

Conyers, Collins divvy up Pointes, Harper Woods under redistricting

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

Congress members Barbara-Rose Collins and John Conyers will divide the Pointes and Harper Woods between them under a redistricting plan made public by a federal court panel Monday.

Not only did the plan, drafted by the three-judge panel, radically redraw district boundaries, it also renumbered the districts, making before-and-after comparisons confusing, at best.

Under the plan, Collins will not only keep Grosse Pointe Park and City in her new district, but she also picks up Grosse Pointe Farms. Her new district would be No. 15. Currently, she represents District 13.

Conyers, who now has no part of the Pointes or Harper Woods in his 1st District, would find himself running in a new District 14 that extends across northern Detroit and encompasses Harper Woods, Grosse Pointe Woods and Grosse Pointe Shores.

The redrawn 1st District under the tribunal's plan incorporates the Upper Peninsula and part of the northern Lower Peninsula.

Congressman Dennis Hertel, who now represents the 14th District and lives in Harper Woods, will find himself living in Conyer's district.

Rep. Sander Levin of Southfield, now representing the 17th District, has said that he will be running against Hertel in the new 12th District, which includes half of Hertel's current constituents, but not the Pointes or Harper Woods.

Hertel's press secretary, Mary Conklin, said Hertel fought in court to keep the Pointes together and regrets that goal won't be achieved.

The redistricting was necessary because Michigan, due to its failure to keep pace with population growth in other areas of the country as revealed by the 1990 census, is losing two seats in the House of Representatives.

When the federal panel unveiled its plan Monday, it rejected earlier Michigan reapportionment plans as unconstitutional. The representatives have until April 1 to challenge the panel's imposed boundaries.

U.S. Rep. David Bonior will hang on to his Macomb County district, including all of St. Clair Shores, and will gain all of St. Clair County.

First comes spring

... then comes snow, catching the folks who were all psyched up for an end to winter off balance. Spring arrived officially on Friday, and on Saturday, old man winter extended his stay. One of the two cement eagles at Neff Park, looking skyward, was heard to murmur: "I don't believe this." More snowy scenes inside.

Farms weighs more charges in teen's baseball bat beating

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

The Grosse Pointe Farms Public Safety Department has requested that two additional warrants be issued in connection with the March 13 baseball bat beating of a Grosse Pointe Farms teen.

The beating occurred during a party at a house on Ridgmont in the Farms, said Farms Detective Lt. Mark Brecht.

Matthew Bentley, 17, a student at Grosse Pointe South High School, has already been arrested and arraigned on a charge of felony assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than murder.

Bentley, of Grosse Pointe Park, is accused of striking another 17-year-old South student on the head, legs and chest with a baseball bat outside of the house on Ridgmont, after getting into an argument with him at the party, Brecht said.

A third youth tried to break up the fight but was beaten by other party-goers, he said.

"It turned into a gang kind of thing," Brecht said. "There was no way of telling how many people were at the party because it spilled outside."

Farms public safety officers were called to the scene about 11 p.m. By then, "the fight had pretty much run its course," Brecht said.

The baseball bat victim was taken to St. John Hospital in Detroit, where he was in critical condition the following day. He has since been released from the hospital.

At his arraignment before Grosse Pointe Farms Municipal Court Judge Matthew R. Rumora on March 16, Bentley stood mute and a not-guilty plea was entered on his behalf.

Bond was set at $25,000, and he was released after posting 10 percent of that amount.

His preliminary examination is scheduled for 11 a.m. on April 14 in Rumora's courtroom.

During the investigation by the public safety department, a 15-year-old girl who lives in Grosse Pointe City told officers that she had been assaulted by the baseball bat victim about half an hour before he was beaten by Bentley.

She said she was talking with a male friend at the party when she saw the baseball bat victim leave. She ran after him — to the corner of Kerby and Beaupre — and asked him what was wrong.

He turned around and punched her twice in the face, she said, cutting her lips. She then ran back toward the party and he followed, according to the assault and battery complaint she filed against him on Saturday, March 14.

He grabbed her by the back of her collar, threw her down and then started kicking her, she said. Then he told her to get up, gave her his coat, and told her to return to the party, she said. She went back to the party, and so did he, she said.

Pointe Dems choose Tsongas over Clinton, Brown

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor

Former Massachusetts Sen. Paul Tsongas was the big winner in the Pointes' Democratic primary Tuesday, March 17.

Tsongas? Wasn't he the guy who was expected to finish second behind Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton but instead ended up with a paltry third in the Michigan primary? And isn't he the guy who subsequently dropped out of the campaign because of lack of funds? That's all true, but Pointe Democrats did not follow the statewide trends.

Among the five Pointes, Tsongas garnered 1,240 votes, followed by Clinton's 913 and Californian Jerry Brown's 889.

Statewide, Tsongas only got 17 percent of the Democratic votes. Clinton led the pack with 50 percent, followed by Brown's 27 percent. But in the Pointes, he took 38.5 percent of the Democratic votes. In fact, he scored a sweep, winning in all five Pointes.

Clinton came in second in the City, Shores and Woods. (In the Shores he edged Brown by one vote.)

Brown beat Clinton in the Farms (two votes) and Park.

President George Bush trounced media commentator Pat Buchanan in all of the Pointes, racking up 4,772 votes to Buchanan's 1,331.

Bush took 68 percent of the state's Republican votes, followed by Buchanan with 25 percent, uncommitted with 5 percent and David Duke with 2 percent.

As if the closed or semi-closed primaries this year weren't confusing enough, the Democratic ballot was clogged with the names of former candidates who had already withdrawn from the campaign but not soon enough to have their names removed from the ballot.

Tom Harkin and Bob Kerry both were no longer running, but that didn't stop 29 voters from checking them off on the ballot — siphoning votes from the two remaining candidates.

In all, 6,509 votes were chalked up in the Pointes to the three Republican candidates and the uncommitted category. There were 285 uncommitted GOP voters and 140 uncommitted Democratic voters.

Pointe Republican voters outnumbered Democrats 6,509 to 3,218.

Voter turnout was 29 percent in the City, 25 percent in the Farms, 20 percent in the Park, 25 percent in the Shores and 24 percent in the Woods. Pointe-wide, the turnout was 24.6 percent.

Robert J. Hutton

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

Robert J. Hutton of Grosse Pointe Park has traveled all over the world, but he said he got "the biggest kick" recently, when he attended a grandparents' appreciation day at Trombly Elementary School.

He was the guest of his 6-year-old grandson, Charlie Mackinnon of Grosse Pointe Park.

"Charlie's teacher asked him if he could tell the class anything about me," Hutton said. "He thought about it and said, 'Yes. He was the boss at the bank.'"

"I just got the biggest kick out of that," said with a chuckle. "He was talking their language, using words that his classmates could understand."

Actually, Charlie was right on the money. His grandfather, now 83, was the president and chairman of the board of Standard Federal Bank when he retired in 1983, after 53 years of service.

Hutton has also been active in local politics and community affairs. He served on Grosse Pointe Park's board of review from 1957-54, on the planning commission from 1964-65, as a councilman from 1965-66, and as mayor pro tem from 1966-77.

One of the original trustees of the Grosse Pointe Park Foundation, Hutton is still on its board. He was president of

You can help feed the hungry

Grosse Pointers will once again have the opportunity to participate in the Gleaners Community Food Bank's seventh annual Kids Helping Kids school canned food drive. The drive will run from March 30 to April 10.

The Grosse Pointe public schools, the Grosse Pointe News and Republic Bank are sponsoring this year's campaign with Gleaners Community Food Bank. Collection bins are being placed in all the schools.

In addition to the food drive, Grosse Pointe South High School is planning a "Hunger Lock-In." Participating students would spend one evening in the school gymnasium fasting, discussing and reflecting on hunger and poverty.

The Grosse Pointe News will insert a grocery bag in the April 2 edition. Readers can fill a bag with groceries or use the coupon printed on the bag to buy a case of food for the hungry. Food donations can be dropped off at the Central Library or any of the public schools.

For more information about Kids Helping Kids, call Special Projects Coordinator Carmen Mattia at 923-7855. For information about the Buy a Case of Food program, call John Kastler 923-7855.

For eggheads

Pat Healy and Justin Christian, left, along with other students at Richard Elementary School (below) have been coloring Easter eggs as part of a contest sponsored by The Hill Association. The eggs were hung in the windows of Hill businesses today and will stay there through April 18, the day before Easter. Shoppers can guess how many eggs are in the windows and submit their estimate to Perry Drugs, Young Clothes, Something Special, the League Shop or First of America Bank. Those coming closest to the egg-sact number will win a gift certificate to Hill Association members' shops.

Phone assistance is more than a friendly call to start the day

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Every day, including Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, no matter what the weather, the Grosse Pointe Woods Police Department makes telephone calls to several elderly residents, just to make sure everything is OK.

The program is called Compute-A-Care, is free to Woods residents and is in its sixth successful year, said Woods public safety director Jack Patterson.

The 20 or so Woods residents who participate in the program receive a telephone call made via computer every morning at about 8:30 a.m. The computer tells the person on the other end — in a human-recorded voice — to hang up if everything is fine. If not, they are told to hold and an officer will be on the line immediately.

If no one answers, the phone call is repeated in 15 minutes and if there is still no answer, it repeats again at 9 a.m. If there is no answer after the third call an officer is sent to the house to determine what's happening.

When someone signs up for the program he or she gives the police the name and number of someone nearby with a key, the name and number of his or her doctor and a list of medications he or she is taking.

Patterson initiated the system in 1986 after seeing an automatic telephone dialing computer program at a convention. He thought it could be used to help the elderly.

"We have, on occasion, found people who had been dead for two or three days," Patterson said. "Some of them may have been saved by a program like this."

In fact, since the program — which cost just $4,200 to install — began there have been instances where people were potentially saved by the early phone call. One person had had a stroke and another had fallen and hit his head. Both stories had happy endings.

Bon Secours of Michigan Healthcare System's 55Plus offers a similar program called Caring Call.

Every morning a trained volunteer calls the dozen or so people who use the free service and spends 10 to 15 minutes on the telephone with them to make sure they're doing fine.

"We started it last May because the population is getting older and the number of elderly people living alone is rising," said Lori Vocino, a representative with 55Plus.

"We have a brief conversation, we talk about the weather, or the birds outside their windows. They're all people who don't have much contact with the outside world. Not all of them live alone, either. We have one woman whose husband is out of town a lot on business. It's really just a friendly call to start the day."

When signing up for the Caring Call program a person fills out a form identifying two contact people who should be called if there is no answer. They also list the telephone number of the local police if the two backups can't be reached.

Both services can be stopped temporarily if the person is going on vacation, or even daily if a person has an early morning appointment. They can also be used on a temporary basis for an elderly person whose caregivers will be out of town.

All information under both programs is kept confidential. The Grosse Pointe Woods program services only Woods residents, but the Bon Secours program services everyone in the Bon Secours market area, which covers most of the east side of Detroit.

For information about the Woods program call Officer John Albrecht at 343-2410, for the Bon Secours service call Vocino at 779-7477.

Oak and crab trees for sale

A red oak and a flowering crab are the featured trees in this year's annual spring sale offered by the Grosse Pointe Park Beautification Commission.

Adapting well to growing conditions in the Pointes, the oak (quercus rubra) is attractive as a canopy or street tree. It is one of the faster growing oaks, and once it becomes established, its foliage turns red in the fall.

The flowering crab (malus snowdrift) is a dependable and profuse bloomer with pink buds opening to white blossoms. It reaches about 18 feet in height. It has extra potential for picturesque branching in the multi-stem or multi-trunk form that is offered. Fall foliage color is yellow. Pea-size red fruit remains attractive on the tree until it's softened by frost and eaten by birds.

Both trees are $19 each. Order forms are available at the Park municipal offices at 5115 E. Jefferson. Orders must be received by April 10.

Sno' kidding

Park bar wants to expand; seeks city council's approval

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

Brian MacLean, owner of the Excalibur Park lounge, is seeking approval from the Grosse Pointe Park City Council to expand his establishment into the two store fronts on either side of the building.

The bar is located at 15005 Charlevoix, just south of Maryland in the Park. It's sandwiched between two storefronts that MacLean owns and uses for storage.

He wants to tear down the walls that separate the two storage rooms from the bar, and use the extra space to expand the area used by his customers.

Right now, he has about 1,500 square feet of usable space, he said. By knocking out the two walls, that space will almost double, he said.

On the west side of the building he would enlarge and remodel the bathrooms for both men and women. Booths would be installed along the opposite end of the building, and three windows would be installed in the easterly brick wall, facing the parking lot located on the corner of Maryland and Charlevoix.

However, MacLean has to overcome at least three roadblocks before he can implement his $50,000 to $70,000 remodeling plan.

The property is zoned B-1 office business, which does not allow liquor to be sold for consumption on the premises. Excalibur has been permitted to serve liquor within its current four walls because the bar was grandfathered in; it existed before the zoning ordinance did.

Establishments such as Excalibur that exist in non-conformance with the Park's zoning ordinance can't expand without a variance from the city council.

Excalibur also needs a variance to install the windows on the eastern wall of the building. A section of the city ordinance says that if a wall facing a side yard has windows, then the side yard must be at least 10 feet long.

There is no side yard to the east of Excalibur, only a parking lot, which is owned by Grosse Pointe Cable.

The third, and perhaps most controversial problem facing Excalibur involves parking.

Under the city's parking ordinance, an establishment that sells food and beverages to be consumed on the premises must have at least one off-street parking space for every 250 square feet of usable floor space.

Excalibur has no off-street parking of its own. It has been allowed to exist in non-conformance with the parking ordinance because, once again, it was grandfathered in.

There is some confusion, Park City Manager-Clerk Dale Krajniak said, over whether or not Excalibur would have to come up with the off-street parking spaces it's been lacking all these years if the facility were expanded.

At the very least, the bar would need six offstreet parking spaces if it expanded its usable floor space by 1,500 feet, he said.

Herold McC. Deason, Park city attorney, is investigating the matter.

MacLean's attorney, Dean P. Valente, said Grosse Pointe Cable has recently agreed to let Excalibur use its parking lot after 5 p.m. on weekdays and all day long on weekends.

Valente said that agreement gives Excalibur more than enough parking spaces for the proposed addition.

The problem, Krajniak said, is that Excalibur has been using the Grosse Pointe Cable lot all along, and that it's apparently not sufficient.

The city council, sitting as the zoning board of appeals, considered MacLean's plan Monday night.

About 30 residents attended the meeting. Many of them urged the council to deny MacLean's request, saying that the bar's expansion would just increase the parking and noise problems that have plagued residents who live near the bar.

Donna Carroll, who lives on Wayburn, said that patrons from Excalibur park in the alley behind her home, and that she has even found people sleeping in the alley.

"If a fire truck had to get in there, forget it," she said. "It's a safety hazard."

Dan Clark, who also lives on Wayburn, said that he has found bar patrons' cars parked in his driveway, and that customers of the several local bars in the area yell obscenities and urinate outside as they are walking to their cars.

Also, he and several other residents said that they hear loud music and the clanging of horseshoes coming from Excalibur until the wee hours of the morning during the summer.

MacLean had a $20,000, 600 square foot hardwood deck installed in back of the lounge last year. The waitstaff serves drinks to customers on the deck in the summer. To the north of the deck is an area where patrons can play horseshoes.

A few residents spoke in favor of MacLean's plan, and several more submitted letters in favor of it to the council. They praised MacLean for investing in the community.

"I suggest if there is a problem with parking and noise, then the solution may be police enforcement," one resident said.

Councilman James E. Robson Jr. countered by saying that the city's public safety officers have more important things to do.

"I don't want to see them tied to a bar, I want them out catching thieves," he said.

Mayor Palmer T. Heenan came up with an idea that the other council members dubbed "the Heenan compromise." He suggested that MacLean tear down the outdoor deck and limit the bar to indoor activities, in exchange for permission to expand into the adjacent storefronts.

That would reduce the noise in the area, "but it still won't solve the parking problem," Heenan said.

MacLean said he would get rid of the horseshoe pit if it meant that he could proceed with his expansion plans. He also said he would be receptive to ideas on how he could deaden the noise from the deck. For example, one resident said that shrubbery could act as a noise barrier. However, MacLean said he did not want to get rid of the deck.

After listening to residents on both sides of the issue and battling about solutions to the noise and parking problems for an hour and a half, the council decided to table MacLean's variance requests.

It will consider them again on April 13.

G.P. Woods to Harper Woods: pool-sharing proposal is all wet

By Donna Walker
Staff Writer

How about sharing?

That was the gist of a letter that Thomas A. Kasunic, mayor pro tem of Harper Woods, recently sent to the Grosse Pointe Woods City Council.

"As a neighboring community," Kasunic wrote, "many Harper Woods residents have long admired your community swimming pool. Such a pool truly creates a sanctuary for families to enjoy a summertime pleasure.

"Although Harper Woods has much to offer our residents, I regret to say that a community pool cannot be listed among our assets. Past efforts to marshal the necessary support for a community swimming pool have been unsuccessful, although well supported. Regretfully, it is all too apparent that this is not the proper economic climate in which to pursue this matter again."

As a solution, Kasunic proposed a pilot program that he said would be mutually beneficial to both Harper Woods and Grosse Pointe Woods.

Under his proposal, Grosse Pointe Woods would allocate between 100 and 125 family park passes to Harper Woods at a suggested cost of $200 each.

Harper Woods would sell the passes on a first come-first serve basis to its residents and would give the proceeds to Grosse Pointe Woods.

The Harper Woods passes would be issued in a different color than those of Grosse Pointe Woods residents.

Harper Woods residents would not be allowed to use Grosse Pointe Woods' parks on Memorial Day, Independence Day or Labor Day. Also, they would be restricted from using the tennis courts and they could not have more than three guests per family per season.

The Grosse Pointe Woods City Council would be allowed to change the rules or add further restrictions to the pilot program.

If 125 family passes were sold at $200 each, Grosse Pointe Woods would gain $25,000 to use for whatever it wanted, Kasunic wrote.

Also, the program "would surely enhance public relations with Harper Woods residents," and could "create the foundation and political environment on which our cities can expand mutual cooperation with a wide array of topics," wrote the mayor, a former Grosse Pointe Park resident. "I am certain that your recreation department/commission can accurately determine an appropriate number of passes to make available so that your facilities are not overburdened."

The Grosse Pointe Woods Citizens' Recreation Commission did not agree. Five of its members voted to recommend to the city council that Kasunic's proposal be rejected. The other four members of the nine-member commission were absent when the vote was taken March 10.

On March 16, the city council voted unanimously to adopt the commission's recommendation and deny Kasunic's request.

Councilman Peter Gilezan said that the city would continue to restrict the availability of its parks "for the benefit of the residents of Grosse Pointe Woods."

"That's all right, I understand their decision," Kasunic said by phone recently. "It just makes me want to find other issues where we can help each other out."

Grosse Pointe Woods and Harper Woods already have a mutual aid agreement when it comes to nabbing criminals, fighting fires and making ambulance runs.

"I'm hoping we can move toward more mutual things, for the benefit of both communities," Kasunic said.

Edward S. Egnatios

Egnatios is new director

Edward S. Egnatios was named executive director of The International Institute of Metropolitan Detroit effective Feb. 1.

Egnatios is a native Detroit of Lebanese descent and a resident of Grosse Pointe Farms. A graduate of University of Detroit High School, Egnatios earned his bachelor's degree from John Carroll University and his master's degree in social work at the University of Michigan. His experience includes managerial positions in the private retail sector and in non-profit human service organizations.

Currently chairman of the board of United Community Services of Metropolitan Detroit (UCS), the largest community-based and community problem-solving agency, Egnatios maintains relationships with the Kellogg and Kresge foundations, United Way, New Detroit, Inc., Detroit Renaissance Foundation, Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce, the State of Michigan, and many community and grass roots volunteer organizations.

He has more than 10 years experience as a volunteer on the strategic planning, budget and finance and fund development committees for UCS.

As executive director, Egnatios will fill the role of CEO of The International Institute, a United Way supported agency that provides immigration and social services to ethnic communities in the Detroit area.

"We will work to continue the outstanding traditions of The International Institute, serving as a beacon to people from around the world who come to America seeking freedom and opportunity," said Egnatios, the first Arab-American to fill the position of executive director for The Institute since it was founded in 1919.

"These traditions include celebrating the longstanding ethnic heritage that has made Detroit a world leader in the past," Egnatios said. "Building on this stable foundation we will strive to raise the multi-cultural awareness of our urban as well as suburban populations and bring better understanding among all races and religions."

Egnatios wants to help provide avenues of opportunity for citizens of metro Detroit in the new global marketplace, supporting international commerce and cultural exchange.

Egnatios also serves on the boards of directors of the Neighborhood Services Organization of Detroit, Services for Older Citizens, Inc., and the Racial Justice Center of Grosse Pointe.

In the past he has served on committees for the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce, on the Racial and Economic Justice Committee for New Detroit, Inc., and on the board and past president of the Northeast Guidance Center.

A member of the national Association of Social Workers, he also has held positions as the executive director of the Racial Justice Center of Grosse Pointe and the Midwest Association of Housing Cooperatives, Inc.

As a consultant with the State of Michigan, he established the Community Resource and Assistance Center, Inc., a non-profit agency dedicated to neighborhood revitalization and crime prevention.

The International Institute of Metropolitan Detroit is a human service agency providing immigration representation, family problem solving, employment and educational programs.

Supported by United Way of Southeastern Michigan, The International Institute acts as a peace bridge between greater Detroit's diverse ethnic communities, helping them maintain and share their rich cultural heritage.

In search of calm waters

Rituals such as church services and visitation receptions offer mourners a place to pay respects to the deceased and convey condolences to family and friends. These occasions provide a sense of closure for the survivors. Most of us feel a sense of abandonment when a loved one dies. Often our very foundations are disturbed, our buttresses removed and we feel immensely vulnerable. In my opinion it is important that we acknowledge that the steps we involve ourselves in immediately following a death are a necessary part of the mourning process.

However, I feel strongly that there should never be a total act of closure. Death is not unlike a large rock dropped into a lake, at first creating great big waves and then smaller ripples, until finally the surface is once again calm. I think it is imperative for the living to make an effort to catch the reflections that continue to appear on that calm surface and to utilize those reflections, remembrances, to sustain themselves. These memories can provide an enormous sense of comfort and must not be avoided.

In short, each of us must do what we have to do when sorrow attempts to overtake us. Visit a cemetery, start a journal, share feelings with a friend, laugh, cry, whatever works. We must allow grief into our hearts in order to process it. There is no timetable, no scheduling. It simply has to come when it comes. And if we don't postpone or fear this difficult reality which we all have experienced, we will be able to move forward and continue our missions here.

Some of us are able to release some of our emotions through writing poetry:

Illumination

An enormous limb has been ripped from our family tree. A bitter storm tore at the branch and after it had cracked, it succumbed and was severed.

The branch had borne fruit and had survived 82 seasons of hard winters and scorching summers. It had known 82 seasons of gentle spring rains and harsh autumn winds. And now, that strong limb has yielded and surrendered.

It is important to remember that the tree is still strong and vital. Its roots go deep and draw the strength necessary to support its trunk and the many remaining branches. New leaves will sprout from the branches and the tree will remain sturdy. Its bark will hold it together when the elements threaten its very existence and the tree will endure.

Yet, close to the top of this mighty tree, one can see there is more light than shadow, where once was a very strong limb. There remains a niche where a child can climb or a bird can sing secure in its arms, to dream of future springs and life's eternal offerings.

— Offering from the loft

Create family interaction

Wise Mothers will present a workshop, "Creating New Family Interactions," at Barnes School on Thursday, April 9, from 7 to 9 p.m.

SueAnne Magyar-Hill, Ph.D., a clinical psychologist, specializes in children, adolescent and family therapy.

If you are making all the decisions in your family because your spouse isn't involved, if chaos is overwhelming you, if you go unheard because you want to keep peace in your family, or if your opinion is negated, you should attend this workshop to discover ways to recognize and change the invisible demands that influence your interactions with family members.

To register or for more information, call 343-2178. Wise Mothers is a non-profit organization focusing on the needs of parents and the value of parenting. For a free copy of Wise Mother's newsletter, "Priorities," write 2260 Commonwealth Ave., Auburn Hills, Mich. 48326.

Only spoiler Brown blocks Clinton's path

Despite labor's foot-dragging, Michigan's Democrats may have climbed aboard the Clinton bus in the state's presidential primary just in time to drive the Arkansas governor to the 1992 presidential nomination.

Only spoiler Jerry Brown, the former California governor who stands little chance of victory himself and whose campaign is a tangle of contradictions, now bars the path of Gov. Bill Clinton of Arkansas to the Democratic nomination.

At the same time, President George Bush clinched his renomination in Michigan's Republican presidential primary by crushing challenger Pat Buchanan, whose high hopes were dashed when he captured only about a quarter of the GOP votes.

With the unexpected withdrawal of Paul Tsongas, the former Massachusetts senator, Clinton is the odds-on favorite for the nomination. He is the acknowledged Democratic leader in public opinion polls, delegates, primary victories and, not to be ignored, financing.

Even the last-minute surge that brought Brown second place in Michigan was caused chiefly by the labor leaders' attempt to deadlock the Democratic convention. Realistically, that finish provided him with little momentum although it kept his hopes alive.

Clinton won with 50 percent of the Democratic vote, Brown surprised with his 26 percent and Tsongas came in a distant third with 17 percent. In the Illinois primary the same day, Clinton captured 51 percent of the vote while Tsongas came in second and Brown third.

For the first time in years, Michigan's delegates will play an important role at the convention if the Clinton nomination is affirmed at the national convention.

Pointes vote big for Bush

The traditionally Republican Pointes gave President George Bush a healthy endorsement in the GOP presidential primary with more than three times as many votes as his major challenger, Pat Buchanan, received.

But on the Democratic side the Pointes unexpectedly went for Paul Tsongas, the former U.S. senator from Massachusetts, who bowed out of the race after the primary results were in.

Tsongas won by a margin of more than 300 votes over Gov. Bill Clinton of Arkansas, who easily carried the statewide primary. Former Gov. Jerry Brown of California came in a close third in the Pointes but second in the state.

Scattered votes were cast for U.S. Sens. Tom Harkin of Iowa and Bob Kerrey of Nebraska, who had withdrawn, and for Lyndon LaRouche, the extremist candidate currently serving time in a federal prison.

Overall, the Pointes went Republican by a 2-to-1 margin. The tally was 6,509 for the GOP and 3,218 for the Democrats. A total of 285 on the GOP side and 140 on the Democratic ticket voted for uncommitted slates for president.

Bush received 4,772 votes, while Buchanan won 1,331, which was a slightly smaller proportion than the 25 percent the latter collected in the entire state. But extremist David Duke got only 121 votes in the Pointes and 3 percent statewide.

Now it's on to November, with Bush regarded as a big favorite in the Pointes but facing a strong challenge from Clinton for the statewide vote.

Should Clinton win in November, Michigan will be able to claim some of the spoils of the presidential office.

But Michigan also could benefit from Bush's re-election. This state has been extremely supportive of his campaigns and it is significant that in November he will be seeking his sixth straight victory here. He'll also try to duplicate his record of 1980 when he took the presidential primary and won the state again in November on the Reagan-Bush ticket.

The president's frequent visits to the state, his string of state victories and the aid he'll get from Gov. John Engler and the state GOP organization are expected to be major factors in November.

Now, however, the state of the economy is seen as Bush's major problem in Michigan and elsewhere. If conditions improve by November, and there are hints of improvement, Bush probably can be re-elected unless Clinton campaigns aggressively — and the effort pays off.

In winning the Democratic primary, Clinton proved to Michigan and the nation that a Southern governor can win here with a moderate reform program and a unity appeal aimed at both blacks and whites.

That combination also may augur trouble for Bush whose appeal to blacks is still minimal. Clinton also restored other parts of the old Democratic coalition by regaining the support of many blue-collar and middle-class voters.

After the results came in from the presidential primary, the experts said Michigan is up for grabs in November. The nation will be up for grabs, too, it appears, as the winter of our discontent starts to wane.

A warning to House members

Two of the worst offenders in the overdraft scandal in the U.S. House of Representatives last week felt the voters' sting, which could be an augury of things to come for other congressmen, including those from Michigan, who had abused their perquisites.

One Democratic congressman, Rep. Robert Mrazek of New York, pulled out of his race for a U.S. Senate seat in New York and also announced he would not seek re-election to the House after his constituents condemned him for having written a large number of overdrafts.

A second Democratic congressman, Rep. Charles A. Hayes of Illinois, lost his bid for re-election in the Illinois primary and blamed his defeat on his constituents' reaction to his check-writing proclivities.

Some GOP leaders have been trying to pin all the blame on the Democratic leaders, and they do deserve some blame for their lack of supervision of House operations, but House Republicans as individuals must bear part of the responsibility, too.

After all, they as well as Democratic members benefited from the practice which permitted the members of the House to obtain what amounted to short-term loans at no expense to themselves.

Furthermore, several GOP members were among those who wrote the largest number of bad checks. Michigan's Rep. Robert Davis of the 11th District reportedly wrote the third largest number. And three members of President Bush's Cabinet have admitted writing overdrafts when serving as GOP congressmen.

In addition, the Republican whip, Rep. Newt Gingrich of Georgia, who is screaming the loudest that the scandal is all the fault of Democrats, conceded he himself had issued 30 or more bum checks.

We doubt that the overdraft scandal will be a partisan issue this fall but, instead, it is likely to cause the highest House turnover in years, a result which wouldn't be all bad.

Public TV & radio threatened

Public radio and TV often offer menus of information and entertainment that are different from those available on commercial networks and stations, and therein lies the source of their current troubles.

Some conservative senators, complaining that National Public Radio and TV stations that belong to the Public Broadcasting System are slanting their programs to the left, have been bucking the funding of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting. It supplies about 17 percent of the financing of public broadcasting stations.

The critics apparently have been emboldened by President Bush's quick dismissal of the chairman of the National Endowment for the Arts after Pat Buchanan's TV ads hammered the president about the quality of art supported by the National Endowment.

It's true that not everyone likes all the programming decisions made on public radio and TV nor all the art produced with National Endowment support. Yet fairness and impartiality should be judged on the basis of the full range of a station's programming and on all the work winning Endowment support.

In the Detroit area, viewers see their Channel 56 programs as part of a welcome smorgasbord that permits them to make choices among in-depth news reports from McNeil-Lehrer, documentaries, children's programs, adult dramatic and musical specials and other events.

But how can viewers and listeners continue to make their own choices if public TV and radio face the kind of intimidation with respect to programming that the senators are trying to impose?

Correction and amplification

We apologize to our readers and to Gov. Bill Clinton of Arkansas for connecting the political issue about his draft status to World War II rather than to the Vietnam War in a March 12 editorial.

Clinton, now only 45, was not born when V-J Day arrived in 1945. But he deserves more than a simple correction.

At the start, both wars were supported by a majority of the American people, and that support continued to the end for World War II, but as time went on, public backing for the Vietnam War fell off sharply.

By the late 1960s, the United States had sustained heavy losses, the public had grown disenchanted with the prospects of winning and many young people had sought to avoid the draft. That's when Clinton wrote his letter to his draft board.

In contrast, only a minority raised serious objections to World War II which ended for this country, as it had begun after Pearl Harbor, with broad public support as a patriotic war.

Letters

Yes to mini

To the Editor:

Today I found out that the Mobil Oil mini-serve station at Mack and Vernier in the Woods is going to convert back to a full-service/self-service station.

Mobil should keep that station a mini-serve station. It serves the community well. You can get your gas pumped, yet you only pay a couple of cents a gallon above the self-serve price.

I don't like pumping my own gas, so I don't like self-serve. Full-service stations charge a 20- to 40-cent premium for each gallon of gas the attendant pumps in the car.

If anyone else out there agrees, tell Mobil how you feel about this change. Let them know that there are people out there who want a little service, such as having gas pumped, without also being ripped off.

J.H. Young
Grosse Pointe Woods

Editor's note: The corporation has agreed to maintain mini-serve while adding one island of full service, according to an employee, who added that "the customers have spoken."

Docks

To the Editor:

The Grosse Pointe Farms City Council has decided to rebuild the small boat docks at the Pier Park. Unfortunately, they have not told boat owners when the docks will be available for use. The city raised rates, however, for the docks. I think that the city should refund boat owners the money that would have been used while the docks are still being built.

The park did not need the new boat docks. Our old docks were still in good shape. The pylons were stable, and the deck was still in good shape. The only thing that the city should have done was attach a new mooring platform.

In addition, the new higher rates may cause some people to dock their boats in other places. The price on a 19 foot well, for example, went up $35. In these tough economic times, every little bit counts.

Finally, the new boat docks will not serve owners any better. Unlike the large bay, our docks will not have running water or dock boxes at every well. The design is the same one that had been used before. There are much better designs available.

The city should refund some of the money to dock owners this year, at least in the small bay. When you look at the facts, it just makes sense.

Decked out and ready — for spring

There is, as I look out my window, a half foot of fresh snow covering my new, not-quite-finished deck.

The sight should depress me, but it doesn't. I know old man winter is rearing his hoary head and exhaling his last weary, wheezing breath. Considering his output, I think the old guy was taking vitamins this year.

But no matter — spring is waiting to leap into our lives. I know it by those tender, brave little green shoots poking through the frozen tundra alongside my house.

And I know it by the sight of my almost-finished deck that I have to jump to get off and on, because the stairs have not been put on yet.

Snow-covered decks, like snow-covered picnic tables, look so forlorn. That's because decks embody summer. They're for holding outdoor lounge chairs and gliders and citronella candles to keep the mosquitoes away and tables shaded by umbrellas.

There is nothing so relaxing as spending a lazy Sunday afternoon on the deck, reading the newspaper, sipping a cold drink and listening to the hum of insects. These are the visions I had when I saw the new deck taking shape.

It was time to replace the old one, which, with its rotting planks, was waiting to maim somebody. My husband built it years ago and it was a simple, functional addition to the back of the house. Every year, he'd replace a soft plank or two, stain the new boards to match the others and we'd be ready for another season.

Then he started dreaming of a deck twice as long as the original, to extend the length of the house. That's not a deck, I told him, that's a veranda. He found a builder who shared his vision.

And that's exactly what deck-building has become — an industry for visionaries with unlimited imaginations. Basic is out. Multi-level structures with built-in seating and special lighting and lush plantings to enhance the beauty of the wood are in.

And of course, the basic rule of home improvement applies here: You don't do it and quit. Paint a room, for instance, and the curtains have to be changed, the furniture and carpeting have to be cleaned or replaced.

So it is with our mismatched outdoor furniture with the lumpy cushions. It has to go.

On Saturday — a cold, but sunny day with no hint of the snow to come — we shopped for patio furniture. The sight of all those tables topped with colorful umbrellas warmed our hearts and reduced our checking account.

We found exactly what we were looking for and it only cost twice as much as we were planning to spend. Imagine.

But the style we chose comes with a seven-year guarantee. That's good. It should be paid off by then.

But we're not done yet. It might be called outdoor furniture but it really ought to be covered to protect it from the elements when it's not being used, we were told. They sell individual, customized covers for each piece or you can buy a tent-like cover that will protect the umbrella, table and chairs all in one swoop.

Then there was a whole line of color-coordinated accessories — plastic dishes that look like stoneware, matched tableware, place mats. And on and on. If there is such a thing as deck cleaner, I don't want to hear about it.

One of these days the snow will melt, the sun will shine and the bugs will come out. I'll be ready.

Fear no more

Detroit residents who are among the estimated 25 million Americans gripped by the fear of flying can find help without even leaving town.

American Airlines will offer a weekend seminar, AAir Born, designed to break the cycle of fear that keeps many people from flying.

On Saturday and Sunday, April 11 and 12, a professional counselor and an airline captain will conduct the program at Detroit's Metropolitan Airport.

The seminar includes touring a plane, its cockpit and cabins, and taking a short, round-trip graduation flight.

Enrollment fee is $345 and participants must be at least 16 years old. The class is limited to 25 people. For more information, call 1-800-451-5106 or 1-817-967-4194.

A taxing thought

Somebody with wit and brains is writing press releases for Michigan's Department of State Police. We got a terrific one with an important message that's worth repeating nearly word for word:

"April 15 is income tax day. Which means a lot of people are going to have a lousy April 14. They'll spend a late night with the adding machine and a pot of strong coffee, filling in blanks.

Still, there are worse ways to spend April 14. For example:

Abraham Lincoln was shot April 14, 1865.

The Titanic sank April 14, 1912.

So, no matter how bad your tax return looks, you probably won't have the worst April 14th in history.

That is, unless you forget to buckle your safety belt on the way to the post office.

You see, most traffic crashes occur within five minutes of home, which is about the time it takes to drive to the post office in a big hurry after a sleepless night.

Five minutes. Fortunately, a buckled safety belt doubles your chances of surviving a crash.

So buckle up. It's the best way to survive April 15.

Of course, you could plan ahead, set aside time and fill out your return well in advance.

Naaaah."

Birthday party

Four members of the Fort Pontchartrain-Elizabeth Cass chapter of the NSDAR, Maude Embury, Vicky Stock, Dorothy Schelter and Grace Elges, recently attended a memorial service for their friend and fellow-member, Blanche Scrymgeour, who died Dec. 1, 1991.

The memorial service was held on what would have been Scrymgeour's 99th birthday. She loved parties, Elges said, so after the service, Scrymgeour's family and friends had a birthday party for her.

Run, Spot, run

The ninth annual Rosey Mutt Derby — a fundraiser for the Michigan Humane Society — will take place at 1:30 p.m. Sunday, April 26, at the Michigan State Fair Coliseum.

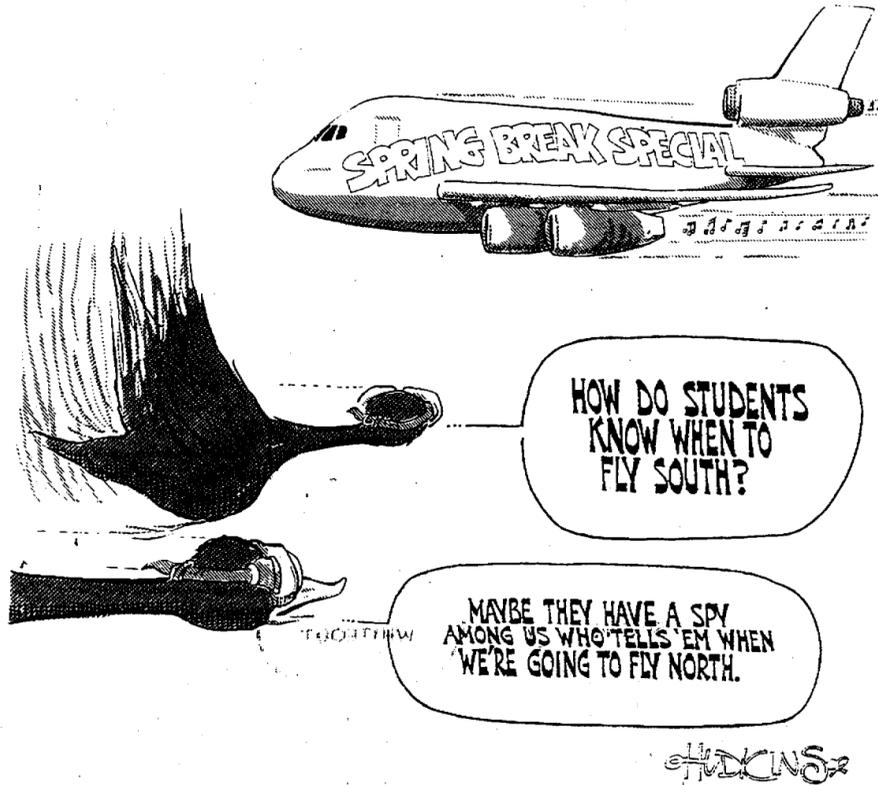

Dogs will compete in a 60-yard dash. Racing classes are based on dog sizes: mini, small, medium, large and maxi. And there will be a Grand Mutt Run, where winners of the five classes will race against each other for the title of Grand Mutt Champion.

Participants (the dogs, not the owners) must have collars and leashes and licenses. All dogs over 6 months must have current vaccinations.

For $6, any dog may enter. Proceeds will benefit the animals at the Michigan Humane Society's three Detroit-area shelters.

For an entry form, visit any MHS shelter or call 872-3400. Entries are limited to 500 dogs.

Spectators are welcome. General admission is $3. Each dog who pays an entry fee gets to bring one spectator, free.

Unwanted landfill and a polluting politician

Grosse Pointe's incinerator took a hit at last week's Audubon meeting at the War Memorial. After a speech about racism and the environment, which focused on the undeniable practice of siting dumps and incinerators in powerless neighborhoods (read "black"), someone got up and pointed the finger at Grosse Pointe.

"Ask your governments why there isn't more recycling," said an audience member before the question time ran out.

still is mostly white and working/middle class. But it lacks power because the population is small.

And Lenox Township doesn't want Grosse Pointe's hazardous waste. They're fighting it in the approval process, and they say they'll tax themselves to fight it in the courts.

So maybe we need to redouble our efforts to keep the bad stuff (mostly heavy metals, like mercury) out of the waste stream in the first place.

lot of money, but besides that, Simons said most people just hate the idea of letting Edison come in with big machinery and dig "huge" trenches and tear up their trees and ruin the lawn.

Then he talked to the company's line-burying department and began to imagine a block in Grosse Pointe with big trees, decks, swimming pools, three- or four-car garages (all obstacles to a buried line), not to mention engineering plans and title searches — and he came up with an even more horrifying estimate of $2.5 million for a 30-house block.

Simons said nobody ever asks about getting their lines buried (for obvious reasons).

"Everybody considers electricity pretty much a given in their lives — and they want it cheap," he said. "That's why our rates are based on (the cheaper) overhead lines."

No argument there. But it looks like the company has a vested interest in the status quo. Given an incentive to bury lines, it's inconceivable that they couldn't do it for less than $2.5 million per block.

Why is it cost-effective for the phone company to bury its lines?

Where I live, Michigan Bell has been burying its existing lines for several years. Sometimes it uses public right-of-way, which, as a practical matter, means we also end up with new sidewalks as part of the deal.

Sometimes it buys private right-of-way near the sidewalks, but inside residential yards. There are no garages or swimming pools to obstruct the path, and they can tunnel under driveways.

I called the Public Service Commission to ask about that.

"The electric companies have their back yard easement, so they'll use it, rather than paying for a new one," the man said.

Fine, but Michigan Bell only paid $1 a foot for a piece of our front yard — and we were glad to be rid of the poles.

The flap last week when Clinton Township trustee Kay Howard publicly called a developer "Jew boy" illustrates the bind the media is in when it has to report on marginal or bizarre officials.

Howard, who has been elected and reelected, has always been, shall we say, colorful. But, in the same way that the media used to refrain from reporting that Detroit's mayor swears a lot, reporters covering Clinton Township were cautious about Howard's irresponsible tongue.

The impossible bind: If you quote her, you give her wider currency and even some credibility; if you ignore her, you fail to let the public know what she is like.

The township supervisor said she is "no longer competent" to handle the job. But he, and we who have covered her since the mid-'80s, know she's always been like that.

But how do you say so?

Nancy Parmenter

Well, there have been some things to fault about the incinerator, but recycling isn't one of them. Grosse Pointe has probably one of the best participation rates anywhere — and an incinerator authority that has cooperated with the process.

Yes, the incinerator has had its compliance problems. Yes, it is located in a poor, black area of Clinton Township, an area that was home to several dumps before the incinerator was built. Yes, it would have been politically correct to build it in Grosse Pointe Shores, but we didn't. Short of moving it, there's only one thing to do now, and Grosse Pointe is doing it: Recycle.

Well, maybe one more thing. The authority plans a hazardous waste monofill to dispose of its ash. It wants to put that dump in Lenox Township, the poorest township in Macomb County — and the blackest.

Now, not to make too much of this, because after all, Lenox

Wow. It isn't news that a lot of houses get torn down in Detroit. In fact, the gripe usually is that vacant houses aren't torn down fast enough.

But listen to this: Even at the city's slow rate of demolition, the equivalent of 35 million board feet of lumber is torn down every year.

That's a lot of trees.

Anger at utility companies for their draconian trimming practices isn't limited to Grosse Pointe. Last month's Audubon magazine contained an op-ed piece by a furious tree-lover in Connecticut, who not only wrote about it, but sued.

So I thought I'd do a little research about the concept of burying utility lines. Hey, the Europeans have buried lines — and we sure hate being behind the Europeans.

Edison spokesman Scott Simons filled me in. The company's estimates sound like we could build a workable Star Wars system cheaper.

State law requires all utilities in new developments to be buried. But in an established area like Grosse Pointe, the cost of burying is seven to 10 times as high.

We started with an estimate of $3,000 per household. It's a

Slow going

To the Editor:

Last year at about this time I saw my mailman walking so slowly that he was almost standing still. He was delivering mail late in the afternoon and was accompanied in his slow march by a woman with a clipboard.

I once worked as a mailman when just out of college and immediately knew what was going on: Our mailman's route was being timed to see how long it took. If too long, the route would be adjusted by giving him streets to deliver, perhaps splitting the route between him and another carrier.

As I watched, our carrier oh so slowly walked up and down every walkway and kept carefully on the sidewalk from house to house. On all other days but this, he (like most other carriers) always walked briskly across every lawn and took every possible shortcut to save time. But this day it was as if the lawns were planted with land mines and his legs were encased in lead.

I noted there was no wind, rain, snow or ice to slow him down, and neither he nor his official "timer" were limping or in any apparent distress. They were simply using up as much time as they possibly could, to make it appear that this route took a lot longer to deliver than it really did.

When the woman with the clipboard finally went to sit in her car and wait, I approached her and asked if she was the inspector timing the route. She said she was.

I pointed out to her that the mailman she was timing was walking absurdly slow, and taking the longest time possible. She indicated to me that it wasn't her job to record how slowly he walked, or whether he was sticking to the sidewalks and walkways that he would ignore on all other days. All she was going to do was note the time it took, as if everything was legitimate here.

I asked the inspector if she realized the carrier was deliberately inflating his route, and I was amazed to hear her say, "Yes, but everybody does it." If this is true, the post office must have a lot of carriers who work short hours for a full day's pay.

That evening I talked to over a dozen of my neighbors about this situation, found that at least two of them had witnessed the same spectacle I did, and heard many stories of lost or misdelivered mail and other erratic mail delivery on our street. I also found that many of my neighbors had repeatedly complained about poor service to both our local post office (zip code 48230, Fox Creek Station on Jefferson) as well as the main post office downtown (Fort Street Station), without results.

I found this disturbing and wrote to Postmaster General Anthony M. Frank in Washington about the problems I have just described. A month and a half later a letter from Judy Coleman of the Consumer Affairs Office at the Fort Street Station assured me I should get a response from our local post office (Fox Creek) within 10 days, and the problem was "expected to be resolved."

The 10 days passed with no response, so I called the Fox Creek Station and was told the manager, Danny Altizer, was unavailable. His assistant said "the employee in question" has been talked to, but "the person you saw (a long-term substitute for our regular carrier) is automatically fast and he was just walking slow to not put too fast a time on the route." There was no word about the inspector who obviously had been part of the charade.

It wasn't a very good answer, but it seemed to be the only one I was going to get from this source, so I decided to hope for the best and believe I might have helped call attention to a fraud on the public that the post office would now correct.

A year passed. Last week I happened to look out my window and saw our regular mailman walking as slowly as he could, accompanied by another woman with a clipboard. Again, there was no snow or other physical reason for their pace. Again, two of my neighbors, one on each side of our street, saw the same thing. Again, I talked to the "inspector," and again I got the same kind of answers.

The cost of postage goes up each year. One reason may be that the U.S. Postal Service gives its carriers the option of padding their routes, the inspectors who are supposed to keep this from happening are in collusion with them, and not even a letter to the top will have any effect in areas like zip 48230.

Perhaps the post office ought to announce, at least two weeks in advance, to every patron on every route, the exact day the route is going to be timed. Then, we could all get out and cheer. Until some way is found to keep the inspectors honest, it may not make our carriers walk any faster that day, but at least watching grown men and women imitate snails will provide some wry amusement to those of us who pay for the show.

Maybe your own carrier is being timed this week. If you have a videocamera, keep it handy. You might have a winner on America's Funniest Videos.

No to tax

To the Editor:

The voters of the city of Detroit on March 17 made their views of the construction of a new baseball stadium perfectly clear: NO tax money should be spent on behalf of the Tiger baseball organization. By a margin of over 2 to 1, the voters have given their elected officials a mandate. I hope that certain members of Detroit City Council, the Wayne County Board of Commissioners, the county executive and the major were all listening.

Ed McNamara and members of his executive office have been spending county funds, and hundreds of hours worth of their valuable (and expensive) time, paid for by the taxpayers of Wayne County, on promoting a new stadium. It's time they got the message: stop. Such county spending has been without the approval of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners, which I have asked the state treasurer to investigate.

Ed McNamara's response to the vote was, "If I lived in Detroit and they wanted to spend my tax dollars, I wouldn't vote for it either." (Detroit News March 18). I challenge, then, Mr. McNamara to explain why he is spending county time and money. The Wayne County executive knows that a vast majority of the restaurant tax he proposes to impose to pay for construction would be paid by county residents. In addition, this tax capacity (which if available) should be spent for other pressing needs like schools and police protection.

Mr. McNamara also states that things would be different with a new owner. This argument ignores the basis for the vote. Spending scarce tax resources so that a private business can pay baseball players millions of dollars a year is unacceptable, regardless of whether the team is owned by one multi-millionaire or 10 millionaires.

I note also an article in Crain's Business which states that 90 percent of the area businesses oppose tax subsidies for a new stadium. (March 16, 1991). A new stadium may move jobs from one part of the city to another, but it does not create jobs, and in the long run may result in a net loss of jobs. The recent Heartland Institute Study reaffirms that there is no factual basis on which to base the claims for economic development made by the county officials.

Commencing this summer, the electors of Wayne County will be initiating an amendment to the Wayne County charter to prohibit public tax money from subsidizing any new stadium construction. It is sad that the voters must use the initiative process to have a proposal made law that enjoys such widespread and overwhelming popular support.

However, until the media and the development parasites stop the propaganda distorting this issue, we cannot begin to address the real issue of redeveloping the community around the current stadium. The Tigers have a lease until 2008, and we're going to hold them to it without paying ransom.

Richard D. Mange

A memorial service will be held this summer in Petoskey for former Grosse Pointe resident Richard D. Mange of Ishpeming who died March 19, 1992 at the Mather Nursing Center where he had been a patient for 2 1/2 years. He was 88.

Mr. Mange was born Oct. 12, 1903 in Lowell, Mich., and graduated from Lowell High School in 1921. He graduated from Albion College in 1925 and received his MBA from Northwestern University in 1927. He was also a graduate of the Rutgers University Stonier Graduate School of Banking.

His banking career included the Lowell State Bank, where he worked under the supervision of his father; the Guardian National Bank of Commerce in Detroit, the Hackley Union Bank & Trust Co. in Muskegon and the National Bank of Detroit from which he retired in 1968 as senior vice president.

In 1976 Mr. Mange and his wife Charlotte moved to Bay View while spending their winters at their home in Rancho Bernardo, Calif. Mr. Mange moved to Ishpeming in 1988.

He was a past treasurer of the Bay View Association, an honorary trustee of Albion College, a lifetime member of the Eivannis Club, a member of Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity and Wesley United Methodist Church in Ishpeming.

Mr. Mange is survived by sons Robert of Detroit and John of Burt Lake; daughter, Jeanette Ruusi of Ishpeming; sister Dorothy Bliss of Good Hart; 10 grandchildren; and one great-grandchild. He was predeceased by his wife Charlotte in 1988 and his brother Lester in 1991.

A scholarship fund has been established in his name at the Bay View Association, Conservatory of Music, Bay View, Mich.

Burial will be in the Oakwood Cemetery in Lowell. Arrangements were made by the Harris Funeral Home in Ishpeming.

Nickolaos S. Garkinos

Services will be held at 11 a.m. Friday, March 27, at Assumption Greek Orthodox Church in St. Clair Shores for Nickolaos S. Garkinos, 59, of Grosse Pointe Woods. He died of lung cancer on March 23, 1992, at his home.

Born in Greece, Mr. Garkinos was the owner of Meat Town on Division Street in Detroit's Eastern Market. He worked there for 23 years until his death, and was known as "Nick the Greek" to his friends and those around Eastern Market.

He was an avid sports fan and a member of Assumption Greek Orthodox Church.

Mr. Garkinos is survived by his wife, Aspasia (Bessie); daughter, Rene; son, Christos; and sister, Stella Ferris.

He will lie in state at the church from 10:30 to 11 a.m. Friday. Interment will be in Cadillac Memorial Gardens East Cemetery in Clinton Township. Memorial contributions may be made to the Hospice of Southeastern Michigan (Macomb).

Dr. Allan D. Pearsall III

Services were held Monday, March 23, for former Grosse Pointe resident Dr. Allan D. Pearsall III, 39, who died in Baylor University Hospital on March 18, 1992.

Dr. Pearsall was born in Detroit and grew up in Grosse Pointe, graduating in 1970 from Grosse Pointe North High School. He received a bachelor of science degree from Central Michigan University and his master's and doctorate degrees from Michigan State University. He was a professor of anatomy at Baylor University College of Dentistry in Dallas.

He was a member of the Texas Society for Electron Microscopy, the American Association of Clinical Anatomists and the Baylor University Scientific Research Society.

Dr. Pearsall is survived by his parents, Allan D. II and L. Ruth Pearsall of Marine City and Pinellas Park, Fla., and two sisters, Sandra Bade of Washington Township and Karen Colby of New Baltimore.

Interment was at the Cadillac Memorial Gardens East in Clinton Township.

Memorial contributions may be made to the American Heart Association, the American Lung Association or the Dr. Allan D. Pearsall Memorial Fund, Baylor College of Dentistry, 3302 Gaston Avenue, Dallas, Texas, 75246.

Nazlie 'Elizabeth' Housey

Services will be 10 a.m. Saturday, March 28, at Chas. Verheyden Inc. funeral home for Nazlie "Elizabeth" (Isreal) Housey of Grosse Pointe Woods. Mrs. Housey died March 23, 1992 at home after a long illness. She was 91.

Born in Lebanon, Mrs. Housey came to New York City as a young girl. In 1923 she married James J. Housey of Detroit and in 1971 they moved to Grosse Pointe.

Program booklet available

A booklet containing a comprehensive listing of Detroit Historical Society and Detroit Historical Department programs for 1992 is now available.

The booklet contains more than 20 pages of information on church tours, strolls, pub and clubs, bus tours, walking tours, lectures, workshops and seminars offered through all of the historical department's museums. Full descriptions of each program and the procedure for registering for the programs are included.

To receive a free copy, send a 9 1/2 by 6 1/2 self-addressed envelope with 58 cents in postage on the envelope to: Detroit Historical Society, 5401 Woodward, Detroit, Mich. 48202.

Supplies of the booklet are limited, so copies will be made available on a first-come, first-served basis.

Jayne T. Beer

Services were held Tuesday, March 24, at the A.H. Peters Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Woods for Jayne T. Beer, 84, formerly of Grosse Pointe Woods. She died March 20, 1992, at Bon Secours Hospital in Grosse Pointe City, after a long illness.

Mrs. Beer was living at the St. John-Bon Secours Senior Community Center in Detroit at the time of her death.

"Although her physical handicaps and pain kept her from doing everyday activities, they never once kept her from giving us warmth, laughter, happiness, and above all, love," one nurse wrote to Mrs. Beer's family.

Born in Binghamton, N.Y., she attended Albany Business College in New York and was a homemaker. She was a member of the Republican Club in New York and worked with Welcome Wagon in Grosse Pointe.

Mrs. Beer is survived by a daughter, Janet Davidson of Grosse Pointe Woods, and three grandchildren. She was predeceased by her husband, Theodore.

Interment was at Fairview Cemetery in Amsterdam, N.Y.

James Rose

James Rose, 61, of Grosse Pointe Farms died March 4, 1992, at St. John Hospital in Detroit. A private service was held at the A.H. Peters Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Born in Glasgow, Scotland, Mr. Rose was an automotive engineer for the Ford Motor Co. for 31 years.

He was a graduate of the University of London at Birmingham in England and was a member of the Society of Automotive Engineers.

He is survived by his wife, Hazel; daughter, Karen Rose Cartwright; son, Arthur James Rose; and two granddaughters. His body was cremated.

GM gets back to the business of building good cars

Overshadowed by the corporation's troubles, dramatized by the closing of the Willow Run plant, is the fact that General Motors is beginning to do the things that made it the world's largest automaker in the first place (it still is, by quite a bit) — mainly, building vehicles in each market segment which are the best or as good as the best at a reasonable price.

Chevrolet wrested the sales lead from Ford in the early '30s by building a car as good as Ford and by marketing it better. During the '50s and '60s, GM had leaders in every field. If you bought a Chevrolet or a Cadillac, a Buick, an Olds or a Pontiac muscle car, no one asked why. Each was as good or better than anything in its class.

But in the '70s and '80s, the Japanese policy of pursuing quality in design and workmanship began chipping away at Detroit, which had become far more bottom-line oriented. Buyers began to complain that all GM cars looked alike. GM tried to pass off small Chevrolets as Cadillacs, its small cars were underpowered and cramped and its cost engineering began cutting value in all products to the point that it could not be ignored.

But recent new designs give cause for optimism. The Saturn's start-up troubles got a lot of press attention, but the car itself is as good a small car as is available. It is roomy, nicely finished, peppy in performance, accurate in handling and it has a Japanese feel, which is good because it is aimed at people who like Japanese cars. Saturn's design is innovative, using a space frame to which body panels, both plastic and metal, are attached. And its price, starting at $8,195 base, makes it an unusual value.

In the four-door family car segment, the Buick LeSabre, Oldsmobile Eighty Eight and Pontiac Bonneville are three quite distinctive variations on the same platform. The LeSabre has been getting the most favorable press because it was listed by J.D. Power as being of highest quality, but the Eighty Eight is basically the same car built on the same line at Buick City in Flint.

The Bonneville is built in Wentzville, Mo., and combines the excellent design of all three cars with very distinctive styling. With prices starting at $18,599 for the SE (and climbing to $28,045 for the very hot SSEi), the Bonneville offers something for everyone in a very attractive package.

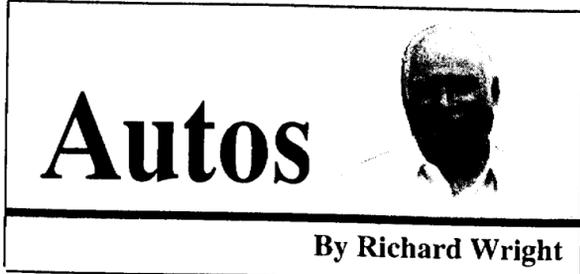

At the upper end of the market, Cadillac has moved aggressively into the world-class luxury segment with a real winner, its new Seville. Priced at $34,975 or $37,975 for the Touring Sedan, the new Seville re-establishes Cadillac in the forefront of automotive excellence.

One other surprisingly good competitor is the Chevrolet Cavalier Z24 V-6 convertible, restored to the lineup for 1992, augmenting the less spirited Cavalier RS convertible. The Cavalier Z24 was one of those happy products in which the parts seem to add up to more than their sum. Its price tag of $18,305 for the convertible ($12,995 for the Z24 coupe, $15,394 for the RS convertible 4) may sound a bit steep for a Cavalier, but if you are looking for a small sports car, this one is tough to beat.

Products are easier to change than images and perceptions, however, so it is going to take a while for GM to turn around. But there are some hopeful signs.

Eaton's rarely made move

Robert Eaton will do something only a few automotive executives have done — leave a high position at General Motors for another company. Eaton, a vice president of GM and chairman of General Motors of Europe, has accepted Chrysler Corp.'s offer to succeed Lee Iacocca as chairman of Detroit's No. 3 automaker.

GM insiders say that Eaton, 52, did not really have a shot at the top job, despite his very successful managing of GM of Europe, one of the maker's few bright financial spots. His age and the ages of others in line make it unlikely, they say.

Many observers and Chrysler Corp. dealers thought Chrysler Corp. President Robert Lutz had earned a crack at the top job, but the boss thought otherwise and the board of directors went along with him. After all, Chrysler did all right the last time it went outside the corporation to fill a top position.

Only a few top executives have left GM over the years, most notably John DeLorean, who quit in 1973 as vice president and group executive in charge of all car and truck divisions. With financing from dealers, celebrities and the British government, DeLorean began production of his own car in a plant in Northern Ireland in 1980.

Things did not go well and 17 months later, after building fewer than 9,000 DeLorean automobiles, DeLorean's dreams were shattered. The plant was closed and in 1982, DeLorean was charged with drug dealing in a bizarre attempt to keep the company alive. DeLorean was acquitted, but has been entangled in a number of law-

When DeLorean left GM, he was following in the footsteps of his mentor at GM, Semon "Bunkie" Knudsen, son of William E. Knudsen, a legendary automotive pioneer at both Ford Motor Co. and GM. Bunkie reversed his father's direction and left GM to go to Ford.

After making his name as general manager of Pontiac Division, where he changed Pontiac's image from stodgy to hot-test of the hot, Knudsen moved rapidly to general manager of Chevrolet, then group vice president and member of the board of directors and finally executive vice president in charge of just about everything. He was on the fast track to the top.

But in 1967, Ed Cole was named president of GM and Knudsen didn't like it. On Feb. 1, 1968, Knudsen quit GM and four days later became president of Ford Motor Co. Henry Ford II had just left at President Lyndon Johnson's urging to head the National Alliance of Businessmen.

In Henry II's absence, Knudsen was chief executive officer, a fact that did not sit well with Lee Iacocca, who was then head of North American Operations.

Less than two years later, Ford fired Knudsen, explaining "it just didn't work out" and 15

Geo Tracker: Likes, dislikes

The Geo Tracker sport utility is, we think, the VW Beetle of the '90s. Its looks and fun-to-drive character easily overshadow its shortcomings. Powered by a 1.6-liter four with 5-speed manual transmission, Tracker is available in 2WD and 4WD models, in hardtop and "canvas" convertible top. Prices range between just over $9,000 to about $13,000.

What we liked: An easy-to-drive "truck" assembled in a GM-Suzuki operation in Canada, Tracker turns on a dime, is highly maneuverable and easy to steer and shift, fairly peppy, and always a ball to drive.

What made us frown: Both front seats must be totally readjusted each time they are brought forward to put people or things in the rear seat area — which is often. Also, the plastic softtop seems to have a life of its own, cracking and groaning from wind on the highway.

Actually, given its thin material and clear plastic windows, it does a remarkable job of keeping road noise out. Another negative is the thick mid-ship or B-pillar, which obscures over-the-shoulder vision during lane-switching. But it houses the rollbar which, assuming you are belted in, should keep you from harm's reach in an emergency.

months later Iacocca was made president. In 1978, Ford fired Iacocca — again, "it just didn't work out" — and Iacocca took the reins at Chrysler Corp. at a very troubled time and turned it around.

Now it will be Eaton's turn to do the same.

Some top GM people who quit went on to greater glory. Charles Nash was president of GM in 1916, when William Durant regained control of the budding automotive empire after having lost it to Eastern bankers. He regained GM by starting Chevrolet and using profits from that successful company to buy up GM stock.

He then merged Chevrolet into GM and when the deal was completed in early 1917, Durant met with Nash, whom Durant felt had sided with the bankers against him. "Well, Charlie, you're through," Durant told Nash.

Durant became president of GM and he would be forced out again in 1920 and go on to found Durant Motors, which built the Star, the Flint, the Eagle and other nameplates.

Walter P. Chrysler resigned in 1920 as head of Buick and nursed troubled Willys-Overland back to financial health, then took on the job of doing the same for Maxwell and began building a new car at the old Chalmers plant in Detroit. From that base, he created the Chrysler Corp. in 1924.

The Cavalier Z24 convertible, restored to Chevy's lineup for 1992, is a surprisingly spirited package.

How to calculate car's cost per mile

Drivers know that MPG stands for miles per gallon and 4WD means four-wheel drive. Motorists who pick up a copy of AAA Michigan's "Your Driving Costs" will learn a new term, CPM, and its wallet impact.

The free pamphlet, now available at AAA Michigan offices statewide, explains how to determine the annual expense of owning and operating a vehicle by calculating the CPM — cost per mile.

A worksheet explains how to come up with the CPM by figuring ownership costs (insurance, license and registration fees, finance charges and depreciation) and operating expenses (gas, oil, maintenance and tires).

The booklet provides examples of how a CPM was calculated for a variety of 1992 vehicles driven 10,000, 15,000 and 20,000 miles a year.

For example, at 15,000 miles a year, it costs 33.5 cents per mile to drive a Ford Escort; 39.3 cents for a Ford Taurus L; and 43.5 cents for a Chevrolet Caprice. Those costs increased between 3 and 6 percent compared to 1991.

With the continued popularity of trucks and minivans, "Your Driving Costs" also includes CPM information on a Chevrolet S10 pickup (33.7 cents) and a Dodge Caravan (40.3 cents).

AAA has published "Your Driving Costs" since 1950 when gasoline sold for 27 cents a gallon and it cost 9 cents a mile to drive a car 10,000 miles a year.

Dean Erskine and Marjorie Licko as Nat and Essie Miller, standing, speak with their son, Richard, played by James Wheatley. Seated is Christine Lomasney as Mildred, the couple's daughter. They appear in Grosse Pointe Theatre's production of "Ah, Wilderness!" April 8-18 at the War Memorial Fries Auditorium.

'Ah, Wilderness' opens April 8

Grosse Pointe Theatre's 44th anniversary season continues when Eugene O'Neill's classic "Ah, Wilderness!" opens on Wednesday, April 8.

The play will run each evening through Saturday, April 18, (with the exception of Monday, April 13), at the War Memorial Fries Auditorium.

O'Neill's classic has been widely hailed as one of his finest plays, and the Grosse Pointe Theatre production promises to be a memorable evening.

"Ah, Wilderness!" is set in a large small town in Connecticut during the July 4th holiday in 1906." It is primarily the story of the local newspaper publisher, Nat Miller, and his family.

Richard, Nat's son, becomes the main focus of attention (a part widely believed to be based on O'Neill himself) when it is revealed he is involved in a budding love affair with Muriel McComber, the daughter of the newspaper's biggest advertiser, David McComber, the hardware merchant.

Richard's unique and progressive views on life, love, and literature are tame by today's standards, but were easily viewed as scandalous at the beginning of the century.

The cast includes many long-time Grosse Pointe Theatre members as well as several newcomers. Dean Erskine, one of the group's few lifetime members, takes on the role of Nat Miller. Marjorie Licko appears as Essie Miller, Nat's wife.

Newcomer James Wheatley takes on the challenging role of Richard Miller. Kelly Marie Babel will portray Muriel, and Harry Stutt will portray David McComber.

Appearing as the other Miller children will be Ron Bernas as Arthur, Christine Lomasney as Mildred, and Kevin McGinness and James Thomas alternating in the role of Tommy.

Bill Schwedler will take on the role of Sid Davis, Essie's brother and a reporter for Nat's newspaper. Dorothy Kotcher will appear as Lily, Nat's sister.

Also in the cast are Pat Villegas as Nora, the maid, Brian Kurt Cressman as Wint Selby, Valeri Devine as Belle, Richard Marcel as the bartender, and Al Lombardini as the salesman.

The production is under the direction of Don Cilluffo. Producer is Mary Stutt.

Technical direction is provided by Tom Gallagher, and stage manager is Sal De-Mercurio. A set design, incorporating Grosse Pointe Theatre's new turntable, is by Lois Bender.

Tickets are $10 each. Many good seats are still available by calling the theater's hotline at 881-4004.

Performances for most evenings begin at 8 p.m. The Sunday evening performance, April 12, begins at 7 p.m. Group and student rates are available for the Tuesday evening performance, April 14.

The War Memorial offers buffet dinners before most performances. For information about the dinners, call 881-7511.

Environmental illness is topic

An estimated 20 percent of the population suffers from chemical assault caused by perfumes, cleaning agents and pesticides that severely damage the body's vital systems.

What are the signs of environmental illness? How can it be prevented or the effects lessened?

Merle Kindred will talk about "Environmental Illness: Bodies in Crisis" on Wednesday, April 1, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 32 Lakeshore.

Do not wear any scents — perfumes, scented deodorants or powders — to class. Tickets are $8 a person and includes coffee and sweets.

For more information, call 881-7511.

Opposites

"Are You The Opposite Sex Or Am I?" a guide to more effective communication between men and women, will be presented at the War Memorial on Monday, April 6, from 7 to 9 p.m., by Lorraine Stefano and Elliot Gold. The fee is $15. For more information or to register, call 881-7511.

Flea market to raise funds for lighthouses

The effort to save two Civil War-era lighthouses on Lake St. Clair will get another financial boost from BOAT/U.S., the nation's largest organization of recreational boaters.

On Saturday, April 11, the BOAT/U.S. Marine Center in Warren will host its second boating equipment flea market to support the non-profit group, Save Our South Channel Lights.

The proceeds from gate admissions and table rentals to more than 40 local boating clubs will help fund the group's effort to preserve the historic range lights just off the southeastern tip of Harsens Island in Lake St. Clair.

The lights were completed in 1859 and have been familiar navigational aids for generations of Great Lakes mariners. Unfortunately, erosion and neglect have taken their toll on the structures.

The flea market will be held at 2212 E. 14 Mile Road in Warren, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is $1 a person. Table space is still available. For more information, call 939-5050.

Pointe Community band to perform April 1

The Grosse Pointe Community Band will present its winter concert on Wednesday, April 1, at 8 p.m. in the Grosse Pointe South High School auditorium.

The band will open the program with four selections: "Noles of the Mystic Shrine" by Sousa, Holst's "Jupiter" from "The Planets," a medley by Nestico titled "My Kind of Towns," and the "Wedding Dance" from the Symphonic Suite "Hasseneh" by Jaques Press.

The newly formed Grosse Pointe Community Dance Band will make its debut following intermission. They will perform "A String of Pearls," "Stardust," "Cute" by Neal Hefti, featuring Jim Hazelwood on drum set, and "Serenade in Blue," arranged by band member Scott Gwinnell. Admission to the concert is free.

The Grosse Pointe Community Band was established in 1988. It rehearses Tuesday nights and is offered through Grosse Pointe Community Education.

Members of the Grosse Pointe Community Band rehearse for the April 1 concert.

The band's summer session begins on June 9 and ends on July 30 with a concert closing Grosse Pointe Village's "Music on the Plaza" series.

Musicians interested in joining the band should contact either the Department of Community Education at 343-2178, or Ralph Miller, conductor of the band, at 343-2240. Auditions are not required.

Beauty clinic planned

The Tompkins Community Center in Grosse Pointe Park will hold a free beauty clinic for Park residents only from 4 to 6 p.m. Tuesday, March 31.

A consultant from Jacobson Beauty Salon will discuss hair and skin care and answer questions.

Women and girls 10 and over are invited. To make a reservation for "Introduction & Consultation to Hair Care and Skin Care," call the center, located in Windmill Pointe Park, at 822-2812.

French students stage 'Spectacle'

Students - 29 fifth graders - from the town of Le Chesnay, France, will present an evening of French song and dance on Monday, March 30, at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium of Pierce Middle School, 15430 Kercheval in Grosse Pointe Park.

The visiting French students are part of the French-American Back-to-Back Program, in which French and Grosse Pointe students exchange visits.

The performance, "Spectacle," is open to the public. There is no admission charge. The evening presents American students and adults with an opportunity to experience and appreciate a different culture and to practice French language skills.

The schoolchildren arrived in Detroit March 19 and will stay with host families in Grosse Pointe until April 9. They are attending classes at Richard Elementary School and will visit Greenfield Village and the Henry Ford Museum, Eastern Market, Pewabic Pottery, Cranbrook and a Ford Motor Company plant. Local students will introduce their French guests to Halloween, which is not celebrated in France, by re-creating the holiday with costumes, a party and trick or treating.

Twenty-six local fifth graders will travel to Le Chesnay in May to complete the exchange program.

'West Side Story'

The Dominican Players of Dominican High School will perform the musical Friday and Saturday, April 3 and 4, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, April 5, at 7 p.m. in the school auditorium, located on Whittier one block off of I-94. Assisting the Dominican girls with the production are students from Notre Dame, East Detroit, Grosse Pointe South and Martin Luther King high schools as well as students from Wayne State University and Macomb Community College. Director is Jeanne Chrisman of Harper Woods, vocal director is Gregory Roach of Grosse Pointe and musical director is David Muszinski of Warren. Tickets are $3.50 general admission and $3 for groups of 10 or more. Call 882-8500.

BirthCare™ at Bon Secours.

It's a child's game, but it's also good advice.

Bon Secours was the first hospital in the Detroit area to offer single-room maternity care. This alternative to traditional childbirth allows the mother-to-be to stay in the same warm, comfortable room throughout her delivery. We call it BirthCare, and when we first introduced it, other hospitals were still wheeling their laboring mothers from one room to another.

We thought it was a good idea to design a delivery around the mother, not a delivery around the hospital. That's why BirthCare has become so popular. And that's why a lot of women have chosen Bon Secours as their hospital. Maybe you should, too.

For more information about BirthCare, a tour of the unit, or referrals to qualified obstetricians who can answer questions about your pregnancy, call 779-7911.

Smith again urges City to toughen rental ordinance

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe City councilwoman Myrna Smith is once again asking that the city look at its rental ordinance and come up with a new one that is tougher.

Currently, the city ordinance states that a certificate of occupancy is good for three years. A landlord must have that certificate updated after an inspection by the city every three years or when a tenant moves out, whichever occurs later. It is the responsibility of the landlords to get the certificates of occupancy updated.

Smith, however, says many landlords don't notify the city when new tenants move in and as a result some rental properties haven't been inspected in years.

She asked the city administration to look into the cost of putting a list of all rental properties on a computer so inspections can be conducted more regularly.

Currently, city workers keep a watch for people moving in or out of the area. Police officers are asked to look for moving vans and to report to officials. City workers also keep an eye on local classified ads to determine if a rental property is vacant and if it has a valid certificate of occupancy.

Smith, a realtor, also keeps abreast of rental properties available and reports those to city administrators.

"It's very spy-like and it's not very effective," Smith said. "We're missing some; in fact we're missing most of them. If we put every income property on the computer, we wouldn't miss them any more."

She said as a real estate agent, she sees many rental properties she believes are unsafe and that something needs to be done.

The system Smith is proposing is much like the approach used in Grosse Pointe Park since 1988. The Park's ordinance calls for a mandatory inspection every four years.

Marie Bergeon, who coordinates the program, said it works quite well.

Beginning in 1988, Bergeon made a street-by-street inventory of rental units in the Park and counted approximately 1,500. A unit is a single apartment or flat, although a building may have four apartments.

After each inspection the landlord is given a list of work to do to bring the property up to code. If the landlord doesn't do the required work he or she is referred to the city attorney.

"We have a lot of absentee landlords here," Bergeon said. "We have taken quite a few people to court."

When it's time for another inspection, Bergeon sends a letter to the landlord who must pay the $40-per-unit fee for the inspection.

"All the landlords are well aware of the ordinance and many are coming in to buy the inspection before we send letters to them," she said. "It's worked quite well for us."

Grosse Pointe Woods has an ordinance that is similar to the one the City has, but the Woods has far fewer rental properties and the system there seems to work well, according to Woods Assistant City Administrator Phil Belcher. Rental properties are inspected after a change in tenants and the certificate of occupancy is good for two years.

"We haven't had any problems with it," Belcher said.

Grosse Pointe Farms requires an inspection whenever there's a change in occupancy and it is the landlord's responsibility to tell the city. Farms City Manager Rich Solak said some cases slip through the cracks, but on the whole, the system works well.

The Shores has so few rental properties, there isn't a need for an ordinance.

Smith has been trying to get the city to look at its ordinance for several years. Last November, the council studied it and the consensus was to continue the current ordinance, but to notify all landlords of their duties.

In January, the administration sent a letter to all owners of income properties detailing the current ordinance.

"The situation won't get better if we don't do something about it," Smith said.

4 win theater scholarships

Grosse Pointe Theatre, currently celebrating its 44th anniversary season as one of Michigan's leading community theater groups, recently held its annual scholarship competition for local high school seniors who plan to continue their education in the performing arts.

The competition was held at the rehearsal building on Fisher Road on March 14. Four students received scholarships.

Amy Phillips, from Grosse Pointe South, was awarded $700. Christopher Robert Pearce, from Grosse Pointe North, also received $700.

Receiving scholarships of $300 each were Jennifer Andary and Patrick Muer, both from Grosse Pointe South.

Each candidate was asked to prepare a short dramatic or interpretive presentation which was then evaluated by a panel of judges. Arlene Schoenherr, a long-time member of Grosse Pointe Theatre and director of Bishop Foley's drama program, acted as coordinator of the event.

Nancy Sortor, Lois Bendler and Rosemary Kleffman, theater members with extensive educational and theatrical experience, judged the event.

For more information about next year's event, call the theater at 886-8901.

THE LAW VIEWS DRIVING AS A PRIVILEGE. BMW PREFERS TO VIEW IT AS A SKILL.

In Germany, before you could get behind the wheel of a car like the new BMW 325i sedan, you'd first have to do a bit of homework. Between twenty to thirty intensive driving lessons, in fact. At a total cost of well over 1,000 dollars.

All just to obtain a driver's license. Needless to say, in a country where there are highways that have no speed limits, the skill of driving is taken far more seriously.

Perhaps that's why at BMW, we design our automobiles not simply to make the most horsepower or the most luxury, but rather, to make the most of the driver's skill.

Take the rear suspension system of the 325i sedan, for example.

A unique, patented design, this multi-link system increases straight-line and lane-change stability and reduces both squat and dive, while still maintaining the perfect ride-quality balance. A ride that's not so to be uncomfortable, but not so soft as to insulate the driver from the realities of the road.

A feature that, when combined with engine-speed-sensitive power steering, a high-performance/low-maintenance engine, and an interior designed around the driver's needs, adds up to a very different kind of automobile.

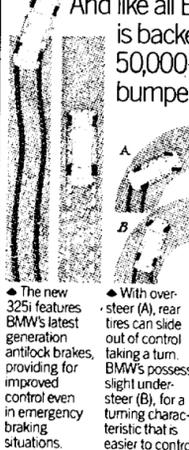

The kind of automobile that acts not as a separate entity, but as a natural extension of the driver's will.

And like all BMW's, the 325i is backed by our 4-year/50,000-mile bumper-to-bumper warranty,* and a nationwide Roadside Assistance plan you can call on at any time should the need arise.**

So if you agree that driving is not simply a necessity, but rather a skill that should be taken seriously, perhaps you should test drive the car that takes the driver seriously.

THE ULTIMATE DRIVING MACHINE.

◆ The new 325i features BMW's latest generation antilock brakes, providing for improved control even in emergency braking situations.

Farms block grants to go to Mack streetscaping, senior services

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Farms will use its federal Community Development Block Grant money to improve Mack Avenue and help the elderly.

On Monday, the Farms council approved spending the $85,200 allocated to the city on streetscaping and for two projects to help the elderly.

The lion's share — $62,200 — will go to further improvements on Mack Avenue. John Grissim and Associates, a landscape firm, is currently drawing up a master plan for streetscaping and median improvement on Mack from Fisher to Moross.

The plan is expected to provide overall design direction for sidewalk replacement, landscaping, parking, lighting and handicapped ramps.

Because the project is so large, it will be done in stages, according to city manager Richard Solak. The total cost of the program is expected to be between $200,000 and $300,000, Solak said.

Some $69,000 from last year's block grant allocation will be used this summer for improvements along Mack. The projects to be done this summer haven't been specified yet and won't be until the master plan is completed, probably within a month.

The Pointe Area Assisted Transportation System will receive $12,000 of the Farms block grant money.

PAATS provides door-to-door assisted mini-bus transportation for low/moderate income seniors and handicapped people in the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods. While the system receives federal funding, local governments have been providing funds — primarily block grant money — to keep it going.

Services for Older Citizens (SOC) will receive $3,000 from the Farms this year. That money is earmarked for a SOC program that helps prevent abuse and neglect of seniors. Last year 20 seniors were helped; the number will be closer to 30 this year, Solak said.

The remaining $8,000 will cover program administration costs.

The Farms has received block grant funding since 1979. The more than $1.2 million received in that time has gone to projects like water main improvements, handicapped ramps, seniors' programs and other city-wide improvements.

Maire safety improved; one request remains

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Although school officials are generally happy with the way Grosse Pointe City has responded to their concerns about the safety of Mair's Elementary School students, the city council recently received a letter asking for just one more thing.

The letter, from school board president Carol Marr, was discussed at the council's meeting last week. Marr asked the council to install a traffic light or hire a crossing guard at the Waterloo and Notre Dame intersection because of the number of students crossing there.

City officials, including the City's traffic engineer, aren't sure it's necessary, but they have been studying the situation for months and said they will continue to study it.

A crossing guard would cost approximately $1,400 yearly and would have to be hired by the City, according to assistant city manager Chris Bremer.

State law stipulates that municipalities, not school districts, hire crossing guards.

"It's not even all the time," Marr said. "A crossing guard would primarily be needed at 3:15 p.m. when the students are let out from school. In the morning there's no problem, and at lunch it's not too busy, either."

Last year the Maire PTO looked into ways to increase the safety of the school's students. Parents were picking up and dropping off students on both sides of Waterloo, forcing youngsters to dodge cars and cross the street in the middle of the block.

A plan for a one-way drop-off area, which included selling some land to Kroger for expansion, was thrown out when the PTO board voted against selling school land for development.

The PTO and City officials met to discuss the problem and came up with several steps to make the area safer. The PTO also sent a letter to City administrators detailing suggested improvements.

Most of the improvements were made, including elimination of a few metered parking spaces at the corner of Notre Dame and Waterloo to create better sight lines, repainting pedestrian crossing areas and "school crossing" signs on the pavement and installing better above-ground signs.

"We're very appreciative of the efforts made," Marr said. "but there is still this one concern."

Wheelcover thefts

Wheelcovers were stolen from four cars, parked in front of or in the driveway of homes in Grosse Pointe Woods, sometime between March 17 and 18. Three of the targeted cars were in the 1900 block of Huntington and one vehicle was parked in the 2000 block of Oxford.

New flowering trees to bloom on Park streets this spring

Centurion and Red Jewel flowering crabs and Aristocrat ornamental pear trees, planted in the fall, will provide a show of blossoms on many Park streets this spring, according to J.K. Abbs, Grosse Pointe Park beautification commission member.

Both of the crabs, the Centurion, with rose-red flowers, and the Red Jewel, with white blooms, are distinctively upright and narrow, making them suitable as a street tree and especially valuable for use under overhead utility wires where their limited mature height can eliminate the need for expensive and often unattractive pruning.

Pea-size red fruit on both of the crabs is ornamental in autumn, remaining into winter or until eaten by birds.

Branch angles of the Aristocrat, with white blossoms, are wider than other pears, and thus less subject to storm damage and permitting easy passage of overhead wires.

Divorce seminar planned

Grosse Pointe attorney William O. Lynch will speak at a seminar on divorce and related topics for psychologists, clergy, social workers and other professionals who provide marriage counseling.

The free seminar, to be held Thursday, April 16, at The Townsend Hotel in Birmingham, will be sponsored by the law firm of Buesser, Buesser, Blank, Lynch, Fryhoff & Graham.

Lynch is a partner in the firm, which has offices in Bloomfield Hills and Detroit. He will discuss alimony, property settlements and domestic violence.

The seminar will help counselors and attorneys work together for the benefit of clients. Other topics to be discussed will be legislation governing child custody and support, living wills, "the right to die," malpractice protection for counselors and their right to refuse some kinds of testimony in divorce court.

Professional marriage counselors who want to attend the breakfast seminar can call the firm at 642-7880 for reservations or a brochure.

Beware the Ides of March

Sixth graders at Brownell Middle School performed "Julius Caesar" for their classmates and then traveled to Wayne State University's Hillberry Theatre to see Shakespeare's play presented there. Brownell cast members are, from left, Kevin Hall as Caesar, Jenny Sammons as Brutus, Jason Vesey as a Roman soldier and Nick Kypros as Marc Antony.

Student Spotlight

Brendan Light

The following story was written by Brendan Light, 9, a third-grader at Trombly Elementary School. He is the son of Maureen and Sheldon Light of Grosse Pointe Park.

I Can't Stand it!

Yesterday was the worst day of my life. It was Monday, my unlucky day.

Light

pression on my mom's face was indescribable. "Brendan," she exclaimed, "what do you expect, french toast on rye?" "No," I retorted, "dog food!" My mom left the room for only a moment. She soon came back with a blob of glop on a plate.

It all started when I had breakfast. It was Drippy Tidbits, my least favorite cereal. "I would rather eat dog food," I screamed.

"What's that?" I hollered. "Dog food, like you ordered," she replied.

So I didn't have any breakfast that morning. I'll have a better time as the day goes on, I hoped.

Well, I was wrong by a long shot. First, the school bully, Horace, socked me real, real hard in the nose and, boy, did it swell up.

"Well, the doctor won't have to use his little light thingie to look up his nose," teased Horace.

"Cut it out," I cried. And you know what, he was right. And that's the way I got the nickname, Nostril Eyes. I was so busy thinking of my new nickname, I got Fs on all my tests.

When I got back home that day, my sister, Caitlin, whispered, "Hi, Nostril Eyes."

"You hipamakanic-lambas," I screamed, and slapped her in the head.

"Go to your room for the rest of the day," my mom yelled.

Luckily, I had a TV in my room. That night my mom came in and put a plate of something and a glass of milk on the table. When she left, I looked on the plate and saw ... dogfood.

Graham M. Irwin

The following poem was written by Graham M. Irwin, 11, a fifth-grader at Ferry Elementary School. His parents are Denise Irwin of the Woods and James Irwin of Detroit.

I Used To Want To Be

I used to want to be an ancient ruler of Egyptian people, Now I want to be a magnificent artist who draws pictures of morning dawn in June on a small, minute patio. I used to want to be a merciless white lion in the snow-capped mountains of the Himalayas, Now I want to be a glorious blue and gold macaw soaring high above the clouds. I used to want to be a warm summer day, Now I want to be a dark winter night. I used to want to be a great Olympian doing the 100-yard dash, Now I want to be an underwater submarine pilot traveling like lightning through the deep, dark ocean. I used to want to be a giant, green-backed lizard wandering around the cracked ground of the steamy desert, Now I want to be a great white rhino in the green jungles of Africa.

4th freedom tour planned

The Michigan Coalition for Human Rights is planning Freedom Tour IV-1992 "A Journey of Discovery."

Applications and brochures for the 1992 summer tour are now available by calling or writing the office at 831-0258, MCHR, 4800 Woodward, Detroit, Mich. 48201. This year's tour will take place in July. Interested candidates should be high school sophomores, juniors and seniors with an interest in social justice issues. Application deadline is April 30.

The tour, sponsored by the Michigan Coalition for Human Rights, offers an invaluable hands-on educational experience for high school students; it enables 30 to 40 high school students of diverse backgrounds to travel together by bus on a 15-day tour throughout the South and learn first-hand about the American Civil Rights Movement.

The tour this year will broaden in recognition of the anniversary of Columbus' arrival in the Western Hemisphere, examining the impact of the past 500 years on Native Americans, African Americans and Hispanic Americans, their history and struggles of justice. The goal of the tour is to develop a new generation of leaders committed to social justice issues.

For more information about the tour, call 831-0258.

Tower newspaper wins top award

For the third consecutive year, The Tower, Grosse Pointe South's student newspaper, has received the Gold Crown Award, given by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association to the 12 best high school newspapers in the country, according to Principal John B. Artis.

The award was presented at the press association's national convention last week at Columbia University in New York City. Chris Marston, editor of the paper this year, represented the staff.

The Tower was nominated for the award following evaluation of six issues published last year. The Tower scored 941 points on a 1,000-point scale and received All-Columbian recognition for special achievement in design and business.

The judge's comments: "Fantastic newspaper! The portrayal of Grosse Pointe South High School is upbeat and exciting. South students are indeed fortunate to have a newspaper of this caliber every week."

The Tower has won Gold Crown recognition in 1985, 1987, 1990, 1991 and 1992. The paper won Silver Crown honors in 1988 and 1989.

In addition, two writers took honors in the Gold Circle competition.

Mark Frymire won first in the nation for feature photography and Sarah McCandless took second in the nation for editorial writing.

Editor of The Tower last year was Sara Bayko. Colleen Dailey was deputy editor, McCandless and Joel Peterson managing editors and Nick Johnson business manager.

Koski wins science symposium

Katrina Koski, a student at Grosse Pointe North High School, has won the 28th annual Southeastern Michigan Junior Science and Humanities Symposium held March 5 and 6, at Wayne State University.

The event, sponsored by the WSU College of Education and the U.S. Army, recognizes talented high school students and allows them to share the results of their research with other scientists and researchers participating in the symposium.

Koski won for her presentation on "An Investigation of Internal Variables Affecting the Performance of a Radio Telescope." Last year Koski was third runner-up in the judging.

Vijay Singh, of Birmingham, a student at Country Day High School, was first runner-up with his presentation on "Comparisons of Channel Forming Activity of a Wild-Type OmpC Perin with an OmpC Deletion Mutant, RAM122."

Edward Kim, a Detroit resident, also of Country Day High School, was second runner-up with a presentation titled "Reaction of Ketones in the Superbasic Media of Demethyl Sulfoxide and Potassium Hydroxide."

Korey Kiepert, of Fraser, who attends Fraser High School, was third runner-up with a paper titled, "The Effects of Ozone on the Transformation of E. Coil With Plasmid DNA."

Studies confirm our philosophy. Distinguished Professor Benjamin C. ## Greeting card contest begins

The Michigan Humane Society has begun calling for entries for the fourth annual holiday greeting card contest, to be conducted now through July 1.

The contest, sponsored by Compton Printing in Farmington Hills, offers three categories: traditional, humorous, and religious.

Last year more than 100,000 holiday greeting cards were sold at the MHS shelters, the Paw Pourri Gift Shop in Royal Oak and through the society's annual holiday gift catalog. Each year the proceeds from the sale of the cards benefit the homeless animals cared for by the society's three shelters.

Cash prizes will be awarded to the first, second and third place winners in each of the three categories, with first place awarded $150; second place, $75; and third place, $25.

The artwork of the 1992 Holiday Greeting Card Contest first place winners in each category will be printed on MHS holiday cards with the artist's name appearing on the back of each card. All cards will be displayed in a special holiday catalog that is mailed to more than 90,000 friends and members. Anyone with an artistic touch can enter. To submit a piece of artwork for consideration, follow these rules and regulations:

1. Both a dog/puppy and a cat/kitten must appear in the artwork.
2. Entries must be a minimum of 5 inches x 7 inches up to a maximum of 14 inches x 17 inches.
3. Entries must be the original artwork of the artist.

4. Submitted artwork must not have been published previously.

5. The artwork selected by the Michigan Humane Society will become the property of and copyrighted by the society and will not be returned, but may be used in various publicity and educational activities. All other artwork can be picked up at the Paw Pourri Gift Shop in Royal Oak.

6. The society will not be responsible for lost, stolen or damaged artwork.

7. Artwork must be clearly labeled on the back with name, address and telephone number of the artist.

8. Entries must be submitted by July 1.

9. Mail entries to: MHS Holiday Greeting Card Contest, 7401 Chrysler Drive, Detroit, Mich. 48211.

Fourth Amendment: Sanctity of home

This is the eighth in a series of articles about the Bill of Rights, courtesy of the Commission of the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution.

By prohibiting "unreasonable searches and seizures," the Fourth Amendment deals with very significant needs and rights of the people.

Here, too, there had been abuses of government power before the Revolutionary War when British soldiers and customs officers made general searches of homes and buildings looking for smuggled goods without judicial authorization.

The Fourth Amendment undertook to spell out the right Englishmen had long proclaimed that "a man's home is his castle where even the King may not enter."

The essence of the Fourth Amendment is that, before law enforcement officers can make a search, they must have a neutral judicial officer decide whether there is some good reason for it. The amendment is very pointed in requiring that a warrant be secured from a judicial officer "particularly describing a place to be searched and the persons or things to be seized."

To satisfy this requirement, a law enforcement officer must convince a neutral judicial officer that it is reasonably likely that evidence of a crime — such as stolen property or illegal drugs — will be found in the place described in the warrant.

In modern times, the Fourth Amendment has been applied to search techniques that the framers could not have envisioned, including aerial and electronic surveillance, wiretapping and drug testing in the workplace.

By preventing the government from conducting a search and invading a citizen's privacy when there is no reasonable basis to believe that the search is likely to produce evidence of criminal activity, the Fourth Amendment protects not only individuals who are involved in criminal proceedings, but guarantees every American the right to be free from unreasonable government intrusions that are not authorized by law.

OPEN HOUSE

Sunday, April 5, 1992
from 2:00 to 4:00 p.m.

University Liggett School has a heritage of more than 100 years of providing the finest quality college preparatory curriculum for young boys and girls. Our academic program is second to none. Twenty percent of our senior class has been recognized in the National Merit Scholarship competition. We also have the unique ability to combine creative and performing arts opportunities with competitive interscholastic and intramural sports.

Our classes are small, averaging between 12 and 15 students, and our student/teacher ratio is 9:1. In our lower school, specialists instruct our students in art, dance, music, computer, library, science and physical education.

We are proud of our diverse student population, which comes from 48 zip code zones in Southeast Michigan. If you can't attend our Open House but desire more information, call the admissions office at 884-4444 for a brochure or to arrange a personal tour of our facilities.

Community Ed offers classes of all kinds

Registration for the spring term of non-credit classes for adults scheduled by the Department of Community Education will begin at 7 a.m. on Thursday, March 26, at Barnes School, 20090 Morningside Drive, in Grosse Pointe Woods.

The office will be open until 7 p.m. that day to accommodate people who cannot stop by during normal office hours.

In addition to its roster of tried-and-true classes, the spring schedule includes 37 new-for-spring offerings. These are designed to appeal to a wide range of interests — from "Art History: Bruges and Ghent," to "Baseball Card Collecting" and "Dog Grooming for the Pet Owner."

A feature of the spring/summer program is "A Salute to the Big Bands," a free concert to be held Wednesday, April 22, conducted by Ben Grycan and the Grosse Pointe Music Makers.

A special single-session class, co-sponsored with Grosse Pointe Citizens for Recycling, is "Hands-On Composting." Those enrolling for the class will learn various techniques from an expert from the University of Michigan in a local backyard.

Other new attractions in the spring program are two workshops by Wise Mothers, "Creating New Family Interactions," and "Television and Young Lives."

For those interested in arts and crafts, Community Education will offer "Watercolor Workshops," "Twist Paper Basket," "The Easter Bunny," "Potpourri Heart," "Heart Doily," "Handmade Paper: Art Form of the 90's," "Air Freshener Lamb" and "Fat Bear."

For those interested in art history, in addition to the session devoted to the artists of Bruges and Ghent, three other classes are available. These include a five-week session, the third part of the art history survey begun in September, and single sessions on "The Dutch Masters," and "Van Gogh."

Travelers to Spain for the World's Fair and the Olympics will be interested in two illustrated travelogues, "Barcelona and the North," and "Seville and the South."

The complement of cooking classes includes two new healthy offerings: "Fat Modified Quiches" and "Low-Fat Express: Sumptuous Salads."

In the realm of personal enrichment and popular psychology are "Take Charge of Your Life," "Men and Women: Relating Together" and "Get That Job Now!"

In the realm of finance one may consider "All About Mortgages," "Build for the Future" and "Financial Engineering."

Those wishing to improve their communication skills may wish to consider the two-part offering, "Eight Steps to More Powerful Writing." Business owners and managers may also consider "How to Publicize Your Company or Organization Without Hiring a PR Firm."

An activity of interest to those fans of local history is "Grosse Pointe Farms' Hamilton Park," co-sponsored with the Grosse Pointe Historical Society.

A topic of great contemporary interest during the 500th anniversary of Columbus' discovery of America is "The Columbus Debate."

Massage" and "Telescope Workshop."

The 28-page brochure containing full information on the spring/summer program of the Department of Community Education was delivered to all residences in the school district. Copies are available at the Central Public Library and branches in the Woods and Park, as well as at Barnes School, 20090 Morningside Drive in Grosse Pointe Woods.

Keeping in touch is not as easy as it used to be

According to a San Francisco psychiatrist, Americans are fast becoming a nation of citizens who do not talk to each other.

He offers as a case in point the telephone answering machine, an unfriendly, wily device designed to accept or screen out what you have to say.

It's a convenience for the owner. If a person doesn't want to talk to you, he or she just doesn't answer or return the call.

If they do call back, it's at their convenience and too bad if it's an inopportune time for you to talk. Besides, what you had to say might not matter anymore. It was a good idea when you made the call. Now you could care less.

Another drawback of this one-way form of communication, or actually no communication at all — contact would more aptly describe it — is its capacity for generating anxiety or stress.

Prime Time

By Marian Trainor

You deliver a message but there's no real guarantee that it gets through. You worry. Did you talk loud enough? Is the machine working? Did the tape run out?

All of these frustrations and doubts arise out of the disappointment you experience. If you hadn't wanted to talk to a real live voice, you wouldn't have called in the first place.

This brings up the problem of need. Suppose you are depressed and you've got to talk to a certain person who has a way of smoothing things out, someone you can count on.

The trouble is you can't count on the phone. Instead of that warm reassuring voice, you find yourself, in your desperate need, blocked out by an electronic gadget.

Another annoying feature of this block to human communication is some of the attempts

When people talk on the phone, they are fulfilling an important function of human need — the need to communicate — and that means talking and listening. By talking they share their thoughts with another person. By listening they learn and a bond is formed.

Communication has always been important to people. Early civilizations communicated across distance by fire. Indians would build a fire, cover it with a wet animal skin, then quickly uncover it, creating smoke signals. Everyone received the message and not one person ever got a phone bill.

Messages carried by homing pigeons were another means of keeping in touch. These birds often traveled 700 miles a day. On a comparative scale, they were at least as efficient as some mail deliveries.

It was a simple direct form of communication without the complications of downed wires or hearings on rate hikes or interrupted service.

What a magic moment that must have been. People who had been separated by miles could now have the pleasure of hearing a loved one's voice.

The first telephone was a clumsy device. It had no receivers, only a mouthpiece. It was necessary to speak into the mouthpiece, then quickly hold it to your ear to listen for a reply.

We've come a long way on that original design.

When people talk on the phone, they are fulfilling an important function of human need — the need to communi-alone, well under the poverty line of $522 a month that the government says marks the boundary of destitution.

And despite all of the Medicare benefits paid out, seniors today must spend more of their incomes for health care than they did before Medicare was enacted.

Moreover, many of the elderly don't even qualify for those programs, such as women who worked sporadically or never worked at a job covered by Social Security. Millions more just don't know they are eligible for SSI, Medicaid and food stamps.

The myth of elderly affluence harms the elderly and harms our society. It makes it easy, even justifiable, to ignore the existence of 11 million Americans living on the wrong side of Easy Street. It pits generation against generation in the fight for an ever-shrinking federal dollar — at a time when all generations need to be fighting shoulder-to-shoulder to protect all poor Americans from suffering the heaviest casualties in the battle of the budget.

Unveiling the truth about elderly affluence

By Ron Pollack

Through the 1980s news stories about the elderly no longer pictured them trudging up the road to the poorhouse on their 65th birthdays. Instead, they were shown as moving into Florida condominiums, their incomes guaranteed by ever-rising Social Security benefits, their health-care bills paid by Medicare. It wasn't true then and it isn't true now.

Portraying the elderly as rich, healthy and carefree is misleading — and dangerous. It ignores the persistent problem of elderly poverty (millions of old people are very poor), and it also provides a convenient excuse for those who want to slash social welfare programs. What is most disturbing is that this stereotype fuels the notion that the young should resent the old for grabbing scarce resources away from others seemingly more needy.

We should celebrate the fact that the poverty rate for all older Americans has dropped significantly. Thirty years ago, more than one out of three seniors were poor; today, it's just one out of six.

Social Security has made the crucial difference. More than 90 percent of the elderly receive Social Security. On the average, it provides about 40 percent of their retirement income (for the low-income elderly, it's 80 percent). The across-the-board benefit increases in the late 1960s and early 1970s, and the annual cost-of-living adjustments begun in 1975 helped most of the elderly stay out of the poorhouse.

Despite the progress, about 3.6 million older Americans still live below the meager poverty line of $522 a month (for an individual). These persons live on less than $17 a day (or $22 for couples). An additional 8 million elderly are struggling to eat and pay rent on incomes under twice the poverty line — a modest $35 a day for a person living alone (or $43 for couples). So making ends meet is still a struggle for more than four out of 10 of the elderly.

Poverty is an especially crushing problem for certain vulnerable groups of the elderly: women living alone, minorities and the very old. Almost three-quarters of the elderly poor are women. More than one out of every five elderly Hispanics and almost one out of every three elderly blacks are poor. An older black woman living alone is five times as likely to be destitute as an older white man.

And the longer we live, the more likely poverty is to loom in our future. People over 85 are twice as likely to slip under the poverty line as those between 65 and 84.

What's more, older people, once poor, have fewer chances to escape poverty by getting a better job — or any job. That's why one-third of the "long-term" poor are elderly.

But what about those costly government benefits the elderly get: Social Security, Supplemental Security Income (SSI), Medicare, Medicaid, food stamps? How can anyone be poor when they are "entitled" to all those federal dollars?

First of all, the average Social Security benefit is only $544 a month — with many older women and minorities getting well below that sum.

SSI — the income support program for the two million poorest seniors — pays only $422 a month to people living alone, well under the poverty line of $522 a month that the government says marks the boundary of destitution.

And despite all of the Medicare benefits paid out, seniors today must spend more of their incomes for health care than they did before Medicare was enacted.

Moreover, many of the elderly don't even qualify for those programs, such as women who worked sporadically or never worked at a job covered by Social Security. Millions more just don't know they are eligible for SSI, Medicaid and food stamps.

The myth of elderly affluence harms the elderly and harms our society. It makes it easy, even justifiable, to ignore the existence of 11 million Americans living on the wrong side of Easy Street. It pits generation against generation in the fight for an ever-shrinking federal dollar — at a time when all generations need to be fighting shoulder-to-shoulder to protect all poor Americans from suffering the heaviest casualties in the battle of the budget.

Easier-to-read labels coming

Marlys Dee Craig
Special Writer

Health authorities in our country report that an important cause of death and disability depends on what we eat. Their recommendations urge reducing the total fat, cholesterol, sodium and sugar in our diet. This advice about eating health is now based on 30 studies.

Not too long ago "good foods" were made from whole grains, fruits and vegetables. Now we buy processed foods with fats and sugars added to increase taste.

On top of that, supplements are added to make up for vital nutrients removed in the processing of the food. Nutrients are substances our body needs in order to stay healthy because we cannot make them on our own. Examples of nutrients are protein, fat, carbohydrates, vitamins and minerals.

Consumers say they depend on food labels more than any other source to get information about the nutritional value of foods. Surveys done by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) show that four out of five people study the ingredients on labels. More than two out of three used the ingredient list to check for substances they want to avoid for health reasons.

The FDA proposes that four major relationships between nutrients and health problems be carefully regulated on la-els: fat and heart disease, fat and cancer, sodium and high blood pressure, calcium and osteoporosis.

At present, ingredients are required to be listed on food labels in two situations: when the manufacturer adds a nutrient to the food or when a claim is made, such as, "contains fewer calories." When listed, ingredients are named in descending order of weight, the heaviest first and so on.

What happens when a nutrient does not weigh much? Fat is light in weight, but is packed with calories — one gram of fat equals nine calories.

A gram is a small unit of weight — 28.35 grams equal one ounce. A small unit of measure (the gram) is used because nutrients come in small amounts per serving.

When fat appears as the third listing on the label due to its lightness, we think the food is lower in fat than it really is. Actually, the amount of fat in processed foods must be determined by the total calories of fat per serving, not the weight.

Sugars have a way of hiding in labels. Sometimes, when sugars are added to processed foods, they are listed with the complex carbohydrates. Nutritional information on the label names this combination "carbohydrates" and states the total in grams (four calories per gram). Who knows how much sugar is added to the food.

Another way sugar can be disguised is illustrated in the case of the granola bar. Several kinds of sugars are used to sweeten the bar and each is listed separately with no grams reported. The whole bar is mostly sugar, a carefully concealed fact.

Every consumer who walks into a supermarket should learn how to read a food label. A few tips will make the job easier. First, examine the nutrition information on the label of the product you are considering. Most of the nutrients will be listed in grams. A few, such as sodium, will be reported in smaller units of milligrams.

Nutrition information on a can of pork and beans can be used to illustrate how the label looks in the grocery store today. Across from this appears the proposed change by the FDA.

PORK & BEANS

Current Label

According to the proposed change by the FDA, the total calories in fat must be reported on the label. This figure will help you calculate the percent of fat per serving size. Here is how to estimate the percent from the label: Total fat calories per serving divided by total calories per serving equals percent fat per serving.

Remember, your daily intake of fat should be no more than 30 percent of your total calorie count for the day. With experience, you can learn to balance the 30 percent. If you choose to eat an item of food with more than 30 percent fat, select other foods that day with less than 30 percent fat.

Until the revised label appears on food cans and packages sometime in 1993, you will need to know how to convert grams to calories for important nutrients. The following guide will help you calculate nutrients in foods according to calories and percent of total calories.

1 gram of protein equals 4 calories
1 gram of carbohydrates equals 4 calories
1 gram of fat equals 9 calories

Stay alert for the amount and content of fats and carbohydrates on labels. The new regulation may require processed food producers to list the total grams in sugars added under the heading carbohydrates and the saturated fat content under fat.

To better serve you, we've built on four new additions to our Emergency Room.

An Experienced Emergency Team.

Having a Henry Ford Health System physician team in the Cottage Emergency Room brings years of valuable critical care experience to the comfortable and familiar surroundings of your own neighborhood hospital. These physicians are specially trained or board certified in Emergency Medicine.

The Team That Works For You.

When you or someone close to you needs Emergency care, it is comforting to know that our team of physicians, emergency care nurses and technologists, is ready to respond at any time, day or night.

Their advanced emergency and critical care expertise is supported and enhanced by admitting personnel and patient advocates who put the needs and concerns of the patient and family first — by answering questions and keeping you informed during those difficult times.

Matching The Team With The Technology.

In the coming year, Cottage Hospital will continue to improve its Emergency service to the community by enhancing its facility and expanding its capabilities while treating each patient with the privacy and dignity you should expect from your neighborhood hospital.

During the construction, access to the Emergency Room will be made easier than ever, with specially designated parking just outside our doors on Kercheval Avenue.

The Right Care When You Need It.

If further care is needed, the full resources of Cottage Hospital and Henry Ford Health System are available to you.

For referral to a Cottage Hospital physician, call 881-1800.

the foundation when it undertook the construction of the Tompkins Community Center at Windmill Pointe Park, and as a councilman, he was instrumental in getting the park's swimming pool built.

"It's nice to have helped get those things built, things that will last for a long time," Hutton said.

But he doesn't like to brag about his achievements. He has received several plaques honoring his business and civic accomplishments, but he keeps them hidden in his "trophy room," a small, plain storage room on the third floor of his Devonshire home.

"I think he's most proud of the doorknob," his wife said.

In 1964, Hutton received the "Gold Doorknob Award," from the Central Business Association in Detroit in recognition of "opening doors to women, enabling career enhancement," the plaque says.

A longtime member and former warden of St. Columba Church in Detroit, he was named "Layman of the Year," by the Metropolitan Detroit Council of Churches in 1963.

He is also a trustee of the Arnold Home, a residential complex for senior citizens on the west side of Detroit, and is an honorary member of the Board of Visitors at Oakland University's School of Nursing.

Those activities and his grandchildren have kept him busy in retirement, he said.

"I retired when I was 75," Hutton said, "and I often wonder why anyone retires before that age, because I enjoyed going to work every day that I was at Standard Federal. It was always exciting and interesting and every day there was something new."

Banking is something that Hutton kind of fell into, he said. Growing up, he wanted to follow in the footsteps of his maternal grandmother, Hattie McHugh, and go into merchandising.

She was a buyer for the children's department at the J.L. Hudson Co. in Detroit for many years.

"I thought that was a wonderful kind of job to have, because she went to New York frequently on buying trips and stayed at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel," Hutton said.

He was allowed to go with her on a spring buying trip when he was 12.

"I just remember what a wonderful time we had and how well we were treated by the people who wanted my grandmother to buy their merchandise," said Hutton, a first-generation American.

Both his maternal and paternal grandparents immigrated from Scotland to Canada, where his parents were born.

His mother, Nellie, moved to the United States with her parents and sister when she was a girl. His father, James Hutton, "was the renegade of the family. Out of 12 children, he was the only one who came to the U.S.," he said.

Trained as an apprentice at a Canadian firm that manufactured one-of-a-kind parts for steam engines, his father "could machine anything out of steel," Hutton said.

His father moved to Detroit as a young man to work in the auto industry. He not only found a job, but the woman he would marry, Hutton's mother.

Hutton was born in Detroit in 1908, and he and his older sister, Nellie, a retired school principal, grew up in the city.

He graduated from Central High School — which is now the Old Main building on the Wayne State University campus — in 1925, and received his bachelor's degree in merchandising from the University of Michigan in 1929.

Afterward, he started working in the merchandising department of the Crowley Miller Co. "Within 90 days," he said, "I received a much more attractive offer from Standard Federal Savings and Loan, which it was called back then, and I changed jobs almost immediately."

He said he considers himself lucky to have entered the banking industry when he did, right before the Great Depression.

"I worked every day during the Depression because banks had more problems than then ever before, and they needed people to work on those problems," he said. "It's hard to believe, but 50 percent of all the houses for which we gave mortgages at that time ended up back in our hands either by foreclosure, or by people who came to us and said that they couldn't handle the payments any longer."

Times may be tough now, Hutton said, "but you don't hear about as many people losing their homes in the Detroit area as you did back then. Many of the borderline homes today are insured by the Federal Housing Administration, so there is a bit of a safety net there. But with more and more people becoming unemployed, who knows what will happen."

Hutton started at Standard Federal Savings and Loan in 1929 as a teller. He attended Wayne University Law School at night, and received his law degree in 1934.

"I never practiced law. I just felt it was the way to go if I wanted to move up into management, and it definitely was," he said.

In January 1942, the 33-year-old Hutton enlisted in the Navy. By that time, he had been promoted to treasurer of the savings and loan.

Hutton was first stationed in Chicago as the assistant executive officer in charge of recruiting and induction for the Navy in Illinois. Later he went to Boise as the officer in charge of recruiting and inductions in Idaho.

"I had many occasions to see the governor in Idaho, and it kept getting easier and easier, because I was getting better acquainted with the governor's secretary," he said.

She was Beth Pendlebury, and she and Hutton were married in 1944 in the Episcopal Cathedral in Boise, after a year-long courtship.

"I immediately decided that this was a most attractive, young lady, and as our acquaintance continued, it just proved that I was exactly right," he said.

Hutton was discharged in 1946, and he and his wife moved back to Detroit, where his job at the savings and loan was waiting.

They moved to Grosse Pointe Park in 1952, and have been in the same house ever since.

Their four children, William, Susan, Judith and Martha grew up there, and three of them have worked in the banking industry, Hutton said.

William is vice president of Standard Federal Bank in Grosse Pointe Woods and has three children, Robert, Laura and Katie. Susan, vice president of Wells Fargo Bank of San Francisco, lives in Piedmont, Calif., and has three children, Amy, Peter and Molly. Judith, of Mount Airy, Md., is married to an aerospace engineer and has a son, Bill. Martha, of Grosse Pointe Park, worked for Standard Federal before she got married. She is the mother of Carin, Charlie and Jamie.

On the couch in the Huttons' bright, airy living room, there is a needlepoint pillow that reads, "Happiness is our young'uns young'uns."

"You could say that's the motto of this house," Hutton said. "My grandchildren are my hobby — all 10 of them."

He and his wife enjoy traveling, he said. They've been to China, Europe (including Scotland) and South Africa. Next, they'd like to visit Alaska, he said.

He's not a big TV fan, but he does enjoy watching "Northern Exposure" (which is filmed in Washington but set in Alaska), "Wheel of Fortune," and "Jeopardy!," he said.

For the past 62 years, Hutton has been a member of the Dutchmen, a small group of U of M graduates who meet in the Detroit area every Monday for lunch.

"I haven't missed many Mondays," he said. "I think the only times I have were when we were away."

He's also a member of the Grosse Pointe Senior Men's Club, the Masonic Order and the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club.

"I think the amazing thing about my life," Hutton said, "is that I am a person who has lived and enjoyed the benefits of the 20th century. I arrived shortly after the century began, and I think I'm going to see most of it before it's over. I've thought about it a lot and I've come to the conclusion that it was the perfect time to be born, to mature, and to retire, and I'm going to enjoy whatever time I have left."

You can bank on it.

Hertel announces art competition

Congressman Dennis M. Hertel (D-Harper Woods) will once again host a local art competition for high school students. Known nationally as "An Artistic Discovery," the competition provides an opportunity for young artists to attain both local and national recognition.

Established by the Congressional Arts Caucus in 1982, the competition is implemented yearly by members of the United States House of Representatives at no cost to the federal government. Each member of Congress is invited to host a local competition for those students residing within his/her Congressional district.

Once a winning entry is selected, it is taken to the U.S. Capitol in Washington, D.C., where it will remain on display alongside other winning entries from across the country for a year-long exhibit.

As a sponsor of this event, Hertel has scheduled a local competition for high school students who reside within Michigan's 14th Congressional District: northeast Detroit, Harper Woods, Grosse Pointe Farms, Grosse Pointe Shores, Grosse Pointe Woods, East Detroit, Hamtramck, Center Line, Warren (part), Sterling Heights, Madison Heights (part), Utica, Troy (part), and Hazel Park.

Interested students must deliver their entries to either of Hertel's district offices at 28221 Mound Road in Warren (between 11 and 12 Mile roads) or 18927 Kelly in Detroit (south of 7 Mile) no later than 4 p.m. on Monday, April 20.

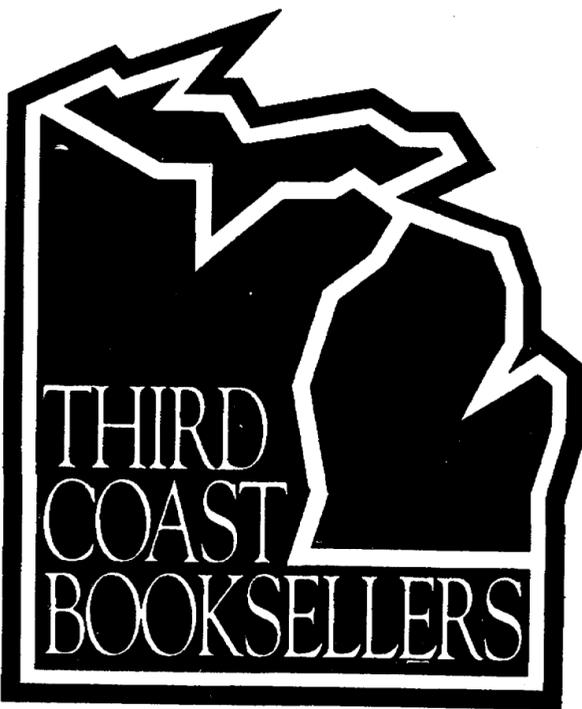

A panel of local art instructors from outside the district will select the winning entry as well as several deserving honorable mention awards. All works submitted, including the winning artwork, will be featured in a special local exhibit to be announced in the coming weeks.

Details regarding the contest rules can be obtained by contacting Hertel's local office at 574-9420.

... The Farms public safety de- artment is trying to form a mmittee along with Grosse ointe school officials to "come p with some definitive an- sers as to how we can prevent incidents like this," Brecht said.
... "My feeling is that these un- supervised house parties are to blame," he said. "They have diminished in number, but they're still out there. Parents have to take more responsi- bility for their children, especially their high school children. When the parents go away for the weekend and leave their children at home, they should know what their children are doing. And when alcohol is served at these parties, the out- come can be violent, and people can end up in the hospital, as in this case."

... If a teen is at a party where here is drinking and thinks a fight may be about to start, he or she should call the police, Brecht advised.
... "I don't think anyone who ... was at this party thought it would go the the extreme that it did," Brecht said, "but you can usually see when tempers start to flare. If someone had called us sooner, it wouldn't have gotten out of hand like it did."

... Ed Shine, superintendent of Grosse Pointe public schools, said that the district has no specific program to prevent or combat teen violence.

... "What do you think that we do from the time our children are little?" Shine asked. "We teach them to be nice to each other and to not hit each other and to hold each other's hands while crossing the street. But we don't have 'Violence Prevention 101 or 102.'"

... "It's hard in a society that's full of feature films that students go to - hopefully not on school nights - that are filled with violence, sex or sexual innuendo . . . It's not unusual that kids will model what they see or hear in the media."

... He also expressed frustration at the media for looking to schools for the answer to society's woes, including teen violence.

... "Increasingly, we are becoming aware that schools are considered to be the last institution when it comes to trying to deal with the problems of society," he said.

... However, those problems should also be addressed by public safety officers, mayors, members of the clergy, and most of all, parents, he said.

... The Rev. Bryant W. Dennison Jr. of Christ Church in Grosse Pointe Farms used the baseball bat beating as an example in his sermon last Sunday.

... The sermon was about the connection between sin and suffering, he said.

... "There were some people who asked Jesus about two shocking things that had happened, and I used the baseball bat incident as an example because it was a shocking thing that happened in this community," he said.

... In Dennison's sermon, the people who asked Jesus for advice thought that the first step in attacking their problems was to determine the blame for them.

... The Lord's response, Dennison said, was that time spent trying to place blame is not very productive; figuring out ways to solve problems is.

... "Instead of assigning blame, all of us - parents, teachers, students and other members of the community - should be thinking about what we're going to do about the problems of teen violence and drinking and the other issues that are out there today," Dennison said.

Coast Guard: We'll enforce boat user fee

By John Minnis
Assistant Editor
Attention boaters: If you haven't paid your user fees, look out. The U.S. Coast Guard has been ordered to vigorously enforce the law.

Chief Warrant Officer Charles "Scotty" O'Neal, commanding officer of the St. Clair Shores Station, said many boaters are under the impression that the user-fee law will not be enforced this year. They are wrong, he said.

"There is a serious misconception among boaters that it will not be enforced," he said. "It will be enforced."

As part of the the 1990 federal omnibus budget reconciliation act, boaters were assessed user fees last year, causing a storm of protest from water enthusiasts and organizations. The fees go to the federal budget, not to the Coast Guard.

O'Neal was not happy about having to enforce the measure.

"We have no choice," he said. "We do not receive the fees, but we are the collecting agency."

The user fees are $25 for boats over 16 feet but less than 20 feet in length, $35 for boats 20 feet and under 27 feet, $50 for boats 27 feet and under 40 feet and $100 for boats 40 feet and longer.

If your boat does not have a sticker showing you have paid your fees, you could be stopped and boarded by the Coast Guard, which may then cite you for any other violations discovered.

"We're not the hard guys," O'Neal said. "Our primary mission is still search and rescue, to serve the public."

But when his officers are not searching and rescuing, they will be obeying orders and enforcing the law, he said.

If cited for not paying a user fee, you will receive a fine. Although no mandatory amount is stipulated, O'Neal said it will be severe enough to make paying the user fee worthwhile.

"The teeth in the law are about to be applied," he said.

The government is making it easy for boaters to pay their user fees. A toll-free number - 1-800-848-2100 - is available so that boaters can pay their user fees over the phone. MasterCard and Visa are accepted. Applications can also be picked up at the Coast Guard station on Jefferson in St. Clair Shores or by calling the station at 778-3320.

The Coast Guard also will be enforcing the Federal Communications Commission's requirement that all boaters with a marine radio have a license and have it displayed. A marine radio operator's license costs a one-time fee of $35. Call the FCC for more information.

Also new this year is a requirement that anyone with a 26-foot boat or longer display a "garbage placard," which states that it is illegal to dump refuse overboard. Failure to have the decal will result in a violation being issued, O'Neal said.

Garbage placards are available at some marine insurance agencies and marinas, he said.

As always, the Coast Guard will vigorously enforce drunken boating laws. The federal law carries up to a $1,000 civil fine for anyone caught on a boat who has a blood alcohol level of .10 or above.

"We don't want people to perceive us as the bad guys," O'Neal said about the Coast Guard's enforcement obligations, "but they probably will."

Manager bilked of $300

Woods police are investigating a case of fraud concerning a manager at the Lochmoor Club who received a call on March 19 from a man who identified himself as Trooper Paul Freedman and gave a badge number. The phony trooper told the manager that a member of the club had been in an accident in East Lansing and asked if he would wire the member $300 with a "test" question on it, because the member also had lost all of his identification. The manager wired the money via Western Union but became suspicious the next day when the fake trooper called him back and asked him if he had wired the funds. The man called the member at home, who told him that he had not been in East Lansing or in an accident.

The manager called Western Union to order a stop payment on the money only to find out that the $300 had been picked up 10 minutes earlier at a Kroger supermarket in Atlanta.

Woods man recovers stolen car

Arriving home around 1 a.m. on March 19, police records state, a 44-year-old Woods man found that his jeep had been stolen from in front of his house. He then realized that it had been his vehicle which, along with another car, had cut him off at a stop sign near his home only minutes before.

He got into his car and attempted to find the two vehicles. He caught up with them going southbound on Harper, toward Detroit. The two cars stopped at a red light at Moross, where the Woods man drove his car in between them with the stolen jeep on his left.

When the light changed, the car on his right turned right. The Woods man saw this as his opportunity to retrieve his jeep. The thief in the jeep also attempted to turn right but the man drove his car in front of him and blocked him.

The thief rammed the jeep into the man's car several

If the shoe fits

A 52-year-old Detroit man was charged with retail theft for stealing a pair of Converse Magic gym shoes, valued at $45, from the Sears department store on Mack Avenue in Grosse Pointe Farms. Police records state that the man entered the store near closing time on March 18, tried on several pairs of gym shoes and then put his old shoes back on the shelf and continued shopping in the store with the new shoes on. He was arrested after leaving the store still wearing the new shoes.

Brawl breaks out in supermarket

A 44-year-old Detroit woman said she will press charges against two other women, ages 47 and 29, whom, she said, attacked her while she attempted to get her check cashed at Kroger's, on Mack Avenue in Grosse Pointe Farms. According to Farms' police records, the Detroit woman said the older woman became verbally abusive because she thought she was taking too long at the counter and then suddenly attacked her, pulling her hair and scratching her face. The younger woman joined in the fight. Police were called to the scene and found hair strewn about the floor and the women suffering from facial cuts and scratches.

School dance thefts

Grosse Pointe Park police report that a purse, glasses, a credit card, $50 and a black leather jacket were stolen during a dance at the St. Clare of Montefalco School on Mack Avenue between 8 and 11 p.m. on March 13.

Cute, cuddly, but not alive

The Michigan Humane Society discourages parents from buying live baby animals as Easter presents for their children.

Instead, the society recommends that parents consider getting a life-like stuffed animal from the Paw Pourri Gift Shop at 817 N. Main Street, north of 11 Mile, in Royal Oak.

Soon after a live baby chick, duck or bunny is received as an Easter present and the novelty passes, the reality of feeding, caring for and housing begins. Every year the shelters receive these unwanted baby animals which are difficult to place in adoptive homes.

The Paw Pourri Gift Shop has softly stuffed replicas of baby chicks, bunnies, lambs and even baby swans available for Easter giving. These life-like animals are made of high quality materials and are surface washable.

Prices of these cute and cuddly animals range from $10 to $20. All proceeds from the sale of these stuffed animals go to help the live animals cared for at the three Detroit area MHS shelters.

Freshman threatens counselor

A Grosse Pointe South freshman was charged with making threats to a school counselor after the counselor removed him from a classroom for playing his radio and then held his radio until the end of the day. Police records state that the boy left the counseling center at the school, where he had been detained, and approached the counselor, telling her that he would find out where she lived and that he had a gun and had a "bullet for her head". The counselor reported the incident to the police.

Nacel to host information meeting

Interested families are invited to the Southfield Civic Center Saturday, March 28, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. for an informative program about hosting an exchange student.

Hosts are needed for students from France, Spain and Germany for four weeks this summer. The meeting is sponsored by Nacel Cultural Exchanges, a non-profit organization.

This is an opportunity for parents and students to learn about hosting in a relaxed, informal atmosphere. Past hosts will attend and share their experiences.

Information about the Nacel teen travel programs to France, Spain, Germany, the African Ivory Coast, Ireland and Russia will also be available.

Last summer, 379 Michigan families hosted French, Spanish and German students throughout the state, and this year more than 300 exchange students are expected again.

Families can choose to host French and Spanish students July 1-30 or July 31-Aug. 28 and German students July 29-Aug. 25.

For more information, call 433-3491 or Evelyn Prince at 626-6641.

Hill days next weekend

Spring will receive a welcome in Grosse Pointe Farms on the Hill with the traditional "Spring on the Hill" days scheduled for Friday and Saturday, April 3-4.

The annual Hill Association event draws hundreds of people to the special sales, food and entertainment planned from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days.

The Hill Association is also sponsoring an Easter Egg Hunt. Guess the correct number of paper Easter eggs on all the storefront windows and you could win a gift certificate.

Entry forms are available at Perry's, The League Shop, Something Special, Young Clothes and First of America Bank.

The contest runs from March 26 through April 18.

Trip to TV land offered

A May 22 trip to the WDIV-TV studio in Detroit is being offered by the Grosse Pointe Woods recreation department.

Participants will be audience members on the "Megabucks Giveaway Show" and will get a tour of the studio. The trip includes a "buy-your-own" lunch at an area restaurant.

There is no cost for the trip. Space is limited. To reserve a seat, call the Grosse Pointe Woods Community Center at 343-2408.

Beautification commissions share secrets, anticipate spring

Donna Walker Writer

One is anticipating the onset of warm weather more in the members of the beautification commissions in the cities, Harper Woods and St. Clair Shores.

They got together last Wednesday for the third annual 7-Cities Beautification Conference, held at the Tompkins Center in Grosse Pointe Park.

The event was started three years ago by the Grosse Pointe Woods mayor's beautification advisory commission as a way to share project ideas and gaining tips with other cities, said Janette Duster, chair of the Woods commission.

Grosse Pointe Farms sponsored the event last year at Cottage Hospital.

This year, the conference was sponsored by the Park's beautification commission and hosted by its chair, Lynn Crissman.

About 40 people attended, including Arneline VanSlembrouck, representing Harper Woods' beautification commission.

"The commission was formed by a city ordinance a year ago, but we just appointed the first six members on Monday," said Harper Woods Mayor James R. Haley.

The commission will have nine members in all, he said.

Also at the conference were Almer T. Heenan, Park mayor; Jeff Mueller, Park assistant city manager; John Crowley, Farms mayor pro tem; Richard Solak, Farms city manager; and Rose Thornton, Grosse Pointe Shores councilwoman.

The guest speaker for the night was Carl Dollhopf of Westland, a horticulturist with the Michigan Department of Agriculture's plant and pest management division in southeastern Michigan for 37 years until his retirement last May. He is now the educational director of the Metropolitan Detroit Landscape Association and secretary of Global ReLeaf of Michigan.

Dollhopf's slide presentation was entitled, "Global ReLeaf - Its Concerns, Programs and Choices to Help Our Environment."

Global ReLeaf is a national, non-profit organization that was formed by the American Forestry Association in 1989 to educate citizens about global warming, its effects on the environment and ways it can be prevented.

Each state was encouraged to form its own Global ReLeaf program, and Global ReLeaf of Michigan was started about three years ago, he said.

The state organization is funded by private and corporate contributions and it receives no money from the state or federal government or the national organization, Dollhopf said.

"Our challenge is getting more trees put into the environment than are taken out of it," he said.

Global ReLeaf of Michigan's goal is to plant two million trees statewide by the end of this year. It's part of the goal the national organization set three years ago, which is to plant 100 million trees across the country by the end of 1992.

So far, the state organization has planted about 50,000 seedlings in Michigan and about 2,000 trees that are 1 to 3 inches in diameter.

Trees are "nature's air conditioning units," a Global ReLeaf of Michigan pamphlet says.

"In one year, an average tree inhales 26 pounds of carbon dioxide - the amount emitted by an automobile during an 11,300 mile trip - and exhales enough oxygen to keep a family of four breathing for a year," the pamphlet says.

Cities are known as "heat islands," in Global ReLeaf-speak, because their vast expanses of concrete make them five to 12 degrees warmer than their surroundings.

Trees that are planted in urban areas help cool the "heat islands," and are therefore more effective in the battle against global warming than are trees planted in the country, the pamphlet says.

Dollhopf said that every hour, 500,000 trees worldwide are destroyed by man or disease.

"There used to be 800,000 elms in Detroit, but now there are only about 160,000," he said.

Global ReLeaf of Michigan helps provide civic groups with trees for planting. A group must pay half the cost of each tree, and Global ReLeaf will pay the rest.

The trees are not free because Global ReLeaf wants communities to invest in them. People are more likely to take care of the trees if they have to work hard to pay for them, he said.

In addition to providing information about Global ReLeaf, Dollhopf warned everyone of plant diseases and insects they should guard against.

Perhaps the biggest stir of the night came when he said that there is a new kind of gypsy moth in the United States, called gypsy moth-Asia. It doesn't respond to the pesticide that is normally used to kill gypsy moths in the United States, he said.

Also, the new kind of gypsy moth - which came from Russia and was introduced in Washington and Oregon, he said - spreads faster than the gypsy moth-U.S. That's because the gypsy moth-Asia females can fly. The gypsy moth females normally found in the United States can't fly because their abdomens are heavily laden with eggs, he said.

"I don't think you've heard of this (the gypsy moth-Asia) before," Dollhopf said. "It's brand new. But we have a few years before we have to worry about it."

Gypsy moth caterpillars feed on the leaves of trees and can defoliate a large section of forest over a short period of time if left unchecked.

erick O. Neumann Jr. of Grosse Pointe City, Frisky Hickey of the Farms, Al Mazur of the Park, Patricia Cardellio of Grosse Pointe Shores, Emilie Karczewski of St. Clair Shores, VanSlembrouck of Harper Woods, and Janette Duster of Grosse Pointe Woods.

Neumann said that Grosse Pointe City has planted 125 trees this year, 40 more than it had to cut down.

"Picking up from what St. Clair Shores did last year, we started an adopt-a-flower bed program," he said. "We had eight adopt-a-beds in the community this year, several in the Village and in front of the city park. We were pleased with that, and the way people got involved."

Hickey reported that 33 traffic islands along Lakeshore in the Farms are receiving fill dirt from various construction sites to give them a more rounded appearance, and that the islands will get irrigation equipment and sprinklers starting this spring.

Also, beautification commission members helped select the plantings for the pocket park that was created by the Grosse Pointe Farms Foundation on Moross at Grosse Pointe Boulevard, Hickey said.

"We're anxiously awaiting the spring blooms," she said.

The Farms planted 150 trees this year, 78 more than it lost, she said.

Also, she said that members of the commission met with students at Grosse Pointe South High School in an attempt to curb the litter problem near the school, and the student association elected one of its members to serve on the beautification commission.

"The problem hasn't been solved yet, but it's a step in the right direction," Hickey said.

Mazur said the Park is continuing to educate residents about when to water, fertilize and spray their trees. He said that in the early 1980s, the Park lost between 500 and 600 trees a year due to disease. Thanks to the city's spraying program, the Park only lost 65 trees (40 municipally owned and 25 privately owned) last year, Mazur said.

Cardellio said that one of the goals of the beautification commission in Grosse Pointe Shores is to continue to develop the traffic islands south of Vernier. She said the city will once again have tulip gardens at various locations, and said that a planting day is being planned for May.

Karczewski said that in 1991, her beautification commission landscaped the three fire stations and the entrance to the Civic Arena and Memorial Park in St. Clair Shores.

So far, 82 trees have been planted in the memorial tree program the commission started three years ago, she said.

The commission is in the process of putting up a new wrought iron fence along Jefferson, and is selling memorial bricks to raise money for a new informational sign to be placed inside the entrance of Memorial Park, she said.

Last year, the St. Clair Shores beautification commission included homes as well as businesses in its annual awards program for the first time, she reported. She closed by saying that the commission's annual bazaar will be held May 16-17.

Duster said that the Grosse Pointe Woods beautification commission helped select the flowers and other ground cover that was planted around the new community center at city hall.

"We're waiting for spring to see what comes up," she said.

The commission also helped decorate inside the community center and named its rooms.

In an effort to save money, the commission is starting to plant perennial flower beds, instead of just annuals, she said. Also, she mentioned that the commission's annual flower sale will be held May 7-9 at city hall, and that the Herb Society will sell herbs inside the community center at that time.

Mayor Haley of Harper Woods said that the Rotary Club planted 25 trees in the city last year and that the school district planted 15 trees around the schools.

He also thanked the garden clubs in the Harper Woods area for all that they have done over the years.

When host Lynn Crissman asked VanSlembrouck, who was recently appointed to the Harper Woods beautification commission, if she wanted to add anything, VanSlembrouck said, "I'm so pleased that we finally have a commission, I'm just going to let it roll."

Man robbed
A 22-year-old man reported to Grosse Pointe Park police that while he was walking home from work on March 9, around 12:30 a.m., a vehicle pulled up alongside him on Mack Avenue at Devonshire and a man in his early 20s got out and demanded money from him. He refused and the man placed his hand in his jacket as though he had a gun. The victim then gave him $75 and the robber returned to his car, where two other men inside were waiting. The car, which was older, two-door, white and burgundy colored and had a loud muffler, made a U-turn and drove west on Mack.

AT&T program lets employees' homes become 'virtual offices'

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

Grosse Pointe Farms' Jane Seamans used to get up early, dress and drive 40 minutes to work at the AT&T office in Southfield. An account executive, Seamans would then get back in her car and cover her sales territory — the east side.

AT&T saw a problem with that and came up with a unique way to make things easier for commuting employees.

It's called the "virtual office" program and it provides the company's sales executives — those who need to be on the road a lot — more flexibility.

It works like this: AT&T equipped Seamans, and 25 other account executives, with a laptop computer, a portable printer and mobile telephone. She now has access to everything an office could provide, no matter where she is — at home, a customer's office or even in the car.

"We don't call this a work-at-home program," said Jan Newman, AT&T branch operations manager. "What it is, is a way of better serving the customer. We've made an investment to provide our employees with the tools they need to answer our customers' needs."

"We're more responsive and more available to the customers," Seamans said. "And I don't take personal calls and I don't take long lunches, either."

Seamans said she doesn't miss the chatting in the coffee room and she certainly doesn't miss the meetings.

And she thinks she works a little more than she did in the office.

"Even at night when it gets quiet around here I'll go upstairs and do a little of the administrative work I need to do," she said. "Before, I'd have to get in my car and drive to the office. And last night, for instance, the computer was down, so I would have made a trip for nothing."

Working with her virtual office has allowed Seamans the flexibility to insert into her day the little things most people have to save for the weekend.

When she took her car in for repairs, she brought her laptop computer to tap out a letter to a client while she waited. She also would have been able to connect to the electronic mail system that keeps her informed of minor information concerning the office.

And yes, when she's home, she wears sweats, but she's there only about half of any work day.

Three times a week Seamans meets with her team members for general informational sessions by telephone conference call. She goes into the office once a week on average and once a month her entire division meets for an "in-branch" day.

"The in-branch day is a way for the account executives to catch up on each other," Newman said. "We don't want them to feel they're alone. We want them to know they're still part of a family."

All but seven of the account executives in the commercial markets division — Seamans' division, which deals with small- to medium-sized businesses — use the virtual office system. The other seven are either too new or are unable to participate yet. But Newman said the company is moving to get all its sales people into virtual offices.

"The virtual office truly matches the role of sales people," Newman said. "They shouldn't have to be in an office first thing in the morning so we can check and make sure they're dressed and then come in the last thing of the day so we can make sure they're still dressed and working."

Newman said she makes sure the new employees understand the working environment and although there is a period of adjustment to the freedom and flexibility, she said there haven't been any problems with people abusing it.

"When we started it, just a little over a year ago, we went very slowly, and there are still some adjustments that need to be made, but on the whole I think it's working very well," Newman said.

Seamans said she wouldn't go back to the old way.

"This allows us to sell more and to better service our clients," Seamans said. "And we can balance our lives better, too."

Ukrainian girl finds home away from home in Pointes

Maureen McNulty
Special Writer

There was once a little girl who lived with her grandfather, whom she loved very much, on a little plot of land where her grandfather grew vegetables and sold them at the village market once a week. They were poor but they were happy.

But officials in her village became increasingly concerned about her upbringing, because her parents were gone, and decided they would give her a better chance at life.

They placed the 10-year-old in a much more affluent home in a city far away from her grandfather's garden where she would get a good education and live with a family which would take good care of her.

Although her story is similar, her name is not Heidi. Her name is Zoryana Kiyash and her story is every bit as real as the grandfather and two siblings she left back in Ukraine over a month ago to come and live with the Zola family of Grosse Pointe City.

In Ukraine, Zoryana, her 6-year old brother and her 8-year-old sister are considered orphans. Thoughts of Faith, a Lutheran orthodox organization which works all over the world helping underprivileged and orphaned children, went to Ukraine and brought Zoryana and 150 other Ukrainian children to the United States for care or adoption.

Denise Zola and her parents, Kathleen and Walter Zola, learned while attending mass at Immaculate Conception, a Ukrainian Catholic church in Hamtramck, that a Lutheran organization wanted to place 40 children in the metro Detroit area, which has a Ukrainian population of close to 100,000. But the Zolas were required to make a commitment by the next morning.

"We had to make an immediate decision and we didn't know what, if anything, was covered, such as her health insurance," said Denise Zola, a customer service representative with Henry Ford Hospital and Zoryana's guardian. "We did know that we would be paying for her flight to Detroit from Chicago.

"But my parents have taken in 22 foreign exchange students from the time I was in eighth grade and I thought if we could help all of those students, who were generally much better off, why couldn't we help a little Ukrainian girl?"

"I just decided that it was the right thing to do. I wasn't too concerned about the quick decision."

Kathleen Zola, however, had many concerns, especially because Zoryana was so young and knew almost no English.

"We knew nothing about her, only her name and age," Kathleen Zola said. "With foreign exchange students, you have a lot of background to read about the person. I was very hesitant and afraid that it would be difficult."

"But my husband just reminded me that we've been so blessed. And Zoryana is so happy and exuberant."

That Wednesday night, seven families agreed to take in a Ukrainian child. By Saturday, 21 other families wanted to sign up, but all of the children had already been placed.

Unlike Heidi, Zoryana left Ukraine with her grandfather's approval and blessing, but only on the condition that she be returned.

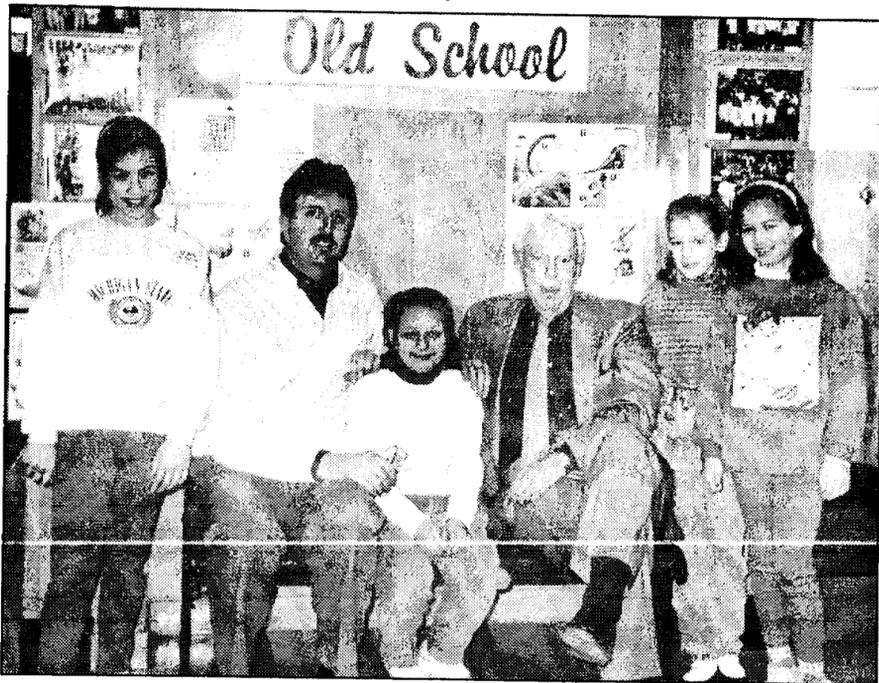

She is currently scheduled to go back in May, but Zoryana and the Zolas are hoping that they can get an extension so she can at least finish the school year at Richard Elementary, where she's in the fifth grade and loves it.

"Transporting her from an entirely different world, we just weren't sure how she would adjust," said Jack McMahon, principal of Richard.

"But the girls (in her class) have really helped her. I have rarely seen her alone. They always walk with her and use a kind of sign language to communicate."

"She speaks little English, but she's a very likable kid, with a nice personality and a little gleam in her eye."

"Our main concern was not curriculum or content of fifth grade subjects but that she grow accustomed to our language."

Kathleen Zola visits Zoryana's classroom twice a week, not only to assist her by translating stories she's written in Ukrainian to English, but also to teach Ukrainian phrases to her fifth-grade classmates and her teacher, Ernie Kalina.

"She does very well in school and she's a very good writer in Ukrainian," Kathleen Zola said. "Art, music and gym are her favorite classes."

Though at first shy and guarded, Zoryana quickly warms up to people and seems to delight in being the center of attention. Even though she must speak through her translator Kathleen, Zoryana makes sure she gets her point across.

When asked what things she has seen in the United States that she would never see in Ukraine, she answered, "Everything!"

"I almost died," she said when asked about her impressions of local stores. "If my friends saw them, they would faint," she said, adding that the smallest store here is larger than the largest stores in the cities near her home.

"Please dig a hole for me right here. I want to spend the rest of my life in Grosse Pointe," she said after a recent visit to the local supermarket.

"She's never seen so many fruits and vegetables in one place and so much variety," Denise Zola said. "She was completely overwhelmed. She was almost scared of the malls at first — she couldn't believe that there are stores that only sell shoes."

Shoes were a luxury that many in Zoryana's village could not afford. Zoryana herself never owned a pair of shoes before coming to the United States.

"And keep in mind," Denise Zola said, "Zoryana and her family were probably better off than others because her grandfather grew and sold potatoes and peppers at the market and received a subsidy from the government for taking care of the children."

As much as she wants to stay in the United States, Zoryana said she misses her grandfather and family very much. Ideally, she said she would like her family to move here, but she's not sure how that could happen.

"I would like to stay longer, or come back if I could," she said. "There are so many more opportunities here."

Zoryana, who wants to be an actress or singer when she grows up, said the only difference between her American and Ukrainian schools is that in Ukraine, they are required to study Ukrainian, Russian, and English by the fifth grade, and here she only has to learn English. She also said the topics she studied in history and geography are different.

Denise Zola said that Zoryana still can't believe that strangers would take her in and provide clothes, food and shelter — and a Barbie doll, which she considers the greatest treat in her life.

"Her friends come over after school, or she goes to their houses, and they play just like any other fifth-graders," Denise Zola said.

Besides her Barbie, Zoryana is fascinated by television, potato chips and ketchup.

"She puts ketchup on everything," her guardian said. "She even uses it in place of dressing on salads."

No one is exactly sure right now what the future holds for Zoryana, but everyone is confident that, if she has anything to say about it, she will be back in the United States one day, with her family in tow and with stock in a ketchup company.

"It's almost unbelievable that this child, who's experienced so much trauma already in her young life, could turn out so happy," Kathleen Zola said. "She just loves to tease and play jokes on people. But she's very attached to our grandfather and I think that's because she must have a very beautiful relationship with her own grandfather."

Family services moves

Central operations of Wayne County Child and Family Services, a division of the Michigan Department of Social Services, moved March 12.

The new Detroit address is 2929 Russell St., immediately west of Eastern Market, between Mack and Gratiot.

The facility will be open 24 hours a day, seven days a week, providing services to Detroit, Hamtramck, Highland Park and the five Grosse Pointes.

Services housed at this location include:

- Central administration for all Wayne County Child and Family Services
  - Intake and screening
  - Children's Protective Services hotline and referral unit
  - Medically fragile unit
  - Court services coordinator
  - Independent living supportive services unit
  - Adoptions and foster home recruitment and training
  - Adoptions
  - Youth and Family Intensive Services Center (formerly Northeast and Dexter-Elmhurst Attention Centers)
- The new 24-hour hotline for Children's Protective Services referrals is 396-0300. The general information telephone is 396-0200.

Detroit Department of Transportation business serving the facility include the Chene, Gratiot, Russell and Vernor.

Free parking for those conducting Child and Family Services business is available in the three-level parking structure in front of the building. A parking ticket must be obtained from the attendant and validated by facilities manager Jackie Pittman.

Remaining at the 801 West Baltimore address, which formerly housed all Child and Family Services and remained open around the clock seven days a week, are the North Central and South Central districts.

Business hours for the two districts are 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday only. The telephone is 876-6000.

Decentralization of Wayne County Child and Family Services began last April with the opening of a new center at 25350 Ecorse Rd., Taylor.

The Taylor center provides a full range of child welfare services for all Western Wayne County communities and selected City of Detroit zip codes.

The center's information number is 295-8000.

Institute seeks advisers

The Detroit Psychiatric Institute is seeking nominations for its Citizen's Advisory Council. The institute is a state mental health facility operated by Michigan's Department of Mental Health.

Councils are voluntary groups that meet at least quarterly to advise hospital directors on administrative policy and programs, and to monitor programs, recipient rights issues and the facility's operating budget.

The institute, a state psychiatric facility, serves adults and children from Wayne County. Membership is restricted to persons within Wayne County.

Department of Mental Health employees are ineligible to serve.

Broad representation on councils is encouraged. Membership includes mental health consumers and their parents, family members and guardians; community mental health and local elected officials; and other interested persons. Council members are appointed for one to two year terms.

For consideration, forward biographical information and a letter of interest to Thomas B. Coles, M.D., Membership Committee, DPI Citizen's Advisory Council, 1151 Taylor, Room 325-B, Detroit, Mich. 48202.

Migraines: Tracking down the culprit
Featuring Dr. Thomas Giancarlo, chief of neurology at St. John Hospital and Medical Center.

Dr. Giancarlo received his medical degree from Michigan State University. His office is in the St. John Professional Building in Detroit, near Grosse Pointe.

Q: How can I determine the source of my migraine headaches?

A: Patients are often asked to keep a headache diary or journal in order to learn what might be triggering their migraines. While it's not always easy to stop a migraine, knowing what might trigger one may help prevent the throbbing pain in the first place.

Q: What are some common causes of migraines?

A: Sleep deprivation is one. Excessive over-heating or physical exertion. Certain alcoholic beverages. Aged cheeses. Very malty beers. Caffeine is a big offender.

Q: Once I identify some possible causes of my migraines, how should I proceed?

A: Try incorporating some lifestyle changes. If sleeping in triggers your headache, set an alarm to wake up earlier. If certain foods increase the severity of your headaches, don't include them in your diet. A little provolone cheese and some red wine could touch off a nasty headache in the right individual. Recognize that and use common sense to help prevent migraines.

Q: Are there other ways to treat or prevent migraines?

A: There are medications that can be used. Usually, they're taken on a daily basis, whether you have a headache or not, in hopes of decreasing the severity and the frequency of headaches. But lifestyle changes are free, and they have no side effects.

Tennis and Crumpets:

Sporty fundraiser nets $1.5 million in 25 years for Children's Hospital

Margie Reins Smith
ature Editor

In 1967, tennis was hot. From California to the East coast, communities scrambled to construct new tennis courts; private clubs organized tournaments; indoor tennis facilities were built for winter play; tennis clothing, equipment and accessories were big business; cocktail parties were replaced by tennis parties; children took lessons; adults joined leagues.

And Tennis and Crumpets was born. The small tournament was organized 25 years ago as a modest fundraiser for Children's Hospital of Detroit. It was the brainchild of Denice Summers and a small group of Grosse Pointe women who had heard of a similar fundraiser held in Los Angeles.

The first mixed doubles round robin tournament attracted 250 players and raised $4,000 for Children's Hospital.

Tennis is no longer hot. But Tennis and Crumpets has grown, evolved, expanded and changed to include more than just a few weekends of tennis matches.

Along the way, T&C has raised more than $1.5 million for the hospital.

"We've tried to follow the times and the interests of people who want to participate," said Kathy Neumann, a former chairman of the Tennis and Crumpets board and chairman of the event in 1980.

"At one time, more than 2,000 people played in the tournament," said Julie Storen, a member of the 1992 T&C board of directors.

During its heyday in the mid-70s, players were divided into three classes, according to ability. For several years, organizers even added a pro-am category. The fundraiser used to stretch over three weekends. Preliminary matches were held on more than 100 donated public and private courts throughout metropolitan Detroit on the first weekend; semi-finals, finals and a dinner dance at the Country Club of Detroit took place on the following weekend; and super finals were held on the last weekend, pitting the best players from Dearborn, Grosse Ile, Grosse Pointe and Oakland County against each other.

"Over the years, there were all kinds of parties associated with Tennis and Crumpets," Storen said. "Sometimes we included auctions. In 1986 we had a fifties party. We called it 'Juke Box Friday Nite.'" She also remembers fashion shows, dinner theaters and a variety of theme parties.

"We held a 'Luv Run' for four years," Neumann said. "From 1981 to 1985, we had a three-mile run at Windmill Pointe."

"Mixed doubles is no longer popular," Storen said, "but the women's doubles tournament is picking up steam."

T&C has organized some informal golf events which will be held all summer long at different clubs, she said, and the T&C appointment calendar is a popular source of revenue for the hospital. "We raise money through advertising in the calendar," Storen said.

In 1985, Tennis and Crumpets Inc. spun off the Festival of Trees committee and launched another annual benefit for Children's Hospital, a pre-holiday display of more than 100 professionally decorated Christmas trees.

In 1992, Tennis and Crumpets will be a year-long multifaceted fundraiser that will offer a variety of benefits, including some tennis.

Tennis and Crumpets Inc. will hold its Silver Anniversary Dinner on Monday, April 6, at Opus One. Denice Tracy Summers, the founder of the first Tennis and Crumpets tournament, will be honored that evening. Organizers expect about 200 people for cocktails and dinner.

A children's tennis tournament will take place on Saturday, June 6, at several Grosse Pointe tennis courts. Organizers expect about 100 youngsters between 8 and 18 to compete in the one-day event, which includes a picnic and awards ceremony after the matches.

A ladies' doubles tournament will be held in September. According to Storen, 32 teams will spend the day at the Country Club of Detroit, devoting themselves to tennis and lunch, with all proceeds going to the hospital.

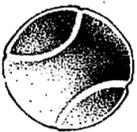

In addition to the three fundraising events, organizers also collect donations from Tennis and Crumpets patrons who wish to contribute to the hospital, but don't want to play tennis or attend the dinner.

During the last 25 years, T&C funds have been used at Children's Hospital for a playroom, a cardiac operating room and a medical cardiology suite. Money from T&C events helped establish a child protection team and support the hospital's burn unit, the poison control center and the departments of psychiatry and psychology, immunology, allergy and surgical research. Proceeds from Tennis and Crumpets have been used to purchase a heart-lung pump and some of the most sophisticated equipment available for ear, nose and throat surgery.

A Harbor Place Cluster Home Has Everything You Need On One Floor... And Then Some

The "Some" we refer to is the entire second floor which consists of two large bedrooms and a full connecting bath. This floor may be used on a daily basis or utilized occasionally when family or friends come to visit.

There's "some" thing else too, a large unfinished storage area and additional optional storage.

First floor accommodations are totally complete. A great room with an 11' ceiling, master bedroom suite with walk-in closet, luxurious bath, kitchen with top-of-the-line appliances and cabinets, breakfast room, library, first floor laundry room, and a two car garage. Total one floor living with a little extra built in.

"Some" more things to be considered are an old world style fenced in courtyard entry and rear yard with all the privacy you desire.

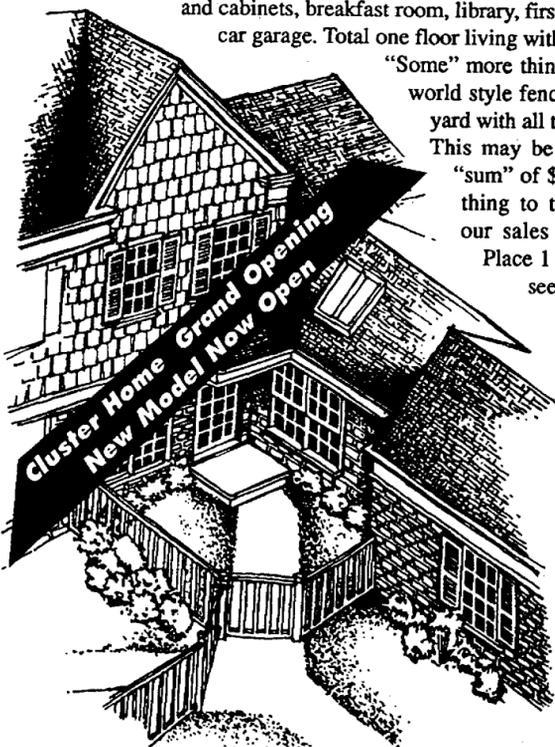

This may be purchased for the affordable "sum" of $259,000 to $289,000, "some" thing to think about. Visit our sales office at Harbor

Place 1 to 5 daily to see why Cluster Homes may be for you.

Grosse Pointers volunteer for Eton Academy's fundraiser

Eton Academy's "A World of Difference" auction will be held Sunday, April 5, from 3 to 8 p.m. at the academy, 1755 Melton in Birmingham. It's the third annual benefit for the school, which serves bright students who show good academic potential in spite of specific learning disabilities.

"Along the Nile" is the theme for the event, which will include a Mystic Silent Auction, a Rameses Raffle and the Dinner of the Pharaoh.

Brigid and Dick Distel of Grosse Pointe Farms are general chairmen for the benefit.

Other Grosse Pointers involved in the fundraiser include Elizabeth Eldridge, Pauline Lackey, Karla Scherer and Elaine Yates.

Grosse Pointers who serve on the board of Eton Academy are Carol Gove, Ralph Mandarino and Mary Beth Smith.

Tickets for the "A World of Difference" auction are $50 and $175 and 500 raffle tickets for a 1992 Ford Mustang convertible will be sold for $100 each. For more information, call 642-1150, weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Flower power: The third annual Ann Arbor Flower and Garden Show, sponsored by the University of Michigan's Matthaei Botanical Gardens, has been moved this year to the Washtenaw Farm Council Grounds, 5055 Ann Arbor-Saline Road in Saline. The dates are Thursday through Sunday, April 2-5. Hours are 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. except Sunday, when the doors will close at 5 p.m.

In addition to landscape exhibits of gardens, competitive design categories, and horticultural specimens, the show will offer lectures and workshops and a marketplace for plants and gardening accessories.

More than 500 volunteers have donated their professional skills to the event.

Grosse Pointers who will participate in the show are Melinda Earle of Grosse Pointe Farms, who is affiliated with the Michigan chapter of the Garden Club of America, and Elizabeth Kuhlman of Grosse Pointe Shores, who is affiliated with the Grosse Pointe Garden Club.

Tickets to the show are $6 in advance; $7 at the gate; $3 for children 12 and under. Tickets are available in the lobby of the Matthaei Botanical Gardens, 1800 N. Dixboro Road in Ann Arbor. To charge tickets by phone, call 998-7002.

In case of rain — wear boots. All proceeds from the show will help develop and maintain display gardens and educational and environmental programs at the Matthaei Botanical Gardens.

Hair, fashions: Lamia Salon in Grosse Pointe will participate in a spring hair and fashion show at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, April 9, in Hutzel Hospital's auditorium in conjunction with national Breast Cancer Awareness Week. The staff at Lamia will do the hair styles and Judith Ann of the Village will provide the fashions. A $15 donation includes valet parking and a wine and cheese reception after the presentation.

Proceeds will go to the Meyer

Cancer Loan Closet Foundation meets

The Cancer Loan Closet Foundation of Greater Detroit met March 24 at Harper Hospital sponsored by the Meyer L. Prentis Comprehensive Cancer Center. The speakers were Gwen MacKenzie, Karen Goldman, Sharon Cure and Silvano Martino.

The committee included Mrs. John Mahler, chairman; Mrs. Bruce Bagley; Mrs. John Malcom; Mrs. Edwin Secord; and Mrs. Robert Hutton.

ALASEM benefit

L. Prentis Comprehensive Cancer Center. Tickets are available at Lamia Salon, 98 Kercheval in Grosse Pointe Farms. Call 884-1710.

French theme: Paris in the springtime.

That will be the theme — complete with tulips, colorful street scenes, strolling musicians and fashions. The Christ Child Society will present "Pour Les Enfants '92," a luncheon, auction, fashion show and boutiques, beginning at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, April 7, at the Troy Marriott Hotel.

Festivities will include a gourmet luncheon, a fashion show by Jacobson's of Rochester, a silent auction and a chance to purchase handcrafted floral pieces, antiques, collectibles and children's wear.

Patron tickets are $100 for two; regular tickets are $35 each. For reservations, call Christ Child House at 584-6077.

Proceeds from the event will support Christ Child Society's services for children, including a residential treatment center, a child abuse prevention program, layettes for needy newborns and support for such organizations as Ronald McDonald House, Judson Center, Oxford Institute and the Foundation for Exceptional Children.

International theme:

The fifth annual International Dance Festival, sponsored by the city of Southfield, will be held on Sunday, April 5, from 4 to 7:30 p.m. at the Southfield Civic Center. It'll be a showcase of eight of the area's best ethnic performing groups, including the Glendi Greek Dancers. Two Grosse Pointers are part of the group: Anna Roustis and Angelo Gritsis.

Festival tickets include an array of international foods and a variety of ethnic music, dancing and costumes. Tickets are $13.50 in advance or $15 at the door. For more information, call the International Institute at 871-8600, or the Southfield Civic Center at 354-4854.

Musical treat: Preludes East is a special events project of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra Volunteer Council. The second in a series of luncheon concerts will be presented on Friday, April 3, at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial.

After lunch, the program will feature four double bassists, Stephen Edwards, Linton Bodwin, Marshall Hutchinson and Craig Rifel. They will be accompanied by Donna Edwards, pianist, and Deborah Edwards, violinist.

Volunteer council members from Grosse Pointe who will assist at the event are Sarah Barger, Gloria Clark, Catherine McMullen and Ida Mae Massnick. Mary Baynert is chairman of the Preludes East programs.

Sunny Days preschool co-op will hold spring open house

Sunny Days, a Christian co-op program for 3- and 4-year-old children, will hold a spring tea and open house for interested parents at the Grosse Pointe Woods Presbyterian Church, 19950 Mack Avenue at Torrey Road, on Tuesday, April 7, from 10-11 a.m.

Sunny Days is an interdenominational program with a Christian approach to social, emotional and academic development, using activities accentuating group involvement — stories, singing, crafts, free play, games, nature studies and field trips — along with praise and recognition.

Sunny Days consists of two-hour class periods twice a week. An optional Wednesday class will be offered for 4-year-olds on kindergarten readiness, if there is an interest shown by the parents.

A co-op program allows parents to participate with their children in a social setting, meet other parents, and learn more about raising children by actively participating in their lives.

For more information call 778-2523.

Jung center to offer lecture on love

The Center for Jung Studies of Detroit will sponsor a lecture and workshop, "Pilgrimage of the Heart: The Path of Romantic Love," presented by John R. Haule.

The lecture will be from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. on Friday, April 3, at Miller Hall, Christ Church Grosse Pointe, 61 Grosse Pointe Blvd. in Grosse Pointe Farms. The workshop will be from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, April 4, at Miller Hall.

Haule earned a Ph.D. in religious studies from Temple University and a diploma from the C.G. Jung Institute in Zurich.

He is on the faculty of the C.G. Jung Institute in Boston, where he also has a private practice.

The Center for Jung Studies of Detroit, a non-profit educational organization established to disseminate the psychology of C.G. Jung, is located in the Village Professional Building, 17150 Kercheval in Grosse Pointe City.

The lecture is $12 for members; $15 for non-members. The workshop is $45 for members; $55 for non-members.

For more information, call 881-7970.

New service for international travelers

TravelCare, a health service for international travelers, has opened at St. John Hospital and Medical Center.

The service is designed to provide immunizations and health-related information to those who will be traveling abroad. Information regarding world wide disease problems is continuously updated. In addition, travelers can find out about potential hazards, and take precautionary measures.

In addition to immunizations, travelers can receive printed material with advice on food, water and hygiene; a list of English-speaking physicians and U.S. embassies in the areas to be visited; and other valuable information. For more information about TravelCare, call 343-7394.

Jewish Council sponsors lecture

The Grosse Pointe Jewish Council will sponsor a lecture by Esther Tarnoff Cooper at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 31, at the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church, 17150 Maumee.

The topic: "Jewish Heritage as Expressed in Jewish Art." Cooper is a commercial artist and a member of the Detroit Institute of Arts speakers' bureau. She has taught courses in Jewish art at Oakland Community College, Southfield Community Education and the Midrash, the College of Jewish Studies.

The community is invited to the lecture. Admission is $3. For more information about the Grosse Pointe Jewish Council and its programs, write to P.O. Box 25031, Detroit, 48225.

Adult counseling

The Children's Home of Detroit Community Services, 20171 Mack in Grosse Pointe Woods, provides short-term adult counseling to individuals in the Grosse Pointes and Harper Woods.

The program is designed to help individuals who need assistance in handling crises, coping with transition or other personal problems. As many as five sessions are available for a minimal fee.

For further information or an appointment call 885-3510.

Pediatric first aid

A registered nurse will teach parents about basic first aid and safety for children at 7 p.m. Tuesday, March 31, at the Partridge Woods Medical Center, 43750 Garfield Road, between 19 Mile and Hall roads in Clinton Township.

The class is sponsored by St. John Hospital and Medical Center. The fee is $5. To register, call 1-800-237-5646, weekdays, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Parents Without Partners meets

The St. Clair Shores chapter of Parents Without Partners will hold its general meeting on Friday, April 3, at the VFW Bruce Post, Jefferson at 11-1/2 Mile, at 8:15 p.m. The program will be Part II of Peter Lakis' Greece slide presentation.

The meeting is free and open to the public.

Orientation for prospective members will be held at 7:45 p.m. New members must attend an orientation. Following the meeting there will be a dance for members only. Cost is $7. For information, call Patricia at 755-3516, June at 264-7856, or Cathie at 468-1770.

Thrift shop thrives on consignments

The Little Thrift Shop, located in St. Michael's Episcopal Church, 20475 Sunningdale Park in Grosse Pointe Woods, takes household items and clothing on consignment for resale.

"Consignees receive 60 percent of the sale price of each item and get their earnings in a quarterly check," said Barbara Weaver, co-manager of the shop.

The church gets the other 40 percent.

"We'd like to remind people of The Little Thrift Shop," she said. "We want to encourage people to bring items they no longer want. Those items that are not sold are donated to metropolitan Detroit area charities serving the needy."

Weaver said that warmer weather and spring cleaning may encourage people to clean closets, organize cupboards and donate items to the shop.

Hours for receiving items are 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Fridays and the sales area is open Wednesdays and Fridays from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The Little Thrift Shop was opened in 1958 and is staffed by 60 volunteers, all members of the church.

Speaker will discuss life in fast lane

How do 1990's women cope — balancing family life, careers, social obligations and economic set-backs? How do they bring into and keep God in their lives with all this turmoil?

On Saturday, April 4, from 9 a.m. until noon, the Lutheran Center, 579 E. Nine Mile in Ferndale, will host a mini-retreat for women to address "Christian Women Coping with Life in the Fast Lane."

Talitha Farah, a Birmingham Christian counselor, will be the speaker. Farah has a master's degree in social work from the University of Michigan and has a private practice counseling individuals and couples. She is active in her church, Ascension Lutheran of Birmingham, where her husband is pastor. She is also the mother of five children.

The program, special music by soloist Anita Schettenhelm and a continental breakfast cost $5. All women are invited. For information, call 541-0788.

Faith Lutheran plans special service

The Rev. David Boone, pastor of Christ Lutheran Church in Sterling Heights, will speak at Faith Lutheran Church, 897 Philip, in Detroit, on Sunday, March 29. Boone is a son of the Faith Lutheran congregation and will speak at services honoring sons and daughters of the congregation who have entered the ministry. There will be fellowship and light refreshments after the service.

'Shadows and Fog' is vintage Allen, literally

By Ronald J. Bernas
Staff Writer

For the true fan, a new Woody Allen movie is a personal event, which might explain the number of people sitting alone in the movie theater, enjoying Allen's latest effort "Shadows and Fog."

It's an eerie comedy as well as an existential commentary and it's something only a true prize. You get all the same ingredients, but none of the rewards. There are generous helpings of "Why are we here?" and "What's my purpose?" mixed with the traditional manic humor and whining. But the nugget of truth, that meaning that imbues most of Allen's work, is missing. Or is it?

"Shadows" is an extension and a rewrite of the nearly 20-year-old one-act play "Death" in Allen's book "Without Feathers." It has the same plot, but he's added characters, deleted some, mixed in a subplot about a circus troupe and changed the ending.

It begins on a dark and foggy night in some unnamed European-feeling town in what looks like the 1920s. Kleinman (Allen) is awakened by a group of men pounding on his door. They have come to enlist his help in trapping a killer who has been wandering the streets, striking only on foggy nights.

They tell him to meet them outside after he gets dressed and they'll tell him what to do.

But when he gets outside, he's all alone, and he goes from place to place trying to identify his part in the grand plan to stop the killer.

Meanwhile, there's a circus on the edge of town and there are two lovers who can't work out their problems. One is Irmay, the sword swallower (Mia Farrow), and the other is the clown (John Malkovich). It's not just for a few cheap jokes that Allen made Irmay's lover a clown, but it feels that way.

After a fight, Irmay takes off into the fog (where a killer waits) and shortly afterward, the clown follows.

They all meet and lose contact and meet again and don't know why or what's happening.

And they are all drawn to a brothel at one time or another where the prostitutes — played by Kathy Bates, Lily Tomlin and Jody Foster — discuss the meaning of life between tricks.

One problem with "Shadows and Fog" is not what it says — it's been said before in much of Allen's work — but that it is said. In his best work, "Crimes and Misdemeanors," for instance, the audience gets Allen's point by the actions — not the words — of the characters. And actions speak louder than stilted dialogue.

The other problem is that it's so obvious. We're asked to become part of a plan for no apparent reason, we don't know what our purpose is and we wait for someone else to tell us what to do. And while all that happens, we jump at our own shadows in the fog.

But still, even mediocre Allen is better than most work put out today. There is more thought and more meaning than in most films. And he gives us a chance to laugh at ourselves instead of at someone else.

It's fun, also, to see the screen chewed up by such presences as Donald Pleasance, John Cusack, Kate Nelligan and Julie Kavner, in addition to those already mentioned. Even Madonna shows up in a nice cameo.

And in the end, after most people elude the killer and in doing so learn how to stand up for themselves, it's the magic of the circus that brings it all together.

One wishes some of that magic had come sooner.

Symphony gets 'On Its Toes' with varied fare

In a concert that was a first of its kind in the Grosse Pointe Symphony Orchestra's nearly 40-year history, a good-sized audience assembled at Grosse Pointe North High School Auditorium Sunday to hear and see a program featuring a violin soloist and a ballet corps, in addition to the orchestra itself.

Conductor Felix Resnick was on the podium, and the guest artists were violinist Julie Evans, and the Ballet Corps of the Mary Ellen Cooper Dance Ensemble.

The theme of the concert was "On Your Toes," and the performers presented music which stressed the elements of rhythm and dance. While the orchestra played extremely well, the tonal ambience and the acoustics of the hall were a distinct disadvantage, frequently making it difficult to hear the music clearly.

It was good to have one of the less-often played Rossini overtures, "Il Viaggio a Reims," open the concert. This was followed by the Berlioz orchestration of Weber's "Invitation to the Dance," in which the Ballet Corps made its first appearance of the afternoon, and which featured some splendid solo work from principal cellist Denis Newhouse.

This year's Nester Scholarship Award Winner, Julie Evans, then made her appearance in the first movement of the "Third Violin Concerto" by Camille Saint-Saens. After some uncertain pitch and bowing problems, she settled in to a most satisfying performance of this familiar masterpiece. Again, the hall's poor acoustics manifested themselves, with the orchestra often covering the soloist's efforts, in spite of Resnick's attempts to achieve the desired balance between the soloist and the ensemble.

Things seemed to spring to life with a rousing performance of Anton Dvorak's "Slavonic Dance No. 1." The Ballet Corps was appropriately attired in bright, peasant-like costumes for this colorfully choreographed dance episode. The first half of the concert concluded with a fine, toe-tapping performance of the Muller-Burghaus orchestration of Franz Liszt's popular "Second Hungarian Rhapsody."

Following intermission the Ballet Corps again combined with the orchestra in a choreographic setting of George Gershwin's jazzy tone poem, "An American In Paris." The beautiful, classic gowns of the senior ballerinas, contrasting with the more street-like attire of the younger dancers, seemed curiously out of place for a score of this nature. In spite of some coordination problems from the ensemble, the dancers presented a meaningful and eye-pleasing realization of the work. There were also some notable solo contributions by members of the orchestra, especially those of concertmaster Derek Francis.

Allen fan would love. Or be disappointed in.

Pesci, Tomei make 'Vinnie' a winner

By Marian Trainor
Special Writer

"My Cousin Vinnie," a mad-cap farce, starts slowly but as it gains momentum, it has the audience laughing aloud and cheering when a neophyte lawyer from Brooklyn, with the help of the sexiest auto mechanic you ever saw, outsmarts the local legal eagle.

The film opens with Bill

Gambini (Ralph Macchio) and his friend Stan Rothenstein (Mitchell Whitfield) barreling down the road in their green convertible en route to California and a scholarship. The radio is blasting out "Way Down South" and the boys are laughing at the locals as they whiz through the small towns in the South. In Alabama they stop at a convenience store to buy supplies. After Gambini pockets a can of tuna fish, they run to their car and peel off.

A short time later they are stopped by the sheriff (Bruce McGill). Brandishing a shotgun, he orders them out of the car, handcuffs them and hauls them off to jail.

All this for a can of tuna fish? Not quite.

What follows is a very funny exchange of misinterpreted questions and answers. "Was the crime premeditated?" the sheriff asks. "Oh no," answers Bill. "It was just done on the spur of the moment."

The interrogation continues in the same vein and ends with the sheriff shouting, "You murdered the clerk." Confused and scared, Bill echoes the accusation, "I murdered the clerk?" Mistaking the question for a confession, the sheriff tells him, "We're going to run enough electricity through you to light up Birmingham."

Pondering their plight in a cell, Bill remembers that he has a cousin who is a lawyer. Enter street tough Vinnie (Joe Pesci) decked out in a black leather jacket, black shirt and chains and sporting an Elvis pompadour. With him is his long-time fiancée Mona Lisa Vito (Marisa Tomei). In the town of Wahoo, Ala., the two attract considerable attention.

Vinnie promises to get them out, but then tells them he's only been practicing law for six weeks, and that this case will be his first.

Nevertheless, with all the bravado of the uninformed he struts into the arraignment. Fred Gwynne, the great-hound-dog face of "Munsters" fame, is a by-the-book, no-nonsense judge. He is outraged by Vinnie's appearance and actions and slaps him with a contempt citation.

The prosecutor is a well-prepared, silver-tongued Southerner who makes Vinnie look like the amateur he is. But all is not lost. Vinnie has Mona Lisa, a sex kitten who can show her claws when the occasion arises.

The script moves in many directions to showcase Pesci. The trial scenes and the episodes in between are amusing but the funniest parts in the film are those that feature Pesci and Tomei. She is a riot in her provocative get-up spouting, just like a master plumber, off a long and detailed explanation of why the faucet leaks and describing to a gaping courtroom the whys and wherefores of various models of cars and the intricacies of their innards.

The film's closing scenes are sensational, thanks to Pesci and Tomei. They are a great team.

"My Cousin Vinnie" was written by Dale Laumer ("Ruthless People") and directed by Jonathan Lynn, who wrote and directed "Nuns on the Run." Both men are known for their way with comedy and that talent shows in "My Cousin Vinnie." It is an inventive and off-beat comedy that is well served by Pesci in a far different role than he had in "Goodfellas," and Tomei, who creates an original in Mona Lisa.

Jarvi's 100th CD focuses worldwide attention on DSO, American music

By Alex Sucek
Special Writer

With Neeme Jarvi and the Detroit Symphony Orchestra at an all-time high artistically, in attendance and in world awareness, the release of their third CD is a major international event. This is intensified by the fact that Chandos management has chosen to highlight this disc as Jarvi's 100th release

They even generate positive emotional response.

Also rewarding is the awareness coming from repeated hearings that while Ives obviously followed his father's admonition to "stretch your ears" harmonically, the form and structure of the work still owe much to traditional, classical form. Moreover, it is awe-inspiring to think that he wrote this fine orchestration over the course of his four years in college.

For Ives fans, DSO fans and even the just curious who want to widen their horizons, this disc is a high priority for the CD collection. The significance is only doubled by the inclusion of the three short "Essays for Orchestra."

These, too, are lovely, translucent performances that do great credit to one of America's greatest composers. Following in a tradition that Ives certainly helped establish, Barber created the "Essay" in a clean break with traditional form and developed his own harmonic idiom. He has created a kind of abstract music that has a unique character and appeal all its own.

Of special interest is the fact that these three short works span most of the composer's creative life. The first was his Opus 12 and the last, Opus 47, was the last work he completed before his death. Listening to them in sequence reveals quite vividly the growth and development of his skill in scoring and his musical style.

On this disc, they are a glowing testament to the sophisticated and eloquent quality of this contemporary American composer, his beautifully crafted orchestral music and his maturing as an artist.

Chandos Digital, CHAN 9053, Charles Ives, Symphony No. 1, Samuel Barber, Three Essays for Orchestra, Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

with them in the past decade. It's no mean feat and a big feather in the DSO cap.

The program on the disc is appropriately special and All-American. Billed as Volume Two in the Jarvi/DSO American Series, it offers exemplary performances of Symphony No. 1 by Charles Ives and "Three Essays for Orchestra" by Samuel Barber. All are needed and welcome additions to contemporary discography.

Not that these works are general audience favorites. Ives' taste for dissonance and frequent, unconventional key changes, difficult enough for today's audiences, was heresy to his professor at Yale. Ives wrote the symphony a century ago as a senior thesis. But time and this recording have treated the work well and this disc makes for fascinating, even pleasant listening. The listener can even play games with it like trying to count the key changes in the introduction of the opening theme.

Most rewarding is the fact that repeated listening with an open ear brings a growing appreciation of Ives' creative genius and the genuine beauty of his music. The dissonances and abrupt switches become familiar and make aesthetic sense.

Fine Arts

Granny Smith apples are tart, crunchy and delicious

Apples are delicious in name and taste and are considered the all-American treat. Apples are familiar to us all, but most people do not know that the apple tree is closely related to the rose, the strawberry, blackberry and raspberry plants.

Throughout history, the apple has been a symbol and universal standard of reference for suspicious-looking new fruits and vegetables. When lemons and peaches first appeared in Europe they were called Persian apples, tomatoes were called "love apples," eggplants were called "mad apples" and the French named potatoes "pommes de terre," or "earth apples." Generations of poets and artists have represented the apple as the forbidden fruit, but Genesis refers only to the "fruit of the tree of knowledge."

Granny Smith apples are a green-skinned variety that originated in Australia. Seedlings found near Sydney around 1860 were thought to be seedlings of "French crabapples" grown in Tasmania at that time. Granny Smith is the No. 1 variety grown in the Southern Hemisphere; Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Chile, and Argentina grow and export vast amounts of them.

Grannies, with their tart-sweet flavor and very crunchy texture, were popular in the United States and sold at premium prices. American growers, observing the success of the imports, got into the act. We now produce Granny Smiths in many areas; however, those grown on the West Coast are the best.

An ideal Granny Smith is one that is crisp, crunchy and juicy. Select very firm, colorful, unbruised apples. The medium-sized apple is usually the best buy. Unlike other fruit, apples are at flavor peak when just picked from the tree. They should always be kept under refrigeration and never (even in a fruit bowl) at room temperature. An apple that is allowed to get mellow loses the desired crunch and juicy flavor.

Apples are an excellent source of carbohydrates, the energy source preferred by the body. Nutritionists also recommend that at least 50 percent of our total calorie intake should be from complex carbohydrates such as those found in apples. Physically active individuals may require 55 to 60 percent of their calories from complex carbohydrates. Apples provide carbohydrates in combination with more than four grams of dietary fiber consisting of pectin, hemicellulose and cellulose. Research has shown pectin may help lower blood cholesterol levels and may play a role in reducing the risk of coronary heart disease.

Sauteed Apples and Pork Steaks with Mustard Sauce

4 (about 3 oz. each) lean boneless pork steaks
Seasoned flour
3 T butter or margarine divided
2 T vegetable oil
2 (about 3/4 lb.) Granny Smith apples, pared, cored and sliced
2 T minced onions
1 cup apple juice
1/2 cup each dry white wine and plain yogurt
2 T Dijon-style mustard
1 T flour
1/4 t dried thyme, crushed salt and pepper

Dredge pork chops in seasoned flour. In non-stick skillet, saute chops in 2 tablespoons butter and oil until browned on both sides and juices run clear. Remove to heated platter; set aside. Add remaining butter to skillet and saute apples and onions until tender. Remove apples to heated platter. Add apple juice and wine; simmer 5 minutes. Combine yogurt, mustard, flour and thyme; stir into apple juice mixture. Simmer about 5 minutes or until smooth. Salt and pepper to taste. Serve with chops and apples. Serves 4.

Seasoned Flour: Combine 1/2 cup flour, 1/2 teaspoon each salt and pepper; mix well. Makes about 1/2 cup.

Apple Buttermilk Cake

2 cups flour, divided
2 t baking powder
1/2 t salt
1/4 cup butter or margarine, softened
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 cup packed brown sugar
1 egg
1/2 cup buttermilk
2 cups (about 2 medium) Granny Smith apples, finely chopped
1 t grated lemon peel regular or frozen lemon yogurt

Combine 1-1/2 cups flour, baking powder and salt; set aside. Cream butter and sugars; beat in egg. Stir in buttermilk and flour mixture alternately until blended. Toss apples with remaining 1/2 cup flour. Fold in apples and lemon peel; pour into greased and floured 9-inch square baking dish. Sprinkle with almond crumb topping (below) if desired. Bake at 375 for 35 to 40 minutes or until wooden pick inserted near center comes out clean. Cool. Serve with lemon yogurt. Makes 9 servings.

Almond crumb topping: Combine 1/3 cup each packed brown sugar, flour and chopped almonds, 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon, and 1/4 cup softened butter or margarine; mix thoroughly with fork or pastry blender.

Savory Cheese Spread

1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
1 cup shredded cheddar cheese
1/2 cup crumbled blue cheese
1 T milk
1 to 2 T brandy
Granny Smith apples
Walnut halves, optional

Beat cheeses, milk and brandy until blended. Pack into a 2-cup crock or bowl. Refrigerate, covered, 8 hours or overnight to blend flavors. Let stand at room temperature 1 hour before serving. Surround with slices of apples. Garnish with nuts, if desired. Makes about 1-1/2 cups spread.

Variation: Omit brandy; increase milk to 2 tablespoons and stir in 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and 1/4 cup chopped walnuts. Recipes are from the Washington Apple Commission.

1992 Michigan travel guide is now available

"Michigan Summer Secrets," the 1992 summer travel guide and calendar of events, is now available from the Michigan Travel Bureau. Third in the "secrets" series, the 84-page publication provides 11 trip-planning itineraries, covering the entire series. They provide route information and suggestions on what to do, what to see, and where to stay.

The five Upper Peninsula itineraries, which include the Straits of Mackinac area, take vacationers from the far western end to the easternmost tip of the U.P. Sightseeing options range from moose-watching to iron-mine touring, to watching freighters pass through one of the world's busiest waterways, to visiting the only island national park in the continental United States, to walking the world's longest front porch.

Other itineraries meander through the state's Lower Peninsula, taking in such attractions and activities as the Sleeping Bear Dunes National Lakeshore, canoeing on the Au Sable River, Rockford's Hot Dog Hall of Fame, the International Cherry Pit Spitting Championship in Eau Claire, and the historic homes of the auto barons in Detroit.

More than 900 events from April through early September are featured, as well as a complete listing of Michigan's state parks.

LCE spices up spring

The Lyric Chamber Ensemble will present "Troubadours, Torreadors & Traditionalists" — a celebration of Spanish vocal and guitar music — and the final concert of its "From Spain with Love" War Memorial Series on Sunday, April 5, at 3:30 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial (32 Lakeshore, Grosse Pointe Farms).

The program will include vocal selections by Enrique Granados, sung by soprano Earnestine Nimmons and accompanied by pianist Fedora Horowitz. Guitarist Michael Stockdale will perform solo works by Albeniz, Debussy and Ponce and will be joined by DSO violinist Geoffrey Applegate in duets for violin and guitar by Paganini. Nimmons, Applegate and Horowitz will combine their talents in Mozart's "Schon Lacht der Fruhling."

Dancer and choreographer Peter Sparling of Ann Arbor Dance Works will lend variety to the program with a solo performance of the Jose Limon choreography to J.S. Bach's "Chaconne," played by Applegate. Sparling will also perform the premiere of his own choreography to the andante movement of Bach's "Italian Concerto" (commissioned with the support of the Arts Foundation of Michigan), played by Horowitz.

Tickets $15; $13 for students and seniors, in advance or at the door. For tickets or information, call the LCE at 357-1111.

CCS announces faculty artist series

The Center for Creative Studies' music chairman Michael Stockdale announced that the 1992 Faculty Artist Series will be a "Celebration of 20th Century Music."

CCS features its music faculty in concert annually. This is the first year that the school will feature many of its own composer/faculty members' compositions.

The series includes works by dean emeritus Albert Fillmore, Detroit Symphony Orchestra's Unisys African-American Composers Forum finalist Joseph Hayes and faculty members Michael Bryce and Neill Eisenstein.

A debut concert featuring the newly formed faculty piano trio "De Trios" will open the series on Friday, March 27.

Prism Quartet member Reginald Borik and Detroit Jazz Orchestra founder Donald Walden will share the stage on May 1.

The May 29 performance will feature 20th century French music.

The final concert on June 19 is a mixture of American and Spanish styles.

The series takes place in Boughton Auditorium on the CCS campus, 200 East Kirby in Detroit's Cultural Center. Tickets are $7.50 for adults, $5 for students and senior citizens, and may be purchased by calling 831-2870.

The Center for Creative Studies is located at 201 East Kirby in Detroit, with suburban branches in Grosse Pointe, Plymouth, Southfield and Novi. A faculty of over 300 artist/instructors provides high-quality visual and performing arts training to nearly 3,000 students annually.

CCS is accredited by the National Association of Schools of Music, the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools, the National Association of Schools of Art and Design and is a member of the National Dance Association.

Detroit Concert Choir presents Haydn masterpiece

The international-award-winning Detroit Concert Choir, under the direction of Gordon Nelson, will perform one of Haydn's great masterpieces, the "Lord Nelson Mass in D Minor."

The concert will be Saturday, March 28, at 8 p.m. at Grosse Pointe Baptist Church, 21336 Mack Avenue in Grosse Pointe Woods.

The Mass is one of the truly inspiring works in choral/orchestral literature. It is a work of hope and a positive confession of faith, peace and victory.

The concert will be performed with the Michigan Sinfonietta Orchestra and will feature lyric coloratura soprano Carolyn Grimes, who delights and captivates audiences with her extraordinary vocal technique and purity of sound.

'Requiem' to be sung

The St. Jude Performing Arts Series presents the "Requiem" by Maurice Durufle sung by the choirs of St. Jude Church and Ars Nova and conducted by Craig Scott Symons on Sunday, April 12.

Soloists will be Sharon Sweet, Lawrence Formosa and organist Ray Ferguson, head of the organ and church music division at Wayne State University and organist for the Detroit Symphony. An international recitalist, Ferguson is a two-time Fulbright recipient and a winner of the American Guild of Organists' International Playing Competition.

The free concert will be at 4 p.m. at the Church of St. Jude, 15879 E. Seven Mile, west of Kelly in Detroit. For more information, call 527-0380.

Grimes has appeared in recital throughout the United States and Canada, including performances with the Detroit Symphony orchestra and the PUNCH Opera Company in New York City.

Also featured with the Detroit Concert Choir will be award-winning soloist James Moore Jr., tenor; along with Jin Sook Hong, alto; and Greg Housewright, bass.

The 65-voice choir took international honors in Wales last summer at the Llangollen International Music Festival.

Tickets are $10 at the door or $8 for seniors/students. Save $2 by purchasing tickets in advance ($8 or $6 senior/student). Group rates are available.

Call 882-0118 for ticket information. Visa and Mastercard accepted.

The concert will be at 8 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church, 17150 Maumee, east of Cadioux. Tickets are $9 in advance and $10 at the door and are available at Village Records and Tapes, 17116 Kercheval in Grosse Pointe.

Adam Dodt, Shaka Cummings and Maria Luisa Garcia appear in Jose Rivera's "The House of Ramon Iglesia," playing April 2-12 at the WSU Studio Theatre. For more information call the WSU Theatre box office at 577-2972.

'The House of Ramon Iglesia' opens at WSU Studio Theatre

Wayne State University's production of Jose Rivera's "The House of Ramon Iglesia" opens at the Studio Theatre Thursday, April 2, at 8 p.m. It continues through April 12, Thursdays through Saturdays at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 2 p.m. "Iglesia" is Rivera's first Hispanic play, and the honesty in Rivera's writing can be found in his portrayal of the Iglesia family — a Puerto Rican clan that immigrated to New York in 1961.

The play tells the story of a bright Americanized son's tortured efforts to break away from his immigrant parents — a break that can't be made until the assimilated hero learns to accept the ethnic heritage that he has spent his life trying to suppress.

Directed by Jerry Cleveland, a second-year graduate directing student at Wayne State, the play reflects his crusade for non-traditional casting in American theater — casting without regard to ethnic or racial origins. "It is a process in casting that, I believe, will ultimately reflect the true spirit and creativity in American theater," says Cleveland.

Appearing in the production are: Maria Luisa Garcia, from the Dominican Republic; Juan Marcus, from Puerto Rico; Shaka Cummings, from Acapulco, Mexico; Brian Marable, a senior from Cass Technical High School; and Adam Dodt, of Wayne State.

O. Keith Jackson is designing scenery. Marcia Newman in designing costumes. Jim McHugh is designing lights. Stanley Cleveland of Cinwin Music Inc. is designing sound and Linda Cleveland Simmons is adding special choreography.

The Studio Theatre is located downstairs at the Hilberry Theatre. Ticket information is available at the Wayne State University Theatre box office, 577-2972.

Jazz Forum presents saxophonist

The Jazz Forum Spring '92 Concert Series continues Wednesday, April 1, with an ensemble led by Detroit's own master saxophonist, George Benson.

Long an outstanding presence locally, Benson has also recorded a number of albums for the Canadian Parkwood label — the latest called "George Benson Swings and Swings." His appearance will pay tribute to Scott Joplin and will include a variety of styles "From Ragtime to Modern."

He will be joined by pianist Charles Boles, drummer Jerry McKenzie, trombonist Stew Sanders, bassist Don Mayberry and vocalist Judy Cochil.

The concert will be at 8 p.m. at the Grosse Pointe Unitarian Church, 17150 Maumee, east of Cadioux. Tickets are $9 in advance and $10 at the door and are available at Village Records and Tapes, 17116 Kercheval in Grosse Pointe.

Bonstelle fire burns hole in WSU dance concert schedule

The schedule and location for the annual Spring Dance Concert at Wayne State University has changed due to an electrical fire at the Bonstelle Theatre.

All performances will be at the State Theater in Detroit at the following times: 8 p.m. Friday, March 27; no performance Saturday, March 28; and 2 p.m. Saturday, March 29.

Tickets are available from the department and at the box offices of the Hilberry Theatre, 4743 Cass, call 577-2972, and at the State Theatre, 2115 Woodward.

Tickets are $6 at the door; $5 for seniors, students and advance sales. Group rates are available.

People who have already purchased tickets or have questions may call the dance department at 577-4273.

The concert will feature works by guest choreographers Barbara Selinger, co-director of Detroit Dance Collective, and Whitley Setrakian, director of People Dancing.

Participating WSU dance faculty members are department chairwoman Georgia Reid, Chris Dragone, Portia Fields, Betty Mahwinney, Eva Jablonowski-Powers and Linda Simmons.

Love's Labour's won't be lost with day trip

Forsake women and worldly pleasures? These are the intentions of the youthful King of Navarre and his three companions — until the arrival of the Princess of France and her three ladies-in-waiting. Enjoy the witty complications that ensue in this delightful, courtly comedy by William Shakespeare at Stratford Festival during a performance of "Love's Labour's Lost."

The Grosse Pointe War Memorial day trip is Tuesday, May 5, from 8 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. Reservations are due by March 27.

Lunch at The Church Restaurant is included as well as juice, cheese and crackers for the return trip. This performance is for school groups and senior citizens so there will be students in the audience. Proof of citizenship is required — a birth certificate with state seal, passport or voter's registration card. A driver's license is not acceptable.

Dinosaurs invade Youtheatre

They are ugly. They are extinct. They fascinate kids, and a lot of adults as well. They are "Dinosaurs," the Saturday, March 28, Youtheatre show at the Detroit Institute of Arts auditorium.

Produced by the Atlanta Center for Puppetry Arts, the show begins with a demonstration of techniques used to operate 24 astonishingly lifelike hand, rod and body puppets which are all in appropriate scale. The apatosaurus is more than 18 feet long and the tyrannosaurus rex is over 8 feet tall.

Then the magic of illusion takes over. The Earth revolves in space, a water line on stage gradually drops, a volcano erupts and asteroids explode. "Dinosaurs" travels back in time 500 million years, from the watery world of simple organisms to the age of the dinosaurs. A stage full of colossal creatures comes to life — from jellyfish in the Pre-Cambrian Sea and the archosaurs of the Pennsylvania Swamp changing into flying pterosaurs, to the leaf-eating apatosaurus and the triceratops nuzzling her baby out of an eggshell.

In a Godzilla-style contest, tyrannosaurus rex takes on the triceratops. A fatal battle between an apatasaur and tyrannosaurus rex signals the end of the dinosaurs and their extraordinary era spanning 150 million years.

The show is a Cub Scout Salute Day and is recommended for youngsters age 5 and up.

Tickets for "Dinosaurs" are $6; $5 for groups of 10 or more. Performances are at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. in the DIA auditorium. Tickets are available in person at the DIA ticket office. MasterCard and Visa are accepted for phone orders. Call 833-2323.

Pride of the Pointes

Among the 582 students at Michigan State University who earned perfect 4.0 grade point averages for the fall term were eight Grosse Pointers: Glenn Crandall, Matthew W. Beal, Christine K. Biretta, Julie Ciaramitaro, Kristin K. Button, James C. Johnson, Melissa A. Nawa and Mark T. Carasco.

Amy Gentile of Grosse Pointe Farms and Melissa Petersmarck of Grosse Pointe Park are two of the 46 Saint Mary's College seniors selected for inclusion in the 1992 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities."

Marine 2nd Lt. James R. Hensien, son of Patricia K. Hensien of Grosse Pointe Woods, graduated from the Basic School in Quantico, Va. Hensien is a graduate of the University of Michigan.

Five local students were named to the dean's list at Kalamazoo College. They are Brion J. Czajczynski, son of Edna L. Lock of Grosse Pointe Farms; Kelli A. Wyllie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel G. Wyllie of Grosse Pointe Farms; James D. DeYonker, son of Philomena DeYonker of Grosse Pointe Woods and Leo G. DeYonker of Birmingham; Erick H. Trickey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Trickey III of Grosse Pointe Woods; and Rebecca Engelbrecht, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Engelbrecht of Harper Woods.

Stephen S. Bai, son of Dr. Richard and Helen Bai of Grosse Pointe Woods, and Susan M. Sullivan, daughter of Thomas and Mary Sullivan of Grosse Pointe Woods, were named Albion College Fellows, Albion's highest academic honor, at the end of the 1991 fall semester. Bai is a sophomore, majoring in biology. Sullivan is a junior, also majoring in biology.

Wesley Slaymaker of Grosse Pointe Farms graduated from the Georgia Institute of Technology with a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering.

Richard Simmons of Grosse Pointe Farms was named to the fall dean's list at Heidelberg College. Simmons, a junior majoring in music, gave his junior recital Jan. 25.

Larisa Lindsay of Grosse Pointe was named to the Plymouth State College dean's list for the fall semester.

Paige E. Pelok, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Larry Pelok of Grosse Pointe Woods, was named to the dean's list at the University of Notre Dame for the fall semester. She is a sophomore, majoring in music. She recently sang the lead in a production of Mozart's opera, "Impressario."

Airman Timothy G. Smith graduated from the aircraft fuel systems mechanic course at Chanute Air Force Base in Illinois. He is the son of Maurice Smith of Grosse Pointe Woods and Brenda G. Smith of St. Clair Shores.

Karen Galsterer, daughter of Jack and Marilyn Galsterer of Grosse Pointe Woods, was elected scholarship chairman for the Delta Lambda chapter of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority at Miami University. She is a psychology major and plans to graduate in 1993.

Melissa Jane Blumenthal of Grosse Pointe Woods, a freshman majoring in engineering, was named to the dean's list at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

Todd Southwell, son of Robert and Sharon Southwell of Grosse Pointe Shores, is a member of the University of Dayton's mock trial team. The team placed third out of 16 teams in the mid-east regional tournament in Toledo. Southwell is captain of the team and earned an outstanding attorney award at the tournament.

Taras Alexander Gracey son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Gracey of Grosse Pointe Farms graduated from the University of California at Berkeley, with honors.

Ibez celebrates 60 years

Ibez celebrated its 60th anniversary Feb. 29 at a black tie dinner dance at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial. Ibez was founded in 1932 by nine women, among them Virginia Delbridge Little, Martha Jean Miller Merry, Harriett Moffett Snyder, and the late Helen Moore Esling, the first president. Ibez gives its members opportunities to enrich their knowledge in the arts through monthly meetings and workshops.

Three Devils earn All-State hockey honors

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Grosse Pointe South's hockey team was one of the best high school squads in the state this year and three of the reasons were Brian Crane, Tom Rajt and David Auld.

"Each of them was very important to our success this year and it's good to see that other coaches recognized it, too," said Blue Devils' coach John La-Londe after Crane and Rajt were named to the Class A All-State first team selected by a vote of coaches around the state. Auld received honorable mention on the All-State team.

Crane, a 6-foot-1, 168-pound senior left wing, led South with 30 goals and added 14 assists for a team-high 44 points.

"It didn't take long for me to tell that Brian was going to be a special player for us," said LaLonde, who completed his first season as coach of the Blue Devils. "You could see his great speed, good skills and tremendous shot."

It didn't take long for the Michigan Metro High School League coaches to remember Crane, who had a good junior season with South.

"The teams that knew him always had somebody shadowing him," LaLonde said. "Some players get frustrated by that, but Brian knew it was part of the game and he didn't let it bother him to always have somebody in his hip pocket."

Crane played on a line with Rajt at center and Kevin Brennan on the right wing and the unit had the talent to dominate games.

"Brian was so consistent that it's difficult to pick out one game and call it his best," LaLonde said. "Trenton was on him all game, but he still got our only goal (in a 4-1 loss to the Trojans in the Class A regional championship)."

Crane hopes to continue playing hockey in college and he's been contacted by Lake Forest (Ill.), Ferris State and Lake Superior State.

"I think some of the schools would like him to play a year of Junior and put on some weight," LaLonde said.

Although he's slightly built, Crane never avoided the physical aspects of the game.

"He could take a hit and he was never afraid to go into the corners to get the puck," LaLonde said.

If LaLonde had one complaint about Crane, it was carrying his unselfishness to an extreme.

"There were times when we'd work hard to get him the puck and he'd decide to make a pass to one of his linemates," the coach said. "Tommy was the same way. They're both excellent passers and willing to give up the puck. Sometimes I'd hate to see them give up a scoring chance, but I'd rather have them that way than not be willing to make a pass."

Crane was the team's Most Valuable Player and was elected Most Valuable Player in the Metro league's East Division. He also made the All-East First Team.

Rajt, a 5-11, 174-pound junior, possesses many of the same skills as Crane, although he

Area skaters win spots on Metro teams

Grosse Pointe North and Grosse Pointe South were each well-represented on the Michigan Metro High School Hockey League All-League team.

South forward Brian Crane was named to the All-League team, which combines the top players from the East and West divisions. Crane, a senior, was also named Most Valuable Player in the East Division.

Joining him on the All-East First Team were Blue Devils' teammates Tom Rajt, a junior forward, and senior defenseman David Auld.

The All-East Second team included two North players — freshman goalie Chuck Scherwish and senior defenseman Jeff Jensen.

"Chuck was the only freshman to make any of the teams," said Norseman coach Dan Abraham. "That's quite an honor."

Using their heads

Detroit Rockers' player Victor Quni was a recent visitor to the Grosse Pointe Academy where he gave students a demonstration of basic soccer skills. Here the five-year National Professional Soccer League veteran shows students how to use their heads while playing the sport.

Pointer makes a splash at MSU

By Amy Bettisworth
Special Writer

"What do you want to know?" asked Grosse Pointe native Stacey Simonson as she pulled herself out of the Jenison Fieldhouse swimming pool at Michigan State University.

Simonson, a senior at Michigan State, is direct in everything she does. Whether it's her swimming or keeping in touch with her friends, she gets right to the point.

Making all the practices isn't hard for Simonson.

"You're doing it for yourself and for the team," she said. "As long as the team is cohesive, it's not a problem."

Simonson, wearing a double layer of swimsuits to cut down on drag during practice, along with a pair of goggles and a nose clip hanging around her neck, discussed her swimming goals.

"I want to make each routine better than the last," she said. "The best feeling is getting out of the water after a competition and knowing it was good."

Simonson became involved with synchronized swimming at Grosse Pointe South, but she said that much of what she learned as a high school swimmer did not carry over into Green Splash.

Her South team focused on performance for an audience rather than competition with other teams and Green Splash emphasizes competition.

"One percent of the skills I learned in high school went toward competitive swimming," Simonson said. "When you perform and when you compete is two different things."

The team raises money to travel to meets through fundraisers like selling programs at Spartan basketball games.

Since the team has no coach, the girls pair off and teach each other the different moves.

Simonson said she has learned to take constructive criticism from her teammates.

"You've got to know how to deal with it," she said.

Simonson's family and friends have been supportive throughout her three years on Green Splash.

"My family is the most important thing in my life," she said. "I'm not nauseatingly close to them, but we do lots of things together."

Jeanne Henderson, a friend of Simonson's for five years, admires her determination.

"She's not that aggressive, yet she goes after her goals and usually succeeds," Henderson said.

"She's always busy, but gets everything done. Despite all her homework and team activities, she still manages to keep in touch with her friends, even though she doesn't live with any of them."

Simonson is the only woman in a house with 10 men, but she says that rather than working against her, it has helped.

"The house is always messy and noisy," she said, "so it doesn't interfere. It actually makes going to practice easier."

Simonson is looking forward to a job in the field of her double major - employment relations and psychology - but for now, she's content to focus on her swimming and friends.

All-State

"There's nobody around who works harder than Tommy," LaLonde said. "Many of his goals are the result of hard work. He keeps going and scored a lot of goals from his knees after getting knocked down in front of the net."

"He's also a good defensive player, who gets back on defense and checks his man."

Rajt was second to Crane in goals with 20, and his 21 assists led the Blue Devils. His 41 points were also second to Crane.

Rajt and David Tucker were South's two junior co-captains, along with seniors Crane and Auld.

"He's a good leader, but he does it by example," LaLonde said.

Rajt also made the First All-Metro East team and received the Coaches' Award at South.

"That's given to a player who works hard in games and in practices and is an outstanding all-around player," LaLonde said.

Bocci breaks national record in racewalking

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

Jeanne Bocci walked into The Athletics Congress track and field record book last weekend and she doesn't want to stop there.

"I'd like to see how well I can do in the 3,000 meters in the nationals in two weeks," said the Grosse Pointe Park resident, who set a national record for the 1,500-meter racewalk in the 45-and-over age group at the TAC Midwest Masters Sectional Indoor championships in Madison, Wis.

Bocci took the overall women's 1,500 championship with a time of 7:47.99, nearly four seconds better than the 40-and-over winner and nearly 43 seconds better than the 35-and-older champion.

"It was a real good time because I haven't run the 1,500 in a while," Bocci said. "It was my first big meet of the year and I needed a performance like that to help my confidence. I've had some injuries the last couple years and some of the girls I train with were thinking they could beat me. I'm not ready to let them do it yet."

Bocci isn't 100 percent right now. She's nursing a hamstring pull that kept her from doing better in the 3,000 meters in last week's meet, although she still won her age group with a 16:49.45. The only one to beat her was Jodie Olson, a Minnesota runner who took first in the 40-and-older division with a 16:39.73.

"I know I can do better in the 3,000, but we had only an hour and a half between races and it wasn't enough time to recover," Bocci said. "It's hard to do two events like that on the same day. We could do it when we were kids, but it's different at the Masters level."

Bocci will just walk the 3,000 in the national meet in Columbus, Ohio, on April 4.

"I'd like to win it, but there will be some good racewalkers from California," she said. "I know I can beat them if I'm healthy."

Bocci's strategy for the national meet is to stay within striking distance of the leaders.

"You can't let anybody get too far ahead because there isn't time to make up a lot of distance," she explained.

Bocci has been training hard for about two months. Last week she got in some road work while coming home from her job as a health education instructor at Grosse Pointe North, but usually she'll work out on Windmill Pointe Drive or on Lakeshore.

"My daughter took my car to Florida so I've been getting in my eight miles walking home from school," she said.

One night a week Bocci and several of her racewalking friends train in the fieldhouse at Macomb Community College.

"Racewalking is not only an endurance sport, but it's a technique sport," Bocci said.

Bocci has been racewalking since 1963 and she and her husband, Jerry, have made it a family affair.

Jerry also competed in the sectional meet and was second in both the 1,500 and 3,000 meters in the men's 50 and older age group. He recorded an 8:04.9 in the 1,500 and was clocked in 16:34 in the longer race.

"David makes good decisions when he's moving the puck out of our zone. He knows when to give it up and who to pass to."

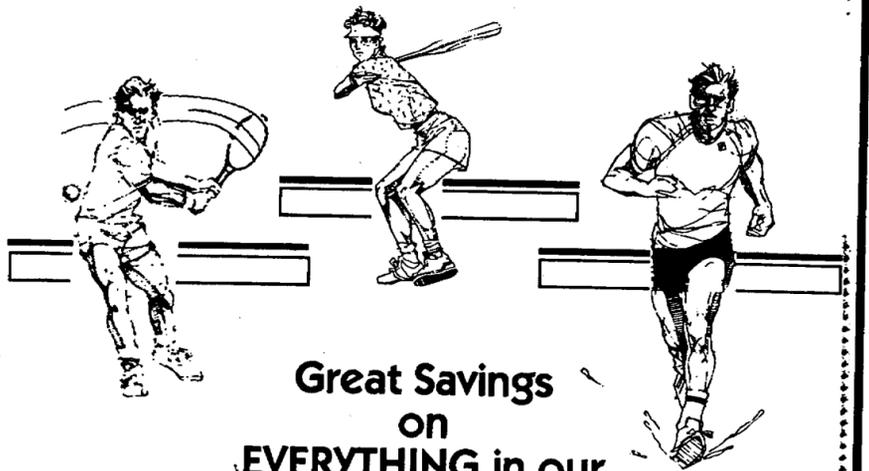

Auld, who scored four goals and collected six assists, has a good shot from the point on the power play, but LaLonde preferred to use him in a forward position when the Blue Devils had a manpower advantage.

"His size made him hard to move in front of the net," LaLonde said. "He also plays lacrosse, so you know he's a tough kid."

South's volleyball season ends with defeat in state quarterfinals

By Chuck Klonke
Sports Editor

A lot of teams would be delighted with the 36-4-2 record that Grosse Pointe South's volleyball team compiled this year.

Unfortunately, the Lady Devils aren't one of them.

"You can't tell me or the kids that this has been a great year," said coach Cindy Sharpe after South was ousted from the Class A state tournament with a 4-15, 15-13, 15-6 loss to St. Johns in the quarterfinal round at Nazareth College last weekend.

"I don't think any of us really understand how it happened that we lost to St. Johns," Sharpe said. "It hurt real bad. Most of the kids didn't even want to leave the hotel on Friday night. They just ordered pizza in the room."

The Lady Devils expected better things this season after reaching the quarterfinals a year ago. Many of the key players on that team returned this year and South was hoping to make the Final Four, at least, and maybe play in the championship match. Once a team gets that far, anything can happen.

"Last year we didn't have a bad feeling when we lost in the quarters because we felt we had done as well as we could. This year, it's a sick feeling. I was so confident we'd be playing on Saturday," Sharpe said. "There was a scout from Arizona State there and he left after our first game. I'll bet he was floored when he came back and found out we'd lost, because we were so dominant in that opening game."

Sharpe thought it was more an attitude than a lack of talent that kept the Lady Devils from advancing to the semifinals.

"I don't think the kids really believed in themselves," Sharpe said. "The word 'lose' came up too many times in our huddles. Instead of thinking what they could do individually to help us win, they were saying 'We can't lose this game.' Then you start playing not to lose instead of playing to win."

South certainly played to win in its first game with St. Johns. The Lady Devils dominated play at the net with 12 kills and it looked like an easy road to the semifinals after the 15-4 victory.

South's hitters — Angela Drake, Stephanie Coddens, Liz Binder, Ashley Moran and Sue McGahey — overpowered the Redwings, who were unable to mount any defense against the Lady Devils.

"We couldn't do anything wrong in that game," Sharpe said. "We were abusing them at the net because they don't block well. Then we came out tentative in the second game and gave the match away."

The Redwings took a 12-8 lead in the second game, but South came back to cut the lead to 14-13. That was the closest the Lady Devils would get.

"We had four opportunities to tie the game, but kept making silly mistakes," Sharpe said.

St. Johns finally got the winning point to tie the match at 1-1, then the Redwings had little trouble in the final game as South struggled with its back-row play.

Drake led South with 11 kills, Coddens had nine and McGahey added six. Sue Farnmouth collected 23 assists in the three games.

"We're losing some fine seniors, but we'll have Drake and Coddens back next year. That's a good nucleus to build around," Sharpe said.

Kings wear Mite crown

The Kings are wearing the Grosse Pointe Hockey Association's Mite Division crown after blanking the Bulldogs 5-0 in the championship game of the division playoffs.

The Bulldogs won the playoffs last season and finished first during the regular season this year.

In their previous meeting, the Bulldogs and Kings skated to a scoreless tie.

Two second-period goals were all the Kings needed, and they sealed the victory by scoring three times in the third period.

Bobby Karle recorded the shutout.

Adam Zielke scored twice for the Kings, while Jonathan McPharlin, Sean Taylor and Ben Karle added a goal apiece.

Ben Karle had two assists and A.J. Kedich, Stu Cooper, Jordan Materna and Zielke each collected one.

Steve Babcock, Jason Capaldi, Johnny Genovesi, Avery Schmidt, Suzanne McGoey and Chris Calandro also played well for the Kings.

The Bulldogs got strong play from Chris Getz, Brian Sullivan, Trevor Mallon, Mike Hackett, Rich Giffin and goalie Chip Fowler.

The Kings reached the championship game with a 5-1 victory over the Habs in the semifinals.

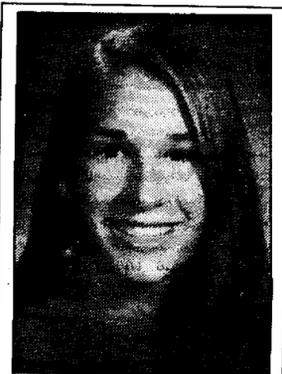

Cooper, Zielke, McPharlin, Taylor and Ben Karle scored for the Kings. Kedich and Ben Karle each had two assists and McPharlin and Cooper added one apiece.

The Kings controlled the tempo of the game offensively and defensively through the strong play of Genovesi, Ryan Haas, Taylor and Boomer Urisko. Bobby Karle was the winning goalie.

Blake Goebel scored the Habs' goal with an assist from Jordan Winfield.

Top honor

Megan McKinney, a senior at Grosse Pointe South, received a high school Academic All-American award in rowing from the United States Rowing Association. She is one of eight women to receive the honor. McKinney is a three-year member of the South/Detroit Boat Club women's crew, which competes nationally against high school and college crews. Selection to the All-American crew was based on a formula that includes grade-point average, college entrance exam scores and rank in the rower's high school graduating class. McKinney plans to attend Georgetown University, where she will participate in the school's competitive rowing program.

Four swimmers qualify for state

Four swimmers from the Pointe Aquatics swim club have qualified for the 12-and-under United States Swimming Michigan State Championships.

Rachelle Atrasz, Cortney Piper, Andy Shelden and Brandon DeGuvera made the state cuts in a recent USS meet at Warren Woods-Tower high school.

Atrasz qualified in the 100-yard freestyle (1:01.2); 200 individual medley (2:31.74); 500 freestyle (5:45.4), where she finished ninth; 200 freestyle (2:11.25); and the 100 butterfly (1:07.72), with a sixth-place finish.

Piper achieved qualifying standards in the 200 individual medley (2:33.54); 100 breaststroke (1:17.38); 500 freestyle (5:50.9); 50 breaststroke (34.76); and the 200 freestyle (2:12.48). Piper was 12th in the 100 breaststroke and seventh in the 50 breaststroke.

Shelden placed in four events. He took fourth in the 500 freestyle (5:43.39); fifth in the 100 butterfly (1:09.38); sixth in the 200 individual medley (2:20.83); and eighth in the 200 freestyle (2:08.86). Shelden was also clocked in 1:11.79 in the 100 individual medley.

DeGuvera, who is only 10 years old, qualified in the 100 freestyle (1:10.44); 200 individual medley (2:58.46); 50 butterfly (36.46); 100 butterfly (1:27.85); 100 individual medley (1:20.44); and 200 freestyle (2:34.72).

Atrasz, Piper and Shelden are each 11 years old.

GYMNAST THIRD: Brian Goldstein of Grosse Pointe Park placed third in the all-around competition at the recent Men's Junior Olympic Gymnastics state meet in Ann Arbor.

Goldstein, a seventh-grader at Pierce Middle School, competes for Conrad's Gymnastics Academy in Farmington Hills.

In the six-event Class III compulsory and optional competition, Goldstein was third in the high bar and fourth in parallel bars.

He has been involved in gymnastics for eight years and has been competing for the last five.

Goldstein's all-around score of 85.2 qualifies him for the United States Gymnastics Federation regional meet next month at the University of Michigan.

TENNIS TITLE: Anthony Stefani, 9, of Grosse Pointe Shores won the Eastern Michigan Indoor Championship in the boys 10-and-under singles division in the meet held recently at the Wimbledon Tennis Club.

SPORTS FESTIVAL: Children's Hospital of Michigan and Wayne State University will sponsor a Children's Sports Festival for youngsters and young adults with physical disabilities.

The festival will be held Saturday, April 4, from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. at the Wayne State Matthaei Sports Center.

There will be competition in wheelchair and ambulatory basketball, team handball, creative dance, bocce, track and field, power lifting and swimming.

Sports activities will be demonstrated and led by disabled celebrity athletes. Community organizations and local sports equipment vendors will provide resource information.

Anyone wishing to register for the sports day should call the educational service department at Children's Hospital, 745-5456, between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m.

TWO WINNERS: Doug Wood, a University Liggett School graduate, played a key role for the Babson College hockey team this season.

Wood, a sophomore forward, played in 25 games and had nine goals and five assists. Among his goals were the game winners in a 9-1 victory over Connecticut College and a 4-1 triumph over Middlebury College in the Eastern College Athletic Conference semifinals.

Babson posted a 20-5-3 record and won the ECAC East championship. The Beavers also played in their 11th consecutive NCAA Division III tournament, losing to Salem State College in the quarterfinal round.

Four members of the Pointe Aquatics swim club qualified for the 12 and under Michigan State championships. From left are Rachelle Atrasz, Cortney Piper, Andy Shelden and Brandon DeGuvera.

NOTICE PURSUANT TO MCR 2.105 (I) AND 2.106.

TO: Mr. David Piontkowsky 1324 Buckingham Grosse Pointe Park, Michigan 48230

You are hereby notified that you have been named as party defendant in a complaint for rescission and declaratory judgment filed January 17, 1991, by plaintiff, Michigan Lawyers Mutual Insurance Company, in the Oakland County Circuit Court, 6th Judicial Circuit, 1200 N. Telegraph Road, Pontiac, Michigan 48341, Case No. 92-426053-CK, before the Honorable Gene Schmelz.

You have 21 days after receipt of the summons to file an answer with the court and serve a copy on the other party, or to take other lawful action (28 days if you are served by mail or you were served outside the state). If you do not answer or take other action within the time allowed, judgment may be entered against you for the relief demanded in the complaint.

500 ANIMALS ADOPT A PET

PLEASE DON'T DELAY! SPAY or NEUTER YOUR PET TODAY! An altered pet is a healthier and happier companion. Also, it spares you the grief and pain of having puppies and kittens destroyed when no homes can be found. Countless numbers of sweet, innocent little ones are euthanized every day in shelters across the country because a pet wasn't spayed or neutered. If we cut down on the numbers of unwanted litters being born, we will also cut down on the number of abandoned, lost and unwanted animals to destroy.

'Ira Sleeps Over' — and so does everyone else

First-graders in Sue Bantien's class at Avalon Elementary in the South Lake School District had it pretty soft Friday the 13th.

All the students showed up wearing their pajamas and toting sleeping bags. Even the moms came dressed in robes. What gives?

The slumber party, complete with pancake breakfast, culminated two weeks of studying author Bernard Waber's tale, "Ira Sleeps Over."

The students, and perhaps the adults as well, found that not having to get dressed for school was pretty neat. They probably still had to brush their teeth, though.

Candace Murray quietly eats breakfast.

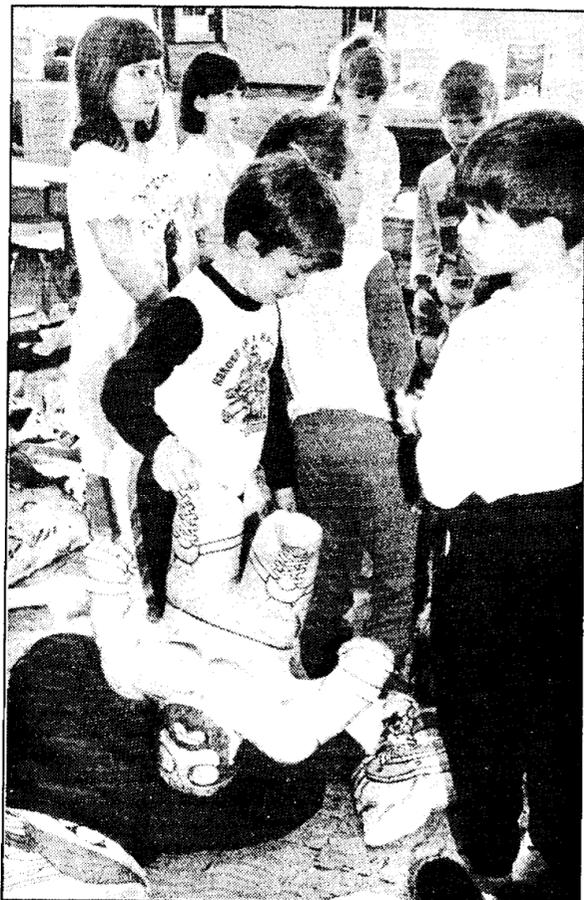

Sleep at a slumber party? Not.

Jennifer Wrubel wraps herself up in a blanket.

WHETHER THE HEMLINE IS LONG OR SHORT, the neckline is squared or haltered, the sleeves long or tasseled, spring '92 dresses have one similarity: they're wearable. A woman no longer has to give up comfort in order to look good in a dress; she just has to slip it on. The tassels on Bob Mackie's fit/flare dress (left) create a sophisticated look, but the fit and feel are cool and comfortable. Two long slits add drama to Oscar de la Renta's easy-to-wear silk gown (center). The classic springtime halter dress (right) by Ralph Lauren, couples sex appeal with simplicity.

"Time-travelers passing through our era would have continuous fashion déjà-vu," notes Lynn Schnurnberger, author of Let There be Clothes. "They'd observe today's popular plaids and recall Queen Boadicea's favorite outfits from 60 A.D. All of the Madonna wanna-bes sporting the bra-on-the-outside look would remind them of Greek women, who slipped on the first bras but also wore them outside their clothing. And they'd see zippers on everything and recall that zippers, which were patented in 1893, were originally touted to eliminate the odious task of buttoning shoes." "It just proves that history repeats itself, everything old is new again, and you should never throw anything away," adds Schnurnberger.

In Let There be Clothes — an irreverent but loving history of the 40 millennia in which woman (and man) has risen each morning to contemplate, "What Am I Going To Wear?" — Lynn Schnurnberger provides a century-by-century romp through civilization's wardrobe.

Packed with 1600 illustrations, the oversized paperback, uses today's visual vernacular to juxtapose fashion with political events, social trends and technological developments.

Among the thousands of facts:

25,000 B.C.: Stepping Out. The caveman wraps strips of hide around his feet and invents the first shoe. From here it's only a short step to moccasins and in the chill of the Ice Age, the first boots.

3,000 B.C.: Am I blue? The answer for millions of women distressed by varicose veins is yes. But they were merely born too late. Egyptian beauties covet those veiny blue lines, and when they're lucky enough to have them on their legs and breasts, carefully outlined them with blue dye.

16th Century: Doublet your fun. As doublets grow scandalously short, the codpiece is introduced to protect a gentleman's modesty by covering the opening between his hose. So far so good, but some wags start using codpieces as pockets, and they become so heavily padded, they're simply brazen eye catchers. Are they sexy? Well, Henry VIII thought so. (As does Cher's one-time boyfriend Richie Sambora of the rock group, Bon Jovi.)

1917: America enters World War I, and women gratefully donate their steel corsets to the effort. The resulting 28,000 tons of steel are enough to build two battleships.

1970: By a hose. Distraught latex manufacturers spearhead an investigation to discover what happened to the girdle. Overwhelming evidence points to pantyhose as well as the let-it-all-hang-out ethos that makes it okay to jiggle when you walk.

"Fashion reveals at least some of the naked truth about history," observes Schnurnberger. Her book answers countless questions, both haute and not-so-haute about fashion through the ages. What did Noah wear on the ark? Why does everyone in medieval paintings look pregnant? Who invented the raglan sleeve? Why did Neferitti wear such an odd-shaped crown?

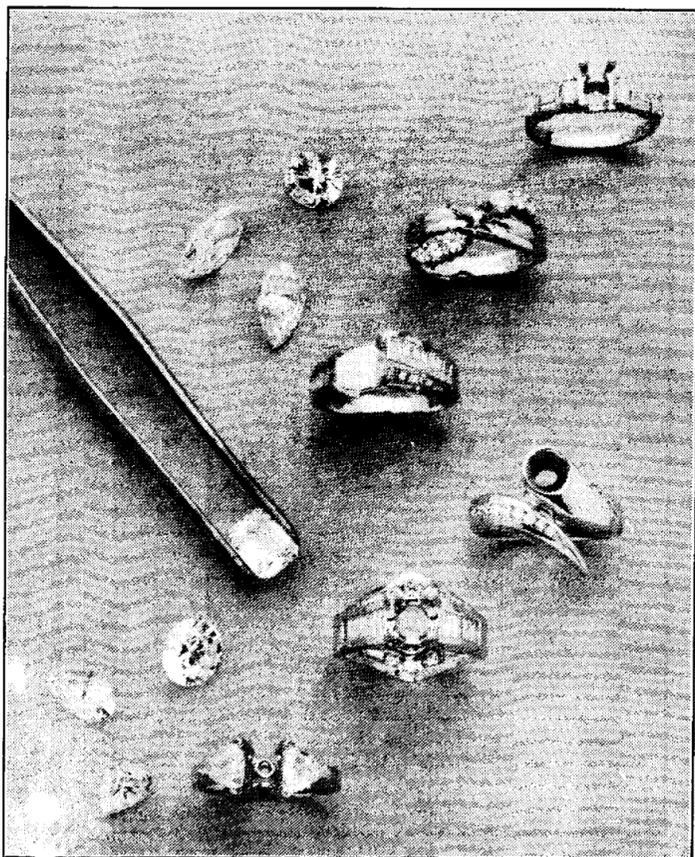

From the first sheath and early cosmetic surgery, through Italian silks, the Gibson girl, riots of zoot suits, Polyester and even punk, Let There be Clothes is the most glamorous way to know what the world has been up to.

THE BRIGHT SIDE...Career dressing with a kick by Harvé Benard features a tailored jacket over the season's newest bottom — a "skort" or dressy shorts — all in a polyester crepe in spring-bright orange. His tan, double-breasted suit in an elegantly soft-to-the-touch polyester microfiber by Pierre Cardin. To top it all off, his chamois-soft olive trench coat by Newport Harbour resists rain and wrinkles. (Approximate retail prices: Harvé Benard ensemble $550; Pierre Cardin suit, $400; Newport Harbour trench coat $200)

"Little Dots All In A Row" on black and white silk taffeta create summer elegance in this 2-pc cocktail dress from Pauline Trigère's collection for Spring '92.

Cocktails with a twist

WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO WEAR TO THE COCKTAIL PARTY? A cocktail dress, of course! But if you really want to make an intoxicating entrance, you'll wear one by Christian Francis Roth. His wearable cocktails for spring '92 include dresses shaped like glasses, which are topped with three-dimensional cherries, celery and olives! Roth calls his style "intentional chic." Others may call it outrageous but, whatever it's called, his dresses are sure to get a woman noticed! Photos:

Modern fantasies

Add a little color to your life with fancy cut semi-precious gemstones set in bold contemporary gold designs. Fancy cut gemstones — semi-precious stones such as amethyst, tourmaline, kunzite, blue topaz, citrine, aquamarine and rhodolite garnet — are set into one-of-a-kind contemporary fashioned jewelry created by award-winning designer Pamela Ahee Thomas. Each piece of jewelry flows to allow the stone the maximum light and beauty and is handcrafted in the Ahee workshop. Some fancy cut stones are cut into fantasy shapes — freeform shapes with unique angles and facets, each stone quite individual and cut by the most talented gem cutters. This is a true art form perfected by world renowned stone cutter Bernd Munsteiner of Germany. See the collection of fancy cut and fantasy cut gemstones both loose and in their world-class settings including those cut by Bernd Munsteiner and designed by Pamela Ahee Thomas exclusively at Edmund T. Ahee Jewelers 20193 Mack Avenue Grosse Pointe Woods.

Brides and grooms to be... tradition with a 90's flair

TAKE THEIR BREATH AWAY in this beautifully hand-beaded "pure silk satin" sheath from Bridal Originals for spring, 1992. The V-shaped neckline, long sleeves, open diamond back, and detachable chapel train are sure to make your groom smile as he waits at the altar for you.

If you gather all of your family and friends (and somehow get them to cooperate) you may be able to come up with some money-saving ideas for your wedding. For example, outside weddings or receptions are absolutely beautiful, and if someone close to you has a large backyard or piece of land, it can be decorated lavishly enough to be compared to a garden, park or private grounds that some people spend big money to rent.

How about an evening wedding? By holding your ceremony at dusk, a romantic, elegant and memorable atmosphere is created.

An evening wedding also enables you to stretch your money a bit further, as some couples have a small after-party with hors d'oeuvres for the guests, and a dinner gathering for the wedding party and family later in the evening. This may save the money that would have been spent on an elaborate hall.

A wedding gown does not have to only be worn once. There are beautiful gowns that have been designed in ways that allow for pieces of the fabric to be cut and/or added on so that the dress can be converted into a semi-formal or party dress.

It's all about saving money — even the wealthy are careful not to splurge outrageously in these trying times.

Of course, there are certain occasions in which money, and a lot of it, is necessary in order to make a lasting, memorable, and forever treasured impression. Birthdays, holidays, promotions — all are very special and important, but also occur more than once in a lifetime.

The singular glorious ceremony that is celebrated and treasured forever, is your wedding. And, although the wedding day is a precious one, and perfection is the ultimate goal, spending thousands of dollars and running yourself ragged is not the answer; it will only result in post-marital blues.

Saving, not skimping

It is nice to have a wedding with traditional touches, but this does not mean stretching your budget out of bounds just because you have a preconceived idea of how a wedding "should be." Don't be afraid to go against the laws of etiquette and invent your own ideas for your wedding in order to reduce the impact on your already slim wallet, your valuable time and, most importantly, your sanity.

Bridal collections at '92 celebrate style and tradition

Brides this season can have it all — the understated elegance of pure lines, luxe fabrics, and discreet details; the fantasy of a garden neckline of colorful silk flowers; the insouciance of a short, flared skirt. Color emerges like never before with all-over pastels; tinted overlays and underlays; head-to-toe embroidery; and flecks of gold, silver, and platinum. Yet, every new design captures the ageless romance and charm of the bride. Bride's magazine presents the hottest trends and most alluring looks for brides, maids, mothers, grooms, ushers and more.

Fabulous fabrics

- Crisp transparencies — organza, silk gazar, a profusion of tulle layers, point d'esprit.
- Frosted effects — iridescent hues, pearlized fabric.
- Matte mixed with shiny, such as satin with lightweight taffeta.
- Fluid, two-ply crepe.
- Rich textures — floral jacquard, ottoman, silk shantung, faille, silk dupioni, panne velvet.
- Laces — guipure, reembroidered, Alençon, Venetian, Chantilly, eyelet.
- Dimensional surfaces — pique, quilted fabrics.

• Sheer shades — whitened pastels (mint, pink, yellow, lavender) add a pearlized look to white or ivory.

• Metallics — gold or silver threads, beads, plain or crepe.

• Embellishments — dimensional flowers of silk or self-fabrics blooming around the neckline, strewn about the skirt, hem border, and train; colored embroidery; pastel beading; trelis ribboning; jewelery and/or pearls concentrated on collar, cuffs, hemline; a soft bow gracing the neckline, waist, bustle.

Shapely silhouettes

- Pure lines — elongated bell-shaped skirts gathered at the hips; A-lines.
- Necklines — open, rounded square; scoop; bateau; fichu collars; high wedding-band collars.
- The waist as a focal point — nipped and cinched with a sash.
- Silk columns with narrow fishtail bottoms or flyaway trains sweeping down from the back of the shoulders.
- Trains — the extra-long monarch length; a soft, oversized bustle bow.

A short story

Short dresses are a growing option for the sophisticated bride or an encore wedding. Shapes are borrowed from the most elegant evening wear, reinterpreted with a bridal influence. New lengths:

• Above-the-knee and flared; short bell shapes.

• A short dress with a detachable ball-gown overskirt that can be removed after the ceremony.

• The high-low hemline — above-the-knee length in front, flowing to a dramatic sweep train in back.

• A play on separates — a short slip dress paired with a matching coat; tunic top over a short, slim skirt.

• The softly tailored above-the-knee coatdress; buttons, lapels, and cuffs are embellished with pearls, jewels or lace.

Luxe legs

• Colors — white, off-white, or ivory for the bride; pastels (matching dresses and shoes) for maids.

• Thigh-highs and stockings with garters.

Shoe shapes

High heels are still high on the list, but new shapes offer sophisticated style — and comfort, to boot. Stepping out on the scene:

• Elongated fronts with square toes and elaborate embellishment; chiseled, curved, or skinny heels.

• Ribbon treatment on ankles and shoe fronts.

• Jeweled satin shoes.

The bouquet today

This year's bouquet is small, tight, and refined — but decidedly special in its choice of blooms, textures.

• Biedermeiers, posies, and nosegays in a variety of shapes and styles.

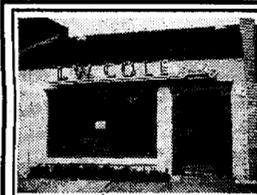

• Wired and handtied blossoms in one bouquet.

• All-white bouquets of lilies of the valley, fleur d'amour, and serena roses for formal celebrations.

• Mixed tones and unusual textures for semiformal, informal, weddings.

• Out-of-season blooms (now available through imports and hothouses) add unusual hues to the traditional palette.

• Bouquet alternatives — garlands; gowns trimmed with fresh or silk flowers; fresh-flower necklaces, hair ornaments; a cloche of fresh blossoms worn on the head.

REDEFINING TRADITIONAL MENSWEAR, designer Donna Karan introduces her new line for men. Karan's goal is to provide men with clothing that offers the sensuality and functionality of womenswear. This wool crepe 6 to 2 button suit is perfect for work (with the viscose tie), yet appropriate for nighttime fun, paired with the classic white cotton shirt.

Venture into vintage eyewear

Vintage is hot fashion news! Styles reminiscent of the 1920's, '30s and '40s are extraordinarily popular in clothing...in shoes...in jewelry and, of course, in eyewear. World class designers such as Giorgio Armani, Ralph Lauren, Geoffrey Beene and Liz Claiborne are all taking their cues from decades past with a vast selection of vintage eyeglasses designed for every taste, every lifestyle, every budget.

All the latest eyewear fashions can be seen at Woods Optical Studios, 19599 Mack Avenue, in Grosse Pointe Woods. Come see the complete eyewear collection by Liz Claiborne and Polo Ralph Lauren, at our 1st annual Eyewear Trunk Show, May 18 between 2:00-7:00 p.m. For more information call 882-9711.

Just in time for spring

MORE THAN JUST A TIME TELLER — Citizen introduces America's Cup Watch to celebrate Citizen Company of America's role as the Official Timer of America's Cup '92. Available in a strap model (suggested retail $325) and a bracelet model (suggested retail $350), its computerized capabilities enable an event's participants to monitor multiple events simultaneously. A series of flags change colors at five one-minute intervals, indicating elapsed time prior to a race's start. It is water-resistant to 100 meters, and audible beeps track the countdown. Handsomely emblazoned with the America's Cup logo, which is also engraved on the watch's caseback, the band is marked with a diagram of the triangular eight-leg course.

Neckwear that ties in with man's individuality, mood

While women have long used fashion to express their individuality, men traditionally have had fewer options for making their fashion mark. However, the days of a single corporate "power tie," which was so prevalent in the eighties, and the assumption that men's clothing is meant to be functional, but not particularly interesting, are now gone.

In fact, today's smart dressers have learned an important lesson: Just as women accessorize with scarves and jewelry to express a variety of personality traits and moods, men can select neckwear that reflects a broad range of emotions and personal styles.

For spring/summer '92, Countess Mara features witty motifs, luxurious fabrics and unexpected color combinations along with classic styles, accommodating the tastes of both trendy and traditional dressers.

Reflecting on the line's far-reaching appeal, Melanie Morgan, director of design, observes that "generally, the trend in neckwear is moving towards classical looks, but it's not the "conservative" we saw before." In fact, Morgan says, today's distinctive styles are actually a return to an earlier time, when each neckwear manufacturer had a recognizable signature.

How a fabric is woven, printed and cut is as relevant today as it was half a century ago, when Countess Mara was established, and it is this attention to detail which, over the years, has attracted discriminating men of all ages.

And, by grouping the current collection into concepts which reflect a particular theme or color story throughout, Countess Mara makes it easier than ever to identify the wide range of looks that are available. From the Modern Classics, inspired by the geometric shapes, linear stripes and styles of the 1940s, to the fun-filled look of Dots-n-Stripes in bright fuchsia, purple, hunter, and chartreuse, there are ties for every man and virtually every mood.

Keep in mind, advises Morgan, that a man's tie is a significant reflection of his personal style. What type of man would wear which type of tie? According to Dorian Dickinson, Countess Mara's "Tie Teller," there are several distinct parallels:

• Creative: The Archives collection, which features a wider shape and updated colors, is retro neckwear for the confident man who likes strong colors and a fashion-forward look.

• Conservative: The Collectibles collection, with an antique, burnished look, reminiscent of the ties worn two generations ago, appeals to the man who appreciates timeless design but wants to forego the traditional reds and blues.

• City chic: The Elegante collection, which features intricate designs and attention to the most minute details — each tie is self fabric tipped — suits the sophisticated man about town.

• Wild and crazy: The Impressioni collection, an assortment of art-inspired abstracts with splashes of color, is sure to please the free spirit looking for a way to make an unconventional fashion statement.

Both Morgan and Dickinson agree: With the variety of ties available from Countess Mara this spring, it's easier than ever for men to express their individuality.

SOPHISTICATED and fashion forward, the Collectibles Collection from Countess Mara appeals to the man who appreciates timeless design. Horizontal stripes and geometric patterns with an antique, burnished look combine for a sophisticated, fashion forward approach to neckwear.

The Ancients claimed that the god Vishnu searched the depths of the sea for a pearl to adorn his daughter on her wedding day. Since pearls were considered carriers of love, happiness and good fortune, this was indeed an appropriate gift.

Of course, even without magical powers, pearls are an excellent choice for a bride. On this special day she wants to look her best, and nothing is as flattering as the pearl's unique glow.

Pass the veggies and make 'em organic

George F. Van Patten

By John Minnis

"Everything You Wanted to Know About Organic Gardening But Were Afraid to Ask" — that's not the name of this book, but it should be.

"Organic Garden Vegetables" is an easy-to-read must for anyone who aspires to go natural — in the garden, that is. It's even great for the first-time gardener who wants to learn how to do it the right way, the environmentally friendly way.

The book was written and published by George F. Van Patten of Portland, Ore. He has more than 15 years' experience in gardening and has owned and operated landscape businesses and a garden center.

The logically organized and indexed book virtually takes the would-be organic gardener step by step, from seed and seedling selection and buying to beds to compost materials and natural fertilizers to crop rotation and watering to problem solving.

Van Patten points out that many of the seed varieties available today were developed for modern agriculture. They were bred for such qualities as long shelf life and disease resistance, with taste usually last on the list of desirable traits.

One piece of advice he gives is to choose seed that carries the label "All American Selection" or "AAS Winner." These seeds have demonstrated superior growth and flavor in a wide variety of climates across America, he says.

He helps you select seedlings and tells how to nurture your own. Another section talks about soil conditions.

Van Patten describes no-till gardening — for gardeners who don't like to work — and raised and flat beds.

He devotes several pages to composting — something near and dear to many people's hearts these days because many municipalities are refusing to pick up yard wastes. The section on composting is thorough, yet in bite-size pieces. The book would be a worthwhile buy just for its composting how-tos.

Another several pages discuss natural fertilizers, such as blood, bone and seaweed meals and green manures. Van Patten even suggests ratios for mixing the fertilizers and how to apply them.

All the foregoing information is concisely written — evidenced by the fact that we're still only up to page 22.

Here's what reviewers said

"This book is rife with inside cultural information not readily found elsewhere. It is also logically organized and easy-to-use." — Vern Nelson, The Oregonian

"I spent the weekend reading and must admit the book fulfilled my hopes. Van Patten has hands-on experience and the ability to provide organic vegetable gardening information in an understandable manner." — Dorothy Carroll, The San Diego Tribune

"With organic gardening becoming more important, this handy paperback should be useful to many gardeners." — George Cohen, American Library Association - Booklist

"This is a book for the gardener who really wants to get his or her hands dirty, and it is full of cultural information. It is a home-grown and truly down-to-earth practical gardening guide for any level of vegetable grower." — Horticulture Review

"A practical handbook that simplifies many seemingly complicated organic garden methods. The arrangement lends to quick referencing and at-a-glance information." — Book-watch

"Material presented is on target whether one is looking for organic information or the basics of vegetable gardening." — Walter Nelson, Cornell Cooperative Extension Specialist.

"A new and most usable book, that is written understandably and helpfully. The arrangement leads to quick referencing and at-a-glance information." — Washington Daily News

"Here is a book which is one of the best currently available. It has many black and white illustrations and the text, full of useful details, is well organized and easy to handle. There is information which is not readily found elsewhere." — California Garden

"Growing suggestions are detailed and clear, with excellent emphasis on organic materials and methods... much good gardening advice." — Greener Gardening

rieties are available and the problems most often encountered in their cultivation.

Listed in alphabetical order, the vegetables range from artichokes to turnips, with everything in between. (Zucchini is listed under "squash.")

The book ends with a list of seed catalog sources, arranged in such a way that Van Patten offers this practical, time-saving advice, "(Photocopy) this page. Cut out addresses and tape to envelope."

He makes it that easy throughout. The book is a good buy.

"Organic Garden Vegetables" can be purchased for $9.95 plus $3 for UPS shipping, handling and insurance from Van Patten Publishing, 4204 S.E. Ogden St., Portland, Ore. 97206.

Tax consequences of a vacation home

Prepared by the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants

If you're thinking about purchasing a vacation home, be sure to consider the tax consequences. According to the Michigan Association of CPAs, the tax treatment of your vacation home depends on how and when you use it.

A second home

If you've purchased a second home and elect not to rent it, the tax rules are quite simple. You can deduct mortgage interest and property taxes, but not other expenses, such as utilities and repairs. If you change your mind and rent your home, Uncle Sam allows you to rent your home for up to 14 days a year and collect that rental income tax-free.

Combining business and pleasure

Different rules apply if you rent your home for more than 14 days and still spend considerable time there yourself. If your personal use exceeds the greater of 14 days or 10 percent of the time that it is actually rented at fair market value, your vacation home is still considered a second residence for tax purposes. This means that you can deduct mortgage interest, property taxes, and casualty losses (within certain limits) and a portion of your rental expenses.

The IRS requires that expenses be allocated to rental use based on the ratio of rental days to total use days. Be aware that the tax court has recognized a different method for allocating personal and rental expenses. Its position is that mortgage interest and real estate taxes should have a separate allocation based on the number of rental days to the total days in the year.

In addition, rental expenses must be deducted in a prescribed order: first, interest, taxes and casualty losses; then insurance, utilities, repairs, and other operating expenses; and finally, depreciation.

It's also important to note that the deductible expenses on a second home cannot be more than the income received from the property.

Rental properties

For your vacation home to qualify as rental property, the personal use of the home must be limited to 14 days a year, or 10 percent of the number of days the home is rented at fair market value, whichever is greater. This restriction also applies to members of your family and others who are interested in renting your home for less than the fair market value. Keep in mind that days spent repairing or fixing up the vacation home are not counted as days of personal use.

More tax breaks

Owners of rental properties, as opposed to owners of second residences, may be eligible for even bigger tax breaks. Generally, they may deduct operating expenses, costs for liability insurance and advertising costs incurred in order to rent the property, as well as depreciation. These are also subject to the IRS method of allocating expenses based on the ratio of rental days to total use days. Be aware that the amount of mortgage interest attributed to personal use is considered consumer interest, which is no longer deductible.

If you were unable to rent your property or rented it for only a limited time, Congress still provides you with a tax break. As long as you are actively attempting to rent your property, you may deduct expenses incurred during a period in which it is not being rented.

Unlike a second home, all expenses allocable to the rental period are deductible, even if they exceed the rental income and produce a loss. However, your losses may be subject to limitations under the passive-loss rules.

Consult a CPA to better understand how these rules apply to your particular situation.

$5,000 in prizes offered in woodworking contest

As Workbench magazine puts it, it's "time to build a box for bucks."

Which is to say that the fourth annual Build-A-Box contest has been announced, with three top prizes of $1,000 each, three more worth $500 apiece, and 10 $50 merit awards. The awards total $5,000.

And all entrants will receive a Certificate of Appreciation.

The contest is co-sponsored every year by Workbench, a do-it-yourself magazine, and Western Wood Products Association, the world's largest lumber trade association.

The Build-A-Box competition takes its name from the contest's central idea — building a box and then making something interesting out of it. The two box sizes mandated by the contest are 24 inches by 9-1/2 inches, and 24 inches by 28-1/2 inches (the depth is up to the entrant). They are to be built of 3/4-inch-thick pine, spruce, fir or larch. Quarter-inch plywood or hardwood can be used for drawer bottoms, cabinet backs and other surfaces that normally call for thin sheet material. One or both size boxes can be used in a project, and as many boxes as needed can be used.

The projects themselves can be functional or purely decorative, fitted with doors or drawers, painted, stained, carved or covered with fabric. Past winners have included a chip-carved toy box, a wren house, a set of bedroom furniture, a chair, a toy bus, a toy truck, a back yard sculpture, a sewing box and even a paddle boat. (The boat was made of 18 boxes.)

There are three award categories: Single Box ($1,000 and $500); Multi-box ($1,000 and $500); and Most Innovative ($1,000 and $500). As noted above, 10 $50 merit awards will also be given.

Entries — only photos, not the projects themselves — must be accompanied by a drawing of the project with all dimensions clearly marked. A working shop drawing is acceptable. The photos of the completed project which must accompany each entry can be color or black-and-white, and can be slides or prints or Polaroids.

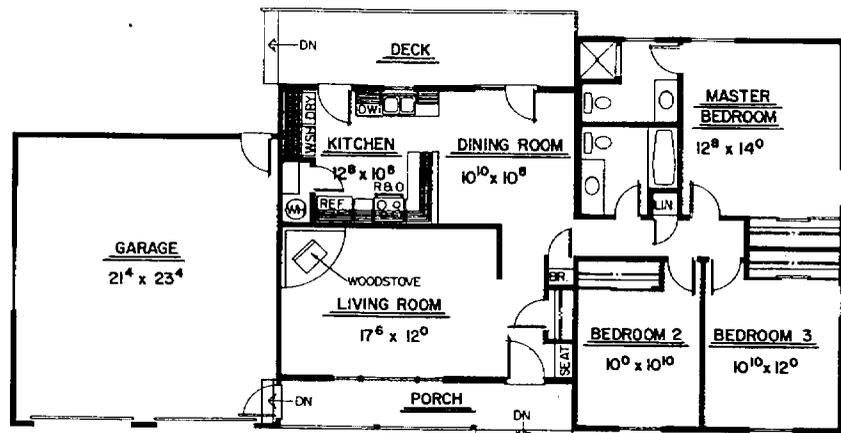

The contest sponsors also request that entrants write a little about their projects — what materials were used, how long it took to build, what kind of finish was applied, and how the box project is to be used. Finally, each entry must be accompanied by signed certification that the project is the entrant's own design, and that he or she built it.

The deadline for entries is May 1. They are to be mailed to Build-A-Box Contest, Workbench magazine, KC Publishing, 4251 Pennsylvania Ave., Kansas City, Mo. 64111.

Akron: Privacy, convenience

AKRON

FLOOR PLAN
PLAN # 288-04

OVERALL DIMENSIONS: 68'-0" x 32'-0"
LIVING: 1280 square feet
GARAGE: 528 square feet
COVERAGE: 1808 square feet

Three bedrooms/two baths is the minimum room arrangement for most growing families, and 1,200 to 1,300 square feet is the maximum size for many family budgets. In the Akron, these requirements intersect without sacrificing either privacy or convenience.

The master bedroom has a private bath — unusual in a house this size. The two front bedrooms share the centrally located main bath. All the sleeping areas lie along a side hall and are well separated from living and work spaces by the bathrooms and intervening closets.

The living room is just that — an all-purpose space for lounging, entertaining, work or play. An offset wall divides it from the cooking/eating areas behind, while maintaining an open traffic flow.

Although the dining room occupies the same framing space as the kitchen, it feels like a separate room because of the visual barrier of a serving bar and hanging cabinets. The sense of openness in the dining room is increased by double doors that open onto a back deck.

The U-shaped kitchen has counters and appliances down either side, with pantry and cabinets in the far wall. This is also the location of the washer/dryer. Placing utilities in the kitchen is the main space compromise in the Akron. It conserves square footage for a third bedroom and answers numerous requests for combined work areas in smaller homes.

The Akron is conventional ranch style, but the inclusion of a covered front deck adds a touch of luxury, as well as providing a protected pathway between the two-car garage and the main house.

For a study kit of the AKRON (288-04), send $7.50 to Today's Home, P.O. Box 2832-T Eugene, Ore. 97402. (Be sure to specify plan name and number when ordering.)

Household Help by John Amantea

Q. Last week, my basement laundry room started flooding for no apparent reason. It's not coming from the washing machine, or the pipes. It almost seems to be seeping in from the floor and back wall. I called a plumber, but he told me he'd have to tear up my driveway to determine where the leak is coming from, and that it would cost me several thousand dollars just to do that. I can't afford that, so I'm at my wit's end. Perhaps you can give me some guidance as to where this water could be coming from, and what I can do about it. Just for your information: the house is 6 years old, and is attached to adjoining houses on both sides. It is a three-story house.

A. I can only guess without being able to look at it. However, with row houses such as yours, there is usually one water main feeding the attached houses. Even if there is a tiny pinhole in that main, the water has to go somewhere. I think that's what's happening with your basement.

In order to determine this, I suggest you call your local water department. Their number will be listed in the phone book. Have them come out and look. They will then determine the location of the leak and let you know what has to be done to repair it.

Unfortunately, since you're the one with the leak, you will probably be responsible for the repair. To get yourself the best price, contact several plumbers for estimates. Local ordinances will probably require that these plumbers be licensed to work on municipal pipes, but most plumbers are, anyway.

As you probably know, time is of the essence. Water damage is an insidious thing, and it can be quite extensive. Don't wait any longer on this. Get on the phone right away.

As to the cost, it is possible that your homeowner's insurance will cover some of it. Check your policy, or call your insurance broker for more information once you know where the leak is coming from, and what you have to do to repair it. Good luck.

Send your Household Help questions to John Amantea, King Features Weekly Service, 235 East 45th Street, New York, N.Y. 10017.

Home Tips

Picnic trays — For people who like to eat outdoors, our family found that using cardboard box bottoms, cut about 2 inches deep, works well for holding plates.

You don't have to worry about bread, chips or food falling on the ground. You can also put your drink inside this box.

Loretta H., Eastman, Ga.

Plastic trash cans — I love animals, so I feed the stray cats in our neighborhood. Instead of making trips inside to fill their dishes with dry food, I put the food in a self-locking plastic trash can. It keeps the food clean and dry and saves a lot of steps.

I also feed birds, so I keep a small plastic trash can filled with bird seed. I buy the seed in bulk, so I save money and it stays fresh until it's time to get more.

Wanda K., Paducah, Ky.

Cat litter box — You can save money and the environment at the same time by using one section of five to seven sheets of newspaper to line litter boxes instead of using plastic liners or trash bags.

Open the paper to the center and place in the litter box. Fold the edges over the long rim side of the box and set the cover in place. For boxes without lids, use elastic to hold the paper in place.

We have three cats which adds up to three litter-box changes every week, so we really save money using the newspapers.

Olivia N., Ruidoso, N.M.

Travel tip — I travel frequently, and after getting stranded a few times without change, I started carrying rolls of quarters, dimes and nickels in my briefcase.

There is nothing more frustrating than only having bills when you're in a hurry and desperately need a quarter. This makes my briefcase a tad heavier, but my life is a bit easier.

7 feet of storage — in just 18 inches of floor space

You can install this storage tower in an unused corner of your bedroom, or anywhere else you have 18 inches of floor space. And despite its small dimensions, the tower will handle a dresser full of sweaters, scarves, socks, blankets and even shoes.

The unit, which is made from standard 1 x 10 lumber, is 7 feet high and has eight shelves measuring 17 inches wide by 9-1/4 inches deep. (The size is adjustable, depending on your ceiling height. You can also use 1 x 12 lumber, instead of 1 x 10, thus making the shelves 11-1/4 inches deep.)

The storage tower is remarkably simple to build. All you need is a saw, a hammer and 41 lineal feet of 1 x 10 western softwood lumber. You'll find that western lumber is exceptionally easy to work with. It cuts smoothly with either hand or power tools and finishes nicely with little or no sanding.

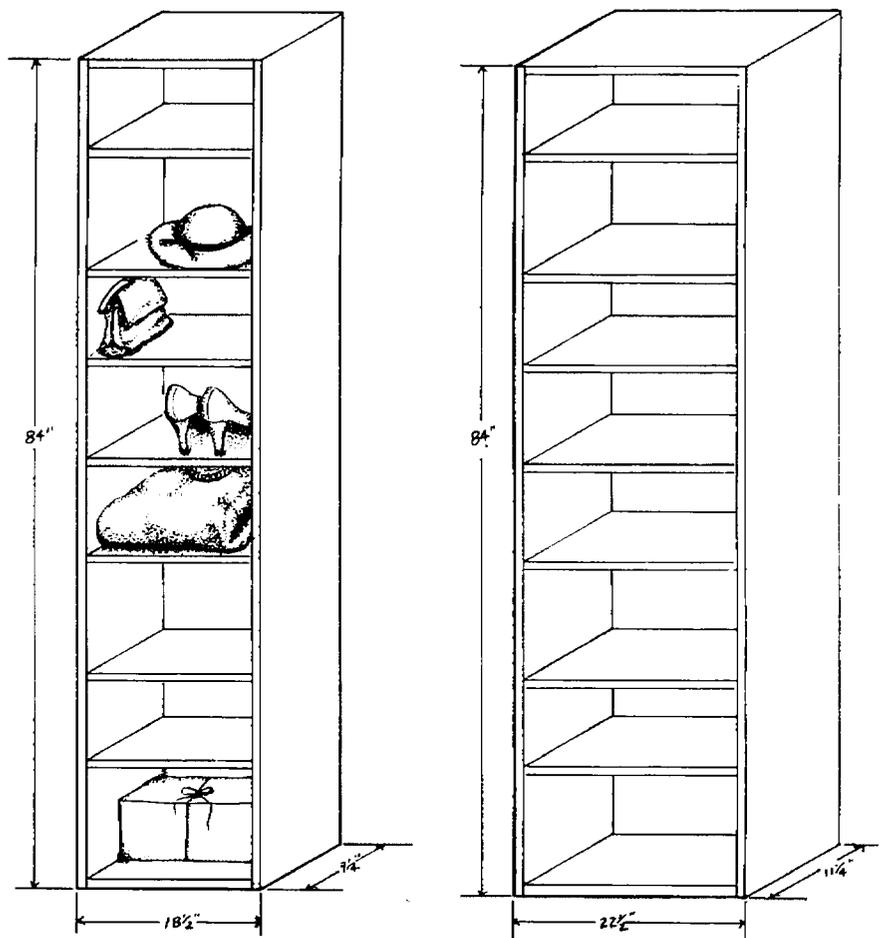

To build the shelves, cut four lengths of 1 x 10 for the sides and back, each 7 feet long. Cut the remaining lumber into nine lengths, each 17 inches long. This will give you seven shelves, plus the top and bottom pieces. The shelves shown in the illustration are spaced from 9 inches to 12 inches apart to allow for items of different sizes. The shelves can be made adjustable by installing a pair of metal standards with shelf clips on each side. (If you use this method, cut half an inch off the length of each shelf to accommodate the standard.) Or you can mount the shelves permanently by nailing through the sides and back and into the shelves with 3-inch finish nails. Still another shelf-installation option is to nail 1 x 1 cleats under the shelves for support.

To assemble the unit, nail the top and bottom pieces in place between the sides, then attach the two 1 x 10s to the back, nailing them at the top, bottom and sides.

After sanding lightly, apply a coat of paint or varnish to protect the wood from dust and moisture. After the unit is in place, drive two or three nails through the back of the unit into a wall stud, top and bottom, to ensure stability.

For more do-it-yourself projects you can build with wood, write to Western Wood Products Association, Dept. 292, Yeon Building, 522 SW Fifth Ave., Portland, Ore. 97204-2122.

This storage tower will house a host of small or foldable items, such as shirts and sweaters, shoes and handbags. Yet it takes up less than 2 square feet of floor space.

Antiques by Ralph & Terry Kovel

Pittsfield, Mass., Memorialized

Collectors of blue-and-white china decorated with pictures of old buildings and places can discover much hidden history through research and study. The pictured scenes are of important places and events of the years when the plate was made. Today it might seem strange to picture the local aqueduct, penitentiary or insane asylum on a dish promoting good will or tourism, but they were the important and impressive buildings of the 19th century.

One interesting blue-and-white Staffordshire plate is "Winter View of Pittsfield, Mass." The scene pictures a tree, fence, buildings and a lone woman walking with a child or animal. There is no snow, but the tree branches are bare. The building was originally a Congregational church built in 1794. After a fire in 1850, it was moved and became part of the Young Ladies Institute that is shown on the plate. The fence surrounds an elm that was said to have been 340 years old when it was cut down in 1861.

Meetings were held under the branches of the elm during the Revolutionary War. The woman walking in the park is said to be Crazy Sue, a nonconformist of her day. The town's important landmarks are all pictured on this plate that was made in England in the mid-19th century, and sold at a Pittsfield store.

Modern blue-and-white souvenir plates found in gift shops picture similar scenes of modern life. Pause and study your town's souvenirs. They may be the collectors' items of tomorrow.

Join the fun at the antiques auctions. For a copy of the Kovels' booklet, "How To Go to an Auction," send $2 and a long, stamped (52 cents), self-addressed envelope to Kovel's, P.O. Box 22900, Beachwood, Ohio 44122.

Q. I have two wooden dolls. One is 16 inches high and has a black body, with blue pants, red and yellow arms, yellow legs, red shoes and a gold hat. Across his chest it says "RCA Radiotrons." The other is 19 inches high and is dressed as a drum major. He is designated "General Electric Radio" on his hat. They are both made of painted wood and have jointed arms and legs. Are they valuable?

A. Your GE doll was made by Cameo Products Inc. to advertise radios. It may have been given to a customer as a gift, but it was probably used as a dealer display. The RCA doll was made for display about 1926. The doll's hands were made to hold display cards. It was also made by Cameo Products. The design was based on a Maxfield Parrish idea, and collectors of Parrish prints as well as doll collectors would be interested in the doll. A doll like yours sold at a recent auction for $800.
