Aglow for Christmas

The Pointes are shining for Christmas again this year. Above, Dr. and Mrs. Douglas Ross have done an elegant job of decorating the historic Wardwell House (circa 1700s) on Jefferson at Three Mile in the Park. It is the oldest brick house in the Pointes.

Right, top, the Eldridges in the Shores have a huge snowman drawing visitors and startling passersby on Lakeshore.

Right, bottom, the Owens family on Brys east of Mack in the Woods went way out to have the most detailed Christmas decorations by far.

New drunken driving laws bring sobering penalties

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

The wisest New Year's resolution you can make for 1992 is don't drink and drive.

On Jan. 1, a spate of new drunken driving laws goes into effect with penalties ranging from automatic loss of all driving privileges to possible time in prison.

If you're stopped for operating under the influence of alcohol (OUIL) and found to have a blood alcohol level of .10, police will cut up your license and issue a temporary driving permit, which will be good throughout the judicial process.

The new laws say you will (with few exceptions) be arraigned within 14 days, will have a pretrial conference within 35 days and will be found guilty or innocent within 77 days.

If you're guilty and it's your first drunken driving offense, your license is suspended for six months to two years and during the first 30 days you lose all driving privileges — you can't even get a restricted license to go to work.

Also, courts can (and Pointe judges do) impose additional sentence requirements, such as community service and substance abuse counseling, for even first-time drunken drivers.

Of course, you also have to pay court fines and fees and legal expenses, which can run up to thousands of dollars. Also, your insurance premium may be tripled due to a drunken driving conviction.

In Grosse Pointe Park, the sentencing depends on the circumstances and driving and substance abuse histories of the convicted driver, said Municipal Judge Kirsten Frank.

A typical first-time drunken driver's sentence in the Park will include a fine, screening, 30-month probation, three-day house arrest and substance abuse evaluation and, if the facts warrant, a weekend substance abuse counseling program at Cottage Hospital.

After your suspension has ended, you must go to the secretary of state office and pay $125 to get a new license. Under the old law, you could have received a restricted license right away and the cost to get a new license was $60.

If you're found innocent, you still have to go to the secretary of state office, but the cost for a new license would be $6.

If you are found guilty of a second drunken driving offense, you must serve a minimum of 48 consecutive hours in jail or perform 10 days of community service. Under the old law, there was no minimum mandatory sentence for second offenders.

And if you get caught driving on a suspended license, you are fined a maximum of $500 for the first offense and up to $1,000 the second time you're caught. The maximum fines used to be $100 and $500, respectively.

If open liquor is found in your car, you get two points on your driving record.

In fatal or injury accidents, you can be found guilty of a 15-year felony for killing someone while driving drunk or a five-year felony if you incapacitate someone.

Furthermore, if you have a previous drunken driving conviction, you can no longer appeal your license revocation to circuit court due to hardship — that is, being unable to get to work.

Under the new laws, you can also be arrested for drunken driving on private property that is "generally accessible to

Bogus cop fleeces man; banker foils 2nd scam

Assistant Editor

An attempted pigeon-drop scam that began outside a store at Mack and Moross in the Farms almost cost a 76-year-old Detroit woman her life's savings last week, but an alert bank manager foiled the crime.

The incident followed a Dec. 3 scam at the same location in which a man posing as a Farms police officer confiscated a 60-year-old Detroit man's wallet, watch and keys and drove off.

About 1 p.m. Dec. 10, the Detroit woman was leaving a store and was approached by an older-looking man with a gray goatee and sideburns. He asked her where the Council of Churches was. She said she didn't know, and while they were talking they were approached by a woman, who was described as being in her late 20s.

She said to the man and woman, "Look what I found," and then showed them a brown, accordion-type envelope.

Inside was a bank envelope containing what looked to be a large bundle of money. The face on the outside bill was covered with a Lotto ticket. The ends of the bundle were secured with official-looking money wrappers that read $100.

The younger woman said she knew someone at the bank at Mack and Warren who could tell them what they should do with the money. She then told the man and woman to get into her gray Mercedes and they rode together to the bank.

She went inside the bank and then returned, saying the woman she wanted to talk to was in a meeting and that they would have to call the bank in 15 minutes. They then rode to the Detroit woman's home on Grayton. While there, the young woman made several phone calls.

They left the home and drove to the Comerica bank branch at Mack and Hillcrest. The Detroit woman went in and asked to withdraw a large sum of money from her account.

A bank manager became suspicious and questioned the woman. The manager told her she was being tricked and called Detroit police.

A Farms officer, who was monitoring a Detroit police broadcast that a pigeon drop was in progress at the Comerica branch, saw a Mercedes pull away from the curb on Mack across from the bank and then enter the Mack-Moross parking lot. The car's occupants matched the description of the pigeon-drop suspects.

The Mercedes pulled into a parking space, and the older man and young woman went into a store. The Farms officer was circling the block when she was flagged down by a Detroit officer. The pigeon-drop victim was in the back seat of the Detroit police car. When the Farms officer described the suspects, the woman said that was them.

The officer then saw the Mercedes leave the parking lot and head south on Moross. She attempted to follow the Mercedes but lost it at Fisher and Kercheval. She broadcast

Pointer of Interest Diane Hathaway

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Park's Diane Hathaway loves a challenge.

That's why, after several years of being a full-time wife, mother of two, and real estate broker, she went to law school to achieve her life's ambition: She wants to be a judge.

A Macomb County assistant prosecutor, Hathaway lost the election last year for Wayne County Probate judge by less than 1 percent of the votes, but she's not deterred.

"I will be a judge before I die," she said.

Hathaway is one of five children who grew up in Detroit. She listened with rapture to the stories told by her father, a Detroit police officer.

"But I didn't think of becoming an attorney then, even though I was fascinated with his world," she said.

She became an X-ray technician, but it wasn't fulfilling because the job didn't allow her to get to know the hundreds of people she processed every week.

She married Richard Hathaway — they met when he was her sister's high school teacher — and she continued at the X-ray clinic while he went to law school.

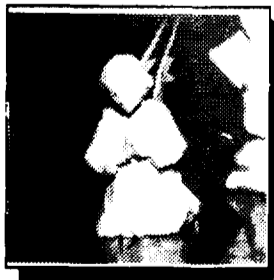

"I feel like I've gone through law school twice; once with him and once with myself," she said.

When her husband landed a job in the Wayne County prosecutor's office she was again en-

Bryant submits East Pointe secession bill; backers elated

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

A bill that would provide a procedure for secession of a specific area from Detroit was introduced in the House Dec. 11 by state Rep. William R. Bryant Jr.

If the bill is approved by the Legislature as written, a secessionist group could break away from Detroit and create its own city in as little as 74 days, and built-in deadlines limit the process to 610 days.

House Bill 5401 would allow the secession of 550 blocks from Detroit's east side along Mack Avenue if a majority of the residents affected agree on a ballot proposal sanctioning the move. The group working for secession calls itself the East Pointe Alternatives Committee, which is now sometimes being confused with East Detroit because voters in that city in November approved a name change to Eastpointe.

Bryant, R-Grosse Pointe Woods, whose district includes a portion of the proposed East Pointe area, said that present law, which is unclear, allows an area to secede only if a majority of all the voters of the parent city agree.

"This bill comes at the right time," he said. "If the Baltic states and republics in the old USSR can secede, why not people in an area of the city?"

"Not all people who live on the east side want to secede, but in this era of self-determination, why not let them vote? We don't want a Yugoslavia situation where the Serbs won't let the Croats leave the union."

Doug Allor, chairman of the East Pointe Alternatives Committee, said some Lansing lawmakers favor allowing neighborhoods to secede from Detroit and create their own city.

"We're happy," he said about Bryant's bill. "What else could I ask for? Let's face it, this is like Christmas. What the heck, it is Christmas."

He said the committee must now work to convince lawmakers to approve the bill. He urges all supporters to write to state representatives and senators.

Bryant's "20:20:20" provisions in the bill permit a territory to consider detaching from a city if it meets the following requirements:

- 1) is less than 20 percent of the parent city's population;
- 2) comprises less than 20 percent of the parent city's area;
- 3) at least 20 percent of the affected residents sign a secession petition.

The proposed East Pointe area is 5.1 square miles and comprises 43,072 residents, 17,673 households and 1,350 businesses. The area is bounded by Balfour, Bedford and Hayes to the west, Kelly to the north, Kingston to the east and Mack to the south. It borders Harper Woods and Grosse Pointe Woods, Farms, City and Park.

Within 70 to 120 days after the secession petition has been filed with the county, a ballot proposal must be put before the voters in the affected area.

If a majority of the voters approve the secession proposal, then the new city's organizers have 90 days to submit an interim city charter and set up a temporary government. The interim government must also have public safety services in place.

The new city's election must be held within a year after the secession proposal is approved by voters.

The bill also states that the parent city must turn over all municipal property in the affected area to the new city, including equipment formerly used by the parent city to maintain the detached area.

The new city must pay the parent city a "reasonable amount" for the property and equipment.

The parent city must also continue to provide water and sewer services to the new city and must limit fees to levels comparable with those paid by other municipalities.

There are no provisions in the bill covering what the new city would do about a school system, Bryant said, because district boundaries are covered by different statutes.

He acknowledged the bill as proposed will have "extreme difficulty getting passed," but it does provide a good starting point for discussion, he said.

HB 5401 is currently in the towns and counties committee.

Shines in memory

Thousands of tiny lights are again sparkling for the holiday season through the branches of the 40-foot tree next to Cottage Hospital. This year they shine in memory of Elise M. Fink, the honorary trustee of Cottage Hospital who died in October and for whom the annual tree was created.

The Elise M. Fink Christmas tree has brought a glow to the hospital and the Hill area since 1988 when it was adorned by her family as a lasting tribute and in celebration of her 50th year of service as an active trustee and an honorary board member of Cottage Hospital.

Martinuzzi honored for innovative work

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Although she's only been teaching for five years, Dori Martinuzzi has received the 1991 Learning Disabilities Association of Michigan Award of Excellence for her leadership and creativity in teaching the learning disabled in Grosse Pointe.

Martinuzzi, who teaches speech pathology at Maire and Trombly schools was nominated by the Grosse Pointe chapter of LDA.

In the nominating letter, the local LDA chapter said Martinuzzi "has consistently gone beyond the requirements of her job to provide these students with a total learning experience, not limited to the classroom. She has provided leadership and education to both parents and her teaching colleagues so that students' learning does not end in the classroom, but is made a part of the fabric of their day."

Martinuzzi was honored at a recent Grosse Pointe school board meeting.

Her innovative teaching style emerged almost immediately upon being hired by the Grosse Pointe schools after earning her undergraduate degree from Michigan State University and her master's degree in speech language pathology from Eastern Michigan University.

Dissatisfied with the way speech and language problems were dealt with — pulling students out of their classrooms into an isolated speech room for drill and practice — she began working with students in the classroom. But she didn't simply drill her students, she gave them pragmatic language lessons.

"I help them with the skills that we all develop along the way, but many LD kids don't," Martinuzzi said. "Things like maintaining eye contact, understanding slang, using a telephone. These are the kind of skills that are necessary to be taught."

The teaching method was so successful that it was expanded — with the help of LD teacher Deb Sutherland — into "Language in Action," a summer program offered through Grosse Pointe Community Education which focuses on students between the ages of 9 and 13.

"I take the students out into the community to help them develop skills that we take for granted, like going out to lunch and ordering from a menu, going to the grocery store — we even went to a television station and talked to people about their jobs," she said.

Not only does the class assist students with their social skills, it helps them maintain self-esteem and eliminates the backlog of most students experience during the summer.

"George Eddington (director of community education) took us on when we weren't really sure how it was going to work, and he's kept asking us back every year," she said.

Martinuzzi also helped start a summer enrichment program for children age 3 to 6 whose speech or language problems put them at risk of failure in school. Another program, called Primary Steps, is offered to 7- and 8-year-olds.

She has also reduced the practice of pulling students out of their regular classrooms to work on speech. Instead, she works on speech problems in the classroom, integrating the speech lessons with the students' daily lessons, making everything more meaningful for the student.

"I think that's where our field is going," she said.

Martinuzzi, who's 28, said she has always wanted to be a teacher, probably because her parents are teachers.

"I grew up seeing the effects they had on children," she said. "And when I went to college I realized that my focus needed to be in special education. I felt I could help them."

"I was extremely honored by the award. It was such a surprise. There are many, many deserving people for this award. I get an incredible amount of support from Sue Klein (director of special education for the district), from the other LD teachers and from the parents and the LDA association."

2 Woods officials given bonuses

Chester E. Petersen, Grosse Pointe Woods city administrator-clerk, and Clifford Maison, city comptroller, were awarded bonuses by the city council on Monday.

The cash bonuses are for outstanding job performance.

Petersen was awarded $5,000, the highest amount that the Woods city administrator-clerk may receive as a bonus. Maison received $1,250.

The bonuses will be paid this month.

Council divvies jobs

Grosse Pointe Woods city councilmembers have received their commission and committee assignments for the upcoming year.

Commissions are made up of a group of residents and a council representative, and meet once a month. Committees are composed of two councilmembers and Mayor Robert E. Novitke, and meet only when there are items to be discussed.

New councilman James Alogdelis will serve on the cable television board, the parking commission, the public relations committee, the public safety committee, and as chair of the parking committee.

Councilman Ted Bidigare will serve on the pension board, the Grosse Pointe Clinton Refuse Disposal Authority board, the beautification commission, the insurance commission, the judicial liaison committee, the beautification committee, the parks and recreation committee, and as chair of the assessment committee.

Councilman Bill Wilson will serve on the Grosse Pointe Clinton Refuse Disposal Authority, the historical commission, the planning commission, beautification committee, parking committee, public works committee, and as chair of the public safety committee and planning committee.

Councilman Thomas Fahrner will serve on the Community Development Block Grant board, local officers compensation commission, construction committee, senior citizens committee, planning committee, and as chair of the judicial liaison committee and the Mayor's Mack Avenue Business Study Committee.

Councilman Peter Gilezan will serve on the recreation commission, compensation and evaluation committee, the Mayor's Mack Avenue Business Study Committee, and as chair of the construction committee, finance committee, the newly-formed environmental compliance committee, and the parks

The dreaded 'List'

We don't really know who shot JFK.
We don't really know who shot Martin Luther King.
We don't really know how Marilyn Monroe died.
We'll probably never know exactly what transpired between Anita Hill and Clarence Thomas.
And I don't think I really care to know the details of what is purported to have gone on between William Kennedy Smith and the "alleged victim."

What I do know is that I am exceedingly grateful that all the hostages have been released, that we will probably learn considerably more than we have known about the conditions of their internment, and that there will always be a good portion of information to which we will probably never gain access.

I am grateful, too, to live in a country where I have the freedom to turn off the television and to make choices. I am able to watch the sudsy soaps or dish the dirt with the clowns in Palm Beach.

What I do know is that there are only a precious few days left until Christmas. The charity checks went out early enough to be used for the holidays, the food will be prepared at the last minute, as is always the case at our house (just part of the happy confusion). However, it is long past time that I consult "The List." You know the one I mean, the list with all the specifics in parentheses. A sampling follows:

- Shirts (natural fibers only, please no blends, only 100 percent cotton acceptable).
- Sports shirts (logos can include polo players and alligators, arms must not be fitted, but hang loose, smooth lisle preferred over mesh lisle.)
- Boxer shorts (always 100 percent cotton, natch).
- Sneakers, gym shoes — An entire chapter could be written here. If we use our shoes for tennis, we don't want running shoes, or jogging shoes, or walking shoes. We may want high-tops regular, canvas or leather. The choices are endless.
- Blazers (all wool, no synthetics, not short-cropped, long and swingy).
- Skirts (either very long or very short).
- Shoes — Don't even bother; they have to be tried on and my taste simply wouldn't cut it.
- Blue jeans (one wants nothing but button fly, another wants zip fly only. There is only one brand name acceptable and the tag must be red, not orange. The jeans must never be stone-washed; we do this ourselves and turn everything in sight blue until the desired shade is achieved).

• Ties (the conservatives are still in residence, no flowers yet, keep it quiet and safe, a stripe or foulard will do nicely.)

• Musical selections — This is absolutely forbidden territory. No parent should attempt to purchase music for his or her child without a specific list in hand.

This could go on and on, but I think you get the gist. Parents tell their children that they have everything they need, which is no help at all because you know the parents will spend twice as much time trying to find the perfect present.

One encouraging note — I recently read that large gems are out. Thank goodness we don't have to buy five carat stones for the kiddies. Even their peers will know that littler clusters for rings will be in this year. Now we can all sleep again!

My common sense tells me that although the list is incomplete and sketchy at this point, it is time to tackle it. If old patterns continue, we will still be buying stocking stuffers at zero hour. Santa's workshop in our house will have to be cleaned to make way for house guests and we are hopeful that this fact will spur us on.

If I pass you on the street and neglect to greet you, please forgive me. I have pressing matters on my mind and am not responsible for my manners in December. I will allow you the same latitude and we can laugh together in January. These purchases are extremely important. After all, entire reputations can be ruined by a parent's poor choice in clothing for his child.

And maybe, just maybe, some year we can do it "my way," just the meaningless stuff and deck the halls. I do admit I go overboard on the decorations. Get ready, get set, go — listen to the piped Christmas music, smile at your fellow shoppers, drop a few coins in the proffered cups and have a good time.

2 Pointe coast guardsmen recognized

Two U.S. coast guardsmen, both Grosse Pointe Park residents, were recognized recently for their "heroic" efforts to contain a fire and damage resulting from the explosion of the tankership Jupiter in Bay City last September.

Capt. Tom Daley, commanding officer of the Coast Guard's Marine Safety Office at the foot of Mount Elliott in Detroit, received the Meritorious Service Medal, and Lt. Cmdr. Jim Spitzer, executive officer of Daley's unit, received the Coast Guard Commendation Medal.

The medals are the highest lifesaving awards bestowed by the Coast Guard.

Daley and Spitzer were among 400 people from three dozen private, federal, state and local agencies who participated in the mutual-aid response to the Jupiter explosion.

"If the Coast Guard had a medal for teamwork," Daley said, "everyone involved in the Jupiter operation would get one. I have never witnessed such outstanding cooperation. Everyone involved knew their job and did it well."

The Jupiter exploded and caught fire Sept. 15 at the Total Petroleum wharf on the Saginaw River. Of the 18 crewmen on board, 17 were rescued and one drowned.

The Jupiter had about 1.3 million gallons of unleaded gasoline in its tanks when the fire started. Firefighting efforts continued for two days, during which the fires re-ignited and more explosions occurred. The river was closed to vessel traffic for several weeks during the salvage operation, which lasted six weeks.

A Yule plea: Provide help for ALL kids

Grosse Pointes often say that our most precious resource is our children. Our belief in that statement explains Grosse Pointe's generous support for its public schools and community programs that benefit children.

Yet nationally the United States is not doing enough to support preschooling, health care and other programs that make it possible for this great national resource to be fully developed.

At Christmas, it's appropriate to take a look at a new report that cites the needs — and ways to meet them.

A new survey of 7,000 kindergarten teachers by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching finds that 35 percent of all youngsters entering kindergarten are unprepared to learn.

Even worse, 42 percent of the teachers say children are less ready to learn now than they were five years ago. The teachers add that most children lack the skills in vocabulary and sentence structure to succeed in school.

Opinion

In Michigan, the report says, 27 percent of the children are not ready to start school. That statistic fortunately puts this state well above the national average of 35 percent and just slightly higher than the pace-setting 23 percent reported in North Dakota and 24 percent in Minnesota and Connecticut.

The report by the Carnegie Foundation finds that children are burdened by poor health care, overworked or inattentive parents, scarce child-care and pre-school opportunities, unsafe neighborhoods, mindless TV programs and isolation from adults.

Under these circumstances, is it any wonder that American youngsters, once they start school, do not measure up to the performance of students enrolled in schools in Western Europe and Japan?

"America is losing sight of its children," the report says. "In decisions made every day we are placing them at the very bottom of the agenda with grave consequences for the future of the nation."

So what needs to be done?

The commission recommends a wide range of actions. Just to improve health care, nutrition and preschools, it calls for spending almost $20 million in the next decade to expand programs such as Head Start preschools and the Federal Women, Infants and Children nutritional supplements to reach more eligible families.

It recommends placing "ready-to-learn clinics" in every poor area to offer health and education services. It proposes nationwide parent education programs as well as a national parents' guide to school readiness.

It recommends other measures to attack such problems as the small proportion of low-income American children — only 40 percent — who attend preschools and the even smaller proportion of American parents who read regularly to their children.

Overall, the report emphasizes that intervention in the early years could save funds required by remedial activity in later years. And it calls for support not only from parents and educators but from business, industry and even television.

It wants employers to give parents two paid days off every year so they can visit children in day care centers and meet with teachers. It urges the TV networks to offer at least one hour of preschool educational programming each week. And it recommends that shopping malls provide "ready to learn" centers at which children could learn and play.

Such recommendations deserve careful consideration and several of them — such as improvement in health care and expansion of Head Start programs — surely warrant support even before the entire package is studied in Washington.

The report does not suggest ways to raise the billions that its recommendations would cost over the next 10 years. But it does call for leadership which our "education president" to date has exercised chiefly in proposing the restructuring of public schools without facing up to the many needs of our children that can only be met by programs that cost money.

This Christmas season would be an appropriate time for President Bush to broaden his perspectives.

Redistricting by judicial panel?

Chances are good that the legislative redistricting based on Michigan's 1990 census results once more will wind up in the hands of a state judicial panel.

The likelihood that three judges would redraw the districts became apparent when the state Supreme Court appointed a judicial panel and said if the Legislature hasn't completed the redistricting by Jan. 15, the panel should do so by Feb. 15.

Senate Majority Leader Richard Posthumus sees only about a 25 percent chance that the divided Legislature, with the GOP controlling the Senate and the Democrats the House, could reach agreement on reapportionment by the deadline. That would mean the judicial panel would take on the job.

The three appointees have been praised by seasoned observer George Weeks of the Detroit News as a "superb panel" that "has no partisan tilt, and provides geographical, philosophical and racial balance."

Sober warning

If you drink, don't drive always has been a good holiday warning but it will take on even more meaning on Jan. 1.

On that date, strict new state laws will go into effect to seek to reduce the number of motorists who drive while under the influence of alcohol.

As outlined in a story in today's paper, the new laws spell out tougher penalties ranging from automatic loss of all driving privileges to prison sentences.

A word to the wise motorist ought to be sufficient.

A state challenge for Bush

Over Republican Party opposition, David Duke last week was ruled eligible to appear on Michigan's March 17 presidential primary as a Republican.

Since Pat Buchanan, the former staff member for two other GOP presidents, also was deemed eligible, President Bush is likely to face at least two GOP challengers in Michigan as well as perhaps as many as seven Democrats.

Secretary of State Richard Austin said that Duke as well as Gov. Mario Cuomo met the ballot test under the state law that requires listing candidates "generally advocated" by the national news media.

That means that the New York governor is eligible to join the six other Democrats who already have announced their intentions. Other candidates may be nominated by the two party chiefs or by petition. All have until Jan. 10 to file affidavits of candidacy with Austin's office.

As for Duke, the GOP is disappointed with Austin's decision but will reluctantly accept it. A GOP spokesman told

That appears to be a fair assessment of state Court of Appeals Judge Harold Hood, former Court of Appeals Chief Judge John T. Lesinski and former 28th Circuit Court Judge William Patterson.

Just how the Grosse Pointes will be affected by a reapportionment either by the Legislature or the panel is obviously unknown at this early date.

However, Rep. William Bryant Jr., the veteran House member who serves the Pointes, already has raised strong objection to any possible move to split up the Pointes' 13th Legislative District that he has represented for more than 20 years.

Bryant's message was obviously intended to try to forestall any Democratic effort to duplicate in the Pointes' legislative district what the Wayne County District Commission did in the 1st Commissioner District when it split off the Park from the rest of the Pointes.

However, he thinks it is doubtful the Legislature will be able to achieve its task anyway because after its Christmas holiday it will not return to Lansing until Jan. 8. That would leave the legislators only a week to approve any reapportionment plan by Jan. 15.

However, Bryant told the Grosse Pointe News that many legislators believe the Legislature might satisfy the Supreme Court if it completed its redistricting task before the Feb. 15 deadline for the panel's recommendations.

In that event, the Supreme Court could receive the Legislature's proposal in lieu of or along with the judicial panel's plan. But that possibility, too, is still in the lap of the politicians and the Supreme Court.

And so is the question of whether the five Pointes will be able to remain in a single legislative district in the 1992 reapportionment.

the Detroit Free Press that the party thinks "the voters of Michigan will repudiate Duke, just as the voters in Louisiana did in the last two elections."

But whether Michigan voters in the presidential primary will be required to register 30 days in advance of the primary or allowed to do so on election day is up in the air. Austin has asked the governor and the Legislature to reach agreement by Jan. 17.

Whatever happens with respect to registration, the GOP should not ignore Duke's campaign but make sure that Michigan voters know the dangers of voting for a demagogue, former Klansman and ex-Nazi, who also uses more acceptable campaign themes. As George Wallace proved in 1972, a demagogue can win here.

If no front-runner has emerged from the Democratic pack by next March, it is even possible that Democratic crossover voting could embarrass the GOP and give Duke substantial support. Fortunately, however, Michigan Democrats denounce Duke as strongly as Republicans have.

Water bill

To the Editor:

I had just picked up the day's mail from the console which serves as the postal substation for our home. I was standing at the desk in the den minding my own business, the day's mail clutched in my left hand. I selected the post-card water bill and read it. Wow!

When I came to, about five minutes later crumpled on the floor, I again saw that frightful water bill and realized it wasn't just a horrible dream. It was, in fact, the highest water bill I had ever seen in 43 years of householding in the Farms. After relating the cryptic codes — "NR, WA, SW, WI, RC — to the amounts I felt the blackout coming back, but fought it off.

I could understand the increase in water charges. We had a lawn irrigation system installed during the billing period. But the sewage treatment charge! More than three or four times normal, and nearly twice the bill for the whole water charge. And the high volume of irrigation water doesn't even pass into the sewer system, and thus gets no sewage "treatment" — whatever that is.

I called the Farms water department and talked with a very courteous clerk, Ann Murphy. She referred to the increase in water rates reflected in the bill. I could understand that — and likewise the system-rehab levy. Ann explained that the sewage charge was billed to the Farms — which pumps its own water, of course — by the city of Detroit and is based on the water pumped.

As the immortal bard said: "There's the rub." My "SW" charge was three or four times higher than ever before. That means the great volume of water used to irrigate the lawn daily was being charged at full rates for sewage "treatment" in a sewer system it never even entered.

I asked Ann: "Has any one else called to complain about their outrageous billing?" She replied: "Hundreds."

Since my call to the water department, I have received my copy of a Farms bulletin which attempted to explain this anomalous situation. I wound up even more confused.

The bulletin says the Farms is aware of this situation, that there was a court case in 1982 and a court-approved formula established determining how much the Farms would pay the city of Detroit for sewage "treatment" (there's that puzzling word again).

Spirit of Christmas: Yours for the giving

It's the week before Christmas and all through the house, there are signs of impending celebration.

The tree is decorated with snowflakes and stars and angels that my mother has crocheted through the years. There are stacks of gifts, wrapped and ready for some last-minute ribbon to finish them off.

The star of my traditional Christmas Eve supper — pierogi, dozens of them — are safely ensconced in the basement freezer, waiting to be liberated and thawed the eve of Christmas Eve. They are the true stars of the evening meal, because without them, it would cease to be a special, once-a-year event in which everyone gorges him and herself and then waddles off to the living room to moan about being too full.

Making the small, filled dumplings is a tradition I have continued faithfully like my mother and grandmother before me. It's a tradition I hope my children will pass on to their children. I don't know why the thought that my grandchildren may someday observe the holiday like my grandparents did is comforting, but it is.

Thus it is that I am the keeper of the pierogi, a task that has evolved from a two-day exercise that left me with an aching back, sore feet and leaden arms to a half-day that is intense, but enjoyable. Back in the early days, I did it all myself. Somewhere over the years, my mother came to help. This year, my daughter joined us, and for the first time, I sense my hopes that the tradition will live after me are more than a possibility.

All in all, I'm in pretty good shape for the holidays, but I wasn't in a positive mood one morning on my way in to work last week. There were still a few gifts to get for people who are difficult to buy for, the Christmas cards to send out were still in their boxes, I needed an idea for some colorful front-page photos for today's week-before-Christmas issue, an interview for a story I was depending on had fallen through, and on and on.

I Say

Then I saw him. Perhaps you saw him, too. He was standing on the corner of the I-94/Moross service drive and he was holding a sign that read: "Homeless painter will work for food."

The light was with me and, uncomfortable but relieved, I drove by him, trying not to look, but out of the corner of my eye, I caught a glimpse of a neatly dressed man. I couldn't tell how old he was because he held the cardboard sign in front of his face.

Was he too embarrassed to see people looking at him, I wondered? And why was I relieved that I didn't have to stop and perhaps have to acknowledge a knock on my window? And why was I crying?

Suddenly, all of my anguish over the little odds and ends that had to be resolved seemed so petty. I have a comfortable house, a warm bed, a well-stocked pantry, a job, a car to get me there and I'm agonizing over cards that have to be written?

He could have been a phony, looking for money to support a drug habit. And he could have been a homeless painter. I don't know. I know I was ashamed at my reaction — to drive by and pretend he didn't exist.

The plight of the homeless is particularly acute this year, with all the cuts in state aid. It's in the papers, on the newscasts — even Ted Koppel on "Nightline" focused last week on the homeless people in our state. My head knows this and I think it's terrible that children are living in temporary shelters.

But I don't see them. And when I do, my heart cries and I feel guilty because I haven't done anything except pay lip service. I can't save the world but I can help feed a few people by sending a donation to an agency I know will use the money for its intended purpose. So can you.

Donations are down this year. We are in a recession. We are worried about tomorrow and we think twice about spending. The news of what is going on in the world is unsettling. It's probable that our children will not have what we have. We are concerned and anxious and nervous and rightly so.

But guess what? We have. We have gifts under a tree and we have a house to put the tree in. We have a register to turn up the heat. We have microwaves and food to put in them. We have medical insurance. We have coats and gloves and scarves and boots to keep winter's chill away when we leave a warm car to go into a warm building.

I don't feel guilty about any of this because I have worked hard for it, but mostly I have been lucky. Lucky to be born into the mainstream of society, lucky to have had a good education, lucky to have a job.

I do feel sad for those who weren't so lucky. But I know what to do. I can do a little and you can do a little and together we can do a lot.

Locally, Village Lock & Home Repair, 18554 Mack, is raising money for the Capuchin Soup Kitchen for the eighth year. You can get one or several keys made for a donation from now until Dec. 24. All of the proceeds will go to the soup kitchen, co-owner Bob Mowbray said. He's hoping to raise $1,000 this year.

Or you can buy a case of food for the Gleaners Community Food Bank. The cost ranges from $7.20 for a case of baby food to $40 for a case of tuna. The Gleaners distributes food to more than 180 soup kitchens, churches and emergency shelters. A handy coupon is on page 4A.

Christmas is for sharing and for thanksgiving. Merry Christmas.

Bean dip

We get press releases. Lots of them.

Last week we got a dandy. "Dear Editor," it begins. "Thank you for your interest in Beano."

Nobody here recalled expressing interest in whatever or whoever Beano is.

It goes on. "EVERYONE is talking about it."

We asked around. Nobody here had whispered the word Beano in weeks, perhaps months.

It goes on. Beano is "... the revolutionary new product that actually improves the digestibility of 'gassy' foods like beans, broccoli, cabbage and whole grain cereals and breads."

Ah ha. Interests pique. How are they gonna present this product, we wonder.

Beano is a food enzyme, it goes on, that "breaks down complex sugars (oligosaccharides) in many foods, making them more digestible and less likely to, uh, embarrass you. (Writer's italics.)

So far, so good. Why are some foods "gassy" it asks.

"Some foods cause gas because people do not produce the special enzyme, alpha-galactosidase, required to digest certain complex sugars. Once in the intestine, the sugars ferment, which results in gas," it explains.

Almost everyone can use Beano, it adds. "Beano adds a touch of confidence to many of today's popular diets."

Nicely put, huh? Anyway, we got a free sample of Beano, a list of healthy foods that Beano can be used on, a Beano Hotline, a pamphlet full of bean recipes, a treatise: "Examining the Social Impact of a Healthful Diet" and a reprint of a New York Times article by Jane Brody: "Strategies for curbing flatulence."

In the interest of unbiased, investigative journalism, we pressed the free Beano sample on one of our colleagues and asked him to try it for a week.

Colleague X said, with some pride, "Hey, breathing gives me gas. You can imagine my condition after eating a bowl of bean soup."

We could. "I had a few drops on a cookie before I had some soup. It seemed to work."

The rest of Colleague X's comments were, well, a little excessive.

Colleague X belabors the point.

Indian twigs take root in Grosse Pointe

Croatians, Ukrainians, Iraqis, African-Americans, Native Americans, Italian, Japanese. After two centuries of pressure to blend into America's melting pot, ethnic groups are virtually exploding with pride.

Nancy Parmenter

It seems only yesterday that my Ukrainian ex-father-in-law used to disparage his relatives with the put-down, "DP," whenever they did anything — "ethnic." Better act "American" so no one can guess you're a Displaced Person, fresh off the boat.

Those were the days, not so very long ago, either, when people changed their names so they wouldn't betray an unwelcome heritage.

Now everybody is ethnic and proud of it.

"Aren't we ethnic, too?" my dad once asked plaintively. Well, yeah, but since our ancestors got off the boats from Germany, England and France, we never had to try to fit into the dominant culture. We were it.

No more. Now is a particularly auspicious time to be teaching children about their roots. Years ago, kids were embarrassed to speak another language or wear national costumes or eat unusual food. In a refreshing turnaround, now it's celebrated.

Laura and Steve Spurr of Grosse Pointe Park are bringing up their sons, Nat and Josiah, to understand the American Indian culture they inherit from their mother. The boys' lives are filled with Indian ways.

"We love to go to powwows," says Laura Spurr. "We dance, we look for people we know, we look at the crafts. We collect things for the boys to make their costumes."

Spurr grew up in an assimilated family, but has always known Indian ways. Many of her relatives live on reservations and practice their culture "100 percent."

Every chance she gets, Spurr exposes the boys to Indian culture, through family and friends, through traveling in the South and West, through local powwows, through stories. Although there are crafts and dancing classes available at The Indian Center and the Southeast Indian Center in Detroit, Nat and Josiah are learning their culture more informally.

That's the Indian way. Children dance around the edges of the adult dance, enjoying the rhythms and patterns, picking up the steps by observation. Josiah learned to grass-dance that way, his mother says, wearing a costume covered with long strands of grass that wave rhythmically as he moves.

Spurr is Chippewa, Potawatomi, and Ottawa, all Woodlands Indians native to Michigan and Wisconsin and known as the Tribes of the Three Fires. In the 1820s, the government forcibly moved the tribes out, sending them to Kansas so the Michigan Territory would be safe for white settlers.

But they didn't all go. A few probably just hid in the woods, but a band of them jumped off the Kansas-bound wagon train over in the Battle Creek area. With the passage of years, the state of Michigan established reservations for them — and that accident of history made a big difference to the Indians living here.

Michigan Indians, for the most part, have not been subject to the federal Bureau of Indian Affairs, Spurr said. That meant, among other things, that Indian children in this state were not forcibly separated from their families and sent to Indian schools to be assimilated.

"The worst thing for Indians is that their ways were not valued, so they had no pride," she says. "And they were severely restricted. When my father grew up (on a reservation in Wisconsin), they had to apply for permission to leave the reservation. Not just to move off, but even to go away for a few days."

Spurr's father learned Indian culture from his grandparents, but learned the hard lesson that the ways were not valued when he was sent to Kansas to Indian school. He wasn't allowed to come back until he graduated from high school.

At Indian school, the students were forbidden to practice their culture. But in the ultimate in cynicism, at federal grant time, those students who knew Indian dances were loaded on a bus and taken to Washington to dance for the Congress.

Perhaps the best illustration of Indian ways is the manner in which the Spurr boys are making their costumes.

"You can just go out and buy one, but I don't like that," their mother said. "In an Indian costume, every element represents something. They aren't just animal parts; they represent bravery and skill."

Today, Indians can't go out and hunt eagles, whose feathers were the most prized element of the ancient costumes. But they can choose the elements of their costumes judiciously and learn the authentic way to put it together.

So Nat and Josiah slowly accumulate the parts to their costumes. At powwows, they talk to many people, seeking advice on materials and methods.

"If you talk to enough different people, you'll eventually learn the oldest, traditional, way," Spurr says.

But it's more than just the right way that counts. One of the lessons being taught is patience, a willingness not to hurry the job, a desire to take enough time to put feeling into it.

Nat wanted a pelt for his costume. So they studied pelts at the powwows, waiting for just the right one. He selected a coyote pelt, but the ears weren't quite satisfactory, so Nat learned how to wet and reshape them. Now they are studying ways to cut and fit the pelt so it will lie smoothly over the top of his head.

It all takes time.

Of course, Spurr says with a twinkle and a grin, the boys use their knowledge against her too. When they were small, she admonished one of them for his table manners.

"I'm an Indian," he told her. "I'm supposed to eat with my fingers."

"Indians are different from other ethnic groups because of all the restrictions that were placed on them," Spurr says. "What my father did for his children, and the best thing I can do for mine, is to see that they are well-educated in maintaining their heritage."

formula is based upon empirical data that involves such factors as water consumption, average rainfall, estimated water runoff, infiltration of groundwater into the sewer system, open land area, etc."

That sounds like a paragraph taken from a Ph.D. candidate's thesis on "A study of the empirical effects of average rainfall, infiltration of groundwater, water consumption, open land areas and other factors on the livers of rats."

I would like to respectfully suggest to the Farms administration, the city council and other interested parties that, with the tremendous increase in the number of lawn irrigation systems installed during the last several dry summers, it might be time to undertake another study, from an empirical standpoint, of course, of the relationship between the greater volume of water used, the charges being levied for sewage "treatment" of phantom water in the sewer system, and the injustice this visits on your high-volume water-user customers.

The bulletin says: "... if we were somehow able to separate water used for lawn sprinkling from being charged under the sewage rate portion of the bill, the sewage rate would need to be increased proportionately to meet the costs of 'treating' (that word again) our sewage."

Well, that's simply nonsense. You don't solve one injustice by creating a bigger one. You didn't even consider getting the rate adjusted to fit the changed conditions. Let's go back to court. Establish that half the water on which Detroit is billing us for sewage, isn't entering the sewage system.

Then make a percentage allowance of "SW" charges in your billing of those with irrigation systems in place — after an empirical study, of course.

In the simple-simon school of economics in which I was reared, we were taught that the higher the volume, the lower the cost. Let's apply that now instead of just the reverse which we are doing through unwarranted and unjust "SW" charges.

Pointe FOP announces scholarships

The Grosse Pointe/Harper Woods Fraternal Order of Police Association Lodge No. 102 has established the Stephen Petrik Scholarship.

The scholarship fund is a memorial to the late Grosse Pointe Woods Public Safety Officer Stephen Petrik, who was active in the founding of the lodge in the early 1960s.

The first two recipients of the $1,000 scholarships are Grosse Pointe South High School graduates Shannon Burns ('87), a business major at Oakland University, and Jerry Suminski ('77), a medical student at Michigan State University.

The scholarships are available to students in colleges or universities and accredited vocational schools beyond the high school level.

To donate to the fund, make checks payable to the Stephen Petrik Scholarship Fund and send them in care of Anthony Carr, treasurer; FOPA No. 102; 850 Lincoln Road; Grosse Pointe, Mich. 48230.

There is a bill pending in the state House requiring that abortion procedure information be provided 24 hours before a woman could be given an abortion.

There is a problem now, I believe, with some abortion clinics not giving women much in the way of substantive information about mental or physical complications or risks of abortion before performing the abortion. Informed consent is required before medical procedures can be performed and abortion should not be an exception.

The need for informed consent, and the concern as to whether or not it now exists, must be balanced, however, against the constitutional right of privacy of the woman to have an abortion.

What information would it be fair to insist a woman be given before obtaining her signature on a consent form? What time frame, if any, would be fair to assure that the woman has time to digest the information provided and come to an informed decision?

I don't want to place barriers to abortion in front of any woman. The right to abortion exists, now, by Supreme Court decision. So too, however, does the Supreme Court acknowledge that informed consent may be required, as long as information required to be provided is specific to the actual condition of the woman and does not constitute a "burden" on her rights.

The bill in the Michigan House, Senate Bill 141, attempts to push informed consent information and time delay provisions to the edge, and unfortunately, I feel, beyond. I am willing, if it were the only issue, to say it is not unreasonable to require a waiting period for something as important and potentially dangerous as an abortion.

If the 24-hour waiting period were the only requirement, it might be reasonable. With the other provisions included, the overall effect, I feel, is a burden on the rights of the woman.

My problem is primarily with the information required to be provided the woman in writing, by photograph and orally. I feel it goes too far. If so much information is to be provided a woman about all the downside and danger of an abortion, I feel it would be only fair to provide, also, information about mental and physical dangers of continued pregnancy, birth and adoption. And I do feel it is not fair to insist that a woman look at a photograph of a fetus.

If balance can be provided in Senate Bill 141, I would support it. As the bill now reads, I cannot support it.

thrilled by stories of the law in action.

While her son and daughter were young, she earned her real estate license.

"I remember showing my first house and they said, 'I'll take it,' and I thought, 'What do I do now?'" she said.

Despite her real estate career, she continued to be fascinated by her husband's stories and began to think about entering law school, but because she didn't have an undergraduate degree she thought it would take too long.

Then something happened to help make up her mind.

While talking on the telephone one day she noticed a lump in her neck. Her brothers and brother-in-law are doctors and they all told her it was an enlarged lymph node and would have to be removed immediately. She had all the symptoms of Hodgkin's disease and the doctors told her to prepare for the worst.

"But I'm optimistic and I don't worry about anything until I really have to," she said.

She started worrying when she woke up from the operation to see her entire family sobbing at the foot of her bed.

"I thought, 'I'm on my way out,'" she said.

The tests showed there was nothing wrong, but she had made a decision.

"I knew it would be a long time in law school, but I realized that the time is going to go by anyway, so you might as well work toward something," she said.

She entered Detroit College of Law during the day — because it was only a three-year commitment and night classes meant a four-year commitment — and taught real estate licensing classes at night and on weekends.

And, just to keep herself busy, the family moved three times while she was in law school.

Diane Hathaway sits in one of the re-done rooms in her Grosse Pointe Park house.

"I'm attracted to all the re-dos," she said. "There's something about a house that needs fixing up. It's a nice challenge."

Upon graduation from DCL, she applied to the Macomb County courts for a job. She would have applied to the Wayne County courts had there not been three Hathaway judges all related to her — her husband, father-in-law and uncle-in-law — already there.

She got a job in Probate court, then moved to the circuit court where she was named chief of the drug forfeiture division which took property away from drug dealers, removing the profit motive for dealing drugs.

"I was in charge of all the forfeitures and we did millions of dollars of them," she said. "And I really do think it helped the war on drugs."

She also gave talks to law enforcement agencies and students on the drug forfeiture laws, believing that if more people know how the law works, the more effective it would be.

"But my goal is to be a judge," she said. "I've been in all the courtrooms in Macomb County and many in Wayne County and I see what goes on. I think I'd be a good judge because I'm just an ordinary person with common sense and a sense of justice. I've experienced a lot and I can be open-minded."

"I'm tired of seeing innocent people hurt and I think I'll be much more effective as a judge than as a prosecutor."

The hardest part about the campaign wasn't the narrow defeat.

"The most devastating thing for me was that almost every night for 11 months I left the office and went straight to functions to make contacts and I had to leave my children," she said. "All that time of not being able to spend time with them is what really hurt."

Hathaway isn't sitting still for a minute. She enjoys entertaining in her Grosse Pointe Park home, a beautifully fixed-up fixer-upper.

The family has lived there for about a year and Hathaway is already getting restless.

"If you keep busy you can't get in trouble," she said. "And I've just found another great fixer-upper."

the public," such as shopping malls and parking lots.
Statewide, there were about 69,300 drunken driving arrests last year. In the Pointes, there were 311 OUIL arrests:
• City, 29
• Farms, 56
• Park, 67
• Shores, 81
• Woods, 78

If you are convicted of drunken driving, it's going to cost you.

According to the secretary of state, the expense resulting from a drunken driving conviction is about $4,000. Average costs include a $520 fine, $3,000 in attorney fees and the $125 reinstatement fee.

Drunken driving is the No. 1 violent crime in Michigan and nationwide, according to the FBI. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration estimates that more than 250,000 people have been killed in alcohol-related motor vehicle crashes since 1980, and more than 650,000 people are injured each year by drivers who had been drinking.

Last year in Michigan, according to the Michigan State Safety Commission:

- 32,358 drivers had one or more convictions of driving while impaired,
- 20,501 motorists had one or more convictions of drunken driving,
- A majority of drunken drivers are males.

• Drinking was a factor in nearly half of all fatal crashes.

And if you figure it would be smarter to try to avoid a drunken driving conviction by refusing to take a portable breath test (PBT) or a chemical test, think again.

Refusing to take a PBT upon request of a police officer results in an automatic $100 fine

Elaine Frost Reed

A memorial service was held Monday, Dec. 16, at Grosse Pointe United Church in Grosse Pointe Farms for Elaine Frost Reed, 83, of Grosse Pointe Woods. She died of a stroke on Dec. 11, 1991, at Henry Ford Continuing Care Center-Belmont in Harper Woods.

Elaine Frost Reed

Born in Bad Axe, Mrs. Reed received her bachelor of fine arts degree from the University of Michigan in 1930, and her master of arts degree in sociology in 1931.

Mrs. Reed was a civic leader and pioneer in corporate counseling services.

In 1944, she interested the J.L. Hudson Co. in establishing a counseling service for employees, of which she became director. She remained director of the consultation center until 1970.

Under her leadership, the corporation's first formal retirement programs were developed. Multi-faceted consultation, training and counseling services and programs were available at the corporate level. Mrs. Reed and her staff also provided employees and their families with financial assistance from the Hudson-Weber Foundation, and she represented the J.L. Hudson Co. on a variety of community boards and committees.

In 1970-71, she was chief of social work in the department of psychiatry at Sinai Hospital in Detroit. In 1972, she became director of social service at Cottage Hospital in Grosse Pointe Farms, where she developed a new department. She retired in 1979 to pursue community-based projects in the Grosse Pointe area, where she lived most of her life.

In her tireless contributions to community and the private and public sectors, Mrs. Reed served as president of the Adult Education Association of Detroit and the U of M School of Social Work Alumni. She was a charter member of the Detroit Metropolitan Committee on Aging, the National Association of Social Work, the Michigan Society for Clinical Social Work, and the Michigan Society for Gerontology, and was the first woman to be appointed to the corporate board of the metro Detroit YMCA.

Mrs. Reed served on the boards of Boys Republic, Detroit Council of Churches, Detroit Cerebral Palsy Association, Travelers' Aid Society of Detroit, National Travelers' Aid Society, committees of the Michigan Society for Mental Health and United Community Services.

A member of the American College of Social Work, she received the Award of Merit (for civic contributions) from the Women's Advertising Association in 1959, and was named one of the "Top 10 Women in Professions and Business" in 1964.

In 1984, she and her husband received the John W. Armstrong Humanitarian Award from the YMCA, metro Detroit chapter.

Mrs. Reed is survived by her daughter, Marcia Murphy of New York City, and three grandchildren. She was preceded in death by her husband, Clyde L. Reed.

Her body was cremated. Arrangements were made by the Chas Verheyden Inc. funeral home in Grosse Pointe Park. Memorial contributions may be made to Boys Republic, the American Heart Association of Michigan, the Michigan Society of Mental Health, or the metro Detroit chapter of the YMCA.

Farms raises 1992 mooring fees at Pier Park

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

Boaters who use the docks at Pier Park in Grosse Pointe Farms will pay higher mooring fees next year.

The city council recently raised the fees for 1992, based on the recommendation of a committee composed of Richard Huhn, Farms parks and recreation director; Acting City Manager Richard Solak; John Lamerato, city controller; and Assistant City Manager Charles Beside. Huhn said the new rates would put the Farms in the middle range of boat mooring fees, compared to what the other Grosse Pointes charge.

The committee kept in mind the following when coming up with its recommendations, Huhn said: The rates charged by other municipal marinas in the Grosse Pointes; the extensive harbor repair project now underway; the harbor waiting list of approximately 600 names; and the fact that the last fee increase was two years ago.

The new rates vary by the location and maximum size boat allowed in each well. The smallest increase is for the "sunfish racks," which hold sail boards. The 1991 rate was $55. It was to $60 for 1992.

In the small harbor, it now costs $130 to moor a Jet-Ski, a $15 increase. The fee for 19-foot boats (the smallest in the marina) went up from $165 to $190, and for 25-foot boats (the largest in the small harbor) the price was raised from $320 to $380.

Boats in the small harbor do not have access to electrical and water service.

Prices in the large harbor went up by about 15 percent.

The committee had proposed that the fee for boats 28 feet by 9.5 feet in the large harbor be raised from $380 to $500, a 31.6 percent increase. However, Mayor Pro Tem John Crowley and Councilman Edward J. Gaffney said that would be excessive.

"We have to take into account the fact that we're in a recession and that boat owners are often not as wealthy as some people think," Gaffney said.

Solak said that the 1991 rate for those boat wells was too low, compared to the other Grosse Pointes. He agreed the increase was steep, and said that he wouldn't mind if it were lowered.

Overriding the committee's recommendation, the council voted to raise the fee by only 15 percent, the same as the increase for the other boat wells in the large harbor. That amounts to a $57 increase over the 1991 fee for boats 28 feet by 9.5 feet.

The biggest increase in the large harbor is for boats 34 feet by 14 feet. The 1991 fee of $675 was raised by $100.

The Grosse Pointe Farms boating season officially starts May 15 and ends Nov. 1.

Grosse Pointe City raised its boat well prices by 15 to 23 percent in 1990 and by 5.5 percent for 1991, said Jean Darlington, Grosse Pointe City executive secretary/deputy city clerk. She said 1992 prices will remain the same as in 1991.

The City's smallest boat well is 20 feet by 12 feet, which costs $350 to $485 for the 1991 season. The largest boat well is 38 feet by 15.5 feet and costs $960 this year.

Grosse Pointe Park's 1991 marina prices ranged from $350 for boats 9 feet by 29 feet or 14 feet by 35 feet, to $1,240 for boats 20 feet by 55 feet, said Terry Solomon, parks and recreation supervisor. She said she anticipates the Park's rates will be raised by 2 to 5 percent for 1992.

Grosse Pointe Shores marina prices ranged from $262 for a 20-foot slip to $1,407 for a 55-foot slip this year. The village's parks and harbor committee has yet to meet to discuss whether prices should be raised for 1992.

Grosse Pointe Woods boat well prices ranged from $378 (including a $63 surcharge for past dredging) for boats 17 feet and under, to $600 (including a $100 surcharge) for boats 28 feet long.

Bill Babcock, Woods parks and recreation supervisor, said he anticipates that those prices will be raised by 5 to 8 percent for 1992.

Mooring fees at municipal harbors in the Pointes

	Size of smallest boat well	cost*	Size of largest boat well	cost*
City	20 feet by 12 feet	$350	38 feet by 15.5 feet	$960
Farms	19 feet	$190	34 feet by 14 feet	$775
Park	29 feet by 9 feet	$350	55 feet by 20 feet	$1,240
Shores	20 feet	$262	55 feet	$1,407
Woods	17 feet	$378	28 feet	$600

* All prices are for the 1991 season, except for the Farms' and City's, which are for 1992. The fees in the Park and the Woods are expected to rise. The Shores' harbor committee has not yet met to discuss whether that city's harbor fees should rise.

Maire traffic signals to be installed

New traffic and pedestrian signals will be installed at Waterloo and St. Clair to provide more safety near Maire Elementary School.

The Grosse Pointe City Council approved the purchase of the new signals and the required electronic controller at a price not to exceed $33,600.

The action was the result of a recent study by the city's traffic engineer, whose recommendations included upgrading the traffic signal system to meet state guidelines.

The guidelines call for two signal heads at an intersection. Currently, the intersections have only one signal head and no pedestrian signals.

The city is developing a capital improvement budget to replace other traffic signals over a three- to five-year period. Tentative plans for next year call for replacing the signals at Waterloo and Cadieux and Charlevoix and Neff.

Imitating Neil Diamond — it's the story of his life

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

While most people are getting ready for dinner, Jay White is preparing to take the stage at the Imperial Palace in Las Vegas as "The Jazz Singer." Neil Diamond.

A former Grosse Pointe Farms resident, White has been a member of "Legends in Concert" — a troupe of Las Vegas performers who impersonate celebrities such as Barbra Streisand, Marilyn Monroe and Buddy Holly — since 1989.

White bears a likeness to a younger Diamond, and makeup, hairstyle and finely honed gestures make the resemblance uncanny. And if you close your eyes and listen to White sing — as a reporter did with a videotape of one of White's performances — you'd swear you were listening to Diamond.

Two of the songs White performs on stage include, "You don't bring me flowers anymore," and "Coming to America."

White's mother, Jacqueline Jorges of Grosse Pointe Farms, is not an impartial critic, but she said that an acquaintance told her that if she was ever in Las Vegas, she should catch the Legends in Concert show.

"She said they had an impersonator who looked and sounded just like Neil Diamond," Jorges said. "Little did she know she was talking about my son!"

White said that a couple of months ago, a woman went to the ticket office after seeing his show and asked the clerk to tell the truth — that was Neil Diamond, wasn't it?

"She said that the rest of the performers were impersonators, but that I was really Neil Diamond. She thought we put a ringer in the show to fool people," White said in a recent phone interview.

White, 36, grew up on the east side of Detroit and graduated from Finney High School in 1973. He went on to attend Macomb Community College and Wayne State University, in search of the right career.

He moved to Grosse Pointe Farms in 1975, and worked in the Pointes for several years before finding his calling.

In 1972, he worked for Maurice Wood Interior Design on Kercheval on the Hill, and later took a job in the materials management department at Bon Secours Hospital in 1976.

At Bon Secours, he fell in love with Pam LaDuke, a medical surgery/labor and delivery nurse. They've been married for 10 years.

White was an active member of Grosse Pointe Theatre during the 1979-80 season, and worked at the "Big Boy" restaurant in Grosse Pointe Woods for a year.

Growing up, White wanted to be a professional hockey player. He loved the game and still does, he said. He played in the semi-pro U.S. Hockey League for several years as a teenager, and then began concentrating on another favorite pastime — singing.

At the age of 21, he joined a band that played top 40 songs, and has sang with several different groups since.

"In 1976, I became a Neil Diamond fan," White said. "I thought, 'this is the most beautiful music I've ever heard,' and so I've encouraged every group I've been associated with to play some of Neil Diamond's music."

People started telling White that he sounded a lot like Diamond. So he shaved off his moustache, let his hair grow a bit longer, put together a costume like Diamond would wear, and copied the singer's mannerisms from videotapes. Then White took his show to various clubs in the metro Detroit area, and was a hit.

"When I first started, I thought this would be a good part-time position and a way to make some extra money," White said.

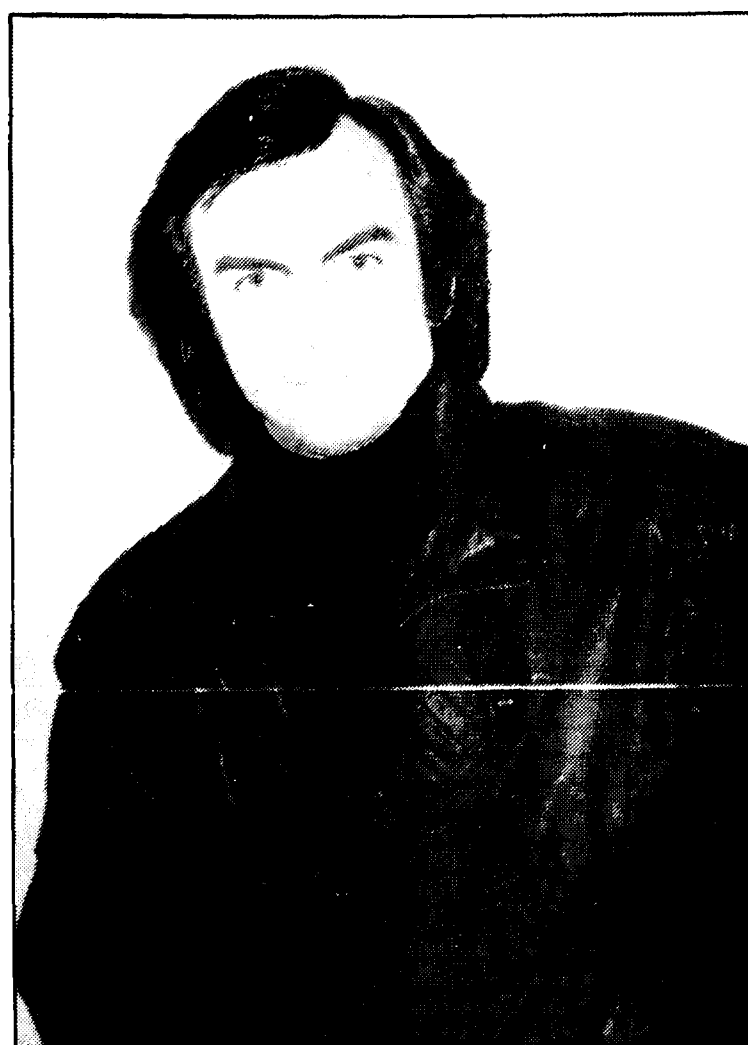

In 1981, a scout for Legends in Concert saw White in Detroit and asked him to audition in Las Vegas for a spot in the show.

White was hired and has been working full-time as a Neil Diamond impersonator ever since.

He and his Pam live in Las Vegas with their three children, Neil Patrick White, 8; Stephanie Elaine White, 6; and Jason Filaro, 14. When they moved to Las Vegas, White said, Pam gave up nursing to spend more time with the children.

Sometimes, White said, when he's at the mall with his children, someone who has seen his act will come up to them and praise his performance.

"Most kids don't get that," White said. "An autoworker's kid doesn't hear people come up to his father and say, 'I saw the way you swung that wrench yesterday. Good job.' That's a nice thing about being in this business. But other than that, my kids think of my job as just a job."

Is it Jay White or Neil Diamond? It's White.

White thinks of it that way, too.

"When I tell people I have to get ready for work, they look at me funny and say, 'yeah right.' That's because other people don't think of it as work — they look at it as going out to play for a few hours," White said.

It is work, putting on the makeup, remembering and perfecting Diamond's mannerisms, focusing on the music, trying to get the audience to enjoy themselves and forget their troubles for a while. But it's a job White said he loves.

He said he never gets Diamond and White confused. "On occasion, I run into people who carry their impersonations over into their real life, and expect people to treat them like the stars they portray," White said. "But that's never happened to me, and I'm glad of that. I have a wife and three kids to keep me in line."

White said he'd like to impersonate Diamond for as long as he's able, and that he'd like to do longer shows. Because he's one of several impersonators with Living Legends, he only gets 10 to 15 minutes on stage. However, he is available for bookings on the side, and has an hour-long program that can be shortened to fit the client's needs.

Recording original music is another one of White's goals. He also said that he'd like to do radio and television voice-overs, and to continue coaching hockey. He recently agreed to teach a goal-tending clinic for a Las Vegas hockey club.

White has never met Diamond, but he's pretty sure the "Jazz Singer" knows about his act.

"I've had people who are close to Neil Diamond tell me that they've told him about my act, and that he'd be pleased," White said.

What would White say to Diamond, should the two ever meet?

"Gosh, I've thought about that a lot," White said. "I just don't know. I would probably be too tongue-tied to say anything, but I would hope he'd be flattered by what I'm doing. I'd probably ask him a lot of questions, about his personal life and his career, a lot of the same questions you've asked me."

White said he hopes to visit and perform in Grosse Pointe again sometime soon, but that he doesn't know when he'll get the chance.

If you're planning a trip to Las Vegas and want to catch White's act, he performs two shows a night, beginning at 7:30 p.m. and 10:30 p.m., every night except Sundays. The Imperial Palace is located on the Las Vegas Strip between Flamingo Road and Twain Road.

Grosse Pointers give reading gifts

This holiday season, 60,000 Michigan children hope to receive brand new storybooks through the Detroit Free Press "Gift of Reading" book drive.

The children come from disadvantaged homes and many have never owned a book. For these children, the gift of a new book opens "a world filled with all the possibilities that imagination can offer," says Gift of Reading coordinator Dr. Louise Reid Ritchie.

"Children who are exposed to books from an early age are more likely to learn to read well and succeed in school, giving them skills to lift themselves out of poverty."

Gift of Reading books are distributed to children through foster care agencies, hospitals serving large numbers of poor children, homeless shelters, battered women's shelters and agencies such as Focus:HOPE and Head Start.

Individuals and groups who would like to donate children's books to the program may drop them off at the Central Library or the Park or Woods branches through Dec. 11. The books should be new, unwrapped and suitable for children 7 years old or younger.

A number of Grosse Pointe schools and book stores are collecting books for the program. Pierce Middle School student council members collected money during the lunch hours to purchase books. Grosse Pointe Christian Day School scheduled its book fair to coincide with the book drive.

schools, students and their families selected and purchased books to give to Gift of Reading.

Grosse Pointe Book Village and Third Coast Booksellers are offering discounts for Gift of Reading purchases.

The Friends of the Grosse Pointe Public Library invite the community to a punch and cookies Book Send-Off for the Gift of Reading program on Wednesday, Dec. 11, from 4 to 5 p.m. at Central Library. Neal Shine, publisher of the Free Press, and Ritchie have been invited to thank the community on behalf of the children who will receive the books.

Northeast Guidance Gazette

Provided as a service to the community by the Assistance League to the Northeast Guidance Center

December 19, 1991

I LIKE ME!

Four-year-old Marnee was engrossed in her drawing. Vivid colors and stick figures with broad grins clearly conveyed this was a happy picture and Marnee's earnest descriptions verified it. "That's me — and Dad — and Josh — at the park. I went down the big slide — by myself! It was fun!"

Nurturing good self-esteem in youngsters is one of the best gifts adults can give them. Self-esteem is how a person feels about himself. It's his overall judgment of himself, and is based on the convictions that "I am lovable. I am worthwhile."

From the earliest age, parents — and later other family, teachers and friends — give children experiences which build self-esteem. It comes first, from the relationships which exist between the child and those who are significant in his or her life. The parent feeds, changes, and bathes the infant. Cuddling and tender care nurture the baby. Then, gradually, baby starts learning the skills of the toddler—sitting, crawling, walking, exploring and mastering the world. The parent cheers these efforts, praising success, encouraging renewed attempts when set-backs occur.

It takes a great deal of work to help children grow into self-confident adults who have the assurance to pursue their own goals and the courage to take risks or even defend unpopular stands. Children need to focus on their own unique strengths and learn that not succeeding immediately does not mean failure. Parents cannot give self-confidence; it's developed from within the child. But parents can help their children by fostering that all-important sense of self-worth upon which true confidence is built.

In a 1988 article, Leah Levinger, Ph.D., and Paddy Yost suggested five self-confidence builders.

Encourage your child. Encouragement is not the same as praise. Praise stresses being better than someone; it backfires if it is insincere or makes a child feel approved of only when winning. Encouragement can be given for effort, or for slight improvement. Telling your child, "You learned to jump! That's great! You couldn't do that last week," is encouragement.

Give room to choose. Allow your child to do what he/she thinks is worthwhile—even if the activity seems trivial to you. Taking pleasure in doing something for its own sake, rather than for praise or gain, encourages initiative and builds confidence.

Talk to your child. Show interest without prying. Ask "What happened today?" rather than "What did you do?" or "What did you learn?" This emphasizes events, not success or failure, and allows the child some privacy.

Don't rush your child. Skills must be learned—they are not acquired all at once. Accept that your child does not know things "yet". Watch for clues that let you know when he or she is ready to tackle new Northeast Guidance Center's "I LIKE ME!" message sums up positive self-esteem. A variety of activities, beginning with the annual kids' art contest (for youngsters through 14 years), focus on building good self-esteem. The 1992 contest ends February 21. For a self-esteem pamphlet for parents and kids or for an art contest entry form, call Northeast's Community Relations Office at 824-8000.

Let your child be him/herself. People who are not afraid of being different have the courage to make their own choices.

If your children know they are loved, they will be able to face and endure, as we all must, being laughed at, thought different, even disliked. If they know that you value them, rather than constantly evaluate, they will understand that their real worth is not determined by success or failure.

Mental illness strikes one in four

In a lifetime, mental illness and serious emotional problems will affect 25% of the population. That means one in four people. It also means statistically it's harder to say it's someone on the next street, or even down the block. Statistically, it means one person out of a family of four.

Mental illness is a term for a group of disorders which cause severe disturbances in thinking, feeling and relating to others and the world around us. These disorders result in a significantly lessened ability to cope with the ordinary demands of life. Mental illnesses can affect persons of any age — children, adolescents, adults and the elderly — and they can occur in any family. Mental illness is not the same as mental retardation. People with mental illnesses usually have normal intelligence, although they may have difficulty performing at a normal level due to their illness.

While the causes of mental illness and other emotional problems continue to be researched exhaustively, professionals are unsure just why some people seem more susceptible to these problems. What we do know, however, is that we are able to help people who have these difficulties to lead active, productive, fulfilling lives.

Northeast Guidance Center Services

Northeast Guidance Center provides services to people of all ages who have serious emotional problems and mental illnesses. At Northeast, residents of northeastern Wayne County receive counseling, treatment and services after psychiatric hospitalization, prevention and other specialized services.

Since 1963, people with mental health needs have known Northeast Guidance Center is there to help. With a reputation for high quality services, innovative approaches, and especially helping people whose needs are greatest yet whose resources and options are least, Northeast is a valued community resource. For more information

After years of increasingly severe depression, Martha sought help at Northeast. Compassionate, dedicated therapists and other specialists help people who have mental illness and serious emotional problems.

Assistance League, commitment and support

With great compassion, members of the Assistance League to the Northeast Guidance Center understand the bewilderment and anguish caused by serious emotional problems and mental illnesses. They understand it's hard to ask for help and sometimes it's hard to find help. That's why members are so committed to support children's and adult services of Northeast Guidance Center.

Over the years, donations raised through very special fund raising projects have helped make the ongoing services and special projects at Northeast possible. In 1991, the Assistance League raised a record $153,000 to support the therapeutic and preventive mental health services of Northwest. Vital children's services of Northeast Guidance Center benefit from the Assistance League's participation in the glamorous Charity Preview to the North American International Auto Show. Art on the Pointe, the League's fantastic annual juried art fair, participation in the Western Open, and sponsorship of the first Assistance League Invitational golf tournament all supported mental health services at Northeast.

Woods honored

AAA Michigan Community Safety Services consultant Renee Ramos, center, presented the city of Grosse Pointe Woods an award of excellence from the American Automobile Association. Grosse Pointe Woods Director of Public Safety Jack Patterson, left, and Public Safety Officer John Albrecht accepted the award, which the Woods earned for achieving top performances in both the pedestrian safety program activities and the prevention of pedestrian deaths and injuries. The award was presented at a Nov. 21 meeting of the Wayne County Traffic Safety Committee.

Lieutenants back — sergeants out

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer
After almost a decade, the Grosse Pointe Woods Public Safety Department will once again have lieutenants.

Ten years ago, the city changed the titles of the public safety department's shift commanders from "lieutenant" to "sergeant platoon commander," said Public Safety Director Jack Patterson.

On Monday, the city council changed their titles back to "lieutenant."

The change is in name and uniform only. The city's four sergeant platoon commanders carried silver badges and wore a silver border on their hats. As lieutenants, they will carry gold badges and have gold trim on their hats and uniforms, Patterson said.

The lieutenants' salaries and duties, however, will remain the same as before the switch. Patterson said that the name-change will help avoid confusion when the Woods works with other public safety departments, because most neighboring cities have lieutenants instead of sergeant platoon commanders.

Neither Patterson nor Chester E. Petersen, Woods city administrator-clerk, could explain why the title was changed years ago.

"It was just the preference of the city council at that time," Petersen said.

The change back to lieutenant came at the request of the city's sergeants and corporals association, and was not the result of formal contract bargaining, Patterson said.

He thought it was a valid request.

"They do the same work as lieutenants," he said, "they might as well be called lieutenants."

The Optical Library was one of the stores that won an award from the Hill Association for its decorated windows for Christmas.

Group recognizes window displays

The Hill Association of Grosse Pointe Farms and the city held its first tree lighting ceremony Dec. 5.

Present at the ceremony were Gregg Berendt, mayor; Richard Solak, acting city manager; the Grosse Pointe North Tower Bells Choir; Hill Association members and many people from surrounding community.

The Hill Association presented top awards to Connolly Travel Inc. and The Optical Library for their Christmas window displays. Honorable mentions were awarded to Johnstone & Johnstone Realtors, Greatways Travel Inc., Blossoms and Young Clothes.

All displays were judged by the members of the Farms Beautification Commission.

Warren man pleads guilty

An 18-year-old Warren man pleaded guilty Dec. 13 to shooting at a bus on Lakeshore in June.

Armand David Saroli entered his plea before Detroit Recorder's Judge Dominick Carnovale. He will be sentenced in January on charges of felonious assault and commission of a crime with a firearm. He could receive up to seven years in prison on the charges.

On June 28 at 11:30 p.m., an East Detroit man was driving his mobile home — a converted 1972 Dodge school bus — east on Lakeshore in Grosse Pointe Shores when Saroli fired five shots into the rear of the bus. No one was injured.

The shooting stemmed from an argument between the bus driver and Saroli, who was in another car with friends. The dispute began at Jefferson and Fisher in the City.

Shores public safety officer Robert Bensinger is credited with the successful investigation that led to Saroli's arrest and conviction.

Saroli has a history of prior convictions, including burglary of a pay phone and larceny. He also faces an armed robbery charge in Warren. He allegedly committed the robbery after he was released on bail while being held by Wayne County on the Shores charges, police said.

Con

the description of the vehicle and its occupants.

A short time later, Detroit police and Grosse Pointe Park detectives stopped the Mercedes at Chandler Park Drive and Conner and arrested the man and woman. They were brought back to the Farms police station.

Farms detectives learned that the man and woman were disguised. He wore a false goatee and had painted his sideburns. She wore a wig.

The man gave officers a false name, but Michigan State Police records revealed that he was Robert Richardo Hawkins, 34, of Detroit. He has a lengthy criminal history, including numerous arrests for fraudulent activities, drugs, weapons and robbery and was on parole, police said.

The woman was identified as Alenda Uvette Dick, 28, also of Detroit.

Both suspects were arraigned Dec. 12 on charges of attempted larceny by trick, a felony carrying a maximum sentence of 2-1/2 years. Their preliminary exam is set for Jan. 3.

Dick's bond was set at $5,000 cash, which was paid by a bailman. Hawkins could not pay his $10,000 cash bond and is in Wayne County Jail, police said.

Police recovered the 1-inch thick bundle of money and found that a $1 bill was on the front and back, with the $100 wrappers and lottery ticket disguising them.

Farms police credit the quick actions of the Comerica bank manager for preventing the victim from losing what was probably all the money she had.

In the Dec. 3 incident, the Detroit man was having an argument with his girlfriend, who works at one of the stores, and was confronted by a man in his late 30s who identified himself as a police officer and told the man to come outside to discuss the matter.

The two men went to the parking lot. The alleged officer got an envelope out of his car and ordered the man to put his wallet, watch and keys in it. The man complied. The alleged officer then told man to go to the Farms police station on Dec. 20 to recover his belongings and to find out if there will be any prosecution.

The alleged officer then got into his car and drove off.

Four days later, the man called the Farms police to file a complaint against the alleged officer. When he explained what had happened, he was told that he was tricked by someone impersonating an officer. The man said that at no time did the alleged police officer present any form of identification.

Detective Michael McCarthy said shoppers have to be careful, especially during the busy holiday shopping season. If someone says they found money, call police, and if someone identifies himself as a police officer, ask to see some identification.

Holiday time is also the perfect time to capture some dramatic winter scenes on film. This snow-filled shot was taken by Nagler in Novi.

Capture the holidays on film

No better opportunity exists for recording treasured family memories with your camera than at holiday time.

Christmas and children go hand in hand, so let's begin with them. Remember to move in close to fill the frame and get down on their level. Concentrate on candid shots as the kids unwrap their presents under the tree and begin to play with their new toys. Your photos will appear natural because in all the excitement the children won't even know you're there.

Don't forget other family members. For group shots, have everyone sit or stand around casually rather than resort to a stiffly posed composition. Try including yourself in the picture by using the self-timer and placing the camera on a tripod or steady table.

As always, check your background for unwanted or distracting objects. And watch out for unwanted reflections from windows, mirrors, or picture glass that may ruin a treasured shot. Often, all it takes is a slight adjustment in camera angle to eliminate this problem.

Keep your eyes open for other Christmas subjects that will add variety and interest to your holiday pictures. A colorfully filled stocking, a beautifully wrapped present or a sparkling tree ornament will all reward you with a fine yuletide shot. Take night photos of decorated home exteriors to enrich your holiday album.

Take advantage of today's

fast films. Using 1000 or 1600 speed films, try lighting some scenes with only candlelight. Your dinner table or a family member lit only by candles will produce that memorable romantic shot. An exposure of f/2 at 1/30 second is all that's needed.

Need a last-minute stocking stuffer? A photographer is always thrilled to find his or her Christmas packed with film on Christmas morning. Or a wide, comfortable camera strap may be just the thing. How about an inexpensive flash "L" bracket that will make "red-eye" a thing of the past.

What about this unusual gift idea? "Borrow" someone's favorite slide or negative and on the sly have an enlargement made. Imagine the delight when that special friend or relative receives a colorful, framed print of that prized shot!

And at holiday time, we're usually ankle deep in nature's blanket of winter snow. So bundle up both you and your camera and head outdoors to capture dramatic winter scenes on film.

Meetings set

After birthdays, anniversaries and paydays, Farms residents might want to mark the following dates in their 1992 calendars.

The Farms council will meet Jan. 13 and 27, Feb. 10 and 24, March 9 and 23, April 6, May 4 and 18, June 5, July 13, Aug. 17, Sept. 14, Oct. 5 and 19, Nov. 9 and 23, and Dec. 14.

All meetings will be held on Mondays, starting at 7:30 p.m., in the council chambers on the second floor of city hall, 90 Kerby Road.

Canvassers appointed

Josephine Beardslee and Joanne Leonard have been reappointed to the Grosse Pointe Farms board of canvassers by the city council.

Their new terms will start Jan. 1, the day after their old terms expire. Beardslee is a Republican and Leonard is a Democrat.

The board of canvassers reviews and certifies the results of each local election. Under Michigan statutes, each city or township board of canvassers must have four members, two from each major political party (Republican and Democrat). Each member serves a four-year term.

Jane Dow and Frances Schonenberg are the other two members of the board of canvassers. Their terms expire in 1993.

When you need emergency care, come to Bon Secours Hospital. Every one of our emergency physicians is board-certified and specially trained in emergency medicine. Each has had advanced cardiac life-support training as well. And all of our emergency room nurses have long-term experience in the emergency department.

To make your emergency care even better, we've expanded our Emergency Department: four new general treatment rooms, a mini-laboratory and radiology room right on site, and additional orthopedics and gynecology specialty rooms. We have pediatricians and obstetricians available 24 hours a day, and we've doubled the size of the triage area so we can treat you faster. Plus we're adding more state-of-the-art equipment to the department, including new cardiac telemetry units which will enable us to monitor up to 20 critical patients even while they're being transported to different areas of the hospital for necessary testing.

All of these improvements, combined with the most qualified emergency staff in Michigan, means outstanding care for you and your family. And that's our ultimate goal. In fact, we won't stand for anything less.

Even the engine's beautiful on the daring Alfa Romeo 164S

"I think I've got something here that will interest you," I said to John Ausilio, president of Citation Tool Co. and part owner of the Arriva restaurant near the General Motors Tech Center in Warren.

We were leaving the offices of CIMCO, a holding company also in Warren that is the parent firm of, among others, Citation Tool.

We approached a jet black Alfa Romeo 164S sedan in the lot.

"It's pretty," Ausilio said. "Very pretty." And it is, even though it ignores just about every styling trend going. It is boxy in an aero era. The leather interior is not the prevalent gray or black; it is a bright yellow squash color bordering on the ghastly, but in fact coming off quite well, even with red stitching.

And while most fashionable cars now sport minimal grilles, the Alfa's grille leaps out at you, a curious chrome-ringed valentine. (The grille is appropriate. Driving the 164S will almost undoubtedly cause you to love the car. And you soon realize that it loves you, too.)

I offered the keys to Ausilio, but he declined. "You drive," he said. "I'll get to feel how it rides."

It was only a couple of miles to the restaurant, not much of a test, but I opened it up briefly on Mound Road so he could sense the muscles under the Pininfarina-styled hood. "Nice," he said.

In fact, the Alfa's performance is a lot more than nice. Without the benefit of four valves per cylinder or turbocharging, the Alfa's aluminum three-liter V-6 puts out 200 horsepower and moves the luxury sedan off the line with such alacrity that drivers of competing sports sedans will be wondering, "What was that?"

Not wanting to get caught speeding in a foreign car (or American, for that matter), I did not test this, but it is said that the 164S will do 140-plus miles per hour. All I know is that in normal traffic flow on I-696, there is still plenty of accelerator left.

The engine puts the Alfa 164S in the top performance ranks of luxury cars, and it is also one of the prettiest. Most car makers take a strictly utilitarian approach to engines and do not try to make them into works of art, but the Alfa's V-6 is beautiful with its intricately machined valve covers and bright-metal intake tubes.

Several other cars have very attractive engines, such as the Cadillac Allante, Chevrolet Corvette, Ford Taurus SHO and Mitsubishi 3000 Twin Turbo, but the Alfa's will provide you with an aesthetic experience when you open the hood to check the oil.

As we approached the Arriva, I asked Ausilio again if he wouldn't like to drive the Alfa. "No, it's very nice, but we better keep going. The pasta's getting cold," he answered.

I thought it made sense to go to a fine Italian restaurant in a fine Italian car, but then it dawned on me that we are right across 12 Mile from the GM Tech Center, many GM executives come here for lunch, GM is a major customer for Ausilio's tool company and Ausilio is leading a crusade for a more efficient manufacturing system to make the American makers more competitive. So maybe he would just as soon not make a big deal about pulling up in a foreign car, even if it isn't Japanese.

Ausilio has designed a modular tooling system which he says will cut costs and make the American makers more competitive. The system is attracting much positive attention and is so logical that it is beautiful in its simplicity. Ironically, CIMCO is financed by C. Itoh, the giant Japanese global trading company, and it is this financing that allows development of the CAD/CAM tooling system.

Ausilio sold Citation Tool to CIMCO about a year ago, but continues to take as active a role as ever. "When we complain that the Japanese are beating us, we're complaining that the other guy's winning because he trained harder," Ausilio says, warming to his subject. "We've got to work harder and smarter. I know we can do it."

Some (like me) might think running a machine tool company and co-owning a fine Italian restaurant is an odd combination, but that is just the beginning. Ausilio is also a partner in a weight-loss program called SlimVision, which employs visualization motivation. And he is a partner with Barney Ales, former president of Motown Records, in a new recording company to be based here, Arriva Records.

"I've got to keep busy," Ausilio said with a chuckle.

While there are a number of indications that the American Big Three are building a stronger position for the long term, Alfa Romeo is not doing so well in the U.S. market.

Last month, Chrysler Corp. ended its joint venture with Fiat to distribute Alfa Romeo in the United States. When the joint venture was announced in 1989, there were optimistic predictions, based largely on introduction of the 164 series, that Alfa sales would rebound strongly.

The 164 line was kind of a last-ditch effort to stay above water in the American market and it succeeded admirably as an automobile, but annual sales have not come close to the anticipated 12,000 units. Alfa Romeo sales in 1989 totaled 2,850 and in 1990, after introduction of the 164 line, climbed to 3,482. And that figure included more Spyder sports cars than 164S sedans. Sales are unlikely to be any higher for 1991.

Peugeot and Sterling withdrew from the U.S. market with better sales last year than Alfa Romeo posted. True, Alfa has a cult following, which was not the case with Peugeot or Sterling, but whether the cult is big enough and whether it is growing must be questions going through staffers' minds at Alfa Romeo Distributors of North America.

I hope the cult is big enough, although the 164S price tag of around $31,000 (prices for lesser 164 models start at around $25,000) is going to limit its sales and much of the cult has grown up around the Spyder sports car. But in an age when American, Japanese and northern European cars are becoming very standardized, the Alfa has its own flair, a distinctive personality without the eccentricities that have marked some Alfas in the past.

Alfa, by the way, started as an acronym for Anonima Lombardo Fabbrica Automobili (the Lombardy Motor Manufacturing Co.) in Milan, Italy, in 1910. It became Alfa Romeo after World War I, reflecting the takeover of the company by industrialist Nicola Romeo.

And, oh yes, the Alfa delivered us to the Arriva swiftly, before the pasta got cold. It was most delicious.

Find out what your car is worth

Buying or selling a late-model U.S. car? Want to know what a 1948 Aston-Martin is worth? How about a 10-year-old foreign sedan?

If you stick to conventional means — quotes from dealers, listings in newspaper ads and data from financial institutions — you might have a tough time determining market value.

But a state-of-the-art, computerized system called Auto Priceline makes it possible to use touch-tone telephones to find out the current high and low values of virtually any car — from the late model domestic to the older import.

National Automobile Data

Service Inc. introduced the service in 1987. William Kingsbury, company president and co-founder, says that with basic information about a car — make, model, year, mileage, location and optional features — a person can call the Auto Priceline and get dollars-and-cents answers.

Auto Priceline, 1-900-884-3300, is a 24-hour service costing $2 per minute. (The average time to get information on one vehicle is four minutes; two minutes per vehicle thereafter).

Auto Priceline has added market values of American and European collector automobiles from 1946 to 1972. The data base includes all post-World War II General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and Packard lines — with the exclusion of station wagons — and European makes, including Aston Martin, Austin-Healey, BMW, Delorean, DeTomaso, Ferrari, Fiat, Jaguar, Jensen, Lamborghini, MG, Maserati, Mercedes Benz, Porsche and Triumph.

Market values reported are based on data obtained from auctions, Kelley's Blue Book, regional and national classified advertisements and industry publications. Listings are updated quarterly.

MEAP test scores remain about the same

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

The Michigan Education Assessment Program (MEAP) scores are in, and despite controversy and one completely new test, Grosse Pointe's students did about as well as expected.

"There's a few ups and a few downs, but overall I'd say our scores are about the same," said Roger McCaig, the schools' director of research and development. In October, every fourth, seventh and tenth grade student in the state was required to take the MEAP math and reading tests. Every fifth, eighth and eleventh grader was required to take the MEAP science test.

While the test was once used to help the state distribute money to the schools, in recent years it has been used to set state standards and stir change in the curriculum.

The reading test gives students two different passages — a short story and an informational piece — and questions the students on how well they understood the material.

"There was some controversy over the fourth grade reading test," McCaig said. "The informational part was on the Roman empire and the claim, from many districts, was that it was unfairly difficult."

McCaig admits the test was tough, and the scores reflect the difficulty. Nearly 88 percent of all students passed the story section of the test while only 63 percent passed the informational section. Some 59 percent of students passed both tests. Last year, 65 percent passed both tests and in 1989 63.6 percent passed both sections.

In the seventh grade reading test, 55 percent passed both the story and the informational sections. Last year 62.9 percent passed both and in 1989, 64.2 percent passed both.

Seventy-five percent of the students passed the story section and 63.1 percent passed the informational section.

"We're not panicking, even though some of the scores are down, because there is no way to pick two reading selections with 20 questions that are exactly the same from year to year," McCaig said.

The scores for the tenth grade reading test jumped significantly over the previous two years with 72.9 percent passing both tests. Last year only 59.4 percent passed both tests and in 1989 only 53.6 percent achieved that goal. More than 90 percent passed the story section and 74.7 percent passed the informational portion.

But McCaig isn't making any claims about the gain in tenth grade reading scores.

"I'll have to see how everyone else did," he said.

If other districts went up significantly, it may mean the test happened to be easier this year, he said.

The math scores are based on a totally new test that McCaig said is much more difficult than the previous years' tests. Because of the new test, any comparison with last year's math scores could lead to incorrect assumptions.

Nearly 72 percent of the district's fourth graders, 62 percent of the seventh graders and 40.1 percent of the tenth graders received a satisfactory score (65 percent) on the test.

"The new test was much more difficult and it included subjects that students haven't had yet," McCaig said.

Indeed, the test included sections on logic, statistics and probability, topics that aren't included in most early high school textbooks.

"We won't know what these numbers mean until we compare them with other school districts," he said.

The school board has formed a committee to study the K-12 math curriculum. "I don't expect to see the math scores rise for a couple of years," McCaig said. "When you're tested in the tenth grade, you're tested on what was taught in seventh, eighth and ninth grades. We're lucky we had this committee in the works; other districts will probably have to study their programs, too."

The committee will recommend changes in the math curriculum that are expected to be instituted in the 1992-93 school year.

The science scores remained virtually the same: 89 percent of the fifth graders passed, with 92 percent passing last year and 88 percent passing in 1989. In the eighth grade, nearly 76 percent passed, compared with 73 percent last year and 79.6 percent in 1989.

Nearly 62 percent of the eleventh grade students passed this year, compared to 61 percent last year and 60.5 percent in 1989.

McCaig said he will compare the scores with the results in the rest of the state's school districts when they are made public, sometime in February.

Optimists to collect winter coats for needy

The Grosse Pointe Lakeshore Optimist Club will sponsor a "Coats for the Cold" drive for the third year in a row. The drive will collect warm winter outerwear to donate to the more than 700 needy families who live in the Corktown area of Detroit.

Coats, hats, gloves, scarves, sweaters, socks and boots are needed for children, teens, men and women. "Nothing will be refused or wasted," said Marv Redlawski, Optimist member who began the drive two years ago. "It will be given directly to those who need it."

In the past two years, the communities of the five Pointes, St. Clair Shores, Harper Woods and the east side of Detroit have responded generously with their donations, he said.

War Memorial to close for holidays

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial will be closed on Wednesday, Dec. 25, and on Wednesday, Jan. 1.

Watch for the new January-February schedule of events in your mailbox this week. Registration begins immediately.

For more information on class schedules, call 881-7511.

"All we are really asking is that the residents just take a few minutes out and scan over that winter closet and take out the stuff that hasn't been used in the past few years or is not likely to be used again," Redlawski said.

The Rev. Tom Sutherland, pastor of Most Holy Trinity Church, said that when word was out that the Optimists had dropped off the coats at the church, the families came "in large numbers and very quickly. The coats were gone in a matter of a few hours, all 500-plus of them."

Sutherland said the need this year is greater than ever due to the number of cutbacks and layoffs.

If you would like to donate some winter garments that are not being used, place them in a plastic bag, and put the bag on your front porch on Saturday, Dec. 21. Volunteer members of the Optimist Club will pick up the donations between noon and 4 p.m. Call 521-6984 and leave your name and address for pickup.

If you want a receipt, place an inventory list with your name, address, telephone number and an estimated value of the donation attached to the outside of the bag. A receipt will be mailed to you from the church.

Shores man guilty in bank fraud

Grosse Pointe Shores resident and Macomb County businessman Thomas Miller pleaded guilty Dec. 10 to defrauding a Pontiac bank of $1.3 million.

Miller, 40, admitted making false statements concerning construction loans obtained from the First Federal Savings Bank and Trust.

He received disbursements totaling $2.2 million from three loans between May 1987 and July 1989. Before the payments were made, according to the U.S. attorney's office, Miller submitted numerous false statements concerning to whom the money was to be paid and for what purpose.

The false statements resulted in the payment of $1.3 million to Miller that was never applied to the construction projects approved by the bank's loan committee.

Under a plea agreement, Miller faces a maximum sentence of 27 months in prison and a $250,000 fine. No sentencing date has been set. He was released on $10,000 personal bond.

Miller comes from a politically prominent Macomb County family. He is the son of Macomb County Clerk Edna Miller and the brother of Arthur Miller, state Senate minority leader.

New service helps businesses hop on the video bandwagon

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Videotape is quickly becoming the way businesses of the future will get their message across to potential clients, stockholders and the general public — it's cheap, it's effective and it will be seen.

But as businesses venture into the new field, they'll need help to make their video product better.

And that's why Grosse Pointers Robert B. Ridder Jr. and Douglas A. Cordier recently opened a branch of the Nashville-based Cascom International Inc. in St. Clair Shores.

"It's hard to say just exactly what we do," said Cordier, who is vice president and director of marketing. "We're a full-service business for video producers."

The company offers high tech animation and special effects that businesses can buy and use when producing a video.

For example: A company wants to open a video with a shot of a spinning globe. To have one created to the company's specifications could cost upward of $1,000 per second of screen time, Cordier said.

But Cascom has purchased the rights to a panoply of animated effects and offers them to video producers at a sharply reduced rate.

"To go with that example, we have 44 different spinning globes that were produced for someone else," he said. "But we can offer all of them for about $500."

The company has a $5 million award-winning library of more than 12 hours of special effects. Clients can use the library of live action, animation, opening and closing effects, backgrounds and transitions two ways: by volume or by individual effect, depending on their budget.

Although the company has only been open since July, its client list includes such big hitters as AAA of Michigan, Kmart, Ross Roy, W.B. Doner, Ford Motor Co. and Michigan Bell.

"The company just added a line of food effects that Cordier believes will reach a whole new clientele.

"Food is expensive to shoot," Cordier said. "It's an art and you have to hire food stylists who know how to make something look appetizing. This is much less expensive."

Doug Cordier

"It's a service that no one else offers and it's a service we feel is needed. Especially when you know that Detroit is one of the biggest producers of videos and industrial films in the country. There are libraries of stock film footage — you can get film of, for instance, the Hindenburg burning — but there are no libraries of stock video effects.

"A lot of these little producers can't afford to pay for special effects and the big producers may have the budget, but they may not have the time. We're here for all video producers."

Cascom also provides duplication and video packaging services.

"We believe videos are the way people are going to see advertisements in the next decade," Cordier said.

A professional basketball team mailed videotapes of team highlights to existing and potential customers, hoping to increase season ticket sales. The video came in a well-designed package that included information about season tickets, and a self-addressed, postage-paid postcard that could be used to order tickets.

"You're going to see a lot of these things coming to your mailbox in the next few years," Cordier said.

And despite what one might think, the cost of producing and mailing a video of that type is going down, Cordier said. 100,000 could be distributed at a cost of about $3.50 a tape.

"Traditional methods of advertising have been saturated serves as vice president of Wood and Co., a broadcast brokerage and financing company. Cordier is a former biology teacher who once had his own cooking show on Grosse Pointe Cable. He has spent the last eight years in broadcasting, most recently with WKQI-FM.

The company recently merged with an advertising agency which gives it the rights to such characters as Ernest, Vern's sales-pitching buddy.

Cordier says that although everyone said he and Ridder were crazy for opening a business in the middle of a recession, Cascom fills a niche that will grow as the economy expands.

"We're set for the rest of the decade," he said.

ADDY seeks contest entries

The Lansing Advertising Club is seeking entries for the 1992 ADDY Awards competition.

The annual contest recognizes exceptional advertising created in the Lansing, Ann Arbor and greater Detroit markets. The ADDY Awards honor advertising excellence in all media, including print, broadcast, out-of-home and public service advertising.

On-time entries must be received by 5 p.m., Monday, Jan. 6, at the Michigan Press Association, 827 N. Washington Ave., Lansing, Mich. 48906. Entry fees are $35 for members of the Lansing Advertising Club and $45 for non-members, with a $10 fee added for campaign entries. Late entries must be received no later than 5 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 16. Late entry fees are an additional $10.

A panel of advertising executives will gather in Lansing the weekend of Jan. 24 to select the winners from an anticipated 1,000 entries. To be eligible for consideration of an ADDY Award, all work must have been published or aired between Jan. 1, 1991, and Dec. 31, 1991.

For more information or to receive an ADDY Awards entry packet, call M. J. Bauries at 1-517-347-0095.

Student Spotlight

Kathryn Wayman

Each week in this column, we will focus on the work of a student. It can be a poem, a drawing, a short story, a picture of a scientific experiment or a wood-working project, a book review.

The following was written by Kathryn Wayman, 8, a third-grader at Richard Elementary School. Her parents are Jonathan and Marie Wayman.

The Gift

It was Christmas Eve and little Samantha was watching her older sister play the piano. Samantha was 3 years old. She then asked, "May I try?" Their grandfather had died when Samantha was born. He was a great, famous piano player.

Wayman

Her sister named Kathrine said, "Oh, all right!" Kathrine exclaimed to Samantha: "I'd like to see you play my hardest piece." Samantha tried and tried but she couldn't play the piece.

The next day Kathrine heard Samantha playing the piece. Her fingers were pounding the keys like a tennis ball bouncing up and down. Kathrine screamed for it sounded like a needle flying through the air. Samantha was so happy she almost broke their lamp. The next day Samantha said to her mother, "Why can't Kathrine play the piece?" Her mother answered, "Your grandfather gave you a musical talent." When Samantha grew and was married, she was very famous, because of her grandfather's talent. It was the gift he passed on to her.

Christian Knudson

The following story was written by Christian Knudson, who is in the third grade at Richard Elementary School. He is the son of Gregory and Virginia Knudson of the Farms.

The Gift

There was once a boy named T.J. Fomes who lived in a very small house with his mom and dad on 467 Mort Road. T.J. did not have any friends and was very lonely. T.J. was sad because it was Christmas in a week. The reason T.J. was so sad was because he would not get a gift.

One more day until Christmas Eve. At school the next day T.J. was kind of sad because he wanted a gift. In the evening T.J. was very quiet and slow. "Time to go to bed," smiled his mother. "OK," replied T.J.

In the night T.J. heard a strange sound. It sounded like a loud cow bell. T.J. was surprised to see angels working on something. Then one of the angels spoke. He proclaimed this: "You have the gift of love and the gift of wisdom for ever and ever. It means you will be respected by other people. You may not be the richest kid, but you will be followed and you will be gifted."

28 students honored

Twenty-eight students at North High School have been recognized by the College Board for exceptional achievement on the college-level advanced placement examinations taken in May 1991.

Only about 10 percent of the 359,000 students who took AP examinations last May earned recognition at one of the three levels of achievement.

Nine students qualified for the AP scholar with distinction award by earning grades of 3.0 or above on five or more AP exams with an average grade of at least 3.5. They are Frank Fontana, Paule Herodote, Katherine Jones, James Moore, James Murray, Monica Rhee, Amod Sarniak, Shannon Sullivan and Lisa Williams.

Ten students qualified for the AP scholar with honor award by earning grades of 3.0 or above on four or more examinations with an average exam grade of at least 3.25. They are Elizabeth Bakunovich, Melissa Blumenthal, Julie Ciaramitaro, Roberta Dean, Patricia Dugan, Daniel Kruger, Courtney Mack, Julie Ricci, Charles Smith and Tish Straetmans.

Nine students qualified for the AP scholar award by completing three or more AP examinations with grades of 3 or higher. They are Mary Benjamins, Susan Dale, Michele Hatty, Amy Higgins, Julie Irwin, Falgun Rathod, Deborah Stevenson, Randal Stocki and Michael Zolik.

St. Clare nursery school a success

St. Clare Co-op Nursery School, a venture for St. Clare of Montefalco Catholic School, is turning out to be a wonderful experience for all involved.

The nursery opened its doors in September and offers a program for 3- and 4-year-olds and is fully licensed by the state.

St. Clare Nursery School believes in providing an environment of learning through play. The program's philosophy is designed to help children develop a positive self-image, to learn social skills, to share and take turns, to encourage respect for other children and to help the child learn to follow directions while promoting individual growth in an atmosphere of security and acceptance.

The classes are staffed by a full-time certified teacher as well as a full-time assistant. For more information, call Mary Brookes at 882-4379.

St. John Hospital and Medical Center announces today's gentler ways to eliminate kidney stones.

Starting January 1992, St. John Hospital and Medical Center plans to offer laser surgery in addition to its existing sound wave method of treating kidney stones. Both treatments reduce the discomfort and recovery time associated with conventional surgery. ♦ Specially trained doctors will use gentle pulses of laser light to break up kidney stones and allow them to pass naturally. ♦ The procedure is relatively easy and offers a much quicker return to normal activities than with many other methods of treatment. In fact, many patients are discharged the same day and fully recuperated within 24 hours. ♦ Find out more about how a tiny laser beam can make kidney stones disappear. Call now for a free booklet and arrange a consultation.

Their most memorable Christmas, however, was definitely untraditional

By Margie Reins Smith

Feature Editor
Robert and Alice Callaway are traditionalists.

"Do anything once around here and it's a tradition," Robert Callaway said.

The Callaways love Christmas. They have begun — and perpetuated — dozens of traditions during their 48-year marriage.

They always put up a fresh, 13-foot Christmas tree, for instance, one that brushes the beams of the cathedral ceiling in their living room.

They trim it with nearly 700 ornaments they've collected during their marriage and inherited from their respective families. Nearly 200 of the ornaments are colorful handmade one-of-a-kinds designed by their daughter, Karen Callaway of Chicago. Others are antique German glass decorations and unique animal designs they've picked up at local craft fairs and on trips.

Each ornament is carefully placed on the tree with thoughtful consideration of its color, size and shape, its relationship to the other decorations and to the tree itself.

Robert Callaway, after all, is an interior designer, owner of Robert C. Callaway Interiors. For 35 years, his studio was located on Mack Avenue near McKinley. (No, he hasn't retired; he has worked out of his home since 1984.)

The Callaways unpack and set up the pieces of the hand-carved creche from Germany, with its tiny replicas of the wise men and the animals and the baby Jesus. They put up their collection of miniature wooden churches from Russia.

They hang 40 or 50 suncatchers (all with Christmas or winter designs) inside 18 square panes of a window adjacent to the front porch.

"It looks like a cathedral window when we're finished," Robert Callaway said.

They put real wax candles in the livingroom chandelier. They set up the individual houses and shops of the ceramic English village — pieces they've collected over the years.

They plan their holiday entertaining — several small dinner parties, a meal before church on Christmas Eve for friends who don't have families nearby, a small gathering on New Year's Eve, Robert Callaway's birthday celebration on Jan. 4, a Twelfth Night party, and a party for friends who like to help them take down their spectacular Christmas tree.

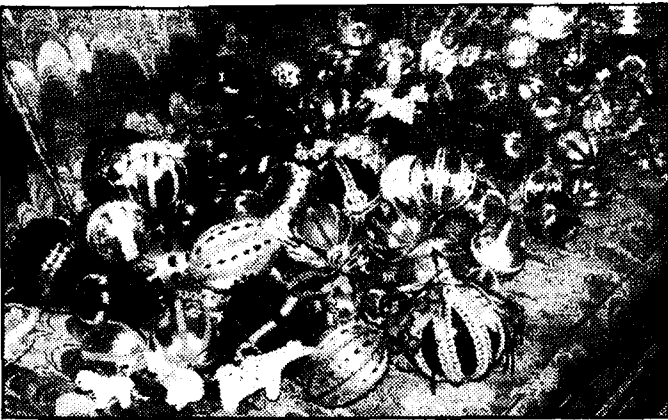

They hang traditional Christmas stockings from the mantel, including a stocking for their daughter (who will come home, taking a holiday from her job as special edition editor for the Chicago Tribune), and one for each household pet (currently two cats and a golden retriever).

They wrap gifts — lots of gifts.

"It's almost sinful," said Robert Callaway. "We are blessed people. We've been very fortunate all our lives, so we appreciate all this."

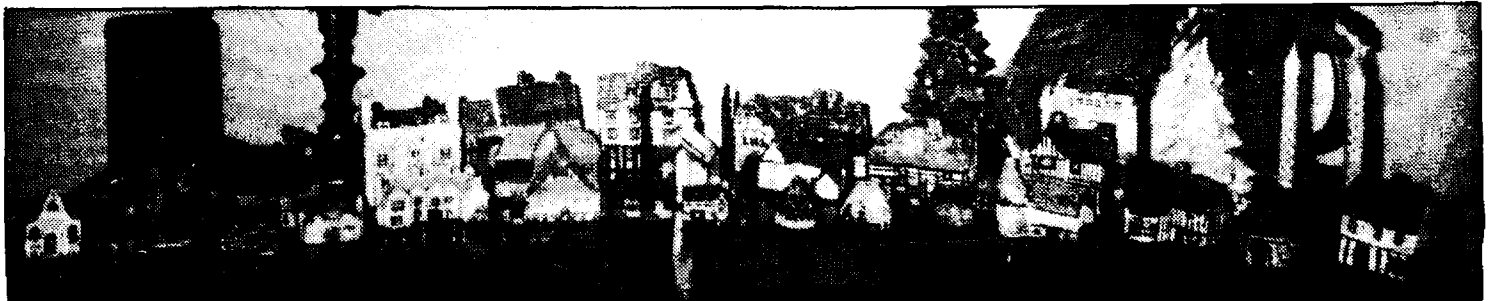

Three years ago, however, after all the preparations, all the decorating, all the cooking and cleaning and wrapping and shopping — the Callaway's glittering tree towered above its piles of unopened gifts like a solitary sentinel, all Christmas Day.

Robert and Alice Callaway, above, collect traditional Christmas decorations. Each year, they carefully place nearly 700 one-of-a-kind ornaments on their 13-foot tree, shown at the right. Of these, nearly 200 were handmade by their daughter.

Karen Callaway, who began making a baker's dozen ornaments for her parents each Christmas while she was a college student. Some examples of her designs are above. A ceramic English village, made from individual pieces the Callaways have collected, is shown below.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Edward Bejin

Scholl-Bejin

Karen Sue Scholl of Farmington Hills, daughter of Paul and Millie Scholl of Ann Arbor, married Thomas Edward Bejin, son of Tom and Dorothy Bejin of Grosse Pointe Woods, on Aug. 17, 1991, at St. Thomas the Apostle Church in Ann Arbor.

The Rev. Timothy Crowley officiated at the 2 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at Weber's Inn.

The matron of honor was Joy Rakowicz of St. Clair Shores.

Bridesmaids were the bride's sisters, Kathy Dolan of Farmington Hills and Bev Hoesman of Dimondale; Marge Raddon of Indianapolis; and Melissa Drakos of Rochester Hills.

The best man was the groom's brother, Peter Bejin of Grosse Pointe Woods.

Groomsmen were the groom's brothers, Bill and Matt Bejin of Grosse Pointe Woods; John Rakowicz of St. Clair Shores; and William Pappas of Kansas City, Mo. Ushers were Michael Hoey of St. Clair Shores; and the bride's brother, Bob Scholl of Saline.

The bride earned a bachelor of business administration degree from the University of Michigan. She is an account representative with Manufacturer's National Bank.

The groom earned a bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering from the University of Michigan. He is attending law school at U of M and expects to graduate in May.

The couple traveled to Bar Harbor, Maine. They live in Farmington Hills.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Philip Schafer

Mullaney-Schafer

Laure Ann Mullaney, daughter of Patricia Ann Mullaney and step-daughter of Chapman Cunningham of Grosse Pointe Woods, married Lee Philip Schafer of Chicago, son of Derald and Charlotte Schafer of Burley, Idaho, on Sept. 14, 1991, at St. Paul Lutheran Church.

The Rev. David Kaiser-Cross officiated at the 5 p.m. ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the Lochmoor Club.

The bride wore a white peau de soie gown with short sleeves, an off-the-shoulder neckline, a sequined bodice, and a laced-train inset with medallions of lace, beads and sequins. She carried a cascade of gardenias, orchids and stephanotis.

The maid of honor was Lisa Ann Mullaney of St. Clair Shores, the bride's sister.

Bridesmaids were Katherine Clark of Denver; Brigid Quinn of Redford; Nina Vinogradov of New York City; and Susan Peters of Chicago.

Attendants wore tea-length amethyst taffeta gowns with sweetheart necklines. They carried cascades of pink sweetheart roses and cymbidium orchids.

"It was the best Christmas ever," said Robert Callaway. "On Christmas Eve, we went to our church, Grosse Pointe Methodist Church. Our minister said that volunteers were needed, at the last minute, to work Christmas Day at Cass Avenue Methodist Church," he said. "Our church responded. About 20 people went, including Alice and Karen and me. It was the first one-on-one experience I've had with people who had nothing. The dignity of these people amazed all of us. "We served 400 people," Robert Callaway said. "I served food, assembly line style, for three hours straight." "The greatest part of Christmas was forgetting about ourselves and doing for others," Alice Callaway said. "The greatest part of Christmas is giving gifts to other people." The family opened gifts and celebrated Christmas on Dec. 26 that year.

What's the meaning of Christmas? Robert Callaway thought awhile. "The true meaning of Christmas," he said, "is love, patience and giving — giving of oneself; one's talents; one's time; and helping. And none of it means anything unless it's activated — unless we do something. "If we had more of the true meaning of Christmas in our everyday lives, the world would be a better place. "Awareness is a key too. I'm so aware of how God has blessed me."

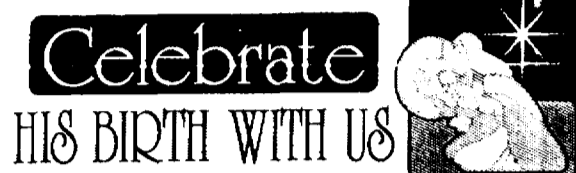

The stockings are hung by the chimney with care. It's one of many traditions kept by the Callaways on Christmas Eve.

Annual Fund campaign

Donald Chamberlin, the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's 1991-92 development chairman, and GiGi Gagini, annual fund volunteer, do their part to keep the non-profit community center operating for another year. The annual fund campaign for donations runs from November through May and helps maintain the War Memorial's grounds and buildings, keeps program fees low, and makes community service programs possible.

Bridge

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION
BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD ♠♥♦♣

Two of my Tuesday evening basic bridge pupils are the delightful Jack and Barbara Seedman who have contributed a dash of hilarity and imagination to our ninety minute classes this fall. The group is big (27) as opposed to Wednesday's intermediate enlistment of (17) so our time table is somewhat rigid in order that we can accomplish much, but one of the reasons we play is to have fun so it must also be part of the learning process too. Jack's quick wit blends well with the professors limited cleverness and that bodes well for all.

My column of Nov. 21 with the rhyme about novices elicited from his quill today's masterpiece. There shouldn't be any wonder why he's one of our town's leading advertising imaginations serving as creative chief at two of our large agencies before opening his own shop.

This Bridge that we're learning
Is driving me nuts.
It upsets my stomach
And tears out my guts.

There are rule after rule
And that's not to mention
There are loads of exceptions
And countless conventions

And more often than not
When my partner has bid,
I've just no idea
Why I heard what I did.

For each time that I think
That a rule I have mastered,
I hear all the exceptions
And my mind's a disaster.

The Seedman's often come to class with a hand and a question. What do you think of this one?

Obviously N/S were playing a weak no trump (12-14 HCP) so North's second bid showed a flat hand of (15-17 HCP). Six clubs was a little bit of a shot, but North was at the top of his bid and knew his partner was short in the red suits and they were both covered by his quick taking aces. For all he knew twelve tricks could be a lay down at the lead.

Here is another classic example that 61% of the time there is a given lead that will beat a given contract. West didn't find it and no one can fault his choice, but a heart scuttles the slam at trick one.

Drawing trumps and playing both finesses right is a long shot as the spade king must be on side and doubleton which isn't likely.

The best line of play is to win the diamond ace and play for a dummy reversal. You do this by ruffing dummy's three low diamonds high and entering dummy by playing low trumps. This gives you seven clubs and a diamond. Now you must guess the spade king location and if you're wrong, finding the heart king inside. Declarer did play a small spade toward the dummy and was handsomely rewarded. This the suit of the finesse succeeds when the king is with West or three/three or the suit breaks four/two as it did. Guessing wrong can easily cost declarer two tricks missing king, ten, nine, eight. Fortunately declarer now had a resting place for the heart lady.

In summary, I like the bid for a dozen and the play was exceptional.

The Pastor's Corner

Sadness at Christmas

By the Rev. Jack E. Giguere
Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church

I have a friend whose father died on Christmas. Jim's dad died in his sleep. They discovered his death when Jim and his sister came downstairs, ready to open their gifts. They awakened their mother but could not awaken their dad. What a shock.

Their Christmas quickly turned from joy to sadness. For those who have lost a loved one this year — or like Jim, 40 years ago — the holidays can be a difficult time.

It's the season for joyful emotions. But that attitude puts people who have lost a loved one, at Christmas or any other time, in a bind; it declares their natural feelings of sadness and loss out of bounds. And when we act as if any mention of the loss would ruin the season's spirit, they fall into a deeper depression. A holiday can seem more like something to endure than something to celebrate.

This can be true for:

- Those who are bereaved. When the death was fresh, they were surrounded by family and friends. Now they feel forgotten and lonely at a time when their loved one shared so much with them.
- Those recently divorced or in the process of divorce. The church stood beside them when the marriage covenant was formed. Now, when Christmas emphasizes families, they feel very much alone and depressed.
- Those who have had miscarriages and/or abortions. Often at such times a pastor was not called nor was a religious service conducted. Yet they have a sense of loss that is keenly felt.
- Those adjusting to new beginnings. They have moved to a new location and miss family and friends. Or their friends move away and they feel lost without them.
- Those facing death. They are increasingly aware that they will die and are making preparations — making a will or pre-arranging a funeral. They search for appropriate ways to complete life and faithfully embrace inevitable death.

In remembering friends this Christmas, pay attention to the losses that can make holidays painful. Send a card with a note saying you are aware the season might hold difficulty for them. Call or visit, and give your friend a chance to talk. And if they prefer to talk about other things, that's OK, too. The best gifts aren't always under the Christmas tree.

Service of lessons, carols offered at Christ Church Grosse Pointe

The traditional candlelight service of nine lessons and carols, sung at Christ Church Grosse Pointe for more than 30 years, will be presented on Sunday, Dec. 22, at 4:30 p.m.

The service of lessons and carols originated at Truro Cathedral and was then made famous at King's College, Cambridge, England. The setting at Christ Church is similar to the medieval chapels of England with Christmas greens, candlelight, readings and carols. The church is set in darkness and is gradually lit by candlelight as the choir proceeds from the narthex to the choir stalls.

The Choir of Men, Boys and Girls will be directed by D. Frederic DeHaven, choirmaster and music director at Christ Church since 1975.

Swedish worship service to be at Immanuel

Julotta is the Swedish word for early morning Christmas worship service. A traditional Julotta candlelight service has been observed for 72 years at Immanuel Lutheran Church, Chandler Park Drive and Dickerson Avenue in Detroit.

The Swedish language service will be held on Christmas morning, Wednesday, Dec. 25, at 7 a.m.

The worship liturgy, Christmas songs and special music will celebrate the Swedish heritage. The sermon by the Rev. Kenneth Johnson, pastor of Bethel Lutheran Church in St. Clair Shores, will be in Swedish. Assisting in the liturgy and reading of the Christmas gospel will be Ruth Engstrom and Astrid Karlson.

Coffee will be served after the service.

Christ Church invites the community to this service. No tickets or reservations are needed. The church is located at 61 Grosse Pointe Blvd., Grosse Pointe Farms.

Christmas Eve musical program to be at St. Paul

The St. Paul Catholic Church choir, with members of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, will present its annual Christmas Eve program at 11:15 p.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 24, just before the midnight Mass.

On the program this year: "Christmas Concerto" by Arcangelo Corelli; "The Magnificat" by Giovanni Pergolesi; and "Nativity Carol" and "Shepherd's Pipe Carol" by John Rutter.

At midnight, the choir will sing the Mass for Christmas by Marc-Antoine Charpentier. The Mass is from 18th century France and is based on French noels or Christmas folk songs. Traditional carols will be sung by the congregation throughout the Mass.

"This program has become a real tradition at St. Paul's," said David Wagner, music director. "For the last 10 years, we have attempted to present the finest music from different periods and styles to glorify the Christmas season."

Other Christmas Eve Masses at St. Paul will be at 4:30, 6:30 and 8:30 p.m.

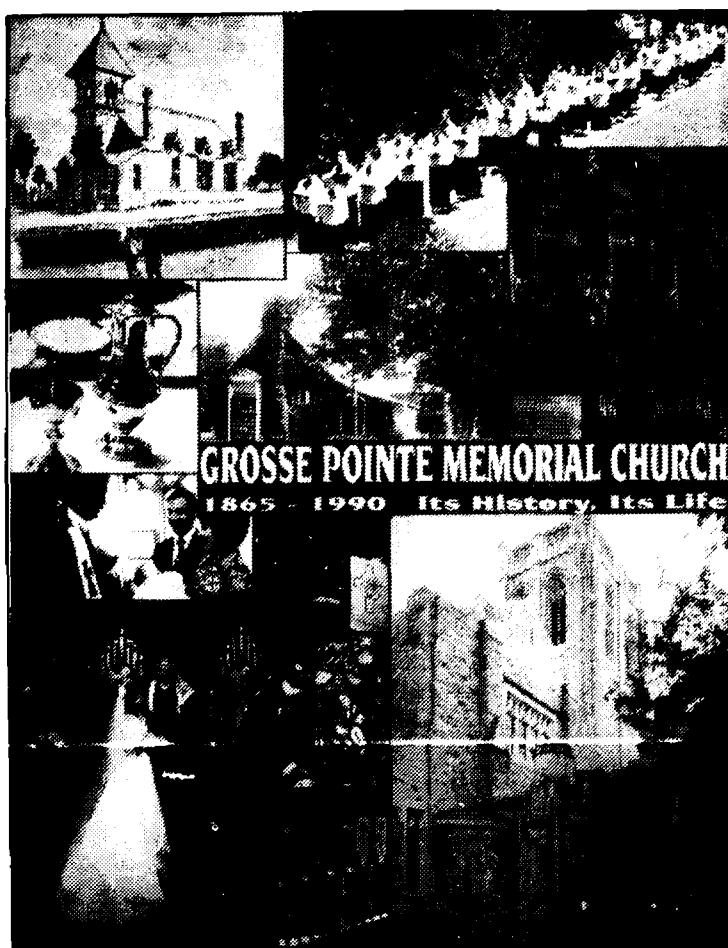

St. Ambrose donates to shelter

Archbishop Adam J. Maida visited St. Ambrose Church in Grosse Pointe Park on Dec. 15 to help celebrate the church's 75th anniversary.

In conjunction with his visit, the entire collection from the 11:15 a.m. Mass was donated to nearby Eastside Emergency Center, a non-profit organization that provides temporary shelter, a soup kitchen, a clothing depot and a referral service for Detroit's homeless.

Maida and the Rev. Tim Pelc, pastor of St. Ambrose Church, delivered the proceeds from the collection to the shelter after the Mass.

Memorial Church publishes history of its first 125 years

The cover of "Grosse Pointe Memorial Church, 1865-1990, Its History, Its Life," is a collage of photographs showing highlights of the church's 125-year history.

The first meeting of what was to become Grosse Pointe Memorial Church took place on Sept. 7, 1865, in a little wooden schoolhouse on Lakeshore Road between Kerby and Moran Road. The small gathering of local residents drew up the Articles of Association of the Protestant Evangelical Association of Grosse Pointe.

The rest is history — a story that members and friends of the church can now read for themselves in a just-off-the-press 104-page history of the church.

The book, "Grosse Pointe Memorial Church 1865-1990: Its History, Its Life," was produced as part of the church's 125th anniversary celebration last year.

The project was under the direction of Thomas Candler, chairman of the anniversary celebration committee. The book was written by Thomas A. Arbaugh, professor of history at Macomb Community College; editors were Benjamin J. Burns, professor of journalism at Wayne State University, assisted by Henry S. Ackerman, Atlanta bureau chief for the Associated Press. The project was produced by Betty Stansbury Young, president of bs

Young & Associates Ltd. of Grosse Pointe.

The Rev. V. Bruce Rigdon has served as pastor of the church since 1988.

"Tom Arbaugh has a wealth of knowledge of early Detroit, early Grosse Pointe and its people," Young said. "He did extensive research for the book."

"We also pored over thousands of photographs from the church archives, the Burton Collection at the Detroit Public Library and the Grosse Pointe Historical Society. The story of the church is told in words and photos."

Young noted that in the early years of the church, it was an ecumenical facility for the whole community — serving as the site of Grosse Pointe's first theater and first library, as well as a place for youth activities and social events. She said the book will be available next week. Those who placed pre-publication orders may pick up their copies at the church office, 16 Lakeshore. Those who would like to purchase a book for $35 should call the church office at 882-5330.

New Christmas Eve service to be at United Methodist

The Rev. Jack E. Giguere, pastor of Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church, said that Christmas, being a season for joy, can be difficult for people who are not feeling joyful.

Therefore, Grosse Pointe Methodist Church will offer an additional Christmas Eve service, the Service of Upholdings, at 7:30 p.m. in the church parlor.

Giguere said that holidays should have room for a wide range of feelings — not only joyfulness and fun, but also feelings of awe and mystery and even an awareness of sadness and loss.

The Service of Upholdings is for people who feel that Christmas is something to endure, rather than something to celebrate. It is for the bereaved, the recently divorced, those in the process of divorce, those who have had a miscarriage or an abortion, an individual adjusting to new beginnings and those facing death.

"This service is for those who, at this time of year, experience grief and confusion for any reason. Others may come too," Giguere said. The thoughtfulness and "upholding" of friends can mean a great deal to the bereaved, he added.

Grosse Pointe United Methodist Church is located at 211 Moross, in Grosse Pointe Farms.

Strength from nature

Judges say Pointer is well versed

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

When Margaret Holley's first marriage was coming to an end, she drew strength from a unique tree that stands alone at the foot of Hall Place in Grosse Pointe Farms.

"It's called the American Smoke Tree and when it blooms it sends out tiny little tendrils, almost like a dandelion that has gone to seed, and the whole tree looks like it's enveloped in smoke," Holley said. "I liked the way it stood alone and it was the only one of its kind. I was single again and I felt it was a disaster, but the tree was alone and it didn't feel it was so bad."

It's a theme that pervades "The Smoke Tree," Holley's first nationally published collection of poetry. The book won the 1991 Bluestem Award, a national poetry competition which earned Holley $1,000 and publication of her work.

The poems chronicle the years between the end of her first marriage and the beginning of her second marriage to Peter Sparks, a chemist who works as a consultant to libraries whose collections are disintegrating with age.

"I write them and he saves them," Holley said, laughing.

The centerpiece of Holley's book is a series of poems called "Radiance: The life of Marie Curie." It is a biography in poem form of the woman scientist who got an education despite society's objections; had to continue working even after losing the husband she was devoted to, and died as a result of exposure to the radium she spent her life studying.

"I had read a biography of Marie Curie and I was so fascinated by her life that I read another, and then another," Holley said. "I was impressed with how she had the strength to go on after life threw her some curves. We learn a lot from each other's lives."

Instead of writing yet another biography of Curie, Holley opted to write a poem that would convey the sense of a whole human being, from birth to death.

"It's an attracting kind of poem," Holley said. "It has a wholeness and a memorable quality to it. The story unfolds in a nice shape and it's satisfying because it has that sense of wholeness. That's the one thing people always mention to me when they say they've read my book."

Although "The Smoke Tree" is her first publication, Holley has been writing poetry most of her life. After graduating from Grosse Pointe Country Day, now University Liggett School, she earned a degree in philosophy from Wellesley College. Realizing how difficult it is to get work in that field, she took a teaching job in Switzerland. It was there she began seriously writing poetry.

She was seeing an analyst who, she says, "unleashed a flood of poetry" within her.

It was in Switzerland that she developed her theme of drawing strength from nature. "Switzerland is a beautiful

The Smoke Tree

Sometimes I can't bear its blooming again, the mist of gold and lavender down billowing over the pages of Bride Magazine into the June of my wedding, my head lost in woods of Sugarberry, Sweetleaf, and wanting to be like everybody else. The silky cloud, the tiny fruitbuds hung in that thunderhead, were a pillow of tears, Weeping cherry, poison Chinaberry fruits, the Fever-tree.

Now in every absent-minded spring, the relentless honesty of this singular shrub stands sentinel over a whole thicket of mistakes, one beaten path of retreats and advances; and never having understood such things as weariness and fear, it gathers up rain around its heartwood again, and again burns out of invisible fire.

place," she said. "The visual world is so beautiful, but all the difficulties of natural life go on against this stunning backdrop. I drew strength from that natural world. That's what my poetry is all about. It is a way of understanding what's happening and making sense of it."

"I guess the one real thing I'm trying to say is 'hope.' You can go on and have a second chance if you don't give up."

The book is dedicated to Sparks, her second chance. She strives — writing two hours every morning — to make her poetry accessible.

"I don't want to write for a specialized audience," she said. "We turn to all forms of art and creativity to refresh us and I want people to draw encouragement and strength from my poetry. A lot of people have difficulty with poetry and to a point that's because for various reasons we've licensed our poems to become very obscure. That's not necessary."

What is necessary to be a good poet?

"You have to love reading, words and form and to love other poetry," she said. "And you have to be prepared to be honest."

Holley said the award was a great encouragement that also helped give her visibility in the poetry market. It's a thriving market, she said, but it's being fed by alternative presses; the big outfits have virtually eliminated poetry from their catalogues.

She writes every morning before going to her job as assistant to the president of Bryn Mawr College where she writes and edits a variety of materials and coordinates programs which bring visiting writers and speakers to the campus. Her second collection of poems, "The Sleeper," will be published in the fall by Copper Beach Press.

"The Smoke Tree" is available at Grosse Pointe Book Village on Kercheval in Grosse Pointe City and at Third Coast Booksellers on Kercheval in Grosse Pointe Park.

'Thursday's Child' is provocative

By Alex Sucek
Special Writer

There's a sharp bite to the portrayal of mid-American family life in Julie Jensen's play, "Thursday's Child," that opened at the Attic Theatre last week. But director Dinah Lynch and a remarkably skilled and resourceful cast have given it a comic treatment bordering on slapstick. It keeps us laughing uncontrollably even as we recognize the banalities of ourselves as out-of-control teenagers growing up too fast, or middle-aged parents growing old before getting smart.

It would be upsetting if it weren't so satirically, sarcastically, cleverly funny.

Central to the action is the mother, George Ann Bradshaw, played with total immersion by Attic artistic director Lavinia Moyer. She's the harried mother of the '90s — overweight and stretched thin by trying to keep some control over her children and deal with the needs of a boyish husband who expects her to mother him as well as to be his wife.

Daughter Kenna Lou at 16 is obsessed with clothes, makeup, teased-dyed hair and boys. Son Kenny is a good kid but potential delinquent. Daughter Marcy, the youngest, is too creative — conducting an experiment with goldfish in the washer and converting her pet dog into a spider. And husband Ken's well-intentioned help with the house and family discipline is invariably a bumbling hindrance.

Superficially, it resembles a TV sitcom. Dates, prom dress, plugged drains and being grounded are issues that set the familiar scene and the way the family deals with them yields a laugh a minute. But no show on the tube probes the American psyche quite so profoundly.

The sky falls in as George Ann, Ken and the kids face the revelations that George Ann at 44 is expecting a child and mom and dad figure out that Kenna Lou is sexually active. The circumstances are the fabric of contemporary America, but how they are represented and dealt with is the joy of this very entertaining show.

Jamie Moyer's performance as Kenna Lou, and David Bourke's Kenny are the essence of all the obnoxious teenage girl and boy behavior that drives parents mad. Would any real life teen combine them all so totally? Any parent would hope not but on stage the portrayal is deliciously and maliciously funny.

Every parent must howl in recognition and every teen should be required to watch just how egregious their behaviour can be. Jamie (who is Lavinia's daughter in real life, too) is masterful in the superior airs put on by Kenna Lou that only an aspiring teen sophisticate can assume. The way she says, "Oh, Mom," is a devastating expression of feigned scorn, superiority and embarrassment, whether in response to parental concern over her new sex life or her startling discovery that her parents still have one of their own.

And exemplifying how different children can be in one family, Marcy, played by Dana Acheson, is a delightful 8-year-old ton boy pixie with scientific inclinations. While the audience laughs at the whole family, she is their comic relief.

In yet another dimension, Mary Bremer appears as George Ann's bosom buddy to see her through the crisis of deciding whether and how she can get a new hold on her family life and make it work better. Out of their confidential conversations come some of the most touching observations and many memorable lines, such as, "Now I understand why some mothers in the animal kingdom eat their own young." That one and more go by so fast they may require more than one visit to the play to appreciate fully.

Jim Porterfield as the father Ken is almost eclipsed by the high energy and conviction of the rest of the cast, until he gets sick and appears hooded in a blanket pleading for relief for his dehydration.

If there's no better therapy than laughing at ourselves, this show is a panacea. Occasional pauses in the otherwise fast pace of the action seemed to reflect opening night problems. As these are worked out, the play can only get better. And there's time for that since it runs Wednesdays through Sundays with some matinees through Jan. 5. For more information, call 875-8284.

DIA to remain open five days, continue school tours despite state cuts

The Detroit Institute of Arts will remain open five days a week, will continue to offer school tours and will host some special exhibitions, director Samuel Sachs II said recently.

"After six weeks of intense budget discussion we have found ways to keep the museum open, although with reduced hours. The resulting museum and its services will operate at significantly reduced levels, which is inconsistent with the maintenance of a world-class museum. Our mission was to match services and programs with limited financial resources," Sachs said.

The DIA will continue to offer the following services: school tours, educational workshops and classes, the Art to the Schools program, daily docent public tours, lectures, courses, conservation services to other museums and collectors, and other curatorial services.

Also continuing are the Detroit Film Theatre, special fundraising events such as the Wassail Feast, Fash Bash, Under the Stars and the biennial Art and Flowers Festival and the independently operated Detroit Youtheatre.

Special exhibitions will be offerred on a limited basis. These include previously funded exhibitions such as "Gold of Africa" (Dec. 8 - Feb. 9), "Chic to Chic: 100 Years of Fashion Accessories from the Collection of Sandy Schreier" (Feb. 2 - March 22), "Arman: A Retrospective" (May 17 - July 12), and the DIA-organized "Art of the American Frontier: The Chandler Pohrt Collection," on view at the National Gallery in Washington next spring and scheduled to open at the DIA in October 1992.

Simultaneously it was announced that the museum will plan for the future through ef-orts to build community and private sector support and ensure the long-term health of the DIA. The museum is pursuing the Kresge Foundation Van Dusen Endowment Challenge. This grant has the potential to add $4 million to the DIA's operating endowment. Additional plans are now being finalized for a major fundraising campaign to be announced in 1992.

The museum's 600-member Volunteer Committee will devote considerable additional time to supporting museum programs and serving museum visitors. Approximately 100 additional members of the community have come forward in recent weeks and offered to assist the museum, bringing the Volunteer Committee to its largest membership in the museum's history.

"This situation and the difficult economic conditions have forced us, like many businesses, to reassess and downsize our programs and set new priorities," Sachs said. "We will concentrate on the protection and preservation of our priceless collection and on the programs of the most educational value to the public. We intend to pursue increased private fundraising and stabilized public funding in the hope of rebuilding staff and programs. Neither can be rebuilt without the support of the community. We need everyone's support more than ever if we are to be able to preserve the DIA's reputation as one of the nation's finest museums and one of Michigan's most important educational and cultural resources. We are deeply concerned about the impact of these layoffs on our staff and the people of Michigan."

Sisterly devotion served as muse for two artistic women

A Very Close Conspiracy: Vanessa Bell and Virginia Woolf

By Jane Dunn
Little, Brown. 338 pages. $29.95
If there was ever a dysfunctional family, this is it. Devoted sisters, Vanessa Bell (1879-1961) and Virginia Woolf (1882-1941), during their entire lives maintained a steadfast closeness, sharing their innermost secrets, disappointments, fears, and happiness. Together they presented a united front, at first to their family and later to the world at large, and they never deviated from their mutual support. Londoner Jane Dunn has written a compelling biography of these Victorian siblings in "A Very Close Conspiracy," a book laden with potent meanings and poignant details. These overwoven descriptions overlaid with varying shades of mood inevitably lead the reader deeper into the claustrophobic inner world of a strict Victorian household.

Leslie Stephen, a noted scholar and a man-of-letters, was a middle-aged widower with a young retarded daughter. He married Julia Duckworth, a widow with two sons and a daughter. Together they had four more children, two boys and two girls, and in this unusually individualistic family many traumatic events occurred to stymie the natural growth of the Stephen sisters, Vanessa and Virginia. Their elder half-brothers, Gerald and George Duckworth, physically molested them, leaving each of the sisters emotionally tainted for the rest of their lives. Vanessa emerged from the ordeal as a fecund mother-figure who was promiscuous with male lovers while Virginia remained sexually repressed to the end of her days.

Leslie Stephen became increasingly more imperious and demanding of his wife and daughters, never realizing that his selfish and self-centered behavior was taking a dreadful toll on his fragile family.

Julia Stephen died in 1895 and two years later, her eldest daughter, Stella Duckworth, followed her to the grave. Left behind were a grieving Vanessa and Virginia, who ceaselessly looked up to these adored and now departed female figures. Alone in their bitter sorrow, the two sisters drew even closer together, and when, in 1904, Leslie Stephen finally died, they were able to break free from their gloomy old house full of unbearable memories, and move joyously into brighter quarters in Bloomsbury, an artistic enclave in London, where they entertained their friends who shared their intellectual interests. Vanessa's artistic talent and Virginia's literary skill attracted many like-minded people who gathered quickly around these remarkable sisters.

Early in their childhood, Vanessa and Virginia decided that each would concentrate on a separate arena to showcase their own areas of expertise: Vanessa in painting and Virginia in writing. In this manner, they would not encroach on each other's purview but their endeavors would be mutually supportive. Vanessa always encouraged Virginia in her literary work while Virginia never failed to be stirred by Vanessa's paintings.

Even after Vanessa married Clive Bell, in 1907, and Virginia married Leonard Woolf, in 1912, the sisters continued their close conspiracy of togetherness, a protective barrier behind which they carried on their fond intimacies and the sharing of their hopes and sadnesses. As the younger, Virginia never failed to look up adoringly to Vanessa, and even after Vanessa became the busy, preoccupied mother of three children, two by Bell and one by her then lover Duncan Grant, she still had the time and energy to care for a sickly Virginia who was subject to spells of instability.

This biographical study is an incredible document of a learned family, a family in many ways so unnatural and ingrown, but nonetheless a family that provided the essential nurture to stimulate the genius of both Vanessa and Virginia. In their constant struggle, during their growing-up years, the sisters were continuously drawn together in their united opposition against the depravities of their half-brothers, an activity not to be mentioned in the age of Victoria, and the increasing rigidity of their aging father. Dunn, an experienced researcher, has done an exceptional job in recreating the hot-house emotional atmosphere of a tight family group, and has presented us with a multi-layered account with a special emphasis on the gifted sisters.

Thus, Vanessa and Virginia succeeded, in their own ways, by largely escaping from their repressive past to emerge gloriously into the outer world. Then they were able to paint and write, free to express themselves without reserve, and to enter the world of creativity. In spite of their prolonged exposure to a cloistered world of family madness and instability, each of the Stephen sisters managed to break forth from their inhibitive molds through painting and writing. This crucible of fire strengthened their characters and resolve to proceed against the obstacles facing most Victorian women of ability.

All of which, I guess, proves the truth of the old adage that sometimes adversity is the path to greatness.

Detroit Zoological Society gift memberships to benefit zoo

The Detroit Zoological Society is making it easy to gift wrap the Detroit Zoo this holiday season by offering gift memberships to help raise funds for one of Detroit's wild-est attractions.

Detroit Zoological Society members help fund numerous Zoo projects, including the chimps of Harambee exhibit, the lion house educational graphics, and the renovation of the elephant-rhino house, the penguinarium and the Rackham (dancing bear) fountain. The society also sponsors the annual Sunset at the Zoo, Zoo Boo and supports many other fund-raising and special events.

Gift memberships, available from just $25, arrive as a festive holiday ornament. Members receive unlimited free admission to the Detroit Zoo, the Belle Isle Zoo and Aquarium and to more than 100 zoos across the country for one full year. Class and lecture series discounts and a subscription to Habitat, the society's monthly newsletter, are also included.

Memberships for individuals and families are available in the following categories: the Zebra membership for one adult is $25; the Zebra Plus membership for one adult plus one guest each visit is $35; the Penguin membership for one family (two adults and their children/grandchildren under age 18) is $40.

The Polar Bear membership for one family plus one guest each visit is $60. And, the Snow Leopard, Chimpanzee and Patron memberships for the family plus two guests each visit are $100, $250 and $500, respectively. For more information or to order gift memberships, call the Detroit Zoological Society at 541-5717.

Fox collects food during 'The Nutcracker'

Throughout the run of "The Nutcracker Ballet" at the Fox Theatre, patrons dropping off one or more items of canned food will receive two complimentary tickets to WinterFest '92.

"The Nutcracker Ballet" runs through Sunday, Dec. 29.

Food bins will also be located in the Fox Theatre box office, which is open Monday-Friday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. The food collected will be distributed by the Mayor's Emergency Relief Fund to homeless families in the metro-Detroit area.

WinterFest '92 is a 10-day winter festival coming to the Michigan State Fairgrounds Jan. 24-Feb. 2. The event will feature a world-class exhibition and competition of ice carving and snow sculpting. The crystalline creations will be illuminated by a state-of-the-art lighting spectacular in the State Fair Coliseum. Surrounding the displays will be snowmobile racing, dogsled racing, arts and craft displays, a food court and discounted winter retail items in the Trade Court.

Tickets to the ballet are on sale at the Fox Theatre, Joe Louis and Cobo Arena box offices and all Ticketmaster outlets, including Hudson's and Harmony House. Tickets are $17, $21 and $24. To charge by phone, call 645-6666. For more information, call 567-6000.

Bop Harvey welcomes New Year

Get ready to bring in 1992 in style at The Majestic, as three of Michigan's best bands converge in Detroit for a great night of entertainment. Headlining the show are worldbeat rockers Bop Harvey. Also on the bill is the hottest band in East Lansing, The Hannibals, whose scorching live performances have helped build the group's reputation throughout the Midwest. Rounding out this Michigan talent extravaganza are Detroit rockers See Dick Run, who have been a perennial area favorite for years.

Originally East Lansing natives, Providence-based Bop Harvey is perhaps one of the largest "party" bands playing the club circuit. Well-known for their highly danceable world-beat rhythms, this show promises to be a fun way to ring in the New Year. As The Hannibals gear up for a January release of their second full album, it is a growing opinion that this power pop quartet may be the next band to break out of Michigan. Combine that with their reputation for high energy live performance and this may be one of the last chances to see The Hannibals in a club setting.

The ticket price also includes champagne at midnight, hors d'oeuvres and a laser light show. Doors open at 9 p.m. Tickets are $15 in advance. The Majestic is located at 4140 Woodward. For more information, call 833-9700.

The Gnome Restaurant, located at 4124 Woodward, in front of The Majestic, is offering dinner packages and live entertainment by Phoenix Rising, a Kalamazoo folk act. For more information regarding dinner reservations and menus, call 833-0120.

Despite Spielberg and Williams, 'Hook' misses the mark

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

The premise for "Hook" is irresistible.

Stephen Spielberg, the man whose films won't let you grow up, casts Robin Williams, whose career is based on his childlike energy, as Peter Pan.

Unfortunately, everybody falls short. Williams is flat, teetering toward boring, and Spielberg, who knows how to tell a good story and tell it well, directs a script that needs punching up, paring down and another handful or two of pixie dust.

It's not that "Hook" is a bad film. It's just that it could have been so much more. And considering the players, it should have been.

Williams plays Peter Panning, a high powered American businessman whose hip-pocket telephone disrupts everything from his daughter's high school play to a fight with his wife over what is more important, his business or his family.

Business even interrupts his family vacation to England where he is to speak at the dedication of a new hospital wing in honor of his wife's grandmother Wendy (Maggie Smith).

But Peter knows her too. He, and hundreds of other orphans who were helped by her, call her Granny Wendy, and there's a rumor that she's the Wendy from J.M. Barrie's "Peter Pan."

While at the dedication, the Panning children are kidnapped and a note is left behind, signed James Hook.

Now Wendy must tell Peter that he is the original Peter Pan and that although he left Never-Neverland years ago, he must go back to save his children and battle Hook to the death.

When Peter gets to Never-Neverland, he discovers that Hook (played with style and fun by Dustin Hoffman) has won the affection of Peter's son, and Peter must not only fight for good, he also must win his son back.

Sounds good, doesn't it? Well all the familiar Spielberg elements are there: Wonderful camera angles that build suspense, woeful children, lots of flash and more style than you can shake a magic wand at.

But there's almost no magic, and that's the fault of the script by Jim V. Hart and Nick Castle. It's too busy, there's too much going on in some places, and it's underdeveloped in others. And even though the film runs only two hours, the lack of fantasy and whimsy makes it seem longer.

For example, Tinkerbell (Julia Roberts) tells Peter she loves him and will wait for him forever. Why? Not only doesn't the script make you believe in fairies, it doesn't make you want to believe, and that's worse.

And for some reason, John Williams' score doesn't add anything to the proceedings. In fact, it's so subdued in scenes calling for soaring strings, it has the effect of bringing everything down. Its wishy-washy melodies don't even seem to come from the same pen that composed award-winning, heart-pounding music for "Star Wars," "E.T." and the "Raiders" movies.

But with all that said, there are some positive things about the film.

The first is the set design. The pirate ships and the Lost Boys' hangout are wonderfully real and make you wish you were a pirate or a Lost Boy.

And then there's the pirates, led by Hoffman with Bob Hoskins as his right-hook man, Smee. The two prove once again that they are among the best working actors today. Hoffman completely immerses himself in the role and Hoskins shows none of the manic energy he exhibited as the detective in "Roger Rabbit" or the paternalistic compassion he displayed in "Mermaids." One wishes he would get the recognition he deserves for being one of the best second-fiddles in the business.

And then there's Maggie Smith. In some realistic old-age makeup, she's got just the right spark as the 80-plus Wendy who loved Peter once upon a time and who watched him give up Never-Neverland for her granddaughter, Maura.

In the end, though, the story becomes another one of that '90s genre of '80s-greed-comes-back-to-haunt-'90s-new-sensitive-man. But here it's done with more flash and some nifty special effects.

But it's still the same old story. And that's the problem, because it could have been so much more.

Detroit Institute of Arts displays the prints of Martin Lewis

Martin Lewis (1881-1962) is best known today as a realist printmaker who captured a particular spirit of American cities from the glamorous 1920s to the austerity of the Depression.

With subtle and telling details he portrayed life in developing metropolises: young women going to work on a Saturday morning, magnificent skyscrapers being built and people of all ages finding entertainment in the vigorous life of the city.

More than 120 prints and drawings by Lewis will be on view in the exhibition, "An American Master: Prints by Martin Lewis," at the Detroit Institute of Arts through March 22.

Born on a farm in Australia, Lewis began drawing at an early age. He ran away from home at the age of 15 to further his education and widen his experience. He lived for a time in an artists' community in Sydney and, in 1900, sailed for America. He settled in New York City and supported himself as a commercial artist. In 1910 he traveled to Great Britain and in 1920 to Japan. He studied printmaking techniques and aesthetics in both countries.

Lewis received considerable public acclaim in the late 1920s and early 1930s. The Depression drastically affected the market for fine prints and in the 1940s and 1950s the growing interest in abstract art left Lewis at a disadvantage in the market. Lewis continued to make prints but in smaller numbers. He died in his studio in 1962.

The 120 prints and drawings are a gift of the Robert Katzman family in honor of Sidney Katzman. A print collector and long-time supporter of the DIA, Katzman was interested in Lewis' work because it reminded him of his New York childhood. Katzman approached the DIA in 1989 offering to donate the collection, but he died before the gift could be finalized. Robert Katzman, Sidney's son, completed the arrangements and presented the collection to the DIA in his father's honor.

"A set of prints by such a significant printmaker is a major gift," said Samuel Sachs II. "The DIA is grateful to the Katzmans for the opportunity to add the Lewis works to the museum's collection of American prints."

"An American Master: Prints by Martin Lewis" will be on view in the museum's Schwartz Graphic Arts Galleries.

Pointer Krieg's art on display

Dorothea Krieg of Grosse Pointe is The Community House Artist-of-the-Month for December. Her work will be on display on the second level of The Community House through Tuesday, Dec. 31, and can be viewed during normal Community House hours, 8:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday; and weekends, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

"The actual method used to describe this work is called "relief printing," Krieg explains. "Pieces of linoleum are carved in the chosen shape, oil printer's ink is mixed in the desired palette, and the image is embossed in heavy, French-made paper using an etching press."

Krieg's prints are also being exhibited at the BBA Sales and Rental Gallery, the Troy Art Gallery, and at Alma College. She recently received Deluga Award for Design at the Grosse Pointe Artist 1991 Annual Show, and was a juried artist at The Community House 1991 Our Town Art Exhibit.

The Artist-of-the-Month program is a continuing service of The Community House. Each month, a local artist is selected to exhibit his or her work, free of charge, for the public to enjoy and purchase. For more information about this program, call the director of special events at 644-5832. The Community House is located in downtown Birmingham at 380 S. Bates.

$6.8 million), there also will be some serious reductions in staff, hours and programs, including:

- The layoff or elimination of 84 additional staff members and positions in most departments and at all levels effective, Dec. 6. Added to earlier layoffs and eliminations, the staff reduction for 1991 totals 44 percent or 143 people.

- New public hours of 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday (previously 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.). This was effective Dec. 11 and represents a 37 percent reduction in public hours. Galleries will continue to be open five days a week on a rotating basis (half open 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.; half open 1:30 to 4 p.m.). School tours will continue by appointment.

- All "blockbuster" national and international touring exhibitions will be discontinued. Further reductions will be taken in graphic arts and Michigan artists program exhibitions, loans of works of art to and from other national and international museums and major scholarly museum publications. Travel, research and utility usage will also be reduced. Services to statewide museums as presently planned will be phased out over time and replaced with new initiatives.

AGENTS PREFER CRUISING - SO SHOULD THEIR CLIENTS

It seems that at long last, at least an inkling of proof has leaked out supporting what was so long suspected, that travel agents, given free choice of a vacation for themselves, would overwhelmingly select a cruise. According to the survey made, 86% of the agents chose a cruise over a resort vacation, an air tour or motor trip. And that fact, shows that travel-perceptive agents themselves realize the unique travel product that a cruise is. Cruising is "the" package vacation — one price does it for accommodations, travel, food and entertainment. Add to this only the drinks you want and the ship or shore boutiques you want to shop in.

While we offer a variety of destinations, itineraries and sailing dates, we realize your personal tastes must be taken into consideration. For that reason, we recommend that you spend a few minutes with us. We can help you decide which is the best cruise for you. Which stateroom best meets your needs? Which time of the year best fits your plans? Also, all cruises are discounted from brochure rates. TRAVELWORLD'S cruise department can assist you with all your cruise needs. Knights nipped in own tourney title game

By John Miskelly
Special Writer

A host expects complete cooperation from the guests — no spilled drinks on the new carpeting, no ruined furniture, no opposing goals with 1:36 remaining in the third period of the championship game of its hockey tournament.

Culver (Ind.) Military Academy's B team didn't follow the script as it beat University Liggett School 3-2 in the championship game of the ULS Christmas Tournament.

Ryan Flannery's winning goal came only 43 seconds after the Knights' Andy VanDeweghe had tied the score.

"They're a very disciplined hockey club. They're a great team to play against," said ULS coach John Fowler.

Last season Culver lost to Windsor Assumption in the championship game.

The Eagles' strong forechecking forced several turnovers in the opening period and Culver came away with a 2-0 lead as Flannery scored with 49 seconds left in the period and Greg Cherne tallied 12 seconds later on a breakaway.

Each team had good scoring chances after Sawaf's goal, but Abitz and the Knights' Tom Best came up with important saves.

ULS stepped up its offensive pressure in the third period and VanDeweghe scored an unassisted goal to tie the score. Moments later, Flannery notched his second of the game to dash the Knights' hopes.

ULS opened the tournament with a 3-2 victory over East Grand Rapids.

The Knights' Bill Robb scored an unassisted goal to open the scoring, but the Pioneers answered with a goal by Brad Emmons and the first period ended in a 1-1 tie.

Alex Crenshaw of ULS broke the deadlock 34 seconds into the second period, with VanDeweghe and Nick Giorgio drawing assists.

East Grand Rapids' Jud Ahrens tied the score at 12:01 of the second period, but moments later VanDeweghe broke the tie. Eric Kisskalt assisted on VanDeweghe's game-winner.

ULS fired 11 shots on goal in the third period, but was unable to score.

Forwards Kisskalt and VanDeweghe and defenseman Robb were the three Knights selected to the all-tournament team.

Rounding out the squad were forward Brian Quinn, defenseman Jeff Jensen and goalie Chuck Schervish of Grosse Pointe North; forwards Cherne and Kevin Young, defenseman Guy Bradshaw and goalie Abitz of Culver; and forward Ville Helske and defenseman Mark Ostrander of East Grand Rapids.

Norsemen bounce back after losing a marathon

By John Miskelly
Special Writer

"We may be outmanned, but we'll never be outworked."

That pledge was made by Grosse Pointe North hockey coach Dan Abraham after his squad experienced the heights and depths of emotion during the University Liggett School Christmas Tournament.

The depths occurred in the opening round when Culver (Ind.) Military Academy nipped the Norsemen 3-2 in three overtimes. Culver won the tournament with a 3-2 victory over the host Knights in the championship game.

North reached the heights less than 24 hours later when it beat East Grand Rapids 5-1 in the consolation game.

"We couldn't approach the game like we were tired and sluggish," Abraham said.

The game against the Pioneers was all but decided in the first period when the Norsemen got four goals, including two from sophomore Brian Quinn. Paul Megler and Gary Corona also scored for North.

The Norsemen could have been excused for being tired because they finished their first-round marathon at 10:30 p.m. and the consolation game was scheduled for 11 the following morning.

The teams traded second-period goals. Corona tallied his second of the game from Mike Klobuchar and Dom Tocco with the period less than a minute old.

Chuck Schervish, North's freshman goalie, made 21 saves in the victory and was named to the all-tournament team.

"Chuck came up big for us when we had defensive breakdowns," Abraham said.

Megler gave the Norsemen a 1-0 lead against Culver, when he scored at 11:20 of the first period on assists from Tocco and Quinn. The Eagles' Brandon Morkut tied the score nine seconds later, but Joey Sucher put North back in the lead with a tally less than a minute after Morkut's goal. Quinn and Corona drew assists.

Kevin Young scored a second-period goal for Culver and after that the goaltenders dominated the game until 1:27 of the third overtime when Young tallied his second of the game.

The ULS tournament uses an unusual format for settling ties. The overtimes are five minutes long and after each period one skater is eliminated from each team. By the third extra period, each team was using just three skaters.

Quinn, a sophomore who had two goals and three assists in the tournament, joined Schervish on the all-tournament squad.

Grosse Pointe South's hockey team is heading into the holiday break on a high note.

Last week, the Blue Devils beat Southgate Anderson 4-2 in an important Michigan Metro High School Hockey Association game, then won twice on their annual trip to Midland.

"I was most satisfied with the Anderson game because they're a good team and it was a league game, but I was also pleased with the contributions of some of our rookies in the two games in Midland," said coach John LaLonde.

South trailed Anderson 1-0 until the Blue Devils erupted for four goals in the third period. Defenseman David Auld triggered the outburst with a goal and Brian Crane, Kevin Brennan and Erik Lindsay followed suit to give South the victory.

Tom Rajt assisted on two of the goals and Brennan, Todd Frederickson and David Tucker each had one assist.

"We started slowly, but we kept putting more things together as the game went on," LaLonde said. "It was a tight game until Tucker scored into an empty net."

Andy Brewer played well in goal for South, which held a 25-19 edge in shots.

South Sports

The Blue Devils began the Midland trip with a 5-3 victory over previously-unbeaten Midland Dow.

Lindsay opened the scoring in the first period, then Kris Hoglund scored a pair of second-period goals only 20 seconds apart. Crane and Steve Solaka completed the scoring in the third period.

Crane, Frederickson, Tucker, Chris Nixon, Lindsay and Rajt had South's assists.

"This was the first time our new players made a big contribution," LaLonde said. "We used them more and they responded well."

Jason Hall was the winning goalie as the Blue Devils outshot the Chargers 33-21.

It didn't take South long to take command of the game with Midland.

Marcel Chagnon scored on a rink-length dash after the opening faceoff and the Blue Devils were never threatened as they outshot the Chemics 50-21. Brewer was in the nets for his first shutout.

Hoglund also scored a first-period goal for South, while Crane and Carl Melchoir tallied in the second period.

Auld, Cameron Craig, Hoglund, Ted Hanawalt, Jim Andary and Chagnon collected assists for South.

"We did some tremendous forechecking in that game," LaLonde said. "The kids did the little things very well."

The coach felt the trip was worthwhile beyond the two victories that boosted South's overall record to 6-2.

"It got the kids away together for the first time so they could do some bonding," LaLonde said. "At this point, everybody is playing well and they're working as a team."

The one thing LaLonde would like his team to improve is its shooting.

"We've been getting a lot of shots, but they've been high ones," he said. "We have to start putting more shots down on the ice so the goalies have a tougher time."

Lady Devils win tourney

Grosse Pointe South volleyball coach Cindy Sharpe will be paying close attention to the first state high school rankings when they come out this week.

"We really played well and I think we could be in the top 10," Sharpe said after the Lady Devils won six straight matches on the way to the championship in the Henry Ford Community College tournament last weekend.

South downed Wayne Memorial 15-11, 15-10 in a thrilling come-from-behind effort in the title match.

"We have some great athletes and we simply overpowered a lot of the teams," Sharpe said. "Many of our girls came straight from the basketball team."

The Lady Devils didn't lose a game in the tournament.

In pool play they beat Riverview Gabriel Richard 15-5, 15-7; downed Troy Athens 15-6, 15-8; trimmed Wayne Memorial 15-11, 15-9; and rolled over Carleton Airport 15-4, 15-11.

South then beat Dearborn Edsel Ford 15-11, 15-3 in the semifinal round.

"I thought we played extremely well, considering we've only been practicing for two weeks," Sharpe said. "There was a lot of gummy effort. We came from behind both times against Wayne Memorial."

The Lady Devils returned three starters from last year's team, but Sharpe needed replacements for two of her top hitters. She found them in Stephanie Coddens and Liz Bender.

Grosse Pointe North's Matt Westbrook goes up for a shot against Port Huron Northern.

ULS wins opener; bows to Cranes

The Knights posted a 48-42 victory at Ann Arbor Greenhills, then dropped a 52-41 decision to Cranbrook in the home opener.

Neither game was decided until the fourth quarter. Against Greenhills, ULS opened a 28-21 halftime lead, helped by Vernon Pernell's 11 points.

The Knights extended their lead to 11, but the Gryphons stormed back with some three-point shooting and cut the ULS lead to 41-38 with two minutes remaining in the game.

Senior captain Jason Drock then hit a baseline jumper to give the Knights some breathing room.

Cranbrook led by only 21-20 at halftime, but the Cranes scored 17 points in the third quarter when the ULS defense made only two defensive stops in the entire period.

Despite the lapse, the Knights closed to 41-36 with three minutes remaining, but Cranbrook sealed the victory with some crucial free throws down the stretch.

Pernell led ULS with 15 points and freshman Joey Grant added nine.

"We must play better interior defense if we're going to be a solid team," said Knights coach Chuck Wright. "We simply have too many lapses and allow too many easy shots. But this is a group of hard-working kids. They play hard and they play together."

"We'll get better with more game experience. It's a real adjustment having five new starters."

ULS is idle until Friday, Dec. 27, when it plays in the Notre Dame Invitational.

"Stephanie was outstanding as an outside hitter," the coach said. "She really blasted some in the championship game. Liz played some last year, but she's doing a lot more this season. She's one of our best net-blockers and she takes away the

South piled up some impressive individual statistics in the tournament.

Angela Drake had 46 kills and 13 blocks for points. Coddens had 35 kills and Ashley Moran recorded 25. Sue McGahey had 13 ace serves and Sue Faremouth collected 95 assists.

Norsemen try to bounce back

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe North's basketball team had one of those weeks it would prefer to forget as soon as possible.

The Norsemen dropped their non-league season opener to East Detroit, 59-49, then suffered a 53-33 setback to Port Huron Northern.

The loss to Northern was especially frustrating to coach George Olman.

"I couldn't believe the scoreboard at halftime," he said. "We were down by 17 points (24-7) and the way we played it should have been 30. If we had just played our normal game we'd have been right in it."

North, which trailed 12-2 after the first quarter, hit only 10 percent of its field-goal attempts in the first half and managed only 25 percent shooting for the game.

"We usually shoot between 40 and 48 percent," Olman said. "If we'd have shot 40, the low end of the spectrum for us, we'd have been in good shape at halftime."

North's D.J. Reynolds scored the first basket of the second half, but the Huskies answered with a 13-2 spurt that gave them a 27-point lead with 3:04 left in the third quarter.

Turnovers compounded North's problems against

Northern, a state Class A quarterfinalist last spring. The Norsemen had 26 turnovers in the first three quarters against the Huskies, who are 2-0.

"We just didn't execute well," Olman said. "We had a good session watching tape after the game and the kids saw their mistakes, especially with their screening."

Kurt Rheume, Matt Westbrook and Dan Devlin each came off the bench and played well for North.

"Those three kids were the bright spots for us," Olman said.

Rheume led the Norsemen with eight points and also grabbed four rebounds. Adam Korzeniewski had nine rebounds and five points.

Chris Hall led Northern with 12 points and Tony Powell tossed in eight.

East Detroit came alive in the fourth quarter to spoil North's opener.

The Norsemen, who led 26-22 at halftime, maintained that margin at 41-37 after three periods, but the Shamrocks then did some long-range bombing to get back into the game.

"We didn't expect to lose that one, but they started shooting three-pointers in the fourth quarter and they went in," Olman said.

East Detroit outscored North 22-8 in the final period.

Reynolds led the Norsemen with 19 points and Adam Lowry scored 14. Lowry had 11 rebounds, one more than Korzeniewski.

"It hurts to start 0-2, but we'll get it straightened around," Olman said.

North visited Mount Clemens this week before hosting South Lake tonight.

Two firsts for North's wrestlers

Grosse Pointe North's wrestling team made an impressive showing in its first action of the season.

The Norsemen finished fourth in the 12-team Lutheran East Invitational and the squad had a pair of individual champions emerge from the tournament.

Keith Giannico took first place in the 130-pound weight class and Dan Skuce was the 135-pound champion.

Mike Gagala (160), Tony Romolino (145) and Dave Sandercott (103) each won their consolation final bouts to finish third. Brian Kerber was fourth at 125 pounds.

SWIMMING: North's boys swimming team dropped its opener to a strong Dearborn squad, 124-64, but Coach Les Roddis' Norsemen had some impressive performances.

Steve Williams won the 500-yard freestyle and achieved the state qualifying time. Williams was also second in the 200 freestyle.

Brett Collins took second in the 200 individual medley and was runner-up in the 500 freestyle.

Diver Sean Brady also took a second place.

JV BASKETBALL: Rob Dallaire scored 10 points and Todd Scherer added seven, but it wasn't enough to keep North from dropping a 46-36 decision to Port Huron Northern.

The defeat was the second in two games for the Norsemen.

Blue Devils chill Polar Bears for second straight victory

Highland Park staggered Grosse Pointe South's basketball team with its best shot last week, but the Blue Devils were able to avoid the knockout punch.

"We kept our poise very well when they went ahead by a point in the second half and we came right back and regained the lead," said South coach George Petrouleas after the Blue Devils' 60-55 victory on the Polar Bears' home court.

Earlier, South opened the season with a 60-44 triumph over Bishop Gallagher.

The Blue Devils led Highland Park 14-12 after the first quarter and stretched the lead to 29-21 at halftime.

Once South went ahead to stay, it maintained its advantage by sinking 11 of 13 free throws down the stretch.

"It was a good game to win for a lot of reasons," Petrouleas said. "Highland Park is always tough on its home court and we've beaten them four straight times. It's been years since we've done that."

Mike McLaughlin led a balanced scoring attack with 20 points. Mike Armstrong scored 17 and Blair Hess added 11. Armstrong and Hess also combined for 14 rebounds.

"They intimidated Highland Park into taking some tough shots," Petrouleas said. "A lot of times they forced them to change their shots."

South's coach was also pleased with the way his club worked the ball around for some good shots. The Blue Devils dished out 15 assists, including six by Matt Recht.

"That's a lot of assists for a high school game," Petrouleas said. "Matt's passing set up some key buckets down the stretch."

Bishop Gallagher scored the first two points of the game and never led again as South, ahead 35-26 at halftime, rolled to an easy victory.

"Once we got into the flow of the game we were dominant, especially on the glass," Petrouleas said.

McLaughlin again led the way with 18 points, Armstrong scored 12 and Hess added 10. Armstrong and Hess each pulled down eight rebounds.

Assists: Dan Socia, Eric Werner 2, Chip Chapin, Brandon Prezpiorka 2, Michael Kasiborski 2, P.J. Mallon, Fish 2 (Habs).
Comments: Burke had all three of his goals in a four-goal third period for the Habs.

Pointe swimmers do well in national meet

Kim Higel and Christine Jamerino of Pointe Aquatics each made impressive showings in the recent U.S. Open Swimming Championships in Minnesota.

Higel, a junior at Grosse Pointe South, missed the Olympic trial cut in the 200-meter backstroke by a fraction of a second.

Higel, who finished 12th in a field of 72 nationally-ranked swimmers, had a time of 2:18.82. The Olympic trial cut is 2:17.99.

"She's knocking on the door," said Pointe Aquatics coach Mike O'Connor. "It's a real tough cut. Only 15 or 16 swimmers have made it. She'll have the chance in a meet at Eastern Michigan the first week in January and there's a time trial meet at U-M on Feb. 20. Kim's so close that you can see a lot of places where just a slight correction can make the difference."

Jamerino, a freshman at Grosse Pointe North, was a pleasant surprise in her first competition in a meet of U.S. Open caliber.

"It's mostly college swimmers who compete in this meet," O'Connor said. "Christine started between a 22-year-old and a 20-year old. One swims for Wisconsin and the other for Illinois."

Jamerino finished 39th among 52 swimmers in the 100-meter breaststroke, but she set a national record for 13-14-year-olds with a time of 1:15.27.

Jamerino qualified for the Junior National meet in the 200-meter breaststroke. That competition will be held in Nashville, Tenn., beginning March 20.

SKIERS RANKED: Several young skiers from the Pointes were ranked among the top 10 in their age group by the Coca-Cola Jr. NASTAR (National Standard Race) program.

Mike Bianco, an eighth-grader at Pierce Middle School, was ranked sixth among Michigan's 10-12-year-old skiers.

Mike Uznis, a sophomore at Grosse Pointe South, and Peter Feldman, a freshman at South, were tied for seventh in the 13-15 age group.

Hadley Brink, a second-grader at University Liggett School, was seventh in the 5-6 age group.

Bianco, Feldman and Uznis also sail together for Bayview Yacht Club. Uznis has been on the U.S. Optimist Dinghy team and has raced in Spain, Greece, Canada and South America. Uznis won the Canadian National Optimist Dinghy championship last summer.

Feldman and Bianco finished first and second, respectively, in the Detroit River Yachting Association Flying Junior Division II (14 and under). They were also members of the Bayview team which won the Junior Canada Cup from the Toronto Yacht Club in July.

Bianco and Feldman also skipped boats for Bayview in the DRYA Invitational. The three-boat Bayview team swept the series, finishing 12-0. Charlie Janke was the third skipper for Bayview.

South senior gets national tennis honor

Emiliano Lorenzini, a senior at Grosse Pointe South, was one of four Michigan high school tennis players named to the National High School Tennis Team.

Lorenzini, the last of three brothers to play for the Blue Devils, was a first-team All-State selection last spring.

"It's quite an achievement for a Michigan player to be named to the team because most of the players are from California and Florida," said South coach Tom Berchback.

Nominees for the team are submitted by coaches, and conduct on the court is considered along with a player's athletic accomplishments.

Lorenzini is the third South player to be selected to the All-American team. The others were Emiliano's brother, Lee Lorenzini, and Jeff Giraldo.

Instructor Lee Shin poses with the youth members of the Grosse Pointe Academy of Tae Kwon Do, which won several trophies and awards in the recent Michigan Open championships in Kalamazoo.

Lady Knights open with impressive win

Don't tell coach Ann Belloli that 1991-92 is supposed to be a rebuilding year for her University Liggett School volleyball team.

The Lady Knights graduated four starters after last season and Belloli opened this season with a starting unit that included two freshmen and no seniors. The youthful bunch got off to a good start with a 16-14, 4-15, 15-11, 3-15, 15-10 victory over defending Class C district champion Lutheran East.

ULS raced to a 9-0 lead in the first game behind the strong serves of junior Carrie Birgbauer. The Eagles came back to tie the score at 14-all, but Birgbauer closed out the game with two more service points.

After Lutheran East's victory in the fourth game, the Eagles had momentum and took a 10-6 lead in the deciding set, but sophomore Jamila Hoard then served seven straight points to give ULS a 13-10 lead and the Lady Knights never relinquished their advantage.

Belloli switched Birgbauer to setter and sophomore Madga Chojnacka to outside hitter for the final game and Chojnacka had three attacks in the crucial game.

ULS also got solid performances from juniors Tameka Golden and Yumna Jaffri and from freshmen Stacey Corbin and Laura Haggarty.

The Lady Knights' junior varsity made it a sweep of Lutheran East with a 16-14, 15-4 victory.

Trailing 14-9 in the first game, ULS came back on the serving of freshman Ali Blatt. She served six straight points to give the Lady Knights a 15-14 lead. After a side out, ULS closed out the victory.

The Eagles never recovered as Lauren Blatt, Ali's cousin, served six points and had two attacks to lead the second-game victory. Setters Melissa Buhalis and Mrika Robinson played well and Jennifer Skurda and Yolanda Curry also had good games.

Don't pitch that Christmas tree — recycle it

We are thinking more and more these days about saving the planet. Ecology is the fashion, and a good thing, too. Recycling has become the "in" thing and the more we think about it, the more possibilities to recycle come to mind.

This being the Christmas season, why not think about recycling Christmas trees? It is wonderful how much we enjoy putting up the tree, decorating it with glittering ornaments and enjoying its festive enhancement of our houses with its cheer and fragrance.

But very soon after the New Year's greetings are expressed and we turn our attention back to everyday affairs, it is also wonderful how we are suddenly tired of all the glitz and sparkle and yearn for unadorned houses again. So out to the curb goes the Christmas tree and good riddance!

But wait. Enter recycling. There is a new project afoot which many communities, including ours, are encouraging, whereby Christmas trees at the curb are being collected and chopped up into mulch to nourish municipal and private gardens for the coming seasons.

On Jan. 11, 12, 18 and 19, all the Christmas trees languishing at the curb in Grosse Pointe will be collected for this worthy effort. Many people are participating in the project. Among them are the Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling, many of the garden clubs, and an impressive number of tree and garden service companies which are donating their time. Stores which sell equipment for mulching for use by gardeners,

Garden SHED

By Ellen Probert

amateur and professional, will be featuring special sales of this equipment. And as a reward for recycling your tree, you are invited to come to the Farms Pier Park and carry home a supply of Christmas tree mulch for your own garden.

The mastermind behind all this is Ken George, who started out by merely recycling his own tree a few years ago, but is now the guiding spirit behind what is rapidly becoming a widespread phenomenon. He invites volunteers to call him at 886-6000.

While artificial trees comply with fire law restrictions and do look convincing for the most part, sales of real trees have been increasing and a popular wintertime expedition is going to a tree farm and cutting your own tree. Somehow the sight of a family bringing home a real tree lashed to the top of the car conjures up visions of a Currier and Ives lithograph of a family bringing home the Christmas tree on a sled from a snowy woods.

There are many tree farms which advertise festive days of sleigh rides complete with bells and general holiday cheer as incentives to bringing out the family for tree-cutting. Unfortunately, bringing the tree back, sticking out of the back of a station wagon or lashed to the top of a car, doesn't seem quite as romantic as using a sleigh pulled by horses, but the principle is the same. In any case, this is the season when nostalgia overcomes most of us.

All types of evergreen trees are used for Christmas trees, a relatively modern custom introduced into England from Germany by Queen Victoria's consort, Prince Albert. Cedar trees are among the most popular, perhaps because of their lovely aromatic scent.

Cedars are mentioned frequently in the Bible and the cedars of Lebanon are still as they were in ancient times. The temple in Jerusalem was built of cedar. The 12 oldest and largest of the cedars of Lebanon have been revered by every monotheistic religion. Called by the Jews "the 12 friends of Solomon," it has been believed for centuries that an evil fate will befall anyone who injures one of these incredibly ancient trees.

Every year at the Feast of the Transfiguration, the Greeks, Armenians and Mormons go on a pilgrimage to the cedar groves of Lebanon.

Spruces are also very popular for Christmas trees. They are members of the pine family, and the Latin name for them, pinaceae, comes from the Latin word pix, or pitch, and refers to the resin, or pitch, that is obtained from them.

Like the cedars, the spruces and pines are of many varieties, but all share in beauty and in their spicy scent that makes us think of holidays.

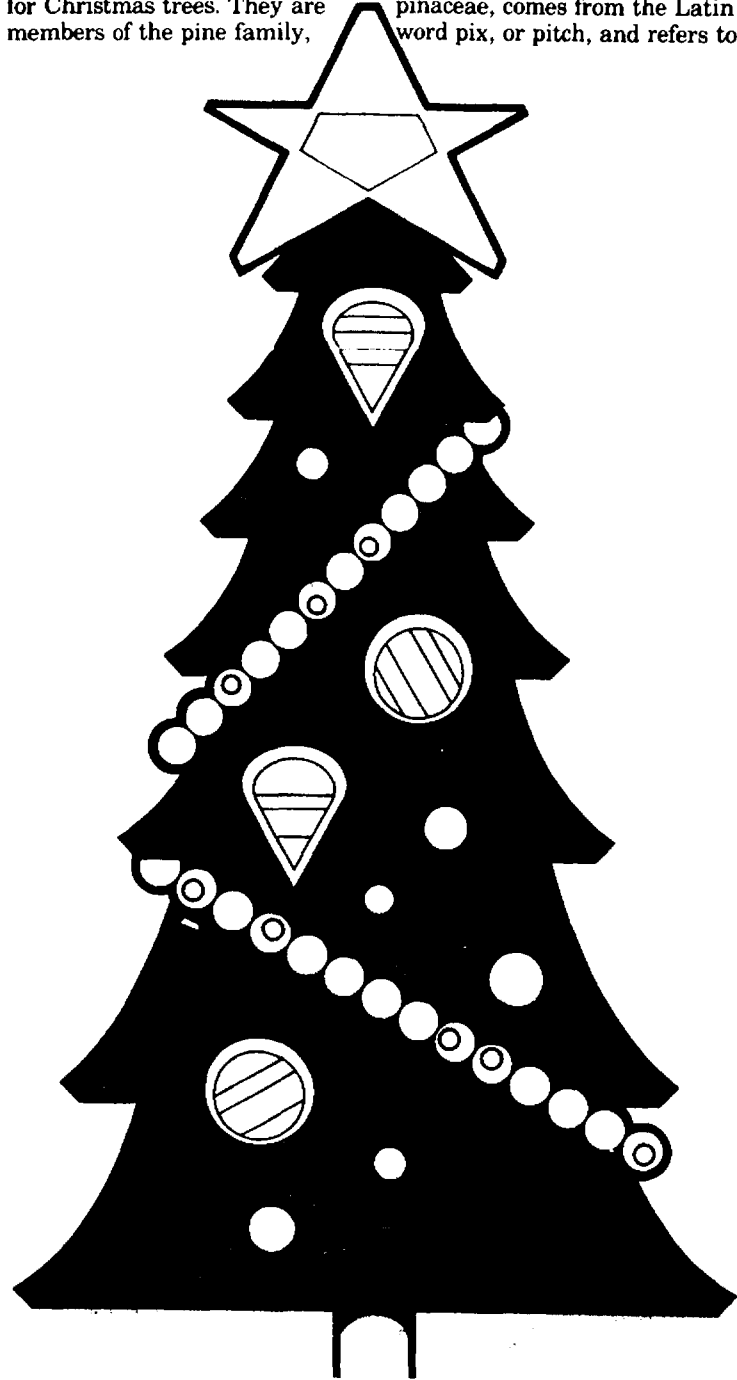

In Victorian times, balsam and douglas firs were widely used for Christmas trees.

Plants were a popular gift then as they are now. One tale of that time tells of a poor and shiftless family who were given a pot of blooming red geraniums. This bright spot in their home inspired them to wash the windows to give the plant more light.

Then when they realized that the bright windows were a great contrast to the rest of the house, they began to scrub floors and dust in corners. Soon, the careless, untidy family became neat, painstaking, and prosperous all because someone chose the right present for the right people.

This tale is typical of Victorian thought. The Victorians never missed a chance to point out the virtues of thrift and hard work and of industry and cleanliness.

Then, as now, plants provide beautiful accents to our homes at Christmas. Many museums and restored historic houses duplicate Victorian Christmas trees, trimming them with strings of popcorn and cranberries, paper chains, gilded nuts, spun glass angels and tiny wax candles. After Christmas they thriftily sweep up fallen needles just as the Victorians did, stuff a tiny pillow and tuck it into the corner of a sofa to bring a piney scent to the room all year long.

LAKIN

Illusion of space

Smaller homes often suffer from an abrupt informality. Visitors step from the outside directly into the living area. Anything not shut behind a door is public space.

The Lakin overcomes this starkness with an angled entry that creates a short front hall and a visual transition to the interior of the house.

Once past the front hall closet, the view opens into a large area with living room and dining room bays. The sense of space is increased by view windows and sliding doors onto a covered back deck. In warm weather, this space can become a second dining area for casual meals.

Next to the dining room is an efficient U-shaped kitchen with counters on three sides, and the luxury of a garden window above the sink. Twin skylights make the adjacent breakfast room a sunny wake-up room from which to start the day.

Two bedrooms are down a side hall off the entry. They share the main bath, which features a double vanity, full tub and its own linen closet. No lugging laundry around the Lakin. The washer and drier are concealed in a utility closet only a step away from the bedroom doors.

For a 1,600 square-foot house, the master suite is spacious. Besides a vanity, walk-in closet and shower, the private bath also contains a raised oval tub. Note that the tub and shower fill the angle between the entry and front wall to avoid any wasted space in this compact home.

For a study kit of the Lakin (208-11), send $7.50 to Today's Home, P.O. Box 2832-T Eugene, Ore. 97402. Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.

Decorated homes sought for awards

Nominations are being accepted for Sen. John Kelly's annual Christmas Lighting Contest.

If you recognize a home in your neighborhood that you believe deserves recognition for unique, external lighting and decoration, call Kelly's district office at 881-2822. Provide the address and name of homeowner (if known) by 4:30 p.m. on Dec. 23.

A committee will visit all nominated homes between Christmas and New Year's Day to select the first-, second- and third-place winners in the 1st Senatorial District.

A donation to the Capuchin Soup Kitchen will be made in the name of each of the winners. All honorable mentions will receive a certificate of recognition from the state of Michigan.

"The Christmas spirit demonstrated by homeowners who light up for the holidays deserves recognition," Kelly said. "Supporting the Capuchin Center during these difficult times seems to be an appropriate reflection of eastside good will."

Lake level

Lake St. Clair at the end of November was at elevation 573.35 feet above the mean water level at Father Point, Quebec, or 20 inches above chart datum.

This was about 4 inches below what it was a year ago, and about 3 inches below one month ago.

The November monthly mean level of 573.40 feet was about 3 inches above the long-term average for November. The lake, however, remained about 34 inches below the all-time high November monthly mean level, which was recorded in 1986.

The forecast shows that at the end of December, the level of Lake St. Clair will be about 1 inch above what it was at the end of November. The level of the lake is expected to begin its seasonal rise in December.

The water level in May 1992 is expected to be about 8 inches above the long-term average for that month, or about 3 inches below what it was at the same time in 1991.

Research works.

15 ways to get a bigger tax refund

If you'd like to give yourself a bigger tax refund, the Michigan Association of CPAs suggest 15 areas for you to review closely when calculating your bill to Uncle Sam.

1) Dependent exemptions — Dependent exemptions directly reduce your taxable income. If in 1991 you provided more than half the support for one of your in-laws or even a step-parent, you may be able to take a dependent exemption of $2,150.

2) Medical bills — Many unreimbursed medical and dental expenses are deductible to the extent that they exceed 7.5 percent of your adjusted gross income (AGI). Your AGI is income from salary, dividends interest and other sources, minus certain adjustments, such as alimony payments and contributions to an Individual Retirement Account (IRA).

3) Contributions to IRAs — If you (and your spouse) don't participate in an employer's retirement program, you can deduct up to $2,000 in contributions to an IRA if single and up to $4,000 if married. If you work, and your spouse doesn't, you can shelter up to $2,250. And if you or your spouse are covered by an employer retirement plan, you may be entitled to a partial deduction, depending on your income and filing status.

4) Contributions to Keoghs — If you are self-employed, you may set up a retirement plan commonly known as a Keogh. You can contribute and deduct as much as 20 percent of your earned income or $30,000, whichever is less.

5) State and local income taxes — If you itemize deductions, you can deduct state and local income taxes.

6) Real estate taxes — As long as you itemize, any property and real estate taxes you paid in 1991 are also fully deductible.

7) Mortgage and home equity interest — Mortgage and home equity interest expenses generally remain deductible.

8) Miscellaneous expenses — Miscellaneous expenses including tax-related expenses, some unreimbursed employee business expenses and expenses associated with producing income can help to offset your income. Most miscellaneous expenses are deductible to the extent that the total of your expenses exceeds 2 percent of your adjusted gross income.

9) Job-hunting expenses — Job-hunting expenses, such as the cost of preparing your resume and travel to job interviews, can be added to your miscellaneous itemized deductions.

10) Moving expenses — You may be eligible to deduct unreimbursed moving expenses if you moved within one year of starting a new job and the distance from your old home to your new job is at least 35 miles farther than the distance from your old home to your old job.

11) Business meals — You can generally deduct 80 percent of business meals.

12) Casualty losses — Events like fires and floods that are sudden, unexpected or unusual are considered casualties by the IRS and the resulting losses can be taken as itemized deductions, provided insurance has not already covered the loss. A number of limitations do apply, so check with your CPA.

13) Charitable contributions — Generally, if you itemize on your tax return, you may deduct contributions of money or property that you make to qualified organizations.

14) Health insurance for the self-employed — Self-employed taxpayers may deduct 25 percent of their health insurance costs from their gross income.

15) Dependent-care tax credit — Parents who pay someone to care for a dependent child or relative while they work or look for work may qualify for a special tax credit.

The maximum credit is $720 for one qualifying dependent and $1,440 for two or more.

For more information on deductions and tax credits that can reduce your tax dollars, contact a CPA.

Phoenix counters edge cities

By Stephanie Stubbs
AIA News Service

Those small, self-contained pockets of population, known as "edge cities," keep springing up around older urban centers in increasing numbers.

As more and more people are opting to trade "dwell in suburbia/work in the city" for homes and jobs in edge cities, many architects are pondering ways to revitalize older urban areas.

A case in point is downtown Phoenix, which is facing competition from a number of edge cities growing up just past its perimeter.

City business leaders searched long and hard for a concept that would attract residents and visitors alike to the central city, which, like many urban areas across the country, was undergoing economic recession.

To get the magnitude of interest needed to resuscitate the city, the project had to serve more than one audience — it had to appeal to companies that would rent office space, shoppers, and out-of-town visitors who need a hotel — what is known in architectural parlance as "mixed use" development.

Phoenix Center is the brainchild of the Rouse Corporation, one of the nation's largest developers, and the Phoenix Community Alliance, a group of local business leaders interested in revitalizing downtown Phoenix, who decided to create an "oasis" in the middle of the city.

The huge landscaped park, with its 900 date trees, gardens, and fountains offers a cool, green space to city dwellers in a place where summer temperatures reach 115 degrees Fahrenheit.

The large project, begun in 1986, covers eight city blocks. It has required the design services of several architecture firms.

Perhaps the most striking of the designs is the 150,000-square-foot Shops. Backed and protected by a three-story "L" retail area, the shops sweep gracefully into a two-story, fan-shaped curve. The folded roof of the shops offers a nice "view" to the surrounding high-rises.

Like the rest of the center, the retail areas are laced carefully with pedestrian walks, outside cafes, and public seating areas that offer respite from the serious business of doing one's part to keep up consumer spending.

When all the buildings are completed, Phoenix Center will offer eight square blocks of pedestrian-oriented design that includes two million square feet of office space, 5,000 parking spaces, a 600-room hotel and, of course, the shops and all that welcoming green space — an urban "oasis" that may offer a prototype for other aging cities looking for fresh ways to re-interest people in downtown.

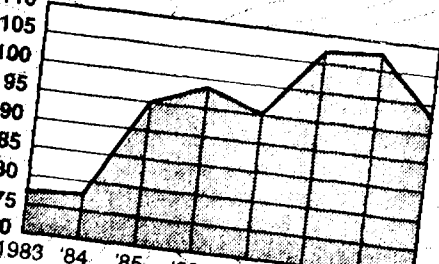

Women in construction

In recent years, more women have taken on traditionally male jobs, such as those in the construction trades. A major reason for this movement is the higher pay offered in male-dominated occupations.

Number of women

In thousands employed in U.S. construction trade occupations.

Earnings comparison

Average weekly earnings by occupation in 1990

Occupation	Men	Women
Construction trades	$480	394
Clerical, administrative support	440	332
Secretary, stenographer, typist	367	341
Bookkeeper	391	335

■ Male domination: 98% of all construction trades workers are men.
■ Female domination: 80% of all clerical workers are women.

'T WAS THE NIGHT BEFORE CHRISTMAS
WHEN ALL THROUGH THE HOUSE, NOT A CREATURE WAS STIRRING, NOT EVEN A MOUSE;

The stockings were hung by the chimney with care,
In a charming corner condo - will St. Nick visit there?

Cranford and Cadieux - a home built to stay
Old world craftsmanship - FIRST OFFERED TODAY.

Interior storms, a furnace that's new Butler's pantry and a garage built for two.

The children were nestled all snug in their beds
There's room for them all, to lay down their heads.

MAMA IN HER KERCHIEF, AND I IN MY CAP HAD JUST SETTLED DOWN FOR A LONG WINTER'S NAP,

When down in the kitchen there appeared a great light
On updated features so glowing and bright

It shown thru the foyer - and third window so bright
To the basement - to the third floor - up a few flights

To see the new roof, added with care
For old St. Nick would soon be there

The Tudor exterior is classic in looks,
The best buy in the City by anyone's books.

AWAY TO THE WINDOW I FLEW LIKE A FLASH, TORE OPEN THE SHUTTERS AND THREW UP THE SASH.

The woodwork is dazzling. The floors so smart.
This home will warm old Santa's heart.

A breakfast nook close to feed the rest.

Fireplace, rec room and a full second floor.

Lake St. Clair is just blocks away.
So walk on down or hop on your sleigh.

YOU'LL HEAR SANTA CALL AS HE DRIVES OUT OF SIGHT,
"HAPPY CHRISTMAS TO ALL, AND TO ALL A GOOD-NIGHT!"

101 PRAYERS

MY NOVENA ROSE PRAYER TO St Therese
Oh Little Therese of the child Jesus please pick me a rose from the Heavenly Garden and send it to me as a message of love: Oh Little Flower of Jesus ask God today to grant me the favors I now place with confidence in your hands. (Mention specific Request). St. Therese help me to always believe as you did in God's great love for me so that I might imitate your (Little Way) each day. Amen. She is always there.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT

Holy Spirit, you who make me see everything and who shows me the way to reach my ideal. You, who give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me and you who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual glory. Amen.

Thank you for your love towards me and my loved ones. Pray this prayer three consecutive days without asking your wish, after third day your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this prayer as soon as your favor has been granted. Thank you for favors received. A.N.

PLEASE DON'T DELAY! SPAY or NEUTER YOUR PET TODAY! An altered pet is a healthier and happier companion. Also, it spares you the grief and pain of having puppies and kittens destroyed when no homes can be found. Countless numbers of sweet, innocent little ones are euthanized every day in shelters across the country because a pet wasn't spayed or neutered. If we cut down on the numbers of unwanted litters being born, we will also cut down on the number of abandoned, lost and unwanted animals to destroy.

WE WILL BE HAPPY TO PROVIDE ADVICE as well as a LIST OF ECONOMIC SERVICE SOURCES Call us at: 891-7188 Anti-Cruelty Association

Who am I? Like Oliver, I'm a d Dickens of an orphan who was found playing in the street. They can't find my home, so I'm looking for a new home now. I'm young, but old enough to have good house manners, neutered, and like all Beardsies, I'm friendly and very playful. I would make a very good friend if you would let me. If you are interested in adopting me, call Donna of the BCCSEM Rescue at 882-4417

Four little kittens, all boys, 5 weeks old

ADOPTION HOURS:
MONDAY - SATURDAY 10:30 A.M. - 3:00 P.M.
