinkled lips.

I'm telling you this story
To keep myself occupied.
Oh, and one more reason,
When I come to the good parts,
I kind of smile.

'Have a nice day' — better yet, 'Be happy'

In our fast-moving, hello-good-bye world, catch phrases provide a line of communication with those we meet in our day-to-day travels. One of the most common is "Have a nice day!" There's nothing wrong with the expression. It's cheering that people hope your day will be nice.

However, a pleasant variation might be heartfelt, "Be happy."

Having a nice day is all well and good, but it could mean just the absence of anything upsetting us. Whereas if we are told to "be happy" we are put in a frame of mind where we actively look for good things to happen. Not only that, it could serve as a reminder that it's up to us to help make our day a happy one.

Such a spoken gesture could be of particular value to older people. While seniors are frequently told that these are their golden years, a time when they can sit back and enjoy the fruits of their long years of labor, there are few who would not privately admit that while later years can be satisfying, they are not the best years of our lives.

As one grows older, daydreams are not of the future but of the past. The mind and memory become suffused with warm and comforting pictures of what has been rather than the less promising prospects for what lies ahead.

We tend to draw on memories of those times when our families were around us and we shared the happy times. We think with pride about our accomplishments and successes in the world of work. We recall with amazement how we could fill our days with work and play and never get tired. It was a never-never land that would go on forever, a land where it was possible for all dreams to come true, a land of bright horizons.

But like the evening that darkens the landscape, the years drifted by. Families grew up and moved into worlds of their own. The work that filled our hearts and occupied our minds came to an end as we reached the age of retirement. Death claimed the lives of those close to us. Many of the activities we once enjoyed became too strenuous.

Considering what has been lost, for someone to tell us to "have a nice day" sounds pretty good. It may not be an exciting one but it won't be a traumatic one either.

However, the wish to "be happy" promises much more.

It means that while we treasure the past and live the present, we can have a brighter future if we accept the wish not as a platitude, but as a reminder that we can be happy if we actively plan and work at it.

While working at being happy may sound like a contradiction in terms, it is not. We know from past experience what contributed to happiness in our lives. More than likely it was the love and closeness of family life, friendship, the satisfaction of work well done, the buoyancy of good health.

It is possible to put most of those things back into our lives. At first it is difficult, particularly if we have sat back and watched all that makes life good slip away. We don't really want to go out into a strange world to try to make new friends, to join church groups, or go to senior centers or arrange to visit a friend who has moved away. It's comfortable sitting home. We don't need the hassle of all that effort.

But we do. Otherwise, our lives become dull and drab and limited. The satisfaction of being alone with memories can turn to bitterness because no one comes to visit or calls. We can avoid that if we make the first big effort. Afterward, it becomes easier. We find that if we seek them

Senior swim

Macomb Community College's Physical Education Center will be offering a senior citizen swim program every Tuesday and Thursday from 1:30 to 3 p.m., beginning Jan. 15.

Class format consists of water exercises, swim lessons and open swimming. Cost is $1 per person per visit.

The Physical Education Center is located near the corner of Hayes and Martin roads in Warren. For more information, call 445-7476.

Often, these new friends become a surrogate family which becomes interested and concerned for us and can be called upon to share the worries, the troubles and joys we once shared with our own families and former friends.

It would be wonderful if we could say "be happy" and, by some magic, make our wish come true. It is not that easy. In truth, what we are really saying is that you can be happy if you make up your mind to be so. Only you can bring it about. You have a choice. You can drift into a nothing existence or you can make your life, as long as you live, a happy one.

You have the will. Just don't settle for a "nice day." That's just a limbo. Resolve to have a happy day. Be willing to work at it. Choose activities you enjoy and plan what you will do the next day. It is best to have an ongoing project to look forward to. Get out of the house each day.

Don't ever depend on alcohol or pills to see you through difficult times. Fill each day with activity, whether it be social contacts, volunteer work, hobbies or exercise, and you won't need stimulants to alleviate depression or loneliness.

Fitness for seniors

Macomb Community College's Physical Education Center, in conjunction with Bon Secours Hospital, will conduct an eight-week senior citizen exercise program, "Fitness is Ageless."

Classes will meet Mondays and Wednesdays, 1:30 to 2:30 p.m., beginning Jan. 14. Cost is $25 per eight week session.

Workouts will consist of warm-ups, low impact aerobics, walking, floor exercises and stationary bicycling. Exercises have been designed to help healthy, but deconditioned individuals maintain an acceptable level of cardiovascular fitness.

The Physical Education Center is located near the corner of Hayes and Martin roads in Warren. For more information, call 445-7476.

Hospital offers lecture series

The Bon Secours Hospital 55PLUS program will present a winter 1991 lecture series designed especially for seniors.

The series includes:

- Feb. 20: Come travel with us — John Austin, of Seniors Unlimited, will highlight past and future 55PLUS trips, explaining the new travel program offered to members.

- March 20-21: 55 Alive drivers refresher — For seniors who already have a driver's license, the course will cover driving laws, etc. The cost is $7/person (make checks payable to: A.A.R.P., and send to the Bon Secours 55PLUS Office, 22300 Bon Brae, St. Clair Shores, 48081). This portion of the lecture series will be held at Bon Secours Hospital, private dining room.

The lectures will be held from 7-9 p.m., at the Bon Secours Nursing Care Center (26001 East Jefferson, St. Clair Shores) and are free of charge (except for 55 Alive drivers refresher). Seating is limited; call the 55PLUS office at 779-7477 for reservations and for any additional information on the lecture series.

Community ed offers Seminar for Seniors

"Seminar for Seniors," the innovative, tuition-free sampler class provided by the Grosse Pointe Board of Education for local retirees who are 60 or over, is in its 13th year.

As in the past, the program has been designed by the Department of Community Education to assist local senior citizens in using their leisure time to explore new fields of interest.

The winter's offering which has been expanded from four to six sessions, will begin and end with special musical programs.

Five "Seminar for Seniors" sessions will be held at 1:30 p.m. on Fridays in Room 101 at Barnes School, 20090 Morning-side Drive, Grosse Pointe Woods. The first will be held at 1:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Jan. 16. Four sessions of the program are being co-sponsored with the Walter P. Reuther Senior Centers.

"Stardust Memories," a special dance/concert that is a musical gift to senior citizens, will be presented by the Grosse Pointe Music Makers under the direction of Ben Grycan for their dancing and listening pleasure on Jan. 16.

"Looking at Long-Term Care Insurance" will be held on Feb. 1. Get answers to your questions: Who should buy it? What does it cover? How much does it cost? What is the future of long-term care legislatively?

"Getting the Most for Your Leisure Dollars" will be presented on Feb. 8. Let your travel dollars take you farther. Other free and low-cost leisure and travel opportunities will be covered also.

"Consumers in Retirement" will be conducted on Feb. 15. Learn how to be a wise, environmentally-sound consumer and how to get your complaints heard. Learn where and how to get help via legal means when your complaints aren't resolved.

"Personal and Residential Security" has been scheduled for Feb. 22. It focuses on simple, cost-effective techniques to protect yourself and your property. Various forms of fraud and con games will be highlighted.

"Live Music — A Gershwin Get-Together" will be held on Feb. 22. This provides an entertaining and intimate look at George Gershwin. His life, his times and his music will be presented by talented local keyboard artist and teacher, Penny Masouris.

In addition to the six "Seminar for Seniors" offerings in the winter program, the Department of Community Education offers a number of other classes of possible interest to local retirees to be held at Barnes School.

Three popular classes are being repeated this winter. "Estate Planning," conducted by attorney Robert Ihrie, a two-session offering, begins at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 13. The fee is $9.

"55/Alive Mature Driving," taught by Lucien Fay, begins at noon on Wednesday, Feb. 27, and concludes on Thursday, Feb. 28.

"Finances for the Retiree," taught by Philip DeLange, will be held at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, March 7. The fee is $7.

New for winter is a four-week class, "Tax Information for Senior Citizens." It begins at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 13. The fee is $18.

Also new is a series of four classes to be held at 7 p.m. on four consecutive Tuesdays beginning Feb. 26, beginning with "Understanding the Cardio-Vascular System." "Nutrition," will be offered on March 5, "Medical Community and Nursing Resources," on March 12, and "Medical Terminology," on March 19. The fee for each is $7.

The series is an outgrowth of the popular series of offerings presented by the American Heart Association and Madelyn Kleitch of the Pointes' Visiting Nurse as part of "Seminar for Seniors" in the fall.

AARP Chapter 3430 to meet

Grosse Pointe Chapter 3430 of the American Association of Retired Persons will meet Monday, Jan. 14, at 1:30 p.m. at the Neighborhood Club, 17150 Waterloo.

Speaker will be Father McClaren, director of Crossroads, a non-profit, ecumenically based social service organization under the auspices of the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, Detroit.

The service ministers to the poor, the forgotten and the hungry. They provide food and clothing as well as a listening ear.

Every Sunday, 400 people are served a hot meal through their soup kitchen, and every day, 70 people are cared for. Assistance is given to those struggling to survive in the presence of alcoholism, unemployment, poverty, drug abuse, mental and physical disabilities, crime, welfare and legal problems.

In addition, Crossroads provides loans, grants, transportation, counseling and help in obtaining employment. A staff of 110 at three offices and two social service centers provide the services.

McClaren, director of the program since its inception in 1971, will be assisted by Michael Beasley, supervisor of Crossroads jobs. There will be a slide show for 30 minutes, followed by a 15-minute question period.

Refreshments will be served after the meeting.

Crossroads does not charge for the program, but it accepts donations. Chapter 3430 has been a long-time contributor. At one time, members brought canned goods to the meetings, but now the hospitality chairman has been buying canned goods for about $15 to $18 each month.

Members, guests and visitors are welcome. The board of Chapter 3430 will meet at 12:30 p.m. before the program.

Stroke education class scheduled

Brain damage resulting from stroke can be devastating. That's why learning about the early warning signs and symptoms of a "brain attack" and the importance of immediate treatment are essential.

The Department of Neurology at Henry Ford Hospital is offering free stroke education classes every Tuesday and Thursday, beginning Jan. 17, at 9, 10 and 11 a.m. and also at 1 and 2 p.m. The classes will take place in the Hospitality Room of the Main lobby at 2799 W. Grand Blvd., Detroit.

The classes include information about what you can do to prevent a "brain attack," who is at risk and what signs and symptoms to look for.

Auto show proves Detroit still center of the industry

There is no doubt that the North American International Auto Show is a world-class event ranking with or surpassing in importance the Frankfurt, Paris, Tokyo, Zurich, London and, yes, Chicago shows. Heavy attendance by the international automotive press, big-time show biz coverage and support by manufacturers in the form of new-model introductions and concept cars attest to that.

It has not always been so and, in fact, was not until leaders of the Detroit Auto Dealers Association decided that the Detroit Auto Show should be an international show befitting America's Motor City.

The show has come a long way since a bicycle shop proprietor and a hardware store operator organized the first show in Detroit in 1899. Detroit's William E. Metzger visited the world's first auto show in London in 1885, where he got a look at the world's first automobile to be put into production, built by the German automotive pioneer, Gottlieb Daimler.

Metzger returned home, sold his bicycle shop and joined the infant automobile industry. In 1898, he established the first independent automobile dealership in the United States. To stimulate sales of the new invention, he joined forces with Seneca G. Lewis, of the Fletcher Hardware Co., and they organized the Tri-State Sportsman's and Automobile Association to put on an exhibition of sporting goods and automobiles at the Light Guard Armory. It was Detroit's first auto show.

Since there was no tradition of an auto show — or of automobiles, for that matter — Metzger rounded up some African game trophies to display with the cars and Lewis' company showed the latest offerings in fishing and hunting equipment.

Only four cars were on display at the first show, two Mobile steamers and two Waverly Electrics. Metzger later went to work for Ransom E. Olds, then played a pivotal role in selling the new Cadillac. He went on to become a car builder himself, most notably the E.M.F.

In 1900, the first National Automobile Show in New York, sponsored by the Automobile Club of America, displayed about 40 nameplates and in 1901, Chicago put on its first auto show.

In 1903, the National Association of Automotive Manufacturers co-sponsored the national show in New York, which by then was clearly the premier U.S. exhibition, but the big automotive action was occurring in Detroit, which was rapidly emerging as the Motor City.

In 1903 in Detroit, the first Cadillac went on display, the fabled "one-lunger" runabout. Ford Motor Co. was incorporated, with Henry Ford as its chief engineer and John and Horace Dodge, James Couzens and Horace Rackham among the stockholders. Brothers-in-law

By Richard Wright

Henry B. Joy and Truman Newberry moved the Packard Motor Co. from Warren, Ohio, to Detroit into the world's first reinforced concrete factory building, designed by Albert Kahn. Buick Motor Co. was organized and began building the cars which would attract the attention of William Durant and serve as the foundation for the empire he built, General Motors.

The Detroit Auto Dealers Association was formed in 1907 and staged the auto show that year at Heller's Beer Garden, with such now-familiar nameplates as Ford, Oldsmobile, Buick and Cadillac participating.

In 1908, Durant incorporated GM and in its first year acquired Buick, Oldsmobile, Cadillac and Oakland, which was replaced by Pontiac in 1931. And Detroiters flocked to the auto show to see Henry Ford's brand new Model T, the car that would put the world on wheels.

Automotive suppliers began getting involved in the show in the years leading up to World War I, and tires, engines, accessories and aftermarket parts were displayed, along with garments designed to protect motorists and passengers from the hazards of open cars.

As the horseless carriage developed into the automobile, the show gave the hundreds of manufacturers a way to show their wares to an increasingly car-happy population.

The auto industry slumped during the Depression and most of those manufacturers folded. There were 17 years during the Depression of the '30s and World War II in the '40s when there was no Detroit Auto Show. But with the booming market after World War II, the show was revived.

During the '50s, America's love affair with the automobile really took off and the gaudy colors, extensive chrome trim and soaring tailfins made for exciting shows. Detroit's show was competing with New York and Chicago for importance and prestige.

The Detroit show was held at the Michigan State Fairgrounds and at the National Guard Armory during the '50s.

After a decade of economic depression and the looming threat of war, the National Automobile Show, which had been held in New York since 1900, was discontinued. The New York event was revived for one year in 1956 and dropped again.

But with completion of Cobo Hall in 1960, the National Auto Show moved to Detroit. President Dwight Eisenhower visited the show and focused the world's attention on Detroit. The first manufacturer-sponsored show outside New York, the 1960 Detroit show attracted 1.5 million visitors, an international record. More than 300 vehicles were displayed and makers and suppliers joined to put on an "Auto Wonderland" exhibit showing how a car is made. "Wheels of Freedom" was the show's theme and the U.S. Post Office issued a "Wheels of Freedom" commemorative stamp on the show's opening day.

After three years, the manufacturers withdrew from the Detroit show and there were no more national shows. The Detroit show became a dealer show again. The auto companies began debuting mid-year models at the Chicago show, where McCormick Place provided a suitable venue and the timing of the show was right. Over the years, Chicago became America's world-class show.

But in 1989, the Detroit Auto Dealers decided to challenge Chicago on the theory that the Motor City should be the site of the most important American show and in January 1990 staged the first North American International Auto Show at the newly expanded Cobo Hall. The rest, as they say, is history.

With strong factory support, but still a dealer-run show, the Detroit event almost immediately gained international recognition, prestige and industry support. The automotive world now makes an annual pilgrimage to Detroit, still center of the automotive universe.

HISTORY OF DETROIT AUTO SHOW

The first Detroit Auto Show took place in 1899 at the Light Guard Armory. Co-sponsored by William Metzger and Seneca Lewis, that first show relied on hunting trophies imported from Canada, hunting and fishing supplies, and livestock accessories to attract the public. There were four vehicles (two steam, two electric) on display.

The Detroit Auto Dealers Association, formed in 1907, sponsored its first Detroit Auto Show at Heller's Beer Garden. At that time, there were fewer than 20,000 vehicles in the United States.

Prior to 1920, manufacturers used the Detroit Auto Show as the place to launch all vehicle lines for the year. The vehicles were covered by canvas until a starting gun was fired to begin the show.

Innovations such as four-, six-, and eight-cylinder engines, electric headlamps, rubber tires, power steering systems, automatic transmissions and push-button starters all were introduced at previous Detroit Auto Shows.

President Dwight D. Eisenhower was the keynote speaker at the 1960 Detroit Auto Show, the first show held at Cobo Hall and first of the modern era. Vice President Lyndon Johnson was the keynote speaker at the 1962 Detroit Auto Show.

SUVS prepare for battle

Full-size, mid-size or mini-size, Sport-Utility Vehicles (SUV) combine the benefits of a roomy station wagon with the ruggedness of a truck. So popular have these rough-and-tough wagons become that they account for 32 percent of all new-vehicle sales, with a full two-thirds of SUV buyers opting for four-door models. Almost every major manufacturer, as well as many of the smaller companies, will have some form of off-road vehicle in their stands at this year's NAIAS.

Mazda Navajo

Isuzu's Rodeo joins the popular four-door mid-size SUV market. Resembling the Nissan Pathfinder and Toyota 4Runner, the Rodeo is one of the lowest-priced SUVs in its class. It can be equipped with a 4- or 6-cylinder engine.

Oldsmobile is offering its first-ever SUV, the four-door Bravada, introduced at the 1990 show as a '91 model. The Bravada is the only General Motors mid-size SUV tripart (GMC's S-15 Jimmy and Chevrolet's S-10 Blazer being its siblings) equipped with full-time four-wheel-drive. It is powered by a 4.3-liter, 160-horsepower V6 engine and a four-speed automatic transmission.

The full-size SUV market continues to thrive, with Chevy's Blazer and Ford's Bronco leading the charge. Massive engines like GM's 230-horsepower, 7.4-liter V8, found in its Suburban line, are the industry's largest and are usually the powertrains of choice. The Dodge Ramcharger, Jeep Grand Wagoneer and the luxurious Range Rover also compete in this market niche.

Interest in SUVs doesn't seem to be waning. Consumers enjoy driving their Jeep Wranglers and Suzuki Sidekicks to work, the mall, and on vacation. SUVs offer excellent traction in foul weather, plenty of storage space and a confidence-enhanced feeling for the driver.

Auto show continues to grow as international event

With more than 50 exhibitors and 25 van conversion companies taking part in the 1991 NAIAS, officials are anticipating that this year's show will repeat the success of the two previous international Detroit auto shows. Their optimism is understandable.

Since the show became an international event in 1989, attendance has averaged 647,547, a 44% increase over 1987 and 1988 when the show was primarily a regional exhibition.

Attendance:	658,372	636,722	451,626	450,301

1992 Crown Victoria takes stand in Detroit

It has been the car of choice for police, taxi drivers and families alike. Since its introduction more than a decade ago, the Ford Crown Victoria has had one of the most loyal owner bodies ever. Now, the 1992 Crown Victoria, celebrating its first major redesign since 1979, will make its first public appearance at the 1991 NAIAS.

The full-size, four-door family sedan features a fresh body, new engine and substantially revised suspension. The lines of the new model are sleeker and softer, with limousine doors, flush glass, body-colored bumpers, and a sculpted hood that result in a distinctive, sleek shape. An integrated front-end with halogen headlights flanking the traditional Ford oval in the center, replaces the formal grille of the past. While contemporary, the new style retains the long-line profile and interior roominess that have given the Crown Victoria its visual identity over the years.

Performance and efficiency have been significantly improved thanks to the new 4.6-liter, single-overhead camshaft, modular V-8 engine.

The car's functional technology includes features like speed-sensitive steering, four-wheel disc brakes, a rear stabilizer bar, and a standard driver-side air bag. Options include rear air suspension and anti-lock brakes with traction control.

The Crown Victoria's interior design is also completely new, including an ergonomically superior instrument panel with instruments and controls that are easy to read and easy to reach. Options such as power lumbar and reclining adjustments are available as well.

The 1992 Crown Victoria will be available in two trim levels, Standard and LX. It is scheduled to reach Ford dealer showrooms on March 21, 1991.

Caprice Classic

Lumina Z34

We began the decade introducing more new Chevs than ever before. And at this year's Auto Show, we continue our winning streak.

Get a taste of NASCAR and sit behind the wheel of the new Lumina Z34. Featuring the new Twin Dual Cam V6 engine, aggressive sport suspension, and Goodyear® Eagle GT + 4s. See what's new and have a seat in the 1991 Corvette Coupe.

Sink into the available leather seats, wrap your hands around the sport steering wheel, and look and feel like a million.

The new 8-passenger, 5.0 Liter V8-powered Caprice Wagon can draw a crowd as well as move one.

While if you're big on luxury, there's the Caprice Classic Sedan with more room than ever before.

Open for adventure? Then open up the 4-door S-10 Blazer, with the biggest V6 engine in its class.

Or explore the versatile and original shape of the Lumina APV.

You don't need a sixth sense to spot the Chevy exhibit. Just follow the crowd, and you'll see why more people are winning with The Heartbeat of America.

GMC Cyclone blows into Cobo

Not to be outdone by Chevrolet's earth-shaking 7.4-liter V8-powered 454SS pickup, GMC will display the Cyclone, its own brand of four-wheel-drive mega-muscle, at this year's NAIAS.

Even though it still has a 500 lb. cargo capacity and a special on-road sport suspension, no one is going to confuse the Cyclone with the four-wheel-drive, high-ground-clearance pickups normally found in GMC showrooms. The Cyclone was built as a serious road machine, not a bushwacker.

When comparing sport pickup trucks of the 1990s, major league horsepower is the name of the game. The Cyclone's powerful motor places the truck squarely in the hunt. The Cyclone's engine boasts 280 horsepower and 350 pounds-foot of torque. To achieve these figures, GMC engineers took a mild-mannered, port fuel-injected 4.3-liter V6, and bolted on a turbocharger and a unique air-to-liquid intercooler. The Cyclone also received a performance-calibrated 4-speed Hydra-matic automatic transmission. For the first time on a truck, GMC has fitted the Cyclone with four-wheel anti-lock brakes as standard equipment.

To provide the extra traction needed to cope with all this horsepower, the Cyclone is equipped with full-time all-wheel-drive and a 3.42:1 limited-slip differential. The entire package rests on a lowered suspension designed for sports car-like handling. Sixteen-inch aluminum wheels mounted with 245/50VR speed-rated Firestone tires put the power to the road.

GMC Cyclone

The Cyclone achieves a blistering 0-60 mph in 4.6 seconds, and a quarter-mile rushes by in a scant 13.5 seconds. With these times, it's easy to take seriously GMC's slogan "It's not just a truck anymore." They're right, the Cyclone is closer in performance to a Corvette than a standard Sonoma pickup.

Interior creature comforts come in the form of adjustable lumbar sport bucket seats, analog tachometer, turbo boost, oil pressure and coolant temperature gauges, and a leather-wrapped steering wheel. Standard power windows and door locks, cruise control, air conditioning, tinted glass, and an AM/FM-stereo cassette player all help to keep the occupants happy. Options include a CD player and sunroof. Two-tone black paint with blacked-out trim, a front air dam with integrated driving lights, and a tonneau cover finish the exterior styling.

Dodge Stealth pace car jumps the gun at NAIAS

A limited-edition 1991 Dodge Stealth will circle the brickyard at Indianapolis Raceway Park this May as the official pace car of the world's most famous 500-mile race, but the public will have the chance to view the pace car at the NAIAS several months before the race.

The pearlescent yellow Stealth will be the first car to represent Dodge in the Indy spotlight since 1971 when a Dodge Challenger paced the field.

Except for fire and other safety equipment, very few modifications will be made to the Stealth. Because Indianapolis pace cars are traditionally open-air, the Stealth's roof will be partially cut away to resemble in the words of a Chrysler spokesman, a "quasi-convertible."

The 300-horsepower, 3.0-liter, 24-valve, twin turbocharged V6 engine that powers the top-of-the-line Stealth R/T Turbo will remain stock. And, with almost every technological wonder available, the R/T Turbo's standard all-wheel drive, speed-sensitive 4-wheel steering and 4-wheel anti-lock brakes will be ready for any type of weather or track conditions at the race.

In street-trim, the 2+2 sports car is also fitted to the brim with interior creature comforts. Air conditioning, cruise control, power windows and door locks, and a 100-watt 6-speaker AM/FM stereo cassette system are a few of the R/T Turbo's standard features. In fact, the only options for the R/T Turbo are a CD player and leather seats.

The rest of the line — no less exciting but lower in price than the R/T Turbo — includes the base Stealth, Stealth ES and Stealth R/T. These models house a normally-aspirated 3.0-liter V6, ranging from the 164-horsepower version in the base, to the DOHC, 222-horsepower variant in the ES and R/T. A driver's side air bag is standard equipment. Prices for the Stealth run from around $16,000 to $30,000.

The Stealth is the result of a collaborative effort between Chrysler and Mitsubishi. Chrysler's design office styled the Stealth, which traces its heritage back to the 1988 show-stopping Dodge Intrepid concept vehicle. Mitsubishi's version is called the 3000GT and encompasses the same technological features as the Stealth.

A limited-edition Dodge Stealth pace car replica is expected to arrive on dealer showroom floors sometime this spring.

This nearly-stock Dodge Stealth will pace the 1991 Indianapolis 500

Pininfarina introduces concept car

Visitors to Detroit's 1991 NAIAS will get the first peek ever at Pininfarina's newest concept car. Based on General Motors' 6-cylinder Lotus Omega, the vehicle was designed as a high-class, top-performance, compact coupe. According to the Italian coachbuilder, the concept car was created in the great American "sports car tradition" and the spirit of Pininfarina.

Ford concept trucks focus on versatility

Ford will introduce one full-sized and two compact concept trucks at the 1991 NAIAS. Demonstrating the versatility of the successful new Explorer utility vehicle is a futuristic "office on wheels" design. This vehicle will contain the latest electronic gadgetry, including state-of-the-art communications hardware surrounded by a detailed executive office environment.

A second compact truck design is executed on a Ranger extended cab sport vehicle and is designed to excite the young as well as the true performance enthusiast. A fully functional vehicle, this futuristic design illustrates what the personal use buyer can do with a little imagination. Unique exterior styling modifications complete the aggressive theme of the vehicle.

A design concept based on America's best-selling vehicle, the F-Series pickup, will also appeal to the personal use consumer. This vehicle is a modification of the F-150 Nite, introduced earlier this year.

Buick Roadmaster is back

Not since 1958 has Buick applied the "Roadmaster" badge to a vehicle's fenders, but General Motors is expected to display a Roadmaster Estate Wagon in its 1991 North American International Auto Show (NAIAS) stand.

Like the other GM-300 models — Chevrolet's Caprice and Oldsmobile's Vista Cruiser — the full-size Roadmaster has a front-engine/rear-wheel-drive platform. The 217-inch long Roadmaster Estate Wagon is powered by a 170-horsepower, 5.0-liter V8, and comes with anti-lock brakes and four-speed automatic transmission as standard equipment.

Fans of ultra-grand wagons can look forward to GM's revival of the glass "vista roof" and the traditional two-way tailgate that opens like a door or folds flat. Vehicles like the Roadmaster keep the weekend ritual of "tailgating" at sporting events alive and well.

When protecting your home, even the little things help

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Tom Stong has been in the home protection business for 20 years.

As president of Grosse Pointe Alarm, he has seen houses broken into that were awash with floodlights. He has seen iron bars guarding windows pried open. He has seen old doors on old houses in splinters after a thief broke through.

And with the country edging toward a recession and the job outlook bleak, Stong says crime will be up. He's getting ready for a busy season.

"Break-ins are a little more violent these days," Stong said. "And the business is changing, too. Used to be 80 percent of my customers were people who were broken into and wanted protection. Now it's about 50 percent those people and 50 percent people who want preventive maintenance."

While Stong recommends an alarm system as the best protection against burglary, he says even the most advanced systems need not be expensive.

"There's a zillion ways to customize a home security system," he said. "There's all sorts of systems, even wireless outfits that work on radio signals."

Some systems include 24-hour-a-day monitoring and panic buttons in several locations in the house to silently activate the alarm.

Stong says Grosse Pointe Alarm specializes in designing systems which protect the residents first, and the valuables second.

"It used to be the big problem was cat burglars," he said. "These are people who come into the house while you're still in it to steal from you. They died out for a while and now they're coming back."

One item he suggests to all customers, even those with an alarm system, is a passive infrared system. They are available at home improvement or electronics stores and can be installed easily by the homeowner. The system activates a floodlight when someone crosses the infrared sensor.

"If a thief jumps over your back fence and is hit with these floodlights, he thinks you saw him and takes off and goes to the next house," Stong said. He urges those taking trips to get someone to shovel the walks and collect the mail and the newspapers, and in general make the house look lived in.

"If you don't get a security system, at least get a house sitter," he said. Because so many families have two income-earners, daytime break-ins are up, Stong said. There is one thing you can do, but it's not a sure-fire cure.

"If you like pets, get a dog. A loud, barking dog is a great deterrent to a thief," he said. "Of course, they steal dogs, too."

One home safety measure Stong says doesn't work is leaving a light on in the house while you're gone.

"People will say I'm crazy, but as far as I'm concerned you're only lighting the way for a burglar," he said.

Other protection might include installing a new door with a steel frame to replace an old wooden one.

And of course, he says, good locks — on both doors and windows — are also important, provided they are used.

"People don't understand they need to lock their doors," he said. "We're not living in the '30s or '40s."

Several pamphlets with more home protection tips are available at Grosse Pointe Woods police headquarters and other local public safety departments.

Some other tips to protect your house are:

- Secure patio doors and sliding windows either with poles or pegs.

- Engrave all valuable items with a code or name.

- Secure basement windows; many windows — especially on older homes are big enough for a person to fit through.

- Always ask for identification of solicitors or repairmen.

- After every door and window on the first floor and the basement is secured, make sure you don't leave ladders outside to allow someone access to upper floors.

- Plugging lights into timers is encouraged by all experts except Stong, who says it really isn't a deterrent.

- Never hide extra keys outside.

- When going on a trip, turn the telephone bell to low.

- Be aware of strangers or cars which don't belong in your neighborhood.

And, Stong stressed, if something strange is happening, "Don't play cop. Call the police. The police in the Grosse Pointes are great; they always get there within minutes of the call. Don't put yourself in danger."

A little common sense in home protection can go a long way, he added.

Saturday hours eliminated

Effective Jan. 14, the Harper Woods Secretary of State branch office will no longer be open on Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon.

The branch office, located at 19254 Kelly Road in Harper Woods, will remain open Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The decision to eliminate Saturday service is the result of

In total, 41 offices will no longer be open on Saturdays.

The last day for Saturday service, including the Harper Woods branch office, will be Saturday, Jan. 12.

Woodpiles can attract rodents

You can be part of the problem or part of the solution in your choice of a spot to pile winter's supply of firewood.

"Mice and rats will readily take shelter in a back yard woodpile," said Sandra Goedde-Richards, home horticulturist for the Macomb County Cooperative Extension Service. "If the woodpile is located some distance from the house so the rodents sheltering there would have to cross a wide expanse of open lawn to get to the house, they'll probably either move on or be killed by predators — dogs, cats, hawks, owls, foxes, etc. If the wood is stacked right next to the house, the rodents can search for a way into your house without venturing out into the open."

It doesn't take a very big opening to admit a rodent, Richards points out. A mouse can squeeze through a hole as small as 1/4 inch in diameter, and a rat needs only a 1/2 inch hole. Both rats and mice are good at climbing any surface rough enough to give them a foothold, so openings don't need to be at or near ground level.

The combination of a woodpile for shelter and a readily accessible supply of food — garbage, pet food, a poorly managed compost pile, wild bird food in flimsy containers, crop residues in the vegetable garden — can lead to serious rodent infestations.

"If right next to the house is the worst place for a woodpile, next to the dog pen is the next worst," Richards said. "Spilled or leftover dog food and water from the dog's dish provide the rodents with everything they need in addition to shelter. I have yet to see a woodpile next to a dog pen where there wasn't a rodent problem."

Stack the wood some distance from the house, if possible. If you must pile it nearby, use cement blocks and pallets or some other means to get it at least 18 inches off the ground and keep it at least an arm's length away from the exterior wall. Make the pile long and narrow — one log wide rather than several laid side by side. Multiple rows make better rodent quarters, Richards explains.

DESIGNS & SOLUTIONS Kitchen & Bath

MICHIGAN DESIGN CENTER
co-sponsored by Schoolcraft College

SATURDAY, JANUARY 26
9:30 AM to 3:00 PM

in MDC's MID-AMERICA ROOM, use North "n" entry

Discover the luxurious possibilities for two of the most-used rooms in your home... trends, design and colors of the future, new technology, and the breath-taking resources available in the showrooms of Michigan Design Center.

Michigan Design Center is normally open to the trade only. Merchandise will not be sold on this day, however, designers will be on hand for complimentary consultations and to assist you with future purchases.

MICHIGAN DESIGN CENTER

1700 Stutz Drive, Troy, 3 blocks east of Coolidge, north off of Maple (15 Mile Rd.).

ELLEN CHEEVER, KEYNOTE SPEAKER
Director of Educational Services for the National Kitchen & Bath Association

Hear her discuss good principles of design, the financial aspects of the project, the owner's high return on investment and how you can personalize kitchens and baths.

SHOWROOM SEMINARS
Visit participating showrooms in small hands-on seminars featuring tile selection, cabinetry, finishes, countertops and much more.

LUNCHEON AND ION GROSSMAN
Enjoy our luncheon speaker, Ion Grossman, Home Repair columnist for the "Detroit Free Press", Television and Radio. He'll discuss the latest installation methods, new materials, and the advantages of restyling and updating your home, in MDC's Mid-America Room.

Certified public accountants' association answers common tax questions

Your IRS tax forms have probably arrived in the mail already. And you can be sure your W-2s are on the way, too. Yes, it's time to start thinking about wrapping up another tax year. But if you are like most taxpayers, once you start thinking about taxes, more questions than answers come to mind. To help you get started, the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants offers answers to the following common tax questions.

Q. For the past three years, I have come just a few hundred dollars short of being able to itemize my deductions. Is there anything I can do?

A. Try accelerating some of next year's itemized deductions into the current year or postponing some of this year's deductions until next year so that the total will exceed your standard deduction in one year or the other. Then you will be able to itemize once every two years and claim the standard deduction in the other year.

Q. I'm a single parent. I pay my mother to care for my son while I work. Can I claim the dependent-care tax credit?

A. Yes, you can as long as you do not claim your mother as a dependent. But be aware that if your mother comes to your home to care for your children, you must pay Social Security and unemployment taxes based on her salary. You will need to file payroll tax returns. On the other hand, if you take your children to your mother's home, she is not considered your household employee and you will not face these employer responsibilities.

Q. What's the rule for deducting consumer interest this year?

A. Borrowing has become more expensive. On your tax return for 1990, you may deduct only 10 percent of the amount you spend for interest on personal loans, car loans, student loans and credit card accounts. For 1991, no deduction for personal interest will be allowed.

Q. My child earns about $2,000 in unearned income. My business partner tells me I no longer need to prepare a separate return to report my child's income. I thought the "Kiddie Tax" required me to do so. Who's right?

A. The Kiddie Tax does require you to report your child's unearned income. But to make filing easier, the tax provides that if your child's gross income is between $500 and $5,000, you can now use Form 8814 to indicate that you plan to include your child's gross income on your own return. But there is one factor you should keep in mind. When you include your child's income with your own, you increase your adjusted gross income. This may affect your ability to deduct medical and miscellaneous deductions.

Q. I charged a donation to a local charity in December. I didn't pay my bill until January. When do I deduct the donation?

A. You get to deduct your donation in the year you pledge it, not in the year you actually pay the bill.

Q. I know that certain miscellaneous itemized deductions are deductible only in excess of 2 percent of my adjusted gross income. What expenses fit in this category?

A. Miscellaneous itemized deductions include such expenses as union and professional dues, small tools, safety equipment and supplies for your job, fees paid to a tax adviser to prepare your return or represent you at an audit, certain travel and lodging costs connected with seeking employment, and investment-related expenses such as safe deposit box rental fees, the cost of producing or collecting income, and IRA custodial fees.

Q. How long should I keep my tax return?

A. As long as possible. As a general rule, the IRS cannot assess additional taxes after three years starting from the due date of the return or when it was actually filed, whichever is later. If, however, you fail to report more than 25 percent of your income, the IRS has up to six years to audit you and there is no time limit if the IRS thinks you committed fraud, or you failed to file a return. Just to be on the safe side, it's a good idea to hold onto your forms indefinitely.

Q. There's no way I'm going to be able to file my return by April 15. What should I do?

A. You can get an extra four months for filing if you complete Form 4868 and file it by April 15. Be sure to include a check for the approximate amount of tax you expect to owe or you'll be subject to a hefty failure-to-pay penalty. This penalty can be avoided by paying at least 90 percent of your actual tax bill. Remember, you get an extension for filing your return, but you do not get an extension for paying the amount you owe. Also, if you are expecting a refund, you should file as soon as possible.

Q. I just reached age 65. Am I entitled to claim a higher standard deduction?

A. Yes. If you use the standard deduction, the law allows you to add $800 to your standard deductions if you are single. If you're married, you may add $650 for each spouse who is age 65 and older.

Wills, trusts explained

Wills and trusts can be confusing. To help answer questions about these topics, Saratoga Community Hospital will present a free program on "Wills and Trusts."

The community is invited to attend "Wills and Trusts" on Monday, Jan. 21, 10 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., or Tuesday, Jan. 22, 10 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. or Wednesday, Jan. 23, 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

The program will be presented by Duane Weed, attorney and counselor-at-law. After the presentation, there will be ample time for questions.

Reservations are necessary; call 245-1230.

The program will be held in the Karl E. Schmidt Center at Saratoga Community Hospital, located at 15000 Gratiot, just south of Eight Mile Road. Free parking is available.

The "Wills and Trusts" presentation is sponsored by Saratoga's ElderMed America organization, a free membership program for adults age 50 and up. For more information, call 245-1230.

CHESTNUT

Design incorporates loft

This distinctive contemporary home, called the Chestnut, gives an impression of luxuriousness, yet follows specifications for energy efficiency. It uses extra insulation and a vinyl moisture barrier in the walls, ceiling and floors.

A sheltered entryway outside prepares the guest for an experience in a unique home. Secluded from general family activity in this part of the house is the master suite, with a vaulted ceiling and spacious closets. The luxurious master bath features a double vanity and separate shower enclosure, as well as a large oval tub highlighted with natural light and a plant bar.

The entry hall continues to the living room, where the ceiling is vaulted for a view of the loft and bridges above. Plans call for a fireplace here, to be enjoyed from the quiet dining area as well.

The kitchen has a great deal of cabinet and counter space, and shares the major view with the living and dining rooms. A serving bar between the kitchen and family room works well for informal meals and snacks.

The family room renews the view of the lofts by its own high vaulted ceiling, adding clerestory windows. A doorway to a covered patio enhances the possible uses of this room.

An attractive center stairwell leads to the bridge connecting the loft and the upstairs bedrooms. The loft is open to both the family and living rooms, and allows access to a surprisingly large storage room.

The two upstairs bedrooms open to the major view, and also share a large bath and linen storage.

For a study kit of the CHESTNUT (108-10), send $7.50 to Today's Home, P.O. Box 2832-T Eugene, Oregon 97402. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.)

Now Renting: A landmark address.

Since its completion, the elegant Shore Club Apartment tower has been a landmark for ships and boats cruising Lake St. Clair. But it's also been a landmark in luxury living.

You can choose from highrise, garden apartment or townhouse lifestyles. All provide the same convenient, luxurious environment.

Shore Club is situated in a park-like atmosphere. Here we combine the peacefulness of the lake with stately old shade trees. Our community-by-the-lake is conveniently located near major expressways and surface routes, leading to most every part of the Metropolitan Area. As well as close to Grosse Pointe Shopping districts.

What's more, because Shore Club is on the water, renters have first priority on our available boat wells.

We're now renting apartments. So come and see why Shore Club is the most prestigious address on the waterway. We're sure you'll find everything about it is of landmark quality.

GREAT TIME TO BUY!

FOLLOW THE GREEN BALLOONS TO THE

IT'S TIME TO GET EXCITED!

This will probably be the lowest sale on the block for the last four years. The owner's are anxious to sell and have reduced the price to $139,900 for this three-bedroom, one-and-one-half-bath Grosse Pointe City home with lots of extras. 780 UNIVERSITY.

1ST OPEN - NEW PRICE

Delight in the comfort and easy maintenance of this cozy three-bedroom, brick home at 903 FISHER in Grosse Pointe City. The second floor offers a three room hide-a-way. Fantastic basement work and play areas. Yours today for $125,000.

smaller & SMARTER

Deliberately downsized for easy care and comfort. Finally a two-bedroom, den and sitting room home with space where you need it! Recently redecorated with 1990's in mind, you'll also love it's classic detailing. Located at 4442 HARVARD, DETROIT.

THE SLEEPER

It's the perfect home for large families! Mom and dad and kids can have the luxury of privacy with two bedrooms on the first floor and three on the second. The family room, basement play areas and fenced yard complete the picture. 254 LOTHROP.

ALL HOMES ARE NOT CREATED...

Equal. This one's a winner all around. From its three large bedrooms to the extra special family room with fireplace to the neutral decor, it is a home your family will love. The redecorated kitchen and basement pub room make it even nicer. 338 MORAN.

AFFORDABLE WARMTH

Enjoy not only a warm hearth but also lower heating bills with this Grosse Pointe Park home's new high-efficiency, two-zone furnace with central air conditioning. Newer amenities include a two car garage, kitchen and more. A must see at 1444 GRAYTON.

WELCOME TO LIVE-IN ELEGANCE

Nestled on a cul-de-sac near the water in the Farms, this one-of-a-kind English affords great privacy. Fireplaces in the step-down living room, paneled library and master suite are a wonderful focal point in this haven. 272 LASALLE.

SIXTY-FOUR YEARS YOUNG

Come and reminisce as you enjoy the old home details this gently updated four-bedroom home offers. Natural fireplace, hardwood floors, coved moldings are a few of the older amenities. Updated kitchen, newer garage and walk-in closets. 429 MANOR.

BAN THE BLAHs

Warm up to the fireplace in the kitchen. Relish the flowing rooms. Marvel at the wonderful backyard. Or relax with guests in the wonderful family room with wet bar. This Grosse Pointe Park Cape Cod has something for everyone. 1022 HARVARD.

CONDITION CAN'T BE SURPASSED...

In this remarkable older three-bedroom, one-and-one-half-bath home. Spotlessly clean and two-and-one-half blocks from Mack, the home features a newer furnace, carpeting and paint in the living and dining rooms and more. 3926 BUCKINGHAM, DETROIT.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT

Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything and who shows me the way to reach my ideal. You who give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and you who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual glory. Amen.

Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Pray this prayer three consecutive days without asking your wish, after third day your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this prayer as soon as your favor has been granted. Thank you for favors received. V.M.F.

101 PRAYERS

O HOLY St. Jude, apostle and martyr, great in virtue and rich in miracles; near kinsman of Jesus Christ, faithful Intercessor of all who invoke your special patronage in time of need. To you I have recourse from the depth of my heart and humbly beg to whom God has given such great power to come to my assistance. Help me in my present and urgent position. In return I promise to make your name known and cause you to be invoked. Say 3 Our Father's, say 3 Hail Mary's, say 3 Glorias. St. Jude pray for us and all who invoke your aid. Amen. Publication must be promised. Thank you for prayer granted. C.T.

500 ANIMALS ADOPT A PET

LOVABLE dogs and cats need good homes. For adoption information call: Northern Suburbs Animal Welfare League Volunteer at Jeanette 773-6839.

PLEASE DON'T DELAY! SPAY or NEUTER YOUR PET TODAY!

An altered pet is a healthier and happier companion. Also, it spares you the grief and pain of having puppies and kittens destroyed when no homes can be found. Countless numbers of sweet, innocent little ones are euthanized every day in shelters across the country because a pet wasn't spayed or neutered. If we cut down on the numbers of unwanted litters being born, we will also cut down on the number of abandoned, lost and unwanted animals to destroy.

FREDRIKA, a eight-month-old Basenji mix, is truly a MIRACLE PUPPY! Her "foster mother" brought her home to Troy in July from the stray puppy room at the Central Shelter of the Michigan Humane Society where, at the age of four weeks old, her chances of survival were practically nil.

Now a healthy, thirty-pound, well-muscled puppy with a white tipped tail and white "socks", FREDRIKA is looking for an especially caring home. She is housebroken, affable, and fiercely loyal. She enjoys the company of other pets and is fun with older children. Although FREDRIKA will remain a smallish dog, she is an excellent watch dog; she is usually the first of the "pack" to announce a visitor's arrival!
