

Drunk driving? Look at us, paralyzed pair says

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Two men who will never walk again, their lives forever changed by drunk driving accidents, spoke to students at Grosse Pointe North last week.

Rich Archuleta was 18, and, by his own account, a little reckless. But he was driving his motorcycle safely — and soberly — when he was run off the road by a drunk driver. He jumped from the bike and landed on a six-inch curb on the side of the road, shattering his spinal cord.

Despite the fact that Archuleta was able to identify the car and recalled the license plate number, no one was ever brought to justice because he didn't see who was driving the vehicle.

Dave Rowe's story is different but the results were the same. He and his friend were illegally hunting in the desert after a day of heavy drinking. Rowe continually pestered his friend to let him drive. "I'm not drunk," he kept saying. But Rowe was drunk. He lost control of the vehicle, hit a telephone pole and flipped the car three times before it came to a stop. He wasn't wearing a seatbelt and the force of the impact as he struck the windshield broke his neck.

"All I could remember is thinking that I had to get out of the car," he told the rapt audience, "but each time I tried to move, all that would move were my eyes."

Rowe's friend kept him alive for 12 hours before someone drove by and noticed them. Even after that period of time, Rowe's blood alcohol level was more than .30. In Michigan, .10 is considered legally drunk.

Both men were treated at the Stewart Rehabilitation Center at McKay-Dee Hospital in Utah. Now they tour the country as part of the nationally known auto safety program "A Fine Line." They talk about their experiences in the hopes that students will think first before making the choice to drink and drive.

"We just want to show students what can happen — in a split second, their lives can be forever changed," said Missy McKay of the Stewart Rehabilitation Center.

"It doesn't bother us to talk about this," Archuleta said in response to a student question. "It's helped me deal with my situation and I feel good about what I'm doing. I hope it makes you think before you make that choice."

The program was sponsored by the Michigan Association of Insurance Companies and the Grosse Pointe North SADD chapter.

Milton Hancheruk, who in another life is a salesman at Jefferson Chevrolet, helps load a truck with special edition Grosse Pointe News for the annual Lakeshore Optimists paper sale. Optimists were on street corners last week for the ninth year, raising funds for local organizations, like the Children's Home, Foundation for Exceptional Children, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Octagon Cub at Bishop Gallagher and children's softball. The Optimists also sponsor the fishing rodeo at Farms Pier Park, send a high school student to a leadership conference every year, host the Respect for Law Day, Youth Appreciation Week and Excellence in Education awards. Mike Martin, who coordinates the special edition, said the club has given about $40,000 back to the community through its various fundraisers.

Engler administration presents views on need for budget cuts

Blanchard, Legislature share in blame for deficits

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

In the wake of criticism of state budget cuts, including those for social and health programs, first-term Gov. John Engler spent a day last week making sure reporters from around the state got his side of the story.

Media representatives from as far away as St. Ignace and locally from the Grosse Pointe News attended the governor's Editors' Day in Lansing April 26 and heard from Engler and his department heads on how they view the problems now facing the state, such as a $1 billion deficit during the current budget year and even greater deficits in following years unless something is done to cut and curtail spending.

Following are comments — verbatim and paraphrased — from the various executive branch leaders and the governor himself.

John Engler, Governor

Budget: "We're not unique." Massachusetts and other states are also being forced to make big cuts to balance their budgets. "We are going to resolve these budget issues."

"There has to be good management. We're working with limited resources."

Property taxes, school finance: The state over the years has transferred school costs to the property tax and reduced the state's share. "You can cut property taxes without revamping school finance, or vice versa."

Concerning out-of-formula schools and the effects of Engler's promised 20 percent property tax reduction: "They will have to join with me in reducing property tax so they have some breathing room in that 50-mill limit (the maximum school districts can assess property owners)." We all have to make sacrifices. "One of our goals is not to bring down the quality of good programs."

Schools of choice: "We have choice today, but there's a limit on it — the size of your wallet. Why shouldn't every parent have a similar opportunity?"

State employee pay raise: "We don't have the money for a 4 percent pay raise Oct. 1, but the Legislature hasn't acted favorably. The Legislature has to act or it (the pay raise) is accepted. What's at stake is 2,800 to 2,900 layoffs Oct. 1."

(The Civil Service Commission has recommended a 4 percent pay increase for state employees beginning Oct. 1, the beginning of fiscal year 1992. The governor transmitted the commission's request to the Legislature March 7 with his strong recommendation that the pay raise be rejected. The Legislature has 60 days to act from the time of the governor's recommendation. If the Legislature does nothing, the pay raise automatically takes effect.

The pay raise will cost the state an additional $107 million, the equivalent of 2,900 full-time state workers. The average base salary for state employees is $33,220, the fifth highest among the 50 states. With benefits, the average compensation is $44,428. Because the governor's fiscal year '92 budget proposal contains no provision for pay increases, the governor's office said some 2,900 state employees will have to be laid off if the pay raise is not rejected.)

Social programs: "As we go forward, we are looking for solutions that clearly benefit people's lives — not simply to send money out for services."

Legislature: "The Legislature has a reluctance to move quickly. . . . You've got contentious players in this game. You're not going to get a consensus."

Top priority: Education.

Patti Woodworth, Director of Management and Budget

Deficit: "In November (following Engler's election), we discovered massive problems — a $1 billion problem this year and a $3 million deficit from last year that wasn't acknowledged."

For the past four or five years under the Blanchard administration, revenues have exceeded expenditures, and each year, Blanchard would cover shortfalls with "book closing adjustments." Blanchard's and other past state bookkeeping practices led to "structural deficits."

"It's been papered over basically each year. . . . When you do that, you don't have to face the hard choices. You don't have to make it balance."

"...There is currently no system in place to guarantee we don't spend more money than we have in the general fund. It's something we're working on correcting right now. . . . We're doing everything we can to prevent spending more money than we take in."

"We're a team," she said. "It's a good group in there."

Pointer of Interest 3 run unopposed for Shores council

Darrah C. Porter

By Pat Paholsky
Editor

Before he completed the eighth grade in Marblehead, Mass., Darrah Porter had his life planned and it didn't include living in Michigan.

Darrah C. Porter

exam for the Coast Guard Academy, passed by a hair, and in July, one month after his eighth grade graduation, he entered the academy with plans to be an engineer.

"It was tough," he said. "By the following February it became apparent I would never be an engineer."

So he abandoned his dream and took a job setting type in a print shop near his home for 75 cents an hour. Today, some 40 years later, the Grosse Pointe Farms resident is group director of operations and engineering staffs for GM's Buick-Oldsmobile-Cadillac Group.

Life is like that. The turn in the road came when his older brother, who was attending General Motors Institute in Flint, wrote and told him he could get a job (in Detroit) "for $1.65 an hour and get rich," Porter said. "It was my idea then to go to law school."

It was 1951 and Porter got a

Three incumbents are running for the Grosse Pointe Shores Village Council. They are unopposed.

The council members running for re-election are John Huettelman III, N. William O'Keefe and Rose Garland Thornton.

The election is Tuesday, May 21. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. at Vernier School.

Huettelman is running for his fourth term on the Shores council and is chairman of the public works committee. He is president of the John Huettelman Co., a food brokerage business. He has lived all his life in the Shores.

O'Keefe is running for his second term after being appointed to office to fill the seat of Edmund M. Brady Jr. who replaced Gerald Schroeder as president in December 1988.

O'Keefe is a self-employed insurance consultant and has lived in the Shores for 16 years. Before becoming a trustee, he served on the board of review, planning commission and as a trustee with of the Shores Improvement Foundation.

He has also been involved with the PTOs, the North Dads' Club and was the charter president of the Lakeshore Optimists, of which he is still a member.

He currently heads the recently created insurance committee and serves on the park and harbor and municipal buildings committees and the election commission.

He said things have been running smoothly in the Shores, and perhaps that is why there are no challengers in this election.

Thornton is looking forward to her third term on the council. She serves on the beautification, budget and finance and public relations committees, as well as the election commission and the Youth Assistance Program.

She is the Shores representative with the Services for Older Citizens (SOC) program. She also is a board member for the Pointes Area Assisted Transportation Service.

She served on the board of review for 12 years, and has lived in the Shores for 39 years.

She agreed the community must be satisfied with the current council.

Children's classic

"Cinderella," presented by the Grosse Pointe Children's Theater, will play at the War Memorial May 4, 10 and 11. Above, Fairy Godmother Ashley Whitt talks to Cinderella, seated, played by Sarah Babcock. The roles are shared by Emily Lloyd and Heidi Letzmann. Performances are Saturday, May 4, at 2:30 and 7:30 p.m.; Friday, May 10, at 7:30 p.m.; and Saturday, May 11, at 2:30 p.m. Tickets are $4.50 for students and senior citizens and $5.50 for adults. Call 881-7511 for information.

Arbor Day poster winner

Jonathan Ebricht, a Defer Elementary School fourth-grader, was this year's winner in the eighth annual Arbor Day poster contest sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Park Beautification Commission.

Ebricht won $25 and a tree will be planted in his name. He presented his winning poster at the April 19 city council meeting. With him are Park Mayor Palmer Heenan, left, and parents John and Janice Ebricht.

Arbor Week Committee Chairwoman Pat Decker said 254 Park fourth-graders entered the contest.

Also, this was the ninth year in a row that the Park was designated at Tree City U.S.A.

Arbor Week was April 21-27.

St. Paul guild honors volunteers

The Teacher Parent Guild of St. Paul Catholic School supported the SAC² Spring Break Weekend in a unique way.

Every year the executive board of the TPG hosts an appreciation party for volunteers who have chaired fundraisers and other events, been picture ladies or Junior Great Books leaders, or other major volunteer jobs.

The date was set for April 26, long before the Substance Abuse Community Council announced it as Spring Break Weekend.

St. Paul TPG board members were enthusiastic about showing support for a no-use weekend, and so President Judy Wagner, SAC² representative Rob Crandall and party organizer Karen Bell planned to hold the party, but not serve beer and wine as had been done in the past.

This year's Volunteer Appreciation Party was a huge success. Partygoers enjoyed tropical punch, soft drinks, hors d'oeuvres, desserts and sparkling conversation. No one missed the alcohol.

Volunteers who were honored for their commitment to St. Paul School this year included Chuck and Lois Bakier, Pat Bissig, Sheila Crandall, Linda Brennan, Barb Costello, Kathy and Bob Champion, Patti Bologna, Janet Crone,

Volunteer for War Memorial

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial will have a volunteer orientation session on Monday, May 6, at 6:30 p.m. for anyone interested in becoming a volunteer.

To make a reservation or obtain more information, call Paula Galvin at 881-7511.

Street scene: Neighbors wrangle over planned addition

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

It was the Meadow Lane residents against the Handy Road residents at the April 22 Grosse Pointe Farms City Council meeting, and Detroit News columnist Glenna (Nickie) McWhirter struck out at her third time at bat.

McWhirter was asking the council for a zoning variance so that she could build a two-story addition onto her three-bedroom Colonial home on Meadow Lane.

The addition was to consist of an informal family room on the first floor and a bedroom, full bath and increased closet space on the second level.

Her Meadow Lane neighbors were on her side, and told the council that the addition was nicely designed and that it would increase the value of McWhirter's house and the surrounding houses.

However, residents on the street in back of McWhirter's house — Handy Road — were opposed to the addition. They said it would decrease the amount of green space between their homes and McWhirter's and would thus decrease their property values.

The proposed addition was to be 25-feet wide, 16-feet deep, and would have decreased the depth of her back yard to 28-feet. Under the zoning ordinance for her area — RI Dwelling District, Article XIII — the depth of her back yard cannot be less than 30 feet. So, she was asking for a 2-foot variance for her rear yard setback.

It was the third time McWhirter had appeared before the council to ask for a variance to build the addition.

Originally, at the March 18 council meeting, McWhirter asked for a 6-foot rear yard setback variance so that she could build an addition that was 20-feet deep.

At that meeting, the council heard and received letters from four Meadow Lane residents who said they supported McWhirter's request. Eight Handy Road residents representing seven households said they opposed it.

With Mayor Joseph L. Fromm absent, the council unanimously denied McWhirter's request, saying that the variance would "substantially interfere with or injure the rights of others in the use district whose property would be affected..."

So McWhirter went back to the drawing board.

She and her architect cut the depth of the addition by 4-feet, so that McWhirter would only have to ask the council for a 2-foot rear yard variance. They also lowered the roof line by 5 feet.

According to a Farms ordinance, everyone who asks for a zoning variance must prove that without the variance, he or she will suffer a hardship.

Farms City Attorney Bill

Glenna (Nickie) McWhirter

Burgess said there is no clear definition of what constitutes a hardship. It is a subjective thing.

At the April 8 meeting, McWhirter, who lives alone, returned and told the council she needed the extra room so that she could adequately house her children, grandchildren and friends when they visit from out of town.

She and her architect said that she couldn't make the addition 14 feet deep because it would be too narrow and the rooms would be too small for their intended use.

"It would look like a bowling alley, long and narrow," McWhirter said.

Before the meeting, McWhirter took the revised plans for the addition up and down her block, showing them to her neighbors.

As a result, the council heard and received letters from nine Meadow Lane residents who were in favor of the variance. However, the council also heard from eight Handy Road residents who opposed it.

After discussing the variance for more than an hour, several councilmen and the mayor told McWhirter that they didn't feel she had proved hardship.

The mayor said that if he saw detailed floor plans of the addition, he might be able to better understand why a 16-foot room would be more livable than a room 14 feet in depth.

The council agreed to postpone voting on the variance until the next meeting so that McWhirter and her architect could draw up detailed floor plans.

With floor plans and a cardboard model of the house and addition in hand, McWhirter and her architect and her attorney attended the April 22 meeting.

So did Gail Keane, McWhirter's next-door neighbor, who said, "I would hate to see something just go up because she could do it without a variance and not be as lovely and well thought out as this. We think the plans are lovely. In our estimation, this is not a run-of-the-mill addition. Mrs. McWhirter has done everything possible to take our well-being into consideration."

But Handy Road resident Henry Petri said, "I don't see what's wrong with the basic design of the house, and there is no basic hardship here. There's only one person living in the house. Sure, it's nice to have the space if you can have it... but according to the zoning variance, she can't have it."

After discussing the issue for more than an hour and a half, the council denied the 2-foot variance, 5-2.

The councilmen who voted against the variance said they did so because McWhirter's hardship in being able to house guests is temporary — it lasts only as long as the visitors stay.

The councilmen also said it would infringe on the rights of her neighbors.

Fromm said it was the longest public hearing regarding a proposed zoning variance that he could remember.

"It's a unique situation," Fromm said before the final vote, "because we have one street that's for the variance and one street that's against it. We represent both streets, and we have to take everything into consideration."

McWhirter said she had mixed feelings about the council's action.

"I am grateful the council gave the decision as much attention as they did," she said, "but I don't think it should have taken three meetings. I don't think I received enough direction from the city council."

She said the council has left her with four very difficult choices:

1. "Stay in the house as is, and continue to suffer the discomfort of having only one guest bedroom, because the other bedroom is really too small to be a bedroom, and only one full bath."

2. "Sell the house as is, which would mean trying to find someone who is dying to buy such a small house."

3. "Build according to the zoning and be continually dissatisfied."

4. Buy a house elsewhere with the money she would have spent on an addition and lease the Meadow Lane house to someone.

She said she is going to take a rest and not think about the matter for a couple of weeks.

Will any of this show up in her Detroit News column?

McWhirter says no. "I've thought of at least 47 columns in the past month that I could write about this... but I take my responsibility (at The News) very seriously and I would not use it as a forum to vent my views on such a personal issue."

Maintain peace at home

Wise Mothers will present a workshop on "Maintaining a Peaceful Home" for Barnes Community Education on Thursday, May 9, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Judith Cox, director of Wise Mothers, a non-profit organization, will focus on the value of parenting and the needs of parents who are interested in making informed choices as they raise their children.

The purpose of the workshop is to help parents maintain a peaceful home by learning skills of affirmation, cooperation and conflict resolution. Participants will learn how to address family challenges in a cooperative manner and how to hold family meetings to share decision-making when appropriate.

To register or for information, call 343-2178. For a free copy of Wise Mother's newsletter, "Priorities," write 2260 Commonwealth Ave., Auburn Hills, Mich. 48326.

Young's loss of clout lifts critics' hopes

Three recent developments indicating that Mayor Coleman Young of Detroit is losing his political clout ought to have brightened the hopes of his critics and the candidates who hope to succeed him.

The first, and perhaps the most direct, was the defeat of the mayor's effort to persuade Detroit voters to approve the destruction of Ford Auditorium to make room for erection of a new hotel on the riverfront.

The second was the development of a plan for a new Tiger stadium either in Detroit or elsewhere in Wayne County, if renovation cannot be achieved, that apparently stemmed chiefly from the groundwork laid by County Executive Edward McNamara and his deputy, Mike Duggan, with the mayor as a cooperating but not dominant figure.

The third was the report that the Federal Aviation Administration in Washington has turned down the mayor's request for major federal support in financing a half a billion dollar expansion of Detroit City Airport, although a much scaled down expansion plan is still under consideration.

Many Pointe residents have been opposed to any expansion of the city airport but their elation over the early report of its demise may be premature. Sen. John Kelly told the Grosse Pointe News he fears the FAA will merely start on the smaller plan and seek over a period of time to achieve the much larger expansion originally sought by the city.

He is urging Pointers to keep their guard up and continue their opposition to the airport development, especially since he is convinced the federal and state aviation agencies really serve as promoters and developers of airport and airline interests rather than as disinterested public supervisors of those interests.

Many Pointers also were opposed to the proposed destruction of Ford Auditorium that would have been required if the Detroit city election had approved the commercial rezoning sought by the city government.

But that victory, too, may not prove to be quite as satisfactory as had been thought earlier. The city apparently has no funds for reopening the auditorium and is reported uninterested in seeking new uses for the building. That evidence of the city's negative approach has increased speculation that another vote may be taken next year on the rezoning issue.

As for the proposals for renovating Tiger Stadium or building a new structure, Pointers have not taken sides in any great numbers, so far as we know. However, we're sure most would be concerned if county funds were used to finance either of the alternative projects without safeguards to adequately protect taxpayer ers from responsibility for losses.

With respect to Young's lack of success as a leader in all three developments, we realize it is difficult for any veteran political powerhouse to know when it is time to step down but such developments ought to prompt Young to give the idea serious thought.

Other observers in Detroit have noted approvingly the emergence of a new corps of young leaders in Detroit who would be well qualified to take over the mayor's job. Most of them possess a spirit of cooperation that springs from their own success in an integrated society, an experience that also raises hope for the future.

Over the years, the mayor has made many positive contributions to his city but more recently, in seeking to explain his failures, he has often fallen back on a tactic of charging racism against his critics and even against suburban officials seeking to cooperate with the city.

In our view, the Pointes and Pointers, as well as other suburban residents, will find it easier to support Detroit and its projects after the city selects a new leader. Since the Pointes, like other suburbs, are part of the Detroit metropolitan area and realize the importance of long-range cooperation of all the area's components, the sooner a successor to Young appears the better for all concerned.

A View from the sidelines

by Wilbur Elston

Is Gov. John Engler cultivating a new and friendlier image these days to counter criticism that his administration has been "mean spirited"?

Maybe so.

Attending Editors' Day in Lansing last week, I was impressed by the governor's friendly demeanor. He traded jokes with newsmen, smiled a good deal and mingled with luncheon guests before making a brief talk.

"Mean spirited?" Of course not, he seemed to be saying.

He was also wearing new glasses which appear to give him a more attractive appearance. Perhaps he's trying to help fulfill George Bush's unfulfilled pledge to make it a kinder and gentler America.

True, this was a media event intended not only to offer information to the news media but to impress his visitors with the competence and seriousness of the Engler team and the critical shape of the state's finances.

If those were the purposes, Editors' Day accomplished what it set out to do, in this participant's opinion.

Not that Engler and his top aides let up on the Democrats for having left the state in such poor fiscal shape. They didn't. That theme, in fact, was stressed by most speakers.

Yet there was also acknowledgement that Michigan lives in an imperfect world and that some problems arose from cuts in federal aid for programs the state is mandated to support, some from out-moded laws and some from court decisions that limit the administration's flexibility.

As for Engler's attitude, a couple of state Capitol reporters agreed that the new governor seemed to be mellowing as he eases into his new role.

One attributed that shift to Engler's happy marriage and his popular wife. Another saw it as a necessity to win compromises with House Democrats on legislation to further his program.

One even predicted that the governor would, either out of conviction or necessity, ease off on some of his more controversial ultraconservative positions, in order to win greater support from the Legislature.

Indeed, he may already have begun a move back to the center of the political spectrum.

Why did I get that impression?

Because the governor said he still wants property tax cuts but also hailed as "positive steps" the Legislature's adoption of a 1992 tax freeze and approval of a 1992 referendum aimed at limiting future property tax assessments to 5 percent or the current rate of inflation, whichever is lower.

Such an approach seems to imply that while Engler and his team still want more tax action, they could be satisfied with what has been achieved, especially if the Democratic House plays ball on some of the remaining issues.

Frankly, I did not think the governor was very responsive when I asked him to comment on the negative reaction of Grosse Pointe school supporters to the tax freeze and the referendum proposal that would cost the school district a substantial loss of revenue.

He flooded me with replies about his strong interest in education but two comments did seem to apply if not to respond to the question: He wants school districts and everyone else to help in cutting property taxes but his goal is not to bring down the high quality of education in districts such as Grosse Pointe's.

The governor does not agree with the decisions of 26 other states to increase taxes to meet needs because, he says, Michigan's property and personal income tax rates are so high they already serve as deterrents not only to industrial expansion but to population growth.

Overall, Editors' Day succeeded in showcasing the governor and his aides as an impressive team, even though the new GOP administration did not try to hide the fact that Michigan still faces major problems.

JOA still running in low gear

Detroit's JOA, the joint operating agreement between The Detroit News and Free Press, is still running in the red after 15 months of operation, a fact that raises the possibility Detroit may become a one-daily city.

Since both advertising and circulation rates were boosted after the JOA began, what has gone wrong?

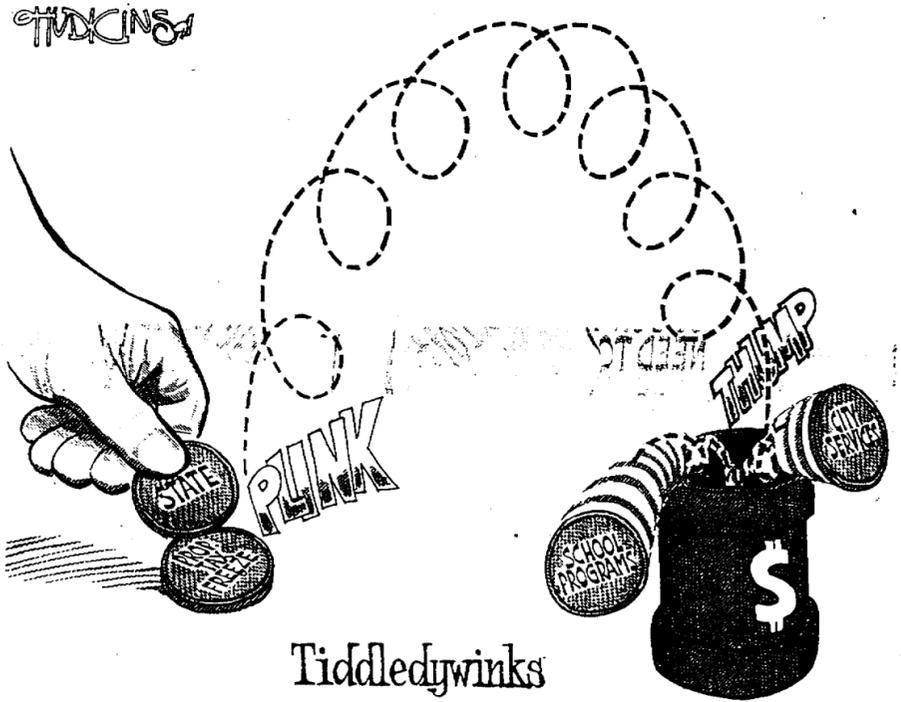

Apparently the start-up costs, plus late deliveries, price increases, loss of duplicate sales and changes in the location of features in the two papers have been responsible. But so is the industry-wide depression that has hurt all newspaper advertising and circulation revenues.

One shift that the newspapers didn't publicly forecast, even if privately expected, has been the sharp decline in The Detroit News circulation. Once among the top seven or eight U.S. newspapers and well ahead of the Free Press, the News circulation under the JOA has fallen to less than 500,000 daily and well behind the Free Press.

So now it's the News that faces extinction, not the Free Press that earlier had threatened to close down if the JOA were not approved. If that happens, the area would be left with only one daily editorial view, one newspaper's version of daily events and one daily newspaper advertising medium.

That would be a loss for area readers and advertisers but it is a loss Detroit would share with all but a handful of other big cities — and all others in Michigan. That fact, however, makes it no less undesirable even though both papers have declined in quality under the JOA.

Yellow ribbons

To the Editor:

Many people ask what the story behind the yellow ribbon is, so I have written a little poem about the yellow ribbon that gives my personal interpretation of what it stands for.

The yellow ribbon has a lot of meaning for me, as I have a brother in the Navy on a mine sweeper, the USS Patriot. I used to be a WAC in the Army back in the early '70s and am currently a member of the American Red Cross, Southeastern Michigan Chapter.

Y is for the yearning that I feel when we're apart.

E is for the emptiness that weighs upon my heart

L is for my longing for your safe and swift return.

L is for the guiding light that in my window burns.

O is for the optimism of a brighter day.

W is for best wishes sent along your way.

R is for remembrance and for reunion too.

I is for the important phrase of I love you.

B is for the brave you are in times of strife and trouble.

B is for believing you'll return here on the double.

O is for the old oak tree in "Tie this ribbon 'round..."

N is for the never in I'll never let you down.

I take this yellow ribbon And I tie it 'round the tree

To stay in place until the day

That you come back to me.

Abortion

To the Editor:

With regard to Nancy Parmenter's column of April 4, "Religious fundamentalism challenges diversity worldwide," of course there are fundamentalists throughout the world, in many areas. However, Ms. Parmenter is mistaken if she believes that in the area of abortion, those who keep it an issue in the United States are only religious fundamentalists.

If Ms. Parmenter had done her homework, she would have found people of all religions and no religion, conservative and liberal, Democrats and Republicans, old and young — all bound together, not by their particular religion, but by their belief in the sanctity of life and the knowledge that in every abortion, an innocent, defenseless life is taken.

Eastpointe

To the Editor:

In response to the April 11 story, "Backers of sixth Pointe push effort, seek funds:" As a board member of the Eastpointe Alternatives Committee, we are very serious about Eastpointe and we will not go away.

As I was quoted in the article: Yes! The Grosse Pointes and Harper Grosse care about their residents. They have top quality public schools, excellent city services and great police and fire protection.

On our side of Mack: No! Detroit does not care about its residents, our schools since 1975 have been a disgrace, our police protection is stretched beyond the breaking point and Detroit city services are virtually non-existent. Heck, our streetlights are out more than 50 percent of the time.

Then there's crime and blight, marching our way. I don't want to be forced into living in that kind of envi-

And another thing...

This column is for my father, Richard Reins.

He's got some gripes. Nothing major. Nothing to write a letter to the editor about; or his congressman; nothing that the wire services will jump on.

Just some picky minor stuff that he'd like to get off his chest, except he can't because he doesn't get to write a column like this.

Instead, he paints. As an art director for two local advertising agencies — first Brooke, Smith, French & Dorrance, then Ross Roy — he used to sit around thinking up creative ideas and drawings for the likes of Hudson Motor Car Co., Goebel Beer, American Seating, Bendix washing machines and Hiram Walker.

When I was a little kid, he often brought work home. He would spend hours seated on a high stool at a drawing board in his home office, putting the finishing touches on illustrations for print ads that I could find in magazines and newspapers six months later.

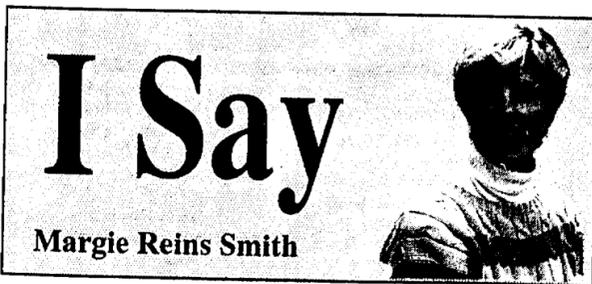

He sometimes used me as a model.

"Hold your arm up and pretend you're about to take a drink from a glass of milk," he'd say. Or, "Sit cross-legged on this chair and hold still." He would sketch quickly, on a huge pad of thin paper.

I impressed a contemporary or two by pointing to magazine ads and telling them, "That's me."

As a hobby, my dad painted watercolors: landscapes, seascapes, pictures of people's houses and boats and cottages.

About 20 years ago when he retired, he began devoting more time to watercolor paintings of

Margie Reins Smith

Grosse Pointe locations (Lake St. Clair, Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, various churches, schools, private homes, boats and gardens).

He watches a lot of television now. And he's fed up with canned laughter. He thinks he should be able to choose, independently, when to laugh at the antics of Andy and Barney and Aunt Bea or Cliff and Claire and Theo. He says he can decide quite nicely, thank you, whether to chuckle, chortle, twitter, guffaw or howl and exactly when to do it.

In fact, he gets downright grumpy when the laugh track is out of whack with his sense of humor.

My dad also would settle for a better chance at winning some sweepstakes contests in return for being tantalized with a less spectacular prize. Instead of holding out $10 million for one lucky son-of-a-gun, he says, how 'bout offering $1 million to 10 people? He'd settle for $1 million; or a half million.

He won a car once. He entered a contest (something about making up 10 reasons why people should patronize a particular movie theater) while he was in art school and he illustrated his entry with drawings. He always said if you want to succeed, you should do a little extra — add something that isn't required — go the extra mile. He claims his illustrations were that extra pizzazzy something that won the contest.

He's also tired of being held hostage during the final moments of football and basketball and baseball games that are shown live on TV.

"Football, for instance," he says. "You're watching this game. They've got 30 seconds to go. The score is tied. Everybody is waiting for the final play."

"... and the announcer gives you scores of three other games being played halfway across the country."

He's also sick of being blasted out of his seat with loud commercials when the rest of the TV show isn't loud at all.

And he's sick of trying to become a speed reader when a paragraph appears on the TV screen. He says they never give you enough time to read the whole thing.

And when he hears a sports announcer say something like, "The Pistons beat the Hornets 82-70," he often scratches his head and says, "Who the hell are the Hornets?"

He's also tired of prices that pretend to be lower than they are. "Just say it's $6, for Pete's sake," he says, "instead of $5.99. Who's kidding whom here? And how can an item be 50 percent off and on sale every single day of the year?"

And he doesn't want to hear the weather five times an hour when he's listening to a talk show on the radio. "Just look out the window," he says. "There's the weather. Once an hour is enough."

None of this stuff is earth-shaking, but I feel much better now that he's gotten it off his chest.

Top racquet

Richard Caretti, Grosse Pointe Park public safety director, will probably hang up his racquet for good, but he will be retiring from the sport a winner.

Last weekend, he won his ninth racquetball championship in the Golden Masters category of the American Amateur Racquetball Association tournament at the Colliseum in Taylor.

Caretti, 64, has been playing the sport for 25 years, but he said that on Monday following his victory, his knee was swollen and he could hardly pick up a cup of coffee.

"My body can't take it anymore," he said.

Well, at least that will give someone else a chance at the championship next year. Congratulations, chief.

Faith reaffirmed

Martha Myers of Grosse Pointe Woods knows there are, after all, some honest people in the world.

Myers carries a billfold. She's been robbed twice, so she's always careful with her money. She stuffs it inside her belt sometimes.

Wouldn't you know, she lost her billfold anyway at the post office a few weeks ago. She was in tears when she got to the bank and discovered that besides $70 in cash, she had lost a blank check.

When she got home — there it was in her mailbox. Intact.

"I just can't get over it," she said. "I want to thank the person who returned it."

Birthday

May S. Fox celebrated a birthday April 14. She started the first day of her 95th year at 10:30 a.m. Mass at St. Clare Church, where she has been a member for 60 years. Then she and her family, Mary R. Fox, June Betzing and Louis Fox, assorted grandchildren and great-grandchildren (33 in all) moved on to the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club for brunch. Fox has lived in Grosse Pointe for 22 years.

Anniversary

William and Margaret Adlhoeh of Grosse Pointe Farms celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary on April 11.

Celebrating with them and a few close friends at an anniversary Mass, at St. Paul Catholic Church were their children, Thekla Abels and William G. Adlhoeh, and their two grandsons, Bill and Scott Adlhoeh, all of Grosse Pointe Farms.

Rummaging in the mental grab-bag

Timing, as they say, is everything.

It's especially true in starting a business. We bought our hardware store in the depths of Michigan's early-1980s depression. It was a terrific deal, but it had no stock and no customers, at least none with any money.

Nancy Parmenter

With that experience in the back of my mind, I got a kick out of talking to Mary Teets last week. She and her husband, Don, are the owners of Backyard Birds in Farmington; they gave me some tips about why birds seemed so scarce last winter. They haven't had the store very long — but long enough to know business woes firsthand.

"We couldn't have bought the store at a worse time," said Mary Teets, laughing anyway. "The war, the economy — and now the birds aren't eating!"

It's always something. I don't think any of the people interviewed for last week's column about feeding birds would want readers to believe that birds are in fine shape. There is serious concern that bird populations are nosediving worldwide — but last winter's scarcity is a separate phenomenon.

Three boos to Anita Baker and her husband for tearing down the Chene House. Never mind the particular circumstances that led finally to the demolition. The real point is that if they wanted a vacant lot so they could build new, then that's what they should have bought in the first place.

It's not like Detroit has a shortage of vacant lots.

Say good-bye, Monroe Block. Say good-bye, Monsieur Chene.

I guess if I like old stuff, I should move to Savannah.

The murder of Anthony Riggs is causing me dreams, but not so much because of Anthony, sadly enough.

No, I'm preoccupied for personal reasons, having to do with some old friends. I haven't seen the Catos for two decades, but I've been terrified I might learn that they're the parents. The identity of those tormented parents is the only secret the media seems to keep.

When we first moved to Detroit in 1965, my then-husband, "R.J.," and I took up with some new friends, mostly people who worked at Sears. Phil Cato and R.J. had parallel jobs at different Sears stores; they shared the same shop talk, the same exuberance of young men on the rise.

We went a lot of places together. The Catos were an exotic breed: city dwellers, who called near-downtown Detroit their neighborhood. This suburban girl had her head in a whirl as carloads of us rode the expressways on the way to places I'd never been.

We partied together. R.J. stood up in their wedding, I went to showers, visited their first baby. Then modern mobility, divorce and who knows what mysterious sociological factors intervened. We drifted apart.

Now I worry about them, people I knew when we were all young and carefree, now middle-aged with grown kids. I hope it isn't their kids who are in trouble.

A Phil Cato is still listed in the phone book — I checked the other day. I thought about calling him. I don't even know if it's the same man. But what can I say after all these years that doesn't sound like prying?

A new study has shown that Detroit and environs are getting more segregated. Contacted for a reaction, Detroit NAACP president Arthur Johnson commented to the Free Press:

"What you see is a moving white population, continually seeking to escape intimate, neighborhood living conditions with the black population, and that's shameful."

Johnson got it only part right. No one can look at white flight without considering economics, busing, crime and blight. But there's something else, too.

People (and, yes, almost all of them are white) are moving farther and farther out, to farm fields and forests and mountains and distant lakes, accepting one- and two-hour commutes to work as the price for what they seek.

And what are they looking for? Isolation, insularity, an escape from intimate neighborhood living with anyone. This may be even more shameful; it's an escape from community, from its restraints, burdens, responsibilities. Out in the boonies, no one will ask them to serve on a committee.

City airport

To the Editor:

On April 24, The Detroit News reported the current status of Detroit City Airport expansion. A 74 percent downsizing of the original plan seems to be the current plan.

Even though the FAA disapproved the original expansion plan, the city, the FAA, MDOT and others seem to emphasize that DCA expansion "isn't a dead issue," "although rejected, another alternative is requested," "the city can keep submitting revised plans," "they haven't been knocked out of the box," "it's an ongoing process," "the original runway length gave the FAA heartburn" over possible congestion of air space," and "Southwest Airlines would be concerned about a lengthy FAA review of the proposed expansion."

A variety of officials were quoted. May we suggest a re-reading of the above quotes?

On April 26, the Wall Street Journal printed in "Letters to the Editor" a letter written by the president, New Jersey Coalition Against Aircraft Noise. He lives 18 miles from the closest airport and is subject to the roar of jets flying newly established routes at low altitudes. He says that what started as a battle for his home and quality of life has turned into a war against the business practices of the airline industry, which is exempt from federal antitrust laws, state bait-and-switch advertising regulations and local environmental laws. He cites the level of PAC (political action committees) contributions and their need to make sure that laws are not passed to protect people on the ground from their unneighborly business. Overnight express shipments are among his concerns. He represents a group of 10,000 members in 220 communities of New Jersey. The Journal captioned his letter "A Roaring Start to an Anti-Noise Crusade."

Why mention the New Jersey letter — our situation is completely different? It may be different today, but will it be different tomorrow? There is the possibility that PAC contributions, lobbies, federal, state and local public officials and others could become aligned behind expansion, but at a slower, gradual pace. The fact that it may take several years before the downsized DCA expansion plan could be implemented offers no consolation.

Some of us will be gone. Many of us will want to remain. Many of our children and grandchildren want to live in Grosse Pointe Park, Grosse Pointe City, Grosse Pointe Farms, Grosse Pointe Shores, Grosse Pointe Woods, Harper Woods, Warren, Madison Heights and nearby areas. We favor neither rapid nor gradual expansion of DCA because we favor neither rapid nor gradual erosion of our areas. We favor preservation of our areas.

For the lack of a more efficient means of measurement, assuming that a three-fourth downsizing of the original expansion would also mean a three-fourth reduction in the original forecast of frequency of take-offs and landings, instead of one every four minutes there would be one every 15 minutes. Is this acceptable? No. In fact, not even present volume is acceptable. We should lobby the present anti-expansion groups to persist in their efforts. We should empathize with U.S. Rep. Dennis Hertel because he felt so good about his efforts and then experienced a letdown when he found the issue was not dead.

It isn't only certain suburban groups and political entities who don't want DCA expansion to take place. There are also business people and local residents who oppose DCA expansion. Also, expansion isn't necessary. Metro Airport and Wayne County soon are scheduled to handle the problem of commercial air traffic in the area. DCA can revert to its former status, which was its originating plan.

Remember, it was an earlier expansion that led to present flight volume, bringing in larger aircraft and entailing related undesirable changes in flight paths. Another expansion, even though 74 percent downsized from the original plan, would still decrease quality of life through increased noise and environmental pollution, and decreasing property values. A single downsized expansion (oxymoron) would be followed by another and another until our areas are no longer viable. Don't give in!

Looking to '92

To the Editor:

Your April 4 issue asks in an editorial, "Will a Democrat run in '92?"

Although posed in jest, it's a good question. With Bush's popularity in the all-time-high areas, it would look as if the Democrats' 1992 chances would be slim to none. Right now that would appear to be so.

But with popularity ratings as high as Bush's at war's end, that leaves only one direction to go — down. I have a feeling he may be headed in that direction right now — as I write this.

There is a small but valiant band of Democrats out there — none of whom, perhaps, could be considered as presidential-candidate material. They are that courageous group who withstood abuse, persuasion, intimidation, threats and scorn to vote for continued sanctions and against immediate war, in that famous congressional TV debate.

To me this represented parliamentary democracy's finest hour. You could almost see the wrenching struggle with their individual consciences as they weighed the moral factors against the pragmatism of the Republican let's-have-a-war bunch.

It wasn't made any easier by President Bush who proclaimed it a "moral" war. A "just" war — even though his own Episcopalian minister, before his congregation and with Bush present, pronounced it an immoral war.

It took guts, in the face of all this, to stand up in Congress and vote for continued sanctions as a better, more morally acceptable means of dealing with Saddam Hussein "Hitler," remember?

We all knew it was a war for oil, however much this fact was smothered under blankets of administration propaganda. If Kuwait had been the soy bean capital of the world, and if Saddam Hussein invaded and occupied the country because he just couldn't get enough soy beans, could anyone imagine us going in there to drive him out to protect the Kuwaiti people? Sounds pretty silly, doesn't it. Fact is, with Kuwait the producer of some 20 percent of the world's oil, we went in to protect that oil.

It was blood-for-oil all right.

Well, the war sort of ended. No one was quite sure. Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf said he wanted to go deeper into Iraq and maybe, thus, get Hussein. Bush denied he ever mentioned it. A cloud of euphoria swept over the country. Our losses, miraculously, were held to around 200 casualties.

The reluctant-to-fight Iraqis didn't do so well. It's estimated we killed 100,000 Iraqis, military and civilian, as we bombed Iraq "back to the pre-industrial age."

Our postwar patriots pinned yellow ribbons and little flags on their lapels and slapped the "I'm Proud to Be an American" stickers on the bumpers of their Japanese-made cars.

Evaluating the war's costs and results we find these elements:

Goodbye gray, it's May

I have a new clock; I bought it on vacation as a prank. It has become my new best friend and I hit its alarm button several times a day just for a laugh or encouragement. You see, my clock is in the shape of a lovely turquoise cow and its alarm button is its horns. When you press the horns, a deep resonant voice says, "Wake up, you're sleeping your life away." This message is followed by loud clanging of milk pails and then it is repeated. Pretty sobering stuff early in the morning, but it does the job.

The one month I probably won't need my friend the cow is the month of May in Grosse Pointe. It is the one time of year when I practically leap out of bed in the morning. I am not a morning person, which is not to say I don't rise early; it's just that I am not a responsible person for at least two hours after I leave the bedroom.

However, May is different. It is a gift given to Grosse Pointe that is simply too precious to waste. Our options for pure pleasure are boundless. Better than a large dosage of Valium is a walk up Lakeshore to witness the unfolding of miraculous buds, at first delicate and then gaining strength in color and size as they open.

We have more than our share of gray days in this part of the country and we respond to rays of sunlight like happy children. Our windows are thrown open, the tops come down on our cars, we take trips to the nurseries in pursuit of blooms to cultivate, bicycles come out of the garage and fishing gear appears. We are blessed with beautiful parks and places to moor our boats.

There are baseball diamonds in abundance and we celebrate the opening of Little League with parades and floats. We enjoy track and field sports. Tennis courts are opened to receive the countless players from this area who love the sport. Joggers take advantage of the long days with a choice of magnificent sunrises or the soft, subtle hues of the sunsets of spring. The golfers are of good cheer as are their non-playing spouses. The caged tigers are out of the house.

The trees dress for their spectacular annual fashion show. We take rides and walks along our shoreline. We love our gardens and tend them with love. Our lawns telegraph messages of caring to the rest of our neighbors.

As a fitting tribute to the continuity of life and the extraordinary benefits we enjoy in this community, we pause at the end of May to salute those who have served to preserve what we have here. Many of us gather on the lawns at the War Memorial and offer our heartfelt gratitude for the lives we have, the families and friends we hold dear and the sacrifices and courage that have gone before us.

— Offering from the loft

- Our fine service people killed and wounded.
- Thousands of Kuwaiti and Iraqi "little people" subjected to terror, torture and death.

- Hussein's oil dump into the Persian Gulf and the flaming of 500-600 Kuwait oil wells, adding up to the worst intentional ecological disaster in the history of man.

- Billions of our tax dollars spent — funds badly needed for our already-deficient social programs.

For all that cost and tragedy we got these results: Iraq's forces were driven from Kuwait; Hussein ("Hitler" — remember?) who became the Butcher of Baghdad, continues in power, brutalizing his own people with the same tactics he used in Kuwait; Iraq's oil, plus salvaged ordnance, will soon restore that nation's military muscle, continuing it as a threat to its neighbors and the world.

Right now, President Bush is in a tragic involvement with the fleeing Kurds who have been bombed, strafed and terrorized by Hussein's remaining hordes; chased — 50,000 or more — to the Iran-Turkey border. The AP reports Bush in January turned the CIA loose to stir up dissidents in Iraq. It was Bush himself who appealed to the Kurds and Shiites to rise up and topple Hussein.

Our response to their plight is to air-drop relief supplies. Commenting on this tragedy, David Broder, Washington Post columnist, says, "It also reveals something of the character of this president who has demonstrated over and over again that he is ready to 'rise above principle' when it collides with power realities."

All of the above considered, how does a courageous stand or continued sanctions in place of a hasty war look today? How about the gutsy few in Congress who stood for moral principle and belief against the slings and arrows of their peers?

Can you believe that Newt Gingrich, Republican snapping jackal, and Republican Sen. Phil Gramm, he of the bovine visage and intelligence to match, had the temerity to snarl "appeasers" at the courageous congressmen who voted continued sanctions as against instant war.

If you're looking for a Hussein appeaser, take a look at George Bush. As World War II neared its end, nobody proposed putting Hitler back in control of Germany.

Back to the Grosse Pointe News editorial, "Will a Democrat run in '92?" If Gen. Schwarzkopf should be a Democrat, nothing more need be said. If not, which is likely, how about lining up all those who had the moral fiber, guts and basic strong character to vote continued sanctions — which policy looks mighty good right now.

Sen. Al Gore is a declared candidate — his pro-war vote today looks like a character flaw in view of all of the above.

New York Times columnist Anthony Lewis started a recent column thus:

"This was the war to bring about a new world order. It ended a month ago in almost bloodless triumph for the United States and its allies. So we were told.

"But it was not bloodless. It was not a triumph. And it did not end."

That sad situation doesn't even take into consideration the host of domestic issues crying for help. There are notable blank spaces in the character and record of George Bush. Can a qualified Democrat be found to run to fill them? An interesting speculation.

Only one thing is for sure: Whoever the candidate may be, he will not be running against a 91 percent approval rating for George Bush.

Video yearbooks are new traditions at Grosse Pointe schools

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Jon Rakiec has shot more than 10 hours of videotape of students at Parcels Middle School since November.

He recorded students eating, playing basketball, talking about the meaning of life, walking through the halls and chatting with teachers. He's trying to edit it down to a 30-minute remembrance of the year for his fellow students.

"They originally wanted a two-hour video, but it's taken me three days to do the eight minutes I've done," Rakiec said. "Two hours would take my whole life."

Video yearbooks are becoming more common in schools — both Grosse Pointe High schools will have editions this year — but this is the first of its kind for a middle school.

Dr. Julie Corbett, head of the video and television production department at South, helping the students put out their third edition and says the demand for video yearbooks is growing.

"Everybody loves them," Corbett said. "You can have photographs, and you can look back on them, but this is live. You get different memories."

The mainstays of the video yearbook are the same as for the traditional yearbook — dances, school plays and concerts, sporting events, interviews with students about their future plans, and comments from teachers.

Jeff Hastings, school librarian and media specialist at North, said much the same about his school's video yearbook — its first.

"We're just like a yearbook, but it's not formatted the way a yearbook is with choir all together and then all the sports all in another section. We mix them all together," he said.

Most of the footage was taken by students in his introductory video production class, although some students who aren't in the class have contributed.

South sells its 30- to 45-minute yearbook for $16 in advance and $20 later. All proceeds go to the TV Production Club.

"We've made over $2,000 each year," Corbett said. North will air its video on Channel 19 for its students to tape. It will run at 6:30 p.m. June 3, 4, 10, 11, 17, and 18.

Parcels will sell its video for $10.

Orders for any of the yearbooks can be placed at the schools.

Rakiec gives credit for the idea of a video yearbook to Parcels art teacher Mary Fodell and says Corbett and Hastings helped in some aspects of the production. The eighth-grader also received assistance from seventh grader Guy Morrison who has helped put the footage to music.

But it is Rakiec who is doing most of the work — before, during and after school.

"It's sort of a pain; it takes up a lot of time, but it will be worth it," he said.

Jon Rakiec, an eighth grader at Parcels Middle School, is putting together a video yearbook for his fellow students.

Ferrari, Mercedes get man prison

A Grosse Pointe Park man was sentenced April 25 to one year in prison for possessing two stolen motor vehicles in 1989.

Gregory Louis Mushro, 33, was also ordered to pay $14,127 in restitution.

The sentence was handed down by Chief U.S. District Judge Julian Cook after Mushro pleaded guilty Jan. 31 to the offense, according to U.S. Attorney Stephen J. Markman.

Kenneth Chadwell, the assistant U.S. attorney who prosecuted the case, said that the information presented to the court at the time of pleas showed that on July 17, 1989, Mushro was found in possession of a black 1979 Ferrari 308 GTS and a red 1984 Mercedes 280 SL at his home in Grosse Pointe Farms, where he lived at the time.

Each of the vehicles had been stolen at different times from the same residence in the Bronx in New York City during 1987. Further investigation revealed that Mushro was the same person who had previously sold both the Ferrari and the Mercedes to the New York owners before the cars were reported stolen.

Chadwell said the sentence was imposed under federal guidelines according to the nature of the offense and the criminal background of the defendant. Mushro's sentence is non-parolable, according to the sentencing guidelines.

Markman commended the FBI for its investigation that led to the successful prosecution of Mushro.

Why you should have a healthy interest in laser surgery.

If you, or someone you love, need surgery in the future, you'll want all the comforting you can get.

That's why you should know about The Southeast Michigan Laser Center at St. John Hospital and Medical Center, our area's leading medical facility offering the healing advantages of laser surgery.

Gentle surgery. The gentle techniques of laser surgery may now replace conventional scalpel methods in many cases, resulting in less pain, less bleeding, less anesthesia, less time in the hospital, and less time away from work.

In fact, gentle surgery at The Laser Center can mean the difference between a lengthy stay in the hospital and virtually no stay at all.

Surgery without incision. For many patients, independent surgeons at The Laser Center can reach affected areas inside the body without cutting through the skin by using an instrument called a laser endoscope.

In addition to decreased bleeding and scarring, these patients can take comfort in less pain, less anesthesia, and less likelihood of transfusions or complications.

Simply stated, for many patients, surgery at The Laser Center can transform major surgery into an outpatient procedure.

See the light. The benefits of surgery at The Southeast Michigan Laser Center at St. John Hospital and Medical Center are too numerous to mention in this ad.

Call the toll-free number below, and The Southeast Michigan Laser Center will send you this enlightening illustrated booklet free of charge. It will help you discover all of the comforting advantages that laser surgery has to offer.

But call now. And ask your doctor for more information. Because, if you or a member of your family ever need surgery, the independent surgeons practicing at The Southeast Michigan Laser Center could make the situation a lot brighter.

Bronco, Olds 98, Jaguar mark their anniversaries

The public relations people at the automakers have notified the press of a number of anniversary promotions this year, some of which are somewhat obscure occasions that we might not have thought of otherwise.

For example, Ford Motor Co. brought out a special trim package this year for its Bronco's 25th anniversary. If it surprises you that the Bronco has been around for a quarter century, you might be even more surprised to discover that Oldsmobile is offering a special edition of its 1991 Olds Ninety Eight to mark the 50th anniversary of that car line.

"There remains only a handful of new models on the road today that carry a truly historic nameplate and the Ninety Eight is one of those rare cars," said Mike Losh, General Motors vice president and Oldsmobile general manager. Another is the Olds Eighty Eight, which was introduced in 1949 and is now in its 42nd anniversary. Marking a 42nd anniversary is not something automakers do, however, so there is no 42nd anniversary Olds Eighty Eight.

But there is a 50th anniversary Olds Ninety Eight, available in monotone color schemes of black or white, with special "50-year anniversary" emblems on the front fenders, a gold highlighted rocket emblem on the grille and gold striping and gold details here and there, in a very tasteful and handsome scheme.

In fact, 1949 was an historic year for both the Ninety Eight and the Eighty Eight, both of which were equipped with the then-revolutionary high-compression Rocket V-8 engine. In those days, they were the 98 and the 88 series, designations growing out of a system of 60 and 70 series in the '30s. A 70 series with a six-cylinder engine was an Olds 76 and, logically enough, the 78 had a straight eight.

Jaguar sent a team to top executives to Detroit to remind the press that it is the 30th anniversary of a car the Ford subsidiary doesn't even make anymore, the fabled "E-type" Jaguar. It was and still is one of the most beautifully styled cars ever on the market.

And it wasn't just a pretty fascia. It featured monocoque construction, four-wheel suspension and four-wheel disc brakes, features which were largely confined to racing cars in those days. It had a 3.8-liter six, which was upgraded to 4.2 liters in 1965 and in 1971 replaced with the 5.3-liter V-12 that still — in much refined form, of course — powers the E-Type's successor, the XJ-S.

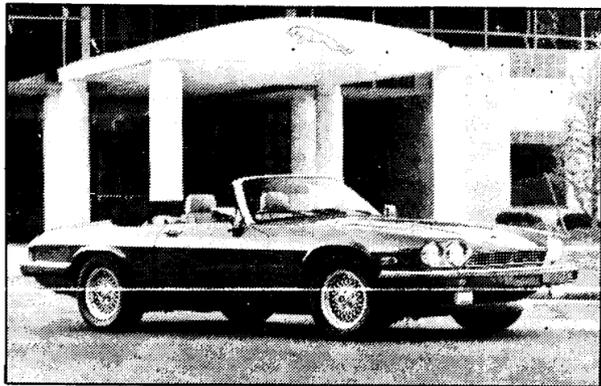

What does a great old design which went out of production in 1974 have to do with today's market? Well, Jaguar is offering a range of fashionable new color and trim combinations called the "Classic Collection," an apparent if somewhat obscure attempt to link today's much more advanced automobile with one from the past which had a clear impact and strong personality.

This may not be a bad idea in this day of look-alike cars (not the Jaguar XJ-S, which itself dates back to 1975 and is quite out of style, although still handsome) and it is a harmless promotion ploy.

Oldsmobile apparently learned its lesson from its ill-fated "not the Oldsmobile your father drove" ad campaign of recent and unlamented memory, which was interpreted by many as knocking the Olds Rocket 88s and 98s which were among the most popular and highly regarded cars ever made in Lansing.

Automobile advertising in general has taken some very odd turns in recent years as makers attempt to build images, culminating in the very minimalist introduction campaign of Nissan's Infiniti, which did not even show the car. Many observers credit that campaign for the very strong launch by Toyota of its Lexus.

Critics of auto advertising claim that consumers, being rational men and women, want information on mechanical features, mileage, reliability, warranty and, yes, price. Deep-think people in the ad agencies say no, consumers are not rational, they are emotional, but there is much evidence — including sales figures — that buyers would like to know more.

Dealership advertising, which should be the most interesting because it is dealing at the retail level with actual automobiles, has been misleading for so long that when confronted with accusations of false claims, salespeople are hurt and surprised that you did not know there was only one loss leader as advertised and it, of course, has been sold.

Over the years, dealers and automobiles alike have shrouded the selling of cars in so much mystery that when Saturn said it wanted its dealers to put firm prices on its cars and to pay wholesale for trade-ins, in order to eliminate the horse-trading aspect of buying a new vehicle — this is what interested the car-buying the most about Saturn.

I have heard from many readers that they would like to deal on a firmer basis and they do not like the fast shuffles and mysterious mathematics that have been part of the retail auto scene for decades.

There are some dealers who have adopted a firm price policy like that urged by Saturn —

Gordon Stewart, for example, whose Gordon Chevrolet and Stewart Chevrolet operate on a straightforward price basis.

Anyway, I can tell you that the 25th anniversary Ford Bronco and the 50th anniversary Olds Ninety Eight and the 30th anniversary Classic Collection Jaguar XJ-S are all very nice, and I can tell you their base prices, but I can only guess what they will cost you.

Kelly, county play stadium game

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

Wayne County executives are willing to play ball with Detroit Tigers president Bo Schembechler and owner Tom Monaghan, but State Senator John F. Kelly (D-Grosse Pointe Woods) thinks it's time to call the Tigers' bluff.

The Tigers have given the City of Detroit and Wayne County until Aug. 1 to come up with detailed plans for a new baseball facility to be built in Detroit.

If the Tigers don't like what they see or if the plans aren't ready by the deadline, Schembechler has indicated that the Tigers will look elsewhere for a home — maybe in the suburbs or even out of state.

Schembechler has said that the ballclub isn't interested in having Tiger Stadium renovated; it wants the city, county or state to build a completely new, open-air stadium — one with natural turf, at least 47,000 seats, luxury suites and on-site parking — that the Tigers can rent.

What's more, the Tigers want to control the concessions and parking facilities.

Deputy Wayne County Executive Mike Duggan and Pat Kukula, director of the Wayne County Alternative Work Force, visited The Grosse Pointe News on April 24 to explain what county executives are doing — and what they hope Wayne County voters will do — in response to the Tigers' stadium demands.

Kukula was campaign manager of a $100,000 revenue bond issue that Wayne voters approved last November to improve Wayne County-Detroit Metropolitan Airport, and has been appointed by Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara to serve as campaign manager of a revenue bond issue to build a "modern" Tiger Stadium.

On Wednesday, Duggan indicated that county executives were leaning toward building a new stadium within a mile of the existing stadium. However, the next day, he said that a "modern" stadium could either mean a renovation of the existing stadium or the construction of a completely new one.

"We're pursuing both avenues," he said by phone last Thursday.

Duggan said that McNamara got wind that the Tigers were thinking about leaving Detroit last December from people in the community who the Tigers had approached regarding possible land acquisition.

Since that time, county officials have been meeting with the Tigers, trying to get them to stay in Detroit.

There are four major problems with the existing stadium, Duggan said: pillars obstruct the view from many seats, which negatively affects ticket sales; narrow aisles inhibit concession sales; unlike newer stadiums, it has no suites, which are a big moneymaker; and there is no on-site parking, which discourages many people from going to the stadium.

Duggan said county officials have been working with Wayne Doran, chairman of the Ford Land Development Co., and a group of other developers to create a plan for a modern (renovated or new) Detroit stadium that would be surrounded by an "enterprise zone."

The enterprise zone would consist of ethnic restaurants, entertainment spots, stores, office buildings, new homes and a nine-hole golf course.

Duggan presented a sketch of what a modern stadium and enterprise zone would look like. In the sketch, parking lots ringed an open-air stadium. A circular road surrounded the parking lots and stadium, and on the other side of the road were more parking spaces and the enterprise zone.

Duggan estimated that the modern ballpark would be eight to 10 acres in size, and that the entire project, including the enterprise zone, would encompass 175 to 200 acres.

Residents who would be displaced by the project would be offered new homes in the enterprise zone, Duggan said.

"We wouldn't want it to be like Poletown," Duggan said. "Those people were upset, and they had reason to be, because they had lived as a community and wanted to stay as a community, but they had to go their separate ways to find housing. We would be offering residents' new houses — albeit not fancy ones — in the same area, so that they could continue to live as a community."

Although plans for the modern stadium are not complete — they don't have to be until Aug. 1 — Duggan estimated that the county would have to pass a $115 million to $120 million revenue bond issue to fund the project.

The bonds would be paid off with stadium revenues, fees paid by developers to build in the enterprise zone, and a possible hotel/motel tax, Duggan said.

If the Tigers approve the stadium plan offered by the county, Wayne voters could be asked to approve the issuance of revenue bonds shortly thereafter.

Duggan said county executives are willing to work with the Tigers because they fear the team will leave Detroit and take one of the city's last remaining hopes for prosperity with it.

"If the Tigers leave, we'll have a terrible time getting anyone to come in and invest in the city," Duggan said. "If they become some other city's Tigers, it will be a death knell for the city of Detroit. They'll be like the Pistons. Everytime the Pistons go on national TV from the Palace of Auburn Hills, it reminds everyone that the Pistons got the hell out of the city."

Kukula said that the Grosse Pointes and other suburbs would also be hurt if the Tigers left Detroit.

She said Tigers games draw people from outlying areas of the state and out-of-state, and that those fans eat at restaurants, stay at hotels and patronize businesses in Detroit and its suburbs.

"Also, a lot of business people entertain their clients in the summer by taking them to a Tiger game," Kukula said. "If the Tigers leave, that's one less event they can go to."

And don't forget that many Tigers settle in the Grosse Pointes, Kukula said, using ex-Tigers Dave Rozema and Kirk Gibson as examples.

Then, Kukula said, there is the tradition of going to Detroit to see a baseball game that is passed down from generation to generation.

"I remember my grandfather taking me," Kukula said. "It's part of the fabric of our society."

Senator Kelly also feels that Tigers games are an important part of Detroit's heritage. However, he and McNamara's people differ on one major point: whereas the county thinks the Tiger-watching tradition could continue at a new Detroit stadium, Kelly thinks the ballpark should stay where it is, for several reasons.

Baseball has been played at Michigan and Trumbull since 1901, Kelly said, and Tiger Stadium is one of the few remaining places where people have "cross generational contact with Detroit."

"In that respect, the stadium takes on an identity that's more than a building or a structure, it serves as a much-needed symbol of continuity in the city," Kelly said. "It's a place where you can bring your children and tell them about the first time you were there, and the first time your parents were there."

However, there are more important reasons than sentimental ones for saving the existing Tiger Stadium, Kelly said.

"If the county thinks it can raise that much money (to build a new ballpark)," Kelly said, "I as a taxpayer would want to see them spend it on indigent health care, foster care programs, public safety, the prevention of infant mortality and programs that will benefit all of society, instead of one flake from Ann Arbor (Monaghan)."

Also, about 17 Corktown restaurants and businesses that are located down Michigan Avenue from the existing stadium and depend on the patronage of Tigers fans would be devastated if the stadium moved even a mile away, Kelly said.

"The county wants to build an enterprise zone and bring in new restaurants and businesses," Kelly said, "but what about all of these people who have been hanging on here (in Corktown) for the past 30 years? What about the small businessman?"

If the Michigan Avenue business strip goes under because of the Tigers relocation, Kelly said, it will hurt Corktown residents — people who take pride in manicuring their lawns and restoring the large old homes where Irish immigrants lived and still live.

"When a town's commercial strip dies out, so does the residential neighborhood," Kelly said.

Renovating Tiger stadium would cost less than building a new stadium, Kelly said.

He estimated that it would cost the county approximately $300 million to build a new stadium — that includes clearing the land, buying out homeowners and businesses, building the necessary roads and other infrastructure, and constructing the stadium and parking lots.

He said that three engineering companies — one hired by Detroit, one hired by the Tiger Stadium Fan Club, and one hired by the county — all said

Deputy Wayne County Executive Michael Duggan, left, and Pat Kukula, campaign manager of a future revenue bond issue to build a modern stadium in Detroit, said they hope all of Wayne County will pull together to keep the Tigers in Detroit. "We don't need a city/suburban fight on this issue," Duggan said. "It's too important."

Summary of the Minutes

City of Grosse Pointe Farms Michigan
April 22, 1991

The Meeting was called to order at 7:30 p.m.

Present on Roll Call: Mayor Joseph L. Fromm, Councilman Emil D. Berg, John E. Danaher, John M. Crowley, Harry T. Echlin, Gail Kaess and Gregg L. Berendt.

Those Absent Were: None.

Also Present: Messrs., William T. Burgess, Counsel, Andrew Bremer, Jr., City Manager, Richard G. Solak, City Clerk, John A. DeFoe, Director of Public Service and Robert K. Ferber, Director of Public Safety.

Mayor Fromm presided at the Meeting.

The Minutes of the Regular Meeting held on April 8, 1991, were approved as corrected.

The Council, acting as a Zoning Board of Appeals, approved the Minutes of the Public Hearing held on April 8, 1991; and further, granted the appeal of Mr. Doug Blatt, 21 Carrington Place, for a variance on Parcel No. 3, adjacent to his home; and further, denied the appeal of Mrs. Glenna McWhirter, 88 Meadow Lane, to construct a two story addition to her existing dwelling.

The Council approved the low bid of Indian Summer Recycling, Inc., for the disposal of yard waste compost.

The Council approved the low bid of Colville Electric Company in the amount of $7,440.00, for upgrading the Pier Park lighting.

The Council adopted a resolution to reschedule the time of the Regular Meeting on May 6, 1991, from 7:30 p.m. to 7:00 p.m.; and further scheduled a Budget Study Session for the purpose of discussing the proposed Operating Budget for Fiscal Year 1991-1992.

The Council approved payment of the Statement of Attorney's Fees from the law firm of Dickinson, Wright, Moon, VanDusen & Freeman, Counsellors at Law, in the total amount of $18,586.35, for various legal services rendered.

The Council adopted a resolution that immediately following adjournment of the Regular Meeting, a Closed Session shall be held for the purpose of discussing the sale or purchase of real property.

Upon proper motion made, supported and carried the Meeting adjourned at 9:30 p.m.

that it would cost less than $75 million to remodel Tiger stadium.

The higher the cost of giving the Tigers a modern stadium, the higher the ticket surcharge will be, Kelly predicted, which would make Detroit baseball a rich man's game.

Ideally, Kelly said he would like to see Tiger stadium renovated and a parking deck placed over I-75. He would also like to see at least the first third of parking-generated revenue go to pay off the revenue bonds and highway money that would likely fund the renovation.

As for Schembechler and Monaghan saying the Tigers will leave Detroit if they don't get a new stadium and the rights to all concessions, Kelly called it "extortion."

"It's a threat, and it's a question of do we respond to the extortion?" Kelly said.

"I say give them part of what they want. Give them the luxury boxes and the parking decks over I-75, but don't build them a new stadium and give them the rights to all the concessions so that they can make a profit while state and county residents pay for it."

Kelly called Duggan's suggestion that a hotel/motel tax be enacted to help pay for a modern stadium unfair.

The senator said that hotel owners are already charged sales tax, a tourism tax and a tax to pay for improvements to Detroit's Cobo Hall.

The state Legislature approved the hotel/motel tax as well as a liquor tax to improve Cobo five years ago. Taxing hotel and motel owners then was justified, Kelly said, because it was thought that an improved Cobo Hall would attract more conventions and thus create more business for hotels and motels in the area.

Charging such a tax for improvements to Tiger Stadium would be unfair, he said, because most of the people who attend Tiger games live in the metro Detroit area and don't go to the game from hotels or motels.

Kelly also thinks that the "enterprise zone" that has been proposed by county officials would wind up being "a boondoggle." He doesn't think it would ever come to pass, let alone be successful, and pointed to Poletown as an example. He said a similar "enterprise zone" was supposed to spring up along the road that surrounds the General Motors plant where Poletown once stood. However, years later, there is no sign of any enterprise zone.

Kelly claims that county officials aren't sincere about studying ways to renovate Tiger stadium, and that they're only saying they are to appease the public and legislators in Lansing.

As of this writing, Kelly has introduced three bills in the state Senate that would allow the county to renovate Tiger Stadium, but would thwart plans to build a new stadium.

The first measure, an amendment to a state highway and transportation department appropriations bill, prohibits state highway funds from being used to pay for a feasibility study for roads, sewers or any other infrastructure for a new stadium anywhere in Michigan.

The amended bill was approved by the Senate last week and has been sent to the House for approval.

The other two bills, Senate Bill No. 197 and Senate Bill No. 198, would prevent any county, city or authority in Michigan from issuing more than $75 million in revenue bonds to construct or renovate a stadium.

The bills would also make it illegal for a Michigan public corporation (including a city, county or stadium authority) to purchase, acquire or construct a professional sports stadium with a seating capacity of more than 25,000 people. Those bills were in the Senate Committee on Government Operations at press time.

Kelly said he has enough bills up his sleeve to stop the county at every turn when it comes to building a new stadium.

Kelly and the Tiger Stadium Fan Club also plan to put the renovation of Tiger Stadium to a vote of the people of Wayne County. They want to have their proposal on the same ballot as any revenue bond issue regarding the construction of a new stadium.

To get the renovation issue on the ballot, Kelly and the fan club need to collect 39,000 signatures. Kelly and lawyers for the fan club are already working on language for such a petition.

"I think of it as being a chess game, and I love playing the game," Kelly said. "I know how to get checkmate on this thing. I know how to win."

Task force takes aim at zebra mussels

The Michigan Zebra Mussel Task Force has called for a four-point approach to controlling the spread of the zebra mussel.

In a report to the Legislature, the task force — which was created by legislative mandate — outlined legislative, research, education and monitoring initiatives to minimize the transport and dispersal of non-indigenous aquatic "nuisance organisms."

"It will take a combined effort by federal, state and Canadian agencies as well as business, industry and members of the public to address this very serious problem," said Director David Hales of the Department of Natural Resources.

The zebra mussel is native to the Black and Caspian seas of Europe. It is presumed the mussel arrived in the Great Lakes basin in 1986 during a ballast water discharge into Lake St. Clair by an ocean-crossing vessel that had taken on the ballast water in a European freshwater port where zebra mussels were present.

Zebra mussels multiply quickly and form dense layers on water intakes, threatening drinking water and industrial water supplies.

Members of the task force include representatives from the DNR, Michigan Sea Grant, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Great Lakes Environmental Research Lab, Department of Public Health, Consumers Power Co., Detroit Edison, Michigan Boating Industries Association, local units of government and universities.

The task force recommendations:

Legislative actions:

1. Pursue Congressional legislation and appropriations through the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to establish a Cooperative Research Unit Program in Michigan. Establishment of the unit will enable researchers to access additional federal funds for Great Lakes zebra mussel management.

2. The Department of Natural Resources with assistance from the Great Lakes Commission should prepare and submit to the nationally appointed "Aquatic Nuisance Species Task Force," a comprehensive management plan for funding of state activities under the Federal Aquatic Nuisance Prevention and Control Act of 1990. This plan should identify where technical and financial assistance is needed within the state to eliminate or reduce the environmental, public health and safety risks associated with aquatic species.

Research:

1. Michigan research institutions and agencies should assist Michigan Sea Grant in the development of a database of ongoing and planned research with compilation of results integrated through the United States Great Lakes Non-Indigenous Species Coordinating Committee. This effort will minimize the duplication of research while providing quick access to results.

2. The Department of Natural Resources should dedicate a percentage of the state's appropriated funds for zebra mussel research to be administered through the Michigan Sea Grants RFP (request for proposal) process to aid in the coordination of research efforts.

3. Research agencies should place high priority on research which will identify and evaluate the likely ecosystem and environmental effects and changes that the zebra mussel is likely to produce at each state of its life history.

Education:

1. The Michigan Zebra Mussel Task Force with assistance from the Office of the Great Lakes should update zebra mussel public information brochure "What Recreational Boaters and Anglers Should Know" and expand distribution to Secretary of State branch offices.

2. The Michigan Department of Natural Resources should request utility companies to provide billing inserts to customers identifying zebra mussel concerns.

3. All agencies and institutions developing information on the zebra mussel should work cooperatively with the Michigan Sea Grant College Program to provide support for a centralized non-indigenous aquatic species information center with a focus on the zebra mussel.

Monitoring:

1. Agencies in the Great Lakes basin involved in monitoring the spread of the zebra mussel should work with the U.S. Coast Guard in the implementation of the federal "Aquatic Nuisance Prevention and Control Act."

2. Utilize existing monitoring programs in the Great Lakes basin that identify the mechanisms by which zebra mussels are dispersed throughout the region including inland waters to document and forecast distribution patterns.

BirthCare™ at Bon Secours.

It's a child's game, but it's also good advice.

Bon Secours was the first hospital in the Detroit area to offer single-room maternity care. This alternative to traditional childbirth allows the mother-to-be to stay in the same warm, comfortable room throughout her delivery. We call it BirthCare, and when we first introduced it, other hospitals were still wheeling their laboring mothers from one room to another.

We thought it was a good idea to design a delivery around the mother, not a delivery around the hospital. That's why BirthCare has become so popular. And that's why a lot of women have chosen Bon Secours as their hospital. Maybe you should, too.

For more information about BirthCare, a tour of the unit, or referrals to qualified obstetricians who can answer questions about your pregnancy, call 779-7911.

Pointe's Clark Durant vows to aid Croatian freedom fight

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe attorney Clark Durant agreed to go to Croatia to witness the peaceful revolution from communism to capitalism at the urging of a supporter of Durant's 1990 U.S. Senate campaign.

"When I said I'd go and even on the flight over there I thought I would just be going to see what was going on," Durant said. "I never expected to come back so touched and excited about these people and their struggle."

Durant is going back to Croatia, but not before he does what he can to bring the Croatian people's struggle for freedom to the attention of political leaders in this country.

Croatia is one of several regions in Yugoslavia which have voted for independence from the central government. Yugoslavia wants to remain part of the Soviet Union.

"It's exactly what we were fighting for 200 years ago," Durant said.

Durant spent his time in Croatia meeting with everyone from Franjo Tudjman, its leader, to shopkeepers, students and soldiers. He wanted to know what they wanted and what they wanted the American people to do.

"They only asked understanding of what they're going through," he said. "They want us to accept what they're doing and why their struggle is just like ours was 200 years ago."

Durant talked with soldiers who said they were protecting the peace, but were really, Durant says, part of the intimidation tactics used by the Yugoslavian government.

He talked with shopkeepers who told him, "We want to be free."

In meetings with Tudjman, Durant was told of Croatia's fear that U.S. policy will focus on recognizing Yugoslavia and not its republics' quest for freedom.

Republican leaders, including Sen. Bob Dole, have urged President Bush to meet Tudjman and discuss the issues. "The Croatian people are suffering, but they're patient," Durant said. "They need our help. One of them said to me, 'America must support our attempt at democracy, if they support democracy at all.'"

Clark Durant, with baseball cap, visited the countryside in Croatia and got pictures of the Yugoslavian army tanks which soldiers say are needed to keep the peace. Durant believes they are there for intimidation, because Croatia wants to break away from the central government.

Farms approves contract to get rid of yard wastes

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

Starting next week, Grosse Pointe Farms will send its lawn clippings, leaves and other yard waste to Indian Summer Recycling in St. Clair County's Casco Township for composting.

The Farms city council unanimously approved a contract with Indian Summer on April 22.

Grosse Pointe Woods approved a similar contract with the company in April.

Under the terms of the four-year contract — which takes effect May 6 — the Farms will pay Indian Summer $25 for each ton of yard waste the city delivers and that price cannot be increased by more than 5 percent during the duration of the contract.

City Clerk Richard G. Solak said that it is estimated that the Farms will generate an average 2,700 tons of yard waste a year, depending on the length of the growing season.

At the rate of $25 a ton, the Farms would pay Indian Summer $67,500 to dispose of 2,700 tons of yard waste.

With the exception of leaves, Solak said, the Farms has been sending its yard waste to the Grosse Pointes-Clinton Refuse Disposal Authority's incinerator in Clinton Township, for a fee of $25 a ton.

Starting last year, leaves were sent to a compost pile operated by the disposal authority in Clinton Township.

The disposal authority doesn't have the room to compost anything except leaves at this time, and it has advised its member communities to find someplace to compost their other yard waste, said Edwin Whedon, general manager of the disposal authority's facilities in Clinton Township.

However, most composting companies want leaves as well as grass, "so it looks like the disposal authority is getting out of the composting business," Whedon said.

The authority is also getting out of the business of incinerating yard waste.

Under state law, incinerators and landfills cannot accept yard waste beginning Jan. 1, 1992.

Farms department of public works (DPW) vehicles will deliver the yard waste to Indian Summer, Solak said. He estimated that it will take the trucks 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 hours to complete a round trip.

The Farms will pay Indian Summer with funds that were budgeted for the delivery of yard waste to the disposal authority's facilities, Solak said, so the new contract will not cost taxpayers any more than they are already paying for trash pickup.

To make sure that only compostable material is sent to Indian Summer, the Farms city council is asking residents to separate their yard waste from their household and kitchen waste beginning May 6.

Yard waste should be placed in clear plastic bags and set on the curb for pickup. Other material should continue to be placed in colored garbage bags and set on the curb or in back of the house, wherever the resident currently places it for pickup.

Farms DPW workers will pick up both clear and colored garbage bags on residents' normal collection day.

Garbage bags may be purchased anywhere, but for residents' convenience, the Farms is selling clear and black bags at city hall. For more information, call city hall at 885-6600.

Hit-and-run suspect fails drunk test

An alleged hit-and-run driver in the Farms was arrested by Shores police April 26 for drunk driving.

A Shores officer was monitoring a report of a hit-and-run incident at Moross and Kercheval at 10:28 p.m. when he spotted the vehicle in question traveling south on Lakeshore, doing 48 mph in a 35 mph zone.

The suspect made an erratic U-turn at Webber Place and proceeded north. The officer reported that the car drifted from lane to lane and then straddled the two lanes. The officer got the driver to pull over at Deeplands.

He reported that when he questioned the driver, he could smell intoxicants. He ordered the driver out of the car and asked him to perform several field sobriety tests, most of which he failed.

A portable breath test indicated the driver, a 35-year-old Warren man, had a blood alcohol level of .20. Legally drunk is .10. A chemical test at the police station put the driver's alcohol level at .21.

Your body's changed, and so have your medication needs

Life is a series of changes — changes that come about so gradually we barely notice until we can no longer ignore them and then we wonder what's happened. This is particularly true of physical changes. One day we have energy and endurance to spare and then suddenly, or so it seems, all the things we once could whiz through take longer to accomplish and leave us tired out.

Our appetites may change and we don't sleep as well as we once did. We seek medical help more often and may end up taking not only what has been prescribed, but over-the-counter drugs as well, or past prescriptions that once helped when we weren't feeling up to par.

Not a smart thing to do, according to an article in the Johns Hopkins Medical Letter, which warns that after 50 our bodies begin to react differently to the same medicines we have been taking for decades. Familiar drugs often have more potent side effects than we have experienced before. Some of these effects may be insignificant, others dramatic. The article cites Valium as an example. It might simply relax the muscles of a 35-year-old man but could make an older woman unsteady with the risk that she could fall and possibly break a hip.

Until recently, there has been little attempt to determine whether older people respond differently to new drugs. Just a few months ago, however, the Food and Drug Administration announced that drug companies would soon be required to provide information to physicians on the specific effects prescription drugs have on older people.

What causes the difference between younger and older people in their reaction to drugs? It has been found that as we grow older, the proportion of muscle and water in our bodies decreases, while the level of fat increases. These changes can affect the amount of time a fat-soluble drug stays in the body, and thus the amount of the drug that is absorbed. Also, since there is less water in our bodies as we age, drugs that are water-soluble are less diluted and more concentrated for a given dosage level.

Moreover, the kidneys and the liver — the two organs mainly responsible for breaking down and removing drugs from the bloodstream — begin to function less efficiently with age, allowing the level of a drug to build up in the blood and produce a greater impact than was intended.

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

People past the age of 50 — who tend to suffer a greater number of illnesses — also take more drugs than younger people. Between the ages of 55 and 64, men and women are given an average of eight prescriptions for medicines every year.

Older people take not only prescription drugs, but over-the-counter drugs, too — and all these medications can have adverse interactions with one another. People over the age of 65, comprising only 12 percent of the population, consume more than 30 percent of all prescription drugs and 40 percent of over-the-counter drugs. While physicians and pharmacists carefully seek to avoid interactions among the primary effects of a combination of drugs, the combined side effects are sometimes overlooked.

We are advised to keep a record of all medications. Note the name of the drug, the doctor who prescribed it, the amount you take and the times of day you take it, along with comments on any allergies or other reactions the medications have caused. Leave a space where you can check off the doses as you take them, so you don't lose track. If for some reason you need to see a new doctor, take your medication record with you, so your new physician can see what medicine you are currently taking.

Be sure to call your physician immediately if you notice any new side effect.

Avoid taking medicines in the dark — and if you need glasses for reading, put them on to make certain you have the right container.

Don't take drugs prescribed for someone else; they might react badly with other medicine you take or cause an allergic reaction.

Store your medication in a cool, dry place — not in the bathroom medicine cabinet where steam might affect it.

Don't drink alcoholic beverages while taking medication unless your physician okays it.

According to the FDA, of the 100 medicines most commonly prescribed, over half contain at least one substance that reacts badly with alcohol.

Finally, be aware that the pharmaceutical industry is undergoing what may be described as a "marketing metamorphosis," according to Troy Festervand, a professor of marketing at the University of Mississippi. Drug companies are spending millions on advertising and publicity promoting prescription drugs directly to consumers instead of to doctors, as they have done for years.

Whether the drugs are good or bad; good for some people, bad for others; cause negative side effects, or not, consumers are urged to ask for them by brand name, without possessing all the information or background they need.

Studies show that a significant number of people ask their doctors about advertised drugs. The drug companies say this is good because it stimulates people to deal with previously ignored symptoms and see their doctors about them.

While the FDA requires that all ads carry full disclosure about side effects, to be safe and sure, the best procedure is to let your doctor decide what medicines are best for you.

Mature driving class offered

"55/Alive Mature Driving," a class co-sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Public School System and the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) will be offered in a two-day session beginning at noon, Thursday, May 9 in room 102 of Barnes School, 20090 Morningside Drive in Grosse Pointe Woods.

More than 200,000 American drivers over 55 have taken this course designed to improve driving skills and prevent accidents. The course is recognized by all 50 states as an approved driver improvement course.

The class, taught by Lucien Fay, is free. An $8 materials fee, payable to the AARP will be collected at the first meeting.

Call 343-2178 for more information.

Bon Secours begins expansion

The Michigan Department of Health recently approved Bon Secours Hospital's certificate of need for expansion of its Emergency Services Department.

The $1.5 million expansion, currently under way and set for completion in September, will allow the department to accommodate up to 35,000 patients a year, according to Joanne Vitale, R.N., emergency services charge nurse. The facility now serves about 25,000 patients annually.

"The renovation will include the addition of four general treatment rooms, a mini-laboratory, a radiology room, a second orthopedics room and a second gynecology room," Vitale said. "The department will be divided into two areas — one for seriously ill patients and one for patients with less severe injuries and illnesses such as sore throats, sprains or simple lacerations.

"We will also be doubling the size of our triage area, where R.N.s evaluate patients' conditions as they arrive," she added. "This ensures that patients in serious distress are seen immediately by an emergency medicine physician."

The changes, planned and coordinated by Dr. Ronald Laskowski, emergency services department medical director; Donna Micallef, R.N., clinical nurse manager; and Bon Secours administration, are aimed at improving efficiency in patient treatment, Vitale said.

Another key improvement in patient services will be the addition of new cardiac telemetry equipment and three pressure monitors, which provide a continuous and much more accurate way of monitoring arterial blood pressure.

Emergency department personnel will also be increased.

Outstanding

William Gehrke Jr., Grosse Pointe South student, was the 1991 winner of Vice President of Finance from South-eastern Michigan.

Gehrke will compete in August at the International Students Forum at Indiana University in Bloomington, Ind. for the National Competition level.

Several Grosse Pointe students recently trained for a space adventure and studied the future of scientific exploration at U.S. Space Camp in Huntsville, Ala.

The students were Tracy Riddell of Grosse Pointe Farms, Amanda Watkins of Grosse Pointe Park, Danielle Caralis of Grosse Pointe Shores and Carolyn Baiocchi and Philip Morgan of Grosse Pointe Woods.

Space Camp trainees sample astronaut training by using special astronaut training simulators.

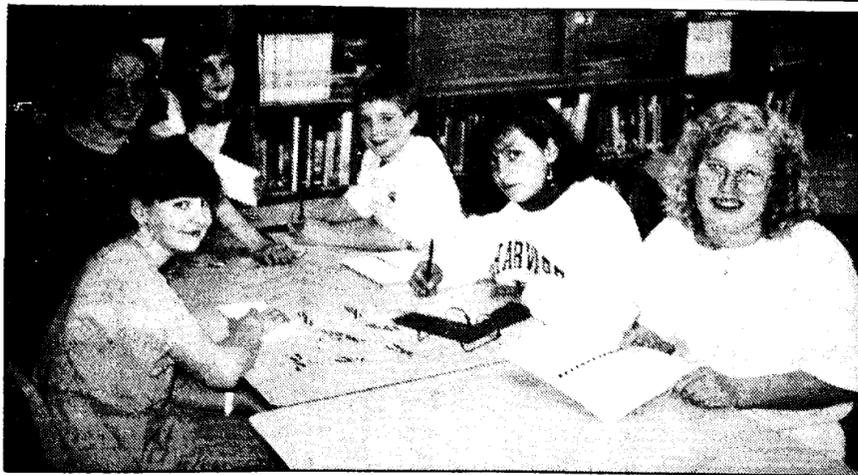

Cookbooks to raise funds

St. Ambrose Parish will sponsor a fundraising drive Sunday, May 5.

Community cookbooks which will feature favorite recipes from contributors of Grosse Pointe Park and the surrounding area will be sold.

The price of the cookbooks is $10. The sponsoring group asks that you reserve a book now to guarantee getting one.

For more information, call St. Ambrose Parish at 822-2814.

Cheers to volunteers

Students in Marjorie Angyal's sixth-grade class at Brownell Middle School are getting ready to honor its many volunteers. As part of the curriculum, each student in the school will write a thank you to a particular volunteer.

Gifted program ends

Kathryn Luchs, an Ann Arbor-based painter, printmaker and photographer, is completing a series of art workshops for middle and high school students in the Grosse Pointe public schools this year.

Some students will continue their work with Luchs this summer. Since Luchs' visits were sponsored by the Michigan Council for the Arts, the program will end this year due to loss of state funding. The program was to continue for three years.

Parents are invited to the Monday, May 6 meeting of the Grosse Pointe South Mothers Club at 12:45 p.m.

A short business meeting will be followed by presentations by South students, juniors Melissa Grego and Chris Marston, who will report on their experiences at Presidential Classroom, a week-long program in Washington, D.C. which offers students the opportunity to learn about government.

Following Grego and Marston, the Radio Astronomy Team students will chronicle their development of a 1400 MHz, an 18-foot radio telescope which is believed to be the first of its kind in the country. Tours of the control room and viewing of the telescope will follow the meeting.

Team members include Jamie Elsil, Bob Kalogerakos, Katrina Koski, Derek Harris, Vince Cruz, Joyce Stuckey and Les Ward and Brian Earl of Grosse Pointe North.

Pizza time!

Jean Strachan's first-grade class at Defer School met its reading goals established in a five-month program offered by Pizza Hut and were rewarded with free pizza and soft drinks at the restaurant on Harper. Each student read four to five books each month. Above is Jennifer Richardson Rorsbach and Elizabeth Radjowski.

Student Spotlight

Jill Bramos

Each week in this column, we will focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a wood-working project, a book review.

The following Japanese Haiku poem, following the prescribed syllabic pattern of 5-7-5, was written by Jill Bramos, a first-grader at Poupard Elementary School. Her parents are Judith and Michael Bramos of Harper Woods.

Haiku

My Mom said, "Hi! Jill."
I said back to her, "Hi! Mom."
I love you, Mother.

Kindergarten open for visits

The Grosse Pointe Christian Day School will hold its annual kindergarten roundup Tuesday, May 7.

The kindergarten classroom will be open for visits by parents and children considering kindergarten enrollment this fall.

Principal Kathryn Broege will give an overview of the school and its policies.

Parents of children who will be 5 years old by Sept. 1 are welcome to visit. The roundup will be held from 10-11 a.m. at 1444 Maryland in Grosse Pointe Park.

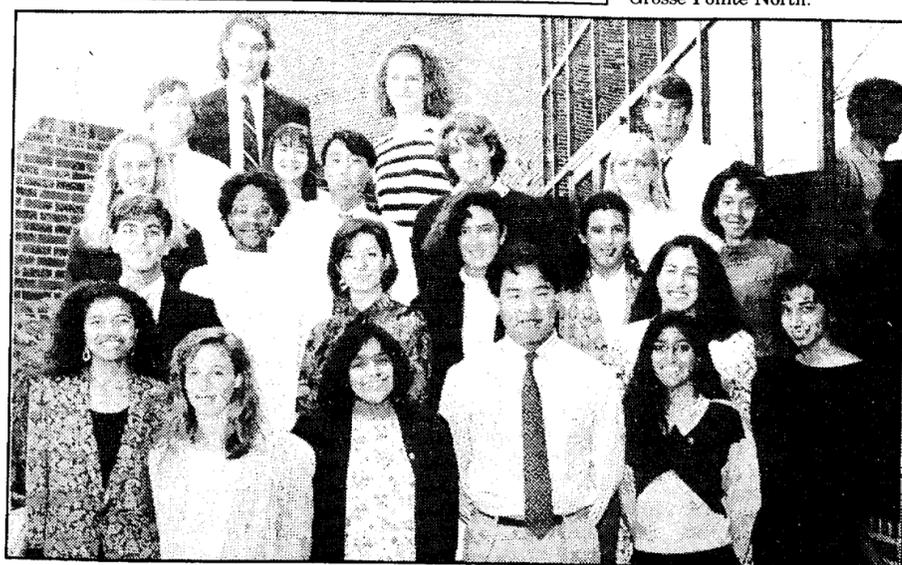

For more information, call 821-6159.

Aerobics class to begin

Take the jogging, jumping and other potentially injurious moves out of your exercise routine with Patricia Hagen in her class, "Fitness in Tempo: Low Impact Aerobics."

The class meets Tuesdays and Thursdays, starting May 14, from 6:30-7:30 p.m., or on Saturdays, beginning May 18, from 9:35-10:35 a.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

The fee is $52 for 16 sessions or $26 for eight Saturday sessions. Call 881-7511.

DiBiaggio is speaker at annual induction

Michigan State University President John DiBiaggio was the guest speaker at University Liggett School's annual induction into the Cum Laude Society April 11.

New seniors inducted include Sam Chung, Alexandra Hambright, Martina Jerant, James Kim, Manisha Kulkarni, Lisa Lombard, Alexander Stine and Yohanna Suczek. Junior inductees include Lila LaHood, Laura Keyt, Crystal Martin, David Niccolini, Kiran Mishra, Shalini Srivastava and Paula-Rose Stark.

The Cum Laude Society was founded in 1906 at the Tome School in Maryland. Charters of membership have been granted to schools of acknowledged academic superiority. The ULS chapter was founded in 1944.

Membership is based on grade point average, the student's commitment to challenge in terms of the number of honors classes taken and his/her overall involvement in the school.

Art Fest begins

Grosse Pointe South's 10th annual Art Fest will run May 7-10 in Cleminson Hall. On display will be several hundred pieces ranging from drawings, paintings, ceramics, jewelry, sculpture, photography, fibers and metal. The Art Fest will be open to the public Tuesday, May 7, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. with awards presented at 8 p.m. and Wednesday and Thursday, May 8 and 9, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. and Friday, May 10, from 8 a.m. to noon. Purchased art may be picked up from noon to 3 p.m. Friday, May 10. Co-chairpersons for this year's Art Fest are Kathy Hess and Marianne Maccagnone. Winners of the Art Fest poster contest are Patrick Labadie for 1991 and Amanda Ault for 1992.

Participating students will donate 20 percent of the proceeds from the sale of their work to the Robert R. Rathburn Memorial Fund, established for the use of scholarships, art awards or enrichment activities for the students. Personal donations may be made to the fund. For more information, call the art department at 343-2147.

Blue and gray to battle at Fort Wayne

The thunderous roar of cannon fire will herald the beginning of special events to be held at Historic Fort Wayne for the 1991 season on May 4 and 5 as the fort celebrates its 17th annual Civil War Days.

Authentically clad and equipped re-enactors will portray Union and Confederate soldiers and will demonstrate military life during the 1860s. Civilian participation in the Civil War will not be overlooked in this authentic re-enactment. Volunteer interpreters will re-enact the roles played by relief agencies and societies as well as local townsfolk. There will also be patriotic entertainment.

Although budget cuts have forced the fort to limit its schedule, it will offer a number of special events this year, all of which will be open to the public. The only remaining river fort built during the city's 300-year history, Fort Wayne offers visitors an experience that can't be found anywhere else for hundreds of miles.

Gates open at 9:30 a.m. and close at 5 p.m. Admission is by donation.

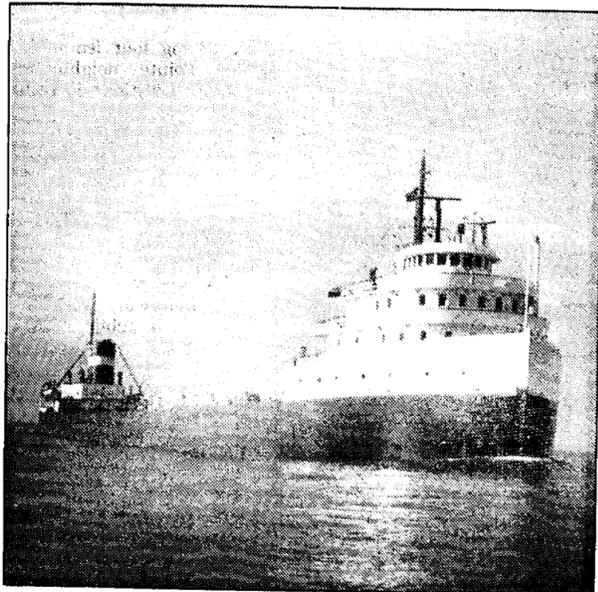

Historic Fort Wayne is located at the foot of Livernois and W. Jefferson, off I-75 and is a Detroit Historical Department institution.

Piano recital

The students of Penny Ma-souris will give their annual piano recital on Friday, May 3, in the parlor of the Grosse Pointe Academy at 7:30 p.m.

It is open to the public and dessert will be served following the performance.

Participants include Leslie Petersen, Alexis Ramsey, Kiran and Seema Mishra, John Harrison, Rodney Ibus, Devan Kent, Sue VanAssche, Ryan Kirles, Parit Petel, David Kraft, Greg Monastersky, Caitlin Shapiro, Danielle Curis, Leah Dantzer, Chelsea Solak, Emily Mulford, Suzanne King, Peter Weiss, Noel Egnatios, Vinnie Lapiana, Willie Glass, Scott Graham, Michael and Bobby Jacquet and Jennifer Darkangelo.

The Ford family and their freighters will be part of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society presentation May 9.

Topic to tie Grosse Pointe, commercial shipping

"Grosse Pointe and Commercial Shipping" is the subject of a presentation of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society on Thursday, May 9, at 7:30 p.m. in Miller Hall, behind Christ Church, 61 Grosse Pointe Blvd. in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Mike Skinner, member of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society board, will include the Ford Motor Co. vessels — Henry Ford II and Bensen Ford — and their connection to Grosse Pointe families.

Skinner is active in both the Grosse Pointe and Dearborn historical societies and has served as a tour guide at Fair Lane for 13 years. His special interest is the history of the automotive industry and the automotive pioneers. Skinner is human resources manager at Technicolor Videocassette of Michigan.

The fee for the presentation is $3 for members of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society and $5 for non-members.

Sunday Strolls planned Spring concert

Tours of Old Walkerville, Woodmere Cemetery and the largest public art project in America are among the May program offerings by the Detroit Historical Society.

The 13th season of the popular Sunday Stroll series begins with tours of two unique locations.

The May 5 stroll features a tour of Old Walkerville, Ontario, a distinct community totally planned and almost entirely owned by the Walker Family in the early 20th century. Stroll guide University of Windsor art history Professor Michael Farrell will give participants the history of this fascinating city which features buildings designed by Albert Kahn and Ralph Adams Cram.

On May 19, historian Martin Brosnan will lead strollers through Woodmere Cemetery. Once a favorite Indian hunting and camping place, the cemetery is now the burial ground of lumber baron David Whitney, Governor John Bagley, Rabbi Leo N. Franklin, Rev. James D. Liggett, and James Vernor — to name a few of the notables to be discussed on the stroll.

Jacoby's restaurant and a tour of the People Mover Station Art — the nation's largest public art project — is the subject of the May 16 Pubs & Clubs tour. The tour will begin with a behind-the-scenes ride on Detroit's People Mover, featuring a lecture and viewing of the $2,000,000 art gracing its stations, continuing with dinner at Jacoby's.

Both Sunday Strolls begin at 2 p.m. and are $3.50 for members and $4.50 for non-members. Tickets are available by mail only and no tickets are sold on the day of the stroll. The Pubs & Clubs tour begins at 6:30 p.m. and tickets are $35 for members and $40 for non-members.

For more information, call 833-7934.

Join in the annual Spring College Concert at University Liggett School on Friday, May 3, at 7:30 p.m. in the school auditorium, 1045 Cook Road.

The concert will feature the upper school band, chorale and dance troupe, as well as dramatic readings and selected solos by award-winning performers. The school's jazz choir and its all-male and all-female a cappella groups — Persuasions and Knightengales — will also perform.

The concert is free and open to the public. For more information, call 884-4444.

North to present spring concert

Grosse Pointe North's Instrumental Music Department will present its annual spring concert Thursday, May 9, at 8 p.m. in Parcels Auditorium.

The featured soloist will be Charles Smith, winner of the Grosse Pointe Symphony Nestor scholarship this year. He will perform the Hungarian Rhapsody by Popper with accompaniment by the Symphony Orchestra, which will also perform Handel's Suite No. 1 from the Water Music and the William Tell Overture by Rossini.

The Symphonic Band will then play the Glasgow Fair March, Ballet Parisien by Offenbach, Carter's Rhapsodic Episode, and Semper Fidelis by Sousa.

To close the program, the Band and Orchestra Strings will combine to play Gliere's Russian Sailors' Dance, Elgar's Nimrod from Enigma Variations, and the American Salute by Gould.

Admission to the concert is free. For information, call Ralph Miller, instrumental music director, at 343-2240.

Take mom to breakfast

The Italian Cultural Center will serve a Mother's Day pancake breakfast Sunday, May 5, from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. The center is at 28111 Imperial Drive, Warren.

The cost for all-you-can-eat pancakes, sausage, coffee and orange juice is $5 for adults and $2.50 for children 12 and under.

To reserve a spot, call 751-2855 by May 3. Tickets will be sold at the door on an availability basis.

For more information, call the center at 751-2855.

Rose society to meet May 8

The Grosse Pointe Rose Society will meet Wednesday, May 8, at 7:45 p.m. at the Neighborhood Club.

Ellen Quinlan, chairwoman of the artistic section for the annual June rose show, will explain and illustrate types of arrangements that will be on display.

The second part of the program will be audience participation, including things that should be done in the garden at this time of the year, how to prepare fungicides, how to divide bushes, how to train climbing roses and other concerns.

The meeting is open to anyone interested in growing roses or creating arrangements. For more information, call 885-5073.

Bavarian fest planned

The Detroit Edelweiss Club will present its annual Bavarian Mai Fest on Saturday, May 4, at the St. Lawrence Knights of Columbus Hall in Utica, 44425 Utica Road.

The kitchen will be ready to serve at 6:30 p.m. when the hall opens. Choose from a variety of sausages including bratwurst and knackwurst, hot veal loaf, German potato salad, sauerkraut and delicious steak tartar sandwiches. The bar will serve beer, wine and soft drinks.

At 8 p.m. an entertainment program of music and dance will begin with dancing by the three Edelweiss groups - adult and children Schuhplattlers and folk dancers. The Rheinlander band will play waltzes, tangos, polkas, fox trots, laendlers and other traditional and modern dances.

'Crimes of Heart'

East Detroit Theatre will present "Crimes of the Heart," a drama by Beth Henley.

Performances will be at Oakwood Junior High, 14825 Nehls, one block south of Nine Mile and Hayes, on May 10, 11, 16, 17 and 18. All performances will be at 8 p.m.

For more information, call Tom at 771-7893.

Wine on women

Sherwin T. Wine will discuss three outstanding figures in history - Catherine the Great, Tuesday, May 7; Margaret Thatcher, Tuesday, May 14; and Greta Garbo, Tuesday, May 21.

The daytime lecture series meets from 10-11:30 a.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. The series is $20, or $8 for a single session.

For more information, call 881-7511.

White Cane Week

More than 20,000 Michigan Lions will solicit donations between April 26 and May 5, White Cane Week.

The Lions seek public support of their many sight conservation projects. Major projects include: Leader Dogs for the Blind in Rochester; Michigan Eye Bank and Transplantation Center in Ann Arbor; and Welcome Home for the Blind (a home for the elderly blind) in Grand Rapids.

Funding for eye examinations and eyeglasses for the needy is another important service provided by many Lions Clubs.

The White Cane Law states that drivers of vehicles shall take all necessary precautions when approaching a crosswalk, or any other pedestrian crossing, to avoid accident or injury to a blind person carrying a cane or being led by a guide dog in harness.

Public Accommodation Laws require that all public facilities must permit a blind person being led by a guide dog in harness to enter and use such premises.

Walking tour planned

A walking tour featuring a Grosse Pointe neighborhood and its preservation will be presented jointly by Grosse Pointe Community Education and the Grosse Pointe Historical Society on Sunday, May 19, at 2 p.m. at Grosse Pointe South High School.

Jean Dodenhoff, curator of the historical society, will lead the tour and discuss how the Grosse Pointes are working to preserve both public and private buildings.

The springtime tour will be in the area bounded by Fisher Road, Jefferson Avenue, Edgemere Road, McKinley Place and Grosse Pointe Boulevard. Buildings include the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, Grosse Pointe Memorial Church and structures by architects such as Albert Kahn. Grosse Pointe South High School will be available to visit following the walking tour.

Advance reservations are required through Community Education, 343-7010.

BEAT THE INVASION OF THE BODY SNATCHERS THIS SPRING.

They're here . . . Those little demons known to medicine as "allergens" are here to take control of your body. They'll make your nose run, your eyes itchy, they may even surprise you with hives all over your face.

But one way or another, they're going to get you.

Caused by pollens or molds, animal dander or house dust, allergies are nothing more than an abnormal reaction to ordinary, garden-variety substances.

While researchers still don't know why allergies affect some and not others, the diagnostic techniques and treatments now available are better than ever.

If you'd like more information on the things you can do to make allergy season easier or a referral to a specialist in this field, call our toll-free number.

We can help you keep the body snatchers under control.

Joey Ranger

Joseph (Joey) Ranger

Services were held April 25 for Joseph J. Ranger, 10, of Grosse Pointe Park, at St. Germaine Catholic Church in St. Clair Shores. He died of cystic fibrosis on April 22, 1991, at St. John Hospital in Detroit.

Joey was a third-grader at Kerby Elementary School in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Born Feb. 1, 1981, Joey was diagnosed as having cystic fibrosis when he was 1-1/2 months old.

He had a strong love of sports, and during one of his frequent hospital stays he met and became friends with Mike O'Connell, Dave Barr and Steve Yzerman of the Detroit Red Wings. Through a United Way fundraiser at St. John Hospital in Detroit, Joey was also able to meet John Salley of the Detroit Pistons.

The Make-A-Wish Foundation of Michigan made Joey's dream of going to Disneyworld in Orlando, Fla., come true, and allowed him to accompany his sister, Melissa, on her dream trip to Santa Monica, Calif., to meet singer Debbie Gibson and be part of the Arsenio Hall talk-show audience.

Since the age of 4, Joey wanted to meet Hulk Hogan. Titan Sports made that dream come true.

"Joey's mother said, 'His family would like to sincerely thank everyone who helped make Joey's life so special.'"

Joey is survived by his mother, Juliann Ranger; father, John Ranger; stepmother, Wanda Ranger; brother, Michael; sister, Melissa; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Ranger, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Meunier.

Arrangements were made by the A.H. Peters funeral home in Grosse Pointe. Burial was in Resurrection Cemetery in Clinton Township.

Byron M. Horsley

Byron M. Horsley, 61, a 25-year resident of El Toro, Calif. and a former longtime resident of Grosse Pointe Farms, died April 6, 1991, in Saddleback Hospital in Laguna Hills, Calif.

Born in Detroit, Mr. Horsley graduated from Grosse Pointe High School, attended college for a few years, and served in the Navy during the Korean war. He was a district sales manager for Chrysler in Detroit and later worked for Wynn Oil in California. At the time of his death, he was vice president of Hewitt Industries in California.

Mr. Horsley is survived by his wife, Dianna; daughters, Kristen Horsley of Germany, Lynn Morgan of Sterling Heights; sons, William Horsley of Mount Clemens; two grandchildren; mother, Maybelle Horsley of Modesto, Calif.; and brother, Ronald Horsley of Modesto, Calif. Cremation took place in California. Memorial contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society.

Margaret Rose Barton

A memorial service will be held from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Friday, May 10, at the Belle Isle Detroit Boat Club for former Grosse Pointe Farms resident Margaret Rose Barton. She died of cancer on Dec. 11, 1990, at the Peachwood Inn in Rochester Hills.

Miss Barton was born May 10, 1901, in Sault Ste. Marie. The memorial service is being held on what would have been her 90th birthday.

Miss Barton received her bachelor of arts degree in education in June 1923, and taught school in Sault Ste. Marie and Cleveland and then moved to Detroit where she taught at Redford High School from September 1925 to February 1932.

She then taught at Cooley High School and received her master of arts degree from the University of Michigan in February 1943.

During World War II, Miss Barton was an air raid warden and worked at Ford Motor Co. during summer school breaks. She traveled extensively abroad during her teaching years and, after retiring from Cooley in 1963, still enjoyed traveling.

Miss Barton was a past president of the Detroit branch of the American Association of University Women and was awarded a life membership in the Michigan Education Association in 1958.

She also had an honorary life membership in the Detroit Retired Teachers Association and a life membership in the Order of the Eastern Star. The Women's City Club of Detroit honored her in 1985 for 60 years of membership and service.

In addition, she was a member of the The Daughters of the British Empire and was active for many years as a volunteer at Cottage Hospital and other organizations in the Grosse Pointe area.

She is survived by her brothers, Angus of Oshawa, Ontario and George Barton of New Baltimore; three nieces; four nephews and 12 grand-nieces and nephews.

Memorial contributions may be made to the building fund of Presbyterian Village East, New Baltimore, where Miss Barton resided for the past year and where her brother, George, lives.

Virginia L. Radke

Services were held for Virginia L. Radke, 64, of St. Clair Shores, on April 29, 1991, at St. Paul on the Lake Catholic Church in Grosse Pointe Farms. She died April 26, 1991, at St. John Hospital in Detroit.

Virginia L. Radke

Born on Nov. 12, 1926, in Antwerp, Belgium, Mrs. Radke was the co-owner of Radke Hardware and Hockey Center in St. Clair Shores.

She was a member of the Lochmoor Club and St. John Hospital's Fontbonne Auxiliary.

Mrs. Radke is survived by her husband, Emil (Bud) J. Radke; daughters, Patricia Sulek, Linda Jenny and Margie Selvaggio; sons, Michael and Bruce; two grandchildren; and sister, Natalie of Belgium.

Arrangements were made by the Kaul funeral home in St. Clair Shores. Memorial contributions may be made to the Virginia L. Radke Memorial Fund, in care of the Capuchin Monastery Mount Solanus Guild, 1780 Mount Elliott, Detroit, Mich. 48207.

Roberta (Flinn) Ottaway

Services were held April 29 at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church in Grosse Pointe Farms for Roberta (Flinn) Ottaway. A longtime resident of Grosse Pointe Farms, she died April 26, 1991, at Bon Secours Hospital in Grosse Pointe, at the age of 83.

Born in Sherman, W.Va., Mrs. Ottaway attended the University of Michigan and graduated from the St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital School of Nursing. During World War II, she was a volunteer at Harper Hospital teaching courses in first aid.

Mrs. Ottaway's hobbies included horseback riding, photography, gourmet cooking, needlework and gardening.

In addition to their home in Grosse Pointe Farms, Mrs. Ottaway and her husband had a cottage near Port Huron and a winter home in Key Largo, Fla.

She is survived by her sons, Robert Flinn of East Lansing, John Palmer Jr. of Wallon Lake and Village of Golf, Fla.; daughter, Jane Dow of Grosse Pointe Farms; nine grandchildren; a great-granddaughter; brother, Ernest Flinn of War, W.Va.; two nieces and two nephews. She was preceded in death by her husband, Dr. John Palmer Ottaway.

Burial was in Hillside Cemetery in St. Clair. Memorial contributions may be made to the organ fund at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Lillian Myers Pear

Private services were held April 25 under the direction of the A.H. Peters funeral home in Grosse Pointe Woods for Lillian Myers Pear, 97, of Grosse Pointe Park. She died April 23, 1991, at Henry Ford Continuing Care Center in Roseville.

She was born April 14, 1894, in Michigan.

Lillian Myers Pear

An artist, Mrs. Pear's work is represented in both private and public collections. She wrote several historical articles on Michigan and art, including the research book, "The Pewabic Potter: A History of Its Products and Its People."

Active in civic affairs well into her eighties, she was a past president of the American Association of University Women, Grosse Pointe branch; the League of Women Voters, Grosse Pointe branch; the College Women's Club in Detroit; the Fine Arts section of the Michigan Academy of Science, Arts and Letters; the Grosse Pointe Artists' Association; and was a former national president of Questors, Inc.

Her many honors include a gold medal from the Michigan Academy of Arts and Letters and a Life Fellowship from the International Institute of Arts and Letters in Zurich.

She is survived by her husband, John R. Pear; sons, Robert and Richard; two grandchildren; two great-grandchildren; and a sister, Florence Otis of New York City.

Burial was in White Chapel Cemetery in Troy.

Scott David Cardwell

Services were held April 22 at the Murphy and Hauss funeral home in Macomb Township for Scott David Cardwell, 38, of Macomb Township. A 1971 graduate of Grosse Pointe South High School, he died of cancer on April 18, 1991, at St. John's Macomb Hospital in Mount Clemens.

Mr. Cardwell was employed by TRW Vehicle Safety Systems. He attended St. Paul Elementary School in Grosse Pointe Farms as well as Grosse Pointe South High School, and received a bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering from Oakland University and a master's degree in mechanical engineering from the University of Michigan in 1978.

An avid sportsman, he worked with youth groups and participated in church-related activities.

He is survived by his wife, Kerre M.; son, Trevor Joseph Cardwell; parents, Lampton J. and Marion K. Cardwell of Grosse Pointe Farms; sister, Sally Plonsky of Boca Raton, Fla.; grandmother, Alberta Cardwell of Holiday, Fla.

Burial was in Clinton Grove Cemetery in Clinton Township. Memorial contributions may be made to Good Shepherd United Methodist Church in St. Clair Shores.

Student Council goes to City Hall

Members of the Trombly Student Council got their way with the Grosse Pointe Park City Council at the April 19 meeting.

The student council requested that the city repair sunken sidewalks and city property along the street near Trombly Elementary School. The students presented reports, measurements, photos and signatures of students and faculty to the council to support their position.

The council, realizing the justification of the Trombly students' requests, quickly agreed and said it would meet with the school board to get the sidewalks fixed and low ground filled.

Learn watercolor

Experience the freshness and spontaneity of painting with watercolor in a two-session workshop at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial on Thursday, May 16, 12:30-3:30 p.m., and Friday, May 17, 9 a.m.-3:30 p.m.

Subject matter will include flowers, abstracts, buildings and the sea. Varied techniques and their effects will be studied, like wet-in-wet and glazing.

Each class will begin with a demonstration by instructor Jan Mayer, who studied Southwest American art in New Mexico and will share her ideas with the class.

Students work at their own pace. This class is designed for beginners as well as those who have painted for many years.

Class fee is $35 for two sessions. For more information, call 881-7511.

Every fifth fire arson, suspicious

Last year in Michigan, 22 percent of all fires reported were classified as arson or suspicious.

In 1990, there were 4,564 incendiary and another 8,200 suspicious blazes reported in Michigan, according to recent figures released by the state fire marshal.

Michigan taxpayers paid more than $80 million last year in direct arson and suspicious fire losses. These figures do not include costs such as medical care, funeral expenses, temporary shelter, business interruption, demolition, fire investigation, prosecution, jailing and increased insurance premiums.

The number of arson and suspicious fires was up slightly last year. In 1990, there were 12,764 incendiary and suspicious blazes, compared to 12,723 in the previous year. Dollar loss, however, jumped 12 percent last year, compared to 1989 statistics.

To focus attention on the problem of arson, Gov. John Engler has issued an official declaration designating May 5-11 as Arson Awareness Week in Michigan.

The Michigan Arson Prevention Committee, which represents fire and police services, the insurance industry, business and government, is promoting the anti-arson observance.

Although not all arsons can be prevented, there are some precautions property owners can take to deter arsonists. Officials suggest the following:

- always keep doors and garages locked,
- keep yards well-lighted
- make sure the property is free of trash and debris and
- report all suspicious activity to local law enforcement officials.

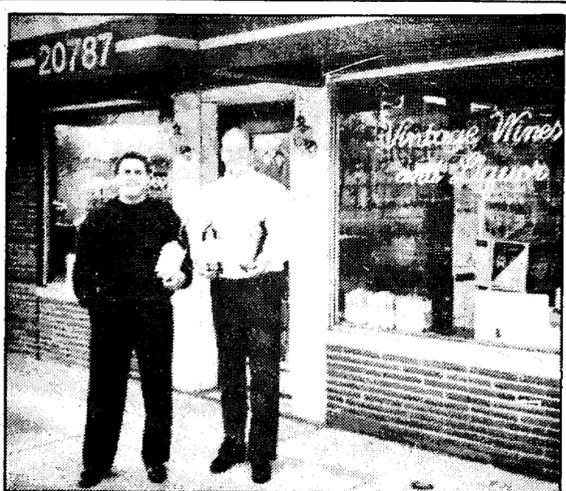

Also, anyone who has information about an arson or suspicious fire can call Arson Control at 1-800-44-ARSON. The program offers rewards up to $5,000 for information which leads to the arrest and/or conviction of arsonists.

Cut those coupons

"Couponing for Fun and Profit," a new class, will be held Tuesday, May 7, at 7 p.m. in room 101 of Barnes School, 20090 Morningside Drive, Grosse Pointe Woods.

The fee for the single session class, taught by Deborah Dinda, is $10.

For more information, call 343-2178.

Taste for playscape

Bill Matouk of Woods Fine Wine & Spirits and Gerry Schilling, representing the Playscape in the Park organization, prepare for the "Best of the Season" wine-tasting fundraiser Thursday, May 9, at Blossom Heath Inn at 9-1/2 Mile and Jefferson from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $22 and may be purchased at Mulier's Market, 15215 Kercheval, 822-7786, or at Woods Fine Wines & Spirits, 20787 Mack, 882-5420.

The organizers are raising $50,000 to build a playscape for children at Patterson Park, scheduled for construction this fall.

job at GM's Detroit Transmission plant at Riopelle and Farnsworth. He lived in a rooming house with 10 other people and took two to three buses to get to work.

Before the year was up, Porter married and moved to Livonia where the Hydramatic Division, renamed from Detroit Transmission, relocated. He and his wife, who also worked for GM, had a son and daughter. The couple divorced in 1975.

Porter returned to school. "I got myself nominated to the advanced management program at Michigan State University," he said. In one year, he earned a master's degree.

In 1976, Porter was transferred to Fisher Body and in 1982, he was sent to Brazil where he served as director of Materials Management, a position he held until he joined the BOC Group in 1984.

In the meantime, Porter remarried. He and his wife and her daughter thoroughly enjoyed living in Brazil, he said.

"We traveled throughout the country and pushed ourselves out where no one spoke English," he said. "Brazil is a fascinating country with a powerful, powerful economic base."

Before they moved to Brazil, the family sold their Grosse Pointe Park home and upon their return, bought a house in St. Clair. In 1989, they moved to Grosse Pointe Farms.

Porter, who had been involved since the '50s in working with youngsters in Sunday school, junior achievement and Boy Scouts, became involved in the late '70s with the Vic Wertz golf outing held every year which raises money for the Boys and Girls Clubs of Southeastern Michigan.

He joined the board in 1981 and became a vice president in 1988. Porter was recently elected president for a one-year term, succeeding Peter Dow, another Grosse Pointe resident, who had completed his term.

"We touch 7,400 kids who, if they weren't in the club, potentially could be on the street," Porter said.

While volunteer work may start out as an obligation to return something to the community, Porter said, "Very soon you realize it has to be done. It absolutely needs to be done."

The key to the future of the organization, Porter said, is fundraising and finding new ways to increase the existing financial base. Porter is also involved in the capital fund drive at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

While he's still active in the golf fundraiser, Porter gave up golf 15 years ago and returned to his first love — boating. Growing up in Marblehead — once the yacht capital of the world — gave him his lifelong affinity for the water.

"When I was a kid growing up, it was my goal to be a cook or a deckhand," he said.

He spent one summer when he was 16 working as a cook on a yacht his father skippered.

"I was responsible for stocking groceries, cooking and polishing all the brass every third day," he said.

Of his siblings, Porter said, "We are all sailors." His brother Ben is the racer, "I'm strictly a cruiser," Porter said, and his sister Anna, a professor at Manhattan Community College, has advanced navigational skills. "She can shoot the stars with a sextant," he said.

His father at 91 still lives in Marblehead in the family home.

Porter is also active with The Hundred Club in Detroit, an organization that raises money for the families of police officers and firefighters killed in the line of duty.

There are two grandchildren and Porter said he and his wife, Joan, are very family oriented. Besides boating, they both enjoy reading.

And, his wife adds, they both love to cook. "He makes a wonderful Caesar salad and he cooks fish better than anyone I know," she said.

Don't drive alone May 9

Levels of indoor and outdoor air pollution have become unhealthy and expensive. The direct and indirect health costs of outdoor air pollution alone are estimated at $40 billion to $50 billion a year, according to the American Lung Association.

During Clean Air Week, May 6-12, the organization will focus on the increasing problem of air pollution and its damaging effects on lung health.

To call attention to commitments toward clean air, the group has designated Thursday, May 9, as Don't Drive Day/Don't Drive Alone Day. More than two-thirds of the carbon monoxide released into the air comes from motor vehicle exhaust. As a contribution to the fight against air pollution, motorists are urged to leave their cars at home and to seek alternative means of transportation, such as mass transit, carpools and bicycles.

Although 20 percent of the population affected by air pollution is composed of the elderly, infants, pregnant women, chronic lung disease victims and heart disease patients, healthy people, including fitness enthusiasts, suffer from the effects of air pollutants as well. Running in a polluted area for a half-hour produces as much carbon monoxide in the blood as smoking a pack of cigarettes in a one-day period.

Another growing concern is the problem of indoor pollution produced by various biological agents, household products and even second-hand smoke. Heavy concentrations of indoor contaminants, along with inadequate ventilation, cause what researchers refer to as "sick building syndrome," which can result in respiratory ailments, nausea and eye irritation.

For more information about Clean Air Week or air pollution, contact the American Lung Association of Southeast Michigan at 559-5100.

City of Grosse Pointe Michigan NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING OF INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES

The City Council of the City of Grosse Pointe, Michigan will hold a public hearing at 7:30 P.M. on Monday, May 13, 1991 in the Council Chambers at the Municipal Offices, 17147 Maumee, on the proposed 1991 City tax levy and on the proposed 1991-92 City budget. Copies of the proposed budget are available for public inspection during regular business hours in the office of the City Clerk beginning May 10, 1991.

In 1990, the City of Grosse Pointe levied 13.36 mills ($13.36 per $1,000 SEV) for both City operating and debt service purposes. In 1991, the City anticipates levying a total of $12.96 mills ($12.96 per $1,000 SEV) for both City operating and debt service purposes.

Due to an increase in the State Equalized Value of existing property in the City, the State "Truth in Taxation" law (P.A.5 of 1982) provides that the base tax rate for 1991 City operating taxes be decreased to an estimated 11.94 mills. The "Headlee Amendment" currently limits City operating and rubbish taxes at 15.76 mills

To fund the City's proposed 1991-92 budget, to maintain the present level of City services, to offset state shared revenue losses, and provide capital improvement funding, the City finds it necessary to restore a portion of its operating millage reduction. An additional millage rate levy of .89 mills (89 cents per $1,000 SEV) is proposed above the estimated 1991 base operating tax rate. This represents an increase of 7.98% in property taxes (both operating and debt purposes) for City residential property owners, which amount includes 2% for capital improvements.

In accordance with P.A.5 of 1982, the City has complete authority to establish the number of mills to be levied within its authorized millage rate as authorized by law and the City Charter.

Public comments, oral or written, are welcome at the public hearing on the proposed additional millage rate and on the proposed City budget.

The Legislature: "We tried to work with the Legislature to get specific cuts (to balance the current budget). We were unsuccessful. They (legislators) only agreed to 9.2 percent across the board cuts" though 12 percent cuts had been discussed. "We all knew the 9.2 percent would only cover half the $1 billion problem. . . . We still have an $800 million-plus deficit."

"We knew there were some line items that couldn't take cuts," so Engler's transition team tried to get budgetary transfers to protect crucial areas. "We tried to get departments to tell us what cuts would mean to them and what transfers could be made." She said her predecessor failed to notify the department heads until after Christmas and Blanchard refused to implement the across-the-board cuts called for in a bill he had signed.

"So when we took office, we still faced a $1 billion deficit."

The Legislature refused to make the budgetary transfers, and so when the cuts went through, some hurt necessary programs, such as critical social services.

The future: "What will happen if we don't get this resolved? We simply will not have the funds to run state government through the entire year. That's the bottom line. Everything will just shut down."

Social programs: "We're $130 million short in Medicaid appropriations. . . . Medicaid will have to be stopped in August if we don't get this resolved. . . ."

"We're looking at some real critical areas that need additional funding for the current year or the consequences will be dire."

Outcome: "I'm optimistic that negotiations with leaders of the House and Senate on balancing the current year's budget will be concluded this week. "We believe that everyone is negotiating in good faith. . . . Then we can start on '92."

Raising taxes: "The choices we face are very difficult. You can't solve that except by cuts or raising taxes. And we don't consider raising taxes an acceptable option."

Doug Roberts, Director of Treasury

Credit rating: "The last couple months have hurt our image with the credit-rating agencies, and they're watching."

The deficit: "When you spend more than you take in, there's only one thing that always happens — your cash deteriorates. . . . The bad thing is that the state's cash position continues to deteriorate."

Cash flow: The Engler administration proposes to make the largest taxpayers (about

$7,320 in goods reported stolen from boutique

Some $7,320 worth of merchandise has been reported stolen from La Strega Boutique on the Hill since March 28.

The most recent incident occurred April 26 when two dresses valued at $800 were discovered missing. At 4:45 p.m., a woman came into the store. When she left at 5:05 p.m., a store employee reported the missing articles.

Two days earlier, on April 24, a store employee heard the front door signal sound at 4:42 p.m., indicating someone had come into the store. When the employee went to greet the customer, she saw two people, one pushing the other in a wheelchair, on the sidewalk going away from the store.

She then noticed that two women's suits were missing from a rack near the front door. The loss was put at $800. The following morning, the store reported that an additional $2,200 worth of merchandise was taken but had not been noticed the night before, according to police.

On March 28, some $3,520 worth of goods were reported taken after two women left the store at 5:30 p.m. They had been shopping in the store for about half an hour.

500 state firms that each pay more than $1 million annually in sales and use taxes and income tax withholdings) pay the state weekly as is required by the federal government. Currently, all taxpayers, including the large corporate taxpayers, make payments to the state 15 days following the month of collection.

Another recommendation is to spread out payments to school districts with 10 equal payments throughout the year. Currently, 41 percent of the state's payments to school districts are made within the first two months of the fiscal year, forcing the state to borrow the funds to pay the schools until it receives the money from taxpayers.

"We send money out faster than we take it in."

Single-business tax: In 1984, the Caterpillar tractor company of Illinois challenged the capital acquisition deduction allowance of Michigan's single-business tax. The tax allowed a 100 percent deduction of all capital improvements in Michigan. In September 1989, the Michigan Court of Appeals ruled in favor of Caterpillar and said that multi-state companies can deduct all their capital-improvement costs nationwide against Michigan's tax, meaning that the multi-state taxpayers have such large write-offs that they end up paying no taxes at all.

"The largest multi-state corporate taxpayers will effectively pay no taxes. Now they want it retroactive to September 1989. Unless the Legislature corrects this, 45 percent of our multi-state corporate taxpayers will pay nothing. This also isn't fair to Michigan-only companies."

Engler has proposed legislation to eliminate the capital acquisition deduction, institute a higher single-business tax, and allow a Michigan-only investment tax credit.

"As an economist, I can say it is a superior public policy in encouraging business investment in Michigan."

Property taxes: The property assessment freeze approved by the Legislature for 1992 and the ballot referendum for voters to make the limitation permanent is a good first step in Engler's campaign pledge to cut property taxes by 20 percent. The governor is proposing a 5 percent property tax cut in 1992; 10 percent in 1993; and 5 percent in 1994.

"There's no doubt in my mind that a significant cut in property taxes will be a plus to the housing industry."

The decrease in property tax revenue will be made up to school districts by the state with increased business taxes, though out-of-formula schools would not benefit from additional state dollars.

The property assessment increase limitation to 5 percent or the inflation rate, which will be voted on as a statewide referendum, would apply only to principal residences, which are defined as homesteads under income tax guidelines. Assessments of secondary homes, such as recreational homes or homes of Michiganians who make Florida their principal residences, would not be limited under the proposal.

Dr. Gerald Miller, Director of Social Services

General assistance: The state priorities of those receiving general assistance will be 1) the disabled, 2) families, and 3) single adults. "We want to eliminate single adults from general assistance."

"We are willing to help you if you will help yourself. If you are willing to get education, training, we are willing to give you resources, though not as much as now. Also, if you don't attend, you're out, starting in October."

"... When you look at the general assistance caseload, you have to come to the conclusion that we're not doing the job. "We want people to become independent. You are responsible for managing your own life. . . . In the past, there have been no meaningful sanctions. There's always been the rhetoric, but not the sanctions. We are serious about this."

The disabled will not be removed from general assistance, including the mentally disabled.

Obstacles: The main obstacles to getting off general assistance for families is the expense of child care and health coverage. The Engler administration is proposing that a child care subsidy and Medicaid be provided to families whose parents are entering the work force.

Job placement: "We are not in the business to guarantee a job. When you graduated high school, you weren't guaranteed a job."

Jim Haveman, Director of Mental Health

Scope: The Department of Mental Health budget is $1.3 billion, and 247,000 people a year are assisted. The state runs 23 hospitals and regional centers. The department employs 8,500 people, down from 9,800 under the former administration.

Consolidations: To meet the 9.2 percent across-the-board budget cuts, the state has consolidated some facilities and closed under-utilized ones. More closings are planned next year.

"Closing a facility is painful. It's not easy, and we don't dump people." Patients are put in another institution when their clothes — they are not put on the street.

Community: "We're going to continue the community mental health vision. . . . Money will be sent to counties, which then decide how they're going to spend it."

Deinstitutionalization: The state will stress more in-home care and keeping families together. "It's more expensive to keep people in the hospital."

William C. Whitbeck, Director, Office of the State Employer

Layoffs: Some 2,000 state employees have been laid off to date under the Engler administration.

Pay raise: The average state employee earns a base salary of $33,000. The average state resident makes only $29,000. "If you're going to pay employees more money, you're going to have fewer of them."

Mike Addonizio, Education Policy Adviser

Spending: "All education budgets have recommended 4 percent increases. . . . The state needs to keep the difference in per-pupil spending from widening between rich and poor districts."

The biggest concentration in spending will be for formula schools.

Preschool: The Engler administration will emphasize preschool education and would eventually like to make preschool part of the regular public education program. Instead of K through 12, education would be pre-K through 12.

Choice: The school of choice proposal is in the planning stages now.

College: We're looking to allow seniors in high school to attend college part time, with the higher-education institution receiving a portion of the state aid that goes to the student's high school.

We're looking at allowing universities, such as Wayne State, to run public elementary and secondary schools.

School finance reform: "Down the road, we're going to take another shot at school finance reform."

Art Ellis, Director of Commerce

Executive orders: Engler has issued executive orders that have transferred licensing and regulation, import-export and Council for the Arts and Public Places activities to the Commerce Department.

Services: A scaled-down Commerce Department will provide businesses with information and generally act as a liaison, but will not be offering money.

Unfunded: Among the many Michigan programs that will no longer get state funding are the Port Huron to Mackinac sailboat race, Detroit hydroplane races, the Detroit Grand Prix and the Buick Open.

Grant funds: Encourage bonafide economic development with federal Community Development Block Grant funds. One discouraged use of these funds would be streetscape improvement.

Changes: "We are not going to support industries and say we want you to come to Michigan as compared to somebody else. "The real change is that we're not going to spend money."

Yes! is out: The "Yes! Michigan" advertising campaign "probably has a limited lifespan."

After 45 years, Grosse Pointe Fish still serves the freshest catch

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Fish is an institution on Mack Avenue in Grosse Pointe Woods. It's old-world atmosphere along with its reputation for the freshest fish in the area have kept it in business since it opened its doors in 1946.

Ed Schmidt, who took the business over from his father, Ed, in 1975, was practically raised in the store. In the days when the store made deliveries, the younger Ed used to help his father — Ed Sr. did the driving and Ed Jr. ran the order to the door.

"We used to deliver to all the big mansions on Lakeshore," Schmidt said. "We had a standing order from Mrs. Edsel Ford practically every week for lobster."

Although the store doesn't make deliveries anymore, it still retains the atmosphere of a time gone by, when people could put their food orders on their account and when a customer wanted a special order it could be accommodated with only minimal trouble.

"A lot of things have changed over the years," Schmidt said, "but the one thing that won't change is the quality of the product. We're a specialty store and sometimes it costs a little extra, but it's the best quality you can get."

The fish and seafood are flown in daily from the east coast. Schmidt keeps in close contact with the buyers who know he will only take the freshest product.

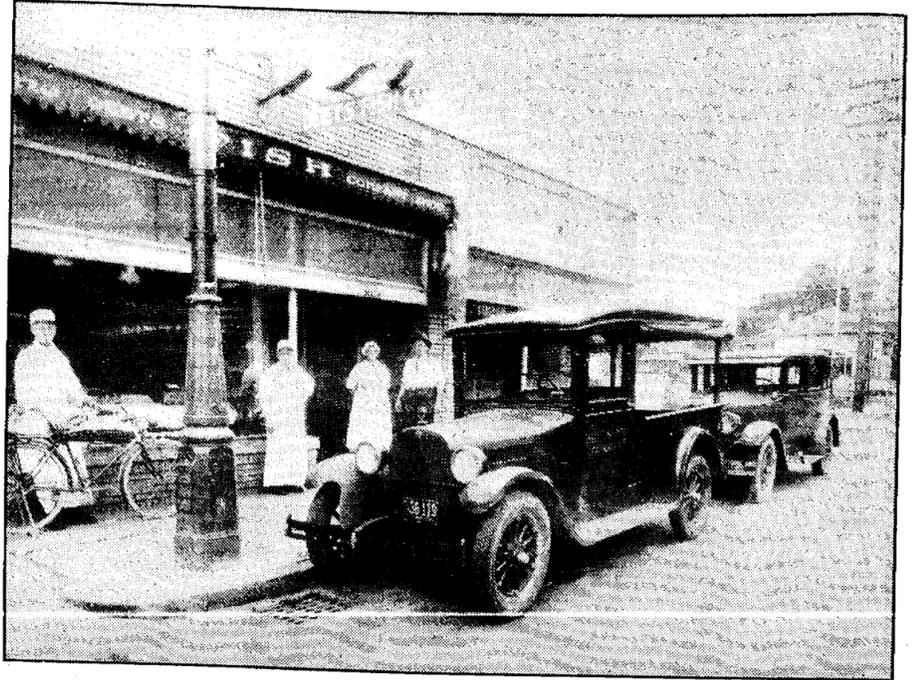

"That's why some weeks I won't have a certain item," he said, "because I couldn't get the best quality. I only buy fish taken on short trips. I know the name of the boat, how long it was out, how the fish was caught and whether it's from the top or the bottom of the catch."

Some boats, like the ones that catch swordfish, are at sea for two weeks, Schmidt said. The fish caught first — the bottom of the catch — won't be as fresh as the ones caught later.

Schmidt's father taught him everything he knew about fish. It was information Ed Sr. got from years in the business. He started working for the Deetses Fish Co. in 1927 delivering orders on the back of his bike. He ran the store for the Deetses during World War II and then opened his own store, where it remains today.

Schmidt says that he's noticed many changes in the business during his time. First, the store now stocks a full line of gourmet foods in addition to the fish and seafood. They make their own chowders and lobster bisques and bake French, sourdough and whole wheat breads daily.

Schmidt's father, Ed Sr., at left with the bike, started in the fish business in 1927 for the Deets Fish Co.

ON CUSTOMER AS CELEBRITY
My philosophy is simply that the client must be pleased with my work. That's why I've never subscribed to the "designer as celebrity" syndrome. The customers are the celebrities. Designers are just here to serve them.

ON PERSONAL STYLE
Being a client-oriented designer, I've always done what's appropriate for each personality. This makes my work exciting, and constantly changing and very personal.

ON CHALLENGING PROJECTS
My most challenging projects are those involving large committees. I've designed four country clubs and numerous churches. They also bring me my greatest joy.

ON WHAT DESIGNERS CAN DO
I can't imagine people doing their own designing today. They're not only depriving themselves of a professional's expertise and years of experience, but they simply don't have exposure or access to the wondrous variety available to the professional designer.

Waterfront development seminar set

The Detroit-based law firm of Butzel Long, along with the Ann Arbor-based planning, design and engineering firm of Johnson, Johnson & Royal/Inc., will conduct a seminar addressing issues concerning waterfront development on Wednesday, May 8, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Riverfront Ballroom of the Westin Hotel in the Renaissance Center.

The seminar is specifically designed to assist public and private developers interested in developing, revitalizing, expanding or maintaining municipal waterfronts and marinas. Topics include design, planning and environmental considerations facing planned or existing waterfront facilities.

One issue of concern is the environmental implications of waterfront development. "Past environmental damage concerning waterfront development can result in a legal minefield for both municipalities and marina owners," said C. Peter Theut, head of Butzel Long's admiralty, marine and waterfront development group. "This seminar will seek to provide municipalities, marina owners and developers with a proactive approach in avoiding lengthy and expensive litigation over existing or potential environmental matters related to waterfront development."

For registration information, contact Joanne Bliss Klimko at: Butzel Long, Suite 900, 150 West Jefferson, Detroit 48226-4430, (313) 225-7072.

There's also a difference in product lines. Items that were mainstays in the old days are rarities today.

"For example, we used to sell 800 to 900 pounds of lutefish (a lye-and-woodash-cured cod) during the holidays," he said. "Now, we barely sell 50 pounds. It's a tradition and people aren't all that interested in tradition anymore."

Modern fishing techniques have created whole new product lines — like the orange roughly which lives in water too deep for conventional fishermen to catch. And there's pond-raised catfish, which are specially fed for best quality.

Schmidt knows his fish and eats a lot of it. And like a true fish lover, he doesn't hide it with too many other things. Just a little lemon and some butter and sometimes he sprinkles prepackaged gourmet seasonings on it.

It's best, he said, in the microwave, but suggests grilling for special occasions.

Schmidt has no children, and at 42 is too young to think about who's going to take over the business, but he knows what kind of person he wants to run it after he's done.

"I'll find somebody who cares about the business as much as I do, who wants to maintain the standards my father and I have and one who is willing to give the best service to the community through quality," he said.

Ads promising high-paying airline jobs often won't fly

The Better Business Bureau of Detroit and Eastern Michigan has received nearly a thousand inquiries since the beginning of the year about companies advertising airline job opportunities with "no experience required" and offering salaries of $15,000-$75,000. Job-seekers have told the bureau that after contacting these firms, they discovered that the companies request a fee, usually between $50 and $120, for information about these jobs.

The bureau has identified the companies as "job listing services" and not employment agencies.

The bureau also found that after the fee has been paid, these companies simply provide consumers with a list — usually a booklet or brochure — of possible openings. And despite some companies' claims to the contrary, it is the consumer's responsibility to forward resumes and schedule interviews.

Consumers should ask the following questions when considering responding to advertisements:

- How can a company offer and guarantee positions in a field that is usually very competitive, and/or has experienced recent layoffs?

- What are the number and types of positions available, and/or requirements that must be met?

- What is the company's procedure for processing the application and the response time involved if the company claims it will guarantee employment?

- What is the company's refund/credit policy?

The bureau offers the following guidelines regarding job listing services:

- If the company requests an advance fee, be sure to get all details of the transaction in writing and understand them before paying any money, providing a credit card number or signing an agreement. Oral promises mean little if they are not included in the written agreement.
- Request the company to provide you with a list of persons who have received employment through their service.

- Be realistic about your experience and skills and wary of overly generous benefits or rewards.

- Determine in advance, by contacting the attorney general or other appropriate official, if the particular company you are considering complies with local or state licensing regulations.
- Contact the airlines.

For information on a specific job listing service, contact the bureau's inquiry department at (313) 644-1012 or write to: BBB, 30555 Southfield Road, Ste. 200, Southfield, Mich. 48076.

Employee shoplifters hit retailers hard

While more than 93 percent of the people apprehended for shoplifting last year were customers, employees who were caught stealing took seven times as much per person, according to a recently released study. In 1989, the average recovery per customer apprehension was $196, and the average recovery per employee apprehension was $1,350.

Retailers reported that 45 percent of thefts were detected at the point-of-sale, that is at the register. (Common ploys include ringing up a sale and then voiding it, doing a phony return, and undercharging friends for merchandise.) Only 10 percent of thefts were detected in the stock area.

Retailers responding to the survey reported a $2.2 billion loss due to shrinkage. In real dollars, retailers lost approximately 10 percent more at retail in 1989 than they did in 1988. As a percentage of sales, however, shrinkage remained flat over the two-year period. And two retail segments, supermarkets and department stores, actually reported a decline.

In 1989, retail companies spent $2.5 million, on average, to battle shrinkage — that's a 20 percent increase over the prior year. As a percentage of sales, however, loss prevention expenses were up only 6 percent.

People costs accounted for the largest portion of those expenditures — 73 percent. (People costs include labor for employee guards/detectives, other loss prevention employees, outside services, incentive award programs, and training programs.) The reason — training programs and guards/detectives were identified as the top two most effective security devices. Electronic/magnetic tags and point-of-sale systems ranked third and fourth, respectively.

Other key findings of the survey were:

- Loss prevention expenses varied significantly for each of the retail segments. Department stores spent three times as much as specialty-hardlines stores and over twice as much as drug chains and supermarkets, as a percentage of sales.

- 55 percent of the retailers sought civil restitution from apprehended shoplifters. Last year alone, nearly 76,000 cases were filed. On average, companies recovered a mere $105,000. So, while retailers don't see big dollar returns, they obviously view civil restitution to be an effective way to discourage and/or intimidate shoplifters.

- 55 percent of the retailers said they had evidence of drugs in apprehensions. And those retailers estimated that 30 percent of the customer apprehensions and 25 percent of employee apprehensions were drug-related.

- Electronic article surveillance (lease/rent/depreciation) accounted for the greatest percentage, 38 percent of overall capital expenditures. Alarms accounted for 27 percent and other electronic equipment accounted for 30 percent.

Check forging suspect caught — once again

A check forging suspect was caught for a second time within nearly a week by Park police April 24.

At 9:30 p.m., a Park resident reported that someone was presenting checks to neighbors and trying to get them cashed. Some of the neighbors cashed the checks.

The resident became suspicious and called police. The investigating officers found that they had arrested the suspect April 16 and had charged him with passing forged checks. The checks had been stolen earlier from a mailbox in the 900 block of Nottingham.

The suspect had been arraigned on the check forgery charge and held in Wayne County Jail on $5,000 cash or surety bond set by the Park Municipal Court. The bail was then reduced by the Wayne County court to personal bond because of jail overcrowding.

At the time of the most recent arrest, just eight days after being first arrested and arraigned, the suspect was trying to pass off more of the stolen checks. He was arraigned on a new forgery charge and this time he was given $10,000 cash or surety bond by the Park court.

He is again sitting in the overcrowded Wayne County Jail.

House burglarized

A home in the 2200 block of Roslyn in the Woods was broken into April 28.

The incident occurred sometime between 8 p.m. and midnight. The resident discovered someone had entered the house through a side door.

Police learned that the burglar entered the garage through a door off the back yard. He then used a screwdriver from the garage to pry open the side door's Plexiglas window and then reached in to open the locked door.

Once inside, he took an AM-FM radio from the kitchen, ransacked a bedroom and took some change and a telephone answering machine.

Backpack snatched

Despite a 39-year-old Detroit woman's efforts to hang on, a snatcher made off with the woman's backpack in the St. John Hospital parking lot at Mack and Moross in the Woods April 27.

The incident occurred at 7:15 a.m. The woman, a hospital employee, had just pulled into a parking space when a man pulled into the space beside her. When she got out of her car, the man came up to her and asked her what the hospital visiting hours were.

She told the man they varied, but when he got closer, he grabbed her backpack off her shoulder and jumped back into his car. As he was attempting to drive away with the car door open, the woman reached in and grabbed the backpack.

She hung on, running beside the car as it was driving off. She was screaming for help. The thief said, "Lady, let go," but she hung on until she lost her footing and fell to the ground.

The thief still had the backpack, which contained the woman's purse and other articles.

The victim injured her left hand and elbow, and she complained of slight back pain.

Fire extinguished at Tennis House

A small fire, suspected to have been started by kids smoking cigarettes, was quickly extinguished at The Tennis House in the Farms April 24.

After being away for about an hour, the manager of the private club on Moselle Place returned at 4 p.m. and noticed smoke rising from the side of a building. He investigated and found a stack of firewood and the plastic covering the wood were on fire. He doused the blaze with a pail of water and called firefighters.

No damage was reported. The club manager reported problems with kids smoking behind the building.

Woman blacks out; vehicle rolls over

A 73-year-old Detroit woman escaped serious injury April 26 when she blacked out at the steering wheel and her car rolled over after colliding with a tree in the Shores.

She was traveling south on Lakeshore at 4:07 p.m. when she lost consciousness. According to police, the car then left the road at Roslyn and continued onto the median and struck a tree. The impact catapulted the car backward and turned it over on its roof.

The woman suffered cuts and bruises to her head and face and complained of chest pains. She was taken to St. John Hospital.

Choirs on cable

"Choirs in Review" will air May 13 and 14 at 7 p.m. on Grosse Pointe Cable channel 19. If you are unable to see it, you may order a copy of the tape for $15 through the Grosse Pointe South's TV Lab. Call Julie Corbett at 343-2251.

Breaking-and-enterings reported

Two breaking-and-enterings were reported in the Park last week.

One occurred in the 700 block of Grand Marais sometime between 9:40 and 11:15 a.m. April 19.

The thief attempted to get into the house by breaking the glass in a rear porch door. The burglar cut himself on the broken glass, according to police. He then got into the house through a dining room window.

The house was neatly searched, and a cassette re-order and a Detroit Pistons paper weight were taken.

The other burglary occurred in the 1400 block of Beaconsfield sometime between 2 and 5:30 p.m. April 24.

A resident heard a noise in the basement of his apartment house at about 2 p.m., but did not investigate. Later it was learned that someone had entered through an unlocked rear door.

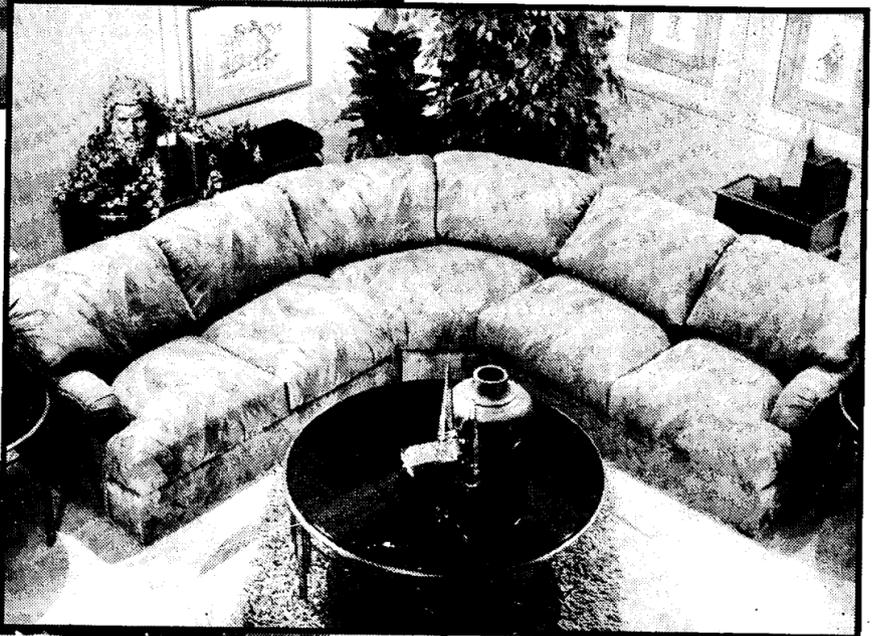

Nothing was known to have been taken.

This annual auction is ready for action

By Margle Reins Smith
Feature Editor

"Building the Future... Today" is the theme for Grosse Pointe Academy's upcoming fundraiser, Action Auction 1991.

The word building is symbolic, said Pat Verb, who is co-chairman of the 24th annual benefit with her husband, Pat, and Diane and John Mills.

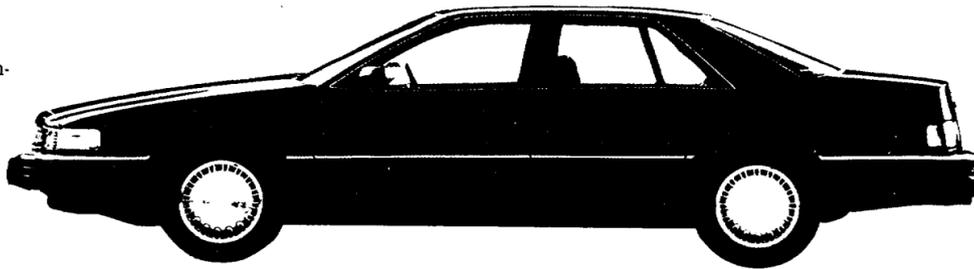

"Building refers to the nurturing aspect of the school — which builds children's futures, so to speak — and it refers to the Academy's new Tracy Fieldhouse, which will be the site for the auction for the first time," she said.

Diane Mills said that about 100 dedicated volunteers have been working on the event for a full year.

"All fundraisers faced a challenge this year because of the economy and the perception of the economy," Mills said. "But we feel good about our acquisitions and we think they have a broader appeal this year than ever before."

The chairmen expect more than 1,000 people to attend the two-night affair and bid on more than 600 different items. They hope to raise more than a half million dollars for the school.

Action Auction has become known for its collection of pricey unusual biddables: out-of-the-ordinaries, one-of-a-kinds, collectors' items, originals, designer stuff to use and wear and drive and live in and play with and go on vacation to.

According to the co-chairmen, the benefit is the most successful elementary school auction fundraiser in the nation.

Participants bid on a choice selection of furniture, jewelry, artworks, vacations, parties and opportunities, everything from a 1948 MG TC Roadster to a congressional internship; from a full-length black mink coat or a topaz and diamond necklace to a vacation in an Italian castle or a cruise to Bermuda; from an original oil painting by Grosse Pointe's own Virginia Thibodeau to a U of M/MSU tailgate party for 10; from a 1992 Cadillac Seville (which isn't even in production yet) to a private tour of Sotheby's for four people.

The auction will take place on two days. On Wednesday, May 8, from 6 to 9 p.m., there will be an evening preview, a silent and live auction of selected items.

On Saturday, May 11, the main event begins at 4:30 and runs until 9 p.m. It also includes silent and live auctions. An optional dinner dance at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club follows Saturday's auctions.

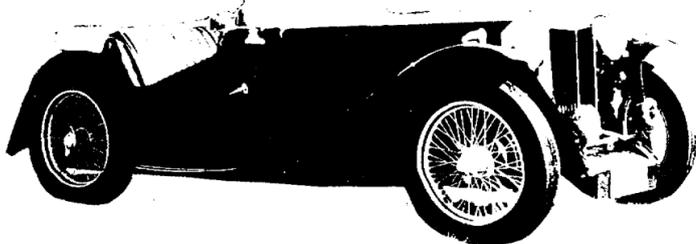

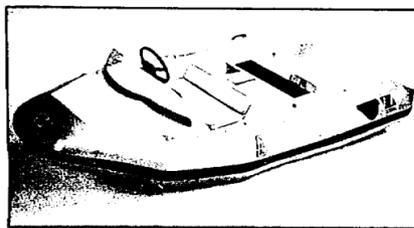

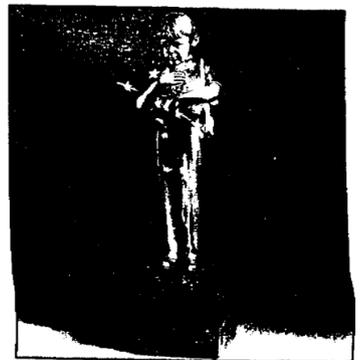

Mills said her husband has his eye on the Seville and she's going to bid on a hand-painted black lacquer Karges writing desk.

Verb said she also will bid on the writing desk, as well as the Sotheby's trip, a thermostatically-controlled wine storage cabinet and a particular Oriental rug.

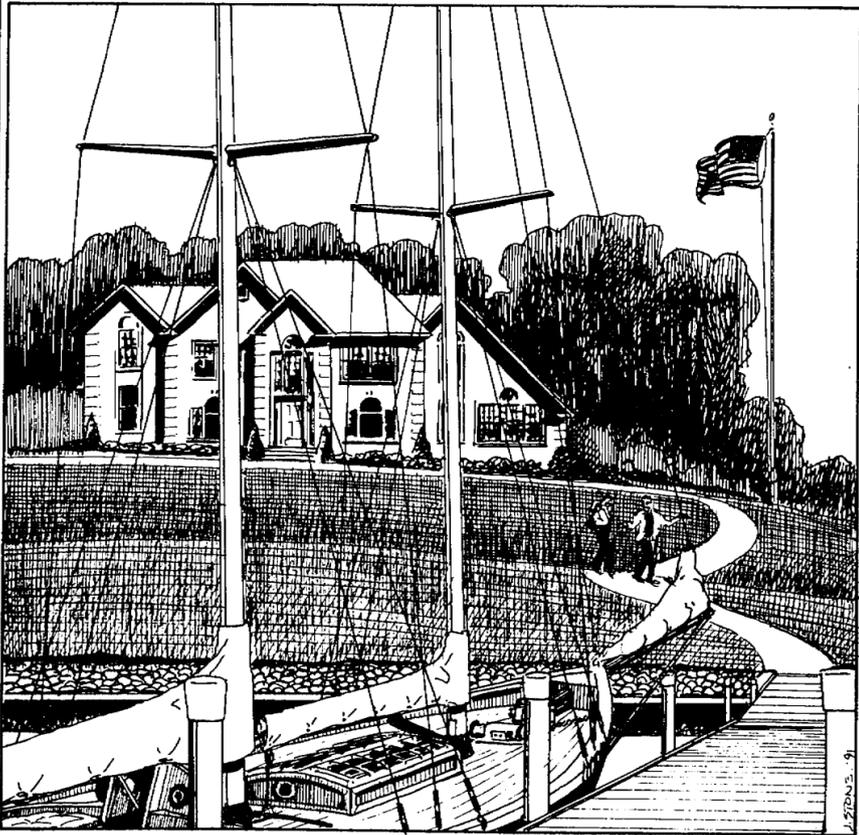

The Grosse Pointe Academy, 171 Lakeshore, is an independent co-educational day school for children from age 2 1/2 to eighth grade. The 22-acre campus has been designated a Michigan Historical Landmark and is listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

As an independent school, the academy doesn't get church, federal or state support. Action Auction proceeds are used for the academy's operating budget, its scholarships and the restoration and preservation of its historic campus.

General admission for Action Auction 1991 is $75 and includes both evenings. Preview night only is $25. Dinner after the auction on Saturday is $50. All the events are open to the public. To receive an invitation, call the Action Auction office at 886-1802.

Bridge

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION
BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD ♠♥♦♣

One of the pleasant by-products of a regional bridge tournament is the players you meet and compete with. As some of you know, I make very few dates in advance of my attendance preferring to see what I can cultivate at the partnership desk. Occasionally this approach has been un-expectations, but frequently I have been pleased. Such was the situation on Tuesday noon in Gallinburg a month ago. Lee Woodley, who I later learned spent some years here, was tilling the same field as I and it was almost a match up at first sight. Lee had taken a five day leave from his airbase in the Florida panhandle to brush up on his bridge which was, in my opinion, only a shade shy of first class. As he said, his inability to play more often was a major impediment in his progress, but duty came first and I respect that attitude. Nevertheless, his performance was commendable and well above what I had expected. In reality, we got lucky scoring a 186 in the afternoon and a 186-1/2 in the evening to finish fourth overall with a 372-1/2 in the two session un-mixed pair event.

Today's hand from that event is a comical classic. Note how we erroneously used a series of nonforcing limit bids to propel us to game. The result not only gave us a section top, but there was no other score anywhere near the equal in the six section 96 table session.

How this all came about is my fun time to tell you, so read on and roar. Needless to say, Lady Luck was my co-pilot or we would have had engine trouble early.

Seldom will a player get as enthusiastic over 12 H.C.P. as did Lee. Certainly his hand deserved one bid and maybe even two, but five were beyond the limits of anything. Surprisingly, this was one of the few times his bidding had floundered, but later I learned that even though we had gotten to nowhere with little chance of playing our way out of it, he had a reasonable motive for his repetitious stretch.

Lee's dummy was less than I had expected. After all he could have had 14 H.C.P. for his bid instead of the spindle thin dozen I faced. Needless to say, a ten trick victory was accomplishable, but at some severe odds. There was a 100% chance of losing a diamond and two clubs. The missing clubs had to be 2-2 and that was only a 41% probability. The trump queen was fifty and hearts had to be 3-3 which was a 36% probability for there to be any chance and that didn't add up to much, but I intended to give it my best effort.

I ducked the opening lead in dummy and won East's ten with my ace. I knew West was a good player and could be leading a spade from anything, so at trick two I played a spade to the jack losing to the queen. East thought longingly and lucky for me finally returned a spade for his partner to ruff. I pitched my diamond and won dummy's king. Now a club won by West's queen. At trick five, West played a diamond that I misguessed and had to ruff. Next a second club and I breathed a little easier when West's ace toppled his partner's doubleton king. At trick seven, West played his diamond queen and I ruffed with the heart jack which committed me to take the trump finesse against West. At-trick eight, the heart king and my remaining low trump to dummy's ten. The bridge gods were good to me. At trick ten, dummy's trump ace felling the hearts 3-3 and then I ran my good clubs for a plus 420.

"Partner," I asked, "Why five bids?" in a stunned, but moderate voice. "I'm sorry," he said, "I had honestly forgotten that originally you'd passed!"

Honored: Five outstanding contributors to ethnic and global understanding will be inducted into the International Heritage Hall of Fame on Friday, May 10, at the annual dinner of the Friends of the International Institute of Metropolitan Detroit.

This year's honorees will include three Grosse Pointers: Edmund T. Ahee, owner of Edmund T. Ahee Jewelry Co., Walker L. Cisler, chairman Overseas Advisory Associates Inc. and retired chairman and CEO of Detroit Edison, and Art Van Elslander, chairman, Art Van Furniture Co.

The three men are being recognized for their long-time work in supporting Detroit-area ethnic activities and promoting international good will.

The Heritage Hall of Fame is in the atrium, adjacent to the Cobo Hall People Mover.

Thirty-three people have been inducted since the hall was inaugurated in 1984.

Tickets for the dinner are $85 a person. For reservations or further information, call the International Institute, 871-8600.

The Pastor's Corner Vines and branches

By Rev. Robert A. Rimbo
St. James Lutheran Church

Look around you this time of year and you'll see plenty of sermon illustrations for John 15. Last Sunday in many of our churches we heard the words of Jesus: "I am the true vine, and my Father is the vine-grower . . . Every branch that bears fruit he prunes to make it bear more fruit . . . Abide in me and I abide in you. Just as the branch cannot bear fruit by itself unless it abides in the vine, neither can you unless you abide in me. I am the vine, you are the branches."

Look around and you'll see piles of branches from bushes and trees, waiting at curbside for the city workers to pick up and carry away. Storms of late have left their marks; people are out there, every day, clearing away scattered branches. All done so that the coming new growth of springtime planting can bear fruit, unrestricted.

Jesus knew much about branches and vines. Israel, lovingly known as God's vineyard, needs constant tending. Let a vine go for a season, and the fruit goes wild and bitter and eventually the vine quits bearing. Pruning improves the quality and the quantity of the harvest. Pruning takes work — it means taking courage and taking clippers. Cutting back enough branch so that new growth can be encouraged is an art.

As people who are grafted into the vine of faith, we too are in need of care and attention and, yes, pruning now and then. We need to have the wild and bitter stuff of ourselves pruned away, in order that new growth can sprout. Just as we pick up our yards after the storms have come through, so we need to tend to our "spiritual yards," cutting back what has grown spindly and weak, so that we can bear the good fruit of God: love, compassion, mercy, forgiveness, justice and peace.

Let this season be such a time of pruning for you, under the gentle and caring hand of the vinegrowing Father. Let this be a time of cleaning up the fruitless areas of your life. Let spring flourish in your life as you grow in faith. Abide in Christ the vine.

Hosts to homeless

Grosse Pointe Memorial Church members played active roles in feeding and hosting homeless men, women and children recently at Jefferson Avenue Presbyterian Church in Detroit. Shown preparing dinner for about 70 guests are, from left, Anne Ditmars, Karen Cooksey and Jean Hodges. Members of Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church helped care for the guests earlier in the week. The program will be repeated at the Indian Village church in October.

United Methodist Church to hold sale

The women of Grosse Pointe United Methodist church are preparing for a spring rummage sale at the church, 211 Moross, on Thursday, May 9, from 8:30 to 11 a.m.

General chairmen for the sale are Lois Batten, Donna Batten and Mary Ruth McNew. Items will include clothing and shoes for infants and children, men and women; household items, such as furniture, small electrical appliances and linens; jewelry; toys; books; antiques; and white elephants.

For more information, call the church office at 886-2363.

Grosse Pointer publishes book

The Rev. Duane W.H. Arnold, Episcopal chaplain at Wayne State University and a resident of Grosse Pointe, has compiled and translated a new collection of the prayers of the martyrs of the Christian Church. Many of these monuments of devotion are, for the first time, available to the English-speaking world.

With a foreword by author Madeleine L'Engle, "Prayers of the Martyrs" has earned a nomination for the Chicago Book Clinic Gold Medallion Award.

Couple to Couple

The Couple to Couple League has begun a series on natural family planning. The program began on April 21 at St. Vincent Ferrer, 1075 E. Gardinia, in Madison Heights. The series continues once a month from 2:40-4:30 p.m. on May 19, June 16 and July 14.

Private counseling will also be available. A registration fee includes all materials for class. To register or find out more about natural family planning, call Bill or Linda Hughes at 545-2763.

Religious leaders will share ideas at conference on peace

Muslims, Jews and Christians will gather at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church on Sunday, May 5, from 2 to 5 p.m. for a dialogue, "Together for Peace: Religious Resources for Peacemaking."

The Rev. Elias Chacour will represent the Christian tradition. Chacour, a Palestinian who lives in Israel and is a priest in the Melkite Catholic Church, is Grosse Pointe Memorial Church's 1991 ecumenical minister.

Rabbi Ernst Conrad, rabbi emeritus at Temple Kol Ammi in West Bloomfield, will represent the Jewish tradition.

Imam Mohamed Mardini, director of the Moslem Bekaa Center in Dearborn, will represent the Muslim tradition.

The Rev. Oscar Ice, director of Interfaith Programs for the Greater Detroit Interfaith Round Table, will serve as moderator for the panel discussion.

The public is invited. There will be no charge. Memorial Church is located at 16 Lakeshore.

New officers at Christian Science church

Justine A. Stevens of East Detroit and Jean Hawkins of Grosse Pointe Woods will assume their new positions as first and second readers at Sixth Church of Christ, Scientist, Detroit, on Sunday, April 27.

They will be responsible for conducting the church's Sunday services, which consist primarily of readings from the King James version of the Bible and from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, founder of the church.

Stevens and Hawkins were elected to three-year terms of service as readers by the lay congregation of Christian Scientists. They succeed Kent A. Commer of Grosse Pointe Park and Susan P. Davis of Grosse Pointe Farms. Stevens is a retired schoolteacher from the Detroit public schools and Hawkins is a local Realtor with Johnstone & Johnstone Inc.

Children of Mary

The Children of Mary of the Sacred Heart will meet after the 10 a.m. Mass at the Grosse Pointe Academy on Friday, May 3. The celebrant will be the Rev. Eugene Simon, S.J.

New officers will be elected and there will be a reception for new members.

Garden Center to hold lecture

The Grosse Pointe Garden Center will present Margaret Thele as speaker in the Spring Berry Memorial lecture at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial on Friday, May 10, at 10:30 a.m.

The topic will be "The joys and Benefits of Container Gardening." Following the program, a surprise gourmet "container luncheon" will be served with the menu chosen from Jimmy Schmidt's "Cooking for All Seasons."

After the luncheon, a workshop will be held for participants to put their newly acquired expertise to use by creating their own container gardens. The workshop will be limited to 25 people, so early reservations are desirable.

Thele operates a business in Mount Clemens called Sage Advice, which specializes in everlastings, perennials, fragrant herbs and horticultural information. She is an advanced master gardener, a Michigan certified nurseryman and a landscape designer.

A check made out to the Grosse Pointe Garden Center will serve as a reservation for the luncheon at noon. The cost is $10. There is no charge for the workshop, but a reservation is necessary. Checks must be received by May 8.

Rummage sale

Bethany Christian Church will hold its annual spring rummage sale on Saturday, May 11, from 9:30 a.m. until 1 p.m. Resale items will include men's, women's, and children's clothing and miscellaneous household articles. The church is located on Cadieux between Harper and Chandler Park Drive in Detroit.

Herb Society

The southern Michigan unit of the Herb Society of America will present "An Afternoon with Herbs," from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. on Wednesday, May 8, at the First United Methodist Church in Birmingham.

The speaker will be Teresa Monte Grabil, TV host of "An Herbal Harvest."

Ticket price is $10. Funds will be used for scholarships and public gardens. The southern Michigan unit maintains a formal herb garden and an informal kitchen garden at Cranbrook Gardens and a small herb garden at the Moross House in Detroit. The group also supports a scholarship in horticulture at Michigan State University.

Men's Garden Club

The Men's Garden Club of Grosse Pointe invites the public to hear its guest speaker, Paul Desmet of Desling Farms in Ludington, on Thursday, May 9, at 7:30 p.m. at the central library.

Desmet is a master gardener and a consulting rosarian. He will speak about greenhouse gardening for hobbyists and backyard gardeners. Admission is free. For information, call Tom Solomon at 882-5978.

Flower Sale

Co-chairman Judy Brownscombe, left, and Anne Mertz are planning the Grosse Pointe South High School Mother's Club's annual impatiens and flower sale. The sale will be Friday, May 10, from noon to 7 p.m. and Saturday, May 11, from 9 a.m. to noon in the South High School gym.

New to the sale this year are stoneware garden statues. Traditional garden sale items will also be available: hanging baskets, hard-to-find perennials and wild flowers such as day lilies, astilbe, coral bells and ladyslippers.

All proceeds will be used to benefit the students at South with enrichment programs and scholarships.

Twitty, Milsap, Sterban Foundation to hold annual benefit on May 18

The Twitty, Milsap, Sterban Foundation, a not-for-profit Michigan organization, will hold its annual benefit on Saturday, May 18, at the Westin Hotel in Detroit. Proceeds from the event will benefit the foundation's scholarship program for blind and visually impaired college students across the country. The 100th partial scholarship given by the TMS Foundation will be announced the night of the benefit.

The benefit will begin with a reception and dinner, followed by a program to honor several outstanding members of the community for their civic and charitable involvement. Honorees include David Bergman, Cecil Fielder, Ron Labadie, Elizabeth Nicolay, Martha Reeves and Alan Trammell.

Hall of Fame broadcaster Ernie Harwell will be the emcee for the evening. The benefit will close on a high note with a performance by Martha Reeves.

Tickets at $125 a person may be ordered by mail for this black-tie optional event. Write to: Twitty, Milsap, Sterban Foundation, P.O. Box 43517, Detroit, 48235; attention Deborah or Sarah.

ABWA

The Silver Oaks charter chapter of the American Business Women's Association will hold its annual business associate event on Tuesday, May 7. The event honors the business associates and employers of ABWA members and provides an opportunity to learn about other fields, industries and positions.

Cheryl Chodun, general assignment reporter for Channel 7 news, and Liz Pinto, general assignment reporter for Automotive News, will be guest speakers at the 5:30 p.m. meeting at St. Clair Shores Country Club, 22185 Masonic in St. Clair Shores.

ABWA currently has more than 100,000 members nationwide.

The mission of the American Business Women's Association is to bring together businesswomen of diverse backgrounds and to provide opportunities for them to help themselves and others grow personally and professionally through leadership, education, networking support and national recognition.

Questers No. 147

The Grosse Pointe chapter of Questers No. 147 will meet at 10 a.m. on Friday, May 10, at the home of Bonnie Mannle. Chapter president Elsie MacKethan will preside.

The program, "Ladies of the World - Some Faded, Some Jaded," will be presented by Mannle. The "ladies" are figurines from around the world, including China, Germany and Spain.

A luncheon prepared by co-hostess Elfrieda Palmentier and Ingrid Zarobe will follow the program.

Artists Association to hold annual exhibition

The Grosse Pointe Artists Association will hold its 1991 exhibition at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial from Saturday, May 4, through Saturday, May 11. The public can view the exhibit from noon to 6 p.m. daily; noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Doug Semivan of Madonna University was the juror for the exhibit.

The following Grosse Pointe artists were selected as prize winners: Mary Jane Eckert, first place in the oil and acrylic category; Edna Bakewicz, second place; Carl Hedeon and Barbara Linthorst Homan, honorable mentions.

First place in the watercolor category went to Carol Hennessey; Carol Luc took second place; Michael Derbyshire, third place; Michael Derbyshire, Bette Prudden and Deborah Maiale, honorable mentions.

Carol Luc won first place in the drawing-graphic-print category. Nancy Proffit, second place; Joe Munro, third; Deborah Maiale, Sara Yavruyan and Patricia Penoyer, honorable mentions.

Mr. and Mrs. Karl Gropp Jr.

Rossi-Gropp

Donna Rossi, daughter of Antonia and Frances Rossi of Macomb Township, married Karl Gropp Jr., son of Karl and Hildegard Gropp of Grosse Pointe Woods, on Sept. 21, 1991, at the Grosse Pointe Academy Chapel.

The Rev. Peter Lentine of St. Philomena parish officiated at the 5 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Imperial House.

The maid of honor was Veronica Antonelli of Madison Heights.

Bridesmaids were Anna Corker and Maria Ruggirello, both of St. Clair Shores; and the groom's sister, Cynthia Gropp of Sterling Heights.

The flowergirls were Tia-Marie Brill and Adrienne Pandori, both of Macomb Township.

Krys Schroeder of Harper Woods was the best man.

Groomsmen were the bride's brother, Dominic Rossi of Warren; Glenn Nawa of St. Clair Shores; and Scott Seaver of Shrewsbury, Mass.

The organist was Josephine Lopicolo. The soloist was Maria

Ruggirello. Readers were Mary Rossi, Joann Pandori, Joseph Pandori and Mary Carol Brill.

The bride is a graduate of Grosse Pointe North High School. She earned a bachelor of science degree in dental hygiene and is a dental review specialist at Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Michigan.

The groom is a graduate of Grosse Pointe North High School. He earned an associates' degree in business management. He is retail manager for J.B. Robinson Jewelers.

The newlyweds cruised through the Virgin Islands. They live in Harper Woods.

The bride wore a white moire gown featuring a Basque waist, long sleeves, lace appliques and pearl accents. She carried a bouquet of white orchids, pink roses, tulips and ivy.

The maid of honor was Maudi Taylor of Detroit.

Bridesmaids were Muffy Brady of Grosse Pointe Farms; Michelle McCaffrey of Grosse Pointe Farms; and the groom's sister, Deanne Rose of Birmingham.

The flowergirl was Raimi Waller of Grosse Pointe Woods.

Attendants wore two-piece raspberry moire suits with long sleeves and sweetheart necklines. They carried pink and white tulips, stargazers and ivy.

The best man was Thomas P. Furtaw of Grosse Pointe Park.

Groomsmen were David Dirita of Grosse Pointe Park; Stephen Lathrop of Grosse Pointe Park; and Anthony Morse Jr. of Grosse Pointe Farms, the bride's brother.

Chandon Waller of Grosse Pointe Woods was the ringbearer.

The mother of the groom wore a two-piece suit with a floral tapestry jacket and a blue silk skirt and an orchid corsage.

The bride is a graduate of Grosse Pointe South High School. Both the bride and groom are students. The groom is a member of the United States Marine Corps.

Lynch-Bledsoe

Alicia Brooke Lynch, daughter of Dennis and Julie Lynch of Grosse Pointe Woods, married Beryl Byron Bledsoe III, son of Beryl and Doris Bledsoe of Sandborn, Ind., formerly of Grosse Pointe Park, on June 16, 1990, at Northeast Church of Christ in East Detroit.

The Rev. Stan Clanton offici-

Mr. and Mrs. Beryl Byron Bledsoe III

ated at the 5:30 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Georgian Inn.

The maid of honor was Rebecca Bledsoe of Grosse Pointe Park.

Bridesmaids were Kim Cannon of Harper Woods and Jenny Wunder of Grosse Pointe Park.

Meagan Schultz of California was the flowergirl.

Tony Noell of Warren was the best man.

Groomsmen were Richard Ralph of Washington, D.C., and Monty Clark of Warren.

Chad Fraley of Warren was the ringbearer.

The bride is a graduate of Grosse Pointe North High School.

The groom is a Patriot missile trainer for the United States Army at Fort Bliss, Texas.

The newlyweds honeymooned in Texas. They live at Fort Bliss.

Cappas-Sommerville

Cynthia Lea Cappas, daughter of Dr. A. Thomas and Arlene Cappas of Grosse Pointe Shores, married John David Sommerville, son of John and Helen Sommerville of Dearborn, on Aug. 4, 1990, at Lakeshore Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Dale Iherie officiated at the 5:30 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Roostertail.

The bride wore a silk taffeta gown with a fitted bodice and a shirred shawl collar fashioned with Alençon lace and pearls and a full skirt with a chapel-length train. She carried a cascade of orchids, white roses, stephanotis and ivy.

Mr. and Mrs. John David Sommerville

The maid of honor was the bride's sister, Connie Cappas of Syracuse, N.Y.

Bridesmaids were Allison Keeney of Boston; Lisa Bean of Royal Oak; Kathleen McInerney of Kalamazoo Hills; and the groom's sister, Susan Sommerville of Dearborn.

The attendants wore tea-length floral chintz dresses with fitted bodices, full skirts and shirred shawl collars, designed to match the bride's dress. They carried white and pink long-stemmed carnations.

The best man was the groom's brother, Robert Sommerville of Mount Pleasant.

Groomsmen were Kevin Smyth of Plymouth; Jeff Stassen of Dearborn; John Washington of Detroit; and the bride's brother, Craig Cappas of Chicago.

The mother of the bride wore an ice blue silk suit with cording and pearls on the cuffs and around the neckline.

The groom's mother wore a pale pink silk linen dress with a jacket.

Elizabeth Lissner of Grand Blanc was a reader. The photographer was the bride's great-uncle, Al Nickle of Marion, S.D.

Cappas is a graduate of Grosse Pointe North High School and the University of Michigan, where she earned a bachelor of fine arts degree. She is a free-lance graphic designer and illustrator.

Sommerville is a graduate of Dearborn High School and Western Michigan University. He is a salesman for Trim Sales and Engineering in Dearborn.

The couple traveled to Horten Bay. They live in Dearborn.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Gerard Miriani

Morse-Miriani

Carolyn Gray Morse of Grosse Pointe Farms, daughter of Anthony Jenckes Morse Sr. of Gaylor, married Dennis Gerard Miriani of Grosse Pointe Farms, son of Donald and Marilyn Miriani of Detroit, on March 2, 1991, at the Grosse Pointe Academy Chapel.

The Rev. Robert Wurm officiated at the 5:30 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Country Club of Detroit.

Thin isn't in when dieting goes too far

By Richard H. Schwarz, M.D.
American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists

Thin is in. Or so the hype goes.

Unfortunately, many young women and teens take this message too seriously and become obsessed with getting thin. What begins as normal dieting can spin into a dangerous pattern of severely restricted eating, extreme weight loss and behavioral changes. This condition is known as anorexia nervosa.

Anorexia and other eating disorders are a growing problem. Experts estimate that up to seven million females in the United States are anorexic or bulimic, a condition that involves eating enormous amounts of food and then inducing vomiting to get rid of it. Many others go through temporary phases of obsessive and dangerous dieting.

Most often, eating disorders are seen in white females under the age of 25. Experts do not know exactly what brings on these conditions, but most believe that they may be related to growing up in an environment in which expectations are high and a child feels pressured to meet certain standards. Another factor may be an unwillingness to accept the normal physical changes of puberty and a desire to retain an adolescent figure.

The first sign of an eating disorder is a noticeable change in eating habits and a severe preoccupation with food. An anorexic usually avoids any food with a high calorie content and consumes large quantities of raw vegetables and diet sodas. The victim frequently also becomes addicted to long bouts of strenuous exercise.

A bulimic goes on eating binges, gobbling huge amounts of a particular food, and then vomiting shortly thereafter. Body image distortion is common in both disorders, with victims seeing themselves as fat even if they have become emaciated.

Support group for childless couples

A six-week support group for couples, called "Childless — Not By Choice," will begin Thursday, May 9, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Utica office of Catholic Services of Macomb, 45100 Sterritt, Suite 103, west of M-53 and north of Hall Road.

Therapist Hazel Maxwell will discuss ways to cope with the anxiety and loneliness of infertility.

Weight loss that is profound and long-lasting can pose serious health threats. Common problems include menstrual irregularities that may continue well beyond puberty, dehydration, erratic heartbeat, cardiac arrest and sometimes death. Bulimia, although less severe than anorexia, can result in eroded tooth enamel from vomiting, bleeding of the esophagus, diabetes and a swollen face.

People with recognizable eating disorders should get immediate help. Early diagnosis and treatment can help prevent long-term medical and psychological problems. If someone you know is dieting excessively and has a distorted image of being fat, help them get to a doctor without delay.

Topics include an examination of the cultural and psychological effects of infertility, decisions about infertility testing and a discussion of the importance of parenting in a couple's life.

Cost for the series is $75 per couple. Call 254-2900 for further information.

Mystery: The Arthritis Foundation will hold its annual dinner — this year called "An Evening of Masked Mystery and Entertainment" — at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in Dearborn on Friday, May 17.

The evening will include dinner, live entertainment and an auction featuring Bill Proctor of WXYZ-TV and Ken Calvert of WRIF-FM.

Co-chairmen of the event are Kathleen Mooney of Grosse Pointe and her sister, Ann Najor of Bloomfield Hills. Both have rheumatoid arthritis. Kathleen and her father, Bill Digneit, are on the Arthritis Foundation's Metro Detroit Branch board of directors.

Kathleen volunteers much of her time to the Arthritis Foundation and is a super example of someone who is living well with arthritis, according to Wendy Rose of Rose Communications. Proceeds from the evening will benefit the Arthritis Foundation. Tickets are $100 a person and are available by calling 350-3030.

Feasts: Musical Feasts is a series of DSO fundraisers sponsored by the Detroit Symphony Orchestra Hall Volunteer Council. The 17 individual private parties in volunteers' homes will take place from May until October. Each one is different — a different theme, drink, food, entertainment (usually by a DSO musician.)

One of the events will take place at the Grosse Pointe Park home of DSOH volunteer council president Mado Lie. Brochures are available. Call 962-1000, ext. 286.

Pointer comes home to sing the music of the night

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Now that she's all grown up and a professional opera singer and has made recordings being released worldwide and is making her debut at the Michigan Opera Theater in the roll of the Queen of the Night in Mozart's "The Magic Flute," Elizabeth Parcells laughs when she recalls that she used to be the target of slushballs from students jealous that she was always the music teacher's pet. But the coloratura soprano who grew up in Grosse Pointe laughs at a lot of things about herself.

Like the time a German reviewer, writing about one of her concerts, praised her but then said she had a "stupid vocal technique." Her agent sent copies of the article to opera houses across the country to get Parcells some work. Obviously hurt by the review — especially by the fact that it was distributed nationwide — she thought her career was going to be damaged.

Well, it turned out she didn't have a "stupid" vocal technique. Instead, according to the retraction printed in the paper the next day, she had a "stupendous vocal technique." And after sending copies of the original article — along with copies of the retraction — to everyone who had received the first article, her career suffered only minimally.

And she enjoys a good laugh that now, when her album, "Elizabeth Parcells: A Jenny Lind Recital," is gaining popularity, the photograph of her on the cover shows her at one of her all-time weight highs.

"I hate that picture," she said. "I'm going to be famous like that — thunder thighs. But I guess that should be a lesson to me to keep my weight in check."

But don't get her wrong. Although this 39-year-old has a good time and is able to laugh at herself, she's a serious artist who is committed to her career and her music. And she's serious about her weight.

"Since July I've lost 28 pounds; I've been very strict with myself," she said. "I even count the calories in the milk I put in my coffee. It's very unprofessional to let my figure get out of hand. You don't have to be fat to be an opera singer — you don't sing with fat cells."

MOT hired Parcells to play the Queen of the Night when she was heavy, now it is with great pride that she says she has trouble keeping the costume from falling over her shoulders.

"I wear a size eight," she said. "The dress is, like, a 16 or an 18. I have to stand up real straight or else the technicians have a good view."

One reason she lost the weight is because in Germany, where she now lives with her husband Dierk-Eckhard Becker, they don't put up with fat divas, she said.

"The director goes like this," she said, holding a thumb up at arm's length. "If you don't fit behind the thumb, you don't get the job. They have been known to cast someone who doesn't have the voice over someone who does but is overweight."

Parcells' trek from Grosse Pointe to Germany and back — for this show, but she hopes more will follow — is a winding one.

She began her musical training with the violin. She and her five brothers and sisters were encouraged by their parents to study music. But she always sang in the choirs and her children's church choir conductor told her she had a special gift.

"And I discovered it was easier to sing than to tune the violin," she said. "As soon as I found that out I packed up my violin and started singing."

She graduated from the Interlochen Academy and then from the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston.

"I got my bachelor's degree and I thought I was hot stuff, then my teacher said 'now we can really get down to work,'" she said. She stayed on for two years earning a master's degree in applied singing.

Parcells auditioned twice for the MET Council — a support organization for the Metropolitan Opera in New York — placing second both times in the Boston district. Knowing the way the auditions are run ("I probably shouldn't say this," she said, "but I've been on both sides of the judging table and I know how these things are run") she knew she wouldn't win when she was ready to win — she would win, instead, when the judges wanted her to win — she moved back to Grosse Pointe to compete locally.

"I figured I'd have a better chance as a dark horse in my own hometown," she said.

She took first place and then first again in the regionals. She placed third in the national finals. That was 1977.

"After that I got on the horn and started calling agents who still had no idea who I was — 'I was the girl in the pink dress... yes, third place,'" she said.

She hooked up with an Austrian agent who encouraged her to go to Europe to get experience.

"And anyone will tell you that when you send your daughter of marriageable age to Europe she'll meet the man of her dreams, get married and stay there," she said.

And that's what happened when she met Becker, who was the publicity man for an opera company she worked for. His first act in his new post was to interview Parcells for an article for the company's magazine.

She continued to work, doing concert engagements in Europe and last year was a guest artist at a Grosse Pointe Symphony concert.

It was during that stay that she was asked to audition for MOT director David DiChiera. She was pleased when she was asked to sing the Queen of the Night.

"I've always charted my progress with that of the MOT," she said. "They started just about the time I started my career and I've watched their progress over the years. It's really a wonderful company."

Parcells isn't nervous about singing before a hometown crowd — because of the demands put on coloratura sopranos, Parcells says, "any coloratura who has stage fright is in the wrong business."

She is hoping that a success here will get her more state-side engagements.

Parcells' second album — due out any day now — features her with guitarist Felix Justin. It's an album of Vienna classics spanning the era from before Beethoven to Brahms.

Next on the agenda is returning to Germany, and looking for more work.

DSO report:

Semkow conducts Beethoven with an environmental message

By Alex Sucek
Special Writer

Detroit's favorite guest conductor, Jerzy Semkow, returned to the DSO podium last week with a very traditional program loaded with a hidden agenda. Hidden, that is, until the orchestra played. In the performance, many wonderful messages came through.

Take the opening piece, Sinfonia Op. 18, No. 1 by Johann Christian Bach, youngest son of the first "B." It is deceptively simple music to modern ears with a childlike quality that is very refreshing. The illusion of simplicity was further enhanced by Semkow's direct and controlled presentation of the work. He set brisk tempos and brought out bright and cheerful string sounds.

Music

J.C. Bach was quite distinct from his supremely baroque father. His time in Italy must have influenced his style, which is more lyrical and tuneful, forming a stylistic bridge to the classical era of Mozart.

This bridging was quickly apparent as Semkow led the orchestra into the second work, Mozart's Symphony No. 29 in A major. Barely a middle period work, it already displays Mozart's profound creative mastery. It is a far more sophisticated work than the Bach Sinfonia, yet it possesses much of the same naive quality and can sparkle with runs and trills by the strings and woodwinds in playful humor.

Semkow's well-thought-out and highly controlled conducting of both works brought out their charm and cheerful qualities as well as giving ample expression to Mozart's genius. His conception of the music is very clear and enlightening and his leadership of the orchestra appears to command the players' respect and full response.

He then brought his program to its culmination with Beethoven's 6th Symphony, the Pastoral. It is probably impossible to listen to this music without dwelling on the programmatic associations of open fields, fresh breezes, country dances and, of course, the thunderstorms. But the combination of Semkow's expert conducting, the orchestra's eloquent playing and the magnificent acoustics of Orchestra Hall transcend the limits of any routine performance.

Beethoven himself had an almost religious passion for the pristine values of nature and Semkow managed to evoke a feeling for this passion that turned the 6th into an exultant statement of the glory of the natural environment. It was a performance for the Greens.

clear cutoff, the clarity and accuracy of the sound of the interweaving voices of the orchestra and, consequently, the total effect of the orchestra in its performance are exceptional.

It has the potential of another golden age for the DSO. At least, we can all hope so.

There is no question that this achievement depended upon the fortuitous combination of quality resources. Semkow's precise control of the orchestra and the players' fulfillment of his leadership could be fully appreciated only in the hall's exceptional acoustics. The lingering reverberation after a

This week, Semkow again leads the orchestra and will guide his listeners through succeeding musical periods — romantic and modern Russian. He will be joined by pianist Jose Ramos-Santana in the Chopin Concerto No. 1 and then present Prokofiev's Symphony No. 6. For tickets and information, call 833-3700.

Preservation Wayne tours theaters

The Preservation Wayne Theater Tour on Saturday, May 11, is a walking excursion of six historic movie theaters. The tour is $10 for members of Preservation Wayne and the Art Deco Society of Detroit, and $15 for non-members.

The tour begins at 10 a.m. in the lobby of Clubland, located one block south of the Fox Theatre on Woodward Ave. Parking is available in the Grand Circus Park garage.

Preservation Wayne is Detroit's largest and most accomplished preservation organization. Now in its 16th year, the group was organized to save the David Mackenzie House from demolition. The theater tour is just one of a series of programs and tours planned for 1991.

"The purpose of the tour is to provide people with an awareness of the art and architecture of the theaters in Detroit and to emphasize the value of the buildings," said William Colburn, executive director of Preservation Wayne. "The tour provides a link with the past — part of this city's heritage that

The six theaters featured in the tour are:

- Palms-State (now Clubland) — When it opened on Oct. 29, 1925, the Palms was known as the State. The theater-turned-nightclub, managed by Steve Jarvis, features ornate walls and imposing marble pillars.
- Michigan — Opened Aug. 23, 1926. At $3.5 million, it was the most resplendent of Detroit's movie palaces, and is now a three-tiered garage. The ornate ceiling sadly presents an artistic contrast to the parking structure's floor.
- Grand Circus — Originally called the Capitol and then the Broadway Capitol, it opened Jan. 12, 1922. The building is owned by the Michigan Opera Theatre. Opening scheduled for mid 1992.
- United Artists — A gothic structure with its Spanish interior, the building opened Feb. 3, 1928, and cost $1.2 million. Because of its superb acoustics, the Detroit Symphony Orchestra made several recordings there. Gutted in 1975, its extravagant furnishings were auctioned by Dumouchelle Galleries. Owned by David Grossman, the theater and adjoining office building will be renovated for a nightclub, retail space and loft units.

• Gem — Owned by Chuck Forbes, it opened in September 1928. It shares a common wall with the Century Club, a 1903 dining and lecture club for ladies. It is currently undergoing restoration.

• Now the Tele Arts, The Tele News Theater opened Feb. 14, 1942, as Detroit's first, full-time newsreel theater. Now owned by Carl R. Allison, the Art Moderne Theater shows limited run films.

Owners of each of the theaters will be on hand to answer questions about restoration. Preservation Wayne volunteers will lead tours and distribute photocopies of ads and programs that showcased the theaters. The Tele Arts will show historic newsreels free as part of the tour.

For more information, call William Colburn at Preservation Wayne, 577-3559.

Yogurt and strawberries — sensible 'skinny dipping'

"Humblest born, yet earliest, most beautiful and welcome in their season are the strawberries," wrote John Bidwell.

The strawberry belongs to the genus "fragaria," a member of the rose family which also includes roses, apples, and plums. The name "fragaria" comes from a form of the Latin word for fragrant. The strawberry is served internationally.

Every country has its own unique way of serving the world-famous strawberry. In Venice, strawberries come with a wedge of lemon and sugar. Berry flavor in France is sharpened with a splash of red wine vinegar. In Greece, they are half-dipped in cheese fondant and served on polished leaves. In America, we like things simple — strawberries just "as is" or served with a dip or cream.

The sunny coastal regions of California have the world's best climate for growing strawberries. The mild winters and moderate summers contribute to an unusually long harvest season, which annually produces a statewide crop of over 460 million pounds. That figure represents 75 percent of all strawberries grown in the United States. Fields are always hand-picked, usually every two to four days, or approximately 50 times per season.

There is no storage of fresh strawberries. After picking, they're rushed to coolers where huge fans pull out the field heat, then they're sent on their way via refrigerated truck or air cargo. California strawberries are famous for an even, bright red color. This means that the berries are fully ripened. When shopping, make sure that the berries are plump and well-rounded, and have a natural shine and fresh-looking green caps.

Go "skinny dipping" this spring with California strawberries. Exercising, losing weight and avoiding calorie-laden food are popular resolutions made at the beginning of the new year. The arrival of spring makes it even easier to stay true to those promises. Consider how healthy eating becomes more exciting and convenient when local supermarkets and produce specialty stores begin offering a variety of fresh spring produce. Although many of us love to use strawberries in time-honored desserts, the most nutritious way to enjoy juicy, red-ripe strawberries is simply by themselves. Try dressing them up with a little California flair by dipping them in flavorful "skinny dips."

"California Skinny Dips" — Honey Almond, Chocolate Fudge, Strawberry Cream and Fresh Lemon Poppyseed — save on calories and fat by using plain, nonfat yogurt or reduced-fat sour cream. With two to five ingredients, each recipe is quick, simple and tastes spring-fresh.

Serve one, two or all four dips with a large bowl of red-ripe strawberries as a snack, hors d'oeuvres or the finale to a simple Sunday dinner or an elegant summertime soiree. For larger groups, when "dipping" or "passing" the bowls isn't appropriate, layer one of the dips with fresh sliced berries in parfait glasses for individual servings.

Versatile strawberries are a smart choice for healthy spring-time eating... especially in light of new nutrition information developed by the Produce Marketing Association and approved by the FDA. The research indicates that while having only 60 calories, one serving of eight medium-sized strawberries provides 150 percent of the U.S. RDA for Vitamin C (more than one orange); 230 milligrams of potassium (more than half a banana) and is a good source of fiber, folacin and other minerals.

To ensure their highest nutritional value, good flavor and appearance, use strawberries as soon after purchase as possible. Refrigerate strawberries, unwashed, until ready to eat. Just before using, gently rinse the strawberries with the caps still attached and pat dry with a paper towel.

Travel Trends

Forget fancy luggage

Among travel professionals and professional travelers, there are a number of subjects that always generate considerable discussion — the best hotel chains, the best airlines or cruise lines, favorite airports and luggage. The luggage subject has advocates in many camps. Here's a summary of luggage tips for occasional air travelers who have not yet formed solid opinions.

As discussed in several earlier columns, the first rule in dealing with luggage/baggage is to carry no more of it than you have hands available. Children can carry small lightweight bags, so even a 7- or 8-year-old can help when necessary. An extension of that thought is to have no more cabin baggage than you are willing to deal with in the airport or on the airplane. Even though women can probably carry two pieces of cabin baggage, it may be possible to get along with one larger piece, containing personal "purse" items as well as extras needed for the journey.

Cabin baggage can serve many purposes. Certainly it should serve its primary purpose of carrying personal items, travel documents, medications and maybe a few extra clothing items, in case you want to change en route. It might end up serving as a footrest while under the seat in front of you. Many frequent flyers also use cabin baggage to serve as temporary seating in crowded airports. That tells us that a strong, hard-sided bag might be your best bet for carry-on purposes.

With checked luggage there are several different factors to be considered — weight, convenience, strength, flexibility and cost. Generally, you can relate weight and cost. The lowest weight bags are usually inexpensive but the reason they are light and inexpensive is that they are not built as well as the heavier bags. Luggage with wheels has mixed blessings. If the wheels are not strong or recessed properly into the body of the bag, they are likely to get damaged or torn off.

Flexibility or expandability of the bag has some benefits. But a soft sided, expandable bag can easily be torn or otherwise damaged, particularly when loaded with heavy, hard and inflexible contents. Hair dryers, curlers, shoes, radios and other rigid items in a soft sided bag lead to a lot of disappointment when the corners of these objects suddenly appear through tears in the side. For clothing and other soft, adaptable materials, a soft-sided bag is just fine. The flexibility and adaptability, along with light weight and low cost, make this type of bag perfect for the right contents. And, with quality wheels, this type of bag can conveniently hold most of your belongings.

Does all this mean that a matched set of luggage is not the ideal arrangement for the airplane traveler? Yes, it does. We have already said that one hard-sided bag is desirable for hard items, as a seat and as a footrest, and, we have said that a soft-sided bag is desirable for soft items. Though the mix of different types of luggage makes you look like you are not into appearances, you should remember that you will not be wearing your luggage.

Recital report

Flutist closes his eyes to make great music

By Alex Sucek
Special Writer

The 64-year-old Pro Musica Society, which makes a specialty of bringing artists who are exceptional but just in the process of achieving world-class status, has done it again.

On April 12, in the DIA Recital Hall, flutist and composer Gary Schocker opened the eyes and ears of the society's audience to the full expressive powers of the flute. His advance press notices — of his many awards and the fact that he recently subbed very successfully for Jean Pierre Rampal with a major eastern orchestra — were dwarfed, in fact, by the magnetism and beauty of his performance.

If anyone had misgivings about the prospect of hearing an entire evening of flute, they were in for a big surprise. With the opening baroque sonata by LeClair, Schocker immediately demonstrated his highly expressive, even passionate style and the technical mastery to vary the tone and timbre of his sound from cool and detached, to lush, to shrill to a tender whisper. Most important, he exhibited high artistic taste in the way he used his powers to phrase the baroque runs and trills, bringing rich expression and brightness to the music. Especially notable were the embellishments that he added according to the mood of the evening, in the baroque tradition.

It was even more evident in the Bach Sonata in B minor played in the second half, one of the most difficult pieces in flute repertoire. The second movement Largo was especially moving as Schocker brought to it the tender phrasing and fluidity of a romantic song of love.

More challenging for the audience was the sonata dated 1945 by Martinu. It is a major modern work on the scale of a double concerto for flute and piano, without orchestra. Here in particular, the expert collaboration of pianist Dennis Helmrich came to the fore. Frequent accompanist for some of the world's leading singers and long-time head vocal coach at the Tanglewood summer music camp, Helmrich is a major musical talent in his own right.

The Martinu sonata is a complex and intriguing work that demands virtuoso skills and tight ensemble playing by both performers. It got that and more from the Schocker/Helmrich team.

Also noteworthy throughout the evening were the flutist's engaging stage presence and total involvement in his performance, prompting one listener to muse whether there were any links between the double-tonguing and the eyebrow movements. Schocker admitted at the afterglow that he had turned down an offer to be first flute in a major orchestra with the excuse that he plays much of the time with his eyes closed and so he couldn't watch the conductor.

The story elicited a laugh, but the effect in performance was awesome, especially in the unaccompanied "Syrinx" by Debussy. Schocker seemed almost to personify the demigod Pan playing his final song.

Recalling another Pro Musica tradition (that the society sometimes brings composers to perform their own works), Schocker performed two of his compositions. Both displayed the same level of artistry in a style that is melodious, highly expressive and theatrical — reflecting perhaps that he is working constantly on music for the theater.

His encore, in response to a generous ovation, was the Sicilienne from Faure's Suite from Pelleas et Mellisande. The haunting melody evoked the thought that it was especially appropriate that pianist Helmrich specializes in vocal accompaniment because Schocker, in truth, makes his flute sing.

At this concluding concert of Pro Musica's 1990-91 season, the society also announced its program for next year. A major award-winning Korean American pianist will open, followed by a trio of musicians doubling on clarinet, piano, flutes and bass in a program that will link and blend the classics and jazz. The third program will present an American Helden-tenor who is currently taking Europe's opera circuit by storm. Persons interested in joining the concert society, or seeking more information, may call membership secretary Florence Arnoldi at 886-7207.

Gillespie plays the Attic

Dizzy Gillespie brings his legendary trumpet sounds and his quintet to the Attic Theatre for four special concerts on Thursday, May 2, and Friday, May 3, at 8 p.m., and Saturday, May 4, at 7:30 and 10 p.m.

Dizzy Gillespie

Members of the quintet are Gillespie, Ed Cherry on guitar, John Lee on bass, Ron Holloway on tenor saxophone, and Ignacio Berroa on drums.

In a career that spans five decades, John Birks "Dizzy" Gillespie can be described as a true genius. His natural capacity to create original concepts has had a lasting impact on American music.

Now 73, Gillespie continues to expand beyond the realm of music. He just completed filming "The Winter in Lisbon" in which he plays an expatriate jazz musician disgusted with racism in the United States. Gillespie also composed and recorded the film's score.

In his own life, Gillespie continues to tackle racism. The United Nation Orchestra, convened in 1988, is Gillespie's own attempt to unify the world. Comprised of 15 musicians from such countries as Brazil, Panama, Puerto Rico and Cuba, the group recently released a recording entitled "Dizzy Gillespie and the United Nation Orchestra Live at The Royal Festival Hall."

The Attic Theatre is Detroit's leading resident professional theater. Providing southeastern Michigan with year-round, award-winning theatrical productions and outstanding guest artists in concert, the Attic also serves the community with outreach programs for students and senior citizens.

Tickets are $25 and are available at the Attic Theatre box office, 875-8284, or Ticket Master outlets, 645-6666.

Buhl turns it on in Indy Lights racing series

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe's Robbie Buhl, who two years ago captured the imagination of the racing world by winning the Barber-SAAB Racing series in record pace, is off to a quick start in the Indy Lights Series this season.

In his second year in the Indy Lights, the support series for the Indy cars, Buhl has a second-place finish and an embarrassing eighth-place finish to his credit. But he's still on target to uphold his billing as the 1991 preseason favorite to win the Indy Lights championship.

"We're not at all disappointed with our point total," said Buhl, who a year ago hadn't accumulated a point after two races. "We've got 22 points and we're pleased, but we can't afford any more finishes like we had in Phoenix if we want to win the championship."

Buhl, and his Leading Edge Motorsports team, finished second at Long Beach in the season's first race, and two weeks ago finished eighth at Phoenix. The Phoenix race is better off forgotten.

"But it's difficult to stop thinking about Phoenix," Buhl said. "We didn't get the setup all weekend."

And in one qualifying run, the improper tire setup cost Buhl a shot at the pole position. Trying to stretch the car past its capabilities, Buhl hit the wall on the second day of qualifying and settled for an 11th spot in qualifying.

"After a race like that you want to hide," admitted Buhl, "but you can't. Everyone wants to know what happened and you can't avoid the question. It's sort of embarrassing, but you have to overcome that and move on."

And with the next race slated for June 2 in Milwaukee, Buhl will have ample time to prep the car.

"We're going to do a lot of testing," he said. "We're nowhere near where we should be in order to win this thing, so we have to get the setup and keep it. We've got 10 races to go and we can't afford any more low finishes."

Particularly because the season started off so well.

Buhl, the national spokesman for Children's Hospital who raised $50,000 for the Long Beach hospital, qualified eighth at Long Beach and used a daring move on the race's final lap to finish second behind Belgium's Eric Bachelart.

Buhl moved steadily through the pack and into fourth place by mid-race. He gained the fourth spot with a clever pass of Robbie Groff, but seemed resigned to finish there until P.J. Jones retired late in the race with a broken suspension. On the final lap, veteran Tom Byrne hit the wall, opening the door for Buhl. The finish earned Buhl 16 points and $10,750, but just one week later he was nowhere to be found.

"It was particularly frustrating to have such a poor showing in Phoenix because we had just come off such a fine start in Long Beach," he said. "We got a little lucky in Long Beach, but I'll take it after all the bad luck we had last season."

Buhl and his team struggled all season with mechanical problems, but did manage to finish fourth in the now defunct American Racing Series (ARS).

The biggest difference between the ARS and the Indy Lights is the tires, and that's what's holding Buhl back.

"The biggest thing affecting us right now is the new tires," he said. "This winter we did a good deal of testing, but our budget didn't allow us to have a more intense testing period so we're learning as we go."

The tires have increased from 13 to 15 inches, and until he can find the right setup, Buhl will try to run the pace.

"Every race you want to be on the pace and not lagging behind," he said. "We came into the first race like gangbusters, but then we struggled. After that, I just wanted to curl up and hide, but I can't."

Especially when you're the preseason favorite.

"The pressure of being picked as the preseason favorite is all part of the system," said Buhl. "Last year we went into Grosse Pointe's Robbie Buhl, the national spokesman for Children's Hospital, raised $50,000 while visiting Children's Hospital of Long Beach. Buhl, a race car driver in the Indy Lights Series, has touched many children's lives by visiting them, and here he accepts a gift from one of the patients.

the season to learn and get some good, solid finishes and we did. This year, however, everyone expects a great deal from us and we have to perform, and that's tougher in terms of producing results."

Buhl and the entire Indy Lights circuit have May off and reconvene in Milwaukee, just two weeks before coming to Detroit (June 14-16).

Just let go

Bo Schembechler, the Tigers' president, has spoken quite clearly.

He and the Tigers organization don't want to renovate the old ball yard at Michigan and Trumbull. Ernie's gone at the end of the season and the organist is already standing in the unemployment line.

It's funny how people are so concerned over an obsolete and archaic building. People's energies are being wasted on trying to preserve the stadium. Preserving, renovating or keeping the house that Cobb built won't happen.

Face it, folks, the Tigers will not be playing in the current Tiger Stadium in about three to four years. So what. We've got to let go of the past, no matter how it may hurt our feelings or our "old school" beliefs.

Even when the Tigers are having a lean season, I still enjoy going to the ballpark. There's nothing better than the smell of hot dogs, the shouts of vendors and the crack of the bat smacking the ball. I love the old stadium; it brings memories of when my dad took me there, and trying to grab a foul ball off Willie Horton's bat.

But we can still have all this in a new ballpark. Trammell, Whitaker, Fielder, Deer and Fryman can still thrill a crowd no matter what the stadium looks like or is called.

There was a time when I thought razing the park was foolish, but I realized that things do — and must — change. Maybe it's not a bad idea after all. If a new stadium is built, maybe we can sit in a comfortable seat. Maybe we won't have to miss half the game standing in a vending line or waiting to use the facilities.

How can we ask an organization to stop moving forward at the same time we're asking for a winning club?

The Tigers aren't moving from the city, they're just moving across the street or a couple miles down the road. The balls will still be hit out of the park, the doubleplays will still be turned. Crowds will still be rowdy, enthusiastic, do the wave and pack the stands.

Detroit loves its baseball and we should forget about the stadium issue and worry about keeping the team in Detroit and in Michigan.

We've already lost the Lions to Pontiac and the Pistons to Auburn Hills. Would you want to travel 45 miles to see the Tigers?

There are many cities in this country that would love to house the Tigers. We're fortunate to have such a franchise within our reach. Just think what it would be like if you lived in Colorado, Iowa, Arkansas, Alabama or even Buffalo. There, they don't have Tigers, Red Sox, Cubs, or Dodgers.

What is it you want? Do you want to crucify Monaghan and Schembechler, along with all the other Tigers' employees, for running a business, or are you simply asking for America's pastime to continue?

I don't think the stadium thing is the issue. We can't lose sight of the fact that we are spoiled, no matter how badly, the Tigers play sometimes.

If we continue to go against the grain, I'm afraid we may lose the Tigers to another state with more tolerance and a warmer welcome than we've given the Tigers since they announced their plans to fit into the '90s mold.

Norsemen go deep to narrowly beat Blue Devils

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

South baseball coach Dan Griesbaum knew the North Norsemen could hit the baseball very well. What he feared was how hard, how often and how far.

North showed Griesbaum and the rest of the fans April 23 that hitting homers can give more than instant runs; it can result in the first league win of the season.

North got home runs from Steve Craparotta and Dan Watkins en route to an 8-7 win over South. The victory was North's first of the season and gave them a 1-2 record in the Macomb Area Conference White Division. South picked up its first MAC loss, falling to 2-1.

South banged out 10 hits to North's six, but North sent South starter Kevin Brennan, who gave up seven runs and six walks, to the showers after just 1 2/3 innings. North starter Marc Adams didn't depart until the seventh, when he held an 8-4 lead.

"We got to Brennan right away and that helped us," said North coach Frank Sumner, whose team had blown an eight-run lead and lost to Fraser the day before. "But, when we took the 7-0 lead, I was nervous as all get-out because of what happened with Fraser."

But this time the Norsemen hung on — barely.

North took a 3-0 lead in the first inning on Craparotta's three-run shot, and extended the lead to 7-0 in the second when Watkins tanked a grand slam.

"Every runner on base before the homers was on by walks," said Griesbaum. "You can't afford to walk that many people and not expect to be hurt by it in some way. Walks will kill you every time."

Adams gave way to Paul Straske in the top half of South's seventh, and quickly gave up three runs. South cut North's 8-4 lead to 8-5 on a Kelly Graves home run, and then got two more on Scott VanAlmen's pinch-hit single and a sacrifice fly by Dan Minadeo.

"We only needed three more runs and six outs to mercy South, but we didn't get it," said Sumner, who, with the win, picked up career victory No. 399. "We had to hang on after almost having the game won by the fifth inning."

A game is completed if one team is winning by more than 10 runs after five innings, and North was up 7-0 after four.

But that's when South got to Adams for four runs.

Adams, who finished with three strikeouts in six innings, gave up a solo run on a Minadeo RBI single. Then Jason Benavidez cracked his first homer of the season, a three-run shot, that cut the North lead to 7-4 at the end of five innings.

North got the game-winning run off South reliever Lance Debets in the sixth when Shane Barr walked and moved to third on a Gary Corona single. Barr and Corona then attempted a double steal. The throw from South catcher Graves was cut off by second baseman Bill Leins, who quickly threw home to try to cut down Barr. Barr was safe when Graves dropped the ball, giving North an 8-4 lead.

Debets went 4 1/3 innings, striking out two and walking one.

After failing to get an out in the seventh, Adams left the game with two on and no outs. He also had already given up the homer to Graves. Straske relieved Adams, and got the first batter out on a fielder's choice, but then walked the next batter to load the bases. That's when VanAlmen singled and Minadeo sacrificed to put South down only one, 8-7. But Straske then got Benavidez to fly out to end the game.

"This was a huge win because it puts us back in the pennant race," said Sumner. "If we had gone down three games in the league, we would have been in some trouble, but now we're right back in it."

Lady Devils drop problem-plagued Norsemen

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

The way South senior right-hander Tina Higel was pitching, it probably wouldn't have mattered if the North softball team had been at full strength.

But North coach Bill Taylor wouldn't mind speculating on what might have been if he weren't strapped with a makeshift lineup.

Higel tossed a four-hitter and struck out five Lady Norsemen as the Lady Blue Devils beat North, 6-1, at North April 23.

The win pushed South to 4-0 overall and 3-0 in the Macomb Area Conference White Division. North fell to 1-2 in the league and 3-2 overall.

South, which scored five unearned runs thanks to a rash of North errors, got to North starter Melissa Drouillard quicker than expected. But according to Taylor, Drouillard did all she could.

"Melissa had another outstanding day for us," said Taylor, who has played the season's first five games without five starters. "But she can't do it all on her own anymore. She's had to pitch more than we would have liked this early in the season, but when your No. 2 pitcher is sidelined with a sore shoulder, you've got to go with Melissa."

South tagged Drouillard for eight hits on the day, three by Higel, including two doubles.

"We got to her (Drouillard) sooner than I thought we would," said South's first-year head coach Peggy VanEckoute. "It was the key for us, though. North had just come off a big upset (7-4) of Fraser and we knew they'd be up for us. Plus, we were facing a tough pitcher."

South struck for three runs in the second inning and two more in the third, then capped the scoring with one run in the sixth. North got its lone run in the bottom half of the seventh.

South loaded the bases in the second inning and got all three runners home on a three-base error. Higel then doubled in two runs in the third and Jenny Wysocki laced an RBI single in the sixth. Kim Apple also had three RBI for the Lady Devils.

Higel lost her shutout bid after walking the first North batter in the seventh and then yielding two straight base hits. She then retired the side on strikes.

"We had some very timely hitting and great defense the whole day," said VanEckoute. "The girls are off to a good start and we're pleasantly surprised."

So is Taylor, but his surprises aren't as pleasant.

"This is a different kind of year for us," he said. "We have been plagued with suspensions for alcohol use, grades and injuries. In fact, just before the game, one of my girls had to be taken off the field because she was academically ineligible. But we've got to play over those things and I'm sure we will. We are still working hard and we'll be back to playing good ball."

Buffy Miriani and Erica Barr each had singles for North, but problems still surround the Lady Norsemen.

"After the Fraser win, I thought we were really putting things together," Taylor said.

One-run decisions begin to wear on Blue Devils

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

Going into play Monday, April 29, the Grosse Pointe South baseball team had played five league games. And all five had been decided by one run.

South, in its first year in the Macomb Area Conference White Division, has a 3-2 league mark and an overall record of 7-6. It's the first time this season the Blue Devils have been over the .500 mark.

"These kinds of games really make you age," said Devils' coach Dan Griesbaum. "We knew there would be great parity in the league, but I think I'm a little surprised that all our games have been decided by one run."

After losing a 7-6, eight-inning affair at Romeo April 24, South got a two-hit performance from sophomore right-hander Fritz Coyro to edge Anchor Bay, 2-1, April 27. Coyro struck out seven and walked only one.

At Romeo, South banged out 15 hits, three each by Bill Leins and Matt Recht, but lost a 5-2 lead in the fifth inning. Romeo pushed across an unearned run in the bottom of the eighth to make a loser out of Brian Campbell, despite a strong 3 1/3 innings in relief of starter Mike Oliver. Oliver tossed 4 2/3 innings, giving up six runs on six hits.

The Devils took a 2-0 lead in the first inning on a Kelly Graves double, but Romeo tagged Oliver for two runs in the bottom of the first. South broke the 2-2 deadlock in the second inning on a Tim Gramling RBI single and a two-run double from Bill Leins.

Romeo, however, scored four times in the fifth to take a 6-5 lead. Dan Minadeo's RBI in the seventh tied the score at 6-6 for South, but Romeo got the game-winning run after two were out in the eighth.

At Anchor Bay, Brian Blake, who is hitting better than .500 in his last three games, got the first of three straight hits in the second inning as South took a 2-1 lead. Nick Johnston had a single and Reht knocked in Blake. Johnston then rode home on a Colm Moore sacrifice fly. Anchor Bay got its run in the bottom of the first.

"Fritz shows so much poise for a sophomore," Griesbaum said. "He's so cool and collected on the mound, and he's pitching well beyond his years."

The victory rounded out a fine week for Coyro, who tossed a no hitter in South's 10-0 win over Utica April 22.

Lance Debets got the 8-0 win in the nightcap at Anchor Bay, hurling a six-hitter and striking out four.

Leins led South with a two-run double, and Dan Commer and Kevin Brennan each had an RBI. Oliver, Campbell, Brian Downs, Commer and Brennan each had two hits.

In the North Freshman Tournament, South's Paul Gentile tossed a perfect game to beat East Detroit, 3-0. The win was one of three for the Devils en route to the championship.

At home April 29, South knocked off Fraser, 3-2, to move into a first-place tie with the Ramblers.

Brian Downs picked up the win and Jason Benavidez had two RBI. Brian Blake added two doubles.

Girls' track

A new school record highlighted South's victory at the DeLaSalle Invitational April 27. South finished first in the 17-team field with 78 points, and Chippewa Valley was second with 64 points.

Karen Ehresman, Angela Drake and Robyn Scofield teamed up in the long jump relay to combine for a school-record distance of 46 feet, 3 1/4 inches.

Ehresman was involved in three other first-place finishes, including the shuttle hurdle relay with Megan Malecek, Jenny Williams and Rachel O'Byrne; the 800 relay with Scofield, Drake and Leslie Arbaugh; and the 400 relay with Tere Gavin, Scofield and Kristine Mueller.

Also taking first place was the 4,800 distance relay team of Heidi Wise, Amy Balok, Sue McGahey and O'Byrne.

Earlier in the week, South improved to 5-0 in the MAC White Division with an 85-43 victory over Romeo.

South dominated the running events with 10 first-place finishes in 12 races. The field events were highlighted by 5-foot jumps by Sue McGahey and Jenny Williams in the high jump. South placed first and second in the long jump with Ehresman and Drake recording jumps of 16-5 and 15-8, respectively.

Jenny Mangol had a personal-best toss of 28 feet, 6 inches in the shot put, and Tanya Brewer had a season-best 80 feet, 4 inches in the discus.

Tennis

Bill Wundram and Chris Schilling won a thrilling three-set match to lead the Devils to a 5-3 victory over Grosse Pointe North.

Emiliano Lorenzini and Cullen McMahon both won easily at No. 1 and 2 doubles, while Matt Smucker struggled at No. 3 singles.

Smucker was down 3-0 in the third set, but won it, 6-3. Shawn Coyle and Paul Powers won, 6-3, 6-2, at No. 2 doubles, and Jeff Huntington had to default at No. 4 singles because of a bad back.

South is ranked No. 10 in Class A.

Lacrosse

After losing two straight

School-record holders (long jump relay) Angela Drake, Karen Ehresman and Robyn Scofield. The three South tracksters jumped to a combined distance of 46 feet, 3 1/4 inches in the DeLaSalle Invitational.

matches a week ago, the Devils got back on track with a pair of wins over University Liggett School (10-4) and Ann Arbor Pioneer (5-3).

In the victory over ULS, seven Devils scored, led by Tom Dinverno's hat trick. Dave Cogan had two goals and solo goals were scored by Brett Brownscombe, Peter Mertz, Bill Simonson (who also had an assist), Cameron Craig (one assist), and Drew Woodruff. Jay Boyler added an assist.

Trailing, 3-1, to Pioneer,

South battled back to take the win on four unanswered goals in the second half.

Cogan had two goals to bring his season total to 12, and Dinverno added two goals, his fourth and fifth in two games. Bill Simonson notched a single goal.

South is 4-2 overall.

Soccer

South beat Utica (5-0) and Romeo (7-0) last week, but fell to Romeo 4-1, on April 27.

For the seventh time in 11 years, the Grosse Pointe North baseball team has waltzed out of Alpena with a tournament trophy.

North defeated Sault Ste. Marie, 5-1, Cadillac, 3-2, and Alpena, 12-7, behind some powerful hitting and solid pitching.

North is 6-3 overall. Marc Adams, Mike Haskell, Dan Watkins, Eric Merte, Paul Straske and Terry Thomson were named to the all-tournament team.

Adams got the start and went the distance for the win over Sault Ste. Marie, scattering four hits and striking out four. Adams gave up a run in the first inning and didn't allow another the rest of the way.

Straske tied the score for North with an RBI single in the first; then the Norsemen broke the game wide open with a three-run second inning.

Haskell and Adams had back-to-back singles to start the inning, then Thomson laced an RBI single. Gary Corona and Jeff Jensen then punched RBI singles, extending North's lead to 4-1. Thomson added a sacrifice fly in the fifth to score Tim Sacka, who had walked, with the game's final run.

Against Cadillac, Haskell pitched the final three innings, salvaging the win for Jason Gaca, who went four innings, striking out four and giving up three hits. Haskell, who knocked in a run in the third inning, yielded one hit and fanned three.

Cadillac got single runs in the first and fourth innings, but North countered with one in the second and two in the third. Thomson's RBI single tied the game in the second inning, and he later knocked in the game-winning run on a fielder's choice in the third. North had six hits in the victory.

Brit Pierce got the start against Alpena, but he wasn't around for the win. Pierce was relieved by Haskell after he gave up three runs, five hits, hit two batters and walked five in just three innings. Haskell scattered four hits the rest of the way.

Going into the bottom of the fourth, North trailed 3-0. After two were out for the Norsemen, Watkins singled and moved to second on a throwing error, and Haskell drove him home on a single. Haskell moved to second when Alpena tried to cut down Watkins at the plate. Thomson then singled home Haskell, and Adams followed with a single. Shane Barr's single then tied the score at 3-3 after four innings.

North continued its 16-hit barrage in the fifth, when Watkins tripled home three runs.

Haskell got Watkins home with a double, and then rode home on a Thomson single. On Thomson's hit, the right-fielder allowed the ball to get past him and Thomson raced all the way home, and North enjoyed a 9-3 lead.

Alpena struck for three runs in the sixth to cut the lead to 9-6, but North iced the game in the sixth on a Watkins RBI single and a two-run homer by Haskell.

Haskell and Watkins combined for six hits and eight RBI, and Thomson had three hits and three RBI.

At home against Anchor Bay Monday, April 29, North got a solo home run from Paul Straske in the bottom of the ninth to win, 6-5. Straske also picked up the win in relief.

Softball

With a 4-2 win over L'Anse Creuse North, the Lady Norsemen evened their MAC White Division record at 2-2.

Overall, North is 4-2. North beat the Crusaders, 6-4, when Jessica DeSmet laced a two-run double in the top half of the seventh.

Girls' track

The Lady Norsemen relay teams won two races, placed third in two events, ran to one fourth-place finish and earned three fifth places en route to a fourth-place finish at the Port Huron Invitational April 27.

Soccer

Amy Shepley scored the hat trick and Felicia Paluzzi added a goal as the Lady Norsemen ripped Grosse Pointe South, 4-1.

The win kept North unbeaten in the Macomb Area Conference White Division, and also gave it sole possession of first place. North is ranked No. 10 in the state and is 6-1 overall.

The Lady Norsemen's only loss was to Utica North.

On April 26, North shelled Roseville, 17-0.

Tennis

After losing, 5-3, to Grosse Pointe South, the Norsemen battled back to finish in a third-place tie in the Grand Blanc Invitational April 27.

ULS sports

Knights look to turn corner

The University Liggett School boys' varsity tennis team is showing signs of turning the corner.

Shut out three times in the first two weeks of the season and losing 6-2 to Brother Rice on April 24, the Knights posted a second-place finish at the East Grand Rapids Invitational and tied No. 7 (Class A) Bloomfield Hills Lahser at the ULS Invitational last weekend.

ULS and Lahser had 15 points, followed by East Grand Rapids and Forest Hills Central, with nine points each.

Flight winners for ULS were Ken Prather (No. 3 singles), Andy Loreda (No. 4 singles) and Danny Khatib and Omar Sawaf (No. 3 doubles). Jason Go and Sammy Khatib at No. 1 doubles, and Cheo Ramsey at No. 2 singles, were runners-up.

"It's our schedule, no doubt about it," said ULS coach Bob Wood. "By playing the toughest schools in the state, our kids are tested every time out. We may lose a few, but we get better and better."

ULS will host its 24th annual invitational May 3-4. Participating schools include Ann Arbor Pioneer, Dearborn, Edsel Ford, Greenhills, North, South, South Lake and ULS. Play begins at 3:30 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. Saturday.

Soccer

Coach David Backhurst faced last week's action with trepidation, knowing his ULS team would be without all-state players Monica Paul and Beth Weyhing. Both were spending the week as counselors for ULS' sixth-grade outdoor education program.

Backhurst's fears were not unfounded as the Knights finished the week with a hard fought tie, 0-0, with South Lake and a 6-1 drubbing at the hands of Detroit Country Day School (No. 3 in Class B-C-D).

At home vs. South Lake, ULS was led by P-R Stark, Emily Wardwell, Rachel Robichaud, Katy Tompkins and Carrie Burbauer.

At Country Day, ULS saw its school-record string of 426 shut-out minutes snapped, when Country Day scored 26 minutes into the first half. Lauren Gargaro scored the lone ULS goal on a nifty individual effort.

Girls' lacrosse

By Linda Morreale
Special Writer

Amy Mehr led ULS to a 15-5 shelling of Ann Arbor Pioneer April 26 with four goals. Katie Campbell and Cara Stackpole had three goals each, followed by Linda Morreale and Nicole Metcalfe, with two each. Katrina Linthorst-Homan rounded out the scoring with a solo goal.

Goalie Abby McIntyre turned aside 17 shots.

Track

The girls' and boys' track teams finished second in a home meet last week and now stand at 5-4 on the season.

ULS hosted Southfield Christian and Plymouth Christian April 25, and the girls finished with 79 points. The girls beat Plymouth, 50-10.

The boys netted 50 points to Southfield's 98 and Plymouth's 13.

ULS had eight first-place finishes but only two seconds, as once again the Knights lacked depth. Jennifer Miller was the only double winner, taking the 1,600 (5:43) and the 3,200 (12:23). Freshman Natalie Hubbard threw a personal-best 28 feet, 6 inches to win the shot put, and Ify Obianwu won the 200 dash.

Natasha Levy and Obianwu went one-two in the 100 dash, and teamed with Hubbard and Cybelle Codish to win the 400 relay. Codish also won the long jump, while Carla Caputo, Sonia Eden, Angela Johnson and Crystal Martin scored other ULS points.

For the boys, Jonah Smith led the way with victories in the long jump and high hurdles, and a second in the high jump. Jon Sieber won the 1,600 (4:47) and 3,200 (10:26).

ULS' Aaron Lewis won the 200 dash. Other point-winners were Obie Dickerson, Mike Fox, Chris Martin, Aravind Kalahasty, Gary Stark and Fred Leisen.

Baseball

The ULS baseball team lost all three games it played last week, falling to Oakland Christian, 10-4, and losing both ends of a doubleheader to Country Day, 14-4 and 2-0, on April 27.

Against Oakland Christian, senior outfielder Greg Akers hit a two-run homer in the first inning to put the Knights on top, but a two-run error opened the door to six Oakland Christian runs in the bottom of the first. ULS never recovered and lost for only the third time in 11 years to the Eagles.

In the first game against Country Day, ULS gave up a run in every inning but the fourth.

ULS is winless on the sea-

Keep fire in the hearth, not in the chimney flue

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

If you have a wood-burning stove or fireplace and used it at all over the fall or winter, it's probably time to get your chimney cleaned.

Most people wait until the fall to clean their chimneys, according to Donald Jiles, 39, the owner of Coachlight Chimney Sweep Co. in Macomb Township.

"They like to do it then to get it ready for Christmas and Santa Claus," Jiles said.

However, there are advantages to getting your chimney cleaned in the spring.

For one thing, it's a slow time in the sweep business, so customers can usually set up an appointment at their convenience.

Also, if the sweep finds a problem with the chimney — for example, if bricks are crumbling and need to be replaced — it can be repaired before cold weather sets in.

In addition, creosote — a highly flammable, tar-like substance that collects in the chimney when solid fuel is burned — is corrosive and produces a foul odor, especially in warm, damp weather.

"It can really stink up a house in the summer," but a good chimney cleaning can prevent that, Jiles said.

And, if a chimney is cleaned in the spring, and has a proper screen over it to keep out rain and animals, it will be ready to use in the fall.

Santa Claus aside, the most important reason to clean your chimney is for safety's sake.

Chimney fires start when hot smoke from a fireplace or stove hits creosote deposits, according to Jiles, and he should know.

He was a firefighter in Grosse Pointe Farms for 16 years and has been a firefighter in Bloomfield Township for more than a year.

Coachlight's four other sweeps are also firefighters.

A member of the National Chimney Sweep Guild, Jiles follows National Fire Protection Association guidelines, which say, among other things, that creosote deposits in a chimney should not exceed a quarter of an inch in depth.

"We won't clean a chimney that doesn't need cleaning," Jiles said, "but if we look in the chimney and see that the creosote is thicker than a quarter of an inch, then it needs cleaning."

Jiles said he started Coachlight Chimney Sweep Co. in 1978 in the midst of an energy crisis.

"A lot of people were turning to alternative sources of fuel to heat their homes, and a lot of people were burning wood who didn't know how to burn wood," Jiles said. "These people had grown up in homes that were heated by gas and oil, so they didn't know you have to do certain things, like avoid using soft woods because the wetter and softer the wood, the more creosote is produced, and that the chimney must be cleaned regularly. As a result, we (firefighters) saw a dramatic increase in chimney fires."

"Chimney fires can do real damage to a house," Jiles said. "Because creosote is so flammable, the temperature of the fire gets around 2,000 degrees, and mortar starts to melt at that point. Then you have big gaping holes from the chimney into the attic and eaves of the house, and the fire just loves that. It can spread throughout the roof very quickly."

Cleaning a chimney involves more than just getting on the roof and poking a brush down the smokestack. That not only sends soot down to the floor of the fireplace, it also shoots it to the smoke shelf, which lies inside the fireplace and is hidden by the damper. The damper must be removed, and the smoke shelf brushed clean of soot.

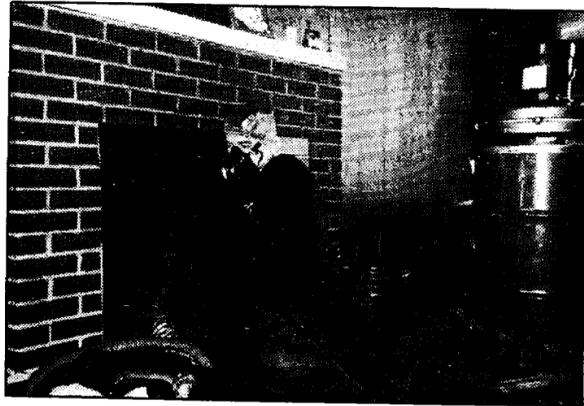

See SWEEP, page 2C

When they're not manning fire trucks, Jiles and his sweeps man vans on the northeast side of Wayne County and in Macomb and Oakland counties in the hope of preventing chimney fires.

Donald Jiles will don top hat and tails at a customer's request, but he says people take him more seriously when he cleans chimneys in a jacket and baseball cap.

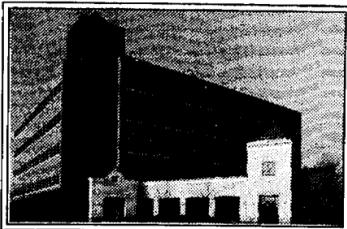

Ron Stockwell, a Coachlight chimney sweep and a Clinton Township firefighter, uses a long-handled brush to reach the top of a chimney in Warren, while an industrial vacuum, right, catches the soot.

POINTE PLAZA

The Address Speaks For Itself

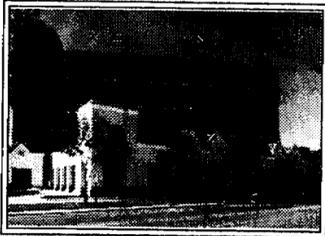

In the heart of the Grosse Pointes, stands Pointe Plaza. This unique business environment is recognized as one of the area's most distinguished addresses.

Contemporary, yet classic. Pointe Plaza's exceptional design is a setting of quiet beauty with its premium-quality finishes of imported marble and polished brass. Stunning in its elegance and good taste, Pointe Plaza combines 5-story executive office buildings, upscale shops and dining, and extensive covered and reserved parking.

Located at the prominent intersection of Moross and Mack Avenue, and adjacent to the renowned St. John Hospital Medical Center, Pointe Plaza offers over 120,000 square feet of distinctive office space.

The convenience of working in your neighborhood and the easy access from I-94 and I-696 allows this dynamic location to serve businesses and shoppers from the immediate areas as well as the surrounding areas of Metropolitan Detroit who have the desire to create a golden opportunity for your business.

Space is now available from 1,000 square feet. We invite your inquiries.

Pointe Plaza is a joint venture of Schostak Brothers and the St. Clair Health Corporation.

Battle gypsy moths

The experts say the gypsy moth problem must get worse before it gets better. But that doesn't mean that homeowners can't or shouldn't take steps to protect valuable trees.

Cooperative Extension Service entomologists at Michigan State University say a number of mechanical and biological techniques are available to protect landscape trees.

Removing gypsy moth egg masses from tree trunks, wood-piles, outdoor furniture and buildings will eliminate some caterpillars. It probably won't have a significant impact on local defoliation, however, simply because gypsy moths produce so many eggs and so few of them are accessible from the ground.

But it's a start. Scrape the fuzzy-looking, buff-colored egg clusters off of any surface and drop them in soapy water to kill them, bury them or flush them down the toilet.

After eggs hatch, in May, the small larvae crawl into the tree tops, attracted by the overhead light. From there they disperse, first spinning a single thread of silk and dangling from it, then sailing away in the wind, suspended by their long body hairs.

Small larvae feed during the day and hide at night in bark crevices on the trunk and branches. As they get bigger, they begin feeding at night and resting during the day. When population levels are very high, they are active day and night. Their habit of moving from tree to tree, especially as numbers increase, makes them vulnerable to barrier traps.

Bands of sticky material, such as Tanglefoot, placed around tree trunks trap larvae as they try to move across them. These bands may need frequent replacement because of weathering and loading up of the bands with larvae.

Another way to take advantage of the caterpillars' daily migration habits is to provide them with hiding places — burr-lap or other heavy fabric folded and secured to the tree trunk. Larvae looking for hiding places will be attracted to the bands. Larvae must be removed and destroyed daily to prevent them from moving on into the treetops to feed.

Using both sticky bands and hiding bands on the same trees will increase their effectiveness. Place the hiding bands, which should be at least 12 inches wide, above the sticky bands, he suggests. Increasing numbers of larvae under the hiding bands indicate that the sticky bands are becoming less effective and need to be replaced.

Though chemical insecticides can help reduce defoliation, they also tend to wipe out the parasites and predator insects that feed on gypsy moth larvae. So, by wiping out these natural enemies, they can actually worsen the situation in the long run.

Instead of chemical insecticides, homeowners can use one of the commercial preparations of bacillus thuringiensis, a bacterial disease of caterpillars formulated into an insecticide. BT kills only caterpillars, is safe for use near water, is harmless to mammals (including humans) and does not harm the gypsy moth's natural enemies.

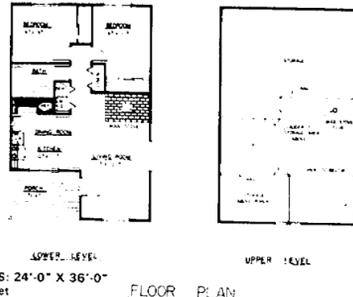

BT is most effective when caterpillars are less than an inch long. It's water-soluble, so more than one application may be necessary. And it must reach the tops of trees to be effective. A certified commercial pesticide applicator may be needed to apply BT to large trees.

Though it may afford some personal satisfaction, swatting or stepping on individual larvae does little to reduce defoliation. A better use of your energy is to fertilize and water trees to keep them healthy and growing vigorously.

Gardening classes offered

Three gardening classes have been scheduled at Barnes School in Grosse Pointe Woods for May.

"Create Your Own Herb Garden" and "Create Your Own English Garden" will be taught by Mary Northcutt. The session on herbs will be held at 7 p.m., Thursday, May 9, while the

OVERALL DIMENSIONS: 24'-0" X 36'-0"
LIVING: 770 square feet

Ideal second home

A compact, but fun-filled home away from home, the Libre has only 770 square feet on the main level and 390 square feet of loft area for storage and sleeping (if approved by local code).

A second loft corner strictly for storage is located above the porch. Both loft areas are accessible by ladders in the dining and kitchen area.

The Libre is an ideal retreat at the beach, mountains or even a small city lot. The home features two bedrooms, a bath and a stacked washer/dryer unit. The living area has a vaulted ceiling which is attractive and creates a spacious feeling.

A steep slope roof with a decorative gable window accents the exterior. The gable windows will allow the sunshine to penetrate the interior, providing warmth and light.

The covered porch is a perfect place to sit and chat on warm summer nights and it offers shelter from the elements to visitors.

The exterior is illustrated with vertical siding and batt. If a horizontal siding were used, particularly on the lower level, a more formal design would result. Yet another distinctly attractive appearance could be created with brick.

For a study kit of the Libre (202-05), send $7.50 to Today's Home, P.O. Box 2832-T Eugene, Ore. 97402. Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.

Sweep

The smoke chamber (the triangular part of the chimney that lies between the fireplace and the rectangular part of the chimney) must also be brushed from inside the fireplace.

"People have to be aware of phony chimney sweeps," Jiles said. "These people get up on the roof, make a lot of noise, send some ash down to the fireplace, clean it up and then tell you you're all set. But you're not, because they haven't cleaned the smoke chamber or the smoke shelf."

When a Coachlight sweep comes into a house, he puts two firms on the floor in front of the fireplace and runners from the door to the fireplace to protect carpet and tile. He uses a long, specially designed brush to reach the top of the chimney from inside the house. The brush scrapes all four chimney walls at the same time.

Before he begins brushing, he turns on a high powered industrial vacuum inside the fireplace to catch the soot as it falls.

The sweep then cleans the smoke chamber and the smoke shelf.

Coachlight sweeps used to wear tails and top hats on the job all the time — like the sweeps in England. However, now they only wear them on special occasions, and at the customer's request.

"We found that people took us more seriously if we wore a jacket and baseball cap with our logo on it," Jiles said.

Build a deck in garage, workshop

These easy-to-build modules make construction of a ground level deck surprisingly simple, even for inexperienced woodworkers. The 4-foot modules, which are made from standard size western lumber, may be cut and assembled in your garage or workshop.

If you used pressure-treated lumber, the modules can be installed directly on the ground in any level area of your yard. Or use them to spruce up an old cracked or pitted concrete patio by laying them directly over the concrete. They will also update an entry walk or enlarge an uninviting front porch.

When you're planning your modular deck, remember that it doesn't have to be a simple square or rectangle. The modules may be arranged to take best advantage of your space, whether it's L-shaped, U-shaped or stair-stepped. Altering the direction of the decking will add visual interest by creating a checkerboard effect.

To install a ground-level deck, mark off the deck area, then level it to provide a firm foundation for the modules. For greater stability or if the ground is slightly uneven, the modules may be mounted on pressure-treated 2x6s, called "sleepers." The sleepers, which are placed directly on the ground, are spaced four feet apart and run the length or width of the deck. Toenail the modules to the sleepers and to each other for rigidity.

Building the modules

For each 4-foot-square module, you will need 15 lengths of 2x4, each 45 inches long. Twelve lengths will be used for decking and three for the understructure. You will also need two lengths of 2x6, 45 inches long, and two lengths 48 inches long, for the outer frame.

On a flat, solid surface, such as a garage floor, position two of the 2x4s 45 inches apart (outside measurement), wide side down. You will nail the decking to these 2x4s.

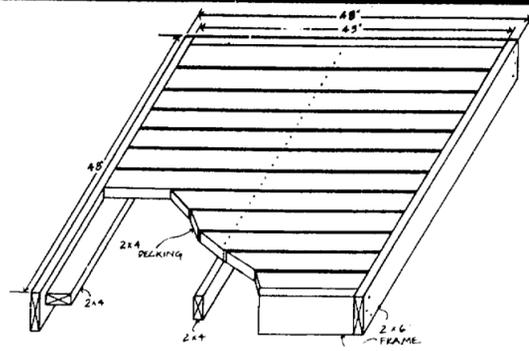

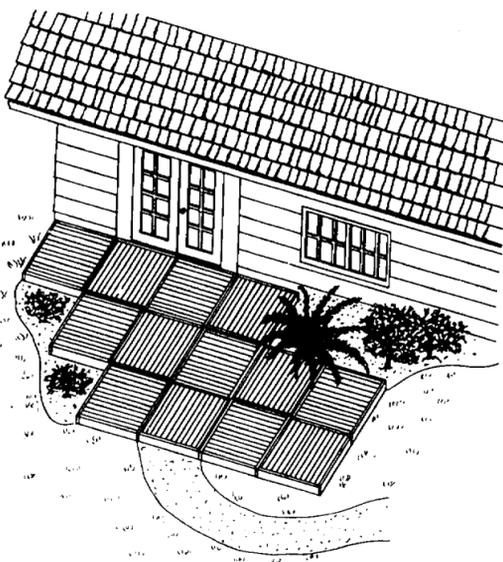

Arrange 12 lengths of decking over the 2x4s, making a module 45 inches square. Space the decking evenly — approximately 1/4-inch apart — and join to the 2x4s with two 8d galvanized common nails at each end. (For a more finished appearance, nail the 2x4s to the decking from the back side so the nails won't show when the module is installed.)

For the outer frame, attach the two 45-inch 2x6s to opposite sides of the module, flush with the top of the decking, using 10d galvanized nails. Attach the 48-inch lengths to the other two sides. Nail the outer frame at the corners and to the decking and understructure.

To prevent excessive deflection (springiness), turn the module upside down and install a center 2x4, on edge, across the length of the decking. Fasten it at each end with 10d galvanized nails, then top nail it, through the decking, with two 8d galvanized common or finishing nails per 2x4.

For more deck ideas and other do-it-yourself projects you can built with wood, write to Western Wood Products Association, Dept. HI-491, Yeon Building, 522 SW Fifth Ave., Portland, Ore. 97204-2122.

FREE kittens to good home. 882-7830.

LOVABLE dogs and cats need good homes. For adoption information call: Northern Suburbs Animal Welfare League Volunteer at Jeanette 773-6839.

PLEASE DON'T DELAY! SPAY OR NEUTER YOUR PET TODAY!

An altered pet is a healthier and happier companion. Also, it spares you the grief and pain of having puppies and kittens destroyed when no homes can be found. Countless numbers of sweet, innocent little ones are euthanized every day in shelters across the country because a pet wasn't spayed or neutered. If we cut down on the numbers of unwanted litters being born, we will also cut down on the number of abandoned, lost and unwanted animals to destroyed.

WE WILL BE HAPPY TO PROVIDE ADVICE as well as a LIST OF ECONOMICAL SERVICE SOURCES

ALL THAT CLUTTER AROUND THE HOUSE GETTING HAIRY?

Try our spring cleaning short cut...
It's painless AND profitable! Before you start your spring cleaning, take an inventory of all those winter items and 'packed-aways' that you no longer want or need, and then place an ad in the Classifieds! That way, you can sell items and clear away clutter as you go...and then you can 'clean up' with all the cash you've made!

Increase Your Resale Value

There are so many things you can do to increase the resale value of your home that it's hard to decide which project will be best when it comes to the bottom line. Here we'll discuss 14 different projects, their costs and resale value increases.

- Room addition: Build a 15x25-foot addition on a poured slab foundation, with matching sidewalls and roof, and a dry-wall interior with batt insulation. Include two ventilating skylights, a patio door and electrical outlets. The estimated remodeling cost would be $31,841, and the estimated resale value would be $23,880.
- Major kitchen remodeling: For an estimated $21,660 you could add new cabinets, countertops, energy-efficient appliances and custom lighting. That figure would also allow for a new floor, wall coverings and ceiling treatments. The resale value would increase by about $19,277.
- Minor kitchen remodeling: To increase the resale value around $7,338, refinish cabinets, install an energy-efficient appliance, new countertops, cabinet hardware and some new decorating. The cost for this project is estimated to be $7,976.

- Bathroom remodeling: Add a new tub, sink and toilet, plus a new vanity, medicine cabinet, ceramic-tile walls in the tub area and a ceramic-tile floor. The estimated cost is $6,743 with an estimated resale value increase of $5,057.
- Adding a full bath: Including everything from remodeling a bathroom (mentioned above), building an additional 5x7-foot bathroom to the home's existing structure would cost around $9,658. The good news is the resale value of this project is $11,590.
- Adding a fireplace: For an estimated cost of $3,625, you can install an energy-efficient, factory-built fireplace. This would increase your resale value by $4,894.

- Adding insulation: Increase your resale value by about $1,310 when you add a depth of eight inches of blown-in wood-fiber insulation to the outside walls of your attic. This project would cost about $1,680.
- Adding a greenhouse: Spend around $16,347 to get an 8x13-foot pre-fabricated addition with double-glazed, tempered glass, two lowered windows and one 30-inch door with a concrete floor over crushed stone. The resale value goes up an estimated $6,538.
- New siding: Replace existing siding with 1,500 square feet of vinyl, aluminum or steel siding using 1/4-inch foam insulation board for about $7,536. The estimated resale value is $7,536.
- Replacing windows and doors: This project, costing about $10,995, involves replacing 16 windows with aluminum, wood or vinyl-insulated glass windows. Replace entry doors with two wood prime entry doors and add storm doors. The estimated cost is $10,995, and the estimated resale value is $7,806.

- Adding skylights: This project, costing an estimated $3,462, would involve installing three 3-by-3-foot, manually operated, ventilating, insulated glass skylights. Two would go in the primary living area and one in the master bedroom or bathroom. This project would increase the resale value about $2,077.
- Reroofing: To add a new roof, you would need to remove the existing roof and then install 3,000 square feet of fiberglass or asphalt shingles with new felt surface underneath. For an estimated cost of $4,507 your resale value will increase about $4,056.
- Adding a wooden deck: To increase your resale value an estimated $5,181, add a 16x20-foot deck of pressure-treated pine. Include railings, a built-in bench and a planter. The estimated cost for this project is $6,242.

- Adding a swimming pool: The cost to add a 16x32-foot, in-ground, deep-end pool with aluminum walls, a vinyl liner, a surrounding surface of three-inch concrete, a filter system, accessories and maintenance equipment is about $23,660. Surprisingly, this addition would have an estimated value of only $5,915.
