

Grosse Pointe South to hold documentary premiere of Yaeger

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

It's fitting that the life of venerable Detroit artist Edgar Yaeger has been captured for all to appreciate by youth less than a quarter of his age.

A year ago students in the TV production classes at Grosse Pointe South embarked on a project that would become the documentary, "Edgar Yaeger: A Life of Art," and earn the students international acclaim.

The 12-minute film narrated by Pointer Jennifer Moore of WDIV-TV Channel 4 gives a brief account of the renowned artist's life and provides moving, close-up shots of dozens of Yaeger's works.

It will be premiered in a reception at South's Cleminson Hall on Sunday, March 22, at 3 p.m. The reception is open to the public, and copies of the film will be available for purchase.

The research and script-writing were performed by the students, as well as the camera work and soundtrack, including obtaining the rights to use classical music selections for the background.

The adviser for the documentary was Dr. Julie Corbett, head of the TV production program at South.

She said she gets a lot of project requests from groups and she has to be selective. When the Friends of Edgar Yaeger and South Mothers and Fathers clubs approached her with the idea of doing a piece on the artist, she thought it was a worthy challenge.

Her only problem was convincing her students. She admits they were not exactly thrilled at the prospect of doing a film on an octogenarian artist, but once the energy of youth became focused, the project took off.

Corbett and her students were the first and only film crew ever allowed in Yaeger's small Detroit home, which the artist's father bought in 1928.

"Once they spent a day in that house," Corbett said, "they were hooked."

The students learned that Yaeger's life of art is kept in reams of scrap books where he sketches all his ideas before deciding which ones to commit to canvas.

After visiting the artist's home, the students traveled to Plante-Moran in Southfield and the Scarab Club and Brodhead Armory in Detroit to film Yae-ger's magnificent murals and mosaics.

Most of Yaeger's works are owned privately by collectors in the Detroit area, which proved fortunate. The owners were asked to bring their Yaeger pieces to the TV production lab at South for filming. Many agreed, which allowed the student producers to fill nearly the entire documentary with shot after shot of various Yaeger works.

After 80 years as a prolific producer of art, he is known as the elder statesman of art in the Detroit area. He is perhaps Detroit's first abstract artist.

He's worked with all mediums and still hand-carves and assembles frames for his works. Originally, he made his own frames to save money, but some have now become as important to collectors as the art inside them.

The film's editor was senior Justin Hynous, who spent countless hours on the project, Corbett said, and completed it over the summer after he graduated. He is now a student at Michigan State University.

"He really put it all to-

Students a-'mazed'

Students at Pierce Middle School found themselves trapped in a maze March 4 during the school's Fine Arts Festival. The students built the maze out of 4-mil plastic sheets. The design and construction was under the guidance of Dr. Arthur Park, coordinator of the graduate art education program at Wayne State University.

He was just one of many fine arts professionals who spent the day at the school sharing their knowledge with the students. Others came from the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and Eastern Michigan University. The day culminated in an evening concert, during which the guest clinicians conducted the choir and the concert orchestra and band.

Board backs smoke-free schools, urges Lansing to act

By Maureen McNulty
Special Writer

In a drive spawned by students to eliminate smoking in all public schools in Michigan, the Grosse Pointe board of education Monday unanimously adopted a resolution supporting smoke-free schools.

"The dangers of smoking are well documented and threaten the health and welfare not only of those who smoke but also of non-smokers exposed to secondary smoke...the board of education wishes to ban all smoking by school employees on school property," the board said. The resolution now will be sent to Lansing in the hopes that the Legislature will pass a bill that will ban smoking in all K-12 public schools statewide.

The anti-smoking effort, spearheaded by student leaders from both Grosse Pointe South and North high schools, is aimed at faculty, administrators and other adult employees at some Grosse Pointe schools who are allowed to smoke in designated areas.

Students are not permitted to smoke on school property, risking penalties of mandatory substance abuse counseling to a three-day suspension if they are caught.

The board is restrained from eliminating smoking on Grosse Pointe public school property by school employee labor contracts which prevent schools from banning smoking as long as a single smoker works in the building.

The school board is, however, contractually allowed to ban smoking in a building when everyone working there agrees to a smoke-free environment. After that, the contract reads, "new hires or teachers transferring into a smoke-free building must honor the smoke-free environment."

Barnes school is the only one of the 14 buildings in the school system which has been declared smoke-free.

The students initially announced their petition drive to ban smoking at the school board's Feb. 10 meeting. They revealed their plan to the metro Detroit media the following day.

The board immediately reacted favorably immediately to the petition, with school board President Carol Marr telling the students, "I don't think you will find a board member who does not support you."

But they might find a state senator who doesn't.

State Sen. John Kelly, D-

Grosse Pointe Woods, voiced his opposition to a bill that, he said, targets a specific minority group — teachers who smoke.

State Rep. William R. Bryant Jr., R-Grosse Pointe Farms, however, said he supported the petition and is working on a bill that would ban smoking inside all schools, but not on school grounds.

Laurie Kolinski, North Student Association president, estimated that one-quarter of students smoke.

The students have collected more than 100 faculty and administrator signatures and anticipate collecting 800 student signatures to send to Lansing.

Pointer of Interest

Karl Peters

By Ronald J. Bernas

Chef Karl Peters is critiquing what to most people would have been a perfect lunch.

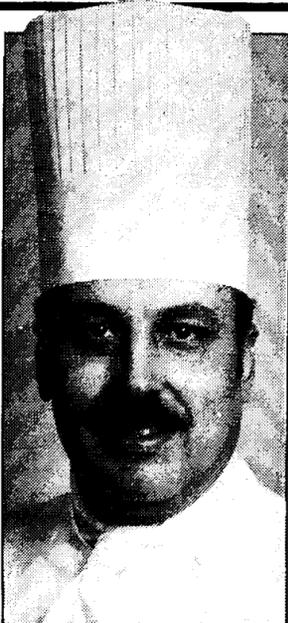

It started with shrimp and scallop bouillabaisse, continued with a salad of assorted greens and then moved on to the main dish of roast tenderloin with mushroom sauce, pea pods and sauteed red skin potatoes. The lunch culminated with a chocolate Grand Marnier souffle.

But to Peters, the meal — while quite good, he said — could have used a little help. To wit:

The shrimp were slightly overcooked, making them just a bit tough. The salad leaves had brown edges. There was too much meat for a luncheon portion. The potatoes were too spicy. And the souffle was just a tad late.

Peters told all this to the chef before grading him on the Board opposes rule change

The Grosse Pointe board of education unanimously passed a resolution Monday noting its strong opposition to a proposed rule change by the Michigan High School Athletic Association which seeks to prohibit out-of-season play by athletes.

The board feels that "a student's participation in athletic competition outside the interscholastic season for that sport should be the decision of the student and his/her parents based upon what is in the best interests of the student," according to the resolution.

The board stressed that participation in out-of-season play can often result "in the attainment of the same goals as interscholastic athletics: physical, mental and social growth, enjoyment, discipline, teamwork and pursuit of excellence."

Woods prisoner escapes

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Woods officers are "actively searching" for a man who escaped their custody March 4, said Public Safety Director Jack Patterson.

The 37-year-old Detroit man was being transported by two officers from the Woods jail to the municipal court, where he was to be arraigned on charges of writing bad checks.

The officers were walking behind the prisoner across an outside porch when the man, who was not wearing handcuffs or shackles, bolted and ran between some houses north of the municipal parking lot.

Officers searched the area door-to-door and even brought in tracking dogs but could not find the escapee.

He was recently sentenced by an Oakland Circuit Court judge to serve 5- to 25 years in prison for writing bad checks, an Oakland County Jail clerk said. After the trial, he was turned over to the Woods to face charges there.

It is the first time a prisoner has escaped Woods' custody in about 25 years, Patterson said. The last incident involved a juvenile who ran away from a Woods officer while being transported to Detroit for a court appearance, he said.

Prisoners being transported to the Woods court often are not fettered because most of them "are accused of minor crimes and are not exhibiting signs of being combative," Patterson said.

Also, there is no private room connected to the court where officers can un-handcuff and re-handcuff prisoners. Such a room is needed for the transporting officers' safety, because they have their backs to the public when shackling or un-shackling prisoners in the courtroom, and are thus vulnerable to attack, Patterson said.

He said his department is reviewing its method of transporting prisoners and that it's looking into using a conference room located across the hall from the court as a designated transport room.

Man of the hour

Grosse Pointe Shores President Edmund M. Brady Jr. left, presented Chester E. Petersen, former Grosse Pointe Woods city manager, with a plaque and a resolution on behalf of the Shores council in honor of Petersen's 43 years in municipal government. Petersen was a leader in several municipal projects and his personal efforts helped create the "Circle of Honor" at Mack and Eight Mile. Petersen announced his retirement last year but is serving as acting city manager until the position is filled.

It's coming — the March 17 presidential primary

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

Candidates and election workers are gearing up for Michigan's first presidential primary in more than a decade. It will be held Tuesday, March 17, and the polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Voters should go to the same polling place they use for local and state elections.

The primary will determine which presidential candidates will be supported by Michigan delegates to the 1992 national Democratic and Republican party conventions.

Voters in the primary must choose one of two ballots: Democratic or Republican.

The candidates on the Democratic ballot are: Edmund G. Brown Jr., Bill Clinton, Tom Harkin, Bob Kerrey, Paul E. Tsongas and Lyndon H. LaRouche Jr.

Harkin and Kerrey recently quit the race but their names will still appear on the ballot, a state election official said.

The candidates on the Republican ballot are: George Bush, Patrick Buchanan and David Duke.

Originally, the primary was going to be a closed primary, meaning that voters would have had to declare in writing which party they favored before voting. The deadline for declaring party preference was Feb. 18. However, the two major political parties changed the rules.

A registered voter who wants a Democratic ballot will not be issued one if he or she filed as a Republican on or before Feb. 18.

If a registered voter filed as a Democrat on or before Feb. 18, he or she will receive a Democratic ballot upon asking for one.

A registered voter who did not file as either a Republican or a Democrat by Feb. 18 can receive a Democratic ballot. However, he or she must first submit a written preference for the Democratic Party. This can be done by writing "Democratic Party preference" on the application to vote, or by completing a political party preference declaration form, which should be available at the polling place.

A Republican ballot will be given to any registered voter who asks for one, even if the voter had previously filed as a Democrat. No written statement is required.

To participate in the primary, a person had to be registered to vote by Feb. 18.

To participate in the Nov. 3 presidential election, a person must register to vote by Oct. 5, if he or she is not already registered.

As of Feb. 18, Grosse Pointe City had 4,407 registered voters. Of those, 1,577 filed as Republicans and 499 filed as Democrats. The rest either did not file a preference or filed "no party preference."

Grosse Pointe Farms had 19,068 registered voters, with 8,170 Republicans on file and 420 Democrats listed.

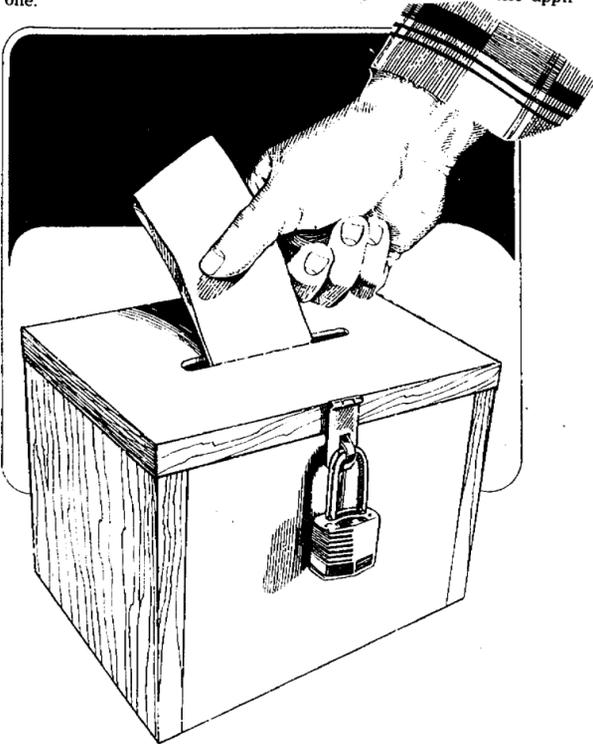

Grosse Pointe Township (most of Grosse Pointe Shores) had 2,119 registered voters. Of those, 833 filed as Republicans and 84 filed as Democrats.

Lake Township (a small part of Grosse Pointe Shores) had 61 registered voters, 18 of whom filed as Republicans. Three filed as Democrats.

Grosse Pointe Woods had 14,658 registered voters. Of those, 2,939 filed as Republicans and 896 filed as Democrats.

Grosse Pointe Park has 10,755 registered voters. The number of Democrats and Republicans on file was not available.

For more information about the primary and voting eligibility, or for an absentee ballot, call your township or city clerk's office.

What the well-dressed voter shouldn't wear

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

It's OK to wear green inside a polling place when voting in the March 17 Michigan presidential primary — after all, it will be St. Patrick's Day.

However, sporting campaign buttons or clothing bearing a candidate's name or campaign slogan is a no-no.

The Michigan Department of State's Bureau of Elections has issued a bulletin to local election workers, telling them that they have the right to ask voters to remove or coverup such buttons or clothing. The election workers may also tell voters to hide campaign literature or other campaign materials brought into the polls.

"While there is nothing to prohibit a voter from referring to campaign literature when voting, the materials may not be left behind in the voting station," the bulletin says.

Also, it says that vehicles bearing campaign signs or bumper stickers must be parked at least 100 feet from any entrance to the building in which the polling place is located.

All of those rules have been in effect since the late 1950s, when they were handed down by the state attorney general, said Brad Whitman of the Bureau of Elections.

"It's a state law that people can't campaign within 100 feet of a polling place," Whitman said. "Questions arise as to what constitutes campaigning, and these rules were developed to help answer those questions."

When asked if election workers can enforce the no-campaigning rules selectively, Whitman said, "Oh no, we expect them to enforce them."

City sets block grant projects

By Ronald J. Bemas
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe City has received more than $68,000 of federal Community Development Block Grant money and it's getting ready to spend it.

By law the money has to go to projects that either directly benefit a specific group — such as elderly or handicapped — or to projects within a low- to moderate-income area as defined by the census. That area in the City is bordered by Waterloo and Mack and Cadieux and Neff.

The City originally planned on getting $60,000 in federal funds, but when the grant came through it got $68,500.

The council has decided to fund the following projects this year: • $4,500 to the minor home repair program sponsored by Services for Older Citizens. The program provides minor home repairs to senior citizens who may not be able to afford them. • $2,500 for additional repair programs that fall outside of the SOC minor home repair guidelines. • $5,000 for a tree preservation program including removal, trimming, maintenance and planting of new trees. • $3,250 to keep the Pointe Area Assisted Transportation Service operating. • $38,750 for traffic signal improvements, most of which will come within the area bordered by Waterloo and Mack and Cadieux and Neff.

The additional money is given to the city to cover administrative costs.

All projects but the traffic signal improvements are funded by block grants yearly. The signal improvements should be a one-time only cost. Since 1985 the City has received more than $1.3 million in Community Development Block Grants.

An omen?

There it was, off the shores of Grosse Pointe, the flag of the Land of the Rising Sun planted on an ice floe. It attracted considerable attention. Only the perpetrators know how the Japanese flag got there, but the scuttlebutt, according to the photographer, is that a couple in a boat stopped at the ice floe and did the honors.

Car theft foiled

A 20-year-old Detroit man was arrested March 3 in Grosse Pointe Farms in connection with an attempted car theft and for carrying a concealed weapon.

Farms police were called to a parking lot on Mack after someone reported seeing four youths looking into cars. When the police showed up, the four youths ran. Police gave chase and collared the suspects after finding a car with a smashed windshield.

Upon questioning, one of the youths said another youth had smashed the window because they were looking for a car to steal.

The police also found a loaded .22-caliber revolver on a nearby lawn. One of the young men identified it as his weapon.

Bus stop at site of slaying moved

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

A wreath still marks the corner where a Grosse Pointe Park woman was slain Jan. 16, but the bus shelter in which the murder took place is gone.

SMART, the suburban bus line, recently removed the shelter at the request of Grosse Pointe Park officials.

Dale Krajniak, Park city manager/clerk, said a resident urged the city to make the request.

The resident said that bus riders would feel safer if the bus stop were moved to the north, deeper within Park city limits, Krajniak said.

The shelter was removed and the bus stop was re-located from the southwest corner of Jefferson and Wayburn to the northwest corner.

There are no plans to erect a bus shelter at the new location. In fact, the bus stop may not be there for long.

James Ferriole Jr., president of Park Place Properties Inc., has complained to the city about the new location, which is in front of a building he owns. He said he has business tenants on the first floor and residential tenants on the second floor.

One of the two parking spaces in front of the building was removed so that buses could pull up to the curb, causing his business tenants to complain. Also, he said his tenants have told him that they don't like people hanging around outside their businesses and apartments, waiting for the bus.

"It's terrible," Ferriole said. "My tenants are worried about their welfare . . . Crooks now have two choices. They can get someone waiting for the bus, like they did with that woman who was murdered, or they can get my tenants as they go into their businesses or apartments."

Krajniak said he and Jeff Mueller, assistant city manager, would meet with Ferriole this week to discuss possible sites to which the bus stop could be relocated.

Woods puts $1,000 tag on trees

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Woods is withholding $13,000 it owes a construction company because the firm allegedly damaged a number of trees along Lochmoor.

The Woods hired Mago Construction Co. four years ago to replace water and sewer lines on Lochmoor. Included in the contract was a provision stating that the city would charge the company $1,000 for every tree it damaged, said George B. Catlin, city attorney.

"That was something new for the Woods, but other communities were doing it," said Phillip Belcher, assistant city administrator.

The project was started in November 1988 and completed in July 1989, he said.

Afterward, the city said that Mago had damaged 35 trees along Lochmoor to the point where they were dying, and withheld $35,000 from its $514,750 bill. Four trees later recovered, so the city reimbursed Mago $4,000, bringing the total paid to $483,750, Belcher said.

Mago says there is still an outstanding balance of $31,000, but the Woods disagrees, saying the money is compensation for its damaged trees.

Mago's owner, Aldo Quadrini, admits partial responsibility for the tree damage, but says the bulk of it was done by another company that repaved the road after the sewer and water lines were in place.

He said asphalt contains an acid that is harmful to exposed tree roots.

"We chipped some bark off the trees, but it's the acid that would've really hurt them,"

Quadrini said. "We've been in the business for 20 years, and whenever we scrape the bark off trees, it usually comes back the next year."

Belcher said the city doesn't believe the paver damaged the trees because of photos the city took after Mago completed its job and before the paving took place. The photos show freshly damaged trees along Lochmoor, he said.

The matter was recently reviewed by the Woods' committee of the whole, which recommended that the city continue to withhold $31,000 from Mago. The city council agreed with the recommendation last month.

However, it's not settled yet. "Our attorneys are on it," Quadrini said.

Lithotripsy for kidney stones

Featuring Dr. Robert DiLoreto, director of Lithotripsy Services at St. John Hospital and Medical Center.

Dr. DiLoreto, a board-certified urologist, received his medical degree from Wayne State University. He is one of several physician members of Wayne-Macomb Urology Associates, P.C. with an office in the St. John Professional Building in Detroit, near Grosse Pointe.

Q: How are doctors treating kidney stones these days?

A: Very few people nowadays require traditional surgery to remove kidney stones. There are several other options available, but the treatment of choice for most patients afflicted with kidney stones is lithotripsy.

Q: What is lithotripsy?

A: Lithotripsy is a procedure that uses shock waves OUTSIDE the body to pulverize kidney stones INSIDE. The patient lays on an X-ray type table, where a small cone of water in a plastic tube pushes up against their back, focused on the location of the stone.

Q: What happens to the kidney stone?

A: The energy of the shock wave internally pulverizes the stone into tiny pieces of sand. The patient then passes the tiny pieces out of the body in the urine.

Q: How long does the lithotripsy procedure take?

A: On average, it takes about an hour. And, lithotripsy is almost always an outpatient procedure that requires little, if any, anesthesia.

Bush, Clinton are the best for Michigan

Who are the best Republican and Democratic presidential candidates for the Pointes and Michigan?

In our view, President George Bush is the best of the trio seeking support in the state's GOP presidential primary next Tuesday, March 17, while Gov. Bill Clinton of Arkansas is our preference in the three-man Democratic contest.

Running on his record, the president deserves support for his leadership in foreign affairs but can be faulted for failing to deal adequately with the recession and other domestic issues.

If he continues to bow so often to right wing demands while campaigning, he also could lose some of his support from moderates.

However, the president is being stoutly defended by Gov. John Engler, who is leading the Bush forces in Michigan and is still confident of a Bush victory on March 17 and his re-election in November.

Bush captured Michigan's 1980 presidential primary, was on the winning Reagan-Bush ticket in 1980 and 1984 and carried Michigan on his own in 1988. Despite the recession, we agree with Republicans who see him winning a fifth big victory next Tuesday.

tor who has served as an aide to Presidents Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan. Also on the GOP ballot is David Duke, the former Louisiana legisla-

Harkin 'saves' the Democrats

Sen. Tom Harkin's withdrawal from the Democratic presidential race has apparently prevented large segments of Michigan's Democratic Party from once again putting their money on a losing horse.

The United Auto Workers, the state AFL-CIO, Mayor Coleman Young and other Democratic leaders had geared up for a final stand on Harkin's behalf in the Michigan presidential primary next Tuesday, March 17, before Harkin pulled the plug on his candidacy last weekend.

The departure of "New Dealer" Harkin, following the withdrawal of Sen. Bob Kerrey of Nebraska, proves that nationally the Democratic Party has inched to the right in its latest quest to pick a president, even though Michigan labor has been reluctant to follow that course.

Voters in a few states did prefer Harkin or Kerry but neither could raise the resources to continue the fight. That leaves Gov. Bill Clinton of Arkansas and former tor and onetime Ku Klux Klansman.

In Michigan, Buchanan's chairman, Harry Veryser, hopes his candidate will get more than 33 percent of the vote, the U.S. Senator Paul Tsongas of Massachusetts as the front-runners, with former California Gov. Jerry Brown as a wildcard entry.

Overall, both Clinton and Tsongas are more conservative than recent Democratic presidential nominees. Both are moderate liberals on social issues but clearly fiscal conservatives. Tsongas has been called pro-business but Clinton, too, supports tax and other incentives for business.

Just where Michigan Democrats will go now that their field has been trimmed to three candidates is still uncertain. Clinton, already endorsed by the Michigan Education Association and the public service employees union, surely ought to benefit.

However, many of Michigan's Democratic leaders traditionally have missed the bus in the final moments of political play — and could do so again.

minimum required to win Michigan delegates to the national convention next summer. That proportion of the vote, incidentally, is about the same as Buchanan has drawn in earlier primaries.

Buchanan's criticism of the president's lack of leadership, especially in battling the recession, is a legitimate political argument and probably a popular one in Michigan, where Bush suffers from the rise in unemployment and the GM decision to close the Willow Run plant.

However, Buchanan is often politically out of bounds with his appeals to "America First" isolationism, his hints at racism and anti-Semitism, and his demagoguery on other issues.

As for Duke, we do not believe this extremist will attract much support in Michigan, although we still remember that a demagogue, Gov. George Wallace of Alabama, won the Democratic presidential primary 20 years ago.

On the Democratic side, Clinton is the most electable candidate in the race, in our view, despite the questions raised about his marital conduct, his World War II draft status and the investment issue raised by the New York Times.

He is a moderate, has a record of strong support for education, offers some economic incentives to business and industry, and has won the backing of former Gov. James Blanchard, the Michigan Education Association, the state public service employees union and County Executive Edward McNamara.

Overall, we see Bush and Clinton as the best choices for the Pointes and Michigan in the presidential primary and as the likely nominees for the November election.

Redistricting not courts' job

Many state legislators as well as lawyers representing both political parties last week found fault with the proposed legislative redistricting plan submitted to the Supreme Court by a three-judge panel.

Ironically, however, it was the failure of the divided Legislature, with a Democratic House and a GOP Senate, to agree on a redistricting plan that brought the case into the court's jurisdiction and required it to appoint a panel to draw up proposed districts.

A major criticism made by those representing Detroit black legislators was that the proposed plan was "flawed" because it violated the federal Voting Rights Act by failing to protect the rights of minority legislators as they claimed the law requires.

However, Sen. John Kelly of Grosse Pointe Woods told the hearing that the proposal was basically a good one that did not, at least in his view, discriminate against the blacks and thus did not violate the Voting Rights Act.

He pointed out further that the wording of the Voting Rights Act specifically prohibits proportional representation based on population, as some Detroit representatives have claimed.

Other individual legislators complained about new districts that required them to run against one of their colleagues or shifted their district lines in ways that would inconvenience them or their constituents.

Yet such complaints are not likely to

Hopes rising for SMART

Approval of a new contract with the 350 union drivers of buses for SMART, the regional bus system that serves the Pointes and other suburban communities, has raised hopes for the system's survival.

SMART still must hurdle its biggest obstacle, a source of financing not only to meet future needs but to pay off an estimated $7.7 million deficit this year and another loss projected for next year.

The agency does hope to consolidate with the Detroit Department of Transportation and persuade the public to support a regional transit tax. But Mayor Coleman Young has said he will not permit any consolidation without subsidies provided by suburban communities served by the line.

A recent Detroit Free Press poll, however, did show that more than half of the 812 adults interviewed in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties say they would be willing to pay higher taxes to support a regional mass transit system.

Overall, the poll showed 53 percent of the respondents in favor and 40 percent get much sympathy from a court that in this instance is being required to do the Legislature's job.

The panel has recommended revision of the 13th District represented by Rep. William R. Bryant Jr. of Grosse Pointe and put him into the same district as Democratic Rep. Curtis Hertel but apparently still left the 13th with a GOP majority.

The 1st Senate District, represented by Sen. Kelly, was also revamped, but apparently without too much damage to Kelly's future prospects, although he thinks it might become more of a swing district.

Once the court has digested the proposals and complaints, it will draw new maps as required by March 16 and the 1992 state primary and general election will be based on the revisions although the decision could be delayed by an appeal to federal court.

However it is accomplished, the redistricting must be completed by April 15 to provide adequate time for candidates to learn about their new districts and complete their campaign plans for the August primary.

We are inclined to agree with critics who say that in the future the legislators ought to patch up their differences and reach agreement themselves. Otherwise, they simply put the responsibility on the courts and arouse further criticism of the courts for trying to write as well as review the laws.

However, in this case, it is clear that the courts are undertaking a responsibility the Legislature failed to carry out.

opposed. But the suburban respondents supported the idea only by a 48 to 45 percent margin, with those from Macomb opposed and those from Oakland and western Wayne counties slightly in favor. In Detroit, however, the poll showed a 65 percent favorable opinion with 28 percent opposed.

On another issue, nine of 10 Detroit and suburban respondents agreed that mass transportation is important to the future development of the three-state region.

Among the plans being studied to help keep the system alive are adoption of cost-cutting programs and work-rule revisions, state legislation to enable SMART to tap an estimated $10-million pension fund surplus and examination of a proposal to have the state cover SMART's insurance costs.

Yet without early action, the system still could close down on March 27 and cost the jobs of about 600 employees as well as the service now provided to about 14,000 riders, including a good many Pointers.

Letters

Teachers are tops

To the Editor:

I would like to respond to the people who keep talking about teachers only working nine months of the year.

My cousins, who teach in the Grand Rapids area, must take college courses every summer, not for their own enjoyment, but to keep their jobs. (They have to pay for the classes out of their own purse, too — no extra money for them.)

I do not know how their teaching contract compares to Grosse Pointe's, but I have never attended a school function or meeting without seeing teachers (our principal, too). I have seen teachers in the school building in June after school lets out and in August well before school starts again.

I also wonder when my daughter's first-grade teacher finds time to select a workbook for Katie to practice in at home — does she do it for the other 26 students also? Report cards come soon — Katie's is always full of writing, not just grades. How does the teacher collate all that information for 27 kids, and find the time to write it all on the paper?

From what I have seen, our teachers are constantly changing the curriculum to reflect new information and advances. When do they incorporate these changes? They surely don't stand in front of the class and improvise.

So I remember my aunt and uncle, who just retired from teaching in the Lansing area. We only saw them a couple of times a year, yet I can remember when they had to leave the party early to go grade papers. It must have happened fairly often — and they didn't want to escape the family party!

I think you have to try to imagine the unseen duties of any job before you make blanket statements about the profession. Why have I always heard that you have to want to teach, that it isn't easy? Please don't throw stereotypical statements around without thinking about it first.

To the Editor:

The impending demise of the only mass transit alternative available in Grosse Pointe, SMART, should have every citizen alarmed: This will mean that our area will be the only major metropolitan region in the United States without some form of public transportation.

We cannot afford to let this happen. There are many who depend on SMART to get around on a daily basis. People who cannot afford their own vehicles, those who are unable to drive, young and old alike, deserve to have a chance to freely move about, without depending

The more things change

Maybe it's just because it's an election year, but I've been watching less news lately and giving only cursory glances to most newspapers.

It seems the more you hear, the less you want to. So I've been diverting my attention by reading books.

I've developed a reading system whereby I read one book I deem as "good" for me — one which is challenging and makes me think. And I quickly follow that up with some overblown, overwritten piece of trash, of the sort that makes mediocre television mini-series.

But I goofed and read two thought-provoking books in a row recently, which will bring me to my story about Agatha Christie and me.

The first one was "The Remains of the Day" by Kazuo

Ishiguro. It's a brilliant and bittersweet tale of an English butler who finds, when looking back, that his life was not what he meant it to be. It's the kind of story in which what's left unsaid is more important than what's on the page. This was one that was "good" for me. So it was time to read trash.

I went into my spare bedroom and pawed through the books on my floor and on my two bookshelves. Somerset Maugham? Too good. Hemingway? Too much. Steinbeck? Easy, but not trashy enough.

So I settled on a book by Douglas Coupland called "Generation X." It turned out to be much the same theme — times change and what was once attainable is now out of reach, or not worth getting. It was set, however, in 1990 and the characters were people of my generation who, thanks to economics and divorce, have no place to call home so they affect a cynical bravado that makes them even lonelier. It's a sad commentary because it's so true.

Those books got me thinking

and that's why I decided to read an Agatha Christie again. I wanted a little mind candy after the two plates of — rather tasty — broccoli I'd just digested.

I don't know why I stopped reading Agatha Christie novels, I just did. Maybe it was because they're in a different room from the rest of my books and when I'm choosing my trash, I forget about her. What a mistake.

I was 11 or 12 I think when I read of Agatha Christie's death. Even though I knew nothing about her, she intrigued me — especially those 11 days in 1926 when she disappeared — and I wanted to know what she was all about.

So I asked my mom if I could read her books — they were in the adult section of the library, and I was still reading the young adult selections. She said she had read about a reverend somewhere who let his kids read her books because there was nothing objectionable in them. If Agatha was good enough for a reverend's kids, she was certainly good enough for me.

I remember picking out my first Agatha Christie book from a shelf at the library. Who says a book isn't judged by its cover? It was the story about a bold murder that took place during a party. In full view of a number of people occupied with their bridge hands, a man was stabbed in the heart with what must have been an incredibly long, sharp hat pin.

Bridge always figures prominently in her books. I often fantasized something like that would happen when my parents hosted their bridge club. And Hercule Poirot always uses bridge metaphors when solving crimes. "If your partner bids no trump after your opponent bids four diamonds, what is he telling you," Poirot would say. I always wanted to take a bridge class so I would know.

From the first, I was hooked. I borrowed her books intermittently from the library and bought them from Kmart. An Agatha Christie book was the first and only thing I ever shoplifted from a store. Hey, I was young.

"Thirteen at Dinner," the one I just finished, started off easily enough. An actress expressed loudly at a dinner party that she wished her husband was dead, so it was no surprise when only a few chapters later he indeed turned up dead with a knife sticking out of the back of his neck.

I knew who killed him by the next chapter. Until my suspect turned up dead and my second choice had an air-tight alibi.

Dame Agatha got a little cocky in this one, though. Poirot chides Hastings — the narrator of the story — for jumping on every clue and not looking at the whole picture. Just like I did. And she even says at the beginning that a chance conversation with a stranger set Poirot on the right path. I read that chance conversation several times and still I couldn't solve the case. But I really wasn't trying too hard.

In a world where people's lives don't go as planned, and bridge groups disintegrate (unfortunately without mayhem) because of divorce and boredom, and especially in an election year, it's comforting to know that not everything changes and that you can still be amused, engrossed and utterly confounded by a little English lady with a penchant for murder.

It went so well last year, Grosse Pointe Woods has decided to extend its boating season again. Boaters can start using the municipal docks on April 13. However, they must sign a letter stating they understand the city won't provide security in the park until May 1. Channel markers won't be installed until May either.

Also, boaters must adhere to winter park hours, which are 3-10 p.m. Monday-Friday and 10 a.m.-9 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

The boating season normally begins May 1.

Skipped out

Has anybody seen Skippy? Skippy is a black and white male pekinese with white ears. He weighs about 9 pounds and has no collar.

Skippy stepped out for a moment on Feb. 23, and forgot his way home. He was last seen on Three Mile between Warren and Mack.

Kathleen Simonetti of Detroit said that Skippy's owner is Maybel Ebey, 95, and she misses him terribly.

"Skippy likes other dogs," Simonetti said. "The last time this happened, he went to another house where there was a dog."

Diabetes program planned

Saratoga Community Hospital's ElderMed America will offer a program on "Diabetes and Diabetes Management" on Tuesday, March 31, from 10 a.m. to noon.

Dr. Michael Chen, a specialist in internal medicine and endocrinology, and a member of Saratoga's medical staff, will present the program.

Diabetes education and management are essential for the successful treatment of the disease. The class will focus on diabetes and the warning signs and how to best manage the disease.

Reservations are necessary. Call 245-1230.

The program will be held in the Karl E. Schmidt Center at Saratoga Community Hospital, 15000 Gratiot, just south of Eight Mile. Free parking is available; facilities are handicap accessible.

More than trees may be trimmed

So many people are riled up about Detroit Edison's tree-ravaging that the company is sending troubleshooters around to Pointe council meetings to soothe the public. But tree owners aren't the only ones upset over the drastic trimming.

is already trying to do something about that. Reasoning that AIDS education successfully reduced the incidence of the disease among homosexuals, Caregivers has hired an AIDS educator whose responsibility is to find ways to reach women in Detroit.

Lisbeth Nordstrom-Leaner has come up with a dandy.

She talks to women where women relax, where they feel comfortable, ready to discuss intimate things. She talks to them in beauty parlors.

Maybe because she's a trained doctor, maybe because she's personable and open, Nordstrom-Leaner is welcomed, with her plain talk and tote bag full of brightly colored condoms. Her mission is to reach urban women who may not have all the facts and to teach them a safer lifestyle.

"At first, I wrote letters, telling the shop owners that I was available to come in and talk to their clients," she said. "But I didn't get one reply. So now I just walk in."

It takes years to measure the success of an education program. But Caregivers is giving it an imaginative and creative shot.

The trouble with AIDS education is that detailing the risky behaviors and the practical ways to protect oneself is a tad sensitive for family journalism.

But that doesn't mean that we shouldn't know about it. As mature grownups, I would hope we could not only handle delicate subjects, but would feel an obligation to know.

Talk to someone like Nordtrom-Leaner. She'll tell you some things you don't know. Trust me.

She can be reached at Caregivers, 964-5070.

The international scientific community seems to be working together to fight AIDS. But recently I read that several researchers with a different view on the disease are having trouble getting the scientific establishment to listen to their theories.

It wouldn't be the first time. Anthropologists fight over mitochondrial DNA and paleontologists argue over whose find represents the oldest human. But with so much at stake in this worldwide epidemic, theories shouldn't be cut off prematurely.

Entrenched establishments spend their energies protecting their power. It's the same in politics — only insiders get to propose reforms, which can then be shaped to their own ends.

Jerry Brown, for instance, can't get anyone to listen to his radical ideas, even though he was once governor of our biggest state. All it took was one columnist to tar him with the "Governor Moonbeam" label and he has never been taken seriously again.

One of my "fans" (not!) has predicted that I will be replaced by a Japanese journalist if the U.S. doesn't institute some protectionist measures.

Yikes.

That guy will be glad to know that I've gotten Michael Crichton's new book out of the library. But "Rising Sun" isn't going to change the fact that blaming and scapegoating do nothing to improve the economy.

I don't want to be bullied into buying anything. Or wheedled.

The Willow Run workers' pledge to go door-to-door, begging people to buy an American car, is pitiful. Have we come to that?

Save me the angry letters. My offer a couple of weeks ago to buy a Mercedes was based on freedom of choice. Shoot, I can't even afford one. Besides, in exercising my freedom of choice, I already have a Ford and a Pontiac. The garage is full.

I wondered how long it would be before the politicians started in on Bill Clinton's draft record. If we're going to automatically eliminate anyone who managed to avoid serving in Vietnam, we'll have a mighty small pool of presidential possibilities for the next few elections.

The electorate has always longed for war heroes in the Chief Executive's seat, even when the war in question was highly controversial. After the Civil War, the down-and-dirty campaigning on that issue was called "waving the bloody shirt."

ABC's Jeff Greenfield did a piece on modern-day shirt-waving a few weeks ago. But even he got sucked in by campaign rhetoric.

"We've had an unbroken line of World War II veterans in the White House since Eisenhower," Greenfield said.

Uh, Jeff, Ronald Reagan was a movie war hero.

Nancy Parmenter

The scuttlebutt is that the men and women who trim the trees think the company is going overboard, too. Not only is it bad for the trees, some of these people say, but it's bad for long-term work prospects. Tree trimmers will work hard now, then be laid off for years while they wait for the devastated trees to grow back.

Detroit is on the world's lips in a new and terrifying way: At medical conferences, everyone's talking about the rapid spread of AIDS here.

AIDS may have started on the coasts and in the homosexual community, but it has reached the nation's heartland (as television commentators like to call it). And it's in the heterosexual community.

Women used to represent about one of every 10 AIDS victims. In Detroit, they are one in two. Half of all AIDS patients here are women.

Access to public transportation makes our community a more desirable place to live as well. As a commuter working in Detroit, the availability of reliable transportation to my office influenced my decision to reside in the Park.

As an investor in rental property, I know my tenants who work downtown considered living in Grosse Pointe because SMART was available for their use. SMART enhances the quality of life in Grosse Pointe by providing a choice in transportation.

After March 27, commuters now driving their own vehicles will have no choice but to continue doing so. If the buses keep running, people will be aware that there is an alternative to driving. A visible presence hopefully will encourage more commuters to use the system, which will go a long way toward reducing pollution and traffic congestion. The disappearance of the buses is likely to cause the idea of mass transit to fade from memory.

The challenge now is for our communities to join with the other regional governments in the tri-county area, reach a consensus, and accept the responsibility for maintaining mass transit in the suburbs. The leaders in our city government have an opportunity now to chart the future of mass transit in Grosse Pointe. A commitment is needed soon to preserve a valuable community asset.

Flower power

To the Editor:

As new parents to Grosse Pointe North, we became involved in the annual geranium sale. One of the duties involves going through all the orders from the previous year. We send mailers to those who live outside the Grosse Pointe North or Grosse Pointe South school districts, who would otherwise not receive an order blank.

This resulted in a startling figure. We found that, in fact, only 14 percent of the total sales were from Grosse Pointe North families.

This is both shocking and disturbing. The proceeds from this sale benefit the very people who ignore and do not participate in this sale.

We deeply appreciate the community support we receive — without it there would be no sale. The support from the alumni, and the senior community is wonderful. It is terrific to see the great number of orders from parents of graduates and their grandparents.

We urge the families of current Grosse Pointe North students to support their school. Many of you purchase geraniums or hanging baskets of begonias or impatiens in the spring. We see how nice they look as we drive by your homes. Please purchase them from your children because they generate funds for your children.

The scholarships given are not limited to just college preparatory students — some scholarships are given for vocational and trade schools. The copy machine benefits the entire Grosse Pointe North community.

Is he or isn't he?

To the Editor:

I noticed with dismay Joseph P. Wright's anti-Semitic diatribe in the March 5 edition of the Grosse Pointe News. Lest others be swayed by this clap-trap, I think the readers of the Grosse Pointe News deserve a little background.

At the end of his letter, Mr. Wright says we should take his word for it that Patrick Buchanan is no anti-Semite. On the contrary, there is ample evidence that he is. One could start by researching the references to Buchanan in Dershowitz' recent bestseller, "Chutzpah," in which Buchanan is quoted as being against the conciliatory attitude of the Roman Catholic Church toward the Jews and the state of Israel. Furthermore, Buchanan has been protective of Nazi war criminals and pro-Palestinian.

Mr. Wright is pro-Palestine despite recent experience that the P.L.O. sided with Iraq in the Gulf War and Palestinians in Jordan cheered the scud missiles headed for Tel Aviv while demanding gas masks.

If Mr. Wright thinks that Israel should return the West Bank and Gaza strip to the Arabs, I wonder if he thinks we should return Grosse Pointe to the Indians.

What could he possibly have against Israel settling a million Soviet Jews within their borders? These Jews have been harrassed and persecuted during their imprisonment in the Soviet Union and are finally free.

As we approach Easter and Passover, let us be reminded that the Lord said, "Let my people go."

Principle

To the Editor:

Pat Buchanan's strong showing in New Hampshire was a surprise to the nation. The general reaction was that New Hampshire Republicans were registering a protest vote, objecting to the sluggish state of the economy.

And the Bush administration is content to understand New Hampshire in that light. President Bush will continue, only more loudly, extolling his same plans for reviving the U.S. economy.

But I am inclined to think that the men and women of New Hampshire created a stir over more than their latest bank statement. The American electorate is moved more by its brains than by its belly. The protest vote registered in New Hampshire was a protest in principle.

Pat Buchanan stands for something, and New Hampshire voters knew that. President Bush has demonstrated that he is committed to little other than pandering to public opinion. New Hampshire voters knew that, too.

The American people remember that George Bush promised them that if he were elected president they would pay "No new taxes." "Ready my lips" served well to win Bush the executive office. But then the American people found themselves burdened with new "revenue enhancers."

The American people also remember that President Bush had "had it up to here" with Saddam Hussein. Tyrants would not be suffered to ravage their neighbors with impunity in the "New World Order." Operation Desert Storm cost the West billions of dollars, and the American people nearly 200 of their finest sons.

When absolute victory was only a few hundred miles of undefended desert away, President Bush called off the fight. Now Saddam Hussein openly mocks the world, and slowly builds his bomb. And Bush is powerless to do anything about it.

No one, I think, has forgotten who objected most vehemently to the dissolution of the Soviet empire and the fragmentation of Yugoslavia. It seems that Bush unwillingly inherited from Ronald Reagan a commitment to American principles of liberty. Bush, in favor of the status quo, has continually objected to the right of oppressed peoples to institute new government.

And no one has forgotten who went hat in hand to the Japanese, begging that they open their markets to American products.

In domestic affairs, President Bush has been all but silent, playing follow-the-leader on such issues as health care and tax cuts for the middle class. The conservative legacy that brought Bush into office has been all but abandoned.

Reagan fought hard to shrink the size and role of the federal government. Reagan trusted the ability of the American people to provide for their prosperity and welfare, and govern themselves. Under the Bush administration's moderate conservatism, federal regulation has steadily grown. American industry and the American middle class have been left to sink in the mire.

It should be no surprise, then, when Pat Buchanan continues to make a strong showing in the coming primaries and caucuses, especially on Super Tuesday. Many Republican voters will choose principle over pandering. Buchanan's cry for "America First" will have a growing appeal.

Third Amendment vital in its day

This is the seventh in a series of articles about the Bill of Rights, courtesy of the Commission of the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution.

The Third Amendment has ceased to have great significance today, but it was very important to the people when the Constitution and the Bill of Rights were drafted.

In the days before independence, it was not uncommon for British troops to compel citizens to provide housing for soldiers from time to time.

And even though virtually all of these people were "Englishmen," tensions developed between British troops and the colonists when the colonists were forced to provide free "room and board" to the "red-coats" who were defending them from the Indians and the French.

The Third Amendment was arguably not necessary, because the Fifth Amendment provides that the government cannot take private property without paying for it, and taking "room and board" was surely taking "property."

But Americans of that day were particularly worried that the new national government might conduct itself like King George's royal government in London.

Accordingly, even though the national government was not given any power to force soldiers on the citizen, the people wanted this prohibition spelled out to remove all question.

When the National Guard became the successor of the "state militia" and a national army and navy were created for national defense, the likelihood that soldiers would demand that citizens provide them with free "room and board" became remote.

Breaking the mold

This material girl is like a kid with a new toy. After much deliberation I have purchased a new car. This was no hasty decision, but a gut-wrenching act with plenty of homework involved.

For over 30 years I have been loyal to one of the Big Three auto companies. I have owned only station wagons since 1963. A large family, the nature of my work and an annual trip to a summer cottage necessitated my choice. Also, being an antique nut, a big car for all those garage sale purchases seemed to fit nicely into my lifestyle. I was an easy mark as the designated driver for short hauling jobs, picking up Christmas trees, helping people move things, but what the heck, I enjoyed all of it.

Alas, children leave the nest, our patterns change and it seemed a good time to consider replacing my faithful friend, shortly before her seventh birthday. My imagination went wild. I had never before given any thought to purchasing a car. It always would be a wagon, period. But now the menu out there was practically limitless. Would it be a trendy little sports car, a sedate sedan, a sleek convertible? After several days of fantasizing about my new wheels, the old conservative, logical personality asserted itself and I had to admit that my change would be less radical than my fantasies. Simply put, I still wanted four doors and a large trunk. I wanted the option to be the designated driver should a few of my cronies and I want to day trip the light fantastic. My ideal dream mode of conveyance would be a full-sized, four-door where the back seat has the ability to be a hatch back. This would be the perfect compromise for relinquishing a station wagon. However, American car companies don't make a big car that hatches, so if I were going to help us pull out of the recession and buy American I would have to give up on that idea.

The search commenced. I walked around several lots, talked with salespeople, chatted with friends about their choices and the pros and cons. I was pulled in many directions and nearly drove a few people mad with my incessant questions. I was courted and tempted and pampered by so many different models that I found myself becoming confused as to which car offered which options. This was getting out of hand. It was time to come to a decision.

On one particularly frigid day I thought I had narrowed my choice to one of two models. I asked a sales representative if I could see a specific car that appealed to me and he pointed and said, "It's back there by the fence." Like a jerk I went back to take a peek, returned to the showroom and asked if I could get in the car. I was told he didn't have a key. Big mistake buddy, you just lost a sale.

At other dealerships more savvy and hungry salespeople began to woo me. Warm smiles and friendly handshakes greeted me. The salesperson who eventually made the sale was not the one in his shirtsleeves, chewing gum while pointing me toward a car on the back lot. My salesman was a confident and competent young man who put on his overcoat and invited me to drive any car of my choosing. He informed me of the advantages and the drawbacks in meeting my final criteria. By then I had decided if I was going to break the mold and not go for the family wagon, I would have my four doors, but I would also have the luggage rack, the moonroof, the console on the floor and, as they say in the trade, leather guts.

Forget the argument that leather is hot in the summer and cold in the winter. We have heaters and air-conditioners. I've had plush interiors before and consequently lived with the same stains for seven years. And men don't know how clever we girls have to be to slide across a plush seat without twisting ourselves up in our skirts like a sausage. So leather guts it was, with tape deck of course, but no telephone. I want to escape in my car, not play catchup on the phone.

Within 24 hours of making a final decision, my shining new chariot was in our driveway. The dealer with whom I dealt was accommodating in every way. We bartered and each made a few concessions. Believe what you read, folks. These people want to make us happy. They want us to buy their products and they don't desert the customer after the deal is consummated. I have had an avalanche of correspondence from customer relations people, service reps, the parent company and my salesman all wanting to know if I was contented. I was beginning to wonder if they knew something about the car that I didn't!

I even had a call from the dealer's advertising agency asking if I would be a spokesperson in a radio ad. I was flattered and tempted, but declined, as several friends and relatives are employed by rival car companies. It's awkward enough that I didn't purchase their product. Why rub their noses in it! The other cars are no doubt comparable in every way. I simply chose to stay with the tried, true and familiar.

More importantly, to me, it is a glorious American creation and I hope it's the beginning of another seven-year love affair.

Pickup's ready to work but has fun on its mind

I sometimes sense a bit of disappointment in people when they discover that my everyday car is a somewhat-the-worse-for-wear 1982 Ford EXP. I guess an auto writer should drive something more exotic or exciting, but it has served me and its previous owner well and so should not be unceremoniously cast aside like old political ideals for a newer, shinier model.

I don't ordinarily think much about my car except when it fails to start (very rare). Most of the time it is an unappreciated workhorse or appliance, but for some reason driving Ford's new F-Series Flareside pickup truck reminded me of the EXP in a perverse sort of way.

On the surface, they have little in common. Ford made the EXP two-seater sportster for only a few years and then dropped it because it did not sell very well. The Ford F-Series pickup truck is the largest-selling vehicle in the nation, as it was last year and every year for the past decade. Its closest rival is the Chevrolet C/K full-size pickup. Both outsell any car by a wide margin.

So pickup trucks must be taken seriously, even the F-Series Flareside, which looks like it has fun on its mind more than work. And that is why I thought about that bright yellow Ford EXP. The EXP looks like a two-seat sportster in the Pontiac Fiero-Toyota MR2 mode, but is really more like an Escort in its approach to motoring — competent, dependable and underpowered for its sporty, if somewhat goofy, looks. The F-Series Flareside is a real sportster and does all the things the EXP looks like it should do.

The F-Series was restyled for 1992 to appeal more directly to the growing number of light-truck buyers who want vehicles that can work hard on the job, but also look good and are fun to drive, because most of the time it is not going to be working.

Marketing surveys show that buyers of pickup trucks and sports/utility vehicles tend to be of the sort who bought European sports cars in earlier days. The trucks have the same rugged appeal, but are not so delicate and they are apparently the vehicles Detroit does best. (Maybe because, until recently, the automakers have had less "help" from Washington in truck design.)

"The F-Series pickup's reputation for toughness and load hauling and towing capabilities are the traits that made them the best-selling vehicles — car or truck, domestic or foreign — in North America for the previous nine years," said Ross H. Roberts, Ford Division general manager.

"For 1992, we move these pickups up in class even more by adding contemporary styling and a car-like interior — direct responses to the growing number of personal-use light truck buyers who want vehicles that work hard, but look good and ride easy."

The front-end design has been made more aerodynamic for '92. The hood has a slight slope with a sweep around to the flush headlamps. The new bumper also follows this contour and it all flows nicely into a bold grille (sounds like a car ad, doesn't it?). Aero mirrors are standard (electrically operated are optional and designer wheels in argent or chrome are available.

The new-for-'92 item that Ford is most proud of is the return of the short-wheelbase (116.8 inches) F-150 Flareside pickup, which Ford describes as "the ultimate sporty look for a pickup truck for the '90s."

I have to agree with that. I don't know why, but the narrower pickup bed with the flaring fenders just looks good. But I don't think I would limit that to the '90s, because I am sure that style was around when I was a car-crazed high schooler in the late '40s and early '50s. There were devotees of pickup trucks then, but they were relatively small in number and pickups did not really compete with cars. They were separate markets. No more.

I have never been a truck fan and have always found their mystique a bit baffling. When I was young, pickup trucks were noisy, harsh of ride and lacking in the creature comforts long associated with the passenger car. But no more. The F-Series test vehicle had all the goodies one expects in an automobile — elaborate sound system, power windows, smooth, quiet, comfortable ride and plenty of pep.

Plus, you sit up high so you can see what's going on down the line of traffic, you have plenty of headroom and the bench seat is so wide you can't reach the door on the passenger side. But you don't have to, because you've got power windows and power door locks.

The test vehicle had a 185-horsepower 5.0-liter V-8 with automatic transmission, which provided enough punch to make you think you're driving a sports car. Standard is a 4.9-liter straight six, and larger 5.8-liter and 7.5-liter V-8s are optional, as is a 79.3-liter diesel.

With its metallic blue base-coat-clearcoat finish, the flared rear fenders and the blue and purple stripe, the Flareside looks like it was built for fun and it is — rugged like a truck, but not too much so.

December graduates face hard times

The slow economic recovery is being felt firsthand by the December graduating class at Wayne State University.

Jack Crusoe, director of placement services, says current graduates are having a difficult time finding the kind of employment they had hoped for after graduation.

The number of companies visiting campus to interview graduating students was down 34 percent from last fall, and the number of interviews with company recruiters declined 30 percent.

Engineering and liberal arts students are feeling the brunt of the economic decline with drops of 53 percent and 38 percent, respectively, in the number of company recruiting visits for those fields.

Many students, he said, apparently gave up the job search early, not bothering to use the resources of the placement office. On the other hand, he adds that those students who have sought help are spending much more time in the placement office researching companies, reviewing job listings and seeking advice concerning their resumes and job strategies.

As for the future, Crusoe predicts scarce employment opportunities for winter and spring graduates, with a significant improvement possible next fall. He adds that despite the slow economy, medicine, nursing and allied health graduates are having little difficulty finding jobs.

Jobs are expected to remain scarce for most other graduates, although Crusoe says jobs will still be there for students willing to "go the extra nine yards." Well-prepared, persistent graduates who research the marketplace, establish contacts and are willing to move will ultimately have success, he says.

Among recent Wayne State graduates who have found employment, engineering students had the highest annual average starting salary at $34,995. Averages in other disciplines were as follows: business, $25,167; health, $38,333; sciences, $29,715; social sciences, $24,898.

Brochures address older driver needs

One in every six Michigan drivers will be 65 or older by the year 2020, AAA Michigan reports.

In choosing a vehicle, older drivers should:

- Consider buying a full-size car for more protection in accidents and ease of entering and exiting.
- Check the height of the driver's seat, steering flexibility and distance to pedals and controls to make sure they are convenient and easy for the driver to operate.
- Aim for maximum visibility by purchasing an automobile with a right-side mirror, minimal non-tinted glass and effective windshield wipers.
- Consider an automobile with convenient features such as automatic transmission, power windows, door locks and easy-to-read gauges and dials.

These tips are included in a free AAA brochure titled, "Straight Talk for Older Drivers — Buying a Car," designed to help mature drivers choose the car best suited to their needs.

"Buying a Car" is the first in a series of instructional booklets on dealing with the needs of older drivers. The pamphlets can be obtained at any full-service AAA Michigan branch office statewide or by writing, AAA Michigan Community Safety Services, 1 Auto Club Dr., Dearborn, Mich. 48126.

Resident's book tells how drive to change city's name earned him derision

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

If you've ever wanted to get involved in local politics, or have a cause you want to promote, you just may want to read "The Eastpointe Story" first.

Subtitled, "A true account of vicious small town politics during a one-man campaign to change a city name," the 37-page paperback was written by George Lawroski, the man mainly responsible for changing East Detroit's name to Eastpointe.

"I wanted to write the book because I felt that not many people know what it took to change the name of the city," Lawroski said. "It's a damning story on local politics."

Lawroski has been working to change the name since 1983 and residents voted against it twice before approving, just barely, the name Eastpointe in November 1991. The name becomes effective July 1.

Lawroski, a resident of East Detroit since 1948, said the reason for proposing the change was simply a matter of image and economics and had nothing to do with race, as suggested by members of the media and Detroit Mayor Coleman A. Young.

"We all have to struggle for our survival and the image of Detroit is hurting our city," he said.

An avid traveler, Lawroski has had to explain to more people than he cares to remember that East Detroit is a separate entity, not a part of Detroit.

He said that businesses don't want to open in East Detroit because of Detroit's image. People, he said, never understood, no matter how much he explained, that the only thing East Detroit and Detroit shared is Eight Mile Road.

It's ironic that when East Detroit was incorporated in 1929, the name was chosen because of the association with the booming city to its south.

Lawroski put a lot of research into the name change. He read newspapers and watched television reports noting the number of times East Detroit was confused with Detroit. He studied home sales records and, he writes, he came to "the irreversible conclusion the city name must be changed at any personal cost or sacrifice."

Lawroski's first name changing attempt came in 1983. The proposed name, Erin Heights, was picked because Erin Township was the name of the original area encompassed by East Detroit.

Due to unclear petition language, the issue didn't appear on the ballot. In 1984 the name change failed nearly 2 to 1. In 1987, East Pointe failed, but by a smaller margin, and last year Eastpointe passed by a vote of 4,439 to 4,178.

But that's not Lawroski's story. It isn't a tale filled with deals made in smoke-filled back rooms; everything was right out in the open, he claims.

Chapter VI, "The Nightmare," chronicles nearly eight years of alleged verbal abuse Lawroski suffered at the hands of anyone who opposed the name change. Everyone from a former mayor to the head of the anti-name change group to a veterans' group were responsible, Lawroski alleges, for some form of intimidation.

He says he was threatened with arrest, spat at, warned he would be beaten up, lied about, lied to and slandered. He watched as the Save our City Name group was allowed to speak to local organizations, but he was not permitted to give his side of the story.

He said he received hundreds of telephone calls — mostly from unidentified people — telling him to "drop this name change business" or he'd be sorry.

"I never could understand why they were so opposed to it," Lawroski said. "I think it's because they don't want to upset the status quo. I also think it's because I'm just an upstart coming out of nowhere. If I were a member of some (civic) group, maybe I wouldn't have gotten all the abuse I did."

But all that is behind him now and he looks forward to July 1 when the name change takes effect. But would he do it all again?

"If I believe in something and I think it's right I'll do it again," he said. "I'm stubborn."

He had 1,000 copies of his book printed out of his own money and he said sales are brisk.

"I went out for coffee this morning and sold five and I have two people coming over later today," he said.

The book sells for $5.75, plus a dollar for shipping and handling. Tax is included. Write to Lawroski at 23208 Raven, Eastpointe, Mich. 48021.

After he breaks even, any extra money will be donated to the city to help defray the cost of new signs that bear the name "Eastpointe."

A true account of vicious small town politics during a one man campaign to change a city name

By George Lawroski

Resident sues Woods, sewer contractor

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

A Grosse Pointe Woods woman is suing the city and John Carlo Inc. over injuries she said she sustained when she fell into a hole in front of her home.

The alleged incident happened on Aug. 31, 1990, according to the complaint filed by the woman's attorney, Patricia Rossi Galvin of Grosse Pointe Shores. It said the woman fell into a hole on the grass boulevard directly in front of her home on Lochmoor.

She is charging the Woods and John Carlo Inc., a contractor the city hired to fix some sewer lines on Lochmoor, with negligence.

The complaint says John Carlo Inc. caused the large hole to form by improperly fixing the sewer line in front of the woman's home.

The complaint further alleges that the Woods did not properly contract for the adequate repair of the sewer line and grass boulevard.

The suit also says that John Carlo Inc. and the Woods failed to erect adequate warning signs or fencing around the hole, and that they failed to have the sewer lines and adjacent grass boulevard properly inspected, even though the woman had previously complained to the city that the grass berm was sinking.

The woman is asking for $10,000 from the city and John Carlo Inc. for compensation for her injuries, plus award costs and attorney fees.

She said her left leg and knee were injured in the fall, and that she sustained multiple contusions and abrasions on both legs. Her left leg was also permanently scarred below the knee, she said.

In addition, the complaint said she "has undergone considerable medical treatment, pain and suffering. The plaintiff further suffers and will continue to suffer from severe physical and mental pain and suffering, anguish, fright, shock, humiliation and embarrassment, loss of social and recreational opportunities and a loss of enjoyment of life, all past and future."

Thomas Whitcher, Woods public safety director, speculated that the hole may have been 18-24 inches wide and about 2 feet deep.

The city council has turned the matter over to the city's attorney and insurance company.

The case has been assigned to Wayne County Circuit Judge Michael L. Stacey.

John Carlo Inc.'s spokeswoman was unavailable for comment.

St. Patrick's Day stirs fond memories of a dedicated Corktown priest

Families in this mobile world move from one community to another, from state to state and country to country. You don't find many people who remain in the area where they grew up.

If you don't believe this, the next time you're in a group of people, ask how many are native Detroiters or Grosse Pointers. Don't be surprised if you fail to find many who belong to the club.

To those who have remained in the same area, adjusting to new environments does not appear inviting. But those who are used to moving around accept and live with the problems that come with a transient life.

They put down roots wherever they go. Friends are made, left behind and remembered with occasional greeting cards. Parents, sisters and brothers are visited on holidays, if the distance is not too far. The telephone becomes an important line of communication, linking families and special friends.

Time and technology move forward, not backward. It is not likely that those who rate opportunity, change and new experiences higher than stability and a sense of permanency will change their way of thinking.

Nor should they. But those who would not care to embrace such a life feel just as strongly about their preference. They value their sense of belonging, of being a "part of" that comes with remaining in the same community.

Their environs may change, but it is gradual and allows them time to adjust. It is very different from being uprooted and thrown into a new environment. The change can be accepted more readily if familiar landmarks remain in Detroit — Belle Isle, Tiger Stadium and Eastern Market have endured for decades. In Grosse Pointe, with the exception of some dismantled mansions, the neighborhoods have remained unchanged.

In Detroit, there have been changes in neighborhoods which were brought about by urban renewal, social flux and economic influences. They have been held together by church-sponsored schools, ethnic groups, historic preservation, designation and most impor-

Howell appointed to commission

Esther Howell of Grosse Pointe has been appointed to the Michigan Commission on Services to the Aging by Gov. John Engler.

The commission advises the Office of Services to the Aging, the governor and the Legislature on matters relating to policies and programs for older and aging persons in Michigan; promotes senior citizen interests within state government and communities; and administers the federal Older Americans Act programs and state-funded programs.

Members are appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate.

Howell was appointed to represent independents. She recently retired as director of the gerontology program at Wayne County Community College. She serves on the board of directors of the Detroit Area Agency on Aging and the Walter P. Reuther Senior Centers Inc.

Howell also serves on the advisory board of Renaissance Health Care, Inc. and Detroit Meals on Wheels. She is a member of the American Society on Aging, the Association for Gerontology in Higher Education, the Michigan Society of Gerontology and the International Society on Pre-Retirement Planning. She was a delegate to the White House Conference on Aging in 1981.

Howell replaces Lucille McCollough for a term ending in July 1994.

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

tantly, by a spirit that will not die.

The fact is brought home by the annual St. Patrick's Day Mass at Most Holy Trinity Church, which will be held at noon, Tuesday, March 17. The 156-year-old church is located at Sixth and Porter.

It was built at a time when the Irish were migrating to the United States from their homeland during the potato famine. Those who survived the trip landed in Boston filled with hope that at least they had escaped poverty and near starvation.

It didn't happen. They were met with hostility and prejudice. "Help Wanted" signs were prefaced with "No Irish need apply."

The story is told that one Irishman with a family to feed and shelter who desperately needed work added the following message: "What you have written, you have written well. These self-same words are also written on the gates of hell."

There were others like him who settled in Detroit in the area which became known as "Corktown" because most of the newcomers were from County Cork. Their refuge and hope was the church. Thus, from the beginning Trinity Church became known for its ministry to the poor.

It is the same today, a majestic presence that ministers both spiritually and financially to those in need. This church in the midst of change has maintained the same spirit on which it was founded.

In many ways, so also has the neighborhood that it serves. I know it well. My grandfather built his home just a block from the church. Ten children were born there. My mother was the youngest and one of those who survived. After my father's death, my mother and I moved to the old house to take care of "grandpa."

At that time most of the Irish had moved out and immigrants from Malta had replaced them.

They merged well into the community, working, saving and striving like the Irish who preceded them. They were followed by Mexicans who also needed help to get started in a new culture. They found that help at Holy Trinity Church, whose pastor was the renowned Monsignor Clement Kern. He dedicated himself to carrying on that work for which the church was so well known, helping those in need. He lived with the poor.

But much of the support came from those in better circumstances who considered it a privilege to help this dedicated priest with his work. And so the same spirit of service that began when the church was founded prevails despite physical and sociological changes in the area.

Surprisingly, while some of the area has been taken over for urban renewal, most of the houses are still standing. Many of them have been restored. The old school is gone but a new one has taken its place. Its students come from many ethnic backgrounds, but on St. Patrick's Day they sing the same songs for the visitors that have been sung on March 17 for over a century.

There is a sense of "going home" that comes with returning each year to an area where one once lived, a feeling of belonging that cannot be experienced by those who shut the door on the past and move on to new lives and new experiences.

You can go home again if you keep in touch with what was once home, valuing it for what it was, and for what it still remains.

BirthCare™ at Bon Secours.

It's a child's game, but it's also good advice.

Bon Secours was the first hospital in the Detroit area to offer single-room maternity care. This alternative to traditional childbirth allows the mother-to-be to stay in the same warm, comfortable room throughout her delivery. We call it BirthCare, and when we first introduced it, other hospitals were still wheeling their laboring mothers from one room to another.

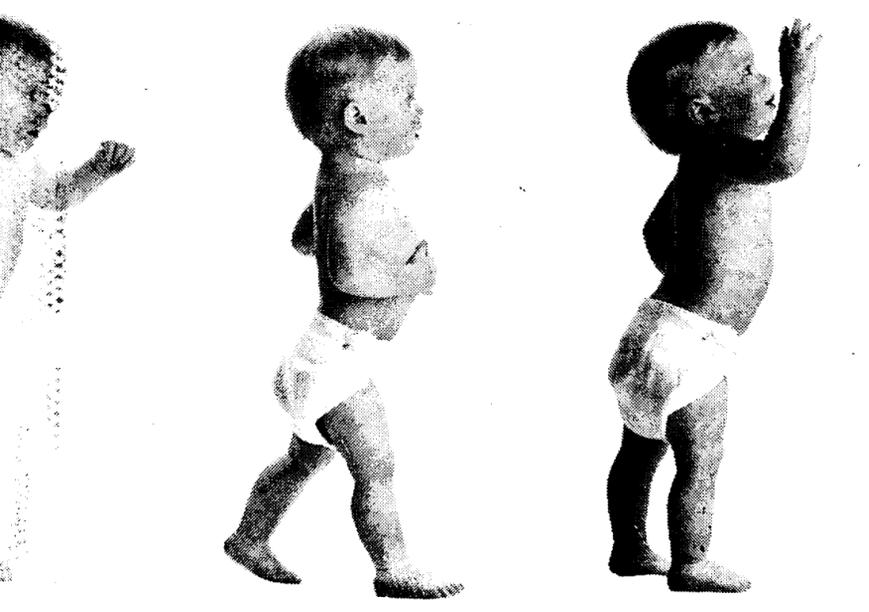

We thought it was a good idea to design a delivery around the mother, not a delivery around the hospital. That's why BirthCare has become so popular. And that's why a lot of women have chosen Bon Secours as their hospital. Maybe you should, too.

For more information about BirthCare, a tour of the unit, or referrals to qualified obstetricians who can answer questions about your pregnancy, call 779-7911.

'Tis the day o' the Irish

Shamrocks, "the wearin' o' the green," parades — these are only a few of the customs Americans associate with March 17, St. Patrick's Day.

But how many of us really know who St. Patrick was or what the day celebrates?

In Ireland, it is a national holiday; in the United States, it is a salute to a heritage that has contributed greatly to the melting pot that is our country.

St. Patrick was a leader in establishing Christianity in Ireland. Historians are uncertain about the exact dates of his birth and death, but it has been estimated that he was born in Britain around 389 AD and died in the latter half of the fifth century.

At 16, Patrick was sold into slavery in Ireland, where he labored six years as a shepherd. After a voice in a dream told him, "Behold, your ship is ready," he escaped and fled back to Britain.

Upon reuniting with his family, Patrick had another dream in which a man delivered a letter to him titled, "The Voice of the Irish." He interpreted this letter to be his call to convert the Irish to Christianity.

To prepare himself for the task he began his studies and later was ordained to the diaconate. Upon the death of the first bishop of Ireland, Patrick was ordained a bishop and set out for the land of his former captivity.

Once back in Ireland, Patrick led the life of an itinerant missionary, making converts throughout the land, developing a native clergy, encouraging the growth of monasteries and establishing dioceses.

The legend of St. Patrick has grown throughout the centuries. For instance, it is believed that he explained the concept of the Holy Trinity — three Persons in one God — using the Shamrock, a three-leaf plant with one stalk. Today, Irishmen wear shamrocks, their country's national flower, to remember St. Patrick on March 17.

In the United States, St. Patrick's Day was first celebrated before the American Revolution, with the first parade held in New York City in 1762. Following the huge wave of immigrants who left Ireland because of the potato famine in the 1840s, celebrations in honor of St. Patrick became even more widespread.

By far the biggest and most extraordinary celebration in the United States today is the St. Patrick's Day parade still held each year in New York City. More than a million people line Fifth Avenue — where a green line is painted down the center of the street — to watch the two-mile-long parade.

Chicago and Boston also host impressive parades, as does Washington, D.C. In San Antonio, Texas, citizens dye the river green, and Savannah, Ga., holds one of the largest St. Patrick's Day parties in the South.

Today, St. Patrick's Day is both a day for people of Irish descent to honor their origins and a time for the United States to acknowledge an important part of its heritage. And, according to historians, it is largely due to America's enthusiasm over St. Patrick's Day that it now is celebrated the world over.

Mark your Woods calendars

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

Tired of the same old holidays, like birthdays, Easter, Memorial Day and Hanukkah? Wish there was something else out there to fill up your calendar?

Then you may wish to jot down the following honorary holidays and observances, which the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council recently adopted either by proclamation or resolution:

This month (March) is Junior Achievement (JA) Month. In JA, volunteers train teen-agers how to start and operate their own businesses. More than 1,000 volunteers from Michigan-area businesses and industries have guided more than 25,000 students and young adults in JA-sponsored programs this year.

April 19-25 is Arbor Week — seven days for planting trees and remembering J. Sterling Morton, who in 1872 proposed the first Arbor Day to the Nebraska Board of Agriculture.

April 26-May 3 has been designated "Days of Remembrance of the Victims of the Holocaust." Nationally, Congress has declared April 30 as a day to remember the estimated six million Jews and the millions of others who were killed by the Nazis from 1933 to 1945.

June 12 and 13 are "Moslem Shrine Temple Hospital Fund Drive Days." The Shriners operate 22 hospitals for the care and treatment of crippled and burned children. The children receive both inpatient and outpatient care free of charge from infancy to their 18th birthday. To pay for the hospital care, the Detroit Moslem Shrine

Temple and the 190 other temples throughout the world conduct an annual fund drive.

Oct. 1 is "Book It!" Day. Thousands of students in and around the Woods will be participating in the Book It! National Reading Incentive Program from October through February. Sponsored by Pizza Hut Inc., the program has, for the past seven years, helped teachers encourage children to read. Students set goals as to how many books they will read in a given period, and winning classrooms get a pizza party.

One problem — none of these events involve any time off.

Saratoga offers Health-O-Rama

The public can take advantage of Project Health-O-Rama at Saratoga Community Hospital on Saturday, April 4, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Health screening tests and services are available to anyone 18 and older. Free health screenings offered include blood pressure, height and weight, vision, glaucoma, dental/oral cancer, hearing, podiatry, skin cancer, and counseling and referral.

Other screenings are available for nominal fees: take-home colorectal cancer screening kit $4, Pap smear $10, and body composition analysis $3.

Body composition analysis determines lean body mass, body fat, normal weight range, ideal caloric intake; and exercise recommendations are made.

A blood panel chemistry test is offered for $11. This profile of 21 tests includes analyses for kidney function, liver function, cholesterol level, diabetes, bone disease, gout and more.

Anyone wishing to have blood work done should not eat for four hours before the test but should continue taking all prescribed medications.

Saratoga's Health-O-Rama.

A new test is available this year for men. It is a prostate specific antigen (PSA) test for $25. This blood test can indicate the need for further investigation by a urologist and under certain conditions may be suggestive of the possibility of prostate cancer. The PSA test may be taken separately or in addition to the $11 blood panel of 21 tests.

Saratoga Community Hospital is located at 15000 Gratiot, just south of Eight Mile Road. Free parking is available. For more information, call 245-1589.

deal. The chef got a relatively high mark.

Peters, of Grosse Pointe Farms, is the executive chef at the Westin Hotel in the Renaissance Center. He is in charge of all kitchens in the hotel. That means three restaurants, the banquet hall kitchens and the room-service kitchen. He has to create the menus, order the food, staff the kitchens properly and train his chefs and cooks.

He's also in charge of the young chefs who are completing the Westin Corp.'s chef's apprentice program. That's why he was critiquing the lunch.

It's part of a program called the Mystery Box Lunch. Each chef must successfully complete one of these box lunches to graduate from the apprentice-ship program. Peters also uses them as a training tool.

It's an exercise that many people perform at home on a weekly basis. Given a group of ingredients, the task is to create a menu that will serve six people. The apprentice was given shrimp, scallops, a tenderloin, mixed greens, pea pods, red skin potatoes and some bananas and other fruits.

At each chef's disposal is a community spice rack which holds kitchen staples like butter, flour, eggs, tomatoes, onions and oils and vinegars and a wine box which contains burgundy, chablis, kirsch, brandy, and Pernod.

The ingredient box is opened and the apprentice must create a menu in half an hour, and have the first course on the table 3 1/2 hours later. Cookbooks are allowed, but the menu cannot change once it is decided upon.

The meals are graded on appearance, originality, use of the ingredients, timing, and above all, taste.

"The idea behind this is that all kitchens go through this," said Peters, a veteran of more hotel and restaurant kitchens than he can count. "You'll get a call at 10 o'clock and they'll say they need a lunch for 200 people at noon, what do you got?"

It's the unpredictability that makes kitchen life exciting, he said, and it was the only place Peters wanted to be.

His father was a chef trained in Switzerland who emigrated to Canada and then to the United States where he was the executive chef at the prestigious Harrah's Club.

When he was a child, Peters helped his father install a walk-in refrigerator over the garage and launch a business featuring chef's convenience items like frozen cheese blintzes and apple crepes. That garage kitchen became Time Saver Frozen Foods and Quality Catering and also got the elder Peters fired.

"Harrah's Club had a strict 'no moonlighting' policy and my dad was asked to quit or to give up the company, but by then he had built up enough of a clientele that he could quit," Peters said.

He learned how to cook from his father.

"From the time I was about 10 until I was 18 I learned everything from my dad," he said.

He was paid a penny apiece to make crepes for Time Saver Frozen Foods.

"On the weekend I'd make 3,000 or 4,000 crepes and have $30 or $40 spending money," he said.

He put himself through college by cooking and earned a degree in business from the University of Washington in Seattle. But the lure of the kitchen called him back and he went to work in the Westin chef apprentice program in 1972.

He's worked at many major Westin hotels on the West Coast from Seattle to Reno to Hawaii, and he opened the Walt Disney World Swan Hotel, at which he experienced one of the more nerve-wracking moments of his career.

He had to serve food to the 3,000 celebrities and corporate bigwigs who were invited to the hotel's debut. But more than 4,500 people showed up and within an hour the waiters said they began running out of food.

Peters opened the walk-in refrigerator and found meat for the next day's banquet. His staff cooked it up and served it. No one went hungry. As for the next day's banquet? He'd worry about that tomorrow.

But he considers the position at the Westin his biggest challenge.

"I think that's because it's a 1,400 room hotel, there's three restaurants, there's the banquet facilities," he said. "But aside from that, what makes it so challenging is that when you're so busy, it's unbelievably busy and when you're slow, it's incredibly slow."

He's slowly rewriting the Westin's menus, assuring that the food will have his signature on it.

Although he is trained in Italian, French and German cuisines, he's well-versed in Californian and Hawaiian cuisines as well, and can put together dishes in the newest fad, Floribbean, a cross between the fresh seafood available in Florida and the fruits and tastes of the Caribbean.

"But my specialty isn't one dish," he said. "I think my specialty is my organizational skills and my ability to get people to work together to put out a good product."

Scheduling the 50 cooks and 10 sous-chefs, doing the paper work, ordering the food and overseeing the entire process translates into an 80-hour-a-week job. He's generally up at 6 a.m. and doesn't get home until 7 p.m. He cooks only when the kitchen gets extremely busy and then he steps in where needed, chopping carrots or making up a sauce.

And what does he eat when he gets home?

"I'll throw a steak on the grill," he said. "My tastes are simple. I want a steak, a nicely baked potato and a beer. That's all."

His wife, Karen, who also works at the Westin, does a lot of the cooking — she's studying to be a chef. And their 4-year-old son Stevan wants to follow in his father's footsteps, too.

"If I have anything to do with it I'm going to steer him toward anything but," he said, laughing. "No, not really. I love what I do. I wouldn't do it if I didn't."

gether," Corbett said.

The script was written by Sarah Arbula, Peter Gillespie and John Nickles. Cameras were manned by Gillespie, Sarah McCandless, Timothy McGahey and Nickles.

Gillespie is now a junior at South, while McCandless is a senior and McGahey a junior. Arbula and Nickles have graduated.

The students are expected to get together again, though, when their documentary is premiered in Cleminson Hall. A year ago Yaeger himself attended a special reception at Cleminson, where he signed the restored murals he originally painted more than 50 years ago.

That work was commissioned by the Works Progress Administration, as are the murals at the Brodhead Armory.

The students have earned numerous awards for the work, including a third place at the International Student Media Competition where the Yaeger documentary was among 47 finalists from all over the United States. The award was one of many for the students, and a portent of many more to come, Corbett believes.

She has been teaching the TV production classes since 1988. She would not say if the Yaeger documentary was the best her students had ever done, but she is very impressed.

"It's very good," she said. "I'm really pleased with their work."

"Jennifer Moore was very gracious. She's been very supportive of everything we've done here."

Do you know how clean your water is — at 5 a.m.?

By Jerome Allotta
Special Writer

July 1, 5 a.m., there's a knock at the door: "Good morning, ma'am. I'm with the EPA's clean water police. May I have a glass of water, please?"

People throughout the nation will soon be getting such wake-up calls from the Environmental Protection Agency when strict federal regulations on drinking water go into effect July 1.

Furthermore, the new law

may force some homeowners to replace all their indoor plumbing.

The Clean Drinking Water Act, a nationwide program administered by the EPA, will require local officials to conduct random, in-home water tests.

Before a sample is taken, however, a six-hour period must have elapsed without any water use. For most households this period would be overnight.

"In order for this to take place, most likely what's going to happen is that whoever's doing the testing is going to be banging at someone's door at five o'clock in the morning in order to get a sample," said Harper Woods city councilman David Pochmara, who recently attended a water standards seminar in Lansing under the auspices of the Michigan Municipal League.

Pochmara said that water quality must meet EPA standards for consumption.

"If you flunk the test at your house, the law says that you're going to have to replace your plumbing," he said.

Making a six-hour, no-use period mandatory before testing can be done is a bureaucratic impediment, Pochmara said. When water sits in lead pipes for any extended period, he said, more lead is leached into the water. He said the same is true for copper pipes, often joined by solder which contains some lead.

In other words, when household water is first turned on in the morning, lead concentration is at its highest level, Pochmara said, adding that lead has been found in drinking water for centuries, since the Romans built their aqueducts.

"The testing done by independent people has indicated that 95 percent of the pollutants involved in this whole process would come out of the tap in the first glass of drinking water," Pochmara said.

"So if you run the tap for a couple of seconds or you take that first glass of water and dump it down the drain, then you're going to eliminate the problem."

EPA regulations, however, do not take this into consideration, he said.

"It's nonsense," Pochmara said. "It's not necessary for all this legislation and all this expense to the homeowner and to the city to take place."

All city, county, and municipal water supplies will be tested to make sure their quality falls within EPA guidelines, and the law states that water must come from the tap at passable drinking levels, Pochmara said. Therefore, individuals will be held accountable if lead content is deemed too high, he said.

But the Clean Drinking Water Act is just the first drop in the congressional bucket, he said.

Another law, the Henry Waxman bill, sponsored by the U.S. congressman from California, is currently in a House subcommittee. It would make the drinking water law that will go into effect in July even stricter.

"It would be so strict that practically no one in the country would qualify for clean drinking water," Pochmara said.

"The Waxman bill says that if you flunk the test at your house that means the whole neighborhood's (water is) bad, and everybody in the neighborhood's going to have to replace their plumbing."

"You can't control what your neighbor does and you shouldn't be penalized if he has bad plumbing."

The Michigan Municipal League urges citizens to contact their senators and representatives in Washington to oppose the Waxman legislation.

Learning disabilities discussed

The Learning Disabilities Association of Grosse Pointe will present a program Tuesday, March 17, by Leslie Eller on "The LD Adolescent — Stopping Problems Before They Begin." The program will start at 7:30 p.m. in the Brownell school library.

Eller is a teacher consultant for the Dearborn Public Schools, with extensive background in learning disabilities and juvenile delinquency. She has written several articles for professional publications on the social/emotional effects of learning disabilities, and has given parent workshops across the state.

In October, she will be one of the presenters at the state LDA Conference in Lansing, speaking on LD and juvenile delinquency.

Before moving to Michigan, Eller worked in a Louisiana residential program for juvenile offenders.

The adolescent years can be particularly turbulent for learning disabled youngsters. They are years in which social pressures are on the increase for all students.

But for students who have struggled with a learning deficit or attention deficit, those pressures are compounded by the increased difficulty of academically subjects, lowered self-esteem resulting from years of school-related difficulties, and the social and emotional effects of their disability itself.

Eller will address those effects and discuss how they may interfere with a child's functioning socially and academically. She will suggest ways parents and schools might be able to prevent problems in adolescence, as well as things they can do for children already having difficulties. Parents are encouraged to ask questions or share ideas with others.

LDA meetings are open to the public. Refreshments will be served.

Free puppy behavior seminar

The Michigan Humane Society is offering a free puppy behavioral seminar at its Detroit location, Thursday, April 2, 7 p.m.

This popular two-hour session is provided as a community service by The Animal Behavior Institute of Royal Oak.

The seminar will highlight house-training, dominance, communication, normal and abnormal behavior, the benefits of "crating," and more. There will be an opportunity to explore common puppyhood problems of over-playfulness, property destruction, separation anxiety, digging and submissive wetting.

This is a "people" seminar;

leave your pet(s) at home. Attendees are also encouraged to bring a pad of paper and pencil for personal notes.

The Michigan Humane Society is located at 7401 Chrysler Drive, just north of East Grand Boulevard, in Detroit. The seminar begins promptly at 7 p.m., and is scheduled to conclude at 9 p.m. There is no need to pre-register to attend. Seating will be available on a first-come, first-served basis.

The Animal Behavior Institute is a research and teaching organization concerned with psychological and environmental components of behavior.

THE LAW VIEWS DRIVING AS A PRIVILEGE. BMW PREFERS TO VIEW IT AS A SKILL.

In Germany, before you could get behind the wheel of a car like

you'd first

have to do

homework.

Between

twenty to thirty intensive driving lessons, in fact. At a total cost of well over 1,000 dollars.

All just to obtain a driver's license.

Needless to say, in a country where there are highways that have no speed limits, the skill of driving is taken far more seriously.

Perhaps that's why at BMW, we design our automobiles not simply to make the most horsepower or the most luxury, but rather, to make the most of the driver's skill.

Take the rear suspension system of the 325i sedan, for example.

A unique, patented design, this multi-link system increases straight-line and lane-change stability and reduces both squat and dive, while still maintaining the perfect ride-quality balance. A ride that's not so harsh as

to be uncomfortable, but not so soft as to insulate the driver from the realities of the road.

A feature that, when combined with engine-speed-sensitive power steering, a high-performance/low-maintenance engine, and an interior designed around the driver's needs, adds up to a very different kind of automobile.

The kind of automobile that acts not as a separate entity, but as a natural extension of the driver's will.

And like all BMW's, the 325i is backed by our 4-year/50,000-mile bumper-to-bumper warranty,* and a nationwide Roadside Assistance plan you can call on at any time should the need arise."

So if you agree that driving is not simply a necessity, but rather a skill that should be taken seriously, perhaps you should test drive the car that takes the driver seriously.

Brownell 6th-graders learn levitation

Sixth grade students at Brownell Middle School are learning about magnetically levitated vehicles from the ones that the eighth graders made in advanced woodworking.

The track has two optical sensors (one to start timing and one to stop the timer) hooked to a computer used to time the vehicle to the nearest one-thousandth of a second.

A design/engineering project, it required students to make thumbnail sketches, a rough sketch, engineering drawings, a prototype and a final product.

The project is difficult because the track does not allow for wide variances of some dimensions. The vehicles float on a magnetic field and must be perfectly balanced.

A magler vehicle was required of each student in the advanced woodworking class. An optical project is to construct a self-propelled vehicle that travels uphill. The project requires critical thinking and constant re-evaluation of design.

After the students finish their vehicle, they are required to complete a worksheet. The worksheet is used to record velocities timed by the computer. The students then use that information to calculate their vehicle's acceleration.

Chris Nelson produced the fastest car at 3.96 mph or 7 feet in 1.2 seconds.

The cars are gravity-powered. Students were allowed to work with wood or plastic. Those who chose plastic learned about bonding polymers. Vehicles were graded according to design, finish and performance.

Reading champs

Maire students Jamie Kennedy and Drew Franklin begin the March of Dimes Reading Champion Program by placing a sneaker on the wall, indicated a book they have just read. Each sneaker enables the students to receive a chance for one of six Waldo books donated by the PTO. Hundreds of sneakers will march around the halls of Maire upstairs and down as students strive to defend their title of champs for the third year in Wayne County for the most books read and money sent to the March of Dimes.

St. Clare hosts speech contest

The regional competition for the fourth annual McDonald's "When I Grow Up" Speech contest for students in the fourth and fifth grades was held at St. Clare of Montefalco Catholic School.

The contest had a decidedly northern flavor as the winners in both grades came from the northern Macomb County/St. Clair County schools.

Representing the fourth grade in the semifinals will be Dan Fox of Holy Cross Elementary School in Marine City. Second place went to Stacie Hadgikosti of Our Lady Star of the Sea in Grosse Pointe Woods. Benjamin Kiehl of Immaculate Conception in An-chorville placed third.

The semifinalist in the fifth grade was Katie McCracken of Immaculate Conception. Runner-up was John Berschback of St. Clare and third place went to Anike Amajoe of St. Ambrose Academy in Detroit.

Both Dan and Kate will return to St. Clare on March 18 for the semifinals of the contest for the state.

Pawluk honored by board

Elementary school teacher Eleanor Pawluk was honored in a retirement tribute by the Grosse Pointe board of education Monday for 39 years of service as a teacher of first and second grades at Trombly School.

Pawluk was joined by former students and friends as her retirement tribute was read by school board President Carol Marr.

The Grosse Pointe Handwriting Guide was written by Pawluk, who plans to stay equally busy in her "retirement" by working with community and service organizations, concentrating on hospitalized children and making them the beneficiaries of her large children's book collection.

We've Concluded that Words Alone Can't Describe The Grosse Pointe Academy.

Certain things are described more easily by pictures. Especially when it's a beautiful, historical landmark along Lake St. Clair.

Every classroom, from pre-Kindergarten through Grade 8, has a low pupil-to-teacher ratio. A Montessori program created especially for children aged 2½ - 5 capitalizes on each student's most important learning years.

Our teachers aren't satisfied to simply instruct a class - instead, we strive for each individual child's maximum academic and personal growth. As a result, our students develop a love of learning.

Although this child's artwork captures the Academy's spirit well, one thing works even better than pictures for fully appreciating a school like this one - a visit to The Grosse Pointe Academy. Call Molly McDermott at (313) 886-1221 today for more information or a personal tour.

The Silver Streak, a show choir consisting of students at St. Clare of Montefalco School, is bringing the house down with its snappy song and dance routines.

They're streaking their way to fame

An unusual group for middle school students — a show choir — has been formed at St. Clare of Montefalco Catholic School. The Silver Streak is currently made up of nine girls and four boys in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades.

They have performed in shows twice this school year, each time gaining more confidence and skill, while literally bringing down the house.

The idea for the group grew out of a visit from Sterling Silver, a choral program at Sterling Heights High School, with a reputation as an outstanding show choir. Sterling Silver has performed in California, Disney World, New York and Washington, D.C., and is under the leadership of Jane Christy.

Dorothy Ciesluk, St. Clare music teacher, and Jonah Burakowski, a former Sterling Silver member and a college freshman, have worked together to mold the youngsters with little or no musical and dance experience into a new concept for middle school students.

Albert Ellis

The following story was written by Albert Ellis, a sixth-grader at Parcels Middle School. He is the son of Albert and Cindy Ellis of the Woods.

Jumping for Joy

I had just awakened and looked out of my bedroom window as I cleared away the frost. I saw the most wonderful thing — snow! It was about 12 to 14 inches in the lowest spot and about 3 feet in the highest. When I saw the mounds of snow, all I could do was to start jumping for joy.

Ellis

As I was jumping for joy, my younger brother, Andrew, woke up, so I told him about the snow. He looked out the window. Then we both ran to the living room to find our mom sitting on the couch, wondering if our dad made it to work on time. We switched on the television set and radio, then waited for weather bulletins.

Suddenly, the announcement we had been waiting for was finally on the air. My brother and I heard these words: "There will be no school today throughout Wayne County." The news really made our day.

Andrew and I decided to go outside. We put on our snow-pants, heavy jackets, hats, high top boots and gloves. First we tried to get out of the front door, but it wouldn't budge because the snowdrift was too high. So we sprinted to the back door and to our surprise it opened. As we took our first steps in the snow, it was overpowering. I mean the snow was so cool, all we could do was to start making snowballs and piling them up because we were going to have one of the biggest, best snowball fights on the whole street.

We had made boundary lines on each side of the street, then made high snow walls. This was so awesome. It was my brother, Andrew, my friend, Shawn, and me against everyone else on the block and there were a lot of kids on the block joining in. The war lasted about three hours or until kids were frozen like popsicles. We knew our side was going to win and it was a good snowball war.

Man, did this beat going to school. Thank you, Mother Nature!

Katie Feiss

The following story was written by Katie Feiss, a second-grade student at Maire Elementary School. Her parents are Lori and Geoff Feiss of the City.

In My Dream

In my dreams! I dream of the nicest things — unicorns, magic and other things. I have a dreamland where everything is peaceful. I get my favorite dish whenever I may like it. If this sounds like this is not true, it really is. In this beautiful dreamland when I'm fast asleep, I own 1,000 horses that are grazing by a creek. In this dreamland, there is a snow white castle which someday I would like for my own. In this snow white castle, I have my chambers full of pretty dresses and high heels in my closet. A cat sits on the window sill. I like to watch for all of the horses. When I wake up it all vanishes. I cannot wait to go back to bed so I can see it once again in my dreams.

Now which plants are poisonous

Household plants are among the most frequent objects ingested by children.

During National Poison Prevention Week, March 15-21, Cottage Hospital will help you determine what plants in your home and back yard are considered toxic or non-toxic by making available the leaflet, "What About Plants?"

Parents and homeowners are encouraged to know the names of all the plants in their homes and yards. If you do not know the name of a plant, have it identified at the nearest landscape or garden center. Plants cannot be accurately identified from a telephone description.

Many plants are toxic when they are ingested in large amounts. Since toxic plants contain a wide variety of poisons, symptoms may vary from a mild stomachache, skin rash, or swelling of the mouth and throat, to involvement with the heart, kidneys or other organs. A young child will probably experience mild gastrointestinal upset following any plant ingestion.

Remember these "do's" and "don'ts" about plants:

1. Never eat any part of an unidentified plant or mushroom. Teach your children never to put leaves, stems, bark, seeds or berries from any plant into their mouths.

2. Keep poisonous house plants out of reach of young children. Store bulbs and seeds out of sight and out of reach.

3. Identify the plants in your home or yard and determine their toxicity.

4. Do not assume a plant is not poisonous because birds or other wildlife eat it.

5. Do not rely on cooking to destroy toxic chemicals in plants. Never use anything prepared from nature as a medicine or "tea."

6. Remember that any plant may cause unexpected reactions in certain individuals. Always check with the Poison Control Center or your physician if a plant has been ingested.

The metro Detroit area's Poison Control Center telephone number is 745-5711.

Free copies of the "Poison Lookout Checklist" and "What About Plants?" are available in the Cottage Hospital emergency department, 159 Kercheval in Grosse Pointe Farms, and at Grosse Pointe public libraries.

Poisons are all around us

A caretaker may be distracted for only a moment. An elderly person takes his heart medication in a dark room, not wearing his glasses.

A child reaches inside a purse and swallows two little red pills he finds. A curious toddler drinks from a soda bottle on the kitchen counter only to discover it is a household cleaner.

These are just a few of the accidental poisonings that can be prevented.

The Regional Poison Control Center at Children's Hospital of Michigan received more than 60,000 calls for help in 1991.

"Everyone must take a responsible role to ensure a safe environment for our children, the elderly, co-workers, other family members, friends and neighbors," said Dr. Regine Aronow, director of the Regional Poison Control Center.

The Poison Control Center offers these tips:

- Keep all products in child-resistant packaging and locked up.

- Do not take medicine in front of children.

- Do not call medicine candy.
- Clean out old medications regularly and flush them down the drain.

- Leave the original labels on all products and read the label before using.

- Avoid bringing unnecessary toxic substances into your home.

- Store cleaning supplies out of sight and reach of children.

- Do not store medicines, cleaning agents or pesticides near food.

Guide gives tour of state's history

A new guidebook, designed to provide Michigan travelers and history enthusiasts with unique information about the state's past as recorded on Michigan historical markers, is available for sale.

Published by the Department of State's bureau of history, "Traveling Through Time: A Guide to Michigan's Historical Markers," spotlights the more than 1,100 official green-and-gold historical markers located throughout the Great Lake State.

According to Secretary of State Richard H. Austin, Michigan's official historian, the markers honor and celebrate the people, places and events that have shaped the history of the state. The subject matter ranges from Harriet Quimby, the nation's first licensed woman pilot, to the Marquette County Courthouse, the setting for the 1959 film "Anatomy of a Murder," to the 1937 General Motors sit-down strike in Flint.

In the guide, the location and full text of each Michigan historical marker are arranged by county. The book also features more than 100 historic and contemporary illustrations of marker subjects.

The first Michigan historical marker was dedicated in 1955 during the centennial of Michigan State University, the nation's first land grant educational institution. Over the past 36 years, historical markers have been placed in 78 of Michigan's 83 counties. Five are located outside the state; one in France.

To buy the 336-page guide using Visa or Mastercard, telephone 1-800-366-3703, or write to: Traveling Through Time, Michigan History Magazine, 717 West Allegan Street, Lansing, Mich. 48918-1805. Enclose a check or money order payable to "State of Michigan" for $14.95 per book; include $3.10 for postage and Michigan sales tax. Allow two to three weeks for delivery.

Serving you Victorian style is their cup of tea

By Pat Paholsky
Editor

Mary Klobuchar and Pam Stanley want to serve you tea — graciously and with loving care.

They'll come to your home in Victorian-style dress, laden with teapots and teacups, doilies and delectables. They'll set out fresh flowers, put a tape of appropriate background music in the cassette player and serve you and your guests a bit of nostalgia along with tea.

If you like the concept, but tea isn't your bag, they'll serve coffee or cocoa or lemonade. The women, partners in Victorian Tea Service, are flexible.

They'll arrange for a formal high tea or a casual afternoon on the sun porch. They'll go to an office or a nursing home or an idyllic tree-shaded spot near the water.

What the world needs now, they believe, is a respite from the frantic pace of high-tech living, a return to the gentle custom of pausing midday for tea and conversation.

The idea came about last year after an afternoon of brainstorming possibilities for a business. The two women have a lot in common: They're both nurses with a particular affinity for older people, they're outgoing and gregarious and they have a sense of the theatrical.

They combined Stanley's dream of opening a tea house with Klobuchar's idea of bringing tea to the people.

They researched the Victorian era, read books and hunted auctions, estate sales and flea markets. They have about 65 cups and saucers and an assortment of teapots, from silver to one that sings "Tea for Two."

The cups may be fine china, but it all goes in the dishwasher, Klobuchar said. "As nurses, we want everything to be sanitary," she said.

Through their research, they have discovered recipes for tiny button cookies and desserts like warmed peaches with chutney in the center. They'll also serve soup and sandwiches.

Pam Stanley and Mary Klobuchar show their form in pouring.

The base fee for tea for two, which includes a selection of teas, coffee, cocoa or consommé, muffins and tea breads, served in costume at the client's house, is $45. There is a $3 charge for each additional person.

The pair will also make up and hand-deliver a gift basket filled with all of the items necessary for a tea party.

Their suggestions for events that can be celebrated Victorian-style include birthdays, anniversaries, showers, graduations, housewarmings, baby's homecoming, a grand opening or a promotion.

Traditional Victorian celebrations include a May Day breakfast, Arbor Day garden party luncheon, tally ho or hunt breakfast, Guy Fawkes Day luncheon, lawn games luncheon, Shunpikers picnic, a skating party and a little girls' tea party.

"The idea is for them (little girls) to put on their party dresses and bring their favorite teddy bear or doll," Stanley

Who says we're ordinary?

American Demographics magazine's January 1992 issue has rated Detroit as "the nation's most ordinary metro." Us... ordinary?

Detroit may be a true American melting pot, however, its flavor is anything but common. Our cultural events, sports teams, and lifestyle opportunities are second to none. With the dash of our museum's exhibits, and the spice of our many ethnic festivals, Detroit is a unique blend of outstanding achievement.

At The Whittier, our residents share many similar interests while constantly challenging themselves to discover something new. Close to the ever-developing downtown area and nearby to the classic tradition of the Grosse Pointes, The Whittier offers something for everyone. Our apartments are distinctive and our riverfront views are spectacular... you won't find anything ordinary at The Whittier.

Some taxing tales to keep the IRS away

provided by the Michigan Association of CPAs that demonstrate how taxpayers fared when dealing with the IRS and Tax Court on various matters.
Pay close attention to the outcomes. They may prevent you from being an April Fool during this tax season.

No tax credit for playing games

A manufacturer of children's games tried to claim a research credit for the development of a new adventure game. The game involved role-playing, where the players imagine that they are characters involved in adventures that take place in various historical settings.

To ensure the success of the game, the manufacturer contended that it was necessary to spend substantial time researching technical and historical facts and to devote staff time to play testing.

For these reasons, on three years' tax returns, the manufacturer claimed research credits of more than $450,000 based on its employees' research and game-testing activities.

The Tax Court didn't agree with the manufacturer's position, saying that the research wasn't aimed at making a technological breakthrough. Moreover, the court pointed out, the manufacturer didn't play test the game to determine the validity of a scientific or technological hypothesis, but rather to determine levels of enjoyment.
No tax credits are allowed for this. (TSR Inc., 96 TC No. 44)

Age has its privileges

A captain employed by a major airline was barred from holding any position in the flight deck crew when he reached 60. The airline's policy differed from the Federal Aviation Administration, which barred persons 60 and older from serving as captains or first officers, but did not bar them from serving as second officers.

The captain sued the airline, claiming that the company's refusal to allow him to serve as a second officer constituted unlawful age discrimination. As a result, the captain received a settlement of $120,000. The IRS claimed that the entire settlement was taxable.

However, the IRS position was overturned by the Tax Court which said that the entire amount was excludable from gross income. Thus, the captain did not have to pay taxes on the money he received. (Burns Downey, 91 TC
No. 10)

IRS gives cookie jar gambler a break

One gambler in North Dakota spent up to six hours a day, five days a week, engaged in pulltab gambling. This kind of gambling enables the player to purchase tickets from a cookie jar; once the player receives the tickets, the tabs are pulled to determine whether he has a winner. If the player purchases a losing ticket, the common practice is to throw it on the floor.

The IRS allowed the cookie jar gambler in North Dakota who hadn't retained his losing tickets to deduct only $500 in losses for two years. During those years, the gambler had won $46,000 and $32,000, respectively.

The Tax Court, however, substantially increased the gambler's allowable deduction to $65,000 on the premise that, given the amount of time he devoted to pulltab gambling and the odds against buying a winning ticket, he must have had expenses higher than $500.
Cookie jars may once again entice this gambler. (Randy G.
Doffin, TC Memo 1991-4)

Pointer cooks up prize-winning recipes for cash, trips

By Margie Reins Smith
 Feature Editor

Julie Winter of Grosse Pointe Park cut several pita pockets into triangular, bite-sized pieces, placed them on a cookie sheet, sprayed them with vegetable shortening and sprinkled them with garlic powder.

Annie Winter, 4, worked at a computer nearby. Petie Winter, almost 2, poured pretend coffee, adding sprinkles of pretend sugar.

Julie Winter recently returned from Orlando, where she was one of 100 finalists in the annual Pillsbury Bake-Off Cooking and Baking Contest.

She didn't win a prize in Orlando — this time — but she earned $16,000 in cash and trips last year by entering her innovative recipes in contests. "It's a hobby," she said.

Winter is working on a Ph.D. in chemistry at Wayne State University in addition to being a full-time wife and mother. She holds a part-time job, too, and occasionally teaches classes at the Pointe Pedlar.

All in addition to whipping up exotic recipes and new combinations for cooking competitions.

In 1991, she won $10,000 in the Quaker Oats "It's The Right Thing to Do" contest with a recipe for Gingerbread Scones with Lemon Breakfast Cream; a trip for two to Napa and $600 spending money in the Sutter Home "Build a Better Burger" contest with Third Coast Grilled Veal Burgers; $1,000 in Swift Elkrich's "Taste of America" contest with Summer Garden Turkey Pitas; $500 in Pace Picante sauce's "Pick Up the Pace" contest with Spicy Island Shrimp; and a couple of $50 prizes here and there in other competitions.

"Different contests look for different things," she said. She pays attention to the recipes of previous contest winners and subscribes to two publications about cooking contests. "I go for the big bucks and the big trips," she said.

She began preparing ingredients ("they're in my head") for a bean and hummus dip to accompany the pita.

She padded around her small kitchen in stocking feet, wearing jeans and a baggy red cardigan. She divided her time among chopping tomatoes, blending beans, baking pita, shredding cheese and chatting with the children. In between cooking tasks, she dried tears, found a missing pair of shoes, answered three phone calls, helped Annie play a computer game, rearranged a carpool, and let Petie push the buttons on the blender about two dozen times.

"Eh," she said, scooping up the bean mixture with a spoon and watching it slip back into the bowl. "I'm not happy with this. It's too runny."

Winter earned a bachelor of science degree in chemistry from the University of Minnesota. She expects to earn a Ph.D. from Wayne State within the next five years.

Her husband, Chuck, teaches chemistry at Wayne State. Chemistry and cooking involve similar thought processes, she said.

"With cooking, though, I can eat what I make. He can't. Also, my cooking doesn't smell so bad," she said.

She recalls the first meal she prepared for her family when she was growing up near Minneapolis. No grilled cheese sandwiches for Julie Winter.

"When Mom let me cook for the first time, I made shrimp creole," she said.

She poured the bean dip into a baking dish and gave it a critical once-over.

"This is gross. It should be thick. It'll taste OK. But this is not competition quality."

Winter learns from her mistakes, but doesn't necessarily have to try the recipe again with the corrected ingredients and procedures. She made a prize-winning recipe of dried cherry chutney with ginger garlic chicken only once.

Her all-time favorite recipe, however, is the result of dozens of experiments.

"It's a butter cream frosting. I finally got it right after two years of trying. It's not for a contest — just for myself. White chocolate is used as a stabilizer. It's very creamy and smooth, not overly sweet like the kind with powdered sugar," she said.

Winter got interested in cooking the summer she was 22, when she landed a job as a cook at a camp in northern Minnesota. "That was when I started baking bread. I made 10 loaves of bread a day. I tried all different kinds of bread."

The first contest she entered was in 1989, the Woman's Day/Gold Medal Flour competition in which she won a trip to Cancun with No Boil Cinnamon Raisin Bagels.

"I got some tips by going to the best bagel shop I knew and asking about their bagels. There's really nothing new in recipes. If you come up with something yourself — and add a few cute tricks — it's probably never been published before. Garnish is also important in contests," she said.

"I'm adventurous. I never stick with one flavor for more than a month. I try everything under the sun. My kids eat almost everything."

What about failures? Failures often find their way

critical once-over.

Show House season opens with dinner dance, sneak peek

The Junior League of Detroit's 1992 Designers' Show House (just the naked house, enhanced by a few well-placed flowers and art works) was the setting for the first of several benefit events associated with the league's biggest fundraiser.

On Leap Year Saturday, Feb. 29, more than 200 guests attended a black tie event to dine and dance and get a gander at the house before 32 interior designers start their transformation.

On Sunday, March 1, a record 3,500 visitors walked through the empty house for a 99-cent sneak peek. The amiable crowd formed a block-long line during the afternoon and cheerfully waited in the sunshine and record-breaking temperatures just to stroll through the 26-room Tudor mini-mansion on Lakeland in Grosse Pointe City.

They weren't disappointed. Judith Lee Sieber and M. Elizabeth Morgan were co-chairmen of the black tie party. Stephanie and Verne C. Hampton II were honorary chairmen. Proceeds from all events associated with the Show House will be used to help fund the community-based projects of the Junior League of Detroit. The decorated house will be open during the month of May. For more information or tickets to tour the completed Show House, call 881-0040.

chance to break out of the winter doldrums.

The fourth annual Goombay Festival, a benefit for the Children's Center, will be celebrated Friday, March 27, at Forest Lake Country Club in Bloomfield Hills.

Copied from the Goombay Festivals celebrated in the streets of the Bahamas in summer, the hot tropical party will feature colorful costumes and pulsating music. Guests are encouraged to wear tropical duds and join in the line dances and the limbo.

The benefit will feature a sit-down dinner, a Caribbean floor show, an auction and dancing.

Proceeds will go to the Children's Center, which provides emotional and mental health services to children and their families.

For tickets ($80 a person) or information about the Goombay Festival, call the Children's Center at 831-5535.

Grosse Pointers on the host committee include Dale and Don Austin, Tamara Benson, Marilyn and Michael Connor and Jacqueline and David Szymanski.

Heart of gold: Grosse Pointe Farms resident Eileen M. Troester was honored recently at the United Way for Southeastern Michigan's 25th annual Heart of Gold Award luncheon.

Troester and two other 1968 Heart of Gold Award winners

Verne and Stephanie Hampton were honorary chairmen for a preview party which took place in the 1992 Designers' Show House Feb. 29. The Show House, a biennial fundraiser for the Junior League of Detroit, will be open to the public during the month of May. For information about tickets, call 881-0040.

were given brass, heart-shaped paperweights to commemorate the silver anniversary of the award. More than 1,200 people attended the event, which was co-sponsored by the United Way Volunteer Council.

Troester has remained an active volunteer since she won the award in 1968.

Fun raiser: Richard Elementary School will hold a preview party for Richardfest '92 beginning at 7 p.m. Friday, March 20, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. Richardfest is held every third year to raise money for the school's computers and library.

The preview party will include a silent and live auction, hors d'oeuvres and beverages.

Terry Griffin of Grosse Pointe Farms will be the auctioneer and Frank McHugh of the Shores will provide piano music. Tickets purchased before March 18 are $10; tickets at the door are $12.50. Send ticket orders to Richard PTO, 176 McKinley, Grosse Pointe Farms, 48236.

HAVE A PLEASANT TRY AT PERFECTION
BRIDGE BY WOODY BOYD ♠♥♦♣

Confidence in a partnership's bidding comes with practice and an understanding of the meaning of esteem. It generally follows, therefore, that when a good partnership has decided on the best way to describe their cards the bidding becomes relatively easy to interpret if it is expressed clearly and can't possibly be clouded.

Arthur Conan Doyle said, "When you have eliminated the impossible, whatever remains, however improbable, must be the truth."

The reason we bid is to describe as accurately as possible the high card size and shape of our thirteen cards. The number of bidding levels are limited, seven in all, but only three or four below game and six, possibly seven for slam. Be frugal, don't waste them. This is why the champions of modern methods advocate the better the hand the slower you go. Few of the experts, especially in duplicate still practice the sequence of one in a minor, one spade by responder, then four spades by the opener shows twenty points. The problem for responder if he's interested in slam is to now guess where partner's twenty points are. The Europeans, especially the Italians and French, were among the first to use every inch of bidding space to particularize their cards and they have been most successful at that practice.

♠	2S!	♥	4H	♦	5C	♣	6D
♠	4H	♥	5C	♦	6D	♣	Passed Out

A lot of bids for twenty-four points in the two hands!

Some of you will be horrified with this bidding. "Impossible," you say, "no one bids like that!" But the experts do and what you see is the way two of Michigan's fine players did it. Let's take it one bid at a time with Dr. Willie Winokur (you remember him from last week's column) and Jim White as we glide thru this one.

Playing four card majors, North's one heart is standard. This saves one spade followed by two hearts shows 6-4, 5-5, or 5-4 shape. One no trump is never forcing in this scheme of things when you bid four card majors. So one no is 6-10 H.C.P. Two diamonds by North would be correct if the high cards were more concentrated there. Two diamonds by South now turned on the lights. Jim realized his ace and two kings were priceless coupled with his long suit and he had to convey that message immediately and so two spades! Willie knew his partner hadn't found a spade mixed with his clubs. Therefore North's bid (totally forcing) must show nine or ten points with a superb diamond fit. Willie now fell in love with his hand. (Who wouldn't with three aces.) Four clubs was a splinter showing a singleton and saying partner even though I could only bid two diamonds on my second call I like my hand after hearing your second bid. Four hearts showed three card support with honor help and four spades, five clubs showed controls. Willie's five diamonds said partner, I've bid my whole hand, I've got no more to tell you. Jim's six diamonds was bullish, but extremely well reasoned.

I'm sure you're not surprised that Dr. Winokur won the whole deck and an all time top. Three were in game in diamonds and the rest of the field got nowhere near that far resting in a no trump or diamond partial. Four hearts (A Moysen fit) may make, but chancy.

Her favorite recipe is Almond Strawberry Celebration Cake with the white chocolate butter cream frosting she worked so long to perfect. "I make it for everybody," she said.

Her husband's favorite recipe is sauteed lemon chicken. He also likes risotto. The children said their favorite recipe is spaghetti — "the kind Daddy makes."

She's working on a cheese contest recipe that must be mailed next week. She assessed the hummus mixture with its crusty topping of melted cheese (which, incidentally, was delicious). "This is a party dip. It should be chunky and it should stick to the pita. I need to work on this more," she said.

Greene to offer class in portraiture techniques

Daniel E. Greene, one of America's leading portrait painters and the foremost pastel artist in the United States, will be in Grosse Pointe to teach a week-long portraiture workshop at the Grosse Pointe Academy.

Greene's work is represented in more than 200 public and private collections, including the Metropolitan Museum of Art. His list of portrait subjects includes leaders of American industry, banking, education and government.

Greene is the author of two definitive books, "Pastel" (now in the 6th printing) and "The Art of Pastel" (published worldwide in French, Italian, German, Spanish and English). He has received virtually every major award and medal in national exhibitions and has served on the faculty of the National Academy of Design and the Art Students League of New York. Greene now conducts private workshops at his studio in North Salem, New York, and in selected cities across the country.

The Grosse Pointe workshop will begin Sunday evening, May 10, at 7 p.m. with a demonstration on the professional techniques of painting a portrait in oils. A similar demonstration will be given Tuesday evening, May 12, at 7 p.m. on painting a portrait in pastel. These demonstrations will be open to the public for a $15 fee. Workshop participants will be admitted free. Workshop artists will study six hours a day, Monday through Friday, under Greene's personal direction. Models will pose for all sessions and artists may work in either oil or pastel.

Born in Cincinnati in 1934, Greene studied at the Art Students League where he was the recipient of both the Thekla M. Bernays and Helen Herzberger scholarships. In 1967, he was elected to the National Academy of Design and joined its faculty. He was elected to full academicianship in 1969 and served as treasurer of the academy.

Art critic Maurice De Vinna, in recommending Greene as a teacher, stated: "Greene's style is ... based on an exquisite sensibility and an absolute command of the medium ... Any art student would profit from studying Greene's oil painting. No art student should fail to study his pastels."

For further information about either the demonstrations or the workshop, call Virginia Thibodeau, 886-6596, or Betty Prudden, 884-4199.

Watercolor classes offered

Renowned local artist Carol Lachiusa will teach "Anyone Can Watercolor" on Tuesdays, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., March 10 - April 14 at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

The class begins with color and learning to mix it. Landscapes and still lifes will be included in the curriculum with an emphasis on the basics through demonstration and painting time. The six-week class is $40.

For the more experienced artist, Lachiusa instructs "Watercolor Techniques" on Thursdays, from 9 a.m. to noon, March 12 - April 16. Techniques, as influenced by the American Watercolor Society, encourage the students to explore all approaches before experimenting with their own styles. Demonstrations, critiques and private consultations are included. Inks will be introduced, as will pigment combined with egg yolk. The six week class is $53.

For more information, call 881-7511.

It isn't only the music of Johann Sebastian Bach that people will hear when the Michigan Bach Festival kicks off its 10th anniversary on Sunday. But don't worry about Bach's feelings — he can Handel it.

That's Curtis Posuniak's joke. And as founder and general director of the Michigan Bach Festival he's allowed to kid about his project.

"I got the concept from a similar festival in Carmel, California," Posuniak said. "So I thought we could use one out here."

He started the Dearborn Bach Festival in 1982 and it plodded along for three years before hitting. In 1987, Posuniak renamed it the Michigan Bach Festival and expanded its programs.

The festival is a non-profit organization and sustains itself with ticket proceeds and corporate and private donations. Posuniak has two other employees and the three of them together do all the planning, booking and promotion.

This year there are six Bach-related events — including a birthday party for the old gentleman. He turns 307 on March 21.

Posuniak isn't surprised at the popularity of the festival, he said. And it keeps growing. Last year more than 5,000 people attended Michigan Bach Festival events.

"We try to do something for everyone," he said. The first year began with one solo concert, one chamber music concert and one choral concert.

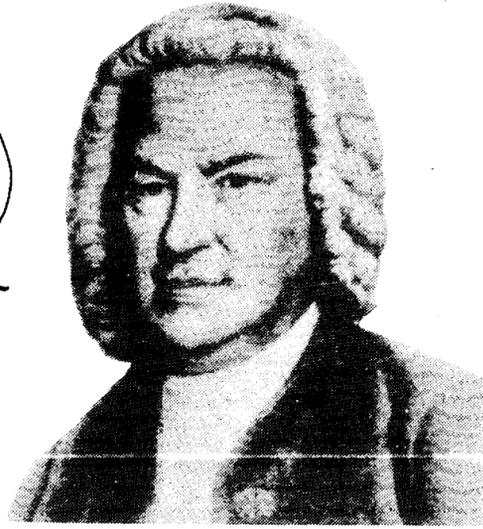

"And we perform in different locations in southeast Michigan using the best facilities and the best performers we can get," he said. "Each year we reach a lot of new people."

The season opens Sunday, March 15, with a 3:30 p.m. concert at St. Paul Catholic Church on Lakeshore in Grosse Pointe Farms. Grosse Pointe's Dave Wagner, program director at WQRS-FM and music director at St. Paul Catholic Church, will be featured soloist on the organ.

He will be joined by members of the Detroit Chamber Winds and the concert will feature the "Royal Fireworks Music" by George Frederick Handel. The concert is sponsored by NAVE Inc. of Dearborn, courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. V.C. Madias.

On Tuesday, March 17, the festival continues with a high tea and concert at the Ritz-if I want to.

Carlton Hotel in Dearborn. The 2 p.m. event is sponsored by the Dearborn Federal Credit Union and Saks Fifth Avenue of Fairlane. Performers will be Posuniak on the piano; Jane Mniece, soprano; Donna Kallie, flute; and Brian Bowman, clarinet.

A special birthday celebration will take place on Friday, March 20, at the Birmingham home of Detlof Von Berg, the German consul general. A limited number of tickets are available at $35 and will include wine, hors d'oeuvres, birthday cake and a concert by singers of the Great Lakes Quartet.

Wagner and the Chamber Winds will return at 8 p.m. on Friday, March 27, for a concert at Christ Church Cranbrook in Bloomfield Hills. The concert will be sponsored by the World Heritage Foundation of Southgate.

Organist Scott Foppiano will perform at 4 p.m. on Sunday, March 29, at the Northbrook Presbyterian Church in Birmingham. The final event, an Adolfo fashion show, is scheduled for noon on Thursday, Aug. 6.

A season ticket to four festival concerts is priced at $50 and includes the events at St. Paul, the Ritz, Christ Church and Northbrook Presbyterian. Tickets can also be purchased individually with church concerts priced at $10 and the Ritz tea at $25. MasterCard and Visa are accepted.

For more information, call 271-1939.

Dartmouth Glee Club

Fresh from stops in St. Louis, Chicago and Grand Rapids, the Dartmouth College Glee Club will perform on Sunday, March 22, at 7 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial's Fries Auditorium, 32 Lakeshore Drive in Grosse Pointe Farms. A reception will follow the concert. The glee club is the embodiment of the special spirit and warmth that is characteristic of Dartmouth College. The 123-year-old mixed 50-voice chorus is known for its musicianship, its high level of camaraderie and its broad repertoire ranging from Bach to Gilbert and Sullivan. Tickets are $10 ($12 at the door), $5 for students and are available by writing to Dartmouth Glee Club, 468 N. Williamsbury Road, Bloomfield Village, Mich., 48301. Admission includes both the concert and the afterglow. For more information call Bill Cooper at 647-6096 or Richard Paul at 223-3573.

Imaginative brothers use their 'Radio Flyer' to escape abuse

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

The heart-rending problem of child abuse, how much a child will endure to protect a loved parent and how a child copes by escaping into a world of fantasy, is effectively portrayed in "Radio Flyer," a moving story of a mother, two boys and an abusive drunk who disrupts their lives.

The tale, told in a voice over by Tom Hanks to his sons, is about Mikey (Elijah Wood) and Bobby (Joseph Mazzello) who are en route to Northern California with their mother (Elaine Bracco) and their German shepherd. Their father has walked out on them and their mother, who has a sister up north, is going there to start a new life.

They settle in at their aunt's home, mom gets a job and then the "King" enters the boys' lives. The boys accept him because he makes their mom happy. To begin with things look pretty good. They move into a house of their own in an open-spaced suburb where there are fields to roam and woods to explore. And then it starts. The "King" (dubbed so by the boys), a beer swilling sadist, is the kind of man who needs a victim and that victim is Bobby, who becomes the target of repeated beatings.

To protect their mom's happiness, the boys vow to keep the abuse a secret. On one occasion when mom tries to help Bobby undress for a bath, Mikey diverts her attention by jumping into the tub with his clothes on.

The stepfather's face always remains in shadows. He appears as a malevolent specter, a hand reaching into the fridge for another six-pack. To Bobby he becomes less a human being than a monstrous evil force.

To escape from him the boys spend their days roaming the open fields and climbing a mountain to a place which they call their wishing rock.

Set in 1969 when boys could collect pop bottles for money and stay to see a movie as many times as they wanted to, Mikey and Bobby take refuge in the darkened theater, sometimes seeing the same film a dozen times.

After a brutal beating that puts Bobby in the hospital, the boys' mother throws the "King" out and life briefly becomes what it used to be. Their mother is warm and loving with the boys. She is young enough to enjoy doing things with them and they adore her. She is also very vulnerable in her loneliness. When the "King" comes crawling back with all sorts of promises, she takes him in.

When things get particularly bad, the boys know what they must do. In happier times Bobby received a red wagon for his birthday with the logo "Radio Flyer" on it. This present which they treasure would be Bobby's means of escape. Radio Flyer would take Bobby away from what he could no longer endure to a better place.

Wood as the older brother holds our attention with his inquisitive face and beautiful expressive eyes and Mazzello with his sweet acceptance of what he cannot escape wins our sympathy and admiration. What counts most is the chemistry between the boys.

Bracco, as the unsuspecting mother, is so loving with the boys we almost forgive her blindness.

Although we know that Bobby has been horribly abused, we never witness the beatings or hear him cry, which might ease parents' fears about taking children to see the movie.

The film ends with a public service number which can be called in cases of child abuse.

DSO report:

Vonk's firm hand at DSO's podium gets great results

By Alex Sucek
Special Writer

Dutch conductor Hans Vonk took the podium last Thursday to lead the DSO in a lush program that was repeated Friday morning and Saturday evening. It would be hard to assemble three more popularly appealing works in the standard concert repertoire than Debussy's "Prelude to the Afternoon of a Faun," Ravel's "Rapsodie Espagnole" and Brahms' Symphony No. 2 in D major.

Add to this Vonk's strong and well-conceived conducting and you have all the ingredients of a highly satisfying concert. His stance alone expresses control and assurance. This conductor plants his feet apart

One was quite ready, after this, for the more forthright, folk-inspired "Rapsodie Espagnole." Continuing the trend that Debussy had begun, this work too paints a picture in tone colors, rhythms and harmonic moods, but its substance is less subtle as it indulges heartily in Spanish dance rhythms.

Again Vonk got to the heart of the music. The opening strains captured the mysterious feeling of seeing the Alhambra by moonlight. Langorous phrases stimulated the imagination.

Meticulously holding his tempo to a carefully measured pace, the conductor gave full vent to the Spanish mood of the music. And even though he gave generous energy to the fiesta movement that ends the work, the effect was never rushed.

For its finale, the program reverted to the more classical tradition with the Brahms second symphony. Engendering yet another mood, Vonk was able to bring out fully the grandeur and joy of this work. It is probably the brightest and happiest of Brahms' symphonies. It certainly is a generously orchestrated work and it got full expression from the orchestra.

As a concert evening, it was an experience and it recaptured for the listener much of the satisfaction of the first hearing of these now very familiar and much loved works.

Tonight's concert is the first featuring conductor Raymond Harvey and cellist Lynn Harrell in a very full program. The first half brings Nielsen's "Overture to Maskarade" and Dvorak's Concerto for Cello and Orchestra in B minor. For the second half, Harvey leads the DSO in Leonard Bernstein's "Divertimento" and "Three Corned Hat Suites 1 and 2" by Manuel De Falla. This, too, has great audience-pleasing potential. It will be repeated Friday and Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon.

For information and tickets, call the box office at 833-3700.

Music

on the podium and balances like a Dutch sea captain on a heaving deck as he puts his whole body into the conducting effort. And he gets results.

In many ways, Debussy's "Prelude" is a work that changed the way the world heard music in the 1890s. We are accustomed to it, today, but its departure from classic forms and resort to color and effect to convey emotions and ideas were revolutionary in its time and occasioned much criticism and controversy.

There was no controversy last Thursday, however. It was performed with full expression of its exotic, sensual qualities. Vonk and the orchestra developed the lavish, swelling sounds of Debussy's masterful and, for its time, highly original orchestration with wonderfully satisfying effect. The prominent solos by flutist Irving Monroe and Concertmistress Emmanuelle Boisvert were hauntingly beautiful and perfectly in accord with the work's expressionistic character.

Say yes to Michigan products with new cookbook

Today there's a new focus on food that's healthy, flavorful and quick to prepare.

Michigan is a leader in producing these kinds of foods. Fruits, vegetables and herbs grow in abundance; meat, fish, poultry and dairy producers dot the state. In fact, Michigan is second in the nation in the number and variety of foods it produces. In an effort to show consumers how the state's foods fit today's lifestyle, 25 Michigan commodity organizations have joined together to produce a new cookbook, "Michigan - Savor Its Flavors."

The 96-page cookbook is filled with unique recipes and color photographs that will make your mouth water. There are menus for each season which are ideal for entertaining. The spring menus include: Sunday Dinner in May; Herb Garden Luncheon; and Mother's Day Brunch. Try the Herb Garden Luncheon menu that includes cheddar chive crisps, cream of asparagus soup, glowering garden salad, hot chicken and celery salad, pasta and pesto, herb biscuits and butter, maple fresh fruit cup and minted ice tea.

"Michigan - Savor Its Flavors" is available in major bookstores in Michigan, gift and gourmet stores, supermarkets and by mail order. In Grosse Pointe the book is available at Pointe Pedlar, and Jacobson's. It is a wonderful regional cookbook which is ideal for family meals or entertaining ideas. It is sure to become a kitchen favorite. Paired with a bottle of Michigan wine or one of its food products, it is a perfect birthday or holiday gift.

Hans Schuler, chairman and president of Schuler's Inc., said, "Michigan - Savor Its Flavors" is an excellent showcase for the Michigan marketplace. Michigan products are represented in myriad recipes and ideas that will bring variety and excellence into your home and onto your family table."

The author, Gayle Main, is a graduate home economist from Michigan State University, a foods and nutrition teacher, executive director of the Michigan Veal Committee, lecturer and food writer.

Elegant Eating

By Irene H. Burchard

1/8 t ground black pepper
1 t salt

Place spareribs in a large sauce pot or Dutch oven. Add enough water to cover. Bring to boil over high heat. Reduce heat; simmer 30 minutes. Drain.

In a small bowl, combine maple syrup, ketchup, vinegar, onion, Worcestershire sauce, salt, mustard and black pepper. Mix well.

Place spareribs in a shallow baking pan. Brush about half of the maple syrup sauce over the ribs. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven for 30 minutes or until spareribs are tender. While ribs are baking, turn them occasionally and baste with remaining maple syrup sauce. Broil 5 minutes to brown ribs. Serves four.

Grilled Stuffed Potato

4 large baking potatoes, washed and scrubbed
2 cups fresh mushrooms, sliced

1/8 t ground black pepper
1 T fresh chopped parsley
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese

1 large chopped tomato
1 cup sour cream

Slice potatoes crosswise at 1/4-inch intervals, leaving deep slits, but not cutting through the potato. Place an onion slice in each slit.

Place each potato on a piece of aluminum foil large enough to wrap the potato. Top each potato with a portion of sliced mushrooms.

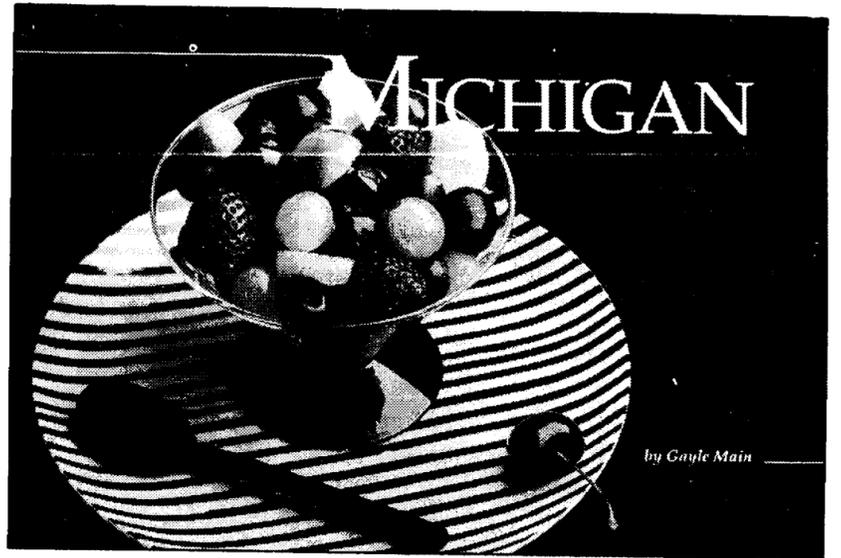

In a small saucepan, heat butter, seasoned salt, garlic powder, celery salt and pepper. Mix well after butter melts. Pour butter mixture evenly over potatoes.

Wrap potatoes securely with foil. Bake on an outdoor grill over direct heat or in a preheated 375-degree oven 55 to 60 minutes or until potatoes are cooked.

To serve, open packet and top potatoes with parsley, Parmesan cheese, tomatoes and sour cream. Serves four.

'Pinocchio' sunshine show at Macomb Center March 28

"Pinocchio," the story of the lad with the notorious nose, will be presented at 4 p.m. Saturday, March 28, at Macomb Center for the Performing Arts. The classic fairy tale is presented by the Missoula Children's Theatre (MCT). The group's corps of professional actors, ages 20 to 40, is drawn from cities across the United States. MCT specializes in audience participation, often letting youngsters work alongside professional actors in a fully-staged children's show. For the "Pinocchio" performance the group will do a week-long residence at Rose Kidd Elementary in the Utica school district, auditioning and rehearsing 50 children from the district for the production.

"Pinocchio" is a part of Macomb center's popular Sunshine Series sponsored by NBD Bank, N.A.

All tickets are $4 and may be obtained at the center's box office or charged to Visa/MasterCard by calling (313) 286-2222, Monday through Friday. Macomb Center is located on the center campus of Macomb Community College at Hall (M-59) and Garfield roads in Clinton Township.

Players offer 'Present Laughter'

The Village Players of Birmingham will stage "Present Laughter," Noel Coward's story of a popular and pampered actor caught in a compromising situation.

Show dates are March 20-22 and 27-28. Curtain is 8 p.m. except for the March 22 matinee at 2 p.m.

Tickets are available at the door, but reservations are recommended. Adult tickets are $8; student tickets are $6. Reservations may be made by calling 644-2075. The playhouse is located on the corner of Hunter Boulevard and Chestnut Street, south of Maple Road.

Lunch to help Meadow Brook

The Meadow Brook Theatre Guild will present its popular Luncheon on the Aisle, on Friday, May 1, in the Meadow Brook Theatre at Oakland University, featuring highlights of "Ain't Misbehavin'," the Fats Waller musical conceived by Richard Maltby Jr.

Doors open at 11:30 a.m. Events include a bake sale preceded by lunch, door prizes, and a box lunch. At noon the program will begin with Ron Metcalf, the musical director, singing the tunes of the great Fats Waller. Guild ladies will model costumes from past plays.

Co-chairmen for the event are Myszka Reeck and Sharon Donnelly of Rochester Hills. Group rates for ten or more are $18 per person. Single tickets are $20.

'Man of LaMancha' to play at the Birmingham Theatre

One of the memorable successes of the American musical stage, "Man of LaMancha" opens a five week engagement March 24-April 26 at the Birmingham Theatre.

When "Man of LaMancha" opened in New York in November 1965 with little advance ticket sales, the reviews and audience acclaim were so great it soon became the hottest ticket in town. The show ran for five years in New York with Richard Kiley as the original Don Quixote on Broadway.

With his faithful servant Sancho Panza at his side, the lunatic knight tilts at windmills, rescues a fair maiden and insists on the purity and goodness of man, all the while accompanied by a melodious score which includes "I, Don Quixote," "Dulcinea," "Little Bird, Little Bird" and the international favorite "The Impossible Dream." Worth Gardner,

Clockwise from bottom left, Peter Toran, Janet Clarkson, Michael S. Ouimet and Nancy Lipschultz are featured in A.R. Gurney's "The Cocktail Hour," running in rotating repertory from March 6-April 18 at the Hilberry. For tickets or information, call the Hilberry Theatre box office at 577-2972.

Hilberry hosts Gurney's 'The Cocktail Hour'

A.R. Gurney's contemporary comedy, "The Cocktail Hour," is the latest offering at Wayne State University's Hilberry Theatre.

Gurney's most theatrical play, "The Cocktail Hour" mirrors a play written by the central character, a son who has written about his family's private life. His play, not surprisingly, leads to a confrontation and a dramatic cocktail hour.

The Hilberry Theatre's production is directed by Robert T. Hazzard with Ray Schultz as assistant director. The cast of four includes Michael S. Ouimet, Nancy Lipschultz, Peter Toran and Janet Clarkson. The play will run in repertory through April 18. For information, call 577-2972.

North Rosedale Park Players announce a new 'Baby'

The stage of the North Rosedale Park Community House will come alive on March 27, 28, 29, April 3, 4, 5, 10 and 11 with Sybille Pearson, David Shire and Richard Maltby Jr.'s Tony award-winning musical, "Baby."

In his director's notes, Richard Maltby says that "Baby" is about how lives and relationships change with the arrival of a baby.

"What's bigger than life in 'Baby' are the great painful issues of continuity, change and growth raised by the issue of a child, and they are met, not with gigantic melodramatic events, but as real people meet them every day, with bravery, resilience, humor, love, and however begrudgingly, with a willingness to compromise, change and grow," Maltby says.

"Baby" is produced by the North Rosedale Park Players, a community theater group established in 1954 consisting of current and past residents of North Rosedale Park — an integrated neighborhood with beautiful older homes in northwest Detroit.

Directed by John Eastman and produced by Park residents Vicki Baldwin and Juanita Coleman, the production features dinner theater at 6:15 p.m. on Friday, March 27; wine and cheese at 7 p.m. on Saturday, March 28; spaghetti dinner at 6:15 p.m. on Friday, April 3; wine and cheese at 8 p.m. on Saturday, April 4 and April 11; souper supper at 6:15 p.m. on Friday, April 10; and regular matinees on Sunday, March 29 and April 5.

Michigan TasteFest is searching for talented children to perform

Michigan TasteFest, a Memorial Day weekend festival of fine food and entertainment, will hold its second annual TasteFest talent search for kids.

The search will choose the best performers in each of the age divisions of the following categories: dance, vocals/instrumentals, jazz vocals and/or instrumentals, and other performances. The contestants must be between the ages of 4 and 18 to compete (Division I: 4 through 7 years, Division II: 8 through 13 years, and Division III: 14 through 18 years). Birthdays must be as of March 31.

Semi-finalists will be chosen, from the tapes submitted, by a panel of judges. Winners will be selected from the finalists by a panel of celebrity/expert judges during the Michigan

TasteFest and will receive prizes to be announced. At the discretion of the judges, categories may be eliminated. The decision of the judges is final. Winners of the 1991 talent search are not eligible to compete.

To enter, contestants should send: a labeled audio or 1/2 inch VHS tape, cued to the performance to be judged, the written name of the group, identification of the entrant if various acts/individuals are on the same tape, the entrant's category, age division, a listing of each group member's name and date of birth, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Tapes will be viewed by the judges for a maximum of two minutes.

Entries should be post-marked no later than April 1 and sent to: Michigan TasteFest, Attn: Talent Search for Kids, 1415 Fisher Building, Detroit, MI 48202.

Michigan TasteFest will be held May 22-25 in Detroit's New Center Area. For more information on the rules, call Mary Chris Titus at 872-0188.

Wearable art exhibited

The Art Center in Mount Clemens will be transformed from a classical gallery setting to a calypsonian dream during Artstyle 92.

The second annual event combines an exhibit of wearable art from March 5-27 with two fashion shows of wearable art at 2 and 7 p.m. Sunday, March 15. Partial funding for the event is provided by Security Bank of Commerce.

More than 30 artists from 24 Michigan cities as well as Connecticut, Florida, Illinois, Wisconsin and Ontario will participate in the show, which returns to The Art Center by popular demand. Jewelry, clothing and purses displaying the skill and creativity of the artists will be for sale during the exhibit and the two fashion shows. Prices of the items range from $10 to $600.

Two Pointers will participate in Artstyle 92. Janet Rubenstein of Grosse Pointe Park fabricates sterling silver jewelry from her own designs, and M. Stirling Allardice of Grosse Pointe also creates jewelry, primarily in sterling silver with some gold-filled items. Both artists are showing work in the galleries of The Art Center as well as in the fashion shows.

The 2 p.m. fashion show on March 15 features a light Mediterranean lunch as models glide through the galleries to calypso and reggae music. The 7 p.m. fashion show offers dessert and coffee. Those attending both shows will have opportunities to win door prizes of wearable art provided by participating artists. Tickets for the fashion shows must be purchased in advance by calling The Art Center at 469-8666.

The gallery exhibit of wearable art may be viewed free of charge March 5-27 (except March 15). Art Center members receive a 10 percent discount on all Artstyle purchases.

The Art Center is located at 125 Macomb Place (North Avenue at M-3 southbound) in Mount Clemens. Hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday.

Dance concert

The Dance Company at Wayne State University returns to the Bonstelle Theatre for its annual spring concert on Friday and Saturday, March 27 and 28. The concert will feature works by guest choreographers Barbara Selinger, co-director of Detroit Dance Collective, and Whitley Setrakian, director of People Dancing. Selinger will present "Journey's End" and Setrakian will premiere a new work. Performances include a special preview concert for middle and high school students at 9:30 a.m. Friday. Other performances are at 8 p.m. Friday and 1 and 8 p.m. Saturday. Tickets are available at the box offices of the Hilberly Theatre, 4743 Cass, and Bonstelle Theatre, 3424 Woodward. Tickets are $6 at the door and $5 for senior citizens, students and advance sales. For tickets call the Bonstelle at 577-2960; for group rates and more information call the Dance Department at 577-4273.

Travel to the South with War Memorial

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial will sponsor an educational trip to the historic South including Charleston, Jekyll Island and Savannah.

The trip begins May 29 and returns June 3. The history and charm of the South is the focus during the South's most beautiful season.

Travel the cobblestoned streets of Charleston and tour the seven miles of the Historic District preserved to reflect its 300-year history. Its architecturally gracious and historic buildings are embellished with fanciful wrought iron work and painted in pastels or whimsical rainbow hues. The fragrance of the city's famous gardens and the clapping of a horse-drawn carriage on a cobblestone lane seem to recall times past.

Visit the elaborate "cottages" of Jekyll Island built by prominent millionaires who at the time were said to represent one-sixth of the world's wealth. Continue to Savannah, one of the South's oldest and most elegant cities. Its historic waterfront, once alive with the bustle of the cotton trade, now houses specialty shops, restaurants and night spots. In the spirit of true Southern hospitality, enjoy a leisurely carriage ride before returning home with fond memories of the South.

The tour includes round trip air, two nights in Charleston, two nights on Jekyll Island and one night in Savannah (lodging is in superior first class and deluxe hotels), three breakfasts and three dinners. Prices are $999 a person double occupancy; $250 single supplement. For more information, call 881-7511.

Let them entertain you

Gypsy Rose Lee, the legendary first lady of burlesque, and the stage mother who steered her to fame are the subjects of the rousing musical comedy hit, "Gypsy," coming to the Fox Theatre for eight performances Tuesday, March 17, through Sunday, March 22. Shown here, Patrick M. Boyd fantasizes about a career on stage with his gawky friend Louise (Jeannette Simpson), who eventually becomes the legendary Gypsy Rose Lee. Tickets range in price from $20 to $32.50 and are available at the Fox Theatre, Joe Louis and Cobo Arena box offices and all Ticketmaster outlets including Hudson's and Harmony House. For more information, call 567-6000.

Dance classes scheduled

Become more fit, coordinated and graceful this season by learning the techniques of social, tap or jazz dancing at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

Lillian Forrest instructs "Social Dancing" on Mondays, March 9 - April 13. The introductory class meets from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. and the intermediate steps and styling class meets from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. This six-week course will introduce you to the fox trot, waltz, rumba, and more. The intermediate class includes all the dances mentioned above, plus the tango, cha-cha and samba. The class is $48 a couple.

"Tone up with Tap" on Thursdays from 7:15 to 8:15 p.m., March 12 - April 30 with instructor Mimi Lewalski. Tap dancing gets you moving from head to toe. After warming up, learn basic tap steps and a tap combination. The six week class is $34.

Lewalski also teaches "Jazzique" on Thursdays from 8:15 to 9:15 p.m., March 13 - April 30. This aerobic workout will tone you up by incorporating dance and exercise movements.

The six-week class is $34. Gene Kelly, Fred Astaire - all the great ones knew how. Instructor Teresa Giannetti will show men how to strut their stuff in "Real Men Tap" on Tuesdays from 6:30 to 7:15 p.m., March 17 - May 12. The eight-week course is $40. For more information, call 881-7511.

Father-son team is a winner for Norsemen

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Charlie Roddis' accomplishments for Grosse Pointe North's swimming team have a special meaning to his coach.

That's because Les Roddis is more than Charlie's coach. He's his father, too.

"As a coach, I get a lot of satisfaction seeing him perform and as a father I enjoy seeing him do so well in something he loves doing," Les said. "I'm very thankful. I have the best of two worlds. I don't have to be a coach in the stands. I don't have to think about what I'd do if I were coaching the team."

The younger Roddis has given his father a lot to be proud of this season.

Charlie has qualified for the Class A state meet this weekend in both the 100-yard butterfly and 100 backstroke.

"I hope to do a 53.5 in the fly and a 55.4 in the back," he said. "I think that's what it will take to make the top 12 in the state. That's my goal."

Charlie started swimming when he was 4 years old and Les was coaching at the Detroit Boat Club.

"I enjoyed swimming then, but it wasn't my favorite thing until my freshman year when I really felt like part of a team and became close friends with the other guys," Charlie said.

That's no surprise to Les.

"The five seniors on the team this year — Jeff Dungan, Graham Sisk, Chris Ditty, John Galvin and Charlie — have been a support to each other all through high school," the coach said. "Their attitude has a lot to do with how much Charlie enjoys it."

Charlie has always been a natural backstroker, but it took a little longer for him to perfect the butterfly.

"When he was about 13 he went from a power swimmer to a technique swimmer. That's what he is now," Les said. "He hasn't matured as much physically as some high school seniors, but his technique is good enough to make up for the lack of strength."

The elder Roddis thinks his son will be an outstanding collegiate swimmer.

"That's when he'll have the physical strength to go with his technique," he said.

Les said he was careful not to push his son into swimming.

"I wanted him to swim, but I wanted him to do it because he wanted to do it, not because it was something that would please me. I wanted him to experience a lot of things and then make his choice," Les said.

It's difficult for a swimmer to be proficient in more than one stroke, but Charlie has perfected four of them to the point where he's one of the best individual medley swimmers in the state.

"Most good IM kids have been swimmers who analyze what they have to do with each stroke," Les said. "The IM is so hard to train for because you can't just get into a lane and start swimming the event."

Charlie said that a swimmer must be in the right frame of mind to swim several strokes.

"If you're swimming freestyle you might only have to remember one thing, but I have to remember to keep my head down on the turns in the fly, but I have to keep it straight for the backstroke," he said.

Charlie enjoys having his father for a coach.

"It's nice to know he's going to be at all my meets. It helps, too, because he knows what it will take to get me to work harder," he said.

There are some problems that come with the benefits of that situation, Les points out.

"It's a little tougher to be critical when it's your son," he said. "He has to read me and I have to read him. When I show Charlie something, it's more than just coach to athlete. I have to give him more explanation about what I'm doing."

The combination has worked well. Charlie has developed into a contender for state honors and Grosse Pointe North was in the thick of the battle for the Macomb Area Conference National Division championship.

South rules conference swim meet

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South's swimming team erased a disappointment that had been haunting it for a year.

"The kids were hungry to win this meet," coach Fred Michalik said after the Blue Devils beat Sterling Heights Ford and Grosse Pointe North in the Macomb Area Conference American Division meet.

"We had a lot of nice drops (in time) at the meet. The kids remembered last year when we went into the finals with a 60-point lead and Ford beat us," Michalik said.

South, which led by nearly 100 points after the preliminary round, finished with 327 points. Runner-up Ford had 273 and North was third with 236.

"We swam well on Friday (in the preliminaries) but we just ran out of gas in the finals," said Norsemen coach Les Roddis. "We haven't had any experience in back-to-back meets like that and it might have hurt us."

South, which took first place in seven events, had three record performances on its way to the championship.

Diver Chad Hepner broke the meet record with 420.20 points; Tim Jogan, who won two events, broke his own 500-yard freestyle record with a 4:45.3; and Brenn Schoenherr shattered the 100 backstroke mark with a 55.0 clocking.

"Chad's last three dives were just super," Michalik said. "It was close between him and Mike Thomas of Eisenhower going into the finals, but he pulled away at the end."

"Jogan swam a nice race, considering that he's still a little short of breath (because of a bout with bronchitis)," Michalik said. "Schoenherr wanted to get a good time so he'll get a better seed in the state meet."

He set the record and still had a couple bad turns. If he gets those down, he could cut a second off his time."

Jogan also took first in the 200 freestyle with a 1:46.26. South's Andy Walter won the 50 freestyle in 22.68 and the Blue Devils won the two freestyle relays. Norman Rice, Pat Ollison, Tim Harmount and Jogan won the 200 freestyle relay in 1:31.16 and Harmount, Walter, Ollison and Schoenherr took first in the 400 in 3:26.7.

South spikers top North

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

A gasoline additive can provide faster starts in an automobile.

Grosse Pointe South coach Cindy Sharpe wishes there was a similar product that she could use to get her volleyball team off to a quicker start.

"Sometimes we start out in a funk and can't get going," Sharpe said. "We can't do that against the good teams we'll be playing from now on. We have to keep playing like we did against (Grosse Pointe) North when we took it to them from the beginning."

The Lady Devils completed a good week with an impressive 15-4, 15-2 victory over crosstown rival North in the championship game of the Class A district at Regina.

The victory earned South a berth in its own regional tournament on Saturday. The Lady Devils begin playing at 9 a.m. against Detroit Northwestern.

"It isn't as tough as some of the regionals in the state, and if we play as well as we're capable of, we should make it through," Sharpe said. "If we don't play well, Northwestern has enough good athletes that they can beat us."

If South gets past Northwestern, it will play the winner of the Detroit Cass Tech-East Detroit match in the regional final.

The Lady Devils built a 12-0 lead in the first game against North as Angela Drake, Liz Binder, Stephanie Coddens and Sue McGahey did a strong job at the net and Sue Faremouth was an effective setter.

It was the same thing in the second game as Faremouth served seven straight points to break a 2-2 tie. Kelly Baker served the Lady Devils' final three points.

North was missing its top hitter, Stephanie Gore, and both coaches agreed that her absence was the key factor in South winning by such a lopsided margin.

"You can take away a great player and overcome the loss, but when that player is also the emotional focus of the team, it's tough," Sharpe said. "I feel sorry for Stephanie because I know how much it hurt her to miss the match."

Gore injured her knee in South's 4-15, 15-6, 15-7 victory over the Lady Norsemen earlier in the week when the crosstown rivals played the final Macomb Area Conference White Division match.

"I don't think the other girls realized what an emotional leader Stephanie was until she wasn't there," said North coach Leslie Harwood. "That match was a nightmare, but I hope the girls don't dwell on it. I want them to remember all the good things we did this season. I've been with the seniors since they were freshmen so they're special to me."

North finished with an 11-3 league record and a 26-8-3 overall mark.

South struggled a bit before beating Regina in the district semifinal. The Saddlelites won the first game 15-11, but the Lady Devils came back with 15-10 and 15-7 victories. South trailed 6-0 early in the second game.

"We had a hard time getting into our rhythm and Regina was playing well," Sharpe said. "I think we were focused too much on what they were doing and not enough on our own game."

Drake had eight kills and six blocks for sideouts or points in the Regina match and added five kills against North. Coddens had eight kills in the two matches and McGahey had three kills against North. Faremouth had 35 assists in the two district matches.

Sharpe was also pleased with the efforts of Baker, Kathy Schrage and Binder.

"Kelly has become something of a cult hero," Sharpe explained. "If someone is having a problem, I put her in the game and she makes me, look like a genius. She serves well, plays good defense and passes the ball nicely.

"Schrage has done well in the back row. She had good movement, played errorless and made some great passes to our setters. Binder's play up front was one of the keys against Regina.

"I have a lot of respect for players like that because they step forward when we really need them."

South's victory over North in the MAC game assured the Lady Devils of the outright championship in the White Division.

Coddens dominated the second and third games with seven kills in each.

"We couldn't block Coddens," Harwood said. "She's using the blocker so well this year. It's a hard concept to learn but she's done it."

North, which finished second in the MAC White, got a strong effort from Gore in the South match as she served 14 points and led the hitting attack with 17 spikes, seven for kills. Jenny Shapiro had 12 spikes and four kills and Amy Sacka added 10 hits and three kills, set 100 percent and had six blocks.

Earlier, North overpowered Utica 15-6, 15-6 in a MAC White match.

Tricia Campau and Laura Cartwright each set 100 percent. Campau had nine assists for kills and Cartwright added five.

Missy Bania served 13 points, Felicia Paluzzi served 7-for-7 with six points, and Melissa Drouillard served five points.

Sacka, Gore, Shapiro and Bania had good passing games.

Gore was the leading hitter with 19, including six kills. She graded 100 percent on her hits. Shapiro had seven hits and two kills, Sacka had six hits, Paluzzi five and Jennifer Trachy added three hits and one kill.

Heavy action

There's plenty of heavy action around the Grosse Pointe South net during the Blue Devils' 4-1 loss to Trenton in the championship game of the Class A hockey regional at the St. Clair Shores Civic Arena. South advanced to the title game with a 12-1 victory over Notre Dame in the semifinals.

Knights' title hopes dashed

University Liggett School's hockey team rode an emotional elevator during the Class B-C regional at Allen Park last week.

The Knights achieved their high point with a come-from-behind 4-3 victory over defending state champion Cranbrook, but ULS then saw its state title hopes dashed when it suffered an 8-4 loss to Riverview Gabriel Richard in the regional championship game.

"We played fairly well in the championship game, but Richard played very well," said Knights' coach John Fowler. "You can't beat a good team by just playing fairly well."

"Although we're disappointed with losing, we experienced the exultation of beating Cranbrook. It's been a good season. We played an incredibly tough schedule and finished with a 13-9-3 record."

Omar Sawaf, who played an excellent tournament for ULS, opened the scoring at 2:27 of the first period, but Richard came back to score the next two goals. Stefan Teitge pulled the Knights into a 2-2 tie with 5:55 left in the opening period, but the Pioneers answered with a goal less than a minute later to regain the lead.

Second-period goals by John Maycock and Andy VanDeweghe gave ULS a 4-3 advantage, but Richard's Troy Lizynski, who scored four goals in the game, picked up two of them within a minute to give the Pioneers a lead they never relinquished.

Richard took a 6-4 lead into the final period and scored twice late in the game for the final margin.

"Their goalie made some stops with his shoelaces and on others he just had his glove in the right spot," Fowler said. "We outshot them 10-6 in the third period, but he kept us from scoring."

Sawaf had two assists for ULS and Mike Whelan, Matt Spicer, Maycock and Eric Kisskalt collected one apiece.

"Richard might have had an emotional edge going into the final because they didn't have a real tough game until then," Fowler said. "They could point for us or Cranbrook, while we had to point for Cranbrook first."

Third-period goals by Teitge at 8:05 and Maycock at 9:07 brought the Knights back from a 3-2 deficit against Cranbrook.

"I told (Maycock) to go for the net after the faceoff and he walked right in on the goalie," Fowler said. "It was an alert play."

The Cranes had taken a one-goal lead on a penalty shot by Ty Hartigan with 9:04 remaining in the third period.

Sawaf opened the scoring for ULS at the 43-second mark of the first period and Alex Crenshaw gave the Knights a 2-0 lead.

ULS goalie Chris Eldridge played an outstanding game as he turned aside all but three of 31 shots.

Kisskalt and VanDeweghe each had two assists and Spicer and Maycock collected one apiece for the Knights.

ULS opened the tournament with a 5-3 victory over Bloomfield Hills Andover. Kisskalt had two goals and two assists, while VanDeweghe had a goal and two assists. Crenshaw and Teitge also scored for the Knights.

Cass ousts South in tourney

By Chuck Klonek
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South might have played too well against L'Anse Creuse North in its final regular-season basketball game.

It made enough of an impression on Detroit Cass Tech coach Bob Shannon that the Technicians made some special preparations for the Blue Devils when they met in the first game of the Class A district tournament at South.

"I was definitely concerned about them after watching them last week," Shannon said after Cass Tech rolled to a 67-49 victory over the Blue Devils. "I was concerned about their guards, especially No. 22 (Mike McLaughlin). He's a great shooter, but we noticed he took a little time getting the shot away. We worked on taking advantage of that by using our quickness to get on him as fast as we could."

The Technicians blocked McLaughlin several times before the South senior made the necessary adjustments and wound up with 13 points, all but three in the second half.

"They force you to do things you don't want to do and once you start making mistakes, the next one is magnified," said South coach George Petrouleas. "They have athletes, not just basketball players."

Cass Tech broke the game open with a 17-2 run in the last 3:13 of the first quarter to take a 25-8 lead. South played the Technicians even in the second quarter and trailed 39-23 at halftime, but Cass Tech started the third quarter with a 14-0 run and for all intents and purposes, the game was over.

"We kept playing hard, but we just couldn't afford to make the turnovers we had," Petrouleas said. "We knew we couldn't keep them from scoring if we made turnovers."

Although Cass Tech plays an up-tempo game, the Technicians are seldom out of control.

"We want to be in control of the game," Shannon said. "Just because you play up-tempo doesn't mean you have five folks running helter-skelter up and down the floor."

Shannon didn't relax even though his team enjoyed a comfortable lead for most of the contest.

"We're still trying to teach," he said. "From now on, all the teams are tough and the mistakes we get away with tonight could beat us in the next game. We have a lot of young guys and we're teaching all the time."

Cass Tech started four juniors and a sophomore.

"Since we lost our point guard, our only senior is our eighth man so we're just now finding out who our leaders are on the floor," Shannon said.

South played without point guard Matt Recht, who injured his shoulder during the final minute of the L'Anse Creuse North game.

"I don't know if it would have changed the outcome, but we missed Matt," Petrouleas said. "The worst was that we didn't have much time to prepare to play without him."

Mike Armstrong led the Blue Devils with 16 points and Blair Hess finished with 14. Hess had seven rebounds and McLaughlin and Armstrong each pulled down six.

Howard White paced Cass

Tech's scoring with 18 points. Arnette Jordan had 12 and Eric Dedmon added 11.

Cass Tech improved to 15-5 with the victory over South. The Blue Devils ended the season with a 14-7 record.

Mike McLaughlin of Grosse Pointe South dribbles around a Utica defender during one of the Blue Devils' two overtime victories last week.

Devils work overtime for last two victories

By Chuck Klonek
Sports Editor

George Petrouleas enjoyed watching the film of Grosse Pointe South's regular season finale with L'Anse Creuse North as much as he savored the game itself.

"It was well-played by both teams," said the Blue Devils' coach. "We only had nine turnovers, which is our low for the season, and we shot just a tad under 50 percent."

South's 61-58 overtime victory over the Crusaders enabled the Blue Devils to tie LCN for second place in the Macomb Area Conference White Division. Both teams finished 10-4 in the league and 14-6 overall.

South had to battle from a 12-point deficit to beat the Crusaders the first time the teams met. This time it was the opposite as the Blue Devils built a 12-point advantage, only to have LCN pull into a 52-52 tie on Mike Spratt's basket with 24 seconds remaining in regulation time.

"We had a couple chances to put the game away, but they stayed in it," Petrouleas said. "We thought their perimeter shooting was a little suspect, but they hit six of nine three-pointers. That's not something they've been noted for."

Petrouleas was pleased with the way the Blue Devils executed the offense.

"We maintained our poise," he said. "We worked the ball around against their zone until we got the good shot. If you rush your shots you play to their tempo. Another goal of ours was to not let them score any points off their pressure defense and they didn't get a point from it."

Mike McLaughlin, who led all scorers with 23 points, put South ahead to stay when he drilled a three-pointer for the first points of the overtime. The Blue Devils sealed the win when Blair Hess, Matt Recht and McLaughlin each hit two free throws in the final 36 seconds of the extra period.

South hit 16 of its 19 free throws for the game.

McLaughlin's performance was noteworthy because LCN paid special attention to him defensively.

"He stepped up when he had to," Petrouleas said. "That's why he's one of our leaders. They were aware of him, but that opened some things up inside. Everyone has to contribute and that's what happened."

Hess had 14 points and seven rebounds and Paul Geist and Recht each scored eight points for South.

Spratt topped LCN with 13 points.

The overtime victory was the second in four nights for South, which beat Utica 46-44 earlier in the week.

That game didn't make Petrouleas as happy, however.

"We didn't shoot well and we did a poor job of taking care of the ball against a team that didn't press us," he said. "We shot 30 percent from the field and our guards shot only 10 percent."

Fortunately, the Blue Devils held a big edge on the boards as Hess pulled down 15 rebounds and Mike Armstrong grabbed 12. The two also combined for four blocks.

"The first time we played Utica we allowed them to dictate control of the boards and they outrebounded us," Petrouleas said. "This time we took away their strength."

South led by as many as eight points in the first half and held a 21-19 halftime lead.

Utica tied the game at 41-41 with 11 seconds remaining in regulation and the Chieftains scored the first basket of overtime, but Hess tied the game on a putback, and two free throws apiece by McLaughlin and Recht gave South the victory.

Hess led the Blue Devils with 13 points and Armstrong added 10.

North's comeback falls short

By John Miskelly
Special Writer

Grosse Pointe North's boys basketball team finished its 1991-92 season Monday as the Norsemen lost a hard-fought Class A district battle to Hazel Park.

Senior guard D.J. Reynolds did some sharpshooting for North, especially in the second half, but his 23 points couldn't save the Norsemen from a 64-60 defeat in the tournament at East Detroit.

"He played well," North coach George Olman said of Reynolds, who connected on two three-point shots. "He's a good shooter."

Hazel Park used defensive pressure to wear down the Norsemen in the first half as the Vikings raced to a 37-26 halftime advantage.

Hazel Park was led offensively by Randy Serra, who had 17 points and pulled down four rebounds, and sophomore James Phillips, who scored 14 points. Serra had two important offensive rebounds late in the game when North was fighting to come back.

The Vikings sent the Norsemen to the free throw line several times in the first half as they challenged every shot from the key. North center Adam Korzeniewski made most of the trips to the line.

North made 15 of 23 free throws for the game, while Hazel Park connected on eight of 12.

Although the Norsemen had trouble controlling the ball, the biggest problem was the overall shooting.

"We missed a lot of shots we could have made," Olman said.

While turnovers and missed shots continued to plague them in the second half, North used its advantage on the boards to keep pace with the Vikings. Korzeniewski pulled down 14 rebounds, while 6-foot-6 Adam Lowry grabbed 10.

North outscored Hazel Park

16-10 in the third quarter to cut the lead to 47-42 going into the final period.

Crisp passing in their offensive end led to some easy baskets by the Norsemen, who tied the game on a three-pointer by Dan Devlin and even led briefly in the fourth quarter.

Although North outrebounded Hazel Park by nearly a two-to-one margin, that was the part of the game that let the Norsemen down in the final minutes.

"We didn't do a good job of blocking out at the end," Olman said after watching the Vikings grab several offensive boards.

But that didn't diminish Olman's enthusiasm for his squad's performance.

"We had a great effort," he said.

Matt Westbrook had 13 points and six rebounds and Korzeniewski tossed in 11 points for North, which finished 9-12 overall.

North standout has a big finish

Adam Korzeniewski's statistics caught up with his performance in Grosse Pointe North's last regular-season basketball game.

"Adam has been playing some real good basketball all season," said Norsemen coach George Olman after Korzeniewski scored a career-high 27 points and pulled down nine rebounds in North's 58-56 victory over Fraser last week.

Korzeniewski, who hit 12 of 14 shots from the field and made all three of his free throws, scored the winning basket on an offensive rebound with two seconds remaining in regulation.

The bucket capped the Norsemen's comeback from a 12-point deficit heading into the final quarter and enabled them to finish 5-9 in the Macomb Area Conference White Division and 9-11 overall.

"It was really nice to see Korzo have a game like this because he's worked so hard and played well. It was a great performance," Olman said.

North also got an outstanding game from D.J. Reynolds, who scored 20 points, including 11 in the final quarter. Reynolds hit a jumper to tie the score at 56-56.

North trailed 35-25 at halftime and Fraser held a 47-35 advantage after three periods.

"When we got them down to eight points I thought we had a good chance," Olman said.

"Then when we got it to four, I said, 'Now we'll see what pressure is.' We've been in a lot of close games this year and they haven't been in that many."

North got a strong defensive game and seven rebounds from Matt Westbrook and Matt Peters scored eight points and ran the offense well from the point guard position.

Earlier in the week, the Norsemen led most of the way in a 52-47 victory over Anchor Bay.

North, which led 31-20 at halftime, saw its lead melt to two points late in the game, but the Norsemen didn't let the Tars get any closer.

Reynolds scored 20 points and Peters and Dan Devlin added eight apiece. Korzen-

Olman said a key factor in North's victory was being able to contain Anchor Bay's Joe Cherney.

"We held him to 15 points. Korzo and Westbrook did a good job defensively, and we didn't send him to the line like we did last game when he scored 20 points," Olman said.

North continued to play without starters Adam Lowry and Jason Rio, who have missed several games because of illness and injury.

"We've been playing hard since the two starters went down," Olman said. "Everybody has been giving a good effort. We just haven't shot real well."

Spikers push foe to the limit

University Liggett School's varsity volleyball team took Detroit Dominican to the limit in the championship game before bowing out of the Class C district tournament at Bishop Gallagher.

The Lady Knights won the first game 15-10, but dropped the next two 15-10, 15-10.

ULS reached the final with an outstanding effort in a 15-11, 15-9 victory over host Bishop Gallagher.

"The exciting part about it is that everyone will be returning next year," said Lady Knights coach Ann Belloli. "The next few years promise to be exciting."

ULS' starting lineup this season consisted of three freshmen, two sophomores and a junior.

BASKETBALL: The Knights suffered their fourth straight loss by five points or less when they bowed to Center Line St. Clement 61-55.

St. Clement raced to a 15-2 lead and held a 22-7 advantage after one quarter. ULS became more aggressive on defense in the second quarter and cut the lead to 34-23 at halftime. The Knights' Ken Hubbard had nine of his 17 points in the second period.

ULS cut the lead to 50-48 midway through the final quarter, but the Knights missed two opportunities to tie and the Crusaders pulled away for the win.

Dave Martin scored 11 points for ULS, which ended the regular season with an 8-12 record.

JV HOCKEY: University Liggett School's junior varsity hockey team won its first Fellowship Cup championship in six years when it beat Cranbrook 4-3.

The week-long round-robin tournament also featured the Grosse Pointe Blackhawks, who edged the St. Clair Shores Flames in the consolation game for third place.

Although unbeaten Cranbrook might have had an edge going into the championship game, ULS got an emotional lift from its game with St. Clair Shores. Cliff Magreta scored the tying goal with 10 seconds remaining to put the Knights into the title game.

ULS scored four times in the first two periods to open a 4-0 lead. Magreta scored three goals and Dan Khatib notched the other.

Ken McIntyre played a strong game in goal for the Knights, holding off a third-period rally by Cranbrook.

500 ANIMALS ADOPT A PET
LOVABLE dogs and cats need good homes. For adoption information call: Northern Suburbs Animal Welfare League Volunteer. 874-5741, 463-7422.

PLEASE DON'T DELAY! SPAY or NEUTER YOUR PET TODAY!

An altered pet is a healthier and happier companion. Also, it spares you the grief and pain of having puppies and kittens destroyed when no homes can be found. Countless numbers of sweet, innocent little ones are euthanized every day in shelters across the country because a pet wasn't spayed or neutered. If we cut down on the numbers of unwanted litters being born, we will also cut down on the number of abandoned, lost and unwanted animals to destroy.

WE WILL BE HAPPY TO PROVIDE ADVICE as well as a LIST OF ECONOMIC SERVICE SOURCES Call us at: 891-7188

Are your attitudes about mental illness still in the dark ages?

Our notions about mental illness have a long, dark history. Age-old fears, resentments and scorn still poison our perceptions. Sadly, these misunderstandings keep us from seeing mental illness for what it really is: a distressing medical disease. A disease that afflicts over 35 million Americans.

But the stigma of mental illness keeps most of those afflicted from seeking help. Which is tragic. Because today there's more hope than ever before. In recent years, medical science has begun to unlock many of the mysteries of mental illness and discovered new drugs and better therapies to treat it.

In fact, today, 2 out of 3 people who get help go on to lead productive lives. For an informative booklet about mental illness, contact the American Mental Health Fund.

HARBOR PLACE

Low-maintenance luxury

By Tracy Wilson

After living in Grosse Pointe Park for 20 years, Judy Buchanan said she was ready for a change.

"We wanted a different lifestyle," she said.

So she and her husband Al went to see Harbor Place condominiums two years ago.

They liked what they found at the complex, located in St. Clair Shores near Nine Mile and Jefferson, and were the first residents to move into a terrace home at Harbor Place in September 1990.

The clincher for her, she said, was the view of Lake St. Clair.

"We can see water from every window," she said.

"There's a constant change of activity on the lake. It appears different every day."

Moving to Harbor Place meant an end to mowing lawns and trimming hedges — the start of a "low maintenance" life for the Buchanans.

"We travel a lot, and so we like the concept of having as much square footage but not the hassle of caring for a lawn," she said.

She's an agent for Leigh Willmore Travel in Grosse Pointe.

"It's nice when we go on a trip to be able to just walk out and close the door," she said.

Condominium fees — which cover exterior maintenance costs — range from $150 for the townhouses to $235 for the terrace homes.

Another attraction for the Buchanans was the proximity to neighboring Grosse Pointe.

"One of the good things is that I don't feel as if we've moved out of the area," she said. "We're still near the shopping and the Hill."

Harbor Place is a $10 million project financed by NBD.

The project is "in-house," which means that Harbor Place is designed, built and sold by The Blake Company, which is based in Grosse Pointe.

Blake began building the first terrace homes and townhouses at Harbor Place in October 1989.

"Those were higher priced units from $300,000 to $500,000, all of them with lake views," said Rob R. MacGregor, Blake vice president.

"Of those 15, only two townhouses are currently available."

Construction of the next phase, a series of $259,000-$289,000 cluster homes, started last October. The first two have already been completed and sold.

With a model home completed, prospective buyers can now get a better feel for what they may be buying.

"I think we're offering the market what it's looking for," said MacGregor. "It's a good floorplan for the way people want to live today."

Cathedral ceilings, skylights and windows galore are just a few of the highlights in the cluster homes.

The builders can also customize the units by moving interior walls as the home takes shape, or decorating with colors chosen by the buyer.

MacGregor said he expects construction to start on the next group of cluster homes within 30 days.

The homes feature attached two-car garages with the master bedroom on the first floor.

"They have all the features of a custom home without the maintenance worries," said MacGregor. "There's a great deal of pent-up demand for something downsized that still has the quality workmanship Grosse Pointers expect, as well as luxurious baths and closets only found in new construction."

The Blake Company also takes care of its customers after they move in.

"They followed up on post-construction," said Judy Buchanan. "The Blakes were really tremendous."

The other amenities at Harbor Place include well-landscaped grounds and a long wooden boardwalk extending into the lake.

For boating enthusiasts, Harbor Place has 26 slips for sale at the east end of the compound.

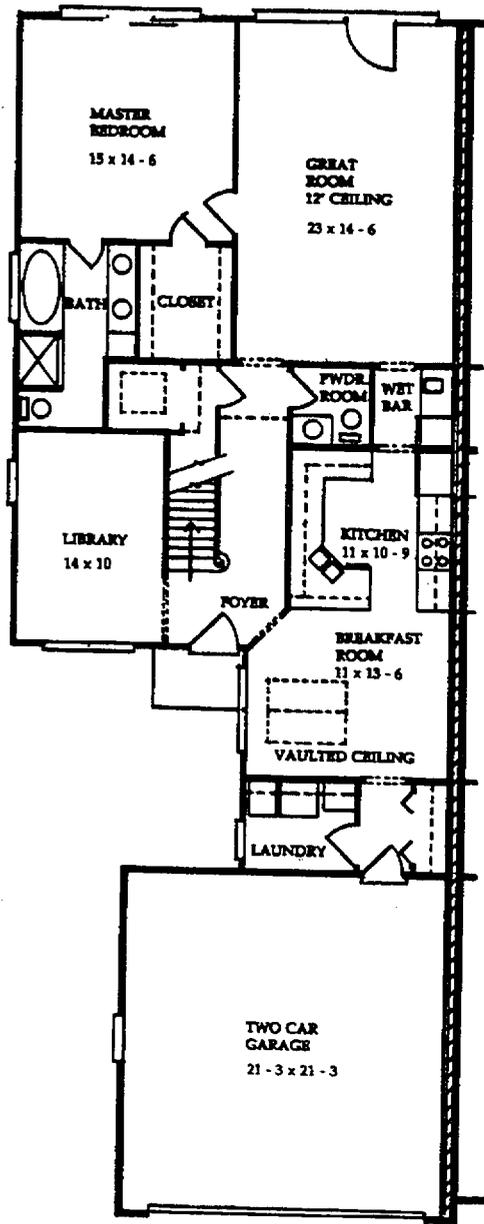

The slips in the harbor are being sold the same way separate condominiums are sold, MacGregor said. "They're treated as conventional real estate," he said.

The boat wells sell for $1,000 a lineal foot, with slip sizes ranging from 25 to 50 feet long.

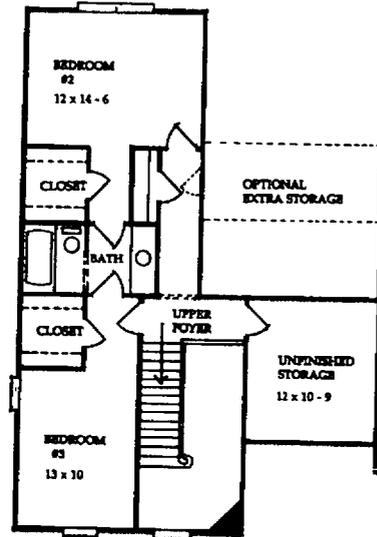

While Harbor Place attracts many Grosse Pointe empty-nesters, families are welcome.

Moving to a condo is a decision she doesn't regret, said Judy Buchanan. "It's so peaceful, being here so near the water," she said. "It's a great place to unwind."

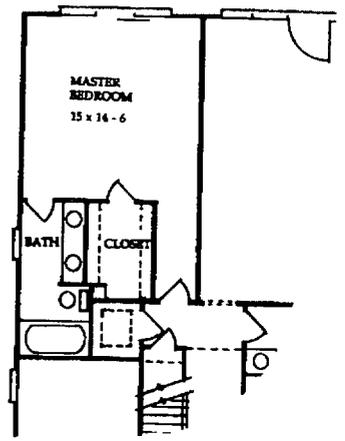

FIRST FLOOR

ALTERNATE MASTER BEDROOM

The floor plan of the cluster homes at Harbor Place allows for one-floor living with two extra bedrooms, a full connecting bath and a large storage room upstairs.

Judy Buchanan and her husband Ai were the first to move into a terrace home at Harbor Place. She likes the abundance of natural light and the views of the lake — not to mention the low-maintenance living.

The terrace condominiums at Harbor Place in St. Clair Shores overlook the complex's marina. The boat wells are sold individually.

Canton: Compact, split-level bungalow

Wanted: three bedroom house with two baths, roomy living areas, lots of light, less than 1,300 square feet. That is a lot of house in a small package, but the Canton combines these features and more in a compact split-level bungalow.

The lower level of the house contains the main entry, living room, kitchen and dining area. The cooking and eating areas are combined, divided only by a counter that can double as a work surface or eating bar. Kitchen entry from the semi-detached garage makes it easy to bring groceries in from the car.

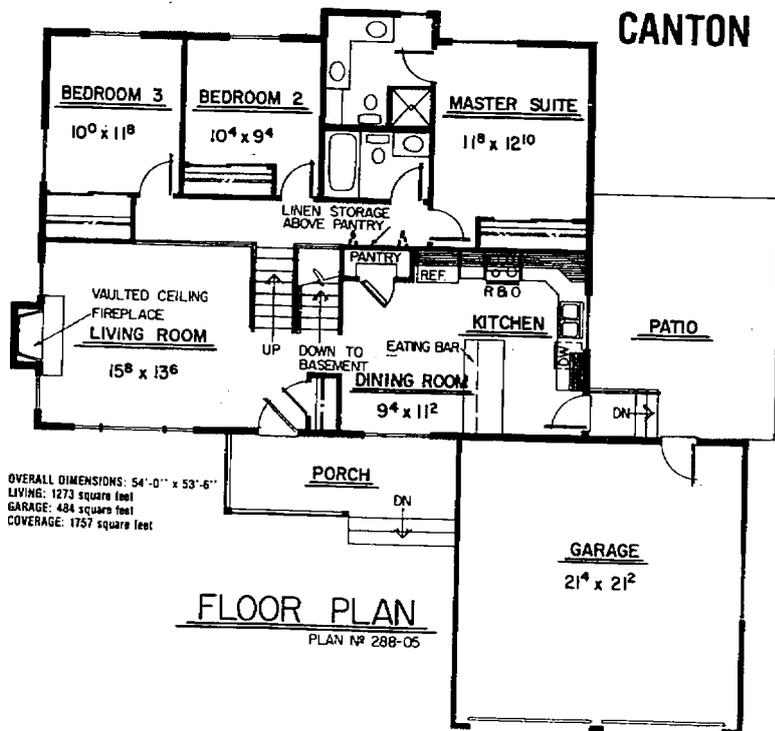

The upper level includes bedrooms and baths off a balcony hall above the living room. At some loss of privacy, this open design gives the Canton a spacious feeling despite its small size. One bath serves the main house and opens directly into the upper hall. The other is a private bath for the master bedroom. Placing the two bathrooms back-to-back cuts down on required floor space and plumbing.

Large windows front and back allow plenty of light into the living room, kitchen/dining area and bedrooms. At the same time, glazing has been minimized on the sides of the house to reduce heat loss, and to ensure privacy from adjacent lots.

The Canton is designed with an unfinished basement. As is, this space can be used for laundry and storage. However, with almost 700 square feet, the basement could also contain a family room, third bath, and an additional bedroom. With only interior remodeling, the Canton can make the jump from efficiency to luxury.

For a study kit of the CANTON (288-05), send $7.50 to Today's Home, P.O. Box 2832-T Eugene Ore. 97402. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.)

Household Help by John Amantea

Q. Many years ago, I applied plastic laminate to my countertops. Now, however, it's peeling away along the edges. Is it possible to repair this? If so, how can I go about it?

A. In most cases, I would say it's best to simply replace the laminate.

However, you could try reactivating the glue with heat, then apply pressure to the loose spots. Usually, though, the glue is too old to respond.

If you feel it's worth a try, apply heat slowly along the surface with a heat gun. Take care not to sear the laminate. Using a rolling pin, hard rubber roller or a softwood block and a hammer, press the laminate tightly to get good sticking power.

When all else fails, you must replace the countertop. This will cost you around $20 per foot to have done, and $12 to $14 per foot if you do it yourself.

Another alternative is to purchase stock countertops at a home decorating center. The hitch to this is, you must cut them to fit your cabinets and miter all inside and outside corners very precisely.

Q. When I purchased paint for a recent home project, the clerk informed me it would be wise to have a mildewcide added to the paint for an additional $4.50 a gallon. I was baffled. The cans clearly state that mildewcide was already added. Was this guy trying to make some extra money, or should I have followed his advice?

A. I'd go with the clerk in this instance. If the area you're painting has a mildew problem, or if your geographic location has the problem, you should add a mildewcide. What's in the paint already simply preserves it while it's in the can. It doesn't do a thing when you apply it.

The tin man

Long before billboards were popular, storekeepers advertised on the sides of barns. One eye-catching ad was made by Silas West about 1897. Several versions of his cut tin figure of a seated boy holding an ad for a store have been found. Other life-sized figures were used out-of-doors, including a life-sized three dimensional pressed and painted tin figure of a man who looked as if he were climbing up the side of the barn or hanging on the top of the barn doors. On his back was a sign for a local store. These signs were used in Pennsylvania and Ohio.

One famous pair of signs features three-dimensional figures of a man and woman, each standing next to a suitcase which has an ad for a local store on it. Any large old figural advertising sign is expensive. Collectors consider them folk art.

Q. You mentioned Ruskin pottery of England in your column. You said that Ruskin was made from 1898 to 1933 and that the potter made many pieces, including hatpins. I belong to the American Hatpin Society. We have never heard of Ruskin hatpins. Where can I learn more?

A. The Ruskin factory was in business to make a profit. The main products made at the pottery were dishes, vases, tea sets, lamp bases and pots for plants, and many small pieces that were sold to a variety of customers.

They also made roundels, flat discs glazed with several colors that appear to have a marbled finish. Large roundels were placed in frames and hung on the wall, and some of the small roundels were backed with pottery loops and used as buttons. The factory even put sets of buttons on cards that were sold in variety stores. Other roundels were set as brooches, necklaces, rings, pendants, cuff links, earrings and hatpins. We have seen metal boxes and furniture set with roundels glazed to look like blue enamel.

The hatpins, cufflinks, buttons and other jewelry items were not successful. The pottery would break if bumped too hard. If you are not familiar enough with the glaze used on Ruskin pottery, you probably would not recognize a hatpin made with their pottery. The small pieces were rarely marked.

Become a home repair pro

Leaking faucets, broken window panes and cracked walls are just a few of the common problems that try the patience and pocketbooks of homeowners and renters.

Most of these problems are too small to justify calling in a contractor. So they remain undone and a constant source of inconvenience and irritation.

However, a new book by a non-profit consumer group shows that most of these repairs are easier than they appear to be and within the ability of almost anyone. The book presumes the reader has no knowledge at all about doing home repairs.

It provides simple step-by-step, clear, precise directions, with hundreds of illustrations that can make a person who considers himself "all thumbs" into a competent do-it-yourselfer.

Its the next best thing to having an in-person expert going through the repair with you.

For those who are novices, the book starts with a picture of each tool, nail and screw necessary in home repairs and an explanation of how and when they are used. What to look for in diagnosing a repair problem, the tools and particular materials you'll need to fix it and how to go about it are simply stated with easy-to-understand drawings.

In addition to faucets, window panes and walls, the booklet has information on simple electrical repairs, how to fix screens and storm windows, plumbing and masonry repairs and even instructions on hanging pictures and shelves.

This book will definitely save you money on repair bills. In fact, many of these jobs can be done in less time than it requires to locate a competent repairman willing to do the work. "Small Home Repairs Made Easy" can be obtained by sending $5 (plus $1.50 postage and handling) to Consumer Education, 350 Scotland Road, Orange, N.J. 07050.

Body building for your lawn begins with the dirt

Your lawn is the basic unifying element of your exterior decorating plan that melds all other plantings or design elements — trees, shrubs, flower beds and rose gardens — into a harmonious whole. And if you have any doubt about your lawn's esthetic value, visualize yourself standing in front of your home with a lawn that is lush, green, well-manicured and without a weed in sight. Then picture your home fronted by a lawn that is matted, overgrown and scabbed with weeds.

While all homeowners want a lawn that is a pleasure to walk on and a joy to behold, they usually settle for much less. How much less depends on how much time, effort and money they are willing to invest. Not a lot is needed but enough is required to at least compensate for the abuses to which a lawn is subjected weekly. And it all begins at ground level.

All flourishing lawns start with a growing medium that is porous, nutritious, holds water, drains well and is packed with those minute soil organisms (bacteria and fungi), so vital to a lawn's good health. Unfortunately, most homes do not come equipped with such a medium, especially sub-division homes where sod has been laid on a skim of top soil over foundation clay.

While sandy soils give poor results, the most common culprit is clay. But there is a remedy for sandy and clay soils alike, a simple process that will allow you in one season to convert a sparse lawn into thick green turf.

The main weakness of lawn soils that are predominantly sand or clay is a shortage of the organic material or mineral material that adds porosity, holds water and nutrients where grass roots can reach them and encourages the proliferation of soil organisms which convert nutrients to a form that is easily taken up by the plants' roots.

There are products that can accomplish this without causing weed or disease problems — peat moss, vermiculite and lawn foods.

The recommended treatment is best started in early spring but can be initiated at any time of the growing year as long as it is repeated three times over a full season: spring, summer and early fall.

Just before your lawn needs cutting, mix in a large wheelbarrow or on a flat surface, peat and medium-grade vermiculite on a 3-1 basis and spread over the lawn surface just enough to give it a rich brown hue. Then use your lawn mower, set at two inches, to slowly spin-mix the top dressing and spread it easily over the surface. Add a fertilizer (preferably organic) with a formulation high in nitrogen such as 12-6-6, used according to directions.

Seed any bare patches, in spring and fall only, by simply roughing up the ground and spreading grass and seed before you add the peat and vermiculite. This is one place not to economize. Buy the best seed money can buy with a formula such as 60 percent Kentucky blue, 20 percent fescue and 20 percent perennial rye.

From that point on, cut your lawn twice a week with the mower set at two inches and the grass catcher off so that grass clippings will be added to the moisture-retaining mulch. Finally, make sure you give your lawn a deep watering once a week, counting rain purely as a bonus.

While you'll see the outstanding results after just one season's treatment, how many years you need to carry out the therapy depends on the original condition of your lawn. But one thing is sure — no matter how many seasons are necessary, the process is a sure way of body-building a lawn that is a pleasure to walk on and a joy to behold.

Home Tips

Indoor gardening idea — I always start my garden seedlings in the house in an egg carton. A friend suggested leaving half an eggshell in each cup of the carton, putting a little soil in it and then planting the seed. When the seedling sprouts, pull out the eggshell and all and plant it outside. It worked wonderfully.

Denise P., Dillsburg, Pa.

Organization tip — I was always misplacing receipts, records, warranties and other important papers. To solve this problem, I came up with the following organization method.

I bought several different colored file folders and labeled each file separately. I put medical records in red, monthly bill receipts in purple and warranties in green. As the need arises, I make a new folder.

This works well, and I can find anything in just a few minutes.

Loretta K., Shoshoni, Wyo.

Baby changing — As any new mother knows, it's a pain getting up in the middle of the night to change the baby's sheets.

When I make up the crib, I use two rubber mattress protectors. I put one on the mattress and put a sheet over it, then add the second mattress protector and another sheet.

It only takes a few minutes to remove the top sheet and protector, leaving the other sheet nice and dry. It's done so quickly, my baby doesn't wake up during the change.

Anita H., Paramount, Calif.

Stained vase — After scrubbing a vase with soap and water, the lime deposit stains still remained. I remembered hearing about using denture stain tablets to clean some stains. After filling the vase with hot water, I added a couple of tablets. A few hours later, I brushed the inside using a bottle brush, then rinsed with clean water.

It was amazing! It removed most of the stain and the vase looks almost new.

Rosa T., Clipper Mills, Calif.
