Kelly, DiNello regret brawl, will apologize to kids who saw it

By Rose Palazzolo

Special Writer Boys will be boys when it comes to the issue of property taxes. That became obvious last week when Sen. Gilbert Di-Nello of East Detroit and Sen. John Kelly of Grosse Pointe Woods, both Democrats, got into a brawl on the senate floor after the two exchanged words over the specifics of a property tax cut bill.

According to Kelly, bitter words had been coming from DiNello all morning over an amendment to the bill that Kelly sponsored. That the bitter words turned into bitter blows was not surprising to "A number of people were agitated all day about the bill," he said. "My concern was where were we going to get the money for the property tax rollback. The leadership just wanted to get it over with. DiNello had caustic words for a number of senators that morn-

He said he was supportive of everything in the bill except for the question of where the money is coming from. In the end he voted for the bill which passed.

According to Kelly, words turned to violence when Di-Nello came "charging down the floor" to where Kelly was speaking and grabbed the senator by the throat.
"Then he threw me on an-computer and everything that was on the desk fell and he swung at me," Kelly said.

DiNello could not be reached for comment. However, in a faxed statement the senator said, "I regret the incident because it has temporarily clouded the high standards of the institution of the state Senate." He also apologized to the students from Cook Elementary School who happened to be visiting the Senate that day and witnessed the incident. DiNello told The Detroit News that he was joking with Kelly and that Kelly got mad and started to push the 56-yearold senator around. "At what point was he joking?" Kelly said. "I mean if someone grabs you by the neck and picks you up off the ground by the neck I don't see the hu-

"The only way I could get him off was to hit him." Kelly's punch connected with DiNello and the husky senator went down with a bloody nose.

Yeah, I clipped him right in the nose," Kelly said. Kelly said DiNello had been using expletives all morning in the debate and in the process had upset other senators.

Lana Pollack of Ann Arbor and Virgil Smith of Detroit were two other Democrats upset by DiNello's actions

Gifted program to be overhauled

The Grosse Pointe School System is once again overhauling its program for gifted and talented students. Officials, parents and teachers know the changes will be instituted when school begins in September. What will be done is, at this point, known only to Superintendent Ed Shine, who will make a recommendation to the school board on June 3.

Whatever his decision, though, it is sure to anger as many people as it pleases. "It's been a volatile issue for years," said Roger McCaig, director of research and development. It was his job to gather information on various programs for gifted students from across the country to give to the committee whose job it was to come up with a new progamut, including doing nothing to meet the needs of these children, which is by far the most common."

Grosse Pointe schools have been looking for the right program since they first decided to tackle the issue in 1974. The current program, called PACE (Program for Academic and Creative Education) is the fifth gifted and talented program in those 16 years.

The current program works like this: Students in grades 2-5 - if identified through several tests, recommended by teachers and approved by the parents are put in the program. These students have two 50-minute sessions each week during which they participate in an enrichment activity. The activities are scheduled during the school day, meaning the stu-dents must be taken out of class for the activities. They are then responsible for catching up on work they missed while out of class.

Taking students out of class is hard on the teacher and on the other students who watch as their classmates get to participate in a fun activity.

The problem is that many of the activities are outings every student - not just those identified as gifted - can benefit from.

For instance, the students reently toured local architectural gems with an architect who discussed the various highlights.

"I'm not saying it's not educational," McCaig said, "but aren't all students able to benefit from an experience like

In March, Hartmann began a campaign to raise $200,000 to purchase and restore the farmhouse, which is owned by Christopher Blake, president of The Blake Co. She needed $82,500 to buy the house and lot and $120,000 for restoration and the addition of a garage and living space.

Six vie for four Farms council seats; Fromm not running

By Donna Walker Staff Writer

Six Grosse Pointe Farms residents have declared their candidacy for the Nov. 5 city council

The filing deadline was Tuesday, May 14.

Four of the seven council seats will be up for election, including those belonging to Mayor Joseph L. Fromm and Councilman Emil Berg, both of whom chose not to run again.

Because less than eight people filed, a primary election will not be held.

The top three vote getters will serve a four-year council term, and the fourth top vote getter will serve a two-year

The candidates are Gregg L. Berendt, Harry T. Echlin, Edward J. Gaffney, J. Kenneth George, Terrence P. Griffin, and Richard L. Hurford.

Berendt, 39, is finishing his fourth year and first term on the council. He is chairman of the council's ordinance committee, a member of the historical preservation and retirement commissions, and serves as an alternate to the Grosse Pointes-Clinton Refuse Disposal Authority board and the cable television board.

A lifelong resident of Grosse Pointe Farms (except when he went to college), Berendt is a manager for a manufacturing company. He and his wife, Julie, have two children.

Fchlin, 51, is finishing his 12th year and third four-year term on the city council. He is currently serving as mayor pro tem, a member of the parks and recreation committee, and chairman of the council's com-

Before voting, Fromm is out, Heenan is in wo Grosse Pointe mayors made news last week long before the municipal elections that will not be held until November.

One surprise development was the retirement of Joseph L. Fromm of the Farms after five years as mayor and 18 years of service on the council.

The other came in the Park where Palmer T. Heenan filed again for mayor and for the second time faces no opposition, a fact that assures him of re-election to a fifth term.

The Farms and the Park last week closed their nominating periods for municipal posts although Grosse Pointe Shores opened the Pointes' municipal voting season Tuesday without formal opposition to the r-eelection of President Edmund M. Brady Jr. and three trustees, John Huetteman III, Rose Garland Thornton and N. William O'Keefe.

The Woods and the City also will elect municipal officials in November but since neither requires a primary, the filing deadline for both will be in the early fall.

Along with Fromm, two incumbent Pointe councilmen announced their retirement. They were Park Councilman David Gaskin and Farms Councilman Emil Berg. But council contests were assured in both cities in November. Details about the candidates appear in the news columns of today's News.

Mayor Fromm said he is retiring after 18 years on the council because it's time for "the younger generation to take over." But he admitted his decision was influenced by the fact that he ran fourth and won only a two-year term when he ran for the council in 1989.

While the mayor is elected by the council in the Farms, Fromm says he probably would have run again if the people made the choice as they do in the other Pointes.

He admits it would be difficult to serve on the council after having been mayor.

When Fromm was named mayor in 1986, he listed four matters of major concern that would continue to merit the council's attention.

Now he points out three of the goals have been achieved: completion of the Hill development, merging the fire and police departments into a new public safety department and improvement of Lakeshore Road.

Unfortunately, efforts to halt the deterioration of the Mack-Moross corner area have not yet succeeded although several options are still under study.

Yet new problems continue to arise for the Farms and all of the Pointe governments, in Fromm's view.

One of the biggest will be caused by the new state assessment tax freeze for 1992 with another problem looming if voters approve a 1992 state referendum to limit assessment increases to 5 percent or the current rate of inflation, whichever is lower.

Other problems will be the continuing traffic issues; the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's effort to rezone its next door property, a dispute still in the courts; the demand for additional emergency medical service, which Fromm believes might be solved by better cooperation among the Pointe governments and local hospitals, and the proposed expansion of Detroit City Airport, a move opposed by all the Pointe governments and not yet dead.

Looking back, however, Fromm says many accomplishments can be attributed to the combined efforts of the administration, the council, citizen volunteers and the public at large with the mayor serving as the leader and catalyst.

As the News said when he took office, Fromm exemplifies the public-spirited business and professional people who have served the Pointes in elective and appointive positions over the yars.

As he bows out, we think he has earned a thank you not only from Farms residents for his efforts on their behalf but from the entire community for his efforts to increase cooperation among the five Pointes and Harper Woods.

What the Queen's visit means fter all the media coverage of the pomp and circumstances surrounding the visit of Queen Elizabeth II to Washington last week, it was good to read an informed view of the purpose of her appearance before a joint session of Congress.

It was, according to R.W. Apple Jr. of the New York Times: "to symbolize and shore up the enduring 20th century alliance between the two countries by emphasizing the values, traditions and experiences they share."

The Queen, the first British sovereigness to appear before a joint session, was welcomed, not just because of the loyal support Britain gave to the United States and UN effort in the Persian Gulf, but also because of the continuation of the other "special relationships" that so long have linked the two English-speaking nations.

Millions of Americans still proudly trace their ancestry to the "tight little isle" but, looking beyond that common heritage, many see the Queen as the modern embodiment of the literature of Chaucer and Shakespeare as well as the leadership of Wellington and, in our own times, of Winston Churchill, whose mother, in fact, was an American.

But the Queen brought another message to Congress and the American people. It was that Britain today sees itself as "at the heart of a growing movement toward greater cohesion in Europe," and, the Queen added, "The best progress is made when Europeans and Americans act in concert."

In our view, the Queen got the attention she deserved in Washington and elsewhere in this country as an embodiment of all those ties of ancestry, literature and history that link our independent people not only to Britain but now to the new Europe with which our national fate is also closely allied.

Both lose in Senate battle

e all knew that Michigan's many property tax cut proposals had started a statewide controversy, but we didn't realize how bitter the differences had become until two metro-area legislators came to blows over them last week.

While both Sen. John Kelly of Grosse Pointe Woods and Sen. Gilbert DiNello of East Detroit escaped physical injury in the minor brawl, it is clear that both suffered embarrassment as well as verbal spankings from their peers in the Legislature for their behavior.

Senate Democratic Leader Art Miller of Warren went so far as to describe the affair as "a regrettable, disgusting blow to the whole system" and the senators' performance as "revolting" and "barbaric" behavior.

Accounts differed but it appears to us that DiNello was the aggressor in the altercation which came after he had been verbally abusing Kelly and several other senators for their views on amendments to Kelly's property tax cut bill.

After DiNello apparently grabbed Kelly by the throat and threw him into another senator's desk, the Grosse Pointe senator landed the only clear punch of the fight. It bloodied DiNello's nose and knocked him down.

Both senators have expressed their

Both senators have expressed their regrets, as they should have done. Their performance on the floor of a legislative body contributes to the low regard in which the voting public holds many people in public office.

In one respect, both are being punished, however. In the public's view, nobody won and both combatants lost.

To the Editor:

This is to let the community know that several names of Grosse Pointers, who served in Operation Desert Storm, were inadvertently excluded from your stories concerning the war.

One of them is our daughter, Petty Officer Lisa Mazur, U.S.N.R. The Grosse Pointe News and the War Memorial were notified immediately after her departure several months ago.

We are happy to say she has just returned and will be able to resume her senior year at E.M.U.

We hope all Grosse Pointers who served will eventually be recognized.

Message to Kelly, DiNello

To the Editor:
Editors note: The following letters are reprinted here at the request of the writer.

Senator Kelly:

I am appalled at your public display of temper and violence in the Senate this past week. As a constituent of yours I believe that you owe me and the rest of your constituency a personal apology for this juvenile and inexcusable behavior

Your prompt resignation would, in fact, be most appropriate. It is clear that you are not committed to us, who put you there and pay you, but only to your own self-serving ends.

There can be no justification for physical violence in a position of public trust and you should be as ashamed of this behavior as we — your constituents are of it.

Senator DiNello:

I am apalled and personally shocked by your inexcusable display of temper and violence in the State Senate this week.

You have a clear responsibility to your constituency to be level-headed, restrained and, especially, to be mature.

The people of this state have a clear right to expect personal behavioral integrity from all their representatives and you have a responsibility to fulfill that right.

right. Your failure to be mature, to act for your office and not for your own self and to violate the public trust is shameful.

The citizens are embarrassed by you and your acts of temper and you owe us much more than your casual apology.

Bush: The Establishment man ill George Bush be able to persuade the U.S. Congress and the American people to continue to support the Establishment principle of relying on collective security in the conduct of U.S. foreign policy?

Bush's action in ordering the attack on Iraq was evidence that he had inherited the mantle of the Establishment in supporting that principle not only from his father, Prescott Bush, a U.S. senator from Connecticut, but from one of the great Republican stalwarts on foreign policy between the two world wars.

George Bush, while a student at Andover Academy in 1940, had heard Henry Stimson, the Republican who had been President Taft's secretary of war and President Hoover's secretary of state, deliver one of his impassioned speeches in favor of conscription and preparedness.

That speech and others in which Stimson sounded the same theme convinced Democratic President Franklin D. Roosevelt that Republican Stimson was the man he wanted as secretary of war.

In making his decision to go to war against a Middle Eastern dictator, George Bush was guided by the same principles that motivated Stimson in World War II and his Establishment disciples after the war. In effect, they all supported collective security arrangements to contain aggression and other threats to peace.

The nation came to accept Col. Stimson's internationalist view of the world when World War II began. The question now is whether the people will continue to accept George Bush's modern version of the Establishment's collective security arrangements if a new threat to peace arises somewhere.

It no doubt would depend on the circumstances as well as the possibility that any new conflict might be more serious and of longer duration than the quick and one-sided victory the United States and its allies scored in the Persian Gulf.

It also would depend upon whether the U.S. public ultimately comes to believe that in the Persian Gulf the United States won the war — but lost the peace.

A 'don't' speaks up

People-watching is one of the few interesting things I do with any regularity.

It's cheap, it's fun and I don't have to get dressed up to do it. Shopping centers, fairs, parties where you don't know too many people, and church are the best places.

Things to look for when people watching are the way people walk, the sometimes quiterevolting things they do when they think nobody's looking and of course, the biggie - bad clothes.

I always used to wonder if some people knew what they looked like, and, if they did, what was going through their minds when they got dressed that morning.

But something happened recently that changed the way I look at people.

It started on a Wednesday when all - or darn near close to all - my clothes formed a colorful, yet dirty, pile on my bathroom floor. I was psyching myself up to attack the pile and make two smaller piles one of dark clothes and one of lights - when I got a call from a friend.

"We're going to the movies," he said. "Wanna go?" Hmmmm. Laundry or a movie. a movie or laundry. It took me all of two seconds to answer.

So I pulled a pair of blue ieans out of the pile and went to look for a clean shirt.

I surveyed the closet from the left wall to the right: hanger, hanger, purple pants (don't ask), hanger, khaki pants, black pants, what-the-hell-isthis-doing-in-here, too nice, too nice, too ugly, a hanger of ties, hanger, hanger, and there, just when I thought it was over, was the shirt I had forgotten I shirt when I was in high school. It's gray, made out of, don't know, but it's loosely woven and has an interesting texture. It has real full fit and when it was new I always imagined myself a French impressionist when I wore it. (Oh, cut some slack, I was 17.)

To be perfectly honest, I didn't get it new, my dad did. But he either got fat or the shirt shrunk or both and as eldest son it was bequeathed to me. Now that I think about it. that shirt's probably 10 years old. Maybe more.

I didn't give it much thought It used to be my favorite as I put it on. It fit my two rather-broad criteria: It was clean and it didn't need iron-

On my way out the door I surveyed myself. I didn't look my best, but I looked at least respectable enough to sit in the dark in a movie theater.

I met my friends in front of the theater and we got in line to buy a ticket. One of them was surveying me with a look you only use on pitiable creatures, or friends who are doing something stupid. I apparently was both.

"Where did you get that shirt?" he asked.

"Why, what's wrong with

"Well," he paused, searching for the right words to express just what he felt, "you look like an orphan."

"Thank you, Mr. Blackwell." Another friend piped in: "Did you get a free bowl of soup with that shirt?'

The third said: "Hey, but it looks good on you."

By this time the other people in line were looking at me, probably coming up with their own one-liners about bad clothes.

I had a few moments before the movie started so I went to the bathroom, ostensibly to go to the bathroom, but I had to check myself out, to see if I looked as bad as my friends said I did.

In the privacy of the bathroom I stood up straight, tucked the shirt in, adjusted the collar (trying to tip the odds in my favor) and I looked into the mirror. The shirt had lost some of its shape, true. The sleeves were a little short, but that's why I rolled them up. It did look a little threadbare, and it really looked its age. I had to admit that once again, criticism from a friend turned out to be true. I was relieved I would be sitting in the dark, and that no one I knew was there, I hoped.

In the bar afterwards, the subject turned once again to my attire and each one told me what I should do with the shirt. The nicest one told me not to burn it because it would be too damaging to the environment. When I got home, I threw the shirt in the garbage. Never would I embarrass myself again by wearing it.

But it was so cool, in its day. And it's real comfortable. And it's good enough to wear around the house.

So I dug it out and threw it in the dirty clothes pile.

Which again got me to thinking about people watching. If GQ got hold of a picture of me in that shirt would they print it with one of those black bars across my eyes? Would people look at me and say - as I have about other people - "Ewww, fashion don't.

Will I care? I don't think so.

THE GREAT PICKUP TRUCK PULL

III, homesick and alone

Kabba Jalloh is in serious trouble, lying in a hospital 5,000 miles from home, with a disease his doctors don't understand.

Kabba Jalloh isn't a Grosse Pointer. He's never even lived in Grosse Pointe. He and his family are from Sierra Leone and we wrote about him in the Grosse Pointe News a couple of years ago when he was looking for financial help with college.

Jalloh, the son of a hereditary tribal chief, was a student at Macomb Community College when he was taken under the wing of Ken Van Dellen of the Park, a professor of geology at the college. His intent was to get a four-year degree in agriculture and go back home to help his native country.

With the help of donations and by the sweat of his own brow, Kabba has studied for about five years in the United States. His mother died while he was away, life went on for his extended family of halfbrothers and -sisters, and Kabba was homesick.

But he kept plugging along, studying agricultural methods at Iowa's Dordt College, methods that sometimes have only the most distant bearing on things he'll need to know back home.

"The sheep (science) class I think will be helpful to me," he wrote Van Dellen, 'because I always try to ask the lecturer how some of the principles we are learning will apply to Sierra Leone. He usually tries as much as possible to make some connections in respect to my questions. His specialty is sheep science and there are only two of us in the class so that gives us opportunity to ask questions."

This semester, Kabba began to feel weak and listless. Despite increasing weakness, he kept going to class until one day he couldn't get out of his room, Van Dellen said.

The doctors couldn't figure out his illness; a series of tests ruled out one condition after another, until finally a muscle biopsy gave the needed clue: He was suffering from an obscure immune system disease called polymyositis.

Kabba Jalloh has been in a hospital since April 16, much of that time on a respirator in intensive care. He has been transferred from the local hospital to the University of Iowa hospital in Iowa City, where doctors had already been studying the disease.

Van Dellen isn't optimistic. "Nobody knows the cause as far as I can tell," he said. "About 60 percent of the patients have a full recovery, sometimes within a few weeks. I keep hoping for a recovery so he can finish his schooling and do what he wants to do.'

Kabba Jalloh has apparently made a big impression everywhere he goes. "Everybody that knows him, loves him," Van Dellen says.

PHONE (517) 792-0934

1 (800) 968-3456

The kids at the school visited the hospital so much and inquired so often after his welfare that the college put up a poster in the student union with daily progress reports. The director of admissions went out on a limb to personally sponsor him in this country - and sponsorship can carry a price tag.

The hospital bills have already run way past the $25,000 cap on his student insurance. Although some coverage for indigents has kicked in, the uncertain future probably holds a long hospitalization and huge medical bills.

Kabba Jalloh is nothing to you and me. I met him once; you've never seen him. But he's a homesick young man lying dangerously close to the edge in a foreign land. Anyone interested in Third World selfsufficiency must applaud his tenacity. It makes him Somebody.

Anyone wishing to contribute to a fund for Kabba Jalloh's schooling and medical bills may send a check to the Office of College Advancement, Dordt College, Sioux Center, Iowa 51250. Make the check out to Dordt College and mention the Third World Fund.

Who's cookin'?

The Regina Alumni Association is putting together a cookbook and it's looking for more alums who want to contribute favorite recipes.

Profits from sale of the book will be used to establish a Regina Hardship Scholarship Fund.

Send instructions for making your favorite concoctions to: Regina Alumni Association, 39475 Lakeshore Drive, Mount Clemens, 48045. Deadline for recipes is June 13. Cookbooks will be available in the fall.

Why? Becasse

La Becasse, a French country restaurant on Glen Lake in Burdickville owned by former Grosse Pointers Peachy and John Rentenbach, will add some new desserts to its summer menu.

The Rentenbachs recently went to Paris to attend classes which focused on so-called "kitchen desserts" such as Apple Charlotte, Prune Flan, Sabayon, Clafoutis and Caramel Rice Cake.

In the rice cake, however, the Rentenbachs substitute Leelanau County dried cherries for the raisins.

Let's hear it for the home fruit.

Raffle for NEGC

Art on the Pointe is an annual art fair, a fundraiser sponsored by the Assistance League to the Northeast Guidance Center. It will take place on the grounds of the Henry Ford Estate on Saturday and Sunday, June 8 and 9. Part of Saturday evening's entertainment will be a raffle of some original works of art.

Raffle tickets are $2 each and are available at the fair or at Gallery in the Woods, 20927 Mack Ave. Grosse Pointe Woods.

The grand prize is "Medallion," a handmade quilt donated by Dolores A. Rea, valued at $700.

First prize is "The Wedding," a signed and numbered limited edition print by P. Buckley Moss, donated by Gallery in the Woods, valued at $400.

Proceeds benefit Northeast Guidance Center.

No need to be there to win.

How bout a belt?

This office got a pretty snappy press release from the Department of State Police last week with information that's always timely and probably can't be emphasized enough: "The law doesn't require you to wear a belt with a suit," it begins. "The law doesn't require you to wear a belt with ieans. The law does require you to wear a belt in the car your safety belt.

"Unlike that snappy $50 lizard-skin that goes so well with your charcoal grey suit, your safety belt can save your life. Safety belts aren't as pretty, true, but the law doesn't say anything about pretty.

"Just buckling. "And surviving.

"Safety belts double your chances of surviving a serious traffic crash.

Run for the money

Two Ann Arbor businesses. Free concert the Gandy Dancer and Running Fit, will sponsor a 10K (6.2 mile) run on Saturday, June 15, in Ann Arbor, to benefit kids at the Methodist Children's Home Society in Detroit.

According to the society, a 23 percent cut in Michigan's residential and foster care funding has hit the 74-year-old nonprofit, non-sectarian child care agency which serves abused and neglected children.

"The base rate for a foster parent to provide proper care for a child was reduced from $11.05 per day to $8.45 per day," said John Schmidt, executive director of the Methodist Children's Home Society. "It costs $8 or more per day at a number of kennels in Wayne and Oakland counties to board a dog."

Prizes will be awarded to the top three money collectors for the run. The collector turning in the largest sum will win two Northwest Airlines tickets to fly anywhere in the United States, Alaska or Canada.

The collector of the second largest sum will win a weekend at Weber's Inn in Ann Arbor. The one who turns in the third largest sum gets a tennis clinic at Liberty Sports Complex in A^2 . Lace up those Reeboks:

stretch those hamstrings.

Registration begins at . . m. and the run begins at 8:30 a.m. For more information, call Kristine At, at 531-4060.

Christ Church Detroit, 960 East Jefferson, will sponsor a free concert of American music for voice and organ at 12:10 p.m. on Friday, May 24.

Performers will be Joanne Vollendorf, organ, and Carolyn Grimes, soprano.

After the concert, there will be a light lunch available for $3. For information, or to make a luncheon reservation, call the church at 259-6688.

Stay loose, enjoy

Can I lose 20 pounds and recover from a facelift and tummy tuck in 10 days?

Will she still be a size six? Has he lost his hair or his waistline? Is he still the class nerd or a member of the Fortune 500? The craziness we can conjure up in our heads in anticipation of reunions! What clothes shall I pack? Will the old spark still be there between us?

The human condition is seldom more fascinating to observe than at reunion time. All of our insecurities are paraded out weeks ahead of time as if we imagined ourselves being judged in some sort of contest. And then, the big weekend arrives and we renew acquaintances, rediscover our confidence and usually wind up having a terrific time.

The organizers of these momentous events should be recognized for their tremendous efforts in preparation for a reunion weekend. I recently spent time as a houseguest of a friend who was helping to organize such an event. The research and phone calls involved were staggering.

Cocktail parties, luncheons and dinners, hosts for out-of-town guests, endless lists and follow-up are all necessary for a successful outcome. There is additional time involved if you want to put that extra kick in the weekend, such as compiling old photographs, movies transferred to videotape, class quotes long ago attributed to individuals and how prophetic they turned out to be.

There will be many of these happy occasions taking place around our community within the next few weeks. My advice is not to sweat the small stuff. Be yourself, renew and strengthen old friendships and have a great time.

Bon Secours Hospital presents spring lecture series

Bon Secours Hospital's Women's Healthcare and Grosse Pointe Community Education will present a spring lecture series called Focus: Women. The free educational programs will address a wide spectrum of health concerns — with special emphasis on women's issues — but also relating to men.

• Thursday, May 23: Misconceptions about thyroid disease

Learn how the thyroid hormone is required for the proper functioning of every organ and tissue and discover the numerous bodily changes caused by a deficiency or excess of this hormone, as well as misconceptions about the thyroid gland and thyroid disease. The speaker will be Dr. Lyla Leipzig.

• Thursday, May 30: Facts about women and heart disease

Although heart disease is often considered to be a man's disease, experts say it is the leading cause of death for women in the United States. More than 500,000 women every year experience a heart attack. Learn how to correctly interpret and report symptoms to your physician and how to lower your risk. The speaker will be Dr. M. K. Ajour.

• Thursday, June 6: Anger can become a good friend Women have long been discouraged from awareness and forthright expression of anger. This has resulted in inhibitions in creative and work endeavors, self-defeating behavior, depression and submissiveness. Find out what skills can help you use your anger as a tool for changes in relationships. The speaker will be Carole Kirby,

WHETHER YOU NEED A MORTGAG OR WANT TO REFINANCE, HERE'S AN OFFER TO BRING DOWN THE HOUSE

The cost of a house is one thing. The cost of getting into a house—the mortgage application and loan documentation fees—can be something else altogether. And that goes for refinancing, too.

But right now, with interest rates at their lowest in recent years, it's a great time to get a mortgage or refinance. And at First of America, for a limited time, we're making it even better by waiving our $200 mortgage origination fee.

As always, we have competitive rates and we'll help you find just the right terms and payment plan for your budget. We start by offering an array of mortgage and refinancing options. Including fixed and adjustable rates. FHA loans and other flexible payment plans. And we'll reply to your application fast.

If you're buying or refinancing a home, contact your Realtor, call our mortgage department at 1-800-735-1196, or stop by any one of our 75 convenient First of America Bank-Southeast Michigan branches.

PEEP gives developmentally delayed kids a head start in school

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer

"The idea is that the sooner we get to work with the kids, the better their chances.'

That's what Carol Matyniak, teacher consultant with the Grosse Pointe schools said about the schools' Pre-school Early Education Partnership The program, known as PEEP, has been meeting the needs of developmentally delayed children for three years, quietly aiding with their cognitive and social skills.

"Our goal and hope is that these kids won't be in special education when they are old enough to go to school," Matyniak said.

Most of the children who go through the PEEP program were born prematurely. Most premies have developmental challenges and it is those challenges PEEP attempts to meet. Mentally impaired children are also worked with in the program

In addition to Matyniak, the PEEP team consists of an occupational therapist, a physical therapist, a speech and language pathologist and a school psychologist. They work with children who are only a few months old to 3-years old. After that some children who are still delayed go into the Pre-primary Impaired program which deals with slightly developmentally delayed children aged 3-5. Others go to mainstream preschools.

"It doesn't mean that these skills won't come, it just means that they're delayed," said Ann Hartner, PEEP's occupational therapist.

The program was developed in accordance with a 1988 law that said each school district had to provide these services for its residents from birth through age 5.

A large part - and perhaps the most important part - of the program includes educating the parents. The kids get two 20- to 40-minute sessions which the parents watch, then reinforce at home.

"The parents are so receptive and they're interested in looking for information and are very involved," Hartner said.

Twice a month the children get group sessions which helps them interact with other child-

The group sessions help the parents, too, providing sort of a support group feeling. Brothers and sisters who come to the group session also get a chance to become involved in their sib-ling's special needs. The program is sponsoring a special Father's Night for dads is 20 months old. Born prematurely, he spent 50 days in the hospital before he was able to come home. Aside from a hearing impairment which requires hearing aids, he is a normal, inquisitive, happy little boy. He comes to PEEP twice a week for speech therapy. His mother thinks it's helping.

"He'll be okay," Matyniak said. "It's just that he needs a little help right now." PEEP recently received a gift of money from the Kiwanis Club of Grosse Pointe and is currently working on a video to send to other civic organizations soliciting help and funds.

The program is free to school district residents and is paid for by tax dollars. For more information on PEEP, call Matyniak or Hartner at 343-2137.

Proposed Shores budget up 3 percent

Assistant Editor While Grosse Pointe Shore's proposed budget for the new fiscal year is only 3 percent larger than the year before, propertytax revenue is expected to grow 8.62 percent.

"We've got a pretty good budget for next year," said Michael Kenyon, Village manager. "Our budget is less than the rate of inflation right now."

The proposed budget for the fiscal year 1991-92, which began April 1 in the Shores, would be balanced with a tax rate of 12.47 mills, which is .42 of a mill less than the year before. But because of higher property values, the lower rate will generate more revenue.

The 1991-92 budget totals $3.91 million, up from $3.79 million last year.

The 1990-91 tax rate was 12.89 mills ($12.89 per $1,000 state equalized value). Due to an average 12 percent increase in assessments this year, the Truth in Taxation law required the tax rate be rolled back to 11.48 mills to offset the increases in the state equalized valuation.

The rollback to 11.48 mills allows for a 5.4 percent increase in taxes authorized by the Headlee Amendment to offset inflation. The proposed tax rate of 12.47 mills reflects a .99-mill increase over the roll-

In 1990, the owner of a $300,000 ($150,000 SEV) home in the Shores paid $1,933.50 in Village taxes. The same homeowner, assuming his assessment went up the average 12 percent, would have a SEV of $168,000 this year and would pay $2,095 in Village taxes.

Kenyon said one reason local tax dollars have to make up a larger portion of the budget is the reduction in state revenuesharing funds.
The Village expects to receive $12,000 less in revenuesharing funds this year due to the decline in population reflected by the 1990 census. Furthermore, cities that lost population, including all the other Pointes, must pay back revenue-sharing funds from 1990 based on the lower census fig-

This year, the Village also has a budgetary unknown the replacement of underground gas tanks in the De-age has occurred, but it won't be known how extensive the problem is until the tanks are excavated.

If the soil has to be hauled to special landfills for disposal, the job could get expensive, he said. Right now, $115,000 is budgeted for removing the tanks, but Kenyon cautioned that the cost could come in lower or higher than expected.

"We've got a couple of real unknowns with those gas tanks," Kenyon said.

The proposed budget also includes $82,000 for resurfacing the DPW yard and the parking lot at the municipal park. Other areas affecting the budget:

• Health insurance premiums

• Increased costs at the Grosse Pointe-Clinton incinera-

• Funds earmarked for the fight against Detroit City Airport expansion.

• Curbside bi-weekly recycling to begin in July. The Village has yet to decide whether to pay for recycling out of the general fund or to charge a fee on water bills.

• An anticipated cost of $600,000 to $750,000 for repaying Vernior Road and replacing the water and sewer lines. While the work is not to be started until 1992, Kenyon said. "We're trying to put a little away so we don't have such a big increase all at once."

A public hearing on the proposed tax rate will be held May 28 at 7 p.m. at the Village Hall. Kenyon said that because the Village's fiscal year has already begun, the council will probably approve a budget on the night of the hearing.

Hearings scheduled

Public Act 25, signed into law in March 1990, requires every public school in Michigan to prepare and distribute an annual report at a public meeting to be held before July 31.

Over the past several months, all 14 Grosse Pointe public schools have been compiling information and preparing reports to meet the requirements of the state act.

PA 25 designates seven reporting areas which must be addressed in the school's annual report. They are: school improvement plans, student achievement, retention and dropout rates, specialized schools, parent participation level, accreditation and core curricu-

Several schools have held meetings already. Those remaining and the dates are as follows: Defer, 7 p.m. May 29; Mason, 7 p.m. May 28; Trombly, 7 p.m. June 7: Brownell. 7:30 p.m. May 29; Parcella, 7:30 p.m. May 30; Pierce, 7:30 p.m. May 29; and Grosse Pointe North High School, 7:30 p.m. May 28.

In addition, a district-level annual report will be presented at the board of education meeting, 8 p.m. Monday, July 8, in the board room of the administration building, 389 S. Clair.

Planting the Hill

Garden Club of Michigan members planted flowers on the Hill Saturday, providing the funding and the labor to beautify the area for the ninth year in a row. Hill merchants selected red, white and blue as the design motif. The flowers, supplied by Grosse Pointe Florists and Meldrum Smith, are white vinca, blue salvia and red petunias. Biggest part of Milk River Drain cleanup only needs state approval to move ahead

By Donna Walker Staff Writer

The biggest part of the Milk River Drain cleanup project will be put out for bids at the end of June, if the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) approves action taken by the Milk River Inter-County Drainage Board last week.

At meetings held at the Grosse Pointe Woods Community Center May 15, the board adopted bid specifications for the construction of: a two-chamber, 18.8-million- gallon, covered sewage rentention basin to replace the existing 3.8million- gallon retention basin, located behind the Milk River Pump Station on Parkway Drive near Marter; a small underground pump station and connecting pipe near Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods to handle some of the sanitary sewage from Harper Woods that the Milk River Pump Station currently handles.

If approved by the DNR, the projects will be opened for bids June 29, said Dick Cooperwasser, project manager for the engineering firm of McNamee. Porter & Seeley. The bidding process will end about six weeks later, and construction will begin in late September or October, he said.

About an hour before the three-member drain board decided on the bid specifications, an augmented drain board, consisting of seven members, for-mally adopted "Alternative 2" as the official improvement plan and decided that the cost of the plan will be borne by Grosse Pointe Woods, Harper Woods, Wayne County, the state, and St. Clair Shores.

Tentatively, Grosse Pointe Woods will pay 60.499831 percent of the cost, Harper Woods will pay 35.107571 percent, Michigan will pay 2.299963 percent, Wayne County will pay 1.673702 percent and St. Clair Shores will pay .418933

Those are the same amounts that those governments have been paying for the operation of the Milk River Pump Station since it was built in the 1950s. Those figures are based on the amount of storm and sanitary sewage each entity sends into the Milk River system.

The drain board will hold a public hearing at 2 p.m. June 10 at the Grosse Pointe Woods Community Center before voting on whether to use those percentages in assigning the costs of the improvement plan.

The entire cost of the plan is estimated to be between $24 new retention basin and pump pollutant than it is now. station account for approxi-

Alternative 2 is one of several plans for improving the Milk River Drain that was developed by McNamee, Porter & Seeley at the direction of the drain board.

In addition to the larger retention basin and new pump station to handle Harper Woods' sewage flow, Alternative 2 consists of: the construction of a facility to disinfect combined sewage before it is pumped into the Milk River Drain, dredging the Milk River and equipping it with a fresh water circulation system, repairing cracks in sewers and manhole covers, building additional space for maintenance vehicles and a workshop at the Milk River Pump Station, using the station's pumps more effectively, and disconnection of downspouts on commercial properties in Grosse Pointe Woods.

All of this is designed to reduce the amount of combined sewage (storm and sanitary sewage) that is released into the Milk River Drain.

The larger basin should reduce the number of times a year combined sewage overflows into the Milk River Drain from 44 days to approximately

Other measures, such as rerouting a portion of Harper Woods' sanitary sewage directly to a Detroit Wastewater Treatment Plant tributary reduces the percentage of sanitary sewage that the Milk River Pump Station has to handle. So, on those approximately 15 days a year when combined sewage will spill into the Milk million and $26 million. The River Drain, it will be less of a tween the station and residential property in lieu of an earth berm; removing all buildings except the blower facility from the top of the new basin and reducing the thickness of the basin's concrete cover from 15 inches to 8 inches. So the drain board will be taking bids on the specs suggested by McNamee, Porter & Seeley, and those proposed by Grosse Pointe Woods.

Murray said that if the bids that come back show that the Woods plan would save a considerable amount of money in both construction and maintenance costs, and if it is approved by the DNR, then the drainage board will probably go with that plan.

Petersen said he's glad that the board chose to cooperate with the Woods on the specs.

"That's what we were wanting all along," he said.

However, the drainage board ties, according to James Murand the Woods still disagree on the downspout issue.

The DNR gave the drainage board a permit to discharge combined sewer overflow into the Milk River in February on the conditions that Alternative 2 was implemented and operational by December 1994, and that water in the Milk River passes certain quality standards afterward.

The disconnection of downspouts is part of Alternative 2. If downspouts - which consist of a pipe that goes from a home's roofline down outside the house directly to the sewer aren't disconnected in the Woods, the drain board could be fined heavily by the DNR, Murray said. Also, its discharge permit could be revoked.

Disconnection was tentatively scheduled to begin in July, Cooperwasser said a few weeks ago, but that's changed. "The timetable is flexible."

Murray said. However, Petersen said disconnection "will never happen. The city council is adamantly opposed to it." Welsh said that the downspouts are sending rainwater that could otherwise be absorbed by lawns and gardens directly into the sewer, and sewer water is expensive to treat.

He also said that downspout disconnection would decrease the chance of residents' basements flooding. If storm water that could have been absorbed by lawns continues to pour directly into the sewer system, it will oveflow the sewer system and cause the sewer water to ments, he said.

Murray said that it is possible that some residents will be exempted from having their downspouts disconnected.

'We would not make anyone disconnect their downspout if we thought it would cause flooding in their basement, because that would be a public health hazard." he said.

So what will happen with the downspout issue is anyone's

One thing is certain, improvement of the Milk River Drain is coming none too soon.

In addition to the aesthetic problems that people near the Milk River have endured for decades, a new problem sprang up April 29.

A portion of the retention basin wall nearest residents collapsed. Luckily, the basin was empty at the time.

Murray said that the walls of the basin have been moving slightly for years, but that the collapse was unexpected. He said the drain board is still trying to determine what caused it.

The hole was filled with large masonry stones and canvas. Murray said. At the May 15 meeting, the drain board authorized the construction of a new wall and the shoring up of all of the basin's walls, at a cost of $135,000. The repair work will have to last until the new basin - which will be built around the existing basin - is completed. Cooperwasser said that should be around September 1993.

Park gets better-than-expected price for sidewalk replacement

Assistant Editor

Grosse Pointe Park administrators are pleased with the better-than-expected price they received for sidewalk replacement this summer.

The Park City Council approved May 13 the lowest bid of $1.95 a square foot from Paul G. Thoen Co., a Grosse Pointe Farms contractor, for replacement of standard 4-inchthick sidewalk slabs. The Park will add a 20-cent administrative fee to the bid price, which means residents will pay $2.15 per square foot for 4-inch-thick sidewalk replacement.

That compares with $2.60 that Grosse Pointe City resiants are paying for similar sidewalk work.

The average sidewalk slab is 6 by 6 feet, meaning that the replacement cost of a 36-squarefoot slab in the Park will be $77.40. The City homeowner pays $93.60 for replacing a similar sidewalk square.

For Park homeowners who have 6-inch-thick sidewalks. the replacement cost is $2.40 a square foot, or $86.40 for a 36square-foot slab. Some sidewalk squares are 6 by 5 feet.

Early last month, Park residents noticed fluorescent orange dots were appearing on sidewalks in front of their homes. The dots indicate sidewalk squares that need to be replaced.

This year, the Park has contracted with the Thoen Co. to replace sidewalk squares in the northeast corner of the city, bounded by Mack, Cadieux, St. Paul and Bedford. Also, sidewalks near schools will be improved this summer.

This is the first of a four- to five-year sidewalk improvement program in the Park. The last time all the sidewalks in the Park were repaired was some 10 years ago.

The total sidewalk replacement program this year is expected to cost $142,575, most of which will be borne by property

St. Josaphat plans 50th

The St. Josephat High School Class of 1941 will celebrate its 50th anniversary 5:30 p.m., Friday, June 7, at the St. Clair Shores Country Club, 22185 Masonic Blvd.

All classmates with their spouses and friends are invited to the dinner/social, which is $25 per person.

For information, call Ed Borninski at 771-4196 or Art Walczak at 791-6049.

Homeowners have the option of letting the city's contractor replace their faulty sidewalk slabs and driveway approaches or doing the work themselves. However, Park officials believe individual residents will have difficulty getting as low a price as the city's volume-based

When approving the Thoen contract, councilmembers expressed a desire for the contractor to extend the low concrete replacement rates to residents who want their front driveways and other front-of-the-house concrete replaced.

City Manager Dale Krajniak said it would be difficult to hold the contractor to a price for work not included in the bid, but he would encourage the contractor to give residents the same rate if they want extra work done while the contractor is in the area.

James Ellison, director of public services, added:

"If people want additional work, they can ask the contractor. They may be able to get it done at the city's price.'

BirthCare[™] at Bon Secours.

It's a child's game, but it's also good advice.

Bon Secours was the first hospital in the Detroit area to offer single-room maternity care. This alternative to traditional childbirth allows the mother-to-be to stay in the same warm, comfortable room throughout her delivery. We call it BirthCare, and when we first introduced it, other hospitals were still wheeling their laboring mothers from one room to another.

We thought it was a good idea to design a delivery around the mother, not a delivery around the hospital. That's why BirthCare has become so popular. And that's why a lot of women have chosen Bon Secours as their hospital. Maybe you should, too.

and still is a doctor although he didn't renew his license this past year because fulfilling the requirement of 50 annual hours of continuing education has become difficult.

There was one license Harmon wouldn't forfeit last time it came due, and that was his driver's license. "It took three tries," he recalled. Some bad luck and a misunderstanding thwarted him twice, but on the third attempt he won the right to drive during the day within the neighborhood.

Harmon said his first car, which he bought as a young physician in Cleveland for $75, was a Ford Model T roadster. He eventually traded it for a Chevy roadster with a folding top - a car he said he liked because if it ran out of gas, it was light enough for one person to push and steer.

Harmon was anxious to become a surgeon when he finished his training at Western Reserve.

"I looked around for a position with an established surgical practice, but couldn't find any openings," he said. "Then I was offered a position at Lakeside Hospital (Now University Hospitals) as assistant administrator.

"I decided to try hospital administration for one year; I remained in the profession for 28 years," he said. Ed, by then married to his Oberlin sweetheart, Alathea Wallace, worked in Cleveland for nine years before moving to Westchester County, N.Y., where he was director of Grasslands Hospital in Valhalla from 1939 to 1958.

The New York years included late-summer family vacations in a cottage on Long Island and the Rockefellers. The Nelson Rockefellers. "We were attending a small non-denominational church in the Westchester village where our children went to school," he said. "One Sunday we arrived a few minutes late for service and had to wait before taking our seats. As we stood there, the Rockefellers arrived. For some reason Nelson Rockefeller apologized to us for their tardiness. He said it was a family rule that the children make their beds each morning, and this particular Sunday one of them had refused long enough to make them all late for

On another occasion, it was Harmon's turn to apologize to Rockefeller. "I had been at a committee meeting at church, he said. "It was dark when I left. Everyone was close together on a circular drive around the building, and when I tried to back up to get out, I smashed a headlight on the car behind me.

"The owner was standing there. I got out to apologize only to discover it was Nelson Rockefeller. When I told him to please let me know the amount of damages, he insisted it wasn't necessary that I pay for Summers found the Harmon family, expanded then to three children, enjoying the salt water and sunshine on a bay near Southampton, Long Island.

"We rented a two-bedroom cottage with a nice screened porch across the front and a small boat to which I fitted a motor," he said. "I served as family recreation" director and part-time cook. I would take the kids tishing out in the bay each morning after breakfast. Then we'd return for lunch. and after lunch, Alathea and the children went to the beach while I stayed home and cleaned the fish for supper.'

With a little assistance from a Fanny Farmer cookbook, he claims he made the best clam chowder around, using fresh shellfish from the nearby beach. The secret? "I used real cream," he said, with a twinkle in his eye.

Just as he did in the delectable ice cream he helped make as a child on the farm in North Kingsville, where perishables were kept cool using ice stored in straw in a shed. And similar to the ingredients he turned into strawberry ice cream not too long ago in his cozy kitchen with the lemon-colored walls and garden flowers on the ta-

The Harmons moved to Grosse Pointe in 1958 when he became medical director at Michigan Hospital Service (Blue Cross). He stayed until 1968 - a couple of years past the mandatory retirement age.

For the next five years he and Alathea commuted between Detroit and Lansing, spending week nights in an apartment in the capital so he could serve as medical consultent to the Michigan Department of Public Health. From 1973 to 1990, Harmon was medical consultant for the Michigan State Education Department bureau of vocational rehabilitation.

The Harmons' children - the ones who fished in the bay near Southampton and who have attended schools from Connecticut to Colorado - are now grown. Robert lives near Columbus, Ohio. Daughter Barbara Karl is in Anchorage, Alaska, and Anne Harding lives with her own family - including that special grandson, Tommy - in Windsor, Ontario.

Harmon's wife died in October 1989. They had been married for more than 60 years. They were long-time members of Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, where Harmon still worships regularly from their spot near the first pillar on the pulpit side of the sanctuary.

Once a high school English teacher, Alathea's gentle influence continues to earmark the home. Stacks of interesting, current books sit on tables in the living room. The orderly kitchen retains the welcoming atmosphere she gave it.

One of the Harmons' favorite pastimes was the theater. For years they attended the Music Hall/Fisher Theater matinee series. They traveled to Stratford, Ontario, regularly, and to the Hilberry at Wayne State

Harmon recalls some real-life drama from his days as a young resident physician in Cleveland. One night while he was on call, a woman came into the emergency room with a broken ankle. It seems she and her husband had been partying at a local speakeasy and had fallen while dancing. An intern X-rayed the ankle, and with Harmon, took her to another floor to prepare a plaster cast.

"The husband, who was drunk, slipped up the back stairs and barged into the room, waving a revolver and accusing us of taking advantage of his wife," Harmon said. "I got him into another room, but he could not be calmed. He kept waving the gun and pointing it right at me. "Just when things seemed out of control, the police - I didn't know they had been summoned - came in and seized him. They examined his gun and discovered a dent in one of the shells — indicating he had actually pulled the trigger but it hadn't fired the bul-

Harmon said it isn't until after an episode like this that one really gets nervous.

But not as nervous as when being interviewed for a story celebrating 90 years.

Suburban blends brute force with convenience, luxury

Our college student in New York City wondered if he could have a ride home for the summer. He didn't have much to bring back, he said. Just some summer clothes, a stereo, his trombone and his mountain bike - the Christmas present that had run some $100 over budget by the time it was properly equipped.

Buying transportation is the same whether it's a relatively simple bicycle or the car of our dreams. Usually costs 25 percent more than we expect, doesn't it?

Anyway, this seemingly innocent list of possessions to be hauled from point A: the Big Apple, to point B: Big Bad Detroit, caused an immediate change in plans at point B. Our intention had been to drive a nice full-size sedan, one with a deep trunk, to New York. We had envisioned a pleasant, almost civilized family outing in which we would pick up our student, pop a few suitcases in the trunk and drive leisurely back across New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

I believe it was his phrase, "my summer clothes," that made us realize a sedan would never make it.

This was a job for a Suburban, the full-size truck/wagon marketed by Chevrolet and GMC dealers around the country. The Suburban has been around since 1935, according to Chevrolet's "background briefs." This year - 1991 - is the last for the current model, built on the same platform as the full-size Blazer and not changed substantially in appearance for many, many moons.

The 1992 Suburban will come to us on the C/K Full-Size Pickup platform and will share some of the looks and features of that popular vehicle. Dealers and customers who have had a chance to see the '92 version are giving it high marks, says Nancy Libby of Chevrolet's Public relations staff in War-

The Suburban is a curious blend of brute force and the convenience and luxury we have come to expect in upscale vehicles today - including trucks. These factors are what have made trucks nearly as popular as passenger cars with the buying public.

To wit: The Suburban features a 5.7-liter fuel-injected V8 engine as standard. Optional engines include a 7.4-liter V8 and a 6.2-liter V8 diesel. These big-time truck engines are mated to 4-speed automatic transmissions (regular and heavy-duty), both with overdrive. Four-wheel drive is another option. So while a properly-equipped Suburban can do some serious towing, and can take you back over dirt roads to just about anyone's cottage, it promises to do so with a great deal of attention to passenger comfort and safety.

Autos

By Jenny King

One needn't worry about breaking into a sweat - particularly in the Silverado model we drove, which had separate heating and cooling outlets for third-seat passengers, and deeptinted windows to keep second and third-row riders from sizzling in the sun.

New York this time was enough to tempt sweat. Our previous trips - one in August, another in November - had been relatively peaceful. Lines to cross the George Washington Bridge had been short. Traffic in Manhattan was sufferable. We'd never even considered the boys (and girls) of summer road repair crews. There they were, straddling the boulevard strip in the middle of Park Avenue, blocking traffic at 8 p.m. and making us late for a rendevous at the Barbizon. This after long lines of motorists waiting to pay $4 each to vie for a lane, cross the GW bridge and plunge south on the Henry Hudson Parkway. Don't these New Yorkers ever go home to have dinner with their families and attend PTO meetings like normal people?

Not this evening. Earlier trips to the Big Apple were in a full-size domestic sedan and a compact imported station wagon. This was our first visit in a truck. We learned some interesting techniques from other motorists, particularly taxi drivers. One is to just begin pushing your way into a lane when you need to make a change.

Another is to have a large person riding shotgun, so to speak, beside the driver. On cue, that individual leans out the window and tells other drivers with pointing and waving of arms what his vehicle is going to do. The driver then does it before anyone can think to cut him off.

Anyone who has been to New York is familiar with its din of horns. In spite of occasional street signs that say, "Don't honk," they do. Proper procedure is to honk each time you stop, each time you accelerate, and as soon as possible after a light turns green. We tried it and liked it. It really seems to break up small jams. To anyone driving the Chevrolet Suburban for the first time, it seems like the least desirable vehicle for driving in Manhattan, but in fact it is the perfect choice. While it may be hard to parallel park, given its length (129.5-inch wheelbase, 219 inches overall length about 4 inches longer than a Caprice wagon), it responds to the gas pedal, moving quickly across intersections and into other lanes of traffic. Its height gives driver and passengers good visibility, and it can intimidate when necessary.

Best, we found, was its tremendous capacity for carrying stereo components, a bike, a trombone with two cases, cartons with unnamed objects and box after box of summer clothes. The generous storage space behind the third seat was quickly filled; so were the third seat and the floor space ahead

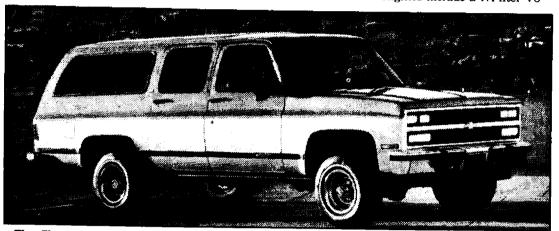

The second and third rows of the Suburban had wide, comfortable bench seats. Each could accommodate three goodsize passengers, with belts all around. There was an impressive amount of hip, leg and head room.

The list of standard equipment on the Suburban is substantial. Even the base model includes rear wheel anti-lock brakes, tinted glass, a heavyduty battery, outside rear-view mirrors and dome lamps front and rear. A 37-gallon fuel tank also is standard, making fuel stops less of a nuisance but a lot more costly than with a typical passenger car. We were averaging somewhere around 18 mpg with mostly highway driving. Crawling up Park Avenue and the Hudson Parkway, and taking an unscheduled trip through parts of Secaucus, N.J., on the way to the Lincoln Tunnel (also unscheduled) surely did some damage to our fuel economy, not to mention family relationships.

A base-model two-wheel-drive Suburban starts somewhere around $16,000. According to our price chart, looks like you could get one with four-wheel drive and lots of trim for under $20,000.

The sticker on this test vehicle, which included a $5,500 preferred equipment package and the $640 destination charge, totaled $27,455.

The Suburban goes up against the likes of Jeep's Grand Wagoneer, the Toyota Land Cruiser and the Britishbuilt Range Rover in the mar-

When it comes to brain power, there is bad news and good news.

The bad news is that the average person loses 50,000 brain cells every day, which is frightening for anyone but more so if you are old. Fifty thousand lost a day times seven, times years!

No need to worry. The good news is that the number of cells behind your forehead doesn't matter. Far more important is how well these brain cells work with one another. To keep them running smoothly it is necessary to give your brain regular exercise, good food and rest.

In "Smarten Up! How to Increase Your Brain Power" by Roger Epston (Little Brown) the author presents a guide on keeping your brain at its best. He tells us that just like your muscles, your brain relies on the blood to carry a constant flow of energy and oxygen to every cell and that your brain thrives on daily exercise. Not by touching your toe, but by reaching for new discoveries.

Your brain also can be made stronger by what you eat. Although there's really no such thing as "brain food," you will get a better start on the day if your breakfast includes some protein. Your mind is also affected by sleep, physical exercise, nervousness and even sun-

For a part of the body that just sits around thinking, the

Jog your brain as well as your body burns up an amazing twothirds of the blood sugar (glucose) used by the body for energy.

The brain is something like a computer that runs on sugar. Not sugar from the sugar bowl. but the glucose that circulates through the blood. The body makes glucose from a variety of foods, not just the ones we think of as sweet, but also vegetables, grains, beans and fruit.

Besides describing things you can do to make your brain work better, the author suggests things to avoid, such as using caffeine, nicotine, alcohol or other drugs to make yourself smarter and more creative. He says they don't work.

Alcohol, as long as the stomach isn't empty, will be used by the body like a food. But if a person has a drink or two on an empty stomach, alcohol takes on a new personality. It acts on the brain as a drug, cheering and relaxing some people but dropping others into depression or even violent anger. The claim that alcohol makes you more creative is false. Alcohol gives only a short-term burst of energy then a person is apt to feel less energetic.

Exercise is high on the list of things to keep the brain free of cobwebs. Idleness can make the brain prematurely old and weary. A busy heart and lungs place more oxygen in the blood, and the brain is an oxygen glutton.

When you have a task to accomplish, it helps to know at what time of day you function best. You can figure out your best and worst daily times for mental work by taking your temperature; the daily rise and fall of your body temperature tends to follow the rise and fall of your brain power.

Using an oral basal thermometer, take a reading each waking hour for four or five days. Plot the temperatures on a chart of piece of paper; you should see a wavelike pattern from day to day. The high points are likely to be the best times for you to take on mental challenges. It is said that this pattern is as unique as your fingerprints.

How many hours of sleep should you get? No doubt your bedtime has become a little later each year, and that's as it should be. We begin life needing about 18 hours of sleep and in our later years may do fine on just six hours. If you have difficulty sleeping, try to lay off caffeine, cigarettes, at least in the evening.

Beware of naps. Try taking a warm bath.

SAD, an acronym for Seasonal Affective Disorder, refers to the adverse influence lack of sunlight has on the brain. You may find that you are more clear-headed in winter if you get some sunlight, especially early and late in the day. If that is not possible, be sure to spend time in a well-lit room.

Noise can interfere with the ability to remember and to pay attention. The author suggests ear plugs as one solution, and "white noise" which can be generated by a fan to cover up annoving noise and also gener-

For thousands of years, meditation has offered a way to quiet the mind. Not just for an evening but for as long as a person keeps practicing. Meditation works by training the mind to pay attention to whatever is going on here and now. After a period of practice, anxious thoughts about the past and the future may lose their

Vision loss disease can be treated early

Macular degeneration is the leading cause of vision loss in people over 50. It is an aging process of the macula, the portion of the eye used for central vision.

The macula allows us to see straight ahead, to read and to do close-up work, like threading a needle. But in some people, the support tissues that keep the macula healthy begin to deteriorate or develop problems, and central vision is progressively reduced.

Dr. Howard Joondeph of Grosse Pointe, chief of ophthalmology at St. John Hospital and Medical Center, says that macular degeneration has various stages and treatment possibilities.

"The very first and mildest stage is one in which there are little yellow age spots, we call drusen, near the central vision area in the eye," he said. "These do not cause significant vision loss, maybe a little bit of blurring, and many people go through their entire lives with these little drusen and never experience significant vision loss.'

Stronger reading glasses may be all that's needed for the milder stages of macular degeneration. But in some people, the doctor said, the tissues in the back of the eye, called the pigment layer, begin to thin out.

"When that occurs, abnormal blood vessels can grow through the thin spots into the space underneath the retina," said. "Vision is lost rather quickly and can be rather significant. That's the one stage of macular degeneration that we can treat with the laser to help prevent further vision loss."

The laser is used to seal or cauterize the abnormal blood vessels, preserving the remaining central vision.

ON INCREASING PROPERTY TAXES The City Council of the City of Grosse Pointe Park will hold a Public Hearing at 7:00 p.m. on Thursday, May 30, 1991, in the Council Chambers of the City Hall, 15115 E. Jefferson, Grosse Pointe Park, to receive comments and discuss a proposed additional 1991 City operat-

In 1990, the City levied a total of 14.00 mills ($14.00 per $1,000 of SEV) for City operating purposes. In 1991 the City anticipates levying a total operating rate of 13.89 mills ($13.89 per $1,000 of SEV) for the City operating purposes. This represents a .11 mill decrease in the operating millage rate, however, would allow for a 7.7% increase in operating property tax revenues. 11/11/200

Due to an increase in the state equalized value of existing property in the City, State law (P.A. 5 of 1982) provides that the base tax rate for the 1991 City operating taxes be reduced to an estimated 12.71 mills. In order to fund the City's proposed 1991-92 budget and maintain essential City services, the City finds it necessary to restore its millage levy reduction. Accordingly, the City proposes to levy an additional millage rate of 1.18 mills ($1.18 per $1,000 of SEV) above the estimated 1991 Truth-in-Taxation base tax rate. This may allow up to an estimated 7.7% increase in the City tax operating revenue and result in a 1991 operating tax rate of 13.89 mills ($13.89 per $1,000 of SEV).

In accordance with P.A. 5 of 1982, the City has the authority to establish the number of mills to be levied within its authorized millage rate.

There new senior services available at Bon Secours Hospital

My elderly mother insists on living alone and I worry about her health and security. What can I do to help her stay independent, and at the same time, calm my fears?

My husband is in a wheelchair due to a recent stroke. How do I have a ramp installed in my home?

Are their social programs or recreational activities that single older adults can join?

Bon Secours is introducing three new services designed especially for older adults which make finding answers to these questions, and others, easier.

"With extensive health care services at our fingertips and thousands of resources in the community, we're able to serve as an information and referral base for the senior communi-' said Peggy Brey, director of Aging Services at Bon Sc. cours Hospital.

The Older Adult Information and Referral Line, Outpatient Social Work Services and the Caring Call program, each provide support and guidance to help the older adult, as well as their family members, reach often difficult decisions.

Bon Secours Hospital's 55PLUS program will sponsor a memory improvement workshop, geared toward persons 55 and older. The three-session program, to be held on May 29, June 5 and June 12, will cover different aspects of memory, such as:

- how memory works
- how memory changes with
- factors that affect your memory
- how you can improve your memory, and more.

The workshop will be conducted by a professional social worker with a master of social work degree. The cost is $10. For more information, or to preregister, call Bon Secours' 55PLUS office at 779-7477.

Share memories of World War II

Secretary of State Richard H. Austin is asking Michiganians to share some of their memories of World War II.

"Michigan residents who remember the bombing of Pearl Harbor and World War II are invited to submit articles and brief recollections to Michigan History Magazine, the state's most popular history magazine," Austin said. Selected articles will be included in a special November/December issue commemorating the 50th anniversary of the bombing of Pearl Consideration will be given to articles or memories of the battlefield, reaction to the bombing of Pearl Harbor, as well as reminiscences about the homefront which give a glimpse of everyday life under the stress of war. Either the author or story must have a Michigan connection.

In addition to feature articles and recollections, Michigan History Magazine is interested in wartime diaries, letters and photographs. Please send photocopies rather than originals.

All contributions to the special World War II issue should be mailed to: Michigan History Magazine, Michigan Department of State, 717 W. Allegan Street, Lansing, 48918-1805. Entries must be received on or before Aug. 1 to be considered for publication in the commemorative issue.

Park's proposed 1991-92 budget up 8.9 percent

By John Minnis Assistant Editor

The proposed Grosse Pointe Park budget for 1991-92 is 8.9 percent larger than the year before and includes a 7.7 percent increase in tax revenues.

The Park's total budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 is expected to be $7.3 million, up from $6.7 million the year before.

Total tax revenue is expected to be $4.6 million, up from the $4.27 million collected last

The budget draft is expected to be balanced by a proposed property tax rate of 14.17 mills. which includes 2 mills for rubbish pickup and .28 of a mill for debt.

Last year's tax rate was 14.28 mills, but due to the approximate 11.5 percent increase in property assessments applied earlier this year, the rate had to be rolled back to about 13 mills in accordance with the Truth in Taxation law. The Headlee Amendment allows for an increase in tax revenue equal to inflation — this year, 5.4 percent.

Under Headlee, the total tax rate the Park could levy without a vote of the public is 16.04 mills.

However, because the Park is increasing its tax rate more than the inflation rate, a public hearing must be held, which is scheduled for Thursday, May 30, at 7 p.m at City Hall.

Under last year's tax rate, the owner of a home assessed at $100,000 (50 percent of market value) in the Park paid $1.428 in city taxes. This year, the same homeowner - assuming his assessment went up the average 11.5 percent — would pay $1,579.95, if the new tax rate is approved.

City Manager Dale Krajniak • Continued street resurfacsaid the $330,000 increase in • Conversion of the recentlypurchased building near Alter and Jefferson into a Department of Public Works building at a cost of $100,000.

'We're basically making significant capital improvements and maintaining services,' Krajniak said of the proposed budget.

on its most successful line for a year while it tampered with the air-conditioning.

At the same time, several school on-site budget committees were attempting to cut funding for their PACE program because it served so few students. And a study of the middle school and high school advanced programs recommended an overhauled and better elementary program to feed into their programs.

A committee of parents, educators and administrators was formed. Information was studied. surveys were made, testing was done and a consultant was paid $3,500 (in state money earmarked for gifted and talented students) to come up with a plan.

The consultant, Margaret Britton Kolloff, an associate professor of gifted education at Ball State, has a Ph.D. from Purdue in educational psychology specializing in gifted and talented children. She came up with a plan that seemed to fit many gifted student's needs.

Her idea, in the simplest terms, is to separate accelerated students from the rest, giving them an accelerated curriculum. The curriculum would challenge these advanced students on a daily basis, rather than the current two times a week. It would also include guidance and psychological services for many gifted students whose emotional maturity is generally less developed than their intellectual ability.

The committee voted on this proposal, (which is called the homogeneous grouping pro-posal, or the Kolloff Plan) and nine approved it, three approved another plan and four committee members abstained.

Many members of the committee argued that the proposal shouldn't be sent to the Curriculum Coordinating Council (the next step in the procedure) because a two-thirds majority agreement is necessary from an advisory committee according to the CCC bylaws. Is nine twothirds of 16? No, but there were those four abstentions, therefore nine is two-thirds of the total votes.

Five attorneys were asked their opinion: Two said it was a good vote, two said it was not and the fifth said he didn't know.

But that was moot anyway because the CCC - which was given two minority proposals along with the Kolloff Plan voted in favor of a plan created by a sub-group of teachers.

The teachers' plan calls for keeping the gifted students in class with the rest of the students and giving them individualized, more advanced lessons. These students would be helped with their lessons by a resource teacher a couple of times a week.

Three public hearings were held on the two plans and parents are as divided on the two plans as the committee was.

"If you dig below everything and get right to the base of the issue," McCaig said, "it's basically what is more important, meeting the intellectual needs, or helping the kids develop socially."

A classroom made up of the brightest kids meets the children's needs intellectually, but does not necessarily address the child's social skills.

An advanced child in a normal classroom setting may get bored once the lessons are learned and be termed a behavior problem because his needs aren't being met.

Each proposal creates more questions than it answers. Proponents of the homogeneous class would say the children would be challenged and therefore won't get bored, kids

Buckle up or pay

Police officers from Copper Harbor to Monroe will blitz the highways and byways this summer, in an effort to reduce the carnage that comes with the summer months in which driving is heaviest. Their goal: Increase safety belt usage, save lives and prevent injuries.

Your chances of surviving a serious traffic accident double when you click your safety belt and police plan to ticket drivers who fail to buckle up. It could cost a motorist a $25 fine plus another $25 in court costs.

wouldn't be pulled out of class often and because they are surrounded by other gifted children, they will feel more at ease. Gifted kids don't always answer questions in class because they don't want to be teased not wanting to be called an 'egghead," they say they don't know the answer when they really do. A class of gifted children would eliminate many of those problems.

Another trait of gifted children is that they're perfectionists and become frustrated if they can't accomplish a task as quickly or as well as they thought they could. Psychological services as part of the curriculum would be able to deal with some of that. And won't a homogeneous grouping become - over time - a heterogeneous group?

Those who don't like the homogeneous proposal say putting the children in a special class will give kids false notions of their worth and won't help with the socializing skills they desperately need. Also, the bright kids tend to become class leaders, and putting them in their own class would mean fewer students would have that chance to rise to the top.

The elementary teachers can be counted among those who do not support the Kolloff Plan.

According to Tom Whall, president of the Grosse Pointe Education Association, a poll of union members came out overwhelmingly against the Kolloff Plan. Even though the teacher's plan may be harder to work with, they say Kolloff's plan would breed elitism.

"It was 100 percent against," Whall said.

"But we don't want the board or the community to doubt for an instant our commitment to the kids," he told the board Monday night. "We will institute any program you tell us to."

Those who support the teachers' proposal praise the flexibility of the program - students may be advanced in one area. but not in another. It allows the students to remain in class with thereby strengthening their social skills.

Those who don't support the program say the children's intellectual needs won't be fullfilled and the resource teacher who helps the children with the individualized lessons will be spread too thin. And teachers are human; some will work with the program better than others, and is that fair to the students?

There are still more questions

Who is termed gifted? Currently, 15 percent of all students in grades 2-5 are identified as gifted. Some schools and even some grades in each school have more students identified as gifted than others, but the total is 15 percent.

Is the testing procedure fair and valid? Are students slipping through the cracks? What about those underachieving gifted students whose work is not up to their ability. McCaig said studies show that an "a-larming number" of gifted students get lazy and bored because too many years have gone by without them being challenged.

What about the term "gifted?" Is that a fair term? Why aren't students who are gifted athletes or artists given extra enrichment at the elementary level? Isn't it the parents' job to provide their own children with enrichment? Should a 10-year-old learn algebra just because he can?

And does either proposal address the perceived need for a comprehensive K-12 gifted program that builds in each successive year?

All are questions which can't be answered with a simple ves or no, just like the questions facing the board and Superintendent Ed Shine.

"Each proposal is based on irrefutable evidence and each has great possibilities," McCaig said. "People either want one or the other, there are no inbetweens. All are passionate about their feelings and they have an undying commitment to their children. It's been a real challenge. From one extreme to the other, no one is nasty or bitter. They all care, but one way or the other, we're going to upset some people.

"Both programs will be a mixture of acceleration and enrichment, so the optimistic thing is that whatever we do, we're going to do better."

Scholastic Aptitude Test preparation courses, review work in the traditional academic areas and classroom work designed to encourage in-"quiring students highlight this summer's offerings at the University Liggett Summer School.

Courses will run June 24-Aug. 2 at the middle school campus, 850 Briarcliff Drive in Grosse Pointe Woods. In addition, an intensive SAT workshop, with limited registration, will take place from Aug. 5-16.

The strength of the program rests in experienced, professional faculty who are able to meet the needs of students who want to broaden their base of knowledge as well as the needs of young people who have experienced some difficulties

Particular emphasis has been given this year to expanding the offering for younger students (those entering grades 2-4 in the fall). A special program has been established which will allow for attention to individual needs in the areas of reading/writing and mathematics/ computation, with computer games to reinforce and enhance

Other course offerings include math for grades 5-8, prealgebra, algebra I and II, geometry, study skills for grades 6-12, reading and writing for grades 5-6, language arts for grades 7-8, English composition for grade 9, advanced composition for grades 10-12, French I and II, Spanish I and II, probler.; solving with computers for grades 5.7 and preparation for chemistry and physics for grades 10-12.

Tutoring sessions arranged through the summer school for one-on-one work between students and teachers are also available. The subject matter for these sessions is wider than the summer school offerings.

The charge for the courses varies according to type and length. For a registration form or for additional information, call Tony Gallaher, director of the summer school, at 884-4444 or 884-3517.

Lynchburg seeks applicants

Lynchburg College in Virginia is accepting applications for the 1991 session of its annual Hopwood Summer Program, in which outstanding high school students from around the nation live on campus and participate in collegelevel courses.

The 1991 session, July 20-28, features courses in 16 fields of study including environmental ethics, nuclear chemistry, law, economics, literature, creative writing and others.

Participants will learn what it is like to attend college-level lectures, participate in discussions and perform independent and collaborative research. Students live in residence halls on campus and participate in cultural and social activities typical of college life.

To be eligible for the Hopwood program, students must be in the top 20 percent of their class and scheduled to graduate from high school in 1991-92. Extremely well-qualified members of the high school class of 1993 may be admitted if space is available. Application materials, including a copy of the student's academic record and a letter of recommendation, must be received by the college no later than June 15.

For more information, call the Lynchburg College Admissions Office toll-free at 1-800. 426-8101.

Douglas Schrashun

Each week in this column, we will focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a woodworking project, a book review. The following story was written by Douglas W. Schrashun, a first-grader at Maire Elementary School. Grandma's Leather Jacket

Last year on my birthday, my Grandma gave me a leather jacket. I wore it nonstop for three days.

One month later it started getting weird. My jacket was turning gold! That day at school the school bully was picking on me, but when he punched me, it didn't even hurt! But when I punched him he was across the room before you could say vipady-doda.

After school my big brother (that was a real pain) was blocking off my room. I kicked him right out of the way. The next day at school the bully challenged me to a karate match. After school we met in the gym and got into the ring.

Douglas W. Schrashun

The ref said, "When you hear the bell" - my mother interrupted. "Son, take off that dreaded jacket."

So I had no choice but to take my magic jacket off. And then I fought him until he was down three times. So I defeated

The moral of this story is you don't need magic to win.

Law doesn't sit well with Alinosi ice cream firm

By Donna Walker Staff Writer

When Becky Backlund, 42, of Grosse Pointe Woods was a little girl growing up in Detroit, she and her father would go to Alinosi French Ice Cream Co. on East McNichols every Wednesday for a cone or a sun-

"It was our weekly ritual," she said. "(It was) the best ice cream in the world, and they had a big, old-fashioned soda fountain that you'd sit at. It was a child's delight."

So she was thrilled to find out last Friday while walking her dog along Mack that Alinosi is re-locating to Grosse near Anita.

"Now I won't have to travel so far for their ice cream," she

However, she won't be able to sit at the soda fountain, and neither will anyone else.

Alinosi can't have any seats at its new location because it doesn't have the minimum number of off-street parking spaces that is required by city ordinance, said Chester Petersen, Woods city clerk-adminis-

He said the ice cream shop could have seating if it had three more parking spaces in front of or behind the building, for additional spaces. There is a municipal, metered parking lot down the block, across Anita, but Petersen said that it is too far away to count, and that the lot's spaces are already taken up by other businesses.

Steve DiMaggio, co-owner of Alinosi, said he plans to ask the city's zoning board of appeals for a variance to allow seating.

"We're only talking 12 seats at the most," DiMaggio said.

The city council, sitting as the zonning board of appeals, will hold a public hearing on the matter at its June 17 meet-

Alinosi French Ice cream Co. was founded by his grandfather. Louis Alinosi, in 1921, 10 years after he immigrated to the United States from Europe.

The company started out on Mack and Grand Boulevard in Detroit, and moved to East McNichols in 1942.

Famous for its homemade ice cream and candies, DiMaggio said the company is best known for its spumoni.

"My grandfather brought the recipe from Europe, DiMaggio said. "As a teen-ager, he traveled all over Europe. He had an aunt who had an ice cream and pastry shop in Paris, and he Steve DiMaggio said his family will keep Alinosi in Grosse Pointe Woods, even if they can only have a take-out store.

However, they are going to install the soda fountain and leave room for seats around it, with the hope that the zoning board of appeals will dish out a variance in their flavor, uh, fa-

Luanna Mays Wilcox

Luanna Mays Wilcox, 88, of Grosse Pointe City, died May 14, 1991, of congestive heart failure at Cottage Hospital in Grosse Pointe.

Born in Albuquerque, N.M., Mrs. Wilcox was an astrologer. She made astrological predictions for her family and friends, and even for the late Gov. G. Mennen Williams and the late Detroit Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh. She also cast a chart for Robert Lacey during the year that he and his family lived in Grosse Pointe while he was doing research for his book on Henry Ford.

Mrs. Wilcox was also inter-

Mrs. Wilcox was also interested in antiques and was in charge of publicity for many of the organizations to which she belonged, including the Detroit Institute of Arts, the Historic Memorial Society, the Detroit Review Club, the Detroit Women's Council, the Navy League, the Women's City Club, the Michigan Writers Club and the Neuromuscular Institute.

She is survived by her sister, Irene, and two grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her husband, Aaron E. and daughter, Patricia W. Dieters.

Cremation and interment were held in Maplewood, N.J. Arrangements were made by the Chas Verheyden funeral home in Grosse Pointe Park.

James W. Snyder

Services were held May 22 at St. Paul Catholic Church in Grosse Pointe Farms for James W. Snyder, 73, of Grosse Pointe. He died May 12, 1991, in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Born in Livonia, N.Y., Mr. Snyder was a graduate of the University of Notre Dame and was a U.S. Army veteran. He owned the Jim Snyder Sales Co., and was a member of the Lochmoor Club, the Notre Dame Monogram Club, the St. John Hospital Men's Club, the Coral Ridge Country Club and the Edward Sorin Society. He was an avid golfer.

Mr. Snyder is survived by his wife, Marjorie; daughter, Mary Ann Martin; son, James W. Snyder Jr.; and four grandchildren.

Arrangements were made by the Chas Verheyden funeral home in Grosse Pointe Park. Interment will be in the St. Paul Columbarium in Grosse Pointe Farms. Memorial contributions may be made to the University of Notre Dame Detroit Scholarship Fund, Room $12 Administration Building, Notre Dame, Ind. 46556; or the St. John Hospital Development Fund in Detroit.

Freda Mary Stewart

Services were held May 20 at the Chas Verheyden funeral home in Grosse Pointe Park for Freda Mary Kimberly Stewart, 88, of Grosse Pointe Park. She died May 16, 1991, in East Detroit, at the home of her private nurse, Rosalie Preston.

Born in Milford, Mrs. Stewart was very active in the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club. She was still riding horses at the age of 70. She was a former president of the Grosse Pointe Artist Association and was a student and exhibitor for 25 years.

She is survived by her daughter, Carol Marsh of Toledo, Ohio; six grandchildren; eight great-grandchildren; and sister, Marion Cooper of Birmingham. She was preceded in death by her husband, Walter Stewart, and son, Robert Stewart.

Burial was in Grand Lawn cemetery in Detroit.

Virginia Hubbell Van Wormer

Services were held May 20 in Florida for Virginia Hubbell Van Wormer, a former Grosse Pointe Farms resident who moved to Indian River Shores, Fla., in 1985. She died May 16, 1991, after a prolonged illness.

She is survived by her husband, Harry C. Van Wormer Jr., and sister, Evelyn Kuech-enmeister.

Burial was in John's Island cemetery in Florida. Memorial contributions may be made to the Van Wormer Foundation, in care of Lloyd & Hall P.A., 660 Beachland Blvd., Suite 201, Vero Beach, Fla. 32963.

Frances D. Huntington

Services were held May 18 at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church in Grosse Pointe Farms for Frances D. Huntington, 88, a resident of Grosse Pointe from 1946 to 1990. She died May 16, 1991, in Detroit.

Frances D. Huntington

Born in Watertown, N.Y., Miss Huntington owned the F.D. Huntington Co., a manufacturers' representative firm.

She graduated from Liggett School in 1922 and Smith College in 1926. Miss Huntington was a member of Sigma Gamma Association, Ibex, the Michigan Lily Society, the Society of Automotive Engineers, and the Junior League of Detroit.

Her hobbies included Pewabic pottery, painting, gardening and being family historian.

She is survived by her nieces and nephews, John T. Huntington Jr., William P. Huntington, Frances H. Ness, Barbara Christianson and Cynthia Spurgeon; and 17 grand-nieces and grand-nephews. She was preceded in death by her nephew, Robert M. Kerr III; sister, Mary H. Kerr; and brothers, John T. Huntington and Danforth Huntington.

Interment of ashes was at Mount Hope Cemetery in Rochester, N.Y. Memorial contributions may be made to Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 16 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich. 48236.

Jane B. (Burns) Hogan

Services were held May 8 at the Wilhelm funeral home in Detroit for Jane B. (Burns) Hogan, 92, of Grosse Pointe Park. She died May 6, 1991, at her home.

Mrs. Hogan was born in Glasgow, Scotland, and was employed by Anthony's on the Hill in Grosse Pointe Farms. She was a member of the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority.

She is survived by her daughter, Harriett Hogan; sons, Patrick and Matthew; 12 grandchildren; and a greatgranddaughter. She was preceded in death by her husband, Matthew.

Woods cuts 1991-92 budget below previous year's level, gives money to SAC2

By Donna Walker Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe Woods city council cut $14,850 from the fiscal year 1991-92 city budget on Monday.

Taken from the general fund, the money had been earmarked for contingencies. Mayor Robert E. Novitke said that the finance committee and city council recently discovered that a few of the things for which they were planning are not going to happen. For example, a city employee that was scheduled for retirement found work somewhere else, the mayor said.

"So, we decided we could set aside less money for contigencies," the mayor said.

Tentatively, the increase in the general fund over the 1990-91 budget was supposed to be 5.4 percent, the inflation rate, the mayor said.

Trimming $14,850 from the general fund put the increase under 5 percent.

"We believe it is a very responsible budget," Novitke said. "We were able to provide the lowest justifiable budget while covering city expenses and maintaining our current services, and we're doing it well below the cost of living.

The new budget is less than the 1990-91 budget, which was approximately $18,892,000. The 1991-92 budget that the council approved Monday is approximately $18,727,000.

The decrease is due mainly to park improvement bond funds that have been spent, according to Chester Petersen, Woods city clerk-administrator.

The city council also passed a millage increase for fiscal year 1991-92.

Tentatively, it was supposed to be a .2564 mill increase. However, that number is being lowered to reflect the $14,850 that was deleted from the budget. Unofficially, it will be an approximately .2561 mill in crease, according to city officials. The exact figure was to be filled in by the city comptroller after the meeting.

A .2564 mill increase would have brought the total number of mills levied by the city to 11.2750

One mill equals $1 tax for each $1,000 of a property's state equalized valuation

The city had to roll back its tax rate to 11.0176 mills for fiscal year 1991-92 under the state "Truth in Taxation" law.

The law says that a city's operating millage has to be rolled back in proportion to the in the SEV.

However, after the rollback, the city council had the authority to raise the total millage levied to 19.032 mills, under the Headlee amendment.

A homeowner with a SEV of $70,000 would have paid $821.77 in city taxes in fiscal 1991-92 without the Truth in Taxation rollback. After the rollback and without the millage increase, he would have paid $771.23. Now, with the rollback and a millage increase under .2564 mill, he will pay under $789.25.

Later in the meeting, the city council received a request for $300 from the Substance Abuse Community Council (SAC2).

A non-profit, volunteer organization, SAC2 works with the schools and the community to promote awareness of the dangers of drug and alcohol abuse in the five Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods.

On April 26, 27 and 28, SAC² held an event called "Spring Break." Students, parents and other members of the community were invited to sign a pledge saying that they would not drink alcohol during that weekend. The purpose of the event was to show people that they could have a good time and party without drinking alcohol or using drugs.

SAC2 gave buttons and bumper stickers to participants, and included their names in an ad in the Grosse Pointe News.

At the beginning of April, SAC² asked for and received resolutions supporting Spring Break from the city councils in the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods.

After Spring Break was held, the cities received letters from SAC² asking for $300 in financial assistance. The letters were dated April 5.

Mike Chamberlin, a member of the SAC² board of directors, said at the meeting Monday that SAC2 was $1,800 in debt as a result of Spring Break. Publicity costs and the approximately 2,000 participants (200 percent more than last year) exceeded SAC2's expectations, Chamberlin explained.

Councilman Paul F. Beaupre was in favor of giving SAC2 the $300, saying Spring Break was a worthwhile event.

However, at least two residents in the audience - Margaret Potter and James Perry were opposed to it. Potter said, "If a group falls short of its goal, I don't see why taxpayers should bail it She said $300 may seem like a nominal amount, but similar expenditures add up during the course of a year "and result in tax increases."

Perry wondered what measures SAC² had taken to make up its deficit. Did they try holding a bake sale or car wash? Beaupre said he did not think that Chamberlin should have to answer those questions. "He and his organization are not on trial," Beaupre said. "Community input to the level of inquisition is out of order. mously approved SAC2's re-Residents can attend some of their board meetings if they want to find out more about the group."

Novitke asked Chamberlin to answer Perry's questions. Chamberlin said that the group's members have made phone calls to solicit money, but are still $1,800 in debt.

In the end, the council - minus Councilwoman Jean Rice, who was sheent - unaniquest.

"We wouldn't have done it if we didn't think it was beneficial to our community," Novitke said. However, he also said that 'this council has been very benevolent with our city dollars, but with the $14,850 reduction in the budget, we are going to have to be very selective about the things that we fund in the future.

8th annual Art on the Pointe to be June 8-9 at Ford estate

By Margie Reins Smith Feature Editor

Send in the clowns.

The Assistance League to the Northeast Guidance Center is sending in its own clowns to entertain the kids at its annual art fair, Art on the Pointe.

The juried art festival and fundraiser for the NEGC will take place on the lawns and under the trees of the lush grounds of the Edsel & Eleanor Ford Estate on Saturday and Sunday, June 8 and 9.

The eighth annual art fair will feature 150 different artists displaying and selling their work. In addition, art browsers will be treated to a variety of music, entertainment and refreshments. They'll get a chance to stroll the grounds of the Ford estate, and, n' they wish, tour the Ford house.

For those who want to stick around, there's a post-fair dinner dance and auction at the Ford estate's new Activities Center. There will be opportunities galore to cavort with the clowns.

These are not run-of-the-mill clowns, mind you. They're members of the Assistance League and they took lessons in how to stroll around without getting tangled up in their balloon pants, oversized floppy shoes, pointed hats and enormous bow ties — and they learned how to talk with huge red bulbs stuck on the ends of their noses.

They learned how to make balloon sculptures.

Some designed their own costumes and learned the art of clown make-up.

"This is the first time we've ever used volunteers as clowns," said Barbara Sheppard, special events chairman for Art on the Pointe. "We're using volunteers in order to save money as well as to offer something for the children to do while their parents look at the artists' work. We spent about $600 last year to hire clowns, so we'll save that amount this year. That's more for the Northeast Guidance Center."

Sheppard's mother, Kate Schulte, is serving as one of the makeup artists for the clowns, and Sheppard's sons, Michael, 7, and Danny, 5, will be junior clowns. That's three generations of the same family who will be clowning around for the Northeast Guidance Center.

Art on the Pointe is a juried art show, which means the artists have submitted samples of their work to a panel which selects participants on the basis of artistic merit and variety.

Artwork will range in price from $3 to $3,000. Booths will feature paintings, pottery, photography, handcrafted jewelry, sculpture, etchings, fiber arts, basketry, mixed media and more.

Food will be offered by John Kolakowski, chef/teacher/ restaurant owner, who is noted for his ethnic and exotic foods. He'll have Italian sausage, Polish pierogi, German knockwurst and potato pancakes as well as hot dogs, chicken subs, criss-crossed French fries and — an alligator appetizer with honey Dijon dip.

General chairmen of Art on the Pointe are Claudia Gram, JoVona Cisco and Anita Barger. Chairmen of artists are Betty Loeher and Beth Moran. Auction and dinner party chairmen are Kathy Heitman and Sandra Seale.

Besides Sheppard and her two sons, clowns will include Becky Murray, Camille Cracchiolo, Anita Barger, Bonnie Perry, Kathy Di-Virgil, Julie Berendt, Judy Brisson, Mariann D'Hondt, Terry Mc-Eachern, Mary Lush, Sue Madro and Mary Ellen Blandin.

Face painting in bright neon colors will be available for 50 cents. Face painting artists are Lori Radke and Kate Schulte.

Daughters of the British Empire

Mrs. Henry Heatley, state president of the Daughters of the British Empire, will place a traditional Flanders Poppy wreath at Oakridge Cemetery in Flat Rock, on Sunday, May 26. The cemetery is the final resting place of 17 British airmen who were killed while on active duty in the United States. Eleven airmen of the Royal Navy Fleet Air Arm and Royal Air Force died in flying accidents while training at Grosse Ile Naval Station from 1942 to 1944. Six were the Royal Air Force flight crew of a Vulcan bomber which crashed into Fox Creek on Oct. 24, 1958, en route to Lincoln, Neb.

The 17 graves are cared for by Post No. 92 of the Royal Canadian Legion, Dearborn, under the auspices of the Commonwealth War Graves Com-

Michigan Tastefest: A weekend of fun, food, entertainment

The New Center area (a.k.a. West Grand Boulevard between Woodward and the Lodge Free. way) will be the setting for the third annual Michigan Tastefest, a beginning-of-summer kickoff featuring the best of Michigan food, drink and entertainment.

From Friday, May 24, through Monday, May 27, the free festival will offer chances to try food from 40 different restaurants, wineries and breweries, including some delectables from Grosse Pointe's own Cheesecake Shoppe.

Grosse Pointer David Benfer is honorary chairman of the 1991 Michigan Tastefest.

Benfer is senior veep for hospital affairs for the Henry Ford Health System. According to Tastefest insiders, he has almost single-handedly saved the festival from extinction. The sagging economy and the preoccupation with the Gulf crisis caused some key corporate sponsors to evaporate, according to Alice Ehrinpreis of Michigan Tastefest, Benfer went out and found new spon-Ehrinpreis promises a betterthan-ever three-day party that will include free entertainment (the Contours, Sha Na Na, The Chisel Brothers with Thornetta Davis, to name a few); events for kids (face painting, craftmaking opportunities, animals to pet, a storytelling area, to name a few); culinary demonstrations (by some great and some less-than-great celebrity chefs such as Emery King and Kristi Krueger of WDIV-TV.

Pointer named volunteer of year

Betty Brady

The National Society of Fund Raising Executives recently honored Betty Brady of Grosse Pointe, first chair of the Bon Secours Auxiliary Forum and current president of the Bon Secours Nursing Care Center Auxiliary, as "Outstanding Volunteer of the Year."

The Bon Secours Foundation staff nominated Brady for her leadership of the Bon Secours Nursing Care Center Auxiliary and the Auxiliary Forum.

Art

Proceeds from the annual fundraiser are used to benefit the community mental health programs of the Northeast Guidance Center.

The Edsel & Eleanor Ford House is at 1100 Lakeshore in Grosse Pointe Shores. The Shorewood Kiwanis Club will manage the parking lot across from the Ford estate and the $1-a-car fee will go to its charities and to NEGC programs.

Admission to Art on the Pointe is $2. Children under 12 are free. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

For those who would like to attend an invitational dinner and auction party after the show closes on Saturday evening, June 8, tickets are $37.50, and include cocktails, dinner, dancing and an open bar. Variety honors

Grosse Pointers: For the first time in its 63-year history, Variety, The Children's Charity of Detroit, has chosen to honor an entire family with its Humanitarian Award.

Variety will present the award to Michael and Marian Hitch, co-founders and owners of Little Caesars Pizza, and their seven children during its 10th annual celebrity fundraiser ball at the Ritz-Carlton on Sunday, June 2, beginning at 5:30 p.m.

The award recognizes the efforts of people who make the world a better place by having a positive impact on the lives of others.

Other award winners include several Grosse Pointers: Jimmy Carson of the Detroit Red Wings, a sports award; and Michael Micallef and Earl Weissert of F&M Distributors, the unsung heros awards.

Grosse Pointer Mort Crim will serve as master of ceremonies for the ball, which raises money for physically handicapped and underprivileged children in the metropolitan Detroit area.

Variety was founded in 1928, when a baby abandoned in a Pittsburgh movie theater became the godchild of 11 men who represented a variety of show biz industries. Since then, Variety has grown to more than 14,000 members, 55 clubs in 12 countries, and has raised more than $500 million for thousands of children's medical facilities.

Sponsor tickets for the ball are $250 and include a VIP cocktail reception before dinner. Other tickets are $175. For more information, call 855-

New rules

By Rev. William C. DeVries First Christian Reformed Church

We played basketball year round when I was a kid. Cold, hot, outdoor, indoor, organized, pick-up - we played.

It was the 1950s and 60s and it was Chicago, south side Chicago. We played at the park, at the school and most of all at the Y. We called each other and set the times. We arrived, we dressed, we played.

And in the summer we sweated. Only one window in the Y's big gym and none in the small gym. Air conditioning? You've got to be kidding?

Anyone who came could play. First come, first play. It didn't matter how old you were. If you wanted to try it, you were in. Usually, if you were a lot younger than the players in the game going on, you knew safety meant waiting for a younger group. It didn't matter if you were known or if you were a stranger. What mattered first was how much you wanted to play.

Most remarkably, it didn't matter what family you were from.

Everywhere else, it mattered. It mattered if you were Italian, Jewish, Dutch, Chinese, Korean, Egyptian or Nigerian. It mattered for where you could work and live and even walk. But here all that mattered was, "Do you want to play?" You exchanged first names, and ran and bumped and sweated and learned to trust and respect.

It seems so obvious. It is so true. Basketball at the Y was great. It really doesn't matter from what family a person comes. What really matters is, "Do you want to play?"

Yet we still pretend that family does matter. In a nation which supposedly set aside royalty and blood lines 200 years ago and slavery more than 100 years ago, we still allow it to matter. We conduct our business, our neighborhoods, our private and public community affairs as if family is more important than trust and respect.

Saddest of all is that the good Christians are so silent. We hear it, we see it, we can almost feel and taste it: the acting on prejudice as if family mattered more than how you play the game. Yet we are silent. Days and weeks and months go by and no one stands up and says it has to end. There is no room for persecution and taking advantage of others in the life of a Christian.

I want to call a time out. I want to ask you to change the rules. No more silence. No more letting this go on, this talking as if color and family were the basis for divisions at work and home and play. Please, for Christ's sake, stand up for what matters.

Hand 'n' Hand

The Foundation for Exceptional Children is pleased with the success of its experimental program, Hand 'n' Hand. According to Dr. Mary Kennedy, director, and Phyllis Lopez, facilitator, young "normal" children are included in classes for children with special needs.

The normal children learn patience and acceptance. Kennedy said, and the special children learn new speech and play skills.

Grosse Pointer receives Tribute to Women award

Eleanor Deuster Grady has been chosen by the Women's Republican Club of Grosse Pointe to receive the 1991 Tribute to Women award, which recognizes one outstanding member in each of the Women's Federation Clubs for her contributions to her own club and to the Republican Party.

A medallion signifying the award was presented to Grady at the ninth annual Tribute to Women banquet at the Kellogg Center in Lansing on May 17.

According to Adele Huebner, president of the Women's Republican Club of Grosse Pointe. Grady was chosen for the honor because of her dedicated volunteer work over the past three decades for the Republican Party on local, state and national levels. She has served as precinct delegate locally, worked at district conventions as secretary, functioned as a delegate to state conventions over the years and served as delegate to the Republican National Convention in 1980.

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION " BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD 🛊 🕈 💠

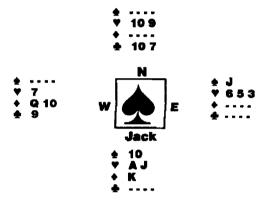

I am clad in gratitude for the circumstances which gave me the opportunity to rub hubs with a handful of men who are a part of my pedestalled gallery of great people. A few of them have in time become close friends. The rest I hold in special reverence even though I can't say that the events of my life allowed me more than a passing chance at enjoying their pleasures and personalities.

One was Jack Dreyfus, a man in many respects I hardly knew yet a person who I felt very comfortable in company with. Jack was a very good bridge player and a favorite partner of many for he handled his cards and the union proficiently. Silence was probably his only chastisement for I never heard a word from him but praise. In the two years we played, I can't remember a sensitive moment even though that goes with the game. Sometimes two people just mesh well together and that was our good fortune. Jack has been accused on being, "the best American player of gin rummy in history" and The Encyclopedia of Bridge supports that contention in print even though I'm not sure whether he's dealt a hand in many years. I sometimes wonder what it might be like to skirmish with him at this favorite amateur pastime of mine, but then reality brings me back to my senses and I gladly pass on such a utopian hope.

ability, table presence and personality are well suited for this wonderful intellectual challenge, but stake play is his game and away from the table his foremost love, medical research, comes first.

Jack established The Dreyfus Medical Foundation some thirty years ago because of an extraordinary series of events in his life which had a profound effect upon his health. Since then he has unselfishly given immeasurable energy and funding to this cause yet much is still to be accomplished and this takes a great deal of his time.

If today's hand from my scrap book of well played melodies, was introduced at duplicate approximately 50% of the field would be playing two no trump after a Stayman search was made for a major suit fit. Some wouldn't even get that far and a few might go further. Pending the brilliance of declarer's play eight tricks are there while difficult to find, but game in no trump has absolutely no play. Note with homage how Jack handled this hand one sunny afternoon at New York's celebrated Cavendish Club.

Jack's third call was audacious, but he knew his partner held four hearts and some quantity of high cards and his seventeen plus exceptional middle card texture was monumental. North's final call displayed arrested development, but he obviously was spurred by declarers reputation for performing miracles and bid the game with no comprehension that his partner would be playing a Moysean fit opposite his sub-minimal holding.

When the dummy was introduced, Jack quietly scolded himself for not passing two no trump. Appreciate that this was as good a stake game as one could play in and it was being contested for the love of a lot of money. Never the less declarer concluded the contract was remotely possible if he could hold his losses to a trump, a club and one diamond. He won the opening lead in his hand and immediately played a club, West ducking smoothly and won by dummy's king. The heart finesse lost to West's king and at trick 4, 5 and 6, the diamond ace, the club ace and diamond 3 ruffed with dummy's heart 8. Now three rounds of spades ending in declarers hand and this was the position at trick ten. (See above diagram)

You can see the spade and diamond are now ruffed in dummy and dummy's two clubs are ruffed in the closed hand limiting the defense to the three losers Jack had consciously contemplated

After 32 years with the DSO, Park musician says 'fini'

By Ronald J. Bernas Staff Writer Although Grosse Pointe Park's Clem Barone is retiring his piccolo after 32 years with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, the music will never really

It is a testament to Barone's will and determination that he ever made a living as a musician. He still wonders how it happened, and laughs when he recalls that the instrument he hated practicing while he was a boy growing up in south Philadelphia is the instrument that kept food on the table, a roof over his family's head and put two kids through college.

Barone played the flute because his father Clemente Barone did. Clemente was first flute with the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra and was quite a talent in his day. He made recordings with the greatest talents of his time, including Enrico Caruso. Barone found out recently that William Bennett, the great flutist, uses Clemente Barone's recordings to teach his students about the flute.

Barone in his early years as a piccolo player for the Houston Symphony Orches-

Barone's father died when Barone was 11 and it was in his memory that he kept playing the flute - even when all his friends were playing football and baseball. He made a deal with his mother: "I'll play until high school, then I'll quit." His mother accepted the

After fulfilling his part of the bargain, he didn't pick up his instrument again for seven years. During that time he played semi-pro football for the Sons of Italy and married Margaret Oates who he met while working at ITE Industries in Philadelphia. She eventually urged him to start playing ag in. And he's glad she did.

He formed a quintet with four other people he knew and played around town and for musical shows. The other four members of the quintet are still working musicians playing in symphony orchestras throughout the country.

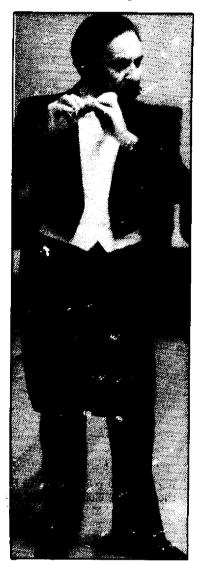

He thought he could make a living at his music, and through a friend, Barone heard about an opening with the Houston Symphony. The problem was that they wanted a piccolo player, and Barone played the flute. That didn't stop him, though. He auditioned.

"It was the strangest audition," he said. "Something like that would never happen today. The oboe player auditioned me. I went to her apartment and she was scraping reeds. She didn't even look up and she told me to play something. I didn't know the piccolo repertoire, I didn't know a damn thing, so she had some music there and I played the oboe parts on the piccolo." He got the job.

"I still remember my first concert," he said. "I'm sitting there and I'm asking myself Oh, my God, what am I doing here?' But I made it through and I thought that since I was hired to do a job, I was going to do the best job possible and I worked and worked. I got a lot Symphony musicians weren't paid much for their talents back then. The Barones lived in Houston during the symphony season, and in the summers went back to Philadelphia where he worked for a collection agency calling on people who had bad debts.

Another strange audition in the empty dining room of a hotel - followed. Barone was hired and moved to Detroit.

He and his wife remember looking for places to rent when they came here, and being turned down because he was a musician. He remembers telling a utility company representative that he worked for the DSO and the person asked. "And you get paid for that? Is it a full-time job?"

It was a full-time job, for 32 years. And the pay and the respect for musicians increased over those years.

"It's been a wonderful experience," he said. "I don't regret anything, not even those seven years I stopped playing. I think they just made me work that much harder."

Despite offers from other symphonies, Barone stayed with the DSO because he had decided 10 years of moving from Houston to Philadelphia every summer was enough moving for a lifetime. And he liked the symphony. He worked under Paul Paray, Antal Dorati, Gunter Herbig and now, Neeme Jarvi. Although all had their own personalities, Jarvi is one of the best, Barone said. This man, (Jarvi) now, gives us the most musical, magical experiences ever," Barone said. "He never plays the same song the same way twice. And he makes you want to play because he's such a wonderful human being."

Barone is even nice when discussing Herbig, who, according to rumor, was one of the most disliked conductors ever to pick up a baton in Detroit.

"Herbig was a fine musician, but he was very into detail," Barone said. "So much so, that you almost lost the big picture. But he was still good for us in a way, because he cleaned us up. We were starting to play sloppy."

Barone decided to end his career while at the top of his form, he said, because he wanted to be the one who made the decision to stop performing. He didn't want to be told to re-

An interesting sidenote: The first recording he made with a symphony was Ravel's "La Valse." It was also the last recording he made with the DSO.

But the music won't end. He'll continue his teaching one of his students is jazz flutist Hubert Laws - and he'll spend time with his biggest fan, Margaret, who's been with him for 46 years. And he'll also often be seen fishing the waters of Lake St. Clair.

Recital report:

Jessye Norman brings down the house at Orchestra Hall

by Alex Suczek Special Writer

No instrument can be as moving as the human voice, provided the voice has power and beauty, and belongs to a artist. Jessye Norman proved that Sunday, May 12, at Orchestra Hall before a cheering capacity audience. It was a triumphant culmination to the DSO's season as she sang the

For your dutifully skeptical critic, it was not a foregone conclusion. The program began conventionally enough with Handel's ever popular, Italian-ate aria "Art Thou Troubled" and continued with two of Henry Purcell's beautiful and throughly English songs showing early Italian stylistic influence: "If Music be the Food of Love" and "Thy Hand, Belinda When I am laid in Earth."

Norman set the tone for her concert with consummate control of her immense vocal power and silken tone to mold each aria and song into a fullblown dramatic interpretation of the text with unexcelled voera and one was more struck by the purity and intellectuality of the music than its emotional depth - at least by contemporary standards.

The humanity of artistic expression was more in evidence in the Debussy songs that followed. Shifting with ease into the French idiom, Norman took full advantage of the acoustics of Orchestra Hall to rove from a creamy pianissimo to vocal powerhouse. At times the audience seemed to hold its breath so as not to miss a whispered Bringitual, or the vigorous appeal of program in Orchestra Hall 10 years ago when Pro Musica presented her Detroit recital debut. She had the vocal beauty and the technique then. but has since sharpened the ability to convey with her tone and phrasing the ironic wit invested in this song.

With the famous and daunting "Seven Popular Spanish Songs" of De Falla, Norman easily avoided the trap of imitating the lusty folk style approach to what are in truth folk songs in art song settings. She might have been influenced by the historic rhythmic vibrato of Conchita Supervia, or the smoldering Iberian teming her own tonal and expressive powers, and her own artistic personality into play, Norman completed De Falla's conversion of these folk songs into high art and drama. The silken tone turned hard expressing anguish over the symbolically stained moorish cloth, and frivolous in the sarcastic and earthy Sequidilla in a style that was uniquely hers, yet totally right for each song.

But the enthusiastic audience, which had to be asked by the singer to refrain from applauding until the conclusion of each set, became uncontrollable in her concluding spirituals. And rightly so. Without sacrithe gospel style, she brought this set to the same artistic level as the rest of the program for a finale of power and glory.

Appropriately, she savored her applause and gave no sign of an encore, but a standing ovation earned its reward which, like the surprisingly unique Spanish songs, was alone worth the price of admission. It was the "Habanera" from Carmen. Norman sang it exquisitely and convincingly.

Still not satisfied, the spontaneous cheering section in the balcony resorted to rhythmic clapping to win from her one more spiritual. What a way to end a concert season.

Pavarotti, Samson an light next year's Mo

Michigan Opera Theatre general director David DiChiera recently announced the opera company's 1991/92 season schedule, which will be highlighted by the return to Detroit of tenor Luciano Pavarotti in a gala concert with symphony orchestra. Scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 20, at 7 p.m. in Joe Louis Arena, the concert will be sponsored by Ford Motor Co. The Detroit opera season opens Friday, Nov. 1, with a fall series of two productions in the 2,100seat Fisher Theatre followed by a trio of grand opera works for the company's sixth annual Spring Grand Opera Series at the 4.300-seat Masonic Temple Theatre.

DiChiera said, "We're very excited that Luciano Pavarotti has expressed his desire to return to Detroit not only to enhance our 1991/92 season, but to demonstrate his support of Michigan Opera Theatre's new opera house project. The season offers a wonderful balance of beloved operas and operettas along with works that are new to our repertory, and features an array of outstanding international artists."

Among Pavarotti's efforts on behalf of the new opera house at Grand Circus Theater will be his attendance as guest on honor at an exclusive dinner party during his Detroit visit for major donors to the opera house project. Chairman of the opera house's capital campaign is Ford president Philip E. Ben-

Works new to the company's repertory to be presented during the 1991/92 season include Leonard Bernstein's brilliant musical "Candide," presented as a tribute to the late, great American composer; the Midwest premiers of the 20th century Polish opera masterpiece. Karol Szymanowski's "King (Krol Roger); and Beni Roger"

Montresor's opulently designed production of "Samson and De-(Samson et Dalila) by Camille Saint-Seans.

This year, in an effort to maximize earned revenue capabilities in the wake of the elimination of state funding, the two fall productions at the Fisher Theatre will be presented in extended runs. Additionally, in an ongoing commitment to the presentation of dance, the opera company will present a series of offerings in cooperation with the Nederlander Association, to be announced in the near future.

Leonard Bernstein's musical version of Voltaire's satiric novel "Candide" opens Nov. 1 for 10 performances through Nov. 10. "Candide" won five Tony Awards and a Drama Critic's Award for Best Musical. The celebrated composer ("West Side Story,") and conductor won accolades for what was called his "most brilliant work" and "conceivably the best score ever written for a Broadway musical" (New York Times). For its NYC Opera revival in 1982, the book to "Candide" was revised and expanded, with several songs written for the 1956 version restored to the score. It is this version that MOT will present.

Then it's Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado," a perenially popular satire of bureaucracy gone haywire, set in a Japan as seen through the eyes of Britain's most famous theatrical duo, returns to Detroit. The musical score contains some of the best-loved songs of all time including "Three Little Maids," "Tit-Willow," and "A Wandering Minstrel." Fifteen performances are scheduled for Nov.

15- Dec. 1. MOT renews its commitment to presenting works from the Polish opera tradition with the Midwest premiere of early 20th century composer Karol Szymanowski's masterpiece "King Roger," May 2, 6 and 9, 1992. The co-production with The Greater Buffalo Opera will be staged by Polish director Mavyk Grezesinski and designed by Wielslaw Olko. Casting will be announced at a future date.

MOT will present "Samson and Delilah," French composer Camille Saint-Seans' greatest opera, for the first time in the company's history on May 16, 20 and 23, 1992. The co-production with Houston Grand Opera, Opera Pacific and Portland Opera was created by famed designer Beni Montresor.

Gaetano Donizetti's beloved "Lucia di Lammermoor," per-haps the most celebrated of all bel canto operas, returns to Detroit May 30, June 3 and 6, 1992, starring soprano Ruth Ann Swenson in the title role, internationally renowned tenor Vinson Cole as Edgardo, baritone Mark Rucker as Enrico and Gregory Stapp as Raimondo.

Subscription tickets are available to the fall series at the Fisher Theatre, to the spring season at the Masonic Temple Theatre, and to the full 1991/92 season. Current subscribers will be offered first priority to renew their season tickets; information on the full season is currently being mailed to all Michigan Opera Theatre subscribers. Vintage clothes, voltage rock help St. Vincent's Society

Vintage clothes and highvoltage music, cutting edge styles and sounds, amps for camps; however you define it, will be a unique clothing sale and music fundraiser for the Society of St. Vincent de Paul Summer Camps at the Majestic Theatre, Saturday, June 1.

The Society of St. Vincent de Paul was founded in Paris in 1833 by Frederic Ozanam, the 20-vear-old son of a French physician. His mission of helping the poor in the slums of Paris has grown into an international organization that collects and distributes clothing and goods

A lesser known facet of the Catholic organization is its summer camp program, established in 1922. The camps provide 1,900 kids with the opportunity to escape the city for a weekend of camping, hiking, and fishing on Lake Huron, in a community effort to increase children's self-esteem and instill positive values in a new environment.

With summer camps on the horizon, and spring closetcleaning donations on the rise. Stan Wegrzynowicz, manager of the Society's Gratiot store, and Joe Zainea, owner of the Majestic Theatre, created the eclectic combination of a clothing sale and rock review in the theater. The clothing racks will roll into the Majestic Theatre's main floor, creating a sale spectacular from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m.

With vintage clothing in vogue this season, as reflected in the retro look of psychedelic colors and prints, this benefit will bring the original look to a new location at bargain prices.

New music will replace the old clothes after 9 p.m. with a showcase of Detroit and Ann Arbor music. More than eight of the area's top alternative bands are currently scheduled in the new music review, including Anne Be Davis, Missionary Stew, 27th City (from Chicago), Voodoo Chiles, Dusk, The Grins, and more. Each band will perform a twentyminute set of its best original Sponsors for Vintage Voltage include 88.7 The Cutting Edge and Orbit Magazine. Cover charge for Vintage (1 p.m. to 7

Travel Trends

By Phyllis Hollenbeck

Going there alone

I suspect it is a matter of personality that determines whether a single person would rather stay at home than travel alone. If you are a single and "on the fence" - trying to decide if solo travel is something that you would like to try — give thought to the following as you make your decision.

Both male and female solo travelers face some basic choices when planning a trip. Some are the same as those of the accompanied and family traveler. Some are very different. All need to be made with care and research. The first and foremost decision - especially for a first try at traveling alone — is where you travel.

Certainly your choice should be a destination that is of interest and appeal. Also, consider the safety and flavor of the destination. Some things are obvious. Certainly a single female would think twice about traveling in the Middle East - or Venezuela - where a single female is often treated like a "third sex." Research your destination choices, not just the hotels and restaurants, but also the culture and attitudes.

After deciding on your destination, there are other choices to be made. You don't have to travel in solitude simply because you are traveling solo. You can choose an escorted tour where you will travel with the same people on the entire trip. This form of travel allows both built-in security and companionship. Your travel agent might choose to work with one of the many tour operators who book groups of singles, or one of the new match-up services that help find travel companions for singles. If you are an avid walker, hiker or cyclist, you will find a variety of offerings with others who share your interest.

Special interest and learning vacations are two of the better ways to travel solo. The variety of special interest tours is endless. Whatever your particular interest is - from bird-watching to trekking to antiquing to kayaking to cooking - there are tours offered for all interests.

There are a variety of summer courses offered at Cambridge and Oxford in England as well as at many U.S. universities. There are foreign language schools available in almost all countries of the world. The time spent on a learning vacation or a special interest tour is time spent doing what you enjoy and doing it with others who have similar interests. What more could

If you decide to simply "go it alone," there are some steps you can take to ensure the safety and enjoyment of your trip. First, like all travel, approach it as an adventure, yet use caution and good sense. There are both do's and don'ts when traveling alone. Most of the don'ts are pretty obvious and involve not drawing attention to yourself. It is certainly no more dangerous to travel than it is to stay at home. Solo travelers need to take precautions and do their homework and become familiar with the surroundings and know exactly how to get where they are going. It is good to know a bit of the language of the country you are visiting as well.

Becoming a "morning person" and enjoying the daytime offerings of your destination is an approach t makes particularly good sense when traveling alone. Your single status is less likely to be noticed in the daytime; and, mealtimes spent alone during the day are less lonely than those in the evening. Speaking with strangers at breakfast or lunch somehow doesn't give the same impression as when you strike up a conversation with another single at dinner.

Dinner meals can be taken early or in your room. How about an in-room picnic with gourmet tidbits purchased during the day along with the help of an immersion heater and packets of tea and dry soup? You will find that enjoying a quiet meal in the privacy and the comfort of your room will most often seem like a treat, rather than a let down at the end of an active day. An additional hidden plus to this arrangement is the money you save by eating your main meal during the day and avoiding the high cost of dining out in the evening.

The list of alternative vacation ideas for the single traveler is growing and information is available from a variety of sources. Start with your travel agent and the public library. Check your book shop for alternative vacation ideas. Research and plan ahead and remember - you don't have to travel in solitude simply because you are traveling alone.

Vacation budget hits $180 a day Families planning to motor around Michigan or roll through the Rockies on vacation should budget $180 a day for food and lodging, according to AAA Michigan.

That figure is 4 percent higher than last year and covers the expenses for a family of four.

The biggest chunk, $96, goes for food.

'Packing a picnic lunch or stopping at fast-food restaurants are two ways to cut this expense," said Peter Erickson, AAA Michigan director of club services. "Also, look into earlybird specials or plan on eating the main meal of the day at lunch when prices are generally lower."

An overnight stay at approved accommodations listed in AAA TourBooks costs an average $84.

"Families can reduce lodging costs by taking advantage of special discounts and weekend rates and finding facilities that allow children under a certain age to stay free," Erickson said.

In addition, travelers vacationing by car should budget $9.70 per 100 miles for gas, oil, tires and maintenance in a vehicle getting 21 miles per gal-

"And don't forget money for amusements, admission fees, tolls and shopping," Erickson

Picture the final scene of "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" as Paul Newman and Robert Redford get ready to face death at the hands of the Mexican army.

Now picture the same scene, only this time replace Newman and Redford with Susan Sarandon and Geena Davis. It's not as bizarre as it sounds. In fact, it's for real, and it's called "Thelma and Louise."

No. Thelma and Louise aren't a couple of Old West outlaws. They're just two Southern women looking for a good time. only to end up running from the law.

Come to think of it, they do sound a lot like Butch and Sundance, and that's a tail or-

Director Ridley Scott's film comes awfully close to matching the brilliant standards set by that classic Western. The often offbeat meshing of suspense and humor, combined with the refreshing focus on the female point-of-view, makes "Thelma and Louise" one of the more interesting and enjoyable commercial releases to come out of Hollywood in recent years.

Louise (Sarandon) is the independent but vulnerable waitress who convinces her sheltered, naive friend Thelma (Davis) to skip town with her for a weekend fishing trip. On the way, they decide to stop at a roadhouse tavern for a few margaritas and Wild Turkeys.

When a few turns into a few too many, Thelma and Louise are faced with a violent encounter in the parking lot that not only spoils their vacation but radically alters the course of their lives.

At first, "Thelma and Louise" is a somewhat disturbing picture along the lines of 'Deliverance," although not nearly as harsh. But as was the case in "Deliverance," the brutal confrontation in "Thelma and Louise" is not a climax but a catalyst for the film's plot, a look at how human beings react when faced with a crisis.

In this case, each character pulls an emotional about-face. Louise's fears and weaknesses come to the surface while Thelma becomes reckless and free-wheeling, but the pair manages to find a common ground during a white-knuckle attempt to elude the authorities. The development of this bond is the film's bread and butter, the element that grabs the audience's interest and holds it for the duration.

That grip is strengthened by a generous helping of downright funny scenes that alleviate the potentially overwhelming tension. Christopher McDonald is hilarious as Thelma's dumpy, boorish husband, stealing the show whenever he appears onscreen. And don't miss the scene where a dreadlocked bicyclist comes across a highway patrolman locked in the trunk of his squad car.

"Thelma and Louise" offers many of the things today's audiences look for in a movie suspense, humor and interesting, dynamic characters. Although this sometimes causes the film to spread itself too thin, "Thelma and Louise" is a winner and definitely deserves a chance before the onslaught of summer releases begins.

'One Good Cop' is two good films

By Marian Trainor Special Writer

Alternating between action ad drama, "One Good Cop" and drama, presents a two-dimensional view of the danger and violence experienced daily by cops who patrol the crime-ridden, mean streets where drug dealers ply their trade, and the contrasting drama of their home life.

As the film moves from intensely violent street encounters to sweet and loving domestic bliss, it takes a little getting used to at first. But once viewers get realize that this is really two films in one, they can settle back and enjoy it on both fronts.

As the audience follows the daily life of Artie Lewis (Michael Keaton) they see him both as a tough drug officer and a devoted husband who doggedly leaves what happens on his job behind him when he goes home.

Written and directed by a former New York Post reporter, it gives a close-up view of the frightening violence indigenous to the drug trade that only a person who has seen it first hand could know.

Early in the film, Artie and his partner Stevie (Anthony La Paglia), a widower with three little daughters, are involved in a dangerous police action, the kind that nearly gets them killed. It ends harmlessly, but is only the first of many incidents that become increasingly more violent and life-threaten-

Poised for more of the same, viewers go home with Artie. There they meet Rita (Renee Russo), his understanding and beautiful wife. It is a pleasant domestic scene. They are obviously compatible and in love. The only complaint she has is that Artie refuses to discuss his work with her.

We then switch to Stevie's home where he and his three cute daughters are wrestling and playing before he, as "Mr. Mom," gets them breakfast and dressed before the baby sitter arrives. Then it's back to the streets where Artie and Stevie are assigned to disarm a crazed drug addict who is holding his wife and children hostage. It ends with Stevie's death.

When the needs of the children get too much, the "good becomes a latter-day Robin Hood. Pulling a stocking over his head, he stages a oneman raid on the apartment of a drug kingpin and gets a suitcase full of cash which he drops off at the childrens' home.

The drug dealers, however, do not part with their ill-gotten gains easily, and they launch a full-scale revenge plot.

Keaton brings a down-toearth quality to his tough guy role. Always a sympathetic actor, he scores also as the adopted father of the three little girls.

Russo is sweet and gorgeous as the mother who couldn't be happier with her ready-made

Tony Plaza as the despicable drug dealer and Rachel Ticotin as his smoldering sidekick turn in good performances as does Kevin Conway, the harried lieutenant who is torn between what he must do as a superior officer and his sympathy for what he knows good cops endure in the line of duty.

"One Good Cop" goes beyond other films of the genre. It goes home with the cops to show the viewer another side of them as everyday persons rather than fearless crimefighters capable of surviving superhuman violence and mayhem.

Steamtrain 25 offers a trip Michigan Chapter of the Na-

The near-sellout of the Saturday, July 13, "Streamtrain 25" railroad passenger excursion has prompted its sponsors to schedule a similar trip for the following day.

The most beautiful steam locomotive still in regular excursion service in the United States, Norfolk & Western No. 611, will power the excursions between Allen Park and Fort Wayne, Ind., with intermediate stops, on both Saturday and Sunday, July 13 and 14. The streamlined 4-8-4, resplendent in black, maroon and gold, last pulled a passenger special in Michigan in 1988.

"Steamtrain 25" celebrates a quarter-century of steam passenger excursions on the Norfolk & Western and the Southern Railway, components of today's Norfolk Southern Sys-

Each trip is an opportunity for the entire family to experience the unforgettable day long adventure of riding behind and watching the last of a rare breed of iron horses, and will include a 3-1/2 hour stopover at the annual Three Rivers Festival in Fort Wayne. The train will stop in the heart of the downtown festival and while the 611 is being turned and serviced, passengers may take part in festival activities, stroll the few blocks to the popular and historic Frontier Fort, or

Low cost, high return

You're debating on whether or not to allow your kid to play sports in Grosse Pointe. You're not sure if your money is being spent appropriately, but you want your child in some organized sport.

Because you already finance part of your child's education by paying your school taxes, you figure you'll advise your would-be athlete to join the high school team of his/ her choice.

Great choice.

Astronomical budgets are needed to run schools and the programs they offer. But if you chop through the Grosse Pointe School System budget, you'll find that its athletic programs are comparatively inexpensive.

Fifty percent of all high school kids in Grosse Pointe participate in at least one sport during the school year. That's a lot of kids, but it's not a lot of money.

Everyone's concerned about cost effectiveness, particularly because the budgets are now being drafted for the 1991-92 school year. Some critics are suggesting cuts in programs, and have also said that running athletic programs is becoming too expensive.

Hogwash. Don't believe them.

Given the proposed school system budget, it has been proven that the athletic teams need only 1.3 percent of that chunk in order to function. That's less than $2 an hour for players to be uniformed. transported and coached. It also includes field maintenance and the cost of officials, and that's for all athletes from the seventh to 12th grade each year.

Think about it. Two bucks an hour is nothing if your child is getting such a rich reward.

OK, so you don't pay your taxes to have a child running on a track, or booting a footall. You sent your kids to school to learn. I agree, but think about this: Studentathletes, and others who participate in extracurricular activities, generally have better grade-point averages.

Last year, 63 percent of North's student-athletes had better than a 3.0 average. Athletes are forced to budget their time better, and there's not a lot of room for screwing around. Practices, games, meets, studies, are all part of the responsibility, and it seems most kids are handling it very well.

I'm afraid that if we begin cutting back on athletics, we begin stealing opportunity from kids. Less than 2 percent of the budget goes toward athletics - is that really too much?

I think not. Clearly the athletic budgets are cost effective. Athletes are getting a lot for a little. Nothing can replace high school athletics because they teach teamwork, force kids to get along and build lifetime relationships that money, only $2, can buy.

South first, North second in tennis regional

Sports Editor

It was evident that the Class A regional tennis meet at Farwell Field would highlight several North-South matches. But it was not clear which team would win the May 17 affair.

Tom Berschback took over the South program three years ago, and for the third straight year his tennis team won the regional tournament, edging out North 26-23. Both teams have qualified for the state meet.

"We knew it was going to come down to North and South," said Berschback, whose team beat North in a regularseason dual meet. "It was basically a dual meet between us."

That's because both teams eliminated the weaker ones from schools like Denby, East Detroit, Osborne, Finney and Notre Dame.

"The kids are playing extremely well right now as we head for the state meet," said Berschback, whose team won the Macomb Area Conference Red Division with an unbeaten mark of 7-0. "We didn't need to win the regional to get to the state, but I'm sure glad we did win it."

But South won it last year too and ended up finishing second in the state meet after being ranked No. 1 all season.

To beat North, South had to get wins at No. 1 doubles from Bill Wundram and Chris Schilling, and No. 3 doubles from Jeff Huntington and Chad

"We are ranked No. 6 in the state right now and our goal is to be in the top five," Berschback said. "In order to finish in the top five in the state meet we're going to need some upsets in doubles."

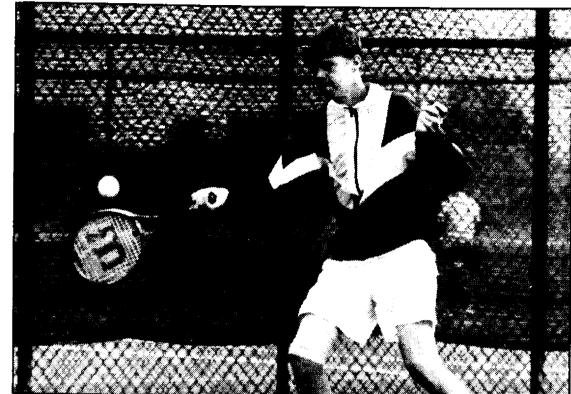

North's other regional winner was the No. 2 doubles team of Robert DuRoss and Brian DiLaura, who defeated South's Sean Coyle and Paul Powers, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3. DuRoss and Di-Laura avenged two regular season losses to Coyle and Powers.

Matt Smucker took the No. 3 singles flight over Mark Levine, 4-6, 6-1, 6-4, and Mike McHugh won No. 4 singles for North after South's Brian Disser had to default because of an injury after trailing 4-1 in the first set.

Mader, an all-state swimmer from Grosse Pointe North, has earned a full athletic scholarship to attend Eastern Michigan University beginning in

"I wrote a lot of letters to schools and coaches and told them I was interested in swimming for them," said Mader, who made all-state as a freshman and senior. "I then started receiving letters from Eastern and I knew that that was the best school, and program, for Mader, who credits her high school coach Mike O'Connor for motivating her, always worked hard, hoping for a scholarship.

"Mike always told me that in order to get looked at by some colleges and get a shot at a scholarship I had to make the junior national cut," said Mader, who swims the 200 and 500 free, the 400 individual medley and the 1,650 free. "I never made that cut in an individual event, but I have gone to the nationals on relay teams. I only missed qualifying in an individual event by threetenths."

But she still got her scholar-

"I never really thought much

And once she arrives in Ypsilanti, the workload in the pool won't be much different.

"The coach and things she does are very similar to what I'm doing right now," said Mader, who also runs track for North, but is hobbled by a pulled hip muscle. "Eastern does a lot of yardage and I'm used to that. Some of the other schools weren't even doing as much yardage as I am.'

Besides sending letters to Eastern, Mader contacted Iowa, Ohio University, Michigan State and the University of Michigan.

"Even though I knew I probably wouldn't get a scholarship from State or U of M, I still wanted to see where I stood," Mader said. "Staying close to home really didn't matter to me. I was looking at who was going to give me the best of-

The offer came the third week in March and she signed April 10.

"I first went up there and the coach told me that I would probably only get three-quarters of a scholarship, and I would have still been pleased with that because I liked Eastern the best," she said.

But the full scholarship came through.

South's lacrosse club keeps earning respect

By Rob Fulton Sports Editor

Rodney Dangerfield has had it relatively easy compared to the South boys' lacrosse club.

It's been four years since it was formed, and thanks in a large part to Chris Ferrari, the club has come from the doldrums and the house of little respect in less than three seasons.

Ferrari took over the proeram in its second season and has nursed it into one of the finest programs in the state. This season, the Devils, sporting a 7-5 record, are ranked No. 5 in the state behind such powerhouses as Cranbrook. DeLaSalle and Brother Rice.

"I think we're finally getting the recognition and respect we've worked hard for," said Ferrari. "Last year we only won two games, but this year we've already tripled that and the reason has been the kids. Each one of them has worked hard and that's why this sport is finally being recognized by the coaches, students and administration at South.'

But it's still not a varsity sanctioned sport. The club must operate with funds from South's intramural program, which pays for the officials, but the kids have to pay dues of $70 if they are in their first season, and $65 for every year they return to the team. The initial cost to start playing this club sport is approximately $300.

The players' fees go toward the purchase of nets and balls. Ferrari's salary, and that of jayvee coach Hank Lewandowski, are paid for through the intramural fund.

"It's frustrating for the kids because they would like the recognition from the school for being just as much a varsity sport as football, baseball, golf or tennis." said Ferrari. "I think we also lose some fine kids who want to play, but can't afford the investment. If we were a varsity sport, we'd be able to fund more for the kids."

But for now the team will continue to raise money through fundraisers.

The club was organized in 1987-88 and played a jayvee schedule. In 1988-89, Ferrari took over and played a few varsity teams, but this season he's loaded the schedule with premier teams.

"When I first got here I don't think the program had much direction," he said. "It was new to the school, the kids and the athletic department, and it seemed there was no discipline or organization The sport was digging a hole for itself and I had to come in and put my foot down immediately. My first year we had guys with only one or two years' experience, but now we've got 12 seniors." But even through the lean years the team never gave up.

"I don't think the players or myself ever became frustrated because we saw constant progress," said Ferrari. "I'm sure the kids would have liked to win more games, but we were having fun and learning as we went. Now, however, we really appreciate all the hard times we went through."

The team is captained by Chris Paul, Brett Brownscombe and Dave Cogan, who is the leading scorer. Goalie Jason Hall has kept South in many games with his 3.67 goalsagainst average, and his save percentage of .745.

Cogan was also voted the top midfielder in the state by the coaches.

"We're winning games because the fundamentals have improved," said Ferrari. "I've been stressing them ever since I got here. Sometimes the kids get tired of hearing me say, 'fundamentals,' but they have really worked hard. We continue to harp on fundamentals, and as long as we do that the program will get more respect." But in order for lacrosse to become a varsity sport, and recognized by the Michigan High School Athletic Association, 70 schools in the state must offer lacrosse. Ferrari sees increasing numbers all the time.

"We're not very far off from getting that many schools," he said. "Many schools are adding teams every year and I think before you know it there will be state tournaments.

"If they can come up with 70 schools to start and even make the application to the state, there is a possiblity that they would be heard," said Jo Lake, South athletic director. "I would support this as a varsity sport, but I can't go against the MHSAA guidelines. But, if there comes a time when there are 70 schools, I will back Chris and his program 100 percent. I back them now, but we have to follow the guidelines." And that doesn't bother Ferrari, although he thinks the school's help, and the adoption of lacrosse as a varsity sport would only benefit the kids and the program.

"We're certainly past the point of no respect at all," said Ferrari, "but we have had some situations where we have waived the fee to play because it has been a hardship case for a kid who wants to play. If we had the backing as a varsity sport, we wouldn't lose kids who want to play but can't afford it. I would like to get as much coverage and awareness of the sport for the kids and that can only help the sport reach its ultimate destiny. whatever that may be.

"If the sport is going to continue to grow and prosper, the varsity funding would only expedite that growth."

And in the meantime, Ferrari will continue to coach the club sport.

"Once you play this game you're hooked for life," he said.

Lady Devils run best regional ever, qualify for state

Sports Editor

The Grosse Pointe South girls' track team has never won a regional meet, but that doesn't matter because second place is a victory in itself.

For the fifth straight season, the Lady Devils, coached by Steve Zaranek, took second place at the regional tournament May 18 at North. South scored 110 points; Cass Tech won the meet with 166 points.

"I'm not disappointed at all," said Zaranek, whose team had captured the Macomb Area Conference White Division crown a week earlier. "We had our best regional meet ever. We knew going in that Cass Tech was heavily favored, but our goal was to challenge them in every event and we did just South qualified for the state meet in 10 of the 16 events, including sending all four relay teams (400,800, 1,600 and 3.200). It has five regional champions, and its 110 points scored is the highest total ever by the team in a regional meet.

"Cass Tech scored 60 of its points in the sprint relays and that's where we lost them," said Zaranek. "We just couldn't match their depth." But South couldn't be matched in races, either.

The Lady Devils started the day by winning the 3,200 relay with Amy Balok, Michele Evans, Heidi Wise and Rachel O'Byrne (9.54). In her toughest hurdle race of the season, Karen Ehresman sped to her second straight regional championship in the 100 hurdles in 15.2 seconds, edging previously unbeaten Ranesha Lindsay of Cass Tech (15.4). Ehresman also qualified for the state meet in the 300 hurdles, taking second place in 48.2.

After anchoring the 3,200 relay team, O'Byrne added two more regional victories, capturing the 1.600 (5:31) and 3,200 runs (12:17). Sophomore Angela Drake went on to win the long jump with a leap of 16 feet 3 inches.

South's 400 and 800 sprint relay teams will compete in the state finals as Tere Gavin, Kristine Mueller, Robyn Scofield and Ehresman took second in the 400 relay (51.7), with Gavin, Mueller, Drake and Leslie Arbaugh taking second in the 800 (1:48). Arbaugh will also run in the 400 dash (60.2) at the state meet.

South finished the day with a win in the 1,600 relay, behind the combined school-record time of 4:10 by Balok, Mueller, Drake and Arbaugh.

"It would have been nice to have the regional title and no longer be the bridesmaid," Zaranek said, "but we were right there challenging in every event and that's what we're pleased with."

Boys' track

In the regional meet at North May 18, the Devils finished eighth with 15 points, and didn't qualify anyone for the state meet.

South was led by Jeff Kerfoot, who placed fourth in the high jump (5 feet 9 inches) and third in the long jump (19 feet 9 3/4 inches). Dan Quinn ran a fourth-place time of 10:07.4 in the 3,200 run for the Devils, and Chris Harwick's toss of 120 feet 6 inches earned him sixth place in the discus.

South didn't score a run until senior Bill Leins doubled one home in the last inning, as the Devils lost to the Ramblers, 5-

1. The loss dropped South into second place at 8-5, and Fraser took over sole possession of first place at 9-4.

Fraser won the league four days later after beating Anchor Bay (5-3). South lost to Roseville, 4-3, to finish in second place at 8-6.

The game was tied until the bottom of the fifth, when the Ramblers scored twice on three walks, a single and an error. Starter, and previously un-beaten Kevin Brennan, took his first loss of the season.

In the nightcap of the Fraser doubleheader, a ron-league affair. South got a complete game from Tom Kolojeski, who gave up four hits and struck out six. Brennan had two hits and three RBI, and Leins had two hits and two RBI.

One day earlier, South lost a doubleheader to Anchor Bay, 8.

The Tars scored three times Kelly Graves, who had two in the top of the seventh in the opener to win, after South had tied the score at 5-5 with a four-run sixth inning. Brian Blake had two doubles and two RBI, and Scott VanAlmen had a pinch-hit double and two RBI to key South's rally.

Tim Gramling added South's other RBI.

In the nightcap, the Devils battled back from an 8-4 deficit to score three in the seventh, but had two back-to-back line drives picked off to end the game. Leins led the Devils with a three-run homer and a tworun triple for five RBI. Van-Almen had two hits and an

On May 18, South beat Farmington, 6-0, and East Detroit, 3-2, to win the Homeplate Tournament.

Fritz Coyro, who along with Lance Debets shared the tournev's Most Valuable Player award, went the distance, striking out four and giving up three hits against Farmington. RBI, and Matt Recht each had two hits, and Leins and Jason Benavidez each had RBIs.

In the championship game, South trailed 2-0 in the bottom of the seventh but scored three times when Benavidez's bunt, with two on and nobody out, was mishandled twice. Debets got the win, his third against two defeats, striking tout four.

South is 17-13 overall.

Lacrosse

After suffering a 10-2 loss to Country Day, South bounced back two days later to beat L'-Anse Creuse, 7-4.

Chris Paul and Tom Dinverno scored goals in the lopsided loss to the Yellowjackets, and David Cogan scored five times and drew two assists in the win at home against L'-Anse Creuse, Paul and Brian Cushing also scored in the L'-Anse Creuse match. South finished the regular season ranked No. 5 in the Class A polls with a 7-5 record.

ULS sports

Knights get stung

For the second year in a row, Detroit Country Day School defeated the University Liggett School boys' tennis team in the Class C-D regional tennis tournament.

DCDS beat ULS, 18-17, in the May 17-18 event. Royal Oak Shrine (6 points), Bishop Gallagher (4) and Bishop Borgess (3) rounded out the field.

Regional champs for ULS were Cheo Ramsey (No. 2 singles), Andy Loredo (No. 4 singles) and Jason Go and Omar Sawaf (No. 1 doubles).

"Three weeks ago, we defeated Country Day, 5-2, in a dual meet," said ULS coach Bob Wood. "This loss really hurts. They reversed three matches that we had won in straight sets. I can't explain it, but let's give DCDS credit, they did the job and we didn't.

"However, we do have one more chance and maybe 1991 will be like 1990, when we lost the battle and won the war."

DCDS won the regionals last year, but lost to ULS in the state finals.

Zero is becoming a popular number for Coach David Backhurst's soccer team.

The Lady Knights continued to put together a string of shutouts. The squad went the first 426 minutes of the season without giving up a goal. Five games ago, after the streak was broken, the girls began a new string of consecutive shutout minutes and after last week's action that total is up to 317 minutes

On May 13, the Knights shutout Warren Mott, 2-0, on goals by Beth Weyling and Lauren Gargaro. Beth Mozena got the win in goal.

ULS took on Mount Clemens Lutheran North, a team that had lost only once previously, and posted a 1-0 win. ULS' Beth Paul scored on a penalty shot for the game's only goal. The win ran the Knights' record to 9-2-3, good for fifth in the Class B-C-D polls.

In the previous week's play, ULS topped Clawson, 4-0; beat Fitzgerald, 5-0, and tied Royal Oak Kimball, 0-0.

Against Clawson, ULS got two goals from Monica Paul and one each from Lauren Gargaro and Anne Cavanaugh.

At home against Fitzgerald, ULS took a 2-0 lead on goals by Barbarose Guastello and Gargaro, and padded the lead in the second half on goals by Liz Eldridge, Weyhing and Cavanaugh.

"I have never had a team allow just seven goals in a season or record 12 shutouts in 14 games," said Backhurst. "The credit must go to the determined play of defenders Katie Tompkins, Rachel Robichaud, Emily Wardwell and Monica Paul, and goalkeepers Weyhing and Beth Mozena."

Track

The ULS boys' track team was led in the regional meet May 17 by Jonah Smith and Jon Sieber. The girls were paced by Jennifer Miller and Natasha Levy.

Smith placed second in the 300 low hurdles (42.3), was third in the long jump and ran a leg of the sixth-place 800 relay team with Aaron Lewis, Mike Fox and Richard Berri.

Lewis ran a personal-best (23.2) in the 200-meter semifinals, but finished sixth in the finals (23.6). Abimbola Afariogun threw the shot 45 feet, 1 inch for third place. Sieber won the 3,200 run in 10:16. Both Sieber and Smith will run in the state meet June

Miller and Levy will also be there. Levy finished fourth in the 100 dash, but her time of 12.90 advanced her to the state finals. Teamed with Ify Obianwu, Natalie Hubbard and Angela Walker, Levy also led the 800 relay team to a sixthplace finish. Obianwu also took sixth in the 200 dash (27.9).

Miller's time of 12:10 provided a 25-second margin of victory in the 3,200 run. She also ran to her third straight regional title in the 1.600.

Baseball

Complete games by the pitching staff and outstanding hitting have highlighted recent play by the Knights.

ULS played once last week, a May 18 doubleheader with Warren Bethesda. ULS swept both games, 15-5, 11-0.

Junior Andy VanDeweghe coasted to an easy win in the opener, shortened to five innings because of the mercy rule. VanDeweghe's effort was the sixth straight complete game by ULS pitchers.

The 19-hit attack included a two-run homer by David Martin, giving the Knights the lead in the first inning. Third-baseman Fran Coughlin had two hits in a nine-run second. Duncan McMillan laced two dou-

Seniors Scott Collins and Tom Gauerke ruled the Macomb Area Conference White Division all season long, so it's no wonder they led their team to the conference dual-meet track title.

Collins and Gauerke helped North win all the long-distance races this season, and combined to win at Fraser in the 1,600 and 3,200. The 80-52 victory at Fraser gave the Norsmen and Coach Pat Wilson an unbeaten (8-0) season.

"Our strength has been in areas that other teams can't offset," said Wilson. "We have more depth in our sprints and distance races, and the other key has been getting those second- and third-place points.

"We felt we were the team everyone would have to beat because we had the most people returning, and we proved that we were stronger.'

Thanks to the fleet-footedness of hurdlers Dave Vier and Hayko Ekmekjian, who swept every hurdle event. Vier had his best day in winning the intermediate and high hurdles at the Sterling Heights Invitational May 4.

Jarod Kolleth was North's top pole-vaulter.

On May 18 at North in the regional meet, Collins again led the Norsemen to a sixth-place team finish behind first-place Port Huron Northern. North had 43.5 points and Northern Soccer won it with 144 points.

Collins qualified for the state meet June 1 after placing second in the 1,600 run (4:34.3) and the 3,200 run (10:04.5). He also ran a leg on the secondplace 3,200 relay team of Reeve Brandon, Doug Brown and

Girls' track

Katie Loeher and Linda Krieg will be the only two Lady Norsemen at the state meet June 1.

Krieg qualified for the state competition after winning the discus at the regional tournament May 18. Her toss was 103 feet 6 inches.

Loeher won the 800-meter run (2:26.1) and will also go to the state meet.

Senior Noelle Cormier took fifth in both the 100 and 200 dashes in times of 13.6 and 28.3. respectively. Krieg later placed sixth in the shot put (30 feet 3 1/2 inches).

Earlier in the week, North pounded Fraser, 81-47, to finish its dual meet season on a high Krieg won the shot put (31-6) and discus (101 feet), and Anne Maliszewski won the long jump (14-11). Anne Scallen won the 400 run (63.6) and the team won three of four relays.

Coach Guido Regelbrugge's team shutout Lake Shore 4-0 May 15 behind two goals from Felicia Paluzzi. Courtney Mack and Gretchen Sazama sealed the win with single goals.

On May 13, North trounced Roseville, 11-1, as Paluzzi netted seven goals. Sazama added to the destruction with two goals and Mack and Amy Shepley had one apiece.

North, winners of the MAC White Division, finished the season 12-1-1 overall.

Softball

The Lady Norsemen went two for three last week, smashing Roseville, 9-0, and Anchor Bay, 10-0, but losing 2-1 to L'-Anse Creuse North.

North cruised past Roseville on Melissa Drouillard's threehitter.

Alan Hanson's two-run double in the fifth inning and Erica Barr's three hits led North over Anchor Bay, a game highlighted by the no-hit pitching performance of Droiullard.

Baseball

Marc Adams tossed a no-hitter and Steve Craparotta tanked his ninth home run of the season as North beat L'-Anse Creuse North, 3-0.

Pointe's Trial Gardens planted; tradition goes back 39 years

This has been a big week for the Grosse Pointe Garden Center. With the help of 11 garden clubs and the cooperation of the weather, the Trial Gardens on the lake side of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial have been planted for another year - as they have been every May since 1952.

Each plot in the formal circle is the responsibility of a garden club which plants it and maintains it throughout the summer with the assitance of a professional gardener. The center plots are maintained by the Grosse Pointe Branch of the American Herb Society.

Participating garden clubs are the Junior League Gardeners, the Grosse Pointe Shores Garden Club, the Grand Marais Garden Club, the Garden Club of Michigan, the Grosse Pointe Garden Club, Trowel

Vegetables can be ornamental Vegetables are often banished to the garden patch in the back yard, but many have a lot to offer as ornamental plants. In fact, some varieties are strictly for looking at.

Tom Stebbins, Michigan

State University master gardener specialist, suggests that gardeners take advantage of the ornamental traits of many vegetable crops and incorporate them into flower beds, borders and other landscape features.

Strictly ornamental varieties of flowering cabbage and kale, with their leaves tinged with red, pink, purple and white, can be a colorful and unusual addition to a bed of annual flowers, he suggests. An asparagus planting, with its lacy green fronds in the summer and golden yellow fall color, can be the tall back row in a bed of perennials or mixed perennials and annuals.

Eggplant and pepper plants have attractive foliage and colorful fruits that add to the appeal of a flower bed or container garden.

Peppers, whether hot or sweet, strictly ornamental or utterly edible, produce fruits in a wide range of shapes and colors. The creamy whites, yellows and reds of mature fruits contrast nicely with dark green foliage.

Like eggplants and cherry tomatoes, peppers are wellsuited to container culture, so even apartment dwellers and others with little or no room for gardening can enjoy raising

If you have a spot where a flowering climbing vine would fit, try planting scarlet runner pole beans instead of morning glories. The beans are much easier to germinate, Stebbins points out, and the vines grow quickly and soon become covereed with red blossoms and green bean pods. If your preference runs to purple, consider planting podded snap beans or purple cabbage.

Chives and other herbs make a fragrant and flavorful addition to the flower garden. Leaf lettuce makes a good early border while you wait for the last frost to permit the planting of more tender species.

and Error Garden Club, Grosse Pointe Farm and Garden Club, Windmill Pointe Garden Club, the Garden Society, the Little Garden Club and the Village Garden Club.

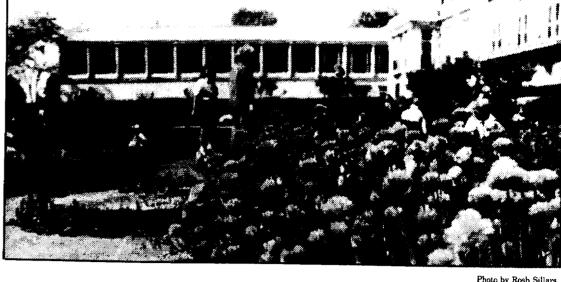

Begun in 1952 by the Grosse Pointe Garden Center, the Trial Gardens were created by Eleanor Roche, a noted landscape architect. The original wheel design has been expanded to include the adjacent hillside garden, the perennial garden, and many flowering trees and shrubs nearby.

From the beginning, garden clubs throughout the Grosse Pointes have been involved in the planting.

In the center of the wheel of garden plots is one of Grosse Pointe's most historic landmarks, the original millstone from the 18th century gristmill which was located in what is now Windmill Pointe, and which gives that area its name.

The earliest records show that the mill was built by one of the first settlers in the region and was used by both farmers and Indians living on both sides of the river who brought their grain to be ground. The mill was erected about 1750 and was built of

Many legends grew up over the years about the mill. At various times it was deserted and believed to be haunted, and many Indians considered it sacred ground haunted by the massacre on that site. The family which operated the mill in the early days pushed the millstone into the lake during the War of 1812 to prevent the British from using it when they attacked Detroit.

The family's descendants still live in Grosse Pointe. The stone was recovered from the water after the war and purchased by the Lauhoff family. It was presented to the Grosse Pointe War Memorial by George Lauhoff in 1952, and placed as the hub of the wheel gardens. The last family to own and operate the mill was the

Every year, in April, a meeting is held at the Garden Center to which all the garden clubs send representatives. Plots are assigned and an overall theme is chosen so that the plantings in the separate plots will be harmonious. This year's theme is "God Bless America -Red. White and Blue.'

The gardens were called "trial" because, particularly in the early days, only new varieties and species of plants were used. Now this has been somewhat modified, and the gardens use both new and old varieties in innovative ways.

All summer long, until the last chrysanthemums in early November, the gardens are visited by thousands of people. They are frequently the scene of weddings, receptions and

Other horticultural organizations in Grosse Pointe are enjoying this burgeoning time of year. The Grosse Pointe Rose Society is looking ahead to June, the "month of Roses." when a wonderful show will be held at the Neighborhood Club.

The dates will be June 14 and 15 and the show will stress arrangements of roses in several classifications. At last year's Rose Show there were 63 entries in this group alone, although it is expected that there will be hundreds of single blooms as well.

Forrest Geary is president of the Rose Society. General chairman for the Rose Show is Debby Leslie; Ellen Quinlan is chairman of arrangements.

Consider mortgage options before you buy

Which would be best for you? A 10.5 percent fixed-rate mortgage with a 15-year term and 2-1/2 points or a 9 percent adjustable-rate mortgage (ARM) with 2 points and a 2 percent a year rate cap? Or how about a seven-year extendable balloon mortgage at 10 percent with guaranteed refinancing?

If you don't have the slightest idea, take heart. The Michigan Association of CPAs has provided this brief guide into mortgage options.

Fixed-rate mortgages

A fixed-rate mortgage is a long-term (15 to 30 years) mortgage with an interest rate that remains stable for the life of the loan. With a fixed-rate mortgage, you know in advance how much your monthly mortgage payment for principal and interest will be for the life of the loan. However, this peace of mind comes with a price tag. Fixed-rate mortgages usually have a higher interest rate and monthly payment than adjustable rate mortgages.

If you plan to stay in your home for many years and want to lock in a favorable rate, a conventional fixed-rate mortgage is usually a wise choice. What's more, you always have the option of refinancing the mortgage if interest rates drop significantly.

Adjustable-rate mortgages An ARM is a loan with an interest rate that increases or decreases at specified intervals. Interest-rate changes are generally tied to the rate on treasury securities or some other cost-of-

Most ARMs come with an interest rate cap that limits inter-funds index.

est increases to no more than 2 percentage points a year or six points over the life of a mort-

Since ARMs present a lower risk to lenders, banks are willing to offer these loans at a lower interest rate than fixed mortgages. This means you may be able to qualify for a larger loan.

But remember that your interest rate - and monthly payment - will change over the term of the loan. In fact, at the first adjustment date, your interest rate and monthly payment will usually move up to the non-discounted level.

Before you select an ARM, you need to weigh a number of factors: How much you can afford to pay each month; what your future earning prospects are; how long you plan to stay in your home; how you feel about fluctuating payments; and where you think interest rates are headed.

The case for ARMs is strongest if you plan to remain in your home for a relatively short period, since a lower initial rate usually saves money over the short term. ARMs are best suited to home buyers who can afford the risks that come with an adjustable interest rate and for borrowers whose income is likely to keep pace with infla-

If your only decision was whether to choose a fixed or adjustable mortgage, selecting a mortgage would be a lot simpler process than it is. Here's a quick run-down of some of the other options you may encoun-

Other mortgage options Fifteen-year loan. To dramatically reduce the amount of interest you pay over the life of a mortgage and to build equity rapidly, consider a 15-year loan. Monthly payments are roughly 20 percent higher than those on a 30-year mortgage, with more of each payment going toward the principal. A 15-year loan may also carry a slightly lower interest rate than a 30-year loan, but you will need greater income to qualify. Of course, if a traditional 30year mortgage does not contain a repayment penalty, you can basically reap the same benefits by making extra payments toward the principal. Just add the amount you wish to apply toward the principal to your regular payment, and add a note to the lender stating your intention

Bi-weekly mortgage. This type of mortgage is similar to the standard 30-year fixed-rate mortgage, except that the lender requires a payment every two weeks. For example, instead of making a $1,000 payment each month, you make a $500 payment every two weeks. When you pay your mortgage biweekly, you make the equivalent of an extra month's payment each year. Surprisingly, that extra payment means you can pay off your loan in 21 years instead of 30 years.

Seven-year extendable balloon mortgage. Balloon mortgages have a series of equal monthly payments and a large final payment. The interest rate is set lower than a conventional 30-year mortgage. When the mortgage comes due in seven years, you can pay it off, or extend its term for 23 years at the market rate, or refinance with another bank. These balloons have no rate caps so if interest rates soar in seven years, so will your monthly costs if you don't pay off the loan. This loan is best suited for buyers who expect to move before the balloon payment is due or for those who expect to collect a large lump-sum retirement benefit in time to pay off the loan. In general, these types of mortgages are most common with buyers of commercial properties, such as shopping malls.

Graduated payment mortgages. These mortgages are designed for buyers who cannot afford a conventional or adjustable rate mortgage, but who expect to be able to make larger monthly payments in the future. During the early years, payments are relatively low. Later payments are structured to rise over a set period, say five or 10 years and then remain constant for the duration of the loan. The principal balance grows during the early years of the loan resulting in negative amortization. Negative amortization means you actually owe the lender more than you originally borrowed.

Convertible ARMs. These adjustable-rate mortgages can be converted to a fixed-rate mortgage during a specified period. These loans combine the advantages of adjustable rate mortgages with the opportunity to convert to a fixed rate if interest rates drop. Normally, convertible ARMs carry higher initial rates and conversion conditions must be met to qual-

CPAs point out that the right mortgage for you depends on your personal circumstances. But with the many variations that are available today, most lenders can help you tailor a mortgage to fit your needs.

ay is a busy month for gardeners; check it out

For much of Michigan, May begins the warm weather gardening season. Extension specialists at Michigan State University suggest the following activities are timely this month:

- If it's easier to take care of your house plants outdoors during the summer, you can move them outside anytime after all danger of frost is past. Place them in a lightly shaded spot where they'll be protected against the wind. Plants tend to dry out quickly outdoors, especially those in clay pots, so check soil moisture frequently and water as needed. Keep an eve out for insect and disease problems developing and control them as soon as you spot them.

- Set potted amryllis and Easter lillies outdoors or plant them in a shady spot in the garden. Remember to repot them and take them indoors again before the first frost in the fall.

Fertilize roses when they begin to grow. To protect roses against insects and diseases, establish a regular spray program.

 Fertilize spring-flowering bulbs before or during bloom. Remove flowers as they fade so plants funnel their efforts into building up the bulbs for next year's flowers rather than making seeds.

After the average date of the last frost in your locale, plant tuberous begonias, impatiens, caladiums and coleus in shaded areas, and geranium, alyssum, petunia, portulaca and other sun-loving annuals in sunny spots. Be prepared to cover them for a couple of weeks because there is still a good chance of late frost.

– Plant cannas, dahlias, gladioli and other summer flowering bulbs through the end of the month.

- Divide old chrysanthemums and plant new ones. Encourage plants to send out side shoots by pinching about one-half inch off each growing tip.

— Plant seeds of cool-weather crops - beets, carrots, radishes, lettuce, spinach and onions for the second and third times. and thin initial plantings to the proper spacing. Protect root vegetables against root maggots by sprinkling diazinon in the planting furrow according to label directions.

Seven to 10 days before the average date of the last frost, plant snap beans and sweet corn. These crops are susceptible to frost damage, but they usually take at least a week to germinate and emerge from the soil. Be ready to cover them if frost threatens.

Set vegetable transplants outdoors during the day for 10 to 14 days before you intend to plant them. Choose a somewhat sheltered spot where they won't be exposed to a lot of direct sun so they can get used to outdoor conditions gradually.

- After the soil has warmed up and the danger of frost is past, plant seeds of cucumbers.

squash, pumpkins and melons, and set out tomato, eggplant and pepper plants. This is usually done about two weeks after the frost-free date.

- Transplant vegetables and flowers in the evening or on a cloudy day so they have a chance to get over transplant shock before they have to cope with direct sunlight. If the weather is hot and windy. plants may benefit from being shaded and protected against the wind for a few days. It's also a good idea to place cardboard cutworm collars around plants, particularly peppers, to keep cutworms from snipping them off at ground level.

 Remove the flowers from all strawberry plants planted this spring. Allowing them to bear fruit this year will drastically reduce yields in future years.

- About three weeks after flower petals fall, thin apples and peaches so fruits are eight inches apart. This will give you larger, better quality fruits.

 Remove unwanted sucker growth in raspberries when new shoots are about one foot

- Continue a regular disease and insect control program on fruit trees.

 In late May or early June, fertilize established bluegrass lawns with 1 to 1/2 pounds of actual nitrogen per 1,000 square feet. Applying nitrogen before mid-May can increase likelihood that susceptible bluegrass varieties will develop Patch disease. It also necessitates extra mowing.

- Water new or renovated lawns in dry weather to help young grass plants get well established before the heat of midsummer.

- Mow established lawns regularly so that no one mowing removes more than onethird of the length of the leaf blades. Set your mower to cut no shorter than 1-1/2 inches.

- Prune spring-flowering shrubs after they've finished blooming. Remove old, damaged, dead, weak or poorly placed branches, retaining the young, vigorous growth to bear

- When planting trees and shrubs, be sure to remove all non-biodegradable materials such as wire, plastic, burlap and plastic cords - from root balls and stems. If left on a plant, these materials will eventually girdle and kill it. Water thoroughly after planting every week to 10 days during dry weather.

- Check shade and ornamental trees for cankerworms. They are thin, green or brown caterpillars that move with a distinctive inch worm montion as they feed on tree leaves. In large numbers, they can be serious defoliators. When infestations are severe, the caterpillars dangle from the trees. suspended on fine silk threads. The recommended control is bacillus thruingiensis, a bacterial disease of caterpillars sold under several trade names. including Dipel and Thuricide.

- Inspect pine trees for sawfly larvae. These caterpillar look-alikes are the immature stage (larvae) of members of a non-stinging wasp family. Sawfly larvae often feed in large numbers. When disturbed, they raise their heads. Control them with Sevin or malathion.

PLEASE DON'T DELAY! SPAY or NEUTER YOUR PET TODAY!

An altered pet is a healthier and happier companion. Also, it spares you the grief and pain of having puppies and kittens destroyed when no homes can be found. Countless numbers of sweet, innocent little ones are euthanized every day in shelters across the country because a pet wasn't spayed or neutered. If we cut down on the numbers of unwanted litters being born, we will also cut down on the number of abandoned, lost and unwanted animals to destrov.

TATE RESOURCE

Welcome to the Real Estate Resource!

In an effort to make your search for that next house easier, the Grosse Pointe News is initiating a new page where you can find in a few minutes what the market is offering today, in the five Grosse Pointes, St. Clair Shores, Harper Woods, Detroit and other municipalities. This source will pinpoint what the up-todate price of a property is, what are its features and when it will be available for viewing.

Here's the opportunity you've been waiting for. It's your chance to advertise in the one resource that area buyers will be consulting when they're ready to take action. Along with your advertisement, readers will find informative articles on buying and selling real estate. Be a part of the Real Estate Resource page being featured weekly in the Grosse Pointe News

Ask the Experts

What is "earnest money"? "Earnest money" is the money you put down to secure your right to purchase the home at the agreed-upon terms. It tells the seller you are serious about your offer. Make sure your agreement says that this money will be returned to you in full if your offer is not accepted.

Why would I need to hire a lawyer to buy a house? For a fee of not much more than one percent of the price of the house, a lawyer can you give the peace of mind of knowing that every part of the purchase is legal and that the seller isn't pulling any punches. A lawyer will draw up the purchase agreement, arrange for a title search, execute the closing and record the deed of sale. He can also review the contract for sale. Hiring a lawyer is especially important for first-time home buyers.

Resale value is what a home might sell for at a later date. This could be higher or lower than the original purchase price. With a competitive market analysis provided by a Realtor®, you can determine the resale value. Factors determining resale value are interest rates, location, economy and condition of property.

Are there different kinds of adjustable-rate mortgages?

Yes. There are convertible and nonconvertible adjustable-rate mortgages (ARM). Convertible ARMs allow borrowers to switch from an adjustablerate to a fixed-rate mortgage. If the cost is the same, choose a convertible over a nonconvertible ARM. Costs such as conversion fees and interest rate formulas typically take effect if you convert. Do some research to see

How is resale value deter- which of the two ARMs is the best deal for you.

> What is the difference between a buyer's market and a seller's market?

In real estate, a buyer's market means there are more properties for sale than there are qualified purchasers. In this kind of market, the buyer can be very fussy and can negotiate with property sellers. Also, prices are usually stable and may even fall. On the other hand, a seller's market means there are more qualified buyers than there are properties available for sale. And in this market, the seller rules and can usually obtain close to the asking price.

If I assume a VA mortgage, will I have to fill out a loan application and be approved by the lender?

Not always, but usually the seller And sometimes the seller may plan to wants to be relieved of the liability on buy another home and doesn't want to the old VA mortgage if you default. remain liable for the VA mortgage.
