

Did they break Spring Break? Inquiring minds want to know

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

Promises, promises. Everyone makes them, but sometimes, we don't follow through.

Last month, the Substance Abuse Community Council (SAC) and the Children's Home of Detroit sponsored a "Spring Break Weekend" to promote substance abuse awareness in the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods. More than 1,700 local residents signed a pledge to be "alcohol free" April 26-28.

Did they live up to their pledge? Inquiring minds wanted to know, so the Grosse Pointe News called randomly selected participants to find out how they did.

"I think it was a very successful weekend for our family," said Donna Tuthill of Grosse Pointe Farms. She signed the pledge along with her husband, Bill, and their sons, Bill Jr., who is in the second grade, and Daniel and Thomas, who are in preschool.

"Obviously, the boys weren't going to drink anyway, but we had their names appear with ours as a show of support," Donna Tuthill said.

She said she also used the pledge as a chance to tell her boys that alcohol is bad.

Did the adults find themselves in a situation that weekend where they probably would have drunk alcohol, had they not signed the pledge?

"Oh yeah," she said. They didn't go to a party, but "it was a very pleasant weekend, and we have a boat. We could have easily made it through the weekend with a half a beer or more, but we didn't. We proved to ourselves that we could have fun without it."

Judith Engelbrecht, secretary of the publications department at University Liggett School, said she went to a wedding in Grand Rapids that weekend.

"I didn't drink, but I don't think anyone noticed," she said.

Why did she sign the pledge?

"I just thought it was a good thing to do, especially around prom time," she said. Marjorie Parsons, an English teacher and strategic planning facilitator at Grosse Pointe South High School, said she could go all year without having a drink and not notice.

She said she signed the pledge because "I think it's something we all should be doing, telling our children that drinking and having a good time do not have to mean the same thing."

Parsons attended a family gathering at a relative's house during Spring Break weekend.

"I didn't drink and I made it a point to tell everyone why I wasn't drinking," Parsons said. "I can't remember if anyone de-

Honoring their sacrifice

Residents from all of the Pointes, Harper Woods and St. Clair Shores came out to honor America's servicemen and servicewomen — past and present — at the ninth annual Memorial Day service that was held at the Veterans Memorial Parkway Circle of Honor in Grosse Pointe Woods on Monday. The service was sponsored by the Grosse Pointe Woods Beautification Advisory Commission and the city's historical commission. The wreath at

Pointes' senior, handicapped vans to be under new management

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

The non-profit van shuttle for seniors and the handicapped in the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods will be under new management this summer, offering improved service.

The 2-year-old Pointes Area Assisted Transportation Service, known as PAATS, will be administered by Sally Graham, director of the Harper Woods Connector program, effective July 1.

"She's basically doing the same thing PAATS is doing now," said Jeff Mueller, Park administrative assistant and member of the PAATS board, "and she's doing it admirably."

Currently, the van service is being operated by the Community Resource and Assistance Center in Detroit. On weekdays, the vans pick up seniors and the disabled at their doors and take them to their destinations, such as stores, doctors' offices, hospitals and downtown.

"We provide door-to-door service," Mueller said. "The driver will get out of the van and come to the door." And if necessary, a second person is sent along to help handicapped riders.

PAATS began in April 1989 with a donation of two vans by Independence for Life, a non-profit organization funded by Michigan National Bank. With state grants and funds and contributions by the five Pointes and Harper Woods, the service increased in ridership from 860 its first year to more than 4,000 a year now.

During the period Oct. 1, 1990, through March 31 of this year, ridership totaled about 2,200 passengers who logged 4,314 one-way trips. PAATS usage is recorded as one-way trips, but most riders use PAATS for round trips (two one-way record entries).

The breakdown during this period in one-way trips was Grosse Pointe City, 572; Farms, 760; Park, 684; Shores, 336; Woods, 1,026 and Harper Woods, 936.

"We've probably provided 10,000 rides since we started," Mueller said.

PAATS hoped to be partially funded by a $1 donation for each one-way trip — or $2 for a round trip. However, during the 12-month period ending Sept. 30, 1990, only $84 was donated by passengers.

The PAATS board is considering charging $1 or more per one-way ride to help subsidize the program, Mueller said.

The change in management, however, means the van service will be halted for two weeks next month while SMART mechanics prepare the vans. Service will not be offered after June 17 and will resume July 1.

The Harper Woods Connector service dispatcher will take PAATS calls. Mueller said riders will still be asked to make arrangements three days in advance, if possible. Service will continue to be offered weekdays from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Before July 1, PAATS users can call the new Harper Woods number, 343-2580, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. to schedule rides.

Mueller said Harper Woods' Connector mini-buses will augment PAATS vans and help provide better service. The Harper Woods Connector also serves Grosse Pointe Woods residents who live west of Mack between Moross and Vernier.

Mueller believes Harper Woods' administration of PAATS will make it less expensive and more efficient. PAATS will be billed quarterly by Harper Woods.

"We'll have a better handle on costs," he said.

State funds have been delinquent in coming, Mueller said. Right now, some $25,000 is

Harlan L. Hagman

By Ronald J. Bernas

For Grosse Pointe Park's Harlan L. Hagman, education is a journey, not a destination. At 79 his journey is still not over.

A writer and educator for his entire adult life, Hagman gave up educating when he retired from Wayne State University several years ago. But he is still writing, which he says is a way of educating himself.

"The fun thing about writing is that it's an intellectual exercise you can carry on forever," Hagman said. "Even when your body gets too old for physical exercise your mind still needs it."

So Hagman writes. He's written magazine and newspaper articles, textbooks, historical studies, one-act plays, short stories, poetry, and even encyclopedia and dictionary entries.

The subjects are as varied as the forms they take. He's writing a series of three small books on forgotten historical events; his plays run the full gamut of subjects and his textbooks focus on educational administration.

He's putting the finishing touches on a manuscript about the history of higher education. It's a study he's been working on for 10 years. And a biography of Washington Irving written by Hagman is being read by agents and publishers in the hopes it will be picked up.

Park recycling center to close; curbside pickup begins July 1

Assistant Editor

After a year and half of operation, the Grosse Pointe Park recycling center will close this week in anticipation of curbside pickup of recyclables to begin July 1.

The Park recycling center on Jefferson at Barrington opened in December 1989, but because the Park will join the other Pointes and Harper Woods in curbside recycling this summer, the center will close May 31.

Jeff Mueller, Park administrative assistant, said the bins will probably be kept at the recycling center until they are filled and hauled away. After that, chains will block the entrances so that residents do not mistakenly drop off recyclables. "They just have to hold on for four weeks," he said.

In July, the Park, City, Farms and Harper Woods will begin weekly curbside pickup of recyclables through Waste Management Inc. The Grosse Pointes Clinton Refuse Disposal Authority sought bids earlier this year, and Waste Management's bid was accepted by the four cities.

The Woods already has curbside recycling through Efficient Sanitation. The Shores will begin bi-weekly curbside pickup June 24 through Efficient Sanitation.

Mueller said residents can store their recyclables for the month until curbside collection begins.

During the week of June 24, residents in the four cities contracting with Waste Management will receive their recycling containers with instructions on what can be recycled and how the recyclables must be prepared.

Also, instructions will be included on which days the recyclables will be picked up. The curbside recyclable pickups have been scheduled by Waste Management to provide the most efficient routes. Recycling pickup may or may not coincide with regular rubbish pickup.

Roughly, the proposed routing for the Waste Management recyclable pickups is: Monday: Grosse Pointe Farms, north of Kercheval.

Tuesday: Grosse Pointe Farms, south of Kercheval and all of Grosse Pointe City.

Wednesday: Grosse Pointe Park, Wayburn to Three Mile and all residences south of Jefferson.

Thursday: Grosse Pointe Park, Three Mile to Cadieux, and Harper Woods, south of I-94.

Friday: Harper Woods, north of I-94.

Farms residents to pay more for services, but the increase is below rate of inflation

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe Farms council approved the city's 1991-92 budget and new tax and water rates last week.

The 1991-92 budget totals $8,070,600, and is 4.9 percent more than the previous year's budget. That's below the inflation rate, which is 5.4 percent.

John Lamerato, Farms controller, said that the $379,000 increase over the 1990-91 budget is due to wage contracts and the rising costs of the goods and services the city buys.

Included in the 1991-92 budget is $1,926,075 for police service, $1,843,590 for public works, $686,100 for general government and $390,924 for sewage.

Beginning July 1, Farms resident will pay about 4.9 percent more in city taxes, although the council rolled back the tax rate on May 20.

In 1990-91, the Farms levied a total of 10.75 mills for city services.

One mill equals $1 tax for every $1,000 of a home's state equalized valuation (SEV), which is supposed to be one-half of the home's market value.

Under the state Truth in Taxation law, the city had to roll back its millage to 9.92 mills for 1991-92. The law says that a city has to roll back its millage in proportion to the average increase in the city's SEV, and the 1991-92 SEVs in the Farms are 9 percent higher than the previous year's.

After rolling back the millage to 9.92 percent, the city was allowed to raise it up to 14.788 mills under the Headlee amendment — as long as the council held a public hearing on the matter.

The public hearing was held at the last council meeting. Afterward, the council set the 1991-92 millage rate at 10.35 mills. As a result, homeowners will pay about 4.9 percent more in city taxes in 1991-92 than they did the previous year, Lamerato said.

In fiscal year 1990-91, a Farms homeowner with a SEV of $100,000 paid $1,075 in city taxes. In 1991-92, with a new SEV of $109,000 and a rolled back millage rate of 9.92 mills, the resident would have paid $1,081.28. Now, with a SEV of $109,000 and a millage rate of 10.35 mills, he will pay $1,128.15.

The Farms council also raised the city's water rate and added a recycling charge to residents' water bills.

Since last July 1, the Farms' water rate has been $16 per 1,000 cubic feet. Starting this July 1, it will be $18.60 per 1,000 cubic feet.

Farms city clerk Richard G. Solak said the city has not received enough revenue under the 1990-91 rate to pay for the operating expenses of the water service.

"We set it at a lower rate than we should have last year because we hoped we would have a good consumer year. We thought people would use a lot of water, but it didn't turn out that way," Solak said.

So far this year, revenue from user charges is $100,000 short of meeting the water department's operating expenses, Solak said, and the year doesn't end until July 1.

With the new water rate, the city is trying to make up the deficit and ensure that the water department has enough money to operate in 1991-92, Solak said.

Residents will also see a $7.50 charge on their quarterly water bills for the city's recycling program, starting in July.

Under the program, which goes into effect July 1, residents will be expected to place their used newspapers, cans, and certain plastic and glass items in a provided container for pickup at their homes. The items will then be taken to a recycling plant.

The recycling program — including materials and labor — will cost the city approximately $117,000 in fiscal year 1991-92.

The city council considered adding a .25 mill levy to residents' property tax in order to pay for the program. However, that would have penalized residents with more expensive homes, who would have had to pay more for the recycling program than residents with less expensive homes.

Park man found shot to death near Gaylord

A 37-year-old Grosse Pointe Park man was shot to death near his Gaylord area cabin last week.

The body of Robert Kozlowski Jr. was found May 21 by Otsego County sheriff's deputies after someone called and expressed concern about the well being of Kozlowski, according to a story in the March 23 Gaylord Herald Times.

Deputies went to Kozlowski's cabin near Ranger Lake, seven miles southeast of Gaylord, and found his body. He had been shot several times.

The sheriff's department would not comment on the case except to issue a brief press release stating that Kozlowski was killed in an apparent homicide and that the case is under investigation.

The release stated that a preliminary autopsy the following day indicated Kozlowski died of multiple gunshot wounds, and that a more extensive medical examination is under way. The Michigan State Police and Grosse Pointe Park detectives are assisting in the investigation.

The Herald Times story said the preliminary autopsy indicated Kozlowski died within 48 hours of the discovery of his body. Kozlowski's wife went to Gaylord to identify the body.

Park detective Lt. David Hiller said Tuesday that no new information has been learned in the case.

Library faces hectic summer

The theme for the Grosse Pointe Public Library's summer reading clubs — Read on the Wild Side — may become the theme for the entire library system as the libraries struggle to coordinate several renovation projects this summer.

As soon as the new energy-efficient windows arrive from the factory, the Woods Branch will close temporarily for window replacement.

Central Library, which may have to house both the Central and Woods summer reading clubs, must also juggle asbestos removal, air conditioning replacement and internal space rearrangements.

"We are trying to make the best use of the space we have available at Central," said Charles Hanson, director. "Our goal is to avoid disrupting service whenever possible as we make some improvements to the facility. The changes will make it easier for staff to provide service, so we hope our patrons will bear with us."

Future improvements being considered include new carpeting at Central, additional on-line computers for public use, display shelving, another copier and a FAX machine for public use.

The Woods Branch of the Grosse Pointe Public Library will close for installation of energy-efficient windows during a two- to four-week period over the summer. The closing and reopening will be posted at all three libraries as soon as plans are finalized. Woods Branch library materials may be returned to Central Library or Park Branch. Robin Calles, above, shows one way to cope with closings and still enjoy summer reading.

Grosse Pointe Power Squadron urges boating safety

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

With the year's first boating holiday behind us and the most dangerous one coming up, the Grosse Pointe Power Squadron is urging boating safety.

"The No. 1 message is wear your life jackets," said Woods resident David Taylor, who is a lieutenant in the squadron and holds the rank of advanced pilot. The other message is that boating and drinking don't mix.

Eighty percent of drowning victims in 1989 were not wearing a life jacket — or PFDs (personal flotation devices), as they are known by experienced boaters and enforcement officers. The leading causes of boating fatalities are capsizes (37 percent), falls overboard (24 percent) and collisions (14 percent).

Because capsizes and falls overboard account for almost two-thirds of all fatalities, PFDs can greatly decrease the number of boating deaths, Taylor said.

Should boaters always wear life jackets? In rough weather, always, Taylor said.

"I think a prudent rule is that anytime you're under way and people go forward," he said, "you have them put on life jackets — in particular, kids."

Also, he said fishermen should always wear life jackets. He pointed out that fishing boats are usually small and those fishing like to stand when casting and move about the boat. Such activities aboard a small boat can easily result in falls overboard.

And because many times those fishing are dressed in heavy, warm clothing for early morning and night fishing, the chances of surviving long in the water by swimming are reduced.

In 1989, the most recent year for which statistics are available, there were 900 deaths resulting from 6,000 boating accidents nationwide. And with Michigan leading the nation in registered boaters, Taylor said boating safety cannot be overstated.

"People get a little bored when we go out promoting this every year," he said, "but it's something we have to bear in mind."

Concerning alcohol, Taylor said it is something boaters should avoid both before and during boating.

"The captain has to bear in mind his responsibility for the people onboard," he said.

Alcohol is a factor in half of all boating accidents. And alcohol appears to have greater effects on boaters, who are subject to the fatigue of being in the bright sun for hours, Taylor said.

The most dangerous times on the water, as expected, are holidays and weekends, and more accidents occur Saturday afternoons between 2:30 and 4:30 than at any other time.

With the most dangerous boating holiday — the Fourth of July — approaching, Taylor believes it is essential that boating safety be preached, taught and practiced. Also, next week — June 2 through June 8 — is National Boating Safety Week.

The theme this year is "Know Before You Go" — know to wear and have available PFDs for everyone, which is the law; know not to drink and pilot a boat, just as you wouldn't drink and get behind the wheel of a car.

Also, all boaters must know the Rules of the Road — an international set of boating traffic laws. Rules of the Road stipulate who has the right of way, what equipment to have aboard, speed limits and so on.

of the Road the same as any boat captain.

Getting educated is easy and, in most cases, free. The Grosse Pointe Power Squadron, with 400 members, offers free boating safety classes every September and January at Grosse Pointe North High School. Also, the Coast Guard Auxiliary, sheriff's departments and many other organizations offer boating courses. For information on classes, call 1-800-336-BOAT.

Schools prepare for tomorrow through strategic planning

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe Board of Education is expected to approve a long-range plan in June designed to turn out better prepared and more knowledgeable students next year and beyond.

The plan was devised after months of committee meetings

Mother duck, ducklings taken to city limits

A mother duck and her six ducklings were picked up for trespassing in Grosse Pointe Woods on Memorial Day.

At 5:29 p.m., police responded to a report of a duck and ducklings waddling eastbound in the street on Hunt Club near Jackson. With the help of Kate Loch, a veterinarian technician who lives on Hunt Club in Harper Woods, the ducks were rounded up and taken to Pier Park at the foot of Moross Road in the Farms.

The mother duck and her ducklings were released into the lake without incident.

Perhaps they were stragglers from the Memorial Day festivities.

Diabetes volunteers sought

The Diabetes Research Program at Harper Hospital and Wayne State University is seeking volunteers with insulin-dependent and non-insulin dependent diabetes mellitus for an 18-month study.

To participate, recruits must be between 18 and 65, have Type I (insulin-dependent) or Type II (non-insulin dependent) diabetes mellitus and be without other serious medical conditions.

Volunteers will receive up to 18 months of medical care, medical supplies associated with the study and nerve examinations to carefully monitor the condition of the nerves in the extremities, without charge.

The examinations will reflect the health of the nerves and will be the primary measure of whether the drug can prevent or treat this complication of diabetes.

Interested individuals should call Melissa Baker, R.N., clinical research coordinator, at 745-1783, 7 a.m. - 4 p.m.

and discussions not just about how well the schools are doing now, but where they want to be in five years.

In 1987 the school board formed a strategic planning team. Strategic planning — a management technique borrowed from the business world — was deemed necessary to keep the level of quality high in the Grosse Pointe schools.

A plan was adopted in July 1988, with the objectives of creating a staff development program, assessing the impact declining enrollment would have on high school curricula, creating a consistent method of staff recruitment, creating site budgeting and integrating technology into the K-12 curriculum.

The plan was updated every year, but this year, under the guidance of deputy superintendent Harrison Cass and strategic planning co-facilitator Marjorie Parsons, an entirely new plan has been drawn up.

The board feels so strongly about the plan that they urged Superintendent Ed Shine to place it on the June 10 agenda so implementation can begin as soon as possible.

"Strategic planning tries to predict the future," Parsons said. "First we establish a vision of where we think we ought to be in five years, then go back and plan the steps that will take us there."

The first thing the committee — composed of school administrators, teachers, students, community members and parents — was charged with was creating a mission statement for the schools.

The committee came up with the following: "The mission of the Grosse Pointe Public Schools, in partnership with parents and community, is to ensure that all students acquire and use knowledge, skills, and behaviors necessary to meet the challenges of today and tomorrow."

"That's a pretty high order," Parsons said. "We said that we must ensure all students are educated when they leave us. All students."

"When students leave the Grosse Pointe schools they're in pretty good shape, but if you look at the world, you'll see the demands that will be placed on our graduates are changing. We live in an information-based society; students are going to need to know how to use technology and higher-level thinking skills in addition to the math and the science we teach them today."

But in order to do that, the committee first needs to determine what the characteristics of a well-educated person are. When that decision is made and approved by the board, the curriculum and teaching methods will be examined and adjusted to turn out students who fit the definition.

That is the first objective of the proposed strategic plan: "Conduct a periodic evaluation of learning results for all students in all programs in our schools."

Another committee will be formed to determine the best way to test whether graduates of the Grosse Pointe schools and the programming offered those students support the mission.

The second objective of the proposed strategic plan involves technology: "Develop a comprehensive instructional, staff development, and purchasing plan that ensures the use of electronic tools for teaching and learning in all our schools."

The long-range plan is expected to take four years to complete. But implementation of several steps of the plan is expected to begin as soon as the board approves it.

Implementation will begin with an inventory of the technology in each of the schools, setting goals for staff regarding use of that technology, formation of a committee to determine the characteristics of well-educated people, creating a community awareness program to let the public know what the schools are doing, and stepping up staff development activities relating to the plan's two objectives. And then the real work begins.

"We won't see a final product at the end of the year," Cass said. "It is a plan of such challenge and magnitude that we can't possibly expect that."

Accordingly, the planning committee asked the board for approval of only the first year's action plans.

"We wanted to be able to examine the yarn before we knit the whole sweater," Parsons said. "We have to be sure we're heading in the right direction before we take any major steps."

At the moment, the strategic plan will not cost any money since it's in the study and planning stages. The costs will come later, a few years into the plan. What those costs will be is impossible to determine at this point.

"This is the most comprehensive and well thought-out plan I've ever seen presented to this board," said board president Carl Anderson.

Students take part in government

Grosse Pointe Park students were recognized recently for their participation in law and government days.

On May 10, Park high school students sat in with city council members during the council's regular meeting. During the day, the students held council briefings and one student assisted the chief of detectives.

Filling the roles of city officials were Eric Lindower (ULS) for Mayor Pro Tem Vernon Ausherman, Jenny Hughes (Regina) for Councilman David Gaskin, Matt Baka (South) for Councilman James Robson, C.T. Marx (ULS) for Councilwoman Barbara Miller, Brandon Lulis (South) for Councilman Daniel Clark and Phil Anglewicz (South) for Councilwoman Valerie Moran.

Taking the role of chief of detectives Lt. David Hiller was Ryan Robson.

At the regular council meeting during Day in Government, the council and mayor thanked the students for their interest and participation in city government.

Law Day was May 1, and Park Municipal Judge Kirsten Frank and her fellow Law Day committee members had events for students of all ages.

Winners of the T-shirt design contest were John Alexander, grades K-1; Christine Slone, grades 2-3; and Megan Ledyard, grades 4-5. The T-shirts were donated by Steve Mehan.

Winners of the "Freedom Has a Name - the Bill of Rights" contest were Pierce Middle School students Bronwen Hupp, sixth grade; Nicole Polyzois, seventh grade; and Joseph Champine, eighth grade.

The T-shirt and essay contests winners were chosen by the Grosse Pointe Lawyers Auxiliary.

Also on Law Day, Grosse Pointe South High School students held a mock trial based on an authentic drunk driving case. Park resident and lawyer Dean Valente assisted in the trial.

Recognized for their assistance in putting Day in Government and Law Day together were Valente, Trombly Elementary School third-grade teacher Elsie Onychuk and Colleen Champine.

The Park Law Day Committee members were Councilman James Robson, Councilwoman Barbara Miller, Linda Casazza, Frank, Court Administrator Penny Caretti and Champine.

City adopts 1991-92 budget

The Grosse Pointe City Council last week approved its 1991-92 budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The $4.49 million budget is up 6.5 percent from the current year. The budget is balanced by a total tax rate of 12.96 mills (or $12.96 per $1,000 state equalized valuation).

The new tax rate is less than the 13.36 mills levied for the current budget year. However, due to a 10.8 percent increase in the city's SEV, the lower tax rate will generate $3.1 million - 7.9 percent more than the current tax rate.

A public hearing on the budget was held May 13.

School district voters facing hard choices

Voters in the Grosse Pointe School District will face difficult and unusual tasks on June 10 when they select three new school board members from nine candidates.

Voters will face difficult choices because of the number and variety of backgrounds of the candidates, most of them seeking public office for the first time. But it will be an unusual election because of the lack of a single incumbent running for reelection in a district that has prized continuity.

Because of the number of candidates in the field, the News this year is making its endorsements on the basis of the responses to a News questionnaire and its own research without the personal interviews that we have conducted in recent years.

All but one of the nine official candidates has or has had children in the Grosse Pointe public schools. Their activities on behalf of the school system have usually reflected their interests as concerned parents, taxpayers and citizens involved in the problems of education.

In answering our questionnaire, most of the candidates opposed any proposed district income tax but stressed the importance of careful budgeting of district spending, evaluating existing programs for cost effectiveness, continued local control of the school system and meeting the needs of individual students.

In explaining our endorsements below, we cite some of the reasons for our choices but we urge everyone to read the complete responses of the candidates which appear in the news columns of this issue of the News.

For the one-year term, the News feels that Frank Sladen Jr. of the Park, a retired headmaster of Liggett School and the former owner of the Book Shelf in the Farms, would make an excellent board member. A former teacher and school administrator, he has been active in school board campaigns as well as school and library millage drives.

As a retired businessman, he also is aware of the need for an efficient administration. Because of the current revenue problems, he would put proposed new programs on hold and maintain present ones at their current level. He also sees possibilities for more volunteer help from senior citizens and students and proposes more study to determine additional steps to offset possible revenue losses.

For one of the two four-year terms, Linda Schneider of Grosse Pointe Woods, who ran unsuccessfully for the board last year, appears to be highly qualified in view of her years of service to the school system. A lifelong Pointe resident who spent 11 years at GM, she is a past president of both the Monteith PTO and the local PTO Council and, like Sladen, has been active in school and library millage campaigns.

In light of the current recession, she recommends the schools evaluate programs for effectiveness and be given priority ratings. She believes more community awareness of the issues, including the importance of local control of tax dollars, is essential. And she emphasizes that the needs of individual students must be met.

For the second four-year term, the News believes that the best choice would be between Julie L. Bourke of the Farms and Beverly Hall Burns of the City. Both have been active in school affairs, Ms. Bourke through the South High Mothers' Club and other school organizations and Ms. Burns through work on Trombley and Richard schools' site-based budgeting and the Richard PTO board. Ms. Bourke, an employee of Henry Ford Hospital and a former school system employee, believes the board should continue its present policy of evaluating its existing programs for cost effectiveness and overall benefits, especially in view of the economic downturn. She would favor increased use of volunteers and retirees and greater utilization of computers and other high tech equipment to assist teachers and improve the schools' efficiency.

As a senior partner in a downtown law firm, Ms. Burns would put her professional experience in education law to good use in analyzing legislation affecting the local system. She promises to press the state to avoid further revenue cuts and the school board to balance the district's needs and wants against the dollars available.

We were also impressed by her desire to seek open, regular communication with the people and exercise both sensitivity and decisiveness in the decision-making process. Like several other candidates, she also stressed the importance of continued local control over the Pointe schools.

As we've said, our endorsements are based on the candidates' responses and other information we've collected. They are intended to reflect an informed opinion and are not an attempt to dictate to anyone. At the same time, we urge prospective voters to get as much information about the candidates as they can obtain before they go to the polls.

After all, an informed electorate is one of democracy's greatest protectors, especially at election time.

Media should listen to voters

As the 1992 presidential campaign gets under way, the U.S. press ought to pay serious attention to a recommendation by David Broder, one of the best reporters in the business.

Broder, a syndicated columnist for the Washington Post, proposes that in covering the presidential campaign, the news media spend more time interviewing the voters and listening to them to find out what their political agendas really are.

Rather than searching for clues as to the political views of the prospective candidates for the Democratic nomination in 1992, Broder suggests that reporters should ask voters such questions as the following:

"How do you feel about how things are going in this community and in this country? What are your concerns? What are the things you'd like to hear the candidates talking about when they come seeking your support?"

Broder contends that if the news media did enough of that kind of reporting, "we would have clearly in our heads what the voters' concerns are," and, he adds, "it might be possible to let their agenda drive our agenda for covering the campaign."

In a recent talk, Broder speculated, on the basis of his own polling experience, that the Persian Gulf war and its aftermath would be of major concern in the 1992 presidential campaign.

But he thinks the public also wants to hear more about "very down-home concerns," such as health care and its cost; jobs and homes and the daily travail of traveling between them; and the high price of housing where the jobs are.

In Broder's view, the public agenda also includes such important matters as the training and education children are getting in the public schools and such problems as crime, drugs, the environment and the other things that determine how we feel about the neighborhoods in which we live.

To make his plan work, Broder proposed that the media take the people's questions and their concerns to the candidates at news conferences and ask them what they're going to do about them — and keep on asking the questions until the candidates offer some answers — or make it clear they don't have any answers.

If such a program were pursued by the news media, the results could change U.S. politics. The people might be convinced that politics and the press are both relevant to their own lives. They might even become more involved in politics themselves and take over from the insiders who now often disregard the people's own agenda in selling political candidates.

To the Editor:
Congratulations are in order — in the May 16 Grosse Pointe News you excelled yourselves in journalistic thoroughness.

They say a picture is worth a thousand words, but we all know that is usually not enough and a photo caption is in order. I felt positively enlightened by your captions for the photos on page one and was cheered to know I was, as I suspected, indeed looking at a yellow-flowered hedge in the left-hand picture and a pink-budded tree in the right-hand picture.

This attention to detail betters your notice a few weeks ago (perhaps I should be specific here and say in your May 2 edition) noting that the Grosse Pointe War Memorial was looking for volunteers. What the volunteers were supposed to do was left to our imagination.

As a relative newcomer to the area perhaps this goes without saying, but it is my experience that newspapers should give thorough background on even the most familiar events. Familiarity is no excuse for sloppy journalism.

Spring Break

To the Editor:
On behalf of the directors of the Substance Abuse Community Council, I would like to thank you and Mr. Edgar for your willingness to participate with us, the Children's Home of Detroit and the Grosse Pointe Public Schools in the Spring Break weekend. There is no question that the enormous coverage we received from the Grosse Pointe News assisted our effort in gaining community awareness for this project.

Participation for this second year of Spring Break, a no-use weekend, was doubled from the first effort. That was determined by the number of people willing to sign the Spring Break reservation form. We are now in the process of evaluating the weekend. We invite comments and reactions be directed to SAC<sup>2</sup>, P.O. Box 36150, Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich. 48236. We would especially like to hear about experiences your readers might be willing to share about that weekend.

Again, it is with thanks for the two-page coverage, the editorial of support, the Pointer of Interest column, the Pastor's Corner, and the repeated printing of the Spring Break logo in your newspaper. Perhaps Spring Break will become a yearly spring event.

Engler battles a new enemy

In his continuing battle to shift welfare and other state money to fund his own priorities, Gov. John Engler is learning he has to fight the state courts as well as House Democrats.

He lost two important cases in the courts last week although the administration is appealing both decisions.

He won the first round in his widely publicized effort to scrap the state's General Assistance program when an Ingham County Circuit judge ruled against a Democratic appeal. But the state Court of Appeals then blocked the proposed June 1 cutoff of such benefits by granting an indefinite stay.

Engler lost a second decision to another Ingham County Circuit judge who ordered the administration to resume paying welfare recipients' delinquent water bills.

Whatever the disposition of the cases, court actions will not bring any more funds into the state coffers. Instead, the courts will either affirm or deny the governor's right to make fund transfers without the approval of the state Administrative Board.

That question involves the separation of powers principle. The governor's contention that the Administrative Board has the power to shift funds is contested by the Democrats who make the reasonable claim that such an action is a legislative function, not an administrative responsibility. The state Supreme Court eventually will decide the question.

In the long run, the shifts proposed by the governor would have devastating effects on the 107,000 people now receiving General Assistance and the hundreds more who would be unable to maintain water service without state help.

True, both of the proposed cutbacks would shift funds to meet other high-priority welfare needs that the governor prefers to finance but that explanation doesn't do much for the recipients in these two programs who would be deprived of their state support.

Nor does it do much for the county social service directors who under any circumstances will be faced with the task of meeting the needs of thousands of welfare clients at a time when few jobs are available, private welfare agencies are already overburdened and relatives often lack financial resources to offer much help.

To us, these unpleasant facts add up to a depression, not just a recession, regardless of how the proposed shifts emerge from the pending appeals.

Grin and bear it

A friend of mine is getting orthodontic braces, and she asked me — a tin-grin veteran — what they will be like. "Sheer, utter hell," was the first thing that popped out of my mouth. "No, just kidding," I said, after seeing the fear rush into her eyes. I was fitted with braces when I was in college, and actually, it wasn't that bad. For one thing, I was lucky. I only had to wear them a year and a half. One of my friends had to wear them for five years. And it wasn't very painful. It pinched when my orthodontist put them on, and after he tightened them, my jaw would sometimes be sore for a half a day or so, but other than that, it was all right. No, the worst part about braces was the aesthetics. Eating in public was embarrassing. It's hard to have fun on a date when you're worried salad will get caught on the braces on your front teeth, and — horrors — that rubberbands will fly out of your mouth and hit your date. That happened to my cousin, Rick, who got braces when he was about 30. He was eating dinner at a fancy restaurant when one of his rubberbands flew out and struck his date on the cheek. "Luckily, she just laughed it off," he said. She must have, because they got married recently. Then there's talking. In addition to braces, I had to wear a plastic appliance on the roof of my mouth, which caused me to sound like Elmer Fudd. It wouldn't have been so bad had I worked at a company without C's or S's in its name, and didn't have to answer the phone. But I worked at Thearth Cuthomer Convenient Thenter (Sears Customer Convenience Center).

I Say

tion to braces, I had to wear a plastic appliance on the roof of my mouth, which caused me to sound like Elmer Fudd. It wouldn't have been so bad had I worked at a company without C's or S's in its name, and didn't have to answer the phone. But I worked at Thearth Cuthomer Convenient Thenter (Sears Customer Convenience Center).

Rick, who also wore an appliance, had the same problem. "Dyan (his wife) would always make fun of me when we'd go to a fast food place, and I'd order a theethburger (cheeseburger)," he said. At least he could eat. For the first few days after getting the bands and wires put on my teeth, I couldn't eat anything solid. It felt like I had weights on my teeth, and it was difficult to chew. When I could chew again, there were some things I couldn't eat because it would hurt the braces. Goodbye corn on the cob, uncut apples, popcorn and tortilla chips. Gum and cola were also no-no's. Cola supposedly stains your teeth, so that people can see you wore braces even after you get them off. And carbonated beverages can cause the cement under your braces to loosen. I found that out the hard way, much to my orthodontists' dismay. But braces are nice as a conversation piece. People who've never had them are curious about what they're like, and people who have had them can commiserate with you. And I lost weight when I had braces, because of all the things I couldn't eat anymore. (Of course, I gained it all back by pigging out after I got them off.) The best part about braces is the way your smile looks after they're removed. I used to have fangs in front of my bottom row of teeth (my orthodontist said they grew there because my mouth was too small) and now they're gone. But I still don't have an Omond family smile. My orthodontist said my teeth would move back to their original position if I didn't wear my retainer for a year. I didn't believe him, and they did. So Maggie, my advice to you is stay away from C's and S's, only date guys who have a sense of humor and appreciate your mettle, and please, wear your retainer. When your braces come off, the popcorn and Dorito fest is on me.

Brass on the Plaza

The Music on the Plaza series will get off to a brassy start this year. The Grosse Pointe North/South High School Jazz Band, under the direction of Ralph Miller, will present a free outdoor concert at 7 p.m. on Thursday, June 6, at the Plaza (the corner of Kercheval and St. Clair Avenue in the Village). The concert is sponsored by TCBY. The Music on the Plaza series of seven summertime concerts will be presented on Thursday evenings by the Grosse Pointe Village Association in cooperation with Bon Secours Home Medical and Bon Secours Pharmacy.

Happy 100th

Alma Schmied of Grosse Pointe Park will celebrate her 100th birthday on Saturday, June 1. Schmied has been a member of the Women's City Club and the Detroit Boat Club since 1923. She has lived in the same home in Grosse Pointe for 55 years.

Male calls

More than 75 percent of men are concerned about how diet affects their health, according to a 1990 Gallup Poll. Only 23 percent of those surveyed could name the major food groups. The National Center for Nutrition and Dietetics will sponsor a toll-free national hot line especially for men on Wednesday and Thursday, June 5 and 6, in advance of Father's Day. Men who call 1-800-366-1655 between 9:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. can speak to a registered dietitian about nutrition questions.

According to Mary Abbott Hess, ADA president and a registered dietitian, typical questions from men involve separating nutritional facts from fads; eating for maximum energy; losing or maintaining weight; enhancing sports performance through diet; and the diet/disease connection. Callers may also request free nutrition information on healthy eating and a recommended reading list.

The eye of the beholder . . .

The annual call for donations of ugly art and collectible cartoons has come from Historic Trinity Church, 1345 Gratiot, in Detroit.

It's for a benefit for the community-related work of the church; it's billed as the fourth annual Ugly Art Show and Auction; and it'll be held on Wednesday, July 17, at Historic Trinity.

But they need some ugly stuff. The acquisition committee declined to be named, but said they're looking for art objects — paintings, sculpture, lamps, pottery, weavings, whatever. The donations may be dropped off anonymously in a plain brown paper bag.

Actually, the event started on a whim and it survived in spite of itself, said David Eberhard, pastor of the church and member of the Detroit City Council.

He said that, in past years, people insisted on donating some decent art, so the event is now referred to as "the good, the bad and the ugly."

The event begins at 5:30 p.m., with some strictly gormy grub; will then progress to a silent auction; and a live auction by Joe Walker of Du-Mouchelle Galleries.

Ticket prices of $20 a person or two for $30 were designed for people on ugly budgets with no friends to invite them up north that week.

Assisted suicide too hot to touch

Don't look for the state to take a position on assisted suicide any time soon. In spite of enthusiastic lobbying for it by the Hemlock Society and against it by various pro-life groups, the sticky subject just might fade away in committee.

Nancy Parmenter

And maybe that's not all bad. What's the hurry? Michigan has been the venue for two nationally noticed assisted suicide cases in the last year: the Janet Adkins/Dr. Jack Kevorkian case; and the Bertram and Virginia Harper case. Both suicides were from out of the state; both came here under the impression that Michigan had no law against it. Both were half right. What Michigan has is a mishmash of case law that leaves no clear impression. Prosecutors bring charges, but sympathetic juries acquit. When Bertram Harper was on trial, a lawyer from Hemlock told me that prospective juror after prospective juror was dismissed because of sympathy for the situation. It's an extraordinarily thorny issue. Many people still believe suicide is itself against the law, although that was changed back in the '60s. (Some interpret a pending bill as making suicide illegal again.) "Decriminalizing was done quietly and it was virtually unreported," says Derek Humphry, the national director of Hemlock. Failing to report such a legal change might at first blush seem an odd oversight, but it is hard to imagine a spate of articles announcing that it is now OK to kill yourself. About the time of the Kevorkian brouhaha, the Michigan Senate passed a bill making assisted suicide a felony, punishable by four years in jail or a $2,000 fine or both. The bill was sent to the House on March 20, where it now languishes in committee. It's fairly likely to stay there, too, as judiciary committee chairman Perry Bullard considers it bad legislation and a "knee-jerk" reaction. I called State Rep. William Bryant to see how he feels about the bill. It makes him darned uncomfortable. "My initial thought is that we need to do something to discourage things like Bertram Harper putting a plastic bag over his wife's head," Bryant said. "But a prison term for somebody in his situation isn't appropriate. My approach is to say, yes, we need to be awfully careful of this, but let's not go overboard." In Bryant's view, that might mean making assisted suicide a civil infraction punishable by a fine, possibly equal to no more than a year's income, with a $100,000 cap. Hemlock attorneys speak hopefully of a state commission being appointed to study the question. A bill has been introduced in both houses to do just that, but Bryant doesn't see anything useful coming out of it. "That's just like studying abortion. You can study it all you want, but it comes down to a moral decision," he said. "It's just a delaying tactic." Certainly society has a legitimate interest in seeing that people don't start killing grandma under the guise of compassion, when what they really want is her money. But the opposite side of that coin is that when grandma does want help in achieving a dignified death, many people want the opportunity to give her that help. Euthanasia has been practiced in the Netherlands for a number of years, but without legal status. According to Hemlock's Humphry, in the 1970s, a disturbing number of doctors were ending up in court on criminal charges for helping people die. "It made the nation realize something was wrong," he said. The nation did not, however, jump to conclusions about the nature of what was wrong. It appointed a commission to study the question of physician-assisted suicide. In 1984, a case reached the country's highest court, which threw out the murder charge and established some criteria. The country has operated under those criteria since that time and this fall the Legislature plans to debate and enact a law that will meet constitutional requirements. Under the court's guidelines, the Dutch allow active euthanasia for the terminally ill, the elderly, and those suffering from psychic pain. Oregon, Washington and California are all looking at legalizing assisted suicide in one form or another. The first to take a vote will be Washington, where the question of allowing doctors to help patients die is on the November ballot. In Michigan, the Senate bill has some interesting points. While stating that intent to assist suicide is a criminal offense, according to Bryant, it specifically states that there are no penalties for withholding or withdrawing medical treatment or for administering or prescribing medication that is intended to relieve pain but in fact kills the patient. The state shouldn't rush to judgment on such a difficult ethical and moral issue. A commission could and should study ways that assisted suicide is handled in other places. In the interest of both compassion and justice, the state should enact a set of guidelines that protect and involve the medical community. No one should have to die a clumsy death using a plastic bag in a faraway airport motel or in the back of a stranger's van. But the answer doesn't lie in hasty enactment of punitive laws.

Mayday! Mayday!

I received a telephone call from a harried friend the other day. She was lamenting her lack of free time and enlightening me about the average "day in May" of local parents, schoolchildren and all of us who are involved in busy schedules.

Her conversation caused me to reflect upon an article I wrote a few weeks ago about the joys of the month of May in our community. In fairness I now can address the flip side of the calendar and the sundry commitments at this time of the month in our town.

I decided to make a list of the activities that are not out of the ordinary for the end of the school season, with many groups winding up their agendas before the summer vacations begin. See if the shoe doesn't fit in more than a few instances. In fact the shoe may pinch a bit:

- Picnics at churches or schools
- Ice cream socials
- Graduations
- Teas
- Outdoor concerts
- Reunions
- Work on boats
- Weddings
- Myriad charity events
- Art and street festivals
- Little League games and various command performances for children's sports
- Show houses
- Year-end meetings

In our spare time we are expected to clean the windows and gutters, plant the flower beds, put in screens, fix the ice-damaged patio, spray and trim trees, sew name tags on your camper's clothes, try to keep up with grass and weeds during peak growing seasons, plant vegetables, attend annual meetings, take the winter clothes to the cleaners and, by all means, find time to do a total "spring cleaning!"

Maybe my friend has a point. But it's still a pretty nice vineyard to labor in.

Letters

City Airport

To the Editor:

Your edition of May 2 contained our letter updating interested readers concerning Detroit City Airport expansion plans. There have been a few more developments that may or may not serve the desires of our residents.

Your editorial "Opinion" reported state Sen. Kelly's warning that a gradual, repeated expansion would be a possible result of the single downsized expansion now being considered. It was quite a coincidence that his statement to you appeared in the same May 2 issue of the Grosse Pointe News as did our letter, both warning of the same prospects.

A few days after your May 2 issue, the Detroit Free Press reported "the city submitted the expansion plan to the FAA Jan. 8 and withdrew it April 15," and was "expected to submit a revised plan later in May." It indicated that Detroit's airport planning consultants had cited several problems with a proposed new runway, involving low flying and intensive jet blasts. "The lack of federal funds — not the consultant's concerns, prompted the city to withdraw the plan," according to the city. Interesting? Particularly in view of their own consultant's concerns.

Subsequently, the Detroit News reports found that "scaled back airport expansion plans deal only with the first phase of the 20-year plan, not the entire plan. . . . City officials are still committed to the full plan over the next two decades." It does appear that expansion plans are still moving along.

In another publication, the new congresswoman for the 14th Congressional District says the expansion will be scaled down and "finalized by December 1991 and the grant application approved."

Readers should know that on May 9 The Wall Street Journal reported an FAA proposal code, published in the Federal Register, open for public comment for 30 days, which would permit some Midwestern cities to soon get more visits from larger jets instead of smaller, slower planes. Does this involve DCA? Congressman Hertel's office in Washington has been advised of this.

On May 14, The Detroit News reported that "the former MDOT director has become a partner with a national engineering concern, etc." and "the firm is a primary consultant for the city of Detroit regarding expansion of City Airport." This gentleman is certainly within his rights in seeking employment wherever he chooses. Probably just a coincidence.

May we repeat state Sen. John Kelly's concern, "fearing that FAA will merely start on the smaller plan and seek, over a period of time, to achieve the much larger expansion originally sought by the city." He is "convinced the federal and state aviation agencies really serve as promoters and developers of airport and airline interests rather than as disinterested public supervisors of those interests."

State Sen. Kelly and Congressman Hertel should be commended for their anti-DCA expansion efforts as should the several anti-DCA expansion groups. They are all proud and protective of their home areas as are we who elected them. More power to them.

Safe seas

To the Editor:

With proms and graduations, picnics and boating approaching, and the fun that goes hand in hand with Memorial Day and sunny days, Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) Wayne County Chapter, would like to remind everyone of ways to keep it a safe spring and summer season.

• Pack plenty of non-alcoholic beverages in the picnic basket.

• Pick a designated driver, be a designated captain, and a sober sailor when driving and boating.

• Remember that alcohol is involved in almost half of all boating and auto crashes.

• Be a good host and make sure that you have plenty of non-alcoholic beverages on hand and don't let anyone leave your home who has had too much to drink.

• Know that the effects of the sun and the rocking of the boat can magnify the effects of alcohol.

• Never ride with someone who has had too much to drink; take a cab, ride with someone else, or walk.

• Always wear a safety belt in the car and make sure every passenger also does.

• Always make sure that every one on board the boat has access to a PFD—Personal Flotation Device.

MADD hopes if everyone follows these important points, everyone can have a safe spring and summer season.

There will be games and rides for children on the elementary school grounds provided by the Romeo-Washington Parks and Recreation Department as well as a tennis tournament.

A music concert is scheduled in the afternoon and the Historical Museum will open at 4 p.m. Other activities include an antique car show and a chicken barbecue.

The historic 19th century Octagon House will be the site of a number of activities. The house will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. for tours. Classical guitarist Michael Bryce will entertain visitors with 19th century parlor music in the house's alcove. Refreshments, popcorn and a picnic area will be available.

People in period costumes will recreate an authentic Civil War encampment of the 1860s, the era when the house was built. The gift shop will sell souvenirs as well as homemade baked goods and crafts.

A LETTER TO THE COMMUNITY FROM

FRANK J. SLADEN, JR.

Dear Friends,

On Monday, June 10th, the community will elect a candidate to fill the remaining year of Fred Adams' term. Fred Adams represented the entire community, but he also brought to the Board a unique view of the interests of the Senior Citizens of the community. It would be my desire to do the same thing.

Since my graduation from Yale University with a B.A. and from the University of Michigan with a Masters in Education Administration, I have been involved in education. I have enjoyed teaching elementary, junior high, and secondary students. I also was head of the Liggett School for seven years and helped move its location from Indian Village to Grosse Pointe Woods.

My experiences have been garnered from owning the Book Shelf in Grosse Pointe Farms, being a Past President of the Friends of the Grosse Pointe Public Library, a member of the Advisory Library Commission, and a member of the Board of Directors of the Grosse Pointe War Memorial Center.

Rotary, with its emphasis on service to the community, has been part of my life for 28 years. I have been president of the local club and governor of the district that encompasses southeastern Michigan and some of Essex County in Ontario.

Close to my heart has been my long association with Grosse Pointe Memorial Church. For a number of years, I was a teacher and superintendent of the Junior High and Senior High Departments in the Church School. I have also been a Deacon as well as an Elder in the church.

I plan to bring a fundamental knowledge of education to the decisions that the Board will face in the year ahead.

Please show your support by voting for me on Monday, June 10th.

Sincerely,

Frank J. Sladen, Jr.

BirthCare™ at Bon Secours.

It's a child's game, but it's also good advice. Bon Secours was the first hospital in the Detroit area to offer single-room maternity care. This alternative to traditional childbirth allows the mother-to-be to stay in the same warm, comfortable room throughout her delivery. We call it BirthCare, and when we first introduced it, other hospitals were still wheeling their laboring mothers from one room to another.

We thought it was a good idea to design a delivery around the mother, not a delivery around the hospital. That's why BirthCare has become so popular. And that's why a lot of women have chosen Bon Secours as their hospital. Maybe you should, too.

Nine candidates vie for three seats in school board race

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

The make-up of the Grosse Pointe school board will change substantially on June 10 when Pointe voters elect three candidates to fill three vacancies.

Trustees Vince LoCicero and Jane Nutter decided not to seek re-election, leaving their four-year positions open.

The third new face on the board will complete the final year of trustee Fred Adams' term. Adams died last year and former trustee Jon Gandelot was appointed to fill in for him.

The Grosse Pointe News sent a questionnaire to all candidates. The following stories and endorsements (on page 6A) are based on the candidates responses to those questions.

In addition to personal background, the candidates were asked:

- State legislation and proposed referenda have impacted the revenues of the Grosse Pointe School District. For example, 1990 legislation eliminated much of the FICA reimbursement to the district for the taxes it paid on its employees. What do you think the district should do to lessen the impact of that law and the 1992 tax freeze on district revenues?
- If new state laws limit property taxes for the schools, would you favor legislation to authorize a district income tax (as has been suggested) to make up for lost revenues? Are there other avenues you think the schools should pursue to make up for those lost funds?

• If these new state limits on tax revenues require cutbacks in school spending, where would you recommend that spending be cut in the Grosse Pointe schools?

• Finally, what, in your opinion, are the other issues facing the schools and how can the schools address them?

The election is Monday, June 10. Polls are open 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

posed to the board making up for the lost revenue by levying the district's unused mills (Grosse Pointe charges taxpayers several mills less than is authorized by voters).

"I am against implementing the unused mills without an affirmation from the voters. Rising property values have increased revenues well beyond the rate of inflation. These increased revenues have resulted in the funding of programs that even some administrators believe to be of dubious value," he said.

Any proposed legislation that keeps Pointe tax revenues in their own schools is to the district's advantage, he says. Proposed legislation which would fund schools based on an income tax, rather than a property tax, would be an advantage to seniors on a fixed income who may find it hard to budget for increases in property taxes, he added.

If new state limits require cutbacks in school spending, Badaczewski says cuts should be kept as far away from the students as possible. Cuts in course offerings — especially in vocational education — would be unacceptable. Cuts in certain building project contracts, staff development and teacher training should be considered first," he said. He also believes library governance could be removed from school district control, possibly resulting in savings to the district.

Although Grosse Pointe schools are of the highest quality around, Badaczewski says there still is room for improvement.

"I would like to see our schools pursue President Bush's announced goal of increased academic rigor," he said. "We should require a more challenging core curriculum. Counselors should encourage students to elect courses that tax their ability. Any attempt to increase academic rigor would, of course, be futile without broad community support and encouragement."

One-year term

Three candidates are running for the one year remaining on the term of Fred Adams, who died in December. Voters must choose one of these three:

Donald Badaczewski

Donald Badaczewski is a former elementary school teacher who is now a psychologist. In 1976 he was appointed for a one-year term as urban renewal director for the city of Hamtramck. He is an assistant Cub Scout leader and is a past president of the Hazel Park Rotary Club. He and his wife Audrey live in Grosse Pointe Park.

He is a graduate of Northern Michigan University and Wayne State University and was certified as a psychologist in 1978. He is a 1984 graduate of the Wayne State Law School where he served on the law review. He is a past member of the Macomb County Bar Association's Needs of Children Committee and a volunteer with the Oakland County Probate Court Youth Assistance Program.

Locally, he served on the committee to develop a K-12 gifted education program in the Grosse Pointe schools.

To make up for shortfalls due to new state legislation cutting back school financing, Badaczewski says the board must look at the programs offered by the schools and cut those of questionable value. He is op-

For a second opinion, call The Southeast Michigan Laser Center first.

If surgery has been recommended for you, or for a member of your family, you might want to consider a second opinion.

And a second opinion from the independent surgeons practicing at The Southeast Michigan Laser Center at St. John Hospital and Medical Center could shed some healing light on your problem.

Surgery at The Southeast Michigan Laser Center can offer a wide range of surgical patients many advantages that ordinary scalpel surgery can't.

The simple solution. In many cases, the uncompromising precision of laser instruments makes laser surgery much simpler than conventional surgery.

Laser incisions can conform to precise measurements.

An incision with a laser can conform to exact surgical specifications without damaging surrounding tissue. Laser instruments can be so precise, in fact, they can actually remove dried paint from an inflated balloon without bursting it.

Such precision allows surgeons to operate with less damage to healthy tissue. And so surgery is likely to cause less pain, less loss of blood and quicker recovery. Laser patients are less likely to need transfusions or experience complications.

The simple recovery. Some forms of major surgery that might result in a lengthy hospital stay with ordinary surgical methods may be treated simply as an outpatient procedure at The Southeast Michigan Laser Center. Recovery can be more comfortable, with fewer pain-relieving drugs, less time in bed and a faster, easier return to routine.

Some enlightening thoughts. The benefits of surgery at The Southeast Michigan Laser Center are too numerous to mention in this ad.

Call the toll-free number below, and The Southeast Michigan Laser Center at St. John Hospital and Medical Center will send you this easy-to-read, illustrated booklet, free of charge.

You'll discover how lasers can make many surgical procedures simpler than you ever thought possible.

And if you, or a member of your family, ever do need surgery, ask your doctor about The Southeast Michigan Laser Center. Then call for a second opinion.

Because it could be the brightest opinion you'll hear.

Brownell is a product of the Grosse Pointe schools and graduated from Grosse Pointe South in 1978. He has a B.A. in materials logistics management from Michigan State University. His background in logistics, he feels, fits in well with the strategic planning the district hopes to implement.

Robert Brownell

Effective use of technological resources would help control costs in the district, Brownell feels.

"We must also implement the portion of strategic planning to upgrade our technological resources," he said.

Current district funds should be used more effectively before any cuts are made or any more taxes are levied, Brownell said.

"Before any additional taxes should be levied, a thorough and complete reexamination of the district must be done in order to seek ways to better utilize the financial resources we have," he said. Cuts, if any, must be made equally across the board, he added.

Finally, he believes providing educational programs that will allow Grosse Pointe students to compete is the most important job of the school district, and he has ideas on how that can be continued.

"With increased use of technology and continued reevaluation, our schools can continue to improve and provide all students the (best) education possible," he said.

Frank Sladen Jr.

Frank Sladen Jr.

Grosse Pointe Park's Frank Sladen Jr., now retired, has a long background in education. Former headmaster of The Liggett School, he was also the owner of The Book Shelf, a bookstore in Grosse Pointe Farms. He has been married for 45 years and has no children.

Although he's never held or sought office, Sladen has worked on two library millage campaigns, co-chairing one. He is a member of the Library Advisory Board, and the Grosse Pointe War Memorial board of directors. He is past-president of the Friends of Grosse Pointe Public Library. He also was treasurer for several other local political campaigns, past president of Grosse Pointe Rotary, a volunteer driver for Friends of Vision, a church school teacher and superintendent and an elder and deacon at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church.

Four-year term

Six candidates are running for two four-year terms. Voters must choose no more than two of the following six candidates.

Julie Bourke

Julie Bourke

Julie Louisell Bourke has been active in the community, working with St. Paul's parish, the Junior League of Detroit, Tau Beta Sorority, Women for United Fund Board, site coordinator for Health-o-Rama for the United Way, the Grosse Pointe Hockey Association, the Grosse Pointe Education Council, the Grosse Pointe Sexuality Advisory Board, MADD, and she has been a FLEC sponsor. Two of her three children graduated from Grosse Pointe South High School, and the third will graduate this June.

Bourke is a graduate of St. Louis University with a bachelor of science degree in nursing. She has been employed by the Grosse Pointe schools in the past as a substitute nurse and now works for Henry Ford Health Care Corp. She is a board member of the South High Mother's Club, was a Homecoming chair, a class sponsor, the All-Night Party chair, president of South's Hockey Booster Club and has taught CPR and sex education.

The district should continue looking at its existing programs when hit with budget cuts, she said.

"The Grosse Pointe School District should continue its present policy of examining and evaluating its existing programs for cost effectiveness and for overall benefit," she said.

Opposed to a district income tax, she says the district must look at costs at all levels before raising taxes. She favors greater use of volunteers and retirees within the community.

"Another avenue to explore would be the increased utilization of computers and other high-tech equipment to assist teachers in the classroom and to improve the efficiency of the administration," she said.

Other problems she feels the district needs to address are aging building sites which need updating, lack of green space and field maintenance, a need for increased technology, outcomes-based education, and keeping control over local tax dollars.

"The school district can address these issues by carefully examining, evaluating and deciding what is best for the students," she said. "Those areas that directly impact our students are most important to retain and improve in our system."

Beverly Hall Burns

Beverly Hall Burns, a senior partner at Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone, is making her first bid for public office.

She is married and her two children have kept her active in the Grosse Pointe schools including serving on the Trombly and Richard elementary schools' site budgeting committees. She was also a member of the Grosse Pointe Historical Society board, and is on the board for the Michigan Metro Girl Scout Council. She is an elder at Grosse Pointe Memorial Church. She is a member of the American, Michigan and Detroit Bar Associations, the Women Lawyer's Association of Michigan, the Grosse Pointe War Memorial association and the Friends of the Grosse Pointe Library.

Burns is a graduate of Michigan State University and the University of Michigan Law School. She worked as a reporter and city editor at the Lansing State Journal. She has taught adult basic education in the Lansing schools. Nearly half her practice at Miller, Canfield is devoted to education law, including employment relations, special education and general school law. She be-believes that experience makes her especially qualified for the school board.

Careful monitoring of the district's representatives in Lansing is one way of ensuring Grosse Pointe schools get the state funds they deserve, she said.

More cost-effective spending of what we do have is something the district needs to do better, she added.

"Our community will continue to demand even more cost-effective management of our school system, while at the same (time) expecting a continued excellent educational 'package' for our students," she said. "This is a tall order."

Even if state law allowed local districts to levy an income tax, Burns doesn't believe it would win approval from voters unless they thought there was no other way to continue the excellence in the schools.

But she believes the district still needs to find more creative ways to spend what it does have.

"My opinion is that when limited revenues require cutbacks in spending, we have to look everywhere for possible spending cuts," she said. "I do not believe any program or any budget category can be exempt from this scrutiny."

More state legislation threatening the local control of schools, site budgeting, the libraries and the governance of them and education of gifted students are all hot issues she believes the board will need to address in the next year.

"I was urged to become a candidate for school board by people in our community who believe my professional background, interpersonal skills, sensitivity and decisiveness will serve the board, and our community well," she said.

Catherine E. Cazabon

Catherine E. Cazabon's name will appear on the ballot, but she has withdrawn from the race.

"It is with a heavy heart I respectfully withdraw myself as a candidate to the Grosse Pointe school board," she said in a prepared statement. "My husband, Mike Cazabon, recently received an important job promotion which requires us to move away from Grosse Pointe. I would like to thank everyone who helped and supported me in my campaign."

Alfred B. Fox

Alfred B. Fox is making his second bid for a seat on the Grosse Pointe School Board. He ran and lost in 1987.

A police sergeant for the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, he is chief of security at the Wayne County Youth Home and supervisor of officers at Burton Center. He and his wife Joann live in Grosse Pointe Woods and have two children. One graduated from the Grosse Pointe schools and the other still attends.

Fox has a B.A. from Walsh College and a M.A. from the University of Detroit in correctional science.

He feels state cuts will cause local districts to make cuts of their own, and that those cuts could be made in the areas of personnel by not replacing employees who leave or retire. He said class sizes could be increased, citing 98 classes in the high schools with fewer than 17 students. Other budget cuts should be across the board, shared equally by all departments, he said.

The district should also levy the mills the voters have approved, to make up for potential shortfalls when the freeze on assessments comes in the 1992 budget year, he said. "I feel the Grosse Pointe Public School System should look into other ways of funding the public libraries, such as those that are used in other communities throughout the state," he said.

Patricia Ihrle

Patricia Ihrle is making her first run at public office, but she has a long background in education. She is retiring this year after teaching for 32 years. She has a son who will graduate from Grosse Pointe North this year.

Ihrle has a master's degree in education from Wayne State University, was chair for the business education department and former chair of the curriculum committee at South Lake High School. She was the sponsor of the National Honor Society for five years and for 13 years sponsored a business club called Business Professionals of America. She was also a member of several North Central accreditation teams.

Political pressure, she says, would help legislators realize the results of their actions in regard to school finance laws.

"While all Grosse Pointe citizens have a vested interest in getting this money back, realistically the greatest response will be generated by parents of school-age children," she said. "Secondly, we must look very closely at holding costs down. Herein there are no easy solutions."

She opposes a district income tax, and to make up for lost revenues due to state finance reform she would revise the staff development program, increase tuition fees for community education and the latch key program, review maintenance project plans and consider the costs of extracurricular activities.

Should cuts need to take place — the toughest question of all, she said — they might be made by freezing textbook purchases, eliminating field trips, reducing course offerings or offering certain low-enrollment courses in alternate years and reducing each school's on-site budget.

"Maintaining current programs with fewer dollars is probably our biggest challenge in the Grosse Pointe schools," she said.

She said other issues facing the district are outcomes-based education, programs for the gifted, library governance, the change in the middle school program and declining high school enrollment.

Louis J. Prues

Louis Prues says his background of work with young people as well as experience in the business world make him unique among the candidates.

Prues, an ordained clergyman who spent 10 years in full-time church work, is now director of marketing and research and manager of commercial property for Fox Companies, a real estate development firm specializing in commercial and residential property.

He has a doctorate of ministries in adolescent development, a master's in divinity and an MBA. He has been on the board of directors for Grosse Pointe Hockey; board of Fellowship of Christians on Universities and Schools; has been a hockey and baseball coach and is a past director of the Farms/City Little League.

Louis Prues

"If Grosse Pointe is to maintain the quality of education it expects, it has two immediate options — cut expenses and raise additional income through increased millage," he said. "Fiscal responsibility in the light of decreasing revenues is a must."

But in addition to that, he said the schools must lobby hard in Lansing to ensure the school district gets the dollars it deserves.

"Our dollars disappear and we have no answers where they go, how they are used, and (if) the quality of education is improving in those 'out of formula' districts. I have doubts. The Legislature needs to be challenged to find another way."

Prues does not favor a district income tax, but thinks a district sales tax earmarked for education might be an option worth exploring.

"As cuts become necessary, we already have a process in place to recommend where they should occur at the site level," he said, adding that those closest to each school know best where their funds should go. He said cuts at the central level should be made — as they have been in the past — by reducing staff, changing benefits and scaling back some programs. The cuts, he said, would need to be fair.

He said other issues facing the board include outcomes-based education, educating all facets of the students, integrating technology into the classroom, developing a new gifted and talented program and making it work, managing the school system's buildings, and keeping counselors in the schools, despite funding cuts.

The role of a board of education

By Edward J. Shine
Superintendent of Schools

Grosse Pointe residents will elect three new members of the board of education on June 10. Usually, no more than two members are elected to the board at any one time, but because of the death of Fred Adams, three seats are vacant this year. With the election rapidly approaching, it seems appropriate to review the proper role of a board member.

Board members are representatives of the citizens of this school district and are responsible to the state government for the education of all students from kindergarten through grade 12 and for adult and community education programs. Board members are, in fact, state officers and as such must uphold state laws when exercising the authority of their office.

As an elected body, the board identifies community needs and expectations and develops educational programs consistent with the community's resources. One of the board's most important duties are to establish policy and determine goals for the school system. In fact, the board is currently in

Linda Schneider

Linda Schneider, a lifelong resident of Grosse Pointe, is making her second run at a board seat. She is married and the mother of a middle school child.

She has been active in Grosse Pointe schools for many years, serving on the board of directors of the Friends of the Grosse Pointe Library, a trustee for the Grosse Pointe Foundation for Academic Enrichment, and she helped to bring psychologist Bruce Baldwin to Grosse Pointe.

Schneider majored in business administration at Macomb Community College and worked for General Motors for 11 years. She was PTO Council president for four years and worked on several millage and library campaigns. She was a member of the strategic planning committee, the library adaffecting students are best made by those closest to the students.

The members of the board serve as a vital link between the public and the schools. They provide a way for residents to express interest in and concern for the schools, and they serve as advocates for all students. In addition, they set the budget for the school system and the tax levy to support it.

School board meetings are open to the public, and residents are always encouraged to attend. Informed and active community residents are essential to quality educational programs, meaningful change, and appropriate accountability.

Serving on the board of education is one of the most important responsibilities any citizen can assume. The work is often difficult and time-consuming, but the future of this community and others rests on the kind of education young people receive. Board members help determine what that education will be. That is why the election on June 10 is so important. The polls are open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Please take the time to vote.

She received a Distinguished Volunteer Award from the Grosse Pointe schools in 1987 and was one of nine people in the United States and Canada to receive a National Public Relations Award in 1988.

She said in order to lessen the impact of school refinancing, the programs should be evaluated for effectiveness and given a priority rating. Any programs which directly affect the students should be cut as little as possible, she said, and lobbying is also important to retaining local control of Grosse Pointe tax dollars.

"If the state law limits property taxes, I would be in favor of legislation to allow the local taxpayers to determine if they are willing to procure lost revenues," she said. "Business partnerships with schools have received a lot of discussion recently; this could be an avenue to pursue."

If cuts need to be made, they might come in the form of staff development and substitute teacher costs, she said.

High school classes with low enrollment should be kept to a minimum, she said, but cuts at the site level should be left to the site budgeting committees.

"One of the biggest challenges of public education is addressing the needs of individual students," she said. "A school system must base its philosophy on the theory that every child needs to be equipped with the knowledge and skills to compete in society."

A couple of caveats before you take plunge into summer

We longed for it. We prayed for it. And last week the balmy weather arrived. It's a little warmer than we hoped for, but it's better than its counterpart, the cold chilling days of winter.

There are some who argue that you can always stay indoors to keep warm in winter but there is little you can do to beat the heat. Of course there is air-conditioning if you choose to live indoors with artificial cooling systems in these glorious months of spring and summer.

Besides, there are, in fact, many ways to beat the heat. Drinking lots of liquids is one of them. And, the liquid most recommended is plain water. Noted physiologist Dr. Ian Phillips explains that water is the body's most vital nutrient; that our bodies are largely water and that water is the body's natural system for regulating temperature.

During the course of a day, 2-1/2 to three quarts of water is lost through perspiration, natural evaporation and excretion. This should be replaced by drinking plenty of water.

This precaution is particularly true for older people because they seem to be susceptible to dehydration.

Some scientists attribute this to a hormone (angiotensin) which stimulates thirst.

They speculate that as we age, that hormone does not work efficiently, causing older people to drink less water than they should to avoid dehydration. It is particularly important to drink lots of fluids if one spends time in the sun playing golf or gardening.

If plain water doesn't do it, club soda is a good choice. It is 100 percent water and has a high sodium content. Since you lose both water and sodium when you sweat, and you need to replace both, club soda makes a good drink.

Lemonade, or just a twist of citrus fruit, may be more palatable. The acid in the lemon increases salivation, which makes the mouth feel less dry. Go easy on the sugar if you choose lemonade, because too much sugar tends to draw water out of your cells. Since such drinks as fruit punch and milk shakes have a high sugar content, they are not preferred thirst quenchers.

Prime Time

If cold beer is your favorite summer drink, the best that can be said is that it is preferable to drinking a martini or a wine cocktail. All alcohol inhibits an anti-diuretic hormone (ADH) whose function is the regulation of water in the kidneys. The superiority of beer is that it has a much higher water content than other alcoholic drinks.

Most people don't drink as much water as they should. They wait until they are thirsty or until they want to get cool. If you want to get cool in a hurry, put ice in your water. However, if you need to replenish water, drink it at room temperature. You'll be able to drink more and swallow it faster.

The old rule of drinking eight, 8-ounce glasses of water a day still holds in any season but particularly in the summer when we have to guard against dehydration, heat cramps, heat exhaustion and heat stroke, each the result of not taking in enough water to replace what the body has lost.

Another way to stay cool and enjoy the summer days at the same time is to picnic. Any one of the Pointes' parks is a good place to go for a cool dip in the pool or to sit in the shade and watch the boats go by and eat a picnic lunch or dinner.

If you are planning such an outing, there are some precautions that should be followed with the food you are taking. You should plan to eat it within four hours of the time you arrive. If it is to be kept longer, it should be kept hot or cold. This is especially true of foods with a high moisture content such as salads, fried chicken and meat loaf.

Most people think that only foods with mayonnaise pose hazards. Not so, say the experts.

Mayonnaise, which is acid, actually helps to inhibit the growth of microorganisms that cause trouble. It is the moisture and temperature that you have to guard against.

Keeping foods cold in hot weather is no trick. It can be accomplished economically by freezing blocks of ice in milk cartons and then placing them in containers with the foods. Another method is to freeze the food the night before it is to be consumed.

Another good rule to follow, whether eating a meal at a park or on the patio, is to keep it light. Eating lightly in the summer is not only better for your health but it is also cheaper. Supermarkets, your neighborhood grocer, the local fruit market — all offer locally grown fruits and vegetables throughout the summer. And soon you will be able to drive to one of the many roadside stands. You won't have to be coaxed to eat all those sumptuous offerings when you see the lavish display of Michigan products.

Good nutrition is important to the maintenance of a healthy body, so take advantage of locally grown fruits and vegetables. True, in this modern age most nutritious foods are available the year around, but there is no doubt that freshly picked foods taste better and, because they come direct from the fields, are more nutritious.

A leading heart specialist contends that if more of these foods were eaten there would be fewer coronary problems.

So for the good of your health, enjoy the foods of summer — nature's remedies for whatever ails you.

WSU program to examine issues in aging

Richard Yerian, chief medical consultant for the Bureau of Health Facilities of the Michigan Department of Public Health, will present "Update on the OBRA Regulations: Are They Working and What Does the Future Hold?"

The third day will feature Mary Beth O'Connell, assistant professor of pharmacy at the University of Minnesota, presenting "Effect of OBRA Regulations on Drug Use in Long Term Care Facilities." Ronald Stewart, professor of pharmacy practice at the University of Florida, will discuss "Polypharmacy, Adverse Drug Reactions and Medication Compliance in the Elderly."

On the fourth day Suzanne Weiss, policy counsel for the American Association of Homes for the Aging, will present "Overview of Laws and Regulations: Key Issues for Providers, Consumers and Regulators."

A gift of remembrance

One of the highlights of the Grosse Pointe Woods Memorial Day service was the introduction of new flags at the Circle of Honor at Vernier and Mack. Grosse Pointe Woods City Administrator-Clerk Chester E. Petersen and his wife, Roberta, created the Circle of Honor in 1981 and have maintained it ever since to honor the men and women who served in the American Revolution, the War of 1812, the Mexican War, the Civil War, the Spanish American War, World War I, World War II, the Korean war and the Vietnam war. The Petersens originally donated one 50-star American flag to represent each war, and a larger center flag. They also donated a plaque dedicating the circle to "the glory of God." Last weekend, they replaced the nine smaller flags with U.S. flags that are appropriate for each war. For example, the flag representing the American Revolution has 13 stars and stripes, and the flag representing the War of 1812 has 15 stars and stripes. The Petersens also added a plaque beneath each flag, stating the name of the war and the years it lasted, and a tenth flag, to represent the Persian Gulf war. The Petersens, above, attended the ceremony with their son, Ronald, left, and granddaughter, Robin. Below, local Boy Scouts, Cub Scouts and Tiger Scouts raise the center flag in the Circle of Honor.

For $92,000 and a 2-year wait, you, too, can own this car

The Mercedes-Benz 300D 2.5 Turbo had been sitting in the sun and its leather upholstery filled the car with a wonderful fragrance. I put the key in the ignition, waited a couple seconds until the glow-plug indicator light went out and turned the starter. Then engine caught almost immediately.

Driving the car is a pleasure. It is peppy, it cruises easily at freeway speeds, its engine is quiet and the only smell is the sun-warmed leather. This the reborn diesel.

The 300D is powered by a 2.5-liter five-cylinder turbo-charged diesel engine that produces 121 horsepower, but provides EPA-rated fuel economy of 27 miles per gallon city and 33 highway. That's quite an improvement over the four-cylinder diesel that powered the Mercedes-Benz 240D back in the heyday of diesel cars, which was rated at 24 city and 31 highway. Automatic transmission is standard on the 300D 2.5.

At its $41,000 base price, it is one of the lower priced Mercedes-Benz models. And there is no gas guzzler tax.

The appeal of diesel cars has traditionally been their fuel efficiency, reliability and durability. The odometers on several 240Ds have gone well past the half-million-mile mark, according to A.B. Shuman, spokesman for Mercedes-Benz. "And at least two Mercedes diesels have traveled more than a million miles."

The 300D 2.5 Turbo shares its mid-size body with the popular 300 mile line and, aside from a slight clicking sound from the engine, you might not realize you were driving a diesel. Performance is virtually as good as its gasoline-engine brethren, the traditionally loud diesel has been greatly quieted and, perhaps most important for the diesel's comeback as a passenger-car engine, its exhaust has been cleaned up.

Americans have turned their thumbs down at diesel cars once already. Will the diesel make a comeback? There are many indications that the answer is yes.

For one thing, if Congress raises the Corporate Average Fuel Economy standard to anywhere near the 40-mpg figure being tossed about, the diesel will almost have to be called back into the game. The industry knows this and is already thinking about it. There were more than 100 papers relating to the diesel engine at this year's SAE convention. And automotive engineers are not known for wasting their time on irrelevant topics.

A little over a decade ago, the passenger car diesel engine was the darling of the industry, popular in luxury cars and in small econoboxes. The clatter of the diesel was heard beneath the hoods of Mercedes-Benz and Cadillac, Volvo and Peugeot, Volkswagen Rabbit and Chevrolet Chevette. The reason: OPEC.

The first oil crisis in 1973 shook us. The second in 1978 scared us, scared us so bad that car buyers were willing to ignore the diesel's noise, fumes, smell and iffy cold-weather starting to get the benefit of its good fuel economy.

Sales of passenger cars powered by diesels grew rapidly, peaking in 1981 at 520,788.

Some 60 percent of those diesel cars were built by General Motors. That was 10 percent of GM sales that year. For other makers, diesels were a bigger factor. They accounted for almost 85 percent of Peugeot sales, 78 percent of Mercedes-Benz sales, 58 percent of Isuzu sales and almost half of Volkswagen sales. Diesel passenger cars were also sold by Audi, Volvo and Datsun in 1981.

Then there were problems with GM's diesels. Blocks cracked and crankshafts wore prematurely. Critics complained that it was just a converted gasoline engine. Clubs of disgruntled owners sprung up and lawsuits were filed.

A panel in the back has raised up to allow the top to fold down in it — all automatic, just one button.

Tougher emission standards caused problems for all diesel makers. And worst of all, the price of gasoline began to decline. So did diesel sales. GM, which had been so bullish on diesels, ended production in 1985. Gasoline prices fell to the lowest levels ever, in terms of real dollars.

The diesel is an internal combustion engine, as is the gasoline, but with a difference. The diesel has no spark plugs, but relies on high compression (typically about 22:1, compared with 8:1 or 9:1 for gasoline) for ignition. Diesels are heavier, more fuel efficient and longer-lasting (usually) which has made them popular in heavy truck applications.

The diesel may have become trendy in the '70s, but it was far from new. In 1893, German inventor Rudolph Diesel published a paper, "The Theory and Construction of a Rational Heat Engine," which described an engine in which air is compressed by a piston to a very high pressure, causing a high temperature. Fuel is then injected and ignited by the compression temperature. He built his first engine based on that theory the same year and, though it worked only sporadically, he patented it.

Within a few years, Diesel's design became the standard of the world for that type of engine and his name was attached to it.

Diesel thought the United States was the greatest potential market for his engine. The first diesel built in the United States was made in 1898 by Busch-Zulzer Brother Diesel Engine Co. President was Adolphus Busch, of Budweiser brewing fame, who had purchased North American manufacturing rights.

mysterious circumstances in 1913, vanishing during an overnight crossing of the English Channel by the mail steamer Dresden from Antwerp to Harwich. It might have been suicide (though there was no evidence) or an accident (again, no evidence) or assassination (pure speculation). Proponents of the assassination theory point out that shortly after Diesel's death, a diesel-powered German submarine fleet became the scourge of the seas. Diesel had been friendly to France, Britain and the United States.

Mercedes-Benz began building diesel automobiles in the '30s, long-lasting and dependable units, many of which are still in taxicab service in Germany a quarter of a century later. In 1975, only Mercedes-Benz, Peugeot and Opel sold diesel cars in the United States. GM got into the diesel market in 1977 and sold one million of them from 1977 to 1981 as buyers looked for a hedge against rising fuel prices.

Market projections called for sales by GM alone of one million diesels a year, even though the engines added $800 to $1,000 to the price of a car. But these projections were based on the assumption that gasoline would cost $2 or $3 a gallon by 1990.

No American maker puts diesels in passenger cars now, although diesels are available in some light truck models, often purchased as substitutes for cars. The truck sales manager in a large dealership near Flint said cross-over buyers (car owners who trade for light trucks) do not seem to like diesels.

"They're popular only with people who like the smell of diesel fumes. That's about it." The Mercedes 300D Turbo certainly does not fit that perception.

Mercedes-Benz model designations are a bit confusing, because some numbers are car lines and some refer to engine size. The four model ranges are:

- The compact 190n class, which includes the four-cylinder 190E 2.3 and the six-cylinder 19E 2.6.

- The mid-size 300 class, which includes the 300E and 300E four-wheel-driven 4Matic sedans and two station wagons, the 300TE and four-wheel-drive 300TE 4Matic, all powered by a 177-hp 3.0-liter six; the 300E 2.6, powered by a 2.6-liter 158-hp six; the 300CE coupe with a 217-hp four-valve-per-cylinder version of the 3.0-liter six and the 300D 2.5 turbodiesel.

- The larger-size S class, which includes the 300SE, pow-

Concepts at classics

The Celica Tsunami, a concept vehicle from ASC Inc., is one of more than 200 futuristic, specialty and classic automobiles that will be featured at the 1991 Eyes on the Classics automotive design show on Sunday, June 30, at the Edsel & Eleanor Ford House in Grosse Pointe Shores. The annual event benefits the Detroit Institute of Ophthalmology in its efforts to help the visually impaired through education and research.

Designed at ASC's West Coast Creative Centre and built by ASC/Protocraft in Costa Mesa, Calif., the Tsunami is based on a one-off Toyota Celica Convertible All-Trac. This vehicle features a power-operated closeout panel which allows the Tsunami to be an open four-seater, closed two-seater or two-seat roadster.

General admission tickets are $10 and includes a commemorative program. For more information about the event, call 824-5554.

• The SL class is reserved for two sports cars, the 300SL (3.0-liter, 228-hp six) and the 500SL (5.0-liter, 322-hp V-8). Both these two-seater cars have four-valves per cylinder and fully automatic soft tops. All Mercedes have anti-lock brakes and driver-side air bags.

In any ways, the 500SL is the ultimate Mercedes-Benz. Its base price is highest of any Mercedes at $89,300. With gas guzzler tax, transportation and taxes, you better take about $92,000 with you.

For $92,000, you get a car that is incredibly responsive. Even at freeway speeds, it takes off like a rocket when you punch it; its handling is so smooth, you just think what you want the car to do and it does it. It is not cramped as you would expect in a two-seater; and those two seats feel like they were made for you.

Mustang V-8 and Maserati Biturbo convertibles will do many of the same things that the 500SL does, but there is one area in the Mercedes that has top spot, and that is the respect it wins you. Parking valets call you "sir" (or "madame," as the case may be). A couple of young men in a top-down Mustang V-8 pulled alongside me on the freeway and honked; the driver smiled broadly and gave me a vigorous "thumbs-up" sign.

For a convertible buff, this car is it. It has the most amazing top-lowering and raising mechanism I have ever seen. Pressing a single button will cause a panel behind the top to rise up, the top unlatches itself front and rear, folds up, lowers into the well, the panel covers it and the two side windows roll down. Press it the other way, and it reverses the process to put the top back up.

I don't usually take too seriously a car that costs more than my house, but the Mercedes-Benz 500SL may just be the best everyday car in the world.

Another view

The Mercedes 500 SL is a reaction car. It elicits a hushed observation from customers lurching outside at a local restaurant. It prompted a big grin from a gentleman ahead of me at the 24-hour teller station. It had a friend out of his corner office and gratefully accepting the keys for a test drive only seconds after I had entered the building. It prompted big-time thumbs up and exclamations from some fellows tooling along I-94 in a Mustang convertible.

As beautiful and perfect as the $92,000 two-seater is, however, it also elicits some social comment from car lovers. They answered a question that wasn't even posed with these words: "If I had that kind of money to spend, I wouldn't put it all in one car."

This, friends, is the ultimate status symbol. But only if you can get one, and our source says there's a two-year wait at any dealership.

— Jenny King

Antique auto parade, show

Just before this year's Grand Prix Indy cars rev up for the big race Sunday, June 16, motorcars from another era will parade through downtown Detroit and across the Ambassador Bridge into Windsor.

The 12th annual Wheels of Freedom Antique Auto Parade and Show is a premier event of the 33rd annual Detroit-Windsor International Freedom Festival which officially runs June 21 through July 4.

In honor of the homecoming of the military personnel who fought for freedom in the Persian Gulf, Air Force Capt. Steve Tate, U.S. grand marshal, will lead the cavalcade of more than 250 classic motorcars along with the Canadian grand marshal, a member of the Canadian Armed Forces who also served in Operation Desert Storm.

The motorcade gets the green flag at noon and, following Civic Center Drive to the Grand Prix track, drivers will take one lap around the course just before opening ceremonies and the start of the PPG Indy Car World Series which also is considered a Freedom Festival event.

The parade will then cross the Ambassador Bridge and head east on Riverside Drive to Dieppe Park at the foot of Ouellette Avenue.

The old-fashioned fun doesn't end when the wheels come to a stop. At Dieppe Park, the event will shift gears with activities, scheduled from noon until 5:30 p.m., featuring a vintage costume contest, sunny outdoor cafes, and live bands, including "Brand X," "Deported from Cozumel," the Northwestern High School Jazz Band, and the Scottish Society Pipe Band. Additionally, there will be demonstrations by the Redford Township unicyclists, the Country Cloggers, and Copeland Karate Club, as well as gymnasts, jugglers, clowns and magicians.

The highlight of the festivities will be the display of auto classics dating from 1900 to 1979. Media celebrity judges will present awards for the most outstanding vintage automobiles and costumes.

The 33rd annual Detroit-Windsor International Freedom Festival, the world's largest trans-border festival, celebrates Canada Day on July 1 and the United States' Independence Day on July 4.

Prepare trailer for vacation to avoid trouble

It's about that time to pile the family, the dog and the golf clubs into the car, attach the boat-hauling trailer to the back and take off.

Vacations beckon, but unless you want to spend hours standing around a repair shop instead of chasing golf balls, you'd better think about that trailer and how you pack the car.

And while you're at it, AAA Michigan suggests some routine car maintenance tips to help ensure a trouble-free trip, now that winter weather is behind us.

Towing a boat, camper or dirt bike on a flat-bed trailer not only takes getting used to, but adds strain to the drive train of the car, suspension and tires. The owner's manual spells out the towing capacity for your vehicle.

Exceeding the maximum rating could mean more than damaging your car, it can void its warranty. Consult your owner's manual for specifics.

Basically, there are three classes of towing hitches: Class A — attaches to the bumper and, generally, is capable of pulling up to 2,000 pounds; Classes B and C — attaches to the frame of the towing vehicle and can tow up to 3,500 pounds and 10,000 pounds, respectively.

Hitches that attach to the frame distribute the weight of the trailer along the frame, which permits better handling of both units. Excess weight in the rear can make braking or steering difficult in an emergency. Michigan law requires that safety chains be attached to the hitch in case of malfunction.

Before traveling on the highway, however, even experienced drivers should maneuver the trailer at low speeds, preferably in an empty parking lot, remembering that it can take at least twice as long to stop, pass and pull into traffic as with a car.

Packing the inside of the car takes equal skill and, again, the owner's manual should be checked to determine the total weight capacity of your vehicle.

If you have a tall load in the car or are pulling a trailer, it is necessary to have outside mirrors on each side of the car to see the blind spots.

Routine maintenance calls for such things as removing snow tires and checking for tire wear and proper inflation; checking coolant and oil levels; replacing cracked or frayed hoses and belts; replacing dirty air filters and streaky windshield wipers; adding windshield washer fluid, if necessary; and replacing defective headlights.

ON CLIENT'S PERSONAL STYLE
I listen and I keep my agenda quiet. So when I go into a project, it's not about me. It's a collaboration. It's the client's concepts and my concepts: what emerges is a self-expression of my client. That's the ideal.

ON CARING & RELATIONSHIPS
Probably the main quality that I can bring to a project is taking care of my clients. The service and the commitment to the project emanate from that care. It's being there; with the painter on a touch up, on delivery. It's all of that attention and developing a relationship of trust, which is fundamental for a project to even get off the ground. It's an integral part of a successful design.

ON WHAT DESIGNERS OFFER
I can create a vision out of what a client says to me. Secondly, I have a source of materials not available to the client. What I bring to the party is my availability, materials, artists, workrooms, tradespeople and sources. I come with baggage.

ON USING MICHIGAN DESIGN CENTER
The Michigan Design Center is wonderful for me. I'm there a lot and it's great to be able to take a client there. My clients can see the service that the showrooms provide the designers. If I ask the showroom to please communicate to the factory the importance of having the upholstery tailored in a particular way, they share my concern; and that is what is important to me in representing my client. I support the people that support me.

Farms podiatrist offers advice to keep your feet fit

By Rose Paluszko
Special Writer

When Robert Weinstock was a young boy he saw his grandmother lose her legs to diabetes.

Whether or not it's because he saw the pain in his grandmother's life, podiatrist Weinstock brings a special sympathy to his patients, something often missing in medicine today.

Weinstock started practicing podiatry at South Lake High School in St. Clair Shores, working with the football team. He also worked with St. Paul School's basketball team. He has had an office on Mack in Grosse Pointe Farms for 23 years.

"It's nice to see people you've seen for 30 years," he said. "But it's strange how time can sneak up on you."

Much speculation has been offered lately about ailments of the foot. Some believe in zone therapy, which says there are parallel points in your foot that, when rubbed, can cure headaches, ulcers, etc.

"There are parallel points in your body. But to believe in zone therapy you have to believe in acupuncture and such Chinese practices," Weinstock said.

He said that the busiest time for possible foot problems is upon us. With the opening of pools and more barefoot summer strollers, the thing that suffers most is our feet. He said that the summer brings warts, cuts and infections.

"People sometimes neglect their feet," he said. "Young people don't like to tell people there is something wrong with their feet. Older people just tend to neglect them."

"But a lot of times if you go to a podiatrist and find something wrong, you could be preventing other more serious problems. Some people who lose feeling in their feet could have other health problems they need to deal with."

Weinstock said he once saw a patient who had lost sensation in her foot and had been walking around with a tack in her shoe for three weeks. He said patients with diabetes and other blood-sugar problems may first find out about it by experiencing a problem with their feet.

Another problem is ingrown toenails. He said that is one of the most common foot ailments. "People think they can take care of things like ingrown toenails and warts by themselves, but most of the time they do more harm than good," he said. "A lot of the time they leave in part of it and their foot gets infected."

And while most teenagers don't spend much time thinking about their feet, Weinstock says that they actually have a lot to worry about.

"One time I saw a kid come in with 40 or 50 warts on his feet," he said. "He was just too embarrassed to tell his parents."

The fitness boom has led to many foot ailments, according to Weinstock. He has seen three times as many stress fractures, sprained ankles and knee problems in recent years.

"With the fitness boom came people with healthy cardiovascular systems but with feet in poor shape," he said. "If you want to benefit from aerobic type of exercise, walking and low-impact workouts are good. If you are going to walk you need the right shoes. You shouldn't be walking in regular shoes. You need walking shoes that will provide support."

Weinstock has been the president of the American Board of

Dr. Robert Weinstock - he's a foot man.

Podiatric Surgery and is planning a trip to England this summer to do two foot surgeries for British television.

He is currently a consultant for Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Michigan and for Aetna Life and Casualty.

Spring Break

cided to join me, but they all thought it was wonderful."

She said her children, ages 13 and 16, "also thought it was wonderful."

Dan and Paulette Griesbaum of Grosse Pointe Woods observed Spring Break weekend, but for them, it was business as usual.

"We don't drink," Paulette Griesbaum said.

She said they didn't attend any parties or functions where they felt pressure to drink, but they did use the weekend as an opportunity to reinforce a lesson they've already taught their children, ages 10 and 7.

"They pretty much know it (alcohol) is not allowed around here," she said.

Theresa Buccellato and her husband,

Anthony, also lived up to their pledge, she said.

"We were at a gathering that weekend," she said, "and most of the people there were having sociable drinks, but we chose not to drink, and it didn't present any problem."

She said she told a few people why she was abstaining, and that they thought it was a good idea.

"Whether they decided not to drink after putting down the drink that was in their hands, I don't know, because I didn't follow them around," she said.

Buccellato's children, ages 23, 21 and 15, also signed the pledge.

"I think that many people put too much emphasis on drinking to have a good time," Buccellato said. "We're not big drinkers, and we've been lucky in that we haven't had a problem with our children."

Mary Ellen Bleakly of Grosse Pointe Shores, vice president and community projects chairwoman of SAC<sup>2</sup>, said Spring Break was a very successful concept.

"The purpose of the event was not just to get people to abstain from drinking for one weekend," Bleakly said, "it was to get them to think about the way adults model drinking behavior and peer pressure behavior to children." Various newspapers published 11 articles about Spring Break before the event, Grosse Pointe Cable covered it, and members of the clergy included Spring Break in their sermons, Bleakly said. Also, SAC<sup>2</sup> members were asked to speak to several organizations, including the Grosse Pointe Soroptimists, and community leaders from as far away as the Upper Peninsula asked SAC<sup>2</sup> members for advice on how to start similar events in their cities.

"So Spring Break ended up being more than just the people who participated in the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods," Bleakly said.

The only problem with Spring Break is that its expenses — for buttons, bumper stickers and advertisements — exceeded donations by about $2,200.

Bleakly said that the program cost about $4,000, and that participants and local organizations have donated approximately $1,800. SAC<sup>2</sup> will make up the difference with other funds, she said.

St. John Hospital, community groups and churches have donated money to SAC<sup>2</sup> for Spring Break, and the Grosse Pointe Woods and Grosse Pointe Farms city councils have each agreed to donate $300 in city funds.

Bleakly said that SAC<sup>2</sup> hopes that Spring Break will become an annual event in the Pointes and Harper Woods.

Pointer

many as I would have liked," he said. "But that's not why I write. Writing is kind of an addiction. We would like to be published, but that isn't the end of it."

Hagman started writing mainly to organize his thoughts when he was a professor, first at Northwestern University then at Drake in Iowa and finally at Wayne State.

"Many of us have marvelous thoughts, but they're amorphous, they just float away," he said. "I write mine down."

He's particularly proud of the series of three historical books he's writing that are being printed by Empire State Press.

The first book details Michigan in the 1830s when Stevens T. Mason, "The Boy Governor," was molding this state. The second — which should be out any time now — is a study of the hanging of accused spies Nathan Hale and John Andre during the Revolutionary War. The final book will be about the Blackhawk War in the 1830s which wasn't a war so much as a brutal massacre of an Indian tribe.

"These are all footnotes in history books, but they are important and interesting events that people should know about," he said.

In the spare time between his writing, he does what most good writers do — he reads. He says he must have thousands of books in his home. Many are duplicates which he keeps because the bindings are so beautiful.

"I love to haunt old book stores," he said. "Sometimes you can find real treasures there."

Hagman's collection of Thoreau books includes one of the original copies of Thoreau's first work, "A Week on the Concord and Merrimack River."

His collection of Washington Irving's works includes many books that have been lost to American readers over the years.

"That's too bad, too," Hagman said. "He's basically remembered for two stories — 'The Legend of Sleepy Hollow' and 'Rip Van Winkle' — and no one knows about his other wonderful work."

That's why Hagman wrote his biography of Irving.

Hagman also loves to travel with his wife, Mary. Most recently, the two took a freighter to Australia and New Zealand. They have, with all their trips combined, circled the globe. And for Hagman's money, a freighter is the best way to travel.

"It is the last place there's first class service anymore," he said. "The cabins are large and comfortable, the food is great and you have free run of the ship. You have to entertain yourself, but that's no problem at all."

Once in Australia, they took the luxury train (trains are another of Hagman's great interests) across the country.

Hagman and his wife have been married for 48 years. They have six children and six grandchildren.

as president of the Grosse Pointe Senior Men's Club, a job he sees as helping further his education, as well as the education of the men who go to the meetings.

"We always have speakers at the meetings and they're usually interesting and informative," he said. "And it keeps our minds working.

"I think it's very important for people who have lived active lives — especially those who led intellectually active lives — to keep challenging themselves. That's why I read and write. I'm 79 years old, I can't picture that, quite frankly. Inside, I'm much younger."

"The funding is not coming in," he said, "but the vans are still running."

PAATS has a yearly budget of about $66,000, which covers $3,800 a year per van for insurance.

Mueller said PAATS would like to raise money to buy a third wheelchair-accessible van, which costs about $25,000. He said the PAATS board is considering a fundraiser to make the purchase of the van possible.

"If we can get that third van," he said, "that will be really good."

Teens complete respite care training

High school students, who provided companionship to frail elderly men and women and gave respite to their caregivers, completed a training course in May, "Respite Care: Introduction to Caring for Elderly Persons."

This one-of-a-kind program was sponsored by Services for Older Citizens (SOC) in collaboration with the Grosse Pointe and Harper Woods school systems and Bon Secours Hospital.

In all, 10 students worked four hours a week after school hours as employees of SOC's Lifespan Program allowing the caregiver an opportunity to enjoy some relief from 24 hour a day duties while the student befriended a chronically ill patient in the home.

The care given by Shawn Daly and Jill Killenberg, Harper Woods, and Chris Pearce, Grosse Pointe North, is typical of the Lifespan Program's student companions. Shawn served as a companion to a woman with whom she ate dinner and then helped get ready for bed. Jill worked with a woman who was temporarily incapacitated after returning from the hospital. Chris often went for walks in the park with a man who has a severe memory loss and is no longer able to communicate.

Other students who served this year are: Aaron Baker, Grosse Pointe South; Leah Goldstein, Grosse Pointe South; Jessica Killenberg, Harper Woods; Nancy Lewandowski, Harper Woods; Mary Beth Mitchell, Grosse Pointe South;

Dog training classes to begin

The St. Clair Shores Recreation Department will sponsor dog training classes starting Wednesday, June 5, at the St. Clair Shores Civic Arena, 20000 Stephens (1-94 and 9 Mile). Classes are one hour a week for eight weeks for $50.

Beginners Obedience classes are for any breed of dog at least 4 months or older and has had parvo and distemper shots. If the dog is over 6 months of age proof of rabie vaccination is required.

Two beginner classes will be held; one at 10 a.m. and the other at 7 p.m.

Intermediate Advance Obedience will be at 8:30 p.m. This is for dogs that have had at least eight weeks beginner's training.

The Conformation Show Handling Class is for A.K.C. purebred dogs only. They must be at least 8 weeks or older. The class will cover what is required of dog and handler at a dog show. The class is offered at 5:45 p.m. only.

VCRs taken from school

Two videocassette recorders were reported taken from Grosse South High School last week.

One VCR was taken sometime between 3 p.m. May 21 and 8 a.m. May 24. The second was taken sometime between 3 p.m. May 23 and 8 a.m. the following day.

Melody Schmidt, Grosse Pointe North; and Laura Thompson, Grosse Pointe South.

The training program consisted of eight sessions, beginning in November and ending in May. Training was at SOC's headquarters at Ferry School, led by Ann Kraemer, executive director, and Dorothy MacKay, social worker.

Six sessions were held once a month at Bon Secours Hospital or the Bon Secours Nursing Home with staff covering the following topics: "Seniors and Teens/How Do You Visit?," "Communication Skills," "Common Disabilities of Older People," "Loss Issues" and "Discharge Planning and Home Care."

Students interested in working in the Lifespan Program, funded by a grant from the Skillman Foundation, are recruited through their high school counselors.

For more information about Lifespan or other SOC programs, call 882-9600. SOC is a non-profit organization dedicated to helping older citizens of the five Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods maintain their lives in independence and dignity.

Three Shores incumbents swept into office

In what may or may not be considered a mandate, three Grosse Pointe Shores incumbents were overwhelmingly re-elected May 21 to the village council.

They ran unopposed. Incumbents John Huetteman III, N. William O'Keefe and Rose Garland Thornton took 92 percent, 91 percent and 86 percent of the vote, respectively. The vote tally was Huetteman, 94; O'Keefe, 93; and Thornton, 88.

A total of 102 votes were cast — 4.63 percent of the Shores' 2,202 registered voters. Eight absentee ballots were cast.

While no challengers formally filed to run against the incumbents, write-in candidates amassed nearly 3 percent of the vote. Former Trustee Dan Beck and residents Robert Brooks and Robert Steiber each received one write-in vote.

Huetteman won his fourth term in office; O'Keefe captured his second term; and Thornton begins her third term.

Welcome an exchange student this summer

Nacel Cultural Exchanges is seeking students who want to spend the summer in Europe and host families who are willing to welcome European teenagers who want to spend the summer in Michigan.

For more than 30 years, Nacel's specialty has been summer homestays for language students from 13 to 18. In this year's Homestay Program, American teens have the opportunity to stay with families in France, Spain or Germany during July or August.

In addition, Michigan families can choose to host teens from the three countries during July or August.

The complete cost for students from Detroit, except for pocket money, is $1,535 for France, $1,620 for Spain, and $1,435 for Germany. The cost includes plane fares, insurance and transportation to the hosts. Since the foreign students have had four to eight years of English language study, host families don't have to speak another language.

In addition to the Homestay Programs, Nacel also offers camp programs combining language learning and sightseeing in Paris and Madrid, and homestay/study programs in Ireland and Russia.

What's new in antiques?

Christ Church Antiques Show will feature new exhibitors; lectures; demonstrations; food; flowers

By Margie Reins Smith
Feature Editor

Christ Church's annual Antiques Show will feature the best of the old, according to Nancy Kellow, publicity chairman — and more of it than ever.

The annual antiques extravaganza will be on Saturday and Sunday, June 1 and 2, in the Grosse Pointe South High School gymnasium, 61 Grosse Pointe Blvd. This year, the gym will be crammed with antiques and collectibles from 47 dealers, an increase from last year's 39 dealers, she said.

A special preview reception and sale will be held on Friday, May 31, from 7 to 10 p.m., before the show is open to the public.

This will be the seventh antiques show put on by Christ Church Grosse Pointe, and proceeds from the fundraiser will again be used to support the choirs as well as a number of the church's outreach projects.

"Our show is growing," said Suzanne Nicholson, who is co-chairman of the event with Mary Ann Zinn, Wendy Jennings and Susie McMillan, all of Grosse Pointe.

"This year we changed the arrangement of dealers in the gym so we can fit more in. We have a bigger plant tent with more selections. We have three demonstrations about plants and a lecture on silver and silversmiths."

Selected antiques dealers will offer a diverse selection of items for sale: from antique linens and lace, silver, glass, quilts and brass to 18th and 19th century furniture, clocks, nautical items, porcelain, pewter and copper, to wicker furniture, quimper, jewelry, folk art, Melanie Basil will give a lecture on the history of Pewabic Pottery at 2 p.m., Sunday, June 2, at Christ Church's Antiques Show. She is shown with a collection of Pewabic tiles and vases.

Western memorabilia, rare maps and prints, and more.

In addition, the two-day antiques show will feature a lecture by Rod Tinkler, an expert on antique silver and owner of The Silver Vault in Barrington, Ill. Tinkler will discuss "Antique Silver and Its Silversmiths" at 9:30 a.m. on Saturday,

George II coffee pot

June 1.

"Many people are unaware that there were enough women in the field to be a definite presence,"

Tinkler said.

"Some women carried on their husbands' businesses after (they were widowed) while others, quite bravely and unusually for the time, entered the field as a career."

Tinkler will focus on the works of selected silversmiths with an emphasis on humanizing their work.

"We've always had a garden tent as part of the show," Kellow said. "The first few years we had plants and annuals. Then we expanded to include house plants. Now we've added lectures about art and plants."

Dale Morgan of Silk and Morgan florists and Blossoms Fresh Flower Markets will give a lecture, "Arranging Flowers with Antiques: A New Approach," at the preview reception on Friday.

Morgan has designed floral arrangements for Pope John Paul II's tour, for Gov. John Engler's inaugural ball, and for events that raised funds for Orchestra Hall, the Michigan Cancer Foundation and the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. He counts celebrities Aretha Franklin, Stevie Wonder and former President Jimmy Carter among his clients.

Michael Pricer of Hunters Creek Perennial Gardens in Lapeer will give a free demonstration, "Perennials for All Seasons," at 2 p.m. on Saturday, June 1.

Pricer designs annual and perennial rock and water gardens and grows more than 250 varieties of perennials. He will also have garden plants for sale.

Melanie Basil, archivist/curator of Pewabic Pottery, is interested in 19th and 20th century American ceramics, historic preservation and architectural history.

She will present a talk, "Historic Pewabic Pottery," at 2 p.m. on Sunday, June 2, in the garden tent.

She'll trace the evolution of the unique pottery that is part of many Detroit and Grosse Pointe homes.

Some new exhibitors at Christ Church's 1991 Antiques Show are: Jouve Roman of Rochester, N.Y., with French country antiques and accessories; Kitty Davenport of Bloomfield Hills with Oriental rugs; Leonard Berry Antiques of Birmingham with 18th and 19th century English furniture, accessories and lamps; Cowboy Trader of Birmingham with the best of the West; and Greg and Barbara Hall of Bay Village, Ohio, with golf memorabilia.

Besides browsing and buying antiques, shoppers may purchase perennials and plants in the garden tent. They may choose to take a walking tour of the stained glass windows in Christ Church. Or they can pause for tea and refreshments in the Victorian Tea Room.

Ellanore and Alexander Wiener of Grosse Pointe were two of the founders of the antiques show seven years ago and are serving as honorary chairmen of the 1991 event.

The Christ Church Antiques Show hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday; noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Admission is $5 — $4.50 with the donation of a non-perishable food item for Crossroads Social Service. Parking is free. Advance reservations are necessary for the preview reception and for the silver lecture. Call 885-4841.

Bridge

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION
BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD

There are very few the likes of Jack Nicklaus in the world of bridge. Bobby Goldman might be one of them. We first became acquainted in 1970 when Ira Corn brought the Dallas Aces here to play a hand picked Detroit team and Omar Sharif's World Bridge Circus. He was a quiet young man, but even at that early stage a superb bridge player. In twenty-one years he has changed little. He is still quiet, a world class player, but now he has a lovely wife and wonderful son each of which transcend his love of our wonderful game.

If I were a golfer of some ability and sincere intent, I would strive to play with Jack Nicklaus or one of the top touring professionals today. Such a massive challenge would spur me beyond explanation yet the experience would be worth its weight in gold. For this same reason and because I write and teach this grand game, I have an occasional professional date. It is an experience that defies explanation. It is also an experience if you're not very careful that can destroy you for the by-product, especially if you do well, is to extend your already inflated ego. Know this about such an exciting moment of play; the professional's game is literally a million light years apart from ours. Know also that they are just as human as we plebeians and prone to make mistakes too, but a bag full fewer.

Bal Harbour, Florida was the setting; The Eastern Atlantic Regional was the occasion for Bobby and I to team up in the two session 478 pair stratified Saturday event. Our afternoon effort had been most rewarding and now we were faced with the gruelling evening session when usually the preceding leaders falter. Fortunately we didn't partially because lady luck favored us.

On the fifth board East doubled Bobby in four spades with the comment, "I know your reputation, but I'm still doubling you!" With that he got off to a favorable lead and that added to exacting play procured the ten trick contract and a +590 top score which had the kibitzers in bliss. This was just a forerunner to what followed on the next board only this time my extravagance seemed beyond retrievability.

I was quite sure the dummy had a good five card heart suit (with six Bobby would have opened two) and some kind of feature lurking in the minors. That added up to an optimistic eight winners and somehow I would scrounge around for another. At first sight of the pastboards across the table, I made a mental note to see my ophthalmologist as my eyes were deceiving me. Now, that isn't to suggest that my partner's three heart call shouldn't be just what it was, but prior to game time Robert had warned me to show no emotion and I wasn't about to even under this seemingly adverse circumstance. I spent what seemed like forty-seven minutes contriving my line of play and then I only could come up with seven potential winners. Sometimes you just have to go along for the ride no matter what the outcome, so I called for a small spade. East was obviously in a charitable mood for he played the jack (to maintain communication) which I won. I thought to myself ludicrously, now comes the easy part and I played the diamond ace to see what in the world was going on. This fetched West singleton jack and hopefully I'd discovered a possible road to glory. Next a small diamond to the queen and it was revealing to see West pitch a small heart. On the third diamond back to my nine finessing East's ten another heart from West. Now a club to the jack finessing West's king and the club ace. At trick 7 dummy's last diamond to my king on which West mistakenly dropped his second spade! The only possible explanation was that he had concluded I held the A, Q of spades and the A, K of diamonds for my bid. If so East had the club queen in which event they would beat me with hearts and the remaining clubs. At trick 8, a heart to dummy's king (the ace play at this stage couldn't help the defense) smothering East's singleton jack. Here was the 5 card ending when I led dummy's heart 9.

West could win three hearts and the club king, but then had to give me our game making trick. Count them, a spade, a heart, 4 diamonds and 3 clubs.

Even this one couldn't believe it, but my illustrious partner brought me back to reality with the complimentary comment as he turned to the kibitzers, "don't go away there's more to come."

You can see for yourself a well practiced partnership (even though only once in twenty-one years) is imperative.

Foundation will honor women of Supreme Court

The Michigan Women's Foundation will honor Michigan Supreme Court Justices Dorothy Comstock Riley and Patricia Boyle at two gala dinners — one in Grand Rapids on Wednesday, June 5, and one in Southfield on Tuesday, June 11. Proceeds from the events will support programs leading to economic empowerment and leadership for Michigan women and girls.

"The Foundation's trustees and supporters want to celebrate women's potential and accomplishments by paying tribute to two women who have reached the pinnacle of the legal profession in Michigan," said Kay Felt, an attorney and co-chairman of the benefit.

"Justices Riley and Boyle are role models for other women and girls aspiring to be lawyers and for those who want to serve on the bench. Both sought a non-traditional career and have succeeded mightily."

Susan Church, executive director of the Okemos-based foundation, said, "The funds raised on June 5 and 11 will support the Michigan Women's Foundation grantmaking to women's organizations all over Michigan. Additionally, proceeds will go to providing technical assistance and consultation designed to improve the management of these organizations, to increasing public awareness of the needs of Michigan women, and to encourage other foundations and corporate philanthropy to increase their support of women's programs."

The benefits will be held at the Pantlind Ballroom of the Amway Grand Plaza in Grand Rapids on June 5 and the Sheraton Hotel in Southfield on June 11, with cocktails at 6 p.m. and dinner at 7 p.m. Tickets are $125 per person.

The Pastor's Corner Letters

By Rev. Jack T. Ziegler
Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church

I am behind in my correspondence. Not my business correspondence, mind you, but I'm behind in those personal letters that I have noted in my planning book, or at least in the back of my mind, to write. Why am I behind? It's simple. I don't know.

Oh, there are lots of excuses that could be cited, some of them probably valid. But when it comes right down to giving an answer to the guy who brushes his teeth in the mirror across from me each morning, I really don't know. What I do know is that I'm not alone.

In talking with people during the past few weeks, it has been surprising how many others are behind in their correspondence, too.

"I don't write," said one middle-aged woman, as if that particular posture would somehow make her feel all right about not being in touch with people who really matter to her. A man said that he telephones instead of writing, which is practical with today's technology, but it's still not the same as a letter.

Talk with any of the people recently returned from Saudi Arabia and they will confirm the importance of mail call.

Writing is a much more intricate process than talking. Possibly that is the reason most of us frequently fail to make the effort. But a letter is mysteriously an extension of ourselves. A letter can be read, re-read, folded up and stuck in a purse or pocket or filed away in a drawer. Who doesn't know the warm feelings triggered by the surprise discovery of a letter years after it was first received.

My mother was a prolific letter writer. As a result, many people wrote to her. There usually wasn't much news in mom's letters. But one could read in every line that she loved you — lots.

Maybe that's why so many "books" in God's Bible are actually letters.

Choirs to tour Europe

The Christ Church Choir of Men and Girls will travel to France, Switzerland and Germany for a 21-day concert and sightseeing tour. A portion of the choir's expenses is paid by proceeds from the annual Antiques Show.

D. Frederic DeHaven is music director and choirmaster of Christ Church.

The cost of the trip for 21 girls, 14 men, two monitors, two mothers and assistant organists is also underwritten by the participants and the Katherine Tuck Fund, an endowment earmarked for the church's choir programs.

The Choir of Men and Girls will give a pre-tour concert for the entire community at 7 p.m., Sunday, June 23, at Christ Church Grosse Pointe.

No tickets are required. A reception will follow.

For more about the Christ Church Antiques Show, see page 1B.

Organ renovation benefit at Fort Street Presbyterian

Fort Street Presbyterian Church's four-manual, 3,300-pipe organ is a musical masterpiece, a work of art in sound. It is a rare example of a large instrument from the mid-19th century that has remained true to its heritage by maintaining the tonal thinking and quality of the Romantic period. The church's high ceiling and expansive interior provide an ideal acoustical environment for the blending of tones from the various sections of the instrument.

The temporal materials in this fine old organ are wearing out, to the point that in 1989, 20 percent of the instrument was unusable. Many of Detroit's fine old organs of this era have deteriorated past the point of repair and have been lost.

A major renovation of the Fort Street organ is under way. An organ renovation benefit concert will be performed on Sunday, June 9, at 5 p.m. at the church, 631 West Fort Street at Third.

Organ Master Patrick Kuhl will perform works of J.S. Bach, Vierne, Durflé, Wood, Eastham and Walton. Tickets are $10 a person; $25 for patrons. Call the church at 961-4533, or purchase tickets at the door.

The chairman of the task force coordinating the organ renovation is Kathy Neuman of Grosse Pointe Woods. Associate pastor of Fort Street is the Rev. Ruth Poisson of Grosse Pointe Park.

Motorcycle blessing

The Rev. Timothy Pelc, pastor of St. Ambrose Catholic Church, will bless bikes and motorcycles at 11:15 a.m. on Sunday, June 2, in front of St. Ambrose Church in Grosse Pointe Park. It will be the fourth annual motorcycle blessing at St. Ambrose.

Support group

A group providing support to adult cancer patients, their families and significant others, is under way at St. John Hospital and Medical Center.

The philosophy of the group is that many people can better cope with cancer if they share their experiences and concerns. Health professionals assist the group in obtaining specific information.

The group meets on the hospital's fourth floor on the third Thursday of each month from 6:30 to 8 p.m. The next session will be June 20.

For more information, call the St. John physician referral and information service at 1-800-237-5646, weekdays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Grace United Church of Christ

Grace United Church of Christ, 1175 Lakepointe in Grosse Pointe Park, will hold an evening of entertainment for families and friends on Saturday, June 8, beginning at 6 p.m.

Featured will be Phillis Piller (a Phyllis Diller impersonator), novelty acts, singing and dancing.

A pot luck dinner begins at 6 p.m. The program begins at 7:30 p.m. A free-will offering will be taken. Call the church at 822-3823 for more information.

Grosse Pointe Rose Society

The Grosse Pointe Rose Society will meet at 7:45 p.m. on Wednesday, June 5, at the Grosse Pointe Neighborhood Club.

Speaker Douglas Bima, president of the Detroit Rose Society, a consulting rosarian and an A.R.S. rose judge, is considered by some to be the top rose exhibitor in Michigan. He will discuss the preparation of roses for the show table or for home display. He'll also give tips on things to do in the rose garden at this time of year and he'll discuss how to shape blooms, how to clean foliage, when to remove blooms, how to refrigerate blooms, what kind of fertilizer to use and how to prevent mildew and blackspot.

The 1991 Rose Show will be Friday and Saturday, June 14 and 15, at the Neighborhood Club.

The Grosse Pointe Rose Society was founded in the early 1960s and was part of the Grosse Pointe School System. It is now a chapter of the American Rose Society.

President of the Grosse Pointe Rose Society is Forrest Geary. He is a charter member of the society, a former coach in the Grosse Pointe school system and former administrator of Grosse Pointe's adult education program. Since his retirement, Geary has been active in various local chapters of the American Rose Society and is a lifetime consulting rosarian.

"You may say you don't show roses, but every time you cut a rose for your own house or for a friend, you are showing a rose," Geary says.

Debbie Leslie is general chairman of the 1991-92 Rose Show, and Ellen Quinlan is artistic chairman. The show includes separate classes for different types of roses such as hybrid teas, miniatures, floribundas and climbers; categories for non-members; and categories for different types of arrangements such as traditional, modern and abstract, Oriental and miniature.

Grosse Pointe Rose Society dues are $10. For an additional $2.50, members may be affiliated with the American Rose Society.

Leslie and Quinlan will discuss the mechanics of presenting a rose show at the June 5 meeting. Guests are welcome. For information, call 885-5073.

Values clash, stereotypes crumble in Attic's new play

By Alex Sucek
Special Writer

The Michigan premiere of an off-Broadway hit is another jewel in the crown of Attic Theater creative director Lavinia Moyer. Playwright Casey Kurtti set the play in the gritty world of welfare motherhood, child abuse and volunteer social work. It's a tough, frustrating world, but Kurtti has created characters with such humor and spirit that the hopelessness of the life and crudity of its style only magnify the wonder of the love and inner strength of three disparate souls seeking their way.

that drove her to become a volunteer in New York's social welfare system. We watch, wide-eyed, the budding of her friendship and frustration with her first client.

Dawn, played by Jennifer K. Jones, is the welfare mother with four children and a live-in boyfriend. She personifies the tenement survivor. She's been schooled by hardship. She is ruled by the cynical ethics of an abused class. She judges and manipulates her vulnerable case worker with devastating craft.

Making the transition from culture clash to mutual respect, the two perform a theatrical duet that rivals any of the great acting teams of contemporary theater. They milk laughs from the ugliness and pathos of their situation. They scrap like alley cats, then rise above their differences to understand and help each other.

Dawn uses her defenses of scorn, sarcasm and sheer grit hilariously and helps us understand that these are her secrets of survival. They make her admirable, in her way. At times, ironically, it is Dawn the welfare client who is therapist to Sharon, the apprentice social worker.

in his mind from the pages of X-Man Comics. Frankie is driven irrevocably into that supernatural world to escape the sordid implications of his coming up with large amounts of cash. He comes off, at last, as the most noble and most tragic of the three.

Meanwhile, Sharon is confounded by a lifestyle and personality she has never faced before and can't handle, at least at first. Her development as she learns, and starts to use, Dawn's ghetto jargon is a virtuoso performance in itself. It culminates in a classic line that she tosses off for one of the show's biggest laughs. This concludes a lively argument about the book/film, "The Color Purple," when Sharon dismisses the film's sentimentality with a spith comment on Stephen Spielberg's direction.

The third and, ultimately, the pivotal character in the play is Dawn's oldest child, 16-year-old Frankie. He has hangups, too, and they are the most poignant, being the struggles of a teen for identity in a ruthless environment. In that role, David Ramsey evokes the heartache of every parent who has tried to help a child through that agony but can't quite reach him.

In Frankie's case, it is because he splits himself between his real family and his imaginary friends. They spring to life

Each character grows and changes in exciting ways and wins audience sympathy. They deliver an evening of virtuoso ensemble acting that alternates with powerful, staccato monologues to expedite the plot. Their adeptness at switching from one to the other is especially impressive. They also make ingenious use of Eric M. Johnson's efficient, composite set which accommodates scene changes between two apartments, the street and Frankie's rooftop retreat in a single unit.

Kurtti has created a portrayal of one of life's grimmest levels in which the most admirable qualities of the human spirit emerge. Even if your ears are tender, steel your nerves and see this play. You will laugh until you ache, you will shed real tears, and you will learn a new meaning of compassion.

Attic Theatre is located on Third Avenue off West Grand Boulevard facing the Fisher Building parking lot. Performances are scheduled Wednesdays through Sunday until June 16. For tickets and information, call 875-8284.

Jennifer K. Jones, David Ramsey and Dinah Lynch star in The Attic Theatre's "Three Ways Home."

"Three Ways Home" is a play with real heart that demolishes welfare stereotypes, and director Patricia Ansuini and the cast take full advantage of it.

Each of the two female leads has hangups. Dinah Lynch in the role of Sharon guides us into this shadowy world as she reveals, in a fast-paced, bitterly funny monologue, the impulses

Timeless, unforgettable 'South Pacific' keeps getting better and better

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

The Birmingham Theatre rings down the curtain on a highly successful season with an outstanding production of Rodgers and Hammerstein's unforgettable musical classic, "South Pacific."

Based on James Michener's book, "Tales of the South Pacific," which won a Pulitzer Prize in 1948, the musical won its own Pulitzer in 1959.

It is not difficult to see why. It has humor, romance and songs galore. It is a storehouse of rare entertainment and the Birmingham presentation serves it well. It is bright and bouncy, sweet and romantic and often hilariously funny.

Designer James Noone adds a 1990s high tech touch with a collage of World War II newsreels which accompany the overture that establishes the time and place of the story. Later,

Sherlock unveiled

Many of the great detectives of fiction are incredibly real to their readers — occasionally they are more real than their creators. Mark McPherson will discuss literary sleuths in his lecture entitled "Sleuth" on Thursday, June 6, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

What was Sherlock Holmes really like? Was he really smarter than Hercule Poirot or Miss Jane Marple? Was Charley Chan even more inscrutable than Dr. Fu Manchu? Or what about the married couples of mystery — Nick and Nora Charles, Tommy and Tuppence Beresford, Mr. and Mrs. North — what made their spouse-based sleuthings work?

McPherson will answer questions like these at the lecture. "Sleuth" will keep you turning the page of your favorite detective novel, or perhaps reveal a new trope for you to investigate," McPherson said.

McPherson is the director of the Daedalus Investigative Agency, which takes him around the world hunting Atlantis, poltergeists and the Loch Ness monster. In his real-life investigations he tries to follow the methods of literary sleuths like Sherlock Holmes.

during a blackout, creative lighting simulates a plane taking off — a neat bit of staging.

Such feats of technology add interest, but "South Pacific" will remain a favorite because of its many memorable songs.

There are 16 in the first act alone, including the romantic "Some Enchanted Evening" and the mesmerizing "Bali Ha'i." Small wonder the show has been a favorite of summer stock and community theaters. It has never lost its charm. Wherever and whenever it is staged, it draws audiences.

When it is performed by professionals, such as the fine cast of the New York touring group at the Birmingham who imbue it with the depth, richness and finesse it deserves, it becomes special.

The plot revolves around service men and women from all parts of America who are sent to a faraway island in the Pacific where they must come to terms with ingrained prejudice that for two of them becomes a barrier to love. The situation is well expressed in the most dramatic song in the repertoire, "You Have to be Carefully Taught."

The lovers are blond, gullible Ensign Nellie Forbush (Marin Mazzie) from Little Rock, Ark., and a courtly French planter, Emil De Becque (Ken Parks). A secondary plot involves a very proper Harvard graduate, Lt. Cable (James Weatherstone), and Liat (Leila Florentine), a lovely island girl.

Mazzie, a Western Michigan University graduate, turns in a great performance as Nellie Forbush. Vivacious and energetic, she seems to be having a great time. She personifies her opening song, "Cockeyed Optimist." She pours so much sincerity into "I'm In Love With a Wonderful Guy" that you feel her joy.

In the ensemble number, "Thanksgiving Vaudeville," she sings, dances and clowns. Whether she's belting out "Honey Bun" or "I'm Gonna Wash That Man Right Out of My Hair" or joining Emil in "Some Enchanted Evening," she shines.

Ken Parks as Emil has a romantic presence. Tall, handsome and distinguished, he is just right for the part of the gentleman planter. Ann Harada as Bloody Mary, the island mother who introduces her daughter Liat to Lt. Cable, injects passion and vigor into musical theater's most seductive song, "Bali Ha'i."

Tenor James Weatherstone as the young, amorous lieutenant makes the most of his memorable scene in which he sings to the lovely Liat, "Younger Than Springtime."

Aside from being a pushy mother, Ann Harada's Bloody Mary, is the center of much of the play's humor as she goes about peddling island souvenirs and standing up to officers with colorful phrases taught her by the sailors. The ensemble numbers are bolstered by strong male and female choruses with good voices and lots of energy. Their top dance number is the raucous, "Nothing Like a Dame" and they really go all out.

Mention should be made of Stephen Berger, who adds so much fun to the show as Luther Billis with his wheeling and dealing and clowning.

Eating in London

Almost anyone who reads travel articles or has traveled in and about London knows the city's reputation for expensive food of questionable appeal. In many respects, the reputation is well earned, but there are notable exceptions to those generalizations.

Let's begin in the areas surrounding the London Airport. There are lots of formica-filled hotels with coffee shops of varying quality. Now one would think that these hotels, occupied by folks who are in the middle of serious jet lag, would have 24-hour service in their coffee shops. Not so. In fact, room service is unavailable in many hotels until 7 a.m. When the eating facilities are opened, it is not unusual to find that coffee and a Danish costs $5 or more. Full breakfast begins at $8. If you have a family of four, the price of your breakfast can ruin a day.

Finding breakfast for less than $40 may seem a trivial problem. However, it does add to the other stresses and costs of your stay near London Airport. The following breakfast alternatives will give you one less thing to worry about. The snack facilities in the air terminals are open 24 hours and have an acceptable variety of modestly-priced food to start the day. Since the hotels normally have frequent free coach service to the airport terminals, this is a viable alternative to breakfast at your hotel.

If you find yourself trapped at an airport hotel at lunch or dinner-time, ask one of your hotel bellmen for his recommendation for a close-by pub. It may be within walking distance or perhaps a short cab ride away. Typically, the food is good and moderately priced. Many pubs are arranged in such a way that diners are separated from the bar area, enabling them to welcome children. You can be certain the staff at the hotel will know the "best" alternatives to hotel restaurants.

When you are sightseeing in the London area, there are a number of excellent alternatives for lunch or an early dinner. Walking just a few yards off a main street will put you into a neighborhood atmosphere. Ask a shopkeeper or newsstand vendor for the location of a good fish-and-chips shop. Visit London without fish and chips and you miss one of the basics of British culture.

Wonderful Indian, Middle Eastern and Oriental restaurants are located throughout London's neighborhoods. They reflect the many different ethnic cultures in the city. Some of these restaurants serve more memorable food than others. Also, in many parts of London you will find familiar names such as McDonald's, Burger King, KFC and other American fast food chains. These are a real treat for Londoners and visitors from other countries, who find these staples of the American diet unique. With all the wonderful, exciting eating alternatives, though, there is little reason to visit these fast food outlets while on holiday.

The Knightsbridge area of London with the magnificence of Harrod's department store as well as the Victoria and Albert Museum, Beauchamp Street and Sloan Street, should be on everyone's London itinerary. In this area you will find numerous restaurants frequented by natives and visitors alike. A favorite of mine is across the street from the Sheraton Park Tower Hotel. The Belgravia Restaurant features a wide variety of delicious pot pies made with fresh vegetables along with other specialties. Nearby on Beauchamp Street (pronounced Beecham) the Vesuvio Restaurant features excellent Italian food, a good wine list and warm camaraderie.

All sections of the city boast some such restaurants. Not necessarily London's finest, most elegant dining, but surprisingly good fare for a place that not long ago was considered one of the worst "dining out" cities in the world.

'Mama': Powerful paean to faith and family

By Marion Trainor
Special Writer

You can't get much closer to real life than in "Love Your Mama," the story of a tough, courageous and loving mother determined to keep her children from falling victim to the poverty and hopelessness of the Chicago ghetto.

Sometimes she speaks less eloquently. When she suspects her oldest son is doing something wrong, she tells him, "If you lie, you'll steal and I hope I didn't give birth to no fool."

Mama (Audrey Morgan) is definitely no pushover. She practiced "tough love" long before it became a catch word for child psychologists.

None of her children ever questioned her authority or rebelled against it. They believed in her as a beacon of hope. They loved her and gave her respect. In turn she charted a way to self-respect for them. There are four children in the family: 17-year-old Leola (Carol E. Hall), 15-year-old Wren (Andre Robinson), 13-year-old Willie (Kearo Johnson), and 6-year-old Lois (Arteria Wright).

In the family also, but not part of it, is a stepfather, Sam (Ernest Rayford), who comes home drunk, gets visits from women he picks up in bars and spreads social diseases. The children are all for throwing him out but Mama refuses. To her he is just one more problem that time, patience and faith will change.

Mama's hopes and dreams rest with her children, particularly Leola, a bright and personable girl who is about to graduate from high school. She wants to go to college so she can open a day-care center. With no money, it seems an impossible dream. In one of the most moving scenes in the film, we see her praying in a one-room church. "I need a miracle, Lord," she pleads. "Please, I need a miracle."

Of the four children, Leola is like her mother: focused, determined and secure in herself, a good student, a school leader, apparently immune to the pervasive air of hopelessness that hangs like a black cloud over the neighborhood.

Wren is quiet, uncommunicative. He listens respectfully to mama with a questioning look in his eyes but also with love and concern for her. Willie has no problems. All he wants to do is hang out with Wren and Arteria is happy, safe and protected from the rough world outside the apartment.

Guiding her family with a firm hand, and looking forward to the time when they will have safely steered a course that takes them away from the corrosive life in the streets, Mama fails to realize the insidious effect of a deprived environment, and despite her best efforts, her kids go wrong.

Morgan's Mama is outstanding as the solidly built and steadfast mother who refuses to accept defeat. Carol E. Hall's Leola stands out. She is photogenic, graceful and her performance epitomizes all the problems youths have growing up in a deprived situation, and who work toward a dream and prove they are stronger than the barriers that stand in their way.

"Mama" gains credence because of its authenticity. Ruby Oliver, who produced, directed, wrote and picked every cast member, location and item in the wardrobe, ran a day care center for 20 years in Chicago.

"Love Your Mama" makes a powerful statement of faith and family. It is an inspiring film.

A no-nonsense pillar of strength, she works to instill the same determination in her children. "Where there's a will, there's a way," she tells them. "The Lord helps those who help themselves. And we're gonna help ourselves."

Black history tour featured

A tour of Detroit Black Historic Sites which were significant during artist Henry O. Tanner's lifetime is being offered on June 1 by the Detroit Historical Department in conjunction with the Detroit Institute of Arts Henry Ossawa Tanner exhibition.

The institute is hosting a national traveling retrospective of African American artist Tanner's work. The son of a former slave, Tanner achieved international prominence for his paintings which often paralleled biblical subjects and issues of social equality. His best-known paintings are a memorial portrait of Booker T. Washington and "The Banjo Lesson."

The historical department will use the Detroit Black Historical Sites tour to examine family life as well as cultural heritage and the history of the African American community in Detroit during Tanner's lifetime (1859-1937). In the year Tanner was born, Frederick Douglass and John Brown met in Detroit with members of the African American community to discuss methods for abolishing slavery in America. Tanner's middle name, Ossawa, is from Ossawatimie, Kansas, where Brown was hanged the year Tanner was born.

The cost of the tour is $10, which includes a copy of the historical department's publication "Black Historic Sites in Detroit." Tour participants will meet in the parking lot of the Detroit Historical Museum, 5401 Woodward, at 10 a.m. The tour will last 2-1/2 hours.

The DIA is also offering tours of the Tanner exhibition at 2 p.m., Wednesday through Sunday. Participants can meet at the exhibition's entrance.

St. Paul School honors former coach Eddie Lauer

By Rose Palazzolo
Special Writer

There is a kind of love-hate relationship between coaches and players. But if the sign of a good coach is how many of his players remember him with fondness rather than bitterness, then Coach Eddie Lauer was one of the best.

Lauer was the basketball coach for St. Paul School in Grosse Pointe Farms for 40 years. His grueling workouts prompted his players to call him Physical Ed. This hard work proved successful for St. Paul, especially during the 1950s and '60s.

"He really made us work," said David Ayrault, captain of Lauer's 1959 varsity team. "He would have us scrimmage three or four schools a day on Christmas break. We'd be falling down exhausted. And even though we were a Class C school we always scrimmaged against Class A teams, never against small schools."

A dedication ceremony will be held tonight at the St. Paul Athletic Club Family Banquet in St. Paul's gym in memory of Coach Ed Lauer. A plaque will be placed in the gym commemorating Lauer and the gym will then be dedicated to his memory.

Lauer died of a heart attack in 1983. His widow, Midge, lives in Grosse Pointe Farms. She and her daughter, Mary Alice Gnepper, who lives in Rising Sun, Ohio, with her husband Paul and their two children, will attend the ceremonies.

"He was an uncanny person," Mrs. Lauer said. "He's the kind of man that comes along once in a lifetime."

"He had a special relationship with the players. He thought it was very important that they do well academically. He always said, 'I don't want any dumb players playing for me.'"

Lauer began coaching at St. Paul in 1938. When the high school was closed in 1971, the Lakers had amassed 492 wins and 112 under Lauer. In 1961 and 1964 the team won the Class C state high school title.

Even more impressive is the fact that, under Lauer, the team rolled up 19 straight district championships. Between 1962 and 1964, St. Paul won the Catholic League's first division title. In 1963 the team beat the Public School League champion to win the city title.

When the high school closed in 1971, Lauer continued to coach at the grade school level for 10 years.

He graduated from the University of Detroit in 1936 where he was the first student in the school's history to receive a scholarship for basketball and baseball. He went on to play minor league baseball and coached football, basketball and baseball.

But basketball was his love.

"He was the most outstanding coach in the state," said Jack Wachter, who started at guard for the 1961 championship team. "He had the ability to motivate players. He was very positive, and he never cut a player. Everyone had his role and everyone accepted it."

Until 1964 St. Paul didn't have its own gym so the team practiced at Grosse Pointe South High School after South's team had finished. Lauer made up for this with in-

"One year we sort of went on strike," Ayrault said. "We had two scrimmages in the morning and one in the afternoon, and Coach Lauer had another scheduled for 7 p.m. We said no, and he agreed to let us off."

In 1964, Lauer had perhaps his best year as the team posted a record 23 wins and two losses (one of those losses came at the hands of Detroit Northwestern — a Class A School — in the city championship game). St. Paul won the Catholic League title, then went to the state tournament and won that.

It was a dream season," said Jim Bingham, starting guard for the 1964 state championship team. "It was Ed Lauer's 25th year at St. Paul and we wanted to win the championship for his anniversary."

The dedication ceremony for Lauer will be held tonight, May 30, at 6:30 p.m. in St. Paul's school gym. Tickets are $12 for adults and $8 for children. For more information, call St. Paul School at 885-3430.

Sailing teams at North and South are right on the mark

The Grosse Pointe South sailing team won the Midwest Interscholastic Yacht Racing Regional Competition April 27-28 at Columbia Yacht Club in Chicago. North's team finished second.

Seven high school teams competed for the right to represent the midwest at the High School National Championship at the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md., and two of those teams were North and South. The top 20 high school teams from across the nation competed May 10-12 for the 36-year-old Mallory Trophy.

Last year North was first and South was second at the regionals, but they ended up 14th and 18th, respectively, at the nationals. This year South finished seventh and North was 16th. The seventh-place finish was the best a North or South team has done in six years of sailing in the event.

In Annapolis, South was led by Mike Uznis and crew Andy Forester and alternate Mark Pinney in the B division, and Gretchen Uznis and crew Brad Kimmel in the A division. The two South teams combined for 245 points.

St. Petersburg High School won the event for an unprecedented fourth straight year.

North's A team of Dean Balcirak Jr. and crew Beth Weber finished sixth and the B team of Eric Ryan and crew Missy Bania and alternates Tricia Morrow and Mike Peters helped the team earn its 16th-place finish.

In individual events, North's Adam Lowry finished 25th and Rem Milligan of South was 26th in the Laser Division. It was the first time North and South had raced in the Lasers.

Both teams are coached by Dean Balcirak.

Coddens to hoop it in nationals

By Rob Fulton
Sports Editor

The versatile Stephanie Coddens has landed one of the most prestigious summer jobs a kid could want.

She won't be busing tables, she won't have to cut lawns or be a lifeguard. She just has to keep her laces tied and her basketball filled because she's headed for Tennessee.

Coddens, a sophomore at Grosse Pointe South, who triples as a soccer, volleyball and basketball player, has been selected to play for the Western Wildcats in the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) national girls' basketball tournament in late June.

"I'll be watching and learning from my teammates," said Coddens, who doesn't expect to get much playing time. "But I'll watch their moves and defense and that will only help my game when I try the skills on my own."

Coddens was selected to the team after coach Fred Thoman watched her play in the AAU state tournament.

Thoman was coaching the Wildcats and Coddens was playing for the Michigan Royals, who were eliminated in the third round.

"I think Coach Thoman might have noticed me because of the way I penetrated to the basket during the state tournament," she said. "He also spoke to Mr. Dailey (Royals' coach) and that might have been the key."

Coddens, who will play on one of only 44 teams invited to the nationals, will be backing up the No. 1 point guard.

Stephanie Coddens needs to raise $500 in order to play in the national AAU basketball tournament, and she's selling raffle tickets to help fund her trip.

"As a team player I've learned to see the floor and the players better," she said. "As an individual I'm learning how to train for myself. Coach has set up a schedule for every member of the team. He said it is our job to work out and if we want to win, then everybody is going to have to contribute."

Coddens' workout is rigorous. She must run for 20 minutes every other day, jump rope for 15 minutes a day, shoot and make 50 jump shots from both the right and left side of the key, and finish each day by canning 50 free throws.

"Coach is trying to teach every one of us to contribute and be leaders. I think that's important because then nobody feels lower than anybody else. Even those who aren't top stars contribute," Coddens said.

More than 500 college coaches are expected to attend the nationals, looking for future players. Coddens, with two years left at South, is a potential Division I player, but in order to showcase her talents in the nationals, she needs a little financial support.

"Each of us has to raise $500 by selling raffle tickets," she said. "That's a lot of money, but it should cover my expenses. I would appreciate anyone who would like to donate."

North kickers crush South, 6-1: win for Guido

By James Moore
Special Writer

Someone obviously was missing from Grosse Pointe North's Varsity girls' soccer team on May 22 in the pre-district qualifying game — their coach, Guido Regelbrugge was across the Atlantic in his homeland of Belgium, attending to family matters. His shouts of encouragement would not be heard; his motivational presence would not be there.

It changed nothing. The girls had to win. They were seized by some inexplicable, uncontrollable force from within themselves which urged them on, whispering in their ears, "Win this one for Guido!"

South attempted to set the tone for the game by scoring 20 minutes into the first half, but North answered resoundingly with a goal by Kelly Konsler from Gretchen Sazama.

"Konsler's goal got everyone pumped up ... it was great," said acting coach Cindy Bowman, who coaches the JV team for North. Konsler buried the ball in the upper right corner from 35 yards out, sending North into a frenzy at both ends of the field.

North scored again in the first half, only 10 minutes after their first goal. Felicia Paluzzi was assisted by Konsler on a throw-in, putting the team ahead 2-1 at the half — and they never looked back.

The beginning of the end for South in the second half came with Paluzzi's goal from Amy Shepley, a chip shot that went in as Paluzzi drove through the center of the South defense.

A breakaway involving a pass by Paluzzi to Holly Brooks led to North's fourth goal of the game. Brooks motored down the right-wing side and received a perfect pass to send the ball home.

The stake was driven into South with North's final goal of the game by Sazama, from Courtney Mack. South was not able to clear their zone immediately, which led to Mack regaining possession and dribbling quickly up the right-wing side for the feed to Sazama.

"I don't want to slight anyone ... but Paluzzi had to be the star of the game," Bowman said. Paluzzi has broken the record for the most goals scored in a single season, 67, by either a boy or girl player for North. The previous record was 49.

Bowman attested to the strength of the Lady Norsemen at other positions. "Our whole defensive line played a great game," she said, citing right fullback Megan Mack, left fullback Torrey Teetsert, and sweeper Jennifer Clein who made several slide tackles to foil South's breakaways.

Bowman also praised Jody Costello's shutdown of center-fielder Stephanie Coddons from South. "Jody played her match-up well, limiting Stephanie to only three shots on goal," Bowman said. Goalie Julie Heilscher's increased intensity was also a contributing factor in the win, according to Bowman. "Julie's usually quiet, but she played more aggressively today ... she sprawled across the goal when she stopped Coddons' free kick and blasted the ball out on another save," Bowman said.

"The midfield really hustled too. Those who came off the bench did an excellent job when I had to relieve the midfield," she said, naming Rebecca Damm, Katie Kutscher, Patricia Dugen and Bridget Murray.

Bowman maintained optimism with regard to future playoff games, but like the rest of the team, she hopes for Regelbrugge's return. "I'm confident that we can win the districts and advance to the Regionals, at least," she said. North will face Regina for the District title on Friday, May 24, after press time.

for Regina, when North put an early end to their playoff hopes by knocking them out in the pre-district game.

This year, North did it again by terminating Regina's season with a 1-0 victory in the pre-district round of the state playoffs on May 23.

The winning run for North came on Buffy Miriani's base hit in the 6th inning. The Saddlelites fought a losing battle against North's defense throughout the game. "They (Regina) couldn't get a key hit when they needed one," Taylor said, due mainly to the exceptional pitching of Melissa Drouillard, who struck out 10 Regina batters and allowed just one hit.

"She would let girls get on base at times," said Taylor about Drouillard's five walks, "but would stay strong to the end to retire the side. She was dominant throughout the game, pitching with great control."

Regina's pitcher also played well, giving up just two hits and striking out four.

Taylor made no changes in his lineup, relying on a core of one senior (Senter), junior Erica Barr, junior Drouillard, and junior Miriani. The formula worked, in spite of the absence of two juniors (Jessica DeSmet and Stephanie Gore) and one senior (Kelly Kunkel), all starters sidelined by injuries.

"Our five sophomores played flawlessly," Taylor said, hailing Heather Arioli, Laura Cartwright, Sharon Ciaramitaro, Alana Hansen and Stacey Kent.

"It was a balanced game, and without a doubt, our best team effort of the season. We hope to be back-to-back district champs," Taylor said about his young club, which will play in the district final game on Saturday, June 1, at North. North is favored to win the title.

Putting their erratic season aside, Frank Sumbera's Norsemen baseball team stepped up their level of play and emerged as underdog victors, 4-1, over Notre Dame on May 23 at Harper Woods High School in pre-district competition.

Right-hander Marc Adams, who pitched a one-hitter, was pivotal in achieving a balance in North's favor, aided by a "sound defense" which backstopped him, according to Sumbera.

"We played a strong game ... it was good to win after we lost so many regular season games by one run," he said. Adams was nearly unshakable during the regular season, with a 6-1 record. He played just as strongly in this all-important game, walking only two and striking out seven Irish batters.

The climax of North's fiery burst at the plate came in the fourth inning. Junior Paul Straske and senior Steve Craparotta both singled for North and were advanced by senior Tim Sacka's sacrifice bunt.

After two outs and sophomore Mike Haskell's walk, junior Gary Corona and junior Terry Thompson both singled, knocking in two runs for North. Jeff Jensen's single brought in another pair of runs.

North maintained defensive pressure into the sixth inning with good execution of a double play — but the Fighting Irish did not allow North to relax for too long, as Notre Dame pitcher Ray Ricken singled in the seventh inning, scoring Irish baserunner Mark Gunn.

Offensively, North chalked up seven hits against Ricken, led by Straske's two singles and Jensen's single and double.

North advances to the District game, which will be played at North on Saturday, June 1.

South sports

Devils go to districts

By Bill Leins
Special Writer

Grosse Pointe South used timely hitting and a strong pitching performance by Brian Downs to defeat Detroit South-eastern 5-1 in pre-districts at Manz Field last Thursday.

Downs pitched a complete game two-hitter and struck out seven to advance the Devils to district competition.

"Downs threw an excellent game. I thought he had great control over all his pitches. He also only threw about 80 pitches, which is not very high for a seven inning game," coach Dan Greisbaum said.

Downs kept the team alert defensively by throwing a lot of pitches that were hit on the ground. The infielders made only two errors despite the harsh playing conditions.

Offensively, South jumped ahead early 1-0 behind a triple by Brian Blake and an RBI double by Bill Leins.

The Jungaleers tied the score in the second inning when they put together their only two hits of the game. The run came on a ball hit down the line that jumped off third baseman Colm Moore's mitt on a bad hop and caromed into left.

But the Devils proved relentless as Leins tripled following a hit by Dan Minadeo and a walk to Blake which put the Devils ahead 3-1.

They scored two more insurance runs in the sixth after singles by Matt Recht and Jason Benavidez and a sacrifice fly by Nick Johnston.

"We had nine hits and four of them were extra base hits, and that's pretty good," Greisbaum said.

South has defeated South-eastern the past three years in pre-districts. They edged them 2-0 last year and this year it was no easy task either.

"They are a really sound ballclub with good discipline. They are really young as well," Greisbaum said. "People may think that since we're playing a PSL school that it is going to be easy. I know that it's not. Any team can beat any other team on any given day. Last year's game was proof. We almost lost to them. We have to come to play every day from here on in because if we take time to blink, we could be out."

South will face East Detroit, which beat Detroit Osborn 19-1, in the first round of the districts, on Saturday at North.

ULS sports

Girls' lacrosse ends season

The ULS girls' lacrosse team ended its season with a fourth-place finish in the Midwest Division II Tournament May 18.

ULS beat Wellington and Hudson, but lost to Seneca and Niagara Wheatfield. ULS finished at 6-9-3 overall on the year.

Prior to the tournament, ULS was 1-1 in games with Kingswood and Academy of the Sacred Heart.

The Knights topped Kingswood, 17-12, on goals by B.B. Ford (4), Cara Stackpole (3) and by Amy Mehr, Sarah Daugherty, Linda Morreale and Katy Campbell with two each. Liz Smith and Katrina Linthorst-Homan had one each.

Tekla Warezak, Amy Justice, Alexis DiNatale and Amy Greenfield, all of Grosse Pointe, skated with Team Elan, representing the St. Clair Shores Figure Skating Club, which won the Junior Division of the 1991 National Precision Team Skating Championships in Anchorage, Alaska. Team Elan beat out 11 other junior teams to capture its second national title. As a result, Team Elan has been selected for the third straight year to compete in an international competition in Sweden and Finland.

Stefani wins USTA tourney

Anthony Stefani, 8, from Grosse Pointe Shores, was one of two champions from Grosse Pointe who competed in the U.S.T.A. sanctioned tennis tournament in Birmingham May 3-5.

Stefani, John Berschback from the Shores, and Jeff Wheeler from the Farms, were three of 16 players from the Eastside Juniors who played in the tourney.

Stefani won the boys' 10-and-under division, defeating John Tapper, 6-1, 6-1. Berschback, 11, won the boys' 12-and-under division by defeating Vinay Tolia, 6-1, 6-3. Wheeler, 16, lost in the finals of the boys' 16-and-under division to Shigero Kusonoki, 6-3, 6-4.

Liggett junior earns second varsity letter

Tom Vallone, a junior at University Liggett High School, recently received his second varsity letter as a member of the Colgate University baseball team.

Vallone appeared in 10 games and made four starts as a pitcher for the Red Raiders this season. In 30 innings pitched, he had a 0-4 record with a 9.21 earned run average.

Higel, Jamerino swim in nationals

Christine Jamerino and Kim Higel, both swimmers with Pointe Aquatics, showed their strength at the junior and senior swimming nationals.

Jamerino, who will swim as a freshman next fall at North, finished 31st out of 115 swimmers in the 100 breaststroke at the Junior Nationals. The 13-year-old posted a time of 1:07.11.

Higel, an all-state swimmer at South, had strong showings in both the 100 and 200 backstroke, and her time of 1:05.57 in the 100 backstroke not only gave her a 17th-place finish out of 135 swimmers, but it qualified her for the Olympic Festival in July.

Boys basketball camp slated

The 1991 Bishop Gallagher boys' basketball camp for ages 9-14 begins June 17 at Bishop Gallagher.

The camp is conducted by head basketball coach Dave Stavale and staff with assistance from Bishop Gallagher players. Session I is scheduled for June 17-21. Session II is June 24-28. Both sessions run from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. There will be shooting contests, prizes, awards and T-shirts. The camp costs $70 per session. For more information, call Bishop Gallagher at 886-0177 or Dave Stavale at 886-5289.

Higel will represent the west region and is one of 52 top swimmers in the nation who earned the right to swim at the festival.

Higel also swam a 2:19.21 to finish 23rd out of 125 participants in the 200 backstroke.

GOLD CUP RACING SAYS YES!

“Yes, Yes, Yes!”

TO DETROIT

The Spirit of Detroit Thunderfest Inc. has taken a giant step toward capturing powerboat racing's most prestigious event, the APBA Gold Cup — for the city of Detroit — permanently! The usual procedure is for the Gold Cup to travel from city to city through a selection process that's based on the highest bid and other considerations.

Encouraged by a successful 75th Anniversary Gold Cup event in 1990, the all-volunteer THUNDERFEST group decided to try for three in a row. In an unprecedented move, they presented a “two more years” proposal to the Unlimited Racing Commission (URC) at the fall American Powerboat Association meetings. The first-time-ever multiyear bid was accepted. The Super Bowl of powerboat racing will return to Detroit in 1991 and 1992!

With the URC sending this strong message of faith to Detroit, city officials and local corporations began urging the THUNDERFEST Board of Directors to work toward seating the Gold Cup here permanently.

“We have some 400,000 spectators coming down to the Detroit River during race week,” comments Daniel Krichbaum, Director of the City of Detroit Recreation Department. “The city can and should be the permanent host of the prestigious Gold Cup contest.”

“Hydroplane racing could well become to Detroit what the Indy 500 is to Indianapolis and the Kentucky Derby is to Louisville,” says THUNDERFEST Chairman Dennis Denyer. “Pulling this off is a tricky proposition. It involves the continued support of the fans, the city and corporate sponsors. Most important, it depends on increasing our revenue base.”

There are a number of ways that fans and supporters of Detroit can assist THUNDERFEST in its Gold Cup quest. Individuals are encouraged to participate by attending the events or becoming THUNDERFEST volunteers. Volunteers assist with race week activities, ticket and advertising sales and event promotion.

Corporations can provide support through in-kind donations, sponsorship participation and entertaining customers and employees at the race.

“Detroit is already the undisputed ‘Capital of Hydroplane Racing,’” concludes Denyer. “We are, by far, the largest and the oldest continuing thunderboat race site in the world. The Gold Cup should be seated here.”

Interested in helping THUNDERFEST to become the permanent home of the Gold Cup? Contact our office at 313-772-0052 to find out how you can participate. ■

FANS WIN!

New Unlimited Automotive-Powered Class Hydro to Debut in Detroit

The first three adjectives overwhelmingly selected to describe unlimited hydroplanes are fast, beautiful and loud! When the super-sleek turbine-powered hydros swooshed on the scene in the mid-'80s, fast and beautiful still applied, but loud was lost.

Hydroplane racing fans put up a hue and cry. Loud was what they wanted.

It wasn't that the fans didn't take to the record-breaking turbines, because they did. After all, everybody loves a winner, and the jet boats were taking the checkered flag race after race. It was just that the earth-shaking, ear-splitting, whip-cracking noise was gone.

Since winning is what it's all about, race teams that could afford to switch did. Those that couldn't, either dropped out or decided to challenge the turbines. Even though most piston-powered teams managed to finish somewhere in the money, it was the turbine boats that led.

So, when the Unlimited Racing Commission announced that it was putting the "thunder" back into thunderboat racing by developing a new minimum 28-foot Unlimited Reciprocal (UR) Class designed to race in a companion program with the Unlimited (UL) Class, it was like a blast of fresh air for the roar-lovers.

Several Unlimited teams are developing new automotive-powered hydros to compete in the new class. Although fans won't be able to see (or hear) these new hydros racing head to head until 1992, a prototype, the UR-5 driven by popular veteran driver Scott Pierce and powered with twin MerCruiser engines, will be an entrant in the 1991 Gold Cup on the Detroit River in June — adding to the thunder of the gutsy older piston-powered favorites as they compete with the lightning-swift turbines. ■

Above illustration: The "thunder" returns to hydroplane racing with the debut of the UR-5 in the Detroit Gold Cup. This new 28-foot, automotive-powered hydroplane was developed as a prototype of the new Unlimited Reciprocal Class that will be run as a companion program with the ULs in 1992. Piloted by popular veteran driver Scott Pierce, it will compete head-to-head with the Unlimiteds this season.

Gutsy Grand Prix Races for Detroit's Exclusive SILVER CUP

At least 25 of the largest class of limited inboard race boats, Grand Prix Hydros, will be exploding across the Detroit River in pursuit of the Detroit Silver Cup and $47,000 in prize money June 6-9.

With only two rules — minimum weight of 2,200 pounds and maximum cubes of 500 — Grand Prix Hydro (GPH) racing is the last haven for free-spirited owners, drivers and builders. Contrary to many other racing sports, money alone will not make a winner here. Glory is only attained by the team having the best four-way combination of boat, motor, driver and crew.

Although the Grand Prix class began racing in Detroit in 1977, it did not start competing for the Silver Cup until '89.

The Silver Cup was commissioned by the Detroit Yacht Club back in 1946. The idea was to post the cup as a semi-feature for boats that did not qualify for the Gold Cup race. It was also put up for competition during those years that the Gold Cup was away from Detroit. The Silver Cup was run in Detroit for 16 straight years when, in 1961, the event was struck by tragedy.

Miss Supertest II, driven by Canadian Bob Hayward, rolled over while leading into the Belle Isle Bridge turn at the start of Heat 2A, fatally injuring Hayward. The remaining heats were cancelled. Distraught over Hayward's tragic death and discouraged by the advent of prize money, the Detroit Yacht Club pulled its support. The cup was brought out if its retirement home — a glass case in the lobby of the Detroit Yacht Club — for a one-time-only cameo appearance in the 1981 Detroit Unlimited event.

Then, in 1989, the Silver Cup made a full and successful comeback when six sleek Grand Prix Hydros, with well over 12,000 horsepower among them, vaulted across the Detroit starting line in Heat 1A in pursuit of this 43-year-old treasure.

The Grand Prix boats to watch this summer are the GP-151 driven by Detroit Jim King and the GP-115, also a Detroit-based boat, owned and driven by Paul Smith. Canadian entrants with promise are Daniel Brossort in GP-11, Jean Theoret in GP-929, and Jeff Richards in GP-444. ■

Grand Prix owner Paul Smith will be piloting his GP-115 in this year's Silver Cup.

Big Boy is a registered trademark of Elias Brothers Restaurants, Inc.

1. TUNNEL - The space beneath the hull proper and between the sponsons and airtraps. It constrains a cushion of air on which the hydroplane travels.
2. COCKPIT - A fully-enclosed "safety capsule" designed to protect the driver in the event of an accident.
3. DECK - The upper surface of the hull.
4. ENGINE - The motor that provides the power. A Lycoming turbine, World War II vintage Allison, Rolls Royce Merlin, Rolls Royce Griffon, or various automotive engines may be used. In this example, the engine is a turbocharged Allison.
5. ENGINE HOOD - Covers the engine compartment and improves the aerodynamics of the hydroplane.
6. NONTRIP CHINE - The vertical surface of the hull which is inclined to aid in cornering.
7. NOSE COWL - The front cowling. Its aerodynamic shape deflects the air around the cockpit and engine compartment.
8. PROPELLER - The only force that propels the boat. It may have two or three blades.
9. RUDDER - A submerged blade near the transom that turns the boat.
10. TRANSOM - The vertical surface across the back of the boat.
11. SKID FIN - The blade attached to the left sponson to help keep the boat from sliding to the right as it makes a turn.
12. RUNNER - The surface that touches the water at the bottom of each sponson. Changing its shape, angle of attack or dihedral changes the hull's ride.
13. CANARD WINGS - Adjustable wings on the leading edge of the deck. They change the flow of air over and under the hull, which in turn changes the lift.
14. SPONSON - The two pontoon-like parts at the front of the hull. When there is no deck between the sponsons, such as in this illustration, the design is called a "picklefork."
15. TAIL FIN - The vertical pieces that support the wing and that provide directional stability.
16. WING - The horizontal airfoil that helps stabilize a boat's attitude.
17. AIRTRAP - An extension of the inside "wall" that forms the boat's tunnel. Changing the length of the airtraps changes the hull's ride.

Kitchens, baths can help — or hinder — the sale of a home

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

Kitchens and baths: They're the best investments you can make in your home.

But on the other hand, a bad kitchen or bath can send potential buyers elsewhere.

"If you have a nice, updated kitchen and a nice, updated bath," said Realtor Robert Kitchen, "you're in business. It really sells the home — if it's also priced right."

Kitchen, whose father, Dallas, and grandfather built houses and commercial buildings throughout the Pointes, is a licensed builder as well as an agent for Coldwell Banker Schweitzer Real Estate on the Hill.

He explained that when buyers go through a home, their minds operate like adding machines. When they see old 1950s colors or fixtures in kitchens and baths, "Their adding machine goes off." He said they add up what it would cost to modernize a kitchen and bath — usually their estimates are high — and they expect the seller to come down in price accordingly.

That is, of course, if the buyers are still interested in the house. Many times they see a bad kitchen or bath and simply walk away.

A kitchen modernization can run anywhere from $5,000 for new counter tops and cabinets to $30,000 for a major renovation. But the good news is that homeowners will recoup 90 percent of their kitchen remodeling dollars when they sell their home.

"Kitchens are No. 1," Kitchen said. "Everybody, especially women, loves kitchens."

He pointed out that the kitchen, besides being a place for cooking and eating, is the main room for gathering. "The kitchen is very important for the family lifestyle," he said. "There's a lot of socializing going on in the kitchen."

Kitchen turn-offs:

- 30- to 40-year-old fixtures and materials, and no evidence of modernization.
  - Poor lighting.
  - Original counter tops and floors.
  - Dirty.
  - Out-of-date colors of appliances.
- Kitchen turn-ons:
- Brightly lit.
  - Modern, white appliances.

- A dishwasher.
- Brand names.
- Islands.
- Eating space.
- Pantry space.
- Good flooring.
- Good work space.

Kitchen said there are many new materials available, such as floor coverings and plastic laminates. He said one plastic laminate is the same color throughout, thus eliminating the dark corners typical of old laminates. Another popular material is granite, but it is very expensive, he said.

Sometimes, he said, a kitchen doesn't need a lot of work to look good. New hardware, some light-colored paint or a new counter top can do wonders.

"It'll look like a whole new kitchen," he said, "and really add value and saleability to the home."

Baths are the No. 2 investment, Kitchen said. They give a 75 percent return on investment when modernized and a 110 percent return when a bath is added on, such as for a master bedroom.

A bathroom remodeling runs about $5,000, while adding a bathroom costs a couple of thousand more.

"Tile plays a big part in bathrooms," Kitchen said. "Color of tile is the big thing."

Bath turn-offs:

- Original fixtures.
- Old-fashioned tile colors and flooring.
- Dim lighting.
- Dirty or missing grout.
- Old fixtures and faucets.

Like the kitchen, sometimes a bath can be salvaged without major construction. A matching shower curtain, shiny tile, clean grout, caulking and a new vanity, flooring or faucets and a little paint can help.

"If the tile is a neutral color," he said, "they can get away with a little decorating."

Kitchen reiterated that customers deduct bathroom and kitchen remodeling costs from the cost of the home, and they always figure high. It's better to fix up the two most important rooms in the house before you sell. Not only will you enjoy them, but the investment in kitchens and baths pay off in resale value.

Kitchen cautioned, however, that care should be taken when selecting a contractor. He said it's best to ask for references and call them.

Homeowners should get several estimates and plans before committing to any one contractor or plan. Sometimes good ideas can be merged into one plan that better suits the homeowners' needs.

Contractors should be reputable, licensed and insured.

The 16-page booklet, "You and Your Interior Designer: A Guide for Selecting and Working with Interior Designers," is published by the American Society of Interior Designers, the nation's leading professional interior design organization.

The booklet dispels the myth that professional designers are only for the wealthy.

"You and Your Interior De-

Herbs are here, there and everywhere

Each and every day, someone, somewhere finds a new and innovative use for easy-to-grow, multi-purpose herbs. In fact, there are nearly as many herbs as there are uses for them.

Everyone knows that herbs are ideal for spicing up soups, stews, vinegars, jellies and relishes, and that the right herb can add zest to fish, meat and poultry. Quite frequently, a common herb is the "secret ingredient" your grandmother talked about at the dinner table.

But herbs — actually parts of herbs, such as flowers, leaves, roots, seeds and bark — can be counted on for more than improving the flavor of food. Many doctors suggest eucalyptus herbal rubs or balms for their patients with strained muscles or mild back problems.

Herbs often are used for cosmetic purposes or artistic endeavors. People love to drink chamomile or scented geranium herbal teas and unwind from a hard day's work in a relaxing bath accentuated with sweet flag or sweet violet.

The appealing fragrance of dried herbs entices many either to buy or make their own pot-pourris, sachets and wreaths, which boast a long-lasting herbal aroma. Mint and rosemary are among the most popular herbs for this purpose.

The only thing most people don't seem to know about herbs is that they are among the easiest of all plants to grow. Gardeners appreciate their variety of shapes, sizes and colors, and put them to use in decorative containers or rock gardens, or as groundcovers.

When matched with annuals and perennials, herbs help make eye-catching additions to beds and borders. Many herbs spread quickly. A physical barrier, such as a landscape fabric, helps confine them.

Some herbs take less effort to grow than others, so it's important to decide before starting how much effort you intend to put forth. If you have time to spend, begin from seed. Otherwise purchase started seedlings or rooted cuttings. When planted, these tend to take root quickly, enabling the gardener to reap their benefits early.

Planting seedlings is a relatively simple process. Most herbs prefer full exposure to sun, though some require shade. For instance, dill (Anthem graveolens), Roman Chamomile (Chamaemelum nobile), chives (Allium schoenoprasum), parsley (Petroselinum crispum), English Lavender (Lavandula angustifolia), and coriander (Coriandrum sativum) all thrive in full sun.

Among the herbs that grow better in partial shade are mint (Mentha spp.), tarragon (Artemisia dracunculoides), chervil (Anthriscus cerefolium), thyme (Thymus vulgaris), and rosemary (Rosmarinus officinalis).

Herbs also vary as to their soil requirements. Some grow well in rich soil, others in moderately rich or sandy soil. And all have different watering needs. Specific planting directions should come with the seeding package. If not, ask the nursery salesperson or contact your local extension agent.

Light fertilizing in the spring with an all-natural fertilizer high in nitrogen helps herbs get off to a good start, but over-fertilizing results in large plants with less flavor and reduced aroma.

When planting seedlings between larger annuals or perennials, lay down a landscape fabric in order to limit the herbs' spreading capabilities. WeedBlock from Easy Gardener helps conserve moisture. Also, WeedBlock is molded with thousands of tiny "micro-funnels" which allow air and water through while blocking out 90 percent of the sunlight needed for weed growth.

Easy Gardener also produces White WeedBlock, a fabric with the same properties as WeedBlock, but which is white on top and black on the bottom. It's perfect for raising most herbs in the vegetable garden, as it blocks weeds and promotes plant photosynthesis by reflecting light to the underside of leaves. The reflected light also deters many unwanted shade-loving insects.

Once your herbs are growing well, parts can be pruned as needed, as long as enough foliage remains to allow regeneration. Herbs are best pruned on a cool, shady day. This enables the plant to recover before it must face a full sun again.

Leaves for drying should be pruned to the plant's flowering. Toss away damaged or diseased leaves and wash the good ones in cool water. Store them on a tray or rack out of the sun. Too much light ruins the flavor and bleaches the color. Next, crush the dried leaves and store away from light, perhaps in a freezer, until needed.

Herbs have been around for a million years, and probably will be for a million more. They're versatile and hardy, and with a little preparation, easy to grow. Whatever your need, there's bound to be an herb that's perfect for you. For more information on using landscape fabrics when planting herbs, call Easy Gardener, toll free, at 1-800-327-9462.

For more information, call the Macomb County Cooperative Extension Service Master Gardener Hotline, 469-5063 on Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Nasturtiums: Old-timely addition to garden

Modern gardeners can choose from dwarf, semi-trailing and single-flowered climbing nasturtiums for a variety of garden uses, from beds to containers to trellises.

Tom Stebbins, master gardener specialist in the Department of Horticulture at Michigan State University, says another reason gardeners like nasturtiums is that they're easy to grow.

"Nasturtium seeds are large and easy to handle," he said, "they germinate in seven to 10 days, and they grow quickly. They will grow in a wide variety of well-drained soils as long as they receive full sun and plenty of water."

The five-petaled flowers come in shades of yellow, red and orange, and they bloom nonstop all summer. Dark green, lily pad-shaped leaves provide a cool backdrop for the warm flower colors.

The dwarf cultivars, such as Whirllybird and Jewel, are bushy and compact and readily find a home in the annual bed, rock garden or container garden.

The Gleam series of semi-trailing nasturtiums won an All-America Selections award in 1935 and have been popular ever since. The semidouble and double flowers are large and fragrant. The trailing stems reach 2 to 3 feet in length, making them ideal for hanging baskets.

The single-flowered climbing nasturtiums produce 6- to 8-foot runners that climb readily on vertical structures such as latticework or trellises. The bright, fragrant flowers range from yellow and orange to rose and crimson. These plants can provide a nearly instant annual screen.

Nasturtiums are not without potential problems. Aphids are the big insect threat, though cabbage loopers and leaf miners may also dine on the foliage, and diseases such as fungal leaf spot and bacterial wilt may occur.

Avoiding overhead watering and planting in areas with plenty of air movement can help reduce disease. Because wilt bacteria can exit in the soil for years, avoid planting

With the warmer months approaching, some homeowners are considering home improvements, but are concerned by the horror stories about dishonest contractors.

"The good news is that by asking the right questions and looking in the right places, you can find a professional remodeler to do a job that will not only raise your home's value, but also make the home more enjoyable for many years to come," said Anthony Bellomo, a member of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan and co-chair of BASM's Remodelers Council.

Many homeowners like their neighborhoods and don't relish the expense and trouble of moving, but want a change in space or amenities. Remodeling makes it possible to upgrade and expand without moving and often rewards investment with a higher sale price if the house is later put on the market.

The percentage of a remodeling investment which will be returned depends on the job and the number of years until the house is sold. A minor kitchen renovation can return 100 percent of the initial investment, while a new skylight could return even more. A rule of thumb is that any improvement which brings a home up to the level of similar houses in the same neighborhood is a good one.

"While it may be tempting to go with the lowest bid, be careful," said Janet Compo, co-chair of BASM's Remodelers Council. "No two remodelers will do a job exactly the same way. When soliciting bids, be as specific as possible and ask the bidder to specify the materials and brand names on which he is basing the bid.

"One of the most important things that can be done to check up on a remodeler is to ask for a list of recent jobs he's done that are similar to yours," Bellomo said. "He may have done some super kitchen re-models, but that won't be much of an indication of how well he can add an additional level to your home."

Then, check up on the references and, if possible, visit the sites. A remodeler who can't give a fairly extensive list of satisfied customers is either inexperienced or has some other problem, neither of which bodes well when you're planning to invest your hard-earned dollars in a remodeling project.

To be protected from possible legal problems, it's important that you verify that the remodeler has the licenses and permits required to build in your district.

According to Compo, all this background work may seem like a hassle, but you only need to wait until an unqualified or dishonest remodeler leaves a half-finished job to find out what hassle really is.

The National Association of Homebuilders Remodelers Council offers an eight-page pamphlet with suggestions on what consumers should look for when interviewing and contracting with a remodeler. It's titled "How To Find A Remodeler Who's On The Level" and is available by sending 25 cents and a self-addressed, stamped business envelope to the NAHB Remodelers Council, 15th and M Streets, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20025.

A hot, dry site that leaves other summer flowering annuals parched and wilted is ideal for moss rose, or portulaca.

This low-growing annual thrives in hot, dry weather, needs very little care, and is essentially free of insect and disease problems.

Tom Stebbins, master gardener specialist in the Michigan State University Department of Horticulture, recommends moss rose to gardeners looking for easy-care plants that provide summer-long blossoms.

Portulaca can be seeded directly into the garden or transplanted, Stebbins says. Mix the tiny seed with sand to make them easier to handle, he advises. If you use transplants, handle them carefully to avoid injuring the delicate roots.

The ideal planting site is an unshaded southern or western exposure with sandy, well-drained soil. Because moss rose tends to have a shallow root system, it is often used in rock gardens, between the stones of paths, on dry slopes and in containers. Though moss rose is fairly adaptable to a wide range of soil types, a poorly drained area where the soil remains moist for long periods is not suitable.

Portulaca plants mound 4 to 6 inches high and often spread up to 2 feet. The fleshy, needle-like, pale olive green leaves are arranged alternately on trailing stems. The flowers are single, semi-double or double in colors ranging from white, cream and lavender to pink, yellow, orange and red.

The similarity between portulaca and old-fashioned rose flowers accounts for their common name, moss rose. The flowers are open only when the sun is shining on them. They close up on cloudy days, in the evening, and whenever they are watered or rained on.

In the garden, moss rose can be used to fill in around spring-flowering bulbs as their foliage dies down or to tie together the various species in a perennial garden. It can add bright color and interesting texture anywhere in the garden that a low-gardening plant is needed and conditions are right for it. It will thrive next to a south or west facing foundation wall where the reflected heat would bake many other annuals.

A close relative of moss rose, which shares many of its key traits, is purslane, a common weed in vegetable and flower gardens. Its leaves are more rounded than those of moss rose, but it also thrives in heat and drought, spreading readily across open soil. Purslane is a U.S. native; moss rose is believed to be a native of Brazil, from where it has spread to gardens throughout the world.

Lake level

Lake St. Clair at the end of April was at elevation 574.50 feet above the mean water level at Father Point, Quebec, or 34 inches above chart datum.

This was about 8 inches above what it was a year ago, and about 4 inches above one month ago.

The April monthly mean level of 574.40 feet was about 10 inches above the long-term average for April. The lake, however, remained about 22 inches below the all-time high April monthly mean level, which was recorded in 1986.

The forecast shows that at the end of May, the level of Lake St. Clair will be about 3 inches above what it was at the end of April. The level of the lake is expected to continue its seasonal rise into June.

The water level in October 1991 is expected to be about 8 inches above the long-term average for that month, or about 1 inch above what it was at the same time in 1990.

PLEASE DON'T DELAY! SPAY or NEUTER YOUR PET TODAY!
An altered pet is a healthier and happier companion. Also, it spares you the grief and pain of having puppies and kittens destroyed when no homes can be found. Countless numbers of sweet, innocent little ones are euthanized every day in shelters across the country because a pet wasn't spayed or neutered. If we cut down on the numbers of unwanted litters being born, we will also cut down on the number of abandoned, lost and unwanted animals to destroy.

"we've got to be out of our current house in two months"

"offer this $ but keep in mind we'll pay $5,000 more"

"This is the best house we've seen in 6 months. We'll pay whatever they want"

"our furniture is a perfect match with this house. If we have to sell it, we won't be able to re-decorate"

As ludicrous as it may sound, that's what you're really doing each time you buy real estate without a BUYER'S broker agreement.

When sellers list their property with a real estate company, all agents (even agents of other companies) must act in the best interest of that seller-client.

That means what you thought was a confidential remark made to the agent must, by law, be passed on to the seller.

But, you the BUYER can have an agent working in your best interest by utilizing a BUYER'S brokerage agreement.

Only then do you become a client and the agent is obligated to give you the full benefit of their experience and expertise.

So, when you're the BUYER of real estate, gain the benefit of equal representation at no extra cost - become a client.

Increase Your Resale Value

There are so many things you can do to increase the resale value of your home that it's hard to decide which project will be best when it comes to the bottom line. Here we'll discuss 14 different projects, their costs and resale value increases.

- Room addition: Build a 15x25-foot addition on a poured slab foundation, with matching sidewalls and roof, and a dry-wall interior with batt insulation. Include two ventilating skylights, a patio door and electrical outlets. The estimated remodeling cost would be $31,841, and the estimated resale value would be $23,880.
- Major kitchen remodeling: For an estimated $21,660 you could add new cabinets, countertops, energy-efficient appliances and custom lighting. That figure would also allow for a new floor, wall coverings and ceiling treatments. The resale value would increase by about $19,277.
- Minor kitchen remodeling: To increase the resale value around $7,338, refinish cabinets, install an energy-efficient appliance, new countertops, cabinet hardware and some new decorating. The cost for this project is estimated to be $7,976.

- Bathroom remodeling: Add a new tub, sink and toilet, plus a new vanity, medicine cabinet, ceramic-tile walls in the tub area and a ceramic-tile floor. The estimated cost is $6,743 with an estimated resale value increase of $5,057.
- Adding a full bath: Including everything from remodeling a bathroom (mentioned above), building an additional 5x7-foot bathroom to the home's existing structure would cost around $9,658. The good news is the resale value of this project is $11,590.
- Adding a fireplace: For an estimated cost of $3,625, you can install an energy-efficient, factory-built fireplace. This would increase your resale value by $4,894.
- Adding insulation: Increase your resale value by about $1,310 when you add a depth of eight inches of blown-in wood-fiber insulation to the outside walls of your attic. This project would cost about $1,680.

- Adding a greenhouse: Spend around $16,347 to get an 8x13-foot prefabricated addition with double-glazed, tempered glass, two louvered windows and one 30-inch door with a concrete floor over crushed stone. The resale value goes up an estimated $6,538.
- New siding: Replace existing siding with 1,500 square feet of vinyl, aluminum or steel siding using 1/4-inch foam insulation board for about $7,536. The estimated resale value is $7,536.
- Replacing windows and doors: This project, costing about $10,995, involves replacing 16 windows with aluminum, wood or vinyl-insulated glass windows. Replace entry doors with two wood prime entry doors and add storm doors. The estimated cost is $10,995, and the estimated resale value is $7,806.

- Adding skylights: This project, costing an estimated $3,462, would involve installing three 3-by-3-foot, manually operated, ventilating, insulated glass skylights. Two would go in the primary living area and one in the master bedroom or bathroom. This project would increase the resale value about $2,077.
- Reroofing: To add a new roof, you would need to remove the existing roof and then install 3,000 square feet of fiberglass or asphalt shingles with new felt surface underneath. For an estimated cost of $4,507 your resale value will increase about $4,056.
- Adding a wooden deck: To increase your resale value an estimated $5,181, add a 16x20-foot deck of pressure-treated pine. Include railings, a built-in bench and a planter. The estimated cost for this project is $6,242.
- Adding a swimming pool:

The cost to add a 16x32-foot, in-ground, deep-end pool with aluminum walls, a vinyl liner, a surrounding surface of three-inch concrete, a filter system, accessories and maintenance equipment is about $23,660. Surprisingly, this addition would have an estimated value of only $5,915.
