1990 census: More Asians, blacks in Pointes

Assistant Editor

While whites continue to comprise nearly all the Grosse Pointes' population, Asians have increased their numbers by more than 50 percent, and the number of blacks has more than doubled.

Whites make up 98 percent of the population in the Pointes, according to 1990 census data provided by Jim Thomas of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG). Ten years earlier, the 1980 census put whites at 98.7 percent of the population.

Overall, the Pointes' population fell from 52,099 in 1980 to 49,300 in 1990. Of the 1990 total, 48,309 residents were white.

The number of blacks more than doubled in the Pointes over the past 10 years. The 1990 census counted 182 blacks in the Pointes, up from 89 in 1980. Blacks totaled 0.4 percent of the Pointes' population in 1990, up from 0.2 percent in 1980.

The Park saw the largest increase in black residents among the Pointes. There were 30 blacks in the Park in 1980; in the 1990 census, that number rose to 112, or 0.9 percent of the Park's population. The City had 23 blacks, up from 11 in 1980. The Farms' black population showed little change, with 23 blacks in 1990, up from 19 during the '80 census.

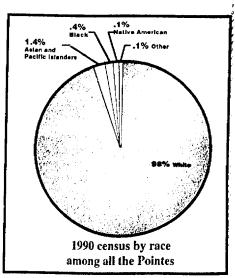

Harper Woods' black population increased from 11 in 1980 to 132 in 1990.

Grosse Pointe City saw an increase in its black population from 11 in 1980 to 23 in 1990.

The number of blacks in Grosse Pointe Woods declined from 21 in 1980 to 13 in 1990.

The number of Asians - including Japanese, Chinese, Koreans, Vietnamese and Pacific Islanders - in the Pointes increased from 446 in 1980 to 697 in 1990. In 1980, Asians made up 0.9 percent of the population; in the 1990 census, they represent 1.4 percent of Schools saved from devastating cuts — this year and perhaps as much again the following year, when the bill would have frozen property assessments.

But the House worked out a compromise measure which postponed the inevitable cuts for a year, allowing the schools time to plan where the reductions would be made. The House and Senate approved the bill on Thursday.

What it means is that in the 1991-92 school year there will be no effect," said Chris Fenton, assistant superintendent for business affairs. "And that in 1992-93 property assessments will be frozen."

But Fenton said it is too early to tell what effect it will have on the school system the following year until he gets a copy of the bill and determines what effect, if any, the Headlee Amendment will have on it.

"It gets a little complicated because in 1992 we have a millage renewal up for election and what we'll have to decide is do we want to go for an increase to offset that freeze ' Fenton said.

Superintendent of schools Ed Shine said that although the bill puts off the cuts for a year, he is still worried about where they will be made.

"We're concerned about the resources that will be available for the schools to continue the programming with the excellence that we have had in the past," Shine said. "But this gives us a year to plan."

He said the community will have input in any planning and decisions that will be made, in keeping with board policy.

The board is currently working on its 1991-92 school budget. It will be adopted in June.

By Ronald J. Bemas Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Farms' Kay McDonald is equally at home sitting in a small boat with a fishing pole in one hand, a beer in the other and a cigarette dangling out of her mouth as she is leading a meeting of the Grosse Pointe League of Women Voters.

McDonald doesn't believe she's done too much of interest. and a sense of modesty won't allow her to blow her own horn, but she's always marched to the beat of a different drum.

Born in Detroit, McDonald has lived in Grosse Pointe since she was a toddler.

"I graduated from Grosse Pointe High School shortly after the stone age and went to college and got a degree in math and physics," she said. "I worked for a year, then got married, then had four kids, got worried about mental atrophy and went back to college to get more education."

After a year or two of college at Wayne State University, her husband Lawrence died, leaving her with four children aged 14 to 3.

"Then I had to go to school seriously," she said. "I had to feed the offspring."

But she had support from her family and friends and never once bemoaned her fate.

Water, sewage bills to increase in Woods

By Donna Walker Staff Writer

Woods residents can expect to see an 8.4 percent overall increase in their water and sewage bills next week.

Starting May 1, the water rate will be 83 cents higher per 1,000 metered cubic feet, and the sewage rate will be 94 cents higher per 1,000 metered cubic feet. The $8 service fee that is charged bi-monthly will remain the same.

The average Woods customer uses about 18,000 cubic feet of water and sewage treatment every two months, said city administrator Phillip H. Belcher. The current rates per 1,000 cubic feet, which have been in effect since July 1989, are $9.85 for water service and $11.10 for sewage treatment.

The new rates per 1,000 metered cubic feet will be $10.68 for water and $12.04 for se-

The rate increase, approved by council April 15, was needed to cover the cost of new labor contracts with city employees and to offset the rising cost of doing business with the City of Detroit, among other things, said Belcher.

The Woods, like many communities in southeast Michigan, buys its water from Detroit and pumps its sewage to a treatment center in the city.

Currently, Detroit charges the Woods $2.51 for water and $4.39 for sewage treatment per 1,000 cubic feet. Beginning July 1, those prices will be $2.67 and $4.61, respectively.

Trent Hicks, financial manager of Detroit's water and sewage department, said Detroit is raising the prices it charges all of its water and sewage customers because of increased labor and maintenance costs.

Eighty-three communities buy water wholesale from Detroit and 16 large sewage districts (which comprise many communities) pump their sewage to Detroit, Hicks said.

The rate Detroit charges a community for water is based Water and sewage costs upon five things, Hicks said: the volume of water the community is expected to use during the year, the anticipated water demand during peak periods (for example, in the morning, when many people take showers), the distance the water has to travel from Detroit to the community, the elevation over which the water has to be pumped, and the number and size of meters in the commun-

Sewage rates are based on volume, he said.

Detroit estimates the amount of water a community will use and the amount of sewage it will produce based on previous years' figures.

To determine rates for the 1991-92 fiscal year, which begins July 1, Detroit looked at 1989-90 water and sewage volumes.

Grosse Pointe Shores and Grosse Pointe Park also buy water and sewage treatment services from Detroit. Grosse Pointe Farms and Grosse Pointe City pay to have their sewage treated in Detroit. However, they don't buy their water from Detroit. Grosse Pointe Farms has its own water station. In addition to providing its own residents with water, the Farms is the wholesale supplier of water to Grosse Pointe City.

Detroit currently charges Grosse Pointe Shores $5.30, and Grosse Pointe Park $3.55 for every 1,000 cubic feet of water. Grosse Pointe Farms charges Grosse Pointe City $4.31 for every 1,000 cubic feet of water.

For sewage services, Detroit currently charges Grosse Pointe City $6.67, the Farms, $6.67.

the Park, $4.42, and the Shores, $4.39 per 1,000 cubic feet.

Starting July 1, Detroit will charge the following, per 1,000 cubic feet: Grosse Pointe City, $6.95 for sewage; the Farms, $6.95 for sewage; the Park, $3.85 for water and $4.63 for sewage; the Shores, $5.71 for water and $4.61 for sewage. Each community then tacks on its own maintenance and service charges before billing its customers.

Grosse Pointe City charges its approximately 2,400 customers a total of $20 for every 1,000 cubic feet of water and sewage. Customers are billed quarterly. Even if a customer doesn't use any water at all during a three-month billing cycle, he is still charged for a minimum 1,500 cubic feet, said Dennis C. Foran, Grosse Pointe City treasurer/assessor.

Grosse Pointe Farms charges its approximately 4,080 customers a total of $16 per 1,000 cubic feet for water and sewage -$5.60 for water and $10.40 for sewage. Customers are billed quarterly, and there is a minimum of 1,500 cubic feet.

Grosse Pointe Park charges its approximately 4,900 customers $15.50 for every 1,000 cubic feet of water, and a flat rate of $11 or $15 every two months for sewage, depending on the size of the customer's meter, said Donna Costa, deputy treas. monthly, and there is no minimum charge.

Grosse Pointe Shores charges ers a total of $20 per 1,000 cubic feet of water and sewage. ### Shop wisely for used equipment Substantial savings can be made by keeping your eyes open for used photo equipment and accessories as long as you can distinguish between bargains and problems. The best sources for locating used camera gear are photo stores, classified ads and local photo flea markets.

With basic items such as tripods, camera bags and darkroom equipment (trays, tongs, measuring cups) very little can go wrong, so buying them is a pretty safe bet...

But with cameras and lenses, you need to be more careful and check them closely. Here are some tips on how to do it.

First, inspect the exterior of the camera you're interested in. A lot can be learned from its general condition. Worn corners and marks from neckstraps are normal. Just be sure the wear isn't excessive. But be wary of dents, large scratches and distortion of the camera body. Such problems indicate the camera has been dropped or abused and more serious damage could be concealed insid-

Look through the viewfinder to ensure that all read-outs are clearly visible. Check the battery compartment for any damage from old, corroded batter-Wind the advance lever and snap the shutter at all speeds. It should operate smoothly down the scale.

Now open the camera back and check for cleanliness. Set the shutter at "B" and watch through the opened camera back as the shutter closes. There should be no sluggish-different ASA settings, check the meter out by using a spare or friend's camera as a reference. Readings should be within one-half stop.

Finally, focus at infinity and look through the viewfinder. Distant objects should be clearly in focus. If not, there may be a serious problem.

Any lens you're interested in should focus easily and be free from scratches. It should also mount smoothly and easily on the camera body.

Buying used equipment from a distant seller when you can't check the items out can be a warranty cluded. Better to buy locally so you can examine the equipment in person.

Lansing labor produces only a tax mouse

t might be said that the Legislature's labor on behalf of tax reform, or a tax cut, has produced only a mouse in the form of a one-year tax freeze.

More significantly, the Legislature last week also approved a ballot question that would limit future assessment increases on individual homestead parcels to the rate of inflation or 5 percent, whichever is the lower.

If this proposed constitutional amendment is adopted by vote of the people in November 1992, it would mean a direct limitation on the taxing power of local governments, such as the Grosse Pointe School District and the five Pointe municipalities. In a period of hyper-inflation in excess of 5 percent a year, such an amendment could be disastrous.

Even the one-year tax freeze in 1992 would cost the district up to $5 million in revenues without any reimbursement in the form of state aid.

It is for those reasons that Rep. William Bryant of Grosse Pointe voted against putting the proposed amendment on the ballot as well as against the bill requiring a one-year assessment freeze.

Bryant led the fight against the proposals in the GOP caucus as well as on the House floor but was unable to win even much Republican support in the Democratic House.

Another Headlee plan that would require an eventual 20 percent cut in property assessments also could be on the ballot in 1992 if it obtained a sufficient number of signatures on petitions. It, too, could sharply limit the Grosse Pointe district in its efforts to maintain its program of quality education.

Yet in our opinion the mouse is better than either a two-year freeze or a tax cut. Why? Because, while a one-year freeze will seriously reduce the school district's revenues in the 1992-93 fiscal year, a two-year freeze would have been twice as bad and a tax cut even more damaging.

But Bryant sees the proposed cap on property tax assessments as even more dangerous for the district in the future. In the event of hyper-inflation, the district might quickly reach its constitutional 50mill-levy limit and then be unable to match future inflation rates or even the 5 percent limit.

We agree that something ought to be done to trim property taxes in Michigan. But we think, probably contrary to popular opinion, that the state requires some revenue increases to offset the reductions in property taxes if the state is to meet its responsibility to education, the needy and those requiring mental health or other social services.

Foreseeing what the proposed limitations might do to a district such as Grosse Pointe, Bryant at one point last week even proposed that school districts be authorized to impose a local income tax when they had reached the property tax cap. But he won little support and was advised the governor would not back the

In that connection, it was significant that a majority of Michiganders expressed the belief in a recent public opinion poll that the state budget should be balanced by a mix of spending cuts and a small tax increase instead of only by reductions in state spending.

In fact, respondents gave the needs of education and the state's war on crime and drugs higher priorities than a tax cut in Michigan. That poll offers one answer to Gov. John Engler's belief that he was elected to slash most state services, except for education.

The referendum limiting tax assessment increases, a compromise between the GOP and the Democrats, was supported by the governor in order to be able to show some movement on his highly publicized campaign pledge to cut property taxes.

But even if it wins its expected approval, it will do nothing to reform Michigan's method of funding public education, little to solve the state's tax and revenue problems and much to harm financing of some local governmental services.

So the Legislature's effort on the tax cut and reform issue, despite the mountain of publicity about it, amounts to no more than a mouse in terms of its effect.

A View from the sidelines

by Wilbur Eiston

he troubling question of whether race is an issue in the Pointes has been raised again by the 1990 census figures and by a feature story in the Sunday Detroit Free Press Magazine. But in my view there are no easy answers to the inquiry.

As reported by John Minnis in the news columns of today's issue of the Grosse Pointe News, the number of minorities in the Pointes rose somewhat in the Pointes in the 1980-90 decade while the white population declined slightly.

Overall, whites still made up 98 percent of the population in 1990, as contrasted with 98.7 percent in 1980, with Asians making the largest gains both percentagewise and numerically even though blacks more than doubled in numbers from 89 to 182 during the decade.

What the figures do prove is that there

Nature's week

n observance of Environmental Week, the Grosse Pointe News today devotes a special page to reports about Grosse Pointe's efforts to protect the environment.

The stories cover mulching, green boating and the revamped incinerator at the Grosse Pointes-Clinton Refuse Disposal Authority that has improved its ash-handling capacity.

The Pointes also are gearing up for the start of their new recycling program this spring that will include curb pick-up and separation of various waste components into different receptacles.

All in all, Environmental Week and the activities scheduled to observe it in the schools, churches, homes and business places of the Pointes reflect the increased sensitivity to environmental concerns in all parts of the community.

is no general exclusion of minorities from the Pointes and nothing like the barriers that once were raised years ago by the obnoxious point system.

If there is no general exclusion or exclusionary policies as such, why does the minority population of the Pointes rise so slowly?

In my view the major explanation is that most Grosse Pointe housing is more expensive than many minority families can afford, although as more and more minority families achieve higher incomes they are able to afford housing wherever they wish to live.

As for the piece by the Free Press staffer, a resident of the Pointes herself, it left a sour reaction among those of us who think we have seen a bit of progress in race relations in the Pointes over a period of years.

Minorities now shop in the Pointes in greater numbers than in earlier years and more work in Pointe businesses, although the number employed as domestics has declined along with the general decline in the number of people working in that job category in the Pointes.

As the Free Press article pointed out, however, the area of Detroit adjacent to the Pointes is 87 percent black while the Pointes across the "invisible line" are 98 percent white. In effect, racial isolation is still serious both in Detroit and in the

In fact, I would agree with the Free Press which said editorially last week, in referring to the increased racial isolation in Greater Detroit during the 1980s, "A significant part of what is needed here (in the Detroit metro area) is leadership by both blacks and whites to change this reputation and reality."

In my view, the Pointes could and should help in that effort.

Governor Engler should take the time to visit these facilities. It would open his eyes to the injustice of the budget cuts he is proposing - magnified by the trauma which would certainly be inflicted upon the residents who would be dislodged from their "home."

Assessments

To the Editor:

Julie Carion is correct, the SEV is not the only culprit (Grosse Pointe News, April 11).

We were under the impression that an assessment represented 50 percent of the true cash value of the house. An independent fee appraisal as well as a Realtor's market appraisal of our house, however, has shown it to be worth approximately $50,000 less than it has been appraised by the City. In effect, we are paying taxes on value we don't Clearly, it is not only the state but the community assessments that need to be made fair and equitable.

Volunteers!

To the Editor:

This is the ninth year that staff and students in the Grosse Pointe Public School System have joined other schools and organizations in the metropolitan Detroit area to celebrate National Volunteer Week.

More than 4,000 red, white and blue ribbons have been distributed to those who volunteer in our schools. Banners, bulletin boards, showcases and posters are expressing our thanks and appreciation to these special people.

Each school is honoring its volunteers in a way planned by its volunteer chairperson and committee. Celebrations will include parent volunteers from kindergarten through high school, as well as the 90 community grandpersons who have volunteered from one month to nine years. Also included will be student volunteers who tutor in the elementary schools, assist in the Latchkey program or help at the Special Needs Swim program.

The Board of Education and staff and students of the Grosse Pointe Public Schools join me in thanking all our volunteers for their time, their commitment and their willingness to help. They make a big difference every day in the lives of our students and, consequently, in the future of our community.

Justice in a Detroit court?

Then we read or hear the news. some of us often ask ourselves what in the world is going on.

That thought must have occurred to many Detroit Free Press subscribers Friday when they read about the inexplicably soft sentences imposed by Recorders' Judge Dominick Carnovale in two different cases.

In one, the judge sentenced two former AAA Michigan executives to only four years' probation, $24,000 in restitution and 500 hours of community service with Habitat for Humanity, an organization that builds low-income housing.

In the other, the same judge sentenced a man convicted of beating his own son to only six months in a halfway house and five years' probation.

The question to be asked the judge surely must be: Isn't the sentence supposed to fit the crime?

In the first case, the judge said he wanted the former AAA executives to help the Habitat for Humanity group with their business skills and added that the community service punishment "would also entail the business end of a hammer and the business end of a saw."

In this case, the AAA executives apparently diverted more than $500,000 in company funds for work on their homes and yet were asked to make restitution of only $24,000.

In the child beating case, the judge said the culprit had been abused by his own father, and then added, according to columnist Jim Fitzgerald, "I don't think severe incarceration is going to help either you or the victim in this case."

The child-beating father had been accused by his own comments and by a court statement by his girlfriend of physically beating his son, locking him in a closet, knocking his teeth out and even whipping him.

What kind of justice is operating in Judge Carnovale's courtroom these days? And what kind of protection is being offered to society in this same courtroom?

The answer in both cases appears to be

Seeing Redd in a black, white issue

A recent column in this paper stirred quite a controversy in the Pointes.

It dealt with three black students who attend University Liggett School. One felt that while white and black students attend classes, eat and play sports together every day at Liggett, there is still racial prejudice at the school.

In the aftermath of the column, the Grosse Pointe News received several irate phone calls. I feel the defensiveness aroused by the column came from a combination of denial and a stubborn effort not to change. (No one ever wants to change.)

In some ways, though, change is what the Pointes need.

Anyone who has ventured out of the Pointes and told someone where they come from knows about the stares and snide comments. My first year in college was my first fullblown experience with Pointe bashing. Common belief about the area is that it is racist and filled with snotty "Buffy's" and "Biffs" whose pockets overflow with "old money."

After a week of this, I lied and said that I was from Detroit, or sometimes, St. Clair Shores. Besides, with a last name like mine people always assumed my family was Mafia and when I told them that it wasn't, they'd say, "Oh, you must be in construction then." (So this was a case when some stereotypes hold true. Oh, well.)

In many ways the nasty reputation of the Pointes is not deserved. Yet, in other ways it is.

The fact that there are integrated private schools in the Pointes is commendable. But I Say Rose Palazzolo along with this opportunity comes responsibility to the white students as well as the black. Just putting the two together won't solve anything.

On the other hand, while some children grow up here and are isolated from the nation's varied cultures and ethnic groups, the kids of Liggett are not.

I myself went to an integrated private school in the Pointes. But instead of the beautiful "rainbow" effect that people talk of, the lines were sharply drawn between black and white. White kids ate on one side of the cafeteria and blacks on the other.

One day, out of the blue, Donna Redd, a black student, came up to me and said, 'You're prejudiced."

"No, I'm not," I answered.

couldn't be prejudiced because I go to this integrated school and have friends of all colors here. It was the same idea that people have when they say, "Oh, I

Even as a kid I thought I was a cutting-edge liberal type. (Yeah, right.) I was offended, nonethe-My first thought was that I

'them,' I work with 'them.'''

These kinds of attitudes are not really drilled into someone - they are subtly bred into one. So Donna Redd was right, I probably am prejudiced; everyone is in a way. But, the Pointes have a huge challenge if they want to correct their bad reputation and a kind of "taking it for granted" atti-

As long as people can admit that there might be a problem, then people can talk. When children in high school (our future, you know) complain that there is a problem and when some of those kids do not know who Malcolm X was (and some adults, too, I recently found out), then obviously there is a problem.

But the Pointes are a highprofile community, with mostly white residents, whose approach to the problem of racism may just make a difference in other cities.

After Donna Redd said that I was prejudiced, I participated in a little protest of sorts to prove that she was wrong. We were only in grade school and didn't really know how to protest. So no one knew what the protest was about. The black students were just mad. Why? They just were.

It didn't last long; we walked around the circle drive in front of the school and yelled a little and were told to stop, so we

I went up to Donna Redd and said, "See, I'm not prejudiced."

"Yeah," she said. "But you still go home to your nice little house and I have a half-hour bus ride.

"So what does that prove?" I asked.

"That proves that you're prejudiced," she said. "You have to

I don't know how plausible her argument was, but I think I understood. She was right. It's difficult not to be biased sometimes, even though it's wrong all the time.

winter sends birds AWOL

And it came to pass about a week before Daylight Savings Time: The twitter of birds in the back yard disturbed your peaceful sleep.

Finally! Where were the birds all win-

Bags of seed sat half full in the garage. Feeders went untouched. No treat was tempting enough - no thistle, no Niger, no peanut hearts lured the hungry hordes to the feeding stations.

Things got so bad that Backyard Birds, a franchise with three west side stores, took out an ad in the newsletter of the Detroit Audubon Society. Not to worry, the ad advised. The birds will come back.

"I can't tell you how many customers came in, all worried," said Mary Teets, coowner with husband, Don, of the Farmington store. "They wanted to know if they were doing something wrong, if it was the seed."

And of course, the great question: Had the birds somehow been exterminated in an epidemic?

The Teetses didn't think so. They told their customers that the mild winter was to blame - but just to make sure they were right, Mary Teets called the Cornell Ornithology Lab, which conducts ongoing backyard feeder surveys

"They also attributed it to the mild winter, and they said the situation existed nationwide," Teets said.

So - it wasn't just in Grosse Pointe. That's a relief. Bob Healy, retired from business, but not from birding, left his backyard feeders in the Farms for Florida's sunny

"I told my neighbor, who also feeds the birds, that he should use up the seed in my garage,' Healy said. "But he never used up his own seed."

Down in Florida, the robins were flocking in unheard-of numbers, "up to 50,000 together, which of course, becomes a nuisance," he said. His theory is that severe weather in Alabama and Georgia had sent the birds further south than usual.

Healy is active with the Detroit chapter of Audubon and was one of the prime movers of the peregrine falcon program in downtown Detroit. He has discussed the phenomenon of scarce winter birds with Ray Adams of the Kalamazoo Nature Center, a man he describes as "one of the best biologists in the state" and a "key guy" in the Breeding Birds At-

Their theories:

First of all, there were more birds here than most backyard enthusiasts noticed. "In 30 years, I've seen one rosebreasted grosbeak in my yard," Healy said. "If I had a cold and stayed home at the window for three days, who knows what I'd

Second, the birds truly weren't eating our seeds - because they could find plenty of their

"Flocking birds were relatively rare because there was more food available up north," Healy explained. "Wandering birds, like siskins and evening grosbeaks, weren't here. They come and go, here one winter and not another

"Eruptive species like snowy owls come in waves dependent upon the prey situation. Their prey populations (lemmings, voles) crash periodically. So, for instance, one year they banded 17 snowy owls at Logan Airport (Boston), and other years, there are none."

Further, it just isn't true that birds become dependent upon feeding stations. You can feed them and still leave on vacation with a clear conscience.

"Bird feeders are still supplementary for most birds, except in very bad winters." Healy said.

The birds' refusal to accept human offerings this winter had some repercussions. Mary Teets said seed sales fell so far that seed suppliers had to cut their prices. But now, in an unexpected twist, birds seem to be eating again and seed sales have risen

Teets says part of the reason things seemed so bad this year is that the previous winter was an exceptional feeding season. "The contrast makes it seem greater," she said. "The average year should be somewhere in between.'

Detroit Audubon just released the results of its 46th annual Christmas Bird Count, which sheds some surprising light on bird populations and could prove that backyard birders' concerns were unwarranted.

The total of 9,964 birds was higher than the average of 7,694. (The record was 14,160 in 1969.) Fifty-four species were identified, three above the average of 51. (The highest was 78

Large numbers were noted for these species: brown creepers, bluebirds, golden-crowned kinglets, flickers, red-bellied woodpeckers, chickadees, crows, mourning doves, ring-billed gulls, mute swans, whitebreasted nuthatches, red-tailed hawks, kestrels, mallards and mute swans.

On the other hand, bobwhites haven't been seen since 1978. Cedar waxwings were down, as were house sparrows and red-shouldered hawks. Siskins and red-breasted nuthatches were way down, too,

Stereotype anyone?

CBS's witty and wonderful show "Northern Exposure," (shown Mondays at 10 p.m.) is the story about a New York doctor who, to pay back his loans from medical school, works as something of an indentured servant for the town of Cicily, Alaska. With a population of 850 mostly bizarre characters, Cicily is not Dr. Joel Fleishman's kind of town.

One of the characters is a young woman pilot who runs a sort of courier service. Rough and quick with a wrench, she's the one the townspeople call on when they need their radiators, fixed. The character, however, is not from Alaska originally she's from Grosse Pointe, allowing lots of inside Grosse Pointe jokes to work their way into the script.

In the first episode, one character said to her: "Grosse Pointe. That's a pretty ugly name for such a beautiful place."

Most recently, she had to do something that required the use of some feminine wiles. A friend scoffed, which set her off.

What do you think I am, some flat-chested Junior League Grosse Pointe wimp?"

Kids say the darndest things

Tim Pelc invited some hursing home "him in a second graders (who will soon! and and the remaining home "him second graders (who will soon! the pull them themes receive their first communion) like you old bat' or you old to participate in his horifly flat "goat," said another child.

"Jesus wants us to be like him, and Jesus was a shepherd," he said. "How can we be more like shepherds?

By Ronald J. Bernas

The children spoke into the microphone, one by one. They said that if they're nice to their brothers and sisters and if they help their parents and if they're more tolerant of others, they would be as caring as shepherds.

But what about the older people," Pelc asked. "How can you be nice to the older peo-

Teen pregnancy

To the Editor:

I am a former student of Grosse Pointe South who graduated in 1990. While I am now attending Central Michigan University, I have The Tower (student newspaper) of Grosse Pointe South sent to me every week.

The edition of March 13 had an article that caught my interest and tore at my heart. The article, titled "Giving Up Child Is Loving Alternative" by Sara Bayko '91, discussed Sara's experience with being pregnant and giving up her baby boy for adoption.

I was upset when I read her article. She is only 17 and already she has given birth to a child and made the hardest decision she will ever have to make to give up her child. I'm sure it hurts her deeply and probably always will.

This is a problem not only for Sara, or Grosse Pointe South, but for our community as well. In the past three years, I have known others at South who have gone through the school year pregnant, in addition to the many young girls who have dropped out because of pregnancy or just simply had an abortion. I feel that South's requirement for taking a health class which includes sex education (with parental consent) is a wonderful beginning, but why stop there? I have heard that a school in New York has begun distributing condoms to high school students.

I believe a similar program should be available to the students of Grosse Pointe along with a nonprofit clinic, such as Center Point. However, this clinic should also be publicized widely. All of the students should be aware of what is offered at the clinic and how they can get help.

I realize that many adults are afraid that making condoms available would promote sexual activity, but teenagers are having sexual intercourse and will continue to do so with or without condoms. For better or for worse, sexual intercourse has become part of a teenager's life. In fact, some articles indicate that children are having sexual intercourse as young as age 12 and some even younger. Something needs to be done to help the students in our school

The Grosse Pointe Board of Education and the administrators within our school system need help in understanding what the problems are and how to solve them. The people of Grosse Pointe need to do everything in their power to help the children in their community. Take a stand and write a letter or make a phone call or simply arrange an appointment with an administrative official involved in the school system. We are the ones who need to take action and unless we do our children will continue to become parents before they are ready to accept that responsibility.

Tammy Caramagno Grosse Pointe Farms Volunteer

To the Editor:

Because we believe in the peoples' readiness to help when they are needed, we are writing today to remind you all that more volunteers are urgently needed in a life-saving cause.

Thousands of your own neighbors are already at work, in every community, preparing for the American Cancer Society's Door-to-Door Crusade which will begin April 27

These are people, like yourselves, who care so much about the eradication of cancer that they want to be an active part of the crusade that fights this disease. These are the caring neighbors who distribute life-saving information to every home. They also collect the donations which will fund cancer research, public education, and patient care in the fight to reduce and eventually eliminate cancer as a threat to life.

We're asking for your help — to protect yourself and your loved ones, and most of all, to protect the children! Since cancer kills move children than any other cause - childhood cancer is the focus of this year's crusade! Won't you help us in this important cause?

You will find that it is an uplifting experience to take helpful and affirmative action to protect others. Crusading will lift your spirits with a sense of optimism, usefulness and fellowship. Please call 271-4160 and volunteer. Decide to volunteer to crusade as a tribute to someone who has had cancer - or to volunteer to crusade so that others may escape this dreaded disease please respond now! We are waiting for your call.

DARE

To the Editor:

The following letter, sent to Superintendent of Schools Edward Shine, is being reprinted at the request of the writer.

Allow me to congratulate you and our board of education members on your difficult recent decision regarding the DARE program. Further, the letter printed in the April 4 Grosse Pointe News from James Frick must be challenged by a Grosse Pointe parent with another point of view.

I'm not writing to denigrate the DARE program. Its 17 lessons are great, but, in fact, do almost duplicate the Michigan Model substance abuse lessons. Mr. Frick's well-meant remarks reflect ignorance of the bigger picture of schoolbased health education and substance abuse prevention.

I don't belive that the presence of a uniformed officer in our schools is without merit. Clearly, schoolpolice liaison programs have been effective in distributing certain information and building positive relationships between the student and officers.

I surely don't see "protectionism" or "elitism" in the assumption that our professional staff (with their four to eight years specialized education) might be more "magnificent" than a police officer with a three-week training course. High quality community resource speakers are valuable in any curriculum area. They don't, however, have to replace our staff for 17 classes.

Certainly it's obvious that the complexity of substance abuse prevention programming cannot be compared to after-school programs, such as scouting. The latter functions quite well without staff involvement. The former is intentionaly linked with instruction, counseling and ongoing support.

The DARE program and Officer Sally Beghin are good, but not a substitute for a comprehensive health curriculum (we use the Michigan Model - a nationally acclaimed program); not a substitute for a broad-spectrum student assistance program (which we have) and not a substitute for a professional staff trained to teach about drug/alcohol use, to identify high-risk situations and to make appropriate referrals. It's too easy to abdicate several of these roles if the centerpiece (instruction) is delegated to others.

If Mr. Frick is unaware of these existing programs, maybe that's the challenge for our administrators. The solution is not to duplicate efforts in a community which everyone acknowledges has significant problems with alcohol and other drug use.

Mr. Frick is not the only parent in this community who cares deeply about keeping kids drug-free. Those of us who support your decision are not "out to lunch" nor are we letting the maid handle this

Grosse Pointe Food aid

To the Editor:

April is Food Bank Month and it gives us all the opportunity to reflect on what we have each done to help alleviate hunger in our community.

Independent grocers throughout Michigan invite you to help by looking for "Food Aid For Michigan" designated products in your local supermarket. For each designated product purchased, the manufacturer of that national brand will make a contribution to Food Aid. The dollars raised will go to the Food Bank Council of Michigan, a network of 15 warehouses that supply local food banks, pantries, shelters and senior centers.

Here's a chance to feed more than just your own family during your weekly grocery shopping trip and it won't cost you anything. Other families will appreciate your efforts ... buy Food Aid designated products and help provide another family with a healthy

To Ella Fitzgerald, with love

You have been my dear friend and confidante, my psychiatrist and one-man-band for too many years to mention. I have taken you with me to college, on dates and picnics. On countless trips you have helped the miles melt away as I listened to your tapes.

You have made me happy and upbeat and have reached down into my gut when I felt the emotional pain become almost unbearable. I have admired you from up close every time you came to our town and have followed your career and health problems, caring all the way.

It is long past time that I tell you what you have meant to me and of the tremendous impact you and your music have had on my life.

You appear approachable and accessible, yet fragile. I suspect you would see through phoniness and would gently pull back while expressing ladylike thank you's for well-deserved praise. Your gentleness is one of your most appealing qualities. We don't just imagine you feel the emotions in your music - we are dead certain

You have the capacity to take a note and wrap yourself around it, playing with it and teasing it like a kitten with a ball of string. You stretch and you pounce and you deliver excellence in abundance. Your skatting takes us on a roller coaster ride with all the exhilaration while riding the crest and the thrill coming down the other side. Your interpretations of blues and ballads simply have no peers. You are your music: There is an integrity to your style that has allowed you to connect with audiences throughout the world.

There isn't a feeling human being on Earth who isn't moved by your music. You are indeed a musical diplomat and have carried your messages throughout the world. We are fortunate to be able to call you ours, a national treasure who shares her tremendous gifts and continues to give every day of her life.

We are grateful to have most of your albums and the fine technology that enables us to enjoy them to the fullest and to know that they will endure through the generations. What a legacy you have left your country and we thank you from the depth of our hearts.

May God bless you.

but this is probably because of their nomadic nature.

However, and it's a big however, many species are still in serious trouble because of loss of habitat. Mallard numbers, for instance, are crashing nationwide, even though counters happened to see quite a few on that particular day.

"We could take care of all the refugees in the world with our second homes that stand vacant except for a few weeks," Healy said. One of his favorite outings this winter was taking people to see burrowing owls out in the Florida scrubland a platted subdivision with paved roads, just waiting for an economic upturn.

Birders who want to get out to see the spring migration should know that we live in the middle of a birding hotspot, Healy said. Point Pelee, Rondeau Provincial Park, Holiday Beach, Metropolitan Beach (only 20 minutes away) and Lake Erie Metropark all host large numbers of migrating and resident birds.

Healy reels them off: horned owls, wading birds of all kinds. warblers, thrushes, hawks ("more than Hawk Mountain and Cape May").

Birds Good news, bad news on taxes

The good news is that the Legislature put a constitutional amendment proposal on the ballot which, if adopted by the voters, would limit annual assessment increases on homesteads to no more than 5 percent, unless the home is sold.

The bad news is, if adopted, the provision will strangle, slowly or rapidly, our schools.

I vehemently opposed the proposal. Ninety percent of our school district tax base is residential property, and the vast majority of it is owner-occupied homesteads. If inflation exceeds 5 percent, as it did even last year, the buying power of each mill of school tax will be eroded as assessed values increase less than the inflation rate. And even one year of hyperinflation, to which we are not immune, would disastrously erode our tax base.

An assessment will return to 50 percent of actual value at the time a home is sold, but homes do not change hands very often in our stable communities. Grosse Pointe Woods, for example, tells me only 5 percent of their homes sell each year, meaning the average home only sells once every 20 years, far less frequently than the once-every-seven-years national average.

As the school tax base erodes with inflation, voters could increase the authorized millage to offset the effect. However, there is a 50 mill limit that voters cannot exceed. Sooner or later that limit would be reached, after which the revenues of the schools would start.

dropping and our schools would be made dependent wards of the state.

Our Grosse Pointe communities exist because of our schools. The welfare of our schools must be foremost in our minds. And any proposal that would make it impossible for our schools to be self-sufficient we must oppose. For the election in November 1992 we will have work to do, to defeat this newest attack on our schools.

Hill office building bought in forfeiture sale

Assistant Editor

The former Colonial bank building at 63 Kercheval on the Hill has been purchased by a partnership of Grosse Point-

Christy and John Rickel of Grosse Pointe Farms and HRStrategies Inc. of Grosse Pointe Woods joined to form the 63 Kercheval Co. to purchase and manage the 24,100square foot, retail-office building.

John Rickel is an attorney with Rickel & Baun and is a certified public accountant and chartered financial planner. Rickel's wife, Christy, is a captain in the U.S. Army Reserve and is stationed at Fort McCoy, Wis. She was called for duty during Operation Desert Storm.

HRStrategies is a nationwide human resources consulting firm with offices in Stamford and Hartford, Conn.; Houston; Newport Beach, Calif., and Grosse Pointe Woods, its headquarters. Dr. David Jones of Grosse Pointe Farms is the company's founder and chief

The building was purchased for the forfeit price of $906,000, the balance owed to Heritage Federal Savings. The building was forfeited by Donald Dodge, who as general partner put a limited partnership together of some 48 investors and acted as the property manager.

One of Dodge's limited partners was the Grosse Pointe Woods Pension Board, which had invested $148,800 for a 20 percent share in the property. When the partnership was dissolved, some $133,800 was not recovered by the board.

Former Mayor George Freeman's role as chairman of the pension board raised questions because the transaction was handled by his employer, an investment agent.

Following disclosure of his involvement, Freeman said the investment documents clearly indicated that the agent was his boss, but others on the pension board said the relationship was not made clear.

Woods officials said Freeman did not make a full disclosure to the board and that he should have abstained from voting. He cast the deciding vote on the five-member board in favor of the investment in 63 Kercheval.

After three years of declining returns and management problems, Heritage foreclosed on Dodge in January when a deal could not be made to refinance. At the time, the Woods pension board also refused to invest additional funds.

John Rickel said the building was one-third vacant when he and his partners purchased it. He and HRStrategies plan to maintain offices in the build-Rickel & Baun and John M. Rickel, certified public accountant, have offices in the Renaissance Center.

Rickel said rents were recently increased at the RenCen, which helped provide "significant economic incentives" for buying 63 Kercheval.

HRStrategies occupies five buildings on Mack Avenue in the Woods and employs 80 consultants. The company designs human resources programs for some of the world's largest corporations.

By next January when HRStrategies gets much of its operations relocated to 63 Kercheval, Rickel expects the building to be nearly fully occupied. The longest tenants in the building are Jon's on the Hill, a hair salon owned by Jon Tatone, which has been there for

Recycling

The staffs at Cottage Hospital and Henry Ford Medical Center-Pierson Clinic are coordinating efforts to recycle office and computer paper. Employees collect paper at their work stations and transport it to central locations throughout the hospital. From there, the paper is collected and stored for pick up by a recycling company.

A recycling committee formed at the hospital has created a logo with the slogan, "Reduce. Re-use. Recycle." The committee is exploring options for recycling other materials, like plastics and glass, which it hopes to implement in the future.

By Donna Walker Staff Writer

Since long before saving the planet became such a hot topic and before special lawnmowers were around to make the job easier, Grosse Pointe Woods resident Cynthia Chyz has been mulching her lawn.

Chyz, 63, was raised in Detroit, and when she was a teenager, took over the job of mowing her family's yard.

"I lived on such a large lot," Chyz said, "that it would have been too much work to rake and bag all the grass, so I just went over it twice with the mower and I got the same effect as today's mulching mow-ers produce. And I had a push mower back then. We didn't have a power mower. But I enjoyed doing it. I liked being outdoors and it was good exercise."

Chyz was helping the enviroment and didn't even realize it. By leaving the grass clippings on the ground to naturally decompose, Chyz, in her own small way, reduced the amount of yard waste that was sent to landfills and incinerators. The clippings also gave nutrients back to the soil as they decayed.

In the 1960s, Chyz read a book in which the author predicted that unless people changed their ways and started to conserve and recycle, global warming, overflowing landfills and a slew of other environmental problems would occur.

"But I didn't believe any of it back then," Chyz said.

She continued to mulch her lawn out of convenience, but the book didn't convince her to take any other measures to help the environment, she said.

When Chyz and her husband, Harold, moved to the Woods 26 years ago with their sons, Grant and George, they bought a power mulching mover. The machine lasted until last year, when the Chyzes bought a new

About four years ago, Chyz visited her son, Grant, in Seattle, and was surprised to see him separate his trash into recyclables and non-recyclables.

"The city had just gone to recycling," Chyz said, "and after my son told me all about it, I thought it was a neat idea."

When Chyz got home, she read everything she could find on recycling and environmental issues. She also joined the Citizens for Recycling in Grosse Pointe Woods.

The Woods has since gone to mandatory recycling of news; paper, certain plastics and tin. a
However, Chyz does more

I found out that the chemicals were not only bad for the environment, they made my asthma worse." Not everyone is as enthusias, tic as Chyz about recycling and saving the environment. "People are so miserable about change," she said, "and the older we are, the worse we are . . . but recycling is really. an easy thing to do, and I feel that if everyone did a little bit, it would make a big difference. and make this world a better place for our shild

Let's clean up our act

Incinerator addition promises cleaner ashes

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

A new, probably safer, ashhandling facility has been in operation for the past two weeks at the Grosse Pointes-Clinton Refuse Disposal Authority.

Incinerator general manager Ed Whedon said the $2.3-million addition has been under construction since last summer shortly after a new law went into effect requiring incinerators to handle their ash in enclosed facilities.

Metal must be removed from the incinerator ash before the ash is taken to a special landfill. Previously that procedure was done outside by dragging a magnet over the pile of wet

The law was passed because officials were afraid that as the ash dried, it would blow around, releasing tiny particles into the air.

The de-metalizing procedure is now done inside the new building and Whedon said it seems to be working better than the old method.

"It's a little too early to tell," but we think we're getting more metal out of the ash, Whedon said.

The metal is taken to a local scrap metal processor and is used in making new steel.

Whedon said the volume of incoming refuse is about 10 to 15 percent less than last year. How much of that decrease is due to recycling or composting or even the sluggish economy is anyone's guess, Whedon said.

He explained that when the economy is slow, the amount of refuse going through the incinerator is reduced appreciably.

But just what is the procedure that takes garbage from the curb and makes it into ash? It works like this:

At the plant entrance which is near 14 Mile and Quinn roads in Clinton Township - each garbage truck is weighed on a 100-ton scale, with the weight, date and origin electronically recorded on a

The trash is then unloaded into storage pits. The pits have an 1,800-ton — approximately three days - capacity. The refuse is taken from the pits by overhead cranes and put into one of two continuous feed hoppers which dumps the rubbish into the incinerator. Back-andforth action of hydraulic furnace grates carries the refuse slowly through the combustion chamber. Burning is controlled by automatic draft regulators no fuel is used.

The ash, which is about 10 percent of the original refuse volume, drops into a waterfilled channel and is removed continuously by a conveyor which takes the ash to the new facility which removes the metal. Metal amounts to about 50 percent of the ash volume. The ash is then taken to a monofill - a specially designed and lined landfill which only accepts municipal ash.

The smoke particles are electrically charged which attracts them to vertical plates. The particles are then mixed with the ash before disposal in the Final touches were being put on the new asn management facility at the Grosse Pointes-Clinton Refuse Disposal Authority's incinerator. The $2.3-million addition was built to comply with a new state law which mandated that all ash be handled in an enclosed facility.

She said internal combustion engines leak fuel, which then ends up in the lake - not to mention the exhaust fumes that add to the greenhouse gases.

might want to consider to protect the lakes is to avoid use of pesticides and other chemicals on their lawns. Not only can these toxins harm wildlife and pets, they can runoff into the storm sewers and, in cases where there are separate sanitary and storm sewers, the hazardous chemicals flow directly into the lake.

In cities where the storm and sanitary systems are combined, a much more serious and frequent problem occurs: During heavy rains, raw sewage overflows directly into the lake via discharge pipes.

Pointers can help prevent this by pressuring their city officials to upgrade their sewer systems to prevent these "combined sewage overflows.'

BirthCare at Bon Secours.

It's a child's game, but it's also good advice.

Bon Secours was the first hospital in the Detroit area to offer single-room maternity care. This alternative to traditional childbirth allows the mother-to-be to stay in the same warm, comfortable room throughout her delivery. We call it BirthCare, and when we first introduced it, other hospitals were still wheeling their laboring mothers from one room to another.

We thought it was a good idea to design a delivery around the mother, not a delivery around the hospital. That's why BirthCare has become so popular. And that's why a lot of women have chosen Bon Secours as their hospital. Maybe you should, too.

For more information about BirthCare, a tour of the unit, or referrals to qualified obstetricians who can answer questions about your pregnancy, call 779-7911.

Nobody does it better. Nobody's done it longer.

Bon Secours Family Practice Center receives $150,000 grant

Center in St. Clair Shores was recently awarded a three-year, $150,000 educational training grant from the United States Public Health Service to benefit its Family Practice Center and increase service to patients.

As the first grant received in Bon Secours' 46-year history, it will be used to develop and implement a three-year pilot program utilizing a full-time psychologist and a part-time medical educator to teach practical methods regarding how the doctor should relate to the patient. The Bon Secours Foundation will administer the grant, which will be funded from July 1, 1991, through June 30, 1994.

At 10:18 a.m., police responded to a report that a man carrying a long gun was running down Barrington. When the man saw a Park police car approaching, he threw down the shotgun, and when a second police car pulled up from behind, he surrendered.

While officers were making the arrest, a report was broadcast of a burglary having just occurred in the 300 block of Alter Road in Detroit. Park officers discovered the man they had just arrested had jewelry in his pockets. The jewelry turned out to have been taken from the home on Alter that was burglarized.

According to Park police, the suspect had given them a false name, but his real name was learned through fingerprint indentification. The man was wanted on a warrant for escape from prison and has an extensive criminal history, according to police.

Richard J. Caretti, Park public safety director, commended his officers on a job well done.

A series of classes on sailing, conducted by Dr. Edward Mapes for the Department of Community Education, has been scheduled for six Wednesdays beginning April 24.

The series continues on May 1 with "Boat Handling Under Sail" on May 8 with "Maneuvering Under Power" and on May 15 with "Coastal Cruising and Piloting."

The last two topics to be covered are "Storm Sailing and Safety" on May 22 and "Weather" on May 29.

The fee for each class is $7. For more information, call 343-2178.

Hyundai wants to expand in Michigan, looks for dealers

Runner-up Al Lombardini of Grosse Pointe Woods didn't make it to the Hyundai/Spin Magazine New Music Series contest luncheon at Wayne State University last week, but Detroiter Aretha Johnson was Lombardini and the other three local finalists in the contest won prize packages with gift certificates, designer jeans and special sunglasses. Johnson, who dropped her winning entry in a container on the WSU campus several months ago, drove home in her new blue and silver Hyundai Scoupe sport coupe.

Or rather she was driven home by her companion. The student and WSU employee doesn't have a driver's license yet. That, and learning to drive her new five-speed Korean-built car, are on her list of things to do, she says.

Hyundai took the U.S. mar-when it introduced its Excel coupe and sedan. The subcompact could be purchased then for just under $5,000. Dealers initially were located in selected states in the West, Southwest and Southeast, import-active markets where Hyundai figured it needed to establish a strong foothold.

With some 400 franchised dealers in the United States today, Hyundai Motor America wants to increase its presence

David Howe, Hyundai's central region district sales manager, says he's currently talking with dealer candidates in Flint, Saginaw-Midland and Traverse City. "We hope to have dealers in all three areas sometime this summer," Howe says.

Two Hyundai dealers serve the Detroit market.

What does the automaker look for in judging dealer applicants? "Good reputation, someone who takes care of customers, a dealer who is active in merchandising and promoting product," Howe says.

With the exception of some high-line makes, imports are being sold in conservative, domestics-oriented markets like Flint and Saginaw, he says. Hyundai wants to be there, too.

The U.S. company has had a captive finance subsidiary, Hyundai Motor Finance, in operation for a couple of years, says Bruce Goren, media manager for Hyundai Motor America. Educated Choice is its program for college and nursing school graduates. Anyone who is about to graduate or has graduated within a year of application, and can provide a letter from a prospective or actual employer, can apply for this special-interest-rate financing.

"Loan periods are for three. four or five years," Goren says. "It's really an excellent way for a young person to begin to establish credit."

Goren says Hyundai recently announced a program for military personnel that includes a $300 rebate in addition to any other incentive programs already in place.

This summer the company will introduce a fourth nameplate to its U.S. lineup. Joining the Excel, Sonata and Scoupe is the 1992 Elantra, a high-line subcompact sedan that will go up against competitors like the Honda Civic and Toyota Corolla. U.S.-designed, engineered and built Honda Accord station wagons are now being sold in Japan. Honda North America Inc. says the wagon, built with right-hand drive, was introduced for sale there April 14. It will be sold by Honda's Clio dealer network, along with Accord Coupes also assembled in Marysville, Ohio.

Late last month, Honda introduced the new Acura Vigor, marking the fifth anniversary in the United States of the upscale division. The Vigor, a "personal performance sports sedan," is a four-door sedan powered by an all-new 2.5-liter aluminum five-cylinder engine.

Vigor, positioned between Acura's sporty Integra and larger, more luxurious Legend, offers standard antilock braking system, driver's side air bag and leather and wood interior trim. The car goes on sale in April.

In a University of Michigan release (dated April 1), a law professor suggests some of the advanced driving systems said to be just around the corner different kinds of autopilot programs, for example - present liability and insurance challenges that may slow their entry into the U.S. auto market. Japan and some European markets may have them before North America.

Intelligent vehicle-highway systems (IVHS) that reduce an individual driver's control — like automatic steering and braking - could lead to a disaster involving a large number of cars and cause the IVHS manufacturers to be held liable for damages.

Some experts predict that because Japanese and European product liability law is less sympathetic to design-defect claims and monetary damages paid for personal injuries are so much smaller, insurance premiums will be cheaper there, and marketing of the technology is more likely.

Full immunity, such as that granted by Congress to nuclear powerplant contractors and satellite owners, is unlikely for IVHS developers in the United States, the professor forecasts.

"People have been suing over auto accidents for a hundred years and there's a bunch of lawyers out there who make their living from auto accidents," the professor said. "The likelihood that any legislature is going to enact that kind of immunity is remote."

Workers from the Leto Building Co. install a new roof on the transformer building at Pier Park in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Pier Park building transformed

The transformer building at Pier Park, located on Lakeshore in Grosse Pointe Farms, is getting a new look as part of a park improvement program that began last year.

Used as a gatehouse until the mid-1980s, when a new gatehouse was built to the west, the building houses transformers that help supply electricity to the park.

Improvements include the installation of a cedar shake roof, encasing existing support pillars in wood, and refacing the building's brick walls with panel brick that matches the front of the gatehouse.

The city council awarded the construction contract on April 8 to the Leto Building Co., which had the lowest bid ($24,195). Construction began April 9 and should be completed within two weeks, said Richard Solak, city clerk.

When construction is completed, four antique-looking lampposts, like the ones that line Lakeshore in Grosse Pointe purpose: to promote international at 882-0964.

Shores, will be installed in front of the transformer building, Solak said.

The lampposts, which should be in place by mid-May, will "cap off" a park entrance facelift that began last year, Solak

The project is funded by a $500,000 building authority bond issue that voters approved last spring, Solak said.

Last year, the park's parking lot was repaved; a grassy island was installed in the parking lot between the transformer building and the gatehouse, creating a driveway to better direct traffic; and the area surrounding the parking lot was landscaped, Solak said.

Host a French student

Julia Allen, a Grosse Pointe resident, is interviewing families to host a student from France for one month this summer. The youths are visiting under the sponsorship of Loisirs Culturels a L'etranger (LEC).

LEC was founded in 1972, and has since sent more than 40,000 students to homes in Germany, Spain, the British Isles and the United States.

That number will continue to rise as more states and cities are accepted into the program and are made aware of LEC's tional understanding and friendship through family

The program is coordinated from France, where the students are carefully screened before being accepted. The students are both male and female, and range in age from 13 to 19.

The host family provides room and board, friendship and understanding.

Why some refuse to pay water bills on time

Assistant Editor

Some people refuse to pay their water bills - at least not

Grosse Pointe City recently added some 70 properties to the delinquent tax rolls for failure to pay water bills. The total amount of unpaid water bills was $18,941.77.

The largest unpaid bill during 1990 was by a business in the amount of $1,354.91. The same business also had other properties in the city with unpaid water bills.

The delinquent water bills are added each year to the city tax rolls and a 10 percent fee is added. Therefore, it really doesn't cost the city anything for carrying delinquent water customers, said Dennis Foran, City treasurer/assessor.

The City will collect late fees totaling $1,894.55, which is 10 percent of the all the delinquent bills added to the tax

But why do so many water bills go unpaid?

Foran said that there probably are some people in financial difficulty who cannot pay their water bills.

But what about the businesses, lawyers, other professionals and other businessmen on the delinquent list who don't pay their bills?

Foran speculated that some may not be paying their water bills for tax reasons.

When delinquent water bills are added to the tax bill, some property owners may be deducting not only their taxes, but also their water bills from their taxable income.

Purse snatched

A purse was snatched from a 26-year-old woman in the Park at 10:10 p.m. April 5.

The woman and a 28-year-old man were walking in the 15000 block of Charlevoix when a man came up from behind and grabbed the purse. The woman's companion chased the purse snatcher but lost him Attorne at Alter Road

For example, if a property owner is in the 30 percent federal income tax bracket and he deducts his water bill and late fee in order to reduce his taxable income, he is saving 20 percent. That is, he pays a 10 percent penalty on the unpaid water bill, but he is getting out of paying 30 percent income tax on the money. While putting off paying the water bill may sound like a good tax write-off, there is one problem with it - it's illegal. Delinquent water bills and their penalties are not taxes and are not deductible as city taxes are, Foran said.

The Internal Revenue Service probably would not take kindly to this means of watering down your taxable income.

Retirement milestone can lead down many paths

Promises of spring are made and broken in April's uncertain mood. However, we are sustained by the hope of cheerier days ahead.

Unlike the do-little, stay-athome days of winter, the arrival of spring and summer brings such joyous events as graduations, weddings and perhaps a new grandchild.

In addition to these happy times, there will also be those who are looking forward to a milestone in their personal liferetirement.

They will be leaving the work force and with it a way of life they have know most of their adult years. Their days have been structured around their work. It has been a source of their livelihood and a place where they have made many friends. They have enjoyed the camaraderie and common interests that develop among those who spend long hours together

But they will be relieved to leave behind the time clocks and pressures. Their lives are now their own. They can relax and enjoy their families and friends. They will have time to play golf or cards or spend hours pursuing a hobby. They can live wherever they choose, whether it be in Florida, where it never really gets cold, or in a more invigorating part of the country where the seasons change with the prevailing winds.

There will be some considerations to ponder. Some retirees do not want to move away from their children, their grandchildren or their friends, but there will be those for whom this won't be a problem because their families have already relocated to take better jobs.

Then there are those who can't wait to move to a smaller community to escape the problems of big city living. But there are others who want to stay because they enjoy the momentum and excitement of urban life.

There are no common answers but if the decision has not already been made, the uneventful days and nights of April provide time to think ahead and plan for that day when the options are yours.

City-oriented people will want to remain close to the good things that only happen in a large metropolitan area. They enjoy attending the exhibits at the Detroit Institute of Arts, theater at the Fisher dance recitals at Music Hall, the symphony at Orchestra Hall and musical events at the Masonic Temple and the restored Fox Theater.

They go to Joe Louis Arena to see major sporting events and live concerts and out to the stadium to cheer the Tigers. They like to try the cuisine in elegant restaurants and sample the fare in ethnic spots. They think it's pretty neat that we can go international by merely crossing over to Windsor. Once there, they take pride at looking across the river at Detroit's skyline. They are truly city people at heart. They treasure the city for what it offers and have faith that in time it will

Another option open to retirees who enjoy the cultural advantages of the big city but would rather live away from its environs, is retiring to a college resolve its problems.

Many of the college activities are open to the public. They include plays, concerts, ballets, chamber music, and other performances by visiting artists, touring companies or their own faculty and students. Many colleges schedule programs and classic films and prod the local movie house to show quality films to compete with them.

If you like the water — and most people who have lived around the Great Lakes do there are 11,000 inland lakes and hundreds of miles of Great Lakes shoreline to explore There are 67 harbors of refuge around the state offering launching and anchorage for pleasure boaters. There are another 1,000 public boat launching sites for pleasure fleets.

But Michigan has more to offer than the lakes and beaches. There are woods to hunt in and slopes in winter to ski, and wide, expansive fields for snowmobiling.

To really appreciate the diversity the state has to offer, it should be traveled at different seasons and particularly in the fall when the trees burst forth in glorious colors.

Whether you stay in Michigan or decide to settle in Florida or any other retirement area, the sights you see as you travel about the state will remain in your memory. As you wake up to each predictable day, perhaps you will think of the first, soft snowflakes drifting over the city streets. You will miss the freshness of the spring breezes, the blazing, brazen display of fall colors and even the solitude and time for reflection that long, dark winter nights afford.

Eleanor Ford's Town Car on

The distinctive custom Lincoln Town Car that was Mrs. Edsel Ford's principal means of transportation for nearly 20 years has been restored to its original condition and is now on display in the Ford house gate lodge

From the early 1950s through 1973, her car was easily recognized as she traveled the streets of Grosse Pointe and Detroit. Designed to her specifications, the Town Car combined a nostalgic blend of some of her husband's innovative designs of the late 1930s with an elegant Town Car from the '20s and the technology of the '50s. When it was retired to storage in the stone garage on her estate, the car had logged more than 92,000

The design was a combined effort of Eleanor Ford, William Schmidt, then manager of Lincoln-Mercury styling, and designers Don De-LaRosa and John Reinhart. Construction of the car's body was contracted to Raymond H. Dietrich of Grand Rapids, noted automotive body designer.

Eleanor Ford knew exactly what she wanted in a car. She directed the designers to make it plain, black and devoid of excess chrome, with a roof high enough to allow easy entry and exit. She chose a special 1950 hood ornament to complete the design.

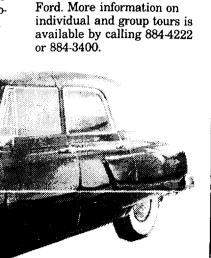

The completed car had a V-8 overhead valve engine, and weighed 5,590 pounds. There were power windows all around and an air conditioning system served by air intake between trunk and roof, one of the first such units fitted to a Lincoln.

In 1979, the Town Car became part of an exhibition in Dearborn's Henry Ford Museum Hall of Technology. Now, a little more than 10 years later, it has been returned to the gate lodge garage of the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House.

Guests who visit the Ford house will now be able to view the 1952 Town Car as part of the house and grounds tour at no extra cost. The gate lodge garage, where the car will be on display, used a revolving turntable in earlier years to eliminate the need to back out.

The house was left by Eleanor Clay Ford upon her death in 1976 to be used for the benefit of the public. Located at 1100 Lakeshore in Grosse Pointe Shores, it is open to the public for regudisplay lar tours every Wednesday through Sunday, from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., beginning on the hour, with the last tour beginning at 4 p.m.

Tour fees are $4 for adults, $3 for senior citizens, and $2 for children under 13. Prior to the one-hour house tour, all tour guests may view a 15-minute orientation video featuring the life and times of Edsel and Eleanor Ford. More information on

The one-of-a-kind 1952 Lincoln Town Car, owned by Eleanor Clay Ford from 1952 to 1970. is now on display in the gate lodge garage at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House, 1100 Lakeshore. A visit to the garage is included with a guided tour of the house.

Bess Bonnier to perform

Two evenings of jazz and standards will be offered on Friday, May 3, and Saturday, May 4, at the Community Performing Arts Center at Grosse Pointe North with pianist Bess Bonnier heading the bill.

The show begins at 8 p.m. with Chris Felcyn of WDET's "Listening Room" as master of ceremonies.

Bonnier, 1990 winner of "Michigan Artist of the Year and featured artist for 10 years at the Montreux-Detroit Jazz Festival, will perform standards as well as her original work, accompanied by Don Mayberry on bass. Jazz pianist Earl Van Riper will join Bonnier in some two-piano jazz.

Vocal music will be performed by Noteworthy, the Grunyons, Grosse Pointe North's Pointe Chorale and the Men's and Women's Ensembles.

Tickets are $8 reserved or $5 general admission and may be ordered in advance by mail until April 30. Send name, phone number, date preferred and number of seats needed along with a check made out to Grosse Pointe North to: Concert Tickets, 1680 Hollywood, Grosse Pointe Woods, 48236. ### Holocaust lecture to be repeated

"Remembering the Holocaust A Translator's Tale" with Terese Edelstein will be presented at the Park Branch Library on Wednesday, May 1, at 7 p.m.

Edelstein, a resident of Grosse Pointe Park, will read excerpts from two Dutch language books she has translated into English. The books are about Jewish children's experiences in Nazi-occupied Holland. She will also speak about how she translated the books and got them published in the United States.

The books, "Star Children" by Clara Asscher-Pinkhof and 'Hide and Seek" by Ida Vos, autographed by translator Edelstein, may be purchased after the lecture, or by calling 343-2077. Proceeds from the sale of books will go to the Friends of the Grosse Pointe Public Li-

Residents to sing at NAACP dinner

Two Grosse Pointe residents will be part of the 1,000 voice multi-cultural choir that will perform at the NAACP Fight for Freedom Fund Dinner Sunday, April 28, at 5 p.m. at Cobo

Sung Jae Hong and Patricia Lay Dorsey are part of the choir that represents more than 53 metropolitan Detroit and Windsor communities.

The theme this year is "Detroit: Diversity and Greatness Through Culture and Music." The choir will sing "The Star Spangled Banner," "Lift Every Voice and Sing" and "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

The annual dinner, the largest of its kind in the country, will feature as its keynote speaker, Douglas Wilder, governor of Virginia and special guest, and award-winning singer and Grosse Pointe resident Anita Baker.

George speaks

After George Washington, the Father of our Country, visited St. Clare of Montefalco in Grosse Pointe Park, students knew that he signed the Declaration of Independence, led the troops against the British and once in awhile told a white lie, but he never chopped down a cherry tree. Ron Samuels, character actor working for Mobil Education Inc., visited the school as one of many enrichment programs the St. Clare PTO has sponsored. The programs, which have included a visit from Abe Lincoln and a another to come from Huck Finn, are intended to give young people a better understanding of history and heritage.

Student authors

Central Library was the place for a special Meet the Author Night held March 27. Students from the fourth grade at Richard Elementary School shared with the public books they had written, edited and published.

Under the direction of Carol Bartos and student teacher Sandy Mehl, students researched facts about Michigan history and geography which they then included in an original fictional story. Each child was responsible for entering and editing their own story on  $\alpha$ computer disk. They also designed a cover and created at least one illustration. Kathy Wilson, Richard media specialist, helped in the research and production of the finished product.

Helping out

Students from Mason Elementary School collected stuffed animals and books and donated them to the Barnard School on the grounds of the Children's Home of Detroit. The students wanted to do something for someone for Easter and the idea came from a social studies unit about caring for others. The students, in no particular order, are Samer Alnajjar, Tommy Bay, Joseph Dettloff, Kelly Dunn, Aron Ellis, Bridget Finn, Julia Kerwin, John Lucido, Matt Morawski, Katle Myers, Renee Rancour, Lindsey Ross, Paul Sturgill, Robin Tocco, Nathan Weatherup, Zak Wilton and Omar Yousseff-Agha.

Silverston third in state DAR contest

University Liggett School seventh-grader Jennifer Silverston has been awarded third place in Michigan in an American history essay contest sponsored by the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Silverston, the daughter of Alan and Maria Silverston of Grosse Pointe, was recognized for her writing efforts on the topic "What the Bill of Rights Means to Me." She was honored at a recent DAR luncheon.

All ULS seventh-graders wrote 700-word essays for the contest and received certificates of appreciation from the Louisa St. Clair Chapter of the DAR. Andrea Weyhing of Grosse Pointe was chapter chairperson of the contest.

Schools get credit

All 14 Grosse Pointe Public Schools have been accredited by the North Central Association of Schools and Colleges (NCA), Superintendent Edward Shine announced recently.

Grosse Pointe is one of only 16 Michigan school districts which have all their schools accredited by the NCA.

Standards for NCA accreditation have been developed by school practitioners, state departments of education and university professors in an effort to improve education by focusing on individual schools, not school districts or programs. Evaluation of a school's purpose, curriculum, instruction, assessment, staffing, organization, environment and support resources are part of the accreditation process.

Schools that have been acc credited by the NCA continue to be evaluated periodically. "We believe the NCA process and participation will help us in our efforts to continually improve our schools," Shing said. "We also support comparing our schools to others throughout Michigan and the Midwest, using NCA standards as one measuring stick of qual-

Originally only high schools were eligible for accreditation In 1968, middle schools became eligible for accreditation, and in 1974, elementary schools. There are currently 93 element tary schools, 39 middle schools and 377 high schools accredited by the NCA in Michigan.

Our Pre-Kindergarten is Professional

We have built the pre-kindergarten curriculum at University Liggett School on the insights of a full range of educational psychologists and researchers. We are not bound by the theory of just one philosophy. Two professional teachers with degrees and experience in early childhood education are in each classroom, to maximize the learning opportunities for young children. Specialists instruct our children in dance and music. Our curriculum is based on sound principles of early childhood development. Call 884-4444 and talk to a professional, Centie Strong, Head of Pre-Kindergarten.

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor
E.J. Hickey Co. clothiers in the Village has been "adopted" by another landmark Grosse Pointe store, Walton-Pierce.

On April 18, Bill and Mary Jo Huntington of Grosse Pointe took over ownership and management of Hickey's after purchasing the 90-year-old business from the founder's greatgrandchildren.

'We're very proud of the fact that the Hickey family was agreeable to our offer," Huntington said.

The Hickey family is very pleased the Huntington family is carrying on their tradition. Mrs. Huntington said. "We will maintain and carry on Hickey's just as the Hickey family has done for so many years.'

Brian Hickey, great-granson of founder Edward J. Hickey, said, "We are as pleased as we possibly can be with the evolution of this transaction. We perceive them to be the natural buyers of this business.

He said it is regrettable that there wasn't a local Hickey family member who could have continued to run the business. But the Huntingtons' tradition of quality and service at Walton-Pierce is what "we of the Hickey family are confortable with," he said.

Mrs. Huntington said the "adoption" of Hickey's came about as a stroke of luck and good timing.

She said two of their children are in college and the third is a year away from college. That meant the Huntingtons, after 22 years of marriage, were to become empty-nesters.

Because they were still young enough to take advantage of an opportunity, the Huntingtons announced to their employees that they were "adopting a brother for Walton-Pierce," a women's clothing store. The adopted brother, of course, turned out to be Hickey's, which caters primarily to men and boys.

Walton Pierce and Hickey's make a good mix for the Huntingtons, who can now offer quality wear for men and women, boys and girls.

The book has special recipes for spring, summer, fall and winter. Following each seasonal chapter, Schmidt offers menu suggestions. There is a section for holiday cooking and complete instructions for basics such as preparing artichokes, grilling eggplant and blanching

Business school plans awards dinner

The Alumni Association of the Wayne State University School of Business Administration will hold its 11th annual Recognition and Awards Dinner Dance Friday, April 26, at the International Banquet and Conference Center, 400 Monroe Ave., Detroit.

The event will honor David Stulberg, senior vice president of investments for Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, as this year's distinguished alumnus. Outstanding students and faculty also will be honored.

Mildred Jeffrey, president of the board of trustees for the Michigan Women's Foundation and WSU governor emerita, will be the guest speaker.

For more information, call 577-4503.

Though the two stores serve work for Hudson, and later he different specialty markets, too started his own store. The founder's eldest son, Joseph L., who was named after Hudson, took over the business from his father. J.L. then turned the business over to his son, Edward, after World War II. Edward Hickey, Brian's father, died two years ago, leaving the business to the founders' great-grandchildren.

Hickey said it is because Walton-Pierce has three-generation stability in the clothing business and a long history in Grosse Pointe that the Hickey family felt comfortable leaving its namesake to the Huntington family.

He said Walton-Pierce, like Hickey's, has the hallmarks of "quality, quality, quality and service, service, service," and the family felt confident with Walton-Pierce's stewardship.

Mrs. Huntington said her husband, like many men who grew up in the Pointes, probably got his first size 2 toddler

See HICKEY'S, page 23A

Bill and Mary Jo Huntington, owners of Walton-Pierce in the Village, will carry on a 90-year tradition with the "adoption" of E.J. Hickey Co. men's clothiers, also in the Village. They're here . . . Those little demons known to medicine as "allergens" are here to take control of your body. They'll make your nose run, your eyes itchy, they may even surprise you with hives all over your face.

But one way or another, they're going to get you.

Caused by pollens or molds, animal dander or house dust, allergies are nothing more than an abnormal reaction to ordinary, garden-variety substances.

While researchers still don't know why allergies affect some and not others, the diagnostic techniques and treatments now available are better than ever.

If you'd like more information on the things you can do to make allergy season easier or a referral to a specialist in this field, call our toll-free number.

ton holding a red, zip-up Hickey's garment bag. The paths of Huntington and Ed Hickey - the founder's grandson, Brian Hickey's father - crossed repeatedly throughout their social and business lives, although Ed Hickey was older.

Huntington worked for Ed Hickey part-time when he graduated from college. Huntington succeeded him as president of the Village Association, and both men were Rotarians and members of St. Paul's parish.

"They both had a lot of community involvement together," Mrs. Huntington said.

Huntington has 17 years in the clothing business with Walton-Pierce. His wife has worked with him for five years. She will manage Walton-Pierce. while he will be down the street at Hickey's - at least some of the time.

Huntington said he and his wife will be back and forth between the stores, and neither will work exclusively at Hickey's nor Walton-Pierce.

The Huntingtons agreed that they will continue to operate Hickey's in the tradition that Pointers have come to know and expect.

"I just don't think we would take something that has been operated so well for so many years and go at right angles," Huntington said.

Hickey's will continue to offer the best traditional-conserwear for the Grosse Pointe customer. Manufacturers include Hickey-Freeman, Southwick and Oxxford.

Ninety percent of Hickey's business caters to men - from head to toe. There is also a small section for women, boys and girls.

The Huntingtons believe they can carry on the Hickey tradition because they are part of the community.

"We have a real feeling of what they want because we live here," Mrs. Huntington said. "We know what Grosse Pointers do and what they do in their free time. What someone else might wear, Grosse Pointers might not feel comfortable with.'

"Being involved in the community is paramount to understanding what people want and what their needs are," Huntington said. "Their wants and needs are communicated to us directly; we communicate those needs to suppliers, who are more than willing to service

He said that keeping Hickey's in the Village and owned and operated by a local family is good for Grosse Pointe in maintaining a balance between independent, locally owned stores and national chains.

"It's an opportunity for the Village as well," he said. "A blend of nationals and community is very important. There's an opportunity to provide both to the community.'

Peach queen applicants sought

The 1991 Michigan Peach Festival Committee in Romeo is now accepting applications for entries in the annual Peach Queen Pageant.

The pageant will take place in late June and be held in the Romeo High School Auditorium. The selected queen and her court will reign over the Labor Day festivities.

The queen and her court will represent the Michigan Peach Festival, one of Michigan's oldest festivals, at several parades and activities in the state.

Applicants are required to be between 18 and 24, single, a high school graduate, and a resident of the state of Michigan. Each contestant will be required to have a sponsor to enter our pageant.

Interested young women may obtain further information by calling Dee Sadowski, 939-4500, daytime, or Patti Dies, 752-9640, evening.

Deadline for applications is volved some teaching, some counseling of students and scheduling of teachers and testing. It was an interesting job because it was so varied."

She stayed in that post until she retired.

Her retirement, though, is anything but.

"I didn't retire to sit down," she said. "And I knew I'd go nutty if I didn't do something so I joined everything in sight."

She joined the League of Women Voters, the American Association of University Women and was one of the early members of Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling.

"I didn't know beans about anything; I knew nothing about legislative issues that the groups were interested in - all I knew is that I didn't want to be bored to death," she said. The first thing she did was volunteer to work on the LWV's prison study.

"And like most volunteer organizations, you volunteer one year and you're the president the next year," she said. She is running, unopposed, for her second term as president.

McDonald liked the goals of the AAUW and the LWV, both of which are concerned with educating the voters and getting citizens involved in the governmental process.

She learned how to read proposed bills and determine their legislative impact, and she even learned to love it.

"I'm about as opinionated as people come," she said. "I've always had my own opinions about everything. The only difference now is that they're informed opinions. And I don't mind talking about them, either.

And she works toward getting others active in politics.

'More people should become involved," she said. "The democratic process does work, but it's made up of a lot of people. One little post card (sent to your representative) isn't going to make a difference, but there are always other people with the same ideas who write. It's interesting to become a part of the process.

"I'm not involved in any of these things for the money there is none - I do these things because they interest me and I enjoy them, and I have the privilege of not being bored to death.

When she's not studying legislative issues, she can be found as she puts it — "on a boat with a rod in one hand, a beer in the other and a cigarette dangling from my mouth.'

Kay McDonald enjoys her work as president of the League of Women Voters.

She learned to fish because her husband did. His family owns a lodge on Georgian Bay and she found being out on the water was a good way to get away from things.

"It's peaceful, it's fun, it's good eating and it got me away from the kids for a little bit, she said. "No, really, it's nice to be on the water and fishing's an excuse."

Yes, she does clean and cook her own catch, and she has a special way of filleting the fish which leaves the meat in two nice pieces and the rest in one

"It's real easy, all you need is someone to show you how," she said. "And a very sharp

Her four children are scattered across the country: "They all march to their own drums, too." She has four grandchildren.

She doesn't plan on changing the course of her life much and when she looks back, its without regrets.

"I've enjoyed my life - except for the bad things - but they happen to anybody," she said. "And when I go I want to go with a beer and a cigarette.'

Ecumenical peace activist works to foster understanding, tolerance among Christians, Jews, Arabs

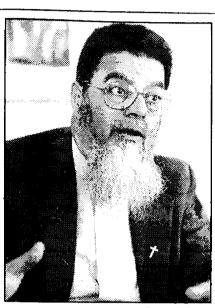

By Margie Reins Smith

Chacour has a unique view of the Middle East. He lives in Israel; he's a Palestinian; and a Christian.

He's a priest in the Melkite Catholic Church, which is a branch of the Eastern Byzantine Church in communion with Rome.

Chacour will be in Detroit for a month, serving as the ecumenical minister for Grosse Pointe Memorial Church. Asked what he'd like to accomplish while he's in Grosse Pointe, he said, "I want to rebuild the confidence and trust between Palestinian Arab Christians — and Grosse Pointers. So much has been shattered."

Rev. Elias Chacour Ecumenical peace activist

Chacour said he's not here to speak about the problems between President Bush and Saddam Hus-

"I'm here to speak about my compatriot Jesus Christ." But he has found it is difficult to steer discussion away from the recent Persian Gulf war.

"War can never be right," he

"You can't be right when you kill over 200,000 people in one month and completely destabilize a country. Diplomacy and negotiation would have been the answer. Instead, there were only ultimatums and dictates.

The result was misery and destruction of a big country. The result was suffering for the Kurds and Shiites — who were never America's allies — but were called to rebel against Iraq.

"It was a war of presidents. "I don't know who's to blame for the Middle East situation." But he offered several possibilities:

• The American policy of double standards - different rules for different Middle Eastern countries.

• President Bush, for calling on the Kurds and others to rebel against Hussein; then abandoning

• Iran, which is eager to see all hope for a pluralistic society destroyed so that only the Muslims dominate.

'War can never be right.

• Turkey, which has Kurds too, but did not join in the rebellion against Iraq.

• "Hidden foreign fingers" who are interested in dividing the Arabs. Chacour refused to name the hidden sources of trouble.

"Bombs aren't compassionate," he said. "They don't resolve problems. The Americans won the battle. They didn't win the war. They won the hatred of millions of Arab Muslims."

Chacour said he was distressed to witness Americans praying for victory and for the safety of American soldiers. At a national prayer breakfast in Washington, he said, people applauded President Bush as he prayed for God to be with American soldiers.

"My hands were paralyzed," Chacour said. "This is a pagan at-

'As Christians, we should not pray that God be behind us; but that we should stand behind God. God does not kill.

'Americans should have prayed for the American army and for the abused Iraqi army.'

Chacour is bothered because he feels Americans hear only what they choose to hear about the Middle East. "Every bit of news here was censored by the army," he said. "Who said that Americans should protect the Kuwaitis? Or were the Americans protecting Kuwaitis' petrol?"

Chacour believes that Bush went to war in August, not January. He pointed out that Iraq wanted to annex Kuwait, not kick the Kuwaitis out. In contrast, he said, the Jews in Israel want to deport Palestinians.

"I'm very angry because our hope of settlement with Iraq has been destroyed. Americans went to war for Israel," he said.

Chacour contends that Americans were supplied with mistaken information — propaganda, even.

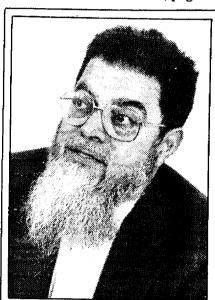

He condemns the invasion of Kuwait. But he also condemns the counter-invasion of Iraq.

"Sure, Saddam made a big mistake in invading Kuwait. But Saddam is not evil," Chacour said.

"Saddam is not Hitler. Bush played a master game in portraying Saddam as another Hitler. This was to get backing for the war. Americans did not learn from Vietnam and from Russia. The monster of Iraq turned out to be no monster at all, but just a man with some old Scud missiles.

"Ultimatums can only bring battles. America broke Arab dignity with orders. Our Arab dignity is much more important than America's need for petrol.'

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION Bridge by Woody Boyd 🛧 🕈 💠

One of Grosse Pointe's notable duplicate duos is Anne and Robert Diehl who have been playing together successfully the length of their long marriage. If the mythical chaplain of bridge will pardon my distortion, I believe it appropriate to recall for all, "Those who play together, stay together." For, you see, contrary to a twisted conception, most marriages play well in accompaniment with each other at or away from the table by practicing soft words and some loving kindness.

Some plays that insure a hand's success are easy to spot. Others are devilishly difficult because the peril in the early stages of the declarers execution is almost totally obscure. Such was the case in today's hand. I dare say that half of the world's great masters might miss this one as the pitfall was nearly invisible.

Before you read further, look at the fifty-two that follow and tell me after west's spade king lead would you bet on declarer or the defense? A switch at trick two to clubs and a spade back to east at trick three might beat the contract, but I know of no one that perceptive. It is quite natural for west to continue the spade queen as that smothers dummy's jack ten. Now, if west switches to a club at trick three that too might beat the contract.

I was kibitzing the Diehl's game a Friday or so ago and chose a seat to the right of south when this very fine hand came into play.

At trick 3, west continued the spade nine won by Anne's ace. This play by west suggested she had an entry in clubs or diamonds so the remaining spades could be run. Obviously Ane was aware of this possibility. If west had the club ace, nothing could be done, but if she held the diamond queen it was mandatory that the diamond queen should be finessed as that was the safe play for nine tricks ... It certainly seemed so! ... or was it? Anne again hesitated and then to my amazement played a small diamond to dummys ace, king dropping the queen doubleton which now gave her a spade, five hearts and five diamonds for an Eiffel Tower top. Few were in game and those there were going down.

N/S Vulnerable Bob KQ983 ♥ 874 ♦ 975 • 72 W. led S K

After it was all over, I naturally asked her why at trick 4 and 5 she played

I want the experts to take note of her extraordinary answer which motivated the winning line of play.

"Luckily I recognized just in time that if the diamond finesse lost and eat returned a heart, the hand would be blocked. I could either win five hearts or five diamonds, but not both and that would only add up to eight. That couldn't happen if I played ace, king and a third diamond. If west won the queen, I was down anyways, but fortunately as the cards were, I couldn't be best with my

Dear readers, I trust you appreciate that Anne's superb reasoning had nothing to do with luck. It was just a well thought out play that was based upon marvelous deduction. Believe me, many of the masters of bridge would have missed it.

Tracy Fieldhouse to be site of Academy's Action Auction

Action Auction 1991, this year's version of Grosse Pointe Academy's annual spectacular fundraiser, is set for Saturday, May 11, from 4:30 to 9 p.m. The preview auction on Wednesday, May 8, from 6 to 9 p.m., will be a scaled-down version of the main event with its own inventory of items to bid on. There will be silent and live auctions at both events, with the live auctions taking place in the new Tracy Fieldhouse which opened in November

The annual auction is expected to raise more than $500,000 for the Academy's educational, scholarship, restoration and renovation programs, and is recognized as the most successful event of its kind in the nation by Independent Schools Management. Since 1986, the benefit has raised more than $500,000 annually.

Honorary chairmen are Mr. and Mrs. William C. Rands III. General chairmen are Mr. and Mrs. John D. Mills and Dr. and Mrs. Patrick M. Verb. Auctioneers will be Lawrence and Ernest J. DuMouchelle.

Debutantes: The 16th annual debutante ball of the United Christian Lebanese Association will be held on Saturday, April 27, at the Ritz-Carlton in Dearborn.

Twenty young women of Lebanese descent will be presented, including Laura Wing, Heather Hage, Joelle Attala and Anne Boutrous from Grosse Pointe Woods; Anne Farrar of Grosse Pointe Shores; Elizabeth Thomas of Grosse Pointe Park; Donna Obeid of Grosse Pointe Farms; and Viviane Younan of Detroit, who is a senior at Our Lady Star of the Sea High School.

The Presentation Ball also serves as a fundraiser to provide money for scholarships for deserving students.

Other committee members include Grosse Pointers Josephine and Pete Saigh, Emily Michael, Theresa Selvaggio, Marcel Hage, Regina Aboohamad, Marlene Jabbour, Rosemary Matouk-Hage, Doris Simon, John Francis and Ann Baxter.

Tickets for the ball are $50 and may be obtained by calling 886-5179 or 773-5648.

Pro music: The Pro Mozart Society of Greater Detroit and the Austrian Cultural Institute of New York will cosponsor their 32nd annual concert at 3 p.m. on Sunday, May 5, at the Fries Auditorium at the Grosse Pointe War Memo-

The theme of the concert will be "Mozart and Prague." During his lifetime, Mozart was most acclaimed and appreciated in Prague. It was the locale for the premieres of two of his operas, "Don Giovanni" in 1787 and "La Clemenza di Tito" in 1791. This year marks the bicentennial of Mozart's death on Dec. 5, 1791.

The Hon. Dr. Vladimir Galuska, consul of the Republic of Czechoslovakia, will be the honored guest for the event.

Performers will include sopranos Earnestine Nimmons, Virginia Person and Margaret Rees of Grosse Pointe. Lawrence La Gore of Grosse Pointe is the music director of the Pro Mozart Society and will perform on the piano.

Some of the other performers are members of the Leningrad Symphony Orchestra, including Viraly Kozadayev, flute: Yury Khalitov, clarinet; Naum Shulman, bassoon; Irina Tikhonov, cello, Ilya Kozadayev and Marina Zarkhin, piano; and 7-year-old Simon Zarkhin, violin.

Tickets are $10 or $6 for students and seniors and may be purchased by phone at 884-5113 or at the door.

The Pastor's Corner

A way to work for peace

By Rev. Gordon Mikoski Grosse Pointe Memorial Church

The last time I wrote for this column, the war in the Persian Gulf had just begun. Much has happened since February.

One of the most significant things to emerge since the end of the war has been the intense effort to work toward lasting peace in the region through an international peace conference.

There is more willingness in this post-war situation on the part of the Israelis, the Arab world and the Western nations than in any time in recent memory. It remains to be seen whether or not the diplomatic tangles which currently prevent substantive negotiations can be sorted through to the point where Israelis and Arabs can talk to each other and make real progress in resolving their long-standing conflicts.

Along with you I will be watching the news — waiting for some sort of diplomatic breakthrough.

While progress is being made toward peace in the Middle East, we in Grosse Pointe and in the metropolitan Detroit area will soon have a wonderful opportunity to engage in our own peacemaking efforts.

On Sunday, May 5, from 2 to 5 p.m., Grosse Pointe Memorial Church will host an interfaith peacemaking conference. People from the Muslim, Jewish and Christian communities will come together on that afternoon to explore the resources these three religions bring to the task of peacemaking.

The afternoon will begin with presentations by Rabbi Ernst Conrad, rabbi emeritus at Temple Kol Ami in West Bloomfield; Father Elias Chacour, Memorial Church's 1991 ecumenical minister from Galilee; and Imam Mohamed Mardini, director of the Moslem Bekaa Center in Dearborn.

After the presentations, participants will have an opportunity to discuss the issues raised. The event will conclude with a panel discussion, moderated by the Rev. Oscar Ice, among the three speakers, who will respond to questions posed by conference participants.

While we in Grosse Pointe may not be able to do much to influence the course of events in the Middle East, we may well be able to shape the future of metropolitan Detroit.

I invite you to come to this event. There is no charge and everyone is welcome.

Participation in the upcoming interfaith peacemaking conference at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church is one way you can be involved in working toward a world that is just and peaceful. To be sure, there are many ways to work for peace. In whatever way we can while we can — let us work together for peace.

Peace

Chacour said the average Grosse Pointer can help achieve peace in the Middle East by saying what he or she believes: speaking the truth; converting one person.

"Ŷou know about Palestinians, but you don't know what we are," he said. "We're just like you. It's so simple.

'We love our children. We like our homes. We like our dignity. We like education for our children; sports; respect We don't want our children to be worried. We want them to play and enjoy life. We don't like to put our old people away in institutional homes.

"We were not born to fight against our Jewish brothers and sisters. We're not born to be refugees."

What can people in Grosse

Pointe do? "If they have so far been pro Zionist, pro Jew, they can continue to give unconditional friendship to Jews and Zionists, but they can stop using that as an obligation to be anti-Palestinian," he said. "They can build friendships with the unknown side — Palestinian-Christian brothers and sisters who want to stay in their own

"If (Grosse Pointers) go to Israel, they should not go only to visit antiquities. There are some living stones who expect you to manifest some Christian solidarity.'

"I hope that peace will come to the Middle East. This war has destroyed chances for peace. It has created a new pattern that is now being crystallized. Now it's not the Allies against Iraq - but the West against Islam.

The shooting has stopped, but the killing is continuing.

The purpose of the ecumencial minister program at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church is to broaden the perspectives of community and church members by inviting clergy from other faiths and other countries to share their views and spend time in Grosse Pointe.

Chacour will speak at an ecumenical peacemaking event on Sunday, May 5, from 2 to 5 p.m. at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore.

He will be present at a com- from a Palestinian Perspecmunity educational event at Grosse Pointe South High School's auditorium on Thursday, May 9, at 7:30 p.m.

He will speak at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesdays, April 30 and May 7, at the church. His subject will be "The Sermon on the Mount

Chacour will also preach at the 9 a.m. and 11 a.m. services at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church on Sunday, May 12, and he will teach adult education classes at the church on Sunday, May 5, and Sunday, May 12, at 10 a.m.

The public is invited to all events. All are free except for the community educational event on May 9 at Grosse Pointe South, which will cost

MOT founder and general director David DiChiera commented, "This production is the finale of three consecutive years of Mozart opera programming by Michigan Opera Theatre in anticipation of the Moz-art bicentennial, beginning with 'The Marriage of Figaro' in 1989 and followed by a new production of 'Don Giovanni' in 1990. I am deeply grateful to Ford Motor Co. for its continued generous financial support of the company through its sponsorships of 'Don Giovanni,' 'The Magic Flute' and this year's elegant Opera Ball." Mozart's "The Magic Flute" is the second production of Michigan Opera Theatre's fifth annual Spring Grand Opera Series at the Masonic Temple.

A special treat in the show will be the performance by Grosse Pointe native Elizabeth Parcells, who will sing the role of Queen of the Night. A graduate of the Interlochen Arts Academy, Parcells made her debut with the Boston Symphony Orchestra under Seiji Ozawa and has since performed the title role of "Maria Stuarda" with the Boston Lyric Opera, as well as many productions throughout Germany where she now lives.

The Saturday, May 4 performance is sponsored by ANR Pipeline  ${\bf Co.}$

Part fairy tale, part morality play, the opera introduced the ideals and rituals inspired by Freemasonry. Mozart himself had joined an order which preached the spirit of universal brotherhood. With text by the actor (and manager of a small theater) Johann Emanuel Schikaneder, who asked Mozart to compose the work, this "spingspiel" or German operetta incorporates both song and spo-ken dialogue. The public acclaim for the work, which was premiered at the Theater aud der Wieden in Veinna on Sept. 30, 1791, increased with each performance. Yet barely a month after the premiere, Mozart died.

Single tickets to the remaining productions of Michigan Opera Theatre's 20th anniversary season range in price from $12.50 - $58.50 (price includes a Masonic Temple Theatre renovation surcharge of $1.50) and may be purchased by calling the MOT ticket services office at 313/874-SING, Monday-Friday from 10 a.m. 6 p.m., Sunday noon- 5 p.m., or visiting the ticket office, 6519 Second Ave. between Milwaukee and West Grand Boulevard in Detroit, Monday-Friday from 10 a.m.-5:30 p.m. Group discounts are available for parties of 10 or more by calling 874-7878. ### Newbery winners offer kids quality

Grosse Pointe Children's Librarian By now the Oscars are ancient history: Everyone knows who won. It's been more than two months since the Newbery and Caldecott award winners were announced and some of the people who actually care about the award (librarians, teachers) still can't name the winners.

Most people don't know what these awards are, and many of those who do, however literate, still can't spell Newbery. Yes, Virginia, there is only one "R." Okay, so what are they?

The Newbery Medal is the highest award in the nation for children's literature for a book published originally in the United States during the given year, written by a U.S. resident. The writing must be distinguished. The medal has been awarded since 1922 under a grant by Frederic S. Melcher.

The Caldecott Medal is the Newbery's equivalent for illustrators. The ground rules on residency and publication remain the same. The Caldecott came into existence in 1938, again through funds from Melcher.

Honor Books are runners-up, not winners. "Children" are defined as being up to age 14.

Controversy, as with the Oscars, Nobel, Pulitzer, and others, surrounds the awards. Some committee choices are clear: "Sarah, Plain and Tall," "Where the Wild Things Are" (though it seems clear now, it was fraught with controversy at the time), "Sounder," "The Snowy Day," "Johnny Tre-main," "King of the Wind," "Island of the Blue Dolphins," "Polar Express," "Madeline's Rescue," and "Roll of Thunder, Hear My Cry."

Others are not so clear. Anyone who is on the committee has to be fearful that this is the year the committee will miss the equivalent of "Charlotte's Web." The committee didn't miss E.B. White's classic altogether; it made it an Honor Book, while the award went to the now nearly forgotten "Secret of the Andes.'

Some of the best known writers and illustrators never have won: White, Laura Ingalls Wilder, Shel Silverstein, Dr. Seuss. Judy Blume, Norman Bridwell, H.A. Rey.

But some have: Maurice Sendak, Beverly Clearly, Lois Lowry, Ludwig Bemelmans, Chris Van Allsburg, William Steig, Arnold Lobel.

James Thurber didn't win, but his book "Many Moons" won the Candecott for artist Marc Simont.

So who won this year? Well, for the Newbery, Jerry Spinelli won with "Maniac Magee," a book a lot of people didn't buy. They should have. The title character, a 12-year-old orphan who sleeps with buffalo, runs faster than anyone backward, hits 30 home runs in a row, small Pennsylvania town and runs into legend when he crosses the street, the invisible but very real line, that divides the black from the white.

The single Honor Book was Avi's "The True Confessions of Charlotte Doyle." Masterfully written, this is probably the best sea story for all ages since "Treasure Island." The book opens with "An Important Warning: Not every 13-year-old girl is accused of murder, brought to trial, and found guilty. But I was just such a girl, and my story is worth relating even if it did happen years ago. Be warned, however, this is no "Story of a Bad Boy," nor "What Katy Did." If strong ideas and action offend you, read no more. Find another companion to share your idle hours. For my part I intend to tell the truth as I lived it." The story doesn't let the reader down.

The Caldecott winner is an artist long overdue for the award: David Macaulay. The book is "Black and White," four simultaneous (or are they?), interlinked (are they?) stories involving cows, robbers, children and commuters.

His style has changed radically from the precision inkings of "Cathedral, Castle, Pyramid, Unbuilding, The Way Things Work" and others in his previous work. This is in the wild, seemingly out of control style of his comic tour de force, "Why the Chicken Crossed the Road."

"Black and White" is not a picture book for the younger set. This is for third-graders and up who can't resist puzzles and have worn out Handforth's "Waldo" books as well as Base's "The Eleventh Hour."

Oh, by the way, it is not all black and white - there's a peachy tan in it as well as some green. But then, nothing really is all black and white, is

There were two excellent Honor Books. Perrault's "Puss

In Boots" is newly illustrated by Fred Marcellino, gorgeously drawn and designed right down to the wordless front cover that tells all (you have to turn it over to read the title) and the soft inkshade for the large typeset. Best of all, the illustrations reinforce the story's sense of

The other Honor Book is Vera Williams' "More, More, More Said The Baby: Three Love Stories," a vivid, bouncy romp of baby hugs, kisses and tickles, that almost encompasses the world in its few words and colorful (an understatement) pictures.

If a potential classic was missed entirely this year by the Newbery committee, it was probably Mildred Taylor's "The Road to Memphis," but that picked up the Coretta Scott King Award, and that's an other story.

The thumps resounded particularly well because Kennedy carefully stayed off and just behind the little rug so carelins alone. fully placed for him. His most prominent quality, however, proved to be a garrulous delight in chatting from the stage with the audience, with an obvious talent for humor.

The first occasion was prompted by applause at the end of the first movement of his concerto. In a Teddy Boy accent, Kennedy reminded the audience that it wasn't over yet. Following his first encore, in response to unabating applause, he apologized that he didn't know anything else and then proceeded to play an unaccompanied Bach partita brilliantly at lightning speed.

The first encore deserves special mention. Bringing with him a bass player from the orchestra, Kennedy favored the hall with a jazz duet performance that must have recalled the nights he played in Greenwich Village while a student at Julliard back in the '70s.

An ecstatic audience gave Kennedy repeated standing ovations which can only be interpreted to mean that music lovers also love a good show.

Incidentally, Kennedy, Jarvi and the DSO together gave Elgar's lengthy and arduous Violin Concerto in B minor a highly dramatic and deeply felt performance marked particularly by the brilliant virtuosity of the violinist.

It is tempting to be "clever" and stop here, but the rest of the program cannot be ignored.

The short but powerful opening work by young American composer Alvin Singleton was highly effective. Titled "After Fallen Crumbs" in ironic symbolism of a world where some starve while others waste food. it makes a potent musical statement. Lyric on the one hand, and ominous on the other, the throbbing opening beat on drums and brass ends in a crying fanfare on the vio-

But it was after Kennedy's performance, and intermission, that Jarvi's return to the stage brought a sense of getting back to really satisfying music making. His performances of the post-impressionistic "Bacchus and Ariane Suite" by Rouseel and Ravel's hypnotic "Bolero" had the same sophistication and conviction that we have come to anticipate at each of his performances, and the approving audience seemed to underscore this with another standing ovation.

All of which makes the possibility of another financial crisis in which Detroit might lose the magic of this maestro all the more unthinkable. With this obviously in mind, the DSO's chairman and executive director inserted another message in the program. It thanks supporters for writing our politicians

Travel Trends

By Phyllis Hollenbeck

Fare is fair?

I would love to take a survey of two dozen passengers in the coach section of a flight from say, New York to Miami. How many different airfares do you think I would come up with?

We have all known for years that the person sitting next to us may be paying a different fare than we are. But did you know it has been estimated that there are over 200,000 fare changes daily. In the New York to Miami market, a travel agent recently pulled up 100 different fares and the computer tagged the end of the list with "there are more fares available, request by specifying fare type.'

Today's deal may be gone before you know it. Even worse, the trip you plan and buy a ticket for today because it seems such a good price, may go on sale the day after you begin your trip. If you had known, you could have saved literally hundreds of dollars.

We all would like to be sure we get the lowest fare. That's not easy. One way is to call each of the airlines offering service to your destination. This takes time and patience. Just try it and you will see what I mean. A far better idea is to contact your favorite travel agent. Good travel agents will realize that even though they are receiving payment for their services from the airline (they get 10 percent commission on each ticket sold), they need to win you as their client - so it will be in their best interest to find you the best price possible for your trip.

If your trip is more than a point-to-point round trip involving more than one airline, you will find it difficult to get a price from an airline. They simply do not want to try to figure out the best fares on longer complicated itineraries involving more than their airline. Although all travel agents will tell you they are equipped to deliver the best fares, it is important to find an experienced agent who can understand the many complicated rules governing today's airfares. Even the type of computer an agency uses can make a difference. There is one computer system that can automatically check itineraries for the lowest fare. Agents using System One's Fare Assurance can guarantee that the service booked and fare quoted is the best available at the time of booking.

The Airline Deregulation Act of 1978 spawned the competition and turbulent economics of today's industry. The wondrous world of computers also contributed by enabling the major airlines to fight air fare wars. Their ultimate objective is to win the highest price for their seats, and yet have them all filled, no matter what price they bring. If there were no computers, the airlines would simply not be able to keep up with all the pricing options.

It has been estimated that discounted air fares account for more than 90 percent of the revenue passenger miles flown in the United States. Prior to deregulation this figure was 33 percent. One way or the other, passengers are finding a way to get a discounted fare. Proponents of deregulation report that more passengers are traveling for lower prices than ever before. Yet there remain the big questions of how many of the revenue passengers are being flown at a loss to the airline industry; and where, when and how will it all end?

If, as many predict, America winds up with three huge major airlines and the choice is pared down to airline A or airline B, what price will you have to pay for a seat on your flight? Deregulation of the industry has already brought us the hub connecting points; overcrowded airports; crowded skies and flight delays; almost nonexistent ground and in-flight "service" and institutional meals; and the demise of many of the industry's pioneering companies. It somehow seems inevitable that once the majority of airlines have gone bankrupt or have merged with the winners, we will all find ourselves being charged higher fares because of the lack of competition.

Muriel who?

Anyone not affiliated with University Liggett School really doesn't know this woman. She's quiet, shy, doesn't like to be patted on the back. She won't allow you to praise her openly or in front of people. Instead, she'd rather do her job because that's what she gets paid to do - and leave it at that.

Accolades, kind words, awards or anything else intended for Muriel Brock are embarrassing to her. She doesn't want you to honor her, congratulate her or put her under a spotlight. And, by no means, should you ever make a fuss over her.

Brock has been involved as a teacher/counselor and field hockey coach at ULS for 35 years. She's clearly the glue that helps hold the school together. She is respected by peers and administrators, but more importantly, she's appreciated by her students.

Brock has been named the Midwest Coach of the Year in Region Four, which consists of Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin. Brock is also one of eight finalists in the bid for National Coach of the Year. Both are honors she is proud to be a part of, but she really doesn't want them because she doesn't feel she deserves them.

Sure, all the wins and championships are nice, but Brock wants her student-athletes to be remembered for giving her those victories. She would tell you that she only coached, not played, those games. Therefore, why should she get the recognition?

Brock, along with the other regional winners, will be honored in July in North Dakota. ULS would foot the bill for her to get to Bismarck, but she's not going because the award presentation is on June 28, and that's the week her summer camp at ULS opens. Brock won't be at the ceremony because she's directing the camp. Tell me her priorities aren't in order.

Brock is being honored for her undying love of coaching field hockey. She came to ULS in 1956 from Bouve School of Physical Education. Records weren't kept before 1958, but after that she compiled a 232-23-31 record before retiring from the head coaching spot in 1989. Her finest season was 1983, when she went 15-0-1, one of 12 undefeated seasons.

The only statement Brock has made about being the Region 4 top dog is: "I'm pleased with the honor. I love coaching. I think athletics are a very special, very important part of young people's lives and I enjoy being part of Hear those words. She's not tooting her horn (although she should be). She's concerned about what the kids get out of it. She enjoys being a part of it, but take a poll and you'll find that the kids are even happier that she's a part of it.

Muriel, get on the plane and go get your honor. Stand under the spotlight and let everyone know who you are and how much you love athletics. For one hour, step out of your shell and collect what's rightfully yours. I know it would be uncomfortable for you to stand in front of unfamiliar people and be talked about, but this is your dividend for more than three decades of sacrifice and devo-

North, South split victories in track clash Lady Devils too strong for North

By Rob Fulton

With 110 girls on the eligibility list for the South girls' track team, it's no wonder opponents can feel overwhelmed. And Grosse Pointe North is feeling the effects of battling a team twice its size.

South, perhaps sporting its finest team in five years, hammered the Lady Norsemen, 86-42, April 18 at South, under fair skies and a cool breeze.

The win gave South (3-0) a one-meet lead in the race to win the Macomb Area Conference White Division, and the loss dropped North, the reigning division champion, to 2-1 in the league.

"We were definitely outgunned," said Norsemen coach Charles Buhagiar. "We were trying to fight South's tanks with handguns. South is a very powerful team.'

That's because of its depth.

'Our depth was definitely the key to the meet," said Steve Zaranek, South coach. "Where North was able to come up with a first place, we were right there taking seconds and thirds. We were able to balance the points we lost by getting some key people to finish second, and we really pulled away by sweeping several events.'

South pulled away so fast, that it led 25-1 after just four

"We wanted to get off to a good start," Zaranek said. "The girls got things started with a brilliant race in the 3,200 relay and then came right back to sweep the hurdles.

"We knew going in that we had to be the favorite to win the meet, but you never take a North team for granted."

It also helps to be at home. 'We haven't lost a meet at home in eight years," Zaranek said. "We like being at home in tough meets like this. We take great pride in knowing that we haven't lost a meet at home in that time.

A quick glance at the score doesn't indicate a "tough" match, but Zaranek believes otherwise.

"This was a lot closer in some events than the score shows," he said. "Some events were good, competitive and fun and that's the way we like them. Then again, those are the kind of meets you always have when it's North-South.'

South's Amy Balok, Rachel O'Byrne, Sue McGahey and Heidi Wise teamed up to win the 3,200 relay in 10:12.6, but despite falling behind 25-1, Buhagiar still thought his team stood a chance.

"We thought if we did our best we'd have a shot," he said. "We also wanted to win all four relays, but only won one. And we expected more points than we got in the field events."

Linda Krieg scored 10 of North's 11 field-event points with first-place finishes in the shot put (29 feet, 7 1/2 inches), and discus (98-10).

One of the day's finest races - and perhaps an upset - was the 200 dash, in which North's Noelle Cormier beat South's Karen Ehresman. Cormier ran a 27.5. North's Katie Loeher won the 800-meter run (2:26.9) and the 400-meter relay team of Cormier, Loeher, Anne Maliszewski and Monica Rhee raced to a first-place time of 53.1.

"I'm not disappointed because we had 14 seasonal-best performances," Buhagiar said. "It's not that we're that bad. We're a good team and we gave South one of the better dual meets it'll have. South's strength and depth prevented us from doing what we wanted to do.'

One of the North's better runs on the day was the twomile relay, where Loeher, Anne Scallen, Joy Ramberger and Jenny Trachy ran a 10:30.7, 40 seconds lower than last week's

Wendy Mader ran to a second-place finish for North in 1,600 run (5:51.2), just behind South's Rachel O'Byrne, who O'Bryne also took second in the 100 hurdles behind teammate Ehresman. Ehresman went on to win the 100 dash and 300 hurdles, and finished third in the 200 dash. Amy Balok carried South to a win in the high jump, and finished second in the 400 dash.

Drake had a big day for the Lady Devils, winning the long jump (15-8), and running a leg on the winning 800 and 1,600 relays. She was also second in the 300 hurdles.

Besides running a leg on the 800 and 1,600 relays for South,

Arbaugh won the 400 dash. "I do believe that North and South are the two best teams, in any of the three MAC divisions," said Zaranek.

North is 3-0 (poverall and South is 2-1.

The meet wasn't in hand for North until the final three events. South had a 58-56 lead and needed only two second place-finishes in the final three events, but North's Jeff Grant, Scott Collins and Tom Gauerke made sure the Devils weren't going to hang on for the win. Grant, only a sophomore, raced to a first-place time of 24.4 to win the 200 dash, and then Collins (10:21) and Gauerke (10:38) finished first and second, respectively, in the two-mile min to ice the victory "If we had won the 200, all we would have needed to do was take a second in the 3.200 run but didn't get it," said Devils' coach Al Moebus. "Going in we had to beat North as hard as we could in the field events. We felt we were a stronger field team, but we missed out on points there, too."

South missed out in the discus, as Chris Harwick (129 feet, 10 inches) finished second behind North's Ted Bidigare. Bidigare's distance of 131 feet, 5 inches was his second best career toss. However, Harwick scored a first place in the shot put with a toss of 40 feet, 6 inches. Harwick also ran on South's winning 400 relay team (47.2) with Russ Smith, Ned White and Rob Reynolds. Harwick was also third (12.4) in the 100 dash, two places behind North's Grant, who finished first (11.9).

North wrapped up the win as Collins, Gauerke, Reeve Brandon and Doug Brown won the 3,200 relay (10:42), and Mark Phipps, Hardy Kim, Jeff Eleczko and Chris Hamilton won the 1,600 relay.

Hayko Ekmekjian won the high hurdles (16.7) for North, while Jared Kolleth was a double winner in the pole vault (10 feet) and the 400 dash (53 seconds). North also won the 800 relay (1:37.4) with Kolleth, Eric Byrne, Matt VanCoppenolle and Matt Witulski,

South's big winner of the day was Jeff Kertoot, who won the long jump (19-6) and high jump (5-8). Peter Gillespie won the 300 hurdles with a sophomore record time of 43.7, and was second in the 110 hurdles (16.55). Matt Stentz had a strong run (2:08) in the 800

Down a run, Blue Devils rally to beat Crusaders

By Rob Fulton Sports Editor

Before joining the Macomb Area Conference, South baseball coach Dan Griesbaum predicted that no one team would walk away with the White Division title. And if opening day was any indication, Griesbaum was right.

South, now 3-5 overall, began league play April 17 with a 4.3 victory over L'Anse Creuse North.

"This was an extremely big win for us," said Griesbaum, whose team banged out eight hits in the win. "You want to get off to a good start, and we did, but it also proved to the kids that they can come back after losing a lead."

The Blue Devils took a 2-0 lead on Kelly Graves' two-run double in the third inning, and the way senior left-hander Brian Downs was pitching it looked like that would be enough to win.

"Brian was really throwing

Soccer

With wins over Roseville and Lake Shore last week, Tom Caranicholas' team moved to 4-0 on the season, putting the Lady Devils in a first-place tie with Grosse Pointe North in the MAC White Division.

North sports

South shut out Roseville, 18-0, as "everybody had a ball and we scored too many goals," said Caranicholas. In the Lake Shore victory, Vicky Spicer anchored the midfield and Sara Foley and Cathy Gayman helped out on defense.

Tennis

South won its second league match without losing a set, as it dropped Chippewa Valley, 8-0, April 17.

Jarrett Benavidez and Bill Gehrke won their first varsity matches for the 4-0 Devils.

South then was paced by Brian Disser's outstanding play at No. 3 singles to beat Cousino, 8-0, April 18. Lacrosse

After starting the season with a No. 6 state ranking and two straight wins without a loss, the South lacrosse team dropped two games last week. The University of Detroit handed South its first loss of the season, 5-1, as Dave Cogan scored the Devils' only goal. Cameron Craig drew the assist.

Two days later, South was shut out at home against De-LaSalle, 11-0, despite 23 saves by goalie Jason Hall.

Norsemen stumble at Romeo

By Rob Fulton Sports Editor

Right-hander Jeff Thomas made only one mistake in his varsity debut on the mound, and the Norsemen baseball team almost pulled off a comefrom-behind win at Romeo April 17.

North opened the season and league play with a 5-4 loss to the Bulldogs, in a game the Norsemen should have won. Instead, they are now 0-1.

"We didn't play that badly," said Norsemen coach Frank Sumbera. "We made two crucial mistakes that cost us the game, but I was still pleased with the way the kids hung in there and didn't quit.'

It would have been easy to give up after one pitch in the first inning, but North's Thomas settled down to hurl a fine game.

He got the first batter on strikes, but then allowed two runners to reach base before being tagged for a three-run homer on a 2-2 pitch. Thomas struck out the next two batters to end the inning, down 3-0.
In North's half of the second, it got two runners on with two hits, but couldn't push a run home. Another attempt to mount a rally in the third inning fell short for the Norsemen when Gary Corona, who led off the inning with a double, got trapped off second base when Eric Merte's bunt attempt was caught by the pitcher.

"That was very big," said

Sumbera. "We made a baserunning error that potentially could have led to a run. Even though the bunt was caught, we could have still had a runner in scoring position with only one out."

Romeo dodged that bullet, but it couldn't avoid North's comeback bid in the seventh.

After giving up a run in the fifth, the Norsemen trailed 4-0 heading into the top half of the seventh. Mike Haskell walked and was replaced by pinch-runner Rich Blosnick, who then moved to second when Marc Adams walked. Jeff Jensen then ran for Adams. A walk to Terry Thomson loaded the bases for North, and Corona, who had three hits on the day, laced an RBI single. Paul Straske then cracked a two-run single to cut the lead to 4-3, and Steve Craparotta's double tied the game at 4-4.

North still had runners on second and third with one out, but failed to get the go-ahead run home.

Thomas got one out in the seventh, but then walked two runners before giving way to Adams in relief. Adams got the loss when he gave up a single. Thomas scattered six hits in 6 1/3 innings, and struck out six.

Soccer

Felicia Paluzzi has been on a tear since the season began

She has scored in every Lady Norsemen game, including six goals in North's 8-1 romp over Romeo April 19. Patricia Gugan and Katie Kutscher scored one goal each.

North, now 4-0 overall and 2-0 in the Macomb Area Conference White Division, has given up only one goal in four games.

Boys' track

In its home opener against Romeo, the Norsemen won nine events en route to a 71-66 win.

Winners for North were John Ament (high jump), Hayko Ekmekjian (long jump, high hurdles, intermediate hurdles), the 3,200 relay team of Scott Collins, Tom Gauerke, Reeve Brandon and Doug Brown, and the 400 relay team of Jeff Grant, Ekmekjian, Eric Byrne and Matt VanCoppenolle.

Interior designer aims for comfortable, not too trendy, look

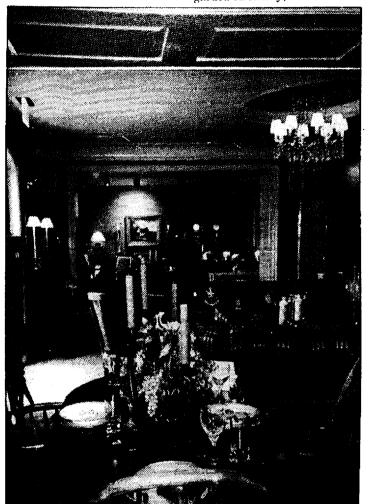

By Rose Palazzolo Special Writer

The whole idea of interior design and designers puts many people off. They find it too trendy and, of course, there's concern about the cost.

D.J. Kennedy, owner of Kennedy and Co. interior designers, knows this and tries to keep the atmosphere in his shop at 15 Kercheval in the Farms laid back and comfortable, similar to Kennedy himself.

'People are intimidated by interior designers," he said. "We try to be regular here. We work with all kinds of different incomes and we try to make people comfortable.

Kennedy has four designers and eight other employees. In his office he is surrounded by pictures of himself with his employees and with his family. It's hard to tell the two apart because his workers are regarded as family, too.

People are welcome to come inside Kennedy and Co., 15 Kercheval, in the Punch and Judy Building, and browse.

But the friendly aura should not be misinterpreted; Kennedy commands the complete respect of his staff.

"He's extremely professional, always being up-front and fair," said employee Mary Brady. "Yet, he is still down-to-earth."

When Kennedy began in interior designing, dried flowers and earth-tones were the "in" touches. Today, he says that iewel colors and neo-classic design are in vogue.

"But people mostly know us for doing things that aren't dated," he said. "Things should be everlasting and not too trendy."

Kennedy has been in the interior design business for 16 years. He graduated from the Kendell School of Design in Grand Rapids in 1974 with a bachelor of arts degree.

"I've always been interested in my surroundings," he said. "When I was younger I was forever moving furniture around and painting my bedroom."

Kennedy says the one thing designers do wrong is putting in too many mirrors and too many sectionals.

"Too much of any one good thing is not good," he said.
"I'm always looking for ideas. As a designer you have to always have your eyes and ears open."

The first tip Kennedy has for people who want to freshen up their homes is to paint.

"There are a lot of interior things you can do with depth of color," he said. "Color can give contrast and show off spaces."

Another thing people can do, Kennedy said, is replace carpet-

"If a person does nothing else to their home, they should replace the carpet so the rooms look like something," he said. Kennedy's own design philosophy relies on contrasting colors and styles which result in great visual interest and a surprising comfortableness.

He works with the average homeowner as well as corporate and business people.

"We have decorated everything from a car dealership to a jet," he said.

For the jet, Kennedy decided to use "a lot of leather and exotic woods.' "We tried to make it monochromatic, to have it look like a cocoon," he said.

Kennedy has also designed the interiors of four Mc-Donald's restaurants in Dearborn, Holly, Union Lake and Clarkston. He has traveled everywhere from the Bahamas to San Francisco to design homes and offices. He also has an office in Vail, Colo.

"One thing that people don't realize," he said, "is that they can come in here and browse.'

The store is filled with beautiful antiques, paintings and plush furniture as well as exotic accent pieces.

Until last September, the store was located next to the League Shop on the Hill. It's now located next to the Punch and Judy building near the corner of Fisher.

The new location allows for a brighter and bigger shop but the atmosphere remains low-

dney transplants beat dialysis

When a person's kidneys can no longer sustain life, the only treatment options available are dialysis, an on-going treatment that's performed in a hospital or at home for the rest of one's life, or transplant of a healthy donated kidney.

Dr. Robert Provenzo of Grosse Pointe Park, nephrologist and medical director of the Transplant Specialty Center at St. John Hospital, said that more and more patients with chronic kidney disease are choosing the transplant option.

"What happens a lot of times is when we're following somebody closely, they are fully employed," he said. "They may take two weeks off work, come in, electively, receive a kidney transplant, go home and, after a short recuperation time, be back at work."

Although patients can live for years on dialysis, Provenzano said that those who have received a transplant generally feel better and have a better outlook on life.

April 21-27 is National Organ/Tissue Donor Awareness Week. For more information, call toll-free in Michigan, 1-800-237-5646.

Library — once a prison — cited as good neighbor to historic buildings

By Stephanie Stubbs AlA News Service

The denizens of Doylestown, the county seat of Bucks County, Pa., had an old prison they no longer could use. On the other hand, they had wanted their own branch library for 20 years. They lobbied their county fathers long and hard, and finally got their wish when the Bucks County Library opened its doors.

The new building, in addition to serving as a branch facility for the people of Doylestown, does double duty as the headquarters for the county's 11 public libraries. The architecture firm that designed the library, Bohlin Powell Larkin Cywinski of Philadelphia, also incorporated a public meeting room, capable of seating 120 people, into the plan for the building. "This public space reflects the incredible community involvement on this project,' says Randy Reid, the project architect. "I think that together, our firm and the people of Doylestown created a building that serves as a good neigh-

The architect faced a number of challenges in creating a new building that would work well in its surroundings. First, the new library is located in a historic district on a site formerly occupied by the historically certified Bucks County Prison, which meant parts of the prison had to be preserved. Second, the library building is part of a larger plan to develop a neighborhood cultural center that consists of a number of buildings, and which eventually will include a performance hall and county archives. Third, the Mercer Museum, an important structure in its own right, sits directly across the street, and the new library had to visually relate to it.

The architect needed to pay special attention to the distinguished existing buildings. One way would have been to build the new library out of the same materials as the old buildings. "We were faced, however, with the economic reality of not being able to duplicate the existing materials, including the 5-foot-thick stone prison walls," says Reid. "We decided instead to give the building its own structural expression with a steel frame."

222 bald eagles in state

Bald eagle watchers scanned the January winter skies during the 1991 mid-winter bald eagle survey, and reported observing eagles in 58 of Michigan's 83 counties.

Michigan citizens, about 400, who participated in this volunteer program reported a total of 222 bald eagles, including 50 immature and 172 adults, according to David Holes, DNR director. In the Upper Peninsula counties, 70 eagles were counted, 111 eagles were counted in the northern Lower Peninsula counties, and 41 birds were sighted in the southern Lower Peninsula counties.

Many of these majestic birds are winter residents, and survive Michigan winters by feeding near open water or scavenging on road-killed animals. The adult bald eagles sighted during the winter count are believed to include many of Michigan's nesting population.

The number of eagles in recent years during the January survey has generally increased and reflects the increase in the state's eagle population.

This year's total is down from the high of 334 recorded from the 1990 winter count but is nearly the same as the 216 and 217 reported in 1988 and 1989. The high count last year is believed due to the unusually mild winter and because of the 20 percent larger number of people sending in eagle sighting reports.

The Nongame Wildlife Fund, through citizen contributions, has supported the annual summer and winter surveys of bald eagles as well as special studies of bald eagle productivity and

Paint & Household by Bob D'Angelo

O. The nails on a reasonably new house are popping right out of the walls. Why does this happen, and what can I do to correct it?

A. Nail popping is common to new houses when the 2x4 wall framing is not properly dried, and the sap literally pushes the nails from the studs. With the advent of good commercial screw guns, more and more contractors are now screwing sheetrock into studs. Also, metal studs are becoming more popular.

The only thing to do with nails that have popped is to bang them back in. Do so by dimpling the nail, forming a small well to be filled with compound. Try not to break the sheetrock paper when you create the dimple, though that is easier said than done Compound, prime and paint.

Now Renting: A landmark address.

Since its completion, the elegant Shore Club Apartment Tower has been a landmark for ships and boats cruising Lake St. Clair. But it's also been a landmark in luxury living.

You can choose from highrise, garden apartment or townhouse lifestyles. All provide the same convenient, luxurious, environment

Shore Club is situated in a park-like atmosphere. Here we combine the peacefulness of the lake with stately old shade trees. Our community-by-the-lake is conveniently located near major expressways and surface routes, leading to most every part of the Metropolitan area. As well as close to Grosse Pointe Shopping districts.

What's more, because Shore Club is on the water, renters have first priority on our available boat wells.

We're now renting apartments. So come and see why Shore Club is the most prestigious address on the waterway. We're sure you'll find everything about it is of landmark quality.

Farmhouse design has down-home charm

The Kennsington is a comfortable two-story home that is perfect for family living.

Steps leading to a large deck surrounding most of the house lead to the entry, which opens directly to the stairway.

To the left of the entry is the semi-private living room, made for entertaining away from the business of the rest of the home.

Down the hall and on the right of the entry is the enclosed dining room. A large picture window and French doors leading to the outer deck highlight the room. The open access to the kitchen area has a convenient counter to the left and half bath to the right.

The large kitchen has every convenience. The design allows for easy cooking and clean-up. A cozy corner nook with large picture windows is a quiet place to enjoy a breakfast or you can serve a quick meal at the kitchen bar. An island stove gives more counter space. The laundry room is situated next to the breakfast nook.

The large family room finishes off the downstairs. It contains a fireplace surrounded by wall-to-wall windows. The French doors in this room also open to the outer deck.

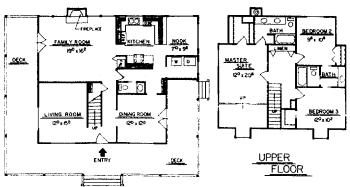

Upstairs to the right is the luxurious master suite. A private bath with vanity and a large walk-in closet make this room not only comfortable but convenient. A unique loft opens to the living room below.

Bedrooms two and three are connected by a full bath, which is compartmentalized for use by more than one person. The larger third bedroom has a small step-in closet.

For a study kit of the Kennsington (200-45), send $7.50 to Todays Home, P.O. Box 2832-T, Eugene, Ore. 97402. Specify plan name and number when

Deck designs featured in book

Just one book will tell you how to build a deck from concept to blueprint to final construction.

More than a book of ideas and photos, "Deck Planner" contains plans and details for 25 decks that do-it-yourselfers can build or contract. These single-, double- and multi-level wood decks, presented in twocolor illustrations, are designed to fit a wide variety of house styles.

The opening section offers dozens of photographs of existing decks to demonstrate the many styles and possibilities of deck living. Support chapters include how-to data, project starters, and tips for modifying the plans to fit specific houses.

A wealth of information is provided to help even the firsttimer oversee or construct a deck. Information on other

For every deck featured, there is a corresponding set of construction blueprints available separately.

Copies are available in local bookstores, or for $7.95 plus $2.50 postage and handling from Home Planners Inc., Dept. PR911, 3275 W. Ina Road., Suite 110, Tucson, Ariz. 85741.

HOME HINTS

QUICK REPAIR - The screws in my expensive metal-framed glasses are constantly working loose. Since I don't have a small screwdriver handy when I am out on appointments during the day, this can become a real nuisance.

My solution is to use a pencil eraser to turn the tiny screws. It works! Try it. Olivia B., Noblesville, Ind.

DEAR HOME HINTS COLUMN: I read the "Home Hints" column in my local paper. Many of the hints are helpful, but I'm very concerned about the recent travel tip that was printed.

The tip indicated that a mother uses an (open?) basket to place items in for her infant instead of using a diaper bag. She mentioned that she fills the basket with diapers, wipes, and even jars of food. This is very dangerous! There should not be any loose items in the car. Even a minor accident could cause items from the basket to fly around the car. I've talked with highway state police who recommend putting anything that is not secure in the trunk. Your seat belt deck. Information on other will more than many save for an arresponding to the space of the spac will more than likely save your life, pull over at a rest stop to take care of these simple needs. P.S. When you have new shoes that tend to blister pressure areas of your feet, use scotch tape (on pressure points of each foot). Your shoes will slide on, and you won't have a blister. The tape is easily removed.

Repel birds with tape

Robins in the strawberry patch, ducks in the pool, wild geese in the lawn, pheasants in the garden, sparrows in the garage - bird problems around the home or farm can take many forms.

Now a new tool — red and silver foil tape coated with Mylar - is available to deal with problem birds.

Glenn Dudderar, extension wildlife specialist at Michigan State University, says the tape is inexpensive, easy to use and effective in a number of situa-

"The tape's physical presence, flashing colors, noise in the wind, strength and ease of application make it a handy tool," Dudderar said.

One use for it is keeping waterfowl out of lawns. He advises stretching the tape, with an occasional twist, from tree to shrub to fence post to put a barrier between the source of the birds — a local stream or pond - and the lawn.

For ducks, place the tape 6 to 8 inches above the ground; for geese, 12 to 18 inches. The birds won't duck under the flashing tape, Dudderer says. Though they could fly over it, they rarely do.

If waterfowl are getting in the swimming pool, stretch tape around the pool and zigzag it back and forth across the water two or three times.

To keep birds out of a garden, run the tape around the outside at a height of about 18 inches, then crosswise, lengthwise and diagonally across the garden plot. If this isn't effective, string lengths of tape back and forth across the garden, spacing them 2 to 3 feet apart. The aim is to use the minimum amount of tape that works," Dudderar said. "If the first application isn't effective, add to it until it is. In the garden, the tape should repel robins and other birds that get into ripening strawberries or peck at bean blossoms, as well as pheasants and other birds that pull up young seedlings.

The tape should also be effective in keeping gulls off docks, swimming platforms and boats, he suggests. Just string it around where it can flash and flutter in the wind. If it gets in your way, simply cut it and tie in a short repair piece later.

Birds in outbuildings can make a mess on anything stored inside. A solution is to fasten tape streamers to a wood strip tacked up across the top of any open door or window. Place the strips one-half inch apart for sparrows; 1 to 2 inches apart for pigeons.

The main problem with the tape is that it isn't widely available. Order from Reed-Joseph International Co., P.O. Box 894, Greenville, MS 38701, 800-647-5554 or 601-335-5822.

For more information call the Cooperative Extension Service Master Gardener Hotline, 469-5063 on Monday, Wednesday or Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

LOVABLE dogs and cats need good homes. For adoption information call: Northern Suburbs Animal Welfare League Volunteer at Jeanette 773-6839

> PLEASE DON'T DELAY! SPAY or NEUTER YOUR PET TODAY!

An altered pet is a healthier and happier companion. Also, it spares you the grief and pain of having puppies and kittens de stroyed when no homes can be found. Countless numbers of sweet, innocent little ones are euthanized every day in ADORABLE Yorkshire Tershelters across the country because a pet wasn't spayed or neutered. If we cut down on the numbers of unwanted litters being born, we will also cut down on the number of abandoned, lost and unwanted animals to de-

Welcome to the Real Estate Resource!

In an effort to make your search for that next house easier, the Grosse Pointe News is initiating with this issue a new page where you can find in a few minutes what the market is offering today, in the five Grosse Pointes, St. Clair Shores, Harper Woods, Detroit and other municipalities. This source will pinpoint what the up-to-date price of a property is, what are its features and when it will be available for viewing.

This Is It!

So, you've found that perfect house? But wait! Don't jump into anything before checking out a few more things:

- Compare the asking price of the house with houses of similar size in the area. You might want to have the house appraised to help you make an offer.
- It might be smart to have an engineer or construction company inspect the house. These people can determine the house's soundness and the adequacy of its heating, plumbing, wiring and insulation. If a lot of work needs to be done, get an estimate—the seller may reduce the asking price.
- Check the fit of all doors and windows. Test the water pressure of sinks, tubs and showers.
- Examine the gutters. Do the downspouts lead water away from the house? They should.

- Make a thorough examination of the basement. Some sellers may try
- to hide water seepage damage.

   Find out what's under the carpet.
  Will you be pleasantly surprised with hardwood floors or disappointed
- with damaged, cracked flooring?

   If the seller can't provide recent certification that the house is free of termites and other pests, have a
- professional check it.

   Ask how old the roof is. If repairs need to be done, the work can be quite costly.
- Check out the yard. Will you need to do a lot of work to get it the way you want it? If you're house hunting in the winter, ask to see pictures of the yard in the summer.
- If any appliances will stay with the house, turn them on to see if they really work. Dirty dishes in the dishwasher doesn't necessarily mean it works—it could be a disguise. The time it takes to check these items can save you thousands of dollars in the long run. Request that all manuals and warranty information be given to you at the time of sale.

 Ask about average utility bills and tax rates. These numbers will be important when determining if you can afford the house and all of its monthly bills. Also find out about zoning restrictions.

• Talk to people currently living in the area. Ask what they like best and least about the area. This will also tell you how friendly your neighbors would be.

The list of things to check can be endless. If you still need some help, ask a family member or friend with home-buying experience to take a look. Their past experience can make a world of difference!

Installing a new roof? Take a pointer on attic ventilation to you? You buy a new appliance that comes in a thousand pieces. You read over the directions and nothing makes sense. So you decide to wing it. You toss the manufacturer's directions aside and hope it turns out okay. But more often than not, it doesn't. Now you're faced with trying to return it to the manufacturer without admitting you didn't follow the directions. Sound familiar?

What you should know

Believe it or not, it's the same with installing roofing shingles. Typically, you may hire a reputable roofing contractor to install a new roof for you. But there are still many decisions you need to make and proper guidelines that you, as the homeowner, need to know. One of them concerns proper attic ventilation.

Most shingle manufacturers generally stipulate attic ventilation requirements in their application instructions in order to enable the homeowner to comply with shingle warranty conditions. The reason is simple: Inadequate roof ventilation may cause deck movement, resulting in premature failing of the roof shingles. When attic space is not properly ventilated, harmful condensation can form under the deck in the winter. In the summer, it's just the opposite with harmful heat buildup forming in the attic space. Either way, if roofing shingles should fail prematurely due to inadequate roof ventilation and subsequent deck failure, shingle manufacturers, typically, are not responsible under their warranty for replacing damaged shingles.

Most manufacturers require as much as one square foot of total net free ventilation area to 150 square feet of attic

How many times has this happened floor space. This standard is set in accordance with building code requirements for attic ventilation. While there are a number of ways to meet this requirement, many options do not provide practical solutions without ruining the appearance of the roof.

Continuous ridge ventilation systems provide an outstanding alternative to roof vents or turbine vents for many reasons, including appearance. Continuous ridge vents are installed at the top of the roof and are offered in a variety of colors to blend in with roofing shingles. Most manufacturers provide a choice of standard metal ridge vents or shingle-over vents.

Air Vent Inc., a leading manufacturer of ridge ventilation systems, offers two such models: Filtervent® and Shinglevent™ II. On a typical home, 32 feet of either Filtervent or Shinglevent II provide more net free vent area than 11 vent roofs or five turbine vents. Plus, both offer a much more desirable roof appearance than conventional ventilation systems.

Always read directions

So before installing a new roof, always remember to carefully read the shingle manufacturer's directions regarding attic ventilation. Review these directions with your roofing contractor to ensure all application instructions are met. Don't wing it when it comes to installing a new roof. The potential consequences far outweigh the initial investment of installing proper attic ventilation.

For more information on how attic ventilation helps protect shingle warranties, write to Air Vent Inc., 4801 N. Prospect Road, Peoria Heights, IL 61614 or call 1-(800) AIR-VENT.

32 ft. of Filtervent or Shinglevent II* 18 sq. in./ft. = 576 sq. in. vent area

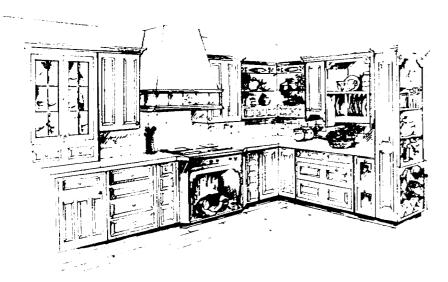

50 sq. in./vent = 550 sq. in. vent area

5 Turbine Vents* 113 sq. in./vent = 565 sq. in. vent area

*Approximate ventilation requirements to comply with typical shingle warranty on this house. Should always be balanced with at least an equal amount of soffit intake vents.

Aluminum patio furniture made new

Most aluminum lawn and patio chairs come with plastic polypropylene webbing that seldom lasts for more than a season or two. The webbing dries out, becomes brittle and breaks. You can buy replacement webbing and reweave the chair, but why go through all that when it may not last you through the summer?

Better Bottom*, a new one-piece replacement cover made of vinyl-coated polyester, is easier to install than webbing and comes with a five-year warranty. Vinyl-coated polyester is the same smooth, comfortable fabric seen in today's most modern casual furniture and umbrellas. It's stain- and mildewresistant and especially designed to wear hard and clean easily. Following these simple instructions, you can make your old chair like new again.

1. Remove webbing fasteners from chair frame for reuse with Better Bottom. Should you need additional screws, purchase them from the merchant who sold you the Better Bottom. If fasteners have small heads, metal washers may be used.

2. If chair frame needs cleaning, the appearance can be improved by rubbing it with solvent and light steel wool. Or a cleaning powder designed for use on metal surfaces may be used.

3. Align fabric on chair until it is evenly placed over the frame. Position fabric to cover as many fastener holes as possible. (It is not necessary to cover all fastener holes.) Should you have difficulty in making fabric fit evenly and cover enough fastener holes, you may make new fastener holes simply by using a drill or a hammer and nail to start new holes. Attach one fastener at the top of the chair. Punch hole through fabric with a Phillips Head screwdriver so fastener penetrates two layers of the fabric for additional strength. Trim off excess material.

4. After one fastener has been installed at top, install second fastener at bottom of chair making sure the fabric is evenly spaced. Again, be sure to fold the fabric so the fastener will penetrate two thicknesses of material.

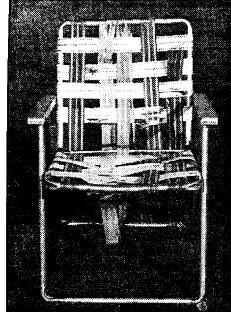

5. Repeat above steps on each side of chair at top and bottom.

6. When fabric is positioned evenly in the chair, install the remaining fasteners. Should fabric need repositioning, remove the fasteners and readjust.

Better Bottom is available in two sizes — one for chairs and one for chaise lounges — and comes in solid Yellow, Prism Stripe, Blue Illusion and Burgundy Stripe. The cost of a Better Bottom replacement for chairs is under $5. The chaise lounge cover is under $8.50.

You can find Better Bottom at hardware, home center, building supply, discount and drug stores. Not only is the cost usually less than the cost of a new chair with webbing, Better Bottom is a better buy because it will last longer. You won't be replacing it every year or two.

To clean, use a sponge or soft cloth dampened in solution of one tablespoon

THIS BLUE RIBBON KITCHEN answers the vacation home dreams of a working couple.

Octagonal kitchen wins design contest

What do you get when you challenge accommodate more than one cook. an award-winning kitchen designer to create the ultimate kitchen in a noholds-barred dream vacation home?

Wayne Williams, CKD, of Mobile, Alabama, first prize winner in the 1990 Excellence in Kitchen Design Competition for Certified Kitchen Designers, envisioned an octagonal kitchen splashed with desert tones and intricate surface designs that transplanted a Southwest motif to a contemporary Spanish-style retreat in Lake Tahoe, Nevada.

The contest is sponsored annually by Maytag Company and Ralph Wilson Plastics Company (Wilsonart). The 1990 challenge was to design a dream kitchen for a new weekend/vacation home being planned by an imaginary working couple in their mid-40s with two teenage children. The clients wanted something different from their gracious home in town and asked their designer to take into consideration both spouses' love of gourmet cooking and family plans for enjoying leisure time together in the kitchen.

Entrants were given a blank check for the 20'x 20' space set aside for the kitchen and laundry area and were permitted to choose any location, geographic locale and type of second home (ski house, forest cabin, beach house, etc.) for the family's use.

Mr. Williams envisioned a contemporary Spanish ranch with vaulted ceilings and a dramatic use of floor to ceiling windows.

He centered kitchen activity around an octagonal center island that repeats the kitchen's octagonal floor plan and provides abundant space in two work triangles to

Williams spared no expense on his $75,000 design, which features desert tones and intricate surface detailing. Among unique aspects are a ceiling treatment that absorbs sound and reduces echoing, a frequent problem in large, open kitchens, and a customcut all-laminate Indian rug pattern Williams created for the backsplash. Polished aluminum bulkheads add a burst of color and brightness.

The key to the two-cook design is placement of the refrigerator and multiple sinks which allow a person to get to each without disturbing the cook. There are two convection ovens, a microwave and a cooktop with interchangeable accessories for indoor grilling any time of year. Use of front panel trim kits give the dishwasher and refrigerator a built-in look.

Williams' winning layout also includes a full laundry center off the kitchen, separated by decorative folding doors.

Runner-up 1990 contest winners were CKD Randi Markle of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma; CKD Curio Nataloni of Springfield, Massachusetts; and CKD Chester Mandella of Sewickley, Pennsylvania.

Each of the winners agreed that the combination kitchen and family room is a trend worth watching in the '90s. The kitchen, always a popular gathering spot, is the "living room of the future," according to Williams. Designing efficient, versatile and comfortable kitchens that accommodate a variety of family activities is the challenge facing designers today, he says.

Homeowners now have many options when installing hardwood floors

Some people are confirmed do-ityourselfers when it comes to home improvements, but there's a growing number of buy-it-yourselfers who enjoy shopping for the best deals they can find before hiring a contractor to do the work.

By buying a product made for the DIY market and hiring someone to do the work, a homeowner can often save money, and still get a lot of satisfaction from planning and overseeing the project. Many home centers and flooring retailers can provide homeowners with the names of contractors or installers to perform the work.

In response to the growing DIY and BIY markets, Bruce* Hardwood Floors, America's largest hardwood flooring manufacturer, recently introduced "Oxford™ Plank," a 3" x 48" laminated oak plank with a slightly eased edge and Bruce's Dura-luster* no-wax urethane finish for easy care. The Dura-luster finish is durable and lustrous, and will repel most household stains, making Oxford Plank a perfect choice for any residential room, including the kitchen. Oxford Plank is available in three colors: Desert, Chestnut and Ivory White.

Bruce's Oxford Plank is truly a DIY product. The 3/8"-thick oak planks can be quickly glued down over concrete, plywood, old wood floors and resilient floors. The tongue-and-groove construction of Oxford Plank locks each individual plank in place and assures easy installation.

As with Bruce's hundreds of other hardwood flooring products, Oxford Plank can be easily installed with a few basic tools: a tape measure, broom, chalkline and chalk, hammer, hand or electric saw, Bruce trowel, and a rubber mallet. A 150-pound roller from a rental service will also be required to make sure the planks are firmly embedded in the adhesive.

By carefully following the instructions packed in each carton of the flooring, even homeowners with basic DIY skills will find the installation of Oxford Plank to be fairly simple. Generally, flooring for an average size room can be installed in a day, and furniture can be moved back in after 24 hours.

Regardless of the decision to DIY or BIY, the result is the same: a beautiful, warm and durable hardwood floor that will enhance your home for many years.

For more information about Oxford Plank and Bruce's other DIY products, write: Bruce Hardwood Floors, Inquiry Dept., 16803 Dallas Parkway, Dallas, TX 75248.

Advice for garden tractor buyers

Buying a lawn and garden tractor can be both exciting and exasperating.

It's exciting because garden tractors speed spring and summer cleanup tasks such as mowing, leaf bagging or even tilling your garden.

But it can be exasperating—especially if you purchase a tractor which does not meet your needs. Garden tractors cost more than most other outdoor power tools, but that doesn't mean the least expensive tractor is the best value.

Below is a listing of the most commonly asked garden tractor questions, according to Toro Wheel Horse, the riding mower and tractor manufacturing group of The Toro Company.

• Do I need attachments?

Experienced tractor owners cite attachment flexibility as one of the most important purchase factors.

The best garden tractors should be able to operate other attachments such as larger mowing decks, tillers or snowthrowers.

Even if you never intend to purchase these attachments, having the capability to add on saves you from the time and expense of purchasing another garden tractor should you change your mind. Also, it increases the resale price of the tractor.

• Can the mower and other attachments be easily installed?

Make sure the attachments are easily installed or taken off. It should take no more than a couple of minutes to remove most attachments.

Tractors with no-tool attachment hitch systems enable you to change attachments on the spot without the hassle of tools and complicated instructions.

• Can the tractor do heavy-duty work? Unlike other products, tractors aren't classified according to standard duty or durability ratings. Experienced tractor owners look at two factors to determine the duty and longevity of a tractor—the engine and chassis.

Horsepower is not necessarily a gauge for engine durability. Instead, features such as a pressurized oil system, oil filters, solid state ignition and a cast-iron block increase engine life and performance.

Review the construction of the chassis. The most durable chassis have cast-iron front axles, a steel or angle-iron frame and transaxles with hardened steel gears.

• Is it safe?

Make sure the mower you purchase bears the triangular seal of safety from the Outdoor Power Equipment Institute. Only those tractors which have passed rigorous safety tests of the American Standards Institute bear this seal.

• Is it easy to operate?

A tractor can have all the attachment flexibility in the world, but if it's not easy to run, you'll never harness its full power.

Make sure the controls are logically placed within hand reach of the steering wheel. If you don't like clutching and gears, consider a tractor with no-shift hydrostatic drive.

Other useful features found on the best tractors include full dash instrumentation, adjustable seats with high backs, extended footrests to maximize legroom and oversized steering wheels.

• Can I test-drive it?

If possible, test-drive the tractor at home. Encourage the other members of your household who may use the tractor to try it.

Another benefit of trying it at home is that you can run the tractor at the time of day you would normally use it—such as after work.

In fact, your test may cause you to include one of the most overlooked tractor features on your unit—headlights!

Tips on selecting a painting contractor

TOO BUSY TO PAINT YOUR HOME? If, like the "Old Lady in the Shoe," you're too busy to do your own house painting, hire a professional painting contractor. But first, the Rohm and Haas Paint Quality Institute recommends that you inspect some of the contractor's completed jobs and insist on a written contract detailing the paint to be used, the work to be done, and payment terms.

Exterior house painting is a project within the skill level of many do-it-yourselfers. But for want of time or for other reasons, some homeowners choose to have a professional painting contractor do the job.

If you are so inclined, the Rohm and Haas Paint Quality Institute offers some guidelines for selecting a reliable professional:

• Seek recommendations. Solicit the names of contractors from friends and neighbors. Ask if they were happy with the work performed.

 Check out the contractors' work. Don't rely totally on the opinion of others (you may have different standards or expectations). Go out and inspect homes the contractors have painted. Most professionals will be glad to provide the names and addresses of previous customers.

 Check affiliations. Find out if the contractors belong to local or national painting contractor associations. Membership is one indicator of reliability.

Next come the most important steps: • Get estimates. For a fair comparison, get at least three estimates and make sure the bids are based on the same materials and workmanship. Some of the things the estimates should include are:

- ---brand and quality of paint
- -details on surface preparation, i.e. whether the bid includes sanding, power washing, caulking and priming
- -number of coats to be applied the way the paint will be applied, i.e. spray, brush or roller
- -breakout of total bid into labor charges and materials cost
- •Insist on a written contract. Make sure the contractor puts into writing (and signs) a document containing all details of the work to be performed. Key items are specifics that appear in the estimate, as well as payment terms, timing for the work to be done, and any warranty or guarantee that applies.

New vinyl tiles bring fun to kid's rooms

WHIMSICAL - Components, new solid-colored vinyl tile from Armstrong, allow fun - and practical - floor designs in children's rooms. In this playroom, the 9x9-inch tiles are cut to create fun red "bow ties" and a multi-colored border treatment.

Question: What's colorful, easy to care for, practical and equally loved by parent and child alike?

Surprise answer: vinyl flooring!

Long a staple for kitchen and bath floors because of its practicality, easy care, comfort and long life, some of the most fashionable vinyl flooring looks are being adapted for children's rooms, resulting in highly imaginative and whimsical designs.

Leading the way for the creation of exciting, custom floor looks are Components, new solid-colored vinyl tiles from Armstrong.

Available in 14 different solids, ranging from soft pastels to bold brights, Components provides a wealth of design options that brighten a youngster's room and easily coordinate with a number of other furnish-

One of vinyl's biggest advantages is that it serves as a smooth surface for many of a child's favorite activities: playing cars or trains, building block towers or setting up a favorite house of animals. And parents would be hardpressed to find a floor surface that makes cleaning up after messy kids any easier than vinyl.

The flexibility of vinyl tiles which can be cut geometrically into other shapes and sizes — opens up the possibilities even further. Creative parents can construct a race track, hopscotch pattern, building blocks, or even a colorful abstract design by grouping tiles in blocks of two or more to create

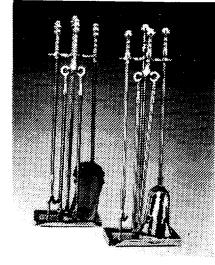

In a recent showhouse home, Armstrong created a custom border treatment by cutting blue, buff and black 9x9-inch tiles into shapes to form a distinctive border around the room's perimeter. Bright "bow ties" were created by cutting red Components tiles in triangles and placing them corner to corner in strategic locations on a white floor

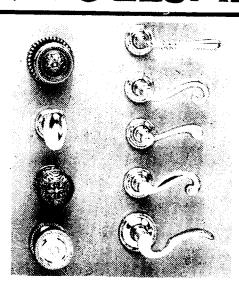

Armstrong has made scale copies of the bow tie children's room floor design available. To obtain a copy of the plans, and for the location of the nearest Armstrong dealer, write Armstrong World Industries, P.O. Box 3001, Lancaster, PA 17604, or call (800) 233-3823.

Brush up on your paint knowledge

Anyone knowledgeable about paint can tell you that there's more to a can of paint than an attractive label. To test your paint savvy, take this short quiz. It will take the lid off the mystery of why some paints perform better than others.

Answer true or false to the following:

- 1. Price is no indication of paint
- 2. Latex (water-based) paint is easier to apply and clean up than oil-based
- 3. Both latex and oil-based paints come in a variety of finishes: highgloss, semigloss, eggshell and flat.
- 4. It's safe to use interior paint for exterior applications.
- 5. When a contractor paints your home, the costs of paint and labor are roughly the same.
- 6. Exposure to the sun increases the life of a paint job.
- 7. Vinyl siding can usually be repainted as easily as wood.
- 8. Careful surface preparation results in better paint adhesion.
- 9. Some areas of a home are more vulnerable to mildew than others.
- 10. A properly-applied coat of top quality acrylic latex paint can last at least seven to 10 years.

Answers

1. False — Within a paint line, a higher price usually indicates top quality raw materials, which translate into top performance in terms of adhesion, durability and color retention.

2. True — Latex paints are easy to apply and clean up with water.

3. True — For many years, glossy paints were the province of oil-based paints, but today, acrylic latex paints are available in excellent gloss and semigloss finishes, as well as the traditional eggshell and flat finishes.

4. False — Interior paints are not formulated to withstand harsh environments. Outside the home, use top quality acrylic latex exterior paint for the best performance.

5. False — Paint typically represents only about 10 to 15 percent of the cost, and labor the remainder. Consequently, it pays to invest in a long-lasting top quality paint.

6. False — Direct sunlight can deteriorate paint and cause fading. To prevent rapid fading, use a top quality acrylic paint.

7. True — Vinyl siding should not, however, be painted darker than its original color, because the darker color can absorb heat from sunshine and result in buckling of the siding.

8. True — Paints adhere best to clean, sound surfaces, so it's wise to take time to prepare the surface carefully.

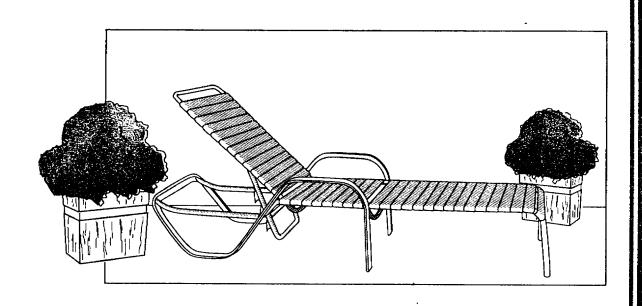

9. True — The north and west sides of a home receive comparatively little sun. As a result, moisture is often present there, providing a hospitable environment for mildew.

10. True — Ordinary paint lasts only three to four years, but top quality acrylic latex paint can look great 10 or more years after it is applied.

Smooth top ranges offer beauty, efficiency and convenience

Designed to be better

Today's smoothtop ranges are totally new. They are topped with CERAN® glass-ceramic panels that have just the right combination of strength, heat and chemical resistance, and proper heat transmission for an ideal cooking surface. Schott Glaswerke in Mainz, Germany, spent 18 years perfecting Ceran panels, which require a precise mix of raw materials and an exacting regimen of heating, cooling and reheating, shaping and decorating.

Ceran panels expand and contract so little with heat and cold that rapid and extreme temperature changes don't affect them. You can pour ice water on a red-hot glowing cooking zone and not home a thing.

not harm a thing.

Heat transmission of this glassceramic is such that heat readily reaches cookware through the cooktop surface but hardly radiates sideways from the cooking zone. The advantage is that food heats up quickly, but other parts of the cooktop remain relatively cool.

Because the crystals in the glassceramic are so small, Ceran panels are extraordinarily smooth and hard. The non-porous surface is impervious to stain, so spills and boil-overs are easy to clean up.

In addition, the glass-ceramic is translucent. You can see the glowing heating element beneath the panel so you know the area is hot. As a safety feature, Schott recommends that appliance manufacturers incorporate "hot surface" indicator lights into their range designs. These lights remain on even after you turn the heat off, and they stay on until the surface is cool.

Actually, the "hot surface" lights are part of a total cooking system — the CERAN-TOP-SYSTEM® — that Schott developed to ensure that today's new generation of smoothtop ranges would be beautiful, efficient and practical. This system also includes appropriate heating element wattages and diameters and another safety feature: heating elements with temperature limiters that automatically turn the heating elements down if, say, your teakettle boils dry.

Another feature of Ceran cooktops is the surface decoration, which clearly designates cooking zones and gives the cooktop a distinctive look that can complement any kitchen decor.

Rising popularity

Smoothtops are so popular in Europe that nearly one out of two ranges sold has a Ceran glass-ceramic panel. This popularity is now sweeping into the U.S. Just a few years ago, smoothtops were almost impossible to find in this country. Today, all major American range manufacturers offer one or more smoothtop models. Smoothtops are available in every configuration...as free-standing ranges, drop-ins or as built-in cooktops.

For information about Ceran smoothtop ranges, talk to your local kitchen designer or appliance dealer.

Create a dramatic landscape

Home gardening is an increasingly popular retreat from today's busy lifestyles. And, if you're like many garden enthusiasts, you want the most appealing results possible for the limited time you have to invest in your landscape.

For a pleasing effect with low maintenance, Meidiland (pronounced May-D-Land) hybrid flowering shrubs offer colorful choices for ground covers and hedges. These new plants combine the everblooming quality of roses with the growth habit of good ground covers and hedges. All Meidiland plants are bred to be disease tolerant, everblooming, and easy to care for.

Yes, they are roses, but so much more. Their blossoms and lush green foliage add color to your landscape all year long. And they will thrive almost anywhere you put them: along the driveway, in a large mass or slope, bordering your flower garden, or as a splash of color by the garage wall.

Meidiland ground covers are ever-blooming replacements for Potentilla, Spirea, Wintercreeper, Cotoneaster or Juniper and don't require pruning. Choose from five beautiful varieties.

The hedges are beautiful alternatives to the more common Forsythia, Barberry, Privet or Lilac.

To date, there are five ground covers and two hedges. White Meidiland™ and Red Meidiland™ are the lowest ground covers, with Alba Meidiland<sup>TM</sup>, Pearl Meidiland™ and Scarlet Meidiland™ mounding a bit for higher ground cover applications. Pink Meidiland and Bonicard both have a more arching upright growth that makes them excellent everblooming hedges and spectacular plantings.

On your next trip to your local nursery or garden center, ask to see these new ground covers and hedges. Meidiland shrubs add a great deal of eye-catching color, with little gardening effort. They are an exciting new option for the creative landscape.

Secondhand shopping is first-rate decorating style

It's almost spring. Time for spring cleaning. Time for shopping yard sales. Who doesn't love a bargain? But the best news is that someone else's trash is today's decorating treasure.

It's called shabby chic or secondhand style. But whatever the term, our throwaway society has new-found interest in decor from the past. Not precious antiques, mind you, but flea market, swap shop vintage.

Thinking "green"

Disposable decorating is being disposed of, with resourceful and recycling the key words in current design vocabulary. The philosophy is rooted in the "green" thinking now a part of America's consciousness, while the retrenching economy is forcing others to make do. Still others are eschewing conspicuous consumption in favor of simpler pleasures.

Lyn Peterson, of Motif Designs, a nationally known designer, says that it's not a matter of giving up, but

"many have discovered that resourcefulness is incredibly gratifying and fun!"

Peterson herself is a flea market junkie and has filled her own house — quite elegantly — with discoveries from flea markets, yard sales and the neighborhood trash. Her booklet "The Thrill of the Hunt" gives beautiful examples of turning trash to treasure. Photos show how to give new life to a less than perfect piece of furniture, how to mix furnishing styles and how to turn bric-a-brac into fabulous art for the wall.

For a free copy of the brochure, write Motif Designs, 20 Jones Street, Dept. M, New Rochelle, NY 10801.

Resourceful wallcovering

So resourceful is Peterson that her company has produced a collection of wallcoverings and fabrics based on flea market finds, called Vintage Rosie. It is a good way to transform many a flea market find.

Soaker hose saves money, preserves environment

With spring upon us, "gardening fever" is at its peak. Planning an efficient watering system for your lawn and garden now will save you time and water later in the year, when you need more of both.

According to Shannon Bard, vice president and garden watering expert for Aquapore Moisture Systems in Phoenix and Chicago, proper watering is most efficient and easiest using a soaker hose system. A traditional overhead sprinkling system or hand-held hose requires more water and can't do as good a job.

"Installing a soaker hose watering system in early spring will save you many headaches later in the season. Problems may arise with a conventional watering system once plants begin to grow because they tend to block other plants which lie farther from the sprinkler head.

"Also, when using a hand-held hose or an automatic sprinkling system, the force of the water directed at the plants is enough to damage them," he maintains.

A soaker hose is installed into or on top of soil next to the roots and seeps water slowly and uniformly through its porous walls, eliminating those problems.

Bard says a soaker hose also ensures more efficient watering.

"The key to a successful, healthy garden is the slow, consistent application of water to plant roots. Installing a soaker hose in the ground lets water soak directly to the roots instead of evaporating into the air.

"The amount of 'weeping' water can be controlled simply by adjusting your faucet. Uniform watering will lead to the fullest, healthiest plants."

Bard notes that the Moisture Master Soaker Hose not only beautifies the environment but is also good for it.

Made of recycled rubber, Moisture Master Soaker Hose takes more than 500,000 old tires out of the environment each year. Because it uses water efficiently, it can save up to 70 percent more water than conventional watering systems.

Some tips from Aquapore's Shannon Bard when using a Soaker Hose Watering System:

• One way to use Moisture Master Soaker Hose is to bury it two to six inches deep in the soil. The Moisture Master Soaker Hose does not freeze, so it doesn't have to be removed in winter. Even simpler, the soaker hose can lie on top of the soil, or under a layer of mulch.

• Install the hose before spring planting. Planting around the system after it has been positioned avoids undue stress on growing plants.

• When possible, water plants early in the morning. You will lose less water to evaporation at this time of day than later in the afternoon when the sun is high.

• Don't let soil dry out. Instead, water your plants consistently during the week. If the soil is moist at all times, the weeping water can cover a greater area, allowing nutrients to be more accessible to plant roots.

If your garden is more elaborate. Bard suggests using the Moisture Master Weeping Watering System.

The system comes in kit form and includes the Moisture Master Soaker Hose, which can be attached to special fittings and non-porous pipe.

This poly header pipe is used to transport the water to the soaker hose, which is placed where the water is needed. The fittings allow you to follow the specific design of your garden.

Like the soaker hose, the system can be buried below the soil's surface or used above ground. Anyone with two hands and an ordinary pair of scissors has all the tools needed to install a customized watering system.

Soaker hose can be purchased in mass merchandise stores, home centers, hardware stores, lawn and garden dealers, nurseries and from mail order houses.

Bard adds that it is important to check that the soaker hose you buy has a reputation for quality so you can be sure it will last longer and weep water evenly.

Security should be a part of home improvement projects

It's spring again - time to get started on those home improvement projects, like cleaning out the garage or putting a new coat of paint on the house. As consumers head to their nearest hardware or home center stores, it might be a good idea to add a few locks to the shopping list.

When the weather turns warmer, people — including thieves — become more active. The lawn mowers, rototillers, bikes and boats that are left outside can be vulnerable to theft. While garages or sheds keep things out of sight, they also need to be securely locked.

The wide variety of padlocks and other specialty locks on the market should make it easy for homeowners to find locks that suit their needs.

Padlocks securing garage or shed doors often provide the first line of defense against thieves. Look for the words "laminated" and "pin-tumbler" when purchasing padlocks to obtain maximum protection. Brass padlocks are ideal for outdoor use, since they resist the corrosion caused by April showers.

Some manufacturers, like the Master Lock Company, offer convenient "keyed-alike" padlocks (one key opens all the padlocks in the package). With keyed-alike padlocks, homeowners need to carry only one key to open all the padlocks securing their gates, garages and sheds. Keyed-alike padlocks can be purchased in sets of two ("twin-packs") or four ("four-packs").

Specialty locks can secure tough-toprotect items such as boat motors, campers, trailers, bikes and other outdoor equipment:

· Outboard motor locks are designed to protect boat motors while they are attached to the boat. To secure the motor against removal, simply slip the vinyl-covered motor-lock tube over the clamp screw handles and fasten the padlock in place.

· Unhitched trailers can be vulnerable to tow-away theft — thieves can simply hitch your camper or boat to their vehicle and drive away. Trailer locks protect off-hitch trailers by fully enclosing and blocking the trailer couplers. They feature locking mechanisms similar to those in heavy-duty

 The exclusive Master Armorlock<sup>TM</sup> provides heavy-duty protection against bolt cutters for campers, bikes, boats and other equipment. This padlock features a rugged shackle guard and revolving shackle to resist cutting.

Master Lock recommends that homeowners buy the highest quality locks they can afford. Locks that provide years of trouble-free service are always a wise investment.

Blooms for the season

Crocuses, daffodils, and snowdrops herald the arrival of spring, but their passing does not mark the end of the bulb season. When they begin to fade, don't repine - replant. The Garden Council suggests planting a variety of summer bulbs this spring to light up the garden as the season advances.

Bulbs — and their cousins corms, rhizomes, and tubers — share one important characteristic: All depend on stored food to carry them through a dormant season brought on by cold or drought, and then to give them a good start when dormancy ends. So although you may be more familiar with the term "bulb," don't shy away from the others when you begin planting for summer blooms. Care for corms, rhizomes, and tubers is similar to bulb

Bulbs store food manufactured in their green leaves, so it is important to keep foliage growing as long as possible. Keep plants fed or watered until foliage yellows or turns brown — or, with late-blooming plants such as dahlias and tuberous begonias, until frost threatens.

You can camouflage the fading foliage of spring bulbs by sowing seed or setting out plants of low-growing annuals such as sweet alyssum, forgetme-not, English daisy, or viola.

Here are a few tips to keep in mind as you plant bulbs for summer and fall show:

•Provide good drainage. Bulbs are likely to rot in constantly wet soil. Unless your soil drains quickly, plant on hillsides or in raised beds.

•Be selective. Your effects will be more striking if you concentrate on a few bulb kinds and colors.

•Plant bulbs in clumps or drifts (irregularly shaped masses) rather than singly or in rows.

•With bulbs that bloom just once (gladiolus, Mexican Shell Flower), stagger planting over several weeks to get a succession of bloom.

In cold-winter climates, plant summer and fall bulbs when danger of frost has passed and dig and store them when frost threatens or when foliage has died off. Where winters are mild, many of the varieties listed. below can stay in the ground throughout the year.

For a summer-long show of bulbs and bulbous plants, the Garden Council suggests this schedule.

Early summer

- Tuberous begonia
- Gladiolus
- Lily (Asiatic Hybrids)

Mid-summer

- Tuberous begonia
- Caladium (Fancy-leaf) Calla (Zantedeschia)
- Canna
- Dahlia
- Daylily • Gladiolus
- Lily
- Tigridia
- Tuberose

Late summer-fall

- Tuberous begonia
- Caladium Canna
- Dahlia
- Daylily Gladiolus
- Lily (Oriental)
- Tuberose

Comparing oil and latex paints

More and more, homeowners are switching from traditional alkyd or oilbased paints to latex or water-based paints. To discover why, see the outline below. It shows how these paints compare on eight important criteria homeowners look for when choosing a paint.

Durability

• Good adhesion is probably the single most important property of paints, because it helps prevent blistering, flaking and cracking. Top quality latex paints that contain top quality acrylic binders provide maximum adhesion to most surfaces. Latex paints are also very flexible, so they continue to adhere even when temperature changes cause the surface to expand and contract. This elasticity helps forestall chipping, cracking, peeling, flaking and other common paint failures.

• Alkyd paints also have excellent adhesion, and perform better than latex paints over heavily chalked surfaces. But with time, the alkyd can embrittle, sometimes resulting in cracking in just a few years.

Color retention

• Top quality acrylic latex paints provide superior resistance to bleaching and fading, even when exposed to damaging ultraviolet sun rays.

• Alkyd paints fade faster than latex paints. They are more likely to chalk (develop a powdery substance on their surface), which causes the color to Ease of application

•Latex paints glide smoothly from the brush or roller onto the surface. Top quality latex paints are especially easy to apply, since recently developed additives provide even application and spatter resistance.

• Compared to latex paints, alkyd paints are more difficult to apply, especially when brushing a large area, because they have more "drag." On the other hand, they go on heavier and give more complete one-coat hiding

Mildew resistance

• Top quality acrylic latex paints contain mildewcides to discourage mildew and help the paint maintain a fresh appearance.

 Alkyd paints, while also containing mildeweides, are derived from vegetable oils which provide nutrients for mildew growth.

Variety of uses

· Latex paints can be used on wood, concrete, metal, vinyl siding, aluminum siding, brick and stucco.

 Alkyd paints should not be applied directly to galvanized metal. They also require special chemical pre-treatments before use on new concrete, stucco and other masonry surfaces.

Odor

- · Latex paints have little odor and are non-flammable.
- · Alkyd paints have noticeably more odor owing to the solvents and oils they contain.

Cleanup

• Latex paints clean up easily with soap and water.

• Alkyd paints require solvents for cleanup, making this chore messy and complicated.

Drying time

• Latex paints dry in just a couple of hours, so you can recoat quickly. However, they are vulnerable in case of sudden rain.

• Drying time for alkyd paints can take up to two days — plenty of time for dirt, insects and people to come in contact with the surface and mar it per-

Add security to spring Home Improvement List

A simple, do-it-yourself project of installing an in-floor safe provides instant security and protects valuables and cash by keeping them "out of sight and out of mind." In-floor safes, such as the S-2 model manufactured by Sentry Group, can be bolted to a wood or concrete floor, or permanently set into a basement or garage floor with cement and covered with furniture or a rug. This not only puts them out of sight, but makes them virtually impossible to remove or burglarize.

The Sentry® in-floor safe is tubular in shape, 81/4" inside diameter, made of heavy-gauge steel and features a combination lock with double-locking bolts. The Model S-2, with a suggested retail price of $192, is 13 inches deep.

The safe comes with detailed instructions for a variety of installation methods and concealment techniques, as well as a limited warranty.

The most frequently asked questions about Air Conditioning

By Thomas E. Wagner, Director of Residential Markets Supreme Heating & Supply Co., Inc.

The heat and humidity of a long hot Michigan summer can be unbearable for the whole family. Relief from this discomfort can be as easy as installing a Whole House High Efficiency Central Air Conditioning System.

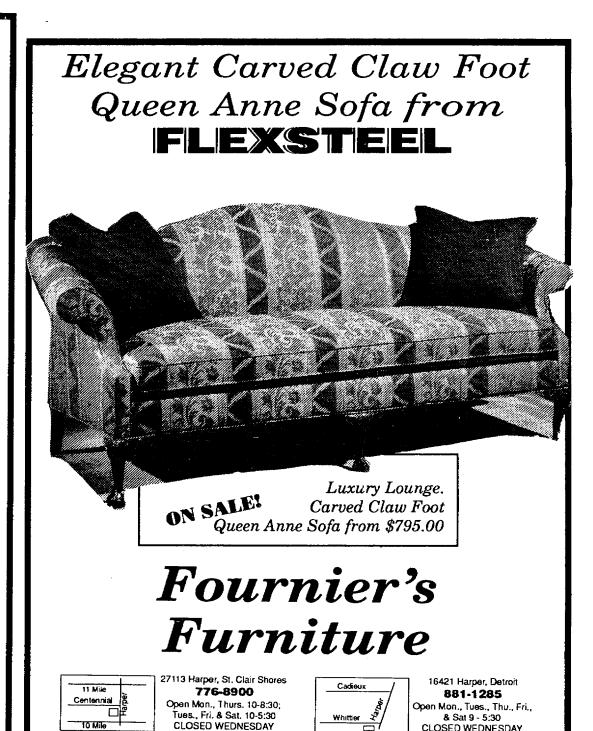

A properly sized Central Air Conditioning System, installed by a qualified heating and cooling contractor, not only removes the heat from inside your home, but also removes the humidity leaving your home cool and comfortable.

Each year, homeowners ask many questions regarding Central Air Conditioning. Here are themost frequently asked questions and answers:

- Q. What should I do in advance to make sure that my air conditioner will work efficiently this summer?
- A. The main thing is to have the system checked each year before the peak cooling season by a qualified contractor or service technician.
- Q. What is the average life of a central air conditioning system?
- A. It can vary depending on how much the system is used and how regularly it is checked or serviced. Generally, the average life of units built in the 1960's and 1970's is about 15 years. Newer units can be expected to last longer.
- Q. Should I turn my thermostat up when I leave for work in the morning?
- A. If your house is going to be empty for more than about four hours, it is a good idea to turn your thermostat up to about 82 degrees instead of the usually recommended 78 degrees. Keep the house closed to minimize heat build-up and humidity. When you come home, don't set the thermostat any lower than the temperature you actually want - your air conditioning system will not cool any faster, and might easily waste money by cooling your home more than is needed.
- Q. If my air conditioner stops working, what is the most likely problem?
- A. It could be as simple as replacing a fuse, resetting a circuit breaker, or checking to see if the thermostat is set correctly. If the system runs, but does not seem to cool properly, refrigerant should probably be "primed." If the problem involves any major part of the unit, such as the compressor, you would hear strange noises similar to those of any mechanical equipment not running correctly, or the unit might not run at all. Whatever the cause, the solution is to call an air conditioning contractor to have the problem checked out as early as possible. Because central air conditioning systems are complex, most homeowners should not attempt to work
- Q. When do I know it is time to replace my system?
- A. Many homeowners are replacing older, less efficient systems with new high efficiency systems to reduce operating costs. Others are replacing when the system has more problems than seem cost effective to fix, particularly when major components such as the compressor begin to function improperly. When faced with major repairs, consult at least two contractors for their recommendations.
- Q. Are air conditioners efficiency rated?
- A. Yes, to help you compare the efficiency of air conditioning systems, the U.S. Government has adopted standards by which performance is measured. Seasonal Energy Ratio (SEER) balances the cooling output against the electric power use to demonstrate how efficiently a system operates. The higher the SEER rating, the higher the efficiency of the unit.
- Q. What are the advantages of buying a high SEER system?
- A. You will use less energy to cool your house, which results in lower electric bills and cooling cost. In all cases, it is an individual calculation which the homeowner should determine with the contractor of choice. To complement the efficiency of your comfort system, an optional computerized thermostat can substantially reduce your heating and cooling costs. Other accessories, such as air filter or a humidifier can enhance the year-round comfort in your home.

When making your decision to purchase a Central Air Conditioning System for your home, make sure to compare the Manufacturers features, benefits, and warranties; quality of workmanship and reputation of the heating and cooling contractor; financing programs available; and pricing. The right Central Air Conditioning System to match your needs and budget are in the marketplace, if you take the time to shop and compare wisely.

UP TO 85 PERCENT of the cost of painting is for the contractor's labor, only 15 percent for paint. So, it pays to spend a few dollars more on long-lasting paint to avoid frequent re-painting. Top quality acrylic latex paint lasts 10 years or more, compared to three or four years for ordinary paint, says the Rohm and Haas Paint Quality Institute. In the end, better quality paint is far less expensive.
